REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114.)—On Thursday, the 17th ult., the annual meeting for the installation of the Worshipful Master and festival of St. John was held. Present, Bros. the Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; P. de Lande Long, W.M.; C. Schulen, P.P.G.D.C.; Emra Holmes, P.P.G. Registrar, M.C.; J. Harris, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; W. Spalding, Secretary, P.M.; R. Barton, LL.D., P.P.G.M. Western India; A. D. George, S.W.; J. J. Burton, J.W., P.P.G.D.C., Cambs.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, S.D.; H. Miller, J.D.; J. Casley; Geo. Turner, P.P.G.D.C.; H. Clark; P. Cornell, P.P.G.S.D., and others. Visiting brethren; Rev. — Morse, P.P.G.S.W., Cambridge; J. B. Perrott, P.P.G.S.W., South Wales; N. Tracy, P.P.G.S.W., W.M., Perfect Friendship Lodge, and others. The lodge having been opened in due and solemn form, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Lockwood duly installed Bro. A. D. George, the W.M. elect into the chair of King Solomon, the ceremony being characterised by that degree of solemnity and impressiveness which the reverend brother knows so well how to impart to the proceedings. The M.C. having proclaimed the W.M. in ancient form, the newly-installed Master proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Peter de Lande Long, I.P.M.; J. J. Burton, S.W.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, J.W.; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; A. Allen, I.G.; G. Spalding, Tyler; C. Schulen, Treasurer; W. Spalding, Secretary. One or two of the brethren being unfortunately absent they were invested by proxy. Bro. Dr. Barton proposed that a Past Master's jewel be presented to Bro. Long for his able conduct in the chair. Bro. Emra Holmes cordially seconded the motion, testifying to the unvarying courtesy which Bro. Long had shown whilst holding that position, and the zeal and assiduity which he had exhibited as Master of the lodge. The motion was carried by acclamation at the suggestion of Bro. Lockwood. Bro. Long thanked the brethren very warmly for their kindness, which he appreciated all the more because he knew it was not the custom of the lodge to present the Master with a jewel. Whatever future honours might await him in Masonry, he should value the jewel of the British Union Lodge more than anything else. The current business being disposed of, the brethren retired to the banquet, which was served in Bro. G. Spalding's best style. The table was decorated with choice flowers, the champagne was splendid; both were the gift of the W.M. Ample justice having been done to the viands, and the cloth being removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair. Some conversation ensued as to the course to be taken with reference to the attendance of brethren at the forthcoming installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master. It was suggested that the proposition which had recently appeared in the FREEMASON, that the Albert Hall should be secured for the installation, was the only feasible one for allowing such brethren as were entitled to attend an opportunity of seeing the Prince. A brother remarked that there were 1400 actual Masters, double that number of Wardens, of course, and probably about 4000 Past Masters, all of whom had a seat in Grand Lodge. He thought that if tickets at guinea or half a guinea were issued to such as were eligible to attend, a handsome sum might be realised for the charities, as probably between 8000 and 10,000 had a right to be present and no doubt half that number would gladly pay the amount in order to attend. It appears there is some difficulty about the renters of the Albert Hall, but surely it is not insurmountable, and from the opinions generally expressed on this and other occasions it may fairly be assumed that any scheme tending to limit the attendance unjustly, or which fails to provide adequate accommodation for the Masters of the Craft, will meet with universal disapprobation. Bro. Dr. Barton proposed "The Immediate Past Master" in eulogistic terms and in an admirable speech expatiated upon his many excellencies of head and heart, and alluding to the Craft generally he said that it behoved brethren to be very careful nowadays for their characters were soon known all over the world. What with steam and the electric telegraph the world was brought very close together. What he thought might be considered one of the coincidences of life so frequently occurring and which illustrated what he said was the fact that his immediate predecessor, Bro.

Durance Cartwright, Prov. Grand Master of Western India, was uncle of their present Master, Bro. Durance George, of whom he had great hopes. Bro. Long briefly and modestly responded to the toast and made a pleasant speech revealing nothing as to what was contemplated by the Board of General Purposes, (of which our popular brother is Vice-President) in the installation of His Royal Highness. The I.P.M. proposed the W.M., who suitably responded. In proposing the D.P.G.M. from the chair Bro. George took occasion to dilate upon the admirable way in which he filled that office and thanked our venerable brother for the impressive way in which he had conducted the installation. Bro. Morse in responding to the toast of the visitors, made a most excellent speech. Alluding to some remarks made by Dr. Barton earlier in the evening, showing the vast antiquity of Masonry as evidenced in the caves of Elephanta, which have a lion at the entrance with a drawn sword, are due east and west, are formed like a lodge, and have three seats, east, south, and west, &c., Bro. Morse said he had been struck with the evidences of Masonry in Lincoln Cathedral many years ago. In a certain part seen from the tower and in their right position are three gargoyles, making the signs of the three degrees. There they have spouted out water for centuries upon centuries and there they have been making the signs of Freemasons, and some would have us believe Masonry was a thing of yesterday. Bro. Emra Holmes, by permission of the W.M., assumed the gavel, and called upon the brethren to rise and drink to the memory of their deceased Bro. King, a frequent visitor at the lodge, who had been suddenly called from among them, called from labour to refreshment, and who he hoped was awaiting them in the Grand Lodge above. Bro. King had just been installed W.M. of the St. Luke's Lodge, when he died, and he believed, as Bro. Sanderson had said solemnly over his grave, that such was his love for Masonry and so prepared was he, that had he been asked how he would be taken, he would have wished no other death than this. The toast was drunk in solemn silence. But for the passing sadness by this allusion to our much esteemed and deeply lamented brother, a very agreeable evening was spent, and the brethren were loath indeed to part. Bros. Clark and Turner contributed very much to the harmony of the evening by giving some capital songs.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—A meeting of the Whittington Lodge was held on Monday evening, at Anderson's Hotel, Bro. Alfred Rhodes Haley, W.M., presided, and initiated M. Giuseppe Oberti. Bro. James Weaver, P.M., passed Bros. Beldan, Webb, May, Brown, Hum and Williams, and the brethren afterwards banqueted together. Thirty-seven sat down, and among them were several visitors, the principal being Lieut.-Col. James Peters, 29th North Middlesex Rifles, W.M. Thames Valley Lodge, No. 1460; and William Stephens, W.M. Marquis of Ripon Lodge, No. 1489. It will be remembered that three weeks ago the Whittington Lodge presented the Marquis of Ripon Lodge with the collar jewels of the officers, the presentation being made in the latter lodge by Bro. James Brett, P.G.P. In returning thanks for the visitors to the toasts proposed in their honour on Monday evening, Bro. William Stephens took the opportunity thus afforded him of thanking also the Whittington Lodge for their handsome gift, which he hoped the brethren of the Marquis of Ripon Lodge would always value as much as they did now. He esteemed the possession of a jewel which had belonged to the Whittington Lodge as one of the greatest points gained towards the success of his own lodge, and he could not but remark that the generous gift exhibited the true principles of Freemasonry. He trusted that he should hand over the jewel to his successor in the chair to continue the good work of Freemasonry already begun, and he concluded by expressing his truest fraternal regards to the brethren before him, and offering to them the most cordial invitation during his year of office to visit him at his lodge. Lieut. Col. Peters also acknowledged the toast of "The Visitors," and expressed his gratification at the hearty reception which he had experienced that evening, and at meeting the brother who a short time ago had consecrated the Thames Valley Lodge, of which he was Master. Bro. Jones replied for the Past Masters. Among the officers who replied to the toast drunk to them, was Bro. Walker, J.W., who announced the fact of his Stewardship for the Aged Freemasons' Festival on the 27th of January, and pleaded the cause of that Institution very powerfully. Bro. Moore, I.G., acknowledging the difficulty there was to say anything new in answer to these toasts, which were proposed and responded to in almost the same words from day to day, said he looked upon the post to which he had attained as one of high honour, for to the I.G. was entrusted the important duty of keeping out all intruders to the lodge. Looked upon by many as almost a formal office, it was to him of great moment, for while it prepared him for the more onerous duties of the Master's chair, which he hoped ultimately to reach, it should warn brethren to keep out all such would-be intruders to their hearts as pride and self-conceit. When the Treasurer and Secretary responded to the toast which was specially dedicated to them, Bro. Little read some lines he had written, founded on 1 John, ii. 19, on a late great withdrawal from the Order, which, however, we refrain from giving, on account of their not being yet finally revised. The brethren, after enjoying several good musical performances, adjourned to the third Monday in January.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, December 17th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion Square, Hampton. Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec., opened the lodge. There were present during the afternoon and evening Bros. W. Hammond, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1512, W.M.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, W.M. 1413, S.W.; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; J. Gilbert, S.D.; E. Hopwood, P.M.; J. T. Moss, P.G. Reg., Middlesex, P.M.; G. S. Stretton; C. W.

Stretton; W. B. Shackleton; C. Home; W. Warhurst; J. Howe; H. Tozer; and many others. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. W. Smeed, P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, P.M. 246; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain, 907; &c., &c. The veteran Secretary, in a slow, impressive, and solemn manner, raised Bros. W. Warhurst and C. Howe to the third degree; passed Bro. J. Howe to the second degree. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, W.M. 1423, S.W., took the chair, and in an able, painstaking, and correct style initiated Mr. Charles Lucop into the mysteries and the privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Bro. W. Hammond, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1512, W.M., closed the lodge. Refreshment followed labour. The usual toasts were given and responded to. Songs and recitations passed away an agreeable reunion. The brethren separated, wishing each other a right merry Christmas and a happy new year.

STOCKWELL LODGE (No. 1339).—A meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 17th ult., at the Tulse Hill Hotel. Present:—Bros. Keenik, W.M.; Pain, S.W.; W. H. Benham, J.W.; Bennett, S.D.; Bowyer, J.D.; Loe, I.G.; Francis, Sec.; Knibbs; T. Harris; W. Harris; Hinxman; Pillinger, D.C.; Sidwell, Dea; and H. Hart. The lodge being prevented from meeting at the usual place Herne Hill, the W.M. called a meeting at the above place. The business was to elect the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, and to elect Bro. Hart, of the Rose of Denmark, as a joining member. The S.W., Bro. Pain, having generously given way to the J.W., Bro. Benham, J.W., was unanimously elected W.M. Bro. Hammerton, P.M., was also unanimously elected Treasurer; and Bro. Parkinson, Tyler. The ballot was also unanimous in the election of Bro. Hart as joining member. A jewel having been voted to the outgoing Master, the lodge was then closed.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The election meeting of this young, prosperous, and flourishing lodge, was held on Saturday, December 12th, at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court. There were present, during the afternoon and evening, Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, W.M.; J. W. Baldwin, S.W.; J. Baxter-Langley, J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; T. J. Sabine, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; J. S. Sweasey, S.D.; J. Wolff, J.D.; E. W. Devereux, I.G.; T. H. Miller, P.M. Organist; A. F. Loos, M.C.; B. Wright, W.S.; W. A. Simmons, C.S.; J. T. Moss, P.G. Reg. Middlesex, P.M.; E. H. Thielay, W. Munday, Underhill, Pearson, Hobly, and many others. Amongst a large number of visitors, we noticed Bros. W. Hammond, P.G. Steward Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326, W.M. 1512; Peacock, 21, and others. In an able, correct, and impressive manner, Messrs. F. d'Henreux, W. Chartres, Davis, and Moore, were introduced separately and initiated in the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The elections, which were unanimous, decided that Bros. J. W. Baldwin, S.W., should be W.M.; T. J. Sabine, Treasurer, and J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler Middlesex, Tyler, the last two named being re-elected. J. Faulkner added his name to the list of Stewards for Girls' School, 1875. The usual ten-guinea Past Master's jewel was agreed to be presented from the lodge funds to the W.M. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. It was decided to have an emergency meeting in January, so as to clear off all the work, leaving nothing but the installation to do at the February meeting. All business being ended, the lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour.

CHATHAM.—Brownrigg Lodge (No. 1424).—St. John's Day, which is the annual installation day in this lodge, falling last year on Sunday, the installation of a new W.M. of the lodge was performed the day following, and the brethren assembled on Monday in large numbers to witness the ceremony in the lecture hall of the Soldiers' Institute, Chatham. The lodge was established only two years ago, and during the time which has followed the consecration it has secured the membership of between 70 and 80 brethren. Its prosperity is further evidenced by the accumulation of a fund amounting already to £27, established for the purpose of supporting the Masonic institutions, by a portion of every initiation fee being set apart for the attainment of this object. In addition to this, all the heavy expenses incurred in the establishment of the lodge have been defrayed, two Past Master's jewels have been purchased, and jewels commemorating the foundation have been presented to each founder. It is also in contemplation to present another jewel, to be called a commemoration jewel, to each member of the lodge who was such at its consecration. Already the lodge has strongly supported the Masonic institutions, and this object is the principal one at which the moving spirits of the lodge lay out for themselves in the future. It was therefore under very favourable circumstances that the installation of the lodge's third Master was celebrated on Monday, and the style in which it was performed was very creditable to the Lodge of Instruction, which meets every week in connection with the parent lodge. The W.M., Bro. J. A. Bates, Master Gunner, R.A., took the chair at the hour announced for the meeting of the brethren, and, after the usual preliminaries, installed his successor, Bro. John Jervis, S.W., Staff-sergeant, paymaster's clerk, as W.M. for the year ensuing. On the completion of the ceremony the following brethren received the appointments of officers of the lodge:—Bros. Simmons, S.W.; McCoy, J.W.; Cottrell, J.D.; Ramsden, I.G.; Johnson, D.C.; Pickering, Steward; Crane, Steward; Husband, Organist; Thompson, Treasurer; and Magee, Secretary. A vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Past Master Bates for the accomplished style in which he had performed the installation, and a further vote of thanks was given to the Provincial Grand Officers and W.M.'s of lodges in the Province of Kent, for honouring the lodge with their presence. Bro. Spencer, Provincial Grand Secretary, acknowledged the compliment; The W.M.

then presented to Bros. S. Cole, P.M., and J. A. Bates, P.M., handsome and massive P.M.'s jewels, in recognition of the services which they had rendered to the lodge during their respective Masterships. Bros. Cole and Bates having expressed their gratification at receiving such a mark of approval of their efforts, lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, provided by Bro. Willis, of the Sun Hotel, Chatham. In addition to the members of lodge who were present in lodge and who partook of banquet were the following visitors:—Edwards, 1257; Morley, 1257; Strip, 749; J. Philips, 1205; R. Harvey, 1175; W. Gamon, 20; G. White; C. A. Lyon Campbell, 1174; Tovell, 184; E. Towman, 168; F. Binckes, G. Steward Secretary, Masonic Boys' School; T. Wyles, 1050; S. A. Bastridge, 84; T. W. Newton, W.M. 1050; Hewitt, 184, W.M. elect; Evans, 20; Knowlton; H. Clark; A. Spencer, Prov. G. Sec.; W. Carlin, 715; McCoy, 700; McKen, 184; Eastley, 184; Barnes, 20; H. Massey, Freemason, 619; Burfield, P.M. 20; Owen J. Carter, 20; and Edwards, 20, W.M. The banquet was thoroughly enjoyed by the brethren, and when it had been done full justice to the W.M., after grace, proposed the toasts. The toast of "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers," was responded to by Bro. Binckes, who was specially selected by the W.M. for that duty. In doing so, Bro. Binckes first acknowledged the great kindness with which he had always been received in the Province of Kent, but said it was a heavy task to impose on him to call on him to respond for such a distinguished galaxy of brethren as the Grand Officers. Of the Pro Grand Master it must be said that he stood so near the throne that any mention of him must be approached with delicacy; but he (Bro. Binckes) had been able to estimate his high qualities and great abilities from a long acquaintance with his lordship as Deputy Grand Master, and as Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, in which positions he had proved over and over again his eminent qualifications for any office. The while the Marquis of Ripon was in America, Lord Carnarvon performed his duties to the entire satisfaction of the Craft; and the unqualified applause which his appointment as Pro Grand Master to the Prince of Wales elicited in Grand Lodge, showed how much he was esteemed. Of the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, although he was young in years and in connection with the Craft, he could also speak most favourably as a member of a lodge in London to which he (Bro. Binckes) belonged, and as Grand Master of one of the largest provinces in England, West Lancashire, he had fully discharged his duties. As to the other Grand Officers, it was high praise to give them to say that they had been closely identified with that practical charity upon which the Order was erected; and it could not but always be to him a great honour to have his name connected with the toast of the Grand Officers. In all the annals of Freemasonry, it was never at a more important period of its history than at present. It had to mourn the loss of a very good, able, kind, and efficient chief, in the secession of the Marquis of Ripon from the headship of the Order. It had sustained by this secession not only a great loss, but a heavy blow. But while lamenting over the loss, and suffering from the blow, they need have no discouragement with reference to the principles of the Craft, which were immutable, unalterable, indestructible in themselves, and maintained the vitality of Freemasonry. It did not matter who might be at its head from time to time—as Masons they must continue to place their principles properly before the world, and they need not fret over the loss of a chief, however great. But as the darkest hour of midnight rendered the dawning of morning the brighter, it had been the lot of Freemasons to secure the heir to the throne of England as their Grand Master, and while they had to lament the loss of the Marquis of Ripon, they had to congratulate themselves on services of the Prince of Wales in his place. After expressing his regret at the loss of the Duke of Leinster, whose Grand Mastership of 61 years duration was unequalled in the annals of Freemasonry, Bro. Binckes pointed out to the brethren, how, as military men and Masons, they should "close up," and stick shoulder to shoulder, and show to the world that no matter what might be their occasional Masonic losses, they were so thoroughly imbued with the principles of Freemasonry that they could bear a loss without injury, however severe it might be. The outcome of it all was that Masons must do all they possibly could to spread the principles of the Craft, and to show that the aged, the widows and orphans, had their heartiest sympathy; Bro. Spencer, Prov. G. Sec., replied for "Lord Holmesdale and the Provincial Grand Officers," and laid before the brethren the principles of the Provincial Grand Lodge Charity Committee, urging them all to support it and to carry any cases they had to it, instead of trying by their individual efforts to secure an election. In the latter case they might fail in their object, but if they entrusted the charge to the committee, it was sure to succeed. Bro. Newton, W.M. Gundulph, 1050, responded for the W.M.s. of provincial lodges, and Bro. Kole in a flattering speech proposed the W.M., who in reply, said he should endeavour to follow the footsteps of his predecessors in carrying out the duties of the chair, and in encouraging the members to support Masonic institutions. Bro. Bates, responding to a special toast in his honour, said the compliment was greatly enhanced by the cordiality with which it had been received. He had considered it the highest honour to be elevated to the post of W.M. of the Lodge and he was pleased that his performance of his duties had met with approval. He had no pretence to aught but zeal for the good and welfare of their time-honoured institutions, to which he felt proud to belong, and whose basis was to serve God and honour the Queen. He returned his best thanks to the brethren who had supported him during the year, for he could not but remember that it was a numerous attendance of officers and brethren that clothed the ceremonies with importance. Bro. Carter replied for "The Visitors," and Bro. Binckes was again called on to answer for "The Charities." He said he had not thought he would be called upon a second time to speak, and he never felt in his life before such a thorough inability as he then had to respond to the old prosaic toast, after listening to songs which in addition to being good, were well sung, and had given pleasure and delight to all who had heard them. They were all enjoying a most agreeable evening, and this old skeleton, being brought on the table, rather marred their pleasure; but after all said and done, it might be wise in their extremest mirth to be serious a moment or two. Now with reference to the Charities he would say place aux dames, and he would first speak of the Girls' School. It deserved all the assistance that could be given to it. Since it was established in 1788, 1100 or 1200 children had been educated there, and he had heard it said that not a single one of all those girls had gone astray. He might say that he was a hard practical man, and such a statement as this which he had heard would tend to show that Freemasons' children were made of different clay to others. But he was not an optimist, and did not go in for perfection in any rank or walk of life. We were all tainted with original sin, and all we could do in the education of the young, was to strive to bring them up in the right path, to give them the best possible education, to instil into their minds the best and purest sentiments, a regard for the highest morality and a knowledge of religion. Paul might plant and Apollos water, but it rested with a higher power to give the increase. All that the managers of the schools could do was to do their best. Passing on to the Boys' School, it had been established since 1798, and 1300 boys had been educated there of his own knowledge, and to his great regret there were some few instances of boys not turning out all that could be desired, and showing themselves "sons of Adam." But, appealing to his hearers, which of them, he would ask, had not gone astray. He might again say he was not an optimist, and did not go in for perfection. He did not like perfection, he did not care for a man who said he was perfection. They all tried to do their best; but, in a world like ours, it was utterly impossible to be perfect. He did not believe in any man who said he did not know what it was to succumb to human temptation and human weakness. Let him not, however, be misunderstood, for all that he desired to see was support given from every rank, class, and branch of Freemasons to the institutions, and something done to enable those who were charged with the conduct of them to benefit the objects committed to their care, and with respect to the schools to enable them to provide good education to fit them for the future career, and to try to imbue them with and instil into their minds the best and highest principles they possibly could. Having done that, they had done their duty; if they did not do that, they had fallen very short of their duty. Referring to a portion of the ceremony of initiation, he said the brethren ought to follow up their profession by a practical application of what they stated, which was the true test of charity. Out of 40,000 or 50,000 Masons, the two schools supporting 176 boys and 150 girls were contributed to by only about 5,000 brethren. He thought a mere trifle should be given by all initiates, which would enable the institutions to do far more than they did at present. The widow's mite was as valuable as the rich man's contribution, and he asked them all to do something. As military men, they were able to spread the principles of Freemasonry all over the world. They were in fact missionaries. They were here to-day and did not know where they might be to-morrow; but the best wishes of the brethren would go with them, and it was hoped that prosperity and success, as well as happiness, might go with them. Wherever they went they might extend Freemasonry, and he hoped they would do so to the utmost of their ability. The remainder of the toasts were afterwards given, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated. Some excellent singing enlivened the evening.

Royal Arch.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Chapter (No. 1326).—On Thursday, December 17th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion-square, Hampton, an emergency meeting of the chapter was held. There were present Comps. J. T. Moss, M.E.Z.; F. Walters, P.Z., S.E., as II.; W. Hammond, J.; H. A. Dubois (J. 73) Treasurer; E. Hopwood, S.N.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; and many others. The visitors were Comps. W. Smeed, P.Z. 946; Wyer, 619; and others. Although the weather was so inclement, yet a candidate did attend. Bro. John Wallis, 1326, was duly exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry. The ceremony was beautifully rendered and impressively done. All the business being ended, the chapter was closed. Refreshment followed labour. In consequence of the members of the lodge and chapter assembling at the same festive board, an agreeable evening was well spent. After a few hours of social enjoyment, the brethren separated, those belonging to the Great City returning to town, after wishing each other all the compliments of the approaching season.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—In compliance with summons the companions met at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, Dec. 15th, and the chapter was opened by the Principals, Excellent Comp. Keene, Z.; Jelley, H.; J. W. Parfitt, J.; in the presence of Past Principals Moultrie, Mann, Geo. Parfitt, and Mitchell, of No. 41; Reeves, P.Z. 379; and Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, and 710. This being done, among the companions admitted were Thompson, E.; Carey, N.; Hill acting as P.S.; Brown, Howse, all of 41; and Phillips, 379. The Treasurer's report was read and received. A ballot was taken for the Principals, which resulted in the election of Comps.

Jelley, Z.; J. W. Parfitt, H.; Thompson, J. A ballot was also taken for the other officers, by which Comps. Carey was appointed E.; Hill, N.; Hearn, P.S.; Moultrie, P.Z., Treasurer; who were then invested. Comps. Graham and Brown were chosen as Assistant Sojourners, and Gizzard Janitor. A ballot was taken for Dr. Hopkins as a joining member, which was unanimous in his favour. Equally unanimous was a ballot for Bros. Bennett and Brown, as candidates for exaltation, but the latter was unavoidably prevented from attending on this occasion. The former was introduced, properly prepared, and exalted by the M.E.Z., assisted by Comp. Geo. Parfitt, P.Z., and in the explanation of the signs by Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. On the proposition of Comp. G. Parfitt, seconded by Comp. Hill, a vote of thanks was passed to the Treasurer for the excellent manner in which he kept the accounts. On the proposition of Comp. Carey, seconded by the Treasurer, it was ordered that a letter of condolence should be sent to the relatives of Comp. Carter, the deceased curator of the Masonic Hall. Bro. Davis having been proposed and seconded for exaltation, the business of the evening was concluded, and the chapter was closed at 7 p.m.

Mark Masonry.

ST. JOHN'S (TIME IMMORTAL) LODGE, BOLTON.—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Commercial Hotel, Bolton, on Thursday, 17th December. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. James Newton, P. Prov. G. Mark Inspector of Works, W.M.; John Alcock, S.W.; Jas. Horrocks, J.W.; Thos. Entwistle, P. Prov. G. Mark Master; G. P. Brockbank, Past Grand Mark Warden; Robt. Whittaker, P. Prov. G. Mark Dir. of Cers.; Thos. Morris, P. Prov. G. Mark Sword Bearer; Wm. Horner, P.M.; and others. The lodge was duly opened and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, and the W.M. elect, Bro. John Alcock, was installed in the chair of A. by Bro. Thos. Entwistle, P. Prov. G. Mark Master, and the following officers were appointed and invested, viz:—James Horrocks, S.W.; John Harwood, J.W.; Robt. Glaister, M.O.; Thos. Holmes, S.O.; Jas. Allen, J.O.; G. P. Brockbank, Treasurer; Thos. Entwistle, Reg. of Marks; Thos. Morris, Secretary; Robt. Pickup, Conductor; Henry Tattersall, S.D.; Henry Greenwood, J.D.; Samuel Barrett, Inner Guard; Chas. Walker, Tyler. All business being concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Knights Templar.

PRESCOT.—William de la More Encampment.—A conclave of this preceptory, stationed at Prescott, in the Province of Lancashire, was held at the New Court House, Prescott, near Liverpool, on Thursday, the 16th December, when there were a good number of the Knights of exalted Order. The list of those present included the names of Sir Knights J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.P.; J. K. Smith, Constable; Reginald Young, Marshal; R. Brown, Chaplain; T. Ashmore, Registrar; J. Wood, Treasurer; H. Nelson, Sub-Marshal; J. W. Ballard, First Herald; P. H. Whittaker, Thomson, W. Tyrer, with Sir Knights T. Berry, Past G.S.B. of England, and P.E.C., Jacques de Molay; and H. Burrows, Alpass Preceptory. After the encampment had been opened in ancient form, six candidates were balloted for, and there being three in attendance, they were subsequently installed Knights of the Order. Sir Knight Dr. Joseph Kellett Smith was installed M.E. Preceptor for the ensuing year; the ceremony being performed by Sir Knight J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.P., assisted by Sir Knight T. Berry, Past G.S.B. of England. The following officers were subsequently appointed:—Sir Knights Reginald Young, Constable; T. Ashmore, Marshal; R. Brown, Chaplain; H. Nelson, Registrar; J. Wood, Treasurer; J. W. Ballard, Sub-Marshal; Thompson, C. of Guard; and W. Tyrer, Almoner. At the close of the business, the assembled Knights sat down to a most sumptuous banquet at the King's Arms Hotel, provided by Mrs. Lloyd, the hostess. Soups, viands, and wines were of the very best quality, and the serving gave the most ample satisfaction. The after-portion of the day's proceedings was most enjoyable, and was a pleasant sequel to the afternoon's business.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

IPSWICH.—Victoria Chapter Rose Croix.—The annual meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, 14th ult., present, Ill. Bros. the Rev. T. G. Beaumont, 30°, M.W.S.; the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, 30°, and Emra Holmes, 31°; M.E. Bros. M. T. Westgate, P.M.W.S.; and C. T. Townsend, P.M.W.S., Recorder; and the following Sovereign Princes, Dr. Mills, 1st General; Geo. Cresswell, W. Cuckow, and others. Visitor, Ill. Bro. C. J. Banister, 30°. The minutes of last chapter having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for M.W.S. for the ensuing year, when Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes was duly elected to that high office. Bro. Cuckow was re-elected Treasurer. Ill. Bro. Banister said, that having been in London to attend the Supreme Council meeting on Saturday, when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was installed as a 33°, and Grand Patron of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, he had taken the opportunity of coming on to Ipswich, to attend this chapter, having heard that the work was very well done here, and he regretted very much to find that there was no business. He hoped, on the next occasion he visited them, he might be more fortunate. Bro. Holmes said that it would give both himself and the brethren very much pleasure if Bro. Banister would visit them at the next regular meeting, and instal him into the chair of M.W.S. He looked upon Bro. Banister as his godfather in Masonry, at least, in the high degrees; as it was at his hands he received the Rose Croix Degree in Newcastle-on-Tyne, and, he believed, the Templar Degree some years ago. Bro. Banister stated that it would give him very great pleasure to instal Bro. Emra Holmes, but he thought, as a matter of courtesy, their new Deputy Inspector General, the Rev. A. Bruce Fraser, 32°, whose jurisdiction extended over Oxford, Cambridge and Suffolk, should be first asked, and if he declined, then he should be extremely pleased to come. The current business of the evening having been disposed of, the brethren retired to the banquetting-room, where the usual substantial repast was spread. The regular toasts having been given, and the new chiefs of the Order, the Prince of Wales and the Earl of Carnarvon having been duly honoured, the brethren passed a pleasant evening together, and separated at a reasonable hour.

Red Cross of Constantine.

BRISTOL.—The annual meeting of the Wm. De Irwin Conclave, and the Munbee (Military) Conclave, No. 101, was held at the head quarters of the 2nd Gloucester Volunteer Engineer Corps, on Saturday, the 12th inst. The Sir Knights assembled at 3 p.m. Ill. and Eminent Sir Knt. F. G. Irwin, Intendant General of Bristol, occupied the throne. The muster roll being called, the following Sir Knights answered, viz.: W. Hodges, V.E.; J. T. Hallam, S.G.; W. Munro, J.G.; J. M. Hunt, H.P.; E. E. Honey, Prefect; M. Ansaldo, S.B.; W. H. Lane, O.; A. G. Williams, W. Benham, E. Ware, T. Brooke, W. Kirby, J. Collins, W. Richards, B. Gay, No. 17; W. A. Scott, M.P.S.; Major Plant, V.E.; and Capt. Ward, No. 101. The Sir Knights under the command of the S.G. and J.G., then formed an "Arch of Steel," and received the Chief Intendant General of Bristol, Gloucester, and Somerset, Major General Gore, B. Munbee, and his Aid-de-camp. The general having ascended the throne, the minutes of the two conclaves were read, when the M.P.S. said the first business was to instal Bros. D. J. Dutton and J. Naish, as Knights of the Munbee Conclave. At the conclusion of the ceremony all those Knights below the grade of Viceroy were asked to retire, and a College of Viceroys was opened; all below the Sovereign Degree retired. A Senate of Sovereigns was formed, and Sir Knts. W. Hodges and Major Plant, were duly enthroned Sovereigns of their respective conclaves. The Senate being dissolved and a college reopened, Sir Knts. J. T. Hallam, and Capt. Ward, were placed in the chair as V.E. of the two conclaves, the whole of the ceremonies being performed with the usual ability, which M. General Gore, B. Munbee, displays on such occasions. Sir Knt. W. Hodges ascended the throne, and appointed the following officers of No. 17 for the ensuing year, viz.: Sir Knts. W. Munro, J.G.; J. M. Hunt, J.G.; G. Tonkin, H.P.; B. Gay, Recorder; A. G. Williams, 1st Lieutenant; W. Benham, 2nd Lieutenant; W. Richards, Prefect; M. Ansaldo, S.B.; T. Brooke, H.; J. Cole, S. The conclaves were now closed, and the Sir Knights retired to the Grand Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared, to which about thirty sat down, presided over by Major General Gore B. Munbee, supported on his right by Capt. F. G. Irwin, J. T. Hallam, and others; on his left by M. A. Scott, P.S. of No. 101; W. H. Davies, of Weston Super Mare; and others. The usual toasts were given and responded to. The visiting Sir Knights having retired by an early train, were now compelled to leave. Ill. Sir Knt. Capt. F. G. Irwin, took the chair, and said he was pleased with that day's proceedings, also with the progress of the Red Cross in Bristol; it had succeeded far beyond his expectations; it was barely twelve months since it was first established here, and now the two conclaves number near fifty members; great praise was due to the members for the zeal and energy they had displayed during the past year, and he would compliment the officers of No. 17 for the efficient way in which they had performed their duties, and as a mark of his approbation for the great interest taken in the Order. In this province he had appointed the P.S. Sir Knt. G. F. Tuckey to be Deputy Intendant General of Bristol, with full powers to act as such; in regard to the Munbee Conclave, he would say, it being purely a military conclave, the members were not likely to be so large as that of the Sister Conclave; still, he was satisfied, from the zeal displayed by those Sir Knights belonging to it, they were determined to do what they had to do with fervency and zeal. He would always be pleased to confer honour where honour was due—that would be only upon those who worked for it. He was about to form a Provincial Grand Conclave, and no appointment to office in that conclave would be made but to those who, from the attention they displayed to the duties of their own conclave, showed they were deserving. He therefore had much pleasure in naming Eminent Sir Knt. M. A. Scott, P.S. of No. 101, as Provincial Grand Treasurer; and Sir Knt. J. T. Hallam, P.G. Recorder. As they were about to open another conclave, he would not appoint the other officers till after that event. He would also say it was his intention, at an early date, to summon a Sanctuary of K.H.S., and St. John, also a Council of Knights of Constantinople, and he felt certain it would meet with the like success of the Red Cross. The Sir Knights retired at an early hour, well satisfied with the day's proceedings.

LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the hall, No. 12, Tron-gate, on Tuesday evening, 15th ult. Bro. J. W. Burns, R.W.M., occupied the chair, and there were also present, Bros. C. K. Jenkins, D.M.; James Love, S.M.; James Booth, S.W.; William Wilson, J.W.; Thos. Paton, Treas.; D. McDougall, Sec.; and a goodly number of brethren. The minutes of last meeting having been read, and some private matters in connection with the lodge discussed, applications for admittance to the Order were read from four candidates. One of these not being able to be present that evening, the other three were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order, Bro. Thallon, P.M., Lodge St. Clair (362), officiating in an able manner. There being no further business the lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

LODGE STAR (No. 219) met in the hall at No. 12, Tron-gate, on Monday, 14th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan, presided, and the lodge having been opened, he initiated five approved candidates for admission into the Order in a manner so masterly as to surprise experienced brethren who knew or were made aware of the fact that it was the first time he had so officiated. Thereafter the chair was occupied, pro tem, by P.M., Bro. Joseph Wilson, and the lodge having been raised to the Fellow-Craft degree, five were advanced to that degree by Bro. Muir, of the Union and Crown (103). Subsequently the lodge was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason; and it being a case of emergency, that degree was received by a candidate at the hands of Bro. G. W. Wheeler.

LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The forty-fourth anniversary festival of this lodge was held in the Assembly Rooms, Bath-street, on Christmas night, when there was a numerous attendance of the brethren of the lodge, together with their wives, sweethearts, and friends, as also visiting brethren from sister lodges. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair, presided, supported on the platform by Bros. R. Mitchell, P.M.; Dempster, D.M.; Dobbie, S.M.; D. McKerdy, S.W.; A. Conochie, J.W.; A. Macnair S.D.; P. Wilson, J.D.; Laird, Treas.; McInnes, Sec., &c. After an excellent service of tea, the chairman said:—Ladies, Gentlemen, and Brethren, once more we have met to celebrate our annual re-union, and it is very cheering to see around me so many faces, known of old, and many strangers, but none the less welcome, brethren from sister lodges, and last, but not least, the wives and sweethearts. The old saying that "Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it brings good cheer," is amply borne out by our present meeting. It was considered by some that Christmas was a bad night to hold our annual gathering, but this I consider erroneous. It is customary in a great many families whose members are scattered hither and thither, that they meet once—Christmas Day—around the family board, and enjoy the society of each other that is denied them through the year. We are met here to-night, in a homely way, to enjoy the society of each other and to strengthen and cherish brotherly love. And what night could be better adapted to this purpose—a night associated with the birth of Christianity—a season when the ills and sufferings of those around us are met with kindly aid and advice—a time when our best feelings should be stirred up. And I think that from the elements of witchery and grace I see before me, that the fairies, mayhap, favour us with a visit during the night, and skip and dance and astonish even us poor mortals by their various gifts. I only hope that each and all will endeavour to enjoy themselves, and make those around them happy. It is not my intention to take up much of your time, the more that you will be anxious to enjoy the harmony that is in store. But, before sitting down, allow me to say a little about lodge matters. The Lodge Union is now in her 44th year, and let me tell you that she is not a maiden lady, having changed her name some years ago, and since that change of name she has gone on improving as she grows older, like good wine; and strange as it may seem, I have no doubt that the older she gets, she will give birth to many good and true Masons. Since I entered her house, some 6 years ago, I have found her a good, motherly body, and the family thought it meet that I should take charge of the household. I now have had charge of family matters for something like 3 years, and during that time many additions have been made to the number of our household, and I may state that we have been, and are a well regulated and harmonious family. We have our little family jars at times, but we, like good brethren, forget and forgive. It is strange we are all sons in our family, but, collectively, we make one sister, and her name is Union. She has many sisters in the province, and I have reason to know and appreciate their many sisterly qualities, their kind attendance from time to time, when advice was necessary, and in helping to wash and keep the house clean. Not a little of the success of our family arrangements is due to this timely, kind reciprocity between our own and sister lodges. And let me tell you we have succeeded wonderfully, and we have gathered gear, but in gathering gear we have not done so in a parsimonious way. We have had members of the family ill, and have been in a position to attend them in their distress, and assist them in their difficulties, and they had this in their own right of brotherhood. And during the last ten years we have made 350 Masons in the Union, and during that period we have made marked progress in financial matters, and have, at the present moment, a handsome balance in our favour. Also during the year named we have dispensed considerable sums towards benevolent objects, both directly to individuals and to the several benevolent funds connected with our Order. I hope the bump of benevolence in the Union Lodge will enlarge with her prosperity. Nay, I am confident it will. But I am afraid that I may tire you with family matters. I will not trespass much longer on your patience. Just allow me, before sitting down, to say one or two words, anent some events in Masonic history that have occurred during the present year. First, the death of our much revered P.G. Master, Bro. the Earl of Dalhousie—a nobleman who worked earnestly and in a singularly able manner for the cause of Masonry—a brother respected not only for the position by birth, but, above all, for his strength of purpose and high mental gifts. He has gone from amongst us, but his memory will be cherished by every good Mason. Scotch Masonry has sustained a loss that cannot be easily replaced. Secondly, we have the resignation by the Earl of Ripon of the Grand Mastership of England; and the cause is now sufficiently well known, and is to be regretted on the ground that he has sacrificed freedom of action in thought. The immediate result of his resignation has been that the patron of Scotch Masonry, the Prince of Wales, has accepted the Grand Mastership of England—a position which we have no doubt he will fill creditably to himself and to the Order. We have had changes in our own Grand Lodge. The Earl of Rosslyn has retired, after a term of services that forwarded and put new life into the internal working of the Grand Lodge, and he has been succeeded by a nobleman whom we have no doubt will do honour to the high position he has been elected to. I am afraid I tire you. I will now pull up, as the coachman said to himself when he saw a "public;" but, before getting off the "dickie," allow me to thank you for the attention you have shown during the stage, and I trust we will have a pleasant evening's entertainment together. Ladies, gentlemen, and brethren, I wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Thereafter a vocal concert programme was entered upon, in which the lion's share of the work—and rightly, therefore, of the honours—fell upon Bro. James Houston (354), a comique of the genuine type, who has worked his way up to a proud position in his profession. Later in the evening, Bro. R. Mitchell delivered a brief and seasonable address. He was there, he said, in place of the Rev. Robert Thomson; but, with all deference, their reverend brother had not a greater love for Freemasonry than their humble servant, whose sons, he might tell them, were becoming his brothers, so that he should shortly be able almost to hold a lodge in his own family! The proceedings, as usual, concluded with an assembly, which was kept up with spirit till an advanced hour.

LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—This lodge met on Wednesday, 16th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, the R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw, presiding. After the reading of the minutes of last meeting, it was proposed by Bro. Dougall, seconded by Bro. Harley, and agreed to, that there be a committee meeting called for 23rd ult., to make arrangements for the annual festival of the lodge. Three candidates were then passed from the E. A. degree to that of Fellow Craft, and three raised to the degree of Master Masons, the work in each case being efficiently wrought by Bro. G. C. H. McNaught, P.M. Lodge Shamrock and Thistle (275). Thereafter a pleasant evening was spent in harmony, in the course of which the toast of the "Visiting Brethren" was given by the chairman, coupled with the name of Bro. McNaught, who replied, giving in turn "Success to Lodge 354," which the R.W.M. suitably acknowledged.

LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360). The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their Hall at No. 30 Hope-street, on Friday 18th inst. There was a very numerous attendance, both of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Munro, who was supported by Bros. John Davidson, P.M.; D. Lamb, D.M.; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; and J. Peters, acting J.W.; and the other office-bearers in their respective places. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. J. E. Spiers, who at the last meeting had been nominated and approved of for the office of S.M., was duly installed into the same by the R.W.M. The lodge was then raised to the degree of Fellow Craft, when Bro. McWilliam received that degree at the hands of the R.W.M., whose admirable performance of the work called forth warmest expressions of commendation from brethren assembled, those from other lodges more especially. There being no further business in this degree, the lodge was reduced to that of Entered Apprentice, after which Bro. David Lamb brought forward in due form a motion for an alteration in the rate of initiation and affiliation fees at present subsisting in the lodge. In so doing he said:—If there be one thing which we the Freemasons of Scotland ought to feel more proud of than another, it should be, I think, the fact that our country was chosen as the home of the Craft upon its first introduction among the nations of the West, and that at a period very shortly subsequent to its removal from the East. How it came here, or why Scotland should have been chosen as its great resting place, it behoves us not presently to relate. Those of you who are familiar with the history of the Craft know how that from Scotland went forth brethren into almost all the then known world, and, having settled in its most remote corners, applied for and obtained leave to hold and constitute lodges of their own, binding themselves to acknowledge the Lodge of Scotland as their Great Superior, and its chief for the time being their one and common head. How, further, when a sufficiency of lodges had been established, liberty was granted them, in their respective countries, to constitute Grand Lodges of their own, and that, too, granted by the management of the Craft in Scotland. As our rites had been taught them at home, so were they practised by them abroad; and I make bold to say that there are few Masons who are not able to say that they were initiated into our degrees, and admitted to a participation in our privileges, under what all the broad world knows is the Scottish Ancient and Accepted Rite (Applause). England, Ireland, France, India, America—all use, with differences so slight as hardly to be noticeable, the rites practised by our forefathers when they instructed their initiates in their secret sessions in the towns and villages of our native land. Have we not reason to feel proud as to the pre-eminence of our usages and our ceremonies? Surely, surely! Ought we not to be grateful to the country which fostered and sheltered these? Surely, yes! Are we proud? Are we grateful? I am! Is there a man among you who is not? (Applause). But, brethren, it sometimes happens that the directions for carrying out a law, or, to apply it to our own case, a ritual, and the actual performance of the ceremony are two things altogether distinct and different. The rites which it is our privilege to use are in themselves, solemn and beautiful, but how often have we seen their beauty marred and their solemnity turned into almost the ridiculous through their being administered by those destitute of the true spirit of Freemasonry, and who, it may be, cannot speak even a single sentence grammatically (hear, hear). These are among the reasons why the Freemasonry of Scotland has fallen into such disrepute, why for some time it has been at such a low ebb, and why a Scotch Mason is sometimes treated with distrust and suspicion, nay even with contempt, by his brethren and Fellow Craftsmen in sister countries. And is this much to be wondered at when I tell you that I have been in a lodge (not very far distant), where I saw a batch of candidates receive what its members were pleased to call their three degrees in something little over an hour!—and that, too, amidst the most boisterous hilarity and to the seeming great amusement of those present. (Hear, hear). That such scenes as these are rare I sincerely trust; but, were I to ask as to their being so, I fear me as to the answer. That we have brethren amongst us well qualified to administer our degrees and lodges where the true spirit of Masonry—that spirit of love and brotherly kindness and charity, is fostered and taught as it ought to be, I am well aware; but why such brethren and such lodges should be few, I really do not know. Why they are, I believe I can in some measure tell you. Freemasonry is too cheap; at all events, the Freemasonry of Scotland is too cheap. Now, I say this guardedly and advisedly. I have given the subject my very careful consideration, and this is the conclusion which I have conscientiously arrived at. I am sure you will all agree with me when I say that it is not politic to place precious privileges within the reach of those who will not only use but abuse them. What we want is a number of gentlemen who will not allow the interests of the Craft to suffer. To attain to this, they must be men of sterling principle, and endowed with an abundance of firmness and good common sense. Far be it from me to seek to exclude from a participation in our privileges those among the humbler classes of society; but, surely if these privileges are worth having, they are worth paying for. How it can raise the status of the Craft, has, I believe, been for some considerable time one of the great aims of the Grand Lodge. Now, I am but a young man, and, comparatively, a younger Mason; still, I am at liberty to give utterance to my opinion. I believe, Sir, we can materially assist in furthering this end by raising our fees. To those in whose case curiosity is the only motive which impels them to seek admission into our Order, money may be an object of the first importance, and the cheaper that curiosity can be satisfied, the better for them; but to those who are actuated by a sincere desire to become members of the oldest and most honourable fraternity in the world, for the sake of that honour and the privileges it may confer, money will, I am certain, be only a secondary consideration. In most cases, what we pay most for is most valued; what we can pick up for a trifle, is often triflingly thought of. Let the Commercial act up to that example which she has always shown. Some time ago our fees were raised, and I have to ask how it fared with our exchequer? Raise them again: I have little fear as to the result. I am sure no member would recommend for initiation among us any gentleman who would grudge an extra guinea. And then there never was, I believe, a period in the history of the lodge when it could better afford to try such an experiment. We have a few hundred pounds at our bankers, and though I should little like to see that touched, still, if needs must, we could fall back upon it without, I trust, doing ourselves any very material injury. And suppose that we did suffer from a diminution of the number of our candidates, what we lacked in quantity—and this with deference to those already members—we would gain in quality. Sir, I am proud of being a member of the Lodge Commercial, to say nothing of the pleasure I have in being its Deputy Master; and I hope the time will soon come, if it be not now, when she shall stand second to none in broad Scotland. I have, therefore, much pleasure in moving "That, on and after the 1st of February, 1875, the fees of the Lodge Commercial shall be, for initiation, £4 4s., and for the affiliation of a Master Mason, £1 1s.; and I resume my seat, thanking you for your attention, and without the slightest concern as to the ultimate fate of my motion. At the close of Bro. Lamb's remarks, there was much applause, which was again and again renewed when Bros. Davidson and Brode, both Past Masters of the lodge, successively expressed their determination to do what in them lay to uphold and maintain the honourable position always held in the province by No. 360. In accordance with the bye-laws of Grand Lodge, Bro. Lamb's motion was held over in the meantime. Bro. Thos. Laird, of St. John's Operative Lodge, Rutherglen (347), was then affiliated a member of 360, Bro. Brode officiating. Thereafter, on the motion of the R.W.M., a cordial vote of thanks was passed to P.M. Bro. John Davidson for services done to the lodge; and it was agreed that the same be recorded in the minute-book. There was no further business before the brethren. In ordinary course, the next meeting of the lodge would have been held on 1st proximo, but that being New Year's Day, it was agreed to hold it over until the Friday following, 8th instant.

LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553).—A highly successful harmony meeting of this young and most thriving lodge was held in their temporary hall at 162, Kent Road, on Thursday, the 17th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. Robert McDougall occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Malcolm Stork, D.M.; John Walker, S.M.; and other office-bearers; while among visiting brethren were Bros. John Baird, P.G.S.W.; Kinghorn, P.G.J.W.; John Imrie, R.W.M., 86; Wm. Phillips, R.W.M., 556; C. H. McNaught, P.M., 275; Julius Brode, P.M., 360; Alexander McDougall, P.M., 419; Wm. Taylor, No. 1, (St. Mary's Chapel, Edinburgh); Fitzroy, 333, St. George; Dr. Russell, D.M., 556, (Clydesdale); G. B. McNaught, S.W., 556; &c., &c. The lodge met an hour previous to entering upon harmony, for the dispatch of business, when one candidate for admission into the Order was initiated, and two visiting brothers duly affiliated members of No. 553. Thereafter a very large gathering sat down to an excellent entertainment, the preparation and serving of which reflected all credit upon the powers in purveyship of Bro. Pulteney, Chief Steward of the lodge. This having been so far disposed of the chairman proposed in succession "The Queen and the Craft;" "The Princess of Wales, a patron of Scottish Masonry;" "The Princess of Wales, Duchess of Edinburgh, and other members of the Royal Family;" and the "Three Grand Lodges," all of which were duly and Masonically honoured. The Chairman next gave "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," but for whom their own lodge would not have been that day in existence, and with the toast he begged to couple the name of Bro. John Baird, P.M. of Lodge 34, S.W. of P.G.L., and whom he thought at no distant day they should see occupying a much higher position. Bro. Baird, in briefly acknowledging the compliment, referred to the gratifying progress made of late years by the Provincial Grand Lodge, more particularly in the acquisition of funds for charitable purposes. They had now upwards of £400 invested, and it was no uncommon thing for them to give a relief sum of £5, or even more than that. Moreover, they hoped that in the course of a very few years their means would have increased to the extent of enabling them to establish a permanent fund to aid the necessities of members requiring it. Bro. Baird then referred to the annual visitations made by the P.G.L. throughout the province, and counselled 553 to have their house in order against the time the visitors should come, and show by their good condition the necessity there had been for a lodge such as theirs being established in the locality. Before sitting down he begged to propose "The Continued Prosperity of Lodge St. Vincent." The chairman, in replying, said that the toast came very well indeed off the hands of Bro. Baird, who had from the outset been exerting himself on their behalf both inside the lodge and out of it. He trusted their brother had found that his efforts had not been thrown away, but rather that their success was in some measure a recompense to him for the trouble he had been at. In concluding, the chairman said he might state that during the few weeks they had been in existence they had made no less a number than fifty Masons. This, he should think, augured well for the future, and also argued that the P.G. Lodge had done rightly in granting them a charter. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" followed, coupled in the first place with the name of Bro. Wm. Taylor, of Lodge No. 1 (St. Mary's Chapel, Edinburgh), who briefly replied, but acknowledged also by representatives of Lodges No. 34 (St. John's); No. 4 (Glasgow Kilwinning); No. 27 (St. Mungo); No. 86 (Navigation, Troon); No. 87 (Thistle); and several others. Thereafter, Bro. A. McDougall, P.M. 419, proposed the health and prosperity of the R.W.M. of No. 553, which was pledged with much cordiality. The chairman, in replying, stated that he could not but say that he appreciated the toast the more in coming from his late Master in Lodge Neptune, No. 419. He had always taken great pleasure in his connection with that lodge, than which not even No. 553 held a higher place in his affections. One or two other toasts were given subsequently, the proceedings throughout having been agreeably varied by an occasional song or recitation from brethren more qualified in this way to entertain the meeting. We have but to repeat that the occasion was altogether a distinct success.

ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER, GLASGOW (No. 50), held their monthly meeting on Thursday, 10th ult., when the following three brethren received the Mark, Ext., and R.A. degrees:—James Baikie, builder; Daniel Leeds, wright and builder; and Robert Morrison, master plasterer; all Master Masons of Lodge Athole, No. 413. The Mark degree was given by Comp. John Miller, the recently installed 1st P.Z., in a most elaborate, instructive, and finished style; no part of the beautiful ceremony being either omitted or slurred over. The Excellent and Royal Arch degrees were conferred by Comp. Jas. Duthie in his well-known careful manner, and Comp. McKenzie, as 1st S., seems to be still studying his part and perfecting minor details, indeed the whole work of this Chapter is admirable.

HELENSBURGH.

ST. GEORGE'S LODGE (No. 503).—The annual supper of the Helensburgh St. George's Lodge (No. 503) Freemasons took place last Monday evening in the Queen's Hotel, Helensburgh. About forty of the brethren sat down to partake of the sumptuous repast provided by "Mine Host" of the Queen's (Mr. Williamson), and which was served up in his very best style. The duties of the chair were ably discharged by Bro. Dr. Gibb, P.M., whilst Bro. Waters, D.P.M., officiated as Croupier. The following deputations were present: St. John's Kilwinning (No. 18), Dumbarton, Bro. Councillor Barr, R.W.M., and Bro. M'Arthur; No. 117, Glasgow, Bros. Wallace and Wyllie; and St. John's (No. 173) Largs, Bro. A. Barclay. Supper having been partaken of, the chairman read letters of apology for absence from the following brethren, viz., Archibald Orr Ewing, Esq. M.P. for Dumbartonshire; Alex. Smollett, Esq., Cameron House, P.G.M.; Sheriff Steele, Dumbarton, Provost Bennett, Dumbarton, William Paterson, and John Babbie, Dumbarton, and Captain Manners, Helensburgh. The following is a copy of Bro. Orr Ewing's, Bro. Smollett's, and Sheriff Steele's letters, which explain themselves:

Ballikinrain Castle, Killearn, N.B.,

11th Dec. 1874.

Dear Sir and Brother, Unless the snow is so far gone as to permit me to drive over on Monday night, I will not be able to be with the members of the St. George Lodge on Monday night, as I must be at home that night. Yours fraternally,

ARCHD. ORR EWING.

Cameron House, Alexandria, N.B.,

11th Dec., 1874.

Dear Sir and Brother, I regret extremely that it will not be in my power to have the pleasure of accepting the invitation which your Right Worshipful Master and the brethren of Lodge St. George, No. 503, have done me the favour to send me to their annual supper, on Monday next, 14th ult.

I am sorry to say that I have been confined to the house for upwards of a fortnight by a severe and obstinate attack of cold and sciatica, from which I am suffering very great pain and annoyance; and I feel satisfied, from the little improvement I have undergone during the last two or three days, that it will be quite out of my power to think of being able to go about sooner than the middle of next week, if even then. In these circumstances, I have no alternative than to return the ticket so kindly forwarded to me. I remain, yours truly and fraternally,

A. SMOLLETT.

Westonlee, Dumbarton, 8th Dec. 1874.

Dear Sir and Brother, I have had the pleasure of receiving your invitation to be present at the meeting of your Lodge on Monday the 14th ult., but regret that my engagements will prevent me from availing myself of your kindness. Yours fraternally,

W. C. STEELE.

In proceeding to the business of the evening, The Chairman gave the "Three Grand Lodges of Scotland, England, and Ireland." This toast required no recommendation on his part amongst brethren of the Craft. He only wished the morality of the world was carried out more in consonance with the teachings of Masonry, when there would undoubtedly be a happier and better state of things in existence. (Cheers.)

The Chairman then gave in succession the usual loyal toasts. In proposing "The Queen" he said that for a great many generations in succession there had not been a Queen on the British Throne to equal Victoria. Whether they regarded her as Queen or mother, she always set an example worthy of being imitated either by her subjects or her family (cheers), and discharged her duties to the satisfaction of the country. (Loud cheers.) In regard to the Prince of Wales, he had no doubt that with such an example as that of his mother, he had learned to outlive the sins of his youth, whatever they may have been, and that they would find in him a good and righteous monarch. (Cheers.)

The Chairman then gave the "Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces." He would not recall any of the historic deeds of the Army—they were well known; neither would he repeat the feats of valour performed by the Navy—they were of world-wide fame. (Hear, hear.) But in regard to the Volunteers, it was a section of the service with which he was proud to have an intimate connection for some time past. It was a pleasant relief after a day's labour to turn out to drill, which besides producing a bracing and manly effect, helped to train them in a practical manner that could not otherwise be attained. He hoped when the hour arrived, which he trusted would not be for a long time, when their services would be required, that they would be found ready and useful in the field of battle. (Applause.) He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Sergeant Marsland, of the 1st D.V.R. (Loud cheers.)

Sergeant Marsland, in reply, thanked the company for the manner in which they had responded to the toast. The Army, he remarked, was always ready, and wherever they went always proved the Army in truth. The same might be said of the navy, as a more manly and kindlier hearted class of tars could be found nowhere than those who manned our British men-of-war. (Loud cheers.) In regard to the auxiliary forces, he did not quite agree with the sentiments of the chairman. The drill ground should not be looked upon as a place of recreation, but with feelings of pure patriotism. (Applause.) It should be looked upon as a place where they were being trained in a systematic manner to defend their hearths and homes. (Loud cheers.) He thanked them again for the enthusiastic manner in which they had drunk the toast.

The Croupier gave "The Craft the World over." He remarked that as yet he was not a very old Mason, but, nevertheless, he had experienced the benefit of being connected with the Craft. The farther one goes from home the more this is experienced, as wherever they went they were sure to meet with brothers who were ready to treat them in a brotherly as well as a gentlemanly style. (Hear, hear.) Masonry was like the family circle. Although at times they might differ among themselves as to non-essentials, yet if the stranger ventured to interfere they were found to be one harmonious whole. (Applause.) The principles and teachings of the Craft he looked upon with great veneration, and held that, like the Masonic law, it was almost impossible for members to walk up to them in their integrity. (Hear, hear.) He begged to couple the toast with the name of Bro. Wallace, whose reputation as a Mason was wide-spread, and for whom he entertained the most cordial esteem. (Cheers.)

Bro. Wallace thanked them for coupling his name with this toast. He could not say he had been over all the world, but still he had great pleasure in responding. Freemasonry was fast finding its way over all the world, and although there was no doubt it contained some bad men, still its teachings were felt for good wherever it had found a home. (Applause.) When a brother required aid then and only then he found Freemasonry to be an institution. It was not like "water" spilt upon the ground, but was a tangible institution of which they could justly feel proud. (Laughter and cheers.)

Bro. Marsland then gave the "Visiting Brethren," who were all at once good men and good Masons. (Hear, hear.) He was sure they were all glad to see them present, and would willingly join with him in drinking a bumper to their health. He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Councillor Barr. (Applause.)

Bro. Barr in replying expressed on his own behalf and of those of his visitors the pleasure they had in being present. He hoped the principles of Masonry would spread and be more firmly established amongst them than they had yet been. It was too true that there was but too little of principles of Masonry even amongst Masons. (Hear, hear.) As had been hinted that night already, although slight differences did sometimes arise, these were caused more by a desire to show a superior wisdom than from a spirit of rivalry on the part of the brethren. (Applause.) He was sorry there was not a larger representation from No. 18, as no doubt there would have been but for unforeseen circumstances. He had been asked to apologize for P.G.S. Bro. Denny, who had expressed to him his regret at being detained from being present that evening. He hoped when their turn came in Dumbarton, they would be favoured with a large deputation of the brethren of 503, and concluded by wishing them long life and prosperity. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Stevenson then gave the "Provincial Grand Lodge," for whom Bro. Barr also replied in appropriate terms.

The Chairman then gave the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to St. George's (No. 503)." He would have liked to have had something prepared to have spoken in connection with this toast, but owing to recent events he had unfortunately been prevented from carrying out that desire. It was now about four years since the idea of having a lodge of Freemasons was first mooted in Helensburgh. A meeting had been held in King-street Hall for the purpose of carrying out the suggestion, and although there were but few present, the lodge was then formed, and had progressed wonderfully. They had not had the great or the wealthy amongst them, but, nevertheless, they had got along very well. Their development at first was somewhat slow, but, more recently, the progress made was very marked. It was very creditable what had been done, but they should not rest content with that, but, adopting as their motto "Excelsior," they should go still forward to greater effort and more pronounced success. (Cheers.) They had in a great measure done away with the principal barrier to all progress, viz., debt; except, indeed, it was a national one (laughter and applause), and with their hands loosened in this respect, they were free to accomplish much. He had great pleasure in proposing prosperity to 503, "our noble selves"—(loud cheers)—coupled with the name of Bro. Marsland.

Bro. Marsland in reply referred to the harmonious feeling which was at present existing amongst the brethren of 503, and hoped that some of the older members who had almost seceded from the lodge would come back and grace the meetings with their presence. (Hear, hear, and applause.)

The other toasts were "The Press," by Bro. Marsland, reply by Mr. Wm. Thomson, Dumbarton and Lennox Herald; "The Chairman," and "The Croupier." "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again."

The harmony of the evening was added to very considerably by the singing of Bros. Ponds, Love, Galloway, Young, Ross, Petit, Livingstone, and F. Barr; whilst Bros. Marsland and Robb gave recitations which were very much appreciated and loudly applauded. After a most harmonious evening, the company broke up after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

DALMUIR.

ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 403).—A special meeting of this lodge was held in the Lodge-room at Dalmuir on the 8th of December. The R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Ferguson, presided, supported by Bro. Robert Manson, S.W.; J. T. Johnston, J.W.; J. Barrie, Secretary; T. Scott, Treasurer; J. Crawford, S.D.; Wm. Gray, J.D.; T. Millar, I.G. The lodge was opened in due and proper form on the E. A. degree, and then raised to the F. C. degree, when three brethren were passed to the square degree of Fellow-Craft. The lodge was afterwards raised to the third degree, when two brethren were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The ceremonies of passing and raising were performed by the R.W.M. in a beautiful and impressive manner. The lodge was then reduced to the E. A. degree, and closed in due form. The regular fortnightly meeting was held on Tuesday, 15th inst.; Bro. Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by the whole of the office-bearers; a large number of the members being present, as also a deputation from Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 426), Renfrew, headed by Bro. Glen, R.W.M., and Bro. Sim, P.M., and Bro. McFarlane, Morton, and others. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of last regular and emergency meetings were read and adopted. Applications were then read from two candidates for admission into the Order, and they having been favourably balloted for, were admitted and duly initiated into the first degree of Freemasonry by the R.W.M. The ceremony of installing the office-bearers of the lodge for the ensuing year then took place, viz.:—Bros. Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M.; I. T. Johnstone, D.M.; John Crawford, S.M.; Robert Manson, S.W.; James Barrie, J.W.; T. Scott, Treasurer; S. Leckie, Secretary; T. Millar, S.D.; Wm. Gray, J.D.; J. Stairs, B.B.; J. Muirhead, S.S.; D. McDonald, J.S.; Quintin Blane, I.G.; and D. Campbell, Tyler. The three Masters were installed by Bro. Sim, P.M. of Prince of Wales Lodge (426), assisted by Bro. Glen, R.W.M. (426), in a most creditable manner. The newly-installed R.W.M. then installed the remaining officers, and Bro. Sim, P.M., was affiliated an honorary member for his valuable services to the lodge on several occasions. After the other general routine of business was gone through, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment for a short time, when the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and responded to. "The Visiting Brethren" was given by the R.W.M., Bro. Ferguson. Bro. Glen, R.W.M. (426), suitably replied, remarking that it had given him much pleasure to be present at the installation of the office-bearers, and congratulating the R.W.M. and members of the lodge on the most efficient way in which the business was being conducted, and the prosperous state of the lodge. Bro. Sim proposed "The Newly Re-elected R.W.M." in flattering terms. Bro. Ferguson replied, thanking the members for the honour and confidence they placed in him in choosing him as their Master for another year. After a short time agreeably spent in song and sentiment, the brethren separated, "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again."

GOVAN.

LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 437).—The annual meeting of this lodge for the election of office-bearers was held in their hall, Portland buildings, Govan, on 16th inst. The attendance was large. The lodge being opened in due and ancient form, the election was proceeded with, when the following brethren were elected:—John McFarlane, R.W.M.; A. Campbell, P.M.; John Miller, D.M.; J. Hutcheson, S.M.; Robt. Muir, S.W.; Geo. Wilson, J.W.; G. Maitland, Sec.; John Brown, Treas.; John Morrison, Chaplain; John Sutherland, S.D.; John Carrick, J.D.; John Miller, Architect (2); W. Sutherland, Jeweller; Robt. Allan, P.G.S.; Wm. Anderson, S.S.; Alex. Ferguson, J.S.; Carl J. Hedmond, B.B.; Alex. Buchan, S.B.; John Golder, Director of Ceremonies; Andrew Blair, Director of Music; James Moggie, I.G.; John McIntyre, Tyler. After the principal work of the evening was over, it was suggested that a former proposition to build a Masonic Hall in connection with the lodge should be revived, and that a Benevolent Fund be got up for the benefit of members of the lodge. A very happy evening was afterwards spent.

RUTHERGLEN.

LODGE ST. JOHN'S OPERATIVE, (No. 347).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in Bro. Reid's hall, Rutherglen, on Tuesday, 15th inst. Three was a numerous attendance. The R.W.M., Bro. John Cunningham, presided, supported by office-bearers of the lodge, while amongst visiting brethren present were Bros. Dugald Butler, R.W.M. 27; R. M. Yuill, R.W.M. 275; William Phillips, R.W.M. 556; R. Mitchell, P.M. 323; J. B. McNaught, S.W. 556; John Howie, J.W. 556; Hugh Weir, J.D. 556; George Gray, 171; Thos. Gray, 171; J. Speirs, 117; Edward Cornely, 362; and others. The lodge having been duly opened on the E.A. degree, the chairman intimated that there were in waiting to receive in that degree three candidates, who were as follows, viz.: John Sconler, jeweller, Stonelaw House, Rutherglen (who is Provost of the burgh); J. W. Wallace, banker; and John R. Gray, manufacturer, Rutherglen. There being no objections, the candidates, properly prepared, were brought in and initiated into the mysteries of the first degree, the work being excellently performed by the R.W.M.

SLAMAMAN.

LODGE ST. JOHN, (No. 484).—The brethren of this lodge met on Friday, the 18th ult., Bro. John A. Walkinshaw, Esq., R.W.M., in the chair. The lodge having been opened in due form, the following office-bearers were nominated for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. John A. Walkinshaw, R.W.M.; Dr. James C. Nash, P.M.; Robert Hamilton, D.M.; William Burnett, S.M.; Henry Roy, S.W.; James Donnelly, J.W.; Rev. Robert S. Horne, Chaplain; Wm. Harley, Treasurer; James M. Watson, Secretary; James Forrester, S.D.; Robert Snedden, J.D.; John Wallace, B.B.; George Smith, S.S.; John Hunter, J.S.; Walter Easton, I.G.; James Baxter, Tyler.

Poetry.

NEW YEAR'S DAY, 1875.

WRITTEN FOR THE FREEMASON.

Time in its changing hours fleets away,
And here we hail another New Year's Day,
While fading years and moments one by one
Warn us how fast the sands of life have run.
It seems but yesterday that in trust and truth,
We wandered 'mid the flowery maze of youth;
Maturer hours have long since gone and past,
And here decrepid age confronts us all at last.
Yes, time indeed has sped in rapid flight,
Its brightest days have been chang'd to darkening night,
Since that glad season of genial joyous spring,
To which our ageing memory yet will cling.
When all around was full of light and love,
And we had faith in man, as well as God above.
Alas, how many are wanting here to-day,
Who've played with us of life the same old play.
Who've watched its comedy too often close on fears
It's tragedy dissolve in bursting tears,
Who've lived to find that blessing or being blest,
Man never here can find a lasting rest.
Vain are all earth's gifts, vainer its painted dreams
Its glittering pageants and its golden gleams,
Its glowing hues of loveliness, all ere long
Are but a nurse's tale, the poet's song.
On New Year's Day we muse on ancient friends,
The hope which flattered, or the joy which ends,
The happy home, the pleasant hour of mirth
Which lights our plodding way on this dull earth,
And all the peace domestic joys can give
To all who with that life contented live.
Yes, as to-day we greet another year,
Fond memory recalls the far, the dear,
Some friends are wanting to us all to-day,
Some tender face has long since past away,
Some old companion is no more at our side,
Some household pet, our cherished hope and pride,

Some venerable form, some youthful glow,
Some maiden innocence, some brow of snow,
All have like shadows flitted from our scene,
Yet haunt in love the hours that have been.
Thus New Year's day has many a tender voice
For us, who at a New Year's dawn rejoice,
Telling of Time's unchanging claim and law,
Its sighs of tenderness, its ghosts of awe.
Another year is now within our ken,
Another year is given to mortal men,
May its true message control our hearts and ways,
Our hopes and strength—may its softening rays
Fall on us all, alike in lodge and home,
For all who are with us now, for all who roam.
May Time, which wounds us all, yet heal our hearts,
As in courageous truth we play our parts,
May our good Craft speed on its prosperous way,
To all Freemasons a happy New Year's Day.

THE FREEMASONS' AND THE ROMAN CATHOLIC UNION.

AIR, "Lanigan's Ball."

I.

Oh, Laura Machree, oh, what are we coming to,
The World, I think, will be soon upside down,
One half doesn't know where the other half's running to,
And there's neither respect now for Mitre or Crown.
The Pope is in Gaol, and debarred of his liberty,
He is bed'ad far worse than an Ox in his Stall,
To doubt it you must doubt his infallibility,
And that's proved beyond doubt by our Cardinal Paul.

II.

If we just look abroad we see kingdoms and potentates,
Disappear from the scene like an electric spark,
And poor Pius' sons throughout all the German states,
Are hunted like sheep by that heathen Bismarck.
But they're praying devoutly he may soon find a place
In a warmer spot than his baronial hall.
And he's on the high road, for sure he's a Freemason,
And consigned to perdition by Cardinal Paul.

III.

We foolishly thought we'd escape the commotion,
That's troubling the big ones all over the earth,
That at last we were safe in this gem of the Ocean,
That true patriots prize as the land of their birth.
But och wirasthrew, sure a frightful disaster,
Is doomed on our down-trodden country to fall,
The Freemasons' are going to instal as Grand Master,
The Viceroy, to insult our dear Cardinal Paul.

IV.

But let him beware ere he stirs up the fury,
Of the "Catholic Union," who are bound to a Man,
Their vengeance to wreak, without trial or jury,
On all the curs'd Masons now under their ban.
So they warn him now if he ever intended,
To dare take such a step, he'd the order recall,
And to do it at once, while there's yet time to mend it,
Or look out for squalls from our Cardinal Paul.

V.

The heads of "the Union" are all men of quality,
And rale patriots they can count by the score.
And they've Mac, who's elected for next year's Mayor

A position he gracefully filled once before.
As he's a Good Templar, in the Vartry he'll smother
His feelings (he don't touch the hard stuff at all).
In that case no more we'll hear of his grandmother,
But his praises he'll lavish on Cardinal Paul.

VI.

Tut what will Mac do if he's asked to the Castle,
And invited to sup with the Grand Master there?
Of course he'll refuse the Sescenagh's vassal,
And treat with contempt both his vassal and his fare.
Should this brave Gallowglass, who with pride tells the story,
How his ancestors revelled in Tara's Ould Hall,
E'er stoop to the stranger and thus drive the glory
Of that chivalric race—and vet. Cardinal Paul?

VII.

But enough of their vapouring bombast and vaunting,
If we to our principles only are true.
They'll find that the poor wretched flag they are flaunting Shall never overshadow the Old Royal Blue.
Then acquit ye like men ere the foe has bereft us,
Of that freedom once purchased 'mid fire and ball,
Or sleep till we've lost all our forefathers' left us,
And find our necks 'neath the heel of this Cardinal Paul.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1875.

THE NEW YEAR.

When these lines meet the eyes of our many readers, a new year will have dawned upon them one and all, and very sincere are the wishes we offer that a happy New Year may be the lot of all our kind friends and patrons, as well as of our Cosmopolitan Craft. It is inevitable but that the close of an old year and the commencement of a new year suggest many reflections to the considerate and the well-disposed. The lapse of time is always a great wonder, if not a mystery, in some respects, to us all, and few there are who must not and do not experience some few passing emotions of awakened memory, or of sympathetic association. For the old year is often like a friend of our own whom we deposit all tenderly and gradually in the grave. Another portion of time, of our own little history, of our allotted probation, has passed away never to return, and we often, as we sing a requiem over the departed year, remember it either with an aching heart or a grateful memory. Thorns have mixed probably with its roses, trials with its joys, tears with its smiles, and cares with its peace, and very few there are who can realize the flight of any year, without some sensations of sorrow, some reminiscences of regret. For we ourselves have reached another milestone on our journey, and whether the road traversed be long or little, whether we are beginning or even ending our pilgrimage, we all must feel that to us this ceaseless onward passage of years is alike somewhat of a grave enigma, of a depressing fact. For we are no longer young, or fresh, or active, or strong. We may have outlived our contemporaries, and stand, as it were, but lonely watchers for a coming dawn, or we find a premature ending of all our hopes and plans, and longings, and endeavours. Hence, in our opinion, he is an unthinking or heartless person who despises the warning counsels of each departing old year, of each opening new year, who affects to consider such reflections distasteful or inopportune, and who considers that he can best evince his contempt for all such obsolete prejudices by treating this season as a time alone for idle revelry, or unwholesome dissipation. As Freemasons, the close of 1874 and the approach of 1875 have much alike of interest, both in memory, in association, and in anticipation. This time last year, the new year beheld a most happy, and contented, and prosperous Craft. All seemed to be well and to do well with our brotherhood. Favouring breezes impelled the good ship of Freemasonry over a tranquil ocean, and we seemed to have lighted on lasting and auspicious trade winds. The Grand Master was installed anew amid the applause and gratification of an united and rejoicing brotherhood, and all appeared to point to happy progress and to constitutional government, under a most popular and prosperous regime. And so the year passed on, with much of material prosperity, and many tokens of a rapidly increasing fraternity. We had attacks, to be sure, but still on we went, heeding them not, and neither turning aside to the right hand or to the left. The Archbishop of Malines excommunicated all the Belgian brotherhood with a remarkable exercise of the excommunicating process, Archbishop Manning denounced the German Freemasons, the Westminster Gazette railed at us, "ore rotundo," and yet we did not mind them one and all, and found ourselves none the worse for the anathema or the allocution. We heard from far-off Brazil that, like Father Cuffe, the Brazilian Bishops would not bury the Freemasons, and put them under "Bell, Book, and Candle;" and we were edified by a letter of the benevolent Pontiff to his Episcopal suffragans in Brazil commending them, and politely telling us that we, as Freemasons, were "booked for something uncomfortable." But still we paid but little attention either to bellicose Bishops or vulgar and anonymous scribblers. Yet as those who have ever seen the Bay of Biscay know how treacherous is the calm of the "great ocean," so that, as the poet says of old: "Una est injusti cœcula formæ maris," and too often the calm forbodes the squall; so our Masonic life was to receive a sudden check, an unexpected blow, almost unexpectedly, "in the dark." We were startled by hearing, at the Grand Lodge in September, that our chief, our valued brother, and active ruler, Lord Ripon, had resigned his office without any reasons being publicly alleged. And then came out the still more startling reason—that Lord Ripon had become a Roman Catholic, and that his astute and new advisers, disliking Freemasons, and hating Freemasonry, had thought the opportunity too good to be lost of striking a blow at the inculcated brotherhood. We are not going to-day to question Lord Ripon's sincerity, or even his right to abandon his former creed; and we feel that, as Freemasons, our duty and our principles compel us to treat such an act if with respectful regret and fraternal silence, yet with Masonic toleration; but this we may say. If the Roman Catholic authorities expected to gain anything by such a "coup de theatre," they alike equally miscalculated the effect it would produce either on English Freemasonry, or the English mind. Lord Ripon's resignation has produced no palpable effect whatever either on our Order or on the public; it has only served, in truth, to make the Order rally together more than ever, and to cause the public to feel still greater distrust respecting the present attitude and proceedings of the Roman Catholic Church. For what is before us after all? In the midst of a great struggle, in the midst of cruel calumnies, at a time when the bitterest and most unrelenting of our enemies was dealing blow after blow upon our peaceful and unoffending Order, unprovoked and uncalled-for, we find that our General-in-Chief has gone over to the enemy, bag and baggage, and that here we are just at the very opening of a long campaign, and that we have to look about us for a new commander. All that, as Freemasons, we could do, we had to do, and we did do. We closed upon our centre, we stood on the defensive, we have found another captain; and here we are, with renewed strength and eager courage; drums beating, colours flying, ready to go anywhere and do anything, under our august chief. So that, instead of weakening Freemasonry, this most mistaken policy of the Roman Catholic Church, this untoward secession of Lord Ripon's, have served, practically, alike to strengthen our position and to encourage our adherents. The hours of doubt, regret, dismay, fear, are over, and under our Royal Brother and Grand Master, the English Craft is prepared for any emergency, and is fearless of any opponent. Thus, then, 1874 is a year long to be remembered by English Freemasons, and we doubt not that 1875 will witness, by God's blessing, all of peaceful prosperity to our tried and maligned but useful and benevolent brotherhood. When Freemasons, in their "comitia curiata" in 1875, unanimously elect and exultingly install their Royal Grand Master, every sound of discord and of depression will be silenced in that glad acclaim which welcomes the grandson of an old Grand Master, the eldest son of our beloved Queen, the heir apparent to the throne, as he fitly assumes the highest post in English Freemasonry. We feel certain that from what we know of his genial character, and his true Masonic spirit, the ability and straightforwardness which pervade all his public acts, that as Freemasons we shall find in him a most loyal brother, a most sincere friend, and a sound, and wise, and just, and constitutional ruler. May our anticipations be realized one and all, and may 1875 be a year of happiness and unity, and progress and contentment to all our English lodges, and to all our brethren everywhere. The Irish Grand Lodge has lost too, its old and faithful ruler, the Duke of Leinster, in 1874, and has unanimously elected that truly popular nobleman and able statesman the Duke of Abercorn as his successor. May all of good attend its choice, and our good brethren across the channel. All over the world, though the attacks on Freemasonry are many and bitter, with the close of 1874, yet Freemasonry is moving on, and will move on in 1875, and we feel sure that Freemasonry will continue to advance, despite all its unscrupulous adversaries, so long as it fights manfully under its good old banner, and asserts its own unfailing maxims of truth and right, of loyalty and order, of peace and toleration, of love and light.

INSTALLATION OF GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As an old P.M., permit me to express the pleasure I feel in our Royal Brother's accepting the Office of Grand Master; and as I am sure every brother whose privilege it is to attend the ceremony of installation will be there without fail, I, from experience, know the hall will be very inadequate to the requirements on that occasion. I would therefore suggest that Grand Lodge shall send a circular requesting every W.M. to fill in the names of every P.M. and Wardens of their respective lodges who intend witnessing this ceremony.

These circulars, with the number, having been returned, it becomes an easy matter for Grand Lodge to make the necessary arrangements.

I would further suggest the Albert Hall as a place which will be all that can be required. G.L., P.G.L., and G.S.L., will occupy the base, the W.M.'s to have the front seats in the next row with their P.M.'s immediately at back of them, the Wardens the next row above; and also that each brother shall be supplied with a ticket of admission which will at once indicate the door he is to enter at, and the seat he is to occupy; and this, I think, will prevent all matters of crowd and annoyance.

The musical arrangements are also complete.

With regard to the banquet, this can easily be arranged for by taking part of the annexe immediately adjoining the hall.

Yours truly and fraternally,
P.M., 186.

OUR MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the time is drawing nigh when our brethren will be buckling on their armour, to fight the good fight on behalf of our charities, a word or two on the subject may not be inopportune. The subject appears to have engrossed the attention of many brethren, from the correspondence that has taken place from time to time in your valuable paper, and many suggestions have been put forward, some of which are too Utopian in their construction to be practically carried, and others falling short of any practical utility for their advancement. It is quite certain that our institutions will derive more or less benefit in proportion to the number of Stewards representing lodges on those occasions; the greater their number the greater the support derived from the various donors supporting the Steward by contributions to his list as well as the donations of the Stewards themselves. We will assume the first thing to do is to get as large a list of Stewards as you possibly can, the question is, how to get them. From my experience I have found the amount of the Stewards' fee to cover the incidental expenses of the festival to be a great bar to some brethren taking upon themselves the office. This fee is generally three or four guineas; if it could be reduced to a guinea and a half we should have many more brethren serving. I will endeavour to point out how this may be done. The Stewards' fee is generally fixed at the first meeting of the board, at which time the number comprises about 130 or 140 brethren.

An estimate is made as to the amount required to meet the incidental expenses, and a levy is made accordingly. Before the festival takes place this number may be increased to 200 or more, so that after the festival, when the settling day takes place, the brethren, from the additional number of Stewards' fees, find themselves in possession of a surplus, which they are sometimes puzzled to know what to do with, whereas if the matter had been left until a later period the fees would have been much less, and an inducement held out for brethren to take upon themselves the office on some future occasion. The brethren will understand this when I say the incidental expenses are not more for a festival represented by 200 Stewards than one represented by 100.

From my experience in these matters there is always a surplus, sometimes a large one. After discharging the ordinary incidentals, the question arises at the final meeting how this is to be expended. The brethren do not like to receive part of it back. No, they have paid their money thinking it would be required, and dismiss such an idea from their mind. Then some one presses the claims of the Honorary Secretary and proposes a grant for his services, which is generally carried; other things are proposed and carried, and the Stewards, not many, attend the final meeting, and are very glad to get quit of it.

The Honorary Secretary to the Board of Stewards is invariably the Secretary of the Institution for which the festival is held, whose duty it is to do all in his power for the benefit and advancement of the Charity he represents; and his position as Secretary to the Board is an essential part of his duty. Besides, the Stewards exert themselves for the benefit of the Charity alone, and that certainly ought to have a prior claim to any available surplus.

In support of these remarks I have made, it is proved they are practical, and I am sure may be improved upon, by the method adopted by Bro. Little, the Secretary of the Girls' School at the festival in May last, when the Stewards' fee was fixed at two guineas. Those who required ladies' tickets paid for them, on that occasion. With an ordinary number of Stewards there was a surplus in hand, which the board voted to Bro. Little, who, I am told, respectfully declined to receive it, thereby acknowledging the principle I have laid down.

Our order is increasing wonderfully in numbers, and with that increase our casualties must necessarily keep pace, our institutions must, at no very distant period, be made to accommodate double their number, which can only be brought about by increased sympathy on the part of the Craft at large in response to those who serve the office of Stewards at our anniversary festivals, and thereby make themselves acquainted with the peculiar wants of each.

Trusting these few remarks, if not effective in themselves, may lead to a ventilation of the subject, so as in time to bring about the desired result,

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
P.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Kindly permit the insertion of this in your next issue, to enable me to correct a statement made in a letter of mine which appeared in last week's Freemason. I stated in that letter that "I had not been supplied with any particulars by which I could show a return for the support I hope to receive when appealing (as Steward) to the brethren of my lodge on behalf of the Benevolent Institution." It was not my intention, when writing, that any of your numerous readers should presume I had not been supplied with the usual circulars by Bro. Terry, who has at all times been most willing to furnish information in any way connected with the noble charity he so well represents, and to whom I readily apologize for the mis-statement; and thanking you, sir, for allowing me to further trespass on your space,

I am, yours fraternally,

HARRY J. MOXON.

SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT FUND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

By accident referring to some back numbers of the Freemason I perceive that about a week before my scheme for a Masonic Benevolent Institution for Scotland was proposed in your columns, viz., Sept. 12th, in that issue there is a letter from a brother signed "Scoticus Masonicus." I know that editors receive names of writers of articles sometimes in secrecy. On considering said letter, and agreeing with nearly every word there written, I cannot help thinking that the said brother, whether living in London or in Scotland, might be of use to our undertaking, if he approves the scheme. Could you kindly, with his permission, give me his address or ask him to write to me, as I feel certain the more labourers we can get at the work the better.

I propose sending you an address for insertion early in January, as soon, in fact, as I can get in returns of our progress, and at the same time inserting it in all the Scottish papers, provincial or otherwise, so as to keep up the attention of the Craft.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

GEO. R. HARRIOTT, 32, Prov. G.M.
Wigtown and Kirkcudbright.

No. 4, Howard Place, St. Andrew's,

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I venture to give my opinion on the subject recently ventilated in your columns, on the status of a demitted Past Master returning to his allegiance by rejoining a lodge. Whatever may be the spirit of the constitutions in the matter, their letter very plainly recites that a Past Master, who for twelve months has ceased to subscribe to any lodge, shall no longer continue a member of the Grand Lodge, nor can he regain that privilege until again installed Master of a lodge. By the law, he would, if made a Warden, become a member of the Grand Lodge, for the Wardens of every private lodge are members of Grand Lodge.

I venture to think that the spirit of the Constitutions is to punish, by a deprivation of rank, those who, having had full experience as rulers of the Craft, forget the promise which they made at their initiation that they would ever observe the laws and regulations of the Order; one of which, as laid down in No. III of the ancient charges, is that "every brother ought to belong to some lodge;" and I venture further to think that it is but fair to those who work with uniformly steady and persevering constancy in the interests of Freemasonry, that they should not be in any way superseded by men who have for a time deserted their colours and given up the fight. Reading the Constitutions as I do, I venture to think that a demitted Past Master would, on regaining his privileges, rank below all Past Masters in his lodge who have attained the dignity of the chair during his secession from the Craft, and be treated in fact as though he had never before passed the chair.

BUSY BEE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

About six months ago I invited the brethren of my lodge to attend a funeral of a departed brother, and on that occasion, I, as W.M., took precedence, which was in accordance with the opinions of the P.M.'s present. This week I invited them again to another funeral, when it was ruled that the W.M. took rank in the procession after the youngest P.M.

Please inform me which is the correct opinion.

I enclose my card and remain,

Yours Fraternally,

ONE OF YOUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Would you, when convenient, oblige by inserting in your Notes and Queries the following, that they may be answered for the information of brethren generally, particularly Scottish brethren.

1st. Does the Charter of Constitution and erection of all lodges holding under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, empower and give them (the lodge) the right to work the Mark Degree?

2nd. If any lodge has not worked the Mark Degree, can it (the lodge) now do so, without any other other charter from the Grand Lodge of Scotland? See Scotch Constitutions, page 2, chap. 2, sec. 1, also page 46, chap. 20, Sec. 1.

3rd. Is the Installed Master's Degree a new one, or how long since it was first conferred on duly elected W.M., under the S.C., and how can it be reconciled with the charges, &c., of a W.M.? See S.C. appendix, C. page 10, sec. 10, see Freemason of Nov. 28th, 1874, in a report of proceedings of Lodge Thistle, No. 87, S.C. page 761, 8th and 6 following lines, centre column.

5th. Would a Royal Arch Companion S.C., be admitted into a Royal Arch Chapter S.C., he not being a Mark Master and M.E.M.?

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JOHN SMITH.

MASONIC PORTRAITS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As you invited expression of feeling on the above subject a week or so ago, in reply to the suggestion of a brother for some means (of which he suggests the above) of making the Freemason become more extensively circulated amongst the Craft, will you kindly allow me to suggest that there should appear weekly, on the front sheet of the Freemason, a portrait or carte-de-visite of some of our leading members of the Craft, slightly gummed on, so that it could be removed without being torn, and could then be mounted by your subscribers, or pasted in a scrap-book, by which means a feeling of greater interest might be awakened, and an incentive given to many to work themselves well up in the Craft, as well as a stimulus to become thoroughly acquainted with what Freemasonry is doing, not only in England but on the Continent.

I quite agree with your remarks, made on many occasions, that Masonic literature is not patronised or encouraged as it ought to be; and it is to be feared (and I say it with all due respect) that there are too many simply Masons by name, who, after once being raised to the sublime degree, seem to have no desire to make further progress either in the working of their lodge, or the acquisition of a general knowledge of what Freemasonry—so widely spread over the surface of the earth—is doing.

I am often much surprised at the number of brethren whom I meet to find that many have never heard of such a Masonic periodical as the Freemason, and others, knowing its existence, do not subscribe to it, and I could mention one town in which there are but about five thousand inhabitants, with a Masonic Lodge of about thirty members, and I am assured by the stationer that there is only one subscriber for the Freemason. Now, from what does this arise, seeing the Freemason is the only Masonic weekly organ we have in England? It seems to me there are but two answers—viz.: That the interest the Craft in general manifest for the cause of Freemasonry must be very limited indeed, or the Freemason is not sufficiently attractive to recommend itself thoroughly to the great brotherhood.

I feel confident with J. C., in yours of 19th inst., that the increase of circulation would amply repay the extra outlay.

I would suggest that when any great event in Masonry is taking place, such as dedications, installations, decrease of any popular brother, or any important appointments, that a carte-de-visite should be given in the style suggested, with a full account of the proceedings, as far as practicable, or, in the event of decease, an interesting account accompanying the portrait of any brother who shall have so far distinguished himself in Freemasonry as to be worthy of note.

If the above arrangements were carried out I believe I could induce many to become subscribers who do not care for the Freemason in its present style.

I trust this may lead to further correspondence on the subject, and I shall be pleased to know if this idea is approved of by your subscribers.

I am, Sir, yours truly and fraternally,

H. SMART, S.W. 996.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very much pleased to find from letters in this and last week's Freemason, that you contemplate some improvements. Will you permit one who has taken very considerable interest in the paper, from the issue of its first number, to suggest a few improvements, which would tend, I am certain, to swell very much indeed the number of your subscribers.

1st. Do not let advertisements interfere with paging, but let the page containing them serve as a cover, thus enabling your subscribers to bind their volumes. Lodges, Chapters, &c., would then have no excuse to urge for not taking in the paper as lodge property.

2nd. Encourage a system of notes and queries, admitting all that relates to, or is in any way connected with, the Order, requiring only that all letters should be written in a gentlemanly and fraternal spirit.

3rd. Establish a sort of Masonic exchange, all articles to be of a strictly Masonic character, and only articles that cannot readily be procured.

4th. Admit no letter or article abusing a Brother to your pages, show to your correspondents that if they forget the O.B. of the 3rd degree, you do not.

I consider the portraits and other Masonic sketches would be appreciated by the Craft, but do you not think they had better be given with your Monthly? The idea of issuing them as supplements is one that might enable them to be given more frequently, and at various prices.

Do you not think that were you in the Monthly to confine your articles to purely Masonic ones, your circulation would be improved? We have in England a large number of Monthlies, why try to compete with them? If matter falls fall back upon translations from French and German Masonic authors, or extract from American Masonic Magazines. I trust you will take the few remarks I have ventured to make in the spirit in which they were written—a sincere desire to increase the circulation of both our Masonic papers, in which I feel (as all lovers of the Order should) a deep interest. With the compliments of the season,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

F. G. IRWIN, P.M. P.Z. &c.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am glad to see that the above subject is being ventilated, and hope that it will result in your taking it up. As you kindly invite opinions I take the liberty of suggesting one. Could you not give us photographs from life, such as are now being issued by the "Figaro Programme" with such great success? For they really are works of art, and should you issue such as those, the increase in circulation of the Freemason would soon recoup you for the trouble and outlay.

I am, fraternally yours,

M.M. 1239.

THE OFFICE OF GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It appears to me that although the rule against the resignation by a Worshipful Master of his office, may be of time immemorial, it is still within his power to divest himself of the duties and privileges of his position, by ceasing to be a member of his lodge. In the Constitutions of 1756 and 1767 I find it stated that "On Nov. 25th, 1723, it was agreed that if a Master of a particular lodge is deposed, or demits, certain rules should be observed as to his successor. This right of demission (defined by Bro. Paton as "the act which in any other society would be called a resignation"), is clearly common to all Masons, and if a Master demits, or resigns membership of his lodge, he, ipso facto, renders himself incapable of discharging the duties of his office, for which event provision is made by our present Book of Constitutions, chapter "of the Masters and Wardens of lodges," section 6. Doubtless he cannot resign his office, and continue to be a member of his lodge, but however strongly the course I have pointed out is to be deprecated, as a violation of the obligation taken on assumption of the Master's chair, the power of demission which I attribute to every Mason, cannot, I think, be denied.

H. MARTIN GREEN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As an Irish Mason, I cannot be expected to know perfectly the working under the E.C., though I take a lively interest in all that concerns the Craft; and therefore carefully read the interesting letter of Bro. Warren and your leader on it in the Freemason of the 19th ult., and after weighing all his arguments, I have not been able to come to his conclusion. If the M.W.G.M. desired to resign early in the year, and that he could not do so, I understand Bro. Warren to say the D.G.M. would rule the Craft; but suppose he were to die, who then would rule? I think it would have been better if Bro. Warren had been able at first to have stated his views, but as things are, I cannot see any good to be gotten by opening of the question.

In the same number of the Freemason was an account of the consecration of the new Masonic Hall, Hobart Town, in which your correspondent states that there are Ionic pillars supporting an entablature in the E., and Corinthian pillars to the niche in the S. It appears to me that either your correspondent or the architect has made a great mistake, for that those should be quite the reverse. On looking to "Mackay's Lexicon," I find he gives the Ionic as in the S. Which is right?

Fraternally Yours,
P.G.C.

AN ANCIENT INSCRIPTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the impression of the Freemason of the 19th ult. there is an amusing account of the Sphinx Lodge, in which there is given an inscription "supposed" to have been found in the ruins of the temple. Will you allow me to give you another reading of the "inscription" which at this festive season may be acceptable.

Is ato me eris ago,
Fortibus in aro,
Nobile themis forte trux,
Se votis in empeas an dux.

Translation.

I say Tommy, here's a go,
Forty busses in a row.
No, Billy, there is forty trucks,
See vot is in 'em, peas and ducks.
I am, Sir, yours very truly,

W. W. S.

London, Dec. 14th, 1874.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your record of the ceremony of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Patron of the A. and A. rite, you mention my attendance as that of T. H. Coombes. My correct name is Thomas Coombs, and I shall be obliged by your having the error set right.

Yours fraternally,
THOS. COOMBS, 33°.

INSTALLATION OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER OF NEW ZEALAND, S.C.

The ceremonial of the installation of Bro. John Hislop, Inspector of Schools, as the R.W.P.G.M. of the Masonic Province of New Zealand over the lodges holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, was performed in the Masonic Hall, Moray-place, Dunedin, on Wednesday evening, 9th October.

The Prov. G. Lodge was opened by the R.W.P., Bro. Vincent Pyke, assisted by Bros. P.M. James Mills, P.G.D.M.; P.M. G. H. Campbell, Lodge St. Clair, P.G.S.M.; J. Stables, R.W.M., Lodge Celtic, 477, P.G.S.W.; J. McLandress, D.M. 477, P.G.J.W. The following lodges were then admitted:—Bro. J. H. Harris, R.W.D.G.M. of the E.C., and officers and members of the G.D. Lodge of Otago and Southland; Lodge of Otago E.C.; Lodge of Dunedin, E.C.; Lodge of Port Chalmers, Marine, E.C.; Lodge Celtic, Dunedin, S.C.; Lodge St. Andrew, Dunedin, S.C.; Lodge Otago Kilwinning, S.C.; and Lodge Oamaru Kilwinning. Besides the R.W.M. of Lodge Cromwell Kilwinning, Bro. McKellar, there were brethren representing Lodge Sir Walter Scott, Thames, St. John's Lodge, Milton, and Clutha Lodge, Balclutha. Bro. P.M. Caldwell, recently appointed a Steward of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, was also received in due form.

The attendance was one of the largest seen in the colony, there being upwards of 350 brethren in the lodge-room.

The ceremony of installation was conducted by the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. Vincent Pyke, in his accustomed efficient and impressive style, ably assisted by Bro. J. Lanseigne, R.W.M. Otago Kilwinning, who acted as P.G.D.C.

The P.G.M., Bro. Hislop, having been duly installed into the chair of the P.G. Lodge, the following brethren, nominated by him, were installed into their respective offices:—Bros. J. Gore, S.P.G.M.; G. F. Reid, P.G.S.W.; W. H. Burton, P.G.J.W.; J. B. Park, P.G. Chaplain; S. G. H. Smith, P.G. Secretary.

The following elected officers were also installed, with the exception of Bro. E. B. Hammond, P.G. Bible Bearer, who, as stated by the R.W.P.G.M., was unable on account of sickness to be present:—Bros. A. R. Livingstone, P.G. Treasurer; F. Beissell, P.G.S.D.; H. M'Donald, P.G.J.D.; A. H. Burton, P.G. Jeweller; N. Y. A. Wales, P.G. Architect; J. M. Brown, P.G. Director of Ceremonies; S. Black, P.G. Marshal; John Ferguson, P.G. Director of Music; T. Moodie, P.G. Sword-Bearer; G. Smith, P.G. Tyler; and J. M'Landress, James M'Leod, W. Patrick, W. Irvine, Dr. Bakewell, P.G. Stewards.

The Prov. G. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room.

The east was occupied by the P.G.M., supported on the right by Bros. P. M. Gore, T. James, and E. Nathan, and on the left by Bros. P.M.'s Lanseigne, R. Stout, and Burton. The west was occupied by P.M. Bro. G. F. Reid, P.G.S. Warden, and the south by P.M. Bro. G. H. Campbell, P.G.J. Warden.

The banquet-room was appropriately decorated with banners, &c.; and, as regards the supper, it is only necessary to say that it was got up in Bro. Hudson's best style, whose ability and courtesy as a caterer have often been put to the proof.

After the removal of the cloth, the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the R.W.P.G.M., viz:

"The Queen and Craft," "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Royal Family," "The three Grand Lodges—England, Ireland, and Scotland," responded to by Bro. P.M. Caldwell, G.S.; "The District Grand Lodge of Otago and Southland," responded to by Bro. P.M. G. Greenfield, D.G.W.; "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Ireland," responded to by Bros. P.M. Hyman and Armstrong.

In the absence of the P. Prov. G.M., Bro. V. Pyke (who was obliged to leave on account of illness), Bro. P.M. Stout, in a very appropriate speech, proposed the health of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. Hislop, and success to the P.G. Lodge.

Bro. Hislop, in thanking the brethren for the distinguished honour that had been conferred upon him, stated, in a few terse practical sentences, that they would have no reason to regret their choice. He expressed his determination to have every one of his officers in harness forthwith, and that none of them would have reason to say that he occupied the place of a sinecure. The "P.G. Officers" was given by Bro. P.M. Nathan, responded to by Bro. P.M. James Gore; "The Installing Officers," by Bro. P.G.M. Hislop, responded to by Bro. P.M. Lanseigne; "The Past P.G. Officers," by Bro. P.M.S. James, responded to by Bro. P.M. James Mills; "Sister and Daughter Lodges," by Bro. P.M. Gore, responded to by Bro. A. H. Barton, P.M., E.C., and Bro. H. Aitken, R.W.M., Oamaru, Kilwinning; "The Visitors," by Bro. R.W.M. Stables, Celtic, responded to by R.W.M. Bro. D. McKellar, Cromwell Kilwinning, who stated that he and others trusted soon to have the opportunity to be able to give the officers of the P.G. Lodge as hearty a welcome in the province as the visitors had met with that evening. "The Past Masters," by Bro. J. B. Park, responded to by Bro. P.M. Nathan.

Bro. P.M. James Mills then gave the time-honoured toasts of "Masons' Wives and Bairs," and the R.W.P.G.M. closed the meeting by the usual Masonic toast, "Poor and Distressed Brethren."

During the evening the meeting was enlivened by several appropriate songs, accompanied by Bro. Moss on the piano, who also presided over the music during the whole of this (to Masons) most interesting and impressive ceremonial.

CHESHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

On Tuesday evening, 15th ult., an amateur dramatic performance was given in the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, under the auspices of the brethren of the Mersey Lodge of Freemasons, (No. 477), in aid of the funds of the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution. The comfortable, cozy theatre was crowded to its full extent, and therefore the result ought to be a very substantial addition to the funds of a very deserving institution. The performance began with the farce of "Turning the Tables," in which the principal characters were supported by Bro. W. J. Hammond, Messrs. Christie, Owen, T. Morris, Miss L. Phillips, Mrs. John Stinton, Miss A. Florence, (of the Birkenhead Theatre). The principal attraction of the evening's performances, however, was the representation of "Richard III," in which nearly the whole of the characters were played by brethren of the Mersey and other district lodges. Humpbacked Gloster was very ably and creditably represented by Bro. W. M. Asher, who displayed an amount of histrionic ability which was somewhat surprising in an amateur. Bro. R. Gracie played the King with much kindly dignity, and Mr. G. H. Pedder did much to make Richard the telling part, which it is essentially. Bro. Dixon was a good Stanley, and Miss C. Young, (Queen Elizabeth), Miss L. Phillips, (Lady Anne), and the other members of the company, played with no small success. It may be interesting to know that the institution, which has been established for some years, has for its object the education of the children of deceased Freemasons, who leave their families in destitute circumstances. Numerous children have been provided for, and much credit is due to the brethren of the locality for these yearly entertainments on behalf of the funds of this noble charity.

GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.

A regular communication of Grand Lodge will be held on Thursday, the 7th of January, 1875, at eight o'clock, p.m., at Freemasons' Hall, Molesworth-street, Dublin, to transact the usual business; to consider the recommendation of the Board of General Purposes:—

"That £100 be voted towards the proposed memorial to the memory of the late Grand Master," and to receive the report from the Committee appointed to report as to the future salaries of the Officials in the Grand Secretary's Office.

The Grand Lodge will also meet on Monday, the 28th December (for St. John's Day), at twelve o'clock, noon, to install the Grand Officers, except the Grand Master and Grand Wardens, who will be installed at the special meeting convened for the 6th of January, and to receive the report of the Committee of Inspection as to the officers of the Dublin lodges for the year 1875.

The following is the order of proceedings to be observed on the occasion:—

On the arrival of His Grace, the Grand Master elect, the Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers will conduct him to the Small Lodge Room, where His Grace will be formally installed as Master of the Grand Master's Lodge.

The D.G.M. and the Grand Officers will then proceed to the Grand Lodge Room, and Grand Lodge will be opened in due form, the R.W. Robert William Shekleton, D.G.M., on the Throne.

The D.G.M. will then appoint a Deputation, consisting of the Past Deputy Grand Masters and four Provincial Grand Masters, who, together with the Grand Deacons, the Grand Director of Ceremonies, and the Grand Steward, will retire and introduce the G.M. elect, and conduct him to the Dais.

The Brethren will stand to Order while a prayer is offered by the R.W. the Grand Chaplain.

The D.G.M. will then request the G.M. elect to kneel and take the obligation of office.

The G.M. elect having been conducted to the right hand of the Throne, the D.G.M. will invest His Grace with the Insignia of his high office, and induct him into the Chair of the Grand Master.

The Grand Director of Ceremonies will then proclaim the Most Worshipful Grand Master who will be saluted according to ancient form.

An Installation Ode, written and composed specially for the occasion by the W. Grand Organist, will then be performed.

The G.M. will then appoint his Deputy, who will be invested and conducted to the Chair on the right of the M.W.G.M.; and on being proclaimed as such by the Grand Director of Ceremonies, will be saluted according to ancient form.

The M.W.G.M. will then proceed to install the Most Noble the Marquis of Headfort as Senior Grand Warden, and the Right Honorable Lord Dunboyne as Junior Grand Warden, who will be severally invested with the Insignia of their respective offices, and saluted according to ancient form.

The Grand Lodge will then be closed in ample form.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The usual monthly meeting of the lodge of Benevolence was held on the 23rd ult., which was too late to be reported in our last impression, as, on account of Christmas Day, we had to go to press a day earlier than usual. The Senior Vice-President, Bro. Joshua Nunn, took the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, the Senior Vice-President's; and Bro. C. A. Cotterbrum, P.G.P., the Junior Vice-President's.

There was a very long list of applications for relief, which occupied the attention of the brethren till a late hour. A large total amount was distributed, the majority of cases being assisted with sums of from £20 to £30.

Masonic Tidings.

The Lord Mayor of London has accepted an invitation to dine with the Mayor of Liverpool on the 4th of March. It is a curious coincidence that the two chief magistrates of the leading cities of the world are both members of the legal profession retired from practice.

Lord Dalhousie's cellar of wines was sold at Edinburgh on Saturday. Some of the lots realised £8 per dozen.

Among the unfortunate victims of the Railway disaster at Shipton, was Miss Margaret Laverick, housekeeper to the Earl of Carnarvon. Deceased left Highclere Castle, Newbury, on Thursday, 24th, for Chesterfield, with the intention of spending Christmas with her friends.

The lease of the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, has been purchased by Bro. P. Ritter, the energetic caterer, Bro. Joseph Corbin remaining as Manager.

Bro. W. H. Van Barre has been appointed private Secretary to the Lord Privy Seal for the ensuing year.

Bro. Viscount Holmesdale has sent twenty brace of pheasants to the British Home for Incurables, of which Institution he is President.

The Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction, No. 13, has, by permission of the W.M. of the Mother Lodge, been reopened at the Earl of Chatham, Thomas-street, Woolwich. The lodge now meets every Friday evening at 8, under the preceptorship of Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 147, 1155. The Ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be worked in the lodge by Bro. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, &c., on Friday the 15th of January next.

BRO. CONSTABLE'S DRAWING.—The time is rapidly approaching this eventful proceeding, hence we solicit brethren who have sold or purchased tickets, to send an early return to Bro. Constable, as well as to remit for the same, so that registration may be made in accordance with the terms specified on the ticket. We are glad to learn that Bro. Constable is finding favour and that his praiseworthy efforts are likely to be followed by many of our brethren on behalf of their Provincial Masonic and Charitable Institutions.

THE CITY DIARY.—This shilling diary, which is published at the office of the City Press, contains complete lists of the members of the Corporation, and of its officials, with the names and addresses of the City clergy and ministers of various denominations, the ward clerks, tax collectors, parish officers, ward clubs, and other City associations, with much information respecting the livery companies, the public business of the City, and other matters in which citizens generally are interested. The diary is interleaved with blotting paper, and is ruled for a week on each page.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—When winter checks, to a considerable extent, the natural exhalations of the skin, an alternative is required to transfer them entirely from the body through some other channel. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest and surest and safest means of attaining this desirable end, without weakening the most delicate, or incommencing the most feeble. When, from frequent chills and impure air, the blood becomes foul and the secretion vitiated, these Pills present a ready and efficient means of cleansing the former and correcting the latter. By this salutary proceeding, disease is arrested at its outset, its pain and inconveniences averted, and the nervous structure saved from the depressing effects entailed upon them by an illness.—ADVT.

Obituary.

BRO. S. B. KING, W.M. 225.

Yesterday afternoon the mortal remains of the late Bro. Stephen Burdett King, who expired last week immediately after having been installed as Worshipful Master of St. Luke's Lodge, were interred in Ipswich Cemetery. The esteem in which deceased was held by the brethren of the Craft was testified by about sixty Freemasons—notwithstanding the very inclement weather—according a last tribute of respect by being present at the graveside. It is, we understand, more than twenty years since a dispensation was granted for a Masonic funeral in Ipswich. The brethren met at St. Luke's Lodge-room, Coach and Horses Hotel, at 1, and included the following:—Bros. W. F. Jobson, W. Daking, A. Barber, C. Hillyard, G. Spalding, J. Whitehead, T. Prentice, C. Byford, J. Turner, P. Whitehead, F. Grove, W. Murray, W. D. Skinner, J. Orton, J. Barker, W. Flory, C. Canham, C. W. Godball, J. Sheppard, and H. Meek, &c., of St. Luke's Lodge. Bros. A. Gammon, W. A. Smith, W. J. Jack, J. H. Staddon, N. Tracy, F. Pettit, G. A. Turner, J. G. Churchyard, B. W. Syer, A. E. Parker, H. Robertson, T. Hooper, W. G. Woods, F. Waller, H. Lott, A. Cannon, E. Hain, T. R. Elkington, &c., of Perfect Friendship Lodge. Bros. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, B. Dickson, G. Abbott, F. Crisp, F. Bennett, C. Cooke, and J. Trott, Prince of Wales' Lodge. Bros. E. Holmes, G. W. Brock, B. Spurling, W. Spalding, H. Miller, jun., and P. Cornell, &c., &c., of the British Union Lodge; and Bros. J. S. Ruffles, Doric; W. O. Ward, Star in the East; and T. Heard, 81, &c.

Amongst gentlemen present not members of the Craft but anxious to show their respect for deceased were Mr. Wm. Mason, Mr. J. W. Beart, Mr. — Beart, Mr. Jonathan Cooke, Mr. Jillings, Mr. J. A. Parker, Mr. B. B. Parker, Mr. Walter Canham, Mr. Charles Woods, Mr. T. P. Howe, Mr. W. R. Clarke, Mr. A. Ashford, Mr. W. T. Holmes, Mr. David Seagrave, and several other inhabitants of St. Clements.

From the lodge-room the members of the Craft marched in procession to the late residence of the deceased in Fore-street. Thence the funeral cortege started at about 2 o'clock, the route chosen being Upper Orwell-street, St. Margaret's-street, Woodbridge Road, and Christchurch-street. Hundreds of people had assembled in Fore-street and awaited the approach of the mournful procession at various points.

Arrived at the church in the Cemetery, the brethren formed a line on either side the pathway, and the coffin, preceded by Bro. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, who officiated throughout, reading the sublime burial service, was borne into the building. The service was choral, and was very impressive, the hymns sung in the church being, "When our heads are bowed with woe," and "Jesus lives; no longer now can thy terrors, death, appal us." The deceased Mason was interred in the same grave as his wife, whom he followed to the tomb only a few months since. As the coffin (of polished oak) was being lowered into the grave the choir rendered Handel's "Saul" most feelingly. The reading of the burial service being ended, the officiating clergyman delivered a brief but impressive discourse. He spoke of the esteem in which their departed brother was held amongst them, and of the breach caused by his removal. He had, he said, died as he would have wished—honoured, surrounded by his brethren, his bodily suffering ere he passed away short, followed to the grave by those with whom he had been associated in life. He had suddenly been called to enter upon a change of scene; they hoped through Christ to a higher range of being, a more purified knowledge where the nets of his infirmity would be broken, and where he was now awaiting a happy re-union with those whom he had left behind—where all would know even as they were known. The corn had been cut and awaited the gathering in, the tree had been felled, and the stone quarried, ready for the great Master Architect to lay it in "the temple, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." For themselves, the end of their late brother was a great lesson to prepare to meet God; its awful suddenness, a warning to them to be also ready. Let them speak, and think lovingly, tenderly, forgivingly, knowing they had no need of forgiveness. Their brother who had gone from amongst them was gentle, kind, and good; it would be long ere the circle was filled up; they would long miss his ready instruction, his genial presence in innocent enjoyment. Oft had they met happily; now they met sorrowfully; but God grant that they might happily meet again. The address, during the delivery of which snow fell fast, was listened to most attentively; and at its conclusion the brethren took a last look into the grave, at the same time dropping upon the coffin a sprig of acacia, in conformity with the custom of the Craft. Processional order was then resumed, the brethren returning to the St. Luke's Lodge-room, when the lodge was closed, after Bro. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson had further addressed the members, during which he was completely overcome with emotion, having, as he said, known their late brother for 17 years, and esteemed him not only as a Mason but as a friend. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Bro. H. Luff, and Bro. W. A. Smith, very efficiently acted as director of the ceremonies.

The social circle of the late Bro. King has met with a severe loss in his sudden demise. He had been long regarded as the possessor of transcendent abilities far beyond the requirements of the trade he followed. Had he been educated for a profession no doubt he would have distinguished himself, such was the high order of his talents.

The late Bro. King was initiated into the Perfect Friendship Lodge in 1844, being proposed by Bro. W. Spalding. He immediately became an active worker in the Order, and was installed W.M. for the first time in 1851. Six years later he was again chosen for the office and in 1863 was similarly honoured. In the St. Luke's Lodge he was initiated in 1865 becoming W.M. for the first time on the night of his death. He had passed all the principal offices in the Royal Sussex Chapter and was also Scribe in the St. Luke's Chapter and a Knight Templar.

BRO. EDWIN COLLINGWOOD.

On Tuesday morning, 15th ult., shortly after two o'clock, Bro. Edwin Collingwood died at his residence in Drake-street, Rochdale, after a short sickness, although his health seems to have gradually failed since the death of his wife, which occurred last March. He was for many years closely attached to Freemasonry. He was initiated into Freemasonry in Lodge of Hope, 54, August, 1849, and was installed W.M. of the above lodge in 1857, and discharged the duties of that office with honour to himself and credit to the lodge, and was a member of the same up to his death. Many years he attended the Charity Committees of this province on behalf of the lodge, in which he took great interest. He held several important offices in the town, the duties of which he discharged with zeal and fidelity. His death is deeply lamented by the brethren who knew him, particularly by the brethren of his lodge. He was interred in St. Clement's Churchyard on Friday morning last, and the following brethren, in order to pay the last tribute of respect to our departed brother, attended the funeral in white ties and gloves. Ut umbra corpus sequitur, sic virtutem gloria. Bros. C. M. Jones, Pro P.D.A.C.; Wm. Roberts, P.P.; R. Butterworth, A.P.; D. Mitchell, P.M.; James Midgley, P.M.; E. Hey, P.M.; John Leach, P.M.; Ralph Rawstron, P.M.; Jesse Ferth, P.M.; David Buckley, P.M.; Wm. Ashworth, P.M.; Wm. Davies, P.M.; John Ashworth, W.M.; Geo. Holmes; S. Casson; Wm. Kerr; A. Barker, S.W.; James Hartley; T. Parker; J. Ireland, S.W.; C. Smith; John Higgin, J.W.; E. Hill; H. Schofield; Geo. Green; J. Lawton; James Burnish, J.W.; John Greyson; E. Crosley; Wm. Davies.

BRO. CAPTAIN W. H. LEE.

A very large circle of friends, both in England and America, will learn with deep regret that Bro. Captain W. H. Lee, for many years the business manager of Bro. Sam Hague's Slave Troupe—located in Liverpool, at St. James's Hall, for upwards of four years—died at his residence in Fraser-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 15th inst., after a very long illness. Our brother had been prostrated by that dire disease, consumption, but although he had long suffered from it, there was no immediate expectation of his dissolution until a very short time before his death. Bro. Lee was in active service in the American army during the whole of the civil war, and was in numerous engagements, holding the rank of captain during a great part of the time. At the close of the war he organized what was then and is now known as "The Slave Troupe of Minstrels," and, after owning it for some time, he sold his proprietary to Bro. Hague several years ago, and then assumed the post of business manager. This position he filled with the greatest satisfaction of the proprietor, and in a manner which won for him general admiration from the patrons of the troupe. Bro. Lee was well known and universally esteemed by many of the leading members of the Masonic fraternity in Liverpool and elsewhere, and his loss is sincerely regretted by these as well as many non-Masonic friends. His remains were interred on Monday afternoon last in Smithdown-lane Cemetery, many professional and Masonic friends being present to pay a last tribute of respect to his memory. Bro. Lee was only 33 years of age, and leaves a widow to mourn his loss. The funeral of our much respected brother took place on Monday week, when nearly every place of entertainment in Liverpool was represented. A band of 64 instrumentalists, selected from nearly all the local orchestras, played on the route to the cemetery, where there was a crowd of between 3,000 and 4,000 persons. The coffin was enveloped in the National Flag of America, and surmounted by splendid wreaths of flowers.

Reviews.

It has been said that the days of fairies are over, and that the tales of youth delight us no more. Our young people want and demand, it is also avowed, with much of apparent confidence both of speech and of opinion, a more sensational if certainly less healthy, nay, less pure a literature. Well, we don't believe it! We doubt, that is to say, very greatly the "soft impeachment" of the taste and temper of the rising generation, and we venture even to think that the proclivities of youth are pretty much the same, "mutatis mutandis," as Friar Tuck said, with what they were in our bye-gone generation! For we ourselves can recall, even in these sobered days, an equal love of the marvellous, as great a yearning for the "weird" and the sensational, as are credited to this our "nova progenies." We believe therefore that fairy tales, that sympathy with the supernatural, will outlive all the prosaic utterances, and realistic teaching of incredulous philosophers and scientific moralists, the didactic essay, and the veiled utterances of doubt or scorn. The foundation of all good fairy tales is after all only belief in the unseen, in right, in truth, in honour, in justice, in faith, if veiled in allegory, if set forth in quaint imagery. It may be that these old-fashioned truisms of the fairy tale, jar somewhat on the complacent scepticism of many in this easy and self-sufficient semi-educated epoch, whose present seems to be "cram," and whose end appears to be self. Yet, who of us all does not recall the good fairy of the ancient legend, who always appeared at the right time, and in the proper place, rewarding innocence, upholding right, and utterly routing and casting down fraud and falsehood, treachery and hypocrisy, wicked tyranny, and sinful might, and therefore it is that King Pippin's adventures, by Roland

Quiz, appeal, as we think, to the best feelings and honest freshness of youth. We know a little lady for instance, who has been so delighted with Tim Pippin, that she quite believes both in his words and deeds, and will follow his wondrous adventures with intense anxiety and thrilling interest. We congratulate Roland Quiz on writing his work, which though it may graze, as has been said, as it were, on the "doubtful mountains," yet contains in it after all, the elements of moral truth and personal duty, if illustrated by fairy intervention, or marvellous acts. Like in all allegories, or parables, Roland Quiz seeks to set forth truth for the welfare of the young especially, in the history of Tim or King Pippin, and we prefer his clever description of supernatural wonders, to those deeds of horror, and those annals of crime, which seem so fashionable just now, and in which so many for their lasting harm, profess to find amusement and gratification. At this genial season, we recommend "Tim Pippin" to the perusal of all our youthful readers, the sons and daughters of Masons.

We have perused with pleasure the "History of the Lodge of Tranquility, No. 185," written by our Bro. John Constable, W.M., and with a preface by Bro. W. J. Hughan. We thank Bro. Constable for a very well planned and well executed work, and we trust that his seasonable example will be widely followed. For, as Bro. W. J. Hughan well knows, the documents of our lodges are still, as it were, a sealed book, alike to the Masonic Student and the Masonic historian. It is possible that we have not preserved such ancient minute-books in our English lodges as in Scotland, but we do not yet despair of finding English lodge minute-books like the Alnwick Lodge, pre 1717 and during the 17th century. The Lodge of Tranquility was originally formed under a warrant of the "Ancient" Grand Lodge, and the charter is signed by Lord Antrim, G.M., Laur. Dermott, D.G.M., Thomas Harper, S.G.W., Ja. Parry, J.G.W., and John McCormick, G.S. The history is marked by two somewhat remarkable features, the one is, that though in 1791, it was unanimously resolved that a "Jew should not be admitted as a brother on any pretence whatever in future," in 1849 the lodge was practically resuscitated by a swarm of Hebrew brethren from Joppa Lodge, many of them well known to Masons and Masonry. What a very remarkable commentary does this first fact supply against intolerant prejudices, and futile attempts to invalidate the true universality of Freemasonry. Another very notable point is the establishment of a Lodge Fund of Benevolence, which is now very flourishing indeed, and has been productive of much happy relief to destitute brethren and decayed members of the lodge. We congratulate Bro. Constable on his very interesting and readable volume, as a valuable contribution to Masonic Archaeology and Lodge History, and we trust that it will have every literary success. We quite agree with all Bro. Hughan so well says as to the desirability of such lodge histories; and we hope that we may witness before long a general overhauling of Lodge chests, MSS., and records.

Moses and Son, of clothing fame, have put out with the New Year, two very neat little diaries and almanacks for their customers and the public. Very convenient they are to lie on the table or the desk, the more so as dates are most important to all who have duties to perform or accounts to pay. And who has not? There are indeed a multitude of Diaries, Almanacks, and Remembrancers, with a closing and an opening year, all of them applicants for approval and patronage, so that we can safely say that no one need be without such a necessary daily companion and memento vite for 1875. For such diaries, in our opinion, are alike needful for the man of wealth, and for the man of business, for the student and for the philosopher, for the lecturer, and the litterateur, for the schoolboy and the clergyman, for the "Misses," and for the Mason, and we recommend these little convenient diaries to all who like the "multum in parvo," and seek neatness and utility combined.

NOTES ON LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND ART.

GLEANED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Two useful publications, under the titles of the "Literary Mart" and the "Booksellers' Circular" have been forwarded to me. They promise fair to fill up a void which book-buyers have long felt. I am pleased to notice seven works on Freemasonry, offered for sale in their pages; showing that the dear old Craft continues to attract attention both in the ranks of the initiated and amongst the outer world who are not Freemasons.

On Saturday morning, Dec. 19th, Mr. Charles Rogers, better known under his assumed literary name of "Tom Treddlehoyle," died at Barnsley, in the seventy-third year of his age. He edited the "Bainstall" Foaks' Annual and Pogmoor Olmenae from its commencement in 1837 to the present issue; and had done much, by his genuine humour, towards creating that taste for works in provincial dialects, and which, as was to be expected, has flooded us with much dirty water, not from Helicon. Nevertheless, with such writers in the Lancashire and Yorkshire dialects as Edwin Waugh, Ben. Brierley, Eccles of Leeds, and Florence Cleveland, all of whom have really something to say, independent of their peculiar modes of telling it; local provincial literature is likely to live in the North of England, and the student of their rich dialects to be able for all time to draw illustrations from their writings. Nor is it merely the abundance of provincial words that truly illustrates the dialect of a district, there is a peculiar mode of expression among those "to the manner born," which a stranger could never acquire, and which only some who really know the dialect can give expression to; but without which, all writings in dialects lose their charm. Though the most part of his life was spent in Barnsley, Mr. Rogers was born at Manchester, June 2nd, 1802; and at an early age removed to Wakefield, where he was educated in the Green Coat School, and he afterwards served his time in that town as apprentice to a house painter. He then began business on his own account, in Barnsley, and was so far successful as to be able to spend the latter years of his life in retirement. He had been for some years chairman of the Barnsley Board of Guardians, and took an active interest in the welfare of the poor. His genial manners, unfailing humour, and kind heart, endeared him to a large circle, differing widely from him in political opinions, (which were Conservative), and in religious views, (which were those of the Church of England.) Far beyond the district where the dialect is spoken in which he sent forth his Annual, has that humorous little sixpennyworth been anxiously looked for every year; and long after his body has mouldered into dust, will his genuine humour live in his writings, which contained nothing to raise a blush on the cheeks of his chastest readers.

Mr. J. Tom Burgess, whose well-known books on Old English Wild Flowers, Angling, the Last Battle of the Roses, &c., are deservedly popular, has now in the press a work of much research on Historic Warwickshire, its Legendary Lore, Traditionary Stories, and Romantic Episodes. As Mr. Burgess has for some years been resident at Leamington in Warwickshire, and made its natural history, antiquities, chronicles, and folk lore, his especial study, I have no doubt that he will present his readers with a rich intellectual repast.

Deacon, W.M.; James Walker, S.W.; E. Ainsworth, Secretary; R. K. Freeman, S.D.; Jas. Brown, J.D.; F. W. Pacey, Organist; Samuel Crowther, Inner Guard; Thos. Glaister, P.M., Prov. S.G. Warden; Saml. Isherwood, P.M., Prov. G. Treasurer; G. P. Brockbank, P.M., P. Prov. S.G. Deacon; Jas. McAdam, P.M., Prov. G. Deacon, Derbyshire; Jas. Newton, P.M., Prov. G. Steward; Jno. Rutter, Prov. G. Steward; Frank Ainsworth, Prov. G. Steward; R. W. Knowles, P.M.; Jas. Pilkington, P.M.; also visiting brethren—Saml. Cheetham, P.M. 815, P. Prov. G. Treasurer; Robt. Whittaker, P.M. 678, Prov. G. D.C.; Jno. Taylor, P.M. 221, Prov. G. Organist; W. H. J. Jones, W.M. 221; H. Stead, 221; Milne, 1253; and others. The lodge being opened in form, and the minutes confirmed, the W.M. elect, (Bro. James Walker) was installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. James Newton, P.M., Prov. G. Steward. The following brethren were appointed and invested as officers for the ensuing year: W. H. Horrocks, S.W.; R. K. Freeman, J.W.; E. Ainsworth, Treasurer, (elected); Frank F. W. Pacey, Organist; Rooke Pennington, I.G.; Chas. Walker, Tyler. A candidate for initiation was proposed, and the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet.

FALMOUTH.—Lodge of Love and Honour (No. 75).—At a meeting of this, the mother Lodge of the County of Cornwall, held in the Masonic Hall at Falmouth, Bro. W. H. Dunstan, P.M., was elected W.M., for the ensuing year, and Bro. P.M. W. F. Newman, was re-elected Treasurer. The installation of the Worshipful Master took place on the 29th of December.

STOCKPORT.—Lodge of St. John (No. 104).—The annual festival of this lodge was held Monday, Dec. 14, at Ashton House, Greek-street, Stockport, when Bro. Herbert Finch was duly installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The ceremony was most impressively performed by Bro. J. Beresford, P.P.G.D., and Bro. W. Goodacre, P.P.G.P., assisted by the other Past Masters of the lodge. The musical portion of the ceremony was under the direction of Bro. Henry Collier, Organist, and was very satisfactorily rendered, the lodge choir adding very materially to the impressiveness of the ritual. The Worshipful Master appointed the following brethren as officers of the lodge for the ensuing year, and they were duly installed with the insignia of their offices:—Bro. W. H. Wakefield, I.P.M.; Bro. C. Cooke, S.W.; Bro. G. Shaw, J.W.; Bro. W. Goodacre, P.P.G.P., Treasurer; Bro. Jas. Kirk, Sec.; Bro. G. Barber, S.D.; Bro. G. Armistage, J.D.; Bro. J. Beresford, P.P.G.D., Director of Ceremonies; Bro. H. Collier, Organist; Bro. J. H. Duffill, I.G.; Bros. G. Rodgers, W. M. Jones, T. B. Birch, and W. Booth, Stewards; Bro. G. Turner, P.M., 287 Tyler. After the installation, the lodge was closed, according to ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room of the lodge at Ashton House, where a banquet was served in excellent style to about 70 brethren, by Bro. Minshall, the proprietor of Ashton House. Amongst the visiting brethren present on the occasion were Bros. Col. Wilkinson, P.P.G.D.; E. G. Simpson, P.P.G.D.; R. Taylor, P.M. 287; J. Scott, P.M. 322; J. Chetham, W.M. 322; J. Hill, J.W. 322; G. Roy, W.M. Elect 323; W. Banks, 287; W. Shepherd, J.W. 287; A. Graham, W.M. 287; R. Johnson, P.M. 1052; J. Andrews, W.M. 1319; Rev. H. E. Jones, J.W. 1387; W. Ridings, 152; E. Beswick, Organist 1134; W. H. Pratt, P.M. 1009; J. Foster, Secy. 1054; F. Hepton, W.M. 1009; Jabez Clayton, 322; J. H. Robinson, 1126. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Wakefield, I.P.M., proposed the health of the Worshipful Master in a highly complimentary speech, to which Bro. Finch suitably responded. The Worshipful Master then presented to Bro. Wakefield a handsome Past Master's jewel, which had been subscribed for by the members of the lodge; and after spending a very pleasant evening, the Tyler's Toast, "All poor and distressed Masons," was given, and the brethren separated.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—The festival of St. John was celebrated on Tuesday last at Freemasons' Hall, Southampton, when Bro. Morris Miles was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. There was a large attendance of Past Masters and brethren, including a goodly number of visitors from the sister lodges. The ceremony of installation was admirably performed by W.

Bro. P. M. Payne, after which the newly-installed W.M. invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. J. Hickman, S.W.; R. Sharpe, Prov. G.O., J.W.; Abraham, Treas.; Le Feuvre, P.P.G. Sec.; Rev. W. W. Perrin, Chaplain; H. M. Pike, Organist; C. W. A. Jellicoe, S.D.; W. E. Manby, J.D.; J. Cole, I.G. The W.M. evinced his ability, by initiating a brother in such a manner as to call forth the warmest expressions of approval. In the evening, the brethren sat down to a banquet served in Bro. Dartnall's best style, and the after proceedings were of a most agreeable kind.

WARRINGTON.—Lodge of Lights (No. 148).—The installation of the W.M. elect and the one hundred and tenth anniversary banquet of the above lodge, was held on Monday, Dec. 28th, at the Masonic Hall, Warrington. The W.M., Bro. John Harding, occupied the chair, and was supported by the following brethren—Bros. W. Pollitt, P.M., as S.W.; D. W. Finney, P.M., as J.W.; John Pierpoint, W. H. Robinson, D. Wilkins, Thos. Tunstall, Thos. Jones, T. Mee Pattison, A. H. Young, J. R. Young, C. E. Hindley, W. Morris, P.M., Prov. G. Stew.; C. Ekkert, J. S. Patten, John Bowes, P. Prov. G. Reg., Cumberland and Westmoreland; John Dimelow, Thos. Jones, Thos. Morris, W. Richardson, P.M.; Peter Jones, Walter Milner, W. Crompton, Jno. Armstrong, Robt. Gibbon, J. J. Thompson, W. Sharp, P.M.; Jas. Bayley, Thos. Grime, Thos. Gartside, Dr. Spinks, W. Dooley, C. W. Savage, J. G. Hughes, R. Hooper, J. Taylor, Jas. Hannah, R. G. Stringer, P.M. Visitors—Bros. Rev. J. H. Bluck, P.M.; P. Prov. G. Chap. Shropshire, Robt. Wylie, P.M. 155, 292; P. Prov. G.S.D.; John W. Turley, P.M. 1035, Prov. G.J.D.; Dr. Gornall, L. R. Barnes, W.M. 113; P. J. Edleston, W.M. 1134; Robt. Brierley, W.M. 1250; W. S. Hawkins, P.M. 1250; Thos. Crompton, 484, &c. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when the chair of K.S. was assumed by W. Bro. Robert Wylie, P.M., as Installing Master, and the W.M. elect, Bro. John Bowes, P.M. &c., was presented by Bros. Harding and J. W. Turley. The usual preliminaries having been gone through, all brethren below the chair retired. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. John Bowes was, according to ancient custom, installed into the chair of K.S. as W.M. for the ensuing year. In due course the other brethren were admitted, and the new W.M. having been proclaimed, greeted, and saluted in the three degrees, the appointment and investiture of officers then took place as follows:—Bros. John Harding, I.P.M.; W. H. Robinson, S.W.; Thos. Tunstall, J.W.; Rev. J. P. Stedman, Chaplain; W. Sharp, P.M., Treas.; David Wilkins, Sec.; Jos. Pickthall, S.D.; J. Rymer Young, J.D.; T. Mee Pattison, Org.; C. E. Hindley, I.G.; and Jas. Hannah, Tyler. Bro. J. W. Turley then proceeded with the remainder of the ceremony, and was assisted by the Rev. J. H. Bluck. The whole ceremony was rendered in an able manner and was acknowledged by a special vote of thanks, which was ordered to be entered on the minutes of the lodge. The new W.M. then addressed Bro. Harding, I.P.M. and said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present him with a gold P.M. jewel, as a recognition of his services and a token of sincere esteem. Bro. Harding feelingly acknowledged the handsome gift, which he said he should value very highly as a special mark of kindness and he should wear it with pleasure for the rest of his life. The auditors now presented their report which, together with an abstract of the Treasurer's accounts, was ordered to be printed and circulated among the members. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was furnished in Bro. J. G. Hughes's best style; it embraced everything in season and was of a bountiful description. The cloth having been withdrawn, the W.M. gave briefly the usual loyal toasts. The W.M. then gave the health of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," which he did with peculiar pleasure. It was nearly 85 years since the ancient and honourable fraternity was presided over by a Prince of Wales. It was in the year 1790 that George, Prince of Wales, afterwards George IV, was installed Grand Master of the Order, and singularly enough it was in the same year that the Duke of Kent, the present Royal Grand Master's maternal grandfather, was initiated. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm. The W.M. then proposed the health of "The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said that those of their number who were present a few years ago in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, when the Pro Grand Master installed the Prov. Grand Master of East Lancashire, would not soon forget the eloquent manner in which the ceremony was rendered. That their own Prov. Grand Master was selected by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, for the important position of Deputy Grand Master, was a proof of the estimation in which that nobleman was held in high quarters. The rest of the Grand Officers were worthy of every confidence, and he gave the toast in confident anticipation that it would be warmly received. Drunk with applause. The W.M. said the next toast he had the honour to propose was "The Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Prov. G.M.; the Hon. F. Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers." He then dilated at length on the merits of these brethren, and mentioned a long train of Warrington brethren, who had held offices of various degrees in the Provincial Grand Lodge. The toast was warmly received, and responded to, by Bros. R. Wylie, J. W. Turley, and W. Monop. Bro. R. Wylie proposed the next toast, "The Provincial Grand Masters of the neighbouring provinces," which was responded to at length by Bro. the Rev. J. H. Bluck, P.M., P. Prov. G. Chap., Shropshire and North Wales. Bro. John Harding said: It is my privilege as the I.P.M., to propose the next toast, which is "The health of our W.M." I am sure it does not require a long speech from me to extol the good qualities of our W.M., as he is well known to us all as a good and worthy Mason, and one who has taken great interest in this lodge, and in Masonry in general. I may say that it was at the request of a large number of the members of this lodge that he consented again to take the office. Personally, it has been a source of great pleasure to me to see him placed in the position he now so worthily fills, as I am sure the lodge will prosper in his hands. The W.M. in responding, said that night, eleven years ago, he occupied the same position in relation to the lodge; since then he had worked hard and continuously, and he hoped, for the good of the Craft in general, and of that portion of it located in Warrington in particular. He should be animated by one single principle, the promotion of the genuine tenets of the Order. It was a matter of deep regret to him that they had no past Warden who aspired to the position of W.M., and as such was the case, he of course had no alternative but to accept the honour, and he assured them he appreciated very highly that renewal of their kindness. He would much rather have seen Bro. Harding re-elected, but that brother headed the deputation that waited upon him, and manifested the utmost anxiety in the matter, so that he, the W.M., felt that it was his duty to yield to the wishes of the brethren. He thanked them most heartily. The W.M. proposed "The Past Masters and Officers of No. 148," and in doing so said that he felt proud of his officers, because they were able, and he was sure, willing to do credit to the various offices to which they had that day been appointed. Before he referred more at length to the qualifications of those brethren who had consented to help him in the conduct of the lodge, he must say a word about the Past Masters. Some were present, others unavoidably absent. Of those present he wished particularly to mention the oldest and the youngest, Bros. Stringer and Harding. The estimation in which those brethren were held was acknowledged on all sides. As men and as Masons, they all esteemed them, and trusted they might long be spared to be ornaments to their mother lodge. Of his officers, as he said before, he was proud. Few W.M.s had the good fortune to be able to select brethren to fill the Wardens' chair, who could work the ceremonies as well as himself. Such, however, was his good fortune. Then, the Deacons were brethren who would most assuredly rise to the chair. Indeed, in each case there was no doubt that the brethren appointed to office that day would in due time succeed him as W.M. The toast was drunk very heartily. Bros. Stringer, Richardson, Harding, Robinson, T. Tunstall, D. Wilkins, J. Rymer Young, and Hindley severally responded, and assured the W.M. and brethren that they would prove their appreciation of the consideration shown them by a regular and punctual attendance at the lodge, and a careful performance of the duties of their respective offices. The W.M. next proposed "The W.M., Wardens and Members of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge, No. 1250," and, in doing so, expressed his deep regret that the Senior Past Master of that lodge—the distinguished brother after whom the lodge is named—Bro. Gilbert Greenall, M.P., was absent through indisposition. They had, however, the present W.M. with them, as well as some of the Past Masters, and he need not tell them that the parent lodge was happy to hold out the right hand of fellowship to them and to rejoice at their prosperity as a lodge. They all knew the interest he took in the formation of No. 1250, and how long and regularly he attended to watch their interests and to give them a helping hand whenever needed, and he assured them that they still had his best wishes. The old lodge was glad to welcome her offspring, and he gave the toast with extreme pleasure. Drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Robt. Brierley, W.M., No. 1250, responded at great length, and in an able manner. He thanked the W.M. for his many kind utterances, and assured him, and the brethren seated around those tables, that he and the members of No. 1250 were deeply obliged to both him and them. With respect to their W.M., Bro. Bowes, he would like to say a good deal, but as he was present, he would only say that certainly no one in Warrington had done so much for the real welfare of the Craft as that brother. Long before he was admitted to the light of the Order he was made aware of Bro. Bowes's exertions, and since he had been privileged to be numbered among them. He had witnessed Bro. Bowes's efforts for the good of the Craft, and the benefit of its members. Personally, he rejoiced that Bro. Bowes had consented to take the position of W.M. again, because it would give Masonry a fresh impetus in Warrington, and benefit thereby both lodges and chapter. Bro. W. Pollitt, I.P.M., No. 1250, said he could not refrain from endorsing the remarks of Bro. Brierley. The members of No. 1250 were greatly indebted to Bro. Bowes. He was their first Acting Master, and, until they could "run alone," performed all their ceremonies. He considered the members of No. 148 had done themselves credit by again seeking the services of one ever ready and always willing to benefit the Craft. The W.M. proposed "The Visiting Brethren," and expressed the pleasure it afforded them to entertain those who did them the honour of visiting them. He was proud to have on his left hand the W.M. of the Lodge of Unanimity, No. 113, Preston, Bro. L. R. Barnes, because in another way he was connected with No. 148, being the nephew of their S.D., Bro. Pickthall. He was also glad to welcome Bro. Crompton of the Lodge of Faith, No. 484, Ashton-in-Makerfield. Time was, so he found in the old minute books, when the Ashton brethren came in a body to assist them, and surely it was desirable that such should be done. Then there was his old and valued friend, Dr. Gornall, whom they all, equally with himself, rejoiced to see and welcome. Then again they were favoured with the presence of the W.M. of No. 1134, East Lancashire; who, although resident in Warrington, had earned a reputation in the adjoining Province. To one and all the visitors he gave a hearty welcome, and he was sure their healths would be drunk most cordially. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Barnes responded, and referred to the great advantages to be derived from visiting neighbouring lodges. He was not a stranger to them, but he must say that their hospitality and welcome was as fresh and hearty as it was on the occasion of his first visit. He wished the W.M. every prosperity during his year of office, and he rejoiced to find that the brethren had been so fortunate as to secure the services of so able an exponent of the Masonic Ritual. Bro. Rev. J. H. Bluck also responded, and as a Mason of 30 years standing, gave all assembled some good advice; and at the same time he acknowledged his great obligations for the splendid hospitality they had dispensed that evening. Bro. Dr. Gornall said he need not tell the brethren around him how much he rejoiced to see his old friend again in the position of W.M. He was sure the brethren, and indeed the whole Craft in Warrington, would benefit by the administrative ability of the new W.M. Bro. Crompton also acknowledged his indebtedness for the kindness shown him on that occasion, and he should not fail to report to the brethren of his lodge the hearty welcome he had received. Bro. P. J. Edelsten, W.M. No. 1134, also responded. The W.M. then called upon Bro. W. Morris, P.M. No. 1250, Prov. G. Steward, to propose "The Masonic Charities," which that brother did at great length and in an able manner. The W.M. then called upon Bro. James Hannah to propose the Tyler's Toast, which brought the proceedings to a close, and the brethren separated soon after nine in perfect harmony. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. T. Mee Pattison, Organist of the Lodge, who was ably assisted by Bro. Tunstall, Peter Jones, Thos. Crompton, C. W. Savage, &c., &c.

JOPPA LODGE (No. 188).—This lodge met on Monday, at the Albion, for the installation of the W.M., and other business. Bro. Obed Roberts, W.M., presided, and raised Bro. Isaacs, besides passing Bros. S. and I. Botibol and Clarke; Bro. Hunt, P.M., initiated W. Skinner; Bro. Roberts afterwards installed Bro. S. L. Hickman as W.M. for the present year, performing the ceremony, as he has performed all the ceremonies during his year of office, admirably. The brethren invested as officers for the year were Bros. O. Roberts, I.P.M.; Dodson, S.W.; L. Lazarus, J.W.; L. Auerhaan, Treasurer; E. P. Albert, P.M. Secretary; Miller, S.D.; Cook, J.D.; A. Auerhaan, I.G.; H. Hyman, D.C.; Borgen, Steward; P. E. Van Noorden, Organist; and Woodstock, T. The ceremony was then completed, and lodge was called off to refreshment, when 136 brethren sat down to a splendid repast, provided by Bro. Jennings, the manager of the Albion Tavern. At the conclusion of the banquet, grace having been said, the room was cleared and prepared for dessert, and on the re-admission of the brethren, the toasts were honoured, under the direction of Bro. Van Noorden. A choice selection of music was performed at intervals by Miss Matilda Scott, Miss Clara Wollaston, Mr. Alfred Mori, and Mr. Prenton, greatly to the satisfaction of the brethren. Dr. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D., in responding to the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, &c.," after congratulating the brethren on the sumptuous entertainment they had partaken of, expressed his gratification at the working he had witnessed in the lodge. The Grand Officers were always ready to assist any lodge which required a brother to perform the installation, but such was the vitality of the Joppa Lodge, that it stood in need of no assistance in that ceremony. As long as Masonry was carried out in the same way, the Order would flourish, not only in this country, but over the whole face of the earth. "The Joppa Benevolent Fund" was the next toast proposed, and Bro. B. W. Aaron, the President, before replying, called on Bro. E. P. Albert to read the balance sheet. Bro. Albert complied, and announced to the brethren that the balance in hand was £1158 3s. 11d. (Cheers.) Bro. B. W. Aaron rose to respond, and read a list of donations of that evening, amounting to £17 17s. (Applause.) He then thanked the brethren for supporting the fund, which he said was raised to relieve any brother, or family of a brother of the lodge who might be in want. He recommended other lodges to do the same, and said that if this system were adopted, it would greatly assist Grand Lodge of Benevolence. Joppa Lodge never sent a member there whilst it could relieve him. (Hear, Hear.) Bro. Roberts proposed "The W.M.," who replied, and in his turn proposed "The I.P.M.," presenting, at the same time, a handsome P.M. jewel and locket to Bro. Roberts, as a slight token of the respect and esteem in which he was held by his brethren. Bro. Roberts having acknowledged the gift, the toast of "The Visitors, Initiates, and Officers" was given, and the brethren shortly afterwards closed the lodge and separated.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—An Emergency Meeting of this Lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, on Monday the 4th inst., Bro. Geo. Abbott, W.M., in the chair.—Bro. C. J. Benson (of Lodge 1185) was raised to the 3rd Degree. The following brethren were passed to the degree of F.C.: Bros. H. A. Pratt, W. Medwin, E. Barch, J. T. Belfrage, S. Crawford, V. Hibbins, T. B. Charlesworth, and G. H. Gillam; Messrs. A. T. Honeywill and R. Stubington were initiated into the Order. The W.M. who is now about to retire from the chair, worked the ceremonies in his usual characteristic good style. Amongst the brethren present were the following: Bro. Geo. Newman, S.W. and Master Elect; Bro. T. Cohu, J.W.; Bro. J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; Bro. Charles Arkell, S.D.; Bro. E. Jones, J.D.; Bro. H. Legge, I.G.; Bros. George Kenning and F. Trott, P.M.'s; also Bros. W. Donne, W. R. Baker, W. Alfatt, B. Jenkins, E. J. Kclarsay, S. Edwards, S. Haynes, R. E. Bright, J. Curle, F. Fellows, W. T. Rickwood, A. J. Manks, Geo. Hall, and others.—Thursday (the 7th inst.), being the day for the installation of Bro. Newman, the Master Elect, there was no repast.

BOURNE.—One and All Lodge (No. 330).—On Wednesday, 30th ult., the annual meeting for the installation of the Worshipful Master and festival of St. John was held in the spacious and beautiful hall dedicated by the Right Honourable the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Prov. Grand Master of Cornwall, and his officers, at the meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge in July last. There was present at the annual meeting of the lodge a great number of brethren, among whom were Capt. Colvill, P.M., P.S.G. Cornwall, W.M.; Rich, P.M., P.P.S.G.W.; Beswitherick, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; Collins, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; Cummins, P.G.R.; Hele, P.P.G.O.; Sandoe, P.M.; Crang (Mayor of Bodmin), S.W.; Hawkin, J.W.; Rowe, S.D. Also visiting brethren, Solomon, P.P.G.S.W.; Rev. A. H. Ferris, P.G.C.; Dyke, P.P.G.O.; Large, W.M.; Truscott, I.P.M.; Lukes, Matthews, and Higman, of 496 St. Austell; and Hooper of Lodge 510, Liskeard. The lodge was opened in due form, and after the preliminary business, the W.M. elect, Bro. Hele, P.P.G. Organist, was duly installed in the chair of King Solomon by Bro. Captain Colvill, W.M., in a solemn and impressive manner, which called forth high eulogiums from the Past Masters and brethren present. The W.M. having been duly proclaimed, appointed and invested the following as his officers: Bros. Colvill, I.P.M. and Treasurer; Rich, P.M., Secretary; Hawkins, S.W.; Rowe, J.W.; Rev. J. D. Hawksley, Chaplain; Hon. E. Alger Robartes, S.D.; Beacock, J.D.; Trevel, M.C.; Vincent and J. Hawke, Stewards; O'Neil, I.G.; Carol, P.P.G.T., Tyler. The lodge being called off from labour to refreshment, about fifty brethren repaired to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Sandoe, P.M., at the Royal Hotel, when a pleasant evening was spent.

TRUR.—Phoenix Lodge of Honour and Prudence (No. 331).—At a meeting of this lodge, on Tuesday evening, Bro. T. Oliver, who has been S.W. for the past year, was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. J. O. Mayne, elected Treasurer, and Bro. Rookes re-elected Tyler. A letter was ordered to be prepared to be sent to Bro. Ferguson, who is about to leave for India, expressing fraternal regret at his leaving and well wishes for the future. The members afterwards enjoyed a good repast provided by Bro. Rookes, and several accessions were made to the lodge.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 359).—The W.M., Bro. G. H. Burtenshaw, to meet him at his last time of presiding over the lodge, had nearly sixty brethren present, including the W.M.'s and officers of the other two lodges in the town, and the W.M.'s elect of the same lodges. After two initiations and a raising, the ceremonies being performed in an able manner, a vote of condolence was passed to the family of P.M. William Bemister, who died at a ripe old age this week, after many years service in Craft and the other degrees in Masonry. He was the "father" of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, which celebrated its centenary a few years since. The Lodge of Peace and Harmony, large as it was, has made considerable additions to its members during the Mastership of Bro. Burtenshaw.

NORTHAMPTON.—Pomfret Lodge (No. 360).—The brethren of the above lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John in their lodge room, George Hotel, on the 28th ult. Bro. Val. Thos. Barford was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being very ably and satisfactorily performed by Bro. Hinton (of London, son of an old P.M. of the Pomfret Lodge). In the absence of the I.P.M., Bro. E. Cox (P.M. of the Canonbury Lodge, London), who was unfortunately unable to be present, Bro. J. T. Green, P.M., was appointed S.W.; Bro. Winter, J.W.; Bro. G. Robinson, P.M., Sec.; Bro. B. Wilkins, P.M., Treas.; Bro. Lalor S.D.; Bro. F. Gadsby, J.D.; Bro. H. W. Parker, I.G.; Bros. Stanton, P.M., and T. R. Wood, Stewards; and Bros. Dean and Troup, Tylers. Amongst the visitors at the banquet were Bros. Neall, Hinton, Matthews (London), Bro. Buckle (Prov. G. Sec., Norths and Hunts); Bro. Griffin (W.M. elect of St. Peter's Lodge, Peterborough), and others, and although the attendance was not so numerous as usual, owing to the inclemency of the weather, the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner, harmony being contributed by Bros. Buckle, Hinton, Stanton, Winter, Wood, and others. In the course of the evening, Bro. Buckle alluded in a brotherly manner to the loss the province had sustained in the death of the late Prov. D.G.M., Bro. S. Inns, and expressed the pleasure he felt that so worthy a successor had been found in Bro. Butley Wilkins, a member of the Pomfret Lodge. Bro. W. B. Gates, P.M., P. Prov. G. Treas., accepted the office of Steward of one of the Masonic charities.

HALIFAX.—St. James's Lodge (No. 448).—The festival of St. John the Evangelist was celebrated by this lodge at the Freemasons' Hall, Halifax, at their annual meeting. After the ordinary lodge business, the W.M. elect, Bro. Fredk. Whitaker, P.M., P.P.J.G.D., was duly installed W.M. of St. James's Lodge, by Bro. Waddington, P.M., and Bro. Normanton, P.M. The following were then invested officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. T. Wheelhouse, S.W.; C. T. Rhodes, J.W.; W. F. Wilkinson, P.M., Treasurer; J. Charnock, P.M., Secretary; N. W. Scholefield, S.D.; J. S. Lambert, J.D.; F. Whiteley, D.C.; Geo. Taylor, Organist; J. Hanney, I.G. Stewards, Bros. C. F. Hudson, and G. H. Brooks; John Greenwood, Tyler. At the banquet the W.M. was surrounded by Bros. Bentley Shaw, Deputy Secretary; T. Hill, P.P.J.G.W.; Smith, P.G. Secretary; J. J. Schaeppi, P.P.G.D.; Dewhirst, W.M. 1284; Wells, W.M., Ryburn, Sowerby Bridge; Walker, Leeds; W. H. Hartley, 307, Hebden Bridge; J. Whitaker, S.W. 1302; Asquith, W.M. 1302; from Probity, 61, Bros. Perkington, P.M., Tasker, P.M., J. Gaukroger, Leeming, Menzies, W.M. elect of Probity, J. Waterhouse, Wm. Gaukroger; from De Warren's Bros. Patchett, Barrett, J. Seed, Cocke, Thos. Nicholl, Geo. Normanton, J. Hayes; Three Graces: Bros. Ogden, W.M., Ely Dyson, and Terrell; Dr. Hartley, Todmorden; Bros. Ward, P.M., Trafalgar, 971; Blakey, Nelson of the Nile, 264, Batley; Ryburn: Bros. Stansfield, Greenwood, and Sutcliffe. Letters of apology were read from Bro. M. Rhodes, Bradford, and from Bro. Underwood, who said that as the railway companies had started so early slaughtering her Majesty's bipeds, and the weather being so seasonable and favourable for killing, he feared he could not possibly undertake the journey from Manchester. The W.M. proposed the loyal and patriotic toasts, "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces" being replied to by Bro. Morley, Bro. Leeming, 4th W.Y.V.; Bro. Whitaker, 8th W.Y.A.; Bros. Hayes, and W.Y.Y. "The W. Deputy P.G.M. of West York, and P.G. Officers," was proposed by the W.M. To this toast Bro. B. Shaw replied early in the evening, as he was compelled to leave before the proceedings terminated. He said that he trusted that very soon the Prince of Wales would appoint a Provincial Grand Master for West Yorkshire, as, at present, they were without a head. Bro. Knowles proposed the toast of "The Newly-Installed W.M. of St. James's Lodge," and hoped that the fact of Bro. Whitaker being elected to that office would mean a year of success and peace to St. James's Lodge. Bro. Whitaker replied, and promised to use every effort in his power to promote the goodwill of the lodge, and, in carrying out that object, he looked with confidence to the active co-operation of his officers. The toast was received and responded to with much enthusiasm. The W.M. then proposed "The Installing Officers—Bros. Waddington and Normanton." This toast having been replied to by the installing officers, the W.M. proposed "The Visiting Brethren," which was replied to by Bro. Savile Crowther in a song—"The Anchor's weighed;" also by Bro. Schaeppi, of Bradford, who stated that the fame of St. James's Lodge had been spoken of in terms of the highest praise for many years; and by Bro. Hill and others, including Bro. Binns, of Probity, Bro. Wells, of Ryburn Lodge, Bro. J. Dewhirst, of the Savile Lodge, Elland, Bro. Dr. Hartley, Todmorden, and Bro. Terry. The W.M. proposed the toast of the officers of "St. James's Lodge," which was replied to by Bro. T. Wheelhouse, S.W.; Bro. C. T. Rhodes, J.W.; and Bro. W. F. Wilkinson. The W.M. then proposed the Past Masters and Officers of St. James's Lodge, and in doing so remarked how much he regretted the absence of two of the oldest Past Masters of St. James's Lodge, who were prevented attending by the severity of the weather.—Bro. Waddington, P.M.; Bro. E. Walshaw, P.M.; and Bro. Normanton, P.M., replied. The "Officers of Probity, No. 61," was proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Menzies, W.M. elect. Bro. E. Walshaw proposed the "De Warren Lodge," the response being given by Bro. Asquith, W.M. The toast of the "Masonic Charities" was duly honoured, and elicited from the J.W. (Bro. C. T. Rhodes), that he had made himself a "life governor" of the Boys' School. The chairman spoke of this benevolent institution as one of the most deserving, and hoped to see during his year of office many of the brethren become contributors to its funds. "Mrs. Bentley Shaw and the ladies" was proposed by Bro. Whiteley, D.C.; and the proceedings terminated with "Go all poor and distressed Masons." During the evening several songs and recitations were given by various brethren, and the festive occasion was very joyously spent. The room was neatly decorated, and the banquet, which was supplied by Bro. Swift, of the Plummet Line Inn, was exceedingly well served, and the tables were beautifully adorned with candelabras, flowers, fruits, &c. During the lodge ceremony, the Immediate Past Master was presented with a Masonic jewel, in recognition of his services, by Bro. Bentley Shaw, in the name of a few brethren.

HERTFORD.—Hertford Lodge (No. 603).—On the 24th ult. the usual meeting was held at the Shire Hall. There was a large attendance of brethren, the principal business being the installation of Bro. Thomas Stalkart Carter, who had been duly elected Worshipful Master of the Lodge for the year ensuing. The Provincial Grand Master (Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P.) having intimated his intention to be present and to act as Installing Master on the occasion, a number of Provincial Grand Masters attended, and many brethren from the various lodges in the country were also present. The Worshipful Master (Bro. Orlando Wagner) took the chair about three o'clock and opened the lodge. After some routine business had been gone through the Provincial Grand Master was introduced in due form, and was received by the large number of brethren present with every mark of respect and enthusiasm. Having been conducted to the chair, which was vacated by Bro. Wagner, he proceeded to install Bro. Carter. The ceremony was admirably and impressively performed by Bro. Halsey, and elicited a general expression of thanks from the brethren. Bro. Carter, having taken the chair, proceeded to appoint and invest the officers of the lodge. The remainder of the business having been gone through, the lodge was closed. At six o'clock the banquet took place in the Assembly Room. There were 64 brethren present, amongst whom were—The R.W. Prov. G. Master, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P.; V. W. Bro. O. H. Wagner, P.M. Prov. G. S. Warden; V. W. Bro. V. Wilson, P.M. (Berkhamstead Lodge), Prov. G. J. Warden; V. W. Bro. T. S. Carter, Prov. G. S. Deacon; V. W. Bro. Rev. Lewis Deedes, Prov. Grand Chaplain; V. W. Bro. Malcolm Heywood, Prov. Grand Organist; Bros. H. Campkin, J. E. Cussans, and E. R. P. Francis, Prov. G. Stewards; V. W. Bro. H. B. Hodges, P.M. P. Prov. G. S. Warden; Bro. J. R. Cocks, P.M. and Bro. Andrews, P.M. P. Prov. G. J. Wardens; V. W. Bro. Stephen Ausin, P.M., and Bro. J. Boatwright, P. Prov. G. Supts. Wks. V. W. Bros. C. Drummond, P.M. and W. H. Rowe, P. Prov. G.S.B.; V. W. Bro. J. W. Carr, P.M., and P. G. Sec., Essex; V. W. Bro. Buss, P. Prov. Treasurer, Middlesex; V. W. Bro. Glass, P. Prov. G.S.B., Essex; Bro. J. Lowlin, W.M. 1479; Bro. W. Cuthush, W.M. 1385; Bro. Maller, W.M. 754; Bro. Cunningham, P.M. 754; and V. W. Bro. J. Terry, P.M. and Prov. Dir. Cers., who very ably performed the onerous duties of his office. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Heywood. There were no less than twenty-two Past Masters present.

WHITEHAVEN.—Lewis Lodge (No. 872).—On Tuesday, Dec. 29th, the brethren of this lodge assembled in great force for the purpose of installing a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and to celebrate the festival of St. John. Among those present were Bros. C. Morton, P.P.G.S.W.; J. S. Pittall, P.P.G.D.W.; W. Gill, P.M. of 1872, and P.G.D.C.; S. Atkinson, P.G.S.; Gibson, P.M. of 119, and P.G.S.; T. Brown, P.G.W.; E. Abldt, P.S.W.; Cooper, P.P.G.O. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. J. Huddleston, W.M. elect, was duly installed into the chair of King Solomon by Bro. C. Murton, who conducted the ceremony in that able and impressive manner only peculiar to long experience. This being completed the newly installed W.M. proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bro. S. Atkinson, I.P.M.; J. Robinson, S.W.; E. Rose, J.W.; R. Twentymann, Sec.; Labarte, Chaplain; J. Cowman, S.D.; J. Bell, J.D.; J. S. Braithwaite, I.G.; Cooper, M. of C. Bros. Nicholson and Hodgson, Stewards. Bro. J. Spittall was unanimously elected Treas., and Bro. Salisbury, Tyler. The business being concluded, the brethren retired to the banqueting-room, where a cold collation awaited them. The room was tastefully decorated, and the viands everything that could be desired, to which full justice was done. The cloths having been removed, the usual loyal, patriotic and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, being interspersed with songs given in their best style by Bros. Gibson, Rose, Bell, Younghusband, Hodgson and others, which contributed materially to the enjoyment of the proceedings. The brethren separated at an early hour well pleased with the entire proceedings.

SALTASH.—Zetland Lodge (No. 1071).—Bro. Stephen John Goodman has been installed as W.M. of Lodge Zetland of Freemasons (No. 1071), Saltash, and the following were appointed officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Thomas Hatherly, I.P.M.; Edwin P. Gilbert, S.W.; George Hawke, J.W.; William Foxwell, P.M., Treasurer; John G. Richards, P.M., P.P.G.J.D., Secretary; William H. L. Clark, S.D.; Robert G. Carpenter, J.D.; Joseph Rawling, I.G.; John Deebie, P.M., Tyler; and W. W. Harvey and R. Pearce, Stewards. The banquet was afterwards held at Carpenter's Commercial Inn.

TIVERTON.—St. Peter's Lodge (1125).—The annual installation meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, December 30, Bro. T. B. Patterson, the W.M., presiding. Bro. Thomas Parkhouse, W.M. elect, was duly presented and installed, the ceremony being most ably performed by the retiring W.M. The following officers were appointed and invested:—Bro. T. B. Patterson, I.P.M.; C. A. W. Troyle, S.W.; W. H. Reed, jun., J.W.; Rev. John Dickinson, P.P.G.C., Chaplain; H. S. Gill, Treasurer; James Mills, P.M., P.G.O. Secretary; G. W. Cockram, S.D.; Wm. Bartlett, J.D.; Thos. F. Mead, I.G.; J. B. Crabb, M.C.; A. Andrews, Organist; I. Searle and I. Melhuish, Stewards; John Patey, Tyler; F. J. Reed, Assistant Tyler; Thomas Parkhouse, W.M., Representative on Committee of Petitions. After the closing of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to banquet at Bro. Wood's, White Ball Hotel. Upon the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Parkhouse, in responding to the toast—"The W.M. of St. Peter's Lodge"—(proposed by Bro. Patterson, I.P.M.), after expressing in the warmest manner his sense of the high honour conferred on him by the lodge, and his reliance on the support of both officers and brethren, said it especially behoved Freemasons at the present time, not only here, but far and wide, to stand by the ancient landmarks of the Order, and to manifest their esteem for its principles and practices. It had long been regarded by some with suspicion and dislike, and these feelings had lately again broken out into open and violent denunciation. It appeared strange that an institution which, whilst reverencing religion, attacks no man's creed, which inculcates obedience to lawfully-constituted authority, and meddles not with party politics, which enforces the exercise of charity and benevolence, should be the subject of such hostility. Our secrecy covered no foul deeds, but enabled us, with confidence in the recesses of the lodge, to practice that ancient and peculiar manner of work which had been handed down to us, and to preserve the means of testing each link of our universal chain of brotherhood. Having made some remarks on the duties and privileges of Freemasons in general, he concluded by saying that he hoped his own conduct would justify their choice. The W.M. then proposed, in terms of well-merited eulogy, the toast of "The I.P.M.," whose admirable rendering of the installation service had, he said, helped to produce an impression on his mind which he hoped would not be lost. He coupled with the toast that of the officers of the lodge for the past year. The toast was duly acknowledged. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

Mark Masonry.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Masonic Hall, Basinghall-street, on Tuesday, 5th inst. There were present:—Bros. T. B. Yeoman, W.M.; Brette, J.W.; George Keming, I.P.M., as S.W.; Charles Horsley, M.O.; H. Dubois S.O.; Thellay, J.O.; Holden, Chaplain; Little, Secretary; Cubitt, P.M., I.G.; Boyd; Marsh, P.M.; Church, P.M.; R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, Colonel Francis Burdett, Southwell; and others. Bro. Levander, P.M., was absent, he being in Winchester attending the funeral of the late Bro. Sherry. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved, and the following brethren were ballotted for, approved, and advanced to the degree of Mark Master:—Bros. Robert Gresley Hall, 1347, and William Henry Whiteway Wilkinson, 145. There being no further business before the brethren, the lodge was closed. The usual banquet followed, the evening being enlivened by a recitation and songs, ably given by Bros. Holden, Horsley, and Marsh.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Portescue Lodge (No. 9).—This old lodge held its annual meeting at the Masonic Hall on Monday week, for the purpose of installing Bro. R. S. Bryant (the W.M. elect) W.M. for the ensuing year, which ceremony was very ably performed by Bro. Major John Tanner Davy, the Prov. G.M. for Devon. This being done, the W.M. invested Bro. T. Sanders, I.P.M., and appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the year ensuing. Bros. R. L. Riccard, S.W.; J. T. Shapland, J.W.; I. Galliford, M.O.; Widgery, S.O.; Wood, J.O.; J. Galliford, Treas.; James E. Galliford, Secy.; J. T. Widgery, Registrar of Marks, James E. Galliford, S.D.; Huxtable, J.D.; Cole, I.G.; and R. Kingdon, Tyler. The brethren afterwards partook of an excellent refreshment, provided by Bro. Cole, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

LEICESTER.—Fouke Lodge (No. 19).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on December 22nd, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. J. M. McAlister, Prov. G. Mark, Sec., who was supported by a good attendance of officers and brethren. Amongst those present were Bros. W. Weare, I.P.M.; S. S. Partridge, P.M., Prov. Mark J.G.W.; G. Toller, jun., S.W.; Clement Stretton, (Past Grand Steward), J.W.; W. Sculthorpe, M.O.; R. A. Barber, S.O.; W. T. Rowlett, J.O.; Garnar, Treas.; F. J. Baines, Sec.; G. W. Statham, S.D.; T. A. Wykes, J.D.; Thorp; Young; Mason; Edmunds; and others. The ballot was taken for Bro. Robert Brewin, an old and old much respected Past Master of the lodge, as an honorary member, he having gone to reside at a considerable distance from Leicester, and he was unanimously elected. Two other brothers were also elected upon the ballot as candidates for advancement, one of whom, Bro. Henry Meadows, M.D., being present, was regularly made a Mark Man, and afterwards advanced to the degree of Mark Master, the ceremonies being conducted by Bro. MacAlister, W.M., in the able, impressive, and complete manner which always marks his work. The new tracing board was used in the lodge for the first time, and the brethren expressed themselves much pleased with the style in which it had been got up.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PORTSMOUTH.—Naval and Military Conclave (No. 35).—The fourth anniversary of this conclave was held on Thursday, the 17th ult. The M.P.S. elect, Sir Knt. J. Clark, was duly enthroned &c., by the outgoing M.P.S. Sir Knt. J. Clay, assisted by the only two P.S. of the conclave at hand, viz.: Sir Knts. Green and Robinson. Sir Knt. Clark installed Sir Knt. W. Sharp as Eus.; R. J. Rastrick, S.G.; B. Sinister, J.G.; C. Groom, H.P.; J. Clay, Treasurer, (fifth time); A. R. Robinson, Recorder; H. M. Green, Orator; W. Crofton, Prefect; J. Harrison, Standard Bearer; J. Penny, Herald; &c. This was considered a favourable opportunity of shewing the appreciation of the Sir Knts. of the continuous services of the E.M. Sir Knt. J. Clay, as Treasurer from the commencement of the conclave; they therefore presented him with an elegant and tasteful Past Treasurer's Jewel (by Sir Knt. Geo. Kenning). Sir Knt. Clay suitably acknowledged the presentation in a few well chosen remarks. Bro. Dr. Charles Knott, of the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 342, was installed and proclaimed a Sir Knt. of the Order. A most excellent banquet was supplied by the host, Mr. Smith, in his very excellent style.

Scotland.

MOTHER KILWINNING.—The annual festival of this most ancient lodge was held on Monday, 28th ult. The brethren assembled in their hall at high twelve for the work of initiation, and at five o'clock for the despatch of business and the election of office-bearers. The chair was occupied by the R.W.M. and P.G. Master for Ayrshire—Bro. Colonel Mure, M.P. The Ayrshire Masonic Fund was submitted, and shown to be in a very satisfactory condition. The Bursary Trust Deed, prepared by the R.W.M., Bro. M'Cosh, of Blair Dalry, was then signed by the Provincial Grand office-bearers, and it was agreed to offer a bursary of not less than £20 annually, tenable for four years, for competition among the sons of Ayrshire Freemasons entering the art classes at Glasgow University next session. The Secretary, Bro. Wylie, on account of the severe indisposition of their worthy Treasurer, Bro. Whinton, next presented his accounts, giving a very favourable report of the state of the Lodge funds, from which a sum of £10 was voted to be distributed among the resident deserving poor of the parish. After the election of office-bearers the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Eglinton Arms and partook of a substantial dinner. At half-past seven the lodge was again opened by Bro. Colonel Mure, assisted by his Wardens, Bros. Johnstone and Gibson. On the platform were the Rev. Bros. Ker and Inglis, Chaplains; Bro. Roger Montgomery, M.P., Proxy Master; and Bros. Ferguson and Tweed, Senior and Junior Proxy Wardens; J. G. Halket, Substitute Master; and R. Wylie, Secretary. Deputations were present from the following lodges in the Province, viz.: St. John (Kilwinning) Kilmarnock, 22, headed by Bro. Lees; Irvine St. Andrew's, 149, headed by Bro. M'Jannet; Beith (Kilwinning) St. John's, 157, headed by Bro. Patrick, of Trearne; Stevenston Thistle and Rose, 169, headed by Bro. Park; St. Clement's (Riccarton) Kilmarnock, 202, headed by Bro. Hodge; Blair Dalry, 290, headed by Bro. M'Cosh; Neptune (Kilwinning) Ardrossan, 442, headed by Bro. Robertson; and the Lodge St. Matthew (Kilwinning) Dregthorn, 549, headed by Bro. Gillies. The usual Masonic toasts were given, and heartily responded to, particularly that of the R.W.M. of Mother Kilwinning, Bro. Colonel Mure, who replied in suitable and eloquent terms. Several of the brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening by singing some excellent songs. Altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent, and when the J.W. announced it was low twelve in the S., the lodge was closed according to ancient form.

MILLPORT.

LODGE KILBURN (No. 459), Isle of Cumbrae, held their annual festival on Monday, 28th ult., being St. John's Day. They marched through the village by torchlight, preceded by the Artillery Band, although the streets were one mass of ice, and very difficult to walk upon. After the procession, the brethren sat down to dinner in the Cumbrae Hotel—Bro. Swan, R.W.M., in the chair, supported on his right by Bro. Ross, and on his left by Bro. Richardson. Songs were sung and recitations given by several of the brethren, and, altogether, a very happy evening was spent.

HAMILTON.

KILWINNING LODGE, No. 7.—The usual election took place on 29th ult., with the following result:—Bros. James Mackie, R.W.M.; Colin Spalding, D.M., Dr. Robertson, S.M.; Thomas Thomson, S.W.; John Brown, J.W.; Wm. Dunlop, Sec.; Archd. Taylor, Treas.; George Turner, Architect; Alex. Kellar, Chaplain and Bible-bearer; Charles M'Ghee, S.D.; Robert Millar, J.D.; Thomas Minto, G.S.; James Scott, S.S.; Geo. Roger, J.S.; Jas. Annan, Organist. After the election, the brethren dined together under the presidency of the newly elected R.W.M., Bro. Mackie, and spent some hours in pleasant fraternal intercourse.

GLASGOW.

CATHEDRAL CHAPTER (No. 67) met in the Masonic Hall, 22, Struthers-street, on 22nd ult. A lodge of Mark Masters was opened, Bro. J. Duthie in the chair. Present:—Bros. Ronaldson, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Miller, Z., Chapter 50; and a number of qualified Mark Masters to constitute and hold the same. The minutes of previous meeting having then been read and confirmed, an application was received for admitting into the Order Bro. Campbell, of Lodge 275. There being no objection, and Bro. Campbell being duly prepared, was led into the lodge and received the degree. Bro. J. Miller officiated in a masterly manner; and there being no further business on this degree, the M.M. Lodge was closed in due and ancient form. The Excellent Master Lodge was then opened by the same office-bearers, and Bro. Campbell received that degree from Bro. J. Duthie. There being no further business in that degree the lodge was closed. The Holy Royal Arch Chapter being formed, Comps. Duthie, Z.; Wood, H.; Taylor, J.; Ronald, 1st Soj.; Nagle, 2nd Soj.; Deckie, 3rd Soj.; and a competent number of companions were present, all standing to order. The chapter was opened by the three Principals, Bro. Campbell was then received into the chapter, instructed into the mysteries, and exalted to the degree of a Royal Arch Companion by the M.E.Z. The being no further business before the chapter, it was closed in due and ancient form by the three Principals, all companions standing to order as Royal Arch Masons.

MOTHERWELL.

DALZIEL ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 406).—The annual supper and festival of this lodge took place on Monday, 28th ult., in the Masons' Hall. There was a full attendance of the lodge, and a large number of strangers present—Bro. Archd. King, R.W.M., presiding, and Bro. Evans acted as Croupier. Deputations from the following lodges were present, and took part in the proceedings:—No. 19, St. John's, Cupar Life; No. 31, St. Mary's, Coltness; No. 73, Thistle and Rose, Glasgow; No. 102, St. Mark's, Glasgow; No. 233, Hamilton; No. 233, St. John's, Wilsontown; No. 305, St. John's, Woodhall; and No. 419, Neptune Lodge, Glasgow. After the performance of the customary preliminaries peculiar to the Craft, a happy evening was enjoyed by the brethren.

CROSSHILL.

LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541).—A meeting of instruction, being the first of a series of three, was held at this lodge on the evening of Monday, 21st December. After ascertaining that only brethren were present, the R.W.M. delivered the following short address explanatory of the objects of the meeting:—Brethren, before proceeding to open the lodge, I desire to make a few observations. I had intended paying you the compliment and myself the honour of bestowing some little pains upon the address, for which my name stands upon the programme of to-night, but I have been so exclusively engaged with other matters having a prior claim upon my attention, during the past week, that it has been quite out of my power to do so. I have to ask you, therefore, to excuse me if I merely indicate, in a brief manner, the object of these meetings. It has been truly observed that in all regular assemblies of men the business of the assembly is accompanied with some form or ceremonial. In every country of the world, the practice prevails. It can be traced back to the most ancient times, and it still exists to the present day. Freemasonry being, as it is very beautifully described, a system of morality, veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols, not only conforms to this general practice, but necessarily goes much further and higher in its ceremonial observances—approaching, in fact, to a science of symbolism. The most profound lessons of divine truth are sought to be conveyed to the mind, and the whole duty of man to his God, to his neighbour and to himself, is constantly kept in view through all the ceremonials of Freemasonry. But brethren, I think, will agree with me when I say that, in order to render these ceremonials with proper effect, and to fulfil the high purpose for which they are intended, it is necessary not only that they should be conducted with ready fluency of speech combined with reverence and propriety of manner, but also with a true and intelligent appreciation of their moral teachings. That being so, it will require but little argument on my part to convince you that the acquisition of a thorough knowledge of, and practice in, the working of a lodge is a legitimate object of ambition to every good Mason, and that no body of Masons could find a more congenial or profitable employment than in the mutual study of, and instruction in, these beautiful ceremonials. This, then, is the object of these meetings; and in calling them "Instruction Meetings," the Lodge Marie Stuart does not desire to assume the position of instructor, but rather the promoter of, and participator in, a scheme of mutual instruction. It is true we have given some little time and study to the rituals of the Order, and are constant in our efforts to bring them up to a high standard, always keeping the ancient landmarks in view; but we are sensible that our work is anything but perfect, and it is within the objects of these meetings for any brother to suggest amendments or improvements, as it will be for us to afford any information or advice in our power. One great means of beautifying our ceremonials and increasing the power and effect of the symbolism, is the employment of music. This we are attempting to introduce on a scale worthy of the subject we seek to adorn, and although we have not yet got that branch of the work up to anything like a satisfactory pitch, I have no doubt that, with the assistance of our musical brethren, we shall be able to do so shortly, and to make a fair beginning at next meeting. Another matter which I shall just touch upon is that we intend to have, at all our meetings, whether we have initiations or not, a voluntary collection. You must be aware, brethren, that nothing can be done now-a-days without money, and the organisation of these meetings is no exception to the rule. It is hoped, therefore, that, in putting your contributions into the box, you will be as liberal as you can. This practice we purpose to observe at all our meetings, public and private, and we hope, before this time next year, to have as much money from this source as will enable us to do some practical act of charity—something by which we hope to show that Freemasonry is something more than a name. The lodge was then opened in the first degree, and Bro. Alexander, of Lodge 34, became an affiliated member, after which a candidate received the E. A. Degree at the hands of Bro. Julius Brode, S.M., in a most impressive manner. The proceedings, which reflect great credit on the R.W.M., J. D. Porteous, for the care and attention bestowed on them, were then brought to a close with a few remarks from the R.W.M. regarding the several duties of the S.W., the J.W., the S.D., and the J.D., and a discussion elicited on several points in Freemasonry. We observe, from a circular issued by the lodge, that the next meetings for instruction will be held on the 11th January and 22nd February, at the Hall, Queen's Park Rooms, Crosshill.

ISLAY.

KILDALTON LODGE (No. 552).—The brethren of this lodge, established in March last, held its first festival on the evening of Wednesday, the 23rd Dec., in Port Ellen. A lodge meeting was held at four o'clock to elect the office-bearers for the year 1875, the following being the return:—Bros. A. Johnstone Hodge, (H.M.'s Inland Revenue) R.W.M.; Capt. Lachlan McCuaig (A.A.V.), S.W.; Donald Campbell, J.W.; Duncan McArthur, J.D.; Francis Kean, I.G.; Peter McDougall, O.G.; John Murphy, Sec.; and Dougald Johnston, Lapbroag, Treas. At five o'clock the brethren marched by torchlight through the village to the time-honoured strains of "The Merry Masons" and "A Man's a Man for a' that," played by a flute band. Although the night was raw and gusty the procession had a most imposing appearance, the office-bearers carrying the insignia of their offices, and wearing their jewels. In the memory of that venerable individual, "the oldest inhabitant," there never had been such a turn out of the people of Port Ellen. Old and young turned out to see the first demonstration of the kind ever witnessed in the island. At six o'clock the brethren with their lady friends, to the number of about fifty, sat down to a splendid dinner in a granary of Bro. McCuaig's, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, a string band being in attendance. Bro. A. Johnstone Hodge, R.W.M., in the chair, was faced by Bro. Allan McDougall, S.W., and Bro. Lachlan McCuaig, J.W. Ample justice having been done to the dinner, the chairman gave the first toast, "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, may God bless her, and cause the light of His countenance to shine upon her, and give her peace." Air "National Anthem." The chairman gave the next toast, "The Craft," and spoke as follows:—"In my position to-night a duty devolves upon me which I could wish had fallen into abler hands. When I think of the many eminent and highly cultivated brethren of our Order who have at different times discharged the same duty, I feel, almost to a painful degree, my inability to follow in their footsteps; but when, on the other hand, I remember the kind indulgence with which my brethren have invariably received my feeble efforts in the path which duty has marked out for me in "The Kildalton," I feel encouraged on this, the first public occasion which has offered, to explain, in a few brief remarks, as far as I dare, what Freemasonry is and what it is not. It is simply a peculiar system of "Ethics," a system of moral philosophy in which truth, honour, and virtue are held up to view in their most beautiful and alluring forms, while falsehood, dishonour, and vice of every kind are continually exhibited as worthy of the most unmitigated scorn and contempt. The earnest and intelligent Mason must place his heart under such a course of moral training as will result in the expulsion therefrom of all longings after immorality and vice, and the fostering and cherishing therein of every aspiration after moral excellence and virtue. To assist him in this labour of peace and goodwill to his fellow men, he is furnished with a rich and beautiful symbolism, the whole essence and bearing of which are of the purest and most refined description. While the garden of the heart is thus to be cleared of all noxious weeds, and planted with flowers of choicest perfume, that of the intellect is not to be neglected. The liberal arts and sciences must be studied and cultivated, and to stimulate the student to exertion in this direction, examples of the most brilliant character are continually before him, and reasons of the strongest kind urge him to perseverance. To assist him, his work is portioned into seven courses, so that he may pursue knowledge methodically, little progress being attainable in any other manner. Freemasonry takes but little to do with politics, yet she insists on the most exemplary discharge of their duties as citizens by her sons. She also inculcates the purest principles of patriotism. In social and domestic science however she takes an active interest, and places a high standard of merit before her sons. Kindness, forbearance and purity of life are forcibly inculcated. Indeed, a worthy Mason is by virtue of his tenure, a kind father, a faithful husband, and a trustworthy friend. It has been asserted by some that Freemasonry has no religion, and, curiously enough, others of her assailants accuse her of pretending to be in herself a system of religion. Such accusations as these are utterly false and slanderous. No man knows better than a Mason that there is a divine being, who is the superlative ruler and governor of the universe, which is indeed his temple. "That wisdom, strength, and beauty are about His throne as pillars of His works; for His wisdom is infinite, His strength is omnipotent, and beauty shines through the whole of His creation. In symmetry and order the heavens He has stretched forth as a canopy; the earth He has planted as His footstool; he crowns His temple with stars as with a diadem, and His hands extend their power and glory; the sun and the moon are the messengers of His will, and all His law is concord." The Bible is His revealed will, and is accepted as such by every Christian Mason. But Freemasonry belongs to no particular nation, people, or tongue. Wherever men are found, there she can be traced, hence her unsectarian character is her glory, and at the same time, the secret of her vitality. Freemasonry, then, has many forms of one religion. She does not pretend to be a religion, but she opens wide her arms and embraces in her brotherhood worshippers of every kind of religious persuasion, on the sole condition that the object of their adoration is the eternal God. Every Mason, however, is at perfect liberty to worship according to his own faith. The idea of a brotherhood such as this, is too grand and is associated with a philosophy too refined to be within the grasp of any narrow sectarianism which looks complacently upon itself as the keeper of the door of heaven. Freemasonry, then, does not pretend that her light is the light that guides to heaven. On the contrary, she holds forth her light as symbolic of that great light, and as a beacon that shines across the dark waters, helping to guide the earnest seeker after truth to that great light which is in truth the light and the life of the world. He who assumes more than this for Freemasonry, is either an ignorant pretender, or an enemy; and it is the duty of every worthy Mason to disown and condemn all such assumptions. It may also safely be assumed that the very men who advance such dogmas are themselves less under the influence of Freemasonry than any others. It is almost needless here to examine our noble science by its results. Suffice it to say that many noble monuments of her benevolence and charity are to be seen in our own and in other lands. Wherever a Mason may wander on the surface of our earth, he can find a brother to greet him and take him to his bosom, and time after time our sailors and our soldiers, as well as the pioneers of our civilisation have had reason to remember, with feelings of gratitude, that particular moment when they first beheld the light of Masonry. Kings, princes, and the great of every civilised land we always have amongst us, but what are we to conclude from this? Surely we may conclude that they find it to their advantage. Peace, concord, and love are emblazoned on our banners, and under turmoil and war Masonry always languishes. Let us hope then that she will continue to flourish until brotherly love, relief, and truth, will be as widely disseminated as they might be in the good time coming. In that time, when "man's inhumanity to man shall cease to make countless thousands mourn." Bro. Allan McDougall gave the next toast, "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master Mason of Scotland," air, "Scots wha hae;" Bro. Lachlan McCuaig gave "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master Mason of England," air, "God bless the Prince of Wales;" Bro. Colin Hay gave "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master Mason of Ireland," air, "St. Patrick's Day." Then followed from the chair "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," air, "Rule Britannia," acknowledged by Bro. John Murphy; "The Clergy," by Bro. Duncan McArthur, air, "Old rooth;" "The Ladies," by Bro. William Morison, air, "Here's a health to all good lasses," acknowledged by Bro. A. W. Duig. Bro. Colin Hay, in his happiest manner, gave the "Kildalton Lodge," air, "The Highland Laddie," acknowledged by the Chairman; "Poor and distressed brethren, wherever scattered," by Bro. John Kirk, air, "Here's a health to them that's awa';" Bro. F. Kean gave "The Tyler," air, "He's a jolly good fellow." After a short interval the stirring strains of the quadrille band inviting to the dance announced the opening of the assembly. Dancing was carried on with great spirit till morning was far advanced, when the happy company dispersed, highly delighted with their entertainment. We should have mentioned that Bro. Alex. Nisbet, of Glasgow, is to represent "the Kildalton" in the Grand Lodge during the year 1875.

GREENOCK.

The brethren of the Masonic Craft here, according to use and wont, celebrated the time-honoured festival of St. John the Evangelist, in a manner reflecting the highest credit on all concerned, on Monday. The lodges had large and most enthusiastic meetings, and the proceedings cannot fail to interest both the Craft in general and absent brethren in particular.

GREENOCK KILWINNING (No. 12).—This lodge met in the Council Chambers, James Newton, Esq. R.W.M., occupied the chair. After an excellent dinner had been partaken of, purveyed by Mr. T. Mackay, the chairman proposed the usual loyal toasts. Mr. Fyfe (Lewis and Fyfe), proposed the "Navy, Army, and Volunteers." The toast was coupled with the names of Mr. J. Carnon, of H.M.S. Aurora, and Captain Leitch, and was drunk with all the honours. In proposing "Her Majesty's Ministers," Mr. J. D. McDonald paid a high compliment to the Prime Minister, and the able body of gentlemen who constituted the Cabinet. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and the meeting separated with "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again." The brethren again met at eight o'clock for friendly intercourse, to receive deputations from other lodges, and reciprocate the compliment, &c., and spent a most pleasant evening.

LODGE GREENOCK ST. JOHN (No. 175).—The brethren and friends of this lodge met in the White Hart Hotel, at four o'clock, when a large company sat down to a very excellent and well-served dinner, where nothing desirable was wanting. The chair was occupied by Mr. Alexander M'Master, R.W.M. of the lodge, who was supported on the right by Messrs. Charles Grey, Renton M'Ar, Andw. Boag, Robert Morison, Wm. Wright, jun., Simon H. Miller, &c.; and on the left by the Rev. J. A. Campbell, Dean of Guild, Anderson, Messrs. James Rodger, John Clapperton, James M'Lea, Kenneth M'Casill, James Auld, D. M. Simpson, Gilbert M'Coll, &c. Mr. John M. Pollock, was croupier and was supported by Messrs. Duncan M'Intyre, Neil Brown, Jas. Scott, Gair, Samuel Durham, V.S., John M'Quarrie, James M'Bride, Alexander M'Laren, John M'Laren, &c. Blessing was asked by the Rev. J. A. Campbell, and after the menu had been done full justice to, and thanks returned by the same rev. gentleman, the Secretary (Bro. W. Wright, jun.), read letters of apology for absence from Sir Michael Robert Shaw Stewart, Bart., the Rev. Dr. McCulloch, J. J. Grieve, Esq., M.P., and Provost Neill, who were all prevented through indisposition from being present. A letter of apology from Mr. A. H. Finlay was also read. The Right Worshipful Master then introduced the toast list by proposing "Her Majesty the Queen," and "The Prince and Princess of Wales." Both toasts were cordially responded to. The Croupier next proposed "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," and said that Greenock stood in the proud position of being the town in Scotland which was at the head of that movement. He wished to couple the toast with the name of Bro. M'Intyre. Bro. M'Intyre made a suitable reply. Bro. Morison, Leith, had much pleasure in proposing "Her Majesty's Ministers." The only wrong thing the present Government had done was in abolishing the sugar duty. If they had not done so, it would have been better for Greenock. Ex-Bailie Grey said that the toast which had been entrusted to him to propose was that of the "Lord Lieutenant of the County, Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart." Sir Michael's honours hung upon him most gracefully indeed, and when he was appointed R.W.M. for Scotland in succession to the Earl of Rosslyn, he (Bro. G.) could assure the company that a gentleman who was better qualified to fill that important office could not have been chosen. Sir Michael was a Mason out and out. He was a loving husband, a kind father, and, so far as he had ever heard, a kind and agreeable landlord. He supposed that they were all aware Sir Michael had been appointed Lord Lieutenant of Renfrewshire by a Whig Government, and that said a good deal for the respect in which he was held by his political opponents, and he had discharged his duties in a manner satisfactory not only to the Government but to all who were interested in the county. Bro. J. Clapperton gave "The Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council." Mr. Anderson, Dean of Guild, returned thanks, and said that while other towns were going ahead it was not for Greenock to stand back, and he hoped that the authorities would see fit to launch out in a plucky manner with a scheme for harbour extension, so that the railway communications might open up connections between Greenock and all the mineral fields in the country. Mr. Andrew Boag proposed the "Members for the Town and County." Bro. Grieve had proved himself an able and persevering Member of Parliament, well fitted to represent a large commercial town like Greenock, and well deserved the honour conferred upon him, and he hoped the hon. gentleman would long live to enjoy it. They had not had much experience of the member for the county, but he (Bro. Boag) had no doubt when tried Colonel Mure would prove himself a good representative. Dean of Guild Anderson gave the "Clergy," and coupled the toast with the name of Rev. J. A. Campbell, whom (he said) they were glad to see among them, and who, although not a member of the Craft, had kindly consented to be one of their guests. The toast having been duly received, the Rev. Mr. Campbell returned thanks, and subsequently proposed "Lodge Greenock St. John," and made a few appropriate and complimentary remarks in regard to the charitable objects of Freemasonry, praising specially the laudable efforts that were made in that way by the St. John's Lodge of Greenock. The Chairman suitably replied. He felt very grateful to Mr. Campbell for the flattering way in which he had referred to Freemasonry in general, and to the efforts of the lodge with which they were more particularly connected. When he said that their motto was "Faith, Hope, and Charity," he had somewhat flattered them, as they had only hitherto been able to give to a—he was about to say a few—many public institutions of a charitable character; but he was happy to tell Mr. Campbell that, at a recent meeting of a committee of the lodge, it was agreed, if at all within their reach, not only to continue their charitable work, but to increase their subscriptions to every deserving institution in the town. Commissioner Brown said he had attended many of the annual meetings of this lodge, but this was the first occasion on which he was taken unaware. He was not aware that his name was down to propose a toast until a gentleman pointed it out—he might rather say Mr. Bain "detected" it—on the card. He was at first inclined to be angry, but when he discovered that the toast was "The Town and Trade of Greenock," he felt more reconciled, as it was a matter in which all were interested, and should be overlooked. The trade of the town had increased for many years past, and he hoped it would continue to increase for many years to come. It was a good sign when so many persons were so desirous of taking the management of the affairs of the town in hand, when they had men coming forward so patriotic and self-denying in the interests of the town as to give all their energies to the work, and the time they could not spare, surely Greenock would prosper. He jocularly complained that Dean of Guild Anderson, in stating that the prosperity of the town depended upon the exertions put forth by the Town Council, forgot the time that was put off in the Police Commission discussing public questions. He did not, in the least, wish to be egotistical, but if they read the reports that appeared in the Telegraph the day after their monthly meeting, and it would be next to impossible to find the same number of men who talked more at one sitting than the Police Commissioners. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. McCaskill. Bro. McCaskill made a most humorous reply. Bro. McIntyre said that year after year the members of St. John's Lodge had been favoured with the company at the festive dinner of gentlemen who were neither brothers of the Craft nor members of this lodge, and in proposing "Friends" he was very happy to observe that so many had taken advantage of the invitation to attend. He had much pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of Commissioner Brown. Commissioner Brown felt great pleasure in acknowledging the toast, and thanked the brethren for the kind and hospitable manner in which he and the other "friends" invited had been entertained. The remaining toasts were "The Press," "The Ladies," given by Bro. Gair, and responded to by Bro. Morrison, "The Chairman," by Dean of Guild Anderson, and acknowledged by Mr. McMaster; and "The Croupier," by the Chairman, replied to by Mr. J. M. Pollock. A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Buchanan, for the "sumptuous dinner," was, on the motion of Mr. Grey, accorded, after which the brethren and their friends separated. Mr. R. J. Adams' band from Glasgow, was present and discoursed some excellent music during the dinner and after each toast. At eight o'clock the brethren met in their lodge-room, Exchange Buildings, which was most tastefully and suitably decorated, to celebrate the Festival of the Evangelist. There was a large attendance of the brethren, and a goodly number of visitors. The newly-installed office-bearers were received in due form, and took their respective places in the lodge, which was opened at once in the E.A. degree. The brethren having been called from labour to refreshment, Bro. Alexander McMaster, R.W.M., who presided with much urbanity and ability, and with a firmness and kindly feeling which was highly commendable, gave in succession "The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince and Princess of Wales," "The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland," "The Grand Masters," &c., which toasts were duly honoured, the names of the Prince of Wales and Sir M. R. Shaw Stewart being received with excellent "fire." A number of Masonic toasts were afterwards given by Bros. Anderson, P.M.; A. Boag, P.M.; J. M. Pollock, S.W.; Duncan McIntyre, J.W.; Jas. Rodger, Treas.; Peacock, &c., which were honoured after the manner of the Craft, and a good deal of time was devoted to social intercourse, a agreeably interspersed with jests and songs, by Bros. Fraser, Barr, (who rendered with fine effect "Annie on the banks o' Dee,") Anderson, Galbraith, D. M. Simpson, James McBryde, James McKenzie, &c., also a very amusing recitation by Bro. Turner (Dunoon Argyle). After each toast music was introduced, to enliven the company, by Bro. Adams' band. In the course of the evening the ancient and honoured custom of sending deputations to other Lodges and receiving deputations in return was punctiliously carried out, and many good wishes were thus sent round, and mutual congratulations exchanged among the brethren. Deputations visited the following lodges: Greenock Kilwinning, No. 12; Doric Kilwinning (Port-Glasgow), No. 68; St. Mirrens (Paisley), No. 129; and Renfrew County Kilwinning, No. 370. Each of these lodges returned the compliment by sending deputations to visit Greenock, St. John, No. 275. As an instance of the fraternal feeling that prevails among the brethren in the district, it is worthy of special notice that, notwithstanding the inclement state of the weather, a deputation was also present from Lodge Dunoon Argyle, No. 335, having ferried their way across.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—We have received from Bro. Terry the list of Stewards for the next Festival of the Benevolent Institution, but, being full up, we cannot publish it until our next issue.

THE TRANSIT OF VENUS.—BRO. LORD LINDSAY'S EXPEDITION.—A few days ago Lady Lindsay telegraphed to the Mayor of Wigan:—"Lord Lindsay has telegraphed from the Mauritius that he has observed the last half satisfactorily. Taken good position, measure, and time determinations. Altogether well satisfied." Many in West Lancashire and other Masonic divisions will learn with extreme satisfaction that our distinguished brother has been so successful in his pursuit after the hidden mysteries of nature and science.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS have been used freely by millions of human beings of both sexes and all ages in every part of the world, and while the public press has teemed with authenticated cases of extraordinary cures of a vast variety of diseases (such as indigestion, scorbutic eruptions, and liver complaints), there is not on public record a single case in which their use has been attended with bad effect. None, when using Holloway's Ointment and Pills, need suffer the loss of cure to be counterbalanced by the fear of injury; they cannot do harm, they must do good. They may be taken by the weakest persons as beneficially as by the most robust. They never fail to expel impurities and induce perfect regular action.—ADVT.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

PICART'S "CEREMONIES ET COUTUMES RELIGIEUSES," &c., 1723-43.

The money value of Picart's "Ceremonies" has much increased of late, and at the present time, complete and clean copies of the original edition are worth at least from £10 to £12 each. Their especial value, in a Masonic point of view, has been greatly exaggerated, though of course the work is of considerable interest to Masonic students generally. The title page of first volume is as follows:—"Ceremonies et Coutumes Religieuses de tous les Peuples du Monde, représentées par des Figures dessinées de la main de Bernard Picart, avec une Explication Historique, et quelques Dissertations curieuses."—"à Amsterdam, chez J. F. Bernard, M.D.CCXXIII."

Bro. Angelo J. Lewis, M.A., some time since kindly examined the complete work, in the British Museum, and informed me that there are seven volumes on the "Religious Ceremonies and Customs of the Nations of the World," and two or three volumes (forming No. 7 and 8) entitled "Ceremonies et Coutumes religieuses des peuples idolâtres," bearing the date 1723 and 1728. Vol. I. of the work is dated 1723, and the last volume is of the year 1737. Of Picart's work, Bro. Matthew Cooke, P.M., &c., has observed, that "Sir Richard Steele's portrait is given at the head of the sheet depicting the names and places of the ancient Masons' lodges and meetings." Bro. M. Cooke also stated that "Sir Richard Steele was a Freemason of the York Rite, or ancient Masons" (Freemasons Magazine, Feb. 26th, 1870, p. 165). This statement drew the attention of Masonic students to the book, and was doubtless the cause of its being so eagerly sought after by the brethren.

Our brother, Matthew Cooke, is well versed in Masonic literature, and it will readily be seen that if the assertion is correct, the volumes are most valuable, for in such case they would contain a list of York lodges of about 1730, of which, hitherto, none but the "old lodges at York city" had been known, and about which not one word is said in the Records of the "Grand Lodge of all England," held at York (i.e., the "old lodge at York city," prior to A.D. 1725). The list of lodges (on examining vol. 4, page 251) turns out to be a copy of the engraved list of lodges by J. Pine, Old Bond Street, London, which was issued the same year as this fourth volume was published, viz. 1735, and is so acknowledged by B. Picart. Bro. Pine was the engraver to the Grand Lodge of England, held in London, (not York) and published this list annually, copies of several being still preserved. Hence it is clear that Picart simply gives a list of the Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England held in London, and therefore has no connection with York Masonry whatever. That this is so, is abundantly proved by reference—not only to Picart's history, but also to the places of meeting of the Lodges. Numbers 1 to 24, all met in London; 25 at Greenwich; 28 at Bath; 29 at Bristol; 30 at Norwich; 31 at Chichester; 32 and 33 at Chester; 34 at Carmarthen; 35 at Gosport; 36 at Congleton; 48 at Salford, &c., &c.

At present we have no evidence that Sir Richard Steele was a York Mason, and so far it appears otherwise, inasmuch as no allusion is made to him beyond his name being placed under his portrait, and above the list is Lord Weymouth's coat of arms. This nobleman was Grand Master of the London Grand Lodge, A.D. 1735, the year when the volume of Picart's History, and Pine's List of Lodges was published.

In a note upon the article on the Labadistes, B. Picart quotes from "Masonry Dissected" as to the Society of Freemasons having existed from 1691, but so confuses the assertion, that it reads as if all the Lodges in the List by Pine had been founded A.D. 1691, and continued to work down to 1735. In the list occurs the Lodge at Boston, New England (U.S.A.), and some of our American brethren have fancied that the work proved that Masonry existed at Boston so early as 1691, which is contrary to fact. All these points have tended to enhance the monetary value of the History in question, though, on a careful examination, they will be found to be erroneous estimates of the contents of the History.

Any brethren interested in the subject, and who have not readers' tickets for the British Museum, can consult a fine copy in the valuable Library of the "Supreme Grand Council 33° of Freemasonry, 33, Golden Square, London, by obtaining permission from the honorary and most obliging Librarian, Captain N. G. Phillips (P.S.G. Commander 33°), to whom we have often been indebted for the sight and perusal of several rare old books so carefully treasured by him.

We believe also that the Masonic Archaeologist, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., possesses a complete set of Picart's "Ceremonies," and would doubtless be pleased to answer any queries on the subject under the Masonic Bibliographical Department.

In the last catalogue published by Mr. Quaritch, lots 525 526 are two editions of the work, the first being "8 vols. in 9, 1723-43," and Superstitions Anciennes et Modernes, 2 vols., 1733-36 together, 11 vols., royal folio, with 265 fine engravings, old impressions, old calf, £12; and the second, "a large folio, and large paper edition, with first impressions of the numerous beautiful engravings; a very fine copy, the first 7 vols., red morocco extra, gilt edges, by Devorne, and the last 4 bound to match by Clarke and Bedford, £68."

Messrs. Henry Sotheran & Co. also issue a catalogue this month in which, No. 523, is an English translation of Picart's "Ceremonies," &c. 6 vols., royal folio, old russia, price 7 guineas. These copies ought to be secured for Grand Lodge Libraries, for, year by year, they become more valuable, and from their character they must always possess a peculiar importance in the eyes of Masons.

* Supplement.

GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn was, on Jan. 6, installed Grand Master of the Freemasons of Ireland, an office held for over 50 years by the late Duke of Leinster. The ceremonial was held in the Masonic Hall, Molesworth-street, and was invested with all the pomp and pageantry which the Order could impart to it. All the Grand Officers and a numerous host of Masters and Past Masters of Lodges, including many representing the provinces, were present in full Masonic costume, with the decorations of the several ranks, and formed a brilliant assemblage. On the arrival of his Grace from the Vice-regal Lodge, he was conducted by the Deputy Grand Master (Bro. Shekleton) and the Grand Officers, to the small lodge-room, where he was formally installed as Master of the Grand Master's Lodge. They then proceeded to the Grand Lodge-room, where the lodge was opened in due form, and the Grand Master elect was inducted to the dais, while a Masonic march was played on the organ.

After prayer by the Grand Chaplain, his Grace knelt, and the obligation of his office having been administered to him, he was invested by the Deputy Grand Master with the official insignia, and conducted to the throne, while the Duke of Connaught's Grand March was played on the organ. A selection was also sung from a Masonic ode especially composed for the occasion. The Director of the Ceremonies, Bro. St. George, then proclaimed his Grace, amid a flourish of trumpets, declaring, with impressive formality, all his titles, and, last of all, that of Grand Master of the Ancient and Honourable Order of Free and Accepted Masons of Ireland. The proclamation was followed by the enthusiastic cheers of the Assembly, and Bro. Shekleton, Deputy Grand Master, on the part of the Order, congratulated his Grace on his acceptance of the office. In the course of his address, he said:—

"It was a matter of great satisfaction to us that your Grace was enabled to accept the office for which you were selected by the numerous and enthusiastic suffrages of your Irish brethren; selected not from any political motives—for all who hear me know that when we cross the portals of this building we Masons discard considerations of party, and remember only that we are members of a brotherhood, linked together by ties of universal charity and love, knowing no distinction of class or creed,—but selected as an Irish nobleman, who has been neither ashamed nor afraid to reside among us, and who both in private life and while discharging high and responsible functions has obtained the respect and esteem not merely of those who entertain the same religious and political views as your Grace, but of those who are most diametrically opposed to them. To be called upon in such a way as your Grace has been to preside over a society so widely diffused and so influential as the Masonic body, is unquestionably an honour of which any one, no matter how exalted in rank, might well be proud. Your Grace has been elected in succession to one whose memory is, and will, I trust, be ever cherished among us—one who for a period exceeding the span of most men's lives ruled over our Order with mild and courteous sway. We cannot, in the course of nature, anticipate so prolonged a tenure of office for your Grace, but we most fervently trust that the bond of union which has this day been cemented between your Grace and the Masons of Ireland may not soon be severed, and we can assure your Grace that though the office of Grand Master is an annually elected one, so long as your Grace is willing to preside over us you need not apprehend any desire for change on the part of your constituents."

His Grace was saluted according to ancient usage, amid the cheering of the whole Assembly, with great enthusiasm.

The Grand Master, in returning thanks for the honour conferred upon him, expressed his sense of the responsibility which it involved, especially when he recalled the memory of the late Grand Master, to whose loss he referred in terms of the deepest regret, warmly eulogizing his administration of the office and his distinguished character. His Grace said it would be his earnest desire to follow the example so worthily set by his predecessor, and to use every endeavour in his power to maintain the dignity of the Grand Lodge and to advance the great and important influence which Freemasonry exercised towards mankind. His connection with the Order was of no recent date. It was now 43 years since he was admitted into the Apollo University Lodge in Oxford, and the course upon which he then entered as a novice culminated in the honour now conferred upon him. His Grace then added:—

"It has not needed that long experience to teach me what you all know, and what has been so well expressed to-night—the great objects of Freemasonry. We know that its objects are not political (hear, hear); that they are not confined to any denomination or to any sect (hear, hear); but that, as a widely-spread community for the extension of human sympathy and human brotherhood, it has been the means of embracing myriads of men of all nations and of all creeds in one common bond of amity. (Hear, hear, and applause.) Brethren, it is not necessary for me in this place to remind you that the name of your illustrious Patron, the Prince of Wales ("hear, hear," and applause) is a sure guarantee that loyalty to the Sovereign is our true and sterling watchword (cheers); and we have the experience of 3,000 years to know that charity to mankind and love to the brethren are and have been the leading and guiding principles of our noble Craft, and the great and ultimate aims of our Association. ("Hear, hear," and applause.) Brethren, I thank you again most truly and most gratefully for the honour you have conferred upon me, as well as for the most cordial and flattering reception which you have given me."

His Grace re-instated Bro. Shekleton as Deputy Grand Master; and the Marquis of Headfort having been installed Senior Grand Warden, and Lord Dunboyne, Junior Grand Warden, the Grand Lodge was closed with the usual form. [From the Times.]

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 9, 1875.

IS THE POPE A FREEMASON?

This question, which has attracted from various causes lately, much attention, is, we venture to think, completely answered by the Philadelphia Keystone of November 21st. This article will be published in the "Masonic Magazine" in February, and we recommend all our readers carefully to peruse it. The able editor of that paper, Bro. Clifford P. McCalla, distinctly says that no such lodge as "Figli de Hiram" ever existed in Philadelphia, under any American Grand Lodge. If there was such a lodge, it was a surreptitious one, unknown and unrecognised. Consequently, the story of the Pope being initiated there while a Nuncio, is clearly unreliable. Bro. McCalla does not believe in the Havannah initiation referring to the Pope, neither do we, and whoever those two Ferrettis may be, they are not, we believe, either Pio Nono or his brother. There is no other evidence of the Pope's Masonic affiliation that can stand any sifting that we are aware of, and therefore, as English Freemasons, honest and impartial, true and tolerant, lovers of right, and haters of falsehood, we feel bound to say, that in our opinion the allegations of the Italian Freemasons are so far utterly unproved. If there be the slightest truth in the story of Pio Nono's admission into Freemasonry, it probably has originated in the fact that in his youth the Sovereign Pontiff showed considerable liberal propensities, and we believe was well acquainted with Mazzini. If so, it is just possible that he may have joined one or other of those Italian secret societies, which based their organization on Freemasonry. Beyond this, pace our good Bro. A. Gallico, we know of no reliable evidence of the Pope's Masonic admission, and as we said before, we do not believe it. We regret that the Italian Freemasons should have put forth this renewed statement on the same testimony which was produced some fourteen years ago, and was then enquired into carefully, and found to be untrustworthy. It is a great mistake on the part of the Italian Freemasons to give our Ultramontane adversaries, always active, vigilant, and implacable, any advantage by ill-founded accusations and unverified assertions. We wonder that our many able brethren in Italy do not see at once the utter absurdity, remembering the traditions and teachings of the Roman Catholic "Curia," of a statement which rests the Pope's membership on his admission and visits to lodges while acting as a Papal Nuncio. It is simply, as it appears to us, hopeless and impossible to suppose or to contend, that, while acting as a Nuncio, either at Philadelphia or Madrid, Pio Nono was "made a Mason," or was a "visiting brother." Neither can we lay any store by the photogram. We have heard of two copies, and many others, we are told, abound, and they are all clearly facitious—that is to say, they are not original photograms of the Pope in Masonic clothing; but the Masonic scarf is painted on a photographic card, and from this "prepared negative" the copies are struck, one of which Bro. Laurie sent us from Constantinople, and another of which is mentioned by Bro. Hodges in our impression of December 26. We therefore repeat that, looking at the matter merely as a question of evidence, we feel bound to say that, in our humble opinion, the Italian statements are not substantiated. We always think it a great pity, in our Masonic discussions, if we are ever tempted, for any cause, to depart from the straight and narrow path of historical evidential truth. The end never does justify the means, we are not to do evil that good may come; and not only do we not see the importance of the statement in itself, but we are not very anxious either to prove or even disprove the fact. From our point of view it is a matter of entire indifference to us as Freemasons. If it be so, it would only convict the Infallible Pontiff of another inconsistency, alike in his teachings and dogmas. If it be not so, it is not creditable to Freemasons anywhere to state as a fact, what, after, all is a fiction, or to pass a ridiculous sentence of expulsion on a non-Mason, an act which can only tend to render Freemasonry ridiculous in Italy, and to bring discredit on our Order generally. We have every sympathy for all our Italian brethren, who seek to carry out truly the intent and principles of Freemasonry. But we do deprecate greatly that apparent alliance with political coteries, and that intermingling in questions outside Freemasonry, which hinder, in our opinion, the active development of true Freemasonry in that interesting land, and which will be, as long as they are persisted in by the Italian Freemasons, to them, whether in their Grand Lodges or private lodges, "a mockery, a delusion, and a snare."

BRO. BINCKES'S LETTER.

We published the week before last a letter from Bro. Binckes, in reply to some remarks of ours relative to the Pro Grand Master's wise suggestion to him at the last Quarterly Communication. We are truly concerned if our observations have, in any way, disturbed our good brother's wonted equanimity, though we fear that we have done so, by the tone and temper of his recent communication. But we wish, in all friendly Masonic feeling, to point out to Bro. Binckes that he has entirely failed to discern the real gist of our "deliverance," and that, up to the present time, he is apparently still unable or unwilling to realize the "point" of our argument. Our good brother doubts our logic; we forgive him the doubt, as we feel perfectly satisfied ourselves alike with the soundness of our premise and the propriety of our conclusion. For what is the point we are contending for? It is simply this: That, in such a discussion, the brethren and the Grand Lodge are perfectly competent to decide such an important question on an independent report like that of Bro. Clabon's. We confess that we think Bro. Binckes' appearance on the scene inopportune and questionable alike in tact and taste, just as we should have deprecated Bro. Little's appeal to Grand Lodge on the same subject. Bro. Binckes says, and says quite truly, that the Secretaries of the Institutions are, of all persons the best qualified to give information and express an opinion on such a subject. So, of course, "virtute officii" they are, and in any matter of fact or detail we should always, in the first place, consult them. But here is a question appealing alike to the common experience of all Masons who interest themselves either in the Craft or the charities, and yet one in which, necessarily, it is most important not to introduce "sentiment" in the discussion, but to appeal simply to the "reason of things," and the hard reality of figures. There is no difficulty, as far as we are aware, in estimating pretty correctly what are the present needs of our great Institutions, or what are likely to be their future requirements. No doubt, in one sense, the Secretaries have certain statistical details as to applications and applicants which come to them in their official capacity, and which are very valuable for consideration and information. But we deny that there is any reason why the "Secretariat" should be supposed to know more about the matter, or to be able to come to a sounder conclusion, than the many intelligent rulers of our Order who constitute Grand Lodge. We ourselves are always glad and ready to listen to and acknowledge any information which our good brethren, the Secretaries of our metropolitan Institutions, will favour us with; but, after a fair experience, we think, as we have said before, that it is just on this one point that the Craft may feel that "silence," for once, is not "golden." For, as a rule, we do not, in our humble opinion, receive sufficient information as to the proceedings and details and wants of the charities. But, to return. We fancy that in what we said originally, and which has drawn forth Bro. Binckes' letter, we expressed the feeling of a very large number of brethren, alike metropolitan and provincial, who were quite prepared to discuss the whole subject on general and independent grounds. But Bro. Binckes fails, apparently, to see that our objection was not to Bro. Binckes, quâ Bro. Binckes, but as Bro. "Secretary" Binckes, appealing to the Grand Lodge on a subject which required no appeal, no eloquence, no argument "ad misericordiam," but demanded calm consideration, and serious reflection. It may be that the time has come when Grand Lodge may vote an annual grant to the Girls' and Boys' School, but, if it is voted, it must be done after a good deal of debate and deliberation. For two points press upon us! 1. Can the Fund of Benevolence afford it? 2. Will it be in the interests of the Charities to accept a grant from Grand Lodge? It is a little remarkable that the surplus of 1873 is considerably less than the surplus of 1872; as if, despite our great prosperity, we had greater demands upon our benevolence. And we fear that though ours are increasing numbers admittedly, yet that, those very numbers almost naturally bring upon us additional claims. If these claims increase, the disposable surplus of the Fund of Benevolence will become very small indeed. Would it be wise, without clear and sufficient data, to mortgage futurity? We think not. Again, would such a course benefit the Boys' and Girls' Schools? We equally venture to say, in our opinion, no. These two charities have lived, so to say, on the spontaneous liberality of the Order, and in their admitted worth, their increasing need to the Masonic body, we feel convinced they will still be cheered on from year to year by liberal hands and willing hearts. Indeed, we think, that if ever there could be a distinct manifestation of the value of the adage "quieta non movere," it is as regards our great educational institutions. It is impossible, we apprehend, to estimate what effect an increased grant from the Lodge of Benevolence annually might have on the freewill offerings of the Craft to those two excellent schools, which are a blessing to their inmates, and a credit to the brotherhood. We hope Bro. Binckes will perceive, from what we have said, that we had some little reason for putting forward our views, thinking as we do, and that he will kindly admit, that while our words were dictated by a sense of duty, as we deemed, to the Order, and to the institutions themselves, they were not meant to bear, as they do not bear, the slightest colouring of personal criticism. Bro. Binckes does not apparently see, though we think we do, the difference between his speech in Grand Lodge and a letter in our columns. Clearly there is an intense distinction. Bro. Binckes has an undoubted claim, which we are amongst the first to recognize, to lay his views before the Order, in fair and open discussion, but we still adhere to our opinion, that while not denying Bro. Binckes's abstract right to speak in Grand Lodge, we think that such a discussion should proceed on its merits alone, and that the institutions themselves, through their officers, should be, if we may so say, passive and silent in the matter. We may be wrong in our opinion, but it is our opinion, and we feel bound to lay it before our readers, as in this as in all other matters, eschewing personalities altogether, and looking only to first principles and the good of Freemasonry, we both say what we mean and mean what we say.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master offers a rare opportunity for a demonstration that shall be without parallel in the history of Freemasonry.

As a Welshman, I call upon my brethren in the provinces of Wales to be there to a man.

Already I know that arrangements are being made in many lodges in this province to be present. I am sure I shall not appeal in vain to my brethren if I ask every Worshipful Master to bring the matter forward at his next lodge earnestly and warmly, and let intimation be given to the Grand Secretary from every lodge of the number of officers who will attend.

Nothing could be better than the suggestion of your correspondent "P.M. 186," that Grand Lodge should be held in the Albert Hall.

Yours fraternally,

"Y DDRAIG GOCH A DDYRY GYCHWYN."

THE OFFICE OF GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your last issue, a correspondent (H. Martin Green) contends that a Master may render himself incapable of discharging the duties of his office by resigning his membership of his lodge, and so keep within the letter of the Book of Constitutions, which does not allow for the resignation of a Master. A fair objection to this position seems to be that while the Constitutions do not contemplate the resignation either of a Grand Master or a Master during his year of office, and are consequently silent on the subject, there is this wide distinction between the two cases; in the one, nothing can absolve a Master from his promise to discharge his duties to the best of his skill and ability during the ensuing twelve months, or until a successor shall be appointed and installed in his stead.

A Grand Master takes no such obligations, and is therefore bound by no promise, and although the spirit of the law may be against him, yet the resignation of a Grand Master is so extremely exceptional, that it seems in every way advisable and politic to treat the late instance, as the Grand Lodge evidently desire to do, with a respectful silence.

BUSY BEE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me (as one present at both of our late quarterly Communications) to add a few supplementary words to your admirable article on Bro. Warren's letter, in your issue of Dec. 19th?

It has been laid down in Grand Lodge (and that recently) that "a brother's resignation must take effect from the moment of its being made."

Lord Ripon, by the act of becoming (I do not say being) a Roman Catholic, virtually resigned all connection with the Craft.

If, upon this, Lord Ripon had not resigned the M.W. Grand Mastership, or, if the brethren had refused, or even delayed to have accepted his resignation, they would have been in the anomalous position of having as M.W. Grand Master a man who was (so far as he could make himself so) a non-Mason.

Apart from all these considerations, Lord Ripon having penned his resignation, it was thereupon a fait accompli—the office was absolutely void, and there was no M.W. Grand Master.

Therefore there was no Deputy Grand Master.

The only thing then remaining to be done was to do exactly what Grand Lodge did, and this not only according to the "unwritten," but to the "written" law of the Craft, for although our Constitutions (1871) give directions only in the case of the death of the M.W. Grand Master (v., pp. 29-30, s. 2), yet the General Regulations of 1721 (upon which our Constitutions are based) direct (s. xxi.)—"If the Grand Master shall die during his Mastership; or by sickness, or by being beyond sea, or in any other way should be rendered incapable of discharging his office, the Deputy, or, in his absence, the Junior, or, in his absence, any there present, Masters of lodges, shall join to congregate the Grand Lodge immediately, to advise together upon that emergency, and to send two of their number to invite the last Grand Master to resume his office, which now in course reverts to him; or, if he refuse, then the next last, and so backward; but if no former Grand Master can be found, then the Deputy shall act as principal until another is chosen; or if there be no Deputy, then the oldest Master."

This regulation, as it seems to me, entirely takes in the present case, the "any other" covering; certainly, such a change of faith as prevents the occupant of the office, not from exercising its functions, but from holding it at all; and further, with such modifications as have been made to it in the Constitutions, it lays down a law of procedure which Grand Lodge and its Committee fulfilled to the very letter. The office "reverting in course" to H. R. H. the Past Grand Master, he was rightly described at once as "M.W. Grand Master."

I remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Faithfully and fraternally Yours,

WM. TEBBS,

W.M. 285, and P.P. Grand Chaplain, Somerset.

UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

The usual December meeting of the Great Priory was held, I presume, on the 11th ult, and I have looked in vain in your columns for an account of the meeting, which promised to be of more than usual interest.

Why did it not appear? Every other body connected nearly or remotely with Masonry, including the Rosicrucian Society (which, I understand, is not Masonic, but admits only Masons to its mysteries), is represented, and rightly in the columns of the Freemason, the only representative of the Craft in England.

There are large numbers of your readers Knights Templar, and we are always anxious to know what goes on in our little parliament, and we naturally look to you to furnish us with the requisite information.

Is it possible the chiefs at head-quarters are so blind to their own interests as to try to ignore your widely-read organ, or are they so determined to divorce the Templar Degree from Masonry as to lose no opportunity of stamping out any effort to keep the connection alive through your columns?

Whilst Masons, and Masons only, can become Templars, it seems suicidal policy to prevent Templar meetings being reported in your paper, where they would be most widely read by Masons.

Like Brutus, "I pause for a reply."

Yours,

P. E. C.

[We have received no report, or we should immediately have published it.—Ed.]

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the letter of E.F. in your last number, as to the privilege of a P.M. who has omitted two years payment of Grand Lodge dues, by ceasing to subscribe to some lodge, the Book of Constitutions is clear enough—that a P.M. cannot regain Grand Lodge privileges until he has been again installed a Master. It is true that Wardens of lodges have the privilege of attending Grand Lodge, but it is quite evident, from the wording of the Book of Constitutions, that the P.M. in question, and any in his position, cannot regain their privileges by being elected Wardens. He must wait until he has been again installed a W.M.

With respect to his status in his own lodge, that is a right, not a privilege, to be recognised as a P.M., and he must be the Senior Past Master. That fact has nothing to do with subscription, but refers to the date he passed the chair. On being re-elected in his lodge, he will take his place in the lodge, according to the date of his passing the chair.

MAGNUS OHREN, P.M. and P.Z.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with considerable interest the correspondence that has appeared in your columns, as well as your own sub-leader, on the status of a re-joining Past Master, so far as his seniority in the lodge is concerned. This very question has arisen in the lodge of which I have recently had the honour of being installed Worshipful Master, and it falls to my lot to arrange our list of Past Masters in their proper order. I may just add, by way of explanation, that the list appears regularly on our monthly circular. The question, as you remark, is an important one, as the precedence of Past Masters in the lodge, at the festive board, or at public ceremonies hinges upon it.

It appears to me that their own dictum, as to placing the re-joining Past Master at the bottom of the list, is unjustly harsh. That a Past Master—suppose, for example, he is Senior Past Master in an old lodge—should, by reason of his not continuing a subscribing member of his lodge for a short time, forfeit his position and privileges entirely, and place himself in the position of Junior to all the other Past Masters, is, in my opinion, a view of the case that is hardly tenable. On the other hand, there can be no question, I think, that a Past Master who resigns, and afterwards re-joins his lodge is not entitled to the position he previously occupied; for if this were the case, a Past Master—say that he becomes Senior by the resignation of the oldest Past Master—might, after occupying the position for ten or a dozen years, be called upon to make way for the Past Master who was his former Senior, such Past Master perhaps having been a subscribing member of the lodge for only a year or two as a Past Master.

It appears to me that the true solution of the question lies rather between the two proposals of making the re-joining Past Master, Junior, and of re-installing him in his former position. What I propose to do is this. I take the list of Past Masters, seriatim, and place after each the number of years that has elapsed since he concluded his Mastership. From the re-joining Past Master I deduct the time during which he was not a member of the lodge, and this enables me to re-arrange the list according to length of service as Past Master. This appears to me to be a just and equitable arrangement, as it is based upon the principle of seniority by merit, which is consistent with the spirit of our constitutions.

Faithfully yours,

SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The new year has now commenced. Can any one of us, whether Freemasons or non-Masons, look back on the past year and our past lives, and viewing mentally our shortcomings, as regards our duty towards God, our neighbour and ourselves, say that we have fully discharged those duties? Are there not long arrears of good that we might and ought to have done? And many things we have done that we ought not to have done? Have we honestly and to the best of our abilities exercised that greatest of our virtues—"Charity?"

Brethren of the Scottish Craft, I appeal to you.

"What is Charity?"

"It is the incarnation of, and comprises every virtue moral and social."

In its full sense it means,—charity of mind,—charity of feeling,—charity of character,—and charity of action. Charity of mind—by thinking well of all men so long as they deserve it by their actions; charity of feeling—by maintaining the character of a brother in his absence as well as in his presence; charity of character and purpose,—by never maligning him, ever upholding him so long as he acts conscientiously to ourselves and others; charity of action—by a practical exemplification of the whole—by doing unto your neighbour as you would wish him to do to you—by relieving the distressed, soothing the sick, helping the aged, and assisting in all good works.

Brethren, I ask you to consider this duty (so thoroughly Masonic) fully and earnestly. We see in other countries, schools for children of aged, deceased and distressed Masons; men who have led, as far as we can see, blameless lives; schools wherein the children not only receive good education, but are also maintained, fed and clothed, till able of themselves to battle with the world. We see asylums and homes of refuge for those worthy brethren, who, from no fault of their own, are plunged in their old age, in the deepest distress. England, Ireland, America, Sweden, and other countries, aye, even provinces, viz.: Lancashire, have nobly done their duty in this respect. Shall it be said then of us who are brethren of the Craft in Scotland, a country full of benevolent institutions, rich in its general unity of purpose (clanship, if I may so call it), shall it be said of us, I ask, that we alone have failed in our duty? Nay, rather refuse to exercise that great virtue that we all profess to admire.

Brethren, let not this be said of us; though we come late into the field, let us show by our redoubled energy and zeal that we fully appreciate this great virtue. Let our maxim be, "Scotland and the Craft expects every brother to do his duty." In furtherance of this design, we, the promoters, publicly bring before your notice, and the public at large, "The Scottish Masonic Benevolent Institution," a scheme that has been devised to supply the want already felt. Our aims are, 1st, to establish schools for children (boys and girls) of aged, deceased, and distressed Freemasons of good character.

To maintain, clothe and feed said children.

To find halls at the universities, for older children, wherein students may be maintained, clothed, and educated, their university and professor's fees paid, as well as pecuniary assistance given.

2nd. To find homes and asylums for aged and distressed Masons of good character, and widows of Masons.

To maintain, clothe, and support them therein, or to grant annual sums for their maintenance.

It depends on you, brethren, how far we can carry out these high aims: if you respond freely to this appeal, we may shortly have an institution equal to any existing. "Freely ye have received, freely give."

Every Masonic body in Scotland has already received circulars, prospectuses, of the undertaking, as well as every brother of wealth and eminence, so far as we have been able to find out that they belong to the Craft. If any brother has been accidentally omitted, we shall be glad to forward copies on application. Copies of circulars are now sent to every newspaper in Scotland, together with this appeal. A list of representatives is also appended.

No money will be called for till after the first General Court of Donors and Subscribers has been held, on which occasion a Treasurer and Secretary will be appointed.

No General Court can be held till a sufficient quorum of donors (large and small), and annual subscribers has been obtained.

Brethren of the Craft, you are earnestly requested to send in your names and amounts of donations or subscriptions to myself, the interim Secretary, Bro. J. Laurie, Grand Secretary of Scotland, or the nearest representative as per list. Any brother who may wish to act as a representative is requested to apply to me. Representatives are particularly required in Dundee, Kirkcaldy, Ayrshire, Perth, and Inverness.

Brethren, need I say more. You who are able, give of your abundance. You, my poorer brethren, give your Committee, either individually or collectively. The scale of donations will be found in short Prospectus.

I am, Sir and Brother,

Yours Fraternally,

GEO. R. HARRIOTT, of Killienord, Provincial Grand Master of Wigtown, and Kirkcudbright. Promoter and Originator of the Scheme.

Bro. Spencer, Masonic Depot, 26, Queen Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, the publisher of Prospectuses and Circulars; and Bro. Kenning, proprietor of the Freemason, will furnish any further particulars.

BRO. CONSTABLE'S HISTORY OF THE LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very pleased to see your appreciative review of Bro. Constable's capital History of the Lodge of Tranquillity, for it is, as you say, "a well planned and well executed work . . . also a very interesting and readable volume."

Will you kindly permit me to draw attention to a special feature of the work, viz., two excellent reduced facsimiles of valuable documents, alike important to the members of the lodge, and to those interested in Masonic Archaeology. The frontispiece is a facsimile of the warrant still preserved by the lodge, which is a perfect work of art, and the original of which is dated 20th day of December, 1787, and in the body of the History is the second reproduction of scarce documents, consisting of the "Rules and Orders" for the "Year of Masonry 5771." (A.D. 1771) Order and Secrecy being represented in a figurative manner on two grand pillars, and within the same occurs the list of Grand Officers, and opposite is the Introduction to the printed set of Bye Laws (forwarded for adoption) to the "Ancient" Lodges towards the end of last century.

We hope that many brethren will forward five shillings each (or six shillings, if from the United States) to Bro. John Constable, 13, Sise Lane, London, E.C., for copies of the History of the Lodge of Tranquillity, so that the enterprise may prove a success, and be the means of inducing other competent brethren to write the history of the old lodges to which they belong, for we are persuaded that the Editor of the Freemason is right in expecting considerably more, light from the archives of the ancient ateliers in Great Britain and Ireland, and particularly in England,

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN, P.S.G.D.

Truro, 2nd January, 1875.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Hughan has written to me pointing out some mistakes in the oration you printed—page 833—December 26, 1874, in your paper. I am most happy to receive correction from such a brother, and thank him most fraternally. He says:—

"You are in error about my list of lodges being 339 at the 'Union.' The number, then (1814 calendar), of the two G. L.'s united was 647. In 1832, these had dwindled down to 424, and, in 1863, to 339, the number you quote for the 'Union.' Also, 'H.R.H. the Duke of Kent was G.M. of the Ancients 'London,' not York. The York G. L. had died out." Also, "I thought my copy to you had, in the second column, 'removal of their Grand Master and Past Grand Master.'"

Yours fraternally,

AUGUSTUS A. BAGSHAW,

P.P.G.C. and P.P.S.G.W., Derbyshire,
I.P.M. 1235.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In my letter of December 21st, 1874, which you have been kind enough to insert in your paper, the Freemason, of January 2nd, 1875, at page 7, the following corrections are necessary—viz., in the 3rd query, for the word "or," in the first line, read "if so." And, in the last query, for the letters "S.C.," in the first line, read "E.C." I may observe that the part of your paper devoted to original correspondence, or notes and queries, I consider extremely interesting, and that is the part I always read first, on account of the many interesting facts brought out from time to time.

Thanking you for your kindness in inserting my letter, I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
JOHN SMITH, 1257 E.C., 91 S.C.

THE ERA ALMANAC.—By Bro. Edward Ledger.

We have had our attention called by Bro. Ledger to this useful and interesting almanac. To all members of the theatrical profession this almanac will forcibly appeal, and to many of the public it will be alike a source of amusement and gratification, for in it we encounter some of those interesting and mysterious personages who appeal alike to our sentiment and our sympathies, our love of the sensational, our sensibility for the romantic, our appreciation of the risible, our state of (not "pas") "de fascination." We sometimes think that the world is very hard on actors. They are often the cherished idols of an hour, those whom we greet with smiles and applause, and intense excitement, and odoriferous bouquets—they pass from us, and we forget them as if they had never been. Some of us may recall how we saw Charles Matthews in his glory, and Mrs. Nibbet in her grace, how we laughed at Tyrone Power, approved of Harley, applauded old Farren, wept with Helen Faucit, were made sentimental by Ellen Tree, were kept in awe and yet amusement by Mrs. Glover. Our memories can go back to Mrs. Keely as Jack Sheppard, and to Keely in his quiet fun, to Paul Bedford and Mr. Webster, to Miss Woolgar and Madame Celeste, and Shakesperian Phelps. And those of us who are still young, and like still to loiter amid "Thespian groves," may be prepared to name many of those effective actors and "pleasant dames" who shed a tinge of brilliancy to the English stage. Now Bro. Ledger introduces us this year to many of these favourites, and probably next year will introduce us to more, and we hear their sentiments and behold their autographs. As the Frenchman said, "C'est quelque chose." We are still much gratified to be able to discern Charles Matthews's neat hand-writing which puts the scrawl of this self-sufficient generation to shame; but we are sorry to learn that "it does make" the excellent Toole, of laugh-compelling memory, "so wild." With Emmett, we are inclined to ask, "Is das so?" With Mr. Terry we admit much value in an "if;" we sympathize with Mr. Clarke as "A Poor Player;" and we quite appreciate Mr. Honey's question, "Why didn't you say so at once?" Of Captain Cuttle we have the highest admiration, and of Mr. Emery's quotation. We don't, however, agree with Mr. Bancroft in his mournful view of things; we are quite sure Mrs. Bancroft does not, nor the habits of the Prince of Wales Theatre, though we echo Mr. Warner's truism, believing that "It is never too late to mend." With Lord Dundreary's sapient adage we beg to express our entire concurrence, and we greatly admire Mr. Buckstone's energetic address to the Haymarket company; may they, as we do not doubt they will, applaud and attend to it. And what shall we say of the ladies? He must be a very uninquiring mortal who does not wish to know a little more about Miss Pattie Laverne's question; he must be a cold-hearted one who does not sympathize with Mrs. Stirling's cheery assertion. We feel that everybody will allow Miss Farren to "say one word"—we should be willing to allow her to say a good many; and we trust that Miss Wallis may have her legitimate aspirations fulfilled. It is pleasant to be informed that Miss Neilson will "come again," and that Miss Eleanor Bufton is always ready to "answer the call." We are very much impressed with the poetical quotations of Miss Cavendish, Mrs. Rousby, Miss Maggie Brennan, Miss Amy Roselle, Miss Arabella Addison, and many more; and we congratulate Bro. Ledger on his original idea and his pleasant almanac. We commend his "aide memoire" to our readers, on the ground that it makes us familiar with the handwriting of those who play such important parts on "Earth's Mimic Stage."

Some one has said that you may know a good deal of a person by his or her handwriting, and certainly we feel that we know more of those of whom, if we have not seen, we have heard so much, when we read for ourselves their customary caligraphy, and see how like our own, after all, it is. Remembering, in one sense, that the world is ever only "a stage," and "men and women only actors," we feel how much of sympathy we ought to have for those who lend such a brilliancy to many a fading scene, and give us in their faithful representations, a true facsimile of that strange life of ours, which passes on, hour by hour, and year by year. Whether in its joys or sorrows, its greatness or its meanness, its good or its evil, its honour or its shame, its truth or its hypocrisy, its loyalty or its treachery, it is often, we venture to say, to the "poor player" that we have to look even now, for its most effective illustration and its most speaking moral.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

On Tuesday last a Christmas and New Year's entertainment was given to the inmates of the Masonic Benevolent Institution Asylum at Croydon, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. A small party of the friends of the institution, among whom were Dr. Strong and Mrs. Strong, Bro. J. G. Stevens, Bro. R. H. Halford, Mrs. Cooksey, Mrs. Halford, Mrs. and the Misses and Master Terry, Mr. Mabbs, Mr. Terry, sen., were received by the Secretary, Bros. James Terry, W. Lane, and Jones, early in the afternoon were conducted, together with the aged Freemasons and widows, to an excellent banquet laid for them in the pretty hall of the asylum. To this, as well as the other entertainments of the day, several of the brethren contributed, and the whole expense was borne by voluntary subscription.

Bro. Carr, of St. Clement Danes Lodge (King's Head, Strand), sent the beef and turkeys, Bro. W. Hall, of Drury Lane, sent the wine and liquors, Bro. R. H. Halford, and Mr. Bonner furnished the dissolving views and magic lantern in the evening; while the ladies, who are always foremost in good works, performed the music.

Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Cooksey, the Misses Terry and Strong, played the piano and sang, and Dr. Strong played the violin.

Masters Terry and Strong decorated the apartments with "Welcomes," "Merry Christmases," and "Happy New Years," and Miss Morris, daughter of Bro. Morris, Warden, attended to the wants and comforts of visitors and inmates. Dr. Strong presided at the banquet, Bro. Terry taking the vice-chair, a second vice-chair being occupied by Bro. J. G. Stevens. When the banquet was concluded, a few toasts were given, the chairman proposing the time honoured leading toast of "The Queen and the Craft." Bro. Morris, Warden, then proposed "The Health of Bro. Terry," and after thanking him for his kindness and brotherly feeling towards all the inmates of the asylum, and the annuitants generally, presented him, in the name of the inmates, with a handsome silver inkstand, which had been subscribed for solely by them, as a mark of their universal respect and esteem for him. The presentation was made in very feeling terms, and elicited the warmest applause from all present. Bro. James Terry, in replying, informed the subscribers that he should always look upon the testimonial as of the utmost worth, showing, as it did, that his efforts to minister to the comfort of all committed to his charge had a high value set upon them by those brethren and widows who were being entertained that day. Bro. Stevens proposed "The Health of the Chairman," who, having replied, proposed "The brethren who had contributed towards the dinner."

Bro. Stevens responded, and assured the old people that it gave him great pleasure to see the many happy faces around him, and that this alone would be an ample reward for any little contribution which those who were blessed with means might bestow. Bro. Cooke, one of the inmates, proposed "The Ladies, and Mrs. Terry," for whom Bro. Terry replied. In the course of his remarks, he said that Mrs. Terry took great interest in the institution, and, indeed, she had as great an interest in it as himself. She was always thinking as much of it as he was himself, and if ever anything should by chance slip his memory he was always reminded of it by his wife. The company then had a short respite, the inmates preferring to retire to their own abodes for tea. Those who were unwell, and unable to sit down with the rest of the company, had their dinner supplied to them in their apartments, and each female inmate was presented with half a pound of tea, and each male inmate with half a pound of tobacco.

At six o'clock the dissolving views were produced, and Mrs. Cooksey, Mrs. Strong, and her daughters, and the Misses Terry enlivened the scenes and descriptions with some very charming music and singing, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed. These having lasted for nearly three hours, refreshments were again partaken of, and before separating Bro. Terry proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Halford and Mr. Bonner for defraying the expenses of the magic lantern. Bro. Halford, in acknowledging the compliment, said how heartily he was delighted at being able to contribute even his small share to the enjoyment of the evening which he had participated in as much as any one present. At any future time that he could be of similar service he should be glad to be called upon. The inmates then separately shook hands with the visitors, and bade them a happy new year. The London visitors shortly afterwards returned to town.

It may be as well to remind our brethren of what this Institution is, and does, and for this purpose we quote a paragraph which appeared in The Standard of Wednesday.

"The institution, which was established in 1843, has 33 separate sets of apartments in its asylum, which are occupied partly by married couples, partly by Freemasons who are widowers, and partly by the widows of Freemasons.

"It allows £36 a year to the old men, and £28 a year to the old women, and provides them also with coals. In addition to this, it grants annuities of the same amounts to indigent Freemasons and widows living out of the asylum, and it has altogether on its books no less than 230 annuitants. The amount spent in annuities in the course of every year is nearly £7,000, and with the expenses of management and collection, the annual draught on the Craft is nearly £8,000. This is raised almost entirely by the voluntary subscriptions of individual Freemasons and lodges and chapters, and an annual festival is held at Freemasons' Tavern, when an appeal is made to the Masonic Order for support. Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter assist the object of the charity by making contributions towards the general fund, and towards the supply of coals. But the bulk of the subscriptions are obtained by the bounty of the Craft, and this they always bestow with no niggard hand. The festival, by the permission of the Grand Master, is held on the last Wednesday in January, and, at the next festival, which will be held on the 27th inst., the Earl of Shrewsbury, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, will take the chair."

To this we may add that there are already 160 Stewards for the festival, and it is expected to be a great success. The Stewards cannot do better than pay a visit to the asylum, as, after seeing the comfort and happiness it is providing for the aged and needy—many of whom have walked in the upper ranks of life—they will be the better able to plead the cause of the institution in their lodges and chapters.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The meeting of the General Committee of this school was held on the last day of the old year, in the library, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.A.G.D.C., presided, and there were also present Bros. W. Hale, Jesse Turner, W. Stephens, John Symonds, Thos. F. Peacock, Griffiths Smith, J. A. Rucker, Robt. B. Webster, F. Binckes, J. M. E. Snow, H. Massey (Freemason), James Terry, Richard Spencer, and R. Wentworth Little, Secretary.

On the motion of Bro. Rucker, seconded by Bro. W. Hale, the Rev. Edwin Thompson, D.D., of the Vicarage, Wandsworth, was unanimously appointed honorary Chaplain of the school.

Bro. John Symonds gave notice of the following motion:—"Every Steward at the annual festival who shall procure donors or subscribers to the extent of 100 guineas or more, and shall collect and pay over the amount (exclusive of his personal donation) to the funds of the institution, shall receive, if such amount be not less than 100 guineas, one additional vote; 150 guineas, two votes; 200 guineas, three votes; and a further extra vote for every additional sum of not less than 50 guineas, so collected and paid over."

Bro. Rucker proposed, and Bro. W. Hale seconded, a recommendation to the next Quarterly Court, that the number of girls in the school be increased from 145 to 148, which was adopted by the Committee.

Eleven petitions were read, one of which was deferred. The rest were passed, and the Committee adjourned after sitting more than two hours.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held last Saturday in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. There was a good attendance of members. Bro. W. Roebuck took the chair, and among other brethren present were Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, Jesse Turner, Benj. Mallam, S. Rosenthal, J. G. Chancellor, Walter Hopekirk, W. Hughes, Benj. Head, H. Browne, F. Adlard, W. F. C. Moutrie, W. H. Saunders, John Symonds, James Winter, Hyde Pullen, George Snow, G. J. Palmer, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes, Secretary. The minutes of meetings of the Committee and of the House Committee were read and confirmed. In the latter were included the records of the resignations of the Head and Second Masters, and their acceptance. The letters containing the resignations were read to the Committee.

Eleven petitions for placing boys on the list for election were read and passed, and the list was settled, there being 48 cases and 8 vacancies.

On the motion of Bro. John Symonds, a vote expressive of the regret of the Institution at the loss of Bro. Benj. Bond Cabbell, one of the Trustees, was unanimously agreed to.

Bro. Symonds gave notice of the same motion for the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School on the 18th, as he gave for the Girls' to increase the privileges of the Stewards for the festivals, and the Committee shortly afterwards adjourned.

DINNER OF THE AUDIT COMMITTEE OF THE DOMATIC LODGE.

The above dinner took place at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Saturday last, the 2nd inst.; Bro. Frederick Kent, C.C., the Master of the lodge, being in the chair, and Bro. Everett, the W.M. elect, in the vice-chair, supported by Bro. J. Fortescue Harrison, M.P., and other brethren. The result of the audit disclosed a balance of £53 6s. 6d. to the credit of the lodge, besides a payment to Grand Lodge of £66 3s. for dues.

After the loyal toasts, the W.M. proposed "The House of Commons," coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Harrison, M.P. for Kilmarnock. The Hon. brother, in reply, stated that he was an old English Mason, and thoroughly devoted to the interests of the Craft. Strange to say, although representing a Scotch burgh, he had not seen much of Scotch Masonry, but if every lodge bore such a reputation as the Domatic Masonry, with all its true and noble principles, must flourish. He had come there to spend a pleasant evening with Bro. Kent, their W.M., whom he learned in the course of the evening was about shortly to quit the chair; he could only say that he wished him all happiness in the future.

The toasts of the Audit Committee, the W.M., the W.M. elect, and the Past Masters, followed.

Bro. Kent, in responding to his own health, said:—Brethren, the Master of a lodge is always anxious about his audit, and for myself I can say that the result is to me most gratifying; after all our pleasures, to have so large a surplus as £53 6s. 6d., shows that we have been thrifty and wise, and have not forgotten charity. The Master made some amusing allusions to bread-and-cheese banquets, describing them as unreal, if given for ostentation and display, but praiseworthy, if from pure motives. He was happy to say that, in the Domatic Lodge, there was no occasion for bread-and-cheese banquets.

To the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, Bro. Joseph Smith, P.M., &c., and Bro. Willing, severally replied, the former speaking of the prosperity of the lodge under Bro. Kent, and the latter expressing his intention to do all he could to promote its prosperity.

The concluding toast, i.e., "The Pretty Maids, Hand-some Wives, and Buxom Widows of the Domatic Lodge," was given by the Master in happy terms, and most facetiously acknowledged by Bro. Ferguson.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.—The approaching ball in Liverpool on Tuesday next (of which an advertisement appears in another column) promises to be one of a highly successful kind, and there is no doubt that the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, on behalf of which the annual festival is held, will reap a substantial benefit from the gathering. The arrangements are in a very forward condition, and our numerous readers will find a full report of the successful gathering in the Freemason in due course.

Our distinguished Bro., the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London, David Henry Stone, P.M., No. 1 P.Z., will preside at the Girl's School Anniversary in May next. He left London on a state visit to the French metropolis, accompanied by the Sheriffs, and reached Paris at midnight. He was received by the Minister of Police, the Prefect of the Seine, and other officials. He was present at the opening of the New Opera House, where a special box was reserved for him, having been previously presented to Marshal MacMahon.

The second of the series of five concerts in aid of the organ fund of the new Masonic Hall, Liverpool, took place in the large dining hall of the building on Wednesday week, when there was a good attendance. The concert was highly successful in a musical point of view, much of the credit being due to Bro. Walter Barnett, who efficiently fulfilled the duties of conductor and accompanist.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Great City Lodge of Instruction, No. 1426, on Thursday evening, January 28th 1875, at 6.30 precisely, at No. 111, Cheapside (the London Warehousemen's Association). Bro. Jas. Stevens, P.M. 720, 1216, I.P.M. 1426 will preside. Brethren are invited to attend.

CONSECRATION OF A CHAPTER IN NEW ZEALAND.

It may be interesting to many of our readers to learn that in the fast-progressing colony of New Zealand, "the Britain of the South," Masonry flourishes and is respected. We have just received from a correspondent the following report of the consecration and the opening of the Trafalgar Royal Arch Chapter of Nelson, S.C.

In that confessedly delightful and serene spot—"the garden of New Zealand"—the Southern Star Lodge, No. 735, E.C., has been established about twenty years, and it is out of that strong and well-established lodge that has sprung the chapter just inaugurated.

On Thursday, the 8th of October, three M.E. Principals from the Canterbury Kilwinning R.A. Chapter arrived in Nelson Haven, on their fraternal mission, after a four day's voyage in the New Zealand Coasting Steamer, Wellington, from Lyttelton, for the purpose of opening the chapter. These gentlemen were the guests of the Nelson Masons for nine days, a great portion of which time was occupied in their Masonic duties.

On the afternoon of their arrival, the M.E. Comps. F. W. Thiel, Z.J.; Booth, H.; and Arthur A. Dobbs, J.; met the brethren in the Masonic Hall, where afterwards, assisted by other companions resident in Nelson, they formed the chapter. In the evening of the same day, the Mark Master's Lodge was opened, and a considerable number of the brethren advanced to that degree. On the Friday afternoon, the Lodge of Excellent Masons was formed, and the brethren passed through the veils, and, in the evening, the exaltations into the Royal Arch degree were given. On the Saturday a Royal Ark Mariner's Lodge was formed among those Royal Arch companions qualified to take the degree. On Monday afternoon there were more exaltations, and, in the evening, the office-bearers were installed and invested by M.E. Comp. Thiel.

The ceremony was exceedingly impressive, and during the evening Comp. Dobbs, of Christchurch, acting J., delivered an address, a slight sketch of which, as taken by our correspondent, we give.

Comp. Dobbs said: On first entering into Masonry our attention was, in an especial manner, directed to the volume of the Sacred Law as our sole guide in all things, whether relating to our civil, social, or domestic duties.

In the second degree we were encouraged to cultivate the understanding by a study of the liberal arts and sciences, and in the third degree not only was our higher intelligence to be exercised, but we were enjoined to the study of our own nature, and our higher aspirations were directed to the source of all good in the universe, and to that immortality, the instinct of which has been implanted within every soul. But at the close of this degree we are, in terms equally strong, directed to God's Holy Word, and especially with his dealings with His creatures. The certainty of a national punishment following national sin, and the equal certainty, but more immediate sequence, of pardon on national repentance, is strongly shown in God's dealing with His rebellious people—showing His character, as revealed by Himself, as a God who sits in His seat to administer mercy, but who comes out of His place in executing punishment which is His strange work.

Next we have a dramatic scene, enacted in the visits of the Sojourners to the vaults, which, although it may not be an exact representation of a real or historical occurrence, yet undoubtedly represents a fact—the discovery of the secret vault of King Solomon erected by him, directed by the providence of God to preserve the precious deposits there from the ruin that he prophetically foresaw would overtake Jerusalem. We had there, in the decorations of the chamber, an evidence of the advanced position of science, cultivated by Masons, in the Zodiacal signs, and it is remarkable also that the names of the twelve tribes are actually lost to human knowledge, although we know that most surely will the promises of God to His ancient people be fulfilled to the letter, and but for the preservation of the Sacred histories and for these prophetic precautions, the very names of these tribes would have been lost. We come now to the climax or key-stone of the R.A., in the discovery of the genuine secrets of Masonry, and especially of the grand mysterious name of the Deity and the manner in which it should be pronounced.

From the singular care taken by the Jews to prevent an irreverent use of the sacred name, manifested in so many ways, and so uniformly, we should learn an important lesson, and the Arch-Mason who uses the ordinary name of God irreverently on light or trivial occasions is peculiarly inconsistent in his conduct.

The veteran companion in the foregoing address was listened to with marked attention.

The following companions were severally invested as office-bearers of the Trafalgar Royal Arch Chapter of Nelson, by M. E. Comp. F. W. Thiel, by authority of the Provincial Grand Superintendent, W. B. Sealy, Z.; W. Westbroke Squires, H.; R. Burn, J.; Wm. M. Stanton, E.; A. M. K. Wit, N.; W. Lightfoot, Treasurer; William Holmes, J. Hounsell, and Leonard G. Boor, Sojourners.

On the next evening, the Southern Star Lodge met (by emergency) to afford their Canterbury brethren the opportunity of visiting. A brother was raised to the third degree by W.M. Maclean, and the visitors were pleased to express their gratification at the order and good working of the lodge.

THE BANQUET.

The Craft Lodge joined with the Chapter to do honour to their guests and brethren, by inviting M.E. Comps. Thiel, Booth, and Dobbs to a banquet, which was accordingly given in the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 14th Oct.

The companions and brethren dined in regalia, and the gallery was open for an hour, to ladies, being members of the families of Masons.

The following toasts were given, the first four from the chair, which was ably filled by M.E. Comp. Sealy,—"The Queen and the Craft;" "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W., First Grand Principal for England;" (this toast called for special remark, from the recently arrived telegraphic intelligence of the defection of the late Noble Grand Principal, and was drunk with enthusiasm) "The Grand Principals of Scotland and Ireland;" and "The Earl of Carnarvon, Deputy G.M. for England;" and "The Grand Officers." M.E. Comp. Dobbs gave "The three Principals of the Trafalgar R.A. Chapter of Nelson," responded to by M.E. Comp. Sealy, who, after some songs, proposed the toast of the occasion—"The Installing Officers," which was most cordially and heartily drunk.

M. E. Comp. Thiel, for himself and fellow principals, very kindly responded, and gave "The healths of E. Comps. Stanton and Holmes," who, he said, had been instrumental in the formation of the Chapter whose opening was at that moment being so well celebrated. He was responded to by the former.

M.E. Comp. Sealy then gave "The Worshipful Master, the Wardens, and Officers of the Southern Star Lodge," to which W.M. Charles L. Maclean responded. To the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," Bro. T. M. Foy responded. "The Newly Elected Companions" was responded to by Comp. A. J. Richmond, and "The Canterbury Kilwinning Chapter," by Comp. Booth. Comp. Burn proposed the health of M.E. Comp. and Bro. Squires, whose zealous care in fostering Freemasonry in Nelson, at a time when such guardianship was so much required, he highly eulogized.

Comp. Dobbs, in a humorous speech, proposed "The Ladies," responded to by Bro. Deacon. "The W.M. and officers of the Forest Lodge," "The health of Host Toeja," with a well-deserved compliment for his providing so excellently, and "To all poor and distressed Masons" were duly drunk, and the evening passed away pleasantly with agreeable speeches and good music, among which was the following original song.

THE MASON'S TEMPLE.

"A Temple not made with hands."

Written by E. Comp. W. M. Stanton, to music by Bro. Charles Bonnington, and sung by Comp. C. A. Deacon. E. Comp. Stanton accompanied on the pianoforte.

Fill the rosy cup to the brim! to the brim!

Raise the cheerful song and joyous hymn!

Every Mason's heart rejoices

At the work this day begun,

And as jubilant our voices,

Be our hearts and souls as one;

We have left behind our labours

With the setting of the sun.

So around the festive table be banish'd every care,

As we meet upon the level and part upon the square.

The temple we are building is sublime! is sublime!

Its pillars are eternal! beyond time!

In Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty

Our grand Architect Divine

Has traced each Craftsman's duty

To the true Masonic line;

Then let brother aid each brother,

Love and labour thus combine.

Cheerfully, untiring, let us build our temple fair,

Meeting on the level—parting on the square.

Then forward with the structure! let it rise! let it rise!

Rear up its lofty arches to the skies!

Ply the chisel and the gavel,

Till the ashlar square become,

Lay a true and perfect level,

Fix a true and upright plumb,

Then pile up the glorious temple,

The perfect Mason's home,

And adorn the sacred building—that palace bright and rare,

Where we meet upon the level, to part upon the square.

The delay of two days in the departure of the steamer enabled the Masons to show their guests the suburban districts, and to explore with them the sunny gardens and the green hills and valleys with their shady walks and pleasant drives, surrounded by pretty cottages and elegant villas embosomed in trees. The weather was most favourable to the enjoyment of the charming spring-time, until at noon on Saturday, the 17th, with a calm sea and a cloudless sky, their guests re-embarked in the Wellington for home, carrying with them high respect and hearty good wishes. No less than fifty Masons, without any previous arrangement, came together on the pier during the morning, to take leave of their Christchurch brethren.

The Trafalgar Chapter already numbers thirty-five Companions.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

ROYAL KENT LODGE OF ANTIQUITY (No. 20).—The installation meeting of this ancient lodge was held on Wednesday last at the Sun Hotel, Chatham. The lodge, which was opened on the third Wednesday in December, 1874, and called off, was resumed by Bro. Walter Downing, W.M., and at the resumption a very large body of Freemasons were present, both from this lodge, the Gundulph, and the Brownrigg, besides many Provincial Grand Officers, brethren from the province of Kent and from London. The only work remaining before the lodge was the installation of the W.M., and for the performance of this ceremony Bro. R. C. Burfield, a Past Master of the lodge, took the chair. Bro. Edwards, P.M., presented Bro. Humphrey Wood, S.W. and W.M. elect, and Bro. Burfield immediately proceeded to install him in the chair. At the board of Installed Masters nearly thirty brethren were present. On the admission of the brethren the customary forms were gone through, and the W.M. then appointed the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. Thornton, S.W.; Gamon, J.W.; Walter Smith, Treasurer; Delacour, Secretary; S. M. Heckford, S.D.; Naylor, J.D.; Bentley, I.G.; A. T. Randall, D.C.; Wilson, S. Steward; Sinclair, J. Steward; Heckford, Organist; Fearn, Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses the W.M. presented Bro. Downing with a valuable Past Master's jewel, and said it was extremely gratifying to him to commence his year of office with such a pleasing duty. Bro. Downing commenced his year under rather melancholy circumstances, a vote of condolence having to be passed to a brother who was suffering from affliction. His year, however, had been a successful one, and the arduous duties had been well performed. But, before being Master, he had discharged the duties of Secretary, and in that position he had succeeded in collecting a vast amount of dues which were owing to the lodge. The hospitality of the lodge had been well sustained during Bro. Downing's Mastership, and for the many services he had rendered to the lodge, the brethren had resolved to present him with a Past Master's jewel, but he was not to look on its intrinsic value as in any way an adequate representation of the estimate which the lodge put upon those services. Bro. Downing having acknowledged the gift, stated that ever since he had joined the lodge he had only been absent from its meetings once, and then it was through illness. He left the W.M. chair with greater pleasure than he entered it, because he knew that a much better Master than himself would occupy it. Nevertheless, he was pleased to find that in whatever post he had been placed in the lodge he had given satisfaction to the brethren. Bro. Edwards, P.M., proposed, and the I.P.M. seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Burfield for installing the W.M., and Bro. Burfield having returned thanks, lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Willis. During the dinner, the band of the Royal Marines played several lively airs. When the dinner was disposed of, the W.M. proposed the toasts. The toast of "The Pro Grand Master" was proposed by Bro. Eastes, D. Prov. G.M. Kent, who repeated the many kind remarks which proposers of his lordship's health have lately made concerning him. The Rev. R. Robinson, Prov. G.S.W., proposed "Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., &c." In the course of his observations he said that the appointments of the Grand Lodge were always directed by the great merit and ability of the brethren who were appointed, and though the brethren could not hope to attain the distinguished position of Lord Skelmersdale, they might be Grand Wardens, Deacons, or Chaplains. The W.M. proposed "Viscount Holmesdale, Prov. G.M. of Kent." The brethren of the Royal Kent Lodge would have been delighted to see his lordship present, but they could hardly expect it, because there were nearly 40 lodges in the province, which made great demands on his time. His lordship honoured them with his presence in the Provincial Grand Lodge two years since, and they then experienced what an active, zealous, and good Mason he was. They also witnessed the great interest he took in the Craft and everything that concerned it, and what large assemblages of Masons he brought together at the Annual Provincial Grand Meetings. The toast was enthusiastically drunk, and the W.M. then proposed "The Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Eastes, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers." The D.P.G.M. had put himself to considerable inconvenience to be present, and had come by a circuitous route from Ashford. Of him he also spoke in high terms as an energetic Mason, a proof of which was his appointment by Lord Holmesdale as his Deputy. If Lord Holmesdale had not known of Bro. Eastes's great personal qualities and abilities as a Mason, he would not have appointed him. The lodge was also favoured with the presence of several Provincial Grand Officers; so many, indeed, that it was not often a lodge was so highly favoured. It was a source of great gratification to the brethren to have their company. No doubt this lodge being the oldest in the province, was the cause of their coming. The lodge thanked them very earnestly and cordially for the honour thus conferred. Bro. Eastes replied, and on behalf of Lord Holmesdale said the toast which had previously been drunk to him was worthy of being received as it had been. His lordship was heart and soul in Freemasonry, and in the welfare of the Order and the Province of Kent. That was saying a great deal, for his lordship's time was taken up by other duties as well. But he had studied the interests of Masonry, and all the brethren would join in wishing he might rule over the Province of Kent for many years to come. He would leave the other officers to speak for themselves. He would now come to speak of the Royal Kent Lodge of Antiquity, which was the very first in the Province of Kent. It could boast of possessing a warrant a century and a half old. Speaking of a Kentish lodge, led him to say there were 38 lodges and 1,800 Masons in the province, and with so many there ought to be a very strong support of the charities of the Order. He did not think they had, as yet, done sufficient in that direction. The charities had a constant claim upon them, and he would urge upon every brother the duty of doing something for the charities. In the language of Byron, "much has been done, yet more remains to do," and he would request them to lay this to heart. No man had done his duty as a Mason unless at the end of the year he could say he had contributed something to the charities of the Order. He then drew attention to some of the leading events in Masonry during 1874; the secession of Lord Ripon; the death of the Grand Master of Ireland, and the accession of the Prince of Wales to the throne of the Craft. The installation of the Duke of Abercorn as Grand Master of Ireland would come into the events of 1875, and the installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England would take its place among those events. At that ceremony the Province of Kent ought to take an important position, and he hoped that with no niggard hand the Freemasons of Kent would assist in carrying it out. No doubt every brother would be glad to attend and there would be such a demonstration by the whole of the lodges as had never before been seen. At that most interesting event he hoped to meet all the brethren then before him. The Rev. R. Robinson, P.G.S.W., also responded. Formerly he had been the constant attendant at lodge and chapter, but lately private circumstances had prevented him. It was now with feelings of the utmost possible pleasure he attended to respond to the hearty and fraternal greetings of the brethren. Since he was there last he had been raised to the high and honourable position of P.G.S.W.; and it was with, he thought, pardonable pride he looked upon his rank. They were all pleased to leave the blue and silver for the purple and gold; and he trusted that many of the brethren of this lodge, although some thirty of its Past Masters had already worn the purple, would yet obtain it. He might remind them that when brethren did get it, they were not content to rest from Masonic duties. There were duties connected with the purple, and the brethren were always zealous in performing them. Among their duties was the recommending other brethren to the Prov. G.M. for Grand Office, and this was a very difficult matter, as it required very nice consideration to do justice to all parties. For a just and impartial decision in these matters he hoped the brethren would give the Grand Officers every credit. Bros. W. Page, P.G.J.W., and Bro. Alfred Spencer, P.G.S., also responded, the latter brother remarking that he sat at the hospitable table of the oldest lodge in the province, and Bro. Terry reminded him, the oldest lodge out of the precincts of London. It was not only the oldest provincial lodge in England, but in the world, which was something to know and feel. After some further remarks on the excellence of the lodge's working, and the warmth of its hospitality, he reminded this and all other lodges in the province of the duty they owed of sending in their returns to the Provincial Grand Lodge as quickly and regularly as possible, and with regard to the Masonic charities, reiterated the observations he made at the Brownrigg Lodge, which appeared in our impression of the 2nd inst. Bro. T. M. Rigg, P.G. Reg., likewise replied. The W.M. gave the toast of "The Masonic Charities," and stated that Bro. James Terry, who was the Secretary of the Benevolent Institution, and was present, was obliged to go away by train, and he would at once claim a hearing for him, that he might not suffer any delay. He, the W.M., considered that the three Masonic charities were the three lights of Masonry, scarcely inferior to those of the lodge. It was the duty of Freemasons constantly to support these charities to the greatest extent possible, by which he meant contributing money towards them. He was exceedingly glad to find Bro. Terry present; they were usually also favoured with the company of Bro. Binckes, the representative of the Boys' School, who so ably put before the brethren the requirements of the charities. This year, although Bro. Binckes, through a prior engagement, was not present, they had Bro. Terry, the representative of an institution by which the Province of Kent was benefited. Bro. Terry replied, and informed the brethren that five of the annuitants of the Benevolent Institution were from the Province of Kent, and on that very day, two additional candidates from the same province came before the committee to be placed on the list for election in May. What did this represent? £172 received yearly by the Province of Kent from the Benevolent Institution. At the last Provincial Grand Lodge £160 was voted, certainly a large donation; but he thought the brethren would agree that £172 a year return was a very good one. As the Deputy Prov. G.M. had said, no doubt much had been done by the province for the charities, but still there was more to be done, and he trusted that the members of Kent Lodge of Antiquity, the premier provincial lodge in the world, would liberally support these charities, which were the pride, the honour, and the key-stone of the whole Masonic structure. Five shillings a year from each Mason, though scarcely one out of every hundred gave that amount, would enable the institution to do an amount of good so enormous that no other institution could compare with them. It was rather a reproach that so few did contribute, and he trusted that in future this reproach would be wiped out. The elections to the three Masonic institutions were in April and May next, and on those occasions the largest known list of candidates would be seen, and the smallest number of vacancies. It rested with the Craft whether they would, in the ensuing year, contribute to the funds and enable the institutions to extend their benefits. The committee did not go about seeking candidates; they came without seeking. He knew that in the Province of Kent he had only to bring these facts before the notice of the brethren to receive the necessary support. There in Chatham, one old woman was experiencing the benefits of his institution, though she was not a Kentish widow. Out of the forthcoming lists fifty candidates would have to be sent away unsuccessful from the Benevolent Institution; the Boys' School could only take 8 out of 48, and the Girls, 13 out of 33 or 34. Would the brethren allow this state of things to continue? He would appeal to the Masons of Kent to do what each could individually. He was last week at Margate, he had £17 or £18 subscribed. A Brother of No. 184 was anxious to swell his list, and the brethren of Chatham had an opportunity now of helping him to do so. They had sympathising hearts, and would help him. The Benevolent Institution had 120 men and 115 widows on the funds: the men received £36 a year, and the women £28. Such an amount of benefit must encourage the brethren to do still more. As a man of Kent himself, he knew he should not appeal in vain. He would say "never forget the boys, never forget the girls," but at the same time look with a feeling of kindness and affection on those who, in times gone by, had borne the burden and heat of the day, and who ought, by reason of age, to be exempt from further toil and trouble. The W.M. announced that he would make himself a life governor, and Bro. Carter, as a Steward, solicited the brethren's assistance. The other toasts followed in due course before the brethren separated. The brethren numbered nearly 100, and among the visitors present were Bros. J. Eastes, D.P.G.M.; Rev. R. Robinson, P.G.S.W.; W. Page, P.G.J.W.; T. M. Rigg, P.G.R.; A. Spencer, P.G. Secretary; Webb, P.Prov.G.J.D.; Ward, P.Prov. G.D. of C.; Windeyer, P.Prov.G.R.; Carter, P.Prov.G.S.D.; Wyles, P.Prov.G.J.D.; Price Edwards, P.Prov.G.J.W.; Ransom, P.G.Org.; Redman, P.Prov. G.Supt. of Works; Penfold, P.Prov.G.Org.; Moore, P.Prov. G.J.D.; J. Lane Nottor, M.D., R.A., P.Prov.G.D. of the District Lodge of Malta; and W.M. Pentangle, Lodge 1174; Newton, W.M. 1050; Nicholls, I.P.M. 1050; Fleming, P.M. 174; Fowle, P.M. 20; Burfield, P.M. 20; Coles, P.M. 20; Wood, W.M. 1273; Burley, W.M. 184; Sergeant Jervis, W.M. 1424; Quarter-Master G. White, R.M., S.W., Pentangle; James Terry, P.P.G.S.B., and P.G.D.C. Hurts (Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution); H. Massey (Freemason). The band of the Royal Marines played some excellent music during dinner.

KINGSTON-UPON-HULL.—Humber Lodge (No. 57).—The installation of Bro. Jonathan West, as W.M. of this lodge for the ensuing year took place last week at the Freemasons' Hall, Osborne-street, Kingston-upon-Hull. There was a large attendance, especially of Past Masters of the Craft, and the proceedings throughout were of the most interesting description. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Dr. Bell, P.G.D., installed the recently-elected Worshipful Master, Bro. Jonathan West, who subsequently invested his officers for the year as follows:—Henry Preston, Immediate Past Master; Francis Summers, S.W.; Thomas Thompson, J.W.; William Tesseymann, P.M., P.P.G., Superintendent of Works, Chaplain; John Fountain, P. Prov. G.S.B., Treasurer; John Love Seaton, P.M., P.P.J.G.W., Treasurer of the Benevolent and Pension Fund; P.M. William Banks Hay, M.D., P.S.P.G.D., Treasurer of the Improvement Sinking Fund; P.M. William Day Keyworth, P. Prov. G., Superintendent of Works, Treasurer and Almoner of the Poor Fund; William Henry Wellsted, Secretary; Thomas Hewson, P.M., P.Prov. G.S.B., Lecture Master; Joseph Hindson, S.D.; Thomas Taylor, J.D.; Alfred Wheatley Ansell, D.C.; Richard Boggett, Librarian; John William Stephenson, Organist; Edward Kidd, C.S.; Adam Shand, Andrew King, Alfred Loftus, jun., Alfred Milner, and Thomas Middleton, Stewards; John E. Winspear, I.G.; Thomas Crier, Tyler; Isaac Dawson, Assistant Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. John Love Seaton, P.M., presented to the retiring Master (Bro. Henry Preston) a gold P.M. jewel, accompanied by a beautifully illuminated address, with the names of the subscribers, as a mark of respect and appreciation of the able manner in which the affairs of the lodge had been conducted during his year of office. Bro. Preston returned thanks in an appropriate speech. The installation banquet was subsequently held, when there was a large accession to the number of the brethren present. Bro. West, W.M., presided, and was supported in the chair by the installing officer, Bro. J. Pearson Bell, M.D., P.G.D., and Deputy Prov. G.M. of North and East Yorkshire; Bro. Charles Wells, P.M. (the Worshipful the Mayor of Hull); Bro. Henry Preston, P.M.; Bro. J. L. Seaton, P.M. (ex-Mayor of Hull); Bro. Emes, W.M., Minerva Lodge, 250; Bro. Garforth, W.M. Kingston Lodge, 1,010; Bro. Thos. Oates, W.M. Alexandra Lodge, 1,511; Bro. Hardy, P.M.; Bro. Needler, P.M.; Bro. R. Dawson, P.M., Sykes Lodge, Driffield; Bro. Stirling, P.M.; Bro. Jonathan Turner, P.M.; Bro. Vivian, P.M.; Bro. Tesseymann, P.M.; Bro. Hay, P.M.; Bro. Hewson, P.M.; Bro. Hudson, P.M.; Bro. Henry Toozier; Bros. W. H. Wellsted, J. Hutchinson, Middleton, Winspear, Kidd, Shand, Linging, R. Boggett, A. Milner, T. Middleton, J. G. Crier, Dawson, Martin Kemp, P.M.; H. J. Am-phlett, Wilson, &c., &c. At the conclusion of an excellent repast, the arrangements for which gave unbounded satisfaction, Bro. Alfred Ansell assumed the chair, and the usual toasts were given. "The Queen and the Craft" was followed by "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Prov. Grand Master," and "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master." The W.M., in giving the latter from the chair, said he thought they might all, as Masons of the present day, feel proud that they had H.R.H. at their head; and they might also congratulate themselves on the fact that the Prince had two such excellent Masons to assist him. The toast of "Our Masonic Rulers" was most loyally received. The W.M. next proposed "The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Prov. Grand Master of North and East Yorks, and the Worthy Bro. John Pearson Bell, M.D., P.G.D., Deputy Prov. G.M. of North and East Yorks, the installing officer. They had, in the present Earl, a most worthy successor to his lamented uncle; and it was a matter of the utmost satisfaction that they had, in the person of their installing officer this evening, so excellent a man, and one whom they all so admired and respected, to assist the noble Earl in his office. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master of North and East Yorks, in returning thanks for the compliment paid him, expressed the pleasure and pride he felt at having his name associated with that of the Prov. G.M. of this province. The name of Zetland would never be heard or spoken of by any Mason without the deepest feelings of reverence and respect. He assured them that the late Earl had been succeeded by a very worthy nephew—one who would do credit to the name he bore, and who had Masonry very deeply and thoroughly at heart. They had seen some little of his lordship hitherto; but the more they saw of him the more they would respect and admire him, not only for his Masonic zeal, but also for his private virtues. With respect to himself (the speaker) he could only say he was most desirous of doing his duty to this province; and it was most gratifying to him to find it was in a flourishing condition. A few days ago he had the pleasure of performing the ceremonial of consecration (and installing the W.M., who was now present) of a new lodge at Hornsea; and he trusted the "Alexandra" would be a prosperous lodge. That would much depend upon the assistance rendered to it by the Hull brethren, who, he felt certain, would do their best to support the W.M. during his year of office. With respect to the other portion of the toast, he could only say he had the greatest possible pleasure in undertaking the duty of installation to-day, for it always was to him especially gratifying to attend any ceremonial at this his mother lodge. He had sometimes thought that, at his time of life, he ought to make way for some younger man; but, however desirous he might be of doing so, it would hardly be considered to have been in good taste at the present time. If his services were of any value or assistance to the present Earl, they were gladly at his lordship's disposal; yet, at the same time, if he could do so, he thought he ought to make way for some younger man, whom he should be glad to assist in every way in his power to promote the welfare of the province. In proposing "The Worshipful Master of the Humber Lodge and the newly-appointed Officers," Dr. Bell observed that he was initiated in this lodge 38 years ago, since which time he had seldom missed the opportunity of being present at the installation of officers. Therefore he had had a little practice, and it was with very great pleasure he now proposed the toast which had been entrusted to his hands. The longer he was a Mason the more he was delighted with the Craft; and he felt convinced that if the true principles of Freemasonry were fully carried out, they must all be the better men for being Masons. When he was first initiated, there were very few men of rank connected with the Craft in Hull; and he recollected that, at the time of laying the foundation-stone of the Royal Institution in Albion-street, by Lord Londesborough, a great deal of unpleasant feeling existed respecting Freemasonry. The great supporters of the Craft at that time in Hull were their late honoured and never-to-be-forgotten Bros. Feetam and Stark. At present they were proud to boast of their Mayor, Sheriff, ex-Mayor, and the highest and most respectable men in the town. At the time to which he referred only about 600 or 700 certificates were granted by Grand Lodge, but now there were something like 6,000 or 7,000. It was wonderful how the Craft had increased. With regard to this lodge in particular, he had had the pleasure and honour of seeing before him this evening a long list of W.M.'s, and he believed it so happened that he was now the oldest P.M. of the lodge. But when he recollected this it also brought to his mind that his time, so far as Masonry was concerned, could not be very much longer. He had always taken the greatest interest in his mother lodge, and he had often thought that in a lodge like this, with 280 members, how satisfactory it was to witness the unanimity which existed amongst them. When they considered that there could be but one Master, and that, of course, there were so many men ambitious of being promoted to the chair, he thought this harmony and brotherly feeling was a thing to be admired by all. He gave the toast of the W.M. and Officers, therefore, with peculiar pleasure, feeling assured that Bro. West would have judgment to define, and ability to execute, his duties, and that he would be well and ably supported by his officers. He concluded by wishing the Humber Lodge every prosperity. The W.M., Bro. Jonathan West, who was received with cheers, returned thanks for the honour which had been conferred upon him. He could assure them he felt deeply sensible of the important duties which would devolve upon him in the ensuing year, as Master of this lodge; but when he remembered the unanimity which existed amongst the brethren—and he had had a fair opportunity of testing it during the last seven years—he felt confident that if he did his duty in all that appertained to the good and welfare of the lodge, he should be well supported in his office. He should endeavour, if possible, to excel even in that good feeling which at present existed in the sister lodges and other lodges in the neighbourhood, feeling that to be one of the duties of the W.M. Then he had no doubt that, at the expiration of his year of office, he might be allowed to glide away in the same honourable manner as Bro. Preston had done, with the assurance of the good wishes of every member of the lodge. Bro. Francis Summers, S.W., also returned thanks for the compliment paid to the newly-appointed officers, and, though he was sensible of many shortcomings, he trusted to be able to do his duty in the honourable position he now filled. His connection with the members of this lodge had been most agreeable at all times, and he did not know any lodge in which there was greater unanimity and good feeling than that which manifested itself in the Humber Lodge. Bro. Thos. Thomson, J.W., also briefly responded to the toast. Bro. Henry Preston, I.P.M., then proposed "The R.W. the Mayor of Hull, Bro. Charles Wells, P.M. and Treas. 250, and P. Prov. G. Warden." In doing so, he said he had the extreme pleasure, during his year of office, of welcoming amongst them his right-hand supporter, Bro. Seaton, P.M., then occupying the civic chair of this borough, as a visitor to this lodge; and he had now equal pleasure in giving the health of the present worthy Mayor, who was so well-known and deservedly respected, and whose presence they held to be a great honour. Bro. C. Wells, P. Prov. G.W., thanked the company for the more than kind way in which they had received the mention of his name. It was exceedingly gratifying to him to have been placed in the highest position which his colleagues in the corporation had at their disposal; and, moreover, he was deeply thankful to his fellow-townsmen generally for the kindness and consideration they had extended to him since he occupied that position. Last year he held the dignified office to which his friend, Bro. Summers, had succeeded; and his elevation to the civic chair was to him an endorsement by his colleagues in the council of their satisfaction of the manner in which he had discharged his duties in the shrievalty. This made the honour doubly dear to him of occupying the civic chair now. He felt he had a somewhat difficult duty to perform in following such an able predecessor as the gentleman who sat at his right hand; but he looked up to those who preceded him for guidance and advice, and he knew he should not look in vain to his Brother Seaton in any matter connected with the governance of this important town. This was not the first time he had to thank Bro. Seaton for the many useful hints he had given him and his invariable readiness to assist him whenever occasion required. Referring to a remark which had fallen from their esteemed Deputy Prov. G.M., relative to the laying the foundation stone of the Royal Institution at Hull, he (the Mayor) remembered that he was Provincial Standard-Bearer there on the occasion; and he confessed he thought there was an immense muster of good men amongst them. Of course, the present time would bear favourable comparison with that; and he rejoiced at the increasingly high standard that had been attained by the Craft in all parts of the country. Alluding to the Masonic charities, he said it afforded him great gratification to have obtained for more than one of their members in Hull the assistance of the benevolent institutions of the Craft. This was a most commendable feature, namely a provision made for the less fortunate brethren in the sore and yellow leaf, when they had become infirm and needed help. In one case a brother from Hull had been secured £36 a year, which was a very handsome annuity. There was a similar institution for the widows of Freemasons, besides schools for the boys and girls, who had been left orphans. In these schools children were enabled to obtain a most superior education; and he mentioned the case of a youth who had been sent up from Hull, who distinguished himself in the school, from which he was afterwards sent to one of the Universities, where he obtained a fellowship and came out fifth wrangler of his year. When it was considered that the Craft expended upwards of £5,000 a year in charities of this kind they must all admit a very great and good work was being done. Bro. Vivian, P.M., next proposed "The Retiring Worshipful Master, and his Officers." In doing so he spoke in felicitous terms of the manner in which Bro. Preston had discharged his onerous duties during the past year; and all who knew anything of Masonry would admit that, in order to have acquitted himself so creditably and successfully, he must have been well supported by his officers. Bro. Henry Preston suitably acknowledged the toast, expressing his thanks for the compliment paid him, supplemented as it had been by a handsome presentation, of which he felt himself unworthy. He had done nothing more than his duty, and this he should continue to do in the future, for the honour and prosperity of the lodge. In conclusion he thanked his officers for the valuable and hearty support they had each and all accorded to him during the past year. Bro. R. Boggett, the retiring S.W., said it had been quite a labour of love to assist the Immediate Past Master in the duties of his office. During the five years of his connection with Masonry he had held four offices in this lodge, and none of them afforded him greater pleasure than that of acting with Bro. Preston. Bro. Henry Toozier and Taylor also briefly responded. Bro. Martin Kemp, P.M., next proposed "The Sheriff of Hull, Bro. F. Summers, S.W. 57." In a few humorous remarks he predicted that it would be summer all the year through in the Humber lodge, for the genial disposition of their S.W. was known to all. He would hand down the silver chain of office with undimmed lustre, and add another to the list of illustrious and honourable men who had discharged the duties of the Shrievalty in this important town. Bro. Summers, S.W., returned thanks for the compliment paid him as the Sheriff of Hull. When the Corporation almost unanimously elected him to that exalted position he felt deeply sensible of the honour, and determined, to the best of his ability, to do his duty. Their worthy Mayor had alluded to his predecessors, and their readiness to accord to him any assistance and advice in carrying out his duties; and he could also look confidently to Bro. Wells for any assistance of which he might feel to be in need. Ever carrying with him a full determination to do his duty satisfactorily to the town, he hoped and firmly believed the Council would never regret having elected him to the honourable position he now filled. With regard to their W.M. it should be his (the speaker's) constant study to make his year a successful one; and he trusted that in this, as in his more public capacity, the office he held should be laid aside at the end of the year having lost none of its lustre by having been conferred upon him. Bro. W. Banks Hay, M.D., then gave the "Past Masters and Founders of the Humber Lodge," the toast being received in silence. Bro. J. L. Seaton (ex-Mayor) in the course of a humorous response said the first part of the toast struck him as partaking rather of "our noble selves;" whilst the second portion reminded him somewhat of the sepulchral tones of Hamlet. However, he always rose with pleasure to return thanks for the Past Masters, and to do his best to keep in their minds the memory of the founders of this lodge. Their deputy P.G.M. had referred to the paucity of interest comparatively which existed with regard to Masonry at the time when the foundation stone of the Royal Institution was laid; and their excellent Mayor had followed by remarking that he was a standard-bearer on that occasion. Let him (Bro. Seaton) remark that he had the honour of carrying the plummet that day, and he felt thoroughly convinced of the gravity of the position, and as firmly convinced that they used the most exact precision in laying that stone, for there had not been the least sign of its going away from its foundation. With respect to other matters he could only say that within the last hour, standing on the stairs, one of the oldest P.M.'s remarked to him how often they had been there, and at each annual issue of the names of the members they found their names swimming to the top of the list, so it called to his mind the observations of Lallah Rookh when crossing the desert, "How many like we have stood beside that fountain, but they are gone, and their souls have departed for ever." So going on for 20 years in this lodge, they must know that in the natural order of things others must come up and take their places, and that they would do so with renewed vigour, and bring fresh life blood into the management of their institutions. But, in speaking of the founders of the Humber Lodge, let him remind them again of the time which had been alluded to by previous speakers, when Bros. Feetam and Stark were giants in Masonry, and worked hardly and assiduously in the cause; and it was because they did so that in the present day they could now rejoice at seeing so glorious and prosperous a lodge as that under the auspices of which they were now assembled. Let them impress upon the world that Masonry was something more than mere attention to the knife-and-fork degree. The principles were such as he admired, and which had been so well set forth by his worthy friend, the present Mayor; and, though by some they might be perverted, he would say, as in "Macbeth,"

"Angels are bright still, though the brightest fell."

And they might rely upon it that if they carried out aright the principles of Masonry they would make them better men, and conduce to form a monument to charity, love, and virtue, more enduring than the monuments of Egypt. Might the memories of the founders and Past Masters ever remain green in the recollection of all present. Bro. Keyworth, P.M., then proposed "The Sister Lodges," for which Bro. Emes, W.M. of the Minerva, and Bro. Garforth, W.M. of the Kingston lodges returned thanks. Bro. Wilson next gave "The Visiting Brethren;" the toast being heartily received, and acknowledged by Bro. Thomas Oates, P.G.O., W.M. of the Alexandra Lodge, 1511, (Hornsea); Bro. Groves, P.M. 951; and Bro. Penny, P.M. 80. Bro. Middleton then proposed "The Ladies," for whom Bro. Voight gallantly responded, and this concluded the official list. Bro. Alfred W. Ansell officiated most ably as director of the ceremonies, and the proceedings were characterised by the utmost harmony and good feeling throughout.

SIDMOUTH.—Lodge Perseverance (No. 164).—On Wednesday, the 6th inst., the annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, London Hotel, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect. The lodge having been opened, the following brethren were present: Bros. W. Hine Haycock, W.M.; J. Albert Orchard, P.G. Steward, I.P.M.; Henry Dawe, S.W.; W. M. Mitchell, J.W.; J. Barber, S.D.; W. Carter, J.D.; George Beard, Sec.; R. Perryman, I.G.; T. H. Paul, Tyler; B. T. Hodge, 30, P.M., P.P.G.D., Treasurer; J. W. Keyworth, P.P.G., J.W.; W. Pile, P.M.; J. Northcott, P.M.; W. Northcott; F. Halse; W. C. Daniels; S. Cummings; W. Prout; J. Godfrey. Visitors: Bros. G. Evans, P.M. 1181; W. H. Barker, P.M. 847; P. G. Steward; J. Sutton, P.M. 847; J. Murch, P.M. 847; Jno. Hussey, J.W. 847; H. Hook, 847; J. Read, 847; F. Horspool, W.M. 1254; F. H. H. Orchard, 372. The proceedings commenced by Mr. William Thomas Orchard being admitted and initiated in ancient form by the W.M. (Bro. W. Hine Haycock), who performed that most interesting ceremony in a beautifully impressive and able manner; at the conclusion of the initiation the W.M. vacated the chair, and was succeeded by Bro. Installing Master Hodge. The lodge was then opened in the second degree and the brethren retired for the purpose of forming a procession which, when formed, re-entered the lodge, and the W.M. elect, Bro. Henry Dawe, was presented to the Installing Master by Bro. Orchard, I.P.M., for installation, after which the grand ceremony of placing that Bro. in the chair of King Solomon was performed with that ease and perfection which has justly won for Bro. Hodge the proud position he holds as a worker of Craft Masonry. Bro. H.

Dawe, having been duly proclaimed and saluted in the various degrees, at length, appointed the following brethren as his officers: Bros. W. Hine Haycock, I.P.M.; W. M. Mitchell, S.W.; J. Barber, J.W.; G. Beard, Secretary; W. Carter, S.D.; W. Prout, J.D.; R. Perryman, I.G.; S. Wheaton and F. Halse, Stewards; T. H. Paul, Tyler. Bro. P. M. Hodge, as Treasurer, then read a letter received from the I.P.M., Bro. Hine Haycock, who expressed his desire to present some token to the lodge in commemoration of the year of his office, and as an acknowledgment of the kindness received by him from the brethren during that period, and stated that it was his intention, if acceptable to the brethren, to present a chair similar to the handsome oak W.M. and Warden's chairs of the lodge, for the use of the I.P.M. This was most warmly accepted, and a vote of thanks passed to the liberal donor. The lodge was then closed in form, and the brethren adjourned to the large ball room of the London Hotel, where a most sumptuous banquet was provided by Bro. W. J. Rogers. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured, some pleasant harmony followed, and a most agreeable and delightful evening spent. This was one of the most successful meetings that has taken place in this old lodge for many years.

BERKELEY.—Royal Lodge of Faith and Friendship (No. 270).—The installation meeting and eighty-ninth anniversary of this old lodge took place at the Berkeley Arms Hotel, on Monday, the 4th inst. The officers present were Bros. Daniel Besley, W.M.; John Gamble, S.W., and W.M. elect; John Blossome, J.W.; Captain Blossome, R.N., Secretary and Treasurer; Thomas Morse, S.D.; J. Iles, J.D.; Wm. Fairley, I.G.; J. Merrett, Tyler, and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bro. J. Gamble having been presented, a board of Installed Masters was formed, and he was duly installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. Henry Jeffs, P.M., and Worshipful Master of 493, P. Prov. G.J.W. of Gloucestershire, and Past Preceptor of Lodge of Instruction, No. 389, in such an able and impressive manner, as to elicit the hearty applause of all the brethren present. The W.M. having been saluted according to ancient custom, invested his officers, viz.:—Bros. D. Besley, I.P.M.; J. Blossome, S.W.; Thomas Morse, J.W.; Captain Blossome, Treasurer and Secretary; J. Iles, S.D.; W. P. Hadley, J.D.; E. Gregory, D.C.; F. Godwin, I.G.; and J. Merrett, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a very good banquet, provided by the worthy host, Mr. W. Dunningham. The regular toasts were given, both loyal and Masonic, and a very happy evening was spent in harmony and brotherly love.

WIGTON.—St. John's Lodge (No. 327).—On Monday, 28th ult., the brethren of this old lodge met to celebrate the anniversary of St. John the Evangelist. The lodge was opened at "High Twelve," by Bro. Bowman, W.M., after which the Worshipful Master for the ensuing twelve months was duly installed by Bro. Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W., in a most masterly and impressive manner, in the presence of a full lodge. After the W.M. had been duly installed and properly received by the brethren, he invested his officers as follows:—Bros. John Bowman, Immediate Past Master; W. H. Hoodless, S.W.; Joseph Lazonby, J.W.; the Rev. C. H. Gem, Chaplain; H. Bewes, P.M. Treasurer; Robinson, Secretary; T. Ross, S.D.; W. J. Carrick, J.D.; R. Twentyman, I.G.; C. Y. Wright, S.S.; Isaac Pattinson, J.S.; T. Richardson, Tyler. Bro. W. J. Carrick was also invested by the W.M. as Organist of the lodge. The newly elected Worshipful Master then closed the lodge through the three degrees, and the brethren separated. The banquet was, as usual, provided at the close of the formal business of the lodge, to which on this occasion the brethren were invited. It was provided by Mrs. Martin, of the Lion and Lamb Inn, and was substantial and well served. The chair was taken by Bro. McMechan, W.M., supported by Bros. Lemon, P.M., P.G.T.; Bowman, P.M.; Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W.; the Rev. C. H. Gem, P.S.W.; Gardiner, P.M.; W. H. Leuthwaite, W.M., P.G.S. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. W. H. Hoodless (in the vice-chair); Gate, P.M., P. Prov. G.R.; Pearson, P.M.; T. Richardson, P.M.; T. Ross, S.D.; Wright, S.S.; Isaac Pattinson, J.S.; R. Twentyman, I.G. On the removal of the cloth, the chairman gave "The Queen," followed by the toast of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," both toasts being responded to with enthusiasm, and followed by appropriate music. The next toast was that of "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, K.G.; the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," given also by the chairman, who then gave "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lord Bective; his Deputy, Bro. Whitwell, M.P., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers." To this toast Bros. Lemon, P.G.T.; Porter, P.G.S.W.; Gate, P. Prov. G.R.; and T. Richardson, P. Prov. J.D.; responded. The toast of the "Newly Installed W.M., Bro. McMechan," was proposed by Bro. Bowman, P.M., and responded to by Bro. McMechan, who proposed the health of "The I.P.M., Bro. Bowman." Bro. Lemon proposed "The Installing Master, Bro. Porter, P.M.," to which Bro. Porter responded. "The Officers of the Lodge" was proposed by the chairman, and responded to by the various brethren who hold office. The vice-chairman proposed "The Visiting Brethren," which was replied to by Bros. the Rev. C. H. Gem, Gardiner, and Leuthwaite. Bro. Lazonby proposed "The Masonic Charities," and Bro. Ross "The Bonny Lassies of Cumberland," to which Bro. R. Twentyman responded. The chairman proposed "The Absent Brethren, and to the memories of those deceased during the year," mentioning the names of Bros. G. Shannon and G. Garrick, as those removed at a distance, and the names of Bros. John Norman Hodgson and Joseph Martin (late Tyler), as those dead within the past twelve months." The health of Bro. Foster having been proposed in complimentary terms by Bro. Lemon, and the health of Bro. R. H. Watson, C.E., of Dundraw, having been given by the chairman and heartily received, the Tyler's Toast, "To all 'Poor and Distressed Masons'" was proposed by Bro. W. J. Carrick, and the meeting afterwards broke up, after most agreeable proceedings, at about eight o'clock. During the evening an interesting communication, by telegram, was received from Bro. G. Shannon, M.D., P.M., who is in London, waiting of a ship being ready for him to sail to Australia, and who had to leave Wigtown owing to ill-health. Bro. Shannon sent his congratulations to Bro. McMechan, W.M., and hearty good wishes to all brethren present, and said that he continued to improve in health. The telegram from Bro. Shannon, and the news it contained, was received with many manifestations of pleasure by the brethren. During the evening a telegram was sent from the W.M. of Wigtown Lodge to the Ulverston Lodge (who met on the same evening), expressing hearty good wishes. The agreeableness of the afternoon's proceedings was very much enhanced by the songs sung by various of the brethren, who were accompanied with much taste by Bro. Carrick (Organist of the lodge), and Bro. Leuthwaite, who also presided over the harmonium during the ceremonies of the lodge, and added much to the impressiveness of the service through which the Installing Master, the Worshipful Master, and his officers went.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Loyal Lodge of Industry (No. 421).—The annual installation of W.M. was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday last, Bro. H. W. Higgins, W.M., in the chair. Bros. Swingburn and Mountjoy were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. Bro. Robert Snow was duly presented and installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Higgins in a most satisfactory way. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following officers:—Bros. R. Louis Ricard, S.W.; Frederick Day, J.W.; Hugh Gawthrop, Chaplain; George Huxtable, S.D.; Henry Hitchcock, J.D.; Richard Paige, I.G.; I. K. Kingdon, Treasurer; J. Kingdon, Secretary; John Bickell, M.C.; Richard Kingdon, Tyler. The brethren afterwards adjourned, at 5 p.m., to partake of their annual banquet at the Unicorn Hotel. Bro. W. Cole (in the absence of the W.M. through domestic affliction) took the chair. Most of the members of the lodge were present, and the visiting brethren included Bros. Toller, W.M. Barnstable Lodge; Rev. R. Russell, Secretary Bideford Lodge; — Brewer, Barnstable; and others. The banquet was most efficiently served, and gave complete satisfaction. The usual Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

MANCHESTER.—Humphrey Chetham Lodge (No. 645).—The installation and festival of St. John was held on the 6th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Cooper Street. The lodge was opened at 4 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. John Duffield, P. Prov. G. S. of W., assisted by his officers. The usual routine business was performed, and the only ceremony being the installation of Master, the chair was assumed by Bro. Thos. Entwistle, P. Prov. G. S. of W., P.M. 221. The W.M. elect, Bro. C. Fitzgerald Matier, P.G.S.W. Greece, G. Steward Scotland, P. Prov. G. J. W. Aberdeenshire, &c., was presented for the benefit of installation. Having assented to the ancient charges, the brethren below the chair retired, and Bro. Matier was installed into the Oriental chair of K.S., with the customary ceremonies. On their return to the lodge, the brethren saluted the newly-installed W.M. in the three degrees, after which the following officers were appointed and invested: Bros. Dr. Barlow, S.W.; Lees, J.W.; Duffield, Treasurer; G. F. Fruman, Secretary; William C. Gilles, S.D.; Harrop, J.D.; S. Kelly, I.G.; J. McCulloch, S.S.; and Marshall, as Tyler. The address to the W.M. was given by Bro. Entwistle; that to the Wardens by Bro. Beresford, P. Prov. G. D. Cheshire; and the concluding address to the brethren generally, by Bro. J. A. Birch, Prov. G.J.W. Two gentlemen were proposed for initiation. Hearty good wishes were then given, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony with solemn prayer. The brethren then proceeded to banquet, at which the newly-installed W.M. presided, supported by the following distinguished visitors and members of the lodge: Bros. J. M. Wike, P.G.D. England; J. L. Hine, P.P.G.S.W.; J. A. Birch, P.G.J.W.; G. P. Brockbank, P.P.G.S.D.; F. Entwistle, P.P.G.S. of W.; Beresford, P.P.G.D., Cheshire; H. J. Stephenson, P.M. 999; J. E. Hall, W.M. Ashbury Lodge; and the following Past Masters of the lodge: Bros. Duffield, Col. Fowler, Goetz, and Ashton; among the other brethren we noticed Bros. Blackburn, Dippie, Barron, Setten, Friedlander, 1009; Pierpont, Richardson, and others. Letters of apology were read from Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England; W. Romaine Callender, M.P., D.P.G.M., and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and heartily responded to, by the brethren. The evening was enlivened by several songs, among which we can highly praise those by Bro. Friedlander. The brethren separated at an early hour, full of zeal for the coming year.

LLANELLY.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 671).—On Monday, January 4, 1875, the ceremony of installing the Worshipful Master of the Prince of Wales Lodge for the ensuing year, took place at the Masonic Hall, Llanelly. The W.M. elect was Bro. William Stamer Thompson, S.W.; the high esteem in which he is held being evinced by a large gathering of the brethren. Bro. Thompson was presented for installation by the R.W. the Prov. G.M., Major Lloyd Philipps; the ceremony being performed in a most able and impressive manner by the retiring W.M., Bro. J. A. Brown, P.M., P.G.W. At the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. appointed his officers for the ensuing year. A banquet subsequently took place in the lodge-room, which was also well attended. The visitors to the lodge on this occasion were numerous. In addition to the R.W. the Prov. G.M., Major Lloyd Philipps, and the R.W.

the Deputy Prov. G.M., the Rev. Latimer Jones, there were present Bros. E. J. Morris, D.P.G.M. [Eastern] Division of South Wales; Charles Bath, P. Prov. G.W.; James Hall, P. Prov. G.W.; W. J. Rees, S.D. of Talbot Lodge, Swansea; Stradling, W.M. Milford Lodge, and P.G. Chaplain; and W. J. Morgan, P.M., St. Peter's Lodge, Carmarthen, P. Prov. G.W. The speakers dwelt eloquently upon the fact that Freemasonry is prospering here and elsewhere. Among the toasts was one specially characteristic of the Order, to wit, "Masonic Charities," which was fitly proposed by Bro. Beavan Phillips, Charity Steward and Charity Commissioner for the Province. It was seconded in an able speech by Bro. Morris, of Swansea, Charity Commissioner for the adjoining Province. It is pleasant to hear that a considerable sum is already collected and promised for the charities; and Llanelly is stated to have come forward handsomely. An agreeable evening was spent, which as usual lost nothing by the catering of that good host and Brother, Captain Eynon. The proceedings closed with the time-honoured toast of the Tyler.

FARNWORTH.—Earl Ellesmere Lodge (No. 678).—The installation meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Church Inn, Farnworth, on Wednesday, the 6th January, to instal the W.M. elect. Bro. Walter Pennington, W.M., opened the lodge at 4 p.m., after the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The W.M. elect, Bro. Thos. Holmes, was installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. William Goodacre, P. Prov. G.P. for Cheshire. The ceremony was gone through in a most impressive manner, and afforded great gratification to the brethren assembled. The Worshipful Master appointed the following brethren as officers of the lodge, and they were duly installed with the insignia of their offices:—Bros. Thomas Laycock, S.W.; T. Entwistle, J.W.; R. Warburton, P.M. Treasurer; Robert Whittaker, Prov. G.D.C. Secretary; T. Greenhalgh, S.D.; D. A. Elliott, J.D.; Albert Martin, I.G.; Pickford and Shaw, Stewards; Ralph Brooks, Tyler. After the installation, three candidates for initiation were proposed, and the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Amongst those present were Past Masters Bros. Barrow, Warburton, Whittaker, Blackhurst, Kirkman, Palmer, Pennington; also visiting brethren Bros. Duckworth, Prov. Assistant G.D.C.; John Wild, W.M. elect 146; B. Pilling, W.M. elect 350; and others. The usual Masonic toasts were duly proposed and honoured. Bro. Whittaker, P.M., leading, in his masterly style. Bros. Palmer, Pendlebury, Pilling, and Laycock, contributed very much to the harmony of the evening by giving some capital songs. Bro. Thomas Laycock, S.W., presented the lodge with handsome Masonic candles, purchased from Bro. Geo. Kenning's establishment, Little Britain, London.

DOUGLAS (ISLE OF MAN).—Tynwald Lodge (No. 1242).—The annual meeting in connection with the installation of the W.M. of the Tynwald Lodge, and the investiture of officers, took place at the Lodge Rooms, St. James's Hall, on Monday week. The brethren, to the number of about 35, assembled at three o'clock, and after the transaction of some formal business, the retiring W.M., Bro. Quinney, vacated the chair in favour of Bro. John A. Brown, P.M., who had undertaken the duties of Installing Master. After the Master Masons had retired, the lodge was opened in the Past Master's degree, and the new W.M., Bro. T. M. Cowley, who filled the chair of S.W. during the past year, was called into the lodge-room and duly installed into the chair of K.S., the Past Masters present being Bros. J. A. Brown; T. Bawden; E. W. Stocker; J. J. Harwood; S. Webb; J. Lambert; J. Quinney; and E. Munday. This part of the ceremony being over, the lodge was lowered, and the W.M. duly proclaimed in the various degrees. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. C. Kennaugh, S.W.; F. J. Johnson, J.W.; W. L. Clarke, P.M., Treasurer; Rev. W. T. Hobson, Chaplain; R. Smith, Organist; J. J. Edwards, Secretary; S. J. Harris, S.D.; T. Cowin, J.D.; R. Swinnerton, I.G.; and Bro. Long, Tyler. After the ceremony, the brethren adjourned to the Bowling Green Hotel, where they sat down to a splendid banquet, served in Bro. Handley's best style. After dessert had been brought in, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and a right merry evening spent. Masonic songs were sung by Bros. James Brown and R. Swinnerton, and a Masonic reading was given by Bro. J. J. Harwood, P.M. During the evening a beautiful Past Master's gold jewel was presented to the retiring W.M., J. Quinney. It bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. John Quinney by the brethren of the Tynwald Lodge (No. 1242) as a token of esteem, and in appreciation of his proficiency as W.M. 1242; December, 1874." Secretary's silver jewels were also presented to Bros. W. M. Stewart and F. J. Johnson, as a mark of appreciation of their services to the lodge in the capacity of Secretary. Bro. the Rev. W. T. Hobson, in responding to the toast of his health, which was proposed by Bro. J. A. Fulton, said that he was perfectly satisfied, before he became a Mason, that Freemasonry was an institution of such a nature that no Christian man or Christian minister need shrink from joining it; and what he had seen since he became a member of the Order had confirmed him in that opinion. So long as the "Great Book of Books" was open before them as the foundation of the moral teachings of the Order, and so long as Faith, Hope, and Charity, were its leading principles, so long would the Order, to a great extent, correspond with Christianity itself. The brethren separated shortly after 11 o'clock, after spending a pleasant evening. During the evening, the health of Bro. J. A. Brown, P.M., the Installing Master, was also drunk, Bro. Stocker, P.M., observing that he had been a Past Master for nearly 15 years, and had been present at many installations in London and elsewhere, but he had never seen the installation ceremony done so well as Bro. Brown had done it that evening.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington, and was numerously attended. Bros. Koch, W.M.; Everett, S.W.; Gardner, J.W.; Higgins, Acting S.D.; Walls, acting J.D.; Kewes, I.G.; Mann, I.P.M.; Page, P.M.; Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Webb, W.S.; Heyward, D.C. The W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Cruse and Gibson to the sublime degree of M.M., and initiated Mr. W. Fallow into the Mysteries of the Craft. The ballot was then taken for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. Gardner was by the unanimous vote of the lodge elected to that high and honourable position. The S.W. having been just elected W.M. of another lodge, was not eligible for the distinction, except by special dispensation from Grand Lodge, and moreover he had gracefully retired in favour of the J.W. Bro. Gardner returned thanks for the honour awarded him, and said he trusted that he should discharge the duties of the position to the satisfaction of the members, and that no effort would be wanting on his part to enhance the comfort and funds of the lodge, of which he was one of the founders, and which he was proud to see had in so short a time arrived at so high and flourishing a condition. Bro. Mann proposed and Bro. Page seconded that a P.M.'s jewel should be presented at the next meeting to Bro. Koch, W.M., for his attention to the duties of his position, and the ability displayed by him during his year of office. This resolution was unanimously carried. Bro. Page, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Longstaff, as Tyler, had the same honour awarded to him. Bros. Walls, Speedy and Stokes were elected Auditors. The W.M. appointed Bro. W. A. Ellis to the vacant post of Organist. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, catered for by Bro. Pope. Among the visitors present were representatives of the following lodges: Bros. Wright, W.M. Southern Star; Arnold, W.M. Strong Man; Myers, W.M. Lily of Richmond; Scott, J.W. Albion; Wilson, S.D. Excelsior; Palmer, J.D. Domestic. The usual loyal and Craft toasts were given from the chair, and responded to with excellent force by the brethren. Bros. Walls and Ellis gave one verse of the "National Anthem," and "God Bless the Prince of Wales." "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Mann and responded to, and Bro. Webb having contributed a humorous song, the W.M. replied at length, and in the course of his speech he stated that he felt pleased at the compliment paid him, but that he was obliged to state that through ill health and pressure of business, of several of the officers of the lodge, who were consequently prevented from attending, he had had to work under the greatest of difficulties, which had rendered the duties of the chair not so pleasant or easy as they ought otherwise to have been, and that he could not let the opportunity pass without recording his thanks to some of the junior members of the lodge, who had kindly and with ability assisted him throughout his arduous year of office. Bro. Sargood having sang a "buffo" song, the toast of "The Initiate" was given, received and responded to by Bro. Fallow in a neat and appropriate speech. Bro. Palmer sang "Wapping Old Stairs," Bro. Walls "Come into the Garden, Maud," and Bro. Wilson contributed a reading upon the theme of "Tobacco," all of which effusions gave apparent satisfaction to the brethren. The "Visitors" toast followed, and was severally responded to. Bro. J. Wright in particular made an excellent and amusing reply. "The Health of the W.M. elect" was given, and replied to by Bro. Gardner, who said in the course of his remarks that although the W.M. had stated that the chair of K.S. was not an easy one to fill, he was not to be deterred or disheartened thereby, but that it was his intention to render it a most pleasant one, as far as he personally was concerned, and he hoped that the members of the lodge would assist him in that endeavour. The Tyler's Toast terminated the proceedings.

GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—This lodge met on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, City. Bro. Nathan Bryant Headon, W.M., presiding. There were also present, Bros. Jas. Stevens, P.M.; Jno. Seex, J.W.; R. Stanway, J. Blackie, W. H. Catchpole, T. Preston, E. Moody, J. Freeman, J. Hamer, C. Taylor, T. Robinson, C. Stuart Barker, jun., J. Boulton, G. S. Elliot, S. Browne, A. T. Rolfe, J. Thompson, E. Cox, W. F. Kibble, W. Baber, P. Tompkins, R. Frudick, W. H. Hook, J. Tullidge, G. Page, J. Archer, J. D. Moore, J. Bumpus, W. Macqueen, W. Middleton, J. Phillips, J. W. Colmer, F. T. Keeble, F. W. Potts, C. H. Burrows, E. H. Davis, G. Jenkins, E. Roberts, L. Lewis, H. Tompson, J. E. Hugo, G. H. Hooper, F. Lunnis, and visitors G. Payne, W.M. 1; C. J. Bliven, 330; A. H. Tattershall, P.M. 140; C. W. Noehmer, P.M. 186; G. H. Canbridge, J.D. 15; W. Martin, 205; W. B. Wallace, 127; J. Allen, S.W. 1297; G. F. Wilson, 569; Sidney Spencer, 192; E. M. Haigh, P.M. 29; S. Gammon, W.M. 206; W. Worrell, P.M. 766; S. Crane, S.W. 933; H. Daw, 145; and C. E. Soppett, 55. The lodge was called for two o'clock, but notwithstanding that early hour, the brethren had assembled in large numbers, and the work was at once proceeded with. The lodge was opened with promptitude, and after the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the following ceremonies were performed:—Raisings, Bros. Bumpus, Thompson, Cox, and Rolfe; Passings, Bros. Potter, Burrows, and Davis; and Initiations, Messrs. Headon, Stamp, and Davis. Bro. James Stevens, P.M., did the passings. The lodge was in session above five hours, great care being taken with the execution of the work, and the candidates being taken separately. Fifty guineas were voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the lodge was closed after Bro. Jas. Stevens had appealed to the brethren to contribute a trifle individually to a case of great distress. A banquet followed, which was equal in quality, quantity, and attendance, to any of Bro. Sidney Spencer's previous efforts, and at its conclusion, the W.M. proposed the loyal and Masonic toasts. In giving the toast of "The Visitors," he remarked that besides several distinguished brethren of home lodges being present, there was amongst the company a brother from New York, whom he was sure they would all be delighted to hail. Bro. Gammon, W.M. No. 206, responded for the English brethren; and in replying for himself Bro. Bliven said: I thank you for the compliment which you pay me this evening as the representative of American Freemasonry. I did not come here to-night for the purpose of being toasted; I came here to see how Englishmen made Masons; and I must confess that I have been much pleased and deeply interested in the forms and ceremonies of three degrees which I witnessed to day. I can only hope, worshipful sir and brethren, for the continued success and prosperity of your young lodge—young in years, but old, I should judge, in its material; and I only hope that the sublime principles of Freemasonry may be impressed deeply upon the minds of all the brethren of the Great City Lodge (Hear, hear). Bro. James Stevens, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M.," whom he described as a Master that was fully deserving of all praise, without stepping beyond the hard-and-fast line of absolute truth—a brother who had proved himself capable of performing the duties of his office in a manner most creditable to any member of the Craft. Without going over all the compliments which had been bestowed on W. Masters in all lodges, some of which were well deserved, while others were only partially merited, he could say, without exaggerating in the slightest degree, that no lodge could have a better exponent of the principles of Freemasonry than the present occupant of the chair of the Great City Lodge, who had studied to make himself a theoretical Mason, as far as the ritual was concerned, and had succeeded in so doing by rendering the ceremonies to the satisfaction of the brethren; and also had in the outer world carried the principles of Freemasonry into practical effect. The W.M., after saying that he did the best he could do, informed the brethren that being but a young Mason he could hardly expect to be a shining light, but if he succeeded in giving satisfaction to the brethren, whether in lodge or at the banquet-table, he should be more than rewarded for any trouble he had taken. The occupation of the chair of such a lodge as the Great City was really a great undertaking, and, where a man who, like himself, was very much occupied in business, and able to give but little attention to Masonic forms, was deserving of consideration before he engaged in it. When he went into the chair that evening the work was so heavy that he felt at its commencement nearly appalled; but when he had encountered it, and had brushed off some of the cobwebs which hung about his memory, he got at his work with a little confidence, and it was very pleasing, now that his duties in lodge were over for the day, to find that what he had done was so satisfactory. He was much gratified to see so many visitors, and he could assure the brethren that while he remained in the chair of this lodge he should do everything he possibly could to render the lodge hospitable to brethren of other lodges. (Hear, hear.) In giving the toast of "The Initiates," the W.M. said that while the W.M. of a lodge had to endure the agony of his health being proposed at every meeting while he was president, it could only happen to the initiates but once. (Laughter.) He then stated that it was peculiarly gratifying to him to have had the duty of initiating his own brother into the Order; and said that the other two initiates, whom he had also known for many years, ought to have been initiated years ago, for they had, in fact, been Freemasons all their lives without knowing it. The Great City Lodge had adopted them, and would have the pleasure of finding them, by-and-bye, the right sort of men to belong to the Craft. Bro. Headon, in the course of his remarks in acknowledging the toast, observed that the way in which he had witnessed the W.M.'s health proposed and drunk that evening encouraged him to hope that he might in time himself get round the table to the same post of honour. Bro. James Stevens responded to the toast of "The I.P.M.," and after thanking the brethren for their responding to the toast, and their acknowledgments of the services he had performed for the lodge—which he would not be so bashful as to say were wholly unmerited—referred to the readiness with which the brethren had answered to his call on them for charity. They had at his request parted with small sums of money upon faith alone—the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Their faith had been exemplified in the fact that he had only had to ask, thank God, in a good cause! (though they did not know it at the time) and his request was immediately granted. He could promise them that if ever he asked for similar assistance again, it would only be in a cause which was proper, right and good. If any brother, after that statement, wished to have his shilling back again, he (Bro. Stevens) would be happy to return it. He did not generally like the practice of passing the hat round unless there was something substantially good connected with the case. He would now tell them more about the case they had subscribed to than they knew before. Three guineas had already been subscribed without the contributors knowing for whom it was intended. That was an evidence of faith in their I.P.M., who told them that he wanted a pair of boots, and some articles of clothing, and he should leave it to the generosity of the individual brethren now to supplement the amount already subscribed. It was wanted for a poor lady who lost her husband some time ago, and who had previously been assisted by this lodge as well as by the lodge to which her husband belonged. She had got into such a state of penury that she had had great difficulty in keeping herself and children from absolute starvation, and was at the present moment in great want. Her husband was a Devonshire brother. She had now a child lying dead, for whom she had no means of providing burial. She had a daughter elected into the Infant Orphan Asylum, through the kindness of the W.M. (Bro. Headon), and that child could not at present go there for want of boots and clothing. If any of the brethren wanted their shillings back now they might have them. He had told them they might rely on the genuineness of the case, and here it was. This good lady—and good lady she was, for a more cheerful body under her circumstances, a more hopeful woman, a more ladylike woman he had never had an opportunity of meeting; she evidently belonged to that walk in society which her late husband was well capable of adorning, and adorned when he was in it—and was now reduced to a state of penury. He was happy to say the brethren might now go home with the satisfactory reflection that they had provided a widow with the means of burying one child, and given another child the means of going before the Committee of the Female Orphan Asylum. The W.M. supplemented these observations by saying that the deceased had insured his life in the Norwich Union and the European; but he sold his policy in the former, and the latter, it was known, failed. One child—Agnes—had been got into a home at Starcross; one would be got into the Infant Orphan Asylum; and the one they were going to try to get into the Masonic Girls' School died yesterday (the 8th inst.). When he got home that evening very late, just as he was going to bed, the mother called on him—and she could not come sooner, for she had not the boots to come in—to know what she was to do to bury this child.—(A further subscription was then made, and £7 in all was collected).—Bro. Seex replied for "The Officers," and the brethren shortly afterwards separated. Under the direction of Bro. W. Hook, Organist, a selection of music was performed during the evening by the Misses May and Florence Woodville, Madame Caslone, and Mr. Morgan.

WIGTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 327).—The companions of the Holy Royal Arch Chapter of St. John's, 327, Wigton, held a chapter on Friday, the 1st inst., when four brethren were exalted to the supreme degree, Comp. Banbridge acting as Z. There was a very large chapter, and at the close of the proceedings, 22 sat down to dinner. Comp. Porter, Z., presided, and Comp. Gate, P.Z., &c., in the vice-chair.

TIVERTON.—St. Peter's Chapter (No. 1125).—A quarterly convocation was held at the Masonic Hall, on the evening of Wednesday, the 16th inst., the Principal's chair being occupied by E. Comps. James Mills, P. Prov. G.D.C., Z.; Walter, H. Reed, P.Z., as H.; Henry Davey, J. The retiring Z. was unanimously re-elected for the year ensuing, and Ex. Comp. Davey having been duly elected as H., and Comp. T. B. Patterson as J., they were duly installed. The following officers were also elected and invested. W. E. Williams, S.E.; W. H. Reed, jun., S.N.; Thos. Parkhouse, P.S., Treas.; H. Melhuish, S.A.S.; John B. Crabb, J.A.S.; Wm. Bartlett, and Joseph Searle, Stewards; Edw. Coleby, M.C.; A. Andrews, Organist; John Patey, Janitor. A handsome gold P.Z. jewel was presented to E. Comp. Mills, in recognition of the important services rendered by him on the establishment of the chapter. Two brethren of St. Peter's Lodge, No. 1125, having been proposed for exaltation, the chapter was closed.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 2nd inst., at Bro. Gosden's, Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street. The W.M., Bro. W. Worrell, presided, and there were also present, Bros. R. Berridge, S.W.; Thomas W. White, J.W.; Edward Moody, I.G.; Thos. Meggy, P.M., Treasurer; James Stevens, P.M.; W. Wigginton, Registrar; W. P. Collins, J.D.; G. Yaxley, Steward; F. H. Cozens, Organist; W. Johnston; W. Bell; G. W. Verry; J. Close; J. K. Pitt; H. F. Partridge; and a visitor, Bro. T. Poore, W.M. 139. Bro. James Stevens, P.M., advanced Bros. Williams, Lakeham, Cook, and Atkins, and there being no further business before the lodge, the brethren adjourned to supper. The customary toasts were proposed and honoured, and the brethren enjoyed some excellent singing, which was given without stint by Bros. James Stevens, Cozens, Meggy, Bell, Williams, and Moody. All the brethren expressed themselves highly delighted with the evening's work and the evening's pleasure.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Conclave (No. 55).—An assembly of the Knights attached to the Liverpool Conclave, No. 55, of the Masonic Order of the Knights of Rome, and of the Red Cross of Constantine, was held on Monday evening at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool. Em. Sir Knight Thomas Clark, M.P.S., occupied the throne, and Sir Knight W. Doyle, the position of V.E., and there was a numerous attendance of the Knights of the Conclave. There were no fewer than ten candidates on the circular for installation and joining, which shows that the Premier Conclave in Liverpool is in a very flourishing condition. The assembled knights subsequently sat down to a sumptuous repast, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

GLASGOW.

LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The members of this lodge met in their hall, at 213, Buchanan-street, on 29th ult., for the purpose of installing the office-bearers elected for the ensuing year. The work of the ceremonial was performed by Bro. A. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary, who having first conferred upon the new R.W.M. (Bro. Bell) the Installed Master's Degree, proceeded to install the other office-bearers to their respective offices. This he did in a markedly impressive manner, assisted by the P.M. (Bro. Thomas Fletcher), by whom each was in turn invested with the jewel of his office. The following is the revised list for the current year:—Bros. William Bell, R.W.M.; Thomas Fletcher, P.M.; D. M. Neilson, D.M.; John Whyte, S.M.; John D. Young, S.W.; David Horne, J.W.; Robt. B. Daleffell, Treasurer; John Dick, Secretary; Peter Brownlie, S.D.; John Reid, J.D.; Jas. Ritchie, Architect; David Lindsay, Chaplain; Robt. Craig, Bible-Bearer; Charles McFarlane, Director of Music; Thos. A. Tennent, Jeweller; John Wilson, Grand Marshal; Jas. Anderson, Senior Steward; Jas. F. Pollock, Junior Steward; James Duthie, Junior Steward; Angus Cameron, I.G.; John Wright, G.G.; R. D. Samuels, P.S. In the evening the lodge celebrated its 817th anniversary in the Union Hotel Dunlop-street, when about seventy, including a few visiting brethren, sat down to a recherche dinner, purveyed in first-class style by "mine host," Bro. Whyte. The chair was occupied by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell, who was supported to right and left by Bro. Fletcher, P.M.; Bro. Robert Craig, P.M.; Bro. Jno. Baird, P.M.; Bro. James McMillan, P.M.; Bro. A. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary; Bro. R. McDougall, R.W.M. 553; Bro. Rev. Robt. Thomson; Bro. John Dick, Secretary 34, and others. Bro. Neilson, D.M., and Bro. John D. Young, S.W., officiated as croupiers. Dinner having been disposed of, the usual loyal toasts were given from the chair, and duly responded to. The chairman next gave "The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland," which was also pledged with enthusiasm and all the honours, the toast being acknowledged, on behalf of England, by Bro. W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and, on that of Scotland, by Bro. John Baird. The next toast, also from the chair, was "The Provincial Lodge of Glasgow, and the Benevolent Fund." It was coupled with the name of Bro. Baird, who returned thanks on behalf of the W.P.C.M., Bro. Neilson and the other office-bearers. He was glad to state that the Provincial Grand Lodge was at present in a most flourishing state. In fact, he was quite satisfied that there was not another in Scotland more so. All the lodges in the province were healthy, and in first-rate working condition. After the "Army, Navy, and Reserved Forces" had been duly honoured, Bro. Rev. R. Thomson proposed the "Lord Provost, Councillors, and Magistrates of Glasgow." In commending the toast to the acceptance of the company, he referred to the fact that the Lord Provost was a recently made member of this lodge, and he thought the brethren ought to be highly gratified at his lordship selecting St. John's (No. 34) to be made, passed, and raised in. In briefly touching upon what the Corporation of Glasgow had done in the direction of City improvements, opening up and rooting out dens of iniquity and the like, Bro. Thomson said he had himself avowed that he would consent to be taxed double for such public benefits, and he certainly thought that to the corporation the citizens owed their encomiums and their gratitude. The toast was replied to by Bro. Robert Craig, P.M., an ex-member of the Dean of Guild Court. "The Lodge Glasgow St. John, No. 3 bis" was then proposed by Bro. Fletcher, P.M., who said he had great pleasure in doing so, and thought it had fallen into very good hands. The other Past Masters and himself could speak as to how the lodge had progressed in their times, and he hoped that during Bro. Bell's reign the same would continue. Let them, the office-bearers in particular, but give him their support and assistance and this would be the case; and the place they were presently assembled in would next year be much too small to hold them. The R.W.M., in replying to the toast, said that in the name of Lodge 34 he thanked those present for the manner in which it had been received. It could not be denied that St. John's was a very old lodge, and if they would pardon him he would refer to some of the leading points in its history since some 25 years ago. At the time of the negotiations between the lodge and the "Grand Lodge of Scotland, in 1849, William York was Grand Master, and continued so during the following year, in which their charter from Grand Lodge was got. On 9th April, 1851, the lodge joined the procession at the laying of the foundation-stone of Victoria Bridge by the Duke of Athole, Most Worshipful Grand Master, on which occasion a walking stick with a massive gold head was presented to his Grace, bearing this inscription:—"Presented to his Grace the Duke of Athole, Grand Master of Scotland, by the Glasgow Lodge of St. John, on the occasion of his laying the foundation-stone of the Victoria Bridge across the Clyde, at Stockwell-street, Glasgow, upon 9th April, 1851." Around the rim was the following:—"This staff is made of part of the oak from the original foundation of the old Stockwell Bridge, built in the reign of King David, son of Robert the Bruce, in the year 1365, and taken down in the year 1850." Our R.W.M., it will be remembered, was contractor for the bridge, as also for some of the finest buildings in Glasgow, among others, the Union Bank of Scotland, and the British Linen Bank. In 1852, our worthy Bible-Bearer, Bro. R. Craig, was elected to the chair, holding office over two years. To him succeeded Bro. David Manwell, in 1854, Bro. Robert Cruickshank in 1855, and Bro. James Cruickshank, son of the latter, in 1856. He held the chair for two years, resigning it, in 1858, to Bro. Jas. Craig, of Middleton. In 1859, Bro. David Winton was elected, and in this year Bro. Sir Archd. Alison took the chair at our annual banquet. In 1861, Bro. Robert Craig, who, as I have stated, held office in 1852-3, was again appointed R.W.M., succeeded, in the following year, by Bro. Councillor James Taylor, to whom followed, in 1864, Bro. Gavin Park, who also occupied the chair for two years. In 1866, Bro. J. B. Walker was chosen as R.W.M., and his reign marks an era in our history, he having had the distinction of being the first bona-fide member, or Master of St. John's 34, to work the three degrees. In 1867-8, the chair was occupied by Bro. Thos. Ramsay, and, in 1869-70, by Bro. John Baird. During Bro. Baird's reign, you will remember, the foundation-stone of the Albert Bridge was laid by the Earl of Dalhousie, G.M.M., on which occasion St. John's Lodge turned out in procession to the number of 120, and claimed the right of carrying the working jewels of the Grand Lodge. This privilege, however, was given to the Lodge Journeymen, [No. 8, an Edinburgh lodge. Against this Bro. Baird protested, maintaining that Grand Lodge rules only gave them the right of carrying the jewels in Edinburgh or neighbourhood. The protest was duly lodged, and he gained his case, the privilege being declared to belong to St. John's, in all time coming, of carrying the working jewels on occasions occurring within the province. In 1872, Bro. James McMillan was elected to the chair, and, in 1873, Bro. Thomas Smillie. At the beginning of the Masonic year now over—1874—Bro. Thomas Fletcher became our R.W.M., under whose auspices, as you all know, the Lord Provost of Glasgow, Bro. James Bain, was initiated in this lodge. I may state that of these fifteen Masters who have held the chair since 1849, the Great Architect of the Universe, to whom we all must bow, has seen fit to remove five, leaving ten of them still with us. I have only to add, for myself, and office-bearers, that we ask their support. We ask the support of every member of the lodge; and if it is given us, I have no fear that the Lodge St. John's will prosper in the future, as she has done in the past. "The Visiting Brethren" was the next toast, proposed in genial terms by Bro. J. D. Young, S.W., and coupled with the name of Bro. Robert McDougall, R.W.M., Lodge St. Vincent, 553. Bro. McDougall, in reply, said that on behalf of the visiting brethren, and more particularly in his own name and that of his lodge, he had great pleasure in returning thanks for the very cordial and Masonic way in which they had responded to the toast. Although he had not been much beyond the lodge to which he belonged, he had the honour of knowing many of the brethren and of claiming the friendship of some belonging to St. John's. In fact, Lodge St. Vincent was greatly indebted for its existence to brethren of the lodge whose hospitality they were to night enjoying. The first name on the application for their charter was that of Bro. John Baird, followed by those of Bros. Fletcher, Smillie, and the new R.W.M., Bro. Bell. So the members of St. John's would see that St. Vincent and they were no strangers. A chief argument in their application for a charter was the necessity of establishing a Freemason's lodge for the west end of Glasgow; and he thought it had been well proved that there did exist such a want. Since the beginning, at 3rd September last, they had entered at least fifty members. That, in itself, surely showed the necessity of a lodge in the western district. And they did not open their doors to all and sundry. Candidates were never brought forward except by their own members, to whom they were well known. In concluding, Bro. McDougall remarked that they (St. Vincent), as a young lodge, were of opinion that if they endeavoured to follow the example of St. John's, they would be following a good example—and they meant to do so. The toast was also acknowledged by Bro. Wilson, 73, Bro. McCall, 27, and Bro. A. Arrick Smith, P.M., Lodge Caledonian Railway, 354. It might not be known to many present, Bro. Smith observed, but it was the fact, that lodge 354 held a position unique in Scotland. Their charter gave them power to hold a lodge at any point whatever on the line of the Caledonian Railway. In fact, wherever the latter ran, they ran. He had much pleasure in replying on behalf of the "Flying Lodge." In proposing the toast of "The Clergy," Bro. A. McTaggart commented on the slight connection which subsisted between that body and Masonry in Scotland, as compared with that existing in England. In the latter, he said, three-fourths of the clergy of all denominations, belonged to, and were delighted and proud to belong to, Masonic Lodges; and if they got to be made Chaplains of lodges, thought it a high honour. One reason, he feared, for the difference was that our Scotch lodges had done nothing whatever to show that they were in earnest in the prosecution of true Masonic work. They were merely like children playing at marbles and leaving true Masonry alone. In the department of benevolence, for example: look what had been done by the paper, The Daily Mail. Why, probably it had done more for charity in Glasgow within the last two years than Masonry had during the last ten years. If they could have some regularly organized scheme for the furtherance of the true work of Masonry, they would have the support, not only of the Clergy, but of the gentry, nobility, and of every well-meaning person in the community. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Rev. R. Thomson, who replied. Thereafter the toast of "The Right Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. McMillan, P.M., who said that in their new R.W.M. they were getting a good man, and he hoped they would support him with the genuine feeling that ought to mark every Masonic lodge, in a way that would show them to be brothers indeed, and not in shadowy form merely. The toast having been pledged with all the honours, the chairman briefly replied. He did think that Bro. McMillan had said somewhat too much of him, but this much he (the chairman) could say—he would endeavour to do his duty at all times. He hoped that in the time to come all would go as harmoniously as in times past; and he would endeavour to copy the example of Bro. Fletcher, during whose time of office nothing but harmony had prevailed. The toast of "The Past Office-bearers" was then given by Bro. Young, S.W. He would couple it with the name of Bro. John Dick, Secretary, whose merits were known to all of them. Bro. Dick acknowledged the compliment. Hitherto, he said, the Office-bearers had worked together to do their duty; and he thought that, upon the whole, they had good reason to look back upon last year as a very successful one—while, for his own part, he felt assured that the next would be the same. The remaining toasts were "The Ladies," "The Croupiers," and the orthodox "Happy to Meet, &c.," followed by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

We have but to add that a select quadrille band was present during the evening, and played appropriate music after each toast, that the proceedings were further enlivened at intervals by the vocal talent of various brethren, and that altogether the 817th anniversary festival of St. John's was a success complete.

LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The first annual festival of this young and flourishing lodge was held on 25th ult. in the Crown-street Assembly Rooms. The occasion was one of those on which the wives and sweethearts of the brethren are not more free than welcome to join them in social relaxation, and so it occurred that there would be about fifty couples present when dancing was commenced, soon after eight o'clock. Amongst visiting brethren present were Bros. Malcolm Stark, D. Doig, and Corbett, as a deputation from Lodge St. Vincent, 553; Bro. Joseph Webster and others from Lodge St. Paul, 204 Ayr; Bro. W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), 360; &c. The brethren of 556, we may mention, appeared in their spick-and-span new clothing and jewels, and the scene, while dancing was going on, was a picturesque and animated one. The ball was brought to a close about midnight, and shortly thereafter, the company sat down to an excellent supper, purveyed by Bro. Middleton, of Trongate. Bro. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M., presided, Bro. I. B. McNaught, S.W., officiating as croupier, supported by Bros. Thomas Russell, D.M.; John McNaught, S.M.; John Howie, J.W.; John Frew, S.D.; Hugh Weir, J.D.; G. B. Yuill, Sec.; T. B. Yuill, Treas.; John Doig, B.B.; H. W. Jackson, Architect; W. J. E. Dobson, P.G.S.; James Weir, S.S.; T. Reid, J.S.; Jas. Ross, I.G.; Wm. Graham, O.G. After supper, toast and song alternately became the rule. In the former category were "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," by the chairman, replied to by Bro. G. C. H. McNaught; "The Ladies," by Dr. Russell, D.M., acknowledged on their behalf by Bro. J. Howie; "Clydesdale Lodge," by Bro. G. C. H. McNaught, and responded to by the R.W.M.; "Strangers," by Bro. J. B. McNaught, replied to by Bro. David Doig, 553; "The Chairman," by Bro. Malcolm Stark, and duly acknowledged; "The Press," by Bro. Jackson, replied to by Bro. Bickerton (Freemason); &c.

DUNFERMLINE.

LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 26).—The annual festival and installation of office-bearers of this lodge for the ensuing year was held within their lodge-room, Maygate-street, on 28th ult., in enthusiastic style. The lodge having been opened, the R.W.M., Bro. Robert Lindsay, said that as there had been no opposition to the list of office-bearers, which had been duly proposed and seconded, he declared the same to be duly elected, and the installation was proceeded with. At the close, Bro. Lindsay briefly thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him in re-electing him to the important position of R.W.M. Thereafter the brethren sat down to an excellent dinner, the R.W.M. presiding. Ample justice having been done to the substantial, the usual preliminary loyal toasts were given by the chairman and drank with all honours. The Chairman then gave "The Grand Master of Scotland," Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, they were aware, was connected with a noble ancestral line, and it might fairly be hoped that, in his hands, the cause of Scottish Masonry would be most honourably maintained. Amongst the remaining toasts were "The Three Grand Lodges," "The Health of the R.W.M., Bro. Robert Lindsay," proposed by Bro. Byers, who, in so doing, eulogised the Masonic abilities of their Master, and congratulated the lodge upon having to preside over them one so well fitted for that important office; and "The Visiting Brethren," proposed by the Chairman, and acknowledged by Bro. Romanes, of Lodge Union, 250.

DUNDEE.

LODGE OPERATIVE (No. 47).—A meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge-room on Monday, December 28, 1874, for installation of office-bearers, and to celebrate the Festival of St. John; the R.W.M., Bro. Alexander Henry, presiding. The lodge was opened in due form, when the different office-bearers were duly installed. The R.W.M., in the name of the brethren of the lodge, presented Bro. John Wilson, Junior Depute Master, with a beautiful M.M. jewel, in recognition of his services as Depute Master. The R.W.M. passed a very high eulogium on Bro. Wilson for the zealous manner in which he had performed the duties of Depute Master during a period of two years. Bro. Wilson was next presented with a valuable gem ring and locket for Mrs. Wilson. Bro. Wilson replied in very feeling terms, thanking the brethren for the mark of respect paid to him and Mrs. Wilson, and assured the brethren he could never forget their kindness. Masonry to him was a labour of love, and whatever he could do for the interest of the Order it would always be a pleasure to him to do so. The brethren were then called from labour to refreshment, and the rest of the evening spent in a most happy and harmonious manner, until the R.W.M. gave the parting toast—"Happy to meet, sorry to part," &c. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

CARLUKE.

On Monday, 28th ult., the brethren of St. John's Lodge, No. 186 (Carluke), met in Bro. Campbell's Black Bull Inn, Carluke, to celebrate St. John's Day. The following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year:—Bros. Richard Campbell, R.W.M.; Thomas Sommerville, P.M.; William Finlay, S.W.; William Gregg, J.W.; R. Dewar, Sec.; Hugh Wigson, Treas.; Alexander Hamilton, D.M.; Andrew Pearson, S.M.; Peter Edmond, S.D.; Archibald Davidson, J.D.; George Russell, S.S.; John Gregg, J.S.; Alexander Marshall, Chaplain; James Lochore, S.B.; James Weir, I.G.; Alexander Banken, Tyler. The brethren then sat down to supper—Bro. Richard Campbell, R.W.M., in the chair. The night was passed with song and sentiment.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 16, 1875.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE DUKE OF ABERCORN.

We congratulate our Irish brethren on the installation of the Lord Lieutenant, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, as Grand Master, in the place of their old and venerated chief, the Duke of Leinster. We have already expressed our opinion how wise was the choice, how judicious the selection of so distinguished and esteemed a nobleman to fill the highest post in Irish Freemasonry, and we beg to reiterate that opinion of ours to-day, and accompany it with every expression of felicitation, and every fervent wish for the progress and prosperity of Hibernian Freemasons and Hibernian Freemasonry. Indeed, it is most welcome to us, not only to hear of the most successful arrangements of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, but to read the admirable address of the Grand Master, and the able speech of Bro. Shekleton, D.G.M. While both the speeches were truly Masonic, we feel bound to thank our distinguished brother, the Lord Lieutenant, for his seasonable and forcible statement of the great and goodly aim, and the consistent teaching of our benevolent yet calumniated Order. Not very far from the spot where our noble brother was speaking, had issued, not long ago, a very bituminous pastoral, denouncing everybody and everything, and consigning practically an inoffensive order to a "locale" not usually mentioned to "ears polite." Indeed, there are few charges which have not thus lately been heaped on our head, there are few crimes of which we have not been accused by Romanists and Ritualists, and even, poh pudor, by Scotch Presbyterians and American Baptists. "Bedad," as Paddy would say, "a goodly crew to row in the same boat." And yet, here with the opening year of Light and Grace, the Queen's representative in Ireland, like the Heir Apparent to the throne in England, chivalrously casts in his lot with our anathematized fraternity, ranges himself under our banner—avows our principles, and defends our cause. Happy omen for the peaceful and constitutional progress of Irish Freemasonry, and may 1875 witness across the channel, just as with us here, the steady growth and onward march of our maligned and tolerant Order. That in Ireland, as in other countries, our avowed enemies will cease either from their secret animosity or open virulence is too much to expect, but if we are only united and true to our own principles, under such famous leaders, we need anticipate no danger, and need fear no enemy.

THE PROGRESS OF MASONIC ARCHÆOLOGY.

All Masonic students must rejoice to think how great has been the advance in archæological study and results. Notwithstanding the labours and researches of our German brethren, we in England, until about fifteen years ago, had left the fertile land of Masonic investigation untilled and unexplored; in fact, it might be said, to be lying fallow. For, despite the early writings of Anderson and Hutchinson and Preston and Dermott, and the later additions of Oliver and Laurie, our Masonic histories and our Masonic lucubrations were marked with a great deficiency of critical analysis and evidential certainty. Oliver, our most voluminous writer, though learned and laborious, is, no one can deny, somewhat diffuse and often unreliable as to data and facts; and, in this sifting epoch, and in our sterner criticism, his various contributions to Masonic literature and archæology have had to give way to the more careful statements of our modern school. And in the progress of investigation, and the development of our Masonic annals, much has been cleared away, which, like the débris of some fallen ruin, was heaped up in our way, and impeded discovery and advance. The true history of Freemasonry seems to be gradually emerging from those mists of doubt, uncertainty, and mythic record, which time or carelessness, or ignorance, or fanaticism, or even scepticism, had thrown around it. We do not accept now in our Masonic belief all that has been so hastily put forward of date, of persons, of events, of traditions. But the process, though disagreeable to some, and objected to by a few, has done, we believe, great good to the important cause of Masonic truth. We, for our part, have never been afraid of enquiry, nor been opposed to full, fair criticism. On the contrary, we believe firmly, after many years of careful archæological study, that the more our Masonic annals are sifted, the more our history is verified, the more our archæology is studied, the more that honest criticism is applied both to our legends and our organization, the more remarkable will appear the true position and the living history of Freemasonry in the world. Let us take, as an illustration of what has been said, what has been called the Templar theory of Freemasonry. Some twenty years ago, our English Masonic literature abounded with statements, that Freemasonry had sprung from the Templars. It seems to have been the belief of the Chevalier Ramsay, whether real or assumed, it has been often put forward somewhat hastily in former days, by open and anonymous Masonic writers. We doubt whether at this moment any competent Masonic student would repeat, or would patronize, the fallacious theory. We know now all the history of the Templar dispersion in England and Scotland. In the North of England we can point to the Monasteries after their dissolution, in which the Knights lived and died, and the old idea of a Templar perpetuation of Freemasonry, either at York, or in Scotland, or elsewhere, is as unreal and absurd in truth, as anything well can be either in the realms of history or the domain of myth. We do not ourselves believe in any transmission of the original Templar formulæ or secrets, at least none such has ever come before us which could stand for one moment before the inexorable accuracy of modern criticism, or answer the requirements of historical certainty. There is, indeed, at Paris, we believe, still in existence an organization called "Chevaliers de l'Ordre du Temple." This order professes to be founded on a Charter given by Larmenius the Patriarch, who had received a commission to do so from Jacques de Molay. We may observe here that this order declares in its avowed formularies that "the mysteries and the hieratical order of the Egyptian Initiation were given to the Jews by Moses," afterwards to the Christians by Our Lord, and religiously preserved by the successors of St. John, and guarded by a secret order called The Brethren of the East. But when the Templar Order was founded Hugh de Payens or Hugo de Paganis, was dubbed with Apostolical and Patriarchal power, and placed in the lawful order of the successor of St. John. Jacques de Molay, foreseeing the misfortunes of his order, it is said, designated as his successor Jean Marc Larmenius, Patriarch of Jerusalem, and in 1324 the latter gave a charter which has been signed ostensibly by a number of eminent men; and on this charter the allegation of perpetuation and continuation rests. But we fear we must dismiss at once this theory of the origin of Freemasonry, it is, in fact, little different from the "disciplina arcani" theory of Dr. Leeson, which has long been given up as historically untenable, and in the next place we regret to say we do not believe the charter itself; it is in our humble opinion, after many careful researches, a forged, and clumsily forged, document. In the first place no one of any authority as to the age of MSS. has ever seen it or been able to consider its handwriting, said to date from 1324 and onwards. Again, it is not very likely that in face of the Papal Bulls suspending and dissolving the Templar Order, a Roman Catholic Archbishop would take upon himself, especially in France, where the Templars were most unjustly given over to the secular arm, to perpetuate secretly a condemned and excommunicated Order, or to receive such a commission from Jacques de Molay. Once more, by the constitutions of the Templars, it was impossible that a Bishop should command the "Milites Templi," and the alleged transmission to Larmenius, therefore, becomes much more than doubtful. Among the many signatures, the famous Bertrand du Guesclin is to be found, in a printed document put forth in 1825, but it has been said that that hero could not write, and signed usually with a mark. This fact was stated in our hearing by a learned collector of autographs, and a brother, many years ago. The regulations of the Order are said to date from the 587th year of the Order, and to be written on twenty-seven folios of paper, with the effigy of John the Baptist. This would bring us to the 16th century. As the Grand Master Philip is said to have signed them, with others, we presume this Philip is Philip Chabot, who was Grand Master according to the Charter in 1516. We confess, both as regards the charter and the regulations, that with some experience of old documents, we cannot believe they represent any such date in either case. Indeed, the allusion to the Scotch Templars appears to us to decide the question, as it is in fact the basis of most of the statements of several of the French high-grades, and is clearly an anachronism. We are inclined to believe that this Order was founded in the time of so many similar foundations, in the early part of the 18th century, and we are willing to look upon the Duc de Cosse-Brissac, in 1776, as the "real and original Grand Master." At the same time we are open to evidence, though every thing we have seen so far only proves to convince us of the utter inadmissibility of the pretensions of the order to antiquity. The order professes to preserve as relics some burnt pieces of bone of the G.M., Jacques de Molay and his gallant comrades, his sword, the helmet of the Dauphin d'Auvergne, the seal of Larmenius, and the veritable "Beauceant." Perhaps some able French brother could tell us whether the Charter could be seen by an expert, and what is the present position of the order. Until, however, we have a little valid evidence, we fear that we must utterly ignore any claims the order puts forward, either as to reality of existence, or to actuality of continuation.

FREEMASONRY IN AMERICA.

We have risen from the perusal of the proceedings of some American Grand Lodges, with mingled feelings of wonder and admiration, for the growth of Freemasonry in that far-off land, bound to us by so many friendly links of mutual sympathies and common interests, is indeed very remarkable. We shall not be exaggerating when we say that the Order numbers in America just now, considerably over half-a-million of subscribing members, probably between 600,000 and 700,000, including the Knights Templar. And all who have any knowledge of the subject, or peruse carefully the records of Masonic proceedings in the United States, must be well aware how very "thorough" is the Masonic work there done and carried out under each of their many Grand Lodges. Freemasons in England who do not measure their words, who speak "ore rotundo," whose knowledge is only "skin deep" at the best, often talk superciliously of American shortcomings and defects. Now the truth is, that though there may be a certain amount of difference in the practical workings of the Anglican and American systems, though there are admitted divergencies of Grand Lodge regulations, and of Masonic jurisprudence, especially, in consequence of so many conflicting jurisdictions, yet, the genuine principles of Freemasonry are both proclaimed in the letter, and fulfilled in the spirit by the numerous and respectable brotherhood in America. In all parts of Masonic America, for instance, orphanages are being founded and supported, and the amount granted in relief to Masonic distress generally, and to individual cases when fully before our English mind, will assuredly startle us not a little. Let us take one illustration from many that could be adduced. In the last report of the Grand Lodge of California, the Board of Relief had, it is stated, in eighteen years expended seventy-five thousand dollars—£15,000 in round numbers in English money—and procured labour and work for several hundred Masons and others not members of any lodge in St. Francisco. There are in California alone 198 lodges and 10,725 subscribing members. In 1850, there were only 11 Lodges in California and Oregon. With these few yet striking facts alone before us, need we have any doubt that, whatever may be the calls upon them, American Masonic charity and brotherly goodwill are fully equal to the task of coping with them, and making due provision for them, one and all? We might give many other instances if space permitted, but we hope, before long, to receive an exhaustive statement of all the American Masonic charities. Our brethren in the United States deserve, it appears to us, always the highest sympathy and commendation. To them Freemasonry is something more than a name or a form, or the "knife and fork degree." It is indeed, as far as we are able to understand their present position, teaching, and labours, something very serious, and something very real. They have long surmounted a most cruel and shameless persecution. Their lodges are spreading through the old States and the new States of their mighty Government, and, we believe, in no country in the world are the genuine principles of Freemasonry better realised or more faithfully practised. To them the Freemason tenders once again its friendly greetings of sympathetic brotherhood; and we are always delighted to be able to report in our well-filled pages those evidences of Masonic growth and of Masonic duty, which mark in such vivid colours the onward progress of our American confraternity.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Nothing ought to be wanting to give eclat to the approaching festival. The Freemasons' Hall is manifestly inadequate for the occasion, and no more fitting place can be chosen (for many reasons) than the Albert Hall.

When at Boulogne last September, a conversation between a Roman Catholic Priest and a layman was overheard by my wife, the subject of it being, as the priest said, the "glorious" conversion of the late G.M., and the "deadly blow which had been inflicted upon that ungodly, irreligious Order of Freemasons." The priest said, with reference to the move taken to secure the Prince of Wales, that the Roman Catholics laughed at the idea, and that it was more than he dared do to comply with the presumptuous demands of these excommunicated.

The result, I "calculate," has surprised the weak nerves of this gentleman, who can now plainly see that while "No Italian priest shall take tithes or toll in our dominions," their power over the will and conscience of England's future hope is nil and nowhere. Not less galling must be the fact of the head of the Craft in Ireland being the Queen's representative, tantamount, almost, to the Sovereign herself.

But all this should stir us up to put a bright face upon the matter, and cheering as the prospects of Freemasonry may be now, to show to the opponents of our noble, and essentially religious Craft, that a still brighter future is in store for the devotees of the strangely maligned Order.

Without hurling defiance at the papacy, we may surely worthily celebrate the great moral victory that we have achieved over the plotting of our deadliest foe—a foe that neither by word nor deed have we done ought to offend or injure. Let therefore the forthcoming ceremonial be shorn of none of the importance which most fairly belongs to it, but let all Masons, members of Grand Lodge, as loyal and faithful adherents to our Sovereign Lady and her successors, have full and ample opportunity of displaying that joy which animates them individually and collectively. It will be a day long to be remembered by the Craft—the "St. Crispian's" of Masonry, if I may be allowed a similitude, which, in fact, is scarcely one at all. However, it will answer the purpose, as it will be a day never to be forgotten by the youngest, as well as the oldest, who may be spared and permitted to take part in it.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, Yours Fraternally,
WM. WIGGINTON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

All Freemasons must congratulate themselves on the fact of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales becoming the Grand Master of England. Greatly do I think it has added to the dignity and standing of our Order, and I would suggest a special jewel (perhaps a small Prince of Wales's Feathers) might be worn by those Worshipful Masters holding office at the time of the Installation of His Royal Highness, in commemoration of this felicitous event. Perhaps some Worshipful Master of standing would organize a plan to memorialize the Grand Lodge for permission to add such a well prized jewel to their regalia.

I am, sir, yours obediently and fraternally,
"BRIDGEFIELD."

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is curious to observe the different opinions on the point raised by M. S., and which was of sufficient importance to become the subject of a leading article in your impression of 19th ult.

The various complexions this matter is capable of taking may be mainly attributed to the wording of the Book of Constitutions, by which its "spirit" is certainly not indicated, but really contradictory. Take page 18, where it distinctly states that Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of private lodges are members of Grand Lodge.

Then comes the clause about the rights and privileges of an Installed Master, who, "having for twelve months ceased to subscribe to any lodge, shall no longer continue a member of the Grand Lodge, nor can he regain that privilege until again installed Master of a lodge." According to this, if the P.M. in question were to rejoin his lodge, and happen to be appointed as Warden by the then W.M., he could not, during the whole of his Wardenship, attend Grand Lodge. This is the inconsistency to which I referred in my letter, alluded to by Bro. Magnus Ohren in your last impression. Under such circumstances, it is quite clear that the P.M.'s rank and rights would be regained, his rank as P.M., and his rights as Senior P.M., and a member of Grand Lodge.

Why should he have to wait till again installed as W.M.? His Wardenship alone gives him a vote in Grand Lodge.

Hoping to see Bro. Magnus Ohren, or any other able writer, surmount this difficulty, I am, yours fraternally,
E. F.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should like an opinion on the following case:—The election for Mastership is contested by two or more eligible brethren, all I.M.'s, one of whom, Bro. A, is the retiring W.M. Bro. B is elected by one vote, and on arriving at the lodge after the election, is acquainted with the fact, and immediately "declines to be installed." Bro. C rises to remonstrate, and reminds Bro. B. of a certain clause in the Charge to an Entered Apprentice, concerning "votes and resolutions," whereupon Bro. B. says he will leave the matter in the hands of the brethren (as Bro. C's remarks have gone home to him), and retires. In the meantime, Bro. A. proceeds to a fresh election, and is himself elected. Who is the W.M. elect?

Yours fraternally,
E. F.

THE DEGREES OF MARK MASTER AND EXCELLENT MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

With your kind permission I shall address you on a subject on which, in the colonies at least (and I think I may also say in England), there seems to be not only a division of opinion, but a large amount of fogging in the minds of many of the Craft, viz., the true position of the degrees of Mark Master, and Most Excellent Master. I am writing as an English Mason, and by some of my zealous brethren, it may be said at once, "You have nothing to do with these degrees," the Grand Lodge of England not acknowledging them, but intelligent Masons of the present day, with all due deference to that august body, recognise the value of them, and not only the value but, in order to perfect the ritual of Craft Masonry, the actual necessity of them.

I have read from time to time in the pages of your valuable journal many opinions anent the Mark Degree uttered by brighter Masons than myself, such as Bros. Yarker, Hughan, Paton, &c., and being struck by a remark of Bro. Emra Holmes at page 398, in a July number of the Freemason, in which he is reported to have shown "where the continuity was broken in the third degree, and where it was taken up in the Royal Arch." I confess I cannot understand how the continuity could be shown without the aid of the degrees mentioned.

The position of the Mark Degree has been, and is, a vexed question with Masonic students. Bro. Yarker, indeed, gives it as his opinion that it is of modern date and spurious character, but with all respect to my learned brother I think he may, with equal justice, say the same of the third degree, yet who will question its position in any rite, or what would Masonry be without it? The question of the before-mentioned degrees at the present, should not be as to their antiquity but their suitability to supply a vacancy in the present English rite, which sadly matts its structure and seeks to mystify the ordinary or less enquiring mind of the R.A. Are they founded on Masonic principle? And are they within the landmarks of what may be termed operative-speculative Masonry? Such being the case, their suitability cannot be denied, and their true position seems to me undoubtedly between the M.M. and R.A. Degrees.

The strangest part of the present question is that these degrees should be incorporated with R.A. Chapters. There may be grounds of argument for excluding them altogether (although I admit of none), but the inconsistency of associating them with R.A. Chapters, passeth understanding. Every brother must know the events they illustrate are supposed to have occurred at the first or S.T., and from their tenour must be used in the crowning acts of that work, or altogether ignored, therefore why our Scotch brethren and others discard them in the lodge and introduce them in the chapter, among events occurring after the return from Babylon, is to me a puzzle.

Speaking broadly then, I think an English Mason holding under Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, and also under Grand Mark Lodge (for the two degrees mentioned) is in better standing as to perfection of rite, than a Mason holding under any other constitution that I know of. Many worthy Masons in the colonies regret that the Grand Lodge of England fails to recognise these degrees as "pure and antient Masonry," neither can they understand the why or wherefore, seeing they were included in the ancient York rite, which some of the most eminent in our fraternity consider as "the mother of all ancient rites." Is it not carrying conservatism to excess to sacrifice a principle to a constitutional clause of doubtful import? Craft Masonry, as worked in lodges under Grand Lodge of England is incomplete, but should not be allowed to remain so. If the Grand Lodges of England and Scotland knew what a blessing it would be to colonial brethren to assimilate their rites (I believe they have assimilated their working), I think, in justice to us, they would do so. If the present differences existed in any other society than that of Masons, the consequences, I am afraid, would be serious dissension. As it is, it sometimes threatens to estrange brethren of the two constitutions, who are over-zealous in their attachments. To make Scottish Masonry consistent, the Mark and Excellent Master must be controlled by Grand Lodge instead of Grand Chapter, and that English Masonry may be perfected, it is necessary that Grand Lodge should recognise these degrees, in the only position that can be assigned to them, viz: following the M.M. The present system is most detrimental to the Eng. R.A. in the colonies, for the reason that in towns, where chapters are held under both Constitutions (and there are many), English Masons prefer becoming members of Scotch chapters, as they obtain two extra degrees for the same money, and no matter where they locate, there is no difficulty in visiting. This, however, is not so much the case in places where there happens to be an English Mark Lodge. As a rule, then, our brethren prefer passing through the Mark Lodge on the way to the English chapter, although it is more expensive.

The present Grand Mark Masters' Lodge of England and Wales, deserves the hearty support of every English Mason, for the manner in which it has surmounted every difficulty in the attainment of its present position, but here also inconsistency must be complained of, or it is likely I never should have troubled you in re the present question, indeed the last sanctioned working is to my mind utterly contradictory. It is evident the position of the degree is assumed to be beyond the M.M., as the lodge is presided over by A., not in his capacity as "Chief Overseer," but as "Master of the Work," chosen to succeed H.A.B., as also it being imperative that the candidate shall be a W.M., yet the first prominent action brings us back to what should be an extension of the F.C., namely the choosing and registration of the Mark. If the lodge is open in a degree superior to the M.M., how can it consistently resolve itself into a F.C. lodge, and confer on a Craftsman a reward of merit for labours the result of which they know nothing of. It must be conceded the status of Mark Man can only concern a F.C. lodge, and therefore a Mark Masters' Lodge should assume the candidate to have received his Mark as before noted. The registration in a M.M.M. lodge is no doubt a necessity, but the choosing should find no place in it. Several other remarks I should like to make on the mode of working, but I am afraid I have already trespassed too much on your space, my only excuse being that these matters are of interest to brethren in the colonies, and we are anxious to hear the opinion of brighter Masons than ourselves.

Yours Fraternally,
WALTER HILL, P.M. 49 E.C.

MASONIC PORTRAITS. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have refrained from addressing you on the question of Masonic portraits, though just now it is a subject in which I am deeply interested, yet, as I find a weekly correspondence in your paper, indicating that there is a public feeling in favour of such a mode of illustration, I am induced to send you a suggestion, in the hope that it may ultimately benefit the Craft in general, and your paper in particular.

It may be interesting to the brethren to know that during the last twelve months I have published several thousand portraits of public characters for book illustration, and where the number of prints required will admit of it, the application of permanent printing reduces the cost materially, besides giving to the portraits the same permanency as printing ink. Last month, Grand Lodge honoured me by accepting an elegantly bound album, for the "Portraits and Autographs of our Rulers," which I am now compiling, several of which portraits it is my intention to print in carbon.

I therefore suggest that permission be asked to publish such of my portraits as may be of interest to your numerous readers, when I will willingly lend any of the cliché that you may approve, as the printing in carbon does not damage the negative for silver print.

A selection might also be made from the various albums which I have supplied to different lodges.

am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours, Edw. M. HAIGH, P.M. 29, P.G. Steward.
213, Regent-street, W.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to congratulate you upon the vastly improved appearance of the Freemason for the 2nd inst., and to thank you for the greatly increased matter that you have presented to us.

The suggestions that have been made in your columns as to illustrations, &c., are, I believe, good, and, if carried out, would do much to extend the circulation of the paper, even among the outward world.

The keeping the advertisements on separate sheets is an inducement for binding, as one does not care to have the continuity of letter-press broken every moment by matters of no interest (then), and of considerable annoyance.

Wishing you success among the lodges, and, through them, with the brethren,
I am yours fraternally,

WM. WIGGINTON, P.M. 902, 1208; W.M. 1503, &c.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

On Monday last the usual quarterly court of the subscribers and governors of this institution was held in the board room, Freemasons' Hall. The chair was taken by Bro. Henry Browne, vice-patron. There were also present Bros. John Symonds, W. Roebuck, Major J. Creaton, John Boyd, R. Wentworth Little, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes, Secretary. The motion of Bro. John Symonds (for which see report of Girls' School) was dealt with in the same way and referred to the same committee as is named in the Girls' School report, and besides the confirmation of the minutes no further business remained to be transacted.

Attention was called by the Secretary to the anniversary festival of the institution, which is announced to take place on the 30th of June, when the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Pro Grand Master, and R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Somerset, will preside. The total receipts of 1874 were stated to be £10,185, including £466, a grant from Grand Chapter. The debit balance account at the bankers' at the close of the past year was £151 11s. 4d.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman, and the proceedings terminated.

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The establishment of Christmas holidays to be spent at home when wished, and their extension to three weeks, has been extensively taken advantage of during the season by the pupils of the Masonic Boys' School, only 42 out of the total number of 176 having remained in the institution. Neither the comforts nor the enjoyments of these few have been neglected. As a matter of course, good Christmas cheer was not wanting, but with out-door enjoyment the weather has materially interfered. A present of a large box of excellent fireworks, however, most kindly and thoughtfully given by a resident in the neighbourhood, Mr. Dixon, Secretary of the Alexandra Palace Company, afforded a treat which was highly appreciated by the lads on Friday evening last. Also, on the Monday following, Mr. W. Bridgman Smith, gave an evening lecture, entitled, "Mont Blanc, How I went there, What I saw, and What I did." By invitation a large number of local residents attended, and by their presence added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening, lending a warmth and enthusiasm to the proceedings which would otherwise have been wanting, though our young friends themselves contributed their full share to the applause with which Mr. Smith's efforts to amuse and instruct were received. At the close of the lecture, an exhibition of chromatropes was given, with which everyone was delighted. Mr. Bridgman Smith possesses a happy talent for condensation, with quiet humour in making good points, and an emphatic delivery. The improvements he has effected in the lantern have brought the "Bridgman Lantern" to a high pitch of excellence; the manipulation is perfect; and the views, which are numerous, are admirably painted, and come out on the disc clear and sharply defined. A vote of thanks, proposed by Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the institution, was enthusiastically acquiesced in by all present and suitably acknowledged by Mr. Smith. The company then separated, all, young and old alike, expressing themselves as intensely pleased with the evening's entertainment. It should be stated that the whole of the domestic staff of the institution also attended.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of Subscribers to this School was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major Creaton presided, and the other members present were Bros. T. J. Barnes, H. Browne, John Symonds, H. Massey (Freemason), Herbert Dicketts, G. M. E. Snow, H. Mugeridge, Griffiths Smith, H. A. Dubois, Thos. W. White, Hyde Pullen, Robert B. Webster, F. Binckes, Richard Spencer, and R. W. Little, Secretary. The Secretary, having read the minutes, announced that he had written to the Marquis of Ripon to know whether His Lordship wished to remain a trustee of the Girls' School, and had received a reply that he did not. A question therefore arose whether the vacancy should now be filled up. Bro. Symonds thought it should be filled up at once, Law 7 of the Institution being in favour of that step. The Chairman, on the contrary, believed it would be better to defer it to another meeting, notice of motion being in the meantime given to fill up the vacancy. According to law 7, quoted by Bro. Symonds, no doubt they had power to act at once, but it would be more prudent, perhaps, to let the matter stand over. Bro. Symonds said it was unfortunate they had not had the resignation earlier, but under all the circumstances he agreed that it would be better to adopt the chairman's suggestion. This was concurred in, and the minutes were then put and confirmed. The consideration of the following motion of Bro. Symonds was the next business on the paper:

"Every Steward at the Anniversary Festival who shall procure Donations and Subscriptions to the extent of One Hundred Guineas or more, and shall collect and pay over the amount (exclusive of his personal Donation) to the Funds of the Institution, shall receive, if such amount be not less than One Hundred Guineas, one additional vote; One Hundred and Fifty Guineas, two additional votes; Two Hundred Guineas, three additional votes; and a further extra vote for every additional sum of not less than Fifty Guineas so obtained and paid over." Bro. Symonds said he was willing that it should be referred to a committee of the two schools, and he would also suggest that the mode of election to the House and Audit Committees should be referred to the same body. The election, he thought, should be conducted in the same way as the half-yearly elections of children into the school were now conducted, by proxy papers, scrutineers being appointed, the poll to remain open till, say, 5 p.m.

The reference to a committee was agreed to, and Bros. Browne, Symonds, Griffiths Smith, Thos. W. White, Hyde Pullen, T. J. Barnes, Major Creaton, Herbert Dicketts, and John Boyd, were appointed the said committee. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

NEW YEAR'S TREAT AT THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The New Year's treat to the children of this Institution was given by the members of the House and Audit Committees, on the 8th inst., at the school at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise. Among the brethren present were Bros. Benj. Head, A. H. Draper, Robert B. Webster, W. F. C. Moutrie, H. C. Levander, H. Massey (Freemason), Joshua Nunn, A. H. Tattershall, Louis Hirsch, Thomas W. White, Edw. Cox, Thomas Massa, Griffiths Smith, W. Winn, F. J. Cox, R. W. Little (Secretary), H. Mugeridge (Collector), and several ladies.

Most of the children had gone home for the holidays, but there were about thirty left. These were entertained, first of all, at tea, after which they enjoyed some dancing. Dissolving views and magic lantern were then provided by Bro. F. J. Cox, of Ludgate-hill, and some very interesting pieces of scenery were produced, together with a verbal explanation. This lasted for a couple of hours, during all which time the children and the visitors were much amused, and expressed their gratification at the exhibition.

As soon as the last diagram—"Good night"—was given, the children retired to the dining-hall to supper, where all the visitors waited on their little friends, and pulled crackers with them, to the intense delight of the children. The supper, however, as a repast, did not appear to have half the interest for them that the crackers had, and, unlike boys, they left the refectory almost untouched, to revel in the delight of wearing the caps, coronets, collars, and other becoming articles of dress, which were enclosed with the bon-bons. They were occupied a considerable time in this amusement, and perhaps no previous part of the evening had such allurements for either the big or the little girls.

The pleasure was sustained during the dancing which followed, when the fortunate possessors of caps continued to wear them. It was getting late when the visitors bade adieu to the dear little girls, who shook them most heartily by the hand as they left.

When the dancing was over, and before retiring, Bro. Benj. Head addressed a few words to the children. He said: My good friends all, I hope you will excuse me for addressing you. I think I am the oldest member of this institution, and if you will allow me I will say a few words before parting. We meet here at the beginning of a new year. We meet here with a number of you young children who are remaining in the school for the holidays, and knowing that many of the girls of this institution have gone home, I hope, to have a happy, comfortable, and merry Christmas. Though they have gone to spend their merry Christmas at home, I hope, little ones, you have enjoyed yourselves to-day. We have come here on purpose that you should have a little pleasure, and I think we have been successful. Well, then, I think, in looking back to the year that has passed, we have to be very thankful to the great and good God that rules over all, for the restoration to health of one who is dear to us all (Miss Jarwood), a lady who has been in this establishment for many many years, a lady who has been kind and motherly to you and hundreds before you, and I am sure a lady dear to all of us who are on committees, a lady whom we all love and admire. I ask you now to thank God that she is restored to health, and to wish her many, many happy years still to come, that we may all have the pleasure of meeting her here in many future years. (Cheers.) I now bid you all good night.

The decorations of the different rooms were very tastefully arranged by the children and the governesses, and the building bore all the signs of a hearty welcome to visitors. Evergreens in festoons, "A Merry Christmas," "A Happy New Year," "Welcome," and, not the least, cheerful, roaring fires, and well lighted rooms, revived the memories of old-fashioned Christmases, as handed down by traditional history. The brethren will be glad to know that the inmates of the school appear to be in the enjoyment of excellent health and unalloyed happiness.

ORDER OF PROCESSION AT A FUNERAL.

In reply to "one of your old subscribers" as to the order of procession, it is laid down in a book I possess, dated 1819, as follows, viz:—

Tyler, with a drawn sword.
Musicians (if any).
Master Masons.
Senior and Junior Deacons.
Secretary and Treasurer.
Senior and Junior Wardens.
Past Masters.
The Holy Writings, on a Cushion, Carried by the OLDEST MEMBER of the Lodge.
The Master.
Clergy.
THE BODY.
Pall Bearers. Pall Bearers.

In the above order the youngest Past Master goes before the W.M. in the procession.

Yours, fraternally,

MAGNUS OHREN, P.M. and P.Z.

MASONIC PEDIGREE WHEAT.

Referring to the article in the Freemason of the 19th Sept. last, headed "Royal Masonic Pedigree Wheat," giving an account of the produce of a single grain which fell from the hand of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales on the occasion of laying the foundation stone of the New Grammar School at Reading, picked up and planted by Bro. Thos. Deller, P.M., of Newbury, we are now informed that the corn has been threshed, the yield being nearly five quarters. This has been drilled into sixteen acres of suitable land; thus we see this large result from a single grain in five years.

THE SCALD MISERABLE MASONS.

I have seen an old print in the window of Messrs. Golding and Lawrence, Antiquarian Print and Booksellers, Ivy lane, an engraving with the above description. It represents "the front of Somerset House in 1742, copied from the view of the Grand Procession of the Scald Miserable Masons." It appears to be a burlesque of Freemasonry, as some of the persons forming the procession are seated on asses. Some are playing musical instruments, others carry banners with Masonic emblems. Can any brother tell me what the Scald Miserable Masons were, if any such body existed.

QUESTER.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

HONORARY SECRETARY.—Bro. James Terry (Secretary to the Institution), 4, Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.

THE MASONIC ARCHÆOLOGICAL INSTITUTE.

Some of the members of this useful institute met on Monday evening in the beautiful hall of the Supreme Grand Council, 33, Golden-square, which had been kindly lent for the occasion, to hear a lecture by Bro. R. G. Haliburton, of St. John's Lodge, Nova Scotia, on the "Prehistoric Vestiges of Masonic Symbolism."

Bro. Haliburton is well known as the discoverer of the "Year of the Pleiades," and it was generally expected that his lecture would throw considerable light on Masonic symbolism, more especially (which was the object of the lecture) on that symbolism, and the symbol of the seven stars, supplying a key to the common origin of the religion of nations. The expectation was not disappointed, for the lecturer, with the aid of some rough diagrams, described the researches he had made, and the great difficulty he had, before he became a Freemason, in discovering an explanation of the mysterious numbers in which he found certain relics of bye-gone ages. Alighting on the same combinations among the Australian savages, the Dyaks of Borneo, the North American Indians, the Greeks, the Persians, the Arabs, the Egyptians, Mexicans, Scandinavians, and Chinese, together with Bible history, the writings of Plutarch, ancient mythology, and the remnants of decayed architecture all over the world, he could not but conceive that the similarity to be found in these combinations was traceable to the same source. After becoming a Freemason the missing link was supplied, and he then traced to one fountain all the streams of religion which flowed through the world.

At the conclusion of the lecture, we were informed that no report of it would be allowed, as, according to the rules of the Institute, all its proceedings were to be looked upon with the same secrecy as the mysteries of the Masonic Lodge. We are therefore unable to give a report, but without any breach of Masonic obligations, we may make known that the lecture was an exceedingly able and interesting one, and displayed very great research, and as the lecturer solicited the assistance of all members of the Craft, they cannot do better than join the Institute, the subscription to which is only half-a-guinea. The lecturer pointed out that the researches were a point of some interest to theologians, as they would tend to solve many of the questions which puzzled them; and he indicated a great future for the Craft as regarded the history of Masonry. He hoped that the day would yet come when the recollection of the glories of Masonry in all ages would awaken English Masons to a conscientiousness of duty, and make them what they once were, a pride to themselves and all the nations of the Earth.

A discussion of some length followed, but not being completed, was adjourned to a future meeting, which Bro. Haliburton said he should be happy to attend for the purpose of giving any assistance in his power.

The Earl of Carnarvon was to have presided, but owing to the illness of the Countess of Carnarvon, his lordship could not attend.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

HOKITIKA.—The regular meeting of the Pacific Lodge (1229 E.C.) was held in the Masonic Hall, Bevell-street, on Tuesday last, when, notwithstanding the prevailing wet weather, there was a goodly attendance of members and visiting brethren. The business of the evening was conducted in the most able manner, and the brethren had the pleasure of listening to a very forcible address from their R.W. District Grand Master, Bro. Lazar, who, on behalf of the members, presented Bro. J. R. Hudson, P.M., with a handsome P.M. jewel and a richly-illuminated testimonial, as a mark of their esteem for the very zealous manner in which that brother, as W.M. for two years, had conducted their lodge and managed its business. In the course of his address, Bro. Lazar paid some very high compliments to the whole of the P.M.'s from the commencement of the lodge, and congratulated the members on its good working, and also on its pecuniary position. The testimonial, signed by all the officers of the lodge, was as follows:—"To Bro. J. R. Hudson, P.M.—Dear Sir and Brother,—We the W.M., Wardens, and Officers of the Pacific Lodge (1229 E.C.), beg to convey to you here-with an expression of our fraternal and sincere regard, and to assure you that your zealous attention to the interests of our time-honoured Craft in the faithful discharge of your duties as W.M. for the past two years has received the approval and esteem of the brethren, in testimony of which we beg your acceptance of the accompanying jewel, and trust that the G.A.O.T.U. may be pleased, in His bountiful goodness and wisdom, long to spare you in your useful Masonic career, and that He may continue to surround you and yours with every blessing obtainable in this life." Bro. P.M. Hudson, when returning thanks for the handsome presents made him, said:—"It is difficult for me to find words sufficiently expressive to show you my deep sense of gratitude for the high distinction you have this evening conferred upon me. It would be mere affectation on my part were I to say I consider myself entirely unworthy of the honour I have received at your hands, but I sincerely assure you that so costly and handsome a recognition of any services I may have happily been enabled to render our lodge is far beyond my real deserts. I certainly have (as all who wish to achieve honour and success in Masonry) worked hard, and your presentation this evening shows I have not worked in vain to maintain the dignity and prosperity of the Pacific Lodge, to encourage fraternal affection amongst its members, and to promote, as far as laid in my power, the general interests of our Craft. As I am well aware that I have, on many occasions, been wanting in that tact and judgment so necessary in the Master of a lodge who wishes to bring his career of office to a successful issue, I can the more fully appreciate the brotherly love, kind feelings, and indulgence that has been shown towards me. The brother then pointed out to those present the folly of the extravagances of some other lodges in spending all their funds, and, in some instances, getting into debt for large sums to build magnificently-ornamented halls, and thereby rendering themselves powerless to stretch out the arm of charity to the poor and distressed. He strongly urged upon them that while they had a hall small and plain, though it is but possessing the one main thing desirable for Masonic purposes—viz., privacy—to be content and reserve their funds for the relief of their indigent brethren. After the lodge was closed, the brethren, by invitation from Bro. Hudson, adjourned to the Cleveland Hotel, where a very pleasant evening was spent.

OTAGO.—The installation meeting of the Lodge of Otago, 844 E.C., took place on Wednesday, Oct. 14th, in the Masonic Hall. The lodge being opened by the W.M., Bro. A. H. Burton, the S.W., Bro. T. Fordyce, was presented as the W.M. elect, and after assenting to the ancient charges was duly installed into the chair of K.S., the ceremony was most impressively worked by Bro. A. H. Burton in his usual painstaking manner. There were a large number of P.M.'s in the East, as also of visiting brethren of the different constitutions. The lodge was honoured by an official visit of the Prov. G. Master, S.C., and his officers. After the ceremony of investment the Installing Officer called on the brethren, to salute the Prov. G. Master, S.C., with grand honours. The Prov. G. M. in returning thanks for the kind reception of himself and officers, said he was glad to avail himself of the opportunity of visiting the lodge, to show them he fully appreciated the handsome manner in which his English brethren turned out on the late occasion of his own installation, he should ever remember the compliment paid him, and thanked them heartily for their fraternal feeling. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:—J. Fordyce, W.M.; W. M. Weston, S.W.; L. Court, J.W.; Eldridge, P.M. Treas.; S. M. Muir, Sec.; D. K. Rhodes, S.D.; R. Greenfield, J.D.; Hiram Rhodes, I.G.; B. Singer, Steward. After closing, the brethren adjourned to Dunning's Cafe and spent the evening in their usual social style.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The committee of this institution met on Wednesday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major Creaton, presided. There were also present, Bros. C. F. Hogard; Benj. Head; H. Browne; Griffiths Smith; J. G. Stevens; W. Hale; C. A. Cottebrune; H. M. Levy; John Constable; J. Newton; L. Stean; James Brett; W. Stephens; T. Cubitt; F. Adlard; Hyde Pullen; W. Hilton; H. Massey (Freemason); and James Terry, Secretary.

The death of two annuitants were announced, and fifteen candidates were placed on the list for May. The petition of a widow for half annuity was granted, and leave of absence was granted to an annuitant. The name of one petitioner was, at her own request, removed from the list. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN HIGGIN, S.W. 1129.

On Tuesday evening, the 22nd December, a little before twelve o'clock, Bro. John Higgin died at his house, in Lord Street, Rochdale, after a very short sickness. He attended the funeral of Bro. Edwin Collingwood, P.M., on Friday, the 15th ult., and it is thought that he caught a cold which brought on rheumatic fever, and cut him off in the prime of life. He was a kind and benevolent brother, and well respected by his brethren and friends.

He was S.W. of Lodge of St. Chad, 1129. He was for many years a traveller for a very respectable firm in the ironmongery business in Manchester, in which he acquitted himself very creditably.

He was interred in the Rochdale Cemetery on Saturday, 26th December, and there was a good attendance of the brethren from the different lodges to pay their last respects to our departed brother, whom they should see no more. They attended in white ties and gloves.

"Mors cuncta mortalium mula dissolvit."

DEATH OF BRO. LLEWELLYN EVANS.

We regret to have received the information of the decease of our able Bro. Llewellyn Evans, late President of the Board of General Purposes for many years.

Masonic Tidings.

MASONIC CONCERT IN LIVERPOOL.—Last Saturday evening the third of the series of five concerts, in aid of the fund for the erection of an organ in the Liverpool Masonic Hall, took place in the dining-hall of that building. There was a large attendance, and, as the programme was one of the very choicest nature, the enjoyment of those present was complete. The artistes who kindly gave their services were Miss Philipps, Miss M. Philipps, Bro. H. C. Harrison, Bro. T. J. Hughes, Signor Olano, Master Davies (a young pianist of great promise), and Bro. G. A. W. Philipps (cornet). The concert was under the direction of Bro. Franklin Haworth, whose accompaniments were invariably played with the greatest taste.

Bro. Herbert Monckton was elected Town Clerk of Maidstone on Thursday, 7th inst., vice Mr. John Monckton, resigned after thirty-six years' tenure of office. Mr. Herbert Monckton is a brother of the Town Clerk of London, and is already well known to municipal officers as a compiler of election and other manuals.

We regret to learn that the Countess of Carnarvon, who gave birth to a daughter at her town residence, 16, Bruton-street, on the 30th ult., was so seriously ill last week that her condition caused much anxiety, and Sir William Gull was called in. On Saturday her ladyship was reported to be rather better.

The will, dated Feb. 21st 1866, of Benjamin Bond Cabell, late of Cromer Hall, Norfolk, and of the Middle Temple, who died on the 9th ult., at 39, Chapel-street, Edgware-road, was proved on the 23rd ult., by John Cabell, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £100,000. The testator bequeaths all his real estate and bequeaths all his personal estate to his cousin, the said John Cabell.—Illustrated London News.

MUNIFICENT BEQUESTS TO LIVERPOOL CHARITIES.—By the death, last week, of Mr. Roger Lyon Jones, 69 years of age, who resided at Sunnyside, Prince's Park, Liverpool, the charitable institutions and religious societies of Liverpool have just come in for a most extraordinary sum of money. It is expected that the estate will be worth at least £350,000, and by his will Mr. Jones specifically bequeaths £40,000, of which £20,000 is to be given to some distant relatives, and the other £20,000 to different charities in Liverpool named in the will. The remainder of the property, amounting to upwards of £300,000, is left in the hands of the executors, who are empowered to divide it amongst local charitable and religious institutions as they may deem fit.

Bro. Aeneas J. McIntyre will preside at the Anniversary Festival of the Caledonian Society of London, to be held on Monday, the 25th inst.

FIRE AT MOUNT EDGECUMBE.—A fire of considerable proportions broke out at about eleven o'clock on Wednesday night on Mount Edgumbe. Notwithstanding the stormy weather, some hundreds of persons assembled on the Hoe to witness the flames, which illuminated the night across the three miles intervening between Plymouth and the Mount. It appears as if the well-known group of ornamental cottages belonging to the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, Prov. Grand Master for Cornwall, and provided for the accommodation of picnic parties, was in flames. Should such prove to be the case, the fine mansion is in no danger, but many of the splendid trees which ornament the heights, and which are the pride of Devonshire, are on fire.

MASONIC PHOTOGRAPHY.—Our attention has been called to a communication from Bro. Edward W. Haigh, who has, during the past month, presented to Grand Lodge a very elegantly bound album, in morocco, of Grand Lodge colours, and which may now be seen at Grand Secretary's office, intended to contain the portraits, with autographs, of the officers and members of Grand Lodge. The works of this eminent artist have frequently come under our notice, and we cannot too highly commend him for the spirited manner in which he is accomplishing this tasteful task. As all the sittings are, by his liberality, gratuitously bestowed, we strongly urge all Grand Lodge members, who have not already given sittings, to pay an early visit to the atelier of Bro. Haigh, at 213, Regent-street. Among the many excellent examples of Bro. Haigh's artistic skill that we have been favoured with an inspection of, we may mention a series of carefully coloured studies of Bro. George Kenning, recently executed, and representing that experienced Mason in nine different grades, from the 30th degree downwards. These admirable pictures reflect the highest credit upon artist and subject, and especially the latter, since they afford unmistakable evidence of the diligence and perseverance with which Bro. Kenning has applied himself to the acquirement of such proficiency in the noble science of Freemasonry.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Ever useful.—The afflicted by illness should look their diseases fully in the face and at once seek a remedy for them. A short search will convince the most sceptical that these noble medicaments have afforded ease, comfort, and oftentimes complete recovery to the most tortured sufferer. The Ointment will cure all description of sores, wounds, bad legs, sprains, eruptions, erysipelas, rheumatism, gout and skin affections. The Pills never fail in correcting and strengthening the stomach, in restoring a deranged liver to wholesome condition, in rousing torpid kidneys, to increase the secretions, and in re-establishing the natural and healthy activity of the bowels. Holloway's are the remedies for complaints of all classes of society.—ADVT.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FALMOUTH.—LODGE OF LOVE AND HONOUR (No. 75).—The members of this lodge met on Tuesday, 12th inst., to instal Bro. W. H. Dunstan in the W.M.'s chair. The ceremony was performed by Bro. W. Newman, P.M., and the following appointments were afterwards made:—Bros. M. Little, I.P.M.; T. Webber, S.W.; A. B. Harris, J.W.; W. F. Newman, Treas.; D. Rogers, Sec.; T. Polglase, S. of C.A. fund; H. Tilly, S.D.; Wilson Fox, J.D.; James, I.G.; Johns and Hasselwood, D. of C.; Wallace and Williams, Stewards; F. Rusden, Tyler. The annual banquet afterwards took place.

PENZANCE.—MOUNT SINAI LODGE (No. 121).—The members of this lodge met to instal Bro. T. J. Rowe, the Worshipful Master elect. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by the W.M., Bro. W. A. Gerry, and the following appointments were afterwards made:—Bros. W. A. Gerry, I.P.M.; Robert Lovell, S.W.; T. W. Penzance, J.W.; Charles Read, re-elected Treasurer; James Lovell, Secretary and Organist; W. H. Kinsman, S.D.; J. J. Taylor, J.D.; W. H. Longhurst, I. G.; J. H. Cornish and G. H. Small, D.C.; and R. Reynolds, Tyler. Among the brethren present were Bros. F. Boase, P.M.; Israel Levin, P.M.; P.P.G.D. John Maxwell, P.M.; G. S. Denbigh, P.M.; C. Trevithick, P.M.; W. Dusting; Nicholls (Cornubian Lodge, No. 450, Hayle), and Jacobs (Love and Honour Lodge, No. 75, Falmouth). The brethren afterwards dined together at the Western Hotel.

TRURO.—LODGE OF FORTITUDE (No. 132).—St. John's Festival was celebrated by this lodge on Tuesday, 12th inst. The brethren met at the lodge-room in the afternoon for the purpose of installing Bro. W. C. R. Crewes as W.M. for the next year. The ceremony of installation was very impressively performed by Bro. Chirgwin, P. Prov. G.W. The newly-appointed W.M. named his officers as follows:—Bros. Tillman, S.W.; Cummings, J.W. and Chaplain; Chirgwin, Treasurer; Lean, Secretary; Rendle, Assistant Secretary; Wilcocks, S.D.; Sampson, J.D.; Lovell, Organist; W. H. James, D.C.; Cardwell, I.G.; Boys and Trembath, Stewards; and Langdon, Tyler. Several new members were proposed. Bro. Chirgwin, the Treasurer, reported that there was a very good balance in favour of the lodge. Ten pounds was voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Fund, and five pounds to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund. The banquet was held at the Red Lion Hotel, where a sumptuous spread was provided by Bro. Bray. The bill of fare was a most substantial and liberal one. The newly-elected W.M., Bro. Crewes, occupied the chair. About fifty sat down. There was some very good singing by members of the lodge, and Bro. Heath, of Redruth presided at the piano most efficiently. Letters were read from Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., D. Prov. G.M. of Cornwall, the Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. E. T. Carlyon), and the Provincial Grand Treasurer (Bro. W. Tweedy), apologising for their absence. After "The Queen and the Craft" had been proposed by the W.M., "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Officers of the Grand Lodge," was given from the chair. The W.M. echoed the sentiments of everyone present when he expressed pleasure at the Prince of Wales being at the head of English Masons. This fact must speak volumes as to the loyalty of the Craft. It was unquestionably a great privilege, and it was also a great privilege to the county of Cornwall that they had living among them two past officers of the Grand Lodge. They were all very sorry that Bro. Sir F. M. Williams could not be present with them. The cause of his absence everyone present regretted, but there was one amongst them who occupied the proud position of Past Senior Grand Deacon—Bro. Hughan. Bro. Hughan responded, and was received with great enthusiasm. He said it was some 33 years since they had a Royal Grand Master to preside over them, and during that time there had been great changes in Freemasonry. The election of the Prince of Wales to the Grand Mastership of English Masons, arose out of the secession of the Marquis of Ripon, the late Grand Master, to the Church of Rome. It was a rather curious fact that just 100 years ago a very prominent Roman Catholic nominally presided over the Grand Lodge, as Grand Master, namely, Lord Petre, and at that time there were not 200,000 Masons in the world, whereas at the time of the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon, there were over 2,000,000. Some fifty years before then, another prominent Roman Catholic was Grand Master—the Duke of Norfolk, and at that time there were not 5,000 members in the world, so that they would see how rapidly the society progressed and how impossible it was for any man or many men to expel it from England, or indeed anywhere. It had always been the boast of the Grand Lodge that it was neutral as regarded religion and politics. This boast was not without foundation, as we all know. Among the names of the Grand Masters could be found several of the Royal Family. There were King William IV., George IV., and the Dukes of Sussex and Cumberland, and he was exceedingly glad to see that three sons of Her Majesty Queen Victoria (whom may God long preserve) had now become brethren of the Mystic Tie. The Prince of Wales had not only the honour of being Grand Master of the oldest Grand Lodge in the world, but also of the largest and most benevolent. These facts were sufficient to show that Freemasonry was not antagonistic to the State, for surely no one would think that the Prince of Wales sought to undermine his own throne; and as to religion and morals there were thousands of ministers of various sects belonging to the Order, thus showing that neither religion nor morality met with any injury from the true Masonic principles. Masons must congratulate themselves on having so very excellent a Pro Grand Master as the Earl of Carnarvon to preside over them, and Lord Skelmersdale, the Deputy Grand Master, who was lately installed as Provincial Grand Master of the very important province of West Lancashire, was a most zealous brother, who had helped Masonry very materially. They and others had brought it to its present dignified position. It was a society that had seen many other Institutions crumble and fall away, but it was still living, fresh and vigorous.

Thus midst the ruin of revolving years,
Unhurt, unchanged, Freemasonry appears.
Its towers and monuments may fade away!
Its truth and social life shall ne'er decay.

The Chairman then gave "The P.G.M. of Cornwall (the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe), the D.P.G.M. (Sir F. M. Williams), and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge." Bro. Solomon, P. Prov. S.G.W., replied. Masons must be proud to be presided over by a man so high in society, so intelligent, and in every way so qualified as the Grand Master of the Province was. His energy and his tact had been most amply manifested when the great meeting of Masons took place at Plymouth last August. Bro. Solomon looked forward to a very similar gathering at Truro this year, when the Prince visited them; and he hoped it would be such a Masonic gathering as Truro had never yet seen. It would be a manifestation of their zeal for the Craft, as well as of love for the throne. As regarded Sir F. M. Williams, he could not speak too highly of him. There was no better Mason existing; and he was prepared to make any sacrifice for the Craft. What was Freemasonry? It was neutral. He had often thought that a Masonic lodge was the only neutral place in the world, and was almost the only place where men of all religions and politics could meet together on one footing, and were tied together by one bond on the principle of brotherly love. As far as his experience went, this neutrality was to be found only in a Masonic lodge. He hoped they would take these things to heart, and do all they could to advance Freemasonry in a true spirit. Bro. W. Lake proposed the health of "The Installing Master, Bro. Chirgwin," praising him for the way in which he conducted the ceremony, and for his long attachment and devotion to Freemasonry. Bro. Chirgwin, P. Prov. J.G.W., who was loudly cheered, replied, and expressed his delight at witnessing the increasing prosperity of the Lodge of Fortitude. Bro. Holloway, P. Prov. J.G.D., proposed the health of the W.M. in very complimentary terms. Bro. Crewes, in acknowledgment, said he had done all he could, since he had been a member of the Craft, for the last six years, to merit the high office to which he had been raised, and trusted to the brethren to support him in his exalted position. Bro. W. J. Johns, P. Prov. G.R., proposed "The Visitors," referring to the fact that Bro. Colonel Sir J. Hogg had travelled more than three hundred miles to be present at this banquet, and extended to all a most hearty welcome. Bro. Sir J. Hogg, who met with a warm reception, made an amusing speech, mentioned that his business engagements prevented him from attending the meeting of the Phoenix Lodge on Monday, and that he intended, at the Exchange dinner on the following day, to give a lecture on farming, and he only hoped those who heard it would be wise after it. Bro. Thomas (Druids, Redruth), responded in a capital speech; and Bro. Jeffrey (331, Truro), also replied. Bro. W. H. Christie acknowledged the compliment for the Phoenix lodge. Bro. Middleton, P.M., &c., proposed the health of the I.P.M., Bro. N. B. Bullen. The office of W.M. had been most zealously and most ably filled by Bro. Bullen, and he was sure that Bro. Crewes would conduct the lodge with equal ability. Bro. Bullen, Prov. G. Organist, returned thanks. Bro. John Hocking, jun., Prov. J.G.D. (Druids, Redruth), proposed the health of the "Past Masters of Fortitude Lodge." He claimed for the Druids Lodge, Redruth, the honour of having a larger number of subscribing members than any other lodge in the county. He regretted the absence from the banquet of Bro. Harvey, who was the oldest P.M. in the Fortitude. Bro. W. J. Johns replied most effectively. Bro. R. John, P.P.G.D.C., proposed the healths of the S.W. and J.W., and other officers of Fortitude Lodge. Bro. Tillman, in reply, said that although he did not live in the town, he could manage to be present at the meetings of the lodge. Bro. the Rev. A. H. Cummings, M.A., P.G. Chap., also thanked the meeting. He declared most positively that if there were anything in Freemasonry that was not compatible with his profession as a minister of religion, he would not again attend a lodge, or take any active part in Freemasonry. But it was because he was sure that a man became a better man through being a Mason, that he delighted in taking an active part in the principles of the Order, and the more he studied it, the more he became convinced that Masonic principles were founded upon Christian truth. Bros. Lean, Wilcocks, Cardwell, Sampson, Boys, James, Lovell, and Rendle also replied. Bro. Dorrington, P. Prov. J.G.D., proposed the health of the brethren not in office. To this Bros. J. Michell, George Brown, P.M., and Richards replied, and the latter proposed "Absent Brethren." Bro. the Rev. A. H. Cummings proposed the health of Bro. Heath, who so kindly accompanied on the piano most of the songs that were sung. The toast having been drunk with enthusiasm, Bro. Heath acknowledged it. Bro. N. B. Bullen proposed "The Ladies." Bro. Rendle responded. The healths of the host, Bro. Bray, and the hostess, were then proposed by Bro. Brown, and heartily given. The meeting broke up at eleven.

OLD CONCORD LODGE (No. 172).—The brethren of the above old-established lodge met on Tuesday, the 5th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, to instal Bro. E. Vorley, W.M. elect, into the chair of K.S. The meeting was well supported by a numerous attendance of visiting brethren and members of the lodge, some of whom claim an acquaintance of about 40 years' membership. The lodge being opened in due form, the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M., Bro. E. Dottridge, then proceeded to initiate Bros. Haubert, Frostick, and Hoadley, into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The lodge was then opened up into the second and third degrees, and the more interesting business of the evening was commenced—viz., the installation of the W.M. elect. The ceremony was performed by Bro. E. Dottridge, the Worshipful Master, and in a manner as to elicit repeated demonstrations of approval. The following brethren were invested with collars:—Bros. D. Devenish, S.W.; Hockley, J.W.; Ward, S.D.; A. Dottridge, J.D.; Goosey, I.G.; J. Emmens, P.M., Secretary; J. Hancock, Treasurer; King, D.C.; and Marriott, Organist. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Installing Master presented Bro. Edwin Dottridge, in the name of the Old Concord Lodge, a magnificent Bible, with elaborate mountings of classical design, as a token of the combined good feelings of esteem and respect which they entertained towards him, and for the faithful discharge of the duties annexed to the Master's chair, now extending over a period of two years. The presentation was accompanied with some well-chosen remarks, which were suitably responded to by the recipient. At the conclusion of the meeting, the brethren retired from labour to refreshment, and partook, as usual, of an excellent banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly observed, and we noted an especial hearty response to the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon." The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. C. Marriott, Organist of the lodge. We were especially gratified to observe this long-established lodge so well, and worthily attended; and it having passed its centenary, and obtained its jewel, we wish it every success, being assured it stands foremost in carrying out the true principles and tenets of the Order.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The installation meeting of this old lodge was held on the 7th inst. at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, Bro. George Abbott, W.M., in the chair, and all the officers, with the exception of Bro. Goodyer, the Treasurer, who was unfortunately absent through illness, being in their places. Lodge was opened shortly after four o'clock, and the W.M., after disposing of some preliminary business, raised Bro. R. H. Goddard to the third degree. His working was perfection, and he gave the whole ceremony without any curtailment. When this was over he vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Henry Muggeridge, the father of the lodge, who has for many years regularly installed successive Masters. Bro. Muggeridge thereupon installed Bro. George Newman, S.W. and W.M. elect, in the W.M. chair with all the vigour and expressiveness for which he was famous in his younger days. Bro. Newman having been installed, acquainted Bro. Muggeridge with the names of the officers he had chosen, and Bro. Muggeridge duly invested them and delivered the usual charges. The brethren appointed were Bros. Cohu, S.W.; Arkell, J.W.; Goodyer, Treas.; Jones, S.D.; Legge, J.D.; F. Fellowes, I.G.; Rickwood, D.C.; King, W.S.; and George Smith, Tyler. On the motion of Bro. Roberts, P.M., seconded by the W.M., the sum of ten guineas was unanimously voted for a Past Master's jewel to be presented to Bro. Abbott, I.P.M. Bro. Marsh gave notice that ten guineas be given to the Girls' School. Bro. Roberts gave notice of a similar motion for the Boys' School, and Bro. Cohu one for £10 to the Aged Freemasons' Institution. The W.M. afterwards rose, and presenting a massive gold Past Master's jewel, manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, to Bro. Abbott, assured him that he considered it a privilege that this should be his first official act as W.M., for the performance of the duties of the Master's chair by Bro. Abbott, while he held the office of W.M., reflected the greatest credit on him as a persevering and enterprising Freemason. He (the W.M.) and all the brethren wished Bro. Abbott health, wealth, and long life to wear the jewel. Bro. Abbott thanked the brethren and said that it was a great pleasure to him to be of any service to the lodge. His year of office had been one of unalloyed happiness; the work had gone on well, and he hoped that it would continue to do so in future. The W.M., before closing the lodge, informed the brethren that during his year of office he intended to observe strict punctuality, and the Secretary would put upon the summonses the hour at which the different ceremonies would be performed. The officers must therefore be in their places, and the candidates ready at the appointed time. It frequently happened that they were not, but came in late, and if the ceremony for which they attended was not performed, they were offended. The ceremony was therefore given, and the consequence was that banquet ordered at six or half-past, was not taken of till half-past eight. It was then found to be spoiled, and the brethren's tempers were ruffled; and all this because one or two brethren would not be punctual. He thought it hard that 50 or 60 brethren should be disarranged by a few, and he should make it a rule that if these latter did not attend at the appointed time for taking their degrees, he should postpone giving them till a future meeting. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a magnificent banquet, provided by Bro. Sidney Spencer, the proprietor of the hotel, and superintended by Bro. Lord, the manager. Among the brethren who sat down, were the W.M. and his Officers, and the following brethren:—Bros. E. Roberts, P.M., D.C.; E. King, P.M., Steward; Henry Muggeridge, P.M.; George Kenning; F. Trott, P.M. Bros. J. Perrin, J. G. Chillingworth, R. H. Goddard, G. Taylor, E. Fellows, T. B. Charlesworth, J. G. Dunn, W. Ramsey, Jas. Hyde, W. F. Poulton, Thos. Barker, W. Medwin, S. Haynes, S. T. Lucas, G. H. Gillam, W. Smale, E. Hunter, H. Stevenson, H. Davis, George Bartholomew, E. J. Kellaway, John Curle, R. E. Bright, A. Lewis, A. G. Marks, W. R. Baker, J. H. Fuller, G. E. Quintin, S. Spencer, Henry Abbott, W. Alflatt, G. T. Smith, W. T. Rickwood, A. T. Honeywill, John Kent, J. G. Rollins, S. Edwards. Visitors: Bro. H. Garrod, P.M. 749; Bro. Capt. E. Shrewsbury, 474; Bro. Thos. Turner, P.M. 140; Bro. J. Brooksmith, P.M. 82; Bro. Francis Burdett, P.G.M., Middlesex; Bro. John Hervey, Grand Sec., England; Bro. Colonel Peters, W.M. 1460; Bro. Rev. Dr. E. Brette, S.W. 1460, and Grand Chaplain, Middlesex; Bro. R. W. Little, Sec. Girls' School; Bros. H. J. Dawe, 871; M. S. Larham, 1216; F. McDougall, 3; A. Murray, 860; W. R. Horncastle, 1365; C. W. Ashdown, P.M. 1421; H. S. Partridge, 1445; H. Massey (Freemason), P.M. 619; J. R. Foulger, P.M. 177; M. Ullmer, 49; H. Canter, 1421; W. J. Miller, P.M. 766; W. Worrell, P.M. 766; F. H. Atkins, 890; B. Phillips, 1305; W. G. Connell, 890; W. E. Ransford, 12; J. M. Lewen, 474; J. T. Hiseroc, 1420; J. Wright, W.M. 1158; J. T. H. McEwan, 4; S. P. Smith, 393; J. Hill, 212; T. Moore, P.M. 145; E. Clarke, 1194; R. W. Pandline, 1260. Ample justice having been done to the repast, grace was said, and the cloth removed, and the W.M. rapidly gave the toasts. Bro. Colonel Burdett responded for "The Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers," and expressed the gratification he experienced at being present to witness the admirable working in the lodge. He felt that a new era was opening in Freemasonry, not only in England, but in Scotland, Ireland, and the Colonies. The Craft was flourishing and thriving in every possible way. Bro. John Hervey, for whom there were loud and protracted calls, in obedience to the summons rose and said he thought it was a good rule which was generally observed, that only one brother should respond to any given toast, but as they had so enthusiastically called upon him to respond as well as Colonel Burdett, he did not hesitate to offer his cordial thanks for the manner in which he had been received. After congratulating the lodge on the working, and the Installation by Bro. Muggeridge, and expressing his pleasure at being present, he went on to observe that during last year many events had occurred interesting to Masons, and which, he thought, must have some influence on the Order for some time to come. In the early part of 1874, the Prince of Wales, the present Grand Master, was installed as Master of the Prince of Wales's Lodge, and on the same day, he (Bro. Hervey) being present on the occasion, His Royal Highness proposed his brother, the Duke of Connaught, for initiation in the Craft, thereby showing most conclusively that he did not consider Freemasonry inimical to the Government of the country, or that there was anything in it subversive of the established authority over the land. In March, the Duke of Connaught was initiated, and he need not say that that was an event which was exceedingly gratifying to the Craft. In the following April, and within six weeks of this event, Prince Leopold was proposed, likewise by his brother, the Prince of Wales in the Apollo Lodge at Oxford, and was initiated at the end of that month. Those were three significant things—one, that the Heir Apparent to the Crown should take upon himself the Mastership of a private lodge in London; another, that he should then and there, that very day, propose his brother as a member of it, and, a very few weeks afterwards, again propose his youngest brother as a member of another lodge, of which he was also the Master. He might further allude to another event of interest at which he and another brother in the room were present, the installation of the present Earl of Zetland in succession to his late uncle, who was so long the Grand Master, as Provincial Grand Master of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire. It showed that the good feeling to the Craft was not lost sight of—that it had not died out in the generation that had passed away; but that still there were some left to come forward in the same line and take the same position and do honour to the Craft which the late Grand Master had for so many years efficiently supported. There was another event which he was very sorry to allude to—the secession of the Marquis of Ripon from the Grand Mastership of the Order. He could speak most strongly in his Lordship's favour for the way in which he had invariably acted as Grand Master. There could not have been a better Grand Master. During the time that Lord Ripon ruled the Craft, he was attentive to business, ready at all times to do anything in furtherance of its prosperity, and to uphold it in every shape and way. One of the proofs of this was his taking the chair, ten months ago, at the annual festival of the Boys' School, when there was a very large subscription. The Craft, in their calmer moments, would feel that they had sustained a great loss in the resignation of Lord Ripon, and that they had a great deal to thank him for during the twenty years that he was an active member of Grand Lodge. Still, it was said, "There were as good fish in the sea as had ever come out of it;" and so it was with the secession of the Marquis of Ripon; it had been followed by the Heir Apparent to the Crown succeeding his Lordship. What could they wish for more? Those were a few of the events of the past year, and they were significant of the position the Craft held in the Royal Family, and he hoped they were significant of what Freemasons were looking forward to in the future in the way of support by that family. The Freemasons of England would never deviate for a moment from the respect they owed to the Royal Family, to the Craft, and to the authorities which ruled over them. Bro. Abbott, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M.," whom he was glad to have seen installed in the chair of his mother lodge. To be sure, he was a P.M. of the William Preston Lodge, but it was a greater pleasure to a brother to become Master of the lodge in which he first saw Masonic light than in any other. The W.M. replied, and in the course of his remarks, said that one great ambition he had was that though he might perhaps lack ability in the chair, he was desirous that his year should be one of peace, happiness, and prosperity, to obtain which every effort of his would be used. "The Installing Master, Bro. H. Muggeridge," was the next toast, and the W.M., in proposing it, said that it was the greatest mistake Bro. Muggeridge ever made—absenting himself for a time from the lodge. The lodge held him in the highest esteem, and when he came at installations and told the brethren that he was the father of the lodge—that he was initiated thirty years ago—his remarks were listened to by his old associates with great attention. If the younger members did not do the same, it was not from any want of feeling, but because by his own act in absenting himself all the rest of the year, he was not so well known as he ought to be. In future it was to be hoped he would come more frequently. Bro. H. Muggeridge, in the course of his reply, remarked on the great change which had occurred in the lodge during a few years. There was scarcely one of his old friends left, but still there were many new ones. He was initiated on the 7th November, 1839, and at that time the lodge was a numerous one—not so numerous as at present, but still numerous. Some brethren might think he was a visitor on these occasions, but he was not; he was a subscribing member, although he only came once a year to instal the W.M., which he was very pleased to do. Some years ago he used to attend regularly, and part of his time he had been Secretary. Circumstances arose which induced him to decline discharging the duties of Secretary any longer, but he still wished for the prosperity of the lodge. He was glad to have heard that evening that the lodge was going to recognise the services of Bro. Marsh, the Secretary, which he thought was a step in the right direction, because Bro. Marsh devoted a great deal of his time to the work of the lodge. He (Bro. Muggeridge) had not taken any active part in the lodge's affairs for some years, and none of its success or prosperity was due to him. The success and prosperity of the lodge arose from the way in which it was conducted, and from the masterly skill of such brethren as Bro. Abbott, the W.M., and Bro. Marsh. The Lodge of Instruction was the oldest in the City of London. The Stability Lodge of Instruction was established by Peter Thompson, of the Lion and Lamb Lodge, in connection with Peter Broadfoot, of the Lodge of Stability, in 1817. He (Bro. Muggeridge) had the honour of being the Preceptor of that lodge. It met at Bro. Gosden's, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Coleman-street, every Friday evening at six o'clock, and closed at eight. At that Lodge of Instruction he would be happy to meet any of the brethren and give them whatever instruction they might desire. He would also state one other fact, that Bro. Spencer, the proprietor of the City Terminus Hotel, had kindly granted him the use of rooms for the anniversary festival of the Stability Lodge of Instruction on the last Friday evening in April, and on that occasion he hoped to secure the presidency of a distinguished brother. On the last occasion some 200 brethren sat down, and no doubt the brother who would preside at the next festival would be as well supported then. Bro. H. Garrod responded for "The Visitors," and Bro. Maclean, from Victoria, added a few words at the earnest desire of the lodge. He spoke with great cordiality on the reception he had met with, and gave an encouraging account of the progress Masonry was making in the colony he came from. Some difficulty was experienced there on account of the three jurisdictions which prevailed, but the brethren were endeavouring to effect an amalgamation, and to consolidate the English, Irish, and Scotch Constitutions under one head. He thought that in all those colonies Masons ought to be represented by one head, as it would give them a standing of more importance. Bro. Edward Clark (Villiers Lodge) also replied. Bro. Abbott responded for "The Past Masters," and again thanked the brethren for the jewel they had presented to him. Bro. Little replied for "The Masonic Charities," and regretted that neither Bros. Binckes nor Terry was present. Bros. Cohu and Arkell responded to the toast of "The Officers," and the brethren soon afterwards separated.

WINDSOR.—ETONIAN LODGE (No. 209).—The Installation Meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 5th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. G. W. Dixon, W.M.; L. Bryett, P.M.; P. G. Steward Berks and Bucks, as S.W.; J. O. Carter, J.W.; J. Pullin, P.M., Treasurer; J. Strange, P.M., P.G.S.D., Secretary; W. R. Denne, S.D.; W. Crowhurst, J.D.; G. Canvin, I.G.; C. D. Hume, D.C.; R. Roberts and E. Schiemann, Stewards, P.M.'s; W. Biggs, P.G. Sec., Berks and Bucks; J. Wilson; J. H. S. Reid, Bros. W. S. Nicholes, A. Pears, J. Andrews, R. S. Garratt, T. Hiseock, Whomes, Ferry, Webster, Pennicott, Jones, Duffield, and others. Visitors:—R.W. Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P., P.G.M. Berks and Bucks; the Windsor Castle Lodge, No. 771, was both numerously and influentially represented by Bros. Alderman W. Devereux, P.M., P. Prov. G. Sec., Berks and Bucks, Bingham, W.M.; Grisbrook, P.M., P.G.J.D.; Tolley, P.M., P. Prov. G.O.; Powell, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.; Cantrell, J.W., 1501; Carter and Briggs. There were also Bros. Read, P.M. 511; T. Bryett, 834; Nash, P.M., and Johnson, S.W. 865. The lodge having been opened by the W.M., Bro. Garratt was passed to the 2nd degree by Bro. T. Wilson, P.M. The W.M. then resumed the chair and raised Bro. Andrews to the 3rd degree, and then proceeded to instal his successor, Bro. J. O. Carter, into the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, the ceremonies being rendered in such a manner as to elicit expressions of unqualified praise. The newly installed W.M. then appointed and invested the officers as follows: W. R. Denne, S.W.; J. Canvin, J.W.; J. Pullin, P.M., Treasurer; J. Strange, P.M., P.G.S.D., Secretary; W. Crowhurst, S.D.; C. D. Hume, J.D.; R. Roberts, I.G.; E. Schiemann, D.C.; W. S. Nicholes and A. Pears, Stewards. Bro. L. Bryett, P.M., delivered the address to the W.M., and Bro. T. Wilson, P.M., those to the Wardens and Brethren. The W.M. then invested the I.P.M., Bro. Geo. W. Dixon, with a very handsome P.M. jewel, which was unanimously voted to him by the lodge in testimony of appreciation of the valuable and efficient services rendered by him during his year of office. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel, where the banquet was held. The usual Masonic toasts followed. The P.G.M., in responding to his health, which was eloquently proposed by the W.M., and most cordially received by the brethren, expressed his great satisfaction with his first visit to the Etonian Lodge, and complimented the brethren upon the admirable working which he had witnessed, and also on the prosperous condition of the lodge, which was highly gratifying to him, and which amply sustained the position as the oldest lodge in the Province.

LIVERPOOL.—HARMONIC LODGE (No. 216).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 14th inst., at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, when Bro. A. C. Moore was installed W.M. of the lodge by Bro. J. Jones, P.M. The officers appointed were Bros. J. Ismay, I.P.M.; G. Fowler, S.W.; W. Derryhouse, J.W.; Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, Chaplain; J. Laidlaw, Treasurer (re-elected); E. Evans, S.D.; B. Williams, J.D.; J. Hoult, I.G.; J. Rumney, S.S.; J. G. Bayley, J.S. The brethren afterwards banquetted, under the presidency of the W.M.

LEICESTER.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 279).—The annual festival and installation meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday the 6th January, 1875, at which a large number of visitors and brethren were present, amongst whom may be mentioned Bros. A. Palmer, P.P.G.A.P., W.M.; Clement Stretton, P.P.G., W.I.P.M.; J. W. Smith, S.W. and W.M. elect; J. M. McAllister, P.G.S.D., J.W.; William Weare, P.M. Treasurer; G. W. Stratham, P.G.S., Secretary; C. E. Stretton, P.G. A.P., S.D.; S. Cleaver, J.D.; G. Toller, P.P.G.S.W. 279, and P.M. 523; S. S. Partridge, P.G. Secretary, W.M. 523; W. B. Smith, P.G. Treasurer, P.M. 523; Dr. Clifton, W.M. 1391; J. F. Dixon, 1019; J. Clemmey, 930; also Bros. J. Jessop, Law, Rev. T. W. Gordon, J. Farndale, J. Hart, Rev. J. H. Smith, all of 279; W. Shout, I.G. 523; E. Mason, Secretary, 1391; and others. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed, the Treasurer's account was received, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to that officer on his re-election, for his long and valued services to the lodge. Bro. J. W. Smith, P.G.S.B. and W.M. elect, having been presented by Bro. Palmer, W.M., Bro. Toller ably performed the ceremony of installation, with the usual salutations and observances. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Alfred Palmer, I.P.M.; J. Malcolm McAllister, S.W.; G. W. Statham, J.W.; William Weare, P.M., Treasurer; Clement Edwin Stretton, Secretary; Samuel Cleaver, S.D.; Samuel Tebbutt, J.D.; Orlando Law, I.G.; William Weare and S. Cleaver, Stewards; C. Bembridge and T. Dunn, Tylers. After the lodge had been resumed in the first degree, the W.M. addressed the brethren, expressive of his high admiration of the efficient manner in which Bro. Palmer had ruled the lodge during the past year, with special remarks of appreciation of his Masonic zeal in presenting new Officers' Collars to the lodge during his year of Mastership. He then, in the name of the lodge, presented Bro. Palmer, I.P.M., with a handsome Past Master's jewel, bearing a suitable inscription, which had been unanimously voted to him by the brethren. Bro. Palmer gracefully acknowledged this memento of friendship and good feeling. It was proposed by Bro. Palmer, I.P.M., seconded by Bro. Stretton, P.M., and carried unanimously, that "A sum of Five Guineas be voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and placed on Bro. Waite's List." The routine business having been concluded, the lodge was closed in due form. The annual banquet was then served, of which a large number of brethren partook. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, drawing forth many eloquent speeches from the brethren. The toast of the evening, "The W.M.," was received in the most hearty manner. In responding, the W.M. felicitously announced his intention to rule the lodge not with an iron gauntlet, but with "a kid glove!" Bro. McAllister's reply to the toast of the Officers must have been very cheering and strengthening to the W.M., as he, on their behalf, assured him that it was their one earnest desire to be punctual in attendance and zealous in the performance of their Masonic duties. The harmony of the evening was considerably promoted by the musical talents of Bros. Palmer, J. H. Smith, T. A. Wykes, and others.

BODMIN.—LODGE ONE AND ALL (No. 330).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 13th inst., for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. John Hile, Mus. Bac. There was a very large attendance of visitors and brethren, including V.W. Bros. the Rev. A. H. Ferris, P.G. Chaplain; and T. Solomon (Truro), P.P.G.S.W.; W. Bros. Love Truscott, Dyke, Lukes, Matthews, and Higgins, of 330, St. Austell. The ceremony was most impressively performed by the Worshipful Master, V.W. Bro. Capt. Colvill, S.G.W. of Cornwall; and the W.M. then appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing year.—Bros. Capt. Colvill, I.P.M.; T. Hawken, S.W.; W. Rowe, J.W.; Capt. Colvill, Treasurer; R. Rich, P.M., P.P.J.G.W. Secretary; Hon. C. Agar Robartes, S.D.; W. Beacock, J.D.; Treval, D.C.; Garland, Organist; J. O'Neill, I.G.; Vincent, Steward; P. Carrol, Tyler. About fifty brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent dinner, at the Royal Hotel. The lodge has recently been decorated by Bro. Solomon, of Truro, and three handsome stained glass windows have been added by Bro. Fouracre, of Stonehouse, and is now one of the most attractive Masonic halls in the province.

BIRKENHEAD.—MERSEY LODGE (No. 477).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at the Masonic Chambers, Argyle-street, Birkenhead, on Thursday evening, the 14th inst., the special business being the installation of the W.M. elect. Considerable interest was evidently excited by the ceremony, as there was an attendance of nearly 120 brethren. Bro. R. Gracie, W.M., occupied the chair at the opening of the lodge, and there was a good sprinkling of the representative Masons of "the city of the future." A lively discussion took place on the minutes as to the election of W.M., and after nearly an hour's debate, Bro. Donald Fraser was declared chosen for the chair during the next year, "or until his successor shall be regularly elected and installed in his stead." The chair of Installing Master was occupied by Bro. W. Bulley, one of the Past Grand Officers of the province, and he proceeded to place Bro. Fraser in the chair of W.M. in a remarkably effective manner. The following brethren were subsequently invested as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. Gracie, I.P.M., Treasurer; J. G. Adams, S.W.; Wm. Pulford, J.W.; Samuel Jones, P.M., Secretary (re-appointed); John Dutton, S.D.; Robt. Rhodes, J.D.; T. Brown, I.G.; W. Lockyer, D.C.; J. Proudfoot and J. Perrin, Stewards; J. Wooley, Organist; and West, Tyler. It was unanimously resolved that Bro. Rodan, who had for many years been the excellent Tyler of the lodge, but who had latterly become somewhat enfeebled by old age, should be paid the same salary he had received during active service, and that he should be allowed to visit the lodge whenever he felt able to do so. At the close of business, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, supplied by Messrs. Fisk and Fairhurst, Castle-street, Liverpool, the newly-chaired W.M. presiding during the evening. He was supported by Bros. J. P. Platt, P. Prov. G.S.W.; W. Bulley, P. Prov. G.S.W.; E. Friend, another P. Prov. G.O.; F. K. Stevenson, P. Prov. G.S.B.; E. G. Willoughby, P.M. 477; J. Griffiths, P.M. 477; and others. During the after-dinner speeches, which did not begin till nearly ten o'clock, the Mersey was referred to as one of the largest and most prosperous in the province.

ST. AUSTELL.—LODGE PEACE AND HARMONY (No. 496).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John, on Tuesday, the 12th inst. The lodge was closed tyled at 2 p.m., when W. Bro. Truscott said that the first thing he had to do was to present to Bro. Guy, P.M., in the name of the lodge, a Past Master's jewel, which he did with many kind remarks of the services rendered by Bro. Guy to the lodge. Bro. Guy suitably replied. Bro. Loye was presented, as the W.M. elect for the coming year, with a board of Installed Masters, consisting of Bros. Colville, W.M. 330, P.G.S.W.; R. Rich, P.M. 330, P. Prov. G.J.W.; J. B. Paul, P.M. 1151, P. Prov. G.C.; E. G. Dyke, P.M. 496, P. Prov. G.O.; W. Guy, P.M. 496, P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. Grigg, P.M. 496, P. Prov. G.S.; W. Giles, P.M. 496; W. Hicks, P.M. 496; J. P. Berryman, P.M. 496; R. G. Ross, P.M. 1151, P. Prov. G.C.; E. Carlyon, P.M. 496, P. Prov. S.G.W.; and J. Tonkin, W.M. 977. The installation was most ably performed by Bro. W. Truscott, W.M. 496. The W. Master afterwards appointed and invested the following officers for the coming year:—Bros. A. N. Jervis, S.W.; T. J. Smith, J.W.; Guy, P.M. Treasurer; Paul, P.M. Chaplain; Mason, S.D.; Matthews, J.W.; Mufford, I.G.; Real, Tyler; Kirkham, D.C.; Wheeler, Steward; Gregory, Secretary; Guy, Steward to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund. The brethren afterwards dined at Bro. Gregory's, White Hart Hotel.

NEWBURY.—LODGE OF HOPE (No. 574).—On New Year's Day there was a Masonic gathering in Newbury, on the occasion of the installation of Bro. John Bance, as W.M. of the Lodge of Hope, No. 574. The ceremony, which was efficiently performed by the Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. W. Biggs, of Reading, took place in the Council Chamber, the dimensions of which were scarcely sufficient to accommodate the numerous body of Masons who assembled on the occasion. The W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Herbert, S.W.; Ravenor, J.W.; Deller, Secretary; G. M. Knight, S.D.; Head, J.D.; Glover, Organist; Fielder, D.C.; W. Knight, Steward; Hunt, I.G.; Dodd, Tyler. The brethren resolved, on the motion of Bro. Biggs, to make Bro. Deller a life member of the body, and present him with a testimonial, in recognition of the valuable services he had rendered to the lodge for some years past, as Secretary and otherwise. At five o'clock the brethren, numbering between 30 and 40, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Mr. Hamlen, of the White Hart Hotel, whose catering gave much satisfaction. The newly-installed W.M. presided; and the company included Bros. Biggs, P.M., P.G.S.; Portsmouth, P.M.; Wheeler, P.M.; Daniels (Oakley Lodge, Basingstoke); Bailey (Reading); A. Burns, I.P.M.; T. Deller, P.M.; B. Fielder, P.M.; W. H. Herbert, S.W. (in the vice chair); R. Ravenor, J.W.; G. M. Knight, A. Stradling, W. Graham, A. Judd, J. T. Stacey, C. P. Smith, W. Knight, S. Knight, Tegg, Corderoy, J. Carter, J. Brooke, Hammond, P. Glover, J. O'Farrell, G. J. Cosburn, F. Head, F. H. Maychurch, R. Johnston, S. Hunt, E. L. Farrow, T. Dodd, &c. The table was adorned by several handsome vases, filled with choice flowers, presented for the occasion; and the walls of the room were decorated with more than usual taste by Bros. Stephen and William Knight, who were much complimented upon the success of their labours. The room was festooned with evergreens and flowers, and well executed Masonic designs, which gave an appropriateness to the whole. The Prince of Wales's plume occupied a prominent position in rear of the W.M.'s seat, the heir-apparent being Grand Master of the Order. Beneath this was the well-known Masonic motto, "Audi, Vide, Tace." At the opposite end of the room appeared the words "Peace," "Unity," and "Plenty," while at the sides were—"Charity," and "A Happy New Year." The general effect was excellent, and greatly admired. The musical arrangements were kindly directed by Bro. Glover, who ably accompanied on the pianoforte. Dessert having been introduced, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," and remarked that the sons of our beloved Queen were probably the greatest patrons of Freemasonry of any Royal family since the world began. The healths of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the most Worshipful Grand Master, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon; the Right Worshipful the Deputy-Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale; and the rest of the Grand Officers of England, past and present," were severally honoured, after which the W.M. proposed the health of "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart, M.P." He (the W.M.) had hoped to have seen this gathering honoured by the presence of Sir Daniel Gooch, their worthy Provincial Grand Master, but a family meeting on New Year's Day, which Sir Daniel never set aside, had prevented him accepting the invitation. They were all aware that there was no one more anxious to promote the prosperity of the Craft, or who more deserved the goodwill, friendship, and fraternity of all Masons than Sir Daniel Gooch. He regretted that the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and their late D.P.G.M. (the Rev. Sir J. W. Hayes, Bart.), had also been unable to accept his invitation, through family gatherings. The W.M. coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Barron Fielder, P.S.G.W., who, in returning thanks, remarked upon the increasing prosperity of this province, which, he believed, would be inferior to none in England in a few years, if the members throughout the province worked together as the brethren did in Newbury. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Very Worshipful the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," for whom Bro. Biggs, P.G.S., responded, and, in doing so, expressed the pleasure he had derived in seeing how greatly the Loyal Berkshire Lodge had, in all respects, improved during the past seven or eight years. He felt gratified to be able to state also that Freemasonry had progressed satisfactorily throughout the entire province, and instead of there being but eight lodges, when Sir Daniel and he took office in the province, there were now fourteen. A new lodge was about to be opened at Maidenhead for residents in that neighbourhood. A new lodge had been started at High Wycombe, and he much regretted to say that a very distressing event had occurred in connection with it. He received an invitation from Bro. Jesse Owen, the founder, and first W.M. of the lodge, to visit it; but a day or two before the appointed time he was grieved to learn that Bro. Owen had dropped down dead, and it so happened, by a melancholy coincidence, that on the very day their departed brother was to have met him in the Wycombe Lodge, he was buried in Highgate Cemetery. An effort was being made to secure the election of the daughter of their lamented brother to the Masonic Girls' School, and he hoped the Newbury brethren would kindly reserve their votes for this deserving case. Bro. Biggs concluded by proposing "The Health of the W.M.," and remarked that he had never installed anyone with greater pleasure than in this instance. Bro. Bance had filled the office of Steward of the Masonic Charities on more than one occasion, and he (Bro. Biggs) felt perfectly sure, from the interest he had shown in Freemasonry, that he would perform all the duties required of him in his new position, and promote the prosperity of the lodge over which he had been chosen to preside. The W.M., in responding, thanked Bro. Biggs for the kind manner in which he had proposed the toast, and expressed his appreciation of the kindness of the brethren in having placed him in the position he occupied, and which he regarded as a great honour. He assured the brethren that nothing should be wanting on his part to promote the interests of Freemasonry in general and those of this lodge in particular. He had not entered upon the position he occupied without giving a full consideration to its responsibilities, and he hoped to discharge his duties in a manner that would reflect credit both upon himself and the lodge. The following toasts were also honoured:—"The Immediate P.M., Bro. Burns, and the other P.M.'s of the Lodge," responded to by Bro. Burns; "The Installing Master," acknowledged by Bro. Biggs; "The Visiting Brethren," replied to by Bros. Wheeler, Portsmouth, Daniels, and Bailey; "The Masonic Charities," responded to by Bro. Wheeler; "The Wardens and Officers of the Lodge," acknowledged by Bros. Herbert, Ravenor, Glover, G. M. Knight, W. Knight, and S. Hunt; "The Tyler's Toast," given by Bro. Dodd; "The Health of Bros. S. and W. Knight," with thanks for their services as decorators of the room (proposed by Bro. Cosburn), &c. Some excellent songs were rendered by Bros. S. Hunt, A. Stradling, Wheeler, Glover, Farrow, and others, and at eleven o'clock, the festive gathering broke up.

REDRUTH.—LODGE OF LOVE AND LIBERality (No. 589).—The annual festival was held on Monday, 11th inst., when Bro. E. S. Angove was elected the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was very impressively performed by the Installing Master, Bro. P. M. Tregay, assisted by the I.P.M., Bro. Cock. The finances of the lodge were reported to be in a very satisfactory state, showing a balance of about £90 in the Treasurer's hands, after paying £40 for a piece of freehold property in a most desirable situation in the centre of the town for the purpose of building a new lodge-room. The W.M. then invested the following as his officers:—Bros. E. M. Cock, I.P.M.; T. H. Martin, S.W.; John Thomas, J.W.; Willcock, Chaplain; J. H. Reynolds, P.M., Treasurer; J. Hocking, jun., P.M., Secretary; G. S. Bray, Assistant Secretary; W. Tresseder, S.D.; T. S. Kistler, J.D.; E. T. Pearce, D.C.; R. Rodda, I.G.; and Chapman and Pemberty, Stewards. Bro. Polkinhorne was re-elected Tyler unanimously after thirteen years previous service. The banquet was held at Bro. Tabb's hotel, and was largely attended. There were visiting brethren from Phoenix and Fortitude (Truro), Boscawen, Love and Honour, True and Faithful, and Cornubian. The lodge is in a very prosperous condition, numbering 103 subscribing members.

DEAL.—WELLINGTON LODGE (No. 784).—On Thursday last the installation of the W.M. of the Wellington Lodge took place in their lodge-room, Park-street. This interesting ceremony was ably performed by Bro. A. E. Ralph, P.M. and P.G.J.D. of Kent. After Bro. John Edward Apps, P.M., was duly installed, he appointed his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Woon, S.W.; Goodhall, J.W.; C. E. Shirley Woolmer, Chaplain; Apps, Treasurer; W. M. Cavell, P.M. and P. Prov. G.S.D. of Kent, Secretary; J. Doorne, P.M., Organist; W. H. Hayman, S.D.; F. Fitch, J.D.; T. Paul, D.C.; T. Stubbs, I.G.; T. J. Woodruff, S.; W. J. A. Norris, Tyler. After the business of the lodge was over, about forty of the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Mrs. Allen, of the Royal Hotel, in her usual excellent style. After the cloth was removed, the customary loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., and duly responded to; after which came the usual complimentary toasts. The Rev. Chaplain gave a lucid and extensive description of the origin of Craft Masonry. He clearly showed the important advantage of Masonry in bringing men together of all grades of religious opinions, so long as they are believers in the Great Architect of the Universe; teaching men morality in its purest principles, and to avoid all bad propensities. The evening was interspersed with some excellent songs from Bros. Doorne, Emmerson, Usher, Dow, Bordeaux, Meson, and others, and a very enjoyable and pleasant evening was spent, which will doubtless long be remembered by all present.

MILLBROOK.—LODGE MERIDIAN (No. 893).—The members met on Monday, 11th inst., for the purpose of removing their lodge to a more convenient and extensive building, "The National Schoolroom," to meet the requirements of this flourishing lodge. On this occasion the W.M., Bro. H. Filmer, presented the lodge with a very handsome silk banner, on a blue-and-white ground, the centre of which contains the whole of the emblems of Freemasonry. On the top is the plume of the M.W.G.M. of England, and at the bottom the armorial bearings of the R.W.P.G.M. of Cornwall, with the motto "One and All." Bro. Nicholls was raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. The W.M. was assisted by Bros. W. H. Bickford, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D.; E. Poor (P.M. of Carew Lodge), P.G.P.; W. Coath, I.P.M.; W. H. Clarke, P.M.; W. Harris, P.M.; W. Carne, P.S.D.; W. Cawse, S.W.; R. J. Laity, J.W.; S. Hatchings, S.D.; J. Broadhurst, J.D.; W. Hockaday, I.G.; and A. Fisher, Tyler. The brethren adjourned to the Commercial Inn, where an excellent banquet was provided by the host, and numerous loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to with enthusiasm. The new lodge-room has been beautifully fitted and decorated by Bro. G. Harris, P.M., Millbrook, and reflects great credit on his taste and abilities.

LIVERPOOL.—PRINCE OF WALES LODGE (No. 1035).—The annual installation meeting of the brethren of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 14th inst., when there was a very numerous gathering of members and visitors. The chair was taken and the lodge opened by Bro. G. Sculthorpe, P.M., who was supported by the following officers and members of the Prince of Wales:—Bros. G. Morgan, P.M.; T. Foggard, P.M., M.C.; J. F. Newell, P.M.; J. W. Turley, P.M.; H. Williams, P.M.; J. Salmon, J.W.; J. B. Bunting, Treas.; W. Westbury, S.D.; A. Salmon, J.D.; L. Peake, I.G.; J. Donkin, J. Whaites, A. Willis, J. Stephens, T. Hugo, W. Nelson, M. Walmsley, D. Robertson, J. W. McWean, T. M. Stother, G. Andrews, J. Hamson, J. P. Bryan, T. McWean, C. W. Stewart, T. Mason, R. Pritchard, W. T. Rees, W. Fothergill, R. Richardson, R. R. Forshaw, W. Forrester, J. Barlow, J. Richardson, G. Mitchell, J. Law, T. Ormiston, W. Yeoman, F. Wells, S. K. Gardham, J. Smith, H. Tyrer, W. D. Walker, R. Wilson, R. Ingham, J. Bird, W. Nicholson, C. Peake, W. J. Mullin, G. D. Peake, H. Robinson, F. H. Cox, R. Crawford, J. Pratt, R. Seddon, W. Longcake, H. Balmer, J. H. Gruer, A. Kerr, and T. Shirlaw. The visitors present were:—Bros. S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Healing, P.M. and Treas. 1264; J. P. McArthur, P.M. 1086; T. Lowe, P.G.S.B.; C. E. Bryan, 1313; J. Hocken, P.M. 673; R. P. France, J.D. 594; H. MacAulay, 339; W. Tolmie, 339; W. G. Veale, Org. 249; A. Peters, 1267; Captain T. Berry, 155; G. Wodlam, 1473; J. B. Mac Kenzie, 1356; and others. After the minutes had been confirmed, and the transaction of some formal business, Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.S.G.D. (in the unavoidable absence of Bro. H. S. Allpass, P.G.S.) proceeded to instal Bro. J. F. Newell, P.M., in the chair of the W.M. for the ensuing year. The installation work was very admirably performed by Bro. Wylie, and he received very valuable help from Bro. T. Foxzard, P.M., who gave the charges to the officers with his usual force and impressiveness. The newly installed W.M. subsequently invested the following brethren as his officers for the year, Bros. M. Walmsley, S.W.; A. Willis, J.W.; J. B. Bunting,

P.M. (again unanimously re-elected) Treasurer; J. W. McWean, Secretary; Bro. T. McWean, Assistant Secretary; Fisher, S.D.; R. R. Forshaw, J.D.; G. Stephens, S.S.; J. Whaites, J.S.; T. Fozzard, P.M. M. C.; and J. P. Bryan, Organist. A special choir gave a very choice selection of appropriate pieces in splendid style at the opening of the Lodge in the third degree, the salutation of the W.M., the placing of the S.W. and J.W. in their chairs, and at the close of the lodge. After several applications for charity had been heard, the lodge was closed in solemn form, and the brethren adjourned to the installation banquet at "The Liverpool," Limited, Rumford-street, where a very sumptuous repast was provided by Bro Ballard. The usual toyal, Masonic, and charitable toasts were given during the evening, Bro. J. F. Newell, the W.M., presiding in a very able manner. A capital selection of music was given by Bros. Barlow, Bryan (who was also the accompanist), Rees, Gilfillan, Forshaw, and Forrester. The after-dinner proceedings were singularly pleasant and enjoyable.

LIVERPOOL.—WALTON LODGE (No. 1286).—The tenth anniversary meeting of this prosperous and well-worked lodge, for the installation of its W.M., was held at the St. Lawrence's Schools, Croyland-street, Walton-road, on Wednesday, the 6th inst. The brethren assembled at 4 p.m. There were present Bros. Wm. Sephton, W.M.; J. P. McArthur, I.P.M.; J. Grimes, S.W.; C. McEwen, Secretary; Jos. Ellis, S.D.; Geo. Hamner, J.D.; Wm. Walker, I.G.; Wm. Archer, P.M., W.M. elect; Jno. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S.; Jas. Goodacre, P.M.; J. C. Lunt, P.M.; R. Abraham, P.M. Bros. Councillor Capt. Dransfield, Rev. C. R. Hyde, L.L.D., Dr. Parry, Dr. Lewis, Capt. Moore, Capt. Reid, G. J. Townsend, W. G. Sharpe, J. J. Savage, W. H. Beardwood, R. Beckett, H. Gill, G. Cain, J. Griffiths, &c., &c. Visitors:—Jno. Jones, P.M. 216; G. Sculthorp, P.M. 1035; Jno. Pemberton, 1274, and P.M. 1264; H. Williams, P.M. 249; Jno. S. Dixon, W.M. 1264; C. Leighton, W.M. 1325; R. R. Martin, P.M. 1094; Wm. Smith, S.W. 1235; Wm. Roberts, J.W. 1264; Dr. McGregor, 680, and others. The lodge was opened by the W.M. The minutes, so far as related to the election of the W.M. and Treasurer, were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the 2nd degree, when Bro. Jno. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S., took the chair as Installing Master, when Bro. Archer, P.M., W.M. elect, was presented by Bros. McArthur, P.M. and Wm. Sephton, I.P.M. The lodge was opened in the 3rd degree, and a board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Archer was duly installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient rite. The brethren below the chair were then re-admitted, and the W.M. was duly proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Sephton, I.P.M.; C. McEwen, S.W.; J. Ellis, J.W.; Jas. Goodacre, P.M., Treasurer; Rev. Dr. Hyde, Chaplain; Jno. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S., D. of C.; G. Hamner, Secretary; Wm. Walker, S.D.; G. J. Townsend, J.D.; W. G. Sharpe, I.G.; W. H. Beardwood, S.S.; J. J. Savage, J.S.; M. Williamson was unanimously elected Tyler. The Installing Master gave the customary addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, in a very able manner. Bro. McArthur, P.M., proposed, and Bro. Sephton, I.P.M., seconded, "That the cordial and hearty thanks of the lodge are due, and are hereby tendered, to Bro. Lunt, for the very able manner in which he performed the duties of Installing Master," which was carried unanimously. Bro. Lunt thanked the brethren. The lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet in the Large Hall, which was decorated for the occasion with flags of all nations and Masonic decorations in evergreens, the tables being beautifully decorated. Upwards of 75 brethren sat down. The cloth being removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and responded to. Bro. Councillor Capt. Dransfield, responded for the Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces. Bro. Lunt, Prov.G.S., responded for the Prov. Grand Officers. Bro. Sephton proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Archer, W.M., responded. Bro. Archer, W.M., proposed the Installing Master, and said he had never heard the ceremony so well-worked before, and congratulated Bro. Lunt upon his efficiency. Bro. Lunt responded, and alluded to our late Bro. Capt. Mott, who had always performed that ceremony, excepting on one occasion, when Bro. J. C. Lunt, P.M., installed his successor. Bro. Abraham responded for the P.M.'s, he having come from Manchester on purpose to be present. Bro. McEwen, S.W., responded for the Officers. Bro. Goodacre, P.M., Treasurer, responded for the Masonic Charities, and Bro. Vines, P.M., for the Visitors. The brethren spent a very pleasant evening, the enjoyment of which was considerably enhanced by Bro. Jones, P.M., 216, who accompanied the songs on the piano. Bro. Gill performed on the "Fairy Bells," which was highly appreciated by the brethren. The dinner and wines fully sustained the reputation of Bro. Casey.

BRIGG.—ANCHOLME LODGE (No. 1282).—At a lodge of emergency held on January, 4th inst., Bro. Thos. Fryer, who was unanimously elected at a previous regular lodge as W.M. for the ensuing year, was formally installed in the chair by W.M. Copeland, P.M. of Pelham Pillar, No. 792, Grimsby, assisted by P.M.'s Wm. Pigatt, T. Marris, and Geo. Nelson, of the Ancholme. The following brethren were afterwards suitably addressed and invested as officers by the newly appointed W.M., viz.: the Rev. T. E. Hodgson, S.W.; and C. W. A. Field, J.W.; J. Wilson, S.D.; T. B. Dalton, J.D.; C. L. Hett, I.G.; J. Cawkwell, Tyler; W. H. Paterson, D.C.; J. Spring, Organist; E. Abraham, Steward; and T. Cleugh, Secretary. The Treasurer elect was unavoidably absent. The W.M. next having most feelingly thanked the brethren for the great honour they had conferred upon him by placing him in the proud position he then occupied as Master of the lodge, said that a most pleasing duty devolved upon him before he sat down; indeed, nothing could have given him greater pleasure than that of attaching to the breast of Bro. Wm. Pigott, a Past Master's jewel, and he begged his acceptance of the same as a token from his brethren of their high esteem and appreciation of the very able manner in which he had discharged his duties as W.M. during his year of office. Bro. Pigott, who was evidently taken by surprise, rose under considerable emotion, and thanked the W.M. and brethren for their handsome present, assuring them that whenever he wore that jewel, it would always remind him of their kindness and his obligation to promote to his utmost the prosperity of the lodge. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Copeland, who had performed his work as Installing Master in a very efficient and admirable manner. Thanks were also given to P.M.'s Wm. Pigott, T. Marris, and G. Nelson, for their valuable assistance, which were suitably and pleasingly acknowledged by each. After hearty good wishes had been given by the visitors, &c., the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the Angel Hotel, where a sumptuous complimentary banquet was given to Bro. Pigott, the retiring Master. During the evening the usual Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to by appropriate speeches. Special enthusiasm, however, was evoked when the health of the guest of the evening (Bro. W. Pigott) was proposed, also when he, in the course of his reply, declared his unqualified and unalterable attachment to the principles of Freemasonry, and to his mother lodge, the Ancholme. In conclusion, he thanked his brethren, who had, he said, most liberally responded to an appeal he had recently made to them on behalf of the Masonic charities, of which he had the honour to be P.G.S., so that he should appear at the festival which would be held in London, that month, in what he regarded a most enviable position as their representative. The remainder of the evening was spent in a harmonious manner.

HAMPTON HILL.—FRANCIS BURDETT LODGE (No. 1503).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, on Wednesday, the 13th inst. Bros. Colonel Wigginton, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C. of Worcester, W.M.; Saunders, S.W.; Tomlinson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D. of Norfolk, J.W.; Walls, Acting S.D.; Deekes, J.D.; Roehrick (34), acting I.G.; Knaggs, Treasurer; Mitchell, Secretary. The minutes of the meeting of December 9th last, and the minutes of an emergency meeting, held on the 15th ult., when Mr. Vaughan was initiated, and Mr. Court proposed to be a member, having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Knaggs to the sublime degree of a W.M. This impressive ceremony was carried out in all its beautiful and solemn entirety in a most excellent manner. Bros. Rogers, Lovett, Saunders, Mitchell, and Clarke, were then passed to the degree of F.C. The ballot having been taken for Mr. Court, and declared unanimous, he was duly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, together with Mr. Bennett, previously balloted for. The two last ceremonies were carried out by the W.M. in the same impressive manner as had characterized the first working. It was proposed by the Treasurer, and seconded by the W.M., that Bro. Richards, of the Beaufort Lodge, become a joining member. Some minor business of the lodge having been transacted, it was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to a cold collation after the termination of their labours, which had occupied nearly four hours. In consequence of the lateness of the hour the W.M., after giving "The Queen and Craft," and "Bro. H.R.H. the Grand Master designate," which were heartily received, announced that the other usual toasts would be curtailed; but gave at length the toasts of the "Initiates" and also that of the "Visitors." Bro. Court responded for the first-named, and Bros. Richards and Carless for the latter. The healths of the Treasurer and Secretary were proposed, received, and responded to by Bros. Knaggs and Mitchell. The toast of the remaining officers was given, and replied to by Bro. Walls, I.G., in the absence of his colleagues. He stated that, as an officer of the lodge, he was proud to think that in so short a time as three months they had 29 members on their register, which happy result was due to the sole exertions of the W.M. and his Wardens, and he felt sorry that Bros. Saunders and Tomlinson were not present to reply to the toast which had been expressed in such kindly terms by their W.M., who, he hoped, would be many years spared to promote the interests of the Francis Burdett Lodge, and assist by his presence in its ceremonies as first P.M. Between the toasts Bros. Mitchell and Walls contributed several popular ballads. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings. The Visitors to the lodge were Bros. Roehrick, 34; Richards, 103; Carless, 140; and Cohen, 1298.

INSTRUCTION.

RICHMOND.—LILY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 820).—There was a very good attendance of the members of this lodge, held in connection with the mother lodge, No. 820, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Saturday, the 9th inst., to witness the ceremony of installation, which was rehearsed, up to a certain point, by Bro. Preceptor Myers, P.M. and W.M. of the mother lodge. Bros. Walls, 1381, was W.M. elect; Wells, S.W.; Bateman, J.W.; Hubbard, S.D.; Weaver, J.D.; Lamb, I.G.; Koch, P.M.; and Phillips, Secretary. The whole working of the impressive ceremony was excellently well rendered by Bro. Myers—the delivery of the address being particularly good; and, at the conclusion, the Preceptor was complimented by the brethren upon the highly satisfactory result of his efforts for their instruction. The brethren being "called off" for a short time, the lodge was re-opened, and the W.M., Bro. Walls, worked the ceremony of raising in its entirety, including the whole of the traditional history. Bro. Koch, W.M. 1381, kindly acted as candidate. At the conclusion of the working, the Preceptor proposed—which was seconded by the J.W., Bro. Bateman, and carried unanimously—"That a vote of thanks of the brethren of the Lily of Richmond Lodge of Instruction be recorded on the minutes for the very able manner in which the duties of W.M. had been carried out by Bro. T. C. Walls, of Nos. 1381—1503, that evening." The W.M. having returned thanks for the honour awarded to him, the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful, terminated.

Royal Arch.

TOTNES.—PLEIADES CHAPTER (No. 710).—On Thursday, the 14th day of January, the quarterly convocation of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, when, after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the officers for the ensuing year were appointed, viz: Comps. H. G. Beachey, M.E.Z.; P. D. Michelmores, H.; W. B. Maye, J.; J. Heath, P.Z., S.E.; E. Seale, S.N.; J. Westhead, P.S.; W. H. Taylor, Organist; G. Heath, I.P.Z. Treasurer. Comps. B. Prowse and J. S. Saunders were nominated as Assistant Sojourners. Bro. W. Harris, of Lodge Devon, No. 1138, was proposed as a candidate for exaltation. The chapter was then closed with prayer, according to ancient custom.

Royal Ark Mariners.

BOLTON.—MOUNT ARARAT LODGE.—A meeting of the members of this lodge was held on Saturday, Jan. 9th, to confer the degree of Ark Mariner on four candidates: Bros. J. C. Lunt, P.G.J.D. (Mark); A. Turner; W. Quayle; and J. Hetherington, all duly qualified Mark Master Masons. The Ark was floated by W.Com. J. Newton, N., having on board his Officers and Crew. Bro. Brockbank was Chief Officer, and the rest of the officers were at their appointed stations, Bro. Hayner being at the look out. Signals of distress having been observed by the look out, the Ark bore down, and received on board the four distressed Mark Master Masons, who were then regularly elevated as Ark Mariners according to ancient custom. The Ark was afterwards steered for shore, and safely moored until the next cruise. The Mariners then landed, bound for Liverpool, there to disseminate the knowledge of this degree, where it is intended shortly to build and launch an Ark for the reception of other Mark Masons who seek refuge on board.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—WALTON CONCLAVE (No. 97).—On Monday, the 10th inst., the regular muster of the Knights of this Conclave was held at Kirkdale, when four candidates presented themselves for installation, viz., Bros. Captain Andrew Moore, Wm. Davidson, John Gilchrist, Alex. Donaldson. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by Em. Sir Knt. T. Ashmore, acting M.P.S., assisted by Em. Sir Knt. Joseph P. Lunt, P.S., and Sir Knt. G. E. Hamner, as Viceroy. Amongst the companions present were Sir Knts. William Quayle, as H.P.; N. Turner, P.; Beardwood, S.B.; Hetherington, Howell, &c. Sir Knt. H. Gribbin was elected a joining member for a sister conclave, and was subsequently appointed and invested as Herald. The vitality of this young conclave is increasing, and will soon reach its statutory number of members, to justify the installation fee being doubled. A preliminary meeting of the Sanctuary K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John, attached to this conclave, was then held, and some business transacted for the working of this degree. The P.G.R.G. read over a list of "Mounts" from which to select a name, and it was resolved that the Sanctuary should be called "Mount Zion." Some important communications were read and discussed, and the names of two candidates duly qualified as Royal Arch Masons and Red Cross Knights were proposed for the first working assembly of the sanctuary. Sir Knt. J. C. Lunt, P.G.S.B. and Past Commander Sir Knt. W. Quayle, P.G.H., took part in the discussion. Labour having ended, refreshment followed.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.

LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—A specially agreeable "harmony" meeting of this lodge was held in their new hall, at No. 30 Hope-street, on the 8th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. John Munro, presided, the other office-bearers present being Bros. D. Lamb, D.M.; J. E. Spiers, S.M.; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; Finlay, Treasurer; and W. H. Bickerton, Secretary. Two Past Masters of the lodge were also present—Bros. John Davidson and Julius Brode—the latter of whom officiated as J.W. Amongst the visiting brethren who paid the lodge the compliment of their attendance, were Bros. D. Murray Lyon, Proxy Prov. Grand Master of the West Indian Islands; John Baird, P.G. S.W.; John Wallace, R.W.M. 413; Robert McDougall, R.W.M. 553; J. D. Young, S.W. 34; Jas. Love, J.D. 87; D. McDougall, Secretary 87; and J. B. Fitzroy, 333. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of previous meetings read and passed, the R.W.M. said he had first of all to perform a duty which he felt quite incapable of performing—namely, briefly to refer to the loss they had recently sustained in the death of their esteemed Bro. John Ure, who came and went among them for so many years, and was so long associated with them in the management of the lodge. Bro. Ure was probably the least ostentatious, and, at the same time, one of their most useful members. In his heart, as in his life, he was a good and faithful Mason. Mild and moderate in all his sayings and doings, one of the most inoffensive and quiet of our brethren, he was yet a brave and firm-hearted fellow. In all that concerned the welfare of the Craft, and especially of that lodge, he took a warm and deep interest, and pursued the work with a devotion, gracefulness and success, that might well be the envy of the best amongst them. They would not soon get one like him. Whilst he lived amongst them he carried with him their esteem and goodwill; and now he was gone, they followed him with their regrets and their tears. In concluding, the R.W.M. stated that there would be recorded in the minutes of the lodge their sense of the loss they had sustained in the removal of their brother. Bro. John Davidson said he could hardly trust himself to say anything in the matter, except that he felt very deeply the remarks that had been made by the R.W.M. Twenty years ago he had been associated with Bro. Ure, and his absence now he felt as a kind of blank in their midst. He (the speaker) did not think their brother had left behind him an enemy either in the Craft or out of it. He might state that, at the funeral, it had been proposed among a few friends that a monument should be erected to his memory; and it was thought that perhaps the lodge would take the initiative in the matter. For his (Bro. Davidson's) own part, he thought it would be a very graceful thing for them to subscribe to such an object. Bro. Brode, in a few words, endorsed what had been said by the previous speakers. Had he been a relative of his (Bro. Brode's) own, he could not have felt the loss more. A better man, he believed, than Bro. Ure never lived. That was saying a great deal; but he said it advisedly. With regard to the proposition of the monument, he would gladly pay his mite, or use his influence in any way for the promotion of that object. The R.W.M. said that, before proceeding to refreshment, there was just another little matter he would call their attention to—namely, the services rendered to the lodge by Bro. Baird in their recent dispute with the railway company in reference to their late premises in Croy-place, and their sense of the value of which had been entered in their minutes. These services were substantial benefits, as he had no doubt they were considerable gainers by Bro. Baird's professional experience in such matters. The lodge was deeply indebted to Bro. Baird. In reply, Bro. Baird said he could not tell them how gratified he was on receiving, through the Secretary, a copy of the minute of their last meeting, acknowledging his services. He thought they had made a good change as regards premises, and he wished lodge 360 all prosperity. The lodge was then called from labour to refreshment, when the brethren sat down to an excellent supper, purveyed in first-class style by Bro. Thornton, of the Clarendon Restaurant, Argyle St. Thereafter, toasts of "The Queen," the "Three Grand Lodges," and "The Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," having been given and pledged with all honours, the chairman gave the "Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," which, he said, was a P.G.L. that looked very sharply after its daughters; and there was no doubt that the more that that was the case, the better. The visitations were carried on in a very painstaking style; and he could not give an account of the many schemes of usefulness which the P.G.L. of Glasgow had organized. Not only was it second to none in Scotland, he would go farther, and say—in no invidious sense—that it was at the head of them. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Baird, P.G. S.W., who replied. The encomiums, he said, which they had bestowed on the P.G.L. had been deserved. Their late P.G.M., Bro. Spiers, did a good deal to set things in order in the lodge; and after his death, their present Master, Bro. Neilson, with his "aid," Bro. Barrow, had made it now second to none. All the lodges under them in the province were in a good state, in good working order; and none of them were in arrears to Grand Lodge—a feature in the province which he should like to see in all others over the country. He hoped at next visitation to find them (Lodge 360) in a state of very great prosperity. Bro. Brode then gave "The Last Laid Stones of 360," coupled with the names of Bros. Hunter and McWilliam; which, having been replied to, Bro. McDougall, 553, proposed the toast of "Lodge Commercial." It was the first time he had had the honour of being in Lodge 360; but he hoped it should not be the last. Although this was his first appearance among them, however, neither the lodge, nor its doings, nor some of its members were new to him; and he might state that in the management of their own lodge (553) the Commercial was one of the few lodges in the province to which they looked as a pattern and example. Perhaps he ought to apologise for his being there on that occasion; the fact being that he had been under the impression that he was coming to an ordinary business meeting. However, he should always bear in mind the kindness with which he had been received. He had the honour of coupling with the toast the name of the R.W.M., Bro. Munro. The Chairman, in reply, said he feared that Bro. McDougall had done them more than justice in his remarks. He could assure them that for his own (the chairman's) part and that of the brethren of 360, they accepted those remarks as a great compliment; and he hoped that, in part at least, they deserved it. That 553 should take or adopt any of their (360's) rules for their guidance was a compliment which the latter must appreciate highly. He was sorry at not having been able to be present at the festive board of 553 on a recent occasion to which he had been invited, and which he had heard passed off most creditably. Lodge 360 would be very happy on any occasion to have the company of brethren of Lodge 553; and he hoped that the kind feeling which Bro. McDougall had expressed would be promulgated between the two lodges, and that they should often have the opportunity of reciprocating these courtesies. Bro. Brode briefly supplemented the chairman's remarks. He also had been asked to the harmony meeting, and he had been able to go; and he could assure them he spent a happy and pleasant evening indeed. He trusted they should spend more such nights together, both there and here. Bro. D. Lamb, D.M., proposed the toast of "Masonic Literature," which, he thought, ought to be better supported than it had hitherto been in this country. If brethren studied it more than they did, they would benefit thereby—they would become better

Masons. The toast was responded to by Bro. D. Murray Lyon, who said that to have one's name associated with it under such circumstances was a high honour. It was matter of regret, it was discouraging, that the literature of the Craft should be, as such, at a discount. The history of the Craft was a most interesting one at all times; and now it was assuming a degree of importance which, in the early days, was never dreamt of. There was one feature in connection with the brotherhood which he should like to refer to. If they thought over the list of the men who composed the early lodges, they would find that they were composed of the first names in the country; and the selection of the Craft in those days ought to be an example to us in these modern days. The doors now were opened far too wide. They ought never to meet in a lodge with any whom they could not meet with in ordinary life, while he had known of returned convicts being admitted into lodges. For the evil in question he did not see any better way than that which he understood was proposed at present in their own lodge, viz., raising the fees, and he hoped they would be successful in carrying it out, and that other lodges would follow their example. Reverting to the subject of the toast, the speaker said he took great delight in the paper called the Freemason, of London, which, he thought, formed a redeeming point in contrast with the rubbish that had been palmed off as Masonic literature in the past. The next toast was that of the "Visiting Brethren," proposed by Bro. Brode, who, in so doing, said he did not believe there was a lodge in the world more proud to see visiting brethren than 360. They endeavoured to make them as welcome as they possibly could, and the oftener they came the better pleased the lodge were to see them. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. McDougall, R.W.M. 360, who said he felt very much indeed the honour thus placed upon him, and responded to it with all heart and sincerity. He thought the toast which they had just proposed was one of the most comely things among their Masonic duties, and he hoped it would never be left out at any harmony meeting. Masonry was nothing if it was not hospitable, and his lodge, 553, made it a point to be very attentive to visiting brethren, both on business and harmony nights. That was a point in which they should always endeavour to follow the lead of Lodge Commercial, and to outstrip them, if such might be. That, however, would be a happy fight—there would be no recrimination nor broken bones there. The toast of "Past Masters of the Lodge" was then given by Bro. Speirs, S.M., coupled with the name of Bro. John Davidson, who, on behalf of Bro. Brode and himself, expressed the pleasure they had in being present that night, while Bro. Brode, by whom also the compliment was briefly acknowledged, remarked that he enjoyed that social meeting as much as he had done others of the same when he was J.W. of the lodge, some twenty years ago. The lodge was never in a more prosperous condition than at present. It had a Master, a Deputy Master, a Senior Warden, &c., second to none—not to speak of a strong body of Past Masters who could help at a pinch. Amongst the remaining toasts were the health of Bro. Fitzroy, 333; proposed by Bro. John Davidson, P.M.; "The Musical Brethren present;" "The Ladies;" and the health of Bro. Thornton, purveyor on the occasion. We should add that at frequent intervals the proceedings of the evening were relieved and enlivened by songs, recitations, &c., contributed by Bros. J. D. Young, John Shaw, J. E. Speirs, Fitzroy, D. McDougall, 87; J. Stewart, and others. At a timely hour the lodge was summoned back from refreshment to labour again, and thereafter closed in due and ancient form.

LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on 6th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw, presided, with Bros. Stafford, S.W., Wm. Ferguson (No. 543) acting J.W. The lodge having been opened on the E.A. degree, and the minutes read and passed, Bro. J. G. Sharp, of Lodge St. Mungo (27), received honorary affiliation into Lodge 354, the ceremony being performed by Bro. A. A. Smith. The R.W.M. then called the attention of the lodge to their forthcoming annual festival, to be held on Friday, 5th March ensuing; and Bro. Sharp having thanked the lodge for their kindness in granting him honorary affiliation, and there being no other business, the lodge was duly closed.

FORT WILLIAM.

St. John's Kilwinning Lodge (No. 43).—The brethren of this lodge met on Monday, the 28th ult., for the purpose of celebrating the festival of St. John, and for the installation of the office-bearers for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was impressive, and efficiently performed by P.M. Bro. Donald Fraser. The following are the office-bearers:—Bros. J. M. Galbraith, R.W.M.; A. Miller, D.M.; J. McArthur, S.W.; R. Miller, J.W.; J. Young, Treasurer; A. McDougall, Secretary; J. McPherson, Clerk; Rev. P. Gordon, Chaplain; Ewen Cumming, S.D.; J. Black, J.D.; J. Wilkinson, Steward; J. Clark, I.G.; R. Tait and E. McMillan, Tylers. After the installation the brethren marched to the parish church of Duncannuburg, where they were addressed by the Chaplain, the Rev. Patrick Gordon. In the evening about 40 of the brethren sat down in the Chevalier Hotel to a sumptuous dinner, provided by Bro. Cameron, the R.W.M., presiding. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

MAUCHLINE.

St. Mungo Lodge (No. 179).—On the 13th inst., the members of St. Mungo's Lodge held their usual anniversary in the Loudon Hotel. Bro. Robert Armour, R.W.M., ably presided, and was assisted by Bros. P. M. Faulds and Major Adair. Deputations were received from St. John's, 22, Kilmarnock; St. David's, 26, Edinburgh; Loudon, 51, New Newmilns; St. James's, 135, Tarbolton; St. John's, 401, Catrine; and Burns' St. Mary, 505, Hurlford. After the reception, the brethren had a torchlight procession through the town, headed by the instrumental band. During the evening, Bro. Major Adair presented the lodge with two handsome swords, and also a donation to the funds, which were suitably acknowledged. Addresses were given by Bros. James Muir and Scobbie, and Bro. Alexander presided at the harmonium.

CAMBUSLANG.

ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 114).—The annual election of this lodge took place on 31st ult., when the following office-bearers were elected for the ensuing year:—Bros. George Anderson, R.W.M.; John Glen, D.M.; John Aitchison, S.W.; William Burns, J.W.; James Paterson, B.B.; Wilson Rennie, Treasurer; James Kirkwood, Secretary; John Burns, J.D.; Malcolm Paterson, S.D.; James Burns, J.D.; Archibald Paterson, I.G.; James Mitchell, Tyler.

DUBLIN.

NASSAU LODGE (No. 75).—This flourishing lodge held its installation banquet last week at the Masonic Hall, Molesworth-street. Bro. Alex. Robertson, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. W. Spence, S.W.; E. Wonfor, J.W.; and A. Fitzpatrick, Treasurer. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. T. Callinan, P.M. 75; J. Callinan, P.M. 75; S. Harty, C.E., P.M. 75; F. Marshall, P.M. 75; J. Hurst, 75; R. Thomline, S.D. 75; R. Callow, P.M. 75; W. Mathews, 75; E. Morrison, 75; H. Cochran, P.M. 75; J. Odbert, 75; W. Wilson, 245; W. Wilkinson, M.D., 100; F. Mellon, 120; G. Mellon, 93; W. Cross, P.M. 100; W. Christian, 100; J. Carr, 120; J. Burke, 75; J. Bolton, P.M. 120; H. Gerty, P.M. 120; E. Crofton, 245; W. Doolin, 100; J. O. Byrne, 245; W. Parker, P.M. 75; T. Brunker, G.L. 171; H. Hinkson, 232; J. MacIvor, 8; J. White, 120; W. Gerrard, 75; J. Mack, 100; W. Reese, London, P.M.; J. Clark, P.M. 222; W. Crutchet, 232; L. Degroot, 120; J. Girardine, 75; J. Macarthy, P.G.L., Antrim; W. Bolton, 120; J. Benson, 120; F. Benson, 75; and a number of other visiting brethren. The brethren partook of a choice banquet, supplied in Bro. Murphy's best style. This having been done ample justice to, the Worshipful Master proposed, in glowing terms, "The Health of the Queen," which was received with tremendous cheering. The next toast was "Our Brother, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Heir Apparent to the Throne of the British Nation," which was also received with immense cheering. The W.M. then proposed "The Grand Master His Grace the Duke of Abercorn," who he declared to be a nobleman of the true type, and one who was well fitted to rule over such a large, influential, and loyal body as the Irish Freemasons were—men of every shade of political and religious opinion, and all men above littleness and narrowness of sectarian or national hatred. The toast was received with great cheering and the usual salute. Bro. Andrew Fitzpatrick, as treasurer of the lodge, and representative at the Board of General Purposes, in supporting the toast of the Deputy Grand Master and the other Grand Officers, said he trusted that they would never see the chairs of the Grand Lodge of Ireland filled by others than men of rank and blood, and he felt persuaded that so long as they had the Duke of Abercorn, a Hertford, a Dunboyne, and a Plunket at their head, the Masonic body in Ireland must continue to flourish. He said he felt satisfied that the brethren of Lodge 75 would always support and maintain the dignity of Grand Lodge, and that no act of theirs would ever tarnish the glory of their time-honoured and ancient Freemasonry. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," to which Bros. W. Packer and Wonfor responded in suitable terms. The evening's proceedings were very much enlivened by a number of musical brethren. A collection having been taken up for the poor and distressed, the proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, the 20th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn took the President's chair. Bro. James Brett, the Senior Vice-President's, and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune the Junior Vice-President's. Among the other brethren present there were Bro. Herbert Dickets, Samuel May, Joseph Smith, Thos. Cubitt, James Willing, junr., Thos. Bull, William Smith, John Diprose, junr., Simmonds, C. Atkins, D. Betts, H. Bartlett, H. M. Levy, H. W. Harmsworth, W. Clifton, Crick, P. H. Swallow, H. Dubosc, Hyde Pullen, John Hervey (Grand Secretary), H. G. Burr, A. A. Pendlebury, and H. Massey (Freemason). There were very few cases on this occasion before the lodge, and of these several were deferred for consideration at next meeting. The lodge voted, in all, the sum of £170, to the cases of distress which were presented. Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned after an hour and a half's sitting.

OUR ROYAL BROTHER, PRINCE LEOPOLD.

Our Royal Brother, who has been seriously ill, is, we hope, by the last bulletins, now likely soon to rally from his somewhat protracted attack of fever and subsequent weakness.

HOLLOWAYS PILLS.—This purifying and regulating medicine should be occasionally had recourse to during foggy, cold, and wet weather. These pills are the best preventives of fevers, sore throat, diphtheria, pleurisy, and asthma, and are sure remedies for congestion, bronchitis, and inflammation. A moderate attention to the directions folded round each box will enable every invalid to take the pills in the most advantageous manner; they will there be taught the proper doses, and the circumstances under which they must be increased or diminished. Holloway's Pills act as alteratives, aperients, and tonics. Wherever these pills have been taken as the last resource, the result has always been gratifying; even when they fail to cure, they always assuage the severity of symptoms and diminish danger.—Adv.

In case of installation, should the retiring Master elect not to perform the ceremony, has he the privilege of investing any P.M. of the lodge, without reference to seniority to do so, or has the Senior P.M. of the lodge the right to claim the privilege in virtue of such seniority?

[It is rather a difficult question to answer, but we are inclined to think that the W.M. can call on any P.M. to perform the ceremony.—ED.]

J.B.H.: We think, on the whole, it is better not to publish your letter. We could not do so, at any rate, in the present form.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 23, 1875.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FUND.

We published in our last impression a goodly list of Stewards for the next Anniversary, Jan. 27th, of this excellent institution. We congratulate our energetic brother, James Terry, on thus enlisting in the best of all causes so many distinguished brethren of our common Order. Amongst our metropolitan institutions there is none which more demands the sympathy and support of Freemasons. For it appeals to all our best feelings, both of Masonic fellowship, friendship, and happy association. By the instrumentality of this most practical and truly fraternal medium, we are enabled to offer friendly and often most needful support, to those whom, maybe, we knew in younger days, full of health, geniality, and zeal for Freemasonry, to those whom affliction has visited, or old age has weakened. Some of us, as year by year we scan the lists of applicants, can call to mind the names of those who have been contemporaries with us in our own Masonic career, who have belonged to our own lodges, who were once happy and prosperous, and flourishing and friendly, but whom the hour of adversity has frowned upon, or on whom advancing years have told their customary tale. There are in our Order many most excellent men and Masons, who, not in affluent circumstances, and in comparatively a humble station in life, have never failed in their devotion and services to Freemasonry. We meet them in the lodge, we know them as the faithful Tylers of many a solemn gathering, and many a pleasant hour, and, weak and ailing, burdened by illness or years, they often, after many "lustra" of faithful service, ask for the benefits of the annuity funds to soothe the rugged pathway of the declining years of life. And not only this, prosperity and worldly wealth do not always continue here—"they make to themselves wings and fly away." We hear of cases and know of cases day by day, where, from unforeseen circumstances, many a well-to-do and wealthy brother is reduced to a low ebb of privation and decay. Hence the wisdom of our Benevolent Institution, which thus enables Freemasons year by year to offer a helping hand to many a worthy, but unfortunate, or struggling brother, to whom such aid is invaluable, and by whom that relief is most needed. Since the establishment of the Benevolent Institution, years ago, it has run an unchanging career of usefulness and fraternal sympathy. It has gradually grown from small beginnings to its present remarkable position of efficiency, activity, and undoubted good; and we trust that the next anniversary will demonstrate, under the kindly presidency of Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury, that the labours of Bro. Terry, and the praiseworthy zeal of the Stewards, have not been in vain. There is no institution, we venture to repeat, which more fairly and fitly claims the cheerful and liberal support of our benevolent Order. The Benevolent Institution has two branches of work, as well as the Asylum, to maintain and perpetuate in fulness and vigour. Not only do we seek by this institution, to aid our aged and suffering and decayed brethren, but we also endeavour to succour and support their widows! We should ill discharge our work of free-will Masonic charity, if we forgot those whom our brethren have left, as it were, to our sympathy and our care. And in this day of attack and obloquy for our innocent though inculcated Order—inculcated by the intolerant and the ignorant—we often think that our best reply is, "you doubt Freemasonry, you deride Freemasons, you condemn our principles; look at our acts, and above all remember our charities. We may be wrong in our view of things, we may be a very foolish, mistaken, perverse, or dangerous set of men, but you cannot deny that our practice answers to our profession, and that what we do as an Order is alike commendable and charitable." Certainly, if the education of the orphan sons and daughters of Freemasons, if the granting of annuities to aged and decayed Freemasons and their widows, is a proof of our "wicked conspiracy against governments and religion," we in England must so far fall under the ban of our hasty and selfmade censors. But if there still be "any virtue," if there still be "any praise" in all that is right and laudable, and loveable and true, in beneficent efforts and in fraternal good will, then let us gladly remember to-day that we, as an united Craft, as a genial and God-fearing brotherhood, year by year with unflagging zeal, and in unstinted measure, give and give freely, to the best of all causes, and for the truest of all ends. May all of prosperity attend the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution Anniversary, January 27th, and may Bro. Terry have to report in our columns another abounding proof of Masonic liberality, and unwearied goodwill.

A POINT OF MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

We have published several letters lately on a point which seems to have exercised the pens of our Masonic jurists. The case, as originally placed before us, was this. In a given lodge, A is the Senior Past Master of the lodge, but A leaves the lodge for two years, "demits," to use an American Masonic expression, altogether for that time from the lodge, but after two years is re-admitted as a joining member. What is his position in consequence? Does he or does he not remain senior P.M.? Our answer to that was that, by the "Lex inscripta" of Freemasonry in this country, he had, to the best of our belief, lost his precedence and became the junior Past Master at the time of his re-affiliation to the lodge. And for this reason "inter alia," that the whole of our Masonic system in this country is wisely based in the simple and practical test of lodge membership and lodge subscription. Failing that, the unattached Mason becomes, so to say, a "filius nullius," he has no position, no rights, no "locus standi," in English Freemasonry. As far as we know and understand the customs of our lodges, the cessation of two years membership takes away from the P.M. his seniority of position. Suppose, in the meantime, the lodge has built itself a hall at some expense. A leaves his brethren to bear the "burden and heat of the day," and comes back after two or three years, as the case may be, claiming the privilege of seniority as P.M., availing himself of the benefits obtained at the cost of others, simply because he was senior P.M. in time, and so remained all through those eventful years of lodge life and existence in which he has taken no part. But the whole theory of the lodge itself is dependent on the membership of subscribing brethren, and on subscribing brethren alone. A, from first to last, including two years of omission, and of non-payment of subscription in consequence, has been connected with the lodge ten years, of which he has paid for eight. B has paid ten years regularly. When A leaves, B, who is next to him, becomes Senior P.M., and remains so as long as he—B—continues a subscribing member. It is quite clear that A, who has demitted for two years, cannot, on his mere volition, and on his rejoining his lodge to suit his own convenience, put on one side B, who has paid on regularly and has never demitted, simply because A is senior in time. The whole question, as regards the lodge, is a question of subscribing membership, and very properly so; otherwise, in our opinion, many anomalies would arise, and many lamentable irregularities in our English Freemasonry, from which our admirable system is now happily free. The Book of Constitutions makes the Grand Lodge membership depend alone on membership in a private lodge. A P.M. who is not returned to Grand Lodge on the lodge list as a subscribing member, forfeits his status in Grand Lodge, and requires to be re-installed as Master and returned as a subscribing member of that or another lodge before he can regain his privileges. A brother has said that, as a Warden, a demitting P.M. could again recover his status in Grand Lodge; so he could for the year of his office, but no further. It is the privilege of a P.M., so long as he is a subscribing member of a lodge, to retain a perpetual membership, "virtute officii," in Grand Lodge. We have so far seen no argument which invalidates our original opinion on the matter. It is quite clear to us, that, if a P.M. leaves his lodge for two years, he loses his precedence as Senior P.M., and on his rejoining the lodge, becomes the Junior P.M., at the time of his re-admittance. Is he, despite absence, to reclaim his seniority over the heads of those who have never demitted? If the argument is good for two years, it may be pushed to three or four, or any number of demitting years. We therefore beg to maintain our view, and express our candid opinion, that, by the custom of our lodges, any P.M. who leaves his mother lodge for two years or for any time, so as to forfeit his private membership, and membership of Grand Lodge, on his re-admittance can only claim the position he has made for himself, namely that of Junior Past Master on the lodge roll at the time of his rejoining.

BRO. BINCKES'S REPLY.

We publish, with much pleasure, Bro. Binckes's reply in our impression to-day, closing, thereby, our friendly discussion; and the result of our fraternal controversy is, like the result of many other controversies in this world, that we must agree to differ on the special point to which reference has been made. We have a duty to perform to the Craft superior to any suggestions whatever of private views or personal consideration, and we treated this matter, as we shall continue to treat all others, when they arise, simply as affecting the general interest of the fraternity. We have evinced on many occasions how deeply and truly we have the welfare of our excellent Educational Institutions at heart, but we should not be discharging, as we deem it, our bounden duty, or maintaining our true position, in respect of our Order, if we did not fairly and fully, but temperately, state our candid opinion, without fear and without favour, on any matter which appears to require notice or demand animadversion. We spoke in the most friendly tone, but we expressed our opinion honestly and openly, simply because it was our opinion, and we have reason to believe that such opinion agrees not only with that of the great majority of Grand Lodge present on December 2nd, 1874, but also with that of most of our readers. We are the last persons in the world to refuse to any brother an impartial hearing, or to undervalue the opinion of the competent and the well-informed, and Bro. Binckes may feel assured that we shall always be ready to insert his communications, and always willing to consider carefully any suggestions emanating from his known experience, or dictated by his long connection with the Boy's School.

MASONIC QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

We have latterly received so many questions on points of Masonic jurisprudence and other matters, which are apt to be overlooked in our columns of correspondence, that we shall in future devote a small space to all such questions and their answers. Any brother who will favour us with his question, under a signature or initials, clearly written, and which reaches us on Tuesday, will be answered in the impression of Saturday. As our brethren are aware, we go to press on Thursdays; so that, in order to avoid delay and omission, it will be necessary to have the questions forwarded to the Editor, 108, Fleet-street, E.C., not later than Tuesday in each week.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the early part of November last, you kindly inserted in the Freemason a letter of mine, advocating Albert Hall as the most suitable building for the ceremony of the installation of the M.W. the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

Since then I have had frequent opportunities of ascertaining the feeling of the brethren upon the subject; and in every lodge, chapter, or other Masonic meeting that I have attended, the opinion has been unanimous in favour of ceremony taking place there.

It is true some objections have been stated, and to those objections I will endeavour to reply. It is said:—

- 1 Albert Hall is not consecrated.
- 2 We cannot have the banquet at Albert Hall.
- 3 The building cannot be properly tiled.
- 4 Albert Hall is too large.

So far as No. 1 is concerned, it is out of the field at once. Albert Hall is not consecrated for Masonic purposes, and it is not necessary that it should be. None of the great City halls in which the installation of Grand Masters took place were consecrated; therefore, if precedent is required, here is ample.

No. 2.—There is no necessity for a banquet at Albert Hall, unless it could be shown that it might be easily arranged by some of the great contractors (such as Spiers & Pond for instance). The Past and Present Officers of Grand Lodge and a certain number of brethren could dine as usual at Freemasons' Tavern; Provincial and other lodges could make their own arrangements prior to the day, and dine at either of the large hotels, or other houses where Masonic meetings usually take place.

As to No. 3 objection.—If I am rightly informed, Albert Hall can be properly tiled; the keeper has a master key, can shut out every one from the building the night before, and only admit those privileged. And it is but for the Executive of Grand Lodge to say that a hundred Past Masters are required to tile different doors, and another hundred to act as sentinels, both would be forthcoming immediately, and double the number if necessary.

If No. 4 objection should eventually turn out to be correct, it will be found a very good fault, if fault it can be called, and must certainly be far preferable than having the meeting in a place far, very far too small, which would be the case if the hall in Great Queen Street is appropriated for the purpose.

The only objection that I can see, is one that I have not yet heard mooted: viz., that there are Freeholders and Renters who have certain privileges.

Will they kindly abstain from enforcing their privileges upon such an occasion?—one certainly not contemplated when the Hall was built. No doubt they would, knowing they could not be present unless members of the Craft, and unless waiving their rights, the ceremony could not take place there.

Now as regards the ceremony taking place in our own hall, galleries must be erected, which would mar the effect of the whole proceedings, and, under any circumstances, the room could not be arranged to accommodate more than—perhaps a tenth of the brethren seeking admission. If the number is limited by tickets, great dissatisfaction would be caused, and if unlimited, the crush would be so great that it is not at all improbable some serious accident may ensue. We are approaching the greatest event in Masonry in modern times—let it be worthy the occasion. It is to be hoped that those with whom the arrangements rest will be fully alive to the important responsibility in their hands. So long as Masonry exists, this installation will be remembered; then let it be worthy of being remembered, but let it be remembered with gratification and satisfaction by the members of an institution who care not to interfere with others, but who hope and believe they can hold their own.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BOYD, P.M., P.Z.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As no determination seems as yet to have been come to on the points (as well subsidiary as principal) raised by your correspondents, will you kindly grant me space to state what I believe to be the law of the case. For the sake of clearness, I shall begin with the last-raised issue.

If any P.M., being a member of Grand Lodge, does not continue to be a subscribing member of some lodge, he loses the permanent seat in G.L., which his installation in the chair of K.S. gave him.

Should he be appointed W. of a lodge, he re-enters G.L., but only temporarily: i.e., during the continuance of his Wardenship.

Should he be again installed W.M., he again becomes possessed of a permanent seat in G.L.; but he is entitled to it on account of his recent, not his former, installation.

Thus, in Grand Lodge, his former P.M. counts for nothing more than a degree which, being once attained to, cannot be taken away, although, its duties having been abandoned, its privileges do depart.

Exactly so in the lodge in which the degree was gained. By non-continuance of subscription the member of a lodge severs his connection with it, and if he joins it again, does so on exactly the same terms as any other Mason of a like degree.

Now it is quite clear that a strange P.M. joining a lodge can have no seniority with respect to the P.M.'s of the lodge itself, for at whatever point in the line of succession such a P.M. should break in, a manifest injustice would be done to all below that point. Strange P.M.'s, then, ought to be taken no heed of on any point of precedence (except amongst themselves), nor asked to rule the lodge in the absence of the W.M., so long as any actual officer of the lodge, capable of discharging the duty, be present; and this should undoubtedly also be the case with the P.M. who lapses and rejoins.

In Grand Lodge such a P.M. must begin ab initio, and if such be the case there, the same rule must hold good in every private lodge.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

WM. TEBBS,

W.M. 285, and P. Prov. G. Chaplain, Somerset.

Jan. 18th, 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Brother E. F. says that the Book of Constitutions distinctly states that Wardens of private lodges are members of Grand Lodge (by virtue of the office of Warden), and that a P.M. "having for twelve months ceased to subscribe to any lodge, shall no longer continue a member of the Grand Lodge, nor can he regain that privilege until again installed Master of a lodge." He then goes on to say, if the P.M. in question were to rejoin his lodge, and happened to be appointed as Warden, he could not, during his Wardenship, attend Grand Lodge; and then he asks "how is this difficulty to be surmounted?" I reply, that he has quite correctly quoted the Book of Constitutions, and that I am quite at a loss to see any difficulty in the matter. It is quite clear and distinct that a seceding P.M. loses his Grand Lodge privileges, and can only regain them on a certain condition, very clearly defined by the Book of Constitutions—viz., that he be again installed a Master of a lodge.

I presume it is the same Bro. E. F. asking the question—"Who is the W.M. elect of a lodge"—under certain circumstances—viz., that Bro. B was elected Master by a majority of one vote, and, on arriving at the lodge, and being acquainted with the result of the ballot, "declined to be installed." I consider that Bro. B was premature, at that meeting, in declining to be installed because he could not be installed until after the confirmation of the minutes at the next following meeting; and the chances are that the minutes would not have been confirmed, as it is quite clear he had not gained the goodwill nor respect of the members of the lodge then present, and might have had even more against his election at the following meeting, when the minutes were put for confirmation.

He, however, very wisely, as I think, declined the honour conferred upon him by one vote, in a lodge of, possibly, as many as fifteen or twenty members. If he had declined at the following meeting, after the minutes had been confirmed, or the minutes had not been confirmed, then the brethren must have been summoned "to again proceed to elect a Master;" but as Brother B then and there declined to serve the office of Master, on the strength of the one vote, the brethren being summoned for the purpose of electing a Master, and the brother elected declining to stand—more especially as he "left the matter in the hands of the brethren," and retired from the lodge—the W.M. was perfectly right in requesting the brethren to vote again, in order to test the true sense of the meeting; and the ballot then being in favour of A—the then W.M.—A is clearly the W.M. elect, and if the minutes are confirmed at the next following meeting, he can be installed again, as the Masonic law allows a Master, if re-elected to serve two years in succession.

Yours fraternally,

M. O., P. Prov. G.J.W. Surrey.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with much interest the several communications under this heading in your paper, and I perfectly agree with the latter part of "Magnus Ohren's" letter in your last number, where he says, "With respect to the status of a P.M. in his own lodge, that is a right, not a privilege, to be recognised as a P.M. and he must be senior P.M. The fact has nothing to do with subscription, but refers to the date he passed the chair. On being re-elected in his lodge he will take his place in the lodge according to the date of his passing the chair."

If any brother will take the trouble to refer to the Book of Constitutions, he will find that all a P.M. loses by leaving his lodge for 12 months, is his membership with the Grand Lodge. I cannot see that there can be two opinions on the point.

Yours Fraternally,

AN OLD P.M. ONE, &c.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think that the so-called contradictory statements contained in the Book of Constitutions upon the above subject will be found easy of reconciliation if we be borne in mind that Grand Lodge is composed of two distinct classes of members—permanent and temporary. The former class comprises present and past Grand Officers and Past Masters; the latter comprehends the Grand Stewards of the year, and the Master and Wardens of lodges. Looking at the matter in this light, it will be seen that a Past Master who has for twelve months ceased to subscribe to any lodge, loses his permanent membership of Grand Lodge, nor can he regain it until after he has been a second time installed in the eastern chair. By appointment to a Wardenship, he can but acquire the limited right of attending Grand Lodge during his year of office, and, I take it, this is not the sense in which the words "member of the Grand Lodge" are used in the first of our regulations. There they must refer to the permanent membership which I have mentioned, as the context surely admits no other construction.

Yours fraternally,

H. MARTIN GREEN, P.M.

MARK MAN AND MARK MASTER MASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

Did time permit, I should like to allude at length to Bro. Walter Hill's letter, interesting for many reasons, and especially as a communication from our intelligent Brother in New Zealand.

The difficulties Bro. Hill alludes to as to the Regulations of different Grand Lodges and Grand Chapters which affect "unoccupied" Masonic Countries, are neither few nor unimportant, and, indeed, cannot well be surmounted, until such Lodges and Provinces are strong enough and able to preserve their own independence.

What affects the brethren in New Zealand as Mark Masons, in a similar manner also troubles them in the Craft and Arch Masonry. One Grand Lodge permits the three degrees to be given in a night, whilst another requires a certain time to elapse between the conferring of each degree. One Grand Chapter accepts candidates for "exaltation" without any regard to their age as Master Masons, and another requires each candidate to have been Master Masons for a certain period prior to admission. It would be strange, then, if the Mark Grand Lodge were any exception to the rule, and in fact it is not, for the fees for advancement being additional and independent of those for exaltation, frequently acts injuriously to its interests, especially in the Colonies. However, experience soon tells in its favour, because, under its rule, more time and attention are devoted to the degree in question than under a system which looks at it in the light of a preliminary ceremony only.

Under the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania there are several Mark Lodges, with hundreds of members, and we think, as a natural consequence, there is no state wherein the Mark Degree is more valued.

The earliest record in this country of the working of the Degree under consideration, was communicated by me in the columns of this paper soon after its advent, and is dated A.D. 1778.

The Mark Man was conferred on Fellow Crafts, and the Mark Masters on Master Masons, and it is because of the Mark Man being a ceremony in connection with the "Choice of ye Mark," also given to Fellow Crafts, that the Mark Grand Lodge, in its reformed Ritual, has wisely returned to the old custom; and whilst it would be awkward to confer the Mark Man on Fellow Crafts actually, brethren are so considered virtually during the ceremony, and Master Masons, when being made Mark Masters.

I have never seen, neither do I know, of any record which proves the Mark Man was in early days conferred on any but Fellow Crafts, and we know that the Mark Master's Degree was not communicated to any below the Third Degree. We see, then, how the Mark Degree is called a portion of the Second Degree, whereas it means but the Mark Man, and never the Mark Master. Here is our hand, Bro. Hill, with our best wishes.

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read Bro. Harriott's letter on the above subject with interest, and fully sympathise with his remarks. I think it very strange that while in Scotland the work of our lodges is wrought, with a few exceptions, as efficiently as in any of our sister countries, and while we are as enthusiastic as any about the beauty and sublimity of our principles, that yet our practice is so very different. We may shut our eyes to the fact as we like, but Scottish Masons and Scotch Masonry occupy a most unenviable position at the present moment. Neither in our own actions, nor in our works of charity do we practice what we preach, and thus we give the neutral world far too much ground to point at as the finger of scorn, and to libel us with a name I should not like to see even printed of us in an English magazine. There is something radically wrong in Scotland, and I fear that Bro. Harriott's scheme, however estimable, and however praiseworthy, is but lopping off the uttermost branches of the evil. We must have something to strike at the root.

Masonry in Scotland is far too cheap, and the customs of Masonry in Scotland are far too convivial (not to use a stronger term). Having stated these facts, a moment's thought will show that we have amongst us many who should never have been Masons, and we actually put beyond our pale the very men who already possess all the natural qualifications for becoming good Masons in every sense of the word. These men will not join us. They judge us by our works.

So long as Masonry in Scotland occupies its present position, any popular charitable scheme will convert our lodges into benefit societies, and anyone having the necessary fee, will join us for the benefits they may derive, as they would the Oddfellows, or any other kindred society. The status of Masonry must be raised, and this the Grand Lodge need not find so difficult a task. We have no need of new laws, we only want those we have stringently carried out. I do not wish to go into details, these are well enough known here, but there is work for earnest men, and I fear the ground requires some tilling before the seeds of charity will spring up as they ought to do.

I am, Fraternal Yours,

J.

BRO. BINCKES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

When I penned my very mild "expostulation" with the manner of your remarks on myself in your recent article on Grand Lodge, I little imagined I was risking the painful prominence to which you have elevated me in your last issue. I feel disposed to ask space for a few words in reply, though, recognizing the enormous advantage enjoyed by the occupant of the editorial chair, I almost question the policy, or the utility of doing so, especially when I have, as in the present instance, to combat views so authoritatively expounded as those in your article referred to. There are others, besides members of the Roman Church, who support the dogma of "infallibility," with whom argument is lost, and whom it is perfectly hopeless to attempt to convince; and some of these I have unfortunately met with in Freemasonry. They are of those who hold that there is a charmed circle, within which everything is proper, fitting, and orthodox, outside of which there is little or nothing worthy of attention or regard. They are fond of maintaining that for a man to fill a given position which, by the many, is regarded as useful and honourable, is, eo ipso, a bar to that preferment which it is the laudable ambition of everyone to attain to. They maintain that in the public discussion of questions in which certain men must, of necessity, be deeply interested, and in the details connected with which they have a large practical experience, those men ought to observe perfect silence, and to abstain from statements of facts which might be the means of guiding the judgment, and determining the votes, of those who have to give a decision. They refuse to see the difference between a fervid, sentimental appeal on behalf of one particular cause as contrasted with another, and the quiet exposition of circumstances which affect a general cause in which all are interested. In some assemblies the first is justifiable and often necessary, in others the second is always desirable.

But to leave generalities, let me address myself to one or two points in your article—let me follow you through all would be impossible—consistently with a regard to your space, your readers' patience, and my own time. 1. I never attempted to controvert the proposition "that in such a discussion the brethren and the Grand Lodge are perfectly competent to decide such an important question on an independent report like that of Bro. Clabon's." I recognize Bro. Clabon's generous desire to place at the disposal of our Educational Institutions just those means they so much feel the want of—the funds out of which provision may be made for promoting the career of Boys and Girls after they have left the Schools. I know the great differences of opinion with reference to the modus operandi suggested by Bro. Clabon, and in the Grand Lodge I was anxious simply to move a reference of the entire question as to how these funds might legitimately be provided, or some more extended support given to the Schools by the Grand Lodge, and to quote a few facts and figures in submitting my motion, leaving the Grand Lodge, of course, to arrive at a conclusion. 2. You ask "Will it be in the interests of the Charities to accept a grant from the Grand Lodge?" Surely this question is propounded in ignorance that all our Institutions do receive a grant from the Grand Lodge. The principle of the grant is therefore conceded, and on what grounds can it be contended that it is out of place to discuss the amount of such grant, and the source from which it shall be made, or for those who are responsible in the main for the production of the funds requisite for the efficient maintenance of our charities to assist in such discussion by placing the members of Grand Lodge in possession of the fullest information in their power?

3. Begging pardon for presuming so far, I did, and do, perceive that your "objection was not to Bro. Binckes qua Bro. Binckes, but to Bro. Secretary Binckes," and here is the gist of the whole matter; had I not held the office I have the honour to fill, my attempt to address Grand Lodge would have probably passed unnoticed, but the unsuccessful attempt made by "The Secretary" was too good a peg on which to hang a homily to be left unused, and so we have been favoured with your lucubrations on "the proper discharge of the duties of the 'Secretariat.'" To the conclusions you arrive at, I still unhesitatingly demur, and in my demurrer I am not without confidence in being joined by a "very large number of brethren, alike Metropolitan and Provincial."

But the subject grows, and I am warned that I have already exceeded the limits I prescribed for myself. At another time, and in another place, more may be said or written on a question with regard to which we are at variance. Let me assure you that you have not in any way "disturbed my wonted equanimity," and that I hope, with yourself, however freely or unreservedly I may express my views and opinions in your columns, or elsewhere, I may not allow myself to be betrayed into personalities, which injure a good case, and irretrievably condemn a weak one.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES.

THE UNITED ORDERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have learned from an unofficial source that the body calling itself "The Order of the Temple and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem" has taken the trouble to expel me from it. I think that it would have shown more wisdom if it had been careful to previously ascertain whether it had jurisdiction in my case, and more fairness if it had heard both sides. I am well aware of the personal animosity against me of two or three members of the "Council of the Great Prior." Since, however, fair-play does not apparently enter into the composition of this modern chivalry, it only remains for me to appeal to the Freemason for a hearing.

I state then, without a doubt, that this "Order of the Temple and Order of St. John of Jerusalem," as it calls itself, is not a Masonic body. Amongst my reasons for such belief are the following:—

1st. Its Names.—The Order of the Temple was not a Masonic body. The Order of St. John of Jerusalem is not a Masonic body. The Order of the Temple was utterly destroyed some 500 years ago. The Order of St. John of Jerusalem exists still in several parts of Europe, but it has given no authority whatever to the United Orders to usurp its name or jurisdiction. It is clear, then, that if the new body is properly called, it is not Masonic—and that if it is wrongly called, the sooner it ceases to sail under false colours the more respectable it will be.

2nd. Its Composition and Organisation.—(Great Crosses, Priors, Arch-Chancellors, Preceptors, Priorities, Preceptories, Convents-General, Aides-de-camp.)—It is hardly necessary to remind Masons that none of these are Masonic titles. What then are they? simply a jumble of mediæval and modern, chivalric and conventual, monastic and military. Their being hazily connected in a dream, I could understand; but their being in one system, and solemnly played at as such by a number of men who have arrived at years of discretion, is beyond my comprehension. Such a jumble requires one to "make believe very much" indeed. Now the system of the Masonic body known as "the Masonic Order of the Temple," a respectable body, pretending to be just what it was, and no more, was, at the time of its fall, two years ago, a thoroughly Masonic system—a system under which one or two men in London could not, as is the case in "the Order of the Temple" so called, either use the other members, with or against their wills, as mere puppets, or crush a single member who dared, as I dare, to form my own opinion and stick to it.

3rd. Its Acts.—The act which called the Order of the Temple and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem (as it calls itself) into existence two years ago, was the destruction of the Masonic Order of the Temple. How this was managed I need not here repeat. All Masons who know the facts are no doubt sufficiently ashamed of the transactions of that time. What has it done since it burst upon the astonished view of sensible men of the world, of students of history, of Masons? Where is it in our Masonic charities? Nowhere. What has it done? Nothing, but display a pitiable ignorance as to matters connected with the real Orders of the Temple, and of St. John of Jerusalem. Nothing, but dress itself up in white mantles and "make believe very much." A truly useful body, and comparing well indeed with the Masonic bodies!

4th (and for the present last, though not least).—The opinion of one of its high officials, which in a letter addressed to me, describes this "Order" as being not Masonic, but "only with a Masonic qualification," and also as being "spurious, and ad imitationem."

Now, as a Mason, I deny the power, and the right to assume such power, of any body, not being a Masonic body, to interfere with Masons in Masonic affairs, and I unhesitatingly assert that my Masonic obligation as a Masonic Templar cannot impose upon me allegiance, as such, to any body which is not Masonic; certainly not to one which did not exist at the time of my taking such obligation; and although the body to which I took allegiance is, for the moment, powerless, no person has power to absolve me from allegiance to it so long as I choose to hold to that allegiance. When therefore the self-made "Knights" summoned me to appear on the 26th Nov. last, before their council (not a Masonic body) in order to make before others official explanations regarding a matter in which Masonic obligations were concerned, I treated their summons, as they might have expected, with the contemptuous silence due to an impertinence. The "brotherhood of gentlemen" seems to have lost its temper at this natural result of its arrogance, and it commenced a correspondence, of which, however, it left me to pay the postage. As a further natural consequence of its own conduct, I declined to open its letters.

As a punishment upon me for natural results of its own conduct, this body of "Knights," (neither Masonic nor unmasonic), has held me up to execration. What was said at the meeting which expelled me, I don't know. When or where the meeting took place even, I don't know. But it is a new thing to me, as an Englishman, to be condemned, not only unheard, but also in my absence, and it unquestionably reflects more discredit upon the condemnors than upon the condemned. I cannot believe that any body can last long when conducted on such unfair, one-sided principles as these.

When the Masonic Order of the Temple springs once more into life, as I hope and trust that sooner or later it will do, I am ready to come before it as a Masonic body, if asked to do so, and to go thoroughly into any matter concerning my obligation to it up to the time of my ceasing to be a member of it. In the meantime, as a student of history, a lover of truth, a loyal subject, a Mason, and faithful to my duty as a Masonic Templar, I shall continue to regard the substitute order as a "spurious and ad imitationem" body, recognized as "Knights" only by themselves, made "Knights" only by each other, possessing no authority in Masonic matters, and having no feeling in common with the grand principles of Freemasonry.

I trust that in fair play to me, condemned unheard and in my absence by the so-called "Order of the Temple and Order of St. John of Jerusalem," you will permit me, through the medium of the Freemason, to place these, my views, before the large body of my brother Masons, whose good opinion I feel that I do not lose by suffering oppression and persecution at the hands of these very modern "Knights" on account of my old-fashioned fidelity to Freemasonry.

I am, faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

P.S.—I may add that I have appealed to the Judicial Council under the Tripartite Treaty, whose authority, I understand, "the Order of the Temple" acknowledges, but that up to this date (20th Jan.), I am not aware of the Council having been summoned. I presume, therefore, that the other parties to the treaty consider (as indeed they may justly do) that the treaty ceased to be in force on the disappearance of one of the parties to it, the Masonic Order of the Temple.

THE ANNUAL GRAND MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The 26th annual ball of the Masonic body in and around Liverpool, which took place at the Town Hall, Liverpool, on the 12th inst., again proved the most brilliant, by far the most enjoyable, and certainly the best conducted of the season; and every one of those present heartily endorsed this opinion. As in previous years, the assembly of the brethren of the Mystic Tie for 1875, was in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, which, thanks to the cordial support given to it for many years by the West Lancashire brethren, occupies a position scarcely second to any in the kingdom. In thus giving assistance to an institution which has done a noble work since its foundation, the Masonic body in this section of the province has not only done credit to their position, but set an example which might well be followed in other provinces throughout the United Kingdom, and over all the world. The prosperity of the charity is clearly shown by the fact that there is now an invested capital of nearly £12,000, and this sum is sure to be increased as years go on. There are now 70 children on the foundation of the institution, and this number is not only likely soon to be increased, but the committee of ways and means feel that they are warranted in seeking to widen the benefits of the institution to those who are now actually receiving education from its funds. With a brilliant gathering like that of Tuesday evening, and with a charity, the nobility of which commended itself to every one, the committee were perfectly right in trying to secure a distinguished patronage. And this they did, as the following list will show that the most illustrious names in Masonic circles lent the countenance of their names to the gathering:—

PATRONS.—His Worship the Mayor of Liverpool; Bros. Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England, R.W. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Major Starkie, R.W. Prov. G.M. East Lancashire, P.G.W. England, P.G.S.W. of West Lancashire; Gilbert Greenall, Esq., M.P., P.S.G.W., England, and P.S.W. of West Lancashire; Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Major G. C. Legh, Esq., M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Hon. F. A. Stanley, W.D. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Earl Bective, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cumberland and Westmoreland; W. R. Callender, Esq., M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M. East Lancashire;

Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. Shropshire and North Wales; Lieut.-Col. Birchall, W.P. Prov. G.J.W. West Lancashire; Sir James Ramsden, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. West Lancashire; John Prescott, Esq., W.P. Prov. G.J.W. West Lancashire; Major N. G. P. Bousfield, M.P.; John Pearson, Esq., W. Rathbone, Esq., M.P.; Right Hon. Viscount Sandon, M.P.; J. Torr, Esq., M.P.

No pains had been spared by the energetic committee to make the Annual Masonic Ball sustain its prestige, and the result of their labours was in every way most satisfactory. The whole of the splendid suite of rooms upstairs, was, thanks to the courtesy and kindness of the Finance Committee of the Town Council, secured for the purposes of dancing, and the Council Chamber, with the suite of rooms on the ground floor, was granted for "refreshment," supper, promenade, and kindred purposes. Plenty of room was thus given to the pleasure-seekers, and at no time in the evening, even when the attendance was the greatest, was there anything like crushing. The arrivals commenced as early as half-past eight o'clock, and from that time up till close upon midnight there was an almost constant stream of arrivals. At this time the three rooms set apart for dancing, presented a most brilliant appearance, and the ensemble can at no time be equalled at any other assembly. The ladies, generally, were dressed with exquisite taste, but in addition to this there was the additional and most striking effect of the Masonic clothing, worn by the brethren, representing nearly every degree. Craft clothing, of course, predominated, but there was also a plentiful representation of the members of the Orders of Royal Arch, Mark Masons, Red Cross of Constantine, Knights Templars, Rose Croix, K.H.S., &c. Nearly all the representatives of the several degrees wore full dress Masonic clothing, with the jewels and insignia of their rank and office. As a consequence, the picture in the ball-room was one of the most striking character, and delighted every one who witnessed it. It was estimated that about 800 persons were present at the ball, and amongst these were names most familiar in the history of Liverpool Freemasonry. His Worship the Mayor (Bro. Lieut.-Col. R. F. Steble) arrived about half-past ten o'clock, and stayed for a considerable time. Amongst others whom we observed present were:—Bros. D. W. Winstanley, P.M. 1094, P.Z. 1094 (Chairman of Committee); J. Ismay, W.M. 216 (Vice-chairman of Committee); H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823 (Master of Ceremonies); William M. Chudley, W.M. 241 (Honorary Secretary); G. Broadbridge, P. Prov. G.D.C., P.M. 241; W. Doyle, P. Prov. G.J.D. (Hon. Treasurer); Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M. 249; J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C.; G. Turner, P.M. 86; R. Brown, S.W. 241; G. Hutchins, S.D. 241; J. Pemberton, P.M. 11264; W. Sergeant, P.M. 203; T. Lowe, P.G.S.B.; A. Bucknall, 667; W. Vines, P.M. 1299; J. E. Jackson, J.W. 667; T. Clarke, P.M. 673; J. Evans, W.M. 1393; R. Bennett, J.W. 1299; J. Clegg, P.M. 1299; T. Ashmore, P.M. 823; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; H. Nelson, P.M. 673; W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823, T. B. Myers, S.W. 1082; J. E. Edginton, W.M. 1082; J. Lloyd, 249; J. Wood, Treas. 1094; J. Capell, 220; H. Hart, Dr. Speir, H.W. Nicholas, 249; H. James, P.M. 203; R. R. Martin, P.M. 1094; Russell (Washington Hotel); W. T. May, P.M. 673; A. C. Morrison, 594; W. Savage, 241; J. The committee of arrangements—with Bros. Lord Skelmersdale and the Hon. Fred Stanley as president and vice-president—did their work in a remarkably efficient manner. Bro. Wm. M. Chudley, the honorary secretary, deserves especial praise for the zeal, tact, and energy he displayed in the fulfilment of his duties, and honourable mention is due to Bro. G. Broadbridge for the active support which he gave in connection with the work. Bro. W. Doyle also did very valuable and hearty service as honorary treasurer, and the very attentive, courteous, and zealous staff of stewards could not possibly have been under a better captaincy than that of Bro. R. Brown.

The music was furnished by quadrille bands, under the direction of Bro. G. A. W. Phillips. During the evening, a pleasant feature of the entertainment was furnished by Bro. H. Gill, whose "fairy bell" performances gave the greatest delight to all who listened. The supper, refreshments, &c., were supplied by Messrs. Fisk and Fairhurst, the well-known caterers, Castle-street, Liverpool, and the manner in which they supplied the creature comforts for the occasion deservedly elicited universal admiration. The tables, elegantly laid out, fairly groaned beneath the weight of good things, and this "groaning" was considerably increased by a huge baron of beef which graced one of the principal tables in the Council Chamber.

The viands and wines were of the best quality, and the quantity supplied might have been sufficient for double the number. Dancing began about nine o'clock, and was continued for several hours with great spirit.

Obituary.

BRO. SERGEANT-MAJOR DYER.

Sergeant-Major Dyer, a fine specimen of the British veteran, died at his house in Vron Square, Upper Bangor, on Tuesday night, in his eighty-fifth year. He was born at Belfast on the 5th of November, 1790, joining the 97th regiment, then known as the Queen's German. Two years later the transport in which his regiment was being conveyed from Dublin to London was wrecked on the Anglesey coast, near Holyhead. He served through the whole of the Peninsular campaign, his first engagement, we believe, being that of Vemeira, on the 21st of August, 1808, when the 97th served with such credit that the name of the regiment was altered to that of the Queen's Own. His subsequent engagements were the passage of the Douro, on the 12th of April 1809; Talavera, July 26, 27, and 28, 1809; Badajoz, May 10, 1811; Albuera, 16th May, 1811 (in which the Queen's Own were attached to the 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers), Almaraz, and Vittoria. He also served in the Waterloo campaign, taking part in the engagement of the 18th of June, and in India and Canada, earning in the course of thirty-seven years service a glittering array of medals. After retiring from the army in 1841, he went to Tasmania, where he was engaged at one of the convict establishments, subsequently removing to the Cape of Good Hope, where he held a responsible position in the constabulary service. There is a rather romantic explanation given of his settling in Wales. When he and his companions were wrecked on the Anglesey coast, he was treated with such kindness by a woman living on the spot that he made a vow that he would marry no one but a Welsh woman. He kept his vow by marrying a woman from Llanfairfechan, and on her account he settled in this neighbourhood. Sergeant-Major Dyer had been a Freemason since 1812, and was the first to introduce the Craft into Tasmania. He was Tyler of the Llangefni, Llandudno, and Bangor Lodges, and the Janitor of the Carnarvon Grand Chapter. Until within the last few years he was the recruiting sergeant, an appointment which brought him in a small competence, but the late Government took the appointment from him, leaving him only a small pension as an acknowledgment of the services he had rendered to his country. The old soldier was always a Conservative, but never was his Toryism so strong as when the Liberals deprived him of half his income, and we well remember hearing him, on the day that Mr. Penman was elected for Carnarvonshire, declare that he had vowed never to put on his regimentals while "that Government of Gladstone's" remained in office. The vow was solemnly kept, and this fine old Tory was at length able to celebrate the return of the Conservatives to power by donning his uniform, and walking proudly through the streets in military attire. He belonged to a fighting family. His father was a riding master in the 23rd Light Dragoons, and was shot after delivering the despatches of Sir Ralph Abercrombie at Alexandria on the 21st March, 1801, when Michael Dyer was a boy of eleven. Three of his brothers were killed in battle; one at Talavera, in 1809, one in the siege of Badajoz, and a third at Busaco. He himself had many narrow escapes, but he managed to go through nearly forty years' service comparatively unharmed, and without loss of limb. During his residence in Bangor he was respected, and he will be much missed by the many to whom he was known. He was buried with full Masonic and military honours, the expense being defrayed by the members of St. David's Lodge, 384. The funeral cortege left Vron-square, the residence of the deceased, shortly before three o'clock. It was headed by a firing party of the 3rd Anglesey Artillery Volunteers, under the command of Quartermaster-sergeant William Thomas. The band of the Royal Carnarvonshire Rifles, playing "The Dead March in Saul," followed, and the procession, which was a very large one, further included the staff of the Anglesey and Carnarvonshire Militia Regiments, a detachment of the 3rd Anglesey Artillery Volunteers, under the command of Captain Whittaker and Lieutenant Savage, the Volunteer Fire Brigade, and the Coastguard, under the command of Chief-officer Nee. The Freemasons, wearing mourning regalia—who mustered very strongly, and included representatives from the Bangor, Carnarvon, Llandudno, Amlwch, and Llangefni Lodges—immediately preceded the hearse; and the private carriage of Captain Verney, R.N., Inspecting Officer of Coastguards, and a large number of local tradesmen, brought up the rear. The cemetery was crowded to inconvenience, and the streets through which the procession passed were lined with a thick fringing of spectators. The funeral service was read by the Rev. T. R. Walters, minor Canon of Bangor Cathedral, and Chaplain to the Segontium Lodge, No. 606.

Reviews.

MASONIC MUSIC. "OUR SONG."

We have received the words of this new Masonic song, written by Bro. Francis Bennoch, F.S.A., and set to music by our well-known and talented Bro. Donald W. King. Unfortunately, not musical ourselves, and not even having "a male cousin who plays on the German flute," or a fair "female cousin" who "sings," we are, perhaps, not the best of musical critics. Some one has said that it does not require much "knowledge" of anything to write a criticism upon "something," and as the poet sings,—

Can one in artless prose say why
Minds to poetic fancies fly?
And so prose-given rules defy,
Till wisdom with the wise ones die.

We have, however, been privately informed, to make up for our critical deficiencies, that not only are the words very effective, as we can all read for ourselves, but that the music is exactly suited to them, being facile and yet spirited, animated and yet graceful.

We commend it, therefore, in all well-founded confidence, to the notice of our many excellent amateur and professional brethren.

DO I NOT LOVE?

We are also glad to notice this little song, by our Bro. Donald W. King, both as to words and music. It is, we understand, highly commended by the ladies.

SPRING SONG.

We are also requested to call the attention of our readers to a pretty little song by Paul Semler, called "Spring Song," translated from the Fruhlings-lied von Heine by M. Immisch.

Masonic Tidings.

The Yorkshire Post says:—"The Marquis of Ripon, who, prior to his perversion to Rome, was building a large church in connection with the Church of England, has caused the same to be finished, and is about to hand it over, not to the communion he has lately joined, but to that which he has left."

Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor will preside at the 86th annual festival of the City Dispensary on Tuesday, February 23rd, at the London Tavern.

The Cripplegate Pension Society's Ball will take place on Thursday, the 28th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. Alderman Knight has kindly consented to be chairman of the evening.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor has been re-elected a vice-president of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Old Kent road.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Chard's, Abchurch Lane, Cannon-street, E.C., on Wednesday, the 27th Jan., by Bro. John Constable, W.M. 185.

We understand a Masonic temple is to be solemnly inaugurated in Rome, early next month. We are informed the occasion will be one of very great pomp.

A warrant has been granted by the Supreme Grand Council of England to certain members of the Rose Croix to hold a chapter in Truro. It is to be named the Cromwell Chapter, and Sir F. M. Williams, Bart, is to be the first sovereign. The second of February is fixed for the opening. Any brother wishing to take the 18th degree on that day had better communicate at once with Bros. C. Truscott, Trevarrack, St. Austell; N. J. West, Hayle; E. D. Anderton, Falmouth; H. Hawkin, jun., Redruth; and W. J. Hughan, Truro.

The Second Annual Ball of the Red Cross Order will be held at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, on Wednesday, the 31st of March. Colonel Burdett, G.V., will act as President; R. Wentworth Little as Treasurer; and H. A. Dubois and C. F. Hogard as Hon. Secretaries of the Ball Committee, which already numbers nearly fifty members.

MASONIC GIFT TO THE MARQUIS OF RIPPON.—Some of the most intimate of the Masonic friends of the Marquis of Ripon, several of whom are members of the Grand Lodge, although pained at his lordship's secession from the Order, intend presenting him with a costly artistic gift in recognition of his lordship's valuable services to the Craft, and as a mark of their continued esteem and friendship for him. The souvenir, the presentation of which was decided upon very shortly after the noble Marquis had resigned the Grand Mastership, has just been received from the hands of the artist. It consists of a jewelled casket of pure gold, six inches in length by four in depth. The corners of the lid on the outside are enriched with carvings of beautiful and appropriate designs, while raised in the centre is the monogram of the Marquis worked in jewels. Attached to the inside of the lid is a silver trowel, the surface being filled in and ornamented with the symbolisms of Masonry. An illuminated address accompanies the casket.—"Rosicrucian."

The Annual Festival of the United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction, No. 507, will take place on Friday evening, February 5th, 1875, at the Duke of Edinburgh Tavern, Brixton. The lodge will be opened at six o'clock precisely, and the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd sections of the first lecture will be worked. Bro. Mark S. Larham will preside. Dinner on table at 7.30, prompt. Brethren are invited to attend.

FREEMASONRY IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

CALEDONIAN LODGE (No. 489, S.C.).—The installation of R.W.M. and officers of this lodge took place in the Masonic Temple, Haskieu, on the evening of Monday, 28th December, 1874. There was a numerous attendance of brethren of the lodge, and many visitors from sister lodges in the province. W.M. Bro. Wm. Dorrell, presided in the E. After the time-honoured preliminaries of opening the lodge were over, Wor. Bro. Robt. McGill, in a manner highly creditable to himself, and very pleasing to the brethren, performed the duties of installation—1st, the re-installation of Bro. W. Dorrell to the Master's chair—an honour well merited for the efficient manner the business in the East had been conducted during the past twelve months. Second—The general office-bearers as follows:—Bros. Till, D.M.; Jamieson, S.M.; Rand, S.W.; J. Noble, J.W.; Chalmers, Treasurer; Frazer, Secretary; Lindsay, S.D.; Morrison, J.D.; Sutherland, I.G.; Tucker, M.C.; Dobson, Organist; and Scott, Tyler. This done, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment-room in the Temple, and, in unison with Lodge Leinster, No. 166, I.C., partook of a repast consisting of many Eastern delicacies. Wor. Bros. Dorrell and life alternately gave the loyal, Masonic, patriotic, and friendly toasts, which are usual and sacred to the Sons of Light. Song, story, and loving sentiment were happily given by brethren during the evening. Home, especially, shone forth in almost every chord—musical or prosaic. The small hours of the morning of the 29th too soon scattered the happy brethren.

FREEMASONRY IN JAMAICA.

ST. ANN'S BAY.—Seville Lodge (No. 530).—The election of officers for the above lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, on November 6th. The Master elected for current year was Bro. Henry P. Thompson; Albert J. Hart, Treasurer; Richard Watson, Tyler. The Master elect at lodge, held December 22nd, nominated the officers as follows:—Bros. Edmund N. Hart, D.M.; Samuel C. De Jaya, S.M. (Athole Union, 367); Alfred N. Sutherland, S.W.; Chas. W. Steer, J.W.; Dr. Geo. Cooper Saunders, S.D.; Barclay B. Chadwick, J.D.; Thos. Bartlett, I.G.; Caleb Reynolds, Secretary; J. H. Levy, Steward; George Roe, Steward. At the termination of the duties of the lodge, Bro. Thompson addressed the retiring W. Bro. Michael Solomons (the Past Master who has served two administrations), asking permission to append on the left breast of that brother a Past Master's jewel, in the name of the brethren of Seville Lodge, for his past zeal and worth as a Mason and brother, which was done. The jewel is beautifully mounted and has an inscription, "Presented to Hon. Bro. W. M. Solomons by members and officers of Seville Lodge, No. 530, on his retiring from past administration." The W. Bro. returned thanks, in an appropriate speech, to the brethren for their kind remembrance of him, stating that it ever would be his pleasing duty to uphold the Seville Lodge and Masonry in general.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. PETER LAIRD.—On Wednesday evening, the 13th inst., a dinner to Bro. Peter Laird, late Assistant Secretary of the Agricultural Hall Company, took place at the Criterion, in connexion with the presentation of a testimonial to that gentleman upon his retirement from office, and in recognition of the kindness, courtesy, and ability with which for many years he had discharged the duties devolving upon him. Mr. T. Rudkin, C.C., presided, and Mr. W. G. Guerrier, occupied the vice-chair. They were supported by Mr. Brewster, C.C., Mr. Blackesley, C.C., and representatives or members of the following firms, viz.: Sir W. Burnett, Messrs. Spiers & Pond, Messrs. Shand & Mason, Messrs. Greenboam, the Brighton Railway Company, Mr. T. B. Ayshford, Mr. Pullen, Secretary of the Smithfield Cattle Club; Mr. Cuffin, Auditor; and others. After the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, the Chairman proposed "The Health of Mr. Peter Laird," whom he described as one of the most honest, independent, and straightforward men, as well as faithful servants, it had ever been his lot to meet, an opinion the directors of the Agricultural Hall Company had also expressed by their presentation to Mr. Laird of a cheque for 100 guineas on his retirement. As a further expression of the high opinion of his personal friends, he (the Chairman) had the pleasure now to hand to Mr. Laird a purse containing 115 sovereigns, with a written expression of their sentiments.—City Press.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

GRAND MASTER'S LODGE (No. 1).—This ancient lodge, the mother lodge of England, met on Monday, the 18th inst., a numerous and distinguished company of brethren, amongst others Bros. Sir F. W. Truscott, Alderman Paterson, R. H. Giraud, Sandeman, Case, Rawson, Muggeridge, and others, being present. Bro. W. A. Colls, W.M., opened the proceedings by initiating Mr. G. R. Steel and the Rev. John Condor and passing Bros. Sir J. H. Glover and H. L. Freeman. He then requested Bro. W. S. Gover, P.M. No. 1, to perform the remainder of the duties, which consisted in raising Bro. Douglas Straight, and in installing the new Worshipful Master, Bro. G. Payne, and which were performed by Bro. W. S. Gover with his usual ability and to the great satisfaction of the brethren. After work the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet. Covers were laid for eighty.

COWES.—MEDINA LODGE (No. 35).—The annual meeting of this lodge, which is the most ancient in the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, was held on Thursday 14th inst., at the lodge rooms, in High Street. The brethren assembled at about 3 p.m., for the purpose of assisting in the installation of Bro. T. W. Faulkner. Bro. Faulkner has already filled the chair on one or two occasions, but the brethren knowing his zeal for Freemasonry again selected him as the Master for the year 1875. The lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the ceremony was carried out by Bro. J. G. Wheeler, the retiring Master, assisted by the other Past Masters of the lodge. The Master having been duly installed, proceeded to the appointment of his officers, when Bro. J. G. Wheeler was invested with the collar and jewel as I.P.M., and Bros. J. Hall Smith, S.W.; J. C. Ains, J.W.; G. Munt, S.D.; E. Wyatt, J.D.; S. Benzie, I.G.; J. Wallace, D.C. The business of the lodge having been concluded, the brethren retired to the Fountain Hotel, when Bro. Jones again served a splendid banquet. The chair was taken by the W.M., and the vice-chair by Bro. J. Hall Smith, P.M. and S.W.; each chair was well supported by the officers and brethren of the lodge. The various dishes having been partaken of and thoroughly enjoyed, the cloths were removed, when the chairman rose and proposed "The Health of the Queen," remarking on the many virtues of Her Majesty, and asking what country could boast of so good a Queen and mother. Music—"God save the Queen." The next toast was "The Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." The W.M. remarked that although the retirement of the Marquis of Ripon from Freemasonry altogether might be considered by the outer world as a blow to the Craft, it was no such thing, for our distinguished brother, the Prince of Wales, had most nobly come forward and would in a short time be installed in the chair as Grand Master of England. Other remarks worthy of our Grand Master elect were made and the toast was drunk with much enthusiasm. Music—"God bless the Prince of Wales." The next toast that followed was "Grand Lodge of England, and the Officers of the same." This was also well received. The chairman then proposed "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge," coupling with it the name of Bro. J. Hall Smith, the P.P.G.J. Deacon, remarking upon the zest that the P.G.M., Bro. W. W. Beach, had for Masonry, that he was always ready to do anything to further its objects, and to promote its welfare. All knew that Bro. Beach was a life governor of the charities, and they stood out in a most prominent way, showing to the world what Freemasonry did. The toast was well received, and Bro. Smith responded to the same. "The Healths of the I.P.M., the Past Masters, and Officers of the Lodge," was given, and drunk with a deal of good feeling. A most pleasant evening was passed, and as the hour of eleven drew on the brethren separated. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed with Masonic honours to the landlord for his preparations, and the evening concluded. We must not omit to remark that some capital songs were sung, and Bro. Scadding presided at the pianoforte.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 41).—The monthly meeting was held on Thursday, Jan. 7th, at the Masonic Hall. The lodge was opened at 7.30 by Bro. Major Preston, W.M., assisted by Bros. R. Carey, I.P.M.; Clark, S.W.; Brown, J.W.; Ashle, Treasurer; Everingham, Secretary; Falkner, S.D.; C. Wilkinson, J.D.; Braham, I.G.; Gazzard, acting as Tyler; and many other members of the lodge. The following also were present as visitors: Bros. Tate, 170; G. F. Cooke, S.W. 279; J. Sumpson, J.D. 53; B. W. Watts, I.W. 626. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. Dr. H. Hopkins, P. Prov. G. S. W. for Warwickshire, as a joining member, which proved unanimous in his favour, and the W.M. announced receipt of a note from him expressive of regret at his unavoidable absence from the meeting, owing to severe indisposition. Mr. Jacob Smith was reported as having presented himself, after the usual notice of a month, as a candidate for Freemasonry, and the ballot proving favourable, he was duly initiated by the W.M., who also gave him the charge in the first degree. Subsequently the newly-initiated brother addressed the W.M., Officers, and brethren, very neatly and feelingly, expressing his appreciation of the honour he had received, and his desire to prove himself worthy of it. The only other business which remained, was the election of W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. To the latter office Bro. Ashley was re-appointed, and the ballot for W.M. resulted in the election of Bro. Clark, S.W. The lodge was finally closed soon after ten o'clock.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, January 13th, at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was a good attendance of the brethren, all officers being present—Bros. Richard Simpson, W.M.; Ab. Barker, S.W.; James Barnish, J.W.; Dan Mitchell, P.M., Secretary; (Treasurer, being very ill, could not attend); R. Collingwood, S.D.; O'Dherty, J.D.; Bincliffe, I.G.; James Midgley, P.M., Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, at 5.15 p.m., and the minutes of the former lodges were read and confirmed; after which Mr. J. T. Worth, and Mr. J. Clegg, candidates for Freemasonry, were balloted for and approved. On account of business, Mr. J. T. Worth could not attend. Mr. J. Clegg was then initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry by Bro. Dan Mitchell, P.M., assisted by C. M. Jones, P.M., and T. B. Ashworth, P.M., after which he retired. The lodge was then opened in the second degree. Bro. Hutchinson, after having given proofs of his proficiency in the former degrees, was then entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree. The candidate was then admitted and duly raised by T. B. Ashworth, P.M., assisted by W. Davies, P.M. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren then adjourned to refreshment, which was well provided by the host and hostess. After the cloth was removed, the brethren partook of the cup of cheerfulness, and the usual toasts were then given, amongst which C. M. Jones, P.M., gave "Our Three Deceased Brethren," who had all departed this life within a few days of each other. It was given in solemn silence. "The Initiate" was next given, and was suitably responded to. The usual closing toast was then given, and the brethren departed in peace.

BEDFORD LODGE (No. 157).—The members of this old lodge met on the 15th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, and disposed of a large amount of Masonic business, the W.M., Bro. Briggs, initiating, passing, and raising several gentlemen and brethren into the various degrees in a very able manner, and which was much appreciated by the members and visitors. Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M., installed Bro. James Lear Drew into the Master's chair, with his usual care. The W.M. then made very judicious appointments to the several offices: Bros. Walton, S.W.; Poole, J.W.; and Creak, S.D. There was a good muster of P.M.'s of the lodge to do honour to the W.M., among them we noticed Bros. P.M. Cubitt Millis, Holland, Hills, Smith and Brauder. Among the attendance of visitors were Bros. Farthing, W.M.; Boyd, P.M.; Beard, P.M.; Kelping, P.M.; Pope, P.M.; Darke, P.M.; Nicholls, P.M.; Hillis, P.M.; G. R. Stacey, P.M.; and T. Butler. The usual P.M.'s jewel was unanimously awarded to the retiring W.M. An excellent banquet followed, the W.M. presiding with much ability. The evening's entertainment was much enhanced by the excellent singing of Madame Constantin, Mr. G. T. Carter, and Mr. Beale, Mr. J. D. Cunster presiding at the pianoforte.

ST. JAMES'S UNION LODGE (No. 180).—The usual monthly meeting of this large and important lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on Tuesday, the 13th inst., under the presidency of the esteemed W.M., Bro. Gallico, assisted by the whole of his officers. The meeting was called for half-past three o'clock, when Bro. Ladbury was duly raised to the third degree. Bro. Kasper passed to the second degree, and Messrs. Balestra, Raimo, Thompson, and Pavitt, were initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. Parsons, S.W., and W.M. elect, was then presented by Bro. Smithett, I.P.M., to receive from Bro. Gallico, W.M., the benefit of installation. A board of Installed Masters having been formed, he was inducted into the chair in a most able manner by Bro. Gallico. The W.M. then appointed and invested Bros. Gallico, I.P.M.; Gillard, S.W.; Annett, J.W.; Robinson, P.M., Treasurer; H. A. Stacey, P.M., Secretary; Pillin, S.D.; Smith, J.D.; Harrison, I.G.; Herf, P.M., and Farwig, W.S.; J. R. Stacey, P.M., D.C., and Gilbert, Tyler. The addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren, were given by Bro. Gallico in a most eloquent and impressive manner. The W.M. then invested Bro. Gallico with the Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted at the previous meeting, accompanying the investment with a short speech expressing his own and the brethren's feelings towards the W.M. Bro. Gallico having returned thanks, the W.M. rose, and announced, in feeling terms, the decease of Bros. Archard, P.M., and Thorn. Bros. H. A. Stacey, P.M., Cameron, P.M., and Parsons, W.M., having announced their intention of becoming Stewards for the Aged Freemasons' Girls', and Boys' Institutions respectively, at the forthcoming festivals, the lodge was closed, and the brethren (104 in number) adjourned to a most enjoyable banquet, which was presided over by the W.M. with intelligent ability. The various toasts were duly honoured, and some excellent singing by members and visitors—of whom there were thirty-seven—enlivened the evening. The brethren, amongst whom were many highly-distinguished, as Boyd, Cottebrune, Wilkinson, Binckes, and others, were loud in their praise of Bro.

Gallico for the very able and eloquent manner in which he had mastered the difficulties of the English language, and performed the various ceremonies and the installation. The brethren dispersed about eleven o'clock, after being reminded by the W.M. that the thirteenth annual ball would take place, on the 4th February, at the Freemasons' Hall.

DEVONPORT.—LODGE SINCERITY (No. 189).—The members of the Lodge Sincerity held their annual banquet at the Royal Hotel, Devonport. The banquet was an excellent one, and was exceedingly well served. Bro. J. E. Curteis, W.M. of the lodge, presided; and there were present, Bros. I. Latimer, I.P.M., and P.G.J.W.; R. R. Rodd, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Cornwall, and P. Prov. G.R. of Devon; Colonel Elliott, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Vincent Bird, P. Prov. G.T.; S. Jew, P. Prov. G.T.; the Rev. J. E. Risk, P. Prov. G.C.; G. Shanks, P. Prov. G.J.W.; C. Leigh, P. Prov. G. Secretary; T. W. Lemon, P.G. Chaplain; J. Sadler, P. Prov. G.S.B.; Aubrey Thomas, P.G.S.D.; Fowler, W.M. 1212; J. J. Avery, W.M. 70; J. H. Blackell, W.M. 1099; F. Hall, W.M. 156; J. Rendle, W.M. 1247; A. Latimer, S.W. 189; T. W. How, J.W. 189; R. H. Rae, Secretary, 189; and P. Prov. G.S.D.; J. E. Moon, J.D. 189; J. T. Fouracre, C. Croydon, Lieut.-Col. Fitzgerald, A. S. Hendy, J. Lewis, R. J. Laity, R. B. Oram, G. Barrett, G. H. Evans, H. Horton, J. Dampney, P.M., P. J. Pilditch, T. W. Hussey, Organist; G. Davis, G. H. Emery, Organist, 1205; C. Mutton, S.S. 1205; and J. Rogers, P.M., P.G.A., Tyler. After dinner the W.M. proposed the usual toast, commencing with "The Queen and the Craft." This was followed by "The Health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M. W. Grand Master of England," and the W.M. in proposing the toast remarked that the Masonic events with which his Royal Highness had been connected during the past year had been great and important. He now occupied the proud position of being Master of all the Masons of England, and he was quite sure the Prince was loved and respected by every one of his brother Masons. In proposing "The Right Worshipful the Earl of Carnarvon, D.G.M., and the other Grand Officers past and present," the W.M. said there were a great many people who thought Masonry would suffer when the Marquis of Ripon resigned the Grand Mastership, but subsequent events had proved how mistaken this idea was; and, while he should be exceedingly sorry to say anything that might be considered offensive, he could not refrain from expressing as his opinion that when a man forgot his country for the sake of a religion which fettered him hand and foot, rendering him a bondsman without mind of his own and compelling him to obey the dictates of a foreign potentate who had denounced Freemasonry in the most bitter terms, he was better out of Masonry than in it. He could not understand why it was that they had not more Grand Officers elected in the country. It seemed to him that brethren in the provinces holding Grand Offices were in a large minority, and that most of those offices were held by brethren in London. He presumed this arose from the fact that at those who had the disposal of these offices saw more of their London brethren, but at the same time there were many worthy Masons in the country who had fairly earned such a distinction, and in this respect there was room for improvement. The healths of the P.G.M. and D.P.G.M. of Devon, Bros. Huyshe and Metham, were next drunk with enthusiasm, and that of the G.M. of Cornwall, the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, followed. The W.M., in proposing these toasts, referred in eulogistic terms to the merits of the three worshipful brethren mentioned, and expressed a hope that many years would pass before any changes were made in the high offices held by them. The Worshipful Master next proposed "The Prov. Grand Officers of Devon, past and present." He said those brethren were near and dear to them as Masons, and all lodges alike, to a very great extent, looked up to them for guidance and advice. Those officers were not given to them unless they first worked hard for them; they did their work thoroughly well, and their hearts and souls were in Masonry. Bro. Latimer, Prov. G.J.W., returned thanks. During the few years that he had been connected with the Order, a very great advance had been made, both in point of numbers and influence, and recent events had tended to show that this advance had been accompanied by the most admirable feeling existing amongst all Masons. They had evidence of this in the generous and liberal response which was made, not only in this province, but over every part of the country, to the appeal of Bro. Metham for special funds in aid of the excellent institution with which he had been so long connected. During the time that Bro. Metham had been the D.P.G.M. of Devon, the affiliated societies connected with this great Order had taken a position, mainly through his activity, which they had never taken before. As an instance of the great cordiality of feeling existing amongst Masons, he would mention that not long since he received an invitation to attend a meeting of Mark Master Masons in Lincolnshire. That invitation was extended, he believed, to every part of the country, and he had since ascertained that no less than 250 Mark Masons were entertained by the Grand Master of the province on that occasion. This showed how wide and extensive was the feeling of brotherhood existing amongst all Masons; and it was a great pride to him to be connected with such a fraternity, distinguished alike for its honour, nobility, and benevolence. Bro. Latimer next proposed "The Health of the W.M. of Sincerity," Bro. Curteis. It was, he said, a great pleasure to him to be succeeded by a brother who was so competent to discharge the duties of the responsible office which he now filled, and who carried them out in a manner which reflected honour upon the lodge. Bro. Curteis was assiduous in the discharge of his duties, and he brought to bear upon them an amount of intelligence and accuracy which was exceedingly gratifying to all who had the pleasure of listening to him. He commanded the respect and esteem of all his brethren, and he (Bro. Latimer) hoped that he might pass through a good and successful year's work. The W.M. briefly acknowledged the toast, and, in so doing, he called attention to the fact that although the numbers of Masons had increased, he was afraid due regard was not had as to the character of the persons admitted to the Order. Lodge Sincerity had always been most particular upon this point, and he trusted that the W. Masters of other lodges present would be the same. The W.M. also touched upon one or two matters connected with Sincerity Lodge, having reference to its working, and the attendance of past officers. Bro. Rodd responded for the Past Masters of Sincerity, and Bro. Col. Elliott for "The Visiting Brethren and Sister Lodges." "The Wardens of Lodge Sincerity" was the next toast proposed by the W.M., who spoke very highly of the way in which those officers did their duties. Bro. A. Latimer, S.W., who was the first to respond, said Lodge Sincerity had always taken a good stand amongst Masons, and the W.M. was certainly doing all he could to maintain the position which it had so long held. In that work Bro. Curteis would have the hearty support of all his officers. Bro. How spoke in similar terms. It was a great pleasure to the young members of the lodge to see the way in which the older members did their work, and they hoped that by and by when their time came to fill the higher offices they might be able to do their work with equal ability. The Treasurer, Secretary, and assistant officers of the lodge were next toasted, and Bro. Rae, the Treasurer, and Bro. Moon, S.D., responded. The last toast of the evening, "Our Poor and Distressed Brethren," was proposed by the Tyler, and received in the usual manner. Valuable musical assistance was rendered during the evening by Bros. Moon, Rendle, Lemon, Horton, and Mutton; Bro. Hussey gave a very amusing recitation, and Bro. Jew, as usual, led the musical responses with his well-known vigour and ability.

PORTSMOUTH.—PHOENIX LODGE (No. 257).—The installation of the Worshipful Master of the Phoenix Lodge, No. 257, for the ensuing year took place on Tuesday, 20th ult. The ceremony was very ably performed by the retiring W.M. (Bro. John Lillywhite), and at the close the newly-installed W.M. (Bro. J. Cornelius Wheeler, of Southsea), appointed and invested the following as his officers:—Bros. J. Lillywhite, I.P.M. and Treasurer; H. Reed, S.W.; F. Court, J.W.; E. W. Jolliffe, Secretary; J. T. Oliver, S.D.; O'Connor, J.D.; Puttock, I.G.; Woodfall, Organist. About twenty-five members afterwards sat down to a banquet, at which the W.M. presided. Amongst those present were Bros. Meehan and J. N. Palmer, P. Prov. G. Wardens; G. S. Lancaster, P.J.G. Warden; Forbes, P. Prov. G. Essex; Frost, P.G. Treas.; De Fraine, P. Prov. G. Deacon; Diver, P.D.G.M. Bombay; G. Rake, H. Wood, W. M. Richards, and Pean, P.M.'s; Morrison, W.M. 309; J. Craven, W.M. 342; Maltby, W.M. 487; and Hall, W.M. 903, and others.

BOSTON.—LODGE OF HARMONY (272).—The brethren of the above lodge celebrated the festival of St. John on Thursday, 7th January, when Bro. John Ashlin Thomas was installed Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The lodge was held in the Assembly Rooms, and the ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Francis Snaith. The newly-installed W.M. appointed the following brethren as his officers: Bros. Francis Snaith, I.P.M.; Rev. G. W. Lowe, S.W. and Chaplain; W. H. Barwick, J.W.; C. Pickering, S.D.; A. Thorpe, J.D.; W. H. B. Bratley, O.; E. Organer, I.G.; and W. Wharrie and T. Loughton, Tylers. After the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to their hall, in Main Ridge, where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared by the Misses Jackson, of the Peacock Hotel, and it is almost needless to add that it was a splendid entertainment, done in the usual style for which the Peacock is so famous. Full justice was accorded to the repast by the brethren present, and grace after meat having been tendered by the worthy Chaplain, the following toasts were given in eloquent terms: The W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft;" "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family;" "The M.W. Grand Master of England, the Prince of Wales; the R.W. Deputy Grand Master of England, the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Grand Officers;" Bro. W. H. Bailes, P.P.G.S.W. West Yorks., proposed "The R.W. P.G.M. of Lincolnshire, the Duke of St. Alban's, the D.P. G.M. of Lincolnshire, Major Smythe, and the Prov. Officers, past and present;" Bro. C. Pecklington, P.P.G.S.W. responded. Bro. F. Snaith, P.M. P.G.S.D. proposed "The W.M.;" Bro. J. Ashlin Thomas, W.M. responded. The W.M. proposed "The Immediate P.M.;" Bro. F. Snaith, P.M. P.G.S.D. responded. Bro. J. Queenboro' proposed "The Past Masters;" Bro. T. B. Hildred, P.M. responded. Bro. G. Young, P.P.G.S.W. proposed "The Past Officers;" Bro. W. H. B. Bratley responded. Bro. W. Clegg, P.P.G.S.W. proposed "The Newly-invested Officers;" Bro. G. W. Lowe, S.W. and C. responded. Bro. C. Jackson, P.M. P.G.S. proposed "The W.M., Wardens, and Brethren of all the other lodges in the Province;" Bro. Wm. Pooles, W.M. 838, P.G.A.D.C. responded. Bro. W. H. Barwick, J.W. proposed "Prosperity to the P.G.L. Benevolent Institution;" Bro. F. Stanwell, P.M., responded. Bro. W. R. Fowler, Secretary, proposed "The Visiting Brethren;" Bros. Pooles and Cranmer responded. Bro. E. Organer, I.G. proposed "The Ladies;" Bro. H. Snaith responded. In giving the toast of "The W. Masters, Wardens, and Brethren of all other lodges in the Province," Bro. C. Jackson, P.M. said: I have the honour to propose the next toast; I wish the toast had fallen to the lot of some expert brother, more competent to perform so important a duty, and who could more fully have done it that justice which its importance demands. We, as brethren and members of lodges in the Province of Lincolnshire, cannot be otherwise than very proud of the position which our province holds in the good estimation of the Craft generally throughout the country. The wonderful zeal and energy displayed by distinguished brethren in the cause of charity and other good works cannot but be fully appreciated by us, and such zeal is an excellent incentive for others—"go and do likewise." You, worshipful sir, and brethren of the old Lodge of Harmony—senior lodge in the province—have plenty of work cut out for you during the ensuing year. The proper reception of the Provincial Masters, Grand Officers, and Grand Lodge will tax your zeal and energies fully enough. But our work will, no doubt, be lightened by the effective help, which I am sure we shall receive from our sister lodge "The Franklin." From the excellent W.M. downwards, the members of that lodge are all workers, and we shall need their very valuable assistance. As my toast is of such a comprehensive and widely extended nature, and the mere allusion to all the lodges in detail would take up too much of your time, I shall only revert to one, and that is the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge recently instituted. The Grand Master of that lodge, Bro. John Sutcliffe, is a Mason of whom we may be proud indeed. His princely efforts in the cause of charity, and his wonderful liberality, make him truly a "Mark" Mason. There are observations often indulged in by some brethren, to the effect that the Mark Degree is not recognized by the Grand Craft Lodge. If it is not, all I can say is, that it ought to be. When we see around us so many zealous Masons who are members of Mark Lodges, there cannot be much reason why it should not be, and if the interests of the Craft generally are benefited by Mark Lodges, the time will soon come when their usefulness and importance will be fully recognized in the proper quarter. I now give you, with much pleasure, "The health of the W.M.'s, Wardens, and Brethren, of all the other Lodges in the Province," coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Wm. Pooles, W.M. of the Franklin Lodge.

GIBRALTAR.—LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 278).—Monday, December 28th, 1874, was the day fixed for the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year, and at 9.30 p.m. a very numerous body of brethren assembled in Horse Barrack Lane to do honour to the occasion. Bro. Carver, P.M., occupied the chair and opened the lodge in the first degree, when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and the W.M. elect, Bro. F. J. Marshall, was presented for installation, who, having pledged his allegiance to the ancient charges, the ceremony was proceeded with and completed in due form. The W.M. then invested the officers for the ensuing year as follows:—W. Glassford, S.W.; E. Gatt, J.W.; J. Speed, Treasurer; C. V. de Santy, Secretary; B. E. Owen, S.D.; N. Clavessio, J.D.; J. Preston, D.C.; J. J. Aboab, I.G.; A. Mackworth and A. de la Cruz Frolich, Stewards; J. Peterkin, Tyler. The entire ceremony was most admirably and impressively carried out by Bro. Carver, P.M., who received the hearty thanks for the very efficient manner in which it was done, more especially as it was the first occasion on which he had been called upon to act in the capacity of Installing Master. Bro. Carver assured the brethren that he felt much gratified by this kind expression of their appreciation of his services, and that he should at all times be happy to do all in his power towards furthering the prosperity of the lodge. The W.M. then thanked the lodge for the distinguished honour they had conferred upon him, that he should do his utmost to support its high character and to hand it over to his successor in as flourishing a state as it was at the present time. The lodge was then closed, but, prior to the brethren quitting the room, the customary bowl of punch, brewed by Bro. Francis, P.M., one of the oldest and most esteemed Masons in Gibraltar, and who for many years has concocted the "loving cup" at the installation of the W.M., was circulated, the brethren standing, and commencing with the Past Masters, each in turn drinking to the health and prosperity of the W.M. and the lodge, the W.M. finally completing the chain, by reciprocating their good wishes and drinking to their good health. An adjournment to the adjoining room then took place, where the brethren partook of supper, after which the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, the Tyler's toast bringing the proceedings to a close. The members of the lodge present were:—Bros. Haynes, P.M.; Francis, P.M.; Erjenth, Marshall, Glassford, White, Clavessio, Gatt, Speed, de Santy, Peterkin, Patterson, Crisp, Sarcone, Harding, Butler, Ashton, Ingram, Frolich, Bensilum, Aboab, Gzowski, Owen, Coghill, and Adams. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Deverill, P.M. 743; Roberts, de Winton, Wilkinson, Collin (Virgin Lodge, Nova Scotia), Warde, P.M. 706; Lees, J. R. Morgan, P.M. 115; Gilmore, 153.

FAREHAM.—LODGE OF HARMONY (No. 309).—A large gathering of members of the Craft took place on Thursday, the 7th inst., on the occasion of the installation of Bro. Henry Ford (P.M. of the Phoenix Lodge, No. 257, and P.P.G.W.) as the Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 309, for the ensuing year. The W.M. elect, being an Alderman and Past Mayor of the borough of Portsmouth, there were a large number of visitors from that town. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Forbes, P.M., in his accustomed able manner. Nearly two dozen P.M.'s and W.M.'s were present, including Bros. G. S. Lancaster, P.J.G.W.; M. E. Frost, P.G. Treasurer; H. Cawte, P. Prov. G.W.; G. A. Gale, P. Prov. G.W.; W. H. Ford, P. Prov. G.W.; W. Edmonds, P. Prov. G.R.; J. Taylor, P. Prov. G.W.; E. M. Wells, P. Prov. G.D.; De Fraine, P. Prov. G.D.; A. Cudlipp, P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. Lillywhite, P.M. 257; J. Cornelius-Wheeler, W.M. 257; J. Craven, W.M. 342; J. Maltby, W.M. 487; Hall, W.M. 903; E. G. Holbrook, G. A. Green, A. Riddell, J. B. Goldsmith, and W. Johnston, P.M.'s of the Lodge of Harmony, G. Wilkins, P.M. 342. Among the other visitors were Bros. J. Astridge, P. Prov. G.P.; E. Bunting, J.W. 487; W. H. Watkins, G. Bond, Sherman, F. Feltham, F. Feltham, J. Bradford, Woodfall, S. C. Heath, S.D. 248, (Wrexham). The ceremony of installation being concluded, the W.M. appointed the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. Morrison, I.P.M. and Treasurer; J. Whale, S.W.; H. Gilbert, J.W.; E. G.

Holbrook, P.M., Secretary; E. Downing, S.D.; T. Robinson, J.D.; S. Gamblen, I.G.; S. D. Forbes, D.C. About fifty members subsequently sat down to a most recherche banquet, at which the W.M. presided. The proceedings were of a most agreeable and interesting character throughout, the health of the Worshipful Master being received with great enthusiasm.

PORTSEA.—ROYAL SUSSEX LODGE (No. 342).—The installation of Bro. Richard Newland (member of the Portsmouth Town Council) as the W.M. of this lodge took place on Wednesday, the 20th inst., the ceremony being ably conducted by the retiring W.M. (Bro. J. T. Craven). The following brethren were afterwards appointed and invested as officers for the ensuing twelve months:—Bros. Craven, I.P.M.; Turney, S.W.; H. J. Guy, J.W.; Redward, P.M., Treasurer; Willson, P.M., and S. Edwards, Secretaries; W. Payne, S.D. The banquet was provided by Bro. Geo. Bond, of the Castle Hotel, Southsea, and the following toasts were duly honoured:—"The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon;" "The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge;" "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge;" "The W.M.'s and representatives of neighbouring lodges;" "The Visitors," "The Worshipful Master," "The Installing Master, Bro. Craven;" "The P.M.'s of the Royal Sussex Lodge," and "The Officers of the Royal Sussex Lodge."

PETERBOROUGH.—ST. PETER'S LODGE (No. 442).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John on Thursday, Jan. 14th, in their lodge room. There was a good attendance of the brethren present, amongst them being Bros. the Rev. John Bird, W.M.; R. H. Griffin, W.M. elect; E. Vergette, Buckle, Strickland, Paviour, Davidson, S. B. Smith, E. Vergette, jun., Pilcher, Mangan, Pank, J. Jones, Gaches, W. Dixey, Bays, Bond, Clarabut, Dandy, Keddy, Lound, De Key, Whitted, Waller, Lythall, Wilkins, Pearson, Pheasant, and others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Butler, Wilkins, D. Prov. G. M. elect; J. U. Stanton, Jno. Bingley, Pomfret Lodge, 360, Northampton; Marson and Hawley, Socrates Lodge, 373, Huntingdon; Orford, Wright, Peak, and Norton, Lodge of Merit, 466, Stamford; Kew, St. Luke's, 144, Chelsea; Hayward, St. John's, 1306, Wapping. Before the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Buckle, Prov. G.S., presented the patent of office to Bro. Butler Wilkins, of the Pomfret Lodge, Northampton, who has been appointed D. Prov. G. M. of Norths and Hunts, by the Prov. G.M. his Grace the Duke of Manchester, and expressed the pleasure it gave them that the choice of the P.G.M. had fallen on so promising a successor to the late D.P.G.M., Bro. S. Inns, of the Lodge of Fidelity, 445, Towcester. Bro. Butler Wilkins thanked the brethren present for the cordial reception given to him, and hoped that the fact of his having been nominated to the office by the brethren at one end of the Province (Northampton), and receiving the document of office at the other (Peterborough), was an augury for good of united action in all Masonic matters amongst the brethren. Bro. E. Vergette, sen., then installed the W.M. elect., Bro. R. H. Griffin, according to ancient custom, in a very impressive manner. The W.M. then went through the ceremonies of raising Bros. Pearson and Pheasant, and of passing Bro. Wilkins, and acquitted himself in such a manner as to receive the congratulations of the brethren present. The D.P.G.M. took the opportunity of congratulating the lodge in electing so efficient a W.M., and considered the fact of the ceremonies being so well performed on the first occasion, promised well for the good working of the lodge throughout the year. The brethren (considerably augmented) afterwards sat down to a banquet in their lodge room, and the evening was spent very harmoniously.

PORTSMOUTH.—PORTSMOUTH LODGE (No. 487).—There was a large attendance of members of this lodge at the meeting on Thursday evening, the 14th inst., on the occasion of the installation of Bro. Thomas Moore as W.M. for the ensuing year. The present position of the lodge is eminently satisfactory, and the W.M. is to be congratulated on entering upon his year of office under the most favourable auspices. The lodge is now one of the most numerous in this part of the country, and possesses the finest hall of any lodge in the neighbourhood. On Thursday evening a gratifying and pleasing event took place at the commencement of the proceedings—the presentation of a handsome gold Past Master's jewel to the retiring W.M. (Bro. J. Maltby), under whose rule the Portsmouth lodge has flourished to an unprecedented extent. The jewel bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. John Maltby, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B. Hants and Isle of Wight, by the brethren of the Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487, in recognition of his able and valuable services as W.M., 1874." The presentation was made by Bro. G. S. Lancaster, P.M., Prov. J. G. Warden, who referred to the services rendered to the lodge by the recipient. Bro. Maltby suitably acknowledged the gift, so spontaneously offered him by his brethren. The usual formalities having been gone through, Bro. Moore was then installed as W.M. of the lodge, in the presence of the following W.M.'s and P.M.'s:—Bros. G. S. Lancaster, P.J.G.W.; M. E. Frost, P.G. Treas.; Ogburn, P. Prov. G.W.; Forbes, P. Prov. G.W. (Essex); J. Cornelius-Wheeler, W.M. 257 Craven, W.M. 342; G. Felton, Lancaster, W.M. 903; A. L. Emanuel, W.M. 1069; Sir John Alleyne, Bart., V.M. 1324; J. Maltby, A. Cudlipp, T. Batchelor, E. Grove, E. G. Holbrook, S. R. Ellis, and Sleeman. The ceremony was ably conducted by Bro. Frost, who has, on many previous occasions, had the opportunity of installing the W.M. of this lodge. At a later period of the evening it was carried by acclamation that the cordial thanks of the lodge be tendered to Bro. Frost. The W.M. appointed the following brethren officers of the lodge for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. Maltby

I.P.M.; E. Bunting, S.W.; G. Bond, J.W.; G. S. Lancaster, P.M.; Treas.; M. E. Frost, P.M.; and J. Astridge, Secs.; R. W. Beale, S.D.; C. Vine, J.D.; A. German, I.G.; A. Cudlipp, P.M., D.C.; R. Osborne, Organist; G. Sherman and J. Moore, Stewards; J. Watson and J. Exell, Tyler. It was resolved, on the motion of Bro. Frost, seconded by Bro. Astridge, that the best thanks of the lodge be tendered to Bro. Maltby for his services during the past year, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. Upwards of fifty of the brethren subsequently partook of an excellent banquet in the dining room of the hall, at which the W.M. presided. The menu was of the most recherche character, and reflected great credit on Mr. Butler, the caterer. The W.M. proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was duly honoured. "The Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," was proposed, in suitable terms, by Bro. Maltby. Bro. Sir John Alleyne gave "The M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon." The toast of "The Deputy Grand Master (Lord Skelmersdale) and the Officers of the Grand Lodge" was entrusted to Bro. Cudlipp, who spoke of the rapid strides Freemasonry had made of late years, and alluded, in eloquent terms, to the grand principles of the Craft. Several other toasts followed, "The Health of the Worshipful Master" (proposed in eulogistic terms by Bro. Maltby) being received with great enthusiasm. In responding, Bro. Moore assured the brethren that it would be his earnest endeavour to carry out the duties of his office to the satisfaction of the lodge and with credit to himself. Bro. Ogburn responded for "The Visitors," and gave "The I.P.M., and P.M.'s of the Lodge," which was acknowledged by Bro. Maltby. Bro. Bunting, as Senior Warden, responded for "The Officers of the Lodge," and promised the Worshipful Master, on their behalf, all the aid in their power during his year of office.

FITZ-ROY LODGE (No. 569).—On Friday, 22nd inst., the installation meeting of the Fitz-Roy Lodge was held at the Armoury of the Honorable Artillery Company, and it was attended with the success which distinguishes all the meetings of this lodge, and which its members always exert themselves to promote. This success is not confined to the happiness which prevails whenever the brethren meet at the lodge, but is also of that substantial character which places the lodge in a position to follow the true end of Masonry, and practise the virtue which Freemasons are proud to profess—charity. In short, the funds of the lodge are in a prosperous condition; indeed, so prosperous, that probably no other lodge can parallel it. Its funds, as announced by Capt. Egles, the Secretary, in reading the balance sheet at the last meeting, now amount to £240, besides, among its assets, a stock of wine worth £56, the lodge furniture, officers' collars and jewels, and a valuable piano. Under such circumstances the brethren, habitually happy, and with no drawback to alloy their happiness, could not but be in the best spirits on their installation day, and they entered on their business shortly after four o'clock with great zest. The W.M., Bro. W. H. Honey, a P.M. also of No. 11, took the chair, and opened the lodge, and then initiated a member of the Honorable Artillery Company, Mr. James Smith, in the earliest mysteries of the Craft. The heavier business of installation was entrusted to the veteran P.M. and Treasurer, Bro. Peter Matthews, who, being the father of the lodge, has had that important and onerous duty ceded to him by the presiding Master for several years. He therefore took the chair, and Bro. Honey presented to him Bro. Griffiths Smith, solicitor, S.W., and a P.M. of No. 21 for installation. Bro. Matthews immediately entered on his duties, and installed in impressive style Bro. Griffiths Smith in the W.M. chair. In no less impressive style did Bro. Egles deliver the charges when the W.M. was installed, and the officers were invested, and both Bro. Matthews and Bro. Egles received the applause of the brethren on the completion of the ceremony. The officers appointed for the year were Bros. F. Graves, S.W.; Spicer, J.W.; Peter Matthews, P.M., Treasurer; Capt. J. Egles, P.M., Secretary; Webster, S.D.; Everingham, J.D.; Sanderson, I.G.; and Radford, T. During the ceremony there were some seventy brethren in the lodge, and at the Board of Installed Masters twenty were present. Among the brethren were Bros. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Past Grand Deacon; J. A. Rucker, Grand Deacon; R. W. Little, Provincial Grand Secretary, Middlesex; Linzel, Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, Middlesex; Dr. Barringer, Thomas W. White, Main, P.M.; many brethren of the Emulation lodge, and Bro. H. Massey (Freemason). At the conclusion of the ceremony, a splendid banquet was provided in the great hall, and on the clearing of the cloth, grace was sung, and the toasts were proposed and honoured. The W.M., in giving the first toast, said that "The Queen" they drank in a double capacity, not only as citizens, but as members of the Hon. Artillery Company. As loyal and true men, they were much concerned at the present time for the health of one of Her Majesty's sons, Prince Leopold, who was also a brother. When another of her sons, the present Grand Master, was ill, they were equally anxious, and they evinced the greatest pleasure when he was restored to health. They wished also to see Prince Leopold restored, and he could not but say they would be pleased to hear when the time should come that he was able to take his third degree, that he had arrived at that grand point in Masonry. "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was the next toast, and the W.M. again drew attention to the exceptional position of the Fitz-Roy Lodge with respect to this toast, as compared with ordinary lodges. His Royal Highness was Colonel of the Company; and as it was out of this Company the lodge was formed, it was with extra enthusiasm they drank his health. Speaking of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master"—in proposing that nobleman's name as the next toast, in conjunction with Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and the Grand Officers—the W.M. said that he worked very hard in Masonry, and had for many years sustained a foremost part in the administration of the affairs of Grand Lodge. Lord Skelmersdale was also an active worker, and had already served the office of president at one of the festivals of the Girls' School. No doubt he would also serve the other charities when the time came. Of the rest of the Grand Officers, who were represented on that occasion by Bros. Rucker and Philbrick, he could only tell the brethren what they knew before—that their praise was in all the lodges on account of their zeal in the cause of Masonry. Bro. Hervey, G.S., would have been present, but unluckily he was very unwell; and, while regretting this circumstance, the brethren would wish him better and speedy health. Bro. Rucker regretted that he had been chosen instead of Bro. Philbrick to respond, but as the duty of everyone, whether Mason or soldier, was obedience, he would endeavour to reply for the distinguished brethren included in this toast. He could hardly conceive anything more honourable than to be appointed by the Grand Master to hold Grand Office, and the pride was much heightened by having one's name associated with such distinguished Freemasons as the noblemen named in the toast. What the Grand Officers did was well known to all Freemasons, and those who attended Grand Lodge, or knew anything of the constitution of the Board of General Purposes, of the Colonial Board, and those several Boards which managed Masonic affairs, knew that a strong sprinkling of Grand Officers were on them. It was very gratifying to be present at such a lodge as the Fitz-Roy, and to witness the ceremony of installation so ably performed, and such an excellent Master placed in the chair. The ceremony was in fact perfectly performed, and though no doubt there were plenty of P.M.'s in it, who were proficient in that beautiful ceremony one could not but feel delighted at hearing such a veteran brother as Bro. Peter Matthews deliver the ritual of the degree. Bro. Honey, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who, he said, would devote himself entirely to the benefit of the lodge, and fluently perform any of the ceremonies for which he might be called upon. The W.M., in his reply, said little of himself, but dwelt particularly on the kind feeling that was always felt by the members of the lodge towards each other. He said they were a very united lodge, and never had an ill word for one another. As many of the members were members also of other lodges they carried this good feeling abroad and diffused it throughout the Craft. Bro. James Smith responded as "The Initiate," and promised to do his best to make a good Freemason. To the toast of "The Visitors," Bros. Philbrick and Macqueen replied; and a handsome Past Master's jewel was presented by the P.M. to Bro. Honey. Bro. Honey expressed his great gratification at receiving such a mark of the favour of the brethren, and said that although during his year of office the work had not been heavy, the year had been one of the most pleasant he had ever spent with the Masonic brotherhood. Bro. Little replied for "The Charities," and laid their claims very earnestly before the brethren, strongly urging them to support those institutions and thereby show the world that they were imbued with the true Masonic spirit. Charity was the brightest jewel in the Masonic crown, and was the great end of Freemasonry. Without charity Freemasonry was nothing, but with it, the Order were able to demonstrate to the outer world that they did not live for themselves alone. The following Wednesday would see the festival of the Aged Freemasons' Institution, at which it was to be hoped there would be a large subscription. In May the Girls' School would hold their festival, and in June the Boys' School would hold their annual dinner. He asked for the support of the brethren for all these festivals. Bro. Peter Matthews, P.M., Treasurer, and Bro. Egles, P.M., Secretary, returned thanks for their names when proposed, and the other toasts having been disposed of, the brethren separated. The evening was enlivened with some beautiful singing by Bros. Ransford, F. Elmore, Lester, Lawler, Donald King, and Cozens.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—ABBEY LODGE (No. 624).—The installation of the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. R. H. Auty, and the twenty-first anniversary of the Abbey Lodge, Burton-on-Trent, was held on Tuesday, the 19th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Union-street. The lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. Lucas, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the lodge was again opened in the second degree, when the chair was assumed by Bro. J. Meredith, P.M., as Installing Master, and the W.M. elect, Bro. R. H. Auty, was presented by Bro. Starey. After the usual preliminaries had been gone through, all brethren below the chair retired, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. H. Auty was, according to ancient custom, installed into the chair of K.S., as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being most ably performed by Bros. Meredith and Starey. In due course the other brethren were admitted, and the new W.M. having been proclaimed, greeted, and saluted in the three degrees, proceeded to appoint and install his officers as follows:—Bro. J. Lucas, I.P.M.; J. Hobday, S.W.; C. Graham, J.W.; Rev. J. Robertson, Chaplain; W. J. Gothard, P.M., Treasurer and Director of Ceremonies; S. Briggs, Secretary; K. Macrae, S.D.; J. Martin, J.D.; L. F. Day, Organist; T. Halliday, I.G.; R. Lane, Tyler. The Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury, was present during the installation, but was unable, in consequence of other Masonic engagements, to stop for the banquet; and letters expressing regret for their unavoidable absence were read from the D.P.G.M., Bro. James, Bro. S. C. Allsopp, M.P.; Bro. Geo. Allsopp, Bro. Bodenham, Bro. McLean, and others. Further business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall. Grace having been said by the Rev. J. Robertson (lodge Chaplain), the brethren betook themselves to the agreeable task of discussing the merits of the numerous viands—which pleasing duty inspired them with spirits elate and satisfactory. Under such influence, the cloth was removed, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed. The W.M., Bro. Auty, was supported by P.M.'s Lucas, Meredith, Gothard, Russell, Starey, Wood, Bradford, Beadmore, Canton, and others. The W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft;" and, in doing so, said he was proud to think that the toast of her Majesty was the first proposed in that Masonic Hall, and he trusted the time was far distant when any toast would supersede or take precedence of that of the sovereign of these realms. Her Majesty, not only from her exalted station, but also from her domestic virtues, was entitled to the esteem and to the affection of every class of her subjects, and by none were those claims more freely admitted or more warmly acknowledged than by the Masons of the United Kingdom. Throughout her career Her Majesty had been closely allied with Freemasonry. More than twenty years ago she became the patroness of the Freemasons' Boys' School, and she still remained their patron, much to the advantage of the Institution. Her Majesty was not only the daughter of a Mason, but three of her children had been admitted members of the brotherhood, and lately by the acceptance of the Grand Mastership of England by the Prince of Wales, another link had been added to Her Majesty's association with the Craft. She being now the mother of the Grand Master of the Order. The toast was duly honoured. The next toast, "The Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," proposed by the W.M., was warmly received. With respect to the Princess of Wales he could say without fear of contradiction that no lady ever set foot upon these shores who in so short a time had enjoyed, and not only enjoyed but retained, the affection and the sympathies of the people of this country as her Royal Highness had done. Whatever places she visited, wherever she appeared in public she was greeted with most rapturous applause, and he thought those who lived in this part of the country might congratulate themselves that nowhere had her Royal Highness received more enthusiastic welcomes than she did some year or two ago at Derby, and more recently still in the neighbouring town of Birmingham. As to the Prince of Wales, from that day in 1868, when His Royal Highness was initiated into Freemasonry by the late King of Sweden, he had performed all his duties and obligations to the Craft in a manner calculated to arouse the just pride and to fulfil the expectations of every Mason in the country. His Royal Highness was not merely a speculative but he had proved himself to be an operative Freemason. He had himself initiated his brother Prince Arthur, and from the accounts of that event which had been handed down, the ceremony was performed with all the ease and with all the address of a practised Mason. Under all circumstances and in every position in connection with the Craft His Royal Highness had shown himself thoroughly appreciative of the excellency of Freemasonry, and his last step in boldly coming forward, and under peculiar circumstances accepting the Grand Mastership of England, and thereby the most prominent Masonic position in the world, had met with the universal concurrence of Masons. He might say further, not only of Masons, but of the great mass of the Protestant people of this country, who were inclined to look upon that step of His Royal Highness as a sort of a snub—if he might use the expression—to that domineering power which more than once had not hesitated to curse both the Craft and its members. Of His Royal Highness it might be said in the language of our ritual, "He has not thought it derogatory to his dignity to exchange the sceptre for the trowel, he has patronized our mysteries, he has joined in our assemblies." The next toast, "The M.W.G.M. of England, the Pro G.M., and the D.G.M.," was duly given and honoured. "The R.W.P.G.M., the Earl of Shrewsbury, the R.W.D.P.G.M., Bro. James, and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge," was then proposed by the W.M., who reminded the brethren of the great interest the P.G.M. had taken in Freemasonry from the time of his acceptance of his high position, that he had never spared himself in his labours for the benefit of the Craft, and was always prominent in every work of charity. The fact of his Lordship's presence among them that evening, his attendance at Cannock to consecrate a new lodge on Wednesday, and his presiding at the Masonic Benevolent Institution in London on the 27th inst., spoke more than words, of his interest in the Craft. Some of the brethren, too, had had the privilege of attending the last quarterly meeting of Grand Lodge at Alton Towers, under the presidency of the P.G.M., and they would not easily forget the way in which the principles of the Craft were there carried out. With reference to the D.P.G.M., Bro. James, all the brethren knew how indefatigable he was in his labours. He had been with them on many previous occasions, and it was a source of regret that other engagements had prevented him from being present at their anniversary to-day. With this toast, which was most cordially received, was coupled the name of Bro. Meredith. Bro. Meredith, in acknowledging the toast, said, it always afforded him much pleasure to visit the Abbey Lodge, and never was that pleasure greater than on the present occasion. After referring to the efficient working of the Lodge, and to the unavoidable absence from the banquet of the Earl of Shrewsbury and P.M. Anderson (the last Provincial Grand Officer), which he was sure all would regret, he concluded by wishing continued prosperity to the Lodge. "The P.G. Masters of the neighbouring Counties" was then given and appropriately responded to by Bros. Past Masters Gothard, Jackson, Hillam, and Bradford. Bro. Lucas then rose and said, he was privileged to give the next toast, which was the toast of the evening. It afforded him great pleasure to have to propose the health of one (as his successor), who was in every sense so well qualified and specially fitted to fill the important office which he now holds. He assured the brethren that it would give them great pleasure to meet Bro. Auty as their Worshipful Master, in the Abbey Lodge, they would see for themselves the efficient manner in which he would discharge his duties, and carry out the principles of Masonry. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm and musical honours. In acknowledging the toast of the "W.M." Bro. Auty said that he was deeply grateful for the flattering manner in which the toast had been received. He could assure the brethren he had not occupied that chair without a deep sense of the responsibilities attached to the position, it was no slight honour to be the Master of a lodge of such reputation, and which from its numerical strength and working, had long been considered the first in the province. From his first entrance into that lodge he had considered the Master's chair an object of legitimate ambition, and he would recommend every young Mason so to consider it, and work his way into it. Now, however, that he was in the chair, the next most desirable thing seemed to be to get out of it. He had before said, and he was still happy in believing, that the new year had opened most auspiciously. He had a new building to begin with, replete with every comfort and thoroughly adapted for the purpose it was intended for. He had officers equal to any in the province, plenty of work before them, and he believed he possessed the confidence of the majority of the brethren, and when his term of office expired he hoped he should be able to vacate that chair with the consciousness that he had added another stone to the edifice which had been raised by the many and able Masters who had preceded him. The "Visiting Brethren" was heartily given, and appropriately responded to by Bros. Edwards, Fisher, Canton, and Bradford. The "Installing Master, Bro. Meredith," was also given in elegant and eulogistic terms by Bro. Russell, and suitably acknowledged. The "P.M., Bro. Lucas," proposed by the W.M., was most cordially received by the brethren, who testified their appreciation of his labours during the past year, particularly in connection with the new building to which his attention and care had been unceasing. "The Officers of the Abbey Lodge," proposed by Bro. Starey, was acknowledged by Bro. Hobday, S.W., also by the following officers:—Bros. Graham, Robertson, Briggs, Martin, Day, and Gothard. Bro. Russell, P.M., next proposed the "Past Officers of the Abbey Lodge," and coupled with the toast the names of Bros. Bellamy, P.S.W., and Anderson, P. Secretary. This toast being feelingly and appropriately acknowledged, the Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable and satisfactory re-union of the brethren.

DEVIZES.—WILTSHIRE LODGE OF FIDELITY (No. 663).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place on Tuesday, the 10th inst., at the Town Hall, when Bro. Henry Isaiah Ward, the S.W. for the past year, was installed in the chair of K.S. by Bro. William Nott, P.M. of this lodge, and P. Prov. G.R. Wilts. The newly-installed W.M., after having been duly saluted in the various degrees, proceeded to invest the Officers of the lodge for the ensuing year as follows:—The Rev. Henry Richardson, P. G. Chaplain Wilts, I.P.M.; T. B. Fox, S.W.; Thos. Raymond, J.W.; Rev. H. Richardson, Chaplain; D. A. Gibbs, Treasurer; W. Nott, Secretary; J. Parker, S.D.; W. H. Burt, J.D.; H. Howse, I.G.; T. Waite, M.C.; F. V. Holloway and W. Day, Stewards; S. Badham, Organist; J. Hayter and J. Philpott, Tylers. Explanations of the duties of these officers were given to them by the I.P.M., Bro. Richardson, and the usual addresses to the Master, Wardens and brethren were delivered by the Installing Master, Bro. Nott. The out-going W.M. presented to the lodge a very curious old Engraving of a Model of the Temple of King Solomon, and received for this handsome and appropriate present the thanks of the lodge by acclamation. After the usual routine business of the Annual Meeting, the lodge was closed, and the Members and Visitors adjourned to the Crown Hotel, where a banquet in Bro. Raymond's best style awaited them. Bro. Watson Taylor, of Erlestoke Park, contributed a liberal supply of venison and game. Amongst the visitors present were Bro. R. de M. Lawson, P. Prov. S.G. W. Wilts, P.M. 632, &c.; Henry Wilson, I.P.M. "Royds" 1204; Charles Saxty, S.W. 632; Charles Barnes, G.R.I. 325; and others.

NEWPORT.—ISCA LODGE (No. 683).—The installation of Bro. W. H. Wickey Homfray as Worshipful Master of the Isca Lodge, No. 683, took place at the Grand Masonic Hall, in Dock-street, Newport, on Wednesday, 20th inst. Between forty and fifty brethren were present, amongst them not fewer than fifteen Past Masters, who, in a duly constituted board, installed the W.M. in the chair of King Solomon. The ceremony was performed in a very able manner by Bro. L. Augustus Homfray, brother of the W.M. The following were the officers appointed:—Bros. Major Pearson, I.P.M.; Wm. Hitchcox, Senior Warden; Walter West, Junior Warden; J. W. Osman, Chaplain; Henry Mullock, Treasurer; Jno. Middleton, Secretary; Fredk. Flood, Senior Deacon; E. Lawrence, Junior Deacon; R. J. Chambers, D. of C.; H. J. Groves, Organist; A. P. Fillard, I.G.; Wm. West, jun., Steward; James McBean, Steward; Henry Fletcher, Tyler. Bro. Watkins, W.M., of the Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge, was entrusted by the P.G.M. with the jewel of the P.G. Supt. Wks., the office having become vacant by the death of Bro. Randall. After the usual vote of thanks to the P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., the retiring Master, &c., the lodge was closed in Masonic form. The banquet took place at the King's Head Hotel, where Host Gretton had made ample and splendid provision for his guests. From fifty to sixty brethren sat down, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. H. Wickey Homfray. There were present:—Bros. Colonel C. Lyne, P.G.M. Mon.; Captain J. G. Homfray, D.P.G.M. Mon.; W. H. Wickey Homfray, W.M. 683 and P. Prov. G.S.B. Mon.; Major J. R. Pearson, I.P.M. and P.G.J.W.; L. A. Homfray, P. Prov. G.S.W. and P.M. 683; Captain Haldane, P.M. 818; Rev. G.R. and P.M. 471; W. H. Lloyd, P.G.R. and I.P.M. 1258; J. S. Adam, P.G.J.D. and P.M. 92; J. Griffiths, P. Prov. G. Superintendent of Works and P.M. 471; W. B. Broad, P. Prov. G.D. and P.M. 457; C. Simpson, P.M. 683; C. R. Lyne, P.G.S.B. and S.W. 471; S. W. Ilford, P.G.D.C., East Division, South Wales, and S.W. 960; J. Rogers, P.G.S.B., East Division, South Wales, and S.W. 237; W. Parfitt, P.G.D.C. and P.S.W. 683; G. B. Passadora, P.S.W. 683; H. P. Tipping, S.W. 457; G. Hoskins, P. G. Steward; W. Hitchcox, S.W. 683; W. West, J.W. 683; H. Mullock, Treasurer, 683; F. Flood, S.D. 683; E. Lawrence, J.D. 683; W. West, jun., Steward, 683; J. McBean, Steward, 683; H. Fletcher, Tyler; G. W. Jones, 471; J. Abernethy, 471; S. T. Hallen, 471; D. Hopkins, J.W. 960; A. Taylor, 471; J. T. Firbank, 683; Louis Herrnessen, 1429; T. Richards, jun., 683; H. Richards, 1429; A. Williams, 683; Isaac E. Thomas, 1429; H. A. Huzzey, 1067; J. Thompson, 683; J. L. Lloyd, 471; F. Matthews, 471; A. Jacob, 471; J. J. Hale, 683; E. T. Hale, 683; Lewis Rogers, 683; J. B. Schilling, 1005; W. Neill, 237. The toasts were of the usual loyal, patriotic, and social character, which invariably distinguishes these Masonic gatherings. "The Queen and Craft." "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M." "The R.W. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; the Viscount Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M.; and the Grand Lodge of England." Bro. L. A. Homfray proposed "The R.W. Colonel Lyne, P.G.M. of Monmouthshire." Bro. Lyne returned thanks, and proposed "V.W. Samuel George Homfray, D.P.G.M., and the P.G.L. of Monmouthshire." Bro. Homfray returned thanks. The toast of the evening, that of "The W.M. 683, Bro. Wickey Homfray," was entrusted to Bro. Major Pearson, and appropriately acknowledged. Then followed the subjoined toasts:—By Bro. the Rev. J. W. Osman, "The Installing Master, Bro. L. A. Homfray, and the P.M.'s of the Isca Lodge." Bro. L. A. Homfray returned thanks. By Bro. W. West, "The Visitors," coupled with the names of Bros. Rogers and Harford, who returned thanks. Bro. W. Adam, of London, gave "The Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of the D.P.G.M., who returned thanks. Bro. J. Griffiths proposed "The P.G. Superintendent and Officers of the P.G. Chapter." Bro. Col. Lyne, as the P.G.S., returned thanks. Bro. G. W. Jones gave "The Principals and Past Principals of the St. Woolos and other Chapters of the Province." Comps. Thomas Williams and R. B. Evans, as First Principals of the Isca and Silurian Chapters, respectively returned thanks. By Bro. L. A. Homfray, "The W.M.'s and Brethren of the Silurian and Prince of Wales Lodges," coupled with the names of Bro. William Watkins, W.M. of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales Lodge, and Bro. Gibbs, J.W. 471. "The other Lodges of the Province," was responded to by Bros. Halden and Lloyd. "The Officers of the Isca Lodge," was acknowledged by Bros. Hitchcox and Walter West. The Tyler's Toast, "To all Poor and Distressed Masons, &c.," brought the convivial gathering to a close. In the course of the evening it was announced that Bro. S. G. Homfray had undertaken a stewardship in connection with the Boys' School in May. A collection was made in the room, and the sum of £31 1s. 6d. was realized. Bro. Lyne, as P.G.S. of the Chapter, made a special appeal, and generously offered to subscribe liberally, in order to secure for the P.G. Chapter of Monmouthshire a vice-presidency. The sum required is £50. The appeal was at once responded to by a subscription of £25, making the total amount for charitable purposes £56 1s. 6d., in a company not exceeding 56 persons. It is expected that the qualification of £50 will be far exceeded by the contributions of the other Chapters in the Province. Bro. George Homfray will therefore proceed to the Festival in May with something over 200 sovereigns in his pocket as the representative of the Monmouthshire Province.

NEW CONCORD LODGE (No. 813).—At the regular meeting of this lodge there were present Bros. Thos. Bartlett, P.M., Worshipful Master; H. J. Gabb, S.W.; J. Gallant, J.W.; Cusworth, S.D.; Harper, J.D.; Harris, I.G.; Jno. Emmens, P.M.; W. H. Main, P.M., Hon. Sec.; Watkinson, D.C.; Wallsby, Organist; Stead, Steward; and a large attendance of the brethren. Visitors: Bros. Parker, P.M.; Beadon, 619; Turner, High Cross 754; Denhan, Royal Cumberland 41; Hall, Temperance East 898. The lodge was opened at four, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The brethren then proceeded to ballot for candidates for initiation, all of whom were elected. The raisings were then performed, and then the passings. Mr. Westfield, being in attendance, was initiated, the whole of the work being done in Bro. Bartlett's usual impressive manner. Bro. Cusworth, S.D., accepted the office of Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Boys' School in June next. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received, "The Masonic Charities" being coupled with the name of Bro. Harper, J.D., who expressed his gratitude to the brethren of the lodge for the handsome list of donations he should take up to the ensuing festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The evening was enlivened by some excellent singing by Bros. Hubbard, W. S. Taylor, Vernon, Walesby, Morrison, and Wicks.

GOSPORT.—GOSPORT LODGE (No. 903).—The installation of the W.M. (Bro. G. Felton Lancaster) took place on Tuesday, the 12th inst., at the Star Assembly Room, on which occasion there was a numerous attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The following formed the board of Installed Masters:—Bros. M. E. Frost, S. D. Forbes, Lieutenant Miller, R.M.; Cornelius Wheeler, J. Craven, Ellis, Main, Wallingford, Udsell, Sleeman, Maltby, A. L. Emanuel, Stapleford, and J. Hall, I.P.M., by whom the ceremony of installing his successor was performed in a most impressive and remarkably able manner, doing justice to the sublime ritual of the Craft. The efficient aid rendered by Bro. Hall, and his valuable services to the lodge during his year's rule, and previously as Secretary, were suitably acknowledged, and a Past Master's jewel was presented to him. It bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. John Hall by the brethren of the Gosport Lodge, No. 903, in recognition of his able and valuable services as W.M., 1874." The W.M. appointed his officers as follows, it being a matter of deep regret to the brethren that Bro. the Rev. E. B. C. Churchill had not sufficiently recovered from the effects of a recent accident to be present:—Bros. J. Hall, I.P.M.; J. Maling, S.W.; the Rev. E. B. C. Churchill, J.W.; C. B. Whitcomb, Treasurer; W. Hillier, Secretary; V. Brown, S.D.; Robinson, J.D.; Lover, D. of C.; Wise, I.G.; Misselbrook, Organist; Mitchell and Grant, Stewards. The installation banquet took place at the India Arms, under the presidency of the W.M. After an excellent bill of fare had been discussed, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft." No class, he said, were more loyal than the Free and Accepted Masons. In submitting "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," the W.M. (who discharged the duties of his position with marked tact and ability), said it was gratifying to see the great interest which his Royal Highness took in the Craft, and in everything connected with it. From the moment of his initiation, he believed he had always evinced a most lively interest in everything connected with Freemasonry; and they might be sure, now that he had attained the highest honour the Craft could bestow upon a member, that that interest would not be lessened. It was a very proud thing that the heir to the Throne was at the head of the Craft, and many of them hoped shortly to be able to attend at his installation. The W.M. next gave "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master (the Earl of Carnarvon) and Officers of Grand Lodge." In introducing "The R.W. Prov. G.M. of Hampshire and Isle of Wight (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, present and past," the W.M. said nothing could be more satisfactory than the attention which the R.W. the P.G.M. gave to the business of the province, from the smallest to the largest item, while the great amount of courtesy which the brethren always met with, merited their warmest commendation. In Bro. Frost they had a very hard-working Grand Officer. His name was never brought forward in Grand Lodge without being received with hearty cheers, showing how well he stood in the estimation of the brethren. Bro. Frost, in responding, congratulated the W.M. upon the position which he had attained, and the lodge upon the admirable manner in which Bro. Hall had carried out his duties as Installing Master. He was gratified to know that the lodge had an outgoing Master who could instal his successor in the way that Bro. Hall had done it that evening. Bro. Lieutenant Miller responded for "The Past Provincial Officers." They all felt indebted to the brother who presided over them, and to whose personal qualifications they were very much indebted for the progress which Masonry had made in the province. Bro. Hall gave "The W.M.," who suitably acknowledged the compliment. "The Worshipful Masters and Representatives of Neighbouring Lodges, and the Visitors," was acknowledged by Bros. Cornelius Wheeler, W.M. 257; G. A. Green, P.M.; G. L. Green, and Major Harris, R.M. The other toasts were "The Installing Master," "The I.P.M. and P.M.'s of the Lodge," and "The Officers of the Lodge." With the aid of harmony, the evening was passed most pleasantly.

WALMER.—LORD WARREN LODGE, (No. 1096).—A meeting of the lodge was held on Friday, January 15th, at the lodge-room, Lord Warren Hotel, Walmer. Bros. B. R. Eastes, W.M.; Dyling, acting S.W.; Powel, acting J.W.; Dow, acting S.D.; Drew, acting J.D.; Young, acting I.G.; Usher, P.M. and Secretary; &c. The W.M. passed Bro. Phelps, and Bro. Usher raised Bro. Kirby to the sublime degree of M.M. The lodge was then closed down, when two brothers were proposed and seconded to become joining members and a candidate proposed to be balloted for at the next meeting for initiation, after which the W.M. rose and said, in a few suitable words, that he had one of the most pleasing duties to perform next, which was to present Bro. T. J. Usher, P.M. and Secretary, with a handsome Past Master's jewel, which the lodge had voted to him for the invaluable services he had rendered the lodge from its formation. After placing it on his coat, Bro. Usher duly responded, and thanked the lodge, and the meeting adjourned.

TREDEGAR.—ST. GEORGE'S LODGE (No. 1098).—On Thursday, Jan. 14th, the installation of Bro. Edward Swidenbank as W.M. of St. George's Lodge, took place. The brethren assembled in the Masonic Hall at two o'clock, when the lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. J. J. Morgan. The installation ceremony was performed by Bro. G. A. Brown, P.M. 998, P.G.R., 1098, after which the W.M. elect appointed his officers as follows: Bros. J. J. Morgan, I.P.M.; N. Bradley, S.W.; R. Spencer, J.W.; Rev. E. Jones, P. Prov. G.C., 1098, P.S.W. 960; G. A. Brown, Treasurer; C. L. Hunter, Secretary; C. A. Browne, S.D.; H. Hall, J.D., P.G. Steward; J. Evans, I.G.; J. Morgan, D.C.; Golding, Org.; Donlevy, O.G.; C. Widdowson, and J. North, Stewards; Peaty, Sup. of Works. The banquet was held at the Castle Hotel, Bro. R. Spencer, mine host, catering in his usual liberal manner. The assembly room was beautifully decorated with evergreens, and budding geraniums and other flowers, by the Misses Spencer. The chair was taken by the W.M. elect, P.M. N. Bradley being his vis-à-vis. About fifty brethren attended the banquet, there being several from Abergavenny, Cardiff, Newport, Rhymney, Ebbw Vale, and one from Australia. The W.M. gave the toast of "Queen and the Craft," the National Anthem and "God bless the Prince of Wales," being sung in full chorus. Bro. Brown gave the "Prince of Wales (the M.W. Grand Master) and the rest of the Royal Family." Song, "God Bless the Prince of Wales." Toast, "The R.W. the Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon," proposed by the W.M. "The R.W. P.G.M. Bro. Col. Charles Lyne," "The V.W. the D.P.G.M. Bro. Captain S. G. Homfray." "The Bishop and Clergy and Ministers of all Denominations," by Bro. W. Davis, P.M. 1098. Responded to by Bro. Rev. E. Jones, Chaplain 1098, and Bro. Rev. J. H. Hughes, 1098. "The Installing Master, Bro. G. A. Brown, P.M. 998, P. Prov. G. R. Mon. and 1098." Responded to by Bro. Brown. "The W.M.," by Bro. Morgan, I.P.M. Responded to by the W.M. "The Past Masters of the Lodge" was given by the W.M., and Bro. J. Lewis responded. "The Lodges of the Province" was proposed by Bro. H. Hale, and replied to by Bro. W. Lloyd. Bro. G. A. Brown gave "The Visitors," and expressed the pleasure he felt at seeing so large a muster from distant places. Bro. Spooner, who had only recently returned from Australia, replied to the toast. Bro. R. Laybourne gave "The Chapters of the Province." The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" was proposed by the W.M. Bro. R. Spencer responded, and in a few felicitous remarks concluded an allusion to his old friend, the W.M., as follows: if his eloquence will not adorn the chair, I am quite sure his principles will. "The Tyler's" toast was proposed by Bro. G. A. Browne. Bro. Golding presided at the piano, and some capital songs were contributed by Bros. Lloyd, Brown, North, J. Morgan, T. Spencer, and others. Bro. J. Spooner presented a handsome Masonic jewel to the W.M., Bro. Swidenbank. Accompanying the jewel was a letter, the contents of which were supposed to have reference to the continual kindness shown by the W.M. towards the near relatives of the writer during the long years of the absence of the latter in Australia. This closed a purely Masonic evening, at an early hour.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The regular monthly meeting of this young lodge was held on the 21st inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville-road, under the presidency of Bro. James Willing, jun., W.M. Among the other brethren present were Bros. Michael, S.W.; Williams, J.W.; Tims, P.M. Treasurer; Child, S.D.; Kingham, J.D.; Douglas, I.G.; Stiles, Scale, Side, Cheek, W. B. Clarke, J. Pomeroy, W.M. 723; J. S. Wilkes, 177; Harris, and Croaker. Bros. Colls, Hopton, Jones, Cook, and Carter were raised; Bros. Gilbert, Dunmore, Cox, Trimmings, Brumell, Bunkill, and Easey were passed; and Messrs. Tims, Hutton, and Horton were initiated. Bros. Abbott Smith, and T. J. Cadett were balloted for as joining members; and the W. Master's motion "That a Lodge of Instruction be attached to the lodge, under the presidency of the W.M." was brought on and carried. Banquet was afterwards provided, to which 41 brethren sat down; and the toasts were afterwards honoured. Bro. Tims, P.M., proposed "The W. Master's Health," and in reply, Bro. Willing referred to the great prosperity of the lodge in this, its first year; everything the lodge possessed being paid for, and the Treasurer having in hand £60.

BARNSTAPLE.—CHAPTER OF LOYALTY AND VIRTUE (No. 251).—On Wednesday, the 20th inst., the annual meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Queen Ann's-walk, when, after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the officers for the ensuing year were appointed as follows:—Comps. F. Symons, Z.; W. H. Brewer, H.; W. Britton, J.; Joseph Harper, P.Z.; E. Furze, Scribe, E.; J. T. Shapland, Scribe, N.; Wm. Oliver, Principal Sojourner; J. T. Widgery, Assistant Sojourner; John List, Treasurer; J. Edwards, Organist; A. Bater and H. J. Hancock, Janitors. After some brethren had been proposed for exaltation, the chapter was closed according to ancient custom. The companions then adjourned to the Royal and Fortescue Hotel, where a banquet was prepared by Comp. May, and a most pleasant evening was spent under the very able presidency of Comp. Brewer.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.
A special meeting of the P.G.L. of the Province was held on the 14th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The R.W.M., Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson, presided, supported by Bros. J. Baird, R. Robb, J. B. Walker, J. Fraser, J. Balfour, T. Halkett, J. Gillies, A. Allison, and G. Thallon. The lodge having been duly opened, the Chairman said that, as they were aware, this was a special meeting, called for the purpose of nominating office-bearers of the lodge for the Masonic year 1875. According to custom, the members of the P.G.L. Committee had met an hour previous for the purpose of preparing and commending to their approval a list of names of brethren whom they considered eligible to hold the respective offices to be filled up, and that list the Secretary, Bro. M'Taggart, would now put before them. The Secretary accordingly did so, with the result that in almost every case the nominee of the committee was approved of nem. con. The following is the list of those who were thus de facto elected:—J. B. Walker, Treasurer; J. Gillies, S.D.; G. Thallon, J.D.; J. Ritchie, P. G. Architect; R. Robb, P. G. Marshal; J. Fraser, Assistant Marshal; A. Allison, P. G. Jeweller; A. Bain, P.G.B.B.; J. Balfour, P. G. D. of C.; J. Miller, P. G. Dir. of Music; W. Phillips, P. G. Swordbearer; A. Arriek Smith, P.G. Inner Guard; J. B. Hardie, P.G. Outer Guard; G. Sinclair, Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund. It was agreed, on the recommendation of the Committee, that the salary of the O.G. be £5 a year, and also that the annual levy on the province for the support of P.G.L. be continued at the rate of £2. Thereafter, the Chairman said that with reference to his own commissioned office-bearers (viz., the D.M., S.M., S.W., and J.W.), he was not going to name them just yet. He had been for some time in communication, with a very influential gentleman in Glasgow—one, too, with plenty of money—whom he (the Chairman) wanted to come and take office among them, and put his hand to the work and help them. That was his reason for not being that night prepared to name his office-bearers; but he hoped by next meeting night to present a list that would meet their approval. After some discussion regarding the forthcoming festival of all the lodges in the province, to be held on Friday next in the City Hall, the lodge was duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 5).—This most prosperous lodge held their regular bi-monthly meeting in their lodge room, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 19th inst. Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., in the chair. Bros. John Young, S.W.; David Horn, J.W.; R. B. Dalzell, Treasurer; John Dick, Secretary; P. Brownlie, S.D.; John Reid, J.D.; and the remaining officers in their places; there were also present: Bros. Thomas Fletcher, P.M.; J. B. Walker, P.M.; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a large gathering of the members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M.; minutes read and confirmed. Letters of application were read to admit the following gentlemen into the Order (duly proposed and seconded), viz.:—John F. McFarlane, Robt. Boyle, jun.; James Paterson, and Daniel Montgomery; there being no objection, the candidates entered and received the Entered Apprentice Degree. The lodge was then raised to Fellow Craft, when the following brethren received that degree, viz.:—Jas. Paterson, John F. M. Farlane, Robt. Boyle, jun.; Daniel Montgomery, James Buttle, and Andrew Cameron. The ceremony of both degrees being performed in a most able manner; the 1st degree by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell; and the 2nd degree by the Secretary, Bro. John Dick. Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., reminded the brethren of the festival of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, to take place in City Hall, on Friday, 22nd inst., the proceeds of which was to be devoted in aid of the benevolent fund. He therefore hoped that as many members of St. John's as possible would endeavour to be present on that occasion. The lodge was then called from labour to refreshment, where it remained in harmony until high twelve, recalled to labour and closed in due form.

COLTNESS.—LODGE ST. MARY (No. 31).—At a general meeting of this lodge, held in Scott's Commercial Hall, the following office-bearers were duly installed for the ensuing year: Bros. Robert Kelso, R.W.M.; Charles Gilchrist, P.M.; Alexander Marshall, D.M.; Robert Scott, S.M.; R. Laurie, S.W.; James Wyllie, J.W.; P. Pearson, Secretary; James Scott, Treasurer; Wm. Forrest, Chaplain; Thomas Fulton, B.B.; James Barr, S.D.; Robert McKillop, J.D.; Wm. Sandilands, S.S.; John Lyle, J.S.; David Dalziel, S.B.; H. Naismith, I.G.; J. Braidwood, Tyler.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The members of this lodge met in their lodge-room, No. 12, Tron-gate, Glasgow, on Tuesday, the 19th inst., Bro. J. W. Burns, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. Jas. Booth, S.W.; Wm. Wilson, J.W.; John Miller, P.M.; C. K. Jenkins, D.M.; Jas. Love, S.M.; Thos. Paton, Treasurer; D. McDougall, Secretary; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a goodly number of brethren and visitors. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., and the minutes of last meeting and applications from candidates for admittance into the Order read and confirmed. There being no objections to the candidates, Mr. H. Palmer and G. H. Barton received the first degree. Bros. J. Robertson, J. Brown, C. C. Lapsley, and John Lindsay, were then passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, and raised to the degree of Master Mason, the ceremonies being carried out in a most impressive manner—the first degree by the R.W.M., Bro. J. W. Burns, the two last by P.M. John Miller. The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332) met in their lodge-room, 170, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, the 18th inst., it being their regular bi-monthly meeting. Bro. J. B. Macnair occupied the chair, and there were also present Bros. D. McKeidy, S.W.; J. Fash acting as J.W.; R. Mitchell, P.M.; Jas. Balfour, W. H. Bickerton, (Freemason); and a goodly number of brethren. The minutes of last meeting having been read and some private matters connected with the lodge discussed, applications for admittance to the Order were read from Mr. Wm. Goudie, H. Veysey, A. E. Bartlett, and R. Williams, their application being received unanimously. During the absence of the candidates in the adjacent room, Bro. Balfour gave notice of motion for the raising of the fees of the lodge. The candidates then entered, Mr. Wm. Goudie receiving the 1st degree, and H. Veysey, A. E. Bartlett, and R. Williams the three degrees, they having been certified as about to leave Scotland on Friday, 22nd inst. The ceremony of the whole three degrees being performed in a most able and impressive manner; the first degree by the R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair; the second by Bro. Fash; the third by J. Dobbie, S.M. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 15th inst., Bro. John Munro, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. J. M. Olliver, S.W.; Wm. Finlay, acting J.W.; J. Brode, P.M.; Wm. Bell, R.W.M. Lodge St. John, No. 3 bis. Deputations from Lodge Thistle, No. 87, and Lodge Union, No. 332; Bro. W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a goodly number of brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The R.W.M., Bro. J. Munro, gave a Masonic reading in a most impressive and masterly style, to the great delight of all those present. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due form.

CAMBUSNETHAN.—LODGE ST. CLAIR (No. 427).—The brethren of this lodge held their usual monthly meeting on the 15th inst., in their lodge room, when the following office-bearers were duly installed:—Wm. Smith, R.W.M.; Thomas Gillespie, D.M.; W. McGibbon, S.M.; Walter Gibbs, Secretary; Anthony Muir, Clerk; David Johnstone, Treasurer; Henry Hamilton, S.W.; William Johnstone, J.W.; George Kirk, Chaplain; Wm. Stark, S.D.; W. Brown, J.D.; Andrew McCreddie, S.S.; John Frame, J.S.; James Nichol, I.G.; John Nelson, S.B.; P. Burns, Tyler.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541).—In the Freemason of the 9th inst., we reported the first of a series of three meetings of instruction, organized by the R.W.M. of this young and prosperous lodge, Bro. J. D. Porteous, and held in the Queen's Park Rooms, Crosshill, on 21st ult. On that occasion, as local readers will remember, the ceremonial of initiation was performed in an impressive manner by Bro. Julius Brode, S.M. of the lodge. On Monday, 11th inst., the second meeting of the series was held in the same place. In the absence, through indisposition, of the R.W.M., Bro. Brode presided, and of the other Office-bearers there were present Bros. W. Mc G. Mason, S.W.; Jas. Stamm, J.W.; S. Findlater, Treasurer; and R. A. Buchanan, Secretary. On the dais, supporting the chairman, were Bros. Walker, Chaplain; William Gillies, P.M. of the lodge; and John Munro, R.W.M. 360. Among the visiting brethren present were Bros. William Wilson, J.W. 87; a deputation from Lodge 347 (St. John's Operative, Rutherglen), consisting of Bros. John Cunningham, R.W.M.; David Smart, S.M.; and John Murdoch, S.W.; Bros. D. Lamb, D.M. 360, and J. Stewart, Freemason. The lodge having been opened in the E.A. degree, the Chairman first called attention to a pair of marble ashlar, one rough hewed and the other polished, laid on the table before him, and then read a letter from the donor, Bro. Stamm, J.W., in which he said:—"In presenting these emblems to Lodge Marie Stuart 541, I have been asked to say a few words, both from an operative and speculative point of view. First, from an operative point of view, we are all aware that a stone as it comes from the quarry is unfit for the use of the builder until it is put under the hands of the persevering craftsman who, with maul, chisel, square, and compass, and the Architect's plan on the trestle-board, transforms it into a thing of beauty in order to adorn the building for which it is intended. We, however, as speculative masons look upon these emblems from a much higher and nobler stand point. First, all men are born into this world on the level, all are as rough stones from the quarry, and according as the light of education dawns upon them, so is the first application of the chisel which may make them statesmen, or suit them to move in whatever capacity they may be placed in this life, and with their mind divested of all impurities, prepares them for those mansions, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. With these few remarks, brethren, I beg to hand over these emblems to Lodge Marie Stuart and to the care of the present R.W.M. and to his successors in office in perpetuity, and trust they may not suffer the fate of their predecessors. The chairman then introduced Bro. Munro, R.W.M. Lodge Commercial (360), who, he said, would perform the work of the evening, and from whose instructions he trusted they would all derive benefit that night. Bro. Munro then entered upon a lengthy and interesting lecture, in which, while tracing the origin and objects of Freemasonry generally, he referred in particular to the nature and obligations of the second, or Fellow-Craft, degree. He thereafter passed Bro. Peter Martin from the E.A. degree to that of Fellow-Craft in unusually complete and impressive form, the ceremonial including music vocal and instrumental, under the superintendence of Bro. Schob, Organist of No. 541. The third and concluding meeting of the series is announced for Monday, 22nd. prox., when the ceremonial of raising to sublime degree, with service of music from Mendelssohn's "Antigone," will be performed by the accomplished R.W.M. of the lodge, Bro. J. D. Porteous.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF GIBRALTAR.

The regular half-yearly meeting of this lodge, was held on Monday, 28th December last, at the rooms of the Lodge of Friendship, and was presided over by the R.W.D.G.M., Bro. Cornwell, supported by the R.W. Deputy D.G.M., Bro. Capt. Gibbard. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, as also the financial statement for the past year. The officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested by the District Grand Master.

It was resolved that the thanks of the lodge, as also a testimonial, be presented to Bro. R. B. Hepper, the District Grand Secretary, for his constant efforts in furthering its welfare, and for the great skill and ability displayed by him in designing and arranging the books and documents connected with the records of the lodge.

After a few words of friendly counsel from the Grand Master to the various lodges, the Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

HIRAM.—Can a W.M. vacate his chair?

[We think not—the W.M. can call on a P.M. to assist him, but he should stand by the Master's side. The Master alone can govern the lodge.—Ed.]

P.M.—In case a Warden, Secretary, or other assistant officer in a lodge resigns his office, has the W.M. power—see Book of Constitutions, p. 79, section 9—to appoint another brother to the post at once? If so, has the W.M. power to "invest" the newly-appointed brother in open lodge? Further—If the resignation results in a step being given to each of the junior officers, is it necessary for them to formally resign their present respective collars, and to be "invested" with those belonging to their new office in open lodge?

[We are of opinion that the W.M. has power, on resignation, to appoint another officer, just as in the case of "displacement," which is specially provided for by the Book of Constitutions. P.M. is no doubt aware that no mention of resignation occurs in the Book of Constitutions at all, and the step is apparently not contemplated, at any rate, it is a "casus omissus" in our Masonic jurisprudence. Indeed, it has been contended that no officer can resign, especially as the Book of Constitutions has made no provision for such a step. With regard to the other officers, we could not advise such a proceeding as change of situation and re-investment. In the case of a Junior Warden, it would simply disqualify him for the Master's Chair. We do not think such a course is either legal or practicable. The only alternative in such a case of absolute resignation is the appointment and investment of a new officer, "pro tanto," in open lodge, to fill up the vacancy until the next regular appointment of officers.—Ed.]

A CORRECTION.—In the report of the Lodge of Fortitude, Truro, page 31, Bro. Hughan, in speaking of Lord Petre, is made to say that his lordship presided "nominally" over the Grand Lodge. It should be "Roman Catholic nobleman presided over the Grand Lodge."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1875.

OUR ROYAL BROTHER, PRINCE LEOPOLD.

The state of the august sufferer's health still must inspire some uneasiness in all who read the cautious bulletins. He continues very weak, but there is yet grounds for hope. The whole Craft deeply feel for and sympathize with the Queen and the Royal Family.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

We hear a good deal in Freemasonry of brotherly love; it is alike the key-note of our teaching, and the foundation-stone of our whole great Masonic building. But brotherly love, like most other virtues—charity especially—has a duplex existence, if we may so speak, in the conscience and acts of man; has two sides, so to say, in its theoretical teaching and its practical development. For instance, we may have the technical performance of charity without its constraining spirit; we may have the letter of brotherly love without having embraced fully its gentle and healing and tolerant sympathies. We may give liberally; our names may be inscribed on many charitable tablets, and found on many subscription lists; but yet we may remain all the while, even to our dying day, narrow-minded and intolerant, fanatical and uncharitable to our fellow men. We have given of our substance, as we think, fairly and freely for works of piety or utility or benevolence; but we have not entered into that diviner spirit, which is ever best shown forth here, by the loving heart and the enlarged mind. And so it is with brotherly love. We talk a deal about it, we profess it very often; it is the glory and distinguishing merit of Masonic teaching, in our eyes, and we boast of our practising what we profess—of our actions following our precepts. In one sense, no doubt, we do carry out its genuine teaching in our great channels of active benevolence; and our Masonic charities may fairly be adduced in defence of this Masonic vitality of ours. But though it is true, as we feel bound to say, that we give with no niggard hand, whether to the Benevolent Institution or the Orphan Academies, we yet often fail, as it appears to us, in another feature of true brotherly love, kindness, and fairness to others. How often, for instance, do we see in Masonic literature, the most remarkable evidence of a thoroughly non-Masonic spirit in the unbrotherly letter and the hostile incrimination. How frequently do we note that the profession of brotherhood is only a cloak for much of personal animosity, for feelings of active antagonism, and relentless opposition. Rivalries and jostlings for place or influence will ever arise and abound in all earthly institutions; and Freemasonry does not profess, as it cannot expect to be exempt from the frailties of humanity. But yet we might have anticipated, from our own first principles, that if such all but inevitable tendencies were developed in our fraternity, they would be somewhat checked and mitigated by the benign teaching and holy morality of our benevolent Order. Yet, alas! not so! There are always some little men who will be jealous of their neighbours; there are ever some inferior minds who will begrudge to talent its rightful sway, and to high character its well-earned reputation. And if, in addition to this, we call to mind that men will not always "run straight" here; that there are those who are neither very creditable members of society, or very scrupulous citizens of the word, who are flippant in speech, vulgar in sentiment, and lax in morals, we must concede, we fear, that, whether as men or as Freemasons, brotherly love cannot be fully appreciated, and, above all, perfectly realised by very many of us all in our transactions through life, in our conversation in the world. Were we to attempt to defend Freemasonry as perfect, and only made-up of those who fully acted up to what they professed, we should be doing more harm than good. We write to improve as well as to inform, to amend as well as to elucidate. We will therefore attempt to sketch out one or two defects in our higher spiritual practice of brotherly love, and to point out, if most imperfectly, what we believe to be the true teaching of our own incomparable formularies, and of the great and ennobling principle of fraternal goodwill in its highest of all representations and characteristics. We may some of us remember how an inspired writer has told us that though we may give all our goods to feed the poor, yet if we "have not charity" we are, after all, really as "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." If then we wish to cultivate the highest and truest spirit of brotherly love ours must be a surrender of all that is mean, and low, and base, and treacherous, and unworthy in our intercourse with our fellow creatures, above all with our brother Masons. We must not think that in order to carry a point or gain an end, we may strain the moral law, on this side or that. If we fancy that we can rise on the fall of others, if we believe that some of our brethren are in our way, if prompted by ambition or tempted by interest, we are given to think that all is fair, if only we succeed, we shall soon over-step the narrow boundary line which divides truth from falsehood, honour from dishonour, treachery from fair dealing, and right from wrong. So too, again, brotherly love bids us always to be most careful of the character of our brethren, to be most chary of believing any reports to their disfavour or discredit. There are those who have an innate love of gossip, of scandal, of detraction which nothing can weaken or remove. To them the idle tale of a brother's folly, for we are all mortal, to them the sadder story of a brother's disgrace, are literally a source of actual enjoyment. They listen with greediness, they retail with alacrity. It matters to them nothing, what feelings they hurt, what wounds they inflict, what tender hearts they lacerate. "Dame rumour," for them is no "idle jade," but a lady of the highest reputation. Unlike the good old parson, whom Præd paints for us in such pleasant verse, who did not "count all scandal fair, although he had a taste for joking," they are deeply impressed with Father Bartolo's theory of the excellency and expediency, nay, of the necessity, of "La Calomnie." And thus it comes to pass, that when in Freemasonry we look for brotherly love amidst our professed declarations, the moment we dive beneath the surface—we find too often as in most of the things of this world, that lip-verbiage is one thing, that heart-truth is another. Great and good as Freemasonry is, it wants from time to time the reminder that on it, as on all other human institutions, are inscribed in indelible letters, these two sad little words, "Frailty and Decay." If we are sincere in our professions, as many of us are, if we love Freemasonry for its own inherent graces, and not for the glamour of its idle show, or high name, or stately rank, or festive hilarity, or glittering decorations, we shall rejoice to be once again reminded of our higher duties, and warned against passing imperfections. The truest of all philosophers is he who seeks not to please but to instruct, not to gratify but to edify, and he is the soundest of Masonic teachers, in our humble opinion, who does not "daub the wall with untempered mortar," but speaks out clearly, freely, manfully, honestly, face to face, and heart to heart, for the welfare of our common Order, and the elevation of an honourable brotherhood.

GRANTS TO THE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Bro. Binckes has announced, though not in our columns, what was his intended amendment to Bro. Clabon's motion in Grand Lodge, namely, "a reference to the Board of General Purposes to report on all present Grand Lodge grants to the charitable institutions associated with the Order." If we understand Bro. Binckes correctly, £150 is now paid by Grand Lodge to the Boys' School, and Bro. Binckes thinks that the time has come, when "Grand Lodge might fairly be asked to reconsider the amount annually contributed from its funds to the two educational institutions." The time may have arrived certainly when such a matter may fairly be considered, but, on the whole, we are inclined to think that we had better "leave well alone." The Girls' School cannot clearly allege the same claim as the Boys' School, namely, absence of funded capital, and we do not see what any grant our Grand Lodge could vote would do for that object, which is now the main "desideratum" for the Boys' School. Bro. Binckes seems to think that £800 annually, as representing the 1812 grant on the certificates, would be about the figure, but supposing an equal amount granted to the Girls' School, that would necessitate £1,600 annually. Serious objections occur to us at once to any such proposal. In the first place, at our last audit, the balance of the Fund of Benevolence would not have paid £1,600, or, if it did, it would have left the Fund of Benevolence penniless. In the next place, if we are to have a revision of grants, we must have, it appears to us, a revision of a good many other matters. There are many points which, when such a contingency takes place, would require consideration, as, from some experience in educational work, we express a very common opinion on the subject, when we say that we cannot admit "finality" or "perfection" to be the characteristics of the arrangements of any educational institutions. We are still of opinion that our Masonic Educational Institutions having flourished so greatly and expanded so wondrously on the liberal offerings of the Craft, without subsidies to fall back upon, had far better adhere to a course which has been productive of so much good to them in the past. We admit that candidates are many; indeed, Bro. Binckes rates them, we see, for the four institutions at 525, though we should like to see the official figures. Our course would be easier altogether if we were enabled, on the authority of our great institutions themselves, to lay the "hard reality of figures" and the actual facts of the case before our brethren. As it is, we have to have recourse to what we can obtain for ourselves in the best way we can, or to second-hand information, in sparse quantity, and often after date.

THE ORIENTAL ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

Until we read the paper which is to be found in our "Masonic Notes and Queries," we confess that we had never heard of this Order. Perhaps it was our great ignorance. But yet with some little knowledge of old documents and Knightly Orders, we have never before lighted upon the "Oriental Order of the Temple." This circular is very interesting, and if its claims to historical authenticity are admitted, it must be a very ancient Order. But yet, who is Roger de Flor? We have thus, it will be seen, a "duplex transmissio." This circular assumes the Larmenius Charter to be genuine; we have, we are sorry to say, the gravest doubts on that subject: Roger de Flor is apparently of Spanish origin, and so must be Sancho de Vargas; but we had always understood historically that the Order of the Temple in Spain had been incorporated with the Spanish Order of Calatrava. Yet here we have a Spanish perpetuation at Constantinople. We shall be glad to see the Charter of this new branch of the Templars, the more so as the words quoted, which we presume are translated from the Latin, are hardly early 14th century words. The whole question of the Templar perpetuation deserves enquiry, as if we have thus two charters dating, one at Constantinople, 1313, and another at Paris, 1324, and they stand the scrutiny of the expert, there can be no doubt, but, that we have a Templar perpetuation still. We see that the circular states that since 1313 Roger de Flor, custodian of the original seal, re-established the Order, having also received transmitted powers in 1307, from Jaques de Molay. Thus, in 1313 the Militia or Order of the Temple was set up again at Constantinople, by the Charter of the Constitution, of date Easter Monday, 1313, and confirmed in 1316, so that this Order has been "preserved to the present day." We shall be obliged to the brother who has kindly sent us this circular, if he will favour us with a little more detailed information of the historical evidence of the Order, and a fuller account of the Charter of Roger de Flor, on which this "Oriental Order of the Temple," apparently relies for its continuation and existence in the world.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION ANNIVERSARY, 1875.

We are unable, as we go to press on Thursdays, to do more than just allude to this interesting event. We hope to recur to the subject next week, and refer our readers to the report in our columns. We are glad, however, at being able to announce that the amount reported on the various lists reaches to the sum of £6,630 13s. 6d., with eleven lists to come in.

THE DEGREE OF MARK MASTER AND EXCELLENT MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The letter of your able and intelligent correspondent, Bro. Walter Hill, of New Zealand, in your last number, with enquiry as to the "true position" of the two degrees above mentioned, will doubtless attract the attention of brethren better qualified to reply than myself, but I am anxious to address a few observations on the points raised by Bro. Hill with reference to the degree of Mark Master.

Though not admitted as such by the United Grand Lodge of England, there can be no doubt in the mind of any dispassionate and unbiased student that the Mark Degree possesses sufficient internal evidence to justify its title to be considered an integral portion of "pure and ancient Freemasonry." I may assert this without entering into the vexed question why the Grand Lodge of England, at the settlement of 1813, declined its recognition as such, seeing that under every other jurisdiction the degree is regarded as more or less essential.

The difficulty in connection with the Mark Degree is, as your correspondent rightly states, its "position" in relation to other degrees.

Claiming for the Mark an antiquity superior to that of the Master Mason's degree, it may seem anomalous that by the Constitutions of the English Grand Lodge of M.M.M., the degree can be conferred only on those who are M.M., but it must be borne in mind that in the organisation of the present Grand Mark Lodge many points of delicacy and difficulty presented themselves. Prominent amongst these was the risk of "colliding" in some way with the Grand Lodge of England, which—no matter what some of their opponents may state to the contrary—it was the anxious desire of the founders of the Mark Grand Lodge to avoid. To steer clear of one difficulty, the rule was made that the degree should be conferred only on M.M.'s, and Bro. Hill will remember in a very early portion of our ritual, this part of the W.M.'s address to the candidate. "Since the, &c., and the institution, &c., of, &c., as practised in this country, a regulation has been made, &c."

But to discuss more closely the proper position the Mark Degree should occupy in the Masonic system. I believe three distinct views are taken of this.

(a).—That the Mark is the necessary and natural fulfilment of the F.C. Degree, and therefore, as a matter of course, should be given to F.C., and made a preliminary to the M.M. Degree.

(b).—That it is introductory to the R.A. Degree, and a link between the M.M. and that degree, and should only be given to M.M.'s.

It is very difficult, if not impossible, to discuss these propositions in public, but it may be said that the degree has much greater affinity with the F.C. than with the M.M., and I confess that for some years I was firmly of opinion that the Mark was the legitimate consequence and completion of the F.C. Degree. I never could understand its connection with either the M.M. or R.A. Degree, though fully acquiescing in the policy which confined the degree to M.M., for reasons previously stated.

(c).—There is a third opinion to which I have for some time past been a convert, and which, I think, deserves more attention than it has met with, and in support of which a considerable amount of weighty evidence may be adduced. This, however, is absolutely impossible in public.

But let me again ask Bro. Hill to remember the question put to the candidate—"Why does he wish to," &c., and the reason, "to qualify him to preside over," &c. Now, bearing this in mind, let anyone visit the lodges in some of our Northern Counties—be present at the installation of the W.M. of a Craft lodge, and then at the ceremony of advancement in a Mark lodge, e.g., at Blackburn, where the old ritual is preserved, and he cannot fail to be convinced that the Mark is—as it is described on the title-page of an old M.S. ritual sent to me by the venerable Bro. Punshon, of Killingworth—the "Chair-Master's" Degree.

I must be brief, however, and only spare a few lines on the definition of Mark Man as contrasted with Mark Master, and the difficulty stated by Bro. Hill in conferring the mark, or reward of merit, properly belonging to F.C. in a lodge composed of M.M., who, as M.M.M. also, are thereby considered as superior to M.M. This difficulty fades when the qualification of M.M. is understood as precautionary, if I may so term it. Our newly-authorised ritual, which Bro. Hill describes as "contradictory," will not be so held by him when he keeps this in view; and if he will note how, in the introductory portion of the ceremony of advancement, the rank of F.C., or Mark Man, is carefully maintained, until the skill, regularity, &c., is rewarded by the conferring of the full rank of M.M.M.

To conclude, and I fear I have already trespassed upon your space at too great length, it is very gratifying to see such testimony as that of Bro. Hill borne to the work done by our Grand Mark Lodge; and I can quite understand this being thoroughly appreciated in the Colonies. On this point more may be written on another opportunity.

One other word. Though not able to dissociate myself from the official position I hold in this Grand Lodge, I desire it to be understood that—recognising the differences of opinion already referred to—the views I have expressed are merely my own—and are not to be taken as those of the Grand Lodge of M.M.M., or of any of its rulers, speaking with authority—ex cathedra—or otherwise.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
FREDERICK BINCKES.

London, January 19th, 1875.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As we cannot settle the P.M.'s question of Status on rejoining his lodge after a 12 months' absence, I will pass that over, and now return to the legality of lodges voting away their funds for charities not Masonic. If my memory serves me, you intimated an opinion in a former number that they could do so. Now I am of a contrary opinion, and am not singular in saying that we Freemasons do not subscribe our monies to make a fund for such purposes, and I shall be glad if you or some of our brethren "learned in the law" of the Craft, will point out to me, where, in the Book of Constitutions, such a law is enacted, and I shall be obliged.

Very fraternally yours,

AN OLD P.M., ONE, &c.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

I think your leading article as to the status of a P.M. who has ceased to subscribe 12 months, and rejoins his lodge, will carry conviction to nearly everyone who studies the point. I should be content to let the matter drop, were it not for an ambiguity in one paragraph. You say, "If a P.M. leaves his lodge for 2 years, he loses his precedence as Senior P.M., and on his rejoining the lodge, becomes the Junior P.M. at the time of his re-admittance." I submit this scarcely goes far enough; he not only becomes the Junior P.M. at the time of his re-admittance, but ever after remains Junior to any P.M. of the lodge who has subscribed since he occupied the chair; that, in fact, he rejoins as one of those strange P.M.'s referred to by Bro. Tebbs, who have no seniority with respect to the P.M.'s of the lodge itself. Grand Lodge membership depends entirely on membership of a private lodge, which is lost directly the subscription ceases to be paid, and cannot afterwards be recovered, unless the condition originally required (occupying the chair 12 months) be again complied with.

Yours, fraternally,

J.B.F.

MASONIC PRESENTATION TO THE MARQUIS OF RIPON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My curiosity and interest have been equally aroused by a somewhat sensational and startling extract from the Rosicrucian. Where is this beautiful casket to be seen? One is lost in admiration at that true Masonic spirit, which should induce the donors of so costly a gift to cover it with Masonic emblems. The idea is really equally touching and sublime; in fact, it could only emanate, I venture to think, from the highest degree of Masonic sympathy, and the highest grade of chivalrous mysticism! Perhaps the editor of the Rosicrucian will enlighten your readers as to this last development of the genial spirit of our Order, and oblige deeply, with many more,

Your humble servant,

AN ENQUIRING (IF DOUBTING) BROTHER.

[We have been struck with the extract from the Rosicrucian also. We can hear nothing about the mysterious casket.—Ed.]

THE MILITIA OR ORIENTAL ORDER OF THE TEMPLE—JERUSALEM AND CONSTANTINOPLE.

"The Order of the Temple, founded at Jerusalem in the year 1118 of the Christian era, was declared abolished by Pope Clement V, on the 2nd of May 1312, 'as a measure of provision and not through a Sentence of Suppression.'"

"The Grand Master Jacques de Molay was burned alive by order of Philippe IV, of France, the 11th of March 1314."

"In 1319, Pope John XXII, solemnly re-established the Order of the Temple in Portugal under the name of Militia of Christ."

"Jacques de Molay the Grand Master and Martyr at the time of his arrest (13th of October 1307), transmitted his powers to Roger de Flor, Commander of Catalonia; and later from the depth of his dungeon, he by provision, delegated Jean de Larmenius who re-established the Order in Western Europe, by a Charter dated 23rd of February 1324."

"Roger de Flor, being custodian of the original seal, re-established the Militia or Order of the Temple, at Constantinople, from whence it spread widely among the Eastern Nations, and firmly withstanding many persecutions, the Oriental Order has been preserved to the present day with all its primitive traditions, constantly rendering signal services to oppressed Christians."

"Roger de Flor dated his Charter of reconstitution of the Order from Constantinople on Easter Sunday 1313, secularized it and rendered it independent; his Successor, Sancho de Vargas, confirmed it in 1316."

"The following is the text which has been preserved:—"

"This is the Charter of the Militia or Oriental Order of the Temple such as it was established by the Grand Master Roger de Flor, delegate of the Martyr and elected by his Brethren."

"In the name of the Lord, Architect Almighty of the World and the Worlds, who has reigned, reigns, and shall eternally reign."

"Thou shalt confess the Name of the Lord; Thou shalt make it respected.

"Now, as in the ancient days of its glory and grandeur, the Militia or Oriental Order of the Temple is absolutely governed by the Grand Master, named for life by the Convention of Brethren. He is assisted by a Chapter composed of six members.

"The Militia or Oriental Order of the Temple is composed of Commanders, Knights, and Equerries.

"Ladies are admitted into the Order with the title of Sisters Hospitallers of the Militia or Oriental Order of the Temple. They have a Special Chapter presided over by a Grand Mistress named for life.

"The Lieutenants of the Grand Master are employed to maintain or establish the Militia or Oriental Order of the Temple in all the countries where Christians, resolved to practise the law of Charity, wish to observe the Charter of Constitution of the Order; and to that effect unite in the bonds of Brotherhood to give their co-operation to the sublime and magnificent work of devoting themselves to unobtrusive and persevering efforts in the cause of Christianity and Humanity.

"Christmas Day 1874."

Can any brother tell me anything about this apparently new Order, whose programme is dated "Christmas Day, 1874." Who is Roger de Flor? Is he a real or mythical personage? I see this circular states that Jacques de May transmitted his power to Roger de Flor, Commander of Catalonia (I do not understand this term in old Templary), and later gave a delegation to Jean de Larmeny. Roger de Flor dates, it is said, his Charter of Reconstitution from Constantinople, Easter Sunday, 1313, which was confirmed by Sancho de Vargas in 1316. This Charter is said to be preserved. Can it be seen? or is this another "fraus pia" to be added to the long list of unreliable charters, &c.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

THE TARGUMS AND MASONIC LEGENDS.

Our good friend, the Editor of the Freemason, promised to report the result of his examination of the "Targums of the Book of Chronicles," published at Amsterdam 1715, and at Cambridge 1725, from a MS. in the University library of the latter city.

I am anxious to have the report, and hence write again to ask the favour from the Editor, for the subject is an important one.

W. J. HUGHAN.

"The third and last toast was a verse from an old English Masonic song:

"The Craft, the Craft, the brave old Craft,
That has weathered the storm so long;
It has won renown from crozier and crown,
And a leaf from the child of song."

Where does this genial stanza come from?

PAUL PRY.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Annual Festival of this institution was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Tavern, the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, presiding. The company, consisting of ladies and brethren, numbered altogether about 700, for whom the excellent arrangements of the Stewards procured every possible comfort. Among the brethren at his lordship's table were the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain; Dr. Strong, Hon. Surgeon to the Institution; Ex-Sheriff Hutton, Professor Erasmus Wilson, Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; J. Percy Leith, Grand Deacon; Major Creaton, Past Grand Deacon; John Hervey, Grand Secretary; R. W. Little (Secretary Girls' School); F. Binckes (Secretary Boys' School); F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Past Grand Deacon; Hyde Pullen, Past Grand Sword-Bearer; John Sutcliffe (St. Grimsby), P. Prov. G.W. Lincolnshire; C. A. Cottelbrune, P.G.P.; T. Cubitt, G.P.; Bro. Charles Horsley, and Bro. C. J. Cooke, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Kent.

Grace having been said at the conclusion of the repast, the toasts were proposed in regular order as follows:—

The Chairman: Ladies and brethren, I rise to offer you a toast which, in all assemblies of Englishmen, I am glad to say, is always cordially reciprocated; and I can venture to say as a Mason that it will be enthusiastically received upon this great occasion. It is difficult, in taking the chair, to find words to express, without fulsome adulation, the power of affection that Her Majesty exercises over her subjects, because, whether we look at her in the aspect of a sovereign, whether we look upon her as a mother of a family, and as the mother of a great nation, she reigns deeply, dearly, and affectionately in our hearts. Let us compare our position with that of the rest of the continent, and we shall find that whatever differences of opinion may exist at home, there is but one reigning sentiment towards the sovereign of these realms. (Hear, hear.) And, brethren, I regret that to-day I have to ask your sympathy for our sovereign as a mother. We know that one of the princes is down on the bed of sickness, and I need not any words of eloquence to ask you, as fathers of families and brethren, to sympathize with Her Most Gracious Majesty in her present distress. Happily, the tidings are a little better of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold's state; but when we think of the anxious watching of the mother, when we think of the anxiety that must naturally crowd on her mind as she sees danger about one of her children, I am sure that it needs no words of mine to ask the brethren to sympathize with our Queen. I do not do this in a Masonic spirit only, but in a national spirit, and ask you, therefore, to drink the toast in a way that Masons would desire it to be drunk.

The toast having been honoured and followed by the National Anthem,

The Chairman again rose and said: I now rise to give you a toast which is second in all public assemblies of Englishmen, a toast which I venture to say is particularly dear to Masons. Our Craft aspires to high ascendancy, and we are honoured by having one to preside over us, who holds the highest position in this realm, and I can confidently say that that illustrious personage would not have accepted what we consider a very high dignity unless he thought he could fill it with benefit to the Craft, and honour to himself. When we recollect the emergency that we were placed in by the retirement of one whom we greatly revered—I mean our late Grand Master—I am sure I may be permitted in this hall to say that every Mason deeply regrets that from conviction he was obliged to leave us, because no man as a Grand Master filled his position so worthily, so honestly, and with such integrity as the Marquis of Ripon. We may regard the loss of the noble lord with regret as Englishmen. I am not here to obtrude religious feelings on Masonic brethren. Our faith is of so enlightened and free a nature that in my opinion in the dark ages when religion was in difficulty Freemasonry preserved the morality of the country. (Hear, hear.) For that reason it would induce me to join the Craft; and I trust that the day will come when the noble Marquis will once more rejoin us—when he will be emancipated from that thralldom which I do not care to speak of further. As regards our present Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, I would like to ask the company this question, "Did you ever know His Royal Highness to be called upon that he did not come forward to perform his duty?" And I think we, as Masons, can say we are proud of our Prince because he knows thoroughly how to enjoy himself. (Cheers.) At the same time, there is no man in Great Britain who has the power of self-denial more than His Royal Highness. I will defy anyone to say that he does not abnegate himself many agreeable duties, to perform those which belong to his high station in society. Thus we are proud of him as our Grand Master, and our future King. In both those respects, I give you his very good health. (Cheers.)

The Chairman: I hope you will not think that I am precipitate in getting through the list of toasts; but I am anxious, as I said in the early part of the evening, that you should have that pleasant intellectual enjoyment in the other hall, which, I hope, will give you gratification. And now I regret that on this festive occasion, whilst offering you the toast of "The Health of our Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," I have to ask your deepest sympathy for him in what you and I will consider the greatest distress that can possibly happen to mortal man. When I tell you that the noble Earl reigns in our affections, and when I tell you that he is a personal friend of my own, as was also the late Lady Carnarvon, who has just left this world, I trust and believe for higher realms, I can hardly suppress my emotion and can hardly tell how, as a friend and a Mason, I sympathise with my noble friend, and I ask you if you will do me the kindness on this occasion to permit me to be your echo of the feelings which I am sure exist throughout this great assembly at the proper time to convey to Lord Carnarvon the deep sympathy of his brother Masons in his bereavement. I am glad, however, to think that the noble lord knows really where to look for comfort; but when we are in distress as well as in joy the sympathy of our friends is most soothing and charming. I hope I may be permitted to convey from this great assembly our deep sympathy with him in his bereavement. I am sure you will drink his health with cordiality on this occasion. But now let me pass to a more joyous topic. When I think of the Deputy Grand Master, my noble friend, Lord Skelmersdale, a man whose comely presence does one's heart good to see, whose Masonic conduct in his province has endeared him to all his brethren, I feel I am offering you a toast which will meet with the cordial acceptance of all brother Freemasons. When I tell you that Lord Skelmersdale holds one of the offices of the Court as Captain of the Yeomen of the Guard, when your humble servant tells you that he has the honour of commanding the Gentlemen-at-arms, I trust that it will not be impertinent of me to say that I trust the day will come when Freemasonry is recognised at Court. I shall be glad to see the day when Masonic clothing is worn at Court. I know that there are no subjects more loyal to the throne than Freemasons, and though it would be far from me to attempt to initiate any change, because I belong to the old conservative Craft, yet belonging to this Craft I should like to see that honour conferred, which I, particularly as we are presided over by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, should esteem a valuable one. I know also that it would be very gratifying to the Fraternity to be received in our Masonic capacity at Court.

Bro. Ex-Sheriff Hutton, Grand Deacon, replied, and after expressing his own sympathy with Lord Carnarvon, said he should be very glad to see, when the Prince of Wales came to the throne, Masonry recognised at Court. He did not however, think there was a great probability of it. But if such a subject was mooted, he would endeavour to support it. He then thanked the brethren and ladies for their attendance, and said he hoped that the position of Masonry in England would be a guide to the whole world as showing what it could achieve, and what charity could accomplish.

The Chairman next proposed a special toast, "The Duc de Manignon," and addressed the company in French.

The Duc de Manignon having replied in French,

The Chairman said: I have another important duty to discharge, and reverting to my native language is a relief to me, and though I feebly attempted to convey your sentiments to the illustrious stranger, permit me to say that I feel I had your kind co-operation, because Masonry is above language, because it is the language of the heart. You heard what the noble Duc said to us about the wants of the poor, about the wants of the child, about the wants of the aged widow and of the aged Mason. I feel he has given me a text upon which, if time permitted, I would dilate. But brethren, I am proud to think that this is the third time that I have had the honour of advocating the cause of Masonic charity in this chair, and I venture to appeal to this meeting I address, to say the first one that every Freemason ought to desire to support is this. What is Royal Arch? What are all the honours of Masonry to the honour of a good conscience and a knowledge of having done your duty? If I may be permitted for a moment in the presence of friends whom I greatly respect and whom I deeply thank for being present here upon this occasion, I may ask them to corroborate the sentiment that since I have been their Provincial Grand Master, my chief object has been charity! charity! charity! Not that I would for a moment deny the cordial friendship that must exist between a Provincial Grand Master, of necessity and the Provincial Grand Lodges and Grand Lodge, because I believe that in no time has Masonry been so ascendant as it is at the present time, and I should not like to anticipate Bro. Terry's agreeable announcement, that I understand he has been enabled to make by your kind support of me in this chair, because I feel that I should be a poor man, and indeed a very poor Mason, if I could not sacrifice one evening to come among one of the most influential and respectable assemblies that can possibly be congregated in the Craft. When I think, brethren, of the influence that permeates throughout the width of the land when I know that I speak to hundreds of thousands this evening, it makes a man proud who has nobility to boast of, that he should be permitted also to be a representative of the people in promoting what he sympathizes with, the great cause of Christian charity. I know not whether Bro. Binckes or Bro. Little is here to-day. (Bro. Terry: Yes, my lord, both.) Then let them recollect that I am the slave of Bro. Terry, (laughter), and kindly forget all I have said on behalf of the Boys' School and the Girls' School. Recollect, brethren, that time passes, that I began at the wrong end, that I ought to have advocated the claims of the aged before I advocated the claims of the boys and girls. But I do not see why I cannot go round again. (Hear, hear.) I am glad to know that I have the cordial approval of the brethren of my own province, when I say that Masonry necessarily attaches itself to the heart of a moral and respectable man; it inculcates cordial good feeling towards one another, and I may say that in the position I have occupied in my own district, nothing has tended to make me more cordial to different classes of the people than this Craft to which I have the honour to belong. It is that which cements, and adopts, and helps that kind feeling which is wanted. I have always inculcated in every lodge that it should never assemble without paying a quota to the charities. I say if you drink a bottle of champagne which costs 10s. 6d., put 10s. 6d. in the box; if you drink a glass of spirits which costs 3d., put 3d. in the box. You have then done your duty like a man. I need not, I think, trouble you with the details of this great Institution, but I want just to say one word, because, perhaps, if I refrain from pressing the point upon you, you will put your hands in your pockets without any further observation; but when I tell you that there are a great number of applicants—68 applicants, and only 12 vacancies—I ask you, what are you about, Brother Masons? You are the representatives of this great city: what are you about? When I tell you that there are 35 widows, and only 3 vacancies, I ask you again, what are you about? 33 male candidates, and 9 vacancies; and 35 widows, and 3 vacancies! Now what are you about? Why, you have been drinking champagne instead of gin-and-water. Perhaps it is my fault to have too great a tendency to geniality, but, I say, let us recollect our Masonic duties first, and our pleasures afterwards. We are a very high, honourable, and distinguished body; we have the most distinguished persons connected with us; but let us practise abnegation. I heard of a lodge last night—I did not visit it because I was with the Prudent Brethren where those principles are inculcated—I ought to have visited those brethren who indulged in celery and cheese. I believe that morals may be inculcated, perhaps in a pleasant manner sometimes; and there is a moderation in all things. Masons, I think, know how to be moderate, and know how to be cordial and friendly; but if such a hint as I have given you this night would swell the funds of these great charities, do not you think we should have cause to be more proud of ourselves than at present? Our permanent income is about £2,200, and we want about £8,000 or £9,000 a year. Is it necessary that we should meet at our banquets and our festivals and our musical assemblies to know what is our duty? Let us enjoy ourselves by all means; let us meet on every opportunity. I am proud to take this chair. I want to inculcate what I now do without fear—that the basis of Masonry is charity—charity first, pleasure and cordiality and good-fellowship second. You may, perhaps, think, I have administered a lecture to you; but I shall call upon the Secretary to read that list which is a gratification to us all, and then see if you cannot give a little more the next time. I have now the pleasure of concluding my remarks by giving you "The Health of Bro. Tomkins, the Treasurer." I need only say that I feel it entirely unnecessary to make observations of him. He is rather of a leech than a Freemason. (Laughter.) He got me in a charity last night which was well supported by the Freemasons of London, the Margate Infirmary. He is most insidious and kind-hearted, and I am sure he will entwine himself round your hearts. (Cheers.)

Bro. Tomkins replied. Year by year, and he was speaking as an old Mason, their gatherings were nobler and nobler. Every year the amount collected exceeded that of the preceding year. This charity plunged into the affections of Masons, although all the charities were equally appreciated. The great Craft was constantly having great additions made to it; and every year, naturally, some of the brethren who came into the Order required assistance from their opulent brethren, and their children likewise required assistance. It would be very painful to have demands coming upon the Craft which there was no provision to meet; and therefore, while every Mason was in prosperity he should assist the charities. The Craft was now, as it were, in a period of prosperity, but they must expect in future years, the demands upon the benevolent fund would be larger than they were now. The Stewards who exerted themselves so well that evening had brought this fact to his mind, and he trusted that they would hand that on to future years, and not rest on their oars. He would advise them to make provision for the charities adequate to the wants of the different institutions. (Applause.)

Bro. James Terry then read the lists of subscriptions, which amounted in the whole to £6,630 13s. 6d., with eleven lists to come in. Staffordshire sent up £271. Great cheering followed the reading of the lists.

The Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," and said that under his lordship's presidency, the largest amount had been obtained, with one exception, when the Prince of Wales took the chair.

The Chairman said he would just thank the brethren for their kindness, but not to waste any time he would propose "The other Masonic Institutions, the Girls' School (Festival 12th of May) and the Boys' School (Festival 30th of June)" and would call on Bro. Little to respond.

Bro. Little said he had experienced the greater gratification that evening because the subscriptions were so large. He hoped that similar success would attend the other institutions. As a matter of formality, he might inform the brethren that the Lord Mayor of London would preside at the Girls' Festival, and it was hoped that the Stewards on that occasion would meet with the same support as their brother Stewards of that evening. The Boys' Festival the Pro Grand Master would preside at—at least it was hoped he would; but his lordship had just sustained a severe bereavement, in which all the brethren would sympathize with him. On behalf of both the institutions he (Bro. Little) solicited the support of the brethren.

Bro. Binckes being loudly called for, rose to reply. Why did they insist on bringing him on his legs? The noble chairman had called on Bro. Little, who had said everything that could be said, and gracefully too, on behalf of the Girls' and Boys' Schools. He would add his (Bro. Binckes's) congratulations to Bro. Terry on the success of the evening. He had entered the room as his lordship was asking what the brethren were about, and when he was alluding to his presidency of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. Now, he must inform his lordship that these institutions had not done with him yet. They would call on him again to give them the light of his countenance. As one who studied humanity he might say that when an English nobleman and gentleman like his lordship took the chair it warmed up the heart. He was proud to state in public what he had frequently stated in private, that a more thoroughly English gentleman was not to be found than the noble lord who presided over the province of Staffordshire. The brethren knew that the Boys' School was always in a chronic state of distress (laughter); but then the brethren insisted on doing, and doing, and doing, till they had got 177 boys into the school. It was an enormous number to take care of. The institutions were always fortunate in obtaining a chairman. Bro. Little had very gracefully alluded to Lord Carnarvon's terrible bereavement, which might possibly interfere with his appointment to take the chair at the next Festival of the Boys' School. He hoped it would not interfere with the support to be rendered to the school, but would rather be a stimulus to the brethren. He trusted they would supplement what they had done that day by their efforts on behalf of the other institutions. (Cheers.)

Bro. Philbrick proposed "The Ladies."

Bro. Rogers, of Stafford, returned thanks, and hoped the ladies would deal more liberally with the brethren in the judgment they passed on Masonry. It had been said that Masonry consisted in assembling together and eating good dinners; but he thought, after hearing the glorious announcement made by the Secretary, they would be convinced that this was not all they did. If they would only understand that Masonry taught the brethren to love them as they were intended to be loved, and that it was the brethren's desire and ambition to love and solace them in their hours of trouble, they would give Masons all the assistance in their power to the Masonic Charities. On behalf of the Ladies he begged to assure the brethren that they would further the interests of the Charities by making their claims known among their lady friends.

Bro. S. Rawson, P.D.G.M. of China, responded for "The Stewards," and in referring to the coming installation of the Prince of Wales, said he did not know of any place so capable of accommodating the multitude of brethren who would then be present as the Albert Hall. It would be celebrated on the 28th of April, and no doubt 12,000 brethren would be present. Wherever it was to be held, whether at the Albert Hall or the Agricultural Hall, the Alexandra Palace or the Crystal Palace, the Stewards would do their best to suit the comfort of the Craft.

The whole company then adjourned to the Temple, where a choice concert was given under the direction of Bro. Thaddeus Wells. The artists were Miss Banks, Miss Marion Severn, and Madame Thaddeus Wells, who were assisted by Bros. George Perren, Chaplin Henry, and Ransford, and Mr. Henry Guy. Bro. H. Nicholson (musical director to the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot) performed on the flute, and Bro. Henry Parker and Madame Thaddeus Wells on the pianoforte.

The dinner was well supplied by Bro. Francatelli, and Bro. Harker performed the duties of toast-master.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN THE UNITED STATES. TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE OF THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

The nineteenth Conclave of Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the U.S. was held in New Orleans, commencing on Tuesday, December 1st, 1874. Monday was distinguished by the arrival of Grand and Subordinate Commanderies from every part of the U.S.: even after the midnight of Tuesday, the thunder of artillery announced new arrivals. By 9 o'clock, Carondelet-street, the grand boulevard of New Orleans, was filled with Knights, and gay with dancing plumes. Bunting was displayed from almost every house. Even from the Custom House an immense national ensign hung, in honour of the day.

Tuesday, the opening day, was fair and beautiful, and about 3,000 Knights had arrived in the city, and were preparing for the Templar proceedings and pageant. The three principal head-quarters of the New Orleans Commanderies were:—Odd Fellows' Hall, Grunewald Hall, and Exposition Hall. Odd Fellows' Hall was the head-quarters of Indivisible Friends' Commandery, No. 1; Grunewald Hall, of Jacques de Molay, No. 2; and Exposition Hall, of Orleans, No. 3. All of these halls were decorated in the most lavish manner, with bunting, immense palmettos, evergreens, wreaths of cedar, graceful Sibley tents, tropical plants, Templar banners and monograms, floral Maltese crosses, gushing fountains,—in fact, each Hall constituted a fairy land of art and nature, almost miraculously combined. Some of the fountains gushed forth a crimson fluid, while from the walls there stood out blood-red crosses from a black background. Then the banquetting halls were supplied with every necessary and luxury of life, and when the festivities were at their height, during the visits of the various visiting Commanderies and Grand bodies, there was a brilliant combination of rich Templar uniforms, costly ladies' toilets, the busy hum of conversation, the merry ripples of laughter, the rattle of knives and forks—well, the reader may imagine the rest.

We cannot praise too highly the knightly and whole-souled reception extended to the visiting Knights by their fraters of New Orleans. Everything was done that could be done for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors, and their pilgrimage to New Orleans will be one of the pleasantest reminiscences of their Templar lives.

We need scarcely say that during the entire period of the Grand Conclave, receptions and visits by the different Commanderies and serenades by their bands were of continued occurrence. In fact, the whole city was alive with Templar uniforms, and, for a time, the business of the entire city appeared to be to do honour to the visiting Knights Templar.

The Templar parade, on the last day (Thursday) exceeded in splendor any display ever before made in New Orleans. It would be invidious to pretend to draw distinctions between the various bodies, but we may say, without exaggeration, that the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania with the subordinate Commanderies of Philadelphia and other portions of the State, at least equalled any other body in the largeness of its numbers, the accuracy of its marching, and its general brilliant appearance.

The route of parade was as follows:—

St. Charles-street to First, to Magazine, to Calliope, to Camp, to north side Canal, to Royal, to Esplanade, to Chartres, to St. Louis, to Peters, to south side Canal, to Carondelet, to Gravier, when the several Commanderies left the line and marched to their quarters.

The buildings along the line of the parade were profusely decorated with banners and flags, and the streets named were thronged with spectators.

The Knights were welcomed to Masonic Hall by Grand Master M. E. Girard. The most important business transacted was the triennial election of officers of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, which resulted as follows:—

Sir Knt. James Herron Hopkins, Pittsburg, Pa., Grand Master; Sir Knt. Vincent L. Hurlbut, M.D., Chicago, Ill., Deputy Grand Master; Sir Knt. Walter L. Bragg, Montgomery, Ala., Grand Generalissimo; Sir Knt. Edward T. Shultz, Baltimore, Md., Grand Captain General; Sir Knt. Benton H. Langley, Winona, Minn., Grand Senior Warden; Sir Knt. Charles Reinker Woodruff, Louisville, Ky., Grand Treasurer; Sir Knt. John W. Simmons, New York, Grand Recorder; Sir Knt. Theodore S. Parvin, Iowa City, Iowa, Grand Prelate; Sir Knt. Joseph P. Horner, New Orleans, Grand Standard Bearer; Sir Knt. John H. Brown, Kansas, Grand Sword Bearer; Sir Knt. J. W. Fellows, New Hampshire, Grand Warden.—Keystone.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This purifying and regulating medicine should be occasionally had recourse to during foggy, cold, and wet weather. These pills are the best preventives of fevers, sore throat, diphtheria, pleurisy, and asthma, and are sure remedies for congestion, bronchitis, and inflammation. A moderate attention to the directions folded round each box will enable every invalid to take the pills in the most advantageous manner; they will there be taught the proper doses, and the circumstances under which they must be increased or diminished. Holloway's Pills act as alteratives, aperients, and tonics. Wherever these pills have been taken as the last resource, the result has always been gratifying; even when they fail to cure, they always assuage the severity of symptoms and diminish danger.—Advrt.

Obituary.

THE LATE COUNTESS OF CARNARVON.

We deeply regret to announce the death of Lady Carnarvon, the wife of our distinguished Pro Grand Master, at eight o'clock on the morning of the 25th inst., at the residence of her husband in Bruton-street, at the early age of forty years. Lady Carnarvon was the only daughter of George, sixth Earl of Chesterfield, by the Hon. Anne Elizabeth Forester, eldest daughter of Cecil, first Lord Forester, and sister of the seventh Earl, whose sudden death from typhoid fever caused much sensation in September, 1871. Her ladyship married in September, 1861, the present Earl of Carnarvon, by whom she has left a family of four children. According to "Lodge's Peerage" they are George Edward, Lord Porchester, born in 1866; the Ladies Winifred and Margaret Herbert, and an infant daughter, scarcely a month old.

The news of Lady Carnarvon's death was immediately telegraphed to Highclere Castle, Lord Carnarvon's seat, near Newbury, and in the whole of that neighbourhood it was received with unfeigned regret. At Newbury the funeral knell was tolled, and among all classes were heard expressions of sorrow for her loss, and sympathy with Lord Carnarvon in his sad bereavement. Those feelings will be universal among all who had the privilege of her acquaintance, and could appreciate the charm of that household which is now left desolate.

BRO. WILLIAM IBBETSON, P.M. 302, P. PROV. G.S.W., WEST YORKSHIRE.

It is with much regret that we have to record the death of Bro. William Ibbetson, P.M. 302, Bradford, and P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works of West Yorkshire, which took place at his residence, Ashgrove, Bradford, on Thursday, the 21 inst., at the comparatively early age of fifty years. The cause of death was a severe attack of rheumatism, with inflammation of the lungs, which terminated fatally, as above named. Bro. Ibbetson, who was initiated into Freemasonry in the year 1860, was an active and zealous member of the Order, and after filling several of the subordinate offices, was, in 1867, elected to the honourable position of W.M. of his mother lodge, the largest in the Province of West Yorkshire. He was also a Royal Arch Mason, and in the year 1872 held the rank of M.E.Z. in the chapter attached to the lodge, and in all his relations his earnestness of purpose met with the cheerful response of those with whom he was associated. He was at all times a firm and liberal supporter of the several Masonic charities, and took a lively interest in their welfare and success. Bro. Ibbetson had been for several years, and was at the time of his death, a member of the Town Council, and always took a prominent position in any movement which had for its object the welfare and prosperity of the town, or the recognition of the merits of his fellow-citizens. Candour, openness of manner, honesty of purpose, and heartiness of disposition, were some of the more prominent characteristics of his nature, and ever amongst the foremost in good works, he displayed an earnestness of manner in everything he took in hand, whether in public affairs or in matters connected with the Craft. By his kindness of heart, his genial manners, and his untiring usefulness, he won for himself the respect and esteem of all who knew him; and his loss will be long and deeply felt by his brethren in the Craft, as well as by the public at large. Truly it may be said of him that "he was one whose hand was guided by justice, and whose heart was expanded by benevolence." The remains of Bro. Ibbetson were conveyed to their last resting-place at Undercliffe Cemetery on Monday the 25th inst., attended by a large gathering of personal friends, as also by the Mayor and Members of the Bradford Corporation, the funeral cortege being headed by a body of the Borough Police, whilst the tolling of the large bell of the Town Hall added to the solemnity of the occasion. The mournful services were impressively rendered by Bro. the Rev. T. H. Flynn, P. Prov. G. Chaplain, there being also present a large number of the members of the several Masonic Lodges of the town, including many past and present Provincial Grand Officers, who had assembled to pay the last tribute of fraternal respect to the memory of a departed brother.

BRO. F. M. COWLEY, W.M. 1242.

A very sad fatality in a family has just occurred at Douglas, Isle of Man. A young man named F. M. Cowley, son of Mr. Cowley, tailor, Strand-street, was engaged in a shooting contest at the Tromode Range, with the Douglas Rifle Corps, on New Year's Day. The weather was bitterly cold, with sleet and snow. Bro. Cowley, who was a young man of considerable promise, had not taken the precaution of sufficiently protecting himself with warm clothing against the inclemency of the weather, and the result was that he must have then caught the cold which, some days afterwards, developed into rheumatic fever. The disease rapidly increased in intensity, and on Monday last he succumbed to its effects. What makes the case the more melancholy is the fact that his sister, who was his junior, was stricken with the same disease, and died on Sunday last (the day before her brother). A few weeks ago their mother fell down stairs and broke her collar bone and arm, and has ever since lain in a dangerous state; and, to add to the troubles of this unfortunate family, another sister is suffering from erysipelas in one of her legs. The deceased young man was a member of the Masonic body, and exactly a fortnight prior to the day of his death he was installed by the writer of this paragraph into the position of W.M. of the Tynwald Lodge, No. 1242, of which he was the S.W. during the previous year. On the night of his installation he appeared to be in the best of health, and intensely delighted with having attained a position which he had long been ambitious to fill, that of W.M. of his "Mother Lodge." Little did those brethren who took part in the gay festivities of that day think that in one short fortnight afterwards the esteemed brother whom they had raised to the highest position which the Craft can give, or the lodge bestow on any of its members, would be summoned to the Grand Lodge above. The brethren assembled at the lodge-room on Monday, 4th inst., and resolved to attend the funeral of their deceased brother on Wednesday morning, wearing simple Masonic emblems—white gloves, and a crape band around the left arm. A large number mustered at the funeral, which took place at Kirk Braddan Cemetery. Brother and sister were laid in the one grave, and a sadder sight than this dual burial it has never been our lot to witness. The account of Bro. Cowley's installation was published in the Freemason of the 16th. ult.

ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.—There will be no meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter and Lodge for London and the four M.C.'s in the month of February.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, gave the first drawing-room for the season, on Wednesday last. There was a large and brilliant attendance.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting was held on the 21st ult. Present Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; Peter de Lande Long, Vice-President Board of General Purposes, I.P.M.; Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; Bobby, P.G.S.W.; A. J. Barber, P.M., P.G.O.; Emma Holmes, P. Prov. G. Reg., &c.; W. Spalding, P.M., Secretary; T. E. Taylor, F.L.S., F.G.S., &c.; J. J. Burton, S.W.; Rev. A. G. Moore, J.W.; S. Wright, Acting S.D.; J. Casley, Acting J.D.; Ridley King, Acting I.G., &c. Visitors: Bros. H. Gamman, P.M.; Dr. Elliston, P.M. of the Perfect Friendship Lodge; and Sir Peter Spokes. The minutes of the last meeting being read and confirmed, the resignation of Dr. Muir, and Regiment; Lieut. Chadwick, 17th Lancers; and Capt. Terry, 60th Rifles, were accepted, the brethren being unable to attend the lodge duties in consequence of the great distance of their present homes from Ipswich. The resignation of another brother was accepted conditionally upon his paying up the subscription due to the lodge. Mr. George Sampson Elliston, and Lieut. Pirie, R.N., were duly initiated into Masonry, the ceremony being very efficiently performed by the W.M., who was ably supported by his Officers. The W.M. then presented to Bro. Long a very handsome gold Past Master's jewel of our worthy Bro. Kenning's manufacture, as a token of respect and esteem on the part of the brethren of the lodge, and in doing so regretted that the pleasing duty had not devolved upon an older and abler brother. Bro. Long, in a brief and modest speech, acknowledging the gift, said he should prize it more than any other jewel he might possess, since it was an evidence of the goodwill of the brethren, and he should be glad to do anything at any time for the British Union Lodge to advance its interests or improve its status. Our courteous and popular brother's remarks were greeted with applause as he took his seat. The current business being disposed of, the brethren retired to the dining hall adjoining, where the customary substantial repast was spread. In giving the toasts from the chair, the W.M. remarked that they had a distinguished brother present in Sir Peter Spokes, whose name he specially coupled with that of "The Visitors." In responding, Sir Peter disclaimed the right to be considered a distinguished Mason, though whatever distinction he had attained, he was willing to attribute to Masonry. It was on the occasion of the Prince of Wales laying the foundation stone of the New Grammar School at Reading with Masonic honours, when he (Sir Peter) was Mayor of that Town, that His Royal Highness offered him knighthood, and which offer, he need not say, he had accepted. Bro. Spokes passed a warm eulogium on His Royal Highness for his geniality and gracious bearing upon that and other occasions. Bros. Gamman and Dr. Elliston also responded to the toast, the latter remarking that in looking over the minute book of his lodge, the Perfect Friendship, he discovered that amongst the members of the British Union Lodge who attended the first meeting of that lodge, was his grandfather, which he thought would be interesting to his brothers, at least now that he had been initiated into Masonry in this lodge. The Secretary's and Tyler's toasts having been given, and Bros. Gamman, Emma Holmes, and Taylor, having contributed to the harmony of the evening, the brethren separated at low twelve, after spending a very pleasant evening.

KENDAL.—UNION LODGE (No. 129).—This old lodge held its annual meeting on Thursday, January 28th, at three o'clock in the afternoon. There was an unusually large gathering of brethren. Punctually at the time named, the W.M., Bro. Joseph Bintley, Prov. G.S. of Works, assumed the chair, and assisted by his Wardens, opened the lodge. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and the lodge opened in the 2nd degree, the W.M. invested W. Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg., to take the chair. The W.M. then presented Bro. John Talbot, S.W., W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation, which ceremony was impressively rendered in ample form. At the request of the Installing Master, W. Bro. W. Dodd, P.M., P. Prov. G.P., delivered the addresses to the W.M. and Wardens. The new officers having been invested, the thanks of the brethren were accorded to Bro. Bowes for his valuable services. The lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the King's Arms Hotel for the banquet, which was of a recherche character, and gave unqualified satisfaction in every respect. The W.M., Bro. Talbot, presided, and was supported on the right and left by the R.W.D.P.G.M., Colonel Whitwell, M.P., Bros. Rev. J. Chaplain, Dr. Page, W.M. 1074; T. Wilson, P.M.; W. Dodd, P.M.; and others. Rev. Wright, Chap.; Joseph Bintley, I.P.M.; John Bowes, P.M.; John Holme, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W.; Thomas Tunstall, J.W. 148; and about sixty brethren. Grace after meat having been said by the Chaplain, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal toasts in appropriate terms. He next proposed "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master," and in doing so showed the benefits likely to accrue to Freemasonry under the presidency of our Royal Grand Master. At the command of the W.M., Bro. John Bowes, P.M., &c., proposed the next toast, "The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master; the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said that those brethren who were present, as he (the speaker) was some years ago, when the noble lord installed the Prov. Grand Master of East Lancashire, in the Great Free Trade Hall, in Manchester, would not soon forget the able and impressive manner in which that ceremony was rendered by their noble brother. Of Lord Skelmersdale he could say a good deal, and from personal knowledge. He was essentially a "working" Mason, and they felt proud that such noblemen came willingly forward to promulgate the genuine principles and tenets of their noble Order. The other Grand Officers were, at all times, chosen not only for their high social rank, but also from the warm interest they took in the Craft. Happy indeed was he on that occasion to be able to couple with the toast one of themselves—a brother dear to all of them—their own Deputy Grand Master. He was indeed a distinguished brother, and one ever ready to prove the dignity and high importance of Freemasonry. That the Grand Master should appoint Colonel Whitwell one of his Wardens in the Grand Lodge surprised none of them. He then opined a hearty reception for the toast, and called upon Colonel Whitwell, M.P., to respond to the same. The Worshipful D.P.G.M. responded at great length, and in most eloquent terms, and we much regret that our space will not allow us to give the speech in extenso. After giving expression to the pleasure it gave him to meet his brethren in his mother lodge, and afterwards at refreshment, he referred to the hold that Freemasonry had upon people of all nations. He traced its history from time immemorial, and pictured in graphic terms the importance of its symbolism. When he joined their time-honoured Craft, some of his friends outside their sacred precincts, expressed their belief that Freemasonry was a "delusion," yea, more, "a snare." Not long ago when they lost their highly esteemed head, the unenlightened thought their days as a society were numbered; but what was the fact? They lost a nobleman to obtain a prince of royal blood! Colonel Whitwell then referred to the toast in detail, and concluded by congratulating the W.M., and all present, on the great increase in the numbers locally, and the more general desire on all sides to become better acquainted with the deeper meaning of their various teachings. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Colonel Whitwell, who said that the position Bro. Talbot held that day was a proof of the high estimation in which he was held by his brethren and fellows. He must, however, be allowed to congratulate the lodge at having at its head a brother whom to know was highly to esteem. The toast was most enthusiastically drunk. The W.M., in responding, said he was fully sensible of the great responsibility he had taken upon himself that day; but he hoped that with the aid of his Officers and the assistance of the I.P.M., he should be enabled to merit the approbation of the brethren who had so kindly placed him in the high position he held amongst them. Bro. C. G. Thomson, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg., proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Joseph Bintley," whom he highly eulogized for the zeal and ability he had shown in governing and working the lodge during the past year. They were a large, strong, and united lodge, and Bro. Bintley had contributed his full share to their prosperity and well-being. Very cordially, therefore, he proposed "The Health of their good friend, and zealous brother, Joseph Bintley, I.P.M." The I.P.M., in responding, referred at length to the great zeal and ability of his predecessors, and said that if his efforts to promote the general good of the lodge met with their approval, he had every reason to be satisfied. Bro. Bintley then pointed out how necessary it was for the subordinate officers to render ready and willing service to the W.M., and concluded his eminently practical remarks by a complimentary reference to the W.M. Bro. D. Page, M.D., W.M. 1074, proposed "The Wardens and Officers of No. 129." In a speech of some length and great ability he complimented the W.M. on being able to select such brethren, for he was sure they would do not only credit to themselves, but honour to the lodge. Bros. Grayson, Nelson, and Rev. J. Chaplain, responded. Bro. John Holme, P.M., P. Prov. G. W., proposed "The Visiting Brethren." He said Westmorland Masons were generally given to hospitality, and Kendalians were so in particular. They thanked their visitors for the honour they had done them in countenancing their efforts for the good of Masonry, and he very cordially proposed their good health with long life and prosperity. Bros. Dodd, Bell, Pusey, Tunstall, and others, responded, and united in the one opinion that they had spent a most enjoyable day, and hoped for an early opportunity of entertaining Kendal brethren in return. The S.W. having proposed "The Masonic Charities," the W.M. called upon Bro. Bowes to respond to the same, which he did, and gave a succinct account of each of the Charities, and advocated the formation of a local one, similar in character and design to the West Lancashire Educational Institution. Bro. Holme said there was one toast which did not appear on the list, but which was nevertheless an important one. They had done honour to the officers past and present from the W.M. downwards, but the bulk of the brethren were not aspirants for office, and yet they contributed materially to the prosperity of the lodge. He had pleasure in proposing their good health. Bro. Tattersall responded. Bro. Baron proposed the final toast, which was drank in solemn silence. In closing the report, we must not omit to notice the excellent singing under the direction of the Organist, Bro. Godfrey. Both songs and glees were well rendered by Bros. Godfrey, Eli Cox, Thos. Tunstall, Pusey, and others, and added greatly to the pleasures of the evening.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—A meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held on the 26th ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. The lodge was opened at four o'clock in the afternoon by Bros. Kennet, W.M.; Waygood, S.W.; M. Davis, J.W.; Mallett, S.D.; Scott, J.D.; Dairy, I.G.; D. Davis, D.C.; Themans, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M., Treasurer; W. Stuart, P.M., Secretary. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Guy, Collins, and Wilkinson, to the sublime degree, and passed Bros. Bird, Crow, Dyke, Oliver, and Leavers, as F.C.'s. The ballot having been taken, resulted in an unanimous approval that Messrs. Pilbrow, Steng, Politzer, and Chambers, should become members, and they were accordingly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. The whole and arduous working of the three degrees were carried out excellently by the W.M., and completed without his once vacating the chair or "calling off." Bro. Pope, P.M., proposed, and Bro. Stuart, P.M., seconded—"That Bro. T. C. Walls, of Nos. 1381 and 1503, should become a joining member,"—which motion, upon being submitted to the ballot, was unanimously carried. Bro. Hopwood, P.M., then addressed the brethren, and stated that he thought the time had arrived that some active steps should be taken by the lodge, through its worthy W.M., towards obtaining a centenary jewel, to which it could justly lay claim, having been founded in 1774, under the warrant of the then Grand Master, the Duke of Athol. He then proposed that application should be immediately made to Grand Lodge, in order to obtain this distinguished honour for the brethren of the Faith Lodge, which was seconded by Bro. Themans, I.P.M., and unanimously carried. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was elegantly and substantially served in the commodious hall attached to the hotel. Among the visitors present were Bros. Koch, P.M. of the Lily of Richmond, and W.M. Kennington; Burrell, W.M. Mount Edgumbe; M. Phillips, 277; R. Phillips, 765; Price, 275; Rosenheim, 27; Drew, 1269; Fredericks, 188; Hill, 212. The toast of "The Queen and Craft" was duly honoured, and that of "Bro. H.R.H., the Grand Master," followed. Bro. Walls then sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The W.M., in proposing the health of "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," touched feelingly upon the sad loss his lordship had sustained by the sudden death of his amiable and accomplished countess. This toast was received solemnly, and with "slow fire." The usual Masonic toasts then followed in quick succession. "The Initiates" were toasted, and they severally replied. "The Visitors" toast was also warmly received, and Bro. Koch, in reply, expressed his thanks for the very hearty manner the toast had been responded to by the brethren, and stated that he personally was pleased at the manner in which the entire business of the lodge and banquet had been carried out by the excellent and worthy W.M. Bro. Burrell reiterated the remarks of Bro. Koch, and supplemented them by stating that the working of the lodge would challenge comparison with any in the United Kingdom, it being simply perfect. "The W.M.'s Health" was proposed by the I.P.M., Bro. Themans, and heartily received. The W.M. having replied, then rose, and announced to the brethren the amount he had in hand, as Steward to the Aged Freemasons, and urgently requested any brother who had not subscribed, and who kindly felt disposed to do so, to forward his donation at once. Bro. Taylor, P.M., then addressed the brethren, and made an eloquent appeal on behalf of their W.M., who had personally subscribed £10 to the fund, and whose list, notwithstanding that handsome gift, was far smaller than so large and influential a lodge as the Faith, in his humble opinion, should be represented by. He then, for the information of the newly-made brothers, explained the working of the Board of Benevolence, and dwelt at length upon the valuable assistance invariably rendered to distressed and deserving Masons by that most excellent institution; and as an example of what could be done, stated that he was present when an application for relief was made to the board by a tradesman, and a most worthy brother, who, through the cattle plague, had been reduced from a state of comparative ease and comfort to a condition bordering upon penury. The Committee of the Institution investigated the matter, and requested the petitioner to state the amount that would be required to fairly start him again in business, which was given; and he was proud to say that the whole sum asked for by the distressed brother, which was, to the best of his recollection, either £170 or £180, was unanimously voted to him. By that timely and beneficent assistance, he was enabled to extricate himself from his difficulties and to re-establish his business. In conclusion, the speaker sincerely hoped the brethren would do their best to increase the list of the W.M., as he was a Steward the lodge might well be proud of. Bro. Taylor, by the W.M.'s permission, then went round to the brethren, of whom there were nearly eighty, and succeeded in collecting a very handsome sum. The healths of "The P.M.'s and Officers" having been given, Bro. Longstaffe, the Tyler, gave the concluding toast, and the brethren separated.

CHATHAM.—UNITED CHATHAM LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE (No. 184).—On Tuesday, the 26th ult., the installation meeting of this old Kentish lodge was held at the Assembly Rooms, Old Brompton, rooms which are entirely devoted to Masonic purposes. They are admirably adapted for Masonic purposes, being large, and entirely removed from the public gaze. They were, on this occasion, nicely decorated; the lodge furniture was of a size and form which made it imposing; and the old warrant of the lodge and other emblems of its antiquity, suitably disposed on the walls, gave a Masonic air to the locality seldom met with away from the Masonic Temple in Great Queen Street. The brethren of Kent have long been famous for their Masonic spirit, and when they arrange any celebration, it is always done thoroughly. Brethren are not wanting to lend assistance at any Masonic event, and the present and past Grand Officers of the Province are always ready to devote a portion of their time to give eclat to the proceedings. At the installation meeting, therefore, on Tuesday week, in this lodge, a strong body of these brethren attended, and among them were Bros. Page, P.G.W.; Spencer, P.G.S.; W. Wood, W.M. St. Michaels; J. Parkes, P.M. 387, Malta; H. Wood, W.M. 20; R. C. Burfield, P.M. 20; W. Downing, I.P.M. 20; P. Murphy, P.M. 184; P. Warne, P. Prov. A.G.S.; Swinfen, W.M. 503; J. Jervis, W.M. 1424; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason); C. Birley, I.P.M. 184; J. G. Redman, P.M., P. G. Supt. Works; Strowse, P.M.; Thomas Wells, S.W. 503; Timothy Epps, 503; Thomas Elliott, 1050; Henderson, 1050; J. G. Wilson and J. C. Sinclair, Stewards 20; George Bently, I.G. 20; Lemon, 20; Joseph Edwards, 20; Griffith, 20; and Gale, 184. Lodge was resumed by Bro. Birley, W.M., shortly after four o'clock, and he then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Redman, Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works, who, in a very quiet, unassuming, yet fluent and impressive way, installed Bro. James Hewett, of Old Brompton, in the chair of the lodge. Bro. Hewett was presented by Bro. R. C. Burfield, P.M. No. 20, and at the Board of Installed Masters received the hearty congratulations of all its members. One of the brethren of this board was Bro. Strowse, the Treasurer of the lodge, who was certainly unique by the number of years he has been a member of the Craft. Bro. Strowse has been fifty-seven years a Mason; he has witnessed fifty installations in this lodge; he has been its Treasurer thirty-seven years, and a Past Master of the lodge forty-one years. Bro. Hewett, immediately after being placed in the chair, proceeded with his duties, and gave evidence of his ability to perform them in a masterly style. At the proper time he appointed Bros. Muggleton, S.W.; Gorham, J.W.; Strowse, P.M., Treasurer; W. H. Edwards, Secretary; Young, S.D.; Rankin, J.D.; Johnstone, Dir. of Cer.; Middleton, I.G.; Butler and Cotton, Stewards; McKean, Organist; and Drago, Tyler. Bro. Redman delivered all the charges on the investiture of officers and to the brethren subsequently. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Redman for performing the ceremony, and this having been done, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Mitre Hotel, Chatham, where a superb banquet was provided by Bro. J. F. Lewis, the proprietor. The preparations were in keeping with all the other arrangements of the day, being perfect in all their parts and honourable to every one who had a hand in them. There was a beautiful display of flowers, which were rendered the more attractive by there being a full supply without a superabundance of them. Flags were nicely arranged around the room, and there was a tasteful harmony of colours in the fruit, the flowers, and the banners. The tables were soon supplied with guests, and the members of the lodge and their visitors made an imposing gathering of over 50 brethren. The banquet was partaken of with great zest, as it deserved to be, and when it was disposed of and grace said, the W.M. proceeded to discharge the remaining functions of President, by proposing the toasts. This he did, as he had done the Master's duties in lodge, with readiness; not forgetting that extending the speeches to any great length, would deprive the brethren from London of the pleasure of participating in them. Before however proceeding with them, he placed on Bro. Birley's breast a massive Past Master's jewel, and informed the brethren that Bro. Birley was Steward of the lodge for the Benevolent Institution's festival, which would be held the next day. After submitting Her Majesty's health to the brethren, the W.M. called on Bro. Page, P.G.J.W., to propose the Grand Master. In doing so, Bro. Page, after expressing his gratification that the Prince of Wales should have taken that office upon him, trusted that he might be spared to fulfil the duties of the office for many years, and might never cease to feel that strong and kind regard for Freemasonry which he had evinced hitherto. With "The Health of the Prince of Wales," he asked the brethren to drink "Better Health to Prince Leopold." The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." While on this toast he thought he could not do better than ask the deep sympathy of the brethren for the Pro Grand Master, on the death of the Countess of Carnarvon, a lady who was much beloved by all persons with whom she came in contact. To his lordship her death must be a severe trial, and he (the W.M.) was sure that all the brethren would mourn with him, as a member of the same great brotherhood. Bro. Redman proposed "The Provincial Grand Master, Lord Holmesdale," and said it was perfectly unnecessary for him in that place to enter into any eulogium of his lordship's character. It was well known that for the last fifteen years Freemasonry had flourished in the county of Kent to an almost unprecedented degree. The lodges of this province had almost trebled their number since Lord Holmesdale took its Grand Mastership. This success spoke much for his energy, and it was therefore with peculiar pleasure that the brethren should welcome the mention of his name. The W.M. proposed "The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the Grand Officers," and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Spencer, Prov. Grand Secretary, an officer whose duties had been discharged, while with quietness, with great talent and ability. Bro. Spencer responded, and particularly mentioned the unsurpassed hospitality which had characterised this lodge in the reception of its visitors. Referring to the W.M.'s kind mention of the services of the Prov. Grand Secretary, he reminded the brethren that his duties which would otherwise have been onerous had been rendered comparatively light by the exactitude with which the lodges in the province had made their returns. If he had given satisfaction hitherto, he hoped to do so in future. The business of the province was increasing very fast, and it was a pleasure to all Masons to see the strides which the Order was making in the country. They had recently lost the advice and guidance of one who had held high and distinguished rank, and who had obtained the good-fellowship of the brethren throughout the entire Craft. They had lost him under peculiar circumstances; and the Order was placed in an extraordinary position, inasmuch as he was replaced by one who, in future years, would be not only the head of the Craft, but the head of the nation. It was a great thing for Freemasons to be ruled over by one who occupied so high a position; and it added a lustre to the ancient Order when its head was a Mason who would have the foremost position in this land of freedom. It therefore behoved Masons to be careful whom they admitted amongst them. They should initiate only those who would uphold the dignity of the Craft, and those grand principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth, which were its guiding stars. At present, these principles were very extensively practised, but, unfortunately, there were many brethren who required assistance, and who were totally unable to assist themselves. For them and for their widows there was the Benevolent Institution, whose festival would be held to-morrow, and for which the I.P.M. of this lodge was a Steward. There were also the Boys' and the Girls' Schools for the children of Freemasons; and he would urge all the brethren to support these three great institutions to the utmost of their ability. The Province of Kent was doing so, and it had a Charity Committee whose organization was such that a candidate put forward by it was safe to be elected. He had, in other lodges in the neighbourhood, recently set before the brethren the advisability of provincial cases being placed in the hands of this committee in preference to being run independently, and as many of the brethren were now present who had heard those remarks, he would not repeat them. Bro. Page also responded, in a few words, and Bro. Warne, who was called upon as well, said that a few days ago, in a Kentish village, a wedding was performed in which the bride was not very good-looking. When the party was adjourning to the vestry the clergyman said: "It is usual, on these occasions, for the clergyman to give the bride a kiss; but to-day we will dispense with that part of the ceremony." On going to the vestry to complete the contract, the bridegroom said: "It is usual, on these occasions, to give the clergyman a guinea; but to-day we will dispense with that part of the ceremony." In the same way, he would say that, as two speeches had already been delivered in response to this toast, they would dispense with any further speech after this toast. Bro. Birley proposed "The Health of the W.M.," whom he knew to be a true Mason, and who would conduct the business of the lodge with credit and ability. The W.M. said: For your very kind mention of me, I return you my most sincere thanks, and I do hope that we shall have a very comfortable year. It is the purpose of my heart that we should have quietness above all things. I also greatly desire that there should be a liberal support of the Institutions which our Provincial Grand Secretary has been kind enough to mention. I shall take the opportunity, as many times as it may offer itself, to induce our brethren to subscribe to them, and I hope it will be seen that there is the true Masonic spirit prevailing in this old Kentish lodge. I most sincerely thank you for so warmly drinking my good health. Bro. Murphy proposed "The Visitors," to which Bro. Humphrey Wood, W.M. 20, replied, thanking the lodge very sincerely for its hospitality, but stating that everything a visitor could say, had really been said by the Provincial Grand Secretary, whose exposition of the principles of Freemasonry should be laid to heart by all the brethren. Bro. Thomas Wells, of Maidstone, in answer to loud calls, likewise replied, and wished the lodge all the prosperity that Masons could wish each other. The W.M. proposed "The Masonic Press," and afterwards "The Installing Master." He said that he (the W.M.) took great pleasure in seeing Masonic working, and he had never been absent from the lodge but twice, and on both occasions it had been through illness. He did not know whether Bro. Redman had ever missed a meeting, but for himself he should be very sorry to miss any of Bro. Redman's working. Better working never existed. The brethren having confirmed this sentiment by most cordially drinking Bro. Redman's health, that brother acknowledged the compliment. He said it was exceedingly kind of the brethren, but it was nothing new to him to meet with a warm reception. It would be superfluous to say much on the subject of his performance. It was well known to the brethren of 184, that he was always willing to do whatever lay in his power for the lodge, and he would rather not say anything with reference to himself. The W.M. had stated that he had never been absent from the lodge but twice. Although he (Bro. Redman) had been a long way off, he had travelled from London to be present at the lodge, and he had never missed one lodge night, coming at the opening and remaining till the closing. He asked the officers and brethren to do the same; it was a good example to follow. This lodge had existed for four generations, and it had met at different places. It was now at very comfortable quarters, and maintained its high character. He was sure it always would do so, and it was supporting the charities liberally, which was the true end of Masonry. The other toasts on the list were then disposed of, and the brethren closed the evening with some excellent singing.

ST. AUSTELL.—LODGE PEACE AND HARMONY (No. 406).—The following, we are informed, is a correct list of officers appointed and invested, in lieu of those named in our report last week:—Bros. W. Lyle, W.M.; C. Trus-cott, I.P.M.; A. H. Ferris, S.W.; T. J. Smith, J.W.; F. B. Paul, Chaplain; W. Guy, Treasurer; F. W. Gregory, Secretary; W. Mason, S.D.; J. F. Matthews, J.D.; R. L. Sparrow, Dir. of Cer.; E. E. Gill, Organist; J. Malford, I.G.; Kirkman and J. W. Higman, Stewards; W. Real, Tyler; and W. Guy, P.M., Steward to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund.

LEICESTER.—JOHN O'GAUNT LODGE (No. 523).—The brethren of this lodge assembled in the Masonic Hall on the 21st ult., for the transaction of business, which, since the elevation of Bro. Partridge, Prov. Grand Secretary, to the chair, is generally of an interesting and instructive character—this fact being fully evinced by the numerous attendance, as well as the distinguished rank of those present on this occasion. Bro. Partridge conducted the business of the meeting in a manner which few can equal, assisted by the following staff of officers:—Bros. F. J. Baines, I.P.M.; J. T. Thorp, S.W.; W. T. Rowlett, J.W.; T. A. Mykes, Sec.; A. Ross, S.D.; R. Taylor, J.D.; W. C. Shout, I.G.; A. Sergeant, and J. F. Smith, Stewards. There were also present Bros. G. Toller, jun., P.M.; W. Sculthorpe, P.M.; W. B. Smith, P.M.; A. M. Duff, P.M.; C. Stretton, P.M. 279; A. Palmer, P.M. 279; C. E. Stretton, Sec. 279; J. M. McAllister, S.W. 279; Rev. Gordon, J. Bird, T. Charlesworth, G. B. Atkins, J. Young, Dr. Meadows, Orlanda Law, I.G. 279; and others. The claims of charity in support of the Masonic Institution for Boys were not forgotten, and a donation worthy the generous character of the lodge was unanimously voted to Bro. Waite, P.M., P.G.J.W., the representative Steward for this year. The labour being ended, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the supper-room. During the progress of the usual toasts, Bro. C. Stretton, P.M., P. Prov. G.W., in responding on behalf of St. John's Lodge, paid a well merited and graceful compliment to Bro. Partridge for his distinguished services as Master of the John O'Gaunt Lodge, and as Grand Secretary of the province.

SEACOMBE.—COMBERMERE LODGE (No. 605).—The brethren connected with this lodge—one of the most influential in the Province of Cheshire—assembled on Thursday afternoon, the 21st ult., at the Seacombe Hotel, Seacombe, for the purpose of assisting at the installation of Bro. E. J. Haddon, W.M. elect. There was a numerous and influential gathering of members and visitors, and the whole of the proceedings passed off with the greatest eclat. Bro. E. Davies, the respected W.M. of the lodge, presided at the opening, and amongst the brethren present we observed Bros. J. M. Radcliffe, I.P.M.; E. J. Haddon, S.W.; J. McNeerney, J.W.; J. Sillitoe, Treas.; T. Leighton, P.M. Treas.; T. Shaw, S.D.; E. Jones, J.D.; T. Gregory, D.C.; J. Jones, I.G.; E. H. Harrison, S.; J. Aden, H. Banks, J. A. Cleator, B. F. Kettle, W. Parry, H. Roberts, R. Foulkes, T. Williams, W. Owen J. E. Jones, H. W. Flint, R. C. Mellor, P. Prov. J.G.D.; C. Staley, G. G. Davies, W. Jones, E. Jones, E. Allaby, A. E. Coveney, J. Danton, A. Towill, and others. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. H. Williams, P.M. 249; L. Ellis, W.M. 1289; Dr. G. W. Punched, P.M.; W. M. Asher, 477; G. H. Wilson, W.M. 537; E. A. Lee, 537; G. B. McGachen, 1094; C. Leighton, W.M. 1325; C. Haswell, 203; H. Jones, 667; T. S. Jones, P.M. 1267; W. H. Hime, 477; S. Jones, P.M. Sec. 477; J. P. Platt, P. Prov. J.G.W.; D. Fraser, W.M. 477; J. Skeaf, P.G.O. (West Lancashire); T. Platt, P. Prov. J.G.D.; H. Low, 1289; J. Oliver, 477; S. Whitney, 1086; and others. The ceremony of installation of Bro. E. J. Haddon as W.M. of the lodge, was performed by Bro. W. Bulley, P. Prov. G.S.W., in a very complete and masterly manner, and the following officers were subsequently invested:—Bros. E. Davies, I.P.M.; J. McNeerney, S.W.; T. Shaw, J.W.; J. Sillitoe, Treas. (re-elected); T. Leighton, Sec. (re-appointed); E. Jones, S.D.; J. Jones, J.D.; T. Gregory, I.G.; E. Jones, Org.; E. A. Harrison, D.C.; A. Banks, S.S.; J. A. Cleator, J.S. Bro. Holloway was elected Tyler, it being resolved unanimously that Bro. Rodan, the previous Tyler, who had become enfeebled by old age, should be allowed the same payments as he had received when actively fulfilling the duties of that office. Before the lodge was closed, a very handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. E. Davies, I.P.M., to mark the sense which the brethren of the Combermere Lodge had of the admirable manner in which he had filled the duties of the chair during the year. The brethren afterwards partook of a recherche banquet, provided by Mrs. Stokes, hostess of the hotel, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and cordially responded to. An excellent musical programme was furnished by Bros. Haswell, Rogers, J. Robinson, H. Jones, E. Jones, W. Parry, E. Jones, T. H. Hughes, and J. Skeaf, the last named presiding at the piano.

LIVERPOOL.—ALLIANCE LODGE (No. 667).—The annual installation festival of this lodge, which occupies a position second to none in West Lancashire for true brotherly feeling and hearty co-operation, took place at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday, the 19th ult. The Alliance is rightly named, for all the Masonic graces seemed to be combined in the hearts and conduct of the members, and the annual installation proceedings are always the most pleasant during the year. The gathering on this occasion was no exception to the rule, for not only was there a very large gathering—numbering nearly 100 of tried and true Masons—but the whole manner of conducting the business was worthy of the greatest admiration and general imitation. Shortly after three o'clock the lodge was opened by Bro. W. C. Bulman, W.M., who was supported by a full compliment of Past Masters and officers, a goodly array of members, and a large number of visitors, amongst whom we observed—Bros. S. G. Ibbes, P. Prov. G.S.B.; T. Evans, W.M. 1356; E. Winkup, P.M. 1356; P. B. Gee, P.M. 1264; A. Davies, P.M. 1264; R. Brown, S.W. 241; H. W. Nicholas, 249; A. C. Morrison, 594; W. T. May, P.M. 673; T. J. Hughes, 216; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., and others. After the transaction of some preliminary business, Bro. Thomas Ockleshaw was duly and solemnly installed W.M. of the lodge by Bro. William Doyle, P. Prov. G.J.D., whose working was beyond reproach. The whole ceremony was singularly effective and complete, and the Alliance may be congratulated on possessing a brother in every way so well-qualified for this and any other duty which may be imposed upon him. The following brethren were subsequently invested as officers by the W.M.:—Bros. Wm. C. Bulman, I.P.M.; John E. Jackson, S.W.; George S. Willings, J.W.; Wm. Doyle, P.M.; P. Prov. G.J.D., Treas. (re-elected); John Ellis, Sec.; Thomas Yeatman, Org.; Henry Firth, S.D.; John H. Gregory, J.D.; Thos. Peake, I.G.; David Lloyd, S.S.; and J. C. Bentham, J.S. A splendid banquet was subsequently served in the large dining hall, to which nearly all the brethren sat down under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Ockleshaw. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M. in terse and pointed terms, and during the evening he presented a handsome Past Master's jewel to Bro. W. C. Bulman, I.P.M., as a mark of the esteem and regard in which he was held by the brethren. Bro. Bulman replied in fitting terms, having previously proposed the health of the W.M. in a very able manner. Bro. R. Brown, S.W. 241, in responding to the toast of "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," gave some interesting particulars respecting the working of the charity, and stated that before long he expected that the benefits from the institution would be substantially increased to the children connected with it. An excellent musical programme was provided, several capital songs, glees, &c., being given by Bro. T. J. Hughes and other brethren. Bro. Skeaf presided at the pianoforte.

TOTNES.—PLEIADES LODGE (No. 710).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 21st day of January, Bro. William Bennett Mays, W.M., in the chair. There was an average number of the members present, also two visiting brethren. The lodge was duly opened and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. Endle was interrogated as to his proficiency in this degree; he then retired; the lodge was opened in the third degree, Bro. Endle was then admitted and raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. The lodge was closed in the third and second degrees. Hearty good wishes were tendered. The lodge was then closed in ancient form and with solemn prayer.

LIVERPOOL.—DERBY LODGE (No. 724).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 27th ult., the principal item of business on the programme being the installation of Bro. J. W. Ballard, W.M. elect. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. Davison, W.M., about four o'clock, and the following officers and brethren were present:—Bros. W. Shortis, P.M.; R. Cam, P.M.; Studiford, P.M.; J. W. Ballard, S.W.; G. Hutchin, J.W.; T. Chesworth, P.M., Treasurer; G. Beeken, Secretary; W. Vaughan, S.D.; E. McSwiney, J.D.; A. Hart, I.G.; W. G. Veale, Organist; J. Reli, W. J. Naylor, J. Meakin, R. Crispe, J. Brown, A. R. Large, H. Hewitt, T. L. Marcus, T. Maxwell, J. Hanlon, E. Gadd, M. Hart, J. Hay, J. M. Foote, P. Armstrong, R. Sherrington, W. Overend, H. Dutton, A. J. Henochsberg, J. Ellis, J. Blenkinskey, E. Griffiths, and J. W. Geves. The visitors included the names of Bros. W. Savage, 241; R. Williams, 594; H. W. Nicholas, 249; J. Peters, P.G.S.W. North and South Wales, P.M. 597; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1204; G. Purves, 823; G. Owen, P.G. Supt. of Works; J. L. Jones, 594; J. McKane, 216; T. Shaw, S.W. 823; A. C. Morrison, 594; W. Cottrell, W.M. 823; H. Burrows, 673; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673, S.W. 1503; T. Curtis, 1182; T. Ashmore, P.M. 823; S. E. Ibbis, P. Prov. G.S.B., W.M. 1473; J. Ball, 673; H. Liebschutz, 1502; J. G. Bales, 1182; J. Acton, 823; W. Vines, P.M. 220; W. R. Thomas, 786 and 86; R. Brown, S.W. 241; J. Shaw, 139 (Sheffield), &c. Bro. J. W. Ballard was installed the W.M. of the lodge by Bro. W. Shortis, P.M., in a very striking and impressive manner, assisted by Bro. T. Chesworth, P.M., Treasurer. The following officers were subsequently invested by the W.M.: Bros. J. Davison, I.P.M.; W. Vaughan, S.W.; G. Beeken, J.W.; T. Chesworth, P.M., Treasurer; A. Hart, Secretary; E. McSwiney, S.D.; R. Crispe, J.D.; M. Hart, I.G.; W. G. Veale, Org.; H. Trevett, S.S.; P. Armstrong, J.S.; and Bro. Williamson was elected Tyler. A handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. J. Davison, I.P.M., by the members of the lodge as a token of esteem and admiration for his valuable services. The brethren subsequently banquetted, and a very enjoyable "fourth degree" was realized.

BURGOYNE LODGE (No. 902).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, and although it was the annual occasion for the election of W.M., &c., the present esteemed W.M., Bro. Field—being punctual himself and fortunately succeeding in securing the punctual attendance of his officers—by opening lodge at the somewhat early hour of 4 p.m.—was enabled to achieve the rare task, at such a meeting, of not only transacting the whole of the annually recurring business, and having the by-laws impressively read aloud, but of performing in that perfect manner for which our Bro. Field has secured a reputation, the whole of the three degrees. Thus Bros. Bartlett and Kelway were raised, Bro. Gabb was passed, and Messrs. Dunn, Lockwood, and Arnold, were respectively initiated in as solemn and deliberate a manner as if these ceremonies had comprised the entire business of the evening. At the election of W.M., a gratifying proof was afforded of the estimation in which Bro. Field is held by the brethren of the lodge, over which he has for the past year so ably presided. Bro. Brooks, J.W. (Bro. Page, the S.W., having resigned during Bro. Field's year of office), shrewdly divining the prevailing feeling, on the list of candidates eligible for election being read, in a truly truly fraternal spirit, delicately caused a Past Master to intimate that he (Bro. Brooks) would take it as a favour if the brethren could, by selecting another brother to preside over them for the ensuing year, give him that further time for preparation. The hint ran like wildfire, and on the ballot papers being collected, it was announced, amid vociferous cheering, that Bro. Field had, with one trifling exception—the source of which may readily be divined by a delicate mind—been unanimously re-elected to fill the chair of K.S. for another year. This marks an event in the Burgoyne Lodge; it being the first time since its consecration that such an honour has been conferred upon a brother, and it is also a singular coincidence that Bro. Field was the first W.M. called upon to preside over the lodge who was not initiated therein, and thus this distinguished mark of approbation, when for the first time conferred in the Burgoyne Lodge, has been extended to a joining member. The re-election of Bro. Poynter, P.M., W.M. 1491, as Treasurer, was unanimous, and that brother being about to serve the office of Steward at the ensuing festival of the Girls' School, Bro. Rogers, I.P.M., gave notice of motion, for the next meeting of the lodge, that the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds to be placed upon Bro. Poynter's list. At the refreshment table afterwards, where the re-elected W.M. presided with his accustomed urbanity, the affectionate sentiments that had animated the brethren in the lodge-room prevailed unabated, and a very pleasant couple of hours, interspersed with singing and recitations, was passed, the brethren separating in good time in perfect love and harmony. Amongst the visitors present we observed Bros. H. Sowdon, P.M. 47; Barker, 22; H. H. Lavington, 862; M. J. Larham, 1216; J. G. Raggett, 1451; and H. H. Shirley, 1491.

GOSPORT.—GOSPORT LODGE (No. 903).—The meeting of this lodge was held at the Star Hotel, Gosport, on Tuesday, the 12th ult., for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Geo. Felton Lancaster, P. Prov. G.S. There was a very large attendance of visitors and brethren. The following formed the Board of Installed Masters:—Bros. M. E. Frost, P.M. 487, P.G. Treasurer; Wilkins, P.M. 342, P. Prov. G.S.B.; Stapleford, P.M. 342, P. Prov. G. Supt. Works; J. Craven, W.M. 342, P. Prov. G.S.B.; Ellis, P.M. 342; S. D. Forbes, P. Prov. G.W. (Essex); Ubsdell, P.M. 487, P. Prov. G.A.D.C.; Maltby, W.M. 487, P. Prov. G.S.B.; I. Cornelius-Wheeler, W.M. 257; A. L. Emanuel, W.M. 1069; J. Wallingford, P.M. 903, P. Prov. G.J.W.; J. Wilson, P.M. 903, P. Prov. G.S.B.; E. S. Main, P.M. 903, P. Prov. G.D.C.; W. T. Miller, P.M. 903, P. Prov. G.S.D.; H. Sleeman, P.M. 903, P. Prov. G.S.B.; and J. Hall, W.M. 903, P. Prov. G.P., by whom the ceremony of installing his successor was performed in a very able and impressive manner. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows, it being a matter of deep regret to the brethren that Bro. the Rev. E. B. C. Churchill, Chaplain to the lodge and P.G. Chap., had not sufficiently recovered from the effects of a recent accident, to be present:—Bro. J. Hall, I.P.M., P. Prov. G.P.; J. Maling, S.W.; Rev. E. B. Churchill, J.W. and Chaplain, P.G.C.; C. B. Whitcomb, Treasurer; W. Hillier, Hon. Sec.; V. Brown, S.D.; A. R. Robinson, J.D.; H. W. C. Wise, I.G.; E. A. Lover, Dir. of Cer.; S. W. Mistelbrook, Organist; Mitchell and Grant, Stewards. The cordial and hearty thanks of the lodge were tendered to Bro. J. Hall, for the very able manner in which he had performed the duties of Installing Master, the W.M. at the same time announcing that he had a most pleasing duty to perform, viz., that of presenting to Bro. Hall a Past Master's jewel, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. J. Hall by the brethren of Gosport Lodge, No. 903, in recognition of his able and valuable services as W.M., 1874." The installation banquet took place at the India Arms Hotel, under the presidency of the W.M. After an excellent bill of fare had been discussed, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft." No class, he said, were more loyal than the free and accepted Masons. In submitting "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," the W.M., who discharged the duties of his position with marked tact and ability, said it was gratifying to see the great interest which his Royal Highness took in the Craft and in everything connected with it. From the moment of his initiation he believed he had always evinced a most lively interest in everything connected with Freemasonry, and they might be sure, now that he had attained the highest honour the Craft could bestow upon a member, that that interest would not be lessened. It was a very proud thing that the heir to the throne was at the head of the Craft, and many of them hoped shortly to attend at his installation. The W.M. next gave "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, and Officers of Grand Lodge." The W.M. next gave "The R.W. the Grand Master of Hampshire and Isle of Wight, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., and the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, present and Past." Bro. Frost, P.G. Treas., in responding, congratulated the W.M. upon the position which he had attained, and the lodge upon the admirable manner in which Bro. Hall had carried out his duties as Installing Master. He was gratified to know that the lodge had an outgoing Master who could install his successor in the way that Bro. Hall had done it that evening. Bro. Lieut. Miller responded for the past provincial officers. They all felt indebted to the brother who presided over them, and to those personal qualifications they were very much indebted for the progress which Masonry had made in the province. Bro. Hall gave "The W.M.," who suitably acknowledged the compliment. "The Worshipful Masters and Representatives of Neighbouring Lodges and the Visitors," was acknowledged by Bros. Cornelius-Wheeler, W.M. 257; G. A. Green, P.M.; G. E. Green, and Major Harris, R.M.L.I. The other toasts were "The Installing Master," "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and "The Officers of the Lodge." With the aid of harmony a most pleasant evening was passed.

ST. DAY.—TREGULLOW LODGE (No. 1006).—The annual Festival of St. John was held in the beautiful lodge-room, at St. Day, on the 26th ult. There were present the following brethren of the lodge:—W. B. Bennett, W.M.; George Michell, P.M., Treasurer; W.

Pascoe, P.M.; J. Jewell, I.P.M.; J. Burgess, P.M.; Theophilus Michell, J.W.; J. H. Mayne, Secretary; F. Bartle, S.D.; T. B. Provis, J.D.; J. Daw, D.C.; J. Chapple, I.G.; W. H. Gillan, Chaplain; T. R. Mills, G. Tonkin, G. Pryor, J. T. Rodda, G. S. Bray, J. Pryor, W. H. Pryor, J. Pryor, jun., T. Michell, W. Martin, and I. Polkinhorn, Tyler. The following visiting brethren were also present:—Isaac Latimer, P.G.J.W. of Devon; R. John, P.M. 131; W. Christoe, S.W. 331, G. H. Ferris, Secretary, 331; F. Christoe, 331; W. T. Davey, W.M. Boscawen; A. T. Grant, I.P.M. 318; R. H. Cade, W.M. 318; C. Barnett, 28; T. H. Martin, S.W. 589; J. Thomas, J.W. 589; and T. A. Kistler, J.D. 589. Owing to the illness of the W.M. elect, Bro. Edmund Rogers, the business of the day was admirably conducted by Bro. George Michell, M.R.C.S., but the installation of the W.M., and the appointment of the officers for the year ensuing, had to be deferred. There was exhibited in the lodge a very beautifully-executed illuminated address, written on vellum, and elegantly framed, and adorned in the centre, head and foot, with the arms of Bro. Sir Fred. Williams, Bart., M.P., and ornamented at each corner with Masonic embellishments. This address, duly signed by the officers of the lodge, was to have been presented to Sir Frederick, but that gentleman, having an engagement at Plymouth, the presentation had to be deferred. The testimonial is an address of thanks to the distinguished brother, thanking him for all his kindness to the Tregullow Lodge, and for his having so beautifully adorned and furnished it. This handsome record of the lodge's feeling was the handiwork of Bro. Thomas Solomon, of Truro, to whose good taste it reflects very great credit. The banquet, an excellent substantial repast, served in an admirable manner, took place at Bro. Bennett's hotel, adjoining the lodge. Bro. Dr. Michell again presided, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to by the Chairman, Bros. Dabb, Latimer, Bennett, Pascoe, Thomas Michell, John Cade, John Thomas Martin, W. Davey, Michell, Christoe, and others. The afternoon was most agreeably spent. The Treasurer stated that the funds of the lodge were in a very satisfactory state, while they were as careful as ever to regard quality rather than the quantity of their members. Bro. John, in the course of his speech, said that there was very little doubt that on the coming visit of the Prince of Wales to Truro, in the summer, his Royal Highness would be Masonically received.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1021).—This lodge held its installation meeting on Monday, 11th January, Bro. Sir James Ramsden, W.M., P. Prov. G.S.W. in the chair. Amongst those present were the following provincial officers:—Bros. George Remington, P.M. 995, P.G.J.W. W.L.; Rev. J. Morgan, Prov. Grand Chaplain; Reuben Pearson, P.M. 995, P.G. Reg.; Henry Cook, P.M. 1021—119, P. Prov. G. Reg. for C. and W.; J. Mills, W.M. 1390, P. Prov. G.S.B.; and a good muster of the brethren of 1021 and neighbouring lodges. Bro. Myles Haslam, S.W., was duly installed Worshipful Master, the ceremony being most ably performed by Bro. Henry Bagot, P.M. 1021, Prov. Grand Steward for W.L. The brethren afterwards partook of a sumptuous banquet at the Furness Abbey Hotel.

WAVERTREE.—DUKE OF EDINBURGH LODGE (No. 1182).—The usual monthly meeting of this prosperous suburban lodge was held at Wright's Coffee House, Wavertree (near Liverpool), on the afternoon of the 20th ult. and as there was an unusually heavy business list, the brethren were summoned an hour earlier than usual. Bro. J. A. Edginton, W.M., opened the lodge in due form, supported by Bros. J. W. Williams, I.P.M.; Thorn, P.M.; Wood, P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M. (acting as S.W.); W. Pughe, P.M. (acting as J.W.); T. Davies, S.D.; T. Musker, J.D.; A. Vaughan, I.G.; W. Thomason, S.S.; W. G. Veale, Organist; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594, Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bros. B. B. Marson, P.M. 1356; W. Savage, 241; T. Atkinson, 594; Iles, 1299, &c. The first business was the initiation of one candidate, and afterwards the W.M. raised no fewer than thirteen brethren to the sublime degree of M.M.'s, taking them in two instalments. The ceremony was performed by the W.M. in a remarkably impressive and striking manner. Bro. T. B. Myers, S.W., who was absent on business, presented a very handsome tracing board and set of gavel to the lodge, and in accepting the valuable gifts it was moved, seconded, supported, and carried cordially, that a vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Myers, for his great liberality. The lodge was subsequently closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper. On Tuesday, the 26th ult., the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge held their annual ball in the handsome rooms of the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, the proceeds of which, as usual, will be given in aid of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. The ball committee consisted of Bros. J. A. Edginton, W.M., Chairman; J. Williams, Hon. Sec.; J. W. Williams, P.M.; W. Pughe, P.M.; T. B. Myers, S.W.; R. Martin, jun., J.W.; T. Davies, S.D.; T. Musker, J.D.; A. Vaughan, I.G.; W. Thomason, S.S.; and T. Snelson, J.S. Mr. Martin's quadrille band was engaged, and all the arrangements were of a very satisfactory character.

URBAN LODGE (No. 1196).—This lodge, though founded as recently as 1867, has obtained a distinction in the Craft of which its founders may be justly proud. It contains, for its numbers, probably more artistic brethren than any other London lodge, its first W.M. being Bro. Dr. J. E. Carpenter, so well-known by his "What are the wild waves saying?" and other songs, which count literally by the thousand. The second W.M. was Bro. Marsh (Henry Marston, the tragedian), and its third W.M., Sawyer, the poet. Amongst those who were initiated in the lodge may be mentioned Bros. E. L. Blanchard, William Creswick, W. H. Cummings, G. J. Patey, Crawford Wilson, Wharton Simpson, Herr Lehmyer, Henry Howe, Joseph Bennett, T. N. Talfourd, H. Dicks, H. Hersee, and others not unknown to literature and the sciences. The installation banquet, which took place on Tuesday, January 26th, was of the most interesting character, the incoming W.M. being the brother of the retiring one, viz., Bros. R. H. and Jonathan Pearson, of Notting-hill. The lodge was honoured by the following distinguished list of visitors:—Bros. Robert Scott, District Grand Master of Trinidad; William Kuhe, W.M. and Grand Organist; Donald Dewar, W.M. elect 1415; Rev. A. H. Cummings, P.M. 318, 331, and 420; Rev. C. Darby Read, 114 (Ipswich); Jno. Jordan, P.M. 4 (Somerset House). Bros. Mitchell and Griest (481), who travelled from Newcastle on Tyne expressly to be present, and three and twenty other visitors. After passing an E.A. to the F.C.'s degree, the Installing Master, Bro. Marsh (Henry Marston), took his seat in the east, his Senior and Junior Wardens being Bros. G. J. Palmer and William Sawyer. The high elocutionary powers of this thoroughly Shakesperian tragedian rendered the usual and ample formula of installation a high Masonic treat, and it was rewarded by loud expressions of satisfaction by all present. The installation over, the new W.M. appointed Bros. J. Tickle, S.W., and James Simpson, J.W. The brethren, numbering sixty, then adjourned to partake of a very sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. Gay, the lessee of the quaint old "Gate." During the evening a very splendid Past Master's jewel, with diamond and circle of pearls, was presented to Bro. R. H. Pearson, who had done the work of the past year thoroughly. Some excellent singing by Bros. Donald King and W. H. Cummings, assisted by Bros. William Creswick, and a pianoforte solo by Bro. Herr Lehmyer, added to the enjoyment of the evening.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 21st ult., at the Freemasons' Hall. This being the evening for installing the Worshipful Master, and there being three members to be raised to the sublime degree—one passing and three initiations—the lodge was called for the early hour of three, at which time most of the brethren were present. The minutes of the last meeting—viz.: the raising of Bros. Timberlake, Bathard, Freshwater, and Owen; the passing of Bros. Sadler, Buszard, and Tewkesbury; and the initiating of Mr. Wm. Hawtin; the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, for the ensuing year, and the election of two brethren to serve on the audit committee, having been read and confirmed, the W.M. (Bro. Staton) then proceeded to raise Bros. Sadler, Buszard, and Tewkesbury to the M.M. degree, afterwards raising Bro. Hawtin, and initiating Mr. Wm. Jas Short, and Mr. C. C. G. Hitchcock, the third candidate, Mr. J. Jones, being absent through unavoidable circumstances. All the brethren below the rank of W.M. then retired, and Bro. Staton then installed the W.M. elect (Bro. Forbes) to the chair of King Solomon. The brethren were admitted in due course, and saluted their new Master, who immediately proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year. The officers invested were as follows:—Bros. R. Bescooby, S.W.; E. Lancaster, J.W.; J. Ritchie, S.D.; A. Christie, J.D.; J. West, I.G.; S. Webb, Treasurer; P. G. Jupe, Secretary; and Rowles, Tyler. As each officer was presented to the W.M., he received some kindly advice as to the nature of the duties he was about to undertake. The balance-sheet for the past year was then read, and Bro. Webb having explained that the balance then in hand was smaller than for the preceding year, by reason of their having been several accounts for 1873 left unpaid, through no fault, however, of the officers, yet, actually speaking, the lodge was in a very favourable position, and had every prospect of being more so. Bro. Robinson then proposed that the balance-sheet he had just submitted should be accepted and entered upon the minutes. This having been seconded, was carried unanimously. The W.M. having risen for the first, second, and third time, it resulted in the proposition of Mr. J. N. Barnes as a candidate for the next meeting. The W.M. then closed the lodge in due form, and proceeded to the tavern, where the visitors and brethren found dinner ready for them. This over and the cloth cleared, the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the M.W.G.M. of England;" "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, and other Grand Lodge Officers, Past and Present;" coupling with it the name of P.M. Bro. T. Adams. All the above toasts having been received with the usual Great Northern "fire," Bro. Adams then rose to return thanks, which he did in his usual jocular style. "The Initiates" was then given, P.M. Bro. Webb singing the E.A. song. This toast having been responded to by both the candidates, "The Visitors" was next given, when P.M. and P.G.J.W. Bro. Lancaster, of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hants, very nicely showed the new-comers what a new life there was before them, and what the outward world thought of them all there assembled—ideas, he said, which were entirely wrong—and they, the initiates, would in due time find what he said was correct. Bros. Hook and Hamer (both of Great City) also returned thanks for themselves and the other visiting brethren, the former warmly eulogising the working of Bro. Staton, which was done in a truly masterly manner, and certainly could not have been done better by anyone. "The Past Masters" was then given, and, in giving this toast, the W.M. said it gave him very great pleasure to be able to present to Bro. Staton the handsome jewel that had been unanimously voted by the brethren for the kindly manner shown to all, and the good working during his year of office. Bro. Staton returned thanks, as did Past Masters Webb, Moody, and Reed. Bro. Staton, I.P.M., then handled the gavel, and gave "The Health of the W.M." This, it is almost unnecessary to say, was well received. The W.M. having briefly returned thanks, gave "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge." Bros. Bescooby and Lancaster returned thanks, in a very appropriate manner, for themselves and other brother officers. The Tyler's toast brought this rather long but enjoyable evening to a close. Much of the pleasure of the evening was due to Bros. Hook, Webb, Moody, Bescooby, Lancaster, Harper, Arnoll, and Owen. Besides the visitors mentioned above, there were Bros. A. Oldfield, Royal Union 382; A. Barnard, Belgravia 749; J. Odger, Neptune 22; Jas. Norman, P.M.; T. Kingston, S.W. 862; G. H. Fisher, St. Mary-lebone 1305; Henry Lewis, P.M. Royal Albion 907.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—This lodge held a regular meeting on Tuesday, the 19th ult., at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge Road. We have many times recorded with much pleasure the transactions of this infant lodge (we may safely use the word, the lodge not being yet two years old), and at no previous meeting have we been more struck with the perfect harmony and unity of feeling happily prevailing among the brethren of the Ivy Lodge. This meeting, being the one appointed for the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, no better test could be applied. The lodge was opened at six o'clock by Bro. Chas. Smith, W.M., and the minutes of the former meeting were read and adopted. A brother's name appeared on the summons as a candidate for the third degree, but he being absent on the continent, the ceremony was not worked, to the regret of several of the visitors, whom the fame of the Ivy Lodge had reached. Bro. J. R. Ashford was presented as a proper candidate for the privileges of the second degree, and, having undergone a satisfactory examination, received a test of merit and withdrew. The lodge was then opened in the 2nd degree, and Bro. Ashford was duly crafted. Having been closed in the degree, the ballot was taken for Mr. D. H. Ashford, a gentleman learned in the law, and being unanimously elected, he was duly initiated in a most solemn and impressive manner, and the Masonic charge delivered to him, which is so often omitted in other lodges. The ordinary lodge business having terminated, the brethren proceeded to election, the bye-laws of the lodge being first read. A general solicitude had been expressed that Bro. Smith should retain the chair for another year, which desire he firmly refused to gratify, from feelings honourable to him in the highest degree. We are not in possession of the secrets of his mind, but we can imagine his governing idea to be this: "I have enjoyed the honour of being founder and first Worshipful Master of the Ivy Lodge. I have fulfilled every duty devolving on that position. The lodge is in excellent working order, and financially prosperous. Why, then, should I retain the chair, and thus keep back worthy brethren from the reward of their legitimate ambition?" The unanimous choice of the brethren then fell on Bro. George Mattock, S.W. Bro. Smith, the retiring W.M., was unanimously elected Treasurer, and Bro. G. T. Fox, P.M. 73, Tyler. Bros. W. Ashwell, R. Giles, W. Doherty, and T. H. Cox, were appointed members of the Audit Committee, after which the laws of the Benevolent Fund were read, and Bros. T. F. K. Smith, R. Forster, C. J. Henton, and G. Skegg, were elected Committee men, and the retiring Master, the W.M. elect, and Bro. C. S. Jolly, W.M. 87, Secretary, were elected as trustees to the fund. When the lodge was closed, refreshment followed labour, and the usual toasts succeeded in due order. An exceedingly happy evening was spent, and Bro. Smith, W.M., in the course of one of his addresses, stated that his appeal to his friends and brethren on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, had been so cheerfully responded to, that the aggregate amount of subscriptions had reached the respectable amount of £57 10s., a sum which he was not without hopes of yet increasing before the day of finally accounting for his Stewardship. He begged leave to thank them most sincerely for their generous support. Bros. Wm. Saegert, P.M. of the Wellington Lodge, No. 548; W. P. Drew, of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749; and J. Garnar, I.G. of the Rose of Denmark Lodge, No. 975, severally, very highly complimented the W.M. for his masterly working, and expressed their indebtedness for the cordial reception and hospitality accorded them. The Tyler's toast at last closed this truly agreeable meeting. The installation of Bro. Mattock will take place on the third Tuesday in March. Besides the Officers already named, there were present at this meeting, Bros. J. J. Cantle, J.W.; J. Noke, P.M. 87, acting P.M.; E. Thurkle, Treasurer; C. F. Poupard, S.D.; L. Cornelissen, J.D.; and W. Ashwell, I.G.

DURHAM.—NORMAN LODGE (No. 1334).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge and installation of W.M. took place on Wednesday, January 20th, in the Masonic Hall, Bro. Donkin, W.M., in the chair. The first business of the evening was the initiation of Mr. B. Folkard, after which Bro. Donkin, the retiring W.M., proceeded, in a very workmanlike manner, to instal Bro. Laidler, J.W., and the W.M. elect, into the chair of K.S., who invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Whitehead, S.W.; Goodall, J.W.; Sewell, Treasurer; Salkeld, Secretary; Forster, S.D.; Ainsley, J.D. Ford, I.G.; Weatherley and Robinson, Stewards; Singlehurst, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren retired to the banqueting hall to a substantial supper. After the cloth was removed, the toasts were given and received as usual among Masons. The harmony of the evening was enhanced by several songs by Bros. Walker, Hutton, Monks, Wortley, and Goodall. Bro. Hunter presided at the pianoforte. There were also present Bros. Brignall, Crooksby, Malcolan, and Monks, provincial officers; Bros. Blackett, Wortley, Young, and Bulman, Past Masters; Bro. Bales, Past S.W.; Bro. Thwaites, Past J.W. 1002; Bros. Hiley and Folkard. After spending a most agreeable evening, the W.M. gave the parting toast, and the brethren parted in harmony, according to ancient usage and the established custom of the Order.

HAMPTON.—HEMMING LODGE (No. 1512).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 21st ult., at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. The officers present were Bros. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326, P.P.G.S. of Middlesex, W.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, S.W.; S. Hill, P.M. 657, P.Z., J.W.; J. Hurst, S.D.; T. C. Walls, 1381, 1503, acting J.D.; T. Wheeler, I.G.; J. Hammond, P.M., Secretary. The lodge was opened at 6 o'clock in the evening. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bros. Messenger, Ockenden, and Chilcott to the second degree. The ceremony was excellently well carried out by the W.M. in all its impressive details. Bro. Phillips was to have been raised, but owing to the pressure of other lodge business, he, at the request of the W.M., kindly consented to forego his preferment until the February meeting. The bye-laws of the lodge, which had been carefully prepared by the committee appointed for the purpose, were then submitted to the brethren in extenso by the Secretary, and after careful consideration and discussion, were formally approved, and ordered to be forthwith printed. The S.W. kindly consented to stand as Steward to the Girls' School Festival, in May next, and the lodge passed a resolution to support him. A gentleman was proposed for initiation at the next meeting, subject to the ballot being favourable, and the W.M. proposed Bro. T. C. Walls, of 1381 and 1503, as a joining member, which was seconded by the S.W. The lodge was then closed in ancient form. Bro. Wilson, P.M. Etonian, kindly officiated during the evening as I.P.M. The brethren then adjourned to banquet. The customary Royal and Craft toasts were given in rapid succession from the chair, in consequence of the lateness of the hour. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Visitors," coupling with it the names of Bros. Wilson and Walls, and in the course of his speech thanked those brethren in very flattering terms for the assistance they had given him and the lodge generally that evening in the positions of I.P.M. and J.D., and he hoped at the next meeting to greet Bro. Walls as a member of the Hemming Lodge. Bro. Wilson briefly responded, and said it gave him great pleasure to have been present that evening to assist in the excellent working of the lodge, and that he felt confident that it would, under the fostering care of the W.M., and assisted by the exertions of the S. and J.W.'s, who were very old and distinguished Masons—speedily increase and prosper. Bro. Walls, in reply, said that as he had had the pleasure, on the last occasion, of having his name associated with the toast of "The Visitors," he could only reiterate what had been said then in praise of the lodge, and the justly-merited encomiums passed to the W.M., and therefore he should not occupy the time of the meeting by again stating his opinion of the Hemming Lodge and its worthy officers, but would content himself by observing that he felt exceedingly proud at the remarks of the W.M., which were couched in such flattering terms that he felt it quite impossible to adequately reply. In conclusion, he stated that he was so impressed with the working and harmony which prevailed at the last meeting, that he came to the conclusion to join the lodge, subject to the approval of the brethren; and he had to thank both the W.M. and S.W. for proposing and seconding him. The J.W. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was responded to with great fire by the brethren, and acknowledged by Bro. Hammond. "The Health of the Secretary," was proposed by the J.W., who warmly expressed his own personal opinion of him, and stated that the lodge was under great personal obligations to Bro. J. Hammond for the care displayed by him in the discharge of his duties, which had been of a very arduous nature, in consequence of the recent formation of the lodge, and that the preparation of the bye-laws, reports, and minutes, had principally emanated from that brother, which necessarily had entailed a great deal of application and labour. In the Secretary's absence, his brother briefly responded for him. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings.

INSTRUCTION.

UNION WATERLOO (No. 13).—To meet a want long felt by the brethren of Woolwich and Plumstead, several of them formed themselves into a committee for the purpose of forming a lodge of Instruction in which the beautiful ritual of the Craft should be taught and further explained by the working of the sections, as well as by the rehearsal of the ceremonies of the Order. Accordingly, having obtained the permission of the W.M. of the Union Waterloo Lodge to re-open the Lodge of Instruction that was formerly held under his warrant, and which had been in abeyance for some years, they were fortunate enough to obtain the services of Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 147 and 1155, as Preceptor, and re-opened the Lodge of Instruction, in December last, at the Earl of Chatham, Thomas-street, Woolwich. Since then, nearly 100 brethren have become members of the lodge, and it was unanimously resolved that the ceremonies of consecration and installation should be worked in the lodge in the month of January. Through the kind offices of the Preceptor, that accomplished instructor in our noble science, Bro. Jas. Terry, was prevailed upon to work those ceremonies on the 15th January. Every preparation had been made by the committee to give eclat to the occasion, and, thanks to the kindness of some of the brethren, and the loan of a censer by Bro. Geo. Kenning, of Little Britain, the sacred elements were distributed with the same solemnity and from as valuable vessels as at the ceremonial observed at a regular consecration, and the services were conducted as decently and in order as by the officer appointed by the M.W.G.M. Bro. Jas. Terry occupied the chair, supported by the Preceptor, Bros. C. G. Dilley as P.M., Davis as S.W., Goddard as J.W., Macdonald as D.C., and Sherwin as Organist, and over sixty Past Masters and brethren. With such a veteran as Bro. Terry as Consecrating Officer, it is almost superfluous to state that the ceremonies were performed in a most perfect manner. From the opening to the close, he so succeeded, by his earnest manner, in rivetting the attention of the brethren to the ceremony, that, throughout, there was not the slightest interruption, either by that coughing or restlessness, that is almost always to be found in a crowded assembly. After the lodge had been duly consecrated and dedicated, Bro. Terry installed Bro. Davis into the chair of the lodge in due form, and according to ancient custom. Owing to the lateness of the hour, the appointment of officers was supposed to have been done; but the charges to the W.M. and officers were given with that fluency and oratorical power that so distinguishes our esteemed Bro. Terry. In response to a vote of thanks that had been ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the lodge to him for his admirable working and great kindness in assisting the lodge at what is, to him, the busiest time of the year, Bro. Terry, in one of his characteristic and genial speeches, thanked the brethren for their attendance and attention, and expressed a hope that the Lodge of Instruction would have a successful and prosperous career, and that before long he would have the pleasure of seeing the name of the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction on the list of patrons of all the Masonic charities. A word of praise is due to Bro. Sherwin, the Organist, for the excellent manner in which he performed his duties, for the musical part of the ceremonies was simply perfection. It was the unanimous opinion of all present that they had enjoyed a great Masonic treat; and we trust that the success of the evening will prove to be a happy augury of the future prosperity of the lodge.

LIVERPOOL.—TEMPLE CHAPTER (No. 1094).—The annual installation meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 26th ult. Amongst those present were Comps. D. W. Winstanley, Z.; Dr. J. K. Smith, P.Z.; J. Pemberton, P.Z.; J. B. Robinson, P.Z.; W. Shortis, H.; R. R. Martin, J.; R. C. Yelland, E.; R. Washington, N.; P. Macmurdrow, P.S.; E. McSwiney, T. G. Winstanley, J. Wood, J. W. Burgess, R. Collings, D. Davies, and others. The visitors present were Comps. J. McKune, P.Z. 216; H. Trevett, 823; J. Banning, Z. 823—310; J. W. Ballard, 823; T. Chesworth, P.Z. 1086; T. Ashmore, P.Z. 823—530; H. Williams, P.Z. 580; and J. S. Cuthbert. J. B. Robinson, P.Z., performed the work of installation in a thoroughly effective and satisfactory manner. The following were the appointments and investitures:—Comps. W. M. Shortis, Z.; R. R. Martin, H.; P. Macmurdrow, J.; R. C. Yelland, S.N.; R. Collings, S.E.; R. Washington, P.S. One candidate was installed, previous to this portion of the business, by Comp. Pemberton, P.Z. At the banquet which followed, an elegant P.Z. jewel was presented to Comp. D. W. Winstanley, the I.P.Z. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—MOTHER LODGE, KILWINNING.—The annual gathering of the members of the mother lodge of Scotland (No. 0), residing in Glasgow and neighbourhood, was held on 22nd ult. in the hall of Star Lodge (No. 219), at No. 12, Trongate. Bro. Colonel Mure, M.P., R.W.M. of "Mother Kilwinning," and as such P.G.M. for Ayrshire, presided, Bro. Jamieson, No. 0, officiating as croupier, and among those present on the dais and elsewhere were Bros. Roger Montgomerie, M.P., and Proxy Master for Mother Kilwinning; Robert Wylie, J.P., Sec. of Mother Kilwinning; J. G. Halket, S.M. Mother Kilwinning; W. F. Shaw, John Johnstone, S.W. Mother Kilwinning; Jas. Gillespie, acting J.W.; James Gillespie, No. 0, J. A. Ferguson, S. Proxy W.; John Tweed, J. Proxy W.; William Bell, R.W.M., No. 34, St. John's; John Morgan, R.W.M., No. 219, Star; John Wallace, R.W.M., No. 413, Athole; R. Mitchell, P.M., No. 332, Union; R. B. Thomson, and others. Shortly before eight o'clock the brethren sat down to an excellent supper, purveyed by Bro. Middleton, Trongate. Thereafter and before proceeding with the toast programme, the chairman delivered a short informal address, in which he expressed the gratification it gave him to meet with so many brethren of Mother Kilwinning residing in Glasgow. He was pleased to find, moreover, that a good many of those present honoured the mother lodge with their presence in Kilwinning, and he only wished that it had been in his power, as it was not, to have been present at their first dinner in Glasgow. The toast of "The Queen" was then given from the chair and drank with all the honours; followed by that of "The Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," in submitting which, the chairman made touching allusion to the affliction which had fallen upon the latter in the painful illness of the young Prince Leopold. In proposing next "The Three Grand Lodges," the Chairman referred to the vast amount of education to the children of Freemasons afforded under the auspices of the Grand Lodge of England, and said he could wish that the Grand Lodge of Scotland afforded something tangible as to its presence in the way of similarly doing good. He was glad they had now at their head such a one as Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, who endeared himself to everyone with whom he came into contact, and was a most enthusiastic Mason. After the toast of "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," given by the croupier and responded to by the chairman, Bro. Wylie gave "The Province of Glasgow," regretting that the meetings of that body and of Mother Kilwinning respectively had clashed together that evening. At the same time he was glad in wishing much prosperity to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. R. Mitchell, who replied. The toast, "Mother Kilwinning," was proposed by Bro. John Morgan, and acknowledged by the chairman, who said that down in Ayrshire they did a good deal in the way of charity, and also gave bursaries of £20 each to students who might not have the advantages of education. They (Freemasons) had hitherto had too much that was merely mystical in connection with the Order; for after all it was the practical good they could do that was its vindication. They had in these days vast aggregations of crime and misery; and Freemasons had much work to do. The toast of "Lodge Star, No. 219" was given by the chairman, who, in so doing, neatly acknowledged the obligations they, the Kilwinning brethren, were under to Lodge Star for lending them the use of their hall for that evening. Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., in reply, said that they considered it an honour to have had the opportunity of doing so; and he could only say that if at any time the R.W.M. of the mother lodge came to visit Lodge Star, he would receive such welcome as they could give him. The toast of "The Press" was then given by Bro. Duncan and replied to by Bro. R. Johnstone (Daily Mail); followed by that of the "Proxy Master and Wardens," proposed by Bro. Robert Burns Thomson and acknowledged by Proxy Master, Bro. Roger Montgomerie. Bro. H. McLean proposed "The Secretary, Mother Lodge." There could no more happy example, he said, of what could be achieved in connection with the Craft than that afforded by Bro. Wylie. By night and by day he had been assiduous in attending to Mother Kilwinning. He, Bro. McLean, was sure that when he asked them to drink with him to the health of Bro. Wylie they would do so remembering his devotion to the mother and steady adherence to the principles of the Order. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Wylie said that if there was one thing more than another in which he had taken pleasure in connection with the mother lodge it was in adding so many names to the roll of brethren from this city. He must say that the happiest moments of his life had been spent in the Masonic lodge, and at the initiation of brethren from Glasgow. Amongst the remaining toasts were "Visiting Brethren," "The Ladies," and "The Committee," and with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," the pleasant proceedings were brought to a conclusion.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—This lodge met in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 21st ult., when Bros. the Rev. Wm. C. E. Jamieson, of St. Matthew's parish church, Glasgow, member of Mother Kilwinning, No. 0; and Alexander Whyte, No. 362, St. Clair, were duly affiliated members of No. 27, by Bro. A. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary. Immediately thereafter, Bros. John R. Smith, Jno. Miller, Geo. S. Miller, Jas. C. Auld, Jno. McKinnon, and Jno. H. Mackay were passed from the degree of Entered Apprentice to that of Fellow-Craft, also by Bro. McTaggart, and Bros. Jas. C. Brown and Jno. I. Dott received the sublime degree at the hands of Bro. Alex. Bain, P.M. 103. There was no other business of importance before the meeting.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—The usual fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on 20th ult., the R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw, presided, and there were present Bros. A. A. Smith, P.M.; Wm. H. Caldwell, S.W.; D. Buchanan, D.M.; John H. Stafford, S.W.; Adam B. Ferguson, J.W.; Wm. R. Dunn, Secretary; and A. Carmichael, Treasurer. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes read and passed, Bro. Murdoch McIntyre (of Lodge Athole, Kirkintilloch, No. 384) was affiliated a member of this lodge, and Bro. Arthur Philp was passed from the first degree to that of Fellow-Craft. The Chairman then stated that he had received a letter from New Zealand, which would be interesting to them, and which the Secretary would now read. It was as follows:—"Westland Kilwinning, Hokitika, West Coast, N.Z., 29th Oct., 1874. To the R.W.M., Caledonian Railway Lodge, No. 354, S.C., Glasgow. Right Worshipful Sir and Dear Sir and Brothers: I am directed by a resolution of this lodge to convey to you the intelligence of the decease of a brother whom we much esteemed, and who at one time was an active member of your lodge. I refer to Bro. James Linton, who departed this life on 9th July last. Undoubtedly, R.W. Sir, your lodge will join with us in regretting the early decease of so valued a member of our ancient and honourable fraternity. Apart from the fact that Bro. Linton was connected with this lodge from its commencement, and that each lodge night, as it came round, assuredly found him in the performance of his duty, his substance, as well as his time, was always at the disposal of his lodge, and no unwilling hand was his in the exercise of charity. Whilst mourning his loss, R.W. Sir, we congratulate your lodge on having laid the foundation stone of so much Masonic excellence, and though it has pleased the Great Architect of the Universe to remove him from our lodge here, we hope that we, with our brethren of your lodge, may meet him in the Grand Lodge, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. I am, R.W. Dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally, J. HERBERT HAWKINS, Honorary Secretary." On the motion of the chairman, it was unanimously agreed that a copy of the letter should be engrossed in the minutes, and a note forwarded to Bro. Hawkins for his courteous and fraternal communication. Thereafter the lodge was called for a short time from labour to refreshment, during which the chairman drew attention to the fact that their annual festival was fixed to be held on 5th March ensuing, in the Victoria Hall, Buchanan-street. An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 213, Buchanan-st., on Saturday, 30th ult., Bro. Jas. Shaw, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. J. H. Stafford, S.W.; A. B. Ferguson, J.W.; A. A. Smith, P.M.; J. Stewart (Freemason), and a goodly number of brethren and visitors present. Applications were read from the following gentlemen for initiation: Jas. Tulloch, A. Macdonald, R. A. Maclean, and A. M'Pherson. There being no objection, the candidates entered and received the E.A. and Fellow-Craft degrees. The ceremony was performed in a very able manner by the R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw. There being no further business, the brethren were called to refreshment, and, with the aid of harmony, the evening was passed most pleasantly.

KIRKINTILLOCH.—LODGE ATHOLE (No. 384).—The annual meeting of this lodge for the election and installation of office-bearers was held in their Lodge Rooms on Saturday evening, 9th ult., when the following brethren were unanimously elected: J. Graham, R.W.M.; Andrew Baxter, D.M.; James Hulegan, S.M.; John Torrens, S.W.; Alexander Williamson, J.W.; William Gray, Treasurer; David Dalrymple, Secretary; Robert Hoggin, Chaplain; Thomas F. Bruce, S.S.; William Marshall, J.S.; John Gray, I.G.; Alexander Wilson, Tyler. Bro. Thomas Halket, P.M. Lodge St. Mark, 102, suitably addressed the Master and members of the lodge. The R.W.M. thanked the lodge for electing him for the third time to preside amongst them. He believed that there were brethren better fitted to fill the office, but there was no one more anxious to promote the prosperity of the lodge and uphold the principle of the Craft than he was. He then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Halket for his kind services that evening, which was cordially responded to. Bro. Halket, in reply, said that this was the third time that he has had the pleasure of installing Bro. Graham as Master of the Lodge, and he was glad to observe that a very great improvement had taken place amongst them during his term of office. He congratulated the lodge upon the very efficient staff of office-bearers which had just been installed, and hoped that the present year would be as prosperous as any that had preceded it. The lodge was then closed in due form by the R.W.M.

GOVAN.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 437).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held in the hall at Portland Buildings, Govan, on the 19th ult., the R.W.M., Bro. John McFarlane, in the chair. The lodge, having been opened in the E.A. degree, and the minutes read by the Secretary, Bro. Geo. Maitland, the following office-bearers were duly installed into their respective offices by the R.W.M.:—Jno. Hutcheson, S.M.; Jno. Carrick, J.D.; Jno. Millar, Architect; Wm. Sutherland, Jeweller; Andrew Blair, Dir. of Music; Wm. Goulder, Dir. of Cers.; and James Moggie, I.G. The only other business was the raising of Bro. Jno. Forrest from the second to the sublime degree of Master Mason, which was performed in a style of much ability by the R.W.M. The lodge was then reduced to the E.A. degree, and closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553).—The ordinary meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held in their temporary hall at 162, Kent-road, on the 21st ult. Before opening the lodge, and in the absence of Bro. Malcolm Stark, D.M., the R.W.M., Bro. R. McDougall, deputed Bro. G. C. H. McNaught, P.M. of Lodge 275, to open the lodge and confer the degrees, as he (Bro. McDougall) had to leave for a time on other business of urgent importance. The lodge was then opened, and having been passed to the Fellow-Craft degree, five Entered Apprentices received the degree, and were afterwards raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The R.W.M., having returned to the lodge and taken the chair, before closing, referred to the manner in which Bro. McNaught had performed the ceremonies, and proposed a hearty vote of thanks to him, which was accorded with much enthusiasm. Bro. McNaught, having replied, stating that he considered that in doing anything for the furtherance of the Order he was only doing his duty, the lodge was closed in due form and dismissed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The members of this young and thriving lodge met for the first time in a portion of their new premises, at No 106, Rose-street, Southside, on the 18th ult. At the commencement of proceedings, the R.W.M., Bro. William Phillips, referred to the fact, and stated that the necessary alterations in the large hall would be proceeded with forthwith. He believed the work would be all accomplished by the ensuing term time, and he hoped they would find themselves very comfortable. Thereafter Bros. Hugh Weir and Peter Young were installed by the R.W.M. into the offices of J.D. and I.G., respectively, and one brother was passed from the first degree to that of Fellow-Craft. A special meeting of the lodge was held on 20th ult., when three candidates belonging to the theatrical profession, namely, W. Thomas Nuttall, Charles S. Lester, and Lewis Quarrier Chambers, were initiated into the Order in excellent style by the R.W.M., and thereafter passed to the degree of Fellow-Craft. There was no other business.

GLASGOW.—CHAPTER COMMERCIAL (No. 79).—The regular monthly meeting of this recently re-opened chapter was held in the Commercial Lodge-room, Hope-street, on the evening of Friday, the 29th ult. There was a fair attendance, the meeting being presided over by Comp. Julius Brode, 1st Principal, and among the visitors present we observed Comps. Duthie, Thallon, Fleming, Morton, and others. The minutes of the previous communication having been read and passed, various resolutions, which had been adopted on that occasion, were again put to the meeting and confirmed, thus becoming bye-laws of the chapter. These had reference to the date of regular meetings—which was fixed for the last Friday monthly—fees of admission and affiliation, and various other matters. Bro. W. H. Bickerton, who had previously been admitted to the degree of Mark Master, was advanced to that of Excellent Master, and exalted to the Royal Arch, the ceremonies being ably and impressively conducted by Comp. Duthie. In the course of the evening Comp. John Morris was installed as Scribe E., in room of Comp. M'Taggart, whose appointment to the office in October was only ad interim. A vote of thanks to Comp. Duthie and the other visiting companions for the valuable assistance rendered was passed amidst the most hearty applause, and thereafter the chapter was closed in due form.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

Bro. Terry has forwarded to us the latest list of Stewards with their returns for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, but too late for press this week. We hope to give a complete list in our next.

JUNIOR WARDEN.—Can a J.W. initiate? In our humble opinion, decidedly not. We do not think either Warden can, but it is only our opinion. We think the whole question of the "chair" is settled by section 1 "Of the Masters and Wardens of Lodges," where the difference is clearly pointed out between an installed and a non-installed Master.

P.M.—What do you understand by "rule?" We understand all matters which relate to the mere routine of necessary business, and the opening and closing of the lodge. The Warden cannot perform the duties of the chair.

J.E.F.—We adhere to our opinion that a W.M. cannot leave the chair.

The following communications stand over:—

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1875.

OUR ROYAL BROTHER, PRINCE LEOPOLD.

The Royal invalid continues daily to gain strength. We hope next week to announce his complete convalescence.

THE LATE LADY CARNARVON.

The entire Craft is sincerely grieving, with its excellent and valued Pro Grand Master, in the great loss which has filled with mourning and personal sorrow many families and many homes. In such hours of earthly affliction, so grave and so overwhelming, words of sympathy seem often all but in vain, the expression of condolence becomes almost out of place. Yet, as loyal Freemasons, we may, perhaps, be permitted to tender to one of our most distinguished chiefs, without any violation of the privacy of sacred sorrow, our fraternal assurance of heartfelt concern and regret. The remembrance of Lady Carnarvon will long linger in the memories of very many in all ranks of life, not only among those with whom she was wont to consort habitually, in all the happy charms of intimate acquaintanceship, but among those whose trials and whose wants she ever sought to alleviate and minister to with a woman's unselfish kindness, and a woman's ready tact. We feel sure that we but express the genuine and earnest feelings of our entire Order, however imperfectly, when we say that our solicitude attends, our good wishes accompany our brother, as formerly in his elevation and high position amongst us, so now in his afflictive trial, and in his loneliness and sorrow

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We congratulate Bro. Terry, and the Order generally, on the result of the first public appeal to Masonic sympathy and benevolence in 1875. At the anniversary festival on Wednesday the large sum of £6630 13s. was reported, with eleven lists to come in. We can therefore probably reckon the return at about £6,700 in round numbers. This is surely a very striking result, and one that reflects every credit alike on our warm-hearted Craft and the zealous Stewards. Neither should we forget Bro. Terry's praiseworthy exertions, which must have been many and untiring, and, we rejoice to think, rewarded with such a liberal response. Let us go back a few years. In 1857 the triennial festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution took place, when, as the Masonic Mirror of that day records the large sum of £1,558 6s. 6d. was announced by its good old Secretary, Bro. W. Farnfield. During that year, 1857, the committee had to regret the "continued decline in the donations and annual subscriptions," which for the Male Fund amounted to £405 2s. as against £717 3s. in 1855, and for the Female Fund £152 4s. as against £212 10s. in 1855. The total amount of income for 1857, reached to £3,323 18s. 3d. but of this Grand Lodge contributed no less than £2,100 by special and regular grants, and Grand Chapter £135. The whole amount raised by the Craft, together with dividends, &c., was, for 1857, £1,088 18s. 3d. In 1858 it was arranged, with approbation of the Grand Master, to hold a Biennial Festival, and at the Biennial Festival in 1850, £1,875 were announced. In 1860 the festival became annual, from January 25 that year when £2,096 18s. 10d. was raised. And here, in 1875, we are happily able to report the noble contribution of £6,700, an amount which reflects no less credit on the zealous officers of the institution and the effective Stewards than on the ready hands and warm hearts of English Freemasons. May the anniversaries for the Boys' School and the Girls' School tell the same welcome tale, and may our Order continue to evince that, despite all the agitation and uproar of polemical controversies, it marches on its peaceful mission, and in its own tolerant path, regardless of opposition, heedless of contumely, intent on doing good, in reverence for God and in love for man.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS.

We alluded a week or two back in our columns, to the advance of Archæological study amongst us, and to the difficulties which still impeded our advance. These are still for the most part, as of old, the unreliability of assertion, and the untrustworthiness of documents. We have not, even in 1875, got over completely the tendency to accept, as evidence, what is in truth no evidence at all. And not only this but we meet with assumptions of proof which cannot bear the touchstone of historical scrutiny, and we are expected to deal with pretensions which fade at once before the approach of competent criticisms. Can any of our good brethren suppose that this, our modern School of Masonic enquiry and research, will accept any document, be it what it may, on the mere "ipse dixit" of a known or anonymous writer? It is preposterous to expect it. Charters and MSS., legends and traditions, all have to be examined and sifted closely, and by experts—if they are true their reality will be established and admitted, if they are worthless, they must go down; only they do mischief to Freemasonry proper, be it remembered, if their genuineness is invalidated, if their authenticity is successfully overthrown. We pointed out in our preceding article the many objections which must occur to every Masonic Archæological student, to the so-called Charter of Larmenius, the same objections, if in different form somewhat, equally apply to the assumed Charter of Roger de Flor. It seems a great pity at this period of our Masonic studies, to re-introduce the old habits of self-elected Masonic teachers and founders in the early part of the last century, though we fear, unless some more satisfactory evidence of the Oriental Templary is to be forthcoming, we shall have to relegate it to the creations of Ramsay and the compilations of Hund. Another difficulty also often confronts the Masonic student. This is the tendency to create new systems of Freemasonry, and apparently to claim for them alike the belief of the enlightened, and the assent of the serious. And yet, for the most part, all of these novel orders are the manufacture of some able and well-read Freemason, either in England or the United States. Take for instance Cryptic Masonry. What is Cryptic Masonry? We speak with all reserve and respect on the subject, the more so as we note that our esteemed Bro. G. R. Portal is at the head of it in this country. But it is to us a novel order, and one which, so far, we have not met with in our researches. We have seen it, indeed, mentioned casually in Masonic papers and magazines, but we have never come across it in old MSS. of any kind. Some of these novel emanations of the 19th Century, startle as they harass the Masonic student. Their claims are but assertions without proof, their creation is of yesterday. And the result which the earnest and impartial enquirer into Masonic history, must come to, is this, and this alone, namely, the antiquity of the Craft system, the modernity, if we may use such a word, of the multitude of so-named knightly, mystico-dramatic, æsthetic degrees, which positively almost take away one's breath, with their numerical immensity and their wondrous nomenclature. We fear that we have all a good deal to learn, as regards the simple facts and points of legitimate induction and historical criticism in Masonic Archæology, before that we can hope that we are in the right path, much less making any headway.

MASONIC CANARDS.

That Freemasonry is ever still of "the earth earthy," and that Freemasons are both frail and imperfect, each week, as it passes over our heads, ought to convince us all. Indeed, he must be a very weak brother, or a very unsound teacher who seeks, in grandiloquent language, as has been done, to lead us all to forget this sober fact; this most wholesome truth. Many are the weaknesses and littlenesses of man, as we all must admit, and equally multitudinous are the weaknesses and littlenesses of Freemasons. Nous sommes tous mortels," says a very clever French writer, though it is a truism we all of us seem to like at times to forget altogether. In former days it used to be said that in the dull months of the year, the British Press was accustomed to discover the wonderous cabbage or the gigantic beetroot; gooseberries of fabulous capacity have even been chronicled in the pages of distinguished journals, while even sometimes a hoax has been perpetrated upon the Times, as Dr. Liddon says, that "Master of many Legions." And latterly it has seemed as if owing to this inevitable weakness of humanity, and even of Freemasons, we, as an Order, were giving way to the exhilarating amusement of "Canards." It is remarkable how the taste for such a luxury grows, how "vires acquirit eundo," until with some it seems to exist almost as an indigenous parasite. Lord Ripon's unhappy secession and perversion, the one deplorable fact for English Freemasonry in 1874, seems to have been the signal for this new little Masonic game, if not so exhilarating as croquet, or so fascinating as cockamaroo. Hence we have thought it well, in the capacity of a faithful mentor, to give a few words of caution, and strike a note of warning for our kindly and generous Craft. Some of our readers will remember Virgil's description of "Æolus," letting out the winds from his noisy cavern, and Lord Ripon's resignation seems to have had the same effect on our peaceful Order. No sooner was it announced, than we were told in "bated breath" and with angry epithets, that we had others amongst us, others of the "same kidney," that even a Jesuit was stalking amongst us, that danger was afloat, that breakers were ahead, and all the rest of that remarkable verbiage which "feeble forcibles" always adopt, the more so when they know that their case is bad, and their statements are mendacious. We need hardly remark that the statement was a pure invention, coined for the occasion, rather we fear, a deliberately-invented falsehood—the taking away, without scruple, a brother's character, his fair fame, his unsullied reputation—by the covert insinuation, and by the open slander. Within the last month we have had another wonderful canard, whether proceeding from the same source we know not, but appearing under the shadow of a new candidate for literary favours, "The Rosicrucian." Knowing how difficult it is to keep these little obnoxious paragraphs out, and how we have suffered ourselves from similar "circumstances over which we had no control," we do not think that any blame can fairly attach to the able editors of the "interesting little stranger." But yet we almost wonder that it did appear at all. It is, on the face of it, so preposterously absurd, so impossible to be true. Lord Ripon had abjured Freemasonry and Freemasons, in obedience to the dictates of his new religious guides; he had left us to the "stormy wind and tempest" in the very middle of the conflict, and taken his farewell of Freemasonry and Freemasons. And yet here are some of the "Grand Officers" and special friends of Lord Ripon represented as doing deliberately what was an insult to him, and an absurdity for themselves. To give a gold casket to Lord Ripon, covered with Masonic emblems, was such an act of assinine inconsistency, and even of ungentlemanly indecorum, on the part of the presentors, as should have led, we think, the editors to discover the "hoax," evidently, if ingeniously, played upon them. There are many Freemasons who still love Lord Ripon from the memory of "auld lang syne" of happy days of Masonic work, and for his great and genial qualities of mind and heart; but even they feel, we venture to say, that his departure from Freemasonry has put, as it were, a chasm between them and him in things Masonic, at any rate, which neither he nor they can attempt to cross over, nor even to bridge over at all. So we trust that we shall hear the last of this and similar foolish "canards." To use a Stock Exchange expression, they are very "lame ducks," and though Lord Palmerston used to say that there were a great many gobemouches in the world who would believe anything, we must protest, once for all, against our excellent and harmonious brotherhood being made the amusement of the credulous, the foolish, or the malicious.

GRAND CHAPTER.

The Quarterly Convocation of Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. There was but a small amount of business to be transacted, but there was a very good attendance of Companions. Comp. Hugh D. Sandeman presided as Z.; Comp. Colonel Burdett, as H.; and Comp. S. Rawson, as J. Among the other Companions were: John Hervey, S.E.; J. E. Saunders, S.N.; J. C. Parkinson, Swd. B.; J. A. Rucker, P.S.; E. S. Snell, 1st A.; Joshua Nunn, 2nd A.; Thomas Fenn, H. J. P. Dumas, Griffiths Smith, H. Browse, Benj. Head, N. Bradford, James Robins, H. Birdseye, Col. Whitwell, Thomas W. White, C. F. Hogard, Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, C. A. Murton, G. Lemann, S. C. Hadley, F. Pattison, W. F. Powell, F. Derry, F. Frampton, F. Copestick, J. B. Scriven, C. W. Noehmer, J. Sidwell, H. G. Buss, H. Muggeridge, W. Ough, James Brett, W. Dodd, H. M. Levy, and H. Massey (Freemason).

The Grand Chapter having been formally opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, the report of the Committee of General Purposes was taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

The accounts of Grand Chapter were as follows:—

To Balance 15th July	£396 15 4
„ Subsequent Receipts	383 14 0
	£690 9 4
By Disbursements during the Quarter	£163 2 4
„ Power of Attorney for transfer of £1,500 Stock to Masonic Charities.....	1 3 0
„ Balance	526 4 0
	£690 9 4

The following petitions were before Grand Chapter for warrants for new chapters:—

1st.—From Companions Henry Elmhurst Reader as Z., John Le Marchand Carey as H., Peter Alexander Chavannes as J., and seven others for a chapter to be attached to the Pacific Lodge, No. 517, Wellington, New Zealand, to be called "The Wellington Union Chapter," to meet at the Masonic Hall, Wellington, New Zealand.

2nd.—From Companions William Henry Jones as Z., Antoine Louis Le Franc as H., Protonno Coomarr Dutt as J., and thirteen others for a chapter to be attached to the Anchor and Hope Lodge, No. 234, Calcutta, to be called "The New Union Chapter," and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Calcutta, Bengal.

3rd.—From Companions George Blake as Z., William

Henry Mackesy as H., Henry Thomas Tanner as J., and six others for a chapter to be attached to the Mayo Lodge, No. 1413, Rawul Pindee, to be called "The Locke Chapter," and to meet at Rawul Pindee, Punjab.

4th.—From Companions Thomas Stalkartt Carter as Z., John Lowthian as H., William Cutbush as J., and six others for a chapter to be attached to the Gladsmuir Lodge, No. 1385, Barnet, to be called "The Gladsmuir Chapter," and to meet at the Red Lion Hotel, Barnet, in the county of Hertford.

5th.—From Companions George Keene Lemann as Z., William West Smith as H., Henry McPherson as J., and eleven others for a chapter to be attached to the Hornsey Lodge, No. 890, London, to be called "The Hornsey Chapter," and to meet at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, in the City of London.

6th.—From Companions William Stephens, as Z., Charles Robert Miles as H., William Lutwyche as J., and six others for a chapter to be attached to the Clapton Lodge, No. 1365, Clapton, to be called "The Clapton Chapter," and to meet at the White Hart Tavern, Upper Clapton, in the County of Middlesex.

7th.—From Companions the Rev. Spencer Robert Wigram as Z., Edward England Phillips as H., Albert Lucking as J., and eight others for a chapter to be attached to the Priory Lodge, No. 1000, Southend, to be called "The Priory Chapter," and to meet at the Middleton Hotel, Southend, in the County of Essex.

The foregoing petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommended that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee likewise reported that they had received the following petitions:—

8th.—From Companions Robert Scott as Z., Charles Henry Phillips as H., Charles Frederick Besson as J., and eight others for a chapter to be attached to the Royal Philanthropic Lodge, No. 405, Trinidad, to be called "The Royal Philanthropic Chapter," and to meet at Port of Spain, Trinidad, in the West Indies.

9th.—From Companions James McDonald Reid as Z., Paulin Josse de Lisle as H., Charles Frederick Oda Rooks as J., and seven others for a chapter to be attached to the Prince of Wales' Lodge, No. 867, Trinidad, to be called "The Prince of Wales' Chapter," and to meet at Port of Spain, Trinidad, in the West Indies.

These two petitions, subject to the confirmation of the new law, No. 51, passed at the last Convocation of Grand Chapter, rendering foreign Past Masters eligible for election to the chairs in an English chapter, being in all respects regular, the Committee recommended that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

On No. 3 in the above list being reached the M.E.Z. said he was exceedingly glad to see that a chapter was applied for, the name of which was that of a Mason who had done so much good for Freemasonry. Comp. Locke was the companion of whom Comp. Havers had spoken so strongly in Grand Chapter last year.

On No. 8 being called on, Comp. Snell said that he had in his place many times in Grand Chapter had to make observations upon the issuing of two or three warrants for chapters in a single town. He wished to enquire whether there were sufficient Masons in Port of Spain to support two chapters. He had formerly made this enquiry with regard to Hull, where there did not appear to be any Royal Arch Masons. In the present list of petitions there were two for the Port of Spain. Trinidad was not a large place, and Port of Spain was the largest place in the island. How many Freemasons were there in Port of Spain, or in the Island of Trinidad? Perhaps Grand S.E. would tell him what was the position of Freemasonry in the island. Comp. Hervey said that all he had to say with regard to the subject was that both petitions were recommended by the Provincial Grand Master of Trinidad, who was not Provincial Grand Superintendent, however, as well. He was now in this country, and had come before the committee, and from the information he had given to the committee they had recommended the granting of the petitions. The M.E.Z. was present at that committee, and most strongly recommended the issuing of the warrant.

The prayers of all the petitions were granted.

Comp. Hervey, before the closing of Grand Chapter, said that he had not put upon the agenda paper the consideration of the letter from Grand Chapter of Ireland with respect to the Mark Grand Lodge of England. He believed it was the intention of Grand Registrar to consult with the Grand H. (the Earl of Carnarvon) as to the course which ought to be pursued on that question. But they all knew Lord Carnarvon had been plunged in deep affliction very recently, and the question could not come before the companions that evening with satisfaction to them without further information. He therefore had taken upon himself not to put the matter on the agenda paper, and he trusted Grand Chapter would approve the course he had taken under the peculiar circumstances of the case.

Comp. Sandeman said he thought the best way would be for Grand S.E. to write to the Grand S.E. of Ireland, explaining the cause of the delay, and saying that the subject would be brought on in due course. He wished to ask whether, as the minutes of last Convocation had been confirmed, the reports now would be issued quarterly, as also whether the reprints of the Regulations would be issued.

Comp. Hervey replied that they would.

Grand Chapter was then closed.

Inspector Denning was on Wednesday, 3rd inst., presented with a handsome cheque, in addition to a gold watch and chain, by Sir C. Foster, Bart., M.P., on the part of himself and fellow subscribers, in recognition of the esteem in which he is held by Members of Parliament. Inspector Denning has, for a number of years, fulfilled the duties of Chief Police Officer of the House of Commons.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have perused, with considerable interest, the various suggestions which have from time to time been made by correspondents in the columns of your valuable journal, of the best means of commemorating the forthcoming great event in the Masonic world, viz., the installation of H.R.H. the Heir Apparent as M.W. Grand Master and an idea has occurred to me on the interesting subject which I here set forth.

When it is considered that so auspicious an event as the acceptance of the office by an heir to the Crown of England has not taken place since the time of H.R.H. George, Prince Regent, and possibly may not occur again in the present century, I am of opinion that some effectual scheme should be devised, of not only recording it individually among the Craft, but that it should be perpetuated in a manner worthy of the occasion, for "this story shall the good man teach his son."

Had the installation of the Prince taken place some few years since, it is possible that it would not have attracted so much attention as it is receiving at the present time, in consequence of its being considered now by all non-Romish classes in the light of a national triumph over bigotry; for, notwithstanding the denunciations levelled against our glorious and ancient institution, whose principles are the very acme of Christianity, by the leading representatives of a fanatic but powerful body, and the awful anathemas which have emanated from "she of the seven hills," our royal brother, "the rose and expectancy of this fair state," has not only taken an active part in the ceremonies of the Craft, and evinced his personal interest by recruiting its ranks by the admission of two of his brothers, the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, but has fearlessly accepted the highest honour Freemasonry has to bestow. The suggestion I have humbly to offer for the consideration of the brethren is, that commemorative jewels should be designed of an uniform pattern, but of different qualities, in order to accommodate the means of the brotherhood, and that they should be issued from the offices of the Grand Secretary in the same manner as the centenary jewels are, and be only worn by subscribing Past Masters of lodges and all brothers holding office of any kind at the time of the Installation. I am sure that there would be an universal desire on the part of all loyal members of lodges holding office to purchase the distinction, in order to record their personal appreciation of so interesting an occasion.

The profits accruing from the sale of the jewels might be devoted advantageously towards the establishing of a fund in connection with our valuable charities. In conclusion, I sincerely hope that some of the zealous and distinguished members of Grand Lodge will take an opportunity of ventilating the idea—should it be thought worthy of their consideration—which I now respectfully beg to offer, and which I believe would not only meet with the general approval of the Craft, but would be also a good pecuniary scheme for endowing a philanthropic fund for the relief of the Masonic necessitous, and thus hand down to posterity a beneficial record of the event.

Trusting you will kindly do me the honour of inserting this letter in your columns, I remain, dear sir and brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

T. C. W., 141, 1381, 1503.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I imagined, to use your own words, that our "friendly controversy" had been "closed;" but I cannot resist a reply to your brief leader in this day's number.

In the letter to which you refer, I did not suggest any call whatever on the Fund of Benevolence. The grants now received—as is well known—by the Educational Institutions are from the Fund of General Purposes; and I thought I had made it apparent that any increase would, as a matter of course, come from the same fund.

I carefully abstained from even suggesting what such increase might reasonably be; and because I stated that 8,000 half-crowns would produce £800, and that it was only fair to ask for a revision, it by no means follows that I am of opinion that that should be the amount, nor does my argument justify any such conclusion.

My remarks in another place, from which you quote, were sadly misunderstood and misreported.

I said that the number of present recipients of the benefits of our three institutions was about 525.

The number of candidates now seeking these benefits is—

Girls' School	31	To be elected	13
Boys' School	48	"	8
Benevolent	68	"	12
	147	"	33

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
30th January, 1875.

FREDK. BINCKES.

BROTHERLY LOVE. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Thanks for your able article on the above subject; it ought to be in the hands of every member of our Order. How often do we meet with instances where this principle is utterly disregarded? What a recommendation it would be to Freemasonry if "the uninstructed world who are not Masons" could only recognize this virtue more highly developed in its members?

I trust you will soon favour your readers with another leader on the same subject, so that the Craft may be stimulated to the practice of "that virtue, which may justly be denominated the distinguished characteristic of a Freemason's heart;" or to put it in the excellent terms of your leading article, "our higher spiritual practice of brotherly love."

Doubtless you have often seen instances where this principle has been violated, and treated as though it was a mere figment in our ceremonies, and never intended to be carried out in every-day life.

A few more racy articles on this subject from your able pen, would, I am sure, have a very healthy influence on such as forget that "brotherly love" is the first of the three grand principles on which Freemasonry is founded, and might prompt them to maintain in its fullest splendour this grand feature of our Order, "brotherly love."

Truly and fraternally,

J. C.

THE STATUS OF SCOTCH MASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observe in your issue of the 23rd ult., a letter from a correspondent signed J., on the subject of improving the status of Scotch Masonry. I may say that I have long studied this matter during the seven or eight years that I have had charge of a province, both as P.D.G.M. in charge and actual P.G.M. I will pass over the kind remarks he (J.) has made on my proposed scheme of a Scottish Masonic Benevolent Institution, and proceed to the question at issue, viz., improving the status of Scotch Masonry.

Let me state the case briefly. 1st. One argument raised by non-masons against our Order (applicable equally to all Countries, and not Scotland alone) is the fact of banquets, or, as they call them, Symposiums in Lodges; in fact I know several worthy men who have given up the idea of becoming Masons on this plea. Non-masons, being ignorant of our real habits and teaching, may, by observing the practices of badly-worked lodges (many of which, alas, must exist), lay down what is in their eyes an infallible dictum, that such is the custom in every lodge.

But is it so? The quiet banquets always concluded by a certain hour, so common in England, and the orderly and well-conducted resort for refreshment in Scotch lodges—do they come under this category? Emphatically, No! But allowing this to keep off detractors of our Order, and taking the habits of the present day into consideration, could not all good working lodges establish the following principle?—"that every lodge, where practicable, should have their own lodge-room, and eschew hotels and inns as places of meeting; that there should be, if possible, only two, or at most, four banquets in the year, and to compensate for this omission that the lodge or united lodges, say two or three together, should give a ball once a year, at a suitable period, where the wives, sisters, and daughters of Masons and their friends could equally enjoy themselves, or any other entertainment that may seem more apropos." This would give enjoyment to many, please "the sex," and render them favourable to the Craft.

On every other occasion, save as aforesaid, let the meetings of the several lodges be for business alone.

Especially let lodges of instruction for younger members be held at least four times (as many more as possible) during the year, under the presidency of an expert P.M.

2nd. What is the next allegation against the Craft (in Scotland especially)? It is the numbers of professional Masonic beggars who scour the United Kingdom professing to be Masons under the Scotch Constitution. This, I am sorry to say, is a fact, as I have not only heard this allegation in England, but have seen it myself! It will be asked, then, how this occurs: Simply thus, the system in Scotland, as regards the funds of lodges, is to depend on the number of Intrants that they enroll per annum—an annual subscription is rare. This is the root of the evil.

Our Brother J. wishes to raise, or rather Grand Lodge to raise the minimum of entrance fees, to preclude unworthy members. This can only be done to a very limited extent; we must not preclude the poorer brother of good character from the benefits of Masonry—he would be no burden; but we must place our lodges on such a safe footing that they will no longer have to depend on entrance fees; we must exercise a careful survey of the characters and lives of candidates for admission.

This can be done by fixing a minimum and maximum scale of entrance fees, and a minimum and maximum of annual subscription, which should in all cases cover the annual expenses of the lodge. The lodge, thus practically self-supporting, could give more time to discipline and character among its members, or proposed members, as laid down in the Constitutions (Chap. xx., sec. iv., page 47), in the following rule: "that no lodge shall receive or initiate an Intransit for less than twenty-one shillings, exclusive of Grand Lodge dues of registration (being 5s. 6d.) of sum specified in Chap. xv., sec. i., neither shall payment of said sums or any part thereof be remitted or deferred on any pretence." The utmost that could be laid down as a minimum is 31s. 6d., if we regard the poor equally with the rich.

Taking this view of the case, I would ask whether our joint aim, viz., improving the status of Scotch Masonry, could not be carried out as follows: let the minimum for Intrants be fixed at 31s. 6d. and the maximum at £5 5s., giving the mean of £3 3s., a very practical sum, suitable to most people's pocket; but at the same time to make it compulsory for all lodges to have an annual subscription from its members, with a maximum of, say, £2 2s., and a minimum of 5s., so as to suit all lodges and all classes, and to enable the several lodges to defray their ordinary business expenses without using their Intrants' fees at all.

This money would then be available for Charitable Institutions, and for building and renting suitable lodge-rooms. Lodges simply and solely existing on Intrants' fees, cannot really enquire into the characters of their proposed candidates, they therefore have foisted on them unthinking and careless brethren, who cause want of discipline and misrule.

Let the Grand Lodge formally, itself, and through its Provincial Grand Lodges, truly and firmly carry out the existing rules of the Constitutions as to character of Intrants, the duration of a fortnight at least between every degree (Chap. xx., sec. vi.). Let said section be strengthened by leaving the granting of dispensations to the Grand Lodge or Grand Committee, Provincial G.M. and D.P.G.M., and these only to be granted under very special circumstances.

By doing this, and passing a compulsory minimum and maximum scale of annual subscription, a marked improvement would appear in Scotch Masonry.

I myself have witnessed a vast improvement of late years, but much more remains to be done. Reverting to the above proposal of devoting Intrants' fees to charitable and other purposes, I would advise all lodges to appoint a charity steward, whose duty it would be to collect all general lodge and individual donations, and give the proceeds as directed by the lodge in open lodge assemblies.

All lodges would, of course, have their own system of charity, they might set apart, say 2s. 6d., on every Intransit, and 1s. or more on every annual subscription for the said charitable purposes. This is a point that must rest with lodges, and could not, on any pretence, be rendered compulsory.

Peace and harmony would thus rule our lodges, brotherly love would be more thoroughly carried out, charity would be practised, the general status would be raised, while yet the order would be open to the poorest as well as the richest of the country.

3rd. If you would still permit me space, I would mention one point more, viz., that no R.W.M. should hold office more than one year, or two at most, consecutively. It should be the object of every Intransit, by time and ability, to reach the chair of his Mother Lodge. With this object in view, he would study more deeply our impressive ceremonies, as well as the hidden mysteries of the Craft, he would endeavour, by his life and actions, to prove to the world at large the real benefits of being a Mason, not only in name but in deed. All, it is true, cannot aspire to the highest posts in a lodge; memory, or rather want of memory, and other natural failings, may disqualify the aspirants from the chair of R.W.M., but unless, by his own fault, he can fill other offices in the lodge, not even excepting the Warden's Chairs.

The new R.W.M., moreover, on succeeding to his chair, would find a number of worthy and experienced P.M.'s who have passed the chair to support him by their aid and advice, and enable him to act with more confidence, knowing, that wherein he might feel himself wanting, one or other would ever be present at his side.

Brethren of the Craft in Scotland, think over these several points; it rests entirely among yourselves, and when fully convinced, support with all your power any propositions that may now or hereafter be proposed.

I am, sir and brother, yours, fraternally,

Geo. R. HARRIOTT,
P.G.M. Wigtown and Kirkcubright.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I can see, in p. 17 of Freemason, that the Scottish Masonic Institution is only to establish schools for boys and girls of aged, deceased, and distressed Freemasons of good character. Would it not have been better to have included boys and girls of all aged, deceased, and distressed Freemasons? Although that the trees be not good, if they were grafted into the branches good fruit might be gathered from them, and more would be the rejoicing over one lost sheep found than over the ninety and nine who might be of good character, that never went astray. It is not easy to read good characters.

Z, GLASGOW PROVINCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your able article on the status of a P.M., on his rejoining the lodge in which he was installed, seems to me clearly to point to the fact that he should be placed next to the I.P.M.

Is not this in opposition to the conclusion of "Jelf," who thinks that a P.M. on rejoining the lodge in which he was installed, "rejoins as one of those strange P.M.'s referred to by Bro. Tebbs, who have no seniority with respect to the P.M.'s of the lodge itself?"

Would it not also be more equitable, and more in harmony with our usage, to place the rejoining P.M. next the I.P.M., and thus recognise his past services to the lodge, while giving precedence to the P.M.'s who have continued their subscriptions?

To elucidate another point bearing on the same subject. Allow me to ask, for the information of some who dispute the fact, if it is necessary for Grand Lodge membership that a P.M. continue his subscription to the lodge in which he was installed, or whether membership in any English lodge will enable him to retain his status in Grand Lodge?

Yours truly and fraternally,

I.C.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The subject of Masonic Jurisprudence has occupied considerable attention lately in your columns, and promises to be on the increase. Now it appears to me, that without derogating from the propriety of discussion in all matters relative to Masonic law, that the root of the matter lies as yet untouched, and that any conclusion which may be arrived at upon a given subject, is liable to be re-opened the following week and decided in a precisely opposite manner, and with as much authority, or as little, as that preceding it; in other words, there is no such thing as Masonic law, beyond the meagre pittance provided in the Book of Constitutions.

But thirty pages are devoted to the regulations of lodges and their members, and the wording is often such as to admit of a variety of significations and is in some instances absolutely contradictory.

When we consider the thousands, nay, we may say the millions, "who range themselves under our banner," it certainly does seem unaccountable that there should be no authorized code of laws for the guidance of a society of such magnitude.

The very excellent work on the subject by Dr. Oliver is often quoted, and is perhaps the most exhaustive treatise we have, but it is unrecognized by Grand Lodge, and therefore liable at any moment to be set aside, if convenient to do so.

Now that we are shortly to inaugurate a fresh epoch in Freemasonry in the installation of a new Grand Master, would it not be an appropriate opportunity for a general Masonic conclave, consisting of delegates from each provincial and district Grand Lodge under the E.C. to take into consideration the preparation of such a code of laws which should be at once comprehensive and worthy of the noble Order to which we belong?

Surely it is high time that something should be done in this behalf, as the hours wasted, both in and out of the lodge-room, in discussing questions which have been decided a dozen times, as the columns of your journal amply testify, to say nothing of the fact that the decisions are utterly valueless when made.

There are many points which will present themselves to the minds of brethren, the importance of which are manifest, wholly omitted in the Book of Constitutions, which call most strongly for legislation.

I should be glad if some of our enthusiastic brethren would give the subject their attention; they may depend on the hearty co-operation of all true brethren who have the cause of the Craft at heart, and, among the rest, of

Yours fraternally,

January 25th. 1875.

JADU.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Walter Hill, P.M. 49, E.C. Dunedin, on Mark Master and Excellent Master degrees of Masonry, is well worthy to be considered by English Royal Arch Masons. Scotch Royal Arch Companions have often had to do what they unwillingly do to prevent English Companions from being made honorary members in a Scotch Chapter, for the want of not having attained to that degree of E. Master. The English Chapters should have their Charters for Royal Arch to include all the degrees, the same as the Scotch have theirs. The English and Irish might meet the Scotch in that way, as they should meet them, and leave off working the Past Master and Chair degrees from the Royal Arch. The first three degrees ought not to be mixed up with any other, but to remain as the Charters now are, and all others in one Charter all included with the Royal Arch. The Fellow-Craft Mark has nothing whatever to do with the Mark of a Mark Master; both are decidedly different Marks; besides, the first three degrees do not require anything from the M.M., but the Arch cannot be completed without what has to be carried in the Mark Master degree. Therefore the degrees should be made to work on one Charter for Royal Arch Chapters. No Mark Master, getting the degree in a Chapter in Scotland, is justified, if he accepts of a Mark Master made in a R.A.E. The least that English Royal Arch Companions should do is to include into their Chapters the working of the Excellent degrees.

No. 2., Z. G. P.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"The Master only can govern the lodge" is your dictum last week. Surely this is wrong? The Book of Constitutions says:—"If no P.M. of the lodge be present, then the S.W., or, in his absence, the J.W., shall rule the lodge."

In addition to which, the Wardens, on investiture, are sometimes informed that, under certain circumstances, they may succeed to higher duties.

I think also, that, in the case of a vacancy in the S.W.'s chair, the J.W. may be promoted without running the risk of being disqualified for the Master's chair. The Book of Constitutions says the qualification shall be—having served as Warden for one year; six months' office as J.W., and six months as S.W., with no interval between, would seem to be sufficient.

Yours fraternally,

JELF.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGE.—An aristocratic company, confined to relatives and intimate friends, met yesterday morning at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, to witness the solemnization of the marriage of Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Onslow and the Hon. Florence Gardner, eldest daughter of Lord and Lady Gardner. The Bishop of Winchester officiated, assisted by the Rector of St. George's, the Rev. Henry Howarth, and the Rev. G. Bowles, Rector of Clendon. The Earl of Onslow was accompanied by his friend, Lord Eliot, as best man. The bride, who was given away by her father, was accompanied to the altar by six bridesmaids: the Hon. Evelyn Gardner, sister of the bride; Miss Cochrane, Miss Edith Onslow, Miss Middleton, Miss Leighton, and Miss Gundred Leighton.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The quarterly communication of this body was held in the Freemasons' Hall, on Monday, the 1st inst. In the unavoidable absence of the M.W.G.M., Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Bart., the throne was occupied by Bro. Henry Inglis of Torsonce, who was supported by the following brethren:—Bros. W. Mann, P.G.W., acting G.S.W.; F. A. Barrow, S.G.D., acting J.G.W.; Rev. A. Thomson Grant, G.C.; J. Laurie, G.S.; Wm. Hay, J.G.D.; John Coghill, G.D.C.; Captain Colt, Gartsherrie, G.S.B.; Convener Robertson, G.B.B.; and Murdock Mackenzie, C.G.M.

There was a large attendance of members, among those present being Bros. Sir Geo. Clerk, of Penicuik, R.W.M. 429; Roger Montgomerie, M.P., and Charles Dalrymple, M.P.

Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, apologies were read from Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, the Earl of Rosslyn, Captain J. T. Oswald, of Dunnikier; Major Hamilton Ramsay of Garion; W. Officer, F.S. Melville, and others.

The usual preliminary business being over, charters for the erection of new lodges were granted in the following cases:—"La Vallée de France," Lima; "Independencia," Callao; "Virtud y Union Regenerada," Lima; "Constancia y Concordia," Tacna; "Salem," Ahmedabad; "The Bonnie Doon," Patna; "Star of the West," Parkes, N.S.W.; "The Lodge of Polynesia," Fiji.

A petition for a charter to a new lodge at Dailly, Ayrshire, to be called "The Ferguson St. James," was remitted to Grand Committee, with powers to grant a charter if found in order.

On the recommendation of Grand Committee, Bro. J. M. Reid was appointed Provincial Grand Master for Trinidad, and Sir John Ogilvy, Bart., P.G.M. for Forfarshire.

A communication was read from the Grand Lodge of England, stating that it would be pleasing to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master elect, if the appointment of representative at that Grand Lodge, in room of the late Lord James C. P. Murray, were conferred on the Earl of Rosslyn, P.G.M. The appointment was unanimously made, in accordance with the recommendation.

The credentials of the Earl of Dunmore, as representative in Scotland of the Grand Lodge of Hungary, were presented, and his lordship confirmed in the appointment.

Letters of condolence on the decease of the late Earl of Dalhousie, from the Grand Orient of France, and Lodge Dalhousie, Massachusetts, U.S., were intimated, and it was remitted to the Grand Committee to prepare and transmit appropriate replies thereto.

Notice of motion, having for its object the constitution of Immediate Past Masters as members of Provincial Grand Lodges, was tabled for discussion at next meeting, and thereafter Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

ROYAL SCOTTISH MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

George Kenning (Proprietor of the Freemason), 198, Fleet-street, London, and 145, Argyle-street, Glasgow.

Names only, with amounts of donations or annual subscriptions, to be received till the Institution seems in a fair way of being started.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of Subscribers to this School met on Thursday last in the Library, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Griffiths Smith presided. The other brethren present were: Thos. Francis Peacock, H. W. Hemsworth, A. H. Tattershall, Walter Wellsman, Magnus Ohren, H. Browne, W. Stephens, H. A. Dubois, H. Dubosc, W. F. C. Moutrie, J. A. Rucker, W. Paas, Thos. W. White, John Boyd, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little, Secretary.

The business before the Committee was very slack. With reference to the Trusteeships of the Institution rendered vacant by the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon and the death of Bro. Benj. Bond Cabbell, a letter had been received from Lord Carnarvon's Secretary, in reply to Bro. Little's enquiry whether his Lordship would fill one of the vacancies, stating that at present the Pro Grand Master was unable to attend to business. Lord Skelmersdale, in answer to a similar application as to the other vacancy, wrote that he would be happy to undertake the office of Trustee.

A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

Poetry.

EARTH TO EARTH.
WRITTEN FOR THE "FREEMASON."

Alas! how vain is earthly life!
How soon it fades away;
'Mid scenes of weal, strife, or care,
Swift ebbs its littler day.
The fairest hopes have ended
In the mournfulness of tears,
And gentlest forms have left us
In the march of troubled years.

The home of mirth and cheerfulness
Is sad and silent now;
Still is the voice of joyousness—
Pain-laden every brow.
And where but yesterday was bliss
Beneath love's radiant skies,
To-day are downcast sorrow,
Deep grief, and tear-dimmed eyes.

Strange is this mystery of life,
Which ends so often here;
The grace of glowing tenderness,
In the mourning and the tear,
Which throws around our pathway
Those dreary clouds of gloom,
Which hover ever in mid-air
Above affection's tomb.

We give our friends to the silent earth,
Those whom we mourn to-day;
We miss them from our happy home,
Tho' we would bid them stay.
We part from them and they from us
In the freshness of their grace,
And we grieve for the faded flower,
We mourn the dear, dear face.

Strange ending of our tenderness—
Of all our anxious fear;
Of all those joys of heart and home
We ever hold so dear.
In the very midst of life and strength,
When all with us is peace,
Our tenderest links are broken,
Our brightest hours cease.

Yet faith looks on undoubting,
Amid each mournful scene;
Hope points to a higher life than this,
Like the Acacia ever green.
When in that land of love and light,
Ours is a radiant greeting,
When in affection's faultless flow,
Ours is an eternal meeting.

FUNERAL OF LADY CARNARVON.

On Saturday afternoon, the 30th ult., Lady Carnarvon was buried, in the presence of a large and sorrowing assemblage of all classes, and amid manifold tokens of the deepest respect, in the cemetery in Highclere Park, some five miles from the town of Newbury. During the greater part of Friday, and until midday on Saturday, the body of the Countess lay in state in the library, which was hung with black cloth. The inscription on the coffin-plate ran thus:—

"Evelyn Georgina Katherine, wife of Henry Howard Molyneux Herbert, fourth Earl of Carnarvon, only daughter of the sixth Earl of Chesterfield, born 3rd November, 1834; died 25th January, 1875."

The late Countess was wholly averse from anything like ostentation, and it was her desire to be laid in the open cemetery, beside the graves of those who had been devoted and faithful in the service of the family. Her last wishes were lovingly obeyed, and her remains rest in a plain brick grave near those of the nurse of the present Earl, and of the housekeeper, Mrs. Laverick, one of the victims of the Sipton accident, who was buried little more than a month ago.

At twenty minutes to two o'clock, the funeral procession emerged from the Castle, and moved slowly along the winding road to the cemetery in the following order:—

The Earl's Newbury tradesmen, the Mayor of Newbury (Mr. Adey), the ex-Mayor (Mr. Hickman), and other members of the Town Council; the principal tenantry, agents, and stewards of Lord Carnarvon; the officiating clergymen, the Rev. E. T. Waters, rector of Highclere; and the Rev. G. Raymond Portal, chaplain to Lord Carnarvon.

The pall-bearers were the rector of Newbury (Rev. James Leslie Randall), the Rev. N. G. Ridley, the Rev. F. C. Gosling, the Rev. L. Owen, the Rev. C. Young, and the Rev. D. Moore.

The mourners were the Earl of Carnarvon, the Hon. Alan Herbert, the Hon. Auberon Herbert, Lady Gwendolen Herbert, the Earl and Countess of Portsmouth, Miss Ogilvy, the Hon. and Rev. Canon Forester, Colonel the Hon. H. Forester, Viscount Lynton, General the Hon. Robert Curzon, Lord Newport, the Earl of Ducie, Earl Beauchamp, the Earl of Donoughmore, Lord Londesborough, Lord John Manners, Sir Robert Peel, M.P., Hon. J. Howard, Mr. William Chatteris, Mr. W. Kingsmill, Mr. W. Fox, Mr. W. B. Beach, M.P., and others. The servants of the household followed.

Arrived at the gates of the cemetery, the tradesmen and tenantry formed a close line on each side of the roadway, and the body was borne into the mortuary chapel, followed by the mourners. From the chapel to the grave was but a few steps, and here Lord Carnarvon deposited upon the coffin a wreath of camellias sent by the Countess of Chesterfield, who had been in close attendance upon her daughter throughout her illness. His lordship also placed upon the coffin other floral designs from friends of the late Countess.

The bells of the Newbury churches tolled, and the tradesmen partly closed their places of business in the afternoon. Yesterday morning, at the Chapel Royal, Savoy, the Rev. Henry White, the chaplain, in the course of his sermon, made special reference to the late Lady Carnarvon, who for many years had been a member of the congregation.

Masonic Tidings.

The Right Hon. Lord Dunboyne, Provincial Grand Master of North Munster, was presented with a piece of plate, by the brethren of that province, as a mark of their respect for him. He was afterwards entertained at a breakfast, presided over by Bro. James Spaight, Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

The Marquis of Hartington, Prov. Grand Master for Derbyshire, was at the meeting, on Wednesday, the 3rd ult., unanimously chosen as Leader of the Liberal Party.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, Past Grand Master, has been appointed representative from the Grand Lodge of Scotland to the Grand Lodge of England in the room of the late Lord James C. Plantagenet Murray. The appointment was made in accordance with a wish expressed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master elect.

Bro. the Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., Prov. Grand Master of Kent, has given his numerous tenants in the neighbourhood of Cranbrook the right of destroying all game and rabbits on their respective occupations.

A Dublin correspondent informs us that Bro. the Hon. David R. Plunkett, M.P., Junior Grand Deacon, was, on Friday last, sworn in as Solicitor-General for Ireland.

We regret to learn that Bro. Mercier met with a very serious accident on Friday, the 29th ult., at the Mansion House Station of the Metropolitan District Railway. Capt. Mercier's foot slipped while descending the stairs leading to the platform, and he fell from the top to the bottom, sustaining severe injuries. He was conveyed home under the care of his friend, Bro. Dr. Ambler.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.A.D.C., was on Monday, the 1st inst., unanimously elected Chairman of the Library Committee of the City Corporation.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in Wellington Lodge of Instruction (No. 548), held at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford, on Monday, the 15th inst., by Bro. John Shaw, S.W. 79. The lodge will be opened at half-past seven precisely.

On Friday, Jan. 29th, the Consecration of the Duke of Connaught Lodge (1524), took place at Pownall-road, Haggerston. The Consecrating and Installing Officers were Bros. R. W. Little, J. Brett, J. Boyd, and H. G. Buss.

NOTES ON LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND ART.

GLEANED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL.

During the year 1874, there were 11,917 new books and new editions of books published in France, exclusive of periodicals and reviews. There were also 2,196 maps and engravings, and 3,841 pieces of music, published among our French neighbours during the same period.

Miss Thompson's popular picture of "The Roll Call," after being visited by hundreds of thousands of admirers in the principal towns of her native north of England, is now being exhibited in Edinburgh.

The Academy informs us that "From his examination of the spectra of stars Professor d'Arrest has come to the conclusion that colour cannot be taken as a certain indication of the nature of the spectrum, and that the connection between colour and temperature, though not improbable, has not been satisfactorily established; while the assertion that the red stars are older than the yellow, and the yellow than the white, is, according to M. d'Arrest, entirely without foundation. The spectroscopic examination of stars which M. d'Arrest has made at Copenhagen has resulted in increasing the number of stars of Secchi's third type threefold. These stars are distinguished by channelled spectra, indicating that their temperature is so low that combination of the elements in their atmosphere has taken place."

"THE MAGPIE."—This is the title of a new high-class weekly journal, the contents of which is to be comprised of ordinary interesting news, with careful and critical comments, and choice beauties of Original Literature, in addition to Scientific, Artistic, and Comic Articles and Essays.

The Annual Dinner of the Uxbridge Yeomanry Cavalry took place at the Wheatsheaf Tavern, Shepherd's Bush, on Friday, the 29th ult., under the presidency of A. Blackburn, Esq., the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and responded to. The proceedings were carried out with great éclat.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—These purifying and soothing remedies demand the earnest attention of all persons liable to rheumatism, gout, sciatica, or other painful affections of the muscles, nerves, or joints. The ointment should be applied after the affected parts have been patiently fomented with warm water, when the unguent should be diligently rubbed upon the adjacent skin, unless the friction should cause pain. Holloway's Pills should be simultaneously taken to reduce inflammation and to purify the blood. This treatment abates the violence and lessens the frequency of gout, rheumatism, and all spasmodic diseases which spring from hereditary predisposition, or from any accidental weakness of constitution. The ointment checks the local malady; the pills preserve the vital power.—Adv.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BOLTON.—ANCHOR AND HOPE LODGE (No. 37).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on 1st Feb., in Freemasons' Hall, Bolton, when there were present Bro. Jas. Walker, W.M., in the chair, supported by the whole of his officers, also the following P.M.'s, viz.: Bro. Wm. Slater, Prov. S.G. Deacon; J. H. Winder, Prov. G. Reg.; Saml. Isherwood, Prov. G. Treas.; Robt. Harwood, Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Jas. Newton, Prov. G. Steward; Jas. Pilkington, John Robinson, R. W. Knowles, W. Pennington, Jas. McAdam, P. Prov. G. Deacon, Derbyshire; and other brethren. The lodge having been opened and the minutes confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Johnson Mills, as a candidate for initiation, and being unanimously in his favour, he was subsequently admitted and initiated, as was also Mr. James Marchanton, who had been balloted for and approved of at a previous meeting; the ceremony being performed by the W.M. The working tools were explained to the newly-initiated brethren by Bro. Robt. Harwood, P.M., Prov. G. Supt. of Works; and the charge delivered by Bro. Walter Pennington, P.M. The lodge was then closed in the usual manner.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—This lodge held its regular meeting at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Thursday, the 4th inst., Bro. Geo. Newman in the chair, ably supported by his officers, Bro. T. Cobu, S.W.; Charles Arkell, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; E. Jones, S.D.; H. Legge, J.D.; F. Fellowes, I.G.; W. T. Rickwood, D.C.; E. King, P.M., Steward. The lodge having been duly formed, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, the following brethren were raised to the third degree:—Bro. W. Medwin, E. Burch, J. T. Belfrage, S. Crawford, V. Hibbins, T. B. Charlesworth, and G. H. Gillam. The following brethren were also passed to the second degree:—Bro. A. T. Honeywill and R. Stubington. The following gentlemen being present, having been accepted by ballot at the last meeting, were regularly initiated into the ancient mysteries of the Order:—Mr. E. B. Crichton, Mr. J. Loukins, and Edwd. Chas. Alftatt. The sum of ten guineas was unanimously voted to the Boys' and Girls' Masonic Institutions respectively; also ten pounds to the Royal Benevolent Institution for Poor Aged Freemasons and Widows; the said sums to stand on the Stewards' Lists representing the lodge at the Festivals. Bro. Geo. Abbott, I.P.M., gave notice of motion, that it was his intention to propose a Testimonial Fund in favour of Bro. Marsh, P.M., in recognition of his services as Secretary of the lodge during the last seven years, and that the sum of ten guineas be voted out of the lodge funds to head the list of subscriptions to the fund. The ceremonies of the chair were most ably rendered by the W.M. (Bro. Geo. Newman), as also the duties by his officers, in the several degrees. The ballot was taken for the reception of several gentlemen at the next meeting in March. The lodge was then closed in due form, and adjourned. The brethren then repaired to the Pillar Room, in which upwards of seventy brethren sat down to an excellent dinner, at which the W.M. presided. The several usual masonic toasts were proposed and seconded with great zest. Bro. W. Worrell, P.M. 766, and Bro. G. H. Wright, P.M. 28, responded for the visitors. The Tyler's toast, as usual, concluded a most agreeable meeting. Among the brethren present were Bro. E. Roberts, P.M.; F. Trott, P.M.; E. Taylor, W. Alftatt, T. Fisher, W. F. Poulton, S. Edwards, J. G. Chillingworth, H. A. Pratt, T. Gardner, B. Perkins, T. Barker, J. Kent, R. E. Bright, J. Curle, J. G. Dunn, S. Muggeridge, jun., E. J. Kellaway, G. Hall, G. Bartholomew, H. Child, W. Figs, A. G. Marks, W. Donne, A. Lewis, G. F. Quinton, A. Garnett, W. F. Bates, W. Waring, H. Davis, and G. T. Smith. The visitors present were:—Bro. W. Warwick, 640; R. Gummer, 766; H. T. Thompson, P.M. 942; H. J. Dawe, 871; J. Wright, W.M. 1158; G. H. Wright, P.M. 28; C. H. Nevill, 1216; J. F. Raalte, 917; W. Worrell, P.M. 766; C. Legg, 463; W. Luty, 1259; W. F. Smart, 766; J. Fletcher, 615; J. A. Allison, 901; E. J. Moore, W.M. 174; G. Wilson, 569; G. W. Churchley, 615; T. Butt, 907; J. Weedon, P.M. 715; and J. Cowley.

DEPTFORD.—ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the White Swan Tavern, Deptford, on Thursday, January 28th. Bro. G. Andrews, W.M., presided, and there were present during the evening Bro. H. A. Collington, P.M.; W. Wyatt, P.M.; S. A. Lewin, S.W.; H. J. Tuson, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M.,

Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; J. J. Parkes, S.D.; H. J. Wells, J.D.; J. B. Langley, I.G.; H. J. Fisher, Org.; H. J. Dawe, M.C.; G. T. Linan, W.S.; J. Grindley, W. A. R. Harris, W. Elgood, G. Harvey, T. Horton, J. Woollett, A. Gordon, W. Atkins, E. C. Kilsby, W. H. Hawkins, E. Wood, E. Good, G. Jones, T. Firth, A. Macers, R. J. Harvey, J. Allen, R. Mason, W. A. Lockhead, J. G. Thomas, R. Hannan, J. G. Vohmann, G. Porter, Buhler, R. Killick, and some others. Amongst the visitors were Bro. W. Y. Laing, P.M. 45, 1326; H. R. Harker, 79; R. J. Beaver, 700; J. Howe, 1326; J. W. Baldwin, 1326, S.W., and W.M. elect 1423; W. Chartres, 1423, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Bro. J. Grindley, T. Firth, G. Jones, and W. Chartres, 1423, were, in an admirable style, passed to the second degree. The elections were unanimous in favour of the re-election of Bro. W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; and J. Bavin, P.M. 147, Tyler. The S.W., Bro. S. A. Lewin, by a large majority, was elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. J. Baxter Langley, I.G., as the Steward representing the lodge, announced that on previous evening at Royal Benevolent Institution his list amounted to thirty pounds. Some propositions for joinings and initiations were received, and the lodge was closed. The usual banquet followed.

EAST DEREHAM.—SONDES LODGE (No. 996.) The annual festival of this united and prosperous little lodge was held on Wednesday, the 27th January, 1875, in the assembly rooms, East Dereham, and was presided over by Bro. W. T. Gidney, W.M.; H. Smart, S.W. and W.M. Elect; E. H. Smith, J.W.; W. Parke, S.D.; J. Wheare, J.D.; L. Minn, I.G.; L. Hatfield, Secretary. Besides the above officers there was a very good attendance of the members of the lodge, numbering over thirty, besides several visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bro. Palmer, Joppa Lodge; Page, from Lynn; Lord, Norwich; and J. F. Hills, P. Prov. G. J. W. Suffolk, Installing Master. The lodge was opened in the first degree, and after the usual routine of business had been disposed of the lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Hills was asked to preside. The W.M. then presented Bro. H. Smart for the benefit of installation. The whole of the ceremony, as well as the address to the W.M. and Wardens, was most attentively listened to by the whole of the brethren. Immediately after the installation, the newly elected Master regularly initiated into Freemasonry Messrs. C. Baker, W. Fisk, D. Belding, and F. Stimpson, the ceremony being worked with great ability, thus proving to the lodge, in a most marked degree, the wise choice the brethren of this lodge had made in their selection of W. Master. The W.M. was most ably assisted by his newly-appointed officers as follows: E. H. Smith, S.W.; W. Parke J.W.; J. Wheare, S.D.; L. Minn, J.D.; J. Allen, I.G.; L. E. Hatfield, Sec.; and Bro. W. T. Gidney, I.P.M., Treas. The lodge was closed in due form with solemn prayer, when the brethren adjourned to banquet at the Eagle Hotel. The first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," being duly honoured, next followed, "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales"; "The Grand Officers, Past and Present"; "The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," which was responded to by one of the brethren, there being several members of this lodge who are P. Prov. G. Officers. Bro. Hills, Installing Master, being entrusted with the gavel, now gave "The Health of Bro. Smart, the newly installed Master," and in a very sincere manner, passed the W.M. a well merited compliment, on the able, efficient, and truly Masonic manner in which he had performed the arduous duties, both in lodge and at the table, at the same time complimenting the lodge on the wise choice. Bro. Smart responded in a neat and truly characteristic speech, sincerely thanking them all for the very great honour they had done him, and assuring the brethren that nothing should ever be wanting, on his part, to merit their good wishes and esteem, and that he would do what laid in his power to support, maintain, and uphold the dignity and high importance of Masonry. The I.P.M.'s health was next drunk most enthusiastically, and the I.P.M., Bro. Gidney, very ably responded, at the same time proposing the health of Bro. Hills, who had, he said, come all the way from Sudbury to fulfil a promise he made to Bro. Smart, that he would install him. He alluded to the impressive way in which Bro. Hills had rendered the ceremony, to which the Installing Master responded. The Chairman proposed "The Health of the Newly-initiated Brethren," looking upon it as really the best of the evening, expressing the hope that, from what the brethren had that day seen of Masonry, they would be induced to go on in the good work, and that they would never live to regret this memorable day in their lives. The whole of the four brethren returned thanks in able and concise language. The remainder of the toasts, "The Visitors," to which Bro. Lord responded; "The Charities," to which Bro. Hills responded; "The Host and Hostess," to which Bro. Minn responded, concluding with the Tyler's toast, after which the column was passed round, and a very creditable sum was collected, which brought the proceedings of this happy gathering to a close. The cuisine arrangements of Bro. Minn were excellent, and the floral decorations of Mrs. Minn were much admired for their good taste and striking effect.

LIVERPOOL.—SKELMERSDALE LODGE (No. 1380).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge, which bears the honoured name of the Deputy Grand Master of England, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, who was the first W.M., was held at the Queen's Hotel, Waterloo, near Liverpool, on Monday, the 1st inst. The officers and members present were Bro. G. Broadbridge, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; R. Brown, S.W.; T. G. Bark, J.W.; Dr. W. S. Limrick, Treasurer; Dr. C. S. Smith, Sec.; Rev. T. W. Richardson, S.D.; E. Ford, jun., J.D.; F. N. Sheath, Org.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; L. Moritz, R. W. Hickson, F. W. Barnes, O. Lowenthal, F. Gittins, J. B. Roose, J. A. Greenleaves, J. Cobham, P.M.; H. Davis,

P.M.; R. W. Barnes, and J. Evans, W.M. 220. The visitors included Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241, P.G.S.; W. Johnson, 241; W. M. Chudley, W.M. 241, and others. Bro. T. G. Bark was very effectively installed W.M. of the lodge, by Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; and the officers invested were the following:—Bro. G. de la Perrelle, P.P.G.D.C., I.P.M.; Dr. C. S. Smith, S.W.; the Rev. T. W. Richardson, J.W.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., M.C.; R. Brown, Treasurer; E. Ford, Sec.; Dr. W. S. Limrick, S.D.; P. Lowenthal, J.D.; F. N. Sheath, I.G.; J. B. Roose, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. A candidate was initiated by the newly-installed W.M. in a manner which has rarely been equalled in this part of the Province; and the working tools were explained by the J.W. in a style which could not have been excelled. The brethren subsequently sat down to a splendid banquet at Messrs. Fisk and Fairhurst's, Castle-street, Liverpool, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. The lodge was opened at five o'clock in the afternoon, by Bro. Koch, W.M., assisted by the following officers:—Bro. Everitt, S.W.; Gardner, J.W., and W.M. elect; Walls, acting S.D.; Higgins, acting I.G.; Mann, I.P.M.; Page, Treas.; Stuart, Sec. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read, the report of the auditors, Bro. Walls, Speedy and Stokes was submitted formally to the lodge and passed. The W.M. then proceeded to pass Bro. Fallows to the second degree. The ceremony was well carried out. Bro. Koch having vacated the chair of W.M. in favour of Bro. Mann, who had kindly accepted the onerous position of Installing Master, the impressive ceremonial of inducting Bro. Gardner to the chair of K.S. was then proceeded with. There was a very strong Board of Installed Masters, which comprised many distinguished representatives of some of the principal metropolitan lodges. The whole proceedings were carried out by the Installing Master with great éclat, his delivery of the address being exceedingly impressive. When the W.M., at the conclusion of the ceremony, received the congratulations of the brethren, the scene was very striking and picturesque, in consequence of there being nearly sixty members and visitors present, many of them being highly decorated with Craft and R.A. honours. The W.M. then invested the following members as officers for the year:—Bro. Everitt, S.W.; Painter, J.W.; Reeves, S.D.; Higgins, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Page, Treas.; Stuart, Sec.; Walls, I.W.S.; Kohler, A.W.S.; W. A. Ellis, Org.; Longstaffe, Tyler. The initiation of Mr. Richardson into the mysteries of the Craft having been carried out by the W.M., Bro. Koch was presented with a handsome Past Master's jewel, and returned thanks for the honour awarded to him. The I.P.M. gave notice of motion in respect to the formation of a Benevolent Fund in connection with the Lodge, which he hoped the brethren would consider in the interim, and come fully prepared to discuss the question at the next meeting. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. "The Queen and the Craft" was duly honoured, and Bro. Farquharson sang the national anthem. H.R.H. the Grand Master's health was drunk with great warmth, and Bro. Walls, sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales," accompanied by Bro. Ellis. Bro. Stokes having contributed the "Thorn," the W.M. gave "Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master," and requested the brethren to receive the toast solemnly, in consequence of his lordship's recent bereavement. "The Health of the Initiates" was then proposed, and the W.M. contributed the E.A. song. The visitors' toast next followed, and was severally responded to. The I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was well received and briefly acknowledged by Bro. Gardner. The other lodge toasts were then rapidly given. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings at midnight. Among the visitors were representatives of the following lodges:—Bro. Bond, P.M. 87, P.Z. 749; Farquharson, P.M. 99; Hopwood, P.M. 141; Parsons, P.M. 749; Bragg, P.M. 857; Dennis, P.M. 907; Witley, P.M. 946; Bayfield, P.M. 1158; Lancefield, P.M. 1343; Arnold, W.M. 45; Wright, W.M. 1158; Kindon, W.M. 1297; Kukman, 38; Skinner, 188.

STRATFORD.—LANOTHORNE LODGE (No. 1421).—This young, but steadily progressing lodge, held its second anniversary meeting at the Swan Hotel, Stratford, E., on Thursday, the 28th ult., upon which occasion a large number of brethren of this and neighbouring lodges assembled to witness the installation of Bro. G. E. Slee, the S.W., as W.M. for the ensuing year, that brother having been unanimously elected to that position at the last regular meeting of the lodge. At four p.m. the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. G. T. W. Mugliston, M.D., who was supported by the whole of his officers—viz., Bro. G. E. Slee, S.W., and W.M. elect; R. G. Owen, J.W.; Charles Lacey, I.P.M.; George Levick, Treas.; C. W. Ashdown, P.M. and Sec.; B. Cundick, S.D.; G. Hollington, J.D.; H. Carter, I.G.; J. G. Stevens, P.M., D.C.; T. S. Taylor, Steward; M. Sherwin, Org.; and W. Steedman, Tyler, and a number of brethren. The minutes of the last regular meeting, together with those of a lodge of emergency, held on the 14th ult., having been read and duly confirmed, the balance-sheet for the past year, together with the report of the audit committee (brought up by Bro. J. G. Stevens), were read, and on the suggestion of the W.M. the discussion thereupon was deferred until the next meeting. The lodge was opened in the second degree, whereupon Bro. G. E. Slee was duly presented by Bro. J. G. Stevens, P.M., D.C., to receive from the W.M. the benefit of installation, which ceremony was then proceeded with, the W.M. elect taking the required obligation. The lodge was opened in the third degree, and the brethren below the rank of Installed Master having retired, a board consisting of twenty-one Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Slee duly placed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom. Having invested his I.P.M., the board of Installed Masters was then declared closed, the brethren re-admitted, and the newly-installed W.M. duly proclaimed, and saluted in each degree. He then proceeded to appoint and invest the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bro. G. T. W. Mugliston, I.P.M.; Bro. R. G. Owen, S.W.; B. Cundick, J.W.; Geo. Levick, Treasurer; C. W. Ashdown, P.M., Sec.; Geo. Hollington, S.D.; H. Carter, J.D.; M. Sherwin, Org.; T. S. Taylor, I.G.; G. F. Dix, D.C.; H. N. Taylor, W.S.; and W. Steedman (re-elected), Tyler. The remainder of the ceremony was then proceeded with, and concluded by the Installing Officer, Bro. Mugliston, who delivered the charges to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren in a most admirable and impressive manner, and to the evident satisfaction of the large number of brethren present. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony, the W.M. rose, and said he had a most pleasing duty to perform, which was to present to Bro. Mugliston a P.M.'s jewel, which had been voted him at the last meeting of the lodge; and on behalf of himself and the brethren of the lodge, he had great pleasure in placing that handsome jewel upon Bro. Mugliston's breast, trusting he might be spared many years to wear it, and to visit his Langthorne brethren. Bro. Mugliston, in feeling terms, acknowledged the kindness of the brethren, assuring them that his humble services would be always at their disposal, and that he should value the jewel they had so kindly presented him with as a lasting memento of their kindness, and as surpassing in value any future distinction that might ultimately fall to his lot. A cordial vote of thanks was likewise given to Bro. T. S. Taylor, for his very handsome present of a set of tracing boards, supplied by Bro. George Kenning, of Little Britain, and which were much admired. Letters of apology for non-attendance were read by the Secretary from Bros. Jno. Hervey, G.S.; Rev. R. J. Simpson, M.A.; and R. Wentworth Little, Sec. Girls' School, expressing inability to attend, and conveying their best wishes and fraternal regards to the brethren of the lodge. The Secretary (Bro. Ashdown) then reported that he had, on the previous evening, attended the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged and Decayed Freemasons, as Steward representing the lodge, and had the pleasure of handing in a list of subscriptions and donations amounting to £40—an announcement which was received with great satisfaction by the brethren present. A candidate having been proposed for initiation at the next meeting, the lodge was closed, and the brethren and visitors, about fifty in number, adjourned to partake of a sumptuous banquet, served in Bro. Morley's best style and which gave every satisfaction. The W.M. presided, and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily received and cordially responded to. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. W. Mundy, W.M. 1228. Altogether a most pleasurable evening was spent and the "Tyler's Toast" brought the proceedings to a close shortly before 11 o'clock. During the evening some excellent songs, &c., were given by the brethren, assisted by the Organist, Bro. M. Sherwin, who presided at the harmonium with his usual skill and ability. As usual, the lodge was honoured with a number of visitors, amongst whom were the following, viz.:—Bros. D. Posner, S.D. 1227; E. Jex, P.M. 1259; T. Austin, P.M. 933; J. Boulton, 1056; E. Y. Latrielle, P.M. 1056; A. Robbins, P.M. 1056; W. A. Sharp, P.M. 49; W. Mundy, W.M. 1118; T. Johns, P.M. 30; E. West, P.M. 1327 and P. Prov. G.S.D., Herts; T. Day, S.W. 1076; S. Watkins, P.M. 212; T. Jennings, 554; J. Crossthwaite, 205; B. Brayshaw, P.M. 1076; H. B. Holliday, W.M. 1076; T. Cohn, S.W. 192; W. L. Greenfield, 975; and J. Dorton, J.W. 1076.

MARQUIS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—This young and flourishing lodge, which was consecrated in June last, met at the hall, Balls-Pond-road, Dalston, on Friday the 5th inst., Bro. Wm. Stephens, W.M., presiding, supported by all the officers, Bro. Jas. Brett acting as I.P.M. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and the lodge opened in the third degree, Bro. Hawthorn was raised to the degree of a M.M., the W.M. giving the traditional history and the lecture on the tracing-board. Bros. May and Frederick were duly passed to the second, and four gentlemen initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, every care and attention being paid to the solemnity of the occasion. Bro. Norman, of Lodge 30, was then elected a joining member on the proposition of Bro. Brett. A vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Sim, who had represented the lodge at the recent festival of the Aged Masons, and taken up a list of upwards of £70 at the call of the W.M. but a few days before the festival. Propositions were then made for new members, and the lodge adjourned for refreshment. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Lundy, P.M. 45; Barfield, P.M. 511; Howe, P.M. 1445. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were most heartily proposed and responded to. The W.M. feelingly remarked on the illness of Prince Leopold and the watchful care of Her Majesty, which would, no doubt, add greatly to his recovery. Fraternal allusions were also made to the recent bereavement sustained by their M.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, wishing him health and strength to support him under the trying difficulties. In proposing the toast of "The Masonic Charities," the W.M. thanked the brethren of the lodge for their great liberality. The Three Charities would be represented during the first year of the existence of the lodge, and he had no doubt that at least £250 would be given in. He could speak of his own list, containing 10 names, subscribing 10 guineas each, and of these, three had been initiated in the lodge by him, and had become Life Governors of all the Charities in the first year of their membership. This augurs well for the future prosperity of the lodge, and although this may be, strictly speaking, a non-banqueting lodge, yet they had never met without partaking of refreshment, and enjoying the presence of visitors at their social board. Each visitor responded to his health, expressing themselves pleased with the reception they had received, and wishing the continued prosperity of the lodge and the health of its members. The Tyler's toast brought this pleasant and enjoyable meeting to a close, every one looking forward to the time to meet again.

INSTRUCTION.

METROPOLITAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1507).—A meeting of this new lodge of instruction was held on the 5th inst., the meeting being to found a lodge under the warrant of the Metropolitan Lodge (No. 1507). There were present: Bros. T. Adams, P.M., P.G.P., as Preceptor; James Willing, Junr., W.M. 1507, and J.W. 177, Treasurer; W. M. Stiles, Hon. Sec.; Coulton, Tims, Michael, Williams, Douglass, Kingham, Side, Cheek, Clarke, Gilbert, Scales, Carter, Jones, and others. It was decided to meet every Tuesday at seven at the place where the first meeting was held, the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville-road, King's Cross. The third degree was then worked by Bro. Willing, and Bro. T. Adams moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Willing, and congratulated the lodge upon its establishment, the passing of the bye-laws that evening, and the excellent working. With such a beginning, he felt confident the body would prove an important one. An elegant supper, provided by the Metropolitan Club authorities, followed.

STOCKPORT.—CHAPTER OF STONE OF FRIENDSHIP, EZEL (No. 287).—The annual meeting for the installation of officers of this chapter was held on Thursday, the 21st January, at the Dog and Partridge Inn, Stockport, when the following companions were installed in the several offices—viz., H. I. Carrington, Z.; William Grotorex, H.; John Nield, J.; John Turner, E.; A. W. Graham, N.; William Shepherd, P.S.; Thomas Newton, 1st A.S. and Treasurer; Charles Booth, 2nd A.S.; and William Dean, Janitor. The installation ceremony was performed in a most able and impressive manner by Comp. James Hall, P.P. 1st A.S., East Lancashire, assisted by Comp. J. H. Sillitoe, P.Z., and Thomas Brooks, J. 323. This chapter, which has for a long period been comparatively inactive, has recently had new life infused into it, and is now making rapid progress. A considerable addition has been made to its members, and a new and complete suite of furniture and regalia purchased. The latter, which was furnished by Comp. George Kenning, attracted the attention and admiration of the visitors, and greatly contributed to the beauty and impressiveness of the ceremony. The brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. During the evening Comp. William Shepherd, P.S., gave the history of the chapter, so far as could be gathered from the minute books. He said he very much regretted that the minute books prior to the year 1796 had either been lost or mislaid; also, that the minutes since that date had not been more fully recorded, as, in the majority of instances, they were merely records of the opening and closing, and afforded very little information concerning the inner life of the chapter. Respecting the name of the chapter, he said that he had been very frequently twitted about it, especially at the last Provincial meeting, when he was asked, "What is Ezel?" and "Why Stone of Friendship?" But when explained, the beauty of its signification and its perfect appropriateness generally surprised the inquirer. In perusing the sacred writings, or the records of travels in the East, the numerous instances in which stones are mentioned as being used as signs, tokens, and memorials of remarkable events, or of particular customs, cannot fail to attract our attention. But the custom of giving a stone as a token of friendship is, probably, one of the most interesting; and it was, doubtless, from this custom that the name of the chapter was derived. The Rev. H. Blunt, in his "Lectures on the Seven Churches of Asia," alluding to this custom, remarks:—"In primitive times, when travelling was rendered difficult by the want of places of public entertainment, hospitality was exercised by private individuals to a very great extent. Persons who had partaken of this hospitality, and those who practised it, frequently contracted habits of regard and friendship for each other, and it became a well established custom, both among the Greeks and Romans, to provide their guest with some particular mark, which was handed down from father to son, and insured hospitality and kind treatment wherever it was presented. This mark was usually a small stone or pebble, cut in half, and upon the halves of which the host and the guest mutually inscribed their names, and then interchanged them with each other. The production of this stone was quite sufficient to insure friendship for themselves, or their descendants, whenever they travelled again in the same direction; while it is evident that these stones required to be privately kept, and the name written upon them carefully concealed, lest others should obtain the privileges, instead of him for whom they were intended." From this short account of the Stone of Friendship it will doubtless be perceived that Ezel is the name supposed to be inscribed on the stone, and is taken from 1 Samuel c. xx. v. 19.

KENDAL.—KENDAL CASTLE CHAPTER (No. 129).—The annual convocation of this flourishing chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Stramond Gate, Kendal, at high twelve on Thursday, January 28th. The chapter was opened in due form by E. Comps. C. G. Thomson, M.E.Z.; T. Wilson, H.; H. Rautmel, J.; assisted by M.E. Comps. Col. Whitwell, M.P., P.Z., P.G.P.S. of England; John Bowes, P.Z., P. Prov. G.S.B.; John Holme, P.Z.; William Dodd, P.Z.; and others. There was a numerous attendance of companions, and amongst the visitors Comp. Thomas Tunstall, Asst. Soj. Chapter of Elias Ashmole, 148. On the invitation of the M.E.Z., E. Comp. Bowes assumed the chair of Z., and announced that Bros. John Talbot and Godfrey had been duly elected at the previous convocation and were now in attendance, and bade the P.S. to do his duty. In due course the two brethren were introduced, and solemnly and duly exalted, the acting M.E.Z. being most efficiently assisted by the P.S., Comp. Nelson. After the transaction of some routine business M.E. Comp. Colonel Whitwell presented the Principals elect, Comps. T. Wilson, H. Rautmel, and the Rev. Canon Ware, to E. Comp. Bowes, as Installing Principal, for the benefit of installation, after which they were addressed and retired and afterwards severally admitted into solemn conclaves of Installed Principals according to ancient custom. The newly-elected officers were then invested, and, on the completion of the ceremonies, M.E. Comp. Col. Whitwell proposed in eulogistic terms, a cordial vote of thanks to the Installing Principal for his arduous and valuable services that day. The chapter was then duly closed.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (TIME IMMÉMORIAL).—The members of this ancient lodge met on summons from the W.M., at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, January 27th. At 8 p.m. Bro. Thomson, W.M., opened the lodge, with the aid of the following officers:—V.W. Bros. Dr. H. Hopkins, Past J.W. of Grand Lodge of England, acting as I.P.M.; Bros. Keene, S.W.; James Dutton, J.W.; Thomas Jelley, M.O.; John Dutton, S.O.; Major Preston, J.O.; Money Penny, S.D.; Rubie, J.D.; Mitchell, I.G. The circular of summons was read, and also the minutes of the last lodge meeting held in April, 1874, which latter were confirmed. Before the commencement of the business of the evening, the W.M. addressed the meeting very feelingly and appropriately on two melancholy events—first, the sudden death of Bro. Carter, a very old Mason and the Tyler of the Cumberland Mark Lodge; and within the last week that of the Countess of Carnarvon, wife of the highly esteemed Pro Grand Master of England and Prov. G.M. of Somerset. The first business on the list of agenda was a ballot for V.W. Bro. Dr. Hopkins as a joining member, on the proposition of the W.M. and the Secretary, which proved unanimous in his favour. Of course he left the room during the ballot, after having offered inspection of his numerous credentials. On his return he appropriately thanked the brethren for their hearty reception of him among them, and presented to the lodge a copy of his published musical ritual for the Mark degree. A ballot was taken for Bro. Gazzard, as a candidate for advancement, which proved favourable, but it was necessary to defer the ceremony, for though it was his intention to be present, public official duties had required his attention elsewhere. A lengthy discussion arose in reference to the bye-laws, which it appears were drawn up sixteen years ago, but were never circulated, and only one copy can be found. On the proposition of Bro. Rubie, seconded by Bro. James Dutton, a committee, consisting of the W.M., the acting I.P.M., and the Secretary, was appointed to revise them, as they appear unsuitable in many respects under altered circumstances, and to present them in the amended form for consideration at the next meeting to be held on the last Thursday in February, with a view to their adoption, if possible, from the period of the installation of the new W.M. in April. The W.M., not feeling very well, requested the acting I.P.M. to take his chair, which he did, and finally closed the lodge at 10.30 p.m.

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—ADAM'S MARK LODGE (No. 6).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Mile Town, on the 27th January, the business being the installation of Bro. S. L. Townsend, Prov. G.J.O., the W.M. elect, and investing the officers for the ensuing year. The brethren met at three o'clock p.m., when a goodly number attended. The lodge was honoured with the presence of Bro. F. Binckes, Grand Secretary, who came expressly from London to perform the installation ceremony; likewise Bro. J. L. Ellerme, Prov. G.S.W.; and L. Finch, Prov. G. Treasurer, from Ramsgate, represented the Provincial Grand Lodge; and Bro. W. Ord, P.M. of the Irish Constitution. The installation ceremony was performed in a most excellent and impressive manner, much to the satisfaction and delight of the brethren, when the following brethren were appointed and invested as the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year:—Bro. A. Spears, Prov. G. Reg. of Marks, S.W.; Bro. J. Bagshaw, Prov. G. Assist. Sec., J.W.; Bro. W. J. Carpenter, Prov. G. Swordbearer, M.O.; Bro. G. Beckwith, S.O.; Bro. W. Pannel, J.O.; Bro. T. F. Firminger, Sec. and Reg. of Marks; Bro. Alfred Oyston, Treasurer; Bro. J. Nixon, S.D.; Bro. C. Perkins, J.D.; Bro. G. Wager, I.G.; and Bro. W. Foster, Tyler. The lodge having passed through a season of trial and difficulties, death having taken away the principal officers, was left without either Master or Past Master; but by the kind assistance of Bro. F. Binckes, G. Sec., and the Prov. G.M.M., and officers of Prov. G. Mark L. of Kent, the brethren now see before them a season of prosperity, and hope by their energy and zeal in carrying out the grand principles of the Order, Adam's Mark Lodge, No. 6, will not only be the oldest lodge in the Province, but also the most efficient in its working, as a great part of the officers are Past Masters of the Craft, viz., S.W., J.W., M.O., S.O., J.O., there can be no doubt as to the success of this Mark Lodge ruled by such officers. The ceremony of installation being concluded, Bro. A. Spears, S.W., in a short address, expressing the pleasure of the brethren at the presence of the Grand Secretary and Prov. Grand Officers, thanking them for the trouble they had taken in visiting the lodge, proposed a cordial vote of thanks to them and to be recorded in the minutes of this meeting; also hat Bro. F. Binckes, G. Sec., Bro. J. L. Ellerme, Prov. G.S.W., and Bro. L. Finch, Prov. G. Treas-suror, be requested to allow their names to be put on the roll of the lodge as honorary members, which was seconded by Bro. J. Bagshaw, J.W., and unanimously adopted by the brethren. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. F. Binckes gave an explanation of some of the most important principles and ceremonies of the order. Bros. J. L. Ellerme and L. Finch also addressed the brethren. The lodge was then closed in due form. Bro. F. Binckes, G.S., then left to proceed to London, to fulfil other engagements, by the five o'clock train, much to the regret of the brethren, who were deprived of his company at the banquet. The brethren then proceeded to the Britannia Inn, to a banquet provided by Mrs. Green, widow of the late Bro. Green, in the usual excellent style. After doing full justice to the excellent viands, and the cloth removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and duly honoured; when with speeches from the Provincial brethren, and harmony from the musical brothers, the evening was spent in a very enjoyable manner, while each felt sorry to part, but, happily, to meet again.

LEICESTER.—FOWKE LODGE (No. 19).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this large and prosperous lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, the 28th ult. Bro. J. M. MacAllister, W.M., Prov. G.Sec., in the chair, supported by Bros. W. Wear, I.P.M.; G. Toller, jun., S.W.; C. Stretton, P.G. Steward, J.W.; J. H. Garner, Treas., and other officers. There were also present:—Bros. Partridge, P.M., P.J.G.W.; Duff, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.W.; J. Wright Smith, G. Odell, and several others. The lodge having been opened by the W.M., and the minutes read and approved, the ballot was taken for Bros. J. W. Noble, and G. Flanagan as candidates for advancement, both of whom were elected. The next business on the agenda paper was to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year, and upon the ballot being taken, the votes of the members were found to be unanimous in favour of the Senior Warden, Bro. G. Toller, jun., whose zeal, ability, and efficiency cannot fail to secure to the lodge a continuance and increase of the prosperity which it has so long enjoyed. The W.M. elect has already filled the chief offices in all the other Masonic degrees practised in this province, and last year he occupied the office of G.S.W. in the Craft Provincial Grand Lodge, thus proving that he is well qualified for the chair of this Mark lodge. Bro. J. H. Garner was re-elected Treasurer, and a resolution was unanimously passed, thanking him for his regular attendance and able services during the past year. Bros. Sculthorpe, Wykes, and Odell were elected an audit committee, and this concluding the regular business, the lodge resolved itself into a Lodge of Instruction, when the ceremony of advancement was practised, under the direction of the W.M. Apologies for absence having been received from Bro. W. Kelly, R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M., and other brethren, the lodge was closed, and the brethren proceeded to refreshment, the remainder of the evening being spent in the greatest harmony.

Scotland.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.—The regular quarterly communication of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall on 28th ult. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson, of Queenshill, R.W.M., Bro. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G.M., presided, and there were present Bros. J. B. Walker, P.G. Treasurer; T. Halket, P.G.S.D.; George Thallon, P.G.J.D.; Alexander Bain, P.G.B.B.; R. Robb, P.G. Marshal; John Fraser, P.G. Assistant-Marshal; James Balfour, P.G. Dir. of Cer.; J. Gillies, P.G.S.B.; and a large number of members and visiting brethren of the Craft. Bro. Bell, R.W.M. 34, occupied the S.W.'s chair, and Bro. McDonald, R.W.M. 73, that of the J.W. Before entering upon the business the presiding brother read notes of apology from the R.W.P.G.M. and the Vice-Chaplain, Bro. Rev. Dr. Penny. The Deputy-Master then explained at some length his reasons for retiring from active duty, stating that from his long connection with the P.G.L. and the fact that the principal duties in connection with his work—especially those of the annual visitations—had fallen upon himself, he found it necessary, for a time at least, to seek for a measure of repose and seclusion. The billet of business for the consideration of the meeting contained the following items:—First, minutes of the P.G.L. and P.G.L. committees; second, installation of office-bearers; third, appointment of P.G.L. committee and convener; fourth, appointment of auditors; and fifth, consideration of billet of business for Grand Lodge meeting to be held on Monday ensuing. Thereupon, the minutes of former P.G.L. and committees were read and confirmed, and the installation of office-bearers proceeded with, when the following took the oath de fidei:—Bros. J. B. Walker, Treasurer; James Gillies, S.D.; Geo. Thallon, J.D.; A. Bain, P.G.B.B.; James Ritchie, Architect; A. Allison Jeweller; R. Robb, Grand Marshal; J. Fraser, Assistant Marshal; James Balfour, Dir. of Cer.; William Phillips, S.B.; A. A. Smith, I.G.; and J. B. Hardie, O.G. The acting P.G.M. performed the ceremony of the installation in a very interesting and efficient manner. Thereafter, the P.G. Secretary moved that the P.G. committee should consist, as formerly, of the office-bearers of P.G.L. and the several Masters of lodges in the province; and that Bro. William Bell, 34, should be appointed convener. After some discussion, the motion was unanimously agreed to. The following brethren were then, on the motion of the P.G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart), appointed the Benevolent Fund Committee, viz.:—Bros. Walker, Gillies, Thallon, Bain, Fraser, Balfour, Phillips, Smith, Bell, McTaggart, and Geo. Sinclair—the last named to be Treasurer and convener of committee. The following brethren were appointed auditors:—John Wallace, J. M. Olliver, and John Munro; Bro. Walker being empowered to appoint a meeting, and summon auditors. As there appeared to be nothing of urgent importance on the billet of business for Grand Lodge meeting, there was no discussion thereanent, and the P.G.L. was closed in proper form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF RENFREWSHIRE EAST.—A meeting of this lodge was held, on 30th ult., in the hall of Paisley St. Mirren Lodge, No. 129. There was a large attendance. Bro. Jas. Caldwell, P.G. Junior Warden, in the absence of the P.G.M., Bro. Colonel Campbell, presided, and the duties of S.W. were discharged by Bro. W. Ferguson, Royal Arch 116, Rutherglen; and J. W. by Bro. John Peters, Royal Arch 153, Pollokshaws. The Secretary, Bro. R. L. Henderson, read a communication from Bro. A. Warnock, Secretary of St. John's Operative Lodge, No. 347, Rutherglen, asking permission to allow Bro. John Cunningham, the R.W.M. of that lodge, to lay the foundation-stone of a new hall with Masonic honours, and invite deputations. The communication stated that the St. John's Lodge had formed themselves into a company (limited) to raise funds to erect this hall, and that it was in the course of erection in Cathcart-street, Rutherglen, the estimated cost being £1,400. As Bro. Cunningham had originated the scheme, and shown great zeal in carrying it out, it was earnestly hoped permission would be granted. A long discussion took place relative to the letter, after which, on a division, the permission was granted by 11 to 9. It was agreed afterwards to allow Royal Arch Lodge No. 153, Pollokshaws, to hold meetings in a new hall, to which they had removed, till such time as the consecration of it could be arranged for. The nomination of office-bearers to be elected by the lodge was then proceeded with as follows:—Bros. James Brown, Treasurer 129; Alex. McLeod, S.D. 129; A. Wallace, 129; J. B. Lamb, Architect 129; ex-Bailie Fisher, B.B. 370; J. Buchanan, S.D. 116; R. F. McGibbon, D.M. 129; J. Carswell, Marshal 129; Smillie, Assistant Marshal 307; Alexander McPherson, Standard-Bearer; Alex. Morrison, S.S. 129; George Masson, J.S. 370; Forrest, I.G.; W. Alexander, Tyler; H. S. Edmonds and Alex. McPherson, Conveners, jointly.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The usual bi-monthly meeting of this large and important lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 2nd February, 1875, Bros. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., presiding; John D. Young, S.W.; David Horne, J.W. There were also present, Bros. Thos. Fletcher, I.P.M.; J. B. Walker, P.M.; D. M. Nelson, D. M.; R. B. Dalzell, Treasurer; John Dick, Secretary; and the remaining officers in their respective places, with a large attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren, including Bros. D. Paul, R.W.M.; A. S. McBride, P.M.; W. Sinclair, H. McGregor, Jas. Scobbie, as a deputation from Lodge Leven St. John, No. 170. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, and the lodge raised to F.C., and the following brethren received this degree, D. Adam, J. B. McCallum, J. L. Cowan, and S. Adam, the ceremony being performed in a most impressive manner by Bro. Thos. B. Bell. The following brethren were then raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bros. Jas. Paterson, Robert McConnel, J. Reid, A. Cameron, Robt. Reid, D. Montgomery, D. Adam, J. B. McCallum, J. L. Cowan, and S. Adam—Bro. A. S. McBride, P.M., and the Wardens of Lodge Leven St. John, No. 170, officiating. Bro. Gibson, Caledonian Railway 354, and Bro. W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), were then proposed for affiliation into Lodge St. John, No. 34, which was carried unanimously—the ceremony of affiliation being performed by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell. Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., proposed a vote of thanks to the deputation from Lodge Leven St. John for the very valuable assistance they had rendered to Lodge St. John, No. 34, at this meeting, which was carried unanimously. Bro. A. S. McBride, P.M. 170, replied in a neat and impressive speech on behalf of Lodge Leven St. John. Bro. J. D. Deacon, S.W., addressed the chair, and said that it gave him much pleasure to propose that a Past Master's jewel be presented to Bro. Thos. Fletcher, I.P.M., and not only to him but to all Past Masters of Lodge St. John, No. 34—to show a mark of appreciation to brothers who had held such an honourable position. Bro. D. M. Nelson warmly supported this motion, which met with the entire approval of the lodge. There being no further business the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, and, with the aid of harmony, the evening was passed most pleasantly.

An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Saturday afternoon, 6th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. William Bell, occupied the chair, supported on the dais by Past Masters J. B. Walker and Thos. Fletcher, and Bro. Thos. Halket, P.M. 102. There were also present Bros. Jno. D. Young, S.W.; David Horne, J.W.; Peter Brownlie, S.D.; and Jno. Dick, Sec. The lodge having been opened on the first degree, the following candidates were duly initiated at the hands of the R.W.M.:—Jno. Rutherford, Jno. Gilliland, and Wm. Muir Scott. Thereafter these brethren were passed to the Fellow Craft degree by Bro. Jno. Dick; and finally raised the sublime degree of Master Mason by Bro. Thos. Halket, as was also at the same time Bro. A. F. McFarlane. This concluded the business.

DUNFERMLINE.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 26).—The brethren of the above lodge met in their lodge-room, Maygate-street, on Monday, 25th ult., at 8 p.m. The lodge was opened by Bro. Lindsey, R.W.M., assisted by Bro. Cook, R.W.M. of Crossgates Lodge. There was a large attendance of the brethren of the lodge. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and approved of, after which Mr. Leapulous Mace and Mr. Thos. Reynolds, candidates for initiation, were approved of. They were duly initiated by the R.W.M., who also gave them the charge in the first degree. Subsequently the newly-initiated brothers addressed the R.W.M., Officers, and brethren very neatly and feelingly, expressing their appreciation of the honour they had received, and their desire to prove themselves worthy of it. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren then adjourned to refreshment to Bro. Blyth's, where the rest of the evening was spent in song and sentiment. A special meeting was held on Thursday, 28th ult. The lodge was opened by Bro. Wilson, Treasurer, assisted by Bro. Robertson, D.M., and Wardens, and brethren, owing to indisposition of Bro. Lindsey, R.W.M., who could not attend. Bro. Mace and Reynolds were passed to the Fellow-Craft, and raised to the degree of Master Masons. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form, when the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment to Bro. Blyth's. The health of the newly-made brothers of the lodge was given and responded to. A most pleasant evening was passed, and as the hour of eleven drew on, the brethren separated. We must not omit to remark that some capital songs were sung by Bros. Mace and Reynolds, and other brethren of the lodge, and visiting brethren of Lodge Union, 250.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Thursday, the 4th inst., Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., presiding; Bros. A. Bain, P.M., acting S.W.; G. McComb, J.W.; Archibald McTaggart, D.M. There were also present:—Bro. John Munro, R.W.M., Lodge Commercial, No. 360; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a goodly number of brethren of the lodge and visitors. The lodge was opened by Bro. D. Butler, R.W.M., the minutes read and confirmed. The Secretary then read a letter from a brother in England, stating that Bro. Joseph John Basoine, a member of Lodge St. Mungo, No. 27 S.C., was in a state of destitution, caused by total blindness. Bro. Dugald Butler, in reference to this letter, called upon the brethren to exercise that great principle of Freemasonry, Charity, and made a motion that Lodge St. Mungo should vote £5 and recommend another £5 from the Provincial Benevolent Fund, to meet Bro. Basoine's present wants. This motion was received unanimously. Bro. Archibald McTaggart, D.M., in an able, painstaking, and correct style, initiated Messrs. John Brownie McNichol and Peter McNichol into the mysteries and the privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Bros. J. C. Auld and Geo. Miller were then raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons, the ceremony being performed in a most solemn and impressive manner by Bro. John Munro, R.W.M. No. 360, and Bro. A. Bain, P.M. No. 27. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, at 213, Buchanan-street, on 25th ult., the R.W.M., Bro. Jas. F. Mitchell, presiding, beside whom on the dais was Bro. John Munro, R.W.M. 360. The lodge having been opened, a candidate was duly vouched for, Joseph Allmark, and received the first degree at the hands of the R.W.M. There being no further business, the lodge was closed. On the following day an emergency meeting was held, at which Bro. Allmark was passed to the degree of Fellow-Craft, and thereafter raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, the working of both being performed by the R.W.M. in a markedly efficient manner.

On Friday, 29th ult., a harmony meeting in connection with this lodge was held within their hall in Buchanan-street, when the first of a series of lectures on "important social subjects" was delivered by Bro. John Smith, Secretary of the lodge. The chair was occupied by the R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, with whom, on the dais, were Bros. Thos. Halket, William Bell, R.W.M. 34; and Thomas Fletcher, P.M. 34. The lodge having been opened and adjourned to refreshment, the Chairman said there was no necessity for him to say much in introducing Bro. Smith to them. He was known as a most efficient Mason and a most efficient accountant, so that would be all right. He (the chairman) was sure he spoke the mind of them all, that a series of lectures given in a Masonic hall would meet with a most hearty reception. Some years ago they had a series there, which were very successful, and he did not see why they should not be so now. If they merely met there night after night to see people brought from darkness to light, there would be a sameness about their proceedings which such a feature as these lectures would tend to obviate. Referring to the fact that the proceeds of collection to be made on each lecture night are to go to the cause of charity, the Chairman said that such lectures ought, by every right-thinking Mason, to be most heartily supported. He then introduced Bro. Smith, who proceeded with the lecture, the subject of which was "Millions of Money for the Million; or how Life Assurance can be made doubly sure, and become a great Monetary Medium for the People." The lecture was divided into four parts, during the intervals between which some excellent songs were given by Bros. Halket, Robert Fraser, and others. A second lecture, in continuation of the same subject, is to be given by Bro. Smith, on 16th inst., and the future arrangements include also two lectures on "Music" and "The Drama," with illustrations, and one by the R.W.M. (Bro. Mitchell) entitled "Down a Coal Pit."

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION AND CROWN (No. 103).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on 25th ult., the R.W.M. in the chair. The lodge having opened in the E.A. degree, the following candidates, all duly vouched for, were initiated into the mysteries of the order by Bro. George Muir, D.M., viz.: Messrs. John Arkison, Thos. Murphy, William Murray, Peter Thos. Ewing, and Andrew Robertson. Thereafter, Bros. Alex. Bain, jun., Edward Wylie, and John Dunlop, were raised from Fellow-Craft to the sublime degree by Bro. Alex. Bain, P.M.; who also performed the ceremony of installing Bro. David Murray as S.M. of the lodge. There being no further business, the lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 170, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, 1st inst., Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. J. Balfour, acting S.W.; Murray, acting J.W.; R. Mitchell, P.M.; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and several other brethren and visitors present. The minutes of last meeting, Auditor's report, and application for Bro. Hutcheson, who received the E.A. degree on the 7th Dec. last, to be passed to F.C., and raised to M.M., read and confirmed, the ceremonies of passing and raising were carried out in a most impressive manner. Fellow-Craft by the R.W.M., Bro. J. Macnair; M.M. by Bro. Robt. Mitchell. The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541).—On Monday, 25th ult., the members of this thriving young lodge held festival in their hall, Queen's Park Rooms, Crosshill. The occasion being an open one, they enjoyed the company of their wives, sweethearts, and friends; and there would be about forty couples on the floor when dancing was commenced, about half-past eight o'clock. The hall was kept up with unflagging spirit for nearly three hours, when the company sat down to a recherche supper, the R.W.M., Bro. J. D. Porteous, occupying the chair. Justice having been done to the good things upon the table, the chairman gave in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince of Wales," and "The Three Grand Lodges," all of which were duly pledged. Provost Brown, Crosshill, then proposed "The Lodge of Marie Stuart," expressing his gratification at the establishment of a lodge in the burgh, and one composed of so respectable a class of members. The toast was coupled with the name of the R.W.M., who, in replying, adverted to the necessity that had existed for a lodge in the district, and to the gratifying degree of prosperity to which "Marie Stuart" had already attained. In the course of some remarks about Masonry generally, he referred to the department of charity, in regard to which he regretted having to admit that Scotland was distinctly behind her sister countries. He hoped, however, shortly to be in a position to say that something tangible had been done to remove this reproach. In concluding, and for the benefit of the ladies, he declared that a good Mason made a good sweetheart, husband, and father, and he would add, a wise and good believer in the Divine Architect. The other toasts were "The Memory of Burns," by Bro. Fyfe; "The Ladies," by Bro. Mason, and replied to, on their behalf, by Bro. Renton; and "The Committee," by Bro. Martin, replied to by Bro. Julius Brodie, S.M. Thereupon dancing was resumed, and continued by the younger and more enthusiastic of the company till about four a.m., the occasion having been a much agreeable and successful one throughout. We have to add that, in the course of the evening, Bro. S. Findlater, late Treasurer, was presented by the R.W.M., on behalf of the lodge, with a handsome writing-desk, in recognition of services rendered by him to the lodge during the period he held office.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall on 3rd inst. Bro. Jas. Shaw, R.W.M., occupied the chair, there being present also Bros. A. A. Smith, P.M.; Wm. H. Caldwell, S.M.; Jno. W. Stafford, S.W.; A. Dougall, acting J.W.; and Wm. R. Dunn, Secretary. The lodge having been opened in the first degree, it was proposed by Bro. Stafford, seconded by the R.W.M., and unanimously agreed to, that the sum of £2 be voted from the lodge funds to the widow of the late Bro. Robertson. Thereafter there appeared four candidates for initiation, viz.: Jas. Reid, Geo. G. Faircloth, Jas. Ritchie, and Wm. Sutherland Browne, who each received the first, and subsequently the Fellow-Craft degrees at the hands of the R.W.M. The following brethren were then affiliated as members of No. 354 by P.M. Bro. A. A. Smith:—Bros. Wm. White, and Hector Stewart, of Lodge St. Mary, Caledonian Operative (No. 339), Inverness; George Scott Hendry, of Lodge St. Mungo (No. 27); and Jno. Waggett, of Lodge St. Vincent (No. 553).

On Saturday, 6th inst., an emergency meeting of the lodge was held, at which the R.W.M. (Bro. Shaw) presided, and present Bros. John Stafford, S.W.; A. B. Ferguson, J.W.; and Wm. R. Dunn, Secretary. The lodge having been opened, passed, and raised to the sublime degree, that degree was conferred upon the following brethren, viz.:—Bros. Alexander McPherson, James Tulloch, Alexander McDonald, R. A. McLean, James Reid, George G. Faircloth, James Ritchie, and William S. Browne. Thereafter the lodge was reduced to the first degree, when John Paterson was duly initiated into the mysteries of the craft. The lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, 5th inst., with a very large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The R.W.M., Bro. John Munro, presiding; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; Thos. Graham, Acting J.W.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The business before the lodge being several motions which had stood over for discussion, and in accordance with the bye-laws, which were satisfactorily settled. This being all the business, the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOLE (No. 413).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 26th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. John Wallace, occupied the chair, with Bros. Colin McKenzie and Daniel Leeds as S.W. and J.W. respectively. Three candidates came forward for initiation—John Balfour, Thomas Pearson, and William Mathieson; and, being all duly recommended, they received the first degree at the hands of Bro. William Bell, R.W.M., St. John, 34. Thereafter, the R.W.M. mentioned that he had had a conversation with the R.W.M. of St. Mark's with reference to the cleaning of the hall in which they met, when the brother stated that the delay in having this done had been unavoidable, but that it would be seen to forthwith. Bro.

James Louttit referred to the bye-law of the lodge bearing upon the initiation of members, and suggested that, in accordance with the same, in future the ballot should in every case be used. This was agreed to. It was thereafter agreed that the annual supper of the lodge be held in Bro. Galloway's restaurant on Friday, the 26th inst.; and, there being no further business, the lodge was duly closed.

GOVAN.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 437).—This lodge met on 2nd inst., in the hall of Portland-buildings, Govan. The R.W.M., Bro. John McFarlane, presided; supported by Bros. Jno. Miller, D.M.; and John Hutchinson, S.M. There was a very good turn-out of the brethren, and the lodge having been opened on the E.A. degree, William Alexander received that degree at the hands of Bro. Miller, and, it being a case of emergency, was thereafter passed to the degree of F.C., and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. There being no other business on the card, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553).—A meeting of this lodge was held on 4th inst., in the hall, at 162, Kent-road. Bro. Robert McDougall, R.W.M., presided; with Bro. Malcolm Stark, D.M.; William Wilson, acting S.W.; Hunter, J.W.; Jno. McLellan, Treas.; and Joseph Halley, Sec. Among the visiting brethren present were Bros. William Bell, R.W.M., No. 34; Jno. D. Young, S.W. No. 34; and David Lamb, D.M. No. 360. The following candidates, duly recommended, then received the E.A. degree at the hands of Bro. D. Lamb:—George Bruce, Thos. McLean, William McGhee, John Shields, John Small, Wm. Russell, Thos. Liddell, and T. B. Barrett. There being no further business, the lodge was thereafter duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The usual fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held on 1st inst. in their new premises, 106, Rose-street, Southside, the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Phillips, presided, there being present Bros. Dr. Russell, D.M.; John McNaught, S.M.; Jno. B. McNaught, S.W.; and Jno. Howie, J.W. The lodge having been opened on the E.A. degree, the following candidates appeared, and were duly initiated by the R.W.M., viz.: John Heron and Joseph Granger, members of the band of the 64th regiment, at present quartered here; Jas. Whitehead, Jas. Smith, Joseph Glen, and Jas. F. Murray. Bro. John Cloggie, Lodge 275, was affiliated a member of 556 by the R.W.M. The gratifying announcement was made by the chairman, that the committee expected that their new hall would be ready for occupation within a month. They were having it fitted up something after the style of the Star Lodge (219) Hall in Trongate, and he thought they would find themselves very comfortable in it. The lodge thereafter adjourned from labour to refreshment, when, after the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," and "The Last Laid Stones of 556" had been duly honoured, "Prosperity to Lodge Clydesdale" was very neatly proposed by Bro. Johnstone, 34. The toast was coupled with the name of the R.W.M., who, in replying, adduced as a proof that a lodge on the south side had been a felt want, that although the year was only a month old, they had already made no fewer than twelve Masons since its commencement. In looking out for and securing their new premises, they had no doubt incurred considerable expense and trouble, but in amends for that he had no doubt that in future they should have a comfortable home. He might add that the support he had received from his office-bearers had given him a great deal of encouragement throughout, and he knew that so long as it remained so they would be prosperous and successful. At any rate, whatever man could do they intended to do, and man could do no more.

CONSECRATION OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (1524).

A new lodge was consecrated at the Sisters Tavern, Pownall-road, Haggerston, on Friday the 29th ult., by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Secretary, Middlesex, the officer deputed for the purpose by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.

The Lodge was duly opened after the brethren had entered in procession, by the Consecrating Master, assisted by Bros. J. Brett, P.G.M., as S.W.; I. Boyd, P.G.P., as J.W.; J. Emmens, P.G.P., as P.M.; H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas. (Middlesex), as D.C.; and W. Stephens, P.M. No. 1365; W.M. No. 1489, as I.G.

The beautiful consecration service was then proceeded with, accompanied by anthems under the direction of Bro. Knight Smith, who conducted the musical arrangements most admirably. At the conclusion of this important ceremony, Bro. W. H. Lee, J.W., No. 975, the W.M. Designate, was presented for installation, and after the customary observances, he was installed in the chair of K.S., and saluted accordingly.

The officers were then invested as follows: Bros. T. C. Chapman, S.W.; Henry Lister, J.W.; B. Meyer, Treas. (elected); Neville Green, Secretary; J. B. Shackleton, S.D.; I. Symes, J.D.; G. J. Baker, I.G. The addresses were then delivered by Bros. Little and Boyd.

Five names for initiation were then proposed, and the rank of Honorary Members was conferred upon Bros. Little, Brett, Boyd, and Buss, who suitably acknowledged the compliment, and the Lodge was closed.

The brethren afterwards sat down to a splendid repast, to which ample justice was done. When the cloth was cleared, the loyal, national, and Masonic toasts were heartily given and received.

The W.M. proposed the health of the Consecrating Master, Bro. Wentworth Little, who, in responding, proposed the W.M.'s health—better health—and prosperity to the Lodge. The toast was enthusiastically greeted with a brilliant Masonic fire. Bro. Lee, although evidently suffering severe pain from a recent accident, responded readily and happily to the toast. For the Visitors Bros.

Gompertz, P.M., P. Prov. G.P. Herts, and W. Stephens, replied in appreciative terms.

The W.M. announced that Bro. Shackleton, S.D., had kindly undertaken a Stewardship for the Girls' School, and called upon the brethren to drink success to the charities. Bros. Little and Shackleton returned thanks. Soon after this the company separated, highly delighted with the success of the proceedings.

We may add that Bro. Knight Smith presided at the pianoforte during the evening, and accompanied the brethren in several well-rendered songs.

The following were present in addition to those already named: C. W. Baker; J. Green, J.W. 27; E. Somers, S.W. 1489; E. H. Pendergrass, 907; J. Redman, 25; R. Wyatt, J.D. 1314; C. R. Miles, P.M. 1365; C. B. Payne; J. Bingham, S.W. 55; R. Philp.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

The Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Middlesex and Surrey was held on Saturday last at the Bridge House Hotel, London Bridge. The Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. Colonel Burdett, presided. Bros. F. Davison, Deputy Provincial Grand Master; the Rev. D. Shaboe, Grand Chaplain; Roebuck, G.S.W.; Major Barlow, as J.W.; Stephen C. Dibdin, Secretary; D. M. Dewar, J.O., as M.O.; Capt. Burgess, as G.O.; Meggy, as J.O.; W. E. Brighten, S.D.; Colonel W. Wigginton, J.D.; Thos. Moore, D.C.; C. T. Sparks, Sword-Bearer; F. H. Cozen, G.Organist; G. W. Verry and Nath. J. Bassett, Stewards; Thos. R. Parker; W. Worrell, P.G.Org.; Arthur W. Hall, Chaplain No. 7; H. A. Dubois, S.W. 176; M. S. Larham, S.O. 139; W. Allport, 144; Rev. D. J. Drakeford, P.G. Chaplain; Capt. Geo. Barlow, P. Prov. G. J.W.; Dr. Ramsay, Carnarvon; Rudolph G. Glover, Carnarvon; E. B. Webb, Carnarvon; A. Solomon, Carnarvon; Gilbert J. Smallpiece; W. Klingenstein, 22; Thos. Meggy, P.G.M.O.; Joseph Spencer, 22; H. Massey (Freemason), were also present.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, Bro. Moore, Prov. G.D.C., called upon the brethren to salute the Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, the Grand Wardens, Overseers, and other officers. The same was done, and the Prov. Grand Master thanked the brethren for the warmth with which he and his officers had been received.

Bro. Dibdin, Prov. G. Secretary, then read the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge, which were put and confirmed. Bon Accord, Keystone, St. Mark's, Mallet and Chisel, Carnarvon, Hiram, Samson and Lion, Macdonald, Percy, Northumberland, Panmure, Grosvenor, and Era Lodges were called over, and the members of several of them answered.

The Provincial Grand Master then rose, and said that the special business of this meeting was the nomination of a Prov. Grand Master for the ensuing three years. Any one present could nominate whom he thought fit, and he would be happy if a brother would nominate some one other than he who now occupied the post. He had held that office himself for three years, but as the brethren were about to nominate a Grand Master he would leave the lodge while the nomination took place. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master would therefore take the chair until they had made their choice.

Colonel Burdett accordingly retired, and Bro. Davison took the chair.

Bro. Davison having assumed the chair, said that Col. Burdett had held the office of Prov. G.M. for three years, but there was nothing to prevent his being re-nominated. Still it was competent for any brother to propose some one else for the next three years.

Colonel Wigginton thereupon rose, and said he had great pleasure in proposing the re-election of Bro. Col. Burdett as Prov. G.M. for Middlesex and Surrey. He scarcely need say anything in his favour, for he had never met, during his twenty-four years' Masonic experience, with any brother who had thrown himself so heartily into Masonic work as Col. Burdett had. The brethren had nothing to regret in having elected him three years ago as their head.

The Rev. D. Shaboe seconded the nomination. Col. Wigginton had expressed the feelings which he (Bro. Shaboe) entertained, and he might add that he thought it was a wise thing to have a brother to rule over them who so devoted his life to his office. No brother ought to take it unless he could devote his time and energies to it; and he trusted that Col. Burdett would continue to do as he had already done, and that life and health would be granted him to pursue the course of duty which he had laid out for himself.

Bro. Davison said, the election having been unanimous, that a requisition would have to be laid before the Grand Master (Earl Percy) that Col. Burdett might be appointed Prov. Grand Mark Master of Middlesex and Surrey for the ensuing three years. That was the proper course to take.

A deputation then left the body, and acquainted Col. Burdett of his re-election, and returned with him to the lodge, where he was received in due form, and took his seat, after Bro. Davison had conveyed to him in Grand Lodge the information that he had been unanimously elected.

Colonel Burdett said he could not thank the brethren enough for the kind compliments they had paid him. He was happy to see that the Order was flourishing in the province. It had done well already, and he had no doubt, from the support he had, that it would continue to flourish. He would endeavour to perform his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren, and do credit to the recommendation they were about to make to the Grand Master of Mark Masons.

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet, provided by Bro. Joseph Spencer, the proprietor of the Bridge House Hotel. When the banquet was disposed of, the room was close tyled, and grace having been said by Grand Chaplain, the toasts were proposed.

The Provincial Grand Master, in proposing Her Majesty's health, alluded to the illness of Prince Leopold, which had recently been a source of so much concern to the Queen. In giving "The Health of Earl Percy, G.M.M.M.," he regretted that Earl Percy's health had not been good for some time, and he had not been able to preside in Grand Lodge. He believed, on this account, Earl Percy would not allow himself to be put in nomination for another year. In giving "The Health of the Earl of Limerick, Deputy Grand Master, and the Past and Present Grand Officers," Colonel Burdett said that the Earl of Limerick was an excellent Deputy Grand Master, and was well up in Masonic working, for he could testify that he was not only able to perform the duties of Deputy Grand Master, but was also expert at installing. This he could say from his own experience, having recently witnessed his lordship's performance of the ceremony.

The Rev. D. Shaboe replied, and said that all the Grand Officers were willing at all times to come forward to assist in any way they could in the promotion of the welfare of the Craft. With him Mark Masonry was a degree of great importance. It was peculiarly forward in charity, which was a great point among Freemasons.

The Provincial Grand Master said that the next toast "The Provincial Grand Officers," was one he proposed with peculiar pleasure, because it seemed to come nearer home to them than any other; although the other toasts also gave him great pleasure. They were quite aware that the Province of Middlesex and Surrey was a young province. It had however done very well. It was now holding a better position than it had ever done before, but it must do a great deal better. With the assistance of such officers as it now had, he had no doubt it would. They had all done their duty admirably.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Davison, responded, and then proposed "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master." In the early years of a province, great difficulties were encountered, but thanks to the admirable skill of Col. Burdett these difficulties in the Province of Middlesex had been overcome. He hoped that they would shortly meet to instal him, and that on that occasion they would have a good muster of the brethren.

The Provincial Grand Master replied, and said it was very gratifying to him to hear such flattering remarks from the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. He was inclined to think he had spoken too favourably of him. He wished very much for the prosperity of the province, and that by their exertions it might be made a great one. There was one subject which was a matter of much satisfaction to Mark Masons, that all the members admitted to the degree were Masons of great excellence. The officers already appointed had exerted themselves very much for the prosperity of the degree, and he hoped that those who would be hereafter appointed would exert themselves in like manner.

The brethren separated after passing a very pleasant evening.

Obituary.

FUNERAL OF BRO. F. BELL, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., OF THIRSK HALL.

On Tuesday, 26th ult., the inhabitant of Thirsk and district committed to their last resting place in the parish church-yard, with every sentiment of heartfelt regret and sincere respect, the mortal remains of the late Bro. F. Bell, or as his neighbours and friends loved more familiarly to call him—Squire Bell, the Lord of the Manor. Bro. Bell had for years, and since his hospitable occupancy of the hall commenced, been at the head of every movement connected with the old town (which it was ever his pleasure to be identified with) that had for its aim its well-being and prosperity, and no good work or deserving object ever failed to receive his heartiest sympathy and most practical support. It was known that the deceased gentleman suffered from an affection of the heart, still his death, which occurred suddenly last week, at the early age of 44, was an event which came as a great shock, and was felt to be as much a personal as a general loss. The gloom which, without using a mere figure of language, may be said to have pervaded the community of Thirsk and district since the death of the Squire, culminated on Tuesday at the funeral, which was one in every respect worthy of the man. The day will long be remembered as one of the most mournful in the local annals. All classes, and parties, and sects joined together towards rendering the burial one which would testify to the universal respect in which the deceased was held, and which would embody the prevalent feeling that in him the town and neighbourhood is losing one whose place it will indeed be difficult to fill.

The funeral took place at noon, the place of interment being in the family vault, at the north-west side of the churchyard. Nearly every shop and place of business in the town was closed, and the window blinds of private houses were all down. Long before the hour fixed for the funeral cortege to start from the hall, the stream of people churchwards began, and it was to be noticed that in the great majority of instances mourning habiliments had been put on. Had the relatives of the deceased been desirous that the solemn proceedings should be of a private character, though the utmost possible deference would doubtless have been paid to their wishes; still it would have been found impossible to prevent the assemblage of a large crowd who desired in quietness and reverence to see the remains of one so widely esteemed consigned to the tomb. As it was, never—we are given to understand—either in respect of the gathering in and about the church and yard, or of the numbers who actually took part in the burial procession, was there such a scene witnessed at Thirsk. Bro. Bell was, as is well known to the members of the Craft, a Mason, and he had held high office locally and in the province. The members of the lodge were invited by the family to visit the remains of their departed brother, the coffin being removed to the library, and there the usual grand honours were performed. A good many visiting brethren from Northallerton, Ripon, Darlington, and other places were present, and all were supplied with sprigs of acacia, which they wore on their left breasts, afterwards to deposit in the vault. The present Worshipful Master of the home lodge, the Falcon (Bro. Bamlett), was unavoidably absent. His duties were discharged by Bro. John Rhodes, the Senior Warden; Bro. T. J. Wilkinson, the Secretary, acting as Senior Warden. The other members of the lodge present were Bros. G. Anderson, W. Colman, W. Hall, J. Walton, G. Ayre, R. Barnes, J. Harker, R. Musgrave, J. Lee, R. Atkinson, H. Milburn, H. Masterman, R. Barley (Osgodby), W. A. Bourne, C. Greensides, G. Freeman, A. G. Duncombe, N. C. C. Lawton, G. Dinwoodie, C. Easley, A. G. Bleasdale. The following from the Anchor Lodge, Northallerton, were present:—Bros. J. Fairburn, W.M.; G. F. Clarkson, S.W.; G. Oxendale, J.D.; E. Wilkinson, J. Wheldon, junior, W. Hardy, W. Waistell, W. A. Hutchens, J. Walmsley, S. Meynell, and C. Palliser. From the De Grey and Ripon Lodge, Ripon, there were Bros. T. H. Broadwell, W.M.; R. E. (Alderman) Collinson, P.G.S.D.; and F. Bateman, P.M.; from the Restoration Lodge, Darlington, Bros. J. Bailey, P. Prov. G.J.W.; R. Chadwick, P.M.; J. A. Blacklock, S.D.; F. Ness, and T. Bowman. The above-named having earlier on assembled in the new Masonic Hall, opened a few months ago, took up a position in line from the hall gates to the time approaching for the start, and thus formed a guard of honour for the corpse, the mourners, pall-bearers, and the rest of those taking part in the funeral. Inspector Nicholson had a number of police placed at certain points, but there was little confusion to call for interference. Good order and decorum prevailed on the part even of the most thoughtless.

The vicar, the Rev. B. Lamb, headed the procession into the church, he reading with much impressiveness throughout the solemn and effective burial service for the dead. The velvet pall covering the coffin was an exceedingly chaste one. It was borne by the following:—the Hon. G. E. Lascelles, Sion Hall; Mr. T. W. Lloyd, Cowesby; Mr. John Walker, Mount St. John; Capt. Hincks, Breckenbro'; the Rev. Canon Johnstone, Sutton Hall; Mr. Williamson, Richmond; Mr. C. Mc C. Swardbreck, Sowerby; and the Rev. G. Scott, Craxwold. Earl Cathcart was to have been one of the pall-bearers, but he was prevented by indisposition from attending. The chief mourners were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton (the latter being a sister of Mr. Bell), of Clifton Hall, near Nottingham; Major and Mrs. Sanders, Ingram House, near Thirsk (Mrs. Sanders is aunt to the deceased); Mr. R. Smith and Miss Smith, of the Hall, nephew and niece of the deceased; the Rev. Mr. Smith, Kildale, near Whitby; and Capt. Turton, Larpool Hall. Amongst the friends present were Sir W. Payne Galloway, the member for the borough; Capt. Hill, Chief Constable for the North Riding; Mr. E. Munby, Myton; Rev. Canon Coates, Sowerby; Rev. L. S. Maine, Sowerby; Dr. Ryott, deceased's medical attendant; and a large number of the neighbouring gentry. The tenantry of the deceased, and the upper and lower servants at the Hall, also, of course, formed up in the procession.

Service in the church was begun by the singing by the chorister boys, who were in their surplices, of the well-known hymn, "Christ will gather in His own," from "Hymns Ancient and Modern." After that, and whilst all were being seated, Mr. Walton, the organist, played upon that instrument in a very effective manner, the "Dead March." The Psalm—the 39th—was read, and as the departure into the grave-yard was being effected "Vital Spark" was given upon the organ. Altogether the service in the church was felt by all to be very impressive and appropriate. The vault in which the remains of the deceased was placed is a brick one, which had previously five occupants. The deceased was placed beside the remains of his uncle, who died in 1851, and whom he succeeded. The coffin, a massive oaken one, of elegant brass furnishings, and which had been supplied by Mr. J. S. Coulson, of Kirkgate (Mr. Anderson making the lead coffin), had upon it the following inscription, engraved upon a brass shield:—

FREDERICK BELL,
Died Jan. 13th, 1875,
Aged 44 Years.

On the coffin were a cross and a number of wreaths composed of white camellias, azaleas, Christmas roses, and other choice flowers. The bells of the church rang out a muffled peal at the conclusion of the service.

At a full meeting of the Falcon Lodge held in the Masonic Hall on the 13th ult., Bro. A. C. Bamlett, W.M., in the chair, the following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That we, the members of the Falcon Lodge, No. 1416, of ancient, free, and accepted Masons, in open lodge assembled, have heard with the greatest regret and deepest sorrow of the painfully sudden death of our most Worthy and Worshipful Past Master, Bro. Frederick Bell, Past Provincial Grand Senior Warden, who, in the inscrutable wisdom of the Great Architect of the Universe, has been so suddenly called away from amongst us; and we, remembering his many good and noble qualities, and the great services he has rendered to Freemasonry in founding the Falcon Lodge, together with his uniform kindness and urbanity to all the brethren, beg to offer our sincere and heartfelt condolence to Mrs. Macbean and the other members of the late Mr. Bell's family, under their sad and most distressing bereavement." This resolution was duly conveyed, and in most courteous terms acknowledged.

BRO. THOS. KINNERSLY.

It is with extreme regret we have to chronicle the some what sudden demise of William Thomas Kinnersly, Esq., of Blinfield Manor, Berkshire. Our much esteemed brother, though a young Mason, had already made his mark in the Craft, and gave every promise of a long and useful Masonic career. Some five years since, having married a lady of the island, he settled down at "Les Touillets," in Guernsey, and at once devoted himself with all the zeal and energy of a strong and vigorous character to promote the welfare and prosperity of the Masonic Institutions of his place, connecting himself more immediately with Doyle's Lodge, of which he was W.M. for two years in succession, resigning the gavel so recently as the 29th of December, on which occasion he installed the present W.M., Bro. Randall, in that chair which he had himself so long and so ably occupied. Bro. Kinnersly was a worthy exponent of the great principles of the Order, and though, as the owner of a large property and one of the leading gentlemen of his parish, the calls on his time and his generous nature were by no means few or slight, he never lost sight of those great educational and charitable institutions of our Order, and the writer has reason to know that it was one of the happiest moments of our late brother's life, when a short time back he was privileged, as a Steward of the Annual Festival, to place in the hands of the Secretary one of the largest collections that had ever been transmitted to the Boys' School from this island. The funeral of our late brother took place on the 28th ult., and though, in accordance with the earnestly expressed wish of the deceased, carried out in a strictly private and unostentatious manner, many brethren assembled at the cemetery to pay the last sad tribute of respect to departed merit. Amongst these we noticed Bros. Dr. Hamilton, D.G.M. of Jamaica, 33; Colonel Gallienne, D.D.G.M. of Guernsey; Balfour Cockburn, P.D.G.S.W., 30; Colonel Guerin, Sharp, and others.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Surrey Masonic Hall Company was held in a spacious room of the hall on Thursday, the 4th inst. There was a good attendance of gentlemen interested in the undertaking. The report of the directors and statement of finance were submitted and discussed. Messrs. Pinder and W. Ramsay were re-elected directors of the company; Mr. H. A. Dubois was also re-elected to the office of auditor. The meeting was afterwards resolved into a special convention, at which a resolution was unanimously passed empowering the directors to raise additional capital, thereby enabling them to complete the work. There being no other business to be transacted, the proceedings were then formally closed. The shareholders subsequently examined the lodge and other rooms, and expressed themselves highly pleased with the stability of the edifice, great care having evidently been exercised by the builder in the selection of materials, &c. The hall is now in a very advanced state, and will constitute one of the handsomest buildings to be found in the Southern part of the metropolis. We hope, ere long, to have the pleasure of chronicling its formal opening for Masonic and other purposes. We may mention that shares of £5 each may still be procured of the Secretary of the Company at 1, Gresham-buildings, and those who have the interests of the Craft at heart will, we think, not be slow in awarding support to this excellent and most desirable undertaking.

Masonic Tidings.

It is stated that the Right Worshipful Robert Bagshaw, Provincial Grand Master for Sussex, has appointed Bro. Matthew Edward Clark, of London, to be his Deputy P.G.M. This appointment has been vacant since the death of Bro. Andrew Meggy in January 1873.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Shaftesbury, Prov. Grand Master, Staffordshire, has consented to preside at a dinner, on the 18th March, at Willis's Rooms, to raise an enlargement fund for the Royal Infirmary for Children and Women, Waterloo-bridge-road.

WELLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 548).—The fifteen sections will be worked in this lodge, at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford, on Monday evening next, by Bro. John Shaw, S.W. 79. Lodge opened at half-past seven precisely.

THE APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE (No. 357).—The fifty-sixth anniversary festival of this lodge will be held on Tuesday, February 16th, at 3.45 p.m., for the installation of the W.M. elect, the Rev. H. Adair Pickard, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.W., who filled the chair of the lodge in the years 1856 and 1857. The following eminent brethren will, in all probability, attend the lodge:—Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England; Col. Adair of the 33rd; P. M. Beach (M.P. for North Hants), who will act as Installing Officer; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chap. of England; P. M. T. Mansel Talbot (Prov. Grand Master, Eastern Division, South Wales), with many others, well known in the Craft.

From a circular letter in relation to the "Sind Masonic Association for the Relief of Distressed Widows and Orphans of Freemasons," we learn: "Twelve months have now elapsed since the idea of forming the above Association was brought forward, and its object and intention have been so fully appreciated by the Masons in Sind, as to secure the hearty co-operation and generous liberality of one and all, which is testified by the fact, that at the present moment the Association possesses a capital of Rs. 5,000, and which is invested in Government Paper in the name of Trustees; the interest of this sum and all subscriptions to the Association forming the available revenue from whence relief is granted."

NOTICE.

Many complaints having been received of the difficulty experienced in procuring the Freemason in the City, the publisher begs to append the following list, being a selected few of the appointed agents:—

Abbott, Wm., Great Tower-street.
Bates, Pilgrim-street, Ludgate-Hill.
Born, H., 115, London Wall.
Dawson, Wm., 121, Cannon-street.
Gilbert, Jas., 18, Gracechurch-street.
Guest, Wm., 54, Paternoster-row.
Phillipott Bros., 65, King William-street.
Pottle, R., 14, Royal Exchange.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

DEATH.

SAUNDERS.—Feb. 3, at Elliott-street, Liverpool, Eliza, aged 40, the beloved wife of Bro. D. Saunders, Pembroke Lodge, No. 1299, after a short illness. Mrs. Saunders had long been identified with her husband, manager of the New Star Music Hall, as an artiste of rare merit, a lady of the most benevolent disposition, and one whom the whole profession and public deeply regretted. Great sympathy is felt in Liverpool for Bro. Saunders, who has been for nine years identified with Masonry in Liverpool.

Can a lodge adjourn?—T. T. [No.]

The Scotch lodges give more than one degree, I see, the same night, or next night. Can such a thing be done in England?—H. [Certainly not. The Scotch do so, and a most mistaken course it is. In our humble opinion it is one of the main reasons for the unsatisfactory condition of Scottish Freemasonry. Another is the facility, of initiation and cheapness of admission fees, and a third, and last, the want of enforcement usually of annual subscriptions from members of lodges.]

ERRATA.—In the report of Chapter Commercial, No. 79, page 55, for Comp. John Morris, read Munro. Bro. Adlard's Advertisement:—for "Pockets for jewels, 7s. 6d. each, extra," read 6d. extra. In Bro. Bincke's letter on Masonic Charities, for 8,000 half-crowns producing £800, read "£1,000."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1875.

OUR ROYAL BROTHER, PRINCE LEOPOLD.

The whole Masonic fraternity will deeply rejoice, to use Mr. Disraeli's appropriate words, that "sorrow has not disturbed" the "Royal hearth." Some few days ago it was impossible, but that all loyal Englishmen, and not the least loyal Freemasons, would feel deeply anxious, as the daily "bulletins" seemed to point to weakness and to danger, in the state of our Royal Brother, Prince Leopold. The thoughts of us all would inevitably turn to that gracious lady, who was again sharing in the common lot of mortals, suffering, anxiety, and illness. We who can carry our thoughts back personally to the Queen's Coronation, thirty-seven years ago, will agree that the bright promise of that auspicious day has been indeed fulfilled in the goodly "regime" of subsequent years. No more peaceful, or prosperous, or beneficent reign has ever been accorded to a beloved Sovereign, or a loyal people, and we can rejoice to think today, all of us, that under the wise laws and constitutional monarchy of our fathers, the English throne and the English people have, as it were, become more and more united in themselves, more cemented and grounded in mutual love and sympathy, and have exhibited, amid the anxiety of some nations, and the trials of others, a spectacle of permanency and yet of progress, deeply gratifying to every patriotic Englishman. And much of this we owe to the personal character of the Sovereign, and the happy influences of the Royal Family. Mr. Martin's charming work has lately given us glimpses into the true secret and the prevailing cause of all our national happiness, contentment, unity, and advance, when, as Mr. Locker sings, in one of his pleasant lays, "our dear Queen Victoria was reigning." We see now, without one doubt or question, how good and how admirable, in their true spirit of unselfish patriotism, were all the counsels and all the views of the lamented Prince Consort. We discern how that family life, and home life, which have so marked the simple court of our Sovereign, have not only tended to encourage and preserve a love for domestic life and pursuits amongst ourselves in somewhat sensational days, but have added lustre to the diadem, and given strength to the throne. There was an example ever before our eyes, distinct, undoubted, easily to be appreciated, and we have all, we believe, long since realized, how deep and sure those master builders laid the foundation of our free English Constitution, who made the throne the centre of unity, and of authority, and of loyal devotion to our great English people. Thus there never has been a time when a whole nation was, as it were, so bound up in the happiness and welfare of their rulers as now. A whole people sorrowed with the Queen when she lost the husband of her youth and of her affection. A whole people stood all but paralyzed when life and death were contending, so to say, with the hope of many millions, our august brother, the Prince of Wales. A whole people has rejoiced in those marriages which have united the fair daughters of our Royal house to the help-mates of their choice, and equally all have anxiously waited for the bulletins of each returning day, and all have rejoiced to think, that, humanly speaking, the danger is over, and that H.R.H. Prince Leopold is now in a state of convalescence. As a member of our Order, our interest is, if it be possible, augmented and enlarged, alike in his career, and in his health, and we trust, that surmounting the weakness of many years, he may be enabled, in a good providence, to continue that great career of usefulness which seems marked out for him. As a friend to literature, as a patron of the finer arts, in all of which he seems, as the Times said, very much to resemble his illustrious father, he is peculiarly in his place in our Masonic Order; and we, as English Freemasons, can gladly remember that we have alike the approval and special favour of the Heir to the Throne, the presence of the young soldier, the Duke of Connaught, and the fine, cultivated taste of Prince Leopold, as a set-off against the incriminations of the ignorant, and the anathemas of the intolerant. May this happy union endure and even grow more intimate through many a "long, long year."

OUR GOOD BRO. VALLETON.

This worthy brother, though probably as yet little known to our Order, is, it appears, the correspondent in London of the French Masonic journal Le Monde Maçonnique. Some time ago he thought well to write what was meant for a most severe denunciation of English Freemasonry, and to which we thought well to advert, as our readers will remember, some little time back. Bro. Valleton appeared to us evidently to be a "blind leader of the blind," inasmuch as he was making statements about English Freemasonry, which were as baseless as the "baseless fabric of a vision." It was patent to us that he had yet to learn the A B C of that English system he affected to understand, and professed to denounce. All his ideas of English Freemasonry were, as we sought to show him, utterly unsound, illogical, and empirical. He clearly had hardly ever been in any English lodges at all, and he was utterly unacquainted with the actual condition, as well as the true teaching, of English Freemasonry. Bro. Valleton gave us, as the French would say, "en revanche," certain remarkable opinions of his own ideas as to what English Freemasonry should be. It was, alas, too evident even to the least informed, why he found such fault with English Freemasonry. We were in the way of certain so-called philosophical theories, certain avowed designs, which abroad have only culminated, wherever a free scope has been fatally given to them, in revolution and socialism, whose "Goddess of Reason" appears to be brute force, and whose untoward manifestations have been painfully seen in energetic "petroleuses" and amid deeds of wasting, plunder, and cruelty. We protested, and we protest still, against venturing to associate English Freemasons with principles of which they have an abhorrence, and with proceedings on which they look with shame. English Freemasonry, we contended, has nothing to do either with politics or controversies, or revolutionary principles or illuminating theories. In England we are a very loyal and a very peaceable order—we are good citizens as well as true Freemasons, and one of our first duties as patriots is to reverence "the Sovereign of our native land," one of our great anxieties as Freemasons is to keep at a distance from our good old Craft, the pernicious doctrines of socialistic folly. But it appears, après tout, that Bro. Valleton thinks we are in the wrong and that he is in the right. He knows, in his own opinion, much more of English Freemasonry than we do, and so he returns to the charge in the Monde Maçonnique of January, 1875. He writes again from London and gives us most important information relative to the real feelings of English Freemasons on these subjects, of which we are such ignorant and beclouded exponents. In order to prove his favourite charge, that English Freemasonry is under the "direction of the Anglican clergy," he quotes an extract from the Freemason, which tells us that the Francis Burdett Lodge, Hampton Hill, was consecrated, and that Bro. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., was present. To our stern Bro. Valleton such an act is in itself apparently a most unenlightened proceeding. He evidently is equally out of love with our Order and "world, which kings and priests are plotting in." And therefore he adds "it is not astonishing that we do not agree with the Freemason, which is what one may call the official organ of Sacerdotal Masonry in England." "Happily," the good brother goes on to say, "the Freemason is not the organ of all English Freemasonry." "There is in England, as in France, a Freemasonry free, philosophical, scientific, positive, which proclaims, as we do, that all men are brethren, beyond all religion and all nationalities; and notwithstanding the spirit of division and hostility which these last institutions have always fomented amongst every people," endeavours, as with us, to proclaim the human fraternity beyond any religious formulary and ceremony." In the abstract we shall probably agree, in the concrete we know that this statement of Bro. Valleton goes beyond our English good common sense. Though we accept into our Order all men except the atheist and the libertine, and look with compassion and sympathy on all mankind, we have no leaning for the expansive notion of continental positivism or any other ism. We have nothing to do with these new philosophies and these hurtful principles which are undermining social order elsewhere, neither can we manifest any, even the slightest approval, of those subversive dogmata which end in either a positive infidelity or the offensive assertion of a "morale sans Dieu." We do not believe that there are half-a-dozen Freemasons who hold such opinions in England, and we fancy we know a good deal more about the subject than does Bro. Valleton. As, however, we should always "live and learn," if there are really any brethren who prefer the French or any other foreign system to our own wise and tolerant English teaching, we shall not refuse them a hearing, under certain limits, in the pages of the Freemason. But we fancy that our good Bro. Valleton, like a good many other people, has swam out beyond his depth, and that whatever he may know of French Freemasonry, he certainly knows nothing yet whatever of English Freemasonry.

THE ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

We publish a letter in the Correspondence column which calls attention to a very serious subject. If written in a homely way, and with "unadorned eloquence," it yet, we think, deserves the attention of our readers. There can be no doubt that the hasty admission of members is a great and growing evil. Not only is it too often the "epidemic" which affects new lodges, but there are a great many of the older lodges which are far too lax in this particular. There are some brethren who seem to think that they have a vested right, so to say, in the proposal of members. Any one who receives their "approval," they think the brethren ought to admit, and often retire from a lodge in dudgeon, because some particular candidate is not approved of by the lodge generally. In some lodges there is a prevailing tendency to make admission of members more a question of special approval by a select few, than any consideration of special aptitude for Freemasonry. Hence, in these lodges, the admission of members is directed by a clique, and all cliques are, we say, hurtful to lodges. There are again those who take a lax view of the reception of members. As long as a man is a well-to-do man, prosperous in the world, in a good social position, a flourishing business, they deprecate any further enquiry as unnecessary and undesirable. Many, in consequence, are admitted into Freemasonry either from worldly rank or personal consideration, who do no good, and never will do any, to Freemasonry proper, and who constitute much of the "dead weight" of our Masonic organization. To them the lodge is but the amusement of an idle, easy, social time, and they never pass or seek to pass, beyond the "arcana" of the "knife and fork degree." In that they are A. I. If any lodge is so unwise as to promote any such to the Master's chair, that lodge will live to repent of its weakness, as they never know their work, and they never perform their duties. There is just now another temptation to many lodges. Candidates are numerous, the fees are ready, and some W.M.'s and brethren do not seem to consider whether the candidate is in a position to keep up his Masonic privileges. Freemasonry has now many material benefits to offer, and it is to be feared that not a few are unworthily attracted to Freemasonry by the prospect of what they may obtain on a "rainy day," as an insurance, so to say, a "benefit society" for infirmities, old age, and the unavoidable calamities of human life. With these three classes of applicants Freemasonry has ever to contend, and we know how difficult is the task often to keep them out, especially the last class of all. If they are not received in England they go into Scotland, and are made there, and come back and become joining members. All Freemasons must be struck with the growing applications for our charities. This year, as Bro. Binckes points out, for our four great metropolitan institutions, they are 147. What will they be next year? No doubt with increasing numbers we must always expect additional claims, but the fact is, we have 68 claimants for the Benevolent Institution and only 12 vacancies, in the Girls' 31 candidates and only 13 to be elected, in the Boys' 48 candidates and only 8 to be elected, in all 114 rejected candidates, is a most serious reflection. We can only then urge upon all our brethren still greater scrutiny and sifting of all candidates proposed for Freemasonry. It probably is the weak point in our admirable system which requires watchfulness and amendment. We know, indeed, that it is a very difficult question in itself, and has admittedly two sides to it, and we shall be therefore glad to receive any expression of opinion on so important a subject in our correspondence columns which our readers may like to favour us with. There are many brethren in our Order who can write very effectively on this and many other subjects, if only they will.

GRANTS TO THE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Bro. Binckes seems to be a little surprised that we again reverted to this subject, but those who read Bro. Binckes's letter, to which we alluded, will not have shared, we venture to think, in his professed astonishment. We note one point, however, to which we deem it only fair to Bro. Binckes to call attention. He does not say that £800 is the amount he actually expects or considers fair, he states the fact that the 2s. 6d. on certificates would yield that amount now, not £150, and that in the face of this fact, and the increased expenditure of the Boys' School, he urges that it is not unfair to ask for a revision. There is another point we wish to notice. Bro. Binckes suggests a grant for the Girls' School as well as for the Boys' School. But what says Bro. Little? We doubt very much whether Bro. Little can go to the Craft and ask for a grant from Grand Lodge for the Girls' School. At present the Girls' School is full, and we believe, though Bro. Little can set us right, that there is no possibility of increasing its present accommodation. How can he ask for a grant from Grand Lodge with the amount of funded property and with the financial prosperity of the Girls' School? It may be a case for the revision of the grant of £150 to the Boys' School, but, as we said before, the one endeavour, in our humble opinion, for the Boys' School, is to try and replace its capital. In the present state of the Fund of Benevolence and of the constantly increasing claims upon us, any additional amount given to the Boys' School could be but small, and we therefore beg leave to repeat to Bro. Binckes our old fashioned, if unpalatable advice, "quieta non movere."

THE STEWARD'S LISTS OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION ANNIVERSARY.

The Steward's lists of the last anniversary present one or two striking features.—The leading province this year is Lincolnshire, where the exertions of our worthy Bro. Chadwick, with others, have returned £573. West Yorkshire takes the second place with £242 10s., which, considering all pats returns, is not amiss. The Metropolitan Lodges, as usual, are well represented, and bring in a good round sum, exceeding considerably the provincial returns. We are glad to notice how well the younger lodges are represented, and we are glad to think how very truly the principles of Freemasonry are appreciated and manifested by some of the newest offshoots of our evergreen Masonic tree. May the lists for the Girl's and Boy's Schools Anniversaries tell as good a tale for the general sympathy and genuine charity of our Order.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you inform me, through the columns of the Freemason, how many annual subscriptions of one Guinea there are to each of the Boy's and Girl's Schools, also how many subscribers of £1, 10s., and 5s., to the Old Men and Women Institution?

I am, sir, yours fraternally,

H. W. M.

PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I would wish to add a word to the many letters that have recently appeared in your valuable journal on the subject of the status of a rejoining Past-Master.

Presuming it to be generally acknowledged that a qualified Past-Master carries his rank with him wherever he goes, I submit that a brother holding that position would, on joining or on rejoining a lodge, take his seat below any Past Masters then subscribing to it; and would, as it seems to me, be unfair to them to allow a re-joining brother to rank next to the immediate Past Master from any feeling of deference to former membership or services. The answer to such a brother complaining of a "loss of steps" would obviously be that he should not have left the lodge.

The case of an absent member is, I think, very different. He does not rejoin his lodge after ballot, but simply resumes attendance; and he would do this with a full retention of his original rank, sitting below all those who were Past Masters when he first joined the lodge, but above those who had attained to the distinction during his absence; unless he had himself, during such absence, forfeited his privileges by having for twelve months ceased to subscribe to any regular lodge. In such case he can only regain his position by a fresh installation as Master, the Wardens of a lodge being members of Grand Lodge during their tenure of office only.

Yours fraternally,

BUSY BEE.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to congratulate you on the able article on "Brotherly Love." I sincerely hope you will continue, from time to time, to show our failings and foibles. If you wish to see our Masonic virtues brought from under the bushel, you must grasp the common gavel and chisel, and with a little perseverance you will, I have no doubt, make your mark, but it must be on the Rock of Truth. You must stand in the same position as the sincere clergy or ministers of religion. When they preach a homely sermon to their congregation and take each class seriatim, they will be sure to touch the hearts of some in their assembly who have been walking under the mantle of a gentleman or the cloak of religion.

So it is with Masonry; if each member of the Craft would endeavour to eschew from his breast that selfish feeling which predominates, to a very large extent, among the brotherhood, how much more pure would the Craft be, not only in the public eye, but to the brethren in general. Sir, I remain, yours fraternally,

P.M.

THE ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It has often been, and is now, a surprise to me that Grand Lodge does not interfere with the wholesale making of Masons which is continually taking place in the vicinity of the town in which I reside. Each candidate seems to be judged alone by the standard whether he has five guineas in his pocket to pay the usual fees. This ought not to be. An initiate for Freemasonry ought to be a man capable of appreciating the beauties of its ceremonies, and its allegorical allusion to life here and hereafter. He should also have sufficient acumen in his nature to be able to seize at once upon its theoretical teaching, and not be merely one of that great number who have joined our ranks merely for the sake of company and good-fellowship; both good in their way, but not sufficient to raise the thoughts of the man and the mortal to the Great Architect and the Immortal. My humble opinion of Masonry is that it is one means whereby the nations of the world will be brought into unity and peace. Our tenets not allowing us to join in strife, it at once becomes apparent how very suitable Freemasonry is to unite the hearts of man in one common brotherhood, and if we initiate men who cannot appreciate such a high function for the Order, we do Masonry incalculable harm and cannot have, ourselves, very bright notions of it.

Again, there is another blot or mischief-making source to Freemasonry, and that is the holding of our lodges in public houses. Many a good man and true is kept out of our ranks in consequence of this great eye-sore. Our ceremonies do not allow really of being associated with public houses—it is a false position for us to be in. Solemn and heart-stirring are our rites—all is blunted and destroyed by being held in such places. Surely amongst the thousands in our chief towns in England who range under our banners we could build Halls of our own, and keep them separated from the profane world.

I might say more, but I think it better to stop, and am Yours, fraternally,

A SINCERE MASON.

Multum in Parvo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

Can any brother give me the name and number of the Freemason's Lodge held at Ballatar, Scotland, fifty years ago?

HEReward.

How was the "LODGE OF ANTIQUITY" AN "AMERICAN LODGE?"

We have before us the latter part of a very curious old Masonic pamphlet (from page 25 to the end, page 64), issued, we presume, about A.D. 1759. The first paragraph reads as follows:

"The following is a correct List of Regular Lodges, according to their seniority and Constitution, when this new edition went to press; but if there should be any errors, or new Lodges arise, upon the members giving notice thereof to Charles Corbett, they shall be carefully corrected, and probably placed in the next edition."

Then follows a List of Lodges, 241 in all, the last of which is recorded as having been constituted July 2, 1759. It is from this date, that we infer the year of the pamphlet's publication.

The most curious items in this list are the first and second, viz.:

"1. Queen's Arms, St. Paul's Church Yard, the West India and American Lodge, and Wednesday; 4th, a Master's Lodge.

"2. Horn, Westminster, and Thursday. These two constituted time immemorial."

Now the figures evidently represent the numbers of the Lodges, which we presume (though the Lodges are not named), are identical with the Lodge of Antiquity, London (which was No. 1, under the "Moderns"), and Somerset House Lodge (which was No. 2, same jurisdiction). These Lodges are still in existence, are the only English Lodges working from time immemorial, and are numbered now 2 and 4 on the Register of the United Grand Lodge of England, as we learn from Bro. Hughan's "Memorials of the Union of 1813," which we have reviewed at length in this issue of The Keystone. The names, "Queen's Arms" and "Horn," evidently were the names of the Taverns where these Lodges held their meetings.

But what is the meaning of the descriptive clause, "The West-India and American Lodge," attached to Lodge No. 1, now, probably, the Lodge of Antiquity, and the oldest Lodge under the Grand Lodge of England? Will Bro. Wm. Jas. Hughan, or Bro. A. F. A. Woodford (both of whom are skilled Masonic Archaeologists) favour us with an explanation of these mysterious words? As Americans, we would be proud to be connected, even in name, with the oldest English Lodge in the world, working by Immemorial Constitution, without Charter! We should be glad to know, also, the title of this Masonic publication of A.D. 1759 or 1760.

The foregoing is from The Keystone, and Bro. Hughan has made the following reply to the interesting communication:—

"Dear Bro. McCalla,—

"I have not yet discovered the title of the book containing the List of Lodges to which you refer, but the other query is easily settled by reference to other lists of a similar date. In a MS. I have a copy of, now in the possession of Bro. J. F. Spurr, P.M. 200, Scarborough, entitled 'A New and Correct List of all the Regular Lodges in Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, according to their Seniority and Constitution, by Order of the Grand Master, brought down to April 10th, 1765,' the first lodge mentioned is '1. Queen's Arms, St. Paul's Church Yard, and Wednesday. Constituted time Immemorial. Every 4th Wednesday there is a Master's Lodge. It is also the West-India and American Lodge.' In Cole's engraved List of Lodges of 1768, entitled, 'A List of Regular Lodges according to their Seniority and Constitution, by Order of the Grand Master, printed for, and Sold by William Cole, Engraver and Copper-plate Printer, opposite Warwick Lane in Newgate Street,' I find the following:

1.—The West India and American Lodge at the Queen's Arms in St. Paul's Churchyard.	2nd. Wedy. The 4th, a Master's Lodge.	Constituted time Immemorial.

It is evident, therefore, that the "Lodge of Antiquity," then No. 1 (now No. 2), to which these references are made, was partly composed of brethren originally hailing from West India and America, or connected commercially with these Countries, or obtained many of their candidates from West India and America, through gentlemen from those regions when in London choosing that ancient lodge in which first to see the "Light."

I have searched many other Lists of Lodges, but no allusion is made in them to West India or America in connection with No. 1. However, it is quite clear that many brethren who were, in all probability, West India and American Merchants, joined the Lodge of Antiquity, London, about 1760, to give rise to such a description of that ancient lodge, and hence assisted in securing its prosperity, which happily has continued to the present day. Long may it continue.

Fraternally yours,

Truro, 30th Jan., 1875. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

FREEMASONS AND THE ULTRAMONTANES.

We are requested to publish the following correspondence:—

To the Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy, M.P., H.M. Secretary of State for War.

Sir,—I am to crave the liberty of drawing your attention to the case of a Non-commissioned Officer being refused ecclesiastical burial at Chatham, simply because he was a Freemason. The case is that of Armourer-Sergeant J. V. Johnstone, of the 82nd Regiment, a Roman Catholic, who died in Fort Pitt Hospital. I enclose an extract from the military and naval intelligence of the Times of 5th Feb. last,* and also a copy of a letter from the Roman Catholic Chaplain which appeared in the same newspaper on the 14th of Feb. last, explaining the ground on which he refused to give ecclesiastical burial.

The case would have been brought to your notice early in the session, by a member of the House of Commons, but the press of business was so great that he was unable to get a fit opportunity of stating the case to the House.

It was then considered advisable to wait the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in a cause from Lower Canada, of a Roman Catholic priest refusing ecclesiastical burial to one named Guibord, because he was a member of a purely scientific and literary institute. The decision on that cause has now been given. Their Lordships hold that ecclesiastical burial is a civil right and ought to be protected. They say—'It cannot be denied on the evidence that this qualification of the general right of interment, this separation of the grave from the ordinary place of sepulture, implies degradation, not to say infamy; and their Lordships have accordingly ordered the Cure to give ecclesiastical burial as demanded by Guibord's representatives. I send herewith a full copy of the judgment, as published in the Hour newspaper of the 1st inst.

I am respectfully to represent, that if the principal appellate court in the realm protects the ecclesiastical burial of one of her Majesty's subjects in Canada, it is surely right that a soldier of the British army should be equally protected. The Roman Catholic Chaplain holds his commission to perform certain duties to her Majesty's soldiers of the Roman Catholic religion, and is it possible that any foreign consideration could be allowed to justify the non-performance of that duty? Moreover, the Association of Freemasons is a loyal and patriotic body of men, banded together to maintain the common rights of humanity, and is specially protected by Act of Parliament.

I am, therefore, to express the hope that such moral degradation and civil injury as is implied by the refusal of ecclesiastical burial in the case referred to, shall not be allowed to be inflicted on a British soldier because he may happen to be a Freemason; and that no commissioned chaplain of her Majesty's forces shall be permitted, on any alleged spiritual ground, to supersede the duty which he owes to her Majesty's service.

May I crave your early attention to this important matter?

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,
G. R. BADENOCH, Sec.

11th January, 1875.

Sir,—I am directed by Mr. Secretary Hardy to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 10th ult., calling attention to the case of the late Armourer-Sergeant Johnstone, 82nd Foot, at Chatham.

In reply I am to acquaint you that the circumstances of the Canadian case quoted by you were, in Mr. Hardy's opinion, essentially different from those of the Chatham case; and, moreover, that the principles on which the judgment of the Privy Council in the Canadian case was based appear to Mr. Hardy to render it very difficult, if not impossible, for him to interfere in a matter such as that now brought to his notice.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

RALPH THOMPSON.

To the Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy, M.P.

H.M. Secretary of State for War.

Sir,—I had the honour of receiving your communication of the 11th, in reference to the refusal of the Roman Catholic Chaplain to the Forces at Chatham to bury Sergeant Johnstone, 82nd Regiment, being a Freemason. I am to remind you that I referred to the Canadian case to show it was the opinion of the Judicial Committee that ecclesiastical burial is a civil right, and that its denial on the part of a Roman Catholic priest is 'degradation, not to say infamy.' It is therefore clear, that while the circumstances are different the consequences are the same. It is impossible to understand why any British subject, especially one serving in Her Majesty's forces, should be deprived of his undoubted rights, and therefore subject to 'degradation, not to say infamy,' simply because he belonged to the Masonic order.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,
G. R. BADENOCH.

*Refusal to Bury a British Soldier because he was a Freemason.

'Some excitement has been caused in Chatham Garrison by the refusal of the Rev. M. Cuffe, Roman Catholic Chaplain to the Forces, to perform the burial service over Armourer-Sergeant J. V. Johnstone, of the 82nd Regiment, a Roman Catholic Freemason, who died in Fort Pitt Hospital. The deceased had been a member of the Buckley Lodge of Freemasons, who met at the Soldiers' Institute. A resident Roman Catholic priest also declined, as the Rev. M. Cuffe was his senior. The Rev. Mr. Phillips, a Protestant clergyman, performed the Church service when the deceased was interred in the military burial-ground near Fort Pitt. The deceased was much respected, and hundreds of soldiers attended the funeral.'—Military and Naval intelligence, the Times, Feb. 5, 1874.

The Roman Catholics and Freemasonry.
To the Editor of the Times.

14th Feb. 1874.

Sir,—I have been rather severely criticised in a few journals for having lately declined to attend a Freemason's funeral. Will you kindly allow me to explain myself in the Times on this occasion?

The Catholic Church does not allow her clergy to read the burial service over the bodies of those who die out of her communion. On this account I was obliged to decline attending the funeral of the late Armourer-Sergeant Johnstone, who died on the 29th ult. He died a Freemason. No Freemason is a Catholic. No Catholic can be a Freemason; the moment he becomes one he secedes from his church. I have already given this explanation to the military authorities of the Chatham garrison, on my declining to attend the funeral of the late Sergeant Johnstone, and I believe it has been accepted as satisfactory.

Allow me here to state, and I do so with much pleasure, that since I first entered the British Army, which was in 1854, no military superior ever ordered or requested me to perform any duty which could be found to clash with any of the regulations of my church; they even rather expect and wish I should adhere most strictly to the faithful observance of these regulations, and by God's grace and blessings I am determined to do so as long as I move on earth.

Your obedient servant,
MICHAEL CUFFE,
R. C. Chaplain to Her Majesty's Forces.

ADDRESS AND TESTIMONIAL TO LORD DUNBOYNE, P.G.M., NORTH MUNSTER.

On Thursday, the 28th ult., a Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, for the purpose of presenting Lord Dunboyne, R. W. Provincial Grand Master of the Masonic Order in North Munster, with an address and testimonial, as an expression of the regard and esteem in which he is held by the Order in North Munster. The attendance was extremely large, and embraced the following:—

The Right Hon. Lord Dunboyne, P.G.M.; James Spaight, D.P.G.M.; William Barrington, P.G. Secretary; J. Hill (Ennis), S.W.; G. Dartnell, J.W.; James O'Grady, S.D.; G. O'Neill, J.D.; W. H. McQuaide, H. Stirling, A. Rowland, G. H. Smith, 201; Robert Wellington, S.W. 201; F. N. Young, W.M. 201; A. Wallace, 73; John Hill, D. Macdonald, W.M. 60; Jonas Studdert, Wm. Daxon, M.D., P.M. 60; John Lopdell, J.W. 60; John Leames, Robert Wheeler, J. H. Symes, Gordon O'Neill, Thomas Bunting, John McKern, John Russell, 13; John McAuliffe, 541; Richard J. Lee, 73; Francis Meredith, S.W. 333; William Hosford, 333; Thomas E. Carte, P.M. 333; John Russell, 13; J. Brady, 13; R. Gibson, P.M. 73; H. S. Sterling, I.G. 73; J. K. Browne, 73; Rev. James McMahon, 333; Archdeacon Hare, 13; W. G. Gubbins, W.M. 333; Rev. Charles Ward, 268; James O'Grady, 13; and S. Pounder.

The lodge having been opened in due form, and with the usual Masonic observances,

Bro. Spaight, D.P.G.M., said before he would read the address which they had met to present to their esteemed Provincial Grand Master he would mention that it was the universal wish of the lodges of the district that a banquet should be given in order to give the greatest possible honour and eclat to the ceremony. They were aware that he consulted their feelings on the subject, and, as far as in his power, had ascertained the wishes of the whole province on the matter in reference to the carrying out of the arrangements. He had, of course, also consulted his lordship's feelings on the matter, and had apprised him of the wishes of the Craft. It had been arranged that a small deputation should wait upon his lordship and present the testimonial, but that proposition was universally received with feelings of disappointment and regret. If we might so express it, the Masonic heart of the entire province was deeply stirred in the matter, and they felt that the fact of two or three going quietly by train to be the gentle actors in a scene in which they all desired to participate would not be a proper expression of Masonic feeling. (Hear, hear, and applause.) A different conclusion was arrived at to which his lordship finally consented, and they were now all present to participate in this happy and interesting ceremony. (Hear, hear.) He congratulated his lordship upon having evoked such a feeling of regard and esteem amongst the members of the Craft throughout North Munster, and in conclusion, he suggested to read the address with which they desired to present him—

"Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—We, the members of the Masonic Order of the Province of North Munster, desire to approach you with the strongest feelings of fraternal affection and respect for your distinguished position as a Mason, and your invariable kindness and courtesy as a Brother. Knowing, as we do, that the honourable status now held by the Province of North Munster is mainly owing to the able administration and watchful care of its Masonic interests by your Lordship, we desire to leave some imperishable record of our high esteem for your Lordship's character as an able administrator, and a faithful friend. We therefore beg your Lordship's acceptance of this salver with our united and fervent prayer that you may long enjoy the honours and distinctions in our Order which you have justly won, and that we may continue to enjoy the advantages we derive from your Lordship's just and courteous government of the Province of North Munster.

"On behalf of the members, James Spaight, Deputy Provincial Grand Master; William S. Studdert, Lodge 13; Marquis Paterson, 60; A. MacNab, 73; William Edwin Burdge, 135; F. N. Young, 201; George Pierce, 202; George Roe, 311; J. B. Young, 333; John C. McAuliffe, 541."

Bro. Spaight then said he hoped his lordship would consider the ceremony of presenting the testimonial as gone through, for owing to its immense weight he would experience some difficulty in holding it (laughter).

The presentation consisted of a massive salver of solid silver, and the most exquisite workmanship. The following inscription was engraven beautifully on the centre of the plate and surmounted by the Crown:—"Presented to their valued and beloved Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. Lord Dunboyne, Junior Warden of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, by the officers and brethren of the Masonic Province of North Munster, as a mark of their respect and fraternal love and some small acknowledgment of their sense of his invaluable services to their Craft during the period of his office as Provincial Grand Master of North Munster.—December, 1874." Around the verge of the salver were a number of appropriate Masonic devices, which were also magnificently engraved.

Lord Dunboyne, on rising to reply to the address, received a perfect ovation. He said:—

You are all perfectly well aware that I am not gifted with that eloquent tongue for which our Deputy Provincial Grand Master is so celebrated. (Laughter.) Certainly, on such an occasion as this, it is impossible for me—as it would be impossible for the most gifted speaker—to express myself as strongly as I feel. I can only say that I feel most grateful to the brethren of the province for their kindness, in the first place, in congratulating me on my restoration to health. (Hear, hear.) I am proud of that magnificent testimonial. It will be, I trust, an heirloom in my family for centuries to come; and, while I live, it will always be the means of prompting me more and more to do my duty as a brother Mason. (Applause.) Latterly I was not able to come amongst you as frequently as I could have wished; but, thank God, my health is better now—(hear, hear, and applause)—and I assure you that I shall always do everything in my power to promote Masonry in general, and more especially in North Munster. (Applause.) The brethren have ever been kind to me—beyond my expectations or deserts—(no, no)—especially in their latest mark of esteem. I wish every one of you brethren, health, prosperity, and long life in this world, and, in the next, may you be received into the Grand Lodge above. (Hear, hear.) It is not the intrinsic value of the gift I prize most, but it is the kind feeling of the brethren which I pre-eminently esteem; and I regret I cannot command language sufficient to thank you. (Loud Applause.)

Bro. Spaight then intimated that the ceremony would be concluded in another apartment of the building; and the lodge having been closed, the brethren repaired to the supper room, where a sumptuous luncheon was provided.

Bro. Spaight occupied the chair, and Lord Dunboyne sat on his right hand.

Bro. Spaight proposed "The Health of the Past Grand Master" in eloquent terms, and Lord Dunboyne responded.

Bro. Gubbins, W.M. 333, proposed the toast of the committee who had charge of the arrangements.

Bro. Spaight, as chairman of the committee, responded, and, after some appropriate remarks by Bro. Jonas Studdert, the company separated.

MASONIC RECEPTION TO THE SECOND MATE OF THE COSPATRICK AT GLASGOW.

A special meeting of the Lodge Clyde, No. 408, was held within the hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on 28th ult. The occasion was an unusually interesting one, being for the purpose of giving a fraternal reception to Bro. Henry M'Donald, late second mate of the New Zealand emigrant ship Cospatrick, which, as will be too well remembered, was burnt in the South Atlantic Ocean, on November 18th last, with a loss of 474 lives, Bro. M'Donald being one of the three sole survivors of the almost unparalleled catastrophe. Although the summons to the meeting was of the briefest, many not knowing of it until a couple of hours beforehand, about sixty brethren, including visitors from sister lodges, came forward in response to it. The R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Harper, presided, supported by Past Masters Duncan Downie and J. Buchanan, John M'Innes, S.W.; Wm. Bilsland, J.W.; James Stewart, Treasurer; and D. S. Mitchell, Secretary. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. John Munro, R.W.M. 360; A. R. Wilson, Chaplain 27; Jas. Duthie, and others. The lodge having been opened, the Chairman said he presumed they were all aware of the object of that meeting, which was to give a hearty welcome to their Bro. Henry M'Donald, second mate of the Cospatrick, and who, as they knew, survived the loss of that vessel after enduring almost unheard of perils. They would, perhaps, be able to do so better were they a little more at ease, and therefore the J.W. had his orders to call the lodge to refreshment. Before this was done, however, he had to ask Bro. M'Donald to come up to the dais and receive the right hand of fellowship. Bro. M'Donald, who was seated in the body of the hall, did so accordingly, amid loud and continued applause; and having shaken hands with those on the dais, took his seat by instruction of the chairman at the latter's left hand. The Stewards having done their duty, the chairman proposed in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," "The P.G.L. of Glasgow," and "The Magistrates of Glasgow," coupled with the name of the Lord Provost, Bro. Bain. He then in a few words proposed the toast of the occasion, "The Health of Bro. Henry M'Donald." They had all to sympathise with him in the severe trouble he had come through, and out of which, by the mercy of the Great Architect of the Universe, he had been rescued. They desired for him in the future long life and prosperity, and that he and his family might never again know the hardships they had lately experienced. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and all the honours. Bro. M'Donald, in acknowledging the toast, said he was very happy at the way in which they had received him; but he had such a whole lot to say that he could not say it all. But if there was any particular point that they would like him to speak about, he would do so. They had seen it all in the papers from beginning to end. No one responding to this invitation, Bro. M'Donald shortly rehearsed the main points of the catastrophe, in so far as he was concerned, or it came under his observation, and which was identical with the narrative he gave of it on arriving in England, and which was perused by every newspaper reader in the country. He expressed himself as exceedingly gratified with the reception he experienced from the brethren of the Craft at St. Helena, and handed to the chairman a letter he had received from them, which the chairman read. It was as follows:—"St. Helena, 12th December, 1874.—To Mr. Henry M'Donald, M.M., Clyde Lodge, No. 408, Scotland.—Dear Brother,—Having discovered that you were one of the Craft, and being made acquainted with the whole of the circumstances connected with your present unfortunate position, we, with true feelings of brotherly love, and remembering the day and hour we were received into Masbny, at once brought your case before the brethren of this island by opening a subscription on your behalf. We have now the pleasure to hand you the sum of £10 5s. 6d., subscribed by the members of both lodges, namely, St. Helena No. 488, and Old Rock No. 912, and others of the fraternity, of which we ask your acceptance. The brethren, one and all, sympathize with you, and pray that the Great Architect of the Universe, who has preserved and protected you from a fearful death, may be as merciful should you ever be again placed in such trying circumstances, which we sincerely hope may never again be your lot.—We are, dear Bro. M'Donald, yours very fraternally, R. Dowling, P.M. St. Helena Lodge, 488, and member of Old Rock Lodge, 912; Thomas Storer, Secretary, St. Helena Lodge, 488; and J. W., Old Rock Lodge, 912."—On the motion of Bro. Jas. Stewart, seconded by Bro. Downie, P.M., it was unanimously agreed to that a letter be sent to the St. Helena brethren to acknowledge the great kindness they had shown to a brother of the Clyde Lodge. It was further agreed to that the names of the leading Office-bearers of the St. Helena Lodge should be procured, and that they be made honorary members of Lodge Clyde. One or two miscellaneous toasts followed, after which the lodge was recalled to labour, and thereafter closed. We may just add that Bro. M'Donald, who looks in excellent health, was initiated, passed, and raised in Lodge Clyde, on 20th Sept., 1872, and that, happening to be in Glasgow for a day or two, the meeting was arranged for with his "Mother."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The general committee of subscribers to this school met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. S. Rosenthal, V. Patron, in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. Browne, Benj. Head, John Symonds, F. Adlard, Hyde Pullen, G. J. Palmer, Collard Moutrie, J. W. M. Dosell, Jesse Turner, and F. Binckes (Secretary).

One petition was presented and accepted, and two applications from ex-pupils for outfits were considered, and £5 in each case granted.

The committee adjourned after passing a vote of thanks to the chair.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—WINTER SPECIFICS.—All can estimate the disadvantages to the human system from breathing foul air, such as must necessarily be inhaled during our winters. The safest correctives, and best purifiers of the blood, are Holloway's Bilemastic Pills, which are too well known and too highly esteemed to require commendation here. Besides cleansing the system, they improve the appetite, render digestion perfect, admirably regulate the liver, increase the secretion of the kidneys; they mildly yet effectually act upon the bowels without griping or causing an inconvenience. So long as human nature remains what it is, every person will now and again require regulation of organs disordered by irregular or too generous living, and too liberal potations.—ADVT.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 41).—An emergency meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, February 3rd, previous to the annual meeting for installation of W.M. on the next day. The lodge was opened at 7.30 p.m., by Major Preston, W.M., assisted by the following brethren, Cooper, as I.P.M.; Clark, S.W.; Brown, J.W.; Everington, Secretary; Falkner, S.D.; C. Wilkinson, J.D.; Wilton, P.M., &c., D.C.; Braham, I.G. There were also present Bros. Rubie, P.M.; and Dr. Hopkins, P. Prov. G.S.W. for Warwickshire, and many others. After the lodge had been opened, and the circular of summons read, the last named brother, by permission, addressed the W.M. and the members present, thanking them for many acts of courtesy and kindness during the few months he had resided in Bath, and specially for his admission as a joining member at the meeting in January, when illness prevented his attendance. He remarked, that during the 28 years of his career in Masonry, whenever he had founded or joined a Lodge or Chapter, or had been appointed to rule over one, in either of the three Provinces to which he had belonged, he had marked the event in some special manner, either by an address suitable to the occasion, or by a present to the lodge, or in some other way. Desiring not to make this an exception, he had prepared two large Masonic Charts, which he offered, one for the acceptance of the retiring W.M., the other as a present to the Royal Cumberland Lodge, and with it several of his published Masonic and other works, namely, "A Musical Ritual for the Three Craft Degrees," "Three Original Lectures on Freemasonry," and "An Account of the opening of the Masonic Temple at Jersey," with the oration he gave on the occasion. The lodge was opened in the second degree by the W.M., when, by request, Bro. Dr. Hopkins took the chair, and examined Bros. Robinson Murlis, and Hunt, on their proficiency. This proving satisfactory, they were entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the third degree. On their re-admission, the candidates were duly raised to the sublime degree of M.M., by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, Bro. Cooper, P.M., kindly rendering assistance in one portion of the ceremony. Bro. Dr. Hopkins then gave the charge, and also an interesting lecture on the third degree, enforcing the object of it, and enlarging on its traditional history. On the proposition of the W.M., a vote of thanks was carried by acclamation, for the assistance and instruction thus rendered by the newly-received member. Apologies for absence were read from Bros. Mann, P.M.; and R. Carey, P.M. The lodge was finally closed at a quarter to ten.

The annual meeting of this ancient lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, Feb. 4th, at four p.m., when there was a goodly assemblage of the brethren of this and other lodges. The lodge was opened in the first degree by Bro. Major Preston, W.M., assisted by his officers, namely, Bros. R. Carey, I.P.M.; Clarke, S.W.; Brown, J.W.; Everingham, Sec.; Ashley, Treas.; Wilton, D.C.; Falkner, S.D.; C. Wilkinon, J.D.; Graham, I.G. The circular of summons was read, and also the minutes of the previous regular meeting in January, which were confirmed. On the proposition of the W.M., seconded by Bro. Carey, and supported by Bro. Rubie, a committee was appointed to draw up a letter of condolence to the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, and Prov. G.M. of Somerset, on his bereavement by the death of the countess. The W.M. then drew attention to a presentation which had been made to the lodge on the previous evening by a joining member, Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P. Prov. G.S.W. for Warwickshire, of a Masonic chart, and also of several of his Masonic publications. He proposed a vote of thanks for the gifts, and that the chart be framed, so as to be hung up in the Masonic Temple, and the resolution having been duly seconded, was passed. The lodge was opened in the second degree by the W.M., who then gave up the chair to the Installing Master, Bro. Ashley. Bro. Clark was presented to him as W.M. elect, by Bros. Wilton and Carey, P.M.'s, and after the usual introductory proceedings, was duly obligated as such. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, all below the rank of P.M. were requested to retire, and a Board of Installed Masters was regularly opened, the chairs of S. and J.W. and I.G. being taken respectively by Past Masters Dr. Hopkins, Wilton and Carey. There was a goodly array of those who had passed the chair, in whose presence Bro. Clark was inducted into the chair of K.S., after which the board was closed, and the brethren were admitted, who then took part in the customary salutation of proclamations, &c. The new W.M. appointed his officers as follows, giving an appropriate address to each on investing him with his collar and jewel, in regard to the duties desolving upon him:—Bros. Major Preston, I.P.M.; Brown, S.W.; Everingham, J.W.; Ashley, Treas.; Wilton, D.C.; Falkner, Sec.; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; Braham, J.D.; Denham, I.G.; Styles, Assistant D.C.; Gummer, Tyler. These necessary arrangements for the conduct of the lodge throughout the next year having been completed, Bro. Ashley gave the three addresses to the W.M., the Wardens, and the brethren generally, in a truly impressive manner; indeed, his management of the installation throughout was so effective as to meet with general approbation, and to elicit a well merited vote of thanks, which, having been duly proposed and seconded, was carried by acclamation. A similar vote was in like manner passed in favour of Major Preston, for the efficiency with which he had conducted the affairs of the lodge during the past year. The W.M. concluded the proceedings in the temple, by expressing his gratitude for the honour conferred upon him, and his intention to exert himself to the utmost in maintaining the dignity, the efficiency, and the Masonic character of the body over which he has just been legally constituted the ruler, and finally closed the lodge at about six p.m. In addition to the distinguished members and officers of the lodge already named, we may mention Past Masters S. Cooper, Capt. R. Peel Floyd, J. B. Montrie, and J. S. Turner. Among the visitors were Bros. General Doherty, P.M. 53 and W.M. 906; W. F. Bennett, P.M. 53; Dr. Tunstall, P.M. 53; W. Smith, P.M. 53; J. L. Whitley, P.M. 48; T. S. Keene, P.M. 906. According to custom, the brethren re-assembled at the Castle Hotel to partake of the annual banquet, which was prepared by Bro. Rubie, and served à la Russe in his usual good style. Of course Bro. Clark, W.M., presided, supported on his left by Bros. Preston, I.P.M.; J. S. Bartrum, W.M. 379; R. Carey, P.M. 41; and on his right by Bros. Rev. Dun, Past Grand Chaplain of England; Major Bousfield, M.P. for Bath; Wilton, P. Prov. G.S.W., and P.M. 41; as well as many other distinguished Masons. As on all such occasions, the after-dinner proceedings and speeches referred chiefly to the events of the day, interspersed with music and song. To this, however, there was one exception, which deserves mention. Some time ago an effort was made by the Freemasons of Bath to repair the west front of the Abbey, in harmony with the restoration of other portions. A considerable sum was raised, which was expended, leaving much still to be done. The Rev. Bro. Davey introduced the subject, and made a powerful appeal to those present, to complete the work, himself offering 50 guineas as the nucleus of the fund. Bro. Carey, who has long shown great interest in the matter, spoke to the same effect, and as the example thus set was followed by many others, who gave their names for various sums, there seems good hope of success in the work; indeed the sums put down in the course of the evening amounted to nearly £150.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY, (No. 185).—A very numerous gathering of brethren assembled at Cannon-street Hotel, E.C., on Monday the 15th inst. The special attraction being a desire to do honour to Bro. John Ross, the W.M. Elect, whose installation was announced to take place that evening. Prior to this event, some amount of usual lodge business had to be disposed of, the most important of which was the conferring of the Master Mason's degree upon Bro. Barber, and initiating into the ancient mysteries Bro. Geo. Downing. These ceremonies, as well as the rather difficult one of installation, were performed by Bro. John Constable, the acting W.M., with consummate ability. The several addresses were delivered with rare excellence, and marked feeling, securing the undivided attention of the audience, whose approbation was expressed by vociferous applause. The newly-installed Master, who seemed perfectly composed, and quite at home in his exalted position, addressing a few appropriate observations to each, invested his officers as follows: Bros. John Constable I.P.M.; J. D. Barnett, S.W.; D. Posener, J.W.; John Peartree, Treasurer; Phil Levy, Secretary; Bilby, Organist; Geo. Pare, S.D.; Bailey, J.D.; Croker, I.G.; Vesper, Tyler. The proceedings now became highly interesting. Bro. Saul Solomon, P.M., rose and delivered a most excellent address, in which he, in aptly chosen sentences, enumerated the high qualities which distinguished the I.P.M., Bro. Constable, and cited the great advantages the lodge had gained through his instrumentality, not only during his year of office, but ever since he had been connected with it. It afforded him unalloyed pleasure to present Bro. Constable with a slight token of the high esteem and affection in which he is held, it consisted of a handsome Past Masters' Gold Jewel, an elegant Silver Salver, and a Testimonial on Vellum, in a costly Alhambra Frame. This last Bro. Solomon considered the most important, in as much as it may be handed down from generation to generation, and upon it his posterity may gaze with pardonable pride, as having been presented to their ancestors in token of the high esteem and love in which he was held by his fellow men with whom he associated. The inscriptions on vellum, and with obvious alteration on the salver, were as follows: Lodge of Tranquillity, No. 185. "The brethren of this lodge, at a meeting thereof, held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, E.C., on the 18th day of January, 1875, resolved unanimously to present this testimonial, with a Jewel and a salver, to Bro. John Constable, in recognition of the many services which he had rendered to the lodge, and of the efficient manner in which the duties of its W.M. had been performed by him during the then expiring year of his Mastership, and also as a mark of the brethren's admiration of his qualities as a man and a Mason. Presented in open lodge on the 15th of February, 1875." Bro. Constable briefly, but feelingly, thanked the brethren for their, what he deemed, exaggerated appreciation of the slight services he had been able to render, and promised that such energies as he possessed, will in future, as they have been in the past, be directed to promote the prosperity of the lodge. The brethren then adjourned to the banquetting-hall, where an elegant spread awaited them, provided by Bro. Silver. The newly-installed W.M. presided, who, when the cloth was removed, proceeded to set an excellent example by the concise way in which he disposed of the various toasts. The responses were as brief, even Bro. Fred. Binckes, Grand Steward, checked his usual flow of eloquence when called upon to respond for the Grand Officers. This duty, he said, very often fell to his lot, although he was not entitled to it, he certainly was very nearly, yet not exactly, a Grand Officer. However, for want of any one better, he is always pleased to say a few words in praise of the Grand Officers who filled their several positions with honour to themselves and to the great advantage of the Craft. He could not allow this opportunity to pass without expressing his tribute of admiration of Bro. Constable as a man and a Mason. Whatever he may have done for this lodge, we, who have watched his career from without, could not help admiring his zeal, energy, kindness, and above all his fervent appreciation of all appertaining to the duties of the Craft. He had been pleased to witness the testimonials presented in such feeling terms by Bro. Solomon, but, after all that has been said and done, not half the debt of gratitude to which Bro. Constable is entitled, has been liquidated. Bro. Hickman, W.M. 188, briefly responded for the visitors. For the Past Masters, Bro. Morris Hart was called upon. He said—"The W.M. may probably think I feel overwhelmed with gratitude for the honour of being named the representative of the august body of Past Masters of this lodge, but such is not the case, as I cannot pretend to represent them conscientiously. I certainly have been a Past Master of a Lodge of Tranquillity for fifteen years, but the present lodge seems quite different in all its aspects, mainly through the efforts of the Immediate Past Master. A transformation has been accomplished, so advantageous, that the old Past Masters are well pleased to be consigned into deserved obscurity, especially when we see many brethren of ability gradually advancing in the higher offices of the lodge. The testimonials which have been presented gave me profound satisfaction. I congratulate Bro. Constable with all my heart, and in this I am sure I am joined by the Past Masters generally. The present proud position of the lodge warrants a hopefulness for its future prosperity. Whatever services shall be required the brethren may rest assured will cheerfully be rendered by the Past Masters of the lodge. Prosperity to the benevolent fund produced an eloquent appeal from P.M. Solomon and was liberally responded to by many brethren. Bro. Constable proposed, amidst great cheering, the health of the Worshipful Master, who, in accordance with his determination to be brief, replied in few but very appropriate terms. The evening's proceedings were enlivened by the vocal efforts of Bros. Taylor, Baxter, and Barter, under the direction and with the assistance of Bro. Theodore Distin. Bro. Geo. Perrin, who happened to be present as a visitor, kindly volunteered his assistance. His well-known vocal abilities contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the assembly, who thanked him repeatedly with well-deserved applause. The Past Masters present were Bros. Saul Solomon, Morris Hart, Holbrook, Harfield, Myer Harris, Bloomfield, N. Moss, E. Gottheil, N. Gluckstein. Among an immense number of visitors the following were the most noteworthy:—Bros. F. Binckes, P.M., P.Z., G. Steward; Hickman, W.M. 188; Buckland, W.M. 204; Greenbaum, W.M. Montifore; Dalwood, W.M. 860; Groombridge, W.M. Marquis of Lorne; Dymis, P.M. 421; Lazarus, P.M. 205; Wells, P.M. 1314; Nash, S.D. 1347; Barden, I.G. 1347; Carter, P.M. 283; Taylor, P.G.D.; Wilts, P.M. 580; Frankford, 188; Higgins, P.M. 421; Geo. Perrin, 23.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The installation ceremony of this old lodge was held on the 9th, at the Gate of St. John of Jerusalem, St. John's-lane, Clerkwell, the birthplace of the "Gentleman's Magazine," under Cave, and of "Reports of Parliament," written by Dr. Johnson. In the hall where Garrick made his essay on histories there had assembled a large company, including Bros. J. Parkinson, G.D., D.P. G.M. of Middlesex, and P.M. of Bard of Avon; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C.; J. Mason, P.G.S.B.; Buss, T.P.G.S. of Middlesex; Headon, W.M. Great City; Chesterton, L. 72; Sowden, P.M. 49; Dodson, P.M. 72; Gilbert, Radford, 777; Captain Styan, Treasurer of the Macdonald Lodge; Cue, P.M. 179; T. Preston, of the Great City Lodge. Bro. Hillhouse was in the chair, and Bro. James Terry presented Bro. While for installation. Bro. While, as Senior Warden, having been unanimously elected to the chair, and the Board of Past Masters having been formed, Bro. While was installed, in a most workmanlike manner, by his immediate predecessor, Bro. Hillhouse, who astonished the old Masons present by his efficient working. After the customary salutations, the new W.M. appointed as his Officers the following:—Bros. Griggs, S.W.; James Hill, J.W.; Winsland, Treasurer; Crump, Secretary (for the 23rd time); Snare, S.D.; Holford, J.D.; Pearcy, I.G.; Todd, D.C.; Flaws, A.D.C.; Patmore, W.S. The ballot was then taken for two gentlemen, who were admitted and initiated according to ancient form. After the usual business, the hall was set out as a banquetting-room, and the brethren enjoyed an excellent dinner, well served by Bro. Gay, the host. The W.M., in proposing the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," said that all Englishmen toasted the Queen as their constitutional sovereign, but Masons had other ties of affection, she being the daughter of a Mason, and the mother of their Grand Master, who was the father of "our kings to be." The toast having been honoured, the W.M. gave

"The Present and Past Grand Officers," and made an allusion, in terms of deep sympathy, to the affliction which had befallen the Earl of Carnarvon, D.G.M., in coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Parkinson, the W.M. said it was a matter of deep gratification to him to greet their distinguished brother in this lodge, and mentioned that when he first met Bro. Parkinson it was not as a Mason; but their brother was carrying on a work which formed one of the great pillars of the Craft, which Bro. Parkinson was spending days and nights in, bringing to light the ills attending the badly carried out Poor Laws, by which the poor and wretched were left, in some instances, to perish in the streets; in others, are so crowded in the workhouses, as to inflict the utmost misery. The result of Bro. Parkinson's work with a small chosen band, was that the Casual Acts were passed, and Gathorne Hardy's Act was now in full operation. Bro. Parkinson, in reply, said that the W.M. had given the credit which he ought to take himself, for he, by his shrewd advice, had been one means of carrying out those great reforms of which he had spoken. He congratulated the lodge upon its excellent working, and Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson added that the Master of a lodge must be like a figure-head of a ship, to lead the way, and as a helm to guide it, and the Master they had would fulfil those requirements. Bro. Mason also spoke, and the W.M., after acknowledging the cordial toast of his name, proposed "The Health of his Immediate P.M.," upon whose breast he placed the jewel of the lodge, given only to those Masters who worked the ceremonies and installed their successors. Bros. Buss, Headen, J. Terry, and Hillhouse also spoke, and a very enjoyable evening ended, just before the hour when Dr. Johnson was wont to leave the gate for his much loved Fleet-street.

BATH.—LODGE OF HONOUR (No. 379).—In compliance with the summons, the members met at the Masonic Hall, at 8 p.m., on Monday, February 8th. Bro. J. S. Bartrum, W.M., opened the lodge in the first degree, assisted by Bros. Phillips, I.P.M.; Cooke, S.W.; Dr. H. Hopkins, P.M., &c., acting as J.W.; C. S. Barker, Treasurer; H. Culliford Hopkins, Secretary; J. Dutton, P.M., acting as S.D.; H. Smyth, J. D.; Leir, I.G.; Gazzard, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Mr. Charles Edwin Little, who had been regularly proposed as a candidate for initiation. This proving favourable, he was introduced, properly prepared, and duly initiated by the I.P.M., to whom the W.M. had resigned his chair for the purpose. The delivery of the charge was necessarily postponed to the next meeting. The W.M. having resumed his place in the east, called on the Treasurer to read his report for the past year, which, having been certified by the auditors, was duly passed. Considerable discussion arose on matters connected with the internal affairs of the lodge, of no general interest. No other business offering, the proceedings were brought to a close at quarter to ten.

SLEAFORD.—ST. BOTOLPH'S LODGE (No. 588).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge took place on Monday 8th inst., at which were present the following:—Bros. J. Bellamy, P.M., P. Prov. J.G.W., W.M.; Rev. W. Lynes, P.M., P. Prov. G.R. Staffordshire; T. E. Jacobson, P.M., P. Prov. J.G.W.; T. J. Tomlinson, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; D. Elwood, P.M., Sec.; E. R. Dibben, S.W.; G. Williams, J.W.; W. Bourn, W. Stringer, and others. The business comprised the raising of Bro. Thorpe and the initiation of Messrs. R. Wildgoose and C. F. Bedford, the ceremonies being performed separately. The brethren appeared in Masonic mourning, in consequence of the recent death of one of the Past Masters of the lodge. Refreshment succeeded labour, and the remainder of the evening was spent in harmony.

WIMBORNE.—CUTHBERGA LODGE (No. 622).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the annual festival of St. John on Monday last, when Bro. J. W. Luff, S.W., P.G.S. Works, was installed W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The event attracted an unusually large attendance of members and visitors, including many of high distinction in the Craft, and the proceedings of the day were carried out in a truly Masonic manner. The Masonic Hall, where the gathering took place, was splendidly decorated in honour of the occasion. The lodge-room, too, which is handsomely furnished and cleverly lighted, was generally admired. Lodge opened at 4.30 under the presidency of the retiring W.M., Bro. Montague Guest, P.G.S.W., when the following brethren were present:—Bros. H. C. Burt, I.P.M.; J. W. Luff, S.W.; A. J. Budden, J.W.; F. Binckes, P.G.S. (Secretary Boys' School); Captain Moore, 76; Wyndham, P.M., P.G.S.W. (Wilts); Holliday, P.M. (Ringwood); A. E. Guest, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W.; Rev. T. Pearce, P.D. Prov. G.M., P. Prov. G.S.W.; H. C. Burt, P.M., P. Prov. A.D.C.; Whitehead Smith, P.M., P.G.D.C.; E. T. Budden, P.M., W.M. 386, P.G.S.D.; W. J. Fletcher, P.M.; C. R. Rowe, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W.; Soppitt, P.M., 472, P. Prov. G.S. Works; Robins, 227, 472; Dyer (Ringwood); Pike (Wareham); R. Friend, W. J. Tink, G. Wilson, J. Hammond, Bugden, Baverstock; Ings, W.M. Poole Lodge; G. R. Crickmay, P.M. 170; C. E. Amos (London) 921, 460; A. H. Green, 1266; Ponsonby, Atkins, Captain Herford, Austin, Dr. Philpots, Hunter, Yearsley, Baynton, J. B. Cole, Braine, Raymond, Ellis, Kerridge, P.M., and others. After the usual preliminaries the worthy Bro. Luff was duly installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient form, the ceremony being rendered specially effective by the number of Past Masters present. The Installing Master, who admirably performed his duties, was Bro. E. T. Budden, P.M. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. M. Guest, I.P.M.; A. J. Budden, S.W.; J. Hammond, J.W.; C. W. Wyndham Treas.; J. Whitehead Smith, Sec.; J. A. Atkins, S.D.; Captain Herford, J.D.; Herbert, Org.; R. Friend, I.G. The business of the lodge having been concluded in harmony, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment. A most sumptuous banquet had been prepared, under the immediate direction of the W.M. and a committee, and every provision was made for the comfort of the guests. The W.M. presided, supported by his Wardens, and the party numbered upwards of fifty—the most numerous company ever seen at the Wimborne Lodge. "The Queen and the Craft," "The Health of the W.M.," "Success to the Masonic Charities," and various other toasts were heartily drunk, that of the charities being responded to by Bro. F. Binckes, in his usual eloquent and persuasive manner. Forty-eight guineas were afterwards added by brethren present to the list of Bro. H. C. Burt, who has accepted the office of Steward for the Province of Dorset, at the next festival of Boys' School, the retiring W.M. having, with his accustomed generosity, placed 100 guineas on it previously. Some good singing after contributed to make it a most agreeable and pleasant evening.

THE WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 864) held its usual meeting at Anderson's Hotel, on Monday, the 15th inst. Present: Bros. James Weaver, P.M. 864 and 1319, P. Prov. Org. Middlesex; James Brett, P.G.P.; R. W. Little, Sec. Girls' School; Hurlston, P.M.; Jones, P.M.; Smith, P.M.; Quilter, P.M., Treasurer; Kingston, S.W.; Walker, J.W.; Pritchard, S.D.; Walmsley, J.D.; Moore I.G.; and about 25 brethren. Visitors, Bros. E. Clark and Major Finney. Bro. Weaver, P.M., occupied the chair of W.M., and initiated into our mysteries Mr. Henry Cole, passed to the second degree Bros. Holland and Captain Waterhouse, of No. 255, and raised to the degree of M.M., Bros. Hum, Williams, Ward, and Oberti. The three ceremonies were performed in Bro. Weaver's usual masterly manner, and occupied him just three hours, but as Masonry is a labour of love to him, we are sure he derived as much pleasure from giving the ceremonies, as the brethren did who heard him. There was a notice of motion on the summons, which was ultimately withdrawn. Bro. P.M. Jones will represent the lodge at the Girls' Festival as steward. The brethren then retired to the banquet room, where a very pleasant evening was spent.

SOUTHEAST.—PRIORY LODGE (No. 1000).—This very flourishing lodge held its annual festival on Tuesday the 26th ult., in the lodge room, at the Middleton Hotel, Southeast, for the installation of the W.M. elect. The lodge was opened at two o'clock. After the preliminary business had been disposed of, the W.M. elect, Bro. Albert Lucking, P.M. No. 160, and Prov. G.A. Dir. of Cer. was duly installed Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being very ably performed by the Revd. Worshipful Brother S.R. Wigram, P.M., and P.Z. 214; Worshipful Brother Wm. Pissey, P.M. 160, P.P.J.G. Warden, acting as director of ceremonies. The W.M. afterwards appointed, and invested his officers as follows: Bros. E. E. Phillips, P.M. 379, as S.W.; the Revd. S. R. Wigram, P.M. and P.Z. 214, and P.P.G. Chaplain, as J.W. and Chaplain; F. Wood, P.M. 1000, and P. Prov. S.G.W., re-elected Treasurer; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 100, W.M. 160, and P. Prov. J.G.D. re-appointed Secretary; W. Frost S.D.; W. P. Belliss, J.D.; H. Rowley, P.M. 1000, and P. Prov. S.G.D., D.C.; Chignell, I.G.; S. J. Weston, and F. Cantor, Stewards; Bro. Mountain, Tyler. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Taylor into the mysteries of the Craft. After the lodge was closed, the brethren, about thirty in number, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. F. Cantor, of the Middleton Hotel. Besides the above mentioned, the following Past Masters and visitors were present: Bros. I. R. Hemmann I.P.M. 1000; Jas. Willing, J.W. No. 877 (Domestic) and W.M. 1507 (Metropolitan); J. Clarkson, P.M. 865, and W.M. 1457 (Bagshaw lodge); H. G. Savage, P.M. 174; J. Weston (No. 25, Ireland); J. C. Johnstone, P.M. No. 20, Sligo (Ireland); S. Lilley, Sec. 1457; F. T. Dawson, P.M. 211, and P. Prov. G.O. During the evening, Bro. J. R. Hemmann, the I.P.M., was presented by the W.M., Bro. A. Lucking, in the name of the lodge, with the Past Master's Jewel. Bro. Hemmann returned thanks in a suitable manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the evening was enlivened with songs, from Bros. Dawson, Phillips, Rowley, Savage, Berry, &c., and a very pleasant evening was spent.

KIRKBY LONSDALE.—UNDERLEY LODGE (No. 1074).—The annual meeting of this lodge took place at three o'clock on Friday, Feb. 5th. The only business was the installation of the W.M. elect, the Earl of Bective, M.P., P.G.M., supplemented by the annual banquet. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. D. Page, M.D., assisted by his Wardens and a full attendance of members and visitors. The P.G.M. being announced, he was admitted and received with the accustomed honours. The lodge being opened in the second degree, his lordship was presented for the benefit of installation by Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P. Prov. G.R.; the first part of the ceremony was conducted by the W.M. The chair of K.S. was then assumed by Bro. John Bowes, who installed the noble earl as W.M. of the Underley lodge for the ensuing year. The concluding portion of the ceremony was most impressively rendered by Bro. W. Dodd, P.M. 1074. The W.M. closed the lodge down to the first degree, and then appointed and invested his Wardens and other officers: the former being Bros. the Rev. Canon Ware, P.M., &c., and W. James, P.M., &c. Bro. Dr. Page, I.P.M., then handed to his lordship a very handsome marble timepiece and asked him to present it to their worthy Bro. Anderson, who had filled the office of Tyler without fee or reward from the time the lodge was constituted. The W.M. willingly acceded, and in graceful terms made the presentation. Bro. Anderson feelingly replied. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The chair was occupied by the W.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., P.G.M., who was supported on the right and left by Bros. the Rev. J. V. Thompson, Chaplain; John Talbot, W.M. 129, and Prov. G.J.W.; H. Rauthmell, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; Joseph Bintley, P.M., Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Dr. Page, I.P.M., Prov. G.S.B.; John Bowes, P.M., P. Prov. G.R.; J. Holme, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.W.; W. Dodd, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; W. Bell, 314, (Preston); R. Pearson, P.M., Prov. G.R. West Lancashire; J. Postlethwaite, P.M., Prov. G. Steward West Lancashire; W. James, P.M., P. Prov. G.D., J.W. The S.W., the Rev. Canon Ware, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., ruled in the West. The following toasts were ably proposed and responded to:—"The Queen," "The Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master; and the rest of the Grand Officers," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., W.M., and Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master; John Whitwell, M.P., Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master; and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," "The I.P.M., Bro. Dr. D. Page," "The Wardens and Officers of 1074," "The Visiting Brethren," "The Masonic Charities," "The Treasurer," "To all Poor and Distressed Freemasons throughout the Globe, and speedy relief to them." The music was under the direction of Bro. Godfrey, and contributed largely to the pleasures of the evening.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—The ninth anniversary and installation meeting of this prosperous lodge, which now numbers over forty members, was held on the 3rd inst. at the St. James's Hotel, Derby. The W.M., Bro. F. Iliffe, P.J.G.W., and Installing Master, opened the lodge in due form and with solemn prayer, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, after which the lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bro. Henry T. Bobart, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented and took the obligation. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and all below the rank of Installed Master having retired, the W.M. elect was entrusted with the pass-word, and withdrew. A Board of Installed Masters being opened, he was re-admitted and duly installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient rite, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. After having invested Bro. Iliffe with the collar and jewel as I.P.M., the board was closed. The Master Masons were re-admitted, and the new W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the various degrees. The W.M. closed the lodge in the third, and afterwards in the second degree. He appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. F. Iliffe, I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Beathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M., Treas.; J. Worsnop, P.M., Sec.; Theo. Hills, S.D.; Thos. Gadsby, J.D.; Geo. Pipes, D. of C.; G. F. Edwards, Org.; Josh. Heathcote, I.G. The customary addresses to the officers were delivered by Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M. Two candidates were proposed for initiation, and the lodge was closed in ancient form. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, at which the W.M. presided, when the numerous loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to by appropriate speeches.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Gregorian Arms Tavern, 96, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, on Thursday, February 4th. The lodge was opened by Bro. C. Deakin, W.M., who was supported by Bros. J. Ruse, S.W.; J. A. Smith, J.W.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; W. Batchelor, S.D.; W. T. Lover, J.D.; F. Garbett, I.G.; J. Stock, M.C.; G. J. Grace, P.M.; J. H. Harmsworth, P.M.; J. Porter, W. May, and others. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. C. B. Cheen, 849; P. Magee, 548; J. Howe, 1326; T. H. Miller, P.M. 907, &c. The work, done in an admirable manner, was raising Bros. J. Porter, and J. Howe, 1326, to the third degree, and initiating Mr. Thomas Simpson into the mysteries of the Order. It was arranged to have an emergency meeting on the first Thursday of the ensuing month. Business being ended, the lodge was closed. There was not any banquet. Soon after the lodge was closed the brethren separated.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., at the Marquess Tavern, Canonbury. The chair was taken by Bro. Younghusband, P. Prov. G.M., P.M., P.Z., supported by Bro. Dickinson, acting S.W., in the unavoidable absence of H. W. Cattlin, who arrived later. Bro. Rafter, S.W.; Bro. Bigley, Sec., and the other officers, all of whom were at their posts punctually. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. Frank F. Toole, P.S.G.W. (Essex), W.M. 363; Samuel Poynter, W.M. 1491, P.M. 902; J. W. Myers, P.M. 276; T. Shackell, P.M., 193; T. Knight, P.M. 902; W. Manger, W.M. 1314; W. Davison, P.M. 30, and others. After the confirmation of the minutes of the preceding meeting, Bro. J. B. Cohen was raised to the third degree, and Bro. Jaffa passed to the second degree, both ceremonies being very ably performed. To suit the convenience of Bro. Younghusband, it was then arranged that, prior to the initiates being introduced, a silver salver which had been voted in accordance with a proposition made by Bro. Moxon, seconded by Bro. Bigley, should be presented to Bro. Shackell. The piece of plate, which bore the following inscription, "Royal Standard Lodge, No. 1298. Presented to Worshipful Bro. Shackell, P.M. 30, P. Prov. G.P., Hants, W.M., on the occasion of his leaving England, as a slight token of brotherly love, esteem, and goodwill. London, February 2nd, 1875," was then presented by Bro. Younghusband, who said: Brethren, I am happy to have had the privilege of presiding over you this evening, more especially as it is an occasion when we are anxious to give honour to one to whom honour is due; to celebrate his removal to an enlarged sphere of usefulness; to rejoice at his prosperity; and to wish him God speed in the journey he is about to take. But the joy which we feel at his success, is chastened by the thought that his gain is our loss—the loss of one who has presided over us with dignity during our hours of labour, and by his geniality lent a charm to our festive board. We grieve that the voice to which we have become accustomed, and to which we have listened with so much pleasure, will soon be no longer heard amongst us. Speaking personally, such was his kindness of heart, and readiness to oblige, of which I have had ample proof, I shall miss him severely. In my judgment, no amount of honour we can confer upon him is beyond his merits, although I am sure he will not esteem the testimonial we are about to present to him by its intrinsic value, but by the sentiments of regard of which it is the symbol—Bro. Shackell, such are the feelings with which we one and all regard you, and I am proud to be the medium of expressing them. When separated from us, by a wide expanse of land and water, I doubt not that your thoughts will often revert to the former companions of your toils, and be assured that your name will ever remain fresh in our memories, accompanied by an ardent wish for your return to the land of your birth. Permit me now, in the name of the Royal Standard Lodge, No. 1298, of which you were the founder, as the Consecrating Master, and first occupant of its chair, to present you with this silver salver, as a feeble token of our esteem and gratitude, together with this Past Master's jewel, which I have the honour to affix on your breast, and to wish with all our hearts, to you and yours, long life, health, and prosperity.—Bro. Shackell, much affected, in acknowledging the presentation, said he felt quite incompetent by word to express what he felt for that and the other kind presents he had received from the brethren, and he assured them that although in a few days he should have left this country for India, his thoughts would always be with them, and he trusted from his heart, in after years, to return and present himself at headquarters, and again work on their behalf, but more vigorously. Again thanking them, and highly eulogising several of his officers, Bro. Shackell concluded a lengthy reply, which had been marked throughout by an earnestness unmistakable.—The ballot having been taken, resulted in an unanimous approval that Messrs. Heine and Kleimnhausen should become members, and they were accordingly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. Bro. Harry Moxon, who represented the lodge at the last festival of the Benevolent Institution, then stated that his appeal to his friends and brethren, on behalf of that excellent charity, had been so cheerfully responded to, that his list of subscribers had reached a very respectable amount, which he had hopes of considerably augmenting before the day of finally accounting for his stewardship, and he thanked them sincerely for their generous support. The Tyler and Treasurer having been elected for the ensuing year, and the further business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form, and the brethren afterwards re-assembled in the banquet-room and sat down to a sumptuous repast. This over, and the cloth cleared, the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England," "The Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon, and the other Grand Officers, past and present," coupling with it the name of Bro. Frank Toole. The toasts having been received with usual Royal Standard fire, Bro. Toole responded at great length and in most eloquent terms, and we regret being unable to give his speech in extenso. He said he felt an unspeakable amount of pleasure at being present, and expressed his great desire to carry out, to the utmost of his power and ability, all the principles which Masonry inculcated. Masonry and Masonic Institutions were progressive and progressing. The principles of Masons were grand, glorious, and true ones, and they ought not to keep them exclusive. He was sincerely thankful to them for the kind manner in which they had drank the health of the Grand Officers. Bro. Ballantyne, P.M., then rose and said, as one of their oldest members he had been requested to propose the toast of the evening, "Health, Long Life, Happiness, and Prosperity to their W.M., Bro. Robert Shackell," who to their great regret was now about leaving England for India. Perhaps it was to their feelings of social brotherhood that Masonry owed so much of its success in our midst. It bound men together in one common chain of indissoluble friendship, and it was gratifying to feel that although a link of that chain was now about to be severed, when their brother reached another land—his adopted home—there would be an opportunity of again uniting the links, of which he doubted not due advantage would be taken. The toast having been warmly drunk, Bro. Shackell, in response said, that when he first received the intimation of his appointment he felt, and had ever since experienced, a growing sense of his responsibilities, and nothing could have tended more to increase that feeling than the expression of goodwill which he had that evening witnessed, and he should ever remember the years he had spent with the brethren of that lodge as amongst the most pleasant in his experience, and that whatever he might have been able to accomplish was as nothing compared with what he had learnt. He trusted they might all be spared to meet again in Old England, but whatever might betide him, his earnest prayers for their welfare would be ever with him. The "Health of the Visiting Brethren" was then proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Poynter, who dwelt at some length upon the zeal and attention which the W.M. had shown in the discharge of his duties. Bro. Catlin responded to the toast of "The Officers," Bro. Moxon to that of "The Masonic Charities," and the Tyler's toast closed a very interesting meeting.

SWANSEA.—TALBOT LODGE (No. 1323).—The annual festival of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Wind-street, and was attended by a large number of members and visiting brethren from far and near. In the absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. G. B. Brock, Prov. G.S.W., the chair was taken by the D.P.G.M., Bro. Edward J. Morris, the senior P.M. of the lodge, and among those present at the meeting and at the annual banquet afterwards, may be mentioned, Bros.

the Rev. Latimer M. Jones, D.P.G.M. Western Division, South Wales; Charles Bath, P. Prov. S.G.W.; James G. Hall, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Marmaduke Tennant, P. Prov. S.G.W.; T. D. Daniel, Prov. J.G.W.; Geo. Allen, P. Prov. J.G.W.; T. Beavan Phillips, Prov. J.G.W. (Western division); W. J. Morgan, P. Prov. J.G.W. (Western division); Rev. A. H. P. Trewman, P. Prov. G. Chaplain, (Somerset); Rev. C. T. Heartley, M.A., P. Prov. G. Chaplain; John Jones, Prov. G. Treasurer; Clement S. B. Gardner, P. Prov. G. Treasurer; S. B. Power, P. Prov. G.R.; Lawrence Tulloch, P. Prov. G.R.; Walter Whittington, Prov. G. Secretary; W. H. Tucker, Prov. S.G.D.; Edward Daniel, P. Prov. S.G.D.; William Williams, P. Prov. G.S.D. (Monmouth); W. G. Davies, Prov. G. Sup. Works; J. Jones Hewson, P. Prov. G.D.C.; John Rogers, Prov. G.S.B.; Robert Margrave, P. Prov. G.S.B. (Western division); Edward Fricker, P. Prov. G. Organist; W. L. Jackson, Prov. G. Steward; Evan F. Daniel, P. Prov. G. Steward; Charles Taylor, W.M. 110 (Merthyr); James Goodall, W.M. 237 (Swansea); W. Griffith Davies, W.M. 364 (Neath); E. Cambridge Phillips, W.M. 651 (Brecon); John Jones, W.M. 833 (Aberavon); John C. Morris, W.M. 476 (Carmarthen); W. Stamer Thompson, W.M. 671 (Llanelli); David Evans, Walter Mills, G. B. Haynes, W. J. Rees, John Lloyd, E. S. Hartland, Thos. Thomas, H. Fry, A. F. Bayntun, R. W. Beor, Walter Lewis, H. A. Latimer, P. Ambrosoli, C. J. Brock, Jenkin Jones (Carmarthen), Thomas Ford, James Livingstone, W. Paxton Garrett, Robert Maine, Ebenezer Thomas, Rev. J. Spilsbury, W. Thomas, Bowen, and others. The lodge was opened in the first degree, the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed and some formal business disposed of, on the completion of which Bros. Lewis, Latimer, Ambrosoli, and Brock were brought up to answer the usual questions and retired. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and the brethren above-named were readmitted, properly prepared, and duly passed to the Fellow Craft degree. The W.M. elect, Bro. John Jones Jenkins, S.W., was then presented by Bro. Charles Bath, P. Prov. S.G.W., and having assented to the ancient charges and regulations, took the customary obligation. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and afterwards as a Board of Installed Masters, when Bro. Jones Jenkins was, in conformity with the established rites, duly installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony of installation being conducted throughout by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the year:—Bros. John Jones Hewson, S.W.; Evan Francis Daniel, J.W.; J. D. Davies, Chaplain; Samuel B. Power, Treasurer; Thomas Thomas, Secretary; John Lloyd, S.D.; E. S. Hartland, J.D.; W. J. Rees, D.C.; A. F. Bayntun, I.G.; David Evans, Steward; Henry Simons, Tyler. On the motion of the W.M., Bros. Charles Bath and J. G. Hall were unanimously elected as the representative Past Masters to serve on the Provincial Grand Lodge Committee of General Purposes for the ensuing year. On the motion of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, seconded by Bro. Charles Bath, P. Prov. S.G.W., a cordial vote of thanks was awarded to the retiring W.M., Bro. G. B. Brock, for his able and efficient services during the past year, both speakers referring in terms of the highest eulogium to the manner in which Bro. Brock had presided over the lodge, and expressing the regret generally felt at his enforced absence through ill health. On the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to the ball-room of the Mackworth Hotel, where, in number about sixty, they sat down to partake of the good things provided for them by Bro. Stone with his usual attention and care. The chair was filled by the newly-installed W.M., who was supported by the D.P.G.M., Bro. Edward J. Morris; Bros. the Rev. Latimer Jones, D.P.G.M. of the Western division; J. B. Phillips, Charles Bath, Rev. A. H. P. Trewman, Rev. C. T. Heartley, and other brethren before-named. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair with much ability and warmly responded to by the brethren. The health of the Provincial Grand Master was most fraternally drunk, great regret being expressed at the unavoidable absence of the R.W. brother in London. The W.M. proposed, in highly complimentary terms, "The Health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master," remarking that it was impossible for the affairs of the province to be more satisfactorily administered than they were under their present rulers. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in responding, spoke at some length, referring to the progress and present position of Freemasonry throughout the province, dwelling most encouragingly upon the improved working together of the various lodges, which he characterized as being such as the brethren might well feel proud of, and in concluding assured them of his continued interest in and care for the fraternity, with which he had been connected for nearly twenty years. The W.M. proposed the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, associating with the same the name of the Junior Grand Warden, Bro. T. D. Daniel, who replied in an able address. The D.P.G.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M., as the eldest son of the Talbot Lodge," he having been the first candidate initiated therein, and fairly and honourably worked his way through the various chairs to the highest, which he most worthily occupied. The W.M. replied, thanking the brethren for the distinguished honour they had conferred upon him, and proposed the toast of "The Visitors," especially naming Bro. the Rev. A. H. P. Trewman, P. Prov. G. Chaplain (Somerset), who responded in felicitous terms for himself and the other guests. The toast of "The Past Masters of the Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Charles Bath, next followed, calling forth an excellent speech from that brother for himself and colleagues. "The Lodges of the Province" elicited return speeches from Bros. James Goodall, W.M. Indefatigable Lodge, Swansea; Charles Taylor, W.M. Loyal Cambrian Lodge, Merthyr Tydvil; W. G. Davies, W.M. Cambrian Lodge, Neath; E. C. Phillips, W.M. Brecknock Lodge, Brecon; and John Jones, W.M. Afan Lodge, Aberavon; all breathing sentiments of fraternal good-will and regard. "The health of the Officers of the Lodge," responded to by the Senior Warden, Bro. Jones Hewson, brought the pleasant proceedings of the evening to a close. Bro. Edward Fricker, P. Prov. G. Organist, presided with his usual skill and good taste at the organ in lodge. Some excellent singing was contributed by Bros. Jones Hewson, George Allen, W. J. Rees, W. Paxton Garrett, and others, adding considerably to the general enjoyment. A special feature in the arrangements for the evening was the Shaksperian programme, the suitable and most appropriate mottoes placed round the menu, toast, and music, as well as the quotations culled to mark the various toasts, happily "hit the taste o' the time" and were greatly appreciated by the brethren. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and each and all appeared to regret when the hour for separating arrived.

ALDERSHOT.—ALDERSHOT CAMP LODGE (No. 1331).—The regular monthly meeting of this young, but prosperous lodge, was held on Thursday, the 5th February, at the Assembly Rooms, Bro. White, the Worshipful Master, presided. There were present: Bros. Mackenzie, I.P.M.; Richardson, P.M.; Cole, P.M.; Rose, several visiting brethren, and numerous members. The minutes of the lodge having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for three candidates, which, proving unanimous in each case, they were duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, each initiate being presented with a copy of the book of constitutions and bye-laws of the lodge, the W.M. explained the tracing board of the first degree. The lodge was opened in the second degree, when an E.A. was passed. The lodge was opened in the third degree, when four Fellow-Craft brethren were raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The ceremonies were performed by the W.M. in an admirable manner, the masterly explanation of the tracing board was most cordially greeted.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, London, on Saturday, the 13th inst., when were present, Bros. N. B. Headon, W.M.; J. H. Townend, S.W.; G. Seex, J.W.; James Stevens, I.P.M.; Rev. J. R. Simpson, Chaplain; James Freeman, Treasurer; R. Stanway, S.D.; G. Blackie, J.D.; T. Preston, D.C.; W. H. Hook, Org.; T. Hamen and C. Taylor, Stewards; Steedman, Tyler; also Bros. J. Beneton, F. W. Potter, C. Jenkins, C. H. Burrows, J. Bumpus, R. Hooker, W. MacQueen, C. Stuart Barker, jun., T. Browne, E. Cox, Lewis Lewis, J. Thompson, J. J. Moore, W. Baber, T. W. Headon, F. J. Davis, J. Stamp, F. Keeble, R. Fendick, J. E. Hugo, W. Middleton, J. Phillips, H. Thompson, Owen Borven, J. L. Dulan, J. R. Hartley, and others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. W. Beattie, 142; G. Yaxley, 463; J. K. Pitt, 463; W. Morden, 215; J. Yalden, 181; D. Buckwell, 149; T. L. Hellier, 765; T. H. Harper, 1216; and H. R. Hallam, 1314. The lodge having been opened and minutes of previous meeting confirmed, was raised to the third degree, and Bros. Potter and Davis were respectively passed to the degree of F.C. The ballot for initiating having been declared unanimous, Messrs. G. J. Wright and J. T. Skinner being in attendance, were severally introduced and initiated. The whole of the ceremony was performed in the most able and impressive manner, by the W.M., whose arduous labour was considerably lightened by the perfect attention of his officers, in the important details of the work. Further propositions for initiating at the ensuing meeting were then made, and several apologies for non-attendance, and notably a telegram from Bro. Moody, the Secretary, from Belfast, were read, and duly acknowledged. The W.M. briefly referred to his forthcoming Stewardship, as representing the lodge at the ensuing festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, expressing his satisfaction with the support already given, and his anticipation in regard to further additions to his list. Bro. Preston gave notice of his intention to propose at the ensuing meeting, that a Past Master's jewel be presented to the W.M. on the termination of his year of office, no further business was before the lodge, it was closed in due form. This being an "off night," a plain but substantial supper was provided in the Pillar-Room, to which members and visitors at once repaired. The usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the initiates having been cordially received, Bro. Beattie, on behalf of the visitors, expressed their gratification with the entire proceedings of the evening. Those connected with lodge work had greatly added to their appreciation of Masonry, whilst the ample entertainment they had partaken of under the genial influence of the thorough harmony and good fellowship pervading the meeting, assured them that the lodge was animated by the true principles of the Craft. He wished the lodge every success and prosperity, and could only further desire that his brother visitors, as well as himself, might have many opportunities of witnessing its admirable working and enjoying its cordial hospitality. A most fraternal and enjoyable evening terminated with the Tyler's toast, and shortly after the brethren separated.

MOUNT EDGUMBE LODGE (No. 1446).—A meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held at the Swan Hotel, Battersea-Old-Bridge, on the 13th inst. The lodge was opened at three p.m. by Bros. Burrell, W.M.; Poupard, S.W.; Thomas, Acting J.W.; Schiemann, Acting S.D.; Watson, Acting J.D.; Thomas, jun., I.G.; Ough, P.M., I.P.M., and Treasurer; Limebeer, Secretary. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting having been read, were confirmed, and the W.M. raised Bros. Wevell, Gibson, Beor, and Tily to the sublime degree of Master Masons. Bros. Langdale, Pratt, Wood, Cain, and Bailey were then passed to the second degree, and Mr. Ricketts initiated. The three ceremonies were well carried out by the W.M., who had the assistance of an excellent staff of officers. Bro. Ough, the Treasurer, proposed that the W.M.'s list, as Steward to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, should be headed by a lodge donation of £10 10s, which was seconded by Bro. Thomas, and unanimously carried. The W.M. returned thanks and hoped that that liberal gift would be supplemented by individual subscriptions, as the institution was in urgent need of support. Bro. Poupard, the S.W., gave notice of motion to increase the joining fee of the lodge to seven guineas. Two brethren of the Royal Alfred and Star Lodges were then proposed and seconded as joining members. The lodge was closed in ancient form and the brethren adjourned to banquet. In consequence of the lateness of the hour "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M.," "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.," and the other formal lodge toasts were given by the W.M. very briefly, but were received heartily by the assembled brethren, of whom there were nearly sixty. Bro. Ough replied for "The Grand Officers," Bro. Rickets for "The Initiates," Bro. Manders, W.M. 1231, for "The Visitors," and Bro. Poupard, S.W., for "The Lodge Officers." The W.M.'s health was proposed by the Treasurer and I.P.M., and enthusiastically drank. Bro. Burrell, in reply, expressed his gratification at the compliment passed him, and hoped that the brethren, at the termination of his year of office, would be satisfied with his efforts to promote the interest of the lodge and the comfort of every member, and, in conclusion, he stated that he was one of the Stewards at the ensuing festival. In the intervals of the toasts Bros. Rickets, Watts, Ross, Walls, and Wheeler vocally entertained the brethren. Among the visitors present were Bros. Frampton, P.M. 87; King, P.M. 172; Scott, P.M. 749; Pulsford, P.M. 1158; Watts, P.M. and W.S. 1201; Swallow, W.M. 382; Keay, W.M. 917; Manders, W.M. 1201; Pym, W.M. 1275; Wise, S.W. 1158; Roe, J.W. 780; Walls, I.G.; 141, 1381, 1503. The Tyler, Bro. Fox, gave the concluding toast, and the brethren separated.

Royal Arch.

MOUNT SION CHAPTER (No. 22).—The regular convocation of this Chapter was held at the Guildhall Tavern, on Monday 8th inst., at 6 o'clock. Amongst those present were Comps. H. Muggeridge, Z.; W. J. Crofield, H.; H. Birdseye, J.; Venn, S.N.; Spooner, S.E.; A. Partridge, P.S.; Hirsch and Clemmans, A. Sojourners; R. H. Townsend, P.Z.; J. H. Townsend, P.Z.; Wright, P.Z.; Canham, P.Z.; Steih, Bassenett, Randall, and others. Bro. J. B. Batten was exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Masonry in the usual magnificent style by Comps. Muggeridge, Z.; Crofield, H.; Birdseye, J.; assisted by the other officers. Afterwards Comp. R. H. Townsend presented a testimonial, written on vellum and beautifully framed, to Comp. A. Partridge on behalf of his father, W. H. Partridge, P.Z., expressing the pleasure it gave him in presenting the testimonial, having been associated with him in the Chapter for thirty-five years, during which time he had acted as Treasurer for twenty-four years, and was sorry that in consequence of his late severe illness he had been compelled to resign. Comp. A. Partridge on receiving the testimonial thanked the companions of the Mount Sion Chapter for their kindness in a few kind and appropriate words on behalf of his father. The chapter was then closed in due form, after which the companions adjourned to a well-served banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, which closed a very pleasant evening.

WHITEHAVEN.—THE SUN, SQUARE AND COMPASSES CHAPTER (No. 119).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held on Monday evening, 8th inst., at seven o'clock. The M.E.Z. Comp. John Barr, was supported by Comp. E. Fearon, H.; Dr. Henry, J.; W. B. Gibson, P.Z.; John Bowes, P.Z., &c.; E. Tyson, P.S., and other officers and companions. Bros. Montgomery and J.D. Thompson were exalted by the M.E.Z., in a manner that called forth the warmest approbation of all present. At the conclusion of the business, E. Comp. Gibson proposed, E. Comp. Fearon seconded, and it was unanimously resolved, "That the best thanks of the chapter are due, and hereby accorded to E. Comp. Bowes, for his valuable services as Preceptor." Com. Bowes after acknowledging the compliment, congratulated the members on the proficiency of their officers, especially the M.E.Z. The chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned for refreshment.

PANMURE CHAPTER (No. 720).—This chapter met at the "Horns," Kennington, London. Chapter was opened by M.E. Comps. Henry Smith, M.E.Z.; Charles Hammerton, H.; W. B. Church, J.; James Stevens, P.Z. and Scribe E.; H. C. Levander, P.Z. and Treas.; and William Worrell, P.Z. There were also present Comps. George Waterall, S.W.; M. S. Larham, P.S.; T. Poore, A.S.; R. N. Field, A.S.; B. R. Bryant, Steward; W. H. Van Baerle, F. W. Levander, A. C. Burrell, Newington Bridges, A. C. Bradley, Gilbert, and others. Visitor, Comp. C. Burdett. The principal business before the chapter was the election of officers for the ensuing year; the result of the ballot being as follows, viz.: Comps. Hammerton, Z.; Church, H.; Bridges, J.; Stevens, P.Z., Scribe E. (seventh re-election); Levander, P.Z., Treasurer (sixth re-election); G. Waterall, Scribe N. (second re-election); M. S. Larham, P.S. (second re-election); and Gilbert, Janitor. Comps. Poore, F. W. Levander, Burrell, and Bradley were elected on the Audit Committee. A vote of two guineas in aid of a former member of the chapter was carried. The chapter P.Z. jewel was also voted to M.E., Comp. Smith, on his retiring from office. A considerable contribution was made by the members of the chapter, to provide additions to the excellent furniture. Six propositions for advancement at ensuing meeting were received, and other Masonic business having been despatched, the chapter was closed in due form, and the companions adjoined to refreshment. This chapter, always famous for its working and the unanimity of its members, appears likely to have a considerable impetus from the influx of numerous brethren of the Macdonald Lodge, No. 1216, being held in the same locality, and suiting the convenience of most of its members. We heartily wish the Panmure Chapter the continued success it certainly endeavours to merit.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

OPENING OF THE CORNWALL ROSE CROIX CHAPTER AT TRURO.

INSTALLATION OF SIR F. M. WILLIAMS, Bart., M.P., AS M.W.S., &c.

The Cornwall Chapter of Rose Croix was formally opened and consecrated on Tuesday, the 2nd February, 1875, at the Masonic Hall, New Public Rooms, Truro, by Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°, Grand Secretary General of the Supreme Council for England and Wales, assisted by Lieut.-General H. E. Doherty, C.B., 33°, Deputy Inspector-General for the S. W. District of the Ancient and Accepted Rite of 33°.

The Supreme Council Chapter was first opened at 2 p.m., by the V.I., Bro. Major Clerke, 33°, as M.W.S.; Gen. Doherty, 33°, as High Prelate, and Ill.; Bro. William James Hughan, 30°, as Grand Marshal.

The following first members of the Cornwall Chapter were present: Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., 31°; W. J. Hughan, 30°; Rev. George Ross, M.A., 18°; Col. J. W. Peard, 18°; F. W. Dabb, 18°; John Hocking, jun., 18°; John Farran Penrose, 18°; Edward Dixon Anderton, 18°; Nicholas J. West, 18°; Charles Truscott, jun., 18°; Rev. W. H. Bloxsome, 18°; Rev. A. H. Ferris, 18°; and Charles Trevithick, 18°. E. and P. Bros. Thomas Chirgwin, 18°, and Henry Spry Severton, being unavoidably absent.

Visitors: Ill. Bros. Lieut.-Col. J. Elliott, 31°, P.M.W.S., and Capt. Shanks, M.W.S. of St. Aubyn Chapter, Devonport; W. B. Hamblin, M.W.S., and Col. Fitz-Gerald of the Huyshe Chapter, Plymouth; George Brown, 18°, of the Shakespeare Chapter, Warwick, and W. E. Mitchell, 18°, of Metropolitan Chapter, London.

The following brethren were accepted as candidates for Perfection, and as Members of the New Chapter: Thomas Solomon, P.M. 331, P. Prov. S. G. W., (Truro); William James Johns, P.M. 131, P. Prov. G. Reg., (Truro); Samuel Harvey, P.M. 131, P. Prov. G. Pust., (Truro); Rev. Alfred Hayman Cummings, J.W. 131, Prov. G. Chap., (Truro); William Lake, P.M. 131, P. Prov. G. Reg., (Truro); Richard John, P.M. 131, P. Prov. G.D.C., (Truro); Samuel Harris, J.D. 331, also of No. 131, (Truro); William Tregay, P.M. 589, (Redruth); E. Milford Cock, P.M. 589, Prov. G. Std., (Redruth); John Thomas, J.W. 589, (Redruth); William Lidgely, Member of Nos. 131 and 589, (Devoran); William Rooks, of No. 131, Prov. G. Pust., (Truro); Bros. Solomon, Cummings, Lake, Tregay, John, Lidgely, Cock, Thomas, and Rooks, being in attendance, were severally entrusted with the secrets peculiar to the 4° to the 14° inclusive in the Grand Lodge of Perfection; with the 15° and 16° in the Council of Princes of Jerusalem; and then created Knights of the East and West 17°. After which they were finally exalted to the degree of S.P. Rose Croix; the whole of the ceremonies being conducted in a most able and impressive manner by Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°, Sec.-Gen. of Supreme Council; General Doherty, 33°, being the H.P., and W. J. Hughan, 30°, the G.M.

Each candidate was presented with a copy of the Regulations by Sir F. W. Williams, Bart. The degree could not have been given better under any circumstances, for the faultless style of the acting M.W.S. left nothing to be desired, and the candidates were evidently much pleased and interested throughout.

The fittings were good, and having all been made in the town, says something in favour of local skill and enterprise.

The Cornwall Chapter was subsequently consecrated by Major Clerke, 33°, in which beautiful ceremony he was ably assisted by Gen. Doherty, C.B., and the warrant (dated 24th Dec., 1874, and signed by the Earl of Carnarvon, 33°, S.G. Commander; Captain N. G. Phillips, 33°, L.G.C.; Major-Gen. Clerke, 33°, G.T.; J. M. P. Montagu, 33°; Major S. H. Clerke, 33°; Sir Michael Costa, 33°; and others) was read by William James Hughan, 30°, acting as Sec.-Gen. for the occasion.

Ill. Bro. Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., 31°, was duly installed and enthroned by the Consecrating Officer, after which the M.W.S. appointed the following as his Officers for the ensuing year:—E. and P. Bros. Rev. George Ross, H.P.; Colonel Peard, 1st Gen.; N. J. West, 2nd Gen.; F. W. Dabb, Treasurer (elected unanimously); E. D. Anderton, G.M.; J. F. Penrose, R.; C. Trevithick, C. of G.; Charles Truscott, jun., Recorder; Rev. W. H. Bloxsome, C.; Rev. A. H. Ferris, A.; John Hocking, jun., Organist; and W. Rooks, O.G.; the remaining Officers being left for the next assembly.

Bro. Hughan, 30°, then proposed that the first business of the New Chapter shall be to elect Major S. H. Clerke, 33°, Grand Sec.-General, and Lieut.-General H. E. Doherty, C.B., 33°, Dep. Inspector General, as Honorary Members, and that the best thanks of the Chapter be hereby voted to these distinguished brethren for the honour of their attendance and most valuable services, especially to Major Clerke for the admirable manner in which he had acted throughout the ceremonies as M.W.S. After the proposition was supported by Sir F. M. Williams, Bart. (the M.W.S.), it was carried by acclamation, and fraternally responded to by the two brethren, whose aid was thus so enthusiastically acknowledged by the members of the New Chapter.

The M.W.S. then nominated Bro. Hughan, 30°; Col. Peard, 1st Gen.; West, 2nd Gen.; and Truscott, Recorder; as a Committee to prepare the Bye-Laws.

Colonel Peard, 1st General, rose and said there was yet another duty to perform, and that was to acknowledge the valuable services of Bro. Hughan, the Founder of the Chapter, who had, at considerable labour, and to the satisfaction of all the members, superintended the arrangements for the days' proceedings, and in appreciation of such devotion to the Rite, he proposed that Bro. Hughan be elected a Life Member of the Chapter, which, on being seconded by the Recorder, was carried unanimously and most heartily by the brethren.

Bro. Hughan thanked the Chapter for the honour thus conferred upon him, and explained that the starting of the Chapter was owing to their esteemed M.W.S. offering to defray all the expenses at opening, which had been most handsomely done by Sir F. M. Williams, Bart. Bro. Hughan was aware that he was acting contrary to Sir Frederick's instructions in mentioning the fact, but he trusted that the announcement would be forgiven by that worthy brother, when he saw how much his kindness and zeal on behalf of the Ancient and Accepted Rite were appreciated by the members of the Cornwall Chapter, and in fact throughout the Province.

The Chapter having been closed—the Ancient and Mystic Rite being first of all observed—the members adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, and partook of an excellent banquet, served in a most recherche style by Bro. Bray, Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., 31°, in the chair, supported by Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°; Lieut.-Gen. Doherty, 33°; Lieut.-Col. Elliott, 31°; Captain Shanks, M.W.S.; and Col. Fitz-Gerald, as visitors, and 22 members.

Letters of apology and telegrams were received at the "eleventh hour" from Captain Nathaniel George Philips, 33°; Lieut. Grand Commander, the Rev. P. H. Newnham, 33°, and other brethren, regretting their absence.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held on the 8th inst. in their hall at No. 213, Buchanan-street. The R.W.M., Bro. James F. Mitchell, presided, and there were present Bros. D. Watson, S.M.; Jas. Gladstone, S.D.; John Smith, Secretary; A. C. Paterson, V.S.P.G.L., acting S.W.; and, among other visiting brethren, Bros. George McDonald, R.W.M. 73 (Thistle and Rose); and Louis Loeske, 286, Illinois. The lodge having been opened on the E.A. degree, James Thomson was duly initiated into the Order by the R.W.M., after which the lodge was raised to the F.C. degree, when the same was conferred upon Bro. James Aitken, the Master again officiating. The lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—This lodge met in their hall, No. 12, Tron-gate, on Monday, 9th inst., being their regular meeting. Present: Bros. John Morgan, R.W.M., presiding; John Garth, S.W.; Jas. Horn, J.W. There were also present Bros. J. Campbell, R.W.M. Lodge 128; A. Bain, P.M. Lodge 103; G. C. H. McNaught, S.M. Lodge 275; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and a large number of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting, and applications from the following gentlemen for admission into the privileges of Freemasonry read, viz., Messrs. W. Longhnan and Richard Lynch. There being no objection, the candidates received the E. A. degree, Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., officiating. The following brethren were then passed to the degree of F.C., viz., Bros. J. McDougall, A. Dryden, George Knot, Thos. Murphy, J. T. Erving, Bro. Muir, D.M. Lodge 103, officiating. The lodge was then raised, and Bros. Stewart and Knox, Lodge Star 219; and Bros. T. Murphy and J. T. Ewing, Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103, received the sublime degree of Master Mason, Bro. A. Bain, P.M. 103, officiating, the ceremony of the degree being performed in a most impressive manner by the brethren officiating. Bro. Smith, Lodge Mother Kilwinning, affiliated member of Lodge Star, No. 219, who had presented to Star lodge, about twelve months ago, a beautiful pair of Ashlars, now presented a pair of ornamental tops for the same, which are of beautiful finish and material, and add to the already many specimens of designs, emblematical of the Order, in the Star Lodge Room. The R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan, in a neat and appropriate speech, thanked Bro. Smith on behalf of the lodge, and hoped that he would be long spared to be amongst them. The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDE (No. 408).—It will be remembered that the emergency meeting of this lodge, held on the 28th ult., for the special reception to Bro. Henry McDonald, second mate of the ship Cospatrick, it was agreed that a letter be sent to the St. Helena brethren, acknowledging the great kindness shown by them to a brother of Lodge Clyde; and also that the leading office-bearers of the St. Helena lodges should be made honorary members of No. 408. Accordingly, at the last regular meeting of the lodge, the Secretary submitted the following which had been drawn up:—"To the R.W.M., P.M., S.W., J.W., and other office-bearers and members of Lodges St. Helena (No. 488) and Old Rock (No. 912).—Greeting, all whom it may concern. This is to certify, that at a special meeting convened for the purpose of congratulating our worthy and esteemed brother, Henry McDonald, late second officer of the New Zealand emigrant ship Cospatrick, who was rescued from a dreadful death by the Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe, and thrown upon your hospitality by the ship British Scyre, and the kind manner in which you treated him, I have to say, in his behalf, will not be forgotten. By the unanimous desire of the office-bearers and members of his mother lodge, Clyde

(No. 408), S.C., I have been instructed to tender you their sincere thanks for the very true and Masonic way in which you received Bro. McDonald, and did honour to the Craft in general by rendering him that assistance he was so much in need of. We are glad to find that the real principles of Masonry are so well regarded, and carried out in the proper spirit. We shall acquaint the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, as also the Grand Lodge of Scotland, with what you have done for Bro. McDonald, and endeavour to get them also to recognise your very kind actions. As a further mark of our gratitude, we unanimously agree that the R.W.M., P.M., S.W., J.W., and Secretary of your lodge (St. Helena 488) be made honorary members of Lodge Clyde, holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland (No. 408); as also the aforesaid office-bearers of Old Rock Lodge (No. 912). As you (488) are the elder lodge of the two, it is your duty to make the office-bearers of Old Rock Lodge acquainted with this, and after doing so to transmit their names along with your own to us for enrolment in our books. We ask your acceptance of the above, and wish your lodge, office-bearers, and members all prosperity, and trust that none of you or yours may endure the same hardships as our much beloved Bro. McDonald has done. And should we never meet here may we meet in the lodge above, where no such sufferings have to be endured, and where the Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe shall reign over us in peace, love, and harmony." The letter, as thus drawn up, was approved of, and the Secretary, Bro. D. S. Mitchell, instructed to have it written out, and with his own signature on behalf of Lodge Clyde, and with the signature and seals of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, and Grand Lodge of Scotland duly attached, forwarded at earliest opportunity to St. Helena.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOLE, No. 413.—The usual bi-monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in their lodge room, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 9th inst. Bros. John Wallace, R.W.M., presiding; Colin McKenzie, S.W.; D. Leeds, J.W.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. There were also present Bros. John Munro, R.W.M. 360; Wm. Bell, R.W.M. 34; John Morgan, R.W.M. 216; George Weston, P.M. 73; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and a large attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. J. Wallace, and the minutes read and confirmed. Applications were then read from the following gentlemen for admission into the Order, Messrs. G. T. Stark, A. Gilmour, and B. Ronald. The ballot box being passed around, and found clear, they were admitted and received the E.A. degree, the ceremony being performed by the R.W.M., in a remarkably impressive and striking manner. Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M., reminded the brethren that the annual festival of lodge Athole would take place on Friday, 26th inst., at Bro. Thornton's, 251, Argyle-street, when he hoped to meet as many of the brethren as could possibly make it convenient to attend. The lodge was raised to Fellow Craft, when the following brethren received that degree, viz., Bros. G. A. Stark, A. G. Bell, B. Ronald, R. Johnston, T. Pearson, J. Balfour, and W. Matheson. Bro. Loutitt, D.M., officiating. Raising the lodge to the degree of Master Mason, Bros. A. Gilmour, R. Johnston, W. Matheson, T. Pearson, and J. Balfour, entered and received this sublime degree. Bro. John Munro, R.W.M. No. 360, officiating, in his usual masterly and impressive manner. There being no other business the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE GLASGOW (No. 441).—This lodge held their usual monthly meeting in their hall, No. 22, Struthers-street, on the 9th inst., Bro. Hugh Tullock, R.W.M., in the chair. The lodge having been opened, two candidates, duly proposed and seconded, George Henry Reade, and John Crosbie, had the first degree conferred upon them by the R.W.M. The lodge was then raised to the second degree, when Bros. Reade and Crosbie, together with Bro. George Remington, were passed to that degree. Thereafter, the lodge having been raised to the sublime degree of M.M., the same brethren, as also Bro. Peter Charleston, were raised to that degree. The lodge was then reduced to the E.A. degree, when the R.W.M., in name of the lodge, presented Bro. John Main, their late S.W., with a handsome gold Albert and locket, as also with a beautiful finger ring for Mrs. Main, on the occasion of their respected brother leaving Glasgow. Bro. Main acknowledged the compliment in suitable and feeling terms, and the lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

MASONIC SONG.

Where is the song beginning, "We wear the badge of innocence, I mean the royal robe" to be found? Can any brother supply the words? H.

THE TARGUMS AND HIRAM.

In answer to Bro. Hughan, Mr. Bensley, the Librarian of Cambridge University, tells me there is no legend to be traced. Indeed it could not well be in the Targums. Oliver's statement is therefore incorrect.—Ed.

THE GRAND CHAPTER OF SCOTLAND v. THE GRAND CHAPTER OF NOVA SCOTIA.

In the proceedings of the Grand Chapter of the District of Columbia, I have been surprised to notice that the Grand Chapter of Scotland has refused to recognise the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for Nova Scotia. The reasons given being based upon the Grand Chapter of Nova Scotia having fewer admissions during the year, and less funds at its credit, than each of several subordinate Chapters, holding of the Supreme Chapter, which could be named.

I am sorry to note this action on the part of the authorities in Scotland, who have also so far refused to recognise the Mark Grand Lodge of England, because, I apprehend, the question should have been as to the legality of the formation of such Grand Bodies, and that point being proved—which has been done—the argument that when few in number a society is wrong, but when numerous it is right, is too absurd to need refutation. The Grand Chapter of Nova Scotia has forbidden intercourse with the two Chapters hailing from Scotland, by any of its members, and those who are best acquainted with the circumstances, will, we are persuaded, support its action in the matter.

REVIRE SCO.

THE ORDER OF ST. JOHN.

I have in my possession an old book of engravings, without title-page or date, consisting of 65 busts purporting to be those of Grand Masters, commencing with "Frere Raimond Dupui, Premier Grand Maitre Militaire, 1118," and ending with "Frere Antoine Manvel De Vil Hena, Soixante-et-Cinquieme Grand Maitre, 1722." The binding of the book is very old, and the leaves are turning yellow. Could any of your correspondents, learned in such matters, inform me as to what particular Order, or branch of an Order, they belong. They are all represented with a Maltese cross on the breast, and most of them are in armour.

Should any brother wish to see this book, I shall have much pleasure in forwarding it to him. W. CHAPLIN.

[The 65 busts are those of the Grand Masters of the Order of St. John, or the Knights Hospitaller, or Knights of Malta, as they are often termed. The first Grand Master was Raymond du Pui, or Dupui. Manuel de Valena was the 64th, and Ferdinand de Hombresch was the 66th and last, when Malta was given up to the French. We do not go into the subsequent history. These busts are probably taken from a fine copy of the "Statuta Hospitalis, &c.," published at Rome in the 16th Century, of which abbreviated editions have been issued. We believe that in America they are now reproducing a somewhat similar work, with lives of the Grand Masters. Bro. Chaplin's work is valuable as a separate edition.]

Please inform me the last date of "The Freemason's Magazine." W. J. H.

[The publication of "The Freemason's Magazine" closed about September, 1871. Ed.]

IS IT SO?

The "Bibliotheca Britannica," by Robert Watt, M.D., page 39, Volume I., contains the following:

"Anderson, James.—The Constitutions of Freemasons, &c. London. 1723. 8vo.—Discovery of their Ceremonies. London. 1725. 8vo."

My question, at the head of this paper, refers to the "Discovery of their Ceremonies." Did Anderson publish such a book?

I have, at last, ascertained the date of Dr. Anderson's death. In the "Gentleman's Magazine" of 1793, I found an obituary notice of Bro. Anderson. He died May 28th of that year.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.—FESTIVAL.

—A preliminary meeting of the Board of Stewards for the above Festival, will take place in the Board Room, No. 7, Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, the 24th inst., at four o'clock precisely, to elect the Officers of the Board, and to make such arrangements for the Dinner as may be considered most desirable.

At the Festival of the Apollo University Lodge, No. 357, (a full report of which will appear in our next), held on Wednesday last, the 17th inst., the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., present, Bro. H. A. Rickard was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold was appointed S.W., who, it was hoped, would spend the next term in Oxford.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC BALL.—At a final meeting of the Committee, in connection with the recent annual Masonic Ball in Liverpool, held at the Town Hall last month, it was announced that the nett proceeds, after paying all expenses, amounted to upwards of £170, which will be handed over to the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution.

Bro. H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823, P. Sov. Conclave, 55, &c., recently gave his annual ball at the Philharmonic Hall, Liverpool, which proved one of the most brilliant of the season. His pupils, who turned out in great force, first enjoyed themselves, and then the children of older growth kept up the assembly until an early hour. Bro. Molyneux, whose services as hon. M.C. at nearly all the Masonic gatherings in Liverpool, have been more than once recognized in these columns, was largely patronised on this occasion by the brethren of the "Mystic Tie," their wives, and families; and our worthy brother is to be congratulated on the complete success of his annual assembly.

The Marquis of Conyngham has been installed at the Masonic Hall, Dublin, Great Prior of Ireland of the Order of the Temple and Hospital. The appointment was made in compliance with the nomination of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the Order in Great Britain and Ireland.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Among the many bad effects resulting from climatic variations, it is notable that the circulation of the blood becomes languid, and congestion of the capillaries much greater during the winter, hence the frequent appearance at this time of pimples, blotches, &c. Holloway's remedies cannot be too highly commended for the favourable interest they exert upon the skin. In all eruptions, cutaneous inflammation, and ulcerations, the detergent qualities of this ointment render it so efficacious in first cleansing the diseased part, and after inducing renewed and healthy action, that the skin becomes not only sound, but soft and silky, and fully capable of performing its functions and releasing the circulation from oppression.—ADV'T.

QUESTION AND ANSWER, BY MADAME VON OPPEN.

QUESTION.

Who, in this wonderful City,
Raises his eyes to the Lord?
Praying for help and for pity,
Which only our God can accord?
Are thoughts of death underlying
All Mammon's glitter and gloss?
Is the rich man fervently crying
Domine Dirige Nos!
Will God's hand protect us from danger?
Has He to His children clung?
When we speak to him should it seem stranger
The old than the modern tongue?
No! Rome shall not have all the honour
In Christ's Romish Latin to pray;
Luther's Church begs God's blessing upon her—Conserva me, Domine!
Right royal dignity shewed He
In the prayer for His daily bread—
Panem nostrum da nobis hodie!
Were the simple words that He said.
What, on earth, is our habitation,
Compared with the total sum
Of our time with eternal salvation?
Deus noster refugium!

ANSWER.

Upon the trackless ocean, far away from every shore,
When all is wild and lonely, and land is seen no more,
We are mute with fear of danger till we hear the voice of a Friend—
Saying—I am with you always, even unto the end.
In the furnace of affliction, when the flames are leaping high,
When all earthly ties are broken, we know that Friend is nigh:
We hear Him saying, what He said when to Heaven He did ascend—
Behold! I am with you always, even unto the end!
Whate'er our mother-tongue may be, whate'er our native land,
He understands our prayers to Him; He guides us with His hand.
Our instinct comprehends Him, although our lips be dumb
With awe, when he whispers to our hearts—Ego vobiscum sum!
Soon must affliction's furnace, and life's little cares be past,
When we are safe and happy in our Heavenly home at last,
From whence to the world for ever, that voice will still descend—
Behold! I am with you always, even unto the end!

OUR BROTHER KING KALAKAUA AT THE NEW YORK MASONIC TEMPLE.

On Wednesday evening, December 30th ult., agreeably to a previous arrangement made by W. Bro. Gilson, on behalf of his Majesty the King of the Hawaiian Island, Bro. David Kalakaua, accompanied by John M. Kapena Governor of Waiiu, and Bro. George M. Totten, Lieutenant, U.S.N., were received at the head of the grand stairway of the new hall by Grand Master Ellwood E. Thorne and brethren, acting as an Emergent Grand Lodge, and were escorted to the Grand Master's room, where a formal welcome was tendered to his Majesty and suite.

Inspector Dilks, with a platoon of police, having cleared the main hall of sightseers, the Grand Master and Grand Lodge, accompanied by the distinguished guests, then made a tour of the rooms of the building, with which he expressed himself as being highly pleased. On arriving at Doric room, it was found to be occupied by New York Lodge, No. 330, in special communication, convened by a dispensation of the Grand Master. The King, having expressed a wish to see the third degree exemplified, it was decided to enter. His Majesty, having proved himself a Mason by a critical examination, he was announced and admitted. W. Bro. John Giffin received him with honours due to his rank, to which the king replied as follows:—

Worthy Sir and Brethren,—I take great pleasure in this welcome, and "greet you all as brethren. Coming from a distant island to these great States, I acknowledge the kindly respect shown me by all the people of New York, and of the Fraternity whom I delight to honour. It was the ambition of my predecessors to obtain all information of the Craft in the United States that they could, and I purpose to follow them. Some of them visited this great country, which I am pleased now to acknowledge, to get their Masonic light. This great people receives my homage in and out of the lodge, therefore allow me again to thank you for this manifestation of your fraternal regard in this lodge."

The Grand Master, accompanied by the Governor and the Lieutenant, and the members of the Emergent Grand Lodge, were then admitted and received with usual honours due to their rank. The lodge then proceeded to exemplify the degree. The work was well rendered, and appeared to please His Majesty and suite. At the conclusion of the second part of the work His Royal Highness retired, followed by the Grand Lodge.

During the visit in the lodge, the Bible with which, it is said, Bro. George Washington was obligated upon when he took the oath of office as President of the United States, was shown to the King. The page whereon the hand of the first President rested when he took the oath was specially revered by his majesty, as he too placed his hand upon that page and kissed it.—N. Y. Dispatch.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1875.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

Even to the most careless observer there is a great difference between English and Foreign Freemasonry, and to the Masonic investigator, there is a wide margin of separation. How does it arise? Why should there be this essential divergency between portions of a so-called universal system? The answer to these queries is to be found in the peculiar constitution and habits of foreign Freemasonry, and continental Freemasons. Broadly stated, England, Ireland, Scotland, the United States, Holland, and Switzerland, possess one simple uniform system of symbolical Freemasonry, though in some the higher grades exist under distinct and separate organizations. In almost all other foreign countries, Freemasonry appears under the form of some especial "system" or of the far spreading "Rite Ecossaise." In many of these countries, the higher degrees are governed by a Grand Council or Chapter, which is yet, in some mysterious way, and by some strange "concordat," virtually overruled by the Grand Lodge, or "Grand Orient." In Germany, for instance, several Grand Lodges exist, and several systems, though the tendency latterly there has been, as with us, to adhere to the simpler system of Craft Masonry. This is one great and marked difference between English and Foreign Freemasonry, but there is also another still more striking. We in England are purely Freemasons, and we carefully eschew alike political discussions, and religious controversies. Now in this respect, the foreign Freemasons widely differ from us. We do not deny that in some countries the condition of affairs is widely different from ours, but yet we feel sure of this, that whatever the state of things may really be in any country, our system of abstention from all passing polemics, whether they be in respect of politics, or religion, is the best for Freemasons, and the safest for Freemasonry. Hence, in England we are admittedly a loyal body, and no one in his sane senses would think of accusing us of being a partizan, or revolutionary association. Abroad we feel bound to say that the proceedings and manifestoes of the Masonic bodies are not always marked by similar prudence or discretion. They publicly dilate, and they privately debate on questions, which, to use a French expression, are in our opinion, "hors de la Maçonnerie," altogether. Instead of confining themselves to the simpler considerations of true Masonic teaching, and the active work of living Masonic charity, they plunge boldly into the most controversial and debateable topics of social science and of administrative government. They do not seem to realize that the ruling powers of any country might, a priori, fairly object to such discussions, especially when carried on under the conditions of a secret society; and so they throw themselves, "in medias res," without any doubt as to their right or propriety in so doing. Now we venture respectfully to express our decided opinion, that in thus acting they are altogether in the wrong, and have practically put themselves "out of court." Freemasonry never was intended as a secret debating society, either on the problems of government or the intricacies of our national interests or domestic arrangements, much less was it ever intended to serve, by the dissemination of utopian schemes for the reconstruction of society, as an active propaganda of modern socialism. And not only this, but almost inevitably such discussions lead them, ere long, into a very dangerous "terrain," inasmuch as opposed by some religious bodies strongly in some countries, they find themselves by degrees in antagonism to religion itself. Hence arise those fretful and heated cries of "sacerdotalism," of "dogmatic tyranny;" hence, in some countries, the Bible is taken out of the lodges; hence we hear of the ridiculous and hurtful custom of "Masonic adoption;" hence we listen to those denunciations against any religious formularies in lodge; hence above all at last we have to contend with the open disavowal of the Great Architect of the Universe, all which things are stumbling-blocks to English Freemasons, and serve to show the vital and enduring disagreement between much of foreign Freemasonry and our own. Happily, in England, keeping the "golden mean" in this as in all other things, we have, while most tolerant, nay, universal in our teaching, never banished, and we never will, either religion or the Bible from our lodges. Our work as Freemasons is begun, and ended, in the solemn invocation of the Divine Blessing on our purposes and on our labours; and much of the real, deep, honest, and sincere character of English Freemasonry is fairly ascribed to the fact, that without being debaters or dogmatists, without fulminating anathemas or damnatory decrees, we have conserved with all our Masonic sympathy and fraternal aspirations for our common humanity, the sanction of religion, and our reverence for the Most High. This, we venture to conceive, is the only true basis on which Freemasonry can be safely founded, the only rightful conditions under which it can permanently prosper, and enlightened by the condition, and warned by the present aspect, in many countries abroad, of the less satisfactory status of Freemasons and Freemasonry, we shall adhere more firmly than ever to those good old principles of our famous Craft, which, as year has followed year, have imparted stability and prestige, loyal zeal, and peaceful progress, to our genial and united English Brotherhood.

OUR BRO. LORD LINDSAY.

By the courtesy of the Grand Secretary, we have been favoured with a file of the overland Commercial Gazette, from Mauritius, of January 8th. That paper contains a most interesting account of the Masonic reception there of our distinguished brother. As some of our readers may be aware, our P.G.W. had proceeded there in the interests of astronomical science, to note and report on the transit of Venus. The Freemasons of Mauritius, alike English and French lodges, vied with each other in giving him a most warm and hearty Masonic reception. The account is unfortunately too long for our columns, which are just now in much demand for the passing records of our English Freemasonry, but we may add that nothing could exceed the success of this truly Masonic manifestation, alike in lodge, and at the banquet, at both of which all the Masonic notabilities of Mauritius were present. Twice only during 61 years had any official of English Grand Lodge visited the Mauritius, and this fact added much to the interest of the meeting, and the reception. We subjoin the addresses of Bro. Pastor, Vénérable of the lodge, la triple Espérance; and of Bro. Bewsher, W.M. of the British, as we think they deserve to be recorded and preserved in the pages of the Freemason. Had space permitted, we should have been glad also to insert the addresses of the Reception Committee, as well as that of Bro. Avise, Vénérable of loge La Paix, as well as the able speeches of Bro. Sir C. Shand, Chief Justice, of Bro. Nagle, and of Bro. Bewsher.

"T. C. F.: Lord Lindsay,

"Le vénérable de la Res. Loge 'La Triple Espérance,' et tous les FF. de cet atelier, travaillant depuis 96 ans sous l'obédience du Grand Orient de France, vous souhaitent la bien venue de la manière la plus sincère, dans ce Temple, où nous sommes fiers et honorés de coopérer à votre Réception, et que nous avons été heureux de mettre, pour cet objet, à la disposition des Maçons de votre obédience.

"Ce jour comptera dans les annales maçonniques de notre orient.

"Nous devons au domaine de la science, qui occupe une grande partie de votre existence, l'heureux hasard qui vous a porté dans notre petit Pays. Puisse le Grand Architecte de l'Univers couronner vos honorables entreprises d'un plein succès. Vos ff. de Maurice s'en réjouiront de plein cœur.

"C'est pour la seconde fois, très cher F.: Lord Lindsay, depuis 61 ans, qu'un Maçon aussi haut gradé, d'un mérite aussi profond que vous fait à la Maçonnerie Mauricienne l'honneur de sa visite. Dans ce même local de La Triple Espérance, d'où le 10 août 1813, à la suite d'une mémorable tenue présidée par Lord Moira, le Pro Grand Maître de toutes les Loges de la Grande Bretagne, ce très Ill. Frère, accompagné de notre F.: Sir Robert Townsend Farquhar, le Gouverneur de Maurice et de tous les Maçons de cet Orient, avec leurs insignes, bannières déployées, se rendit sur la place de notre Eglise Catholique pour y poser maçonniquement, au milieu d'un concours immense d'habitants, venus de tous les points de l'île, la première pierre de cette Cathédrale.

"C'est pour les Maçons des Loges de Maurice non-seulement un plaisir, mais un grand honneur de recevoir votre aimable visite. Les Membres de la Loge La Triple Espérance espèrent que vous voudrez bien venir un jour les honorer de votre présence, les aider de vos lumières, et y recevoir encore l'accueil respectueux et fraternal qui vous attend dans toutes les Loges de notre Orient, où vous laisserez un doux et agréable souvenir."

"My Lord and Right Worshipful Brother,

"It will be a memorable day in the annals of the British Lodge, to have had the honour of conducting the Masonic work of this evening, at the reception of a brother so exalted and distinguished in the Craft, and to have been amongst the first to offer you welcome to these shores, and congratulate you on the valuable results of your expedition, for the study of the arts and sciences, has, from time immemorial, been intimately associated with Masonry.

"Right nobly have you acted up to the Charge delivered to you on the night of your initiation in that Grand Old Lodge, the Lodge of Antiquity, and to the subsequent charges as you mounted, round by round, the Masonic ladder.

"It is by such examples, Right Worshipful Brother, that our Order is made illustrious, and that to be a Freemason is rendered an honour.

"It points out to all brethren that by a strict observance of the principles laid down in the several charges, and by making the liberal arts and sciences their study, they can all, in their different stations of life, become useful if not distinguished members of society.

"From the very high position you hold, Right Worshipful Brother, in the Grand Lodge of England, my Lodge, and all English Masons in Mauritius, may, I feel assured, count on your valuable support, when the hour shall arrive to petition our beloved Prince and Worshipful Grand Master for an extension of Masonic indulgences in this Island, which I trust may not be far distant.

"That you may long live to be a ruler in the Craft, is the sincere and fraternal wish of the British Lodge."

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

St. Valentine's day has come and gone, and the effusions of the poet and the sighs of the lover have by this time faded into "thin air." We hardly dared to write on the subject, until after the venerated anniversary was passed away, for fear we should bring ourselves under the condemnation of that religious body which has thought well to make a deliverance about St. Valentine's annual festival, and the distribution of his missives on the day of rest. We agree with them in the abstract, and think that as all the "fair enslavers" of the metropolis could only receive the expected epistle on Monday, our provincial fairies and lasses, and even "females of mature age" might have waited too, so as not to interfere with the poor postman's sabbath day. But our object in calling attention to the good Saint's anniversary is for a very different purpose. A great deal has been written and spoken lately about women's rights, and "Female Freemasonry," and we have heard lately, not a few allusions to the "Lone Star," or the "Eastern Star," or the "Mystic Star," or something of the kind equally touching and mysterious. It seems that like our fair French sisters in the last century, who invented "La Maçonnerie d'Adoption." These names or some such names as these, represent a movement in America, to establish a female Freemasonry. Well, despite St. Valentine's Day, despite its memories and its associations, despite dear visions and laughing eyes and flowing ringlets, rather, we should say, close-clipped little patches of hair, we cannot sympathize with such proceedings. No! Whether it be that we are old, or cross, or gouty, whether it may be said of us that we are too much "laudatores temporis acti," not only do we believe in the pleasant presence and the tender souvenirs of a bye-gone time, but we are inclined to think that our fair sisters to-day, like some we hugely liked and loved years, yes, years ago, have no business, no, no business, we repeat, in a Masonic lodge. Dear creatures as they are, good and true, and brave, "angel beings," as we heard a married man once say, looking up to the gallery before him (his wife was not there), "coruscations of beauty," and "scintillations of grace," as we have heard them termed by young Masons, they are still, in our humble opinion, like "fishes out of water" in a Masonic lodge. If they ask why, as women sometimes Eve-like will, all we can say is, that there are so many valid reasons that we think it "unnecessary to state them." We admit that this is rather in the "haw-haw" style, in which some of the younger generation like to indulge. But were we to write our reasons in full, we should be like the old parson, who got to the "seventeenth" and then said, naively, "here I will close, though I have several other heads, but I fear your patience, my brethren, won't stand it any longer." And so, in lieu of our prosy explanations and elucidations, as we lighted the other day on the following affecting stanzas, we give them in full. They explain themselves, and will doubtless be equally approved of by those fair sisters of ours, who read their husbands, or their brothers, or their intended's Freemason, as well as by those enthusiastic bachelors, and those somewhat vivacious married men, who give, with the deepest emphasis of pathetic emotion, the happy toast of "Woman, lovely woman."

"As Brethren we are met for mirth and delight,
And joy the bright hours of our Banquet shall fill;
Though, woman, dear woman, be absent to-night,
The spell of her beauty is over us still.

"Though shut from our Lodges by ancient decree,
In spite of our laws woman there bears her part;
For each Mason, I'm sure, will tell you, with me,
That her form is enshrined, and reigns in his heart.

"'Twas wisely ordained by our Order of old,
To tile fast the door, spite entreaties and sighs;
For once in our Lodge, she would rule uncontrolled,
And govern the Craft by the light of her eyes.

"Think not that in mysteries alone we delight,
Or that selfishness ever our fond hearts can fill,
Though woman, dear woman, be absent to-night,
The spell of her beauty is over us still."

THE PRINCE IMPERIAL.

We are not politicians, and the Freemason does not meddle ever with political questions per se. But there are certain subjects which seem to lift themselves, if we may so say, above the petty controversies and passing polemics of the hour. It must be a subject of much rejoicing to all Frenchmen and Englishmen to learn how well and ably the young Prince Imperial has acquitted himself in his Woolwich career. Those who know our English institution will be aware, that all we gave the Prince Imperial, as indeed all he asked for, was "a fair field and no favour," and in that he has displayed most commendable industry and intellect of a very high order. That he is the seventh out of a list of thirty-four, with 31,615 marks, is in itself a great deal, considering the examination, but when we add that he is sixth in mathematics, seventh in fortification, that he has done "very well" in artillery and mechanics, that he is fifth in gymnastics and first in equitation, and this, though eleven months junior than the average age of the class and not an Englishman, we feel that too much can hardly well be said either for his industry or his ability. It was our sad duty on a former occasion to offer our humble condolence to the widow and the orphan when, in the providence of God, Napoleon III. passed away from the troublous scene of human affairs. To-day we are glad to be able to record the results of the Woolwich examination, so gratifying to a mother's heart, and so interesting to that large section of the French people, which was faithful to the father and has not forgotten the son.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

It is stated that at the Committee Meeting on Wednesday, the 10th, our good Bro. Major Creaton in the chair, it was resolved to elect 15 widows and 22 male annuitants on the 21st of May. This resolution, which, it is also stated, has been arrived at in consequence of the liberal amount received at the Anniversary Festival, will enable the subscribers to vote for 37 candidates, leaving only 31 rejected applicants. If this announcement be correct, we congratulate the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and the Order, as, after the original announcements, this large increase of admissible candidates will come upon the Craft both as a pleasing surprise and a very welcome item of intelligence.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

We beg to call the attention of our readers to the lithograph of the Masonic Hall which appears in the Freemason to-day, and also to the report of the Company, which we have much pleasure in printing.

THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

We are enabled to state, on authority, that the installation of our Royal Grand Master will take place at the Albert Hall. But no details are as yet arranged, nor will they be until after the next meeting of the Grand Lodge. Due notice will then, no doubt, be given to all the lodges of what is proposed to be done. We will keep our readers "au courant" of all the official and correct information on the subject, and recommend them not to pay any attention to sensational paragraphs, or unofficial statements.

THE ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The want of care exercised by lodges in the admission of members has drawn from you remarks that fully indicate the evil of which your correspondent complains, but he also deals with another "blot or mischief-making source to Freemasonry, and that is the holding of our lodges in public houses."

Having repeatedly had my attention drawn to the several points treated upon by yourself, and your correspondent, on the above subject, allow me to give an opinion as to the remedy, and in doing so lay before your readers the way in which those evils were dealt with.

In the formation of a new lodge, three years ago, we had in view the objectionable features complained of, and therefore we adopted the following correctives:—That when a member had a candidate for initiation, or a joining member to propose, he should first name the matter to the W.M., who, with the I.P.M., Secretary, and Wardens, formed a "committee of enquiry," and when the result of their investigation had been laid before the lodge (for it to judge of the eligibility or otherwise of the party), it should then consider the case previous to taking the ballot. This course deals effectively with the haste and lax manner complained of, and will prevent the admission of members who "never pass, or seek to pass, beyond the 'arcana' of the 'knife and fork degree.'"

"The holding of our lodges in public houses" should most certainly be avoided. Having regard to this, we not only rented rooms in a Masonic hall, but we made a by-law—that "no refreshment shall be served in connection with the lodge, except on the occasion of the annual installation banquet." This I think you will say deals with the "public house" and "knife and fork" difficulty.

With regard to the benefits of our institution being a temptation to those who wish to enter the Order, this could be met as by the lodge I have referred to, by raising the scale of charges, which has proved a thorough success.

With regard to the "fees" being a temptation to a lodge to disregard the necessary care that should be exercised in selecting its members—that is an evil that carries its own punishment, and a lodge that thus disregards its own character, must soon pay the penalty of its breach of Masonic law.

Another point you name, and very properly condemn, is the admission of members being directed by "a clique." This proves the force of a statement in one of your previous leaders, that we number many members who are not Freemasons. The only remedy for this is to see that every candidate for initiation is "first prepared" as he says, and then, depend upon it, we shall not hear of such unmasonic terms as "a clique" in the lodge.

I cannot better close this than by quoting our R.W., Bro. the Rev. John Huyshe, P.G.M. of Devonshire, who at the banquet of the lodge referred to, on the occasion of my installation, when treating upon this subject, said: "It (the London lodge) had endeavoured to do its duty without allowing itself to be carried away by a wish to largely increase its numbers, irrespective of the quality of those who were introduced into the lodge, and he wished to impress upon all Masons that they should not seek to get anyone and everyone into their lodges. For himself, he should be exceedingly glad if the Grand Lodge would double the entrance fee; they would then have a very different class of men in the Order. It was really a bad principle to look simply to the filling of their book with numbers. If a man put a bad stone into a building, it was by no means an easy thing to take it out again. But it must come out unless they wished to mar the beauty of the whole building, and how was the mistake to be remedied? Why, by never letting the stone go in. Never let them put an evil stone into a building, and then they would raise and erect a temple fit and proper for habitation. This was why they had raised their fee above that of every other lodge in the province, and he congratulated them very much upon having done so, because it was the way to keep them select. It might perhaps be said, in opposition to such a course as this, that Masonry was universal, and therefore ought not to be kept select; but he did not consider that there was anything in the argument. Masonry was universal, it was true, in its principles, but in its members it was select, and ought to be select."

Yours truly and fraternally,

I.C.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The sentiments, regarding the admission of candidates into lodges, expressed by yourself and "a sincere Mason" in the last impression of this journal, demand grave consideration from members of the Craft. There can be no doubt that great laxity has for some time existed in certain lodges in respect to initiations. Were it necessary for me to adduce evidence in support of this statement, I could easily offer indisputable facts, that have come under my own personal notice. I say this unreservedly, but with feelings of great regret and chagrin. The evil, to which reference has been made, may be counteracted by the adoption of careful and conscientious investigation into the moral and social status of each candidate, some days previous to the balloting taking place at a regular meeting. I have often felt my dignity lowered by being compelled, through frequent visits to lodges, to associate with men whose reputation was known to be of an indifferent character, and who had been initiated without the prosecution of a single enquiry as to whether their conduct in public and private circles justified the brethren in receiving them into the fold. I have again and again protested against this negligent, and highly discreditable system, and have expostulated with young and inexperienced members, for having proposed parties of whose antecedents they had known positively nothing. To propose anyone without having received every assurance of his respectability, &c., from a lengthened personal acquaintance, and from those with whom he has been intimately connected, is an offence, which cannot be too generally opposed and condemned. I have, whenever an opportunity has presented itself, persistently impressed brethren with the expediency of exercising great caution in their selection of a candidate, and the responsibility assumed by proposers and seconders. Too many of us know full well what discredit has been cast upon the fraternity by some, whose sole ambition is to further their own mercenary designs, and to attend regularly at the banquetting table. These men know nothing about the principles upon which the Institution is based, nor do they understand how to establish their viva voce statement, that they are connected with the brotherhood, beyond the production of a Grand Lodge Certificate. Truly this is a sad theme upon which to reflect. Let every brother, I say, be determined to exclude from the Craft such men, who are certain to do incalculable harm. Let the Master officers and members of every lodge feel it an imperative duty to enquire personally into all propositions. By this means, I am convinced, improper persons would be effectually disbarred from passing through our portals.

"When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they will fall, one by one, an unpitied sacrifice, in a contemptible struggle."

In the bye-laws of the lodge, of which I am Master and founder, is the following clause, which is rigidly observed by the members, who, I am happy to state, entertain the same feelings and views as myself, in regard to the question under discussion:

"That a Committee, consisting of the Officers and Past Masters of the Lodge, shall be appointed to enquire into all propositions for membership, full particulars being forwarded by the Secretary to each member of the Committee; and should there be any objection to a candidate, the W.M. shall communicate the same to the proposers, one of whom must be present to answer any question, which may arise, previous to the Ballot being taken."

Need I say more? I will, however, add that I sincerely trust that the observations I have been urged to make, may be considered in the same spirit in which they have been dictated, and that henceforth those who are received into the Order are such persons as may be readily admitted to our family circle. On a future occasion I may have something to say in respect to the holding of lodges at public houses, if you, Sir, will kindly accord me space.

I am, dear sir and brother, truly and fraternally yours,
London, St. Valentine's Eve, 1875. C.S.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read the letter of "A Sincere Mason" in last week's impression with feelings of sorrow, as I am afraid the charges made are but too true; and, like him, am at a loss to understand why Freemasonry should in the slightest degree be connected with public-houses. Its beautiful ritual certainly demands a more befitting place for its rehearsal than can be found in the atmosphere of taverns generally.

For every moment spent in the attainment cannot but be fraught with good results. At the same time I cannot dismiss from my mind the fear that a man is apt to become worse instead of better (at least, his condemnation will be greater), by becoming acquainted with solemn and sacred things, to the letter of which so much importance is attached, if the spirit of the same is lightly thought of or disregarded.

Considering how churches, lecture-halls, theatres, &c., fill when made sufficiently attractive without the aid of drink and smoke, surely for the short space of two hours a Lodge of Instruction could be made interesting enough without either.

I should very much like to hear the general opinion of the brethren on this important subject, it having been intimated to me that it would be impossible to secure an attendance if drinking and smoking were prohibited during "labour." But believing, as I do, that it would be a glorious epoch in the annals of Freemasonry, when with one unanimous vote it is resolved to hold public-house meetings no more for ever, they have no cause to fear their numbers falling off on that account.

I remain, yours fraternally,

J. W. HARPER.

THE STATUS OF REJOINING PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me to ask "Busy Bee" if he knows of a book called "The Constitution," and, if so, if he ever read it? Why I ask this question is because he says in his letter in your last number—"I submit that a brother holding that position (a P.M.) would, on joining, or on re-joining a lodge, take his seat below any P.M. then subscribing to it." I, as a Mason of 40 years standing, beg to say that I agree with him as to a P.M. joining a strange lodge, but on rejoining his mother lodge the case is very different. If he be the oldest P.M. when he resigns, on his rejoining he retakes his old place as the senior P.M., and I'll defy "Busy Bee" to prove the contrary by the Book of Constitutions, which contain our laws—and from them we cannot take one word, or add one word thereto. If he will refer to the above book, he will see that a P.M.

loses his membership with Grand Lodge by leaving his lodge for twelve months, and nothing more, and I will defy "Busy Bee" or any other of your correspondents to prove the contrary. If he can and will refer me to the page of the above book where such a rule can be found, I shall be very much obliged.

Your faithful brother,

AN OLD P.M., ONE &C.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As to the government of the lodge. Some years ago I had occasion to have some correspondence with an expert brother on this subject, which seems to me to be conclusive. See page 76, chap. 1, of the Constitutions, Edition, 1867:—"No Master-elect shall assume the Master's chair until he shall have been regularly installed, though he may in the interim rule the lodge."

Again, page 78, chap. 6:—"If the Master shall die, &c. In the Master's absence, the Immediate Past Master, &c., shall take the chair, and if no Past Master be present, the S.W., J.W., shall rule the lodge." But my correspondent says they have no power to take the chair.

Yours truly and fraternally,

BETA.

PRIZE ESSAY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

From time immemorial, it has been handed down from our predecessors that Freemasonry is the most moral institution that ever existed. We have also been informed, by some of our divines, that it is also the hand-maid to religion. With such excellent tenets put before the public, some thousands are annually tempted to join our ranks. Yet, at the present time, we do not register on our books more than 50,000, with a male population of some 16,000,000 of inhabitants.

I heard one of the Grand Officers say some few years since, that the average duration of membership was seven years. It therefore does appear strange to myself and many more, that we should initiate so many into our mysteries, and so soon loose them—there must be something morally wrong. Then what is it which prevents the growth of the most moral institution and the handmaid to religion?

I would, therefore, humbly suggest to the powers that are, that Grand Lodge should offer a premium of £150 or £300 for the best essay on the prevailing sin of the Craft, and the best remedy against the evil now existing of the short duration of membership in our lodges. I think I could venture to say it would be the best investment Grand Lodge has made for many years.

Dear sir and brother, I remain, yours fraternally,

P.M.

THE RIGHT OF VISITING LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have always thought that a brother could enter any lodge as a stranger on proving himself to be of the Craft, and thus be a visitor for the evening. But it seems I have been in error on this point.

On the 12th inst. I presented myself at the Domestic Lodge, No. 177, held in Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, and after half an hour's delay was courteously (?) informed by the principal officers that I was in the way and had better retire—not being vouched for by a brother.

It is true that on leaving my residence I omitted to carry my certificate in my pocket. But every Freemason knows that the production of a certificate under such circumstances avails nothing. At any rate, I was not allowed to enter the lodge.

I am, sir, yours truly and fraternally,

WILLETT L. ADYE, R.A., K.T., M.M., 30° K.H.

THE BENEVOLENT FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in the Freemason of last week, in speaking of the different lists presented for the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows, you say Lincolnshire is at the head, through the exertions of Bro. Chadwick. I think there is some error. I alone am the representative Steward for the Province of Lincolnshire, and am at a loss to know who the brother alluded to is.

Believe me, fraternally yours,

WM. PIGOTT, P.M., P.G. Steward.

SURREY MASONIC HALL COMPANY (LIMITED).

The second annual general meeting of the shareholders was held on Thursday, the 4th inst., in the new hall, now being erected by this company in the Camberwell New-road.

Mr. W. Ramsey, who was unanimously elected to the chair, submitted to the shareholders the director's report, and statement of liabilities and assets of the company, which, after being duly discussed and commented upon by the shareholders, were unanimously adopted.

Messrs. Ramsey and Pinder were unanimously re-elected Directors of the company, as also Mr. H. A. Dubois as Auditor.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman and directors of the company, and also the various officers.

The meeting was afterwards made special, in pursuance of the notice given, for the purpose of enabling the directors to raise a loan, and a resolution was passed, empowering them to raise such loan. There being no other business to be transacted, the proceedings were formally closed.

There was a very good attendance of those that were interested in the good work, and the shareholders present were urged to use their influence amongst their Masonic brethren and others, so that the remaining capital of the company might be placed.

Those present then proceeded to examine the building as far as completed, and expressed themselves highly pleased with it, complimenting Mr. Oliver, the Builder, and Mr. Clark, the Architect, very highly upon the soundness of their work. The hall is progressing very fast, and when finished will be found to be quite as handsome a building as any on the southern side of the river; and we trust, before long, we shall have the pleasure of publishing its formal opening for Masonic and other purposes.

Applications for the remaining unallotted shares (which are £5 each) may still be made to the Secretary of the company, Mr. E. Sillifant, of 1, Gresham Buildings, Basinghall-street, E.C., and we hope that those who have the interest of the Craft at heart, and especially the removal of the meeting of lodges, chapters, &c., from public houses and hotels, to private rooms, for which this building has been primarily erected, will support this company in their laudable undertaking, by applying for the remaining shares unissued, without delay.

CONSECRATION OF THE ERA LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS (No. 176).

On Friday, February 5th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough, High-street, Southwark, the "Era" was added to the list of Mark Lodges meeting in London.

Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, as P.M. (Secretary of the Girls' School), the Officer appointed to perform the ceremony of consecration, opened the lodge. He appointed as his Officers, H. C. Levander, P.M. as S.W.; T. J. Sabine, P.M. as J.W.; F. Walters, P.M. as M.C.; and other Past Grand Officers to the minor offices. The Rev. P. M. Holden officiated as Chaplain.

The ceremony of consecration was beautifully and impressively rendered.

The lodge having been consecrated, Bro. H. C. Levander, P.M., took the chair, and in an excellent manner installed Bro. John Thomas Moss, W.M. Designate, as the W.M. He appointed as his Officers (after the ballot had been taken for the Treasurer), Bro. H. A. Dubois, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; T. H. Miller, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.P., P.M., Secretary; H. J. Green, M.O.; T. Horton, S.O.; W. Hammond, J.O.; W. Bell, R. of M.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; J. Hammond, S.D.; A. F. Loos, J.D.; J. Johnson, I.G.; W. Y. Laing, P.M., Tyler.

Bros. J. Wallis, 1326; D. D. Weinhausen, 1423; W. Munday, 1423; and J. Johnson, 1423, were regularly advanced to the ancient and honourable degree of Mark Master Masons.

Votes of thanks were given to Bros. R. W. Little, H. C. Levander, and T. J. Sabine, also honorary memberships of the lodge, for their kindness in consecrating the lodge. Bro. R. W. Little acknowledged the votes in a suitable speech.

Many propositions were received from candidates for advancement. Apologies were given for those candidates who were absent.

The lodge was then closed. A good banquet followed. The visitors included Bros. Sugg (Bon Accord), and very many others besides those mentioned in the report.

Masonic Festivities.

MASONIC BALL AT BARROW.

The third annual Masonic ball of the brethren in and around Barrow in aid of the Masonic charities took place in the Town Hall, Barrow, on the evening of Wednesday, the 17th ult., and proved in every respect of the most successful character. The fashionable assembly was under the distinguished patronage of the following Masonic leaders:—Bros. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master for West Lancashire; the Right Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master for Derbyshire; the Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P., Deputy Provincial Grand Master for West Lancashire; Sir James Ramsden, P.M. 1021, P. Prov. G.S.W.; His Worship the Mayor of Barrow, J. T. Smith, P.M. 1021; Alexander Stoddard, P.M. 32, P.G.S.W.; George Remington, P.M. 995, P.G.J.W.; H. W. Schneider, P.M., and P. Prov. G.J.W.; H. Cook, P.M. 119, and 1021, P. Prov. G.R.; Aymer Ainslie, W.M. 995; and the officers and brethren of the neighbouring lodges, and of the Holy Royal Arch Chapter, No. 995. The general arrangements, which were most satisfactory, were carried out by the committee. The brethren appeared in full dress Masonic clothing, with the jewels and insignia of their respective offices, and as the ball room was decorated in the most artistic manner, the effect was one of the most striking and animated nature. The work of decoration was, in a large measure, carried out by the ball committee above named, and the artistic manner in which they performed their labour of love, reflected the highest credit upon their taste and zeal. The prevailing colours were blue and white—Masonic colours—with a sufficient admixture of other tints to avoid monotony. The platform was extended from the stage as far as the first principal, a distance of about twelve feet, and this elongated stage afforded ample space for the refreshment buffet and supper-room. These were separated from the ball-room by a tastefully-arranged screen of alternate narrow folds of marine-blue and white drapery. In front of the screen the shields of Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, the Marquis of Hartington, and the Hon. F. A. Stanley were displayed. The former was surmounted with a trophy of seven flags, and the two latter with trophies of five flags each. The buffet was at the extreme back of the stage, and decorated with handsome candelabra and plate, besides the good things which were intended for the consumption of the company. In front of this, in the side-wings, were the supper-tables, two in number, which were arranged in a manner which did Bro. Taylor, of the Hartington and Bull Hotels, who had the entire management of the refreshment department, immense credit. Round each table were handsome couches and chairs upholstered in crimson morocco, and on the walls, which were draped in blue, were several choice oil and water-colour paintings, chiefly depicting lake scenery, and a handsome crayon portrait of the Duke of Devonshire. The gem of the supper-room decorations, however, was the large fountain which had been erected in the centre of the room. From this fountain, which was surrounded by the choicest ferns, orchids, and other hot-house, foliage, and flowering plants, jets of water were thrown about eighteen inches, and fell over a diminutive rockery, into a basin at the foot, in which a number of gold fish disported themselves. The water fell with a pleasing sound, and imparted a charming coolness to the atmosphere of the room. At the opposite end of the hall the shields of Bros. Sir James Ramsden, J. T. Smith (Mayor of Barrow), and Schneider relieved the screen in front of the gallery, the whole imparting a pleasing effect to the room. Over the eight shields which ordinarily adorn the sides of the hall were placed smaller trophies of three flags, and from each of the principals was suspended a handsome silk banneret, the whole bearing the names of the principal cities and towns between which and Barrow trade is carried on. These latter were lent for the occasion by the Furness Railway Company. The gallery, which was very prettily adorned, was allotted to the musicians, who were stationed on a raised level platform, behind which hung the magnificent banner, with the motto "Semper Sersum," recently presented by Bro. Sir James Ramsden to the Barrow Cricket Club. The gallery on either side of the band-stage was entirely screened from view by lace curtains, looped with blue silk sashes. Masonic and Royal Arch bannerets and emblems were placed at intervals on and adjacent to the walls, and besides these there were two very pretty pictures—one a view of the Masonic Institution for Boys, and the other the Masonic School for Girls, both of which very excellent institutions are in London—and a hand-illuminated address recording the number of votes which the Hartington Lodge, No. 1021, possesses in perpetuity for the various Masonic charities. Among the gentlemen who kindly lent furniture, plants, decorations, and other articles for the ball were Bros. Sir James Ramsden, his Worship the Mayor (J. T. Smith), Joseph Fisher, Gradwell, Townson, Ashburner, F. Worrall, R. T. Taylor, H. Pickavance, and others.

MASONIC BALL AT HUDDERSFIELD.

Since the New Year came in there have been several balls in Huddersfield in connection with the Lodge of Harmony, No. 275, and Lodge of Huddersfield, No. 290. The ball of the season took place on Friday evening, February 12th, 1875, in connection with the Lodge of Truth, No. 521, in their new and spacious lodge-room, Fitz-William-street, which was most effectively decorated for the occasion, and was universally admired by all present. The thanks of the brethren are due to Bros. Jackson, P.M., and H. Platts for the elegant designs and decorations, the walls being draped with white muslin, relieved at intervals with large mirrors, and in various parts of the hall were baskets of imitation fruit and flowers, which completed the fairy-like scene. Dancing commenced about half-past eight, and was continued until far on Saturday morning, and at last, "when daylight did appear," there were still a few enthusiastic brethren left to think of pleasures past. The stewards did all in their power to make everyone happy, and were rewarded with success, so far as the younger brethren and ladies were concerned; we should have liked to have seen them more attentive to the ladies of more mature age. The Masters of Ceremonies did their work with efficiency and to the satisfaction of every one present. The brethren appeared in Masonic clothing, according to their rank and the degrees they had taken. Craft, Mark, Royal Arch, Knights Templar, and Rose Croix forming a various and beautiful scene.

Amongst the brethren present we noticed Bros. J. Craven, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W.; William Smith, P.M., P.Z. P. Prov. G.D.C.; T. S. Higgins, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; George Marshall, P.M., M.E.Z.; Allan Jackson, P.M., P.Z.; B. Hutchinson, P.M., P.Z. 290; Harrop, P.M. 290; Joseph Hurst, P.M.; J. W. Tempest, P.M.; Joseph Varley, L.P.M.; Jos. Wood, P.M.; J. W. Turner, P.M., P.S.; Joshua Marshall, W.M. A.S., P. Prov. G.O.; T. Jackson, Past S.W.; J. W. Hinchliffe, S.W., P.S.; Joseph Holdsworth, J.W.; Sunderland, J.W. 1301; John Lunn, Sec., A.S.; Samuel Kelly, 30; Albert Midgley, 16, and others. The musical arrangements were under the management of Bro. Joshua Marshall, W.M., P. Prov. G.O., and gave every satisfaction, which, under such able management, they could not fail to do. This has certainly been one of the best Masonic balls ever held in Huddersfield, and in conclusion we can only wish the committee of management to do as ably next year, and they cannot doubt of success. The catering of Mrs. Shaw was of the very best and gave every satisfaction.

MASONIC BALL AT BOOTLE.

The brethren connected with the Bootle Lodge, No. 1473, have inaugurated a very admirable scheme, which, we hope, will not only be maintained in future years with success, but will be generally imitated by other lodges in the province of West Lancashire, and other divisions. On Thursday, the 28th ult., the brethren connected with the lodge, gave their first annual ball, at the Town Hall, Bootle (near Liverpool), in aid of the funds of the Bootle Borough Hospital, an institution which does not now actually stand in need of funds, although the committee exercised great wisdom in striving to lay by for the "rainy day" which may come. The claims upon the charity are increasing from year to year, thereby necessitating increased funds; and the effort to raise an endowment fund in connection with the institution, amply justified the effort made by the Bootle Brethren to help in the good work. The complete success which attended the fashionable assembly, gave excellent promise that a substantial sum will be handed over to the treasurer of the hospital. No better hall for the purposes of the "gay and festive" could possibly have been found, as all the rooms are very conveniently situated. The large hall and ante-rooms were beautifully decorated with flags, evergreens, mirrors, &c., by Bro. H. M. Molyneux, P.M. No. 823, the proprietor of the hall, who displayed exquisite taste in all the arrangements; and the tout ensemble was greatly enhanced by numerous specimens of choice statuary from the establishment of Mr. T. Jones, of Mount Pleasant, Liverpool, kindly given through Bro. John E. Jackson, S.W. 667. The ball was under distinguished patronage. The arrangements throughout were of the most satisfactory kind, and the general enjoyment and success of the assembly were greatly due to the exertions of the following committee of brethren, who were untiring in their exertions to make the ball pleasant to every visitor: Bros. S. E. Ibbes, W.M. 1473, Chairman; Harold Wyatt, S.W. 1473, Vice-Chairman; J. W. Turley, J.W. 1473; J. P. McArthur, P.M. Treasurer 1473; Richard Roberts; Dr. Willis; W. S. Barker; J. Duncan, A. Paterson, W. H. Clemmey, W. Hughes, J. J. Dowling, J. W. McWean, C. Ferranti. As at the recent ball at the Liverpool Town Hall, the stewards were very beautiful badges, which were supplied by Bro. G. Kenning. Bro. H. M. Molyneux, very efficiently and courteously fulfilled the duties of M.C. Bro. F. D. Pearce, the hon. secretary, deserves his full share of credit for the zeal displayed in connection with his office. Mr. Eberle supplied the refreshments, and the music was played by Mr. Martin's excellent quadrille band. His Worship, the Mayor of Bootle, was present, and the company included the elite of local society. Mr. E. H. Bramhall's quadrille band furnished excellent music, and the catering of Bro. and Mrs. Taylor, both in respect to supper and lighter refreshments, gave entire satisfaction. Dancing began shortly after nine o'clock, and was kept up with great spirit until a seasonable hour. The duties of secretaryship were discharged by Bro. H. Bagot, P.M., P.G.S.; and Bro. G. B. Nalder, Hon. Secretary 1225; both of whom deserve honourable mention for contributing so much to the success of a ball which will doubtless result in a substantial addition to the funds of the noble Masonic charities.

MASONIC BALL IN HULL.

The annual ball given by the Humber Lodge of Freemasons, No. 57, in aid of the Masonic and Local Charities, took place on Thursday night, at the Public Rooms, Jar-ratt-street, and proved one of the most successful gatherings of the kind we have witnessed for some years past. Considerable interest always attaches to this reunion, and the members of the Humber Lodge are ever desirous that some improvement shall, if possible, be made in the arrangements for each succeeding year. Thus, Thursday night, were seen many additions to the ordinary embellishments of the ball-room and other accessories; and nothing that could in any way enhance the pleasures of the event was left unstudied. The ball was under the patronage of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Pro Grand Master of England; the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Prov. Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire; the Right Worshipful the Mayor of Hull (Alderman Charles Wells, P.M., P. Prov. G.W.); Bros. J. P. Bell, M.D., P.G.D. of England, and D.P.G.M. of North and East Yorkshire; the Sheriff of Hull (Francis Summers, S.W. 57); C. M. Norwood, M.P.; Christopher Sykes, M.P., P.S.P.G.W.; Lieut.-Col. Pease, J.P.; A. Bannister, J.P., P. Prov. S.G.D.; the W.M., Officers, and brethren of the Minerva Lodge, Hull; Constitutional Lodge, Beverley; St. Germain's Lodge, Selby; Lonsborough Lodge, Bridlington; Pelham Pillar Lodge, Grimsby; Kingston Lodge, Hull; Sykes Lodge, Driffield; and the Alexandra Lodge, Hornsea. With such distinguished countenance and support, backed by the assiduous working of the committee, we were not surprised to meet a large gathering of the officers and brethren of the various lodges in the district; and, as the request to appear in full Masonic costume was pretty generally complied with, a very gay and animated scene was made up. The company began to assemble soon after nine o'clock, and carriages continued to arrive in rapid succession for nearly a couple of hours, by which time the pleasures of the ball were at their height. On entering the hall at this hour the visitor could not fail to have been charmed with the elegant and elaborate preparations which had been made for the occasion. The orchestra was studded with fir trees, in similar style to that witnessed at the Infirmary Ball, last week; whilst in the centre was a large figure of "Peace," and above this was the silk banner of the "Humber Chapter, founded 1811." The banner of the "Humber Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, established 1756," was also displayed, together with bannerets from several of the lodges in the town and neighbourhood, and these imparted a cheerful aspect to this end of the room. In front of the orchestra were three large stars, made up of ramrods and bayonets, and along the crimson façade were a variety of Masonic emblems, &c. Over the entrances were flags and banners, and in the doorways were hung white lace curtains, fastened with pink bows and rosettes;

whilst mirrors and ornamental boxes, filled with flowers, were suitably disposed about the walls, giving to the walls a most comfortable and elegant appearance. The floor was covered with holland and, with Mr. R. Close's quadrille band in the orchestra, there was nothing left to be desired in those essentials of the ball-room. Nearly two hundred and fifty guests were present, including the Mayor and Sheriff, the Worshipful Masters of several lodges, and many brethren who hold prominent positions in the Craft; and the mingling of regalia and uniforms amongst the groups of ladies, whose toilettes were more than ordinarily elegant, made up a scene of surpassing gaiety and animation. The following gentlemen acted as officers and stewards, and in every way exerted themselves to secure the comfort and enjoyment of the numerous company:—Bros. Jonathan West, W.M.; Henry Preston, I.P.M.; F. Summers, S.W.; Thos. Thompson, J.W.; Josh. Hindson, S.D.; Thos. Taylor, J.D.; J. E. Winspear, I.G.; E. Kidd, C.S.; G. Haigh, James Walker, Richard Buggett, W. H. Wellsted, A. Shand, E. Stone, A. Milner, A. Loftus, Thos. Greasley, and Thomas Middleton. Bro. Alfred W. Ansell acted efficiently as Director of Ceremonies, and Bro. J. G. Milner as M.C.; whilst the efforts of the committee were well seconded by Bro. T. Thompson, who proved himself a most indefatigable secretary. Through the kindness and liberality of Messrs. Maw, Till, and Kirke, the splendid furniture, which was lent by that firm for the Infirmary ball, was allowed to remain, and thus the ante-room to which the guests retired from the heat and exertions of the dance presented a more than usually warm and luxurious aspect. In the vestibule light refreshments were dispensed during the evening, and in this department the arrangements were far superior to those of last year. In order to afford this additional accommodation supper was laid in the assembly-room upstairs, where a sumptuous repast was provided by Bro. George Peacock. The dishes were interspersed with vases and epergnes filled with choice flowers, and the quality of the viands and wines supplied elicited the warmest expressions of commendation. The W.M., Bro. Jonathan West, presided, and at the conclusion of the repast he proposed "The Queen and the Craft," the toast being received most enthusiastically. "The Health of the Mayor" was next given, and Alderman Wells responded in a few happily chosen sentences, in which he congratulated the promoters of the ball upon the great success which they had achieved. "The Health of Sheriff" was the next toast, and it was received most cordially, and briefly acknowledged by Mr. Summers. The W.M. of the Minerva Lodge, Bro. Emes, next proposed "The Health of Bro. Jonathan, the W.M. of Humber Lodge," and the toast was received with the utmost warmth and sincerity. Bro. West, in acknowledging the toast, expressed the pleasure he felt at meeting so large a company on the occasion of their annual ball, and trusted that the pleasures which had been so well commenced might be continued for the rest of the night. He complimented Bro. Peacock on the excellence of his arrangements, and thanked the committee, officers, and stewards, for the hearty way in which they had assisted to make the ball a success. Bro. Summers, S.W., next gave "The Visitors," for whom Bro. Garforth, W.M. of the Kingston Lodge, responded; and Bro. Thomas Thompson proposed "The Ladies," the toast being gallantly acknowledged by Bro. C. Wells, jun. After supper dancing was resumed, and never for a moment abated in zest until the party broke up at a seasonable hour on Friday morning. We congratulate the members of the lodge upon the entire success which attended their efforts, for on every side we heard expressions of satisfaction with the manner in which the whole of the arrangements had been carried out.

MASONIC BALL AT BURY ST. EDMUND'S.

On Friday, the 12th inst., a Masonic Ball, under the auspices of the W.M. and brethren of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, 1,008, took place at the Athenaeum Hall. The company numbered about 230. The W.M., Captain C. J. Tufnell Oakes, officiated as master of the ceremonies, and the following brethren acted as stewards: Brothers, the Worshipful the Mayor, G. Thompson, P.M. 1,008; Major T. J. Huddleston, P.M. 1,008, and P.P.G.S.W., Suffolk; Captain J. N. York, P.M. 1,008, 88, and P.P.G.S.W. Cambs.; W. E. Bailey, I.P.M. 1,008, and P.G.A. Sec. Suffolk; J. Hendley Bevan, S.W. 1,008; J. D. Perrott, P.M. 651, 1,072, and P. Prov. G.S.W., Wales; William Patrick, J.D. 1,008; Henry Miller, I.G. 1,008; Capt. W. Horne, 1,008; Henry L. Cockledge, 1,008; Capt. E. P. Huddleston, 1,008; T. F. Lucia, 1,008, and P.G.S.; William Clarke, Steward 1,008, P. Prov. G.S. Suffolk; Charles Jennings, 1,008; W. J. Nunn, Org., 1,008; Benjamin Chennell, 1,008, J.D. 88, and P.G.A.D.C. Cambs.; Odden F. Read, 1,008; Philip Fitch, 1,008; E. M. Fyson, 1,008; J. G. Oliver, 1,008; G. H. Nunn, 1,008; A. Dura George, W.M. 114; Samuel H. Wright, P.M. 516, and P. Prov. G.R. Suffolk; T. J. Smith, W.M. 516; Francis Wheeler, 1,224. A capital supper was served by Bro. W. G. Guy, of the Angel Hotel. Howlett's excellent band occupied the orchestra. The ball room was elaborately and elegantly decorated. At the South end of the room a large crimson panel bore the inscription "Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, 1,008," in gold and blue; and on a similar panel on each side, were the "Andi vide, tace." Between each window on the East side was placed an elegant pier glass with a triplet of Royal Arch or Craft candles, and under them were crimson panels bearing the working tools or different degrees of blue Masonry. The staircases and balcony at the North end were draped with crimson, inscribed "Faith," "I.T.N.O.T.G.A.O.T.U." in blue and gold characters. The beautiful silk bannerets of White Rose Chapter, 1,008, lined the staircase, and had a very pretty effect. The brethren appeared in Craft clothing until eleven o'clock, and afterwards in that of the Royal Arch, Knights Templars, and other degrees.

At the annual meeting of the Oakley Lodge of Freemasons, held at the Masonic Hall, Basingstoke, Bro. W. W. Beach, M.P., P.G.M. Hampshire, and about 60 Grand Officers and brethren being present, the newly-installed W.M. said the brethren throughout the country had learned with deep regret of the very severe loss the Pro Grand Master had sustained by the death of Lady Carnarvon, and proposed that a letter of condolence should be forwarded to him. The motion was unanimously adopted.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.—We understand that the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs have, in response to an official invitation from the directors of the Alexandra Palace, graciously consented to attend the opening ceremonial, on the 1st of May next, in full Civic State.

The Queen has received, through the Earl Carnarvon, the war club of King Thakombau, which was in former times the symbol of sovereignty in the Fiji Islands, and which has now been presented to Her Majesty by the King in token of his dutiful allegiance.

Bro. the Hon. David Plunket, Solicitor General for Ireland, was, on Thursday, the 11th inst., re-elected for the Dublin University, without opposition.

Bro. John Pearson, ex-Mayor of Liverpool, has been appointed High Sheriff of Lancashire.

The infant daughter of the late Countess of Carnarvon was christened at the Chapel Royal of the Savoy, by the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain to the Queen. The sponsors were the Marchioness of Ely (representing Her Majesty), the Countess of Derby, and the Marquis of Salisbury. Lord Carnarvon, with his children, was present.

The Prince of Wales has consented to preside at the annual dinner of the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, Feb. 10th, at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was a moderate attendance of the brethren, the officers being Bros. Richard Simpson, W.M.; A. Barker, S.W.; J. Barnish, J.W.; Dan Mitchell, P.M., Secretary. The Treasurer being very ill, could not attend; R. Collingwood, S.D.; C. O'Doherty, J.D.; Bintliffe, I.G.; James Medgley, P.M., Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 5.30 p.m., and the minutes of the former lodges were read and confirmed. After which Mr. James Medcalf, a candidate for Freemasonry, was balloted for and approved. Mr. James Medcalf was then initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry by Bro. Dan Mitchell, P.M., assisted by T. B. Ashworth, P.M.; and Wm. Davies, P.M. The lodge was then opened in the second degree. Bros. Marshall and Thistlewhite being candidates for the third degree, were examined, and after having given proofs of their proficiency in the former degrees, were then entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and Bro. Thistlewhite was then admitted and duly raised by Wm. Davies, P.M. Bro. Marshall was also admitted and duly raised by T. B. Ashworth, P.M. The lodge was then closed in the third degree. The lodge was closed in the second degree. Bro. Clegg, who had been prevented from attending earlier, now presented himself, and wished to be passed. He was then examined, and having given proofs of his proficiency in the former degree, was then entrusted and retired. The lodge was again opened in the second degree, and Bro. Clegg was then duly passed to the degree of Fellow-Craft. The lodge was then closed in the second degree. Bro. T. B. Ashworth's notice of motion was read—that the bye-laws of the lodge be amended in accordance with the bye-laws of the province, and carried unanimously. The lodge was then finally closed at 8.45 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was amply provided by the host and hostess. After the cloth was removed, the brethren partook of the cup of cheerfulness, and the usual toasts were then given, amongst which our "Visiting Brother" was given, and well responded to. "The newly raised Brethren" was given and humorously replied to. "The newly passed Brother" was then given and briefly responded to. "The Initiate" was next given, and eloquently responded to. The usual closing toast was given, and the brethren departed in peace and good fellowship, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—A numerous meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 23rd inst., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. The proceedings commenced at four o'clock in the afternoon precisely. There were present:—Bros. Kennet, W.M.; Waygood, S.W.; Davis, J.W.; Mallett, S.D.; Davis, acting J.D.; Dairy, I.G.; Themans, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M., Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to raise Bros. Bird, Crow, Oliver, Dyke, and Leavers to the sublime degree of Master Masons, and passed Bros. Pilbrow, Steng, Politzer, and Chambers to the second degree. The ballot having been taken for Mr. Isaacs and declared unanimous, that gentleman was duly initiated into the Craft. The three ceremonies were carried out by the W.M. and his officers with that amount of care and impressiveness which for years past has characterized the working of the Faith Lodge. Bro. Holland, 144, was unanimously elected as a joining member. Bro. Taylor, P.M., gave notice of motion that at the next meeting he should move that the initiation fee should be increased to ten guineas, and the joining fee to five guineas. Bro. Hopwood, P.M., said that he should have much pleasure in supporting the proposition when it came on for discussion, as he considered the lodge was quite large enough in point of numbers, there being nearly 120 members on the books, and that there was not sufficient room even to accommodate those brethren and their numerous visitors comfortably, and if there should be a still further addition to any great extent it would be altogether impracticable to carry on the proceedings well, either in lodge or at the banquet table. The subject of the centenary jewel for the lodge was then fully considered, and Bros. Stuart and Hopwood were directed to see the Secretary of the Grand Lodge upon the matter, and report to the next meeting. A proposition having been taken for an initiation, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet. Among the visitors were Bros. Levy, P.M. 188; Cooper, P.M. 733; Withall, J.W. 720; Robins, 25; Maynard, 177; Carter, 209; Dixon, 209; Pence, 275; Raalk, 917; Rowley, 917; Sharpless, 1346; Woodward, 1393; Rosenheim, 27, New York City. The toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master, and Lord Carnarvon, the Pro Grand Master," were loyally and heartily received. The health of the initiate, Bro. Isaacs, followed, who briefly acknowledged it. The W.M. in giving the visitor's toast, stated that on behalf of the lodge he gave them a hearty welcome, and he, personally, was pleased at being able to dispense its hospitality to so numerous and distinguished a gathering of visiting brethren. Bro. Levy, P.M., in reply, expressed, on behalf of himself and colleagues, the great pleasure they had received from their visit to the Faith Lodge. The working was good; the charitable and benevolent principles of the lodge were excellent; and the hospitality and conviviality of the brethren unsurpassed; and in conclusion he hoped that desirable state of things would continue to be the characteristic of the Faith Lodge. Between the toasts, Bros. Rosenheim, Walls, Davis, Mallett, Bird and Levy contributed several instrumental, vocal, and dramatic effusions, which appeared to give the brethren great satisfaction. Bro. Themans, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was warmly received. The W.M. having replied, gave "The Health of the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge." Bro. Stuart, P.M., replied for the former, and Bro. Waygood for the latter. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings at a late hour.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—An exceedingly strong meeting of the brethren of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. The proceedings commenced at an early hour in the afternoon. The officers present were: Bros. Everett, W.M.; Wilson, S.W.; Willing, jun., J.W.; Palmer, S.D.; Scard, J.D.; Knott, I.G.; T. Goodfellow, D.C.; Kent, I.P.M.; Smith, P.M., Treasurer; Williams, Secretary; Spink, W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Richards, Parker, Beale, and Sergeant, and passed Bros. Aley, Marriott, Turner, Herbage, and Gibson. Both ceremonies were excellently well carried out. Messrs. Plummer, Williams, and Robinson, were then initiated into the Craft by the W.M., in a most impressive manner. Bro. Orchard (201) was unanimously elected by ballot as a joining member. A motion of Bro. Foxcroft's, to give the votes of the lodge on behalf of Bro. Muggeridge, P.M., a candidate for the benefits of the Royal Aged Freemasons' Benevolent Institution, was then discussed, but at the request of Bro. Smith, P.M., who stated that the votes of the lodge had always been at the disposal of the W.M. for the time being, and he did not see why Bro. Everett should not have the same prerogative as his predecessors in the lodge, the motion was withdrawn. The W.M. then informed Bro. Foxcroft, and the brethren generally, that he should be at all times only too happy to entertain any suggestions as to the disposal of the lodge patronage, upon the matter being properly brought before him. The lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, where an excellent repast awaited them. There were upwards of 100 brethren present, and among the visitors were: Bros. Betts, W.M. 1351; Larham, J.W. 1216; Canvin, J.W. 209; Mead, S.D. 788; Higgins, J.D. 1281; Walls, 141, 1381, 1503, I.G.; W. A. Ellis, 1381, Organist; King, 1056. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the "Queen and Craft," which was duly honoured, and Bro. Walls contributed one verse of the "National Anthem." In proposing the next toast, that of "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M.," the W.M. expressed his opinion that it was a great day in the history of Freemasonry when the Prince accepted the office of G.M., and he believed that H.R.H. would be as active in the discharge of his Masonic duties as he had hitherto been in the fulfilling of the requirements of his social and public position. "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was then sung by Bro. Wallis, accompanied by Bro. Ellis. The health of Bro. Lord Carnarvon, P.G.M., was warmly received. The initiates having been toasted, severally replied. The other Masonic toasts followed quickly, Bro. Betts, W.M. 1351, replied on the behalf of the visitors in an able speech. Bro. Kent, I.P.M., on being entrusted with the gavel, rose, and proposed the health of the W.M. in very complimentary terms, and expressed his personal appreciation of the excellent manner in which the whole of the duties of the day had been carried out by Bro. Everett, more especially when it was considered that it was his "maiden sitting." This toast was responded to by the brethren with excellent fire. The W.M. in reply, stated that he felt exceedingly gratified at the manner in which his health had been proposed and drunk, which he believed was done with sincerity. He considered it to be a very great honour to occupy the chair in so old and powerful a lodge as the "Domestic," but he felt it to be a still higher distinction in filling it at the present time, when Freemasonry was attracting so much attention, by the recent admission into its ranks of two of our Royal Princes, and the forthcoming installation of their brother the Prince of Wales, and the impending installation of their M.W.G.M.'s Royal brother-in-law, the King of Greece, who would ultimately become Grand Master of that classic country. Such a succession of distinguished events in the history of the Craft had probably never occurred before, and the speaker stated that he should look back in future years with pride, at having filled the W.M.'s chair under such auspicious circumstances, in the year of grace 1875. The P.M.'s health was proposed, and received with the customary honours, and amusingly responded to, on behalf of himself and colleagues, by Bro. Kent. The Treasurer's and Secretary's healths were drunk, and heartily received by the brethren, and responded to at length by those efficient officers, Bros. Smith and Williams. Between the toasts the brethren were entertained by the vocal, instrumental, and dramatic efforts of Bros. Palmer, Walls, Foxcroft, Ellis, &c. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings.

JORDAN LODGE (201).—This noted old lodge held its installation meeting on Friday, the 15th ult. The following were the officers who took their respective positions in due time:—Bros. G. Whitley, W.M.; J. Hume, S.W.; P. Wagner, J.W.; R. T. Elsam, S.D., P.M. 889, P. Prov. G.D.C. Surrey; W. Palowkar, J.D.; R. C. Read, I.G.; R. Watts, Treasurer; F. B. Davage, I.P.M.; P. Robinson, P.M., D.C.; and H. M. Arliss, Secretary. This lodge is one of the few working on what is termed the East-end method, better known in modern days as Muggeridge's mode of working. This, however, has lapsed into a mixed method of late years, one noted old Mason having, a few years ago, broken the magic thread from his prepossession in favour of Stephen Barton Wilson's working, the more general term by which the West-end working is known. It was a time-honoured practice, too, with this lodge, indeed, from time immemorial, for the outgoing Master to instal his successor. This laudable practice, however, has also of late years been departed from; but in justice to the brother to whom reference has already been made, as an innovator, not till after he had passed the chair several years. On this occasion, that is, at the last meeting, one of the old school, Bro. R. Watts, P.M. and Treasurer, performed the duty of Installing Master, which, although not performed with that energy, fire, and fluency of by-gone days, at least reminded us of the past, when Bros. Patten, the late Secretary of the Girls' School, and the lamented J. R. Sheen, its ever faithful supporter, were the guiding spirits of the lodge. Bro. James Hume was duly installed into the chair of King Solomon, and the officers named above were all advanced one step nearer the goal of Masonic aspiration, the highest honour the lodge can confer, Bro. J. Sumner, taking the post of I.G. The Board of Past Masters, which was large on the occasion, consisted, with one or two exceptions, of those belonging to the lodge, numbering a dozen in all. Subsequently, at this meeting, an incident of a very pleasing character took place, as expressive of that kindly feeling engendered in the hearts of a body of men, knit together for over a quarter of a century by the bond of Freemasonry. It was the presentation to Bro. Edward Spooner (who had held the office of Secretary to the lodge, and had otherwise been engaged in its welfare for upwards of 28 years) of a very elegant testimonial, illuminated on vellum, and suitably framed, investing him with honorary membership, and expressing regret at his resignation, as well as great satisfaction with his long years of duty to the Craft and the lodge. It is easier, perhaps, to present it in its entirety, than to deprive it of one word of its full meaning. It is as follows:—

"Jordan Lodge, 201, of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons.
To Bro. Edward Spooner,
P.M. and Secretary.

"It is with sincere regret that the members of this Lodge of Freemasons acknowledge the retirement from active duties of Bro. Edward Spooner, P.M. and Secretary, whose services for the past twenty-eight years have been generously and cheerfully devoted to the interests of the members and Freemasons in general; and, whilst expressing their deep regret, they cannot but record with feelings of intense satisfaction the unfailing punctuality in Bro. Edward Spooner's official performances, his aptness and willingness at all times in working the ceremonies of the lodge, and the kind assistance he was ever ready to render to those who were in need of it. Although his failing health may prevent his further active attention to these duties, it is their hearty wish that he may be preserved for many years to enjoy the love and brotherly attachment which will always be exhibited by the members of the Jordan Lodge, and it is unanimously resolved that his name be enrolled as an honorary member of the lodge, in consideration his past services.

"Henry M. Arliss, P.M. and Secretary.
"December 18th, 1874."

The testimonial was presented to Bro. Spooner by the newly-installed W.M., Bro. James Hume, who expressed himself much gratified at having so pleasing a duty to perform. Bro. Arliss, P.M., one of the oldest of Bro. Edward Spooner's colleagues, made several touching observations, which were heartily echoed by every member present, and a few words in acknowledgment from the recipient, whose remarks were somewhat checked by emotion, ended the presentation of a testimonial, simple in itself, but of no ordinary character, as far as the sentiment conveyed in it was concerned.

WINDSOR.—ETONIAN LODGE OF ST. JOHN (No. 209).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall on the 2nd inst., when the new W.M., Bro. J. O. Carter, presided, supported by Bros. Denne, S.W.; Canvin, J.W.; Pullin, P.M., Treasurer; Strange, P.M., Secretary; Hume, J.D.; Roberts, I.G.; Schiemann, D.C.; Pears, Steward; G. W. Dixon, I.P.M.; J. Wilson, P.M.; J. H. S. Reid, P.M.; Hiscock, Andrews, Whomes, Garrett, Woods, and others. Visitors:—Bros. Bingham, W.M. 771; Tolley, P.M. 771; Small, W.M. 1194; J. Chambers Roe, J.W. 780; Hollingsworth, and others. The V.W.D.P.G.M. of the province, Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, also honoured the lodge with his presence. The lodge was opened with commendable punctuality at the time mentioned in the summons, and after confirming the minutes of the previous meeting, the W.M. raised Bro. Garrett to the third degree, passed Bro. Woods to the second, and initiated Mr. Henry Thomas Spindler, of Isle-worth, and Mr. John Prince, of Staines. Bro. Tolley presided at the organ with his usual skill and ability. The manner in which he rendered Mendelssohn's "To Thee, O Lord, I yield my spirit," created an impression not easily forgotten. The W.M. invested the V.W.D.P.G.M. as Hon. Chaplain of the lodge, a pleasure the W.M. was deprived of on the previous—the installation—lodge meeting, as the reverend brother was unable to be present, owing to important duties connected with his sacred calling. After some routine business had been transacted, and a candidate for initiation proposed, the lodge closed in perfect harmony.

LEICESTER.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 279).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, February 3rd. Present:—Bros. J. W. Smith, W.M.; J. M. MacAllister, S.W.; G. W. Statham, J.W.; William Weare, P.M.; Treasurer; Clement Edwin Stretton, Secretary; S. Cleaver, S.D.; S. Tebbutt, J.D.; Orlando Law, I.G.; George Toller, P. Prov. G.S.W. 279 and P.M. 523; Clement Stretton, P. Prov. G.W., P.M. 279; S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Sec., W.M. 523; R. Waite, P.M.; M. H. Lewin, J.W. 1330; J. Farndale, C. Gurden, J. Jessop, J. Bird of 279; E. Mason, Sec. 1391; and others. The lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. inaugurated his year of office by passing Bros. J. Farndale, J. Bird, and J. Jessop to the second degree. His very impressive and correct working evinced to the brethren his thorough understanding and appreciation of the true nature and design of Freemasonry. The usual routine business having been concluded, the brethren partook of refreshment, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed in due order.

OXFORD.—APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE (No. 357).—The 56th anniversary festival of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 23rd inst., at 3.45, for the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard. There were ten candidates for initiation, who were all admitted to the mysteries of Freemasonry by the retiring W.M., Bro. F. P. Morrell, who thus brought to a close an eminently successful year of office. Bro. H. A. Pickard has been W.M. of the Apollo Lodge on two previous occasions, namely, in 1856 and 1857. The installation was performed by Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. G. M. Hants and Isle of Wight, who had installed Bro. Pickard on two former occasions. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, the Deputy G.M. of England, was also present. He filled the office of I.G. of the Apollo in Bro. Pickard's first year of Mastership. The other eminent Masons whom we noticed were Bros. Theodore M. Talbot, P.G.M. Western Division of South Wales; E. J. Morris, Deputy G. M. Western Division of South Wales; Colonel Adair, 33°, P. Prov. G.M. Somerset; R. J. Spiers, D.P.G.M. of Oxfordshire; and Frederick Davison, Prov. G. S. W. of Middlesex. There were a great many Provincial Grand Officers present, and a large attendance of the Craft. The W.M., having been duly installed, proceeded to appoint the following officers, who were invested with the badges of their respective offices by Bro. Beach. Bros. F. P. Morrell, I.P.M.; H.R.H. Prince Leopold, S.W. (Bro. Williamson, P. G. Purst., was invested as Deputy S.W.); W. R. B. Fletcher, Prov. Grand Sec. Oxon, J.W.; C. J. S. Spedding, Prov. Grand Steward, S.D.; H. Paget, J.D.; Col. the Hon. W. E. Sackville West, Prov. Grand Supt. of Works, Secretary; J. E. C. Bodley, Junior Secretary; Bird, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., Treasurer; S. Campbell, I.G.; Lumsden, Glenros, Butler, and Davidson, M.C.'s; Eversley, Gandell, and others, Stewards; Norwood, Tyler. The lodge being closed in ample form, the brethren adjourned to a banquet, at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

SALISBURY LODGE (No. 435).—A very pleasing addition to the usual routine of Masonic business took place at a meeting of the above lodge, held at the Café Royal, Regent-street, Feb. 16th, by the presentation of a very handsome and massive silver tea and coffee service to Bro. Stohwasser for his unremitting attention to the welfare of the lodge, as shown by the following copy of a circular sent to each member. "Dear Sir and Brother,—It is now twenty years since the Salisbury Lodge was removed from Enfield to London; and as some of the present members may not be aware of the eminent services rendered to the lodge by the Treasurer, Bro. Stohwasser, P.M., the present opportunity is thought a fitting one to explain that Bro. Stohwasser advanced the means wherewith to purchase the valuable furniture and jewels, from the W.M. and Officers of the lodge (then held at Enfield); his energy was however so great, and, in consequence thereof, the initiations and joining members increased so rapidly (and therewith the necessary funds), that in a short time he was repaid his handsome loan. Since then he has continued a much beloved and valued Treasurer. He has never allowed the lodge to get into debt; always found a sufficient surplus to assist in a handsome manner the various Masonic Charities; and invariably made it a rule to see that the banquet for the brethren was sumptuously provided. Bro. Stohwasser's subscriptions to Masonic and other charities are numerous, and his goodness of heart proverbial. It is therefore considered desirable to honour such a brother with some substantial token of regard as some slight acknowledgment of his aid and valuable services, given solely for the benefit of the lodge. The brethren having requested Bros. P.M. Rahles, Sachs, Rosenthal, and Hooper, Hon. Sec., to act for them in this matter, they herewith invite the previous and present brethren of the Salisbury Lodge to fill up the enclosed list of subscriptions, and return it to Bro. T. R. Sachs, 22, Hyde Park Place, London, W., who, having accepted the office of Treasurer to the Testimonial Fund, will duly acknowledge the same." The W.M., Bro. W. C. Phillips, officiated for the first time, and initiated three brethren in a most praiseworthy manner. Bro. Koester, P.M., assisting him by raising another brother. At the banquet the W.M. handed his gavel to Bro. John Rahles, P.M., who then, in a most telling speech, presented the testimonial to the recipient. Bro. Stohwasser was evidently much gratified, but his feelings would not allow him to give utterance to what he wished to say, he therefore briefly returned his thanks. Bro. Rahles had a similar pleasing duty to perform some twenty years since, when Bro. Sachs, P.M., was President of the German Society of Benevolence. Bro. Sachs then got up a testimonial to Bros. Klastenberger and Stohwasser for their unceasing endeavours, for many years, to alleviate the sufferings of poor Germans, which could not be done without great trouble and expense to themselves. The testimonials on that occasion consisted of a silver loving cup and salver each. The banquet for the Salisbury Lodge was excellent. Bro. W. Ganz, P.M. and G.O., adding much to the effect by his performance on the organ during the ceremony of raising, and afterwards on the pianoforte at the banquet. Bro. Stohwasser, jun., sang the Entered Apprentices' Song, and another pleasing melody, in capital style.

CARNARVON.—SECONTIUM LODGE (No. 606).—The brethren of this ancient lodge, following the example of the Denbigh Lodge members, entertained Bro. Horatio Lloyd, the newly appointed judge of the Chester and North Wales County Courts, P.G.S.W. of the Province of Chester, at a banquet at Carnarvon, on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst. After the lodge had been duly opened in the handsome room which has been fitted up in the ancient Castle of Carnarvon for the purposes of the craft, the brethren and visitors adjourned to the Sportsman Hotel, where a large number sat down to a splendid banquet provided by Mr. Pugh. Bro. C. H. Rees, W.M., presided, the attendance including visitors from the Chester Independent Lodge (721), St. David's, Bangor (384), Port Madoc, and other lodges. After the loyal and Masonic toasts, the health of Bro. Lloyd was given, and responded to most enthusiastically. Our learned brother responded in an eloquent manner.

FILEY.—ROYAL LODGE (No. 643).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at Ford's Hotel, on the 8th inst., for the purpose of installing Bro. Samuel Rimmington as W.M. The Installing Master, Bro. George Hardy, P.M. 250, P. Prov. G. S. D., performed the ceremony in the most able and impressive manner, and his ability was the theme of admiration to every member who had the privilege of listening to him. The ceremony having been performed, the newly-installed Master returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, evidently showing the deep impression that the whole of the proceedings had made upon him, and promising to exert himself to the utmost in promoting the interests of the lodge, and of Masonry generally. He then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows: Bros. W. Budd, S.W.; R. Hopper, J.W.; W. G. Long, P.M., P. Prov. G. S. B., Treasurer; H. A. Darley, Secretary; J. Cocksworth, S.D.; F. Spink, J.D.; R. Milford Taylor, P.M., Chaplain; C. Scrivener, P.M. and H. Nelson, Stewards; R. Dobson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S., D.C.; W. Fisher, P.M., P. Prov. G. S., I.G.; W. Jefferson, O.G. The above brethren having briefly returned thanks for their appointments, and the newly-installed Master having most impressively pointed out to them the several onerous duties which they would have to perform, the very interesting ceremony was brought to a close, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, first-rate in quality and profuse in quantity. The chair was occupied by Bro. Rimmington, W.M., and the vice-chair by P.M. Bro. Fisher, each of them vying with the other in the promotion of harmony and good feeling amongst the brethren. After the cloth was drawn, "The Queen and the Craft" was given from the chair; next, "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Royal Family," both of which toasts were most loyally and warmly received. "Lords Carnarvon, Skelmersdale, and Zetland, ruling Officers of the Craft," was the next toast, and which was much applauded. P.M. Bro. Long, P. Prov. G. S. B., gave "The Health of Bro. Bell, Deputy Prov. G.M.," which elicited a succession of hearty cheers from all present. "Bro. Hardy, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D., the Installing Master," was given from the chair amid great applause, and that worthy Mason made a very telling and effective speech in reply. Bro. Hardy gave "The health of the Worshipful Master, and prosperity to the Royal Lodge," which was received with the greatest enthusiasm, and Bro. Rimmington returned thanks for himself and the members of the lodge in the most glowing terms. Many other toasts were drunk and responded to, not forgetting that of "Host Welborn and his wife, for the splendid banquet they had set before the brethren." The whole proceedings of this most truly enjoyable meeting were such as will not readily be forgotten by those who had the happiness of joining in them.

LIVERPOOL.—EVERTON LODGE (No. 823).—The usual monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Bro. W. Cottrell, W.M., presided, and his official and other supporters were: Bros. T. Shaw, S.W.; W. Wilson, J.W.; W. J. Lunt, P.M. Treasurer; J. Houlding, Secretary; H. Ashmore, S.D.; J. Goodman, J.D.; J. Muir, Org.; S. Milikin, I.G.; J. S. Cuthbert, S.W.; H. Ball, Tyler; T. Ashmore, P.M.; H. M. Molyneux, P.M.; T. Bloomfield, E. H. Benedict, R. W. Gow, R. Warriner, J. Marsh, J. Hume, R. W. Oglesby, J. Beesley, J. W. C. Browne, Cave, J. Boyle, W. Nash, W. Maddock, S. Roxburgh, J. Holden, H. Hall, F. Tuft, F. Calloway, F. H. Careful, G. Graham, W. Jones, R. Leeson, C. Birchall, T. Chuton, W. Ashmore, J. White, W. H. Allen, J. W. Gatty, R. Thompson, J. Lawrence, D. Callon, W. R. Gilchrist, E. H. Bryson, W. G. Veale, W. Summers, E. Morgan, T. Griffiths, J. A. Murray, C. E. Kidd, A. Pennell, and W. H. Home. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. W. Savage, 241; R. Carter, 249; J. Long, 594; J. H. White, 594; J. McCarthy, J.W. 1393; J. Parsons, P.M. 203; A. Bergman, 48; T. L. Jones, 1393; H. Hurdle, 1393; J. R. Cave, 1094; A. Barnard, 246; R. Brown, 1356; M. Hart, Secretary 1502; T. Grayson, 249; G. H. Sharp, 249; and others. Five candidates were initiated, and two passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M., in a singularly able and effective manner, the subordinate work being admirably performed by the officers of the lodge. After several sums had been voted in charity, the brethren adjourned to the lodge room in the old building, when, after supper, the usual loyal, Masonic, and other toasts were cordially given and heartily responded to. A very pleasant, brotherly evening was spent, music being again the leading feature of the Evertonians' social gathering.

BERGOVNE LODGE (No. 902).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Monday evening, 22nd inst., when Bro. Field was for the second time consecutively installed in the chair of K.S., to rule and govern the lodge for another year. The ceremony was impressively performed by the I.P.M., Bro. L. R. Rogers, who also gave the three accustomed addresses with emphatic ability. The lodge, however, did not restrict its working to the installation ceremony, Bro. Field, ever zealous in labour, contriving to find time to pass Bros. Benatar, Dunn, Lockwood, and Arnold, and to admit to the light Messrs. Yates and Maltby. The brethren also, on the motion of Bro. Rogers, I.P.M., seconded by Bro. Harvey, P.M., unanimously voted a sum of ten guineas from the lodge funds as a contribution to the list of Bro. Poynter, P.M. and Treasurer, on the ensuing occasion of his serving the office of Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Girls' School. The officers invested by the W.M. for the ensuing year are:—Bros. Rogers, I.P.M. and M.C.; Brooks, S.W.; Jefferys, J.W.; Poynter, Treas.; Taylor, Sec.; Byng, S.D.; Pocock, J.D.; Haig, Steward; Young, I.G.; and Grant, Tyler. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, to which sixty-three brethren sat down, and which was provided, with his usual taste and ability, by Bro. Clemow, the proprietor of the hotel. Due justice having been done to the substantial part of the repast, the W.M., who presided with his usual urbanity and cordiality, proposed the customary toasts, which were done due honour to, graceful allusion being made by the W.M. to the recent loss of our Pro Grand Master has sustained, whose health, in consequence, was drunk in reverential silence. In proposing the health of the W.M., Bro. Rogers, I.P.M., alluded, in felicitous terms, to his well-deserved popularity, and the equal ability with which he filled the dual position "alow and aloft," whether with exact finish and rhetorical art performing the ritual, or with heartiness and warmth welcoming brethren to the social board. When, with a few more suitable remarks, Bro. Rogers affixed to the W.M.'s breast the very handsome jewel voted by the lodge, the vociferous applause of the brethren evinced how thoroughly he had given expression to their sentiments. The W.M. replied in very eloquent terms, and proposed the health of the Installing and I.P.M., which was done due justice to, and warmly and suitably acknowledged as was also "The Health of the Initiates." "The Health of the Visitors," who were unusually numerous, no less than twenty-five being present, was responded to by Bros. the Rev. P. M. Holden, M.A.; Headon, W.M. of the Great City Lodge; Stevens, P.M.; and Worrell, P.M.; both of the latter lodge, and another brother whose name we did not catch. The festive character of the proceedings of the "fourth degree" was considerably enhanced by the excellent songs and recitations interspersed throughout the evening, and rendered with marked ability by the brethren, particular commendation—quite, indeed, amounting to a display of wild enthusiasm seldom evinced in a Masons' assemblage, where the highest mark of applause consists of a very grave, decorous, and sober manifestation—was evoked by our reverend brother's recitation of Tennyson's well-known "Charge of the Light Brigade," and Morris's almost unknown Masonic poem, "We meet upon the Level and we part upon the Square." The former was given with a power and fire probably never before surpassed, eminent as have been the readers who have essayed this, perhaps, somewhat hackneyed, poem, a characteristic, however, which can never be applied to it when given by our reverend brother. With respect to the Masonic poem, suffice it to say that such was the exquisite beauty of its delivery that eyes unaccustomed to tears, and throats unused to throbbing, felt a suffusion and a convulsion seldom experienced in moments of convivial intercourse. Among the visitors present, (and we cannot pretend to enumerate all), in addition to those we have already referred to, we observed: Bro. Slyman, W.M. Prince Frederick William, 753; and Athenæum, 1491; and Brocklesby, the esteemed Secretary of the latter lodge and P.M. London, 108; Marsh, P.M. Urban, 1196; Larham, P.M., and numerous others. The lodge broke up in good time and perfect harmony, after having spent a very delightful evening.

STOCKTON.—LODGE OF PHILANTHROPY (No. 940).—The celebration of the annual festival of the Lodge of Philanthropy (940) of the Ancient Order of Free and Accepted Masons took place on Thursday, February 18th, at the Freemasons' Hall, Wellington-street, Stockton. At two o'clock the brethren began to assemble, and shortly afterwards the lodge was opened. There was a large gathering of members and visitors. The chair was occupied by Bro. A. S. Fowler, the retiring W.M., who was supported by the following Past Masters:—J. H. Jackson, Thomas Walton, J. H. Mann, W. Best, J. Hutton, R. B. Hapley, W. J. Watson, W. Nelson, A. C. Knowles, J. Trotter, G. Ellis, J. Bowron, Thomas Bowron, C. Naish (W.M. Tees Lodge). The following brethren were present:—R. Ashton, G. E. Smirke, Robert Headlam, P. Pescod, M. V. Pearson, H. Cuthbert, B. S. Lockwood, J. Thorman, W. J. B. Caseley, W. W. Wilson, J. H. Nightscapes, E. W. Dickinson, John Young, W. Simpson, Thomas Wilks, J. W. Moses, J. Bowman, A. Hly, D. Munro, C. Jordison, W. Lightfoot, J. Scarth, J. Ellis, F. Watson, J. Sharp, J. F. Craggs, J. Rose, S. T. Stephenson, R. S. Hopper, G. Hopper, J. Hill, J. Boothroyd, S. Gordon, C. Hoggerty, T. Preston, J. Hall, G. E. Pybus, I. Alston, —Smith, W. P. Banning, G. D.

Leng, A. Mackinlay, and J. Fowler. Amongst the visitors were the following:—J. Foster, Restoration, 111; R. B. Harpley, Harbour of Refuge, 764; Wm. Mitforth, Restoration, 111; C. Fairburn, S.W. 1337; S. W. Clarks on, 1337; J. Fairburn, W.M. 1337; J. C. Crosby, 1418; Dr. Fraser, Restoration, 111. After the ordinary business had been transacted, Bro. J. Usher was duly installed Worshipful Master of the lodge for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed by Bro. A. S. Fowler, the I.P.M., in a manner exceedingly able, and that afforded the highest gratification to all present; indeed, it is not too much to say the ceremony was conducted in a manner so thoroughly efficient as to bid fair to call Bro. Fowler's services into frequent requisition. At the close of the ceremony the W.M. installed his officers as follows:—Thomas Bradley, S.W.; B. Smith, J.W.; J. Hunton, Treas.; I. H. Hart, Sec.; James Rose, S.D.; J. F. Craggs, J.D.; J. W. Moses, I.G.; E. Hoggett, Org.; and J. Scarth and R. Ashton, Stewards; and J. Trenholme, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the dining hall, and sat down to an excellent repast, which was admirably well served, a number of the brethren volunteering to officiate in ministering to the requirements of the company, which they succeeded in doing to the great comfort and very great satisfaction of all present. After the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the health of "The Queen and the Craft," followed by "The Prince of Wales, the M.W. G.M. of England," succeeded by that of "Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Pro G.M. of England." He next gave "The Health of the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England, and the Present and Past Grand Officers." Bro. Naish next gave "The Health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Durham, Bro. John Fawcett," and in doing so spoke of the many years he had served the Order so zealously and efficiently. Bro. J. F. Mann then gave "The Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Durham, and the Past and Present Grand Officers," and he paid a high and well-deserved compliment to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir Hedworth Williamson, for the eminent business qualities which marked the discharge of his duties. Bro. A. C. Knowles responded in an excellent speech. Bro. J. A. Jackson next gave the toast of the "Visiting Brethren," which was responded to by Bros. J. Foster, J. Bowron, and C. Fairbairn. Bro. Bowron, in the course of his remarks, said he did not think any lodge in the country could surpass the "Lodge of Philanthropy" in the excellence of its working. Bro. A. C. Knowles then gave "The Health of the W.M.," whom he warmly congratulated upon the high position he had attained in the lodge, and he wished him a happy and prosperous year. The W.M. responded in a manner which showed how fully he appreciated the honour that had been conferred upon him, and he assured the brethren that his best exertions should be put forth to maintain the high character which the lodge had acquired. Bro. W. J. Watson then gave "The Health of the Immediate Past Master and Installing Master," Bro. A. S. Fowler, of whom he said during his year of office they had many most interesting and happy meetings, and he thoroughly agreed with Bro. Bowron in saying of the Lodge of Philanthropy that, taken altogether, no other lodge in England could surpass it, and it was but seldom they saw so high a degree of excellence in the performance of the installation ceremony, and they were, one and all, led to exclaim it was really the best they had ever seen. Bro. Fowler responded, and in doing so he remarked that the most cordial unanimity had existed in the lodge during the year, and it had been to him a most happy one, and he hoped his successor would have an equally agreeable and prosperous year. The lodge had advanced in a pecuniary sense very satisfactorily. There was a great and glorious prospect in view for the lodge, and he should be much disappointed if such did not come to pass. For some years the credit balance had been on the wrong side, but he believed that before many weeks were past, there would be a balance at the bank in their favour. Amongst the toasts that followed were "The W.M., Officers, and brethren of the Tees Lodge, No. 509," "The W.M., Officers, and brethren of the Lodge of Fraternity, No. 1418," "The Past Masters of the Lodge of Philanthropy," "the Officers of the lodge," "the Stewards," and "all Poor and Distressed Masons." During the evening some excellent recreation was given by Bros. G. S. Smirke, B. S. Lockwood, W. J. Watson, Thos. Preston, W. Mitford, J. Hall, J. H. Jackson, J. Boothroyd, and P. Pescod. Bro. Christopher Hoggett, the Organist of the lodge, presided at the pianoforte with marked efficiency. The proceedings were throughout of a harmonious and enjoyable character.

KESWICK.—GRETA LODGE (No. 1073).—The brethren of the above lodge met on Monday, 25th ult., in the new Lodge Room, Court Buildings, to assist in the installation of Lieutenant S. G. Fairtlough, Royal Artillery, as W.M. for the current year. Bro. Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W., of Wigton, acted as the Installing Master, and went through the ceremonial in the able manner which has gained him so high a name in the Craft, assisted by the retiring W.M., Daniel Crosthwaite, Bros. Wood, P.M., and Rutherford, P.M. Bro. Fairtlough, W.M., invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. P. Usher, S.W.; J. D. Wivell, J.W.; Rutherford, P.M., Chaplain; J. Wales, Treasurer; D. Pape, S.D.; P. T. Freeman, J.D.; G. P. Abraham, Organist; Jonathan Scott, M.C.; W. Hodgson, I.G.; and C. Thompson, Tyler. The Rev. E. Rice, of Bridekirk, and Dr. Lewis, of Bassenthwaite, were the visiting brethren. On the business of the lodge closing, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment, and sat down at the George Hotel to a banquet, which for variety and style reflected much credit on Mrs. Easton. Bro. Fairtlough, W.M., presided, supported right and left by Bros. Porter, P.G.S.W.; Wood, P.G.O.; Crosthwaite, P.G.S.D.; Rutherford, P.G. Chap.; Rev. Rice, and many others. The remainder of the evening was devoted to loyal and Masonic toasts, varied with a selection of instrumental and vocal music, in which Bros. Usher, Abraham, Wood, and others participated.

ROCHDALE.—ST. CHAD LODGE (No. 1129).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., at the Roebuck Hotel, Rochdale. There was a good attendance of the brethren. The officers present were:—Bros. E. Wood Norris, W.M.; Joseph Ireland, S.W.; H. McCreith, J.W.; H. Turner, P.M., Secretary; J. Hadfield, P.M., Treasurer; Peter Lee, S.D.; J. Fletcher, J.D.; James Midgley, P.M., Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 6.45 p.m. The minutes of the former lodge were read and confirmed. Bro. T. Butterworth Collingwood was duly passed to the degree of F.C. in an effective manner by Bro. Richardson, P.M. After having voted several sums of money to the charities, the lodge was finally closed at 7.50 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was sumptuously provided by Bro. C. M. Jones, P.M. The chair was taken by the W.M., who was well supported by the officers and brethren of the lodge. After the cloth was removed, the brethren partook of the cup of cheerfulness, and the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Queen." The usual toasts followed in due course, amongst which Bro. H. Turner, P.M., proposed "The Health of the newly-passed Brother," which was well responded to. "The Visiting Brethren" was next given, and also responded to. The W.M. gave the usual closing toast, and the brethren departed in peace and harmony, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

NEWTON ABBOT.—DEVON LODGE (No. 1138).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 16th inst., Bro. W. R. King, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. H. G. Beachey, I.P.M.; P. D. Michelmores, P.M.; F. D. Bewes, P.M., and P. Prov. G.S.B.; B. Prowse, S.W.; J. S. Saunders, J.D.; J. Oliver, Secretary; W. Harris, S.D.; E. Huxtable, J.D. R. Crooke, I.G.; G. H. Hearder, Org.; F. J. Pratt, Steward; J. Williams, P. Symons, W. H. Banfill, H. Voysey, W. L. Pope, D.D. and P. Prov. G.C. Visitors:—Bros. W. Hooper, P.M. 444; P. Prov. G.R.; and H. Stooke, 1396. This was the first meeting after the installation, the new officers attended to their duties, and the lodge was most effectively and impressively worked. The minutes of last meeting were confirmed, and Bro. L. E. Bearne having proved his proficiency, withdrew. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. L. E. Bearne passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The explanation of the tracing board being given by Bro. P. D. Michelmores, P.M. The lodge was then resumed in the first degree, when, in accordance with notice, Bro. H. G. Beachey, I.P.M., asked the consent of the members to allow a chapter to be attached to the lodge, which was supported by Bros. P. D. Michelmores, P.M.; and W. L. Pope, D.D., P. Prov. G.C.; and most favourably received by the brethren, and unanimously carried. Two gentlemen were then proposed as candidates for the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, and Bro. Beazley, P.M. of Lodge Concord, No. 113, was proposed as a joining member. This concluded the business of the meeting. The lodge was then closed according to ancient usage, and the established custom of the Order.

DOVER.—CORINTHIAN LODGE (No. 1208).—The installation of the W.M. of the Corinthian Lodge took place in the lodge-room at the Royal Hotel, Dover, on Monday, 15th inst., when the interesting ceremony was efficiently performed by Bro. G. Adamson, sen., P.M. 199, and 1208, and P. Prov. G.D.Cers. of Kent; Bro. J. O. Rees, P.M. 199, and P. Prov. G.P. of Kent; and Bro. A. Wilson, P.M. 199, and P. Prov. S.B. of Kent. After Bro. Smeeth was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year, he invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. B. Adamson, S.W.; H. M. Baker, J.W.; Papkiss, Treas.; G. Adamson, sen., P.M., Sec.; J. Holmes, S.D.; C. Glaydon, J.D.; G. Adamson, jun., I.G.; and J. Rose, Tyler. After the business of the lodge was over, the brethren retired for a short time, and in the meanwhile a splendid banquet was provided by mine host, Bro. G. Adamson, sen., when the viands and the wines were of an excellent quality. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. J. S. Eastes, Deputy Prov. Grand Master of Kent; J. Terry, Secretary to the Aged Freemasons' and Widows' Institute; from the Peace and Harmony Lodge, 199, Dover, Bros. J. Bordeaux, J.W.; I. Lester, J.D.; G. N. Chidwick, J. Canham, G. H. Smith, I.G.; and W. Bell; and from Perseverance Lodge, 155, Bro. D. Osment, P.M. and P. Prov. G.S.D.; and from the Temple Lodge, 558, Bros. J. Kennett, W.M. and P.G.S. of Kent; and J. Sherwood, P.M.; from the Invicta Lodge, 709, Ashford, Bros. Hughes-Hallett, W.M., and R. Elliott, P.M. and P.P.G.R. of Kent; from the Wellington Lodge, 784, Deal, Bros. J. E. Apps, W.M.; A. F. S. Bird, P.M.; W. M. Cavell, P.M. and P. Prov. G.S.D. of Kent; G. Moon, and S. Olds; Bro. B. R. Eastes, W.M. of Lord Warden Lodge, 1096, Walmer; from the St Augustine Lodge, 972, Canterbury, Bros. F. Walker, W.M.; and H. Miskin; from the St Michael's Lodge, 1273, Sittingbourne, Bro. W. Wood, W.M.; from the Lodge Sandgate, 1436, Sandgate, Bros. C. Gosby, W.M.; and A. Keeler; from the Royal Military Lodge, 1449, Canterbury, Bro. H. Greenwood, W.M.; and from 1208, Bro. H. C. Fuher, P.M. and P. Prov. G.D.C. of Kent; Bro. S. Wiles, Immediate P.M., and several other brethren. After the cloth was cleared, the usual loyal, Masonic, and patriotic toasts were given. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. J. S. Eastes, D.P.G.M. of Kent," with a suitable speech, and Bro. J. S. Eastes responded in a very able manner, recommending the brethren to attend to their local charities. The W.M. next proposed "The Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Terry, the Secretary of the Aged Freemasons' Institute, and the toast met with much applause. Bro. Terry, in response, complimented the lodge upon the amount they sent up last month. Several other complimentary toasts were given by the W.M. and duly responded to, and a very pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—This lodge met at the head-quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, London, on Thursday, the 11th inst. The W.M., Bro. W. J. Messenger, was supported by the whole of his officers, viz.:—Bros. J. H. Hastie, S.W.; M. S. Larham, J.W.; Newington Bridges, I.P.M.; Capt. Styan, Treasurer; J. J. Curtis, Secretary; H. Hammond, S.D.; T. W. Carnell, J.D.; James Stevens, P.M. and D.C.; B. B. Joy, I.G.; F. H. Cozens, Organist; and Past Masters S. H. Wagstaff, and George Waterfall. There were also present Bros. C. Golding, C. H. Nevill, A. Woodstock, W. C. Hale, J. W. Holland, T. S. Harper, H. Puckle, W. Gray, D. Clay, D. A. Ross, T. B. Stabley, F. Hutchins, A. Youngman, E. Goldring, W. A. Curnock, E. Eldridge, T. Fitzer, H. P. Jarman, and others. Visitors:—Bros. N. B. Headon, W.M.; T. Preston, D.C.; and T. Hamer, W.S. of the Great City Lodge, 1426; H. G. Wilkin, 1167; C. W. Farmer, 25; and J. F. Bullard, 174. The business of the evening consisted of raising Bros. Holland and Staley, and passing Bros. Goldring, Hutchings, and Curnock, and of confirming a motion of Bro. Styan's relating to the musical service in the lodge. As the accompaniment of each of our beautiful ceremonies, as well as the opening and closing of the lodge, by Masonic Musical Service is much thought of by the members of the Macdonald, and is thoroughly appreciated by its visitors, the confirmation of Capt. Styan's motion was unanimous. Bro. Cozens, the Organist of the lodge, most ably performed on the magnificent harmonium throughout the evening, and fully justified to all present the importance of his office. Propositions for initiation having been received, the lodge was closed in harmony. Supper was served from the canteen, under the direction of Bro. Sergeant-Major Kethro. Time pressing, the toasts were brought to a conclusion with that of "The Visitors," to which Bro. Headon, W.M. 1216, made a suitable reply, and the meeting terminated.

BUXTON.—LODGE OF ST. ANN (No. 1235).—On Thursday, February, 18, the brethren of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann held their anniversary at the Court House, Buxton. There was a good attendance of brethren of the lodge, and the visitors included Bros. W. H. Hopkins, P.M., 633; J. Comyn, P.M. Commercial, 401; W. Milligan, P.G.D.C., Derby, and P.M. Derwent Lodge 884; J. Barrowby, Peveril of the Peak, 654, and P.G.R. Derbyshire P.M.; J. T. Wright, S.W. 654; P. Bramwell, J.W. 654; Rev. J. Mathias, P.M. 620; G. Smedley, 633; W. Dronsfield, 249; J. D. Simpson, 654; J. L. King, 37; &c., &c. The following brethren of the lodge were present:—J. Taylor, W.M. and P.St.Br.; Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, P.P.G.S.W., P.P.G.C., I.P.M.; F. Turner, P.G.S.D., P.M.; R. Duke, P.M., P.P.D.C., W. Smith, S.W.; E. C. Milligan, J.W.; G. F. Barnard, Treas.; W. Boughen, Sec.; E. J. Sykes, S.D.; J. H. Lawson, J.D.; Philip Le Gros, I.G.; G. Marston, Org.; J. H. Waller, Std.Br.; A. Pyle, Tyler; also Bros. Sutton, G. Goodwin, C. C. Gwinnell, A. Barne, Joseph Martin, W. Shawe, J. C. Hyde, J. Heathcote, C. Adams. The W.M. elect, Bro. W. Smith, was duly installed in office, the ceremony being performed by Bros. Hopkins and W. Milligan in an able, solemn, and impressive manner, after which interesting ceremony, the W.M. invested the following officers; Bros. E. C. Milligan, S.W.; E. J. Sykes, J.W.; J. H. Lawson, S.D.; P. Le Gros, J.D.; Rev. Dr. A. J. Harrison, Chaplain; W. Boughen, Treasurer; A. Barnett, Sec.; W. Goodwin, I.G.; G. Marsden, Org.; Adams, D.C.; G. Goodwin and C. Gwinnell, Stewards; A. Pyle, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the companions of the Phoenix Chapter of St. Ann, and the members of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, with their visitors, adjourned to the Old Hall Hotel, where a splendid banquet had been prepared for them in the large dining-room. The tables were beautifully laid out, and were ornamented and decorated with choice flowers from Chatsworth Gardens. The banquet was served under the superintendence of Bro. J. H. Lawson. The bill of fare, the attendance, and the excellent quality of the wines, proved that the Old Hall Hotel still does high credit to the name and fame it has inherited for centuries. After dinner the following toasts with the usual speeches, interspersed with songs and music, under the direction of Bro. Marsden, were given:—"The Queen and the Craft." "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W.G.M.; the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." "R.W. Pro.G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon; with the Officers past and present of Grand Lodge." "R.W.P.G.M. of Derbyshire, the Marquis of Hartington, M.P.; the R.W.D.P.G.M. Haughton Charles Okeover, Esq.; and the Provincial Grand Lodge Officers past and present." "The Charities." "The Principals of the Chapter past and present." "The Worshipful Master." "The Worshipful Board of Installing Masters." "The Immediate Past Master." "The Visitors." "The Officers of the Lodge and Chapter past and present." "The Tyler's Toast." Bro. Duke, in proposing the health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Josiah Taylor, congratulated him on his popularity with all the brethren, and presented him, in the name of the brethren of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, with a very elegant Past Master's Jewel, having in addition to the usual bar a Phoenix in solid gold, tastefully designed by Bro. Bragg, of Birmingham, adding that every brother in the lodge had contributed to purchase that jewel. Bro. Taylor suitably replied. The whole proceedings were of a most satisfactory character, and the utmost good feeling and harmony prevailed.

STOCKWELL LODGE (No. 1339).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, 18th inst., at the Tulse Hill Hotel, Tulse Hill. There were present: Bros. Klence, W.M.; Pain, S.W.; Benham, J.W.; Basnett, S.D.; Bowyer, J.D.; Coe, I.G.; Hamerton, P.M., Treasurer; Frances, P.M., Secretary; Harris, J. Knibbs, R. J. Knibbs, Frank-lain, Hinckman, H. A. Hart, Grist, Pillinger, H. Hart. The visitors were: Bros. Taylor, S.W. 833; Middleton, 65;

Croshaw, 1348; J. W. Gray, 452; Laskey, P.M. 72; Boyton, 72; Spilling, P.M. 435; Miller, P.M. 766; Murch, 72; Gluckstien, P.M. 185; Brittlebank Carr, 72; Dodson, P.M. 72; Levey, 21. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes confirmed, ballots were taken for the following gentlemen to be initiated: Messrs. Fox, Clerke, and Glazier. The ballots being unanimous in their favour, they were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order. Bro. Frankland was also passed, and Bro. Gray, of the Frederic Lodge, duly raised, the ceremony being ably performed. The W.M., having vacated the chair, it was taken by Bro. Frances, P.M. Bro. Benham, J.W., W.M. elect, was then presented for the benefit of installation, and having assented to the Ancient Charges, was duly installed into the chair of K.S., the ceremony being performed in an impressive manner. Bro. Benham invested his officers, giving to each the usual charge in the following order: Bros. Bassett, S.W.; Bowyer, J.W.; Coe, S.D.; Pillinger, J.D.; J. F. Harris, I.G. Bros. Hammerton, P.M., and Frances, P.M., were also severally invested as Treasurer and Secretary, with the acclaim of the brethren. The W.M. then presented the lodge, as is the usual custom in this lodge, with a handsome banner of his arms. Bro. Pillinger also presented the lodge with a handsome Tyler's jewel. Both presents were warmly received by the brethren. The W.M. then, in the name of the lodge, presented the retiring Master, Bro. Klenck, with a jewel, making a few appropriate remarks on the deserved honour he was conferring. Bro. Klenck returned his sincere thanks for the honour he had received. After the usual routine business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. The amount of business before the lodge having curtailed the time for the banquet, the remarks made at the giving and responding to the various toasts were of necessity brief, but the evening was heartily enjoyed by the brethren, and its pleasures greatly enhanced by the exquisite singing of some of Dibdin's famous songs by one of the initiates, Bro. G. E. J. Fox, and also the vocal contributions of one or two of the visitors.

ECCLES.—VICTORIA LODGE (No. 1345).—The fifth anniversary meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday, the 17th inst., at the Cross Keys Hotel. There were a large number of members and visiting brethren present. The business of the lodge was to install Bro. Wm. Wright W.M. for the ensuing year, and investiture of officers. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Buxton, P.M., according to ancient custom, in an impressive manner, assisted by Bros. Gillman, Mountain, Brooks, and Barker, P.M.'s. The lodge was duly closed, when the brethren sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. Pearson, in every respect worthy of the occasion, and which fully sustained his reputation. Several most effective speeches were made in proposing and responding to the various toasts, and the meeting may be summed up as a great success; not the least pleasing part of the proceedings was the presentation of a handsome gold Past Master's jewel (from the establishment of Bro. G. Kenning), by Bro. Wright, P.M., to Bro. J. Brooks, I.P.M., on behalf of the brethren, in token of their appreciation of services rendered to the lodge. A most agreeable evening was enjoyed by all present.

HAMPTON COURT.—ERA LODGE (No. 1423).—At the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court, on Saturday, February 13th, the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.A.G.D.C. Middlesex, W.M., opened the lodge. There were present Bros. J. T. Moss, P.G.R. Middlesex, I.P.M.; J. W. Baldwin, S.W., and W.M. elect; J. B. Langley, J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; J. S. Sweasey, S.D.; S. Wolff, J.D.; E. W. Devereux, I.G.; A. F. Loos, M.C.; W. A. Simmons, C.S.; B. Wright, W.S.; H. Fajia, W. M. Matthews, A. Baldwin, J. Faulkner, J. Mason, F. O. Joyce, E. King, J. R. Moore, W. Chartres, A. J. Webley, J. Johnson, M. Underwood, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was read, adopted, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. J. Mason, 309, and declared to be unanimous in favour of his being a joining member of the lodge. Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer, took the chair for the purpose of doing the ceremony of installation. Bro. F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary, presented Bro. J. W. Baldwin, S.W., and W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. The Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain, in an impressive manner, read the charges to the W.M. elect. The ceremony of installation was ably rendered, and Bro. J. W. Baldwin installed as W.M. He appointed as his Officers: Bros. E. H. Thielley, S.W.; J. B. Langley, J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; T. J. Sabine, P.M., Treasurer, P.G.S.B. Middlesex (re-invested third time); F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary (re-invested third time); T. H. Miller, P.M., Organist (re-invested); E. W. Devereux, S.D.; S. Wolff, J.D.; A. F. Loos, I.G.; B. Wright, M.C.; W. A. Simmons, W.S.; W. M. Matthews, C.S.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, I.P.M.; J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler Middlesex, Tyler. It was unanimously resolved that a twelve-guinea Past Master's jewel be presented from the lodge funds to Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, for his efficient services rendered to the lodge. The jewel was placed on his breast by Bro. T. J. Sabine, who, in an eloquent speech, expressed the kind feelings of the members towards him. Bro. Dubois, P.M., in a suitable speech, returned thanks. By the unanimous voice of the lodge it was resolved, on a motion made by T. J. Sabine, that from the lodge funds be given ten guineas to the Girls' School, ten guineas to the Boys' School, and ten pounds to the Female Annuity Fund, in the name of the W.M. of the lodge for the time being, thereby securing a Life Governorship of all the Masonic Charities in perpetuity by the completion of sums required to attain that object. Some candidates were proposed for initiation at the next lodge meeting. These members were selected by the Audit Committee for recommendation to the P.G. Master, Bro. Col. Burdett, as those whom the lodge would like to see have P. G. Lodge honours: Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, and T. J. Sabine, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, for promotion to higher rank; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain, for P. G. Chaplain; T. H. Miller, P.M., Organist, for P. G. Organist; and the selections made met with the unanimous approval of the lodge. All business being ended, the lodge was closed. A splendid banquet, at which upwards of sixty sat down, was served in a large room in a building opposite to the hotel. The usual loyal toasts were given and responded to. Some good songs and excellent recitations passed away, in an agreeable manner, the time, when the brethren separated, sorry to part, but hoped happy to meet again. The visitors were: Bros. S. Rade, P.M. 315; H. Andrews, 784; J. H. Spencer, 73; E. B. Grabham, W.M. 1494; J. H. Ryley, 188; T. Horton, 871; T. F. Peacock, 21; W. Fullager; W. Hammond, P.G.S. Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326; W.M. 1512.

NEWPORT (MON).—ALBERT EDWARD, PRINCE OF WALES LODGE (No. 1429).—The Albert Edward, Prince of Wales Lodge, the junior lodge of the province of Monmouth, was honoured on Thursday afternoon by an official visit from Bro. Col. Lyne, P.G.M., Bro. Captain George Homfray, the D.P.G.M., and other officers and brethren of the province of Monmouth, at the Masonic Hall, Dock-street. Bro. Wm. Watkins, the W.M., presided over a large attendance of brethren, and was well supported by the following officers:—Bros. Charles Rowe, P.G. Secretary, I.P.M.; J. G. Huxtable, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., S.W.; E. Whitehall, J.W.; J. W. Bebell, Secretary; J. Horner, Treasurer; Frederick Orders, S.D.; John James, J.D.; Edward W. Perren, Organist; Robert Wilkinson, Supt. Works; Louis Hermessen, D.C.; William Twist, I.G.; J. Horner, jun., and James Poole, Stewards; Henry Fletcher, Tyler. After disposing of the business set down in the agenda, the W.M. thanked the P.G.M., and also the D.P.G.M., and other visiting brethren, for the honour they had done the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales Lodge in visiting them on this occasion. The vote was passed in due form, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the lodge. Both the P.G.M. and D.P.G.M. expressed the pleasure it afforded them in being present, and likewise their great gratification at the able and praiseworthy manner in which the business had been conducted by the W.M. Another pleasing feature in the proceedings was the announcement by the W.M. that the Very Worshipful Bro. J. C. Parkinson, one of the Deacons of the Grand Lodge of England, had presented to the Albert Edward Lodge an elegantly bound and beautifully executed copy of his book, containing a cleverly compiled history of the Bard of Avon Lodge, which the author had been mainly instrumental in resuscitating. The highly-valued presentation was accompanied by a letter in which regret was expressed at the inability of Bro. J. C. Parkinson to be present at the lodge's banquet, as he had fully intended to have been. His good wishes for the continued prosperity of the Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge were couched in fraternal language. A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Bro. C. Rowe, I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. Horner, Treasurer 1429, was passed in due Masonic form to Bro. Parkinson for his much-prized gift, and a minute of the same was ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the lodge, viz.: "That a cordial vote of thanks of the W.M. and brethren of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales Lodge, be given to the Very Worshipful Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Grand Deacon of England, and D.P.G.M. of Middlesex, for so kindly presenting this lodge with a copy of his interesting and instructive work, the Bard of Avon Lodge, No. 778, and in consideration of his great Masonic and intellectual attainments, the brethren, with pleasure, unanimously elect him as honorary member of Lodge 1429." The business having been closed with due ceremony, the brethren repaired to the Westgate Hotel, where Bro. S. T. Hallen had placed on the tables of the banquetting room, with his usual taste and skill, a sumptuous provision of the richest and rarest as well as more substantial viands. Covers were laid for about seventy brethren, and it is almost superfluous to state that the guests were loud in their praise of the excellent manner in which all the arrangements of the banquet were carried out. The following is a list of the brethren who sat down:—Bros. Wm. Watkins, W.M. and P.G.S. Wks., president; Chas. Lyne, P.G.M.; S. G. Homfray, D.P.G.M.; L. A. Homfray, P. Prov. G.S.W.; James Abernethy, Lodge of Unanimity, Wakefield, Yorkshire; W. W. Morgan, P.M. Isca, 683; J. S. Adam, P.M. 90, P.G.J.D.; G. W. Jones, 471; J. Griffiths, P.M. 471; Louis Hermessen, D.C. 1429; James Poole, St. 1429; R. Wilkinson, Sup. Wks., 1429; Henry Richards, 1429; Alfred Taylor, 471, 1429; George Fabian Smith, 1429; James Horner, sen., Treasurer 1429; J. G. Huxtable, S.W. 1429, 471; J. W. Bebell, Secretary 1429, 471; John Lewis Lloyd, 471; F. Orders, S.D. 1429, 471; Charles P. Evans, S. 471; John James, J.D. 1429, 471; H. Gratte, P.M. 471, P. Prov. G.S.D.; W. H. W. Homfray, W.M. 683, P. Prov. G.S.B.; Charles Rowe, I.P.M. 1429 and 471; C. R. Lyne, S.W. 471 and P.G.S.B.; William Pickford, P.M. 471, P.G.T.; S. Davies 1429, P.M. 1361, P.G.S.B.; W. West, P.M. 471 and P.G.D.C.; R. J. Chambers, P.M. 683, P. Prov. G.R.; H. P. Tipples, J.W. 457; W. B. Broad, P.M. 457, P. Prov. G.J.D., P. Prov. G.S.; John Thomas, S.W. 457; William Welsford, 1429; J. Eneas Seys, 1429; W. Twist, 471, and I.G. 1429; James Horner, jun., St. 1429; Walter West, J.W. 683, P.G.S. and 471; Harry T. Davis, 683, 471, P. Prov. G.S., Eastern Division of South Wales; E. Whitehall, J.W. 1429; Alfred Jacob, 471; S. Brukewick (Cardiff), 1429; W. W. Kinsey Morgan, St. 1429; John Summers, 1429; Isaac Evan Thomas, 1429; W. Milton, Locke, 1429; James Saunders, 1429; E. W. Perrin, Organist; J. Gibbs, J.W. 471 and 683; Jno. Neck, 1429; John Sims, 1429; Simeon Wyatt, 147; W. Neill, 237, &c., &c.; H. Fletcher, Tyler 1429, &c. In proceeding with the toast list, the W.M. first gave "The Queen and the Craft." The toast was loyally drunk, and the brethren all joined in singing the National Anthem. The W.M. next proposed "H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," and expressed a hope that many of the brethren would have the opportunity afforded them of witnessing the ceremony of the installation of His Royal Highness as G.M. of England. Bro. Adam, P.M. 90, P. Prov. G.D. Mon., gave, in eulogistic terms, "The R.W. the Earl Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Viscount Skelmersdale, D.G.M.; and officers of the G.L." He expressed deep sympathy with the noble Earl in the bereavement he had so recently been called upon to sustain. Bro. Colonel Lyne, as one of the Grand Officers of England, replied to the toast. Bro. G. W. Jones gave "The R.W. Bro. Lyne, P.G.M." In responding, the P.G.M. expressed the great gratification he experienced at being present at so splendid a gathering of the junior lodge of the province. What he had witnessed that day was sufficiently convincing to him that the business of the lodge had been conducted in a highly creditable and unexceptionable manner. Colonel Lyne, the P.G.M., gave "The V.W. Bro. Homfray, D.P.G.M., and officers of P.G.L., of Monmouthshire." Having been given and drunk with enthusiasm, Bro. Captain Homfray responded. He had also the greatest pleasure in being present, and bore testimony to the able and efficient manner in which the W.M. conducted the business of his lodge. He had the honour of installing the W.M. in the chair, and was more than gratified with the manner in which the junior lodge had progressed. Bro. L. A. Homfray, P.M. 683, and P. Prov. G.S.W., Mon., proposed the toast of the evening, "The W.M., 1426, Bro. Wm. Watkins," and in doing so paid a befitting tribute to the ability displayed by the W.M. It was with extreme pleasure that he was here to support the youngest lodge of the province. In replying to the toast the W.M. said that he scarcely felt deserving of the high compliments which had been paid to him that evening. In his position he aimed at making the Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge a credit to the province, and in the selection of members quality was the standard and not numbers (applause). He was one of those brethren who felt that a third lodge was necessary for Newport, and in his efforts to bring about this object he had sought only the healthy extension and interests of Freemasonry (hear, hear.) Bro. Chambers, P.M. 683, and P. Prov. G. Reg., proposed, "The I.P.M., Bro. Chas. Rowe, P.G.Sec.," which Bro. Rowe, in suitable terms, acknowledged. Bro. Capt. Homfray gave "The health of the representative of the oldest lodge in the Province," coupling therewith the name of Bro. Broad, P.M. Loyal Monmouth Lodge. He knew that the toast would be received with the greatest cordiality. The toast was enthusiastically drunk with musical honours, and Bro. Broad responded in a brief, though pointed manner. In giving "The Visitors," the W.M. made allusion to the unavoidable absence of Bro. Parkinson, who had presented the lodge with a copy of his interesting work, "The Bard of Avon Lodge." He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Abernethy (who was engaged in a great work of operative Freemasonry in this town. He referred to the "Alexandra Dock," and expressed a hope that every effort would be made to induce the Grand Master to come down and open that grand and glorious undertaking) who replied on behalf of the visiting brethren in well chosen terms. Bro. Dr. Morgan gave "The P.G. Supt. and Officers of the P.G. Chapter," which having been duly acknowledged, "The Masonic Charities" was given by the D.P.G.M., and Bro. Pickford responded. An appeal was made, and the sum of £16 10s. was subscribed in the room, with a guarantee that it would be made up to £20, exclusive of the sum of ten guineas voted in the lodge. Bro. Gibbs gave "The Principal and Past Principals of the Silurian, St. Wood's and other Chapters of the Province. Bro. Gratte replied, and stated that the four chapters in the province were in a flourishing condition. Bro. Griffiths: "The W.M.'s Officers and Brethren of the Silurian and Isca Lodges." Bro. Wickey Homfray, W.M. 683, responded, and expressed himself in felicitous terms as to the pleasure of being amongst the members of the Albert Edward Lodge. Bro. Gibbs, J.W. 471, also replied. Bro. Sanders proposed "The other Lodges of the Province," and in doing so reviewed briefly the handsomest treatment which the English Freemasons received in Belgium at the International Rifle Competition. The W.M. proposed "The newly Initiated Brethren," and coupled therewith the name of Bro. Seys, who replied in feeling terms. The W.M. then gave "The Officers of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1429," which was duly honoured and responded to by Bro. Huxtable, the ancient S.W., alluding to the long series of years that he had been a Freemason, and the great and satisfactory progress made in the town since his initiation upwards of twenty years ago. He was one of the brethren who advocated the new lodge, in order that competent and worthy members might have a laudable ambition gratified, in becoming officers and passing the chair. The concluding toast, "To all poor and distressed Masons," was given by Bro. H. Fletcher, which having been drunk, the brethren separated, highly pleased with the harmony and conviviality that had characterised the entire proceedings.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge-road, on the 16th inst., for the purpose of lessening the work to be performed at the March meeting. There was also another reason that induced the W.M., L. C. Smith, to call the brethren together, viz., the desire expressed by a gentleman, engaged in parliamentary business, to be initiated into the brotherhood. The lodge was opened soon after the hour appointed. The second and third ceremonies were worked for the benefit of Bros. J. R. and D. H. Ashford. The lodge having been resumed to the first degree, a communication was made to the effect that the candidate, whose name appeared in the summons, would not be in attendance that evening through an unavoidable cause. The circumstance occasioned some little disappointment. The lodge was then closed, the brethren separating at about nine o'clock.

PECKHAM LODGE (No. 1475).—The installation meeting of this prosperous young lodge was held on Thursday, the 11th inst., at the Victory Tavern, Trafalgar-road, Old Kent-road, Bro. Alfred Henry Watkins, W.M., in the chair, all the other officers being present. The lodge was opened shortly after three o'clock, and the ballot for Messrs. Geo. Gaywood, Frederick Reed, and Godfrey John Gibson having proved unanimous in their favour, the two first-named gentlemen were duly initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry by the W.M. in his customary masterly manner. Bro. Warren, P.M. and Treasurer, then presented Bro. Dalby, S.W. and W.M., elect, for the benefit of installation, and a board of Installed Masters having been formed, he was duly inducted in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Watkins, I.P.M.; Canton, S.W.; Duck, J.W.; Warren, P.M.; Treasurer; Gompertz, P.M.; P. Prov. G. of Herts, Secretary; T. Stephens, S.D.; Harvey, J.D.; Jenkins, I.G.; Rose, P.M., D.C.; Allsopp, P.M., W.S.; Harrison, Tyler. The whole ceremony of installation was very impressively rendered by Bro. Watkins, the addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren in particular, being belivered in a most effective and eloquent manner. The W.M. afterwards initiated Mr. G. J. Gibson into the Order, the ceremony being clearly and distinctly rendered. A very pleasing duty next devolved upon the W.M., that of presenting Bro. Watkins, I.P.M., with the Past Master's jewel unanimously voted to him by the lodge. This very handsome jewel is from the atelier of Bro. Kenning, and is of the value of ten guineas. Having affixed the jewel on the breast of Bro. Watkins, the W.M. then presented him with a richly emblazoned testimonial on vellum, enclosed in a massive gilt frame, subscribed for by the members of the lodge as a mark of the high estimation in which Bro. Watkins is held by them, and of their appreciation of his valuable services as the first W.M. The Secretary having given notice that at the next meeting he should move that a sum of five guineas be given to the Girls' School, to be placed on the list of Bro. Watkins, who intended to represent the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival, and there being no further business, the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then adjourned to an excellent banquet, presided over by the W.M., and the usual Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, the proceedings having been also enlivened by some good singing, the brethren separated at a late hour, after having spent a very enjoyable evening. Among the members present, besides those already mentioned, were Bros. Jackson, Murley, Cain, Wrigglesworth, Scott, Garner, Walker, Channon, Norris, Davis, Harris, Kelk, and others, and the visitors comprised Bros. Ring, W.M. 73; David Roberts, P.M. 754; Frances, P.M. 857; Dann, P.M. 72; Green, J.W. 1295; H. Gompertz, J.D. 1364; Pritchett, 1327; Johnson, S.W. 301; J. W. Ring, 72; Bevan, 1233; L. Mills, I.G. 49; F. A. Riches, 975; R. G. Bennett, 93; and E. J. Cain, 1446. The first balance sheet of this lodge shows that the whole of the furniture, beside all other expenses attending the formation of a new lodge, is paid, with a small balance in cash to the credit of the lodge, a state of prosperity reflecting favourably on the management of the W.M. and his responsible officers.

LIVERPOOL.—LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 1502).—The first quarterly meeting of this lodge after consecration, took place at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Monday evening, the 15th inst., when there was a very large gathering of the brethren and visitors. As might have been expected from the excellence of the captain and crew of the new Masonic craft, its voyage has been singularly prosperous and the increase in membership has been in good keeping with the fine feeling of brotherhood which has been shown by every member. Bro. Ralph Robinson, W.M., opened his lodge at six o'clock, and the officers and members present were:—Bros. Maurice de Frece, S.W.; A. J. Henochsberg, J.W.; the Rev. Professor Prag, C.; Isaac de Frece, Treas.; M. Hart, Sec.; A. Jones, S.D.; L. Schonstadt, J.D.; B. Woolf, I.G.; P. A. Crozier, S.S.; A. Hart, J.S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; J. Moss, B. Levy, L. Simmons, A. Collins, F. Moss, A. Rabow, R. Brown, L. Wagner, H. Harris, L. Lazarus, L. Hart, D. L. Marcus, N. Liebschutz, J. Frank, J. S. Maccafee, J. Goldberg, N. Goldstein, A. Saqui, J. M. Foote, F. Barnett, M. A. Prensau, G. J. Somers, M. Tieske, A. Vandyke, S. A. Stonewehr, H. M. Silver, S. Jacob, &c. The visitors were Bros. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; W. Connell, 175; R. Colling, Sec., 249; G. de La Parelle, P.P.G.D.C., P.M. 1380; P. Savvée, 1380; J. Winsor, S.D., 241; Q. A. Evans, W.M., 1395; H. Jackson, S.W., 1393; P. Stern, 249; R. C. Yelland, S.W., 1394; T. Boden, 249; L. D. Gough, 24; J. Dale, 1505 and 786; William Savage, jun., 241; J. Parsons, P.M. 205, &c. After several candidates had been ballotted for, two brethren were passed to the second degree, and two candidates were initiated into the Order. The manner in which the W.M. performed the ceremonies in each degree elicited the heartiest admiration, and the working was pronounced by competent judges to be quite equal to any in the province. After the transaction of some formal business, the lodge adjourned from labour to refreshment in the large dining hall. Here Messrs. Fisk and Fairhurst, Castle-street, supplied a most recherché fish supper, the excellent and varied quality of which was beyond all praise. During the after proceedings, the W.M. gave the standard loyal and Masonic toasts in terse and pointed terms. He also proposed "The Health of Bro. the Rev. Professor Prag, C.," who in responding in an eloquent speech, spoke of Masonry as like the old cedar tree which spread its branches and extended its roots. He referred to the leading characteristics of the Order, and thanked the brethren heartily for the manner in which his health had been received. Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so spoke of his working of the Lodge of Israel, as quite equal, if not superior, to any in the Province. The W.M. briefly responded, and hoped he would always be enabled to maintain the same efficiency. "The Officers," "The Visitors," and "Bro. W. G. Veale," were amongst the other toasts on the programme.

HAMPTON HILL.—FRANCIS BURDETT LODGE (No. 1503).—A strong meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th inst. The proceedings commenced at five o'clock in the afternoon. There were present Bros. Col. Wigginton, P.M., W.M.; Saunders, S.W.; Tomlinson, P.M., J.W.; Walls, I.G.; Knaggs, Treas.; Mitchell, Sec.; Horsley, P.M., acting I.P.M. The minutes of the January meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Saunders, Rogers, Lovett, Clark and Mitchell to the sublime degree. The lodge having been resumed to the first degree, Bros. Vaughan and Court were examined, entrusted, and ultimately passed to the F.C. degree. The whole of the proceedings of both ceremonies were successfully carried out, and completed with the W.M.'s well known ability. It was proposed by the J.W., and seconded by the W.M., that Bros. Chaplain Buchill, P.M. 795, should become a joining member. The ballot was taken on behalf of Bro. Richards (Beaufort), who was proposed at the last meeting as a joining member, and declared unanimous. Bro. P.M. Horsley proposed, which was seconded by Bro. Saunders, S.W.—"That the sum of ten guineas should be voted from the funds of the lodge to head the list of Bro. Col. Wigginton, W.M., who had kindly volunteered to stand as Steward to the forthcoming festival on behalf of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." This resolution was unanimously carried. The W.M. gave notice of motion that at the next meeting he should move that the lodge should annually subscribe ten guineas, through the W.M. for the time being, to the three charities alternately, and thus secure life-governorships to those valuable institutions. Resolutions were then passed that the lodge should become subscribers to the Freemason and the Masonic Magazine, and that a library should be established in connection with the lodge to be devoted exclusively to Craft literature. Some minor resolutions having been passed the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the proceedings terminated. Among the visitors present Bros. Littlewood, P.M. 780; Buchill, P.M. 795; Hammond, P.M., &c., &c., and W.M. 1512.

HAMPTON.—HEMMING LODGE (No. 1512).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, on Thursday, the 18th inst. The officers present were Bros. Hammond, P.M., P.G.S. of Middlesex, W.M.; Hopwood, P.M., S.W.; Hill, P.M., J.W.; Hurst, S.D.; Walls, acting J.D.; Wheeler, I.G.; Jepson, Treasurer; J. Hammond, P.M., Secretary; Wilson (Etonian), acting I.P.M.; Gilbert, Tyler. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken on behalf of Bro. T. C. Walls, 141, W.S. 1381, and I.G. 1503, as a joining member, and declared unanimous. The name of Mr. Arnold, who, by a special dispensation, was allowed to be a candidate for initiation as a serving brother, was then submitted to the ballot, and unanimously received, and he being in attendance, was duly initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M. Bros. Ockenden, Phillips, and Chilcott, having satisfactorily gone through an examination in open lodge, were raised by the W.M., assisted by his officers, to the sublime degree. Both ceremonies were ably carried out by the W.M., and all the well-known points of the beautiful ritual were given with that impressive emphasis which they necessarily require in order to render them effective. Several minor matters having been transacted, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. Among the visitors present were Bros. Wilson, P.M. Etonian; Kent, jun., 889; Bowra, 889; Rowland, 957; Festing, 1063. The cloth having been cleared, the W.M. commenced the proceedings by proposing the "Queen and Craft," which was heartily received. In giving the next toast, that of "Bro. H.R.H. the M.W.G.M.," Bro. Hammond alluded at length to the forthcoming installation of the Prince, which he characterised as an event of a life-time, and which would give an impetus to Freemasonry throughout the world, and check, if not silence, the denunciations of the bigoted. This toast, and the succeeding one, that of the "Pro G. M.," was responded to with excellent "fire." The health of the "Provincial G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers of Middlesex," was proposed by the W.M., who expressed the gratification he felt at being a P.G.O. of the county which was so ably represented in the Masonic world by Colonel Burdett, whose abilities and energies in every grade of the Craft were of universal renown. This toast having been drunk with the customary honours, that of "The Visitors" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Kent and Rowland, on behalf of their colleagues. The latter brother amusingly stated, that he being in the habit of frequenting bustling town lodges, was agreeably pleased at the contrast afforded by visiting the Hemming, whose proceedings, both in lodge and at the banquet table, were marked by rural quietness and harmony, and from that time he should add his testimony to the general opinion that this district was justly entitled to the euphonious appellation of "Happy Hampton." Bro. Hill, P.M., proposed the health of the W.M., and congratulated him upon the manner in which he had carried out the arduous duties of his position that evening, and for his zeal in furthering at all times the true principles of Freemasonry, namely, "Benevolence" and "Charity." The W.M., having briefly replied, he gave the toast of "The Principal Officers," coupling it with the name of the Treasurer, who, he said, was [one of the oldest subscribing members in the Craft. Bro. Jepson, in reply, stated that the remark of the W.M. was correct,—he was one of the oldest representatives of this glorious institution. In the course of his speech, he stated that the room in which they were possessed an interest to him, which the brethren would appreciate, when he informed them that in it he was raised to a M.M. by Bro. Dr. Hemming, the W.M. of the Harmony Lodge, upwards of fifty years ago, and that he also took his R.A. degree as far back as 1824. From the period of his initiation unto the present time he had always had Freemasonry at heart, and he hoped to die a Mason. The W.M. then proposed the health of the other officers of the lodge, and coupled it with the name of their young member, Bro. Walls, who had kindly assisted them as Deacon several times. Bro. Walls, in reply, thanked the W.M. and brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him by electing him as a joining member, and he hoped that this confidence in him would never be regretted. With regard to the poor services which he had rendered to the lodge, and which had been so complementarily alluded to by the W.M., he could only say that he was at all times willing to officiate to the best of his ability in any position in Freemasonry that was required to be filled, as in endeavouring to carry it out, it was to him but a "labour of love."

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in their hall, No. 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 16th inst.; Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. John D. Young, S.W.; D. Horne, J.W.; there was also present; Bros. John Dick, Secretary; R. B. Dalzell, Treasurer; McMillan, P.M.; J. B. Walker, P.M.; Thos. Fletcher, I.P.M.; Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M., Lodge Dalmuir, St. Johns; J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. Lodge Union, No. 332; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a very large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell, and the minutes of last regular meeting, also an emergency meeting, read and approved of. The lodge thereafter adjourned from labour to refreshment, the usual loyal toasts, &c., being given to music discoursed at intervals. Bros. Rogers and Leslie, eminent vocalists, gave some of their excellent duets with great spirit and taste, to the delight of all.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, No. 213, Buchanan-street, on Thursday 18th inst. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. Thos. Hastie, acting S.W.; G. McComb, J.W. There were also present:—Bros. A. Bain, P.M. 103; Johnstone, P.M.; Wallace, R.W.M. Lodge Athole, 413; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and several members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The lodge being opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler, the Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. Bros. McGibbon, W. J. Craig, and John Walker were then affiliated into Lodge St. Mungo, No. 27, Bro. A. Bain, P.M. 103, Union and Crown, officiating. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., then intimated to the lodge that the annual festival of Lodge St. Mungo would take place on Tuesday, 2nd March, at the Crown Hall, and he hoped that as many as possibly could would be present to celebrate the 146th anniversary of this lodge. Bros. John Brownie McNichol and Peter McNichol, also A. Neavey, were then passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, and Bros. Jas. McKinnon, J. Miller, A. Neavey, J. B. McNichol and Peter McNichol raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason by Bro. A. Bain, P.M. Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103, in a style which could not have been excelled. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, No. 12, Tron-gate, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 16th inst., Bros. J. W. Burns, R.W.M., presiding; James Booth, S.W.; C. R. Jenkins, D.M., acting J.W. There were also present: Bros. John Miller, P.M. 87; McNaught, S.W. 556; S. Russell, D.M. 556; and a number of brethren and visitors. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. J. W. Burns, the minutes of last meeting read and approved of. Messrs. H. O. Foray, H. Hardy, and G. Charters were then initiated into the mysteries of Ancient Freemasonry, every care and attention being paid to the solemnity of the occasion by Bros. Burns, R.W.M., and John Miller, S.M., who officiated. There being no further business before the meeting, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The usual fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 170, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, 15th inst., Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. D. McKirdy, S.W.; A. Conochie, J.W.; John McInnes, Secretary; John Laird, Treasurer; R. Mitchell, P.M. There were also present: Bros. Wm. Harper, R.W.M. Lodge Clyde, 408; D. Horne, J.W. Lodge St. John, 34; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and several members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The minutes having been read and approved of, and the lodge opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Harper, R.W.M. Lodge Clyde, 408, applied for Bro. R. Mitchell, jun., of his lodge, to be raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, he being about to leave Scotland for Australia in a few days, which application was received unanimously. Mr. Jas. Mitchell, and Mr. John Dale, who had been regularly proposed for initiation, and no objection raised, received the E.A. degree, Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., officiating. Bro. Jas. Gibson, Lodge 480, was then affiliated into Lodge Union, 332, Bro. J. B. Macnair also performing the ceremony of affiliation, after which Bro. R. Mitchell, jun., Lodge Clyde, 408, was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason by Bro. J. Fash, in a careful manner. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

ERRATUM.—In the letter of Bro. J. Chapman last week, for "London Lodge" read "Jordan Lodge."

BETA.—At a recent meeting of a chapter, a candidate was ballotted for and rejected, whereupon a member declared the ballot was an illegal one, inasmuch as some of the members who voted were in arrears of subscription. This objection was in turn objected to on the ground that it came too late, and was simply a device to discover, if possible, who the objectors were. The M.E.Z., however, notwithstanding the protest, ordered the Treasurer to read out the names of members in arrears, excluded such from voting, and ordered a fresh ballot to be taken.

I. Was not the M.E.Z. guilty of irregularity in ordering the second ballot under the circumstances? II. What remedy do you recommend, protest being unheeded?

Again:—III. Under what circumstances do you consider the ballot may legitimately be taken a second time for the same person? IV. Are members at liberty to shirk responsibility, or connive at trickery by abstaining from voting for candidates? I.e., is individual voting obligatory?

[We are of opinion that the M.E.Z. was guilty of an irregularity, both in ordering the names to be read out, and authorizing a second ballot under the circumstances. Something might be said for the chapter by e-laws on the subject, but though the M.E.Z. might, perhaps, before the ballot, caution the members in arrears, it is quite clear to us that he could not do so legally after the ballot was over. A ballot cannot be taken a second time, except in case of a clear mistake, or a possible misconception. In that case the presiding officer is justified to have a second ballot to clear up any doubt he has on the subject, before declaring the result. The only remedy we can suggest is an appeal to the P.G. Superintendent. Members cannot be compelled to vote. The freedom of voting in chapter as well as in lodge, is absolute.—Ed.]

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1875.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

We announced to the Craft last week that the Albert Hall had been selected as the "locale" for the installation of our Royal Grand Master, Freemasons' Hall being clearly too small to receive the number of brethren who are expected to attend on that auspicious occasion. We congratulate the Order on the decision arrived at, one which we feel sure will receive the unanimous approval of the Craft. The Albert Hall is adapted to receive a large number of brethren, and we shall hope in an early impression to give a detailed account of its size and capabilities. Our readers may rely on us for giving them the earliest intimation possible of the minor details of the programme for the day's proceedings, as we well know the interest which is prevalent in all parts of England, with respect to this important gathering of our English Order.

FREEMASONRY IN SCOTLAND.

It seems that some little exception has been taken by a very worthy brother in Scotland, to some editorial words of ours in reply to a correspondent, Saturday, February 13th. We think it well, therefore, to explain the "why and the wherefore" of our remarks, which we penned in all good feeling and fraternal regard for our brethren "over the border." We wish to assure our fraternal critic in the first place, that none can have warmer feelings for the interests and prosperity of Freemasonry in North Britain than ourselves. We have partaken of the genial hospitality of distinguished lodges there, we have ourselves a good deal of Scotch blood in our veins, and we have a very genuine admiration of Scotland and its kindly inhabitants. But we are, in our editorial capacity, "censors morum lathomorum," and what we think honestly we feel bound to say plainly—in all good-will, and in all kindly intent. Our worthy brother states that it is not the custom generally to give more than one degree on the same night, and that our answer went to the effect that "all candidates receive the three degrees together." But our words, we venture to submit to our friendly correspondent, do not bear such an interpretation. All that we state is, that such a custom is prevalent in Scotland, not that it is always observed. The same Freemason contains the account of a meeting of the lodge Caledonian Railway, 354, at Glasgow, in which certain candidates are initiated and passed the same night, and also of an emergency meeting of the same lodge three nights afterwards, when the third degree was conferred on the same brethren. We have often previously heard of the three degrees being conferred the same night, and such, no doubt, was our impression when we wrote the answer objected to. But we rejoice to learn from our worthy brother that such a practice is in itself illegal, and is not now habitually followed by the Scottish lodges. We feel sure that the month's interval between the degrees, as enforced by the English Grand Lodge, is a very wise and salutary regulation, and that if such was also the law in Scotland much good would accrue to the Scottish Grand Lodge and Scottish Freemasonry. Our good brother asks what is Scottish Freemasonry, we say the system practised in Scotland under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, just as English Freemasonry is the system practised in England under the authority of the Grand Lodge of England. We are quite aware that there are, and always will be, national peculiarities, and local divergencies, but we have this one fact clear as regards our English system, that no English Mason would advocate any alteration of the three-months regulation. Indeed, some Freemasons have thought it too short. When we mentioned the "unsatisfactory state" of Scottish Freemasonry, we used the term without any offence to our Scottish brethren, as our only wish and endeavour was to raise the vital power of Freemasonry in Scotland. We stated that there were, in our opinion, three drawbacks to the system in Scotland, which, we ventured to think, were a stumbling block to the advance of sound Freemasonry. The first was the shortness of interval between the conferring of the degrees, the second was the facility and cheapness of initiation, and the third was the non-enforcement universally of annual subscriptions to every lodge. We believe that in saying this we express the opinion of a good many long-headed brethren in Scotland, who are fully alive to the weaknesses of their system. How otherwise can we account for the absence of any very striking evidence of Masonic charity? There must be many old and decayed Masons in Scotland, to whom annuities would be a most comfortable provision for their declining years; there must be many orphan sons and daughters of Freemasons to whom education and care would be alike an invaluable and a blessed gift. But the way the present system works is this—we speak with full knowledge of the subject. A person is made a Mason in a Scotch lodge; the lodge has no annual subscription; after a short time the brother leaves Scotland and moves south; he has only paid a certain sum; he is not supporting Scottish Freemasonry in the slightest degree, and yet, though practically unaffiliated, he claims all the present privileges, and all the eventual benefits of English Freemasonry. This is a very common case, known to almost every lodge in the North of England. Does our worthy brother ask what remedy do you propose? We reply, you cannot legislate ever so as to avoid all abuse of privileges; but what you can do is, to do the best you can. If the Scottish Grand Lodge will enforce an annual capitation fee on all its registered members for the purposes of benevolence; if it will require that all lodges shall receive an annual subscription from their members; if the initiation fee is raised, that is to say that the sum paid for "admission" is considerably increased, if the interval between the degrees is made as with us, we feel sure that an impetus would be given to Scottish Freemasonry, which would culminate ere long in charitable efforts worthy of so many warm-hearted men and good Masons. We trust that our very worthy brother and critic will take this friendly rejoinder of ours in good part, and will believe that it is dictated by a genuine love for our Order, and above all with heartfelt wishes for the honour and elevation, and progress and prosperity of Freemasonry in Scotland.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS.
No. III.

We have, in our previous articles, under this heading, referred to some difficulties in the pathway of the Masonic student, and we propose to continue our consideration of the same subject to-day. Great has been the advance in Masonic archæology in some respects, in others little headway has been gained so far. For instance, what do we yet know of the history of Freemasonry in England before 1723? Our earliest Grand Lodge minutes, we understand, only go back to that year, and no private lodge minute book, except that of Alouwick, as far as we are aware, has been found previous to that date. We cannot however help thinking that a search in some of the lodge chests, or among their old minute books would increase our stock of early 18th century Masonic knowledge. Indeed, we do not despair of disentombing some day from the dust and oblivion of years, a 17th century minute book, in this country. It is this paucity of information relative to the habits and acts of our Masonic predecessors which renders the history of English Freemasonry so full of doubts and difficulties, alike for the initiate and the profane. Even in Scotland, where the minute books are far earlier, the information is very sparse and the particulars are very limited. And if we are able to account for this by the "nature of the case," yet it should, we think, be a warning against any hasty dogmatism on matters on which we have no certain information, and which, alike historically and archæologically, are still enveloped in a mist of uncertainty and debate-ability, if we may use such a word. Let us take for instance that important and interesting view of Freemasonry, which we may not unfairly term the "Johannite." Whence did this theory of Freemasonry arise? When did it first appear? These are questions which we must answer before we can assign the real date, and the true importance to this colouring of our Masonic system. But yet the moment we attempt to do so we find the greatest difficulty. Dr. Oliver has, we are aware, expressed a strong opinion on the subject, and many Masonic writers have been, and still are misled by his apparent authority. Now, without denying to Dr. Oliver, that most able brother, the greatest credit for his Masonic labours and contributions, we yet feel bound to say that we cannot always accept his conclusions. Bro. Mackey's view of Dr. Oliver's writings, when critically considered, is, we venture to think, the true one. "The great error of Dr. Oliver," he says, "as a Masonic teacher, was a too easy credulity or a too great warmth of imagination, which led him to accept, without hesitation, the crude theories of previous writers, and to recognise documents and legends as unquestionably authoritative, whose truthfulness subsequent researches have led most Masonic scholars to doubt or deny; his statements, therefore, as to the origin or the history of the Order have to be received with many grains of allowance." We feel bound to express our entire agreement with the opinion of our able American brother, as it is the inevitable conclusion, in truth, to which a careful study of Bro. Dr. Oliver's works must lead the Masonic student. With respect to the Johannite teaching of Freemasonry, Dr. Oliver is very positive, and seemingly very precise, and yet modern researches do not in any way uphold his view of the matter. It is quite clear, historically, that the Johannite teaching of Freemasonry as suggested by Dr. Oliver is, if not actually, of the 18th century, at any rate not earlier than the 17th. We find no traces of it previously, that is to say, as he evidently regards it. We know indeed that in Scotland in 1599, the Wardens were ordered to be chosen on St. John's Day—that is, the Evangelist's Day, as is clear from the minute of 27th November, 1599. And probably we may assume that St. John's Day was from very early times the day appointed for the election of office-bearers. But of St. John the Baptist's Day we find no trace. Bro. D. M. Lyon states that, as a Masonic anniversary it dates, in Scotland only, from 1755, and he believes was introduced from the Grand Lodge of England. The editor of "Multa Paucis" talks of a Grand Lodge assembled at York, December 27th, 1561, and though his story is now generally, we believe, looked on as apocryphal, we may have in the meeting on St. John's Day at York, this truth, namely, that of the annual meeting of the Grand Assembly. But we know of no other Masonic English reliable authority on the subject, and so far we are not aware of any 17th century ritual, except that of the Sloane MS. 3329. In that no doubt we find allusion to the "Holy Chapel of St. John," and the brother quoted is called "Brother John," but of the two Johns there is no trace. Our evidences of the customs of the operative guilds are at present very few indeed. In 1253 the working Masons at Westminster had the Saints' days divided between them and the King, and the list is given in the Fabric Roll of that year. John the Baptist's Day belonged to the King, and the Masons worked on that day, but, as the roll ends December 6th, beginning April 28th, we cannot say what was their custom on the Evangelist's Day. We have said enough, we think, to show that whatever may have been the custom of the early 18th or late 17th Century, the Johannite theory of Dr. Oliver must be taken "cum grano salis." We write simply in the interests of Masonic truth. An error, though a harmless one, if persisted in when proved to be an error, in things historical, becomes a falsehood, and if we are ever to obtain a true Masonic history, which will stand the criticism of experts and opponents, we must not sacrifice truth, from indolence to point out prevailing misconceptions, or from an unwillingness to face the real difficulties of the case. Thus far all that our available evidence proves, appears to be, that St. John the Evangelist's Day, is an old day of Masonic observance, but of St. John the Baptist's anniversary nothing is known archæologically before, at the earliest, the latter part of the 17th century. Other evidence may be available, and when it is brought forward, we shall respectfully consider it, but until then we must regard Dr. Oliver's Johannite theory as "non proven." We shall recur to this interesting subject generally again shortly.

THE PUBLIC HOUSE QUESTION.

There can be no doubt, we think, that it is not for the advantage of Freemasonry, where it can be otherwise arranged, for lodge meetings to be held either at hotels or public houses. But when we say this, we must fairly admit, that there are many difficulties in the way of any uniform rule or practice on the subject. In the metropolis for instance, we could hardly lay down dogmatically the proposition, that the severance of lodges from hotels was advisable for the welfare of Freemasonry, inasmuch as the accommodation for meetings is very scanty indeed, and many of the hotels frequented by the Craft, offer rooms of handsome effect, and often of noble proportions. Neither should we affect, in accordance with a good deal of modern pharisaism, to condemn a public house, quā a public house. Many very distinguished lodges have habitually held their meetings at houses of "public entertainment," and these meetings have been as well conducted, and as creditably carried on, as if in the most retired and separated Masonic Hall. But we think we are writing in the best interests of Freemasonry, when we venture to express an opinion, that for many reasons it is most desirable to sever our lodges from hotels and taverns. It may indeed be said, on the other side, that as our present Grand Lodge, and the first meetings of our Masonic forefathers, were held in taverns, at a time when Masonic Halls were unknown, there is after all no valid Masonic objection to our continuing to use such places of public resort, which are both convenient and economical, for our gatherings to-day. To this we would reply in all fraternal good-will and consideration, "It is quite true what you say, but the habits of the middle of the 18th century are not quite the habits of the 19th century." And we think that in addition, our brethren should always bear in mind, that this connection of Freemasonry with taverns, has not only kept out a good many worthy men from Freemasonry, and still keeps them out, but must inevitably tend to associate Freemasonry itself in the minds of some with late hours and convivial habits. Hogarth, when he depicted a W.M. of his day, reeling home with the collar and emblem of Freemasonry still around his neck, only gave us a representation of the then popular view of lodge meetings, and of Freemasons generally. And those of us who are old enough to remember the general condition of Freemasonry some thirty years ago, will admit, that in nothing has Freemasonry so improved, so elevated itself, if we may so say, since then, as by the building of the Masonic Hall, and the severance of the lodge from the convenient, and it may be, in some respects, comfortable public house. For there is one element which has to be taken into account here, in this important question, and which has largely swayed the course of many lodges, namely, the question of expense. Masonic Halls, in most cases, represent the maximum of expenditure for a lodge, hotels the minimum, and to some lodges—whose members are not numerous—this one consideration of expense is a crucial one. Hence at this hour many excellent lodges and many equally very worthy brethren, find that it conduces to a prosperous balance sheet, to continue their old connection with the tavern, ready of access, and moderate in its charge for rent. But then, on the other hand, how much of additional dignity and decorum is thrown around the Masonic Hall, which, separated from all common or profane uses, is entirely dedicated to the services and labours of Freemasonry. We know many such, and sure it is that they ever conduce, not only to the highest performance of our ritual, æsthetically, but they minister largely to the welfare of the brethren, and the true spirit and teaching of Freemasonry. There is something incongruous often with the calm, and peacefulness, and mysteries of Freemasonry, in the crowded entrances and thronged bar of a public house. There are tendencies in all such scenes, we strongly feel, antagonistic to that sober character and that serious formality, which ought always to characterize our Masonic meetings, but especially at the reception of candidates. We know as a fact that many an aspirant for the light of Freemasonry, has been both disappointed and unfavourably impressed, when he found that our privileges were to be sought for and obtained in the "best room," even, of a most respectable "public house." So we conclude as we began, without seeking to lay down any austere axioms, or any arbitrary regulations on a somewhat difficult and delicate subject, by the recommendation to our brethren when possible, gradually, at any rate, to obtain for themselves the privacy and the conveniences of a Masonic Hall, of a lodge room, purely Masonic, set apart for the due performance of that ceremonial to which we are all so much attached, and for the proclamation of those truths we all so wisely preserve and revere.

GRAND LODGE FUNDS.

We rejoice to notice the continued prosperity of our Grand Lodge funds. In the agenda paper of Grand Lodge, the report of the last quarter states, that on Friday, the 12th day of February, the last meeting of the Finance Committee, the balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer was £4462 8s. 11d., besides £75 petty cash and £96 for servants' wages, in the hands of the Grand Secretary.

BENEVOLENCE.

The grants of the Lodge of Benevolence on the 17th, seem to have been heavy, no less altogether than £778. We notice among the grants for confirmation at the approaching quarterly communication £200 for the widow of our lamented Bro. J. R. Stebbing. It is quite clear that we cannot under any pretence whatever reduce our Benevolent Funds.

NEW LODGES.

We note the gratifying fact, that since the last quarterly communication, 19 new lodges have been added to our calendar, so that the last number is 1535.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I note with much pleasure your announcement that the above ceremony will take place at the Royal Albert Hall, but I have been looking for another announcement, re Commemoration Jewel, as suggested by several of your correspondents, particularly Bro. T. C. W., (Feb. 6th, 1875, which letter please see).

I hope this idea will not be overlooked by Grand Lodge, so that every member of that body present, may wear some token, then and hereafter; in fact, all that are present should be allowed to wear one. I hope you will insert this, as a "gentle reminder," and further, that you may think well to give us a short leader on the subject.

Fraternally yours,

"ICH DIEN."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It would render the above ceremony much more grand, as a spectacle, if it were announced that brethren should appear in court dress (if entitled to same), or in the uniform of Army, Navy, or Volunteers, or evening dress. Those who are entitled to court dress, can scarcely appear before royalty without wearing it, but an order would set the question at rest.

THE STATUS OF PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to "An Old P.M., one &c.," I would just say this, that whatever he may deem is the letter, he clearly has not realised the true bearing, of the Book of Constitutions. What the Book of Constitutions deals with is the Past Masters position in Grand Lodge. It does not deal with his position in the Private Lodge—that solely depends on his continuing a contributing member. If he desists for twelve months, he loses his lodge membership, and forfeits his Grand Lodge qualification. If he rejoins a lodge, he cannot recover his permanent Grand Lodge qualification, until he has been re-installed as W.M., though he may sit as Warden of a lodge, if so returned to Grand Lodge as the bona fide Senior, or Junior Warden. "An Old P.M." is very positive about the seniority question. I venture to think that he is altogether wrong. Let us take a case. A is the first W.M. of a new lodge, and at the expiration of twelve months service as W.M., becomes its first, and so its Senior Past Master. After five years more, A demits. There are now five Past Masters in the lodge, of which A is the Senior. He leaves the lodge for five years, during which time five more Past Masters have been added to the roll. A at length seeks re-admission, and becomes a joining member, and when he enters the lodge again, the question arises, where is he to go? "An old P.M." says to the top of the Past Masters, though for five years he has paid nothing to the lodge funds, and has left his other brethren "to bear the burden and heat of the day," and because he is senior in time, he continues always so! "Busy Bee" contends, and I agree with him, that he becomes the Junior Past Master at the time of his re-admission. And the common sense of this customary rule is clear. Were Past Masters to be permitted to remain or go out from a lodge just as they think well, the whole stability of our private lodges would be affected, and therefore the "lex inscripta" of all our lodges is, that a Past Master who leaves his lodge, takes rank after the Junior Past Master at the time of his re-admission. The custom of our Order, and of the lodges is, alike fair to the other Past Masters, and fair to him.

I am, yours faithfully.

MELCHISHUA.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"An Old P.M., One, &c.," who notices my recent letter on the above subject, will find no authority in the "Constitutions" bearing on the question, and it is in consequence of this silence in our written law that the discussion has arisen. What I have ventured to urge is that a Past Master in the Craft, supposing him to be in the full possession of his privileges, must be allowed to sit as a Past Master in any lodge that he joins, and that he would do so below the actual Past Masters then in the lodge, ranking in the lodge next to them. I do not think that the circumstance of the lodge being his mother lodge would alter his position in any way. "An Old P.M." seems to me to be correct in thinking that a Past Master ceasing to subscribe to a lodge for twelve months loses his membership with Grand Lodge, and nothing more; the whole of the paragraph (I, page 18) must be taken together, it recites—"Subscription as a member of any lodge is sufficient to preserve his rank and rights as a Past Master," and the inference from the concluding portion of the paragraph is, to my mind, that a non-fulfilment of this condition for twelve months, which deprives him of his membership with Grand Lodge takes from him also his rank and rights as a Past Master.

Yours fraternally,

BUSY BEE.

THE RIGHT OF VISITING LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A letter in your last issue shows the writer to be under the not uncommon misapprehension that a Mason may visit any lodge on simply proving himself a member of the Craft. A reference to the "Constitutions" (page 89) will show that no visitor can be admitted unless personally known, recommended, or vouched for, after due examination by one of the present brethren. Without this safeguard, a lodge might be at any time visited by a suspended or an expelled Mason, and even run the risk occasionally of admitting a clever cowl.

Yours fraternally,

BUSY BEE.

THE ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

All honour to "A Sincere Mason," who has thought it well to bring before the Craft existing evils; I am inclined to think that the admission of lame members is quite a mistake, and our Book of Constitutions, if properly carried out, would prove such initiations to be void; it might prove beneficial to those lodges who number one or two such on their books to have their certificates, and name or names, as might be necessary, cancelled and erased, so that, in this one respect, things would look healthy. I am of opinion that the manliness of some whom I know would lead one or more to accept such decision on the part of an honourable brotherhood, and at the same time remove from the mind of any one who might entertain thoughts as to motives, &c., of said individuals, that nothing but worthy motives were entertained; would you be kind enough in your next impression to favour us with a few remarks as to the validity or propriety of such initiations as they cannot possibly be of any service, in my way of thinking, to so noble an institution, and might eventually prove an eyecore to our progress. Hoping you will favour the Craft with something from your able pen, I subscribe myself a ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report of the above lodge last Saturday, you say that Bro. Shackell was the first W.M., &c.

In the minutes of the lodge meeting of the 7th Feb., 1871, you will find the following resolution, which at once disposes of the statement referred to:—

"That the freedom of the lodge be presented to Bro. Colonel William Wigginton, P.M. 902, P. Prov. G.D.C. Worcestershire, for services rendered as founder of the lodge and Lodge of Instruction, and as first Worshipful Master."

Yours very fraternally,
23rd Feb., 1875.

A P.M.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"An Old P.M.," writing on this subject, seems a very young one, or he would know that a lodge can vote its funds to any purpose it pleases—he wants it pointed out in the Book of Constitutions where the law is enacted that a lodge can subscribe to any charity it pleases. It is not at all necessary to have such an enactment—"Every lodge has the power of framing bye-laws for its own government." If a member wants his lodge to subscribe to a charity, or for any other purpose, he has simply to give notice of motion of what he wants; if carried at the meeting following, and the minutes are afterwards confirmed, the Treasurer is bound to pay the amount.

MASONIC AMENITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is with much pleasure that I have to place before you the following Masonic reception in Germany (of the Writer), at the Lodge "Lessing" in Barmen—Rhenish-Prussia.

One Thursday evening, on arriving from the above-named place, I said to myself, there is a Freemason's Lodge held at this hotel where I am staying. I made enquiry of Bro. Volger, the Hotelbesitzer (Hotel-keeper), whom I knew to be a Freemason. (I should have referred to my "Cosmopolitan," but I had given that away to an American brother, whom I came across in Brussels, and to whom I became known only by signs and a Templar Cross. More anon about this most worthy American brother). Bro. Volger said, "Would you like to enter the lodge?" I said, "Yes, with great pleasure." I was at once introduced to the Vorbereitender Brother—Tyler—and said to him that I was an English Freemason, and should like to enter the lodge—"Would you like to prove me?" He gave me to understand that he would make known my request to the Meister vom Stuhl (The Worshipful Master). The M.V.S. came out immediately. He thus questioned me: "Have you your certificate?" I said, "No, I have not; but try me and prove me." "Give me the word." I did so. "Now I will take your grips." I gave them to him. I thought, even now, a doubt rested, so I pulled from my pocket my apron, not a very clean one in appearance, and in addition to words and grips, said, "This is my certificate." He said, "Worthy Brother, enter." I did so, and met with a very hearty reception, on the report and introduction of the M.V.S. to the brethren present. With them I spent a very pleasant two hours, most brotherly and fraternally.

After some short time had elapsed, a gentleman came in whom I knew, and he again most kindly introduced me to all present a second time; this was "Bro. Hermann Brocke." They had met on this occasion for business, and not for work, and were all in an outer room, where they banqueted. I was questioned (and I also questioned) about English Masonry generally. A brother said, "Would you like to see our lodge?" I answered affirmatively, and the Tyler was ordered to light up the temple with all the appointments. I was much pleased, especially the Master's chair—which was nothing more nor less than a throne—raised high up above all others. Above his chair, which was surrounded with rich draperies, was placed a large crystal star, some two feet in diameter, and when the gas was lighted, the effect was most beautiful. The lodge had more the appearance of a temple than otherwise, and where solemn rites were performed and holy principles enunciated, such that Freemasons in general accept. I had, on my return to the brethren, a striking proof that the same glorious virtue—charity—was practised amongst them. My curiosity was aroused by seeing a list being passed round. I interrogated a brother by the side of me, and he informed me that a brother, a Frenchman, who had recently come from America with his wife and family, had died suddenly, and they were then making a collection for the deceased brother's wife. Being a foreign brother, they whispered "We cannot permit our brother to subscribe," but my heart prompted me, and my mite was given. 'Tis alone this gift, the greatest of all the three, that first drew me to have a wish to become a Freemason, and, without charity, Freemasonry would be but sounding brass and tinkling cymbal.

A goodly sum was collected, which, in relative value, amounted to about £15. All honour to our Rhenish brethren! Prior to my leaving the lodge my health was proposed and drank with all honours—the brethren expressed both satisfaction and pleasure at my being in the midst of them, and trusted it would not be the last time; he also exalted the greatness and manliness of this, the most noble and best of all orders and brotherhoods. In reply to the unexpected honour they had done me, I simply returned them my thanks, and said that I fully endorsed the sentiments which had been expressed, and that I believed in the Order at large for its fraternity of feeling, of which I had had conclusive proof personally, and also had been a witness of their charitableness.

T. BURDETT YEOMAN, 18°.

P.S.—Our American brother with whom I travelled a few hundreds of miles, was more than thankful for the "Cosmo." I handed over to him—and to show it, he drew from his pocket-book a printed card, which he signed, and said—"Upon any of my ships, on presenting this to the captain, you can travel the American lakes free of all charge, and nothing would please me like having the pleasure to prove to you how very grateful I am for your information, otherwise than presenting me with this Masonic almanac." I hope to have the satisfaction of giving him some further proof of what an English Mason is, when passing through London for his American home. —T.B.Y.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In consequence of the late severe frost, a great deal of destitution is existing in the parish of Bethnal Green, owing to the poor having insufficient clothing; and as there appears every reason to expect a return of the cold weather, I beg respectfully to make an appeal on their behalf. There are many benevolent and charitably disposed persons, who would willingly and gladly assist them if they only knew how easy they could do so. Most of us have old coats, trousers, boots, &c., which we do not require. Now if these were given to the poor, it would be doing them a great service, by keeping them from the inclemency of the weather. All contributions sent to the address given will be gratefully acknowledged, and trusting that this appeal will meet with a hearty response, I am sir, your obedient servant,

JOHN T. BAKER.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following is the agenda of business to be transacted in Grand Lodge on Wednesday, 3rd March, 1875.

- 1.—The Regulations for the Government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business will be read.
- 2.—The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 2nd December, 1874, will be read and put for confirmation.
- 3.—To read a letter from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, acknowledging the receipt of the Resolution of Condolence passed in Grand Lodge on the 2nd September last, on the decease of The Earl of Dalhousie, K.T., G.C.B., Past Grand Master Mason of Scotland.
- 4.—The M.W. Grand Master will move an Address of Condolence to the M.W. Pro Grand Master, The Earl of Carnarvon, on the sad affliction which has befallen his Lordship by the death of the Countess of Carnarvon.
- 5.—The M.W. Grand Master will make a communication to the Grand Lodge in reference to the formation of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and will move a resolution to acknowledge it.
- 6.—Election of a M.W. Grand Master.
- 7.—Election of a Grand Treasurer.
- 8.—Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last Quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.:—
A brother of the Samaritan Lodge, No. 286, Bacup £50
The widow of a brother of the St. Alban's Lodge, No. 29, London 50
The widow of a brother of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, No. 130, Southampton 200
A brother of the Lodge of Faith, No. 141, London 200
A brother of the Southwark Lodge, No. 879, Southwark 50
The widow of a brother of the Highgate Lodge, No. 1366, Highgate 100
- 9.—The Report of the Board of General Purposes to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

1.—The Board of General Purposes beg leave to submit their report for the last quarter as follows:—
2.—At the quarterly communication held on the 4th day of September, 1874, the board reported to Grand Lodge that they had suspended Bro. Nathaniel Henry Braham, of the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, for contumacy, under the circumstances set forth in their report.
3.—Bro. Nathaniel Henry Braham having now attended the Board and made due submission, the Board have removed the suspension and restored Bro. Braham to his Masonic functions.

4.—Mr. John Walter Malby having asked for a fresh lease of the premises in Middle Yard, held by him under the Trustees of Grand Lodge, on the expiration of the existing lease at Michaelmas next, the Board recommend that a lease of the said premises be granted for 14 years from the above date, at an annual rent of £150, subject to the covenants of the existing lease.

5.—The President will therefore move as follows:—

- (1).—That the Report be received and entered on the Minutes.
- (2).—That the recommendation of the Board with reference to Mr. Malby's application be agreed with, and that a fresh lease be granted accordingly.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, 16th February, 1875.

To the Report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 12th day of February instant, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £4,462 8s. 11d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for Petty Cash, £75; and for Servants' Wages, £96 15s.

10.—Report of the Colonial Board to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of England.
The Colonial Board have little to report to Grand Lodge, except their congratulations on the continued prosperity of the Lodges in the various Colonies and Districts under the English jurisdiction, on the general absence of disputes and complaints, and the consequent good feeling which appears to prevail.

The Board beg to recommend to Grand Lodge the following alteration in the Book of Constitutions, page 114, art. 4, to omit in the second line the words—"at three o'clock precisely."

The President will therefore move accordingly.

(Signed) JOHN A. RUCKER, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, 2nd February, 1875."

11.—Report of Bro. R. P. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge Accounts, of receipts and disbursements during the year 1874.

12.—Proposed motions:—

1.—By Bro. J. H. Wynne, P.M. No. 554.

"That this Grand Lodge do order to be given from the Fund of Benevolence, the sum of five pounds to each unsuccessful candidate at the next general election for annuitants in 1875 for old men and women belonging to the Craft of Freemasons."

2.—By Bro. John Constable, P.M. No. 185.

"That the sum of £100 be voted from the funds of Grand Lodge towards the fund now being raised for the purpose of endowing the Freemasons' Life Boat, stationed at North Berwick in 1872."

Reviews.

"D-brett's Peerage and Baronetage." Dean and Son, 106a, Fleet-street.

These two indispensable works for all alike come before us with every claim not only for commendation but admiration. Handsome in appearance, and skilful in arrangement, they give us a great deal of very needful information, in a very small space. They are useful as books of constant reference to many persons day by day, and no public office is complete without them, just as we venture to think that few good libraries should be without them. Indeed, they ought to stand on every writing table, especially on those of writers like ourselves, who are often indebted to them for the names of those who play an important part in public life, or who compose what fairly may be termed our upper English ten thousand, and even more!

Masonic Calendars for Durham, Dorsetshire, and Oxfordshire.

These three little manuals are very useful to the good brethren of the above named counties, and to us who live far away. They are all admirably got up, very neatly printed, contain a great deal of local information, and reflect every credit on their industrious compilers. They are put forth by well known brethren, and we wish them every success.

"The Child's Bible." Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.

Our attention has been called to this very pretty juvenile work of Messrs. Cassell, which appears to us full of promise. As a little scriptural reader or primer for the young, it is sure to be appreciated, and we doubt not will be largely patronised by many earnest little students. May all of good attend them.

"The Roman Fisherman." By an Observer of the System. Matthews and McIntosh.

This is the "old, old story," though perhaps told to a slight variation of time. It seems able and vigorous, but is purely controversial. And though in the recent "escapades" of the Roman Catholic authority, we have had to endure all the virulence of intolerance and all the folly of fanaticism, yet, as Freemasons, we are not controversialists, and long may we keep out of alike the "certamen" and the "odium theologicum." Rome is still Rome, and always will be Rome, and our best policy is to go on our own way, utterly heedless alike of her censures and of her maledictions.

"Some Account of our Masonic Charities," by Bro. Hardon, P.M. Andrews, Manchester.

This is a somewhat ambitious little book, and is also a little indistinct in its recommendation. We confess that after reading it twice over we do not exactly understand the drift of our good brother's remarks. We do not clearly understand what he terms the home system. If we understand his aim rightly, he would revert to the old idea of our educational establishments, and have the children educated at the school nearest their dwellings and to live at home. But suppose they have no home? What then? Are we to have Masonic boarding out? We have no doubt of the good intent of the writer, but we fear he has hardly yet mastered the leading principles of educational work. If there is one thing clearer than another it is this, that what he calls the home system is about as unsatisfactory a system as can well be devised, and that we have in our great Boys' and Girls' Schools now, the best arrangements and the most scientific appliances, with the best of results, for the orphans and their friends. But we may have misunderstood Bro. Hardon.

SCOTTISH FREEMASONRY.

We have been requested to publish the following letter:—

British Post Office, Haskien,
Constantinople, Feb. 3rd, 1875.

J. LAURIE, Esq., Grand Secretary, G.L.S.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have noticed with pleasure that our Scottish brethren have at last been aroused to a sense of duty, a step in the right direction, and too much praise cannot be given to the promoters of this laudable and long-needed object. To establish a Scottish Masonic Benevolent Institution, where our aged worthy brothers and orphans can be cared for, will do much to raise the Scottish Craft in the estimation of the other sister Grand Lodges, and the Craft in general. I feel sure it will have the support of all good Masons. It is a source of regret that something of this kind has not been thought of before; if we cannot be foremost in the race of doing good, don't let us be so far behind.

I have no doubt that the Grand Bodies will do all they can to facilitate this excellent scheme. There are also, in my opinion, other subjects that require reforming, such as strict adherence to our Constitution. Laws are of no use unless obeyed; also the initiation and joining fees are too low; I think they could with propriety be raised so as to benefit the Craft in other ways than raising the dignity of our Order. It has at the present time somewhat the appearance of benefit societies. In short, I think Masonry in Scotland is cheap, consequently a little lax. I am proud to say that 489 is second to no lodge in this country. I have no intention of boasting, simply my opinion, and I believe it will be accepted as intended, viz., for the good and welfare of the Scottish Craft.

If foreign lodges (S.C.) are allowed to have the honour of participating in this grand design, I should have much pleasure in representing the brethren in this part of the globe. I believe it would tend rather to enhance, than to act as any impediment to the object the promoters have in view.

If you deem this worthy, and concur with me, please forward the circulars and other necessary information, and in return I will pledge myself to do my best.

Trusting you will excuse for any seeming forwardness on my part, I beg to remain, yours fraternally,

(Signed) W.W. DORRELL,

R.W.M. 489.

MASONIC BALL AT ATHERSTONE.

For some time past expectation has been rife in this town in consequence of the report that the Freemasons of the lodge meeting in the town had determined upon giving a Masonic ball. The report proved true, the ball being held on 5th February last, at the Town Hall, the usual place of meeting of the brethren of the Athelstan Lodge. The hall and staircase were lined with shrubs and elegant greenhouse ferns, while the walls were decorated with flags. The ball-room was most elaborately decorated with trophies of the chase, such as stag's heads, antlers, fox's heads, and "tails" we were going to say, but our readers would scout any Leicestershire man who could say tails when, of course, he meant brushes. Crossed swords seemed a favourite decoration, and at one end of the room we found an old Brown Bess, which we were told had "done some service at Waterloo," while opposite to it was an elegantly silver-mounted fowling-piece some two centuries old, while between the two, and beneath a grand red deer's head, there hung a small frame containing a mysterious document, headed Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwick, and intimating that all Masons were permitted upon this occasion to display the gorgeousness of their Masonic apparel before the eyes of the uninitiated, a permission which was duly taken advantage of—many of the brethren appearing resplendent in apron, collar, cuffs, and jewellery. Dancing commenced at half-past nine o'clock, and was kept up with great spirit until twelve, when supper was announced, and, the ball-room deserted for the supper-room, which was also elegantly decorated and draped, perhaps the most satisfactory decoration, however, was the supper table, spread with a most recherche supper, to which about 100 guests sat down, and we trust enjoyed as much as we did ourselves. The Masons may fairly be congratulated upon having secured so good a caterer for their first ball, as Mrs. Mingan (of the Red Lion) proved herself. After the toast of "The Queen and Royal Family," proposed by the W.M., Bro. Banbury, of London, proposed in a few well-chosen words the health of the W.M., Bro. Page, who after acknowledging the compliment proposed "The Ladies," to which Bro. Ch. Phillips responded. A return was then made to the ball-room, where half-past five found the dancers almost as numerous as ever; at six o'clock, however, the final gallop was danced, and "God save the Queen" played by the band, and very soon afterwards the rooms were emptied, the general parting words being "Give another ball next year, and don't forget to send us an invitation."

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

"Unparalleled sufferings of John Coustos, who nine times underwent the most cruel tortures ever invented by man, in order to extort from him the secrets of Freemasonry; to which is added many valuable pieces on Masonry. Date 1790."

The above is copied from a book list sent to me a few days ago. I immediately applied for it, but some one had been before me. Can any of your readers tell me who was John Coustos, and what were the nature of the tortures inflicted upon him? Should this meet the eye of the purchaser of the book, I hope he will kindly put himself in communication with you on the subject.

"THE FREEMASON'S MAGAZINE."

At page 75, I observe our esteemed Bro. W. J. Hughan asking the last date of this paper. As I suppose it is the "Freemason's Magazine and Masonic Mirror" that he refers to, perhaps you will allow me to state that the last copy I got, was dated November 4th, 1871. This, I think, was its last appearance.

W. P. BUCHAN.

The Earl of Hardwicke, speaking at the Cambridgeshire Hunt dinner on Thursday night, referred to the game question, and said that the present agitation was entirely the fault of the game preservers, who, instead of giving away the game to the farmers on whose crop it had subsisted, sent it to market.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF OXFORDSHIRE.

A Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the University Masonic Hall on the morning of Tuesday, February 16th. There were present, besides the officers of the lodge, the following visitors:—Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master; W. B. Beach, Prov. Grand Master of Hants and Isle of Wight; Theodore W. Talbot, Prov. Grand Master Western Division, South Wales; E. J. Morris, Deputy Prov. Grand Master, do.; Colonel Adair, P. Prov. Grand Master, Somerset; Fred. Davison, Prov. G.S. Warden, Middlesex. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. R. J. Spiers, presided. The bye-laws, which had been entrusted to a committee for revision, were considered and passed. There was no other business.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

An especial Grand Lodge of this degree was held on Tuesday last, at the Hall, 2, Red Lion-square, for the purpose of nominating a Grand Master in the place of Earl Percy, M.P., whose term of office as M.W.G.M. has expired. Earl Percy presided, having Bro. S. Rosenthal in the G.S.W. chair; Bro. J. H. Wynne in the G.J.W. chair; Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., as Deputy Grand Master; and Bro. H. Dubosc, as G.S.B. Bro. H. W. Binckes, Assistant G. Secretary, acted as G. Secretary, and the other brethren present were Bros. H. Parker, G. Org.; W. Worrell, B. S. Fountain, S. M. Lazarus, H. R. Trigg, T. Horton, W. Stidolph, Joseph Spencer, Israel Abrahams, T. Mortlock, J. E. Middleton, and E. Gilbert. Grand Lodge having been opened, Bro. H. W. Binckes read the summons convening the meeting, and announced the receipt of letters of apology for non-attendance from Bros. James Stevens, and T. B. Yeoman, and a telegram from Bro. I. J. H. Wilkirs.

The M.W.G.M. then rose, and said he wished to say a few words on the subject of his term of office having expired, in order that there might be no misapprehension in the matter. The Order of Mark Master Masons in this country was good enough, in the year 1872, to elect him its Grand Master, and the kindness which they showed to him at that time was the more marked because he was then in a state of health which incapacitated him from performing the duties of his office, and he was consequently not able to be installed in the chair for several months afterwards. He felt the kindness of the brethren very much, but at the same time he had always felt that the fact of his being unable to undertake the duties they had called him to fulfil, was no excuse for his having a longer term of office than the Grand Mark Master was usually called on to accept. He had in fact no doubt about the matter, and when at the last meeting of Grand Lodge he knew that the Grand Master would have to be proposed, it never occurred to him for a moment that his name would be brought before Grand Lodge as the Grand Master for the ensuing year. He was therefore extremely surprised, though at the same time extremely flattered, when he found he had again been proposed to fill the chair. But this did occur to him, that in the first place it was not perhaps a good precedent to establish. One of the fundamental regulations of their Order was that the Grand Master should hold his office for one year only, but that he should be eligible for re-election for three years, and after that term he should not be eligible again until some other brother was chosen as Grand Master for at least one year. He did not think that it was a good thing to establish a precedent which should go to prove that because a Grand Master should be incapacitated—from whatever cause—from performing his duties, he should have a term of office extending to four years instead of three. This would be the case were he again to accept the office which the brethren had so kindly proposed he should be elected to. Besides that, he also felt that as time went on he did not find his occupations diminish, and he did not therefore conscientiously feel that he could give the full time to the duties, which were rather important duties, and if they were to be performed efficiently, they were duties which required a certain amount of time and attention. The brethren had a right to expect that a Grand Master would devote his time to the office, and, as he had not the time, he considered it his duty not to allow himself again to be proposed, as the brethren had so generously wished, for the fourth time. He only wished to remove any impression which might arise in their minds that he was not alive to the very great kindness and good feeling which had dictated that proposal. Ever since he had been a Mason, and certainly ever since he had been a Mark Mason, he had met, both in the Craft and the Mark, and every other degree, with the greatest kindness and brotherly assistance and good feeling, and he would extremely regret if in leaving the chair of Grand Master, which he had now held for three years, and the tenure of which had been a source of great gratification to himself, he should leave the impression on the minds of the brethren that he was insensible to the kindness he had received. Therefore, he must beg of them not to think that it was anything of that sort. If he had had the faintest idea that he would have been proposed at the last meeting in December, he would not have given them the trouble to call the Especial Grand Lodge, but he thought he would not have been proposed, and that the constitutions would have been observed, and another Grand Master proposed. They would now proceed to nominate a Grand Master in his place for the next twelve months. (Applause.)

Bros. S. Rosenthal, acting as G.S.W., then rose and said that it was with great regret they heard that Earl Percy would not allow himself to be put in nomination for another year; but as it was his wish, of course they must respect his wishes. He therefore rose to propose a Grand Master to succeed his lordship, and he thought he could not do better than propose the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Limerick, who, in the position of Deputy for the last three years had performed the duties of that office most efficiently. He was a Mason at heart, and in all his actions; and it was such men as he who ought to fill the highest position in the Order.

Bro. J. H. Wynne, acting as G.J.W., seconded the nomination. He had often met Earl Limerick in Grand Lodge, and had found him a nobleman that was a thorough Mason. The brethren would like to see him follow in Earl Percy's steps, as head of the order of Mark Masons. The manner in which the present Grand Master had presided for the past three years had been a great pride to Mark Masons, and in electing the Earl of Limerick to succeed him, they were assuring themselves that the Mark degree would be equally well presided over.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., proposed a vote of thanks to Earl Percy, for coming in the midst of his parliamentary occupations to offer his personal explanation to Mark Masons, and presiding over the Grand Lodge. He expressed the regret which all the brethren felt at losing so excellent a Grand Master, but felt sure that it would not diminish that regret, when the brethren found the additional proof his lordship had that day given of the interest he took in the Order. He concluded by wishing that his lordship would long be spared to come among his brethren, and give them his advice and assistance.

Bro. S. M. Lazarus seconded the motion, which was put by Bro. S. Rosenthal, and carried with acclamation.

Earl Percy, in responding, said he was extremely grateful to the proposer and seconder of the motion, and to the brethren. What Grand Secretary had said as to what he (Earl Percy) had done, exceeded very much the facts, because all the brethren knew that he had not been able to give the time he would have liked to give to his duties. After again thanking the brethren, he assured them that in future he would do for them whatever he was able to do, and he congratulated them on having secured the services of so eminent a Mason as Earl Limerick for Grand Master, who had then their welfare so thoroughly at heart (applause).

Grand Lodge then closed.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND CHAPTER (No. 41).—The companions were summoned to attend a regular convocation at the Masonic Hall, at 7.30 p.m., on Tuesday February 16th. Many sent apologies for absence on account of illness, and among them were the Second and Third Principals. By request of Comp. Jelley, M.E.Z., Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, and 710, took the chair of H.; and Comp. Rubie P.Z. 41, that of J.; Comp. Moultrie, P.Z. 41, acted as I.P.Z. The chapter was opened at eight o'clock, and on the admission of the companions, the chairs of the officers were filled as follows: R. Carey and E. Brown, acting as N.; Hill, N., acting as P. Soj.; Howes and Young, acting as Assistant Soj. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Bro. C. E. Davis, as a candidate for exaltation, and this proving favourable, he was introduced, properly prepared, for the ceremony, the early portion of which, to the end of the O.B., was worked by the M.E.Z. E. Comp. Dr. Hopkins then took the 1st chair, completed the work of exaltation, and afterwards gave the historical, symbolical, and mystical lecture. No other business offering, the Chapter was closed at a quarter to ten.

MANCHESTER.—CHAPTER OF AFFABILITY (No. 317).—The installation of the Principals and investiture of officers of this chapter took place at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Thursday, the 18th inst., in the presence of a large number of members and visiting companions. The chapter was opened by Comp. J. H. Sillitoe, Z., who afterwards exalted Bro. John Royle, W.M. of the Blair Lodge, to the supreme degree of a Royal Arch Mason. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by Comp. J. Hall, P.Z., the following companions being installed and invested: J. H. Sillitoe, as Z. (second year); Samuel S. Fox, H.; John J. Newton, J.; W. P. Norris, S.E.; John Smethurst, S.N.; James Dawson, P.S.; Daniel Donahavand, 1st A.S.; J. H. Clark, 2nd A.S.; John Higginbotham, Treasurer; F. Vetter, Organist; and James Sly, Janitor. Comp. Sillitoe, in submitting the balance-sheet to the meeting, congratulated the members of the chapter on the highly satisfactory state of their finances and on their increased numerical strength. For some years the chapter had been under a cloud, and 12 months ago they were in debt to their Treasurer, but he was happy to say that they had now a favourable balance. During the past year they had exalted eighteen brethren, and had admitted three companions as joining members, and he could see plenty of work before him for the coming year. Therefore he anticipated a bright future for this chapter, which was rapidly becoming one of the most prominent and influential chapters in the province. After the close of the chapter, a soiree was held in the banquet hall, at which nearly 100 companions and ladies were present. Dancing commenced at 8.30 to the enlivening strains of Comp. Vetter's quadrille band. In the interval, an adjournment was made to the lodge-room, where a sumptuous supper had been spread by Bro. S. Wright, and was presided over by Comp. Sillitoe. After supper dancing was resumed, and kept up with spirit until early morning. All who were present expressed themselves highly delighted with the evening's entertainment, and there is no doubt that the great success of this, the first soiree given by the chapter, will be the means of inducing those in power to follow the example of Comp. Sillitoe in substituting a soiree for the usual installation banquet.

BUXTON.—PHOENIX CHAPTER OF ST. ANN (No. 1235).—The anniversary of this chapter was held on Thursday, Feb. 18th, at the Court House, Buxton, present—Comps. R. R. Duke, P.Z.; F. Turner, H.; A. A. Bagshawe, J.; J. Taylor, S.E.; Le Gros, Milligan, W. Smith, Lawson, Sykes, Comyn, P.Z. 47; and visiting Comps. Barrowby, Wriglet, Bramwell, W. Milligan, W. H. Hopkins, Jas. Hall. The minutes of the previous chapter having been read and confirmed, and the Board of Installing Principals opened, the Principals elect of the chapter were duly installed by Comp. Jas. Hall, P.Z. 207; assisted by Comp. W. H. Hopkins, P.Z. 1055; viz.: Comps. Fredk. Turner as First P.; A. A. Bagshawe as Second P., and Josiah Taylor as Third P. The usual charges were also delivered by Comp. Hall; and the newly installed Principals having been saluted in the proper manner, the Board of Installed Principals was closed, and the companions of the chapter and visiting companions were admitted. The following officers were then invested and addressed by the Installing Principals:—Comps. R. R. Duke, P.Z., as Treasurer; P. Le Gros, as S.E.; E. J. Sykes, as N.; E. C. Milligan, as R.S.; W. Smith, as First Asst. S.; and J. H. Lawson, as Second Asst. S. After a cordial vote of thanks to the Installing Principals, and the hearty good wishes from Chapters Faith, 210; Derby, 1055; Abbey, 47; Justice, 257; and Hope, 322, having been expressed, the chapter was duly closed.

CARDIFF.—LANGLEY LODGE (No. 28).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, February 5th. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. J. Rogers, the W.M. The minutes of the last proceedings having been read and confirmed, several brethren were balloted for and elected, one of them, J. C. Jones, 237, Swansea, being present, he was duly advanced to the honourable degree by the W.M., who then stated that, as he had performed the ceremony of advancement that evening, and was suffering from a severe cold, he should request P.M. Bro. S. Weichert to install the W.M. for the ensuing year, explaining that no slight to the W.M. elect was intended. Bro. P.M. Weichert then took the chair, and installed the S.W., Bro. W. Williams, into the chair of A., which ceremony he performed in an excellent and impressive manner. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows: Bros. J. Hurman, S.W.; N. D. Marks, J.W.; R. South, Treasurer; W. Davies, Secretary, T. Jacob, M.O.; T. Glass, S.O.; T. C. Sladen, J.O.; J. Thomas, S.D.; E. Edmunds, J.D.; R. Maine, I.G.; W. Davies, Tyler. A vote of thanks was then proposed to Bro. Weichert, the Installing Master, and also one to Bro. J. Rogers, the I.P.M., for his services to the lodge, both of which votes were carried, and entered in the minute book. The names of several candidates for advancement were then proposed, and the lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The brethren then adjourned to an excellent supper at the Royal Hotel, where a very enjoyable evening was passed, though it was unavoidably shortened, many of the brethren having to leave by train. The lodge was honoured by the presence of Bro. Jukes, Past Grand Chaplain, who kindly came from Hereford, to represent the Keystone Lodge at Newport, Mon., of which he is the J.W.

LEICESTER.—BYZANTINE CONCLAVE (No. 44).—The regular assembly of this conclave was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, February 9th. Amongst those present were Sir Knight William Kelly, Intendant General; Clement Stretton, M.P.S.; G. Toller, G.H. and P.S.; S. S. Partridge, K.G.C., P.S.; F. J. Baines, V.E.; J. C. Duncombe, Hon. V.E.; W. Weare, S.G.; W. Sculthorpe, J. G. and Treasurer; J. T. Thorp and R. Waite, Aides; Clement Edwin Stretton, Prefect; C. McBride, Herald; C. A. Spencer, and others. In the temporary absence of the M.P.S., the ceremony of installing Bro. Law, I.G. 279, was very ably performed by Sir Knt. Partridge, the lecture being given by Sir Knt. Toller, and the charge by Sir Knt. Kelly, Int. Gen. The ballot for the M.P.S., V.E., and Treasurer for the ensuing year, resulted in the unanimous election of Sir Knts. F. J. Baines, W. Weare, and W. Sculthorpe. After the conclave had been closed in due form, the Sir Knights adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual loyal and chivalric toasts were duly proposed and honoured. In response to a request of the Sir Knights, an interesting account was given by Sir Knt. Toller, of the Grand Conclave which was held at Liverpool in November last.

PALESTINE ROSE CROSS CHAPTER.—A meeting of the Palestine Chapter of Rose Croix, under the M.W.G., H. C. Levander, took place at the Masonic Hall, Golden-square, on Tuesday evening last, when Bro. Venn was perfected. Bro. Little proposed, and Bro. Boyd seconded that a letter of condolence be written and sent to the widow of Bro. Sillitoe. Among those present we noticed Bros. Captain Nathaniel George Phillips, 33°; Major Shadwell Henry Clerke, 33°; Hyde Pullen, 33; Charles Horsley, 31; R. Wentworth Little, 30°; George Kenning, 30°; Dicketts, Hirsch, Cubitt, Rev. P. M. Holden, Rev. Vaughan, Leith Tomkins, J. T. Moss, H. A. Dubois, Fox, and others. Visitors, Bros. Dubosc, F. Binckes, Batty, Paas, and Grahame. After the meeting the chapter adjourned to the Café Royal, where dinner was served.

Obituary.

BRO. EDWIN SILLIFANT, P.M., P.Z.

It is with extreme regret that our columns of to-day have to chronicle the death of Bro. Edwin Sillifant, which melancholy event took place at his residence, Upper Tulse Hill, on Friday last. Although the immediate cause of death was inflammation of the lungs, accelerated from the fact of his desire to meet the shareholders of the Surrey Masonic Hall, of which company he was Secretary, on the occasion of the last general meeting, a report of which appeared in our last issue, our late Bro. Sillifant had been suffering for some months from a very painful malady, but it was hoped by his friends (who, it is unnecessary to say, were numerous) that his presence on the occasion above referred to, was the commencement of a general convalescence, and we ourselves had then the opportunity of congratulating him upon appearing again amongst his brethren. Our deceased brother was a P. Prov. G.D. Middlesex, P.M. and P.Z. of more than one Lodge and Chapter, a Life Governor of all the Masonic charities, and at the time of his death holding the office of Treasurer to the Stability Lodge, No. 207, and the Acacia Lodge, No. 1309, and present Sovereign of the Premier Conclave of the Red Cross Order. His remains were deposited on Thursday afternoon in Norwood cemetery, in the presence of a large circle of sorrowing friends.

BRO. JOHN POUT, P.M., AND SEC. 31.

Freemasonry in general, and the United Industrious Lodge, No. 31, Canterbury, has just sustained a severe loss by the death of Bro. John Pout, P.M. and Hon. Sec. He was initiated May 22nd, 1848, and installed W.M. June 2nd, 1853, and for 24 years has acted as Hon. Sec. From the time of his initiation to the time of his being seized with his last illness, a period of more than 27 years, his signature in the attendance book of the lodge is absent on twenty-two occasions only. At the preliminary meetings, as well as the Festivals of Provincial Grand Lodge, he was a very regular attendant, and nothing gave him greater pleasure than to see his young brethren attentive to the duties of their lodge, and express a desire for Masonic knowledge. He was considered by all who knew him a great authority on Masonic matters, being well acquainted with the ancient usages and established customs of the Order. In 1866 the brethren of the lodge, as a slight acknowledgment of his valuable services as P.M. and Hon. Sec., presented him with a handsome silver salver. He has been unwell about three months, but has attended to business until within the last fortnight. He died at 10.30 a.m. (Monday, Feb 22).

Masonic Tidings.

The Fifty-eighth Anniversary of the Stability Lodge of Instruction will be held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Tuesday, 30th April, at half-past five o'clock, when the Lecture of the Second Degree will be worked as follows:—

- | | | |
|-------------|-------|-------------------------------------|
| 1st Section | | Bro. W. Bailey, J.D. 49. |
| 2nd Section | | Bro. J. E. Russell, P.M. 22. |
| 3rd Section | | Bro. J. Jones, W.M. 715. |
| 4th Section | | Bro. J. B. Scriven, P.G.S., P.M. 5. |
| 5th Section | | Bro. J. B. Scriven, P.G.S., P.M. 5. |

Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M. of Middlesex, will preside at the banquet.

It is intended to form a Masonic lodge in connection with the Corporation and Livery Companies of the City of London, to be called "The Municipal Lodge." Bro. F. Kent, P.M., 117, has obtained the assistance of several distinguished brethren, who, together with some members of the Court of Common Council, have agreed to accept office.

Bro. Emra Holmes has just been delivering his popular lecture on Charles Dickens at the Literary Institute, Colchester, when the chair was taken by Bro. the Rev. C. L. Acland, Head Master of the Royal Grammar School, himself a gifted lecturer on scientific and other subjects.

For many years there has been a controversy between scientific and medical men as to the comparative value of Gelatine. Who shall decide when doctors disagree? In this case we think we may safely leave it to the house-keeper, in whom all the scientific knowledge of the chemist and the medical experience of the doctor must merge in practical experience. Every intelligent lady is glad to avail herself of all the discoveries of modern science as aids to household supplies, and a relief in the preparation of many foods from the old and very tedious methods followed by her great grandmothers. Among such discoveries one of the most useful to the cook has been Gelatine. The modern Femme de Menage would often be at a loss were it not for the excellent preparation of gelatine to be had so easily and cheaply at the present day. Forty years ago the late Mr. George Nelson of Emscote Works, near Warwick, and Dowgate Hill, London, started the manufacture of Gelatine under special patent, and having paid the greatest attention to the mode of manufacture, succeeded in producing an "opaque" Gelatine, containing a maximum of nutriment, and, as is certified by Dr. Andrew Ure, entirely free from acid. This preparation is admitted by the highest scientific authorities to be far superior to the best French Gelatine, and equal to the finest Russian Isinglass in nutritive value, more economical in use, and adapted to every purpose for which the Russian Isinglass is used. As a preventive against fraud, the well-known "opaque" Gelatine manufactured by Messrs. Nelson, Dale and Co., as the firm now stands, is sold principally in packets weighing from 1oz. to 1lb., each signed with the familiar signature of "Geo. Nelson."—Church Herald.

OLD CONCORD LODGE (No. 172).—On Tuesday, 23rd ult., a grand ball took place at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, it being the 35th anniversary of the ball, and we must say that it was the most distinguished and elegant assembly we have for many years past observed. The whole suite of rooms having been re-decorated and beautified but recently, added much to the splendour of the scene, and the arrangements throughout redounded highly to the credit of all parties engaged in promoting this ball. The dancing was kept up with great animation and spirit until midnight, when the votaries of the light fantastic descended to the "Crown Room" which was most brilliantly lighted up for their reception. After the company had freely partaken of the various delicacies provided, Bro. Speight, the well-known Tyler of this lodge, acting as toastmaster, proclaimed silence for the V.P., who on rising referred in feeling terms to the unavoidable absence of the President, Bro. Vorley, through severe indisposition. The toasts being limited the President in glowing and eloquent language gave the toast of "Her Majesty the Queen, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," after which Bro. J. Emmens, P.M., the highly respected Hon. Sec., who had on rising a perfect ovation of plaudits, shewing the respect in which he is held, proceeded to give "The Health of Bro. E. A. Masterman, the chairman, which was responded to in a most enthusiastic manner. The worthy Sec. then gave the toast of the evening, viz., "The Success of the Old Concord Ball," and spoke in the warmest terms of the support rendered by the patronage of the bodies whose presence and aid had drawn forth so large a party. Contributing as it did such benefit to the charities, the proceeds resulting being at all times handed over to some one of those excellent institutions Masons hold so dear. The Secretary's (Bro. Emmens) health was then proposed by the President, who dilated most pleasantly upon the excellent qualities and the respect in which their Bro. Secretary was so universally held by his brethren, when Bro. Emmens replied that he was much gratified that his efforts had given such general satisfaction; informing the assembled company that it was 36 years since he had had the honour and pleasure of carrying out the arrangements of the ball. The President then proposed the health of the ladies, leaving it in the hands of Bro. Ward, S.D. of the lodge, and a junior member of the company to respond. Ample justice being done to the viands, which were supplied by Bro. Francatelli in a most recherche style, the company returned to the ballroom to resume dancing, which was kept up with great spirit until 4 a.m. The Stewards, were Bro. E. Dottridge, I.P.M.; D. Devenish, S.W.; G. Gurton, P.M.; G. Watson, P.M.; A. J. Dottridge, J.D.; S. S. Wood, S.D.; W. P. Goosey, I.G. Bro. Frampton, who has been the M.C. for many years, acquitted himself with his accustomed urbanity. The band, under the directorship of Bro. Marriott, added very materially to the enjoyment of the company by the inspiring strains of music, from his repertoire of the most popular and pleasing compositions of the day.

LEICESTER.—JOHN O' GAUNT LODGE (No. 523).—The members of this lodge assembled at the Freemasons' Hall on Thursday evening, the 18th ult., for the transaction of business, which comprised the election of Bro. Thomas Worthington, S.W. Knights of Malta Lodge, No. 50, as a joining member, two raisings, and one passing. One of the candidates for the sublime degree, who is now travelling in Russia, was consequently absent, and the candidate for the second degree was unable to attend owing to domestic affliction. There was a numerous attendance of visitors to witness the excellent working, for which the officers of this lodge are so justly celebrated, and the W.M., Bro. S. S. Partridge, Prov. Grand Secretary, fully realized the expectations of all present by his masterly manner of conferring the third degree. Amongst those present on this occasion were the complete staff of officers, and the following brethren: Bros. F. J. Baines, I.P.M.; J. T. Thorp, S.W.; W. T. Rowlett, J.W.; W. B. Smith, P.M.; Treasurer; T. A. Wykes, Secretary; A. Ross, S.D.; R. Taylor, J.D.; W. C. Shout, I.G.; A. Sargeant, Steward; R. Waite, P.G.W.; J. W. Smith, W.M. 279; G. Clifton, W.M. 1391; J. M. M'Alister, S.W. 279; E. Mason, Sec. 1391; and others. We have much pleasure in observing that Bro. Partridge has been proposed as an honorary member of St. John's Lodge, No. 279, in appreciation of his eminent services in this province.

STOKESLEY.—CLEVELAND LODGE (No. 543).—The usual monthly meeting of the Cleveland Lodge was held at the Golden Lion Hotel, on Monday evening, February 22nd, when Bro. Richardson, of Glaisdale, was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed in a very able and impressive manner by Bro. Knowles, P.M. of the Lodge of Philanthropy, Stockton-on-Tees, and G.S.D. of the province of Durham. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. A. W. Johnson, S.W.; James Coulson, J.W.; W. S. Dixon, S.D.; David Dixon, J.D.; Sharpe, I.G.; Handyside, P.M. and P. Prov. G.J.W., remaining Secretary as before. Bro. Watson was re-elected as Treasurer, and Bro. Harrison, who has been the efficient Tyler of the lodge from its commencement, was re-appointed as usual. The lodge being duly closed, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment. The annual festival of the lodge, which had been deferred on account of the change of tenants at the hotel, was served up in excellent style by Mr. and Mrs. Laws, and the youngest and oldest Masons all showed a reasonable proficiency in "the knife and fork degree." The following toasts were then given, and drank with Masonic honours. "The Queen and the Craft;" "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England;" "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," responded to by Bro. Handyside; "The Earl of Zetland, Prov. G.M.;" "The Health of Bro. Knowles," to which he responded in a feeling manner; "The Zetland Lodge," responded to by Bro. Sutherest, S.W. of that lodge; "The Lodge of Philanthropy," to which Bro. Thomas Bowron, P.M. of that lodge, responded; "The W.M. during the past year," responded to by Bro. Wilcox; "The W.M. for the ensuing year," responded to by Bro. Richardson; "The Health of Bro. Handyside," in proposing which, Bro. Knowles bore his testimony to the valuable services which had been rendered by that brother in assisting to work the Royal Arch Chapters in the neighbourhood. Bro. George Markham Tweddell expressed the pleasure it gave to the members of the Cleveland Lodge to hear the remarks which had just fallen from a brother of the adjoining province. For the information of those present who had just been initiated, he might state that twenty-eight years ago there was no Masonic lodge in Cleveland, and now there were four. He did not think that if there had never been a Bro. Handyside that there never would have been a Cleveland Lodge; but he certainly was the founder of the lodge, and for upwards of twenty-seven years he had rarely been absent from the meetings of the lodge. Bro. Handyside responded. "The Assistant Officers of the Lodge," responded to by Bro. William Harrison, who also favoured the meeting with some excellent recitations. The proceedings were enlivened by songs from Bros. Watson, Purdy, Emerson, Wilcox, W. S. Dixon, David Dixon, Best, and others. The brethren departed about ten o'clock in peace and harmony.

TIVERTON.—ST. PETER'S LODGE (No. 1125).—The regular monthly stated lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 18th inst., Bro. Thos. Parkhouse presiding. After the confirmation of the minutes of the former meeting, Bro. Mills, P.M., Secretary, presented to the lodge an elegant album to contain the photographs of the present and future members. On the first page was a life-like cabinet portrait of their much beloved P.G.M., the R.W. and Revd. Jno. Huyshe, which that gentleman had, on the application of Bro. Mills, most courteously forwarded. Thanks having been voted to the donors for their acceptable present, the lodge was opened up to the third degree, and Bro. Luxton, who had been duly examined and entrusted, was raised by the W.M. to the sublime degree of a M.M. On resuming work in the first degree, a candidate was proposed for initiation, and the lodge then formally closed. On Monday last, the 22nd inst., all that was mortal of Bro. P. P. Beedell, deceased, late a member of Fidelity Lodge, No. 230, was interred in the family vault in St. George's churchyard, in this town, several brethren of St. Peter's Lodge attending the funeral, wearing white gloves and having a black rosette on the left arm. Upon the funeral procession entering the church, the "Dead March in Saul" was performed on the organ by Bro. Mills, P.M., P.G.O.; and at the conclusion of the service, the brethren passed round the grave, and dropped sprigs of acacia on the coffin.

DOVER.—CORINTHIAN LODGE (No. 1208).—It is the custom of the Freemasons once a year to celebrate the advent of the new Master and the retirement of the old one by a gathering of the members of the lodge in connection with which the celebration takes place, as well of other lodges in the district. A celebration of this character took place at the Corinthian Lodge, No. 1208, at the Royal Hotel, on Monday evening, when the W.M. elect, Bro. W. A. Smeeth, was duly installed in the presence of Bro. Eastes, Deputy Prov. G.M. for the Province of Kent, and a large assembly of Masons. The ceremony of installation was exceedingly well performed by the P.M., Bro. G. Adamson, sen., assisted by P.M. Bro. J. Owen Rees (who was on a visit to Dover), and P.M. Bro. Archibald Wilson. After the ceremony, 78 of the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by the host, after which the W.M. very ably gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly responded to. The Deputy P.G.M., Bro. Eastes, in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," who had just been installed, in a very able manner pleaded the cause of those truly charitable institutions, the Boys' and Girls' Schools, the Institutions for Aged Freemasons and Freemasons' Widows. The Secretary of the latter institution, Bro. Terry, also advocated its claims on the sympathies of the brethren, and he also availed himself of the opportunity of informing the brethren that the Corinthian Lodge in sending up Bro. H. M. Baker as their Steward, with the excellent sum of nearly £50, had done great service to this institution, and he hoped that example would be followed in numerous instances. A very gratifying evening was spent, and we may add that during the evening the W.M. read a letter from Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Kent, expressing his inability to be present, and congratulating the lodge upon its prosperity; and, just previous to the opening of the lodge, a telegram was received from Bro. Alfred Spencer, Prov. Grand Sec., stating his regret at being unable to keep his engagement. The following is a list of the brethren present:—S. Wiles, 1208, W.M., vacating chair; W. A. Smeeth, W.M., elect; W. B. Adamson, S.W.; G. Adamson, sen., P.M. 199 and 1208, P. Prov. G.D.Cers.; H. M. Baker, J.W.; J. Holmes, S.D.; C. Claydon, J.D.; G. Adamson, jun., I.G.; J. Rose, Tyler; Edw. Todd, Isaac Lester, J.D. 199; A. Wilson, P.M. 199, P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. Bourdeaux, J.W. 199; Peachey, Faechs, Chas. J. Long, S. J. Davies, H. C. Fuhr, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. H. Welch, C. Waiter, G. R. Igglesden, Herbert E. Wright, J. Crosier, E. Fenn, S. Court, Visitors—J. S. Eastes, Invicta, 709, D.P.G.M., Kent; Hughes Hallett, Invicta, 709, W.M.; R. Elliott, Invicta, 709, and 874, P. Prov. G.R., P.M.; W. Wood, St. Michaels, W.M. 1273; H. Greenwood, Royal Military, W.M. 1449; J. Owen Rees, Peace and Harmony, P.M. 199, P. Prov. G.P.; H. Miskin, St. Augustine, 972; W. Bell, Peace and Harmony, 199; James Kennett, 558, W.M., P.G.S.; C. Gosby, W.M. 1436; F. Walker, W.M. 972; J. Sherwood, Temple, P.M. 551; J. Terry, Secretary, R.M.B.I.; W. M. Cavill, 784, P.M., P. GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on Thursday, 18th ult. The chair was taken by the W.M., Bro. James Forbes, who was supported by the I.P.M., Bro. Staton, Bros. Bescoby, S.W.; Lancaster, J.W.; Christie, J.D.; West, P.M., I.G.; Webb, Treasurer. There were also present Bros. Reed, P.M., Arkell, Hammond, Busgard, Tewkesbury, Freshwater, Harper, Owen, Bathard, Timberlake, Short, Robinson, Hawtin, and Hitchcock. The worthy Secretary, Bro. Jupe, was absent through illness. The business consisted of raising Bro. Hawtin; passing Bros. Short and Hitchcock; and initiating Mr. Jones, the candidate who was balloted for at the last meeting, but who was then unable to be present. There were also two candidates mentioned in the summons to be balloted for, viz.: Messrs. Barnes and Jenkins. Punctual to time on the part of the officers, the W.M. opened the lodge, and commenced by examining Bro. Hawtin, whom he afterwards raised to the sublime degree, in a manner that portends well for the future; in fact, not only in this degree, but also in all the other business brought before him. Bros. Short and Hitchcock were passed to the second degree after due examination, and Mr. Jones was then initiated. The ballot having been unanimous in favour of Messrs. Barnes and Jenkins, they were also admitted into the ancient Order. The minutes of the last meeting were then read and confirmed. The W.M. having risen in the usual manner, and no candidates being announced, the lodge was adjourned to the month of March. At the banquet that followed, the W.M. put the Grand lodge toasts through in quick time, and these having been received, as is usually the case with this lodge, in a truly loyal manner, "The Health of the Initiates" was given. The replies from the new comers were very good, showing that the ceremony they had recently undergone, had left an impression upon their minds. For that of the "Visitors," Bros. Bateson, Jones and Oldfield returned thanks, all of them expressing themselves highly gratified at the entertainment they had received. The W.M. then gave the "Past Masters," which was replied to by Bros. Staton, I.P.M.; Webb, P.M.; and Reed, P.M. "The Health of the W.M." having been proposed, it was duly honoured with the fire of the Great Northern. After a brief, but humorous reply, the W.M. gave "The Health of the Officers," stating that he was not only proud of them himself, but proud of them for the sake of the lodge, and of those who had filled the chair before him, for they had done a great deal in getting the lodge to its present efficient state, but more especially with regard to the officers. Bro. Bescoby, S.W., replying for himself and brother officers, stated they, one and all, had made up their minds to do all they could to promote the welfare and pleasure of the members of No. 1287. The Tyler's toast concluded the evening's entertainment, which was greatly enhanced by the W.M. Bros. Webb, P.M.; and Reed, P.M.; and Bros. Arkell, Bescoby, Barnes, Harper, Lancaster, and Owen.

HAMPTON COURT.—BURDETT LODGE (No. 1293).—This lodge held its installation meeting at the Mire Tavern, Hampton Court, on Saturday, the 23rd January, when a large muster of the brethren, members of the province of Middlesex, assembled. The outgoing W.M., Bro. Phythian, in a most able manner, initiated Mr. William Jones Burdett, a nephew of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, and passed two brethren to the second degree. Bro. Little, the P.G. Secretary, then took the chair, and installed Bro. Frederick Keily, as W.M. of the lodge, with that degree of perfection which renders his working so celebrated. The W.M. then appointed and invested the officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. Pearce, S.W.; Berrie, J.W.; Rev. Shaboe, Chaplain; Little, P.G. Secretary, Treasurer; Buss, P.G. Treasurer, Secretary; Southwell, S.D.; Bindoff, J.D.; Tindall, I.G.; Gordon, M.C.; Woollard, W. Steward; Coote, Organist. The report of the audit committee was presented, which showed the lodge to be in a very flourishing condition, and a vote of five guineas was made to the Masonic Girls' School. After the banquet, the usual Masonic toasts were given, and ably responded to, and in a few remarks made by

Col. Burdett, the P.G.M., he expressed his great gratification at the success which had attended this lodge—the lodge of his adoption—and also on the general progress which Masonry had made in the province since his appointment to the office of Provincial Grand Master. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Dr. Woodman, 66; Edmonds, P.G. Secretary; Grabham, W.M. 1499; Waterhouse, 255; Shirley, 1118; Probert, 8; Lemon, 159; Green, J.W. 27; McLean, 474; Clark, 266; and others. The banquet was most ably and sumptuously provided by Bro. Sadler.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst. The lodge was opened at six o'clock in the evening, by Bro. Gardner, the W.M., assisted by Bros. Everett, S.W., W.M. 177; Painter, J.W.; Higgins, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Koch, I.P.M.; Page, P.M., Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Walls, W.S.; Kohler, A.W.S. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. and his officers initiated Mr. Rogers into the mysteries of the Order. Bro. Richardson being in attendance, was examined, entrusted, and duly passed to the degree of a F.C. Bro. Kock, I.P.M., gave a notice of motion, to be discussed at the next meeting; that the services of Bro. Stuart, P.M., as Secretary of the lodge since February 1874, should receive some tangible recognition. He also gave notice of motion that he should move at the April meeting that a Benevolent Fund in connection with the lodge should be established. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren partook of refreshment. Bro. Smith, P.M. and W.M. of the Royal Arthur Lodge, paid the lodge a visit. This being an "off night," the only toasts given were "The Queen and the Craft," and "The W.M." The W.M. and Bros. Walls and Wormald having contributed some vocal effusions, the proceedings, which were eminently successful, terminated at an early hour.

WIDNES.—LODGE OF EQUITY (No. 1384).—The brethren of this lodge met at Walker's Commercial Hotel, Widnes, on Wednesday, the 24th ult., to celebrate their annual festival and assist at the installation of the W.M. elect. There was a numerous attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was duly opened by Bro. R. D. Simpson, W.M., who was supported by a strong array of officers. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, and one candidate had been initiated, the chair was taken by Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, P. Prov. A.D.C. 86; who proceeded to install Bro. H. S. Oppenheim as the W.M. of the lodge, the ceremony being performed in that finished and impressive manner for which Bro. Fowler has long been well-known and admired. Bro. Oppenheim subsequently invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. D. Simpson, I.P.M.; W. Jamieson, S.W.; J. W. Wareing, J.W.; W. I. Thomson, Treasurer; James White, Secretary; A. Borthwick, S.D.; A. Tippet, J.D.; J. Raven, I.G.; W. Newsome, D.C.; R. Neill, S.S.; J. W. Carlisle, J.S.; and G. Brown, Tyler. The assembled brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet, which was presided over by the newly-chaired W.M. During the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to with great cordiality, the proceedings throughout being of a very enjoyable character.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—The regular convocation of this well-established chapter was held on Saturday, Feb. 27th, 1875, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street. The chapter was duly opened. There were present: Comps. T. Quihampton, M.E.Z.; W. S. Wyman, II.; G. K. Lemann, J.; P. A. Nairne, P.Z.; C. T. Dorey, P.Z.; M. Scott, P.Z.; R. S. Foreman, P.Z.; F. Walters, P.Z., Treas.; W. M. Goss, S.N.; J. B. Sorrell, 1st A.S.; S. Pownceby; and others. There were no visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots were unanimous in favour of the admission of all the candidates who were proposed for exaltation. Apologies were received from all those who were absent. Comp. Scott, in an able manner, installed W. S. Wyman, H. elect, as the Haggai of the chapter. Some candidates were proposed for exaltation, and the chapter was closed, after the bye-laws had been revised. There was no banquet, but a few of the members dined together.

LEICESTER.—CHAPTER OF FORTITUDE (No. 279).—The regular meeting took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, February 25th, and was largely attended by the members. In the unavoidable absence of the M.E.Z., Comp. E. J. Crow, the First Principal's chair was taken by Com. G. Toller, junr., P.Z., who was supported by Comps. S. P. Ekin, H., and W. Sculthorpe, J.; amongst those present were Comps. C. Stretton, P.Z.; S. S. Partridge, S.E.; R. W. Waite, S.N., and Treasurer; Thorpe, P.S.; Odell, A.S.; J. W. Smith, W.M. 279; F. Baines, P.M. 523; Barfoot, Stallard, Wykes, and many others. The minutes of the previous convocation having been confirmed, a ballot was taken for several candidates who had been proposed. From various causes only Bros. O. Law, I.G. 279; and T. M. Quin, 523, were enabled to be present. These were exalted in due form by the acting M.E.Z., who delivered the symbolical and mystical lectures, the historical being given by Comp. Sculthorpe, J. It is only right to mention that Comp. Thorpe discharged his duties as P. Soj. without a mistake. The ballot was then taken for the election of officers for the ensuing year, and resulted as follows:—Comps. Ekin, Z.; Sculthorpe, H.; Partridge, J.; Thorpe, S.E.; J. W. Smith, S.N.; Waite, Treasurer; Rowlett, P. Soj.; Wykes, Dir. of Cer. After discussion £10 10s. was voted to the widow of a deceased member, and £5 5s. to the Boys' School, to be placed on Comp. Waite's list. The chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned for refreshment, and passed a short time very agreeably, aided in a great measure by the admirable singing of Comps. Wykes, Stallard, Moore, Thorpe, and others.

LIVERPOOL.—EVERTON CHAPTER (No. 823).—The annual meeting of this chapter was held last week at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and was very largely attended. The chapter was opened at four o'clock by Comp. Jesse Banning, M.E.Z., and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been confirmed, he proceeded to install as Principals Comps. Joseph Holland, Z.; W. J. Lunt, H.; and W. Cottrell, J. The ceremony was performed in a faultless and impressive manner. The Z. invested the following as his officers:—Comps. R. W. Oglesby, S.E.; J. W. Edge, Secretary; T. Shaw, P.S.; J. W. C. Browne Cave, First A.S.; W. Trevitt, Second A.S.; T. Ashmore, P.Z., Treasurer; and P. Ball, Janitor. The members present included Comps. J. W. Ballard, W. Boulton, W. Maddox, F. Tuft, T. Bloomfield, R. Warriner, G. Parry, W. H. Thompson, W. H. Cooper, R. Carson, T. H. Carefall, G. Graham, J. S. Cuthbert, J. Goodman, J. White, W. Nash, J. Houlding, and H. Ashmore. The visitors included Comps. J. Wood, Treasurer 242; H. Williams, P.Z. 580; T. Williams, J. 203; J. McKane, P.Z. 216; T. Chesworth, P.Z. 1086; W. Shorter, 3. 1094; J. Jones, P.Z. 203; J. Pemberton, P.Z. 1094; J. Keaf, Z. 216, P.G.O.; J. Parsons, Z. 213; and P. G. Gee, S.N. 249. Four candidates were exalted by Comp. Holland, M.E.Z., the work being done by the Principals and P.S., in a manner rarely equalled. Three guineas were voted for charity, and at the banquet which followed business, a jewel was presented to Comp. Jesse Banning, P.Z. The "Everton" is the largest in the province, and the funds were reported as in a flourishing condition.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

ST. JOHN'S SOVEREIGN CHAPTER OF S.P.R.C. OF H. R. D. M.—The regular meeting of the above chapter was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Grahamstown, for the purpose of consecrating the new chapter, and for the installation of the office-bearers for the ensuing year. The usual business of the evening having been disposed of, the installation and consecration were proceeded with by Ill. Bro. R. W. H. Giddy, S.P.R.S. XXXII. degree, Treasurer-General of Griqualand West, Representative in this Colony of the Supreme Council XXXIII degree of England and Wales and the British Colonies, A. A. Scottish Rite. The following were the officers installed:—M.E.P. Bros. T. H. Addison, K.R.R.C.K.H.S., M.W.S.; W. Waller, P.M., P.P.Z., H.P.; P. H. Solomon, P.M., 1st Gen.; H. Linton, P.M., 2nd Gen.; A. S. Dudley, P.M., P.P.Z., Recorder and Organist; R. Mundy, P.M., Raphael; J. F. Darvall, Grand Marshal; T. Sheffield, T.; G. G. Locke, H.; F. W. Hepburn, Captain of Guard; A. Will, O.G. Ill. Bro. Giddy, after the installation, congratulated the brethren present upon the auspicious occasion of the installation of the first officers of the first Chapter of Rose Croix Masons formed in Grahamstown, and from the number of Knights already enrolled under the banner of this exalted degree, he predicted for it a very successful career. The brethren were afterwards entertained at a banquet by Bro. T. H. Addison, the M.W.S. elect, at his residence, given in honour of Ill. Bro. R. W. H. Giddy. The health of Ill. Bros. Giddy and Addison were drank and duly responded to by each, the brethren separating at midnight.

PROVINCIAL GRAND ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER FOR LANARKSHIRE.

The quarterly meeting of this chapter was held on the 26th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. Bro. F. A. Barrow, P.G. Supt., presided, and there were present Comps. William Smith, P.G.J.; Archibald McTaggart, P.G. Scribe E.; John Fraser, P.G.N.; James Duthie, Z. 67; Thomas D. Humphries, Z. 69; James Balfour, First P.G.S.; James S. Scott, H. 122; George Thallon, Z. 119; George Wheeler, Z. 43; James Annand, Z. 144; and J. O. Park, Z. 122. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved of, the Most Excellent Superintendent intimated that he had appointed Comp. J. Fraser to the office of P. G. Scribe N., which announcement was received with much cordiality by the companions present. Comp. Park called attention to the fact that no election had taken place since the reposal of the Supreme Royal Arch Chapter of Lanarkshire. In reference to this, it was agreed to, that the matter should be allowed to rest over till the meeting of the P.G.R.A. Chapter in November next. It was next agreed to, that a festival of all the chapters in the province be held shortly on a convenient date; and, on the motion of Comp. Halket, seconded by Comp. Wheeler, it was resolved that the First Principals of the chapters of the province should form a committee to carry out the arrangements, Comp. Halket to be convener. Comp. Duthie called attention to the payment of the annual fees to P.G. Royal Arch Chapter, when it was determined to make intimation that the fee for the past year was due. P.G. Treasurer Comp. Halket proposed that the past year's levy should be limited to £1, which motion was seconded by Comp. Wheeler, and carried unanimously. A letter was then read by the P.G. Scribe E. from Comp. J.D. Porteous, Second Grand Principal of the Province, intimating his resignation of that office, consequent upon his departure from Glasgow. Comp. Porteous therein said—"In doing so, permit me to express my sense of the kindness I have ever experienced from yourself (the P.G. Super.) and the companions, who I leave with a strong feeling of personal regard." The letter having been read, it was moved that a copy of the minute of the present meeting be sent to Comp. Porteous, expressing the universal regret of the Chapter at his withdrawal from them, and their sincere and heartfelt desire for the future happiness of himself and his family, and for his success in the new sphere of labour to which he had been so honourably called. The P.G. Chapter was thereafter closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—INSTALLATION DEGREE.—On Friday the 19th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, an emergency meeting took place, at which a Board of Installed Master Masons was formed, consisting of Bros. Thomas Halket, P.M. 103; Arch. McTaggart, P.M. 27; and John Fraser, P.M. 87; for the purpose of confirming the Installed Masters' degree upon three brethren from Lanark. Those were Bros. Wm. McLehose, R.W.M. Lodge 21, Old St. John, Lanark; John Currie, P.M. of same lodge; and John Annan, R.W.M. Lodge 326, Clydesdale, Lanark. The ceremony was efficiently performed by Bro. Halket.

GLASGOW.—THISTLE AND ROSE LODGE (No. 73).—The 121st anniversary of this lodge was held in the Lesser Trades Hall, on the 24th ult., Bro. McDonald, R.W.M., in the chair, and Bros. Wm. McGregor, S.W.; and J. T. Hanbridge, J.W., acting Couplers. After an excellent supper, provided by Bro. Ancell, the chairman delivered an interesting address, referring to the age of the lodge, and its prosperity. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts having been pledged, Bro. McGregor, S.W., gave the "Three Grand Lodges," which was responded to by Bro. Wheeler, for the Grand Lodge of England, and Bro. Currie, for the Grand Lodge of Ireland. Bro. Hanbridge, J.W., gave "The Provincial Grand Lodge," to which Bro. G. Sinclair replied, giving valuable information as to the work done in that lodge. Bro. W. B. Pateson gave "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," to which Bro. T. Stewart responded. Bro. Grove, 116, proposed the toast of the evening, viz., "The Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73," to which the Secretary, Bro. Ampleford, replied, stating that during the past year the lodge had been very prosperous, and he had no doubt, with Bro. McDonald as their R.W.M., it would continue to be so. The other toasts were "The Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council," by Bro. Bannerman; "Sister Lodges," by Bro. G. W. Wheeler; "The Ladies," by Bro. W. T. Kay; replied to by Bro. Richards; "The Strangers," by Bro. T. Stewart; replied to by Mr. Bowker. The toasts were interspersed with songs, ably rendered by Bros. Pemnan, Grove, Prout, and others. The concert programme having been brought to a close a spirited ball, kept up to an early hour, completed one of the most pleasant meetings held under the auspices of this lodge for some years.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SCOTIA (No. 178).—The eighty-fourth annual festival of this lodge was held in the Crown-street Assembly-Rooms on the 7th inst., taking the form of a soiree, concert, and ball. Bro. Joseph Singleton, R.W.M., occupied the chair, supported on the platform by Bros. Rev. J. C. Stewart, John Peters, R.W.M. 153 (Royal Arch, Pollokshaws); R. M. Quill, R.W.M. 275 (Shamrock and Thistle); Jno. Mathieson, Arthur Higgins, Robert Gardner, Peter Hipburn, Runcie (Gourcock); and King. After tea, the chairman made a few remarks, at the outset of which he said that he much appreciated these anniversary gatherings, as he thought it was distinctly good to have at least one meeting in the year at which they could be joined by the ladies. With regard to the state of the lodge he stated further on, that during the last twelve months they had initiated forty-eight candidates, who, he added, would be an honour to Masonry and to the Lodge Scotia. They had remitted to the P.G.L. of Glasgow, for benevolence, the sum of ten guineas, and they had only had three applications for relief during the year, two of which were from the widows of Masonic brethren. For the musical programme, which was a lengthened and attractive one, there were engaged other artists, Bros. John Good and D. Alexander, and the concert was on the whole a successful one. The assembly, which followed, was kept up with spirit until an early hour.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, No. 12, Tron-gate, Glasgow, on Monday, 22nd February, Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., presiding; Bros. John Garth, S.W.; Jas. Horn, J.W.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. There were also present: Bros. John Fraser, P.M. Lodge Thistle, No. 87; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and a large attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan, the minutes of last meeting read and approved, also an application from Mr. Wm. Stewart Boyd for admittance into the privileges of Freemasonry was read and approved of, the ceremony of initiation being performed in a very able manner by Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M. Bro. John Morgan, brought to the notice of the brethren the case of a member of the Star Lodge, No. 219, being in very great distress, brought on by illness, and recommended that the lodge vote £2 2s. and that the Secretary apply for another £2 2s. from the Provincial Benevolent Fund, to assist this brother in his present wants, which was unanimously agreed to. The R.W.M. also brought to their notice the great loss Bro. Davidson, P.M. of this lodge; had sustained by the death of his wife, who had always been so faithful and dear to him. Bro. Davidson also had been always a true and faithful husband, father, and Freemason, one that the Order might be proud of, and he moved that the Secretary write a letter of condolence, on behalf of Lodge Star, No. 219, to Bro. Davidson, which was unanimously the wish of the lodge. Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., then selected Bro. Jasper Martin as Depute Master. With the exception of a few alterations in the bye-laws and respecting the anniversary festival there was no further business before the lodge, which was closed in due form.

GOVAN.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 417).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held in the hall in Portland Buildings, Govan, on the 16th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. John McFarlane, presided, and there was a numerous attendance. The lodge having been opened, two candidates received the first degree at the hands of Bro. John Monro, R.W.M. 360 (Commercial); and thereafter two more passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, by the R.W.M., Bro. McFarlane. There being no other business on the card, the lodge was thereafter closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 17th inst. In the absence of the R.W.M. (Bro. James Shaw), Bro. A. Arrick Smith, P.M., presided. There were present Bros. Wm. H. Caldwell, S.M.; Jno. W. Stafford, S.W.; Adam B. Feryman, J.W.; A. Carmichael, Treasurer; W. R. Dunn, Secretary; Jno. Harley, S.D.; and a fair number of visiting brethren. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes read, one candidate, James Poole, was duly proposed for initiation. There was no other business of importance transacted.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDE (No. 408).—This lodge held its usual meeting in the hall at 170, Buchanan-street, on the 19th inst. Bro. William Harper, R.W.M., occupied the chair, with, in their places, Bros. Connie, P.M.; McInnes, S.W.; Merriam, acting J.W.; Stewart, Treasurer; and D. S. Mitchell, Secretary. Among the visiting brethren present were Bros. Wheeler, 73; and A. R. Milson, 27. The lodge having been opened, the R.W.M. informed the brethren that St. John's Operative Lodge, No. 34, Rutherglen, would hold their annual festival there on the 26th inst., and as it was very desirable the lodges should support one another, he hoped as many brethren of No. 408 as could make it convenient, would see it to be their duty to attend on the occasion. Thereafter, Bro. Jno. Lyons, who had been initiated on the 5th inst., was passed to the square degree of Fellow Craft by Bro. Wheeler. A circular was read from lodge 347 (as above), inviting as large a deputation as possible to assist at the laying of the memorial stone of their new hall in Rutherglen, which is to take place with Masonic honours on March 6th. Bro. John McKinnon was then installed as P.G.S. for the ensuing year, the R.W.M., Bro. Harper, officiating. The lodge was thereafter called from labour to refreshment, when, after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. McInnes proposed that of "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the names of Bros. Wheeler and W. B. Paterson, No. 27, by both of whom it was acknowledged. Among remaining toasts were "Lodge Clyde," by Bro. Wheeler; "The Press," by Bro. R. Mitchell, sen.; "Health and Prosperity to Robert Mitchell,"—who is about leaving home for Western Australia—by the R.W.M.; and "Absent Brethren," by Bro. McInnes, S.W. The brethren being recalled to labour, the R.W.M. requested the assent of the lodge to a proposal that Bro. Hugh McDougall, W.M. of a lodge in Chicago, be made an honorary member of this lodge, in recognition of his kindness to the late Bro. Parker, a member of Lodge Clyde, who died there a few weeks after his arrival. This was unanimously agreed to, and the Secretary, Bro. Mitchell, was instructed to write to Bro. McDougall on the subject. Bro. R. Mitchell, sen., P.M. 332, reminded the R.W.M. that a sum of £12 10s. was now lying in the City of Glasgow Bank, in the name of three of the subscribers to a fund, which had been raised to bury with Masonic honours an American brother who died in the Royal Infirmary here on 2nd Nov. 1873. The original idea of the committee, of whom Bro. Harper was Secretary, was to purchase a vault or vaults for the interment of foreign brethren who might happen to die amongst them, and he (Bro. Mitchell) hoped the subject would be again brought up before the members of the Craft in Glasgow. The R.W.M., in reply, stated that he had not lost sight of the matter, and he would have a meeting convened in March ensuing, and endeavour to have the intentions of the subscribers carried out to the full. Subsequently Bro. McInnes, S.W., suggested that the ground and obelisk, belonging to this lodge, in the Southern Necropolis should be put in proper order now that winter was over. The R.W.M. promised that this should be done. Bro. McInnes then presented the lodge with two covers for the protection of their paraphernalia, which were accepted, and a vote of thanks to the donor, moved by Bro. Duncan Downie, P.M., heartily accorded. The lodge was thereafter duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOLE (No. 413).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held on the 23rd ult., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The R.W.M., Bro. John Wallace, presided, and there were also present: Bros. John Millar, P.M.; Jas. Louttit, D.M.; Walter Neilson, S.M.; Colin McKenzie, S.W.; and Daniel Leeds, J.W. The lodge having been opened, the following duly approved candidates received the first degree at the hands of Bro. Millar, P.M., viz.: Donald Cameron, Robert Russell, Robert Easdale, Peter Simpson, and John Connell. There being no other business before the meeting, the lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

The annual festival of the lodge was held on 26th ult., in the Clarendon Restaurant, (Bro. Thornton's) Argyle-st. The R.W.M., Bro. Wallace, occupied the chair, and Bro. James Louttit, D.M., officiated as Croupier. The company was a numerous one, amongst brethren from other lodges being Bros. William Bell, R.W.M. St. John's, 34; Thomas Fletcher, P.M. 34; Horne, S.W. 34; D. Wilson, 34; Sergeants May and Robertson, Lodge Maryhill, 510; and others. After a substantial supper, the chairman gave successively the toasts of "The Queen," "The Three Grand Lodges," and "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow." In proposing the latter, coupled with the name of Bro. Jno. Millar, P.G. Director of Music, the chairman remarked that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow was thoroughly deserving of the name which it held as second to none in Scotland. Bro. Millar, in acknowledging the compliment, referred to the amount of work which the Provincial Grand Lodge had to go through in the course of a year in a province which included twenty-six lodges, and gave it as his opinion that very few Provincial Grand Lodges would take the same trouble in the periodical visitations as did that of Glasgow. The toast of "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers" was then given by Bro. Fletcher, and replied to for the first-named by Bro. Sergeant Robertson, and for "The Volunteers" by Bro. Davidson. The chairman then said that his next duty was, on behalf of the lodge, to make a small presentation to their worthy Treasurer, Bro. Peter Agnew, than whom there was no one more deserving such a mark of recognition. It was but a small token of which they asked his acceptance, but it would be valued, not so much for its intrinsic worth as for the spontaneous manner in which it had been got up by the brethren. Bro. Agnew had been their Treasurer for a long period of years, and they all knew his worth in that capacity; but all who knew him would admit, in addition, that a more worthy or enthusiastic Mason never crossed the threshold of St. Mark's Hall. The chairman then presented Bro. Agnew with a large and handsome writing-desk, accompanying it with the wish of all the brethren that he might long be spared thereon to write out his accounts. The presentation was accompanied with that of an elegant brooch for Mrs. Agnew, without whose permission, the chairman humorously observed, Bro. Agnew could not have attended so well to the affairs of the lodge. Bro. Agnew, in acknowledging the compliments, said they had taken him completely by surprise. He had never heard a word about it, and it was a thing he never anticipated. Briefly referring to his term of office, he stated that for twelve years now he had had charge of the cash in Lodge Athole, during which time he had given out in the way of charity, nearly £100. He could only heartily thank the brethren for their kindness, and more especially in regard of the remembrance of his wife. The toast of the "Last Laid Stones of No. 413" having been proposed by the croupier, and responded to by Bro. Cameron, that of "Lodge Athole" was given by Bro. Fletcher, P.M. 31. He expressed the very great pleasure he had in being present that evening, and also his conviction that if they (Lodge Athole) went on at the rate they were going, they could not fail of great prosperity; especially under the command of such a worthy Master as Bro. Wallace. The toast was coupled with the name of the R.W.M., who said it gave him great pleasure to acknowledge the same. This was now the second year that he had occupied the chair, and he could assure their friends that they were going on at least as harmoniously as when he was first elected to it; in fact he would say that there was not a lodge in the kingdom of Scotland that worked more harmoniously together than Lodge Athole. As to their progress, he might mention that this year they had already made about as many members as they had made last year together. Amongst the remaining toasts were the "Office-Bearers of Lodge Athole," coupled with the name of Bro. Stevenson, Sec., who replied; "The Visiting Brethren," by the croupier, coupled with the name of Bro. Bell, 34; "Absent Brethren," by Bro. Colin McKenzie, S.W.; "The Press." With a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Wallace for his conduct in the chair, on the motion of Bro. Bell, and the good old sentiment, "Happy to meet, &c.," the very agreeable gathering was brought to a close.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541).—The meeting of this lodge on the 22th ult., was an unusually interesting one, and by far the most successful of any since the installation of the office-bearers. The R.W.M., Bro. J. D. Porteous, presided, and there were also present Bros. Wm. Gillies, D.M.; Julius Brode, S.M.; Robert Walker, Chaplain; S. Findlater, Treasurer; and Robert Buchanan, Secretary. The attendance of visiting brethren was on a much larger scale than usual, including Bros. J. F. Mitchell, R.W.M. 102; George Glen, R.W.M. 426; J. Millar, P.G. Director of Music; A. Morton, P.M. 369; Thomas H. Campbell, Proxy Master 489 (Lodge Caledonian, Haskien, Turkey); David Lamb, D.M. 360; Thos. Graham, J.D. 360; Wm. Wilson, J.W. 87; and others. The lodge having been opened in the several degrees in full by the R.W.M., the latter intimated that he had obtained the assistance of Bro. Lamb, D.M. of Lodge 360, in the working of the Master degree; and accordingly, Bro. Lamb proceeded to confer that degree upon Bro. Peter Martin, who had been passed to the F.C. degree on the 11th ult. As the occasion was not only the regular meeting night of the lodge, but was also the last of the series of three "instruction" meetings, commenced in December last, the ceremonial was more than usually elaborate, and the effect of it greatly enhanced by a service of music, chiefly adapted from Mendelssohn's "Antigone," performed by a vocal choir under the direction of Bro. Millar, P.G. Director of Music, Glasgow, and with Bro. W. Schob, Organist of the lodge, at the harmonium. After the working was over, and Bro. Martin having taken his seat in the lodge, the R.W.M. briefly addressed the brethren, referring first to the fact of his forthcoming departure from Glasgow, and necessarily from his position in Lodge Marie Stuart. He might say he had got his "walking ticket." He was under the necessity of leaving Glasgow, and the chances were that he should spend the rest of his days, be they few or many, in the south. Although he was glad at the change on some accounts, he was very sorry about it on others. He was a native of Glasgow, had been for twenty-six years in the establishment he was about to leave (the Glasgow Post Office), and had formed a round of friends here larger and warmer than he could hope to do where he was about to go. As the brethren would have learned from the minutes, he had informed the lodge committee of the matter at the earliest opportunity; and it had been agreed to have a special meeting on March 1st, for the re-arrangement of office-bearers consequent upon his resignation, and also upon the recent death of Bro. James Stamm, their J.W., which he referred to in feeling terms. In concluding, the R.W.M. said that, in intimating at an earlier stage of the proceedings that he had obtained the assistance of Bro. Lamb, he forgot to mention that it was for the first time that brother was going to work the third degree. After seeing how he did it, however, he (the R.W.M.) was very glad of the omission, as he should have been ashamed at having made any prefatory apology for such admirable working. They were under a very great compliment to Bro. Lamb for his assistance, and he hoped he would accept the best thanks of the Lodge Marie Stuart. He thought by-the-by, that the lodge might thank him also (the speaker) for having brought forward such a promising pupil. (Laughter). Bro. Brode, who expressed his high gratification at the whole proceedings of the evening, said it would hardly be courteous not to move a vote of thanks to their musical brethren, who had come there that night to render such valuable services; and also to the visiting brethren generally, of whom he had never seen such a turn out except on their installation night. The compliment was acknowledged on behalf of the visiting brethren by Bros. Glen, 426, and Mitchell, 102. The former, in referring to the promotion of the chairman to the Postmastership of Bolton, said it showed that he was not only respected in the Lodge Marie Stuart, but by the Government of the country. Bro. Mitchell said they (the visiting brethren) owed a very hearty vote of thanks to the R.W.M. and office-bearers of Lodge 541, for the highly interesting and beautiful ceremonial they had that evening witnessed. With regard to the Master, he (Bro. Mitchell) hoped he would be happy and prosperous in his new sphere so long as he might be there. The R.W.M., in briefly replying, and in reference to what had been said about their musical brethren, took occasion to state that he had the full music arranged for all the three degrees, which, together with his rituals, he would leave behind for the good of the lodge. He had now, he said in conclusion, to bid them good-bye; and, in all human probability, he would never occupy that chair again. He was very sorry about it. However, he should take an occasional run down to Glasgow during holiday periods; and on some such opportunity he might perhaps yet be able to enjoy himself within Lodge Marie Stuart. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form. The departure of Bro. Porteous from Glasgow is a distinct event in our local Masonic history. Few brethren of late years have been more intelligently assiduous in promoting the interests of the Craft, or more intimately identified with it generally, within, and even beyond the province. The change he is making has caused him, just now, to resign the following offices:—R.W.M. Lodge Marie Stuart, 541; P.G. Junior Warden, Renfrewshire East; P.G. Second Principal of Lanarkshire Royal Arch; P.G.D.M. Royal Order of Scotland, for the Counties of Lanark, Dumfries, &c.; Representative in the Provinces of Glasgow and Renfrewshire East, of Captain Herriot's scheme for a Benevolent Institution. We may add that Bro. Porteous is a member of No. 188, a charter member and Past Secretary of Lodge Athole, 413; Past P.G. Marsh, Province of Glasgow; a P.M. Lodge Commercial, 360; Promoter and Charter Member of Lodge 541; Ex-Editor of the Universal Masonic Calendar, besides being an honorary member of, perhaps, fully a score of different lodges. He leaves, we understand, next week, to enter upon the office of Postmaster of Bolton, Lancashire, to which, as the public are aware, he has just been appointed by the Postmaster-General.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held within their new premises at 136, Rose-street, on 15th inst. Bro. William Phillips, R.W.M., occupied the chair, and there were in their respective places, Bros. Dr. Thomas Russell, D.M.; John McNaught, S.M.; John B. McNaught, S.W.; John Howie, J.W., and G. B. Yuill, Secretary. Among visiting brethren present, were Bros. James Shaw, R.W.M. 354 (Caledonian Railway); and R. M. Yuill, R.W.M. 275 (Shamrock and Thistle). The lodge having been opened on the E.A. degree, Bro. Frederick Stout, of Lodge 347, St. John's Operative, Rutherglen, was affiliated a member of No. 556; and thereafter, a candidate, duly recommended, James Barclay, was initiated into the mysteries of the Order by Bro. J. B. McNaught, S.W. Subsequently, the lodge was raised to the Fellow Craft degree, when the following were passed to that degree by the R.W.M., viz., Bros. James Smith, James F. Murray, Joseph Glen, James Whitehead, John Heron, and Joseph Grainger. There was no other business before the meeting.

CONSECRATION OF THE GLADSMUIR CHAPTER (No. 1385.)

On Thursday, February 25th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Barnet, a third chapter was added to the roll of Royal Arch Masonry in Hertfordshire. The ceremonies of consecration and installation were performed in a faultless and painstaking manner by E. Comp. Wilson Iles, M.D., P.Z., and S.E. of the Watford Chapter, No. 434, Prov. G. Sec., Herts, very ably assisted by E. Comp. Terry, P.Z., Secretary of the Benevolent Institution.

The chapter was opened by E. Comps. Wilson Iles, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; T. F. Halsey, M.P., P.Z., Prov. G.M., Herts, as H.; and H. L. Thomas, Z. 403, as J; with several Past Principals. The companions were admitted and were marshalled by E. Comp. Terry, who acted most efficiently as Director of Ceremonies.

The founders, Comps. Terry, P.Z.; Cocks, P.Z.; Verry, P.Z., Hayward, Edwards, and Livingston, having declared that they approved of the companions named in the warrant to be the Principals, viz.: Comps. T. S. Carter, S.E. 403, as M.E.Z.; J. Lowthion, H.; and W. Cutbush, J.; the chapter was duly consecrated. That interesting ceremony being ended, the installation of the Principals was proceeded with and carried out in a most able manner. The following officers were then invested:—E. Comps. Terry, First P.Z.; Cocks, S.E.; Hayward Edwards, S.N.; Verry, P. Soj.; Livingston, First Asst. Soj.; Humphrys, Second Asst. Soj.; Cutbush, Treasurer; and Goddard, Janitor. Several brethren were proposed for exaltation. The visitors present, besides those named, were: Comps. Binckes, P.Z., Sec. Boys' School; West, Berry, Wright, P.Z. 22; Heard, H. 403; and Shilcock, 403. The companions afterwards retired to a sumptuous banquet, provided by the host, Bro. Fisher; a most agreeable evening was spent.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday, 25th February, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major Creation, vice-patron, presided. Among the brethren present were:—Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Walter Wellsman, F. W. H. Ramsay, Raynham W. Stewar, W. Paas, J. A. Rucker, Benj. Head, Jesse Turner, Joshua Nunn, Thos. W. White, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little, Secretary.

The resignation of Miss Davis, the head mistress of the school, was announced to the committee, and the vacancy in the office was declared as from June next.

A grant of £20 was made to a late pupil of the school on her obtaining an engagement. Several matters connected with the school were discussed, and one petition was read, the little girl the subject of it, passed her preliminary very satisfactorily, and was placed on the list for election, after which the committee adjourned.

FREEMASONRY IN JAMAICA.—On the evening of the 22nd Dec., the Worshipful H. P. Thompson, Master elect of the Seville Lodge, St. Ann's Bay, on behalf of the members, presented the Right Worshipful Michael Solomon, on his retiring from the chair, with a Past Master's jewel, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to the Worshipful Michael Solomon, by the members of the Seville Lodge, as a token of brotherly love, and as a mark of his attachment to the Craft, on his retirement from office. Lodge Seville, 530, St. Ann's Bay, Jamaica, 1874." Bro. Solomon thanked the brethren, in an eloquent speech, for the manner in which they had marked their appreciation of his services while he occupied the chair as Master, and assured them that he would ever feel that lively interest in the Seville Lodge which he has felt since its organization.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.—The third annual ball, organized and carried out by some of the leading spirits of the Alliance Lodge, No. 667, and other lodges, took place on Wednesday evening, the 24th ult., at the Royal Assembly Rooms, Great George-street, Liverpool. Happily named "our" ball, it proved one of the most enjoyable of the season, and the Alliance thereby maintained its name and fame as being one of the most fraternal in this part of the country. This was the third of the series of balls got up under the same auspices, and was largely and fashionably attended, those present including many prominent members of the Craft. The arrangements were of the most satisfactory kind, and everyone seemed to enjoy the merry meeting. The scheme was inaugurated and carried out by Bros. W. Doyle, P.M., Treasurer, 667, P. Prov. J.G.D.; A. Bucknall, 667 (who most efficiently fulfilled the combined duties of Hon. Sec. and M.C.); H. Gregory, 667; H. Firth, 667; A. C. Morrison, 594 (Downshire Lodge), and Carter, 667. Amongst those present were Bros. R. Brown, S.W. 241, Secretary to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution; T. B. Myers, S.W. 1182; R. Martin, J.W. 1182; J. Jackson, S.W. 667; W. Savage, 241; as well as representatives of Lodges 594, 673, 1356, and 1393. Bro. Eve, Lime-street, supplied the supper and refreshments, and his catering, both as respects quantity and quality, could not have been excelled. Mr. Martin's quadrille band furnished excellent music. Dancing was kept up with spirit until after three o'clock.

UXBRIDGE YEOMANRY CAVALRY.—The annual ball in connection with this distinguished regiment took place on Thursday, 25th ult., at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, under the patronage of Bro. Lieut.-Col. Cox and the officers. The company began to assemble, and dancing commenced about nine o'clock, and was continued with great spirit, to the inspiring strains of the regimental band, under the direction of Bro. Herr Folkey. The members of the regiment (a considerable number of whom are brethren), mustered in great force, and the handsome uniforms, and truly soldierlike bearing of the men, were the theme of universal admiration. The arrangements were perfect in every degree, and reflect the highest credit on the committee, of which Bro. R. Perkins was Hon. Sec. After supper, which was of the most substantial kind, and gave the greatest satisfaction, and the usual loyal and patriotic toasts had been given and responded to, the company returned to the ball-room, where dancing was resumed until a very early hour in the morning.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Dangerous Catarrhs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Influenza, are rife at this season of the year. Hepatic and renal congestions frequently occur as the result of checked skin action, giving rise to serious symptoms and preventing attention to business or pleasure. No time should be lost on the first appearance of any indications of the invasion of these diseases, for the symptoms may be checked effectually by the use of these valuable remedies, the penetrating local effect of the Ointment acts surely in the affected parts, and restores them to a healthy condition, and the pills, judiciously taken in accordance with the lucid directions, relieve the congestive capillaries and materially lessen the chance of serious mischief supervening.—ADVT.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was held last Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. There were several hundreds of brethren present, who, were probably under the impression that the Prince of Wales would preside. The brethren began to arrive at an early hour, and long before seven o'clock, all sitting room was occupied. By the time the Grand Lodge was opened more than half the brethren present were standing, and they so remained during the conduct of Grand Lodge business.

The Grand Master's chair was occupied by Bro. Hugh D. Sandeman, District Grand Master of Bengal, the G.S.W. chair was occupied by Lord Henry Thynne, M.P., G.S.W., and the G.J.W. chair by Bro. F. Pattison. The Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, acted as Deputy Grand Master, and the Earl of Limerick, Provincial Grand Master of Bristol, as Past Grand Master. To the right of the Earl of Limerick were Col. Burdett, Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, Bro. Thomas F. Halsey, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Herts, the Rev. James Simpson, D.C.L., Grand Chaplain, and the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain. Among the other Grand Officers, and Past Grand Officers, were Bros. John Havers, John M. Clabon, John B. Monckton, Joshua Nunn, Capt. Platt, Col. Whitwell, Thomas Fenn, Rev. A. B. Frazer, S. Rawson, Rev. R. J. Simpson, James Glaisher, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, ex-Sheriff Hutton, John Symonds, John Savage, Brackstone Baker, and Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes.

After the opening of Grand Lodge, Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, read the regulations for the government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business, and afterwards the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of 2nd December, 1874. He then read a letter from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, acknowledging the receipt of the resolution of condolence passed in Grand Lodge on the 2nd of September last on the decease of the late Earl of Dalhousie, K.T., G.C.B., Past Grand Master Mason of Scotland.

The Earl of Shrewsbury then moved an address of condolence to the M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, in the sad affliction which has befallen his lordship by the death of the Countess of Carnarvon. In doing so he said:—Most Worshipful Master and Brethren, I have the honour to rise to move that a sincere vote of condolence be offered to the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, on the very melancholy suffering he has sustained by the loss of his wife. I have been permitted, or rather have been requested, to move this resolution because it has been thought that a personal friend of the noble lord would perhaps be the best person to do so. This was thought the best way of conveying to his lordship our sincere regret at the great loss he has sustained. I am well aware of what his bereavement is. I have had the honour and the pleasure of, first of all, being at the University with him; secondly, I knew the estimable lady who presided over his house for many years, and I would say, personally, I, in common with society and all who knew her, grieve for our noble and respected brother. I was unprepared to make this speech, but a set speech is not necessary, because as Masons we cherish affectionate regard for each other in every relation of life. We inculcate those kind feelings towards one another, which makes us regard others' afflictions as our own; and I am sure our sympathy will be extended towards our brother on this occasion. I might, perhaps, if I had been prepared, have addressed you in terms which would have moved you to sympathy, but I am glad to think that among our brotherhood there is no need of eloquence to excite you to such a feeling. In your own hearts you will feel what ought to be said.

The Earl of Limerick, in seconding the resolution, said: Most Worshipful Acting Grand Master, I quite agree with what has fallen from the Right Worshipful Acting Deputy Grand Master, that it requires but very few words either to propose or second a resolution such as the present. Not only does it require it, but I may almost say the fewer those words are the better they are adapted to the circumstances. I therefore, Most Worshipful Acting Grand Master, will not detain you longer, but will simply second the expression of deep sympathy which I am sure we all have for the illustrious brother, the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon.

The resolution was then put and carried unanimously.

Bro. John Hervey read a communication in reference to the formation of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, in which it was stated by Sir John Macdonald, K.C.B., the representative of this Grand Lodge at the Grand Lodge of Canada, that all difficulties had been adjusted with the Grand Lodge of Canada.

The Acting Grand Master moved that a reply should be sent to this communication, and that the Grand Lodge of Quebec should be recognised, and that representatives should be interchanged.

The Earl of Shrewsbury seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Standish Grove Grady, in rising to propose the election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year, said: Most Worshipful Grand Master, having had, as you have just heard from the Grand Secretary, the honour of nominating His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at the last quarterly communication as the Most Worshipful Grand Master of our Order for the ensuing year, it becomes my duty now, and I rise with feelings of very sincere pleasure to discharge it, to ask you to confirm that nomination by your election of His Royal Highness this evening to that office. (Hear, hear.) I do indeed esteem it the highest honour that I have been selected to discharge this duty, and I cannot attribute it to any personal merits of my own, but rather it may be to the circumstances that, not many years ago, I had the good fortune to be called upon to present to their Royal Highnesses the first words of welcome when the illustrious Princess, with whom the Most Worshipful Grand Master has so happily united his fortunes, first graced the shores of her adopted country; and still more recently to his Royal brother, the Duke of Edinburgh and his illustrious bride, the Grand Duchess, when he first introduced her to the loyalty of Her Majesty's subjects. And I again feel it an honour to discharge my present duty and to ask this Grand Lodge, so numerous and influentially attended, to confer on His Royal Highness the highest honour that the Craft can bestow on any of its members. I need not remind you of the position of our ancient Order; I need not remind you that when a recent event rendered vacant the occupancy of our throne, how the voice of the Craft throughout Her Majesty's dominions fell as one on His Royal Highness as the most fit to occupy the throne and preside over our ancient institution. I need not remind you of the manner in which His Royal Highness, when waited upon by the deputation of the Grand Lodge, which requested his acceptance of that office, how graciously, how handsomely, and with all truly Masonic feeling, he acceded to the wish and complied with their request. I need not remind you of the report which has reached us all of the able and distinguished manner in which he performed one of our most interesting ceremonies on the recent occasion of the initiation of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught. The way he presided over the anniversary festival of our charitable institutions will convince you that we have in His Royal Highness a ruler who will add brilliancy to the Order, and raise it to a position of prosperity to which it has not hitherto attained in this country. I need not remind you that the most Worshipful Grand Master has still another claim upon our loyalty, and our allegiance as Masons. He is descended from an illustrious line of ancestors, many of whose members have been conspicuous at once for their attachment to the Order—(loud cries of "Time;" "Time;" and general signs of impatience, during the continuance of which Bro. Grady could not be heard to complete his sentence.) I am speaking in hearing of many brethren who knew his Royal Highness's Grandfather, the Duke of Kent, who was also a Freemason, and his Grand-uncle, the Duke of Sussex, who was Grand Master of England at the time of the union of the two Grand Lodges; and we only know the services he rendered to the Order at that time ("Time," "Time.") But brethren, His Royal Highness has still another claim on our allegiance and our love—(repeated signs of impatience, which Bro. Grady did not appear to notice, but continued speaking, although he was quite inaudible. At this point Sir Albert Woods conveyed a message to him from the Acting Grand Master, upon which he added—Under these circumstances, brethren, I shall not detain you further, but shall simply propose "That His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales be elected M.W.G.M. of Freemasons of England for the ensuing twelve months." (Cheers.)

Bro. Grey, Deputy Master of the Prince of Wales's Lodge, of which His Royal Highness is W.M., said in seconding the motion:—After what has fallen from our brother Grady I feel that further words would be superfluous, I therefore beg to second the election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. (Applause.)

The motion was put to the vote, when it was unanimously carried, amidst the repeated cheering of the whole assembled body.

Sir Albert Woods (Garter), Grand Director of Ceremonies called the brethren to "Order," and proclaimed the Prince of Wales by his full titles duly elected Grand Master for the year.

The Acting Grand Master:—Brethren I have to ask your attention to an order from the M.W.G.M. to the Grand Secretary on the subject of nominating certain Stewards to attend the installation of the Grand Master next month. I request your special attention to the letter while it is being read.

Bro. John Hervey:—"His Royal Highness has fixed the ceremony of his installation to take place at the Grand Festival on Wednesday, the 28th of April, at the Royal Albert Hall, and with a view to assist the executive in carrying out the arrangements of the day, he proposes to authorise the appointment of a certain number of Stewards in addition to the Grand Stewards of the year, and to cause a jewel to be struck, and to permit the brethren who may be named as Stewards to wear the same." (Applause.)

The Acting Grand Master: Brethren, the next business before Grand Lodge is the election of a Grand Treasurer for the ensuing year.

Bro. Dr. Erasmus Wilson proposed the re-election of Bro. Samuel Tomkins to the office of Grand Treasurer, which he had so honourably filled for a number of years to the benefit and satisfaction of the Craft. (Great cheering.)

Bro. Ramsey: I have much pleasure in seconding the motion.

Bro. S. Tomkins was thereupon unanimously elected Grand Treasurer, accompanied by the most vociferous applause.

The Acting Grand Master addressing Bro. Tomkins, announced the fact of his unanimous election.

Bro. S. Tomkins: Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren, I thank you heartily for the honour you have done me in re-electing me to this important office. I have now had the pleasure of fulfilling the duties of that office for twenty-three years. (Hear, hear.) During that time I have seen a great increase in the numbers, and in the prosperity of Masonry; and now, under the auspices of the illustrious Prince who has been made our Grand Master for the ensuing year, I do not doubt that we shall see a still greater increase of members and an increase of prosperity. Every man, every brother, who feels an interest in Masonry, and who wishes well to the progress of the Craft, must be pleased to look at it in its present position; and besides that we have every reason to hope and believe that there is a great period of prosperity before us. (Cheers.)

The Acting Grand Master: Brethren, I have an announcement to make to you which has been interpolated in the printed paper of agenda, to the effect that in the room of Bro. Llewellyn Evans, whose death you must all have heard of with great sorrow, the Most Worshipful Grand Master has been pleased to appoint Bro. Havers to the Board of General Purposes. (Applause.)

Bro. John Hervey read the report of the Lodge of Benevolence, in which there were recommendations for the following grants, which required the confirmation of Grand Lodge: £50 to a brother of No. 286; £50 to the widow of a late brother of No. 29; £200 to the widow of a brother of No. 130; £200 to a brother of No. 141; £50 to a brother of No. 879; and £100 to the widow of a brother of No. 1366. The report having been ordered to be received and entered on the minutes, the two first grants were carried after having been proposed by Bro. Joshua Nunn and seconded by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart.

Bro. John M. Clabon rose to propose the confirmation of the four last grants, and requested to be allowed to make some observations on the subject. Having reminded the brethren of the position he held, by the appointment of the Grand Master, of President of the Lodge of Benevolence, he stated how that lodge was composed—of a President, a Senior Vice-President, a Junior Vice-President, members appointed by the Grand Master, and others elected by Grand Lodge. The brethren who were appointed attended very regularly; the Masters of all lodges were entitled to be present, but of these very few attended regularly. Others never attended at all, and some only seldom, during their Mastership. These, therefore, were not acquainted with the principles on which the lodge acted with regard to the making of grants, and they voted large sums. The principle that the lodge proceeded upon was this: they divided it into two parts,—first, the distress, and second, the Masonic claim. On the subject of distress he need not dilate, but still there were subjects connected with it which they considered. They liked to give money in a way and an amount which would enable the brother who applied for relief to recover himself and set himself up in business. They did not like to give money to go to creditors; and they did not like to give money to a brother who might be said to be a pauper when he became a Mason. As to the point of Masonic claims, the number of years a brother had been in the Craft was an important question. Then came the question whether a brother had belonged to more lodges than one; then, to what extent he had assisted the work of the Craft in his own lodges, and in lodges of instruction. Another important question was, to what extent a brother had assisted the Masonic Charities; and a further, important question was whether he had still continued in Masonry up to the time of his application for relief; if he had left it, and if so, how long ago; and if he was dead, and the application was made by the widow and children, whether to use an ordinary phrase he had "died in harness." Now, he ventured to say that the Lodge of Benevolence acted on these principles exceedingly well. He was going to ask Grand Lodge to confirm the grants recommended in the report, but he felt a very responsible position in coming and asking this, and he felt bound to tell the brethren what he thought of the cases in which relief to a large amount was recommended. There were many members on the Lodge of Benevolence who understood its rules exceedingly well, but he ventured to think that if in any case his judgment went counter to theirs, and he considered they were in any case granting too much, it was his duty to come to Grand Lodge to tell them so. The first case he had to propose was that of the widow of a brother of Lodge No. 130, a Past Grand Deacon of the Order, who was 38 years in the Craft, and as it was well-known what great services that brother had rendered to the Order, no brother would think the grant of £200 too much, and he should therefore have much pleasure in recommending the confirmation of the grant.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.S., seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Clabon, then proposed the next grant of £200, to a brother of No. 141, who had been twenty years' in Masonry, and who, according to the accounts which were given of him to the Lodge of Benevolence, was an excellent working Mason of all the Masonic Charities.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, seconded the motion.

Bro. F. Binckes also added a few words, after which the grant was confirmed.

Bro. Clabon brought up the third case, the grant of £50 to a brother of No. 879. He had no doubt in the world it was a case of distress; but he thought that the Masonic claim was hardly so great as to warrant so large a grant as £50. The brother entered Masonry in 1857, and left it in 1866. No doubt he left it properly, for the cause assigned was that he could not afford to keep up his subscriptions. There was no statement of his having done much in the way of working in Masonry, or in the way of assisting the charities, and at the Lodge of Benevolence he (Bro. Clabon) expressed his opinion that £50 was rather a large grant to make. He would ask Grand Lodge however to confirm it, for the vote having been taken and the brother since then having been in the hope of receiving the grant, it would be wrong to disappoint him. But the brethren should bear in mind that the number of Masons was being added to largely every year. Grand Lodge had only £6000 or £7000 a year to give away. At last Lodge of Benevolence they gave away over £700; and if they went on at that rate they would not have enough to meet the claims made upon them. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Joshua Nunn had much pleasure in seconding the proposition, and added to Bro. Clabon's remarks that if the brethren who had only been in Masonry six or seven years, and had done nothing for the Order, were to be assisted with such an amount as £500, the Lodge of Benevolence would not be able to do justice to those cases where the brethren had very strong claims on their bounty, by having been a long time in the Craft, and assisted it both in purse and person to the utmost of their ability.

Bro. John Havers, P.G.W., was quite aware that he was about, as he frequently was, to take the unpopular side when a money grant was asked for; but no desire to stand well with the brethren would sway him from expressing his opinion. He would do so on this occasion, and would venture to draw attention to the extraordinary fact that they were called upon to vote £50 upon the recommendation of the most worthy man in the Craft, who told them that he quite disapproved of it. He was not going to object to the giving of this poor man the grant: the unfortunate error had been committed of voting it, and it would be an act of inhumanity to disappoint his hopes of receiving it. But let him (Bro. Havers) point out this prominent fact in this case. The brother came into Masonry and remained in it for seven short years, did nothing while he was in it, either in the way of "working" or in the way of charity. He then left it for nine years, came before the Lodge of Benevolence for relief, and they gave him £50. It was impossible, if they granted according to this scale to brethren who had been ten, fifteen, twenty, or thirty years in Masonry, had toiled hard for it during all that time and "borne the burden and heat of the day" that they should have funds sufficient to relieve the distressed. For the sake of the time-honoured institution they represented, he hoped they would be careful in future what grants they made. (Cheers.)

Bro. Herbert Dicketts said that though the President of the Lodge had told the brethren a great deal about the composition of the Lodge of Benevolence he had not told them everything. On the last occasion they had a great number of newly-fledged Masters of lodges; there were any number of new collars, new aprons, and levels to be seen shining there. And what did these new Masters do? They "went in" for a large sum of money, and ignored the whole of what had been done by the executive of Grand Lodge. He had known this state of things to happen on many occasions, and that a great many of the new Masters who attended once did not attend again. They came in, they saw a great many proposals for grants on the paper, they were not guided by those who knew and thoroughly attended to their duties on all occasions, and as soon as some one proposed a £50 or £100 grant, up went their hands for the large amount, and it was carried.

Another brother fully endorsed all that had been said.

The Earl of Shrewsbury said he had listened with great interest to the remarks of Bro. Clabon, and he was sure the Acting Grand Master would agree with him (the noble Earl), that as charity was their first duty, they should be very careful how they administered it. He was not about to move a resolution, but he thought, and felt, that the executive government, the Board of Benevolence, was greatly hampered by those who came into the house, like the new Masters, as had been described by Bro. Dicketts, and swamped the votes of the executive, and carried the division. Speaking in a political fashion, he thought a committee should be appointed to enquire into the working of the Lodge of Benevolence. It seemed very hard to brethren like the President and Vice-Presidents of the Board, who had taken great pains for many years with these affairs, should be swamped when they did what they thought was right. He attended the lodge once with a case from his own province of Staffordshire, which was received most kindly. He believed there was nothing like pressing a case yourself. There were other cases brought forward on that occasion, and having succeeded so well with his own case, he rather went in for the other candidates who were brought forward, and they were carried without any discussion at all. (Laughter.) They should be very careful what they did in the matter, because charity was the great principle of the Order, and they should be cautious in the administration of its funds. (Cheers.)

A motion was afterwards made to refer the grant back to the Board, but it was lost, and the grant was confirmed.

Bro. Clabon next proposed the last case on the list, £100 to the widow of a brother of No. 1366, who had been six and-a-half years in Masonry, but in that time had been Master of more than one lodge, had supported all the charities, but was suddenly stricken down with disease of the heart, and left his wife and family unprovided for.

Bro. Binckes in strong terms supported the grant, and seconded the motion. He gave a general outline of the deceased brother's career in Freemasonry, and showed that though he had been but six years and three-quarters in the Order, they represented a long life of Masonic usefulness. What he would have done for Masonry if he had been spared a few years it was impossible to tell, but having served the Stewardship of the other charities he had consented to be Steward for the next festival of the Boys' School, and had already got together a list of subscriptions amounting to £100.

There was a general feeling in Grand Lodge in favour of this grant, the deceased brother seeming to be known to nearly all the brethren. Some, however, did not appear to agree to the general view of the usefulness of the brother to the Order if social duties were neglected; and Bro. Joshua Nunn asked the brethren, after so many remarks had been made on the great services he had performed for the Craft—What had he done for his wife and family? Numerous expressions of dissent followed this question, and several brethren got up to inform Grand Lodge what the brother had done, and Bro. John Savage, P.G.D., made a statement of the brother's services to the Craft. These services could not have been very fruitful, for in three weeks after the brother's death, on the petition of the widow a daughter was placed on the list of the Girls' School candidates for next election, and came before the General Committee of that institution on the 28th of January.

The motion was carried amidst great cheering.

The reports of the Board of General Purposes and of the Colonial Board given in our last edition were then agreed to, as was also the report of Bro. R. P. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge accounts.

Bro. J. H. Wynne, P.M. 554, moved—"That this Grand Lodge do order to be given from the Fund of Benevolence the sum of £5 to each unsuccessful candidate at the next general election for annuitants in 1875 for old men and women belonging to the Craft of Freemasons."

Bro. George Lambert seconded the motion, and said that if this were done, Grand Lodge would merely be following in the wake of the great metropolitan charities.

Bro. J. B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes, in the absence of Grand Registrar, pointed out that it could not be done, as the Book of Constitutions provided how the Fund of Benevolence was to be applied.

Another brother thought that if the motion were carried, it would be likely to encourage a great many poor brethren and widows to put themselves forward as candidates for the sake of getting the £5.

Bro. John Havers said the Book of Constitutions precluded the motion being carried. The brethren were very charitable and good, but he was afraid if they adopted Bro. Wynne's suggestion, they would be offering a premium to the needy to apply.

The Acting G.M.: I am of opinion that this motion is out of order. Putting aside the general inadvisability—I do not think that is too strong a word—of passing a law which would simply form an inducement to any poor person who was a Mason in the United Kingdom, to have a try for £5. I hold that under the Book of Constitutions, this Grand Lodge ought not, and cannot interfere in the present instance, with the management of the Fund of Benevolence, according to the statement made by my two brethren on my right hand on the dais (Bro. Monckton and Bro. Havers), and therefore I will not put this motion to the vote.

Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, moved "That the sum of £100 be voted from the funds of Grand Lodge towards the fund now being raised for the purpose of endowing the Freemasons' Lifeboat, stationed at North Berwick in 1872."

Bro. Brackstone Baker seconded the motion, although he was generally opposed to these promiscuous grants. Still, he said, there was a peculiar popularity about lifeboats, and there were scarcely any wrecks took place in which some Freemason was not among the crew or passengers.

Bro. Havers asked Bro. Constable whether it was not the fact that if a lifeboat was presented to the National Lifeboat Institution they did not undertake the cost of keeping it up. He was strongly in favour of lifeboats, but he would like to know this before he voted on the motion. Bro. Brackstone Baker's argument was a good one as to Freemasons being wrecked if they were all wrecked at North Berwick. (A laugh.) It was one thing also to build up a charity and leave our successors to keep it up, and another thing to found and endow a charity. If the present lifeboat in twenty years were worn out, it might be safely left to the generosity of future brethren to build another. He would move that the question be adjourned.

Bro. Constable replied that Bro. Havers was correctly informed that the National Life Boat Institution undertook the cost of all lifeboats presented to them. But societies less known and less popular than Freemasonry supported their own lifeboats, and why should not Freemasons. If the Craft was willing to raise £1300, Grand Lodge he thought might grant the other £100.

Bro. F. Binckes moved a rider to Bro. Constable's motion—"provided that the sum of £1300, required to furnish the endowment for the lifeboat, be contributed by members of the Craft"—thinking that it would stimulate the Craft at large to raise the £1300 required.

Bro. John Havers observed that having received from the mover of the resolution a reply to his question, to the effect that the National Lifeboat Institution took upon themselves the whole cost and charge of maintaining lifeboats presented to them, he thought Grand Lodge would be doing a work of supererogation by contributing towards an endowment of the Freemasons' Lifeboat. He would withdraw his motion for adjourning the question, and he hoped that Grand Lodge would negative the resolution. Bro. Constable might, on a future occasion move his resolution, with Bro. Binckes's rider; but he thought that instead of giving this £100 for the purpose named in the motion, they had better subscribe the money to build a new lifeboat.

Bro. Griffiths Smith, W.M. 569, seconded Bro. Binckes's rider.

After a few words from the Grand Treasurer, the purport of which could not be gathered for the noise created by brethren leaving Grand Lodge, a division was taken, when the motion and rider were lost by 115 against 99 votes.

Grand Lodge was then closed formally, and adjourned.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. J. BALL, No. 670.—On Thursday evening, the 25th ult., Bro. Joseph Ball, No. 670, was presented, at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, with an address and testimonial, in recognition of his services on behalf of Protestant principles, and also in the cause of the ratepayers on several occasions. The testimonial consisted of an elegant silver service and address, valued at £200.

Bro. Staveley Hill, M.P., has been appointed Counsel at the Admiralty and Judge Advocate of the Fleet, in the room of Mr. Huddleston.

AN ALBERT EDWARD COMMEMORATION MEDAL.

Though we are quite alive to the danger of Masonic decorations, and are not among those who make our Freemasonry depend, as some one has harshly said we do, on the "jewels" we "wear," or on the "dinners" we "eat," yet we think that the suggestion of one of our correspondents is worthy, at any rate, some little consideration by our Masonic authorities. Indeed, we fear that some of our readers may think us rather rash when we say that we have long held that every lodge might have, on the payment of distinct fees, a lodge jewel, approved of by the central authority. The increase to our funds would be very great indeed, and the "esprit de corps" of our lodges would be very much enhanced. But be this as it may, we quite think that the idea of our correspondent is a good one in itself, and deserves the attention of those who have a voice in such matters amongst us. For no one can deny, that it was at a great crisis in our history when our Royal Grand Master came to the rescue. Our universal fraternity was in a state, at any rate, of considerable depression at the untoward state of affairs, when we were all cheered by the announcement, not only that Grand Lodge in accordance with our Book of Constitutions, had offered the presidency of the Craft to the Past Grand Master, but that he had accepted the offer with readiness and cheerfulness. Under these circumstances, and bearing in mind the unchangeable loyalty of our Masonic Fraternity, the installation of our Grand Master will be assuredly not only an "Alba Dies" to English Freemasonry, but one to be long remembered by all of the existing generation of Freemasons, as well as by those yet to be born. We therefore venture to express a humble opinion, that a Masonic medal, commemorative of our Royal Grand Master's Installation, would be truly welcomed by our zealous brotherhood. We think, too, that if the matter is managed on business principles, the Order may obtain much financial benefit from the institution of an Albert Edward Masonic jewel. We are of course aware that an objection may be made, that no authority exists in the Book of Constitutions for any such permission, though at the same time, as is well known, lodges have been authorized, by the Duke of Sussex especially as Grand Master, to establish lodge jewels. Indeed we are of opinion that there is nothing in the provision of the Book of Constitutions about honorary jewels to prevent any such authority being given, provided that the jewel is made to symbolize one of the degrees recognized by the Grand Lodge. We throw out these suggestions in all deference for the consideration of the "chief rulers" of the Craft, and we can honestly say that they are not dictated by any idle love of garish show or merely ornamental decoration, but from a sincere appreciation of Freemasonry, zealous attachment to our English Order, and much of loyal devotion to our royal and august Grand Master.

THE HIGH GRADES.

The historical investigations of late years have not confirmed the somewhat hasty claims often made by what are popularly termed the High Grades, to reality of perpetuation, or antiquity of existence. They are all, it is pretty clear, of 18th century formation. We are speaking now of those which have long been familiar alike to their devoted "alumni," and to the Masonic student. The Templars, it is quite clear, as Præd sang of old, "have never crossed the wave, sir." The Knights of St. John have no connection with Rhodes or Malta. The Knights of Constantine are a Masonic revival of an obsolete Order, and the Rose Croix have nothing in common with the hermetic brotherhood of the "Rose Crucis." These are all familiar grades, but of Bro. Yarker's startling list alike of imagination and nomenclature we know nothing, as in truth nothing can be known. But though the antiquity of the High Grades is now unobtainable, their position is one of increasing importance, and their value to their associates is, we think, incontestable. We entirely deprecate two opposing views of the High Grades, prevalent amongst Freemasons, which, we think, are neither tenable nor tolerant. There are those, for instance, who affect to speak in harsh tones of the High Grades, and denounce them, almost as apostates to the principles of Freemasonry. Now we are of opinion that all such criticisms and all such judgments are alike unjustifiable and unmasonic in the highest degree. We lay it down without hesitation, as an axiom of Masonic teaching, that whatever may be the merit and greatness of the Craft system in our eyes, we have no right whatever to say to others, "thus far shalt thou go, and no farther," neither have we any authority to condemn them, if they even accept the principles and teaching of a more limited fraternity, even while they continue to be Craftsmen. There may be a scintilla of inconsistency apparent in such a position, but if there is one principle more sacred than another in Freemasonry, it is the inalienable right of private judgment, and the sanctity of the individual opinion, and the personal conscience. Because A does not see how these apparently antagonistic views are to be reconciled, it does not follow that B cannot and does not see, and A has no right to impose on B, as an objective truth, what may be after all only his own subjective idiosyncrasy. Unless Masonic toleration be a "myth," we must admit that B has as much right to his opinion as A, and that we have no right to condemn B, because he does not look at things through the same coloured spectacles as A does. If these, our premises, are correct, and we think they are, the conclusion of the whole matter is that there is room in the world alike for High grades and Craft degrees. As a general rule, those who form the bulk of the high grades are Craftsmen "ab origine," and some, as we know, are zealous Craftsmen, even while fervent Templars or active Knights of Constantine. Why then should we wish to keep up an antagonism between those who have much in common, and can associate together in many Masonic works, though on one point they must agree to differ? We think, that the tone and temper of those who are always attacking the High Grades amongst us is much to be deprecated on the true principles of Masonic toleration, and that whatever may be our individual opinion of their limited principles of action and cohesion, as opposed to our own, we should ever endeavour to recognise their liberty of organization, and the great respectability and private worth of those who are affiliated to them. So too, we do object to those who sometimes like to look on the High Grades as something superior to the Craft degrees. There are some enthusiastic High Grade advocates and adepts, who often overstep the bounds of what is accurate in this respect. In their zeal to magnify their own grades they deprecate the good old-fashioned Craft degrees. A very great mistake. For whatever may be their merits to their own initiates, the Craft degrees stand on an entirely distinct and unassailable basis. They are in fact the "substratum" of every known philosophic, eclectic, or knightly system in the world; they exist from "time immemorial," they are seen through the lapse of ages, and the onward progress of human life, alike certain and precise, both in their individuality and constitution. The great principle they now embody, and which, more or less, they have ever embodied, is, that of universal Freemasonry, and independent of all other grades, they neither ask for tolerance or favour; they make up the "platform" on which all the Craft Grand Lodges, and all the symbolical Freemasonry of the world, can assemble and fraternise. But while we say all this in deprecation of hasty statements and unwise pretensions, we can sympathize and do sympathize with those many good men and true, though we do not belong to them, who compose the High Grades. Many of them we have worked with in happy Craft Lodge meetings, many we know to be elevated in mind, and a credit to the Order they belong to, and we fully recognise, once for all, their right to enter such associations if external to Craft Masonry, believing alike that they find good to themselves, and do good to others, both in the Templar Preceptory, and in the Rose Croix Chapter.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS
No. IV.

The East, that favoured region of legend and romance, has long been looked upon as the birthplace of Freemasonry, and not without reason. Our oldest legends take us back to Solomon's Temple, and we yet see no reason to discredit the old traditions of our Order, which are neither a priori impossible, or historically improbable. Had Masonic writers stopped here, though some profane critics might have objected, they could not very seriously complain of this avowal and persuasion of our ancient brotherhood. If we cannot prove its actuality, no one can disprove its possibility, and whether some may think it a mere fable of the past or not, matters but little, it is the long established belief, it is the venerable tradition of Freemasonry. But some writers have gone further than this, and have involved themselves in difficulties not a few, and discussions which are interminable. We say nothing to-day of the early annals of Anderson, or the bold statements of Oliver. They are based on the ancient legends of the Craft, and they but put into readable English, without any doubt or critical analysis what the old constitutions in verse and prose so continuously repeat. But other views have been propounded as to the early origin of Freemasonry. 1.—There are those for instance, who look to Egypt as the cradle of our accepted brotherhood. 2.—There are some who find its origin in the mysteries.—3. And once more there are many who like to trace back Freemasonry to the Dionysian Artificers, and thence to the building colleges at Rome, and the Craft Guilds of the Anglo Saxons. But these enquiries and researches necessarily lead on to others, and the farther we dig down into the dust-heap of ages, the more arduous becomes our undertaking, the more uncertain is the light of actual history, much more of simple tradition. Let us face the difficulty boldly, and see what it is we are seeking to discover. So far as we can yet speak positively on such a subject, we think it may be said that we have distinct traces of Roman sodalities with much resemblance to our organization previous to the fall of Rome, and that we have in France and Germany, and England, indigenous institutions, which, like our Anglo-Saxon Craft Guilds, equally point to a Roman origin. If we assume for the moment that our present speculative Order is the lineal descendant of the operative sodalities, we have this one fact to explain, how do we account for its Hebrew colouring? It is a question in itself of very great importance. True it is that in early and mediæval times the guilds were essentially Christian, but yet the Masonic mark was all but identically the same, allowing for natural development or local usages, in lands whether Christian or non-Christian. Now, it has been said that we may trace Freemasonry back to Egypt, that the occult system of Egypt was preserved by the Jews under Moses, and that there is no difficulty in understanding the existence of a confraternity in the time of King Solomon. Others, mindful of the real difficulties of the case, have, like our lamented Bro. S. Barton Wilson, disassociated the Egyptian system from the Jews, and made Freemasonry a secret system, which had adapted itself to various nations and successive ages, but took its rise in Egypt. A class of writers have also tried to make the mysteries the prototypes of Freemasonry, but Oliver, who saw "where the shoe pinched," to use a familiar proverb, was forced to have recourse to the serious alternative of true and spurious mysteries. A third class has found in the Dionysiacs the precursors of Freemasonry, and have taken Freemasonry from Egypt and Greece and the Holy Land to Rome, and thence to ourselves. Now a good deal may be said for all these theories, but the truth, we fancy, lies in the midst of them all. Egypt had a secret system, and the artificers had a secret organization. The mysteries preserved primæval truth if overlaid with superstitious fables and disgraced by unpardonable excesses, and the Dionysiacs had a secret order, and admitted among themselves speculative Masons, that is, men of rank and wealth. But from not one of these sources in particular did Freemasonry spring; it was a compound of all. The Egyptians, and the Tyrians, and the Etruscans, and to some extent the Greeks, were the great builders of antiquity, and the marks of their buildings were originally almost the same, and constituted a sort of technical language, which the initiated knew everywhere. The Jews received the knowledge of the arts from Egypt, and worked side by side with the Tyrians even in the building of the temple of the one true God; and, as far as we know, indeed we believe there is no doubt on the subject, the marks they all use are very nearly the same. Some writers seem to wish to discard the building guilds altogether, and work out a sort of occult society, which has existed for long centuries substantially the same. Such a view of Masonic working we believe to be a "chimera of chimeras," and that nothing is left for us, on the strict grounds of cause and effect, of historical truth and evidential certainty, but the simpler and perhaps less palatable reality of a handicraft fraternity, bound together by a secret system of teaching, and of symbols, and of recognition.

MASONIC EXAGGERATION.

Freemasonry, though admittedly a great institution, is yet mortal, and Freemasons, however excellent, per se, are not exempt from the foibles of humanity. Somebody has said that man is a "swaggering animal," and the delight of being thought greater "swells" than others; is not confined to the young or the underbred. Indeed we fear that there is a tendency, a growing tendency, amongst Freemasons, to go in, as they say across the Atlantic, for "high falutin," and for a "considerable amount of Bunkum." As regards Freemasonry, whether it be in new theories or strange assertions, whether it be in some very recondite teaching or wondrous mysteries, whether it be in the startling appearance of some new, if unpronounceable degree, there is at this moment amongst us a great deal of "tall talk," and not a little amount of rubbish. We say nothing now of the supposed infallible teaching of Masonic history, which some seem to like to claim for themselves; we can afford to be very tolerant of all dabblers in Masonic Archæology and antiquarian researches, neither do we even complain of those who refuse to hear two sides of a question, and resolute in their own happy absence of critical synopsis, look on themselves as alone right and on anybody else as wrong, utterly, irremediably wrong. To none of these things do we object, as they have existed and always will exist among men and Masons. Such are the idiosyncracies of our limited intellect. But what we do deprecate, and what we do distinctly disavow is, the assumption not only that "non vixere fortes ante Agamemnona," but that this person or that person, this coterie or that set of associates, are all together not only the "virtuousest, the discreetest, the truest, and the best," but that they are far above the "canaille" of Freemasonry. To hear some of our brethren talk "ore rotundo," to read their lucubrations, or to be bored by their vapid allocutions, is to believe that they have a "patent" for all that Masonic knowledge can impart, or that Masonic literature can disseminate. Until they throw light on the dark and intricate maze of Masonic History or Archæology, nothing was known, nothing had been elucidated worthy of the name of Masonic science, or fitting to be termed Masonic exposition. But at their appearance on the scene, all is clear and easy. The knotty points of olden controversy, the debatable question of ancient warfare, the legends, the anachronisms, the doubts of the past, all vanish and yield to the dogmas of unhesitating assertion, and to the elaborate announcements of pretentious pomposity. The truth is, that, like many "novi homines" here and there, in this good world of ours, this modern school is but imitating the practice of their mundane prototypes, in successive ages of the world. Other men have laboured, and they have entered into their labours, they calmly appropriate, without even the expression of thanks, what has been carefully worked out for them and for Freemasons, by a little band of modest students, whose labours are unappreciated, and whose names are scarcely known. Like some other ingenious "citizens of the world," they have a very imperfect sense of the difference existing between "meum and tuum," and so they "crib," without hesitation, the thoughts, the theories, the imaginations, the facts of others, and announce them, and treat them as original discoveries of their own. To read their essays, to wade through their laboured sentences, we should be disposed to imagine that they had made some special discoveries in the subject on which they treat, or that they referred for the first time to matters on which no one had written ever before. Now we all know how very easy it is to get up a little second-hand information, and yet profess and appear to be original. The German and American encyclopædia will furnish much available matter, while the forgotten contributions of other days, and the curious pamphlets of a bygone generation, will soon supply a ready amount of seemingly original "padding," in the hands of the skilful manipulator. But we should always remember that much of the "pabulum lathomicum," now reproduced with an air of intense importance, has long since been repudiated by our modern critical Masonic school. We do not want the history of Freemasonry to be again dished up to us in all the flowery language and doubtful illustrations which pleased our forefathers. The enveloping of the plain facts of simple Masonic history, in all the hyperbole of oriental myth, in the untenable assumptions of unhistorical assertion, in obsolete theories, and in hopeless anachronisms, will not serve the cause of Masonic truth, but rather will discredit our Order in the eyes of the careful, the critical, and the intelligent. Let us beware then against that "Sciolism," which appears to be raising its head amongst us again. Let us at once reject any authority whatever which does not rest either on evidential accuracy, or incontestable documents, or is based at any rate on the perpetuated testimony of ancient traditions, common to our Order. It would indeed be a "reductio ad absurdum," a very trying dilemma for the Masonic student, a very ungrateful return for the patient labours of a few zealous Masonic archæologists, if there were to arise amongst us a school without any pretention, either to independent research or original collation of documents, but which yet by the loudness of its assertions, the dogmatism of its statement, and the "exaggeration" of its verbose lectures, should seek to give us instead of the careful result of actual analysis and laborious investigation, the exploded fallacies of a defunct school of Masonic teaching, and a most unreliable system of Masonic archæology.

AMERICAN FREEMASONRY.

We have read with much pleasure the following interesting paragraph, in our valued contemporary, The Philadelphia Keystone, of February 3rd:—"Bro. William Baird has just made a magnificent gift to Frankfort Lodge, No. 292, of this city, in the shape of a fine building for a Masonic Hall. It is situated on Green-street, near Frankfort-road, and cost 35,000 dollars. Here is a noble example, worth following." And we have noted this passage of our transatlantic friends, because it represents well one among many noteworthy features of the onward career of American Freemasonry. Indeed, we fancy that the real condition of the brotherhood in the United States is very little known, and certainly not realised by our English Craft. We have seen from time to time statements, arising either from recklessness or ignorance, very unfair to the American brotherhood, and not to say the truth, very Masonic either in the letter or in the spirit. There appears to be a sort of idea prevalent, especially amongst those whose acquaintance with American Freemasonry is only "skin-deep" as we say, that the confraternity in the United States is given up to pomp and parade, to show and festival. We quote, however, the paragraph from the Keystone to demonstrate how wisely our brethren far away are imitating and developing our home movement for the Masonic hall and dedicated lodge-room. If this were all they did, they would no doubt be blameable, but we must observe that the amount spent by the American Freemason in fraternal charity is little known by some of us, or the earnestness and thoroughness of their Masonic benevolence fully understood. California is a young Grand Lodge, but if her work be a sample, and we think it may be, then, taking the thirty-six or thirty-seven Grand Lodges in America, which are said to exist there, we shall find that the "tottle" of American Masonic benevolence is very great. The California Grand Lodge expended fifteen thousand pounds in sixteen years, and if the other American Grand Lodges have given anything like that amount on the average, we shall have a sum not far short of half-a-million at the least, distributed by Freemasons in America in sixteen years. And when we add to this, the orphanages and Masonic homes rising rapidly in all parts of America, under the various Grand Lodges and the sums raised for national disasters, we have a condition of affairs and a reality of work of which we Freemasons may well feel proud. The Craft in America is a very self-supporting, independent body of men, and everything we read of them day by day convinces us how much in earnest they are, and how, for the great part, they honestly seek to practice what they openly profess. There are imperfections in all human institutions, there are defects in every system, but allowing, as we are bound to do for the divergencies of sometimes conflicting precedents, and multitudinous jurisdictions, the more we understand how the system is worked and is working in America, the prouder we are of Freemasonry, the more respect we feel for the American Freemasons.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to offer a few remarks on the proposition published in your correspondence of Feb. 17th, that at the forthcoming installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales those brethren who are entitled shall appear in court dress.

To my mind the introduction, in a Masonic meeting, provided the members come decently attired in evening costume, of any other distinctions of dress than those gained in Masonry, is altogether opposed to its true spirit, which assumes that for the purposes of Freemasonry all men meet in its assemblies on the level.

The courtly orders or honours worthily won on battlefields are the just pride of their possessors. Freemasonry, I take it, is for the world in general, and its laurels intended for the triumphs of charity, moral example, and brotherly love.

"An Old P.M." writes, "those who are entitled to court dress can scarcely appear before royalty without wearing it." I think when he penned this, he could have formed but a slight conception of the high, noble and generous character of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, or have reflected that our Grand Master has a mind to comprehend the universe, and has travelled America and the civilized countries of Europe.

The tribute to the Prince will not be that a few appear in court dress, but that the thousands of Masons who attend to do him homage will represent all ranks of society.

The installation of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will serve a far higher purpose than that of presenting a grand spectacle to the privileged few.

From east to west, from north to south, over the whole surface of the globe, wherever Masons assemble, in all the various tongues of the earth, will it be told how a Prince of the Blood Royal of England is seated in the chair of King Solomon.

The moral effect of the heir to the mightiest empire the world e'er saw, linking his hand in brotherly love with the humblest of its subjects, the stimulus Freemasonry will receive from this event, will be the work of the historian to relate.

But let him not also have to chronicle that on that day were introduced class distinctions foreign to Freemasonry, and calculated at no distant period to undermine that brotherly love which is its foundation.

The force of example is very great, and were court dress worn on this occasion, attempts would be made in our colonies to feebly imitate the proceedings. In small communities an element of discord would be introduced, which could not fail to have a very disastrous effect on the welfare of the Order.

Men who attended the levées of the Viceroy or Governor would no doubt, consider themselves entitled to wear court dress in lodge; small coteries would thus be formed in the lodges of those who did, and those who did not, wear court dress; jealousies and bitter feelings would be engendered, and the Order would undoubtedly suffer. I think I have made out a clear case why court dress should not be introduced into Masonry, and I trust the brethren in charge of the arrangements for the installation of his Royal Highness, will, instead of making the order desired by "an Old P.M.," distinctly state that it is not to be worn. No one can esteem and respect more highly than I do, the conscientious efforts of the many distinguished noblemen who are such bright examples in Masonry, and who so worthily adorn the Order. I think if they were personally consulted they would be found to rest their claims on something higher than the court clothing they may be entitled to assume, and they would be the last to wish so to appear in a Masonic Lodge. By all means let us give our Royal Grand Master a right loyal, hearty and Masonic welcome, that will assure him he reigns over the hearts of the Masons of this country, as well as over the lodges; but let us take care not to infringe on the ancient landmarks of that which was intended for all men and all time.

I am, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,

EDWARD JOHN WALFORD.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your impression of to-day, I notice two letters on the above subject signed "Ich Dien," and "An Old P.M.," both of which will I hope receive from "the powers that be," the consideration their importance demands.

The installation of a M.W.G.M. is not a matter of every day occurrence, and when such an event happens too much prominence cannot be attached to it. But in this instance the proceeding is of more than ordinary interest. Not only are we about to install a M.W.G.M., but we are going to place at our head a Prince of the Blood Royal, the heir to the most powerful throne in the world, and this circumstance will of itself be sufficient to give such an impetus to Freemasonry as cannot fail to make a lasting impression on the future of the Craft. Who will not feel it an honour in days to come to say, "I was present when the Prince of Wales was installed as Grand Master," and who would not point with pride to a medal commemorative of such an auspicious occasion. Then let us have a medal by all means, but I would not restrict it, as "Ich Dien" does, to those only who attend the Albert Hall on the 28th of April. Many W.M.'s, however desirous they may be of being present, will be prevented from some cause or other of putting in an appearance, and assuming that such a medal be granted it would be manifestly unfair to deprive them, as representatives of their respective lodges, of an honour conferred on their more fortunate compeers. My suggestion then is that, in addition to every brother present at the ceremony, every W.M. for the time being, whether, at home or abroad, should be entitled to the distinction,

"Ich Dien" asks you to write "a short leader on the subject," and I hope you will do so in an early number, in order that it may be thoroughly ventilated.

With regard to the question of dress, to which "An Old P.M." alludes, it must be remembered that, comparatively speaking, very few of those who will claim admission on the day in question will be entitled to the honour of appearing in court dress, while it is scarcely necessary to remind them that evening dress will be indispensable. I cordially endorse the opinion of "An Old P.M.," that those who can affect court dress, or the uniform of the army, navy, or reserve forces should be requested to do so, and I trust that an order to this effect will be duly issued.

I remain, yours truly and fraternally,

I. J. HOOPER WILKINS, W.M. 73, &c.

Westbury Lodge, Eltham, Kent, 27th Feb. 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I cannot agree with the suggestion of your correspondent "T. C. W.," and am of opinion that the foundation of scholarships would be more in accordance with the principles of the Craft. Should this not be acceptable, then a sufficient sum should be raised to secure the election of the 147 candidates now upon the lists for the forthcoming elections of our charities; this would indeed be a lasting commemoration of the accession of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master. More tinsel is not required; we have already too much.

I am, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,

JOHN CONSTABLE, P.M. 185.

THE ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is with great pleasure I see this subject is being taken up, its importance is so patent to all true Masons that it is to be hoped that now the ball has been set rolling, it will not be allowed to settle down until Grand Lodge has, Atlas-like, taken it upon its shoulders. Your correspondent, "A Sincere Mason," would seem to infer that Masons should possess great powers of discernment, if, as he says, they are to judge whether this man, or that man "will be capable of appreciating the beauties of Freemasonry," this, in my opinion, is beyond our power. My experience may be limited, but I have seen candidates recommended, privately, as being "just the men," and such men proving, so far as Freemasonry is concerned, miserable failures. I would ask, how is a man to impress his Masonic friends that the beauties of Freemasonry will make an impression upon his mind? All we can do, and the real point to aim at, is, only admitting into our ranks men of the highest order of intellect. Depend upon it, sir, that the greater the intellectual capacity, the greater the appreciation of Freemasonry. So far as holding lodges at public-houses I agree entirely with "A Sincere Mason." Nothing can be more derogatory to our glorious and noble Order, than for lodges to meet in such places now-a-days. It is to be hoped that the brethren will see this in its proper light, and that ere many years it will pass into tradition that "once upon a time" lodges were even held in taverns, &c. There is one system I have seen, which to a certain extent prevents unsuitable men being admitted, it is as follows, for instance: at January Lodge notice is given that at the next regular lodge, Mr. So-and-so will be proposed; this is entered on the minutes, and such notice is on all the summonses for February Lodge, when the gentleman is duly proposed and seconded, this is again entered on the minutes, and issued on the summons for March Lodge, when the ballot is taken. The Provincial Lodge of Yorkshire made bye-laws and issued certain forms for this purpose.

A man applies in the town where he resides, to be admitted into Freemasonry, and he is, perhaps for excellent reasons, refused; he applies elsewhere, and probably being known casually, he is admitted; so by our loose system,—had we better not say "our want of system?"—he is enabled to snap his fingers in the face of those who refused him, and who would not (in some cases) associate with the man under any circumstances. To look at things in their most cheerful light, we may ask ourselves if Masonry may not do such men some good. Never, for a man who would thus be admitted surreptitiously, feels the mistake, and what might have engendered love, engenders hate, or at least ridicule, so doing incalculable harm in lowering the standard and dignity of our institution. It is idle to conceal that such cases as these are of daily occurrence. What we must do is, not to let this subject drop until Grand Lodge affords us that protection, we must sooner or later possess. Why is it that the so-called higher degrees are so fashionable? The reason is obvious—it is the re-refining influence of the ballot; it is, so to speak, a process of distilling; once in, a member instinctively feels this, and once having felt it, never fails to guard his privileges.

Grand Lodge must (ultimately) make it imperative on all its lodges, that no person shall be initiated, nor a brother affiliated, in any place other than where he resides, without such lodge making certain enquiries, and such questions and the answers thereto shall be read aloud in open lodge, previous to the ballot being taken for such candidate, and a full report entered on the minutes, and further, such initiation or affiliation shall not be allowed (under these circumstances), until the next regular lodge, and not then, until the minutes shall have been duly read and confirmed.

Further, if the person seeking initiation or affiliation resides in a town or place where there is more than one lodge, it shall be incumbent on the lodge wherein he seeks admission to make enquiries at each and every lodge at or near (within a given radius) where the candidate resides.

Such regulations as these would soon render the disgraces the Craft has suffered an impossibility; for any lodge so neglecting should be liable to forfeiture of its warrant. For further protection, when applying for a Grand Lodge certificate for a candidate so admitted, such application should be accompanied by a special declaration, signed by the W.M. and Secretary, to the effect that the special Bye-Laws herein provided had been scrupulously adhered to. When this subject came before Grand Lodge, it would be a favourable opportunity to suggest the raising of the minimum fee to, say five guineas, inclusive of registration and certificate fees, and for a joining member three guineas, inclusive. I trust able hands will tackle this important subject, and you, amongst them, give us the benefit of your powerful pen, to keep up the cry. In conclusion, I scarcely think it necessary to make any apologies for trespassing on your valuable space, for I think I express the sentiments of all your subscribers when I say that we English Masons feel that for such high purposes as these we are proud and happy in possessing such an organ as the Freemason.

I am, fraternally yours,

"AD REM."

[We are very happy in being able to print the above interesting communication, but the pressure on our space prevents us reproducing the two printed forms, and which we think are not necessary to our brother's lucid argument. We have written privately.—Ed.]

MR. BRADLAUGH AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in the Freemason for Feb. 20th an account of the visit of the King of the Sandwich Islands to the Masonic Temple, New York, U.S.A., I have lately had forwarded to me another account of a reception still more extraordinary in the annals of American Freemasonry. Mr. Bradlaugh, of London, is now visiting America, and in the National Reformer gives weekly a sketch of his tour through the country. In his fourteenth letter is the following:—

"The Columbian Lodge of Freemasons had invited me to be their guest on the occasion of the reception tendered to David Kalakua, King of the Sandwich Islands and his suite. The Sandwich Islands are not precisely the largest in the world; but King Kalakua is the first live king who has made a tour in America, and is therefore a notability. In addition, malicious people say that there is a disposition to annex the Sandwich Islands to the United States, just as the Fiji Islands have been recently annexed to England.

"On reaching the Boston and Maine Depot I found my sleigh awaiting me, and it soon went scurrying and splashing through the snow and ice, with the hail pelting down furiously. At last I was safely deposited at the door of the very fine Masonic Temple in Tremont-street. On entering the lodge, under escort of the courteous Marshall, Bro. R. C. Nichols, I found more than three hundred members present, including Past Masters of other lodges, and was assigned a seat in the east by the Worshipful Master. The business of the lodge, when I entered, was the raising a Fellow-Craftsman to the Master's degree, and I had a full opportunity, for about three quarters of an hour, of studying King Kalakua, whose chair was next to mine on my left. He is a stout, lusty-looking man, with a fairly-fine broad forehead, but with the thick lips and nostrils and coloured skin, more especially found in the negro race. He was accompanied by Governors Dominis and Kapena, the first an American, the second Sandwich-born, who were seated on my right. During an interval of relaxation I was presented to his Majesty, to whom I simply bowed, just touching his hand, which he held towards me, no words being used by either; after the lodge was closed, we all ascended to the banquet hall."

"The Boston Advertiser says:—

"The reception to the King by Columbian Lodge of Masons was an imposing affair. Over 300 persons were entertained, including the Deputy Grand Master of the Boston district, with most of the deputies of the State (all in full regalia), and all the Masters of the Masons' Association. The stairways and entrance halls were crowded with persons endeavouring to gain a look at the brilliant scene. The banquet was the finest ever set in the temple, and the tables were freighted with the richest delicacies, silver ware, floral adornings, ornamental pieces of confections bearing the flags of the Sandwich Islands and the United States, &c. The banquet was concluded soon after midnight, the King and suite expressing themselves highly delighted with the entertainment and attentions they had received. The Worshipful Master, William J. Stevens, presided, and speeches, interspersed with music, were made by Dr. Winslow Lewis, John T. Hurd, Mr. Bradlaugh, the King and the two members of his suite, Lieutenant George M. Totten, U.S.N., J. B. Smith, William D. Coolidge, Joshua A. Stearus, George G. Smith, and by others.

"When called on to speak, in response to my health, proposed by the Worshipful Master, I was received with a very warm greeting, and determined at least to try to say something that deserved it. The King, who had briefly spoken before I rose, had said that Masonry knew no distinctions of colour, referring to the presence of himself, Governor Kapena, and the coloured Junior Warden of Adelphi Lodge, J. B. Smith. Waiting till the cheering had subsided, I said: 'Worshipful Master and Brethren,—No greater evidence may be found of the equality amongst us than is given in this presence. That true Freemasonry knows no distinction of colour has been affirmed in words by our brother opposite, and is demonstrated in fact by his presence, and that of our honoured brother, and my good friend, from Adelphi Lodge, who stands beside me. That true Freemasonry knows no distinctions of class is here made manifest by the putting myself and our brother from the Hawaiian Isles on a level at our work, at the same table at our feast; as that under the roof of this temple there is penalty for no shade of thought, so that it be honest; for no utterance of opinion, so that it be fraternal and earnest. The majesty that Freemasonry delights to honour is the majesty of earnest manhood, the kingship which comes of effort, not of birth, the heroism of endeavour for human progress. Speaking for an orient which has on its muster-rolls many uncrowned kings, for a lodge which has had amongst its brethren Joseph Mazzini, Joseph Garibaldi, and Louis Blanc, I venture to hope that all our brethren will understand that true Masonic work is in the deliverance of humankind from poverty, ignorance, and superstition. We who claim to be Freemasons should seek so to use our trowels on the steps of the world's upward pathway, that the weak and less sure-footed may climb more easily the happiness that all humanity always seeks, but from want of light or strength, does not always find.' At the conclusion of my speech, which lasted about ten minutes, the whole of those present gave me Masonic honours, and then three cheers and 'a tiger'; and then the King, rising again, proposed a toast, 'The Cause of Humanity,' and said to me: 'We have gone through the form of shaking hands before; will you shake hands with me really now, on the ground of our common humanity?' and we then shook hands amidst much cheering. Dr. Winslow Lewis, who is an eminent and liberal physician in Boston, made a most humorous address. The old gentleman is evidently highly esteemed in Boston, and his reference to Mastai Ferretti, the excommunicated Mason, who is known as Pio Nono, was warmly greeted. Governor Dominis created some pleasantry by inviting us to visit the Sandwich Islands, there being evidently a strong under-current of opinion that "roast missionary" still figured on the hotel bills of fare in those sea-girt countries."

Is not the foregoing remarkable, especially in a country containing Grand Lodges, who do not consider anyone eligible who denies the inspiration of the scripture. I have heard that Mr. Bradlaugh is an atheist. Can it be so, and yet for him to be a Mason? This is a matter of great importance, and I feel sure that the readers of the Freemason, as with myself, will be anxious to have the question settled. To what lodge and Grand Lodge does Mr. Bradlaugh belong? Is he an English Freemason or what? I do not desire to refer either to his religious (?) or his political opinions, because as Freemasons we have little to do with either, but surely it should be clearly established that an atheist cannot be a Freemason anywhere.

Mr. Bradlaugh has not only been to New York, but also to Boston, and in the latter city he was present, by special invitation, at a festival of a most remarkable character. In his own terse language, and hearty sympathizing tone, in which we join, the meeting is thus described: A few years ago no coloured men were admitted to the Masonic brotherhood in any part of the United States. Last night was the first case in which a coloured Freemason was elected to be an office bearer in any regular lodge. About eight years ago the St. Andrews Lodge made Joshua B. Smith (Sumner's devoted friend) and six other coloured men Freemasons, with the intent that they might establish a coloured men's lodge. The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, however, did not issue the warrant for such a lodge, and the purpose was abandoned. Joshua B. Smith, who was a Justice of the Peace for Massachusetts, and who had in the interval been elected to the Senate of that state, became a member of the Adelphi Lodge, meeting in South Boston, and yesterday evening he was formally installed as Junior Warden. We say all honour to the Boston Freemasons for so doing, and we thank Mr. Bradlaugh for the information. We would now, however, like to know if the brother mentioned is a deist. If so, his being a Mason is explained. If an atheist, what does it all mean?

REVIRESCO.

THE PUBLIC HOUSE QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read, with interest, several letters in your last number, in reference to some points in the working of our Order, which I have always held to be of vital importance; namely, the holding of meetings of lodges in taverns and public houses—care in the selection of candidates for our privileges—the discontinuance of interest in Masonic proceedings by brethren after they have passed the first chair of their respective lodges and chapters. To these I may add another, which considerable experience has convinced me is a matter well worthy of consideration and legislation by our authorities; that is a provision, that no brother shall be elected to fill the chair until he has proved his competency to perform the duties thereof. Before proceeding to enlarge on these points, allow me to state that I am a Mason of twenty-eight, and a P.M. of twenty-five years' standing, that within a year of my initiation I was able to work all the ceremonies, and very soon after to give the ectures, and have been equally competent in the Arch and Mark Degrees within a short period of my admission to them. For about ten years, from 1857 to 1867, I was a regular correspondent of your predecessor, the "Freemasons' Magazine," generally known under the signature, which I attach to this letter, but since that time, advancing years and other circumstances have led me to restrict myself to local usefulness in the provinces in which I have been successively located, no less than four, and of my exertions in each I can produce documentary evidence.

I happen to possess the Masonic Calendar and Pocket Book for every year from 1857, and the "Freemasons' Magazine" from January, 1859, till its last date, Nov. 4th, 1871. (The last is an answer to the inquiry made by W.J.H. on page 75 of your last number.) I have also the Freemason from its commencement in 1869.

In respect to the holding of lodge meetings in taverns, I have just examined the Calendar for 1850, and find that at that period, 385 lodges in England and Wales met in such places of public resort, and 106, that is about one fourth of the whole number, in Masonic halls, private rooms, or other buildings, not accessible to the public and unconnected with drinking associations. Our indefatigable Masonic historian, Bro. Hughan, has repeatedly expressed to me his opinion as to the desirableness of individual brethren taking up special subjects, and while he adhered mainly to his own, he assigned to me the question of separate places for our meetings, as well as correctness and similarity of ritual; and during the period I have named, I endeavoured to carry out this division of labour, nor do I feel that my efforts were unsuccessful, assisted as they were by those of many others who held the views, and were equally impressed with the importance of the subject. I have now examined the Calendar for last year, and I find that while 533 lodges still adhere to what I deem an objectionable practice; 463 lodges meet in buildings exclusively devoted to Masonic purposes, or, at least, unconnected with such as are licensed as houses of public entertainment, that is, in round numbers, about nine-twentieths. I may mention that there are a very few, perhaps twenty, as to which the place of meeting is not specified; of these I have taken no account on either side. The number 533 is still very large, but the proportion is greatly changed during the last quarter of a century, and a great improvement is manifest. Let us hope that by the year 1900 the adoption of special buildings will be almost universal.

The next point I have mentioned is care in the selection of candidates for Freemasonry. I have seen many cases of neglect on this head, and in some instances have refused to attend meetings of my lodge, while doubtful men were taking the several degrees, and when I have felt that there has been a laxity in instituting rigid inquiry. In some lodges in one province to which I belonged, intermediate meetings of the officers were held, and no candidates were allowed to be proposed without the sanction of the brethren attending those meetings, that is, of those who were more immediately responsible for the good government and welfare of the body.

As to the third point—continued interest in, and regular attendance at the meetings of the lodge on the part of Past Masters—I do not see that there can be any interference with individual action, but in order to show my opinion on the subject, whenever I am called upon to install a W.M., before delivering the three customary addresses at the close of the ceremony, I give a special one to the I.P.M., explaining the Masonic application of his jewel, and enforcing the importance of continued attendance at the meetings of the lodge so long as he continues a member of it.

With respect to the fourth subject, to which I have alluded, I have generally found that when a W.M. has felt himself incompetent to discharge his duties by want of acquaintance with the ritual, he has requested some P.M. to work the ceremonies for him. Indeed I think that every aspirant to the position of W.M. of a lodge, or Principal of a chapter, should be required to prove his competency before election. I am told that this course is sometimes adopted, but I imagine that it is very rare. I am aware that many Masons plead the calls of business and family engagements as an excuse, but I hold that in such case they should not undertake what they know they cannot perform, nor can I understand how they can conscientiously give the necessary pledges on installation.

In the hope that these remarks will tend to forward the views of your other correspondents,

I am, yours fraternally,

H.H.

THE RIGHT OF VISITING LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the letter of Bro. W. I. Adye, in your impression of 20th ult., I must say I was much disappointed at not finding in your last number an answer to this most important question from some brother of acknowledged influence in the Craft. I am unacquainted with "Busy Bee," but I should imagine he has not spent much of his time in flitting from "flower to flower," but on the contrary, has confined himself to the parent hive. It seems to be the general impression of the brethren of this province, inculcated by our provincial rulers in the Craft, that a Mason has a right to visit any lodge of the town in which he resides, by simply proving himself a subscribing member of the Craft, and that an examination at least cannot lawfully be denied when properly demanded. Referring to the "Summary of Ancient Charges," etc., to be read to the Master elect of a lodge prior to his installation. I find the following:—"No. 7. You agree to be courteous to your brother, etc." "No. 8. You promise to respect genuine and true brethren." Now it appears to me that Bro. Adye was not even examined by any member of the Domestic Lodge, but that he was simply informed that he was "in the way." I would ask—"Was that courteous behaviour?" or—"Was it showing respect to the brethren?" I am led to believe that in the "Ancient Charges, at the constitution of a lodge," contained in a M.S. of the Lodge of Antiquity, it is directed—"That every Mason receive and cherish strange fellows when they come over the country, and sett them on worke, if they will worke, as the manner is; that is to say, if the Mason have any mould stone in his place, he shall give him a mould stone and sett him on worke; and if he have none, the Mason shall refresh him with money unto the next lodge."

This appears to me to be explicit as to the right of every Mason to present himself at the door of a strange lodge, and to demand an examination, which, if properly complied with, should suffice to allow of his admission.

Permit me to say that if this right be denied, the foundation of our noble fabric would appear to be built upon sand, for what becomes of our boasted "three grand principles," when one of the chief benefits of our ancient institution is hereby scattered to the wind?

I am, dear sir and brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

F D. MARSDEN, I.P.M. 712,
Prov. Grand Secretary, Lincolnshire.

THE APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the report of the celebration of the 56th anniversary festival of the Apollo Lodge, Oxford, in your last issue, I observe one or two startling announcements, and as we regard Oxford as one of the great founts of knowledge, Masonic and otherwise, I am disposed to ask a question or two. It is stated "there were ten candidates for initiation, who were all admitted to the mysteries of Freemasonry;" this by dispensation, I imagine, although it is not so stated. Was there a dispensation for the closing of the lodge in "ample form?" as described by your correspondent. I am aware Oxford has some Masonic privileges, but do not quite understand this as one of them.

I am induced to notice this statement lest they may mislead.

I am, sir, yours fraternally, AN OLD P.M.

THE STATUS OF PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At line thirteen of my letter on the above subject in your last issue, I am represented as having written that "An Old P.M. seems to me to be correct," instead of "incorrect." The mistake is important, as completely upsetting the intended meaning of my letter.

Yours fraternally, BUSY BEE.

OFFICIAL VISITS TO LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly state in your next edition, the etiquette to be observed in paying official visits to other lodges.

The W.M., officers, and brethren (of the lodge visiting), having entered the lodge and taken their seats, witness the business of the evening. After which the presiding Master rises, and in a few appropriate remarks, acknowledges the honour and pleasure of being visited by lodge (so and so). Then the W.M. (of the lodge visiting) responds.

Now, what I should like to know is, "When the presiding Master is acknowledging the visit, do all the members of his lodge rise and remain standing whilst he speaks? and do the W.M. and brethren (of the lodge visiting) stand at the same time, if so, you will perceive we are all standing at one time. I consider this wrong. That which I think correct, is, whilst the presiding Master welcomes the visiting lodge, the members of his lodge stand (when he has finished speaking of course he and they sit down), then when the W.M. of visiting lodge rises to respond, all the members of same, rise and remain standing with him.

Kindly say whether I am correct; if wrong, state what it should be.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
M.M., Bristol.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE, (No. 1598.)

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A "P.M." has misunderstood the meaning of the words used by Bro. Younghusband at the last meeting of the Royal Standard Lodge, the report of which appeared in your columns of the 20th ult., page 73.

Bro. Younghusband's words were:—"Permit me now, in the name of the Royal Standard Lodge, (No. 1298,) of which you were the founder, as the Consecrating Officer, and first occupant of its chair to present," &c. &c. Bro. Younghusband, having been the Consecrating Officer, of necessity became the chair's first occupier.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CANTERBURY.—UNITED INDUSTRIOUS LODGE (No. 31).—The usual monthly meeting was held on Thursday, the 4th of March last; among the brethren present were Bros. Capt. P. H. Knight, W.M., in the chair, Bros. Coppin, P.M., P. Prov. S.W., acting as S.W.; Dr. Browning, J.W.; Wiltshire, Plant, and Dean, S.D., J.D., and I.G. respectively; Pringher, Tyler. The minutes of the last lodge night were read and confirmed, and on the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. Major Elmsall, it was unanimously resolved that the lodge do record on its minutes its deepest sense of the heavy loss it has sustained by the death of Bro. John Pout, P.M., for twenty-six years one of its members, twenty-four of which he had been appointed Hon. Sec.; and also that a letter be addressed to his widow and family, sympathising with them in their bereavment, and expressing the great sorrow of the lodge at the loss of so good a Mason. Brother Pout was initiated in May, 1848, and from that time up to his death, which occurred on February 22nd, 1875, his signature is absent from the attendance book on twenty-two occasions only. Brother John R. Hall, P.M., P. Prov. Assist. G. Sec., was appointed by the W.M. Hon. Sec., and duly invested with the collar and jewel of his office. A ballot was taken for Dr. W. M. Longhurst, Organist of Canterbury Cathedral, which the W.M. declared unanimous. Some other business was transacted and the lodge adjourned.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 41).—The monthly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, at 7.30 p.m., on Thursday, March 4th. Present—Bros. Clark, W.M.; Major Preston, I.P.M.; Brown, S.W.; Everingham, J.W.; Falkner, Sec.; Wilton, P.M., D.C.; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; Stiles, acting as J.D.; Denham, I.G.; Past Masters Wilcox, Carey, Rubie, Moutrie, and many members of the lodge. By previous arrangement, there were also many visitors: Genl. Doherty, W.M. 906; Simmons, W.M. 53; J. S. Bartrum, W.M. 379; Payne, P.M. 53, and Prov. G. Treas.; Sinnott, P.M. 326; W. Smith, P.M. 53; Dickenson, S.D. 379; Heyward, 906; Yate, 170; Dill, 906; Sumson, 33; W. F. Collins, 53; C. Collins, 53. The lodge having been opened in the first degree, the minutes of the last regular, and also of an emergency meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. mentioned that he had received communications from Bro. Ashley, P.M. and Treasurer, and Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.M., &c., expressive of regret at absence on account of illness. Letters were read from Lodges 370, 906, 446, 285, 261, and from Bro. Else, Prov. G. Secretary, returning thanks for presents of the published history of the Royal Cumberland Lodge, and on the proposition of the Secretary, seconded by the W.M., it was resolved that a copy be sent to the Grand Lodge of England. The W.M. stated that Bro. Major Bousfield, M.P. for Bath, had presented £2 2s. to the lodge for charitable purposes, and proposed that it be supplemented by a grant of £3 3s. from the general fund, with the view of obtaining a Life Governorship in one of the charities. This was seconded by the I.P.M. and carried. The D.C. proposed, and Bro. Wilcox seconded a resolution that the letter of condolence on his domestic bereavment, which had been forwarded to the Pro Grand Master, and also his reply thereto, be entered on the minutes, which was unanimously agreed to. A ballot was taken for Mr. C. W. Rodway, as a candidate for initiation, which having proved favourable, the chair was taken by Bro. Major Preston, who performed the ceremony and gave the charge. Bro. Brown explaining the working tools. Bro. Smith was then examined as to his proficiency, and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and the I.P.M. duly passed the candidate to the rank of F.C., the tools being illustrated by Bro. Birth. The lodge was resumed in the first degree. A vote of thanks to the visitors was passed for their attendance, and acknowledged by the P.M.'s of the respective lodges. Bro. Carey, P.M., proposed by Bro. Major Bousfield as a joining member. The lodge was closed soon after ten o'clock.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—This old and exclusive lodge met for work at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on the 18th ult., when there were present a goodly number of brethren. Bro. Kilphack, who was initiated and passed to the F.C. degree in this lodge last year—but who had been residing in Galatz, now came forward to be raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, when the ceremony was admirably performed by the W.M., Bro. A. D. George—that beautiful hymn "Days and Moments swiftly flying" (No. 376, Hymns Ancient and Modern)—being sung in an adjoining room by Bros. Barber, P.G.O.; Emra Holmes, and George, and adding greatly to the solemnity of the proceedings. Bros. Lieut. Pirie, R.N., and Geo. Elliston were afterwards passed to the second degree, the W.M. effectively performing the more simple ceremonial, and other Masonic business having been transacted, the brethren retired for refreshment, when the customary toasts were given and responded to, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

LION AND LAMB (No. 192).—The last regular meeting of the session was held on Thursday the 4th inst., at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. Bro. George Newman, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. Cobu, S.W., Arkell, J.W., Jones, S.D., Legg, J.D., Rickwood, I.G., J. G. Marsh, P.M., Secretary, Abbott, Troit, Roberts, and Kenning, Past Masters; Bros. Bartholomew, Fisher, Baker, Stubington, Lucas, Bright, Kent, Cann, Alflatt, Stevenson, Cotter, Smale, Davis, Fellowes, and many others. Visitors, Bro. Henry Birdseye, and other five or six brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. then raised and passed several brethren, Messrs. J. Pinder, C. E. Scholes, and T. T. Hampton, were balloted for and initiated; the whole of the work being done by Bro. George Newman, in his usual happy and efficient manner. Bro. George Abbott, I.P.M., proposed, and Bro. F. Troit, seconded, "That in consideration of the onerous duties of the Secretary of the Lion and Lamb Lodge, so ably performed by Bro. J. G. Marsh, P.M., the sum of ten guineas be given out of the Lodge funds towards a suitable testimonial to be presented to him, and that each Brother have an opportunity of subscribing to such testimonial. This being carried unanimously, a committee was then formed to carry out the arrangements. A brother from Exeter was relieved from the charity box fund. The lodge was then closed, after which the brethren supped together, the evening being enlivened by some good singing and recitations by Bros. Scholes, Fellowes, Cann, Marsh, and visitors.

OXFORD.—APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE (No. 357).—On Friday, February 26th, a meeting of this lodge was held for instruction. The W.M. of the lodge, Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., Oxon.; acted as instructor, the officers were filled as follows:—Bros. Gordon Campbell, W.M.; J. S. C. Bodley, S.W.; C. G. Paget, J.W.; W. P. Eversley, S.D.; A. Glencross, J.D.; G. Barker, I.G.; H. S. Butler, Secretary; Bro. Crossacted as candidate, the ceremony of initiation was performed. On Thursday, March 4th, another instruction lodge was held under the mentorship as before. The officers were Bros. J. E. C. Bodley, W.M.; C. G. Paget, S.W.; W. P. Eversley, S.D.; H. S. Butler, S.D.; F. E. Weatherly, J.D.; Stewart, I.G.; Bro. Hedges acted as candidate. The ceremony of passing was performed.

BATH.—LODGE OF HONOUR (No. 379).—At the regular meeting held at the Masonic Hall, at 8 p.m., on Monday, March 8th, there were present Bros. J. S. Bartrum, W.M.; Davis, acting as I.P.M.; Cook, S.W.; H. Gore, J.W.; H. Culliford Hopkins, Sec.; Barber, P.M., and Treasurer; Dickenson, S.D.; Loder, P.M., as J.D.; Leir, I.G.; A. Hunt, P.M., and other members. A return visit from the local lodges was paid by the following:—Bros. Clark, W.M. 41; Simmons, W.M. 53; General Doherty, W.M. 906; Carey, P.M. 41; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43 and 958, and P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire; Major Preston, P.M. 41; Payne, P.M. 53 and P.G. Treas.; Smith, Treas. 53; W. F. Collins, 53; Birth, 41; Rolfe, 53; Nixon, 53; Baldwin, 41; C. Wilkinson, 41. The lodge was opened in the first degree, and the previous minutes were read and confirmed. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Hopkins gave the lecture on the First Tracing Board to Bro. Little, which had been omitted when he was initiated at the meeting in February. The candidate was then examined as to his proficiency, and entrusted, after which he was requested to retire for preparation. The lodge was opened in the 2nd degree, and Bro. Little on his re-admission was duly passed as a F.C. by the W.M., the working tools being explained by Bro. Dickenson. The charge was delivered by Bro. Dr. Hopkins. The lodge was resumed in the first degree. On the proposition of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., a vote of thanks was passed to the Royal Cumberland Lodge, for a present of the history of the lodge, the records being complete from its foundation in 1733, which had been compiled by Bro. Ashley, P.M., and published. A similar complimentary resolution was agreed to, thanking the visiting brethren for their attendance, especially the W.M.'s of the other two lodges in Bath, and Bro. Dr. Hopkins, a member of 41, for the efficient assistance he had rendered, which the W.M. hoped would be fully appreciated by the candidate, as affording him an insight into the principles of the Masonic Order into which he had so recently been admitted. In a pleasing, impressive, and eloquent manner, the W.M. expatiated on the benefits to be derived from such intercourse between the local lodges, and pointed out the advantages of the Masonic system as a humanizing and fraternal social link in every part of the world which may be visited by its members. Bros. Clark and Simonds, W.M.'s of the Royal Cumberland and Sussex Lodges, briefly replied in acknowledgement of the compliment. The lodge was finally closed at a quarter to ten.

COSMOPOLITAN LODGE (No. 917).—An excellent meeting of this lodge was held at the Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Tuesday, the 9th inst. The proceedings commenced at half-past six o'clock in the evening. There were present Bros. Keay, W.M.; Jones, S.W.; Rowley, J.W.; Cocke, I.P.M.; Depotieu, P.M., Treasurer; Stean, P.M., Secretary; Taylor, S.D.; Lemarque, I.G. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bros. Ellis and Starey to the sublime degree. The whole of the arduous and beautiful ceremony was exceedingly well carried out. The W.M. proposed, which was seconded by the S.W., and carried unanimously, that the sum of £10 should be voted from the funds of the benevolent box to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Bro. White, J.D., having resigned the lodge, the W.M. invested Bro. Lemarque as J.D., and Bro. Crouch as I.G. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet. Among the visitors present were Bros. Themans, P.M. 141; Walls, I.G. 141, 1381, 1503, and 1512; Clarke, 141; Edwards, 192. After the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the following toasts, briefly, but to the point; all of which were responded to by the brethren with excellent "fire." The "Queen and Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," the "Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," the "Visitors," the "Past Masters of the Lodge, and the Officers of the Lodge." Bros. Themans and Walls replied at length for the visitors. The former stated that he had visited the lodge several times, and had always found the working excellent, and the hospitality and conviviality unbounded, in conclusion, he paid a high compliment to the Past Masters, who had evinced so much energy in bringing the lodge to its present state of efficiency and prosperity. The latter, in the course of his reply, expressed the pleasure he had received by his visit, both as regards the proceedings in the lodge, and at the banquet table. He stated that he attended numerous lodges of greater pretensions, but that the working of the Cosmopolitan would challenge comparison with any, and if the present edition was an example of what had gone before, the lodge had every reason to be proud of its position in the craft. The I.P.M. having been entrusted with the gavel, proposed the W.M.'s health, and stated that it was a duty exceedingly pleasing to him, because he had introduced Bro. Keay into the lodge, and now had the gratification of beholding him fulfilling the duties of W.M. so well, and in that position had the honour of toasting him. This toast was well received, and the W.M. briefly replied. The Past Masters' toast was severally responded to by Bros. Cocke, Gibson, Depotieu, and Stean. The latter made an excellent reply, and expressed his pleasure, as one of the founders of the lodge, at seeing the great strides it had made in the Craft, and having been connected with Freemasonry upwards of forty years, out of which period he had been thirty-five years a Past Master; he was pleased to see that the principles of philanthropy which he had always advocated throughout his long Masonic career, were not lost sight of by the brethren of the Cosmopolitan, which, without interfering with the general funds of the lodge, was able to dispense charity from another source, viz., the box of benevolence, and in conclusion, he hoped that the lodge would eventually become Vice-Presidents of all the Masonic charities. Between the toasts Bros. Cocke, Walls, and Lemarque, contributed some vocal effusions. In consequence of there being a member of a continental lodge present, the W.M. made him a subject of a special toast. Bro. Vanemans, I.G. Mutual Faith, Zwolle, replied, and stated how honoured he felt, in having so high a compliment paid him by the W.M. and the brethren, and on his return to the Netherlands he should acquaint his brethren of the Zwolle Lodge with the gratification he had experienced at visiting so excellent a lodge as the Cosmopolitan, and under so able a W.M. The officers of the lodge having severally responded to their toast, the Tyler gave the concluding one, and the brethren separated.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held for the first time at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, the 3rd inst. Bro. Henry J. Bobart, P. Prov. G.S.B., W.M., presided, and there were present, Bros. T. Iliffe, I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; W. H. Bobart, P.M., Treasurer; J. Worsnop, P.M., Secretary; T. Gadsby as S.D.; J. H. Biggs, as J.D.; G. Pipes, D. of C.; J. Heathcote, I.G.; W. Stone, O.G.; J. G. Eaton, C. D. Hart, T. H. Hepworth, Sam. Steele, Edgar Taylor, J. E. Russell, J. O. Manton, W. Butterfield, Hy. Mills, A. A. Newham, J. Whales. Visitors—T. H. Warner, P.M. 802; J. McLaren, True Blue Lodge, 935, Wexford. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the third degree, when the W.M. raised Bro. Whales to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. He then resumed in the second degree, and passed Bro. Newham. Two candidates for initiation, Messrs. Richard Daniel and James Parkins, jun., were balloted for and elected. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, with solemn prayer, and adjourned. The foregoing were the first ceremonies worked at the new Masonic Hall.

SANDWICH.—CINQUE PORTS LODGE (No. 1206).—The installation of the W.M. of the Cinque Ports Lodge took place in their lodge-room at the Bell Hotel, Sandwich, on Tuesday, 2nd inst., when the interesting ceremony was ably performed by Bro. L. Hills, the retiring W.M. After Bro. W. W. Woodcraft was duly installed in King Solomon's chair, he proceeded to appoint his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. F. Baker, S.W.; H. S. Watts, J.W.; Rev. J. B. Harrison, Chaplain pro tem.; A. C. Plater, Treasurer; C. Baker, Secretary; J. Alchin, Organist; E. Terry, S.D.; R. Harrison, jun., J.D.; L. H. Hatherway, I.G.; Dixon, Dir. of Cer.; Dick Baker, S.; J. W. Hughes, S.; and J. V. Greer, Tyler. Shortly after the lodge business was over the brethren retired to a large room, where a banquet of a first-class quality was provided by Bro. Birch. The fare was exceedingly good, and about fifty brethren sat down together to dine. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. J. S. Eastes, D. Prov. G.M. of Kent; from Lodge Union, No. 127, Bro. Hornett, W.M., Margate; from Lodge Harmony, No. 133, we noticed Bros. H. Bathurst, P.M., and F. T. Giraud, P.M., of Faversham; from Lodge Royal Navy, No. 429, Bros. I. Jarman, W.M.; J. J. Darby, P.M.; L. Finch, P.M. and P. Prov. G.D.C. of Kent; H. Lucard, J.W.; and H. A. Vilon, Ramsgate; from Lodge Invicta, Bro. J. S. Eastes, D.P.G.M. of Kent; and Hughes-Hallett, W.M., Ashford; from Lodge Wellington, No. 784, Bros. J. E. Apps, W.M.; W. Harding, P.M.; A. F. S. Bird, P.M.; A. E. Ralph, P.M. and P.G.S.D. of Kent, Deal; from Lodge Lord Warden, No. 1006, Bros. B. R. Eastes, W.M.; T. J. Usher, P.M.; Rev. J. B. Harrison, P.M.; T. Ayling, J.D.; and Bro. S. Holgate, Tyler, Walmer; from Lodge Lewises, No. 1209, Bros. W. Call, W.M.; G. Page, J.W.; and W. H. Howard, Ramsgate. Amongst the brethren of Lodge 1206 we noticed, in addition to the officers, Bros. L. Hills, I.P.M. and P.G.S. of Kent; R. J. Emerson, P.M. and P. Prov. G.J.W. of Kent; W. Mate, P.M. and P. Prov. G.D.C. of Kent; and several other brethren. After ample justice had been done to the "inner man," the usual loyal, Masonic, and patriotic toasts were given; then followed the complimentary toasts, when the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master," and said he felt highly honoured with the presence of Bro. J. Eastes at the present festive board. Bro. J. S. Eastes duly responded to the compliment paid him, and in a very appropriate speech said that out of thirty-eight lodges in the province there were a great many more applications for the various charities than there were vacancies to admit. He cautioned the W.M.'s and brethren as to whom they admitted, as the rapid increase of lodges and the number of new members must increase the number of applications to the various charities, and great caution should be exercised. Bro. F. Baker, in a very suitable speech, proposed "The Provincial, Present and Past, Grand Officers," and coupled the toast with the name of Bro. E. Ralph, who very suitably responded. Bro. R. J. Emerson proposed "Success to the Masonic Charities," which, he said, were second to none in the world. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Finch, who responded in a very creditable manner. Bro. Plater next proposed "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. Rev. J. Harrison, who duly responded. Several other complimentary toasts were proposed and responded to, and the evening's amusement was greatly enhanced by Bros. Frank Elmore, F. H. Cozens, and Thurley Beale, of London, who gave some excellent glees, songs, &c., in good style, which added considerably to the enjoyment of the brethren, and a very pleasant and agreeable evening was spent, which will doubtless long be remembered by all present.

GREAT GRIMSBY.—ST. ALBAN'S LODGE, (No. 1294).—On the 25th February, Bro. Jack Sutcliffe (late J.W.) was duly installed as W.M. of this lodge by Bro. Anderson Bates, P.P.G.D. of C. Linc. Bro. Jack Sutcliffe was the first initiated in this lodge, his father, Bro. John Sutcliffe being then the W.M., who is well-known in the Masonic circle, and the recently installed Grand Mark Master for the province of Lincolnshire. The W.M. appointed the following brethren as his officers:—Jos. Chapman, S.W.; John Nelson, J.W.; S.T. Faddelsey, Sec.; Thos. Coates, S.D.; Alfred Brady, J.D.; and D.H. Bury, I.G. Bro. C. B. Moody, is the Treasurer, and Bro. H. Wardale, the Tyler of the lodge. The W.M.'s and Wardens of the Grimsby (Pelham Pillar), Hull (Lumber and Minerva), Louth (Lindsey), Brigg (Anchorage), and Barton (St. Matthew) Lodges, and other brethren honoured the occasion with their presence. After the installation, 40 brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet, at the Royal Hotel, given by the brethren of the lodge as a compliment to Bro. Samuel Walmesley, the I.P.M., which was presided over by Bro. Jack Sutcliffe, the newly installed Master.

HUDDERSFIELD.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 6th inst., at the Royal Archer Hotel, Dale-street, Manchester. The lodge was opened punctually at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Henry Smith. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Davis and Mr. Edward Dickinson, and proving favourable in both cases, the ceremony of initiation was preceded with by the I.P.M., Bro. Jno. W. Turner, on behalf of Mr. Davis. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Edward Dickinson, which he did with great proficiency. The J.W., Bro. C. J. Kent, afterwards delivered the charge in a most able and impressive manner. The lodge was opened in the second and third degrees, when the W.M. raised Bro. D. L. Bracke to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, doing his work so creditably as to be congratulated by the Past Masters on his proficiency. Bro. Thomas Tyer, P.M., who is known as an excellent worker, then raised Bro. Richard Wheeldon with that ability which his long connection with Masonry has taught him. Business was then resumed in the second, then in the first degree, when one gentleman was proposed for initiation, and one as a joining member. Heartily good wishes having been given by twelve visitors, and business concluded, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at eight o'clock. The brethren and visitors adjourned to refreshment, when thirty-five sat down to an excellent supper, provided by the worthy host, Bro. Potts, and presided over by the W.M. After the excellent working and rational enjoyment, the brethren separated, each and all expressing the pleasure they had enjoyed at being present at the meeting of this rising and prosperous lodge.

SHEPPERTON.—THAMES VALLEY LODGE (No. 1460).—A meeting of the brethren of this lodge was held on Saturday, 6th inst., at the Ship Hotel, Huddersfield. The lodge was opened by Bro. Lieut.-Col. Peters, and among the other brethren present were the Rev. Dr. Brette, P.G.C.

S.W.; Lieut. C. B. Elliott, Royal Naval Reserve, J.W.; W. Paas, Treasurer; Lieut. J. G. Marsh, Secretary; J. L. Jones, S.D.; W. T. Howe, J.D.; Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; Lieut. R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Secretary Middlesex; Herbert Kerr, Charles Semple, Joseph Davis, J. Burdett Yeoman, John A. Magee, John While, W.M. 228; Thomas Cubitt, G. Purst, England; W. Worrell, P.M. 766; Rev. P. M. Holden, M.A., 907; Rev. W. B. Church, M.A., P.M. 165; A. Perrot, 720; G. Townsend, P.M. 754; H. Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason); E. Amphlett, M.A., 859; John Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant, England; E. Semple, 14; and H. Parner, Prov. Grand Organist, Middlesex. Bro. J. G. Marsh, at the request of Col. Peters, passed Bros. C. Semple, J. Davis, and R. Stone to the F.C. degree, and then initiated Mr. W. Sweetland, Lieut. Walter Alecock, Mr. J. E. Kershaw, Mr. C. J. Davis, and Mr. J. W. H. R. Gowan. When these ceremonies were concluded, Bro. R. Wentworth Little took the chair, and installed the Rev. Dr. Brette as W.M. for the current year. The W.M. then invested the following brethren as his officers:—Lieut. Elliott, S.W.; J. L. Jones, J.W.; William Paas, Treas.; J. G. Marsh, Sec.; W. T. Howe, S.D.; J. A. Magee, J.D.; and Woodstock, Tyler. The lodge unanimously voted a fifteen guinea Past Master's jewel to Col. Peters, as the first W.M. of the lodge, and this being the conclusion of the Masonic business, the brethren, after four hours of hard work, adjourned to an excellent banquet, which was provided by Bro. Stone, the proprietor of the Ship Hotel, with great taste and judgment. When the cloth was removed, the W.M. proceeded with the toasts. In proposing "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master," Col. Burdett, the W.M. said he was supported by two Colonels, one on his right, Col. Burdett, and the other on his left, Col. Peters, the latter of whom was the father of the lodge, and the former of whom might not inappropriately be styled the grandfather. Both these brethren had done much good for Masonry, and their presence was always acceptable to the members of this lodge. Col. Burdett knew how pleased they always were to see him, and the lodge had only to hope that whenever they met he would favour them with his company. Col. Burdett responded, and in the course of his remarks, observed that the lodges in Middlesex not only held a proud position in the province, but in the Masonic world in general. The Thames Valley Lodge, although only a young one, was one of the most flourishing. The efforts made by the province were a step in the right direction, and the election of Dr. Brette to the chair of Master, in succession to Col. Peters, was another such step. While acknowledging the kindness which the brethren had manifested in drinking his health, he thanked them, not only for himself, but on behalf of all the Grand Officers, because the compliment was not only paid to him, but to the whole of the Province of Middlesex. In that province he would uphold the dignity of Masonry, and whenever his advice and assistance were sought they were at the disposal of the Craft. To the toast of "The Deputy Grand Master, Bros. J. C. Parkinson," Bro. R. W. Little replied, and remarked that the Grand Officers of the province viewed with great satisfaction the prosperity of the province, which, however, had only been in existence a few years. The success of individual lodges was also a source of much pleasure to them, and this lodge had attracted considerable attention. The first Master, Col. Peters, through whom the great success of the lodge had been attained, had worked very well on its behalf, and the thanks of the brethren were due to him in no limited measure. The lodge would, no doubt, continue to prosper, and under such W.M.'s as Col. Peters, and Dr. Brette, it had every chance of succeeding. Col. Peters proposed "The W.M.," a brother, who, though he had been a long time in Masonry, had never till that evening reached the distinguished position of the Masters' chair, which all Masons strove for, and were proud to get. As Master of this lodge, he would do his duty as he had in every other position in life which he had filled, and would do the best he could to carry on the work of the lodge in the most efficient manner. The W.M., in reply, said he would not speak of himself, although he was much obliged to the brethren for drinking his health. He should leave the brethren to judge of him by his acts. "Verba volant; facta manent;" and it was only by his deeds he would ask to be judged. He would now present the Immediate Past Master with a valuable jewel, which had been that day voted in lodge to Col. Peters, for his zeal and ability in discharging the duties of his office during the past year. It would be unnecessary to tell the brethren what Col. Peters had done, because they had seen for themselves. Col. Peters was founder of the lodge, and the brethren hoped that he would long have health and strength to come among them, and show how much they esteemed him. The jewel he had to present to him, was but a feeble token of the brethren's esteem for him, but its real value consisted in the feeling which had dictated the voting of it. It was certainly of elegant design and workmanship, and was constructed from a drawing by Bro. Marsh, the esteemed Secretary of the lodge. He hoped that Bro. Col. Peters would long live to wear it. Col. Peters, in acknowledging the kindness of the brethren in displaying such consideration for him, assured the brethren that he did not deserve it. The opportunity of becoming First Master of the lodge was offered to him by his friend, Col. Burdett, and he need not say that he did not hesitate in the least in accepting it. But it would be improper if he allowed the present moment to pass over without saying that if it had not been for the great assistance he had had from very many members of the Craft, he could not possibly have come out of the duties of his year of office. That "nothing succeeds like success," was a sentiment which every member of the Thames Valley Lodge would agree was true; and he felt that under the auspices and guidance of its present Master, the lodge would progress. The lodge had already attained a prominent position, and it could not be denied that the popularity of the Prov. Grand Master, Col. Burdett, gave an impetus to the brethren of the province on behalf of Freemasonry. Col. Burdett was a very active Prov. G. Master, and visited all the lodges of his province, and the personal interest he took in them, which he thus so plainly manifested, imbued the brethren with the same spirit as that by which he was actuated. The brethren would all corroborate him (Col. Peters) when he said that they would always be delighted to see Col. Burdett among them. With respect to the handsome P.M. jewel which the W.M. had just affixed to his breast, he would add that he was very much obliged to the brethren for it. It was an honour which all P.M.'s looked forward to, but did not always get, and he would value it; but though he had obtained it his efforts, in the interest of the lodge would not be in any way relaxed. The W.M. gave the toast of "The Initiates," five, fine, bright young fellows, fit to carry on the work of Masonry properly. The lodge was started but a year ago, and it had now thirty-one members, among whom were representatives of the Army, the Navy, the Church, the Law, and other professions. The toast having been responded to, the toast of "The Visitors" was replied to by Rev. W. B. Church, P.M., 165; and "The Press," for which a special toast was proposed, by Bro. John While, 228. The toast of "The Officers," was acknowledged by Lieut. Elliott, Royal Naval Reserve, S.W., who said he felt great interest in the working of the lodge. Whatever he had done had been for the interest he took in Freemasonry in general. Bro. Williams, Paas, and Bro. J. G. Marsh, replied for "Treasurer" and "Secretary," the latter brother stating that he was going to stand as Steward for the lodge at the next festival of the Girls' School. The brethren shortly afterwards started to town, having passed a very pleasant evening.

WILLIAM PRESTON CHAPTER (No. 766).—A meeting of this young flourishing chapter was held on the 25th February, at the City Terminus Hotel, E.C., when the following companions were present:—Comps. William Worrell, M.E.Z.; George J. Kain, H.; Dr. R. H. Whiteman, J.; M. E. Newton, Treasurer; Henry Garrod, S.E.; George Newman, S.N.; Aug. Brown, First Assistant; Dr. W. H. Kempster, Second Assistant; also Dr. Cutmore and P. Steinmann. A ballot was taken for several candidates, the following being present, they were duly exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Masons, Bros. John T. Gibson, No. 1420; John T. Hiscroft, No. 1420; H. F. Partridge, No. 769; J. M. Klenck, P.H. 1339. This being election night for the Principals and officers for the ensuing year, the following were unanimously elected: Coms. G. J. Kain, M.E.Z.; Dr. R. H. Whiteman, H.; George Newman, J.; Henry Garrod, Treasurer; William Worrell, S.E.; Aug. Brown, S.N.; Dr. W. N. Kempster, P.S.; A. Grant, Janitor. The following notices of motion were given to be discussed at the next convocation:—1st. That the chapter be a banner chapter. 2nd. That a jewel be presented to Comp. William Worrell, to mark the valuable services he has rendered to the chapter, as the first M.E.Z. All business being ended, the chapter was duly closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent dinner, presided over by Comp. William Worrell, when the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

YEOVIL.—WILLIAM DE IRWIN LODGE (No. 162).—The installation meeting of this young lodge was held on Wednesday last, March 3rd. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Ben. Cox, P. Prov. G.W., the W.M., the chair was taken by Bro. Elise, P.P.G.W., and the lodge opened in due form. After the confirmation of the minutes, a deputation from the Prov. G. Lodge entered, and was received with the honours, namely, V.W. Bro. Capt. Irwin, Deputy Prov. G. Master; W. S. Gillard, P.P.S.G.W.; Dr. Wynn Westcott, P.G. Reg. Marks. The R.W. Deputy then installed Bro. J. Chaffin, J.W., into the Master's chair, which ceremony he performed in a very able and impressive manner. The W.M. then invested as his officers, Bros. W. S. Gillard, S.W.; W. J. Nosworthy, J.W.; Dr. W. Westcott, M.O.; W. Sawtell, S.O.; Dr. P. Colmer, J.O.; G. Rugg, S.D.; J. Sherwood, J.D.; T. Davies, Reg. and I.G.; G. Summer, Sec. Several names were then proposed for advancement, and the lodge closed. The V.W. Deputy G. Master then opened a lodge of Ark Mariners, and advanced eight candidates; he then installed Bro. J. Chaffin, W.M., in the chair, and the ark was moored in due form. All the brethren then present adjourned to an excellent repast, and several hours were spent in genial toasts and kind remembrance of absent friends, the V.W. Dep. P.G.M. (Craft), Capt. Bridges, being especially remembered.

Red Cross of Constantine.

The Premier Conclave of this Order met, in conjunction with the Bective Conclave, No. 23, on Monday, the 1st inst., at the Regent Masonic Hall, Regent-street, and was numerously attended. Four candidates, namely, Bros. Edward Amphlett, M.A. (son of Baron Amphlett); Cuthbert E. Peck (son of Sir Henry W. Peck, Bart., M.P.); W. H. Whitway Wilkison, L.R.C.P.; and Frederick Woodin, were installed as Knights of the Order. It was unanimously resolved that a vote of condolence be sent to the widow of the late Sir Knt. Edwin Sillitani, G. Standard Bearer, the M.P.S., who died on the 19th ult. Sir Knt. T. Burdett Yeoman was elected M.P.S.; T. Cubitt, P. Sec.,

Treasurer; and J. Gilbert, Sentinel. The conclave was then closed and the annual assembly of the Shirley, J. Adams, Acton; William Winn, E. Amphlett, W. H. W. Wilkinson, C. E. Peck, and F. Woodin, Premier.

The Grand Conclave was opened in due form, and the report of the Executive Committee was read and adopted. The Knights then proceeded to elect ten members of the Grand Senate, out of fifteen candidates, and the result of the ballot having been made known, the Acting Grand Sovereign announced that the principal officers of the Order for the ensuing year would be as follows, all being nominated but the last ten Senators, who were elected in conclave:—

GRAND IMPERIAL COUNCIL.—Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., Most Illustrious Grand Sovereign; Colonel Francis Burdett, Most Eminent Grand Viceroy; The Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, Grand Senior General; William Edward Gumbleton, J.P., Grand Junior General; Rev. William Benjamin Church, M.A., and Rev. Joseph Marychurch Vaughan, Grand High Prelates; Henry Charles Levander, M.A., Grand High Chancellor; Robert Wentworth Little, Grand Treasurer; William Robert Woodman, M.D., Grand Recorder; Raynham William Stewart, Grand High Almoner; Angelo John Lewis, M.A., Grand Chamberlain; John Boyd, Esq., Grand Architect; Thomas Cubitt, Grand Marshal; George Toller, jun., Grand Orator; Thomas W. White, Grand Historiographer.

GRAND SENATE.—Joseph Chas. Parkinson, Grand Preceptor; William Roebuck, Grand Examiner; Chas. H. Rogers-Harrison, F.R.C.S., Grand Prefect; Rev. Philip E. H. Brette, D.D., Grand Sub Prelate; George Powell, Grand Vice Chancellor; Henry Arthur Dubois, Grand Assistant Treasurer; George Kenning, Grand Assistant Recorder; Lieut.-Col. Jas. Peters, Grand Sub Almoner; Alfred A. Pendlebury, Grand Inspector of Regalia; Eugene H. Thiellay, Thomas Burdett Yeoman, Grand Standard Bearer; Frederick Kelly, Grand Sword Bearer; Henry Parker, Grand Organist; John T. Moss, Grand Assistant Marshal; Chas. Frederick Hogard, Grand Vice Chamberlain; John Wm. Ellison Macartney, M.P., John Robert Goepel, Grand Heralds; James Percy Leith, Grand Usher.

The Grand Conclave was then closed, and the Knights adjourned to the banqueting room, where forty-two sat down, under the presidency of Colonel Burdett, in the absence of Sir Frederick M. Williams, Bart., who, as was subsequently ascertained, had not received his notice in time to attend the meeting.

After the cloth was cleared, the Chairman proposed "The Queen and the Christian Orders," "H.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales," "The G. Sovereign, Sir F. M. Williams, and the P.G. Sovereign, the Earl of Bective," all of which were heartily received. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little then gave the health of the Chairman, and referred to the untiring zeal and sterling Masonic qualities of that illustrious Knight. The toast was responded to with the greatest verve and enthusiasm, all the company rising to give the Red Cross fire. Col. Burdett expressed his thanks and the pleasure he experienced in again meeting the Knights, and aiding the well-being and progress of the Order.

Sir Knt. Levander replied for the Council, and Sir Knt. Roebuck for the Senate.

Dr. Lacey and other M.P.S's. returned their best acknowledgements for the toast of "Prosperity to the various conclaves of the Order," and the Sentinel's toast concluded the proceedings. Out of respect to the memory of Sir Knt. Sillifant, a Grand Senator, the usual professional musical entertainment was dispensed with on this occasion.

ROMAN EAGLE CONCLAVE (No. 6) met at Anderton's Hotel on the 27th ult. under the presidency of Sir Knt. W. Hurlstone, M.P.S. During the evening Bro. Walter Spencer was installed as a Red Cross Knight and subsequently received the grade of Eusebius in company with Sir Knt. A. Perrot, the elected Viceroy. Sir Knt. W. Cubitt Lucey, M.D., was inducted into the chair of Constantine and appointed his officer for the ensuing year. Amongst the members present were Sir Knts. W. F. N. Quilty, P. Sov. and Treasurer; H. C. Levander, M.A., P. Sov. and G.H.C.; R. Wentworth Little, G. Treas.; A. A. Pendlebury, K.G.C. Rec.; A. C. Morton, J. J. Caney, Rev. W. B. Church, P. Sov. P.H.P.; A. Smith, and G. Smith. Sir Knt. T. Cubitt, G.O., was the only visitor. A banquet followed the business in conclave, and after the cloth was cleared a Past Sovereign's jewel was presented to Sir Knt. Hurlstone, who suitably acknowledged the gift.

THE INSTALLATION OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES AS GRAND MASTER.

The circulars for making the preliminary arrangements for the installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master were issued on Wednesday from Grand Secretary's office. They consist of four forms. The first is addressed to the Masters of all London lodges, informing them that each London Lodge will have the privilege of naming a Steward to serve on the occasion of the Prince's installation, and inviting the lodge to do so.

If the number of intending Stewards exceeds the number of those required for the service, the selection is to be by ballot: but every brother whose name is returned as wishing to be a Steward, must undertake to attend the meetings when summoned, to be present at the Albert Hall at twelve o'clock on the day appointed for the installation (the 28th April), and to undertake the duty that may be assigned to him. The Stewards personally discharging these duties are to have the privilege of wearing a special jewel, the cost of which is not to exceed £5. The second circular is to the Masters of all lodges, stating that the installation will take place at the Albert Hall, on the 28th of April, at three o'clock in the afternoon. Master Masons, not being qualified members of Grand Lodge, that is, brethren who have taken the third degree in Freemasonry, but who are not Wardens, Masters, or Past Masters, will be permitted to be present; but no brother will be admitted to the hall unless his name shall have been returned, in a form accompanying the circular, to Grand Secretary's office, before the 31st of the present month.

Should it be found impracticable to provide accommodation for all the brethren whose names are so returned, an equitable distribution of tickets for the admission of Master Masons will be made to each lodge. Brethren who are subscribing members of more than one lodge must return their names on one list only. Tickets will not be transferable, and as seats will be provided for every brother to whom a ticket is issued, it is particularly requested that no brother will send in his name unless he is prepared to attend.

The third circular is addressed to Provincial Grand Secretaries, informing them that it is desirable, in order to facilitate the arrangements, to prevent confusion, that two brethren from each province, to whom the members or some of the members of each lodge are known, should act as Stewards, and undertake to be present at the Albert Hall before the doors are opened on the 28th of April, for the purpose of identifying, as far as practicable, the brethren as they enter. Provincial Grand Secretaries are therefore invited after consultation with their Provincial Grand Masters, to return the names and addresses of two brethren who may be willing to undertake this duty. A further circular is also issued as a form of letter which Masters or Secretaries of lodges are to write to the individual members of their lodges, embodying most of the foregoing particulars.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The committee of this Institution met on Wednesday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. Major John Creaton, V.P., presided, and among the brethren present were Bros. H. M. Levy, C. A. Cottebrune, John G. Stevens, William Stephens, John Bellerby, J. Newton, F. Adlard, Dr. Jabez Hogg, L. Stean, John M. Stedwell, Hyde Pullen, C. F. Hogard, W. Hale, Thos. Cubitt, J. A. Farnfield, Benjamin Head, Griffiths Smith, John Constable, Richard Spencer, and James Terry, Secretary.

A letter from the Marquis of Ripon was read by the Secretary, resigning the trusteeship of the Male Fund, the Widows' Fund, and the Sustentation Fund of this Institution.

It was suggested that the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, should be invited to accept the trusteeship of the Male and Widows' Funds, and Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, should be asked to accept the trusteeship of the Sustentation Fund.

The deaths of three annuitants and an approved candidate were announced, and the insanity of one annuitant was also reported.

The report of the Warden of the Asylum was read, as was also that of the House Committee, in which there was a recommendation that an honorary Vice-Presidentship should be offered for the acceptance of Dr. Strong, the honorary Surgeon of the Institution at Croydon for the last 11 years.

It was then moved, seconded and resolved, that this recommendation should be carried out, and Dr. Strong was thereupon duly elected an honorary Vice-President of this institution.

A letter from the Rev. John Palmer, as to the system of voting, was read, but it was not entertained by the committee.

Permission was given to one inmate to go home to her friends, the lady requested to do so, on account of age and infirmity.

The Chairman announced the death of Bro. W. Pultney Scott, P.G.D., which took place on Tuesday, and a letter of condolence was therefore ordered to be written to Mrs. Scott. The committee then adjourned.

OPENING OF THE MASONIC TEMPLE IN ROME.

The Masonic Temple was opened on Friday, 5th inst., by the Grand Master, Joseph Mazzoni. Brethren from all parts of Italy, with the badges of their degree and office, including Members of Parliament and of the liberal professions, artists, literary men, &c., were present. The foreign lodges were represented by Great Britain, France, Germany, Hungary, and North and South America. The Past Grand Master, Signor Mauro Macchi, delivered an eloquent speech congratulating Teutonic civilization on statesmen, like Bismarck and Gladstone, and hoping for a better day for Latin civilization, led by Italy. The reception of the foreign lodges was gracefully acknowledged in Italian by Colonel Balcanes Ramsay. During the proceedings, congratulatory telegrams kept arriving. The Temple is a model of simple elegance.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF THE PUNJAB.

A regular communication of District Grand Lodge assembled at Freemasons' Hall, Lahore, on Saturday the 9th January, 1875, at 7.30 p.m. There were present:—Wor. Bros. Capt. Marmaduke Ramsay, A.D.G.M.; William E. Ball, as D.G.S.W.; Walter Adlard, as D.G.J.W.; William Mellor, D.G. Treasurer; George Davies, D.G. Secretary; Peter Scott, as D.G.S. Deacon; James Wilkinson, as D.G.J. Deacon; Capt. Lewis W. Taylor, as D.G. Organist; C. W. Calthrop, M.D., as D.G. Dir. of Cers.; William Bull, as D.G. Purst.; Bros. J. W. Lemarchand and J. J. Davies, Stewards; George Read, as D. G. Tyler. There were present representatives of Lodges: Himalayan Brotherhood, 459; Hope and Perseverance, 782; Ravee, 1215; Light in the Himalayahs, 1448; John the Evangelist, 1483; Industry, 1485.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 7.30, with prayer, in ancient form.

The Wor. Acting D.G.M. proposed that the proceedings of the last regular communication having been printed and circulated to the lodges and officers of the District Grand Lodge, they be taken as read, which was duly seconded by W. Bro. W. Adlard, was put to the vote, and carried "nem. con."

The following brethren were proclaimed appointed to the following offices, the A.D.G.M. investing those of them who were present:—Wor. Bros. Arthur M. Saunders, 563, D.G.S. Warden; William Mellor, 1215, D.G.J. Warden; Rev. J. B. Brunesson, B.A., 1483, D.G. Chaplain; Major W. H. Mackesy, D.G. Treasurer; Major F. E. Hadow, 1483, D.G. Registrar; George Davies, D.G. Secretary; John Goldney, 459, D.G.S. Deacon; Capt. Fred. Grundy, 988, D.G.J. Deacon; Henry T. Tanner, C.E., 1448, D.G. Supt. of Works; Colonel C. Minchin, 1442, D.G.D. of C.; C. W. Calthrop, M.D., 782, A.D.G.D. of C.; Felix Goldstein, 459, D.G. Sword Bearer; Captain Lewis W. Taylor, 1483, D.G. Organist; William Bull, 1215, D.G. Purst.; Bros. Wycliff Jackson, 563; John Baker Tapp, 1485; W. J. Lemarchand, 782; J. J. Davies, 1215; Harry Calthrop, 1442; Captain G. G. Nelson, 2463, D.G. Stewards; Bro. Murphy, District Grand Tyler.

The R.W.A.D.G.M. then addressed the brethren as follows:—

"Amongst the actual offices there are but twelve appointments, and these have been distributed among nine lodges. The only lodge which appears to have a preponderance of strength is St. John the Evangelist, to which is assigned three appointments, but out of these three, two were of necessity assigned to it, as amongst its members alone at Lahore were found brethren competent to fill the offices of Chaplain and Organist. So, in reality, it has the Registrarship alone assigned to it."

"Since we last met, Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has accepted the office of Grand Master, which we heard of by telegram before the last meeting; and at the meeting of Grand Lodge on the 3rd December, he allowed himself to be nominated as Grand Master for the next year, thus proving he intends really to accept the office, and not take it as a stop-gap, if one may be allowed to use the expression. Until the next annual election comes on, all interested in the Craft will be delighted to hear that the Earl of Carnarvon has been appointed Pro Grand Master, and was obligated as such at the meeting referred to, and is succeeded as Deputy Grand Master by Lord Skelmersdale, the popular P.G.M. of Lancashire. We may, therefore, now fairly expect to hear by every mail of the appointment of a new D.G.M. for the Punjab."

"Turning to the report of the Board of General Purposes, there is little to remark upon. For some time past, a sum of Rs. 155 has been standing in the name of the Dalhousie Entertainment. This was got up by the exertions of Wor. Bro. Adlard, P.D.G.J.W., who now presents this sum to District Grand Lodge, in order that the vote attached to it may be used. This offer the board recommend should be accepted with thanks, and in which recommendation I most cordially agree. As regards the second point brought before the board, the circular from the Punjab Masonic Institution, which will be read to you, explains itself. It is impossible to get up annual festivals as in England, and I most cordially and warmly support the idea of an annual drawing, and trust that all the Masters of Lodges for 1875 will take an active interest in the disposal of tickets, and become members of the committee. During 1874, we have had three similar drawings, which have been most successful; this one, however, is on a larger scale. The last one we had was drawn on St. John's Day, and the first prize, a Vice-presidentship, was won by Bro. Major Beamish, 36th Regiment, and the second, a life-governorship, by Bro. Sola, of Umballa. In the annual one now proposed, it is intended to increase the number of prizes by having twenty life-governorships as prizes of the value, as you are all aware, of Rs. 100 each. The board suggest that District Grand Lodge should take five tickets, paying for them out of the Fund of Benevolence, which is well able to afford it; and should we not gain a prize, our money, Rs. 25, will go towards the P.M.I., a most deserving institution.

"As regards the Fund of Benevolence, there is one application for assistance come in from the W. Master of Lodge Multan, but as it does not appear of a very urgent nature, that W. Brother has been requested to furnish the board with more information before they proceed to deal with the case.

"I should, perhaps, before have alluded to the state of our funds. We have in the Agra Bank a sum of Rs. 2,655-7-9, of which Rs. 482-0-1 belong to District Grand Lodge, and Rs. 2,173 7-9 to the Fund of Benevolence. Returns from all the lodges are in, up to the 30th September, 1874, and seven have been received up to the 31st December, 1874. The only debt is one of about Rs. 450, balance still due to Lodge Hope and Perseverance for the furniture. This will be paid off before our meeting in April, and we shall then, I hope, go on even more successfully, if this is possible, than we have been doing for the past three years.

"At a recent election for the E.C. many of you may remember that the votes recorded for two brethren were equal, and when it was suggested that the W.M. had a casting vote, it was ruled by the Master in the chair had not a casting vote. This was entirely erroneous; and as there appears some difference of opinion as to when the casting vote can be used, I will read you para. 2, heading "Private Lodges," Constitutions, p. 62:—

"Whenever it may happen that the number of votes shall be equal upon any question to be decided in a lodge, either by ballot or otherwise, the Master in the chair shall be entitled to give a second or casting vote, excepting upon a ballot for a candidate for initiation or a brother to join."

"From which you will see that the Worshipful Master has the casting vote in all cases except upon a ballot for a candidate for initiation, or a brother to join. Consequently, in that case, he could have given a second or casting vote.

"As regards the state of Masonry in the Province, brethren, all is most satisfactory, so far as one is able to judge; the lodges have all elected as Worshipful Masters for 1875 brethren well suited to conduct their affairs for the good of the Craft in general and their lodges in particular. I congratulate those worthy brethren who have had bestowed on them the highest honour a lodge can confer, feeling certain they will not betray the trust reposed in them by their fellows.

"There is a ruling at the last meeting of Grand Lodge to which I desire before concluding to call the attention of all Worshipful Masters. Lodge St. Augustine, 972, has been admonished for initiating a Lewis before he attained the full age of twenty-one. Grand Lodge directed that his certificate be withheld until he attained the full age of twenty-one, and had been re-obligated. I mention this as many are under the impression a Lewis may be initiated at eighteen, and it was because this idea was so prevalent, that Lodge St. Augustine got off so easily. Any lodge so acting would in all probability lose its warrant."

The District Grand Secretary then read the proceedings of the Board of General Purposes and Fund of Benevolence."

At a meeting of the Board of General Purposes, assembled at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday, the 2nd January, the committee examined the Treasurer's accounts to date, representing the following figures, which they accepted as correct:—

To Balance brought forward from 23rd
October, 1874,	Rs. 504 15 1
„ Receipts from 23rd October, 1874, to
9th January, 1875,	557 0 0
Total Rs.	1,061 15 1

By expenditure from 23rd October, 1874, to date... .. Rs. 579 15 5

Actual cash balance at credit of D. G. Lodge on 9th January, 1875, Rs. 482 0 1

Your committee considered a proposal made by Wor. Bro. Adlard, P.D.G.J.W., to transfer the sum of rupees one hundred and fifty-five, realised by an entertainment at Dalhousie, to the credit of D.G. Lodge, in the books of the P.M.I. Your committee cordially recommend the acceptance of Wor. Bro. Adlard's proposition with thanks.

Your committee note with pleasure that every one of the returns for the quarter ending 30th September, 1874, has been received by the D.G. Secretary, and returns for quarter ending 31st December, 1874, of the following lodges to hand—Light in the Himalayas, St. John the Evangelist, Charity, Ravee, Mooltan, Mayo, and Himalayan Brotherhood.

At a meeting of the Board of the Fund of Benevolence, assembled at Freemasons' Hall, Lahore, on Saturday, the 2nd January, the committee examined the Treasurer's accounts to date, representing the following figures, which they accept as correct:—

To Balance brought forward from 23rd
October, 1874	Rs. 1,777 7 9
„ Receipts from 23rd October, 1874, to
9th January, 1875	456 0 0
Total ...	Rs. 2,233 7 9

Expenditure:—
By expenditure from 23rd October, 1874, to date	60 0 0
Actual cash balance at credit of fund ...	Rs. 2,173 7 9

The Committee considered a letter from the W.M. of Lodge Multan, recommending the case of a widow, for help from the Fund of Benevolence, but, as nothing definite was recommended, the Committee were of opinion that the case had better stand over for the present, and a reference made to the W.M. as to the character of the help required. The Committee, having considered the circular from the Honorary Secretary of the Punjab Masonic Educational Society, recommend that five tickets be taken in the proposed lottery;—the object being one of pure charity.

The A.R.W.D.G.M. then informed the District Grand Lodge that the next duty before them was the election of a District Grand Treasurer, W. Bro. Mellor having resigned. The A.R.W.D.G.M. had great pleasure in proposing W. Bro. Major W. H. Mackesy, who would, he was quite sure, perform the duties in a most satisfactory manner, which, being duly seconded by W. Bro. W. E. Ball, was carried unanimously.

The A.R.W.D.G.M., having requested W. Bro. Mellor to retire from the District Grand Lodge for a few minutes, proposed, that in consideration of the excellent service rendered this District Grand Lodge by W. Bro. Mellor, extending over a period of three years, during which time the status of this District Grand Lodge had undergone a thorough change, W. Bro. Mellor had taken up the duties of Treasurer at a time when there were little or no funds to look after. He now resigned the office, leaving the financial condition of this District Grand Lodge everything that could be desired. It was a pleasing duty, therefore, and one which he was sure the District Grand Lodge would participate in, in asking Bro. Mellor's acceptance of an undress District Grand Lodge Apron and Collar, to be paid for from the Funds of the District Grand Lodge.

W. Bro. G. Davies begged leave to second the proposition. In his capacity as District Grand Secretary he was in a position to bear testimony to the good service rendered this District Grand Lodge by W. Bro. Mellor. He had done his work well, and it was with no ordinary feelings of pleasure he rose to second the proposition. It was then put to the vote and carried unanimously.

W. Bro. Mellor being recalled, the A.R.W.D.G. Master begged his acceptance of the collar and apron, which, during his temporary absence from the lodge, had been voted to him. In reply W. Bro. Mellor assured the A.R.W.D.G. Master that he had served the District Grand Lodge con amore, not looking for or anticipating any reward. He accepted the gift voted by District Grand Lodge with great pleasure, and thanked them heartily for their kind acknowledgment of his services.

There being no more business before the District Grand Lodge it was closed in due form, with prayer, at 9 p.m.

FREEMASONRY IN SWITZERLAND.

ORIENT OF GENEVA.—INAUGURATION OF THE NEW TEMPLE OF THE "BROTHERHOOD LODGE."

The day of the 15th November, 1874, was impatiently expected by the brethren composing the Lodge "La Fraternité." Numberless difficulties had been placed in their way; but thanks to the energy of the W. Master, Bro. Camps; thanks to the good will of the Grand Orient of France, all their manoeuvres had led to nothing, and the inauguration of the Temple was not hindered. At 10 a.m. the doors of the Temple were opened, and every one could admire the excellent taste and skill which had presided over the decoration and arrangements of the lodge. The brethren of the "Fraternité," the delegates of many lodges in Geneva, Bro. Jousserandot, member of the Supreme Council of France, Bros. Besançon and Amberg, of the Supreme Council of Switzerland, and many other visiting brethren from Lausanne, soon filled the lodge-room, when the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Camps.

After an address from Bro. Gomes, Orator of the lodge, detailing the progress and success of the lodge, and which we give later, Bro. Jousserandot exhorted the brethren of "La Fraternité" in an energetic allocution only to admit into their body meritorious candidates. He assured them of his deep admiration for the zeal and constancy displayed by the lodge, and expressed the happiness he felt at being in the midst of such an assembly. After speeches in a similar strain from Bro. Besançon, Bro. Krauss, of the Lodge "Union des Cœurs," and from Bro. Metford, of the Lodge "Les Amis de la Vérité," Bro. Amberg announced, as a matter of much rejoicing, that "L'Amitié Ecossaise" founded at Geneva, by the Supreme Council of Switzerland, would also carry on its work in the same Masonic Temple, and the activity of the one would stimulate the activity of the other. After the closing of the labours and the lodge, the brethren assembled at a magnificent banquet, at the Hotel Russie, at which the most fraternal union and harmony prevailed.

The following is the oration pronounced by Bro. Gomes on the occasion:—May we be happy my brethren. The day which has dawned upon us is an "alba dies" for Freemasonry. My mouth is all but powerless to express to you all the joy that my heart feels in this our solemnity; but you, Freemasons all, you who feel that your hearts still beat loyally for the holy traditions of our Order, you can rejoice and you will rejoice, for to-day is the inauguration of our new Temple. Very dear and very illustrious brethren, may my words be the words of gratitude for the brethren, our friends, and the brethren our visitors who have had the fraternal thought to come and sit at our sides in this new sanctuary, and to associate themselves with our festival, in honouring us with their presence, and their intelligence. May the arches of our Temple resound with my praises of them, and re-echo for all the visiting brethren in the name of all our brethren present or absent, the most sincere and thankful recognition of their kindness which is on our lips, and will ever remain deeply engraven on our heart of hearts. At present, my dear brethren, I must ask all your indulgence, and think not that it is a useless or oratorical precaution.

My hesitation, you will understand, is most natural when I find myself in this new temple of which the opening is hailed by the presence of so many brethren, and when I see close to me, in the lodge, those worthy Masons whose voice would certainly have more authority than mine. But as the kindly will of our very dear Master and that of my brethren has conferred on me this difficult task, I will force myself to fulfil it, if not with talent at any rate with good will. Post tenebras lux. After darkness light. These words, my brethren, are very applicable to the situation we have just passed through, and in which we find ourselves to-day. "La Fraternité" had for the moment ceased to enlighten its "Orient." It remained in the shade, but it yet lived, and full of confidence in the revival of our work, notwithstanding the opposition we encountered, and the difficulties we experienced, we have always toiled as labourious workmen, that is to say, with ardour and perseverance. To emerge from the state of uncertainty in which we found ourselves placed by the force of circumstances, we addressed ourselves directly to the Grand Orient of France, and the very illustrious brethren who compose the Council of the Order, have been most willing, with the obliging aid of our most honoured Bro. Besançon, to receive our requests and to regularize our labours.

Ought it to be otherwise? Certainly not. Our lodge could not perish, it had to reform itself for its own good, of which I ever had the firmest hope—it must return to its origin to draw therefrom a new life. And so the happy day which now shines upon us, was at last to appear to unite the links of the past to those of the present. May the blessing of the great Architect of the Universe rest upon our generous brethren, may our love recompense them, and may our services and devotion repay to them, their numerous benefits to us.

Such pleasant and gentle sentiments so fill my heart at this moment that I am hardly able to express the happiness which I feel on seeing our efforts crowned with such success. I am profoundly moved by the solemnity, so much the more moved, because, putting aside my character of officer to preserve my liberty as a Mason, I am proud to be able to say that we owe this temple to the courage and persevering efforts of our very dear and venerable Master, Bro. Camps.

It is to him, the chief sanctuary, it is to him that all our gratitude is due. We are, therefore, ready to second his endeavours to increase the influence and consideration of Geneva Freemasonry. Under its exalted devotion our institution will be able to accomplish without difficulty the mission of pacific progress which its traditions have bequeathed to us. Have we not always thought that it was possible to unite mankind by suppressing little by little the causes which divide it? Have we not always thought that everything moved and changed itself in nature?—that everything held together and that we lived one for another here. Well, since it is thus, we hope yet for the reign of peace and of justice, and according to us, the best means for arriving at them, are toleration and liberty. I see before me the sacred symbols which represent to us the sublime principle which Masons our ancestors have defended in by-gone ages, at the peril of their lives, and which point out to us our duties. Therefore, to the work, my brothers. We will strive to penetrate the profound meaning of these symbols, to engrave them in our breasts, and practice the virtues which they teach. In the past ages, Freemasonry was preserved by humble workmen who desired to have amongst them, in the midst of all the persecution of which they were the victims, a link of brotherhood capable of assuring to those who are in misfortune, the succour of those who were in prosperity. Since that epoch Freemasonry has done nothing but advance. These bonds of union have ameliorated the social condition. To-day liberty reigns amongst us for all Freemasons, but Masonry has not said its last word. It is always a useful institution, mainly, because its end is to suppress all hatred, by putting in practice the broad principle—let us live one for another, let us support one another, and let us form a free people, united and strong, in order to combat those prejudices which create inequalities among men.

Our great object is the extinction of all animosity, of all fanaticism, of all intolerance, which, unhappily we yet see every day, deplorable spectacles in our age of light. May we continue our way and find ourselves again at the end of our course as united and as prosperous as we are here.

Deign, great God, to pour down the treasure of thy favours on the chief who governs us, on our very dear and very honourable Master, W. Camps, and to prolong his days for the good of his family, and of all the brethren who surround him now.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Dangerous Catarrhs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Influenza, are rife at this season of the year. Hepatic and renal congestions frequently occur as the result of checked skin action, giving rise to serious symptoms and preventing attention to business or pleasure. No time should be lost on the first appearance of any indications of the invasion of these diseases, for the symptoms may be checked effectually by the use of these valuable remedies, the penetrating local effect of the Ointment acts surely in the affected parts, and restores them to a healthy condition, and the pills, judiciously taken in accordance with the lucid directions, relieve the congestive capillaries and materially lessen the chance of serious mischief supererogating.—ADVT.

MASONIC SONG.

For the information of your correspondent H., I append the Hymn to which he referred in your issue of the 20th inst. It is to be found in "Ballads and Songs of the Peasantry of England," published by Charles Griffin & Co., Stationers' Hall Court, London.

THE MASONIC HYMN.

["This is a very ancient production, though given from a modern copy; it has always been popular amongst the poor 'brethren of the mystic tie.' The late Henry O'Brien, A.B., quotes the seventh verse in his essay on 'The Round Towers of Ireland.' He generally had a common copy of the hymn in his pocket, and on meeting with any of his antiquarian friends who were not Masons, was in the habit of thrusting it into their hands, and telling them that if they understood the mystic allusions they contained, they would be in the possession of a key which would unlock the Pyramids of Egypt. The tune to the hymn is peculiar to it, and is of a plaintive and solemn character."]

Come all you Freemasons that dwell around the globe,
That wear the badge of innocence, I mean the royal robe,
Which Noah he did wear when in the Ark he stood,
When the world was destroyed by a deluging flood.

Noah he was virtuous in the sight of the Lord,
He loved a Freemason that kept the secret word;
For he built the Ark, and he planted the first vine,
Now his soul in Heaven like an angel doth shine.

Once I was blind, and could not see the light,
Then up to Jerusalem I took my flight;
I was led by the Evangelist through a wilderness of care,
You may see by the sign and the badge that I wear.

On the 13th rose the Ark, let us join hand in hand,
For the Lord spake to Moses by water and by land;
Unto the pleasant river where by Eden it did rin,
And Eve tempted Adam by the serpent of sin.

When I think of Moses, it makes me to blush,
All on Mount Horeb where I saw the burning bush;
My shoes I'll throw off, and my staff I'll cast away,
And I'll wander like a pilgrim unto my dying day.

When I think of Aaron it makes me to weep,
Likewise of the Virgin Mary who lay at our Saviour's feet;
'Twas in the garden of Gethsemane where he had the bloody sweat;

Repent, my dearest brethren, before it is too late.

I thought I saw twelve dazzling lights, which put me in surprise,

And gazing all around me, I heard a dismal noise;
The serpent passed by me which fell unto the ground.
With great joy and comfort, the secret word I found.

Some say it is lost, but surely it is found,
And so is our Saviour, it is known to all around;
Search all the Scriptures over, and there it will be shown;
The tree that will bear no fruit must be cut down.

Abraham was a man well beloved by the Lord,
He was true to be found in great Jehovah's word,
He stretched forth his hand, and took a knife to slay his son,

An angel appearing, said, The Lord's will be done.

O, Abraham! O, Abraham! lay no hand upon the lad,
He sent him unto thee to make thy heart glad;
Thy seed shall increase like stars in the sky,
And thy soul unto Heaven, like Gabriel shall fly.

O, never! O, never, will I hear an orphan cry,
Nor yet a gentle virgin, until the day I die;
You wandering Jews, that travel the wide world round,
May knock at the door where truth is to be found.

Often against the Turks and infidels we fight,
To let the wandering world know we're in the right,
For in Heaven there's a lodge, and St. Peter keeps the door,

And none can enter in but those that are pure.

St. Peter, he opened, and so we entered in
Into the holy sect secure, which is all free from sin;
St. Peter, he opened, and so we entered there,
And the glory of the temple no man can compare.

Note.—Our able and Rev. Bro. Woodford may be able to give some authentic data of its origin. As a poem, little can be said of it. "Royal Arch Masons" will more readily interpret its meaning.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

If your correspondent, G. Baldwin, will put himself in communication with me, I shall be able to give him the information he is in quest of. I have a copy of the book, the correct title of which is as follows:—

"The sufferings of John Coustos, for Freemasonry, and for his refusing to turn Roman Catholic, in the Inquisition at Lisbon; where he was sentenced, during Four Years, to the Galley; and afterwards released from thence by the gracious interposition of His present Majesty King George II. To which is annex'd, The Origin of the Inquisition, with its Establishment in various Countries. A distinct account of that Tribunal, with many examples of its Injustice and Cruelty; and the practice of the Primitive Church, in bringing over Hereticks, compared with that of the Inquisition." With Portrait and Three curious Plates of the Tortures. Ld. Jon, 1746.

There is another kindred book, of which I have a copy, viz.—

"A Narrative of the Persecution of Hippolyto Joseph da Costa Pereira Furtado de Mendonça, a native of Colonia do Sacramento, on the River La Plata; imprisoned and tried in Lisbon, by the Inquisition, for the pretended crime of Freemasonry. To which are added, the Bye-Laws of the Inquisition at Lisbon, both Ancient and Modern (never before published). Taken from the originals in one of the Royal Libraries in London." Two Vols. Portrait. London, 1811.

JOHN HOGG.

In answer to our good Bro. G. Baldwin, John Coustos, whose "sufferings" for Freemasonry have been often told, was a native of Berne, in Switzerland; but tells us that his father became naturalized in England in 1716. In 1738 he states that he went to Lisbon, and there was seized by the familiars of the Inquisition, tortured by that amiable institution, and was for some time in prison, until released by the intervention of King George the Second, 1744. The edition I have (the first), is "published for the author by W. Strahan, 1746," and contains a very sad recital and two very disagreeable plates, with a portrait of Coustos. A considerable amount of money was raised for him on his return to England, he was presented to the King, and his book had a large number of subscribers. As regards the essential verity of his statement opinions may differ, but of his actual imprisonment by the Inquisition and ill-treatment there is, we believe, little doubt. His account may be exaggerated and his portrait gives you the idea of a man who has "done it very well." There are English and foreign editions of the work, and even one in M.S.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

AMERICAN FREEMASONRY.

I very heartily endorse the happy sketch of the progress of the Craft in the United States, and its charities, contained in the Freemason for March 6th.

The writer (and editor) is well known to the readers of the readable Keystone (Philadelphia) by his periodical letters respecting Freemasonry in Great Britain and Ireland, and we only wish that a brother equally competent would send similar communications from across the "Big-pond," so that we may be kept as well posted.

In the article reference is made to the Masonic contributions raised for national disasters in the United States. It has occurred to me that the assistance rendered by the American Craft to alleviate the distress caused by the great conflagration of October 8th and 9th, 1871 (through which so many brethren, and the widows and children of deceased Masons were rendered houseless, destitute, and poverty stricken), should be chronicled in the columns of the Freemason, and I have, therefore, carefully examined the final report of the proceedings of the Masonic Board of Relief (Chicago, 1872).

The energetic Grand Master at the time was the M.W. Bro. de Witt C. Cregier, and that most humane brother was the President; R.W. Bro. Holcomb, the V.P.; R.W. Bro. Egar, Grand Commander, K.T., Treasurer; and Bros. Haylett and Hill, Secretaries, with several other members and special committees. The report comprehends 160 pages of closely printed matter (octavo), is a model for clearness of details, and yet brief withal, and from beginning to end furnishes evidences of the discretion, carefulness, and fraternal manner in which the committee discharged their important trust.

The entire cash donations amounted to	...	Circa.
Supplies of goods valued at	...	£16,618
		1,509
		£18,127
Of this amount there was disbursed in the relief of the numerous applicants, grants to Chicago Lodges, the expenses of the Board, &c., &c., all minutely explained in the report	...	£13,761
		£4,366

The balance unappropriated, and which was in excess of the Masonic requirements to meet the distress was £4,366! which amount be it observed was returned to the donors.

From England the only contribution sent was £74 2s. 6d. from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire, the fraternity generally in this country having had a preference to subscribe to the general fund, which, as we know, the Grand Lodge, and many of its lodges most liberally aided.

The accounts were audited by the Grand Masters of Pennsylvania, District of Columbia and Iowa, and the Private Secretary of the first mentioned. Need we say more as to the truly Masonic character of American Freemasonry, when such a noble sum was contributed (with but few exceptions) from the Craft in the United States.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. D. H. HILL.

The whole Masonic brotherhood in the province of West Lancashire and Cheshire will learn with deep regret that Bro. Charles Hesketh Hill, Solicitor, died at his residence, Rose Cottage, Seaview-road, Liscard, near Birkenhead, on Thursday, the 25th ult. Our deceased brother, who was 60 years old, was long known as a zealous, conscientious, and consistent Freemason, and for many years was closely identified and took a warm interest in all Masonic schemes. He was P.M. of the Derby Lodge, No. 724, and several other lodges, and was a member of nearly all the other Orders. He was P.G. Registrar for West Lancashire in 1873-75, and took a warm interest in all Masonic charities, both in Cheshire and West Lancashire, frequently giving his countenance and support to meetings in connection with the different institutions. The remains of our deceased brother were interred at Wallasey Church, on Monday, when there was a large attendance of the brethren connected with local lodges.

BRO. JOHN JONES, P.M. 205.

We have to announce the death of Bro. John Jones, an old inhabitant of Barnstaple, and who had been connected with the Newspaper Press for nearly forty years. Bro. Jones was a member of a Glamorgan family, some of whom settled in the neighbourhood of Lynton many generations ago. The deceased was born at Callington, in Cornwall, in the year 1801. He was brought up to the scholastic profession, and for many years was assistant-master at Mr. Carpenter's school at Pilton, and also assistant-mathematical teacher at the Barnstaple Grammar School, when under the mastership of the late Rev. Henry Nicholls. He afterwards became the proprietor of the North Devon Advertiser, a Conservative journal, up to the time of his decease. Bro. Jones was one of the oldest brethren of the Loyal Lodge, No. 251, in Barnstaple, and for two successive years was the Worshipful Master. About eight years ago, in conjunction with Bro. Samuel Jones, of Exeter, the deceased assisted in the formation of a Lodge of Freemasons at Ilfracombe, and was appointed the Worshipful Master there for the first year. He was also a director of the North Devon Building Society. Bro. Jones had been unwell for some months past, and last Thursday he was seized with inflammation of the lungs, and expired on Friday evening.

BRO. CHARLES OLDROYD.

The Province of West Yorkshire has been bereaved of two excellent and distinguished brethren. Bro. Charles Oldroyd, of Lodge No. 208, Dewsbury, after gradually declining health, paid the last debt of nature on 25th February last, at the age of fifty-two years. He held the office of Prov. G. Registrar in 1862, and P. G. Treasurer from 1867 to 1873. He was initiated on the 7th Sept. 1845. The memory of his name is cherished.

BRO. JAMES PEACE.

Bro. James Peace, of Lodge No. 279, Huddersfield, was initiated on 26th May, 1842, and gathered to his fathers on 4th March, inst., having exceeded, by four years, the allotted space of three score years and ten. He served as Prov. G. Junior Warden in 1849, and as Prov. G. Organist in 1851-2, and was also Past Prov. G.J. in the Royal Arch. He was exceedingly well versed in the ritual and lore of our Craft and Arch Masonry, and greatly interested himself in communicating to his brethren the knowledge he possessed. His veneration for and tenacity to the ancient landmarks and constitutions of our Order were excellently portrayed in his Masonic character. Peace to his ashes.

Masonic Tidings.

Our exalted Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold has given a donation of £50 to the hospital for sick children.

The North China Herald, of Jan 21st, says:—"The following Masonic appointments have recently been made. At the meeting of the Royal Sussex Lodge (No. 501) on 28th Dec.—H. D. Camajee, W.M.; J. G. C. Stent, P.M.; J. Brown, S.W.; R. Pestonjee, Treas.; U. Harris, Sec.; J. Passmore, S.D.; B. Minck, J.D.; T. Ford, I.G.; T. Hore, Tyler. At the meeting of the Tuscan Lodge (No. 1024) on 4th inst.—J. J. Miller, W.M.; T. W. Ecdfeldt, P.M.; L. Moore, S.W.; J. F. Goodfellow, J.W.; H. J. C. Barlow, Treas.; J. C. Hughes, Sec.; R. Palamountain, S.D.; W. Hopkins, J.D.; T. Hore, Tyler. The officers of the Northern Lodge of China for 1875 are:—E. Tobin, W.M.; W. A. Turnbull, P.M.; H. Watson, S.W.; R. Ferguson, J.W.; M. Hawtreay, Treas.; C. V. Housman, Sec.; H. S. B. Usill, S.D.; A. Bean, J.W.; W. Brand, I.G.; T. Hore, Tyler."

On Friday, the 26th ult., Bro. Crawley, P.M. 174, gave his lecture on conversation at the Highgate Literary Club, at Bro. Garrett's Bull and Gate, Kentish Town. The brethren connected with the Club, and the visitors expressed satisfaction. After the lecture several of the members played Mozart's First Symphony, and also Haydn's quartette No. 39 for strings. First violin, Bro. A. Dickinson; Second violin, Mr. R. Dickinson; Viola, Mr. B. Scarlett; Violoncello, Bro. Crawley.

The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will, on Saturday next, the 30th inst., be the guests of the Great City Lodge. Lodge will be opened at four o'clock, in the pillar hall, at the City Terminus Hotel, and banquet will be served at six o'clock, in the great hall.

The "Golden Wedding" of Bro. Ransford, the well-known vocalist, will be celebrated by a dinner to his friends, which the Lord Mayor has kindly arranged to take place at the Mansion House on the 23rd inst.

Bro. Right Hon. the Lord Mayor will preside at a festival of the Royal South London Ophthalmic Hospital, to be held at the Bridge House Hotel, on Friday, the 19th inst.

The consecration of the St. Mary Magdalen Lodge, No. 1523, will take place at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on Wednesday, April 7th.

Contrary to report, the Pope did not descend into St. Peter's yesterday (Friday, 5th inst.). The Vatican papers described His Holiness as "grievously afflicted" about the opening of the Masonic Temple in Rome on Friday. The condemnatory language used by the Osservatore had the effect of making several foreign Freemasons attend the ceremony, which is described as having been very picturesque.—Echo.

Wednesday, the 10th inst., being the twelfth anniversary of the marriage of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, the occasion was celebrated at Windsor by the ringing of the bells of the Chapel Royal and the firing of a Royal salute of twenty-one guns in the Long Walk.

All Communications should be sent to 198, Fleet Street.

R. CARTER.—You ask how a W.M. can initiate one candidate, pass three, and raise four the same day, and, you add, you supposed that it must be done by suppression of the individual ceremony. If so, the W.M. is clearly acting, in our opinion, illegally. Initiation, passing, and raising are personal ceremonies, and cannot be performed in any way, we feel sure, in "groups." The best way would be to get the formal opinion of the Board of General Purposes on a case, as any member of the lodge can clearly object to and protest against such a "hash" of the ceremonial.

W.H. (Wellington, New Zealand).—Would you kindly answer the following queries, by so doing you will oblige, not only myself, but many of my colonial brethren. 1st. Is it proper for the members of a lodge to be summoned to attend the funeral of a brother, with instructions to appear in white gloves and neckties, without other insignia as Masons, and when there, to walk behind the mourning cortege. [Masonic Funerals are not of obligation.—Ed.] and. A Past Master (S.C.) advises the R.W.M. to rule, that none but M.M.'s. can vote on the admission of candidates to Masonry; further stating that an E.A. cannot either speak or vote on any question; a F.C. may speak but not vote. I have looked through the Book of Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and can find no such provision, please inform me whence comes the ruling? [The W.M. is wrong on every point, and his ruling is untenable.—Ed.]

3rd. Bro. Henry Melville, well-known in this part of the world as the "Father of the Tasmanian Press," spent 40 years of his life on the production of a work entitled "The Lost Secrets of Masonry," it was in the hands of the publisher when he died some two years ago; he left peculiar conditions in his will in re the publication, which would take too much of your valuable space to recapitulate. Can you inform me if the publication has been completed, or if there is any likelihood of its shortly being so. [Bro. Melville's work has been published under the title of "Veritas."—Ed.]

The following stand over: Letters from "An Old P.M.;" "A P.M.;" Bro. Wigginton, (Poetry); A. Lawrence; D.A.; J. W. Harper. Reports of Lodges 1473, 1474, E.C.; 31, 27, 347, 354, 419, 541, 556, S.C.

W.H. (New Zealand).—Offer declined with thanks.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1875.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

—We have much pleasure in being able to inform our readers of the preliminary steps which are being taken for the purpose of making arrangements for the proceedings at the coming installation of His Royal Highness as Grand Master of English Freemasons, at Albert Hall, on the 28th April. The particulars will be found in another column.

THE ALBERT HALL.

The Albert Hall, which has been selected by H.R.H. the Grand Master as the "locale" of his installation, April 28th, is, as many of our readers will know, that circular building at Kensington, in juxtaposition with the monument of the lamented Prince Consort. It has, no doubt, been chosen on account of the number it can conveniently receive, as those who are expected to attend, far exceed the normal accommodation of Freemasons' Hall. The building in which it is proposed that the Craft should muster for our "Annual Grand Assembly," and above all on the auspicious occasion of the installation of the Prince of Wales, has an outward circumference of 764 feet, its largest diameter being 219 feet 4 inches, and its smallest 185 feet 4 inches. Its interior arena is 102 feet by 68, and there are twenty-two distinct staircases for the 8000 visitors who can all be seated. Access to the building is gained by three entrances. One end of this large hall is occupied by the orchestra, in the midst of which appears the organ. In front of the orchestra is the area, surrounded by rising seats like those in a Roman Amphitheatre, which lead up to a triple tier of boxes. The upward sweep of the amphitheatre seats is continued in a lesser degree to the box tiers, each tier being placed somewhat further back than the one beneath it, and thus a double benefit is gained, everybody can see everybody else, and the architectural effect is enhanced. We are indebted to our contemporary, the Graphic, for this short, if clear account of the Albert Hall, and we shall await with interest the regulations and arrangements of the day's ceremonial. Our readers may depend on having them printed for their information the moment we receive them ourselves.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION OF GRAND LODGE.

The large attendance of brethren on Wednesday last, the 3rd instant, showed how deep was the interest which the election of the Grand Master had caused in our ever-loyal Craft. The ringing cheers which greeted the unanimous resolution of Grand Lodge, evidenced, if evidence were needed by anyone, what a subject of rejoicing to the entire brotherhood is the re-election of our august Grand Master. A very becoming expression of fraternal sympathy to the Pro Grand Master in his afflictive bereavement, was moved by Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury, seconded by Bro. Lord Limerick, and feelingly assented to by Grand Lodge. The condolence of all English Freemasons is with our distinguished brother in his affliction and heavy trial. The report of the Board of Benevolence was next considered, after a communication from Quebec, and a very serious report it was. £700, voted at the last meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence; among the votes for confirmation, were two of £200 each, an unusual occurrence. Well might Bro. Clabon put in a timely word of warning. From the discussion which ensued, it is quite clear that the warnings of Bro. Clabon, and the good advice of Bro. Havers were in truth imperatively required. It is all very well for brethren to expatiate upon what a brother has done for the Charities; but that is not the only ground of relief. Excellent are our Charities, worthy is the cause they represent, and most praiseworthy are the efforts some of our brethren make, even beyond their means, to aid these admirable and deeply-needed institutions. But we agree with Bro. Joshua Nunn, in pointing out what a good many of us often forget, apparently, that an old-fashioned authority, one which now-a-days is too little regarded in our dealings with men and things, said, long ago, "that if any provide not for his own, but especially for those of his own house, he is worse than an 'infidel.'" Our brethren are so genial and large-hearted as a rule, that they often lose sight of the truth that in all these cases, "charity really begins at home." If a brother gives up all his time and substance for Freemasonry, and leaves his family, those nearest and dearest to him, so destitute that they have at once to apply to the Craft, this fact, though it may constitute a claim for them, it is no justification for him. Every case must be decided on its own merits, and we can lay down no general rule which will apply safely to all cases, as some are exceptional and special in the highest degree. But the warning to the brethren who constitute the Lodge of Benevolence to watch carefully over their grants is one which cannot be given too strongly, or repeated too often. We do not think that it is quite fair to throw all the "onus" of this largeness and open-heartedness of Masonic charity on the W.Ms. who attend occasionally. We have always been of opinion that, subject to one or two slight modifications, the original constitution of the Lodge of Benevolence should be carefully preserved for the best interests of Freemasonry. We do not believe that any blame can attach to what has been termed the "shifting character of the lodge." That is inevitable from the constitution of the lodge being an open board, and no scheme that we have ever yet seen or heard of, except one of an elected board, can do away with this special characteristic of the Lodge of Benevolence. But in our humble opinion, that constitutes alike the reality and the value of the Lodge of Benevolence to our entire Order, and the moment you take away this great open court of benevolence from English Freemasonry, you make a sacrifice to the spirit of centralization which is distinctive of provincial interest in this living and abiding duty of Freemasonry. We are of opinion, however, that if brethren would weigh all the cases accurately, and in the judicial spirit of Bro. Clabon, and, without laying down a hard-and-fast line, which we believe is impossible, would attend to the principles of donation he has so lucidly suggested, a greater uniformity of action on the part of the Lodge of Benevolence would be speedily attained. There is a tendency sometimes to make cases, the cases of Bro. A, or Bro. C, or Bro. E, forgetting that in the great exercise of Masonic charity, individuality and personality ought to go for nothing, and that the grant should be decided and acceded to only on right principles, and on constitutional grounds. We congratulate the Craft on the return of Bro. Havers to the Board of General Purposes. Great as have been his services to the Order, and long as has been his official training, so long that he may almost claim to be "emeritus" in the faithful army of Freemasons, we feel sure that we are expressing the opinion of the vast majority of our Order when we say we are glad to know that we still can count on the sound advice, the sobered judgment, and the loyal devotion to our good old Craft of our very able and distinguished brother, the Past Grand Warden, in the official arrangements of Grand Lodge.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS.
No. V.

One of the great hindrances to the study of Masonic Archæology, and one of the greatest reproaches against Freemasonry, has been the compilation of fictitious documents. The profane critic all but naturally, when he discovers this or that "fraus pia," immediately begins to suspect all our documents. Many animadversions have been cast on Freemasonry on account of one or two unfortunate and unjustifiable errors—we would even say crimes of this kind. Our earlier historians and writers accepted too readily what was put forward as an old MS. or a venerable document, and exercised little caution and less criticism, in some evidences which they received as genuine and handed on as such to us. Take for instance what is called the Locke MS. though that is a misnomer. This purports to be a Masonic catechism of the reign of Henry VI., to have been seen by him, if not written out by him, and to have been copied by Leland, the famous antiquary, when found by him in one of the monasteries, by command of Henry VIII. But the curious part of this document is, that it is not a MS., but translated professedly from a German book, printed at Frankfurt. It first appeared in the "Gentlemen's Magazine," about the middle of the last century, was reproduced in the Masonic Magazine later, was previously used by Hutchinson, and subsequently by Preston, was accepted by Oliver, and has been repeated ever since in all Masonic works more or less. The German pamphlet has not yet been found, and Kloss doubts if it ever did exist. How it could have got into the "Gentlemen's Magazine" no one knows, or who sent it to that journal. One copy of it in MS. exists in the British Museum, in the handwriting of Essex, the celebrated architect, late 18th century, and is probably a transcription of one of the printed copies. It was originally said that Leland's copy existed in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, but it is not to be found there, and Leland himself nowhere mentions it. It has had additional interest given to it by the alleged letter of John Locke. Dr. Oliver seems to think that the letter was genuine—the modern school of Masonic critics greatly doubt the fact. Indeed, it seems very dubious if Locke ever was a Mason at all, and no reason has ever been suggested why a letter to Lord Pembroke from him, should be first printed in a German pamphlet. The verbiage of the alleged catechism is very peculiar, and experts have said that the archaisms are unnatural, and in fact, made-up. The document in its present form is clearly a fiction, it is not what it purports to be, it cannot be what it claims to be. But it is just possible that we have in it an old form of Masonic Catechism, in use in some of the lodges, which by an ignorant brother, or by a profane, has been added to and garbled in order to serve his end. What that end could be, we cannot very well see, unless indeed it be, to support the old tradition that Henry VI. was a member of our Order. But it is useless to speculate. Whoever introduced this document in the "Gentlemen's Magazine," no doubt did it designedly; if he was a Freemason, it must have been from some mistaken idea of adding to the antiquity of our Order; if a non-Mason from ignorance or mischief. Subject to what we have said above, we must reject it as available evidence for our truth-loving and historical Order. The Charter of Cologne, is equally an inculpated, and equally an untenable document. Its history is somewhat obscure and intricate. It seems to have first appeared in Holland, whether made there or not we know not; but though for a time it was accepted, it has long since been given up by Masonic critics. Brother Findel, in Germany, some time ago denied its genuineness and its authenticity, and such has been also the verdict of our modern English critical school. It is not a document of much importance in itself, and we can dismiss it here, with the expression of our opinion, that we wonder any competent critics should ever have been imposed upon by its hopeless and unhistorical statements. But here we must stop for to-day, as the examination into the alleged Constitutions of Edwin, printed by Krause, requires more space than we can give to it, and a great deal may be said on both sides of the question, at least as regards the special character of the document.

THE RIGHTS OF VISITING BRETHREN.

Many of our good brethren and correspondents seem to be somewhat perplexed with one or two difficulties attendant on this subject, which has always been somewhat of a "vexata questio" to our lodges. And some, we note, are rather disposed to blame what they term the "obscurity" of the Book of Constitutions on the matter. Now, with due submission to all such, we venture to express our opinion to-day, "au contraire," that the Book of Constitutions is quite explicit on the subject, and the law it lays down is equally sound and practical. We must bear this in mind, that while, by the general principles of our Order, all duly registered Freemasons, with their certificates and duly vouched for, can claim to be admitted to the working of a lodge, our lodges never have professed except on personal acquaintance, to admit all visiting brethren to their social reunions. Such is the hospitality of our genial Order, that, as a general rule, their hospitality is as co-extensive as their Masonic reception, but cases might arise in which, though they might receive a visiting brother "jure suo," in the hour of work, they might not desiderate his presence in the time of refreshment. We admit that such cases are rare, but they may occur, and they do occur, and some of our brethren seem to forget that the lodge has two characters, so to say, its public character in work, and its private character in refreshment. Each lodge is, or ought to be, a little family, an aggregation of private friends, and no one, without the full consent of the brethren, has a right to interfere with their freedom of action or intrude on their privacy in this respect. But let us see what it is that our Book of Constitutions really does lay down. These are the words of the law. "No visitor shall be admitted into a lodge unless he is personally known, recommended, or well vouched for, after due examination, by one of the present brethren." Two conditions of admission are clearly here expressed. The visitor must be known or recommended by some brother of the lodge, and must be vouched for as a Mason, after due examination, if he be not known to any of the brethren, by a member of the lodge. Nothing is said about his certificate. As a general rule, what occurs when an unknown visiting brother is announced, is this. A brother is deputed to examine him, and the production of the certificate is undoubtedly to be recommended as a proof of identity. But if the visiting brother passes his due examination and can conscientiously be vouched for by a member of the lodge, in our opinion the requirements of the Book of Constitutions are fulfilled. But the whole question really turns, for the most part, on the subsequent social reunion. In consequence many lodges make a rule, and they have a right to do so, that unless a visitor is introduced by a brother, personally, or be invited by the W.M. in the name of the lodge, he cannot be admitted to their private gatherings. And we confess we cannot see how our lodges err in making their refreshment hour as private and as confidential as can be. There are some good brethren of ours who go from lodge to lodge, whether they know any of the brethren or not, and expect, without demur and without fail to be at once welcomed into their private meetings. Now all who have had much experience of lodge life, know well how difficult often the exercise of hospitality becomes. We are met, a friendly "band of brothers," knowing each other well, intimately acquainted with each other's foibles, and, finding amusement from the lodge jest, and all of a sudden a stranger who knows none of these things, and understands none of these things, comes amongst us like a "wet blanket." In a moment geniality is chilled, the song is hushed, the joke is unheard. We have exchanged the full flow of warm-hearted sociality for the formality of etiquette, for "doing the civil." We write quite philosophically on the subject, stating facts as they are, as we do not profess to deal either in the sensational or in bombast. Hospitality is a very good thing and very commendable, and we may even, in these common-place days, sometimes "entertain angels unawares," but hospitality, like charity, still begins "at home." We cannot, therefore, blame those brethren who make the admission to their inner circle a privilege and not a right, though we shall uphold at all times the claim of all duly registered and subscribing members, subject to the provision of the Book of Constitutions, to be admitted to the working lodge.

BRO. CAPTAIN AILLET.

We publish in another column a most interesting account of generosity and good feeling on the part of a brother, Captain Joseph Aillet, of the French Mercantile Marine, and Commander of the ship Cilaos. It appears that the Industry, of the Port of London, commanded also by a brother, William Reid, was burnt at sea, in South Latitude 33° 47', and East Longitude 52° 47', and the captain and the crew took to the boats. While in the open sea the French ship Cilaos, commander our good Bro. Joseph Aillet, came across the captain and some of the crew in one boat, and then went in search of the other two boats. This gallant brother received the captain and all the crew in the Cilaos, took them to Réunion, where he handed them over to the Britannic Consul. He had hospitably entertained the captain and twenty-one seamen for fourteen days, but declined emphatically to receive any payment whatever for their subsistence, though offered him by the English Consul. The Consul's despatch to the Foreign Office announcing this act of devotion and charity was published in the official journal of Réunion, and we give it also in another column. These two seamen brethren were cordially received by the Lodge L'Amitié, Orient de St. Denis, at Réunion, under the Grand Orient of France, and the kindly brethren raised an immediate subscription to purchase clothes, &c., for the destitute sailors. We feel sure that our generous English Craft will appreciate at once this truly Masonic conduct of Bro. Captain Joseph Aillet. And those of us who have at heart not only the peace of the world, but the lasting friendship of two great nations like France and England, will rejoice to hear of another little proof, if proof be wanting, how great, happily, are the mutual good will and good feeling between two such civilized and neighbouring people. We do not know if any official notice can be taken by our Grand Lodge, of the disinterested assistance of Bro. Aillet, or the fraternal sympathy of the Lodge L'Amitié at Réunion, but sure we are of this, that any English Freemason who reads the account in another column will feel how true a representative of the loving spirit of Freemasonry is our gallant Bro. Joseph Aillet, the Captain of the good French ship Cilaos.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

This article in the impression of your paper of the 20th ult., prompts me to give an answer as far as German Freemasonry is concerned, by inserting which in your next issue you will greatly oblige.

You are perfectly correct, when you speak of the great number of Grand Lodges with several varieties of system which exist in Germany. Since 1866 the number has diminished, but we still have eight Grand Lodges, besides five independent lodges, and one lodge in Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, working under a charter of the Grand Lodge of England. I may remind you, however, that the union of all lodges in England under one Grand Lodge only was accomplished under the Duke of Sussex, the 13th December, 1813. It was about the same time, when Bro. Schroeder, of the Grand Lodge of Hamburg strove to purify German Freemasonry from all the mysticism and strict observances imported into German Masonry from Sweden, by Zinnendorf. He was aided in his endeavours by such men as Goethe, Wieland, Duke Karl August, and others, and you will find by this time that most of the German Grand Lodges have returned to the rational English Craft Masonry with three degrees. The Grand National Lodge of the Three Globes, the Grand Lodge Royal York, both at Berlin, and the Grand Lodge of Hamburg, have essentially the English Ritual, whilst the Grand Land-Lodge v.D., at Berlin retained the Swedish Ritualism. The light of Freemasonry, however, shines through all, sometimes clear and bright, sometime a little dim; and the one of Freemasons' landmarks; the exclusion of all political and religious polemics, is as strictly adhered to in Germany as in England.

The saying of Frederick the Great, that the Freemasons were his most loyal subjects, still holds good to-day. Since Frederick, who was made a Mason in the lodge Absalom, in Brunswick, the 14th of August, 1738, the Royal Family of Prussia have always favoured Freemasonry, and the present King of Prussia and Emperor of Germany is protector of the Craft, and he and his son are known to be good and active working Freemasons. As regards religion, I dare say that, as discussions, especially in lodges of instruction, are more free in Germany than here, attempts may have been made to introduce this topic, but such attempts will always be promptly suppressed as soon as it becomes known to the higher authorities.

So far in answer to answer to your charges, and now let me point out some differences between English and German lodges.

The public-house question has been solved in Germany long ago. Even in small towns you mostly find a Logenhaus, a club-house with a temple, belonging to the Freemasons of the town. The brethren will assemble there at least once a week, banquets, always cheaply arranged and paid for, not by the lodges, but by those who partake of them, are less frequent than in the English lodge-year, but the younger brethren have to be all the more regular in their attendance for instruction, if they wish to be advanced. The entrance fees generally are moderate, but in the choice of candidates the utmost care is taken. A candidate has always to wait twelve months before he is ballotted for, and during this time he is watched by all the brethren of the lodge, whose business it is to make themselves acquainted with his character, habits, and morals, before the ballot takes place. After he has become an apprentice he has again to wait at least twelve months before he is passed into the second degree, and mostly a still longer time before he can be raised to the third degree. There is but little scope for office-hunting, the Worshipful Master and the officers being mostly re-elected year after year until they themselves tender their resignation.

The total number of the German lodges is estimated at about 310, but these lodges contain larger numbers and are altogether more lasting in their existence than is the case in England, and it is a rare occurrence in Germany for a brother to leave his lodge, and to resign, unless forced by external circumstances.

I remain, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,
KARL BERGMAN, J.W. of Pilgrim, No. 228

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to offer a suggestion and to ask a question in relation to the unprecedented ceremony about to take place in connection with the installation of our Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Is the rule to be absolute that none but Past Masters can be present on this auspicious occasion, and if so, why? To shut out Master Masons would be unjust and dishonourable; at least, such is my opinion. It is scarcely within the realm of every Master Mason to become a Past Master, then why should this exclusiveness be exercised. I of myself know a little multitude of full-grown Master Masons who are quite as worthy to appear in the presence of His Royal Highness as any Past Master, and no argument or reason presents itself to me that they should be "disbarred" this privilege.

It would be unjust to close the door upon Master Masons of ten years standing, or any Master Mason. This body of Freemasons are the backbone and sinew of our most noble brotherhood. Master Masons, as a rule, are men of the right stamp—charitable—and numbers of them are Past Stewards, and many are Governors of our charities, and yet, withal, not Past Masters. I, for one, think these brethren should have the immunity of being present. I hold that it would be a lasting slur upon this, the greater and stronger body of Freemasons, should they be excluded, simply because they have not passed the chair, and never having had the opportunity.

If the rule is absolute, which I think might be relaxed if the feeling was made known at head-quarters, with all decorum and courtesy, and as the ceremony of installation will partake of the character of a levée, being in the presence of royalty, nay more, the heir to the throne of England's empire is to be enthroned our Grand Master. Let me suggest that if exclusiveness is to be the barrier of Master Masons being present, make Court dress a law of necessity, and if, upon this authority, Master Masons can appear, we should have a large addition to the grand gathering, and they would help to raise, as well as help to swell, the honour on this unique occasion. There are numberless Master Masons gentlemen in the full acceptance of the word who are not Past Masters. I would earnestly press this matter and should thank you to offer a means whereby Master Masons can become eligible.

This installation will be a red-letter day in England's history, the fame of which is already sounding abroad, not only Masonically, but as a protest against the puny and silly anathemas of an intolerant and lugubrious priesthood, whom England's eldest son and pride will tolerate—all and every honour to him for his manliness in taking upon himself this great office in the very face of this unmeaning party,

Hearty good wishes, sincerely and fraternally yours,
"NON NOBIS SED OMNIBUS."

THE RIGHT OF VISITING LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was greatly surprised to see in your issue of Saturday last, a kind of half admission by "Busy Bee," that a stranger had no right of entrance to a Masonic Lodge, unless personally known, recommended, and vouched for by one of the brethren present, and a half-hearted kind of defence of the same, lest some expelled member, or some clever cowlan, obtained admittance to our lodge-rooms. Bosh! The same might be said about the issue of bank notes, on the ground that a forged one might be uttered, or another presented from a bank which had failed to meet its liabilities. In the one case, so long as a man stands before you, to all external appearance a just and upright man and a Mason, you are to receive him as such, until the contrary be proved; and in the other case, I think he would be a very clever cowlan indeed who could pass himself off as a Mason at my lodge.

My contention, sir, is, that the spirit of Masonry, its scope, its object, and its purpose (with other noble aims), is to unite man to man more and more; instead of giving pain, to be the medium of joy and gladness; to be the channel by which men of divers notions and languages may meet on the square for the purpose of giving and receiving information, and to render every kind office which justice or mercy may require; to ennoble a man wherever he may be, either in his own land or in a far-off country, in the crowded city or the secluded village; to exclaim with pride and satisfaction, "I am a Master Mason; try me and prove me," and being found in all points a true man and no spy, he shall meet with that friendly grip which none but Masons know, and shall find friendly steps which shall be ever ready, even through dangers and difficulties, to meet with such an one, in forming a column for mutual support and defence.

I care nothing for the strained interpretation of page 89 of the Constitutions. To me it appears perfectly clear, that it is the easiest thing possible for one of the brethren present to step out, try, and prove the strange brother; finding him right, he vouches for him, and introduces him to the lodge, where I have always known him to be most cordially received. If this be not so, what is the good of all our secret signs, our tokens, our grips, and our words? If I, before being admitted as a Mason, have to be known, vouched for, and recommended, then there is no need for all these elaborate precautions. Our lodges, being scattered over the surface of the whole habitable globe, to me is nought; since, presenting myself at a strange lodge, I am met with the words, "depart from me, I know you not."

Are these brotherly love, relief, and truth? Is this the result of making ourselves known by signs, tokens, and perfect points of entrance.

Fraternally yours, JOSEPH PARKER, W.M. 346.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS.—No. III.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I am much interested in the series of articles entitled "Archæological Progress," and hope several more are yet to follow from your facile pen, and many other students of Masonic history have been similarly gratified to note their character.

As to the "Johannite teaching," I am quite certain that your statement is correct, viz., "It is quite clear, historically, that the Johannite teaching of Freemasonry, as suggested by Dr. Oliver, is, if not actually of the 18th century, at any rate not earlier than the 17th. In fact, I go farther, and declare it is my belief that the Festivals of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist were not common to the Craft until the last century. In other words, these 'Saints' were not the adopted Saints of Freemasonry until after the Revival of 1717."

You allude to the lodge at Alnwick, of which I gave a long account in the Freemason of January 21st, 1871. The "Orders" of Sept. 29th, 1701, provided for the Two Wardens being chosen on the "Feast of St. Michael the Archangel," and Apprentices were only to be "accepted" (after having served seven years) at that Feast. A few years later, the Festival of St. John the Evangelist was selected for the anniversary. You say truly "Of St. John the Baptist we find no trace" until the last century.

In the Ordinario Cementarium, circa, A.D. 1370, ("Fabric Rolls of York Munster") will be found some curious laws to regulate "ye loge," "ye maystyr masoun," and "all ye masouns."

Though it is true we are not so well off in England as respects lodge records as in Scotland, yet we have the foregoing preserved, which is of considerable value, especially as it is of the fourteenth century, and a lodge record or code of regulations withal.

Then there is the entry in Elias Ashmole's Diary of Oct. 16th, 1646, of his reception, with Colonel Mainwaring, at Warrington, and the names of the brethren who attended the lodge. Also the visit of that well known antiquary at a lodge in London at Mason's Hall, March 10th, 1682.

There are also other references which will occur to you, and which are worth being collected and presented in one of your articles of the series, exhibiting the records and accounts of lodge meetings, &c., in England, prior to 1717.

Fraternally yours, WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

THE FREEMASONS' LIFEBOAT SUPPORT FUND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The gratuitous services rendered by you in the lifeboat movement, induces me to ask a space in your next edition for this letter, that will enable me to explain the reason the above movement fell through. I think it would be found in the last report that appeared in your columns, Bro. A. E. Harris and myself were confined to our homes from illness, which prevented our attending the meeting; it was afterwards intimated to me by Bro. Harris, that his professional engagements, combined with the occasional indisposition, would prevent his attendance in future. Unfortunately a continuous affliction of rheumatic gout prevented my attending to business; since then, finding that a support movement could not be effected without the continual assistance of a committee, I made enquiries of Mr. R. Lewis, the Secretary of the National Lifeboat Institution, if the sum of £500 could be realised by subscriptions, whether it would be accepted by that committee as a permanent endowment for the "Freemasons' Lifeboat." I received a letter of thanks to the Freemasons for their kind consideration of the institution, and that the sum specified would be accepted with pleasure. I wrote to several members upon the subject, but being confined to my bed for many months, was unable to form a committee. From the columns of your contemporary I find a rival movement has been started, and Bro. Constable has given notice to Grand Lodge that he would apply for a grant of £100 to endow the Freemasons' lifeboat, he having the sum of £335 in hand, I delayed writing until the result of the application was known, but find it was not made, I visited my lodge last meeting to ascertain the feeling of the members. As to forming a committee for the purpose of realising the amount required, I am pleased to state I shall be supported. Knowing how heavily the pockets of the brotherhood are taxed, I would suggest a very easy mode of collecting the amount; it would require the co-operation of W.M.'s and P.Z.'s, that they would, one night during their year of office, seek a subscription of sixpence each from every member present. Taking the average of thirty members at each meeting, 100 lodges and chapters, would produce £750, but supposing only half that number assembled, a Fancy Fair, by gifts from the wives, sisters and daughters of Masons would enable us to carry out the object.

I shall be glad to receive the opinions of the brotherhood through your columns, or by post, to me, with names of those who will assist on committee, as a meeting will be called immediately after the next meeting of the Faith Lodge, that officers may be elected, my accounts audited, and the money deposited in the London and Westminster Bank, in the names of the President, Treasurer, and Hon. Secretary, and a banker's receipt produced at each meeting, as was formerly carried out by

Yours fraternally, SOLOMON DAVIS,
Faith, 141.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"Busy Bee" says that the oldest P.M. of a lodge rejoining it after an absence of a year or more becomes the youngest. The Book of Constitutions does not say so. I rely on the latter authority. "Magnus Ohren" says that the Book of Constitutions does not empower lodges to apply their funds to any other than Masonic charities or purposes, but it empowers lodges to make bye-laws, and by these bye-laws lodges may be so empowered. I never, during the forty years that I have been a Mason, saw such powers contained in any bye-laws, and if there are no such bye-laws, how then, Bro. Magnus Ohren?

If you will kindly give these few remarks a place in your next paper, I will not again trouble you on these subjects.

Your ever faithful brother,
AN OLD P.M., ONE, &c.

OUR MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You have, on many occasions, advocated the cause of our Charities in your valuable paper. That I have ventured to say a few words on this particular subject, as the plan of support falls very short of a proper development, which should exist in such a body of Freemasons as we possess. I fear it will require a more able pen than mine, and a stronger argument than I can place on paper, to create a change in our system, but still I hope to solicit some stronger power on my side to advocate the cause of our Charities, whereby they may be supported by a large majority of its members instead of a very small minority.

It does appear to me somewhat strange that the Charity Committees should continue, year after year, to appeal to the large-heartedness of the few, instead of developing a scheme for the easier method of obtaining that support for our charities they so justly deserve.

I shall now offer several suggestions for the further consideration of our members.

1st. Every brother, giving a donation of five guineas, and collecting fifteen more, shall be entitled to the Charity Jewel.

2nd. That collecting-cards be prepared by the Secretary of each Institution, leaving sufficient space between the lines for every subscriber to write his name and address and the sum subscribed. All cards to be forwarded to the W.M. of the lodge, who is to take charge of all monies collected, and to forward the same to the Secretary of the Institution. No second card to be issued to any lodge until the first is returned and cash received at head quarters.

3rd. That the Committees of the Charities should make an alteration in the annual fees payable to the Institutions to meet the more advanced times. There are now 1524 lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, and I feel sure if some such plan was adopted, there would be no difficulty in obtaining twelve annual subscribers of One Guinea in every lodge under our Constitution. That would produce the large sum of £19,202. This sum divided by three would give £6,400 to each Institution. Each subscriber of One Guinea to have an equal interest of voting power in each Institution as to candidates to be elected.

I would also most respectfully call the attention of the committees to the following facts:—

Cheap fares has produced a greater travelling public, with larger dividends to the shareholders. Cheap postage a much larger revenue for Government.

And I would ask, why should not the annual subscription to our Masonic Charities be reduced from Three Guineas to One per annum, which, I firmly believe, would have the same beneficial results for the charities, as the above facts prove.

It is evident to everyone with half an eye to business, that three guineas given annually to have an equal interest in our charities, is not a popular feeling in the Craft, or we should have a larger number of annual subscribers on our lists.

Dear sir and brother, I remain, yours fraternally,
P.M.

FREEMASONRY IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It was with interest that I read your account of Freemasonry in Constantinople and also with some regret, seeing that it only mentioned the Leinster Lodge when referring to the banquet, which appears rather one-sided, but I, as Secretary of the Leinster Lodge and a subscriber to the Freemason, cannot think of letting this go by unnoticed. In the first place, when the officers of the Leinster and Caledonian Lodges were elected it was also decided that the installation of the two lodges should take place on the same day, so as to facilitate the one banquet, which was very happily carried out to the satisfaction of the brethren of both lodges. The first part of the programme was the installation of W.M. and officers of the Leinster Lodge, No. 166, I.C., held in the Masonic Temple, Hasskien, Monday, 28th December, 1874. The brethren met at 5.30 p.m., Bro. F. Flucker, W.M., in the chair, assisted by Bro. Hy. Wetherill, I.P.M., acting as S.W.; W. Ite, W.M. elect, J.W.; Jno. Wetherill, P.M. 166 and 687 (E.C.), and D.G.S.D., Treasurer; R. McGill, P.M., Secretary; T. Dickinson, S.D.; J. C. Blair, J.D.; T. Johnson, I.G.; Jas. Cowan, Tyler. The lodge was opened with solemn prayer in the first degree, the W.M. then calling upon Bro. Hy. Wetherill, I.P.M., to take the chair as Installing Master, when Bro. Wm. Ite, W.M. elect, was presented by Bros. Jno. Wetherill, P.M., and P. Flucker, I.P.M. The lodge was in due time raised to the third degree, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Ite was duly installed in the chair of K.S. According to the ancient Irish rite the brethren below the chair were then re-admitted, and the W.M. was duly proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. P. Flucker, I.P.M.; J. J. Dunn, S.W.; J. Wetherill, P.M. 166 and 687, D.G.S.D., re-invested Treas.; Hy. Wetherill, P.M., Sec.; T. Johnson, S.D.; J. Laigon, J.D.; J. C. Blair, I.G.; J. Cowan, Tyler. Among those present were the W.M., officers, and brethren of the Oriental Lodge, No. 687 (E.C.), the W.M., officers, and brethren of the Caledonian Lodge, No. 489 (S.C.). The W.M. then thanked the Installing Master for the very able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. The visiting brethren were thanked for their kind assistance; the lodge was then closed in the usual manner at 7.15 p.m., the W.M., officers, and brethren retiring for a short time while the Caledonian Lodge was opened, when they were admitted among the rest of the visitors.

I am, fraternally yours,
Hasskien, Feb. 17th, 1875.

THE PUBLIC HOUSE QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The last few weeks I have noticed that a great interest is being taken by you and your correspondents in the "Public House Question," and, although many complaints have been very justly stated, no one is coming forward to suggest something to better the position of Freemasons' Lodges.

As I am, and have been from the very first against the "Knife and Fork" system, and consequently against the public house lodges, I have been thinking about a remedy to prevent meetings in such places, and beg to submit to your readers the result of it.

There are now 1535 lodges working under the Grand Lodge of England, and I think the greatest part of them held in London, of all these I do not know of one which has its own temple, and have not heard of one.

Now how would it be, suppose twenty lodges with about fifty members each (altogether 1000 members) join together to form a company, each member taking one share of £5, a capital of £5000 would thus be created. With this sum, I should think, a nice house with a fit temple, with the required rooms, banqueting rooms, and minor ones as library, kitchen, &c., could be built, and although not elaborately yet plainly and suitably furnished.

The management would be entrusted to a committee formed of twenty members, each lodge to elect one, who would conduct the business of the entire club.

I will not enter into the expenditure of the concern, but feel sure that with a real Masonic management, the saving in banquets, wines, &c., would pay everything.

Trusting you will insert this in your next issue, I am, yours fraternally,

F.S., PILGER LODGE.

MR. BRADLAUGH AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I read with much interest the long letter under the above heading from the correspondent "Reviresco." After relating the sayings and doings of Mr. Bradlaugh within various Masonic lodges in the United States, where he has recently been visiting, "Reviresco" closes his remarks with the query—If he, Mr. Bradlaugh, is an atheist, what does it all mean? Meaning by this, I suppose, that if Mr. Bradlaugh be really an avowed atheist, how does it come that he is eligible, or has been allowed, both to be present and to speak, in the bosom of an open Masonic Lodge? In order to give this question fair play, I think there are three other questions we should get an answer to first, viz.—First, when was Mr. Bradlaugh made? Second, where was he made? Third, was he an avowed atheist when he was made? Trusting that some of your correspondents may be able to answer these questions, I am, yours fraternally,

LEO.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At pages 98 and 99 of your columns for 6th inst., there appears a very graphic communication from "Reviresco," detailing various proceedings of Mr. Bradlaugh in several of the American lodges. I shall not here enter upon any of the points touched upon by "Reviresco," but I would mention that I was also taking an interest in this matter, and a fortnight ago, a letter of mine appeared in Mr. Bradlaugh's own paper, The National Reformer, calling in question the truth of a statement he had made about Masonic lodges in the 17th Century.

In his speech at a Masonic Festival lately held in Boston, Mr. Bradlaugh said,— "In the 17th Century, the Masonic Lodges of Europe were the sole temples where free utterance of true opinion gave possible light, while all around was dark."

Now this is a very important statement to write, and if Mr. Bradlaugh can support his assertion with substantial evidence, that evidence will, I believe, be both highly interesting and also of great value to all students of our Masonic history. I need add nothing further at present, but as it is announced that Mr. Bradlaugh will be in England by next Friday, I hope to be able to say something further at a future time.

I am, fraternally yours,
Glasgow, March 6th, 1875.

W. P. BUCHAN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think I can give an answer to the query of your correspondent "Reviresco" as to what lodge Mr. Bradlaugh belongs to. I remember, about a year ago, chancing to see in a copy of his paper, The National Reformer, a report of a meeting of the Lodge des Philadelphes Reunis meeting somewhere in Soho, at which Mr. Bradlaugh made a long speech in reply to a toast, which I think was "To the Oppressed all over the World." I suppose he is a member of that lodge.

I do not see the name of this lodge in the "Calendar." It carries on its work in the French language, and its members and officers seem to be Frenchmen. I should like to enquire by what authority they hold a lodge within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England, and whether they have any so-called authority from, or is acknowledged in any way by the Grand Orient of France.

Yours truly,

AN ENQUIRER.

A FEMALE TYLER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Being on business in the West of England, in a province whose working I had heard spoken highly of, I thought to do myself the pleasure of seeing for myself. I therefore determined upon a visit to one of the lodges, when, upon entering the hall, to my surprise, I saw a female in attendance, performing the duties of announcing brethren, &c., as O.G. Having previously read and heard of an Order termed the Eastern Star, purporting to be a Masonic Order, which I very much doubt, I thought perhaps I had stumbled upon one of those meetings, but upon entering the lodge-room, I found myself among brethren instead of sisters. Now sir, never having heard of but one lady F.M., I was at a loss to account for the presence of the one I saw in office outside. Upon enquiry, I found the Tyler had died some months since, and the female was acting in his stead: but I think the sooner a proper Tyler is appointed the more satisfactory it will be to the members, as also visitors. I must certainly say I found the working of the ceremonies was all that could be wished, reflecting great credit upon all the officers.

I am, dear sir and brother,

A VISITOR.

AN ACT OF GALLANTRY AND GENEROSITY.

It is reported from the Isle of Réunion, that Bro. Joseph Aillet, Captain of the vessel "Cilaos," saved, in the open sea, 400 miles distant from land, the entire crew of an English ship, commanded by Bro. Captain Wm. Reid. Both these brethren attended the Lodge Amitié, Orient de St. Denis, in the Island of Réunion, and were most kindly received by the brethren, who send the report to the Grand Orient of Navel.

The following is the official notice of Captain Aillet's gallant and kindly behaviour:—

"The 'Cilaos,' Captain Aillet, arrived at Réunion, Oct. 31, bringing 22 men, composing the shipwrecked crew of the English ship 'Industry,' all of whom he found in the open sea, and happily saved. The Governor has privately congratulated, and now publicly congratulates Captain Aillet for his conduct and generosity under the circumstances. He orders, in addition, the official publication of the following letter, which has been addressed to him by the English Consul on the occasion, and which has been transmitted to Captain Aillet:—

"Réunion, Nov. 3, 1874.

"Your Excellency,

"It is with great pleasure that I bring to the knowledge of your excellency the generous and disinterested conduct of the Captain of the French ship 'Cilaos,' which arrived on the 31st of last month at St. Denis, having on board all the crew of the English ship 'Industry,' of London. It appears that the 'Industry,' was burnt at sea, 33° 47' lat S, and 52° 47' long E, and that the crew had to take to their boats in the open sea, when, a few hours afterwards, they were providentially saved by the appearance of the 'Cilaos,' the captain of which vessel took them all on board, and with that kindness and courtesy which have always distinguished the French nation, treated them with the greatest hospitality for fourteen days, and now refuses to receive from the Consulate, in the name of the Government of Her Majesty, any indemnity for their subsistence. In this generous resolution, the captain is supported by the proprietors and consignees, Messrs. Lebeau et Cie. It will be my duty to bring the noble conduct of Captain Aillet to the knowledge of the Government of Her Majesty, which will, I have no doubt, hasten to thank the brave sailor for his great services. In the meanwhile, I can do no less than ask your excellency to express to Captain Aillet, in my name and that of the Captain of the 'Industry,' our sincere and grateful thanks for the assistance rendered to the crew of the lost vessel.

"I have the honour to be, your excellency's very humble and obedient servant,

"GERALD PAUL VERRY, H.B.M.'s Consul."

THE MASONIC SCHOOLS.

A special quarterly court of the subscribers to the Masonic Boys' and Girls' Schools, jointly, will be held on Monday next, at Freemasons' Hall, at twelve o'clock, to consider some alterations which have been proposed to be made in the printed rules or "laws," which are now in force in the two institutions. The proposed alterations were reported in our columns at the time the propositions were made, and a joint committee was appointed to confer upon the subject. This committee having reported, the quarterly court will have to decide upon the report, viz.: To erase the second clause of law 13, also law 15; to consider the following laws under the heading:—"Privileges of Stewards" (to follow law 24) second clause of law 13, re-enacted; also the following new law:—"Every Steward at the anniversary festival who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than fifty guineas, in addition to his personal donation, and shall collect and pay over the amount to the funds of the institution, shall receive one additional vote at each election of boys (or girls) and a further extra vote for every additional sum of not less than fifty guineas, so collected and paid over." Also to add to law 37, providing for mode of election of House Committee. "Scrutineers shall be appointed for the purpose of taking the poll, which shall remain open until five p.m." Two Trustees of the Sustentation Fund of the Girls' School will also have to be elected by the Quarterly Court.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of the above Institution met last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. William Roebuck, V.P., presided. Among the other brethren present were John Symonds, Vice-Patron; S. Rosenthal V.P.; Samuel May, V.P.; Geo. Bolton, V.P.; Raynham W. Stewart, V.P.; J. G. Chancellor, F. Adlard, Henry Moore, John Read, A. H. Tattershall, Wm. Noak, H. A. Collington, W. F. C. Moutrie, J. W. Dosell, Geo. Free, Jesse Turner, A. D. Loewenstark, Henry Dubosc, G. J. Grace, Hyde Pullen, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes (Secretary).

A letter was read by Bro. Binckes, from Bro. J. Bond Cabbell, in reply to the letter of condolence sent to him by this institution, on the death of his uncle, Bro. Benj. Bond Cabbell. A letter having also been received from Bro. Edward Harris, the collector to the school, asking for an increase of commission on all sums collected by him, a sub-committee of nine brethren (five to form a quorum), was appointed to consider and report upon the matter. Three petitions from candidates for election were accepted, and an outfit to one late pupil of the institution was granted. The special court, as per advertisement, was appointed to meet on Monday next at twelve o'clock. The committee then adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Era, of Saturday last, after repeating the announcement already made, that the Lord Mayor will preside at the next festival of this Institution, on the 12th of May, says his lordship will be "accompanied by the Sheriffs, one of whom is a Mason of some eminence, while the other was only initiated a few days ago." The same paper further says that "there will be a great attendance" at the festival "of celebrities in the city of London, most of whom belong to the Craft." At the meeting of the Board of Stewards, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Grand Deacon, in the chair, a vote of thanks was passed to the Lord Mayor, for consenting to preside at the festival.

Bro. John Monckton, the Town Clerk of London, and Bro. J. C. Parkinson, who is the W.M. of the Needle-maker's Company, were respectively elected President and Treasurer of the Stewards.

The brethren anticipate a successful gathering, from the fact that it is many years since a Lord Mayor has occupied this position.

The "Lodge of Israel" (Birmingham, No. 1474) has established a benevolent fund for general charitable purposes. During the past eleven months a donation of ten guineas was given to the Redemption Fund of the Queen's Hospital, Birmingham, and fifteen guineas towards the general Masonic Charities.—Jewish Chronicle.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 100).—The annual installation of the W.M. and officers of Lodge Friendship, No. 100, was held at the Town-hall, on Thursday, 25th February. The lodge being opened in due form by the W.M., the ceremony was then proceeded with in the usual manner. Wor. Bro. O. Diver (Installing Master) having taken the chair, invested the following with their several offices, viz., Wor. Bro. James Bond, W.M.; Wor. Bro. M. Tracey, I.P.M.; Bros. R. W. Hubbard, Secretary; E. J. Bonfellow, S.W.; R. Martins, J. W.; J. W. French, S.D.; G. Bristow, J.D.; C. M. Kirkman, I.G.; Holt, Tyler. By the unanimous vote of the brethren assembled, Wor. Bro. O. Diver was re-elected the Treasurer of the lodge. At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the Crown and Anchor Hotel, where a splendid banquet was served by Wor. Bro. John Franklin, in his usual excellent style. The loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. Wor. Bro. W. D. Palmer, P.M. 313, and P. Prov. G.R.; in responding for the visitors, expressed the pleasure he had experienced by attending the installation, and his gratification at the admirable working of the lodge, intimating his wish to become a subscribing member to Lodge Friendship, No. 100, which was received with applause.

STONEHOUSE.—LODGE METHAM (No. 1205).—On Monday, 16th inst., Bro. Lord Charles Beresford, R.N., M.P., was installed as W.M. of Lodge Metham for the ensuing year, in the presence of about a hundred brethren, many of whom had come from various parts of the two counties to do honour to his lordship, who is highly esteemed amongst his Masonic brethren. The interesting and imposing ceremony of installation was ably and impressively performed by Bro. Col. Elliott, assisted by Bro. Leigh, and at its conclusion the lodge choir sang the beautiful anthem "Behold how good and joyful it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." His lordship appointed his officers for the coming year as follows:—Bros. Col. Elliott, I.P.M.; Wm. Harries, S.W.; W. Glover, J.W.; Rev. P. H. Newham, Chaplain; C. Leigh, Treasurer; W. Powell, Secretary; E. A. Northey, Assistant-Secretary; S. Hyne, S.D.; T. Gibbon, J.D.; C. Hale, I.G.; C. Mutton, D.C.; R. K. Granger and Howe, Stewards; T. Moore, Tyler. The following brethren were present:—Col. Elliott, P.M. 1205, P. Prov. G.S.W.; C. Leigh, P.M. 1205, P. Prov. G. Secretary; the Rev. Richard Measham, P.M. 1205, P. Prov. G. Chap.; R. W. Courley, 153; W. Yeo, 223; &c. The annual banquet was held in the evening, at St. George's Hall, under the presidency of Lord Charles Beresford, the newly-elected W.M. The hall was decorated with exceedingly good taste by Bro. Coath, P.M. 893, under the direction of a committee of the lodge, with flags kindly lent by Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, K.C.B., and a variety of plants from the gardens of the Earl of Mount Edgumbe. The banquet was provided by Mrs. Coffin, of George-street, Plymouth, and the wines by Mr. S. Vosper of Stonehouse, and in each of these departments the greatest satisfaction was given. There were about 120 brethren present, including the majority of those who attended the installation, and in addition there were also present:—Bros. Admiral Sir Henry Keppel; I. Latimer, P.M. 189, P.G.J.W.; W. Derry, P. Prov. G.S.D.; Risk; J. T. Smith, P.M. 223; Frœhnert; Fly; Sherwill; Haggarty; Hearle, P.M. and Treasurer 156, P.G.A.D.C.; J. J. Avery, W.M. 70; J. Waldo Howe, J.W. 189; Twose, P.M. 105; W. Coath, P.M. 893; A. Knowles, D.C. 159; H. Davey, S.S. 105; A. W. King, 1205; C. Walters, J. Pethick, and many others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed the removal of the cloth, and the W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Most Worshipful, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master," said His Royal Highness was a true, good-hearted Englishman, who would always carry out to the fullest extent the truest principles of Freemasonry, and who would do honour to the high position he was soon about to occupy. The next toast was "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, the Past and Present Grand Officers, the Deputy Grand Master of Devon, and the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." This was drunk with the usual honours, and was followed by the toast of "The R.W. Brethren the Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.M. of Devon and the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, P.G.M. of Cornwall." In proposing this, the W.M. spoke in the highest terms of Bros. the Rev. J. Huyshe, and the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, both of whom were greatly beloved by the Masonic brethren of their respective provinces. Bro. Huyshe's name was a household word amongst Masons all over England—(hear, hear, and applause). Bro. Col. Elliott, who responded, regretted the absence of the P.G.M., who had recently been laid upon a bed of sickness, and who, at one time was so ill that his recovery was despaired of. He was now progressing towards convalescence, and he was sure every true Mason would heartily hope that the R.W. brother might live for many years to preside over the province—(applause). Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgumbe had fully intended to have been present at the installation of the W.M., but he was suddenly called away to London, and the lodge was, therefore, deprived of the honour of his presence. Bro. Metham would also have been present but for the death of his brother. He had written expressing his deep regret at the cause of his absence, inasmuch as he had hoped to have had the opportunity of thanking all the lodges for their generous subscriptions to the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke. He (Bro. Elliott) was glad to be able to say that towards this fund Metham Lodge had contributed fifty guineas—(applause). He had now to ask the brethren to join him right heartily in drinking the health of their W.M., Bro. Lord Charles Beresford—(cheers). The admirable manner in which his lordship had that afternoon discharged his duties after his installation was a sufficient justification—if there were no other—of the choice which the lodge had made. Metham Lodge should feel proud at having such a noble brother at its head, and also that it was the means of adding to the list of members of the Grand Lodge of England one who was so thoroughly and entirely worthy to fill that honourable post, and whom they might shortly hope and expect to see filling a high office under His Royal Highness the Grand Master of England. (Cheers). Lord Charles Beresford, in acknowledging the toast, assured the brethren that he had the highest appreciation of the great honour which had that day been done him, and he hoped to be able to attend to the duties of the office during the greater part of the year. He was also glad that it would give him an opportunity of being present at the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England. He had a very great idea of the value of Freemasonry, and believed it was one of the best institutions they had in the country. Under its banner, high and low, rich and poor, old and young, were brought together in social intercourse, and for benevolent and charitable purposes, and such an institution was bound to do good. (Hear, hear). The next toast was that of "The Past Masters," proposed by the W.M., and suitably responded to by Bros. Colonel Elliott and Leigh. "The Wardens and other Officers of the Lodge," was acknowledged by Bro. W. Harries, S.W., who thanked his lordship for the kindly terms in which he had proposed the toast. The office which had been conferred upon him was one which he valued very highly, and he hoped he should always be found performing its duties in a manner that would be in every way acceptable to the brethren generally. He was warmly attached to Masonry, and he need scarcely say that he was equally attached to his lodge, and he hoped he should always be found foremost in promoting that good feeling and those truly Masonic principles which were, or ought to be, the very essence of the Order. Metham Lodge was a lodge of which they all had reason to be proud, and the maintenance of its honour and reputation depended to a great extent upon the manner in which its officers discharged their functions. Those functions required a vast amount of thought, study, and attention, and it would be his pleasure, as indeed it was his duty, to give to the office all that study and earnest attention which the brethren had a right to expect of him. (Applause.) Bro. Glover, J.W., also acknowledged the toast, and hoped the lodge would find him always at his post. Bro. Admiral Sir Henry Keppel responded for "The Visiting Brethren and Sister Lodges," and the last toast on the list was our "Poor and Distressed Brethren." During the evening, valuable musical services, vocal and instrumental, were rendered by Bros. Frœhnert, Fly, Hart, Cross, Harries, Emery, Gibbons, Mutton, Binding, Glover, Maher, Hele and Rowlands. The evening, altogether, was a most enjoyable one.

GREENWICH.—STAR LODGE (No. 1275).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, March 5th, 1875, at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. There were present:—Bros. H. Keeble, I.P.M.; W. Ough, P.G.S., P.M.; J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; J. J. Limebeer, S.W.; H. J. Green, J.W.; Rev. G. R. P. Colles, Chaplain; R. W. Williams, S.D.; C. R. Williams, J.D.; W. Bell, I.G.; F. B. Williams, Organist; W. E. Williams, E. W. Chetwynd, W. Brough, W. B. Woodman, E. H. Rand, A. Tilsey, W. Kipps, G. F. Guest, J. Brooks, L. H. Williams, E. Lane, H. J. Clare, H. W. Elmer, W. Hardman, W. P. Tong, J. Ellis, E. Searle, A. C. Woodward, F. J. Lindsey, W. F. Gardiner, and others. Amongst the visitors we noticed: Bros. John Archer, 667; A. Stewart, 1446; A. Burnell, W.M. 1446; A. Boehr, 1446; W. T. Morphey, 1446; J. Hayward, S.W. and W.M., elect, 946; W. B. Wallace, 127; H. Potter, 11; W. H. Waghorn, W.M. 946; and others. Bro. H. Keeble, P.M., opened the lodge. The minutes of last regular lodge were read and confirmed. The ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of all the candidates for initiation; Bros. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M. (the father of the lodge), took the chair. He raised Bro. E. Chetwynd, passed Bros. E. H. Rand and J. Brooks, and initiated Messrs. E. Searle and F. J. Lindsey, all the work being well and ably done. Several propositions were received from candidates for initiation. Bro. George Pym, P.M. 749, P.M. 1310, the W.M., was absent through ill-health. The lodge was closed. The usual banquet was served.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The last regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday last at the City Terminus Hotel, Bro. Nathan Bryant Headon, W.M., presiding. There were also present Bros. J. H. Townend, S.W.; John Seax, J.W.; James Stevens, I.P.M.; James Freeman, Treasurer; Edward Moody, Secretary; Rev. R. J. Simpson, Chaplain; Richard Hanway, S.D.; G. W. Blackie, J.D.; W. H. Catchpole, I.G.; Thomas Preston, D.C.; W. H. Hook, G. Jenkins, Thomas Hamer, and Charles Taylor, Stewards; besides forty-five other brethren, and Bros. E. M. Haig, P.G.S.; J. Poore, P.M. 720; T. Larham, 1216; Rickwood, 192; John Constable, P.M. 185; and Ross, W.M. 185. Bros. T. W. Headon, E. H. Davis, J. Stamp, and F. T. Davis, were raised, and Bro. Gray was passed. The brethren were then called off for refreshment for about half-an-hour, and on the resumption of the lodge the ballot was taken for the proposed initiates, and it being unanimous in favour of the whole of them, who were eight in number, Messrs. Richard White, Charles Bristow, Richard Isaac Measures, and Anthony Alexander Hicks, who were in attendance, were initiated in ancient form. The work of the day was all performed by the W.M., in splendid style. On the motion of Bro. J. Preston, D.C., a Past Masters' jewel of the value of ten guineas was voted to Bro. Headon, with the thanks of the lodge to him, on the termination of his year of office in October next. The motion was carried by acclamation. The elections were then taken, and Bro. J. H. Townend, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. of the Great City Lodge for next year. Bro. James Freeman was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Steedman, T. Bros. Browne, Lewis, and Hooker were elected on the audit committee, and then the W.M. read the circular which had been issued from Grand Secretary's office, relating to the installation of the Prince of Wales. It was thereupon unanimously resolved that the W.M., Bro. Headon, do represent the Great City Lodge, as Steward on that occasion, and that the expenses of the Steward and the cost of the Steward's jewel be defrayed by the lodge. This proposition was received by all the brethren with expressions of considerable satisfaction, and it was requested that the Secretary would return the names of all the brethren to Grand Secretary, as desiring to be present on the occasion. In acknowledgment of the services rendered by Bro. Thomas Poore, P.M. 720; as instructor of the Lodge of Instruction connected with the Great City Lodge, it was decided that he should be a recognised visitor at the Great City Lodge, at all the lodge meetings, and banquets. The W.M. announced that his list as Steward for the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, in May, already amounted to over 170 guineas. He also announced that the arrangements for the visit of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs to the lodge, which will take place to-day, were complete, and that the event would be one of the most interesting in connection with Freemasonry that had ever occurred in the City of London. A great number of eminent Freemasons would be present, and among them would be many Past and Present Grand Officers of England, as well as representatives of Freemasonry in Scotland, Ireland, and America. The band of the Grenadier Guards would perform a selection of music during dinner, and a party of vocalists, consisting of Bros. Chaplin Henry, Baxter, Carter, and other eminent musical brethren, would sing in the intervals between the toasts. He requested the brethren to be punctual in their attendance, as the lodge would be opened precisely at four o'clock in the pillar room of the City Terminus Hotel, and the banquet would commence at six o'clock in the large hall. The brethren then adjourned, the work of the day having occupied them from a quarter past three to half-past ten o'clock, with the exception of the slight interval for refreshment. All the arrangements were of the most satisfactory description, and they will no doubt be equally satisfactory at the great meeting of to-day.

BOOTLE.—BOOTLE LODGE (No. 1473).—The first anniversary festival of this very excellent lodge, which was consecrated so auspiciously a year ago, was celebrated with the greatest éclat on Thursday, 4th inst., at the Town Hall, Merton-road, Bootle, near Liverpool. The proceedings were fixed to begin at half-past two o'clock, and shortly after that hour Bro. S. G. Ibbs, P. Prov. G. S. B., the W.M. of the lodge, proceeded to open it in ancient and approved form. The officers and members present were Bros. Harold Wyatt, S.W., W.M. elect; John W. Turley, J.W.; J. P. McArthur, Treasurer; T. D. Pierce, Hon. Secretary; Dr. T. M. Wills, J.D.; W. H. Clemmey, S.W.; Blake, Tyler; E. Johnston, J. W. McWean, T. Grant, J. Sharpe, H. Parry, I. Platts, J. Evans, W.M. 220; J. J. Dowling, J. C. Paterson, J. Hodgson, W. Shortis, P.M. 724; G. Woollan, R. A. Hough, H. J. Mandy, J. Ferranti, J. D. Glass, R. J. Sprakeling, J. Duncan, jun., J. C. Caley, H. J. Tiffin, A. McCubbin, W. H. M. Smithson, A. Bucknall, J. Le Comber, and F. M. Jones. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. W. Doyle, P. Prov. G. J. D., P.M. 667; T. Evans, P.M. 1356; H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823; W. M. Chudley, W.M. 241; W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; J. W. Ballard, W.M. 724; A. Winkup, P.M. 667 and 1256; J. Wells, P.M. 580; W. Horn, 1086; W. Smith, W.M. 1235; H. Trevitt, 724; T. W. Kellett, 721; P.M. Larsen, P.M. 594; R. Ing, P.M. 594; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; J. F. Newell, W.M. 1035; A. D. Hesketh, 1182; J. Ireland, Treasurer, 1356; R. Roberts, 1356; and others. As the last act of his official year, the W.M. initiated three candidates into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, performing the ever-impressive ceremony with unction and efficiency. The chair was then given up to Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241, who proceeded to instal Bro. Councillor Harold Wyatt, the W.M. of the Bootle Lodge, the work being done with that facility and effectiveness for which Bro. Baker maintains a high reputation in West Lancashire and elsewhere. The investiture of officers for the year was as follows:—Bros. Samuel E. Ibbs, I.P.M. and Treasurer; John W. Turley, S.W.; Richard Roberts, J.W.; J. P. McArthur, D.C.; John Duncan, jun., Hon. Sec.; Dr. T. M. Wills, S.D.; Wm. Hughes, J.D.; Wm. H. Clemmey, I.G.; J. C. Paterson and J. C. Hulbert, Stewards; and William Blake, Tyler. After "Hearty good wishes" had been given by the leading representatives of the lodges present, the W.M. thanking them for their kindness, the purely business portion of the proceedings terminated, and the brethren, after the lapse of about an hour, sat down to an excellent banquet in the very handsome lodge room, the catering having been entrusted to Mr. Russell, Bold-street, Liverpool. "The Queen," "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, M.W.D.G.M. of England, and P.G.M. West Lancashire," and "Bro. the Hon. F. Stanley, D.P.G.M., and the other P.G. Officers, Past and Present," were proposed by the W.M. in brief but pointed terms, the last-named toast being acknowledged by Bro. S. E. Ibbs, P. Prov. G.S.B., and Bro. J. W. Turley, P.G.J.D. "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution for the Children of Deceased and Distressed Masons," given by the W.M., was responded to by Bro. W. M. Chudley, W.M. 241, who said the funds of the Institution now amounted to £11,600. Bro. Ibbs proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Harold Wyatt," wishing him a prosperous year. He wished that Bro. Wyatt might enjoy the position as much as he (Bro. Ibbs) had done during the past year. Being an eminent member of the Corporation of Bootle, and an old Mason, there was little doubt that the duties of the chair would be fulfilled by Bro. Wyatt with honour to himself and benefit to every member of the lodge. The brethren had made a very judicious selection, and would have no reason to regret their choice. The toast was drunk in bumpers with great enthusiasm. The W.M., in acknowledging his thanks for the compliment of toast and response, said he would content himself by saying that every effort would be made by him to deserve the good opinion of every member of his lodge, and he hoped that at the close of his year's office, he would not have sacrificed any part of that high esteem by deed or word. There was one thing which gave him confidence, and that was the conviction that he would have the hearty co-operation of every officer of his lodge. That fact invariably strengthened a Master's hands, and gave him greater confidence in fulfilling his duties. Before sitting down, the W.M. gave "The Worshipful Past Master, Bro. S. E. Ibbs." The lodge, he said, owed Bro. Ibbs a deep debt of gratitude for having so readily acceded to the request to become the first Master of the lodge, and for the exceedingly able manner in which he had fulfilled his duties. The brethren had deputed him (the W.M.) to present Bro. Ibbs with a slight mark of their regard, with the hope that he would look upon the spirit in which it was given, rather than upon its intrinsic value. The W.M. then presented a handsome silver salver to Bro. Ibbs, who acknowledged the gift in suitable terms. In speaking of the ball recently held, he said that £35 had, as the result, been handed over to the Bootle Hospital, "The Installing Master," responded to by Bro. Baker, P.M., "The Officers of Lodge 1473," "The Visiting Brethren," and "All Poor and Distressed Masons," were the other toasts on the list. Several excellent songs were given by Bro. A. Bucknall (whose "Doctor's Boy" caused immense amusement), Bros. Baker, A. Winkup, and a number of brethren connected with the Bootle Lodge.

BIRMINGHAM.—LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 1474).—On Monday, the 8th inst. Bro. Michael Davis was installed W.M. of this lodge for the second time. The ceremony of installation was performed by W. Bro. Muggleton, P.M. 74. The following brethren were invested as the officers: Bros. S. Lyon, S.W.; Isaac Silverton, J.W.; Rev. G. B. Emanuel, D.A., Chaplain; J. Myers, Treasurer; Maurice Silverton, S.D.; Philip W. Newman, J.D.; and Marks, Secretary. There was an unusual amount of work performed, as the three degrees were gone through prior to the installation. This lodge, which was only consecrated twelve months since, has made a progress unusually rapid. During the past year twenty candidates have been initiated, and the members already number fifty. In point of importance the Lodge of Israel already stands second to no other in the province, and has been pre-eminent in the cause of charity. It boasts of a very strong Benevolent Fund, which has been liberally endowed by the members, and the Masonic and local charities have not been neglected. On the same evening a ball was given in aid of the Lodge of Israel Benevolent Fund, under the patronage of the Provincial and Deputy Provincial Grand Masters of Warwickshire and a long and influential list of Stewards. The room was gaily decorated with valuable oil paintings and flowers, and with the magnificent dresses of the ladies, and full Masonic clothing of the brethren, produced a tout ensemble at once various and pleasing. About two hundred were present, and the result will, we hope, bring a handsome surplus to the coffers of the charity. Great credit is due for the success of the ball to the committee and its chairman, Bro. B. Lazarus.

LIVERPOOL.—LODGE OF EMULATION (No. 1505).—One of the most enjoyable meetings of this young and prosperous lodge, which has so greatly flourished under the able rule of the first W.M., Bro. Henry Nelson, was held on Friday, the 5th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Bro. Nelson opened the lodge in due form, shortly after six o'clock, and amongst those present during the evening were: Bros. J. T. Callow, S.W.; H. Morris, J.W.; J. Hocken, P.M., Treasurer; W. Quayle, Secretary; W. H. Corbin, S.D.; R. Croft, J.D.; J. Dale, Acting I.G.; J. Capell, D.C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Org.; W. H. Ball and H. Williamson, Tylers; H. Carmichael, J. Parvis, W. H. Chapman, T. Garrett, W. S. Russell, R. Brown, C. Blood, C. W. Sidebotham, R. Foote, H. J. Atkinson, R. Lytham, H. Coulson, H. Burrows, G. Clements, and E. P. Eyre. The numerous visitors included Bros. C. F. Matier, P.G.W. of Greece; J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C.; John (Jolly) Nash, 457; H. Hart, 1094; J. Ferguson, 753; R. H. Evans, W.M. 1393; J. Parsons, P.M. 203; H. Jackson, S.W. 1393; J. McCarthy, J.W. 1393; E. Wilson, Sec. 1393; N. Turner, 1356; R. Evans, 292; H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823; H. W. Nicholas, 249; T. J. Hughes, 216; D. Saunders, 1299; J. B. MacKenzie, 1182, 1356; and others. A long night's business began with the initiation of five candidates, and was followed by two raisings. The whole working was of an unusually complete and effective character, the masterly manner in which the W.M. did his duty being admirably seconded by all his officers. At the close of the business the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, served by Bro. W. S. Russell, manager of the Washington Hotel, in a manner which fully warranted the subsequent compliment paid to him by the W.M. in a special toast. Bro. Nelson gave a few of the loyal and Masonic toasts with commendable brevity, wisely choosing to make his meeting one of harmony rather than that of mere speech-making. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. C. F. Matier, P.G.W. of Greece; R. J. Goepel, Prov. G.D.C. of West Lancashire; and R. H. Evans, W.M. 1393. A specially enjoyable feature of the pleasant after-banquet proceedings were the capital songs given by Bro. John (Jolly) Nash, who proved the very prince of harmony in private, as he is certainly the "merriest man alive" in public. Amongst others who gave songs and recitations, all of which were above the average, were Bros. T. J. Hughes, H. W. Nicholas, R. Brown, H. Morris, Chapman, H. Jackson, W. S. Russell, N. Turner, and Quayle. The evening was spent most pleasantly by all who were present, thanks in a large measure to the tact and good management of Bro. Nelson, W.M.

INSTRUCTION.

BURGOYNE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (902).—The Fifteen Sections were very ably worked on Friday, the 5th inst., by fifteen different brethren. Bro. Wuest, P.M., was in the chair, Bro. Frost, P.Z., acting S.W. There were twenty-eight present, of whom no less than fourteen were Past Masters, and W.M.'s, and four were Preceptors of other Lodges of Instruction. A more instructive and pleasant evening cannot be spent than the two hours from eight p.m. to ten p.m., on Friday, in this increasingly thriving lodge.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, 2nd inst., Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. John D. Young, S.W.; D. Horn, J.W.; John Dick, Secretary; R. B. Dalzell, Treasurer; and a numerous attendance of members of the lodge and visitors. The lodge was opened by Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., when the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved. There being no business of importance before the lodge, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, and a very pleasant and agreeable evening was spent.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Thursday, 4th inst. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., occupied the chair. Bros. McInnes, S.W.; B. Bain, P.M. Union and Crown, acting J.W.; with the several officers in their respective places. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler, and the minutes read by the Secretary, Bro. Wm. Niven, and approved of. In the course of the opening of the lodge Bro. Wilson, Chaplain, explained the three great principles upon which Freemasonry is based, Faith, Hope, and Charity, in a masterly style, which added much to the beauty of the ceremony of opening. Bro. A. Young, 919 (E.C.), was then affiliated into Lodge St.

Mungo, Bro. A. Bain, P.M. Union and Crown, officiating. There being no further business, the brethren spent the remaining part of the evening in harmony and refreshment most pleasantly.

The 146th anniversary festival of this lodge was held in the Crown Hall, Sauchiehall-street, on 2nd inst., and proved to be one of the most largely attended and successful Masonic gatherings of the season. As usual of late years it took the form of an assembly and supper, the wives and sweethearts of the brethren being thus pleasantly admitted to join in the proceedings; and when, soon after 8 o'clock p.m., dancing was commenced, there would be over fifty couples on the floor. At about eleven o'clock supper was served in a spacious hall above the salle de danse, when fully 140 sat down to the good things purveyed for the occasion by Bro. James Ancell (27) of Glassford-street. The R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler, presided, and Bro. T. Loch-head, Treasurer of the lodge, officiated as Croupier. On the platform supporting the chairman were Bros. Archd. McTaggart, D.M.; Geo. Sinclair, P.M.; William Bell, R.W.M. 34; Thomas, Boston, 553; and others. Throughout the hall were numerous brethren from other lodges. After supper the Chairman gave in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," "The Prince of Wales, Patron of the Scottish Masonic Craft, and the other Members of the Royal Family," and "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow." The latter was coupled with the name of Bro. A. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary, who, in a strikingly succinct reply, stated that the scope of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow was summarised in four words, viz., "work, security, benevolence, economy." The toast of the evening—"The Lodge St. Mungo, No. 27"—was proposed by Bro. Sinclair, and coupled with the name of the R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler, who delivered an able reply. In course of so doing he said that when he remembered how that chair had been filled in former years and on similar occasions, by learned professors, physicians, clergymen, and influential merchants, he felt conscious of his inability to deal as effectively as he would like to do with its duties and responsibilities. It would be his earnest aim, however, to keep the lodge over which he had the honour to preside, green and flourishing—and he would ever rejoice in its growing prosperity. The history of their parent lodge was very ancient, dating as far back, distinctly, as the days of Malcolm Canmore, A.D. 1068, more than 800 years ago; and the records of the lodge of St. Mungo, still extant and in their possession, carried them back for nearly a century and a half. This was now their 146th anniversary in the city of St. Mungo—they were getting on to the age of Methuselah—and during that period alone, although he could not venture on precise numbers, they had for many years past, been admitting at the rate of about twenty-five members yearly, and had sent brethren from their little sanctuary with the principles of Freemasonry in their consciences and the sympathies of the Craft in their hearts to almost every corner of the world. He (the Chairman) would venture to assert that the men who represented their brotherhood in various parts of the world would do no dishonour either to their principles or to their common humanity, wherever they were found. For his own part, without pretending to so profound an acquaintance with the recondite principles of our mystic orders as many others do, he was satisfied to rest his faith and extend his fellowship to mankind on the broad and simple platform of its earliest and grandest degrees, and to give the right hand of brotherhood, if called upon, to Jew and Gentile, Christian and Brahmin alike, without fear and without suspicion. He knew nothing of Masonry that was not in the Bible, and he knew nothing in the Bible that was not of God. What the Pope and his representatives, Cardinals or Councils, had to fear in connection with it was to him incomprehensible; and if his Holiness had ever been admitted to their secret, it must have been to some very distorted view of the whole system. Certain newspapers, he was aware, had been occupied a good deal lately in attempting to show that the Pope is, or is not, a Freemason—which might be a matter of curiosity, but was certainly of no moment. If the religious system, of which his Holiness was the acknowledged head, embodied principles which would not bear the touch of Freemasonry, or assumed authority which was inconsistent with the liberties of mankind, the less the world had to do with it the better. It would be more to the purposes if such papers could show us for certain that Garibaldi was a Mason, or that such men as Luther and Knox belonged to their ancient fraternity. They knew in fact that Robert Burns was a Mason, Benjamin Franklin was a Mason, that the Prince of Wales was a Mason, and for him (the Chairman) and those before him, that was perhaps enough. In such principles, and with such fellowship, they defied the Pope, and could enjoy their privileges and celebrate their festival, as they now did, with perfect indifference as to the threats and excommunications of his Holiness. Amongst the remaining toasts were "The Visiting Brethren," proposed by Bro. Wm. Bell, and responded to by Bros. Thomas Boston, 553, and Thomas Fletcher, P.M. 34; "The Ladies," by Bro. John Scouler; and "The Strangers," by James McDonald. Thereafter, dancing was resumed down-stairs, and kept up by the younger and more enthusiastic spirits until an early hour.

DUNBAR.—DUNBAR CASTLE LODGE (No. 75).—After the usual Masonic business meeting on Tuesday, 2nd inst., the brethren of this lodge entertained their R.W.M., Captain Dennistown, of the 64th regiment, to a farewell supper occasioned by his approaching departure for the South of England. The chair was well filled by Bro. Brand, D.M., supported by Bros. Vallance, P.M.; Nelson, J.W., ably discharging the duties of Croupier. The chairman in proposing the toast of the evening, referred at some length to Captain Dennistown's Masonic qualifications, which had gained for him, in so short a time, the right of presiding over them as their R.W.M., and that they viewed his coming departure with every regret in losing such a good friend and excellent Master. The toast having been responded to with much enthusiasm, Captain Dennistown thanked the brethren very kindly for the support they had at all times given him, and said that in marching behind the drums of the 64th, in other countries, he should always remember with pleasure his short residence with the Dunbar Castle Lodge. A very pleasant evening was passed, other toasts following, songs contributing in no small degree to the pleasure, marred only by the thought of losing their respected R.W.M.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held in their hall at 213, Buchanan-street, on the 8th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. Jas. F. Mitchell, presided, and there were also present Bros. Thos. Halket, P.M.; Thos. Kerr, S.W.; J. Renton, J.W.; Jno. Smith, Secretary; A. C. Paterson, Treasurer; Jas. Gladstone, S.D.; and Hugh McMillan, J.D. The lodge having been opened, James Henry Crawford, a candidate duly recommended, received the E. A. degree at the hands of the R.W.M., after which, the newly-made brother enjoyed the advantage of a short, but very admirable and instructive lecture on the tracing board, delivered to him by Bro. Halket. The R.W.M. thereafter tested Bro. Crawford, and delivered the charge to him belonging to the degree he had just taken. The chairman then said he supposed the brethren were aware that there were offices in the lodge not yet filled up. There was the S.W., the Inner Guard, and the Depute Master-ship. The appointment of the two first-named rested entirely with the members of the lodge, the last-named was his (the Master's) affair only. He had therefore much pleasure in appointing as his Depute, a brother who was an able Mason, from whom he (the chairman) had derived much instruction, and who brought to the discharge of the duties of the office a rare amount both of ability and energy. He referred to Bro. Alex. C. Lindsay Gray. Thereupon Bro. Gray was duly installed as D.M., by Bro. Halket, and having been invested with the jewel of the office, took his seat on the dais at the Master's right hand. He then, in very neat terms, returned thanks. He was but young in the lodge, he stated, but he had a sincere desire to increase his Masonic knowledge, and he trusted that, with the assistance of the R.W.M., he might prove to be not altogether unworthy of the high honour to which he had been called. It was then agreed upon that the S.W., and I.G. should be appointed at next meeting (22nd inst.), and the lodge was thereafter duly closed.

AIRDRIE.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 166).—This lodge met on the 3rd inst. in their lodge-room, Olive Hall, Airdrie, Bro. Jas. Henderson, P.M., in the absence of the R.W.M., presiding. There were also present Bros. H. McIndoe, S.W.; D. Lindsay, J.W.; T. Inch, Treasurer; James Halliday, Secretary; and several members of the lodge. The lodge being opened by the acting R.W.M., the minutes of previous meeting were read and approved of. Mr. George Penman, who had been well recommended, received the E.A. degree from Bro. Henderson in a very efficient manner. Some business of the lodge having been got through, Bro. J. Jamieson, who had received the E.A. degree, was advanced to that of Fellow Craft, Bro. Jas. Henderson officiating. The lodge was then closed in due form.

RUTHERGLEN.—ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 116).—The quarterly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 5th inst. Bro. William Ferguson, R.W.M., presiding. The lodge being opened in due form, and minutes of previous meeting being read and confirmed, the lodge proceeded to labour. A candidate being in attendance (Mr. J. Stewart Anderson), was regularly initiated in that superb style, which the R.W.M. of this lodge can adopt, the ritual being carefully and judiciously given, and the precepts it contains instilled into the mind of the neophyte. This being the harmony night with No. 116, the attendance of members and visitors was unusually great the room being crowded in every part. Amongst the brethren we observed Bros. Scouler (Provost of Rutherglen), Councillor Don (Dean of Guild), Kinning, Gilmour, Craig, Hamilton, Colquhoun, Lang, M. Alpine, Muir, Calder, F. Price, Scott, M. Waters, Callen, M. Indoe, Tait, Murphy, Melville, M. Cormick, Somerville, Dunn, Ferrier, Graham, Dick, M. Bride, White, Hutcheson, Kerr, Walker, J. Price, Sterling, Duncan, Pearson, Park, J. Gilmour, Wright, Montgomery, Woodrow, M. Queen, Duncanson, Gemmell, Lock, Hodge, Baird, Crowth, Anderson, Bruce, Todle, W. Lang, Rove, M. Larty, W. Hamilton, Quin, M. Donald, and others. The lodge being called from labour to refreshment, the brethren enjoyed themselves with song and sentiment, the singing of Bros. M. Larty, M. Alpine, Price, and Black conducting very much to the harmony of the evening. In the midst of the hilarity the lodge was called from refreshment to labour, for the purpose of affiliating as honorary members Bro. Scouler (Provost of Rutherglen), and Bros. M. Waters and Tait. This was accordingly done, the brethren being duly made honorary members. Bro. Scouler thanked the lodge for the honour, and said it gave him great pleasure to come amongst the brethren of No. 116, and he felt deeply grateful for the mark of honour they had thus conferred on him. It should always be his duty to forward the interests of the Order, and he trusted that all the members would adopt those beautiful precepts taught them in the lodge, so that they might be an honour to themselves, and show to others the benefits morally accruing from the companionship of our ancient society. The lodge was then called from labour to refreshment, when some excellent songs were sung, the brethren enjoying themselves till high twelve, the lodge being then closed in full form.

COATBRIDGE.—LODGE OLD MONKLAND ST. JAMES'S (No. 177).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on and instant, in the Masonic Hall, Bank Buildings. The R.W.M., Bro. Richard White, assisted by the officers, punctual to time, opened the lodge in due form, and some business associated with the lodge being amicably concluded, two candidates were proposed, and the ballot being proved clear in their favour, were introduced, and initiated into the Order, the degree being given by the R.W.M. in a very careful and impressive manner. Several candidates were proposed, and duly seconded, for initiation at the next meeting, and the lodge was closed in formal manner. Among the officers present we noticed Bros. A. Donaldson, D.M.; J. Stewart, S.W.; W. Dickson, Sec.

KILMARNOCK.—ST. CLEMENT'S LODGE (No. 202).—This lodge met on the 6th instant. In the unavoidable absence of the R.W.M., Bro. David Hodge, the lodge was opened by Bro. Alexander, P.M. A candidate (Mr. M. William) having been proposed and approved of, was duly entrusted with the E. A. degree by Bro. Alexander, after which the lodge was raised to the second, and the R.W.M. having by this time arrived, asked the favour of Bro. Martin to give the same candidate the F.C. Bro. Martin, who is well known in the provinces to be an efficient worker, assented to this, and gave the degree in a very excellent manner. The lodge was then opened in the M.M. degree, and it being a case of emergency, Bro. M. William, as also Bro. John M. Laren, obtained the sublime degree from Bro. Alexander in very good style. Nothing in the shape of business being before the lodge, it was closed. Among the brethren present were Bros. G. Smith, J. Barrie, W. Thompson, Wm. Fisher, Thomas Clark, Sec., and others.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, No. 12, Trongate, on Monday, 8th inst., Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., in the chair, Bros. Garth, S.W.; Horn, J.W. There were also present: Bros. A. Bain, P.M. Lodge Union and Crown, 103; G. C. H. McNaught, W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and a very large attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren, upwards of seventy having signed the book. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan, and Mr. J. A. Easton, a candidate, received the E.A. degree, Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., officiating in a very efficient manner. Bro. Jasper Martin was then installed as Depute Master, Bro. A. Bain performing the ceremony of installation. The lodge being raised, Bros. Easton and Loughran received the degree of Fellow Craft, Bro. Morgan officiating. The lodge was then raised to the M.M. degree. There being six brethren for advancement to the sublime degree of Master Mason, Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., asked the favour of Bro. A. Bain to officiate. Bro. Bain, who is well known as an efficient worker, assented, and gave the degree in his usual impressive and masterly style. The lodge was then closed in due form.

The seventy-sixth annual festival of this lodge will take place in the hall, No. 12, Trongate, on Wednesday, the 31st inst.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SHAMROCK AND THISTLE (No. 275).—The 58th anniversary of this lodge was celebrated by a soiree, concert, and ball, held in the Masonic Hall, Struthers-street, on Friday, the 5th inst. Bro. R. M. Yuill, R.W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported on the platform by Bros. G. C. H. McNaught, P.M.; Rowan, D.M.; Peterson, S.M.; Ronald, S.W.; Finlay, J.W.; J. Horn, Secretary; Rev. R. Thomas, Chaplain; Joseph Singleton, R.W.M. 178; and others. Amongst numerous visiting brethren present were a deputation from Lodge Clydesdale, No. 557, consisting of Bros. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M.; Dr. Russell, D.M.; John B. McNaught, S.W.; John Howie, J.W.; and others. After tea, the chairman delivered a short address. It was just three months, he said, since he had been elected to the office of Master of Lodge 275, and he must admit that during that time he had had the greatest pleasure in the world in performing the duties pertaining thereto, owing to the support he had received from the other office-bearers. They were met there that night to celebrate their 58th anniversary, and he was proud at being able to state that the year they had last passed through could compare favourably with any of those before. They had a good proof of that in the turn-out which he saw before him that night. He was pleased to see such an assemblage of the brethren, but he was better pleased to see such a turn-out of their wives, sisters, cousins, &c. In this connection, the Chairman then briefly referred to the attempt to introduce into this country from America the element of female freemasonry, and in downright terms deprecated the Order of the Eastern Star. He was glad to find, he said, that that star had disappeared beneath the horizon, and was now looked for in vain. Referring to the operations of the lodge during the past year, he said that amongst others they had not failed to exercise the greatest of all virtues, namely charity. They had assisted many a poor and worthy brother "pulling hard against the stream," and when all was done that could be done for him until the end, they had seen his remains decently interred. Nor did they even stop there; they had assisted the widow in having her children educated and brought up in respectability. The Chairman having concluded, Bro. Horn, Secretary, rose and stated that they had now come to the most interesting portion of the evening's proceedings, namely, the presentation of a small testimonial to their worthy Past Master, Bro. G. C. H. McNaught. He (the speaker) need not there expatiate upon Bro. McNaught's many good qualities. When he joined that flourishing lodge they soon found in him something above the average. He was speedily called upon to be their Secretary, and then, upon the resignation of Bro. Phillips, he was elected to the chair. Though youthful in appearance he was old in knowledge, and had for two years performed the duties of the office of Master in a manner which made them all feel proud of him. He had therefore great pleasure in then and there presenting Bro. McNaught with a handsome silver tea service, as also a Masonic jewel, subscribed for by members of the lodge and other friends, as a mark of the esteem in which they held him. Bro. McNaught, in acknowledging the compliment, said he desired to thank every individual subscriber to the testimonial, and also all there assembled, for the very flattering manner in which its presentation to him had been received. When he was elected to the chair of the lodge he was a very young man, and a very young Mason, and it therefore could not be expected that he should do everything that might have been desired. However, he had endeavoured to discharge his duties conscientiously, impartially, and to the best of his ability. He would add that the lodge was also much indebted to the industry and zeal of its office-bearers, and he took that opportunity of thanking the latter for the encouragement and support they had afforded him during the period he held office. In the concert which followed the vocalists were Miss Aitken, Mr. W. Lee, and Mr. J. Templeton; and the occasion concluded with an assembly, at which the master of ceremonies was Bro. Hardie.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 170, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, 1st inst. Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., occupied the chair. Bros. A. Connochie, J.W., acting S.W.; W. Dempster, S.M., acting J.W.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. There were also present W. H. Bickerton (Freemason), and several brethren of the lodge and visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bro. W. Harper, R.W.M. Lodge Clyde, 408. The minutes of the last regular meeting, also an emergency meeting, having been read and approved of, several matters of business connected with the lodge was discussed and harmoniously settled. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair, then presented the lodge with some emblems for the better working of the lodge, which was heartily received by the members present. Bro. Laird, Treasurer, in a neat and appropriate speech on behalf of the lodge, thanked Bro. Macnair, for his handsome present, and Bro. Dempster, S.M., proposed that a silver plate be put upon Bro. Macnair's present, with a suitable inscription, showing by whom the present was made, and in commemoration of Bro. Macnair's kindness, which was unanimously agreed to. There being no further business, the lodge was closed, and the members adjourned to the adjoining room for refreshment, and with toast and song spent a short time together most pleasantly.

RUTHERGLEN.—LODGE ST. JOHN'S OPERATIVE (No. 347).—Saturday, 6th inst., marked an era in the history of this lodge, on which occasion the memorial stone of a new Masonic Hall for the burgh, was laid with all the Masonic honours by the R.W.M., Bro. John Cunningham. The lodge, which was constituted twenty-nine years ago, was an offshoot from Lodge Royal Arch, No. 116, and has prospered greatly since its formation, its membership and revenues being now in a very flourishing condition. As the outcome of this prosperity, the brethren came to a resolution some time ago to build a hall for themselves, their present lodge-room being too small, and otherwise ill-adapted for their necessities. A limited liability company was formed, with the title of the Rutherglen Masonic Hall Company (Limited), for the purpose of raising the necessary funds, and a contract having been entered into with Mr. Park, builder, Rutherglen, a site was fixed upon in Cathcart-street, and building operations were begun at the commencement of the year. The edifice will be two storeys in height, and will have a frontage of 55ft., its width being about 36ft. The ground flat will be occupied as shops and a house for the hall-keeper, and the Masonic Hall and ante-rooms will take up the whole of the space in the upper storey. The cost of the building will be about £1,500, and it is expected to be ready for occupancy, in August ensuing. Invitations to attend the ceremony of the 6th inst. had been issued to many of the lodges in the West, and in response thereto, the following were represented, more or less numerously: Hamilton Kilwinning, 7; St. John's Lesmahagow, 20; Old St. John, Lanark, 21; St. Mungo, 27; Ancient, Stirling, 30; St. Mary, Coltness, 31; Thistle and Rose, 73; Thistle, 87; Union and Crown, 103; Royal Arch, Cambuslang, 114; Royal Arch, Rutherglen, 116; St. Mary's, Partick, 117; St. John, Shettleston, 158; St. Mirren, Paisley 129; St. Barchan, Killarchan, 156; Hamilton, 233; Shamrock and Thistle, 275; Union and Crown, Barrhead, 307; St. George, 333; St. John's Operative, 347; Commercial, 360; St. Clair, 362; Clyde, 401; Thornhill, Thornliebank, 512; St. Andrew, East Kilbride, 524; Clydesdale, Larkhall, 551; and Clydesdale, Glasgow, 556. At about 3 p.m., Lodge 347, was opened in Bro. Reid's Hall, Main-street, the following being present:—Bros. John Cunningham, R.W.M.; Wm. Gardner, P.M.; Samuel C. Abbot, D.M.; David Smart, S.M.; Jno. Murdoch, S.W.; Thos. Alston, J.W.; Wm. Lecoy, S.D.; Thos. Brodie, J.D.; Alex. Warnock, Secretary; Wm. Miller, Treasurer; Andrew Pearson, Chaplain; and Jas. Crawford, B.B. Previous to the opening of the lodge on the E. A. degree, Bro. Bryce, Tyler of Grand Lodge of Scotland, who came through for the occasion, read the following special permit from the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province: "Lochwinnoch, 27th February, 1875. I, Henry Lee Harvey, Esq., of Castle Semple, R.W. Depute Provincial Grand Master for Renfrewshire, East, as presiding over the Masonic province in the absence of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Colonel Campbell, of Blythswood, do hereby authorise and commission Bro. John Cunningham, R.W.M. of Lodge St. John Operative, Rutherglen, No. 347, to lay the foundation stone of the new Masonic Hall at Rutherglen, with full Masonic honours, at Rutherglen, on Saturday, 6th March, proximo, hereby granting him full powers to make choice of the necessary office-bearers to assist him on said occasions, and requiring him to make a full report of the proceedings immediately thereafter to me. For all which these presents shall be full and sufficient authority. Signed Henry Lee Harvey, Depute Provincial Grand Master for Renfrewshire East." The lodge having been opened, the deputation from Lodge 116, senior lodge of the province, were admitted, and the above having been read to them, it was arranged that they should carry the working tools in the procession; and therefore the various lodges assembled at Rutherglen Green, where they were duly marshalled by Bro. Edward Cornelly. At about 3.30 p.m., the procession marched from the Green, headed by the band of the 105th Lanarkshire Volunteers, and preceded by Captain Cornelly on horseback, who attended as Grand Marshal. On arriving at Cathcart-street, the brethren of St. John's, Royal Arch, Shamrock and Thistle, and one or two other lodges, defiled into the building, and ascended to the second storey, where the corner-stone was to be laid, the other lodges taking up a position in front of the edifice. The usual ceremony was then proceeded with by Bro. Cunningham, R.W.M. of St. John's Lodge, who, at the proper interval, was presented with a handsome silver trowel by Bro. Gardiner, P.W.M., as a token of the regard entertained for him by his brethren in the lodge. At the conclusion, prayer having been offered up by the R.W.M., and the Masons' Anthem having been played, Bro. Cunningham delivered a brief congratulatory address to the assembled brethren, in the course of which he expressed a hope that the building, of which they had just laid the memorial stone, would be the means of giving an impetus to Masonry in Rutherglen and the district. He thanked the office-bearers of the lodge for the energy which they had displayed in promoting the building scheme, and the deputations from the other lodges, who, by their presence at the ceremony, had manifested a kindly interest in the welfare of their brethren in Rutherglen. Bro. Scouler, Provost of the Burgh, then expressed the great pleasure he had derived from being present at the interesting ceremony which had just been performed, and said it was a satisfactory indication of the esteem in which the brethren of Rutherglen were held, that such a large and influential body of Freemasons had consented to take a part in the proceedings. He hoped that the events of that day would aid in binding them closely together by those ties of brotherhood which they all recognised, and he exhorted them to show to the world that such a bond of fellowship was no meaningless title, but that in their journey through life, they smoothed each other's path by kind words and deeds, and a brotherly interest in each other's welfare. Cheers were then given for the Queen, R.W.M. Cunningham, and Provost Scouler, after which the assemblage dispersed. The brethren of Lodge 347 returned to Bro. Reid's hall, their usual place of meeting, we may state, when the lodge was closed in due form. Altogether, the day was one which will be long remembered in the ancient burgh of Rutherglen.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (354)—The annual soiree and concert of this lodge was held in the Victoria Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 5th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw, occupied the chair, supported by Bro. A. Arrick Smith, P.M.; D. Buchanan, D.M.; W. Stafford, S.W.; A. B. Ferguson, J.W.; D. Leitch, J.D.; Colin McKenzie, Jeweller; Robert Paterson (acting) Architect; J. Dorman, C.S.; and J. Rowat, I.G. There was a large attendance of the brethren generally, with their wives, sweethearts, and friends, and numerous visitors from sister lodges. After tea, the chairman delivered a brief address, in which, after a few preliminary remarks, he touched upon the subject of the lodge, and continued:—I can say with confidence, we have prospered in a manner satisfactory to all. I don't think the prosperity of a lodge depends on the number of Masons they add to their roll in the year. It depends mostly in trying to create that amount of good feeling and brotherly love which should exist amongst the brethren. Better make nine worthy members in the year, than ninety and nine unworthy. The Lodge Caledonian Railway may take the credit of having added to its number members who will be a credit to the Order, and I trust it will be long ere it can be said of it, that it is a shop where Masonry is sold for pounds, shillings, and pence. During the past year we have added to our number one third more members than during the year previous, and have thus been enabled to increase our charities, both in a direct and an indirect manner. Charity is one of the chief corner stones of our temple. The charity of which our Order boasts is not the giving of a few pounds in pecuniary aid alone. The true Mason will be slow to anger, and easy to forgive. He will admonish with friendship and warm with kindness. The true Mason will love and cherish all who sit beneath the Great Architect of the Universe. It is a Mason's boast that his charity extendeth throughout the whole world. However, much the sceptic may laugh us to scorn, we remain united throughout the whole globe, and will continue so to the end of time. Why have our lady friends never been appealed to to assist us in our works of charity in Glasgow? Both in England and Holland the ladies assist very much in the furtherance of Masonic charities, and why we in Glasgow cannot get up bazaars for that purpose as well, is a matter of surprise to a good many. There are 26 lodges in the province of Glasgow, and though each should only educate six boys, in after years we should have something to show for the Masonic body. It must be gratifying to see amongst us to-night some of the first stones of our lodge, which is twenty-six years old, with a roll of 662 members scattered throughout the whole world. Many have been called away by the Great Architect of the Universe, and one well-known face will be missed from amongst us, that of Bro. Gemmell, who, by his kindness and willingness to oblige, gained the confidence and esteem of every one who came in contact with him, and who guarded the precincts of our temple for twenty-five years with a jealousy and devotion not to be equalled. The chairman concluded by expressing a hope that they might have many returns of their annual reunion, and that each of these might be as successful as the present. An excellent concert programme was then entered upon, for which the vocalists engaged were Miss Coleridge, Mr. H. Cathcart, and Bro. James Houston, the most popular local comic. At an interval during the evening, Bro. Collin McKenzie shortly addressed the meeting, his remarks being chiefly in corroboration of, or to the same purport as, those of the chairman, as to the genuine prosperity of the lodge, the suggestions of the R.W.M., to arrange for the education of a few boys and girls, children of deceased Masons, the desirability of increased efforts for the spread of education generally, and the valuable assistance that might be afforded by the ladies in raising the funds to carry out the objects in question. The occasion was concluded with an assembly.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556)—The usual bi-monthly meeting of this lodge, on 1st inst., was one of unusual interest, owing to the fact that the members met for the first time in their new hall, at No. 106, Rose-street, South Side. As the brethren in Glasgow are aware, this lodge, the youngest in the province, constituted only last year, met from the beginning until recently in an underground hall in the Crown-street Assembly Rooms. The disadvantages of the situation, however, compelled them to look about for a change; and circumstances being prosperous with them, they took a lease of a two-storey self-contained house in the locality above mentioned, and which they have now transformed into premises in every way eligible for their purpose. The lodge-room is upstairs, is some 33 by 23 feet, inside dimensions, and will, when the decorations are fully completed, be at once a commodious and elegant Masonic hall—the second, we may add, erected on the south side of the river, within the province of Glasgow, the first being that of Lodge Neptune, in St. James's-street, Kingston. The interest taken in the occasion was manifested by the attendance on Monday evening, no fewer than 84 brethren having signed the Tyler's book. The R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Phillips, presided, and of other office-bearers of the lodge there were present Bros. John McNaught, S.M.; John B. McNaught, S.W.; John Howie, J.W.; John Frew, S.D.; Hugh Weir, J.D.; George B. Yuill, Secretary; H. W. Jackson, Architect; and J. Webster, Chaplain. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. J. Peters, R.W.M. Lodge Royal Arch, Pollokshaws, 153; Geo. Muir, D.M. 103; D. Ronald, S.W. 275; John Wilson, G. Marshal, 34; Geo. W. Wheeler, 73; John Horn, Secretary, 275; Peter Hepburn, J.W. 178; Jas. B. McNeil, 362; and others. The lodge having been opened, the chairman, in a few remarks, referred to the new locale in which they were now assembled, which, however, he asked them to remember, did not show as it would do when the decorations were completed. Thereafter the lodge proceeded to business, when Bros. Wm. Kirkwood, P.M. Lodge Royal Arch, Rutherglen; John Horne, Secretary; and Thos. Russell, Lodge Shamrock and Thistle, 275, were affiliated members of No. 556 by the R.W.M. The subsequent work consisted of the initiation of four duly recommended candidates, also by the R.W.M., the passing to the F.C. degree of Bro. James Barclay, by Bro. J. B. McNaught, S.W.; and the raising to the sublime degree of six brethren, by the R.W.M. The lodge was thereafter closed in due and ancient form. In proof of the prosperity of this young lodge, it may be stated that within two months past, that is since the beginning of the year, they have initiated sixteen members into the Order, and that an emergency meeting is to be held for the initiation of three more.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360)—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge room, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 5th inst., Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., presiding, Bros. John Oliver, S.W.; and J. Brode, P.M., acting S.W.; there were also present Bros. A. Morton, I.P.M.; John Davidson, P.M.; and a goodly number of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, and in the unavoidable absence of Bro. W. H. Bickerton, Secretary, Bro. A. Morton, I.P.M., read the minutes of previous meeting, which were approved of. Bro. John Monro presented the lodge with a Masters' apron, which could be used by his successor in office, which was received with acclamation. Applications were then read from the following gentlemen for initiation into the ancient privileges and mysteries of Freemasonry, Messrs. Wm. Harrison, John Brash, F. C. E. Schröder, and Alex. Martin, there being no objection they were admitted, and received the E.A. degree, Bro. Julius Brode, S.W., officiating in a most masterly style. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE NEPTUNE (No. 419)—The thirtieth annual soiree of this lodge was held on the 3rd inst. in Crown-street Assembly Rooms. The R.W.M., Bro. James S. Scott, presided, supported on the platform by Bros. Dalziel, S.M.; L. Brown, S.W.; J. B. McNaught, S.W. 556; Deneef, S.D.; Colin Wood, J.D.; M'Allister, Secretary; R. T. Dunn, Treasurer; and Johnstone, Chaplain. Among brethren from sister lodges, in the body of the hall, were Bros. G. C. H. McNaught, P.M. Shamrock and Thistle, 285; Malcolm Stark, D.M. St. Vincent, 553; Dr. Russell, D.M. Clydesdale, 556; and others. After tea, the chairman delivered a brief address, in the course of which he congratulated the brethren on the steady progress of Lodge 419. During the time she had been in existence, she had admitted no fewer than ten hundred members, and he thought that it augured well for her prosperity in the future. The lodge had done some good in their day and generation, and in the way of charity especially had often caused the heart of the widow and orphan to leap for joy. Referring to the extension of Masonry in Glasgow, the speaker said he remembered when there were only fourteen lodges within the province, whereas now the number was twenty-six. In concluding, the Chairman remarked that the facts, among others, that the Prince of Wales was about to become Grand Master Mason of England, and that the representative of her Majesty's Government in Ireland was G.M. there, were surely sufficient to give the Craft a status in society. An excellent concert programme was then entered upon, in which the ballad singing of Misses Marion Vallance and Edith Leslie, and the respective efforts of Bro. Charles Stewart (tenor), D. Alexander, and J. C. Gordon in the humorous department, gave satisfaction to all and sundry. The occasion, as usual, concluded with an assembly.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOLE (No. 413)—The usual fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, 213, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, 9th inst. Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M., officiating; Bro. Colin McKenzie, S.W.; Bro. D. Leitch, J.W.; there were also present J. Millar, P.M.; Bros. J. Loutitt, D.M.; Agnew, Treas.; Stevenson, Sec.; the visitors were Bros. John Morgan, R.W.M., Lodge Star, 219; J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., Lodge Union, 332; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Wallace, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Several matters connected with the lodge were discussed and amicably settled. The lodge being raised, the following brethren were advanced to the degree of Fellow Craft, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason—Bros. I. Simpson, John Connell, D. Cameron, R. Russell, R. Easdale, being an emergency meeting. Bro. Loutitt, D.M., officiated in the Fellow Craft degree in such a masterly style, that looks well for the future working as well as the present, of Lodge Athole. Bro. J. Millar, P.M., officiated in the M.M. degree in his usual careful and impressive manner. The lodge was then closed in due form. At the next regular meeting, Tuesday, the 23rd inst., Bro. Walter Baynham will give a lecture, subject, "Freemasonry." Visitors cordially invited.

GLASGOW.—LODGE GLASGOW (No. 441)—This lodge met in the Masons' Hall, Struthers-street, Calton, on Tuesday, the 9th inst. Bro. Hugh Tulloch occupied the chair, and the office-bearers present were Bros. W. B. Marr, Secretary; Wm. Sloan, Treasurer; John Neagle, S.D.; Duncan Campbell, J.D.; and James Martin, P.G.S. The lodge having been opened, one candidate for initiation came forward and duly received the E.A. degree at the hands of the R.W.M. There being no other business the lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553)—The ordinary bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in Claremont Hall, 162, Kent-road, on the 11th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. Robt. McDougall, presided, and there were present, Bros. Malcolm Stark, D.M.; William Wilson, 87, acting S.W.; A. C. Hunter, J.W.; John McLellan, Treasurer; and Thos. Best, J.D. The business consisted of raising Bros. Thos. McLean, Thos. Liddel, John Shields, Wm. McGhee, and T. B. Barrett, receiving the sublime degree at the hands of Bro. Bain, P.M. 103. At the close of the proceedings, Bro. William Wilson, 89, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Bain, for the admirable working they had just witnessed, which was carried by unanimous acclamation. Bro. Bain having briefly acknowledged the compliment, the lodge was duly closed.

CROSSHILL.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541)—A pro re nata emergency meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on the evening of Monday, the 1st inst., in the regular place of meeting. Bro. Julius Brode, S.M., acting R.W.M.; Bro. John Monro, R.W.M. 360, acting S.W.; and Bro. Robt. W. Buchanan, Secretary, acting J.W.; with a fair attendance of members of the lodge and visiting brethren from Glasgow and elsewhere, including Bro. Thos. Halkett, P.M. St. Mark's, 102. The lodge having been opened by Bro. Brode, in his usual impressive style, the Secretary was called upon to read a committee minute, explaining the object and business of this meeting, viz.: the filling up of the offices rendered vacant by the resignation of the late R.W.M., Bro. J. D. Porteous, on his removal from Glasgow, to fill the office of Postmaster of Bolton, Lancashire, and by the death of Bro. Stamm, J.W. The committee recommended Bro. Brode for the office of R.W.M., and to supply the other offices, they suggested that the remaining office-bearers should be advanced, and new nominations made for the more subordinate vacancies thus formed. This proposal having been put and unanimously approved of, Bro. Halkett, at the request of the lodge, proceeded to instal Bro. Brode (who is an Installed P.M. of No. 360) to the office of R.W.M., and invested the other office-bearers present in their new positions—a duty in which, from his great experience, Bro. Halkett is quite at home, and which he performed on this occasion in his usual impressive and kindly style. The newly-installed R.W.M., Bro. Brode, having received the appropriate greetings of the brethren, in a few well chosen remarks thanked them for the high position in which he was placed, and referred to the great responsibility which he felt to devolve upon him, from filling the chair as successor to such an accomplished and eminent Master as Bro. Porteous, who, he was sure, carries with him the grateful esteem not only of this lodge, but of every lodge in the province and neighbourhood. He should, however, perform the duties to the best of his ability, and would be stimulated to do so by the efficient support which he was confident he could count upon from the office-bearers and every brother of the lodge. At the close of his remarks, the R.W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Halkett, for his attendance and service that evening, which was heartily responded to and acknowledged in fitting terms. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

Q.Y.—Will you kindly inform me the correct style to address the First Principal of a chapter. Is it E.Z., or M.E.Z.? What is the title of the First Principal of a Prov. Grand Chapter, and of the Supreme Grand Chapter? Also how should Comp. H. and J. be addressed; as E. Comp. H., or J. respectively? And have Past Zs. any other distinction than "P.Z."?

[Strictly speaking, we think that, in all probability, E.Z. is the proper appellation for the First Principal of a subordinate chapter, and the same rule applies to J. and H. But custom seems to give to the First Principal the same title as is given in Grand Chapter, "M.E.Z.," and equally in Provincial Grand Chapter. There is no distinct rule certain on the subject, but "mos est lex."—Ed.]

PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

We were happy in being able to announce some of the preliminary arrangements for the installation of our Royal Grand Master in our last impression, and we call attention to the official documents to-day. We think that the announcement of the "modus," proposed for appointing the additional Stewards will give much satisfaction. The London lodges are to nominate each one Steward, and the provinces, two Stewards each. The idea seems a very happy one, and if perfectly and practically carried out, will tend greatly to simplify the proceedings of the day, and to obviate many possible difficulties. The Craft will be greatly pleased to note that by the favour and consideration of the Grand Master, all Master Masons can be present; at any rate, an allotted number of them. This act of grace will be warmly appreciated. Our contemporary, the Times, despite its usual accuracy, made one or two mistakes in its statement about things Masonic on Monday week last, to which we think it right to call the careful attention of our brethren. It states, for instance, that a Committee of Grand Officers was proposing regulations, &c., and drawing up the arrangements. Our distinguished Bro. Sir Albert Woods has "virtute officii" the natural direction and elaboration of all the needful arrangements; but by special appointment of His Royal Highness, the Grand Master, the superintendence of the arrangements for the accommodation of the members who are privileged to attend, has been entrusted to Bro. Thomas Fenn, who officiated for some years as Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies. The Times also announced that only 400 tickets would be issued for the festival at Freemasons' Hall. In this, we believe that the Times is both premature and incorrect. The arrangements for the dinner rest with the Grand Stewards alone, and they certainly have not yet decided on any such course of action. We will endeavour faithfully to keep our brethren "au courant" of all the arrangements and regulations, as they are matured, from week to week, as we well know the deep interest which our loyal brotherhood feels in regard of this most felicitous event in the annals of our English Craft.

THE SPECIAL STEWARDS.

Some brethren, especially in the provinces, are under the impression that by serving as a Steward on this occasion they become Grand Stewards and have the privilege of wearing the "crimson." We need hardly, perhaps, say to our general readers that this is not the case. These Special Stewards have nothing whatever to do with the Grand Stewards or the Grand Stewards with them. The Grand Stewards' duties are entirely distinct. They are connected with the procession, the ceremony, and particularly the banquet at the Freemasons' Hall, or, properly speaking, the Grand Festival, of which they pay a large proportion of the expense. The Special Stewards are appointed to assist Bros. Woods and Fenn in carrying out the arrangements for admitting and seating the brethren, and beyond the cost of the jewel, which they may have or not as they please, they will not be called upon to contribute towards any expense.

THE PROSPECTS OF MASONIC LITERATURE.

It is very remarkable, and at the same time a perfectly inexplicable fact in the annals of Freemasonry, how evanescent have been the efforts of Masonic writers generally, and how fleeting has been the popularity of Masonic literature. In this country the record of Masonic literary enterprise is—with one notable exception—the record of failure and of loss. Of all our Masonic writers, Oliver is the only one who has retained in any measure, if we may so say, the Masonic literary market. Magazines and Mirrors, serials, sentimental and matter of fact, have come and have gone, and for the most part to-day, they are relics of archaeological curiosity, and serve to "point the moral and adorn the tale" of unsuccessful speculations and an apathetic brotherhood. No one Masonic periodical has so far survived a few fleeting years, and that the Freemason has weathered the gale so long, cannot fairly be ascribed to the support of our Order, but simply to the pluck and perseverance of its enterprising and fraternal publisher. His motto has been "auspiciis melioris ævi," and we trust that the sympathy of our great Order may yet be extended to his efforts on behalf of literature, and reward his zealous energy and self-sacrifice, by revived interest in Masonic journalism, and a more general display of appreciation and approval. In saying this we do not intend to complain, and we do not complain; for probably no Masonic journal has ever been cheered by a more kindly circle of correspondents and subscribers, and the position of the Freemason is not only one of which our publisher may be proud, as it is his own creation, but it is also, and it is gratifying to remember, in the enjoyment of much confidence and an increasing circulation weekly amongst our honest and truth-loving English Craft. But we have been led into these remarks, not, we venture to deem, ill-timed or inappropriate, by learning from the other side of the Atlantic that the same fate seems to attend literary efforts there, the same spell seems to be cast on the most striking productions of Masonic literature. Bro. Gouley's Freemason of St. Louis has not only an American but a world-wide reputation. It has been conducted with singular ability, truthfulness, and fearlessness, on the principles of Freemasonry alone, and in a manner to reflect the greatest credit on our able and energetic brother. And yet here with the January number of his very interesting paper, Bro. Gouley announces that he suspends the publication until April, in order to see if he can receive the more hearty support of his brother Freemasons, and we fancy, too, the payment of over-due subscriptions. Bro. Gouley tells us that in order to establish the Freemason of St. Louis on a firm basis he bought up and consolidated with his journal five other Masonic magazines, the Iowa Evergreen, the Californian Masonic Mirror, the Texas Masonic Mirror, the Illinois Masonic Trowel, and the Mississippi Tablet. He further mentions this startling fact, that though he closed the eighth volume with "over 7000 names" upon his "books," "in commencing the ninth volume, 1875, the cry of poverty comes up with redoubled force." Though it is true that the "prominent and leading Masons" in most of the American states "continue to increase," yet Bro. Gouley tells us "the number of reading Masons" who are "willing" to pay "two dollars per year" is "so limited" that he "cannot afford to furnish a journal of this size for the price without throwing his entire time and labour away, without making a labour of love a labour of loss." With the following opinion of Bro. Gouley, we fully concur. "The apathy exhibited by the Masonic fraternity, composed as it should be, of the most reflecting and intelligent minds of the community, wherever located, is perfectly astounding, and as incomprehensible as it is alarming." Thus we see, that in the United States, Masonic literature has a hard if not a harder battle to wage, both for existence, much more for success, than even we have in the old country. If in England we count our numbers by tens of thousands, in America they count them by hundreds of thousands, and certainly that two such excellent and high-class periodicals, as Bro. Mackey's National Freemason, and Bro. Gouley's St. Louis Freemason should not be fully supported by our American brethren, does surprise and startle us not a little, we confess. Two causes seem to predominate, in bringing about this untoward state of affairs, unwillingness to pay the annual subscriptions, and lack of genuine sympathy with the Masonic press. There are a good many excellent brethren, who do not refuse to support the press, but do necessarily dislike to be reminded that the payment of the pittance is due. We all remember that amiable person, Nicholas Nickleby, who had the philanthropic weakness and custom of leaving "little accounts," not long ones, owing. And in Freemasonry, the caterers for Masonic literature have the same class fraternally to deal with, kind, good, zealous Masons, but who meet the reminder of payment with a P.O.O., and the authoritative word, "discontinue." There is also a class of Masons, who seem to expect to have Masonic literature provided for them, "free gratis." They forget that printers have to be paid, that reporters have to be subsidized, that editors have to be remunerated, and that the publisher has a claim for interest of locked-up capital, for time, and for general management. This is a fact sometimes forgotten, and it lies, if as truth generally does lie, "at the bottom of a well," certainly at the basis of all possible Masonic literary profit and success. There is still a lingering dislike to the Masonic press. It is, we venture to think, alike unwise and unmasonic, inasmuch as a properly conducted Masonic press, like a properly conducted press anywhere, is an additional guarantee, in our humble opinion, for the safe progress of society, the needful development of intellect, and the peace and well-being of the human race. We can only hope that Bro. Gouley's appeal may be answered by our American brethren, in a true Masonic spirit, and that we may yet have to record another happy victory of right and truth, and cultivation, over the opposing influence of prejudice, ignorance, and benumbing apathy.

THE OPENING OF THE NEW MASONIC TEMPLE AT ROME.

Italy continues, as it has long been, a land of the deepest interest to all educated Englishmen. That happy association of our youth, which, in our great and sheltered "academies," linked us with the "Morgen land" of poetry and history, of legend and romance, is preserved by us more or less during our busy lives. There are few of us who have not strayed in the "tempi passati" amid the ruins of Rome, and the "debris" of the Colosseum, few indeed to whom the Italy of many hundred years is not familiar, in all its eventful annals, and in its imperishable worthies. It is this wonderful, if pervading "classicalism," to use a modern word, which has tended, in our opinion, so much to round off the sharper angles of the Anglo-Saxon character. To the blunt and honest, if dogged sensibilities, of our semi-Teutonic ancestors, we have superadded the "gentillesse" of the Norman Preux Chevalier, and upon this has been grafted that appreciation of the free struggles of Rome, and the intellectual aspirations of Greece, which have rendered the character of Englishmen so "thorough," if with many defects, as before the nations of the world. Hence to Italy, Roman, Christian, Mediæval, nay, even Papal, Englishmen have all turned as age has followed age, with the deep sympathy of memory and admiration. And, as Freemasons, we have also much of deeply seated interest, in the Masonic present and future of that favoured land. Until quite recently, Freemasonry was practically unknown in Italy, it was suspected, denounced, watched, and suppressed. It was a subject of fear to the rulers, and even of doubt to the ruled. Hence arose what is inevitable under such circumstances, an anomalous and regrettable state of things. The lodges, forbidden to meet under the wise sanctions of law and order, met in secret, and there was cast over Freemasonry what is always prejudicial to its interests, a hindrance to its progress, and unfair to its real character, that colouring of a political secret association, of which Freemasonry proper knows nothing. But all these untoward obstacles have gradually passed away, or at any rate are slowly yielding to the onward and humanizing march of liberation and enlightenment. The Roman Catholic church has not yet, indeed, given up its hostility to Freemasonry, and does still, and will probably yet still, in the fervour of its perverse fanaticism, like some other good but most mistaken men nearer home, impede alike by open denunciation and secret calumny, the benevolent and philanthropic teaching of true Freemasonry. We congratulate our Italian brethren on the opening of the New Masonic Temple at Rome, and we trust that this successfully completed work may be the omen to them of many more peaceful and fraternal victories. We believe that the Italian Freemasons have, so to say, the "game in their own hands," if only they will, to use a familiar expression, "run straight," and carefully avoid any declinations from the one right course, as usual a straight and a narrow path, either to the right hand or to the left. Their first attempt should be to be "quit" of all real or supposed political tendencies. Freemasonry has nothing to do with secret political societies, with "carbonari" or "Madre Natura," with any of these peculiar forms of "Giovene Italia," which have their own ends to attain and their own principles to propound. And these aims and these principles are not Masonic. The tendency of too many foreign bodies of Masons is to indulge in the fine phrases and stereotyped formulæ of socialism or communism, accompanied with the vague and often meaningless professions of humanitarian sympathies and philanthropic designs. The Italians are, in themselves, not only a most tolerant, but a most genial people, full of kindness and affection for their fellow men, and those of their own kith and kin. To them Freemasonry in its message of fraternity, equality, beneficence, toleration, justice and truth, its practical vitality, and its active charity, will appeal with forcible emphasis. These are, after all, Italian virtues, despite the errors and false teachings of others, and as such they will, we doubt not, soon permanently take root in the luxuriant Italian soil. May the future progress of Freemasonry in Italy be one of practical utility, of expansive benevolence, and of true fraternity.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS.

VI.

The famous so-called York Constitution, published by Krause, originally in the "Kunsturkunden," in 1810, has been the subject of much controversy. He, himself, originally announced it as "the ancient York Constitution, accepted in the year 926 from an original, preserved by the Grand Lodge of York, translated into Latin by an Englishman in 1807, and retranslated from Latin into German by Bro. Schneider, in Altenburg, in 1808, and illustrated with explanatory notes by the editor." Such is the original description given by Krause, in the edition of 1810, which we have not seen, according to our able Bro. Findel. The history of this document is somewhat peculiar. Quite at the end of the last century, or at the beginning of this, Bro. Schneider, of Altenburg, received from a Bro. Böttger, then in London, an account of an old York Constitution, which he had seen. This letter is to be found in the Altenburg journal for Freemasons, 1. B S 408. He describes this MS. as a very old one, consisting of 107 leaves, in large folio, of which nearly one third was illegible by him, on account of its being in old English. In this volume were contained the charges said to be collected by command of King William III., in 1694, as also the fourteen regulations from King Edred's until Henry Eighth's time. Bro. Schneider, of Altenburg, in unison with Bros. Mörlin and Pierer, therefore continued his enquiries in respect of the York Constitution. In 1803 he told a Bro. Van Dyk, passing through Altenburg from Holland of it, and expressed his desire to have a copy of it. In the beginning of the year 1808, Bro. Van Dyk sent him a Latin MS., which he said was a copy of the York Constitutions, and which he had received, through a certain Colonel William Erskine, who lived in Scotland, but was often at York in the summer. A certain I. Stonehouse, dating and sealing his letter from York, Jan. 4th, 1806, declared the Latin to be a "true copy of a MS., which, composed in the ancient vernacular tongue of the country, was written on parchment, and was preserved in the archives of the most venerable Society of Architects of this town, contains the same things as the Latin translation." At the conclusion of the Regulations of Edred, &c., Stonehouse also says, "this translation in the Latin tongue answers to those, which, from time to time, have been added to the parchment MS. above mentioned, and are found at the end of the same." This is signed the same day in 1806. This Latin translation was again translated into German by Bro. Schneider, and is certified to be correct, by a certain Carl Erdmann Weller, 9th January, 1809, according to his opinion, and that of three linguists of the Royal Saxon Chancellerie at Altenburg. Such is the history of the document, and a very remarkable one it is. Several points in it must strike even an uncritical student. Of the original MS., nothing is so far known, as no extant constitution agrees with its description, and the charges of William III., and the regulations of Edred, are entirely strange to our English Masonic historians and students. Who translated the MS. constitution into Latin is not told us. In one place Krause calls it "Stonehouse's translation," but nothing has as yet been discovered, either of Col. Erskine or of Stonehouse. There is as yet no known Masonic constitution in Latin, and where Colonel Erskine got it from, seems very difficult to understand, unless indeed, it was a "prolusio lathomica" of the famous Dr. Brown. Admitting that there are some circumstances of suspicion about its history, let us go and see what its internal evidence has for us. In the first place, we must give up the Edwin name and theory. The tradition probably refers, as good old Drake pointed out in 1726, to Edwin of the Deira, and not to Athelstan's brother. If there was an old guild at York, as there might have been in Edwin's time, it might have been patronized by him and subsequently have received a charter of confirmation from Athelstan. But Edwin the Atheling's name is clearly a mistaken interpolation. It is very remarkable, that there are expressions in Krause's Constitution which are perhaps only to be found in Anderson's Constitutions, especially of 1738. Both mention Carausius, both say that he gave the Masons two and not three-pence, and both call Edwin, correctly, Athelstan's brother. Both refer to the early establishment of a Grand Lodge, and the early meeting of the Grand Assembly of York. What then is the value of Krause's MS., per se? That it represents a constitution of 926 is both absurd and untenable. The archaisms, the verbiage, the allusions all forbid such an idea. But the constitution, notwithstanding we dethrone it from its high archaeological pedestal, is still, in our opinion, a valuable document, and genuine, as a Masonic constitution. We cannot now trace the original, it is true; at least we have not done so, so far, and as we observed before, no one in England knows anything about the Charges of 1594, or the Regulations of Edred. But we still believe the documents to be Masonic documents, and to have been probably seen by Anderson and Preston. Whether the original "Codex" seen by Böttger now exists it is impossible to say, if we had it before us, we could perhaps affix a date to it, but judging from the translation, though we admit such a medium is not entirely reliable, we should not be disposed to place the MS., at any rate, earlier than the contemporary constitutions of the 15th century, if even it does not belong to a still later epoch. In all our discussions, therefore, it appears to us, we can only use Krause's Constitution, &c., as an old and interesting Masonic document. We reject entirely the supposition, that it was fabricated at the beginning of this century.

LODGE MEETINGS.

Our lodge meetings almost universally still have for us all happy associations and pleasant memories. They are to us like an oasis in the outspread desert of time, for there, as in every well-ordered lodge meeting, we all of us assembled in blither days perhaps, of yore, to keep up the venerable traditions, and to "work" the cherished ceremonial of our good and genial Craft. To-day we are older, and may be sadder than of old. Time has thinned our locks and bowed our forms, the lapse of years, the conditions of our calling, the wear and tear of life, nay even the trials and sorrows of mundane experience, have affected us all more or less, and ours are now serious and sobered views of men and things, instead of the exuberant flow of spirit, and the gay "insouciance" of early days, and to us, therefore, lodge meetings are not quite so accessible or so available as in other and younger days. We have home duties and claims, or our steps are not so elastic, or our health so good, as one and both used to be, or we find that our first consideration must be sterner avocations, and that our society must henceforth necessarily consist of the domestic circle. All these, and many other causes and contingencies, as years advance, make some of us less assiduous than we were in our lodge attendance, less frequent in our appearance amid the friendly and fraternal gathering. Yet, as we said at the outset, all our associations and memories of lodge meetings are pleasing and refreshing. There was the humble "upper room," where we met, a cheery and goodly band, say some four short "lustra" ago. We seldom missed a lodge meeting then, and our assemblies were alike agreeable and always welcome. In that old spot we saw the light of Masonry, there we took office, there we sat in the Royal Chair. There, as careful Past Masters, we closed our mystic ceremonies; there, for many a long year, we met, as month followed month, that muster roll of good fellows and true, who enhanced the charms of Masonry by their social worth, and who upheld the prestige of our lodge by their high characters. And yet how few of that goodly array of Master Masons, and Past Masters and officers, and brethren, are still to the fore. Bro. Stiggins has the gout badly; Bro. Thompson has retired into the far west on a fortune and a family connection: Bro. Philpotts has married a second time, and Mrs. Philpotts, No. 2, objects to the lodge; Bro. Chandler has daughters to take out; Bro. Willis is a disappointed old bachelor, who has never recovered his refusal by a certain young lady we wot of; and Bro. Shakerley has become pompous and learned, and a swell. Few of the "old school," now assemble in that famous lodge, or around that festive board. A new generation has taken their place, but still the old familiar work is done, and still the links of brotherhood are kept up. So it has always been, and so it will ever be. Such is the fate of most earthly things—they are and they are not; they flourish and decay. Still let us cherish the memories of those lodge meetings of ours, which seem always to tell us a tale of more youthful, perhaps more joyous days. They were to us "albæ dies." When we greeted them week by week, or month by month, they were symbols of all that is true, and pleasant, and faithful, and gracious, in the friendship and in the brotherhood of man, and their strains still linger in our ears, and their warm sympathies still vibrate in our hearts. Such were to us many of the lodge meetings of the past. What the present should be to our "nova progenies" we will try and point out in our next impression.

A NEW MASONIC LITERARY WORK.

We have been favoured, by the courtesy of Bro. W. J. Hughan, with a portion of the proof sheets of the memorial volume in connection with the completion and consecration of the Masonic Hall at Philadelphia. It promises to be a most interesting resumé, when we have it in its entire state, alike of the history of American and Pennsylvanian Freemasonry. This work has been got together, we believe, by a syndicate of some of the most distinguished of the Philadelphia Freemasons, but on this point Bro. W. J. Hughan can give further details. Though we are unable, owing to the press upon our pages to give a more detailed account of it in the Freemason, we have made arrangements by which much of the history will appear in the May number of the Masonic Magazine, and to which useful periodical we beg to refer our many readers. We in England feel the greatest interest in all that appertains to American literary efforts, and we welcome the memorial volume as conducive to the best interests of Masonic history and Masonic literature.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

We are informed, on good authority, that the arrangements for the ceremony at the Royal Albert Hall are under the sole control of the Grand Director of Ceremonies, Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter. Subject to his direction, the superintendence of the carrying out of the arrangements for the admission and seating of the brethren, is, by special appointment of His Royal Highness, the Most Worshipful Grand Master, entrusted to Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.A.G.D.C. Bro. Sir Albert Woods has held the office of Grand Director of Ceremonies for fifteen years; besides this long personal experience, he has had the benefit of the experience of his father, Sir William Woods, who formerly held the same office in Grand Lodge.

Bro. Fenn held the office of Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies for five years; namely, from the year of laying the foundation stone to the Inauguration of Freemasons' Hall in 1869, on which latter occasion he discharged a duty similar to that with which he is now entrusted. His services received the personal recognition of the Earl of Zetland, and at the quarterly communication in June, 1869, the thanks of Grand Lodge, inscribed on vellum, were presented to Sir Albert Woods and Bro. Fenn, for the admirable manner in which they organized the "preparations and arrangements for, and conducted, and carried out the ceremony of the Inauguration Festival." He is Secretary and Past Master of the Prince of Wales's Lodge, a member of the Board of General Purposes, and is well known to the Craft from the leading part that he takes in the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, of which eminent lodge he has been an active member for nearly twenty years.

INSTALLATION OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The following circulars have been issued from the Grand Secretary's office.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., March 10, 1875.

Sir and Brother,

By book post I forward a packet of circulars, which I shall feel obliged by your distributing to the W.M. of each lodge in your province.

In order to facilitate the arrangements therein referred to, and prevent confusion and delay at the entrances of the Hall, it is desirable that two brethren of your province, to whom the members or some of the members of each lodge are known, should act as Stewards, and undertake to be present before the doors are opened, for the purpose of identifying, so far as practicable, the brethren as they enter. I shall therefore feel obliged if you will, after consultation with the Provincial Grand Master of the Province, return the names and addresses of two brethren who may be willing to undertake this duty.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been pleased to sanction the striking of a special Jewel to be worn by the Stewards who personally assist in carrying out these arrangements.

The cost of the jewel is not to exceed five pounds.

By command of the M.W. Grand Master,

JOHN HERVEY, G.S.

To Bro. ——— Provincial Grand Secretary, ———
N.B.—All communications on this subject are to be addressed to the Grand Secretary, Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., and marked on the outside, or on the envelope, "Installation."

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., March 10th, 1875.

W. Master,

A limited number of brethren being required to assist the Executive in carrying out the arrangements for the admission and seating of the brethren at the Royal Albert Hall, the Most Worshipful Grand Master has been pleased to order, that each of the London lodges shall have the privilege of nominating a Steward for that purpose. If, therefore, it is the desire of your lodge to name a Steward to serve on the occasion, you will have the goodness to forward the name and address of such brother on or before the 31st instant.

Should those returned exceed the number required for this service, the selection will be determined by ballot. It must however be distinctly understood that every brother whose name is so returned must undertake to attend the meetings when summoned, to be present at the hall at twelve o'clock on the day appointed, and to undertake the duty that may be assigned to him.

The Stewards personally discharging these duties will have the privilege of wearing a special jewel which His Royal Highness has been pleased to sanction.

The cost of this jewel is not to exceed five pounds.

By command of the M.W.G.M.,

JOHN HERVEY, G.S.

To the W. Master, Lodge No. —

The following is the form of letter suggested to be adopted by the Masters or Secretaries of lodges in communicating with the members individually.

March —, 1875.

Sir and Brother,

The installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, as M.W. Grand Master, is appointed to take place at the Royal Albert Hall, South Kensington, on Wednesday, the 28th of April next, at three o'clock in the afternoon, being the day fixed by the Constitutions.

In order that proper arrangements may be made, I am requested to make a return of all qualified members of Grand Lodge, and of all Master Masons, who may desire to be present on the occasion. Should there not be accommodation in the hall for all the brethren, whose names are returned, an equitable distribution of tickets for the admission of Master Masons who are not members of Grand Lodge will be made to each lodge.

As no brother will be admitted whose name is not returned to the Grand Secretary on or before the 31st of this month, your answer must reach me to the above address on or before the 24th instant.

Brethren who are subscribing members of more than one lodge must return their names on one list only, and it is particularly requested that no brother will return his name unless he is prepared to attend.

Tickets will not be transferable.

Yours fraternally,

To Bro. ———, Lodge No. —

MASONIC FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I read an extract, professedly from the "Pomeroys Democrat," an American paper, in a contemporary of yours, with great "gusto," as like Samuel Weller, I could say, "them's my sentiments." Then I remembered all of a sudden that I had seen those "werry identical words" afore, and that they once formed part of a leading article of yours in the Freemason, which has been extensively reprinted in Masonic papers and serials of the United States. So I said to myself, says I, "here's a go." A bit of the Freemason copied into the "Pomeroys Democrat," and then republished in a contemporary Masonic paper in London as American. Is there such a thing as Masonic fair play? I pause for reply!

MARK TAPLEY.

INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AS M.W. GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you permit me to offer one or two suggestions as to the forthcoming event for the benefit of those whom it may concern. I believe we may thank the Freemason for the decision to hold the meeting at the Albert Hall, a suggestion first made and urged in your columns.

As there will be a very large influx of country Past Masters present, and as it is very desirable that the occasion should be made the most of for the Masonic charities, I venture to suggest that all W. and Past Masters, &c., desiring to attend, should acquaint the Secretary of their respective lodges, and that through that channel only, tickets, say at 10s. 6d. each, should be issued from the Grand Secretary's office, say up to the 7th or 14th April. After that date the tickets should be double the amount I mention, in order to induce brethren to apply early, and to enable Sir Albert Woods and his staff to make the necessary arrangements. Of course I take it that the numbers of lodges will be strictly arranged according to precedence, the oldest, according to their number, in the lower boxes, and the new ones at the top and in the gallery.

I suppose the actual members of Grand Lodge will be upon the stage with His Royal Highness. I think the entrance of His Royal Highness should be the signal for the whole of the brethren to rise and sing the National Anthem; the effect would be magnificent with four or five thousand voices, and as we are thoroughly loyal, I fancy it would not be considered unmasonic or out of place if the proceedings were preluded in this way.

A very considerable sum might be raised by the issue of tickets, as I suggest, which might be equally distributed, after payment of expenses, between the three great Masonic charities.

There are very few of the 10,000 Past Masters entitled to attend who would grudge the 10s. 6d. for the ticket.

The jewel commemorative of the event, suggested by a correspondent, should, in my opinion, be restricted to those who were actually present. Medals are not given in war to those who only wished to be at such and such a battle, and it would be ridiculous to allow those who could not trouble themselves to go up to town the same privilege which the participants in the greatest Masonic gathering of this century, will be enabled years hence to talk of with pride and satisfaction. Of course it will be out of the question for the multitude who flock to town to dine together. I presume, however, that the Prince and the Grand Officers will probably have a banquet, and I venture to suggest that here also a goodly sum might be made for the charities, by charging say £2 2s. for the dinner ticket, allowing all Past Masters, bona fide members of Grand Lodge, to go who liked, and giving a moiety of the dinner fee to the charities. Of course, under ordinary circumstances people will not pay £2 2s. even to dine with His Royal Highness, but on such an occasion, of the thousands who will come up for the installation, I should be very much surprised if 500 at least cannot be found who will gladly pay £2 2s. to sit down to the banquet.

And for the rest I have a cool proposal to make, which is this, that the London lodges should entertain the country lodges. The Masons of London should hold high festival, and each lodge might easily banquet a few Past Masters who have come up to town from long distances, and who very likely have no personal friends to entertain them elsewhere. I merely throw this out as a suggestion for the consideration of the metropolitan brethren. It would be very easy for all the lodges intending to banquet to intimate to the Grand Secretary that lodge so and so would have a banquet at such a place and hour. The Grand Secretary might then allot in rotation the Past Masters, &c., of such a country lodge to them for hospitality, when the Secretary of the lodge would communicate with the Secretary of the country lodge, as to the number, rank, &c., of the members who propose to accept the invitation.

Speaking for myself, as a country Mason, pretty well known in the Craft, I may state that I have never been privileged to partake of the hospitality of any London lodge, and I for one am open to any invitation, however humble, to any metropolitan lodge, however remote.

Your obedient servant,

Æ.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"E. J. W." has let his hobby-horse—opposition to court, &c., uniforms—run away with him. I never dreamed that it should be worn in our lodges, or that "small coteries" would be formed, at the same time I am aware of the fact that volunteers do attend lodges in uniform, and that no jealousies are fostered thereby.

The 28th of April will be of so exceptional a character that it behoves us to seize every means possible to mark it as a red letter day in our Masonic calendar. Perhaps "E. J. W." will give me credit for having travelled largely also, and that I have a considerable knowledge of the "high, noble, and generous character of His Royal Highness," and that it is this very knowledge which has, to some extent, prompted the suggestion, the more especially as military brethren cannot always afford, even if permitted to wear, mufti. I speak now of that large and worthy set of non-commissioned officers, and wish to steer clear of such a fiasco as that at Plymouth.

With Bro. Wilkins I hope that an order will be issued defining the several uniforms I have suggested being worn, and giving authority for the same.

Yours very fraternally,

AN OLD P.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to ask a question for the information of country brethren, who may be desirous of being present at the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master. Is it imperative that evening dress coats must be worn, or can brethren appear in frock coats. Your information on this subject will greatly oblige many of the brethren, and enable them to provide accordingly.

An answer in this week's issue of the Freemason will oblige.

I am dear sir and brother, yours fraternally and faithfully,

A. P.M., P.Z., &c.

Sheerness-on-sea, March 17th, 1875.

THE STATUS OF PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I would venture to suggest to "An Old P.M., One &c." that he would be rendering a service to Freemasonry by getting the subject of the Status of Past Masters definitely settled by a reference to Grand Lodge through the Board of General Purposes. It is, as I have already endeavoured to show, the silence of the Book of Constitutions on the question that has given rise to the present discussion. We are told in that book only so much: first, that subscription as a member of any lodge is sufficient to preserve rank and privileges as a Past Master; and next, that a brother who has for twelve months ceased to subscribe to any lodge loses those privileges, and cannot regain them until again installed Master.

From this law I infer:—

1st.—That a Past Master in possession of his privileges has a right on joining any lodge as a Past Master with rank from date of Mastership, or at any rate of joining the lodge; and—

2nd.—That a brother who had forfeited those privileges would have, whether rejoining his old lodge or entering a new one, to take his seat as an ordinary Master Mason only; and further that he would on regaining his privileges, rank in his lodge below all those who had passed the chair during the time that his privileges had been in abeyance.

Referring to the first of these points, I believe that it is sometimes contended that a brother has no right, whatever be his position in the Craft, to rank as a Past Master in a lodge in which he has not passed the chair. This view is, I venture to think, wholly opposed to the law which preserves to him everywhere his rank and privileges so long as he subscribes to any lodge. In the second case the loss of rank is simply the consequence (and, as it seems to me, a fair one) of his "demonstration."

I am, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,

BUSY BEE.

THE RIGHT OF VISITING LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is one of the fundamental principles of Freemasonry that every brother who is not suspended or expelled has an unquestionable right to visit any lodge he pleases, provided he complies with certain rules, which fact I should have thought most Masons were acquainted with. I cannot explain (nor would you permit me to do so in your paper) the proper method of claiming this privilege, but your correspondent, W. J. A. dyer, appears to have been at fault, and, if so, was very properly rejected by the W.M. of the Domestic Lodge. If he is really a Mason, and is desirous of learning the correct method of presenting himself for admission into a strange lodge, he can gain that information at the Emulation Lodge of Improvement any Friday evening. When I first went there I was unknown to anyone present, yet I found no difficulty whatever in gaining admission, and your correspondent may do the same if he only knows how to go about it. If I presented myself in the same manner at the Domestic or any other lodge, and was refused admission, I would summon the W.M. and his Wardens before the Board of General Purposes, where I feel sure they would be severely dealt with.

The Book of Constitutions is perfectly clear on the subject, notwithstanding "Busy Bee's" opinion to the contrary. I would recommend him also to seek information from the rulers of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement.

Yours fraternally,

D.A.

THE PUBLIC HOUSE QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Every Mason who has the interest of the Craft at heart must be exceedingly obliged to you for the impartial manner in which you have reviewed this great and important subject, clearly demonstrating that it is to the interest and welfare of the whole fraternity that the columns of your valuable paper are devoted.

It is mainly against the practice pursued in lodges of instruction that induces me to address you. They (lodges of instruction) are, you must admit, most valuable auxiliaries to Freemasonry, for by their aid we become in a comparatively short time, acquainted with the sublime teaching of our Order, and the mode of working generally, and are thereby the better enabled to perform the important duties that may at any time devolve upon us. I therefore think a decorous and reverential mien is absolutely necessary in the due performance of the rites and ceremonies so dear to the hearts of every true and faithful brother amongst us. Then let us not rest until we have done all in our power to preserve in its entirety the spirit of the lessons inculcated, and also arrive at the best means of conveying with all their force and meaning the moral truths of our art.

There are several alterations which, if happily effected would tend materially to raise our institution in the eyes of the brethren (especially the newly-initiated) and the world at large. First discontinue our connection with the public houses; second, let drinking and smoking have a time and place assigned, and not be introduced during the performance of our Masonic rites. Although it is most desirable that Masonic Halls should be built, yet I do not think it is necessary or advisable to remain where we are until that happy time shall have arrived, but at once secede from our present objectionable connection. Are there not suitable rooms to be obtained in almost every street in London, where the brother in search of Masonic knowledge, may have our mysteries expounded without being compelled as at present (see places of meeting at the end of this paper) to frequent such places as are objectionable to him.

I have not the slightest doubt the number of worthy brethren would considerably increase were the foregoing suggestions carried into effect. To suppose for one moment that our severance from public houses, or the discontinuance of smoking and drinking during "labour," would cause our meetings to be less frequently attended, or endanger the stability of the Craft, would be stating that the three principal supports are anything but wisdom, strength, and beauty.

Yours fraternally,

J. W. HARPER.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In trying to get out of the difficulty, "M.M." has put his foot into it. The resolution of the lodge, to which I referred in my last, stated that Bro. Wigginton was the "Founder." The part I wished to correct in the report of the installation meeting, was just this—and this is the very part that "M.M." gives repetition and prominence to in this letter. Bro. Younghusband was quite right in stating that, as consecrating officer, he was the first occupant of the chair, and no reasonable man could find fault with this expression. But I must again inform "M.M." that the "Founder" of the lodge was the brother above-named (as also its first W.M.), and of the knowledge of this fact, I wish him joy. Let "M.M." stick close to the centre, and he will seldom be misled.

Yours, very fraternally,

A. P.M.

AN ALBERT EDWARD COMMEMORATION MEDAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to your able leader of the 6th inst., touching the above subject, I am of opinion that you fully expressed the sentiments and wishes of every brother. Grand Lodge would complete this event in its entirety if they would authorise a uniform jewel to be worn by every member of the Craft who chose to do so, in commemoration of so great a day in the annals of Freemasonry. There should be no exception made; in an instance like this do not let brethren be made envious of each other, because chance and grade may exclude them partaking the honour of being present as Steward, but let every brother be allowed to show the thorough affection and loyalty he bears to our Royal brother.

As you rightly observed, if it is managed in a business manner, our charities ought to considerably benefit by it also, and I hope your article may yet receive the consideration of Grand Lodge. Coming from you the question would be more delicate, perhaps, than coming from some other brother of Grand Lodge, who, I hope will press the matter upon their notice, but for so far expressing my sentiments in the matter, great thanks are due to you, and I trust your suggestions will not be thrown away.

Yours fraternally,

A. H. E.

MR. BRADLAUGH AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am astonished at the contents of the Freemason to-day, respecting the visit of Mr. Bradlaugh at New York and Boston, for if it be true that he is a member of an irregular lodge, meeting in London, our American brethren have unwittingly received into their fellowship a gentleman whose Masonic position is unrecognised in this country, or in any country whose Grand Lodge is in harmony with the Grand Lodge of England.

I trust that your correspondents will not fail to investigate the matter, and I feel certain that if my friend, Bro. Buchan, "puts his hand to the plough," he is not likely to rest until the matter is settled.

If Mr. Bradlaugh is a regular Mason, let it be known, and if a deist, he shall have our best wishes as brethren; but if an atheist, and an irregular Mason, let it also be known that the fraternity may be warned, and our American friends prevented from again doing what they will regret as much as we do, should the latter supposition be proved correct.

Yours fraternally,

REVIRESCO.

Masonic Watch Tower, 13th March, 1875.

We have received the following memorandum, professedly from Mr. Bradlaugh:—

"Memorandum.—From Mr. Charles Bradlaugh, The National Reformer, 29, Turner-street, Commercial-road, London, E.

"To the Editor of the Freemason. March 16, 1875.

"Charles Bradlaugh, born 26th September, 1833, was made in the Loge des Philadelphes, on the 9th March, 1859, was received in the Loge de la Perseverante Amitie, Grand Orient of France, 11th March, 1862, and was an avowed atheist prior to the first date.

"Charles Bradlaugh also joined the Tottenham High Cross Lodge, after a discussion on his anti-theological opinions, and he received his regular certificate from the Grand Lodge, which certificate he returned to the Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England last September, cancelled, in consequence of the accession of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master. The lodge at Tottenham, changing its locale, Mr. Bradlaugh only subscribed one year."

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to state my information was incorrect. Bro. Constable did apply to Grand Lodge for a grant of £100, for the endowment of the Freemasons' life-boat. It was not carried.

The last part of my letter in your edition of last week ought to read 1000 lodges and chapters, would produce £150, not £100 as is placed.

Yours fraternally,

SOLOMON DAVIES, Lodge Faith, No. 141.

THE MASONIC SCHOOLS.

A special Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls and the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday at Freemasons' Hall. The chair was taken by Bro. Major Creation, Vice-Patron, and among the brethren present were Bros. A. H. Tattershall, H. Massey (Freemason), Raynham W. Stewart, Hyde Pullen, J. C. Parkinson, Dr. Ramsay, John Symonds, H. Moore, Griffiths Smith, Spencer Stanhope, C. F. Hogard, H. A. Dubois, W. F. C. Moutrie, John Boyd, Thomas Cubitt, Jesse Turner, and Little and Binckes, Secretaries of the two schools.

The meeting was called for the purpose of making alterations in the laws of the Institutions, particularly with regard to extra privileges to be granted to the Stewards of the annual festivals; but there were also other matters before the court as well.

Bro. J. Symonds stated the extra privileges which it was proposed to give to Stewards of festivals, and said that his proposition for giving additional votes had been submitted to a joint committee of the two schools and the result was the recommendations which were embodied in his motion that day. For the purpose of carrying this into effect it would be necessary to erase the second clause of law 13 and the whole of clause 15, which he proposed.

Bro. Hyde Pullen seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. J. Symonds then proposed—

"To consider the following laws under the heading 'Privileges of Stewards' (to be inserted after law 24), second clause of law 13 being re-enacted—viz., every Steward making a donation, at an anniversary festival, if not less than ten guineas, shall be entitled to additional votes at each election of Girls and Boys as follows: for the first Stewardship, one additional vote; for each subsequent Stewardship, with a similar donation, two additional votes; with the following new law: Every Steward, at the anniversary festival, who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than fifty guineas, in addition to his personal donation, and shall collect and pay over the amount to the funds of the institution, shall receive one additional vote at each election of Girls and Boys and a further extra vote for every additional sum of not less than fifty guineas so collected and paid over."

He explained that it was right to make some recognition of the eminent services some brethren performed on behalf of the institution. Some brethren undertook the Stewardship, and acted as Stewards, but took no further trouble about it. Others, on the contrary, took a great deal of trouble, and collected large sums of money for the institution, and in doing so also incurred great expense. It was proposed that some return should be made to the brethren who took so much trouble to collect the money; but it was not intended the extra vote should be given to the Steward until the money on his list was all paid.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, wished to know whether commission would be paid to the collectors on these sums; because this was a serious question, and the institution would be paying twice over.

The chairman said it had been decided that commission should be paid in the Girls' School, but not in the Boys'.

Bro. J. Symonds added that the question of the collectors' emolument was one which had been before the General Committee from time to time, and must be altered. It had always been his opinion that the collectors should receive something, although only small, where these Stewards lists were paid over to them. The collectors in some cases had to call for individual guineas several times, the subscribers being out when they called, and the money was paid afterwards at the office. In that case they received very little.

Bro. Binckes opposed the payment of commission on the sums collected from the country. The provincial brethren objected very much to it. The question had been settled, and he hoped it would not be re-opened, the collector for the Boys' School had £10 a year given him for those cases where he called on brethren for subscriptions, which were afterwards paid at the office. The motion did not affect the collector at all.

Bro. Parkinson asked whether the words, "and shall collect and pay over the amount to the funds of the institution," did not affect the collectors at all.

On this some discussion arose, when Bro. Parkinson proposed, and Dr. Ramsey seconded, the omission of these words in the motion, and also the concluding four words of the motion; and the same brethren also proposed and seconded the insertion of the word "five-hundred," instead of "fifty" guineas.

Bro. J. Symonds adopted the omission of the words proposed to be omitted by Bro. Parkinson, but adhered to his proposition, to have "fifty" guineas as the sum named.

This was adopted, and the motion was carried.

The following motion was also carried:—

"Also to add to law 37, providing for mode of election of House Committee—Scrutineers shall be appointed for the purpose of taking the poll, which shall remain open until five p.m."

Major Creation and Colonel Burdett were elected trustees of the sustentation fund of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, for which Major Creation thanked the brethren, and a vote of thanks having been passed to him for presiding, the committee adjourned.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

COWES.—MEDINA LODGE (No. 35).—The monthly meeting of this old established lodge took place on Thursday last, when Bro. J. G. Wheeler, in the absence of the W.M., conducted the business of the evening. The following brethren were present:—Bro. W. Strickland, W.M. of the Ryde Lodge; and Bros. Scadding, Vaughan, and Furner, visitors. Bros. O. Haxthausen, P.M.; J. H. Wallace, D.C.; J. Hall Smith, S.W.; J. C. Ains, J.W.; E. Wyatt, J.D.; G. Munt, S.D.; S. Benzle, I.G.; T. Giles, Sec. Amongst the other brethren present were Bros. H. S. and W. Weeding, R. Fox, F. Dyett, J. Pryor, C. Fellows, and J. Gettiffe. The W.M. pro tem. informed the brethren that he had received a communication from the Worshipful Master, stating that he was away, and asking him (Bro. Wheeler) to perform the duties of the evening. The W.M. informed the lodge that there were four candidates for Masonry, but one could not be present that evening. A ballot was then taken for Mr. S. Wheeler, Mr. W. H. Holmes, Collector H.M. Customs, Cowes, also for Captain A. K. Granville, and Mr. Richard Andrews, and being unanimous in their favour, each candidate was separately initiated into the ancient mysteries of Freemasonry. There being no other business to transact the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting-room, where a capital supper was laid. The Stewards had again almost eclipsed themselves, and through the kindness of two of the brethren the spread was considerably added to, and at the conclusion grace was again said, and the cloths removed. The chairman stated that the time was short, and he had a toast to propose which the brethren of Medina Lodge always responded to with a deal of pleasure. It was "The Health of the Visiting Brethren," coupling with it the name of Bro. Strickland. Bro. Strickland rose, and in his reply remarked upon the perfect working of the Medina Lodge, that he could say with truth he had visited many lodges, but never saw the various duties carried out more efficiently. The health of the newly-initiated was also proposed and responded to, and the remainder of the evening was passed in a most enjoyable manner.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 10th inst., at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was an excellent attendance of the brethren; all the officers were present: Bros. Richard Simpson W.M.; Dan Mitchell, P.M.; Secretary; (Treasurer being ill was unable to attend); R. Collingwood, S.D.; Charles O'Dhorty, J.D.; Bincliffe, I.G.; James Midgley, I.M.; Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form at 5.20 p.m. and the minutes of the former lodges were read and confirmed, after which the business of the evening commenced by initiating Mr. John Thomas North, which was done in a very efficient manner by Bro. T. B. Ashworth, I.M. Bro. Metcalfe presented himself as a candidate to be passed to the second degree. He was examined, and having satisfied the brethren he was then entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Metcalfe was then admitted and regularly passed to the degree of a F.C. by Bro. Dan Mitchell, P.M., in a very creditable manner; he was then invested and retired. Bro. Clegg was next called upon, and after giving satisfactory proofs of his proficiency in the former degrees, he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree; the candidate was then admitted and was duly raised as a Master Mason by Bro. William Davies, P.M.; he was invested. The lodge was closed in the third degree. The lodge was also closed in the second degree. After the communications were read, Bro. T. L. Ashworth made a motion that a vote of thanks be sent to Bro. David Thomas Buckley for his willingness to prepare a testimonial and the skill he displayed in executing the same, giving universal satisfaction to the brethren. This testimonial was presented to Bro. Edward Clegg for his long and valuable services as Secretary to Hope Lodge, 54, for over a period of thirty years—which he discharged with honour to himself and credit to the lodge. The motion was entered on the minute book. There being no other business the lodge was finally closed at the hour of 8.15 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was elegantly provided by Bro. Wm. Ashworth, P.M. and his wife, in that excellent style which at all times is highly approved of by the brethren. After the cloth was removed the W.M. gave the usual toasts—commencing with "The Queen," which was drunk with that feeling of respect it so justly merits. The remainder of the toasts followed in due course, amongst which "The Newly-raised Brother" was given and briefly responded to. "The Newly-passed Brother" was next given and was responded to in an eloquent manner. "The new Initiate" was also given, and Bro. J. T. Worth, on rising to respond, thanked the brethren for having admitted him to the mysteries and privileges of so ancient and honourable an Order as a member of this lodge. The usual closing toast was given and the brethren separated in peace and brotherly love towards each other, after having spent a very pleasant and comfortable evening.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—FAWCETT LODGE (No. 661).—On Monday, 14th March, the annual installation of W.M. of the Fawcett Lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, when Bro. J. B. Wells was installed. Bro. J. Ayre was the Installing Master, assisted by Bro. Humphrey of Sunderland. The W.M. then invested the following officers: Bros. H. B. Wright, I.P.M.; Gibbon, S.W.; Stratford, J.W.; J. Richardson, Treasurer; H. W. Richardson, Secretary; Cockburn, S.D.; J. Potts, J.D.; G. Grieves, I.G.; Taylor, Tyler. Among the visiting brethren were the following:—Bros. W. H. Crookes, P.G.S.; R. Humphrey, P. Prov. S.G.D.; W. Liddle, P. Prov. J.G.D.; G. Lord, P. Prov. G.S.B.; M. Douglas, P. Prov. G.J.D.; R. Lutet, P.G.J.D.; S. Surtees, W.M. 94; H. Fryer, S.W. 97; J. Symington, Blyth; W. Mitford, Darlington; W. A. Harbourn, Plymouth; Thos. Riley, W.M. 1398. After the business of the lodge was concluded, the brethren, to the number of 50, sat down to a magnificent banquet.

PHENIX LODGE (No. 173).—A strong meeting of this old and distinguished lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday, the 13th inst. The proceedings commenced at four o'clock in the afternoon. The officers present were Bros. Vine, W.M.; Wiles, S.W.; Carter, J.W.; Massey, S.D.; Phillips, J.D.; Finch, I.G.; Wilson, P.M.; P.Z.; Treas.; Matthews, Sec.; Allen, D.C.; Burford, W.S.; Salmon, acting I.P.M. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, passed Bros. Parker, Pearce and Mabey to the second degree, and gave the lecture on the tracing board. The whole ceremony reflected great credit on all concerned. Mr. Waterman was then initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M. in an impressive manner. The sum of ten guineas was voted by the lodge, to head the list of the W.M. as Steward to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Several communications were then read from Grand Lodge, respecting the forthcoming installation of the M.W.G.M. Several of the brethren having offered themselves as candidates to represent the lodge as one of the Stewards to officiate on that important occasion, the W.M. requested them to retire, and their names were then severally submitted to a show of hands, which resulted in favour of Bro. Green, P.M., being elected to serve that distinguished office. The lodge was then duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was well served. Grace was sung by Bros. Salmon, Witt and Parker. The W.M. having briefly given the "Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M." and "The Pro Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bros. Farquharson, Parker, Witt and Salmon sang the "National Anthem," and Bro. Wilson "God Bless the Prince of Wales." "The Health of the W.M." was proposed with great warmth Bro. Salmon, heartily received by the brethren, and briefly acknowledged by Bro. Vine. "The Initiate," Bro. Waterman, and "The Fellow Craftsmen," Bros. Parker, Pearce and Mabey, were toasted, and they severally replied. Among the visitors present were Bros. Adams, P.M. 504, &c.; Walls, 141, 1381, 1503, I.G. 1512; Moore, 173; Emsworth, 813; Turner, 902, 1266. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Visitors," coupled with names of Bros. Adams and Walls. The former, in reply, expressed his gratification at having had the pleasure of visiting the lodge that day, and congratulated the brethren upon possessing so able a W.M., who not only had carried out the ceremonies of passing and initiating so well, but had given the beautiful lecture on the second tracing board with such great effect. Bro. Walls, in responding, said it was the first time he had had the pleasure of visiting the Phoenix Lodge, which honour he owed to the W.M. He came prepared to see the ceremonies well carried out, as became so distinguished a lodge, but he was quite unprepared to witness the proceedings of the banquet table, and the musical arrangements so admirably concluded. In conclusion he could honestly state that his senses of "seeing, tasting, and hearing," had never before, in a Masonic gathering, been so agreeably employed; he had seen the excellent working of the lodge, he had enjoyed an elegant and substantial banquet, and his ear had been delighted by the vocal and instrumental abilities of the brethren, and he felt exceedingly gratified at the manner in which he had been received. "The Health of the Past Masters" was then proposed and severally responded to. Bro. Witt, P.M., in the course of his reply, introduced an eloquent appeal for the interest of the brethren having votes for the Boys' School, on behalf of the son of Bro. Dawson, of the Phoenix, who died suddenly of heart disease, and left his family totally unprovided for. In addition to the before mentioned brethren, who discoursed most excellent music, Bros. Walls and Matthews, between the toasts, sang and recited. "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge" having been given and replied to, the Tyler gave the final toast, and the proceedings terminated.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—An exceedingly strong muster of this large and prosperous lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, on the 12th inst. The business commenced at four o'clock by Bro. Kent, I.P.M., opening the lodge, in the absence of Bro. Everett, W.M. The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. Kent raised Bros. Isensten, Marriott, Herbage, and Gibson, to the third degree, with the assistance of the officers Bros. Triadwell, S.W.; J. Willing, jun., J.W.; Palmer, S.D.; Buscall, J.D.; Smith, P.M.; P.G.P., Treasurer; Williams, Secretary; White, D.C.; Spink, A.D.C. The beautiful and solemn ceremony was well performed. Among the Past Masters of the lodge present were Bros. Brett, P.G.P.; Adams, P.G.P.; and Ferguson. Upon the arrival of the W.M., Bro. Everett, he passed Bros. Plummer and Robinson, and initiated Mr. Thomas Grant Wells. Both ceremonies were performed with great care and ability. The Secretary then read communications he had received concerning the approaching ceremonial of installing His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. It was moved and seconded by Bros. Smith and Kent, and carried unanimously, that the W.M. should be requested to represent the lodge as Steward on the occasion. Bro. Everett having accepted the office with thanks, a resolution was passed that the sum of ten guineas should be voted to Past Master Ferguson, who had volunteered to act as Steward to the Girls' School Festival. Bro. Kent, I.P.M., who had acted as Steward to the Aged Freemasons' Festival in January last, and whose list was headed by a sum of ten guineas from the lodge, then addressed the brethren on the subject, and a formal vote of the lodge was then taken and carried, and that sum decided to be paid to him by the Treasurer. A resolution having been passed that a Summer Festival in connection with the lodge, and in which ladies should participate, a committee consisting of seven members in addition to the officers of the lodge appointed to carry out the necessary arrangements, and the W.M. was empowered to use some of the funds of the lodge for the purpose, should they permit. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting hall. Among the visitors present were Bros. Boyd, 145, P.G.P. of England, &c.; Koch, P.M. 820 and 1381; Fairfax, W.M. 43; Gardner, W.M. 1381; Slee, W.M. 1421; Tucker, J.W. 435; Baker, S.D. 1305; Walls, I.G. 141, 1381, 1503, and 1512; Marks, 1479. The W.M. gave, with commendable brevity, "The Queen and Craft," "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. and the Pro G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. Walls having sang one verse of the National Anthem, Bro. Kent, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." in a neat speech. Bro. Everett, in reply, stated that it was his intention during his term of office, not to trouble the brethren with long speeches, as he wished them to enjoy themselves convivially as much as possible, and therefore he should content himself by thanking them very heartily for the compliment they had paid him, and he hoped that at the expiration of his Mastership, the lodge would have no occasion to regret having elected him to fill the high position which he then held. The initiate, Bro. Wells, having been toasted, made an excellent reply. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. mentioned the names of several who were present at the banquet table, and expressed the gratification he felt at having the honour to dispense the hospitality of the Domestic Lodge to them. Bro. Boyd, in reply, thanked the lodge, through the W.M., for the very excellent manner in which he had been entertained. Bro. Fairfax, in the course of a good speech, stated that he had been highly impressed with the working of the lodge, and at the harmony which prevailed at the banquet table, and should any of the brethren ever visit Warwickshire, he should be only too pleased to see them at his lodge. Bro. Walls, in reply, said that the brethren might think it importunate on his part to address them, after the able manner in which the preceding speakers had responded for the visitors, but as it was the second time he had received their hospitality, he could not allow the last night of their session to pass without expressing his humble mood of praise at the exceedingly good working and general arrangements of the lodge. In conclusion he stated that the W.M. had been the S.W. of his mother lodge, when he received from his hands that badge which he should endeavour to keep Masonically unsullied, and which he should ever regard as a bond of friendship, and on that account he had felt it incumbent upon him to congratulate the Domestic Lodge upon possessing so energetic and zealous a W.M., who had first presented him as a candidate for the privileges of Freemasonry. Bro. Marks also briefly replied. The remaining toasts followed in quick succession, viz.: "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and "The Officers of the Lodge," who all acknowledged the high compliment paid them by the W.M., the replies of Bros. Kent, Smith, and Willing, jun., being particularly good. Between the toasts Bros. Palmer, Dawson, and Walls, entertained the lodge by several vocal and dramatic contributions. The Tyler having given the last toast, the lodge adjourned until October.

CROYDON.—EAST SURREY LODGE OF CONCORD (No. 463).—The members of the Lodge of Instruction connected with the East Surrey Lodge of Concord met at their headquarters, Bro. Goodman's, the Fox and Hounds, Croydon, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., to partake of a good substantial dinner, provided by mine host with his usual care and attention; the occasion being the presentation of a testimonial, consisting of a very handsome tea and coffee service and tray to Bro. C. H. Woodward, P.M., on his retirement from his position of Preceptor to the lodge, in acknowledgment of his most zealous attention to his duties, extending over a period of seventeen years. The repeat over the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, in well chosen words, by the chairman, Bro. Thos. Wales, P.M., and were duly received and responded to. The toast of the evening then followed and the chairman, in very appropriate terms, presented the testimonial, accompanied by a beautifully executed inscription on vellum, which had been kindly done by a well-known and respected Mason, Bro. Thos. Wales Lee. The testimonial was acknowledged in feeling terms. Several other toasts followed, including "The Chairman," "The Vice-Chairman, Bro. A. C. Ebbutt," "Bro. Sharp," "Bro. Lee," and Bro. Pocock, the Hon. Sec. to the Lodge of Instruction." The pleasures of the evening were much enhanced by the vocal powers of several of the brethren present; and after a most enjoyable meeting the party retired, all feeling convinced they had done honour to one to whom it was due.

DERBY.—ARBORETUM LODGE (No. 731).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge room, Arboretum Hotel, Derby, on Wednesday, the 10th of March, at 4 p.m. when there was a large assemblage of the brethren of this and other lodges. The lodge was opened by Bro. T. R. Gee, W.M.; and the ceremony of installing the W.M. Elect, Bro. J. C. Merry, was performed by him, assisted by P. M. Bro. Wright, and P. M. Bro. Cox, and a band of sixteen Installed Masters. The new W.M. appointed his officers as follows, giving an appropriate address to each, on investing him with his collar and jewel, in regard to the duties devolving upon him, Bro. Gee, I. P. M. and Treasurer; Burton, S. W.; Brown, J. W.; Cooper, Sec.; Winter, D. C.; Fowkes, S. D.; T. Merry, J. D.; Knight, I. G.; Cay, Whittaker, and Frazer; Stewards; Stone, Tyler. Amongst the brethren present were, H. Hallam, P.P.G.S.W., P.M.; I. Worsnop, P. M.; R. Bennett, S. W.; J. Miller, I. E. Holloway, W. W. Vincent, I. Caborn, I. Poxon, T. Day, I. Harper, T. Roe, Junr. W. M. 102; W. P. Morris, P. M. 815; W. F. Fowle, P. M. 815; W. H. Marsden, P. G. Sec.; W. L. Gardner, 411; W. Boden, J. D. 353; James Merry, P. M. 1170; W. Loveroch, W. M. 787; G. Small, P. M. 787; J. H. Biggs, J. D. 802; B. Cooper, S. W. 787; T. H. Warner, P. M. 802; The lodge having been closed, the brethren then adjourned to a sumptuous banquet provided by Bro. Ballock, the proprietor of the hotel, in his usual faultless manner, at which upwards of 40 brethren sat down; the W.M. occupied the chair, supported by the Past Masters of the lodge and visiting brethren, the S. W. occupying the vice chair. After the cloth was drawn, "The Queen and Craft," was given from the chair, next, "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England," "R. W. Pro G. M. the Earl of Carnarvon. The Earl Skelmersdale, and rest of the Officers of Grand Lodge." "The R. W. P. G. M. of Derbyshire, the Marquis of Hartington, M.P., the R. W. D. P. G. M., H. C. Okeover, Esq., and the P.G.L. Officers." "The Worshipful Master," was proposed by Bro. P. M. Smith, P. Prov. G. J. W., in suitable terms, congratulating him upon the position he had attained in the lodge, and wishing him a happy and prosperous year. The W.M. responded in a manner which showed how fully he appreciated the honour that had been conferred upon him, and assured the brethren that his best exertions should be put forth to maintain the high character which the lodge had acquired. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Gee," congratulating him on his popularity with the brethren, and the manner in which the business of the lodge had been conducted during the last 12 months, when with a few more suitable remarks he affixed to his breast a very handsome Past Master's jewel, voted by the lodge. The applause of the brethren evinced how thoroughly he had given expression to their sentiments. Bro. Gee responded, thanking them for their kind expressions and handsome present, remarked that the most cordial unanimity had existed in the lodge during the year, and it had been to him a most happy one, and he hoped his successor would have one equally agreeable. The W.M. proposed, "The Health of the Installing Masters and Past Masters of the Arboretum Lodge." "The Visiting Brethren" by the S.W. The "Officers of the Lodge," by the W.M. and the "Tyler's Toast" brought to an end one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent in the Arboretum Lodge.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862) held its last meeting for this season at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Monday, March 15th. The lodge was numerously attended, the W.M. was well-supported by his officers:—Bros. T. Kingston, S.W.; W. Walker, J.W.; G. Pritchard, S.D.; Walmsley, J.D.; W. Harstone, P.M.; F. Smith, I.P.M.; Jones, P.M.; N. Quilly, Treasurer; R. W. Little, Secretary Girls' School, P.G.S. Middlesex; and Bro. James Weaver, P.M. 862, and 1312, P. Prov. G. Org. Middlesex. There were several visitors; the W.M. passed to the second degree Bros. Cole and Brown. Bro. Weaver then took the chair, and raised to the degree of a Master Mason Bro. Holland, giving the whole of the ceremony with the traditional history and explanation of the tracing board. The lodge will send a Steward to the Albert Hall to represent the lodge at the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, where a sumptuous repast awaited them.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1257).—The March meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, 18th inst., Bro. J. Forbes, W.M., in the chair, assisted by R. Besoby, S.W.; E. Lancaster, J.W.; R. Christie, J.D.; G. West, I.G.; G. Webb, Treasurer, P.M.; and P. G. Jupp, Sec. There were present T. H. Sutton, I.P.M.; and H. T. Reed, P.M.; also Bros. Arkell, Barnes, Bathord, Buszard, Hawlin, Hitchcock, Jones, Jenkins, Lancaster, Robinson, Schermer, Tewkesbury, Timberlake. The business of the evening consisted of raising Bros. Short and Hitchcock, and in passing Bros. Jones, Barnes, and Jenkins. The W.M. commenced by examining Bros. Jones and Barnes, and passing them to the second degree, afterwards passing Bro. Jenkins. Bro. Hitchcock was then examined, and raised to the sublime degree. Bro. Short not being in attendance, the W.M. brought forward the notice of the installation of the M.W.G.M., when it was proposed by Bro. Sutton, I.P.M., that Bro. Webb, P.M., be nominated as Steward. This was unanimously agreed to, and as there were several members absent, it was decided to send a circular to all, asking for an answer by return, if they intended to be present at the Albert Hall. Bro. Webb returned thanks for the compliment, and there not being any business to transact, the W.M. closed the lodge in due form.

ROCK FERRY.—ROCK LODGE (No. 1289).—This lodge met on Friday, the 12th inst., when there was a large attendance of members and visitors. Bro. Friend, P.M., performed the ceremony of initiation, the candidates afterwards receiving the lecture of the degree, delivered in an admirable manner, by Bro. S. Sprathy, M.D., P. Prov. S.G.D. of Cheshire. The W.M., Bro. Ellis, then assumed the chair, and raised a brother to the degree of M.M., in his usual careful and efficient style. About twenty-eight brethren afterwards partook of supper, and a very harmonious evening was spent by all.
