us, we venture to repeat, when our English Masons as a body should seek to wipe off an old reproach, that we care more for dinners than for books; and when Grand Lodge should, aided by the voluntary offerings of our brotherhood, propound a scheme for the formation of a befitting collection of MSS. and printed books. In the very collection about to be sold there are some works, both MS. and printed, which ought to be in the possession of Grand Lodge, at any rate in a Masonic library. We do not shut our eyes to the large dimensions such a scheme must necessarily assume if we had a library worthy of English Freemasonry. But we feel sure that if we now forego this opportunity of forming a nucleus for an eventual Masonic reading room, accessible to all Masonic students, we shall commit a great mistake, because the tendency of Freemasonry to-day is to take an upward intellectual position, forced upon it both by the struggles of the hour and the progressing necessities of its own position. But we do not wish to seem to dogmatize even on the subject of a Masonic library, though we end as we began by saying that, despite Mr. Heckethorn or any one else, Freemasonry has a literature of which it need not be ashamed, and the only pity is, that we have not a great central library which could preserve alike for Masonic students, and even the public, under some needful reserves and regulations, a collection of those important works which dignify, which illustrate, which defend our common Order.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

By this time our gallant countrymen who form the Arctic Expedition of 1875 are well on their way to their scene of discovery and danger. They have departed amid the warm enthusiasm of Portsmouth, male and female, military, naval, and civil, and that natural outburst of English admiration and sympathy has been cordially shared in by the nation at large. As Freemasons, favourable to all labours which tend to advance science, to extend knowledge, to promote civilization, and to establish truth, we should not be doing either our duty or expressing our real sentiments if we did not take an early opportunity of openly avowing our deep sympathy with the feelings and admiration of our fellow citizens, towards the Arctic Explorers of 1875. For the history of all past voyages to the North Pole is bound up indisputably with the brightest annals of the English Navy. To that gallant service, always ready for action and always cheerful under difficulties, the memorials of former Arctic explorations are an undying record of gallantry, devotion, skill, and heroism. Who does not yet read with avidity the earlier books of Polar discovery?—who does not still remember, and remember with pathetic admiration, the fate of many a gallant and ardent sailor in those desolate and ice-bound regions, whether it be we recall the great name of Sir John Franklin, or the premature loss of Lieut. Bellot? If we were to refer to the annals of olden discovery, the early efforts of hardy navigators, we should have only to recount the fascinating episodes of hair-breadth escapes, wondrous endurance, and ennobling courage. There is no more exciting history, we may say, for old and young, far surpassing the puny displays of a morbid sensationalism, than that which connects itself with Arctic voyages and researches, and throws such a lustre of imperishable honour on the officers and sailors and marines of the English fleet. There are those who object to the sterner records of war, and even to the thrilling anecdotes of individual daring which mark so wonderfully the deeds and devotion everywhere of our "blue-jackets." But even the most bigoted peace-at-any-price advocate must yield, if a reluctant, yet an undoubted assent to those deathless tales of devotion to duty, of decision in danger, of calm perseverance and unwavering devotion which never can be taken away from our Arctic explorers. And to-day, when under a skilful commander, and with a picked crew, the good ships Discovery and Alert speed on their icy cruise, there is a general feeling that never could any expedition start under more favourable auspices, or with better chances of success on its honourable and peaceful mission. Thanks to the wise administration of Bro. Ward Hunt, and the skilful forethought of the principal officers, all that scientific arrangements, or an improved "modus operandi," can do to mitigate the hardship of an inclement temperature, and to ward off the perils of Arctic travelling and investigation, has been done in the full and flowing tide of English munificence and unstinted energy. The expedition has departed with the best wishes of all Englishmen and all Englishwomen, nay, with the hearty sympathy of all nationalities, and not the least with those of the Masonic body. May all our anticipations and aspirations be realized, and may all of success attend our devoted countrymen, may all of safety be the lot of the gallant crews. The last person we are told (specially touching incident in itself) to leave the leading ship was the captain's little daughter. May that farewell meeting in the well-known waters off Spithead be the foreshadowing of another and happier hour, when Captain Nares may see that little lady again, with all who go out with him, safe and sound, from the difficulties and dangers of another Arctic, and, let us trust, successful expedition.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

A list of letters of apology and regret for inability to attend was read by Grand Secretary from numerous brethren, and

Bro. Meggy renewed his observations as to the outstanding subscriptions to the Benevolent Fund. He hoped that the Stewards of future festivals would take care that no sums were put on paper that were not likely to be received, and he trusted that they would use all their exertions to collect whatever amounts the brethren might consent to subscribe.

Grand Secretary said that, as far as the office of Grand Lodge was concerned, numerous applications had been made to the brethren who had not paid. It was one of those matters in which there was no power to enforce payment, although it was very mortifying that these large amounts were outstanding. If the fact were allowed to be published that certain amounts were not paid, it might stimulate the brethren who had not handed the money over to do so at once.

The Rev. W. Shaboe said that many years ago, when he was a Steward in the Craft for the Boys' School, his list was in the condition complained of. If the brethren who had put their names down on it had all paid as they ought to have done he would have had a Life Governorship; but they did not. He thought that if a brother put his name down for a certain sum, and did not pay it, let his name be published throughout the Craft (great laughter).

Bro. George Lambert thought very much the same as Bro. Shaboe.

The M.W.G.M. added that the brethren were much indebted to Bro. Meggy for bringing the subject forward. It was certainly not creditable to the Craft that there should be such an amount outstanding; and he hoped, as a discussion had taken place, a notice of which would appear on the minutes, and be printed and circulated, it would stimulate the brethren to pay what they had put their names down for.

Bro. Magnus Ohren said perhaps many of the names which were on the lists had not been authorised at all. Some Stewards, he knew, returned on their lists the name of every member of their lodge (Oh, oh!)

Bro. T. J. Sabine appealed to the brethren to support his list. He was Steward for the Mark Degree at the ensuing festival of the Boys' School, and he wished to raise 500 guineas for that occasion. (Hear, hear.) The fact that he was representing the Degree in general ought to stimulate the brethren to support him. (Hear, hear.)

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, over which the Earl of Limerick presided, supported by most of the brethren above given. Sir E. Lechmere sat on his right, and the Rev. G. R. Portal on his left. At the close of the banquet grace was sung by Miss Dones and Bros. Evison and Musgrave, under the direction of Bro. Henry Parker, Grand Organist (all of whom subsequently sung some exquisite songs in the intervals between the toasts), and the speeches of the evening were then delivered.

The M.W.G.M., in proposing the toast of "The Queen and Mark Masonry," said that, having been in the army, he always had, he must confess, a prejudice, if it was such a feeling, that it was never necessary to say much, if anything, in proposing this toast. In the army they simply proposed "The Queen," feeling that that was enough to commend the toast to all loyal subjects. If that was done in the army, he was sure it might also be done among Mark Masons, for among them it needed no recommendation. (Hear, hear.) Great had been the spread and increase of Masonry in the United Kingdom; so also had been the spread and increase of Mark Masonry. It had been most remarkable. (Hear, hear.) They could all remember the time, not very many years ago, when no brother would have prophesied that it would become in a comparatively small number of years anything like what it was at the present time. There were, a few years back, but few provincial organizations. There were indeed certain lodges, but they were not to any great extent united together, except in their union under Grand Lodge. But now they saw not only lodges growing up in all parts of the country, but united as provincial Grand Lodges. They saw the Order spreading far and wide, that it had already assumed a position which in numbers exceeded every degree in the Order, except the Craft; exceeding every other degree of Masonry—speaking generally, and taking the word "degree" in its broad sense—exceeding in the number of its active members, the number of active members serving under the Royal Arch Chapter. (Hear, hear.) They might say, in fact, at the present moment, Mark Masonry exceeded in active members every degree in Freemasonry, and was second in number, and he believed also in the zeal of its members, to none save Craft Masonry. That was very encouraging, and they might reasonably look forward to an equal increase in the future; in fact, they might anticipate that their ambition would be limited to nothing short of making Mark Masonry coterminous with Craft Masonry itself in this country. (Cheers.) He should rejoice if, at any time—however far off in the future, he did not think it was beyond the bounds of possibility, considering their already great increase—it might prove a brother growing up in friendly union with the Craft, of which they all were members, and which they all looked upon as that to which they had no antagonism, but which, on the contrary, was their great central origin. (Hear, hear.)

The Rev. G. R. Portal said, in proposing "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," that the very distinguished position which the Earl of Limerick occupied in another great branch of Freemasonry gave them reason to believe that he would display the same zeal in the maintenance of the interests of Mark Masons that he had displayed in the other body just alluded to. (Hear, hear.) One of the reasons which made him (Bro. Portal) regret the discussion that had irregularly arisen in Grand Lodge was that he felt the brethren were speaking from very insufficient information, and throwing a slur upon what he, knowing a little of the subject, could say was greatly required in the Order in former years, viz., close union with other bodies; but also he felt they were side blows aimed at the Grand Master in the position he occupied in another place. He would just say that he hoped the brethren would suspend their judgment upon the treaties until they had further information before them, because he believed no greater blunder could be committed than dissociating this grand body from other Masonic bodies. Modifications might be necessary, no doubt; but that question might be met. Let the brethren, however, keep together, whatever they did. They had every reason to congratulate themselves upon the choice they had made of their Grand Master. Though he (Bro. Portal) would be the last person to interfere with the prerogative of the Grand Master, yet he hoped his lordship would excuse his saying that his (Lord Limerick's) appointments of Grand Officers had given all the brethren ren great satisfaction. The appointment of Bro. Romaine Callender was one that would give great satisfaction throughout the whole of Mark Masonry. No doubt it was the best that could be made. The appointment of Senior Warden was also an admirable one. That brother had performed eminent services both in Hampshire, his (Bro. Portal's) native county, and also in London; and the other brethren appointed had also been very energetic.

After the toast had been drunk,

The M.W.G.M. said he had to thank the brethren for the kind manner in which they had received the toast that had just been proposed. The best answer he could give would, he thought, be his discharge in a proper manner of the duties of his office during the ensuing year. He would endeavour to merit the kindness with which they had received him, and would endeavour to uphold the dignity and privileges of the Mark Degree. (Hear, hear.) As Grand Master he would take care that his duties in any other sphere of life and in any other degree of Masonry should in no way interfere with his duties as Grand Master of Mark Freemasons. Fully believing that a friendly feeling and union between all Masonic bodies was necessary, he was quite persuaded and convinced that that could not be brought about by any surrender of principle, or the rights of one body to another. Whatever degree they might be engaged in at the time they must throw themselves heartily into endeavouring to carry out the working and upholding the interests of that degree. Therefore, certainly it was never in his thoughts to imagine that anything could have passed in any way reflecting on him individually, or was intended to do so. He felt that he had endeavoured to discharge his duties as an officer in the other degrees, and he felt that he should always endeavour to the best of his ability to discharge his duties in this degree. In anything that had been said he was quite sure every brother who spoke, like himself, had at heart the best interests of Freemasonry in general, and of the Mark Degree in particular. Having been as he had always endeavoured to be an active member of every degree that he had taken up, and no doubt in those degrees differing from various members of them, still having received great kindness from all those members with whom he had worked, he attributed the best possible reasons and motives to all those brothers who had differed from him. They had given proofs, he believed that neither side had suffered any loss of mutual esteem. (Hear, hear.) He trusted so. He could say that he had never felt any such loss, and the brethren who differed from him he was quite sure only carried out what were their honest views. If in future he disagreed in opinion with any of the brethren, he hoped they would extend to him the kindness they had shown in the past, and he would promise them he would never look on any expressions of fair criticism on what he might do in the light of personal attacks. (Cheers.)

The M.W.G.M. said the next toast deserved more enthusiasm than the last, because the subjects of it had already rendered great services to the degree, "The Past Grand Masters." Although they had gone through the chair, and been of infinite use to the Order, they were still ready, willing, and active in promoting its best interests. Under each of them the Order had extended, and they had one and all done their duty. The marked increase and growing prosperity of the Mark Degree testified to their work, and he would be happy at a future time to be among their number. He would couple the name of Bro. Portal with the toast.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M., in reply said there was one advantage in having a large number of Past Grand Masters; it secured the holding of the office of Grand Master for only three years; it also secured a number of brethren ready to advise the Grand Master on any points that might arise. It also prevented back stairs influence, which their late respected Bro. Stebbing was so determined an opponent of, in the appointment of officers. Everything now must be above board. On the whole, the degree was in a very prosperous and satisfactory condition. A few years ago they were very hard run by Grand Chapter of Scotland, which had Mark Lodges in this country, and which were as numerous as ours. Now that the lodge at Bristol, which, no doubt, was influenced by the Grand Master, had come under this jurisdiction, there was but one Scotch Lodge in England that still held aloof from our banner, and he believed that Grand Secretary would join with him in saying he wished it might always hold itself aloof, because it was no honour whatever to the Grand Chapter of Scotland. Ireland, he was happy to say, would be most glad to recognise Grand Mark Lodge of England, a result which was, no doubt, due to the persuasive eloquence of Grand Secretary, who had recently been making a tour in Ireland and impressing the Irish favourably with this Grand Body. Being intimately acquainted with all the ins and the outs he (Bro. Portal) might fairly congratulate the Order upon its satisfactory condition. They were adding about 1,000 members every year, and were including all the Masonic world. As he had often said before he would say again, that what time he had to devote to Masonry would be devoted to this degree, and nothing would please him so much as to find himself among Mark Masons. (Hear, hear.)

The M.W.G.M. then proposed "The Grand Officers of the Year." He had endeavoured to select those who he believed were most respected in Mark Masonry, and who were hard-working Mark Master Masons. He thought he had been fortunate enough to surround himself with a band of Grand Officers who would not do discredit to this Grand Lodge. Their work in the past was but a presage of what it would be in the future. The promise was good, and he believed it would lead to performance, and that at the end of their term of office Grand Lodge would be able to pronounce a favourable verdict on the manner in which they had discharged their duties. He regretted that all were not at that moment present, but reasons were given in Grand Lodge for their absence. Bro. Romaine Callender was engaged in Parliament on business of importance, but there was another brother present it gave him great pleasure to see, and who, he was very glad, had accepted the office of Senior Grand Warden, Bro. Sir Frederick Perkins, whom he would call upon to return thanks for "The Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers."

Bro. Sir F. Perkins, after making some facetious observations on a song being interposed between the proposition of the toast and his reply, said he was proud to have been elevated, so perfect a stranger as he was to the Grand Master, to the dignified position he then occupied. It was exceedingly gratifying. Amidst all the vicissitudes of life and all the pleasures and triumphs he had attained—and struggled hard to attain—to succeed in reaching such a proud position as that he then occupied was most grateful to his heart. No honour could be more pleasing to him, for he now was Senior Warden among a most distinguished body of brethren. He was not, and never would be, unmindful of his duties as a Mason. He had been one ever since he was permitted by age to be associated with Masonry; he had had a love for it, and nature had implanted in his bosom that which became all Masons to have, a generous and kind heart, and a desire to do good. He felt he should not disgrace this honourable fraternity, and he hoped to be the means of sustaining his lordship and supporting his dignity during the year, by standing by him on every occasion. (Cheers.)

The M.W.G.M. next proposed "The Officers, including the Provincial Grand Masters." Nothing showed more the increasing prosperity of the Mark Degree than the way in which the provinces had increased. It showed how the degree had taken hold on the various parts, not only of the United Kingdom, but of our colonies, when they saw provinces being formed wherever two or three lodges of Mark Masters were established. (Hear, hear.) There was a distinguished brother among them that night who had come from the very distant Province of Bombay. (Hear, hear.) He was exceedingly proud to see him, and he thought it was a conclusive proof of the marked stride of the Order when they saw among them a Provincial Grand Master from such a distant province. All the brethren knew Bro. Tyrrell Leith by reputation as a most zealous and hard-working Mason. He was, however, but a fair example of those brethren who were to be found among the Provincial Grand Masters of this country. (Cheers.)

Bro. Tyrrell Leith, Prov. Grand Master, Bombay, said, after thanking the Grand Master for the terms in which he had spoken of him, that they suggested to him a thought to which he wished to give expression. As the mariner on nearing his native shores longed to welcome again and to be welcomed by the friends of his youth, so the Mason, who for years and years was separated from the friends dear to him in Masonry, came to the shores of England, and looked forward to the friendly grasp of the hand which each Mason accorded him. (Cheers.) And, believe him, he was not disappointed. He had seized every opportunity during the short time he had been in England to see the brethren in the various degrees to which he belonged, and on this occasion he had received no less hearty a welcome than on any other. He must be allowed to congratulate the Grand Master on the appointments he had made. They were the greatest guarantee of the future success of the Order. The sacred trust reposed in the Grand Master would be transmitted to his successor as of yore. (Hear, hear.) He was glad also to be present at a meeting at which so distinguished a Mason as Bro. Portal was present. He believed the Mark Degree owed almost everything to Bro. Portal. Bro. Portal's name was a rallying cry among Mark Masons. When he (Bro. Leith) went back to Bombay he should express to the brethren there the gratification he had that evening had. Although, in what he might perhaps be permitted to call "the gorgeous East," there were but few Mark Lodges comparatively, yet they were as zealous as the brethren here. Nothing should be wanting on their part to extend the Order, which he believed he was right in asserting was a part and parcel of ancient Freemasonry, and which ought never to have been rejected by the Craft. He sincerely hoped the time would come when, as the Grand Master had said, there would be as many Mark Masons as Craft Masons. Then they might fearlessly look forward to the time when Grand Lodge of England would acknowledge them. In the East Masons were doing their best, and it was only by the hearty co-operation of the Grand Master and Grand Officers, more especially the Grand Master, that they were able to carry their own. They were anxious to do everything right and proper to extend the degree and striving for its success. (Hear, hear, and cheers.)

The Rev. C. R. Davy proposed "The Grand Stewards." Having been a Grand Steward himself, and done the best he could to provide a good dinner for the Grand Master, he spoke feelingly on this subject. (Laughter.) He believed his promotion as Grand Chaplain was due to this; and in the same way he looked forward to the Stewards on this occasion, who it must be confessed had all done their duty admirably and provided an excellent entertainment, becoming Grand Officers.

Bro. Stretton, of Leicester, who was called on to respond, said the province of Leicestershire was not unmindful of the honour this Grand Lodge had done it on a previous occasion in visiting it at one of its "moveable feasts." They could not forget the kind manner in which their Most Worshipful Grand Master, Bro. Portal, came amongst them, accompanied by Colonel Burdett and the Grand Officers, the Grand Secretary amongst them. The brethren of Leicester hoped on some future occasion for a repetition of the honour; next year, indeed, when he (Bro. Stretton) would be Master of the Fowke Lodge, he hoped. If he could induce Grand Lodge to come down it would be a great pleasure to him. (Cheers.)

Sir E. Lechmere proposed "The Mark Benevolent Fund and the Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Binckes. The sooner he (Sir E. Lechmere) sat down and made way for that burst of eloquence which they always looked for on these occasions the better. Bro. Binckes undoubtedly did a great deal of patient hard work in dark corners and offices which did not meet the eyes of the brethren; but it was known by its results—the large lists of subscriptions which he obtained. As Craft and Mark

Masons, therefore, they were indebted to Bro. Binckes, and it was always with pleasure the brethren heard from him an account of what was done in the cause of the Masonic Charities. He (Sir E. Lechmere) had the great pleasure of presiding last year at the Mark Benevolent Fund Festival, which he thought was very fairly successful. After what they had heard in Grand Lodge that evening he hoped something would be done to induce the brethren whose names were down to pay. They were bound in honour to pay, and he trusted that Bro. Binckes would do his best to create that honourable feeling.

Bro. Binckes, after some preliminary observations, said: After the speech just made he was disposed to say "Approbation from Sir Hubert Stanley is praise indeed." He felt very highly indeed the compliment which Sir E. Lechmere had paid him for his share in the great work of Masonic charity, no matter in what phase it was exercised. In this Mark Degree the brethren had not derogated from their character as Masons generally in support of their institutions. They had munificently—and he used that word without fear of its being contradicted in any shape or way—and this Grand Lodge had munificently supported the institutions connected with the Craft; and he would ask Bro. Meggy whether they had not been very successful in the short time they had been in existence in establishing on a sound basis their own peculiar sphere of duty, their Mark Benevolent Fund—whether in their character as members of the great body from whom, as they heard just now from the lips of the Grand Master, it was the boast of all of them to deduce their Masonic origin, or whether in their peculiar character as Mark Masons, they had not forgotten to give liberally and generously Masonic charity wherever it was wanted. Without wearying the brethren with details about the institutions, he would say that Bro. Sabine, who had before represented the Mark Degree, was this year its Steward on behalf of the Boys' School, for which he (Bro. Binckes) need hardly say his sympathies were strong. Bro. Sabine had made an appeal mildly to the brethren in Grand Lodge that they would do what they could to make up his list to 500 guineas. He hoped that they would, and that Bro. Sabine would not be disappointed. They had often heard the watchwords of Masonry given as brotherly love, relief, and truth, faith, hope and charity; and any disquisitions or addresses by brethren situated as he (Bro. Binckes) was that evening called upon to respond to this toast would be out of place. But those who would carry their recollection back to that unique, unparalleled ceremony at the Albert Hall recently would remember that they had a new formula given to them from the lips of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. He summed it up very briefly indeed; reducing the triad to two, he said there were the two sentiments, Loyalty and Charity. He (Bro. Binckes) would undertake to say that there was not a brother in the room who, if the loyalty of Freemasonry was challenged, would not offer himself as the champion to maintain that sentiment of loyalty which animated the breasts of Freemasons generally. Every one of them would gladly spring forward and offer himself as a champion to do battle for loyalty to the throne of this country against those who had said we were undermining religion. With reference to charity he could simply say what they were all acquainted with—they were daily supporting the great course of Masonic practical charity. It was incumbent on them all to do it. Year by year the resources of the institutions were increasing, thus showing that Masonic charity was more than a name. They were proud to know they were among the most loyal subjects of the throne. To have his name associated with this toast was a great honour conferred, and to have it proposed by Sir E. Lechmere, whose Masonic deeds were so great, whose charity was so extensive, and whose sympathies with distress were so wide, was to him (Bro. Binckes) a greater compliment than if it had fallen from the lips of any in that room—he did not even except the Grand Master, whose kindness he had often had the opportunity of acknowledging, or the brother on his left (Bro. Portal), whose kindness he had more frequently had an opportunity of acknowledging. What were they doing with the Benevolent Fund? Not much, he must admit. It was fortunate for the degree that the demands on the funds had been very small, few, and limited. As he had said before, this was the best test and evidence of the soundness of the Order, and of the good, fair, substantial prosperity of the members who composed it. They were establishing a fund, and he contended that they were justified in establishing a fund, that when a necessitous case arose would give them the means of relieving it. Fortunately, hitherto, the fund had been more than ample for the demands that had been made upon it. But it might not always be so. Look at the daily press of that morning, which announced large failures in commercial circles. It was very serious, and some of their most prosperous members of yesterday might without any cause or blame of their own be hurled down from the height of prosperity to the lowest abyss of adversity to-day—and might before the next meeting of this Grand Lodge come before the Benevolent Fund as applicants for relief. All these were matters of uncertainty, and therefore they were justified in having a fund. Do not let them say, because they were adding £100 now and £100 then, that the time would come when they would never have the demands upon the fund to absorb it. In this country this was not known. We were all standing on the crater of a volcano, and we did not know but that we might fall into it. Therefore he hoped that on the 21st of July, when Bro. Romaine Callender would preside at the festival at the Alexandra Palace, they would have one of the most successful gatherings they had ever had. The mention of this toast had had this happy result—it had induced his distinguished and honourable friend on his left (Sir F. Perkins) to offer himself as a Steward on that occasion. (Cheers.) Bro. Trollope of Hastings would also either come or send a representative; and before the end of 21st July no doubt there would be a goodly array of Stewards, and if the fund went on in its comparatively small way no doubt they would have the pleasure of congratulating themselves on the success of their charitable efforts in this degree the same as they did with the Craft. They all felt the greatest delight in the success of their great institutions, and that gratification could not be diminished by the internal satisfaction each of them felt that they, as members of that Grand Lodge, had not neglected their duties as Mark Masons in supporting the great institutions connected with the Craft. With every feeling of gratitude, he (Bro. Binckes) was deeply indebted to the toast that had been proposed, and most sincerely did he appreciate the high compliment paid him by Sir E. Lechmere in associating his name with the toast. It should be the means of stimulating him in his exertions in promoting the interests of our glorious institutions. (Cheers.)

The brethren then separated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

On Saturday last the General Committee of this institution met at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds, V.P. and Trustee, presided, supported by a very large number of brethren, among whom were Bros. John Wordsworth, H. Browne, W. Roebuck, Benj. Head, W. Paas, Henry Dubosc, sen., J. G. Chancellor, John Creaton, H. Albert, H. W. Hunt, Dudley Rolfs, F. H. Ebsworth, A. H. Tattershall, Charles Jardine, J. A. Farnfield, Victor M. Lafitton, John W. Dennison, L. Ruf, Frederick Hare, D. Nicols, Wm. Jones, John Bulmer, Thomas Cubitt, Geo. J. Palmer, Raynham W. Stewart, W. F. C. Moutrie, J. M. P. Montagu, E. J. Bradstreet, W. H. Smith, George Barratt, H. Whitfield, J. C. Dwarber, Jesse Turner, George Kenning, Charles Sanders, Geo. Angold, John M. Clabon, H. Young, Peter Matthews, R. B. Webster, John A. Rucker, H. W. Hammond, D. M. Dewar, F. Reily, J. N. Frost, A. H. Diaper, F. J. Cronin, John Healey, B. Mallam, T. K. Kent, W. C. Crick, John Holbrook, H. Browne, jun., Richard Motion, Robt. Kenyon, J. M. Hamilton, Herbert Dicketts, F. Adlard, W. H. Saunders, J. W. Dosell, S. Rosenthal, J. B. Lemaitre, Frederick J. Cox, Wm. Gils, W. Browne Kidder, E. Snell, John McQueen, H. J. Lewis, Thomas Meggy, Robert Jones, G. R. Wace, Chas. Chard, Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C., F. M. Haigh, F. G. Ramsey, A. D. Loewenstark, F. B. Davage, George Motion, S. B. Wilson, Donald W. King, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

The minutes of 1st of May Committee having been read and verified, and those of the House Committee of 21st ult. read for information, five petitions were read and accepted, four being country cases and one a London case. The sum of £5 was granted as an outfit for an ex-pupil of the Institution, after which the elections for House Committee and Audit Committee were taken, Bros. Webster, Diaper, Jardine, and Cobitt being appointed scrutineers.

At five o'clock the poll was declared, and the following brethren were declared duly elected:—

HOUSE COMMITTEE:—Bros. Browne, Chancellor, Dubosc, Head, Hunt, Moutrie, Paas, Pullen, Roebuck, Rosenthal, Stewart, and Wordsworth.

AUDIT COMMITTEE:—Bros. Boyd, Dosell, Head, Mann, Pearce, Pullen, Terry, Turner, and Webster.

Votes of thanks to the Scrutineers and the Chairman closed the proceedings.

MASONIC MARKS.

I recommend the veteran Mason (whom I recognise under the signature of H.H.) and well known Craftsman to procure the Builder for April 4th and 18th, June 6th, and July 11th, for information as to Masonic Marks, and also another, which unfortunately I have missed. The foregoing are worth their weight in gold, and are all for the year 1863. (Price 4d. each.)

The Royal Institute of British Architects in their Sessional Papers 1868-69 have devoted No. 9 (Price 1s.) entirely to an able article entitled "Something about Masons' Marks in various countries," by George Goodwin, F.R.S., F.S.A., &c.,* and several hundreds of Marks are inserted which have been copied from the originals in different parts of the world. A copy should be in the possession of every lodge, and certainly of every Mark Lodge, and carefully studied by all students of Freemasonry.

W. J. HUGHAN.

* To be obtained from the Secretary, 9, Conduit-street, Hanover-square, W. I do not remember the Freemasons' Magazine alluded to by H. H.

H. H., P.J.G.W. of England, has not looked back far enough in the Freemasons' Magazine. The vols. for 1851-2-3 contain a large number of various marks under the head of "Ancient Masons' Marks."

HENRY T. BOBART, W.M. 1085.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

I notice Bro. George Kenning is about to issue a medal, commemorative of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. I have an old Masonic token in copper, which was circulated because of the installation (or probably election) of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 24th November, 1790. It is the size of the present halfpenny, and on the obverse occur the arms of the Grand Lodge of England (modern) surrounded with the words "Prince of Wales, elected G.M. 24th November, 1790." On the reverse is a Cupid within a triangle, having his left hand resting on the plumb rule, a mallet and trowel being at the feet, and his right hand pointing to the letter G, and a radiated eye above. At the two lower corners of the triangle are the "square and compass" and hour-glass respectively. On the sides of the triangle are "Wisdom, Strength and Beauty," and outside these words is the motto, "Sit Lux et Lux Fuit."

On the rim is engraved what appears to be "Masonic token, Schichley Feit, 1794."*

I have heard it was also issued in gold, but have not seen one.

Cannot some brother afford us information on this point, as also of any similar kind which have been circulated in this country. I think the above a most sensible plan of commemorating the event, and certainly much better than expensive jewels, of which too many are worn already by brethren only nominally entitled to them.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

* An engraving is to be found in the Freemasons' Magazine for 25th July, 1868, and a description by me, as also about Masonic seals.

BRO. "LUPUS" AND ANCIENT INDENTURE, RE GLOVES AND APRONS.

Cannot the copy of the indenture mentioned by our Bro. "Lupus" (whose communications we shall be glad to see continued in these pages) be substantiated by reference to the original document? It is a most important agreement, and I hope Bro. Woodford will be able to look up the subject, as Bro. "Lupus" suggests.

Anything relating to the Freemasons prior to the last century is of consequence to us Masonic students; and we shall hail facts—no matter which way they tend—with great delight, and be thankful for fresh, authentic, and unequivocal information of any kind whatsoever as to the character and aims of all Masonic lodges, before Grand Lodges. We must be careful, however, in accepting accounts of this society, such as the extract from Timbs' "Club Life of London," without careful scrutiny.

W. J. HUGHAN.

The Times of India says: "A military camp of 20,000 men is to be formed at either Agra or Delhi when the Prince of Wales comes, of a mixed British and Indian force, to which will be added contingents from neighbouring States, making a display hitherto unsurpassed."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—In spite of all competition or opposition, the sterling qualities of these remedies have caused them to maintain the first position as curative and alleviating agents. No other remedies so quickly and effectually cure diarrhoea, cramps, dysentery, and all bowel complaints of a similar character. In the most acute and violent attacks it will be found that no matter how severe the vomiting and pain may be, that the brisk and frequent friction of this Ointment into the pit of the stomach and abdominal surface will allay the irritability of the stomach and soothe the pain as soon as the vomiting, &c., has ceased. The Pills should be taken internally, to remove away any irritant matter.—ADVT.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

PROVINCIAL.

CANTERBURY.—UNITED INDUSTRIOUS LODGE (No. 31).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on June 3rd. Present: Bros. Captain P. H. Knight, W.M.; H. M. Biggleston, S.W.; B. Browning, J.W.; J. E. Wiltshire, S.D.; J. Plant, J.D.; W. Tice, Org.; S. H. Dean, I.G.; John R. Hall, P.M., Hon. Sec.; P. Higham, P.M.; C. Holtum, P.M.; George Pilcher, P.M. 972; W. J. White, P.M. 972; George Gardiner, Apollo Lodge, Oxford, 357, and several other brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The gavel was placed in the hands of Bro. Hall, P.M., who proceeded to raise Bro. W. H. Longhurst to the sublime degree of M.M. The W.M. then closed down to the First Degree, and a ballot was taken for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. John Green Hall was declared duly elected by a large majority of votes. Bro. Higham was elected Treasurer; Bro. Holtum re-elected Almoner. A ballot was then taken for the admission of Mr. D. T. Smith Yeoman, of Littlebourne, into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, which the W.M. declared unanimous. Some other business was transacted, and the lodge adjourned until Thursday, the 7th October next, barring emergencies.

BURY.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 191).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Knowsley Hotel, Haymarket-street, on the evening of Wednesday, the 9th inst., and was very well attended. The lodge room was placed in mourning, for reasons which appear further on in our report. Among those present were Bros. George A. O'Neil, W.M.; Samuel Hamer, S.W.; William Palmer, J.W.; Thos. W. Probert, S.D.; W. E. Thornley, J.D.; Alfred Hopkinson, I.G.; Hartley Bates, Tyler; P.M. Samuel Bailey, Secretary; P.M. Andrew Milne, Treasurer; Past Masters, Bro. J. R. Fletcher, Org. (I.P.M.); Frederick Anderton, P. Pro. G.S.B., E.L.; Frank Dawson; F. Crompton and John Wright; visitors, Bros. J. B. Jackson, P.M. 1012, and Arthur Allison, St. John's Lodge, No. 90, London. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, Mr. John Strelley Carslake Yule, M.R.C.S. (br whom the ballot was unanimous), was initiated by the W.M., the charge being delivered by Bro. Randle Fletcher. A transition to the Second Degree was afterwards effected, when Bro. William Barritt was duly crafted by Bro. Bailey. This having been happily accomplished, the lodge was resumed in the First Degree, and before finally closing, Bro. Fred Anderton, P.M. 42 (who is also a member of Lodge 191), rose and said he had a matter to bring before the lodge, which, whilst associated with an event which caused him great sorrow, would doubtless be a source of consolation to those for whom it was intended. Many of the brethren present might probably anticipate that to which he was about to refer, namely, the unexpected and melancholy death of their late respected brother, Robt. Wright O'Neil, the D.C. of this lodge and the able W.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1012). Bro. O'Neil was not only a Mason in name, but in heart, and as it had pleased the Great Master of our destinies to remove him hence, might they all venture to believe that "after life's fitful fever he sleeps well." Such, however, were his sincere hopes, and he doubted not they were the sentiments and feelings of all the brethren present. He begged to move that a letter of condolence be prepared and forwarded to late Bro. O'Neil's disconsolate parents, whom he was sure would feel that doubly so coming from the lodge that night. Bro. Andrew Milne, P.M., seconded the proposition, and endorsed all that Bro. Anderton had so feelingly said. He (Bro. Milne) had known the lamented brother a long time, and particularly since he first saw the light of Freemasonry, and he had always found him carrying out the three great fundamental principles of the Craft. Deeply did they regret the sad fate which had befallen him. The motion was carried, and the W.M. (brother to late Bro. O'Neil, who, it will be remembered, was accidentally drowned in Morecambe Bay along with Bro. R. Battersby, of Bury) offered a few words in acknowledgment. Bro. Probert, S.D., then proposed that a letter of condolence be prepared and forwarded to the family of late Bro. John Smith Redfern, P.M. of Lodge 42 and P. Prov. G.P. E.L. (who died in an awfully sudden manner while returning from Bro. O'Neil's funeral on the 26th ult.). Bro. Redfern had rendered very valuable services to the Craft in Bury, and by his death the had sustained a grievous loss. For many years he had officiated in an admirable manner as the Installing Master of that lodge. Before most of the brethren present had partaken of Masonic mysteries, Bro. Redfern had inducted W.M.'s of Lodge 191, and they had reason to be profoundly thankful for services he rendered in that high and honourable capacity at a far-gone period, when it was no easy matter to find a brother in Bury who was competent to perform the ceremony with the verve and effect it so richly merited. Bro. Redfern was ever ready to give his rare aid when solicited to bear a part in Masonic ceremonial, and in this one respect alone they had much reason to deplore his death. Men like to him could ill be spared. The Worshipful Master seconded the motion, which was carried. Two propositions for initiation were made, and the lodge was afterwards closed down. Out of consideration to the mournful occurrences of the past few weeks, the after-lodge repast was on this occasion abandoned.

LEICESTER.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 279).—The last meeting of the season was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, June 2nd. There were present:—Bros. J. W. Smith, W.M.; A. Palmer, I.P.M.; J. M. McAllister, S.W.; G. W. Statham, J.W.; W. Veare, P.M. Treasurer; Clement Edwin Stretton, Secretary; J. Ewing, 1391, as J.D.; J. Orlando Law, I.G.; Clement Stretton, P.P.G.W.; G. Toller, P.P.G.S.W.; S. S. Partridge, 279 W.M., 523; F. J. Baines, I.P.M., 523; J. T. Thorp, W.M. elect 523; the Rev. T. W. Gordon, 279; J. Jessop, 279; J. W. Gibson, 73; Limerick, E. Mason, S.W., 1391; S. Knight, 1391; F. J. Smith, 523, and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last lodge read and confirmed. The W.M. appointed and invested Bro. the Rev. T. W. Gordon as Chaplain of the lodge, he then proceeded to initiate two candidates, Mr. Crick, and Mr. Manton. The W.M., who is thoroughly conversant with the established forms and customs of the Order, conducted the ceremonies in a manner impressive to the candidates, and interesting to an auditory of eminent and experienced Masons. The charge was very ably delivered by Bro. Partridge, W.M. No. 523. The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren partook of refreshment, after which the loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

OXFORD.—APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE (No. 357).—On Tuesday, the 8th of June, an emergency meeting of the Apollo University Lodge was honoured by the unexpected presence of Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, attended by Bro. Major Pickard, V.C., I.G. of the Friends in Council Lodge. The first business was the initiation of Mr. Little, fellow of Corpus Christi College, after which Bro. Lloyd, of Hertford College, and Bro. Faber, of New College, were raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The ceremonies were admirably performed by the W.M., the Rev. H. Adair Pickard, who was ably supported by his Senior Warden, Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, and by the other officers of the lodge.—F. P. Morrell, I.P.M.; Col. the Hon. Sackville West, acting as J.W.; C. Spedding, S.D.; R. J. Williamson, acting as J.D.; J. E. C. Bodley, Secretary; W. P. Eversley, acting as I.G.; P.M. W. W. Harrison, Organist; H. Butler, M.C.; T. H. Janson and Douglas Campbell, Stewards. The Masonic Ball was held in the Corn Exchange the same evening. Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold being Hon. Secretary. The illustrious visitors and principal officers of the lodge were received under the Arch of Steel, which was particularly effective. The decorations, in the hands of Bro. Harvey, as representative of Bro. Defries, reflected great credit on his taste, and the splendid band of the Coldstream Guards, conducted by Bro. F. Godfrey, played with such spirit that it was nearly five o'clock before the company dispersed. The Musical Fete next day held in the gardens of New College, was remarkably well attended, and the request made by the Committee, that all members of the University would wear academical dress, was generally complied with. About 1500 tickets were given up at the gates out of 1700 issued, and when we consider the storms that burst over Oxford during the dull proceedings in the Divinity School, the heavens weeping over the departed glories of the theatre, we may well wonder that so few were absent to whom tickets were sent. Bro. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes, Bro. Morrell, J.G.D., and Bro. Platt, Past G.W., were among the distinguished company invited to meet Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught by the W.M. and Officers of the Apollo University Lodge. The band of the Coldstream Guards and the members of the Orpheus Glee Union made a glorious afternoon pass away in a most delightful manner, and refreshments were, as usual, liberally supplied. Thus, the Commemoration of 1875, which at one time was thought likely to prove a very dull affair, will be remembered by the brethren of the Apollo as one of the most enjoyable ever spent in the University of Oxford.

SUTTON.—FREDERICK LODGE OF UNITY (No. 452).—A meeting of this lodge was held under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Arthur J. Dickinson, on Tuesday last, at the Station Hotel, Sutton. The occasion was the installation of the new W.M., Bro. Wm. Stanley Masterman, and a goodly company of brethren assembled to witness it, among them being the Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, Major General Brownrigg, Captain Brownrigg, Bro. Charles Horsley, P.G.R., Middlesex, Bro. Blackman (No. 9), and H. Massey, P.M., 619 (Freemason). The members of the lodge who attended were—Bros. Francis, P.M.; James Robins, P.M., Treasurer; Dr. Strong (Croydon), P.M.; Magnus Ohren, Secretary; Manning, Charles Ohren, H. Sugg, A. J. Pollard Ovenden, Gray, C. H. Edmonds, J. W. Sugg, and A. T. Jeffery. Bro. the Rev. D. J. Drakeford was also present, and was elected a joining member. Bro. Francis, P.M., D.C., performed the ceremony of Installation, and placed Bro. Masterman in the chair. The Prov. Grand Master afterwards complimented Bro. Francis on the way in which he had delivered the ritual, and congratulated the lodge on having such an efficient and expert craftsman among its members. He added that he had attended very few lodges where the work was so well executed. The list of brethren invested by the W.M. as his officers for the year was as follows:—J. W. Sugg, S.W.; George Wright, J.W.; A. T. Jeffery, S.D.; Charles H. Edmonds, J.D.; Charles Pawley, I.G.; E. H. Sugg and F. A. Manning, Stewards; Rev. D. J. Drakeford, Chaplain; E. H. Sugg, Org.; James Robins, P.M., Treasurer; Magnus Ohren, P.M., Secretary; and C. T. Speight, Tyler. The Treasurer's report was read, and it appeared that the balance in hand was £51 8s. 4d. On motion by Bro. Francis, D.C., a three guinea P.M. jewel was voted to Bro. Arthur J. Dickinson, the I.P.M., on his leaving the chair, as a mark of respect from the members of the lodge, and the newly-installed W.M. decorated him with it as soon as voted. The committee's report on the bye-laws of the lodge was read to the brethren by Bro. Ohren, who stated that the committee had met, and examined and altered the bye-laws. He then went through them seriatim, after which he was instructed to get them printed, approved by the M.W.G.M. and circulated. Several letters and telegrams were received from absent brethren apologising for non-attendance, and a vote of thanks was passed to the Prov. G.M. for honouring the lodge with his presence (the first time at a private lodge since his appointment). Bro. Frederick Cassell, manufacturer, of Plough Bridge, Rotherhithe, was proposed as a joining member by Bro. Dickinson, seconded by Bro. Magnus Ohren; and, there being no further business before the lodge, the W.M. closed down, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was served in Bro. Potter's best style. When this was disposed of—and it was heartily enjoyed—the toasts were proposed in regular order. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Prov. G.M., &c.," said the brethren were honoured that evening by the presence of the Grand Master of the province in which the Frederick Lodge of Unity was situated. When he (the W.M.) told the Prov. G.M. that he took the lodge by surprise, he hoped he would not understand that his presence among the brethren was the less gratifying and acceptable; on the contrary, it was more so. The Prov. G.M. did not send a trumpeter before him, but he took the brethren as they were; and his thoroughly Masonic heart would be satisfied with what he had seen. The Prov. G.M. had been pleased to say that he was gratified with what he had seen in the lodge. Well, they had done their best, and the best could do no more. He (the W.M.) felt it a great honour that on his installation the Prov. G.M. should visit the lodge, and the brethren, being equally honoured, would give a hearty response to this toast, wishing the Prov. G.M. continued health and prosperity, and long life to reign over this province. (Cheers.) The Prov. Grand Master, replying, said that of all the kind things the W.M. had said that evening there was nothing which attracted him so much as that one phrase in which he said that he (the Prov. G.M.) had taken the brethren as they were. Now, that was exactly the way he wanted to take the Masons of his province. He should always be sorry to think that there was any extra expense incurred by any lodge he attended. He wished exactly to take them as they were, because that was the only way he could form a just estimate and sense of their merits. He hoped very often—in fact he intended now to ask for the regular meetings of all the lodges in the province to be sent to him in order that he might, without any invitation, but whenever he had the opportunity, drop in upon the brethren and literally take them as they were. He thanked them very much for the cordial reception they had given him that evening, though they were only following suit to all the sister lodges in the province. No Prov. G. Master ever came into a province under better auspices than he had. He had at all events the blessing of their very old Past Provincial Grand Master; and if he could but think that, that venerable brother's mantle should descend upon him, he should be thoroughly well satisfied. He (the Prov. G.M.) was most happy altogether in his rule over the lodges of the province. They were not numerous; but they were quite within the grasp and management of any one man. They gave him no trouble on the contrary, whenever he had asked for assistance from the province he had always received it; and he would mention as an instance of this, that when he had on one occasion to try to get the daughter of an old soldier into the Girls' School (a soldier, they knew, belonged to no province; and this man had been a comrade in the Grenadier Guards with him; but, belonging to no province, this soldier could appeal to no province for votes for the child) the cordial and kind way in which his (the Prov. G.M.'s) appeal to many of the brethren of the province of Surrey was answered was a thing he should never forget as long as he lived. He made it a rule whenever the Masonic charity voting papers were sent to him to go through them, and see whether there was any case in them connected with Surrey; and when he found one he considered it his duty to give his votes in support of the Surrey candidate; when he saw none, and that no lodge in the province was interested in a case, then he gave the votes (and he was quite sure the brethren would confide in his judgment) of the province for which he was indebted to the brethren to some other deserving object. In this case he did it, and owing to that circumstance and to other private sources he was able to carry the case. Again he would thank them for their cordial reception, and he hoped he should often meet the brethren again. He would say one word with regard to the Prov. Grand Lodge which would be held at Guildford on the 13th of next month. It was an outlying place, and there was, he understood, very great difficulty indeed in the brethren getting home that night at a decent hour. He, therefore, hoped that no brother would stay late simply out of regard for him. They should suit their own convenience, and leave when they liked.

Bro. Francis proposed "The W.M.," whom he had had much pleasure in installing, because he felt he was placing in the chair a brother who would do it honour. The W.M. was a man who was not content with a mere knowledge of the Masonic ritual, but he carried out the principles of Masonry in his heart and in his daily life and conduct. It was in this way that he (Bro. Francis) first became acquainted with him. A misfortune happened to a friend of his (Bro. Francis's) and the W.M. put himself to considerable trouble and expense to do the widow a service. It was a case of no interest to the W.M., but he took it up because it was a case of distress. He (Bro. Francis) felt then that he ought to like him, and he did like him, and had liked him ever since. Then how could it be otherwise than a great pleasure to him to install such a brother in the chair of a lodge? The W.M. would perform the duties of his office well; but he would do better still, he would carry out the spirit of Freemasonry.

The W.M. responded, and said a great authority had told them that brevity was the soul of wit. Perhaps some of the brethren would think that he, a man of 60 years of age, going into the chair was standing in the way of some other brother. No such feeling prompted him. Thirty years ago he was introduced to this lodge, when he was a giddy boy he was initiated and left it; ten years afterwards he joined this lodge—his first love—and again he left her; and for the third time he came and kissed the maid. (Perhaps they might say there was something poetic in what he said.) But it afforded him inexpressible pleasure to be installed in the chair. The authority he had before quoted said, "There's a divinity which shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may." He would discharge his duties to the best of his poor ability, and he hoped his brethren would not say of him, when his year of office had expired, that he had disgraced the chair, or made the brethren uncomfortable.

The Prov. G.M., being obliged to depart, here proposed "Health and Prosperity to the Frederick Lodge of Unity." It would ill become him to enjoy the lodge's hospitality and part from the brethren without hearty good wishes. (Cheers.)

Bro. Dickinson, I.P.M., being selected by the Prov. G.M. for reply, said that the Frederick Lodge of Unity always received visitors with kind feelings, and whether taken by surprise or not they tried to please them. Whenever visitors came the lodge was pleased to entertain them. It was not his mother lodge, but he visited many; and having done so he could say that he had never come into contact with any body of men wherein such Masonic unity existed as in this lodge. They sat down as a happy family here, and he trusted they might go on prospering and to prosper, a lodge over which the Prov. G. Master might feel proud to hold sway. Bro. Charles Horsley, Prov. G. Reg., Middlesex, responded for "The Visitors," after the old song, "The Vicar of Bray," had been sung. He said—The song which we have just heard has put into my mind that we ourselves represent congregations which are superintended by two most glorious Vicars of Bray, as it were. I myself have the honour of serving under a glorious Vicar of Bray, whose name is Colonel Burdett, and what-so-ever King may reign for the year, in his territory, thank God, we all say he shall be the Vicar of Bray. Here you have a second glorious Vicar of Bray in the shape of Major-General Brownrigg. He is a new king reigning over this lodge whose reign begins to-day, deposing another king, Bro. Dickinson, whose reign ended to-day, yet nevertheless, and notwithstanding, all these changes, still the Grand Vicar of your hearts for the province of Surrey, as the Grand Vicar of our hearts for the province of Middlesex, will be with your own excellent and very worshipful Bro. Brownrigg, with us, our very excellent and much loved Colonel Burdett; and I sincerely trust that those King-Vicars of Bray may still remain to reign over the monarchs of their several provinces—I might say the annual monarchs for a long series of years to come, inasmuch as each Grand Vicar so reigning possesses the confidence, the love, and the affection of every Master who serves under him, and every brother who has the honour to be a serving or other brother in the several provinces which they so worthily preside over. I say that no brother would ever wish to see two more perfect exemplars of the Grand Vicars, not of Bray, but of Surrey and Middlesex. Therefore I congratulate you as much as I congratulate myself and the Middlesex brethren. But now for myself, W.M., allow me to thank you most sincerely for receiving a Middlesex brother among you, one who has certainly somewhat, I hope I may say without affectation, won his spurs in the Craft; one who has the honour now to be elected to his fifth Mastership, and to be in another fortnight, I hope, installed in his fifth chair; who being M.E.Z. of the Royal Middlesex Chapter will in three or four weeks also have the honour of being M.E.Z. of the Royal Yarrow Chapter. And it only shews that with real hard work—for it comes to that, brethren—and some slight amount of goodwill and a trifling amount of intellect to back them all up with; but above all, the determination to do one's duty, to endeavour to deserve that jewel which I prize more than the whole of my Masonic jewels together, this little one with its nine clasps upon it representing ten different stewardships to the charities. Now, my solemn belief in it, brethren, is that you may talk about other jewels as much as you please; and it is very glorious to me to wear, as I have the honour of doing, four P.M.'s jewels given me by the kind and fraternal affection of my brethren; but take my solemn word for it, there is one jewel which passes all understanding as regards its worth, and that is the jewel that springs from a heartfelt knowledge that one has done one's duty to the sisterhood, that one has served the old brother Mason in distress, that one has served the widow of the dear old departed Mason in distress, that as far as one could do, has taken care of the orphan, male or female, and as far as possible has done some little good for the brotherhood and sisterhood in general. That, after all, my dear brethren, is the great glory of Freemasonry; and I say to those who go and serve the stewardships, work hard, get a good list of subscriptions, first of all beginning with No. 1—that is what I say—begin with No. 1, and then you have some slight claim to call upon Numbers 2, 3, and 4. (Cheers.) My excellent Worshipful Master, I most sincerely thank you for the kindness with which you now, I think for the third or fourth time, have received me through the kindness of this dear young friend, Bro. Robins (laughter) who gets younger every hour, and my excellent and thrice excellent friend, Bro. Ohren, whose guest I have been, I think, upon two occasions previously. When I find such brethren as these acting with you, W.M., and your P.M.'s, and those most excellent officers, who have been doing their duty so admirably, and so perfectly and closely to-night as they have, I am sure that with their assistance the Frederick Lodge of Unity never will or can go back. (Hear, hear.) I have only one word more of thanks, and that is to our installing Master for the excellent and perfect manner in which upon this and upon all previous occasions he has shown himself a worthy descendant of St. Francis, (laughter) and I can only say that when he has been dead 150 years, I have no doubt, like St. Francis of Assisi, he will be canonised also (laughter); and I am sure he will be very much gratified only to know that he will be canonised. The other toasts were very briefly given and responded to, and the brethren then separated.

SHEERNESS.—DE SHURLAND LODGE (No. 1089).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday week, at the offices of the Local Government Board, Sheerness, which had been generously placed at the disposal of the brethren by the authorities. The lodge was very fully attended, and among the brethren present were Bros. Page, P.J.G.W., P.M.; Rigg, I.P.M. and P.G. Reg.; Finch, P.M. 429, P. Prov. G.D.C. Isaac Townsend, P.M. 158, P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. R. McDonald, P.M. and late Secretary, P. Prov. G.D.C., Installing Officer; John Hodgson, W.M. 1063; Firminger, W.M. 158; Harris, P.M. 158; Smeeth, W.M. 1208; S. Wood, 1273; Bathurst, P. Prov. G.R.; and the Rev. T. Robinson, P.M., P.Z., P. Prov. G.S.W. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. J. R. McDonald, Past Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, who discharged his duties in a most admirable manner, installing the W.M. and delivering the charges without any hesitation. The Board of Installed Masters was composed of Bros. the Rev. J. Robinson, P.M. and P.Z., P.S.G.W.; W. Page, P.M. and P.Z. 20 503, 1063, P.J.G.W.; T.M. Rigg, I.P.M. 1089, P.G. Reg.; H. Bathurst, P.M. 133, P.P.G. Reg.; S. L. Townsend, P.M., P.Z. 158, P. Prov. G.S.D.; L. Finch, P.M. 429, 1209, P. Prov. G.D. of C.; G. Beckwith, P.M. 158, P. Prov. G.S. of W.; W. Pannell, P.M. 1089, P. Prov. G.S. of W.; H. Jacobs, P.M. 158, P. Prov. G.S.; J. Hancock, P.M. 1089; M. W. West, P.M. 1089; W. Harris, P.M. 158; J. B. Horrell, P.M. 73, J.C.; T. J. Firminger, W.M. 158; — Smeeth, W.M. 1208; W. Wood, W.M. 1273; — Hodgson, W.M. 1063. The new W.M. was Bro. A. Bourne, who, on assuming the chair, appointed the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. T. M. Rigg, I.P.M.; John Copland, S.W.; Chas. Hall, J.W.; Richd. Harris, P.M. 158, Treas.; W. Pannell P.M. and P. Prov. G.S. Wks., Sec.; E. Penney, S.D.; C. J. Williams (Capt. Kent Artillery Volunteers), J.D.; J. Saffery, I.G.; and W. M. West, P.M., D.C. The lodge was closed shortly after four o'clock, and the brethren adjourned to the Fountain Hotel, where a choice banquet was ready for their acceptance. The W.M. delegated Bro. W. Page, J.G.W. Kent, to preside, himself occupying a seat on Bro. Page's right hand, and Bro. Rigg, I.P.M., another seat on the left. The banquet, which was much enjoyed by the brethren, and highly praised, having been disposed of, grace was said, and Bro. Page immediately proceeded to propose the toasts. The toast of "The Queen" having been duly honoured, Bro. Page proposed "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of the Craft," the latter portion of the toast having been omitted in connection with the first toast, the waiters being in the room, and time (on account of the trains) not admitting of delay. In giving the toast of the Prince of Wales, he said he was very much gratified at what he saw at the Royal Albert Hall when the Prince of Wales was installed, more especially with H.R.H.'s deportment, his mode of conducting business, and his speech. He believed the accession of the Prince of Wales to the chair would do more for Freemasonry in this country than had been done for many years, even by the most zealous Masons, of whom we had had many. It would show that Freemasonry was a good, proper, and religious rite, and that the heir to these realms was not above that position which we as Englishmen were proud to see him occupy. In giving "The Health of the Duke of Connaught and the rest of the Royal Family," Bro. Page said that the Duke of Connaught, both at the installation and at the banquet which followed, ably supported his Royal brother. As one of those who had the good fortune to hear him speak at the banquet, he was very much pleased at the handsome, kind, and affectionate way in which he spoke of the Princess of Wales; and every one was gratified at seeing the kind good feeling and attention which was paid by him to the Grand Master. It showed that there was in our Royal family the same brotherly affection which there was in other English homes. Passing from these toasts, Bro. Page said he came to the "Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the other Grand Officers," and he was very much delighted with them all. Lord Skelmersdale had proved himself a thorough working Mason, and was an able coadjutor of the Grand Master and the Pro Grand Master. When this toast had been drunk, Bro. Page proposed "Viscount Holmesdale, Provincial Grand Master of Kent," and said that nothing he could say would put Lord Holmesdale before the brethren in a better light than that in which he had been seen by them for some years past, because they all knew that of all men who had for many years been at the head of affairs in the Province of Kent, Lord Holmesdale had done the best that could be done for the interests of Freemasonry there. During the last few years, in which he (Bro. Page) had seen much of the working of the business part of Freemasonry in Kent, no man ever tried so much as the Provincial Grand Master of Kent to dispense favours honestly and justly. He had done a great deal through the Provincial Grand Secretary and the late Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Dobson, to promote the interests of the Craft in the province, and he had shown that he took a great deal of interest in the Order, as he made himself acquainted with those he desired to place in office in the province. Such men were the right ones to place in the position of Provincial Grand Master, and the province ought to feel proud that they had such a Grand Master. He hoped that he might long be spared to rule over the province, and that some day or other they might have the pleasure of welcoming him in that room. Bro. Bathurst proposed "The Deputy Prov. Grand Master and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," to which Bro. the Rev. J. Robinson, Prov. G.S.W., responded, and said that on that day week the brethren had the pleasure of meeting under the presidency of the Deputy Grand Master at the preparatory meeting. The Deputy Grand Master was, however, not able to be present that evening, as he was very unwell, but he desired him (Bro. Robinson) to convey his sincere regret to the brethren for the occurrence. Since Bro. Eastes had been appointed Deputy Grand Master he had shewn himself anxious to see all the brethren, which was a very proper feeling, as the appointments to Grand Office rested very much with the Deputy Grand Master. Bro. Eastes did not desire to take a brother's merits upon hearsay, but was determined to see for himself and judge for himself. The present Provincial Grand Officers' term of office was now nearly at an end, but he was happy to say that they had endeavoured to do their duty, and speaking for himself he could assure the brethren that he had not neglected any opportunity of performing it. He had answered and accepted every invitation, often with inconvenience to himself, though that of course was not to be mentioned. He had gone as a matter of duty. When men undertook any duties they should perform them in as light, cheerful, and pleasant a manner as they could. Although a stranger in Sheerness he had been most kindly received, and he was very much pleased with the place and the people so far as he had seen them. With respect to the Freemasons of Sheerness he had found them of the same admirable stamp as he had met elsewhere. Bro. Page then gave "The Health of Bro. Townsend," who was the third oldest Freemason in England, wishing him better health, and yet many years of life to come among the brethren. The toast having been drunk with great enthusiasm, Bro. Rigg, at Bro. Townsend's request, rose to reply. He said that in consequence of Bro. Townsend's great age he had an impediment in his speech, but he thanked the brethren very much for their kindness. Bro. Townsend deserved it all and a great deal more. He was a Provincial Grand Officer, a Past Provincial Grand Registrar, and had been 25 years Secretary of his lodge. He belonged to Arch Masonry as well and also to the Mark, and had held office in all. There was not a better Mason—not only not an older Mason—but not a better Mason in Sheerness than Bro. Townsend. Bro. Page then proposed "The W.M., Bro. A. Bourne." The lodge had passed through certain difficulties and dangers during the past few months, but they had been overcome and the lodge was now landed safely, and it had in Bro. Bourne a brother who would do his best to maintain good will and good feeling in the lodge. No doubt at the end of his year of office they would all shake him by the hand and thank him for the happiness he had been the means of promoting. When that time arrived he hoped Bro. Bourne would have as good an account to give as Bro. Rigg had—fourteen joining members and fourteen initiates during the year. Some lodges could only shew four of each; then this lodge must be very prosperous, shew fourteen. To keep up the character of the lodge they must look to the character of the men they proposed to bring into it, as it was not the number of candidates but their character which gave standing to a lodge. The men that should be introduced were those who would elevate the lodge and not those who would depress it. On all occasions when Lord Holmesdale had had occasion to speak of Freemasonry and its increasing numbers he spoke most strongly on this point, and it was his desire that with the "push" Freemasons lately had had they should look to the social position and, as far as they were able, the future of those whom they accepted in the Order. The charity list became greater every year, and it behoved the brethren who had a care for those institutions to see that the brethren they accepted would reflect no discredit upon them by-and-by. Bro. Bourne, in reply, said—I must beg for a little consideration at your hands. I am a very indifferent orator, and being a young Mason, I feel rather diffident on the occasion. I am in rather a novel position. As a young Mason I could not have anticipated having so rapid a promotion in the Craft as I have had, and I feel a difficulty in finding fitting words to express my gratitude to you for this ennoblement in me, and the kind way in which you have drunk my health. I can only say that as regards my past career you have known me eighteen months as Secretary, and about fifteen months as Junior Warden. In carrying out the duties of those offices I have brought all my energies to bear to carry them out with credit to myself and justice to the W.M. I take it that my present position proves that I have done it to your satisfaction. If so I can only express to you my earnest wish, in fact my full intention, to redouble my efforts to make myself conversant with the duties of the W.M. I will endeavour to perform those duties in accordance with those ancient charges which the installing Master brought forward to-day, in accordance with the Book of Constitutions, and to the satisfaction of the brethren of De Shurland Lodge. In whatsoever I fail—which I am sure to do in some measure—I have full confidence in the co-operation and support of the P.M.'s and the assistance too of the P.M.'s and the kind sympathies of the brethren. I again thank you most sincerely and heartily for the way in which you have drunk my health. Bro. Page next gave "The Health of Bro. Rigg, P.M.," and passed a high compliment on him for the way in which he had conducted the affairs of the lodge during his past year of office. Bro. Rigg in reply referred to some of the difficulties which the lodge unfortunately had experienced, but rejoiced in having overcome them. Happily, the lodge was now prosperous, and he congratulated the brethren on having elected as their W.M. a brother who would do the lodge good. That brother had now a straightforward course before him, and there was not a brother in the town he felt more proud of than Bro. Bourne. He had made a good choice of officers, and they would well support him. If they did, Bro. Bourne would come out with flying colours. Bro. Page afterwards proposed a special toast for Bro. Copland, S.W., to which Bro. Copland responded that it was with some diffidence he had accepted the office, but having accepted it he would discharge his duties with fidelity and zeal. He had been but a poor attendant at the meetings, but Bro. Bourne had no doubt thought that he would do credit to his choice. He hoped it was so, and that his future conduct would not falsify the belief. "The J.W. and the rest of the Officers" was the next toast, which all the officers replied to, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated, having spent a delightful day.

CONSECRATION OF THE CHISLEHURST LODGE (No. 1531).

A new lodge for the province of Kent was consecrated on the 11th inst., at the Bull, Chislehurst, and from the enthusiasm displayed by the brethren of the province, as evidenced by the numerous attendance on the occasion, many coming from very long distances, it was clear that the latest addition to the provincial roll was looked upon as an event of great importance. A consecration never took place under more favourable circumstances, and a long career of usefulness may be expected from the establishment of this other centre of Masonry on the confines of the metropolis. Among the brethren who attended, according to the signature book of the lodge, were Bros. J.J. Hutchings, 147; Wm. Tongue, P.P.G.J.W.; Robt. Runt, P.P.G.D.C.; C. Coupland, P.M., 913; W.T. Birts, P.P.A.D.C.; W. Page, P.G.J.W.; Alfd. Spencer, P.G.S.; S. Pownceby, J.D. 55; Joseph Storey, P.G. Sup., W.M.; A. H. Tattershall, P.M. 140; A. Wilson, P.G.S.B.; G. Adamson, P.G.D.C.; W. Adamson, S.W. 1208; W. A. Hill, P.G. Chaplain; W. Cessford, Prov. G. Purst.; Hugh Hallett, W.M. 709; James Griffin, P.M. 933; T. Robinson, P.G.S.W.; W. A. Smeeth, W.M. 1208; H. Cotty, 554; W. T. Hurt, jun., W.M. 79; James Terry, P.P.G.S. for Herts; George W. Reed, J.W. 13; James Eastes, D.G.M.; H. Gloster, 1326; W. Nevins, W.M. 1076; J. Mason, 309; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason); G. Bolton, P.M. 169; C. Reuter, W.M. 1109; W. Bray, 511, and Charles Lacey, P.M.

The lodge was opened by the V.W. Bro. James S. Eastes, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who on the formation of the lodge and after salutation, deputed the office of Consecrating Master to Bro. James Terry, the Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies, Herts. That brother then proceeded to consecrate the lodge, a duty which he admirably performed, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Hill, Prov. G. Chaplain; the Rev. Thomas Robinson, Prov. G.S.W.; Bros. Tongue, P. Prov. G.D.C.; Alfd. Spencer, Prov. G. Sec.; and Cessford, Prov. G. Purst.

The Prov. G. Chaplain, in delivering the oration, drew attention to the interesting nature of the proceedings, and to the fact that such a goodly assemblage of brethren had been collected together to take part in them. It indicated plainly that although the locality was difficult of access there were a number of brethren who were moved by a desire for the spread of Freemasonry, its principles and powers. The interest of the proceedings was increased by the nature and solemn character of the work, which was none other than the dedication of a lodge to Almighty God. It was not a temple of wood or of stone that they were dedicating, but a spiritual house, "not made with hands," but "eternal in the heavens;" the selection of men who would erect a temple that would last when "the long drawn aisles and fretted roofs" of the cathedral had faded away under the crushing hand of time. It was his duty on such an occasion as this to say something with respect to the Order to which they all belonged. They would not have joined it unless they had felt interested in it; or continued in it unless they had considered that as men and creatures destined for immortality it was their duty to support it. Of its advantages he might say it was an oasis in the great desert of the world, which the exhausted traveller would fain reach, and which, when he had reached it, afforded him refreshment and repose. Away from the noise of the busy world, from business harassments, political excitement, and religious contests, in tranquillity and peace, he pressed the right hand of fellowship of a brother, and gained strength to pursue again the battle of life. The high-born and the lowly who gave their adhesion to it met on an equal footing. The advantages of Freemasonry consisted also in the doctrines and tenets which Freemasons held. The foundation of the structure rested on the revealed will of God. The Freemason undertook to accept the Bible as the rule and guide of his faith. Freemasonry was not Christianity, but it was its handmaid. The lessons of the Sacred Law taught us how to comfort ourselves in this life in prospect of the blessings in store for us. We learnt from it lessons of a highly symbolical character, which taught us through the creative power narrated in the Book of Genesis the dignity of honest labour, and the duty of humility. Were we not daily taught that there should be subordination, and reverence to those sent to rule over us; that some were sent to rule and govern and that others must learn to submit and obey? Freemasonry inculcated this also, and it also taught that when we were laid in the grave we should all be equal. Steady perseverance was also inculcated. The lessons we were taught in Freemasonry we were to carry into actual practice. In another place we had lately heard that the watchwords of the Order were "Loyalty and Charity," and while these survived Freemasonry would be cemented. Let there be concord, friendship, brotherly love and affection; let us cultivate the gifts and graces put in our way; carry into the world the principles taught in the lodge, and so we should be best promoting the spread of the Order. At the termination of this oration, of which the above is a very brief outline, Bro. John Coutts, P.G.P., P.M. 27, 1310, and 1348, was presented to Bro. Terry by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Kent, Bro. Eastes, and installed in the chair. Bro. Eastes, in presenting him, said that he was quite satisfied, from the fact of his being nominated as W.M., that Bro. Coutts must have the confidence of the brethren who formed the lodge, and that he would do everything he could for the good of Freemasonry in general, and this lodge in particular. (Hear, hear.) The following brethren were appointed officers:—Bros. G. F. Guest, S.W.; W. Kipps, J.W.; F. Walters, Treas.; James Griffin, Sec.; H. Gloster, S.D.; Thomas Skinner, J.D.; Hardman, I.G.; Hox, W.S.; Hutchings, D.C.; and T. Grand, Tyler.

On the motion of Bro. Walters, seconded by Bro. Griffin, the thanks of the brethren were unanimously voted to the brethren who had assisted at the ceremony, Bros. Eastes, Terry, Hill, Robinson, Page, and Spencer.

The W.M., in presenting this vote of thanks, said that as Master of the lodge he sincerely felt indebted to these brethren. This had been an excellent inauguration of the lodge, and he hoped it would go on as well as it had begun. It would be his earnest endeavour, as far as was in his power, to make the lodge a good lodge, and the brethren would look back on this day as a red letter day in the annals of the Chislehurst Lodge.

The Dep. Prov. G.M., in acknowledging the toast, said that he and the other Prov. G. Officers had attended with a great deal of pleasure. It was, moreover, a matter of duty for them to do so. They were of course anxious to see Masonry flourish and prosper in Kent, and in that district of Kent, and they readily fell in with the views of the promoters of the lodge that they should be present at its consecration, as they did when any lodge was to be consecrated in the province. He and the other Prov. G. Officers wished the Chislehurst Lodge every success.

On the motion of Bro. Walters, seconded by Bro. Guest, Bros. Eastes, Terry, Hill, Robinson, Page, and Spencer, were elected honorary members of the lodge. Each of the elected brethren returned thanks, and the lodge proceeded to choose Stewards for the Masonic Institutions. Bro. Kipps took the stewardship of the Boys' School; Bro. Guest undertook to represent the lodge at the next festival of the Girls' School; and Bro. Coutts consented to accept the post of Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Bro. James Terry on behalf of the three institutions returned thanks to these brethren for taking the office, and wished each of them every success in making up good lists.

Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet.

The Deputy Grand Master, in returning thanks for "The Provincial Grand Officers," referring to Lord Holmesdale, said that his lordship had taken a great deal of interest in the promotion of this lodge; he felt great pleasure in the granting of the warrant, and nothing but pressing engagements prevented his being present at the consecration. It was not only the formation of new lodges, but the proper working of lodges already formed, that Lord Holmesdale took an interest in. For himself (the Dep. P.G.M.) he would inform the brethren that this was the first time he had attended the consecration of a lodge in his official position; but nothing could afford him greater pleasure than to find lodges increasing in number in the province of Kent. The Grand Officers knew that the lodges would be conducted in such a manner as to reflect credit on Freemasonry and the province of Kent. He hoped every care would be taken as to the admission of members; and of this he had no doubt, judging from what he had heard that day. There were many nice lodges in Kent, and he trusted that this lodge, starting as it did under favourable auspices, would take care that every thing was done to protect it from intrusion by unfit and improper persons. There were now 39 lodges in the province, which was increasing in the number of its members as well. The social status of those members was also increasing; and when they arrived at that point, numbers need not be thought of. Men who were likely to be an ornament to the society were the men only who should be admitted to it, and he would advise all the brethren, particularly those who were already Past Masters of other lodges, to devote their attention to that matter, and also to see that the province stood well in the list of provinces, and also with respect to the charities. That was another point he wished to call attention to. At the provincial meeting at Faversham a few days ago the brethren carried some bye-laws on this subject which would secure the election of candidates sent up from Kent. Those bye-laws would probably be carried at the Grand Lodge to be held at Gravesend on the 6th of July. Unless the brethren organised themselves there was no chance of getting their candidates elected, and the votes were really thrown away. Now they wanted to avoid such a result, and therefore they proposed to get each lodge to elect a Steward, and to carry a particular candidate. If that was done the province would stand pre-eminent for the amount of money sent up, and for the success of their candidates. With respect to this new lodge he hoped they would assist the province in this object. He was sure the brethren would do everything they could. After again thanking the brethren for the toast, the Dep. G. Master said he could not sit down without thanking Bro. Terry for so kindly undertaking the office of consecrating and installing Master. No one could have witnessed the ceremony of that day unmoved. Bro. Terry's words and the splendid oration of Grand Chaplain must have impressed upon the minds of the brethren that Freemasonry was not a mere myth, but that Freemasons were earnest and sincere in what they undertook, and zealous in and desirous of carrying out the principles of the high Order. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Robinson, G.S.W., Bro. Spencer, G.S., Bro. Hill, G.C., and Bro. Page, G.J.W., also urged the same topics, exhorting the brethren to bear in mind the words of the Deputy Grand Master, and to introduce into the Order only such members as they believed would adorn it. The W.M.'s health was proposed by the Dep. G.M.; and the W.M. in replying said he trusted the lodge would go on as prosperously as it had begun. After the toast of "The Visitors" had been proposed and responded to, the W.M. gave "The Charities," the Keystone of the Masonic Order. Bro. James Terry, in reply, said he thanked the members of the lodge for having taken the very unprecedented step they had taken at the first meeting of the lodge, of electing Stewards to represent them at each ensuing festival of the three Masonic Institutions. After referring to each of them and the support extended to them, Bro. Terry said there were now 570 boys, girls, and old people depending for their support on the liberality of the Craft. There were 7000 or 8000 Masons made every year, but only 300 or 400 of these supported the charities. What were the remainder doing? Knowing what obligations they were under we had a right to look to all who came into the Order to support the institutions. The province of Kent stood very well in this respect. It was fourth on the list. The highest was West Yorkshire; the next was East Lancashire; the next West Lancashire; and the fourth, Kent. He hoped that at the next festival Kent would again make its name known, and by a combined effort among the lodges allow their contributions to be announced as from the province of Kent. During the time the new Prov. Grand Master had presided over the province of Herts, which was his own (Bro. Terry's) province, a great impetus had been given to Freemasonry. There were only ten lodges; but at the last festival of the Benevolent Institution £260 was brought up from five lodges there. He advised co-operation in the province of Kent, and that the total amount collected in the province might be announced. Referring to this lodge, and the pleasant part of the county in which it was located, he said that many brethren living in London would be glad to come down to it. It was a most enjoyable part of the province, and there was a good opportunity of partaking of the hospitality of the men of Kent. He had himself from time to time enjoyed the hospitality of every lodge throughout the province, and he did not know a more warm-hearted county, or a more prosperous one. He could also say, as the Secretary of one of the Masonic institutions, that he did not know a province that had so persistently and consistently supported the claims of the three Masonic institutions. He looked upon it as a mine of wealth. There was not a Provincial Grand Lodge which took place in it at which there was not a large sum of money given to the charities; and if report spoke truly, of the next meeting at Gravesend all three institutions would derive strong support. He wished for a prosperous year of office for the W.M., and that when he retired from that post he would find that he had given a prestige to the lodge which should never fade. As a member already of the Grand Lodge of England and the Prov. G. Lodge of Middlesex he hoped to see the W.M. also hold office in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, and the Chislehurst Lodge not the least of the lodges he belonged to. (Hear, hear.) The brethren shortly afterwards separated.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire was held on Thursday, the 10th inst., at the Assembly Rooms, Boston, when Major Smyth, the Deputy Grand Master, presided. The Provincial Grand Lodge was held "under the banner of the Harmony Lodge 272," of which Bro. J. Ashlin Thomas, Prov. G.J.W., is W.M. There are already 19 lodges in the province, all of which answered when the roll was called over by Bro. Marsden, the Prov. G. Sec. The attendance, therefore, was large, and Masonic enthusiasm displayed on the occasion was warm and hearty. The spread of Masonry in the province was generally remarked upon, and a strong proof of it was said to be the large increase in the attendance at Prov. Grand Lodge this year over that of last year. Prayers were read in St. Botolph's Church at half-past twelve, and on their conclusion at one o'clock Harmony Lodge opened first, and on the admission of Grand Lodge procession of officers, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master had the gavel handed to him by Bro. Thomas, and Grand Lodge was opened. Banners of the undermentioned lodges adorned the walls:—Pelham Pillar, Franklin, Ancholme, St. Hugh, Olive Union, Shakespeare, Harmony, Yarborough, Hundred of Elloe, St. Botolph's, Lindsey, and Alexandra.

Bro. Marsden, Prov. G.S., first read the minutes of last Grand Lodge, held at Grantham, the 28th May, 1874, when it appeared that 142 brethren signed the signature book, and every lodge in the province was represented.

The minutes having been put and confirmed,

Bro. Nesbitt, Prov. G.T., read the general balance-sheet, which showed a balance in his hands of £39 11s. 7d. after £21 had been given to the Masonic charities. To the credit of the Fund of Benevolence, which account was also read, was a balance of £67 12s. 7d., and £520 being invested. Three petitioners had been relieved with the sum of £10 each, according to the report of the Committee of Charity, read by Bro. Radley, P.M. 838, P.P. G.J.W.

Bro. Pigott, P.M., 1282, the Steward for the past year, then rose, and thanked the brethren for the support he had received from them during the year he was Steward. They had subscribed £575 to his list, for the Benevolent Institution. He had certainly met with the greatest possible kindness during the whole of his year of office. He had not been treated with the same consideration by one distinguished brother; and he made this remark, trusting that the brother who would be Steward next year might not have the same difficulty.

The Dep. G. Master said that Brother Terry, the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, had come down from London to say a few words, to which all the brethren would listen with pleasure.

Bro. James Terry said that he had been directed by his Committee of Management, which met the previous day, to be present at this meeting of Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire for the purpose of returning their very grateful and sincere thanks to Bro. Pigott, and to the Deputy Stewards who assisted him at the festival on Jan. 7th last, for the very handsome and noble support they gave the Benevolent Institution on that occasion, and at the same time to express their regret that the province was not successful in the return of their two candidates at the election on the 21st of May. He could only say in addition that to the Deputy Grand Master he was directed also to return the thanks of the Committee for the very handsome donation of £105 for the purpose of endowing the office of Deputy Prov. G. Master for the time being, with votes. He was also desired to return the thanks of his Committee to Bro. J. Sutcliffe for his third or fourth donation; to Bro. Pigott and others, who kindly attended the festival in January, he gave the most hearty, fraternal, and sincere thanks, and hoped that whoever might be the Steward next year, and whatever charity he went for, they might have as true and hearty a Mason to represent the province as he who represented it in 1874-5. (Cheers.)

The Dep. Prov. G.M. said he thought they must all be highly satisfied with the progress of this province. He knew as their Deputy Grand Master that the lodges were taking infinite pains in the admission of members. They did not wish to fill their numbers up at the expense of every other consideration. The brethren had before them the report of the Committee of Charity, which was still going on prospering; they had the report of Bro. Pigott, which stated the large sum he carried up as Steward of the Benevolent Institution; and he was sure they must all look on this with the greatest satisfaction. He would ask Bro. Ace to say a few words on the subject.

The Rev. Dr. Ace said that as a Grand Lodge they would not be discharging their duty, in his humble opinion, unless they tendered their cordial and unanimous thanks to Bro. Pigott for the exertions which he had made during the past year on behalf of one of their principal charities. He was well conversant with the deficiency and diffidence he (Bro. Pigott) exhibited in following so noble a steward as the brother who preceded him in the previous year. It was with considerable hesitancy he entered upon the work, but when he did so he did it manfully. He (Bro. Ace) knew the correspondence Bro. Pigott had had with lodges, and the rebuffs which a Steward always met with; but he was determined that Lincolnshire should take the lead, and he succeeded. He did not do it for an empty name, but to show that Masonry was alive in this province. Bro. Pigott discharged his duties, and the province must now discharge theirs. He therefore proposed to this Grand Lodge that they present their cordial thanks to Bro. Pigott for his unremitting and distinguished exertions on behalf of charity during the past year.

The motion having been seconded and carried,

Bro. Pigott thanked the brethren for the vote they had accorded to him. The work he had been engaged in during the year he could heartily say had been a labour of love. He hoped that whoever succeeded him would be supported by the brethren with as much as £1,000. (Hear, hear.)

It was then resolved that this vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes, and the Deputy Grand Master directed that the reports which had been read should be printed and circulated with the Provincial Grand Lodge report.

Bro. Hall said he had been instructed by the subscribers to the Memorial Fund, which was got up in memory of the late Dr. Oliver, to make an offer to the Provincial Grand Lodge. That offer was that the sum of £197 7s. 7d., which had been collected should be handed over to the Provincial Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund, upon condition that the Provincial Grand Lodge added a similar sum to it, and that the total sum, so made up, should be devoted to some object, and made a fund, which should be named after Dr. Oliver. The matter had been before the Benevolent Committee, and there had been a minute read by Brother Marsden that morning to Grand Lodge, and it was necessary that a motion should be made that it be adopted. The committee of subscribers to the Oliver Memorial Fund were anxious that the money should be invested, and that the interest of the money should be devoted to the paying of small annuities to be given to distressed brethren in this province until they could get their larger annuities from Grand Lodge of England. Some objection was raised to that; but he was sure he was speaking the sentiments of the subscribers when he said they would agree with anything the Provincial Grand Lodge might think right and proper, so long as the fund was called after the late Dr. Oliver.

Bro. Coltman, P.G.S.W., inquired whether subscriptions to this fund had been limited to members of the province of Lincolnshire, or were spread over the rest of the country under the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge of England.

Bro. Hall answered that they were not confined to the province of Lincolnshire.

Bro. the Rev. George Coltman would then like to ask whether the permission of those subscribers had been obtained to this proposed application of the money.

Bro. Hall said, that a meeting of subscribers had been called, and at that meeting the resolution he had called attention to was passed.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. put the resolution, that this sum of money be accepted, with the addition of £200 taken from the Reserve Fund, and applied to such purposes as should be hereafter considered.

Bro. Nesbitt, P.G.T., asked under what regulations would it be dispensed? They did not seem to have directions as to that from the Prov. G. Lodge. Should there not be a committee?

The Dep. G.M., said that might be added as a rider.

A brother, who apologised for rising, asked on his own behalf and that of others, who were present, what were the terms on which this offer was made. He thought that before Provincial Grand Lodge was called upon to vote its acceptance of this sum, and to put itself under the obligation to add a similar sum to it, the brethren should be made aware of the terms of the offer and the purpose to which the sum total was intended to be applied.

Bro. Mantell said this fund had been collected from the Freemasons of the world, he believed, even from Australia, and he had not the slightest hesitation in saying that the offer of the Oliver Memorial Committee was a very handsome one. The only difficulty in the way of the Prov. Grand Lodge would be that which had been raised by the Prov. Grand Treasurer, as to how the money should be spent. But he had always found that, that difficulty had been got over whenever they had the money. (Hear, hear.) It appeared to him, however, attending here from year to year, that he could not do better than follow the remarks of the Provincial Grand Master last year, when he said what must be agreeable to them all to know, that the funds of the Benevolent Committee, which were given in charity, increased year by year. He should not be so pleased to see that, as that they should collect money every year and spend it. He did not see why the brethren of 1874 should get £100 and lay it up, when they had three institutions for maintaining both the young and the old. When they collected the money they ought to spend it, especially when they had so many cries for help on the right and the left. He had been present on the Charity Committee that day, and it was seen that there had been many pressing cases. He hoped, whatever Provincial Grand Lodge did that day, that it would not allow the fund to go into the Benevolent Invested Fund, and be swallowed up without doing honour to Bro. Oliver. He thought they ought to devote this money to some object, by which the sons or daughters of brethren, or brethren in distress, should for ever after remember Dr. Oliver. A scholarship might be attached to the Masonic Boys' School; that some boy should be recommended by the master for it who showed such talent as he thought would entitle him to it; that that boy should be sent forward to the university or some school where he might be called "The Oliver Memorial Boy." In that way they would be doing some good, and not throwing the money into a charity fund they had too much of already. Let them spend every year all the money they got.

Bro. Nesbitt, referring to a remark made by the last speaker, said that no application for relief had ever been made to the Benevolent Fund Committee which had not been generously and amply met. No application for relief had been refused.

A Brother said he should like to move that a scholarship be founded for the Wood Green school.

The Dep. P. Grand Master replied they had not sufficient money for that; it would take £1000, and they had at present only £400. Bro. Hall had stated that he did not care what was done with the money. The Committee gave £200 for Grand Lodge to put another £200 to it.

Bro. Dr. Ace said that the motion before Grand Lodge was that they should accept the £200, and add £200 to the £200 already offered. He thought if they got Grand Lodge to advance so far, two steps were taken in the right direction. He should certainly do all he could for the Memorial Scholarship to perpetuate the name, the honour, and the works of Dr. Oliver. But let them pass this resolution first.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. again put the motion, and said that Grand Lodge could afterwards deal with the details. If the brethren wanted to increase the sum they could do it.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. said that now they were in a position to receive suggestions as to how it should be applied. It was already in the hands of the Benevolent Fund Committee. Let it remain there. If they could get sufficient additions to it to found a scholarship they could do so.

This business being concluded,

The Dep. Prov. G.M. said the brethren had now to consider what charity they should support next year; and, when selected, he hoped that all the force of the province would be thrown into it. The Masonic Institution for Girls had been mentioned, and he would therefore propose it.

Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.P.G.S.W., asked permission to state a few figures with regard to the charities. Of late years the Girls' School had only had the support of this province one year. During other seven years it was given to the Boys' School or the Benevolent Institution. In the Girls' School the province held 99 votes; in the Boys', 400; and in the Benevolent Institution, 400. They had four girls on the list of candidates and one boy. Only the paltry number of 99 votes for four girls! He hoped all the brethren would support the Girls' School this next year.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. trusted that they would all put their shoulders to the wheel.

Bro. Fountain, as the representative of the Hundred of Elloe Lodge, said the primary object of his attendance at Grand Lodge that day was to state that, notwithstanding the excellent efforts of Bro. Pigott, Mrs. Tidswell's election was unsuccessful. He therefore would ask the attention of the brethren to her case. She was in delicate health, bordering on 70 years of age, the widow of the only brother of the Hundred of Elloe Lodge who attained to the rank of Provincial Grand Warden; and possibly through being passed over this year she might fail to secure her election in the future. He heard that a very large number of votes were recorded in her favour, something near what succeeded in electing a candidate. He hoped some endeavour would be made to secure her return next time.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. reminded Bro. Fountain that Mrs. Tidswell was in very good hands.

The motion "That the Girls' School be supported next year," was then put and carried.

Bro. Pigott rose to propose a Steward. There were before him a great number of Deputy Stewards (19), but he thought Bro. Boyle, who had been named before coming into Grand Lodge, was a proper brother. He was sorry to find that Bro. Boyle's duties were so numerous as not to allow him to accept that office; but he hoped he would reconsider the matter, become Steward, and raise such an amount as the province had never before sent up. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Boyle said he should be happy to serve the province. His only object in refusing was that he thought he should not be able to attend to his duties so closely as he should wish. But if he could possibly have the assistance of his brethren throughout the province, he would cheerfully undertake the office, inasmuch as he did not think it right to refuse any office that might be of use in the cause of Masonry. He was afraid he should not succeed as his predecessor had done; but he would do his best, and the best could do no more. Carried unanimously.

Bro. Nesbitt, Prov. G.T., observed that on former occasions £100 had been given to the Stewards' list from the Provincial Grand Lodge Funds. He would move that the same sum be given this year.

Bro. John Sutcliffe, P. Prov. G.S.W., moved as an amendment that fifty guineas be given. What better investment could there be for their money?

After some little discussion, the amount was altered from ten to twenty guineas, and carried.

Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.P.G.S.W., proposed fifty guineas from the Provincial Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund in addition.

Bro. Marsden, G.S., thought that Grand Lodge had no power to control the Fund of Benevolence: it was for the Committee to do that.

Bro. Parkinson moved, "That it be a recommendation from this Provincial Grand Lodge"—but the subject was not carried further, and consequently dropped.

The Deputy Prov. G.M. then rose and said, that before proceeding with the business on the agenda paper he thought it right that they should not let slip the first opportunity they had after the appointment and installation of the new M.W.G. Master, the Prince of Wales, without expressing in some measure their sense of the honour he had done the Craft in accepting the office of their Chief. He understood from those who had made researches that on former occasions an address of congratulation had been given to Royal Grand Masters upon their installation. A great many of the brethren before him had had an opportunity in the course of the last two months, of witnessing the very grandest ceremony that had ever taken place in Masonry. They would all remember the cheers which were heard on that occasion, which showed the loyalty of the great mass who were there present. They would also remember the intense feeling with which the Grand Master explained that he should never forget that day; and the way he reiterated the word "never" would never be forgotten by those who heard him. He therefore had pleasure in proposing "That an address from this province be presented to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., congratulating him on his installation." He had already communicated with the Prov. G.M., who would present it. He knew he had only to propose this resolution, and it would be immediately seconded and carried unanimously. He thought it a great honour for Freemasonry to be presided over by their future King, and he trusted that he might long be spared to be their Grand Master.

Bro. the Rev. George Coltman, P.D. Prov. G.M., said he had great pleasure in rising on the present occasion to second the proposition of their worthy and worshipful Deputy Grand Master. He had been selected to second the proposition, he supposed, because he was, if not the oldest man present, at least one of the oldest Masons in Lincolnshire. His Masonic life in Lincolnshire he thought was about 40 years, which was a good long time to look back upon. Looking at the brethren he had met that day—he had not been able to come to the Provincial Grand Lodge the last few years, as he had been particularly engaged—he was sorry to see so many faces that he really did not know. But he could assure the brethren that the old Masonic spirit was still strong within him, and though they were not mutually acquainted with each other, he was not, he hoped, in the position of the man in the old saying—"Tom Fool"—that everybody knew Tom Fool, but Tom Fool did not know everybody. He could not put himself quite in that position, he hoped. The object he had in rising would sufficiently recommend itself to the brethren. All who heard that H.R.H. had taken the office of Grand Master heard it with a great deal of pleasure; and he trusted that the tie H.R.H. had formed with the Masons of England would not only unite him to his future subjects, but would also open a new fountain in his heart that would never be dried. He was perfectly sure they would unanimously vote this address; and it would be accepted by the Prince of Wales with all heartiness. He would not look upon the province of Lincolnshire, as one of the Kings of England was said to have done when he called it one of the most brutal and beastly counties in England. (Laughter.) If the Prince of Wales had come to Lincolnshire, and seen the numerous assemblage in that room, he would not say it was the least county in England in Masonry.

Bro. Nesbitt, Prov. G.T., having read a short history of the province, the motion was put and carried unanimously, and the presentation of the address was entrusted to the Duke of St. Albans, Prov. G.M., Major Smythe, Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. Nesbitt, Prov. G.T., and Bro. Marsden, Prov. G. Secretary.

The Dep. Prov. G.M. announced that ladies would be in the gallery of the dining hall during and after banquet.

The following brethren were then invested as Provincial Grand Officers for the year:—

Bros. Fowler, P.P.G.J.W., and Griffin, P.P.G.D.C., were appointed Auditors of Grand Lodge Funds.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master informed the brethren that the next Provincial Grand Lodge would be held at Brigg. An apology was then tendered by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master for the absence of the Provincial Grand Master, and by Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.P.G.S.W., for that of Bro. Binckes.

Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren then adjourned to the Shodfriars' Hall to banquet, and the following long list of toasts were proposed and honoured:—"The Queen and the Craft;" "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family;" "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese;" "Army, Navy, Militia, and Volunteers;" "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c. The R.W. Prov. G.M. The R.W. the D.G.M., and the Grand Officers Past and Present;" "The R.W.P. G.M. of Lincolnshire;" "The W.D.P.G.M. of Lincolnshire;" "The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present;" "The W. Masters and Officers of the Lodges in the Province;" "The Masonic Charities;" "The Visiting Brethren;" "The Ladies;" "All Poor and Distressed Masons throughout the world."

The brethren separated early, after spending a most successful day. The increase in the number of Masons in the province may be judged from the fact that whereas 147 signed last year as attending Provincial Grand Lodge, no less than 202 signed this year, and 193 sat down to banquet. The banquet was admirably supplied by the proprietor of the Peacock Hotel, Boston. A good selection of music was performed during the evening by brethren in the minstrels' gallery.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the 7th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair, presided, supported by Bros. Arch. Conachie, J.W., acting S.W.; Laird, acting J.W. Among the other officers present we observed Bros. J. Balfour, P.M., and P.G.D.C.; A. Gillies, D.M.; J. Laird, Treas.; J. McInnes, Sec.; and others. Notwithstanding the night being stormy and disagreeable, and the season in full swing for all who can manage to escape for a time the unpleasant atmosphere of the city to take refuge in and benefit from the advantages of the coast, there was a very good attendance of members and visiting brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and approved of, were passed, when a communication was read from the Secretary of Partick St. Mary's, No. 117, inviting a deputation of brethren from Union, No. 332, to be present at the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of their new hall, which takes place on the 26th inst. It is some time since they procured a suitable site for this purpose, and they seem to be pushing on the building with great energy, and we wish them all success and comfort in their undertaking. The deputation from Lodge Union, 332, will receive clothing from the O.G. on application. After some conversation on the contemplated alterations and improvements on the Grand Kilwinning Lodge, 170, Buchanan-street, where at present the Union Lodge hold their meetings, a committee was appointed to act along with the Grand Kilwinning Lodge, and the other lodges who meet in the hall, with power to conclude the arrangements on behalf of the lodge. After a promiscuous conversation on various subjects relating to the lodge, which ended in an amicable way, minutes of which the Secretary took, Bro. W. Harper, R.W.M. of Lodge Clyde, No. 408, made an application to the R.W.M. to do the Clyde Lodge the favour of initiating two gentlemen on their behalf. This was at once most heartily complied with, and the two gentlemen, viz., James Harris and William Hamilton, being prepared in the usual manner, received the light of Masonry in the First Degree from Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., Lodge Union, in an admirable style, which must have left a lasting impression on the newly initiated brothers, as it did upon all present. Bro. Harper, in a graceful manner, returned thanks to the R.W.M. and members of the Lodge Union for the favour conferred, which brought the business of the evening to a close, when the lodge was closed in all ancient solemnity.

Masonic Tidings.

Prince Leopold has taken a residence in Wiltshire, having selected Boyton House, a curious old Elizabethan mansion; now the property of Mr. Edmund Fane. It is situated midway between Salisbury and Warminster.

WELLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 548).—The 15 Sections will be worked in this lodge at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford, on Monday next, the 21st inst. The lodge will be opened at 7.30 precisely by Bro. J. R. Nash, P.M. 79.

Prince Leopold has commissioned Mr. W. Britten to complete for him his two paintings, "Lessons of Love" and "A Greek Girl feeding Pigeons."

Bro. Defries and Son were entrusted this year with the entire decorations for the University Ball at the Oxford Commemoration, which they accomplished with great success.

Friday, 11th, Prince Leopold, attended by Lord Brooke, Mr. Douglas Campbell, and Mr. Collings, visited Warwick Castle, and after luncheon and an inspection of the grounds drove to Stratford-on-Avon to view the Shakespeare memorials.

Lord Calthorpe has published a list of thirty-seven subscribers, headed by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge, of 100 guineas each for five years, to promote the breeding of horses.

The Prince of Wales has presented a donation of £250 to the Norfolk County School. The donation is to be applied to the foundation of a scholarship.

The personal estate of the late Countess of Carnarvon, who died on the 25th of January last, has been sworn under £18,000.

PRESENTATION TO CHRIST'S HOSPITAL.—Bro. Alderman Knight having placed a presentation to Christ's Hospital at the disposal of his ward of Cripplegate Without, a meeting of the Deputies and Common Councilmen of the ward was held at the Quest House, on Monday, to elect a candidate for the vacancy. Out of fifteen boys the son of Bro. F. W. Baker, of 110, Fore-street, was selected to be nominated for the approval of the Alderman.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Friday, 11th, the first representation by the Haymarket company took place at the Crystal Palace, the piece selected being "Our American Cousin." The theatre was crowded to overflowing long before the commencement of the performance, large numbers being unable to obtain admission. Mr. Sothorn, on making his appearance, received quite an ovation, and his impersonation of Lord Dundreary afforded the greatest amusement to the large assemblage.

A picture is on view at Messrs. Graves's gallery, of "King Charles the Second going to the Parliament House from Whitehall after the Restoration." The scene is taken from opposite the Whitehall Palace, and shows the King's state barge, the Lord Mayor's and the principal City companies' barges, with their banners and armorial bearings. This picture was formerly the property of Garter King-at-Arms, Sir Robert Walter, and was painted by Stoope.

COST OF A DINNER.—It is said that a dinner recently held by half-a-dozen Liverpool financiers to celebrate a successful speculation cost £450—£75 a head. Of this sum £100 was for flowers and decorations.

ROYAL VISIT TO INDIA.—We understand that the whole expense incurred in the passage of the Prince of Wales to India will be born by the Admiralty, and not the India Office.—Globe.

The "Graphic" of last week contains an engraving of the Marquis of Hartington, Provincial Grand Master for Derbyshire.

The Salisbury Lodge of Instruction now meets every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Union Tavern, Airstreet, Regent-street, instead of Compton-street, Soho.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh will, it is understood, leave England in July for Russia on a visit to the Emperor and Empress.

The Earl of Carnarvon has appointed Mr. J. C. H. James, of the Oxford Circuit, Commissioner of Titles in Western Australia.

The Chaucer Lodge, 1540, will be consecrated at the Bridge House, Hotel Southwark, on Friday, July 2nd, by Bro. J. Hervey, G.S.

Bro. Robt. B. Webster is the new W.M. of the Blackheath Lodge No. 1320.

Mount Lebanon Lodge of Instruction No. 73 meets every Wednesday evening at 8, at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge Road; Bro. Noke, P.M., Preceptor.

It is stated in Dublin that it is intended to purchase Rockingham Castle, Boyle, County Roscommon, the seat of the late Earl of Kingston, as an Irish residence for the Duke of Connaught.

The United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction will on and after Friday, July 2nd, meet at the New Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk, Lord Waveney, P.G.M., is to be held at Bury St. Edmunds this year, under the auspices of the local lodge, the Royal St. Edmunds, 1008, a large and very prosperous body of Masons of whom much is expected. Our antiquarian brethren will doubtless hail this opportunity of attending the meeting and studying archaeology—for Bury was a famous place in old times—and there is much to see and admire in the capital of West Suffolk. The time fixed is we believe Monday, the 5th July.

A meeting convened by the Prince of Wales, as President of the Society of Arts, was held on Tuesday last at Marlborough House for the purpose of establishing free scholarships for metropolitan students in the National Training School of Music. The Prince of Wales (who presided), the Duke of Edinburgh, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and the Lord Mayor were amongst the speakers.

Their Royal Highness the Prince and Princess of Wales have graciously accepted Frances Countess Waldegrave's invitation to be present at the garden party at Strawberry-hill, Twickenham, on Tuesday, the 29th inst. Lady Waldegrave will be "at home" from 4 to 7.30.

The Grand Lodge of New York last year constituted fourteen new lodges. There are now 82,000 Freemasons in the State of New York, 4899 of whom were initiated during the past year.

About £1000 has now been received at the Mansion House on account of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund.

Bro. Menotti Garibaldi, son of our distinguished Brother, Gen. Garibaldi, and now actively engaged in upholding Freemasonry in Italy, was made a Mason in Tompkins Lodge, New York.

RIFLE CONTEST IN EDINBURGH.—The proceedings of the Edinburgh Rifle Association commenced on Monday, when a match took place between Edinburgh and Liverpool. The Liverpool teams were of 20 each; the distances were 200, 500, and 600 yards; seven shots at each range. The score for Edinburgh was 1078; for Liverpool 1034; majority for Edinburgh, 44. The day was exceedingly wet. The contest for the International Trophy takes place on Saturday.

Newspapers from London to Sunderland, per day mail, must henceforth be posted at the General Post Office by 4.30 a.m.

The summer fête of the Asylum for Idiots will be held on Thursday, 24th inst., in the grounds of the institution at Earlswood.

Bro. Captain Boyton exhibited the capabilities of his life-saving dress on Wednesday, at Bradford-on-avon, once in the afternoon and again in the evening. Large assemblages mustering from Bath, Trowbridge, and surrounding places were present. The experiments included a number of amusing details, which gave the proceedings the nature of an entertainment. The captain whilst in the water fired small bullets at the railway signal, a distance of a hundred yards, and repeatedly struck it—this feat being, like the others, greatly applauded.

LAW APPOINTMENT.—Bro. J. Perry Godfrey, S.D., Golden Rule Lodge, No. 1261, a solicitor practising in Gray's Inn has been appointed by the Lord Chancellor a London Commissioner to Administer Oaths in Chancery.

Orders are now being received at Bro. Kenning's Masonic Depots, London, Liverpool, and Glasgow, for the Medal to be struck in commemoration of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1875.

A MASONIC HERESY.

There are some good brethren in our excellent confraternity who are the victims of a great mistake as regards the true end of Freemasonry, and propound to a great extent what may be fairly termed a heresy in respect of sound Masonic teaching. And though we do not say, forbid the thought, that they ought to be "handed over to the secular arm," in order to be burnt as heretics, yet we feel bound to protest against their little "Airesis;" and for this reason. It is a false teaching, which does infinite harm to our Order, inasmuch as it keeps many and many a good man out of Freemasonry, and because also it lowers inevitably the truer pitch of real Masonic teaching, and serves to invest with a purely low and earthly character the real and dignified mission of our brotherhood in the world. We allude to that somewhat prevalent persuasion and avowal that the social aspect of Freemasonry is the only one worth consideration or sympathy. Imbued with such a persuasion and theory many of our brethren discourage literary research and intellectual discussions in Freemasonry, the elevating efforts of our archaeological students and the like, because they conceive and erroneously conceive, that such pursuits, somewhat above their ordinary level, will interfere either with the mere routine of lodge work, or the more agreeable sequence and satisfactoriness of the K. and F. Degree. We venture to think that all such propositions are not only very mistaken, but very mischievous, and, to say the truth, not a little perverse. For though the social side of Freemasonry is never to be overlooked or despised, yet it must be always subordinated to higher ends and aims, as if were it all on which Freemasonry is founded, it is quite clear that Freemasonry itself could not and would not last long, in the very nature of things. The morale of the symposium and the philosophy of the social circle cannot and do not possess any possible claim to endurance or perpetuation in themselves. On the contrary, like all other earthly things, they often fade away utterly and suddenly. They must fade away ere long under any circumstances, and be utterly lost for us all in the far distance of not unfrequently pathetic memories. Few of us there are but can recal how the songs are hushed, and the flowers are withered, and the lights are dim, and the gay faces are vanished, and the pleasant circle is thinned, all which things were able but a few years ago to give movement to the blood and animation to the spirits, and served to afford pleasure and refreshment to body and mind. But yet all these things pass and disappear in the hurrying hours of life, and are now but specks in the distance in the long vista of years. They may and do endure for a time, they may and do afford much of gladness and happy association to many a wayfaring brother now, but they have in them all the taint of earth, the elements of change and decay, and are, at the best, therefore, but ephemeral and transitory. Even a time may be our own when we find ourselves no pleasure in those very things which once could so cheer, and soften, and beguile the rougher path and pressing cares of life, which once could lend the enchantments of fancy and friendship, and the illusions of harmless gaiety, to many a serious traveller, to many a toiling brother in this great wilderness of the world. Yes, there is for us all an inevitable hour when the jest and the glee, and the cheerful banquet, and the merry gathering are all out of character and unseasonable, when old age has come upon us, for instance, with its benumbing and palsyng grasp, when we feel we are getting a little out of place, amid the vivacious views and laughing utterances of a new and a younger generation. Hence it is clear that if we attempt to make Freemasonry a merely social sodality, without any high aims or better teaching than "carpe diem," we are propounding a grave and hurtful heresy. There is no little selfishness in the theory moreover, and we may often witness how even worthy men and very good Masons, having once adopted this convenient Masonic creed, look upon the banquet as the "do all" and the "be all" of Masonic teaching and work. If then, like Talleyrand, we say to young Masons "surtout point de zèle," and seek to keep all efforts to a dull level and a deadening uniformity, if we hold even that our charitable efforts should not be too exorbitant of time or money, if we discourage all intellectual study of Freemasonry and all moral application of its effective symbolism, not only are we doing despite to the real end and spirit of our Fraternity, but we are inflicting harm on our own Masonic character. We take a light, a superficial, a half-hearted, and easily satisfied measure, both of our privileges and responsibilities as Freemasons, and so we are led openly to denounce, or privately deprecate, all attempts by the zealous, the earnest, and the energetic to impart to Freemasonry a true and living character, to add dignity to its labours, and to impart reality on its professions. We will endeavour next week to point out what is the sacred and true teaching of Freemasonry, in contradistinction to this somewhat popular little heresy amongst our Order, that we have feebly and humbly endeavoured to denounce and set forth to day.

THE ULTRAMONTANE PRESS.

We deeply regret to note and to realize the "hysterica passio" which is seemingly coming over the Roman Catholic representatives of teaching, thought, and literature. At the present hour you cannot take up a Roman Catholic journal without finding abundant tokens and the saddest proofs of a most extraordinary virulence of feeling, the most outrageous vehemence of verbiage, alike in things Masonic as in all matters affecting what we may call liberty of thought and freedom of conscience. For in the papers we complain of, we do not find either arguments or logic, but simply scolding and abuse; and not only this, but, unfortunately, the Roman Catholic Press seems to us—we hope we are wrong—to be overpassing deliberately the moral restraints altogether of sobriety of expression, of truth, nay, of decency, and above all, of any kindly consideration for others. We have recently perused some bona-fide Ultramontane productions addressed "ad populum," which for open defiance of every rule of fair play, righteous dealing with truth, not only "beat Banagher," as the Irishman would say, but even surpass previous notable specimens of genuine and unadulterated Roman Catholic Billingsgate. Those of us, unfortunately, who have had to wade through the controversies of the past know too well how violent and how discreditable, how foul-mouthed and how cruel, have been many of the crafty insinuations and the positive assertions of anonymous and open Roman Catholic controversialists; of some of whom it may fairly be said that they "stuck at nothing," to prop up their own weaker cause, or to discredit a stronger adversary. And to-day the same spirit with, perhaps, an even still more vigorous expression, curiously enough, of wordy and revolutionary language, is mournfully manifested by the Ultramontane School. The same readiness of mendacious assertion, the same outpouring of the wilful libel, the same coarseness of personal invective, are to be seen in countless Ultramontane periodicals. Of one of these papers, vile in its vileness, and false in its falsity, some indignant protestors have used the following concise but startling words, words which, however unpalatable and unprecedented, we can say, are neither incorrect or uncalled for. They say that the "statements" in the particular article, "singly or wholly," are "outrageous and slanderous lies," that "the article itself" is "a compound of infamous falsehoods, vile distortions, and distilled filth, concocted for the spiritual nurture of enervated serfs, according to the notorious maxim, 'the end justifies the means.'" Well, we deeply regret this state of things in the interest of the Church of Rome herself. What possible good can accrue to that generally astute body to-day by this continued and unmistakeable evidence of bitterness of feeling and acrimony of language and uncharitableness of disposition, which in no way affects to appeal to reason, and is not apparently bound by the normal restraints of public propriety and personal bienséance? Is there no educated Roman Catholic of intellect and of piety who can or will publicly repudiate or privately remonstrate against the present untoward and melancholy state of affairs? We say nothing now about the angry incriminations of our peaceful fraternity, now so prevalent; we do not even profess or wish to recall to-day ungenerous insinuations and unwarrantable imputations against our generous and innocuous Order; but we feel bound to call attention to and protest against this vehemence of language and this untruthfulness of assertion; nay, we regret to add, this verbiage of an unseemly journalism, which professedly religious and Roman Catholic, is spreading amongst us and around us, and is positively unfit to be placed within the reach of the young, the innocent, and the virtuous minded. It is said that many of the writers of these unworthy articles are Jesuits, who, angry with their expulsion from other countries, are now ventilating their "furious grievances" in the ready columns of the Ultramontane Press. Whether this be so or no we cannot positively say, but certain it is that at no time has the Church of Rome boasted a more devoted band of ecclesiastical gladiators, and we must add unscrupulous writers, than at the present time. As far as we are ourselves concerned as Freemasons, we care nothing for this noisy Armada, even with all its violence and vulgarity, its illogical arguments, and its hopeless inconsistencies. But, as we said, we are as Freemasons so tolerant ourselves, that we deeply deplore the fact, too patent alas just now, that the Church of Rome has to have recourse to the hurtful and hateful weapons of falsehood, libel, and degrading personalities. We are sorry to witness the, to us, always lamentable sight of a great religious body making itself a stumbling block to many and a laughing stock to more by promoting avowedly under ecclesiastical, nay Papal sanction, the undisciplined rhodomontade.

tade of fanatical partizans, and the hopeless intolerance of an Ultramontane clique. Deeply distressing is it for every reflecting mind to see before our eyes in 1875 the worst excesses of mediaevalism repeated in the untruthful and irreligious tendency of doctrine and decree, of censure and of controversy, of attack and anathema, of the cruel accusation and lying slander.

MASONIC COURTESY.

As Freemasons we are bound to be courteous to all men, but especially to all our brethren in Freemasonry. In the lodge we are all on one level, however differing our earthly ranks, however contrasted our social positions in the world, beyond the portals of our peaceful "logerium." That is undoubtedly the true teaching of our Order which enjoins us as Freemasons ever to show to our "confreres" in the world, and indeed to all men, the courtesy of brethren, and the consideration of gentlemen. For Freemasonry, from our first admission into its mystic circle, would impress upon us all one great and abiding lesson. "Whatever your position in society may be, whatever your lot in life, whatever the calling or occupation which it is your duty to follow and adorn, never forget the courtesy and consideration you owe to all men, and not the least to your brethren in Freemasonry. Be therefore courteous in speech and courteous in demeanour, courteous in all those little amenities of life, which often smoothe away so many of its rough corners, and lessen so many of its drawbacks, and soften so many of its acerbities. As a Freemason you are to be above the often prevailing and purely worldly feelings of pride or perversity, of exclusiveness and caste, of higher rank, of superior position." The best Freemasons and the truest gentlemen, therefore, are those who while they never forget that they are Freemasons or gentlemen, have learnt to sympathize truly with their neighbours and brethren in the world, to "honour all men," and are ever ready to shew to their fellow creatures of the dust the tender graces of a persistent good will, and the pleasant countenance of a genuine philanthropy. Now, we venture to submit to our readers that in this respect of Masonic courtesy we all may learn a useful lesson, a lesson which we may well con over continually, commit carefully to heart, and seek to reduce to practice in our own daily walk in life, at home, and among men. It is remarkable how often to day Masons are discourteous to one another. An infirmity of temper, a littleness of disposition, a pettiness of aim, a casual remark will often render us for the time quite fail in courtesy to an unoffending brother. The importance of office, the elevation of the hour, will often make us forget how true it is "how we apples swim," and we become short in speech, and uncivil in manner to some one, who has every claim both on our forbearance and friendly feeling. We have often seen examples and illustrations of this failure both in demeanour and right feeling, and have often felt for those who must have suffered from slight or discourtesy, but were too Masonic to resent and too self-possessed to complain. And yet on the contrary we have seen in some of the ablest and best of our Order an ever abounding spirit of courtesy and consideration for all. They are not one thing in the lodge and another thing out of the lodge, they are not those who presume on a little brief authority or momentary elevation, but they feel and show that courtesy is ever due to the humblest and the highest in Freemasonry. And believing as we do that Freemasonry is something more than a mere Freemasonry machine, something more than a mere outward organization, without any inward vitality, something more than a society for good dinners and pleasant festivities, we feel bound to express our opinion that one of its best lessons to all its members, is that courtesy of manner and speech, and treatment, and disposition, which throws a tinge of softness and gentleness on all of earthly fellowship. To be courteous to our brethren, to be considerate of our brethren, their good names, their personal reputation, and their fair fame are among the highest duties of Freemasonry; and, like the old chronicler, we can say to day, "O courteous Freemasons never feel ashamed that you have learnt that true courtesy of your good old Craft which enjoins you to be friendly to your brethren and courteous to all men."

TRANSATLANTIC LAW AND JUSTICE.

Ever since the publication of a "Missionary Experience in Texas," by the Abbé Domenech, the famous toast of the newly appointed judge, "Justice modified by circumstances," therein so humorously related, has appeared to many somewhat well to describe the somewhat peculiar administration of the law amongst our go-a-head cousins. But we are inclined to believe that, though the story is a good story, and it is a pity to spoil it, such an idea is on the whole erroneous. It is possible, rather certain, that owing to the varying system of judicial appointments in the different States, the right man is not always in the right place, that is as regards legal acquirements and fitness for the responsible position of the Bench, especially where the tumults of popular election seem to us greatly to interfere with that calmness and serenity, and elevated character, which, in our opinion, ought ever to characterize our judges, as affording the best guarantee alike for untainted justice, as well as for the maintenance of authority, and the liberties of the people. Mr. Macgregor tells us amusingly of an election in Maine, where one was the "liquor judge" and the other the "no-liquor judge!" Happy theory of absolute impartiality and even-handed fairness. But yet, despite popular opinions and some not altogether unfounded criticisms, alike American and Anglican, we feel disposed to believe that things are improving, and we have been struck with some remarkable evidences of equity and common sense, in some cases as reported, if not in leading cases or by distinguished counsel, yet in the ever watchful and prolific press of the United States. We have thought it well to put together a few gems from this circle of brilliants, which we have lately been perusing alike with admiration and interest.

Let us take the following illustration, for instance, of a case somewhat difficult to understand:

He was a kind-looking old man, having gray hair and a face over which a smile spread itself, and looked up at the court.

"Were you drunk?" asked his Honour.

"Twee of drie geleidon, sloeg hij zijn kindje, so maandam oud," replied the old man.

"What! What did he say?" asked the court.

"Met bovenstaande vraag hielden zich de vorige week de Engelsche," replied the prisoner.

The clerk began to grin.

The audience moved uneasily.

"Now then," continued his Honour, "the charge is drunkenness, and I want to hear what you have to say about it."

"De tegenwoordigheid van afgevaardigden van andere Christelijke Vereenigingen," answered the old man, in a solemn voice.

"Were you drunk?" demanded the court, in a louder tone.

"Hij werd verleden Maandag tot twaalf jaren gevangenis straf veroordeeld," answered the prisoner, also raising his voice.

"Don't fool with this court!" warned his Honour.

"Worinkoekjes gebruikt te hebben, terwijl wij alle huisgezinnen, waar kinderen zijn moeten aauraden een doos van Kimm's Susan B. Anthony!" replied the prisoner, throwing his arms around wildly.

"Well, I can't fool away any more time on you," said the court, in a tone of despair. "Dust out of here and be seen no more!"

And he dusted.

Or let us take this interesting report.

"This is a case which can be called, tried, and disposed of inside of three minutes," remarked his Honour, as Charles Taylor leaned on the railings and regarded him with an appealing look.

"I couldn't get nothing to do" replied the prisoner.

"I hear you couldn't; but if I were a young man eighteen years old, in sound health, and the fat on my ribs was an inch and a half thick, I'd find work enough to pay for my board, or I'd slide off the wharf and make business for a coroner."

"I've looked all around," said the prisoner.

"Well, we won't argue the case. I know that work is scarce, but I also know that there are dozens of fat loafers around this town who wouldn't turn a grindstone two hours for a week's board. You are charged with vagrancy, are guilty, and I'll give you sixty days. That will let you out about the time the pansies bloom, and if you can't find work then, I'll send you back for six months."

The prisoner shuffled off into the corridor, wiping a tear from his nose, and was so ugly that Bijah had to draw the crowbar at him before he would sit down on the water-cooler and wait for the Maria to drive around.

The following youthful culprit may find some sympathizers?

"And this is William Spinner, eh?" inquired his Honour of a brick-haired young man whose back was covered with mud.

"Yes, sir."

"They found you in an alley; it was night; you were drunk; when they hauled you out you was as ugly and pompous as the King of the Cannibal Islands. Isn't this true?"

"It was my birthday, and I suppose I took a glass too much," replied the prisoner. "It's the last time, however; you will never see me again."

"Let's see—haven't you an old mother to support?"

"Yes—yes, sir. She's a good old lady, and she'll feel badly about this."

"And you have to support two or three young sisters?"

"Yes, three of them—poor little girls."

His Honour removed his spectacles, wiped the apple on his coat sleeve, smiled blandly, and remarked:

"What an awful liar! Why, man, I know all about you! You are one of the greatest loafers in Detroit, and I don't believe you have a relation on earth!"

The prisoner cast his eyes down, and could make no reply.

"I'll mark you down for sixty days," continued the court; "that's thirty days in which to get you washed up, and thirty more to get acquainted with yourself."

Is there a brother "with soul so dead" who does not feel for this peaceable German?

"I shall dell noddings but der zolemn druth," said the next prisoner as he stepped out.

"Well, that's a good start," replied his Honour. "The charge here is disturbing the peace."

"I gave noddings at all for dat sharge—I want to told you how it vhas:"

"Go ahead."

"I vhas zitting in my zaloon, mit der door locked, und shust so quick as I drunk some peer I vhas going to ped."

"Yes."

"Und bresently some vellers gum along und pult on der door-handle, und one veller he yelt out: 'Ho! dere, old zaw-bones! open dis door?' Und I said noddings. Und another veller kicks on der door shust like dat, und he yelt out: 'Open dis door or I shall knock your het quick off!' Und still I said noddings. Und another veller kicks on der door shust like that, und yelt: 'Kill der old gross-eyed Limberger?' Und den I opens der door mit a glub in my hant, und I knocks 'em like dat! und dat! und dat! Und den der bolece shumped in und dork me!"

"All of which you swear is the solemn truth?"

"I gannot dell a lie."

"And you were never here before?"

"I never vhas in States brison before since I vas born."

"And you'll try to get along after this without having any more trouble?"

"If no one droubles me I shall pe like a lamb."

"Well, you may go."

We have also perused some accounts of police administration in New York, which seem to us worthy of note and emulation. They are marked by much clearness of decision, energy of action, and forcible good sense!

The next case was John H. Nelson, at least that was the name he gave. He recorded himself as a horse doctor. He was a jaunty little fellow, with long outstretched mutton-chop whiskers, a faultless shirt, small California diamonds, and silver horse-shoe in his cravat.

"Well," said the Superintendent, looking up in surprise at Nelson, "I am astonished to see you here; I thought you were in Sing Sing, and I can't think how you condescended to take such a paltry sum as that?"

The amount was not mentioned. Nelson said he had been out of prison three months, and in his possession was found a bag of bogus twenty-dollar gold pieces and bogus sovereigns.

"You don't think, Super.," said Nelson, twirling his hat, "that I would be mean enough to take a 'trick' as small as that? It don't pay. These hooziers, when they get stuck, stick on to the city like a porous plaster. For no other reason you may be assured than to save going to 'quod' for such a small 'trick' like that, would I do it."

"I don't believe you," said Superintendent Walling, "you would steal anything, from a ten-penny nail to an anchor."

"No, no sir; you do me injustice," said Nelson. "Believe me whether you will or not, it was only last week I beat a flat out of 30 dollars. I learned it was all that he had, and he had a family, and he had no way to get out of the city to join it. I could not bear it. I followed him a block and forced the money back on him."

"That will do," said the Superintendent, interrupting him. "Mr. Nelson, there is no use in playing the confidence game here. Officer, take him back."

Surely the following is very striking?

A ship sneak was the next culprit brought up. He gave the name of Arthur J. King. He was a man about forty years of age, and was "a man of silence." There was a very ordinary appearance about this fellow, nothing to excite suspicion or attract attention. His "racket," as the police call it, is to board an out-going steamer with valise in hand as a passenger, and in the confusion "go through" the state-rooms.

"You are here again," said the Superintendent.

"You brought me," was the laconic reply.

"Can't you keep off the docks?"

"You can, I suppose," was the curt rejoinder.

"You are healthy enough and strong enough to work; ain't you ashamed to steal?"

"Is there an honest man living?"

"Well, all that is honest about you is your opinions," said the Superintendent, laughing.

"Well, that is something. Give me a sinecure of 5,000 dollars a year, and you will see a reformed man."

"I can't do it at that rate. All we can do is tire you into honesty, that we can do."

"Well, try it," said King, in a low tone to himself.

"Take him back, officer," said the Superintendent. "And get the several victims in these cases, Mr. Warlow, and see if they can't be identified."

What a sensible Superintendent does the following anecdote reveal to us?

The next fellow brought in was on the charge of snatching a watch on the cars. There was the thief, the stolen property, but no complainant to prosecute. The complainant had not reported his loss at headquarters, and of course they did not know where to find him, but expected that he would make his appearance at the office during the day. It appears that the officer heard the cry of stop thief from the car, pursued the thief, and finally arrested him, but the complainant did not follow up the pursuit, and there was now no accuser.

"Back again, Mike," was the salutation of the Superintendent. "Take him back and lock him up, the loser of that watch will be here during the day."

"Sir," said the pickpocket, drawing himself up to his full height. "I demand my rights; I ask to be taken right off before a police magistrate."

"But there is no complainant," said the Superintendent, smilingly.

"D'yer think I wants to wait for 'em?" said the thief.

"But we want to oblige the gentleman that lost his watch, and give it back to him?"

"What isn't his, isn't hizen, is it?" said the thief. "Possession's nine pints o' the law. That tucker is mine. I'm entitled to be taken before a magistrate within twenty-four hours, so the justices say, now see if yere don't! It's too costly paying Bill 'Owe to get a habeas corpus when the thing ain't needed."

"Take him back, officer," said the Superintendent. "Possession is nine points of the law, and we have you now; when we get the owner of the watch others will take you in charge."

We hope our readers are pleased with these reports and decisions; if they are, we may, on some future occasion give them a few more specimens equally interesting, and equally just!

We must conclude with the "dictum" of a judge "out west," which so long as it is abided by, must render any attempt to shake the Constitution of the United States utterly hopeless, come from what quarter it may.

It appears that he once ordered a witness to "come up and be sworn." He was informed that the person was deaf and dumb. "I don't care," said the Judge, compassionately, "whether he is or not. Here is the Constitution of the United States before me. It guarantees to every man the right of speech, and so long as I have the honour of a seat on this bench, it shall not be violated or invaded. What the Constitution guarantees to a man, I'm bound he shall have."

Something like the judge in Iowa, who declared that "courting was a necessity, and ought not to be interfered with," we feel great admiration for this maintenance of constitutional principles on all occasions.

Whether the cases we have thus carefully extracted from "our own reporter's notes," from such papers, for instance, as the New York Dispatch, are actual copies of the court records we do not feel sufficiently well posted up to say, but if they are, they reflect the highest credit on the practical equity and common sense of the Transatlantic administration of the law and of justice.

MR. HECKETHORN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Who is Mr. Heckethorn? Is anything known of his antecedents? I have read his last work, and to me it smacks strongly of the Ultramontane, or Jesuit school. Is this libeller of Freemasons a Jesuit?

I am, yours fraternally,

NEMO.

BRO. C. J. BURGESS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will the Earl of Limerick, or the Rev. G. R. Portal, or some other authorised official of the Mark Degree of Freemasonry, inform me, through the medium of the Freemason, whether the report which has reached me from a private source is true, namely, that I have been expelled from the Mark degree? And if it be true, will the same authority, also in the same manner, inform me specifically what is the Masonic offence with which I stand charged, which renders me unfit for the society of Freemasons, who is my accuser, and why I have not been brought face to face with him?

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In to-day's—or rather, I should say, yesterday's Freemason there is a note from Bro. Hughan respecting "Masonic medals and tokens," and mentions especially the one struck commemorative of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. in 1790. I have seen one frequently—I saw it this morning, for the last time, hanging from the watch chain of a brother here in the town. At first I took to be gold, but have found out since that it is only copper gilt; and, on inquiry last week, was told I could have one done the same, and the corrosion removed, for the magnificent sum of three shillings and sixpence!

Yours fraternally,

JAMES A. HAYES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have observed in last week's Freemason a note from our Brother Wm. Jas. Hughan, respecting an old Masonic token in copper, which is certainly very uncommon, and very little known. I have one precisely similar, and it was attached to my watch-chain, on the occasion of H.R.H.'s installation, on the 28th of April last. I have had it in my possession for a great number of years, and by some chance it unexpectedly turned up just at the appropriate time, previous to the G.M.'s installation. As far as I can recollect, it was given to me by an old and valued brother of the Order in Dublin, with various other Masonic coins or tokens, and it must have been at least twelve or fourteen years ago. On the rim is very distinctly inscribed "Masonic hallpenny token," but the remainder is indistinct. I value it very much, and until now did not know there was another of the same sort.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S INSTALLATION AND COMMEMORATIVE JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I enclose sketch of a jewel commemorative of the Installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master, which has been forwarded to the lodges in the province of Worcester.

As no jewel can legally be worn which has not received the sanction of H.R.H. the Grand Master, I wrote to the Grand Secretary requesting to be informed whether such jewel had been so sanctioned, as I was desirous that the brethren of this province should not be misled into purchasing a jewel which, if unauthorised, they would certainly not be permitted to wear in any lodge in this province.

I enclose copy of the Grand Secretary's reply, which I will thank you to insert in your next issue.

Yours fraternally,

W. BRISTOW, JUN. P.P.S.G.W.

Prov. G. Sec. of Worcestershire.

[COPY.]

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.,

8th June, 1875.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

No such jewel as that advertised by Bro. — will be allowed to be worn by the members of the Craft.

The only jewel, in reference to the Installation on the 28th April, which has been sanctioned by the M.W.G.M., is the one to be worn by the special Stewards who were appointed to assist on that occasion.

Yours truly and fraternally,

(Signed), JOHN HEAVY, G.S.

Bro. W. Bristow, Jun., Prov. G. Sec. Worcestershire.

The following is extracted from the circular referred to:—

"The brethren present at the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales being impressed with the grandeur of the ceremony, many have desired to possess a jewel in commemoration of the occasion. This has induced — to design the jewel as per sketch.

"The well known plumes connect it with the event, and on the centre bar are introduced the words which are the watchwords of the Order—'Loyalty, Charity.' (Vide the speech of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.) The letters being in white enamel will, combined with the sky blue ribbon, form the Masonic charity colours—blue and white. On the reverse of the jewel is the inscription—'H.R.H. Prince of Wales, installed Most Worshipful Grand Master, 28th April, 1875.' The emblem in centre of star will be made to suit a W.M., P.M., Warden, or Master Mason, as desired. Jewel is size of engraving.

"Price: well gilt, 25s; treble gilt with 18-carat gold Masonic emblem, 30s; Hall marked silver, ditto, 42s. Cheques crossed 'Union of London.' P.O. Orders, General Post Office."

ELECTION OF PROV. G. MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our Grand Master is elected yearly by the members of the G. Lodge: in private lodges the W.M. is elected yearly by the members of each lodge; and I want to know why Prov. G.M.'s are not elected yearly as well? This is one of those things Lord Dundreary would say, "No fella can understand." Can any brother tell me the reason why?

Yours, very fraternally,

AN OLD MASON.

[The Old Mason, begging his pardon, has not carefully read the Book of Constitutions. The Prov. Grand Masters are only emanations from, and representatives and nominees of the Grand Master. The Prov. Grand Lodge has no independent existence like the Grand Lodge, but is dependant on the life and good-will of the Prov. Grand Master.—Ed.]

AN IMPOSTOR.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think it right and proper to inform you, and through you the Craft in general, that a dark-skinned individual, about forty-five to fifty years of age, with slightly greyish hair and grey beard, and evidently having negro blood in him; dressed in cloth cap, darkish brown coat, and shoes with several slits with a knife in the uppers, and calling himself George Washington Stanley, is going about begging, under the guise of being a Mason. He says he hails from No. 11, St. John's, Mother Virginia, United States. He has got hold of something, and has managed to impose on several brethren here through the carelessness in examination. I happened to reside several years in the United States, and my opportunities gave me a facility in detecting such impostors, who are very numerous in America, and have to be closely guarded against, and in these very simple questions I detected him as an impostor. Other two begging Masons, probably of the same gang, closely followed him unsuccessfully. Brethren should be cautious in helping such vagrants.

Yours fraternally,
Perth, 11th July, 1875.

THE POPE AND THE FREEMASONS.

How true is the saying, "that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing." Never has this been better exemplified than in the absurd denunciation by the Pope of Freemasonry and Freemasons. In his last letter to Bishop Dupanloup, he states "that Freemasons are waging a war on all sides against the Catholic Church, and overturning civil and religious order." He admits, however, "that this sect, long secret, has now unmasked itself, and, its nefarious character being known, all honest men must turn from it in horror."

What a relief for the world at large to know that Masonry is at last unmasked! so, of course, the worst is known! Pray, what is known? or what do the Pope, Cardinals, Bishops, and Priests know of Masonry? Just nothing at all. It is that they know nothing that they suspect something; it is that they cannot obtain in confession the secrets of the Order that they are annoyed. No Mason will reveal them, but he will say they are open to all; perfectly free to every individual who wishes legitimately to know them; but he naturally prefers not to perjure himself by revealing them, and cui bono? A priest should be the last man in the world to endeavour to extract these secrets from a Mason, and even if known they could do no one any good outside Masonry.

Now the Pope says "the character of Masonry is nefarious," i.e., wicked in the extreme, abominable! detestable! and atrocious! Let us see. The principles of Freemasonry are brotherly love, relief, and truth, and in a society whose branches are spread over the four quarters of the earth, where millions range under its banners, surely the spread of such principles should merit a word of praise in lieu of unlimited censure. "Nefarious" would be a word better applied to those who condemn such a society; but as the Pope, believed by many to be infallible, says it is nefarious, we will enquire further.

Let the Pope and the outside world know that no lodge meeting opens or closes its proceedings without prayer. Is this abominable or nefarious? No religious or political discussion is permitted on any account within the lodge, but is positively forbidden. Is this detestable or nefarious? The main object of Freemasonry is charity; to provide comfortable homes for poor and aged Masons and their wives; to clothe and educate children of Masonic parents in a manner reflecting credit upon all connected therewith, and to alleviate distress wherever and whenever found to exist amongst Masons. Should the epithet nefarious be applied to such objects? and will not such words recoil on their authors?

Masonry is a grand and great brotherhood; its institutions are equally grand and noble, and, independently of never refusing aid to Masons of all nationalities in distress, no appeal of a national character in a national calamity is ever made but what finds a ready and willing response from Grand Lodge, on the ground that Masons must be more or less concerned, and that real charity blesses those who give as well as those who receive. We ask, therefore, whether doing these things should "strike honest men with horror," and be called "atrocious or nefarious?"

Would it not be more sensible for the Pope to consult some eminent Masons, or, better still, cause some leading Catholic priest to be made a Mason and then take his opinion—he knowing something about Masonry before condemning a society of which he, the Pope, is not a member, and about which he can absolutely know nothing? Let him do this before insulting so large and influential a body, ranking reigning monarchs as members of the Order, and open to all men, high and low, and of every creed believing in a Supreme Being.

The secrets disclosed would be no good to the outside world, while they serve a very useful purpose, and bind thousands together in a laudable undertaking, and no secret communication is binding on a Mason, "if contrary to the laws of God, or the ordinances of the realm," as they are at all times specially excepted; and Masons are also bound to observe and respect the laws of the land in which they reside. Such are the facts—let the Pope deny them if he can. Alas! for infallibility.

Surely in the nineteenth century it is high time that men should act for themselves, and not be led away with the epistolary nonsense of men ignorant of the rules and principles of a society they take upon themselves to condemn.

The Prince of Wales, England's future King, is now the Grand Master of the Order, and one-half of the nobility and gentry of England, including high dignitaries of the Church, are members thereof, and we ask if the character of Masonry be nefarious, and cause honest men to turn from it in horror, then what an awful state and condition must Masons be in. But how is it that, in spite of this state of things, the society is daily increasing and prospering, and that the Prince of Wales should have accepted the highest office, if "to overturn civil and religious order" is the object and ambition of Freemasonry? We pause for a reply, and throw back the baseless charges made, emphatically denying there is anything in Freemasonry contrary to the highest moral principles of truth and justice.

If Masonry is "unmasked," let us have the charges clearly made out against us, and the replies will utterly annihilate the parties bringing them, and redound to the credit of an institution which, dating from time immemorial, will go on increasing in power and usefulness until time shall be no more.—H.W.S.

FREEMASONRY IN BOMBAY.

The regular meeting of Lodge Concord, No. 757, E.C., was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Mazagon, Bombay, on Saturday, the 15th May, 1875. Present: Wor. Bros. W. C. Rowe, W.M.; G. R. Henderson, I.P.M.; B. Robinson, P.M. Bros. F. Burdett as S.W.; F. S. Llewellyn as J.W.; O. Tomlinson, Sec.; J. Spiers, S.D.; W. G. Davie, J.D.; J. E. Tyers, Org.; J. F. Grew, Steward; L. Thomas, I.G.; J. W. Seager, Tyler. Members: Wor. Bros. A. Edgington, J. May, J. Anderson, W. E. Craddock, W. W. Wilson, J. Weddle, C. Peters, &c. Visitors: Wor. Bros. W. H. Hussey, D.G.S.; W. H. Barrow, W. Fearn, C. Parker, J. W. Irvine, &c.

The lodge was opened with prayer at 6.40 p.m. The summons convening the meeting was read. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The minutes of the last meeting of the Permanent Committee were read and adopted.

The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Charles Peters was then examined as to his qualifications to be raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. All brethren below the rank of a M.M. were then requested to retire. Bro. Charles Peters was then entrusted and passed out.

The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree. Bro. Charles Peters was then duly admitted and raised to the high and sublime degree of a Master Mason. The Worshipful Master then delivered a lecture on the Third Tracing Board in a very able manner, and was warmly applauded. The working tools of a M.M. were then presented to Bro. C. Peters, and their uses explained by the W.M.

The lodge was then closed in the Third Degree and resumed in the Second Degree. The ballot was then taken for Bro. James Calderwood as a joining member, and announced clear.

Acknowledgments of receipts for amounts voted to the Masonic Charity Fund, the Hussey Testimonial Fund, and the O'Brien Fund were read.

A letter was read from Bro. R. Sowden asking the lodge to communicate with Lodge Excelsior No. 1042, E.C., Leeds, England, asking them to confer on him the Second and Third Degrees, the dues for which are duly paid to Lodge Concord. The Wor. Master, W. C. Rowe, then said he would have much pleasure in seeing the needful done for Bro. Sowden. The Worshipful Master then stated that he had relieved a brother who had been obliged to come to Bombay from an out-station to attend one of the hospitals and was in want of assistance, so he had exercised his authority and given the said brother twenty rupees, as he was empowered to do by the bye-laws of the lodge, and he hoped it would meet with the approbation of the brethren. This was approved by all present.

The Wor. Master, W. C. Rowe, then proposed, and Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson, P.M., seconded, Bro. William Fearn, of Lodge Hope No. 350, S.C., as a joining member. Bro. J. H. Burrett then proposed, and Bro. J. Jones seconded, Mr. J. Wilkinson as a candidate for initiation.

The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree and resumed in the First Degree. There being no further business before the lodge it was closed with solemn prayer at 8.30 p.m.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., APRIL 11.

We have no Masonic event of any magnitude to chronicle this month; indeed, in a country so sparsely settled as New Zealand such things, "like angels' visits, are few and far between;" still, there are a few items (collectively considered) of passing interest. To commence at home, we have the receipt by last mail of a charter for a second lodge in this city, under the E.C. It is I believe, as its name implies, to consist of members of the Civil Service, or mainly so. Bro. E. D. Butts, P.M., is the W.M. designate. The promoters have called a preliminary meeting respecting the opening, but as Bro. Butts is away as mail agent to San Francisco, I presume there will not be much done until his return.

The "reaper" has been busy among our Canterbury brethren of late. The funeral of Bro. A. A. Dobbs, P.M. of the Canterbury Lodge, 1048 E.C., took place on the 28th ult. There was a large attendance of brethren of his own lodge, as also from the St. Augustine, Christchurch, and Lodge Unanimity, Lyttleton. The R.W.D.D.G.M., Bro. Thompson, and several officers of Prov. Grand Lodge were present.

On the 5th inst. the Hon. J. C. Watts-Russell, District Grand Master of Canterbury, was interred in the same cemetery, by express desire of the family; there was no funeral cortege—a few personal friends of deceased met the hearse at the gate of the burial ground, and paid their last tribute of respect.

One other item from Canterbury of a more cheering aspect. A very handsome P.M.'s jewel is now on view at Bro. Proctor's establishment in Christchurch, for presentation by the members of Lodge Unanimity to Bro. W. Mills, collector of customs at the port of Lyttleton, previous to his departure from amongst them.

I observe the annual meeting of the District Grand Lodge of Westland, E.C., was held at the Masonic Hall, Revell-street, Hokitika, on the 23rd ult. Leave takings have been rather frequent among our Westland brethren lately, and at this meeting the resignations of two brethren were received, viz.: Bro. G. W. Harvey, District Judge, who has long and efficiently filled the office of D.D.G.M., and Bro. Batham, Registrar of the Supreme Court, who has ably and zealously discharged the duties of District Grand Secretary. Many were the expressions of regret at losing these brethren; the important office of D.D.G.M. was conferred on Bro. J. Bevan, than whom no more able Craftsman could have been found to fill the distinguished position. Another appointment I note with pleasure, viz.: Bro. Rev. G. J. N. Watkins as D.G. Chaplain. The rev. bro. is at present W.M. of the Greymouth Lodge, 1233 E.C. He is a warm-hearted and zealous Mason, and the highest encomiums are passed on his working. The other appointments we will hope are satisfactory. After the ceremony of installation was concluded, the brethren adjourned to host Hudson's, where a most enjoyable evening was spent.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF WESTLAND.

The annual meeting of the District Grand Lodge of Westland, Freemasonry, E.C., was held at the Masonic Hall, Revell-street, South, on Tuesday evening, March 23rd, the R.W.D.G.M., Bro. Lazar, in the chair. Resignations were received from Bro. G. W. Harvey, of the office of D.D.G.M., in consequence of his departure for Otago, and in accepting the same, there was an unanimous expression of regret at losing the services of so esteemed a brother, also from Bro. Batham, who had left for Auckland, and high encomiums were passed on the efficient manner in which he had filled the office of District Grand Secretary, and regret felt at his removal. The following officers were then appointed, most of whom were present and installed:—Bros. J. Bevan, Q.W.D.D.G.M.; J. R. Hudson, W.D.G.S.W.; F. Eisfelder, W.D.G.J.W.; J. Bramwell, W.D.G. Registrar; Rev. W. N. Watkins, D.G. Chaplain; J. Williams, D.G. Treasurer; W. D. Banks, D.G. Secretary; W. P. Crawford, D.G.S.D.; W. Ramsay, D.G.J.D.; Charles Hill, D.G.S. Works; J. Dixon, D.G.D.C.; D. Davidson, D.G.S.; J. Gosson, D.G.O.; M. Pollock, D.G.P.; G. Beuning, J. P. Hains, R. Ferguson, J. Douglas, D. G. Stewards, G. Epping, D.G. Tyler. After the ceremony was concluded the brethren adjourned to host Hudson's, where a recherche collation was partaken of, and a most enjoyable evening spent.

Obituary.

BRO. S. P. BRABNER.

Many will hear with regret of the death of Bro. Samuel P. Brabner, one of the Past Grand Officers of West Lancashire, and honorary solicitor to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, which took place on Wednesday week under the most painful circumstances. Our deceased brother practised as a solicitor in Liverpool, and resided at Litherland Park, Litherland, about six miles out of town, and his death has caused the most profound sensation in Masonic and other circles. A few weeks ago Bro. Brabner was in the garden attached to his house, when he was suddenly attacked by a fox terrier dog, which bit him severely in both hands, but more especially in the left, which was frightfully torn and lacerated. He was shortly afterwards attended by Dr. Evans, and the usual remedies, to prevent serious consequences, were resorted to, the wounds being cauterised and dressed. So satisfactorily did the healing process go on, that Bro. Brabner himself treated the matter of little moment, and appeared somewhat astonished at the many expressions of sympathy and anxiety which were uttered by professional and other friends. On the 29th ult. Bro. Brabner, who was an officer in one of the Volunteer artillery corps, took part in some brigade movements in honour of the Queen's birthday, and he then appeared to be in his usual health. Before reaching home, however, he became very unwell, and afterwards, when liquid was offered him, he was unable to swallow it, and displayed all the symptoms which generally distinguish the earliest stages of hydrophobia. Two medical men were called in, and everything was done which skill could suggest to counteract the fearful malady, but in vain, as Bro. Brabner gradually grew worse, and expired at nine o'clock on the evening of Wednesday week. At the inquest on Thursday week, the jury returned a verdict of "Died from hydrophobia." The deceased, who was 50 years old, was buried in Sefton Churchyard on Monday afternoon, and the officers and members of the 1st L.A.V., of which deceased was captain, arranged that the funeral should take place with military honours. A number of Masonic brethren also expressed their intention of being present.

THE REVISION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.—The New Testament Company of Revisers assembled yesterday in the Jerusalem Chamber for their fifty-first session. The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol presided. The other members present were the Archbishop of Dublin, the Prolocutor, the Master of the Temple, Canon Kennedy, Canon Lightfoot, Prebendary Humphry, Prebendary Scrivener, Professor Eadie, Professor Moulton, Professor Milligan, Professor Newth, Professor Palmer, Professor Roberts, Dr. Brown, and Mr. Hort. The company proceeded with the revision of the fourteenth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Health sweetens the pulses of life, renders existence happy, and imparts to the mind sound and sensible ideas; without health, riches or power are of little avail, for the capacity of enjoyment can never be perfect if pain or distress be present. This state of what we term "health," in its most perfect sense means a perfectly harmonious working, in accordance with nature's plan, of all the bodily functions, and when we consider how manifold and how complicated these functions are, it is not to be wondered at that deviations of one or other of them so often occur. These well-known and widely renowned remedies, z., Holloway's Pills and Ointment, are the best restorers of deranged health extant.—ADVT.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, June 25, 1875.

The Editor will be glad to receive notice from Secretaries of Craft Lodges, Royal Arch Chapters, Mark Lodges, Preceptories, Conclaves, &c., of any change in place or time of meeting.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

PROVINCIAL.

BURY.—LODGE OF RELIEF (No. 42).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 17th inst., at the Albion Hotel, Bury, when there was a good attendance. Among those present were Bros. Edmund Eccles, W.M.; Alfred Buckley, S.W.; Joseph Skerrett, J.W.; Thomas Carter, S.D.; Thos. Barker, J.D.; Samuel Mosley, I.G.; Edmund Simpkin, Treas.; J. Thorman, Tyler. Past Masters—Bros. Fred Anderton, P. Prov. G.S.B (E.L.); Harry Grundy, and J. W. Kenyon. Visitors—Bros. John Grime, P.M. 128; Henry Taylor, J.W. 286 (Bacup); Thomas Nuttall, 1012; Robert Hall, 1392; and T. Owen, (Manchester) Union of Colorado, 7, U.S. The lodge having been duly opened, an advance was made to the Second Degree for the purpose of passing Bros. J. Redfern (son of late Bro. J. S. Redfern, P.M. 42, and P. Prov. G.P., E.L.), and William Hewitson (reporter Bury Times) to the status of Fellow Craft. The interrogative preliminaries were satisfactorily accomplished, and the two Entered Apprentices were duly approved of and invested, and raised to Second Degree honours by Bro. Harry Grundy, I.P.M. The lodge was afterwards opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Andrew Hagerty (governor at Bury Union Workhouse) was passed to the sublime degree of Master Mason, by visiting Bro. John Grime, by whom the ceremony was performed with the masterliness of one thoroughly au fait in Masonic rites and ritual. The ceremonial talents of Bro. Grime were displayed to such advantage that they cannot fail to stir up to active emulation such brethren of the lodge as may have been resting on their oars in the matter of instructional aptitude. On the lodge being closed to the First Degree again, the Worshipful Master suggested the propriety of a subscription list being opened for the purpose of procuring contributions from the brethren of that and other lodges in the town, for the erection of a memorial stone over Bro. J. S. Redfern's grave at All Saints' Churchyard. Bro. Redfern, he said, had been connected with that lodge over forty years; he had been the W.M. for five years; for many a long year he had acted as their Installing Master, and never so much as a single present had been given him for his labours. Seeing that they had not had the pleasure of doing anything in that respect during his lifetime, he (the W.M.) thought it would be only a seemly and graceful act on their part to place a memorial stone over his mortal remains, thus, at any rate, testifying that they held his memory green. Bro. Fred Anderton said he was glad indeed that the W.M. had made this suggestion to the lodge. He, for one, deeply deplored the death of Bro. Redfern, by whom he was initiated and raised in Masonic mysteries, and whom for many years he had had the great pleasure of meeting, not only as a Mason, but as a man. He was sure every brother present deeply felt the very melancholy position in which they were placed that night, in seeing the pedestals of the lodge draped in black to commemorate Bro. Redfern's untimely end. But although he had been taken from that lodge, they were not without a fervent hope that he had been transferred to that Grand Lodge above where the Great Master of the Universe had unbroken reign. Those of them who were present a month ago—when he initiated Bro. Hewitson and his own son, and when, at the after-lodge repast, he expressed so warmly the delight it had given him to have lived to see his son enter the Masonic ranks—little recked that they should now be discussing the subject of a memorial stone for his grave. He (Bro. Anderton) begged to move that a subscription list be opened as suggested by the W.M., and that a letter of condolence be prepared and forwarded on behalf of the lodge to Bro. Redfern's sorrowing widow and children. Bro. J. W. Kenyon seconded the motion, and was unanimously passed. On the motion of Bro. Samuel Mosley (whose remarks on the great central principle of the brotherhood did credit to his heart as well as his head), it was unanimously resolved that a sum of £10 be given to the young widow of Bro. H—, and that Bros. Anderton and Kenyon investigate the case of the widow of Bro. B—, (P.M.), with a view of ascertaining the most suitable plan of dealing with the necessities of herself and children. Mr. Joseph Burrow, tailor and outfitter, was proposed by Bro. Anderton for initiation next month. The lodge was closed down at 9.30, and the brethren afterwards partook of supper together, the W.M. occupying the chair. Loyal and Craft toasts were afterwards given. "The Health of the Newly-raised Brother" was proposed by Bro. Simpkin, while that of the F.C. was toasted by Bro. Kenyon, at whose call the brethren also honoured in solemn silence a toast to the memory of the late Bro. Redfern.

BURY.—PRINCE EDWIN LODGE (No. 128).—The regular monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the house of Bro. E. Whitham, the Bridge Inn, on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst. There were present among others, Bros. Warwick Wood, W.M.; W. S. Barlow, S.W.; Jos. Senior, J.W.; Samuel Wood (for Bro. E. Robinson, S.D.); Thomas Ramsbottom, junr, J.D.; John Loftus, Chaplain; Joseph Wolstenholme, I.G.; Wright Greenhalgh, Tyler; Thomas Ramsbottom, sen., Sec.; Thomas Wood, Treas.; Past Masters Bros. Jonathan Davenport, John Grime, William Halstead, Charles Wood, John Clegg, Samuel Wood, John Holt, Thomas Wood, and others. Visitors: Bros. Samuel Mosley, I.G. 42; J. Hopkinson, 1392; Thomas Sedgwick, 42; Harry Woodcock, 1012; John Olive, 1392, and others. Mr. John Pilling and Mr. Thomas Tattersall, having obtained an affirmative ballot, were duly introduced to the initiating mysteries of Masonry by the W.M., than whom the district has no abler ceremonial expositor of Craft obligations. Mr. Samuel Wrigley, contractor, was proposed for initiation at next meeting. The lodge was in First Degree throughout, and closed down at about half-past nine o'clock.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—At the usual monthly meeting of this lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 17th inst., the Feast of Roses was celebrated in accordance with ancient usage, and with the customary success which attends the hospitable efforts of this old lodge. We are unable to discover the origin of the Feast of Roses—the oldest members of the lodge (which was founded in 1762) remember it as an old custom when they joined or were initiated, but know no more about it than your correspondent. It may have had some remote connection with the Rose Croix Degree, which was probably worked in the Prudence Preceptory of Knight Templars, H.R.D.M., K.D.S.H., founded by members of the British Union and Perfect Friendship Lodges, we believe, in 1810. In the old Templar Preceptories, the Rose Croix or Rose Crusis Degree was worked prior to the establishment of the Supreme Council 33° A., and a rite in this country in 1845 or 1846. At that time or soon after, perhaps in 1856, the control over these degrees was handed over to the Supreme Council; but all preceptories in existence prior to 1791, when Grand Conclave, or as it is now called Great Priory, was first constituted, have still the power of conferring these degrees, and, as in the case of the Baldwin Bristol (time immemorial), they still exercise it. Rose Croix Masons of course know all about the symbolism of the rose; to others we need only say that the flower is essentially a Masonic one, and the common but ancient phrase "under the rose," used when anything is told or done which is secret, shows the appositeness of the figure as connected with things Masonic. However, we are travelling far from what we intended—to report the British Union summer festival. There were present on this occasion Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; W. Boby, P.S.G.W.; S. Wright, acting S.W.; S. Schulen, P.P.G.D.C., acting J.W.; W. Spalding, P.M. Sec.; Emma Holmes, P.P.G. Reg., M.C.; P. Cornell, P.P.G.S.D.; C. Long, P.G.D.C., acting I.P.M.; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; J. E. Taylor, F.L.S., F.G.S. &c. &c., J. Casley, Booth, Fosdick, G. Elliston, and a large number of members of the lodge. Visiting brethren: W. Cobb, W.M., and T. J. Ralling, Secretary of the Angel Lodge, Colchester; Bros. J. H. Bevan, W.M., Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, Bury, 1008; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.P.G.C., W.M., and Bro. Rankin, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, 959; J. H. Staddon, P.P.S.G.D., S.W. (acting for the W.M. of the Perfect Friendship Lodge, who was unfortunately absent on account of domestic affection), and Dr. Mills, P. Prov. S.G.W., of the same lodge; Rev. J. J. Farnham, P.D.S.G.W. Bombay, of the Phoenix Lodge, Stowmarket; J. Jobson, S.W., of the St. Luke's Lodge, No. 225; G. G. Sampson, late a member of No. 114, &c. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of last lodge confirmed, Bros. Fraser and Shortridge were severally passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the lodge being opened in the Second Degree, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. Lodge being then resumed in the First Degree, Mr. Harry Ribbans, who had previously been ballotted for, was duly initiated into the mysteries of Masonry, Bro. Sanderson very ably performing the ceremony, and Bro. Schulen delivering the beautiful charge in an impressive manner. Bro. Dr. Wm. Elliston was unanimously accepted as a joining member. The Secretary read a letter he had received from Bro. the Rev. J. J. Farnham, as follows:—"Westhorpe Rectory, Stowmarket, 11th June, 1875. Dear Sir and Brother,—You will perceive by the enclosed that I am undertaking the work of restoring the beautiful church of this parish. In this work I shall require all the sympathy I can elicit, and all the help I can procure from every quarter. Knowing how ready our brother Masons are in every good work, and how nobly they have helped in the work of church restoration at Bristol and Gloucester, and in other places, it has occurred to me to invite their co-operation in my present work. What I would like would be that the whole body of the Masons of Suffolk should combine to do some definite part of the work, so that in all time it might be pointed out as their work. It is not for me to dictate as to what part of the work, but I would suggest one or more of the following:—1. A pulpit, prayer desk, and lectern. 2. The chancel furniture. 3. The fitting up of the baptistry, which is to be enclosed by a very handsome carved screen of fourteenth century work, to be removed from the east to the west end of the south aisle. 4. An organ. Personally I should prefer the pulpit, &c. Aided by our architect, I have designed a carved oak pulpit, the probable cost of which will be about £60, and it would be a great gratification to me if this could be presented by my brethren in the Craft. These old churches were, doubtless, built by our brethren in Masonry in olden times, and it is a fitting mark of respect to them that we, their successors in the present day, should help to rescue their work from ruin and decay. May I, therefore, invite the Suffolk Masons to consider the subject in their several lodges, chapters, &c., and to forward such contributions as they may see fit to give, with their opinion as to what part of the work it should be devoted to. The brethren at Stowmarket, at Bury, at Aldborough, and some of the Masonic bodies at Ipswich, have already expressed their readiness and anxiety to help, and Lord Waveney, the Provincial Grand Master, though he is not prepared to give his official sanction to the scheme, quite sympathises with it. Bro. S. H. Wright, P.M., and Secretary of the Phoenix Lodge, No. 516, Stowmarket, has consented to act as Secretary and Treasurer to the Masonic Auxiliary of the Westhorpe Church Restoration Fund. All Masonic subscriptions and communications should therefore be sent to him. I believe your lodge meets on Thursday next, the 17th inst., and I purpose then visiting you if you will receive me, about which I have no doubt. Then, if the brethren approve my proposals, I will furnish any brother whom they may approve with a collecting-book, and so leave the matter in their hands. With fraternal regards, I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully, J. J. FARNHAM, 201; P.M. 757, 1062; S.W. 516; P.Z. 757; P.M. Mark Lodge 90; Past Commander Mount Zion Encampment; Past District S.G.W. and Past Deputy Prov. G. Commander Bombay. To the W.M. British Union Lodge, No. 114." Bro. Farnham supplemented the letter by a few remarks on the subject contained therein, and spoke of the promises of support he had received from the brethren of the lodges he had visited. Lord Waveney, the P.G.M., had expressed his approval of the scheme, though he could not give it his official sanction. He had with him a printed circular about Westhorpe Church; and any brother might have one. The business before the meeting having been disposed of, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer, and the brethren repaired to the dining hall, where a banquet was provided by Bro. Geo. Spalding, which would have done credit to many a famous hostelry we could name; though we must admit the waiting was not what it should be. Upwards of thirty sat down, and the W.M. presided, and ample justice was done to the viands. The table was covered with roses; each brother was expected to wear one. Four large frames of these beautiful flowers, with Masonic devices upon them, were fastened upon the walls; the designs were perhaps not very clear, but the roses were lovely. Behind the cross table at the head of the room was a large stand of hothouse plants, and placed by them were the banners of the British Union, Perfect Friendship, and St. Luke's Lodges, the handsome sky-blue banner of the Prince of Wales' Lodge (of which by the way H.R.H. is an honorary member) standing behind the chair of the S.W. Even the great stone mantel-piece, with its Masonic emblems carved upon it, was covered with the rarest and most beautiful roses; and, as may be supposed, the coup d'œil, with the brethren in full Masonic Craft costume, the brilliant lights, the exquisite flowers, the coloured glass, the glittering jewels, was very effective, and a sight not likely to be forgotten by those who saw it for the first time. The brethren were chiefly indebted to Bros. Rev. J. J. Farnham, of Westhorpe Rectory, Rev. J. B. Tweed, Rector of Capel St. Mary, and Bros. Cornell and Boby for the flowers, and for the tasteful decoration of the banquetting room to the two latter zealous brethren, whose efforts were certainly very much appreciated and we trust thus rewarded. It was hoped that Bro. Monckton, and P. de Lande Long, President and Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes, and Bro. Dr. Barton, P.P.G.M., Western India, who are all members of the lodge, would have been present on the occasion, and much regret was expressed at their absence, which we believe was unavoidable. On the removal of the cloth, the usual toasts were given, the brethren responding with due loyalty to "The Queen and Craft," and Bro. Miller singing the "National Anthem" with due effect,—the brethren assisting in the chorus with a heartiness which would have staggered some of our Roman Catholics who think we are all Atheists and Republicans. In the course of the evening our musical brother also gave the famous "Jaunting Car;" Bro. J. E. Taylor sang "John Anderson, my Jo;" Bro. Emma Holmes gave Thackeray's funny ballad "The Three Sailors of Bristol City;" and Bro. Sanderson recited the clever piece yelet "The Pipe" in a very telling and clever manner. Had we not already exceeded the space at our disposal we should have liked to have taken some note of the speeches given on the occasion. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the P.G.M.," expressed a wish, which was echoed by the brethren, that he would come more amongst them. "The Health of the venerable D.P.G.M." was very cordially given and responded to, and Pro. Lockwood, in acknowledging the toast, spoke with much feeling as to his own shortcomings and the infirmities of age, which must preclude him in the future from taking that active part in the ceremonies, for the reform of which he had so long striven. He afterwards proposed the W.M., Bro. George, who pleasantly and modestly replied. To the toast of the evening—"The Visitors"—there were many to reply, Brother Sampson (the father of the British Union, as the W.M. styled him) responding for the Masons of the Past, Brother Sanderson, the Masons of the Present, and Brother Bevan, the Masons of the Future. Brother Ribbans, in responding to the toast of "The Initiate," remarked that he had read and heard much about Masonry, but the ceremony of that evening had far exceeded his expectations. As he understood Masonry, it preached universal charity, without regard to distinctions of race, clime, politics, or religion, and as such he must admire it. Brother Bobby also made one of those genial, pleasant little speeches for which he is famous. And the Secretary's toast, and the Entered Apprentices' song having been given, the Tyler's toast brought the evening to a close; and the brethren separated, after spending a most agreeable social hour.

IPSWICH.—St. Luke's Lodge (No. 225).—We paid a visit to this old lodge (now approaching its centenary) on the 2nd inst., by the kind invitation of the Acting Master, Bro. J. Turner, and have much pleasure in testifying to the prosperity and excellent working of the lodge. We fancy St. Luke's has a history, if only any Masonic brother could devote the time to write it. Perhaps, some day we may essay it, but for the present we can only say that it is amongst the most successful in point of numbers in the multitude of initiations, and in possessing several really earnest workers in the Royal Art, who seem to be at least heart and soul in Masonry. The lodge is at present under the ruling of Bro. W. J. Jobson, S.W., through the deeply lamented and sudden death of Bro. S. B. King, who, as our readers will remember, died in lodge immediately after being installed in the chair of King Solomon. By the way, when the S.W. rules the lodge, he should leave his chair, and sit in the E., not in, but below the W.M.'s chair, which should remain empty. He should do all the routine business, but should call on some P.M. to perform the ceremonies, unless he has himself passed the chair, in which case he could, of course, initiate, pass, and raise himself. On this occasion the W.M.'s chair was occupied by Bro. J. Turner, who performed all the ceremonies in a manner which did him great credit. He was ably supported by most of his officers, Bro. W. T. Westgate, P.P.G.D.C., as M.C., being, of course, noticeably prominent and giving the working tools in each degree with the accompanying explanation in a way all his own. The following were present:—Bros. Whitehead, P.M., as I.P.M.; A. Barber, Secretary; C. Hillyard, J.D.; Taylor, S.D.; C. Byford, Fiddaman, &c., &c. Visiting Bros. Revd. J. J. Farnham, P.P.S.G.W., Bombay, and Emma Holmes, P.P.G.D.C. The lodge having been opened in ancient form, the minutes having been confirmed, Bros. Mizen and Bell were examined, and obligated, and passed as F.C.'s, the lodge having been opened in that degree. Lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, and Mr. W. G. Cunliffe, builder, was initiated into the mysteries of Masonry, and the lodge was subsequently opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Parsons was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. As the meeting was not held till eight o'clock, it may easily be surmised that when the lodge was closed finally there was but scant time allowed for refreshment. We, ourselves, left long before that, but we would venture to suggest to our friends of the Mariners' Lodge as it is called, from the large numbers of masters of vessels who are initiated in it, that so long as they meet in the excellent lodge-room attached to the Coach and Horses Hotel, and so long as the Bruce Laws remain in force, the lodges should commence work earlier, or less work should be done. The St. Luke's Lodge is Life Governor of the three institutions, and well deserves the success which attends the efforts of its successive rulers.

MARYPORT.—LODGE PERSEVERANCE (No. 371).—The brethren of this lodge held the festival of St. John the Baptist, for the installation of Bro. the Rev. W. Beeby, W.M. elect, on Tuesday last. There was a large muster of members belonging to the Maryport Lodge, and deputations were also present from Lodges Sun, Square, and Compasses 119, Whitehaven; St. John's, 327; Wigton; Sun and Sector, 972, Workington; Skiddaw, 1002, Cockermouth, &c. The following is a complete list of those present:—James Gardiner, I.P.M.; W. Armstrong, P.M. Treas. and P.P.G.A.D.C.; J. R. Banks, Sec.; John Crerar, S.D.; W. Walker, I.G.; W. Martin, T.; J. Nicholson, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W.; Andrew Walter, P.M.; William Beeby, A.P.G.C.; Joseph Abbott, R. G. Harris, P. Martin, T. Smith, P.P.G.O.; W. Thompson, T. Cowen, J. H. Banks, G. M. Tickle, J. Hutchinson, T. Fulton, T. Carey, D. Bell, —Jenes, T. Wedgewood, T. Milburn, G. Goodall, B. Kendal, J. M. Gill, W. Skelton, J. W. Robinson, T. Mandle, M. Wilson, R. Faulder, J. Kendal, G. Brown, T. A. Melmore, J. Elliot (371, Maryport); J. Porter, P.M. 327, P.G.S.W.; J. Lemon, P.M. 327, and P.G. Treasurer; T. M'Mechan, W.M. 327; E. Atter, P.M. 119, P.G.P.; W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G. Secretary; Geo. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Barr, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.B.; William White, P.M. 119, and P.G.S.D.; F. W. Wicks, Chaplain, 119, and P.G.C.; William Alsop, S.W. 119, P.P.G.P.; E. Tyson, J.W. 119; J. Rothery, S.D. 119; P. Wedgewood, 962; J. Robinson, 177; W. Lamony, W.M. 1002; R. Robinson, P.M. 1002, and P.P.G.J.D.; W. H. Leuthwaite, P.M. 1002, and P.G.S.; R. Bailey, 1002; S. Thwaite, 1002; E. M. Rice, 1002; W. Potts, Tyler, 1002; A. Walters, P.M. 371. The Installing Master was Brother G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, Whitehaven, P.P.G.J.W., assisted by Brother W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G. Secretary. The Board of Installed Masters, in addition to the principals, was unusually strong, and was composed as follows:—E. Atter, W.M. 119, P.G.P.; J. Barr, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.B.; W. White, P.M. 119; J. Lemon, P.M. 327, P.G. Treasurer; J. Porter, P.M. 327, P.G.S.W. The beautiful ceremony of installation was never more efficiently performed by Brother Kenworthy during the eight or nine occasions he has performed the duty at Lodge of Perseverance, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed to him, and also to Brother Gibson, who ably assisted him, before the lodge was closed for their services on the occasion.

Bro. Smith, P.G.O., presided at the organ, and performed during the ceremony, in his usual masterly style, some beautiful selections, including marches from "Eli," by Sir Michael Costa. The newly-installed W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. H. Tickle, I.P.M.; J. R. Banks, S.W.; Crerar, J.W.; Joseph Nicholson, Treas.; I. Hutchinson, Sec.; T. Carey, S.D.; J. Harris, J.D.; J. Fulton, I.G.; J. Smith, Organist; T. H. Banks, Tyler. In the course of the proceedings, Bro. G. M. Tickle apologised for the unavoidable absence of his brother (Bro. W. H. Tickle, the Immediate Past Master, who some months ago left Maryport, having accepted a professional appointment in the south), during which time his position as W.M. of the lodge had been filled by Bro. Gardiner. Business being concluded, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren repaired to the Golden Lion Hotel, where, through the kindness of the newly-installed Master, a substantial repast awaited them. The chair was occupied by Bro. Beeby, W.M., supported right and left by Bros. Gibson, Kenworthy, Barr, White, Wicks, Porter, Atter, Gardiner, Armstrong, &c., the vice-chairs being occupied respectively by the newly-appointed Wardens, Bros. Banks, and Crerar. After ample justice had been done to the good things so creditably provided by the worthy host and hostess of the Lion (Bro. and Mrs. Tucker), the Chairman, in appropriate terms, proposed in succession "The Queen," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," which were duly honoured, the reference made by the Chairman to the able manner in which his Royal Highness discharged the duties devolving upon him on the occasion of his installation as Grand Master, and to the impressions which that ceremony had made upon him (the Chairman) as one who witnessed it, being warmly received. The Chairman next proposed "The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master of England, the Right Honourable the Earl of Carnarvon," also alluding to the zeal and devotion with which his lordship had discharged his duties on the same memorable occasion referred to in the previous toast, as well as to the fidelity and earnestness which had always marked his connexion with Masonry; the more so, if that were possible, since they were deserted by their late chief, the Marquis of Ripon. The toast was cordially received, as was also that of "The Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master of England, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," proposed by Brother Lemon. Brother Gibson, P.G.S., in a neat speech, proposed "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmorland, the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective." He remarked that, being P.G.S., he had special opportunity of observing the great interest which their Provincial Grand Master took in Freemasonry, and particularly in the progress of the Order in the province of Cumberland and Westmorland. A more earnest and devoted Mason there was not to be found in any province. The cordial manner in which his lordship had always met the brotherhood upon the floor of a Mason's lodge, showing no difference towards the humblest of them, notwithstanding his own high rank, proved him to be a true Mason, and, added to the able manner in which he had discharged his public duties as their Provincial Grand Master, had endeared him to the hearts of all. The toast was drunk with full Masonic honours. Bro. Crerar proposed "The Right Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmorland, Bro. Colonel Whitwell, M.P., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," which was duly honoured, and appropriately responded to by Bros. Porter, Lemon, and Wicks. Bro. Kenworthy proposed "The Worshipful Master and present Officers of 371," which was warmly received, and duly responded to by the Chairman, Bro. Banks, S.W.; Bro. Crerar, J.W., &c. Bro. Atter, in an effective speech, proposed "The Masonic Charities," which was duly honoured. Bro. Armstrong proposed "The Visiting Brethren," which was cordially drunk, and responded to by Bros. Atter, Gibson, Kenworthy, Tyson, and Alsop (119, Whitehaven), and Bro. Lamony (1002, Cockermouth). Bro. Gibson proposed "The Health of Bro. Nicholson," the oldest Mason in Maryport, and one who, years ago, when the Order was struggling against trials and difficulties of no ordinary kind, had manfully stood to his post, to which circumstance the Maryport Lodge owed much of its present prosperity. The toast was drunk with full Masonic honours. Bro. Nicholson, who was received with marked expressions of goodwill, in responding, stated, as an instance of the spread of Freemasonry in Cumberland, that thirty years ago the Lodge of Perseverance could not muster sufficient brethren to form a lodge, and as a consequence was dormant for some considerable time, while a Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, held about the same time, was only attended by seven members; whereas now there were eighteen lodges in the province of Cumberland and Westmorland, numbering altogether 1,000 members. The Chairman, in felicitous terms, proposed "The Immediate Past Master, Bro. W. H. Tickle, and the Past Masters of 371," which was warmly received, and duly acknowledged by the Past Masters present. The toast "All poor and distressed Masons," &c., having been drunk, the proceedings terminated, the brethren having enjoyed a very pleasant re-union. During the evening the proceedings were enlivened by the singing of several songs, Bro. Smith, P.P.G.O., ably accompanying on the pianoforte.

LIVERPOOL.—EVERTON LODGE (No. 823).—At the monthly meeting of this numerously supported lodge, held on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, Bro. Thomas Shaw, S.W., was unanimously elected the W.M. for the ensuing year by the votes of seventy-nine brethren who were present.

WALTHAM CROSS.—GRESHAM LODGE (869).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place at the "Four Swans" Hotel, Waltham Cross, on Saturday, the 12th inst. There was a full attendance of the Past Masters and brethren, presided over by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Joseph Copestick, Prov. G. Steward, Herts. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bros. John C. Wylie, John R. Dickie, and Walter E. Gompertz, jun., were passed to the Second Degree, the ceremony being very impressively performed by the W.M. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, Bro. W. E. Gompertz, P.M., P.P.G.P. Herts, acting as installing Master. The W.M. elect, Bro. Allan C. Wylie, was presented by the I.P.M. After the ancient charges were given and assented to, a board of installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Wylie was placed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, and saluted. The installing Master then gave the charges in a most impressive manner. The W.M. then proceeded to appoint his officers for the ensuing year: Bros. J. E. Grocott, S.W.; W. H. Etherington, J.W.; Rev. Charles E. Mayo, M.A., Chaplain; F. D. R. Copestick, P.P.G.S.B., P.M., Treas.; W. E. Gompertz, P.M., Sec.; E. G. Pottle, S.D.; T. C. Chapman, J.D.; Thos. Stephens, I.G.; T. Perry, D.C.; J. C. Wylie, Organist; G. C. Marchant and C. B. Cheese, Stewards; and Gilchrist, Tyler. The W.M. then in a feeling and impressive manner presented the I.P.M. with a handsome jewel, manufactured by Bro. Geo. Kenning, which was suitably acknowledged. The Secretary completed some routine business, and the lodge was closed in due form, the brethren retiring to a recherche banquet, ably presided over by the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to, and some capital songs enlivened a very enjoyable evening; the Tyler's toast being called at nine o'clock, when the brethren returned to town. Amongst the visitors we observed Bros. G. Bigley, Treas. Royal Standard, 1298; G. Allison, Royal Standard, 1298; W. Musto, P.M. 1349; A. Knox, P.M. Capper, 1076; Chas. Arkell, J.W., Lion and Lamb, 192; John Thos. Dalby, W.M. Peckham, 1475; Morrison, Faith, 141; Pond, 557; Windsor, Kent, 15; G. Cordwell, G. Reg. Middlesex; McDougall, P.M. Fidelity, 3; Carter, W.M. St. Michael's, 211, &c.

BURY.—PRINCE OF WALES LODGE (No. 1012).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Derby Hotel, on the evening of Thursday, the 3rd inst., Bro. Henry Heys, P.M., of Ramsbottom, in the chair. The brethren met under peculiarly solemn circumstances, a yachting accident off Fleetwood on the 20th ult. having deprived them at one stroke both of their W.M. and S.D., Bros. R. W. O'Neil and Richard Battersby. The depressing influence of this sad calamity on the brethren in lodge assembled will be easily understood. On the motion of Bro. Heys, seconded by Bro. William Handley, P.M., it was resolved that letters of condolence be written by Bro. H. Maiden, Secretary, P. Prov. G.S.B., on behalf of the lodge, to the bereaved families of late Bros. O'Neil and Battersby. It was not considered fitting to engage in any other business, and the lodge was at once closed. No tidings have yet come to hand respecting Bro. Battersby's body, and its recovery is now almost out of question, the probability being that it has been swept away into the Irish Channel.

WEST MALLING.—MALLING ABBEY LODGE (No. 1063).—This lodge held its installation meeting on the 16th inst., at the Bear Inn, West Malling. Bro. John Savage, P.G.S.D., who has installed Masters in the Malling Lodge on two previous occasions, performed the ceremony on this occasion. The lodge was opened shortly after two o'clock by Bro. John Hodgson, W.M., who shortly afterwards handed his emblem of power to Bro. Savage to conduct the necessary formalities. Bro. Savage having installed Bro. George Frederick Busbridge, S.W. and W.M. elect, into the W.M. chair before a Board of Installed Masters, fifteen in number, lodge was called off, and the best wishes of the Installed Masters and the heartiest congratulations were offered to the new W.M. On the resumption of labour the brethren were admitted, and the customary formula having been observed, the offices of the lodge were bestowed upon Bro. Frederick Spencer, who received the appointment of S.W.; Bro. Douglas Akers, J.W.; Bro. the Rev. J. H. Timins, Vicar of Malling, Chaplain; Bro. the Hon. Ralph Nevill, Treas.; Bro. W. Page, Prov. G.J.W., P.M. Sec.; Bro. E. B. Smith, S.D.; Bro. E. M. Owens, J.D.; Bro. F. C. May, I.G.; Bro. A. Joslen, Org.; Bro. Friend, D.C.; Bro. Fox, W.S.; and Bro. Pointer, Tyler. In investing Bro. Page with the Secretary's collar and jewel, the brethren cheering the act, the W.M. said—"That expression of feeling on the part of the lodge is only a shadow of what I feel myself in investing you with the collar of Secretary. I cannot forget that you were the first W.M. of the lodge, and that ever since then you have been one of its main supports. Consequently I feel great pleasure in appointing you as my Secretary." Bro. Savage, after the appointment and investiture of the officers, delivered the charges, and concluded the ceremony. The W.M., addressing the brethren, said that before he closed the lodge there was an important piece of labour to get through, but it was labour and refreshment combined. The labour he alluded to was recollecting and recognising the services of a past officer, who was no less a person than their immediate Past Master, Bro. Hodgson. It had been determined by a few of the brethren of the Malling Abbey Lodge that they should recognise his services by asking him to accept from them a slight token of their appreciation. As Master of the lodge, he had much pleasure in being the medium through which it was presented. It consisted of a P.M.'s jewel, and in fastening it on Bro. Hodgson's breast he felt great gratification. Bro. Hodgson had passed this, his year of office, very creditably, and deserved this little testimonial. It would not be right that his services should be unrewarded, and the brethren felt this so strongly that they begged his acceptance of a P.M. jewel. He (the W.M.) had one request to make of Bro. Hodgson, that whenever he saw the jewel, and whenever he wore it, he would remember that it conveyed the respect, esteem, and regard of his Malling Abbey brethren.

These expressions, although inadequately conveyed, were sincere. (Cheers.) Bro. Hodgson thanked the W.M. and brethren, and said he had been almost taken by surprise in being asked to accept this mark of approval, but he accepted it with real pleasure. He had had a very interesting year of office. The lodge had had a good deal of work. He hoped that that work would be continued by Bro. Busbridge, and that they would have successful years in the future, as they had had in the past. No effort on his part should be wanting to promote that success. Bro. Hodgson then proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. John Savage for coming down from London to instal the W.M. The performance of that ceremony had given the brethren great delight; it was always performed so admirably as almost to induce the brethren to become Installing Masters themselves. (Hear, hear, from Bro. Savage.) Bro. Walter Monckton seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously. Bro. Savage acknowledged the compliment paid him, but he did not need any vote of thanks. He knew the kind feeling the brethren entertained towards him, and he could say with perfect truth that he was happy to come again among the brethren of Kent. It was only occasionally now that he accepted these invitations. For some years past he had been obliged to curtail his visits in order not to be away from home. But he always felt peculiar pleasure in coming into Kent. He did not know any place he was so much attached to, partly he supposed from early associations derived from visiting Maidstone some years ago. Prior to that however he had imbibed considerable love for the province of Kent; he would not say why or when, because it would be taking up too much time, though they would be only pleasing reminiscences extending over very little short of thirty years. It was therefore with very great pleasure that two years ago he accepted an invitation to come and instal Bro. Wright, and the next year Bro. Hodgson. He had equal pleasure in installing Bro. Busbridge. It was no trouble, and did not need thanks. It had been only a labour of love. The kind countenances of the brethren were sufficient thanks, for they indicated that the brethren were pleased with what he had done. As the two former years his visit had been a very pleasant one, so this was another added to the number, another of the red-letter days which occurred in the year—only occasionally—but when they did occur were gratifying to him, and he was pleased to find, were gratifying to the brethren before him. Hearty good wishes from all the lodges represented at the meeting having been expressed, the W.M. said he felt them deeply, but which he could not see that he deserved. He would however endeavour to do so. He appreciated them none the less; and if on other occasions—and he trusted there might be many—he had the pleasure of meeting the brethren he prayed there might be the same good feeling; if altered at all, let it be enhanced and increased, which he thought was true Masonic feeling. Bro. Hodgson said he regretted that before he left the chair he had not had an opportunity of performing a very pleasing duty. It was one almost of a personal character; yet he felt it would be more gratifying to the brother towards whom it was to be performed, if he did it in open lodge. During the past year, he, as W.M., had had several initiations, and without the assistance of Bro. Alfred Spencer, Prov. G. Secretary, who was now present, he would never have been able to perform those ceremonies which belonged to the office of Master. Therefore he thought he ought not to allow those services to pass unrecognised. He regretted that Bro. Spencer was unable to be present at the opening of the lodge, because he (Bro. Hodgson) had intended to take that opportunity of recognising the services which had been of the greatest possible use to him during his year of office. He could assure the brethren that in Bro. Spencer he had found the greatest friend possible, because he had never gone to Bro. Spencer to ask him to perform any ceremony or do any duty for him without having met with a ready compliance with his request. He would present Bro. Spencer with a Past Master's jewel, which he had with him, and he begged that Bro. Spencer would accept it as a gift made to him publicly, in acknowledgment of the many services he had performed for the W.M. Bro. Hodgson then invested Bro. Alfred Spencer with a massive 18-carat gold Past Master's jewel of great value, and Bro. Spencer, in thanking Bro. Hodgson, said that there was an adage to the effect that joys that came unexpectedly were the more pleasant, and he was sure the pleasure he now experienced in receiving from the I.P.M. the jewel he had just placed on his breast surpassed any expression he was able to give to his feelings. But for the kind expressions which Bro. Hodgson had made use of in presenting the jewel he sincerely thanked him. He had always felt a deep interest in the Malling Abbey Lodge, it being his mother lodge, and he should always do what was in his power to advance its welfare. This concluded the business of the lodge, and while the banquet was being prepared the W.M. entertained all the brethren at his beautiful seat at West Malling. The following is a complete list of the brethren: G. F. Busbridge, W.M., John Hodgson, P.M., Walter Monckton, P.M., P.G.S.D., Alfred Spencer, Prov. G. Secretary, Wm. Page, P.M., Prov. G. J.W., Rev. Thomas Robinson, Vicar of Chart Sutton, Prov. G. S.W., Rev. J. H. Timins, Vicar of Malling, P.G. J.W., John Savage, P.G.D., Geo. Langridge, P.M., Tonbridge Wells, Frank Green, W.M., 1445; T. M. Riggs, Sheerness, P.M. 1089, Prov. G. Reg., R. G. Pike, Maidstone, 503, H. Massey (Freemason), R. Cloutt, John Swinfen, 503, F. Spencer, T. W. Festing, W. Jt. Aubyn, 281, F. J. C. May, B. Worton, R. Pointer, C. Carnell, A. Joslen, C. Fox, J. Lancaster Lucas, No. 101, S.P., Hon. Col. Eden, 460, Edwin B. Smith, E. M. Owens, M. A. Paddon, W. Hawtin, 1287, H. Garrod, P.M., 177, 749, G. L. Matthams, 276, W. B. Pawley, 1414, H. H. Sutton, 1414, S. B. Potter, 1414, Stamford Young, 1414, W. Whitehead, 1414, and W. Hilder, jun., 1414.

The brethren, in the course of an hour afterwards, returned to the Bear Inn, where an admirable banquet and excellent wines were ready for their enjoyment. When these had been done ample justice to, the toasts were given. The W.M., following the example of all W.M.'s, since the 28th of April, referred to the Installation of the Prince of Wales as a ceremony never to be forgotten, and carried out in a way which reflected the greatest credit on the brethren who undertook its management. "The Pro Grand Master, &c.," was connected with Bro. Savage, P.G.S.D., who responded, and of course corroborated the W.M.'s opinion of the Prince of Wales's Installation. After alluding to some of the details of that ceremony, he looked upon the Prince's position as the head of the Craft as of great importance. Though Masonry did not depend upon Royalty or nobility for its support, there were advantages connected with their joining it. Under the unfortunate circumstances—not unfortunate for Freemasons, but unfortunate for the late Grand Master—of the Marquis of Ripon's dropping the banner of the Order at the bidding of a power which exercised great sway over the conscience of its followers, it was cheering to the heart of Freemasons to see the future King of England grasp that banner and hold it aloft. He would not drop it at the bidding of any potentate. (Cheers.) In proposing "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Holmesdale," the W.M. remarked that, with all that nobleman's love for his province, he had still a little corner in his heart reserved for the Malling Abbey Lodge in particular. The toast of "The Deputy Prov. G.M., and the rest of the Prov. G. Officers," gave the W.M. the opportunity of drawing the attention of the brethren to the large number of provincial representatives present at that meeting to advance the cause of Freemasonry. The Rev. Thomas Robinson, Prov. G.S.W., and Bro. A. Spencer, Prov. G. Sec., replied. Bro. Hodgson, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M.," who, acknowledging the compliment, called upon his principal and assistant officers to lend him all the assistance they could in making his year a successful one. Having made certain promises that day, he was desirous of fulfilling them. In commencing his year of office, he felt he had much to encounter, and that all the assistance he could get from his brethren would be required. Still, there was a chord of sympathy which would inseparably connect them, and they would do that collectively what they might fail to do individually. Therefore he would ask all the brethren of the Malling Abbey Lodge to act as one in aiding their W.M. He felt that the officers he had that day appointed would strive to perform in the best manner the duties required of them. If they did, the lodge would work as a perfect machine. Bro. Tims proposed "The Health of Bro. Hodgson, I.P.M.," hoping that all the Masters of the lodge might do it as much credit as Bro. Hodgson had. Bro. Hodgson said he had had a very pleasant year of office, and a successful one too; and in retiring to the post of a P.M. he hoped he might continue to be of assistance to the lodge. It was through Bro. Page, Prov. G.J.W. and Secretary of the lodge, that he first took office as Director of Ceremonies, and Bro. Page told him, on pressing him to take that position, that there was not much for him to do, but that if he took it the chair was before him. He went on until he became Master, and when that event arrived he found all the brethren ready with their assistance. Bro. Page had helped him by giving him every conceivable advice. Bro. Spencer, Prov. G. Sec., had assisted him in performing the duties of his office; so that he had had a tolerably light year. Now that his year of office had expired he felt that he should have liked it to last a little longer. (Hear, hear.) They had had a good many initiations; five candidates proposed; three or four joining members; and an initiate was handed over by him (Bro. Hodgson) to his successor. He wished Bro. Busbridge a successful year. The W.M., in proposing "The Officers of the Lodge," said that had it not been for Bro. Page the Malling Abbey Lodge would not have gained the renown or the position in Masonry which now belonged to it. A brother of different calibre, who would have commenced the lodge in a different spirit, with a different heart, or less zeal, could not have brought the lodge to such a state of excellence. He hoped he might have many years' connection with the lodge, for any lodge with which Bro. Page was associated was sure of success. They had only to get his co-operation to insure their wellbeing. His knowledge of Freemasonry made him a sure and safe reference in cases of doubt and difficulty, and for himself he (the W.M.) had much to thank him for. Fortunately, Bro. Page had promised him his assistance. Bro. Page was the first W.M. of the lodge, and had occupied that office on more than one occasion, and the brethren of the lodge were pleased to find that his services in Freemasonry had been recognised in the province by his appointment to the high and distinguished office of Grand Junior Warden, having been appointed to other grand offices before. Bro. Page, in the course of his observations in reply, referred to his pressing forward different brethren for office, and said that whenever he had done so he felt he was advancing brethren who would promote the success of the Malling Abbey Lodge. He stated also that he was much pleased to serve the present W.M. as Secretary, but he was afraid that after this year the lodge must select another brother as Secretary. (Loud cries of "No, no.") "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Savage," for which Bro. Savage responded, and the remaining toasts were then given, and the brethren separated.

NEWTON ABBOT.—DEVON LODGE (No. 1138).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 15th inst., under the presidency of Bro. W. R. King, W.M., supported by Bros. H. G. Beachey, I.P.M.; F. D. Bewes, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; T. D. Michelmores, P.M.; J. Saunders, J.W.; R. L. Lloyd, Treas.; J. Oliver, Sec.; W. Harris, S.D.; E. Huxtable, J.D.; R. Crook, I.G.; F. J. Pratt, and C. Stevens, Stewards; and several other brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree in ancient form, the minutes of previous meeting read over and confirmed. Bro. Fitz Martin, a candidate for passing to the Second Degree, was examined, and being found proficient, retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Fitz Martin passed to the degree of Fellow Craftsman by Bro. P. D. Michelmores, P.M. The lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, and the Rev. George Townsend Warner, who was duly proposed and seconded at the last meeting as a candidate for initiation into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, was ballotted for, and unanimously elected. Another gentleman was duly proposed as a candidate for initiation into the Order, and some minor business concluded the meeting, which was closed in due and ancient form.

WARRINGTON.—GILBERT GREENALL LODGE (No. 1250).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday last. The following P.M.'s were present, viz: Bros. Dr. Bowes, Pollitt, Messop, Richardson, Brierley, Hawkins, Finney, Woods, and Edelsten. The W.M. (Bro. Brierley) took the chair at 2.15 o'clock, and the first business was to raise Bro. Alfred Clare to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., which was done in a very efficient manner by the W.M. The next business on the programme was to install Bro. Richardson into the chair of K.S., to which office he had been duly elected at the last regular meeting of the lodge. This duty was assigned to our excellent Bro. Pollitt, P.M., who performed the whole of the ceremony in a masterly manner; and at its close the lodge did not forget to recognise his ability by tendering to him a cordial vote of thanks. After this event—the most important on the programme—the lodge proceeded with its other business. Bro. Treasurer read the annual balance, sheet from which it appeared there was a balance of about £48 to the good. Bro. D.W. Finney, P.M., who has acted as Hon. Secretary of the lodge from its commencement, being about to retire from the office, a most cordial and unanimous vote of thanks for his services was passed on the motion of Bro. Arthur Potter, seconded by the W. Master. Bro. Finney returned thanks, and intimated that although he was retiring from the office of Secretary, yet he should continue to take the warmest interest in all the affairs of the Gilbert Greenall Lodge. The brethren afterwards dined together at the Patten Arms Hotel, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, after which they separated in perfect harmony.

LIVERPOOL.—NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 1264).—The annual installation meeting of this highly-prosperous and most popular lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope Street, on Monday evening, the 7th inst., when and where there was the largest gathering of the brotherhood seen in connection with a private lodge for a long time. There appeared about 120 names on the Tyler's book, and these represented a large number of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, officers, &c., of other lodges. The proceedings commenced about four o'clock, when Bro. J. S. Dixon, W.M., opened the lodge in due and solemn form, supported by the following officers:—Bros. P. B. Gee, P.M. D.C.; A. Davies, P.M.; H. Williams, P.M.; J. Taylor, P.M.; T. Leighton, S.W.; W. Roberts, J.W.; J. Healing, P.M., Treasurer; J. Griffiths, Sec.; A. Cotter, S.D.; W. Royle, J.D.; J. C. Fish, S.; A. C. Wylie, S.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; J. Mann, B. Jenkins, P. West, W. H. Dawson, W. Jones, J. Molyneux, W. Lawson, J. P. Gamble, J. Hughes, A. Chalmers, C. S. Daniels, E. R. Jones, G. W. Irwin, J. Busher, W. C. Webb, C. Fothergill, J. W. Burgess, J. Alexander, J. Mitchell, J. Kelly, T. G. Wilkin, R. Brandreth, T. Walker, J. Williams, W. Donohoe, E. Ellison, R. Fanell, J. G. Parker, G. Turner, J. Berry, T. Grant, J. Grindell, W. C. Dunlevy, J. Wright, J. Cattrell, R. Wild, R. S. Cogle, K. Hood, C. H. Jones, W. Fish, T. Johnson, A. Campbell, O. Parry, J. Beattie, A. Fletcher, D. A. Mackenzie, J. A. Jones, J. Parry, W. Hill, T. Walton, W. Barr, J. Ashworth, W. Peter, T. P. Draper, G. Temple, and T. Ryley. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Holland, P.M. 823, G. G. Stophord Taylor, W.M. 786; T. Sheppard, P.M. 594; W. Doyle, P.P.J.G.D., P.M. 667; J. E. Jackson, S.W. 667; J. Davison, P.M. 724; J. Hayes, W.M. 249; T. Evans, 1356; F. Cooper, 249; T. Dunbar, 36 (S.C.); T. J. Mossman, 1325; J. W. Johnson, 1356; C. Costegan, I.G. 1356; W. G. Veale, Org. 1356; H. Pearson, P.M. 249; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; S. J. Waring, 1302; J. Cave, 210; T. Clark, P.M., 673; J. Neill, 1356; J. Wood, Treasurer, 1094; W. Thom, 1086; A. Holforth, 203; J. Archdeacon, 667; G. W. Webster, 667; T. M. Creak, 667; T. Daniels, 594; T. Ockleshaw, W.M., 667; J. J. Rose, P.M. 249; P. W. Oglesby, 823; W. Jones, P.M. 220; W. M. 1299; S. Whiting, 1086; J. Hosie, 408 (S.C.); T. Gray, 1276; C. Leighton, W.M. 1325; R. Brown, 1325; and H. W. Nicholas, 249. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and properly confirmed, the chair was taken by Bro. Joseph Healing, P.M., who proceeded to instal Bro. Peter Berriman-Gee, P.M., as the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. This is the second time Bro. Gee has filled the distinguished position of W.M. of the Neptune Lodge, and his re-election to that office is not only an evidence of the complete trust reposed in him by his brethren, but is also a well earned recognition of the valuable Masonic work he has done in his own and other lodges. The following brethren were subsequently invested as officers:—Bros. J. S. Dixon, I.P.M.; W. Roberts, S.W.; A. Cotter, J.W.; J. Healing, P.M. Treasurer (re-elected); A. C. Wylie, Sec.; W. Royle, S.D.; J. Korn, J.D.; J. C. Fish, I.G.; W. C. Webb, J. P. Gamble, and J. Cattrell, Stewards; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. After two candidates had been initiated into the Order by the W.M. in a very able manner, relief was granted to a deserving widow. It was agreed to have the usual picnic, and it was left with the W.M. to arrange and report at the next meeting. Before the lodge was closed Bro. Gee, W.M., presented a very handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. J. S. Dixon, I.P.M., as a token of the very sincere regard felt by the brethren for him "as a man and a Mason." The brethren subsequently adjourned to banquet, and during the evening the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Dixon, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." in a very cordial manner, and the latter in reply thanked the brethren for the great honour they had conferred upon him in again electing him to the chair. He felt and realised the responsibilities of his office, but he could assure them that no effort would be spared to perform its duties to their satisfaction. Other speeches followed, and the pleasures of the social board were greatly enhanced by the efforts of Bros. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; C. H. Jones, and others.

GREENWICH.—STAR LODGE (No. 1275).—At the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on Friday, June, 4th, the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held. In consequence of the death of the W.M., Bro. G. Pym, Bro. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer, presided over the lodge as W.M., and there were present—Bros. J. J. Limebeer, S.W.; H. J. Green, J.W.; R. W. Williams, S.D.; W. B. Woodman, D.C.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M.; Sec.; C. J. Hogg, P.G.S., P.M.; H. Keeble, P.M.; W. Aught, P.G.P.; P.M.; and forty others. The lodge list of visitors included Bros. George Kenning, P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M. 192, &c.; Smith, 1326; and others. The work was raising Bros. E. H. Band and J. T. C. Brooks, and passing Bros. Lindsey and W. Carter, 1309, to the Second. The elections were unanimous in favour of Bros. J. J. Limebeer, S.W., for W.M.; and J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., being re-elected Treasurer; J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler Middlesex, re-elected Tyler. The Audit Committee was appointed. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. The usual excellent banquet was served.

LIVERPOOL.—STANLEY LODGE (No. 1325).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, Liverpool, where there was a large gathering of members and visitors. Bro. Crosby Leighton, W.M., opened the proceedings in due form, supported by Bros. T. Leighton, P.M.; H. Ashmore, S.W.; F. Knight, J.W.; James W. Burgess, S.D.; G. Smith, J. D.; J. W. Clunside, I.G.; P. Larsen, Tyler; T. H. Bradshaw, S. Hill, S. Gordon, A. Samuells, W. Budge, G. D. Gilbert, E. Sykes, J. M. Cooper, C. Heden, J. Jones, C. Schmidt, and R. Buckingham. The visitors present were Bros. H. P. Price, S.W. 249; J. Williams, 249; W. J. Atkinson, 1505; J. Houlding, Sec., 823; P. B. Forshaw, W.M. 1403; W. Hiles, 1299; J. K. Callow, P.M. 673; T. Lloyd, 1356; J. Holland, P.M. 823; E. Griffiths, 1483; J. W. Turley, P.G.J.D.W.L., P.M. 1035; J. Hayes, W.M. 249; J. Hughes, 1264; W. P. Corlett, 249; Rev. Philip Hains, W.M. 204; H. Nelson, W.M. 1505, P.M. 673; J. Goodman, S.W. 1403; T. Shaw, S.W. 823; D. R. Davies, 1264; D. Callow, 823; W. Archer, W.M. 1086; W. T. Worthington, 1356; R. H. Webster, 823; J. Chambers, 249; W. Cottrell, W.M. 823; J. Skeef, P.G.O., P.M. 216; W. G. Veale, Org. 249; J. Vaughan, J.W. 86; H. Vaughan, J.D. 86; J. Healing, P.M., Treas. 264; W. Clements, 675; and W. Bolton, W.M. 823. After the confirmation of the minutes, the chair was taken by Bro. T. Ashmore, P.M. 823, who installed Bro. H. Ashmore as the W.M. of the Stanley Lodge for the year, who invested the following as his officers:—Bros. Crosby Leighton, I.P.M. and D.C.; F. Knight, S.W.; James W. Burgess, J.W.; T. Leighton, P.M. Treas.; C. Heden, Sec.; G. D. Davis, S.D.; T. H. Bradshaw, J.D.; Gilbert, I.G.; Anderson, S.; and P. Larsen, Tyler. Messrs. John Blackburn, Robert Upton, William Macnally, and John Twiss were subsequently initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order in a remarkably effective manner. Business being finished, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, and during the evening a handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Crosby Leighton, I.P.M., by the W.M., in the name of the members of the lodge, as a token of sincere regard and esteem—a presentation which was all the more valuable as this was the first jewel ever presented by the lodge. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed during the evening, and several pleasant hours were spent, with song, sentiment, and pleasant fraternal intercourse.

LIVERPOOL.—THE HAMER LODGE (No. 1393).—At the close of the last meeting of this lodge, a very cordial vote of thanks was proposed to the retiring W.M., Bro. R. H. Evans, for the very able and courteous manner in which he had presided over the lodge during the past year. Bro. Jones, I.P.M., in proposing the vote, spoke in high terms of eulogy of the very valuable services which had been rendered to the lodge by Bro. Evans, and the sentiment was very heartily endorsed by all present. Bro. Jackson, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year; Bro. Chas. Tyrer, was again elected Treasurer; and Bros. Leeson, and Thos. Brown were elected auditors for the ensuing year. The installation of Bro. Jackson will take place on the 24th inst., on which occasion Bro. Jones, P.M., has given notice that he will propose a resolution to the effect that the sum of £10 be voted out of the funds of the lodge, for the purpose of presenting Bro. Evans with a testimonial, as a mark of the high esteem in which Bro. Evans is held by the whole of the brethren, and of his services as W.M. Not only was the announcement of this notice received with much approval by the lodge, but we understand that Bro. McCarthy, J.W., at the request of numerous brethren, kindly took charge of a separate private subscription list, with the view to a considerable extension of the testimonial. A large amount was at once subscribed, and we have no doubt the presentation will be of a very gratifying character to Bro. Evans, who throughout his year of office has certainly done all that it was possible of a W.M. to do to maintain the very high character which the Hamer Lodge has attained.

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—The usual monthly meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Saturday, the 5th; the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. H. Smith, at ten minutes past four. The minutes of last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was then taken for Mr. H. Jas. Oldham, and proved favourable. Mr. Thos. Brayshaw, who was approved at previous meeting, was regularly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M. In the absence of the S.W., Bro. Tyers, P.M., occupied the S.W.'s chair. The charge was delivered by Bro. Kent, J.W., in his usual efficient manner. The motion by Bro. J. W. Turner, I.P.M., for raising the subscription and initiation fee, will be taken into consideration at next regular meeting; and if passed will be a great benefit to the lodge financially. Business was concluded at half-past seven, when the brethren sat down to an excellent supper, provided by Bro. Potts, after which the usual toasts were drunk, and the brethren separated soon after nine o'clock. Bro. Dottie gave several recitations during the evening, which were highly appreciated by the brethren.

HAMPTON COURT.—ERA LODGE (No. 1423).—The regular meeting of this well established and prosperous lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. W. Baldwin, W.M.; E. H. Thielay, S.W.; J. T. Moss, P.G. Reg. Midx.; P.P.G.S.D. Midx., P.M., as J.W.; T. J. Sabine, P.G.S.D. Midx., P.M. Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Midx., P.M. Sec.; S. Wolff, S.D.; E. W. Devereux, J.D.; B. Wright, as I.G.; W. A. Simmons, W.S., and many others, besides a goodly number of visitors. The only work done was initiating Mr. Harvey into the privileges and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The three new platforms and three chairs, supplied by Bro. G. Kenning, Little Britain, were greatly admired and universally approved of. They were used for the first time at this meeting, having only been lately ordered and just supplied. The chairs are beautiful specimens of the upholsterers' art, and shew what can be done to turn out such splendid articles of useful furniture. They are both ornamental and useful. Some gentlemen were proposed for initiation. Bro. Wm. Hammond, P.G. Steward, Midx., P.M. 201, W.M. 1326, W.M. 1512, was unanimously elected an honorary member of this lodge. The lodge was closed. The next regular meeting will be held on Saturday, August 14th, at half past three o'clock p.m. The usual banquet followed. A few hours having been spent in social intercourse, the members returned to town.

IPSWICH.—ROYAL SUSSEX CHAPTER.—The quarterly convocation of this chapter was held on Wednesday the 2nd inst., when there were present Comps. P. Cornell, M.E.Z.; N. Tracy, H.; Rev. J. J. Farnham, Dr. Mills, P.Z.; J. Pitcher, P.Z. Visiting Bro. Emma Holmes, M.E.Z. elect, St. Luke's Chapter, &c. There being no candidates for exaltation the business of the evening was soon disposed of. Comp. Tracy gave the oration from the Second Chair, after which the chapter was closed in ancient form, and the companions adjourned to an elegant supper in the banquetting room, provided by the worthy chef, Comp. G. Spalding, who catered in his usual excellent style. On the removal of the cloth the M.E.Z. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts from the chair, remarking with satisfaction on the manifest interest the Prince of Wales had already shewn in Royal Arch Masonry. In proposing the toast of "The Visitors," Comp. Cornell said it gave him peculiar pleasure to couple with it the name of Comp. Emma Holmes, who he was glad to hear that night was to be installed in the chair as M.E.Z. of the St. Luke's Chapter at the next regular convocation, at which meeting he should make it his duty to attend to do honour to the occasion. Comp. Holmes, in responding, said that he trusted all the brethren would do him the honour of being present at the St. Luke's Chapter, which met on the 23rd inst. Comp. the Rev. J. J. Farnham, P.P.S.G.W., Bombay, and Comp. Dr. Mill, P.Z., had kindly promised to assist in the ceremonies, and he anticipated a successful meeting. A very agreeable hour or two having been passed, the brethren separated, evidently loth to leave the festive board. The Rev. J. J. Farnham introduced the subject of the restoration of the Parish Church of West-horpe, Suffolk, of which he is "locum tenens" (a good work in which he is anxious the Masons of Suffolk should assist him), and was assured of the sympathy and support of the companions present. The Masons of Suffolk have not done much in the way of church restoration, and an opportunity is now afforded them of helping a work which will redound to their honour.

JERSEY.—LA CESARER CHAPTER (No. 590).—The anniversary convocation of this chapter took place on Thursday evening, June 10th, at the Masonic Temple, to install the Principals elect and invest the officers. There was a full chapter both of members and visitors. The chapter was opened by Comps. J. Oatley, Z.; Geo. J. Renouf, H.; and P. W. Binet, J. The other officers present were:—A. Schmitt, P.Z., Prov. G.S.E., E.; J. Durell, P.Z., Treas.; Ed. Martel, J. 491, N.; Jos. O'Flaherty, P.S.; Wm. H. Chapman, D.C.; A. Viel, P.Z., &c., and the following visiting companions:—Wm. Adams, P.Z. 244; P. W. Benham, P.Z. 491; R. Barrow, Z. 491; Dr. T. J. Aubin, P.S. 491. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. A convocation of Installed First Principals was formed, under the direction of Comps. Wm. Adams, and A. Schmitt, who then installed Comps. Geo. J. Renouf, as M.E.Z.; P. W. Binet, as H.; and Jos. O'Flaherty, as J. On the re-admission of the companions, the following were invested by the S.E. as officers for the ensuing year:—Ed. Martel, P.S.; W. H. Chapman, N.; J. Durell, Treas.; H. Du Jardin, Jan. The S.E. presented the annual report of the proceedings of the audit committee, showing a satisfactory position of the chapter, without any liabilities to contend with. The S.E. with feeling and deep satisfaction expatiated on the Masonic worth of Comp. J. Oatley, I.P.Z., and offered a proposition, viz.—That a vote of cordial, and well deserved thanks be recorded in the minutes to Comp. J. Oatley, in recognition of his exceedingly valuable, faithful and ardent services he has rendered to the chapter during a long period of years, and that the same be inscribed on vellum for his acceptance. The motion was seconded by Comp. A. Viel, and unanimously carried. A cordial vote of thanks was also passed to Comp. Adams for his kind services in the ceremony of installation. Two candidates for exaltation were proposed, and the chapter closed in due form. The companions then adjourned to supper, when the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to. However, one toast proposed in sympathetic terms by the founder of the chapter, deserves to be specially particularised, viz.—"The Honorary Members of the Chapter Comps. Wm. J. Hughan, (Truro), and Dr. H. Hopkins, (Bath)." The Janitor's toast followed. The companions separated before 10 o'clock, after having spent a very pleasant and happy evening.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27) held its regular meeting in the Masonic Hall, No. 213, Buchanan street, on the 17th; the attendance of the members was very good, and visiting brethren were numerous. The business of the evening was limited to initiation, raising, and affiliation. The Secretary was unable to be present on account of private business, and the minutes of the previous meeting were left over till next month. The R.W.M., Bro. D. Butler, took the chair, and proceeded to open the lodge, Bros. Dr. McInnes, S.W., G. McCombe, J.W. Among the brethren present we observed Bros. Bain, P.M. of No. 103; King, P.M. (St. Mungo); James Duthie, Z., Chap. 67; Wilson (Chaplain), W. B. Paterson, Albin, D. of Music, &c. Applications were laid before the lodge for the admittance into Freemasonry of Messrs. Dugald Morrison, proposed by Bro. J. Taylor, seconded by Bro. A. Nevey, and Daniel Patrick, proposed by Bro. Taylor, seconded by Bro. G. McCombe. These gentlemen being approved of were initiated into the First Degree, Bro. Bain, P.M., No. 103, officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Second and raised to the Third Degree, when proposals for affiliation into St. Mungo Lodge, of Bros. James McGibbon, St. James' Old Monkland, No. 177; Hardie, O.G., St. Mark's, No. 102; Anderson, of Royal Arch Lodge, Rutherglen, No. 116. The proposals finding favour with the members of the lodge present, they were received members of the St. Mungo, in the usual manner, Bro. Bain again officiating. Bros. Robert Scott, Wm. Syme, and John Stevenson Muir, all members of St. Mungo Lodge, were then raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bro. Bain performing the ceremony, which he did in his usual earnest and clear style. This closed the business of the evening, when the R.W.M. thanked Bro. Bain for the kindness he had shown in coming among them to assist in their work. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 19th inst., at four o'clock, for the purpose of receiving into Masonry Mr. Peter Johnston, who was very anxious to become a member of this lodge before he took his departure from Scotland, for a time. All having been found satisfactory as to his character by the brethren, the lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. J. W. Burns, and his Wardens. Mr. Johnston was proposed by Bro. Wm. Wilson, J.W., and seconded by Bro. McLauchlan, I.G. The three degrees were given, but the work was nicely divided between Bro. the R.W.M., Bro. Miller, P.M., and Bro. Wilson, J.W. The meeting was good for an emergency, and the degrees well given by the above worthy and respected brothers, after which the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—A meeting of this lodge was held prompt at eight o'clock, within their hall, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on Monday, the 14th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, filled the chair, and was ably supported by his Wardens and the other officers. There was a good attendance for the season of the year. The Secretary, Bro. J. Smith, read the minutes of the previous regular meeting, and several emergencies, all of which were approved of and confirmed. Applications for affiliation were laid before the lodge from Bros. John Leckie, of Lodge St. John's, Kilwinning, Kilmarnock, No. 22; and Neil N. Currie, of Lodge Shakespeare, No. 1018, E.C., Bradford. They were unanimously approved of and admitted members of the lodge, Bro. Mitchell, R.W.M., gracefully performing the ceremony. A very pleasant subject was then brought before the lodge by the R.W.M., viz.: The desirability of paying off the bond of £300, upon their property, where the lodge is situated. At present they are paying five per cent. interest on this £300. A number of the original trustees, in whose name the property had been entered, having died, this, in the opinion of the law officer of the lodge, presented a favourable opportunity of adding some of the younger members of the lodge to the list of trustees, and to carry out the proposal of Bro. Paterson, that the £300 debt should be taken up by the members of the lodge in £1 shares, bearing interest at five per cent., or such other sum as could be arranged for, which would result in the members of the lodge themselves being the only creditors. They would thus have the same security as the original bondholders, besides being part proprietors of the property. The state of lodge funds at present would not permit of them paying off the debt, but this plan would bring the whole debt among themselves, until the funds of the lodge would enable them to pay the whole debt. The scheme was very favourably received by the members, and the R.W.M. requested them to think carefully over the matter till the next meeting, when the full details would be laid before them. This brought the business of the meeting to an end, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SCOTIA (No. 178).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the 9th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The attendance was remarkably good. The following office-bearers took their respective places, and the lodge was opened:—Bros. Joseph Singleton, R.W.M.; Robt. Gardner, S.W.; Peter Hepburn, J.W.; Geo. McLaren, D.M.; Wm. Figgins, Chaplain; John Matheson, P.M.; Wm. King, Treas.; S. Scott, Sec.; and others. The Secretary was called to read the minutes of the last meeting; which being found correct and satisfactory, were confirmed. An application was presented from Wm. Stewart Gilkinson, praying for initiation into Freemasonry. He was proposed by Bro. D. McFarlane, and seconded by Bro. J. Singleton, R.W.M. The result of the ballot proved the brethren to be unanimously in favour of his admittance. He was prepared, and received the E.A. Degree, Bro. J. Matheson officiating in his usual clear and impressive way, when the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. John Brown was passed, the R.W.M. officiating. A sum of money being granted to a brother in distress, brought the working business to a close, when the lodge was called to harmony for a time, the R.W.M. presiding. After a little pleasant enjoyment, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, situated at 12, Trongate, on the 14th inst. There was a very large attendance indeed of members and visiting brethren. Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., took the chair, supported by his Wardens, Bros. J. Garth and Jas. Horn, and opened the lodge. Among the brethren present were the following: Bros. J. Martin, D.M.; Jas. Crawford, jun., Sec.; and Jas. Smart, Treas.; Bain, P.M. of No. 103; Geo. McLeod, P.M. of No. 128; D. Butler, R.W.M., No. 27; Dr. McInnes S.W., No. 27; J. Singleton, R.W.M., No. 1178; &c., &c. The R.W.M., requested Bro. John Rae to take a seat on the dais—Bro. Rae, is one of the oldest members of the lodge, and his presence there always meets a warm reception. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, when the following gentlemen having been found worthy, received the first degree in Masonry, from Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., in his usual able style, viz., Archd. Munro, John Lyall, Thos. Higgins, and Andrew White. Bro. Robt. Scott, of Lodge 27, was passed to the F.C. Degree on behalf of Bro. D. Butler, R.W.M., of St. Mungo Lodge, No. 27, when the lodge was raised to the M.M. degree, Bros. Morgan, McFarlane, and Paterson, receiving the Sublime Degree from Bro. Bain, P.M., of Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103, who went minutely into the details of the ceremony with great care and impressiveness. There being no further business, the lodge was duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. GEORGE (No. 333).—A meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on the 9th inst. The attendance of members was large, and the meeting was augmented by a number of visiting brethren. Among others we observed the following:—Bros. Alexander Thomson, R.W.M.; James Forsyth, S.W.; Robert Anderson, J.W.; James Findlay, S.M.; John Winton, P.M.; Robert Adam, P.M.; Thomas Stewart, P.M.; J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. Lodge Union (No. 332), &c., &c. The lodge being opened and the minutes of the last regular meeting read and confirmed, the minutes of three special meetings, held since the regular meeting, were read. From these it appeared that there was a good attendance of members at all, and the object of the meeting was to work up the business standing before the lodge (which from the minutes appeared to be well done). In the summer months the number of regular meetings are very few. Applications for initiation from the following gentlemen were read, viz., Messrs. Wm. McLeish, proposed and seconded by Bros. Archibald Taylor and Alexander Thomson; John Terman, proposed and seconded by Bros. J. Leitch and J. Findlay; Robert Mitchell, proposed and seconded by Bros. Alexander Thomson and Robert Fairbairn. The ballot being found clear, showed that the characters of the gentlemen aspiring to the honour were worthy of it. They were then prepared and received the E. A. Degree from Bro. James Findlay, S.M., in a manner which satisfied the members of the lodge that their choice of Bro. Findlay as S.M. was a fortunate one. The R.W.M. said he had been requested by Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. of Lodge Union (No. 332), to do him the favour of allowing two members of Union Lodge, about to go abroad, to get passed and raised on their behalf. For his own part he was only too glad to do so with the concurrence of the brethren, which was at once given. Bro. Macnair, on behalf of the Union Lodge, returned thanks in most graceful terms, when the two brothers were passed to the F.C. Degree by Bro. Macnair, and raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bro. Findlay giving this beautiful degree in excellent style. This was all the business, and the lodge was closed in ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE GLASGOW (No. 441).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the hall, 22, Struthers-street, on the 8th inst., R.W.M. Bro. Tulloch in the chair; S.W., Bro. Wood, J.W.; Bro. McInnes. Lodge was opened in the E.A. Degree, when the minutes of former meeting were read and approved. The R.W.M. then read a note from Bro. Mason resigning the Secretaryship of the lodge. Bro. Neagle proposed that it lie over until the end of the meeting, seconded by Bro. Goldie, supported by Bro. Stone, which was carried. The R.W.M. then brought forward the pic-nic, when it was agreed that it should take place in the beginning of September, the same as former years. The R.W.M. then thanked the brethren who had turned out to represent the Lodge 441 at the laying of the memorial stone of the new halls. The lodge was then raised to the F.C. Degree, when Bro. Alexr. Vallance, jun., had that degree conferred upon him, after which the lodge was reduced to the E.A. Degree, when Bro. Mason declined taking the Secretaryship. Bro. Goldie was then proposed by Bro. Sloan, seconded by Bro. Martin, and was unanimously elected. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

An emergency meeting of the above lodge was held on the 15th inst., at 22, Struthers-street, Bro. Tulloch, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. Wood, S.W.; Neagle, acting J.W. The lodge was opened and raised to the M.M. Degree, when Bro. Alexr. Vallance, jun., who is about to proceed to Australia, had this degree conferred upon him. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOL (No. 413).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 8th inst. Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M., presided; Bros. Colin McKenzie, S.W.; D. Leeds, J.W.; J. Louttit, D.M.; P. Agnew, Treas.; J. W. Stevenson, Sec.; and other office-bearers. Notwithstanding the season of the year being that when most people sojourn to the coast in search of fresh air, this influential lodge maintained its character for the good attendance of its members. The minutes of last meeting being read and confirmed, the R.W.M. said he had an application from Mr. Charles Purves for admittance into the Order. He was proposed by Bro. Wm. Sibbald, and seconded by Bro. Wm. Gardiner, both of whom had full confidence in his character being worthy of the honour he aspired to. The ballot being found clear, he was carefully prepared and enlightened into Masonry, so far as the First Degree would permit, Bro. Wallace, R.W.M., officiating in his usual efficient manner. A letter was then brought before the meeting from the Secretary of Lodge Partick St. Mary's, No. 117, inviting a deputation of brethren to be present with them at the laying of the foundation stone of their new hall, in Partick, on the 26th inst. The R.W.M. suggested that the best way to meet the invitation would be for those brethren intending to be present to meet in the Borough Hall, Partick, and there form the deputation, which was agreed to. There being no further business before the lodge, it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553).—A meeting of this lodge was held in Claremont Hall, 162, Kent-road, on the 10th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. R. McDougal, was unavoidably prevented from being present. The D.M., Bro. Stark, therefore presided, supported by Bros. Stevens, S.W., and Bro. Paxton, J.W., and other office bearers; there was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. It was expected that the P.G.L. would have made an official visit; somehow or other, this did not take place. To account for this, we may say that the St. Vincent Lodge, which is a young one, but most energetic and painstaking in all its transactions, labours under considerable difficulties at present—the hall they meet in being a temporary place of accommodation only, until their own hall is ready, places them in an uncertain position for fixing their nights of meeting. The business of the lodge was the confirming of the Second and Third Degrees on brethren qualified to receive the same, Bro. Stark doing this in a way that showed his high qualifications for the work. Bro. Stark then thanked the visiting brethren for their attendance, and closed the lodge in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, situated at 106, Rose-street, South Side, on the 7th inst. The meeting was well attended by the members, and a goodly number of visiting brethren were present. Bro. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M., took the chair; Bros. T. B. McNaught, S.W.; J. W. McNaught, J.W.; Dr. Russell, D.M.; Geo. Muir, P.M. of 103; and others. The lodge being formally opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Arrangements were then made for the annual pic-nic, to take place on the 10th inst., Dundonald being the spot selected. Applications for admittance into Freemasonry were read from Messrs. A. Anderson, J. Pottle, and J. H. Thomson, and, being approved of, they received the First Degree; Bro. Dr. Russell, D.M., officiating. Bro. Dr. Russell proposed that Bros. W. Howie, 275; John Stewart, 360; and Wm. Manson be made honorary members of this lodge, which was agreed to, the brethren stepping to the altar and taking the usual obligation. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when six brethren received the sublime degree of Master Mason, Bro. Phillips, R.W.M., working with great care, and the brethren paying great attention. This terminated the business before the lodge, which was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—An exceedingly well-attended meeting of this lodge took place on the 21st inst. in their hall, situated at 106, Rose-street, S.S.; Bros. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M.; J. B. McNaught, S.W.; John Forgie, J.W.; John M. McNaught, S.M.; Thos. Russell, D.M.; Geo. B. Yuill, Secretary; Thos. Phillips, B.B. and C., took their respective places, and the lodge was opened in due form. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, they being correct and satisfactory, were confirmed. The R.W.M. then made a few remarks upon the annual "pic-nic" which took place on the 10th, in the course of which he said, a more complete success he never had the fortune to meet with. The day was one of the finest and most congenial we have had this season, and the pic-nic party was "ditto," it was a day of thorough enjoyment, and terminated without a single "hitch," even the Committee, after amply providing for the party, found themselves left with a balance in their favour. Many have expressed their sad disappointment at not being able to be present, in consequence of which another has been arranged to take place on the 4th of August next to the same place, viz., Dundonald. May the same results be in store for them. The R.W.M. then said, he had an invitation from the Lodge St. Andrew (No. 465) to join them with a deputation from this lodge on the 24th June, in celebrating the festival of St. John. This invitation was accepted. Another letter was read from the Lodge of St. John's, Alloa (No. 69), inviting a deputation to be present at the consecration of their new Masonic hall, which takes place on Friday, the 25th inst. at twelve o'clock noon, under the auspices of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Stirlingshire, after which a grand demonstration will take place in the afternoon, in honour of Bro. the Earl of Mar and Kellie, to celebrate his lordship's accession to the Earldom of Mar, so long held by his illustrious ancestors, the Erskins. His lordship, it may be mentioned, at present holds the high office of Dep. Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The procession will consist of members of St. John's, Alloa Lodge, and sister lodges, and the various trade societies in Alloa and district, starting about three o'clock; after which the brethren will dine together at the new Masonic hall at five o'clock. It was agreed to send a deputation from (556) Clydesdale Lodge. It was at this stage intimated that an American brother was down stairs in great poverty and distress. After the R.W.M. had an interview with him, a sufficient sum was given him for his immediate relief, until arrangements are made to take up his case. Mr. Wm. Smith, who could not attend the last meeting to receive the first degree of Freemasonry, was then initiated, Brother J. B. McNaught officiating in an able way. Mr. Smith was proposed by Brother James Weir, and seconded by Brother John Brown, both members of Lodge Clydesdale. There being no further business in this degree, the lodge was passed to the F.C., when 6 E.A. received this degree, Brother Phillips, R.W.M., officiating with great fullness and force. This finished the business of the meeting, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

The annual picnic of this lodge came off on Thursday, 10th inst., the locale chosen this year being Dundonald. At 9.10 A.M., the members, with their wives, sweethearts, and one or two friends from sister lodges, to the number of 40 in all, started from Dunlop-street Station, arriving in Kilmarnock just one hour thereafter. There were in readiness there two "brakes," as they are locally called, a vehicle which may be described as an elongated wagonette, and in these, together with a spring van, the company, which had been increased by three picked up in Kilmarnock, and the necessary provisions, were conveyed to the picturesque little village of Dundonald, a distance of some five or six miles. Here the first portion of the proceedings was a visit to the old castle, on the lawn at the back of which luncheon was spread and partaken of, the younger portion of the excursionists engaging also in some suitable sports, as races, leaping, &c. Thereafter, the party proceeded in a body to the Roman Camp, about two miles off, from which, as is well known, a varied and extensive view is commanded of the Ayrshire coast, with the Frith of Clyde, Arran, &c., beyond. Hence, after some more sports, the company returned to Dundonald, where, in Mrs. Allison's inn there, a substantial dinner was in readiness for them. At this the chair was occupied by the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Phillips, supported by Bros. Dr. Russell, D.M., and J. McNaught, S.M.; the duties of Croupier being discharged by Bro. J. B. McNaught, supported by Bros. John Howie, J.W., and John Wilson, of the Portland Lodge, Kilmarnock, and a respected and useful member of Lodge 556. Nearly all the office-bearers of the lodge were present, while among visiting brethren were Bros. James Love, S.M., No. 87 (Thistle); and A. Higgins, S.S.; T. Coulter, J.S.; and John Weir, of No. 275 (Shamrock and Thistle). After the substantial had been disposed of, a short programme of toast, song, &c., followed—the chairman, inter alia, drawing upon his local knowledge to acquaint those not so well informed with regard to some points of the history and antiquities of the beautiful district in which they had been spending the day. By way of variety, the route back to Kilmarnock was taken by way of Symington; and when "auld Killie" had been once more reached, a halt was called at Bro. Richard's, Portland Arms, Cross, where some of the ladies partook of a welcome cup of tea. The return train left Kilmarnock at 9.49, and at 11 p.m. landed the excursionists, all safe and well, again at Dunlop-street. Barring one shower (short, but a peler), while at the Roman camp, the weather throughout the day was entirely propitious, and the pic-nic of 1875 was, by common consent, voted to have been a complete success.

AN INTERNATIONAL LIFE-SAVING EXHIBITION is to be held next year at Brussels. It will include all matters relating to the saving of life and the lessening of suffering either from war, fire, or shipwreck, accidents by machinery, railways, &c., while one branch will be devoted to the preservation of health, such as the construction of dwellings, factories, &c. There will be a congress in connection with the exhibition for representatives of different nations to discuss the subjects of the programme. This congress has been permanently organised, and is to hold triennial meetings in the various European capitals. A meeting for the organisation of a London committee is shortly to be held at the Mansion House, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor. Intending exhibitors should communicate with the Hon. Sec., Major Burgess, at the Mansion House.

For the Hospital Saturday collections, which are to be made on the 31st of July, 2,400 boxes have already been placed in taverns, coffee-houses, &c., and fully 5,000 street cards and books have been issued.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—When the weather is hot, it will be found that persons who suffer from swelled feet and ankles, varicose veins, ulcers and sores of all kinds, and in fact from any skin disease, feel these complaints more troublesome and aggravating than at any other time of the year. They will soon find relief in the use of these remedies, for if the wounds or ulcers are dressed with this Ointment it at once soothes the irritability of the skin, causes the discharges to lose their acrimonious character, and lessens any inflammation that may be present. It cannot be too widely known that these twin remedies are the most powerful of anti febrile and anti inflammatory agents we possess.—ADVT.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1875.

THE BALANCE SHEET OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL FOR 1874.

We have been favoured by Bro. Binckes with a glimpse at the proof balance sheet for 1874, and we are anxious to call the attention of our readers to it, in anticipation of the annual festival. For the balance sheet for 1874 demonstrates so clearly the need of great Craft sympathy, and support in 1875, that its figures are more eloquent than words. Two points we wish to call attention to before we pass on to the figures themselves. The Boys' School, be it remembered, has no funded capital, and depends entirely on the freewill offerings of the Craft for its annual income and, so to say, "keeping up." In order to accomplish a great end, namely, to render the school buildings commensurate with the needs and worthy of the prestige of our Order, the House Committee sunk all its available capital and much more in the building, relying on the liberality of the Craft to help them to "weather the storm" in years to come. That they judged wisely in building for futurity, no reasonable person can doubt, and even at this moment such are the increasing wants of the brotherhood, that had they the means, they could readily receive some thirty or forty more boys. We have in our Boys' School a structure of which we may all be proud, and adapted in this improving age of all educational arrangements, for increased facilities in imparting a sound and useful and practical education. There seems to us to be no institution with greater claims on our good will and large-hearted liberality, for our helping on labours which are labours of love, and giving encouragement to a high duty, and forwarding a happy result. One other point we must notice, namely, the growing importance of the school to our fraternity. We must have it; and each year only serves to warn us, how great a boon and a blessing it is to many, who otherwise might not receive a befitting education. To us the Boys' School appeals with heartfelt memories of "auld lang syne." These healthy and cheerful boys are the sons of those with whom we associated so happily in the festive and pleasant hours of the past, and they appeal to us, and many more orphan sons of Freemasons appeal to us, by every profession of Masonic teaching and fellowship, to give our mite in our time and generation towards the best of all objects, the sound and practical education of the young and often helpless children of our brethren. It appears that the receipts of the Boys' School for 1874 amounted to £10,284. 11s. 10d., of this amount £732 14s. was voted by Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, £98 14s. were received in musical fees; £922 12s. 7d. were paid in donations and subscriptions, and £78 19s. 11d. was the balance at the bankers', January 1st, 1874. The expenditure is as follows:—£500 transferred to Sustentation Fund; £1970 16s. 6d. paid to New Building Account; £736 18s. 5d.; Special Expenditure; £6840 9s. 8d., Ordinary Expenditure; £232 1s. 8d., Emergent Expenditure; leaving a balance due to the bankers of £151 11s. 4d. It is therefore quite clear from this financial statement that not only is every effort required to help forward and maintain in proper order and efficiency, this most valuable Institution of English Freemasonry, but we must not shut our eyes to the fact, that we cannot expect, with constant pressure for increase in the number of boys, that a less income must be supplied by our kindly Order of at the least £9000 per annum. This seems a large sum, but it is not too large for English Freemasons, who amid cruel imputations and shameful discourtesies, are always ready to prove to the world not only that "that loyalty and charity" are their watchwords, but that they uniformly seek to put into practice the distinguishing feature of Freemasonry, open-hearted beneficence, to all who make a proper claim on their good will, and their kindly aid. May the anniversary for 1875 be a great success for the Committee and Bro. Binckes, and may this, our last great festival for 1875, demonstrate to the world that we are not, as Freemasons, "weary in well-doing," but that ours is indeed, whatever ignorant writers may say of us, a real love of our good old Order, belief in its tolerant and philanthropic principles, and a full realization both of our privileges and our responsibilities as Freemasons. We shall give the actual figures themselves in detail next week.

THE TRUE TEACHINGS OF FREEMASONRY IN RESPECT OF THE SOCIAL QUESTION.

In treating on this subject, confessedly somewhat difficult per se, we do not wish to appear either too egotistical or too dogmatical. We are most anxious to avoid any appearance of laying down too austere or ascetic a rule of the subject, and we do not presume to deny the right of others to hold a different view from ourselves on this wide and important question. For we should not forget, that we all may fairly take somewhat different grounds on a point which is after all more or less personal. And as we do not all see things in the same light, in respect of many other questions and even persons, we cannot be expected to hold a uniform opinion on this "vexata quæstio." We said last week, that there was a Masonic heresy on the subject, and as that necessarily pre-supposed a true teaching, we presume to submit our explanation of it, in the present issue of our journal. And so in all deference and submission we propose now to do so, premising once more, that we have no wish, and no intention "to lay down the law" to any who do honestly differ from us. We think that Freemasonry teaches us this distinctly, that refreshment is to be subordinate to work, and instruction. We should not be content to make all our arrangements centre on the refreshment hour, nor to consider that the most important of our duties in Masonry is the K. and F. Degree. There are some good brethren of ours, who, as we know only drop in just in time for the Junior Warden's call. They take no part in the work of the lodge; they take no interest in instruction; they do not care for lectures; they do not profess to read Masonic literature, but, as boon companions they are A.1. Our worthy brethren, Brown, Jones and Robinson, look upon Freemasonry merely as a pleasant reunion, as a social club, alike agreeable and hilarious. They have no patience, as they say, with those who render Freemasonry too dry an affair, and for them Freemasonry has, and Freemasonry always will have but one attraction, the banquet and the convivial gathering. Now though we do not object to the festive assembly or friendly reunion, though we freely admit, that to many a hard-worked brother, the social aspect of Freemasonry has a great and abiding charm, yet we should ever bear in mind that all these things are only pleasant accessories to Freemasonry, and are not Freemasonry. The great objection to the purely social view is its expense and in its interference unavoidably with the claims of charity and benevolence. With those who advocate the purely social and "prandial" theory ever of Freemasonry, there is too often a very small amount of Masonic benevolence, and an almost untellable quantity of "sack." Now do not let us be misunderstood. We accept entirely the Masonic adage, that "refreshment follows work," and we shall be sorry to see the day when, by an overstrained theory of Masonic abnegation, brethren should be stinted or deprived of the allowable and proper relaxation, sanctioned by the rules of our lodges and our Order. Many a firm friendship has been cemented round the Masonic table, and many pleasant hours of innocent gaiety and improving companionship have been spent by us all in the "interieur" of our lodges, and in a pleasant circle of friendship and good will. So that while we adhere firmly to the true teaching of Freemasonry, "subordinate refreshment and sociability to work and instruction, avoid late hours, and irregular habits; let not Freemasonry be blamed for your want of self control;" we shall not give up the "liberty of refreshment," in obedience to any fanaticism of the hour, but we shall use it, and not abuse it. We shall all regard this subject from our own point of view, and on none is the right of private judgment so unlimited, for no one can presume to lay down a rule which is suitable or applicable to all, and of all things we should seek to keep out of Freemasonry, anything like a pandering to hurtful and illogical fanaticism, any allowance of dictation by a noisy minority to a careless and apathetic majority. If in the words we have uttered, in the arguments we have employed, we have induced any brother to think the matter over, our end will be gained, as we do not write for any purpose, though the Freimaurer Zeitung says we do, of Pharisaic profession, or pedantic pomposity, but with a heartfelt desire to assist, and to inform, to help, and if possible to edify our numerous and friendly readers.

PROVINCIAL FUNDS.

We often hear a good deal about our Masonic Charities and the like, but very little is told us about our Provincial Funds, which, however, constitute no inconsiderable item in our general Masonic system of receipt and expenditure. Why thus it should be, we know not, as there is no "reticence" on the part of the provinces, which publish the amounts for the most part annually. Probably it arises from that apathy about many Masonic matters so characteristic of our good Craft, and which like that of some of our buoyant and verdant youth is inclined to take a Dundreary view "de rebus lathomicis," and to set many little particular ars down, as being things a "fellar can't or can't be expected to understand." But yet if all our provincial returns were perfectly tabulated, the "tottle" of the whole receipt and expenditure would startle not a few of those lackadaisical critics who almost seem to think that Masonic finance, like Masonic Archaeology, is a matter of no importance at all. If, however, we are, as we should be, fairly alive to everything that can illustrate our common Order, we shall feel the deepest interest in all such returns, which enable us to sound and mete out the actual depth of our remarkable provincial system which, in its activity and reality, and fulness, is peculiar to English Freemasonry. We take the balance sheet to May, 1874, of the Province of Lincolnshire as an illustration of what we have been saying. The normal annual income from fees and quarterages on the two amounts, the Benevolent and General Purposes, may be estimated in round numbers at £90 per annum, 18 lodges making up the Province of Lincolnshire. The interest on money invested in freehold securities may also be estimated in round numbers at £25 so that the actual reliable income from all sources may be put at £120. The invested property amounts apparently to £550. The province began with a balance, on both accounts, of £97 15s. 5d., and ended with a balance on both funds of £123 11s. 6d. The income from all sources up to May, 1874, (one item exceptional) amounted to £262 12s. 6d. The expenditure was as follows, Grants to widows and necessitous brethren, £36 4s. 8d.; grant to Masonic Institutions, £6 4s.; expenses, (which are very small) £17; in round numbers invested £80; the remainder constitutes the balance. The province of Lincolnshire has, with its lodges and brethren, 397 life votes for the Boys' School, and 16 annual votes; 82 life votes for the Girls' School, and 15 annual votes; 71 life votes for Male Annuity Fund, and 38 annual votes; 24 life votes for the Widows; and 23 annual votes. But the return for the year 1875 will greatly increase the number of votes. It will be seen that while the Province of Lincolnshire, owing to its size, is not so rich as some provinces, its returns are both interesting and valuable, and we shall be glad to receive similar provincial returns, and happy to analyze them for the information of our many readers.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW MASONIC HALL AT NEW YORK.

We call the attention of our readers to the interesting account of this remarkable scene taken from the Philadelphia Keystone, edited so admirably by our able and courteous confrere Clifford P. MacCalla. It was certainly a wonderful and striking gathering, which our brother so well and so eloquently records. "Twenty-five thousand Masons were in line, says our brother, and participated in the Masonic procession, and solemn ceremonies." The official numbers are 23,360! Surely these figures almost say more than words. The Craft in America have had bitter trials and angry adversaries, and the dreadful persecution of the absurd Morgan affair to go through. But to-day Freemasonry is rapidly spreading through the United States, and in ten years more, if it progresses, as it is now progressing year by year, it will be counted by one or two millions. As it is, it is said, on the authority of the reporter for the Standard at New York, that there are 9,101 lodges in the United States, with a membership of 524,649 brethren, but this does not include the Royal Arch and Templar organization. We believe that their real number is near 700,000. The reporter states that in the figures he gives as the census for 1870 in America, namely, 38,576,371 inhabitants; there is one Mason for every 74 inhabitants in the United States, a larger proportion of Masons than is to be found in any other country. Well these are cheering facts, and the record of another page proves that our American brethren are wise in their generation, and are building deeply, and truly, and well, as faithful and trusting Craftsmen. May the new Masonic Hall serve as an impetus to Freemasonry in that great city and district, and may it tend to a large development of as true Masonic charity and practical and useful benevolence.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS. No. VII.

All the little "waifs" cast upon the great shore of Masonic Archæology are valuable to the Masonic student. It had long been a question what was the exact connexion of the Masons' Company of the City of London with our speculative and accepted Order. Sir F. Palgrave laid it down as an historical fact that about the close of the 17th century, the Freemasons and the Masons' Company separated, but of this fact, as he puts it, there is, in truth, no historical trace! It seems most doubtful whether the Masons' Company ever had anything to do with the Society of Freemasons. It seems to have been nothing but a pure trade guild, existing side by side with the Society of Freemasons. If ever it was connected with the actual Freemasons, that link has long been broken. Much stress has been laid on two entries in Elias Ashmole's Diary, but searches kindly made in the books of the Masons' Company prove most indisputably that there is no actual identity between the Masons' Company and the Society of Freemasons. The Masons mentioned at Warrington were not members of the London Masons' Company, as some have thought, and the old Masons whom Elias Ashmole mentions by name, in London, were clearly both Freemasons and members of the Masons' Company at the same time. Hence the meeting at Masons' Hall in 1682, was that of Freemasons proper, and they admitted into their Order, members of the then Masons' Company. Elias Ashmole was not a member of the Masons' Company, nor was, curiously enough, Sir Christopher Wren, and we are especially told that the Master of the Masons' Company, Mr. Thomas Wise, was present at the special meeting or emergency meeting, as we should term it, at Masons' Hall, March 10th, 1682. All the names of Freemasons mentioned in Ashmole's

Diary are now verified, except Captain Borthwick and Walsford, Esq., as belonging to the Masons' Company, and yet as also members of the Society of Freemasons. As the Masons' Company did not meet in Basinghall Street, March 10th, as it did not dine at the "Half Moon," Cheapside, nor was it in the habit of dining there, it is quite clear that the meeting Ashmole mentions was a meeting of Freemasons proper, and not of the Masons' Company. We then come to this, that in 1682, the Society of Freemasons was in existence alike in London, Lancashire, Staffordshire, on the distinct statement of trustworthy authorities, and at York in 1698, and no doubt much earlier. What becomes of the 1717 theory? To use a slang phrase, it is "nowhere." We anticipate many further discoveries yet, as regards old records and minute books. The oldest minute book in England, so far known, is that of Alnwick, 1702, and the next to it appears to be that of the Lodge of Industry, Gateshead. But others, no doubt, exist in forgotten collections of Masonic records, and unopened boxes in our various lodges, and we feel sure that careful search would result in the discovery of documents which, as far as they prove anything, would make clear the existence and continuation of the "Society of Freemasons" before 1700.

THE GUILD THEORY versus THE 1717 THEORY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have several times read over the important letters upon this subject from "A Masonic Student" and Bro. W. J. Hughan, at page 223, and I am only sorry that pressure of business and other literary work quite prevents me at present from dealing with this subject in the way I would like to do. There is much to be said upon it that, so far as I am aware, has never yet been said by any one. I believe that I hold one end of the chain, which if I were only able to draw it in would astonish even Bro. Hughan himself to see what came with it. For me, however, to attempt to deal with this subject properly at present would be something equivalent to committing suicide in reference to other matters, and I have not the slightest intention of doing so at present, consequently I must delay coming to real close quarters with Bro. Hughan just now. I may, however, I trust, ask to be permitted to say a few words in reply to the letters on page 223. "A Masonic Student" there says, "That Freemasonry existed before 1717 we have the most undoubted proofs." Now I admit that fully, and am also ready to admit that "Freemasonry" existed in the thirteenth century, but the "Freemasonry" that existed several hundred years ago was not our Freemasonry. Neither did the "Freemasons" then existing know anything of our system of Freemasonry. As one proof of this I would point to the fact that the French, who led the van in mediæval Freemasonry (and who "carved their records upon cathedrals" in a manner unsurpassed anywhere), knew nothing of what is now known as "Freemasonry" until about A.D. 1725. Now, how is this? Then there is the Pope's Bull of 1738, which says that the Society had only been recently formed. Was the Pope and his advisers then telling lies, or showing their ignorance, or what were they doing?

As to what "A Masonic Student" says about Ashmole and Robert Padgett, &c., being Freemasons, it would be premature to reply until exact copies of a number of the minutes of the London Masons' Company and of this "Society of Freemasons" are published. As to non-operatives being admitted into Masonic lodges long before A.D. 1717, I am aware of that just as well as "A Masonic Student" and Bro. Hughan, and I have repeatedly said that they were so admitted, only I do not admit that they were thereby made acquainted with our system of Freemasonry. In fact, how could they? seeing that even Bro. Hughan himself has repeatedly stated that our system of Freemasonry was not in existence until A.D. 1717! In regard to this latter point "A Masonic Student" has been more consistent in his published remarks than Bro. Hughan, or else "the Guild Theory" as held by the latter must be something very different from "the Guild Theory" as held by the former. To settle this, perhaps both of these talented brethren will in next week's Freemason favour us with independent explanations on the subject, including the antiquity they give to our three degrees; and what, or how many degrees, if any, existed before 1717.

As to who were the authors of our system of Freemasonry, I again say that, so far as I can judge, it was Desaguliers, Anderson, and their friends, who manufactured it out of Bible legends, Pagan mysteries &c., making use of the four old London lodges for that purpose. The fact of Ashmole and other gentlemen being Freemasons before 1717 simply paved the way for Desaguliers and his system, and so far as I can judge no Freemasonry, "identical with our present speculative Order," existed before A.D. 1717, any more than did Christianity exist before the time of Christ.

I find that I am quite unable to follow this up at present for want of time, but, I would beg of those who oppose me to remember that whereas the opponents of the 1717 theory, have been engaged in bolstering up the antiquity of speculative Freemasonry for the last one hundred and forty years, and have hundreds or thousands of published works to refer to in support of their ideas, yet the supporters of the 1717 theory have as yet very little. Bro. Hughan himself has done great service, and has been hard at work, for many years, and has published various valuable Masonic works, yet after reading them I still hold by the 1717 theory, believing that if only one-hundredth part of the time and money spent on Masonic researches was applied to seek out and publish the equally interesting records of the other Crafts, then the truth of the 1717 theory would be established.

I am, fraternally yours,

W. P. BUCHAN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I need not copy the tone of Bro. Buchan's letter "exemplar vitus imitabile;" I would rather invite your readers to turn back to the correspondence on this subject, commencing about the middle of the year 1870, and extending through the first few months of 1871. I venture to say that they would want no further discussion of that airy nothing which has been dignified by the title of a "theory." If Bro. Hughan had the leisure to turn back to the past correspondence, I believe he would at once qualify his offer to re-open the subject, and would be amazed that this exploded emptiness should be again dragged out to catch the unwary eyes of new brethren whose experiences have yet to come. On the 12th of November, 1870, Bro. Hughan expressly requests Bro. Buchan to state "the reasons why he believed Freemasonry was originated in 1717, and not revived." Here was a plain opportunity for enabling your readers to judge of the grounds upon which Bro. Buchan's assertion was based; grounds which all the laws of fair discussion and Masonic candour required him, there and then, unequivocally to give. His reply on the 3rd of December following is at once so brief, as well as self-convincing, that I give it in extenso. Bro. Buchan says: "So far as I can at present judge, London in 1717 neither saw the 'revival' nor the 'origin' of our system of Freemasonry; but its institution and inauguration." So Bro. Buchan's evidence of a fact is his own judgment, and this is the manner in which so bold a "theorist" ventures to defend his assertions, before the intelligence of your readers, against the facts produced by careful enquirers. On the 24th of December, 1870, our patient Brother Hughan again appealed to Bro. Buchan to supply evidence in support of his "theory," and pledged himself to examine it very carefully; but it was useless; the assertion is empty, and has no evidence, ex nihilo nihil fit. After being reminded of these facts, will Bro. Hughan still adhere to an unqualified offer to re-open the discussion with Bro. Buchan?

The brother from Cincinnati (who wrote in January, 1871) did not originate my producing the MS. of 1500. That brother appeared only towards the closing scenes of the discussion, with a flourish of (his own) trumpets, in the role of everybody's critic (excepting, perhaps, Bro. Buchan's). He played his (very small) part, complained much of his reception, went out (without the music), and returned no more. If Bro. Buchan had stated that I was mistaken in saying he had "challenged" me to produce an early reference to the word "speculative," but that his "challenge" had reference to a statute relating to Masons, he would have been right. I was thus far in error, as I readily acknowledge.

Bro. Buchan "challenged" me, on the 3rd December, 1870, to produce acts of Parliament passed before last century which did not also apply to other Crafts. I met his challenge fairly in the following number; but I regret to say that the evidence thus offered was, as I and other of your correspondents have had reason to complain, not met with that desire to investigate, rather than detract, which may be fairly expected from any brother who enters upon a controversy with a desire to attain the truth, rather than to back up a mere opinion.

My reference to the MS. was published on the 24th of December, 1870, I believe, in opposition to an assertion that the use of the word "speculative" could not be shown in any Masonic document dating before 1717. I said as much on the 21st January, 1871.

I think your readers will not consider it necessary for me to reply to an unworthy insinuation, in Bro. Buchan's P.S., that I should be likely to appropriate any credit he may deserve for the production of interesting information. I have not referred to the date he gives (July, 1871), but I can say that my letter as to the indenture of covenants, in reference to the white aprons and white gloves, appeared on the 10th December, 1870, Bro. Buchan at the time doing me the honour to designate it "a pretended quotation," such being the good taste which he extended to the enquiry.

My adducing this indenture originated in the modest statement by Bro. Buchan (29th October, 1870), that because he knew of no authority for the white apron before 1717 he was kind enough to "consider it was only then introduced." Verily, it is well for some of us that there are a few things in this world besides those which have come under our brother's special notice.

With a repeated word of warning to new brethren to seek the substance of proof, and to reject the shadow of mere opinion, however confidently asserted, permit me to bid the the phantom of 1717 once more adieu.—LUPUS.

THE OLIVER MEMORIAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Being the projector of the scheme to obtain a scholarship at one of our universities for one of our ablest boys at the Masonic Institution, I may be excused, I hope, for addressing through your columns, my Masonic brethren throughout England and Wales, if not the universe, as I strongly desire the memory and name of the lamented and learned Doctor Oliver, of Lincolnshire, to be connected therewith.

At a committee meeting of the Lincolnshire Grand Lodge, held at Grantham, in the month of May, 1874, I first mooted the question. Some brethren then expressed an opinion that such a scheme as that which I propounded, if carried into execution, might take a poor lad out of his sphere, as if goodness, learning, and talent were necessarily confined to any one class of society. Such, I believe, was not the late Dr. Oliver's opinion.

When about to appeal to our late Grand Master on this interesting subject, I was deterred by his lamented secession from our fraternity.

The question has again been raised at our Lincolnshire Grand Lodge, held at Boston, this year.

The sum of nearly £200 seems to have been raised to the memory of the late Doctor Oliver, who accomplished so much for universal Masonry by his energies and pen; but after forty years' experience, however elastic the voluntary principle may be, I have not found that money easily flows into any exchequer without a specific object, a strenuous endeavour, and a wise organization.

Now, without determining the appropriation, the Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire has now voted £200 to the Oliver memorial, making the sum of £400. In my judgment, the suggestion to confer small annuities out of this limited capital—at 5 per cent., would not exceed £20 annually—would be chimerical in its effects as to any real benefit; and further, such wretched doles, confined to the province of Lincoln, would be unworthy of the name, pen, and zeal of so distinguished a Mason as the late Dr. Oliver.

That eminent member of the theological faculty lived in days when Masonic proceedings were under a clerical ban, when no high preferment was accorded to him for his self-denying and unremitting labours. Nevertheless he was content to work for Masonry under the shade of a cathedral, with a contemptible pittance, as a remuneration for his multifarious labours, simply because he did not bask under Episcopal smiles.

Yet he did his work for Masonry throughout the world; and what more appropriate memento to his undying fame can there be than a scholarship for a talented boy, a poor Mason's son, he may be an orphan, to one of our English universities, to evince to mankind that Masonry has something to do with literature as well as with good cheer; and that our avowed charity leads us, as in days of yore, to provide for the lambs of the fraternity; and where goodness and mental parts, with diligence and perseverance, are found to be the distinguishing traits of a poor, forlorn lad, mental culture shall be secured for him, to bless and improve society.

A lad that can earn one scholarship may earn one or two others. He may try. Surely, many of our Masonic brethren belong to that "Try company," whose motto is "Nil desperandum." Six hundred subscriptions, of one sovereign each, from Masons in England and Wales, would accomplish this benevolent object. Yea, double that sum could be raised, and that quickly, for the scholarship. Up and doing, my brother Masons! And I am confident that if Bro. Binckes, with his analytical skill, his comprehensive views, his descriptive and suggestive powers of organisation, would give momentum to the project, the thing is done. Meanwhile my pen, and my time, as far as I can command it, shall be at the service of the project, with a view to help those who may be able to help themselves and others: a project which, whilst it would perpetuate in literature the memory of the late Dr. Oliver, would tend to expand the mind of a Masonic stripling, and adorn Masonry with one of the brightest gems of Masonic charity.

I am, Sir, yours respectfully,

DANIEL ACE, D.D.,

P.P.G. Chaplain for Lincolnshire.

Laughton Vicarage, near Gainsborough,

EMBLEM.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any of your readers inform me if they know anything of an emblem or badge as follows:—A paste star with ten points on enamel circle centre, with a lion statant, ribbon, and motto over lion, "Vivitur reciproca Fide?"

Yours fraternally,

THE INSTALLATION CHARGE OF THE R.W. PRO G.M. AND "THE 1717 THEORY."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If the brethren generally had not considered that Bro. Buchanan's captious exception to our M.W. Pro G. Master's speech were better received and passed over in silence (I call it "captious" because it must certainly have appeared so to the Craft at large, however worthy its promulgator's intentions may have been) you would doubtless, ere this, have been flooded with expostulatory replies.

You, Sir, correctly reported the M.W. Pro G. Master's words, in which he uttered a simple truth, familiar to many outside the Craft as well as in it, for I well remember, as a child, being taught in my "Outlines of English History" that our ancient ecclesiastical buildings were reared by wandering companies of Freemasons.

Is Bro. Buchanan prepared to disprove this well-known fact? If not, the denial in his letter was, however well meant, not only uncalled for, but incorrect.

Bro. Buchanan, as I take it, has simply made use of this denial as a peg on which to hang the resuscitation of his

"1717 theory." That peg is removed, and I think that every brother will agree with me that, if this controversy is to be revived, it should be upon its own merits, and not upon such a false issue as the one in question.

No one assuredly will deny Bro. Buchanan the right of stating his opinion, but it would certainly be preferable not to start a discussion concerning it upon subject matter not only entirely wide of the mark but also thoroughly exempt from criticism as the Installation Charge in question.

With fraternal greetings, I remain, faithfully yours,

WM. TEBBS, P.M. 285,

P.P.G. Chaplain, Somerset.

Caterham Valley, June 14th, 1875.

HOW MASONS ARE MADE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

When the eyes of enthusiastic Masons are gladdened by the appearance of long paragraphs in the newspapers, giving accounts of densely thronged Masonic meetings in various parts of the country, and reporting "Great spread of Freemasonry in—," does it ever occur to them to reflect for a moment whether the large number of persons who are daily flocking to our banners are "fit and proper persons to be made Masons?" Unhappily, every day's experience teaches us that such is not so, but that our once noble Institution is rapidly becoming crowded with a class of men, who 20 or even 30 years ago would never have dreamed of applying for admission to our ranks. That such an unfortunate state of things does exist is abundantly testified by the repeated cautions given by P.G. Masters, at the meetings of P.G. Lodges, about the care that should be taken before allowing any one to become "one of us."

Now, what is the most fruitful source of this admission of unfit subjects to the privileges of our Order? I think there can be no doubt, that it is principally due to the initiation of candidates in lodges held in towns other than those in which the candidates reside.

The Grand Master of England deemed the matter of such importance that, some time ago, he caused a circular letter to be forwarded to every lodge (I believe) calling attention to, and severely reprobating this custom. It is painful however to find that, in spite of this official warning, the evil, instead of diminishing, has been daily growing in magnitude.

As an illustration of the extent to which this practice may be and is carried, I wish emphatically to bring before the brethren generally the contents of a current circular, of what we will call "Lodge A," which has just fallen into my hands. According to this circular, the business to be transacted on the ensuing lodge night consists in balloting for 6 candidates, one as a joining member and the remaining 5 for initiation. Now, will it be credited that, of these 6 there is not, according to the addresses given in the circular, a single one of the candidates who is a resident in "Lodge A" town? Can anything be more scandalous than this? I don't use a term a bit too strong if I characterize such a circular a disgrace, not only to the lodge which issued it, but to the Order at large. Such I am sure will be the opinion of every true and loyal Mason.

But perhaps the reader may think that this extraordinary list of non-resident candidates may have been brought about by the fact of there being no lodges in their own immediate vicinities. Let us see.

We will pass over the joining member, as it is probable that he may intend to locate himself in his new lodge town. Of the 5 candidates for initiation, we find that No. 1 resides in a little village in which there is no lodge, about 9 miles from "A," and to get at which he must, if he go the direct road by railway, pass through a large town in which there is an irreproachable lodge held. Nos. 2 and 3 reside in the same town, about a distance of 8 miles from "A." The opportunities this town offers to local candidates may be estimated when it is mentioned, on the authority of the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar for 1875," that it contains not less than 23 lodges. No. 4 is an inhabitant of a town still more remote, being distant from "A" at least 12 miles, and, in addition, is in another county altogether. This town is provided with two lodges. I am sure I shall surprise (and I hope shock) many of my readers when I tell them that No. 5 is not only a non-resident, or even a dweller in "Lodge A's" county, but that he actually lives in a certain little island out of England, and distant from "A" close upon 90 miles. The island has three lodges, two of which are in the candidate's own town.

Why is this lodge favoured with so many candidates from a distance? It is not poor, so can't want money—it can't want establishing, for I am informed it sports a centenary jewel.

Perhaps some of its officers will explain, and in order to make identification of the lodge alluded to more easy, I will state that it is held in an old and very sleepy little town not 100 miles from Liverpool, and that the above candidates will be ballotted for on the 16th inst.

To the above I may add that in my own town I know cases (all occurring in a very short time) of four gentlemen who were either unable to find proposers amongst the members of or had been blackballed at our lodge, and yet who were speedily made Masons in neighbouring towns, some of them, I must in justice state, at Lodge "A."

Is there no remedy for this indiscriminate and wholesale manufacture of Masons? I think so, and a very simple one too. Let the proper authorities enact, 1st. That no candidate shall under any circumstances be initiated in a lodge held in any county in which he is not a resident. Breach of this rule to be punished by suppressing the lodge.

2nd. That every lodge in which a candidate shall have been blackballed shall at once transmit to the P.G. Secretary the name and address of such candidate.

3rd. That no candidate shall be initiated in any strange lodge (in his own county) till the next lodge night but one after his proposal, and that in the meantime the Secretary shall ascertain from the P.G. Secretary if such candidate has been blackballed in his own lodge town, and, if so, his candidature shall not be proceeded with; but if the reply is in the negative, then the Secretary shall enquire from the lodge in the town in which the candidate resides as to his character and probable motives for being proposed in a strange lodge, and after the reply has been read in open lodge the balloting may be proceeded with.

If these rules be violated, let the offending lodge be admonished, and if the violation be persisted in, then let its name be erased from Grand Lodge list.

By observing the above simple rules, no hardship would be inflicted upon any one, and if not a stop, at all events a great check be put upon this pernicious system of Masonry made easy.

I trust the paramount importance of the subject under consideration will be sufficient justification for the length of this letter.

Yours fraternally,

Liverpool, 14th June, 1875.

PRECEDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Neither brother has any "claim to the office" whatever. The Constitutions say: "He (i.e. the newly-installed W.M.) shall appoint his Wardens and other officers, except the Treasurer" (page 62, sec. 2.); and—"All preferment among Masons should be grounded upon real worth and personal merit; therefore, no brother shall be elected Master of a lodge, or appointed to any office therein, merely on account of seniority of rank." (page 76, sec. 1.)

The W.M. was, therefore, quite right in putting into office such brethren as he deemed the fittest.

The question of "precedence" of merely lodge membership would be settled by the order in which the brethren in question became members of the lodge by the ballot of the brethren.

The entire difficulty (as far as can be gleaned from "Bro. Hadley's" letter) seems to have arisen from the indiscretion of the W.M., who, by stating his intended appointments before the proper time, gave an opportunity to the disappointed ones to take the extremely unmasonic course of marking their sense of the preference by refusing to confirm the minutes. Respecting the effect of this last step, I hope to address a few lines to you on another occasion.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

WILLIAM TEBBS.

TEMPERANCE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I ask through the medium of your columns if any of your readers know of a Masonic lodge conducted on temperance principles, where a total abstainer would feel at home with his brethren.

Yours &c.,

SOUTH LONDON.

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the January number of the "Masonic Magazine" it is stated that the late Duke of Wellington was a Freemason. In my mother lodge, Edinburgh St. David's, No. 36, S.C., there was, in 1861, a letter from the Duke, in which he distinctly stated that he did not belong to the Order; doubtless on application to the R.W.M. you might get a copy of it.

I am, yours fraternally,

WILLIAM W. SQUIRES, K.H. 30°.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE M.W.G.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As one of the fortunate brethren present at the Installation of H.R.H., our Grand Master, at the Albert Hall, I was highly gratified to hear the confirmation of thanks from Grand Lodge last quarterly communication to those distinguished brethren for their efficiency in the organisation of such an event, well remembering the general anxiety and fears which I and a great many others indulged in at the possible exclusion of junior members of Grand Lodge, owing to the the necessary and suitable space required. I therefore venture to state that in the name of those juniors I beg to tender our humble, but nevertheless sincere, thanks to Brother Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant of England, who was the first to suggest publicly in your valuable pages, likewise to demonstrate the practicability, of using the Albert Hall for such an eminent purpose, thus giving out the timely spark that ignited the whole success of that memorable day.

I am, &c.,

S. W., 145.

MASONIC ARCHÆOLOGY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see that our good Bro. Albert Mackey, strangely enough, falls into the not uncommon mistake of supposing that Hiram, the widow's son, was not an architect or a stonemason.

In the Voice of Masonry for June (page 403) he says "It is worth noticing that a similar creed occurs in the still retained legends of the Solomonic Temple, where Hiram Abiff, who, like Tubalcain, was only a worker in metals, and not a stonemason, is called the master builder of the Temple. The coincidence is striking, and the problem is one not easily to be solved, why in both the older and newer Masonry a silversmith should have been called a Mason and a builder." Our good brother has surely forgotten the 14th verse of the 2nd chapter, Second Book of Chronicles, where we read as follows:—

"The son of a woman of the daughter of Dan, and his father was a man of Tyre, skilful to work in gold and in silver, and in brass, and in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen and in common, able to grave any manner of graving, and any device," &c.

Properly then is Hiram Abiff called the "Master-builder" and the Architect of the Solomonic Temple.

The high authority of Bro. Mackey causes me to call attention to what might become a very serious error in Masonic Archæology if supported by his well-known name.

I am, dear Sir, yours fraternally,

A MASONIC STUDENT.

EARLY MASONIC TRACT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Where can I be favoured with a perusal of an early tract, published in 1676, and entitled "A Short Analysis of the Unchanged Rites and Ceremonies of Freemasonry," or where can I find an account of the same?

Yours fraternally,

HENRY T. BOBART.

[So far the book has eluded all research. It is, we believe, much more than doubtful if it ever was published.—Ed.]

EDUCATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you inform me in your next issue of the Freemason of a school for young gentlemen, kept by a brother, near London? The boy is rather delicate, and requires a little care, so I would like to place him under the eye of a brother, knowing he would be educated, and taken care of as a boarder.

Yours fraternally,

R. M.

[Perhaps some of our readers can answer the query. We shall be happy to put any one in communication with our enquiring brother.—Ed.]

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you, or some other authority, kindly inform me whether or not an Installing Master can claim from the I.P.M. (who has not installed his successor) the right to propose the health of the W.M. at the banquet, to the exclusion from that privilege of the I.P.M., and any other P.M. of the lodge who may be present.

Yours fraternally,

P.M.

[Certainly not.—Ed.]

DEDICATION OF THE NEW YORK MASONIC TEMPLE.

The distinguished Masonic event in America of the present week, says the Keystone of June 5th, has been the dedication of the New Masonic Temple in the city of New York. A larger number of Craftsmen were there assembled, on Wednesday, June 2nd, 1875, than ever before, anywhere, in the history of the world, of which any record remains, and representing the chief Masonic Jurisdictions of the Globe. Twenty-five thousand Freemasons were in line, and participated in the Masonic procession and solemn ceremonies. We cannot, at the time we go to press, give our readers a full account of these ceremonies, but we shall aim to give a brief sketch of his history of the great Masonic work of the fraternity in New York, from its inception to its happy completion, as an acceptable preface to our description, in our next issue, of the Dedication Ceremonies.

The present magnificent New Masonic Temple in New York city, erected at the cost of a million and a quarter dollars, is the result of thirty-two years' anxious and, during the latter years, earnest labors. In 1843, the edifice was first proposed, and the following memorial upon the subject was presented to the Grand Lodge:

"R. W. and W. Brethren:

"The subscribers, deeply impressed with the desire of placing our institution in a position of permanent honour and usefulness, most respectfully present for your consideration, the necessity of taking immediate and active measures for raising a fund sufficient to accomplish the following objects:—

"First—The erection of a hall in the city of New York for the Grand Lodge and other Masonic bodies."

"Second—The founding of an asylum for worthy decayed Masons, their widows and orphans."

"For the accomplishment of these noble purposes we invoke your honourable body to use your influence with the brethren of this State, by sending forth a suitable appeal to their liberality, and by appointing proper agents to solicit and receive contributions."

"In testimony of our sincerity and confidence in the ability of the fraternity in the State of New York, we ask your acceptance of our subscriptions in cash, and promise to pay annually hereafter until the works be completed, something toward the necessary fund."

"It is our desire, if the Grand Lodge accept our offering, that the sum thus raised be carefully invested by the Trustees of the Grand Lodge, and preserved for the especial purpose above set forth, until the Grand Lodge shall decide that a sufficient fund has accumulated for the completion of the first object, to wit: the erection of a Grand Hall, free from incumbrance, after which the same means be continued, until the second object can be, in like manner, put in operation."

This memorial was drafted by the late R. W. Bro. James Herring, and is still in the possession of his son, W. Bro.

Fred. W. Herring. Accompanying it was a subscription of 300 dollars, from one hundred brethren; and the first subscriber who paid his subscription was Bro. Greenfield Pote, for many years Grand Tyler of the Grand Lodge. Our readers may be interested to know how the fund from which the new temple was built gradually increased to the requisite sum. As we have indicated, it was at first slowly developed. Beginning in 1843 with 300 dollars, in 1846 it reached 873 dollars; 1849, 4121 dollars; 1858, 12,879 dollars; 1860, 31,111 dollars; 1866, 117,144 dollars; 1867, 207,694 dollars; 1868, 334,729 dollars; 1869, 445,873 dollars; 1874, 932,757 dollars; with 352,713 liabilities. On two occasions, in 1867 and 1873, 50,000 dollars were added to the fund by Masonic fairs.

The site upon which the temple is built is at the north-east corner of Twenty-third street and sixth avenue,—a splendid location—and its size is 92 feet by 141 feet. True, it does not compare either in size, or in grandeur, with the Masonic Temple of Philadelphia, which entirely covers a spacious lot 150 by 250 feet, and is surrounded on all sides by streets, and stands out a magnificent architectural structure; but it possesses many distinguishing features of its own, which entitle it to be considered one of the Grandest edifices in the world. The cost of the ground was 340,000 dollars. Up to June of last year, over 900,000 dollars had been spent upon the ground and the edifice.

The corner-stone was laid by Bro. James Gibson, Grand Master of Masons in New York, on June 8th, 1870, when 700 lodges were represented in the Masonic ceremonies incident thereto, and 10,000 Freemasons participated. The copestone was laid by Bro. Ellwood E. Thorne, (during the illness of Bro. Christopher C. Fox, Grand Master) on Oct. 4, 1872. In our present writing we cannot give a complete description of the Temple, though we may enumerate some of its salient features. Its distinguished architect is Bro. Napoleon Le Brun, formerly of Philadelphia, who now has a monument to his genius which will never die, as Bro. P.M. James H. Windrim has, in another world-wonder, the present Masonic Temple of Philadelphia. The New York Temple is five stories in height, including the Mansard pavilion. Its general exterior style of architecture is of pure French Renaissance, graduated, in each story, in sub-orders, viz: Tuscan, Ionic, Corinthian and Composite—all in massive granite. Its height from the street to the cornice is 94 feet. The Mansard rises 30 feet higher, while the dome reaches an altitude of 165 feet. The main entrance is on Twenty-third-street, through a Tuscan portico, flanked by two bronze pillars 14 feet in height. These are modelled after the Solomonic columns of the Bible, and give a unique and fitting finish to the portal.

The Grand Lodge Room is 85 by 92 feet in area, and 28 feet high. It is rented for other than Masonic purposes—for church services and lectures. The Grand Lodge Library is 40 feet by 21 feet. The Temple contains seven Lodge Rooms, viz: Tuscan Room, 62 by 30 feet; the Ionic Room, 63 by 26 feet; the Livingstone Room, 47 by 21 feet; the Composite Room, Corinthian Room, and the Clinton Room. The Egyptian Room is devoted to Chapter Masonry, and is in size 62 by 30 feet. The entire fifth floor, or Mansard pavilion, is occupied by the Knights Templar and members of the A. and A. Rite. The Asylum is 78 by 41 feet, and 21 feet high, and is designed after the French Gothic style, of the fourteenth century. The Council Chamber is 35 by 21 feet, and of Saracenic architecture. The Banquet Hall is of the Early Norman style, and is 55 by 27 feet in size. There is also an armory, containing hundreds of closets to contain the Knights' equipment. Two elevators conduct to the top of the Temple—one a passenger elevator, and the other for miscellaneous purposes. The entire Mason work was done under the direction of Bro. John T. Conover, and every part of the edifice was designed by the eminent architect, Bro. Napoleon Le Brun. Bro. James M. Austin, M.D., the present esteemed Grand Secretary, is the only living member of the original Board of Trustees of the Hall and Asylum Fund. The Fraternity of New York will erect the Masonic Asylum for worthy indigent Master Masons, their Widows and Orphans, as soon as the revenue from the Temple shall warrant the undertaking.

We have now given our readers a hurried sketch of the great and successful effort of the brethren in our sister jurisdiction of the New York, to erect a fitting Masonic Temple for the work of the Craft in the metropolis of America. We wish them every enjoyment of its elegant hall, and that the time may speedily arrive when they shall inaugurate their great Masonic Charity.

The Crown Prince of Denmark, not finding it convenient to attend the dedication of the new Masonic Temple in New York on the 2nd inst., sent his "regrets," accompanied with an attesting document by the Grand Secretary. The following are copies of the letters:

Den Danske Store Lands Loge.

By the command of His Royal Highness, the Crown Prince Frederik, M.W. Grand Master of Denmark, the undersigned have the pleasure to inclose the answer of His Royal Highness to the kind and fraternal invitation to the initiation festival of the Masonic Hall, in New York. In handing you this proof of the interest with which the prosperity of our most sacred Order on your continent is regarded, we remain M.W. Sir and dear brother, most respectfully and fraternally yours,

A. Rist, Keeper of the Seals,
Arist, Grand Secretary.

Copenhagen, April 20, 1875.

To the M.W. Grand Master of the State of New York, Ellwood E. Thorne, Esq., New York city.

The following is the CROWN PRINCE'S LETTER:—

HEALTH, PEACE, AND UNITY.

"It has afforded me the most sincere pleasure to receive your fraternal invitation to the initiation of the newly erected Masonic Hall in New York, which is to take place on the 2nd of June. I deeply regret that several hindrances, and especially the great distance, prevent me from answering to the inclination of my heart to meet on this occasion my Masonic Brethren on the other side of the ocean. I beg you to accept my heartfelt wishes for the prosperity of this grand undertaking, and my ardent hope that the threefold Great Architect of the Universe will bestow on it His powerful blessings, and give furtherance and success to your aim—externally, to demonstrate the greatness of the institution; internally to cement and strengthen the ties of brotherly love; and finally, to support the indigent, the widow, and the orphan.

"Fraternally,"

"FREDERIK,

"Crown Prince of Denmark.

"Copenhagen, 20th April, 1875.

ST. BRENDON'S LODGE, No. 163.—DEDICATION OF THE NEW MASONIC HALL, PARSONSTOWN.

On Tuesday, 15th inst., the imposing ceremony of dedicating the new Masonic Hall, Parsonstown, to the purposes of Freemasonry, was performed with all the ceremonies and rites peculiar to the time-honoured craft. The assemblage of the brethren from various parts was large and influential, and the fact that the quarterly communication of the Midland Counties Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the same time served to invest the occasion with additional eclat. The Right Honourable Lord Hastings, the newly appointed Grand Master of the Prov. G. Lodge, assumed his office for the first time amid the heartiest congratulations. At 12.30 the brethren and visitors assembled in the new lodge-room, took the places assigned to them by the Stewards, and at one o'clock, shortly after the arrival of the down train, the Provincial Grand Officers assembled in the ante-room, and walked in procession to the new lodge-room, the brethren all standing. Silence being proclaimed, the lodge was formally opened.

The Secretary of 163 then read the reply of the Grand Lodge to their memorial requesting permission to remove their meetings to their new hall; and in the name of the lodge requesting the Right Worshipful Grand Master to proceed with the dedication. The Provincial Grand Chaplain read prayers, after which the anthem, Psalm xc., verse 17, was sung by the choir. The ceremony of dedication was then performed by the Rt. Worshipful Grand Master in the manner prescribed by Masonic formularies. The business of the communication was finally proceeded with, and at the conclusion the brethren adjourned to Dooly's Hotel, where the members of St. Brendon's entertained their visitors to a magnificent champagne luncheon, served up in the style peculiar to that establishment.

During the progress of the works at the new hall we endeavoured to keep our readers acquainted with the style of this unique and beautiful specimen of architecture, but now that it has been brought to such a successful finale, a more detailed description may be interesting to lovers of the mediæval art.

Some eight months since the committee obtained possession of a house in William-street, and having removed the top floor and all the partitions, found at their disposal a room which measured about 31 feet long by 17 wide, and 17 high to the braces of the roof. They then instructed Mr. A. B. Milne, C.E., to prepare plans for its conversion into a hall suitable for the meeting of their ancient Order, and under his direction and superintendence the various works have been carried out, the completion of which we this day chronicle.

On entering the hall the visitors' attention is first caught by the "All-seeing Eye," which, visible through a break in a bank of clouds, seems to watch over and to see all who are in the room, of which we now proceed to give a more detailed description. The ceiling is divided to six bays or compartments by seven deep moulded ribs, resting on consoles, supported by pilasters, which, in their turn, divide the side walls into a like number of bays, and form the main features of the work. Round two sides of the room are raised platforms, on which are placed the benches for the brethren; a bench between each pair of pilasters, and at the further end is a dais approached by three steps, on which is the Master's chair, &c. The ribs are elliptical in form, being designed to make the utmost of the available height. The web is pierced with a number of round holes, which are picked out with pink and black. The mouldings, which form the top and bottom members, are in continuous pieces steamed and bent round to the required contour, and secured by bolts passing through, all the heads of which and their washers, in the form of five pointed stars, are picked out in blue and gold. The ceiling between the ribs is covered with blue paper, spangled with five pointed gold stars, and the effect of which when lit up is to give a great apparent height and expanse. The consoles have in each of their projecting members an oval hole which is picked out in pink and black, and the top and bottom tables are connected round the room by stop chamfered strings, enclosing between them the frieze, which is tinted a pale pink, and, is embellished with a variety of Masonic emblems in gold, relieved and shaded. The pilasters are eight feet high, and are wrought with bold angle staffs, with O. G. stops, and have three large reeds which are stopped both at top and bottom, and also in the centre, where a plain surface is left, on which is placed a five-pointed star and a square and compasses, carved and gilt. The panels between the pilasters and the end walls under the frieze are tinted a peculiar cream color termed "Parian Ware," and each panel is relieved by a line of scroll work and mediæval leaves, stencilled on in Sienna. On the end wall, at the entrance from ante-room, and filling the space between the frieze and the soffit of the rib, there is represented a Bible open at the 1st Chapter of St. John, resting on a crimson cushion and appropriate drapery, and above on a ribbon the well-known words, in Greek letters, "In the beginning was the Word." Under the frieze and surrounded by the scroll work is a blue lozenge, on which is inscribed in gold. "St. Brendon's Lodge, 163, dedicated 15th June, 1875." At the opposite end and occupying a similar position to the Bible, is the All-seeing Eye before referred to, shining out through a bank of summer clouds, and casting down a flood of light which illuminates an expanse of mountain and forest underneath, which stretches away on either side, and appears to extend backward to the distant horizon. The door leading from the ante-room is a very fine piece of work. The side showing into the hall has its panels raised, and on each panel is a shield bearing Masonic emblems; the framing is all moulded with quirked mouldings wrought in the solid and having O. G. stops. The reverse of the door is stop chamfered, the stops being Scotia and fillet, and the jamblings are finished so as to correspond, as are also the architraves, which have their sides and heads produced past their intersections, and finished with ogival termination. All the chairs and benches are of red pine, stained and varnished; those for the brethren having plain backs; those for the various officers being distinguished by gablets, behind which rise staves bearing banners, on which are displayed their insignia. The ends of the benches and officers' chairs are of open work of original design, and become more ornate as their occupants are higher in degree. The lighting is provided for by two gaseliers formed like five pointed stars, suspended from ornamental ventilators fixed in the ceiling, through which and the aperture in the wall ribs the heated air is carried off, while cold air is admitted under the side platforms and dais by three large valves which communicate with the outer air, and can be opened or closed from the inside. In winter this air supply will be taken from a hot air chamber which is situated on the ground. The ante-room is lighted by a very handsome bracket in mediæval style, with Masonic emblem.

Throughout the whole there has been an endeavour to keep to the mediæval spirit which caused all work to exhibit its construction, and to make the constructive features ornamental—not to hide any work or material, but to let it tell its own story of its quality and use. All the exposed woodwork, as the ribs, consoles, pilasters, door, and door-case, are simply stained and varnished, thus showing out the natural grain and beauties of the timber, while machine mouldings stuck on and all imitations of any kind have been carefully avoided. By adherence to this principle Lodge 163 now possess a hall pronounced by the universal consent of the brethren from various parts assembled there, to be second to none in the province, and for its size not surpassed in Ireland.

For the architect and designer, Mr. A. B. Milne, praise in our columns would be superfluous, as his work speaks for itself, and it will be an eloquent and lasting testimonial to his fine taste and architectural abilities. To the energetic Secretary of the Building Committee, Mr. R. J. Sheppard, belongs the second meed of praise; under his careful supervision the Masonic details were stringently adhered to, adding in no small degree to the innumerable points of beauty possessed by the architect's design. The ribs, consoles, and entire gasfitting and heating arrangements were supplied and erected by Messrs. Wallace & Co., Wilmer Road, in their usually excellent style. To Messrs. Brooks, Thomas, & Co., of Dublin, were entrusted the painting and decorating department, and the manner in which this eminent firm acquitted themselves claims for them the utmost credit, aided as they were by their talented artist, Mr. Morris. The carpentry and all the erecting work was executed by Mr. James Carroll, and Mr. Henry Dillon constructed the benches and chairs in the most tradesmanlike manner.

PIC-NIC OF THE SKELMERSDALE LODGE, No. 1380.

By the kind permission of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. Eng., Prov. G.M. West Lancashire, a pic-nic party in connection with the lodge that bears his name, and of which he was the first W.M., took place on Wednesday, the 16th June, in his lordship's grounds, Lathom House, near Ormskirk.

The weather, unfortunately, was not of the most favourable character, as shortly after the start the rain began to fall and continued so until the afternoon, when the rain cleared off and remained so until the arrival of the party on their return home.

A select party of about 40 ladies and brethren met at the Queen's Hotel, Waterloo, where the lodge holds its meetings, shortly after half-past twelve o'clock, and as a pleasant preliminary of the day's proceedings, the W.M., (Bro. Bark) presented Bro. George Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M. 1380, with a very handsome dining room timepiece, and ornaments to match, in recognition of services which he had rendered to the "Skelmersdale Lodge," at and since its formation.

The timepiece bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. George Broadbridge, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., West Lancashire, by the members of the Skelmersdale Lodge, No. 1380, as a mark of their esteem and appreciation of his valuable services in promoting the prosperity of the lodge since its formation. June, 1875." After the whole of the company had assembled in one of the large rooms of the hotel, and partaken of cakes and wine, Bro. F. G. Bark, W.M. of the lodge, gave the toast of "The Queen," in felicitous terms, and afterwards proceeded to make the presentation to Bro. Broadbridge. He said that many of the members would be aware, that when the lodge was started, one brother (Broadbridge) particularly took very active part in forming it, and since then he had nurtured it, so as to enable it to grow to the state in which it now stood. He did not for one moment say that Bro. Broadbridge was the sole cause of the lodge coming to the perfection which it had reached, because they knew he had received valuable help from one who was no longer amongst them (the late Bro. Capt. Mott). Nevertheless, Bro. Broadbridge was the chief promoter and nurturer of the lodge, and if anything wanted doing, he was always ready and willing with a helping hand. (Hear, hear.) There was nothing in the Order which Freemasons more liked to see recognised than valuable services; and in the present instance the brethren of the Skelmersdale Lodge had felt it their bounden duty to recognise the services of their brother in a substantial manner. Bro. Broadbridge was not only esteemed by the members of that lodge, but by every one who knew him in the province of West Lancashire. He trusted that Bro. Broadbridge would long be spared to give the lodge his countenance, advice, and help. After referring to the fact that nearly every one in connection with the lodge had subscribed, the W.M. made the presentation of the testimonial. In acknowledging the gift, Bro. Broadbridge, who was loudly applauded, briefly thanked the brethren for their very handsome testimonial. Since the consecration of the Skelmersdale Lodge he had watched its progress with a great amount of interest, and he assured them that that interest would not cease so long as he had health and strength. The Skelmersdale Lodge was very dear to their P.G.M., and he trusted the members would do everything in their power to uphold its dignity and position, and do honour to the name which it bore. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Broadbridge then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who responded in pointed and effective terms. "The Ladies," given by the W.M., was acknowledged by Bro. Melladew.

Speech-making and present-giving over, the happy party immediately got "on board" a four-horse omnibus, which was waiting outside, and proceeded on the journey to Lathom House. Rain fell the greater part of the way, making the position of outsiders anything but pleasant; and their position was not improved by the overhanging trees under which they had to pass on the way to Lathom House. It required a pretty sharp look-out, and any quantity of stooping, to avoid contact with the branches and the reception of a shower-bath: but with all these difficulties the outside passengers enjoyed many a hearty laugh. The rain cleared off as the party, after nearly three hours' driving, arrived at their destination. Luncheon was immediately served, after which the party was allowed to inspect a portion of the house and the grounds. Dancing and other amusements peculiar to a pic-nic were then enjoyed until tea-time came, and shortly afterwards the start was made for Waterloo. After a pleasant moonlight drive, the party arrived there about half-past ten o'clock, having greatly enjoyed the first pic-nic in connection with the Skelmersdale Lodge, which is certainly not likely to be the last.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

LIFE GOVERNORS FROM LIVERPOOL.

Following the excellent example of Bro. Constable in connection with the Masonic Institution for Girls, Bro. George Broadbridge, P. Prov. G.D.C. West Lancashire, P.M. 241, 1380, &c., recently organised a drawing for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the result has proved eminently satisfactory. Bro. Broadbridge personally organised the scheme, issued the books for the drawing, and spared no effort to make it worthy of the Masonic position of Liverpool. By dint of hard work, and assisted by several willing brethren, he succeeded in realising 90 guineas by the sale of shilling tickets, which entitled the drawing for nine Life Governorships of the Institution. The ballot took place at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Friday, the 11th inst., when there was a very large attendance of the brethren. The chair was occupied by Bro. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec. The following were the successful members and names of those who secured the Life Governorships:—

- 129, Bro. E. O. C. Rothwell,
- 19, " W. Johnson,
- 2372, " H. Normanton,
- 220, " Henry Scott,
- 2636, " W. H. Ward,
- 1093, " H. E. Maltass,
- 1414, " Sefton Chapter, 680,
- 890, " Dr. J. Kellett Smith,
- 2241, " John Marshall.

Bro. Broadbridge has set an example which might well be imitated in other provinces in England. It may also be stated that Bro. Broadbridge has undertaken to serve as one of the Stewards at the approaching festival in connection with the Institution.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF FREEMASONRY.

The attention of lodges and brethren is called to a new Cyclopædia of Freemasonry, which Bro. Kenning is about to publish in a handy form and compendious arrangement. The work will treat fully on Masonic history and archaeology up to the present time, and will contain all subjects which fairly form part of a Masonic cyclopædia. Some topics will be introduced for the first time; some omitted which tend to make most of our handbooks too bulky for the general reader, since they include subjects which may be considered external to Freemasonry proper. It is hoped, however, that this new publication will be both condensed and yet comprehensive, lucid in statement and complete in treatment, and that it will become a real and portable vade mecum for English, Scotch and Irish Freemasons. No efforts will be spared to make it worthy of our great Order.

The Cyclopædia will appear early in 1876. Subscribers' names will be printed with the work. In order to meet the convenience of the brethren generally, and to ensure a large circle of original subscribers, though the selling price of the work will be 10s. 6d., the Cyclopædia will be sent (post free) to lodges and individual brethren, original subscribers, for 7s. 6d. Subsequently to the closing of the subscription list the amount will be, for the public and for the Craft, 10s. 6d.

Orders will be received at the Office of the Freemason, 198, Fleet-street.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE MASONS' COMPANY.

The names of Thomas Shadbolt, Nicholas Young, John Thompson, and William Stanton are of frequent occurrence in the minute book about the year 1682.

A Mr. Henry Wilson was elected Master in 1683, but in the year 1621 the accounts are signed among others by a William Wilson, with a flourish before the name which might be "Sir," but this is 50 years before Bro. Woodford expects to see the name.

William Hamond is evidently the same as Hamon. The name of —Waisford is not to be found about the year 1682, nor are the names Richard Penket, James Collier, Richard Sankey, Henry Littler, John Elam, and Hugh Brewer, to be found about the year 1646.

There appears to have been a meeting of the Company whenever there was any business to be done. The minute book records during the year 1682:—

- (I.) A Quarter Court held 16th Jan. at Masons' Hall.
- (II.) A Court of Assts. " 28th Feb. " " "
- (III.) A Quarter Court " 11th July " " "
- (IV.) A Court " 26th Sept. " " "
- (V.) A Quarter-day Ct. " 3rd Oct. " " "
- (VI.) A Court held 13th Oct., 1682, at the Rose Tavern, Leadenhall-street.
- (VII.) A Court held 24th Oct., 1682, at the old "Dogg" Tavern, in Ludgate-street.
- (VIII.) A Court of Assistants held 30th Oct., 1682, being Lord Mayor's Day, in Masons' Hall.
- (IX.) A Court of Assistants held 21st Nov., 1682, in Masons' Hall.

I cannot find that the Company ever dined at the "Half Moon," Cheapside.

Such is the result of another search kindly made for me by the Clerk of the Company. A.F.A.W.

MASONIC NUMISMATICS.

I am glad to see my notice of the Masonic Token of 1792 has led to a little correspondence on that subject, and I hope one day we shall hear of others of a similar character, for this country is sadly behind Germany as respects either a collection or history of Masonic Tokens, probably owing, as the Editor of the Freemason puts it, to there having been very few issued in this country.

I bought a modest-looking Masonic token last week, quite new to me, and I shall be glad to hear if there are any others still in existence.

On the obverse are two columns surmounted by an arch, and "All seeing-Eye." On the left column (to the spectator) is the letter C, and on the right, the letter W. The columns rest on tessellated pavement, with apparently a pedestal in the centre. On the reverse are simply the square and compasses, with G in the centre. It is much worn, and if there were any inscriptions or mottoes originally, they are now invisible.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

I observe under the head of "Masonic Notes, &c.," in the Freemason of the 12th inst., that Bro. William James Hughan mentions and describes a Masonic Token struck to commemorate the election of the Prince of Wales as G.M. of Freemasons, 24th Nov., 1790. It is identically the same as the one that I have, but the words engraved on the rim of mine are very distinct, "Masonic Halfpenny Token," the rest is not so distinct; therefore, I think it most probable that the remaining part of the inscription is the same as stated by Bro. Hughan, namely, "Schichley Fecit, 1794."

Reviews.

Those who were at the Installation will well remember the admirable effect produced by Sir M. Costa's Processional March, and how much it was appreciated and applauded. We are very glad therefore to welcome it in print, as a very agreeable addition to our Masonic musical "repertoire." The march does its able composer, our well known and worthy brother, every credit, and we trust that it may receive the ready support of our good Order. Freemasons like many good things, and not the least of all, music of a high order, and effective melody; and we commend to their patronizing notice this composition of Bro. Sir M. Costa, not only a spirited souvenir of an unforgettable day, but as a most appropriate march to be employed on various festive and solemn occasions in Freemasonry. For our part, wherever we shall hear it, whether played by tiny hands or manipulated by the wondrous skill of some fair professor of legerdemain, we shall always recall that eventful day; and its strain, spirited and happy, will revive in us welcome recollections, alike of an unique gathering and of our Royal Grand Master,

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

We have received a pamphlet from Bro. Tew, D.P.G.M. of W. Yorkshire, relative to the Boys' School, which we do not deem it well in the interests of Freemasonry to publish.

For the welfare of the Boys' School, however, we have felt it to be our duty to publish the following letter from Bro. Binckes:—

To the Yorkshire Vice-Presidents of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, Wood Green, London, N.

Report of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province of West Yorkshire, 29th A.L. 5875.

I have this day received a copy of a pamphlet with the above title, accompanied by a note addressed to me, and signed, "Yours fraternally, T. W. Tew," from which the following is an extract:—"West Yorkshire does not like the repeated visits of the Secretary of the Boys' School, and thinks the contributions will be maintained without the Secretary's personal visitations, and the amount charged in the expenditure be saved."

To what extent the D.P.G.M. is to be accepted as the exponent of the feeling of the Prov. Grand Master, the Prov. Grand Officers and brethren of West Yorkshire, it is of course impossible for me to say. This only I can assert, that the kindness extended to me on all occasions by the late Provincial Grand Master, and the brethren generally, the courtesy and genial warmth with which I have been invariably received, prevented any such impression on my mind, producing indeed, the conviction of the existence of a feeling entirely opposed to that described by Bro. Tew. If I have been mistaken, I can but express my sincere regret, and can assure you that you will never find me pressing an unwelcome presence on your various assemblies. My principal reason in addressing you, however, is with reference to the extraordinary contents of the pamphlet, into the details of which I cannot now enter, being prevented from doing so by the incessant pressure of business arising out of the ensuing Festival. I simply now, in the interests of the Institution, and in my own name, and on behalf of others, beg you to suspend your judgment until a reply can be given to the ex parte statements to which your attention has been drawn. There is not one of these statements of which a satisfactory explanation cannot be given, if it be thought desirable to give publicity to charges and investigations, which unhappily have already occupied a very large portion of valuable time.

That any gentleman recognising a proper spirit of fairness and impartiality should accept as facts the statements of one deeply and personally inculpated, without the slightest enquiry from others whose conduct is called in question, and himself adopt such statements as truthful by publishing them in his own name, is to my mind one of those mysteries impossible to fathom. From first to last, the pamphlet is one long series of one-sided advocacy and misstatement, revealing at every step its source of inspiration, but as easily confuted as is a house of cards destroyed by a touch.

In the earnest hope that the interests of the Institution, for which you and others have done so much, may not be damaged by this publication, and in the fullest assurance that the confidence reposed by you in the Committee and myself has never been abused, and in the hope that that confidence may long be continued,

I have the honour to be,

Your faithful and obedient Servant and Brother,

FREDERICK BINCKES,
Secretary.

19th June, 1875.

P.S.—One correction I cannot delay:—At page nine there is published a short note of mine, wilfully garbled, which is so absurdly printed as it stands, that to suppose me capable of inditing it would be to place me on a level, as regards mental capacity, with the Head-Master, through whom the copy must have been furnished to Bro. Tew. My note was as follows:—

"A letter addressed to the Chairman and Members of the House Committee has this day been delivered at this address. Like your client, you appear determined to ignore the existence of a recognised official in the person of yours, &c."

Contrast this with the note as printed, and let every one draw his own conclusions.

MASONIC BALL AT CAMBRIDGE.

The May term is the brightest time in Cambridge Masonry, as most men take their B.A. degrees in June, and they are anxious to proceed as far as they can in Masonry before leaving the University. The following is the list of the chief officers of the various lodges and chapters, and it shows that Masonry has established a firm footing among the "dons" as well as the junior members of the University:—Craft, W. F. Smith, Fellow of St. John's, W.M.; the Rev. J. W. Cartmell, P.G.C., Fellow of Christ's, W.M. elect. Royal Arch,—Professor R. K. Miller, P.M., P.G.J. W., Fellow of St. Peter's, Z. Mark,—R. T. Caldwell, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., Fellow of Corpus Christi, W.M.; F. C. Wace, P.M., Fellow of St. John's, W.M. elect. Royal Ark Mariners,—The Rev. Dr. Walker, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.W., late Fellow of Corpus Christi, N. Rose Croix,—R. T. Caldwell, M.W.S. Knights Templar,—The Rev. Dr. Walker, Preceptor. All these degrees were conferred on a large number of candidates during the term, and the Masonic year was wound up by the annual ball of the Isaac Newton University Lodge, which was given at the Guildhall on the 28th of May. The following brethren acted as Stewards, in addition to those already named:—The Right Hon the Earl of Hardwicke, P.M., R.W.P.G.M.; the Rev. J. F. Hardy, B.D., P.M., P. Prov. G.C., Fellow of Sidney, Sussex; the Rev. A. B. Frazer, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., Past Grand Chaplain; R. C. Jebb, Fellow of Trinity and Public Orator; Lord Theobald Butler, the Hon J. Plunket, and others. Bro. Gilbert Ainslie, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., acted as Honorary Secretary, and under his skilful management all the arrangements were most successfully carried out. All the brethren first appeared in Craft clothing, and those belonging to the higher degrees changed successively to the dresses of Mark or Ark, Royal Arch, Rose Croix, Templars, and Knights of Malta, to each of which degrees a separate set of Lancers was allotted. A few brethren also wore the clothing of the Royal Order of Scotland and the Red Cross of Constantine. Bro. Dan Godfrey, with his band of the Guards, supplied the music. The company numbered about 370, and dancing was kept up till four o'clock.

Poetry.

THE W.M.'S SONG.—"TO ORDER, BRETHREN."

Dedicated to the Rev. E. P. Brette, D.D., W.M. Lodge 1460, By T. BURDETT YEOMAN, 1460.

List whilst I sing of rank and fame, of confidence and state, Of brotherhoods and governments, how changeable their fate.

But one there is above the rest, whose virtues are untold, For honour is their first regard, and faithful is the mould.

Chorus: "To order, Brethren," as Masons free,

'Tis the first time I ask;

For the Craft at large, and this our lodge Is my exclusive task.

Again the sound of gavel rings, a second time I rise, To ask if you have ought to say: "Oh, yes!" some brother cries,

"Worshipful Sir, I wish to state, that we have funds to spare,

For charity some ten pounds give, to girls and boys a share." Chorus: "To order, Brethren," etc.

For the third time I rise to ask if ought you have to say,— "Worshipful Master and dear Sirs, your kind attention pay, Outside our lodge a brother waits, who humbly craves our aid,

With troubles sore he seeks for help, 'Accept my thanks,' he said."

Chorus: "To order, Brethren," etc.

Brethren, again, before we close, let us invoke a blessing From our Great Architect and King, whose love we are confessing;

Now may he deign o'er us to watch, and hold us in His keeping,

In health, and strength, and holy bond, at home, abroad, and sleeping.

Chorus: "To order, Brethren," etc.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday last, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, S.V.P., was in the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, J.V.P., in the Senior Vice-President's chair; and Bro. H. Garrod, P.M. 749, in the Junior Vice-President's. Among the brethren present were Bros. John Hervey, G. Sec., John M. Clabon; S. Rawson, W. Smith, Herbert Dicketts, W. Mann, W. Stephens, Joseph Smith, H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, H. M. Levy, J. Diprose, W. T. Howe, James Robins, R. B. Webster, J. W. Stedwell, S. S. Hickman, H. T. Wood, C. P. Cobham, J. J. Gosset, C. Jardine, W. S. Masterman, J. Bengemann, W. Sugg, H. Driver, J. Ross, L. Keays, A. J. Pritchard, C. F. Hlogard, E. King, A. B. Marten, D. Betts, E. Wits, H. Massey (Freemason), and C. E. Habicht.

The grants of £20 and under £50 made on the former occasion, to the amount of £170, were first confirmed, and the lodge then proceeded with the consideration of new cases, which numbered altogether twenty-three. Of these three were deferred, and one was refused. The remainder were relieved with sums ranging from £40 to £5. Two received £40 each; one £30; eight 20; two £15; four £10; and two £5; making altogether £350. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN AT WORMHILL.

Yesterday the officers and members of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, 1235, of Buxton, with several brethren from other lodges, met at Wormhill, by the kind invitation of Bro. the Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, M.A., Vicar of Wormhill and Rural Dean of Buxton, to assist in laying the foundation stone of a fountain to the memory of "James Brindley," the eminent engineer, who was born in the parish, at Tunstead, about a mile from Wormhill. The plans show a very elegant stone structure for the springs near the centre of the village, and which, in the most droughty summers, were never known to fail. The architect is Bro. Robert Griggs, of Gray's Inn-square, London; and the fountain is expected to be finished and opened for the use of the village, about the end of July. The following brethren were present on the occasion:—Bros. Wm. Smith, W.M.; E. C. Milligan, S.W.; E. J. Sykes, J.W.; A. J. Harrison, Ph.D., Chaplain; Wm. Boughen, Treasurer; A. Barnett, Secretary; J. H. Lawson, S.D.; Jos. Whalley, Superintendent of Works; Charles Adams, D.C.; George Marsden, Organist; W. Goodwin, I.G.; A. Pyke, Tyler; George Goodwin, C. Gwinnell, Stewards; R. R. Duke, P.P.G.D.C., P.M.; Frederick Turner, P.M., P.G.S.D.; Josiah Taylor, I.P.M., P.G.S.B.; Augustus A. Bagshawe, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., P.P.G., Chaplain.—Members: Rev. J. M. Cranswick, P.G.D.; W. H. Newton, Charles Wilkinson, G. F. Barnard, J. C. Bates, Samuel Taylor, Thos. Griffiths, W. Millward, James C. Hyde, J. G. Meggison.

The following brethren from other lodges were also present:—Bro. Robt. Bramwell (Peveril of the Peak Lodge), J.W. 654; George Shaysles (Clifton Lodge, Blackpool), J.W. 703; S. W. Ready (Peveril of the Peak), P.M., 654; John Cockshott (Concord), W.M. 343; Thos. Roper (St. John's Wigton), P.P.G.S.W. for Cumberland; Jno. Comyn (Commercial Lodge), 411, P.P.S.W. for Notts; Jno. D. Simpson (Peveril of the Peak), 654; John Yarker (Integrity, Manchester), P.M.; R. H. Holt (Peveril of the Peak), 654; Joseph Wright (Peveril of the Peak), S.W. 654; &c.

The lodge, adjourned from the last regular lodge night, met, under a dispensation from Bro. Okeover, D.P.G.M., in the School-room, Wormhill, the foundation stone of which was laid with Masonic Ceremony in 1871, and after opening in the First Degree the brethren formed in due order and proceeded to the site of the proposed fountain, where Bro. Wm. Smith, W.M., laid the foundation stone, assisted by Bros. E. C. Milligan, S.W., E. J. Sykes, J.W., J. Simpson, &c., and after the position of the stone had been tested by the various tools with which an operative Mason completes his work, Bro. Smith declared the stone properly laid; newspapers and coins having previously been deposited beneath it. The symbolical corn was sprinkled, and wine and oil were poured upon the surface with the usual ceremonies. Bro. the Rev. A. J. Harrison, P.M., Chaplain, then delivered a very able biographical address on Brinley, which appeared to interest all present. "God save the Queen" was then sung, and the brethren returned to the school-room, and the lodge was closed. From these pleasant labours the brethren went to refreshment at the Vicarage, where the Vicar and his estimable wife entertained them in the hospitable and sumptuous manner for which they are so well known, and a most agreeable and happy day was spent.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution assembled on Thursday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. H. Browne, presided, and there were also present Bros. Major J. Creaton, Benjamin Head, Joshua Nunn, A. H. Tattershall, Walter Wellsman, Thos. F. P. Griffiths Smith, Thos. W. White, John Symonds, J. G. Marsh, Jesse Turner, R. B. Webster, J. A. Farnfield, Thos. Massa, Col. J. Peters, H. M. Levy, H. Massey, (Freemason); and R. Wentworth Little, Sec.

The business transacted was merely of a formal character, after completing which the Committee adjourned.

Masonic Tidings.

Three children of the Prince and Princess of Wales—the Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maude—and suite arrived at St. Leonard's on Saturday afternoon by South-Eastern Railway, and drove to the Royal Victoria Hotel, where they will remain for some time. Prince Albert Edward Victor and Prince George Ernest Albert, eldest sons of the Prince of Wales, paid a private visit in sailors' costume to Liverpool on Saturday, accompanied by the Rev. Canon Tarver, of Chester, with whom the young Princes are at present staying. They visited the Exchange, St. George's Hall, and also the Allen steamer Sarmatian, with which they appeared to be greatly interested. Canon Tarver was classical tutor to the Prince of Wales.

The Consecration of the Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540, will take place in the large ball-room of the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark, on Friday, July 2nd, at half-past three. Banquet at half-past five p.m., sharp. Tickets for banquet one guinea. The Ceremonies of Consecration and Installation by Bro. John Hervey, G.S., P.G.D., assisted by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain; Bro. R. W. Little, P.G. Secretary, Middlesex, and some clerical brethren as Chaplains. The musical arrangements under the direction of Bro. W. Kipps, J.W. 1531, Org., 79, &c.

The Ceremony of Installation will be worked at the Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, Wheatheaf Hotel, Hand Court, Holborn, on Tuesday evening, June 29th, by Bro. John Bingemann, the W.M. of the Mother Lodge, No. 55. The lodge will be opened at seven o'clock.

Bro. Captain Boyton visited Manchester on Monday last, and exhibited his life-saving apparatus on the great lake at Bellevue Gardens in the presence of a vast assemblage of spectators.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—The funeral of Bro. Sir Christoffel Josephus Brand, ex-Speaker of the House of Assembly, was a most imposing affair, the cortège being nearly a mile in length. The deceased gentleman was buried with Masonic honours.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales inspected the Royal Body Guard of the Yeomen of the Guard in the Garden of St. James's Palace, on Tuesday. The Corps paraded under the command of Lord Skelmersdale, the Captain. The following officers were present:—Lieutenant-Colonel Need (the Lieutenant), Colonel the Hon. W. J. Colville (the Ensign), Lieutenant Colonel Patterson, Lieutenant-Colonel Todd, Captain Morley, and Colonel Hume, C.B. (the Exons), and Lieutenant-Colonel Sutton (the Adjutant). His Royal Highness having carefully inspected the ranks, expressed himself much pleased with the appearance of these fine old veterans.

The meetings of the Domestic Lodge of Instruction are now held at the Surrey Masonic Hall.

A literary and scientific "at home" of the Urban Club was held in the quaint old hall of the club-house, St. John's-gate, yesterday week. There was collected together a great number of distinguished men.

We understand that Miss Davis, head governess of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, who resigned her position as from Midsummer-day, desires now to withdraw that resignation.

The American Team of riflemen who have come to Dublin to take part in a rifle competition have been fêted in such a manner that they have been compelled to decline further invitations, in order to practise for the coming competition. They, however, accepted an invitation to a Masonic dinner on the 24th inst.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland will be held under the auspices of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 779, at the Town Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, on Tuesday, 29th inst.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk will be held at the Town Hall, Bury St. Edmund's, on Monday, the 5th July, at 12 o'clock.

A sum of about £22,000 has now been received at the Mansion House on account of the Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund.

The Prince of Wales has accepted the honorary presidency of the British Committee of the Brussels International Exhibition, which is to take place next year.

MANSION HOUSE.—The Lady Mayoress on Tuesday last received the pupils of the Masonic Institution for Girls, at Battersea Rise, accompanied by Miss Jarwood and Miss Davies, to luncheon. The girls were those to whom prizes were on the 11th May last distributed by the Lady Mayoress. The visitors were received by her ladyship in the State rooms, and afterwards proceeded to the Long Parlour, where an elegant repast was served, after which a tour was made over the Mansion House, and at parting the Lady Mayoress presented each of the girls with a workbasket filled with sweets, as a souvenir of their visit.

The pupils of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will visit the Crystal Palace for their day's holiday on Tuesday. They will leave Clapham Junction by train at 9.42 a.m., and participate in all the amusements of the Palace during the day. Out of the balance of Stewards' fees remaining in hand after the late festival thirty guineas have been handed over by the Stewards towards defraying the expenses of the treat.

An authoritative denial is given to the statement that the Duke of Connaught intends to purchase Rockingham Castle, as an Irish residence.

The famous violin, formerly belonging to Baillet, the celebrated violinist, has been purchased by Mr. George Maddock, of Leeds, for 600 guineas.

Lord Carnarvon has (the Globe says) ordered that a searching inquiry should be made as to the origin of that epidemic of measles which has created such havoc in Fiji.

METROPOLITAN.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—A meeting of the members of this lodge was held on Tuesday (15th ult.), at the Old Gate of St. John of Jerusalem, St. John's-lane, Clerkenwell, to consider the question whether a summer festival should be held. The W.M., Bro. J. While, presided, and was supported by Past Masters Crump, Winsland, Davies, Brothers, Griggs, Halford, Percy, Patmore, Sutton, Pettet, Snell, Tallerman, and others. The lodge unanimously agreed to have the festival, also unanimously agreeing to accept the W.M.'s proposition that the festival should be held at Bro. Stone's, the Ship Hotel, Shepperton, the day fixed being Tuesday, the 13th inst. Some of the brethren agreed to make up a stage coach party, while others set about organizing other road parties, to suit the convenience of those for whom the Thames Valley line of the South Western would not be so readily available. A cordial vote of thanks to the W.M. for summoning the brethren thus early closed proceedings.

PROVINCIAL.

GIBRALTAR.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE, (No. 115).—The installation meeting of this old lodge (101 years) was held on Tuesday evening, June 15th, at the lodge rooms, Tuckey's Lane, Bro. F. Ashton, W.M., presiding at the opening of the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. resigned the chair to Bro. T. J. Haynes, P.M., who raised to the sublime degree of M.M. Bros. Espinosa and Villalba. Bros. J. J. R. Morgan, P.M., and J. Holliday, P.M. 325, I.C., presented to the acting and installing W.M. (Bro. F. J. Haynes), Bro. John B. Haynes, S.W., for installation, the W.M. being also assisted by P.M. Cavana, and P.M. Franceri, I.M. 325, I.C. The ceremony of installation having been very impressively performed, the new W.M. invested Bros. F. Ashton, I.P.M.; M. Gomez, S.W.; A. Gimenez, J.W.; Valarino, Treas.; Adolfo Gomez, Sec.; Clavarezo, S.D.; Avellano, J.D.; Cortes, D.C.; Pau, I.G.; G. Llamas, Tyler. The lodge was closed at the conclusion of business, and the brethren adjourned to the lodge refreshment rooms and partook of an elegant repast, and at which the brethren concluded the evening, in a most enjoyable manner, and was closed in peace and harmony.

LEICESTER.—JOHN O'GAUNT LODGE (No. 523).—The annual festival and installation meeting of this distinguished lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on St. John's Day, 24th ult., when the well merited esteem in which both the W.M. and W.M. Elect are held by all the brethren in the province drew together one of the most influential meetings ever assembled in the district. In addition to a large muster of officers and brethren of the lodge, there were present—Bros. Kelly, P.P.G.M.; George Toller, P.M., P.P.G.M.; W. Sculthorpe, P.M., P.P.G.D.; F. J. Baines, P.M., P.P.G.P.; A. M. Duff, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; Clement Stretton, P.M., P.P.G.W.; Beaumont Smith, P.M., Prov. Grand Treasurer; Rev. W. Langley, P.M., P.P.G.W.; J. M. McAllister, P.G.S.D.; A. Palmer, P.M., P.P.G.A.P.; Dr. Clifton, P.M., P.P.G.P.; W. Weare, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; W. M. Smith, P.P.S.B.; R. A. Barber, W.W. 1391, P.G.P.; C. E. Stretton, P.G.A.P.; G. W. Statham, P.G. Steward; E. Mason, S.W. 1391; J. Farmer, 329, U.S.A.; C. S. Preston, J.W. 50, P.G.S.B.; T. Mason, S.D. 50; T. White, 776, Ireland; A. Chamberlain, S.D. 1391; R. B. Smith, P.P.G.A.D.C.; J. Ewen, Sec., 1391; H. D. Palmer, P.M. 1322; G. A. Lohr, P.P.G.O., Dr. Hunt, Dr. McCormack, S. Tebbutt, J.D. 279, &c., &c. The lodge was opened in due form, and after the usual business was disposed of, Brother J. T. Thorpe, S.W., and W.M. Elect, was presented by Brother F. J. Baines, P.M., to Brother Partridge, W.M., for installation. That very interesting and important ceremony was performed by the brother in question in a manner which excited the admiration of every one present, and may be justly described as simply perfect. The newly-installed W.M., Brother J. T. Thorpe, invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. W. T. Rowlett, S.W.; T. A. Wykes, J.W.; Rev. H. E. Von Sturmer, Chaplain; W. B. Smith, P.M., Treasurer; Richard Taylor, Secretary; W. C. Strout, S.D.; G. Odell, J.D.; C. Johnson, P.M., Organist; J. Young, I.G.; A. Sargeant and J. F. Smith, Stewards; C. Bebbidge and T. Dunn, Tylers. A most interesting feature in the evening's proceedings was the presentation of a P.M.'s jewel, bearing a suitable inscription, to the retiring W.M., Brother Partridge. Brother Kelly, F.R.H.S., the Past Provincial Grand Master, in presenting this token of esteem, and in moving a heartily deserved vote of thanks, complimented Brother Partridge in the highest terms on the able manner in which he had conducted the business of the lodge during his year of office, which had been marked by such a measure of success and prosperity as to fairly earn for him a lasting reputation, and whose rule over the lodge certainly could never be excelled. Brother Kelly also gracefully alluded to his invaluable services as Prov. Grand Secretary. The resolution was ably seconded by Brother Toller, Past Prov. G.S.W., and carried with enthusiastic approbation. Bro. Partridge, in acknowledging this mark of respect, said he accepted it with feelings of more than ordinary pride and pleasure, from the fact that it was an unusual event in the history of the lodge, only two similar presentations having taken place, and while holding it in high estimation as an evidence of their brotherly love and esteem, it would serve as an incentive to encourage his attendance amongst them so long as health and strength permitted. Other unimportant matters, and expressions of hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, terminated the business of the lodge, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Entering upon the pleasures of this "Fourth Degree," upwards of sixty brethren sat down to enjoy the many tempting and varied delicacies, in and out of season, which the indefatigable Stewards, Bros. Sargeant and Smith, had amply provided. Bro. Charlesworth, from his extensive conservatories, gorgeously decorated the tables with rare and choice plants and flowers, and, in addition, furnished a goodly supply of strawberry plants in pots, heavily laden with fruit, which were duly appreciated. The W.M., in a series of excellent speeches, indicative of great ability, submitted the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were enthusiastically responded to on the part of the brethren. Bro. Major Palmer, P.M., 1329, in acknowledging the toast of the "Visitors," paid a high compliment to the officers of the lodge for their first-class working, the appointments and decoration of the hall, the excellent arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of all present, and the fraternal welcome accorded, and kind hospitality extended to the visitors. During the evening, the musical talent of the lodge exhibited a proficiency and excellence in the performance of vocal and instrumental music scarcely to be equalled in the province. The brethren who so ably and agreeably contributed to the harmony and enjoyment of the evening were Bro. Rowlett, P.P.G.O., solo-oboe and pianist; Bro. T. A. Wykes, P.G.O., solo-bassoon and organist; Bros. Tebbutt, A. Palmer, P.M., H. Atkins, and others. The Tyler's toast and parting song terminated a meeting which was distinguished by the observance of those truly Masonic sentiments so happily expressed by His Royal Highness the Grand Master as "Loyalty and Charity."

LIVERPOOL.—DOWNSHIRE LODGE (No. 594).—The annual installation day of the "Old Downshire," as it is familiarly called, which took place on Thursday, the 24th June, was perhaps one of the most pleasant ever yet experienced in connection with the annual ceremonial, and gives good promise of a highly successful year in connection with this favourite lodge. Installation, presentations, and banquet were each parts of the day's proceedings, each of the leading features being greatly enjoyed by the brethren present. The summons specified half-past ten o'clock as the hour for commencing business at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and shortly after that hour the lodge was opened in due form by Brother Henry Hunt, W.M., who was supported by a strong array of officers, members, and visitors. The officers and members of 594 present were—Bros. W. D. Rowse, P.M.; S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B., P.M., D.C.; F. Sergeant, P.M.; F. Dilcock, S.W.; R. D. France, J.W.; R. Ing, P.M., Treasurer; J. L. Haughton, Secretary; J. Lecomber, S.D.; J. H. Martin, J.D.; T. Boswell, I.G.; J. Whitfield, S.; W. G. Veale, Organist; P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler; W. L. Moss, C. Vonger, S. P. Peterson, B. H. Menzies, G. H. Thomas, J. Milner, J. G. Hartley, W. Jones, A. Rankin, R. J. Wilkinson, J. White, G. Maxwell, S. Price, L. B. Goodman, I. DeFrece, J. Hanes, R. Williams, R. Maddox, P. Stephenson, and H. A. Stewart. The list of visitors included the names of Brothers T. Wylie, P.P.G. Reg.; W. Doyle, P.J.G.D.; H. Nelson, P.M. 673, W.M. 1505; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673, S.W. 1505; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; J. Hocken, P.M. 673, Treasurer, 1505; J. M. Hart, Secretary, 1502; J. Edginton, W.M. 1182; J. Jones, P.M. 594, 1393; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1276; E. O. Rothwell, W.M. 1356; R. Holme, 673; T. Whitfield, 203; W. F. Homer, 19, S.C.; W. P. Jennings, 249; J. O. Rea, 1182; and B. Russell, 1393. The ceremony of installation was very effectively performed by Brother J. W. Baker, P.M. 241, who placed Brother Thomas Dilcock in the chair of W.M. for the ensuing year, having been elected to that office by the unanimous vote of the brethren. The following excellent staff of officers was subsequently invested by the newly-chaired W.M.:—Brothers S. E. Ibbs, P.M., D.C.; H. Hunt, I.P.M.; R. P. France, S.W.; J. Lecomber, J.W.; R. Ing, P.M., Treasurer (re-elected); J. L. Houghton, Secretary; Josiah H. Martin, S.D.; T. Boswell, J.D.; G. W. Veale, Org.; J. Whitfield, I.G.; J. P. A. Z. Pedersen, S.S.; Gilbert Maxwell, J.S.; and P. Larsen, Tyler (re-elected). At the close of the installation ceremony, there were four propositions for initiation, and one for joining. Bro. F. Sargeant, P.M., tendered his resignation in the lodge, which was accepted. On the motion of Bro. S. E. Ibbs, seconded by Bro. Ing, it was unanimously resolved to increase the initiation and joining fees of the lodge. The accounts were passed on the motion of Bro. France, S.W. The S.W. also moved, and Bro. Hunt, I.P.M., seconded, a vote of thanks to the Installing Master, which was carried by acclamation. A similar compliment was paid to Bro. R. Ing for his services as Treasurer, and to Bro. W. G. Veale, as Organist, on the motion of Bro. Ibbs, seconded by Bro. I. DeFrece. The votes were suitably acknowledged by Bros. Ing and Veale. Bro. R. Ing, P.M., Treasurer, then rose and said, I have a very pleasing duty to perform, brethren, which, though last on the list, is certainly not the least. You are all well aware of the very able manner in which Bro. Ibbs has performed the several duties allotted to him during his term of connection with the lodge, working with great credit to himself and with much honour to the Downshire Lodge. On behalf of several of the brethren, who admire and value his Masonic worth and services, I have much pleasure in presenting him with this token of esteem in recognition of his valuable services to this lodge. The presentation consisted of a very splendid drawing-room timepiece, elegant and original in its design, and magnificently furnished. A silver plate in front, bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. S. E. Ibbs, P.M. of the Downshire Lodge of Freemasons, No. 594, by brethren of the lodge who wish to mark their appreciation of valued services in the many important offices, most efficiently by him during his membership, extending over many years. June 24th, 1875." Bro. Ibbs than said—I can hardly find words to express my thanks for this very handsome present which Bro. Ing has just given me in your name. I did not know of it until a few days ago, and then I was surprised to hear of it. Believe me that any little service I have rendered this lodge has been a labour of love, and I hope to work in the future for its interests with as much heartiness as in the past, so as to make the "Downshire," hold its proper place in the Province of West Lancashire. (Applause). The lodge was then closed in due form by Bro. T. Dilcock, W.M., and after partaking of luncheon, the brethren started at 2.20 p.m. for the Palace Hotel, Birkdale, the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Co. again showing their extreme liberality in the fares by conceding nothing. About 100 brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet provided in splendid style by Bro. Cooke, the manager. The W.M., (Bro. Dilcock) gave in brief but pithy terms the toasts of "The Queen," "Bro. Albert Edward Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master," the last toast being responded to by Bro. J. Wylie, P.P.G. Reg. W.L., who referred to the valuable services his lordship had rendered to the cause of Masonry. Bro. Wylie also congratulated the members of the Downshire Lodge on having secured so able and popular a brother as the W.M. to preside over them. The "Downshire" was an old and respectable lodge, respectable not only in its numbers, but in its position, and he desired it should have long and continued success. The W.M. next gave "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M., R.W. Prov. G.M.; the Hon. Fred. A. Stanley, M.P., W.D.P.G.M. and the officers of the P.G. Lodge, coupled with the name of Bro. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B., who referred to the popularity of all who held office in connection with the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire. Bro. H. Hunt, I.P.M., proposed the toast of "The Worshipful Master," which was received very heartily. The W.M., in reply, thanked the brethren for the manner in which the toast had been received, and hoped that his year's services in the chair would justify the confidence they had reposed in him. The best of his skill and ability would be to keep his mother lodge not only in its present position but to place in one of the first in the province. The W.M. then proposed "The Installing Master," and subsequently "The Past Masters," presenting Bro. Hunt, I.P.M., with a handsome P.M.'s jewel in token of the respect and esteem of the brethren. Bro. Hunt acknowledged the compliment, and the toast was also acknowledged by Bro. P.M.'s Ibbs and Ing. "The Officers of the Lodge" was acknowledged by the S.W. "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution" by Bro. Wylie; "The Visiting Brethren," by Bro. Pemberton, P.M. 1276; and Bro. Edginton, W.M. 1182; "The Host" by Bro. Clarke; and the proceedings were brought to a close with the Tyler's toast. Several excellent songs were sung during the afternoon by Bros. M. Hart, Veale, Wylie, Ibbs, Edginton, and others. The brethren returned to town about 9 o'clock, after spending a most enjoyable afternoon.

RUNCORN.—ELLESMEERE LODGE, (No. 758).—The regular meeting of this now flourishing lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Runcorn, on Wednesday, June 16th. The officers present were Bros. Robert Rigby, W.M.; Edward Aston, S.W.; James Warburton, J.W.; William Garnett, S.D.; Charles Gerrard, J.D.; Thomas Horsfall, Sec.; J. W. Lightburn, Organist; William Wass, I.G.; Geo. Purver, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form, with solemn prayer, at 6.30, and the minutes of the previous lodge were read and confirmed; the lodge was then opened in the Second Degree. Bros. John Longshaw Jones, and Thomas Gregson, candidates for the Third Degree, were then called upon to show their proficiency in the former degrees, and having satisfied the brethren, they were entrusted and retired; the lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bros. J. L. Jones and T. Gregson were admitted and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, in a very creditable and effective manner, by Bro. Robert Rigby, W.M. A gentleman was proposed by Bro. Edward Aston, S.W., for initiation. Other important business being done, the lodge was closed at 8.15.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—THE HARBOUR OF RETUGE LODGE (No. 764).—On Tuesday afternoon, the 22nd ult., the installation of the W.M. of this lodge took place at West Hartlepool. The ceremony was impressively performed, in the presence of a full lodge, by Brother W. W. Brunton, P.M., P.P.G.R.; the W.M. elect being Bro. C. T. Casebourne. The following is a list of the brethren who were afterwards invested with office: Bro. Tate, S.W.; Bro. Fisher, J.W.; Bro. Tweedy, Secretary; Bro. Harpley, P.M., Treasurer; Bro. Cowper, S.D.; Bro. R. Merryweather, J.D.; Bro. Alsopp, I.G.; Bro. Garry, Steward; and Bro. Atkinson, Tyler. After the ceremony, the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where a very recherche banquet was served by Brother R. M. Gallon. Among the visitors present were Bro. Knowles, P.M., P.P.S.G.D.; Bro. Hutton, P.M., P.G.J.D.; Bro. Usher, W.M.; Bro. J. Settle, P.M., P.P.G.R. (Stockton); Bro. Bignall, jun., P.M. (Durham); Bro. J. S. Pearson, P.M. (Sunderland); and Bro. William Pearson, W.M.; Bro. Heaton, and Bro. Johnson, S.W. (Hartlepool).

JERSEY.—ST. AUBIN'S LODGE (No. 958).—At a monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge, held on Tuesday, June 15th, at the Masonic Temple, the attendance of members was numerous. There were visiting brethren, among whom we particularly noticed Bros. A. Schmitt, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; Jn. O. Le Sueur, P.M. 491, Prov. G. Sec., and others, to offer their tribute of respect in witnessing the presentation of a splendid testimonial to Bro. Jos. O'Flaherty, I.P.M., P.G.Pursv. The lodge was opened by Bro. Ed. Martel, P.M. 491, P.G.D.C., W.M., assisted by Bros. A. Dawson, J.W.; Wm. H. Chapman, J.W.; O'Flaherty, I.P.M.; Jn. Oakley, P.M., P.G.J.W., Treas.; Wm. H. Long, P.M., &c. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed, when the W.M. informed the members that Bros. Ch. F. Cooke and J. Ph. Bryant were candidates for passing, who, after giving satisfactory proofs of their efficiency in the former degree, were entrusted and retired. During their absence the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the two candidates were passed to the degree of F.C. in a manner reflecting the highest possible credit on the W.M. The Working Tools as well as the Tracing Board were also lucidly explained by him, and the charge delivered with effect and impression. The lodge was lowered to the First Degree. Bro. Jn. Oakley, in presenting a neat 18-carat gold P.M. jewel to Bro. O'Flaherty, expressed in warm terms the high sentiment of satisfaction, gratitude, and esteem animating the hearts of the members of St. Aubin's Lodge towards the worthy recipient. This tangible mark is expressive of the approbation and appreciation of his display of zeal, courtesy, activity, and ability which they witnessed in him, for, during his Mastership of two years it may be undoubtedly affirmed that the lodge was rapidly prospering both in its material as well as its moral aspect. I will now, Bro. O'Flaherty, read the inscription:—"Presented to W. Bro. Jos. O'Flaherty, P.M., Prov. G. Pursuivant, J. 590, by St. Aubin's Lodge, No. 988, in testimony of fraternal regard for his duties religiously performed, and for his ardent zeal, usefulness, and devotedness to its interests." In passing this token to your hands, I must observe the value of such a testimonial might have been much increased by the manner of presenting it, and I regret the office has not been performed by one of the many more talented and able brethren present. I wish you, Bro. O'Flaherty, health, happiness, and prosperity through life, and may the Great Architect of the Universe bless and protect you and yours. Bro. O'Flaherty returned his grateful thanks in a very neat and feeling speech, and had afterwards the pleasure of receiving the congratulations of about 40 brethren, in addition to the valuable symbol of respect with which he has been decorated. The Masonic duties of the day being concluded, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment-room, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. A. Schmitt proposed the toast of the evening in feelingly expatiating on the merit and Masonic worth of Bro. O'Flaherty, and in briefly tracing his Masonic career characterised by his diligently and faithfully discharging the serious duties of a Mason, and by his strict and scrupulous adherence to and daily practice of the ennobling and elevating tenets inculcated and expounded in our rites. The toast was received with warm and demonstrative applause. Bro. O'Flaherty, after having returned thanks, proposed in a very complimentary manner "The Health of the Founder of the Lodge, W. Bro. Dr. H. Hopkins, and his faithful coadjutors in that memorable undertaking." Bro. A. Schmitt gracefully acknowledged the compliment paid to the founders, and heartily thanked the brethren for the spontaneous explosion of their fraternal and sympathetic demonstration towards them, but more especially he was gratified to convey on behalf of his absent friend, Dr. H. Hopkins, the father of the lodge, the very cordial assurance of his unremitting attachment to the lodge, of his daily pre-occupation about its prosperity, and his anxiety to see it preserving its standard of prestige and utility. In concluding, he said—I feel that I am only echoing your sentiments, brethren, when I say that I trust that it will be many years before he will bring to a close his long, laborious, and successful career as a gentleman and Mason. The brethren separated after having spent a most pleasant, harmonious, and delightful evening.

HAMPTON.—LEBANON LODGE (No. 1326).—A regular meeting of this most prosperous lodge in the Province was held on Saturday, June 19th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion-square, Thames-street, Hampton. Bro. William Hammond, P.G. Steward Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1512, presided, and he was supported by Bros. E. Gilbert, S.W.; C. W. Fox, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; J. B. Shackleton as S.D.; J. W. Baldwin, I.G.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; H. Gloster, C.S.; W. Stanton, M.C.; and some dozen others being present. The visitors were as usual a goodly number. We noticed Bros. E. H. Thielley, S.W. 145; and S.W. 1423; Walls, I.G. 141; and others. The work, which was done in an eloquent manner, consisted of the initiation of Messrs. J. T. Adams, Fletcher, Knight, and G. Graham, passing Bro. W. Crush, and raising Bro. C. Lucop, the last ceremony being done by the veteran Secretary, Bro. F. Walters. The result of the elections proved unanimous in favour of Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.M.

1423, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, for W.M.; S. Wickens, P.M., Treasurer, re-elected Treasurer; and J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler Middlesex, Tyler, re-elected Tyler. The Auditors unanimously elected, in addition to those appointed by the bye-laws, were Bros. W. Stanton, J. B. Shackleton, and H. Gloster. A notice of motion was given by the Secretary, "That the sum of ten guineas be taken from the lodge funds, and be spent in purchasing either a Past Master's jewel or a Life Governorship of the Charities, to be presented to Bro. W. Hammond for distinguished services rendered to the lodge during his two years of office, subject to its being recommended by the audit committee. In addition to Bros. W. Prattent and J. B. Shackleton, who are Stewards to represent this lodge on July 7th, 1875, at the Boys' School, Bro. B. Meyer was elected and made the third Steward for the Boys' School. As each one makes himself a Life Governor whilst serving his stewardship, the lists will not be empty ones. Bro. J. B. Shackleton made a stirring appeal on behalf of the Boys' School, reminding the members of his stewardship. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour.

ECCLES.—VICTORIA LODGE (No. 1348).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 16th ult. As usual the lodge was well attended, and the officers were all in their places. Lodge was opened at half-past four, and work immediately commenced. Assisted by P.M. Barker, P.P.G.T., E.L., and the officers, the W.M. (Bro. W. Wright) performed one initiation, two raisings, and two passings—Bros. W. Steel and A. Goering, the Third Degree; and Bros. M. Ridyard and R. Pendlebury, the Second. Two gentlemen from Cadishead were also proposed as members, and the brethren, after calling off for refreshment at six o'clock, proceeded with the business of the lodge. The whole of the work was, as usual, well performed.

NEWTON ABBOT.—MORNING STAR LODGE (No. 1396).—The installation of Master for the ensuing year took place within the Masonic Room, Queen's Hotel, on Monday, 14th June, when afterwards the brethren partook of a splendid banquet provided by Bro. W. R. King. There were in attendance visiting brethren from nearly all parts of the Province, the W.M. elect being highly respected among the Craft. Bro. Francis J. Pratt having been installed in a very able manner by Bro. J. J. Drake, P.M., afterwards invested his officers as follows: Bros. W. E. Lamble, I.P.M.; Henry Stooke, S.M.; T. B. Purnell, J.W.; J. J. Drake, P.M., Treas.; Wm. Uglow, Sec.; W. L. Pope, D.D., P.P.G.C., Chaplain; James Chapple, Organist; H. Velthousen, S.D.; Thos. Pinsunt, J.D.; James Barkell, I.G.; Wm. B. Venning and Henry T. Baker, Stewards. Amongst the visitors were the following distinguished brethren: Bros. S. Tew, P.M. 105, P.P.G.T. John Way, P.M. 106, P.P.G.T. H. W. Hooper, P.M. 444, P.P.G.R.; W. J. Stone, P.M. 372, 106, P.P.G.J.W.; R. Bowden, P.M. 328, P.P.G.C.; C. Rhyne, W.M. 39, P.P.G.C.; P. I. Michellmore, P. M. 1138; F. C. Hallett, P.M. 303; Samuel Loram, W.M. 1443; W. Bennett Maye, W.M. 710; Chas. H. Law, 1539, P.M., P.P.S.W. Herts; J. Pigott, S.W. 328; B. Prowze, S.W. 1138; J. Saunders, J.W. 1138; W. Harris, S.D. 1138; E. Huxtable, J.D. 1138; R. Steward, 710; H. Martin, 1138; J. Haywood, 1138; J. Ferry, 1284; and J. Arliss, 328.

LEICESTER.—CHAPTER OF FORTITUDE (No. 279).—The meeting of this chapter, held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Monday, the 14th ult., was attended by a more than average number of companions. The chapter was opened by Comps. S. Ekin, Z.; W. Sculthorpe, H.; and S. Partridge, J. There were six candidates on the summons for exaltation, but only one, Bro. C. McBride, 1391, was in attendance. He was duly exalted to this supreme degree, the ceremony being ably performed by the M.E.Z., assisted by Comp. G. Toller, jun., P.Z. The Historical lecture was then given by Comp. S. S. Partridge, J., and the Symbolical and Mystical lectures (at the request of the Principals) by Comp. G. Toller. After the transaction of the further business on the circular the chapter was duly closed.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—PRIORY CHAPTER (No. 1000).—An emergency meeting of this chapter was held at the Middleton Hotel, Southend-on-sea, on Wednesday, the 16th ult. Present—Comps. Rev. S. R. Wigram, Grand Chaplain, P.Z., M.E.Z.; E. E. Phillips, H.; A. Lucking, J.; S. J. Weston, Treas.; J. C. Johnson, Scribe E.; Rev. H. John Hatch, Scribe N.; J. A. Wardell, P. Soj.; Jas. Willing, jun., 1st Assist. Soj.; T. W. Gower, 2nd Assist. Soj.; W. Frost, Visitors—Comps. S. J. Fairclough, St. John; Jos. Clarkson, H., Canonbury Chapter 657. After the confirmation of the by-laws approved of by the companions at the last meeting, the exaltation of the following brethren was proceeded with: viz., Bros. Thos. Williams, J.W. and H.H.; Child, S.D. Metropolitan Lodge, 1507; Jas. F. Wiseman, P.M., and Wm. Pissey, P.M., Lodge of True Friendship 160; J. R. Hemmann, P.M., and F. V. Jillings, Priory Lodge 1000. The whole of the ceremony was carried out in a most able and impressive manner, which bids fair for the prosperity of the chapter. The chapter was duly closed and the companions adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and R.A. toasts were given and duly honoured; the Janitor's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

IPSWICH.—ST. LUKE'S CHAPTER (No. 225).—The usual quarterly convocation of this chapter was held at the Coach and Horses Hotel, Ipswich, on the 23rd June. Present—Comps. J. Turner, M.E.Z.; Emra Holmes, H.; C. Byford, J.; G. Abbott, P. Soj.; A. Barber, acting Scribe E., &c.; P. Cornell, Z. Visitors—Bros. W. P. Mills, P.Z.; Rev. J. J. Farnham, P.Z., and N. Tracy, H., of the Royal Sussex Chapter; and Comp. J. H. Townsend, of the Alexandra Chapter. The chapter having been opened and the minutes of last chapter read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Edward Borredd Lewcock, of the Perfect Friendship Lodge, which proving unanimous, that brother was received, and exalted to the sublime degree of a Royal Arch Mason, the ceremony being impressively performed by Comp. Farnham, and the charge and explanation of the mysteries as solemnly given by Dr. Mills. Bro. Tracy had kindly undertaken to give the charge from the second chair, but time would not admit of it. Comp. Mills then installed Comps. Emra Holmes as M.E.Z.; C. Byford, as H.; and J. Turner, P.Z., as J., in a very able manner. Comp. Holmes afterwards invested the rest of the officers: Comps. G. Abbott as P. Soj.; and Jobson, N. The ballot was taken for Comp. A. Barber as a joining member, and on his being admitted, he was subsequently elected as Scribe E. for the chapter, in the room of the much to be lamented Comp. King, and he was duly invested. The name of a companion who desired to be admitted a joining member, but who could not produce his certificate, was withdrawn for further evidence as to his qualifications, he having been exalted in Nova Scotia, and having only a demit from his chapter in proof thereof. The usual business being disposed of, the M.E.Z. proposed that Comps. Mills and Farnham be elected honorary members of this chapter in return for their kindness in attending to perform the ceremonies on this occasion. The motion having been duly seconded and carried unanimously, the two companions returned thanks for the honour conferred on them, and Comp. Farnham mentioned the great Masonic work, the restoration of his parish church, on which he was engaged, and hoped the companions would assist him. The chapter was then closed, and the brethren shared the secrets. Afterwards the companions sat down to a pleasant but rather hurried supper, provided by Host C. Godbold, who always caters in first-class style. The exigencies of Mr. Bruce's act no doubt affected the repast and the full enjoyment of it, and the toasts were quickly got over. In proposing "The Visitors" the M.E.Z. regretted that he could not propose first the "Provincial Grand Superintendent," but he hoped the day would not be far distant when they might have one. Comp. Mills responded, and said that it would give him great pleasure to assist on another occasion, and he was very glad to visit the chapter. Comp. Cornell was very happy to come that night to testify to the cordial feeling which existed between the various chapters in the town, a cordiality which had not always existed. The brethren shortly afterwards separated, regretting that the time had so soon slipped away.

STABILITY CHAPTER (No. 217).—A convocation of this chapter was held on the 24th ult. at Anderson's Hotel. There were present Comps. W. S. Webster, Z.; G. A. Taylor, H.; W. T. Howe, J.; Ritherden, N.; Frank Green, P.S.; H. A. Graham, 2nd A.S.; George Townsend, Samuel Lovegreen, James, T. B. Yeoman, T. E. Hafely, 272, New York City; George Kenning, R. W. Little, J. G. Marsh, and H. Massey (Freemason). The business of the day consisted of exalting Bros. W. Turner, 574; C. F. Barham, 574; and T. W. Whitmarsh, S.W., 1150; the ceremony being admirably performed and given uncuttailed. The nights of meeting were altered to the fourth Thursday in September, February, April, and June in each year. An excellent banquet followed the work of the chapter. The M.E.Z. proposed the toasts. Comp. Taylor proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z.," who, in reply, said he had set an example, as far as he could, to the companions, of how a chapter should be worked. In proposing "The newly-exalted Companions," the M.E.Z. said they had much to learn, which could not be picked up on seeing the ceremony of exaltation performed but once. He trusted they would exert themselves in acquiring a knowledge of it. He was heartily glad to see them enter this chapter, and trusted they would endeavour to make it prosperous. It had but just been revived, after remaining in abeyance for some time. Now that it had arisen phoenix-like from its ashes, he trusted it would become an excellent working chapter, and an honour to the Order. In giving the toast of "The Visitors," the M.E.Z. remarked that he thought it would be a great advantage if the working of lodges and chapters all over the world could be assimilated. But while there was a difference it was well that brethren and companions should visit lodges and chapters under the different constitutions. They were thereby enabled to compare them and form a judgment as to the points of difference between them. Comp. Hafely, of New York, responded, and concluded by reciting a short Masonic poem. The companions shortly afterwards separated.

YEOVIL.—CHAPTER OF BROTHERLY LOVE (No. 329).—The regular summer convocation of this chapter took place on Wednesday, June 23rd. Present—Comps. Jacobs, M.E.Z.; J. Chaffin, H.; and F. Cox, J.; also Comps. Cross, Style, and Budge, Past Principals; also Comps. Foster, E.; Wynn Westcott, N.; Farley, P.S.; Damon, and Edger, A. Secs.; and Comps. Nesworthy, Tanswell, &c. The ballot was taken for Bro. Hodder, and was unanimous in his favour. Bros. Andrew Price and George Rugg, having been prepared, were then admitted and exalted in due form; the whole ceremony being performed in a highly satisfactory manner. The companions then adjourned to a banquet, provided by Bro. Sharland, of the Choughs Hotel.

STAMFORD.—MONTAGE CHAPTER (No. 466) (attached to the Lodge of Merit).—This new chapter was dedicated on Wednesday, May 16th, at the George Hotel, Stamford. Comp. J. Terry, Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged and Decayed Freemasons admirably performed the ceremony, assisted by Comps. Wilkins, D. Pro. G.M. Northants and Hunts, P.Z. 360; E. Cox, 12; G. Robinson, M.E.Z. 360; Jacob, H. 360; T. J.

Green, N. 360; W. Kingston, 360; Dr. Mangan, J. V. Stanton, J. 360; several other companions of Chapter 360, &c., being present. Comp. His Grace the Duke of Manchester, Chapter 360, Provincial G.M. of Northampton and Hunts, was duly installed into the chairs of J., H., and M.E.Z., Comp. Terry officiating. Comps. E. J. Orford was installed as H., and Duncombe as J. A convocation of emergency for exaltation was held on Thursday last, June 17th, when Bros. Henry Peake, P.M. 466; J. M. Howard, P.M. 466; W. Oldham, P.M. 466; H. Wright, W.M. 466; R. J. Griffin, W.M. 466; D. Bloodworth, J.W. 466; H. Knott, 466; H. Hart, 466; A. Coulson, 466, as Janitor, were duly exalted. Other brothers who had been duly proposed and balloted for were absent. Amongst the companions present were Wilkins, acting M.E.Z.; Kellett as H.; Robinson, as J.; J.T. Green and W. Kingston, as P.S. alternately; T. Davies, 360; J. U. Stanton, E. Roberts, 360; F. Gadsby, 360; Orford, Duncombe, Norton, Buckle, Davidson, Hayes, &c. The ceremony of exaltation was performed in a most impressive manner by Comp. Wilkins, who was very ably assisted by Comps. Kellett, Robinson, Green, Kingston, Stanton, and Davies, (all of 360). At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the brethren adjourned to a most welcome and excellent repast, served by Host Whincup. After the removal of the cloth, Comp. Wilkins gave the usual preliminary toasts, which owing to the lateness of the hour, had to be very briefly introduced. Comp. Orford (who has been the principal mover in the formation of the chapter), proposed the health of "Comp. Wilkins" thanking him in justly complimentary terms and also the companions of the Northampton Chapter 360, for the very admirable manner in which the ceremonies had been conducted throughout, and also for their kindness in attending for the second time in such good numbers, and for the assistance he had received from them in forming their new chapter. Owing to the success of this new chapter, the brethren of the St. Peter's Lodge, 442, Peterborough, are making arrangements for forming a new chapter at Peterborough at the close of the summer. This will make the third chapter in the province of Northampton and Hunts, the Northampton Chapter having stood alone since its formation in June, 1853, until the formation of the Montagu Chapter.

Mark Masonry.

SOUTH MOLTON.—FORTESCUE LODGE (No. 9).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday last, at the Masonic Hall. Present—Bros. Sanders, I.P.M.; Pro W.M.; Z. Ricard, S.W.; J. T. Shapland, J.W.; J. Galliford, M.O.; Wood, S.O.; Widgery, J.O.; J. E. Galliford, S.D.; Cole, J.D.; and other brethren. There were four candidates for advancement, Bros. the Rev. F. King, Oliver, Brewer and Britton, who were all present. The ceremony was very creditably performed; when done, the brethren supped together at Bro. Cole's, Unicorn Hotel, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

MACDONALD LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS, No. 104.—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Coleman-street, London, on Saturday, the 19th ult., and was well attended by its members, although not so fully as usual, consequent on the meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge for Middlesex and Surrey being held at the same time at the Alexandra Palace. Of those who attended, the large majority being present or past Provincial Grand Officers, nearly all expressed regret that a double claim on their duty, as Mark Masons, should have been made at the same moment of time, and but for preparations so nearly completed as not to be reasonably set aside there is but little doubt that after labour the lodge would have adjourned to Muswell Hill in force, to pay due respect to the superior organisation. The lodge was opened at 3.30 p.m. by the W.M., the W. Bro. William Worrell, P.G. Organist; and the following members were present, viz:—Bros. Robert Berridge, S.W.; T. W. White, J.W.; Alfred Williams, P.G. Std., M.O.; North Ritherdon, S.O.; J. J. H. Wilkins, as J.O.; the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., Treasurer, W. Bro. C. Hammerton, P.G.D.C., Secretary, William P. Collins, J.D.; G. Yaxley, Steward, F. H. Cozens, I.G.; the V.W., Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; and Past Provincial G. Sec. Middlesex and Surrey, P.M.; and Bros. W. B. Johnson, P. N. Cook, T. J. Coombes, J. R. Williams, J. M. Wolgemuth, John Close, C. B. Crummelin, Chas. Bastin, H. T. Partridge, and Grant, Tyler. Ballots having been taken for Bros. J. W. Truman, of No. 463, for advancement, and Charles Gosden, as joining member, with satisfactory result, Bro. Truman was duly advanced to the degree of Mark Master with full ceremony and musical service. The V.W., Bro. Thomas Meggy, then occupied the chair of A., and Brother Robert Berridge, having been presented by the outgoing W.M., was installed as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, greatly to the satisfaction of the whole of the members, by whom Brother Berridge is deservedly respected, as well for his ability as for his genial disposition. The officers for the year were appointed in the following order, viz:—W. Brother Worrell, I.P.M.; Bros. White, S.W.; Alfred Williams, J.W.; Ritherdon, M.O.; Edward Moody, S.O.; Lieutenant-Colonel Wigginton, J.O.; the V.W. Brother Thomas Meggy, Treasurer; Edgar Drewett, R.M.; the W. Brother C. Hammerton, Sec.; W. P. Collins, S.D.; F. H. Cozens, J.D.; Basnett, I.G.; Yaxley, D.C.; Attwood, Organist, Verry, W.S.; John Close, C.S.; and Grant, Tyler. The report of the Audit Committee, which presented a very satisfactory result, and proved that efficiency had been combined with economy, was received and adopted. A notice of motion relating to the services of Treasurer and Secretary was submitted, and carried with acclamation. A vote of donation to the list of Brother Attwood, as Steward for the Boys' School, was also carried, and after some other routine business the lodge adjourned to banquet. Brother Gosden, now a member of the lodge, had evidently "set his heart" upon placing before his new associates the best results of the resources of his establishment, and certainly succeeded in securing the just praise and recommendation of all who partook of the repast provided. There were no visitors, a circumstance quite unique in the annals of the lodge. Probably the gathering before alluded to had something to do with this. However that might be, the subsequent proceedings were nevertheless as enjoyable as of old. The W.M. was most happy in his speeches, introducing the several loyal and Masonic toasts, and particularly in the mention of Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, and the regret that the attendance of the Macdonald Lodge, in support of that meeting, could not have been given as heretofore. In the course of the evening, at the solicitation of Bro. James Stevens, the contents of the charity box, with a supplementary grant, together producing a goodly sum, were handed to him, in aid of an urgent necessity, to assist a Devonshire brother in distress. Brother Truman acknowledged his reception as the newly advanced candidate; and "The Health of the W.M." having been duly proposed and responded to, the other toasts, interspersed with song and recitation, brought the evening's proceedings, which had been throughout most harmonious, to a pleasant and successful conclusion.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (time immemorial).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, June 24th. At 7.45 p.m. the chair was taken by Bro. James Dutton, W.M., who was supported by the following brethren as officers:—Dr. Hopkins, Chaplain, and acting as I.P.M.; Mitchell, as S.W.; Carey, J.W.; Mann, as M.O.; Baldwin, as S.O.; Cater, J.O. and Sec.; John Dutton, Treas., as S.D.; Major Preston, I.G.; Falkner, Registrar, as Tyler. There were several other members present, among whom were Bros. G. Parfitt and Keene. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Dr. Hopkins read the by-laws which had been passed at the previous meeting. After some discussion and several amendments, they were confirmed, on the proposition of the W.M., seconded by Bro. Mitchell, and an order was given that they should be submitted to the Provincial Grand Master for approval and sanction. It was agreed, on the proposition of the Chaplain, seconded by the J.W., that the names of all the members of the lodge should be printed with the by-laws, those of the present officers and P.M.'s being placed first. A ballot was taken for Bros. Murliss, Jacob Smith, jun., Chas. Brooke, and C. W. Radway, which proved unanimous in their favour, and the W.M. conducted the ceremony of advancement for the first two (the others being unavoidably absent), with the assistance of the Chaplain in the latter portion. Bro. Dr. Hopkins stated that he had recently had an interview with the Grand Secretary in London, and had arranged several matters in reference to the present position and future operations of the lodge, the details of which he read from a subsequent letter on the subject. The lodge was closed at 10 p.m.

ERA LODGE (No. 176).—The second installation meeting of this successful lodge was held at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Friday, June 18th. Bro. J. T. Moss, W.M., opened the lodge, and he was supported by Bros. H. Dubois, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; Revd. P. M. Holden, Chaplain; F. Walters, P.G.O., P.M.; Secretary; F. T. Horton, S.O.; A. F. Loos, D.C.; J. Johnson, I.G.; and many others. The visitors were Bros. Sugg, Mason, and others, whose names we were unable to ascertain. Bro. H. C. Levander, P.G.D.C., P.M., took the chair, and advanced Bro. J. Allsopp P.M. 879; J. McNaughten, 871; J. B. Shackleton, S.D. 1524, 1326; M. Underwood, 1423; and E. Searle, 1275; the ceremony being done in an admirable manner. He then installed Bro. H. A. Dubois as W.M., who appointed as his officers Bros. J. Baxter Langley, S.W.; Revd. P. M. Holden, J.W. and Chaplain; T. H. Miller, P.M.; Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.P., P.M.; Secretary; T. Horton, R. of Marks; W. Hammond, M.O.; A. F. Loos, S.O.; J. Johnson, J.O.; J. Allsopp, S.D.; M. Underwood, J.D.; J. B. Shackleton, I.G.; W. Z. Laing, P.M. Tyler, was reinstated as Tyler. As many as six propositions were given into the Secretary. It was arranged to hold the next meeting on Friday, September 10th, at six o'clock p.m. Bro. J. B. Shackleton, I.G., made an eloquent appeal on behalf of the Boys' School, he being a Steward representing his Mother Lodge, the "Lebanon," 1326. He never relaxes any exertions on behalf of the charities. After some other important business was disposed of, none more prominent than the voting of a ten-guinea Past Master's jewel to Bro. J. T. Moss, I.P.M., for his eminent and efficient services rendered to the lodge as one of its founders and the first W.M., the lodge was closed. A splendid banquet followed. An agreeable evening was spent.

IPSWICH.—ALBERT VICTOR LODGE (No. 70).—The usual quarterly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, the 21st June. Present:—Bros. George Cresswell, W.M.; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, 30°, P.G. Chap.; C. T. Townsend, Secretary, P.G.S.D.; Emma Holmes, 31° P.G.I. of Works, acting J.O.; W. T. Westgate, P.M.M., acting S.O.; E. J. Robertson, P.M.M., acting M.O.; George Abbott, S.W.; W. Clarke, J.W.; W. Cuckow, Treasurer; J. H. Townsend, acting I.G.; &c., &c. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, Brother Sanderson stated that Brother Rev. J. B. Tweed, who had been previously balloted for and accepted, was unable to attend for advancement. The Secretary announced that, in accordance with the resolution passed at last lodge, several brethren had been communicated with, relative to arrears, with varying results. He could not, however, give a list at present of those who would have to be struck off for non-payment. Brother Sanderson enquired whether the Grand Lodge returns for the last three years had gone off yet, and was informed that they would be sent immediately. Brother Holmes moved that, as soon as the funds would allow, fresh collars for the officers should be procured for the lodge, through the Secretary, but ultimately seven or eight of the brethren stated their willingness to supply one each. Brother Westgate mentioned the sad case of the wife of a brother who was in very ill health, and who was very desirous of getting into the Convalescent Home at Felixstowe, and, in feeling terms, urged any of the brethren who had sufficient influence to get her admission to the Home. The order was, we are glad to say, procured almost immediately, through the instrumentality of a medical brother, well known and highly esteemed in the Craft. Several brethren were proposed for advancement, and it was proposed to have a lodge of emergency for that purpose in July. The routine business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren gathered round the supper table, and did ample justice to the meal provided by Bro. G. Spalding. The usual pleasant evening was spent, and the brethren were loth to separate.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LEICESTER.—BYZANTINE CONCLAVE (No. 44).—The installation meeting of this prosperous conclave took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, 9th June. The conclave having been opened, Major J. W. Woodall, 30°; (the Int. General designate for North and East Yorkshire), who had been previously elected, was admitted and installed as a Knight of the Order. A College of Viceroy's was then opened and, Sir Knts. Woodall and W. Weare, the V.E. elect of No. 44, were consecrated as Viceroy's. Subsequently a Senate of Sovereigns was formed, when Sir Knt. Woodall received the degree of Hon. Sov., and Sir Knt. F. J. Baines, 18°, was enthroned as the M.P.S. of this conclave. The ceremonies of the higher grades was conducted by Sir Knt. G. Toller, jun., G.O., 30°, as M.P.S., assisted by Sir Knts. S. S. Partridge, 18°, as V.E., the Rev. W. Langley, as H.P., and C. McBride, as Herald, the Int. General, Sir Knt. W. Kelly, also rendering assistance as Director of the Ceremonies. On the conclave being resumed the M.P.S. invested his officers as follows:—Sir Knts. C. Stretton, P. Sov.; W. Weare, V.E.; Rev. W. Langley, H.P.; W. Sculthorpe, S.G.; J. T. Thorp, I.G.; Robt. Waite and C. E. Stretton, Aides; W. Sculthorpe, Treas.; R. Boughton Smith, 18°, Recorder; C. McBride, (Hon. P. Sov.) O. Prefect; A. K. Baines, Standard Bearer, and Organist; C. Law, Herald. The ballot proving unanimous in favour of Dr. Gibson, of Eden Lodge, Limerick, he was admitted and installed as a Knt. Companion. The ceremony was very efficiently performed by Sir Knt. S. S. Partridge, the historical lecture being given by Sir Knt. G. Toller, jun., and the charge by the Int. Gen., Sir W. Kelly. After discussion it was resolved that in future the regular meetings should take place on the 2nd and Wednesdays 14 February, June, and November. The Treasurer's report showing a balance in hand of upwards of £30, was received and adopted, a vote of thanks to him for his services being unanimously passed. It was afterwards resolved that the furniture of the conclave should be completed, and the necessary appointments for the Mount Hermon Sanctuary procured. Amongst those present, in addition to the names above mentioned, were the M.P.S. designate and two of the founders of the White Rose of York Conclave, No. 120, since consecrated at Sheffield, on the 12th June; Sir Knts. W. H. Brittain, 31°, J. F. Moss, and Alfred Scargill. The installation banquet took place at the close of the proceedings.

LIVERPOOL.—WALTON CONCLAVE (No. 97).—An emergency meeting of this conclave was held on Monday, the 14th June, for the purpose of installing Bros. G. J. Jones, Merchants' Lodge, 241, and J. Armstrong, 148 and 1250, and other business. The conclave was opened in imperial form by Em. Sir Kt. Jesse Banning, M.P.S. (and in the unavoidable absence of Em. Sir Kt. Rev. T. W. Richardson); Em. Sir Kt. J. C. Lunt, P.S. Treasurer, as V.; Sir Kt. W. Quayle, S.G.; Sir Kt. G. E. Hanmer, J.G.; Rev. C. R. Hyde, LL.D., H. P.; Sir Kt. N. Turner, P. and Orator, Sir Kt. H. Gribbin, S.B.; Sir Kt. Beardwood, H.; Sir Kts. Gilchrist, Donaldson, Howell, Davidson, and others. The ballot having been declared unanimous, the before mentioned brethren were admitted according to ancient custom, and were duly constituted, and installed Knights of this Order. In the temporary absence of Sir Kt. Rev. C. R. Hyde, LL.D., Sir Kt. Quayle, S.G., delivered the H. Prelate's address in a faultless manner, and the M.P.S. then called upon Sir Kt. N. Turner, P. and Orator, to deliver the oration, which he did in a style which afterwards elicited the congratulations of the assembled Sir Knights. A Past Sovereign's jewel was unanimously voted to Sir Kt. J. C. Lunt, P.S. Treasurer, "as a slight recognition of his untiring exertions on behalf of this conclave." Sir Kt. N. Turner afterwards gave notice that "at the next regular meeting he should move that the fee for installation in the conclave be doubled." The muster roll was then called, and the Sir Knights afterwards adjourned to the banquetting room, when a most enjoyable evening was spent, the musical talents of several Sir Knights adding not a little to the harmony of the evening.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The annual excursion of the members of this ancient lodge was made on Thursday, 24th ult., the locality selected for visiting this year being Roslyn Castle and Hawthornden. The party, numbering about eighty, left Dundas-street Station by the 9.15 a.m. train, and, making no stoppage whatever until reaching Haymarket Station, were safely landed in Edinburgh in little more than an hour thereafter. After a stay of about half-an-hour, the excursionists started by another train for Roslyn, the time up till the hour for dinner being most agreeably beguiled in exploring the beautiful scenery of the Valley of the Esk, the ancient castle of Roslyn, &c., and getting photographed as a group seated on an eligible sloping green bank by the roadside, by Messrs. Rutherford Brothers, of Glasgow, who had gone through in advance for the occasion. The weather, fortunately, was everything that could have been desired, and a pleasanter day could hardly have been "put in" than that which the brethren of St. John's thus spent on Thursday. Shortly after four o'clock the party dined together in Clark's Hotel at Roslyn, the R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell, presiding, while Bros. Gavin Park, P.M., and David Horne, J.W., officiated as Croupiers. There were also present, among others, members of St. John's and of sister lodges; Past Masters Bros. James McMillan and Thomas Fletcher No. 34; Bros. Archibald McTaggart, P.G. Sec.; James Thomson, P.M., Lodge St. Clair, No. 362; James Robertson, No. 34, Deacon of the Incorporation of Masons; Malcolm Stark, D.M., Lodge St. Vincent, No. 553; and others.

WISHAW.—LODGE ST. MARY'S COLTNESS (No. 31) assembled together to celebrate the festival of Summer St. John-day, on the 24th ult. They were joined by Lodge St. Clair, Cambusnethan (No. 427). The two lodges formed a rather imposing appearance, when formed in procession order. Headed by the Newmans instrumental band, they started to visit Wishaw Castle and the beautiful grounds connected with it; the procession passing through the principal street of the town created quite an holiday sensation among the inhabitants. The day's proceedings altogether were very pleasant, and terminated in all going home, satisfied that they had passed a well-spent day.

ALLOA.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 69).—The new hall of this lodge, situated in Glebe-street, was consecrated on Friday the 25th ult., under the auspices of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Stirlingshire. This day was taken advantage of for that purpose in order that the Masonic body might be able to take part in the great demonstration that took place in honour of Bro. the Earl of Mar and Kellie's succession to the estates and title. All the trades and societies turned out in great array, and the Masonic lodges in the neighbourhood took part in it, after which they dined together in the hall, Bro. Graham, R.W.M., in the chair. Besides the various lodges in the province, and the Provincial Grand Lodge, there was a representation from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, in which the Earl of Kellie holds the office of D. Grand Master. The day was a complete holiday, and all ended in the best possible way, which to a large extent showed the esteem in which his lordship is held, not only by the Masonic body, but all the inhabitants of the populous district.

POLLOKSHAW.—LODGE ROYAL ARCH (No. 153).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their new hall, situated in Cogan-street, Pollokshaws, on the 25th ult. There was a large attendance of the members, and a goodly number of visiting brethren present. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Peters, supported by Bros. Wm. Paton, S.W.; James Black, J.W.; William McGeorge Adam, D.M.; David Allan, Treas.; William Johnston, Sec., and other office-bearers. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. R. Scobie, R.W.M. of Thorn-tree Lodge, No. 512, Thornliebank; Adam Nicholson, 512; Richard Bentley, 512 (who were present as a deputation from that lodge); G. B. Adams, Lodge Commercial, Glasgow, No. 360, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, found correct, and confirmed. The subject of the consecration of their new hall was then taken up. The ceremony takes place on the 9th of July under the auspices of Bro. Colonel Campbell, of Blyths-wood, Provincial Grand Master of Renfrewshire, and the Provincial Grand Lodge. The hall, which is not quite finished, has the appearance of being all that is necessary to form a most comfortable and snug little place of meeting for Masonic purposes; it is well ventilated (a great point to be considered), the adjuncts are complete and comfortable, the situation is very convenient to the town, and yet secluded from the main traffic; but, as an opportunity will be offered of entering more fully into details at the consecration, more at present need not be said, than that the committee in charge of the arrangements seem to have gone about it with a thorough knowledge of what they were about. The members of the lodge and brethren will meet on the 9th inst. in the hall at 6.30 p.m., form a procession, and walk through the town, returning to the hall about 7.30 p.m., when the hall will be consecrated for Masonic purposes by Bro. Colonel Campbell, Provincial Grand Master of Renfrewshire, and his office-bearers. Admission will be by ticket, as the hall accommodation is not quite sufficient for large gatherings such as the consecration will bring together. Rules for the guidance of the Stewards on the occasion were submitted, when Bro. McKinnon, in a most humorous speech, objected to them as being too stringent; after some slight modification they were adopted. A letter from the Secretary of St. Mirren's Lodge, Paisley, No. 129, inviting the brethren to Paisley on Sunday, 27th June, to hear a Masonic sermon by their Chaplain there, also from the Lodge Partick St. Mary's, No. 117, inviting their attendance on Saturday, 26th June, to take part in laying the memorial stone of their new hall, which will be performed by Bro. F. A. Barrow, D.P. Grand Master of Glasgow, and office-bearers of the Provincial Grand Lodge were read, and accepted. There being no further business, the lodge was called to harmony for a short time. The toasts of "The Queen," "The Three Grand Lodges, England, Scotland, and Ireland," being given from the chair, and responded to with high honours, "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Renfrewshire," coupled with Col. Campbell, P.G.M.," was given, the R.W.M. remarking that the P.G. Lodge was in excellent working order and prosperity, and he was certain the Pollokshaws R.A. Lodge, No. 153, would do all in its power to keep the Prov. G. L. in such a happy position. He then proposed "Prosperity to Lodge Thorn-tree, No. 512," coupled with Brother Scobie, R.W.M., thanking him for their presence among them, to meet them for the first time in their new hall. Brother Scobie, in his reply, said he was proud to meet them and extend the hand of friendship and good will, and to join them in their endeavours to elevate the noble Order they belonged to. The toast of "The Press" was then given by the R.W.M., coupled with Bro. G. B. Adams, of the Freemason. He thought the Press of this country, by its earnest and straightforward endeavours to elevate the moral character, had gained a power that almost ruled the world; and in the Masonic Press we had the Freemason, which was day by day becoming more appreciated by the members of the Craft. Brother Adams thanked the R.W.M. for the honour he had paid him, but more particularly for the compliment paid to Brother Kenning, the proprietor of the Freemason. He could only say that Brother Kenning's object in keeping up the Freemason was to do as much good as he could to the Order. In it you had the weekly reports of what was doing in this and other countries, and in the Masonic Magazine was to be found some of the best writings of some of the ablest men of the day. Some good songs were given in the course of the proceedings, which improved the harmony of the evening. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

LENNOXTOWN.—CALEDONIAN ST. JOHN'S ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 195).—A Masonic procession was carried out with considerable success here on Saturday, the 26th ult., in celebration of their Patron Saint's day. Fears were entertained in the early part of the day that the heavy showers following each other would continue, and not only damp the spirits of the "merry Masons," but spoil the display for the general public. The weather in the afternoon, however, was very favourable, and by three o'clock the interest taken in the turn-out by the public was very evident by the groups of people hanging about, especially in the vicinity of the lodge-room. The brethren assembled in the Lennox Arms Hall, where the ceremony of opening was efficiently gone through by Bros. Peter Robertson, D.M.; Robert Torrance, S.W.; and William Gray, J.W., officers of the Campsie Caledonian St. John's Royal Arch, 195. The procession was then formed in the square, visiting brethren in front of the local lodge, and headed by the band of the 7th S.R.V., proceeded through the principal streets and onwards to Clachan, where a halt was made for half-an-hour, and the whole company refreshed in the Crown Inn there. In reverted form they returned to the lodge-room in Lennox town in the evening, and the lodge being closed by Bros. Graham, R.W.M., and Warden, pro tem, of Kirkintilloch, Athole Lodge, 384, refreshments were provided, and toast, sentiment, and song followed for an enjoyable hour or two. Bro. Andrew Hosie officiated as Marshal, on the parade, in a highly satisfactory manner, and much praise is due to the acting committee for their forethought in securing a commodious wagonette for the conveyance of a number of very frail old Masons, who could not otherwise have followed the procession throughout its lengthy journey. The whole proceeding was eminently successful, an honour to the ancient Order, and left a most favourable impression on the numerous outsiders witnessing it.

RUTHERGLEN.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 347).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, Rutherglen, on the 25th ult. The meeting was a large one, and included a numerous deputation of the members of Royal Arch Lodge, No. 116, headed by their respected R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Ferguson. Bro. John Cunningham, R.W.M., presided, supported by his Wardens, Bros. John Murdoch, S.W. and Thos. Alston, J.W., along with the other office-bearers of the lodge, and opened the lodge for the dispatch of business. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved, and confirmed. Applications for initiation into the order were read from Messrs. Archd. Robertson, Robt. Hastie, and Dugald McLauchlane. The ballot being clear, they were properly prepared, and received the first Degree of Masonry, the R.W.M. effectively officiating. A letter from the Secretary of Lodge St. Partick St. Mary's, inviting a deputation to assist in laying the memorial stone of their new hall on the 26th June, was taken up, and the brethren present agreed to form a deputation. This finished the labour of the evening, when the lodge was called to harmony for a short time. Songs and exchanges of compliments were given till all were satisfied, and the lodge closed in ancient form.

MOTHERWELL.—LODGE ST. JOHN DALZIEL (No. 406).—A meeting of this lodge was convened for the 24th ult., and took place in the Masonic Hall, Motherwell. The object of the meeting was the annual election of office-bearers, and their installation. Much to the regret of the members of the lodge, their much esteemed R.W.M., Bro. A. King, had previously expressed his anxiety for retirement from office; but seeing that he had for the long period of twelve years held that office they prudently refrained from pressing his longer active service, though expressing a hope that they would not be deprived of his sound counsel when required. The office-bearers elected were John King, R.W.M.; James Johnston, D.M.; Wm. Bulloch, S.M.; J. Forsyth, S.W.; A. Hamilton, J.W.; John Bryson, Sec.; J. Evans, Treas.; E. Sheldon, S.B.; A. H. Arnott, S.D.; J. T. Young, J.D.; G. Simpson, I.G. These office-bearers were installed by P.M. A. King, in a manner quite characteristic of his great regard for the ancient landmarks of the Order; when the lodge was duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARYHILL (No. 510).—An emergency meeting of this young but flourishing lodge took place in their hall, Maryhill, on the 23rd ult. The meeting was largely attended, and a number of visiting brethren were present. Bro. J. Lockhart, R.W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Serjt. McCarrey, (Royal Engineers), S.W.; D. McLauchlane, J.W.; John Mackie, D.M.; P. F. Craigie, Sec.; John Govan, Treas.; James Hay, J.D.; and others. The lodge being opened for the dispatch of business, the R.W.M. said the object of the meeting was to initiate two gentlemen, viz., Robt. Scott and George Adams, who had been ballotted for and approved of, the work before the next regular meeting being quite enough of itself, it was thought prudent to call this meeting for their initiation. The candidates being prepared were conducted to the altar, where they were instructed in the First Degree of Masonry, Bro. Serjt. M. Carrey, S.W., officiating in a very able manner. This being the only business, the lodge was closed in ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 447).—A special meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, situated at Govan, on the 24th ult. In the unavoidable absence of the R.W.M., Brother John Meller, D.M., took the chair, supported by Brother Muir, S.W., W. Ferguson, J.W., J. Sutherland, Secretary, and a large number of well qualified brethren. Among other business was that of making arrangements for attending to the invitation from Partick St. Mary Lodge (No. 117) to be present at the laying of the memorial stone of their new hall on Saturday, 26th ult. This was satisfactorily completed, and a band of music engaged to accompany the lodge deputation, starting from Govan at 2 o'clock. The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—CATHEDRAL CHAPTER (No. 67).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, situated at 22, Struthers-street, on the 22nd ult. The business of the evening consisted of Mark Master, the Excellent, and the Holy Royal Arch Degrees, all of which Comp. Jas. Duthie, the much respected Z. of Cathedral Chapter, accomplished in a manner which showed him to be completely master of the position he was placed in. Among the companions present were J. Duthie, Z.; Cunningham, H.; Taylor, J.; Ronald, First Soj.; J. Jackson, Second Soj.; Goldie, Third Soj.; Campbell, Z. of 150, St. John, Shettleston; G. W. Wheeler, Z. of 73, Caledonian of Unity, &c. The brothers who received the above degrees were Robert Trainer, proposed by Comp. W. Taylor, seconded by Comp. Jas. Wood; Samuel Bisland, proposed by Comp. Ronald, seconded by Comp. J. Duthie, Z. The work of the evening being over, the M.E.Z., J. Duthie, said he had received a letter from a companion of this chapter, who had met with distress, and asking the assistance of the chapter to help him over his difficulties. Several companions present gave testimony to his character as being all that could be desired to satisfy any R.A. Mason, when the Treasurer was instructed to meet the case at once and give the required assistance. There being nothing further to consider, the chapter was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—COMMERCIAL CHAPTER (No. 79).—The monthly meeting of this chapter was held on the evening of Friday, the 25th ult., in the Masonic Rooms, 30, Hope-street. A lodge of Mark Masters was opened, Companion Julius Brodie, Z. presiding, the Wardens' chairs being occupied by Mark Masters J. M. Oliver and J. Duthie. The attendance, considering the season of the year, was fair. After the reading and passing of the minutes of two previous meetings, attention was called by the Scribe E. to the recently issued number of the Supreme R.A. "Chapter's Reporter," from which he read various extracts bearing upon the steps taken and the transactions which occurred last year in connection with the reponal of Chapter No. 79, and congratulated the chapter and its members upon the creditable position which it held in the list of "Returns." Various other subjects of passing interest merely having been discussed, and no important business having been brought forward, the proceedings terminated by the S.W. performing his peculiar duty in obedience to command from the East.

GLASGOW.—ST. MUNGO ENCAMPMENT.—The regular meeting took place in the Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 21st ult. There was a large number of Sir Knights present, among whom were—Sir Kts. R. Bell, M.N.C.; G. W. Wheeler, P.; Shields, S.C.; Currey, J.C.; Smith, C.C.; McKenzie, Adc.; J. McLeish, W., &c. Sir Kt. Bell, M.N.C., presided. J. B. Hardie, J. W. Rowbotham, and Thomas Yuille were balloted for, accepted, and, being presented, were duly installed Knights of the Order of the Temple, Sir Kt. Bell officiating with his usual minuteness of detail and carefulness. This was all the business before the Encampment.

PRESENTATION TO A FREEMASON.—On the 10th ult. a very gratifying presentation was made at Bro. Rudman's, the Adelphi Hotel, Arlington-street, Salford, to Bro. Wm. Wright, W.M. of Lodge Victoria, 1345, Eccles, and formerly "worthy host" of the Ordsale Hotel, Ordsale-lane, Salford, by a few friends and well-wishers, on the occasion of his leaving Salford to occupy the Cheese Hall Vaults, Crewe, which premises he has recently purchased. The testimonial consisted of a beautiful timepiece and chimney ornaments to match, valued at £50. An admirably provided banquet preceded the ceremony of presentation, and after the withdrawal of the tablecloth Mr. James Fairhurst took the chair, and the worthy host of the Adelphi, Bro. James Rudman, the vice-chair. The chairman, in the course of a few appropriate and complimentary terms, made the presentation. Bro. Wright fittingly thanked the subscribers for so substantial and lasting approval of his conduct and character as a citizen and a neighbour, and hoped he should merit the approbation of those kind friends amongst whom it had pleased an all-wise Providence to place him.

On 23rd June, at the Mount, near Stourport, Elizabeth Langford, wife of Bro. Enoch Baldwin, P.M. and Treasurer, Vernon Lodge, No. 560.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1875.

BRO. BINCKES'S LETTER.

We felt it to be our duty to publish Bro. Binckes's letter in our last issue, with reference to a pamphlet which has recently appeared, for two reasons—first, on account of the interests of the Boys' School, which constitute a paramount consideration with us; and secondly, in a spirit of fair play towards Bro. Binckes himself. As a rule in all Masonic discussions we should seek to hold the scales even; we should give to both sides full hearing and friendly toleration, and if we have to sum up we should do so judiciously, honestly, and loyally as before the Craft which constitutes our public opinion Masonically. But in the present case the most absolutely impartial person, the Lord Chief Justice himself, could not fail to take into his "coup d'œil" to use a French expression, the peculiar "surroundings" of the case. Just on the eve of the Boys' School Anniversary for 1875, at the 11th hour of long and anxious labours in the cause of charitable sympathy, even when the final efforts are being made to augment and fill up the Stewards' lists for the annual festival, a pamphlet, as it were, drops from the skies in the midst of a startled fraternity, containing grave animadversions on the Boys' School administration, and vehement incriminations of the Secretary. No course more calculated to shake the confidence of metropolitan and provincial brethren in the Boys' School executive ever was pursued by any brother at any time. No statements more likely to check the flow of Masonic benevolence towards a great institution ever were put forth by the hottest controversialist. To say nothing of the irregular appearance of a report to Vice-Presidents entirely uncalled for by them, and without any precedent to follow or justify such a proceeding such a publication seems to us to be a great mistake, and more than a mistake. Has a brother any complaints to make or, opinions to ventilate, or supposed injustice to condemn, the proper authority in the first instance to apply to is clearly the House Committee, specially charged to watch over the arrangements of the school, and not the general Masonic public, provincial or metropolitan, which must be necessarily ignorant, to a great extent, of the details and "minutiae" of the internal government of the school. In the province itself, where the pamphlet, in our opinion, has unwisely seen the light, there is an active Charity Committee, for the express purpose of attending to the interests of the great charities, which is presided over just now by a very worthy and experienced brother Mason, Bro. T. Hill, P.M. and had this anomalous report been submitted to that committee in the first instance, we believe that the good sense of West Yorkshiremen would have led to its suppression. In, therefore, the truest interests of Freemasonry and of Masonic benevolence, in the cause of the orphan and the friendless, and many an anxious applicant, for the welfare of 156 of our Masonic orphans, and for the keeping up actually of a great and most valuable institution, we felt as good Masons bound to allow Brother Binckes's practical protest to appear against what he states are unfounded imputations, and what he declares to be unjustifiable statements. We cannot help feeling that if such a system of pamphlet warfare is to be encouraged in our Order we shall soon be inundated like the Bashi Bazooks of controversy, and the great principles of Freemasonry will run a chance of being overlooked and even extinguished altogether in the scuffle. Without saying more at present, we will only add that we think Brother Binckes may fairly complain of "hard lines," not only in respect of his official position and personal susceptibilities, but especially in respect of that peculiar time of the year, when this unexpected "little stranger" appears on the scene, namely when after many months of arduous labours the anniversary of that institution, now close at hand, would seem to promise, under the presidency of our distinguished Pro G.M., a remunerative result, and a golden harvest for the Boys' School.

MASONIC JUSTICE.

Justice is a great virtue in all that relates to men, and constitutes the basis of all social happiness, and national greatness. To form just laws, to administer them firmly and purely, uncorrupted by interest, and unstained by venal considerations, has been the constant endeavour, whether of the enlightened law-giver or the patriotic citizen, in consecutive ages of the world. Without just laws, and just administration of them, without the "unsullied sanctity of the ermine," such as we happily are privileged to boast of in our favoured land, the highest arts of civilization languish and decay, the very material elevation of a people is dwarfed and hindered, national greatness becomes a "mockery, a delusion, and a snare," and the want of confidence in the "majesty of the law" soon betrays itself in the history of any people, in the tumults of anarchy, and the demoralization of the whole social system. And what is true in the aggregate is true of the individual. Justice between man and man, pure and perfect justice, we cannot expect here on earth, because man is but after all like a mighty ruin, on which have fallen, in the full light of heaven, evident traces of the effects of age; "decay's effacing fingers" have robbed it alike of its gracefulness and its grandeur, its proportions and its perfections. And though Freemasons, we are still only men and mortal; we are not, and cannot be, exempt from the frailty and littleness of humanity. Freemasonry, indeed, does from our first admittance to its light proclaim to us in solemn words the unfailing duty of justice, its sanctity, its necessity and its blessing. "To be just to all men, and above all to our brethren in Masonry" is as it were a living voice of truth, speaking to us all in our daily walk through life. No mere utterance of antiquated wisdom, no obsolete exhortation of a vanished epoch, but a deep, an abiding, a solemn message, ever incumbent upon us as Freemasons, never to be forgotten by us wherever we are, and whatever we do. And yet, must we not admit to-day that such teaching, such axiomatic morality, is received by us more as a beautiful abstract proposition than as a practical personal duty? Some one has said, "Men are naturally unjust to one another," and we fear that Freemasons, in this particular, often demonstrate to the "profane world" how truly, Freemasons though they call themselves, they are in no sense exempt from the foibles and perversity of Adam's race. For it is curious to note, and painful sometimes to realize, how peculiarly unjust Freemasons often are to one another. It has been previously remarked by "outsiders" how unbrotherly and uncharitable, how censorious and how malignant, Masonic controversy is apt to become—faults specially noticeable in a fraternity whose great profession is that of brotherly love. But what can we say of Masonic justice? There are many Freemasons who will believe anything reported to the discredit of a brother! Without any reflection or consideration, without any reasonable sifting of some ridiculous allegation, they will greedily listen to, and hastily accept, and industriously propagate, the idlest rumours, the most childish scandal, against a brother or brethren. Where, then, is their justice? We need hardly ask where is their common sense? Where is that use of the reasoning process which distinguishes them from the "anser" and the "asinus" in the rack of cackling and long-eared individuals who browse on the thoroughfares of the world, picking up its garbage and champing its thistles? It is sad to note how few people will think! Otherwise probably we should be spared so many specimens of earthly folly and Masonic injustice. We then are wishful to remind our readers, in these little lucubrations of Masonic philosophy and morals, that we as sentient beings can exercise no higher or better duty than that of employing gravely our own thinking faculties, and that we should all seek in our intercourse with mankind, and especially with our brethren in Freemasonry, to be guided and governed by the holy and immutable principles of justice. Never should we seek to lower or lessen the reputation of a brother, by unguarded assertions or malevolent insinuations. His character should be as dear to us as our own, and as on we go through the great Vanity Fair of life, not only should plain dealings and sincerity always distinguish us, but justice and equity should be our inseparable companions. To lift ourselves above the turbid passions of clique and coterie; to take a manly, a tolerant, and an expansive view of things; to be just to our brethren, to be fair to our neighbours, to hold the scales firmly and evenly amid contending interests and conflicting motives, should be the aim of every true Freemason. If Freemasonry teaches us nothing better or truer in her venerable lore, she certainly does teach every dutiful child and every faithful member this ever sacred duty—Be just.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL PROGRESS. No. VIII.

We call attention to a communication which appears elsewhere, relative to the old minute book of the Lodge of Industry, Gateshead. By that interesting record of another century, many remarkable facts are made manifest. Here we have the minute book of a purely operative lodge of Freemasons, and which is clearly distinct nevertheless, from the working Masons. The resolutions of 1733, and let us note the date, tell us the true tale of the history of our Order. Even at that period we find that the Society is still mainly operative, but admitting on special payment speculative Masons. In the far north the earlier enlargement by the southern Masons of the basis of the Order was still in 1733 only in its infancy. If it be correct that this old lodge at Swallowwell was the foundation of south country working Masons in the latter part of the 17th century, we see in this fact how gradually and slowly in the north of England the speculative element was admitted into the Masonic Order. But the clear distinction between the Company or Society of Freemasons and the working Masons is a very remarkable feature! All the earlier minutes of the lodge, from 1725 downwards, to 1776, relate to the apprenticeship by the members of the lodge of their apprentices for seven years, and registering them in the lodge books, and then receiving the apprentice charge. At the time of registration, for which 6d. only is paid, an undertaking is mentioned, that at the expiration of their apprenticeship they would be received or admitted into the fellowship, and pay a further sum, varying from 7s. 6d. to 10s. 6d., to the fund box. Then they would probably receive the old name "Fellow of Craft." It seems that the word "Fellow Craft," or "passing," does not actually appear on the minutes until 1775. But the word "fellow" often appears in the rules, and he is in more than one rule clearly distinguishable from the master, by the use of the words "and" or "or," according to every known rule of the English language. The Master of Lodge, Lodge Master, Master Mason, occur mainly, as regards the actual what we should call the W.M.; and "Raised Masters," "English Masters," "Masters" are specifically mentioned in 1746. But we should not be reading the minutes truly if we supposed that therefore Masters did not exist in 1725 or thereabouts, as to our mind it is quite clear that they did. In the Apprentice Charge it is distinctly said, "that you reverence your elders according to their degree, and especially those of the Mason Craft." Masters and Fellows alone were to attend the "assembly," Apprentices not. The yearly meeting was June 24, St. John the Baptist's Day, when the Master, Wardens, and Deputy Master were then elected. Four quarterly meetings were, it appears, held, the chief meeting June 24th, 29th of September, 27th of December, and the 25th of March. An Apprentice was to be admitted, or accepted into the Fellowship, on one of the quarterly meeting days alone, and pay 10s. 6d. to the fund box, and these regulations are evidently antecedent to 1733. So that in 1725, or thereabouts, we have the three ranks apparently in active employment, and clear distinction in the lodge. We have thought it well to point out what an addition to Masonic Archæology this opportune publication of these valuable records affords, and we think great credit is due to the W.M. and P.M., Bro. Robson, of that lodge, and the brethren, for their kind permission to have extracts made of so much interest to every Masonic student, and so helpful toward a true history some day of English Freemasonry. We refer all our readers to the August number of the Masonic Magazine for all these "Minutes" in detail.

CALENDAR OF THE GREAT PRIORY OF THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND MALTA.

We have had this carefully compiled document submitted to our notice, and we think it right shortly to call attention to it. It appears that there are 136 preceptories under the Great Priory of the United Orders. The balance sheet which is given seems to betoken financial prosperity. The general fund, including a large previous balance, amounts to £1170 14s. 11d. The benevolent fund to £221 19s. 3d. The expenditure of the general fund amounted in round numbers to £620, leaving a balance of £553 os. 10d. The expenditure of the benevolent amounts to about £40, leaving a balance of £181 19s. 3d., in all on both accounts of £715. At the meeting of the National Great Priory, May 14th last, two motions were carried by considerable majorities, which virtually amount to an express wish of the Order, to reconsider what Sir Knt. F. Binckes termed "hasty legislation." One was carried by Sir Knt. J. Booth, of Halifax, by 40 to 30, and was to this effect, "That the report be adopted, except with regard to the clause relating to the partial restoration of past rank, but that instead thereof the National Great Priory recommend to the Convent General to restore in its integrity the past rank affected by recent alterations of the statutes." The other was the resolution of Sir Knt. J. M. P. Montagu, and carried by 39 to 6, "That the memorial or petition of the Provincial Priory of Dorset, which was presented at the last regular meeting of the National Great Priory in December, 1874, be read and discussed, and that measures be taken for obtaining the opinion of the members of each preceptory in the jurisdiction of this Grand Priory upon the present position and probable future prospects of the Order, under the operation of the new statutes, and that the result of such enquiry be laid before Great Priory." These are most important resolutions, and it will remain to be seen what effect they will have in allaying what may undoubtedly be called much dissatisfaction at recent changes in the Templar Order. We express no opinion one way or the other, but we are aware from many letters that such a feeling exists in the Templar Order, and is alike strong and extensive. We trust that all questions of difference may soon be settled, agreeably to all interested, and that we may have to report the prosperity of an Order, embracing as it does so many very worthy members of the Craft.

PROVINCIAL FUNDS. II.—LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

This province, as many of our readers know, is a very small one, consisting of nine lodges and 351 members, in June, 1874. The increase this year will probably not be large. The annual balance sheet for 1874 is very simple and short. Dues from lodges amount to £36 9s.; fees of honour to £11 2s.; dispensations and special items to £7 12s. 6d.; balance £25 17s.; in all for the year, £81 os. 6d. With rent and various small expenses, the outgoings amount to £40 in round numbers, leaving an available balance of £41 3s. The Masonic Hall is apparently an appendage to the Provincial Grand Lodge, as its accounts are incorporated with the provincial returns, and capitation fees on initiation, to the amount of £37 16s., are paid by three lodges. If, when the mortgage debt of £750, is extinguished the province will obtain the benefit of the receipts, of course its income will be materially increased—as, after paying all expenses, it has a cash balance of £94 12s. But it does not seem quite clear from the report what its exact position as regards the Provincial Grand Lodge, though, no doubt, our courteous and able Bro. W. Kelly will be able and willing to inform us. The province had in 1874 130 votes for the Boys' School. It has also votes for the Benevolent Institution, and the Girls' School, though the number is not stated. In 1874 there were 9 joining members admitted in the various lodges of the province, and 23 initiations. If the province cannot boast a large and rapid increase of numbers it is just possible that the quality is superior to the quantity elsewhere. We do not believe in an "ugly rush" for Freemasonry, or anything else.

Orders are now being received at Bro. Kenning's Masonic Depots, London, Liverpool, and Glasgow, for the Medal to be struck in commemoration of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The copper token commemorative of the Prince of Wales's installation as Grand Master in 1793 is far from possessing the rarity supposed by our worthy and R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett. Like Bro. James A. Hayes, I saw one in the hands of a brother here very recently, and I have also heard of several other specimens. The late important events in the Order will doubtless cause many of these tokens to turn up.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM KELLY,

P. Prov. G.M. Leicestershire and Rutland.

ELECTION OF PROV. GRAND MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You kindly say in your last number, in reply to my letter under the above heading, that "Prov. Grand Masters are only emanations from, and representatives and nominees of, the Grand Master;" if this be so, and I do not doubt the correctness of your statement, I say that it ought not to be so. Why should every officer in Grand, Provincial, and Private Lodges be annually elected and P.G. Masters not? Will you kindly assist me with your able pen to get this inconsistency corrected? The P.G. Master should be elected by his lodge as all other W.M.'s are (subject, if you please, to the approval of the G.M.). I have heard many of my brethren complain of this hardship on us, but "what is every one's business is no one's business," and so the matter remains in statu quo.

Yours very fraternally,

AN OLD MASON,

And a Member of a P.G. Lodge.

EDUCATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to a letter from R.M. in the Freemason of June 26th, and headed "Education," I can very strongly recommend St. John's College, Southend-on-Sea, Principal Bro. J. R. Hemmann, I.P.M. 1000. The boys are well taken care of, very well fed, and appear very happy. St. John's College is situated on the highest part of the cliff, and commands a very extensive sea view. I shall be pleased to forward a prospectus if required. Southend stands very high on the list of English watering places in the Registrar General's Report, and is about 44 miles from London.

I remain, yours faithfully and fraternally,

E. E. P.

Southend-on-Sea, June 28th.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have seen a letter in the Freemason from a brother asking for information as to the whereabouts of an educational establishment kept by a member of the Craft in the vicinity of London. I think I can recommend him one, which will fully answer his requirements.

Bro. W. Hammond, G.S. of Middlesex, P.M. of the Jordan, W.M. of the Lebanon and Hemming Lodges, &c., &c., has a school at Old Hampton, where the studies are presided over by himself and competent assistants, and the general domestic arrangements are superintended by Mrs. Hammond and daughter. The school is old-established, and from its proximity, to the Thames, affords every facility for bathing, boating, angling, &c., and the air is remarkably pure and bracing.

Yours truly and fraternally,

T. C.

MINUTE BOOK OF THE LODGE OF INDUSTRY, GATESHEAD.

The Minute Book of the Lodge of Industry, Gateshead, has been lent me for perusal and description by the great kindness of the W.M. of the said good lodge, through the courteous intermediation of P.M. Bro. E. Robson, Treas., and a most interesting relic it is.

This old record is a paper book bound up with Anderson's Constitutions of 1723.

The earliest minute is of 1725—at the reverse end—to this effect, very noteworthy: September 29, 1725. "Then Matthew Armstrong and Arthur Douglas, Masons, appeared in the lodge of Freemasons, and agreed to have their names registered as 'Enterprisers,' to be accepted next quarterly meeting, paying one shilling each for that rank, and 7s. 6d. when they take their freedom."

Twenty-one minutes in all are consecutively entered at the reverse end, the last dated December 7th, 1776, more or less all relating to the taking and acceptance of apprentices, all of which will be published in extenso in the Masonic Magazine for August.

When we turn back to the continuation of the printed Constitutions we find some very remarkable entries.

The "Orders of Antiquity," almost identical with those of the Alnwick Constitution but standing separately there, the Apprentices Orders, the General Orders, the Penal Orders, the Fund Laws, are all of rare archæological value, and will be printed in extenso, and verbatim et literatim, in the August or September Magazine.

Unfortunately between the numbered pages, 36 and 37, a "hiatus valde defendendus" occurs, where some scrupulous, or unscrupulous brother has deprived us of several pages of MS.

I hope that the original "Fund Laws," are nevertheless to be put together from other pages of the book.

It may interest some to know that in July, 1746, it was "enacted at a Grand Lodge," held that evening that no brother Mason should be admitted unto the dignity of a 'Highroddiam,' under less than ye charge of 2s. 6d., or as the Damaskin or Forin, as John Thompson from Gateside, paid at the same night 5s. N.B.—The English Masters to pay for entering unto the said Mastership 2s. 6d. per majority." This is headed "Memorandum of the Highroddiams," and there is a list of 7 who only paid 1s. 6d., and 4 thorough English names, equally who paid 2s. 6d., with this note, "Engl. 8th, pd. 2sh. 6d."

There is a further list of twelve, who I presume paid the 2s. 6d., and over the leaf we have two lists of twelve and thirty respectively, the twelve are headed the names of the brothers in the High Order, &c. To pay for making in that Order, 1s. 6d. At the head of the other list is "English Masters, to pay at entrance, 2s. 6d. each." At the bottom of the list are the names of six others, or of the six receiving brethren.

We have the names of five "Raised Masters" on the same page in 1771 and 1772.

I have said enough to show the interest of this most valuable Masonic book, and I conclude with the regulations of 1733, which are exceedingly valuable archæologically, as our Bro. W. J. Hughan will agree:—

"June 14, 1733.

"It is agreed by the Society, that any brother of the lodge that hath an apprentice that serves his time equally and lawfully as he ought to do, shall be made free for the sum of 8s. And for any working Mason, not of the Lodge, the sum of 10s. And to any gentleman or other that is not a working Mason, according to the majority of the company."

For a fuller account of this very unique Minute Book, I refer my readers to the Masonic Magazine for August.

MASONIC NUMISMATICS.

The coin which the R. W. Col. Burdett has of 1792, is doubtless the same as mine. I hope his interesting letters on the subject will be the means of inducing other brethren who have any Masonic coins to make their character known, and thus add to our store of facts, which at present is lamentably deficient.

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

MASONS' MARKS.

Years ago I devoted a good deal of attention to this subject, and collected a considerable number of these marks, as found in ancient buildings in various parts of the world, and, like my old friend and correspondent H. H., on the establishment of the Powke and Howe Lodges of Mark Masters in this town in 1858, I prepared a book of marks for the use of candidates advanced therein.

If this book will be of any service to H. H., I shall be happy to send it for his inspection, if he will supply me with his present address.

I believe that to George Godwin, Esq., F.S.A., belongs the credit of being the first to call attention to the importance of these marks, architecturally, in two letters, which appeared in the "Archæologia," Vol. XXX., pp. 113-120, accompanied by several plates of marks. This was in the year 1843. In Vol. XXXIV., pp. 33-36, of the same work, appeared an interesting communication by Patrick Chalmers, Esq., F.S.A., "On the use of Masons' Marks in Scotland."

Doubtless, however, the largest, and what would have proved the most valuable, collection ever made by one individual was that of the late Bro. Edward W. Shaw, of Tamworth, consisting of 5,700 marks from all parts of the world.

This work, including many extracts from mediæval rolls and other documents bearing upon the subject, was being prepared for the press when Bro. Shaw was seized with the illness which resulted in his death, and thus the result of his labours appears to have been lost. What has become of his collection of materials?

CONSECRATION OF A RED CROSS CONCLAVE AT SHEFFIELD.

The introduction of this illustrious Masonic and Military Order into Yorkshire was accomplished on Saturday (June 12th), when the White Rose of York, Conclave No. 120, was at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, inaugurated and dedicated according to ancient custom under the most auspicious surroundings.

The ceremonies were conducted by V. I. Sir Knt. Wentworth Little, P.G.S.G., G. Treas., &c., assisted by V.I. Sir Knt. J. Geo. Marsh, P.G.S.G., and P.G. Archt.; Ill. Sir Knts. J. Lewis Thomas, F.G.S., P.G. Archt.; Frederick Binckes, Int. Gen. unattached; C. Fitzgerald Matier, Int. Gen. unattached; Geo. Toller, jun., G.O.; Em. Sir Knts. Captain J. Wordsworth, (2); A. K. Baines, (44.)

These names speak volumes, but we add our testimony that all went off so well as to leave nothing to be desired. Ten of the petitioners for the new conclave being in attendance, it was opened at one o'clock in due form, when twelve candidates had the honour of receiving installation at the hands of the above. Five more candidates were to have been present, yet, as it was, the muster was a gratifying sight to the illustrious visitors, some of whom had travelled great distances (and at some considerable personal inconvenience) to be present.

The ceremony of inauguration and dedication was next proceeded with, the neophytes listening with marked attention as the simple, yet sublime beauties were, in due sequence, disclosed to them; the oration (given by Sir Knt. Marsh) being especially admired. Sir Knt. Brittain, M.P.S., was inducted as M.P.S. of the conclave, when Sir Knt. Little announced that the Grand Council had appointed Sir Knt. Brittain as Intendant General of West Yorkshire, at the same time he had pleasure in handing Sir Knt. Brittain his commission, which should be read aloud at next conclave. This distinguished appointment was received by the conclave with marked approval. The consecrating officers retired; on their return, in a short time, Sir Knt. Little announced that Sir Knt. Wm. Rudewig had been consecrated as Viceroy Eusebius of the conclave.

The following officers were then invested:—Sir Knts. Rev. E. Boteler Chalmer, as Sen. Gen.; J. F. Moss, as Jun. Gen.; A. Scargill, as H.P.; S. B. Ellis, as Treas.; Joseph Binney, as Recorder; Simeon Hayes, as Prefect; G. W. Hawksley, as St. Bearer; John Nixon, as Herald; Hy. Ecroyd and R. Arnison, as Aides-de-camp.

It was unanimously resolved, upon the proposition of Sir Knt. Moss, Jun. Gen., seconded by Ill. Sir Knt. Brittain, M.P.S., &c., that the thanks of the conclave be given to Sir Knt. Ellis, Treas., for his great exertions in the preliminary arrangement of all the details relating to the formation of this conclave. Sir Knt. Ellis having acknowledged the honour of the special vote of thanks, said the conclave was under no obligation to him, for the success witnessed that day fully repaid him for whatever duties he had or might yet undertake. The conclave was closed, and a Sanctuary of K.H.S., and Commandery of St. John the Evangelist was duly opened, when fourteen candidates were admitted to this ineffable grade; the sanctuary was closed. The whole of the Sir Knights then adjourned to the banquetting-room, where a sumptuous luncheon had been provided at the expense of Sir Knt. Brittain, M.P.S., &c.; the nectar circulating, the usual toasts were honoured. In proposing "The Health of Sir Knt. Little, and the Consecrating Officers," the M.P.S. said that time pressing (several of the Sir Knights having to leave by early trains), it had been overlooked in the conclave to pass a vote of thanks to Sir Knt. Little and the other illustrious Sir Knights who had so ably assisted in the ceremonies, but he took the opportunity of there and then expressing the deep feeling of indebtedness the White Rose of York Conclave was under to those who had so ably performed the onerous duties of consecration, &c. This was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Several most excellent speeches were made by Sir Knts. Little, Thomas, Matier, J. G. Marsh, Lewis Thomas, Binckes, Brittain, and others. The M.P.S. read several letters (apologizing for unavoidable absence) from Col. Francis Burdett, Most Em. G. Viceroy, &c.; W. Romaine Callender, Esq., M.P.; Captain Turner, Liverpool; C. J. Banister, Esq., 33; Dr. Woodman, G. Rec.; Major Woodall, Scarborough; Bentley Shaw, Esq., late D.P.G.M. West Yorkshire; T. W. Tew, Esq., D.P.G.M. West Yorkshire; Manohar Rhodes, Esq., Bradford; John Fisher, Esq., Halifax; Captain Watson, Manchester; and others. Ill. Sir Knt. Matier tendered apologies on behalf of Ill. Sir Knt. G. P. Brockbank, Int. Gen. unattached, and Em. Sir Knt. T. Entwistle, P. Sov., for their unavoidable absence. So taking the event altogether, we may congratulate the Order at large, Yorkshire in general, and the White Rose of York Conclave in particular, upon the splendid inauguration of the Red Cross Order in that great Masonic district of which Sheffield may be said to be the centre. It was indeed a red letter day for the Sheffield Freemasons to have in their midst such brethren as Robert Wentworth Little, Frederick Binckes, C. F. Matier, and other distinguished visitors—all energetic workers in the busy life of Masonry. Under such circumstances as these (not overlooking the efficient staff of officers appointed—all zealous in the cause) we predict for the White Rose of York Conclave a bright and prosperous future. As it has commenced, so may it continue to flourish, until time shall be no more.

THE NEW MASONIC HALL IN GLASGOW.

The memorial stone of the new Masonic Hall, which has been promoted by the Lodge St. Mary's, 117, was laid on Saturday, the 26th ult., with full Masonic honours by Bro. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G.M. of Glasgow. Long before the Provincial Grand Lodge and also the local lodge were opened in the Burgh Hall in due and ancient form, the inhabitants began to gather in front of the hall, and when the hour for beginning to work arrived the following lodges were represented, together with the undernoted members of the Grand Lodge:—Bros. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G.M.; John Baird, S.P.G.W.; John Monro, R.W.M., 360, A.P.G.S.W.; Wm. Harper, R.W.M., 408, A.P.G.J.W.; A. McTaggart, P.G.S.; A. Bain, 543 P.G.B.B.; Dr. Penney, P.G.C.; Rev. A. H. Loftus, A.C.; R. Robb, P.G.M.; John Fraser, A.P.G.M.; James Balfour, P.G.D.C. The lodges were—Partick St. Mary's, 117; St. Mungo, 27; St. John, 34; Thistle, 87; Union and Crown, 103; Scotia, 178; Star, 219; Union, 332; Caledonian Railway, 354; St. Vincent, 553; Commercial, 360; Clyde 408; Neptune, 419; Go-vandale, 437; Maryhill, 510; St. Andrew, 465 (Glasgow District); St. John's, Dalmeir, 543; Busby St. John's, 458; St. Thomas, Kilwinning (Dalmellington), 433; St. John's Operative (Rutherglen), 347; St. Andrew's (Strathaven), 215; Royal Arch (Maybole), 198; Royal Arch (Cambuslang), 114; Loudon Kilwinning (Newmilns), 51; Royal Arch (Rutherglen), 116; Royal Arch (Pollokshaws), 153; St. John's, (Leven), 170; Old St. John's, 22, the brethren then emerged from the hall, and meanwhile the procession was being formed by Bro. Robb, Provincial Grand Marshall, Bro. John Fraser, P.G.A.M., and Bro. Balfour, P.G.M.C. The procession then wended its way along Maxwell-street, round towards Hamilton Terrace (West), and then round by Annfield Terrace, via Partick-hill, by way of Hyndland-street, Laurence-place, and Lindsey Terrace, past Downhill Quarry, coming round to Dumbarton Road from Byars Road. All the roofs of the houses round about the new building were covered with spectators, and the variegated hues of the regalia of the Masonic Order, as they marched up to the new building, tended considerably to enliven the scene. After the usual formalities had been gone through, Bro. Brunton, A.R. W.M., in name of St. Mary's Lodge, presented Bro. Barrow with a handsome silver trowel. Bro. Rev. Dr. Penney, P.G.C., was then called upon to offer up prayer, after which the P.G.S. and the P.G.T. deposited in the cavity of the stone a jar containing specimens of coins of the realm, copies of newspapers, &c. The various functionaries having, by command of the D.P.G.M., "done their duties" in ancient form, the 100th Psalm was sung, and the stone was pronounced by the D.P.G.M. as having been properly laid, "according to the ancient rules of Masonry." Loud cheers were then given for Bros. Barrow, Brunton, P.M. St. Mary's, and her R.W.M., who was unable to attend the ceremony owing to feeble health. The band having struck up a merry tune, which indicated to the spectators that the stone had been laid, the Depute-Provincial Grand Master then briefly addressed the brethren. He congratulated the R.W.M. and Wardens of St. Mary's Lodge on the occasion of their meeting, and wished them every success in the spirited enterprise in which they had engaged. The work for which they had that day met was not so magnificent in a sense as that in which, a few weeks ago, they were engaged in Glasgow. Yet, as Masons, they must look on it as still more important. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) It had a twofold interest, inasmuch as under the roof of the building, the foundation stone of which they had just laid, would be taught knowledge and light. (Cheers.) The educational department of the building would be devoted to communicating to the young of future generations fitness to discharge the duties of life; while in the Masonic Hall truth and light would be communicated to those who might seek it. (Cheers.) The success of Masonry had been very great in recent years. At the present time there was not a single lodge in the Glasgow province that met in any hall connected with a hotel or public house, as was universally the case 25 years ago. (Hear, hear.) At that time there were no halls, either in Glasgow or Edinburgh, where the Masons could meet except those connected with such establishments. They were indebted to the proprietors of these establishments for the accommodation they provided, but a degree of odium was cast on the Masonic body in consequence of their meetings being held in hotels and public houses, but they had outlived these calumnies. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) They had flourished in spite of ban and anathema, because the principles of Masonry were brotherly kindness, charity, and truth. (Cheers.) The success of Masonry in late years had been wonderful. In Great Britain the Freemasons numbered hundreds of thousands; in America there were 9000 lodges with 700,000 members, and in the course of a few years they might look forward to their numbering millions all over the globe. The D.P.G.M. concluded his speech amid loud cheers. The procession then re-formed, and marched to the Burgh Hall, where the remaining business devolving on the Provincial Grand Lodge was gone through, and the lodge closed in due and ancient form by Brother Barrow. Cake and wine were afterwards served, on the brethren being called from "labour to refreshment," and several toasts proposed. Brother Barrow gave "St. Mary's Lodge, and its R.W.M., Brother Wylie," whom he regretted to hear was not able, through sickness, to be present, but hoped that he would soon be in health once more, and see the fruits of the energy and perseverance of himself and those under him. He was glad to see that the lodge had a most able deputy in Brother Brunton, who had done his part in the day's proceedings ably and well, and that the office-bearers of St. Mary's, a lodge which had always been an excellent supporter of the Grand Lodge, deserved the thanks and congratulations of the whole brotherhood for their energy and noble efforts in contemplating the handsome edifice, the memorial stone of which was laid that day. (Loud cheers.) Brother Brunton then proposed "The Health of the D.P.G.M., Brother Barrow," and thanked him on behalf of the local lodge for his kind remarks. He afterwards gave "The prosperity of all the lodges who had taken part in the ceremony." Other toasts followed, and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent, the brethren leaving the hall about six o'clock.

CHRYSTON NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The memorial stone of the new public school of Chryston was laid on Saturday the 26th ult., with Masonic honours by T. C. Christie, Esq., of Bedlay, chairman of the School Board of Cadder. The school, which is being erected from designs by Mr. David Thomson, St. Vincent Place, Glasgow, is situated on the public road leading from Garnkirk to Chryston. The masonwork of the building is nearly completed, while a considerable portion has already been roofed in. The style of architecture is simple Scotch-Gothic, and the structure has been designed on the principle of utility and substantiality, rather than ornamentation, though the latter feature has not been altogether lost sight of by the architect. The internal arrangements will be of the most complete character, and in every respect well adapted to the requirements of an educational establishment. The principal hall, which will accommodate 260 persons, is intended to serve the double purpose of school-room and public meeting place for the villagers. In addition to this there are also four large class-rooms and the master's house, which is situated to the south-west of the principal school-room. Mr. Robert Brown, Chryston, the builder, is executing his work in a thorough tradesman-like manner, and it is expected that the school will be finished and ready for occupancy in the course of three or four months. The ceremony of laying the memorial stone on Saturday was also made the occasion of a public demonstration of a kind seldom witnessed in the quiet village of Chryston, the inhabitants of which seemed to be fully alive to the importance of the event which called forth their rejoicing. About four o'clock in the afternoon the members of the Cadder Argyle Lodge of Freemasons, "with aprons put on," as well as deputations from the Kirkintilloch and Cumbernauld Lodges, assembled in the village, and, preceded by the local brass band, playing the orthodox tune, marched in processional order to the new building, a distance of about half a mile. The villagers turned out en masse to witness the interesting spectacle, and the procession in its march was accompanied by a large crowd of men, women, and children. A temporary platform for the accommodation of the dignitaries and the favoured few had been erected in front of the building. The ceremony was commenced by the Rev. Alex. Thomson, Chaplain to the Provincial Grand Lodge, offering up prayer, after which Dr. John Murray, Secretary to the local lodges, deposited in the cavity of the stone a glass jar, containing, amongst other documents, copies of the Daily Mail, Glasgow News, and Glasgow Herald. The stone having been duly laid in accordance with the rules of Masonry—oil and wine being poured upon the stone, while the band at intervals played "The Merry Masons"—Bro. T. C. Christie addressed the assembly as follows:—Right Worshipful and very worthy brethren,—Having now laid the memorial stone of this building according to the ritual of our ancient and loyal Order, it only remains for me to congratulate the friends of education on the increasing care and attention that is being given to the upbringing of the new generation. May the results be all that the promoters desire. And I also congratulate my esteemed colleagues of the School Board of Cadder, with whom it has been no small pleasure to be associated, on the satisfactory progress that has to this time been attained in our useful though burdensome labours. I sincerely thank my Masonic brethren who have assisted me in the work to-day. Their presence here is only another proof of how desirous the brethren are to forward all that is calculated to promote the advancement of learning and the well-being of their fellow-men. (Hear, hear.) Living in the light, they are ever anxious that all should come to it, and cultivate those graces which true Masons, as perfect men, should exhibit in their lives. (Hear, hear.) You will now, I am very sure, all join me in the prayer that this house, and all erected with the same object, may prove a nursery of learning and virtue, of noble aspirations and generous deeds, and of that fear which is the beginning of wisdom, so that "truth and justice, religion and piety," may be established among us for all generations. (Cheers.) After some remarks from the Rev. Mr. Moody, of the Established Church, Mr. John McCulloch presented Bro. Christie with a silver trowel bearing an inscription. The ceremony was closed by the band playing "The Merry Masons."

We may add that the Cadder School Board have resolved to erect two other schools similar in character and design to the one whose memorial stone was laid on Saturday.

COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET TO A SWANSEA BROTHER.

On Wednesday, June 16th, a complimentary banquet was given at Swansea to Bro. Frederick Broughton, P.M. and P. Prov. J.G.W., on the occasion of his leaving Wales for Canada. The banquet was attended by brethren from all parts of the province, and took place at the Mackworth Arms Hotel, being served up in the excellent style of which that establishment is well known to be capable, under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Stone. The menu comprised all the delicacies of the season. The printed programme was in itself a literary treat, and consisted of appropriate cullings from Shakespeare, in which the deft hand and clear intelligence of a brother standing high in the Craft were manifest. In fact, the writings of the immortal bard must have been subjected to very close and considerable research in order to supply the requisite quotations. "Hamlet" supplied us with "Aboard, aboard, the wind sits in the shoulder of your sail, and you are stayed for—adieu, adieu!" "Stay; give me drink; here's to thy health." The play of "Troilus and Cressida" gave quotations as follow:—"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," "Welcome ever smiles, and Farewell goes out sighing." "The Tempest" added the following: "We promise you calm seas, auspicious gales," "Gentle breath of ours his sails must fill." To "Two Gentlemen of Verona" we are indebted for "All happiness bechance thee;" to "Cymbeline" for "The winds of all the corners kiss your sails and make your vessel nimble;" to "A Comedy of Errors" for "A table full of welcome;" to "Julius Cæsar" for "Our hearts are thirsty for that pledge," "With courtesy and with respect," "With free and friendly conference," and "Fill till the wine o'erswell the cup." To "Timon of Athens" for "A dinner of friends;" and to "Henry VIII." for "A health? let it go round." Under the influence of these invocations it is needless to say that the banquet was done full justice to, as were the after proceedings. The chair was occupied by the W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master of South Wales, Eastern Division, Bro. Edward J. Morris, at whose right sat the guest of the evening, Bro. Broughton. Among the brethren present were the following:—Bros. James G. Hall, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Marmaduke Tennant, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Thomas D. Daniel, Prov. J.G.W.; O. G. Williams, P. Prov. J.G.W.; Rowland Thomas, P. Prov. J.G.W.; William James Morgan, of Carmarthen, P. Prov. J.G.W.; Rev. Charles T. Heartley, Prov. G. Chaplain; Rev. A. H. P. Trewman, Prov. G. Chaplain, Somerset; John Jones, Prov. G. Treasurer; Laurence Tulloch, P. Prov. G. Registrar; Walter Whittington, Prov. G. Secretary; W. H. Tucker, P.S.G.D.; H. Green, P. Prov. J.G.D.; W. G. Davies, Prov. G. Sup. Works; H. St. G. Caulfield, P. Prov. G. Sup. Works; J. Jones Hewson, P. Prov. G.D.C.; P. Donaldson, P. Prov. G.D.C.; W. L. R. Jackson, Prov. G. Steward; J. C. Barry, Prov. G. Steward; James Goodall, W.M. 237; E. Cambridge Phillips, W.M. 651; W. J. Thomas, W.M. 679; John Jones, W.M. 833; J. J. Jenkins, 1323; P. Williams, 110; Rev. Dr. Moore, 237; Robert Maine, 237; L. L. Howell, 237; W. Dobbs, 237; W. Watkins, 237; W. Thomas, 237; D. Jenkins, 237; W. Paxton Garrett, 364; A. P. Struve, 364; Austin Parsons, 364; H. Stair, 364; W. Peckover, 364; W. Griffiths, 364; A. Phipps, 651; Thomas Thomas, 1323; David Jenric, 1323; H. J. Jones, 1323; J. B. Richards, 1323; H. Norton, J. C. Manning, T. W. R. Mason, W. Lewis, and many others, to the number altogether of about seventy. Bro. Charles Bath, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Bro. Richard Eve, Prov. S.G.W., and Bro. S. B. Power, P. Prov. G. Registrar, were unavoidably prevented attending.

The banquet being over, the usual loyal toasts of "The Queen and Craft" and "H.R.H. the M.W. the Grand Master, the Prince of Wales," were given and responded to. This was followed by the toast of "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Theodore Mansel Talbot," proposed by Bro. John Jones Jenkins, W.M. of the Talbot Lodge, Swansea, who said it would be invidious on his part to dilate upon the many good qualities of Bro. Talbot, who was well-known to them all as not only a Mason in word but in deed also.

The toast was warmly received, followed by a song, "In Happy Moments," by Bro. Jones Hewson.

The Chairman then rose to propose the toast of the evening, "Health and Prosperity to Bro. Broughton." He was greeted on rising with a round of applause. This was repeated on the toast being submitted from the chair. He stated that they were gathered together that evening in goodly numbers to pay a tribute of respect to a worthy and distinguished brother. No tribute of respect which they, as a province, could render to Bro. Broughton would, however, be above his deserts. It was his duty that evening to offer to Bro. Broughton his hearty thanks, and the no less hearty thanks of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, for the very eminent services which he had rendered to the Province of South Wales. Coming amongst them, as he did, some nine years ago, Bro. Broughton speedily identified himself with Masonry in the province, and he earned the favour of the brethren to such an extent that for three consecutive years he filled the high position of Master of the Brecon Lodge. (Cheers.) This would show how distinguished a Mason he must have been before he would have received such an honour at the hands of the brethren of his lodge. He was next selected upon three separate occasions to hold high office in Grand Lodge, and he now sat amongst them a Past Provincial Junior Grand Warden. (Cheers.) Speaking personally he very much regretted that Bro. Broughton was going to leave them, and if he looked round that room he would see a number of brethren to whom he was equally well known as he was to himself, by whom he was equally esteemed, and who would regret his departure as he (the chairman) did. They had, however, assembled on that occasion, not to express vain regrets, for it was to Bro. Broughton's interest that the change should be made, but to convey to him their warmest sympathy, accompanied with earnest hopes for his future prosperity in life in the new and far-off sphere to which he had been called. They had met to say farewell, and in saying farewell their wish was that he might fare well—the wish being expressed—if he interpreted the feelings aright of those who were then present—being expressed in the fervent hope that his journey across the pathless sea would be a safe and a pleasant one, and that he would meet with the same brotherly kindness and consideration among his new Masonic friends as he had earned for himself among the old. (Loud Cheers.) Their expressions of fraternal regard must of necessity be very cheering to Bro. Broughton, well calculated to cheer him on his way to the distant home to which he was going—a home which they one and all hoped would have many pleasant surroundings. He therefore called upon them to join him in wishing the brother who was leaving them a very hearty and a very affectionate farewell. (Loud applause, the toast being enthusiastically received with every expression of hearty good-will towards the worthy brother so feelingly alluded to.)

Bro. Broughton, who, on rising, was received with loud and long-continued cheers, and who spoke throughout with evidently suppressed emotion, said he scarcely knew how to thank them sufficiently for the reception which they had given to him, for the honour which they had bestowed upon him, and for the very kind remarks which had been made in reference to him. Their worthy chairman, the Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, had shown considerable ability in enriching the printed programme of their proceedings with appropriate Shakespearean quotations. There was one quotation, however, which had been omitted, which had special reference to his own case. Shakespeare had said that some men were born to greatness, others achieved greatness, and some had greatness thrust upon them. He felt that he could conscientiously say that he had achieved no greatness except what had been thrust upon him—and thrust upon him very kindly indeed. He felt how little he had really done for Freemasonry—how little he had done to carry out that which, when, twenty years ago, the mysterious veil was drawn aside, and he was admitted into their midst. What he heard then he should never forget, and he was quite sure he had carried out very imperfectly the principles inculcated, and for which he had received such honour and consideration at their hands. He would tell them why he admired Freemasonry—nay, why he loved it. He admired it, first, because it inculcated a belief in, and an adoration of, the Almighty God, because it teaches us morality and truth as guiding principles, and exhorted to charity as the one beneficent rule of daily life. It was religion without dogma, and almost without doctrine. Beyond this, it tended to elevate man in every respect, both morally and socially, and could be understood only by those who investigated the mysteries by which it was surrounded. Though ancient, it could not be classed among the worn-out sciences. It was a thing of to-day, as it was that of the distant past; and they had in it, besides its wealth of science, all the elements of pure and simple religion. It taught them grand and telling truths for their guidance in the present, and held out to them the certainty of a glorious future. That was why he admired Freemasonry, nay, loved it. (Loud cheers.) He thanked them sincerely for the honour they had bestowed upon him, undeserved though he knew it was—earnestly and fraternally did he thank them, and, in thanking them, bade them farewell. (Applause.) The speaker sat down, being heartily cheered, "Auld Lang Syne" being feelingly sung by the brethren with the usual accessories.

The list of toasts having been disposed of, the meeting broke up, the brethren all wishing Bro. Broughton a prosperous voyage and a safe return.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The fourth meeting of the Stewards for the festival of next Wednesday was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall. Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Past Grand Senior Warden of England, President of the Board of Stewards, took the chair, in which he was supported by Bros. Edward Jones, S.D., 192; A. John Bingemann, W.M. 55; Thomas J. Sabine, Mark Degree; Robert B. Webster, W.M. 1320; Francis R. Vine, P.M. 173; John A. Rucker, P.G.D. 66; R. R. Davis, W.M. 256; John Palmer, W.M. 1501; T. Hastings Miller, P.M. 907; Samuel J. Hose, W.M. 1155; Israel Abrahams, P.M. 188; J. M. P. Montagu, D.P.G.M. Dorset; W. C. Parsons, W.M. 180; A. Brown, W.M. 766; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; H. E. Burt, P.M. 622; W. Lane, W.M. 28; Charles Moody, P.M. 1046; John Healey, P.M. 59; S. Rosenthal, P.M. 435; A. B. Garrett, W.M. 11; John Cox, W.M. 1257; W. H. Smith, 108; John Seax, P.M. 186; C. J. Morgan, S.W. 8; J. L. H. Vockins, W.M. 1320; A. Barfield, P.M. 511; W. Lutwyche, W.M. 1365; J. C. Bayley, 33; G. Ward Verry, P.M. 1278; Richard Motion, 453; Henry Venn, R.C.; Wm. Stephens, 1351; W. H. Farnfield, W.M. 907; H. Massey (Freemason); and F. Binckes, Sec.

The printed regulations were read, and the plan of the building was explained by Bro. Binckes, who also announced to the Stewards that they were expected to attend at the Alexandra Palace at from three o'clock to half-past three on Wednesday next, for final instruction in their duties. The toast list was submitted and approved, and a vote of thanks to Lord Balfour of Burleigh, proposed by Bro. J. A. Rucker, Past Grand Deacon, and seconded by Bro. S. J. Hose, W.M. 1155, was carried unanimously.

The Chairman, in acknowledging the vote, said he would take this opportunity, as it was the first time he had been able to attend a meeting of the Stewards for the festival of the Boys' School this year, to state that it arose from other engagements. As some of the brethren might be aware, he was one of the Commissioners appointed to enquire into the working of the Factory Acts, and, in strictness, he ought to be in Manchester at that moment, but as he was very anxious to attend this meeting, he had got another Commissioner to take his place at Manchester for that day. (Cheers.)

In answer to a question of Bro. Bingemann as to the probable number of visitors at the festival, Bro. Binckes said that all Stewards had notice sent to them that any "returns" must be delivered by that day, the 28th. Very few of such returns had been sent in, and therefore the Stewards had a right to expect that there would be a very large attendance. Every post would now bring in applications for tickets. The pressure would be very great, and the kindest consideration must be given for the members of the board. He hoped that all the Stewards would think it their individual duty to contribute their best efforts to the success of the festival.

At the close of the meeting the ballot for places was conducted, which lasted a considerable time.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY.—On Saturday evening the usual Council meeting of the Council of the Hospital Saturday Fund was held at 28, Leicester-square. The Chairman (Bro. Captain Mercier) reported that since the Hospital Saturday delegate meeting on the 12th ult., when he announced that nearly two hundred names of firms had been received, upwards of thirteen hundred additional names had been sent in, making the total number up to the present time 1,500 firms, amongst whose employés collections would be made. This was beyond measure satisfactory, especially as further names are being received at the rate of from 60 to 100 per day. There was thus every reason to hope that this year's collection will be a large one.

The Morning Post states that there will be a meeting of those peers interested in Ireland at the Duke of Abercorn's private residence in Green-street, Grosvenor-square, Lord Hawarden has called the attendance by circular.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WORCESTERSHIRE.

An unusually large number of Freemasons assembled in Worcester on Tuesday, 22nd ult., to celebrate, under the able and genial rule of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Albert Hudson Royds), the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Province of Worcestershire. The occasion was most auspicious, many circumstances conspiring to add to the pleasures of the day. The weather was fine, attendance, as we have said, was numerous, and the reception by the local Freemasons was cordial and hospitable. The members and visitors at Grand Lodge were the invited guests of Wor. Bro. J. Bourne, W.M. of Semper Fidelis Lodge, No. 529, and of the brethren of that lodge, which is held at the Crown Hotel. On this occasion, however, the lodge was formed in the Assembly Room at the Guildhall, which had been placed at the disposal of the Freemasons by the Mayor (Mr. J. Longmore). The Master and Wardens of Semper Fidelis Lodge included the members of the sister lodge—the Worcester Lodge, No. 280—in the invitations issued to all present to partake of a very admirable luncheon courteously provided by Bro. Bourne and the brethren over whom he presides, and purveyed by Bro. Fuggle, proprietor of the Crown Hotel, in a manner that sustained his established reputation as a skilful and liberal caterer. After the luncheon had been discussed a hearty vote of thanks was, on the motion of the P.G.M., passed to Bro. Bourne and the members of his lodge for their hospitality, and the brethren of Semper Fidelis proceeded to the Assembly Room, where a Craft Lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Bourne. The P.G.M. and the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge then mustered and entered the lodge in procession, the chair being surrendered to the P.G.M., Bro. Royds, who opened the Provincial Grand Lodge in due form. Amongst those present were the following:—Bros. A. H. Royds, P.G.M.;—Masfield, Deputy P.G.M.; E. A. N. Royds, P.D.P.G.M.; John Barber, P.D.P.G.M.; J. Rutland, P.S.G.W.; W. Westwood, P.J.G.W.; W. H. Jones, P.S.G.W.; Samuel Smith, 252, P.P.G.W.; Walter Holland, P.P.G.W.; Thomas Hobbs, P.P.G.W.; Albert Brown, P.P.G.W.; W. R. Cosens, D.D., P.G.C.; C. C. Whitney-Griffiths, P.G.T.; H. G. Goldingham, P.G.R.; H. Cross, P.P.G.R.; W. Bristow, P.M., 252, P.P.S.G.W., P.G.S.; E. T. Wright, 564, P.J.G.D.; W. Dyer, P.M., 529, P.P.G.D.; W. Meredith, 280, P.P.G.D.; P. H. Bloomer, P.G.S. of Works; J. Stokes, W.M., 252, P.G.D. of Ceremonies; A. A. Sylvester, P.P.G.D. of Ceremonies; W. Healy, 564, P.P.G.D. of Ceremonies; J. Fitzgerald, P.P.G.D. of Ceremonies; A. F. Godson, 1097, P.P.G.D. of Ceremonies; G. T. Bloomer, P.G. Sword Bearer; T. Brettell, P.M., 252, P.P.G.Sword Bearer; T. Troman, P.M., 573, P.G. Organist; F. E. Lucy, 529 and 1204, P.P.G. Pursuivant; J. Broomhall, P.M., 560, P.P.G. Pursuivant; J. Foley, S.D., 564, P.G. Steward; J. Bourne, W.M., 529; V. Gregg, W.M., 280; F. Powell, P.M., 486; L. H. Kinnock, P.M., 573; B. Woodward, 377; G. R. Godson, P.M., 1097; J. McEwin, 564; W. Waring, 252; J. P. Bayley, 564; J. H. L. Jones, 280; S. J. Perkes, 1163; J. S. Fisher, 1163; R. Lansmere, 1087; H. D'Arcy Ellis, 564; W. Perry, 564; J. Jordan, 498; J. Birch, 564; J. Ellis, 564; S. A. Brooks, 564; R. S. Blundell, 560; J. Clements, 498; J. Bayliss, 573; H. Wilson, P.M., 1204; C. Lloyd Lester, S.D., 252; G. P. Chapman, W.M., 573; J. Beckley, 573; A. Pearson, 573; R. L. Campbell, W.M., 564; J. Moreton, W.M., 560; W. Turtan, S.W., 377; G. Southall, P.M., 377; G. F. Groves, 573; E. Stringer, Steward, 564; F. Perkes, S., 564; J. F. Bedford, 560; J. Joseland, J.W., 529; W. Somers, P.M., 573; A. Combes, 560; T. C. W. Conless, J.D., 377; T. Blaybrough, 377; J. V. Stallard, 280; J. Dawes, J.D., 498; D. W. Barker, 280; J. B. Pinkett, 280; T. Groves, 529; T. Bennett, 529; G. W. Weldin, 529; J. Still, Sec., 529; J. Collins, 252; G. F. Thompson, 252; B. Wood, 564; R. Smith, P.M., 280, P.G.S.W.; G. B. Pridley, 564; C. M. Collins, 529; E. Williams, 564; G. Everton, 529; H. E. Walker, 252; J. J. Roberts, S.D., 529; J. Parker, 529; R. G. Walker, 252; F. R. Petch, 1004; 1387, 204; S. M. Campbell, 529; H. Bagott, 252; G. Bagott, J.W., 252; W. M. Smith, S.W., 252; J. F. Higgs, 252; W. H. Wood, P.M., 280; J. Russell, 252; J. P. Nunn, 482; W. Bagott, 252; S. Bagott, 252; C. Hickson, 460; G. S. Owen, 252; F. H. Lingham, J.D., 280; S. Dimbleby, 529; F. G. Russell, S., 1204; E. H. Tiley, S.W., 529; R. Lloyd, 377; J. Dugard, 377; E. H. Cowen, 529; H. Rowe, 280; F. Garner, Tyler, 252; W. Caldicott, 529; W. Mills, Tyler, 560; H. Scott, Tyler, 564; E. Gynn, Tyler, 1,204; H. Willis, 280; H. Madden, J.W., 1204; J. Phillips, 529; J. Carter, J.D., 529; J. Dixon, J.G., 377; J. H. Meredith, P.P.G.R., Staffordshire, 624.

The P.G.M. having been saluted with proper honours, the Prov. Grand Secretary, Wor. Bro. W. Bristow, P.M. 252, read the minutes, which were confirmed.

The muster roll was next called, when it was found that the respective lodges in the province were represented as under:—Harmonic Lodge No. 252, 20 members; Worcester Lodge 280, 16; Hope and Charity 377, 9; Royal Standard 498, 4; Semper Fidelis 529, 25; Vernon 560, 8; Stability 564, 20; Perseverance 573, 10; St. Michael's 1097, 3; Royds 1204, 9.

Apologies for non-attendance were read from Bros. C. J. Vigne, Capt. N. G. Phillips, G. W. Grosvenor, R. Wood, F.S.A., and G. Baldwin.

The accounts of the Prov. Grand Treasurer, Wor. Bro. C. C. Whitney Griffiths, P.P.S.G.W. and P.M. Worcester Lodge No. 280, were read and unanimously confirmed.

The re-election as Treasurer of Wor. Brother Whitney Griffiths was then proposed by Wor. Brother Masfield, the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, seconded by Wor. Bro. R. Smith, P.P.S.G.W., and carried with acclamation, the brethren attesting by their applause their high appreciation of the long and infinitely varied services of this officer. The recipient of the compliment at once acknowledged it.

The Prov. Grand Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year:—Senior Grand Warden, Wor. Brother W. H. Jones, P.M., 564; Junior Grand Warden, Brother T. M. Hopkins, P.M., 529; Grand Chaplain, Brother Rev. Dr. Cosens, 252; Grand Treasurer, Brother C. C. W. Griffiths, P.M., 280; Grand Registrar, Brother J. Stokes, W.M., 252; Grand Secretary, Brother W. Bristow, P.M., 252; Senior Grand Deacon, Brother R. Broomhall, P.M., 564; Junior Grand Deacon, Brother E. L. Harrison, P.M., 529; Grand Supt. of Works, Brother A. A. Sylvester, P.M., 280; Grand Dir. of Cer., Brother T. Brettell, P.M., 252; Assistant Ditto, Brother E. Watton, P.M., 529; Grand Sword Bearer, Bro. J. Bourne, W.M., 529; Grand Organist, Brother T. Troman, P.M., 573; Grand Pursuivant, Brother H. Wilson, P.M., 1204. The Stewards appointed were Brothers E. Tiley, J. Joseland, J. F. Roberts, John Carter, C. M. Collins, W. Caldicott, all of Lodge 573. The Tylers, Brothers J. Stanley (573) and J. Smith (280), were re-appointed.

An invitation was tendered by Wor. Bro. Stokes (Mayor of Dudley) that the Grand Lodge of the Province should, in the year 1876, be held at Dudley. The Wor. Master of the Vernon Lodge said he had been desired to invite the Provincial Grand Lodge to meet at Stourport. On a division, 20 voted for Dudley and 11 for Stourport, and consequently Dudley was appointed as the locale of next year's meeting.

On the motion of Wor. Bro. J. Rutland, P.P.S.G.W., seconded by Wor. Bro. Godson, P.P.G.D.C., it was unanimously resolved that as the amount of the offertory at the cathedral would be handed over to the Masonic body by the Dean of Worcester, the sum should be forwarded to the Royal Albert City and County Orphan Asylum.

A letter was read from W. Bro. Woolf (F.S.A.), indicating that the restoration of Tewkesbury Abbey was a work in which the Freemasons of Worcestershire might worthily lend their aid. On the motion of W. Bro. Bristow, seconded by Bro. Goldingham, P.P.G. Registrar, it was resolved that the W.M.'s in the province should be requested to bring the subject before their respective lodges.

The Prov. Grand Master then closed the Grand Lodge in accordance with ancient custom.

The brethren were next mustered, and went in procession to the cathedral, the bells of which rang gaily as they passed along High-street and entered the edifice. The volume of the Sacred Law was borne in the procession by the following "Lewises" (sons of Masons):—Masters Eustatius Griffiths, Thomas Meredith Hopkins, John Archer Weldin, and Herbert Haughton Hill.

At the service in the cathedral Canon Wood and Canon Seymour were present. The prayers were intoned by the Rev. T. L. Wheeler, the Rev. Bro. R. Cattley, and the Rev. Mr. Taverner, and the lessons were read by Canon Wood.

The Rev. Bro. W. R. Cosens, D.D., Vicar of Dudley, preached in a singularly eloquent, powerful, and impressive manner, a sermon, the text of which was taken from Galatians v., 6th verse, "Faith which worketh by love." The rev. gentleman said, worshipping that day in that grand and beautiful temple of God, their thoughts travelled back to far distant centuries. They rested awhile with Oswald in the tenth century, and with those Masons, operative and free, who laboured around him; or they wandered back to those more distant days when the monks built their first Cathedral Church of St. Peter on the banks of the Severn, at a period when the Anglo-Saxon Church was gifted with such good and learned men as Bede and Egbert, and when to that Church was given the missionary zeal to Christianise Germany and the Netherlands. Whilst the very beauty of such a structure as the one in which they were assembled inspired them with heavenly thoughts, they were reminded of the one great principle which had for 4000 years dignified the worship of the Architect of the Universe by bringing to that worship rich offerings in wood and stone, with gold and silver and jewelled beauties—thus offering to Him, who had freely given to them all things, their own works of art, and the labour of their own hands. They were thus permitted to intensify the beauties of His own creation by the labour of the Craftsman and the Mason, and to glorify Him who had granted to them earthly things by sanctifying art and labour in dedicating them to Him. The great principle which was the ruling power in the older Church—the Church of the tabernacle and the temple—had ever been the very life and centre of religious thought in the Christian Church. That principle was "Faith which worketh by love." It was true that idolatrous polytheism had like its gods many altars, but gorgeous as were many of the heathen temples their magnificence paled before the wondrous house of the true God. He dwelt upon the example set to future worshippers of the Almighty by Solomon, who erected the first temple to God, and lavished upon it such a prodigious score of gold, silver, and other riches. They were, in fact, startled by the amount thus expended, but it should teach them that faith ought not to count the cost that love should sacrifice to its God. In tracing out the histories of ancient dynasties, the lover of art was assured that architecture and civilisation had gone hand-in-hand together. The five orders of architecture, from the simple Tuscan to the elaborate composite, were in themselves a history of the progress of civilisation, and, clustering around them, painting and sculpture had made the beautiful science of architecture all the more comely by illuminating it with all the fair graces and virtues which adorned the race of man. But they as Freemasons saw architecture and religion blended together in a wondrous harmony. Freemasonry enjoyed the privilege of retaining and ennobling that harmony of thought. True it was that Freemasonry was speculative, rather than operative; philosophical and metaphysical, rather than practical and physical. But they must not forget that to Freemasons had been granted the fame of having erected those stately churches and noble cathedrals which abounded on the Continent, while nearer home they could not disassociate their ancient Order from such works as Austin's Abbey of Canterbury; the island Church at Lindisfarne; Wearmouth, Ripon, and Glastonbury. It might indeed be said with truth that one of the greatest evidences of vitality in a Church was the effort to erect, to restore, or to beautify the houses of God in the land, and even now, amid sounds of variance, which probably were rather more wordy than real, they beheld cathedrals upon which peers and high ecclesiastical dignitaries had recently—and even now—bestowed of the wealth with which God had blessed them. Their large towns showed what commercial prosperity, actuated by a loving faith, would do for God; and the squires, the farmers, and the peasantry loved and sought to beautify the village church where their forefathers knelt. There could thus be no doubt that faith, working by love, was never content to dwell in luxuriant houses whilst the temple of God lay waste. In their own day, and in that very province, Freemasons had not been found wanting in aiding to beautify their church with stained glass. They had further given their presence and their alms at the re-opening of their cathedral, and more recently still had participated in laying the 'corner-stone' of a new church in the Black Country. Surely faith working by love had thus been exercising its influences. Adverting to the recent denunciation of Freemasonry by the Pope, the preacher said it mattered not to them in England what an aged prelate in Italy might write of their body. Thank God, honest and true men believed intensely in the principles and the work of their Order. The highest and noblest gentleman of their kingdom had not thought it otherwise than an honour to be called on to rule over their whole body. He asked if there was in Freemasonry any practice or theory derogatory to that purer form of faith which the great mass of them professed as Christians. There was, he believed, great truth in the words "Reduce Freemasonry to the limits of any particular religious institution, and you de facto annihilate its usefulness as a common bond of humanity. Declare it to be in its maxims, rites, and ceremonies exclusive in its character, and you a priori debase it to that anti-social position wherein the most rancorous passions of the human heart have ragged to enkindle wrath, envy, hatred, and discord among mankind." For what was that faith which worketh by love? Was it not that which moistened the dry soil of their hardened hearts; fed and cleansed their dark habitations; turned the vast wheels of their complex social system, and so deepened their shallow thoughts, widened their narrow sympathies, sweetened their bitter controversies, and freshened their stagnant indolence? Faith was defined among Masons to be "the foundation of justice, the bond of amity, and the chief support of civil society; we live and walk by faith; by it we have a hope and acknowledgment in the existence of a Supreme Being, and are justified, accepted, and finally received. While charity or love is one of the brightest gems that can adorn our Masonic profession, it is the best test and surest proof of the sincerity of our religion." The rev. gentleman proceeded to impress upon them the necessity of cultivating more and more that "faith which worketh by love." What their ancestors had done in works of architecture and beauty to the glory of God, let them imitate. Let each of them be careful to perform their allotted task while it was day, inspired with a holy confidence that the Lord of Life would enable them to trample the King of Terrors under their feet; and let them lift their eyes to that bright morning star, whose rising would bring true fruition of that "faith which worketh by love" to the faithful and obedient of the human race.

The offertory amounted to £22 17s.

After the service the procession was re-formed, and the brethren went to the Crown Hotel, where a superb banquet, prepared by Brother Fuggle, was in readiness. The Prov. Grand Master presided, and a very gratifying evening was spent. The "Lewises" were each presented with a copy of the volume of the Sacred Law, and a motion was passed with enthusiasm conveying to the Rev. Dr. Cosens very special thanks for the sermon preached in the cathedral.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. WILLIAM BULLEY.

The funeral of Bro. William Bulley, one of the oldest Freemasons in Birkenhead and neighbourhood, who at the time of his death was P.G. Warden of the Province of Cheshire, and who had formerly held many high offices, took place on Saturday, the 19th ult., at Flaybrick-hill Cemetery, near Birkenhead, and was attended by a very large number of the Masonic brethren. Bro. Bulley was greatly esteemed by all who knew him, both in Masonry and the outside world, and he has left a blank which will not be easily filled up. The funeral cortege left the late residence of the deceased in Clifton-park shortly before two o'clock, the chief mourners being the deceased's two sons, his brother, Bro. Henry Bulley (chairman of the Oxtan Local Board, and a well known Freemason), Mr. Hoffman, &c. Amongst the Freemasons present were Bros. J. M. Radcliffe, P.M. (605), T. E. Hignett, P.M. (537), J. P. Platt, P.P.G.W. (537), Thomas Platt, P.P.G.D., Dr. Spratley, P.P.G.D. (537), Dr. Wilson, P.M. (537), E. J. Haddon, W.M. (605), Matthew M'Nemey, S.W. (605), T. Leighton, P.M., Sec. (605), Robert Gracie, P.M. (477), Donald Fraser, W.M. (477), F. K. Stevenson, P.M. (537), Ellis Davis, P.M. (605), Samuel Jones, P.M. (477), Thomas V. Evans (292), William Clements (605), T. C. Thorburn, of the Joppa Mark Lodge (11); L. Ellis, W.M., and A. Lowe, of Rock Ferry; Edward Parsons (537), N. Hall (537), W. Worrall and Griffiths, Chester; F. Sander-son, John Lamb, &c.

Masonic Tidings.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., has given Bro. L. Desanges a sitting for a full-length portrait, to be presented to Grand Lodge by the Lodge of Friendship No. 6.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.—This hall will be dedicated to Masonic purposes by Lord Skelmersdale, M.W.D.G.M., on Wednesday, the 14th inst., on which occasion the New Lodge, called after the name of the hall, will also be consecrated. We understand the hall is already in great demand, and applications are daily coming in for lodges and chapters to hold their meetings there.

A warrant for a new conclave, to be named the "Thanet Conclave," has been granted, and the same will be consecrated at the Freemasons' Hall, Margate, on Wednesday, the 21st inst., by Col. Francis Burdett, Grand Viceroy, assisted by R. Wentworth Little, Grand Treasurer, H. A. Dubois, Assistant Grand Treasurer, and other Sir Knights of the Grand Council and Senate. Sir Knights Bolton and Compton are to be the first M.P.S. and Eusebius.

The meetings of the Domestic Lodge of Instruction are now held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road, which is close to the Camberwell Station of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. The meetings are to be held every Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The lodge commenced these meetings last Tuesday evening, on which occasion it was well attended. Bro. M. S. Larham is the Preceptor, and Bro. C. E. Towell the Secretary, of the lodge.

THE LIMPUS TESTIMONIAL.—We have received the following circular—"College of Organists, 41, Queen-square, London, 15th June, 1875. Dear Sir,—The Council of the College being desirous to present a Testimonial to the widow of the late Mr. Limpus, have determined to open subscription lists, to enable its members and other friends to offer her a substantial proof of the high esteem in which her late husband was universally held. Mr. Limpus was the founder of the College, and held the position of Hon. Secretary and Treasurer from its commencement to the time of his death, and it is to his untiring energy and zeal that the College has attained its present state of efficiency. He also took a chief part in founding the Benevolent Fund attached to the College, to promote which he organized and conducted a Festival at St. Paul's Cathedral, with great success. Mr. Limpus attained considerable eminence in his profession as a lecturer, composer, and teacher, and his earnest service as the organist of St. Michael's Church, Cornhill, for upwards of a quarter of a century, is well known. He also held the position of Provincial Grand Organist for Middlesex to the Craft of Freemasons, and in all things tending to foster the love of music he was filled with enthusiasm, and was not to be discountenanced by any obstacles to a successful issue of his labours. His loss leaves a gap which it will not be easy to fill, and will be felt by none more keenly than the younger members of the profession, whom he was at all times ready to advise and to help. Having died at a comparatively early age, after a long and expensive illness, he was not enabled to make provision for his widow, and the Council of the College hope, by this means, to be enabled to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of their late friend, and a compliment to his widow.—I am, dear Sir, yours very truly, E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Sec."

A concert for the benefit of the widow of the late respected brother, Richard Limpus, will take place in St. George's Hall, Langham Place, on Thursday evening, July 15. Many distinguished artists have volunteered their services. Full particulars in our next.

A committee has been formed to promote a testimonial to Bro. Thomas Meekham, in recognition of the efficient manner in which he has for many years carried out the onerous duties of one of the M.C.'s of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum and School Balls, the Licensed Victuallers' Protection Society Ball, the North and South of the Thames Licensed Victuallers' Cricket Clubs Balls, &c.

The will of Bro. Sidney Spencer, late of the Cannon-st. Hotel, who died at his residence, was proved by Bro. John Shaw, of the South Eastern Railway Company, and Bro. J. B. Monckton, Town Clerk of London, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife, Mrs. Jane Spencer, all his household furniture and effects absolutely, and the residue of his property for life. At her decease, he gives such residue to his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Spencer.

CRIPPLEGATE PENSION SOCIETY.—On Wednesday a numerous party of the subscribers and friends of the Cripple Gate Pension Society took a trip in the saloon boat, "Albert Edward," to Rosherville Gardens. Bro. Alderman Knight, chairman, was supported by about eighty at dinner. The toast of "Success to the Institution," which the chairman said he was pleased to propose, was coupled with the names of Mr. H. W. Nind, C.C. (the treasurer) and Bro. U. Knell (the honorary secretary), by whose energy these "outings" were made pleasant and enjoyable. Both gentlemen acknowledged the compliment.

The United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction now meet at the New Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road.

Mount Lebanon Lodge of Instruction No. 73 meets every Wednesday evening at 8, at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge Road; Bro. Noke, P.M., Preceptor.

The Salisbury Lodge of Instruction meets every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Union Tavern, Air-street, Regent-street, instead of Compton-street, Soho.

The Athenæum Lodge have arranged a pic-nic for the 3rd July, to be held at Maidenhead. Saloon carriages will be provided by the 1.5 train from Paddington.

CONSECRATION OF THE CHAUCER LODGE, No. 1540.—A full report of the above will appear in our next issue.

THE QUEEN ON TEMPERANCE.—The Rev. Basil Wilberforce, of Southampton, having sent to the Queen certain publications connected with the temperance movement, has the (Hampshire Independent says) received the following reply:—"I am desirous to thank you for placing in her Majesty's hands works on a subject of the deepest importance to her and to every one in this country. It is impossible for the Queen not to be grateful to those who endeavour to mitigate an evil of such magnitude as the widely spread intemperance which unfortunately prevails."

THE FLOODS AT TOULOUSE.—In Paris this calamity has caused general consternation. The capital is determined not to be behindhand in showing its sympathy. Assistance is pouring in from all quarters. The newspapers have headed and opened subscriptions; collections were made in all the Paris churches to-day; benefit representations are to take place at all the theatres; the Grand Lodge of Freemasons has sent a first subscription of 5,000 francs to the fund inaugurated by the Marechal de MacMahon. Rich and poor are vying with each other in their offerings; for the moment political and social differences are forgotten; and all classes are united together in the firm determination that the sufferers shall receive all that human aid and sympathy can supply. This plan does credit to the people of Paris; it shows that they are not wholly lost in folly and luxury, and that, au fond, their heart is in the right place.

A number of persons in Dublin have presented Bro. Captain Boyton with a gold medal to commemorate his landing on the Irish Coast. Bro. Boyton will go over to Paris with the Lord Mayor of London's party on 12th August. Subsequently he will swim in his dress up the Rhine and the Danube, and later on will, without his dress, endeavour to cross the Hellespont.

ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.—There will be no meeting for business of the Prov. G. Chapter and Lodge in July next. The annual banquet of the Order will take place at the Café Royal, 68, Regent-street, London, W., on Monday, the 5th of July, at 7 o'clock p.m. Tickets, 21s.

NORTHAMPTON.—The brethren in this neighbourhood have recently formed a limited liability company, and have purchased premises where they have an admirable lodge room. It is their intention to build shops, and they anticipate a fair dividend from this source, thus enabling them to keep the lodge room entirely for their own purposes.

BRO. TEW'S PAMPHLET.—We have received a printed circular which the Head Master of the Boys' School has addressed to the Yorkshire Vice-Presidents of the Institution. We did not, however, receive it till too late for insertion this week, and we shall, therefore, give it in our next impression, together with a short note which Bro. Binckes has sent us in reply to Bro. Perrott's circular.

The advice of the late Mr. Thackeray was as much prized by his friends as his literary genius was appreciated by his fellow-countrymen. A young lady of his acquaintance, knowing how wide and deep was his knowledge of worldly matters, one day asked him what would be the best present to make to her old friend and school-fellow, who was just married, and was now setting up housekeeping. "My dear," replied the great novelist, "you may be certain your young married friends are thinking only of the luxurious and the ornamental in their purchases. Now, suppose you take the useful and the practical side. My dear, you cannot do better than present your friends with a filter—a Lipscombe's filter, mind. It is the best kind of filter I know." This was some years since, and the merits of Lipscombe's filters have become more and more esteemed as their use has spread. Numbers of valuable lives were saved during the Ashantee war by means of these filters sent out by the Government from the well-known establishment near Temple Bar, which converted water absolutely poisonous into a pure and wholesome beverage.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The treat to the children of this School, mentioned in our last impression, was given on Tuesday last at the Crystal Palace. The children who left the school by the 9.42 a.m. train from Clapham Junction, were accompanied by the head governess, Miss Davis, Miss Kernot, Miss Moss, Miss Redgrave, Miss Buck, Miss Sheppard, Miss Triggs, Miss Gillard, and Miss Hutchinson. The members of the House Committee present were Bro. the Rev. J. M. Vaughan, Joshua Nunn, A. H. Tattershall, Lieut-Col. Peters, H. A. Dubois, R. W. Little (Sec.), Mrs. Little, Bro. H. Muggeridge (Collector), Mrs. Muggeridge, Bro. F. R. W. Hedges (Clerk), Bro. Edw. Cox, H. Phythian, F. Kelly, Cubitt, Richard Spencer, Charles Lacey, R. B. Webster, Miss Cubitt, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. and Miss Winn, and Mrs. and Miss Allshorn. On arriving at the Palace, the visitors and children at once proceeded to view the building and the various treasures with which it abounds, enjoyed the grounds, the boating on the lakes, the swings, and through the kindness of Bro. E. Cox, obtained free admission to the Aquarium, the Wurtemberg collection, and the opera. At half-past one they all sat down to a splendid collation, and at half-past five o'clock to tea, both of which meals were most liberally supplied by Bro. Sawyer, the contractor for the refreshment department of the Crystal Palace. All the children, who were in number 138, thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and with regret they left the Palace by the 8.25 special train. The directors and secretary of the Palace (Mr. Wilkinson) had liberally placed reserved seats at their disposal to witness the fireworks, but on account of the crowds leaving the building and grounds by train immediately after the close of the pyrotechnic display, this offer was unwillingly obliged to be declined; it was, however, fully appreciated by the children, as well as the managers of the Institution, who tendered their best thanks for the kindness.

METROPOLITAN.

ATHENÆUM LODGE (No. 1491).—The members and friends of this flourishing lodge met on Saturday, the 3rd inst., for a summer day's festivity in the shape of a picnic in the charming locality of Burnham Beeches. Starting from Paddington at mid-day by special excursion carriages, the brethren and their lady relatives and friends, to the number of about fifty, arrived in good time at Taplow Bridge, where vehicles awaited to convey them to the charming scene of reunion, and there amidst the thick ferns and under the spreading arms of the grey giant monarchs of the forest, the venerable beech trees which have given a name to the lovely spot, a most sumptuous banquet appeared, springing from the earth as it were "As by the stroke of an enchanter's wand." The W.M., Bro. S. Poynter, having been duly inducted into an improvised chair, the brethren and their fair and tender belongings fell to with that hearty appetite which a drive through lovely scenery and pure air is well calculated to give. The scene was extremely pretty. The exquisite tints of the foliage, relieved and brought out by the silvery gray of the old beech bark, the snowy cloth with its glittering burthen, the gay dresses of the ladies, set off by the soberer hue of the garments of their lords, delighted the eye, while the good fellowship that prevailed, warmed the heart, and the ringing laughter and brisk "file firing" of the champagne corks, with the background of music, rendered by a grave minstrel in the shape of a very talented harpist, charmed the ear. A few toasts briefly given followed the repast. The W.M. gave "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," with which, as usual, he coupled, "Prosperity to the Craft." "Success to the Athenæum Lodge" followed, and then "The Healths of the Committee of Stewards," who had so admirably organized the day's proceedings, and to which Bros. Lewis, S.D.; Heaton, Waterlow, Weiss, and Walsham appropriately responded. Bro. Weiss proposed "The Health of the Ladies," which was responded to by Mr. Geo. Grossmith, junr. (visitor), in a very humorous speech. Bro. John Hamer then proposed "The Health of the Day's Chairman," the W.M. of the lodge, in very complimentary terms, and combined with it that of "The Health of Mrs. Poynter," who was present, a toast that was very warmly received. Bro. Poynter having briefly responded on behalf of himself and lady, the brethren proceeded to enjoy a cigar and a stroll through the lovely woods until the time arrived again to take to the vehicles in order to proceed to Cookham Ferry, where boats had been chartered to convey the party down the river past the far-famed woods, from amidst which, raising its towers to the sky, peeps

"Cliveden's proud alcove,
The bower of wanton Shrewsbury and love"

as Pope sings; but, alas! alas! Jupiter Pluvius deigned to assert his right to sway an English July day, and jealous of the slight he had experienced in the morning, when everybody had come to the conclusion that he was not so very potent a deity after all, decreed a deluge. Only the few favoured ones who could find a shelter under the cover of the large barge essayed the water excursion. The remainder of the party clung to the vehicles, affording some little shelter, and drove back to Maidenhead Bridge, where, re-assembling, a cheery and grateful recourse to the "cup that cheers but not inebriates," a beverage ever welcome to our fair sisters, soon made matters look more bright and serene. The weather at length improving, permitted a lounge in the charming grounds of Flindell's Hotel, sloping down to the water, and then came the ride to the train, and the inevitable return to town after, notwithstanding the moist god's reminder, a very charming day, the complete organization of which it was universally admitted reflected the highest credit upon the self-constituted body of Stewards, and especially upon the two Honorary Secretaries, Bros. Heaton and Waterlow, two of the W.M.'s (Bro. Poynter's) most promising initiates. In addition to the names mentioned above, the party comprised Bro. Slyman, W.M. 753; Bro. Thompson, Maybury, 969; Bros. Simmons, Dodd, Emmanuel, Glenn, Johnson, Booth, Miller, and other brethren of No. 1491, and many visitors.

PROVINCIAL.

COLCHESTER.—ANGEL LODGE (No. 51).—On Thursday, the 24th ult. (the annual festival of St. John the Baptist), a large number of the brethren of the Angel Lodge assembled at the lodge-room, the Cups Hotel, on the occasion of the installation of the W.M. elect Bro. Alfred Welch. A goodly number of visitors from London and the province were also present. The splendid ceremony of installation was performed with great effect by W. Bro. Charles J. Martyn, P.G. Ch. of England, who received the hearty thanks of the brethren for his services. The W.M. then proceeded to invest his officers for the year as follows:—Bros. A. Welch, W.M.; C. Cobb, I.P.M.; G. Gard Pye, S.W.; S. W. Crookes, J.W.; the Rev. C. L. Acland, Chaplain; Wm. Slaney, Treas.; Thos. J. Ralling, Sec.; Capt. Holroyd, S.D.; I. Harris, J.D.; John J. C. Turner, Organist; W. W. Daniell and T. A. Middleton, Stewards; Thos. Hanly, I.G.; Gunner, Tyler. Afterwards the brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet, served à la Russe by Bro. S. Bedford. The usual loyal, Masonic, and personal toasts were given and responded to in a manner not always equalled on such occasions, the W.M. especially obtaining the highest encomiums for his excellent speeches, which were as elegant in diction as they were truly Masonic in sentiment. Among the brethren present during some part, or the whole, of the proceedings, in addition to those before-mentioned, were:—Bros. R. Bolton-Barton, L.L.D., P. Dist. G.M., Western India; J. W. Carr, P.G.S., P.M. 160; J. Terry, Sec. R.M.B. Institution; Vero W. Taylor, W.M. 1312; J. E. Wiseman, P.M. and Sec. 433; Geo. Glanfield, P.M. 328; J. Cornell, P.M. 114; Henry Miller, 114; N. Gluckstein, P.M. 185; Thos. Jerome, 697; F. Wright, 213, 697, 1500; Thos. C. Duri, 73; also the following brethren of Lodge 51:—W. P. Lewis, P.M.; S. Chaplin, P.M.; A. E. Church, P.M.; Thos. Rix, P.M.; W. A. Bowler, P.M.; F. F. S. Constant, C. E. Denton, H. H. Elwes, E. Henne Meyer, Ellis Kerry, Geo. Mercer, T. A. Middleton, J. F. P. Osborne, W. S. Spent, A. R. Staines, and W. R. Willcocks. The musical portion of the proceedings was efficiently rendered by Bros. Cousens, Distin, and Donald King.

WINCHESTER.—LODGE OF ECONOMY (No. 76).—This lodge, the oldest but one in the province, had an interesting meeting on Wednesday, 30th ult. An interchange of Masonic courtesies between certain lodges in the province has of late been much on the increase, and all feel that each lodge is benefitted by such visits, and witnessing the work of other lodges. It produces a spirit of laudable emulation, and one result is that the ceremonies are carefully and efficiently worked. On this occasion the W.M., Bro. Salter, invited the Masters and officers of the neighbouring lodges in Southampton and Basingstoke to be present at the working of the three degrees. The ceremonies were ably gone through by Bro. Salter and his officers, all of whom appeared to be thoroughly at home in the details of the work. Five were raised to the Sublime degree, one passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, and three initiated into Masonry. Although this shows an influx of numbers greater than ever before known in this lodge, yet we believe that system of indiscriminate admission into Masonry, so justly complained of by "L of L" in the last number of the Freemason, was carefully avoided, and no one initiated who had not the genuine qualifications to justify admission into the Craft. It must not be forgotten, however, that the installation of the Prince of Wales as the Grand Master of Freemasons attracted the attention of all England, and the present desire to join the Masonic body is not confined to those whom it would be to the interest of Masonry to exclude; but doubtless this year will see a vast increase of members who are prompted by worthy motives, and who by their position and conduct will bring honour and credit to the Craft.

WHITEHAVEN.—SUN, SQUARE, AND COMPASSES LODGE (No. 119).—On Friday, 25th ult, Bro. Dr. Horan, P.S.W., was duly installed Worshipful Master of Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge, in the presence of a large concourse of the brethren. The following members and visitors were present:—Members: Edward Atter, W.M. and P.G.P.; W. Alsop, S.W. and P.P.G.P.; Edward Tyson, J.W.; Rev. F. W. Wicks, Chaplain and P.G.C.; W. B. Gibson, Treas. P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G.S.; John Rothery, S.D.; Thomas Dawson, J.D.; James Cooper, Org., and P.P.G.O.; J. L. Paitson, I.G.; J. W. Montgomery, Steward; John D. Thompson, Steward; William Cowie, Tyler; John Barr, P.M., and P.P.G.S.B.; William Sandwith, P.M. and P.P.G.T.; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M., and P.P.G.J.W.; Edward Fearon, P.M. and P.P.G.D.C.; J. Spittall, P.M. 872, and P.P.G. Superintendent of Works; James Sugden, George Fitzgerald, Richard Watson, Joseph Fisher, W. F. Hunter, Edward Fletcher, William Pagen, James S. Wilson, Thomas C. Windross, W. H. Brunton, Richard E. England, Robert Bell, William White, Joseph Benson, Daniel Dickinson, John J. Atkinson, John J. Bryden, Augustus Helder, Henry Hampton, George Ryrice, Joseph Dixon, William Poyle, John Moffat, J. Thompson, John Milligan. Visitors: Joseph Nicholson, P.M. 371, and P.P.S.G.W.; James Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W., and P.G. Treas., and W. H. Hoodless, S.W. St. John's Lodge, 327, Wigton; W. F. Lamony, W.M., John Holloway, and H. Wicks, Skiddaw, 1002, Cockermouth; George Glass, Zeland, P.J.W., D.G.D.C.C., 525; Rev. W. Beeby, W.M. 371, William Armstrong, P.M. 371, and A.G.D.C., and Joseph Abbott, 371, Maryport; R. F. Taylor, S.W., Hartington Lodge, Barrow-in-Furness, 1021; John Huddleston, W.M. 872, E. G. Hughes, P.M. 872, and P.P.A.G.D.C.; C. Morton, P.M. 872, and P.P.G.S.W.; Thomas Atkinson, P.M. 872, and P.G.S.; and Alexander Hardie, 872; William Gaspey, Greta Lodge, 1073, Keswick; Edward Clark, S.W.; J. B. Mossop, J.W.; H. L. Ellis, John Ellbeck, and J. B. Cooper, Kenlis Lodge, 1267, Egremont; G. L. Archibald, W.M.; James J. Beattie, P.M.; Joseph Wood, Secretary; C. B. Pitblade, S.W.; and W. T. Sands, Sun and Sector, 962, Workington; J. W. Young, 962, P.M. 1400; William Carlyle, T. 962, 1400; Tom Dixon, Secretary, Curwen Lodge, 1400. The lodge was opened shortly after three o'clock, by Bro. Edward Atter, the retiring W.M., and the ceremony of installation was performed by Brother Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.P.G.J.W., and Brother W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G.S., in their usual masterly style, Brother Cooper ably conducting the musical part of the proceedings. Brother Horan, upon being installed, was warmly greeted by the brethren. At the conclusion of the ceremony the Worshipful Master appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. F. W. Wicks, S.W.; T. Dawson, J.W.; Paitson, S.D.; Milligan, J.D.; W. B. Gibson, Treasurer; F. W. Wicks, Chaplain; Montgomery, I.G.; J. D. Thompson, D.C.; Hunter and Patterson, Stewards; Cowie, Tyler. The lodge was formally closed a few minutes before five o'clock, when, upon the invitation of the newly-installed W.M., the brethren repaired to the banquetting-room, where an elegant dinner awaited them.

WARRINGTON.—LODGE OF LIGHTS (No. 148).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms on Monday 28th ult. The W.M., Dr. Bowes, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg. Cumberland and Westmorland, was supported by Bros. W. H. Robinson, S.W. Thos. Tunstall, J.W.; John Harding, I.P.M.; Joseph Pickthall, S.D.; John R. Young, J.D.; C. E. Hindley, I.G.; R. G. Stringer, P.M.; W. Sharp, P.M., Treas.; W. Richardson, P.M., W.M. 1250; Charles Skinner, Peter Jones, Thos. Jones, Thos. Grime, Geo. A. Clark, John Pierpoint, J. H. Patten, Thos. B. Carter, Thos. Mee Paitson, Org.; C. Ekkert, Jno. Armstrong, James Bayley Thos. Jones, Jas. Paterson, J. J. Thompson, James Hannah, Tyler. Visitors—Bros. R. Rigby, W.M. 758; John Fothergill, P.M. 1129; P. J. Edelsten, W.M. 1134; D. W. Finney, P.M. 148; W. S. Hawkins, P.M. 1250; E. Aston, S.W. 758; Jas. Warburton, J.W. 758; W. R. Waas, I.G. 758; W. McClellon, 758; and W. Tongue, 978. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and declared to be correctly recorded. Bro. James Paterson having claimed preferment, and his claim being efficiently proved, he was entrusted. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Paterson re-admitted and passed by the W.M., who also delivered the lecture on the Tracing Board of the Second Degree. The working tools were presented by the S.W., Bro. W. H. Robinson. The lodge was closed in the Second Degree. Three gentlemen were proposed as fit and proper persons to be received into the Order. Bro. Robert Gibbons, who was elected an annuitant of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution at the recent meeting, was unanimously elected an honorary member of the lodge. Hearty good wishes were tendered by the visitors, and the routine business having been completed, the lodge was closed in solemn form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment.

STONEHOUSE.—LODGE OF SINCERITY (No. 189).—The brethren of this lodge met in large numbers at St. George's Hall, Stonehouse, to witness the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Alfred Latimer, and the attendance was augmented by the presence of many visiting brethren. Amongst those attending were—Officers of Sincerity: J. E. Curteis, W.M.; A. Latimer, S.W.; T. Waldo How, J.W.; R. H. Rae, Sec.; T. S. Bayly, Treas.; J. E. Moon, S.D.; T. W. Lemon, P.G.C., J.D.; W. Tester, I.G.; C. Croydon, S.; Past Masters I. Latimer, I.P.M.; R. Robinson Rodd, J. Sadler, J. Dampney, and J. Head; members, G. H. Evans, H. Horton, G. R. Bassett, A. Ralph, J. Lewis, H. C. Fitzgerald, J. P. Latimer, Elliot Square, E. Holberton Edlin, and T. W. Hussey. Visiting brethren—R. Rodda, 105, P. Prov. G.R.; C. Rodda, 105; W. Luxon, 1205; J. K. Lord, P.M. and Treas. 1247; J. May, P.M. 223; E. Martin, I.P.M. 1212; F. Aubrey Thomas, P.M. 1247, P.G.S.D.; H. S. Hill, J.D. 223; R. Franklin, P.M. 1 (Ireland); W. Harris, S.W. 1205; J. W. Cornish, P.M. 223; and others. The minutes of the last regular meeting, including a vote for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at the forthcoming festival, of which Bro. Curteis has accepted the office of Steward, were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Edlin and Luxon as joining members, which proved all clear, and it being the case when it was subsequently taken for Messrs. Coombes and Holmes, they were initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. in his usual excellent and impressive manner. Bro. Curteis then presented the lodge with a large photograph, handsomely framed, of the members of Sincerity who had attended the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. The Senior P.M., Bro. Rodd, paid a high tribute to the ability and courtesy that had characterized Bro. Curteis's conduct in the chair for the past year, and proposed a resolution, not only recognising his services, but thanking him for his gift. This, most cordially seconded by Bro. I. Latimer, I.P.M., P.G.J.W., &c., was carried by acclamation; and after Bro. Curteis had in feeling terms acknowledged the vote, Bro. Rae, Sec., gave notice of a motion having for its object the presentation of Bro. Curteis with a Past Master's jewel, or some other tangible recognition of his eventful Mastership. For the ceremony of installation a numerous Board of twelve Past Masters was constituted. The entire work was undertaken by Bro. Curteis, who won the admiration of all by his highly successful realization of the beauty and impressiveness of the ceremonial. The newly installed W.M. invested his officers as follows:—J. E. Curteis, I.P.M.; T. Waldo How, S.W.; J. E. Moon, J.W.; T. B. Bayly, Treas.; R. H. Rae, Sec.; Rev. T. W. Lemon, S.D.; G. Jackson, J.D.; C. Croydon, I.G.; Col. Fitzgerald, D.C.; Horton, O.; T. W. Hussey and J. Fouracre, Stewards. At the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren adjourned to an adjoining room and partook of a cold collation. The speeches following were hearty, cordial, and brief. "The Queen," and "The Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," having been honoured, the W.M. gave, in terms fully appreciative of their high qualities, "The P.G.M. and the D.P.G.M. of Devon, Provincial Officers Past and Present." W. Bro. I. Latimer made the response, highly eulogizing R. W. Bros. Huyshe and Metham for that work and example which would outlive them many a year. The toast of the evening, "The Newly Installed W.M.," was given in a few complimentary sentences by Bro. Curteis, and Bro. A. Latimer in his response spoke of the confidence he felt owing to the presence in the lodge of such efficient Past Masters and officers. Bro. Curteis and the W. brother from Ireland responded for "The Past Masters," and Bro. Rodda, in a suggestive speech, for "The Visitors." At the suggestion of P.M. Rodd, the officers of Sincerity Lodge were toasted, the respondents being Bros. Rae, How, and Moon; and with "Our Newly Initiated Brethren" and "Our Poor and Distressed Brethren, wherever dispersed, speedy relief to them," a pleasantly spent evening was brought to a close.

WINDSOR.—ETONIAN LODGE OF ST. JOHN (No. 209).—This lodge met on the 1st June, when the W.M., Bro. John O. Carter, was supported as follows:—Bros. Denne, S.W.; Strange, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., Berks and Bucks, Secretary; Hume, J.D.; Roberts, I.G.; Schiemann, D.C.; Nicholas S. Dixon, P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks I.P.M.; Wilson, P.M.; Duffield, Whistler, Prince, Willoughby, &c., &c. Visitors, Bros. Tolley, P.G.J.D., Berks and Bucks, P.M. 771; Land, W.M. 742; Faulkner Lee, 404; Ritchie, 145; Johnson, 771. The principal business of the evening was raising Bros. Prince and Willoughby to the Third Degree, which ceremony was performed by the W.M., and the initiation of Mr. Joseph Legge, by Bro. Wilson, P.M. The brethren also unanimously elected Bros. Gray and Cobbett as joining members. The W.M. called the attention of the brethren to the fact that since the last meeting a Provincial Grand Lodge had been held at Aylesbury, at which the Provincial Grand Master had invested Bro. Dixon, I.P.M. with the collar and office of P.G.D.C., and proposed that a vote of congratulation to Bro. Dixon should be recorded on the minutes. This was seconded by Bro. Denne, S.W., and carried unanimously. The W.M. alluded to the remarks of the Provincial Grand Master at the Provincial Grand Lodge, at Aylesbury, with respect to all the lodges in the province subscribing to the Provincial Grand Lodge Charity Fund, and gave notice that at the next meeting he would submit a scheme, the object of which would be, that this lodge should contribute with the other lodges in the Province, which he trusted would be acceptable to the brethren. Two candidates, one for joining and the other for initiation, having been proposed, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer.

LIVERPOOL.—MERCHANTS' LODGE (No. 241).—In point of influence and popularity the Merchant's Lodge occupies a position second to none in the Province of West Lancashire, and therefore the annual summer festival, celebrated on Tuesday, the 22nd ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, was as brilliantly successful as the standard of the lodge fully merited. The success was not due alone to this fact, however, but also to the great popularity of the in-coming W.M., Bro. Richard Brown, who is universally esteemed by every brother in Liverpool, for his many amiable and excellent social qualities of mind and heart, and also for the indefatigable zeal and untiring anxiety he has displayed in connection with the advancement of true Masonry. Since the death of the lamented Bro. Captain Mott, the position of Honorary Secretary to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution has been filled by Bro. Brown, who has displayed a tact and energy in that capacity which have maintained and even advanced the position of the excellent institution. The meeting of the lodge was fixed for half-past ten o'clock, and punctually the business of installation was proceeded with. The lodge was duly and solemnly opened by Bro. W. M. Chudley, the retiring Worshipful Master, who was supported by the following officers:—Bros. J. Cobham, P.M.; J. W. Baker, P.M.; Ralph Robinson, P.M.; J. I. Knight, P.M.; R. Brown, S.W.; G. Hutchins, J.W.; S. J. McGeorge, P.M., Treas.; G. Peet, Sec.; J. Winsor, S.D.; T. C. Jones, J.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., D.C.; F. E. Smith, Org.; T. H. Sheen, L.G.; P. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Bros. J. M. Hewitt, H. Newton, B. Woolf, T. Salter, John Winsor, W. M. Norbury, H. Anderson, A. Vandyke, R. Jones, W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; T. M. Stanbury, W. Williamson, J. Brown, G. W. Hughes, W. Williams, J. Hall, D. Martin, T. Redding, W. Hopps, Wm. Johnson, S. Jacobs, A. Woolrich, J. Kirwin, G. J. Jones, W. Savage, D. C. Marks, M. de Frece, W. J. Raverty, J. Pick, D. Hughes, A. Morison, P. Madge, L. de Jongh, G. Halse, J. Latta, &c. The visitors present were Bros. J. Skeels, P.G.O.; W. Doyle, P.G.J.D.; J. Lunt, P.G.S., P.M. 1086; W. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S.B., P.M. 216; J. Banning, P.P.G.O. Cumberland and Westmoreland; R. Washington, P.M. 1094; the Rev. Dr. Hyde, Chaplain 1086; J. W. Ballard, W.M. 724; W. Jones, P.M. 220, W.M. 1299; J. Jackson, S.W. 667; J. F. Hall, 673; D. Meek, 203, &c. After the opening, the confirmation of the minutes, and the transaction of some formal business, the chair was taken by Bros. Ralph Robinson, P.M. 241 and W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, who proceeded to instal Bro.

Richard Brown in the position of W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony is at all times impressive and beautiful, but when performed in the most masterly manner in which Bro. Robinson did it admiration becomes increased. It is no exaggeration to say that the whole ceremony was performed in a style which has rarely been equalled, and could not have been excelled, and Bro. Robinson gave another proof of his capabilities as an apt Masonic student. The following brethren were invested officers of the lodge:—Bros. Chudley, I.P.M.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., D.C.; G. Hutchins, S.W.; G. Peet, J.W.; Dr. McGeorge, P.M., Treasurer; J. Winsor, Secretary; T. C. Jones, S.D.; T. Sheen, J.D.; T. Slater, I.G.; F. E. Smith, Org.; and P. Ball, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed a chaste P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. W. M. Chudley, I.P.M., on his retirement from the chair, by the brethren of the lodge. The presentation was made by the W.M., who briefly referred to the services of the I.P.M., and Bro. Chudley, in acknowledging the compliment, said he would reserve his remarks until a later period in the day. As the first act of the year of office, Bro. Brown, W.M., subsequently initiated the Rev. J. O'Reilly into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, and the effective way in which the ceremony was performed augurs well for the efficiency of the working during the coming year. The lodge was then closed, and after partaking of luncheon the brethren proceeded by the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway to Birkdale, near Southport. It may be noted, as another evidence of the famed liberality of this company, that, although one hundred special passengers were guaranteed, they positively refused to grant the slightest concession in the fares. The "kindness" of the company was thoroughly appreciated, and will, doubtless, be remembered by Masonic travellers. The banquet took place at the Palace Hotel, Birkdale, at four o'clock, when upwards of one hundred sat down to splendidly laid out tables, profusely decorated with flowers, and bearing all the rarities of the season. The quality of the banquet and the manner in which it was served reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Clarke, the manager of the hotel, giving complete satisfaction to every one. When dessert was placed on the table, the W.M. rose and said he was sure the wishes of the brethren would be best consulted if he made the toast-speaking as brief as possible, the weather outside being so genial and inviting. In giving "The Queen," the W.M. said she took the greatest interest in the working of all their institutions, and patronized their charities in the most practical way. The toast was received with great enthusiasm, renewed when Bro. P.M. Robinson sang the "National Anthem." In giving "The M.W.G. Master, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the M.W. Pro G. Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon," the W.M. said that if any toast evoked enthusiasm it should be this. Never in the history of the Craft was Freemasonry so popular, the acceptance of office by the G.M. doing so much to set aside the false impression which another event might have created. It was his pleasure to be present recently at the Albert Hall, and he must confess that he went there with a feeling that the acceptance of the Grand Mastership by the Prince of Wales would be merely of an ornamental character; but this feeling was entirely changed when he saw his working, and he felt proud they had such a Grand Master. He was most efficiently supported in office by the Earl of Carnarvon, who was noble by birth and noble by act. The W.M. next gave "The R.W. Deputy G. Master and P.G.M. of West Lancashire, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers, Past and Present." In the history of the Craft he said, West Lancashire had reason to be proud of many achievements in Masonry, and it must have given every brother the greatest pleasure when their P.G.M. was appointed the Deputy G.M. of England. They had all seen his lordship at work—they all knew how he had Masonry at heart; and many would remember the ringing cheer with which he was received when chaired by the G.M., especially from the brethren of West Lancashire. In submitting "The W.D.P.G.M., Bro. the Hon. F. A. Stanley and the Officers of P.G. Lodge, Past and Present," Bro. Brown, said the history of the House of Stanley in that country was well known, and that they had a scion of that noble family as the Deputy Prov. G. Master must be a source of gratification to every brother. Inasmuch as they had come to the close of the toasts of their "Masonic rulers, supreme and subordinate," he (the W.M.) did not think it out of place to remind those present, that these exalted brethren filled offices which were of no mythical character; they had work to do, which they did, and did well—so well that not a speck now appeared on the horizon. The toast was acknowledged by Bro. J. Lunt, P.G.S., who briefly thanked the brethren for the enthusiastic manner in which the toast had been received. The W.M. in proposing "The Masonic Charitable Institutions," specially referred to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, the Hamer Benevolent Fund, and the London Charities, stating that one of the P.M.'s of the Merchants Lodge (Bro. Broadbridge) was going up as one of the Stewards' at the approaching festival in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys' with a good round sum. He (Bro. Brown) had frequently spoken of the West Lancashire Educational Institution, and during his year of office he should like the subscriptions to be as large as heretofore. The Merchants' Lodge had to record many good deeds well done, but no laurels were so bright as this noble institution. Bro. R. Wilson, P.M., Hon. Treasurer to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, responded to the toast, making an eloquent appeal on behalf of the charity. It had greatly prospered in 1874, and he had no doubt that it would continue to do so in the future. He must however, draw the attention of the brethren to the fact that although the funds of the institution were increasing in a very rapid manner, it was only now that they began to feel that the applicants for its benefits were increasing in a greater proportion year by year. He would also remind the brethren that their object was not merely to accumulate funds in connection with the charity, but to dispense these funds in such a manner as they ought to do, and their greatest success ought to be sought in having as many children on the foundation as deserved the benefits. He pressed a hope, that, through the liberality of the brethren, the accumulated fund would shortly be £20,000, and that they would be able to educate and clothe 260 instead of 60. Bro. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S.B., P.M. 216, responded on behalf of the Hamer Benevolent Fund, and said, like himself, it was a very juvenile one. Although it had only been in existence for a couple of years, it was an institution which would reflect credit upon West Lancashire, its object being to give annuities to old and decayed Freemasons. After detailing the history of the fund, and alluding to the present state of the finances, Bro. Laidlaw concluded by expressing a hope that it would meet with the hearty support of the brethren in that province. Bro. Broadbridge, P.M., responded on behalf of the London Charities. He remarked that it was somewhat of a misnomer to call them "London Charities" as they were as much open to the brethren in the provinces of those who resided in the metropolis, so long as they gave them hearty support. He assured the brethren that it gave him the greatest pleasure to go up as one of the Stewards at the festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and he cordially thanked the Masons of Liverpool for having entrusted him with the handsome sum which he would be able to take up. East Lancashire was in a position to say that they would elect any three they might send up, and he thought West Lancashire should strive to be in a like position. With regard to the Old Men's Institution the brethren of West Lancashire were in a better position, as only last month they had elected two candidates, making five from this province. As they had a balance of about £12,000 to the credit of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, he trusted the brethren would turn their attention to the London Charities. Bro. R. Wilson, P.M., next proposed "The Worshipful Master," and said that Bro. Brown had been elected with wonderful unanimity to that office. He thought the choice an exceedingly happy one. In Bro. Richard Brown they had one who would do the lodge infinite credit. As a business man, a man of intelligence, and a Masonic worker, they had every faith in him, and he thought they might safely look forward to a prosperous and pleasant year. The toast was received with immense enthusiasm. In reply, the W.M., who was cordially cheered, said that some one had told them that language was made to conceal their thoughts, but he must confess that in rising to thank them for the very wonderful way in which they had been pleased to receive the mention of his name he certainly lacked the power of language to express his thoughts on that occasion. That moment vividly recalled to his mind the time when he stood up to answer the toast of "The Newly Initiated Brethren," and, amidst all the bewilderment with which he was then surrounded, he could just say that all he had seen was but an example of what was coming, and of the great pleasure in store. He now felt bound to say that from that moment to the present he had never seen anything which had caused him to regret his entrance into Masonry. To him it had proved a great blessing, having cemented many friendships which already existed, and fostered others which were of recent growth. Although not rich in this world's wealth, he was rich in his desire to do good to his fellow-men, and in accepting the Secretaryship of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institute, he did so from a desire to be useful in his day and generation. They had conferred another honour by placing him in the chair of the lodge unanimously. To be the W.M. of any lodge is indeed a proud privilege, but to be the W.M. of one's mother lodge, and following in the footsteps of many worthy Masons was indeed what he most sincerely valued. His election had been accompanied by so many congratulations on every side, both from within and without the lodge, that his soul had been filled with joy, and if he failed to express his feelings in words, he must ask them to look to his deeds in the coming year. The toast of "The Visitors," proposed by the W.M., was responded to by Bro. Captain Turner, P.M. 823, and Bro. Councillor, 216. "The New Initiate," also given by the W.M., was responded to in eloquent terms by Bro. the Rev. J. O'Reilly. The W.M. said there was no toast, he was sure, which would meet with a more hearty response than that of "Bro. Robinson, the Installing Master." As a P.M. of the lodge he had been long respected, and in connection with the Lodge of Instruction, he had done very much valuable work. They would long remember the wonderful way in which the installation ceremony of that day had been performed, and the masterly perfection with which he conducted the instruction lodge. He (Bro. Brown) had listened to the installation ceremony with the deepest interest, and he was sure that no brother had Masonry more at heart than Bro. Robinson. In reply, Bro. Robinson expressed the great pleasure it had given him to instal Bro. Brown, for whom he had the very highest respect. If he (Bro. Robinson) had done his work in a manner which had given them satisfaction he felt amply repaid, and he felt certain that the accession of Bro. Brown to the Master's chair would give additional prestige to the Merchants' Lodge, and prove satisfactory to every brother. "The Worshipful Past Masters," given by Bro. Brown, W.M., was responded to in happy terms by Bro. W. M. Caudley, I.P.M. "The Officers," given by the W.M., was responded to by Bro. G. Hutchins, S.W., and Bro. Councillor G. Peet, J.W. The "Tyler's Toast" brought the proceedings to a close, and the brethren returned to town at an early hour. During the afternoon between £30 and £40 was subscribed by the brethren for the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution.

LIVERPOOL.—MARINERS' LODGE (No. 249).—The annual summer festival meeting of this large and influential lodge was celebrated on Thursday, the 1st inst., and was greatly enjoyed by all who took part in it. A full day's programme necessitated an unusually early starting of the business portion of the proceedings. Accordingly the brethren were summoned to meet at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, at nine o'clock, and punctually at that hour the lodge was opened by Bro. John Hayes, the retiring W.M., who was supported by Bros. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M.; Rev. P. Pinnington, P.M.; J. J. Rose, I.P.M.; H. P. Price, S.W.; B. R. Martin, J.W.; W. Hamilton, S.D.; W. Forster, J.D.; J. C. Robinson, I.G.; Rev. P. Hains, Chap.; W. G. Veale, Org.; F. Barnett, S.; J. Wood, S.; and Wm. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present during the morning were, Bros. T. L. Daniels, M. Davis, J. Cribbin, W. H. Vernon, E. Jones, H. Reed, J. Kittle, T. H. Hall, W. Corbett, C. J. Jones, J. P. Jones, T. Boden, J. Williams, T. Roberts, H. Rush, J. Lloyd, W. Bolitho, J. Savage, W. Goldstone, P. Ball, T. Grayson, W. Wilson, J. Wainwright, J. Whitnall, W. P. Corlett, J. Whalley, W. Williams, C. H. Foster, J. Croxton, P. Stern, E. Cargill, R. Carter, C. Warner, F. Cooper, R. Jones, J. T. Trewren, W. Yates, H. Hall, J. W. Stubbs, T. Status, J. Nicholas, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and Bro. J. Hayes, the retiring Master, proceeded to instal Bro. H. P. Price as his successor in the chair of W.M., the whole ceremony being given in a manner which reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Hayes. The following were the officers who were subsequently appointed, elected, and invested:—Bros. J. Hayes, I.P.M.; J. Lloyd, S.W.; the Rev. Philip Haines, J.W.; Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M., Treas.; M. Davis, Sec.; W. Hamilton, S.D.; W. Forster, J.D.; W. Garlick, I.G.; J. J. Rose, P.M., D.C.; W. G. Veale, Org.; F. Barnett, S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. On the motion of Bro. C. Leighton, one of the auditors, the accounts were taken as read and unanimously passed, and the lodge and other Committees were subsequently appointed. Bro. H. P. Price, W.M., then presented Bro. John Hayes, I.P.M., in the name of the members of the lodge, with a very chaste and handsome P.M.'s jewel, in token of the esteem felt for him after his year's valuable services in the chair. Bro. Hayes briefly thanked the brethren for their kind recognition of his services, and said the past year would long be remembered by him as one of the most pleasant in his life. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren proceeded to the landing stage, where they were joined by their lady friends and a very large number of brethren connected with the lodge, who had been unable to attend the morning's meeting. The party, numbering nearly 200, crossed the river to Woodside Ferry, from whence bus and rail conveyed them to Hoylake, and a pleasant walk across the fields brought them at last to West Kirby, the place selected for the scene of the picnic. The morning was bright and genial, but one or two showers during the afternoon rather damped the complete enjoyment of the "out." There was quite a round of amusements, however, and every one seemed to enter with zeal into the spirit of the picnic. Some rambled on the shore, others enjoyed themselves in dancing, while races, croquet, and other games were furnished for others. Thus the time passed very pleasantly until the time for returning came, and then the party started for Liverpool, arriving about half-past 10 o'clock. The catering at the West Kirby Hotel gave almost universal dissatisfaction, as it was neither ample nor well-carried out, not a few having to go without anything to eat.

WHITWORTH.—KEYSTONE LODGE (No. 363).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, June 23rd, at the New Inn, Whitworth, and there was a moderate attendance of the brethren. The lodge was opened at 7.15 p.m. by Bro. T. B. Ashworth, P.M. 367, 54, and 363, and the minutes of the previous lodge read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. R. W. Schofield having presented himself, was examined, and retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bro. R. W. Schofield was then admitted, and duly raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason by T. B. Ashworth, P.M., and deaconed by P.M. Dan Mitchell. The ceremony was performed in a very creditable manner. The lodge was then closed in the Third Degree. The lodge was also closed in the Second Degree. There being no other business, the lodge was finally closed at 8.45, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. After the cloth was removed the W.M. gave the usual toasts, commencing with "The Queen and the Craft." This was followed by "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England." The next was "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Right Worshipful Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Very Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." The W.M. then gave "The Health of La Grande N. Starkie, Provincial Grand Master, East Lancashire." This was followed by "Bro. W. R. Callender, Deputy Prov. G.M." "The rest of the Prov. Grand Officers" was then given, and a number of other toasts were given, amongst which P.M. T. B. Ashworth proposed the health of R. W. Schofield, the newly-raised brother. In doing so he hoped he would distinguish himself in the knowledge of the principles of the Craft, as he had done by his untiring diligence and assiduity, in which he had won such distinguished honours for himself in college. The usual closing toast was given, and the brethren separated in peace and good fellowship towards each other, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

COLCHESTER.—UNITED LODGE (No. 697).—At the monthly meeting of this lodge, held on Friday, June 11th, a handsome gold Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. the Rev. Eustace H. Crate, on his retirement from the W.M.'s chair. The jewel is inscribed as follows:—"Presented to Bro. the Rev. E. H. Crate by the brethren of the United Lodge, 697, as a token of their appreciation of the zeal and ability displayed by him as W.M. Colchester, June, 1875." The W.M., Bro. R. A. Clench, in making the presentation in the name of the officers and the members, bore testimony, not only to the zeal and assiduity which the I.P.M. had displayed in the cause of Masonry, but to the excellent working of the lodge during his year of office, the rev. brother's tact and kindness being such as to make it easy to maintain discipline, yet promote unity and harmony amongst the brethren. Bro. Crate, who had been taken by surprise by the presentation, thanked the lodge in terms excellently suited to the time and the man, and promised that, no matter where he was to be found in future days, he should ever preserve the jewel as a memento of the respect and honour he had received from the lodge in which he had worked so pleasantly and harmoniously with the brethren. This being the last occasion on which many of the military brethren would attend the lodge (they being ordered away) some kindly expressions of sentiment and good will were exchanged.

WIMBORNE.—ST. CUTHBERTA LODGE (No. 622).—The brethren of this lodge met recently for the despatch of business, and, it being known the subject of the magnificent ceremony of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was to be brought forward by the W.M. for the information of those brethren who were not so fortunate as to be present, a full lodge assembled. The following officers were present:—Bros. J. W. Luff, W.M.; A. J. Budden, S.W.; J. Hammond, J.W.; J. Atkins, S.D.; Capt. Herford, J.D.; Haylett, Wyke Smith, H. C. Burt, as I.P.M.; Rowe, E. T. Budden, Walter Fletcher, Smith, Secretary, besides other members of the lodge, and Bro. Edwin, a visitor from Lodge "Phoenix," 914, Jamaica. The lodge being duly opened, the minutes of the last lodge were read and confirmed. The Secretary read letters of apology for non-attendance from Bros. Heath and Wyndham. The ceremony of raising Bro. Wallis being over, and other business discussed, the W.M. graphically alluded to the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, which imposing ceremony, he said, would never be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to witness it. It was a great day, indeed, for the Craft when H.R.H. did it the honour to become its head, but greater, indeed, would it be for the noble Masonic charities. He believed it would be the means of adding thousands of pounds to the funds, and unite the brethren closer than ever, if that were possible, in the bonds of loyalty and charity. The enthusiastic reception H.R.H. met with was perfectly overwhelming and indescribable. The manner in which he went through the ceremony, and his part of it particularly as Most Worshipful Grand Master, was worthy of a Prince of his exalted position, and would inspire an additional warmth for their Royal Master and the Craft in the heart of every Mason. Loud and long was the genuine and hearty welcome when H.R.H. took his seat on the Masonic throne. Well might he say "It was a day and sight he should never forget," for it was such as no one who witnessed it could ever cease to remember. And could his Queen Mother but have seen it she would have rejoiced that her Royal sons had become such distinguished members of the loyal and charitable Craft, for he believed if even the Pope himself and his advisers had witnessed that most imposing ceremony and heard the beautiful music used on the occasion, as well as the admirable and eloquent address of H.R.H., they would not again let loose the unfounded, and he might say uncharitable, aspersions they have chosen on recent occasions to indulge in; but he was inclined to think his Holiness would recant, become one of them, and say, "As brethren let us dwell together in unity, loyalty, and charity." They could only be excused through their ignorance of this most excellent Order. The Masons most cordially thanked the Prince for doing them the honour to become one of them, and might the Great Architect of the Universe take him into His safe keeping during a long and happy life. The choice of all the grand officers he made must have been well considered; nothing could be better. That of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of that great and wealthy City of London was most gratifying, as his lordship takes every opportunity to promote every Masonic charity. The W.M. proceeded to say: "We have also to thank H.R.H. for doing our lodge the high honour to select Bro. Montague Guest, our I.P.M., to fill the office of his G.S.D., whose investment with the collar of office was a signal for general applause in that vast assembly, being sure evidence of the good choice H.R.H. had made, and the popularity of Bro. Guest, who on any occasion is ready to do good charity to the needy. We claim the Prince partly as a Dorsetshire man, and he did not forget our county on the occasion. Our Provincial Grand Master also paid our lodge a great compliment, in that he selected Bro. H. C. Burt as one of the Provincial Grand Stewards to represent our province on that occasion; so we, as a lodge, have good reason to remember that great day for Freemasonry—April 28th, 1875—and with H.R.H. say, our two watchwords are "Loyalty and Charity," and we assure him we shall never forget that day. The arrangements for the comfort of the brethren at Albert Hall were faultless, the decorations gorgeous, and reflected the highest credit on all those concerned, and must have been most gratifying to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who was evidently moved by this as well as with the grand reception accorded him. Bro. H. C. Burt announced that the Festival of the Boys' School would take place on the 7th of July, should any of the brethren wish to be present. He will attend as Steward for the Province of Dorset, and he has collected the large sum of £600 in aid of this great charity. Truly his stewardship has been a faithful one. The W.M. stated that, in accordance with the wishes of the brethren, the lodge would not be summoned during the months of July, August, or September, unless business required it. The business of the evening being ended, the brethren assembled in the large hall, where an excellent supper was provided by the W.M. in honour of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as the M.W.G.M. of England. The usual loyal and Craft toasts were given and duly received, a special greeting being given to that of "The Prince of Wales." An agreeable evening was spent, all the brethren being well content that they had had their dues, and with the great progress of Freemasonry during the present eventful year.

APPLEBY.—EDEN VALLEY LODGE (No. 812).—On Wednesday, 30th ult., the brethren met to celebrate the anniversary festival of St. John the Baptist, and to instal the Worshipful Master for the ensuing twelve months. Their choice had fallen on Bro. Dr. Dinwoodie. There was a good gathering of the brethren, amongst them being Bro. the Rev. James Simpson, P.G.J.W., and Grand Chaplain of England, Bro. McMechan, W.M., St. John's Lodge, Wigton, was the acting Worshipful Master on the occasion. The first business before the lodge was to ballot for the joining members, Bro. the Rev. J. Holme, and Bro. the Rev. J. Baker, and the vote being unanimous, they were declared elected. The next business was to initiate Mr. Richard Warton to the first degree in Freemasonry, which ceremony was gone through by Bro. McMechan, who opened the lodge up to the second degree, when the chair was taken by Bro. James Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W., and Bro. Dr. Dinwoodie was installed as W.M. of Eden Valley Lodge in Bro. Porter's usual finished and impressive style. Bro. Porter read a letter from Bro. Colonel Whitwell, D.P.G.M., who had been expected to be present, but who wrote regretting his inability to be present, but wished the brethren every success. The newly-elected W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bro. Fulton, I.P.M.; Bro. Thompson, S.W.; Bro. Parks, J.W.; Bro. Armstrong, S.D.; Bro. Thom, J.D.; Bro. Whitehead, Treasurer and Secretary; Bro. R. Wharton, I.G.; Bro. Martin Cousins, Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined together at the King's Head Inn, where an excellent dinner was prepared by Mrs. Riggs. An hour or so was spent in a very pleasant manner. The chair was taken by Bro. Dr. Dinwoodie, supported by Bros. Porter, McMechan, Whitehead, and Dr. Armstrong. The vice-chair was taken by Bro. Thompson. The meeting, altogether, was one of the most successful that has been held at Appleby for some time, and augurs well for the future of the old lodge.

MILLBROOK.—LODGE MERIDIAN (No. 893).—The brethren of this lodge met in their handsome new lodge-room, at Millbrook, on Monday evening, for the purpose of installing the Worshipful Master elect, the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, P.G. Master of Cornwall. V.W. Bro. Wm. Veale, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., introduced his lordship, and V.W. Bro. E. J. Worth, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., impressively conferred the obligation. His lordship invested his officers for the year as follows:—Bros. J. H. Filmer, I.P.M.; E. J. Worth, P.P.G.J.W., S.W.; Captain H. O'Neil, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., J.W.; Wm. Veale, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., Treasurer; the Rev. T. W. Wintle, Chaplain; J. Henwood, Secretary; W. H. Bickford, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., S.D.; W. Harris, P.M., J.D.; W. H. Clarke, P.M., I.G.; W. Coath, P.M., D.C.; W. Cawse and S. Hutchings, Stewards; and Fisher, Tyler. His lordship then presented Bro. Filmer with a very handsome jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the brethren for his zeal and ability in conducting the business of the lodge during his year of office; and in doing so his lordship expressed the very great pleasure he felt in being able to give so good an account of his immediate predecessor in the chair. Bro. Filmer very feelingly returned thanks for the honour conferred, and expressed his wishes for the continued prosperity of the lodge under the direction of his lordship.

LIVERPOOL.—HAMER LODGE (No. 1393).—The annual installation meeting of this flourishing lodge, took place on Tuesday, June 22nd, at the Clarence Hotel, Everton Road, and was attended by a large number of Provincial Grand Officers and distinguished Masons of the province, and was certainly one of the most brilliant and successful gatherings which has taken place in this province for some years. The lodge was opened at 2 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. R. H. Evans, supported by the following officers, and about one hundred members and visitors:—Bros. John Jones, I.P.M.; Henry Jackson, S.W.; John McCarthy, J.W.; Chas. Tyrer, Treas.; W. T. May, P.M., Sec. pro tem.; Ed. Dutch, S.D.; Thos. Large, J.D.; Thos. Sammons, M.C.; Robert Price, I.G.; Robt. Leason, S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; M. Williamson, Tyler. Amongst the visitors present were—Bros. H. S. Alpasa, Prov. G. Sec.; Thos. Armstrong, Prov. G. Treas.; Thos. Wylie, P.P.J.G.W.; Robt. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; Wm. Doyle, P.P.G.S.D.; Jesse Banning, P.P.G.Org., (C. and W.); the Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, Chaplain 216; Dr. Wilson, W.M. 537; W. Hughes, W.M. 292; H. Nelson, W.M. 1505, P.M. 673; Thos. Ockleshaw, W.M. 667; E. O. C. Rothwell, W.M. 1356; John Jones, P.M. 216; R. W. Holt, P.M. 1276; Dr. Serjeant, P.M. 203; Dr. Samuels, P.M. 1350; Russell, P.M.; 292; Goodacre, P.M. 1086; A. T. Foy, P.M. 292; C. Leighton, P.M. 1325; Hocken, P.M. 673; Sinclair, P.M. 212; J. T. Callow, S.W. 1505, P.M. 673; W. A. Wilson, P.M. 203; W. Boulton, P.M. 823; Joseph Wood, Treas. 1094; T. Shaw, W.M. elect 823; Dr. Hall, J.W. 823; J. E. Jackson, S.W. 667; A. C. Wylie, Sec. 1299; John Capell, S.D. 1264, &c., &c. The chair was taken by Bro. H. S. Alpasa, Prov. G. Sec., as Installing Master, and Bro. Henry Jackson, Worshipful Master elect, was presented by Bro. Robt. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., and Bro. Wm. Doyle, P.P.G.S.D., to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. After the usual charges had been read and assented to, the brethren beneath the rank of Installed Masters were requested to withdraw. A board of Installed Masters was then opened, and Bro. Jackson was placed in the chair of K.S. and saluted in ancient form by the W.M.'s and P.M.'s present (who numbered no fewer than twenty-five). On the re-admission of the brethren, Bro. Jackson, the Worshipful Master, was declared, and saluted in the usual manner, and according to ancient custom. The W.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. R. H. Evans, I.P.M.; J. McCarthy, S.W.; Ed. Dutch, J.W.; Charles Tyrer, Treas.; Thomas Large, Sec.; Thomas Sammons, S.D.; Robert Price, J.D.; Robert Leason, I.G.; John Price, M.C.; Thomas Brown, S.S.; Charles Phillips, J.S.; H. Hindle, Org.; M. Williamson, Tyler. We may mention that Bro. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec., performed the duties of Installing Master in a most impressive manner, and he was ably assisted by Bro. Robert Wylie, P.P.S.G.D., who gave the addresses to the officers with that grace and ability which he possesses in so marked a degree. The newly installed W.M. then proceeded to initiate Messrs. McMurphy and Cutler into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, which he did in a thoroughly efficient manner, and he was well assisted by the newly appointed officers, who did their work in a manner which fully sustained the reputation for perfect working which this lodge possesses. After "hearty good wishes" the lodge was closed in due and solemn form by the W.M. The brethren then adjourned to "The Harrington," Harrington-street, where a most sumptuous banquet was prepared, the caterer being Bro. T. H. Bibby, who provided for the creature comforts of the brethren in a manner which gave the greatest satisfaction. Bro. H. Jackson, W.M., presided, supported on the right by the Provincial Grand Officers, and on the left by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Evans. Grace having been said by Bro. the Rev. J. Rees Jenkins, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of England, and Prov. Grand Master of West Lancashire," the W.M. said that he was sure that the toast would be most enthusiastically received, as many of the brethren present had had an opportunity of meeting his lordship in either Provincial Grand Lodge, Chapter, or other Masonic gathering, and they must have seen that he took a very great interest in Freemasonry, and he was sure that all the brethren of the province considered that the Most Worshipful Grand Master had made a wise choice in selecting the Prov. G.M. of this province as the Deputy Grand Master of England. In proposing "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institute for the education and advancement in life of the children of deceased Freemasons," the W.M. made a strong appeal to the brethren to become subscribing members to this Institution, which he characterized as one of the most deserving Masonic Charitable institutions with which he was acquainted, as it did its work unostentatiously, silently, but effectively, and was productive of more good than any one not acquainted with its nature and character could credit. Bro. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Secretary, responded, and in a lengthy and most eloquent speech, which was listened to with marked attention by the assembled brethren, reminded them that their duty as Masons did not only consist in attending the lodge meetings and to their various offices in Freemasonry, but also in giving freely and liberally, the utmost they could afford, not only to the local, but also to the London Masonic charities. In proposing The Healths of the Installing Officers, Bros. H. S. Alpass and Robert Wylie, the W.M. thanked them, both on his own behalf and on behalf of the lodge, for their kind attendance, and for the admirable manner in which they had performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., responded in well chosen terms. The Immediate Past Master, Bro. R. H. Evans, then proposed "The Worshipful Master, Bro. H. Jackson," and said—We are met here to-day to celebrate a most important event in the annals of the Hamer Lodge. Few standing where I do now, and looking round upon this magnificent gathering, would think it possible that this lodge was only just entering upon the fourth year of its existence, but I feel sure that during the coming year the same success which has hitherto attended this lodge, will not only continue, but increase, more especially as the brother who has now the honour of presiding over you is not only the Worshipful Master by your unanimous vote, but he also occupies the position with the good feeling and affection of every member of this lodge, and he also possesses in a marked degree the necessary qualifications for such an important post, of which many of you are well qualified to judge, having had an opportunity of observing the undeviating care and attention he has paid to the interests of this lodge from its commencement. I am sure that in drinking his health you all sincerely and heartily wish him health and success and happiness during his year of office. The W.M., in responding, said: I am very grateful to you, brethren, for having unanimously elected me to the proud position of Worshipful Master of the Hamer Lodge. I consider it a very proud position indeed, to be the W.M. of such a lodge as the Hamer, but, at the same time, I am fully aware of its great responsibility, but I can assure you that it shall be my earnest endeavour on all occasions, and under all circumstances, during my year of office, to preserve the harmony, promote the prosperity, and sustain the dignity of the Hamer Lodge. I thank you most heartily for the very cordial and hearty manner in which you have received the toast of my health, and I trust that at the end of my year you will be able to say of me that I discharged the duties of the chair faithfully and zealously. I have now the pleasure of proposing The Healths of my Predecessors, Bro. Evans, I.P.M., and Bro. P.M.'s May and Jones." I am sure, brethren, that you will agree with me that the I.P.M. has set me an example that I shall do well to follow in the manner in which he has filled the duties of the chair during the past twelve months, I feel satisfied that he carries with him the respect, esteem, and affection of every member of the lodge, and the pleasing duty which now devolves upon me is strong evidence that such is the fact, and that duty is to present you, Bro. Evans, on behalf of the brethren of this lodge, with this magnificent jewel, one of the handsomest and most valuable that any W.M. has ever had the pleasure of placing upon the breast of his predecessor, and I trust, Worshipful Sir, that you may long be spared to wear it, and that you will always look upon it as a spontaneous and sincere token of the esteem and regard in which you are held by the brethren of the Hamer Lodge. (The jewel is of very beautiful design, and is set with five diamonds of unusual size and brilliancy). The W.M. next proposed "The Officers," complimenting them highly upon the manner in which they had that day performed their duties. Bro. McCarthy, S.W., in responding assured the W.M. that the officers would, if possible, during the coming year, improve upon the past. Bro. Dutch, J.W., responded in similar terms. The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," calling upon the P.M. of the oldest, and the W.M. of the youngest lodge, present to respond. Bro. Jones, P.M. 216, and Bro. H. Nelson, W.M. 1505 responded, and both paid a high compliment to the lodge for efficiency and hospitality. After the healths of the "New Initiates" had been duly proposed and responded to, the Tyler's toast brought a most delightful day to a conclusion. During the evening the proceedings were enlivened by the recitations and songs of Bros. J. C. Cowper, Sinclair, Nicholas Jones, Veale, Roberts, Thomas, and others. The day throughout was a complete success, and the brethren separated, all of them expressing the opinion that they had never attended a more perfectly managed or enjoyable Masonic meeting.

BURY.—EGERTON LODGE (No. 1392).—At the meeting of this lodge, held at the Stanley Arms, on Wednesday evening, June 23rd, there were present Bros. R. Pilkington, W.M.; William Brown, S.W.; Joseph Metcalf, J.W.; William Burgess, S.D.; William Hutchinson, J.D.; Thomas Shaw, I.G.; George Brown, Tyler; William Shaw, Treasurer; Joseph Barlow, Secretary and P.M.; J. W. Crossley, P.M.; Visitor, S. J. Randall Fletcher, P.M. 191; and about 17 other brethren. Mr. John Agar, who had been unanimously balloted for at the previous meeting, but was not then able to attend, was initiated into the secrets of Masonry by the W.M., the charge being given by Bro. Thos. Shaw. The lodge was afterwards opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Fred. Wilkinson was crafted by the W.M. There were two propositions for initiation. An excellent supper was partaken of by 28 brethren after the closing down, and a very jovial time was passed. Considering the amount of work in hand it is almost certain that the lodge will this year dispense with its summer vacation; in fact the present meeting was one over and above those specified in the calendar. At the various lodges in town there is a fair amount of work on the agenda papers, and a feeling seems to be growing that a vacation is not desirable in the face of so much business. This course has been adopted by No. 42; and possibly No. 1012 may follow suit. Certainly the fact speaks well for the progress which is being made in Bury. Bro. E. Simpkin, Secretary of Lodge of Relief, No. 42, issued circulars to the brethren, on the 25th June, intimating that at a meeting of Lodge 42, on June 17th, it was resolved that a monument be erected over the grave of Bro. J. S. Redfern, P.M. 42, and P. Prov. G.P., East Lancashire, "to commemorate the long and valuable services rendered by him to the brethren of this district." The W.M. (Bro. E. Eccles), Wardens, and P.M.'s were appointed a committee to carry out this resolution, and they knowing how highly Bro. Redfern's services have been appreciated, trust that this mention of them will secure a hearty and generous response to the solicitation for a subscription towards this desirable object.

HAMPTON COURT.—CAMPELL LODGE (No. 1415).—The installation meeting was held at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, on Wednesday, June 23rd. Present—Bros. Dr. E. Kimber, W.M.; D. M. Dewar, S.W. and W.M. elect; T. Keene, J.W.; T. Cubitt, P.M., P.G. Purs., Treas.; H. C. Levander, P.M., Sec.; T. Levander, J.D. and other brethren. Bros. Rountree, Jones, and Whittaker were passed, and Bro. Summers was raised. Bro. Dewar was then installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed by our veteran Bro. F. Binckes. The W.M. appointed his officers: T. Keene, S.W.; A. J. Codner, P.M.; P. Prov. Reg. Middlesex, J.W.; J. Levander, S.D.; Cole, J.D.; Johnson, I.G.; T. Cubitt, Treas.; H. C. Levander, Sec. A Past Master's jewel was voted to the I.P.M. The usual excellent banquet followed, and the brethren separated at an early hour.

ROMFORD.—LIBERTY OF HAVERING LODGE (No. 1437).—The brethren of this lodge held their annual meeting on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., at the White Hart Hotel, Romford, the principal part of the business being the installation of the Worshipful Master elect for the ensuing year. There was, however, plenty of other business before the lodge, viz.: balloting for joining members, the initiation of one gentleman into the mysteries of the Order, and advancing three brothers to the Third Degree. There was a large number of brethren present, amongst whom we noticed Bros. Joseph Tydemann, Worshipful Master; Edward West, S.W. and W.M. elect; John Josiah Wilson, I.P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D., Middlesex, W.M. 25, Prov. G.J.W., Essex, &c.; Brayshaw, J.W.; T. F. Bishop, Treas.; J. Ellis, Secretary; T. G. Day, S.D.; G. W. Patmore, J.D.; A. W. Naylor, I.G.; J. Garnett, W.S.; A. Knox, P.M.; A. Harvey; G. English, P.M.; W. Cobb, J. Wotton, J. Taylor, T. Osgathorp, Crozier, T. Hill, Beeson, W. Dille, Playl, Early, Whisker, F. Smith, &c.; also the following visitors: Bros. J. W. Carr, Prov. G. Sec., Essex; Burton, Prov. G.T., Essex; Rev. Thomas Cochrane, P. Prov. G. Chaplain, Oxon, P.M. Westminster and Keystone No. 10; Robertson, W.M. St. John's Lodge, (No. 1343); W. Sackett, Secretary (No. 1343); Rielly, J.W. (1327); Malcolm, Secretary, (No. 1327); E. Price (No. 1327); A. Manning,

Henley Lodge (No. 1472); J. Ives, Henley Lodge (No. 1472); A. Bartlett, St. John's Lodge (No. 1343); W. Bradstock (No. 1327); Nicholls, P.M. St. John's Lodge (No. 1343); John Payne Cornwallis (No. 1107); F. T. Edgington, W.M. (No. 1321); J. Maller, W.M. High Cross Lodge (No. 1754); C. W. Ashdown, P.M. and Secretary (No. 1427); James Linzell, W.M. (No. 1237); James Knight (No. 1327); J. Church (No. 1327); and others. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Manning, of the Henley Lodge (No. 1472), as joining member, and for Mr. Frank Smith for initiation, and proved unanimous in their favour in each case. The lodge was next opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Whiskers, Early, and Playl being candidates for the sublime degree were questioned, entrusted, and retired, and the lodge being opened in the Third Degree they were re-admitted in due form and raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons. The lodge having been resumed to the First Degree, Mr. Frank Smith was initiated into the mysteries of the Order. Bro. Tydemann, the W.M., having performed the ceremonies of raising and initiation in a very impressive manner, now vacated the chair for the Junior Grand Warden of Essex, Worshipful Bro. J. J. Wilson, P.M., &c., who was present for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect for the ensuing year. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. F. West, S.W., was presented to the Installing Master, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The ceremony was most ably performed in the presence of a full board of Installed Masters—being another proof of the excellent abilities possessed by Bro. H. Wilson for Masonic duties, whose worth as a Mason is not only esteemed in Essex, Middlesex, Hertfordshire, and London, but also throughout the lodges of the Channel Islands, of which district he is also a Past Grand Officer. The W.M. having been saluted in the three degrees, proceeded to appoint and invest his officers in the following order:—Bros. J. Tydemann, I.P.M.; B. Brayshaw, S.W.; T. G. Day, J.W.; T. F. Bishop, Treas.; J. W. Ellis, Sec.; G. W. Patmore, S.D.; Naylor, J.D.; A. Knox, D.C.; Alfred Harvey, I.G.; J. Garnett, W.S.; W. Steedman, Tyler. Several letters were received expressive of regret from brethren unable to attend. Bro. J. Tydemann, I.P.M., proposed and Bro. Brayshaw, S.W., seconded, that a vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. Wilson, for the very able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, and, being put to the meeting, it was carried most cordially and unanimously. Bro. Brayshaw, S.W., gave notice of motion that he should propose that the lodge do adjourn during certain months of the year, as may be agreed upon at the next meeting. The business of the lodge being over, the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where an excellent repast awaited them, which reflected the greatest credit to the proprietors of the hotel, the wines, the dessert, and all else being exceedingly good. The toasts were given in the following order:—"The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.," "The D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," "The Prov. G.M., Bro. R. J. Bagshaw," "The D. Prov. G.M. and rest of the Prov. G. Officers," responded to by Bro. J. W. Carr, Prov. G. Sec., and Bro. Burton, Prov. G. Treasurer, who after thanking the lodge on behalf of themselves, the Prov. G.M., D. Prov. G.M., and other provincial officers, passed some very flattering remarks upon the lodge, both for the excellent working of its officers and the prosperity it appeared to be making for so young a lodge. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the Prov. G. Sec., Bro. J. W. Carr, and responded to by Bro. West, W.M., in very suitable terms. "The Health of the newly initiated Brother" was responded to by Bro. Smith. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," and said he should couple with it the name of Bro. J. Tydemann, I.P.M., and in doing so he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present Bro. Tydemann with a very handsome 18-carat gold Past Master's jewel, the gift of the lodge in appreciation of the excellent manner he had performed his duties as Worshipful Master during the past twelve months, and as a small token of their esteem. He hoped that Bro. Tydemann would live many years to wear it. He felt great pleasure in seeing Bro. Tydemann so well up in the duties and workings of the ceremonies, especially as he had himself some four or five years ago initiated him into the mysteries of the Order. For so young a Mason Bro. Tydemann had made great success. Bro. Tydemann, I.P.M., in responding, thanked the brethren for the very kind way in which his health had been proposed, also the officers and brethren for the assistance they had rendered him in carrying out the duties of his office during the past year, but more especially he thanked them for the proof of their kindness towards him by presenting him with the handsome jewel now upon his breast; it was not the intrinsic value of the jewel he cared for half so much as the pleasant recollections it would bring to his mind whenever he looked upon it. He should consider it a proof of the kind feeling of the brethren towards him. If he had done his best for the lodge it was enough for him to know that his endeavours had met with the approval of his brethren. There was one thing he had learnt during his year of office, which was that the position of Master of a lodge was one of greater responsibility than might at first be imagined; the great thing that was wanted was the co-operation of every member and officer,—each one must feel in earnest to make it a good lodge; no member, and especially the officers, should be absent from his lodge unless necessity really compelled. He begged of the officers to rally round the new Master they had been fortunate in getting, one who had distinguished himself in the Craft, and was not wanting in ability. All that was required to make his year a successful one was the hearty support of all his officers at every meeting. "The Health of the Visitors" was responded to by Bro. Linzett, P. Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex; he said that the hospitable way in which visitors were always treated at this lodge must make it a pleasure to all (as it did with himself) to attend their meetings. The Officers, responded to by Bro. Naylor, J.D., and Bro. Ellis, Secretary; after which the Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable meeting to a close. The evening was enlivened by some excellent singing.

MOLD.—SIR WATKIN LODGE (No. 1477).—On Monday, the 21st June, Bro. Horatio Lloyd, P.M., P.S.G.W. of Cheshire, County Court Judge for North Wales, and Recorder of Chester, was installed W.M. of the Sir Watkin Lodge, No. 1477, at Mold, North Wales. In consequence of the general respect and esteem in which Judge Lloyd is held, a dispensation had been obtained for holding the lodge in a large room in the Market Hall, where a larger number of members and visitors could be accommodated. Since the present W.M. has been appointed County Court Judge for the principality, he had taken up his residence near Mold. The Sir Watkin Lodge has only been established about a year and a half, during which time Bro. J. Salmon, P.S.G.B., North Wales, and P.G.S.D., Cheshire, has been the W.M. Upon this occasion the retiring officers of the lodge were Bros. J. Corbett, J.W.; S. Beresford, Sec.; Rev. — Edwards, Chaplain; Algernon Potts, S.D.; J. Williams, J.D., P.G., Org.; J. D. Birch, I.G. There was an excellent attendance of members of the lodge and of visiting brethren. Among the latter were Bros. A. F. Watts, P.M., Abergele; W. Johnson, W.M. 721, Chester; Robert Jones, 241, Merchants' Lodge, Liverpool; T. L. Williams, 597, Holyhead; W. Johnson, 149; A. H. Reid, P.M., and G. Bradley, 1336, Wrexham; R. J. Sissons, W.M., P.G.S. 1143, Denbigh; E. B. Smith, W.M. 1432, Oswestry; J. O. Robinson, W.M.; J. M'Hattie, S.W.; T. Wood, P.M.; S. Spencer, P.G.S. 425, Chester. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Salmen, the retiring W.M., in an exceedingly appropriate and solemn manner, the W.M. elect being presented by Bro. Dr. Spratley. The newly installed W.M. then appointed as his officers J. Corbett, S.W.; A. Potts, J.W.; J. Williams, S.D.; J. D. Birch, J.D.; and — Rowlands, I.G. The Secretary, Organist, and Chaplain were reappointed. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the W.M. presented P.M. Bro. J. Salmon with a handsome and valuable Past Master's jewel, accompanying it with an expression of thanks to him, on the part of the lodge, as one of its founders and chief workers. The brethren retired for refreshment to the Star Hotel, where an excellent banquet was served. The W.M. presided. "The Queen, and the Craft, and the rest of the Royal Family," was duly honoured. The W.M. proposed "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.; the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M., and the rest of the Officers of Grand Lodge present and past." "The Health of Sir W. W. Wynn, M.P., R.W.P.G.M., and the rest of the Officers of the P.G. Lodge" was duly honoured, and was responded to by Bro. Sissons. "The W.M. and Officers of the Sir Watkin Lodge," and "The Immediate P.M. and Installing Masters" were responded to by Bros. H. Lloyd and Salmon. Other toasts followed.

On Tuesday a large party of ladies and gentlemen—the latter being members of Masonic lodges in North Wales, Shropshire, and Cheshire, but principally belonging to the Sir Watkin Lodge, Mold—visited Wynnstay Hall, the seat of Brother Sir W. W. Wynn, M.P., R.W.P.G.M. By the kindness of the worthy baronet, the apartments were thrown open to the visitors, and the inspection of the paintings, sculptures, tapestry, &c., afforded a fine treat to the excursionists. A banquet was served in the park, near the gate leading to the village. Afterwards, Bro. Edwards, Chaplain, presented Bro. Salmon, P.M., P.G.S.B., in the name of the Sir Watkin Lodge, with a valuable gold chronometer watch and a lady's gold chain and locket. In doing so, the reverend brother said that Bro. Salmon had been everything to that lodge while it had existed, and had conducted its ceremonies in a manner second to none in the province. (Loud applause.) Bro. Salmon, in acknowledging the gift, said he had but done his duty; and he would have experienced great difficulty in getting through the work had it not been for the services of a younger but more able Mason than himself—he alluded to Bro. J. Worrall, P.M., P.Z., P.G.S.B. He had great pleasure in presenting Bro. Worrall, in the name of the lodge, with a handsome tea and coffee service. (Loud applause.) Bro. Worrall, in thanking the lodge for the presentation, congratulated it on having so distinguished a Mason and so respected a judge as Bro. Horatio Lloyd for their W.M. The party afterwards visited the various localities of the park and neighbourhood, returning to tea in the evening, and leaving at a comparatively early hour.

CHISLEHURST.—CHISLEHURST LODGE (No. 1531).—The first regular meeting of this well-established lodge took place at the Bull Hotel, Chislehurst, on Saturday, June 26th. There were present Bros. J. Coutts, P.G.P., P.M.; W.M.; G. F. Guest, S.W.; W. Kipps, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.P., Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer; J. Griffin, P.M., Secretary; H. Gloster, S.D.; J. Mason, J.D.; W. Hardman, I.G.; J. Fox, W.S.; J. J. Hutchings, M.C.; G. Abbott, P.M.; and others. The visitors were Bros. Reed, J.W. 13; E. Mallett, S.D. 141, 1326, &c. The minutes were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bros. G. Abbott, P.M. 192; J. Mason, 1423; J. J. Hutchings, 147; and J. Fox, 1275, as joining members, who were all present and joined the lodge. The ballots, separately taken, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Messrs. E. Kipps, H. L. Wain (mine host), J. R. Hooker, and R. F. Lucky, to become candidates for initiation into Freemasonry and members of the lodge. Each candidate for initiation into Freemasonry was introduced separately, and the whole four named were most impressively initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the ancient Order. The ceremony was ably done and beautifully rendered. The W.M., Bro. J. Coutts, was warmly congratulated by every P.M. and his officers for the superior manner in which he had done all the work. The bye-laws were unanimously agreed to as submitted to the lodge. A distinguished nobleman connected with the province was unanimously elected an honorary member, subject to his accepting the same. Bro. W. Kipps, J.W., made an earnest appeal to the brethren to help his list as their Steward for the Boys' School. One-third of those eligible agreed to attend at the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, to be held at Gravesend. Some propositions for joining members were made, and several names of gentlemen handed in who were anxious to be initiated. The usual routine business followed. The lodge was closed. A sumptuous and superior banquet followed. It reflected very great credit on Bro. H. L. Wain for the admirable manner in which he served it. Very good wines and excellent viands were all enjoyed and done ample justice to. After some hours most agreeably spent the non-residents returned to town. This lodge has commenced well, and is likely to prove a great success. The furniture, now completed, and supplied by Bro. George Kenning, was greatly admired, and has given satisfaction to the lodge. It harmonizes well with the room. The new Tracing Boards were models in themselves of the artist's talent, which had been poured out on them. Every article gave universal satisfaction.

INSTRUCTION.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE (507).—This flourishing lodge held its first meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Friday, the 4th July. Bro. Preceptor Larham most ably presided as W.M., assisted by Bro. Assistant Preceptor Poore, S.W.; Field, J.W.; Harvey, S.D.; Wallis, J.D.; Bentley, I.G.; and Francis, Sec. pro tem. The Fifteen Sections were admirably worked in the following order:—First Lecture: Bros. Field, Wallis, Poore, Francis, Coe, Poore, and Geider. Second Lecture: Bros. Stevens, Harvey, Cass, Larham, and Allan. Third Lecture: Bros. Poore, Noke, and Watts. At the conclusion of the working Bro. Noke proposed, which was seconded by Bro. Worthington and carried unanimously, "That a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes for the very able manner in which the duties of W.M. had been carried out by Bro. Larham on this occasion." The W.M. then returned thanks for the honour awarded him. Bro. Poore was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. It is with pleasure we mention that this was the largest meeting since 1871, there being no less than forty-nine brethren present, and great praise is due to the presiding officers and brethren who assisted them for the efficient manner in which the work was performed. This lodge meets every Friday at the Surrey Masonic Hall, and deserves to be well supported.

CARLISLE.—UNION CHAPTER (310).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Castle-street. The chapter was opened in solemn form by Comp. Jesse Banning, P.Z., as Z.; Comp. F. W. Hayward, H.; and Comp. Court, J.; and after the minutes of the previous convocation had been read and confirmed, Comp. Jesse Banning, P.Z., and Prov. G.P. Soj. W. Lancashire, then proceeded to install Comp. F. W. Hayward, P.Z., as Z.; Comp. W. Court as H.; and Comp. William Pratchett as J.; the following companions being invested with their respective collars:—Comps. Murchie, S.E.; Noakes, S.N.; Wheatley, P.S.; Blacklock, Treasurer; Mason, First Assistant S.; John Murray, Second Assistant S.; Barnes being elected Janitor. The following propositions were made and duly seconded:—That Captain Maxwell, of Durran Hill, be admitted as a joining companion, and S. G. Saul, Esq., as a candidate for exaltation. After hearty good wishes being tendered by several visiting companions, the chapter was duly and solemnly closed in ancient form. The companions then retired to refreshment, and a very agreeable evening under the presidency of M.E. Comp. Jesse Banning was spent.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—An emergency meeting of this popular and flourishing lodge was held in their lodge-room, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on the 29th inst., the object being to raise Bro. Robert Boyle to the degree of Master Mason. He had for some time back been quite prepared for this degree, and having received a sudden call to proceed to Australia, it was resolved that he should be completed in Masonry before he left this country, this meeting being called for the purpose. Among those present were Bros. Bell, R.W.M.; D. M. Wilson, D.M.; T. Fletcher, P.M.; Duthie, 219; D. French, 441; R. Trainer, 447; G. B. Adams, 360; and other well qualified brethren. The Sublime Degree was given by Bro. Duthie, 219, and the lodge closed in all ancient solemnity.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION AND CROWN (No. 103).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the 28th ult., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. There was a very large assembly of the members, and a more than usual attendance of visiting brethren. The R.W.M., A. M. Wright, with the assistance of his Wardens, W. Thomson, S.W., R. Munro, J.W., opened the lodge. The following, among other brethren, were present:—J. Bain, P.M.; J. Gillies, P.M. and Sec.; G. Muir, D.M.; N. Cameron, Treas.; W. Anderson, S.D.; Pollok, J.D.; S.

Cullen, Chaplain; D. D. Lamplough and Wm. Hee, 792, E.C.; J. McInnes, Sec. 333; B. Smart, Treas. 219; W. Phills, R.W.M. 556; John McInnes, S.W. 408; Alex. James, S.D. 437; R. M. Culloch, 114; J. Stewart, 360; W. Bisland, J.W. 408; D. Mitchell, Sec. 408; E. D. Parr, 208; N. York, and others. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed, when the cases of two brothers requiring relief were considered, and both were granted the necessary assistance; when Bro. Gillies, P.M. and Sec., brought forward his motion (notice of which had previously been given). The motion was to raise the initiation fees, which were considered too low at present. Bro. N. Cameron seconded the motion. An amendment by Bro. Wm. Forsyth, seconded by Bro. D. McGechy, which proposed to go still a little higher than Bro. Gillies's motion went, found favour with Bros. Gillies and Cameron, who withdrew their motion. Bro. Forsyth's amendment becoming the motion. Bro. Geo. Muir, D.M., then moved, as an amendment, that the fees should not be raised so much as either Bro. Gillies or Bro. Forsyth proposed. This found a seconder in Bro. Anderson, which brought out a most lively, amusing, and indeed, thoughtful and instructive conversation, the result of which was that Bro. Forsyth's motion was carried, no one voting for Bro. Muir's amendment but himself and seconder, the affiliation fees remaining as at present. Applications were then laid before the lodge from two gentlemen aspiring to the honours of Freemasonry, Adam Burton and Joseph Ferguson, also an application from Lodge Clyde, 408, and one from Lodge Star, 219, asking Lodge Union and Crown to favour them by initiating two gentlemen for their respective lodges, Allan Martin for Lodge Clyde; Jas. Young for Lodge Star. The four gentlemen being approved of, were prepared, and received the First Degree, Bro. A. M. Wright, R.W.M., officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, when Bros. Jonathan Black and Robert Tarbet passed an examination in the First Degree, which being most satisfactory, they were passed into the Fellow Craft Degree, the R.W.M. again officiating. Bro. Morgan, R.W.M. of Star Lodge, 219, thanked the Union and Crown Lodge on behalf of the Star, 219, and Clyde, 408, for their kind offices in initiating the two brethren for them. Bro. Gillies said he hoped that the visiting brethren from England, who had honoured them with a visit that night, were satisfied, Bro. Lamplough, No. 792, replying that they were very much pleased, and would be glad to see at any time some Scotch brothers with them. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

RUTHERGLEN.—LODGE ROYAL ARCH (No. 116) met in their hall, Rutherglen, on the 2nd inst. This was the regular meeting of the lodge, but little business was gone into. The R.W.M. took the chair, assisted by Bro. R. Scott, S.W.; James Scott, J.W., and other office-bearers, with a number of competent brethren. The lodge being opened, the Secretary read the previous meeting's minutes, which were confirmed. The R.W.M. then intimated that an invitation had been sent from Pollockshaws Lodge (No. 153) for a deputation to attend with them on the 9th inst., to take part in the consecration of their new lodge, which will be performed by Col. Campbell, of Blythswood, P.G.M. of Renfrew East, and office-bearers of the P.G.L. This closed the business of the evening, and the lodge was closed in due form.

MAYBOLE.—LODGE ROYAL ARCH (No. 198).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 23rd ult. in their Hall, Maybole. Bro. John Hamilton, R.W.M., in the chair, assisted by the Wardens, Bros. J. McReath, S.W.; Robert Redmond, J.W., and in the presence of a good number of well-qualified brethren the lodge was duly opened. The Secretary, Bro. W. Rennick, then read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved and affirmed. A letter was read from Bro. Andrew McRechin, San Francisco, which was much appreciated by the brethren present. Mr. Hugh Bickerstaff was then proposed by Bro. Rennick, seconded by Bro. W. Allan, J.D., as a fit and proper candidate to become a member of this lodge. This being unanimously affirmed by the brethren present, he was properly prepared, and received the first light of Masonry. The lodge was then passed to the F.C. Degree, when the brother received that, the R.W.M. officiating in both degrees with marked care. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

RENFREW.—LODGE PAISLEY, COUNTY KILWINNING (No. 370), met in their hall, High-street, Paisley, on the 1st inst. The R.W.M., Bro. James Anderson, took his place in the chair; Jas. Goldie, S.W.; Robt. Brown, acting J.W., and other office-bearers, and a number of well-qualified brethren. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. An application from Mr. Charles Galbraith for initiation into Freemasonry was laid before the lodge; he was approved of and prepared for the First Degree, which was given in full style by the R.W.M. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—A special meeting of this lodge was held in their Hall, 12, Tron-gate, on the 30th ult. Among those present were J. M. Morgan, R.W.M.; John Graith, S.W.; Jas. Horn, J.W.; B. Smart, Treas.; J. Campbell, R.W.M. 128, St. John, Shettleton; W. Campbell, 128; John Stewart, 360; G. B. Adams, 360; A. M. Cullen, 117, &c. The lodge was opened, when an application was read from Mr. George Lyall, who was recommended to the lodge by Bros. J. Pearson and J. Lyall. All being satisfactory, he was prepared, and received the degree, the R.W.M. officiating in admirable style. The lodge was then raised to the F.C. Degree, when two brothers were passed into the F.C., the R.W.M. again acting, when the lodge was opened in the Sublime Degree, and two brothers were completed by receiving the sublime degree of M.M., Bro. J. Campbell, R.W.M. of 128, officiating. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDE (No. 408).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, situate at 170, Buchanan street, on the 2nd inst., at eight o'clock p.m. The meeting was a large one. Bro. W. Harper, R.W.M., presided, supported by his Wardens, J. McInnes, S.W.; W. Bisland, J.W.; Thos. Gordon, D.M.; D. J. Mitchell, Secretary; Jas. Stewart, Treasurer, &c., Bros. John Stevenson Kighland, Secretary No. 583, S. Australia and A. Ross, 1144, E. C., were among the visiting brethren. The lodge being opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed. The case of an American brother who was represented as being in distress, was brought up. Two brothers retired to have an interview with him, and, on their recommendation, he was temporarily assisted, and his case referred to the Provincial Grand Benevolent Treasurer for further consideration. The lodge was then raised to the Sublime or M.M. Degree, when two brethren of this lodge were raised thereto, Bro. Harper, R.W.M., officiating in his usual impressive way. This brought the business to an end, and the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE NEPTUNE (No. 419).—At the monthly meeting of this lodge on the 13th ult., there was a large attendance of members and visitors, the occasion being the annual visitation of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow. The deputation from P.G.L. consisted of the R.W. Master, Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson; Bros. J. B. Walker, Treas.; A. M'Taggart, Sec.; J. Gillies, S.D.; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; William Phillips, S.B.; and George Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of the P.G. Benevolent Fund. The deputation having been received with the usual formalities, and the R.W.M. of the lodge, Bro. James S. Scott, having acknowledged in customary form the supremacy of the P.G.L., the Secretary of the latter (Bro. M'Taggart) gave in the report of the deputation, which was to the effect that after a very minute scrutiny they had found that the books of the lodge were in very good condition, and that the latter was working, as heretofore, in accordance with Grand Lodge law. During last year the lodge had added to its funds the handsome sum of £25, had likewise distributed a handsome amount in charity, and had that night handed over to the P.G. Benevolent Fund the sum of £12 15s. So far as charity went, the P.G. Secretary said he could, without any reserve, congratulate the lodge, and they might rest assured that whenever they had any want or claim on the Benevolent Fund their appeal would have the very best attention. In reference to this fund, he added, he was glad to hear that there was a movement afoot to have an amateur dramatic performance in its aid, to come off in the autumn of the present year. Many well-known names in connection with such matters had cordially promised their best support to the project; and he was sure that if gone about as it ought to be, and would be, it must add to the fund not less a sum than £150. The R.W.P.G.M. then briefly addressed the lodge. It was the custom in the annual rounds of the P.G.L., he said, to examine the state of the books, which, generally speaking, was a very good index of the working state of the lodges. It was usual, too, for the P.G. Secretary to read the report of the same, and it had been usual that he (the speaker) should make some remarks thereupon. But he was happy to say that his worthy Secretary was not only able to write these reports but to make the remarks upon them as well. He (the speaker) was much away from home, and otherwise engaged, and it was a great comfort to him to know that he had such able office-bearers to conduct the business in his absence; and he took the opportunity of saying how very much he was satisfied with the services of his worthy Secretary, Bro. M'Taggart. After touching upon one or two points referred to in the Secretary's remarks, the P.G.M., in concluding, said that as to the question of benevolence, every Mason knew that that was their chief work, and therefore it was exceedingly gratifying to find that it had not been neglected by Lodge Neptune. Thereafter, the R.W.M. (Bro. Scott) having suitably acknowledged the visit of the P.G.L., three members of the deputation, namely, Bros. Sinclair, Balfour, and Phillips, were affiliated as members of No. 419 by Bro. M'Taggart, and the deputation then withdrew.

CATRINE.—ST. JOHN'S LODGE (No. 497).—The brethren of St. John's, Catrine, No. 497, celebrated midsummer St. John's-day, on Thursday, the 24th ult., by having an excursion to Dumfries. They started from the village in the morning, headed by the Catrine Bleaching Works Brass Band, and took the train at Auchinleck. They were joined by deputations from St. Barnabas, Old Cumnock, and St. John's, New Cumnock, also a number of brethren from other lodges. Having arrived at Dumfries, they were cordially received by a number of the brethren from the Thistle Lodge, Dumfries, No. 62. During the day they visited the various, we may say numerous, places of interest about the place. Dancing was enjoyed on the Bowling Green of the Asylum to the strains of the violin and flute, ably handled by Bros. Park, New Cumnock, and Hood, Catrine. After arriving at the Thistle Lodge hall, refreshments having been partaken of, dancing was again enjoyed until it was time to leave with the late mail train. In due time they arrived at Catrine, much pleased with the enjoyments of the day.

On the same day, another excursion of Freemasons took place from Auchinleck, Benquhet, and neighbourhood, to Dalmellington and surrounding districts. They were accompanied by their wives and sweethearts and the Auchinleck brass band. Having arrived at Dalmellington and getting refreshed, a beautiful walk was enjoyed through the grounds to the mansion-house of Craigengillan, in front of which a halt was made, and a number of tunes played by the band in beautiful style. Three Masonic cheers having been proposed and heartily given for Lady Cathcart, the party proceeded to Loch Doon by way of Ness Glen. The glen just now is clothed in its summer foliage, and it was a scene to be enjoyed by any one having a taste for the grand in nature, and on this occasion it was certainly all that could be desired. The loch having been reached, all enjoyed a couple of hours' rest or recreation, as they might choose. Opportunities were also afforded for dancing, &c. There was no lack of refreshments on the ground. The procession returned in the afternoon, many of them, we doubt not, tired, but all, we think, pleased with the day's enjoyment.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. ANDREW'S (No. 465).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 1st inst. in their hall, Gargad-road. The attendance was good. The lodge was opened by Bro. D. Reid, R.W.M., in his own place, James M'Leish, S.W.; G. B. Davidson, J.W.; W. Campbell, Sec.; Robert Donaldson, Treas.; J. Morton, S.D.; R. Bell, and others. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. Robert Godfray, Sec. 1074, E.C.; J. Lawrence, 134, New Jersey, U.S.A.; Wm. Price, P.M. 956, Natal, S.A.; J. Sheills, 270, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting, a special meeting, and the meeting for harmony to celebrate the Summer St. John's-day on the 24th June, were read and confirmed, and the lodge was raised to the sublime degree, when Bros. Peter Douglas, George Pirret, and John M'Farlane were examined on their progress in the previous degrees, and raised to that of M.M., Bro. Reid, R.W.M., performing the ceremony. Before closing the lodge the R.W.M., in warm terms, thanked the visiting brethren for their attendance. Bro. Godfray, 1074, E.C., replying that they had all felt very much pleasure at being present that night. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form.

CONSECRATION OF THE UNITED MILITARY LODGE (No. 1537.)

The consecration of the above new lodge, on Friday 2nd inst., was in every respect a most brilliant and imposing spectacle. The lodge being located at the new Masonic Hall, recently built by Bro. Plaisted, and adjoining his house, the "Sir Robert Peel," Anglesea Hill, Plumstead, and the hall not being finished, so far as the internal decorations are concerned, the brethren, under the guidance of the W.M. designate, and with a little outside assistance, covered the bare walls and ceiling with the "Union Jack" of old England, and many other "flaunting flags," the magnificent Royal banner covering the east. Upon the drapery of the walls were arranged numerous brilliant devices, formed of swords, bayonets, breastplates, and helmets, and other military trophies, while at intervals occurred prettily worked mottoes, such as "The Duke of Connaught," "Success to the Province of Kent," "God bless the Royal Grand Master." Above the chair, immediately facing the entrance, was a broad ribbon, bearing in gold letters the following, "Welcome, R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Major-General Brownrigg, C.B.," and when the brethren of the lodge, who are all military men, assembled in their places, backed up with a goodly muster of visitors, the coup d'œil presented was most imposing and picturesque. The Right Worshipful Bro. Major-General J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. Grand Master Surrey, assisted by Bro. the Rev. W. A. Hill, M.A., Prov. Grand Chaplain, Kent, and Bro. the Rev. E. L. Walsh, B.A., P.P.G.C., Essex, and Chaplain of the Forces at Woolwich, solemnly consecrated the lodge, and Bro. J. Bates, P.M. No. 1424, Brownrigg Lodge, installed, by special request, the W.M. Among the visitors were Bros. Major King, P.M. 706; Captain Phillips, P.M. 13; Major Saunders, P.M. 706; Captain Croisdale, P.M. 706; Captain T. Ward, W.M. 700; W. Tongue, P.M. 913; P.G.D. Kent; T. Smith, Sydney Lodge, P.G.W. Kent; Sydney Clarke, P.M. 706; Captain Donnelly, 706; Captain McLaughlin, P.M. 706; J. Rowland, P.M. 700; J. Henderson, P.M. 13; J. Jarvis, W.M. 1424; A. Penfold, W.M. elect, 913; G. Davis, P.M. 13; F. J. Dawson, P.M. 700; J. McDougall, W.M. 913; J. Hedley, P.M. 706; N. Norman, P.M. 913; C. Norman, P.M. 700; W. T. Vincent, J.W. 913; A. Jessop, Treas. 913; T. Butt, S.W. 700; H. S. Syer, Sec. 13; J. Thomson, Treas. 1424; H. E. Fowler, S.D. 1424; H. Lodge, I.G. 13; C. Jolly, 913; C. Morton, 700; C. Cook, 13; T. Hutton, 13; A. Duck, 913; W. M'Coy, 700; R. Barrett, 1424; J. Dickenson, 1424; C. Hulse, 1331; E. A. Cooper, 349 (S.C.); T. Swift, 829; H. Pryce, 913; J. Allen, 913; S. Crane, 1424; J. K. Anderson, 700; F. A. Wallis, 901; E. Palmer, 913; R. Beaver, 700; H. De Grey, 706; W. Lomax, 913, &c., &c.

The following brethren of the lodge were present:—F. G. Pownall, W.M. designate, W. Weston, G. Spinks, M. Murphy, T. Cooper, H. G. Picken, R. J. Lapham, D. Deeves, F. W. Sealy, W. Welding, R. Hill, J. S. Hill, B. Whittaker, J. White, E. Wright, F. Hambling, F. Buck, H. Carlin, H. Oakley, W. Jordan, H. Shaw, W. Pridgeon, C. Buckland, F. J. Warren, J. McKnight, W. Sale, W. Dixon, A. Scarth, T. W. Kirkbride, F. Tims, T. Sharpe, G. F. Pegg, J. W. Farr, A. Cox, J. Joseph, G. Kennedy, C. Glaysher, and others.

At half-past one the brethren and visitors assembled in the new lodge-room, and took the places assigned them by the Stewards, and the procession of consecrating officers and signing brothers shortly after entered, to the strains of a solemn march played by Bro. Glaysher, who, with a trained choir of the brethren, ably sustained the musical portion of the ceremony, assisted by Bro. C. Cook. Silence being proclaimed, the lodge was formally opened with solemn prayer and in due form, General Brownrigg being W.M.; Bro. T. Ward, W.M. 700, being S.W.; and Bro. Croisdale, P.M. 706, J.W. The Secretary then read the reply of the Grand Lodge to their petition, and in the name of the lodge requested the W.M. to proceed with the consecration.

After a prayer from Bro. Hill, G.C. of Kent, and a reading of a portion of the Sacred Law by Bro. Walsh, G.C. for Essex, the Installing Officer, Bro. Major General J. C. Brownrigg, delivered the following oration:—

Brethren:—At this period of the ceremony of consecration it is customary for the presiding officer to deliver an oration on the nature and principles of the Institution of Masonry. On this occasion, however, and under existing circumstances, I propose to depart from this rule, and instead of addressing you upon the grand principles of our Order, to call your attention more particularly to your position as a military lodge. The supposed origin of our Order, its antiquity, its charity, its power of doing good, its universality, have formed a theme for many illustrious writers, as well as orators, and it is therefore unnecessary for me to dilate upon all its excellences, the true appreciation of which you must look for in your own hearts, and the perfect application of which must be the guide of your lives. It is an essentially military lodge. I would venture to offer you a few words of remark and advice. I have reason to believe that regimental lodges are diminishing in number, and that the original warrants of many such have been either lying dormant for some time, or have been restored to Grand Lodge, and a little reflection will show us that this is not to be wondered at. The numerical strength of a regiment or battalion is hardly sufficient for the existence in it of a separate society, such as a Masonic lodge. A regiment is by its very composition and training, and habits, a society in which there is such a community of interests, identity of action, and close connection, that there is a great probability that a lodge may tend to create two parties in such a comparatively small body, which is clearly objectionable. There is likely to be the broad distinction between those who are Freemasons and those who are not; a distinction, which, when diffused over a larger body of men, with more separate individual and collective interests, would not be obvious, but which in a smaller body must become too strongly marked. Those who have seen the light and have enjoyed the privileges of Freemasonry, will perhaps view with feelings of commiseration, and almost contempt, those whom they consider still in darkness, whilst the others, who from want of inclination, or having other pursuits, may not care to join our fraternity, may not unnaturally ridicule our rules, our Masonic ceremonies, and our brotherhood. There would thus be an exclusiveness about Masonry which in so small a society might have a pernicious effect; but in a lodge constituted as this is I can imagine none of the evils to which I have alluded, whilst, if conducted as I have every reason to believe this lodge will be, the advantages may be most important. Situated in a large garrison, composed as it doubtless will be, with some of its members of a sufficiently permanent service to enable them to instruct the younger brethren who join it, and to keep up its traditions; there will still be a continuous gradual change amongst you, the stream will never stagnate, but ever proceed in a tranquil and harmonious current, instilling the principles of our Craft in the hearts of those who will carry them away as time flows on, and distribute them elsewhere, returning again, as I trust many may, to the fountain head, their mother lodge, with a store of experience and with a strengthened love of our Order which will qualify them to take their places amongst you as rulers. The short experience which has been afforded by the working of the lodge at Chatham, a garrison which in many respects resembles this, enables me to entertain a confident hope that this lodge may succeed and prosper to the full expectation and wish of us all. There is one caution I must give you, brethren—it may be unnecessary, and I hope it is, but as an old Mason and an old soldier I feel bound to utter it. Be most careful that your Masonic brotherhood never takes the form of favouritism in the discharge of your military duties. It must never be permitted in the smallest degree to clash with discipline. Although in our profession the extremes of our different ranks are very far apart, and the chain of our responsibilities very much extended, yet the links of that chain are so finely graduated that they almost merge into one another, and yet they are very distinct. We all know that the mere accident of a day, or in the wording of an order, may make one man superior in rank to another, although the actual military rank may be the same, and thus discipline requires that we should supervise and be obliged to report the shortcomings of those who may be junior in rank to us in a very slight degree. In such a case as this, brethren, should it unfortunately occur, you must never in the smallest degree screen or shrink from reporting an irregularity because an erring subordinate is your Masonic brother. Should you see that he is likely to commit himself, that he is becoming slack in his duty, intemperate in his habits, or in any other way backsliding, then step in as a brother and exert your influence by warning him, by reminding him of that responsibility he owes to the Craft; but if in despite of such warning he falls into error, remember that your Masonic obligations, as well your soldier's fealty, oblige you to do your duty, even though he should neglect your advice. Above all, brethren, let your Masonic characteristics have an influence on your conduct as soldiers. Let it be a matter of remark that those of your respective corps who are Freemasons are the smartest on parade, the most scrupulous in the discharge of all their duties, the most punctual, the most truthful, the most temperate, those whose language and demeanour towards their subordinates is most irreproachable, whose manner towards their superiors is most respectful. Let it not be said of you that Masonry is a mere name, an excuse for convivial meetings, but inculcate upon all who join our Order that their entrance into it imposes upon them fresh responsibilities to be good men and true. Let those who ob-jest to Freemasonry in the abstract be compelled to confess that, at all events, it produces a good effect upon the outer and inner life of those who are enrolled under its banners. Be careful of your funds; reserve your surplus for qualifying your lodge as Governor of the different Masonic charities. This is a far more creditable and useful mode than in squandering it in expensive refreshment. By a little present self sacrifice and economy in this respect you and your widows and children may some day find themselves much benefitted. There is one more subject upon which I should like to give you a hint. You all know that as in military life, so in Masonry, all politics, all subjects that are likely to produce warm discussion or difference of opinion, are forbidden. "Fear God, Love the Brotherhood, Honour the Queen!" Of those who are true to these watchwords, we admit all men irrespective of country or creed. Still, it is a well known fact that the Roman Catholic Church disapproves of our Masonic tenets. Now, brethren, I have known some very zealous and excellent Freemasons who are also Roman Catholics, and it may be that you have or may have such brethren amongst you; if so, I pray you to be careful not to put any pressure on them to join your lodge; let it be a matter exclusively for their own consciences. Should any such join you, and be afterwards influenced to withdraw their names from your lodge, abstain from all shadow of reproach against them! Depend upon it, all the hardness of the task of withdrawing themselves, all the bitter struggle, will be theirs, and you will best show your brotherly regard by avoiding one word of remonstrance, or reproach, which will only make their task a harder one! Brethren, I fear my oration savours too much of a sermon, but you will, I am sure, believe that my remarks have been dictated by my regard for you as brother Masons, and by my interest in you as brother soldiers.

The beautiful and magnificent ceremony was then proceeded with amid great solemnity, and the patriarchal benediction brought it to a conclusion. The installation of the W.M. designate, Bro. F. G. Pownall, was then proceeded with, Bro. J. Bates, P.M. of the Brownrigg Lodge, 1424, Chatham, performing the ceremony in such a manner as to surround it with unusual impressiveness, the several charges being uttered with thrilling effect. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was duly saluted in each degree, and proceeded to nominate his officers, as follows:—Bros. W. A. Weston, S.W.; G. Spinks, J.W.; the Rev. E. L. Walsh, Chaplain; Murphy, Treas.; Cooper, Sec.; Picken, S.D.; Shaw, J.D.; Lapham, I.G.; J. McCaffery, D.C. Several officers of the garrison who were present became subscribing members of the lodge. General Brownrigg and the Rev. W. A. Hill were elected honorary members, and a number of joining members and initiates were proposed.

The banquet was a most superb and recherché affair. General Brownrigg and his son were compelled to leave after the ceremonies, and the W.M. presided. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were eloquently given and heartily responded to, and during the evening the W.M. read letters of apology from Bros. Col. Goodenough, R.A.; Col. Field, R.A.; Col. Greville, R.A.; Pickard, V.C., R.A.; Boord, M.P.; Capt. Hugh Hallett, R.A.; Hervey, G. Sec.; the whole of whom expressed their hearty good wishes for the success of the lodge.

The W.M., in giving the toast of "Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and the other Officers of Grand Lodge," said he regretted the absence of Bro. Pattison, P.G.W. of England, who would have been present but for the death of an old and esteemed friend.

In proposing the toast of "The Prov. G. Master, Lord Holmesdale," the W.M. said he felt sure that there was not any ill-feeling on the part of the province because the warrant of the lodge had been sent to him instead of to the Provincial Grand Master, and read a letter from Lord Holmesdale of congratulation, hopes for the success of the lodge, and regret at his inability to be present.

The Rev. Bro. Hill, P.G.C., in reply to the toast of "The D.G.M. and the rest of the Officers," thanked them heartily for their toast, and said the Province of Kent stood second, or at least third, on the roll of the Masonic charities, for its contributions, and he hoped soon to have it A1. (Cheers.) Nor need they look upon that as an idle boast, for in no other province were the grand ideas of brotherly love, relief, and truth carried out more faithfully than in this province. He then alluded to the remarks of the W.M. as to the mistake made by the G.L. in respect to the warrant, and assured them that it was looked upon entirely as an oversight; the G.S. regarding it, no doubt, as a Metropolitan lodge, and that was how the mistake had arisen. He trusted they would attend the forthcoming festival on the 6th inst., and receive a hearty welcome at the hands of the Provincial Grand Officers. (Cheers.) He then spoke of the lodge, and said among them, and among soldiers generally, were men who bore upon their countenance the marks of strength, skill, and intelligence, and a dogged desire to do their duty to their Queen and country. He felt moved to say that such characteristics gave a tone and dignity to their work. No one could help admiring the splendid manner in which one of the most respected of their Order, Bro. Bates, had performed the installation ceremony. Masonry led them up, step by step, to a higher and a better life, and taught them to give play to all the good and Christian feeling of the heart; it taught them to fear God, honour the Queen, and love their neighbour as they loved themselves. He apologised for taking up so much of their time, and concluded by trusting they would go on and prosper. (Loud cheers.)

In response to the most enthusiastic reception of his name, as proposed by the I.P.M., Bro. Saunders, the W.M., said he felt greatly the high honour they had done him in receiving his name so flatteringly from P.M. Saunders, and the hearty reception they had given it; he thanked them, not only for placing him in the elevated position he was now in, but for the kind regard and esteem they had always evinced towards him. He would tell them the cause of the formation of the lodge, and they would remember the remarks of the Grand Master of Surrey, when he said that "military men were often from home upon outlying, or foreign stations," and many of them came to Woolwich from all parts of the world, India and elsewhere, and this lodge was formed for them to come to and join, so that they might not be severed and lose their connection with the Craft. This lodge was not intended for them to alter their connections with their mother lodges, but as a home for them while away from its shelter; he himself belonged to a civilian lodge, and he hoped to belong to it as long as he lived, but this lodge would receive all the military brethren who came from abroad, and required Masonic brotherhood and association, so long as their duties required them to remain here. He did not wish to take all the honours of the day to himself, and the preliminary steps were taken by others, and their thanks were especially due to Bros. Edwards, Weston, Spinks, Picken, Carlin, and several others who had worked hard for the foundation of the lodge (cheers), but since he had been asked to become the W.M., he had done and would continue to do all that lay in his power for its success, and continued prosperity. (Cheers.) The grand manner in which the P.G.M. for Surrey, Bro. General Brownrigg, had performed the ceremony of consecrating the lodge and the eloquent and impressive manner of Bro. P.M. Bates in the Installation, would, he felt sure, never be removed from their memories, nor must the remarks of the G. Master upon the necessity of assisting a poor and distressed brother he forgotten, for they were words that ought to be engraven on every soldier's heart who was a Mason. He then proceeded to read the letters of apology, and concluded by saying he looked upon them as a great honour both to himself and the lodge; he again thanked them very sincerely for the great honour paid him, and assured them in his hands the dignity of the lodge should, by the help of the officers, be fully sustained. (Great applause.)

The next toast was at of "The I.P.M., Bro. Major Saunders," who brie y replied. "The Visitors" came next, to which Bros. Major King, Hedley, Ward, McDougall, and Croisdale replied. Bro. Bates, as Installing Officer, received an ovation, and eloquently replied. The Rev. Chaplain, Bro. Walsh, in response to a most enthusiastic reception, feelingly replied. He said that, notwithstanding the many excellent addresses he had listened to that evening, he felt no reluctance in replying on this occasion, if it were only for the fact of hearing the most solemn obligation taken by their esteemed W.M., Bro. Pownall. He looked upon the solemn ceremony that he had seen, and the sublime ritual that he had heard that day, as the christening of the lodge. He had been sixteen years a Mason, and had never before seen the consecration of a lodge, and as one who had been in such a position, the grand ceremonies of the day came upon him with more than usual solemnity, and as long as he lived he should look upon Masonry in a more solemn and Christian light than ever he had hitherto; he looked upon it as the christening of the lodge, and the regeneration of its members into a new life, and he trusted it would lead them to a better and a nobler insight of the duties of a Christian and a loyal life, and so prepare them for that Grand Lodge above, that was the reward of a pure and good work done here below. He thanked them kindly for their recognition of his name. (Great cheering.)

Bro. Plaisted received great commendation for his truly Masonic spirit in building the lodge, and thanked the brethren for their good wishes. The next toast (was that of "The Officers of the Lodge," to which Bro. Weston, who on rising to respond was received most enthusiastically, briefly responded, and then the "Tyler's Toast" concluded a red-letter day in the annals of Plumstead and Woolwich Masonry.

The lodge was furnished by Bro. George Kenning.

CONSECRATION OF THE CHAUCER LODGE, No. 1540.

The consecration of this lodge was performed on Friday week at the Bridge House Hotel. The attendance of the brethren to witness the ceremony was very large, there being nearly 100 present. The room provided by Bro. Spencer, the proprietor of the hotel, was the beautiful ball room, which is capable of accommodating great assemblies. The consecrating officer was Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted by Bro. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, as Chaplain, and Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Secretary of Middlesex, as D.C. The S.W. chair was filled by Bro. the Rev. S. R. Wigram, Grand Chaplain, and the J.W. chair by Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer of Middlesex. Bro. Charles Lacey, Prov. G.D. Herts., acted as I.G. Bro. W. W. Kipps, J.W. 1531, presided at the harmonium. Among the other brethren present were:—

I. J. Hooper Wilkins, W.M. 73; T. Goldsbro, P.M. 201, P.P.G.S.W. Wales; G. Price, P.G. Treas. Surrey, P.M. 463; S. R. Wigram, P.M. 214; W. Henderson, I.G. 1050; C. Lacey, P.G.J.D. Herts, W.M. 1327; J. T. Moss, P.G.R. Middlesex, P.M. 169; E. E. Phillips, I.P.M. 379; H. Cator, 554; G. Free, P.M. Sec. 73; W. D. Slyman, W.M. 753; F. Brown, 174; W. Kipps, Org. 73, J.W. 1531; A. J. P. Stevens, D.C. 1298; H. J. Forsdick, J.D. 118, South Memphis, America; Rev. P. M. Holden, S.D. 907; S. M. Lazarus, P.P.G.S.W. Wiltshire; J. W. Baldwin, W.M. 1423; C. Pegler, 304; H. B. Pegler, 339; W. J. Warham, 1491; M. Pawley, J.W. 1414; A. Leuckard, P.G.A.D.C. Essex, W.M. 1000; N. Cockburn, 1414; J. W. S. Benjamin, 548; E. Palmer, P.G.S.D. Kent, P.M. 33; S. R. Ade, P.M. 315; F. Willard, 315; G. Broadbridge, 73; T. Robinson, P.M. 3; E. Mallett, S.D. 141; E. Clayton, 740; R. W. Price, 463; E. H. Thielley, S.W. 145; C. B. Payne, G. Tyler, P.M. 27; A. Woodford, P.G.C.; E. Howard, S.D. 181; B. J. Barker, 153; E. Harris, P.M. and Treas. 73; W. Lane, W.M. 28; J. Dixon, P.M. 73; H. Muggeridge, P.M. 715; J. Cunningham, P. Prov. G.S.W. Sussex; T. Trollope, P. Prov. G.J.W. Sussex; H. C. Levander, P.M. 517; H. A. Lacey, P.M. 1288; W. Worrall, P.M. 766; M. Scott, P.M., Sec. 765; F. Spencer, J.W. 1063; W. Hunter Cockburn; Walter Wood, 33; G. Kenning, P.Prov.G.S.D. Middlesex; and H. Massey (Freemason).

The following is a list of the distinguished brethren who sent letters of apology and regret for absence, expressing at the same time their hearty wishes for the success of the Chaucer Lodge:—The Lord Mayor, Bro. D. H. Stone, P.M., G.J.W.; Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D., Dep. G. Master, Middlesex; Sir J. C. Burrows, P.M. 811, P.P.G.W. Sussex; J. B. Monckton, P.G.D., President Board of General Purposes; J. L. Bridgen, P.M. 732, Mayor of Brighton; James Terry, P.G.D. of C. Herts.; V. Freeman, P.M. 732, P.P.G.W. Sussex; J. H. Scott, P.M. 271, Prov. G. Sec. Sussex; A. E. MacIntyre, Grand Registrar of England; W. H. Hallett, W.M. 731; C. Sandeman, W.M. 315; D. Rose, 73; S. Solomon, 732; John Savage, P.G.D.; Dr. O'Brien, W.M. 811; W. Smith, P.M. 732; J. Smith, P.M. 732, P.P.G.P. Sussex; T. W. P. Launson, W.M. 732, P.G.S. of W. Sussex; E. Martin, P.M. 732, P.P.G.D. Sussex; W. R. Wood, P.M. 63, 315, 811, P.G. Steward; A. German, P.M. 1466; Col. Burdett, P.G.W., Representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, Grand Master Middlesex; F. Davison, P.G.S.W. Middlesex; H. Dubois, P.M. 1423, P.G., A.D. of C. Middlesex; C. J. Smith, W.M. 1466; C. Allen, Mackney, Baker, Emery, D'Arcy, Martin, Wilson, Elliott, Herman, Harvey, Hawkins, Suffield, French, Edwards, Deffill, Markham, and a number of other brethren. The ceremony was conducted with all the usual formalities. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford delivered an oration, which will be found in another column. The appropriateness of the oration to the occasion will be seen at once. The lodge was originated by Bros. T. J. Sabine, James Cattle Mason, Edward Spencer Stidolph, and the other brethren named in the warrant, to perpetuate the connection of the poet Chaucer with the borough of Southwark, and they chose for the lodge's motto Chaucer's lines:—

"Sounning in moral virtue was his speche,
And gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche,

Trouthe and honor, freedom and curtesie."

And the appropriateness of the erection of the new edifice was the more apparent, as only a few days before the consecration of the Chaucer, the famous Tabard Inn, celebrated in the "Canterbury Tales," was demolished. The poet, therefore, is not left without a witness, independent of his writings, which must remain a specimen of the fine old Saxon language of which he was master, when even the borough of Southwark shall have undergone greater changes than it has seen in the last fifteen years. The Chaucer Lodge will be still further interesting, since by Bro. Woodford's research it is found the poet was a Freemason.

The ceremony, after the oration was delivered, was completed, and the installation of the W.M. was proceeded with. On presentation duly made Bro. T. J. Sabine was installed, and the brethren being admitted and the formalities customary on such occasions being properly observed, the W.M. invested the officers. Bros. J. C. Mason became S.W.; Stidolph, J.W.; W. Hudson (Brighton), Treasurer; F. Walters, Secretary; W. George Kemp, S.D.; Charles Hudson, J.D.; H. Faija, I.G.; Hawkes, D.C.; Hutch, Chaplain; Stedman, W.S.; and W. Y. Laing, Tyler Stewards for the festival offered themselves. Bros. Stidolph and Hawkes took the Benevolent Institution for 1876; Bro. Faija, C.E., the Girls'; Bro. C. Hudson the Boys'; and Bro. Mason the Benevolent for 1877.

A vote of thanks was passed to the consecrating brethren, and Bros. Hervey, Woodford, and Little were elected honorary members of the lodge, Bro. Hervey returning thanks. Propositions for numerous initiates and joining members were handed in, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, after closing the lodge. On entering the banquet room a very pleasing sight presented itself. With great taste Bro. Joseph Spencer, the proprietor of the hotel, had laid out three tables, splendidly decorated with fruit and flowers. At the head table, in front of the Master, was a decoration with the word "Chaucer," elaborately formed. Behind this was a plentiful show of fruit, with numerous bouquets; and on either side a vessel forming the foundation of an elegant and refreshing pillar of ice. The dinner, when the brethren were seated, was served à la Russe, and comprised all the delicacies of the season, and their excellence was added to considerably by some of the finest wines that could be procured, though with which Bro. Spencer's cellar abounds. The dinner occupied a considerable time, but it was so well served, in addition to being of such excellence, that the brethren were not wearied by the length of time occupied in consuming it. When at length the "cloth was cleared," as the phrase goes, grace was said, and the loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed. The W.M., of course, first gave "The Queen," and then "The Grand Master," in proposing the latter of which he referred to the scene at the Albert Hall on that day as never to be forgotten, and added that from the way H.R.H. then conducted business every Mason must feel convinced of the soundness of the choice the Craft had made; that he was a good and earnest Mason and meant well to the Craft. The W.M. was convinced that so long as the Prince of Wales was at the head of the Craft he would in every possible way endeavour to promote its best interests, sustain its popularity, and crown with success all the endeavours of individual Masons to support the charitable institutions.

His Worship's sentiments were greatly applauded, and the loyalty of the brethren received strong proof. Still, said the W.M., was there a more important toast to introduce, and this, he said, comprised three in one, the Prov. Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers. Of all of these he spoke with a personal knowledge of their worth and work, as sincere Masons, who never shrank from their duty, and who had the sincere love of all the brethren under the English Constitution. This reminded him of Bro. Hervey, Bro. Wigram, and Bro. Woodford, and gave him occasion to recall the beautiful work which had that day been witnessed in lodge, and which had afforded the brethren so much gratification. As the highest Grand Officer present, Grand Chaplain, the Rev. S. R. Wigram, responded, but apologized if there had been detected any rustiness in his working as S.W., for which office he had not been expected to be cast. The apology, however, was by no means necessary, for the work was perfect. The Grand Chaplain said he could not but be struck at the work which the lodge had commenced with, and foresaw that the W.M. was preparing a rod for the backs of his successors, inasmuch as the excellence of his work would keep the brethren who were aspiring to the chair fully occupied in acquiring the duties of W.M. He was, however, sure that the officers would not be backward in going up to the chair, and would do the best they could to follow in their W.M.'s footsteps. Then came the toast of "The Consecrating Officer, Bro. Hervey," whose valuable services that day rendered to the lodge would never be forgotten so long as there was a member of the lodge living who had had the good fortune to be present whilst the lodge was formally dedicated to Freemasonry. He was sure there would be handed down, from generation to generation, the memory of that auspicious occasion; auspicious in two senses—first, because it was the inauguration of a new lodge, and secondly, because it had commenced its career under such bright and brilliant circumstances. The fame of the lodge would be enhanced by the fact of so distinguished a Mason, so genial a man, and so kindly a Grand Officer as John Hervey attending to lay the first stone of the establishment. The lodge had been erected on a firm basis and a permanent foundation. Passing over further compliments in the presence of such a brother, whose fame was in all lodges, he refrained from gilding refined gold, but added that Bro. Hervey was a man thoroughly honoured and respected. He then proposed his health, and hoped, as all W.M.'s who have been honoured with Bro. Hervey's company have hoped, that they might frequently see him again as their guest. After due honours had been done to the toast the subject of it responded, expressing his gratification at the very roseate hue in which he had been painted by the W.M. He was pleased to think he had rendered some service, but could not claim all the performance to himself. Other brethren were associated with him in the performance, and they, as well as he, were as pleased as he to forward the cause they all had at heart. All had been delighted to hear Bro. Woodford's excellent address, and for Bro. Little, he looked upon him as his alter ego, for he was as capable of consecrating a lodge as himself. To turn from mentioning self, which was at all times an unpleasant task, he would, with the permission of the W.M., propose another toast for the brethren's acceptance. This was "The Health of the W.M., and Success to the Chaucer Lodge," and this gave him an opportunity of again thanking the lodge for conferring on him the distinction of being one of its honorary members. The W.M. was well known to the Craft, and by his efforts in its behalf had done it good service, and it gave him, as he had said in lodge, great pleasure to commit the warrant to his keeping. The lodge was numbered 1540, a long way down in the list; but if it followed the example of many that preceded it, it would rise to great eminence. The brethren who had become its officers were a guarantee of this, and would do their best for the charities of the Order, and for loyalty, which he looked upon not as loyalty to the Royal Family alone, but as loyalty to the Craft. It must have been in that sense that the Grand Master on the occasion of his installation used the words "Charity and Loyalty"—"charity" to the world in general; "loyalty" to the Craft. The W.M. replied. The lodge having no past he could not refer to the years gone by, nor to the Past Masters. He was therefore full of hope and confidence—hope that the brethren of the lodge would have generous consideration at the hands of their conferees among whom they worked; confidence that they would endeavour to deserve the good opinion of those among whom they worked. No effort would be spared on his part, or on the part of those who had been that day entrusted with office, to perform Masonry's true work. Alone, he was able to do nothing; but with his Wardens Deacons, Treasurer, Secretary, and I.G., he hoped to make the lodge a success. Established that day on historic ground, almost exactly on the spot where 500 years ago that first of English poets trod the roadway on his celebrated pilgrimage to Canterbury, of which he had left such excellent records behind, he trusted that the lodge would perpetuate his name for ages to come. It was a fact that on that day, while they were rearing that temple with Chaucer's name attached, the old Tabard Inn, from which the pilgrims set out on their notable journey to Canterbury, was being pulled down. Therefore he thought they had been employed in a good service to the neighbourhood in establishing a Masonic lodge. Referring to the lines from Chaucer given above, the W.M. said that when he presided as Master of the Mount Lebanon Lodge he had endeavoured to carry out his duties with "truth and honour, freedom and courtesy." Above all, he had endeavoured to perform the greatest of all duties—benevolence. He had had the honour of being a Mason twelve years. He had served nine Stewardships, and though he did not say this in a spirit of boasting, he was not tired of his course. Next Wednesday he hoped to carry up £500 to the Boys' School Festival. He trusted others would do likewise. Reverting to the subject of the lodge, he hoped it would have a bright future and would always hold out the right hand of fellowship to visitors. Next year he hoped to instal his successor in the chair, and on that occasion to have an equal number of visitors, whose health he now proposed. Bro. Isaac J. Hooper Wilkins responded, and concluded by wishing "Prosperity to the Chaucer Lodge, and may it Live Long and Flourish." At this point the W.M. asked the brethren to subscribe half-a-crown a-piece towards the relief of the distress caused by the recent inundations in France. This was immediately and cheerfully done, and £6 2s. 6d. was collected. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford proposed "The Charities," and drew attention to the fact that £25,000 a-year was collected for the Masonic Institutions. He refuted the doctrine of the Masonic Order being a rich order; for, though they had some members of rank and opulence among them, a very large majority were the great middle class, who had but small incomes to provide for their families. The greater credit was, therefore, due to them for so nobly supporting the charities. Although he was speaking in the presence of Bro. Little, there was no institution in this country which deserved more heartily the support of the Order at the present moment than the Boys' School. The boys educated there were the sons of our own brethren with whom we had sat down. We stood in loco parentis to these boys, and were bound to give them the best education we could. The Girls' School was second to none, and, speaking as an old clergyman, he did not know of another institution for girls in the country so well conducted. He had, also, nothing but praise to bestow on the Benevolent Institution for Aged Masons and Masons' Widows. Bro. E. H. Thielay thanked the W.M. and brethren on behalf of his distressed countrymen in France for the collection made on their behalf. Bro. Binckes responded for "The Charities." No such limited body as Masons contributed so largely to their institutions, which were a pride to the Order. In the presence of such brethren as those around him it was unnecessary that he should go through the various needs and deserts of those institutions. Suffice it to say that taking all three together there were some 600 individuals supported by them, who, but for them, would be left to the mercies of the cold world. Bro. Binckes afterwards noticed the new experiment of the Wednesday, and the alteration in the date of the festival, in the locale, and in the system of brethren dining alone. He volunteered to predict success for it, and believed that more than 600 would sit down to banquet at the Alexandra Palace. If it should be a success it would be the inauguration of a new régime, and he asked the brethren to endeavour to make it a success. In a pecuniary point of view he expected the Stewards' lists would rival the largest sum the institution ever had received. He concluded by thanking the brethren for having on this, their first meeting in the Chaucer Lodge, sent up Stewards to each of the institutions. After the other toasts had been disposed of, the brethren retired, having spent a delightful evening, which was enlivened by some charming singing and recitations by various brethren.

Masonic Tidings.

A full report of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk, by our own correspondent, will appear in our next issue.

ROYAL DRAMATIC COLLEGE.—The annual fête in aid of this Institution took place at the Alexandra Palace, on Saturday last, and, despite the very unfavourable weather, drew together a large attendance. The amusements offered to the public were of a varied description. Selections from a few of the most popular pieces of the present day were given, in which many well known artists sustained characters, Bros. James and Thorne appearing in "Our Boys." In the Great Hall, Mrs. Stirling, Miss Ada Swanborough, Miss Fowler, the Vokes family, and many others contributed a series of miscellaneous amusements.

NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—Among the valuable prizes at the forthcoming Wimbledon meeting is one for £20, contributed by the well known firm Messrs. Felton & Sons, proprietors of the popular "Specialité" Sherry, Albemarle-street.

The Prince and Princess of Wales will open the new branch establishment of the Kent Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Margate on Monday, the 19th inst.

We learn from Portsmouth that the Duke of Connaught proposes shortly to take a voyage in his yacht along the coast of Syria.

The Grand Lodge of Quebec have appointed Bro. George Kenning to supply the whole of the Grand Officers with the necessary clothing and jewels. This insignia, which is of a most elaborate description, will be on view, as soon as finished, at the Masonic Depot, Little Britain, and of this due notice will be given.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Star Lodge of Instruction, 1275, at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross Road, on Saturday, the 24th inst., by Bro. T. Pulsford, P.M. 1158, &c. Lodge will be opened at 6.30 precisely.

MOUNT LEBANON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 73).—The ceremony of consecration and installation will be worked in this Lodge of Instruction on Wednesday evening the 14th July inst., at 8 o'clock precisely, by Bro. Terry, P.M., P.Z., and Secretary of the Benevolent Institution, at Bro. Plock's, "Windsor Castle," 109, Southwark Bridge Road. Brethren are invited to attend; Masonic Craft clothing to be worn. This excellent Lodge of Instruction meets every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock; Bro. Noke, P.M., Preceptor.

A Concert will be given for the benefit of the widow of the late Richard Limpus, founder of the College of Organists, Organist of St. Michael's, Cornhill, and Provincial Grand Organist of Middlesex, at St. George's Hall, Langham Place, Regent-street. The following artistes have already kindly promised their assistance:—Vocalists: Miss Edith Wynne and Miss Annie Sinclair, Miss Julia Elton, Madame Poole, Miss Kate Wild, and Miss Palmer; Mr. George Perren, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. Stedman, Mr. G. T. Carter, Mr. Pearson, and Mr. W. H. Cummings. Signor Caravaglia, Mr. Thurlay Beale, Mr. Theodore Distin, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Instrumentalists: Pianoforte, Miss Ellen Day, Mr. Charles E. Stephens, and Mr. Henry Parker. Conductors: Mr. Ganz, Mr. Sidney Naylor, Mr. Walter Macfarren, and Mr. F. Kingsbury. A selection of glees and part songs will be sung by the gentlemen of the Choir of St. Michael's Cornhill. Prices of admission—Five Shillings, Three Shillings, and Two Shillings. Tickets to be obtained at Messrs. Cramer and Co.; Chappell and Co.; Boosey and Co.; Novello and Co., and of Mrs. Limpus, 41, Queen-square.

Bro. Frederick Kent, C.C., has received the diploma of Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

Bro. the Right Hon. George Ward Hunt, as First Lord of the Admiralty, has accepted the invitation of the members of the Navy Club to be their guest on Wednesday, the 28th inst., at Willis's Rooms.

Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, attended by the Hon. Alexander Yorke, left Windsor Castle on Wednesday for Boyton Manor, Wilts, to be present at the marriage of Bro. Collins, which took place on the 8th inst.

Bro. Captain Boyton paid a visit to Middlesborough on Wednesday, for the purpose of displaying his life-saving dress. Many thousands of visitors were attracted from the surrounding towns, the weather being very propitious. The captain repeated his evolutions, and during the hour occupied was loudly cheered.

A testimonial is about to be presented to Bro. H. W. Smith, of Seaham Harbour, on his leaving, after a residence in the town of forty-three years.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.—With respect to Bro. Perrot's circular, and Bro. Binckes' reply, we deem it to be in the interests of Freemasonry to publish neither. The matter has assumed a purely personal phase, which is unsuitable to the columns of the Freemason. With regard to the prizes, we have received two lists, which entirely differ, so we publish neither, as the number even of the names, is not the same.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW YORK.—Two capital engravings of the Dedication of the Masonic Temple in New York appeared in last week's issue of the Pictorial World.

MANSION HOUSE.—We are requested to state that the Lady Mayoress's receptions will be discontinued until further notice.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.—On Thursday last the great fête of the season was given in the Alexandra Palace, Madame Adelina Patti having consented to appear in connection with other members of Mr. Gye's company. In the evening there was a brilliant display of fireworks.

THE TOULOUSE FLOODS.—The Lord Mayor has received from her Majesty the Queen a cheque for £200 for this fund. Among the other principal amounts received at the Mansion House in respect of this fund were £400 from Lord Derby, £500 from Messrs. Fredk. Huth and Co., £100 each from Messrs. Heath and Co. and Mr. F. H. Dutton, £40 from Colonel and Mrs. Gordon, £26 5s. from Messrs. Veitch and Sons, and £20 from Mr. J. Dearman Birchall. The total receipts amount to nearly £6000.

The City of Carthage, which sailed from Liverpool for Calcutta on the 4th of June, arrived out [on Sunday, having made the quickest passage on record.

The consecration of the Liverpool Lodge will take place at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday the 14th. The Rev. J. F. Goggin, Past Prov. Grand Chaplain, Rector of Rufford, will be installed the first W.M.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—When the weather is hot it will be found that persons who suffer from swelled feet and ankles, varicose veins, ulcers, and sores of all kinds, and, in fact, from any skin disease, feel these complaints more troublesome and aggravating than at any other time of the year. They will soon find relief in the use of these remedies, for if the wounds or ulcers are dressed with this Ointment it at once soothes the irritability of the skin, causes the discharges to lose their acrimonious character, and lessens any inflammation that may be present. It cannot be too widely known that these twin remedies are the most powerful of anti-febrile and anti-inflammatory agents we possess.—ADVT.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DEVON.

A special Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon was held at Huyshe Temple, Plymouth, on Wednesday, for the purpose of consecrating "Prudence" Lodge, No. 1550. The originators of the latest addition to the Masonic strength of the West were Bro. R. G. Bird and Bro. J. P. Rogers, the first Master and Junior Warden respectively. Their exertions (aided by others, Bros. J. Gover and J. G. Avery among them) in the matter, have been most arduous for the last three months, but they have their just reward in the knowledge that the results have exceeded their most sanguine anticipations. The suggestion of a new lodge arose in consequence of its being found that the evenings on which other lodges held their meetings were most inconvenient for business men, who, absent during the early part of the week, returned to Plymouth towards the end. This lodge, therefore, is formed for the purpose of removing this inconvenience, and will hold its meetings on Fridays. The lodge has fixed its initiation fee at ten guineas and its joining fee at two guineas. At their first meeting they will initiate five brethren—the largest number they can admit on any one night—and the names of others are down for subsequent nights. Seven joining members will also be balloted for on the first night. When the lodge has reached a certain strength it is the intention to still further increase the fees. The first officers named on the warrant are R. G. Bird, W.M.; J. G. Avery, S.W.; J. P. Rogers, J.W.; J. B. Gover, Sec.; J. J. Avery, Treas.; R. B. Twose, I.P.M.; B. N. Westcott, S.D.; J. G. Keverne, J.D.; F. B. Bond, I.G.; Rev. J. Whitley, Chaplain; G. H. Emery, Organist; W. Garland, D.C.; C. Philip, A.D.C.; R. R. Pengelly, S.S., and W. B. Hambly, J.S.

The lodge having been opened in ancient form, the P.G.M. apologized for the delay occasioned by the railway accident, and then remarked that it was particularly gratifying to him to be called upon to consecrate so important a lodge as that which they were about to consecrate.

The new lodge was then ably opened by W.M. Bird, and Bro. Rogers, P.G.Sec., read the warrant from the Grand Master (H.R.H. the Prince of Wales) constituting the lodge, and the brethren of the lodge having assented to the nomination of the officers, P.D.G.M. Metham, at the call of the P.G.M. delivered the following oration:—

Right Worshipful Sir,—By your command I have undertaken the task which it has so often previously been my pleasing duty to perform of delivering the usual oration; a duty made on this occasion more onerous, as the same address must, from want of time, serve for both the Consecration of the Prudence Lodge and Huyshe Chapter. Unfortunately the duty is required of me at a time when I have been overwhelmed with most urgent and anxious engagements elsewhere, and I must ask the indulgence of the brethren if I am not able to place before them so concisely and clearly as I could wish, the important points on which I have to address them. But before all other topics I must speak of the honour done to our Craft by the acceptance by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales of the leadership of our Order. Who that witnessed that matchless spectacle will ever forget it; who is there "with soul so dead" as not, even now, to delight in conjuring up before his mind's eye that vast and grand picture in which figured all that is good, great, and noble in Masonry? Who is there so thoughtless as not to look beneath the surface and see, clear as the sun at noonday, that the many thousands who had gathered on that day from the north, the south, the east, and the west, the noble and the learned, the statesman, the minister of religion, the advocate, the physician, the merchant, the tradesman, the soldier, the sailor, and the sons of toil, came not only to do homage to a Royal Chief, all sufficient as such a season might, at any other time be esteemed. They came in their thousands to shout down the taunting cry, and unjust imputation that they were disloyal to the State or unfaithful to true religion. They came to show the whole world that the noble tree of Masonry was still sound to the core, and still more vigorous than ever, although one branch had unhappily fallen to the ground. It devolves now upon Masons to show not only in the lodge, but in society, and in their daily lives, of how noble an Order they are the members. Masonry has done much for you all, and she has a right to expect that you should do much for her. I come now to the best mode of ensuring such a standard of moral character in our members as shall enable us to maintain the proud position our Order has reached, and to prevent its retrograding. The indiscriminate, and often culpable manner in which unfit and unworthy persons are admitted into the Order, is doing the greatest injury, and will eventually sap its towers and undermine its foundations, unless all lodges unite in enforcing more stringent rules as to the admission of candidates. I have given long and serious consideration to the remedies requisite, and in my mind, they resolve themselves into two heads, pecuniary, and what is much more important, moral. I believe the fee for initiation should never be below £10 10s., and that every lodge should pay towards charitable objects, giving a preference to those of a Masonic character, at least 5s. for each member, independent of Grand Provincial, or Private Lodge subscriptions.

Secondly.—That every Master and his Wardens should be required to make themselves acquainted by private inquiry with the social position and moral qualities of every candidate for initiation, and whether he had ever been proposed in any other Lodge. That the name of no candidate who resides at a distance from the lodge in which he is proposed, shall be placed in the circular for initiation until the most searching inquiries have been made as to the reason why he was not proposed in a lodge nearer to his place of residence. That the Emergency Clause should be more rigidly enacted. That every candidate should pledge himself not to use the Masonic emblems on any sign-board, flag, card, or paper connected with his calling.

That no member of a lodge who has compounded with his creditors, shall be allowed to continue as a subscribing member until his debts have been paid in full.

Such, my brethren, are some of the suggestions I would offer for the adoption of those lodges which sincerely desire to sustain the dignity and integrity of the order.

I turn from that which is at all times an unpleasant task to one more consonant with Masonic feelings and particularly congenial to myself. I allude to that splendid display of Masonic benevolence which the United Provinces of Devonshire and Cornwall made on the occasion of his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh placing the memorial stone of the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, with which I am so personally and intimately connected. In private lodges and to private members of the craft, I have had some opportunities of expressing my grateful thanks for that munificent contribution, now amounting, with other donations from other parts of England, to nearly 1,250 guineas, including 25 guineas from the Royal Patron of the Fund H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master. I eagerly embrace this opportunity of thanking you, and I cannot express how sincerely. The impression made on the public mind is favourable to Freemasonry; its benefits will be felt by many an orphan of our brave but unfortunate brethren whose lives may be sacrificed. It is right that you should know that during the late election, out of 150 candidates, there were no less than three orphans of our deceased brethren, of whom two were elected, and the other, who was only brought to our knowledge at a very late period, by the W.M. of the lodge at Weymouth, Br. Hooper, son of our esteemed Br. Hooper, of Exeter, will, I trust, by your votes be elected next year. And now Worshipful Sir and Brethren, I earnestly commend the good work in which we have been engaged to-day to the care of Him who is the ruler and architect of this as of all works.

The Master and members of the new lodge having pledged to obey the laws and constitution of the Grand Lodge, the P.G.M. declared the "Prudence" Lodge regularly and duly constituted, and proceeded with the impressive ceremony of consecration, in which he was assisted by P.G.S.W. Col. Elliott, and P.C.J.W. I. Latimer, the Revs. T. W. Lemon, and the Rev. G. Whitley, P.G. Chaplains. The musical portion of the ceremony was effectively rendered by a small choir, Bro. Emery presiding at the harmonium.

The lodge having been closed in due form, several of the brethren adjourned to an adjoining room, where Bro. R. G. Bird was installed W.M. of "Prudence," and he afterwards appointed his officers as stated above.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF DEVON.

Immediately afterwards the Provincial Grand Chapter of Devonshire met for the consecration of the "Huyshe" Chapter, 1099, under the presidency of the Rev. J. Huyshe, G. Supt. of R.A. Masons. The beautiful consecration ceremony was wanting in nothing to give it that solemnly impressive character which marks it. The chief burden, of course, fell upon the G. Supt., but he received valuable assistance from Principals Metham, H., and Rogers, J. The officers appointed to the new chapter were Pr. Brown, Z.; Gillman, H.; and Blackhall, J.

The ordinary business of Grand Chapter was then transacted. Scribe E. (Comp. Rogers) having reported a balance in hand of £63, some time was occupied in disposing of it amongst various charities. Comp. Rodda mentioning that Comp. Curteis had become a steward of the Masonic School for Boys, for the present year, moved that Grand Chapter had the privilege of being represented on his list. Comp. Du Pre seconded this. Prin. Rae proposed that the sum be twenty guineas, but this was lost. Finally a sum of fifteen guineas was granted, on the motion of Comp. Colonel Elliott (Comp. Rodda withdrawing the original motion), to Comp. Curteis for the Boys' School.

On the motion of Comp. Harris, 20 guineas was voted to the Fortescue Fund; and at the suggestion of Comp. Jones, seconded by Comp. Gover, 10 guineas were voted to the Masonic School for Girls. Comp. Leigh moved that 10 guineas be given to the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, Stoke, which was still in want of £1,500. Comp. J. Harris asked if this was not the same institution to which the Freemasons had given £1,250. He did not anticipate that any other claim would be made on them, especially as it was an institution outside Masonry. Comp. the Rev. J. Whitley contended that nothing that was good and honourable, and no effort which had for its object the relief of the distressed and especially the succour of the orphans was outside the principles of Masonry. (Applause.) The motion having been carried with one dissentient, Comp. Metham heartily thanked the brethren for another proof of their interest in an institution he had so much at heart. It too, had enabled Masons to erect a memorial to the world. Twelve months ago he believed that if he could raise from the brethren £200 it would be a great thing. Later on it was his hope that they would contribute one-eighth of the cost; but now he was glad to tell them that with what was promised the Freemasons would raise one-fourth part of the £6,000 expended on the extension of the Asylum. (Applause.)

On the motion of Comp. Leigh, two guineas were voted to the Masonic bed at the Royal Albert Hospital.

The Grand Superintendent then proceeded to appoint his officers for the ensuing year, Comps. Metham, H.; Rogers, Scribe E.; Captain Keyworth, J.; Burden, 303, Scribe N.; J. P. Phillips, P.S.; Godstchalk, S.B.; Dr. H. Woodgates, G.Reg.; Emery, O.; Wolloughby, A.S.; and Twose, D.C. Comps. W. Joll had previously been elected as Secretary, and J. Harris and T. S. Bayly as Auditors.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1875.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE CHAUCER LODGE.

The consecration of this new lodge took place, according to the report elsewhere, on Friday last, under very favourable auspices. There was a numerous attendance of the brethren, in a very handsome room; all the ancient ceremonies were duly performed, under the presidency of our distinguished Bro. J. Hervey, Grand Secretary, with his two assistant officers, Bros. Little and Woodford, and the proceedings passed over prosperously and satisfactorily. In compliment to the old poet, the new lodge being in Southwark, not far from the site of the original Tabard Inn, adopted the time-honoured name of Geoffrey Chaucer, and we think very opportunely and wisely. For speculative Freemasonry always does well, in our opinion, when it connects itself, more or less directly, with those elevating acts and civilizing labours, which tend so greatly to the onward progress and peaceful victories of mankind. Since the days when Chaucer penned his famous lays, at least 400 years ago, what mighty changes have passed over this world of ours, and what struggles, and advances, and ameliorations, have successive generations witnessed, in all that renders life endurable and comfortable, attractive, and welcome. No longer for the most part spent amid the more degrading aspects of barbarous existence, this earth of ours to-day seems to manifest everywhere the upward condition of civilization and education! There is much no doubt to condemn, and more to deplore, alike in social anomalies and passing habits of life, modes of thought, the turbid passions, the fleeting pageantry of the hour. But yet his must be either a very cynical or morbid mind, or he must take a very imperfect view of things, who does not and will not admit, that amid much that is sensational and startling, and more that is saddening and sorrowful day by day, there are yet tokens of the gradual improvement, alike of individual tastes and of national feelings. And it seems to us that amid the rolling cycles of time, which have left us since the hour that Chaucer, for instance, gave us his happy thoughts and quaint expressions in the then Anglo-Saxon vernacular, the voice of the poet especially has ever been distinctly heard above the din of men, and over the strife of tongues, uttering words of gentleness and fancy, of sympathy and goodness, of purity, honour, truth, and right, for the elevation of our struggling race, and for the spiritual improvement of the world. We commend, then, warmly the idea, whose soever it originally was, which induced Bro. Sabine and his officers and brethren to give to the new lodge the name of Chaucer. We are glad to see another vigorous offshoot of our old and grand Masonic tree "taking root downwards," and, let us hope, "bearing fruit upwards," especially in so important a portion of our Metropolis. For we are amongst those infatuated persons, as some would term us, who believe in Freemasonry, both in the propagation of its principles, and the development of its moral and peaceful influences. We do not wish to take too high a ground, or claim too great a scope for its labours and its lessons; we equally object to rhapsodical utterances, and untenable assertions; but we think we are warranted in saying this much, that every lodge, fitly presided over, properly worked, and composed of congenial elements, may be an instrument, providentially, of much intellectual, moral, and civilizing good! It is true that we have nothing very new to announce, and like the famous sufferer of old, ours may fairly be the response to-day, "Story, God bless you, I've none to tell you, Sir." For ours are only old-fashioned truths, and antiquated moralities; we proclaim reverence to our Maker, and loyalty to our Queen; we ask for due respect to constituted authority, obedience to our laws, and avoidance alike of seditious aims, or revolutionary tendencies. We want no definition of personal belief, we respect the right of conscience, we uphold liberty of opinion, free discussion, and we denounce persecution, whether sectarian or pseudo-religious, of every kind. We are a religious, a peaceable, a good feeling, a loyal, a benevolent, a liberal-minded, a tolerant fraternity, and when we have said this we have not much more to say. We welcome all good men and true within our pale, not asking them "how do you believe, or what do you believe," contented so long as agreeing together in humble acknowledgment of the Great Creator and Father of all, and sympathizing with the brotherhood of our fellow children of the dust, we seek in the works of heartfelt charity and good will, to assuage the contentions, to soften the acerbities, to relieve the distresses, and to lessen the calamities of our common earthly inheritance. And here we stop to-day, congratulating Bro. Sabine and all the members of his lodge on their auspicious start in Masonic life, proposing next week to call attention to the weighty words and sound seasonable advice which fell from the lips of Bro. Hervey, as Consecrating Officer of this, one of the youngest of the many promising numbers of our rapidly increasing Masonic family.

MASONIC SYMPATHY.

Old John Wesley made a great use, in his early teaching at any rate, of the duty and importance of sympathy. He worked, so to say, upon a long neglected mine deeply lying in the heart and emotion of his hearers, and we have always felt that many religious teachers might now-a-days well follow in his steps, and even improve upon his endeavours. For curiously enough, despite our habitual coldness and inconsiderateness for each other here, our want too often of hearty interest in the welfare and griefs, the trials and joys of our fellow creatures, we all of us often require sympathy ourselves at many times and at many crossings of our journey of life. It has been said, and probably truly, that we all have more sympathy for others than we are aware of, and that it only requires to be stirred and evoked in order to be manifested more clearly and fully in us all alike. There may be some truth in such a statement as regards us all in our psychological formation, and our individual temperament, but yet, on the whole, we are inclined to believe that sympathy, like every other grace, if implanted in us by our Divine Creator, has to be educed and expanded, and invigorated, and trained under a higher power, by the needs and claims, the duties and responsibilities of life. We all of us have experienced times when sympathy is very needful and very refreshing to us. In the first moments of personal bereavement, in the full flowing tide of heavy sorrow, in the pressure of adverse circumstances, in the cruel tortures of calumny, in morbid moods, and in lonely cares, how pleasant it is to listen to the always tender accents of true and faithful sympathy? Then it is that we rejoice to think that God has given us those who cheer our anxieties, who lessen our woes, who repair our misfortunes, who soothe our wounded or complaining spirit with all that graceful charm which sympathizing friendship can offer to lighten the dark clouds of trouble, or smooth away the rugged corners of the road on which we all are travelling now. And some of us have found in Freemasonry a brotherly good will, affection, and interest, the truest expression of personal sympathy and kindly concern. It is one of the great charms of Freemasonry, that it conciliates firm friendships amongst men of diverse views and beliefs, and that it serves often to quicken in us all alike, these sympathetic evidences of friendly concern and friendship, which if they belong to us all more or less alike, we too often allow to "rest," so to say in "abeyance," or to be forgotten in stoic indifference. Yes somehow Freemasonry often aids to kindle a fire where none has burnt vividly before, and to evoke for us all alike, those living and active exertions of friendship, interest, and good will which serve more than anything else to render human life enjoyable, and to work out all the nobler characteristics of the human race. How many fast friendships has Freemasonry cemented? How much undying sympathy has it brought to light and perfection? And after all no nobler or better expression of our true individual life, and our purely personal showing can be aimed at, or believed in, or worked out by any of us. To sympathize with our brother, to believe in his truth and honour, and good repute, to smile on his efforts, to encourage his toils, to uphold his good name, to vindicate his upright character, to rebuke the slanderer, and the maligner, who like gad flies both buzz and sting, is indeed the true work of Masonic sympathy. To feel for each other here, to grieve with the calamities, to rejoice with the successes of humanity, to mourn over grievous wrong, and to uphold manfully the right, in season and out of season, never to desert a good cause, and ever to sympathize with all that is pure, and peaceable, and righteous, and of good repute, is the duty of every true Freemason. While then we all sympathize warmly with each other, and learn even to sympathize more and more with each other, let us never be ashamed boldly to discountenance vice and wrong, injustice and villany, under whatever names they may be cloaked among men, and let us, we repeat, have a fellow feeling from the bottom of our hearts, not only for our friend and our brother, but for everything here that lends dignity to virtue, and gives consistency to truth.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL FOR 1875.

When these lines meet the eyes of our readers the Anniversary for 1875 of this most important institution will be a thing of the past, let us hope, "though lost to sight to memory dear." As we pen these words to-day, the result of the "coup de Binckes," to which he himself humorously and vivaciously alluded at the Chaucer Lodge gathering, amid the applause of the brethren, is still enveloped in the haze of uncertainty. Bro. Binckes, in his animated address last Friday, seemed to anticipate a very great success, and we sincerely trust that his legitimate anticipations tions may be perfectly realized, and his strenuous exertions fittingly rewarded. But it is hopeless for us now to moralize, or to dwell on what will be, for when our brethren look down this column all will be settled and ended, whether for good or evil, whether for failure or success. Bro. Binckes alluded also, last Friday, to what some termed his revolutionary proceedings, first in going to Muswell Hill at all, and secondly, in introducing our sisters to share in the festival programme. "No longer," said our brother, in a burst of poetic fervour, "are we to look up to them at a dim distance; in this age of progress and expanding civilization we ask them to come down to us from those inaccessible regions, and grace the genial board, and sit happily and confidently by our sides." No wonder that the brethren loudly applauded the speaker, and we observed one or two of the elder brethren amongst us, married men though they be, very demonstrative. We are inclined to agree with Bro. Binckes. In the first place, there is no objection to Muswell Hill Masonically. "High hills" are old places of assembly for Freemasons, and as regards our sisters, we think the time has come when the exclusion of ladies from our greater gatherings should no longer be insisted upon as "de rigueur" by Masonic rules and regulations. If Bro. Binckes has never any other faults found with him than by those who really are the "wet blankets" of all Masonic meetings, the "stumbling blocks" to all Masonic improvements, he will do very well. We believe, ourselves, that in this development of the anniversary meeting, in the assembling of sisters and brethren all interested in the welfare of a most admirable educational institution, Bro. Binckes is wise in his generation, and, knowing how to sail on the "ebb tide" of general Masonic feeling, will be waited on favouring trade winds, to a haven of success and reward. No doubt some of our ancient brethren, and some of us ourselves, let us be honest, in the matter, have objected to the presence of ladies. The dear creatures do so attract and please, they make so "much of the running" to use a sporting phrase, that we lords of the creation often have to pale our puny fires before the scintillations of woman's wit, her loving heart, and her graceful goodness. But yet surely our male exclusiveness is a great mistake. For the Boys' School, as Bro. Binckes properly said, our sisters have laboured, for it they work, for it they collect, and why should they be debarred from the pleasures of the festival day, when, let us hope they may be led, by the sights they witness, and the words they hear, to increase their kindly sympathy and interest in Freemasons and Freemasonry. Who knows what fates may be decided, in the full flow of aerated and cooling liquids, amid the echoes of music, during the intervals of the speeches. Bro. Jones will have made the rash plunge, in an unguarded second, and his Medora will have not said no. Bro. Robinson will find the agreeable little widow, more agreeable than ever, and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will soon announce "No Cards." Bro. Brown will have fallen at last before the wiles of azure eyes and golden curls, and his friends Bros. Figgins and Jackson will declare that he's "gone and done it." For all this and much more Bro. Binckes is responsible, and an indulgent Order will no doubt at the fitting time ask for a full explanation from him. We are happy however in being able to state that the Stewards' lists on the occasion amounted to the handsome returns of £12,700 os od. We congratulate Bro. Binckes. We shall recur to the subject in our next.

THE RECENT FLOODS IN FRANCE.

As Freemasons we always sympathize deeply and truly with the trials and afflictions of humanity. In this view we fully endorse all that is so well said by a correspondent in The Freemason. Every now and then there come before us, in this great and living world of ours, at home and abroad, before our doors, or in some distant land, sad evidences of wasting and destruction, of calamity and misery, brought about by the convulsions of nature, so to say, or by some fearful exhibition of unavoidable disaster. An earthquake submerges a whole town and population, a fire levels to the ground the houses of thousands, a reservoir bursts its bounds, carrying death and destruction amid peaceful myriads, or a river overflows its banks and sweeps all before it in its resistless strength, overthrowing the works of many hands, and causing a watery grave to many old and young. At this moment a portion of the fair land of France, Toulouse, is suffering from the terrible inundation caused by the overflowing of the Garonne. Houses are dismantled and destroyed, cottages are in ruins, a large number of human beings have perished in the surging waters, and more than one noble and gallant Frenchman has fallen at the post of duty in the endeavour to save some sinking fellow-creatures. A large number of the industrious population are now homeless and penniless, their tenements and furniture swept away and destroyed, probably many savings of years gone never to return, and the French Government and the French people are manfully endeavouring to meet this great disaster, in a spirit of energy and liberality which deserves all praise. It seems to us that our Masonic Lodges may fairly make a lodge collection for the sufferers and send it to our worthy and estimable brother, the Lord Mayor, at the Mansion House, for our French brethren and sisters across the Channel. The W.M. of the Chaucer Lodge inaugurated, happily, his new regime by a small but successful "whip" for the occasion, and if every lodge will do the same, leaving each brother to give what he can afford, a considerable sum will be raised for the relief of a suffering and industrious population. We in England, have, in truth, much of admiration for our Gallican neighbours. We admire their geniality of spirit and their animation of character, we respect the courage they shew in adverse circumstances and their happy endurance of dark and dangerous days. We recognize their many claims to warm sympathy and friendly good-will, and now that their industrious and kind-hearted population is suffering from the direst calamities that can afflict humanity, the feeling of every Englishman, and the wish of every Freemason will be to offer them both ready and hearty co-operation, and to hold out to them the kindly hand of fellowship and relief. We hope that our views may be seconded by our benevolent fraternity, and we shall be glad to announce in the Freemason any contribution to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the speedy support and assistance of so many suffering fellow-creatures in France.

PROVINCIAL FUNDS.—III. CORNWALL.

In the good province of Cornwall the annual income seems to be about £230 per annum, more or less. This amount is made up to the close of the financial year, July, 8th, 1875, of the following items:—Balance, £64 13s. 2d.; collection in church, £13 15s. 0d.; fees of honour, £18 18s. 0d.; lodge dues, £133 7s. 6d.; dispensations, £5—in all, £230 18s. 8d. The expenditure is as follows:—Donation to vicar of Bodmin, one-fifth of collection, £2 15s. 0d.; East Cornwall Hospital, £5 10s. 0d.; Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund, £6 10s. 0d.; Cornwall Annuity and Benevolent Fund, £25 os. 0d. donation to the Royal Orphan Asylum, £10 10s. 0d.; Relief to a brother and a widow, £4 os. 0d.; two brethren, £20 os. 0d.; special expenses, £47 17s. 4d.; ordinary expenses, £64 1s. 5d. This last sum is no doubt increased by the great gathering at Plymouth, 14th August last year, to greet our Royal brother the Prince of Wales. The balance for the year is £49 4s. 11d. in favour of Prov. Grand Lodge. The Province of Cornwall has also £2,000 funded for its Annuity and Benevolent Fund, which does not appear in the Financial Statement of the Prov. G. Lodge. It was established in 1864, and is supported by the voluntary subscriptions of the brethren, each lodge electing a Steward to collect the subscriptions. It now supports 4 annuitants of £20 each for life, and it is also intended, we understand to aid the education of children, and the relief of widows of Cornwall Freemasons. There are now 24 lodges in the Province of Cornwall, and 1340 members. In 1874 there were 177 initiations. The province has 68 votes for the Girls' School, 191 for the Boys' School, 118 for aged Masons, and 121 for the Widows, in all 498 votes. Our worthy Bro. W. J. HUGHAN, takes a very active part officially in all that relates to the charities, and the voting for these institutions, following the wise example of West Yorkshire.

HOW MASONS ARE MADE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to supplement the letter of "L. of L." in to-day's issue with a few remarks.

Although I agree with "L. of L." that the balloting for non-resident persons is a fruitful source of the admission of unfit members, and think that the instance he records is of such a disgraceful character that the P.G.M. of W.L. should give it more than a passing consideration, yet there are other causes of the introduction of unsuitable individuals which merit attention, and I may add that if the P.G. Lodge could carry out the admirable suggestions contained in the three resolutions proposed by L. of L. I feel satisfied that they would effectually grapple with the difficulty, and do much to re-establish Masonry in the eyes of the more respectable. There is no doubt but that this matter is pressing itself to the front in the minds of all earnest and zealous Masons—the rapid increase of individuals who would not, as L. of L. says, ever have dreamed a few years ago, of gaining admission into the Order. If you admit one or two unsuitable men into a lodge you probably shock the feelings of a dozen good members, and by not attending the lodge meetings they permit the lodge to be made use of in introducing others of the same class, and it thus becomes infested with and governed by unmasonic Masons, and the result is lavish expenditure, neglected charities, internal division, and a legacy of widows and orphans.

I may say that nearly all the cases within my personal knowledge that have become burdens upon our Masonic charities or private benevolence have been the widows and children of those who did not attend their lodges, who would not contribute to the charities, and against whom there was prima facie evidence that they were not fit and proper persons to become a Mason.

The source of injury to the Craft that I wish to point out, in addition to the one of proposing non-resident persons, is in Secretaries and Masters of lodges not making inquiries, or in not using the knowledge they possess respecting the suitability of joining members or persons who have been rejected in other lodges.

I will mention a few cases in connection with a lodge in West Lancashire to which I belong, and which will serve to illustrate an evil that will be more or less patent to the minds of most Masons.

We have had individuals rejected in our lodge accepted in others without any inquiry, and joining members accepted by others who were known to be in arrears with us, without a word of inquiry from the Secretary or W.M.; in fact, Mr. Editor, with the exception of one lodge from the South of England I do not remember that we have had an official inquiry respecting one who has been rejected or a member who was in arrears. This shows a very lax system as many for whom quarterages have been paid to the Grand Lodge and P.G. Lodge before they were removed from the list of members have and can obtain admission into other lodges without difficulty. I will instance a few cases. No. 1 was notoriously in arrears with us, and it was known to many members of another lodge, but he was accepted by them without hesitation. No. 2 was a source of trouble to us and in arrears; he was accepted about two years ago by another lodge, and has not paid them his joining fee or subscription since. No. 3 accepted as joining member, in arrears with us. No. 4 rejected by us, accepted without inquiry by another lodge. The above and many other cases could be given which have occurred within a short period, all showing great inattention or culpable negligence. It is sad to think that lodges should close their eyes to the Masonic antecedents of a member, for if he is in arrears with one lodge he will certainly not be an acquisition to another. I might add to the resolutions proposed by L. of L. that if a lodge accepts as a joining member one who is in arrears with his mother lodge that the lodge he joins should be made responsible for such arrears.

I am, yours fraternally,

QUEEN.

THE FLOODS IN FRANCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The sad reports which, since more than a week, we daily read in the papers of the terrible disaster caused by the inundation of the rivers in the South of France, should remind us of our Masonic duty to carry one of our great principles into effect, viz., charity. Masonry is universal, and, consequently, our Masonic duties are of an international character.

I think it only wants an application to the generosity and human feeling which is so remarkable throughout the Craft, and every brother will give to the best of his financial position.

I am convinced if you, dear Sir and Brother, would announce the opening of a subscription list in the Freemason's publishing office, your endeavours would be crowned by a desirable result, and you would speedily be able to make some fair remittance to the Paris Central Committee.

Believe me, dear Sir and Brother, very fraternally yours,

M. KLEIMENHAGEN,

FREEMASONRY AT JERUSALEM.

We have been requested to publish the following:

Royal Solomon Mother Lodge, No. 293,

Jerusalem, May 25th, 1875.

HENRY MAUDSLAY, Esq., C.E., &c., &c.

Institution of Civil Engineers,

Westminster, London.

Dear Sir and much esteemed Brother,—At its meeting of May the 20th, this Royal Solomon Mother Lodge, of which you are an honorary member, instructed me to address you a copy of the vote of thanks passed on February the 3rd, 1875, and recorded in the minutes of this lodge. It gives me great pleasure indeed to communicate the same, adding to that my personal greetings and sincerest thanks.

Said vote of thanks, read by Bro. Berghien, the Senior Warden, ran thus:

"I believe I shall be acting in accordance with the sentiments of the members of this lodge by rising to propose that a vote of thanks be recorded to Bro. Henry Maudslay, who, to our regret, is about to leave Jerusalem. Our thanks are due to Bro. Maudslay not only for the honour he has done us by joining our lodge as an honorary member, but are due to him for the great and good work he has done in and to the lodge. The position of the lodge a few weeks ago was very precarious, and had it not been for Bro. Maudslay, as far as I see, the consequences would have been such as to have made the heart of every true Mason sorrowful. We have to thank Bro. Maudslay for the anxiety he has shown, the trouble and pains he has taken in re-establishing, as it were, our young lodge, and placing it in its present footing and organization.

"I am sure each of us feels personally grateful to him for the good and sound advice he has so kindly given us, and to that we hope to show when he revisits us that his advice and his counsel had not been given in vain.

"We greatly regret his leaving us, and we shall always look forward to his seeing us again, and that soon.

"In wishing him God speed, a safe and pleasant long life and health, let us assure him that we shall always bear a grateful remembrance of him in our hearts."

Hoping this will meet and find you in perfect health, I avail myself of this opportunity to reiterate to you my best regards and the sentiments of high consideration.

Yours, in brotherly love,

SERAPION MURAD,

J.W. and Sec.

P.S.—Having received my leave of absence for twelve months, I shall leave Jaffa on the 5th of June for Berlin. Address: Foreign Office, Berlin.

"TEMPERANCE."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me to remind our brother "South London" that "Temperance" is not only the rule in every lodge, but, as one of our four cardinal virtues, is an integral part of the very system of Masonry.

If instead of "Temperance" our brother means "Teetotalism," I would remind him that this is as much alien to the spirit of Freemasonry as the other is an essential part of its teaching. Freemasonry gives to every brother the liberty of ruling his own actions, but not those of his fellows.

At the same time let me tell our brother that if side by side with total abstinence in himself he can tolerate moderation in the brethren who sit beside him, he may feel at home in any and every Masonic lodge.

I might add that I have myself been a total abstainer for a long period, and further, that I was such when initiated—since that day I have been in many lodges and Grand Lodges, and that, whether ruling, working, or visiting, I have never found any brethren interfere with my own practice, nor have I found it interfere with them.

Yours, Dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally, P.M. &c.

MASONIC ARCHAEOLOGY.

Observing the remarks on this subject in the Freemason of June 26th—"May I ask how comes it, if our Freemasonry dates from Hiram Abiff, that there are numerous accredited instances, relied on throughout the Craft as veritable, of the lives of English Freemasons having been saved, or spared, on their making the proper sign to Hindus—for the latter have never had any knowledge of Hiram Abiff?"

The explanation is simple, and, if doubted, let the doubt be accompanied by a reference to all that is known of Hiram Abiff, through sacred or profane history. The explanation is simply this: that Hiram Abiff derived his knowledge of Masonry, of both kinds, from the Brahmins, the Solomonic speculative Masonry being the offshoot of a purer symbolism, before it had degenerated into idolatry, when the symbol itself came to be worshipped, instead of that which it symbolized.

RAHU.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Can any brother inform me, if an American Order called the Knights of Pythias has any place of meeting in London, and, if so, where?

MASONS' MARKS.

We gladly support our esteemed Bro. Kelly in asking what has become of Bro. Shaw's valuable collection of Masonic Marks. If they are to be had, would it not be well to have them published, and their character and contents become the common property of the Craft universal in a handy book form? Surely sufficient subscribers could be obtained to render such an enterprise not an unmasonic failure financially, as such works generally turn out to be.

W. J. HUGHAN.

LODGE OF INDUSTRY, GATESHEAD.

I have been familiar with the history of the old lodge at Gateshead for some years through the medium of the sketch of its career which prefaces the bye-laws. I have several times applied for information as to its minutes, but not succeeding in procuring anything additional to the history already published. I am, therefore, exceedingly glad that the W.M. and the Treasurer, Bro. E. Robson, P.M., have decided to place the records of the lodge in the hands of Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., for, like several of us Masonic students, he has made such matters his particular study.

We shall all be anxiously on the look-out for fuller particulars than those already afforded in the pages of the Freemason to-day, which are promised for the Masonic Magazine in August, and especially the copy of the "Orders of Antiquity," by which we presume is meant another copy of the "Old Charges," or in other words the "Gateshead MS."

The Record-book is a valuable "find," and exceedingly curious. The particulars as to the "Highroddiam" will likely be beyond our comprehension at the present time, but in order that every opportunity may be given us to discover their meaning, let us express a hope that the minutes will be printed verbatim et literatim in the Freemason as well as in the Masonic Magazine.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Truro, 3rd July, 1875.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution held its regular monthly meeting on Saturday last, under the presidency of Bro. H. Browne. There were also present Bros. John Symonds, Benjamin Head, Hyde Pullen, S. Rosenthal, H. Massey (Freemason), H. Dubosc, F. C. Moutrie, H. W. Hunt, J. Wordsworth, J. G. Chancellor, W. Paas, Jesse Turner, J. W. Dosell, F. J. Cox, and F. Binckes (Secretary). The minutes of the last meeting having been read by Bro. Binckes, that brother proceeded to read the minutes of the various House (regular and special) Committee meetings which had been held since the last meeting of the General Committee. These reported the different proceedings which had taken place with reference to the school, among which were that fourteen gentlemen had become candidates for the post of headmaster of the school, which would become vacant at Christmas next. Out of these fourteen gentlemen thirteen had attended for election, and the Rev. S. Morris, of King's College, had been chosen to fill the Rev. O. G. D. Perrott's place, which he had resigned. The General Committee unanimously confirmed this appointment, and passed a resolution, also unanimously, that Dr. Morris should enter upon his duties on the reassembling of the boys on the 10th of August, assisted by four assistant masters in lieu of those who also retired. The Committee proceeded then with the consideration of the petitions of the friends of boys who wish to be admitted to the school as pupils. There were eight of these, and after the consideration of them the Committee adjourned.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF SOMERSET.

The annual meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Weston-super-Mare, on Monday, the 21st June, and was attended by Bros. Wm. Thompson, J.P., S.G. Mark W.; A. W. Butter, J.G. Mark W.; Rev. R. C. Davy, P.G. Chaplain of England, P.G.C.; E. T. Payne, P.G.O., P.G. Treas.; W. W. Westcott, M.D., R. of M.; Col. H. Guyon, P.G.S.W.B.; Lieut.-Gen. H. E. Doherty, C.B., P.G.O.; B. Gay, P.G.O.; A. W. Scott, P. Prov. G.O. and G. Std.; G. F. Tuckey, P. Prov. G.J.W., and G. Std.; Benj. Cox, P. Prov. G.S.W., and P.G. Std., and R.A.C.; W. Richards, J. T. Hallam, M. Ansaldo, J. M. Hunt, G. Summers, R. Gregory, J. Easterbrook, J. Birchell, W. Nott, G. Mann, J. B. Halford, W. Richardson, H. Amor, P. Prov. G.S.D.; S. Jones, P. Prov. J.O.; R. C. Else, P. Prov. J.G.W.; Major-Gen. G. B. Munbee, J.P., P. Prov. S.G.W.; and numerous brethren from Bath, Bristol, Bridgewater, and other towns in the province.

In the absence of the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Captain Irwin, presided. The members of the Provincial Grand Lodge were received in due form by the acting W.M., General Munbee (the W.M., Bro. A. W. Butter, being an officer of the province), and members of Lodge 102.

The lodge having been opened, some formal business was transacted, and in the course of the proceedings the P.G.S.W., Bro. W. Thompson, of Bath, in fulfilment of a promise given last year, presented to the lodge a very handsome blue silk banner, bearing the arms of the P.G.M., beautifully painted in heraldic colours.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in a few well-chosen sentences, conveyed to Bro. Thompson the thanks of the lodge for his generous gift, and expressed a hope that the other brethren in the province would emulate him in zeal and liberality in the interest of the Order. The following brethren were invested with collars of office for the ensuing year:—Bros. A. W. Scott, Lodge 119, P.G.S.W.; Rev. C. R. Davy, 119, P.G.J.W.; S. Lewis, 102, P.G.M.O.; J. Matthews, 102, P.G.S.O.; W. B. Frampton, 102, P.G.J.O.; Rev. H. Richardson, 119, P.G. Chaplain; E. T. Payne, 177, P.G. Treas.; J. B. Halford, 119, P.G. Reg. M.; H. Amor, 119, Asst. do.; B. Cox, 102, P.G. Sec.; J. T. Hallam, 119, P.G. Asst. Sec.; G. Summers, 162, P.G.S.D.; R. Taylor, 155, P.G.J.D.; Haley, P.G. Insp. W.; J. H. H. Colmer, 162, Asst. do.; B. Gay, 119, P.G.D.C.; W. Richards, 119, P.G. Asst. D.C.; Capt. G. A. Phayre, 177, P.G. Sword Bearer; Major J. W. Preston, P.G. Standard Bearer; W. L. Gaskell, 102, P.G. Organist; J. Easterbrook, 119, P.G.I.G.; Grand Stewards, Bros. R. Gregory, W. E. Perrett, 102, M. Ansaldo, 119, A. Wickenden, 102, T. R. Lord, and Falkner; Grand Tyler, Bro. W. Cousins, 102.

At the conclusion of the lodge business the brethren adjourned to the Town Hall, where to the number of between thirty and forty they sat down to a first class banquet, served à la Russe, provided by Bro. Wickenden. The bill of fare comprised all the delicacies of the season, the dessert was rich and profuse, and the wines of the best quality. The V.W. the D.P.G.M. presided; the vice chairs being filled by the two Wardens of the lodge, Bro. A. W. Scott and Bro. Rev. C. R. Davy. After dinner a short toast list was gone through, but the speeches were chiefly of a complimentary character. The premier toast was of course, "The Queen and Mark Masonry." This was followed by the Grand Master (the Earl of Limerick) and the members of the Grand Lodge, coupled with the names of Bros. Thompson and Munro (Grand Stewards), and the first named gentleman incidentally mentioned that he had been a member of the Craft for about half a century. The next toast was the P.G.M. of Somerset, the Earl of Carnarvon, to whose interest in all that could promote the interest and well being of the Order the D.P.G.M. was enabled to pay handsome testimony. The toast found a fit respondent in Bro. Else, who is the D.P.G.M. designate of the Craft for the province, and who remarked that he was sure the brethren would excuse the attendance of the noble earl, seeing the important position he held in Her Majesty's Government, and the onerous and responsible duties which pressed upon him in the office of Secretary of State for the Colonies. Bro. Else concluded by giving the health of the D.P.G.M., whose skill in Masonry and the services he had rendered in its behalf he warmly eulogized. Captain Irwin acknowledged the compliment and proposed Bro. General Gore Munbee, the first Senior Grand Warden, and the acting Deputy Grand Master of the day, referring to the great interest the General had taken in Freemasonry both in England and India, and his readiness at all times to do everything in his power for the good of the Order. General Munbee, in returning thanks, referred with pleasure to the increase in the number of Mark Lodges, and spoke of the advantage of working under the Grand Lodge of England. For the Provincial Grand Officers, given from the chair, Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy, P.G.J.W., responded. In giving the next toast, the W.M., officers and members of Lodge 102, the D.P.G.M. congratulated the W.M. upon the working of the lodge on the occasion of a recent visit, and the W.M. (Bro. A. W. Butter) briefly returned thanks. The W.M.'s of the other lodges in the province were next honoured, Bros. Davy (Royal Sussex), and Munro (119), responding. The D.P.G.M. next asked the brethren to toast Bro. Else, and darkly hinting (because the fact had not been officially communicated to him) at his appointment as Deputy Master of the Craft in the province, he congratulated Masons in general, and Mark Masons in particular because of the interest Bro. Else takes in the Mark Degree, upon the choice made by the P.G.M. The toast having been honoured, Bro. Else responded. Alluding to the "mysterious" hint of the D.P.G.M., he stated that a few days ago he received a letter from the Earl of Carnarvon, asking him when in London to call upon him, and he did so, when his lordship said the appointment of a successor to their late highly respected deputy, Captain Bridges, had occupied his thoughts very seriously for some time, and the determination he had come to, after taking all matters into consideration, was to ask him if he would accept the office. He thanked his lordship, and said that if he possessed his confidence, and it was for the benefit of the Craft, and would be acceptable to the brethren, he hoped he should not be doing wrong in accepting the appointment. Upon his lordship's assurance that he had his entire confidence he intimated his intention of accepting the office. He reminded the brethren that at present he was in the position of an elected Master of a lodge, but he thanked all who had congratulated him upon what they had heard. He trusted the Great Architect would give him health and strength and judgment to fill the office in a manner that would be advantageous to the Craft—promote the harmony of the Order, and the happiness of the brethren. The succeeding toast was "The Provincial Grand Officers," on whose behalf Bro. Munro returned thanks, and the concluding toast, "All poor and distressed Masons," was given by the P.G.S.W. We should say that the post prandial proceedings were the more enjoyable by the singing of several musical brethren.

"There are few wines that contain so many valuable qualities as really good Sherry, a remarkable fine pure pale wine imported by the firm of Felton and Sons Albermarle-st., that would surely convert the most ardent admirers of French vintages."—Standard.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS, WOOD GREEN.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The 77th anniversary festival of this Institution was held on Wednesday last, at the Alexandra Palace, Wood Green, the first time that it has been held in the summer and the first time that ladies have sat down with the brethren at the banquet table. To quote the words of our contemporary the Daily News, "The numbers of the Craft and of supporters of the Masonic Charitable Institutions having increased of late years to an enormous extent, the Freemasons' Tavern was considered too small to hold all the supporters of the different festivals, and the Secretary of the Boys' School, Bro. F. Binckes, conceived the idea of having the ladies to partake with the brethren of the pleasures of the banquet table out of town in lieu of in London. At all the Masonic Charitable Festivals ladies are admitted, but they dine by themselves and join the gentlemen only when the toasts and singing commence. The new experiment however, changed the usual routine, but although it had had many opponents, it proved to be a success, and it is not unlikely that it may be repeated on future occasions, at all events with the Boys' School."

The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master and Provincial Grand Master for Somerset, presided, and was supported by more than 800 ladies and brethren. Among the latter were the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Sir Henry Edwards, Magnus Ohren, Hyde Pullen, J. M. P. Montagu, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, G. Plucknett, John Hervey, Thomas Meggy, Bros. Scott (D.P.G.M. Trinidad), J. Dent Allcroft (Treasurer of Christ's Hospital), Rev. Dr. Brette, J. G. Chancellor, H. Keeble, Thos. J. Sabine, H. Venn, W. Roebuck, Capt. Wordsworth, Capt. Smith, W. Worrell (Sec. Albert Orphan Asylum), James Terry (Sec. R. Masonic Ben. Inst.), R. W. Little (Sec. Girls' School), Thomas Cubitt, C. A. Cottebrune, W. H. Stephens, W. Murlis, Robt. B. Webster, J. A. Tasker, 61. The number of Stewards was about 250. The above list is not complete, but only contains the names of those present as far as we were able to ascertain them.

The Earl of Carnarvon took the chair by half-past five o'clock, and the elegant and choice banquet was immediately proceeded with. When it was concluded grace was sung.

After grace had been sung,

The Chairman rose and said:—Brethren, and I think I must add on this occasion—almost the first in my own Masonic career—not only brethren, but ladies, whom I venture to welcome very cordially to our meeting, my first toast is that which stands by immemorial custom on our list, "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen." The Queen commands our respect by every possible title, on every possible occasion, in every possible place; but she commands it here by a twofold obligation, namely, as the Queen and as the Patron of this Institution. Brethren, "The Health of the Queen."

After the singing of the National Anthem,

The Chairman again rose and said:—Brethren, the next toast on my list is that of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," and in giving that toast I give it not merely as the Prince of Wales, the first of our English Royalities, but as the Grand Master of English Freemasons. (Cheers.) Many of those who are in this room were present a short time since in the Albert Hall, and they saw there one of the greatest sights which Masonry in any part of the world or at any time has witnessed. (Hear, hear.) They saw there collected from all parts of England Masons of experience, of age, of standing, men respected in the Craft, who came to present their homage, and to hail with absolute unanimity the election of His Royal Highness to the chair—(hear, hear)—and the wish, the implied and the expressed wish, of every man there present, as the wish is of every person in this room, is that his Royal Highness may live long to rule over the Craft in happiness, in peace, and with success. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) Brethren, "The Health of His Royal Highness the Grand Master."

The toast, as usual, was drunk with the heartiest enthusiasm, and followed by the singing of the part-song of Brinley Richards, "The Cambrian Plume."

The Earl of Shrewsbury followed by proposing "The Health of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Prov. G.M., Chairman," and in doing so said:—Ladies and Brethren,—I hope you will fill a bumper to drink to the health of him whom I am about to offer to your notice; and when I mention to you that I have the honour to propose to you the health of my old schoolfellow of my old college companion, of my brother in politics, and my brother in Masonry, our Pro-Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, I am glad to think that you will pardon any want of eloquence on my part in offering this toast to you. As boys, as college friends, and in the House, we have kept up that intimacy, and it has been a pleasure to me that we have gone out into the world together. I told him I would not praise him, I knew his bashful disposition; but, I said, you must allow friendship to speak fairly and freely on your behalf. I am glad, therefore, to offer his health to such a distinguished assembly as I see before me. I know that time is valuable, and I know that ladies do not like long speeches, therefore, I shall do no more than propose to you "The Health of the Pro-Grand Master, with all his titles, the Earl of Carnarvon." (Applause.)

The toast was drank enthusiastically, and in reply,

The Chairman said: Ladies and Brethren,—There is an old proverb that it is extremely pleasant for any one to be praised by one who is himself praised. It is equally pleasant to have your health proposed by an old school and college friend: and my noble friend who just now has been good enough to propose my health, has done so not only as a Mason, but in recollection of many pleasant days and hours which we in former times have passed together. (Hear hear.) I thank him most cordially for the kindness which has prompted every word, and I thank this great meeting, also, for the kindly, and more than that, the friendly manner in which they have been pleased to receive that health. (Cheers.) Brethren, I have a duty now to perform in submitting to you another toast which stands upon my list, and which is one well deserving of all commendation. You are well aware that Masonry has been from all time past compacted, so to speak, of different orders and of different degrees; above all things, it has represented these two great principles, the principle of election and the principle of appointment. Your Masters are elected in your lodges, your Grand Master is elected by the free voice of the Craft (Hear, hear), and yet both Masters and Grand Masters, each in their turn, have certain great powers of appointment vested in them; and the officers who more than any represent this double principle of election and appointment are your Grand Officers. They have all served their turn as Masters in their lodges; they have all taken their part in the administration of the Craft in the provinces; and they have all been selected, in turn, by the Grand Master for the time being; and, therefore, they are above all the lights and the pillars, so to speak, of the Craft. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, we have some of them present here to-day, and I give you their health, and with that toast I give you the name of one who has but recently been invested with the purple of office, but who already has made himself a position of great popularity in his own county, "The Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, Sir Henry Edwards." (Great cheering.)

The toast was fittingly accepted by the whole company, and immediately responded to by

Sir Henry Edwards, who said,—My lords, ladies, and brother Masons, it is indeed a great and unexpected pleasure, as it is a great privilege, for any Mason to be allowed to stand up in this room to respond for a toast of the importance which I consider this to be. It is quite clear that your General cannot carry on the affairs of the Craft without his lieutenants, and it is indeed handsome on his part to acknowledge that it is so—that we are all dependent one upon the other, from the head down to the very lowest of the Craft. Friends, all I can say is this that I entirely agree with those who support this Institution, to the Masons, their wives, their daughters, their sisters, met with them to do honour to our Provincial and Pro Grand Master; and I must say this, that of all great meetings that I have attended I have never known such a success as this. (Great applause.) It only shows how much our Provincial and Pro Grand Master's abilities are appreciated by the Craft in general; and it also shows that those who have come here might have come here entirely in consequence of knowing he was to preside this evening. I will not say much more, because I know that time is short, and very little time is to be given to subordinates like myself; but I cannot help saying one good word for the lodge to which I have the honour to belong, No. 61 of the Province of West Yorkshire. (Cheers.) I congratulate them on assembling in such numbers to-night, and for the wonderful contributions they have made to the Boys' School. I think that I can answer for this, that next year it will be larger still. (Renewed cheering.) My Lord, I am obliged to you for the honour you have done me, and I am sorry that the time is so short as it is.

Miss Josephine Sherrington here sang the Shadow song from "Dinorah," and was enthusiastically cheered and encored. After she had complied with the call, and been again rapturously applauded;

The Chairman rose to propose the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." He said,—Brethren, there is an old saying somewhere that "After the nightingales come the crows," and I feel myself very much in the position of a crow when I follow the extremely beautiful air to which we have just been listening; but whether I be a crow or whether I be any other sort of bird—and I lay no claim to being a nightingale—it is my duty to trespass on your patience for a few minutes, and I promise that they shall be but a few minutes, whilst I endeavour to give you that which is after all, the toast of the evening, that which has brought us together to-day. (Hear hear.) Brethren, I have to give you "The Prosperity of this Institution." In this, as in every institution, we naturally look back to the past, and if we compare the past with the present how very wide will that difference be. I must ask you to go back with me as far as the year 1739, and you need not be afraid that I shall give you a record of every fact that has occurred between then and now; but I ask you to remember what the year 1739 was in England. Politically it was very different from the present. We were on the eve of a civil war, and of an internal disturbance. In matters of education, though there were great writers and great thinkers whom we still delight to read and to honour, there was little education in the class at least for whom this school is provided, and, Masonically, it was an important year, because just at that time the Pope had thought it worth while in England to fulminate the bull against Freemasonry; and English Freemasonry itself did not number, I suppose, within the four seas, one-half of those whom I see collected in this room. In that year, 1739, I find that a resolution was proposed during the Grand Mastership of one who, strange to say, bore my own name, the Lord Carnarvon of the day, from which grew out, some years afterwards, first the Girls' Schools and secondly the Boys' School. That resolution is now matter of Masonic history. It was subsequently acted upon as I have said, and this institution was established. In those days it was but a small affair; there were but six scholars, and they were to be clothed, and brought up, and nurtured, and educated; but in the inevitable default of the necessary accommodation it was provided that they should be brought up in any neighbouring school which would offer a good education. Since then, however, great is the difference! Buildings have been erected which we all know, and the present school, for the sake of which we are assembled together to-day, numbers within its walls no less, I am told, than 177 boys who are brought up, clothed, and educated entirely free of expense to their friends; they receive what may be termed a thoroughly good commercial education, they go forth subsequently into life, and I believe from all that I have heard, that they do honour to themselves generally, and to the institution which has sent them forth. Year by year this school has passed under examination—first of all under the Syndicate of Cambridge, and periodically by the University Local Examinations, and it may be a matter of satisfaction to all those who take an interest in this Institution to know that since the day when these buildings were erected, now some 16 years since, so satisfactory has been the health of those boys, that I am informed that during the whole of that period there have been but three deaths. In this time the school and the Craft have gone on steadily advancing together, and this is an illustration in fact of the way in which the Craft itself is worked in this country. It has undertaken useful works; by those useful works it stands; and through those useful works it has spread far and wide its great reputation for usefulness and for charity. I have to say one word on the subject of that which, after all, affects all these questions more closely than anything else, and which though it may sound dull, is yet of vital consequence—I mean the question of finance. I have not myself had the opportunity of looking into or examining closely the financial condition of this institution. All that I can say is to be derived from those who are more conversant with it; and whilst on the one hand there is much that is satisfactory I am bound also to point out to you that, like all human things, it even yet admits of amendment. You have, no doubt, done much; large sums are subscribed on every gathering such as this. You have erected magnificent buildings; you have even, as I am informed, paid off the debt upon these buildings; and you give an education to these boys at what seems to me comparatively a very low figure, viz., £45 a year, and I am told further that even that £45 a year has been gradually reduced, as expenses have been brought down during the last few years. All this you have done, all this is matter of honest pride and satisfaction, but I have also to remind you that this institution has no endowment, and that the money which is subscribed on these occasions has hitherto, as I understand, been only just sufficient to pay the way of this great Institution. And, more than that, I may repeat what was said by one who formerly spoke in this place, and spoke, I think, on that point with considerable truth, when he stated that the subscriptions proceed too frequently from a certain given fixed number of individuals, and are not so largely taken up and supported as they should be by the whole body of the Craft. In this, as in other matters of charity, I desire that the pyramid should have as broad a base as possible—should rest on that base, and should not rest on a tiny bottom. Nothing but a large amount of subscriptions from a great number of individuals can make the base of your pyramid broad, and nothing but breadth of base is a security for such an institution as this. And now I have said enough, and perhaps I should not have said so much had I not myself absolutely felt bound on such an occasion to do so. I have said quite enough for so festive an occasion as this. I can only commend the charity to you and to your sympathies by commending it to all those who have in former times supported it so nobly and liberally. I commend it further to those brethren who as individuals have sympathised with, but have not yet given any visible and tangible evidence of that sympathy; and lastly, and certainly most potentially, I commend it to those who can do more for it than any brother here present, the ladies who have sat down with us to-day.

Bro. George Plucknett, Treasurer, replied as follows:—Ladies and brethren,—To the last toast I have to reply. I beg to thank you, and to express the gratitude of the Institution for the very kind manner in which the toast has been received. First, let me express on the part of the Institution our gratitude to the noble lord who has presided here to-night. While the Institution has the privilege and the advantage of being presided over by a nobleman in the exalted position which Lord Carnarvon is, we may augur well for the prosperity of the Institution. Allow me also to express our grateful thanks to the ladies for their presence here to-night; and we may be assured that while they take an interest in the prosperity of the Institution there is no telling what success may attend it. I may tell you that all your subscriptions will be most judiciously and economically expended, and I am sure that the committee to whom you delegate your affairs will take care that the Institution shall be the best that there is. (Cheers.)

The result was received with great cheering.
The Earl of Carnarvon during the reading of the lists was called away by official duties, and the Earl of Shrewsbury took the chair. At the conclusion of the reading of the lists,
The Earl of Shrewsbury said he should propose that the company should drink no more toasts, but he could not suffer the brethren to adjourn without honouring the toast of "The Ladies."
The toast was drunk.
Bro. S. Rosenthal responded,
After which the whole party adjourned to the concert hall and spent the remainder of the evening there. The musical arrangements were highly creditable to Madame Thaddeus Wells, under whose direction they were, and the artistes engaged were Miss Josephine Sherrington, Madame Poole, Mdle. Risarelli, Signor Bignardi, Mr. Henry Guy, R.A.M.; Bro. J. Kerr Gedde, Bro. Geo. Fox, Bro. Farquharson, Herr Behrens; solo-violin, Mdle. Bertha Brousil; pianoforte, Signor Li Calsi, Madame Thaddeus Wells, and Bro. Henry Parker.
The dinner, supplied by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, was all that could be desired.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

The half-yearly communication of the above Provincial Grand Lodge took place at the Town Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, on the 29th ult., in the lodge-room of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 779, under the auspices of which the meeting was held.

The Craft Lodge was opened at one o'clock. Shortly after that time the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, accompanied by his Prov. G. Officers, entered the lodge-room and received the customary salute.

After the minutes had been confirmed and the ballot taken for several joining members and candidates for initiation, the principal event of the day, that of installing Bro. S. E. Johnson as W.M. of No. 799, took place, the office of installing Master having been, by the special desire of the members of that lodge, undertaken by the Provincial Grand Master. It is almost needless to state that the duties of that important office, and the impressive ritual of the ceremony of installation, were performed in a very admirable and efficient manner.

The brethren, not only of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, but of other lodges also in the province, are under deep obligations to his lordship for having on several occasions fulfilled the onerous duties of installing Master, and too much praise cannot be accorded to him for the ready and gracious spirit in which he has always been pleased to comply with the wishes of the brethren that he should undertake those duties.

On the completion of the business of the Craft Lodge, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Prov. Grand Master, who was assisted by the following officers:—W. Bros. the Revd. J. Denton, P.P.S.G.W., as Deputy Prov. G.M.; Samuel Love, Prov. S.G.W.; E. F. Mannwatt, P. Prov. S.G.W., as I.G.W.; W. B. Smith, Prov. G. Treasurer; T. G. Tippetts, Prov. G. Reg.; S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Secretary; W. Johnson as Prov. G.S.D.; W. Hardy, Prov. G.J.D.; J. T. Thorp, Prov. G.A.D.C., as D.C.; R. Boughton-Smith, P.P.G.A. D.C., as Grand Sword Bearer; C. E. Stretton, Prov. G.A.P., as Grand Purs.; G. W. Statham and R. Dalgleish, P.G. Stewards; and C. Bembridge, Prov. G. Tyler.

A fuller report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

AN ORATION

BY THE REV. A. F. A. WOODFORD, P.G.C.,

Delivered on the occasion of the Consecration of Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540.

Most Worshipful Consecrating Officer, Senior and Junior Wardens and Brethren, though I should personally have preferred that some brother more connected with the locality had addressed you on the present occasion, yet as during my 33 years of connection with our good old Order, I have always obeyed my superiors, I felt bound to defer at once to the wishes and command of my excellent and respected friend and brother in the chair. I shall, therefore, venture to address a few words to you to-day, relying on your wonted fraternal kindness and consideration. I congratulate you, in the first instance, on your name of the Chaucer Lodge. Chaucer is so historical a name to Englishmen, that in this locality especially the name of your lodge suggests many and pleasant memories. It is not far from here that the "Tabard" once stood from which Chaucer started in his famous pilgrimages with his goodly companions. The old original Tabard has long since given way to the "encroaching hand of time," but a successor has long existed on the same spot, which is now also doomed to pass away.* Chaucer may fairly be denominated the Patriarch of English Poetry. Though not the first in that long roll of illustrious names in point of time, he may be looked upon as the eldest of that great family which has shed such grace and honour on the English language, which has charmed imagination, vindicated honour, aroused sympathy, and proclaimed the right, and which is now read by countless thousands, not only of the Anglo-Saxon race, but of all nations alike, with gratification, admiration, and enthusiasm.

Chaucer is 7th in point of time. He was preceded by Cædmon, by our great King Alfred, by Robert of Gloucester, by Robert de Brunne, by Richard Rolle, by Robert Langland, though the last is very nearly contemporary with Chaucer.

In his "Pilgrimage" he tells us that "An Haberdasher and a Carpenter,

A Webbe, a Dyer and a Tapiser,
Were all y clothed in o liverè

Of a solempne and grete fraternité ;"

and were amongst those who went out from the Tabard.

It is a pity that he has not said also a "Freemason," as we might have learned whether he were also, as some have surmised from stray expressions in his writings, a member of our fraternity. Of this I can say nothing certain. It may be so, but we have no evidence of it, further than this, that he was connected with the operative masons. On the 12th of July, 1389, he was appointed, by patent, Clerk of the King's Works at the Palace of Westminster, Tower of London, and elsewhere. In July, 1790, he was commanded to procure workmen for the repair of St. George's Chapel, at Windsor. Chaucer, as it is believed, married Philippa, the daughter of Sir Payne Roet, a Fleming by birth, and sister of Katherine Roet, first the wife of Sir Hugh Swinford, and then of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster. He died in a tenement leased from Westminster Abbey, in 1400, and was buried in that sacred fane.

Let us now pass on to one or two topics connected with our present assembly.

Agreeing heartily as I do with all that our excellent Grand Secretary and Presiding Officer has so well said in respect of caution as to the admission of new members, which at this moment is a great trial of our order, I would, after a long membership, point out, that some of us take a fallacious view of the subject. I have heard it said, if a person can pay his fees, and is a good sort of a fellow, that is quite enough. I venture to think that such a view is not a true one, nor a Masonic one of the matter. In the admission of members we ought to ask ourselves this question, is the candidate so thoroughly respectable and well principled that we could, if need be, safely introduce him to our own family circle? If we cannot say so, we have no right to admit him into our lodge, which, remember, is a band of brethren, linked together by the most sacred ties of virtuous and religious sympathies, by a love of morality, honour, loyalty, and truth.

At this moment some, I fear, are tempted to enter into Freemasonry by a sort of idea that they are providing against a rainy day. They treat it as an enlarged benefit club, which view, as Lord Zetland once most truly said, is utterly opposed to the real teaching of Freemasonry. Freemasonry never was, and never can be a mere benefit society. We relieve our brethren in unforeseen emergencies of calamity and distress; we educate the orphan, and we assist the widow, but no one has a right to claim such relief—it is and must ever be the spontaneous expression of pure Masonic benevolence.

I think, too, Worshipful Sir and Brethren, that like as our Grand Master so well reminded us, "Loyalty and Charity" should be our watchwords just now. Happily for us we know nothing of political discussions, but as Freemasons we are loyal always to the sovereign of our native land, and we pay honest obedience to the laws of any country where we may casually reside.

Loyalty is a wide word, and includes not only loyalty to our sovereign, but loyalty to our own duties as fathers and husbands, as brethren, as citizens. Loyalty too to those fair sisters of ours, in the true chivalry of Freemasonry, who shed, let us ever remember with gratitude and devotion, the inestimable blessing of Masonic grace, and faith, and love, and truth, on this hard world of ours.

Bro. Woodford here read an extract from Chaucer called "Praise of Women," which was loudly applauded by the brethren.

He proceeded to say, as to charity I need say but very little; we can fairly point to our great charities when the outer world asks us, either with sincere good will or impertinent curiosity of what good we are.

Bro. Woodford here read another extract from Chaucer, entitled "Mercy," which was also greatly appreciated.

And now, brethren, I beg to conclude my short and imperfect oration, thanking you for your attention, craving your forbearance, and reiterating my own hearty good wishes for the progress and prosperity, the harmony and the welfare of the Chaucer Lodge.

LODGE "ROMAN EAGLE," EDINBURGH, No. 160.

A Funeral Lodge was held in the Lodge Roman Eagle, No. 160, on Tuesday the 15th ultimo, in memory of Bro. Dr. Thomas Cairns, J.P.M. The lodge was opened at the Third Degree by Bro. George Laing, R.W.M., assisted by Bro. B. Miller, S.W.; Bro. Thomas Willmott, J.W.; Bro. W. Cowrie, P.M.; Bro. Dr. W. Stevenson, D.M.; Bro. I. Mann, S.M.; Bro. Cowan, Chaplain; Bro. W. Anderson, Treasurer; Bro. Alex. Scott, Secretary; and a large attendance of the Brethren. There were also present, Bro. Dr. W. S. Carmichael, P.M. 48; Bro. Geo. Borland, R.W.M. 151; Bro. D. Cameron, P.M. 429; Bro. A. D. Cairns, S.W. 392; Bro. Walter W. Mooney, S.W. 145, &c.

The following is the Programme of the proceedings: Solemn music while brethren are taking their seats, and office bearers and brethren of sister lodges enter in procession and take their appointed seats.

Dead March in Saul.

The R.W.M. then opened the lodge in the Third Degree.

Prayer.—Chaplain.

Grand Honours.

Requiem.—Harmonium.

Anthem.—Holy, Holy Lord God Almighty, who was, and is, and is to come, who shall not glorify Thy name, for Thou only art holy, Thou only art the Lord.

Service with responses.—M. It is appointed unto all men once to die, and after death the judgment. Response. So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. M. Lord, make us to know our end, and the measure of our days, what it is, that we may know how frail we are. R. Behold thou hast made our days as an handbreadth, and our age is as nothing before Thee. M. What is life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. R. Therefore, whatsoever our hands find to do, may we do it with all our might, seeing there is no work, nor device, nor wisdom, nor knowledge in the grave, whither we are going.

Grand Honours.

Anthem (Luther).—Blest are the departed who in the Lord are sleeping, from henceforth, for evermore. They rest from their labours, and their works follow them.

Service with responses.—M. Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his. R. God is our God for ever and ever; He will be our God even unto death.

Grand Honours.

Anthem (Kent).—O Lord, our Governor, O how excellent is Thy name in all the world!

ORATION BY BRO. GEORGE LAING, R.W.M. 160.

Brethren, not long ago, we met within this hall, in joyous festivity, to acknowledge, as best we could, the honour of receiving the first official visit paid to a daughter lodge by the M. W. the G.M.M. of Scotland, Sir Michael Robert Shaw Stewart, after his election to the throne.

The place the same, how changed the scene! Assembled as we now are to pay the last M.H. to the memory of our I.P.M., and in accordance with usual Masonic custom, it devolves on me to lay before you some sketch of the life of our departed brother, Dr. Cairns.

In the performance of that duty, I must crave that sympathy at your hands on which I feel I can rely, for any shortcomings which may become apparent to you, and this the more readily, that it is to our deceased brother that the L.R.E. and I are indebted for being brought together.

That introduction was under circumstances of solemn sadness and mourning, through the death of your beloved and lamented late R.W.M., Bro. James Paterson, the immediate successor to Bro. Dr. Cairns, who, on the last occasion of a Funeral Lodge in your midst, though himself suffering severely under illness and physical exhaustion, so ably and so eloquently conducted those honours to the memory of Bro. Paterson, which it is now incumbent upon me to attempt for him.

Brother Thomas Cairns was born in the post town of Saline, Fifeshire, in the year 1822. The family from which he sprung had resided there through many generations, his father in his day occupying the position of builder and architect in his native town. Thomas was the second son in a family of five sons and three daughters, and although he alone ultimately turned his energies towards a professional career, all his brothers attained useful and prominent positions in agricultural and commercial life. Two brothers and two sisters now survive to mourn his loss.

After receiving the education requisite for the career intended for him by his father, Thomas was, at the age of twelve, placed behind the counter of Mr. Matthew Brady, a respectable and successful grocer in Alloa. Here he faithfully served a formal and long apprenticeship of seven years. To a mind like his, this must have been tedious training indeed, but probably not without great influence in disciplining him to toil patiently and perseveringly in acquiring those stores of highly cultivated knowledge and information in the many and varied branches which he mastered so ably at a future period.

At the age of nineteen, having completed his apprenticeship, he commenced studying with the intention of becoming a clergyman, and prosecuted those studies so earnestly and well, as in due time to be formally licensed as a preacher in connection with the Free Church of Scotland, in which capacity he officiated most satisfactorily in different pulpits in various places, Edinburgh among others. This and subsequent successful results to his labours were entirely due to his own prudence and indomitable spirit of perseverance, and from first to last carried on without any pecuniary help whatever from family or friends. Thus launched in a definite profession, most men would, under ordinary circumstances, have been satisfied with the prospects now unfolding, still more after such an achievement as his against obstacles requiring every possible exertion of prudence, forethought and care. With him, however, his course of studies and battle with difficulties were little more than begun.

From what cause is not exactly known, but shortly after being licensed as a probationer, he commenced the study of surgery and medicine, furnishing himself with the necessary means by devoting the time he had to spare to teaching classical literature, mathematics, and other branches of the higher education. Former pupils—and I believe some such are now here—bear grateful testimony to his high intellectual culture, and the great fluency he possessed in imparting instruction.

The result of his own second course of professional studies was the attainment of a degree from the R.C.P. as well as from the R.C.S., both in Edinburgh. Of his career as a medical practitioner, others could speak with more authority than I possibly can, yet this I may assert, that when death's pale peace came o'er him, many a grateful patient mourned his loss. In his application to professional duties in the hour of sickness and pain, he was thoroughly zealous—his own health and comfort the least of his thoughts. Full of earnest anxiety where danger existed or threatened, with his natural fertility of resource, if one remedy failed he had another to apply, and the performance of his professional duties was accompanied throughout, by a degree of kindly sympathy and interest, evinced in the soothing accents with which he brought hope to alarm and relief to suffering, that linked him to the affections of his patients and their friends. As an accoucheur, in the opinion of his professional brethren, he was great and successful in his art.

That he had devoted much attention to the treatment of the diseases of children was proved by his skilful practice amongst them. Of children he was naturally fond, soon gaining the affectionate confidence of the little ones who lispily welcomed the Doctor, whose visits were, in their minds more associated with gifts of barley-sugar and sweets, than with doses of medicine in the hateful forms of powders and draughts. In any address to you I need not dwell upon the social virtues which endeared him to all who had the privilege to call him friend, but personally, I must acknowledge his never-varying courtesy to myself.

* The W.M. stated later that the demolition was going on when these words were spoken.

Although his nominee in my position as your R.W.M., while his position among you was deservedly one of great influence, whether from time to time we agreed or not, as to the ideas I had in conducting the affairs of the lodge, I had always his good wishes and hearty support, and no brother of the lodge could congratulate me more cordially than he did upon the success attending its workings. His delicate and failing health precluded my asking that assistance in these labours which he was, nevertheless, willing and ready to give, and to the last, his interest in the prosperity of the L.R.E. was vividly retained, and our present mournful gathering is in accordance with one of the dearest wishes of his heart. The exalted opinion of Freemasonry which he thus evinced, was acquired by careful and persistent study of its principles, in which he gloried, ever delighting in the work of making others become participators in that he loved so well.

Freemasonry in its highest lessons, teaches men so to die, that when the shadows fall, and the earthly light for them is waning, then becomes most apparent in its brightest effulgence, the eternal light in the Eternal Lodge. Therefore we mourn our late brother as departed, not as dead. Called on as we are this evening to contemplate the valley darkened with the shadow of death, through which our brother has passed, we can see, however faintly it may be, only a single ray of the glorious light in which that valley terminates, and we have a sure confidence that this is realized in all its brightness by him whose loss we mourn. Let us, whom he has left behind, whose vision is obscured by the darkness of earth, and to whom all Masonry is but as blind groping through the mist, take comfort in the thought that that last Masonic step which our brother has taken, and in which we must so surely follow, leads to the realization of perfect knowledge from the Omniscient Fount on High.

Farewell! good friend—social companion—whose genial and well-stored mind enriched many an evening with bright and intellectual enjoyment—to whose kindness—whose generosity, and whose charity—we would now bear testimony through personal knowledge, and through grateful report!

Farewell! good, true, hard-working Mason, ever ready to promote the interests of our Craft by services so rendered as to rear a monument to your Masonic fame. May thy spirit live with us, so to move us that in our lives we may carry out the precepts you so often and so well inculcated in our own and in our sister lodges, who now gratefully sympathize with us in our time of mourning.

Farewell! but not for ever, nor for long. Over as too the shadows are fast lengthening, but in this we rejoice, that the principles of Freemasonry, practised on earth, all tend to a final re-union of the brotherhood beneath Heaven's great arch—darkness and doubt for ever passed away.

Elegy (Calcott).—Choir.

Service with responses.—M. The memory of the just is blessed. R. But the name of the wicked shall perish.

Anthem.—Behold how pleasant it is for Brethren to dwell together in unity. It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard, that went down to the skirts of his garments; as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion; for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

Service with responses.—M. A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches. R. And loving favour rather than silver and gold. M. The Lord is just in all his ways. R. And holy in all his works.

Grand Honours.

Prayer.—Chaplain.

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

God save our gracious Queen;
Long may Victoria reign.

God save the Queen!
May she defend our laws,
And ever give us cause
To sing with heart and voice,
God save the Queen!

Hail! mystic holy light,
Heaven born and ever bright,
Spread more and more.

Light of the bold and free,
Honour and Loyalty,
Light of Free Masonry,
Ne'er leave our shore.

The choral services were conducted by Bro. O. W. Longstreeth, and a choir of eight voices. Bro. A. G. Jameson presided at the harmonium. The choruses were most effectively rendered, and the whole ceremony was most impressive throughout.

The lodge was then closed by the R.W.M.

Freemasonry in New Zealand.

PACIFIC LODGE, No. 1229, E.C., HOKITIKA, WESTLAND, NEW ZEALAND.

The annual installation meeting of this highly prosperous lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Revell Street, on Tuesday afternoon, February 23rd. The R.W.D.G.M., Bro. Lazar, attended by his D.G.S.W., Bro. Bevan and D.G.J.W. Bro. Hudson, and other District Grand Officers were received with the customary honours. W.M. Bro. Eisfelder then vacated his seat to the R.W.D.G.M., who, with his officers presided, and then duly installed, in his well-known and eloquent manner, Bro. J. Bramwell as W.M.; Bro. Eisfelder, J.P.M.; Bro. Ramsay, S.W.; Bro. Hill, J.W.; Bro. Linnemann, Treasurer; Bro. Wales, Secretary; Bro. Benning, S.D.; Bro. Dixon, J.D.; Bro. Douglas, J.G.; Bro. Epping, Tyler. There were about twelve Past Masters, as well as a large attendance of Brethren from all parts of the Province, present to witness the interesting and time honoured proceedings, which were conducted in so able a manner as to elicit the warmest approbation.

The R.W.D.G.M. congratulated the lodge on its increasing prosperity, the zealous attention of the Brethren to their duties, and the highly satisfactory manner in which everything relating to the welfare of the craft was conducted in this important lodge—one indeed, which could well lay claim to rank foremost in Masonic circles, for he really felt proud when he heard the balance-sheet read, and shewing a credit balance of over £600, notwithstanding the large amounts of money which had been expended during the year in charity and other good works. It was therefore evident that the true spirit of Masonry was thoroughly implanted in the hearts of the Brethren, and he hoped they would long enjoy the happiness which at present surrounded them.

The usual banquet was held at 8 p.m., at which between 50 and 60 Brethren sat down. On this occasion it was held in the lodge room, which was most appropriately and tastefully laid out, everything provided being of the best description. The newly installed W.M. Bro. Bramwell, presided. After the more serious and substantial portion of the proceedings were concluded, and grace said, the W.M. proposed the "Queen and the Craft," which was most loyally, and heartily drank, followed by the "National Anthem." The "Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master of England," was the next toast. The W.M. in proposing it, dwelt at considerable length upon the incalculable advantages which Masonry derived from such a Sovereign head, especially under the circumstances which had so unaccountably created the vacancy in Grand Lodge. He felt fully assured that, from every part of the world, our Brethren would rejoice to think that Masonry was still triumphant, that the darkest cloud had revealed the brightest sunshine, thereby portending a still greater future for Freemasonry than ever. This toast was received with great enthusiasm. The toast the "Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland" was also drank in bumpers. The W.M. then proposed the health of the "R.W.D.G.M., Bro. Lazar," and referred in terms of much affection to the many excellent qualities of our veteran chief, who was always ready in all weathers, notwithstanding his advancing years, to devote himself to the cause of Masonry. The "R.W.D.G.M." replied in feeling and appropriate terms, and proposed the health of the W.M. "Bro. Bramwell," and congratulated the Brethren upon having elected another zealous and able Brother to preside over them, whose sole delight appeared to be in promoting their welfare, and whose energy and ability was acknowledged by all. The W.M., in a well chosen and capital speech, most suitably responded, and proposed the health of the "Past Masters of the Pacific Lodge," paying each, and every one of them well merited compliments, for their valuable aid. This toast was responded to by Bros. P.M.'s Eisfelder, Hudson and Bevan. The toast W.M.'s and P.M.'s of sister lodges, responded to by Bro. P.M. Hardcastle, and W.M. Bro. Brown. The toast the "Visitors, Mothers, Wives and Daughters of Freemasons," were duly honoured, and responded to. The "D.G.S.W., Bro. Bevan," having been entrusted with the gavel, proposed "Our Masonic Charities," and in an excellent speech, referred to the marvellous amount of good which was disseminated thereby, it being the glory of our Masonic Institution that millions of Masons were educated in this great masterwork of the Craft, raising up a fabric, the foundations of which are laid upon the rocks of truth—its glorious charter, signed by the unsullied hand, called charity.

The grand Masonic schools in England, Ireland, and elsewhere; the institutions for the aged and infirm, and the large amounts annually expended in their support, was alluded to, and listened to with wrapt attention; Bro. Bevan concluding with the following lines of his own:—

Come join me, all ye Brothers true,
A toast I will propose to you,
One that will, enraptured find,
Response in every Brother's mind,
From every purse if needed be,
For 'tis the toast of charity.

Thy goblets then I pray thee fill,
To drink the toast with right good will,
And wish the sorrows from the brow
Of him who sadly suffers now,
So that with us to-morrow he,
May drink the toast of charity.

Apron, heart and hand I give,
This will teach us how to live,
How to feel a Brother's woe,
How a kindness to bestow,
How that a gentle word may be More lovely than our charity.

Cheer upon cheer succeeded the reception of this toast. The "Founders of the Pacific Lodge," was feelingly responded to by Bro. Nees, who after an absence of seven years, stated how proud he felt of the lodge, and although he had visited many lodges in New Zealand, San Francisco, and Honolulu, still he had seen none to win his affections like the Pacific. He also referred to the early struggles of the Craft on the then hospitable coast, and when and how their meetings were held. He missed many of his old friends, some were gone to their eternal rest; others were tossed about on the eventful sea of life, but he still rejoiced that there was yet a few of the familiar faces, "the early friends of Masonry," whose success required no comment, for their works were abundantly expressed in this their fraternal and joyful gathering.

"Our absent Brethren," "The Masonic Press" (especially the Freemason), were heartily proposed and received. "The Tylers" toast concluded one of the most enjoyable Masonic events ever held on the West Coast of New Zealand.

Bro. Gosson, D.G. Organist, most ably conducted the musical portions of the proceedings, and with the assistance of several good voices, greatly enhanced the pleasures of this memorable evening.

WELLINGTON, MAY 10th, 1875.—The 23rd April, 1875, was a red letter day in the Masonic calendar (locally speaking) it being set apart for the constituting of a second Masonic lodge in this city, under the English Constitution, to be called the "Wellington Lodge," No. 1521. An emergency meeting of the Pacific Lodge, No. 517, having been called for that purpose at 8 p.m. Bro. P.M. Toxward assumed "the East," and having opened the lodge informed the brethren of the purpose of the meeting. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the preliminary meetings of the members composing the new lodge, P.M.'s Charles White, Jonas Woodward, and Henry Tribe, were announced as representatives of Grand Lodge, and took their respective positions as W.M., S.W., and J.W. Bro. P.M. White, acting as installing officer, proceeded to instal Bro. McDonald, P.M., as proxy for Bro. E. D. Butts, P.M. (absent) the W.M. designate. After the usual ceremonies so well-known to every well informed Mason (and therefore not necessary to detail here), the newly installed W.M. invested his officers, and Bro. P.M. White was then assisted in the south and west by Bro. P.M.'s McTurk, and Ladd. The whole of the ceremony was conducted, and performed by the J.O. in his usual earnest and impressive manner. The musical portion of the programme was efficiently rendered by the choir, thanks to Bro. Raymond (Organist of the Pacific), who is at all times willing to give his talented services for the good of Masonry. After the closing of the lodge the Brethren reassembled in the refreshment room, and sat down to perhaps one of the most recherche banquets ever laid before the Craft in Wellington; the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured; of course the toast of the evening, "Success to the Wellington Lodge, No. 1521," received proper attention, and the Brethren present spent a most enjoyable time.

Among northern items, I find, the Masonic Hall Company of Auckland is likely to be a great success, six out of seven lodges having subscribed by vote for a certain number of shares; already over 1,000 shares are taken. The Company intending shortly to call for competition designs, for the building, we sincerely trust the selection may be a happier one than some others that have been made in this colony, that some attention may be given to form and situation, and especially to points of ingress and egress.

Our Canterbury Brethren (all honour to them) are putting their theory into practice. They announce "The Second Masonic Scholarship, of the annual value of £25, tenable for three years, open to children of Masons within the province, who are under 12 years of age, on May 1st, 1875, will be competed for at the examination for Provincial Scholarships in June next."

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BURY.—PRINCE OF WALES LODGE (No. 1012).—A meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the house of Bro. Handley, the Derby Hotel, on Thursday, the 1st inst. Aa has been already intimated in these columns, this lodge is at present without W.M. and S.D., through the melancholy fate which befel Bro. R. W. O'Neil (the last Worshipful Master) and Bro. R. Battersby, S.D., in Whit-week. Among the brethren present at the meeting were Bros. Henry Heys, I.P.M., of Ramsbottom; W. P. Woodcock, S.W.; Joseph T. Newbold, J.W.; John Halliwell, P.M., Chaplain, George Spurgeon, J.D.; John B. Jackson, P.M., D.C.; James Barrett, Steward; J. H. Sherbourne, I.G.; James Thorman, Tyler; Henry Maiden, (P.M. 191 and P. Prov. G.S.B. East Lancashire), Sec.; Joseph Handley, P. Prov. G.Treas., E.L., Treas.; P.M. Bro. W. Handley. Visitors: Bros. Robert Whittaker, P. Prov. G.D.C., E.L., 678 (Farnworth); H. Percival, P.M. 274 (Newchurch); G. A. O'Neil, W.M. 191; Walker, W.M. 37 (Bolton); Edmund Milnes, 1253 (Manchester); Ireland, 1129 (Rochdale); Horridge, 344 (Radcliffe); T. W. Probert, S.D. 191; and T. Barker, J.D. 42. The proceedings were opened at 4 o'clock by Bro. Henry Heys, P.M., after which the following were unanimously balloted and duly initiated into the mysteries—Mr. George Ashworth, solicitor, Waterfoot, Rossendale, initiated by Bro. H. Maiden; Mr. Geo. McCann, wine and spirit merchant, Bury, initiated by Bro. J. B. Jackson; Mr. Wm. Henry Hoyle, manufacturer, Mossfield, Bury, initiated by Bro. Halliwell; Mr. Jas. T. Milnes, manufacturer, Oaklands, near Bury, initiated by Bro. Jos. Handley. Bro. J. T. Newbold explained the working tools of E.A. to the initiates. The general initiatory working was gone through by the officiating brethren in a highly creditable manner. At 7.15 p.m. the brethren were called from labour to refreshment, which was served in a style worthy alike of Bro. Handley's repute and the prestige of the hotel. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, "The Initiates" and "The Visitors" receiving a due share of attention. At 8.15 such of the brethren as were Master Masons were recalled to labour, when the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Harry Woodcock was called upon to show his proficiency in the former degrees. Having satisfied the brethren, he was duly entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Woodcock was admitted and raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason by Bro. G. A. O'Neil, the efficient W.M. of Lodge 191, and brother to the late W.M. of Lodge 1012, Bro. J. T. Newbold, a worthy support to Bro. O'Neil, explained the working tools and tracing board peculiar to the degree. On the lodge being closed to the First Degree, a most interesting addition was made to the evening's proceedings by the presentation of a complete and very elaborate set of working tools to the lodge by Bro. Henry Heys, P.M. The tools (wrought in silver) were disposed in a handsome case, and had been manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, and that they were a real credit to his establishment there was a most unqualified admission. Bro. J. Halliwell, in appropriate terms, moved that a vote of thanks to Bro. Heys for this token of the esteem in which he held the welfare and interest of the lodge be passed, and recorded on the minutes. Bro. J. T. Newbold seconded the motion, which was carried with acclamation. The good wishes of the several visiting brethren having been given, the lodge was finally closed at 9.30, and the brethren adjourned to a social meet. It is understood at present that the next meeting of the lodge will not be held until September or October, but, considering the amount of work in hand, with the usual contingencies, we should certainly counsel at least one other meeting before that time. That "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is very true, but it is much better to mix things a little than to have a long period of relaxation, and then find one's hands heavily weighed down with business.

TIVERTON.—ST. PETER'S LODGE (No. 1125).—At the last regular lodge the locale chosen for the summer banquet was Dulverton, situate about 12 miles from Tiverton, just within the borders of the adjoining province of Somerset, and the day named the 1st of July. Accordingly on Thursday morning last a party of the brethren started by "brake" and other conveyances for a charming drive along the banks of the Exe and the Barle for their destination. The richly wooded scenery of the narrow and winding vale through which they passed wore its most picturesque and luxuriant aspect, and was the theme of constant admiration, although familiar to many present. The course then diverged from the Dulverton road to Pixton Park, permission to visit which had been kindly accorded by the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, and the Dowager Countess, who is at present residing there. Here the brethren, alighting from their vehicles, very pleasantly passed an hour or two in exploring the beauties of the park and gardens, under the courteous guidance of the steward and head gardener, and watching the graceful movements of the numerous deer, Bro. Gill giving additional interest to the short tour by observations on the flora and topography of the district. An adjournment next took place to the Lion Hotel, where a very excellent and well appointed dinner was provided by Bro. King. The company comprised Bros. Parkhouse, W.M.; Mills, P.M., P.G.O., Secretary; Davey, P.M.; Gill, as S.W.; Crabb, as J.W.; Partridge, Charleby, Payne, H. Melhuish, J. Melhuish, Martin, Coleby, Wood, Bartlett, Snell, Shephard, Vaughan, King, Arbery, Capron, and others. The after dinner speeches were of the shortest description, and the brethren returned to Tiverton in the evening, highly delighted with their day's outing.

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—Meeting for regular business at Royal Archer, Dale-street, on Saturday, July 3rd, 1875. Business commenced at 4.30 p.m. Minutes of last regular meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Kinder, P.M., then proceeded to initiate Mr. Henry James Oldham, which he did in such an efficient manner as to merit the approval of all the brethren. The Worshipful Master delivered the charge after initiation very impressively. The next business was to take the feeling of the lodge respecting the motions to be brought forward by Bro. Turner, I.P.M., the two most important being for the raising of the subscription to three guineas per annum, and also raising the initiation fee to seven guineas, including proposition fee. The one for raising the subscription was lost, and on the other being brought before the brethren by the I.P.M., Bro. Pearson, S.W., who is noted for his eloquence by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance, very ably brought forward as an amendment that the fee should be six guineas, including initiation fee. On the votes being taken the amendment was carried by a small majority. The W.M. then announced that the committee appointed to lease private premises had been successful, and concluded a lease for five years of rooms at Newton Heath. This being the neighbourhood for which the warrant was originally granted, will no doubt meet with the approval of every member; the lease dates from December, 1875, to December, 1880. Business being concluded, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 6.30. Supper was provided by the worthy host, Bro. Potts, in his usual good manner, and thoroughly appreciated. The usual toasts having been given and responded to, the brethren separated at an early hour, after spending an evening where profit and pleasure were combined. All the officers were punctual with one exception, and the exception being from unforeseen circumstances.

EPWORTH.—ISLE OF AXHOLME LODGE (No. 1482).—The installation of W.M. and investment of officers for the ensuing year took place on Thursday, the 1st inst., at the Masonic Hall, Epworth. The lodge has only been in existence one year, but we are glad to find that it already numbers nearly a score of brethren, and there appears every prospect of its developing into a prosperous and useful little lodge. On the present occasion we noticed several brethren from neighbouring lodges who had assembled to do honour to the W.M. elect, and to manifest their interest in the welfare of the lodge. Amongst these were Bros. F. D. Marsden, of Louth, the P.G. Secretary for Lincolnshire; F. D. Walker, W.M.; Rigby, P.M.; Bentley, P.M.; Nicholson, P.M.; and Heaton, S.W., of St. George's Lodge, No. 242, Doncaster; and Alfred Kirke, P.M., of the Yarboro' Lodge, No. 422, Gainsboro. Bro. Alfred Parkin, who as the W.M. designated by the Warrant of Constitution had filled the chair during the past year, was again elected by the brethren to that honourable position. The ceremony of installation was admirably performed by Bro. Marsden, the P.G. Secretary, after which the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year. These were Bros. W. E. Howlett, I.P.M.; Johnstone, S.W.; Bell, J.W.; Alfred Taylor, Sec. and Treas.; Rev. W. M. Anderson, Chaplain; John Campbell, S.W.; James Benson, J.D.; Henry Campbell, I.G.; and Naylor, Tyler. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, where an excellent banquet was provided, to which ample justice was done. Bro. Howlett officiating as Director of Ceremonies. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and the brethren separated at an early hour, having spent both as regards labour and refreshment a very enjoyable evening.

ROCHFORD.—LODGE OF TRUE FRIENDSHIP (No. 160).—The annual festival of St. John the Baptist was celebrated by the brethren of this old and distinguished lodge at the Old Ship Inn, Rochford, on Thursday, the 24th June. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. A. Wardell, P.M. and Sec. 1000, and P.P.J.G.D., assisted by his officers. After the transaction of the usual business, the installation of Bro. Joseph Reeve as W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, the ceremony being most efficiently and impressively performed by Bro. Wm. Pissay, P.M. 160, and P.P.J.G.W., assisted by Bro. A. Lucking, W.M. 1000, P.M. 160, and Prov. A.G.D.C., acting as Director of Ceremonies. The W.M. appointed and invested the following officers:—Bros. J. A. Wardell, P.M. and Sec. 1000, and P.P.J.G.D., I.P.M.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, S.W. and Chaplain; F. V. Jillings, J.W.; H. Wood, P.M. 160 and P.P.G.O. (re-elected for the twentieth time), Treasurer; G. Burgess, P.M. 160, and P.P.J.G.D., (reappointed for the twentieth time), Secretary; W. Allen, S.D.; T. W. Gower, J.D.; A. Harrington, I.G.; A. Lucking, W.M. 1000, P.M. 160, and Prov. A.G.D.C., Director of Ceremonies; A. Winnill and J. Harrington, Stewards; J. Allen, reappointed Tyler. Besides the above the following brethren were present:—Bros. W. T. Allen, P.M. 160, and P.P.A.G.D.C.; G. F. Browning, P.M. 160, and P.P.J.G.W.; F. Wiseman, P.M. 160; Edward Judd, P.M. 160, and P.P.G.R.; E. E. Phillips, S.W. 1000, P.M. Lodge of Honour, Bath, No. 379; G. Goodman, G. Gosling, W. Bishop. Visitors: Bros. J. C. Mason, J.D., Prince Frederick William Lodge, No. 753; W. C. Bell, S.D., St. Peter's Lodge, No. 1204; Edwin Bonner, I.G., Eastern Star Lodge, No. 95; J. H. Spencer, Mount Lebanon Lodge, No. 73; G. F. Jones, Priory Lodge, No. 1000. The lodge being closed, the brethren, twenty-six in number, adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Host Bro. H. D. Brown, and presided over by the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured, and the brethren spent a very enjoyable evening, which was enlivened by some very excellent songs given by Bros. H. Wood, Hatch, Bonner, F. Wiseman, Gower, Josling, Mason, J. Harrington, and others. During the evening a telegram was received from Bro. J. W. Carr, P.M. 160, Prov. Grand Secretary, announcing that the Provincial Grand Lodge for 1875 would be held at Rochford on Tuesday, the 20th July.

TEDDINGTON.—FELIX LODGE (No. 1494).—This lodge held its meeting on Saturday, 26th ult., at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, Bro. Edward B. Grabham, W.M., in the chair, assisted by Bros. C. Miles, P.M. 1365, acting as S.W., in the absence of Major George Barlow (prevented by illness from attending); F. S. Knyvett, J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, M.A., Vicar of Upminster, Essex, Chaplain; F. B. Archer, S.D.; W. G. Moore, J.D.; Capt. Lathbury, I.G.; E. S. Norris, Secretary. The lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. J. Melville Curtis and Bro. Drew having satisfied the brethren with their proficiency in the former degree, were then entrusted, and afterwards passed to the Second Degree by the W.M. A ballot was taken for Mr. Hanson, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Smith, which proved unanimous in their favour the former two gentlemen being in attendance; were then separately initiated into the Craft. This being the regular period of installation, Bro. Knyvett, J.W., and W.M. elect, was then presented by Bro. R. W. Little, Prox. Grand Secretary of Middlesex, to the W.M. for installation, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Grabham in the most able and impressive manner, the addresses to the W.M., officers, and brethren, being listened to with marked attention. The W.M. invested Bros. Edward B. Grabham, I.P.M.; Major Geo. Barlow, S.W.; F. B. Archer, J.W.; R. Berridge, S.D.; W. G. Moore, J.D.; and E. E. Whitford, I.G.; E. S. Norris, the able and efficient Secretary, was again re-invested, to the satisfaction of all the brethren of the lodge. The initiation of Mr. A. H. Smith was then proceeded with, and the W.M. showed great ability in the performance of the ceremony. By the unanimous vote of the lodge, it was determined to submit the name of Bro. Grabham, retiring Master, to the favourable notice of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex for Provincial Grand Office. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer, and the brethren retired to a sumptuous banquet, presided over by the W.M. On the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. "The Health of the Grand Officers" was responded to in eloquent terms by Bro. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B., who gracefully alluded to the valued services rendered to the lodge by Bro. Grabham, whose year of office has been signalized by very great success. Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer, in responding for "The Provincial Grand Officers," congratulated the brethren in having elected Bro. Knyvett to the W.M. chair, and wished every prosperity to the lodge in the coming year. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Retiring W.M.," and in felicitous terms referred to the considerable services rendered by him during his year of office. In the name of the lodge it afforded him sincere pleasure to present Bro. Grabham with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented by the Felix Lodge, No. 1494, to Bro. Edward B. Grabham, P.M., as a tribute of respect for the able and courteous manner in which he discharged the duties of W.M. during 1874-5, being the year of Consecration of the lodge, of which he was the principal founder." Bro. Grabham, in thanking the W.M. and brethren for this mark of their esteem, assured them that it gave him great pleasure to have contributed any service to the lodge, and his assistance was always at the disposal of the W.M. and brethren whenever he might be called upon. He then took the opportunity of proposing "The Health of the W.M.," whom he had known for some years, and assured the lodge that in Bro. Knyvett they would find a Master in every respect worthy of their confidence. The W.M. having thanked the brethren, Bro. R. W. Little responded to the toast of "The Charities," and expressed his feelings of satisfaction at the present satisfactory condition of the lodge, which had recently been represented by the W.M. as Steward at the Girls' Festival. Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden returned thanks for "The Visitors," and in their name, as well as in his own, wished the lodge every prosperity. "The Health of the Officers" having been responded to by Bro. Archer, J.W., and the Tyler's toast given, the meeting separated, the visitors having expressed themselves highly pleased with the hospitality received.

FUNERAL LODGE IN MEMORY OF BRO. WILLIAM THOMSON, P.M. 333.

This solemn, but grand and impressive Masonic ceremony, took place in St. Mark's, No. 102, Masonic Hall, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on Friday, the 2nd inst. The late Bro. Robertson was an old member of the lodge, and ever since his connection with it had taken a very active part in the management of its affairs. He had a considerable knowledge of Masonic law; his kind disposition, his warmheartedness, and the great regard he had for the feelings and opinions of others, rendered him a most able and popular R.W.M. About seven o'clock the proceedings were commenced, with the funeral march from "Saul," the brethren forming in procession to take up their respective places in the lodge, which, along with the clothing of the brethren, was draped in mourning suitable for the occasion, Bro. Alex. Thomson, R.W.M. of St. George, 333, taking his place in the chair, and Wardens in their respective chairs. The R.W.M. was supported by Bros. Rev. Geo. Stewart Burns, of the Cathedral, Provincial Grand Chaplain; John Winton, P.M.; Robt. Adam, P.M.; J. McFarlane, D.M.; Jas. Findlay, S.M.; Thos. S. Thomson, Treas.; Arch. McIntyre, Sec.; F. Mitchell, R.W.M., St. Mark, 102; J. Forsyth, S.W.; Robt. Anderson, J.W.; Jas. Allan, S.D.; Thos. Hill, J.D. There was a large attendance of members of the lodge, and the following sister lodges were also well represented, viz.: Mother Kilwinning, 0; St. Mark, 102; St. John, Shettleston, 128; Commercial, 360; Athol, 413; Glasgow, 441; St. John, Busby, 458; St. Andrew, 465; and Clydesdale, 556. Bro. Thos. Halket, R.W.M. St. Mark, 102, presided at the harmonium, and Bro. Rankin conducted the vocal music. The lodge was opened, passed, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, in order that the ceremony might be performed in full Masonic rite.

The oration of Bro. Burns, P.G. Chaplain, was most eloquent and powerful; reviewing in graceful terms the many virtues and noble qualities of the departed brother. He concluded as follows, referring to those whom their departed brother had left so sadly bereaved:—"Let us record our sympathy with them—let us commend them to the care of Him who has promised to be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless—to His care who blessed the little children—to the care of the Great Father, whose might is displayed alike in spreading the universe and in providing for the humblest of his creatures, and who has promised that He will never leave nor forsake any who put their trust in him." This concluded the programme of the evening, when the R.W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. Burns for his great kindness in being with them to take part in the ceremony, the same to be engrossed on the minutes. Dr. Burns acknowledged the compliment. The R.W.M. then proposed a vote of thanks to Bros. T. Halket and Rankin for their musical assistance. After thanking the visiting brethren for their attendance, many of them, as he remarked, having come from a considerable distance, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place in their hall, situate at No. 213, Buchanan-street, on the 6th inst. The meeting was exceedingly well attended, even for St. John No. 34, which invariably commands a large attendance of brethren at its meetings. Bro. W. Bell, R.W.M., presided, Bro. Louttit acting S.W.; D. Horn, J.W. The R.W.M. was supported on the dais by Bros. J. B. Walker, P.M.; J. McInnes, P.M. 27; J. Davidson, P.M. 360; Godfrey, Sec. 1074, E.C.; R. Dalziel, Treas.; J. Dick, Sec., &c. Bro. McFarlane, Doctor of Music, presided at the harmonium. Brethren from the following sister lodges were also present:—Mother Kilwinning, No. 0, Nos. 27, 51, 114, 194, 180, 215, 219, 275, 360, 408, 413, 441, 553. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, also those of a special meeting, which were confirmed. There were six applications for admittance into Freemasonry in this lodge, viz., Messrs. R. Pedie, proposed and seconded by Bros. Gilchrist and King; John Neilson, proposed and seconded by Bros. Bell, R.W.M., and King; H. O. B. Stevenson, proposed and seconded by Bros. Bell and Murray; Alexander Curric, proposed and seconded by Bros. Gilland and Couper; J. H. Allan, proposed and seconded by Bros. Robb and Gilchrist; Alexander Blackwood, proposed and seconded by Bros. Gilland and Couper. The ballot was found clear, when they were prepared for and received the First Degree, Bro. Bell, R.W.M., very ably working. The lodge was then passed to the Second Degree. Bros. William Graham and R. Wood McMurphy were intrusted with this degree, Bro. Louttit officiating. The R.W.M. said it gave him great pleasure to inform the members of the lodge that Bro. Rutherford had presented them with a very beautiful photograph of Roslin Chapel, as a memento of their annual excursion, and thanked Bro. Rutherford in the name of the lodge for his handsome present. He also said Bro. Rutherford had been successful in taking a good group of all the brethren present on the occasion, copies of which could be had from Bro. Rutherford. He then proposed that a vote of thanks should be given to Bro. Kerr, who accompanied them that day and described to them the Chapel, Castle, Hawthornden, and the various interesting objects in that beautiful district. Bro. Kerr, he remarked, was a great authority as an antiquarian, he had rendered valuable services to Masonry from time to time, and this was by no means the first time he had delighted and instructed the brethren of St. John, 34, on their annual excursions. He, therefore, thought they should transmit a vote of thanks to him, and engross it in their minutes. Bro. J. B. Walker, P.M., seconded this, which was unanimously agreed to. Bro. D. Horn, J.W., then proposed that the fees of Lodge St. John, 34, be raised to £5 5s. He said the fees were, no doubt, raised last year, but they were, in his opinion, still too low. They were all striving to do what they could to maintain and elevate the character of Freemasonry, and he thought this a step in the right direction. Bro. R. Dalziel seconded this, which was agreed to. It will, therefore, come on for final decision in three months hence. Bro. Bell then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the visiting brethren for their presence with them that night, coupled with Bro. Godfrey, Sec. 1074, E.C., who returned thanks in a most graceful manner for the compliment paid to the visiting brethren and himself. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE KILWINNING (No. 4) held their regular monthly meeting in their hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 7th inst. The meeting was well attended. Bro. A. Thorburn, R.W.M., in the chair; N. S. Henderson, S.W.; Geo. Holm, J.W.; J. Currie, Sec.; Dixon, Treas., and a large number of well qualified brethren. The minutes were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Bro. Dobson, asking the use of their hall from 3 to 6 o'clock on behalf of the new Masonic Lodge "Dramatic," which was agreed to. There were two applications for initiation, viz., Messrs. H. Paterson and D. Hunter all being satisfactory, they received the E.A. Degree, the R.W.M. officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Second Degree, when these two brothers were entrusted with that degree, the R.W.M. again working. This finished the business before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE AND ROSE (No. 73).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 6th inst. The lodge was opened by Bro. McDonald, R.W.M.; Bros. W. McGregor, S.W.; B. Kay, J.W.; Bannerman, D.M., Chaplain; G. W. Wheeler; T. Yuille, J.D., &c. The meeting was well attended, and a number of visiting brethren were present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed. The lodge then passed to the F.C. Degree, when two brothers were instructed in that degree, the R.W.M. officiating; on the lodge being raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., two brothers were intrusted with this, the R.W.M. again officiating, after which the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

SHETTLESTON.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 128).—A meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge-room, Shettleston, on the 7th inst.; the R.W.M., Bro. J. Campbell, in the chair; Bros. Chas. Webster, S.W.; Baird, J.W.; and other office-bearers, along with a number of well qualified brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and confirmed, the lodge was raised to the degree of M.M. Bros. Alex. Murray and Ferner were entrusted with the Sublime Degree, Bro. J. Campbell, R.W.M., performing the ceremony in an able manner. This was all the business before the lodge, and it was then closed in due and ancient form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CORNWALL.

The annual Grand Lodge Meeting of the Freemasons of the Province of Cornwall was held Thursday, 8th inst., at Callington, and the good people of that busy town shewed their appreciation of the visit by giving to the fraternity a right hearty welcome. Although Callington is so difficult of approach from all points on the Cornish Railway there was a remarkably strong muster of the brotherhood, not a few of whom came up from the extreme west of the county, and in spite of all the inconveniences the meeting was one of the most pleasant and successful that has been held for many years past.

Business was commenced shortly after ten o'clock in the National School-rooms, which the rector had kindly placed at the disposal of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and which were admirably fitted up for the purposes required of them. The Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Provincial Grand Master, presided, and there were also present: Prov. Grand Officers.—Bros. Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., D.P.G.M.; R. Rogers, P.P.D.G.M.; E. T. Carlyon, P.P.G.S.W., and P.G. Sec.; Colonel Peard, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Chirgwin, P.P.G.J.W.; R. John, P.P.G.D.C.; Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, G.C.B.; R. A. Courtney, P.G.D.C.; G. Roseveare, P.G.S. Works; S. Tew, P.P.G.T. of Devon; R. Rodda, P.P.G.R. of Devon; T. S. Bayly, P.P.G.T. of Devon; T. Taylor, P.P.G.S.D.; H. Cochrane, P.P.G.S.; I. Latimer, P.G.J.W., Devon; E. Aitken Davies, P.P.G.S. Wks., Devon; Edward Poor, P.G.P.; J. Cardew, P.G.S.; the Rev. A. H. Cummings, P.G. Chaplain; the Rev. G. L. Church, P.P.G. Chaplain; W. D. Pearce, P.P.G.S.W.; W. Rookes, P.A.G.P.; J. B. Kerswill, P.G.S.B.; F. J. Hext, P.P.G.S.W.; Captain O'Neil, P.P.G.S.B.; the Rev. J. Sedgwick, Chaplain of Victoria Lodge, Callington, and Past Grand Chaplain of England; E. J. Worth, P.P.G.J.W.; Captain H. G. Colvill, P.P.G.S.W.; G. Kerswill, P.P.G.J.W.; E. Commings, P.G.R.; W. T. Parson, P.P.G.S.; W. N. Abbott, P.G.S.; P. Giles, P.P.G.S.; R. Rich, P.P.J.G.W.; J. Beswetherick, P.P.G.S. Works; J. Kempthorne, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Paull, P.P.G.S.D.; P. B. Clemens, P.P.G. Organist, Devon; E. M. Cock, P.G.S.; W. H. Bickford, P.G.S.D.; the Rev. A. H. Ferris, P.G. Chaplain; the Rev. W. H. Bloxsome, P.P.G. Chaplain; S. Holloway, P.P.J.D.; J. Hocking, junr., P.P.G.J.D.; J. Polkinghorne, P.P.G. Tyler; E. D. Anderton, P.P.G.S.W.; F. Dinnes, P.P.G.S.; W. Guy, P.P.G.D.C.; H. Steele, P.P.G.D.C.; G. W. Trenery, P.P.G.S.B.; J. Ough, P.P.G.J.D.; G. E. Alexander, P.P.G.O., Devon; C. T. Pearce, P.P.G.S.D.; Charles Trevithick, P.G.A.D.C.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.A.D.C., Devon.

Past Masters.—W. Tonkin, 977; C. Spear, 557; H. Sargent, 789; N. Henwood, 1164; G. Bate, 557; J. H. Tonkin, 282; J. Harris, 557; W. Foxwell, 1071; J. Deeble, 1071; J. Hill, 970; J. Gerry, 510; W. Hawkins, 789; G. C. Archer, 789; J. H. Filmer, 893; J. T. Brooking, 1071; W. J. Harris, 893; W. Coath, 893; J. Baxter, 954; J. Sims, 589; R. Hooper, 510; F. Thorne, 789; M. Dennis, 557; S. Seccombe, 510; W. Giles, 496; T. White, 510; T. Gill, 967; E. Scantlebury, 856; C. Trusscott, junr., 496; A. T. Grant, 318; M. Little, 75; W. Polkinghorne, 1191; T. Polglase, 75; W. H. Dunstan, also W.M. of 75; J. H. Mitchell, 589; G. Barnes, 1164; T. Hatherly, 1071; T. Goodall, 954; and J. Dampney, 1071.

Worshipful Masters.—R. Truscott, 1136; J. P. Creber, 1164; Isaac Dawe, 970; S. J. Goodman, 1071; J. Hallcombe, 967; T. J. Rowe, 121; W. Loye, 496; T. Olver, junr., 131; J. Chegwidden, 510; T. B. Richards, 557; and J. Rendle, 1247.

Besides these there was a large number of other brethren present, there being altogether about three hundred in attendance.

After the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Meeting had been read,

The Prov. Grand Master delivered a short address to the brethren, in the course of which he said:—"I must thank you for your attendance here to-day in very much larger numbers than I should have expected. I know that the situation of Callington is one very difficult of access for a great number of brethren in the county, and I regret it because I do feel that I am bound quite as much in fixing the locality for the Provincial Grand Meeting, to consider the general convenience of the brethren throughout the province as I am the claims of any particular lodge. (Hear, hear.) But at the same time I believe you will agree with me that a promise is a promise. Callington had received a promise from my respected predecessor several years ago that the next meeting should be held here. At any rate, if it was not a promise it was an understood thing, but on two occasions the brethren here expressed their willingness to waive any claims they had, on account of special circumstances which made it desirable to hold the meeting in another place. On the present occasion there was no such special reason, and therefore I thought I should only be doing what was fair and proper in holding the present meeting in this town—(hear, hear), and I think your presence in such considerable numbers shews that you are willing to support me in the course that I have adopted. (Applause.) His Lordship here made reference to the great sympathy which the Masons of the province manifested towards him in his affliction last year, but he was so greatly overcome that bursting into tears he was for some moments unable to proceed. Encouraged by the sympathetic cheers of the brethren he eventually continued:—"I would remind you of the visit which H.R.H. the Prince of Wales paid to Plymouth in August last. I feel sure that that visit was a subject of general congratulation to the province, and that the meeting was in every respect a most successful one. We can all look back upon that meeting with satisfaction, not only on account of the hearty welcome which we gave to the Duke of Cornwall, but also because of the exceedingly pleasant and harmonious manner in which the two Provincial Grand Lodges of Devon and Cornwall worked together on that occasion. (Cheers.) On both sides everything was done to meet the other in the most fraternal and friendly manner. It is rather an unusual thing for Grand Lodges to meet together in that way, and it must have been a matter of great satisfaction that it was so pleasantly and successfully carried out. (Hear, hear.) I believe that up to that time there had been very seldom anywhere in England so large a gathering or so fine a display of Masonry as that which took place in the Guildhall at Plymouth, and I can assure you that the Prince expressed his sense of it in the most unqualified terms. He was distinctly and unmistakably struck with the reception that he met with. The determinations of men are often regulated by an aggregate of different motives, and if we could think that the reception which the Prince had on that occasion—showing, as it evidently did, the vitality of Masonry in this part of the country and the loyalty of those connected with it—should have been one of the causes which perhaps induced him to look as favourably upon Masonry as to accept the high office which he now holds, I think that meeting will not only be satisfactory to those who attended it, but will be considered in a certain degree to have benefited Masonry throughout the country. (Applause.) I dare say, too, that there are many Masons here who were present at the magnificent ceremony which took place in London at the installation of the Prince. I believe that was quite an unprecedented demonstration of Masons, and it certainly was a most magnificent sight. (Hear, hear.) The Cornish brethren must, I am sure, have been excessively well pleased at the position they occupied in that splendid hall, and I think we must acknowledge with pleasure the indefatigable and successful exertions on that occasion of the two Stewards, Bro. John and Bro. Courtenay, who did much to facilitate the comfort and convenience of the brethren from Cornwall. (Cheers.) You have heard that three new lodges have been formed in the province. The warrants are obtained and paid for, and I trust that the consecration of the lodges will not long be delayed. I am glad to see also that the number of Masons has increased, and I congratulate the province upon the gradual removal of lodges from houses of public entertainment to private rooms. (Hear, hear.) That is a thing which cannot be done very rapidly; it generally entails expense and trouble to get a building, and in some places it is almost impossible, but it is very satisfactory to see that it is gradually being worked out. (Hear, hear.) While speaking of the increase of Masons' lodges I don't think it out of place to repeat what I said on a former occasion. It is this, that I hope very great care will be taken by all concerned in the selection of proper candidates for initiation. (Hear, hear, and applause.) I do not say this because I have any reason to animadvert upon selections that have already been made, but the mere fact of Masonry being at the present time so flourishing in the country, and the fact of the Prince of Wales having taken such a leading part in it to make it popular and flourishing, renders it more necessary for us to be especially careful (hear, hear), for there can be no doubt that there is a temptation when we are so successful, for men to join it simply from motives which are not in the least Masonic, perhaps not decidedly unworthy motives, but still not motives that we desire to encourage. They may wish to join it because it may be likely to assist them in their business or professions, but that is not exactly one's idea of the spirit which should actuate men who desire to become Masons. We do not want a man to join because he thinks that having the square and compasses over his door will help him in his business. (Hear, hear.) In the first instance I will address myself to the Worshipful Masters, and ask them to be especially careful not to sanction the admission of candidates of whom they cannot personally approve, but at the same time, I must impress this upon you, that whilst I do not wish to encourage factious black-balling, yet there is a great responsibility resting upon the members themselves, who should be very cautious not to vote for candidates without due and proper thought upon the subject. The test which I should recommend is this—it may be thought a very high one, but still I should keep it in view—when a candidate is proposed for initiation, I should ask myself not only whether he is a man whom I should mind having in the lodge, but whether he is a man whom I should like to see as W.M. (Hear, hear, and applause.) If this were acted upon I am quite sure you would not elect those who are unworthy of it. In concluding his remarks his lordship referred in highly complimentary terms to the great exertions put forward by Bro. Hughan on behalf of local candidates for the different Masonic charities, and said he was quite sure the whole province felt deeply grateful to him for it. (Hear, hear.) He also read a letter which had been received from Bro. Metham, D.P.G.M. of Devon, thanking the different lodges for their contributions to the new wing of the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke, and stating that the whole province had contributed about £150. (Applause.)

The report of the Provincial Grand Treasurer was then read, and from this it appeared that the balance in hand at the last provincial meeting was £64 13s. 2d. The expenditure during the year included the sums of £25 voted to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund; £20 on account of festival expenses at Bodmin; and £47 17s. 4d., a moiety of the expenses of the United P.G. Lodges of Devon and Cornwall on the occasion of the visit of the Right Worshipful Bro. the Prince of Wales to Plymouth. The principal items on the other side were £13 15s., the amount of the collection after last year's sermon; £18 18s. fees of honour, and £133 7s. 6d. lodge fees. The balance now in hand is £46 4s. 11d.

The Provincial Grand Secretary, in his report, stated that the number of lodges in the province at the present time was 27, against 24 last year, the additional lodges being the Fort Lodge, 1528, Newquay; the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, 1529, St. Columb; and the Mount Edgcombe Lodge, 1544, Camborne. The initiations in the past year numbered 177; in the previous year, 176; the joining members were 54, against 36; the members were 1009, against 929; making a total of 1240 as compared with 1141 in the previous year. The total increase of members during the past year was 99.

The report respecting the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund was read by Bro. Chirgwin. It stated that the subscriptions and donations from various lodges in the province since the 1st of January amounted to £142 10s. The credit balance at the last account was £290 5s. 6d., and the subscriptions and donations for 1874, together with interest on stocks, amounted to £190 1s. 6d., making a total of £480 7s. The cost of their various stock was £1099 1s. 6d., and this realised an annual income of £95 19s. The balance at their banker's was £261 9s., and this made their total capital account £2260 10s. 6d., against £2049 15s. 3d. last year. (Applause.)

The Committee of Relief reported that they had received two petitions from two subscribing members, and, as they had ascertained that the cases were deserving ones, they recommended that £8 be given in the one case, and £10 in the other. Other relief had been given during the year.

Bro. Hughan, in his report respecting his management of the votes for the London Masonic Charities on behalf of the Province of Cornwall, said he collected the proxies in October, 1874, and polled them on behalf of a little girl whose father had been a member of Lodge Fortitude, Truro. She was elected out of twenty-nine applicants with 778 votes, only seventy-nine of which were received from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall and subordinate lodges. An old and esteemed Master of St. Martin's Lodge, Liskeard, was amongst those elected to receive £36 per annum. He received 740 votes, and was ninth on the list out of thirty-three candidates. (Applause.) Both the girl and the indigent Mason were elected on the first application, within about six months of each other, a fact hitherto unprecedented in the West. The total votes for the two candidates amounted to 1328, of which 179 were obtained directly from members in Cornwall. The remainder he obtained by exchange, and by borrowing from other provinces. Without the large number of votes which the Right Worshipful Bro. Sir F. M. Williams always placed in the hands of the Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund and himself, for the use of the province of Cornwall (directly and indirectly), it would be simply impossible to carry the candidates who had been successful during the last seven years. The total votes so obtained annually from Bro. Sir Frederick M. Williams have amounted to at least 284. (Applause.) During the last seven years about £2500 have been secured to the province, calculating the value of the annuities and the number of years that the children had been educated, fed, and clothed, and to secure this not one penny had been spent by the province, excepting the grants made to the institution, which had been small.

These various reports were received and adopted; the Treasurer, Secretary, and Auditors of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund, the Relief Committee, and the Provincial Grand Treasurer, and two Auditors were re-elected; Bro. Matthew Doney, of Bodmin, secured an annuity of £20 a year for life by a majority of 508 votes to 40 for Bro. Lean, of Chacewater; and a grant of £10 was voted to the widow of the late Bro. T. Vicarey, of Falmouth.

The Prov. Grand Master next [appointed the following brethren as his officers for the coming year:—Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., D.P.G.M.; Thomas Chirgwin, 131, P.G.S.W.; Bro. J. Peter, 557, P.G.J.W.; the Rev. Alfred Cummings, 131, P.G.S. Chaplain; Rev. J. Lethbridge, 789, P.G.J. Chaplain; J. P. Lyne, 510, P.G. Registrar; E. T. Carlyon, 331, P.G. Sec.; W. Middleton, 131, P.G.S.D.; H. Cochran, 1136, P.G.J.D.; W. H. Dunstan, 75, P.G.S. Works; Charles Trevithick, 1272, P.G.D.C.; J. Sims, 589, P.G.A.D.C.; C. Truscott, 496, P.G.S.B.; W. W. Dymond, 557, P.G. Organist; F. Dennis, 75, P.C. Pursuivant; Rookes, 331, P.G.A. Pursuivant; A. Grant, 318, T. Gill, 967; J. H. Filmer, 893; W. Polkinghorne, 1151; J. Hill, 970; J. Hawkins, 789, Stewards; R. Penwarden, 510, Tyler.

The sum of £25 was voted to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund; £10 10s. to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in London; £10 10s. to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; and £10 10s. to the Institution for Aged Freemasons.

This concluded the business of the Prov. Grand Lodge.

At noon the brethren, headed by the band of the Callington Volunteers, marched in procession to church, where an admirable sermon was preached by the Rev. A. Cummings, P.G. Chaplain, from the words "Honour all men; love the brotherhood; fear God, and honour the King." The collection amounted to £11 14s., of which one-fifth will go to the rector, and the remainder to the Callington Dispensary. The sermon will be printed.

The annual banquet was provided at Golding's Hotel, and was partaken of by more than a hundred brethren, under the presidency of the Rt. W. Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcombe.

After dinner the usual loyal toasts were proposed from the chair. His lordship, in proposing "The Health of the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England," said he was quite sure they would all wish his Royal Highness the most hearty success in the great expedition he was now about to undertake in that great empire of which he would one day be the ruler.

The next toast was that of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge." The Prov. Grand Master remarked that both their lordships were personal friends of his own, and he was perfectly certain that as long as they wore the collars which had been entrusted to them by the Grand Master of England they would do credit to the Grand Lodge, and maintain its authority. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. the Rev. J. Sedgwick, P.G. Chaplain of England, responded.

Bro. Col. Peard, amidst loud applause, proposed "The Health of the Earl of Mount Edgcombe, Prov. Grand Master of Cornwall." Over and over again his lordship had proved himself to be the right man in the right place, and they had great reason to be proud that he presided over the province. (Cheers.)

The Prov. G.M., who was received with hearty cheering, said it must always be the greatest possible satisfaction to him to feel, as he sincerely believed he could feel, that he had the fraternal feeling of the province with him, to assist him in the work which he had to do. (Hear, hear.) He was glad indeed that there were such cordial relations established between himself and the Masons of the province, but it would be small satisfaction to him if he thought that this was intended as a personal compliment only. He hoped those relations would always enable them to work harmoniously and unanimously for the benefit of Masonry throughout the province. (Applause.) That was the object which they all should have in view, and if they heard anything from outsiders to the detriment of Freemasonry, or if they saw anything in the conduct of Mason to justify those remarks being made, he hoped they would remember the words in Scripture which preceded the text from which such an admirable sermon was preached that morning by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, and always take care by well-doing to put to silence the ignorance of foolish men. (Cheers.)

Bro. Carlyon gave "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master and Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Cornwall," and Bros. Sir F. M. Williams and R. Rogers responded.

Bro. Peters, P.G.J.W., in returning thanks for "The P.G. Wardens, and the other Provincial Grand Officers, past and present," thanked Admiral Sir Henry Keppel for having lent so many flags for the decoration of the town, the lodge room, and the dining rooms. (Applause.)

The Prov. G.M. proposed "The Visitors," and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, who, he said, was not only the very essence of all that was plucky and brave, but his heart was as warm, and his hand as open to the assistance of a friend or brother, as any man in the country. (Cheers.)

Bro. Admiral Keppel, who was very heartily greeted, said it was so far east as Singapore that he was initiated into Masonry thirty-five years ago, but it was not until he came into the West of England, and mixed with the many noble fellows in Masonry in this part of the country, that he began thoroughly to appreciate its advantages and its beauty. (Cheers.)

The Past Grand Chaplain, in returning thanks for the toast of his health, said the more he saw of Masonry the more he admired and revered it, and he added that he had travelled two thousand miles to be present that day.

The other toasts were "The Lodges of the Province," coupled with the W.M. of Loyal Victoria Lodge, Callington, and "The Masons' toast."

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUFFOLK.

Monday, the 5th inst., was a gala day at Bury St. Edmund's, which, as all the world knows, is the capital of West Suffolk—a town full of interest to the Antiquarian and Archaeologist, and therefore to the Freemason. It is said by some to have been a Roman station, and to have been the Villa Faustini of Antoninus. By the Saxons it was called Beoderic-weord, and a monkish writer, Abbo Floriacensis, states that Beoderic, the lord of the town, bequeathed it to St. Edmund the King and Martyr, from whom it acquired its present name. Siegbert, on his accession to the throne of the East Angles in 630, founded a monastery and built a church here, and after a seven years' reign he became a monk on his own foundation. King Edmund was crowned and anointed King of East Anglia by Humbert, Bishop of Hulm, A.D. 856, and was killed in a conflict with the Danes, who then mercilessly slaughtered the Saxons. On the death of this unfortunate Prince in 870, in the 15th year of his reign and the 29th of his age, the Danes it is said cast his severed head and body into the thickest part of the woods of Eglesdene, where his body was sought by an affectionate band of loyal subjects. After a sorrowful search the body was discovered very indecently interred; it was conveyed to Hoxne and there entombed; but the head could not be found. Dividing themselves therefore into small parties, the mourners searched every quarter of the wood. Terrified by its thickness and obscurity, some of them cried out to their companions "Where are you?" A voice answered, "Here, here, here." Hastening to the place from whence the sound proceeded, they found the long sought head in a thicket of thorns, guarded by a wolf, "an unkouth thyng," says Lydgate, and strange "ageyn nature." The people, almost overpowered with joy, took the holy head, which the wolf gave up, and followed them to the place where the body rested; and after seeing the precious treasure which he had with so much care protected deposited near the body from whence it had been severed, with doleful mourning, and showing no fierceness, he returned to the woods. This was about forty days after the martyrdom of the saintly King.

About the year 903 the remains of Edmund were removed to Bury, when it was found on examination to be in a perfect state of preservation, with the head united to it, which was accounted a great miracle, but which was no doubt the result of embalment by some cunning monk. That the art of embalming was very well understood in the middle ages there can be no manner of doubt, and curiously enough in the same church which was built over the remains of St. Edmund was buried Thomas Beaufort, Duke of Exeter, son of the famous John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, an ancestor, if we mistake not, of the present Duke of Beaufort.

In the year 1773, workmen digging on the north side of the ancient church, which is, alas, no more (thanks to the dissolution of the monasteries, and the pious vandalism of the immortal and ever to be blessed Henry VIII.), came upon the leaden coffin containing the body of the Duke, which was in the most perfect state of preservation, though it had been buried 350 years.

Canute rebuilt the church of St. Edmund, and the body of the Royal martyr was deposited in a splendid shrine enriched with jewels and other costly ornaments, like the celebrated shrine of the Three Kings at Cologne.

Edward the Confessor, under whom Masonry revived, for it had been in a languishing state, frequently honoured the town with his presence, and in 1132 Henry I. repaired to Bury to perform his devotions at the shrine of St. Edmund.

A meeting of the barons was convoked here in the time of King John, when each of the nobles present went to the high altar of the church of St. Edmund, in which the assembly was held, and there swore that if the King should refuse to abolish the arbitrary Norman laws and to restore those enacted by Edward the Confessor they would make war upon him till he should comply. At first he refused, but in the year 1214 he met his barons at Bury, and with the utmost solemnity confirmed the charter of Henry I. (a copy of which had fallen into the hands of Stephen Langton, Archbishop of Canterbury), and bound himself by an oath to regulate his administration by the great principles on which it was founded. So that, equally with Runnymede, Bury is entitled to claim the honour of that celebrated Magna Charta by which the rights and liberties of England are secured.

Preston, in his illustrations of Masonry, says that when Henry VI. succeeded to the throne as a minor in 1422, Parliament endeavoured to disturb the Freemasons by passing the well-known and often quoted Act (3 Henry VI., cap. 1, A.D. 1425), "Masons shall not confederate in chapters or congregations." The act, however, was never put in force. It is said it was passed in consequence of the quarrels between Duke Humphrey of Gloucester and Henry Beaufort, then Bishop of Winchester, uncle of the Duke, who was Protector during the absence of the Duke of Bedford, then in France, Regent of the kingdom. Preston says—speaking of Duke Humphrey—"This Prince is said to have received a more learned education than was usual in his age, to have founded one of the first public libraries in England, and to have been a great patron of learned men." If the records of the society may be relied on we have reason to believe that he was particularly attached to the Masons, having been admitted into their Order, and assisted at the initiation of King Henry VI. in 1442. Encouraged by the example of the Sovereign, and allured by an ambition to excel, many lords and gentlemen of the Court were initiated into Masonry, and pursued the Art with diligence and assiduity. Preston says the King in person presided over the lodges, and nominated William Wainfleet, Bishop of Winchester, Grand Master. In 1446 a Parliament was convened at Bury, under the influence of the Queen and Beaufort, now a Cardinal, the sworn enemy of the Freemasons, when Duke Humphrey was impeached for high treason. Preparations were made for bringing him to a public trial, but it is thought his enemies, dreading the triumph of his innocence, had recourse to another method to destroy the good Duke, as he was called. He was found dead in his bed the next morning, no doubt cruelly murdered. Cardinal Beaufort scarcely survived him two months, and after his death the Masons continued to hold their lodges without fear of interruption, and under the King, who had joined them, enjoyed great prosperity. Henry VI. held another Parliament at Bury in 1448, and Henry VII. paid a visit to the town in 1486. Queen Elizabeth, in her memorable progress through Suffolk and Norfolk in the year 1578, visited Bury St. Edmund's.

Preston says that the Masons remained without any nominal head from the death of Edward VI. till the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when Sir Thomas Sackville accepted the office of Grand Master. Lodges were held during this period in different parts of England, but the General or Grand Lodge assembled in York, where the fraternity were numerous and respectable. The following circumstance is recorded of Elizabeth. Hearing that the Masons were in possession of secrets which they would not reveal, and being jealous of all secret assemblies, she sent an armed force to York with intent to break up their annual Grand Lodge. This design, however, was happily frustrated by the interposition of Sir Thomas Sackville, who took care to initiate some of the chief officers which she had sent on this duty. They joined in communication with the Masons, and made so favourable a report to the Queen on their return that she countermanded her orders, and never afterwards attempted to disturb the meetings of the fraternity.

We think we have now said enough to show what an interesting place Bury is to us Masons, and how connected the town is in one way and another with the time-honoured Craft.

The meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the "Ancient and honourable fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons" for the province of Suffolk would in the usual order of rotation have been held this year at Ipswich, but as it had been held within a few years at Ipswich, and Bury had not been visited for nine or ten years, the Ipswich brethren waived their claim and relegated to the Provincial Grand Master the appointment of the place, where the Grand Lodge should be held, it being understood that the Bury Lodge was willing and anxious to receive it. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Lord Waveney, complying with the views of the brethren in both towns, accordingly fixed on Bury for the meeting this year, but the finance meeting, which has hitherto been held on the morning of Provincial Grand Lodges, was held the previous Monday at the Freemasons' Hall, Ipswich. The day for holding the meeting is always the first Monday in July, and every exertion was made by the Bury brethren last Monday to make the meeting of 1875 a complete success, and to give their companions a most hearty welcome. The Royal St. Edmund's Lodge has within the last few years increased largely, and has become one of the most prosperous in the province. From the windows of those belonging to the Craft, and from some houses whose occupiers were not Masons, there was a display of bunting; and the bells of the old Norman Tower rang merry peals during the day. The Grand Lodge was held at the Town Hall, which was suitably fitted up for the occasion, and the handsome furniture of the St. Edmund's Lodge was used. The banners of the several lodges of the provinces were stationed in the hall in the regular order of precedence, and under their several banners the members of the lodges assembled in full Masonic costume at the hour of "high twelve." The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Lord Waveney, having opened the lodge in due form, the P.G.A. Secretary, W. E. Bailey, read the minutes of the Finance Board, which showed a disposable balance of about £60, after paying the expenses of the past year. Of this they recommended ten guineas to be given to the Masonic Boys' School, and £10 to the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, the remainder to be kept to meet urgent cases that might arise in the province.

The report was unanimously agreed to.

The R.W. Prov. Grand Master read a letter from Lord Henniker containing an invitation to all Suffolk brethren to attend the installation of the Prov. Grand Master for Norfolk by Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of England, at Norwich, in November next.

The roll of the lodges having been called over, and the representatives of the lodges having reported the progress of the year, which was in all cases most satisfactory, though it was remarked that several lodges were not represented as they should have been by their Worshipful Master, and in one or two instances lodges were not represented at all. In the latter cases the P.G.M. very properly directed the Prov. Grand Secretary to write to the lodges in question, and require an explanation of their absence.

The minutes of last Prov. Grand Lodge were taken as read, the proceedings having been printed and extensively circulated previously. Afterwards the Right Worshipful Prov. G.M. proceeded to the investiture of officers as follows:—P.G.S.W., J. Hedley Bevan, W.M. 1008; P.G.S.D., J. B. Fraser, P.M. 376; P.G.J.D., J. Turner,

P.M. 225; P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. J. B. Tweed; P.G. Supt. of Works, E. J. Robertson, P.M. 959; P.G. Dir. of Cer., Emra Holmes, P.P.G.R.; P.G. Ass. Dir. of Cer., W. Clarke, 114; P.G. Swd. B., J. R. Thompson, 1008; P.G. Purs., H. Miller, 114; P.G. Stewards, O. C. Diaper, 225; W. Sewell, 555; and E. J. Griffiths, 1008.

On the motion of Bro. W. Bobby, P.G.S.W., seconded by Bro. Dr. Mills, P.P.G.S.W., Bro. Major Huddleston, P.P.G.S.W., P.M. 1008, was elected Treasurer in the room of Bro. Spencer Freeman, who was compelled to resign through ill health.

The R. W. Prov. Grand Master, in highly eulogistic terms, proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Freeman for his long and valued services as Prov. Grand Treasurer, and expressed the unanimous feeling of regret which all the brethren felt that he was compelled to resign, and the more for the cause of his resignation. The resolution was carried most unanimously, in the manner usual among Masons.

Bro. Syer was unanimously re-elected Tyler.

Among the brethren present at the Provincial Grand Lodge were Lord Waveney, P.G.M. of Suffolk; the Rev. E. J. Lockwood, M.A., Deputy P.G.M. of Suffolk; and Bros. W. Bobby, P.G.S.W., P.M. 114; W. O. Chambers, P.G.J.W.; N. Tracy, P.P.G.J.W., W.M. 376; W. Armstrong, P.G.J.D.; S. W. Prentice, P.G.P.; T. F. Lucia, P.G.S.; W. H. Lucia, P.G. Sec.; W. E. Bailey, P.G.A., Sec.; F. Spalding, P.G.S.D., P.M. 81; Dr. Mills, P.P.G.S.W.; E. Holmes, P.P.G.R., P.G.D.C.; J. P. Sorel, P.P.G.S.D.; J. F. Hills, P.P.J.G.W.; S. H. Wright, P.P.G.S.D.; W. W. Walesby, P.P.G.S.W.; W. T. Farnham, P.G. Chaplain, Bombay; H. Goldsmith, 1008; A. Webb, 1008; J. Norman, 929; G. Roper, 936; R. Postle, 1008; A. R. Barber, 225; J. Clarke, 225; H. J. Barnard, 1273; C. Emerson, 1224; E. G. Castledine, 1008; J. G. Oliver, 1008; W. M. Neale, 1008; J. Shepherd, 1008; J. M. Harvey, 936; G. E. Jeaffreson, 555; W. J. Nunn, 1008; W. Pead, 1008; Capt. Horne, 1008; H. Thompson, 1008; J. R. Thompson, 1008; A. A. Bennett, 959; F. Bennett, 959; L. Merlin, 1118; E. Huddleston, 1008; G. Cornish, 1008; E. King, 1008; G. J. Paine, 1008; E. Fyson, 1008; W. D. Paine, 1008; P. Fitch, 1008; Rev. H. Hall, 1008; Rev. C. H. Wenn, 1008; H. Sidney, 376; A. Laughton, 1008; G. J. Keeble, 1008; F. E. Aldrich, 1008; E. J. Griffiths, Steward 1008; A. Last, 1008; T. D. Taylor, 959; W. H. Smith, 1008; T. Gardner, 1008; J. Feek, 376; T. Reed, 1224; H. Deacon, 1312; A. A. Goldsmith, 1008; P. M. Browne, 1008; H. Rolfe, 1008; F. C. Fitch, 1224; Dr. W. H. Short, 1008; C. Wing, 1008; G. F. Nunn, 1008; C. Lawrence, 88; A. Hunter, 1008; N. Garrett, P.M.; H. Luff, P.G. S. of W.; and others.

At two o'clock a procession was formed under the guidance of Bro. Emra Holmes, the Director of Ceremonies, who was very ably assisted by Bro. W. Clarke, the Asst. D.C., and the brethren were marshalled under their respective banners, and headed by Tylers with drawn swords, but without any band—none having been provided—proceeded to church. The want of a band was very much felt, and we would suggest that as music is en regle, and indeed provided for in the Book of Constitutions for public processions of Masons, it would be well if the Prov. Grand Lodge should provide a band at its own expense on another occasion, if the lodge which receives P. G. Lodge is unwilling or unable to provide one. A procession without a band is like a body without a head—and we venture these remarks for the benefit of those whom it may concern.

[The conclusion of this report will be given next week.]

DEDICATION OF THE SURREY MASONIC HALL, AND CONSECRATION OF THE SURREY MASONIC HALL LODGE (No. 1539).

On Wednesday last the new Masonic Hall for the South of London was formally dedicated to Freemasonry by Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire. The brethren began to assemble early in the afternoon, and shortly after half-past two o'clock Lord Skelmersdale arrived. He was received by Grand Secretary (Bro. Hervey); Dr. Woodman, Grand Sword Bearer; Ex-Sheriff Hutton, Past Grand Deacon; Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B.; Bro. F. Binckes, Bro. R. W. Little, Bro. Lariham, Bro. Ramsay, Bro. T. L. Green, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, Rev. P. M. Holden, Bro. H. Burr, Pro. G. Treasurer, Middlesex; Bro. E. Clark (architect of the building), Bro. John Oliver (the builder), Dr. Goldsboro, Bro. H. C. Levander, Bro. James Lewis Thomas, and several others. His lordship immediately proceeded to consecrate the building, and a procession was formed, which conducted him to the beautiful lodge-room. Assembled there to meet his lordship was a large party of brethren from different parts of London, from the province of Middlesex, and the province of Surrey. Lord Skelmersdale, who had appointed Bro. Little to act as Director of Ceremonies, requested that brother to open the lodge, which was accordingly done, Bro. Little taking the chair of W.M., Bro. John Hervey that of S.W., and Bro. Hutton that of J.W. Bro. the Rev. J. M. Vaughan was S.D.; Bro. Levander, J.D., and Bro. J. L. Thomas, I.G.; the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford acting as Chaplain. The lodge having been opened, Lord Skelmersdale took the chair of W.M. Bro. E. Clark, the architect, then approached the W.M. with the plans, which he laid on the pedestal, and explained all the different chambers which had been provided for the convenience of the brethren, the offices, banqueting room, large hall for public use, billiard-room, kitchens, cellars, &c., and informed his lordship that the object the promoters had in view was to give lodges on the Surrey side of the water an opportunity of meeting at a place other than a tavern, but with all the conveniences which a tavern could afford. In this scheme he hoped the promoters would be successful, and that the brethren of Surrey would profit by it. Lord Skelmersdale expressed his approval both of the plans and the objects of the promoters, and handed back the plans to Bro. Clark's keeping with the best wishes for the success of the enterprise. Bro. Henry Parker, who was presiding at the harmonium, then commenced playing a march, and the procession consisted of the Rev. A. F. Woodford, with the Sacred Law on a cushion, the square and compasses; Bro. Hutton, carrying the cornucopia with corn; Bro. Hervey, with wine, and Col. Burdett with oil. Dr. Woodman, with the Sword, and Lord Skelmersdale, perambulated the room, and the formal act of dedication was performed, the Rev. A. F. Woodford concluding it with the censer. Bro. Little declared the lodge duly dedicated to Freemasonry and universal benevolence, and the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford delivered the oration, which will appear in our columns next week.

After some further music, in which Bros. Farquharson and Kerr Kedge sang some beautiful anthems, the ceremony of dedication of the Surrey Masonic Hall was completed, and the consecration of the Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge was proceeded with. Lord Skelmersdale performed this ceremony also, in which the Rev. P. M. Holden acted as Chaplain, and opened the proceedings with prayer.

Bro. John Oliver (Secretary) read the warrant, while the brethren named in it were ranged in the usual place. The brethren of the lodge having signified their assent to the nominations in the warrant (which was headed with the autograph "Albert Edward," Grand Master), the Rev. P. M. Holden in delivering the oration spoke as follows:—Most Worshipful Deputy Grand Master and brethren,—Masonry is an institution founded, not as the ignorant and uninstructed vainly imagine, on unmeaning mysteries supported by mere good fellowship; but Masonry is an institution founded upon eternal reason and truth, whose deep recess is the civilisation of mankind, and whose everlasting glory it is to have the immovable support of those two mighty pillars, science and morality. In proof of this assertion of mine permit me on the present occasion, as appropriate to our present gathering, to touch very briefly indeed upon the antiquity, the extent, and the comprehensiveness of our mystic art, concluding with a very few words upon its excellence and utility. As to its antiquity—Masons of course are very well informed from their own private and interior records that the building of King Solomon's Temple is a most important era from whence they derive many mysteries of their art. Now, be it remembered that this great event, the building of King Solomon's Temple, took place 1000 years before the Christian era, and therefore a century before Homer, the first of the Grecian poets, wrote, and five centuries before Pythagoras brought from the East his sublime system of Grand Masonic Instruction to illuminate this our western world. But, remote as this period unquestionably is, we date not from thence the commencement of our art. Though it might owe to the great and glorious and wise King of Israel some of its many mystic forms and hieroglyphic ceremonies, yet the art itself is coeval with man, with man the grand subject of it; nay, in very truth we may say that it is coeval with the Creation itself, when the Sovereign Architect raised on strictly Masonic principles this beautiful globe, and commanded that master science, Geometry, to lay the rule to the planetary world and regulate by its laws the whole stupendous system. And as Masonry is of such remote antiquity, so is it, as might easily be imagined, of boundless extent. We trace its footsteps in the most distant ages and nations of the world; we find it in the first and most celebrated civilizers of the East; we can trace it from the first astronomers on the plains of Chaldea, to the wise and mystic kings and priests of Egypt, the sages of Greece, the philosophers of Rome; nay, even to the rude and Gothic builders of a dark and degenerate age, whose vast temples still remain among us as monuments of their attachment to the Masonic art, and as signal proofs of the taste which, however irregular, must always, nevertheless, be considered awful, beautiful, grand, and sublime. In very truth, in no civilised age or country has Masonry ever been neglected. The most illustrious characters—kings and nobles, sages and statesmen, authors and artists, warriors and philosophers, have thought it their glory to advance, defend, protect, and honour it. And even at the present hour, when our brotherhood is successfully established in every kingdom on the earth, we are happy and proud to include in that list names which do honour to their own, and would, indeed, have done honour to any age. Of course, I have no time now to enumerate or to mention those names; but, perhaps, it would be inexcusable on my part did I not here mention one name, the name of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales (cheers), our Worshipful Grand Master, the bright northern star of Masonry, as we may fairly call him, and of whom we, as members of the Craft, are justly proud as a distinguished friend and lover of the art—that beautiful, honorable, ancient art, to spread and to dignify which lodges are formed in every quarter of the globe. Thus much as to the extent, and, so to speak, the universality of Masonry; and when to this is further added the comprehensiveness of the institution, the vast circle of arts and sciences which it takes in and embraces, then we shall no longer for one single moment wonder at its vast extent, but feel persuaded that Masonry must and ever will keep place and run parallel with the outline and civilisation of mankind. Nay, we may state with the greatest truth, that where Masonry is not, there civilisation will never be found. And so in very fact it appears; for in those barbarous nations and savage countries where operative Masonry never lays the line nor stretches the compass, where skilful architecture never plans the structure nor rears the well ordered columns in those uncultured regions liberal science never softens, nor does elegant art refine, beautify and embellish the mind. With these very few, imperfect remarks can any man doubt for a single moment as to the excellence and great utility of Masonry, thus deep in antiquity, boundless in extent, universal in its comprehension of every science, operative and speculative; thus as it were in its wide arms embracing the whole circle of arts and morals. Indeed, the well known and often quoted eulogy which Cicero once pronounced upon philosophy may I think with equal propriety be applied to Freemasonry. He says, "Hæc studia adolescentiam alunt, senectutem oblectant. Secundas res ornant, adversis perfugium ac solatium præbent. Delectant domi, non impediunt foras. Pernoctant nobiscum, peregrinantur, rusticantur." And for the information of those brethren whose Latin may be somewhat rusty, allow me to put that freely into English, and it reads thus, that Masonry, like philosophy, will be found eminently to be the improvement of youth, the delight of old age, the ornament of prosperity, the solace and refuge of our adverse hours: it pleases at home; it is not an incumbrance abroad; it lodges with us; travels with us; and adds pleasure and amusement to our rural retirement. (Hear, hear.) Allow me then, Most Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, and you, most excellent brethren, to congratulate you all upon the advancement, and the present most flourishing state of our ancient, honourable, and beautiful art. Allow me more especially to congratulate you upon the dedication to-day, with solemn pomp, song and ritual, of an edifice reflecting the greatest credit upon the architect and upon the Craft. May the Craft always meet happy, safe and secure, within its walls, and may it flourish for ever like the palm tree; may private friendship and public virtue distinguish and adorn the heart and character of every Mason who shall ever, ever, form and fill the sacred and Masonic edifice consecrated to day; and while through Thy bounty, Omnipotent Parent of the world, rich and generous dispenser of every blessing, our cups overflow with gladness, may our hearts never be wanting in gratitude, and in the voice of thanksgiving, while earnestly and emphatically saying

Father of all, in every age,
In every clime adored,
By saint, by savage, and by sage,
Jehovah, Jove, or Lord;
To Thee, whose temple is all space,
Whose altar, earth, sea, skies,
One chorus let all being raise,
All nature's incense rise.

The rev. brother sat down amidst hearty applause. An anthem was then sung, another prayer was offered by Bro. Holden, another anthem was sung, Bro. Little pronounced the invocation, and Bro. the Rev. J. M. Vaughan read a portion of the Sacred Law. Lord Skelmersdale afterwards scattered the elements of consecration, pronounced the purposes to which the lodge was consecrated, and Bro. Vaughan handled the censer, the organ playing all the time, and the prayer was offered by Bro. Holden. The lodge's consecration was completed, and Lord Skelmersdale requested Bro. Little to instal Bro. Mark Samuel Larham in the chair. Bro. Little having taken the chair, Bro. E. Clark presented Bro. Larham, whom Bro. Little formally installed. The following brethren were invested with office: Bro. Ramsey, S.W.; Bro. Green, J.W.; Bro. Little, Treasurer; Bro. Oliver, Secretary; Bro. N. Bitherdon, S.D.; Bro. W. Smale, J.D.; and Bro. Gyder, Tyler. Bros. Little and John Hervey delivered the addresses, and Lord Skelmersdale was elected an honorary member of the lodge, with a wish that he might frequently visit it. Lord Skelmersdale, in acknowledging the compliment, said he thanked the brethren most heartily for their kindness, and congratulated the lodge on having such a W.M. From what he had seen of his work, he was sure the lodge would be well worked during his year, and under his auspices it would become one of the best lodge's in the district. He hoped on some future occasion to come and pay the brethren a visit, and when he should come he expected to find the lodge in a very flourishing state. (Hear, hear.)

Bros. Woodford, Holden, Vaughan, Hervey, and Hutton were also elected honorary members of the lodge, the W.M. also expressing a hope that they would come and visit the lodge as often as they could.

Bro. Woodford acknowledged the vote, and wished the brethren every prosperity. He also added that he and the other brethren just elected felt great pleasure on all occasions to do anything which would cement more and more the brethren of the Order, and to advance the good old Craft. Joining members and initiates were thereafter proposed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down, accompanied by Lord Skelmersdale, to an excellent banquet, which spoke volumes in favour of the culinary arrangements of the new hall.

Bro. George Bridges, of Camberwell, supplied the beautiful non-Masonic portion of the furniture and the draperies, both of the lodge and the banqueting-rooms, and Bro. George Kenning supplied the Masonic furniture. The Master and Wardens' chairs were kindly lent by the Macdonald Lodge, 1216. The musical arrangements, under the direction of Bro. Henry Parker, were admirable. He was assisted by Bros. Farquharson and Kerr Gedge, who sang in their best style, and gave to the dedication and consecration a finish which, it was remarked by many brethren, they had never seen before. After the banquet Bros. Farquharson and Kerr Gedge also sang some pretty songs, ballads, and trios, in which they were assisted by Miss Jessie Royd. The whole of the proceedings were highly successful, and were an admirable beginning for the new hall and lodge.

The following is a list of the brethren present, as far as we were able to ascertain their names.
Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.; Col. Burdett, P.G.M. of Middlesex; John Hervey, G. Sec.; C. H. Hatton, J.P., P.G.D.; T. W. Goldsboro, P.P.G., S.W.; Dr. W. Woodman, G.S.B.; R. W. Little, Sec. Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; F. Binckes, Sec. Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; Rev. P. M. Holden, S.D. 907; James L. Thomas, P.M. 142; Joshua Nunn, P.M.; H. C. Levander, P.M.; P. Nairn, P.M. 176; B. Turner, 1328; H. Parkin, P.G.O.; J. H. Hastie, W.M. 1216; N. Briges, P.M. 772, 1216; James Garner, 975; John Multon, 437; Dr. Pinder; F. Beaston; George Kenning, P.M., P.Z.; Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; M. S. Larham, W.M.; W. Ramsay, S.W.; T. L. Green, J.W.; R. Little, Treas.; J. Oliver, Sec.; N. Ritherdon, S.D.; W. Smale, J.D.; D. A. Ross, I.G.; F. Geider, Tyler.

Masonic Tidings.

Owing to a mistake in our last impression we give the true return to-day as regards the ever energetic province of West Yorkshire.

*Bro. Frasmus Wilson, F.R.S., is the Vice-Chairman for the Cruikshank Art Collections Fund. Bro. Wilson has also been re-elected Professor of Dermatology.

Bro. Joseph Taylor, P.M., has taken a permanent residence in Margate, where he has been appointed a Justice of the Peace.

An emergency meeting of the Ivy Lodge, No. 1441, will take place on Tuesday next, at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge-road.

An emergency meeting of the Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540, will take place at the Bridge House Hotel, London Bridge, on Friday the 30th inst.

Bro. George Ward Hunt, M.P., has kindly consented to distribute the prizes at the Royal Naval School on the 27th inst.

In recognition of the services rendered by Sir Knt. S. B. Ellis in the formation of the White Rose of York Conclave at Sheffield, the Grand Council have been pleased to confer upon him the honorary grades of Viceroy and Sovereign of the Order of the Red Cross of Constantine, &c.

ANONYMOUS CHARITY.—A roll of bank-notes, value £800, was last week left by a lady, under the initials of E.C., at the office of the Curates' Augmentation Fund.

We understand Bro. Captain Boyton intends giving a public entertainment on Wednesday next, the 21st inst., in aid of the funds of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. The entertainment will consist of an exhibition of the capabilities of his life-saving dress, with a number of amusing experiments, &c. It is hoped that the brethren in general will avail themselves of this opportunity for increasing the funds of these noble charities by attending in full force with their friends. Particulars as to the time and place of meeting will be duly advertised in the daily papers.

FREEMASONRY.—A controversy is being carried on in some of the American papers as to the propriety of invoking the name of the founder of Christianity in Masonic prayers; some prominent Masons permit such an invocation. To persons lacking the acuteness of vision which can see through a brick wall the problem must remain insoluble how a prayer can at one and the same time be undenominational (such as Masonry claims to be), and yet Christian. To ordinary minds this must appear as talking of a triangular or a circular square. But minds which can conceive Three to be One and One to be Three, and who can talk with assurance of a virgin who is a mother, though it be the mother of God, will no doubt find also the means of solving the Masonic problem. The term mystery is elastic enough for anything.—Jewish Chronicle.

ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY.

The quarterly convocation of the above society was held on Thursday last at the Cafe Royal, Regent-street. Present: Fraters Wm. Robt. Woodman, M.D., as Master of the Temple, T. B. Yeoman, T. W. White, Rev. Church, Dewar Weaver, Stanton Jones, Foulger, George Kenning, Massa, E. Macartney, M.P., and several other fraters.

Frater Woodman, inducted Frater Weaver into the chair of Master of the Temple. Frater Weaver then appointed his officers for the year; some brethren were balloted for. The M—C—was then formed, after which the Fraters separated.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

Owing to the late hour at which we received the Stewards' Lists, several inaccuracies crept in, notably the following:—

Bro. Bingemann's (Constitutional No. 55) list, amounted to £246 15s., instead of £63.

Bro. J. H. Leggett's list (Prudent Brethren), should have been £253 5s. 6d., instead of £53 5s. 6d.

Bro. Thomas Meggy (Emulation No. 21) brought up £121 16s., and is only credited in our report with £43 1s.

The entire contribution of the Province of West Yorkshire was placed to the credit of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge. The entire list of the various Stewards in this extensive province was as follows:—

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS ABROAD.

Colonial and Foreign Subscribers are informed, that acknowledgements of remittances received, will in future be published in the first number of every month.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—To persons of a delicate constitution, and of tender frame, also to females of all ages and young children, these remedies will be found most suitable, because they act only in such a manner (by reason of their careful preparation and selection) as to conserve nature's powers, at the same time as they act in the most efficient manner possible as purifying and cleansing agents, and so necessary are these properties for the proper cure of female disorders, and children's accumulations, that all remedies are worse than useless if they do not possess them. It is not necessary or desirable here to detail all the complaints attended to, but females and children can safely use them.—ADVT.

TO OUR READERS.

The Freemason is a sixteen page weekly newspaper, price 2d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10s. Brethren in foreign parts, wishing to have this newspaper sent them regularly from the office of publication, should, in sending their remittances, add to the 2d. per week the postage on 20z. newspapers.

The Freemason may be procured through any newsagent in the United Kingdom by giving (if needed) the publisher's address, 198, Fleet-st.

All communications, correspondence, reports, &c., must be addressed to the Editor.

Advertisements, change in address, complaints of difficulties in procuring Freemason, &c., to the Publisher, 198, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

Careful attention will be paid to all MSS. entrusted to the Editor, but he cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by stamp directed covers.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Freemason has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

We have received Bro. Tew's letter, Bro. Perrot's new circular, and a letter from the four masters, but in the best interests of the Order we adhere to our former resolution of non-publication.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1875.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

We concluded our article last week with the words, "We congratulate Bro. Binckes." We reiterate them to-day. For certainly the meeting of Wednesday was a full endorsement of his views, and a complete justification of his proposals. No more thoroughly distinct expression of the approval of the Order, of his unremitting efforts for the Boys' School, ever was accorded to any of the officials of any of our institutions. Bro. Binckes may indeed feel deeply gratified with the result of the festival, and as deeply grateful for the marked satisfaction and support of the Order. We say nothing here of the munificent amount of £12,700, munificent though it in truth be, and reflecting the highest credit on all concerned. We may add "en passant," that we have some reason to be proud of our good old Craft, which in the year of grace 1875 collects nearly £27,000 for our three great charitable institutions. But putting even the almost startling climax of so many zealous labours, and doubts, and anxieties on one side, we are glad to look on the proceedings of Wednesday as a satisfactory proof of the deep interest in the Boys' School felt by our entire fraternity. It is to that, we think, that Bro. Binckes may fairly and rightly appeal as the best answer to any cavils, and the truest response to any idle complaints. The Boys' School is a necessity for the Order, a great, an abiding, a pressing necessity, and anything which would tend to lessen its character, or to hinder its progress, is to be discountenanced and repudiated by every true Freemason. Some questions have cropped up lately, into which, for the best interests of the Boys' School and of Freemasonry, we did not think it befitting to enter in our columns, and we mean to continue our "reticence" in this respect. There were evidently personal feelings and personal controversies at the bottom, whether of letters, or pamphlets, or circulars, and we therefore decline to make the Freemason the medium of communication of all these untoward discussions to the brethren at large. We felt, too, as we feel still more strongly now, that Bro. Binckes might fairly claim, from us especially, fair play. He is placed in a most responsible position, he has carried through a gigantic undertaking, his labours of years alike untiring and praiseworthy have been rewarded with signal success, and he has, we do not hesitate to say, deserved well of his own committee, and of Freemasons generally. Sympathizing as we do alike with his past endeavours to promote the efficiency and enlarge the utility of the Boys' School, believing as we do moreover that there are very few of our brethren, if any, who could have done what he has had to do, often too amid severe difficulties, and heavy discouragements, we heartily rejoice in being able to offer to Bro. Binckes to-day, not only our "heartly good wishes" but our sincere congratulations. He may, and probably will, remember long with a grateful and gratifying memory, that amid the childish inculpations of our great Order, by the ignorant or mendacious, it has been given to him to evoke from our benevolent organization one of the largest contributions to Masonic charity which Freemasonry has ever witnessed. May all of success attend the Boys' School, and may the happy result of 1875 be the foundation for it of a new funded capital, and an augury of successful labours, and of a prosperous Institution.

THE ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

Bro. Herve, the Grand Secretary, at the consecration of the Chaucer Lodge on July the 2nd; directed most of his weighty remarks to this very important point. He said that "the Order was no doubt enjoying great material prosperity, a prosperity almost unexampled in its history, but that this very prosperity constituted both a trial and a danger. Freemasonry, owing to its large numerical increase, and the flourishing state of its institutions, had a good deal apparently to offer to some, and to promise to more. Hence, there was not only a very large number of applicants for the light of Freemasonry, but it was just possible, that, owing to various circumstances at the present time, the desire for admission would be continuous and increasing. He felt then it to be his duty kindly to point out to the W.M. and officers, and brethren of the new lodge, the necessity incumbent on them of caution and care. Not every one that asked to be numbered amongst our brethren had therefore a right to expect or claim to be received. The brethren were bound to observe a strict "surveillance" over all applicants for initiation, and unless they were persons who, by their respectability of character, and courtesy of demeanour, their general bearing, and their known qualifications, were likely to be careful and valuable members of lodges, the brethren ought to hesitate, and they ought to be on their guard against an indiscriminate admission of candidates, simply because they were able to pay their fees, and were at present in a position even of wealth and respectability. Many brethren hastily admitted turned out to be great nuisances in their lodges, and were very difficult indeed to get rid of. The brethren should remember that it was "quality" not "quantity," which as Freemasons they should most have respect to, and a lodge with a few good men and true was far better, in his opinion, than the most numerous lodge composed of indifferent or fair weather Masons. He confessed that he looked with some little apprehension on the present tendency to admit new members somewhat hastily, and he had thought it well specially to call the attention of Bro. Sabine and his officers and brethren to a topic which, though not interesting, perhaps, and somewhat heavy, was yet of intense importance to the future welfare of the Craft. The drain on our charitable funds, and the claims on our Institutions, were very large, and rapidly augmenting, and he could not help ascribing some of the present pressure to a little laxity in regard of careful selection of new members." Our brother, the Grand Secretary, always speaks with great moderation and singular clearness, and his words always deserve, as they always receive, the attention of the brethren at large. We quite agree with all he has so opportunely said, and so well expressed, and we feel how important it is, that the lodges everywhere should weigh well these truthful statements, and this valuable advice. It is no doubt a temptation to new lodges, probably to all lodges, to increase rapidly the roll of its associates, but we venture to think, that in no case are those old words more true, than as regards Masonic Lodges, "festina lente." Let nothing tempt a lodge ever to overlook the Masonic and prudential duty of sifting and selection. Freemasonry is strong, as well in the character of its adepts as in the principles of its profession, and no more serious blow could be administered to its true stability and progressing permanency, than any relaxation of the time-honoured axioms of our Order, care and attention as regards all candidates for admission and acceptance in our venerable and worthy sodality.

MASONIC TOLERATION.

It seems almost superfluous to speak to Freemasons about Toleration, as it is in one respect, so to say, the keystone of the great Masonic arch which spans the world in which we live. But yet, as we all of us are aware, it is not always the most obvious and well-spoken truths which we accept and work out, if we may so express ourselves, in our daily practice and walk in life. Some truths are so well-known to us that we almost forget them from their very familiarity, or overlook them from their old-fashioned triteness. And though as Freemasons we often profess Toleration, and though Toleration constitutes a great Masonic grace and virtue in the eyes of the best teachers and the truest children of Freemasonry, yet we think we can trace some little "indicia" in the passing events and utterances of the day, which serve to convince us, at any rate, that some of us, whatever we may know of Toleration in the letter, have yet to learn its spirit. For what is Toleration? And what is, we may further ask, Masonic Toleration? Toleration in its essence is that active and gentle quality of the mind which is elevated above the depressing and contracting influences of party spirit, of sectarian difference, of national hatreds, and personal prejudice. Toleration accepts the differences of opinion, and the contradiction of creeds, as knowing well that they do and must exist in the world, and that as there is not a monopoly of truth, just as there is not a monopoly of anything else, people must "agree to differ." Toleration does not necessarily imply laxity of opinion, or indifference, or scepticism, or stoicism, as some hot-headed writers have often hastily argued. On the contrary, Toleration may and does exist when a person is very fully persuaded of the "faith that is in him," and when he sees very clearly in his own humble and reverent mind the way in which he ought to go, and the way, moreover, at all hazards to himself. Toleration would lift itself and us, with its kindly sympathies, above the passing differences and controversies of mankind, and would bid us all believe, in the words of the wittiest poet of the nineteenth century,

"While zealots fast and frown,
And fight for two or seven,
That there are fifty roads to town,
And rather more to Heaven."

Toleration would say to us all equally, "Judge not your brother, to his own great Master he standeth or falleth. Do not suppose that you yourself alone are right, and everybody else wrong in the world." And thus it comes to pass that while Toleration holds its own manfully, warmly, truly, devotedly, it condemns no one else who differs or disagrees, it never desires to persecute, it never proposes to burn, but leaves every thing to that great and solemn hour when all our divisions shall be healed, all our differences adjusted, and all our misunderstandings fully understood, when truth, and light, and knowledge, and sight shall be all unclouded and perfected for evermore. And so Masonic Toleration, overlooking the peculiarities of national views, and of denominational teaching, regards every Son of Adam as a brother of the dust, denounces no man's belief, asks for no man's credentials, but accepting all who acknowledge reverently the great Creator and father of all, rejects alone from its bosom sternly the avowed Atheist, and the notorious libertine. Such is the position of Freemasonry, clear, simple, and intelligible, but, of course, open to attack from various quarters on account of this very singleness and simplicity of aim and declaration. To some, in consequence, Freemasonry is too lax, to others it is still too religious, to many it is too broad, and to others unchristian on this very account. But we believe that if some minds may object to this wide and tolerant platform, a great majority of our Order admire it and uphold it. Freemasonry knows nothing of the questions of religious controversy which often so agitate the world, and as Freemasons we have no right to pass any opinion on the dogmas and creeds, and catechisms of denominational bodies. We accept all good men and true within our pale, Church of England and Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic and Lutheran, Armenians and Copts, Protestants generally, and members of the Society of Friends, in fact all denominations "who profess and call themselves Christians," as well, let us remember, as the Hebrew and the Hindoo, the Mahomedan and the Parsee, the Druse of Mount Lebanon, and the free coloured Masons in the United States (made in a lawful lodge), since Freemasonry knows no distinction of caste or country, and, saving two notable exceptions, of conditions or creeds. If even in the heat of controversy or induced by the passing polemics of the hour, we are led any of us to give expression to our feelings as regards the religious views of others, we are overpassing, let us bear in mind, the limits of Masonic teaching, we are forgetting the truth of Masonic toleration. One of our chief opponents, the Church of Rome, is often very lavish in "piling up the agony" of epithets and abuse of anathema and ban—so be it. Let us not as Freemasons, however, return "railing for railing, but contrariwise blessing." Above all, let us always keep before us, in all our Masonic professions, and in all our Masonic speeches, that as Freemasons we are really above all such harmless diatribes, and all such illogical objections, come from what quarter they will. In our Masonic toleration we can afford to smile at the violence of such pseudo-religionists, just as we pity the folly of those who evidently seem to hold that the true outcome of religious faith is best evidenced by violence of language, or a spirit of persecution. As Freemasons we are tolerant, and we will be tolerant, even amid the intolerance of fanatical accusers, come what may.

THE FAMINE IN ASIA MINOR.

As we said last week, hardly a day passes but we have some startling exhibition of those visitations and abnormal conditions of this earth of ours, which are such an affliction to us all, and often such a scourge to humanity. The population of Asia Minor has for some time been severely suffering from a dreadful famine in which thousands have perished, some say 150,000 we see, and much commiseration has been felt for the sufferers, and considerable sums have been remitted by benevolent Englishmen to the authorities in the district where such dire distress prevails. Mr. H. R. Munro Butler Johnstone called attention to the subject in the Times of July 8th, in what we venture in all deference to consider a most unwise and unpractical letter. Never was Mrs. Malaprop's famous axiom, "comparisons are odorous," more fully verified than in that hasty communication. It has been observed before, how very often, even clever men when they will rush into print, to use a common if somewhat vulgar expression, "put their foot into it." In order to advocate the claims of the Asia Minor population on the charitable sympathies of the British public, Mr. Johnstone, somewhat depreciates the French claims, and talks of "a few scores of people, &c., &c." In Verdun, we may observe, a town of ten thousand people, only three houses are left standing, and 22,000 people at the very least are houseless, homeless and all but penniless. Neither do we understand Mr. Johnstone's allusion "to the 'rich Pharisee,'" unless indeed he alludes to the parable of the good Samaritan in which Priest and Levite successively appear on the scene, but not as far as we are aware a Pharisee. This is one of the curious blunders of contemporary literature. We therefore entirely dissent from the tone of Mr. Johnstone's remarks, and regret to have read them. We feel bound to say this for our English people, that their hearts are "generally open" as "melting charity," for any well deserving case of sympathy and relief, and whatever may be the call for assistance of Asia Minor we are sure that no more righteous appeal ever was addressed to our true-hearted English people than that which comes from the fair land of France, and from our suffering and ruined fellow creatures at Toulouse. We may add that the list of calamities is not full. Floods near Buda have inflicted great injury and disasters in Hungary, and as there always is a great sympathy for the fine Hungarian population amongst all Englishmen, we think it well to allude to the subject in the Freemason to-day. Since we wrote this the Lord Mayor has also sanctioned a subscription for the sufferers in Hungary, to which we wish all success. We deeply deplore, as we said before, the famine in Asia Minor, and feel that English benevolence may well be extended to that far off scene of privation and misery. Very glad we shall be if the spontaneous efforts of English charitable impulse may tend to alleviate and mitigate the horrors of famine there. But having said this, we feel bound to add, that we rejoice to think that English sympathy is being warmly extended to our French brethren and sisters, and that the Lord Mayor's list is already so largely filling up with the liberal largesse of our ever benevolent countrywomen and countrymen. Madame Mac Mahon's letter and appeal, which we publish to-day, will be read with interest, and we trust will not remain unanswered.

PROVINCIAL FUNDS.—II. LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

(THE LEICESTER MASONIC HALL.)

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your article on the last annual balance-sheet of this province, at p. 283, ante, you have appealed to me, in complimentary terms, for an explanation of the connection of the Freemasons' Hall in this town with the Provincial Grand Lodge. This information I have pleasure in supplying. The erection of a Masonic Hall here had long been earnestly desired. Two attempts were made in the year 1824 (when a site was actually purchased), and, again in 1842, during my first Mastership of St. John's Lodge, then the only one in the town. Both of those proved failures, but a third, made in 1859, was successfully carried out by the erection of the present commodious structure, almost entirely by the contributions of the members of the two local lodges.

The intention was that these contributions should represent so many £1 shares, to be thereafter entitled, pro rata, as a dividend to any surplus profits which might accrue. In the then state of the law our Prov. Grand Registrar saw a difficulty in the way, and a case having been laid before Bro. Roxburgh, Q.C., he gave it as his opinion, that in order to keep the nominal purchasers of the site, &c. (the Trustees), free from personal liability, "there was no mode of carrying out legally the views suggested; that no trust could be enforced if created, and, that the subscriptions must be taken as absolute gifts." This was accordingly done, and up to the present time all moneys received, except the balance now in hand, have been expended upon the property (which includes an adjoining house, let off).

The total expenditure has been over £2000, a second mortgage of £350 having been paid off some years after the erection of the building, leaving the present charge of £750 still upon it.

Considerable alterations and improvements of the hall were made a year or two ago, in payment for which the surplus money and the sinking fund up to that time were applied, but it is now hoped that the debt of £750 may be gradually liquidated, leaving any surplus revenue to be dealt with as the Provincial Grand Lodge may, from time to time, decide. Since the lamented decease of the late Earl Howe, P.G.M., only myself and one other of the nominal owners of the property remaining, a new trust-deed has been executed, the following brief summary of the provisions of which will show the connection of the hall with the Provincial Grand Lodge:

- 1.—The management of the Hall to be under the control of the Hall Committee.
- 2.—The Hall to be devoted primarily to Freemasonry and kindred institutions.
- 3.—Subject to No. 2, the Hall may be let for social or religious gatherings, &c., under certain restrictions.
- 4.—Revenue to be received and applied by the Hall Committee in such manner as they shall think fit, subject, however, to the direction of P.G. Lodge.
- 5.—When the Trustees are reduced to three, the vacancies to be filled to the full number of seven, and the property transferred accordingly.

The Hall Committee consists of the five principal officers of the P.G. Lodge, the W. Master of the local Craft, and Mark Masters' Lodges, and the M.E.Z. of the Royal Arch Chapter, ex-officio, together with two representatives annually elected by each of those bodies.

Should any further information on the subject be desired, I shall be happy to supply it.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM KELLY,
P.P.G.M. Leicestershire and Rutland.

To Brother George Kenning, Proprietor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I wish to correct one or two slight errors in your report of my "sayings and doings" last week.

In the first place, as regards the Masonic oration delivered at the Chaucer Lodge, in the 18th line from the close of the oration, page 304, "Masonic grace" should read "woman's grace," all the difference in the world. Indeed, "Masonic grace" is nonsense.

In the report of my little speech at the dinner my words were actually these:—"That though we had, as we often said, amongst us 'many members of rank and opulence,' the great majority of our Order might fairly be termed the middle-class of Freemasonry, and theirs for the most part were limited incomes. I pointed out that, whatever some of our opponents might choose to say of us in their idle and childish allegations, all of them equally absurd and mendacious, they could not accuse us of want of charity. That as regards the Boys' School, the boys educated were the sons of our own brethren, with many of whom we had happily associated in the genial hours of peaceful 'reunion' and innocent festivity. We had sat with them at the same board, belonged perhaps to the same lodge, and were members of our common Alma Mater."

I have thought it well just to call attention to these points, as no doubt in the hurry of the moment my few but simple words were a little abbreviated.

I am, yours fraternally,

A. F. A. WOODFORD, P.G.C.

BRO. C. J. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Four weeks have elapsed, and neither the Earl of Limerick, the Rev. J. R. Portal, nor any other members of the Mark Degree have thought well to come to the front in reply to my challenge, and to say why they have expelled me from that Masonic body.

I begin to see Masonry under a new phase. Hitherto I had regarded it as possessing noble qualities, chief amongst them being that charity which not only feeds the hungry, tends the sick, clothes the naked, and cares for the fatherless, the widows, and the aged, but which also thinketh no evil, and rejoiceth in the truth. I begin to regard it as a powerful engine for crushing people by calumny, secretly and widely spread. As such, I fear that it can hardly continue to be regarded, either within or beyond the Craft, as an unmixed good.

The Mark Degree has never in any manner informed me that I have committed an offence against any Masonic principle, but the first act which has signalized the reign of the present Grand Mark Master has been the expulsion of me as unfit to be associated with him and his brethren of that Masonic body.

In so doing the Mark Degree has, in my opinion, offended against the first principle of British freedom, which provides that no person can be punished without having been previously warned of the accusation against him, and heard in his defence. The Mark Degree in thus acting has covered itself with the dishonour with which certain persons desire to clothe me. It has in thus acting brought a portion of Freemasonry into discredit, but it has done me no harm except in forcing upon me, regret, which I feel sure is shared by the Craft in general, that a Masonic body can, under any circumstances, be led into an act of injustice as un-English as it is anti-Masonic.

When I was made a Mark Master Mason I was solemnly assured that whilst I continued to act in conformity with the sublime precepts of the Order, should other friends forsake me, should envy traduce my good name, or malice persecute me, should dangers, doubts, or difficulties assail me, force attempt to drive, or temptation to entice me from the right path, among Mark Master Masons I should ever find friends, who would administer relief to my distress and comfort in my affliction. Where are those Mark Master Masons?

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

"SOUTH LONDON," "P.M., &c.," AND A TEMPERANCE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"South London" wants to be at home with his Masonic brethren in a lodge conducted on temperance principles, and asks for information on the subject. "P.M., &c.," answers his query by saying he is a total abstainer himself, and "if side by side with total abstinence in himself he can tolerate moderation in the brethren who sit beside him, he may feel at home in any Masonic lodge."

I question if such an answer will satisfy our brother "South London," or, indeed, would be such as to please total abstainers generally, or even Masons worthy of the name. "Any Masonic lodge," I think, would not suit brethren anxious to see the principles of the Craft duly observed, according to the spirit of our Order, and the cardinal virtues by which we should be distinguished. I have been in lodges where—provided the members attend the meetings regularly, and stay to the banquets, suppers, and refreshments during the year, the Dr. and Cr. account would be as follows:—

Dr. — in account with the lodge No. —		s.	d.
"Annual Banquet," &c.	12	6
Quarterly Suppers	7	6
"Grogg," &c., after lodge meetings.....	8	0
Proportion of Incidental Expenses	10	0
	£1	18	0
Cr.		s.	d.
Annual Subscription	1	4	0
Dues to Provincial G. Lodge	0	2	0
Dues to Grand Lodge	0	2	0
Proportion of Banquet (paid by each Member)	0	5	0
Balance, being loss to the Lodge Funds	0	5	0

I could mention instances where the loss to the lodge funds has been considerably more, and we know of a lodge which went considerably in debt in consequence of the expenses attending its annual banquet, and usually did so every year, the plan being to depend upon initiation fees to set them right again in a few months. Now, would such a state of things suit either of the two brethren mentioned above. Surely neither "South London," nor "P.M., &c.," would advocate the brethren who attended the banquets and "refreshments," enjoying the entertainment either at the expense of the lodge funds, or taking the subscriptions of absent brethren to balance the account?

I do not speak now of those lodges wherein the custom is to pay a much larger fee than is required for lodge purposes, so as to meet the additional expense of banquets. My statements have reference only to the lodges whose annual subscriptions for the members vary from twelve shillings to about a pound, which sums would only be barely sufficient to clear the ordinary expenditure of the lodge for rent, taxes, printing and other incidentals. I say for all such lodges the only safe and Masonic plan to pursue is for brethren to pay for whatever they may eat or drink (unless visitors), and so long as they do so Masonically we cannot complain.

I see no need for a total abstinence lodge in South London, or elsewhere, so long as there are lodges of the same constitution as the Eclectic, No. 1201, Freemasons' Hall, London, the regulations of which provide that "As this lodge was chartered by the Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland, &c., &c.," under a proviso that no part of its funds should be appropriated to tavern expenses, or refreshments, this, the first by-law, clearly defines that no part of the moneys received by this lodge can or shall be used or spent in any other manner than the requirements of the lodge, the Order, or Charity may permit, and shall not be appropriated for tavern expenses or refreshments in any form, and that this law is irrevocable so long as the charter of said lodge exists and is in force." I am not desirous to argue the matter on total abstinence grounds at all, and although I am a life-long total abstainer from all intoxicating liquors myself, I cannot say my experience of society generally is such that I only wish to associate with total abstainers, neither do I believe that legislation for any particular class would accord with the spirit of Freemasonry. The ballot is our test of membership as respects admission to our lodges, and if a number of brethren who meet in their "sanctuaries" are in one case total abstainers, it is not likely they will admit a publican, and if, in another instance, the majority happen to be connected with the beer and spirit interests, it would be an unlikely place for a temperance advocate to be accepted; and yet both classes would be made welcome as Masons when visiting each other's lodges. "Birds of a sort flock together," and so our brother in "South London" will, doubtless, soon discover the neighbourhood that will suit his tastes, but, setting aside individual opinions, and looking mainly at the wants of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons, may we not ask, is it not needful to look more after those lodges wherein the members feast at the lodge expense, and who do not pay their fair share of the expenses? Is it right that lodges, making no provision for banquets in the subscriptions, should be allowed to spend annually such large sums as several do at their annual festivals and monthly meetings? Have we not in this fact the explanation why there are so many non-contributing members, who retire from their lodges in disgust at seeing their contributions in particular, and the fund generally, so squandered.

The Temperance Lodge in Birmingham has a by-law prohibiting the introduction of any intoxicating beverages at their festival gatherings, but that is not what I advocate. My desire is that the Grand Lodge render it imperative that the funds of the lodge shall only be used for strictly Masonic or charitable purposes, a separate account being kept for festive occasions. Our Grand Masonic Institutions have much to gain if such were made the law of the Grand Lodge.

Yours fraternally,

W. J. HUGHAN.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the Freemason for 12th June Bro. Hughan mentioned the dates of four numbers of the Builder, containing information as to Masonic marks, and said there was another which he had unfortunately missed, the number for 27th March, 1869, contains some hundreds of marks, and also Mr. Godwin's able article; in fact, it is simply a reprint of the sessional paper of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

HENRY T. BOBART, W.M. 1085.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In my note on this subject (p. 284, ante) the residence of the late Bro. Edw. W. Shaw has, by an error of the press, been given as Tamworth, instead of Farnworth, near Warrington. From a letter which I received from Bro. Shaw, not long before his illness, it appears that the work was intended to be published by Mr. Vincent Brooks (formerly Day & Son), London, that it was to be foolscap size, with sheets of illustrations twice that size, including, in addition to the Masons' marks, "the plans of 70 Cathedrals, and the Pyramid at Gizeh, all on the scale of 100 feet to the inch, and also drawings showing the geometrical principles on which the Mediaeval buildings were designed."

WILLIAM KELLY,

P. Prov. G.M.M. Leicestershire.

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Squires's note in yours of 26th ult. is easily explained.

When His Grace the Duke of Wellington gave the reply in 1861, referred to by Bro. Squires, "that he did not belong to the Order," he was only giving a reply similar to that he had given twenty years before to Lodge 494, when that lodge applied to him to allow the lodge to be called the "Wellington Lodge."

In His Grace's reply to Lodge 414 he states his reason for refusing to allow the lodge to be so called, to be "that he had joined Masonry when a very young man, and had for years ceased to belong to the Order."

I am glad to say the old 494 bye-laws, with His Grace's signature (as given in the January Magazine) is at present in the possession of the W.M. of that lodge.

Yours fraternally,

JAMES H. NEILSON,
M.M. 494, and P.M. 620.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF KENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the last two or three numbers of the Freemason, you have been drawing attention to the financial position of some of the Provincial Grand Lodges in the United Kingdom, and specially as to the sums disposed for the purpose of charity. As I think that we in the Province of Kent may justly feel proud of our position in this respect, I herewith enclose the balance sheet of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the year ending the 1st of April last, thinking that perhaps you might like to make use of it for the purpose I have named.

The total funds for disposal at our annual festival, held on the 6th inst., amounted to £436 6s. 1d. There was one lodge in default, so that in reality there was more. On that occasion we voted £320 for the purposes of charity alone; on the 1st of April we had thirty-eight lodges in the province, we have now forty. All the lodges that have been in existence six years are life governors of the three Masonic institutions, by fees paid out of the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund and Charity Fund. This is of course besides the private subscriptions of brethren in the province, and the subscriptions of individual lodges, and the list of Stewards appointed for the festivals of the institutions. We number about 2950, and the status of the initiates during the past year, will, I think, bear a fair criticism.

Should there be any further particulars you would like to have possession of, I shall be very pleased to inform you. I for one feel very pleased that you are bringing this matter into prominence, because, rightly or wrongly, I think the claims of the provinces or the position they occupy in supporting our noble Order are not sufficiently recognized in Grand Lodge and in the metropolitan area, in short, that they are falsely considered inferior to the metropolitan lodges generally.

I am, Sir, your fraternally,

ALFRED SPENCER,
Prov. G. Sec.

THE RYE HOUSE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A report being prevalent that the Rye House is sold, and that this is the last season;—please allow me to state, that there is no truth whatever in the rumour. The Rye House is not sold; there has not been any treaty for its purchase; this will not be the last season, and I hope to see my kind friends and patrons here a few more years yet to come.

I am, dear Sir, yours very truly,

W. H. TEALE.

BOYS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL, 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report containing the list of subscriptions read by Bro. Binckes at the recent festival, you have placed against the name of the lodge I had the honour to represent the sum of £151 14s. 0d., including a donation of £10 10s. from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught.

The total amount is correct, but His Royal Highness was pleased to place upon my list the sum of twenty guineas, not ten, as quoted.

You have also grouped the Hampshire Lodges with those of the Province of Gloucestershire.

By inserting this in your next issue you will oblige yours faithfully and fraternally,

J. HACKER, P.M. 723,
P.G. J.D., Hants and Isle of Wight.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have to announce, through you, for the information of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution, and of the Craft generally, that the Rev. Dr. Morris, of King's College, London, has been elected Head-Master of this School.

I am, yours, faithfully and fraternally,

F. BINCKES, Secretary.

THE HOSPITAL SATURDAY FUND, 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

So as to counteract certain erroneous statements which I am informed are being maliciously circulated, to the prejudice of efforts now being made by the existing Local Hospital Saturday Committees, viz., Chelsea, Hammersmith, Greenwich, Southwark, West Ham and Stratford, and Westminster and Pimlico, I beg you will permit me to state that none of the members receive, nor have received, payment for services rendered, or time devoted to this great movement. All work gratuitously, and in some instances, in addition to devoting all their leisure time, members also gave working hours for which they would have been paid by their employers; in addition, too, they freely contributed their mites to the Hospital Saturday Fund. This being so, and as we are now rapidly approaching this year's Hospital Saturday, 31st July, let me earnestly beseech those earnest working men and women, whom it is the pride of the metropolis to call her own, to put their shoulder to the Hospital Saturday wheel, so that our collection may be a worthy one. Collection sheets and books (the latter may be carried in the waistcoat pocket), will be issued on application.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

CHARLES MERCIER,
Chairman.

Multum in Parvo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN.

Was Sir Christopher Wren a Freemason? At page 168 of the Freemason's Magazine and Masonic Mirror for Sept. 3rd, 1859, we read:—"The Past Boy, No. 5245, from Saturday, March 2nd to Tuesday, March 5th, 1723, states:—'This evening the corpse of that worthy Freemason, Sir Christopher Wren, Knight, is to be interred under the Dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.'"

Is it true that Wren was really a "Freemason," and if so, when and where did he become one? At page 595 of the Graphic for Dec. 19th, 1874, we were told that the Duke of Edinburgh was a Mason, but, as has been shown, that is a mistake; consequently if the published dictum of a contemporary cannot be relied upon as regards a living celebrity, I feel justified in doubting the veracity of the 1723 oracle respecting a dead one.

W. P. BUCHAN.

MINUTE BOOK, LODGE OF INDUSTRY, GATESHEAD.

As Bro. Hughan wishes it, I give a verbatim et literatim copy of the page on which the word "Highroads" occurs, and I refer him and all my readers to the Magazines for August and September for fuller information as regards the minute book.

Brought forward 1746. (25).

Bros. Hawdon, P.G.M.; J. Hawdon, S.G.W.; J. Lawther, J.G.W.; J. Foy, Dep. G.W.M. 1746; Michael Hawdon, Particular Lodge, Master; Sen. Thomas Eccles and Jun. Thomas Liddle, Wardens; Wm. Gibson, Chris. Dod, Stewards.

Memorandum. Highroads to pay for making in that Order only 1s. 6d.:

1. Hendk. Jones.
 2. Thos. Dalton.
 3. John Emmerson.
 4. Wm. Hawdon.
 5. Robert Hawdon.
 6. James Foy.
 7. John Lawther.
 8. John Payne.
- Paid 2s. 6d., English, William Gibson,
John Hawdon,
Thos. Liddle.

Side by side with this entry occurs the following entry, "Name of the Highroads." July 1st, 1746, Enacted at a Grand Lodge, held that evening, that no brother Mason should be admitted into the Dignity of a Highroad under less than a charge of 2s. 6d., or at the Domaskin or Forin, as John Thompson from Gateside, paid at the same night 5s. Underneath these two entries we read, N.B. The English Masters to pay for entering into the said Master'ships 2s. 6d. per majority. High order continued.—Bro. Dodd, 1; Wm. Gibson, 2; M. Eccles, 3; John Howdon, 4; Michael Howdon, 5; John Lee, 6; Thos. Liddle, 7; Wm. Hall, 8; W. Burton, 9; John Gibson, 10; Stephen Chambers, 11; Thos. Hunter, 12; Thos. Wake, 13. Account carried forward.

Over the leaf follows a list of names, one paying 2s. 6d., one paying 1s. 6d., a list of "raised members," 5 in number, in 1771 and 1772, and 7 names, June 24th, 1762, either of members of the Order, of new members, or of those present on that date. The "Highroads" seem to us to be a corruption of "Harodim," what Domaskin or Forin may be, deponent cannot even guess.

A. F. A. WOODFORD.

CONSECRATION OF THE ABERCORN LODGE (No. 1549).

The consecration of this lodge and the installation of its first Master took place on Saturday, the 26th ult.

About forty brethren assembled to do honour to the occasion; among whom were Bros. R. Helsdon, P.M. 733, W.M. designate; J. W. Garrod, 435, S.W. designate; Joshua Nunn, P.M. 134, 820, 1201, P.G.S.B., J.W. designate; R. Wentworth Little, P.M., P.G., Sec., Middlesex, Sec. to the Girls' School, &c., &c., Installing Master; Chas. Neal, P.M. 889, P.G.S.D. Surrey, to whom the lodge is principally indebted for its existence; W. A. Rogers, 435; J. Tidcombe, jun., 34; W. Hammond, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326 and of 1512, Pro G. Steward Middlesex; J. T. Woodstock, P.M. 749; W. L. Hoare, P.M. 1415; Thos. Mackintosh, Scone and Perth, 3; Jas. Squire, P.M. and Sec. 889, P.P.G.S.B. Surrey; Thos. Long, P.M. 889, P.G.D.C. Surrey; H. Llewellyn Winter, 889; John Holden, 435; G. Townsend, P.M. 820; J. Patterson, of the Euphrates; H. W. Sinton, 889; John Garrod, 889; Osman Vincent, 571; Faulkner Lee, 404; John Martin, 733; and other distinguished members of the brotherhood.

Bro. R. Wentworth Little, the officer appointed to perform the ceremonies by the R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett, Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, took the chair at three o'clock, and appointed his two Wardens, Bro. Hammond, S.W., as the senior officer of the province present, and Bro. Thos. Long, J.W., the procession to the lodge-room having taken place in the usual order. The lodge was then opened in the three degrees, and the ceremony commenced with the opening prayer. The Director of the Ceremonies next placed the petitioning brethren before the chair in the order of seniority, viz., Bros. Helsdon, J. W. Garrod, Joshua Nunn, W. A. Rogers, C. Neal, J. Holden, J. Tidcombe, jun., H. Llewellyn Winter, and J. Patterson, and Bro. Little having addressed them in a very impressive manner upon the nature and object of the meeting and the important part they as the first officers of the new lodge were expected to take in the Craft, called upon the Hon. Sec., Bro. Veal, to read the Warrant of Constitution from the Grand Lodge of England, one of the earliest charters bearing the authority of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master, and designating the lodge as the Abercorn, No. 1549.

The Consecrating Master then delivered the beautiful and eloquent oration, listened to with the most profound attention by the whole of the assembled brethren, in the feeling and able manner which on all such occasions ever characterises our distinguished Bro. Little.

Bro. Winter presided at the organ, and led the musical portion of the ceremony, taking also the solo part in the anthem.

The dedication of the lodge being completed by the Installing Master and his Wardens, the former pronounced the "patriarchal benediction," and the Director of the Ceremonies presented the W.M. designate, Bro. R. Helsdon, for the benefit of installation.

The Board of Past Masters having been duly formed, Bro. Helsdon, as a P.M., was at once with the accustomed forms installed as the First Master of the Abercorn Lodge, into the chair of King Solomon.

The Board of Past Masters having been dissolved, and the lodge having assumed its normal form, the brethren in ranks and degrees were admitted, when the usual salutations took place.

The First Officers and Assistant Officers were Bro. R. Wentworth Little as I.P.M., the same brother also, for the very effective services of the day, was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Abercorn; Bros. J. W. Garrod, S.W.; Joshua Nunn, J.W.; W. A. Rogers, Treasurer; Charles Veal, Secretary; J. Holden, S.D.; J. Tidcombe, jun., J.D.; H. L. Winter, Org.; J. Patterson, I.G.; and J. Middleton, Tyler. Letters of apology for absence were read from a number of brethren, and one in particular from Col. Burdett, P.G.M. of the Province, regretting his absence from indisposition, having been ordered to the seaside for a change of air. A number of propositions for future work having been proposed, the lodge was closed and the brethren rambled for the next half-hour in the beautiful and well kept grounds. An elegant banquet, à la Russe, was subsequently sat down to by the greater number of the brethren present at the ceremonies. Afterwards a very enjoyable evening was spent in the interchange of thought, and those fraternal amenities only to be experienced in the brotherhood.

The various loyal and Masonic toasts were then proposed, duly honoured and responded to by the various appropriate brethren, during which it was remarked that the Abercorn might very aptly assume the motto of the noble family whose name it bore, Sola Virtute Vincit.

The meeting house of the lodge is at the Abercorn Arms, in the confines of the province, in a beautiful district at Great Stanmore, about ten miles from London, and three-and-a-half from Harrow.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTER-SHIRE AND RUTLAND.

The half-yearly communication of the above Provincial Grand Lodge took place at the Town Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, on the 29th ult., in the lodge-room of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 779, under the auspices of which the meeting was held.

The Craft Lodge was opened at one o'clock. Shortly after that time the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, accompanied by his Prov. G. Officers, entered the lodge-room and received the customary salute.

After the minutes had been confirmed and the ballot taken for several joining members and candidates for initiation, the principal event of the day, that of installing Bro. S. E. Johnson as W.M. of No. 799, took place, the office of Installing Master having been, by the special desire of the members of that lodge, undertaken by the Provincial Grand Master. It is almost needless to state that the duties of that important office, and the impressive ritual of the ceremony of installation, were performed in a very admirable and efficient manner.

The brethren, not only of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, but of other lodges also in the province, are under deep obligations to his lordship for having on several occasions fulfilled the onerous duties of Installing Master, and too much praise cannot be accorded to him for the ready and gracious spirit in which he has always been pleased to comply with the wishes of the brethren that he should undertake those duties.

On the completion of the business of the Craft Lodge, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Prov. Grand Master, who was assisted by the following officers:—W. Bros. the Revd. J. Denton, P.P.S.G.W., as Deputy Prov. G.M.; Samuel Love, Prov. S.G.W.; E. F. Mannwatt, P. Prov. S.G.W., as I.G.W.; W. B. Smith, Prov. G. Treasurer; T. G. Tippetts, Prov. G. Reg.; S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Secretary; W. Johnson as Prov. G.S.D.; W. Hardy, Prov. G.J.D.; J. T. Thorp, Prov. G.A.D.C., as D.C.; R. Boughton-Smith, P.P.G.A.D.C., as Grand Sword Bearer; C. E. Stretton, Prov. G.A.P. as Grand Purs.; G. W. Statham and R. Dalgleish, P.G. Stewards; and C. Bembridge, Prov. G. Tyler.

A fuller report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The following brethren were also present:—W. Bros. Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W.; H. Etherington-Smith, P.P.J.G.W.; Revd. F. S. Cuyler, 779, P.P.G. Chaplain, Bristol; J. C. Duncombe, P.P.G.D., Leicester and Rutland, and P.P.G.D. Norths. and Hunts; H. Blood, I.P.M.; S. E. Johnson, W.M.; W. S. Allen, S.W.; R. Dalgleish, J.W.; and a considerable number of brethren of No. 779. Visitors, Bros. G. A. Taverner, S.W. 353; J. Hill, 254 and 850; and D. Field, 7.

The roll of lodges and of P.G. Officers having been first called, the minutes of the last annual meeting of Prov. G. Lodge were read and confirmed.

The report of the Earl Howe Memorial Window Committee was read, announcing the termination of their labours, and thanking the subscribers to the fund for their generous assistance, by means of which a memorial highly creditable to the Craft in this province had been placed in the Church (St. Peter's) recently erected at Leicester, in memory of the late lamented and esteemed Past Prov. Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl Howe. It was resolved that the report, with the statement of account accompanying it, be received and adopted.

A vote of thanks, proposed by Bro. Denton and seconded by Bro. Boughton-Smith, was accorded to the Memorial Committee for their valuable services.

W. Bros. Clement Stretton, P. Prov. J.G.W., and L. A. Clarke, P.P.S.G.W., were re-elected to represent the Prov. G. Lodge, as members of the committee of the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester.

Bro. Langley proposed "That when any brother who, having represented this province as Steward for two of the central Masonic Charitable Institutions, has become qualified to wear the Charity Jewel, such jewel should be presented to him by Prov. G. Lodge, and that W. Bro. Robert Waite, Prov. J.G.W., who is just completing his second year of office as Charity Steward for this province, be the first recipient of such jewel."

Bro. Denton seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Letters of apology were received from several Prov. G. Officers and others, including one from Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.D., and an honorary member of Lodges 279 and 523 in this province.

A hearty vote of thanks to the members of the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge for the reception they had given to the Prov. G. Lodge, brought the business to an end, and the Prov. G. Lodge was closed in due form.

The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Queen's Head Hotel, where an excellent banquet was most admirably served by the worthy host, Bro. Love. The Prov. G.M. presided, and after the dinner his lordship proposed the loyal and Masonic toasts usual on these occasions.

The attendance, notwithstanding the very wet weather and the inconvenient nature of the railway accommodation, was extremely good, and this, the first meeting under the new arrangement for the assembling of the Prov. G. Lodge half yearly, may be considered a complete success.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly General Court of the subscribers to the Masonic Girls' School was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major J. Creaton, Vice-Patron, presided, and the other brethren present were John Symonds, Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, Robert E. Webster, H. M. Levy, Edward Harris, H. Muggeridge, Thomas F.

Peacock, H. Browse, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little (Secretary).

After the formal business had been transacted, Bro. Thomas W. White said he had much pleasure in moving, pursuant to notice, that the rank of honorary Vice-Patron be conferred on Bro. T. S. Howell, the honorary medical officer of the Institution. On the 21st Oct., 1852, the committee received a letter from Bro. Howell, in which he offered to serve the Institution as its honorary medical officer. On the 13th Jan., 1853, he was appointed, and from that time downwards had most kindly and attentively acted in the capacity to which he had been chosen. The brethren would, of course, all remember the services he had rendered at the time of the outbreak of scarlet fever in the School two or three years ago. Last year, when the School was laid up with the mumps, he attended to all the girls with his usual kindness, attention, and efficiency. When Miss Jarwood, the matron, was very ill, and some of the House Committee were sent for one day, Bro. Howell's partner, Mr. Edie, saw them, and told them in case any further advice should be considered necessary they were not to wait for authorisation, but to send for it immediately. They thought it was necessary, and they sent for Mr. Hilton, whose fees Bro. Howell paid out of his own pocket. When the Committee heard of that they enquired what the amount of the fees was, and finding it was forty guineas, they drew a cheque for the amount, and handed it to Bro. Howell. He, however, returned it, and refused altogether to receive it. It had, therefore, been thought but due to Bro. Howell that he should be elected an honorary Vice-Patron, he being already an honorary Vice-President.

Bro. John Symonds said he should be very glad to second that motion. He belonged to the House Committee at the time when Bro. Howell kindly tendered his services, and had had an opportunity of witnessing the great and tender care which Bro. Howell always showed to the girls in the School. Bro. White had been able to speak for himself of the more recent period of Bro. Howell's service, but he could not speak of the much older period. He (Bro. Symonds), who was an older Mason, and a very old member of the House Committee, could speak of the early as well as the late period of their history, and he could say that whether serving more recent House Committees or the old one, or serving the interest of the School, Bro. Howell was well deserving of the compliment they proposed to pay him.

The Chairman said he also could bear testimony to the truth of all that had been said. He had been a member of the House Committee many years, and had seen that Bro. Howell had paid great attention to his duties, and had given entire satisfaction to every member of the House Committee.

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Griffiths Smith rose to propose that the rank of honorary Vice-President should be conferred upon Bro. Peter Matthews. His reason for proposing it was that Bro. Peter Matthews had been the honorary surgeon dentist of the Institution for 30 or 40 years. He was now 70 years of age, and was obliged to have a carriage every time he went to the school. As he had been so many years honorary surgeon dentist to the School, it was but right that the rank of honorary Vice-President should be conferred upon him.

Bro. H. Browse seconded the motion, which was also put and adopted without a dissentient.

Bro. Griffiths Smith proposed and Bro. H. Browse seconded Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale to fill the two vacant trusteeships to the Institution, which was also unhesitatingly adopted.

The Court settled the list of candidates for next election in October. There were 30 candidates, but will only be six vacancies, to make up the number of children educated in the school to 150.

A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Quarterly Court of Subscribers of this Institution was held on Monday, July 12th, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Major J. Creaton, Vice-Patron, in the chair. Among the other brethren present were Bros. R. B. Webster, John Hervey, James Terry, H. Massey (Freemason), W. F. C. Moutrie, G. R. Ware, H. Browse, W. C. Parsons, W. Clifton Crick, and F. Binckes, Secretary. There was nothing but formal business to be transacted, and after settling the list of 57 candidates, nine to be elected, for the October election, the Committee adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting took place on the 14th July at Freemasons' Hall, present W. Bro. John Creaton, P.G.D., Vice-Patron, in the chair; Bros. John Newton, Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, Samuel Rawson, C. A. Cotterburne, William Stephens, James Brett, H. M. Levy, William Wilson, and Thomas Cubitt. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and verified.

The deaths of two male annuitants were reported, one having received £107 and the other £159.

The Report of the Finance Committee was read and adopted, and cheques for various amounts were ordered to be signed. The Treasurer was authorized to purchase Stock for both the Male and Widows' Fund, pursuant to recommendation of Finance Committee.

Petitions were received from three male candidates. All being regular, they were directed to be placed on the list for election in May next.

Application was made on behalf of two of the newly-elected annuitants for permission to reside in the asylum at Croydon, which was unanimously granted.

The Committee very kindly granted the use of the hall for an entertainment to be given to the residents in the course of the next fortnight, similar to last year, and also resolved to defray its cost.

Some further business having been transacted, the Committee adjourned.

INUNDATIONS IN FRANCE.

The Committee of the Universal Alliance, 41, Pall Mall, London, has received the following letter from Madame la Maréchale de MacMahon, addressed to Major de Winton:—

"Versailles, 2 Juillet, 1875.

"Monsieur,

"Je vous prie de recevoir tous mes remerciements pour l'empressement avec lequel vous avez organisé à Londres une souscription en faveur des inondés du midi de la France. Je suis très reconnaissante de ce témoignage d'intérêt donné par l'Angleterre, et je vous demanderai d'être mon interprète auprès de ceux qui ont bien voulu vous seconder dans cette bonne œuvre.

"Quant aux dons en nature, les frais de transport nous obligent à les refuser, à moins que l'on ne veuille les envoyer à Paris, au Palais de l'Industrie, en payant le port.

"Recevez, Monsieur, l'assurance de mes sentiments distingués.

(Signed) "Maréchale de MacMahon."

METROPOLITAN.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The summer festival of this truly united lodge was held under the happiest circumstances of weather and place, on Tuesday last. The house selected was Bro. Stone's, the Ship Hotel, Shepperton, in the midst of the most charming scenery. The brethren flocked down by rail, road, and river, and made in all a party a third larger than was looked for, but the embarrassment of the W.M., Bro. While, at having so striking a proof of his popularity was speedily relieved by finding that Bro. Host was equal to the occasion with an ample banquet for all, though one room was not large enough for the dinner party. Bros. P.M. James Terry, and Daniel Tallerman (known among his familiars as "the Baron") exerted themselves in every way to provide the company with amusement, and this was mostly found on the river by the brethren and the ladies in boating and fishing. At the dinner the W.M. presided, supported by Past Masters Crump (Sec.), Winsland (Treas.), James Terry, Bottrill, Davies, Senior Warden Griggs, Junior Warden J. Hill, the other officers being Halford, Percy, and Flaws. The usual toasts were given, and the warm acknowledgments of the party were made to the W.M., the P.M.'s, and to the officers for the happy day at this quiet limit of the world. With the J.W.'s greeting, ending with "Happy meet again," the party separated to find their various ways to London. It should be mentioned that a large party started in the morning from the Old Gate, at Clerkenwell (St. John of Jerusalem), and Bro. Gay provided an excellent luncheon for his brethren and their friends, and told them that supper would await them if they arrived within hours.

LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 206).—The members of this lodge celebrated their annual summer outing on Thursday last, the 8th inst. They were accompanied on this occasion by the companions of the Mount Lebanon Chapter (the chapter attached to the lodge). It was confidently expected that Bro. Captain Boyton, who is an Entered Apprentice in the lodge, would be present, but, unfortunately, an engagement in the provinces in connection with his life-saving dress prevented him from joining. However, he was not unkind of the brethren, he having telegraphed to the Father of the lodge, Bro. William Rumsey, expressing his (Bro. Captain Boyton's) regret that his engagements prevented his attendance. The following amongst others were present:—Bros. John Waters, W.M.; Allen R. Rumsey, S.W.; Thomas Taylor, J.W.; J. Jewitt Stephens, S.D.; W. H. Godolphin, I.G.; Grant, Tyler; William Rumsey, P.M. and Treas.; John Rumsey, P.M. and Sec.; Samuel Gamman, I.P.M.; William Coubro, P.M.; Alfred Harris, P.M.; F. G. Harrison, P.M.; Frederick Wiggins, P.M.; E. B. Barnard, P.M.; H. M. Collier, P.M.; John Stewart, P.M.; Charles T. Parsons, Thomas G. Seaborn, T. G. Steel, John Hurrell, and Watson (many of the above are companions also). Also Comps. C. G. Smithers and Moore. Amongst the visitors were Bros. R. G. Seaborn, I.G. 217; Robert Brown, St. Peter's, Montrose; George L. Mustoph, 134; and A. Mellish, 188. There were, too, Bros. Toole, Abbott, Miles, Parsons, and Spicer. The majority of the brethren were conveyed in a private coach and break, drawn respectively by four handsome greys and a pair. The former were splendidly driven by their owner, and the latter by one of his servants. Some went in their own private carriages or by rail. The coach and break left town at half-past ten. At this hour the sky threatened a wet, but the weather soon cleared up, and the rain fortunately kept off for the remainder of the day. The route taken lay through all those pleasant and picturesque villages in the eastern suburbs, known and appreciated so extensively. The first stoppage was made at Bro. Barford's, the Red Lion, Leytonstone. From thence the brethren proceeded to Walthamstow, and then on to the Robin Hood at Loughton. At this stage the company, being freed for the time from the restraints of City business and professional life, and being well into the country in the bargain, saw no reason why they should not employ every innocent means coming in their way to make the outing as pleasant as possible. At this place, therefore, a man having set up the paraphernalia connected with the game of cockshying on a little bit of green hard by, where he was patiently sitting waiting for customers, a considerable stay was made, to give some of the brethren an opportunity of displaying their proficiency in this game. And an unexpected bit of luck the proprietor had for once. How is it that at cockshying the nuts perched a top of the baskets have such a pertinacity of falling anywhere but in the place where the player has a right of claiming them? One cannot but think that there must be a sort of understanding between the nuts and their owner that they are not to part company. This idea is strengthened by the fact that the man is always willing to give a coin, and a silver one, too, for the nut when a customer has succeeded in obtaining it; rather than let it go. The Robin Hood must be a favourite centre with holiday-folk. There were crowds of them about the neighbourhood. There, too, was the usual compliment of donkeys, each bearing on his back a gentleman's and a lady's saddle comprised in one. Talk about the obstinacy of the ass, there was as determined an old fellow in front of the tavern as one would wish to see; he could not be got to move on either by blows, kicks, or coaxing. The desperate attempts made to get him away, and the persistent obstinacy of the brute in remaining, created roars of laughter amongst the by-standers. At last one of the brethren bethought him of a plan. He procured a biscuit and held it out temptingly to the animal. This proved too strong an inducement, and he was thus allured away. One doubts whether a donkey's sense of feeling is as acute as that generally obtaining in other animals, for let the blows be laid on his shaggy hide ever so repeatedly and severely he still preserves that usual stolid demeanour and dry, comic expression of countenance so characteristic of the animal. If he kicks he does so, it would appear, more from a sense of feeling an insult has been offered than from an experience of pain. On the vehicles went again through the lovely roads and lanes skirting Epping Forest. Now and then a gipsy's caravan (perhaps the most picturesque and primitive sight that can be seen) is observed pitched on the ground between the trees, and as the brethren pass out come the gipsy boys and girls indiscriminately, bodies unwashed, hair dishevelled, ragged and shoeless, dexterously throwing themselves head over heels, at the same time scampering after the brethren as the horses go on at a good round trot. A great hulk of an adult gipsy with a tiny gipsy baby in his arms, struggles hard to keep up, piteously begging for coppers. Honest labour would not be half such hard work. One feels reluctant to assist such bare-faced vagrancy, but the children persist, compassion in the onlooker ensues, and out go the coppers, the donor consoling himself with the determination that never again will he bestow alms on such folk. One does it, however, again and again, under the like circumstances, for do not the gipsy and his caravan form by no means an insignificant part in the make up of the rural scene around. Here and there along the route, and in the distance, the forest was dotted with small and select picnic parties, and as the conveyances passed greetings were exchanged between these little knots of people and the brethren, each party in dumb show (for they were too far off to be spoken to) conveying to the other the wish that a pleasant day would be experienced and enjoyed. Whilst passing through the beautifully undulating country, thickly wooded as it is with all kinds of trees and shrubs, one cannot but feel grateful for the successful attempts recently made, especially by the City Corporation, to preserve the really lovely Forest of Epping from the hands of the selfish encroacher so that it may be enjoyed as a recreation ground by the present generation, and handed down as a precious gift to future posterity. Onward the brethren went, beautiful scenery on either side. And the ferns. Oh what ferns! Beds of ferns planted and nursed by nature and growing in wild luxuriance, almost as thickly as blades of grass upon a well-kept lawn, covered many of the open spaces in the copse. It is on occasions and amidst scenes like these that one experiences more forcibly that gratitude due to the Supreme Being for the bounties existing in nature, a gratitude to be felt and not expressed. At last Theydon Bois was reached, and then over the railway and down a long lane, with hayfields and cornfields on this side, and hayfields and cornfields on that; cosy farmhouses peeping out from behind the shrubberies; lots of tall trees bordering the road, with their boughs overhanging and so near the ground as to compel a constant watch so that one might dodge at the right moment to save one's hat, and may be one's head too. Such fun! Away they go over the little rivulet and all at once draw up in fine style in front of the White Hart at Abridge. All are welcome here, for nearly every one is more or less personally acquainted with the warm-hearted host and his family. Here too a pleasing incident takes place. The same thing occurred last year and the year before too, for this route is a favourite one with the lodge, and it seems now they are never likely to change it. There is a poor but honest old man in the village known to and respected by all the inhabitants; he is lame and can do very little work, perhaps none. He knows the day and almost the hour the brethren are expected to call, for as the vehicles turn the corner of the White Hart, there the old man is leaning against the wall, apparently in the same position as when he was left this very day last year. It would seem as if the old man had not budged from the spot since. There he is, all expectancy, his good-tempered old face radiant with delight. Presently the hat goes round, and every one puts in a coin; the sum collected is handed to the old gentleman and it does one's heart good to see how he receives it. He plants his crutches into the earth as an extra support, pokes himself more stiffly up against the wall, thrusts his two hard palms forth, and the load of coppers, &c., (for there is a stray bit of silver amongst the copper), is emptied into them. Look at his watery eyes and the tears as they come trickling down his worn cheeks. These must express his thanks, and so they do eloquently, for he feels apples in his throat and he can give utterance to never a word. Never mind, the brethren will see him again next year, on the same day, and pretty nearly the same hour, if all be well. But it is high time they were starting for the King's Head, Chigwell. All mount to their seats, room is found for a much respected member of the lodge, the I.P.M., Bro. Samuel Gamman, who, at that particular moment unexpectedly turns up, somehow from somewhere, and quite accidentally of course. Farewell is bidden the host and his family, and away they go to the goal at a spanking speed. The fine old hostelry is soon reached. A first class banquet is provided. The whole affair is divested of as much formality as possible; consequently, after the banquet only two or three of the principal toasts are proposed by Bro. John Waters, W.M., and Comp. Alfred Harris, M.E.Z. After the dinner the brethren dispersed themselves over the prettily laid out gardens attached to the house, and in the adjoining meadows. Some indulged in a game of cricket, others amused themselves in playing at quoits, whilst the more robust took to skittles, the older members sitting or leisurely strolling about here and there, watching the games of the younger, and all enjoying to the utmost the balmy sweetness of the refreshing and fragrant air, and the soft influences of the lovely summer evening. Twilight at last set in. Tea and coffee were served. All reckonings were soon made and paid, and the horses put to, and after giving the host a parting cheer at starting, in recognition of his services and geniality, the brethren were soon well on a third of their way to town. As it was now dusk, and they had some lonely lanes and roads to pass through, they unanimously concluding that a song or two, with some good choruses in which all could join would not be indecorous, enlivened this part of the outing in that way, and after one or two stoppages at old landmarks in the shape of halfway houses, the brethren arrived safely in town without having to book one mishap to mar the pleasantness of the day.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—This young and successful lodge held its first summer festival under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Jas. Willing, jun., at the Rye House, on Friday, the 9th inst., when, in spite of the most inclement weather, about fifty sat down to a most excellent banquet. Present, including officers, Stewards, &c.:—W.M., and the Misses Willing; Bro. Michael, Mr. and Mrs. H. Liston; Bro. and Mrs. John Douglass; Bro. and Mrs. Williams; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Douglass; Bro. and Miss Child; Bro. and Mrs. Kingham; Bros. Scales, J. Tims, Rapkin, and Easby; Bro. Shand and Mrs. Shand; Bro. Hatton; Bro. Page and Mrs. Page; Bro. Brumell and Mrs. Brumell; Bro. Gilbert and Mrs. Gilbert; Bros. Ralph, Erwood, Levy, and M. H. Levy. After the health of the Queen had been drunk, the W.M., in proposing the Grand Master's health, alluded to the intended visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to India, and hoped it would be the means of uniting the two countries in still more friendly fraternal intercourse, and be the means of enabling each more fully to comprehend and trust the other. Bro. Michael proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was enthusiastically received. He said Bro. Willing belonging to several lodges and chapters, had a deal of his time occupied by Freemasonry, but had paid such attention to the Metropolitan Lodge that it had arrived close upon the termination of the first year entirely free from debt, and over £70 paid to the Grand Lodge. The other toasts were "The Officers," responded to by Bros. Tims and Michael; "The Stewards," by Bros. John Douglass and Williams; "The Visitors," by Bro. Ralph and Richard Douglass. In proposing "The Health of the Ladies," the W.M. thanked them very sincerely for their kindness in being present in such unpropitious weather, but hoped to see them next year under more favourable auspices. The youngest bachelor, Bro. H. W. Levy, replied in a very humorous speech, and the company adjourned to the conservatory, where dancing was kept up until ten o'clock.

LIVERPOOL.—FERMOR HESKETH (No. 1350).—The installation of the M.W. elect of this lodge took place at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Thursday week. There was a numerous attendance of brethren, among whom were Bros. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P. Prov. G.C.; and W.M. of the Liverpool Lodge; J. P. Platt, P. Prov. G.J.W., Cheshire; Dr. A. Stephens, P. Prov. G.J.D.; T. K. Hughes, P.M.; J. Higson Johnston, P.M.; Dr. Arthur Samuels, P.M.; Edward Harbird, P.M.; F. Day, W.M. 1013; T. A. Collinson, W.M.; the Rev. — Black, P.G.C.; Dr. Crawford, W.M. Sefton Lodge, and P.M. 1350; Dr. J. M. Bennett, S.W.; Dr. Pierce, D. of C.; the Rev. Samuel Topham, P.C.; the Rev. C. F. Mermagan, Chaplain; R. Collinson, J. W.; W. H. Cooper, Sec.; Dr. Carter, Thos. Platt, P.P.G.J.D., Cheshire; H. Gilmore, I.G., and others. At the commencement of the proceedings Bro. T. A. Collinson, W.M., took the chair, and the lodge having been opened in solemn form, Bro. J. M. Bennett the W.M. elect, was presented to the retiring Master. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bros. Johnston and Hughes. The W.M. elect appointed the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. Collinson, S.W.; W. H. Cooper, J.W.; T. A. Collinson, P.M., Treas.; J. Samuels, Sec.; Johnston, P.M., D. of C.; Dr. Pierce, S.D.; Evans, J.D.; Cooper, I.G.; Dr. Carter, S., and the Rev. C. F. Mermagan, Chaplain. The W.M. then initiated a candidate into Freemasonry, discharging that duty in an able and impressive manner. The brethren subsequently mixed together, a first class banquet being provided by Russell, of Bold-street. In the course of the evening a very handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. T. A. Collinson, in recognition of his valuable services in the chair, and several Masonic and other toasts were duly honoured.

BURDETT COUTTS LODGE No. 1272.—The Baroness Burdett Coutts has appointed Thursday next, the 29th inst., at 5 o'clock, to present to the members of the lodge three chairs for its principal officers, upon which occasion, by special permission granted, the brethren will meet at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, in full Masonic Craft costume. Immediately after the presentation a dejeuner will take place to which the Baroness has consented to remain. The members will be accompanied by their ladies.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 14th July, at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was a very good attendance of the brethren. The officers present were Bros. P. M. Benj. Collinge, W.M. pro tem; Ab. Barker, S.W.; P.M. Wm. Davis, J.W. pro tem; Dan. Mitchell, P.M., Sec.; Benj. Collinge, P.M. Treas.; R. Collingwood, S.D.; Chas. O'Dherty, J.D.; C. H. Bintliff, I.G.; James Midgley, P.M. Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, at the hour of 6.20 p.m., and the minutes of the previous lodges were read and put for confirmation and carried unanimously, after which Mr. John Jones, chemist and druggist, was balloted for and approved; he was then admitted, and regularly initiated into Freemasonry according to ancient custom by P.M. Dan Mitchell in his usual style. There being no other business of importance, the lodge was closed at 7.40, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was provided by P.M. Wm. Ashworth and his wife in their usual elegant and neat manner, which is always pleasing to the brethren. After the cloth was removed the usual toasts were given, commencing with "The Queen," which was heartily received. This was followed by "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England." The next toast was "The Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master." The W.M. then gave "Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." The W.M. gave "The Health of Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. Grand Master, East Lancashire." The S.W. gave "The Health of W. R. Callender, Deputy Prov. Grand Master." The J.W. gave "The rest of the Prov. Officers." A number of other toasts were given amongst which was "The Health of the Newly Initiate, Bro. John Jones" who briefly responded to the same. P.M., Ben. Collinge proposed "The Health of the Visiting Brethren, Bro. John Ashworth, W.M. of Roys Lodge 816; Bro. John Cavanah, Cope Lodge 1357; and Bro. Wm. Fielding, Harmony 298." The W.M. called upon each brother to give his own toast which was done. The W.M. then gave the usual closing toast and the brethren separated in peace and brotherly love towards each other, after having spent a very pleasant and comfortable evening.

POLLOKSHAW.—LODGE ROYAL ARCH (No. 153).—This old and prosperous lodge held a meeting on the 9th inst., in their new hall, that has just been erected for them, situated in Cogan-street. They were joined by large numbers of brethren from the sister lodges in Glasgow and Western district. A procession was formed at the hall, headed by a band of music, which the deputation from Thorntree Lodge, 512, Thornliebank, had with them, and another, which the Pollokshaws Lodge had procured for the occasion. The procession started from the hall, and marched through the principal streets of the town in full Masonic array, causing no little pleasurable amusement to the inhabitants, who turned out in great force to become spectators of the demonstration. Having returned to the hall, the lodge was formed and opened by Bro. Peters, the much respected R.W.M., and his office-bearers. It was intended that the consecration of the lodge should have taken place at the same time, but this, through some unavoidable obstacle, could not take place; no business, therefore, being before the lodge but the taking possession of their new premises, and a hearty Masonic welcome by the brethren of sister lodges, the lodge was called to harmony, when one of the most happy and pleasant evenings was passed through that has taken place in the "Shaws" for a long time. Bro. Peters was in great good humour in the chair, and he was both ably and good naturedly supported by his able Wardens, Bros. W. Paton, S.W., and Jas. Black, J.W. The usual loyal toasts having been given and responded to in the usual Masonic style, the three Grand Lodges, England, Scotland, and Ireland, followed, and were alike Masonically received. The Chairman then gave "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Renfrew East," which were responded to by highest honours. The R.W.M. then gave "The Lodges of Renfrew East," coupled with Bro. Scobie, R.W.M. of Thorntree Lodge. In his remarks he said the Lodge of Pollokshaws appreciated very much the high compliment the Thorntree Lodge had paid them that night in coming among them to add to the harmony of the evening, they not being content with their own talents as vocal musicians, but bringing a band of music with them to delight the inhabitants of the town. Bro. Scobie returned thanks for the compliment, remarking that what had taken place that night with the brethren who had paid a visit to the Pollokshaws Lodge was no more than an exhibition of the pleasure it afforded to one another to see each other prospering. He concluded by paying a high compliment to Bro. Peters for the able way he conducted the affairs of the Pollokshaws Lodge. The various lodges represented were severally toasted, and the representatives replying in suitable terms, the R.W.M. proposed the toast of "The Musical Choir," coupled with Bro. J. Millar, P.M. Athol, 413, who conducted the musical performances of the evening. Bro. Millar's ability in this department requires no comment, but that of the mention of his well-known name. Bro. Millar most feelingly acknowledged the compliment paid for himself and those brothers who had taken part with him. "The Health of the R.W.M." was then proposed and responded to, and "Happy to Meet and Happy to Part" being given, closed a happy night, and those brethren who had to leave for a distance went off with the firm conviction that there was not only "queer folk in the Shaws," but warm-hearted, kind, convivial fellows also. Among the lodges represented were the following:—Mother Kilwinning, 0; 4, 27, 116, 117, 142, 144, 156, 178, 128, 347, 360, 370, 377, 403, 512 556. In the intervals between the toasts a number of songs were given by various brethren in an admirable style. Bro. Millar, and the able choir he had selected, gave satisfaction beyond all praise.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the 5th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The lodge was opened by Bros. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M.; McKirdy, S.W.; Arch. McConchie, J.W.; J. M. Innes, Sec.; J. Laird, Treas.; J. Balfour, P.M.; Wilson, Chaplain; and others. The meeting was well attended. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. There were two applicants for initiation, viz.: Mr. William Geo. Burns, proposed by Bro. J. M. Innes, seconded by Bro. J. Mitchell; Joseph Henderson Gill, proposed by Bro. J. Dale, seconded by Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. The R.W.M. put them through the First Degree with great care and impressiveness. The harmonium question was then brought up. After some conversation, it was agreed to delay the procuring of one till after the contemplated alterations in the hall were completed. The S.W., Bro. McKirdy, who was Chairman of the Annual Festival Committee, explained to the members of the lodge how matters relating thereto stood, and everything connected with it was now satisfactorily closed. The R.W.M., in answer to a question put by the S.W., said a considerable time ago a committee, composed principally of Masters of Lodges in Glasgow, was formed for the purpose of raising subscriptions to obtain a suitable place in one of the burial grounds in the city to be set aside as a "Masonic burial ground." A considerable sum of money was raised for the purpose, and was placed in the bank, and it was the pressure of other business on some members of committee that caused delay; but a meeting would be called for an early day, when he hoped the scheme would be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354) held their regular monthly meeting in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 7th inst. The meeting was well attended, both by members of the lodge and by visiting brethren from sister lodges. Bro. James Shaw, R.W.M., in the chair. Bros. J. W. Stafford, S.W.; A. Ferguson, J.W.; D. Buchan, D.M.; A. A. Smith, P.M.; Colquhoun, Treas.; W. R. Dunn, Sec.; W. Bell, R.W.M. 34; J. Monro, R.W.M. 360; J. Fraser, P.M. 87; were among the members and brethren present. Upon the minutes being read, a lively and spirited conversation took place upon their correctness, the R.W.M., Bros. Smith, McKenzie, Colquhoun, Stafford, and others, taking part in it. The minutes, after some addition, were declared carried and confirmed. The appointment of Bro. Colquhoun, as Treasurer, was then confirmed, and he was installed in that office. Two applications for initiation were read, and were found acceptable, and they received the First Degree, Bro. Stafford, S.W., working that degree in a very able manner. An emergency meeting was arranged to take place on Monday, 12th inst., at seven o'clock, and the lodge was closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 2nd inst., Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., presiding. Bros. J. M. Olliver, S.W.; T. Graham, acting J.W.; A. Morton, I.P.M.; J. Brodie, P.M.; J. Davidson, P.M.; and a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. Bro. Monro, R.W.M., opened the lodge, and the minutes of last meeting were read and approved. After a few matters of business connected with the lodge had been brought up and discussed, Bro. J. M. Olliver proposed that the lodge present their R.W.M., Bro. Monro, with a pair of gauntlets, in appreciation of the very able and efficient manner in which he conducted the affairs of the lodge, and his kindness in general, which was agreed to unanimously. The lodge was then raised to the degree of Fellow Craft, Bro. Couper receiving this degree in a style that reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Brodie, P.M., and Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., who officiated. On Bro. Couper retiring, the lodge was again raised to the Master Mason Degree, and Bro. Scott was raised to this sublime degree, Bro. D. Lamb, D.M., officiating in his usual efficient manner. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

GOVAN.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 437).—This lodge met in their hall, Portland Buildings, Govan, on the 6th inst. In the absence of Bro. McFarlane, R.W.M., Bro. John Hutcheson, S.M., took the chair, and was supported by Bros. Colin McKenzie, acting S.W.; G. Wilson, J.W.; and a large number of well qualified brethren. The lodge was opened. The Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were confirmed. Two applicants for initiation were proposed, and found worthy, and received the First Degree, Bro. Hutcheson officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Second Degree, when two brothers received that, Bro. Hutcheson again officiating. The lodge was further raised, and two brothers found worthy were entrusted with the sublime degree of Master Mason. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDESDALE (No. 556).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 106, Rose-street, S.S., on the 5th inst. The chairs were filled by Bros. Wm. Phillip, R.W.M.; John Howie, S.W.; Thos. Phillip, J.W.; together with a large number of well qualified brethren. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. An application for the honours of Freemasonry was submitted from Mr. Thomas Henderson, and having met with the approval of the brethren, he was prepared for and received the First Degree, Bro. Stark, D.M. 553, officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, when Bro. Wm. Smith received that degree, the R.W.M. officiating. The lodge being raised to the Sublime Degree, Bros. Alex. Anderson, Jas. McCammon, Jas. Cairncross, Wm. Smith, and Thos. Waughton got that degree, the R.W.M. officiating. The business of the lodge being over, it was closed in due and ancient form.

THE NEW LODGE OF ALEXANDRA PALACE.

There have been few occasions more interesting in Freemasonry than were presented in the consecration and constitution of the new Alexandra Palace Lodge on Saturday last. Grand Secretary John Hervey was the consecrating officer, assisted by Bros. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.; the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C.; R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Secretary of Middlesex; and "other distinguished Masons," as the programme stated. The W. Master designate was Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D., and Deputy Provincial G.M. for Middlesex; the Wardens designate being Bro. G. Kelly King and Bro. G. J. Palmer. Among those present were Bros. John Rowlands (Tregaron, Cardiganshire), Howel Williams, Swansea, J. While, W.M. 228; Bingemann, W.M. 55; J. Stacey, Dr. Ramsey, Major Harding, Farthing, P.M. 55; John Dodson, I.G. 55; J. W. Vickers, J.W.; Sparkes, G. Brown, Foster, &c. The new lodge room is situated in Messrs. Bertram and Roberts' suite of the Palace, and commands views over many fair counties. It was elegantly fitted, and the "furniture" was of handsome design. The brethren walked in procession to the lodge room, and Grand Secretary, who appointed Bro. Fenn as S.W., and Hansard, P.G.S. as J.W. opened the lodge in the usual form, and then addressed the assemblage on the nature of the meeting, speaking of its high and important character, and in touching upon the vast increase of the Order, he strongly urged that the utmost discrimination should be shown in the admission of new members, in order that none, if possible, but the best men should be selected as brethren. Bro. P.G. Chaplain then offered prayer, and on the brethren of the new lodge being ranged in order, Bro. P.M. Stacey read the petition for the lodge, and the warrant of H.R.H. the Grand Master. The ceremony of consecration, according to ancient form, then proceeded, a ceremony, of course, which cannot be described, but it must suffice to say that Grand Secretary gave it with all due gravity and solemnity. The prayers were read by the P.G. Chaplain, and the musical arrangements, which were of the most perfect character, were under Bro. Chaplin Henry, who was assisted by Bros. T. Baxter, G. T. Carter, E. H. Taylor, F. H. Cozens, and Theodore Distin. The ceremony of installing Bro. Parkinson was performed by Bro. Stacey, the pro. tem. Sec. of the new lodge. The other officers appointed were Bros. Magnay, Treas.; J. R. Stacey, Sec.; Spackman, S.D.; E. M. Haigh, J.D.; John Lee, I.G.; John Dyte, M.C.; &c.

The P.G. Chaplain delivered the following oration:—
W. Master, Wardens, and Brethren,—Let me heartily congratulate, in the first place, the founders of the Alexandra Palace Lodge on the auspicious event of to-day, and, in the second place, our brethren generally, on the addition of another tent to the thousands that now form the great Masonic encampment which extends over the four quarters of the world. It would be vain for me to carry back your thoughts to that remote antiquity of which Freemasonry justly boasts, and to those worthies of former days whose words and deeds shed glory on the Craft. That antiquity has been illustrated, and those noble Masons have been eulogised by poets and by sages, and are, doubtless, familiar to you all. But I would, for a moment, point to the immediate past, and to the present, and I would fearlessly ask, what body of men on the face of earth (with one exception) is more universal in its extent, higher in its aims, purer in its principles, more united in its operations, or more bountiful in its charities, than the ancient institution to which we belong—what body more zealous in promoting peace and goodwill upon earth, and even pointing the road to Heaven? It would, indeed, be strange if, in an imperfect world such as ours we claimed infallibility either for our Order or its individual members. The frailties of human nature are incident to all communities, and the ecclesiastical history of Rome, perhaps, supplies us with as sad illustrations of this fact as any that the world's chronicles can furnish, but we may safely assert that Masonry, with its sublime principles, has, from age to age, and in many a dark hour of that world's history, proved a mighty educator in the hands of the Grand Master Most High, in elevating that human nature from the dust in which it had sunk, placing it on the road to happiness, and bidding it, with a potent voice echoed through 18 centuries, "Rise up and walk." It has taken the light from under the bushel of the cloister, and put it not only in the candlestick, but on a hill, that all around may benefit by its benign rays. It has broken down the self-constituted monopolies of human selfishness, and opened out to man the power, the wisdom, the glory, and above all, the goodness of God. Can we wonder that a society of men bound together by such principles, and owning such obligations, have weathered the storms of eight-and-twenty centuries, and lives to this day, more vigorous, more numerous than ever? What wonder that legislators, nobles, statesmen, princes, and kings crowd into our ranks, and that at this moment the King of Sweden, the King of Denmark, the King of Italy, the President of the United States, the Heir Apparent to the Imperial Throne of the German Empire, and last, not least, the Heir Apparent to the Throne of England, should form a galaxy of Masonic beauty and a bond of Masonic strength unparalleled in the annals of the world. Never since the day that York gave birth-place to the first Christian Emperor, Constantine the Great, or the same ancient city was the site of Alfred's Masonic throne, has Masonry made such strides in England as at this day, and never has it held a higher character. It is ready to be tried by its own law, and I hesitate not to assert that, in proportion as it stands that test, it will "hold its own" against principalities and powers, against malicious sneers and impotent anathemas. The fierce light of public opinion beats upon us, brethren; let us come to that light and it will be felt that, not in poetry, but in fact, "there's naught but what's good to be understood by a Free and an Accepted Mason." Nor does Masonry ignore, it points to enduring mansions and a final rest. It teaches the progressive nature of human knowledge, which we see evinced by the improvements taking place every day amongst us, but by analogy it leads us to conclude that what we see proceeding in such regular order towards perfection will not suspend its operations even when the functions of the body cease. This scene of human life, though the theatre of improvement, is far from being that of perfection. We must look through the cloud, therefore, and welcome that bright morning star, which brightens all our prospects and points the pathway to immortality. "For now we see through a glass darkly, but then, face to face; now we know in part, and then shall we know even as we are known." It is no secret that in years far back in our history Masonry was not unaffected by the customs of the times through which it was passing, and gave more attention to the social than to the intellectual, the moral, or the religious element in its constitution, that its charity was too contracted and self-contained, and that that most significant image which God has given of Himself, and to be an emblem of higher truths, was in danger of being reversed by the members, not the head, taking the uppermost seat, I trust in God, that for God's sake, for our Order's sake, for our own sakes, that this view of Masonry is fading away like a bad photograph, and that such a view is now publicly and rightly branded as a "Masonic Heresy." Let me not be supposed for a moment to contend for a real or affected asceticism, nor to disparage or discourage the fair and reasonable social intercourse that is to be found in our assemblies at the festive board, but I do say the lodge ought to stand clearly, first, the banquet second, in our estimation, and I make bold to say, that Masonry would flourish as well, and ourselves also, if the ordinary banquets in London (as in the provinces) were fewer in number, and not on so expensive a scale, as they are at present. When I speak of the lodge as standing first in our estimation I do not merely allude to the principles there inculcated, I would include the manner in which they are conveyed, the attention to details, the order maintained, the gentlemanly bearing of the officers to the brethren, and to each other, and not least, the correct, reverent, and impressive manner in which our most beautiful, solemn, and instructive ceremonies are conducted. It is impossible to conjecture the momentous effect with which this must tell upon Masonry in general or upon the lodge, or individual Masons in particular. Few scenes of my life are stamped upon my memory in deeper characters than my entrance into Masonry, and my being raised to what is called in no exaggerated language, the Sublime Degree, and why?—not merely owing to the matter, but even more to the manner in which the degrees were worked. There is another point, brethren, to which I would venture to direct your attention and my own, I mean to our noble charities. Let them be a first charge on our Masonic affections—not merely in regard to raising princely sums to sustain them—itself a glorious work—but in maintaining in them a high standard of efficiency, and of moral and religious culture. Nor should we shrink from calmly considering whether some improvements may not be made by which admission to our institutions may be made on a more reasonable, more discriminating, more economical, and more equitable basis. I should not be sorry to see it made a qualification for every London apprentice at least before he was passed to the degree of a Craftsman, that he should have personally visited at least one of our Masonic charities. Brethren, the Alexandra Palace Lodge is in my humble opinion a peculiarly happy title. The building from which it takes its name, and its elder sister on Penge Hill, owe their origin to the wise and thoughtful mind of one who for many years brought within the range of its kindly and extensive ken the interests alike of the palace and the cottage. The thoughts, the words, the life of the late good and great Prince Consort have left an indelible mark on this nation, so that the "Alexandra Palace" may fairly remind us of Wisdom, a wisdom which, whether taken in connection with the departed Prince or Masonry, is most eloquently defined in the volume of the Sacred Law to be "first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy, to be entreated, full of mercy and of good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy." Taking the words separately, we may in our old monarchical England consider that "palace" denotes strength, especially while the Court of our gracious Queen holds forth so bright an example in every relation of life, and while we have our Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Heir Apparent to the Throne, owning the allegiance of thousands of Masons, and the regard of all good and loyal Britons; while I am sure that the name "Alexandra" calls up with electric rapidity the beauty with which our Prince and our land are adorned, not only in the person but in the character of that Princess whom the people of this country have learnt to regard as the good and fair consort of our Prince, and we, in addition, as the tender and devoted wife of our Grand Master. With such a significant title may this lodge prove itself worthy of its name. May its Masters in a long and bright succession emulate the zeal, the ability, and the eloquence of the distinguished brother who is elected as the first to fill the chair. May the foundation so admirably laid by our eminent and highly esteemed Grand Secretary be the base of an enduring monument within hail of one of our grand institutions, and finally may the founders of the Alexandra Palace Lodge raise a superstructure in wisdom, strength, and beauty, which, like the building in which it is held, or the hill on which it stands, may be seen from afar, a light to lighten all our fellow men who come within its influence, as well as a glory to our venerable Order.

The business in the lodge concluded with cordial votes of thanks being entered on the minutes to the consecrating officers, who were unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge.

The brethren then adjourned to the banquetting room, where they partook of an excellent repast, and the W.M. presided with his accustomed dignity, supported by the consecrating officer, his assistants, and by the visitors who were in the lodge room. Selections were given by the musical brethren, and the physical and harmonious feast was made one of intellectual enjoyment of no common character by the eloquent speeches which were delivered.

The toast of "The Queen and the Craft" of course preceded all others, and having been duly honoured, the Worshipful Master proposed the toast of "H.R. Highness the Prince of Wales," and said it was impossible to mention the Grand Master's name, with certain debates still ringing in our ears, without wishing him "God speed" on his journey. The Grand Master would find on the monuments of India,—monuments which had come down through countless ages—symbols which would show him that nothing was clearer than that Masonic formulae were known in that country in ages long past. (Hear hear.) That nothing was clearer than this he (Bro. Parkinson) knew from his own experience; but while the Prince would see this, he would see that if the outward forms existed there the spirit of Freemasonry was entirely absent, for that natural equality and mutual dependence which ran through the mysteries of Freemasonry like a silver thread could not be found in the organization of society in India. Our well-instructed Most Worshipful Grand Master, when he saw those remarkable structures of India would deeply reflect upon the institutions of the two countries, and would turn with pleasure to his own country, where the temples were erected by the efforts of a free people, while the structures of India were cemented by the blood and pains of down trodden slaves. There could be little doubt that what the Prince would see in India would cause him to love the system of this country, and to consolidate his attachment to the Craft. (Cheers.)

The toast was fully honoured, and the W. Master proposed "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," who, he said, was entitled to our respect and esteem, whether we viewed him as an Englishman, a Freemason, a statesman, or as a member of Her Majesty's Government. It was extremely fortunate that our Grand Master had so excellent a Mason to fall back upon as the Earl, who was a statesman whose pertinacious examination of every question made him a safe leader in the Craft.

The toast was warmly accepted, as was the next, that of "Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers, present and past." Of his lordship, the W. Master spoke in the highest possible terms, as one eminently fitted by qualities of head and heart for the high position he held in the Craft as Deputy Grand Master. The speaker mentioned the names of the G. Secretary and P.G. Chaplain, and the names were received with cheers, which the W.M. said were entirely premature, for he reserved those brethren to reply to future toasts, and he intended to couple the toast with the name of Bro. T. Fenn, the P. Grand Deacon, whose services to the Craft on a recent occasion were such as to entitle him to the lasting gratitude of brethren everywhere. (Cheers.) Bro. Fenn was one who, at a great amount of self-denial, and with a strong belief in the usefulness of the Order, gave much of his time to uphold the "working" in purity. Bro. Fenn was certainly but one of many who made these sacrifices, and but for these sacrifices, but for the practice of this self-denial, Freemasonry would hold a very different position in the world than it holds—(hear, hear)—and it was a great privilege the Alexandra Lodge had that evening in expressing, on the part of the Craft, gratitude to meet brethren who gave such services to the Craft as Bro. Fenn gave. (Cheers.)

Bro. Fenn, who on rising to reply was received with the warmest cheers, said he never expected to have to reply for the Grand Officers when he found two other G. Officers present, and both of higher position in the Craft than himself; but as he was called, by the exigencies of the time, to respond for the Grand Officers, he must say he felt proud of the duty, especially on the occasion of the position of Worshipful Master being filled by his too partial friend, Bro. Parkinson. As to the reference to the Albert Hall ceremony, he thought that individual efforts should be forgotten (No, no), for much of the credit of that great success was due to the brethren themselves, and a great disaster on the occasion would not have been a disaster to one person only, but would have been a disaster to the Craft. (Hear, hear.) The Past G. Officers, who had attained the summit of their ambition, showed that their interest in the Craft could not die out, they ever being ready to take the responsibility of work in whatever direction work might be required of them. (Cheers.) He thanked Bro. Parkinson for the reference to Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and taking a deep interest in the manner in which the ceremonies were worked, he could truly say that he thought this new lodge was fortunate in having a first Master like Bro. Parkinson, whose superb delivery gave a worthy rendering to our beautiful ceremonies, and whose example would raise up a spirit of emulation in the Masters who followed. (Cheers.) They would, however, find a difficulty in rising to Bro. Parkinson's high standard, as he (Bro. Fenn) well knew, from having to succeed him as First Principal in a chapter. Still, a high standard would be set to the lodge, and its character would be fashioned upon the traditions of the excellence of their esteemed brother whose name stood first upon its roll of Masters. (Cheers.)

The W. Master then, amid many cheers, proposed "The Health of the Consecrating Officer of the Day—Bro. G. S. Hervey," and said he felt he had a task of great responsibility in speaking of Bro. Hervey, whose varied accomplishments and services to Freemasonry were such as made it difficult to speak, lest the lodge should be prejudiced by the imperfect manner in which the toast was proposed. No words could express the deep debt of gratitude which the lodge felt at Bro. Hervey's kindness—and kindness he ever willingly showed—in taking upon himself this onerous and arduous duty, and in coming to the Palace in such weather, at the sacrifice of much personal comfort, even giving up his holiday arrangements to comply with the wishes of the brethren. (Cheers.) It was with pride that the brethren that day had had the benefit of Bro. Hervey's ripe experience, his Masonic learning, and the reflected honour of his high position. (Cheers.) It was to be hoped that Bro. Hervey would accept his honorary membership as no idle compliment, for when he should be absent they would mourn his vacant place. (Cheers.)

Bro. Grand Secretary, who was received with warm applause, said it was not the first time he had had his health drank, or the first time that he had been in a lodge meeting with brother G. Officers surrounding him, but he assured them that on no occasion was he more gratified at the proceedings than he was at those of that day. It had given the other G. Officers and himself great pleasure in affording their services to consecrate that lodge, but it had, likewise, given them great pleasure to assist in the installation of a brother so respected as the excellent Master of this lodge. (Cheers.) It would be perfectly out of place to make a long speech on such an occasion as that, but he felt bound to say that the Past G. Chaplain was always ready to place his service at the call of the Craft, and his assistance was always most valuable, as it had been that day. (Cheers.) Their good friend Bro. Little was in a different position to Bro. Simpson, but still there was a similarity in the name of his vocation, for it comprised "clerical" labours of an onerous character. (A laugh.) He was always ready to place his services at the behests of the Craft, and he was always ready to undertake these duties. (Cheers.) On behalf of his brethren, Simpson and Little, and for himself, he thanked the lodge; and now he begged to propose the toast of "The Worshipful Master." It was with much pleasure that he (G.S.) attended to bring this bantering of a lodge into the world, and in this short space of time it was not only brought into the world, but was a full-grown child, of such promise, too, that it would do great credit to those who had assisted at the birth. It was the more to be congratulated as it had the good fortune to have Bro. Parkinson for its Master. (Cheers.) The work which Bro. Parkinson had done for Freemasonry was such that the most glowing eulogium would not do justice to his merits, but that was unnecessary on the occasion. That he would make the lodge a good Master, and carry it through the troubled waters of early existence, no one who knew him could doubt, and it was well for the lodge that they had prevailed upon him to take the first Mastership. (Cheers.) With the toast he (G.S.) would couple "Prosperity to the Alexandra Palace Lodge," and he congratulated the lodge on the charming locale it had chosen, and upon having in its ranks a brother who could instal its first W.M. as Bro. Stacey had installed Bro. Parkinson.

The toast having been duly honoured,

The Worshipful Master rose, and was received with warm cheers. He thanked Bro. Hervey for the kind manner in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for the manner in which they had received it, and said if anything enhanced the pleasure he felt, it was the undoubted sincerity of Bro. Hervey, who was a man who would not flatter, and what fell from his lips were no perfunctory compliments. Of course there was a great responsibility in undertaking the chair of a new lodge—a responsibility which was felt all the more strongly the more one knew about it (hear, and a laugh), but some rushed in where other beings feared to tread (a laugh), and those who had passed through the work felt the responsibilities of the duties; but having accepted the collar, he should, to the best of his ability, work for the benefit of the lodge, knowing that in doing so he should have the hearty co-operation of the brethren. (Cheers.) He then proceeded to make observations of a general character and of a public interest, and his words were—I think it is useful, on occasions of this character, to take a brief survey of the position of Freemasonry, and to mark its progress at home and abroad; and this is the more necessary from the impotent antagonism which continues to threaten and denounce all within its pale. The triumphant installation of the Prince of Wales as our Grand Master has been followed by the usual exhibitions. His Holiness the Pope has again anathematised what he is pleased to denominate "the Masonic sect." (A laugh.) Bishop Dupanloup has honoured us by a bitterly hostile pamphlet; the organ of Ultramontanism, have declared that "the Protestant religion and Freemasonry are identical and must stand or fall together"—a proposition it is certainly not worth our while to dispute; and an elaborate volume has been published what is alleged to be the secret warfare of Freemasonry against the Church. The battle ground is not of our seeking; for we are ready to welcome, and do welcome as brothers, Roman Catholics if they are worthy recommended and if they can take our obligations and obey our laws. These indispensable conditions being fulfilled, we hail the enlightened Roman Catholic as a Mason with the same cordiality as we extend to the Jew, the Mahomedan, or the Parsee. The very first page of our Book of Constitutions states that, "let a man's religion or mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order, provided he believe in the glorious Architect of heaven and earth, and practise the sacred duties of morality;" and it is this broad toleration and true Christian charity which shocks bigotry, and makes priestcraft tremble. (Cheers.) Freemasonry can afford to smile at and to pity its detractors, for since that great demonstration at the Albert Hall, and as one of the earliest acts of grace of our Royal Grand Master, the Grand Lodge of Italy has been recognised officially by the Grand Lodge of England, and the Masons of Italy and the Masons of England are now linked together by the strongest fraternalities, professing the same principles and united for the high purposes of our Craft. (Cheers.) I have been at some pains to inform myself of the actual condition of Freemasonry in Italy at the present time, and am in constant correspondence with my friends among the leading Freemasons of Rome, and I am in a position to reassure brethren who have been disposed to take alarm at the stories industriously, shall I say maliciously, circulated to the disparagement of the Italian Lodges. There are now nearly 200 of these and about 10,000 Masons working under the Grand Orient of Italy, and the officers of the Grand Orient include illustrious patriots, and some of the most distinguished names in Italy. Now whatever may have been the case in the past, and when persecution (the bayonet of foreign mercenaries, and the dungeon of home tyrants) are the fate of Freemasons in any country, is it not a sacred duty to combine for freedom? I affirm that whatever may have been the case in Italy's dark past, the lessons enforced by Freemasonry now that she is free are identical with those practised in England, and that her official recognition by our Grand Lodge was a gracious and useful act, which well becomes our Royal Grand Master, and one which furnishes the most complete answer to the heated vituperation of Pope, prelate, and pamphleteer. Our Italian brethren take pride in the position and progress of Masonry in England, and have learnt with the deepest interest of the approaching establishment of this Alexandra Palace Lodge. Here is a letter I received this morning from the Grand Master of Italy. It is countersigned by the Grand Chancellor, and bears the official seal of the Grand Oriente, and says:—

"Dear Brother Parkinson,

"On the inaugural day of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, the Grand Orient of Italy begs to offer you and the brethren its most heartfelt congratulations.

"Happy in its surroundings, where Art and Nature invite honorable industry to mental and physical recreation—happy in you, brother, its first Worshipful Master, whose trenchant vindications of the Craft, as the tried and true auxiliary of freedom, civil and religious, are nowhere more gratefully appreciated than in emancipated Italy—happy, above all in a name which at once awakens sentiments so dear to the Italian breast, Loyalty and Charity, religious toleration, and constitutional liberty, may the Alexandra Lodge, under the blessing of the Great Architect, continue long to enjoy every good and perfect gift from above, and to deserve well of the Crown, the Constitution, and the Craft.

"Accept, illustrious Brother Parkinson,

"Our fraternal salutations, (Signed.) "GIUSEPPE MAZZONI, 33 (Grand Master).

(Signed.) "G. TAMAJO, 33, (Grand Chancellor)."

Passing by the too kind compliment paid to myself, I will say that this letter does honour to the writers, and that it indicates a conclusive answer to those who would persuade us that Italian and English Masonry are not identical. I know too, from English brethren who have visited lodges in Rome at my request, that in all essentials their working is the same as ours; the chief difference being that the ceremonies have become slightly abbreviated during the long years in which it was dangerous to liberty, and even to life, to practise them, just as the Scotch Covenanters shortened their services when Claverhouse's dragoons were seen on the hill-side. Official relations having been established between the Grand Lodge of Italy and that of England, the best answer Freemasons can make to the embittered railing of those who would, doubtless, put them to the torture if they dared, is Loyalty and Charity—Loyalty to the principles and rulers of the Craft, Charity and toleration to all mankind, including our persecutors and slanderers. A Roman Catholic poet once wrote in a purely Masonic spirit,

"For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight,
He can't be wrong whose life is in the right."

(Cheers.)

Freemasonry has nothing to do with sects or creeds, or with their professors as such. Its motto is, Liberty of Conscience, and, as William Penn said long ago, liberty of conscience is the foundation of all religion. I now thank you heartily for your good wishes, and trust with you that what we have done to-day may advance the interests of the universal Craft.

The W.M. resumed his chair amid great applause. He subsequently proposed "The Visitors," coupling the name of Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, of whom he spoke in the warmest terms, and said that the fact that dignitaries of our National Church were members of the Craft, and gave their sacred culture and honoured names, was a proof of the goodness of the cause.

The toast was honoured, and the Past Grand Chaplain responded, and, speaking of the widespread and universal character of Freemasonry, told an anecdote of the meeting by travellers with a tribe of aborigines in the wilds of Australia, who refused to permit the travellers to pass until the Masonic sign was given, and then they acted "like brothers," the chiefs having recognised in the travellers friends of the dark man. The story was received with loud laughter, which was due to the exquisite manner in which it was told.

The W. Master then proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," and said they had done him the extraordinary compliment of asking him to be the Master when they had so many efficient Masons in their midst, and though he accepted the compliment, he did so wonderingly, and he feared not for the ceremonies in the future. He had seen a spirit of kindly self-sacrifice among the officers, and while the Senior Warden had refused the first Mastership, so had the other officers taken lesser positions than they were entitled to, a spirit, he thought, which would do much to carry on the lodge to a wide sphere of usefulness.

The toast, which was honoured by all, was responded to by the S.W., Bro. Kelly King.

The W.M. then proposed "The Masonic Charities," and called attention to the noble institutions supported by the Craft, coupling the toast with the name of Bro. R. W. Little, who referred to the great progress of the charities, and expressed the hope that the Girls' School would not stand still at 150 girls, the Boys' with 177 boys, or the Benevolent with its present number of beneficiaries.

The meeting concluded in time for the brethren to catch a "ten o'clock express" from the Palace, but this never went until half an hour after this time, and then was expressed only to the next station, the effect of the railway arrangements being that the visitors were landed in the heart of the City only just before midnight, thus marring an otherwise pleasant day, and teaching the lodge that they must start home earlier, and have no thought of shadowy "expresses."

The Masonic furniture was supplied by Bro. George Kenning.

GRAND MARK LODGE BENEVOLENT FUND.

The annual festival in aid of the Benevolent Fund attached to the Mark Grand Lodge, and established four years ago, was held on Wednesday evening at the Alexandra Palace, Muswell-hill, when a select party of brethren and ladies sat down to a choice banquet provided by Bros. Bertram and Roberts. The chair was taken by a very popular brother, Bro. W. Romaine Calender, M.P., Deputy Grand Mark Master, and Prov. Grand Mark Master of Lancashire. Among the brethren who supported him were Bros. C. F. Matier, P.G.W.; Joseph H. Spencer, G.I.G.; D. M. Dewar, J. H. Wynne, P.G.I.G.; G. W. Verry, R. L. Sturtevant, C. Lacey, Kinnear, Nathl. Horrocks, R. Bowker, Richd. Chambers, Jno. Davison, Jack Sutcliffe, Prov. G. Treas. Lincolnshire; F. Binckes, G. Sec.; Jno. Watson, T. J. Lancashire, S. B. Ellis, Thos. Trollope, W. A. Scott, P.G. Steward; Simpson, Frederic Davison, G. Treas.; Major Geo. Barlow, P.G.M.O.; Wm. Roebuck, H. W. Binckes, Asst. G. Sec.; H. W. Massey, Freemason, P.G.S.; and A. Middlemass.

At the conclusion of the dinner, which was elegantly laid and admirably served, grace was sung, and the toasts were then proposed.

The Chairman, in proposing "The Queen," said that though unfortunately Her Majesty could not be a Mason herself, she had shown her appreciation of the Order by permitting the Heir Apparent to become a member of that body, and Masons welcomed that mark of her sympathy and good will with the loyalty and affection which it was impossible for them by outward signs to express.

The Chairman, in giving "The Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," said that although the Prince of Wales was not yet a Mark Mason, it was well known to most Masons in the room that the Swedish Constitution, under which he became a Freemason, recognised this branch of Masonic science. H.R.H. had done good service to the Craft, and no doubt from the position he held among Masons, and also as the acting and actual Grand Master of the Order, he had done good service to it, because his presence was a guarantee for that loyalty to the Masonic Constitution which no one could deny. As the Prince of Wales had many private engagements, his joining the Order was a proof that, in addition to having a mere outward existence, it was of practical benefit and of some value. He had also done good service to himself in joining the Order. No one who witnessed the magnificent assembly in the Albert Hall three months ago could deny that a meeting of the Heir to the Throne with a large body of his fellow-subjects must conduce to the linking together of all classes of society, and the securing of the prosperity, happiness, and goodwill of all persons in the United Kingdom. As regarded the other members of the Royal family, at least, they illustrated in the most striking manner some of our principal Masonic virtues. Almost within the recollection of our own time there had been circumstances which showed there were strife and unseemly divisions in the Royal family of this country; but in the present existing family there were goodwill, peace, and harmony.

The Chairman next proposed "The Right Honourable the Earl of Limerick, M.W. G.M.M.M., and the Past Grand Masters," viz., the Right Hon. the Lord Leigh, the Right Hon.

the Earl of Carnarvon, the Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., W. W. B. Beach, Esq., M.P., Rev. George Raymond Portal, M.A., and the Right Hon. the Earl Percy, M.P. He said all these brethren had made their mark. But they were known not only in the Masonic but in the outer world, many of them by their public acts as legislators. If any enquiry were made as to what were their abilities he would adopt the old Roman motto, and say, "If you wish a monument of their virtues, look at the position which Mark Masonry gives them." It required no great effort of memory to look back a few years, when Mark Masonry, diligently pursued and thoroughly understood by scattered societies in various parts of this country, languished for want of a common centre and a proper head; and it was thought, and wisely thought, that an effort ought to be made—he would not say to "resuscitate" Mark Masonry, but to draw together to one focus those various efforts which were being made in different parts. Those brethren who used the efforts made a wise election in taking Lord Leigh as their first Grand Master. That brother, who first distinguished himself in the Craft in his own province, had been followed by other brethren whom it would be invidious to particularize one by one, but he would refer to the exertions of Bro. Portal, by whose efforts the success of Mark Masonry was visible in a surprising degree. He was succeeded by a nobleman with whom he (the Chairman) had the honour of a personal acquaintance. Lord Percy had been very energetic in the movement, and he was now succeeded by Lord Limerick, of whom many present were qualified to speak. Speaking of him politically, he ably performed his duties in one House of Legislature, and there was no member of that House more regular than he in his attendance on the deliberations of the other House of which he (the Chairman) had the honour of being a member. Who could wish for Lord Limerick a better lot than when his time of office in Mark Grand Lodge expired he might leave Mark Masonry in the same happy state of progress as that in which it now was?

Bro. C. F. Matier proposed "The Chairman," and referred the brethren to the great popularity of that brother in the province of Lancashire, to which he (Bro. Matier) also had the privilege of belonging. He also referred the brethren to the circumstance of the concord which existed between Scotland and England with reference to Mark Masonry, and he informed them that it was in Lancashire where that good feeling was brought about, and through the exertions of the chairman. He (Bro. Matier) could fearlessly assert that it would never have been effected under a brother less courteous or less beloved. (Cheers.)

The Chairman in reply, said there was an old saying to the effect, "Call no man happy before his death," and perhaps he ought not to consider himself happy till this dinner was over, and until the brethren had had some little longer experience of whatever little ability he possessed. With regard to the position he then held, it was a very great honour and satisfaction to be present on such an occasion, and that his first appearance before a metropolitan audience was in the character of Deputy Grand Mark Master Mason of England, (applause), and in that work of charity which was so distinguished a feature with the Order. It was a matter of great regret to him that he was unable to attend the last Grand Lodge to be invested as Deputy Grand Mark Master; but it was owing to his parliamentary duties in connection with friendly societies, which might be looked upon as bearing some resemblance to Masonry, and which affected a very large number of persons bound together by somewhat similar ties as Freemasons. The Friendly Societies' Bill was then in committee in the House of Commons, and it was impossible for him to leave even for a moment. He concluded by again thanking the brethren for the toast.

Major Barlow also responded, and rejoiced, as a Grand Office bearer, that from the lodge in which he was advanced sprang this Grand Lodge of England. He was glad to see that since that time Mark Masonry had so progressed, not only in the metropolitan counties but also all over England. (Hear, hear.) He was present at the union referred to by Bro. Matier, when England and Scotland joined. The meeting was held in Manchester, and there was left much impressed on his mind the brotherly love which was then exhibited, and which he hoped was thoroughly cemented. (Hear, hear.)

The Chairman then proposed "Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund, and the Masonic Institutions." He said—In giving you this toast I feel that no small responsibility devolves upon me, not only from the records of the distinguished members of the Order who have preceded me in the chair, but from my earnest desire that the appeal to be made to you to-night should, if possible, stimulate that feeling of sympathy with misfortune which is found in nearly every human heart. It has a special claim upon those who own a universality of brotherhood more wide-spread and ancient than any other system recorded in the history of the world. Religion, politics, or commerce, occupy the attention of large numbers of persons—probably no subjects claim so much general attention; and we can hardly wonder at this when we consider the importance of those problems which affect the relations of man with his Creator, the government of nations, and the extension of civilization. But I venture to think that the basis of religion, freedom, and morality will be found in those simple truths which are contained in our ritual, enunciated in our observances and illustrated through the volume of the Sacred Law. Every secret society, that is to say one—which affects aims distinct from the rest of mankind—has been regarded with disfavour, denounced by the despot, and envied by the ignorant. Infidelity, disloyalty, and self-indulgence have been among the hard terms applied to the members of such societies, and, making allowance for the difference of the times, I question if the persecutions of Philip the Fair were much more severe than those we have to undergo in the present day. Yet all these secret societies have been called into existence by the necessities of the times, either to avert public danger, arouse public opinion, or mitigate public abuses; and they have passed away either because they have fulfilled their work, or proved themselves unfit to do it. If our Society, the oldest of all, still remains with undiminished vigour; if it contains traces of every form of religious worship by which man has sought to recognise the duty which he owes to the Great Overseer of the Universe and his fellow men; if it affords a haven or place of concord, where those who differ on all other points can meet; if its progress at the present time is neither slow nor partial, surely—we are justified in contending that our mission is not yet completed, and that in spite of imperfections our members, both individually and collectively, are performing the work for which the Order was appointed in the earliest ages of the world. What were those objects? We can understand that the mind of man in a state of primeval innocence, expressed its predominant feelings by an act of religious worship, apart from mere creed or sect. Absence of religion is regarded as the surest test of barbarism. But as that religious feeling intensified and expressed itself in action, we find that human intellect, vigour, and skill lavished their noblest powers on those buildings intended for Divine worship, and our record of ancient nations is mainly derived from the works of ancient Masons, displayed in the erection and decoration of pyramid, temple, or pagoda. If the Masonic art culminated in the erection of the magnificent building of the Jewish Monarch, whose regal splendour and unparalleled magnificence far surpassed all imagination, he did but consecrate to the worship of the true Jehovah that Masonic skill and energy which, in partial blindness and ignorance, had previously erected those wonderful works which have survived to our own day. All that has come down to us of ancient times in architecture, sculpture, painting, poetry, and tradition, is connected with the Divine, and with the work by which the ancient Mason expressed his reverence and love. I need not remind you of the position which our Craft held in the middle ages, supposed to be days of universal intolerance and bigotry; but there is abundant evidence to show that the Hebrew race, despised and persecuted elsewhere, received the hand of Masonic brotherhood; and it has been reserved for a Pontiff of the 19th century to excommunicate the Order which erected those magnificent cathedrals which are still the pride of Christendom. But it may be said that our Order now no longer continues to perform such work; why, therefore, should it remain? that our appearance in procession at the laying of the foundation stone of some church or school is but a relic of the gorgeous work which involved the labour of a lifetime, and would be as poor an expression of religious zeal as the annual appearance of the long-haired Merovingian monarchs was of kingly power. Why should our Order continue if it possess only the traditions of the past? How is it that our work still continues? The principles which prompted the ancient Masons still actuate our conduct, but with a change of time and circumstances we are no longer "operative, but speculative Masons;" that is to say, we seek to implant in every human heart a temple of Divine worship where the Schechinah may dwell unseen by mortal eye, but sanctifying the inner life, and guiding the outward action. If we understand the vows we have undertaken, if we are true to our professions, if we comprehend the meaning of our ritual and our observances, nothing less than this will suffice. But how is this to be shown to the outer world; how, in answer to ignorance, incredulity, and scepticism, can we offer a reply simple or easy to be understood? The occasion of our meeting to-day supplies the answer. The poor we have always with us, and Masonry affords no exemption from the common lot of mankind. Age, misfortune, and sickness have fallen, and will continue to fall, upon those who have taken the same vows as ourselves, with whom we have held friendly intercourse, and by whose counsels we have been guided and strengthened. Like the skeleton at the Egyptian feasts, our meeting to-day in health and happiness should remind us of the misfortunes and poverty of others; and that mutual dependence which has been impressed on every member of our brotherhood is with them a stern reality. We are placed in a somewhat peculiar position as regards the outer world. We are forbidden to explain, and therefore to a large extent to defend, many customs which may seem outlandish and unnecessary; but we have an opportunity, by the support of our Masonic Charities, to shew the value of the great principles of brotherly love and relief of which our Order boasts. With regard to the Institution on whose behalf we are met to-day, I need simply add that it is not founded in any spirit of rivalry to our older institutions—that it supplies an important want, and it affects a most interesting branch of our science. In conclusion, Bro. Calender appealed to the company for liberal contributions in aid of the Benevolent Fund. (Great cheering.)

Bro. F. Binckes (Grand Secretary) responded. The result of the meeting would be read out by the Assistant Grand Secretary. He (Bro. Binckes) would not take upon himself to say one word on behalf of the great Masonic Institutions, or their work, as it was before the Craft at large. It was a source of intense satisfaction that he found in the meeting of that evening that the great institutions were not forgotten which Masons so delighted to do their best to support. The work of Freemasonry was a very hard work, especially in connection with the Masonic Institutions. He would undertake to say that no body of men did so much in the cause of charity as Freemasons, for it would be found that during the present year £27,000 was the aggregate amount contributed in support of the three Masonic Institutions. With respect to the Mark Benevolent Fund, there had been this remark made, that every Mark Mason was a member of the Craft, and if in distress could appeal to the Fund of Benevolence. But Mark Masons had not done wrong in organizing their own Benevolent Fund, which was to provide for the peculiar wants of Mark Masons. Without making a remark as to the preference of one degree in Freemasonry over another, he would submit that it might just happen that a brother who had been an idle Craft Mason might have been a very energetic Mark Mason, and if his widow or children appealed for assistance to the Craft in which he had done but little, £10 or 10 guineas might be considered enough to give them; but if he had done much in Mark Masonry, Mark Masons would do more. Not to magnify the Mark Degree too much, he thought they were doing right in taking care to have a fund such as he had described. It was a source of great gratification that these annual meetings were so substantially supported, which proved that the brethren were of this opinion. He hoped that these happy meetings would go on increasing year by year in prosperity. He was happy to say that the fund contributed to the Masonic Institutions, and that Mark Masons also supported them very liberally. It was only a fortnight ago that Mark Masonry contributed more than £50 to one of the Institutions, Bro. Binckes concluded by thanking the brethren in the name of these Institutions for their support.

Bro. Henry Binckes then read the list of subscriptions, which amounted to £175.

"The Board of Stewards" was then proposed and drunk, and Bro. Roebuck having responded, the company separated.

During the evening a splendid selection of music was performed under the direction of Madame Thaddeus Wells. Madame Wells, Madame Alice Barnett, and Bro. Chaplin Henry were the exponents of the vocal music; Mdle. Bertha Brousil, solo violin, and Bro. Henry Parker, pianoforte.

Poetry.

MAY GOD PRESERVE THE CRAFT.

Words and music by T. BURDETT YEOMAN, M.L. 715, 1460.

DEDICATED to BRO. COLONEL FRANCIS BURDETT, M.W.P.G.M., Middlesex.

Come list a while, till I relate
A prayer we like to hear;
'Tis gracious in its very tone,
The form of speech is dear;
And all Freemasons it receive,
With all becoming pride.
The utterance reaches ev'ry heart,
Long may it still abide.

CHORUS.

Then we will sing, our work is done,
And labor's in the aft,
Come, pleasure, come, but we will pray,
May God preserve the Craft.

II.

Within our sacred bower of blue,
And free from care's alarm,
Secluded from the world outside—
For us it has no charm.
We like the spot wherein we're found,
It is our holy land,
For there we strive to emulate
And fill our chief's command.

CHORUS: Then we will sing, etc.

III.

The outer world, our mystic rites
Can never, never learn,
Nor yet behold our Temple work
Its beauties to discern.
True Order dwells, within our realm,
The Master's word is Law.
Hush! he recites some hallow'd theme
With reverence and with awe.

CHORUS: Then we will sing, etc.

IV.

From cowans' gaze, and babblers' talk
We hold no mode of speech,
Nor care we for a mitred priest,
Whose aid we ne'er beseech.
We know our toil is labours' love,
The glory is our own,
We our Great Architect adore,
To us He gives the crown.

CHORUS: Then we will sing, etc.

Colonial and Foreign Subscribers are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received will in future be published in the first number of every month.

Sir James Hogg, the Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works, accompanied by several members of the Board, paid a visit to Liverpool on Monday with the object of inspecting the water system of the town. They were received at the Town Hall by the Deputy Mayor, and afterwards had interviews with the municipal authorities, and witnessed experiments with fire-engines, one end of their visit being the extension and improvement of the hydrant system in London.

At a meeting held at the Mansion House, Bro. Alderman Sir B. Phillips in the chair, it was resolved to form an executive committee for the purpose of promoting the objects of the Congress and International Exhibition of Appliances for Saving Life, to be opened in Brussels next year.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JULY 24, 1875.

THE DEDICATION OF THE NEW SURREY MASONIC HALL.

Our columns last week gave us a report of the Masonic proceedings at this most interesting gathering, and we recur to the subject gladly to-day. The meeting was presided over by that popular nobleman and good Freemason, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, and his presence and kindness were duly appreciated by all the brethren. Several other distinguished Masons were also there, and the whole of the proceedings passed over with every satisfaction and "éclat." Not only was a new hall dedicated, but a new lodge constituted and consecrated, which, under the able presidency of Bro. Larilham, seems likely to take a prominent position in the Order. We are glad to allude to this meeting again, we said at the outset, for several reasons. Mr. Heckethorn, in his recent attack on Freemasonry, has said there is no further use for Freemasonry. We entirely disagree with him, and the longer we live the more persuaded we feel that never at any time was Freemasonry more useful or valuable to the world than at this very period. So many are the conflicts of religious and political life, so antagonistic often are the views and opinions of us all alike, that Freemasonry is a place of shelter for many, and a harbour of refuge for more. It is comforting to believe, and consoling to remember, that amidst our differences and divisions, at which the reflecting mind often gets weary and sorrowful, there is a place of meeting where, though we differ, we agree to differ, and where political discussions are unknown, and polemical controversies enter not. Believing, then, that Freemasonry is useful and valuable, per se, helpful to man and a blessing to society, we think that our brethren are wise in their generation when they seek to render its outward manifestation as distinct, and solemn, and stately as well may be. The more that the profane world can see that we have our Masonic homes and centres, where we can work in peace and pleasantness, amid the outward and inward tokens of Masonic independence and individuality, the more is it likely to admit our claims to utility and to regard. And for ourselves the gain will be infinite. Our whole Masonic work and life will be permeated by a higher view of things and duties, a more precise measurement alike of our privileges and our responsibilities. We believe, sincerely, that Freemasonry has a great future before it in this country, if only it has learned already, "Stare super vias antiquas," if only it is prepared with unflinching courage, in season and out of season, to proclaim unflinchingly its great principles, toleration, beneficence, and brotherly love, the rights of the individual conscience and the full, fair, and impartial recognition of the great and important truth, that a man's individual religious connection is as sacred to him and to us, as are his freedom as an English subject, and his independence as a citizen of the world.

THE LAST BULLETIN OFFICIEL OF THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

We have read for many reasons with much interest the last official publication of the Grand Orient of France. For we feel that the Grand Orient of France may fairly claim, just now, some little Masonic sympathy and good will, on many points from us in England. We are not to-day, intending to re-open the old controversies on past unwise proceedings of the Parisian Freemasons or even of Monsigneur Dupanloup's angry invectives. We have already expressed our opinion to our French brethren on the matter, and we do not suppose that we are likely ever to "envisager" things, and acts, and persons from exactly the same "point de mire." We will therefore let bygones be bygones, and look on hopefully to a better future. We think that we see, if faint, perhaps as yet, still traces, in the last "Bulletin Officiel" especially, of the prevalence at Paris of a calmer, a wiser, a more truly Masonic view of things. We note two points particularly with great pleasure. In France lodges and brethren have the right to transmit to headquarters their wishes, or "vœux," which are considered in the Conseil de l'Ordre, primarily and then finally decided in the assembly of the Orient itself. Among these "vœux," some very amusing and some a little puerile, according to our notion, are the two following, to which we call attention:—"Que la formule A.L.G.D.G.A.D.L.U. disparaisse enfin de nos circulaires et de nos planches." This modest request is made by the "Vénérable" or Master of "La Loge L'Avenir, Orient de Paris," and let us add his name, F. X. Trebois, for he deserves to be known to Masonic fame at any rate. Such an act would simply be a mournful corollary of precedent hurtful propositions and resolutions, and if sanctioned by the Grand Orient would, in our humble opinion, be the deathblow to true Freemasonry in France. Bro. Ferdeuil, who makes the report on the proposal, states, that the whole matter is now before a special commission, and meets the "vœu" by moving, that it be also sent to the special commission. He is, however met by a proposition of the "Ordre du jour" answering to our "previous question," which is carried, and which for the present is a virtual shelving of the matter. We gather from the president, Bro. St. Jean's, remarks that there is no chance at present of any definitive solution of the question, and we can only rejoice at it and say, so much the better for Freemasonry in France and the Grand Orient. Another "vœu" was, that the formula "Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité," should take the place of the customary "Vivat, Vivat, Vivat." Bro. Ferdeuil opposes the proposal on the ground that this "Trilogie" has a political as well as a Masonic Teaching. In England we know nothing of the "formula," though in the abstract "Liberty, Equality, and Brotherhood," are Masonic virtues and principles, but we have always objected to the use of this special form on account of its political use and party symbolism. The Conseil de l'Ordre rejected the proposal by passing to the "ordre du jour." We trust therefore that a new phase of existence is beginning for the Grand Orient, when, leaving the sterile path of political complications, it will adhere to the great principles of Freemasonry, toleration, philanthropy, and fraternal benevolence. If such had been the aim of French Freemasonry alone the Bishop of Orleans would never have penned his fiery invective, nor should we have so often to regret and disapprove of the political colouring which the acts of the French Freemasons have latterly so unwisely and unmasonically assumed. We trust, sincerely, that better days are in store for the Grand Orient, and our brethren in France, and that they will not be ashamed "ferre gradus retorsum," and march henceforth within the lines of the better and older French Masonic teaching. Our hearty good wishes go with them.

INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

In a recent impression we had occasion to take notice of a proposed picture of this great event, but we had then no idea that the contemplated picture had assumed such proportions. We cannot do better than just relate what we understand are the facts in connection with the picture, as they will best inform our readers, as well in England as in the colonies, of the present position of the scheme, and also what is intended. It may be remembered that our worthy Bro. Edward J. Harty, of 9, Barnard's Inn, Holborn, E.C., published a lithographic portrait of His Royal Highness, which has proved very successful, and he then conceived the idea of producing a picture of the Installation. By the special kindness of Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, Grand Director of Ceremonies, he was granted a special position in the Hall, and has drawn a picture, perfect in every respect, of the unequalled scene. It appears it attracted the attention of several of the Grand Officers at the last quarterly meeting, as it was kindly permitted by the amiable Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey, to be exhibited in the Grand Officers' Robing Room. The picture thus designed by Bro. Harty, is now submitted to the fraternity by Bro. Harty, and has received the special approval of H.R.H. the Grand Master, so much so, that he has graciously consented to allow of its special dedication to himself. We think the proper course has been adopted by dedicating it to H.R.H., and we hope that the Masonic body will now do their part, and largely patronize it. Since then the Duke of Connaught, Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, the Marquis of Hamilton, the Lord Mayor, also many other of the leading brethren, amongst whom stand prominently forward, Sir Albert W. Woods, Bro. Thomas Fenn, &c., have seen it, highly commended and have given their patronage to it. The scheme is now fairly launched before the Masonic world, and it rests with the brethren now to decide whether it will prove a successful one to the undertakers. That it should meet with success, must, we think be the feeling of every brother, for no event of ancient or modern times in Freemasonry has created such enthusiasm in the Craft, and we should be inclined to suppose that the great majority of those who were present, at least, would like to possess themselves of such a worthy commemoration of a sight which they will never witness again the like of. We are informed that arrangements are all but concluded with an eminent engraver, and that the impressions will be ready for delivering to subscribers at the anniversary of the installation day, viz., the 28th April, 1876. Although the beautiful coup d'œil of the Albert Hall, so strikingly delineated, would, of itself, be an historical record, the artist undertakes to produce several hundred actual portraits of the leading brethren in the positions in which they sat, thus grouping into one centre the whole of the leading Masons of the present day, and of course most prominent will be the Grand, Pro Grand, and Deputy Grand Masters, the Grand Senior and Junior Wardens, and other eminent brethren. As the undertaking is a large one, a "Royal Masonic Installation Gallery" has been formed at 213, Regent-street, W., where the picture can be seen, and those who are desirous of having their photographs taken for the purpose of being engraved in the picture, had better call there at once. We sincerely wish the undertaking, what it really deserves, every success, the more so as it is very liberally proposed to identify the three Royal Masonic Charities with it, by giving to them equally a proportion of the proceeds. We would only add, in conclusion, that the chromo photograph which had been advertised in our columns for sometime, as intended to be produced by Bro. E. M. Haigh, the well-known photographer, we notice from an advertisement appearing in our present impression, has been given up. Bro. Haigh readily conceding that the proposed steel engraving will be a much more durable, and, probably, acceptable memorial of the occasion, but his valuable services have been retained to take the photographs required by the artist in engraving Bro. Harty's picture. We, therefore, invite the special consideration of our numerous subscribers, and friends, and correspondents to this interesting subject. We shall publish shortly a circular from the brethren who are bringing out the picture.

BRO. BURGESS'S COMPLAINT.

We published a letter last week, from our brother Major Burgess, to which we feel bound to call special attention. It appears that this brother of ours has been brought into collision with the authorities of the newly named "Priory of the Temple," and has been expelled, as we understand his statement, from that Order. We are not Templars, or Masonic Templars, and therefore we cannot go into the question, though perhaps we shall not err in expressing our humble opinion that there were probably faults on both sides, and that unfortunately the whole point at issue has turned more or less on personal feelings and considerations. But as we said before, with the Templar verdict we have nothing to do. Bro. Burgess now complains of a very different matter, and one on which we think we have a right to express our opinion calmly, carefully, and fraternally. The Grand Mark Lodge professes to be a Masonic body, and we know that several very upright men and good Freemasons are connected with it. Therefore it is that we learn of some recent proceedings with much regret, and that we consider it right in the interests of Freemasonry to give Bro. Burgess the opportunity and liberty of stating his grievances. They amount to this, the Mark Grand Lodge has, according to his statement, also expelled him, unheard—on the ground of what we believe is called the "Tripartite Treaty," which is a treaty or agreement existing between three signatories, the Grand Mark Lodge, the 33° Ancient and Accepted Rite of Freemasonry, and the Order of the Temple. Under this "treaty" a Judicial Committee of the three bodies is held, which appears to be a sort of supreme tribunal. If we understand the matter correctly, a sentence passed by one Order must be recognised by the other two, without further hearing or consideration. This view of the matter is confirmed by a quotation from a portion of the minutes of the meeting of the tribunal, 15th February, 1875, and which runs as follows:—"This court finds the said sentence lawfully passed, and affirms the same, but decrees that, as regards the Mark Degree the enforcement of the sentence be postponed for the space of twenty-eight days, during which time it shall be competent to the authorities of the Mark Degree to accept the resignation of Major C. J. Burgess. LIMERICK, † Chairman." Now here it is that we venture to express our opinion Masonically, that in such a sentence we behold a great default of Masonic justice. The primary axiom of all Masonic jurisprudence is, that every brother shall have a fair trial, that he shall have the charges made known to him, that he shall be heard fraternally and judged equitably. But what are the conditions of such a sentence as the one we call attention to to-day? The very reverse of everything we have been taught to regard as Masonic justice. The accused is unheard, he is condemned behind his back, on a statement of facts of which he knows nothing, and he is expelled from an Order against which he has committed no Masonic offence, simply because it has a "tripartite treaty" with another Order, which is not Masonic at all, and openly says so. Of all positions for honourable and fair-minded men to put themselves into, we cannot really conceive anyone so thoroughly un-English and unjust, per se, to every one concerned, and so un-Masonic! For the whole arrangement is radically vicious and unsound. Let us suppose the case of a hasty sentence and of an irritated official; we are not speaking now of Major Burgess's trial, but of an illustrative case. Suppose we say that, "ab origine," the sentence in one order is itself objectionable on account of informality, personal feelings, or some such idea as this, too prevalent just now in respect of angry charges "aut inveniam aut faciam," and to what a climax of injustice and absurdity the tripartite treaty necessarily leads its signatories. If the sentence be passed according to the letter of the enactments of any one Order, the other two are bound, apparently, to accept it, "mutatis mutandis." In this very case, as we understand originally, a point occurs of some importance for Bro. Burgess, viz., that he did not absolutely fail to attend the council of the Great Priory, Nov. 26th, 1874, but offered to attend on another day, being unable to attend on that actual day. His whole sentence is based on the fact, as we understand, of his "having failed to attend," but if he was precluded from attending and offered to attend on any other day, the original sentence may fairly be challenged. Why then is an independent body of Freemasons, like the Mark Grand Lodge simply to register and endorse a sentence of the Order of the Temple, not a Masonic body? And why too, we ask, is it not to allow the brother so arraigned an opportunity of explanation, objection, and defence? We write simply in the interests of Masonic justice, for the welfare and rights of all our brethren, and take no sides in the matter, nor express an "ex parte" opinion on one side or the other. We shall be glad to hear some explanation from the authorities of the Grand Mark Lodge in regard of these quasi judicial proceedings, and we feel bound to express a hope, that despite the tripartite treaty, the Grand Mark Lodge itself will hesitate to condemn any brother unheard, and without some definite charges against his character, profession, and duty, as a Mark Mason.

ST. SWITHIN.

It may not be perhaps generally known amongst our intelligent Order that St. Swithin was a Freemason. Preston tells us specifically that though "during the Heptarchy Masonry continued in a low state," in the "year 856 it revived under the patronage of St. Swithin." If any of our brethren ask what was this "patronage" of the good old Saint, we believe that the explanation is to be found in this, that St. Swithin was a great church builder and restorer, and may have been, and probably was, a patron of the operative guilds or sodalities of Freemasons. Probably our knowledge of St. Swithin, for the most part, takes a somewhat different turn and form. We all of us often talk about St. Swithin, and hear of St. Swithin annually on July 15th. A very strong belief and a very pious legend of our English people is, that if it rains on St. Swithin's Day, it will rain for 40 days subsequently. Well this year the watery Saint has given us a "strong order." It did rain on St. Swithin's Day, it rained incessantly for nearly 50 hours, and daily since, though we have had gleams of fair weather, we still have to chronicle rain, rain, rain. Is the old saying to be verified? How much longer is the rain to go on? Is it really going to rain more or less for 40 days? If so, what a melancholy look out for the close of the London season, for angels in pink, and angels in blue, for innumerable occasions of gay gatherings, soft words, kind looks, and pleasant flirtations! Considering moreover the deep interest which our English folk take in the weather, some one has said that it makes up three parts of our conversation, we feel that such a subject can never be unseasonable. A poet, some of us like much, has embalmed the memory of a fair partner in tender verse, who could and would only talk about the weather, and from what we read of the effects of the weather in some localities, and in various ways; it is not, we think, too much to say, that all our readers will feel the most intense interest in this most important question. For there is a very serious side to this pressing topic of the weather; what shall we say of the important interests of our farmers? Are the fields now bright and waving with their golden ears to be prostrated by a 40 days' rain, and laid in mournful mildew? Are the hopes of many industrious workers to be blighted, and the harvest of hungry millions to be a failure? Let us piously hope not, but that for once the old saying will be falsified, and there will be at once a general revival of the geniality and good humour of society, which at present is in a dreadful condition. Indeed, we hardly like to attempt to realize what must be the inevitable condition of our young men if this influence of "Jupiter pluvialis" is to continue really for 40 days. But though we began in a somewhat jesting vein, we have yielded already to a more serious temperament. In fact, it is no laughing matter, properly speaking. The happiness of nations and the good of millions depend on fine weather and a good harvest, and in the Providence of the Great Architect of the Universe, all will yet be well, we fondly hope, with us and with our neighbours in this respect. But as we are always glad to make use of "seria mista jocis," we are glad to be permitted to call attention once more to the floods in France. This weather will, in all probability, increase the severity of the suffering at Toulouse and elsewhere, and we venture to express our confidence that our lodges will respond to the appeal of Madame McMahon, and swell our Bro. the Lord Mayor's list, which is now daily increasing. We made a mistake in our last, on the authority of our contemporary the Graphic, which we now correct on the same authority. Verdun is not a town of 10,000 inhabitants, but only a village of 400. Not one house, however, is left standing, and many of its population have perished in the waters. It is just possible, from some accounts from Monmouthshire, that we may have before long to make application for relief even for portions of our own country, and we shall all equally endeavour that all such claims for kindly, for needful relief, whether rising up at home or abroad, will be met at once by that liberality and large-heartedness which our English people ever evince in the hours of calamity and distress. May we be able in our next issue to announce that the legend of St. Swithin is inaccurate, that the "clerk of the weather" has thought better of it, that sunshine has returned to reward the labour of our husbandmen, and gladden the hearts of millions, and that our "gals," that next important and pleasant section of contemporary society, have returned to their normal condition of laughing faces, merry words, and contented spirits.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have received Bro. Binckes's reply to Bro. Tew's pamphlet, but, we confess, we see no use or good in publishing it in our columns. In our opinion the matter has been adjudicated upon by the only competent authority, the House Committee, and if Bro. Tew is dissatisfied with that decision, he ought to appeal to the General Committee. We confess that we sympathize much with Bro. Binckes in the matter, but we feel sure that he will give us credit for being actuated with a truly Masonic feeling, both towards the Boys' School and himself, when we decline to re-open the question in our columns, on which just now the press of matter is very great.

Original Correspondence.

HOW MASONS ARE MADE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the evidence brought before a Grand Jury, being entirely on the side of the prosecution, naturally paints the acts of the prisoner in the blackest light; so the letter of "L. of L.," unless replied to, would probably leave a stigma on the Lodge of Loyalty, Prescott, and its officers.

If the idea was carried out in Prescott that no one but a resident might become a member of the lodge, the lodge would soon cease to exist, but, fortunately, many Liverpool gentlemen like the easy journey out of town, and add very considerably to its strength, and at last, through the energy of its members, there has been erected in "the old and very sleepy little town," a new Masonic Hall, where our lodge, chapter, and preceptory are now held.

I have yet to learn what objection there is to gentlemen, in every respect eligible, being initiated in, and becoming subscribing members to, "old 86," if it please the brethren to receive them. There is not a Sunday passes but what people pass by places of worship of their own religion, and go long distances to hear their favourite preacher, and Sunday after Sunday crowds cross over from Lancashire to Cheshire, and vice versa, to attend Divine worship. With regard to the circular, on which appeared the names of five candidates for initiation, I will, like "L of L," take them seriatim. No. 1 is a gentleman residing at Rainford, who, having friends in the Prescott Lodge, prefers to come the slight extra distance, although he passes through the town of St. Helen's. No harm, I venture to say, in this case! Nos. 2 and 3 come out with friends, and although they reside in Liverpool, they are not the last by a many, I trust, who will become members of our lodge. No. 4 lives at Seacombe, and as his intimate friend, Bro. R., has long been a member of our lodge, he thought it would be more agreeable to belong to the same one, and have a companion to and fro, as both reside at the same place. No. 5 seems to me the only one at all remarkable, and even this case is easily explained. One of our old Past Masters and No. 5 are directors, with several other gentlemen, of a company in the Isle of Man, and No. 5 being the only non-mason, expressed a desire to become one, when our Past Master said, "Well! why not come to our lodge?" and his name, accordingly, appeared on the circular. Simply a case of friendship! As they were workers together in business they wished to be workers together in Masonry.

The paragraph relating to black-balled candidates having been admitted at Prescott, I am unable to reply to, unless furnished with some names and dates; but I may say I have seen cases of black-balling quite unjustifiable, and only caused by business differences.

In conclusion, I cannot help thinking a strong spirit of jealousy pervades "L. of L.'s" letter, and I have little doubt much more light could be thrown on the matter, were he to sign his real name, as I now do.

Yours fraternally,
REGINALD YOUNG,
W.M. Lodge of Loyalty, Prescott, No. 86.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your excellent report in the Freemason of July 10th, of the proceedings at the festival of the Royal Masonic School for Boys, which took place on the 7th inst., there is an error as to the amount of the subscription on my list as Steward for the Royal Naval Lodge, No. 59. The amount on my list was £63, instead of £30 9s., as stated in the Freemason. I shall feel much obliged by your correction of the error in your next issue.

I am, sir, yours faithfully,

JOHN HWALEY, P.M. 59.

ORATION DELIVERED AT THE DEDICATION OF THE SURREY MASONIC HALL, JULY 14th, 1875.

By THE REV. A. F. A. WOODFORD, M.A., P.G. CHAPLAIN.

Most Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, Officers, and Brethren,—Having been requested to deliver a short oration, as is our Masonic wont, at the dedication of this new hall, I venture, for a short space of time, to crave your fraternal attention. I think that we shall all of us agree that it is both a laudable and befitting custom, "more majorem," which requires that in such special assemblies as this, that a few words should be spoken by an appointed officer, relative to the work we are engaged in, and the ceremony which calls us together. For we are thereby afforded an opportunity of recalling to our work-day recollection the ancient lore, the long history, the great mission of our useful brotherhood. We are enabled to take friendly counsel together as friends and as brethren in lodge assembled as regards the progress of Freemasonry, and thus reminded of the past, encouraged for the present, we are cheered and prepared for the coming duties, and, it may be, the sterner struggles of the future. I also rejoice personally that we carefully preserve this good old custom of our Masonic forefathers for another reason. All work completed, some one has well said, is but an earnest of work yet to be done, and when, as to-day, we gather together to rejoice over the completion of this so far successful undertaking, we also feel and hope that this new hall may be the type and augury of many another like needed structure in many parts of our land. And the first feeling which comes before us is one surely of rejoicing! For we all feel thankful that no accident has happened to the workmen, and we congratulate ourselves that we are witnessing to-day the prosperous erection of our own hands as well in the opening of another Masonic hall. And in the next place ours must be mutual and brotherly feelings of congratulation that Freemasonry, in this important district, has received so needed and so salutary an impetus. Hence there seems to me to arise for us all alike, as Freemasons, much that is most useful to call to mind, and more that it is most important to realize. Those of us who, like myself, may be said to have grown grey in Freemasonry, and can look back to-day through many years of fair Masonic work, must be gladdened by the signs we see around us everywhere of the onward progress of our good old Craft. We can recall, going back, I am almost sorry to say, a quarter of a century—we can vividly recall to-day, I repeat, how very often our Masonic work was done in those days, as we say, very much "in the rough." We met very often then in inconmodious rooms, surrounded by incongruous accessories, and it was often a very hard struggle, whether the customs of Freemasonry or the associations of the outer world, which had obtruded themselves sensibly into our lodge-rooms, should get the upper hand. I for one felt then, as others felt too—all of us in the full fervour of early Masonic work how much Freemasonry lost when the "locale" where we assembled was redolent of everything but Freemasonry, and where there was positively nothing suitably to impress the brethren, much less a candidate for our mysteries, with a high and reverent appreciation, of the reality, the merit, the excellency, the importance of that ancient Order into which he was seeking admission, and to which it was our great privilege to belong. Now all is rapidly changing, and happily changing, I believe, for the better. Following the current of the great stream of the epoch in which we live, Freemasonry has received a much needed impulse in respect of aesthetic improvement, and ceremonial decency, and lodge ornamentation. We have of late years, as you, M.W. Sir, well know, especially in the great province over which you so worthily preside, and in many other provinces and even in the Metropolis, been raising edifices at much cost, specially destined like this to-day, which we are dedicating in the name of God, Most High, for the uses and purposes the work, and the mysteries of Freemasonry alone. And all of us who value Freemasonry, both for what is and for what it is not, both in respect of the truth it inculcates and the brotherhood it forms, will, within due bounds always both derstood, heartily commend, and personally rejoice, at to use a French phrase, such a "changement des décorations." Some writer has said, "that we may have too much even of a good thing," and without pausing to analyze the saying, perhaps like many other sayings, somewhat questionable, I feel strongly myself that while we may fairly advance everything in favour of our increased love of lodge decoration and ceremonial attractiveness amongst us, and in our numerous lodges and halls, we should not attempt to lay down any too rigid or dogmatic a line of either an ornamented ritual or architectural buildings for our Order generally. There are many rooms for instance in the Metropolis, like one I saw the week before last, which, beautiful in themselves, and perfectly adapted to our ceremonies, enable many of our brethren on moderate terms, to meet happily, peacefully, and comfortably for all Masonic purposes and duties. While, then, I blame no brother who differs from me on this important question, while I fully admit that some may consider economy to be the crucial test of the whole question for themselves, while some may fairly prefer the old room, if not so ornamental or convenient as others, where they can recall many years perchance, of happy work and cheerful companionship, I yet feel it to be my duty, M.W. Sir, to press upon all who hear me to-day the great advisability and importance in the best interests of Freemasonry, of encouraging the building of halls and separate buildings for all our meetings. In so doing, we are but following, as I pointed out before, the taste and feelings of our own generation; we are but obeying, as I believe, and within due limits of moderation and propriety, the onward and upward movement of our age, which seeks to connect all that is necessary, all that is useful, all that is customary, with all that is becoming, all that is graceful, all that is artistic, and all that is beautiful. And not only this, but in the erection of lodge rooms, apart from the associations and drawbacks of the outward world, we shall remove many objections, and silence many opponents, whose main allegations against Freemasonry too often take the shape of a charge that it is to a great extent, from its public appearances and outward gathering, only a great and friendly but convivial association. And those of us who know well our ancient ritual, and our impressive ceremonies, know, too, how greatly they are enhanced, both in grace and solemnity, by all the proper adjuncts of a duly decorated lodge room. It was old Aske who told us so well at the beginning of this century, how symbolical all our lodge ornaments, all our lodge decorations really were; how full of meaning, beauty, wisdom, and good were all these familiar features of the lodge, which we hardly, perhaps, understand or value as we ought to do. When, then, we see to-day a Masonic Hall separated from common and profane uses, and dedicated reverently to the service and ceremonies of our useful Order, in the name of the Great Architect of the Universe; when we behold around us all the appropriate emblems of our ancient Craft; when we admiringly gaze upon the good taste displayed in all that is befitting and yet attractive in lodge decorations complete and chaste—we feel at once how suitable a home Freemasonry has obtained for itself in this important district. Must we not also commend, M.W. Sir, those who undertook, the architect who planned, and those who have so far completed the goodly undertaking? And shall we not rejoice to think how becoming, and yet how effective, will be the development of our old and cherished ritual here under the auspices of the new lodge, whose constitution and consecration we shall shortly witness? For it has often happened, and I believe will often happen, that the first impressions we receive and form of Freemasonry are those which go with us during our Masonic career. Many a neophyte has been, so to say, all but turned back with an unfavourable impression, by his first reception into our Order, an impression which has never left him, and has rendered his after Masonic membership half-hearted, doubting, undervaluing. But when, as it was my privilege to be admitted into the light of Masonry 33 years ago, in the Lodge of Friendship at Gibraltar, all that was graceful and beautiful, all that was purely Masonic and intellectual, and cultivated, were the characteristics of that well ordered lodge, set apart for Masonic services alone, the feelings of wonder were soon exchanged for admiration, and admiration gave place to gratification, and gratification was followed by interest, reverence and love. And so it is, I believe, with all. The pleasure and contentment which the admiring initiate feels, when surrounded by all the befitting ornamentation of a carefully arranged lodge room, follows him the older he becomes, and the longer he belongs to our fraternity. Warmly then do I venture to congratulate you, M.W. Sir, and all my brethren present, alike at your kindly presiding over this pleasant gathering, that so having set the seal of your official approbation to this happily achieved work, we and you, as our Deputy Grand Master, can mutually rejoice to have been permitted to take part in this appropriate ceremony, and this festive array. For here, M.W. Sir, I make bold once more to remind my hearers, in this newly dedicated lodge room it is proposed that our peaceful ceremonies should be performed amid all the reverence and propriety, that circumstances can supply, or true Masonic feeling can suggest. Here we hope that our great principles will be upheld, our venerated truths proclaimed, our benevolent and tolerant and philanthropic maxims from time to time duly set forth and lovingly avowed. Here we trust that—a band of brethren linked together by the golden chain of peace and concord, fraternal harmony, goodwill, and sympathy—we shall ever maintain in the lodge, and evidence out of the lodge, that these words on our lips are not empty professions, but regulate our actions and control our lives. Here we fondly trust, that whatever may happen in the world outside, plain dealing and sincerity will always distinguish us, and truth and honour, and right and justice, will ever abound amongst us. Here we shall learn, let us hope, to master our tempers, to curb our tongues, to repress the too common propensity to censoriousness and detraction; here we shall maintain a brother's character in his absence as we would in his presence; here we will stand by him in trial, cheer him in sorrow, befriend him in adversity, do unto him as we would he should do unto us, listen to no idle tale affecting his honour, his probity, his uprightness, but calmly practise what we have solemnly pledged ourselves to perform, never deserting the right, never truckling to what is base, cowardly, or dishonourable; but as true Freemasons, vindicating a brother's cause, and boldly repelling the slanderer of his good fame. And here, too, while we practise all the moral duties, and all the virtues of humanity, in humble dependence on our Supreme Lawgiver and Divine Protector, while we seek ever to be courteous, considerate, forbearing, tolerant, pitying, and forgiving, we shall not forget the exercise of those gentle graces, which are the practical proof alike of our Masonic profession and of the true value of Freemasonry. Open will our hands be as melting charity to all who make a proper claim on our benevolence. We shall never forget that many are the ups and downs of life, and that some who are flourishing in prosperity to-day, may be struck down by adversity tomorrow, and that while we must always act with prudence, caution, and discrimination, even in philanthropic endeavours, the abiding duty of Freemasonry is charity; that charity which "never faileth," that charity alike welcome to God and pleasant to man.

"is the Spirit that on the widest plan, Brother to brother binds, and man to man."

So too as regards the widows and orphans of our brethren we, as Freemasons know full well, that they as such have a solemn and an enduring claim on us, not the claim of a Benefit Order, but the claim of truer and spontaneous Masonic interest and fraternal goodwill. No happier work, no better remembrance can be ours, than that we have aided to dry the widow's tears and to educate the orphan child of our brethren, and we may rest assured, M.W. Sir, that those who shall assemble within these now dedicated walls, will always bear in mind that amid all the excellent teachings of our Order, amid its great and commendable merits, there is not one which so appeals to the hearts and admiration of men, as well as to the feelings of our own benevolent brotherhood, as that which may be justly denominated its chief ornaments and its most benign, characteristic, earnest, kindly, simple-minded, large-hearted philanthropy. So Freemasonry is not, despite what some may chance to say, a mere creation of the caprice, or fashion, or folly of the hour; it is not merely a genial meeting, or a social assembly, though it partakes properly of both these characteristics, but it entails on its members high aims, moral duties, and I will add, great responsibilities. In an age of much controversy, at a time when men are often injuriously agitated by the virulence and tumults of political or polemical contests, Freemasonry has often appeared to me like an oasis in the wilderness of life, where amid the dust storms, and the mirage of the desert, the weary traveller can rest peacefully and serene, and quaff the refreshing stream, and seek an umbrageous shelter of tranquillity and repose. Over the portals of this new hall, as over all our lodge buildings to-day, are engraved the talismanic words of "Loyalty and Charity," and, universal in its scope and tolerant in its teaching, Freemasonry welcomes all good men and true within its fold, all, I say, who acknowledge and revere the Grand and Divine Master of us all above, all except the avowed atheist and the open libertine. May, then, all prosperity attend on this new Masonic Hall, and may all who enter within its dedicated walls find it to be to them a perfect tabernacle of peace and good will, of happiness and harmony, of rest and kindly fellowship to them one and all. Like good workmen, the Master still sets on the work, neither has He yet called us from labour to refreshment; but yet let us all hope that when our time of dismissal comes, having like faithful Craftsmen ascended the winding stair, and passed, under Heavenly help, through the dark valley of the shadow of death, in all the hope of Master Masons, true and trusty, by the infinite mercies of the Great Jehovah, we may be admitted to that Grand Lodge above, whose officers, to use an old Masonic illustration, are the Holy Angels, whose members are our own familiar friends, and where the World's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. M.W. Sir, I beg to thank you and the brethren for the kindness and patience with which you have listened to me, and must beg you, in conclusion, to permit me to tender my hearty good wishes for my brethren who shall gather together within this newly-dedicated lodge room, and for their constitutional progress and their Masonic prosperity. To use the words of a poet of our Order—

"Oh! may we,
Who wear these honour'd badges, accepted, free,
To every grace and virtue temples raise,
And by our useful lives our Order praise."

The brethren marched from the Town Hall, down Abbey-gate-street, and across the Angel-hill to St. James's church, where, by the permission of the Rev. C. F. Wilson, the vicar, Divine service was held. There was full choral service, and the talented organist, Bro. F. Fearnside, had taken especial pains to make the musical portion of the service well worthy the occasion. The anthem was one of his own composition, on words from 1 Kings, viii 9, "I have surely built thee an house," &c., and was not only extremely appropriate, but, as a composition, is deserving of the highest praise. It was admirably sung by the choir, and was thoroughly appreciated by the large congregation who filled the spacious church. Before the service a special hymn was sung, "When the Architect Almighty had created heaven and earth," to a tune especially composed for the occasion, and full of beautiful harmony, the composer being Bro. Hedley Bevan, the W.M. of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge. A speciality of the service was that all the music used was the composition of craftsmen. Two of the psalms of the day, the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, were sung to chants composed by Bro. F. Fearnside, S.W. 1008; one of the special psalms to a chant by Bro. F. C. Atkinson, Mus. Bac., P.G. Org. West Riding of Yorkshire; the hymn before the sermon, "O Lord, how joyful 'tis to see our brethren join in love to Thee," to Lucerne, by Bro. A. R. Gaul, Mus. Bac.; and the hymn after the sermon, "Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven," to Wolverhampton, by Bro. F. A. Mann, of Melford, Org. 1452. The concluding voluntary was the march from Nauman, by Bro. Sir Michael Costa. The prayers were read by Bro. the Rev. H. Hall, senior curate, the first lesson by the Rev. R. Evans, rector of West Stow, the second lesson by the vicar, the Rev. C. F. Wilson, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. A. G. Moore, Prov. Grand Chaplain, from 1 Kings, vi, 7. The subject was the building of the Temple of Solomon, and the preacher dwelt upon the peculiar manner in which that wonderful structure was silently and imperceptibly erected under the guidance of the Great Architect of the Universe, and pointed out the lessons to be learnt from the narrative. That ancient temple was the type of the infinitely more magnificent Church which would be in Heaven hereafter, and of which they at baptism were designed each to be a living stone. The materials of the temple were all selected and prepared in a distant land and then shipped to Jerusalem, just as they were prepared on earth by God's appointed agents, each polished and shapen for his appointed place in the spiritual fabric, in order to be shipped hereafter on the rafters of the cross, over the dark waters which separate time from eternity, and fixed for ever in the proper place in that heavenly Jerusalem which should never crumble or decay. As the 3,300 overseers of old (who were compared to the Angels) tested each massive stone and stately cedar to prove that it was sound and solid to its very heart, shipping only those that were so, and rejecting all that were found otherwise, so with us, for no stone could ever adorn the temple on high which was not fitted and polished, and sound. It should be the duty of each one to see that he was not a crumbling or a rotten stone, and that all the rough outer coatings (the sins of daily life) were polished away, leaving only the genuine stone. Let them work day by day imperceptibly, as it were, to the world, thinking not time tedious, nor the battle long. Life was short, but long enough to do their work in, and the gate of life was broad enough for all to enter, though not for their sins as well. Might God's Holy Spirit dwell in all their hearts, and make them more and more as polished stones, meet to be grafted in that great cathedral of souls which in His own good time the Great Master would erect in the celestial lodge of Heaven.

The service was a most admirable one, and we only wish we could publish it in extenso for the benefit of the Craft. The offertory was devoted to the funds of the Suffolk General Hospital and the fund for relieving the sufferers from the recent inundations in France, and amounted to £13 16s. 4d.

The musical portion of the service was splendidly rendered, and, indeed, the service generally was of that thoroughly hearty character that it could not fail to be enjoyed by the brethren and the vast congregation which filled the noble Gothic Church on this occasion. The first church here was erected about 1200, by Abbot Sampson, who was dissuaded by his brethren of the Abbey from his intention of performing a pilgrimage to the shrine of St. James, at Compostella, in Spain; and in compliance with their recommendation he founded this edifice in honour of the saint. The present noble edifice, though far advanced in the year 1500, was not finished till the Reformation, when Edward VI. gave £200 towards its completion. There is a magnificent nave, and the Masonic procession made a gallant show as it marched up, and the brethren took their places.

It will be many years before we shall forget that service, and we suspect there are many more like-minded with ourselves. On returning to the lodge after the service the Provincial Grand Master, in a long and eloquent speech, dwelt upon the state of the Order in this province, the mode of conferring Provincial Grand rank, and the care he had always taken to select the best men for office. He regretted that his many public and private avocations prevented his visiting the lodges as much as he could wish. He particularly regretted that only recently he had been most unwillingly compelled to decline an invitation to attend a very interesting festival at Ipswich (alluding to the Feast of Roses of the British Union Lodge), but he trusted the brethren would understand that it was from no want of interest in the Order that he was unable to come amongst them so much as he could wish.

Speaking of the magnificent service they had just listened to, he said he should ask the Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies to present Bro. Fearnside to him when he had concluded his remarks.

After dwelling upon one or two other matters, especially with regard to the representation of lodges by their Masters, the noble lord sat down amidst applause from the brethren.

Bro. Emra Holmes, P.G.D.C., then introduced Bro. Fearnside, when the Provincial Grand Master informed him that as a mark of his favour for the beautiful musical service performed that day, and in consideration of his great abilities, he should confer upon him the past rank of a Provincial Grand Organist.

This announcement, which was evidently very popular, was received with great applause.

At 5 o'clock the brethren, to the number of about 90, sat down to a capital banquet served by Bro. Eny, of the Angel Hotel, but we are bound to say the waiting was not all that could be desired. Bro. Clarke proved an admirable A.D.C., and, assisted by the P.G. Stewards, did his utmost to see that the guests were well placed and properly served, but there was a lack of waiters, as there always seems to be on these occasions.

The Provincial Grand Master was supported on his right by Bros. the Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; T. J. Huddleston, P.G. Treas.; J. D. Perrott, P.P.G.S.W. South Wales, and Captain Oakes, P.G. Reg.; and on the left by Bros. the Rev. J. B. Tweed, P.G. Chaplain; Emra Holmes, P.P.G. Reg. and P.G.D.C.; W. Bobby, P.P.G.S.W.; the Mayor of Bury, and Bro. Newson Garrett, P.P.G.R.

The banquet was served in the Athenæum Hall, which, under the direction of the P.G. Secretary, Bro. W. H. Lucia, and the P.G.J.W., Bro. W. Armstrong, had been elaborately decorated for the occasion. For the P.G.M. and the officers and visitors a raised dais was prepared. Behind the Grand Master's chair was a crimson banner bearing the Bury Arms, three pierced crowns, and the words, "Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, 1008," in gold letters. The panels on each side of it held the mottoes, "Audi, vide, tace," and "Faith, Hope, and Charity," in gold on crimson; and the spaces between were occupied by the square and compasses, with the letter "G" in the centre. The staircases leading to the balcony at the opposite end were draped with crimson, and bore the letters "I.T.N.O.T.G.A.O.T.U.," and on the front of the balcony itself was the word, "Faith," all the letters being in blue and gold. The staircase was further decorated with the very handsome silken bannerets of the White Rose Chapter of Royal Arch Freemasons, attached to the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge. They are beautifully emblazoned with emblems of the twelve tribes of Israel, and with Royal Arch symbols, and formed a very effective portion of the adornments of the hall. The east side of the hall was decorated with the square and compasses, and equilateral triangles alternately, within circles, elegantly formed of flowers and evergreens. In the centre was a portrait of the Prince of Wales, in his clothing as Grand Master of England, in a massive gilt frame. On each side were crimson cloth panels, bearing the working tools of the Craft Masonry and of the Royal Arch, and coloured engravings of the Masonic Girls' School and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. On the opposite side of the hall were squares and compasses formed of evergreens, and the motto put forward by the Provincial Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, as the watchword of the Craft, at the Installation of the Prince of Wales, "Loyalty and Charity." The recess, occupied by the piano and the singers, was elegantly festooned with evergreens. Outside the hall, over the entrance, was also placed the motto, "Loyalty and Charity."

During the banquet Bro. F. Fearnside and Mr. B. Fearnside played an admirable selection of music on one of Broadwood's iron grand pianofortes, which was obtained specially for the occasion; and afterwards some capital glees and part songs were sung by the members of St. James's choir, under the direction of Bro. F. Fearnside.

The toasts of The Queen; the Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; the Pro Grand Master, Earl Carnarvon; and the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, having been duly honoured,

The Deputy P.G.M., Bro. the Rev. E. J. Lockwood, proposed "The Health of the P.G.M. of Suffolk, Lord Waveney," remarking that the toast was one which needed no great eloquence to recommend it; but he, from the position he held, had peculiar opportunities of knowing the invaluable, prompt, wise, and judicious attention which the P.G.M. at all times gave to the affairs of Provincial Grand Lodge. (Applause.) Remembering the great demands there were on their P.G.M., both in his private and public capacity, in the civil and military department, he had often had occasion to wonder that when he had been obliged to trouble him on matters relating to the province he had never delayed answering his application. (Applause.) The D.P.G.M. then read a telegram from the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., who was unable to be present, "Hearty good wishes for a successful meeting, congratulations to the Bury brethren, long life to the Provincial Grand Master." (Cheers.)

Duet, "Sul campo della gloria," Bros. Griffiths and Fearnside.

The P.G.M., in responding, said he thought the D.P.G.M. had rather exaggerated the claims he had upon their kindness. He thanked them for their willingness to accept whatever he did as being done for the best. After touching upon one or two Masonic subjects, the Chairman expressed the obligations the brethren were under to those who had so kindly contributed to the harmony of the evening by the admirable music with which they had been favoured. (Cheers.) The Chairman then proposed "The Health of the D.P.G.M.," on whom, he remarked, a great portion of the burden of the work of the province devolved. (Cheers.) When it was his unhappy misfortune not to be able to attend the installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master (the P.G.M. observed) the D.P.G.M., in spite of physical difficulty, made a point at being present. He hoped the D.P.G.M. might long remain among them, and he called upon the brothers to drink most heartily the health of as true a friend and counsellor as ever a man weighted with official responsibility had. (Cheers.)

"Blow Gentle Gales," by Bros. Nunn, Griffiths, and Fearnside.

The D.P.G.M., in acknowledging the toast, said that what little he could do for Masonry he did most cheerfully. This, he remarked, was a proud time for Masonry, and the honour of holding office in the Craft was ample compensation for any exertions of his. (Cheers.) They knew that the supreme head of their Order was the Heir Apparent to the Crown; and those who had lately the privilege of being present at the most wonderful and glorious scene, he believed, that Freemasonry ever knew, would never forget the simple dignity and unaffected eloquence with which his Royal Highness went through the duties of the day. (Cheers.) Alluding to the secession of the late Grand Master, he remarked that that would serve to remind them that Masonry was free, and did not allow one brother on any occasion to pass judgement on the conscience of another. They all knew that Christian brotherhood and Masonic brotherhood were perfectly harmonious one with another. (Applause.)

The Chairman next called upon the brethren to drink "The Health of the Officers of the Province," whose merits, he remarked, were of the highest order. With the toast he coupled the name of T. J. Huddleston, the P.G. Treasurer. (Cheers.)

Song, "Excelsior," Bro. Griffiths.

Bro. Major Huddleston, in acknowledging the toast, expressed his thanks to the brethren for the honour they had done him that day in electing him to the important office of Treasurer. After alluding to the inauguration of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge ten years ago, and the success which has since attended it, Major Huddleston said if he could only discharge the duties of the treasurer as well as his predecessor he should be very well satisfied. (Cheers.)

The P.G.M. next gave "The Health of the Past Grand Officers," coupling with it the name of Bro. Newson Garrett.

Glee, "Comrades in Arms."

Bro. Newson Garrett, P.P.G.S.W., in responding, said he was a Mason of forty-two years' standing, and the more he saw of Masonry the better he liked it. The happiness of meeting his fellow Masons, year by year, as brother to brother, was one of the greatest privileges of his long life. (Cheers.) Some of his best and oldest friends he had met in Masonry, and he rejoiced in what he might call its resuscitation, when

"Kings, dukes, and lords
Lay'd by their swords,

Our mystries to put a good face on,
And are not ashamed
To hear themselves named

With a Free and Accepted Mason."

The outside world might sneer at their clothing; paraphernalia, but Masons would continue to go on in their accustomed course, holding out the right hand of friendship and advice to a brother in distress. (Cheers.) He hoped that his lordship might long rule over them, and that they might meet him on many future occasions. (Cheers.)

The Chairman then proposed "The Royal St. Edmund's Lodge," whose reception of P.G. Lodge had that day been of so remarkable a character. They were well received wherever they went, but the musical character of their reception that day had been of a most signal kind. He congratulated the lodge on its progress, and remarked that if it went on as it had begun, there was no telling where it would end. He was particularly struck with the number who rose in P.G. Lodge when the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge was called upon, and he could not but remark the great energy which the brethren of that lodge had thrown into their welcome of P.G. Lodge. The P.G.M., after complimenting the lodge not only on the magnificent room in which they were assembled, and the great taste and skill with which it was adorned, but also on the excellent dinner of which they had partaken, coupled with the toast the names of P.G.S.W., Bro. Hedley Bevan, W.M. of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, and the Mayor of Bury, Bro. Geo. Thompson, P.M. of the Lodge. Romance: "Si tu savais," Bro. Griffiths.

Bro. Bevan, P.G.S.W., expressed his high sense of the double honour which he had in being Master of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, and also of receiving P.G.L. during his year of office. (Cheers.)

Bro. G. Thompson, P.M., also expressed the pleasure with which the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge had welcomed the visit of P.G. Lodge, and in the course of his remarks said he strongly desired that the ladies should be permitted to join in these gatherings, a sentiment which was very heartily received by the brethren.

Bro. Bobby, P.G.S.W., then proposed the toast of "The Masonic Charities," and stated that there are 200 boys and 120 girls now being educated in the Masonic Schools, and already more than 1000 had passed through each school; and in addition to this a large number of Masons who had been unfortunate, and of Masons' widows who had been left inadequately provided for, had been cared for in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons. They had the pleasure of electing three from the county of Suffolk this year, and if the brothers had witnessed the tears of gratitude with which they received the information that they were cared for for life, they would have needed no urging to subscribe largely to charities which were doing so much good.

Bro. the Rev. J. Tweed, whose name was coupled with the toast, appropriately acknowledged it; and

The P.G. Secretary, Bro. W. H. Lucia, announced that he should represent the Province as Steward at the next Boys' Festival, and he should be pleased to have as large a subscription list as possible.

Bro. T. F. Lucia, sympathising with the views expressed by the last speakers, suggested that the toast of the Charities should on future occasions be proposed earlier in the evening, before any of the brethren had been compelled to leave to catch the trains. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Newson Garrett said he should be happy to add five guineas to the P.G. Secretary's list. (Cheers.)

The P.G.M. then gave "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. Sorel.

Song, "Happy to meet," Bro. F. Fearnside.

The P.G.M. again rose, and said that although the toast he had now to propose came late in the evening, it was a most important one—that of "The Provincial Grand Secretary." (Cheers.) He remarked that it was comparatively easy to drive a locomotive, but was not so easy to put the machinery in order and to keep it in order, and that was especially the duty that their excellent Secretary most ably performed. (Cheers.) There were few persons who had occasion to employ Secretaries who had such good reason to be satisfied as he and his D.P.G.M. had in their dealings with the P.G. Secretary. (Cheers.)

"Willie brewed a peck o' maut," Bros. Nunn, Fearnside, and Griffiths.

Bro. W. H. Lucia, P.G. Sec., responded, observing that his heart was with Masonry, and if he had deserved the compliments that had been paid him by the P.G.M., and the hearty reception which the brethren had given to the toast, he had after all only done his duty towards the Craft, and he hoped he should always continue to do so. (Cheers.) He regretted there were not more brethren present, but he nevertheless was glad to say that as the result of the observations that had been made on the Charities he had received several donations, and he hoped he should be able to take up a good list for the Boys' School. (Cheers.)

The Chairman next proposed "The Ladies," and mentioned that one of the first sights which greeted him that morning at Hardwick House (where he was a guest) was a portrait of a lady of the Deneraile family, who, happening to be found within hearing of the secrets of a lodge, was initiated as a member, and was said to be the only lady who was ever so privileged.

Bro. the Rev. H. Hall, whose name was coupled with the toast, appropriately acknowledged it.

The R.W.P.G.M. then announced that the next P.G. Lodge meeting would be held at Ipswich, and shortly afterwards vacated the chair; but, under the presidency of Bro. Bobby, P. Prov. G.S.W., the convivial proceedings were continued for some time longer.

It only remains, in chronicling the great success of the meeting at Bury, in spite of the comparatively small numbers who were there, to express a hope that Ipswich, with its four lodges, will make an effort to receive the Provincial Grand Lodge in as cordial and hospitable a fashion as the brethren of Lowestoft, Aldeburgh, and Bury have done during the last few years.

On the last occasion of the visit of the P.G. Lodge at Ipswich there was a miserable service in one of the smallest churches in the town, no procession through the streets, and, of course, no band. Application was made for the use of the Town Hall, which was refused, and one of the brethren got up at the banquet and remarked how scurvily the brethren had been received. It is to be hoped that next year Ipswich and Ipswich Masons will show that they are not ashamed of the time-honoured fraternity, and that as Ipswich is one of the great centres of Masonic life she will show some evidence of it, and not be cast in the shade by towns not half her size, and containing not a tithe of her numbers of Freemasons. The handsome new state sword borne in the procession was from the manufactory of our esteemed Bro. Kenning, and was much admired.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF KENT.

The annual festival of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent was held on Tuesday, the 6th inst., in Gravesend. The W.M. and officers of the Gravesend Lodge, No. 77, had done their best in the way of arrangements to make the meeting a pleasant one for their provincial brethren, and the weather being fortunately fine, the festival was of a most agreeable and successful character.

The proceedings of the day commenced with a dejeuner at the Old Falcon Hotel, Bro. Skilleter catering in his best style, and a goodly number of the Masters and Wardens of Kent lodges partaking of the hospitality of the brethren of Lodge Freedom. Shortly before noon a general move was made for Milton Hall, where, according to announcement, Grand Lodge was to be held, the head quarters of the volunteers having been nicely fitted up for the occasion.

There was a numerous gathering of brethren, the Grand Master (R.W. Bro. Viscount Holmesdale, M.P.) being in the chair, with the D.G.M., Bro. J. S. Eastes, in his place.

Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. A. Spencer, read the minutes of the previous lodge, and the accounts presented by the Grand Treasurer, Bro. B. Thorpe, were accepted. The following appointments were then made, the R.W. Prov. G.M. investing each officer with the insignia of office:—

Bro. J. S. Eastes	D. Prov. G.M.
" Humphrey Wood, W.M. 20	Prov. S.G.W.
" Edwin Nunn, W.M. 77	Prov. J.G.W.
" Rev. W. A. Hill (re-appointed) ..	Prov. G. Chaplain.
" Alfred Spencer (re-appointed) ..	Prov. G. Sec.
" Benjamin Thorpe (re-appointed) ..	Prov. G. Treas.
" Austen Gardner, P.M. 31, 1206 ..	Prov. S.G.D.
" F. F. Giraud, P.M. 133	Prov. J.G.D.
" G. Langridge, P.M. 874	Prov. G. Reg.
" Wm. Call, P.M. 1209	Prov. G. D. of C.
" Chas. Burley, P.M. 184	Prov. G.A.D.C.
" L. A. Hill, P.M. 1206	Prov. G.S. of W.
" G. Fleming, P.M. 1174	Prov. G.S.B.
" Jas. Kennett, P.M. 558	Prov. G. Org.
" W. T. Bray, P.M. 483	Prov. G. Purst.
" R. Eastley	Prov. G. Tyler.

Prov. Grand Stewards—Bros. Charles C. Patley, P.M. 1223, S.W. 1414; Charles Coupland, P.M. 193; Joseph Hazeldine, P.M. 429; John Swinfen, W.M. 503; Thomas J. Usher, P.M. 1096; Henry P. Popkins, P.M. 1208.

The following resolutions, which had been drawn up at a preparatory meeting held at Faversham, were then submitted to Grand Lodge and confirmed.

Proposed by Bro. F. A. Guage, P.M. 133, that a grant of £20 be given to the widow of Bro. G., out of the Prov. G.L. Fund.

Proposed by Bro. Dr. Marshall, P.M. 199, that a grant of £20 be given to the widow of Bro. P.

Proposed by Bro. A. Spears, P.M. 158, that a grant of £20 be given to Bro. T.

Proposed by the D.P.G.M. that a vote of fifty guineas be given to the Girls' School, to make the P.G.M. a Vice-Patron of the Institution.

Proposed by the D.P.G.M. that a vote of £20 each be given to the following lodges, to make them Life Governors of the Royal Benevolent Institution; 1174, Pentangle; 1206, Cinque Ports; 1208, Corinthian; 1209, Lewis; 1223, Amherst.

Proposed by the D.P.G.M. that a vote of twenty guineas be given to the following lodges, to make them Life Governors of the Boys' School:—150, Gundulph; 1063, Malling Abbey, 1089, De Shurland; 1096, Lord Warden; 1107, Cornwallis.

Proposed by Bro. William Page, P.G.J.W., that Rule V. of the Provincial Grand Lodge Bye-laws be as follows, viz.:—

The P.G. Secretary shall issue summonses in proper time for all meetings of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and the preparatory meeting, to the Secretary of every lodge in the Province, for distribution to all the brethren entitled to attend such meetings; he shall make minutes of the proceedings at such meetings; and under the direction of the Provincial Grand Master, or his Deputy, report the same to all the lodges in the Province; he shall transmit to every present Provincial Officer, and to the W.M. of every lodge in the Province, as soon as possible after the preparatory meeting, a printed copy of the minutes of such preparatory meeting, &c., &c., &c. The remaining portion of the rule to remain as now.

Proposed by the V.W.D.P.G.M. that Rules XIV. and XV. respectively be numbered XVI. and XVII., and that XIV. and XV. to be as follows, viz.:—

XIV.—For the purpose of organizing and concentrating the strength of the Province at the election of candidates for the "Masonic Charitable Institutions," there shall be a committee, to be called the "Charity Committee," which shall consist of the Provincial Grand Master and his Deputy, the Prov. Grand Treasurer and Secretary, and a member from each lodge in the Province, who shall be elected annually on the day of the installation of the W.M., and the name and postal address of such elected member shall be transmitted to the Provincial Grand Secretary, immediately after such election.

XV.—The Charity Committee shall meet (at least) twice in each year, as soon as lists of the candidates for the several Institutions have been obtained, when the Candidates to be supported by the Province shall be selected by a majority of the members present. A brother or brethren, shall also be appointed to conduct the business of the elections. The votes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and those of every lodge which have been obtained by grants from the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund, shall be forwarded, as soon as received, to the Provincial Grand Secretary, to be dealt with according to the decision of the Provincial Grand Lodge Charity Committee. The co-operation of the Worshipful Masters and brethren of the lodges of the Province is earnestly desired, and the assistance of the subscribing members to the various Charitable Institutions is also most desirable, that success may attend the efforts of the committee.

A slight alteration was made in the resolution proposed by Bro. Spears, in consequence of the receipt of a telegram announcing that Bro. Townsend died on the morning of the festival. It was resolved that the sum be handed to Bro. Spears for him to settle the affairs of the late Bro. Townsend.

This business being completed, the R.W. Prov. G.M. adjourned the lodge for the purpose of attending Divine service at Gravesend parish church.

During the whole of the day the bells of "Old Gravesend" rang out a merry peal, and the sacred edifice had been very nicely decorated for the occasion. By half-past one o'clock, the time fixed for the commencement of the service, the brethren were seated in the body of the church, the galleries being filled with the general public. Special preparations had been made in the way of music by the W.M. of Freedom (Bro. F. Nunn), who was assisted by Miss Grace Armytage, Mrs. E. Baynes, and Mr. H. C. Saunders; Bros. Dickenson, Keats, G. Nunn, and E.

Baynes; Mr. W. Detmar and Bro. A. W. Gee playing the organ. The following clergymen took part in the service:—Rev. W. A. Hill, P.G.C.; Rev. E. Robinson, P.P.G.J.W.; Rev. R. Strong, Chaplain of Freedom; and Rev. W. Buxton, Rector of Ifield. The responses were sung to the setting of Tallis, special psalms, Nos. 15, 133, and 150 following in the ordinary course of evening service. The first special lesson was from the 12th ch. Ecclesiastes, read by the Rev. E. Robinson, and the second from the 13th ch. 1st Epistle to the Corinthians, read by the Rev. W. Buxton. The Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were sung to Nares in F, the solo and verse parts being taken by Miss Armytage, Mrs. Baynes, and Bros. E. Nunn, G. Nunn, and Keats. The magnificent anthem of Dr. Elvey, commencing "In that day shall be sung in the land of Judah," was given after the second collect, the solo and verse parts being allotted to the same singers. The hymn before the sermon was the one commencing "O praise our God to-day," to the tune of St. Michael; that sung during the offertory (which amounted to £20 13s.), "O Lord, how joyful 'tis to see," to the tune Melcombe.

A very eloquent sermon was preached by the Provincial Grand Chaplain from Exodus, ch. 35, verses 30 and 31; "And Moses said unto the children of Israel, see the Lord hath called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah; and He hath filled him with the Spirit of God in wisdom, in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship."

In the course of a sermon, which dealt with the origin, and inculcated the true spirit of Masonry, the preacher alluded to the fact that fifteen years had elapsed since a similar festival was held in the town, and spoke in terms of regret of the brethren who had departed, and the many changes which had taken place during the interval.

At the close of the service the brethren returned to Milton Hall, where the Prov. Grand Master closed the lodge in accordance with ancient custom.

A considerable number of brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet at the Assembly Rooms, provided by Mr. Hooper. The R.W. Grand Master presided, supported by several leading members of the Craft in the Province, Bros. H. Wood, G.S.W., and E. Nunn, G.J.W., occupying the vice-chairs.

The grace after meat, "For these and all Thy mercies," having been sung, the Prov. Grand Master gave the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," his lordship afterwards proposing the toast of "The M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," each being duly honoured.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then proposed in terms of eulogy the toast of "The R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Kent, Lord Holmesdale."

The Provincial Grand Master, in responding, referred to the changes which had taken place since Prov. G. Lodge last met in this town, and spoke of the loss the Province had sustained in the death of Bro. Wates, of Gravesend. Their numbers had considerably increased without any lowering of the standard of respectability, for if that had taken place he should have looked upon the increase as an unmixed evil. His lordship went on to say that he had already made application to have two Provincial Grand Lodges, this step being rendered necessary by the increase in numbers, and the consequent lack of accommodation. Another consideration was that they had now forty lodges in the Province, but the number of provincial honours was limited, and it was consequently becoming more and more difficult to satisfy deserving candidates for those honours. His lordship concluded by expressing the hope that they would soon see a Provincial Lodge in East as well as in West Kent.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed the toasts of "The V.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Kent, Bro. J. S. Eastes, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," "The Provincial Grand Chaplain, the Provincial Grand Treasurer, and P.G. Secretary;" Brothers Eastes, W. A. Hill, and A. Spencer each saying a few words in response.

The next toast, "The W.M., and Brethren of Freedom Lodge, No. 77," was proposed by the P.G.M., who complimented the W.M. and brethren upon their admirable arrangements, and upon the hospitality they had shown to their brethren of the Province. The toast was acknowledged in fitting terms by Bro. E. Nunn, the W.M. of the lodge.

Bro. R. Strong, Chaplain of Freedom, Bro. Relph, Secretary, and Bro. Andrews, were also called upon to propose or acknowledge toasts, the concluding one on the formal list being "The Tyler's Toast," after which the brethren dispersed.

A word of praise should be accorded in respect of the musical arrangements made for the banquet by the W.M. of No. 77, which certainly afforded great pleasure to those present. Miss Armytage sang charmingly, and secured quite an enthusiastic reception for each of her songs, and in the unaccompanied part singing of Bros. E. Nunn, G. Nunn, Keates, and Dickenson, the brethren had a treat, the novel excellence of which was duly appreciated.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Intermittent and Continued Fevers.—Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Hysteria, and General Debility, are best treated by these remedies, as they possess within themselves a gently stimulating and tonic principle, which invariably produces the desired results, they impart tone to the mucous membrane of the stomach, expel flatulence, increase the appetite, and produce a grateful sense of internal warmth, and elasticity of mind and body. As a detergent in Scrofulous and foul ulcerations, and as a healing and soothing application in burns, scalds, and excoriations, the Ointment will be found most valuable, as it promotes the healing action, and cleanses off all foul discharges and neutralizes any noxious matter, that may be present. Very plain directions accompany them.—ADVT.

Masonic Tidings.

We are informed that the three Sheffield lodges—the Britannia, 139, the Royal Brunswick, 296, and the Wentworth—have agreed to draw up a joint address of welcome to our illustrious Grand Master on the occasion of his visit to Sheffield on August 16th to 18th next. The address will not be presented in Sheffield, but will be forwarded to the Prince, the necessity of this course being obvious, for if his Royal Highness was to receive it when in Sheffield it might set (for him) a troublesome precedent. The Princess of Wales will accompany the Prince. Great preparations are being made to give them a loyal reception.

On Monday last the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a visit to Margate for the purpose of opening a branch of the London Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb. On their arrival their Royal Highnesses were received by Earl Granville, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, and by the corporate authorities, who presented an address of welcome. The town was gallily decorated, and the Prince and Princess were warmly cheered as they passed through the streets.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex will be held at the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court, on Monday, the 26th inst., at 2.30.

The "Thanet" Red Cross Conclave was consecrated at Margate on Wednesday last. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.

Nearly £20,000 has been received at the Mansion House in aid of the French Inundations Relief Fund. The more recent subscriptions include one of a hundred guineas from the Prince and Princess of Wales.

The Grand Lodge of Quebec have appointed Bro. George Kenning to supply the whole of the Grand Officers with the necessary clothing and jewels. This insignia, which is of a most elaborate description, is now on view at the Masonic Depot, Little Britain.

An Emergency Meeting of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, will be held at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville road, King's Cross, N., on Thursday next, at 5 p.m.

The will of Bro. Alexander Allan (late of St. Paul's churchyard, who died at his private residence, No. 20, King's-road, Brownwood-park, on the 20th of May last) was proved on the 21st ult., by Mrs. Annie Louisa Allan, the widow and sole executrix, to whom he leaves the whole of his property absolutely. The personality is sworn under £3000.—City Press.

LAW APPOINTMENT.—Bro. J. Perry Godfrey, S.D. Golden Rule Lodge, No. 1261, a solicitor practising in Gray's Inn, has been appointed by the Right Honourable John Duke, Lord Coleridge, Lord Chief Justice of Her Majesty's Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, a perpetual commissioner for taking the acknowledgments of deeds to be executed by married women, under the act passed for the abolition of fines and recoveries, and for the substitution of more simple modes of assurance.

Bro. Eugene Henry Thiellay, S.W. 145, Prudent Brethren Lodge, S.W. 1423, Era Lodge, &c., so well known in some of the higher grades of Masonry, on the recommendation for office in the Province by Era Lodge 1423, is selected for P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, for 1875-76.

By a similar recommendation from Era Lodge 1423, Bro. Henry Arthur Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, P.M. 1326, is to be the P.G.D.C. Middlesex for 1875-76.

A report of Bro. Capt. Boyton's entertainment stands over. We are sorry to learn that it was a failure.

"ONE OF THE SIGHTS OF LONDON."—The Morning Post remarks: "Where shall we have our dinner? is a question which many have asked themselves despairingly when they have found themselves in London; while ladies alone have been even put to greater straits to solve the puzzle. For many years London has been deficient in accommodation of this kind. Yet it is a mere matter of fact that every day of the week many thousands of persons have engagements in town that would render some more substantial refreshment than can be obtained at the pastry-cook's eminently desirable. Consequently every effort on their behalf deserves encouragement, and it is gratifying to refer to one recent experiment, the success of which is now fully assured. After many vicissitudes a large and handsome building, having entrances in Holborn and Little Queen-street, has now become firmly established as the 'Holborn Restaurant,' and here it may fairly be said a successful endeavour has been made to combine all the best features of the highest class London and Parisian salles à manger. The grand salon, from its size, ventilation, arrangement, and artistic decoration, decidedly the most comfortable dining-room in London, and every preparation in the shape of toilette-rooms, attendants, &c., has been made for the comfort of ladies and children; while dinners of every price are served, from the plain fresh cut off the joint, with vegetables, &c., costing some 1s. 9d., including the charge for attendance, to the most elaborate, varied, and expensive menu. A special feature of this salon is the table d'hôte, served at separate tables from six to half-past eight, which, with its variety of courses, its dessert, and the excellent band, is a decidedly new and most agreeable feature. Besides the grand salon, dinners are served also in the balcony, where the tables are constructed for separate parties of three or four, while there are also additional salons for larger gatherings, a luncheon buffet, a grill-room, a smoking and reading room, and numerous other conveniences."

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Present, among others, Bros. Joshua Nunn, as President; Jas. Brett, as S.V.P.; E. P. Albert, as J.V.P.; John Savage, Joseph Smith, John Hervey, Grand Secretary; H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, W. Stephens, Bingemann, Jas. Willing, jun.; John Boyd, Sec.; Samuel May, C. F. Hogard, C. B. Payne, C. A. Cottebrune, Herbert Dickets, Henderson, J. G. Marsh, Bartlett, W. Smith, W. Mann, Wright, H. W. Hemsworth, W. T. Howe, Handles, Brown, J. E. Saunders, and Butcher.

The grants, amounting to £300, made by former meetings, which required confirmation, were confirmed. New grants were made to the amount of £237, of which the highest in any one case was £50, and the lowest £5. One £40, two £25, and a £15 were the principal of the other grants. Five cases stood over.

ROYAL AND SELECT MASTERS.

Two meetings of the Most Puissant Grand Council of this degree have recently been held at the Hall of Grand Mark Lodge, 2, Red Lion Square; the first was held on the 8th inst., and the second on the 20th. At the former, Capt. N. G. Philips presided as R.P.D.G.M., Bro. Hyde Pullen as G.P.C. of W., and Bro. F. Binckes, Grand Recorder. Bro. D. M. Dewar, No. 3, and Bro. S. Rosenthal, T.I.M., No. 3, were also present. Bros. and Comps. F. Richardson, R. Graham Birch, S. B. Ellis, R. H. Thrupp, and F. H. Atkins, of Mark Lodges Nos. 7, 80, 53, 13, and 104 respectively, and of Royal Arch Chapters Nos. 3, 392, 139, 255, and 1056 respectively, were acknowledged as most Excellent Masters, received Royal Masters, greeted Select Masters, and created Super Excellent Masters. At the meeting of the 20th inst. the presiding brethren officiated, and Bros. Walter Spencer, S. Rosenthal, H. Massey (Freemason), and others were present. Bro. R. Kalley Miller was admitted to the several degrees, after which the Council adjourned.

Educational Works by Mrs. Edmonds.

TRUE STORIES FROM ANCIENT HISTORY. Illustrated, cloth, 2s.; post free 2s. 2d., being a collection, adapted for children, of the principal personages and events of Ancient History. This little work comprises some of the most stirring passages from the histories of the ancient empires, including the Lives of Cyrus the Persian, Sardanapalus, Semiramis, and Xenophon, &c., all condensed into a short space, suited for the capacities of children, and combines instruction, as well as inculcating, with each narrative, a fine moral lesson, and is useful for the drawing room as well as the school.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY NOTES ON ANCIENT HISTORY. 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Is intended more especially for the schoolroom, also to assist the memory in the recollection of events and dates.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY NOTES ON ENGLISH HISTORY. New Edition, 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Mrs. Edmonds has in this work, which has been revised and brought down to the present time, made learning an easy task for the young, and a pleasure to the teachers. They are brought on gradually from the commencement of the History of England, by easy stages, through the reigns of the different Sovereigns to our own times, and not the least valuable portion of the work are the questions intended for the guidance of the instructor.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY NOTES ON FRENCH HISTORY. 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Is a complete resumé of the History of France from the time of the Gauls down to the reign of Napoleon III., and contains also over 300 questions for the guidance of tutors.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY NOTES ON ENGLISH GRAMMAR, for the use of juvenile pupils. New and corrected edition, price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. This little work professes to be only an auxiliary to works of a larger description. The parsing lessons are intended for oral examination, or exercises on the slate, and make even the youngest pupils take an interest in what is usually a hard task.

"Most useful and instructive manuals; clear, concise, and comprehensive. No school should be without them."—London Review.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BURY.—LODGE OF RELIEF (No. 42).—At the monthly meeting of this lodge, on Thursday, the 15th inst., there were present Bros. E. Eccles, W.M.; A. Buckley, S.W.; J. Skerrett, J.W.; T. Barker, J.D.; S. Mosley, I.G.; E. Simpkin, Sec.; Thorman, Tyler. Bros. John Redfern, and William Hewitson were raised to the Sublime Degree by Bros. G. A. O'Neil, W.M. of Lodge 191, and J. Grime, P.M. 128. The working of these brethren was much admired. The Secretary read some minutes of a committee meeting, from which it appeared that the W.M.'s of the other lodges in the borough had expressed a wish to take an active part in promoting the fund for raising a memorial stone over Bro. J. S. Redfern's grave; that it was agreed to "circular" the various lodges in the province on the matter; and that Bro. Lawrence Booth, architect, be requested to submit a design for a Masonic memorial stone. The Worshipful Master stated that the subscription list so far had progressed satisfactorily. With regard to the widow and children of Bro. B—— (P.M.), and the widow of Bro. H——, the Secretary was instructed to make representations to the Provincial Lodge. Suitable refreshment succeeded labour, and the usual toasts were honoured, Bro. J. W. Kenyon, P.M., giving "The Newly-raised Brothers," and Bro. Peers, "The Visitors."

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—The last monthly meeting before the summer recess took place at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 15th inst., when there was the smallest attendance of brethren we ever remember to have seen at this time-honoured and prosperous lodge. Whether it was in consequence of the wet evening, and many brethren having to come from a distance, or whether it was because the lodge, as a rule, adjourns in June, and brethren, supposing that this year would be no exception to the rule, had made other arrangements, we do not know—but we must confess our disappointment at finding one only of the seven officers who make a lodge present, and he the Junior Deacon. In the absence of the W.M., who was away from home and indisposed, the chair was taken by the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.P.G. Chaplain, and there were present Bros. Emra Holmes, P.P.G. Reg. and P.G.D.C., M.C.; W. Spalding, P.M., Sec., acting J.W.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D., P.G. Chaplain; W. Clarke, P.G.A.D.C., acting S.D.; N. Tracy, P.P.G.S.W., W.M. of the Perfect Friendship Lodge, acting S.W.; Geo. Abbott, S.W. of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 959, &c. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Bowes was raised to the degree of F.C., and Bro. S. Shortridge was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, the ceremony being most impressively performed by Bro. Sanderson, who was ably assisted by his officers. We never saw the Deacon's part more efficiently worked than by Bro. Clarke. During the ceremony that most beautiful and appropriate hymn, "Days and moments quickly flying" (Hymns Ancient and Modern, No. 375) was sung by Bros. Clarke and Abbott, of course leaving out the special reference to our Lord, the admission of which would not have been Masonic, and the effect was very much enhanced by this addition to the ceremony. The historical after-part was given by Bro. Tracy, who, as joint Preceptor with Bro. Sanderson, of the Perfect Ashlar Lodge of Instruction, which works under the banner of this lodge, is peculiarly well qualified to work the whole of the ceremonies in connection with Craft Masonry, and who performed his task on this occasion with his usual ability. The rest of the business being concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment. Bro. Emra Holmes, P.M., occupied the chair, and on the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to with the customary fervour, and in spite of the smallness of their numbers a very pleasant evening was spent. In proposing "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master," the acting W.M. remarked that as the chief of all the rites of Masonry practised in England, the Prince occupied a higher position than had ever been held before by any of his illustrious predecessors. In proposing the toast of "The Officers of Grand Lodge," Bro. Holmes, reminded the brethren that one of them, Lord Skelmersdale, the Deputy Grand Master, was coming down to Norwich, on the 20th November, to instal the Prov. Grand Master of Norfolk, and Lord Hennicker had written to Lord Waveney, the P.G.M. of Suffolk, inviting the brethren of Suffolk to attend, expressing a hope that a large number from Ipswich would be present. He (the W.M.) hoped that some arrangement might become to with the Great Eastern Railway Company, as with other companies, on similar occasions, by which the brethren might be allowed return tickets at single fares, and a special train back from Norwich. He trusted that a large number of the brethren would make a point of attending to do honour to the Norwich brethren, and the D.G.M. of England. Bro. Emra Holmes then proposed "The Prov. Grand Master, and Officers, past and present," which was responded to by Bro. Tracy, P.P.S.G.W., and Bro. Tweed, P.G.C. In proposing "The newly-raised Brother," the W.M. remarked that he trusted the ceremony through which he had gone that evening, and which had been so admirably performed, would make a lasting impression upon his mind. He would wish Bro. Shortridge and others, to remember however, that he had not got to the summit of even Craft Masonry as many supposed, and he should not rest satisfied until he had attained the Royal Arch at least. Brethren seemed to forget that in the Third Degree they only got the substituted secrets of a Master Mason, and that it was not till they reached the Royal Arch the real secrets of Masonry were discovered. He could not understand the apathy which seemed to exist with regard to the Royal Arch. He had taken the trouble to enquire as to the relative members, and he found that whilst there were some 72,000 subscribing members on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England, there were only some 17,000 Royal Arch Masons. Whether this was in consequence of the high fee for exaltation, he did not know, but it was a fact which needed explanation. Bro. Shortridge, in responding, thanked the brethren for drinking his health. It was now twenty-five years ago since he was initiated into Masonry under the Scotch Constitution in Jamaica. He had taken two degrees there, but from various causes had never been able to take the third. As they were aware, there had been some trouble about this (the Grand Lodge of Scotland having given no evidence of his initiation), and he had gone through the ceremonies again. He was very much impressed by what he had seen that night, and he should do his utmost to go forward, and he hoped in time to become a good Mason. Bro. Abbott, who is the possessor of a very fine tenor voice, and Bro. Clarke contributed greatly to the harmony of the evening by their rendering of some very telling songs, "Beautiful Bells," given by Bro. Abbott, being particularly pretty. The Acting W.M. proposed "The Visitors," as a last toast, and took the opportunity of thanking Bro. Tracy for his able assistance that evening. He was a frequent and very welcome visitor at the British Union. Bro. Abbott, he believed had never been amongst them before, but he hoped that as he had now come he would often come again. The British Union Lodge was always very pleased to see visitors, especially such as they had present that evening. He thanked Bro. Abbott for his songs in particular. Bro. Tracy briefly and modestly responded, as also did Bro. Abbott, and after a pleasant social hour the brethren departed. The lodge will not meet again until October.

BURY.—PRINCE EDWIN LODGE (No. 128).—At the monthly meeting of this lodge on Wednesday, the 21st inst., there were present, along with other brethren, Bros. Warwick Wood, W.M.; W. S. Barlow, S.W.; J. Senior, J.W.; Edward Robinson, S.D.; Thomas Ramsbottom jun., J.D.; Thomas Wood, Treasurer; Jos. Wolstenholme, I.G.; Thomas Ramsbottom, sen., Secretary; W. H. Greenhalgh, Tyler; visitor, Bro. G. Brown, I.G. 1392. Mr Samuel Wrigley was balloted for and initiated. Bros. John Pilling and J. Tattersall, F.C., were raised. The working was done in effective style by the W.M. There were two propositions for initiation.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—Summer Festival.—The annual summer festival of this lodge was held on the 16th inst., at Bro. Middlecott's, Greyhound, Dulwich. The W.M. of the lodge, Bro. George Everett, presided, and he was supported by Bros. F. Kent, C.C., I.P.M.; A. Treadwell, S.W.; James Willing, jun., J.W.; Joseph Smith, P.M., Treas.; T. Williams, Sec.; I. Bascall, J.D.; G. Clarke, I.G.; E. White, D.C.; H. N. B. Spink, D.C.; J. McLean, A. Scard, D. Plenderleith, J. Jones, C. Serjeant, J. Willis, J. Douglass, Ralph, Beagle, Manton, Knott, Bennett, Baker, Ford, Keeble, Bird, Bell, Harris, Norris, Jennings, Richards, Ambrose, Gardner, W.M. 1381; Stuart, P.M., 141; Higgins, Morgan, and others. The company, including the ladies, numbered eighty-six, for whom the best arrangements were made by the W.M., the Stewards, and Bro. James Willing, the hon. Secretary of the festival. The weather was atrocious, but, nevertheless, it did not deter the brethren and their fair partners assembling in force. A splendid banquet was provided by Bro. Middlecott, which all the company thoroughly enjoyed, and which was made the more pleasant by the music of a capital band that played during the repast. Grace having been said, the W.M., in opening the proceedings, disclaimed any intention of inflicting upon the company long speeches; they had come there to enjoy themselves, and he desired they should do so to their heart's content; but in all well-regulated assemblages it was customary to go through a certain round of toasts, and this custom he thought a most agreeable one, as it afforded an opportunity of passing round the "cup that cheers," and brought about that conviviality which was so essential to their enjoyment on an occasion of this description. He then proposed "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen." During a long reign her conduct had been such as to endear her to her people, and whether looked upon as a wife, a mother, or a Queen, she had set a bright example to her subjects. The toast was received with acclamation, and "God Save the Queen" was played by the band. The W.M. next gave "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." He said the Prince was a most generous-hearted, true to the backbone Englishman; he had identified himself with all our pursuits, and everything that was dear to us, and the affable and brotherly manner in which he had carried out the proceedings at the Albert Hall on the memorable 28th April, when he was installed Grand Master, would not be easily forgotten by those who had the good fortune to witness it. He was about to visit India, and he had no doubt his journey thither would be fraught with good to both countries, and he wished him God speed. With regard to the Princess of Wales, from the moment she landed on our shores she had become a great favourite with the English people, and her amiability and goodness of heart caused her to be much beloved by all. The toast was received with great cheering, and "God bless the Prince of Wales" was played by the band. Bro. F. Kent then gave "The Health of the W.M." In a kind and very able speech he eulogised his conduct as Master of the Domatic Lodge, and said it needed no further proof of his popularity than to see him surrounded by such a company as the present. He called upon them to receive this toast with three cheers, which was heartily responded to, the band playing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The W.M., in reply, said he was highly gratified at the manner in which the toast, so kindly proposed by his I.P.M., had been received. It was always disagreeable to have to speak of one's self, and he should therefore content himself by saying how highly complimented he felt at having such a company around him; and to the ladies, who had attended so numerous in spite of wind and weather, his thanks were especially due. He then gave "The Domatic Lodge and its Past Masters." The Domatic Lodge was no thing of yesterday, for it was in the eighty-ninth year of its existence, the warrant having been granted in the year 1786 by Earl Antrim, the then Grand Master; during the last few years it had made rapid strides in the Craft, and it was now one of the largest and most influential. All this was due to his predecessors in the office he now had the honour to hold, and he was proud to say they had several officers of Grand Lodge amongst them. With regard to Freemasonry, the question was often asked, What is Freemasonry? He might sum it all up in one bright word—charity. It had its Boys' and Girls' Schools, its Institutions for Old Men and Women, and last, though not least, its Lodge of Benevolence, which dispensed thousands annually to those who, from circumstances of unforeseen calamity and distress, were driven to seek its aid. The Grand Master had truly said our watchwords were Charity and Loyalty. He coupled with the toast the names of P.M.'s Kent, Foulger, and Tims, each of whom responded in suitable terms. The W.M. next gave "The Visitors," coupling with the toast the name of Bro. John Kent, of the Lion and Lamb Lodge, who ably responded. The toast of "The Officers" was next given, the W.M. paying a very high compliment to their efficiency, and stating that his success in his position of Master of the Lodge was mainly due to their kind assistance and support. The toast was received with much applause, the officers being very popular with the lodge, and Bros. Treadwell and Jas. Willing responded. "The Stewards" was then given, coupled with the name of Bro. Scard. The W.M. thanked them very sincerely, and attributed the day's success in a great measure to their kind help. Bro. Scard replied in an excellent speech. Then followed "The Ladies," whom the Master described as "the bright stars that cheer our dreary way." Bro. W. Wray Morgan replied in a happy and appropriate speech, which concluded this part of the day's proceedings. A ball and concert followed, Bro. J. R. Foulger acting as a most efficient M.C., ably assisted by Bro. Scard. Bro. John Ambrose contributed some excellent harmony, and the company separated at an early hour, evidently delighted with the day's pleasures. Cohen's Band gave great satisfaction.

BURY.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 191).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Knowsley Hotel, on Wednesday, the 14th inst. There was a very fair turnout. Among those in attendance were Bros. G. A. O'Neil, W.M.; Samuel Hamer, S.W.; William Balmer, J.W.; Samuel Barley, Sec.; T. W. Probert, S.D.; W. E. Thornley, J.D.; Alfred Hopkinson, I.G.; Hartley Bates, Tyler; Past Masters, Bros. W. O. Walker, Fred. Anderson, P. Prov. G.S.B., E.L.; J. Smethurst, and J. R. Fletcher; Visitors, Bros. Lawrence Booth, P. Prov. G.S.B.; James Barrett, 1012; Alfred Wroe, 42; and Harry Woodcock, 1012. Mr. James Cross was balloted for and duly initiated; Bro. J. C. Yule was Crafted; and Bro. W. Barritt was raised to Third Degree by Bro. Smethurst, the tracing board being explained by Bro. Walker. A very convivial meeting was afterwards held.

LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 206).—This lodge held a special emergency meeting on Wednesday afternoon, the 22nd inst., at half-past two, at the Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-street, E.C., for the purpose of passing Bro. Captain Boyton to the Second Degree in Craft Masonry. It was his earnest wish that he should pass this as well as be raised to the Third Degree in his mother lodge. As may be supposed, he has in his different wanderings up and down the kingdom in relation to his entertainments in connection with his life saving dress, and since it has become known through the pages of the Freemason that he was an Entered Apprentice, been frequently solicited to pass his Second and take his Third Degree in lodges other than his own, but he has sedulously, and, no doubt, becomingly, declined to avail himself of such friendly solicitations. This good brother, therefore sets a very proper example by adhering to that lodge through which he first experienced the light of Freemasonry. Most wrongly has Bro. Captain Boyton been accused in certain quarters of having an undue fondness for mere notoriety. Were this assertion correct there is no doubt he would have availed himself of some of these offers, so flattering as they are to personal vanity. Suffice it to say that Bro. Captain Boyton has endeared himself to the brethren of his lodge, and, consequently, they held themselves ready at any time suitable to the convenience of the candidate to convene another emergency lodge meeting for passing him. The lodge was convened for this unusually early hour to enable the candidate, with the brethren who could accompany him, to attend at the Crown Baths, Kennington Oval, on the occasion of the entertainments to be given in the evening in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Institutions for Boys and Girls. Amongst the officers and brethren present were the following:—Bros. John Waters, W.M.; Allen R. Ramsey; W. H. Godolphin, I.G.; Wm. Ramsey, P.M. and Treasurer, J.W. pro tem; John Ramsey, P.M. and Secretary, S.D. pro tem; Samuel Gamman, I.P.M.; H. Collier, P.M.; John Stewart, P.M.; Alfred Harris, P.M.; E. Burnard, P.M.; Robert Bowman, John Hurrell, and Thomas Seaborn. The visitors were Bros. Captain H. H. Doty, P.M. No. 114; C. H. Smithers, P.M. 901; and R. B. Brown No. 120. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the candidate, after the necessary preliminaries, was passed to the Second Degree. The ceremony was ably performed by Bro. Samuel Gamman, the I.P.M., in that peculiarly quiet and colloquial manner of his, so highly appreciated by the brethren. The working of Bros. William Rumsey and John Rumsey as Junior Warden and Senior Deacon respectively was admirably performed, and nothing could be more accurate. With regard to the officers, who are, by the way, much younger Masons, it may be said that they are apparently following in the footsteps of their leader. The passing having been performed, and there being no other business to transact, the lodge was duly closed. The brethren then congratulated Bro. Captain Boyton upon his having now become a Fellow Craft Freemason, and promised they would (D.V.) hold another emergency meeting at the proper time to raise him to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. Bro. Captain Boyton then expressed his thanks to the brethren for having again called an emergency meeting expressly for him, and for the kind promise they had made to convene a third emergency lodge meeting to raise him to the Third Degree, which degree he was most anxious to take before he left this country for the Continent. He felt very pleased that he had that day made another step in Masonry. Bro. Captain Boyton, with the brethren who could go with him, had then to hurry off to the Crown Baths, Kennington Oval, to carry out the entertainment referred to above, and a report of which appears in another column.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673).—One of the frequent "red letter days" in the history of St. John's Lodge in particular, and of Freemasonry generally, was chronicled on Tuesday, the 6th inst., when the annual installation and pic-nic in connection with the lodge came off with the most pronounced eclat. The weather was exceedingly favourable; the company at the "out" was as happy and congenial as pic-nickers could well be; and the whole of the arrangements, both for business and pleasure, were as complete and satisfactory as care and thoughtfulness could make them. The brethren were summoned to business at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, as early as nine o'clock in the morning, but even at this comparatively early hour there was a large assembly of St. John members and visitors from other lodges. Bro. Martin Corless, the retiring W.M., opened the lodge in due and solemn form, supported by the following strong array of P.M.'s and officers:—Bros. E. Kyle, P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; J. T. Callow, P.M.; J. B. Bunting, P.M.; J. Hocken, P.M.; H. Nelson, P.M.; T. Clark, P.M.; W. T. May, P.M.; J. K. Digges, S.W.; T. Roberts, J.W.; R. Pearson, P.M., Treas.; S. Johnson, P.M., P.G.S., W.L., Sec.; H. Burrows, J.D.; D. Jackson, I.G.; J. Seddon, S.; R. Hulme, O.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members of St. John's who were present comprised:—Bros. L. Hennen, J. W. Grant, J. Kaye, G. E. Bruford, C. Marsh, J. Brackenbury, H. Burns, C. Ganghan, W. Braithwaite, T. Little, G. Adolph, M. Alvarez, A. Olsen, A. H. Anney, A. P. Garcia, R. Quirk, J. F. Hall, J. Harper, A. Trumbel, W. Grey, J. Farmer, J. Heggie, J. Atkinson, T. Falshaw, F. Christensen, &c. The list of visitors embraced the following names:—Bros. E. Pierpoint, P.P.G.S.D., P.M. 680; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; T. B. Myers, S.W. 1182; R. Martin, jun., J.W. 1182; R. Rigby, W.M. 758; Rev. J. O. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C., W.M. 155; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; H. Jackson, W.M. 1393; W. G. Sharpe, I.G. 1086; E. O. Rothwell, W.M. 1356; W. R. Moss, I.G. 758; J. Roberts, 1393; G. H. Read, 441; E. A. Lees, 537; and W. S. Matthews, 220. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, a joining member was ballotted for and elected, and a grant for charitable relief to the widow of a deceased brother was made from the funds of the lodge. These preliminaries being disposed of, the chair was taken by Bro. Henry Nelson, P.M., W.M. 1505, who proceeded to instal Bro. Joseph K. Digges into the chair of K.S. Bro. Nelson has more than once performed the ceremony, and the very masterly style in which he again filled the post of Installing Master was worthy of the highest praise. It was quite a pleasure to hear the ceremony performed in a manner worthy of its beauty and excellence. After a board of Installed Masters had been held, and the brethren on their re-admission, had saluted Bro. Digges as the new W.M. of St. John's Lodge, the following brethren were invested by him as officers of the brave ship for the coming year:—Bros. J. Hocken, P.M., D.C.; M. Corless, I.P.M.; Thomas Roberts, S.W.;

Henry Burrows, J.W.; R. Pearson, P.M., Treas., (re-elected for the tenth or eleventh time); S. Johnson, P.M., P.G.S., W.L., Sec. (re-appointed); D. Jackson, S.D.; W. Brackenbury, J.D.; L. Herman, I.G.; J. Seddon, S.S.; T. Falshaw, J.S.; R. Hulme, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. At the conclusion of the delivery of the charges the W.M. presented a very elegant and valuable P.M.'s jewel, set with a diamond, ruby, and emerald, to Bro. Martin Corless, I.P.M., as a mark of the respect and esteem of the brethren for the admirable manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of the Master's chair in the lodge. Bro. Corless sincerely thanked the brethren for that token of their regard, which he would never forget, but value very highly in years to come. He would, in the future as in the past, work for the best interests of St. John's Lodge. On the motion of Bro. Bunting, P.M., seconded by Bro. Corless, I.P.M., a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. H. Nelson, P.M., and ordered to be recorded on the minutes, in recognition of the very admirable manner in which he had discharged the duties of Installing Master, which must have given satisfaction to every one present. Bro. Nelson briefly thanked the brethren for this unusual vote, and assured them that it had given him pleasure to perform a duty which he was sure every other P.M. in the lodge would have been glad to have undertaken. The lodge was then closed. After partaking of some refreshments the brethren proceeded to the landing stage, where, joining their lady friends, they took steamer for New Ferry, on the Cheshire side of the Mersey, with the view of enjoying the annual pic-nic. The place selected was the Great Eastern Hotel, where every arrangement was made for the comfort of the "outers." A capital banquet was supplied by "mine host," whose catering gave complete satisfaction. The menu carte and toast list combined, bearing photographs of all the officers in front, was a splendid specimen of art, and reflected the greatest credit upon the combined taste of Bro. H. Burrows, J.W., and Bro. W. S. Matthews, 220. After the repast the W.M. proposed the toasts of "The Queen," "Bro. H.R.II. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Pro G.M., Earl Carnarvon, and all other Grand and Provincial Grand Officers, supreme and subordinate," the last toast being acknowledged by Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C., West Lancashire, in a very happy speech. Bro. I.P.M. Corless proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which he responded to in felicitous terms. "The Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge," was acknowledged by Bros. P. M. Thornton, and Roberts, S.W.; "The Visiting Brethren," proposed by the W.M., and was responded to by Bro. J. B. McKenzie, 594, 1182, 1356, &c. After "The Ladies," and "The Tyler's Toast," had been duly honoured, the company adjourned to the green, where dancing was begun, and kept up with great spirit for several hours. Bowling and other games were also in great favour, and the whole proceedings of the long afternoon passed "merry as a marriage bell." The company derived much pleasure from the help in arrangements given by Bro. T. W. May, P.M. Mr. Martin's excellent quadrille band furnished capital dance music. After enjoying one of the most pleasant pic-nics ever held in connection with St. John's Lodge, the party, which numbered about 200, returned to town at a seasonable hour.

THE HIGH CROSS LODGE (No. 754).—The third annual summer banquet and ladies' day, in connection with the High Cross Lodge (No. 754), held at the Seven Sisters' Hotel, Page Green, Tottenham, took place on Thursday, the 8th inst., at the Crown Hotel, Broxbourne. The weather was fine, from noon particularly so, and the company highly enjoyed the drive down. They went in small parties, and some of the carriages attracted marked attention owing to their superior character. The banquet was fixed for three o'clock, and it was ready to time, which does not often happen. Somewhat over fifty ladies and gentlemen sat down to a splendid repast, served in the large saloon in the grounds, the room being tastefully decorated with choice flowers. The dinner was put upon the tables in first-class style. Bro. Benningfield, the obliging host, personally superintending the entire arrangements. The viands were plentiful and of the best quality; the wines of rare vintages; the waiting perfect; and not a single hitch occurred in anything. The house selected is peculiarly adapted for such entertainments, the accommodation being sufficient to secure privacy to parties of almost any dimensions. Bro. John Maller, the W.M. of the lodge, presided, and was supported by Bros. Wells, P.M.; —Cunningham, I.P.M.; —Townsend; S.W.; —Barham, J.W.; —Dance, Sec.; Bros. Burford, Turner, Mundy, Winters, Shepherd, Cockedge, Oddy, Waud, Stevenson, Hobbs, Clements, Fowler, Grindle, Farrin, some visitors from Hertford, &c. The dinner over, and the dessert placed, the president gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was drunk with the usual enthusiasm, the band (which had performed at intervals during the banquet) giving the National Anthem. The next toast was "The M.W.G.M. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," which was also received with the utmost cordiality, the band playing "God Bless the Prince of Wales," the company singing in chorus. This was followed by "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." In connection with this toast, the president referred to the Masonic Festival which had taken place at the Alexandra Palace on the previous day, mentioning that it was the most successful which had ever been held, nearly £13,000 having been collected in subscriptions. This announcement elicited considerable applause. Bro. Townsend proposed "The Visitors," and regretted that it was impossible to invite them on all occasions. Bro. J. Smith acknowledged the toast, and availed himself of the opportunity to observe that he had seldom if ever been present at a meeting which evoked so many pleasurable sensations. The President next gave "The Ladies," for whom Bro. Dance returned thanks in happy terms, apologising for his brevity on the ground that a more attractive "dance" would follow. The remaining toast was "The Stewards and Officers of the High Cross Lodge." Bro. Wells responded; and the company adjourned to the grounds—now in magnificent condition—where croquet and other amusements were indulged in until the ball room was got ready. When this was accomplished dancing began, and was continued until the carefully prepared programme had been exhausted, when "homeward bound" became the watchword. During the evening iced drinks, fruit, tea, coffee, &c., were served; the tastes of all were studied; and, owing to the fineness of the night, the scene was charming. The greatest unanimity prevailed; every person seemed desirous to promote the happiness of the others; and when the hour of separation arrived the feeling was unanimous that, from first to last, a greater success could not have been achieved, and Bro. Maller received general congratulations.

MAIDENHEAD.—SAINT JOHN'S LODGE (No. 795).—This flourishing lodge of the Province of Berks and Bucks held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, the 20th inst., at Bro. William Deacon's, the Ray Mead Hotel, which is beautifully situated on the banks of the River Thames, at Maidenhead, and only requires to be known to be appreciated. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. C. W. Moule, the Worshipful Master, Bro. J. R. Foulger, P.M., took the chair, opened the lodge in the First Degree, when the minutes of the last meeting were read by the excellent Secretary, Bro. H. H. Hodges, P.M. and P. Prov. G.R., and confirmed. Bro. W. Deacon was raised by Bro. Foulger in his well-known true Masonic style, to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, Bros. Alfred Pinto Leite, William Henry Christopher Sharpe and Thomas Slater were passed to the Second Degree. The ballot was then taken for four candidates, which proved to be unanimous, and Bros. Charles Sharphouse Duggan and Thomas Bell being present, they were initiated into the Order according to ancient form, after which the brethren retired to a most recherché banquet, replete with every comfort. Bro. Gammon, P.M., presided at the banquet, and, in his usual genial expressive manner, made every brother feel happy, as is his wont to do. The usual loyal toast was given and duly responded to, and then "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," which was responded to in a genuine Masonic manner, as were also "The Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, the D.G.M., the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." "The Health of the P.G.M., Sir Daniel Gooch," was then given and heartily received, also "The Provincial Grand Officers," to which Bro. P. M. Hodges responded, and said that he and his brother officers always felt proud to meet their P.G. Master, a better working Mason could not be; he worked hard for their Province of Berks and Bucks, and did all that he could for the brethren belonging to the different lodges in that province, and he felt sure that nothing gave him greater pleasure than to see them all prosperous and happy. "The W.M." was next given, coupled with the name of Bro. Foulger, who had so ably performed the duties of the three degrees and who in reply for the W.M., said, brethren, I beg to thank for the kind reception you have given to this toast, coupled with my name, I for one wish our W.M. was here to answer for himself, and I feel that I am only putting forth the feeling of you all when I say that we like to have him in his place, his innate urbanity makes us delighted with his presence, and we have the pleasure of knowing that the Great Architect of the Universe has blessed him with good health, and that he is only kept from us to night by a pressing emergency. As regards myself, if I have performed his duties in the lodge to your satisfaction, I am glad it fell to my lot to do it, I feel proud to find myself a member of St. John's Lodge, and thanks to Bro. Gammon for bringing me here. Our lodge is in a very flourishing state, and in a short time we shall bid fair to be second to none in the province, both as regards numbers and influence, our worthy Bro. P.M. Carr, has done good suit and service by introducing many of his friends, all of whom we feel proud to see amongst us, and glad to have the opportunity of receiving them as brothers. And may the great giver of all good things bless us all with health and prosperity, and enable us to meet in peace and harmony for years to come. Freemasonry is making rapid strides in this province; we find that many of the residents of Maidenhead are anxious to enter the Masonic circle, but their respective avocations prevent them meeting at the time of St. John's Lodge business, consequently are anxious to form a winter lodge, which would enable them to attend in the evening after their business hours. And I sincerely hope for the good of Freemasonry that the petition now in course of preparation to be sent to Grand Lodge will be favourably received. The toast of "The Past Masters" was responded to by Bro. P. M. Carr, who said that St. John's Lodge being his mother lodge he felt great interest in it, and had great pleasure in introducing his personal friends, who he knew from his long knowledge of them would make good Masons, and he hoped to see them all pass the chair in due time; he was but a young Mason himself, but circumstances had favoured him so much that he passed the chair in a little over four years from the time of joining. He thanked the brethren for their kind reception of the toast, and hoped the lodge would continue to prosper. Bro. Bubb, P.M. 180, and Bro. Harfeld, P.M. 185, were the visitors, and in replying to "The Visitors," toast expressed themselves highly gratified with the truly Masonic reception that had been accorded to them by the members of St. John's Lodge, they had never spent a more happy day in Freemasonry. They were delighted with the working of the lodge, and the banquet gave them great comfort. Bro. Bubb said that he would take this opportunity of remarking that he had heard with surprise that a lodge bearing the name of a lady of very high rank in society, was about to invite that lady to take part in one of their lodge banquets. He hoped that it was true, for it would be an innovation that, in his opinion, the Craft generally should protest against, and not allow the allurements of high social rank to tempt the brethren to depart from the rules of ancient custom. No brother could feel more pleasure than he did in meeting the ladies at a Masonic ball, or at our charity festival, for it was a well-known fact that their kindly influence added greatly to the charity funds, and gave éclat to those gatherings, but he could not consent to their being introduced to the regular lodge meetings. This is a great year in the annals of Freemasonry. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has just been installed as Grand Master, and he felt sure that all those who had the honour of witnessing that magnificent sight have had such an impression made upon their minds that time will not efface. We all feel proud to say that England's future King is our Grand Master, his name is music to our ears, and the sound of his gavel sends joy to our hearts. Other princes of Royal blood are now ranged under our banners, and may the Great Architect of the Universe protect them and prosper the Craft. The next toast was "The Officers of the Lodge," responded to by Bro. Hubert Turner, S.W., who thanked the W.M. and brethren for the kind manner in which they had received the toast. He had been a long time a Mason, but had always found a diffidence about taking office, but having made a start, it is his full intention to go on, and he hoped that by strict attention to his duties the brethren would have sufficient confidence in him to place him in a higher position, and should Grand Lodge be pleased to grant the warrant for a new lodge at Maidenhead, he should join it, which would enable him to attend during the winter months, and thus become a good working Mason all the year round. The Tylers' toast brought the proceedings to a close, after one of the most enjoyable meetings that only Masonry can produce.

LIVERPOOL.—EVERTON LODGE (No. 823).—The annual installation meeting of this admirably-conducted and influential lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Wednesday, the 21st inst., and was patronised by a most numerous assembly of the Craft. At the commencement of the business the chair was occupied by Bro. W. Cottrell, W.M., who was supported by Bros. W. Boulton, I.P.M.; J. Holland, P.M.; J. R. Goepel, P.M., P.G.D.C.; T. Shaw, S.W.; W. Wilson, J.W.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treas.; H. Ashmore, S.D.; J. Goodman, J.D.; S. Melikin, I.G.; J. S. Cuthbert, S.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; and about seventy members of the lodge. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. G. Morgan, P.M. 1035; J. Wood, Treas. 1094; J. W. Ballard, W.M. 724; R. H. Evans, I.P.M. 1393; H. Jackson, W.M. 1393; J. Banning, P.P.G.O., C. and W.; J. W. Turley, P.M. 1035; H. Williams, P.M. 249; H. Burrows, J.W. 673; C. Leedham, P.M. 220; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; W. Shortes, P.M. 724; E. Dutch, J.W. 1393; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1264; A. C. Fabien, P.P.G.S.W. Hants, P.M. 487; G. Fowler, S.W. 216; W. Vaughan, S.W. 724; W. T. May, P.M. 673; E. O. C. Rothwell, I.P.M. 1356; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; R. P. France, S.W. 594; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673. S.W. 1505; and C. Leighton, P.M. 1325. Bro. Thomas Shaw, having been presented as the W.M. elect, Bro. W. Cottrell, the retiring W.M., proceeded to install him in the chair, the whole ceremony being performed in an exceedingly able manner. The following brethren were subsequently invested by Bro. Shaw, W.M., as his staff of officers during the coming year: Bros. Wm. Cottrell, I.P.M.; William Wilson, S.W.; John Houlding, J.W.; Wm. J. Lunt, P.M., Treas.; Henry Ashmore, Sec.; John Goodman, S.D.; J. S. Cuthbert, J.D.; P. W. Oglesby, I.G.; Timothy Webster, S.S.; Joseph J. Boyle, J.S.; Thomas H. Carefull, A.S.; Joseph Holland, P.M.D.C.; A. J. Fishlock, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Bro. John White, a highly-respected member of the lodge, tendered his resignation, in consequence of his shortly removing to Canada, and a minute was passed, and ordered to be entered on the books, expressing the regret which the members felt at losing a brother who was so greatly valued and esteemed. Before the closing of the lodge a handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Cottrell, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren at the close of his year of office. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent repast, and during the toast-giving the most cordial wishes were expressed by several speakers for the great prosperity and happiness of Bro. T. Shaw's year of office as W.M. of the Everton Lodge. On the following day (Thursday, the 22nd) about 250 brethren and ladies crossed the river and took rail for Parkgate, where the annual picnic was held. No more pleasant day could have been found, and, as the scene of the festivities was pleasantly situated, the enjoyment was without stint. A first-class banquet was served by Bro. Acton, of the Union Hotel, Parkgate, and his catering at tea was equally worthy of praise. The sources of amusement were very varied, comprising donkey-races, biped races, boating, dancing, games of all sorts, and so on, and the party returned to Liverpool at a seasonable hour, the picnic being universally voted the jolliest and best arranged ever held in connection with the Everton Lodge.

DEPTFORD.—ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Thursday, July 22nd, at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford. There were present Bros. S. O. Lewin, W.M., who opened and closed the lodge; G. Andrews, I.P.M., who passed Bros. J. McDonald, F. Knight, 1326, and C. Graham, 1326; and raised Bros. Grindley and W. Crush, 1326, to the Third Degree, he being one of the best working Masons in the locality. The ceremonies were rendered in a perfect manner. Bros. F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec., acted as S.W.; J. J. Pakes, J.W.; G. T. Limn, I.G.; W. Myatt, P.M.; J. Hawker, P.M.; and a large number of members supported the chair. The large list of visitors, besides those named, were Bros.

Tyler, P.M. 975; D. Steinhauer, 1326; J. V. Watkins, 1326; J. Brogden, 1336; E. Larking, 1336; and others. A letter of condolence was unanimously voted to the widow of a deceased member. The petitions of a distressed provincial brother were recommended by the lodge. Notice of motion to vote five guineas from the lodge funds, to be spent in purchasing the Steward's jewel, to be presented to Bro. G. Andrews, I.P.M., for his services rendered to the lodge as its Steward at the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, was given. The usual number of propositions were received. The lodge was closed. There was not any banquet or refreshment.

PLUMSTEAD.—PATTISON LODGE (No. 913).—The installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. A. Penfold, took place on Thursday, the 1st inst., at the Lord Raglan, Plumstead, Bro. P.M. Knight, P.P.D.C.S. for Kent, and P.M. 1107, being the installing officer. The following were among the brethren and visitors present:—G. Guard Pye, 51, P.S.O.W. Essex; G. F. Busbridge, P.G.A.S. Kent; S. Goddard, P.M. 700; S. Clark, P.M. 706; C. Norman, P.M. 700; H. Bickerstaff, P.M. 700; T. Ward, W.M. 700; and Bros. Butt and G. Crawford, P.M. 700; Waters, Senior and Junior W.M.'s 700; G. Crawford, P.M. 700; J. Carnelly, W.M. 13; C. Hobson, P.M. 700; J. Rowland, P.M. 700; F. Pownell, W.M. 1536; and the following brethren of the lodge:—Past Master C. Compland, P.G.S. Kent; N. Norman, T. Smith, P.P.G.P. Kent; J. Henderson, C. Ellis, H. Tongue, P.P.S.W. Kent; E. Denton, Sec. and P.M. 13; A. Jissup, Treas.; H. Butter, J.W.; W. G. Vincent, S.W.; T. Hayes, S.D.; W. Lloyd, J.D.; J. Chapman, I.G.; R. J. Cook, D.C.; H. Mason, W.S.; J. Jarvis, sen., J. Jarvis, jun., C. Jolly, J. Allen, T. Herne, B. Plaisted, H. Hammond, C. Feast, R. Loneragan, &c. At 1 p.m. the W.M., Bro. McDougal, proceeded to open the lodge in due form and with solemn prayer, and after the usual business matters had been carried, Bro. Capern passed to the Second Degree. The ceremony was most impressively rendered by the W.M. Bro. Knight then proceeded to the installation, and after Bro. Penfold had been properly inducted into the chair of K.S., the brethren saluted in the several degrees. Too much praise cannot be given to Bro. P.M. Knight for the brilliant and effective manner in which he carried out his onerous and solemn duty. The new W.M. then resumed the lodge to the Third Degree, and a unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Knight for the able manner in which he had performed the installation ceremonies, and a valuable P.M.'s jewel was then presented to Bro. McDougal, and which the W.M. pinned upon that brother's breast amid much applause. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to the New Falcon Hotel, Gravesend, where a magnificent banquet was provided for them by Bro. C. Locky, the worthy proprietor. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were then given by the W.M., and heartily responded to by the brethren. The first was "The Queen and the Craft," which was most loyally received. "God Save the Queen," Bro. Farquharson. The next toast was that of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England," and, in putting it, the W.M. said His Royal Highness had, like many other kings and princes, not thought it derogatory to "exchange the sceptre for the trowel," but had set an example which he felt proud to say had been followed by two of his brothers, and he trusted that when his sons grew to manhood they would follow in his footsteps. Song, "God bless the Prince of Wales," (Bro. Farquharson). The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master of England, followed, and in speaking to the toast the W.M. said, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales by appointing the Earl of Carnarvon P.G.M. had done good service to Masonry; he was essentially a man of business, and the office could not have been placed in better hands. Song, "I love my love" (Miss Alice Farquharson). The next toast was that of "Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand officers." Song, "And that's the sailor's way" (Bro. Farquharson). The W.M. then gave "The Provincial Grand Master of Kent, Lord Skelmersdale," and in so doing, said he had the pleasure and the honour of seeing his lordship at the P.G. Lodge, and all those who had been there would bear testimony to the kind and genial manner in which his lordship always carried out the duties of his exalted position, and if anything should ever happen to cause him (Lord Skelmersdale) to sever his connection with Freemasonry it would be a sad blow for Kent. Song, "Tell me, Mary, how to woo thee" (Bro. Sherman). The next toast was that of "The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. East, and the rest of the Grand Officers." Duet "The Masonic Lesson," Bro. and Miss Farquharson. Bro. Busbridge, D.P.G. Secretary for Kent, in reply, said he felt unequal to the task of adequately expressing his thanks for their kindness to himself and the colleagues, but as the Senior P.G. Officer present he felt it his duty to say a few words upon the matter. He felt that one of the greatest things in Masonry necessary to bind them together was unity, unity in all things, in heart and in hand, and that there should be that unity it was necessary that there should be leaders, and he felt proud to think that they had shown their respect and confidence in their leaders, the Provincial Grand Officer of Kent. As P.P. Scribe, he thanked them for that confidence. He once heard a lady sing a song about "buying a lute and buying a lyre," but he said buy something that was good and noble, and then they would be following out the true principles of Masonry. He thanked them heartily for their toast. Song, "The little fat grey man," (Bro. Farquharson). Bro. P.M. McDougal then as I.M.P.M., in eloquent terms proposed "The Health of the W.M. Bro. Penfold." He said it was the most important toast of the evening, and no one who had seen the able manner in which the various duties appertaining to those offices were filled by Bro. Penfold during his official career in the lodge, but must own with him that a better choice could not have been made for the position of W.M., and that under his guidance the lodge would not lose an atom of its high prestige. He therefore with great pleasure proposed his health and trusted that under Bro. Penfold the lodge would go on and flourish ten-fold. The toast was drunk most enthusiastically. Song, "The pride of the Wilderness," (Miss Farquharson). The W.M. in reply said it was one of the most difficult he had yet undertaken to reply to their kind expressions of brotherly love and good feeling towards him; it was much easier to propose a toast than to reply to one so flattering as the one just coupled with his name. So far as the success of the lodge was concerned it must be remembered that it was only by the consent of the governed that they could be governed, and they might rest assured that, with their consent and assistance, nothing should be left undone that could be done by him for the continued success and prosperity of the Pattison Lodge. Duet, "The Gipsy Countess" (Bros. C. Hobson and C. Norman, P.M.'s). The next toast was that of "The P.M.'s of and belonging to the Pattison Lodge," and in giving it the W.M. spoke with great sorrow of the loss of their late Bro., P. M. Graden, who, he trusted, had gone to that Grand Lodge above, where the G.A.O.T.U. lived and reigned for ever. But, here were other Past Masters present, and among them the name of P. M. Ellis would, he felt sure, be ever welcome. It had been said by an eminent judge, "Give your judgment but don't give your reason," but he would give his reason for coupling P. M. Ellis's name with the toast, and that was because P. M. Ellis was the one who gave him the first step upon the ladder of Freemasonry. Song, "Tom, the Tinker" (Bro. Farquharson). P. M. Ellis, in response, said as the W.M. had coupled his name with the toast, and as he believed it was the duty of every soldier to obey the commands of his commanding officer, so he felt it his duty to rise and respond to the command of their W.M., who was commanding officer to-night. The W.M. had spoken of one who was absent that night, whose loss they all sincerely regretted, and had truly said of him, that he was "a true man and an honest Mason." They had heard his name (the speaker) mentioned by the W.M. as the one who had introduced him, the W.M., into the fold of Masonry, and he looked upon it as an honour to have introduced one who he felt sure in his new position, as he had throughout his whole career, would be an honour and a credit to the lodge. There were many whose names were honoured in Masonry who had come from far to give éclat to the meeting, and he was happy to see that brethren could "gather together in unity and dwell together in peace." He hoped they had all done justice to the good things provided, and that "good digestion might wait on appetite." He spoke of the respect in which the lodge was held in the province of Kent, and felt proud to see so many there from other provinces, and concluded an eloquent speech by saying that if they looked upon the past with pleasure they certainly could look upon the present with delight. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. Pye, S.O.W. for Essex, who eloquently responded, and as it was now time to depart to catch the train for London the "Tyler's" toast concluded a most successful and enjoyable day. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Matthew Sherwin, and the fine singing of Bro. and Miss Farquharson was much admired and enjoyed.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—The regular monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street, Derby, on Wednesday, the 7th of July. Bro. Henry T. Bobart, P.P.G.S.B., W.M., presided, and the brethren present were F. Iliffe, I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M. Treas.; J. Worsnop, P.M. Sec.; J. H. Biggs, as S.D.; J. Gadsby, J.D.; G. Pipes, D. of C.; J. Heathcote, I.G.; W. Stone, O.G.; W. B. Hextall, F. Rippon, T. H. Hepworth, Edgar Taylor, J. O. Manton, W. Butterfield, Henry Mills, A. A. Newham, Jon. Whales, J. Parkins, jun. Visitors: Edwin Woolfe, Lodge of Israel 1474; Sharpe, Goderich Lodge 1211; Whitton, Arboretum Lodge 731. The lodge was opened in the First Degree; the minutes of the last lodge were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Newham was called upon by the W.M. to show his proficiency in the former degree, and having satisfied the brethren, was entrusted and he then retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bro. Newham was admitted and raised to the Third or Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by the W.M. The lodge was closed in the Third Degree, and afterward in the Second Degree. The W.M. rose for the first, second, and third time, and nothing further offering, he closed the lodge according to ancient custom and with solemn prayer, and it was adjourned until Wednesday, the 4th August.

FOREST HILL.—WEST KENT LODGE (No. 1297).—On Saturday the 24th inst., a meeting of this lodge was held at the Forest Hill Hotel, when the W.M., Bro. John Allen, admitted into Masonry a fellow journalist, Mr. C. Basil Cooke, son of Bro. C. J. Cooke, P.P.G.W. of Kent. So many brethren being on their annual trips the attendance was not very large, but the lodge was favoured with a visit from a foreign brother, Herr Ritz, of the Lodge Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm zum Eintracht, of Bremen, who was introduced by Bro. Warren, the respected Treasurer. While partaking of refreshment after labour, the W.M. proposed "The Health of Bro. Ritz," in cordial terms, taking as the key-note of his speech the word "Eintracht" (Harmony), and hoping that that estimable and particularly Masonic sentiment might more and more pervade the Craft, and that it would be fostered by a visit paid them that evening. Bro. Ritz, in reply, expressed his acknowledgments of the fraternal reception he had met with, and said he should carry to his northern home a vivid recollection of the evening spent at Forest Hill. He should not fail to report to his own particular brethren, how well the spirit of Masonic friendship was maintained in this country.

LIVERPOOL.—NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 1264).—The members of this most prosperous and influential lodge, which meets at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, held their annual picnic on Wednesday, the 21st inst., and no more charming place could possibly have been selected for the day's "out" than that on which the choice of the selecting parties fell. Hollingworth Lake, delightfully nestling in a circle of hills, is situate a short distance from Littleborough, a few miles from Rochdale; and although hitherto little known to pleasure seekers from Liverpool it is not likely to remain so, if the experience of the members of the Neptune Lodge is to be taken as a test. The party, numbering about sixty ladies and brethren, started from the Liverpool Exchange Station shortly after nine o'clock, and after a pleasant journey, occupying about an hour and a half, they safely arrived at the pleasant little station of Littleborough, from whence they proceeded to the scene of the day's picnic. Anything more charming than the situation of Hollingworth Lake, with its picturesque surroundings, could hardly be imagined, and the unanimous opinion of the party was that the selection on the part of Bro. P. B. Gee, who was for the second time unanimously elected the W.M. of the "Neptune" a short time ago, was one of the happiest which could have been made. In this selection he was assisted by Bro. J. Healing, P.M., Treasurer, both of whom deserve great praise for their choice and general arrangements. Shortly after arriving at the Fisherman's Inn, the party sat down to an excellent dinner, provided by Bro. Yarwood, the host, in a manner which left nothing whatever to be desired. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to with enthusiasm, and "The Health of Bro. P. B. Gee, W.M.," given by Bro. Healing, P.M., was received with special cordiality, his excellent services to the lodge being pointedly referred to. Bro. Gee, in responding, alluded to the pleasure which it gave him to visit that charming locality, and expressed a hope that every one present would enjoy the excursion to a place which they had not hitherto visited. Speeches being finished, the party took steamer for the opposite side of the lake, to the Lake Hotel, of which Bro. Yarwood is also the landlord, and here ample amusements were provided for almost every taste. Some took to boating on the picturesque lake, others enjoyed dancing to an excellent band, while a number of the brethren enjoyed a quiet game of bowls. The surrounding objects of interest are numerous, including an old Roman road, "Robin Hood's Bed," and many other spots which must possess the greatest interest to antiquarians; while the grounds of the hotel are so extensive and well laid out as to afford ample means of enjoyment to every one who is not disposed to find pleasure in antiquities. Tea was served at the Fisherman's Inn about half-past six o'clock, and shortly after eight o'clock the ladies and brethren left Smithy Bridge Station, arriving in Liverpool at a quarter to eleven o'clock. The whole of the arrangements were of the most satisfactory kind, the W.M., P.M. Healing, and all the officers striving to make everything as pleasant as possible; and the general opinion at the close of the long day of pleasure was that no more pleasant picnic has ever been held in connection with the Neptune Lodge. There were one or two slight showers in the early part of the day, but the afternoon and evening were bright and genial, making the "out" all the more enjoyable.

HAMPTON.—LEBANON LODGE (No. 1326).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton, on Saturday, July 17th. Bro. W. Hammond, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, opened the lodge. Ballots and minutes were unanimous. Bro. Dr. T. Goldsbro, P.P.G.S.W., North Wales, P.M., took the chair. He initiated Messrs. W. A. Taylor, J. Greenwood, and A. Rolington. Bro. W. Hammond, W.M., installed Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex as W.M. The officers are Bro. E. Gilbert, S.W.; C. W. Fox, J.W.; S. Wickens, P.M. Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Sec.; R. W. Williams, S.D.; J. Hammond, P.M., J.D.; J. W. Baldwin, I.G.; J. B. Shackleton, Organist; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; H. Gloster, D.C.; H. Cutress, W.S.; J. G. Donald, Steward; J. Gilbert, Tyler. The addresses were delivered by Bros. F. Binckes, F. Walters, and J. Terry, for which they each received a vote of thanks. A similar compliment was paid to Bro. Dr. T. Goldsbro for his doing the Initiations. Also to Bro. F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. Secretary, for his efficient services as Secretary, and his donations during the past year to the lodge of £10 12s. 6d. In lieu of a ten guinea Past Master's Jewel, was voted unanimously to Bro. William Hammond, P.G. Steward Middlesex, I.P.M., a Life Governorship of the Boys' School, for his services rendered to the lodge as a Founder, and for work done during his two years of Mastership. Bros. F. Binckes and J. Terry, the Secretaries of the Masonic Institutions, were unanimously elected Honorary Members of the lodge. A joining member and several candidates for initiation were proposed to become members of this lodge. A notice of motion to vote twenty guineas to the Boys' School in the name of the W.M. for the time being, so as to secure in perpetuity a Life Governorship of that Charity. The lodge was closed. The visitors were Bros. W. B. Hughes, P.P.G.S.W. North Wales, &c., P.M., M.P. for Carnarvon Burghs; R. Watts, 201; W. Smeed, P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, &c.; T. C. Walls, I.G. 141, &c., &c. The banquet and dessert followed.

LIVERPOOL.—DE GREY AND RIPON LODGE (No. 1356).—A four years' existence of this lodge has proved beyond doubt the earnestness and indefatigable spirit which characterized its founders, as it has strengthened each successive year until it has now become, perhaps, the strongest in West Lancashire. The success thus attained is highly creditable to all who have had a share in the organization and working of the lodge, and as there is now in the chair a brother who is extremely popular with every section of the brethren, there is every reason to suppose that the full flood of prosperity will continue without abatement. The annual installation meeting of the lodge was held at 80, North Hill-street, Toxteth-Park, Liverpool, on Wednesday afternoon, the 14th inst., where and when there was a large gathering of members and visitors. The lodge was opened shortly before five o'clock by Bro. E. O. C. Rothwell, the retiring W.M., who was supported by the after-mentioned officers and members:—Bros. T. Evans, I.P.M.; S. E. Ibbis, P.P.G.S.B., West Lancashire, P.M.; B. B. Marson, P.M.; A. Winkup, P.M.; J. Bell, S.W.; T. Horne, J.W.; J. Ireland, Treas.; T. Nickson, S.D.; J. W. Williams, J.D.; E. Costigan, I.G.; R. Roberts, S.; A. Woolrich, S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; P.M. Larsen, Tyler; J. W. Johnson, J. S. Macbeth, J. Kenwright, W. Fletcher, C. Arden, W. Coates, H. Pritchard, J. Keet, H. Crowther, P. Yaust, J. R. Grant, J. Neill, J. Winram, T. Mair, W. S. Corris, J. Gilchrist, A. Gilchrist, R. Leigh, T. Maudsley, T. Bisson, F. Williams, R. Fairclough, P. S. Johnson, W. H. Thompson, H. Gribbin, G. Parry, J. B. MacKenzie, W. Jerman, T. Lloyd, W. Morris, W. Parrington, W. McVicker, W. Cave, J. Griffiths, E. George, J. J. Edwards, W. Griffiths, T. Laing. The visitors' list included the names of Bros. R. Pearson, P.M., Treas. 673; J. F. Hall, 673; R. Cain, P.M. 724; M. Corless, I.P.M. 673; W. Pughle, P.M. 1182; P. F. Buck, 673; G. Maxwell, S. 594; T. Clark, P.M. 673; A. Davies, P.M., 1264; N. Burrows, J.W. 673; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673, S.W. 1505; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; R. Ing, P.M. 594; J. Holland, P.M. 823; A. D. Neskeith, 1182; E. Friend, P.M. 1013, 1289, P.P.J.G.D. Cheshire; R. W. Gow, 823; T. B. Myers, S.W. 1182; J. Edginton, W.M. 1182; C. Leighton, P.M. 1325; R. Douglass, 667; A. Morrison, 594, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was subsequently performed. Bro. T. Evans, P.M., then took the chair, and proceeded to install Bro. Joseph Bell as the W.M. of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge for the ensuing year. The whole of the work in connection with the impressive installation ceremony was performed by Bro. Evans, in a manner which left nothing to be desired, and reflected the highest credit upon his Masonic ability and competence. Bro. J. Bell, W.M., installed the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. E. O. C. Rothwell, I.P.M.; T. Evans, P.M., D.C.; T. Horne, S.W.; T. Nickson, J.W.; J. Ireland, Treasurer (re-elected); Jos. Jones, Secretary (re-appointed); W. G. Veale, Org.; J. W. Williams, S.D.; E. Costigan, J.D.; R. Roberts, I.G.; A. Woolrich, S.S.; C. Arden, J.S.; and P. M. Larsen, Tyler. "Hearty good wishes" were given to the W.M. from all the lodges represented. There were no fewer than six propositions for initiation. A proposition by Bro. Marson, P.M., seconded by Bro. Bell, W.M., that a Royal Arch Chapter should be established in connection with the lodge, was carried unanimously, and by acclamation. The S.W. proposed that a vote of thanks should be given to Bro. T. Evans, P.M., for the admirable manner in which he had performed the installation ceremony that day. The W.M. seconded the motion, and said the way in which it had been performed had left an impression on his mind which would not soon be effaced. The motion having been unanimously carried, Bro. Evans briefly thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said the vote which had been passed amply rewarded him for his labour. The lodge having been closed, the brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent supper provided by Bro. E. George. After the repast the W.M. gave briefly the toasts of "The Queen," "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., and the rest of the Royal Family," and "Our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate." Bro. E. O. C. Rothwell, I.P.M., then said the gavel had been placed in his hands, and it gave him very great pleasure to propose the toast of "The Worshipful Master." He was certain it would be received with the enthusiasm which it well deserved. All who had watched Bro. Bell's career would be well pleased to see him occupy the honourable position which he now did, and every one must wish that he might long bespiced to adorn the Order to which he belonged. The W.M. said he could hardly find words to express the gratitude he felt for the eulogistic manner in which his health had been proposed, and the enthusiastic manner in which it had been responded to. If his humble efforts during his year of office could in any way justify their good opinion he would use them to the utmost. His endeavour would be to further the best interests of the lodge, and promote the harmony and good fellowship of every member. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. next gave "The Health of the I.P.M.," to which Bro. Rothwell responded. "The Past Masters" was acknowledged by Bro. Marson, P.M., and Bro. Evans, P.M., the latter also acknowledging "The Installing Master." "The Officers" was responded to by Bro. T. Horne, S.W., and "The Newly Initiated Brethren" and "The Visitors" by Bro. Bromley and Bro. C. Leighton, P.M. 1325, respectively. The pleasant proceedings, which closed with the "Tyler's Toast," were greatly enlivened by capital songs given by Bros. Roberts, Veale, Maxwell, and others. The annual picnic of the members of the lodge took place on the following day (Thursday), and proved, as usual, one of the most pleasant and enjoyable Masonic "outs" of the season. The weather in the early part of morning was very threatening, but fortunately, although there was little or no sunshine to give brightness to the run into the country, the rain kept off the whole of the day. Arrangements were made with the "Cheshire Lines" for the conveyance of the party to Knutsford, the scene of the day's festivities, and a little before eleven o'clock about 160 started by "special" from the Central Station. The railway arrangements were admirable, and were in striking contrast to those of the Lancashire and Yorkshire a few weeks ago. On arriving at their destination, the large party at once proceeded to the Royal George, where an excellent banquet was served to the travellers, as dining under canvas outside was out of the question, owing to the wet grass. After doing full justice to the "creature comforts," the loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M. in happy terms and cordially responded to. Bro. Rothwell, I.P.M., then gave "The Health of the Worshipful Master," and referred to the popularity which he enjoyed and the support which he was sure to get during his year of office. Bro. Bell, W.M., in response, thanked the ladies and brethren for the enthusiasm of their reception of the toast, and assured them that he would endeavour to earn their good opinion by his future conduct. The W.M. then presented a very massive P.M.'s jewel, set with three splendid diamonds to Bro. E. O. C. Rothwell, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem of the De Grey and Ripon members. Bro. Rothwell acknowledged the gift in sensible terms. The W.M. then gave "The Officers of the Lodge," to which Bro. Horne, S.W., and Bro. Nickson, J.W., responded, "The Ladies," given by Bro. B. B. Marson, P.M., was responded to by Bro. Thorn, P.M. 1182. The large party then "made tracts" for viewing some of the "lions" of Knutsford, and they were considerably assisted in their sight-seeing by an admirably executed sketch of the chief points of interest, which had been kindly prepared by Bro. P.M. Marson. The "guide" was so full of interesting points as to be worth quoting in extenso. Bro. Marson says—Knutsford is so celebrated and important a little town, as to be considered by many the "capital" of North Cheshire. It possesses a handsome and convenient railway station, and the entrance into the town by the Governor's House, and Town Hall, is both striking and pleasing to the eye. Here, on the 18th October, 1832, stayed the Princess Victoria and the Duchess of Kent (the present Queen and her mother) whilst journeying from Chester to Chatsworth, and it was then that the name of the "George and Dragon Hotel" was altered to the "Royal George," which it now bears, to commemorate in some measure that never-to-be-forgotten visit. To our lady friends it may be especially interesting to know that, whenever a wedding of more than ordinary importance takes place in this good old town, it is usual for every householder to work upon the ground in front of his dwelling some pretty complimentary device or motto, in coloured sands, selected for that purpose, so that the streets and roadways may present one continuous fretwork. Pleasant walks abound in this beautiful part of Cheshire, and perhaps one of the most interesting in the immediate neighbourhood is through the fields to the site of the Old Church, the antiquity of which may be best judged from the fact that the Tower was rebuilt in the reign of King Henry VIII., and in the graveyard will be found the ancient burial-place of the Leghs of Norbury Booths, who were its patrons. Many handsome and palatial residences lay within easy access of the town. Amongst the chief of them may be mentioned—Toft Hall, with its stately avenue of Elms stretching out in triple rows, one mile to the south of Knutsford; Over-Peover Hall, about three miles distant also to the south; Tabley, about a mile to the westward, all of which possess noble parks, and last, although by no means least, Tatton Hall, the seat of Lord Egerton, with its magnificent gardens and grounds. This park, the use of which his lordship kindly offered to the members of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge for the purpose of holding their annual picnic, is only some few minutes' walk from the railway station; it is upwards of ten miles in circumference, and contains nearly 2200 acres of land, about 400 of which are covered by woods and plantations, whilst nearly 80 are by water. The committee earnestly hoped in selecting this spot for an excursion that those ladies and brethren who avail themselves of this opportunity may derive as much pleasure from the trip as they feel Lord Egerton, himself experiences in offering his grounds for their use and recreation. They also beg to mention that Bro. Lord de Tabley, P.G.M. of Cheshire, has kindly forwarded to Bro. Josh. Bell, the W.M. elect of 1356, a card of admission for himself and party to visit the Chapel Grounds, and Old Hall at Nether Tabley, upon the 15th instant, which are well worthy of inspection. The party fully availed themselves of the opportunities afforded of visiting the charming sights, and a most delightful afternoon was spent. Tea having been provided for the ladies, and dancing kept up with spirit for a short time in the ball-room of the hotel, the party started on the "return voyage" at a quarter to nine o'clock, reaching Liverpool about 10.30.

SOUTHALL.—ACACIA LODGE (No. 1309).—On Tuesday, June 29th, the installation meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the Prince Alfred Hotel, Southall. Bro. F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary, opened the lodge. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The all important event of the meeting was instantly proceeded with, which was the installation of Bro. Charles Horsley, P.P.G. Reg. Middlesex, P.M. of numerous lodges, the well-known popular and highly esteemed brother, who had, at a previous meeting been unanimously elected to the Solomon chair. He being presented by a distinguished P.M. as W.M. to Bro. F. Walters, that old veteran, in a painstaking, earnest manner, duly installed Bro. C. Horsley, W.M., who appointed as his officers Bros. C. A. Ferrier, S.W.; C. G. Rushworth, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. Treasurer; H. Kenward, Secretary; J. W. George, S.D.; C. G. C. Stalu, J.D.; W. H. Butterfield, I.G.; H. E. A. D'Arcy, D.C.; J. A. Murray, W.S.; W. Y. Laing, P.M., Tyler. The customary addresses were then delivered. Bro. C. Horsley, although suffering from ill-health, in a masterly manner cleared off some of the large amount of work which was on the agenda paper. He initiated Mr. Carl Waldemer Sjöberg into Freemasonry; passed Bros. Revd. T. W. Cave, J. Scott, and E. J. Tickner to the Second Degree, and raised Bros. Revd. J. Morgan and E. Madders to the Third Degree. The work was beautifully and impressively rendered. A cordial vote of thanks was given to Bro. F. Walters, P.G.R. Middlesex, P.M. Treasurer, for his many services rendered to the lodge as its founder, P.M., and Secretary, and the same to be entered on the lodge minute book. Bro. F. Walters, in returning thanks for this kind vote, improved the opportunity by appealing as their Steward for the Boys' School, for aid to the funds of that Institution. He stated his list to be sixty guineas. Bro. C. G. Rushworth, J.W., was elected Steward for the Benevolent in 1876. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Banquet and dessert followed. The long list of visitors included Bros. H. Keeble, P.M., 1275-73; James Robins, 452; J. C. Allen, 4; Major Shadwell Clarke, P.M., 1383, &c.; George Clarke, P.P.G.S.W. Devon, P.M., 263; A. Stead, 1297; H. Young, P.G.S., P.M., 60, &c. &c.

NEWTON ABBOT.—MORNING STAR LODGE (No. 1396).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Room on Monday, the 12th July. The chair was taken by Bro. Francis J. Pratt, W.M., who was supported by the following brethren:—W. E. Lambie, I.P.M.; W. R. King, acting S.W.; T. B. Purnell, J.W.; J. J. Drake, P.M., Treas.; Wm. Uglov, Sec.; W. L. Pope, D. D. Chaplain, P.P.G.C.; W. B. Vennings, Steward; James Barkell, I.G.; A. Williams, Wm. Taylor, J. Weeks, Tyler. Visitors:—Bros. Thomas Taylor, P.M. 318, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Stroud Short, P.M. 1443. The lodge was opened in due and ancient form. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. Proposed by Bro. J. J. Drake, P.M., and seconded by the W.M., that Bro. William Lambie, P.M., be requested to act again as Almoner of the lodge for the year ensuing. Proposed by Bro. J. J. Drake, P.M., and seconded by Bro. W. E. Lambie, I.P.M., that the W.M. be appointed to act as representative of the lodge at the Committee of Petitions. In pursuance of notice, a motion given by Bro. J. J. Drake, P.M., which was supported by the W.M., the sum of ten guineas was agreed to be given to the Royal Masonic Institution for Orphan Boys. Several minor matters were discussed, which terminated the business. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form with solemn prayer.

Royal Arch.

HAMPTON.—LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 1326).—The election and installation meeting of this chapter was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Thames-street, Hampton, on Saturday, July, 17th. The chapter was opened by Comps. F. Walters, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; S. Wickens, H.; W. Hammond, J. The minutes, ballots, and all the elections of officers were unanimous. Comp. W. Smeed, P.Z., exalted W. Mitchell, 1326. He installed S. Wickens, M.E.Z., inducted W. Hammond, H.; and H. A. Dubois, J. The officers are J. Hammond, Treas.; F. Walters, S.E.; E. Hopwood, S.N.; E. Gilbert, P.S.; Rev. P.M. Holden, First A.S. and Chaplain; W. Mitchell, Second A.S.; J. Wallis, D.C.; H. Potter, W.S. A ten guinea P.Z.'s jewel was unanimously voted from the chapter funds to Comp. J. T. Moss, I.P.Z., for his services rendered to the chapter. Several candidates were proposed for exaltation. The chapter was closed. Banquet and dessert followed. The visitors were Comps. W. Smeed, P.Z.; R. Watts, P.Z.; F. Binckes, P.Z.; J. Terry, P.Z.; R. W. Williams, H. J. Green, and others.

Mark Masonry.

IPSWICH.—ALBERT VICTOR LODGE.—A lodge of emergency was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, the 12th inst. Present—Bros. Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.G. Chap.; C. T. Townsend, P.G.D.; Emra Holmes, P.G. Insp. of Wks., acting J.O.; George Creswell, W.M.; Geo. Abbott, S.W.; W. Clarke, J.W.; J. Rankin, M.O.; E. J. Robertson, P.M., acting S.O.; W. T. Westgate, P.M., M.C., &c. The ballot having been taken, and proving unanimous in their favour, Bros. Oliver Cromwell Diaper, of the St. Luke's Lodge; J. Ernie, of the Prince of Wales; and Henry Edwards, of the British Union Lodge, were introduced under the able guidance of Bro. Westgate, and were severally obligated, and advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master, the ceremonies being performed with great ability by Bro. Sanderson, without doubt the ablest Mason in Suffolk. The lodge having been closed, the brethren retired to supper, when one of the pleasantest evenings we have known was spent, interspersed as the toasts were by song and recitation, in which Bro. Abbott, by the way, excelled himself as a vocalist. We have rarely heard a more beautiful tenor voice than his, and the rendering of "Oft in the still night" and the "Irish Emigrant" was really a treat. The Masons of Ipswich boast some very good singers—but none who can excel our talented brother. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Newly Advanced Brethren," remarked that he understood that one of them, Bro. Edwards, was about to emigrate to Australia, and he wished him a pleasant voyage, and prosperity at the end of it. The brethren all returned thanks, and spoke very highly of the ceremony they had gone through, and Bro. Edwards cordially expressed his acknowledgments of the W.M.'s good wishes. The officers wore, for the first time, the handsome new collars, presented by several brethren, which came from the manufactory of Bro. George Kenning, and were very much admired.

HAVANT.—CARNARVON LODGE (No. 62).—The above lodge met on Tuesday, the 20th July last, at the Town Hall. Bros. T. U. Price, W.M.; J. N. Hillman, S.W.; J. Harrison, J.W.; H. R. Trigg, P.M., Sec., and Purnell, P.M.; Clarke, and Lemmon. Bro. C. H. Liddell, was advanced to the degree of Mark Master. Bro. P.M. Hillman then brought on his motion, of which he had given notice at the previous lodge, "That this lodge exceedingly regrets that the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters should be a party to a treaty for expelling its own members who may belong to Masonic Degrees that may not be approved of by the other parties to the treaty," but after some discussion, and several of the brethren being compelled to leave by train, the further consideration of the matter was postponed till the next lodge meeting.

Royal Order of Scotland.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE.
The following is the complete list of the Provincial Grand Officers invested at the meeting on the 5th July, at Manchester:—
W. Romaine Callender, M.P. Prov. G. Master.
C. Fitzgerald Matier D. Prov. G.M.
John Sutcliffe Prov. G.S.W.
Thos. Perkinson Prov. G.J.W.

James E. Hall Prov. G. Steward
Johannes Hoffgaard Prov. G.G.
Two candidates were received into the Order, Bros. Lees and W. Marwood, who were afterwards promoted to the Knighthood of R.S.Y.C.S.

The ceremony was exceedingly well rendered by Bro. Matier, D.P.G.M., and the retiring Wardens, Bros. Brockbank and Entwisle, assisted by Bros. Smith and Hall.

After the ceremony, the Knights Companions dined together under the presidency of the Prov. Grand Master.

RUNCORN.—ELLSMERE LODGE (No. 758).—The regular monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Runcorn, on Wednesday, July 14th. The officers present were Bros. Robert Rigby, W.M.; Edward Aston, S.W.; James Warburton, J.W.; William Garnet, S.D.; Charles Gerrard, J.D.; J. Fothergill, P.M.; William Wass, I.G.; George Purver, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form at 6.30, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed, when the W.M. informed the members that Bro. Giles was a candidate for being raised, who, after giving satisfactory proofs of his efficiency in the former degrees, was entrusted and retired. During his absence the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, after which Bro. Giles was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason in a manner reflecting the highest possible credit on the W.M. The working tools, as well as the tracing board, were also lucidly explained by him, and the charge delivered with effect and impression. The lodge was lowered to the First Degree, when the W.M. informed the brethren that Mr. Couth was a candidate for initiation. The ballot was taken and was unanimously accepted. The ceremony was performed with the usual ability. Other important business being done, the lodge closed at 9 o'clock.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—WALTON CONCLAVE (No. 97).—The regular meeting of this conclave was held in St. Lawrence's School-room, Kirkdale, on Monday, the 12th inst. The conclave was opened in imperial and solemn form by Em. Sir Knt. Jesse Banning, M.P.S. The minutes of the last convocation being read and confirmed, the ballot was then taken for Bro. Walter Milner, which proving in his favour, and he being presented, was duly installed as a Knight of this illustrious Order. Em. Sir Knt. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, V.E., was unanimously elected as M.P.S.; Sir Knt. W. Quayle, as V.E.; and Em. Sir Knt. J. C. Lunt, P.S., as Treasurer for the ensuing year. The M.P.S. then, on behalf of the conclave, presented an elegant Past Sovereign's jewel to Em. Sir Knt. J. C. Lunt, as a testimonial of their esteem, and for his untiring energy and zeal for the welfare of the conclave. The conclave was then closed, and a sanctuary of the K.H.S. was solemnly opened by the Right Rev. Prelate, Em. Sir Knt. Jesse Banning, Prov. Grand G.S.V., West Lancashire; Em. Sir Knt. J. C. Lunt, Prov. Grand T.B., W.L., Prior; Sir Knt. Quayle, Pro. Grand H., Senl; Sir Knt. Rev. Dr. Hyde, Sub. P.; Sir Knt. Hanmer, C. of Gds. The following approved candidates being in attendance, were duly received as Knights of this most interesting degree, the ceremonies being most efficiently rendered by the several officers—Sir Knts. Henry Gribbin, John Armstrong, Walter Milner, and Michael Williamson—they being the first candidates admitted since the Patriarchal Council of the Order visited this province.

PERTH DISTRICT GRAND LODGE (EAST).

By appointment with Lord Kinnaird, a deputation from Socon and Perth No. 3, St. Andrew's No. 74, and Royal Arch No. 122, met his lordship, who is Grand Master of the district, at the Salutation Hotel, on the 1st inst., to consult as to the propriety of resuscitating the lodge, which has been in abeyance for several years. Some supervision by officers appointed for that purpose, in order to revise the work of the various lodges, and to stimulate officers of lodges to a better style of work, was felt for a long time to be much needed. The following officers were nominated by the R.W. Grand Master. Bros. Morrison, of Murie, Depute G.M.; Dr. Wm. Cowen, of Perth, Substitute G.M.; Rev. Bro. Carmichael, of Perth, G. Chaplain; Sir P. Murray Thrieland, of Fingask, S.G.W.; Colonel Williamson, of Lawers, J.G.W.; Bro. R. Mitchell, of Perth, Secretary. It was intimated to the brethren by the R.W.G.M., that as soon as he had heard from several of those so nominated of their acceptance of office, he would summon the lodge together to elect the remaining officers and transact other business. The brethren then separated.

PERTH.—SOCON AND PERTH (No. 3).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at their hall, in the High-street, on Friday, the 16th inst., at 8 p.m., the R.W.M., Bro. Chalmers, presiding. Mr. Cockerell, commercial traveller, who was proposed and approved in open lodge, was prepared as a candidate for the First Degree. The R.W.M. then asked Bro. Dr. W. Cowan to take the chair and confer the Entered Apprentice Degree upon the candidate. This Bro. Cowan did in a very impressive and effective manner. There being no further business the lodge was closed in peace and harmony by the R.W.M. at 9.40 p.m.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place in the Masonic Hall, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on the 14th inst., at eight o'clock. Bro. D. Butler, R.W.M., took the chair, supported by his Wardens and other office-bearers. The attendance of members and visiting brethren was exceedingly good. The minutes of the previous meeting were postponed till the next meeting, on account of the absence of the Secretary. Two applications for admittance into Freemasonry were read, one from Mr. John McEwin, jun., proposed by Bro. John Scott, P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. McEwin, sen.; the other from Mr. Kyle, proposed by Bro. R. Paton, seconded by Bro. John Scott. The R.W.M. said he thought the well-known names of the proposers and seconders of the candidates was a sufficient guarantee of the character of the gentlemen proposed as candidates; if, therefore, it was agreeable to the members of the lodge, he would in this case dispense with the delay of the ballot. This was unanimously agreed to. The R.W.M. paid a high compliment to Bro. McEwin, as a brother who had done good service to Masonry, whose son was one of the candidates for admittance into Freemasonry that night. To join St. Mungo Lodge was his own desire, and his father, of whom he was now speaking, had gratified his desire by introducing him to them. He had for some time back been expecting to have a visit from Bro. McEwin, and as he was with them to-night, he took the opportunity of proposing him as an honorary member of St. Mungo Lodge, in recognition of his services to the Craft. This was supported by the S.W., who also spoke in high terms of Bro. McEwin's usefulness. This was received with great pleasure by the members of the lodge, Bro. McEwin stepping to the altar and receiving the usual obligation from Bro. Bain, P.M., Lodge Union and Crown, who officiated for the R.W.M. The candidates were then prepared, and received the First Degree, Bro. John Scott, P.M., officiating in a clear and impressive manner. There being no further business before the lodge, and the night being but "young" as yet, the lodge was called from labour to refreshment, when an exceedingly pleasant time was spent, amidst song, sentiment, and compliment, after which the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

PERTH.—ST. ANDREW'S LODGE (No. 74).—This lodge held its regular monthly meeting in the Royal George Hotel, on the evening of Tuesday, the 6th inst., at 8 p.m. After the transaction of the usual monthly business, the R.W.P.M., Bro. John Young, who held the Hiram, formed a lodge of instruction. A candidate was prepared, and the Entered Apprentice Degree was given by the R.W.P.M., who was very well supported by his officers, who did their share of the work in a most creditable manner. The officers and members of this lodge have taken in hand in a most enthusiastic manner the work of instruction. It is intended that this work shall be carried out in a systematic manner, with all the degrees of Craft Masonry, and if this is done perseveringly and persistently there can be no reason to doubt, from the manner in which the first attempt at this has been affected, that the lodge will in a short time be second to none in Perth or even in Scotland. After labour the lodge was called to refreshment, when a few pleasant minutes were spent in general conversation. The lodge was then called again to labour, and closed in peace and harmony at 10.30 p.m.

PERTH.—ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 122).—Festival of St. John.—The brethren of this lodge, to the number of about forty, met in their hall on the 24th ult., to celebrate the Festival of St. John the Baptist. Bro. George Hutton, R.W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. H. Thompson, P.M.; James McDuff, Depute Master; David Morrison, Substitute Master; and the Chaplain of the Lodge (the Rev. David Winter, M.A.). After the brethren had partaken of an elegant repast the lodge was duly opened, and the ceremony of affiliating a visiting brother having been gone through, the brethren were called from labour to refreshment, when several toasts were drunk. In the course of the evening the Chaplain delivered an eloquent address on "Brotherly Help." The evening's entertainment was much enhanced by the rendering of some fine songs by Bros. J. Thompson, Menzies, Conacher, &c. A recitation by Sergeant Major Davidson was also much admired. Altogether, a very happy evening was spent. The viands and liquors were supplied by Bro. R. Wilson, of the Restaurant, St. John-street, and were worthy of the fame of that well-known establishment.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SCOTIA (No. 178) met in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 14th inst., for the dispatch of business. In the absence of the R.W.M., Bro. Joseph Singleton, Bro. Mathison, P.M., took the chair, assisted by the Wardens and other office-bearers. There was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. There were two gentlemen proposed for initiation into Freemasonry. The first, Mr. M. Sweeney, proposed by Bro. R. Sweeney, and seconded by Bro. J. Mathison, P.M.; the second, Mr. James Aitken, proposed by Bro. Kellen, seconded by Bro. Singleton. The ballot was found clear, and they received the First Degree, Bro. I. Mathison, P.M., officiating. The subject of new clothing for the lodge was then taken up. Samples of office-bearers' and ordinary clothing, &c., were shown from the establishment of Bro. George Kenning, which were much admired.

The office-bearers were authorised to procure what amount of clothing they might think necessary either from Bro. Kenning, or elsewhere, as they thought best. It was then agreed that in future the meetings of the lodge should be held twice in the month instead of once, as at present. The arrangements for the annual excursion were then entered into, three different places being mentioned, viz., Campsie Glen, Inverkip, and Bowling. Campsie Glen was fixed as the place of resort, and the day will be the first Wednesday after the August meeting of the lodge. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when four brothers were made F.C. of the Order, Bro. Muir, D.M., Lodge Union and Crown, officiating. The lodge being raised to the M.M. degree, four brethren of the lodge and two of Lodge Glasgow, Kilwinning No. 4, were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bro. Muir again officiating. A vote of thanks having been passed to Bro. Muir for his able services brought the business to an end, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

JOHNSTONE.—LODGE HOUSTON ST. JOHNSTONE (No. 242).—The members of this lodge met together on the evening of the 8th inst., in their lodge-room, Cross Keys Hotel, Johnstone, the object being to pay a mark of respect to Bro. J. F. Donald, P.M., of the lodge. A large company sat down to supper. The chair was filled by Bro. Guy, R.W.M., supported by Bros. A. Bailie Jeffray, J. Love, J. Baird, Bailie Weems, F. Goodwin, and Dr. Berry. Bros. R. Leckie, S.W., and G. Matheson, J.W., occupied the Croupiers' chairs. Besides the members belonging to the Houston St. Johnstone Lodge, the sister lodges in the province were well represented, also a number of the sister lodges from Glasgow province. On the removal of the cloth, the chairman gave the usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts, which were received in the warm-hearted manner which characterises the Craft. Bro. Leckie gave "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Renfrew East." Bro. O. McGregor, in a few well chosen sentences, responded to the toast. The chairman then came to the special business of the evening, viz., the presentation of a very handsome Past Master's jewel to Bro. Donald; this duty, Bro. Guy performed with good taste and judgment. He referred to the private character of Bro. Donald in the most kindly terms, and said that his connection with, and services to the lodge had been conspicuous not only by great ability, and an earnestness to secure and maintain its prosperity, but by a display of kind sympathy with the feelings of those over whom he ruled that made it a pleasure to all associated with him. In discharging the difficult duties of the office of R.W.M., his rule was marked with firmness, and a charitable purity of intention, that would long be remembered by the members of the lodge. Bro. Guy then fixed the jewel on Bro. Donald's breast, and said:—Do not look upon this for its intrinsic value, but as a mark of the expression of kind feelings of the members of the lodge towards you, and of their appreciation of the valuable services you have rendered them, and their heart-felt wish was that you may be long spared to wear that jewel and enjoy peace, plenty, and comfort. Bro. Donald returned thanks in a neat and feeling manner. (Bro. Donald's father held the same position in the lodge before him.) A few more toasts followed, which brought to a close a most agreeably spent evening at a timely hour.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 12th inst., at 7 o'clock p.m. The chair was taken by the R.W.M., Bro. J. Shaw, supported by Bro. J. M. Stafford, S.W.; Bro. Ferguson, J.W., and other office-bearers. The attendance of members was good, and the lodge being promptly opened was passed to the Second Degree. Bros. R. Kean, F. Menigal, W. Colquhoun, and Capt. Bonness having satisfactorily passed an examination, were obligated in this degree. The lodge was further raised, when the same brothers were entrusted with the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bro. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M., Lodge Clydesdale No. 556, officiating in both degrees. Bro. Phillips's style of working showed much cleverness, and was greatly admired. After a hearty vote of thanks was given to him for the favour he had done the Lodge Caledonian Railway, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102) held their regular monthly meeting in their lodge room, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 12th inst., at 8 o'clock prompt. Bro. J. Mitchell, R.W.M., presided; Bros. F. Kerr, S.W.; J. Renton, J.W.; Thos. Halket, P.M.; A. C. Gray, D.M.; A. Paterson, Treas.; John Smith, Sec., and others. The meeting was well attended considering the season of the year. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed, when the report of the committee in charge of the last festival was received in a satisfactory way. There was no pressing business before the meeting, and the lodge was accordingly closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOL (No. 413).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place in the Masonic Hall, situated at 213, Buchanan-street, on the 13th inst., at 8 o'clock. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. J. Wallace, the R.W.M., Bro. John Millar, P.M. presided. J. McInnes, S.W.; J. Boyd, J.W.; J. Louttit, D.M.; and other office-bearers and a good meeting of brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. An application for initiation into Freemasonry was brought before the lodge by the acting R.W.M. from Mr. W. Lauder, who was proposed and seconded by Bros. Wm. Lockie and John Baikie. All present being satisfied, the initiation ceremony was given by Bro. Millar, P.M. This completed the business before the lodge, and it was closed in usual and ancient form.

Bro. Captain Boyton has made an offer to M^{de}. la Maré-chaie de MacMahon, which has been accepted, to visit Paris about the 16th of August, and give experiments with his life-saving dress, in aid of the Inundation Fund.

MASONIC FESTIVITY IN DUBLIN.

THE MASONIC LODGE (No. 75) held their usual summer picnic on Monday July, 12th, at the Powerscourt Waterfall. The sun seldom shone on a more propitious day, and the arrangements for the excursion were most satisfactory and complete. A goodly company, numbering about seventy, exchanged friendly and fraternal greetings. Having spent a considerable time in admiring the beautiful scenery, they returned to that commodious hotel at Enniskerry, known as the Leinster Arms, where Mr. Miller, the proprietor, whose exertions for the general enjoyment were indefatigable, had prepared a splendid dinner. The wines were fully appreciated, they being excellent in quality. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been disposed of, and several excellent songs sung with good effect, the Worshipful Master, Bro. A. Robertson, proposed "The Health of Bro. Andrew Fitzpatrick," their Treasurer, after which the lodge presented him with a very handsome and elegantly-finished gold lever watch. Bro. Fitzpatrick in reply, made a very suitable speech, which was received with many demonstrations of applause. A vote of thanks having been proposed to Bro. Miller for the highly satisfactory manner in which he carried out the dinner arrangements, the company returned to town, having spent an agreeable day.

A MASONIC SWINDLER.—At Cork, Louis Desand Des-tramy was brought up at the police-office, on remand, charged with receiving money under false pretences. Mr. Henry S. Noblett deposed that in May last prisoner called at Masonic Lodge No. 1 and represented that he had been Surgeon-Major in the French army, through the Algerian, Crimean, and witness did not remember how many other campaigns; that being a native of Alsace when that province was annexed to Germany he proved obnoxious to the Prussians, being a patriot, or, as witness jokingly suggested to him, a Fenian of that place; that coming home in a carriage with his wife one day he was met by Prussian soldiers, who imprisoned him for two years in Stittin; that he was then taken away and landed at Queenstown without a farthing in his pocket; he represented himself as very poor; he proved to be a Mason, and they collected £6 for him. Witness credited his story, and was enthusiastic about him, and it was on his appeal that money was collected for the prisoner. Mr. James Barry deposed to a grant of £2 being given out of the lodge to prisoner. Mrs. Bell, of the Crown Hotel, proved that prisoner came to lodge at her place on the 2nd of May, and represented that he had been imprisoned in underground cells and treated very badly; he represented that he was limited to £700 to spend till September; one night he gave her a very hospitable invitation to go out for a drive in Dr. Tanner's trap on Sunday (great laughter); he ordered his patent boots to be done with cream, and left next day to bring his wardrobe, but never returned; he owed about 11s. The Mayor said it appeared he started on May 3rd with a bed, and wound up on the 6th with a Welsh rabbit for a 1s. (laughter.) The witness's husband proved having given credit to prisoner on the representation that he was a Mason and a gentleman; he stated to witness that he was sent to America to learn his profession during the war; witness, who was engaged in that war, found his knowledge of America accurate. Thomas Wilkinson proved that prisoner put up in his house at Queenstown, and stated that he had seven hundred pounds in the Provincial Bank; he told him on one occasion to get a champagne dinner ready, as he was going to have the Mayor of Cork and several doctors to dinner with him; witness understood the Mayor had given him money; when they found he was an impostor his son turned him out. The Mayor announced that the bench committed prisoner for trial principally in consequence of the representation that he had seven hundred pounds in the Provincial Bank, which was proved by a bank official to be false.—Freeman's Journal.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Benjamin Head, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. A. Dubois, Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, H. W. Hemsworth, Thomas J. Sabine, John Boyd, H. M. Levy, H. H. Diaper, W. F. C. Moutrie, A. H. Tattershall, J. A. Tucker, Thomas F. Peacock, F. Binckes, Joshua Nunn, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little (Secretary).

After the minutes had been read, and authority had been given to the chairman to sign cheques for bills, the brethren passed a resolution to invest £3000 in three per cents., as recommended by the House Committee. They afterwards accepted two petitions that had been presented for placing candidates on list for election in October. An application for admission by purchase was refused. Notice was given by Bro. Head for motion to increase the salary of Miss Moss. The committee then adjourned.

JULY 31, 1875.

CONSECRATION OF THE LIVERPOOL LODGE.

The most notable addition to the already long list of lodges in the division of West Lancashire (of which the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, is the P.G.M.) took place on Wednesday, the 14th inst., when "The Liverpool Lodge" of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1547, was duly consecrated. The new lodge starts with all the elements of success, and there is no doubt that it will occupy one of the first places in the list of "locals." The brethren identified with the petition for consecration are well known in connection with West Lancashire Masonry, and the new lodge emanates from one (the Everton, No. 823) which, while giving birth to another son, will in no way suffer from the severance of the family ties. The greatest cordiality now prevails between the child and its mother, and there is no doubt that the latest addition to the list of lodges in West Lancashire will do credit to the author of its existence. The principal officers have been well tried and found trusty Masons, and therefore "The Liverpool" starts with all the impressment and vitality of a lodge which ought to make good progress.

The ceremony of consecration was fixed for three o'clock on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, where there was a very large and most influential gathering of brethren from various parts of the province.

The following brethren were present at the consecration: Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas.; W. Doyle, P.G.S.D.; J. W. Turley, P.G.J.D.; E. Pierpoint, P.P.G.S.D.; R. Wylie, P.P.S.G.D.; R. Wilson, P.G.S.D.; J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C.; the Rev. G. H. Vernon, M.A., P.P.G.C.; the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C.; Joseph Sheaf, P.G. Org.; J. Banning, P.P.G.O.; W. and C.; G. Owen, P.G.S. of W.; John Lunt, P.G.S.; the Rev. J. Hinton Black, P.P.G.C., North Wales and Salop; W. H. Ball, P.G. Tyler; J. Wood, Treas. 1094; Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M. 249, &c.; T. G. Bark, W.M. 1380; R. Brown, W.M. 241 (Hon. Sec. of the W.L.M.E.I.); W. Wilson, J.W. 823; W. Archer, P.M., W.M. 1086; W. Mossop, P.M. 1250; W. Cottrell, W.M. 823; W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; W. Boulton, P.M. 823; J. W. Ballard, W.M. 724; H. Williams, P.M. 249, 1264; J. Pemberton, 1276; P.M. 1264; W. Sephton, P.M. 1086; J. Day, W.M. 1013; J. D. Crawford, W.M. 680; H. P. Price, W.M. 249; E. Gale, W.M. 178; H. Wyatt, W.M. 1473; J. Higginbotham, P.M. 317; H. Ashmore, W.M. 1325; P. B. Gee, P.M., W.M. 1264; Alderman Dr. J. Stopford Taylor, P.M. 823; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; S. Haynes, P.M. 823, 241; Henry Nelson, P.M. 673; W.M. 1505; H. Jackson, W.M. 1393; T. Shaw, S.W. 823; W. Jones, P.M. 220, W.M. 1299; J. Kenyon, P.M. 1013; W. B. Caw, W.M. 786; J. T. Cave-Browne-Cave, 823; R. Warriner, 823; E. Walker, 823; E. Morgan, 823; W. H. Hignett, 1356; — Slack, P.M. 910, West Yorkshire; Councillor J. A. Forrest, 823; W. Ladyman, 667; C. J. Caddock, 823; F. W. Oglesby, 823; R. Foote, 1505; C. Fothergill, 1264; Charles Birchall, 823; C. W. Reid, 1086; J. Sharpe, 1473; J. C. Maguire, 823; Isaac Tyson, 1094; W. Barker, 1380; J. Duncan, jun., 1473; G. W. Chirnside, 1325; J. H. Parker, 823; J. Bentham, 667; H. J. Atkinson, 1505; T. Evans, 1023; J. Queen, 1505; J. Muir, 786; J. B. MacKenzie, 594, 1182, 1356, and others.

After the brethren had assembled in the lodge room, the chair of consecrating officer was taken by Bro. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., who was assisted in the subsequent portion of the ceremony by Bro. R. Wilson, P.G.S.D., and Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.

The solemn ceremony of consecration was very ably performed by Bro. Wylie and his assistants, Bros. Wilson and Alpass, and amongst those brethren who gave help at the chief points were Bro. T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas., who bore the corn; Bro. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M. 249, who carried the wine; Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C., to whom was entrusted the oil; and Bro. H. S. Alpass, who carried the salt. The censer was borne by Bro. the Rev. J. M. Morgan, P. Prov. G. Chaplain, West Lancashire, Rural Dean of Aldingham and Vicar of the parish of Dalton-in-Furness. Bro. Morgan, in the course of the ceremony, also delivered the following impressive and practical oration:

Worthy and Worshipful Sir, and Brethren,—

In dedicating this lodge to Freemasonry, which, in passing, I may say has been so happily named "The Liverpool Lodge," one cannot help wondering whether the future of the lodge we are assembled to inaugurate will, in its prosperity and usefulness, prove worthy of the great city after which it is named. We can only hope that, in years hence, it may be distinguished throughout this great province, not only for disseminating the genuine principles of Freemasonry, and for having worthy, learned, and able Masons amongst its members, but for the princely liberality with which it supports and endows those excellent Masonic charities which belong to our Order. Freemasonry is well calculated to excite the sympathy and countenance of the best and worthiest of men of every age; its object is, and ever has been, to cultivate virtue in every shape and form; its antiquity has been demonstrated so frequently, and so ably, by learned brethren of our honoured Craft, who have long since passed away, that it would be presumptuous on the part of so unskilful a Mason as myself to follow in their track. We are told, that in ages long since gone by the effects of our principles were to be seen among men, in deeds of love, amity, and kindness. The basis of the Order is charity, to wipe the tear from the eye of the distressed, to clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and to prevent, by anticipation, the wants of the unfortunate. It has been well said, that Freemasonry ought to be esteemed a benefit to the world, uniting as it does in the strongest ties of friendship and affection all nations of the earth. Its language is as general as that of the eyes; and in all parts of the globe it is understood; by communicative signs it has become peculiarly valuable, and Freemasons possess what the learned have sought in vain, an invaluable cypher for general communication. Masonry has been recognised by the greatest men of all civilized ages. Kings and nobles have been proud to belong to our Order, and at no time has it ever been more prosperous or honoured than at the present. Take our own country as an instance. The head of our Order is the Prince of Wales, the future Sovereign of this mighty empire; the seat of civilization, the home of arts, and, best of all, the sacred asylum for the persecuted and the miserable. Well has the Prince deserved of our Order by his acceptance of the highest office in our gift—that of Grand Master of England. In our loved, respected, and revered and Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England, and our Provincial Grand Master, the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the cause we hold so dear must prosper and flourish; and why? Because knowledge, energy, and zeal always almost command success. I am but a junior amongst the Grand Officers of the Province, and exclude as a matter of course my own name; but there are Grand Officers and brethren connected with the province of great repute amongst the brethren of the Craft, and held in great and well deserved honour by us all. And if we turn our gaze to the gorgeous East—we may augur well for the progress of Masonry. The presence of our Grand Master in that far off land must give an impetus to the zeal of those excellent brethren under whose care it has so greatly flourished. It will be the prayer of the brethren, that our Royal Grand Master may, by the protection of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, return in safety to his native land.

Worthy and Worshipful Sir, and Brethren,—

Having said thus much about Freemasonry and its objects, I will say a few words on this occasion on that most distinguished of its virtues, Charity, because unless that social virtue is carefully cultivated in lodges it is sometimes liable to die out, and few traces of its existence are to be found in the shape of vice-presidentships and life governorships in our London charities; and so in our own province, some lodges are very conspicuous by their negligence in providing sufficient funds to enable their Worshipful Masters and Wardens to act as vice-presidents and life governors in our West Lancashire Institution, which performs so great and good a work. Charity is not properly engrafted unless accompanied by a great love for our Divine Creator; as a natural consequence, a universal love for humanity follows. Charity exerted on proper objects is one of the greatest pleasures of mankind. Who has not experienced the thrill of pleasure after relieving the sufferings and distress of some afflicted creature? The joy far outstrips any hardship or trouble that the effort has caused. Such being the feelings produced by exercising what our beautiful ceremonies say is the most distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart—the exercise of charity—let me exhort the members of this lodge to inculcate this virtue to the uttermost; that they may stand forth as shining lights and patterns to older lodges who have neglected what ought to be so paramount a virtue in every Masonic lodge. Perhaps the consequence of their efforts may be that this rich province may bestir itself to wipe out a stain, which I believe at present belongs to it, of being behind other provinces, less wealthy, in the amount subscribed to the London charities. May the Great Architect of the Universe ever inspire the rulers of this lodge with understanding, with art, science, and virtue, so that its members may become more dignified, refined, and exalted, so that making the volume of the Sacred Law the never erring square to regulate their conduct; the compass within whose circle they may ever walk safely and happily; the infallible plumb line, the criterion of rectitude and truth. Enable them to fill every sphere of life with honour and credit, by bearing in mind and acting up to the principles of the Craft, brotherly love, relief, and truth; as fathers, husbands, friends, prove themselves worthy men, and worthy Masons; an honour to this lodge, and to the profession we all boast. And while through Thy bounty, Thou rich dispenser of every blessing, our cups overflow with plenteousness, and wine and oil delight and cheer our boards, may we never be found wanting in that indispensable Masonic virtue, gratitude. Quicken in us, O Great Eternal and Almighty God, that virtue, charity, so that our hearts may be softened to the cries of woe and distress, which may come to us from every being who bears Thy image, is led by Thy hand, and looks up to Thy Providence for care and protection.

The musical portion of the impressive ceremony was rendered in a most able and artistic manner by Bros. Evans, H. Ashmore, J. Queen, and H. J. Atkinson, under the direction of Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., who accompanied with his usual ability. It may be stated that, besides Bro. R. Wylie, who occupied the chair, there were in the other posts of honour Bros. the Rev. J. Hinton Black, as P.M.; E. Pierpoint, as S.W.; J. W. Tarley, J.W.; R. Wilson, D.C.; W. Doyle, S.D.; G. Owen, J.D.; J. Lunt, I.G. The whole of the ceremony of consecration was exceedingly striking and effective, and many will remember it as the inauguration of a lodge which is sure to prosper.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration, Bro. R. Wylie proceeded to instal Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G. Chaplain, W.L., as the First W.M. of the Liverpool Lodge, No. 1547, and it is certain no more popular choice could possibly have been made in connection with the youngest confraternity in the West Lancashire Division. The following were the officers who were invested for the first year's existence of the lodge:—Bros. W. J. Lunt, P.M.; Councillor J. A. Forrest, S.W.; John Marshall, J.W.; J. H. Parker, Hon. Secretary; J. W. C. Browne-Cave, Treasurer; R. Warriner, S.D.; J. Duncan, jun., J.D.; Wm. Ladyman, I.G.; C. McGuire, S.S.; C. J. Caddock, J.S.; E. Walker, Org.; and P. Ball, Tyler. After a number of propositions for initiation had been made, the brethren adjourned to the banquetting hall, where a very excellent repast was served. After dessert had been placed on the table, the W.M. proposed "The Queen, the Patroness of our Order," "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "The Pro. Grand Master of England and the Deputy Grand Master," each of which were proposed in telling terms and responded to with the greatest cordiality. Bro. Goggin, W.M., also proposed the toast of "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M.; the Hon. F. Stanley, D.P.G.M.; and the P.G. Officers," and in the course of his remarks he dwelt upon the many high qualities which marked the rule of the P.G.M. and his officers. Bro. Alpass, P.G. Sec., in reply, said he felt the greatest pleasure in being present at Lord Skelmersdale's appointment as D.G.M., and that pleasure was greatly increased when he saw his lordship's name at the bottom of the warrant of the Liverpool Lodge in the capacity of D.G.M. They were reminded by the M.W.G.M., at his installation, that the watchwords of the order were "Loyalty and Charity," but he could hardly say that in their lodges charity was displayed to the extent in which it ought to be. He personally did not believe in any charity which did not come out of the pockets of the brethren rather than out of the funds of the lodge. He hoped the new lodge would set a bright example to others in the way of pure, personal charity. In response to "The Worshipful Master of the Liverpool Lodge," Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, W.M., delivered an excellent speech, which was received with great cordiality. Bro. Goggin gave "The Consecrating and Installing Officers," to which Bro. R. Wylie responded in an admirable speech, in which he advocated the special claims of the institution for old men. "The Officers of the Liverpool Lodge," given by the W.M., was acknowledged by the S.W. Bro. Councillor Forrest, S.W., gave "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," which was coupled with the name of Bro. R. Brown, the Hon. Sec. Bro. J. H. Parker, the Hon. Sec. of the lodge, proposed the toast of "The Visitors," and said he wished Bro. Cottrell's name to be associated with it as W.M. of 823, the lodge from which the "Liverpool" had derived its existence. In response Bro. Cottrell, W.M. 823, said,—Worshipful Master, Wardens, and Brethren, I feel myself placed in an awkward position, having been called upon to respond on behalf of the visiting brethren whilst so many eminent Masons are present, but I suppose it is because I occupy the proud position of being the Worshipful Master of the Everton Lodge, which may be considered as the mother of the Lodge of Liverpool. Worshipful Master, my wish is that your lodge may prosper until it becomes such a lodge as the Everton Lodge, a lodge that never turns a case of charity away, a lodge that stands second to none in the province, and yet a lodge that knows how to enjoy itself, for we trust next week to have our annual pic-nic, the ladies being present with us. Worshipful Master, you are surrounded by as good a set of officers as you could well wish. They have been well-trained, and I hope at the end of your year of office it may be said that the Liverpool Lodge has been as well worked as any in the province. On behalf of myself and the visiting brethren, I thank you heartily for your kind invitation and hospitality.

FREEMASONRY IN INDIA.

The regular meeting of Lodge Concord No. 757, E.C., was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Mazagon, on Saturday, the 19th June, 1875. Present—W. Bros. W. C. Rome, W.M.; G. R. Henderson, I.P.M.; B. Robinson, P.M.; Bros. F. Burdett, as S.W.; G. Macdonald, as J.W.; O. Tomlinson, Sec.; J. Spiers, S.D.; W. G. Davie, J.D.; J. E. Tyers, Org.; J. F. Grew, Steward; J. W. Scager, Tyler. Members—Bros. W. E. Craddock, J. H. Burrett, W. W. Wilson, G. F. Cardwell, J. W. Hobbs, C. J. Hall, J. Calderwood, F. H. Lean, J. Middleton, J. Holt, and others. Visitors—W. Bros. W. H. Barrow, A. Mackenzie, J. Butler, C. Tudball, C. Parker, J. Hartley, T. Counsell, J. McDougall, O. Lucas, G. Claridge, and others. The lodge was opened with prayer at 6.50 p.m. The summons conveying the meeting was read. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The minutes of the last meeting of the permanent committee were read and adopted. The ballot was then taken for Bro. William Fearn as a joining member, and announced clear. The ballot was then taken for Mr. William Wilkinson, as a candidate for initiation;—announced duly elected. As the candidate was not present, and there being no work before the lodge, the Worshipful Master gave a lecture on the 1st tracing board in a thorough masterly style, and was warmly applauded. A letter from the D.G.S. in reference to the proposed "Addenda" was then read, and W. Bro. G. R. Henderson, I.P.M., explained that the alteration made in the "Addenda" by the Right W. the D.G.M. left us in the same position as is laid down in our present bye-laws and constitutions, hence he (W. Bro. G. R. Henderson) withdrew his proposal as to the said "Addenda." One brother was then proposed as a joining member. One gentleman was then proposed for initiation. There being no further business before the lodge, it was closed with solemn prayer at 8.50 p.m.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS should be found in every Household when sudden changes of temperature, try the strongest, prostrate the delicate, and kill the aged. Parents, Guardians, and all far advanced in years should know that Holloway's Medicine has been called the Champion of the weak, the Invigorator of the delicate, the Redresser of all bodily wrongs. A Pill taken now and again when the appetite falters and digestion is perturbed, soon sets these symptoms of coming sickness aside, and secures with certainty the main conditions of good health. When a course of these Pills, according to their lucid directions, is entered upon every solid and every fluid organ and function is corrected, and the young are rescued from premature old age.—AVER.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1875.

PLACE AUX DAMES.

A movement has sprung up amongst us, which seems to be taking increased proportions daily, and which must have for Freemasonry many most important consequences one way or the other. We allude to the somewhat novel arrangement of introducing ladies at some of the social gatherings of our Order. It seems that that most benevolent lady, Baroness Burdett Coutts (whose relative, our gallant Bro. Col. Burdett, is the esteemed P.G.M. for Middlesex), is about to present three chairs to the Burdett Coutts Lodge, 1278, named after her, and which interesting proceeding will have taken place when these lines meet the eyes of our readers, but too late, owing to the peremptory condition of our printing requirements, for note or comment editorially, this week. "Taking time," then, as the Irishman once said, "by the firelock," we deem it well to anticipate some of the questions and considerations which may possibly arise out of that genial gathering. For on that occasion it is proposed, we read, that the members should be accompanied by "their ladies," and the lodge itself gives a "déjeuner" to its kindly patroness, and a select circle of male and female friends. Well, we think the movement a good one, a right one, and a praiseworthy one, and one likely to confer eventually much benefit on our Masonic organization. We have often asked ourselves the question, why have we so rigorously excluded ladies from our festive gatherings? And we feel bound to add we have never yet heard a satisfactory reply! Enjoyable as many of our goodly assemblies are, for the purposes of relaxation and refreshment, they would be much more pleasant and lively, we make bold to say, by the admission of our fair sisters. For the appearance of woman at the Masonic festival board would do away at once with a little of our ingrained lordly, and must we not say Masonic, selfishness. The great difference between man and woman is this—the man is selfish, woman is unselfish—man thinks first of his own enjoyment, and then of others; woman, on the contrary, considers first the happiness of others, and then her own. She is always considerate and unselfish to the last. We should thus lessen the obvious temptation to somewhat of our individual selfishness. We are also of opinion that the refining influence of woman would be very appreciable, and ere long appreciated, at our greater banquets. The days, happily, of immoderate indulgence and hurtful excess are passing rapidly away, but there linger with us all a very material view of things, and a sort of intense and abiding persuasion, that the knife and fork degree is for some of us the "Summum bonum" of life. Woman is, we believe, in herself, even more intellectual than man, and we know of no society where ladies much do congregate which is not superior in taste and tone, in cultivation and refinement, to that from which woman, by some absurd prescription, perhaps of ages, is habitually shut out. In addition the presence of woman would contribute a counterpoise to our Masonic egotism. There is always a tendency amongst us all, on these our "feasts of reason and flow of soul," to say nothing of the flow of cooling liquids and aerated waters, to give way to a process of self-exaltation. We are apt to think a good deal of ourselves, our work, our claims, our merits, and the oftener we meet and the longer we work together, this pleasing self-delusion expands and increases. Hence we sometimes select such gatherings for the unfolding of our personal grievances, because we think we do not receive from our brethren all that we deserve, or because we consider we have a right to expect anything we desiderate, because our Masonic value is A1. Now, woman's presence would save us all from a great deal of this habitual self-assertion, self-laudation, and personal egotism. For our sisters would inevitably by their own kindlier and gentler attractions lighten up many a dull banquet, and enliven many a common-place assembly with that pleasantness of wit which never wounds, and that heartiness of interest which never wearies. It has been objected to Freemasons fairly enough, that though they praise women, as they do habitually, in all the warblings of the Masonic muse, though they ever profess to "adore" the better and softer sex, they manage to keep them at the greatest possible distance from Freemasonry itself. We think that the entire exclusion of ladies has lasted long enough, and that it is for the true welfare of Freemasonry to relax somewhat of the Draco-like security of our rules on this delicate and tender point. But while we say this we would not be misunderstood. We entirely approve of the new movement to introduce our sisters, like the angels "ever bright and fair," on special occasions, and on greater anniversaries. But we could not recommend that our regular private lodge meetings should follow suit, in the monthly gatherings for instance. That is alike undesirable and impossible, and even Bro. Binckes, who has so gallantly stood up for the "rights of women," and has endeavoured at the Boys' School Anniversary to deal in part with what he truly terms a "wide question," will admit, we feel persuaded, that there must be a limit even to so pleasant an innovation on the stereotyped regulations of Freemasonry. Subject to this reserve, we heartily applaud the movement, and we are glad to record the fact. We hail the presence of our sisters amongst us, which is ever one for good, and we welcome that improving and elevating influence of theirs, which tends equally to the civilization and the welfare of man. Within due bounds of moderation and common sense, we feel certain that the occasional appearance of our sisters at the Masonic "symposia" at some great and "alba Dies" of our Order, will work for the personal well-being of us all alike. Of course at present, and for some time to come, such an enlarged basis of our friendly association must be the exception to the rule, but we feel convinced that it is a very opportune reform, and one that will enhance the comfort, the enjoyment, and the happiness of all thinking and loyal Freemasons.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE ALEXANDRA LODGE.

Our issue of last week contained a report of a very interesting meeting for the purpose of consecrating a new lodge denominated the Alexandra Lodge. This new lodge, which numbers 1541, has found a "local habitation and a name" at the Alexandra Palace, and has for its first W.M. our well-known and able brother, J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D. Our worthy G.S. was the consecrating officer, and was assisted by Bros. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., and R. W. Little. The ceremonies all seem to have passed over with the greatest success, and to have been performed with much impressiveness. We published last week Bro. R. J. Simpson's energetic and eloquent oration, and we have perused with much gratification the speeches so well delivered by many of our brethren on the occasion. Bro. Parkinson spoke with his customary ability, and we note the effective remarks of Bro. Fenn, and the always valuable observations of Bro. John Hervey. Bro. Parkinson especially well pointed out the true character of Freemasonry, and, in our humble opinion, took exactly the "right line" when he so eloquently demonstrated that Freemasonry can afford to laugh at all assailants and all assaults. We need no bitter retorts and no angry recriminations, we can afford to stand on our professions and our practice, and to challenge boldly all impugnors to prove one futile allegation, or to establish one hasty accusation. Bro. Parkinson tells us, and his authority is considerable in the matter, while rejoicing that the G. Lodge of England has recognised the G. Orient of Rome, that much misconception exists as to the character of Italian Freemasonry, that it is not political, and is rather basing itself on our good old English system. We think such an announcement is matter for sincere rejoicing. We, like Bro. Parkinson, never could understand why Freemasonry proper was not to flourish in Italy, or commend itself to the intellectual, art-loving, cultivated, and tolerant Italian mind. The only fear we had was lest that "bete noire" of foreign politics would intrude itself into Italian Freemasonry. Once free from such a possibility of danger, there is no reason why the Italian Freemasons should not soon occupy a very high "status" in the Masonic world. We may say that we offer to the G. Orient of Rome our fraternal good wishes, and hope that all prosperity may attend Italian Freemasonry, alike in peaceful progress, and in true Masonic labours. We think that we may derive a little moral, if after the manner of Freemasons, from our reports of repeated and largely attended consecrations of new lodges. The recent attacks on Freemasonry have certainly done us no harm, they have, we rather are inclined to think, tended to bind us closer together! Knowing our innocence and assured of our upright intentions we do not fear any opponent, and we utterly disregard the complaints of the ignorant and the censures of the unjust! The principles we advocate, and the truths we inculcate, are those which commend themselves not only to our own minds, but to the minds of our countrymen, and to the sympathies of the age in which our lot is cast. With that spirit and fearlessness which mark our Anglo-Saxon race everywhere, we as Freemasons shall not be daunted by "exparte" opinions and unjustifiable decrees. From whatever quarter the attack may come, from Romanist or Ritualist, from Baptist or Presbyterian, we shall move on believing that intellectual light and the freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and teaching, and action, moral elevation and civilizing influences, are greater blessings to humanity and are more likely to tend to the amelioration of society, than that bigotry which, though "willing to wound," is "afraid to strike," are more blessed by God and approved by man than intolerance which is always illogical, and persecution which never does succeed in the long run.

THE IRISH MASONIC FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL.

We have read with great interest the last report of this most useful Institution, which our worthy correspondent and Bro., J. H. Neilson, has forwarded to us from Dublin. It appears that this much needed educational charity is happily flourishing, and is largely and liberally supported by our benevolent Craft in Ireland. If some few subscribers have fallen off, there is still a goodly array of names, and as the Institution is enjoying the same kind patronage from Bro. the Duke of Abercorn, the present worthy and distinguished G.M., as it did from its old friend and warm-hearted patron, the late G.M., the Duke of Leinster, we have no doubt that any slight retrogression in members' subscriptions will soon be made up, as time passes on. The balance-sheet is a very prosperous one. The whole income, &c., amounted to £3162 4s. 5d., which is made up of the following items. Balance from last year, £747 4s. 8d.; annual subscriptions, £931 19s. 0d.; life donations, individual and official, £505; donations from lodges and chapters, £107 16s. 0d.; small donations, £15 15s.; nett receipts of annual meeting, £305 6s. 2d.; collections at Governors' banquets, £21 0s. 0d.; Grants from Grand Lodge, £169 11s. 6d.; dividends and interest, £858 11s. 7d.; in all, £3162 4s. 5d. The expenditure is as follows:—Provisions, £610 15s. 0d.; washing and repairs, £306 11s. 0d.; coals and gas, &c., £90 17s. 0d.; salaries and wages and commissions, £503 13s. 8d.; furniture and house repairs, £102 11s. 11d.; head-nurse, £34 13s. 10d.; postage and advertising, £5 9s. 8d.; printing, books, music, &c., £110 1s. 6d.; rent and insurance, £35 16s. 8d.; apprentice fees and expenses, £41 16s. 4d.; outfits for pupils leaving, £19 11s. 10d.; incidental expenses, £42 9s. 3d.; purchase of twenty Masonic Hall shares, £100; balance, £1158 5s. 11d. A question is, however, now coming before the subscribers, like a similar one which has come in times before our own great Metropolitan Orphanages, namely, the question of enlargement, and the building of suitable premises. We have no doubt in our minds, that in this as in all other matters, the simplest way and the straightest course, are the best. It is impossible in this age of improved educational arrangements to carry on efficiently the great work of useful and moral instruction, in the rooms and with the means what might have done half-a-century ago, but are now no longer up to the mark. We must bear in mind that the whole apparatus and system of scholastic administration have received a wonderful impetus, and have undergone a complete transformation since the beginning of this century, and notably within the last 40 years at the least. The houses which were rented "faute des mieux," only 50 years ago, for schools, were not originally adapted for the work of education, and are at the best but makeshifts and temporary structures. It is therefore with much pleasure that we learn that this most important question, most important for the intellectual, moral, and sanitary condition of the children, is now before the governors, and we hope that it will be solved ere long in a way which will appeal to the best sympathies of Irish, and we will add of English, Freemasons for sympathy and support. The school, we learn, is in a very good position, in respect of the acquirements and progress of the orphans, and does every credit to the managers, and the Irish brotherhood. We thank Bro. Neilson for forwarding us the report, and beg to offer our fraternal and hearty good wishes, for the present welfare and the future prosperity of this valuable and much needed institution, which though across the Channel must commend itself to the heartfelt good-will of every English Freemason.

THE INSTALLATION PICTURE.

With reference to our remarks in last week's impression respecting the above named picture, and the advertisement in connection with it on the last page, viz., "The Royal Masonic Installation Gallery Company," we are requested to state that the Company would be glad to receive the names, Masonic rank, and addresses, of intending subscribers, in order that the circular which will be ready in the course of a few days for circulation may be forwarded to them. The address of the Company is 213, Regent-street,

W., London. We most heartily commend the undertaking to our friends, and hope it will receive from the Craft that liberal encouragement which it certainly deserves.

MASONIC PUNCTUALITY.

It is said that "Parsons" are the most unpunctual of men; we are a little inclined to believe that Freemasons run them very close. After a somewhat long apprenticeship to Freemasonry, we hardly ever remember a meeting or a gathering which began at the time specified in the programme. We remember once, indeed, an old W.M. who used to say, "As the clock strikes, I open my lodge," and he was as good as his word, and it is, perhaps, that trained in that sound old school, we retain a great admiration for punctuality. We do not know anything else under the sun which so tries the temper, or affects the day's proceedings, as want of punctuality. And what makes the matter worse, some of our good brethren glory in their unpunctuality. With them, three means four, four means five, and so on. In vain, punctual and precipitate, you have reached the "trysting place." In vain have you, believing in the punctuality of others, been punctual yourself, and hurried away from duties and claims elsewhere, from the domestic hearth, from your own dear, dear wife. You said, "Freemasons are punctual, I am, my dear, always punctual, and punctual will I be." And so you haste away. Unfortunate brother, those whom you greet in the "tiring room" have no sympathy for you, not a bit. You have put them out. Your punctuality shames their unpunctuality, and you are confidently and all but reprovingly told, that "three means four, and that the brethren are not particular about half-an-hour or so." Pleasant information for you, who have donned your Masonic gear, and, like the hero of old, are ready for the "fray." Half-an-hour passes, an hour vanishes, an hour-and-a-half shortly disappears, and you who have been patiently waiting all this time, see at last, when hope was all but gone, that the real time for work was nearly an hour and three-quarters after the appointed hour. Everything is put out. The work begins late, and ends late, and you find when you reach your home Eden, that you have miscalculated your advent by nearly two hours, and that you have to deal with a somewhat suspicious, and certainly irate sister. Such is a very common condition of affairs. Can nothing be done to teach our good brethren the great advantage of punctuality? There are some people and brethren who are always unpunctual, and whom nothing will ever render punctual. Whatever the time you appoint, they will be always late, and always have the same unmeaning excuse, "I did not know it was so late," or "I did not think that you were so punctual." We once had a friend who, though indifferent to work, was particular about the refreshment hour. He was naturally the most unpunctual of men, but, somehow or the other, always managed to tumble in for that important ceremony, that final degree. One day we were late at work, and later still was the witching hour of release and "refrigerium." Great was his indignation. "Never did see such unpunctuality, such unpunctual people; bless my heart and soul, three-quarters of an hour late! The supper will be cold." Such is human nature, we fear, selfish to the bottom. He could not understand punctuality in work as conducive to the benefit of others, but he could realize personally the trial of unpunctuality in refreshment to himself. Now, we think that this little anecdote may point for us all the moral, unpunctuality is after all only selfishness personified. It will greatly add to the comfort of our brethren, and conduce to the success of our work, if we will be punctual, but it interferes with our own individual convenience in some way or other, and so we are indifferent to the claim upon us. More than one most pleasant meeting has been utterly spoiled by unpunctuality, and we cannot impress too often on all our readers, that there is, after all, no Masonic excellence so great or so praiseworthy for many reasons, as that of Masonic punctuality.

ST. SWITHIN.

We said in our last that we should recur to the subject this week, and we, therefore, feel bound to fulfil our promise. The aqueous Saint, good man, and worthy Freemason as he was, has so far made out his legend to have a sprinkling of truth in it. It has rained regularly since the 15th, despite intervals of fine weather, at some portion of the twenty-four hours. When will the rain stop? It is said that the old nursery refrain, "Rain, rain, go to Spain," is a relic of the sentiments engendered in English minds, old and young, by the memories of the Spanish Armada; but at any rate during the last week, many will probably have wished the rain either in Spain, or in cooler regions, or in some better land. We have this one consolation. Our able contemporary, the Guardian, ever abounding in ecclesiastical lore, gives us a calculation, taken from the Times, it seems, of fourteen years ago, by which it is clear that the legend is not reliable. The Guardian also informs us that Hone, in his "every day book," points out that dry weather followed a wet St. Swithin in 1807 and 1808. We ask our readers carefully to peruse the following statement, and we trust that the prospect before them will be much brightened by this array of statistical and indubitable facts:—"It appears that St. Swithin's Day was wet in 1841, and there were 23 rainy days up to the 24th August; 1845, 26 rainy days; 1851, 13 rainy days; 1853, 18 rainy days; 1854, 16 rainy days; and in 1856, 14 rainy days. In 1842 and following years St. Swithin's Day was dry, and the result was—in 1842, 12 rainy days; 1843, 22 rainy days; 1844, 20 rainy days; 1846, 21 rainy days; 1847, 17 rainy days; 1848, 31 rainy days; 1849, 20 rainy days; 1850, 17 rainy days; 1852, 19 rainy days; 1855, 18 rainy days; 1857, 14 rainy days; 1858, 14 rainy days; 1859, 13 rainy days; and in 1860, 29 rainy days. These figures show the superstition to be founded on a fallacy, as the average of twenty years proves rain to have fallen upon the largest number of days when St. Swithin's Day was dry." There is hope, then, for all classes amongst us, and, perhaps, another week we shall be able to announce that the weather has entirely taken up, without, let us trust, much injury to the hay, and none to the corn. If complaints have already arisen, let us hope that they are, in truth, a little premature, and something symptomatic of the excusable nervousness of our admirable rural population, as we believe that a few days of continued fine weather will put our agricultural friends into the best of spirits again.

"SOUTH LONDON," "P.M., &c." BRO. HUGHAN, AND "TEMPERANCE."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our worthy Bro. Hughan is the very last Mason with whom I should have thought it possible that I could have even the semblance of a difference, and I think, if you will grant me a little space, that even that semblance will soon disappear.

The gist of my former letter was this:—that "temperance" is one of the vital principles of Freemasonry—that inasmuch as "temperance" includes the restraint not only of our lives and actions, but also of our wishes to control the liberty of action of others, in Freemasonry, "tactotalism" (as usually understood) has and ought to have no place; that perfect freedom of thought and action being thus secured, a "total abstinence" need not find any bar to enjoyment in any lodge.

But, whilst laying down this as a principle, I by no means said that the management of every lodge was immaculate—to my sorrow I acknowledge the contrary, and, were it wise or fitting to do so here, I could name instances of men who would be good and useful Masons were they not deterred from joining the only lodge practicable to them by the very abuse to which Bro. Hughan so fitly draws attention.

In conclusion I may say, that so deeply do I feel the evil that Bro. Hughan deplores, as well as the necessity of its removal, that I will gladly go heart and soul with him in any measures by which his good object may be attained, and now offer him any small assistance that may be in my power at any time that he may call for it.

I remain, with grateful greetings, Dear Sir and Brother, Faithfully and fraternally yours,

WM. TERBS, P.M. 185,

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to offer my thanks for the article which appears in the Freemason of to-day. There is, however, a point on which you seem to have somewhat misunderstood my case, and on which it is desirable that I should make a correction.

It is true that it was impossible for me to be in London on the day selected by the "Great Prior's Council," the 26th Nov. last. But I did not suggest to the governing body of "The Order of the Temple" that I would obey its summons for any other day. I was, and am, ready to appear before it, or before any body composed entirely of Masons, who may desire to hear my views as a Mason on certain matters, on any day when I can do so, if invited. But I deny the right of "The Order of the Temple" to summon me to give explanations to it upon any matter concerning a Masonic question; and the ground on which I stand is, that having distinctly asserted itself to be not a Masonic body, "The Order of the Temple" has no power over or right of interference in any Masonic matter. Having carefully considered the position of this new Order of Knighthood, as announced by its own acts, and by the explanatory letters addressed to me and to others by Sir P. Colquhoun, I have adopted its own view, that although its members are selected from amongst Masons, it is not a Masonic body. It therefore has, as such, no authority over a Mason, as a Mason, any more than a club composed of soldiers can have authority, as such, to meddle with the regulations and orders for the army.

I had on the 8th August, 1874, severed my connection with the Masonic Degree of the Temple, a purely Masonic body, on account of the conduct of a Masonic Templar, who happens to be also, as I understand, one of Sir P. Colquhoun's "Knights." I made no charge against him, but, the facts being indisputable, I simply withdrew from continuing to be a Masonic Templar, (to which position he had introduced me), because I considered that if Masonic Templars could act as this one had acted, then it was no longer creditable to be known as one, and I best consulted my own self-respect by ceasing to be one. I informed the person, who at the time of the disappearance of the government of the Masonic Order of the Temple, was its Secretary, of my having done so. It was not until three months afterwards that, by mixing up Masonic with non-Masonic matters, and by assuming authority over me as a "Knight of the Order of the Temple" (a position which I have never held, and which, even if I had held, could not possibly entail any allegiance to the new Order), that it was sought to punish me as a Mason. The Mark Degree, a Masonic body, has been misled into a practical approval and endorsement of these tactics; and it has been so led because it has not, under the rule of the Great Prior, had sufficient moral courage to say that the treaty which, on the 13th March, 1871, the Earl of Limerick signed on behalf of a Masonic body ceased to be valid when (in December, 1872,) that body disappeared; and to declare that, if on any Masonic principles the treaty could now, as between Masonic and non-Masonic parties, be considered binding, the Mark degree, a society of free Masons and free Englishmen, declines to carry it out to condemn a brother Mark Mason unheard.

I have objected on purely Masonic grounds to the course taken by Sir P. Colquhoun and his friends during the last two years-and-a-half. This public view has caused in some quarters a personal enmity to me which is at the bottom of my expulsion from the Mark Degree, an expulsion on account of which, except for the sake of those who have procured it, I feel no shame.

I must apologise for occupying so much of your space. I am anxious that it should not go to the outer world that a Masonic body can, treaty or no treaty, rest under the imputation of having condemned unheard a Mason who has been guilty of no offence against Mark Masonry, and only asks for justice.

Faithfully yours,
July 24th, 1875.

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

P.S.—Since the publication of my letter in The Freemason of the 17th instant, the Mark Degree has thought it advisable to address to me a letter dated the 20th instant. If that letter be intended as an explanation it comes too late,—if an apology it has no value,—in any case it had been better for the Mark Degree not to have written it. Of the intention of the rulers of the Mark to try to damage my Masonic character by the expulsion, there is not the slightest room for doubt, seeing that my written request that the notice to Mark lodges of my expulsion from the degree might be accompanied by a copy of correspondence, showing that the expulsion was not caused by any offence against any Masonic principle, was in writing refused.

C. J. B.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The questions involved in Bro. Burgess's case are surely very simple.

1. Did he in his letter to the Vice-Chancellor of the Temple, begging to have his name removed from the roll of the Order, bring at the same time an odious charge of disgraceful conduct against another member, assigning this as his reason for resigning, and attempting to shelter himself from the consequences of his charge by heading his letter "Private?"

2. Did he take every means to prevent the official letters of the Temple authorities from reaching him? And when at last a summons to attend and prove or withdraw his offensive charge did reach him, did he neglect to attend?

3. After he had appealed to the judicial Council, (on which, out of seven members, there was only one representative of the Temple), and when he had every opportunity of defence or explanation afforded him, did he express any willingness either to prove or to withdraw his charge, even at the eleventh hour. Or was his only answer a letter couched in the most abusive and childish terms against certain authorities of the Temple, and ignoring altogether the specific charge against him—viz., having maligned a brother's character, and not coming forward like a man and a Mason, either to prove or withdraw his charge? I venture to think then that Bro. Burgess has only himself to thank for the position in which he finds himself.

The general necessity for a common discipline amongst the more select degrees arises from this, that they claim to be select; and that it is unfair to ask or expect gentlemen to meet those, whether in one degree or another of which they are members, who have been guilty of conduct which unfits them for the society of gentlemen. I fully admit that a great distinction must be drawn between what may be called mere breaches of Masonic discipline and dishonourable conduct.

In the former case, the sentence of one degree ought certainly not to be carried out in the others; and this is what the supreme court of appeal "the Judicial Council," consisting of three members chosen by each degree) was constituted to secure. Possibly it might be well to give greater security for the observance of this important distinction, by making the unanimous consent of the representatives of each degree necessary to the carrying out of a sentence in that degree. A great deal has been made of the dropping of the word "Masonic" by the Temple. I think it was ill-judged to drop it. But still it is really a perfectly unimportant matter. The word does not occur in the convention between the Mark Degree and the Temple in 1871. It has never been adopted by the 33°. It was only recently adopted by the Mark Degree, who for a long time were only "Mark Masters," and not Mark Master "Masons." And it is defined in the convention with the Red Cross of Constantine to mean "A Chivalric Order composed solely of Master Masons." I am not aware that the Order of the Temple consists of any others.

A MARK MASTER.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF KENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the letter you did me the honour of publishing in your last number there is an error in the number of subscribing members in the province. It should be 1950, and not 2950, as you have it. I also omitted to mention that a sum of over £500 has been voted out of the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund as donations to the three Masonic Institutions.

I am, Sir, yours fraternally,
Maidstone, July 21st, 1875.

ALFRED SPENCER.

BRO. CAPTAIN BOYTON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Negotiations are now pending between the Alexandra Palace Company, Limited, Muswell Hill, and myself, with the view of arranging for Bro. Captain Boyton to give two exhibitions of his life-saving dress, and certain feats in connection therewith, on Saturday, the 7th day of August, the proceeds coming to our brother to be applied by him in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Institutions for Boys and Girls, and he hopes that the members of the Craft generally will patronise these entertainments by attending in large numbers.

I am not yet in a position to say that the arrangements are completed, but as I have every hope that the scheme will be carried out, I have thought it best to call the attention of the Craft to the subject through your paper as early as possible, inasmuch as if I refrained from writing you until the matter was settled you would not be able to give much notice, as your next issue would only appear the day before the entertainments would come off.

The brethren must therefore please watch the company's advertisements in the daily papers and their posters also. Yours fraternally, W. H. GODOLPHIN, I.G. 206.

Mulum in Darbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

WAS SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN A FREEMASON?

Bro. Buchan asks this question in the last Freemason, and I venture to answer it in the affirmative to-day. Independently of the statement that the Postboy from March 2 to March 5, 1723, as quoted by Bro. Buchan from the Freemason's Magazine, calls him that "worthy Freemason," proving the general acceptance of the fact, we have other evidences to the same effect. If the quotation from the Postboy is correct we might probably find the account of the funeral there, and I will have a search made in the British Museum. The date of the funeral is not given in Elmes's "Life of Wren," only the date of his death, Feb. 25, 1723, and the fact that he was buried at St. Paul's, and that "an assemblage of honourable and distinguished personages" attended his funeral. Elmes in his "Life of Wren," just quoted, states, though he gives no authority for it, that Sir Christopher Wren was nominated in 1666 Deputy G. Master under Earl Rivers, and "distinguished himself above all his predecessors in legislating for the body at large, and in promoting the interests of the lodges under his immediate care." Where he obtains the evidence of this statement he does not say.

He adds that he was "Master of the St. Paul's Lodge, which, during the building of the Cathedral, assembled at the Goose and Gridiron in St. Paul's Churchyard, and is now the Lodge of Antiquity, acting by immemorial prescription, and regularly presided at its meetings for upwards of eighteen years."

Neither does he tell us whence he obtains these facts. Elmes is correct in saying that during his presidency he presented that lodge with three mahogany candlesticks, beautifully carved, and the trowel and mallet which he used in laying the first stone of the cathedral (June 21, 1675), and which are still highly valued by the brethren of that ancient lodge.

Unfortunately the minutes of the Lodge of Antiquity previous to the beginning of this century are lost, but the tradition is accepted and believed in at the lodge.

I feel bound to admit that in the Latin Diary, written by his son, and countersigned by himself October, 1720, three years before his death, no mention of his admission into the Fraternity occurs.

Aubrey, in a M.S. "Natural History of Wiltshire," quoted by Halliwell in his "Early History of Freemasonry in England," declares distinctly that Sir Christopher Wren was "enrolled among the members of the Fraternity," as Halliwell puts it. But he fixes the date of admission on May 18th, 1691, the Monday after Rogation Sunday, and says he is to be "adopted a brother."

This date, of course, is entirely opposed to Elmes's statement, and to that of the whole of our Masonic historians. The fact, however, remains, that on non-Masonic evidence the reality of his initiation is affirmed, and when we add to this the Masonic tradition, there can be no valid reason for doubting it or questioning it.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

I have before me, as I write, a Masonic token, which differs in some minor particulars from that described by Bro. Hughan in your issue of 12th June last. I should therefore feel obliged if that brother would examine his token again, and compare it with the following description of the one which is temporarily in my possession:—It is slightly smaller than a halfpenny of the old copper coinage, but not so heavy, and is therefore a little larger than Bro. Hughan's. The arms on the obverse are somewhat different from the arms of the Mason's Company (which I believe were those used by the "Moderns") a blazon of which appeared in the Masonic Magazine of September last. The arms on this coin may be described as follows:—Field Gules, a Chevron (query colour?) between three Castles (query colour?); on the Chevron I think there is a pair of compasses. The Crest is a globe surmounted by a dove, with wings closed. The supporters I believe to be leopards. The motto is "Amor honor et justitia." The inscription is "24th Nov., 1790, Prince of Wales elected G.M." The reverse corresponds exactly with Bro. Hughan's description, except that the article he takes to be an hour-glass I think is a bible; at the feet of the cupid are also a mallet and trowel. The letters on the rim are as sharp as the day they were stamped, and read as follows:—"Halfpenny, payable at the Black Horse, Tower Hill." This sentence differs materially from that on Bro. Hughan's, and Bro. Burdett's coins, on the former of which it is believed to run thus:—"Masonic token, Schichley, Feit, 1794," and on the latter "Masonic halfpenny token, Schichley, Feit, 1794." The date 1794 upon both somewhat puzzles me. Why should they not have been made until 1794, seeing that the Prince was elected in 1790?

I have been thus careful in describing my friend's token, for it would be interesting should we obtain proof that there were at least three different issues of it. Will Bros. Hughan and Burdett therefore be good enough to look at their coins again, and communicate to this column of the Freemason?

A may add that the halfpenny I have described appears so fresh that I cannot help concluding it was withdrawn from circulating immediately on its issue, probably by the owner's great-grand-father, who was a distinguished Mason of the last century, and in whose family it has no doubt been handed down from father to son to the present time.

There are two Masonic medals belonging to the same family, which I hope to describe in the next issue of the Freemason. E.S.

Can you, or any of your readers, tell me the registered number of the Sussex Lodge, or of the assembly of Masons at the Sussex Arms, at Kensington Palace, in the year 1841? ALPHA.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF ESSEX.

The annual meeting of the above lodge was held at the "Corn Exchange," Rochford, on Tuesday, (20th inst.), under the banner of the Rochford Lodge, No. 160.

Every lodge in the county was represented, with one exception only, that of the "Star in the East" of Harwich. It was much to be regretted that the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, R. J. Bagshaw, Esq., was unable to be present at the meeting, owing to a severe illness from which he has been suffering, it is stated, for several months past. The duties of the chair, however, were most efficiently carried out by Bro. Clark, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, who is well known throughout the province to be as staunch a member of the Craft as he is generous and kind-hearted. After the banquet, which was excellently served in the grounds of the "Old Ship Hotel," at which upwards of 100 brethren did duty in a most praiseworthy manner, the brethren repaired to their lodge room, where they were entertained with some charming part songs and solos, under the direction of Bro. T. Lawler, jun., assisted, amongst several others, by Bros. G. T. Carter, and Lawler, sen. A name in connection with the arrangements, must not be omitted, it is that of Bro. J. A. Wardell, whose strenuous efforts to give general satisfaction were, we are happy to say, crowned with well-deserved success.

THE PROVINCE OF MIDDLESEX.

A most successful meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex was held on Monday, at Hampton Court,—successful both as regards the numbers attending, and the weather which greeted the brethren on their visit to the country. The Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Greyhound Hotel, opposite to the favourite palace of William of Orange, who, Masonic history states, held a lodge within its lion-guarded walls, and practised the mysteries of the craft with his faithful Dutch friends as a relief and pastime when not engaged in campaigns with Louis, "Le Grand Monarque," or in overthrowing the plottings of Jesuitical Jacobins. Monday's meeting was held under happier auspices, and the Royal Lodge within the walls of Hampton Palace 180 years ago would have been disposed to envy, if it could have conjured up a view of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, the peace, almost verging on dulness, of the times in which the brethren of to-day pursue the even tenour of their Masonic way.

The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Colonel Burdett, at the opening of the lodge was supported by Bro. S. Rosenthal, S.W.; Bro. Angelo J. Lewis, J.W.; the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, and the Rev. P. Holden, Chaplains, the other officers being R. Wentworth Little, J. T. Moss, G. Kenning, Cubitt, P.G.P., Buss, Davison, etc. There were also among those present Captain G. A. Smith, Major Harding, Colonel Peters (P.M. Thames Valley), J. Savage, Major Creaton, the Rev. W. F. Reynolds (Apollo and Carnarvon), J. Terry, D.C. of the P.G.L. of Herts; J. White, W.M. 228; H. Phythian, W. Hammond, J. Lewis Thomas, Hastings Miller, Howe, Still, W. H. Thompson, Dr. Joseph Sharp, Muggeridge, Towell, etc.

The business of the lodge commenced with the election of Treasurer, and Bro. Buss, who had held the position from the formation of the Provincial Grand Lodge, was, on the nomination of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, unanimously re-elected.

Bro. Little then read a report on the progress and present position of the province. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex had progressed greatly, for the number of Lodges was increased from 8 to 20, and the brethren from 200 to more than 1000, and this, too, by the introduction of brethren who were prepared to fulfil their obligations to the full. The statement urged lodges to be earnestly discriminating so as to keep the order's high character. That the brethren in the province acted truly on the Masonic principle was seen in the fact that £1,160 had been subscribed to the Masonic charities, besides the large sums given by some of the brethren as members of London lodges.

Bro. Davison said, amid the assenting applause of the brethren, that the report was a most satisfactory one, and he moved that it should be printed for circulation among the brethren connected with the province.

Bro. Rosenthal seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted.

The Provincial Grand Master, in proceeding to appoint and invest his officers for the year, said that the lodge had had the benefit of the services of excellent officers hitherto, and he had much gratification in acknowledging the benefit the lodge had thus received. It was most satisfactory for the lodge, and was, indeed, a mark of its flourishing condition, that the officers whom he had selected would follow in the footsteps of those who had preceded them in maintaining the high position the lodge had attained in the craft. The officers whose services the lodge had had deserved well of the brethren, for they had had many difficulties to overcome—for difficulties must always attend the establishment, on so firm a basis as this lodge now stood, of any new organization, such as a Provincial Grand Lodge, especially for an important province like that of Middlesex. (Hear, hear.) The brethren who had discharged the duties of officers to the lodge were actuated with the best and most unselfish feelings, and as an instance he would mention that Bro. J. C. Parkinson, who had worthily filled the office of Dep. P.G.M., and was well known for the great work he had done in the craft, as well as for his vindication of its principles (cheers) had set an example of unselfish feeling by sending in his resignation of his office in order that some other brother might enjoy that position. (Cheers.) This was an excellent precedent, and it would be a beneficial precedent to follow in the future—that all offices should be resigned year by year, in order that the P.G.M. should have the opportunity of re-investing the brother, or of appointing a successor. It was with much pleasure that he nominated Bro. Sir George Elliot, M.P., as Dep. P.G.M. (Cheers.) The other officers whose names would be stated as the officers for the year would give equal pleasure, not only to the brethren present, but to all who knew them, for they would be found to be all worthy and hardworking members of the order. The brother to be nominated as S.W., was one who was acknowledged to be one of the hardest working Masons who could be named, and, indeed, the high position the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex held in the order was greatly due to his activity, zeal and efficiency—he referred to Bro. Little (loud cheers)—upon that brother he now bestowed the collar and office of S.G.W. of the province.

Bro. Little was then invested and conducted to his position amid the loud cheers and congratulations of the members.

The P.G.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest the following other officers:—Bros. Joseph Sharpe, L.L.D., as J. W.; the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, and the Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplains; W. H. Thompson as Registrar; H. Phythian as Secretary; Colonel Peters as S.D.; W. Hammond as J.D.; J. Lewis Thomas as Superintendent of Works; and Bros. Still, J. H. Thompson, Hastings Miller and Howe to the junior offices.

The P.G.M. warmly thanked the past officers and stewards for the manner in which they had performed their offices during the year, and then moved that the sum of ten guineas be given out of the Benevolent Fund to the Girl's School; the like sum to the Boy's School, and £10 to the Benevolent Institution.

Bro. Davison seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The P.G.M. then adjourned "sine die" the subject, which had been referred to a committee, of the appointment of P.G. officers in the province, and the lodge closed in the usual form.

The brethren then proceeded to Hampton Church to hear a sermon preached by Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden. Whether they were startled by the appearance of the Rev. Bro. in a Romish biretta, or preferred the walk through the Park to the road, it must be said that few selected the narrow way which led to the church by the river. There was a fair muster of the brethren in the church clothed in the orthodox black coat and white gloves, and showed their connection with recognized religious ceremony by attending public worship. There was an assemblage of the general public who appeared rather startled at finding that the Freemasons were much as other people, and were not given to any extravagance of demeanour in or out of church. The service was in the pleasant old English form, in all things being what any sincere lover of worship to God would esteem, the form in which public worship should be. The preacher, on ascending the pulpit, turned to the east, and uttered an invocation to the Trinity. He gave as his text the 11th verse in the 4th chapter of the 1st Epistle general of St. John, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." The sermon was marked by great force in parts, but in the endeavour of the preacher to identify the craft as belonging to one particular system of religion, there was much room for criticism. This point was urged, and extremely broad references were made to the ceremonies of the craft.

The banquet was held at the "Greyhound," and a very large party sat down, including Bros. Sir G. Elliot, M.P.; J. C. Parkinson, F. Binckes, and many others who had not been present at the lodge or the sermon. The toast of the "Queen and the Craft" was received with the customary enthusiasm, and the National Anthem was well chanted by the vocalists under Bro. C. Coote, P.G.O., the artistes including Madame Thaddeus Wells, Bro. George Perren, and Bro. H. Lazarus.

The P.G.M., in proposing the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," said this was a toast which would be received with the utmost enthusiasm, for not only did it relate to the heir to the throne, but to the G.M. of England, who was installed amid the hearty rejoicings of Freemasons over the world. (Cheers.) The Prince had been in the craft for some time, and he had the good of Freemasonry at heart, as all who saw the interest he took in the craft knew, and there was not one who felt other than proud that the future king of this great empire reigned over the English branch of the craft as its Grand Master. (Cheers.)

The vocalists sang the quartette, "Cambrian Plumes" (by Brinley Richards), in a manner which elicited loud applause.

The P.G.M. then proposed the "Health of the Pro-Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," and said he was sure the name would be received with sympathy and respect—(cheers). The craft had seen his lordship perform the duties of D.G.M. for a number of years, and his elevation to the position of Pro-Grand Master was hailed with rejoicing by all the brethren—(cheers). All knew of the great loss which befell his lordship not long since, and those who saw him at Albert Hall could not but admire the noble fortitude he showed under his deep sorrow—(hear, hear). They could not, too, but see that he put by his grief to serve the craft, and every one in the hall on that occasion grieved with him as a brother at that deep and terrible loss—(hear). Very recently, too, his lordship had again showed how deep was his interest in the craft, by exercising his influence for the Boys' School, in presiding over the annual festival at the Alexandra Palace, when the proceedings were so successful that the amount of contributions obtained was the largest ever received at any festival of any one of the charities—(cheers). Bro. Binckes, the secretary of that institution, must have been a very proud man to stand at the top of the tree with so noble an array of subscriptions; but large as was the amount gathered at the Alexandra Palace, it was to be hoped that it will be eclipsed next year by the other charities, and that each would thus go on from year to year increasing in substance and usefulness—(cheers).

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and Bro. Lazarus gave some charming airs on the clarinet.

The P.G.M. then proposed the "Health of the Dep. G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said he could not find words to express his true feelings in regard to the Grand Officers, so highly did he esteem them. Lord Skelmersdale was a nobleman who had lately taken high office, and all who had had to do with G.L. had seen the great trouble he had taken to discharge all the duties of his office. Even in the midst of great anxieties his lordship went to the opening of the new Camberwell Hall, and he went simply because he felt himself under an obligation not to disappoint his brethren, and he would not permit his private troubles to intervene between him and what he considered his duty to the craft—(cheers). It was a pleasant thing for the brethren of the Prov. G.L. of Middlesex that they had that evening among them their well-known friend and brother, Bro. Parkinson—(cheers)—whose exertions on behalf of the province and the craft they all knew—(cheers)—and Bro. Cubitt, both representatives of the Grand Lodge of England. (Cheers.)

The song, "Come into the garden, Maud," was sung with fine force by Bro. George Perren, whose performance was warmly cheered.

Bro. Parkinson, in responding for the Grand Officers, said it was fortunate for the Grand Officers that from the constitutional character of our Order, their position was but representative, as otherwise they would have considerable difficulty in responding to the toasts which their brethren were on these occasions in the habit of giving in their favour. On behalf of his brother Grand Officers he begged to assure the members of the craft that they highly valued their positions, particularly as the positions gave them the opportunity of responding to the kind wishes expressed by the brethren towards the rulers in the craft. For Lord Skelmersdale, whose winning manners and amiable character had won for him the esteem of all men in public as well as in private life, he had great pleasure in responding, and it was indeed a privilege to answer for his lordship on such occasions (cheers). With reference to the services which the Provincial Grand Master was pleased to say he (Bro. Parkinson) had done for Freemasonry, he for his part begged to express his gratitude to the brethren for the kind courtesy they showed towards him while acting as the Deputy of the Provincial Grand Master. While holding the delegated authority of the Grand Master of the Province, it was his desire to fill the position with credit. He felt that he had but one chance, and that was by concealing his disagreeable qualities as much as possible, and to put on an air of amiability, in fact to resemble Colonel Burdett. (Laughter and cheers.) If he (Bro. Parkinson) had succeeded in winning the favour of the brethren, it was simply by his imitation of their Provincial Grand Master, by following whose manners and ways had proved the best passport to their favours. (Cheers.) It would be but reciprocating the kindness of Col. Burdett to ask the brethren to drink to the good health and prosperity of their beloved chief in the Province. (Cheers.) Middlesex, as a Province, had not had a Grand Lodge long, for it was so merged into the capital, that it was hard to say where the capital ended and the Province began, and thus the Provincial Grand Lodge had its difficulties; but when the Provincial Grand Lodge commenced, it had the singular good fortune to find a brother who was a Past Grand Warden of England, who for thirty years had devoted himself and his great talents to the best interests of the craft, and thus, when it commenced its career with a brother like Colonel Burdett, it would have been easy to prophecy that success would attend a Grand Lodge thus inaugurated. Had such a prophecy been made, that day would have seen its fulfilment, for the province had made such rapid strides as had placed it in the front rank—(cheers). When a ship made a good voyage there was, without doubt, the assurance that she had a good Captain, and how the good ship the Prov. G.L. of Middlesex has made so good a voyage it must be allowed that much credit is due to Colonel Burdett—(cheers). It would not be well, perhaps, to say all they felt in regard to their Prov. Grand Master, but it must be allowed that he was not a Tycoon—(a laugh)—or like that Indian God who was always contemplating his own perfections—(laughter)—but he was one with whom to be associated was an honour, and to know to esteem—(cheers).

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm.

The P.G.M. responded to the toast, and then proceeded to speak of the gratification with which he had placed Sir George Elliot in the position of Deputy Grand Master. He spoke also of the assistance he had received from Bro. Little and the other Prov. G. Officers, and concluded by proposing the toast of Sir Geo. Elliot's health.

Sir George Elliot, M.P., the D.G.M., in response, thanked the brethren, and excused himself from further addressing them, on the score of being recalled to his duties in the House of Commons.

The other toasts, given in a greatly lessened company, for many had to leave to catch trains for town, were, "The Visitors," "The Masonic Charities," "The Provincial Grand Stewards," and concluded with "The Tyler's" toast, given by Bro. Gilbert, who, it may be added, was unanimously re-elected Tyler.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire was held under the banner of the Lodge of Three Grand Principles, Dewsbury, on Wednesday, the 21st instant, under the presidency of the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., of Halifax, and there was a very large gathering of Masons from every district of West Yorkshire present, as well as a number of visitors. After the transaction of some provincial business, and it having been determined previously to make some recognition of the Provincial Grand Lodge's application of the valuable services rendered by Bro. Bentley Shaw, P.G.D. of England as Deputy Provincial Grand Master for eleven years,

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Henry Edwards offered on behalf of the lodge for the acceptance of Bro. Shaw, a magnificent piece of plate with appropriate inscription and emblems, as a substantial and permanent proof of the brethren's affection, esteem, and regard, and sincere regret at his voluntary retirement. In offering the plate,

The R.W.P.G.M., Sir Henry Edwards, after a few preliminary remarks, said: Brethren,—If you refer to the summons convening this meeting you will observe that one of the most pleasing duties which it is possible to fall to the lot of any living being, now devolves upon me, in presenting to our much esteemed Bro. Bentley Shaw, the piece of plate which you have provided for that purpose. I sincerely congratulate myself on being selected to discharge this pleasant duty, inasmuch as it enables me, whilst speaking your sentiments, to express my own sense of the great and lasting obligations which Bro. Shaw has laid upon us all by the manner in which he has discharged his various and important duties whilst holding the position of D.P.G.M. of this province, during the period of 11 years just expired. Any words of mine are inadequate to the faithful description of the feelings of respect and admiration with which we all regard Bro. Shaw; and the only circumstances of regret with which the assumption of my present office was associated was the fact that those services found to be so useful and valuable to my predecessor could not be continued to my advantage. Bro. Shaw's exertions in promoting the best interests of our noble institution are well-known, both in the province and in other parts of England. During the 11 long years he has exercised his fraternal—nay, even paternal—supervision of the business of this great province, he has seen the lodges and the members thereof increase in numbers and influence. He has also aided and directed the great current of practical charity, which has so greatly increased the means and spheres of usefulness of the several charities of our order, and it is no figure of speech, nor unwarrantable statement of facts, to say that on all these great movements the name of Bro. Shaw has been indelibly impressed, to be admired by the present and future generations of the brethren of the craft. Bro. Shaw, permit me, therefore, to tender for your acceptance this token of the respect and admiration in which the brethren of this province desire to confer upon you; and also permit me to say, on their behalf that, beautiful as it is as a work of art, it possesses a far higher value than its material worth ten thousand times told—in being the freewill offering and also the symbolical expression of the affectionate regard of a body of men intimately and agreeably associated with you in the business of the province, and whose only regret while making this presentation is that they will, in the future, lose the advantage they have long enjoyed and appreciated in the past of working under the influence of your general character, and conduct as their D.P.G.M.

Bro. Tew, the D.P.G.M., cordially responded to the sentiments expressed by Sir H. Edwards, paid a high compliment to the indefatigable zeal of Bro. Shaw, and intimated that no fewer than 59 lodges in the province of West Yorkshire had voluntarily subscribed to the gift of which Bro. Shaw was the recipient.

Bro. Bentley Shaw, who was visibly affected on rising to respond, after the cheering that greeted him had subsided, said: Most Worshipful Sir and Brother-officers,—You have heard my voice; often have I had the privilege of addressing you, but I have never had so much difficulty before the present time in making my sentiments known to you. Your generous gift—your generous memento of my connection with the Masons of West Yorkshire has almost overwhelmed me. You must not measure my thanks by any words I may use, as I feel unequal to the task. I have often asked myself, What have I done to deserve this signal of your favour? I have often asked, What have I done to warrant such a proof of your love and esteem? All the answer I can find is, that, while I had the approval of my conscience and of my God, I have striven to do my duty and all I possibly could to preserve Freemasonry. (Cheers.) Yet I feel how utterly unworthy I am to be the recipient of such a mark of your favour. (No, no.) I never dreamed of it. I may truly say that I never worked for this beautiful piece of plate; and in answer to the many questions which I have this day put to myself, I can find but one reply, and that is—a deep consciousness that I am unworthy of it. (No, no.) But let me endeavour to thank you for the valuable present you have given me—a present which is a beautiful work of art. I shall always value it—not only for its worth, its classic, and at the same time chasteness of design, its rich ornamentation and its general beauty, but more than this, I shall value it because of the genuineness of feeling you have displayed towards me. I cannot fail to value it because it is an expressive symbol of generous hearts, for yours and mine are "Hearts bound up together, Firm bound in fraternal love,"

and it will help me to think of the 11 years' connection with you. It will also assist me in making me do my duty. My family will always prize it for my own sake as well as yours. (Cheers.) I shall take care that it is handed down as a sacred heirloom. I take the liberty here of thanking the committee of selection for the handsome present; and yourself Most Worshipful Grand Master, as well as Lady Edwards—(cheers)—who if I am correctly informed, have greatly assisted the committee in their choice. (Hear, hear.) I desire to say here that it is a matter for congratulation that the present has been made to me in the good old town of Dewsbury—(cheers)—the town where Dr. Fearnley, my predecessor, lived, was loved, was honoured, and died. I am glad, too, that it has been your province, Most Worshipful Grand Master, to present me with this handsome gift; for eleven years ago, I well remember, when your Right Worshipful's predecessor conferred the honour of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, you, sir, were on my right hand. I am glad that you are present to day. I accept the gift with gratitude and deep humility. I trust that, as Sir Henry Edwards has said, I shall never cease to promote Freemasonry until my heart has ceased to beat and my life has left me. Let my last words be that you will show affection to the Grand Master of England, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales—(cheers)—to Sir Henry Edwards—(cheers)—and to his coadjutor, Bro. Tew. May this great and influential province of the West Riding ever stand first and foremost in all that is beautiful and good, useful and happy in Freemasonry. May that noble column, symbolised by wisdom, strength, and beauty, whose pedestal, shaft, and capital have been founded, upraised, and crowned by the indomitable skill, energy, and self-denying efforts of her numerous sons stand inviolable amid the raging billows and rude rocks of time, seeing that it has now its foundations, as I trust it ever will have, in heaven-born and heaven-approving charity. Bro. Shaw, who at periods evinced great emotion, and consequently was but indistinctly heard, then resumed his seat amid immense cheering.

The Right Worshipful Grand Master announced that Bro. Bentley Shaw had received from the Grand Master of England a patent appointing him a P.G.D. of England—a remark which elicited a hearty issue of cheering. Some routine business having been transacted, the Prov. Grand Lodge and the Lodge of the Three Grand Principles were closed.

After the conclusion of the lodge business a banquet was given in the Church of England Schoolroom, and after the dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. The gathering was a highly successful one.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF HAMPSHIRE AND ISLE OF WIGHT.

The Grand Lodge of the province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight assembled at the Town Hall, Ryde, on Thursday, the 22nd inst., when there was a large attendance of past and present Prov. Grand Officers, and representatives from nearly all the twenty-eight lodges of the province, including Bros. T. Diver, 757; M. Alex, 130; J. Wallingford, 903; T. Best, 1373; G. S. Lancaster, 487; J. Naish, 76; Major Shadwell Clerke, 1383; J. Fardell, 12; H. Cante, 342; H. Ward, 112; Col. the Hon. S. Calthorpe, 175; H. Ford, 257; J. H. Palmer, 698; W. Edmonds, 309; J. Dew, 694; F. F. Hare, 394; E. B. C. Churchill, 903; E. Nepean, 1373; M. E. Frost, 487; J. E. Le Feuvre, 130; F. Newnan, 175; J. H. Scott, 271; S. Brown, 175; S. P. Everett, 96; H. Hacker, 723; Capt. Richardson, R.E., 1331; H. P. Aslatt, 394; W. Furber, 394; P. Keane, 130; H. Abraham, 130; S. Brown, 175; B. Pinniger, 175; H. J. Guy, 342; H. T. Bath, 319; J. McWilliam, 195; G. H. Burtenshaw, 359; E. S. Main, 903; J. Maltby, 487; H. Sleeman, 903; J. Wilson, 903, &c., &c. The Town Hall was admirably arranged for the occasion; and shortly after the appointed time—12.30—the R.W. Prov. G.M., Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., was received at the entrance by his officers, and escorted to his chair in the large room with the usual masonic honours. The minutes of the last Prov. Grand Lodge having been read and confirmed, Bro. W. Hickman, as P.G.S., submitted the report of the committee for auditing the treasurer's accounts, and also that of the committee for managing the P.G.L. funds. The latter recommended grants of £12 to Bro. Dawkins, for many years P.G. Tyler, who is now incapacitated by age and infirmity; £15 to Mrs. Cohen, of Winchester; £20 to Mrs. Bradshaw; and £20 to Mrs. Stebbing. The Treasurer's account showed a balance in hand of rather more than £300; and Bro. Le Feuvre suggested that a larger sum should be contributed by the province to the Masonic charities. The committee for raising a fund for the widow of the late Bro. Stebbing reported that the total sum amounted to about £430, and it was probable that the subscription of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce might be merged in it, the intention being to purchase an annuity for Mrs. Stebbing's benefit. The report of the Charities Committee was also brought up and approved, the several committees were appointed, and a series of resolutions were adopted impressing upon Masters of lodges and Masons generally the importance of exercising the greatest care in regulating admissions to the Masonic body.

The Prov. G.M. said, when they assembled last year it was under a deep sense of the loss which had been sustained by the death of W. Bro. Stebbing, who had so ably filled the position of Deputy Prov. G.M. The feeling then manifested showed how completely he had ingratiated himself into the hearts of all the brethren of the province, and the warmest testimony to his merits as a Freemason was expressed on every hand. He (the P.G.M.) felt that it would be a very difficult thing to supply his place; and that, seeing how long and eminent had been his services to the craft, anyone who succeeded to his position, in order to fill it properly must possess undoubted qualifications. He (the P.G.M.) felt that it would be only respectful to the memory of their departed brother not to be in a hurry to fill up the appointment, but to let a reasonable time elapse before doing so, and he trusted that in adopting this course he had met with the approval of the brethren (hear, hear). The time had now arrived when he could no longer defer making the appointment; and he was very pleased to be able to select a brother who had rendered very great and efficient service to Freemasonry, not only in this province but in other parts of England, having been selected by the Grand Master of the Order to fill an office in G.L. Bro. Hickman—(applause)—had served the office of Prov. G. Sec. for many years, and any who reflected upon the extent and character of the duties involved in that office, must be sensible that it was no light service he had rendered to the province—(hear, hear). When they thought of the numerous list of lodges ranging under the banner of that Prov. G.L., it must be at once apparent that the office of G. Sec. was no sinecure—(hear, hear); and while all the brethren were indebted to Bro. Hickman for the manner in which he had discharged his duties, he (the P.G.M.) had special reason to thank him for the able and efficient assistance he had rendered to him in carrying out the responsibilities devolving upon him as G.M. of the province. It was essential that he should be supported by officers who were capable of assisting him in the details of his work; in Bro. Hickman he had met with one who was both able and willing to render that assistance—(hear, hear); and it now gave him great pleasure to offer him the office which had been so long vacant, knowing as he did that the Masons of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight looked up to him with esteem and affection, and entertained a confident belief that he would most worthily and efficiently discharge the duties of the high office which he (the P.G.M.) now conferred upon him.—(applause).

The Dep. Prov. G.M. was then inducted into office in the usual way, and having subscribed the obligation, was duly invested by the P.G.M., and saluted by the brethren. He then thanked the Prov. G.M. most sincerely for the high and distinguished honour he had been pleased to confer upon him. He had been for many years connected with Freemasonry in this province, and had received great assistance in the office which he had just vacated from the brethren of the province. He was sure, therefore, that it was unnecessary to ask them to continue that assistance and co-operation in the distinguished office which had just been conferred upon him—(hear, hear). He appreciated very much the distinction which the P.G.M. had been pleased to bestow, and while most heartily and sincerely thanking him, he could assure him that any assistance it was in his power to render him in discharging the important duties devolving upon him as G.M. of the province would be most cheerfully and cordially rendered.—(applause).

The P.G.M. then nominated the various officers of the province, the principal being—P.S.G.W., Bro. S. Forbes, Portsmouth; P.J.G.W., Bro. Fardell, Ryde; P.G. Chaps., Revs. Messrs. Churchill and Thoys; P.G.T., Bro. M. E. Frost, Portsmouth; P.G. Reg., Bro. Lillywhite; P.G. Sec., Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Southampton; P.S.G.D., Bro. J. B. Thomas, Southampton; P.J.G.D., Bro. W. Stickland; P.G.S.W., Bro. T. Giles; Tyler, Bro. Biggs.

In appointing Bro. Le Feuvre as P.G. Sec., the P.G.M. alluded to the fact that he had already had experience in the office, having filled it in conjunction with Bro. Hickman; but as the G.L. would not sanction the appointment of two P.G. Secs., they were obliged last year to restrict it to Bro. Hickman. Bro. Le Feuvre was well known to them as a most efficient Mason; and as the duties of the office were by no means light, it might perhaps be advisable hereafter to appoint an assistant secretary, although he could not be included among the officers of the G.L.—Bro. Le Feuvre, in accepting the office, said he would consider the suggestion, and communicate with the P.G.M. on the subject.

The P.G.M., before closing the lodge, remarked upon the indications which came to him from every hand of the growing interest taken in Masonry, and the progress now being made throughout the province. It was also satisfactory that there was an increasing desire to maintain the status of the craft, and to admit none to participation in its privileges who were not true and worthy citizens. It was very gratifying to him that they were able to meet in that magnificent hall, and that such a hearty welcome should be extended to them by the Isle of Wight. When he was appointed to the office he now held, it was the wish of the G.L. that the Isle of Wight should cease to be a separate province, and that he should preside over the interests of Freemasonry both in Hampshire and the Isle of Wight as one united province. He felt that the brethren in the Island might not like to surrender their separate existence, and that they should be permitted to continue as a province of their own. Representations to this effect were made to G.L., but the Grand Master decided that the provinces should be united in one under his rule, and therefore he had no alternative but to loyally recognize the authority thus expressed. The P.G.M. expressed his appreciation of the ready assistance accorded to him by all the brethren of the province.

The lodge was then closed, and a banquet followed, under the presidency of the P.G.M. The usual loyal, masonic and complimentary toasts concluded the proceedings.

Bro. W. Hickman, the newly-appointed D.P.G. Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, is a solicitor at Southampton, and an alderman and late mayor of that borough. He was initiated in the Royal Glo'ster Lodge, No. 130, in the year 1857, and afterwards became W.M. of that lodge. He has also been W.M. of the Southampton Lodge, No. 394, for two years successively. He has been First Principal of the Royal Glo'ster Chapter (two years), Chapter of Concord on two occasions, and of the New Forest Chapter. He was first appointed Prov. G. Sec. in 1860, and has continued in that office to the present time, except for one year, when he was appointed P.S.G.W. He has held the appointment of Asst. G.D. of Cer. in the G.L. of England. He is Dep. Prov. G.M. in Mark Masonry; an officer in the Great Priory of England of K.T.; and is of the 31° in the A. and A. Rite of Rose Croix.

CHIVALRIC MASONRY.

MARGATE.—The Thanet Conclave of Knights of Rome, and of the Red Cross of Constantine, No. 121.

The inauguration of this Conclave took place on Wednesday, the 21st inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, under the most favourable auspices. The enthronement of the M.P.S. Sir Kt. Mannering W. Bolton, as First Sovereign, and the consecration of the V.E. Sir Kt. T. M. Compton, as First Viceroy, the dedication of the Conclave, and the installation of many eminent brethren as Companions of the Illustrious Order, were intrusted to the superintendence of Bros. the V.I. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little, P.G.S.G., G.T., &c.; the Ill. Sir Kts. H. A. Dubois, A.G.T.; the Rev. P. M. Holden, P.S.; J. L. Thomas, P.S.; Percy Leith, P.S.; E. H. Thielay, P.S.; John Thomas Moss, P.S.; and the Ill. Sir Kts. George Kenning, P.S., and T. Hancock, M.P.S., who had kindly come from London and Essex to conduct the ceremonies; and great was the delight expressed by the Sir Kts. of the new Conclave, and the brethren of all Orders of Freemasonry who were present at the masterly and finished working of the V.I. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little, as Enthroning Sovereign, and the grand oratory of the Ill. Sir Kt. the Rev. P. M. Holden, as High Prelate. The attention of the newly installed Sir Kts. was particularly attracted by the sacred character of the proceedings of the Ancient Order in which they had enrolled themselves as Companions, for in this most solemn grade of Christian Masonry worked (as it was upon this occasion by such able exponents) they could not fail to be sensible of the truth of the principles that had been taught them at their initiation into the Craft—that Freemasonry is indeed "a peculiar system of morality," &c.

Many were the expressions of regret from brethren high up in Craft Masonry, who were this day installed as Sir Knights, that they had not long ago availed themselves of the opportunities offered to all M.Ms. of joining this interesting grade of Chivalric Masonry, and all were determined to pursue their researches still further into the Science.

The following brethren were installed, and each Sir Kt. had his stall allotted to him in the new Conclave:

Bros. H. W. Charrington, P.M., Royal Alfred Lodge, Guildford, 777; Henry Bolting, P.M., and W. Wells, P.M., and present W.M. of the same lodge; H. C. Fuhr, P.M., Lodge of Peace and Harmony, Dover, 199; Geo. Hills, Lewis' Lodge, Ramsgate, 429.

The consecration ceremony was then proceeded with, and completed by the V.I. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little, and the V.I. the Rev. Sir Kt. P. M. Holden, in a manner worthy of the highest praise, and the beautiful processional music was performed by the able organist of the Conclave, Sir Kt. A. Aubrey. At its close a Sanctuary of K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John was opened, and this grade was conferred upon all the Royal Arch Masons present.

The Eus. Sir Kt. Mannering W. Bolton, M.P.S. Designate, and the V.E. Sir Kt. T. M. Compton, Vy. Eus. Designate were then duly enthroned and consecrated by the presiding principals, and were welcomed to their exalted positions by the general acclamations of no less than thirty Sir Knights from all parts of England, who were present as companions and guests of the new Conclave.

The M.P.S. Sir Kt. Mannering W. Bolton, is evidently a deservedly popular favourite amongst the fraternity at Margate, and there is little doubt of his making the Conclave one of the most successful in the provinces.

The following Sir Knights have been duly installed by him, and in addition to the five Sir Kts. installed by the Enthroning Sovereign, make the total number of nineteen Knights already enrolled in the lines of the Conclave:—Sir Knights T. M. Compton, Vy. E.; W. Seales, S.G.; H. Spurrier, J.G.; W. H. Henna, H.P. and Choir Master; J. Bristed, Treasurer; F. L. Silani, Recorder; J. W. Smith, P.; G. Hills, S.B.; A. J. Cave, Herald; W. K. Treves, D.C.; J. McCubbin, 1st Aide; H. E. Davis, 2nd Aide; A. Aubrey, Organist; H. C. Fuhr, Steward; R. J. Feakins, Sentinel.

Other eight brethren have been duly balloted for and elected, and will attend for installation at the next meeting.

The M.P.S. then closed the Conclave, and the Sir Knights and their illustrious guests adjourned to their Refectory, at the King's Head Hotel, where an elegant and sumptuous banquet was served (à la Russe) by Bro. J. Smith, of which they partook.

The usual Chivalric toasts were then given and responded to, such as Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales (who is the Chief of Christian Masonry), and the Grand Officers, past and present, to which latter compliment the V.I. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little replied in a courteous manner, and highly complimented the founder of the Conclave, Sir Kt. Mannering W. Bolton, and his collaborators on the zeal they had displayed in its formation, and felt sure that the Thanet Conclave under their care would become very prosperous.

The health of the M.P.S. was then proposed and seconded by the V.I. Sir Kt. R. Wentworth Little, and the V.I. Sir Kt. J. L. Thomas, in very appropriate and eulogistic speeches, and was received by the company with great applause, and he responded in a manner that showed he felt duly sensible of the honour that had been conferred upon him by the position in Christian Masonry he now held from the Grand Council; and also that he would expound to the Sir Kts. Companions under his sovereignty the mystic rites and solemn ceremonies of the Order, with a thorough knowledge of their import. He kindly thanked the M.P.S. of the De Shurland Conclave, Sheerness, 92, the Ill. Sir Kt. John Hancock, and his officers Sir Kts. A. Ingleton, Recorder, and T. Penney, Standard Bearer, who were his guests, for the great assistance they had afforded the Thanet Conclave in assisting him in obtaining its Charter, and in lending him their beautiful paraphernalia (supplied by Sir Kt. George Kenning) for the consecration ceremony.

The health of the V.F. Sir Kt. T. M. Compton, Vy. Eus., was then proposed, and responded to by him in an effective manner.

The next important toast was that of the newly installed Sir Kts., and each in turn made neat speeches, and those from Guildford expressed themselves warmly in favour of the selection of their sovereign, as they were P.M.s of the lodge in which he was now S.D., and were gratified to see him make such laudable progress in Masonry. They also stated that they hoped to be able to establish ere long a Conclave in their own town. Sir Kt. J. McCubbin, P.M., 948, Linslade, similarly asserted that he would endeavour to form a Conclave in Berks and Bucks.

The M.P.S. then gave the toast of his officers, thanking them for their aid, and they each replied that they would continue it with fervency.

The visitors' healths were drunk with acclamation, and Sir Kts. Little and Thomas tendered their acknowledgments for the kind reception they had received; and after the Sentinel's toast had been proposed and responded to, this very delightful day's enjoyment of Masonic companionship was brought to a close with mutual congratulations on the undeniable success that had attended the inauguration of the Thanet Conclave.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Conclave, No. 35.—An assembly of the above Conclave of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine, was held at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 22nd inst. The principal business was the enthronement of Sir Knight J. E. Jackson, M.P.S. elect, the investment of officers, and installation. The throne at the opening of the Conclave was occupied by G.M. Sir Kt. T. Clark, M.P.S., and the other officers and members present were, Sir Kts. G. Turner, Int. Gen., W.L.; H. Molyneux, P.S.; J. R. Goepel, P.S.; J. G. Jackson, S.G.; R. Washington, H.P.; J. Wood, Treas.; R. Brown, Rec.; J. Skeaf, Org.; P. Ball, Sentinel; T. McWean; H. James; R. Pearson; H. Burrows; I. W. Robinson, and R. Young. Sir Knt. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, V. 97, was the only visitor present. After the transaction of some routine business, Em. Sir Kt. J. E. Jackson, was duly enthroned M.P.S. of the Conclave, by Ill. Sir Kt. G. Turner, Int. Gen.; and the following officials were subsequently invested:—Sir Kts. G. H. Turner, Viceroy, R. Brown, S.G.; J. Capell, J.G.; R. Washington, H.P.; J. Wood, Treas.; R. Young, Rec.; H. James, S.P.; H. Burrows, J.P.; R. Pearson, S.B.; J. Skeaf, Org.; P. Armstrong, Orator; T. McWean, Herald; J. R. Goepel, P.S., D.C.; and P. Ball, Tyler. It was resolved that the future meetings of the Conclave should be held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street. The assembled Knights subsequently adjourned to tea, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Obituary.

BRO. R. BATTERSBY, BURY.

On Wednesday afternoon, the 21st instant, while the steamer "Nelson" (Captain Roskell) was returning from Morecambe to Blackpool with excursionists, an object resembling a human body was seen floating below the mouth of the river Lune, some three or four miles from shore. A boat was at once lowered, and Captain Roskell and two of the crew proceeded to the spot, and succeeded in recovering what the Captain had good grounds for believing to be the body of Bro. Richard Battersby, late of Parson's-lane, Bury, aged 27 years, who, along with Bro. R. W. O'Neil, lost his life while yachting in Morecambe Bay, on the afternoon of the 20th of May last. A reward of £50 had been offered for the recovery of the body, and we need hardly say that the seafaring folk along the coast of Morecambe Bay and its approaches had long kept a sharp look out. The body when picked up, was enveloped in a mackintosh, which he wore when he fell overboard with Bro. O'Neill, that had no doubt tended to preserve it. From personal acquaintance with the deceased, Captain Roskell had no doubt it was the body of Bro. Battersby, the long submersion in the sea not having altogether obliterated the means of identification, and on examination of the deceased's clothes subsequent to the landing of the body at South Pier, Blackpool, there were such evidences found—cards, envelopes, &c., bearing his name and address—as left no room for any doubt on the point of identity which might have previously existed. Mr. J. T. Newbold, The Springs, Bury, hearing of the discovery of the body proceeded to look at it and was enabled (though not without some difficulty) to identify it by the features as the body of Bro. Battersby. All doubt, therefore, being removed, the family of the deceased at Bury were communicated with, and due preparations made for handing the body over into their charge.

Although the body had been over sixty days at sea, it was in a fair state of preservation when found. The pockets of the mackintosh were turned inside out, but none of the other pockets appeared to have been disturbed, and the watch, notes, and loose cash that deceased had taken out with him were all found; likewise the ring he wore when the accident occurred. The body was picked up some five miles from where the accident happened, and there is reason for supposing that it has never been washed out of the bay into open sea. It is thought that the body had floated only the day on which it was picked up—the features being then quite white—and that up to that period it had either been sanded over or entangled among the sea weed, which on breaking up had released the body.

An inquest was held on the body of the deceased on the following day, a verdict of "accidentally drowned" was returned.

The funeral of deceased took place on Saturday last, in the family vault at St. Paul's Church-yard, Bury. The late Bro. Battersby being at the time of his death S.D. of the Prince of Wales' Lodge No. 1012, Bury, of which his equally unfortunate companion Bro. O'Neil was W.M., invitations were sent out to the brethren of various local lodges to attend the funeral, and there was a tolerably fair muster on their part. Mr. A. Mallilien, and Mr. W. P. Mather, of Manchester, who was with the deceased when the accident happened, were present at the funeral, and accompanying them were Mr. John O'Neil (father of the late Bro. O'Neil), and Bro. G. A. O'Neil, W.M. of St. John's Lodge No. 91. Among the brethren preceding the corpse to the churchyard were Bros. Henry Maiden, P.P.G.S.B., East Lancashire, secretary; James Barrett, steward; J. M. Whitehead, P.P.G.S.B., and Henry Heys, P.M., all of Lodge No. 1012; Edmund Eccles, W.M., Lodge No. 42; J. B. Champion, P.M., No. 934; Amos Stott, P.M., Lodge No. 363; S. Bailey, P.M.; W. Balmer, J.W.; Thos. W. Probert, S.D., and A. Hopkinson, I.G., all of Lodge No. 191; James Hill, P.M.; John Grime, P.M.; E. P. Robinson, S.D., and Joseph Wolstenholme, I.G., all of Lodge No. 128; Harry Grundy, I.P.M.; J. W. Crossley, P.M.; Cornelius Warburton, P.M., and Thomas Barker, J.D., all of the Lodge No. 42; J. Metcalf, J.W., and W. Burgess, S.D., both of Lodge No. 1392. The bearers (all members of Lodge No. 1012) were Bros. J. Halliwell, P.M.; William Handley, P.M.; John Rothwell, P.M.; Harry Woodcock, Org.; Dennis Hardman; Ralph Newbold; W. H. Hoyle, and J. T. Milnes. Bro. the Rev. J. Chell, Vicar of St. Paul's, followed in the rear of the general body of processionists. Bro. J. W. Kenyon, P.M., Lodge No. 42, acted as director of ceremonies. The streets were lined with throngs of spectators, and many blinds were drawn and places of business either partially or wholly closed out of respect to the memory of the deceased.

The burial service was very impressively gone through by Bro. Chell. On the funeral party entering the church, Bro. J. R. Fletcher, P.M., Lodge No. 191, played Mendelssohn's funeral march on the organ, and as the coffin was carried out, he played the "Dead March" in Saul. Just before the coffin was lowered to its last resting place, Mr. T. Battersby, brother to the deceased, laid a floral cross on the lid, and handsome wreaths were placed thereon by Bro. G. O'Neil and Mr. J. H. Openshaw.

BRO. ISAAC TOWNSEND.

On Tuesday morning, the 6th July, died suddenly of paralysis, Bro. Isaac Townsend, P.M. and late secretary of Adams Lodge No. 158, Sheerness, P.P.G.S. of W., P.P.G. Reg. of Kent, and P.Z. of Adams chapter No. 158, one of the oldest Masons of the United Kingdom at the advanced age of 82 years.

FUNERAL.—The brethren in full Masonic costume assembled in their Lodge Room in the Masonic Hall, Sheerness, at four o'clock p.m., on Saturday the 10th July, where they were joined by the W.M., Officers and Brethren of De Shurland Lodge No. 1089. The two lodges numbered 60 brethren.

The lodge was opened in the three degrees by Bro. Firminger, W.M., who, in a few appropriate remarks, alluded to the circumstance which had caused him to invite them to meet him that day, and after reading the dispensation for a Public Masonic Funeral (which had been granted by the D.P.G.M. Bro. Eastes), he appointed Bro. A. Spears, P.M. and treasurer of Lodge No. 158, and P.P.G.O. to perform the funeral ceremony.

The Brethren were then formed into order of procession by Bro. W. T. Carpenter, P.M., of Lodge No. 158, acting as Director of Ceremonies, and proceeded to the residence of the deceased in Edward-street, where the funeral procession was formed with the Masonic Brethren preceding the hearse; after the brethren of the Lodges De Shurland and Adams, came the W.M. Bro. W. Bourne and officers of De Shurland 1089; following them Bro. Bagshaw, P.M., and secretary of Lodge No. 158, and Bro. Darley, P.M. of 158, as S.W. and J.W. with their columns; then a M.M. carrying the volume of the Sacred Law, supported by Bros. Watts and Nunn, the two Deacons of Lodge No. 158. The W.M. of Adams Lodge No. 158, followed by Bro. T. M. Rigg, P.M., of Lodge No. 1089, and P.P.G.R. of Kent, and Bro. W. Ord, P.M. (Irish Constitution); then came the hearse with the four oldest P.P.G. officers of Kent as pallbearers, viz., Bro. A. Spears, P.P.G.O. with Bro. W. Pannell, P.P.G.S. of W. on the right, and Bro. G. Beckwith, P.P.G.S. of W. with Bro. J. R. McDonald, P.P.G.A.D.C. on the left side; following the hearse the family and friends of the deceased. On arriving at the cemetery the brethren opened out for the hearse mourners and friends to pass, when the mortuary chapel was soon filled. The beautiful and solemn burial service of the Church of England was impressively performed by the Rev. Bro. G. Bryant, Incumbent of Holy Trinity Church, of which the deceased was a member. When the service of the Church was ended, Bro. A. Spears called on the brethren to surround the grave, when he delivered an address peculiarly Masonic and befitting the solemn occasion.

The procession was then reformed and proceeded to the lodge, where the beautiful and impressive service was completed by reading the XII. Chapter of Ecclesiastes, singing the 100th Psalm and prayer.

Before separating, Bro. Darley paid a tribute of respect to the deceased, whom he said he had known for upwards of 30 years, and who, though holding an humble position in society was superior to it in his general mode of life. The Craft appreciated it, and raised him to a superior station in its ranks. He was kind in manner, firm as a friend, and in the accomplishment of a good purpose a decided enemy to infidelity, a kind father and a general lover of Freemasonry. In conclusion, Bro. Darley said, in order to be good Masons the brethren must be good men, and exhorted them to study, to honour God, to do good, and show sympathy for the bereaved, and cherish the hope of meeting their departed Bro. in an upper and better world. The lodge was then closed in due form and with solemn prayer.

TRANSLATION

From the German of Bro. Dr. B. Blancke, Orator of the Lodge, "Zu den 3 Cedern," Stuttgart, for the Feast of St. John, 1875. In the "Bauhütte," of July 24th, 1875.

My brethren, at your friendly feast assembled,
The goblet fill with rapturous shouts to-day,
My toast, the dear ones, man's heart companions
Along this dark world's often stormy way.

Those friendly sisters, when care is close at hand,
Uncloud the brow, exhilarate the road,
And if man in life's battle sternly rages,
Give peace and rest to his dear home abode.

The toast concerns their beauty brightly gleaming,
The eye, the cheek, rose-painted soft and fair,
That sweetness which, like the fragrant violet,
With scent divine pervades the ambient air.

Where grace and sweetness in dear union live,
Goodness of heart will a third guest appear,
To twine that chain which for all coming time
Links fast two souls in joy and sorrow here.

Then quick, my brethren, in union dear and free,
Upraise the beaker with its foaming tide;
To all our sisters, gentle, fair, and charming,
The mother, and the wife, and loving bride.

BROTHER CAPTAIN BOYTON.

As notified in the Freemason of last week, Bro. Captain Boyton gave his entertainment in connection with his Life Saving Dress at the Crown Baths, Kennington Oval, S.W., on Wednesday the 21st. It was expected, as Bro. Captain Boyton had intended, that the proceeds of the exhibition should be, after payment of the actual costs in getting it up, such as the charges for the baths, the band, and advertisements, &c., handed over in equal shares to the respective Treasurers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys and Girls, to be by them applied for the benefit of these charities, that there would be a full muster of the general public, and of the members of the craft. However, unfortunately, the results did not nearly justify the anticipation which Bro. Capt. Boyton entertained, as also those immediately concerned with him in getting up the exhibition. As great publicity had been given respecting the entertainment and the mode in which the receipts were to be applied, the writer is bound, much against the wish of Bro. Captain Boyton, to confess that the money taken at the doors and elsewhere did not represent one-fourth of the actual cost incurred. One is hardly justified in attributing the want of success to a lack of charitable feelings on the part of either the public or the members of the craft, but as somebody or something must be blamed for the consequences, it must be put down to the weather. To be sure there was very little time afforded to bring the affair properly before the public, as it was only settled at midday on Friday last where the exhibition was to take place. Nevertheless, no time was lost, and several hundred big bills were posted up in all directions. At least a couple of thousand handbills were distributed in frequented places within the vicinity of the baths, and the usual complement of advertisements duly appeared in the principal daily papers, and circulars were sent out in all directions. Masons holding high positions in the craft were seen upon the subject, and by the kind permission of the Lord Mayor, two big posters were for two consecutive days, Tuesday and Wednesday, hung up in front of the Mansion House announcing the exhibition and the mode of dealing with the proceeds; and also a slip was prominently placed upon the bills, which stated that tickets were to be obtained at No. 40, Cheapside. And yet with all this the result is as recorded above. The proceedings commenced at half past 6, for at 6, the hour advertised, there was scarcely a soul in the building. Bro. Captain Boyton did not in any way curtail the entertainment on account of the smallness of the number present, but performed his varied feats just as he would have done if the baths were crowded from floor to ceiling. Amongst his other performances he made his raft, and his fire on the top, and then cooked his meal of fish. This done he ate it up, and apparently with as good relish and comfort as if he were sitting at a table in a cosy dining room or breakfast parlour.

The excellent band of the St. George's Rifles was by the permission of Lieut.-Colonel the Hon. Charles Hugh Lindsey, and under the direction of Mr. Phasey, the band master in attendance. At the termination of the proceedings, Bro. Captain Boyton gave a commission that another entertainment should be given for precisely the same objects as those for which the present one was got up. This truly energetic Mason can neither be disheartened nor disappointed, and he yet confidently expects to be in a position to hand over a good round sum to the Orphans, as he persistently denominates the inmates of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. Prominent notice will be given on the next occasion, and it is hoped that the brethren will generally co-operate with Bro. Captain Boyton in carrying out in a proper manner his philanthropic intentions. It is only due to Bro. Captain Boyton to say that he personally bears the whole of the expenses.

[We would suggest that on future occasions, those who get up such Masonic undertakings, should not altogether leave an old friend like the Freemason "out in the cold."—Ed.]

ANTIQUITY OF FREEMASONRY.

The following appears in the Correspondence of the Masonic Record of Western India :—

As the antiquity of Freemasonry is a dogma which the Craft inculcates with truth, the study of its history, and the landmarks of its early existence, form an interesting subject for the enquiring Craftsman; more conspicuous amongst these is certainly the name handed down to us of our Grand Master, Hiram Abif, which was ably discussed in a valuable contribution to the Freemason some time since; but which would have been more lucid had it not been so encumbered with extracts from Hebrew, Greek, and Latin.

The matter may be briefly put thus—The Hebrew Bible says that Hiram, King of Tyre, sent to Solomon for his chief workman on the Temple, Hiram Avii. II. Chron. ii. 12 in the Hebrew, but ii. 13 in the English version; or, as written in another place, Hiram Aviv. II. Chron. iv. 16, and called Hiram in I. Kings vii. 13.

The first translation of the Hebrew Scriptures known was made by the Seventy into Greek; and they translated the first two Hebrew words by Hiram my father. This shows how the passage was understood two centuries before Christ.

The earliest standard version of the Old and New Testaments into Latin was made by Jerome, in the fourth century of our era; and that followed the Greek by rendering the words "Hiram my father." This version, the Vulgate, is still of equal authority with the original in the Romish Church, and was used by all Christendom till the Reformation.

When the English version was made the passage was rendered "of Hiram my father," and the second form, "Hiram his father," following in the latter instance the Vulgate.

Modern criticism however has shown that all these renderings are wrong, and that the errors have arisen from the mistake of translating as a significant word, a form which is really a proper name, and should be "And now I have sent a cunning man endued with understanding, Hiram Abif," and instead of Hiram his father make, Hiram Abif make.

But while Hiram Abif or Hiram Abif is a name new to Biblical critics, it is old to Masons, having been used by them from time immemorial, thus showing that they had the true interpretation of the old Hebrew Scriptures among them so far as this passage is concerned, while the un-masonic world was floundering among such meaningless renderings as "Hiram my father," "Hiram his father," and of "Hiram my fathers."

The first translator who got at the true rendering was Luther. He wrote Hiram Abif, and that he owed his correct version to Freemasonry rather than to his study of Hebrew is highly probable, from the fact that he used the final f peculiar to Masons, while the name in the Hebrew Bible has a final v. This is clear from De Wette's accurate version. He does not follow Luther and write Abif, but adheres closely to the Hebrew form and writes Abiv.

That Freemasons have always possessed the correct name of Solomon's Master Builder is now generally admitted; they must have obtained this name originally either from the Volume of the Sacred Law, or Tradition; but as it was not to be found in the Bible from the time the Septuagint was written, so they must have got it from the Bible at some period anterior to the second century before Christ, or from Tradition, because at that period the true interpretation was lost. That they never obtained it from the written text at all seems almost certain; because if they had, the name in use now would be Hiram Abiv, and not Hiram Abif, which appears to have come down by tradition as the original pronunciation.

So one marked evidence of the antiquity of our Order, together with the traditional integrity of the Sublime Degree, is "Hiram Abif."

FREEMASONRY IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

The monthly meeting of Oriental Lodge 687, was held in the Masonic Temple, Pera, on Thursday, June 24th, at 8 p.m. The chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. B. Atkinson, and that of I.P.M. by Bro. John Wetherill, P.M. 166, D.J.G.W.; Bros. Ernicombe, S.W.; Harvy, J.W. (act.); Mountain, P.M.; D.S.G.W. Treas.; Swiss, Sec. (act.); Botteler, S.D. (act.); Wren, J.D.; Lingford, I.G.; and Giggill, Tyler. There were also about twenty members of the lodge present, the W.M. being well supported by P.M.'s H. Arnold, L. Hamley (Levant Times), H. Temple, Henry Wetherill, R. Hammond (M.D.). The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the previous evening confirmed, the circular convening this meeting was then read, the business being to ballot for Messrs. D. James and D. Bellis, and to present a testimonial to W. Bro. Wetherill, I.P.M. The candidates being duly accepted, were admitted and initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. The W.M. then called the attention of the brethren to the great loss the Oriental Lodge had sustained by the sudden death of our late Bros. Scilly and Green, both P.M.'s. W. Bro. Mountain, after a very lengthy and minute address upon the good qualities of our late brethren, moved that a letter of condolence be sent to the families of the deceased brethren, whom, he was sure, would feel that while consolation from any quarter was acceptable, it would be doubly so coming from the lodge. The W.M., before closing the lodge, said that he had a most pleasant duty to perform, which was to present W. Bro. John Wetherill, I.P.M., with a P.M.'s jewel, as a token of respect and esteem for the very efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of W.M. of the Oriental Lodge for the year 1874. W. Bro. Wetherill then, in a very able manner, thanked the brethren for the honour they had been pleased to confer on him. The lodge was then closed, to be opened on the first Friday in October, 1875.

Educational Works by Mrs. Edmonds.

TRUE STORIES FROM ANCIENT HIS-

TORY. Illustrated, cloth, 2s.; post free 2s. 3d., being a collection, adapted for children, of the principal personages and events of Ancient History. This little work comprises some of the most stirring passages from the histories of the ancient empires, including the Lives of thyrus the Persian, Sardanapalus, Semiramis, and Xenophon, &c., all condensed into a short space, suited for the capacities of children, and combines instruction, as well as inculcating, with each narrative, a fine moral lesson, and is useful for the drawing room as well as the school.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY

NOTES ON ANCIENT HISTORY. 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Is intended more especially for the schoolroom, also to assist the memory in the recollection of events and dates.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY

NOTES ON ENGLISH HISTORY. New Edition, 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Mrs. Edmonds has in this work, which has been revised and brought down to the present time, made learning an easy task for the young, and a pleasure to the teachers. They are brought on gradually from the commencement of the History of England, by easy stages, through the reigns of the different Sovereigns to our own times, and not the least valuable portion of the work are the questions intended for the guidance of the instructor.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY

NOTES ON FRENCH HISTORY. 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. Is a complete resumé of the History of France from the time of the Gauls down to the reign of Napoleon III., and contains also over 300 questions for the guidance of tutors.

MRS. EDMONDS' ELEMENTARY

NOTES ON ENGLISH GRAMMAR, for the use of juvenile pupils. New and corrected edition, price 1s.; post free 1s. 1d. This little work professes to be only an auxiliary to works of a larger description. The parsing lessons are intended for oral examination, or exercises on the slate, and make even the youngest pupils take an interest in what is usually a hard task.

"Most useful and instructive manuals; clear, concise, and comprehensive. No school should be without them."
 —London Review.

METROPOLITAN.

THE HERVEY LODGE (No. 1260) held their usual summer banquet on Wednesday, July 28th, at the Crown Hotel, Broxbourne. The sun seldom shone on a more propitious day, and the arrangements for the excursion were most satisfactory and complete. A goodly company, including many relatives and friends of the brethren, numbering about sixty, were assembled and exchanged friendly and fraternal greetings. Having spent a considerable time in admiring the beautiful grounds attached to the commodious dining hall, where Bro. Benningfield, the proprietor, whose exertions for the general enjoyment were indefatigable, had prepared a sumptuous repast, to which one and all did ample justice. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been disposed of, and several excellent songs had been given by Miss Lincoln, who bids fair to become a very accomplished vocalist, the W.M., W. Bro. J. Hogg, P.G.D., in proposing "The Health of Bro. G. King, jun., P.M. and Sec.," alluded to the very earnest manner in which that brother undertook any of the duties that were involved in his position, and in proposing "The Healths of the S.W., Bro. Harrison, and J.W., Bro. Southwood," thanked them in the name of the company present for their very appropriate presents to the banquet in the shape of illuminated menu cards and splendid artificial bouquets of flowers for each lady. The company then dispersed while the room was prepared for the dancing which although not prolonged to "the wee sma' hours," was sufficiently enticing to detain both young and old "till night's dark mantle had covered all." And then with hearty hand shakings, hats and cloaks were donned, and some returning by rail and others preferring a ride home by road, there parted a company who were unanimous in wishing success to all connected with the Hervey Lodge.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The second emergency meeting since March was held on 29th of July, at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville Road, N. Present:—Bros. Willing, W.M.; Williams, S.W.; Berrie, J.W.; Child, S.D.; Kingham, J.D.; Fowler, D.C.; Scales, Steward; Douglass, I.G.; Daley, Tyler; Rose, Secretary; Tims, P.M. 177; Treasurer; also Bros. Stiles, Easy, Saintsbury, Shand, Side, Carter, Gilbert, and Brede. Visitors:—Bros. Savage, W.M. 1425; Graham, P.M. 475; Berrie, J.W. 1293; Buscall, J.D.; Wicks, 813; Ormiston, 262; Jordan, 511; Musgrave, 1399, Org. Business transacted:—Bros. Read and Brumell, raised. No passings. Messrs. Little, Erwood, Sayers, J. Levy, and Rogers, were balloted for and impressively initiated. Baron von Tittenborn duly elected joining member. Bye-laws read, several new propositions made, and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on the 29th ult., when there were present Bros. W. H. Lee, W.M.; T. C. Chapman, S.W.; H. Lister, J.W.; B. Meyer, Treas.; N. Green, Sec.; J. B. Shackleton, S.D.; J. Symes, J.D.; Robinson (Lodge 177) as I.G.; Gilchrist, Tyler; and others. The lodge having been opened in due form, Bros. Dallas, Watson and Alford were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The lodge was then closed to the Second Degree, when Bros. Brasted and Harding were passed. Lodge being then resumed in the First Degree, Mr. F. A. Kelly, who had been previously proposed, was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, Bro. Lee very ably performing the ceremony. Bro. Howe, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 1445, proposed that the lodge should present the W.M. with the Steward's jewel, commemorative of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M., which was agreed to unanimously. Notice of a motion, to be brought forward at the next meeting, was then given, for the initiation fee to be raised. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren afterwards partook of a slight repast, the chair being occupied by the W.M. After ample justice had been done to the good things, the chairman, in appropriate terms, proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were duly honoured. The W.M. then proposed "The Initiate." Bro. F. A. Kelly responded. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," proposed by Bro. Lee, who coupled with the last the name of Bro. Howe, P.G. Purst. Middlesex, P.M. 1445, to whom he expressed his great pleasure at seeing present. This toast, which was very cordially received, Bro. Howe responded to, in a very effective speech. Bro. Howe then proposed the health of the W.M. in eulogistic terms. The W.M., in his reply, thanked Bro. Howe for his kind remarks, and the brethren of the lodge for the manner in which they had drank his health, and he also thanked the brethren very warmly for the Steward's jewel which they had that evening awarded him. Several other toasts were given, and the brethren soon after separated.

CHAUCER LODGE (No. 1540) held an emergency meeting at the Bridge House Hotel on Thursday, July 29th. There were present Bros. T. J. Sabine, W.M., P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M., &c.; J. C. Mason, S.W.; E. S. Stidolph, J.W.; F. Walters, P.P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; Rev. D. Hatch, Chaplain; W. J. Kemp, S.D.; C. Hudson, J.D.; H. Faija, I.G.; A. J. Hawkes, D.C.; A. P. Stedman, W.S., &c. Ballots were unanimous in favour of the admission of fifteen joining members. Five gentlemen were initiated, viz., Messrs. Pierce, William Crosbie, Richard Henry Willats, Elliott Emanuel, Joel Emanuel, and John Worster. Each candidate was introduced separately, and in a most impressive manner initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The Reverend Bro. Hatch, in a beautiful style, gave the all-important charge to the newly-initiated brethren. Some important private business having been disposed of, the brethren separated after the lodge was closed, partaking of a slight refreshment after labour. A very large number of visitors were present.

PROVINCIAL.

WARRINGTON.—LODGE OF LIGHTS (No. 148).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 26th ult. The W.M., Dr. John Bowes, P.M., P.Z., Past Prov. G. Reg. Cumberland and Westmorland, was supported by Bros. W. H. Robinson, S.W.; Thomas Tunstall, J.W.; Jos. Pickthall, S.W.; John R. Young, J.D.; C. E. Hindley, I.G.; W. Sharp, P.M., Treas.; W. Mossop, P.M., Prov. G. Steward; W. Richardson, P.M., W.M. No. 1250; G. A. Clark, John Dimmelow, Charles Crozier, J.W. No. 1250; W. Crompton, Jabez G. Hughes, Mos. Jones, John Armstrong, James Hannah, Tyler. Visitors:—Bros. P. J. Edelsten, M.W. 1134; J. R. Tomlinson, W.M. 368; J. W. Sanders, 1219; J. H. Galloway, 1250. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and declared to be correctly recorded. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. James Paterson claimed advancement, and having sustained his claim was entrusted. On re-admission Bro. Paterson was raised to the Sublime Degree in ample form by the W.M., the working tools being explained by the S.W. The lodge was closed down to the First Degree, when the following gentlemen, who had already been approved, were separately introduced and initiated by the W.M., viz., Messrs. S. E. Johnson, A. Peake, and B. L. Pierpoint. Bro. Robt. Vawser, C.E. and Thos. Sutton were proposed as joining members, and a gentleman as a fit and proper person. The lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

GARSTON.—LODGE OF HARMONY (No. 220).—There is no more popular suburban lodge in the neighbourhood of Liverpool than the old "Harmony," and its annual summer festival meeting is, therefore, always enjoyed with the greatest zest. That for 1875 was no exception, and although there was a little hitch in the even tenour of the afternoon's proceedings, owing to an unexpected delay, everything passed off smoothly and pleasantly. The annual meeting took place on Wednesday, the 28th ult., at the Garston Hotel, Garston, a few miles from Liverpool, where the lodge was opened by the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. John Evans, who was supported by the following officers and brethren: Bros. J. W. Baker, P.M.; Dr. J. V. Worthington, I.P.M.; W. Jones, P.M.; R. Jones, P.M.; C. Leedham, P.M.; J. Hughes, S.W.; T. B. Tellett, J.W.; W. S. Vines, P.M., Treas.; C. Humphreys, P.M. 1013, Sec.; J. Clark, Org.; J. Tickle, I.G.; J. Tewkesbury, S.; W. Price, S.; J. Robinson, Tyler; M. A. Lovelady, W. Guest, W. Morrison, A. Sharples, W. Lawson, S. Chambers, T. Wainwright, H. Hatch, R. Pink, J. Robinson, F. Ratcliffe, J. T. Bullock, J. Cave, J. Jarvis, J. Thompson, W. Newall, and W. Troughton. The visitors present were Bros. H. Davies, 1356; W. G. Sharpe, I.G. 1086; T. Roberts, S.W. 673; W. G. Veale, Org. 1356; H. Burrows, J.W. 673; C. Leighton, P.M. 1035; J. Bramham, 1298; T. K. Hughes, P.M. 1013; and W. T. May, 673 and 1393. As the closing act of his year of office, Bro. J. Evans, W.M., initiated Messrs. Croft and Crowther into the mysteries of the Order in a very efficient manner. The chair was then taken by Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M., who installed Bro. John Hughes as the W.M. of the lodge in the masterly style so well known in the province. The following officers were subsequently invested: Bros. J. Evans, I.P.M.; T. B. Tellett, S.W.; S. Tickle, J.W.; W. S. Vines, P.M., Treasurer; C. Humphreys, P.M. 1013, Secretary; J. Tewkesbury, S.D.; G. Price, J.D.; W. Lawson, I.G.; James Robinson, S.S.; A. Sharples, J.S.; and J. Robinson, Tyler. The brethren afterwards banqueted, and as many had to return to town, the after dinner loyal and Masonic toasts were given briefly but pointedly by the W.M. and other brethren.

RADCLIFFE.—LODGE OF FAITH (No. 344).—On Wednesday morning, the 28th ult., a party of the brethren belonging to the Lodge of Faith, 344, with their wives and friends, numbering altogether about thirty, left the Bull's Head Inn, Radcliffe, (East Lancashire), in an omnibus to which was attached four greys, for Altrincham and Tatton Park, proceeding by way of Cheetham Hill, where they changed horses. The subsequent route was via Chester Road, through Stretford, where a short stoppage was made at the house of Bro. Edwards. They then drove on to the Unicorn at Altrincham, where an excellent lunch awaited them, and which was thoroughly enjoyed. After spending an hour or two in the vicinity of Altrincham, they proceeded to Tatton Park, by way of Rosterne Mere and Rosterne Old Church, which was visited by part of the company, and an inspection made of the memorials of the Egerton family, and which, as works of art, are said to be some of the finest in England. From the churchyard one of the finest views in the vicinity of Manchester is to be obtained, embracing the Mere, the Downs, and the village of Bowdon. The party continued its journey to Patton Park, and having obtained permission to inspect the gardens and grounds, they spent a few hours there both profitably and pleasantly. About four o'clock the party returned to dinner at the Unicorn Inn, at Altrincham, after partaking of which, another hour or two was spent in social enjoyment, and some very good songs were sung and recitations given.

DALTON.—BALDWIN LODGE (No. 1398).—The members of the Baldwin Lodge met in the Castle, Dalton, on Thursday, the 29th ult., for the purpose of installing the Worshipful Master, and investing the officers for the ensuing twelve months. Bro. Francis Henry Clark was duly elected and installed as Worshipful Master by Bro. R. Pearson, I.P.M. 995, and Provincial Grand Registrar of West Lancashire, in a very able and impressive manner, for which Bro. Pearson is so well and deservedly famed. Bro. Clark afterwards invested his officers as follows for the ensuing year:—Bros. F. Bell, Senior Warden; John Walton, Junior Warden; J. Postlethwaite, I.P.M.; R. Hosking, Treas.; R. Blake, Sec.; Rev. J. M. Morgan, Chaplain; T. Grieve, Org.; W. Dalzell, Senior Deacon; C. Godby, Junior Deacon; F. Atkinson, I.G.; T. H. Hosking and A. Gracie, Stewards. There was a considerable number of members and visiting brethren present. After the interesting ceremony had been gone through the brethren retired to the house of Bro. Bell, Wellington Hotel, to partake of the banquet, and amongst those present we noticed the following, in addition to the officers aforementioned:—Members of 1398—Bros. J. Garden, P. Wurzbacher, W. H. Fox, T. Tremlath, E. B. Mitchell, J. T. Lawn, R. Townley, J. T. Scott, A. Slater, and J. Hardy. Bros. R. Pearson, I.P.M. 995, and P.G.R.; H. Purdue, Ranelagh Lodge, 834, London. Bros. M. Haslam, W.M.; R. T. Taylor, S.W.; Jos. Huartson, J.W.; R. A. Brooke, P.M. 774; all of Hartington Lodge, 1021, Barrow. Bros. H. Pickavance, W.M.; James Hunter, J.W.; J. Bland, M.M., of Hindpool Lodge, 1225. Bros. H. Waitling, Sec., Whitwell Lodge, 1390, Millom. After all had done justice to the really splendid and ample spread provided by Bro. Bell, who seems on every occasion to excel his past efforts to please (if it were possible to do), the W.M. gave the first toast, "The Queen," after which the "National Anthem" was sung. Next followed the toast of "The Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Grand Lodge Officers," with honours. Bro. Blake was next called upon for a recitation, entitled "The Accepted Mason," which was rendered in his usual effective style, followed by the toast of "The Provincial Grand Lodge Officers." The W.M. in all cases commented in appropriate terms on the various persons connected with the toasts, this one being coupled with the name of Bro. Pearson, I.P.M., who replied to the same. Bro. Purdue being called upon, responded in a very pleasing manner with the song "Tis but a Little Faded Flower." Bro. Postlethwaite, I.P.M., in proposing the next toast, "The Worshipful Master of Baldwin Lodge," spoke very highly of Bro. Clarke's abilities as an efficient officer, who had laboured hard in the cause of Masonry, and fully deserved the high honour that day conferred upon him. This was followed by Bro. E. B. Mitchell's song, "The Rhine Wine." Bro. Clarke, in replying to the toast, thanking all for the honour conferred upon him, said he would take that opportunity of presenting to Bro. Postlethwaite, on behalf of the lodge, a Past Master's jewel, as a token of the high esteem in which he is held by the brethren, and for the very efficient manner in which he had conducted the business of the lodge during his term of office, hoping that he would be long spared to wear the same. This was followed by the hearty approval of the brethren in the usual Masonic style of applause. Duet, "Pining Away," by Bro. Walter Bell and Bro. Purdue, which was exceedingly well rendered. Bro. Postlethwaite responded in feeling terms to the kindness of the brethren, expressing his regret that business engagements had prevented him from doing as much in the lodge as he could have wished. Bro. Whiteside, I.P.M., proposed the toast of Past Officers in fitting and highly complimentary terms, which was responded to by Bro. F. Bell, S.W., followed by a song, "The Union Jack of Old England," by Bro. Jos. Huartson, J.W. 1021, in that happy and effective manner for which he is so deservedly noted. "The Installing Master" was ably responded to by Bro. Pearson, who, in thanking the brethren for the honour done him, said it was always a labour of love for him to take an active part in Masonry, and especially in the Baldwin Lodge, for he had taken so active a part in its formation that he should always feel very interested in the lodge. He urged at some length that greatest of all Masonic virtues, "charity," commending to the notice of the brethren those grand and noble institutions for the destitute and needy of the Order, which had been so blessed in their philanthropic endeavours to relieve and assist the children and widows of Masons, and strongly urged them to ever have their claims in view, and heartily respond to the calls upon them for our sympathy and support. Song, "The Englishman," by Bro. J. Huartson, followed by the toast of "The Clerical Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. Rev. J. M. Morgan, Provincial Grand Chaplain, when the W.M. expressed the high honour we ought to feel in having so many provincial Grand Lodge Officers amongst us as members of our local lodges. Bro. Morgan replied in his usual worthy and appropriate style, giving much valuable and instructive information to the brethren, and strongly supporting Bro. Pearson in his remarks, urging upon the brethren to always give such noble institutions their best support, as they were some of the great ornaments of our Order. "The Visiting Brethren" was next given, coupled with the name of Bro. Brooke, I.P.M., who responded. Thus the programme of one of the most pleasant ceremonies and proceedings was brought to a close, in a manner highly satisfactory to all who had the pleasure of being present.

GREAT STANMORE.—ABERCORN LODGE (No. 1549).—The first regular meeting of this newly-consecrated lodge was held on the 6th ult., which promises well for future prosperity. The lodge was opened at 4.30 by the W.M., Bro. R. Helsdon, P.M. 733, with solemn prayer. The minutes of the previous meetings having been read and confirmed, the ballot was unanimously taken in favour of Mr. R. Beet and Mr. H. W. Swatton, of Bushey, and also of Mr. J. Felton, of Stanmore, and they were separately initiated to the end of the obligation by Bro. C. Veal, P.M. 889, P.G.S.D. Surrey, who, as Hon. Secretary, and founder of the lodge, was honoured with this portion of the first ceremony, the conclusion, with the explanation of the working tools, being taken by the W.M., and great impression was evidently made by their efficient performance. The ballot was also unanimously taken in favour of Bro. William Boydell as a joining member. Three new candidates and one joining member having been announced for the next meeting, the W.M. gave instructions for a lodge of emergency on the first Tuesday in August, at 3 p.m. The usual business was then disposed of, and the lodge duly closed, the brethren adjourning to a satisfactory banquet, provided by mine host, Bro. Veal, and the evening was finished most harmoniously. At the ceremony of consecration we must record the omission of a letter having been read from the S.G.W., Bro. the Marquis of Hamilton (from whose family the lodge takes its title), regretting his inability to attend, and his lordship was thereupon unanimously voted an honorary member of the lodge. The lodge-room is very effectively arranged, the furniture bearing the well-known name of Bro. George Kenning.

JERSEY.—ROYAL SUSSEX CHAPTER (No. 491).—The convocation of this chapter, now very prosperous, held on Monday, July 19th, at the Masonic Temple, had more than ordinary attractions, for it was selected as a fitting opportunity to acknowledge the long and faithful services of one of its oldest members, Comp. A. Schmitt. The chapter was opened by Comps. R. Barrow, Z.; J. Oatley, P.Z., as H.; E. Martel, J.; supported by Comps. A. Schmitt, P.Z., Prov. G.S.E., E.; Gen. Thos. C. Kelly, C.B., N.; P. W. Benham, P.Z., Treas.; P. Binet, P.Z.; J. O. Le Sueur, Asst. S.E.; F. P. Le Marquand, P.S.; and several others. Amongst the visitors were Comps. G. J. Renouf, Z. 590; A. Viel, P.Z. 590; Jos. O'Flaherty, J. 590; Capt. J. Williams, Treas. 224; and others. After the minutes of the last convocation had been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. drew the attention of the companions present to the important fact of presenting a tangible mark of respect and esteem to M.E. Comp. A. Schmitt, P. Prov. G. Sec., P. Prov. G.S.W., President of the Local Board of General Purposes, P.Z., Prov. G.S.E., for his arduous services rendered to the chapter as P.Z., and also as Scribe E. Comp. Schmitt has devoted the best part of his life to our noble institution, and in fulfilling the duties of S.E. for the last sixteen years, the chapter has thought proper to evince their appreciation of such unwearied zeal and assiduity by presenting that esteemed and honoured companion with a gold jewel (of Prov. Grand S.E.) of exquisite beauty. The following is the inscription:—"Royal Sussex Chapter, No. 491. To M.E. Comp. A. Schmitt, P.Z., Prov. G.S.E., &c., in affectionate recognition of valuable services.—Jersey, July 19th, 1875." After having decorated the recipient, the M.E.Z. added:—"May it please the G.A.O.T.U. to bless you, Comp. Schmitt, with health to enjoy long the esteem of the brethren and the respect of all good men. And as a proof of the popularity of that companion, the Yarborough Chapter, No. 244, deputed E. Comp. P. W. Benham, P.Z., to present him with an apron and sash of Past Principal, as a token of their love and respect, in kind acknowledgment of services rendered to the Yarborough Chapter, as P.Z., and S.E., during a long period of years. This last present came quite unexpectedly to Comp. Schmitt, and caused him such an agreeable surprise, that for the moment it required all his self-possession to collect himself, and in thanking the Sussex and Yarborough Chapters for their fraternal and sympathetic kindness he assured them that the memory of this important event would never be effaced from his mind, that he would still continue for the future, as he had done for the past, to be a worker in the busy hive of Masonry, and would use his utmost endeavours in promoting its best interests, and, after a lengthy speech, concluded by saying that a society encouraging such kindly feelings of love, relief, and truth, must certainly find an echo in every conscientious mind. At this period of the evening a letter was read from M.E. Comp. W. J. Hughan (of Truro), P.Z., and P.G. Senior Deacon of England, honorary member of Lodge and Chapter "La Césaire," No. 590, expressing his high approbation at the judicious course the ArchMasons of Jersey had manifested in acknowledging the valuable services of his honoured friend, Comp. Schmitt, and stated that it was with the deepest regret that he was debarred from being an eye-witness to the ceremony. The letter was ordered to be entered on the minutes of the evening. After the closing of the chapter, the companions adjourned to the festive board, where plain but substantial fare was provided. On the removal of the cloth, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was accepted with the utmost loyalty, and after the usual Masonic toasts on these occasions, the toast of the evening, viz., "Our esteemed Comp., A. Schmitt," admirably proposed by the Chairman, was received with rapturous applause, and feelingly acknowledged by Comp. Schmitt.

Comp. P. W. Benham proposed a special toast, "Comp. W. J. Hughan, of Truro," which was received with a thunder of applause, for although that esteemed companion is personally known but to a few in the province, his writings and literary Masonic works have made him the bosom friend of every Mason. Such demonstration of friendship and admiration naturally demanded a reply, Comp. Schmitt warmly acknowledged the compliment so gracefully paid to his absent friend in justly and deservedly eulogizing the Masonic worth and literary labours of that distinguished companion. The companions separated, highly delighted with the day's proceedings.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The quarterly communication of the P.G. Lodge of Glasgow took place on Thursday, the 29th ult., in Freemasons' Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. The P.G.M., Walter M. Neilson, presided, and was supported by Bros. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G.M.; A. McTaggart, P.G. Sec.; W. Bell, acting P.G.S.W.; G. McDonald, acting P.G.J.W.; J. Gillies, P.G.S.D.; James Balfour, P.G. Dir. of Cer.; John Fraser, P.G. Assistant Marshal; W. Phillips, P.G.S.B., and A. A. Smith, P.G.I.G., as office-bearers. Among the members of P. Grand Lodge present we noticed the following:—J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. 332; Alexander Thomson, R.W.M. 333; W. Harper, R.W.M. 408; J. Singleton, R.W.M. 178; D. Reed, R.W.M. 465; John Campbell, R.W.M. 28; J. S. Scott, R.W.M. 419; John Lockhart, R.W.M. 510; D. McLachlan, J.W. 510; J. Simpson, J.W. 419; J. Forsyth, S.W. 333; R. Hepburn, J.W. 178; D. Peacock, S.W. 117; Andrew Angus, J.W. 117; D. Ronald, S.W. 275; John McInnes, S.W. 408; J. Howie, J.W. 556; Robert Gardner, S.W. 178; J. B. McNaught, S.W. 556; W. Bisland, J.W. 408; W. Finlay, J.W. 75; J. Clarke, J.W. 465; Colin McKenzie, S.W. 413; James Booth, S.W. 87; &c., &c.

The meeting was exceedingly well attended. The P.G. Sec. read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed; as also were the minutes of the P.G. Lodge Committee.

The business before the meeting was of a miscellaneous character, the most important part of it being the resignation of Bro. F. A. Barrow as P.G.D. Master, of which he had previously given notice. Bro. Barrow has had, for a considerable time back, a great deal of work thrown upon him, in consequence of the duties involved by the numerous offices of importance to which he has been appointed, not the least important of which is that of the superintendence of the P.R.A. Chapter of Glasgow, and Bro. W.M. Neilson, P.G. Master for Glasgow, having for a considerable part of the year been unable to attend to his duties as such, through ill-health, these have also devolved upon him. He was, therefore, to some extent justified in his wishing to retire. However, after Bro. Neilson had, in the most humorous and kindly persuasive manner, requested Bro. Barrow to reconsider his resolution, he (Bro. Barrow) felt that the great love he had for the Order, and his anxiety to see its usefulness and prosperity extended, had caused him to make up his mind to withdraw his resignation for the present, hoping, at the same time, that the Craft would look out for a suitable successor. He thought he had some claim to seek retirement after fifteen years' service. The next business of importance was that a petition from Dramatic Lodge for a charter, which was favourably entertained, and remitted to Grand Lodge for completion. A question of discipline, in reference to some irregularity of a brother, was then satisfactorily settled. This left little business before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—CATHEDRAL CHAPTER (No. 67).—This chapter held the regular monthly meeting on the 27th ult., in the Freemasons' Hall, 22, Struthers-street. Comp. James Duthie, Z., presided. Among other companions present we observed Comps. D. Ronald, H.; J. O. Park, Z. 122; J. de Neef, Third Soj. 122; J. Scott, H. 122; G. B. Adams, 50 (Freemason); and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The M.E.Z. then intimated that he had received a letter from the S.E., resigning his appointment as S.E. of the chapter. He said this was an unfortunate occurrence so close upon the annual election of office-bearers. Comp. Ronald suggested that Comp. Mason, S.N., might possibly be able to undertake the duties of S.E., in addition to those of his own office, until the annual election. Comp. Mason not being present, Comps. Duthie and Sloan offered to wait upon him with a view to secure his services. Comp. Duthie said that, in the event of both duties being too much for Comp. Mason, he himself would be most happy to assist him in any way. This was met with a hearty vote of thanks from the companions present, and satisfied them that the work of the chapter would be efficiently carried through. After some other general business was got through, the chapter was called to harmony, when a pleasant and profitable hour was spent by the companions assembled. The chapter was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDE (No. 408).—A special meeting of this lodge took place on the 28th ult., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, for the dispatch of business. The meeting was very well attended; among others were the R.W.M., W. Harper; Bros. John McInnes, S.W.; William Bisland, J.W.; J. Gordon, D.M.; D. Downie, P.M.; J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. 332; J. M. Oliver, S.W. 360; G. B. Adams, 360 (Freemason), &c., &c. The R.W.M., who was suddenly called away upon pressing emergency, requested Bro. T. Gordon, D.M., to take the chair and carry on the business before the lodge, which he performed in an able and satisfactory manner. An application from Mr. Donald McBain for admittance into the Order was laid before the lodge, and met with approval. The First Degree was given to him in a full and able manner by Bro. Gordon; as he will shortly have to proceed abroad, it was agreed to give him the F.C. Degree also, his instructors having agreed to get him prepared to receive the M.M. Degree at the next regular meeting of the lodge. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—COMMERCIAL CHAPTER (No. 79).—The monthly meeting of this chapter was held in the Freemasons' Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 30th ult. Comp. J. Brodie, M.E.Z., presided, and was supported by Comps. J. Duthie, M.E.Z. 67; J. M. Oliver, acting S.E.; J. Crabb, P.Z. 50; E. B. Adams, 50; R. Brodie, 79, and others. The meeting was well attended although not large. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The principal business before the chapter was a motion by Comp. J. Monro, S.E., seconded by Comp. J. M. Oliver, H., viz., "That the bye-laws be altered as follows:—That the office-bearers meet annually on the second Friday of August to select for nomination their successors in office, so as to enable them to lay the names of the companions so selected before the regular meeting of the chapter in August; the companions so recommended, and any others that may then be duly proposed and seconded, will be held as nominated. In the event of more than one candidate being nominated for one office, the one commanding the majority of votes shall be declared duly elected." This was unanimously agreed to, and the chapter was closed in usual form.

GLASGOW.—THETIS CHAPTER (No. 122).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, 35, St. James-street, Kingstown, on the 26th ult. The meeting was well attended for the season of the year. Comp. J. O. Park, M.E.Z. (who was well supported and assisted throughout the evening by Comp. J. Duthie, M.E.Z. of Chapter 67), presided, and conducted the business of the evening. Among others present we observed Comps. Quigley, S.E., in his own place; J. Scott, H.; A. McFarlane, N.; John Hampton, of the Kimberley Concord Chapter, No. 153, South Africa; J. de Neef, acting 1st Soj.; G. B. Adams, acting 2nd Soj., &c., &c. A lodge of Mark Masters was opened, when the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Applications for further advancement in Freemasonry were read from Bros. Robt. W. Merriam and Herman Wilhelm Strahlendorf, their proposers and seconders being Comps. Park, Dobie, J. de Neef, and Wilson. The applications being approved of, the two brothers received the Mark Master Degree; the lodge was then raised to that of Most Excellent, when that degree was conferred upon them, after which a R.A. Chapter was held, and they were admitted companions of the R.A. A vote of thanks to Comp. Duthie for his able assistance brought the business of the evening to a close. Comp. Hampton, who took great interest in the ceremony, will, no doubt, carry away with him to South Africa a pleasant recollection of the night's proceedings.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF HERTFORDSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hertfordshire was held on Wednesday, 28th July, at the Town Hall, St. Alban's, under the banner of the Halsey Lodge, No. 1479. The R.W. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, presided. He was supported by about seventy brethren. Among those present we noticed M.W. Bros. H. C. Finch, P.G. Reg.; W. Wilson, P.G.J.W.; T. S. Carter, P.G.S.D.; E. Lacey, P.G.S.D.; F. H. Wilson-Iles, P.G. Sec.; the Rev. Lewis Deedes, P.G. Chaplain; J. Terry, P.G.D.C.; M. Heywood, P.G. Org.; H. Campkin, and E.R. P. Francis, P.G. Stewards; J. R. Cocks, P.P.G.J.W.; S. Austin, P.P.G., Sup. Wks.; W. H. Rowe, P.P.G. Sup. Wks.; R. A. Wright, P.M., 504, P.P.G. S.D.; W. Cutbush, P.P.G. Sup. Wks.; J. Lewthen, I.P.M. 1479; Laxton, W.M. 404; E. Palin, W.M. 404; Hayward Edwards, W.M. 1385; J. P. Priott, S.D. 1479; G. Askew, W.M. 1479.

Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last P.G. Lodge held at Hertford were read and confirmed. The accounts presented by Bro. A. J. Copeland, P.G. Treas., were passed. The P.G. Lodge Laws were then considered and adopted.

The following appointments were then made by the P.G. Master:—

J. Sedgwick, P.M. 404 (re-app.)	D. Prov. G.M.
J. Lowthin, P.M. 1479	P.G.S.W.
J. Copestick, W.M. 869	P.G.J.W.
Rev. Burchell Heme, 404	P.G. Chap.
Rev. C. E. Mayo, 869	P.G. Sec.
F. H. Wilson-Iles, P.M. 404 (re-app.)	P.G. Sec.
A. J. Copeland, P.M. 404 (re-app.)	P.G. Treas.
E. Palin, W.M. 404	P.G.S.D.
J. W. J. Gifford, W.M. 409	P.G.J.D.
Hayward Edwards, W.M. 1385	P.G. Sup. Wks.
J. Terry, P.M. (re-app.)	P.G. Dir. Cer.
Young, 1327	P.G. Ass. Dir. Cer.
Paterson, 1385	P.G. Org.
Yolland, 1385	P.G.S.B.
Laxton, W.M. 504	P.G. Purst.
Godson, 1479; J. N. Edwards, 1479;
Blenkinsop, 504; Sheldon, 1327;
Foster, 504; Gilbert, 1327	P.G. Stewards.
Thomas, 404 (re-app.)	P.G. Tyler.
Wright, 403 (re-app.)	P.G. Tyler.

The following sums were voted from the P.G. Lodge Funds:—£20 to the Boys' School, £10 to the St. Alban's Abbey Restoration Fund, £5 each to Bros. Wilson-Iles and

T. S. Carter, to purchase the Prince of Wales's installation jewel, they having served the office of Stewards for the Province at the Albert Hall in April last. A vote of thanks and £5 5s., to purchase a jewel to Bro. W. Wilson, P.P.G. Dir. Cer., he having so efficiently acted in that capacity for several years.

The brethren afterwards dined together in the Assembly Room, and spent a most pleasant evening.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

A quarterly communication was held at the Alfred Masonic Hall, I.C., Waymouth-street, Adelaide, on Wednesday, 7th April, 1875. Present—The Right Worshipful Arthur Hardy, Esq., J.P., District Grand Master in the chair; Worshipful Bro. P.D.G.S.W. Wicksteed, as Deputy District Grand Master; Bro. Sawtell, P.M. 598, as W.D.G.S.W.; W.D.G.J.W.; D.G. Chaplain; W.D.G. Secretary; W.D.G. Steward Bright, as W.D.G.S.D.; W.D.G. Dir. Ceremonies; Bro. R. Davis, W.M. 842, as W.D.G.J.D.; W. Dist. Grand Sup. Works; W.D.G. Organist; Bro. J. Eunson, J.W. 583, as W.G. Pursuivant; D.G. Tyler, W.D.G. Steward, F. C. Smith. The visitors were Bros. Horsfall, 584; Deslands and N. Johns, 598; Thomson, 423, and Ferguson, 842.

The D.D.G.M., D.G. Treasurer, D.G. Registrar, D.G. Assist. Dir. Ceremonies, D.G. Sword Bearer, D.G. Pursuivant, D.G. Steward Burton, were excused.

The lodge was opened with solemn prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The balance sheet for 1874 was taken as read (copies having been distributed) and adopted. The report of the General Committee for the past quarter was read and adopted, and copies distributed in the room.

"The following report of General Committee was presented to the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master and District Grand Lodge.

Your Committee lay before you the balance sheet for the year 1874.

Since the last meeting of this lodge the regulation postponing (under certain conditions) the meetings in January and July, passed July 1st, has been approved by the Grand Lodge of England, and was acted on last January, every member receiving due notice by circular.

Steps have been taken to form a library, in confirmation of resolution passed October 7th, 1874, and the committee appointed to carry out the scheme hope to report more fully at the next meeting.

A dispensation having been granted to the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1172, to appear in regalia on December 11th, 1874, they opened the lodge and received the R.W.D.G.M., Bro. A. Hardy; W.D.G.M., Bro. H. E. Downer; with the D.G. Chaplain, Bro. H. Read, M.A.; and nearly all the D.G.L. Officers, and numerous members of the city lodges. The D.G.L. was opened and a procession formed, and the stone of the Mount Barker Institute laid by the R.W.D.G.M., Bro. A. Hardy; an address was delivered by the W.D.G.S.W., His Honour Judge Gwynne; the trowel with the R.W.D.G. Master's crest and suitable inscription was presented to him, and the brethren returned to the lodge room and closed the Grand Lodge.

On Friday, January 15th, 1875, the foundation-stone of the Masonic Hall, Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, No. 1252, at Moonta, was laid, a dispensation having been granted, the W.D.D.G.M., Bro. H. E. Downer, the W.D.G. Chaplain, Bro. H. Read, and several District Grand Officers and brethren attending. After the lodge No. 1252 was opened, the D.G. Lodge was received, and the procession was then formed, and the stone laid, and an address delivered by the W.D.D.G.M.; a massive and elegant silver trowel, supplied by Mr. Mannheim, with an inscription surmounted by the W.D.D.G. Master's crest, was presented to him; the brethren returned to the lodge room and Grand Lodge was closed."

Bro. P.M. Saul Solomon stated that the places of meeting of the lodges in South Adelaide having been found inconvenient they had resolved to take rooms at the Eagle Chambers, lately erected on the corporation acre, and that they would be ready for occupation in about two months.

It was resolved—That it be left to the General Committee to make arrangements for the future meeting of the District Grand Lodge.

The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer.

MASONIC PIC-NIC AT SUNDERLAND.

The eighth annual pic-nic of the Freemasons of Sunderland was held on Wednesday, July 21st, at Helmsley, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, and proved a greater success by far than any of its predecessors. In order that ample provision might be made, the committee were obliged to stop the issue of tickets a week previously, and many brethren who had not obtained them before the specified time found themselves too late in making application, and were consequently doomed to disappointment. When it is remembered that the arrangements to be made included a ninety miles' journey, each way, by rail, the supplying of luncheon, &c., to four hundred people at one time in a small country town, and other things necessary for insuring the enjoyment of so large a party, the wisdom of the committee declining many late applications will be readily seen and admitted. The party journeyed by a special train of thirteen carriages, provided by the North Eastern Railway Company, and leaving Sunderland a few minutes past six o'clock in the morning, reached its termination shortly before ten o'clock. The monument erected in the market place of the little Yorkshire town, the church with its fine specimens of carved woodwork, the old thatched and white framed houses of the Elizabethan period, were the first objects to attract attention. At eleven o'clock the whole party, numbering rather over four hundred, sat down to lunch in a spacious marquee, which has been erected in what is known as Castle Hill, where are some extensive ruins of the old castle at Helmsley, once the residence of the celebrated George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham. The chair was taken by Bro. A. J. Turnbull, W.M. of St. John's, No. 80, who was supported by Bros. J. H. Coates, P.M. 949 (Hon. Sec. to the Pic-nic Committee); W. Liddell, P.M. 749, P.P.G.D. (Treasurer to the Committee); W. G. Laughlin (agent to Earl Feversham); and others. Bro. Turnbull was faced by Bro. T. Riley, W.M. of 1389, and the other vice-chairs were filled by Bros. F. Surtees, W.M. 94; F. Younger, W.M. 97; and A. Gray, W.M. 949. The other members of the committee present, viz., Bros. J. Mitchison, S.W. 80; D. P. Huntley, J. W. 80; J. D. Todd, J.W. 94; H. Fryer, S.W. 97; A. Currie, J.W. 97; J. Eccleston, S.W. 949; G. B. Hall, J.W. 949; and F. Maddison, S.W. 1389, also occupied prominent positions at the tables, and did good service in promoting the comfort of those present. Justice having been done to the substantial fare which had been provided by Mr. T. Wright, of the Black Swan Hotel, Helmsley, the chairman briefly submitted the usual toasts, which, having been duly honoured, the whole party adjourned to the Bowling Green, where an excellent photograph of the group was obtained by Bro. Paul Stabler, of Sunderland. Shortly after half-past one dancing commenced on the green sward, Bros. F. Maddison and A. Currie officiating as M.C.'s, being "led off" by the former and Mrs. Godfordson, the wife of the old and respected Treasurer of No. 80, and was kept up with great spirit during the afternoon and evening. At four o'clock an adjournment was made for tea, which was of the same substantial character as the luncheon. An excellent band discoursed sweet music during luncheon and tea, and also supplied the music for the dancing. During the day numerous parties visited Revaulx Terrace, with its temples, one of which contains some really fine fresco paintings; the ruins of Revaulx Abbey, and the valley overlooked by the terrace; the seat of Earl Feversham at Dunscombe Park, inspecting the collection of paintings by the old masters, and the rare pieces of statuary which the hall contains; the conservatories, the gardens, the Home Terrace, and other objects of interest in the neighbourhood. The day was exceedingly fine, and the whole arrangements were carried out to the satisfaction of all present. Every credit is due to the committee and to its Secretary (Bro. Coates) for the careful and complete manner in which every want had been anticipated, and to Mr. T. White, of Helmsley, for the liberal manner in which he catered. Bros. W. G. McLaughlin and G. Frank were also very active in promoting the enjoyment of their "visiting brothers." The return train left Helmsley at a quarter-past seven in the evening, and reached Sunderland safely at half-past ten, every one delighted with the day's outing, and looking forward to the "next merrie meeting."

FREEMASONRY IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

The usual monthly meeting of Lodge Caledonian, No. 489, S.C., was held in the Temple Haskien, on July 22nd, and as there was rather an unusual assemblage present on this occasion, even for us of the Orient, and knowing not a few on Albion's coasts interested in our proceedings, it occurred to the writer to speak to the brethren through their Masonic medium, the Freemason. All eyes to the east then for a brief period. The officers present were Bros. Wm. Dorrell, W.M.; G. R. Warren, P.M., acting D.M.; R. Jamieson, S.M.; A. Noble, I.P.M.; H. T. Rand, S.W.; J. Noble, J.W.; Wm. Morrison, S.D.; J. Lindsay, J.D.; G. Sutherland, I.G.; A. Scott, Tyler; the duty of Organist being admirably discharged by Bro. T. Tucker, while the not altogether dispensable members of the mystic cabinet of 489, Treasurer and Secretary, were represented by Bros. Chalmers and Frayer. Opening ceremonies over (1st degree) and minutes confirmed; visitors were admitted, Bro. Wm. Ife, W.M. No. 166, I.C.; Bro. F. J. Hammond, P.M. No. 630, E.C., a brother recently arrived in Byzantium, where he intends to reside, practising as M.D. Next was admitted brethren from H.B.M.S.S. "Antelope" fine specimens of those who go down to sea in ships, and see wonders in the great waters; then another stranger, Bro. Botelar, 687, but "Hold enough," nay! "Still they come." Strangers indeed, and yet brethren true and tried, sons of Israel from Smyrna, and Crete, and the isles around, while they spoke the silent language of Craftsmen, as Craftsmen, they also found brethren who could converse with them in the idiom of their fathers, for be it known that we "Caledonians" are linguists from Sclavonic to Gaelic. The labour was initiation, the neophyte an intelligent Armenian, who in addition to his ommelokit's (country's) language can fluently speak and write English. The Apprentice Degree was ably enjoined and imparted by Wor. Bro. Dorrell, but although the lodge was fenced in the First Degree, the glass atmospherically indicated 74°, a shade or so too tall for hard work, and, although more labour was announced, it was deemed advisable to close. The brethren adjourned to refreshment, and spent a social hour in unity and harmony, thus rehearsing our joys in 489. It may not be uninteresting to mention one sorrow, fraught with kindly remembrance. Bro. Geo. Pollock, Teacher, and a member of the lodge, was entertained to supper, principally by fellow-craftsmen, a week or two ago, on the eve of his return to Scotland; the repast served up by Bro. J. Rawe was recherché, the speeches choicer, and the harmony dulcer. Bro. Pollock has the goodly wishes of many here, and the hope that new and old friends gave him a hearty welcome, "Where the heather is blooming, And the eagles are free."

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

On the 24th June, being the festival of St. John, the Freemasons of Kimberley mustered in strong force, and the Temple being too small for the accommodation of the brethren, the Cosmopolitan Lodge No. 1409 was compelled to meet in the Kimberley Hall (Theatre Royal), which was specially prepared for the ceremony of installing officers, &c. The stage was fitted up tastefully for the W.M. and the other rulers of the Craft entitled to sit in the East. Shortly after twelve o'clock the lodge was opened in form by the Worshipful Bro. Spence Britain, the outgoing W.M. All present were dressed in evening costume, and wore the aprons, sashes, collars, and jewels of their respective Degrees. There were Royal Arch Masons, Masonic Knights Templar, Rose Croix Masons, and others whose rank our reporter did not learn. When all were seated it was announced that the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master of South Africa, His Excellency R. Southey, C.M.G., demanded admittance. He was received with grand honours, according to ancient usage, and conducted to the throne by the Stewards and Past Masters, and the following anthem was then sung with instrumental accompaniment, the brethren all standing:—

Hail, Eternal, by whose aid
All created things were made,
Heaven and earth thy vast design,
Hear us, Architect Divine!
May our work begun in Thee,
Ever blest with order be,
And may we, when our labours cease,
Part in harmony and peace!
By Thy Glorious Majesty,
By the trust we place in Thee,
By the badge and mystic sign,
Hear us, Architect Divine.

This was given with telling effect, and the lodge was then called up to the Second Degree, when the first portion of the installation ceremony was gone through. Finally a conclave of actual and Past Masters were formed, all brethren who had not passed the chair previously retiring, with the exception of the W.M. elect, Bro. Richard Day Atkins, who remained for installation. That worthy brother was then placed in the chair of K.S., the ritual being solemnly rendered by Bro. Britain. The conclave being closed, the M.M. in attendance were re-admitted and in procession saluted the new Master. Subsequently the brethren not in possession of the Masters' degree entered and joined the others in saluting. The following was then sung:—

The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky;
The spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great original proclaim;
The unwearied sun, from day to day,
Doth his Creator's power display;
And publishes to every land
The work of an Almighty hand.

The W.M. then announced that the Cosmopolitan Lodge had elected Bros. Haarhoff, Rorke, and Shaw, to act as Treasurer, Secretary, and Tyler, respectively, for the ensuing Masonic year. He himself desired to appoint, as was his privilege, Bros. Graham and Peggs as Wardens, Rink and Girdlestone as Deacons; De Beer, Bryant, and Abrahams as Organist, Inner Guard, and Masters of the Ceremonies, respectively; and Hallyburton, Druce, Bodley, and Chivers as Stewards. These announcements gave great satisfaction, the appointments being highly approved of.

The W.M. with the assistance of other brethren then formally installed the following officers, delivering the ancient charges to each as he invested them with their collars:—

Bros. Spence Britain, I.P.M.; W. T. Graham, S.W.; J. H. Peggs, J. W.; Dan. Haarhoff, Treasurer; J. Rorke, P.M., Secretary; H. Rink, S.D.; N. Girdlestone, J.D.; J. H. De Beer, Organist; T. Bryant, I.G.; Charles Shaw, Tyler; J. Abrahams, M.C.; G. Hallyburton, J. J. Druce, J. Bodley, J. Chivers, Stewards.

The new officers having been conducted to their places in the lodge and saluted, the anthem from Addison's beautiful ode on the Creation was sung:—

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale,
And, nightly, to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth;
Whilst all the stars that around her burn
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.

The lodge was then called off to refreshment, and the brethren went in procession to attend Divine service at St. Cyprian's Church.

The procession was headed by a band which, during its progress by New Main, Reitz, Main, Stockdale, and Market streets played a slow march. The various lodge and Royal Arch Banners gave the column a gay appearance, and the brethren marched in even time. Arrived at the church an avenue was formed by a double line of the members of the Order, through which the District Grand Master and the new Master of the Cosmopolitan passed, the others following in reverse order to that in which they had approached the building. The evening service was choral, and at the end Bro. the Rev. E. W. Stenson preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon, taking for his text Proverbs III. v. 32, "For the froward is an abomination to the Lord; but His secret is with the righteous." The discourse was listened to with very marked attention, and with evident pleasure by the members of the Craft present. The procession being reformed, all returned to the Kimberley Hall, the band this time playing "The Entered Apprentice," the quaint air composed for the song of Dr. Anderson in 1721. When all were within the building, the lodge being called from refreshment to labour, a collection was made as an offertory for the church, and a vote of thanks was accorded to the clergy.

The festival passed off very happily, there not being a single incident to mar the proceedings. There were several sharp showers in the early morning, but long before noon the clouds had disappeared, and the day was in every way suitable for the pageant. Those who know how good and charitable are the principles inculcated by the ancient and most honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons must indeed have been gratified to find that the fraternity numbers so many adherents in Gt. Britain and West. Still one looks for practical beneficence, and not merely sentimental utterances, and it is therefore much to be regretted that the brethren of South Africa cannot boast of the institutions which are found connected with Freemasonry in other parts of the world. "Brotherly Love, Relief, Truth," is indeed a noble motto to have adopted, but its very grandeur makes the neglect which we refer to the more glaring and blameable on the part of the Brotherhood. We saw by announcement in recent issues of the Argus and the News that earnest men occupying high positions in the Order had taken the matter in hand, and were endeavouring to procure the co-operation necessary to bring about a better state of things. We are pained to learn that their efforts have not received in this province the encouragement that was deserved. This is worse than mere apathy; and so long as the brethren here fail to make provision for the orphan, their claims to be regarded as a benevolent society will by the outsider be deemed untenable and groundless.—Mining Gazette.

THE BURDETT COUTTS LODGE (No. 1278.) PRESENTATION OF CHAIRS BY BARONESS BURDETT COUTTS.

On the 29th ult., a special meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of receiving at the hands of the Baroness Burdett Coutts the gift of the three principal chairs for the Master and Wardens. At the consecration of the lodge six years ago her ladyship, then Miss Burdett Coutts, presented the lodge with a handsome copy of the Sacred Law, and since that time she has never forgotten the lodge which bears her name.

The additional presentation of chairs was indeed a welcome gift, not only as a valuable accession to the furniture of the lodge, but as showing the excellent feeling which the Baroness entertains towards the body of Freemasons. In her mind at least there is nothing in the principles of the Order repugnant to religion, morality, or loyalty; and we suppose no one in the world will question the sincerity of the Baroness either as a religious, moral, or loyal lady. Coming from such a quarter the support of the Craft has a powerful significance, and we trust that such support may long be extended to this valuable institution.

The ceremony of presentation was concluded in the Zeland Room, in which the brethren of the lodge and a strong contingent of ladies were assembled. The Baroness was accompanied by her old friend, Mrs. Brown, Countess Beauchamp, Lady Augusta Paulet, Lady Charles Wellesley, Miss Wellesley, Mr. and Mrs. Otway, the Hon. H. Ryder, Bro. J. K. Aston, Professor Tennant, Mr. W. H. Wills, and Bro. G. C. Silk. Bro. James Terry, Prov. G. D.C., Herts, the first W.M. of the lodge, presided, and among the other brethren and ladies present were Col. Burdett, P.G.M. for Middlesex; Mrs. and Miss Burdett; H. G. Buss, P.G. Treas. Middlesex; Major Cretton, P.G.D.; Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B.; John Boyd, P.G.P.; Thos. Cubitt, P.G.P.; E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; F. Binckes, P.G. Steward; Thos. Lloyd, jun.; W. H. Gathercole, &c., &c.

The chairs were not occupied at first, but Bro. Terry stood on the left of the W.M. chair. The Stewards for the occasion were Bros. J. G. Harris, W.M.; W. J. Crutch, S.W.; W. Toye, J.W.; Jas. Terry, P.M., Treas.; G. Ward Verry, Sec.; C. K. Crouch, S.D.; W. Christian, D.C.; A. Lazarus, I.G.; Wallington, and Cambridge. While the procession was entering the room the organ was played by Bro. Miller, Prov. G. Org., Middlesex. When the procession had entered, the Baroness was placed on the right of the Master's chair, after which Bro. Terry informed the company that they were assembled on a very special occasion in the annals of the Burdett Coutts Lodge, viz., to receive first of all the lady after whom the lodge had the honour of being named, and in the next place to receive from her hands the three chairs which then adorned the room. He then called upon the brethren to sing a hymn, which having been done, the Baroness said she begged to present the chairs, and trusted they would be always occupied by brethren as true as those who had already presided over the lodge. Her ladyship added that she was glad to see on the Master's pedestal the volume of the Sacred Law which she had given them in 1869. Bro. Terry replied, that on behalf of the Burdett Coutts Lodge he formally accepted the noble gift, and he could but reiterate the wish she had just so kindly expressed. Then seating himself in the W.M. chair, he called on the Wardens to take possession of the other two. This having been done, he called on the Secretary to read the address the lodge wished to present to the Baroness. Bro. G. Ward Verry thereupon read the following address, which had been written by Bro. Crouch:—

"To the Baroness Burdett Coutts.—Madame,—The Worshipful Master, Wardens, and Brethren of the Burdett Coutts Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons desire to express their thanks for the interest which your ladyship takes in the lodge, and the patronage which you have extended to it. We thoroughly appreciate your goodness in having conferred upon us a splendid and costly copy of the 'Law of the Lord,' which is 'light to our feet and a lantern to our way.' We also gratefully acknowledge your more recent benefaction of three beautiful chairs for the official use of the principal officers of the lodge. To your ladyship acts of benevolence are customary and constant, and we trust that you will never have cause for regret for this new direction which you have given them. It affords this worshipful lodge the highest satisfaction to find that a lady of your rank and intelligence is able to set aside the prejudices which so many entertain towards a society the most powerful and benevolent, as well as the most honourable and ancient, in the world. We desire to express the hope that the example that your ladyship has set in this respect will be followed by other good and kind ladies as it has in so many other particulars been happily imitated. As the Bible always remains open in a Freemasons' lodge we shall be reminded of you by the most sacred associations, and, as our officers fill those chairs and ensure law and order, we shall naturally remember how much you have done to harmonise all classes of the people with lawfully constituted authority and in peaceful social fellowship. We sincerely pray that the Great Architect of the Universe may build up for you great happiness, and that He who is 'Light' may illumine your path and conduct you to the world where the sun of His glory never sets."

The address was engrossed, and had been placed in a handsome album.

Bro. Crouch, who had written the address, and Bro. Lloyd, the two Deacons, then presented the album to the Baroness, who replied as follows:—"Worshipful Master, Wardens, and Brethren,—In tendering you my sincere and hearty thanks for the address you have just read, I must avail myself of the opportunity offered to express the grateful pleasure I feel, as the daughter of a Mason, that in the lodge which you have wished should bear my name there will remain embodied the memory of my loyal, true-hearted, single-minded father, so long the representative of the liberties of the city of Westminster. In receiving the Bible for the table of your lodge, and in the chairs which I now present for the use of the officers, you have also conferred a favour upon me; though, like skilled craftsmen in the art of kindness, you have made the recipient appear the donor, and the courtesy and hospitality you extend to me and my friends to-day is one more of the many illustrations of the law of kindness which rules your beneficent and ancient society. I earnestly reciprocate your wishes for myself, and that we may rest in Him who is 'Shadow as well as light; for the Lord God is a Sun and Shield; the Lord will give grace and glory, and no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly.'"

A formal motion having been carried that the address and reply be entered on the minutes of the lodge, another hymn was sung, and Bro. Verry having read letters expressive of regret for inability to attend from Lord Skelmersdale and the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford the proceedings terminated. The whole party then adjourned to an elegant déjeuner at Freemasons' Tavern, at the conclusion of which the loyal toast was first proposed by Bro. Terry, who presided. After the toast of the M.W.G.M., Bro. Terry proposed "The Earl of Carnarvon, &c.," for which Colonel Burdett replied, and Bro. Terry then proposed "The Health of the Baroness Burdett Coutts." In doing so he said that he felt a great responsibility attached to him as the representative of the lodge in endeavouring to give utterance to all those kind wishes and good feelings which the brethren had towards the lady who was their guest, and if he failed adequately to do so they must attribute it to the want of power on his part and not to that of will. He would ask them to drink "The Health of Baroness Burdett Coutts, a lady whose name was known throughout the length and breadth of Christendom. Wherever Christianity was, or where a good act had to be carried out, there had been found the name of the Baroness Burdett Coutts. They all remembered that unparalleled act of generosity of her ladyship when she gave to one of the bishops a blank cheque, with a request that he would fill it up for any amount he might think fit. Hardly any other lady would have done such an act. By the papers it appeared the great consideration Lady Burdett Coutts was giving to the welfare of poor dumb animals, and a kind feeling or true heart could not be more clearly exhibited than in pleading for those who could not plead for themselves. If he were to take up the time of the brethren for a long period he could do no more than say, that in the Baroness Burdett Coutts seemed to be summed up all that was holy and good in womanhood, all that was pure, and that tended to elevate mankind generally. As our Most Gracious Sovereign had been pleased to confer, in the plenitude of her wisdom and power, the dignity of a peeress of the United Kingdom on her, it was a circumstance that Masons rejoiced in, and the brethren were proud that their lodge, which received from her its volume of the Sacred Law, bore her illustrious name. He would only say, that had it not been for the honour conferred on Baroness Burdett Coutts by her Majesty, the Burdett Coutts Lodge might not at this time have had the honour of entertaining her. He would not detain the company further: he was not paying any fulsome compliments on their guest, for everything he had said of her was well deserved; but he would call on all the company present to drink with heartiness and sincerity, and with every good wish and feeling, "Long life, health, and happiness to the Baroness Burdett Coutts."

The toast having been drunk with the greatest enthusiasm,

Col. Burdett, who was deputed by her ladyship to respond for her, thanked the ladies and brethren for the very handsome manner in which her name had been received after the flattering way in which it had been proposed by Bro. Terry. Her ladyship was much gratified at the style in which she had been received in the lodge-room, and at the lodge's acceptance of the three chairs. She was also pleased that her gift was acceptable to the brethren. She remembered that it was not the first present she had made to the lodge: it was one she had given with good will; and she felt that the precepts of the volume were followed by the brethren. She, however, wished him to state that whatever generosity Bro. Terry had credited her with she had never yet given a blank cheque to anybody that they might fill it up with what amount they pleased. (Laughter.) It was an entire mistake, which had arisen from certain circumstances that occurred some years ago. He knew the statement had not been made wilfully by Bro. Terry, and she wished him to correct it, because she had no desire that her generosity should be magnified. The Baroness also desired him to state that she was pleased at allusion having been made to the subject in which she took peculiar interest, kindness in the treatment of dumb animals. She was president of the Ladies' Committee of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in which cause she had exerted herself in every way she could. She desired to press this subject on the brethren, and she felt she would have their support. Col. Burdett then thanked the brethren on behalf of the Baroness for the address which they had presented to her, and again thanked them for the reception she had met with.

The Baroness and party then left, escorted by Bro. Terry and the Stewards, and on the return of these brethren to the room, Bro. Terry informed the brethren that her ladyship had invited them all, with the ladies of their families, to her garden party at Holly Lodge on the following Monday. (Cheers.)

The proceedings shortly afterwards terminated. The arrangements for the successful performance of the whole ceremony reflected great credit on those by whom they were managed.

LODGE LIBRARIES.

The following appears in the correspondence of our newly-established contemporary, the Masonic Chronicle, of New York:—

I have often been surprised at the lack of interest in Masonic libraries, knowing as I do that Masonry has a literature of its own, second in interest only to that of the Christian Church. I can only account for this from the fact that the collectors of the libraries—if they are entitled to that name—seem to have had no definite idea of the object sought to be obtained, further than securing a large collection of miscellaneous publications, without order or arrangement, to be placed upon their shelves for the admiration of visitors. We think, however, if the following plan were adopted by lodges, we would guarantee that every working member would become interested, not only in collecting, but make himself familiar with the contents of each volume added to its number.

Start with the determination to secure a complete collection of every Masonic publication of historical importance known to have been published within the jurisdiction of your Grand Lodge. This will interest every member, and, at the same time, render him familiar with the history and progress of the Craft, not only at home, but much of the same relating to other jurisdictions. The continual discovery, and bringing to light old and forgotten documents, creates an interest in all, and an incentive to further exertion which can scarcely be comprehended; and many a valuable document or manuscript will be gathered from the waste-basket or the paper-mill, which, when properly applied to its legitimate place, will supply and repair many a broken link in the chain of the Masonic history of the State. As the various transactions of the day make up the history of a nation or a community, so the various transactions of a society make up its history. These, to the actors and participants familiar with them, are often lightly estimated, and too frequently thrown aside after their first perusal; and thus is lost much of the most valuable matter necessary to fill up and perfect a history, of not only Masonry, but every society or association that has ever been instituted since civilization began. We would lay down a few rules for action in the collection and arrangement of a lodge library.

First.—To collect complete files of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge.

Second.—The same of the constitutions adopted at different times.

Third.—All pamphlets issued by the Grand Lodge on the subject of Masonry within its jurisdiction, also all edicts emanating from the Grand Lodge or Grand Master, as well as all circulars from the same and subordinate bodies in any way connected with the Fraternity.

Fourth.—Complete files of all Masonic journals, papers, and magazines.

Fifth.—Works on Masonic history, philosophy, law and jurisprudence, works on the ethics, symbolism, and dogmas of our institution, as well as the various monitors or manuals that have from time to time been compiled and arranged by many of the brightest members of the Craft, and numerous other works on Masonry of a miscellaneous character.

Sixth.—All "Anti-Masonic" publications. Although the last-named may not be entitled to the name of Masonic literature, still they are a part of the history of the times, and often illustrate the particular phase of society at the time better than could be obtained from any other source.

If, as will undoubtedly be the case, duplicate works are brought to light, they should be carefully preserved until exchanged for others needed for the library. All this can be done with comparatively small expense, if the brethren of a lodge can only be made to feel an interest in the matter, as almost every brother has something in his possession which he might spare for the purpose of making up a library, whereby not only the brethren might be entertained and improved, but his own opportunities for the use of Masonic literature greatly increased.

ANTIQUARY.

We most heartily endorse all that our correspondent has said, and feel that we cannot too strongly recommend the careful consideration of the subject of Masonic libraries, not only for lodges, but for private use.

GRAND CHAPTER.

The quarterly convocation of Grand Chapter was holden on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall, when Comp. Samuel Rawson presided as M.E.Z.; Comp. Frederick Pattison as H.; and Comp. Major Creaton as J. The other companions present were John Savage, as S.E.; Percy Leith, as S.N.; Robt. Gray, as P. Soj.; Capt. Platt, as First Assist.; Joshua Nunn, as Second Assist.; J. C. Parkinson, Swd. B.; J. Smith, Benj. Head, H. Browne, Edward S. Snell, J. Brett, W. R. Woodman, D.C.; N. Bradford, and others.

The paper of business, printed in the Freemason of last week, was gone through, and the charters granted for all the chapters named therein.

Grand Chapter was then closed.

Review.

"Monumental Inscriptions of the British West Indies, from the earliest date, &c.," chiefly collected on the spot, by Captain J. H. Lawrence Archer.—London: Chatto and Windus, 1875. Demy 4to, half Roxburghe; price, 42s.

This valuable historical work, by Bro. Captain J. H. Lawrence Archer, contains the most interesting records of members of the Craft that have succumbed to the pestilential climate of the West Indies, and is commended to all by the modesty with which a really great and enduring contribution to literature is described by the author in his preface. The work as an example of printing and illustration is simply superb, and by doing honour to the producer reflects a credit on the Craft, and does justice to our talented and indefatigable brother.

Obituary.

BRO. DAVID BRANDWOOD, RADCLIFFE BRIDGE.

The remains of this brother, a P.M. of Lodge of Faith, 344, Radcliffe, near Manchester, were interred at St. Thomas's Churchyard, in that town, on Sunday afternoon. A considerable number of brethren preceded the corpse to the burial ground, Bro. R. Whittaker, of Farnworth, P. Pro G.D.C., East Lancashire, acting as G.D.C. The deceased brother was fifty-one years old, and up to about a year ago held the post of manager and secretary to the Radcliffe and Pilkington Gas Co., failing health leading to his resignation.

Masonic Tidings.

An electric clock has been placed in front of Bro. Sir John Bennett's, in Cheapside, and it attracts almost as much notice as the celebrated automatic figures did formerly.

Bro. Francis Trott, for thirty-two years with Messrs. Brook and Son, Poultry, and latterly with Mr. W. Connell, Cheapside, died on Thursday, the 29th ult., at his residence in New-cross.

The Great Eastern has been chartered to run between Liverpool and Philadelphia during the Centennial.

A telegram dated Scilly, August 3, 3 p.m., states, "Divers have recovered two kegs of treasure from the wreck of the Schiller."

It is estimated that over 100,000 persons entered the Alexandra Palace and Park on Monday last.

A full report of the Recreation Banquet of the Britannic Lodge, No. 33, will appear in our next issue.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction, at the Earl of Chatham, Thomas Street, Woolwich, on Friday, the 27th August, by Bro. David Rose. The lodge will be opened at 7 o'clock.

We understand, that a marriage will shortly take place between his Imperial Highness Prince Demétrius, Grand Master Mason and Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council, 33rd Degree, in Greece, and Honorary Member of the Supreme Council, 33rd Degree, for Scotland, &c., and eldest son of his Imperial Highness Prince Rhodocánakis, of Rhodocánakis Castle, in the Island of Ohio, and Kathleen, eldest daughter of Captain George Newcomen, R.N., of 33, Queen's-gate, South Kensington, and Feltwell Lodge, Norfolk.

FELTOW & SONS' 'SPECIALITE' SHERRY.—"This wine is a particularly wholesome one. It has a smooth, dry flavour, and is remarkably free from the heat and acidity so usually found in all but the very finest Sherries. We are quite confident that for a wholesome stimulant this Sherry can hardly be surpassed."—The Chemist and Druggist.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Summer weather brings with it many risks and many diseases, the blood becoming often overheated and the circulation of it increased in rapidity, renders it a susceptible receptacle for poisonous emanations and infectious processes. Fevers are often generated in this manner, and sometimes lie lurking in the system in a latent form, until some accidental exciting cause calls the disease into activity. Premonitory symptoms such as Nausea, Headache, pains in the back, shivering, &c., and such admonitions should be disregarded by none. Early attention to them will often ward off impending danger, and stifle the disease in its infancy. Holloway's remedies afford the best means of doing this.—Advt.

Poetry.

LINES READ BY A M.M. AT 332, LODGE OMAGH, IRELAND, ON THE ANNIVERSARY OF ST. JOHN.

I would I had the ready Speaker's tongue,
And then the thought, a sublime theme to suit!
'Tis MASONRY—so oft well said and sung:
A tree, still flourishing and bearing fruit.
What time, and where 'twas planted, none need know.
Enough it is, it rises, branching yet
Its fadeless foliage, towering o'er the snow
Of wintry clime, and 'neath the summer's heat
It stands, so firmly rooted nought can bend
If from its purpose true—to shelter all
Who would fair Charity with Friendship blend,
And living, die to hear the Master's call.
To live so that, amid this world's wiles, each
Disseminates the truths locked in his breast.
The key is Love. Oh! may its uncton reach
To North, to South, to East, to farthest West;
To die in perfect trust it is God's will
That when this life be past new life's begun,
If, hearkening to the voice so small and still,
Each earnest effort make to earn "Well Done."

Death has been busy in our ranks since last,
We held high anniversary, and feast of love.
How many of our friends are 'mong the past,
Called from us here to the Grand Lodge above.
The ancient Geraldine, the tried and true,
And our own Thompson, eminent 'mid men,
And other brethren true of Three-three-two;
And Walmsley—worthy wielder of the pen.
I, too, bewail a brother of my kin
As lost to sight, to memory ever dear;
A place high up, abroad, he sought to win,
Hope at the helm, his onward course lay clear,
A worthy brother,—he now rests from work
His labours ended, in the East he lies,
He owned the claim of all men—Jew or Turk,
Who sought a Father in the great All Wise.
We trust that those departed ones have met
With their reward on Iligh, and now we turn
To gratulate ourselves that we have yet
Rare reinforcements 'stead of those we mourn.
With Albert in the chair (the son of him,
'Yclept the Good), our Craft and Nation's hope;
With Edinburgh and Connaught's Duke and slim
Young Leopold, who'll with us care to cope;
With Abercorn, whom all justly own
Erin's Chief in wisdom and in worth,
The Craftsmen crowded lately round his throne,
With pride beheld the Chosen of the North.
Our Worshipful we gladly see, just where
We wish him, with his laurels richly won
At 'Baldoye brilliant'—his Turquoise was there,
And shone right glorious, showing how to run,
Another gem is added to his crown.
He is the Victor still at every meet,
We give him joy of his deserved renown,
And gladly cry "The Murphy's can't be beat."
Though absent oft our Master never dies,
He revels in the West, and well he may,
There sets the Sun, but as it sinks to rise
With promise of a brilliant coming day,
So rests our Master on our Brother West.
Full well he knows him whom he leaves behind,
And tells us when he goes that we are blest
In miracle of manhood, memory, and mind.

In duty bound, we welcome foreign friends,
The members of our sister lodge we prize,
We hail with joy each brother who attends,
For brethren all we be—all bound by loving ties.

Whom have we got—new workers? let me see!
There's Law and Physic very, very strong.
Whilst Commerce and the Banking interest be Both bulwarks. Brother Treasurer, am I wrong?
Another of our bulwarks, "One of us,"
And of a corps, I think they call a "crack."
At rifle drill, or rifling of a "bus,"
Who can compare with our good brother Jack?
'Tis not an omnibus of which I speak,
'Tis something gained in giving back again.
'Tis rifle practice near allied to cheek,
'Tis practice ne'er confined to riflemen.

'What's in a name?' 'tis said. I say there is.
See, here are three of our John's sons to night.
Whilst all are proud of being sons of his,
We must admit those sons by double right.
Here's Agriculture, feeder of us all,
But for the farmer we might starve almost,
Whilst his works follow him ne'er to the wall.
We'll come, but plenty have to boil and roast.
Oh! bless us, but the clergy do wax strong,
I crave their pardon, and I don't forget
They come in crowds to see we do no wrong.
We neither "hinder" them, nor do we "let."
Some of the genus say they'll put us down,
We cannot help their bluster and tirade
But while four sons of Her who wears the crown
Be with us, brethren, be ye not afraid,
And though illiberality protest,
And suasion seek to sever brotherhood,
This to the zealous worker adds but zest
To labour on—because the cause is good.

FREEMASONRY.

TRANSLATED FROM "LE NOUVEAU MONDE" OF MONTREAL.

Despite the condemnation which the chair of Saint Peter has hurled against this Society, many people still hesitate to look upon it as the declared enemy of Christianity. The following facts, reported by the American correspondent of the "Monde," and which he vouches for as authentic, are of such a nature as to dissipate the illusions of those who look upon Freemasonry as merely a philanthropic society.

"In the month of August, 1862," writes Mr. J. E. Martin, "I made the acquaintance of an old monk of the Order of Passionists, at Hoboken, opposite New York. In the course of a conversation on the subject of Freemasonry, he related the following anecdote:—

"I was called, a few days ago, to administer the last sacrament to a dying man at Brooklyn: he was a German whom I had happened to meet once or twice. His only daughter, an excellent catholic, warned me that her father was a Freemason, and that it would be necessary to make him recant.

After having heard his confession, I asked him if he did not belong to some secret society.

"Yes, father: I am a Freemason; but you know, in America, there is no harm in being one."

"You are wrong," I said, "Freemasonry is condemned wherever it exists; I call upon you to retract any oaths you may have taken, and to give me up the insignia of your Order."

The dying man objected strongly; but he was still a catholic, and so signed the recantation which I dictated to him. I then had fresh trouble to obtain from him his scarf, silver trowel and square, his kid skin apron, and his book of ritual, which were locked up in a chest near his bedside. I left the room with these 'spolia opima,' happy at having snatched a soul from the clutches of the devil. His daughter was waiting for me in the passage. 'Well?' said she, 'has my father given you everything? has he made his peace with God?' Yes, daughter, see here, and I showed her the articles in my possession.

She took them up, one after the other, and then said, in a sorrowful tone, "No, this is not all; my father wore these badges when he went to his lodge, and on grand occasions. It has not cost him much to give you up these. The book, which is peculiar to his degree, was of more value to him. But there is something more."

"What is it?"

"A written document, of the contents of which I am ignorant. My father has ordered me to take it, unopened, to the Master of his lodge, after his death. It must be some important secret."

I went back to the sick man, and said to him "Why have you deceived me? You are about to appear before the tribunal of God; do you think you will escape his justice? You still have something to give up to me." He appeared astonished. I noticed the pallor of his face, and the troubled look in his eyes; then he said to me, with a certain amount of hesitation. "No: you have taken everything away. I have nothing more to give up to you."

"No. There is a written document, such as all Freemasons have."

"You are wrong father; I have nothing of the kind." I redoubled my persuasion, but all was in vain; the devil was on the point of triumphing. I employed every means that I thought might be of use in such a case. All was useless. The dying either denied or remained silent, when his daughter opened the door, and threw herself on her knees by his bedside. "Oh, papa! for God's sake save your soul! Your daughter is wretched. You say you love me; prove it to me now."

The dying man was not prepared for such an attack; the kisses and tears of his daughter, as she lavished upon him the most affectionate caresses, moved him; she spoke to him in the kindest manner of the heaven that he was throwing away, but he still replied, "You know I have nothing hidden." His daughter, in an inspired manner, exclaimed "Father, do not lie; you have always been honest and truthful: do not let me have to blush for your memory. Give the Holy Father the document you have bidden me take to the Master of your Lodge." At these words, the sick man uttered a cry, and then with an effort, said, sighing, "No, my girl, you shall not have to blush for your father. Take this key which hangs round my neck, open that drawer, and give the Holy Father the paper you will find in it." He then fell back, fainting. His daughter executed his orders as quick as lightning, and gave me a sealed and folded paper, exclaiming, "Victory! my father is saved: he has thrown up the poison!" (Il a vomie le poison.)

This scene had touched me deeply, the girl's courage reminded me of the early Christians. The sick man lived for a few hours, and his last words were an expression of contrition as well as of faith and hope. I opened the sealed paper in his daughter's presence; it was an oath, signed with blood!

I had heard of these documents as common among the chiefs of Freemasonry, but when I read this paper, I could not believe my eyes, it was a declaration of an endless, merciless war against the church, the papacy, and kings, with the most fearful curses upon any one who should violate the oath.

I gave the paper to the archbishop in order that he might be enabled to appreciate the infernal malice of Freemasonry as well as I myself."

Such was the tale of the passionist father, and it has remained engraved on my memory. It is only one of the thousand proofs that Freemasonry is the same all over the world.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUG. 7, 1875.

THE BURDETT COUTTS LODGE.

The proceedings at this interesting "reunion," which we give in another column, will, we think, be very gratifying to all our readers. For not only do we as Freemasons gratefully acknowledge the kindness evinced to our Order by that estimable and benevolent lady who was present on the occasion, but we think the tone of the proceedings was most thoroughly in accordance with the spirit of Freemasonry from first to last. Lady Burdett Coutts called attention we are glad to perceive, to the open Bible in the lodge, her own kindly gift. We are always pleased to point to the fact, that English Freemasons still preserve in their lodges, and still revere in their minds, the Best of Books. The address of the lodge was, we think, both in good taste, and entirely Masonic in expression and utterance, and equally do we feel bound to commend Lady Burdett Coutts's reply, and trust that this friendly interest of hers in the Burdett Coutts Lodge may continue unabated on her part. Under the energetic presidency of Bro. Terry, and aided by the zealous assistance of the Stewards, the gathering appears to have been a great success, and despite lachrymose complaints and petty jeremiades at such revolutionary proceedings, we congratulate the brethren of the Burdett Coutts Lodge on the fair assembly which responded to their invitations, and smiled on their pleasant hospitality. Such occasions as this, and certain great and high days of our Order are, we venture to repeat, most suitable occasions, when we can properly invite and approvingly hail the presence of our fair sisters amongst us. Such days may be fairly called our Masonic Red Letter Days, when woman's kindness may animate, and woman's grace may delight, and when the monotony of our customary assemblies may be advantageously varied by the introduction of that most potent charm of earthly life, the influence and personality of the ladies. Amid those mysteries of dress which puzzle us "outsiders," lords of the creation though we call ourselves, amid the genial and enlivening flow of female conversation, which is often most prolonged and animated, amid those charms of bright eyes and waving locks, and warm hearts, and unselfish wills, by which woman so attracts and impresses our often harsh and doubting sex, we can well fancy how this successful gathering pleasantly passed off, and has left many vivid memories behind it. We wish that all success may attend on the Burdett Coutts Lodge, and that this assembly of Craft Masons will not be the last which will unite their benevolent patroness with them, in mutual feelings of truly Masonic esteem, respect, and good-will.

MASONIC ELOQUENCE.

We called attention some time back to "after-dinner speeches," and we feel it to be our duty to-day to enlarge on the subject of Masonic Eloquence generally. It is, as Bro. Binckes said at the Chaucer Meeting, a "very wide subject," when speaking of the admission of ladies to the Boys' Anniversary. We accept his words to-day, as exactly descriptive of the matter on which we are now treating. If we are to believe Mr. Heckethorn and numerous other profane "ansers," whose cackling may be constantly heard, and in respect too of subjects of which they are utterly ignorant, Freemasonry just now has neither literature nor writers, speeches nor speakers, utility nor mission at all. Pace, however, Mr. Heckethorn, and all the "vulgar profanum," we are prepared to contend, as we contended before, that Masonic Eloquence has increased greatly latterly amongst us, and is every now and then of very high "calibre," and for the most part "above the mark," that is to say, above the average eloquence of the British public. It is true that every now and then some erratic speaker lands himself and us in a dreadful "corner" or "hole," and boggles out of his ill-timed words with the greatest clumsiness, and the worst possible grace. It is a fact that here and there you may still have to listen to lugubrious specimens of that turgid nonsense, of that "high falutin" which seemed at one time to be the necessary accompaniment of Masonic meetings, and the unvarying characteristic of Masonic oratory. Men are still men; Freemasons are yet human; and to suppose that simply because they are Freemasons, they are not likely to be betrayed into frailties, or to display inanities, or to commit a "betise," is neither reasonable, nor is it even the way of the world. For if there be one thing the longest experience of time would teach us all, it is this, that we all of us need, and all of us should make, many allowances here for the inevitable foibles, the uncontrollable "nial-series" of our race. That all Freemasons talk sense we do not aver; that no Freemason ever talks nonsense we do not say; but this we do affirm, that in our opinion latterly the eloquence of Masonry has been marked by careful abstinence from its ancient besetting faults, "tall talk," empty phrases, and wearisome repetitions. And we think that we note a decided improvement in the character of Masonic orations and addresses, and even of the dinner speeches generally. Some of us who are now "getting on in years," and remember old meetings and old friends, can vividly summon up before us to-day the old fashioned speakers with their stereotyped formularies of Masonic eloquence at ancient gatherings. Their history was shaky, their chronology was defective, their views of Freemasonry proper hazy in the extreme. You were taken back to Noah, and Nimrod, to Babylon and Bacchus, to Grecian mysteries, to Egyptian pyramids, to the Druids, as a matter of course, with an amount of confidence which was somewhat startling, and a calmness of assertion which left no doubt or reply possible. We were told that Freemasonry was ancient, and social, and benevolent, undeniable truths, and that it possessed great and invaluable privileges, and that we were all "jolly good fellows," and that we were a loyal, a moral, and a friendly Order. Such was the address we heard over and over again, with no variation, made up moreover of a little of Anderson, of a touch of Hutchinson, more of Preston, and a good deal of Oliver. Now we do not deny that there may be, and there most probably is, a substratum of truth in all these claims and asseverations, more or less, but boldly spoken they do not commend themselves to the fair criticism of the outer world, or even of the Masonic student. Surely we have changed for the better. Masonic investigation has opened the chained-up gates of Masonic Archæology, has stirred the dust of centuries, has put Dryasdusts and Fabulists to flight, and has offered to our Order a critical and a reasonable account of our organization. We say nothing here of those great rhapsodical utterances which are termed, "proposing the ladies," as we prefer dealing with what is real and prosaic even, rather than with what is purely sentimental. Masonic eloquence has become, we think, more natural, more reliable, and more accurate, and generally more intellectual, since the days of its old hyperbole are over, and what may not unfairly be called "Masonic swagger" charmeth us no more. But after all is said and done, the orator like the poet, "nascitur non fit." Masonic eloquence to be truly effective must come from the intellect as well as from the understanding, from a knowledge of the subject, as well as from an "artificial memory." We may make up a speech, we may string together facts and statistics, we may indulge in Masonic glorification and familiar commonplace, but unless the spirit of eloquence be there, it falls at once into the ruck of ordinary and factitious speaking so prevalent amongst us. It is given to few, we may however well remember here, "the applause of listening senates to command," and it is the lot of very few indeed of the more gifted of our species to attract attention and to retain interest. So long as we can boast amongst our Order one or two really eloquent orators we should be quite content. They are in truth "rare aves in terris," and perhaps it as well that they should be so. Too many eloquent speeches would make some of us become like Simeon Stylites, or an Eremita in the loneliest wilderness. If then our average Masonic eloquence is as a rule above the mark,—above, that is, the common level of the great river of human verbosity,—if it keeps equally at a distance from politics and religion, from hopeless vapidness and "bottled moonshine," if it be fair and reasoning, calm and courteous in tone, true and tolerant in assertion, if it seeks to allure and to attract instead of dogmatizing, and denouncing, we may rejoice to think that our lot is cast in these days when we are not forced to listen to reiterated absurdities, or to "didactic twaddle." A clever speaker once said, that the "truest eloquence is that, which is contained in the fewest if most forcible words." And many of us will remember how in "auld lang syne," some of the "doctors" of our "Israel" alike charmed us and warmed us up, alike encouraged and directed us, with words sparkling like brilliants, and with scintillations fresh from the anvil of genius. Their speeches were neither too long nor too short, neither too learned nor too sentimental, but memory lingers by them yet, as delivered in all the pure simplicity of our Anglo-Saxon vernacular, with all of heartfelt admiration, saying to us gratefully, if regretfully "Adveniant utinam sic mihi sœpe dies."

THE FLOODS IN FRANCE.

The report of its two delegates, Mr. John Furley and Captain Kennick, has been received by the Executive Committee formed in the City of London for the relief of the distress caused by the recent inundation in the South of France, and which committee is, as most of our readers know, presided over by our worthy and benevolent Bro. the Lord Mayor. Most sad is the report. They say that they have travelled over 800 miles of country, and the following is their description of what they have themselves witnessed. Although the country in the immediate neighbourhood of Bordeaux bore evidence of having been more or less inundated, they observed no traces of exceptional damage until they reached Barsac. Thence, as far as La Réole, the whole valley had suffered severely, and hay, straw, and various kinds of debris in the branches of the trees which bordered the fields showed the height the water attained. In that district the greater part of the loss sustained consisted in this year's crops, and, with few exceptions, it was probable that even the vintage was not entirely destroyed. At La Réole the damage done commenced to be more apparent, and thence to Agen the destruction caused by the floods could scarcely be exaggerated. Dams had been swept away, and in several places the railroad had been broken up, and rails and sleepers had been thrown to a distance of 30 or 40 yards, while portions of the embankment had disappeared altogether. Over some fields a thick alluvial deposit had been left by the water, which, although it had destroyed this year's harvest, would doubtless prove to be of great value hereafter, but where a coating of sand or stone had been deposited the damage done to small proprietors was almost irreparable. Fortunately, the high hills on each side of the valley formed some protection and lessened the loss in cattle, which otherwise would have been much greater than it was. At Agen the destruction was quite beyond description. In places the torrent had trenched the ground to the depth of several feet, houses had been completely swept away, and scarcely a vestige remained of the beautiful public gardens and promenades which ornamented the quays on the right bank of the river. Clothing was very much wanted, but it was useless to send anything but under-clothing to the peasantry, as they were too proud to wear cloth clothes which could be recognized as being the gift of charity. The workmen in the towns made no such objection, and gladly accepted garments of every description. Agricultural and other tools and implements were much needed, but they must be of the same style and pattern as those to which the workmen and peasants were accustomed, or they would not be appreciated. Cattle were also wanted, but an English cow would only be acceptable to a rich proprietor, as the small farmers used even milch cows for draught purposes. The part of that department (Lot et Garonne) which was not inundated was quite able to supply the number of beasts which were lost. And then they go on to-day; on arriving at Toulouse they at once proceeded to the Faubourg of St. Cyprien. No description in words, no series of sketches or photographs, not even the most vivid imagination, could picture the terrible scene that once thrived place, which was lately occupied by from 18,000 to 20,000 inhabitants, now presented. What St. Cyprien must have been in the last days of June it was too horrible to conjecture. No bombardment ever wrought such complete and general destruction. Nothing was too great or too strong, nothing too insignificant, for the invading flood of waters which between the morning of the 23rd and that of the 24th rose between 30 and 40 feet above its usual level, and overwhelmed that extensive tract, destroying the lives of some hundreds of men, women, and children, and leaving behind it nothing but ruin and misery. Most of the houses were knocked out of all shape, the majority of them being nothing more than a chaotic heap of bricks, slates, tiles, and pipes, while the few walls that were left standing were propped up on all sides with timber. In some places the walls had been undermined by trenches from six to ten feet in depth. The large suspension bridge called the Pont St. Michael had been literally torn away, and some of its strong wire cables were lying along the banks of the river, with large trees and portions of the former planked roadway tightly held within its strands. In Toulouse itself but little damage had been done, except at St. Michel and in the Quartier des Amidonniers—two districts forming the extremities of the city on the right bank of the river. The latter quarter was covered with mills and manufactories, all of which had been more or less injured, while some had been totally destroyed. As a consequence of that a large number of artisans had been turned out of employment. In the village of Les Sept Deniers the fruitful gardens which helped to supply the city were utterly destroyed, the houses had fallen, and the inhabitants were dispersed. They might also mention the case of Fernouillet, a village lying at a distance of six miles to the north of Toulouse. That commune was one large garden, cultivated by an industrious population. Now in many cases it was impossible to distinguish the boundaries which formerly existed between the different little properties. Of 223 houses in the village, only eight were now standing, and of these few scarcely one was at present habitable. Fortunately precautions which proved successful were taken in time, and of the 950 inhabitants all were saved excepting two. In the department of L'Ariège, the village which had most suffered was Verdun. During the night of the 23rd of June a landslip is supposed to have happened from one of the hills; that blocked up the bed of the torrent, forming a sort of dam, which retained the waters until they had acquired such volume and weight as to burst it. Sweeping every obstacle in their downward course, the pent-up flood rushed upon the village, burying under its ruins about 82 persons, 147 horned cattle, and over 600 sheep and pigs. The extent of the catastrophe might be imagined from the fact that 300 soldiers were engaged in clearing the ground, and they have not yet succeeded in discovering all the bodies. Upon these indubitable facts they base the following propositions:—That it is only necessary to include four departments in the division of the fund—namely, La Haute Garonne, Lot et Garonne, Tarn et Garonne, and L'Ariège. In coming to that conclusion they had been guided by the decisions of the Conseil Municipal of Paris and the Alsace and other committees. The order in which they had placed those departments was based on the following figures:—La Haute Garonne stood first, as having suffered more severely than any of the other departments. Its loss amounted to no less than 32,215,800fr. Lot et Garonne had sustained losses estimated at 24,200,000fr.; Tarn et Garonne, 13,650,000fr.; and L'Ariège, 7,446,966fr. By a comparison of the total of losses they beg to suggest that the following partition should be made of the Mansion House Relief Fund:—La Haute Garonne, 4-10ths; Lot and Garonne, 3-10ths; Tarn and Garonne, 2-10ths; L'Ariège, 1-10th. That those sums should as far as possible be spent in the purchase of those articles which have been already mentioned—namely, strong iron bedsteads of simple form, blankets—coarse linen for sheets and shirts, flannels, wool, len stuffs for women's clothing, and in "bons" or orders for artisans' tools and farming implements. But, inasmuch as there was a difference in the actual requirements of the sufferers in each of the four departments, and gifts in kind were more serviceable than gifts of money, they would strongly urge on the committee the desirableness of their being represented by two delegates, one of whom should be at Paris in communication with the Central Committee, and the other in the South of France to act in concert with the Departmental Committees. If that suggestion should be adopted, the wants of the sufferers and the wishes of all parties could be met without wounding national susceptibilities; and at the same time, if gifts in kind should be sent to France, such delegates, acting in concert with each other and with the Central and Departmental Committees, would be in a position to judge of the quantities respectively required, and the ports and railway stations to which the objects should be addressed. Such a plan would also insure economy both in time and money, while it would be in accordance with the wishes expressed by the French authorities. A tabulated statement appended to the report showed that the entire losses were estimated at 99,849,919fr., thus enumerated:—Farms, mills, and manufactories, 22,671,345fr.; furniture, merchandize, and stock-in-trade, 14,783,545fr.; land 18,213,297fr.; crops, 25,635,737fr.; and cattle, 2,446,000fr. Seventeen communes had been totally and 260 partially flooded. And the final conclusion to which these two worthy delegates come to in their most lucid report is, that the distribution had better be left to the Central Committee, presided over by Madame McMahon, instead of to special English agents. We, ourselves, fully concur in the conclusions of this just and admirable report, and, to say the truth, we never could understand why any doubts should be entertained as to any want of fairness on such a matter by the Central Committee, and least of all can we comprehend the action of the Mayor of Birmingham in the matter. Why a French committee, in the presence of such overpowering calamities, should be supposed more likely than an English committee to be actuated by unworthy motives we cannot possibly realize, and we think such a view unfair, both to the Government and the People of France. We trust, therefore, that the London committee will accept the conclusions of their able delegates, as, on calm reflection, such a conclusion will be that, we feel sure, of all English contributors. The fund, so far, may be said to reach to something like £25,000 in round numbers, but it is clear, if our aid is to be commensurate with the exigencies of the case, a larger amount must be raised. The total loss sustained by the French people is over four millions, and many years must elapse before these fertile districts can again be what they were once, if ever they entirely lose the traces of this great disaster. We beg, therefore, to commend this fund to the notice of our lodges. We trust sincerely that in the spirit of fraternal philanthropy all our lodges may send a contribution, be it large or small, to the Lord Mayor's Committee, and we shall be most happy to announce, in a special column, all such amounts forwarded to the committee of which we shall receive notice. Indeed, we may add, that if any of our lodges or brethren prefer to forward such subscriptions to our publisher, Bro. George Kenning, he will have the greatest pleasure in personally paying the amount over to the Mansion House Executive, and acknowledging the same in the Freemason.

WHAT NEXT?

A rumour comes to us, on ecclesiastical authority, moreover, which seems to us both a little strange and startling. There is, in the glorious fane of Winchester, dear as well as glorious to all old Wykehamists, specially from pleasant memories of other days, a well-known slab, said to cover the bones of St. Swithun, or St. Swithun. Of course this fact, like many other similar facts in the world, is said by some to be a fiction. St. Swithun was, according to his own wish, originally buried outside the church, at a spot where what Rudborne calls "modica cupella," a little chapel, was raised over his grave. About 100 years afterwards St. Ethelwold, Bishop of Winchester, translated his remains with great pomp into the Cathedral. St. Ethelwold was succeeded by St. Elphege, who was martyred by the Danes, and who was translated as Archbishop of Canterbury from Winchester in 1006. He took with him, Osborne tells us, the head of St. Swithun to Canterbury, and from this relic William of Sens, the Master Mason of Canterbury, took a portion to Sens Cathedral. It is upon these facts that many writers declare that the slab covering St. Swithun does not represent truly his place of sepulture. It was opened in 1797, when the bones of a person buried in a black serge cowl were found. It was felt that they were the remains of a person of note, and Milner suggests of the famous prior Silkesteade, whose actual burial place is, we believe, unknown, though probably in his own chapel, as it is called. Knowing how, in old days, people were proud, and inclined to boast of relics, we are led to believe that the remains discovered in 1797 were actually those of St. Swithun, probably re-interred when the shrines were broken up, and removed at the Reformation. Now it seems that a tomb is about to be raised to Bishop Sumner, and that this old slab is to be disturbed to make way for it. We object to such a proceeding in toto, as a proceeding of modern iconoclasm and of barbarism. Whether the slab covers the remains of St. Swithun or Silkesteade matters little; like Archytas, it may say to the executors of Bishop Sumner, or his injudicious friends:—

"At tu vagæ ne parce malignus arenæ, Ossibus et capiti inhumato."

Or, as Francis translates it:—

"Nor thou, my friend, refuse with impious hand,
A little portion of this wandering sand,
To these my poor remains."

Surely the authorities of Winchester Cathedral will feel how proper and needful it is "quiescent movere." We hope that some true Freemasons and worthy archaeologists will be found in the good old city of Winchester to lift up their voices against this far too common practice of these restoring days, to destroy and erase what is old because it is old, to make way for a new specimen of statuary, or a burnished piece of lacquer work. It is altogether a false proceeding in the interests of art and ecclesiastical archaeology, and we protest against it, wherever it is attempted to be carried out. Surely some befitting place may be found for a stately memorial of Bishop Sumner without drawing on the projectors of this destructive perversity, if the report be true, the curse that William Shakespeare pronounces against all who irreverently move or interfere with the bones of the great, the good, and the departed. Surely we all shall say "quiescent in pace."

BRO. MAJOR BURGESS.

We are induced to call attention again to this controversy, in consequence of the clear and pointed letter signed "A Mark Master," which appeared in our last issue. We leave out all the personal questions at issue between the controversialists—unfortunately the whole matter is a personal one—and we turn to the general principles laid down by our correspondent, "A Mark Master." If we understand his words right, in his opinion it does not make any difference whether all the signatories are Masonic, for though he does say he understands the Chivalric degrees to be composed solely of Master Masons, yet we apprehend that under the novel form of the Priory of the Temple such a qualification is no longer a sine qua non. At any rate, we should like to have this point clear. The Scottish Templars do not admittedly require a Masonic qualification, and if such now be the actual status of the "Priory of the Temple," we feel strongly that "A Mark Master" has put forth a somewhat startling proposition. Because if his argument be good for anything, it must amount to this, that the Mark Degree has a right to make a "concordat" with any grade or Order, Masonic or non-Masonic. He seems however to feel the incongruity of such arrangements on Masonic grounds, and he therefore skilfully makes a distinction between breaches of Masonic discipline and dishonourable conduct, implying thereby that Bro. Burgess's case comes under the latter category, whereas in truth it appears to have been a pure case of Templar discipline from first to last. And we would ask "A Mark Master," how can the Order of the Temple and the 33rd be judges in a case of Masonic discipline which can properly only be adjudicated on by a purely Masonic body, which neither of these distinguished Orders admittedly are? The dilemma in which the Mark Degree now finds itself is very remarkable and clear. By the tripartite treaty it virtually hands over its members to the decision of an alien and non-Masonic tribunal, as more or less a supreme court of appeal, so that if a Mark Mason is found guilty, being a Templar, and of the 33rd, of some disciplinary delinquency, he is "ex necessitate," suspended from his functions and privileges as a Mark Mason, though he is utterly guiltless of any breach of Mark Masonic law. This is so serious a position for all Mark Masons, that we cannot believe, on the principles of Masonic equity, it will be sustained by the Grand Lodge of Mark Masons. If it is, we are very sorry for it and them. We say nothing about what our able correspondent terms the "more select degrees," because we utterly deny the assumption and the claim, as we do not consider that there is, or can be, any superiority or distinction of any kind between the Christian bodies, or the Mark Degree, and Craft Masonry. We would venture to suggest a practical conclusion of this painful controversy. Let a committee of four, two to represent Bro. Burgess, and two to represent the higher grades, be appointed amicably, the four to select a chairman, and let their award be accepted as "amici curiæ" to settle a very difficult and intricate matter, which threatens to develop into a long and most useless logomachy.

THE PICTURE OF THE INSTALLATION.

We call attention to a circular which we give below, emanating from the company which is placing this welcome memorial of a great event in English Freemasonry before the Craft and the world. We recommend that circular to the careful perusal of all our readers, and we trust sincerely that those who are bringing out this artistic and valuable souvenir will receive, as they deserve to receive, the support and sympathy, the encouragement and patronage, of our numerous, and intelligent, and loyal Order.

THE INSTALLATION PICTURE.

We have been requested to publish the following:—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., Most Worshipful Grand Master, &c., &c., &c., having been graciously pleased to accept the special dedication, a splendid historical steel engraving will shortly be published, of the Royal Installation on the 28th of April last, in the Royal Albert Hall.

By special arrangements made previous to the Installation with the R.W. Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter King-at-Arms, P.G.W., Grand Director of Ceremonies, the artist, Bro. Edward James Harty, S.D., No. 1201, was granted a special position in the hall, and has been successful in drawing a picture so unique in its conception, comprehensive in design, and faithful in detail, as to have received, after careful inspection, the gracious approval of His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the following distinguished brethren:—M.W. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master; R.W. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master; R.W. the Most Hon. the Marquis of Hamilton, Senior Grand Warden; R.W. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Junior Grand Warden; also R.W. Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter King-at-Arms, P.G.W., Grand Director of Ceremonies; R.W. the Right Hon. Lord Holmesdale, M.P.; R.W. Rev. John Hayshe, P.G.M. Devonshire; R.W. William Kelly, P.P.G.M. Leicestershire, &c.; R.W. Hugh D. Sandeman, D.G.M. Bengal; R.W. Colonel A. W. Adair, P.P.G.M. Somersetshire; R.W. R. Scott, D.G.M. Trinidad; R.W. Colonel Francis Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex; R.W. the Right Hon. Lord Dunboyne, Member of the Irish Deputation; R.W. the Hon. W. T. Mercer, P.D.G.M. China; V.W. Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; V.W. Aeneas John McIntyre, Grand Registrar; V.W. John B. Monckton, P.G.D., President of the Board of General Purposes; V.W. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; V.W. Rev. Charles John Martyn, P.G.C.; V.W. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; W. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.; W. John Anthony Rucker, P.G.D.; W. William Hickman, P.A.G. D.C.; W. J. Daniel Moore, P.G.S.B.; W. Charles Banister, P.G.S.B.; W. John Boyd, P.G.P.; W. John March Case, Installation Steward; W. H. Dicketts, P.G.S.; W. John Coutts, P.G.P.; W. Fredk. Whitaker, P.P.G.J.D.

To render this work a historical, authentic, and interesting record of the greatest of Grand Lodges, it has been resolved to introduce portraits, wherever possible, of the most prominent of the brethren, and especially of Grand Officers and Grand Stewards, Present and Past, Members of Deputations, &c., and to more fully carry out which arrangements have been made with the eminent photographer, Bro. E. M. Haigh, P.M., P.G.S., of 213, Regent-street, to photograph, free of expense, such brethren in the exact position and pose at present represented in the original drawing, for the use of the engraver, and each of whom will be entitled to a proof copy on the terms mentioned on the order sheet sent herewith.

Arrangements have also been concluded with the eminent engraver, Mr. Charles George Lewis, for the execution of the work on steel, and he has already commenced on the plate.

The order sheet gives the prices which have been fixed for the various descriptions of impressions, and Grand Officers are particularly requested to take notice that the number of portraits which can be engraved being necessarily limited, applications will be registered in priority of date, and that the accomplishment of the undertaking may be completed and ready for delivery by the First Anniversary of the Installation, it is earnestly requested that brethren who are desirous of having their portraits engraved will at once return the order sheet filled up.

To the brethren under the constitution of the Grand Lodge of England the Royal Installation on the 28th of April must ever be a red letter day in their Masonic career. Unparalleled in importance, and the grandest in accomplishment, it is admitted that the picture correctly delineates the unequalled scene, and the noble proportions of the Royal Albert Hall are also faithfully portrayed, the whole forming a coup d'œil of surpassing splendour. And whilst it will be universally taken by lodges as an adornment to their temples, it must command a prominent position in the galleries of princes and nobles, as well as in the drawing rooms of the wealthy and the halls of the multitude of that class who form the basis of society; and to all brethren of whatever Grand Lodge, constitution, country or clime, throughout the globe, it is intended that this historical representation of the Installation of our most illustrious Prince should be a fitting and worthy memorial of the greatest and grandest Grand Lodge of Freemasons ever assembled.

The M.W. the Pro Grand Master remarked "that never in the whole history of Freemasonry had such a Grand Lodge been assembled," and His Royal Highness the Grand Master confirmed this, saying, "That such an assemblage in Grand Lodge had never been before known," adding, "When I look round this vast and spacious hall and see those who have come from the north and the south, from the east and the west, to be present on this auspicious occasion, it is, I trust, an omen of good."

To perpetuate this to generations of our noble Order yet unborn has been one of the conceptions of the artist, and will be the duty of the engraver to carry into effect.

And bearing in mind the further eloquent remarks of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, that the watchwords of our ancient and noble Order are "Loyalty and Charity," it has been determined, should the Picture meet with encouragement from the Craft, that a portion of the proceeds shall be divided equally between the three Royal Masonic Charities—viz., The Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows.

The prices of impressions are as under, and for Nos. 1, 2, and 3, include the expense of the photograph and the impression. One moiety payable on subscription and the balance on the delivery of the impression.

As a proper accompaniment to the Picture each subscriber will receive, with his impression, a key, containing the full name and Masonic rank of all the brethren whose portraits are engraved.

BRO. MAJOR BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
"A Mark Master" should perhaps have signed his letter as "A Colquhoun Knight." When he has courage enough to make under his own name a statement of fact, instead of anonymously asking questions with the object of conveying insinuations, I think it will be time enough for me to reply to him. If he will even repeat his questions, in his own name, I shall be happy to answer them.

Faithfully yours,
London, 31st July, 1875.

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

Multum in Parvo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

WAS SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN A FREEMASON?

Post Boy, No. 5245, March 2nd—March 5th, 1722.—"This evening the corpse of that worthy Freemason, Sir Christopher Wren, Knight, is to be interred under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral."

Post Man, March 5th—March 7th, 1723.—"Last Tuesday night the corpse of Sir Christopher Wren was carried from his late dwelling-house to be interred in the vault under the dome of St. Paul's; the hearse was preceded by a handsome cavalcade, and followed by fifteen mourning coaches and six, as well as by several gentlemen's coaches."

Post Boy, March 5th—March 7th, 1722.—"The following plain inscription is engraven on the plate upon Sir Christopher Wren's coffin, viz.—"Christophorus Wren, Eques awratus, hujus Ecclesiæ Architectus, obiit Feb. 25, Anno Dom. 1723 ætat. 91."

I cannot discover any further account. But, please, observe the difference in dates, to be accounted for by the old and new style.

The Post Boy of March 5th, 1722, prints an inscription that says Sir Christopher Wren died Feb., 1723. The Post Man of March 5th—7th, 1723, says Sir Christopher Wren was buried last Tuesday night. "Such is the result of the search in the British Museum."

A MASONIC STUDENT.

I have read the remarks by "A Masonic Student" at page 338, but although he answers the above question in the affirmative, he brings forward no real evidence in support of his view. The idea that the use of the words, "that worthy Freemason" by the Post Boy, proves the general acceptance of the facts scarcely the sort of Masonic evidence that I would put much weight upon. The only real piece of evidence that I have yet seen, so far as I can at present judge, is the quotation from Aubrey's Natural History of Wiltshire, but that quotation does not state that he was enrolled among the members of the fraternity, if merely states that on May 18th, 1691, he is to be adopted a brother. Consequently, as "there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," and as "is to be" and "was" are not exactly equivalent expressions, I venture to consider it possible that Wren never was adopted at all. Of course we read in Preston's Illustrations of Masonry, that Wren got on to be a Grand Warden in 1663, and a Deputy Grand Master in 1666, but as both of these dates occur a considerable time previous to May 18th, 1691, when even his adoption was still in the womb of futurity, it follows that, to say the least, the evidence as to Wren's Masonic career is somewhat conflicting, not to press the facts that it would appear that no such Masonic "Grands" were in existence in 1666. As to the value of Elmes' statements, that is seen to be very small indeed when he quotes as a fact the imaginary 1666 Deputy Grand Mastership of Wren. Then as to the notion that the connection of Sir Christopher Wren with Freemasonry caused it to be so popular that even William the Third of England joined the body in 1695, we find Bro. Hughan in the Masonic Jewel for April, 1875, saying: "Neither is there a scrap of evidence that Freemasonry was popular from 1691, because of Sir Christopher Wren's admission into the fraternity, or, in fact, that the fraternity was at all popular from 1691 to 1721!" The question is still an open one yet, I think—"Was Sir Christopher Wren ever adopted at all?" W. P. BUCHAN.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

The Schichley Masonic token which came into my possession about eight months ago differs, if any, very slightly from Bro. Hughan's. The inscription on the rim is "Masonic token, I. Schichley, fecit 1794." The initial letter "I" has not been mentioned by either of your correspondents; what Bro. Hughan calls the hour-glass appears to me more like a book. I cannot discover the mallet, but have an idea, if it is on my token, it is near the supposed book; the trowel is placed between the left foot of the figure and the plumb.

The coat of arms as described by E. S., page 338, is the same, but I cannot discern the compasses on the chevron, but they may be worn off, though the motto is very plain; and the supports are intended for "beavers," not "leopards," the first-named being operative builders.

LAYING THE MEMORIAL STONE OF THE NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL AT TARBOLTON.

On Saturday, 24th ult., the memorial stone of the new public school buildings in course of erection at Tarbolton was planted with Masonic honours, under the auspices of St. James Kilwinning, No. 135—the lodge in which Burns

"Oft, honour'd with supreme command, Presided o'er the sons of light."

In the absence of Colonel Mure of Caldwell, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, the ceremony was performed by the Senior Provincial Grand Warden, Bro. D. Murray Lyon, Proxy P.G.M. of the West India Islands, etc. He was accompanied by Bros. Robert Wylie, J.P., Past Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire; John Whinton, P.G. Treas.; the Rev. John W. Ritchie, of the Old Kirk Mission, Edinburgh, Acting P.G. Chaplain; John Baird, P.M. 3 bis, Substitute Provincial Grand Master of Glasgow, P.S.W. 488, Tobago, etc. There was a numerous attendance of the Craft, representing the following lodges, viz., Mother Kilwinning; St. Cutbert Kilwinning, Kirkcudbright; Navigation, Troon; Kilwinning, Ayr; St. Mungo, Mauchline; St. Paul, Ayr; St. Barnabas, Cumnock; St. John, New Cumnock; St. Thomas Kilwinning, Dalmellington; Govandale, Govan; St. John, Catrine. The strongest deputation (numbering 70, including musicians) was that led by R.W.M. Chambers, of Ayr St. Paul. In addition to these were the members of the Tarbolton Lodge in great force, bearing the flag, now sadly dilapidated, under which the poet had walked in "grand procession" through the village, with the minute-book and other documents containing his signature—the jewel which had hung on his breast while presiding in the Orient being worn by the Acting P.G.M. Two very old Craftsmen honoured the ranks with their presence, viz., Alexander Murchy of Mockton (now Troon) Navigation, aged ninety-three, and John McMillan of Tarbolton St. James, aged eighty-nine years—the former having been initiated in 1802, is believed to be the oldest Freemason in Scotland. Among the onlookers we observed two brethren whose past Masonic services entitle them to this recognition, viz., Bro. James Brown, merchant, a Past Master of St. James, and Bro. John Sloan, of St. David (Burns' mother lodge).

Starting from No. 1 Public School, where it was marshalled by Bro. Charles Sneddon, and headed by the Ayr Volunteer Artillery Band, with the Annbank and the Mauchline brass bands stationed for effect at different points, the procession moved towards the new buildings, where they were received by the following members of the School Board, viz., Bros. the Rev. David Ritchie, A.M., Established Church; the Rev. William Young, Free Church; John Gray, Tongue. The R.W.M., Neil Murchie, and the principal officials of the Tarbolton Lodge—Bros. James McCosh, Peter Barclay, Edward Dodd, James Cree—also appeared on the platform. The vacant space around the building was densely packed with spectators, and by the time the brethren had assembled every available spot for witnessing the proceedings was crowded. The ceremony began with prayer by the acting Provincial Grand Chaplain. A bottle containing coins, copies of newspapers, &c., having been deposited, the memorial stone was lowered to its bed, and having been tested by plumb, square, and level, corn, wine, and oil was poured upon it, and with three taps of the mallet it was declared to have been duly laid according to the rules of Masonry. The ceremonies were interspersed with appropriate music. The choir of the Established Church, under the leadership of Bro. David Petticrew, occupied a place on the platform, and sang the Old Hundredth Psalm and other sacred pieces with admirable effect.

Bro. Lyon, in addressing the assemblage, said—"The business for which we have been convened, and which has been done in due and ancient form, recalls to mind the passing away of that system of education for which during several centuries this country has been famous, and under which have been educated some of the brightest men of genius of which Scotland or the world can boast. Let us hope that the new system may prove a worthy successor to the old, and eventually realise all that is expected of it. Some years ago the educational wants of this village were met by the erection of a subscription school—a step which was honourable alike to its originators and those who aided in carrying it out; and it is a matter of congratulation that the School Board should, in the erection of this other seminary, have afforded still greater facilities for educating the youth of the parish. (Applause.) My limited acquaintance with Tarbolton precludes me from presenting a retrospect of its educational history. "Death and Dr. Hornbook" has immortalised the parish schoolmaster of the time; but farther back on the roll of those who have held that office stands the name of one whose godly life and devotion to Presbyterianism in the persecution which preceded the Revolution has earned for him an exalted place in our national history. That man was Alexander Peden. (Applause.) And standing as it were under the shade of those woods where

"Summer first unfaults her robes," does not "Mary's Thorn," with its tender memories, and "The Castle of Montgomerie," stir up recollections of Burns's intimate association with this district? So does the appearance of St. James Kilwinning Tarbolton at the head of the procession to-day; for it was to the brethren of that lodge he addressed the "heart-warm fond adieu" which has imperishably associated the poet's name not with that particular lodge only, but with Masonry itself. (Applause.) Burns was strongly attached to the principles of Freemasonry, and shared in its labours—and it was to his relationship to the Craft that he owed his introduction to the brilliant circle of literary and scientific men whose acquaintance he made on his first visit to the Scottish metropolis, and who did so much to spread the fame of his poetical genius. In referring to Burns and his connection with Tarbolton, I am reminded of the fact that this parish was the birth-place of Thom, the sculptor of the statues illustrative of a scene in the tale of "Tam o'Shanter," which have been admired by thousands of visitors to Burns's Monument at Alloway. In modelling as well as in cutting these and other figures the sculptor had an apt assistant in his brother Robert. The presence of that gentleman in the Masonic ranks is a pleasing feature of this day's proceedings. (Applause.) In many respects this locality is rich in its associations. Here it was that, at a remote period of our country's history, the invading Britons were successfully resisted by the Scots and Picts, whose victory was rendered complete through the death of the enemy's chief. A green mound within a few hundred yards of this spot is still pointed to by tradition as the last resting-place of "Auld King Coil." In pre-Reformation times, this neighbourhood was the seat of a monastery, but little is now known of it or its occupants, save that the convent was founded in the middle of the thirteenth century, and that "The Friars of Fail drank berry-brown ale,

The best that e'er was tasted, . . .
And they never wanted gear enough
As long as their neighbours' tasted."

But, brethren, believing that you will be better employed in viewing the scenery amid which this village is embosomed than in listening to any further remarks of mine, I shall conclude by thanking you for your attendance here to-day, and the builders of this edifice for the excellence of their arrangements. (Applause.)

The Acting P.G.M. having also expressed his acknowledgements to the members of the School Board present for their courtesy in connection with the proceedings on this occasion,

The Rev. Mr. Ritchie begged, in his own name and in the name of the other members of the School Board, to express their deep sense of their obligation to them for their attendance on that occasion, and the important work which had been so well performed by the Grand Master.

The Rev. Mr. Young also made a few remarks. After the ceremony the Lodge St. James entertained the Acting Provincial Grand Master and other gentlemen to dinner in the Crown Inn.

CELEBRATION BY BLACKHAWK LODGE OF HAMILTON, U.S.

Blackhawk Lodge No. 238, A.F. and A.M., of Hamilton, celebrated St. John's Day, Thursday, June 24th, on the island between Hamilton and Keokuk in an appropriate manner.

The procession was formed at Masonic Hall in Hamilton, at 10 o'clock, and proceeded from thence to the grounds, where the usual order of exercises was observed.

Music by the Keokuk Cornet Band.
Chorus by Male Quartette, composed of Theo. English, Dr. C. H. Winslow, Dr. G. S. Fuller, and G. O. Hilton, of Keokuk.

Oration, by Hon. R. F. Bower, of Keokuk.
Chorus—Male Quartette.
Call off for refreshments, &c.
Music—Band. Chorus.

Original Poem—Composed for the occasion by Iowa's gifted poetess, Kate Harrington. Chorus.

After the delivery of the poem the steamer Jennie Brown, accompanied by the band, left the landing for a two hours excursion on the Rapids.

The site selected for the celebration—the island directly opposite the city—is a convenient, accessible and inviting one. It is covered with a beautiful blue grass sod, abundantly shaded, and has a good landing on the river front for steamers and sail boats. There was free access to the grounds.

All friends of the Order were invited to be present and participate in the celebration, and there was a large attendance from Keokuk city.

The reputation of Black Hawk Lodge for getting up enjoyable entertainments, is sufficient guarantee that the celebration was a success.—Daily Gate City.

METROPOLITAN.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178).—An emergency meeting of this well established and prosperous lodge was held on Thursday, August 5th, at the Bridge House Hotel, High-street, Borough. There were present Bros. C. Deakin, W.M.; J. Ruse, S.W.; F. A. Smith, J.W.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P. Prov. G. P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; W. Batchelor, S.D.; J. Stock, as J.D.; F. Garbett, I.G.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M.; and many others. The ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Messrs. J. Savage and E. Morley, as candidates for initiation, and Bro. J. McIntyre, St. John's Lodge, 73, Ireland, as a joining member. The work done was raising Bro. R. Sparks to the Third Degree; passing Bros. J. K. Deakin and S. E. S. Shaw to the Second Degree; initiating Mr. J. Savage and Captain E. Morley into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. F. H. Ebsworth, P.M. and Treas., did the raising and passings, and Bro. C. Deakin, W.M., did the initiations. All the work was beautifully rendered and solemnly done, each candidate being done separately added to the impressive nature of each ceremony. The usual five guinea Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted from the lodge funds. The other business on the agenda paper being disposed of, the lodge was closed, and is adjourned until Thursday, September 2nd. Slight refreshment followed the hard labour so well done.

PROVINCIAL.

LIVERPOOL.—ALLIANCE LODGE (No. 667).—The members of this ancient and honourable body Masonic, which holds its meetings in Liverpool, had their third annual "garden party" in the pleasant gardens and grounds of the Rock Ferry Hotel, Rock Ferry, Cheshire, on the 28th ult.; and as the weather was delightful, the company of the most brotherly and sisterly character, and the arrangements quite up to the "Alliance" mark (which is saying a great deal), the enjoyment of the large merry gathering was general and complete. The festival originated with, but was not confined to, members of 667, and therefore other lodges were well represented, there being altogether about 120 present. The committee consisted of Bros. H. Gregory, W. Doyle, H. Firth, A. Morrison, E. Carter, W. Brittain, R. Douglas, H. Eve, and Dr. Joyce, the office of Hon. Sec. being admirably filled by Bro. A. Bucknall. The fête was of the most enjoyable kind, and proved even more successful than its two predecessors at Roby. Dancing to Martin's quadrille band, croquet, bowling, and other games formed the bulk of the afternoon's amusements, and the catering was most satisfactory there was all the greater enjoyment. Besides the members of the Alliance Lodge, there were numerous visitors, including Bros. H. Nelson, W.M. 1505, P.M. 673; H. Pearson, P.M. 249; R. Brown, W.M. 241, Hon. Sec. W. L. Masonic Educational Institution; J. Skellicom, P.M. 667; A. P. Fabian, P.M. 48; P.P.S.G.W. Hants; A. Strother, 823; W. Nash, 823; Gallagher, P.M. 1011, Salford; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; Widdows, I.G. 673, &c. After a pleasant "garden party" the company returned to Liverpool by special boat at eleven o'clock.

LIVERPOOL.—DERBY LODGE (No. 724).—The usual quarterly meeting of this lodge was held on the 28th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool. The chair was occupied and the lodge was opened by Bro. J. W. Ballard, W.M., and amongst the officers and "privates" present were Bros. W. Vaughan, S.W.; G. Beecken, J.W.; Thomas Chesworth, P.M., Treas.; A. Hart, Sec.; McSwiney, S.D.; Crisp, J.D.; M. Hart, I.G.; H. Trevitt, S.S.; Armstrong, J.S.; Williamson, Tyler; J. Davison, I.P.M.; W. Shortis, P.M.; Cain, P.M. Bro. Ellis, Jacobs, Marcus, Gordon, Hawksworth, Geves, Sherrington, Ellison, Evans, and others. The visitors for the evening were Bros. T. Shaw, W.M. 823; W. Cottrell, I.P.M. 823; J. Holland, P.M. 823; W. Lunt, P.M., P.G.S. Cuthbert, 823; Somers, 1502; Bryan, Org. 1035; G. Maxwell, S. 594; and others. The minutes were read and passed, and the ballot for a candidate being carried, he was solemnly initiated. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Gordon and Hawksworth were examined and found "efficient." The lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, these brethren were duly and impressively raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The working of both degrees was done in a truly masterly style by the W.M. The lodge having been closed to the First Degree, Bro. J. W. Ballard, W.M., rose and said that he had a pleasing duty to perform, in presenting a testimonial to Bro. Thos. Chesworth, P.M., Treas. The lodge had voted a sum of money for the testimonial, and the brethren had supplemented it with further subscriptions for the purpose of doing justice to the presentation to such a worthy brother as Bro. Chesworth. The brethren were aware, he said, of the various offices Bro. Chesworth had filled. He was for two years its Master; and at a time when the lodge was not in affluent circumstances he, together with the other P.M., had worked laboriously to retrieve its fortunes. He was happy to say that its present flourishing condition was in a great measure due to the untiring exertions of Bro. Chesworth, who had held the responsible office of Treasurer for about six years. The testimonial the committee agreed upon was a piano, which he (the W.M.) had now great pleasure in presenting in the name of the officers and brethren of the Derby Lodge, 724; and he hoped that Bro. Chesworth would long live with his wife and children to enjoy its melodious tones. Bro. Chesworth said he had not sufficient words to thank the members of the Derby Lodge for this token of appreciation of the few services he had rendered to the lodge. And other brother who might have been placed in the same position would have acted in a like manner. He was glad to state, as Treasurer, that the lodge was in a very flourishing condition, mainly due to the affability and influence of its members, and hoped that it would long continue to enjoy the appellation it had achieved outside the building amongst those who visited it, viz., that of the "Happy Derby Lodge." So long as he had health and strength, he would continue to act with the same zeal for the lodge as he had hitherto done. After some propositions for initiation, the lodge was duly closed. The brethren then proceeded to refreshment, and the usual toasts were given. The musical portion of the evening was pleasantly furnished through the exertions of Bro. Jacobs, M. Hart, Ellis, Cottrell, Shortis, and others. Bro. Bryan presided at the instrument, in the absence of Bro. Veale, the Organist. The piano which was presented was a splendid walnut cottage, by an eminent maker, and attached to it was a suitable inscription.

JERSEY.—ST. AUBIN'S LODGE (No. 958).—This flourishing lodge assembled on Tuesday, the 20th July, in great force at the Masonic Temple. There was, as usual, a numerous attendance of brethren. The lodge was opened by Bro. Ed. Martel, W.M., supported by Bros. A. Dawson, S.W.; H. W. Chapman, J.W.; J. Oatley, P.M., &c., &c. Amongst the visitors were Bro. A. Schmitt, P.P.G.S.W.; J. O. Le Sueur, P.M., P.G. Sec.; C. Kingsnorth, P.M., P.P.G.W.; Thos. Shattock, W.M. 322; J. B. Pickford, P.M. 491, P.G. Treas. (Monmouthshire); F. P. Le Marquand, P.M. 491, P.P.G.D.; Dr. Thos. Aubin, J.W. 491; Gen. Thos. C. Kelly, C.B., J.W. 877; Ed. Gilley, W.M. 491, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge being opened in the Second Degree, Bros. Fox, Riddle, and Dolbel were examined as to their proficiency and retired. During their absence the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the candidates were duly received and raised. The whole of the ceremony was most impressively rendered by the W.M., and in that peculiarly quiet manner of his so highly appreciated by the brethren. Bro. J. Renouf, after the necessary preliminaries, was passed to the Second Degree. The lodge was lowered to the First Degree, Bro. John Oatley, on rising, said:—W.M.—In conformity with the resolution unanimously passed in open lodge, I feel much satisfaction in presenting you on its behalf this gold Secretary's jewel, as a small token of how much we all appreciate your zealous endeavours towards the progress and advancement of the lodge, you have evinced in your faithfully and earnestly discharging the duties of Secretary during a period of three years, as to your indefatigable exertions the concord and prosperity of the lodge are mainly owing; and may your zeal still continue in favour of our fraternity. The inscription is as follows:—"Presented by the St. Aubin's Lodge, No. 958, to Bro. Ed. Martel, W.M., P.M. 491, P.G.D.C., in recognition of his unwearied, valuable, and faithful services, both as its Secretary and Preceptor." The worthy recipient, upon rising to return thanks, was received with a burst of applause. He was evidently much affected, and expressed himself in truly appropriate Masonic terms that will not be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of hearing them, especially dilating on the unity and concord existing between St. Aubin's Lodge and all her sisters in the Province. The brethren adjourned, when the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The toast of the evening, proposed by Bro. A. Schmitt, "Bro. E. Martel, W.M.," was warmly received and effectively acknowledged. The brethren separated about eleven o'clock, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—On Wednesday evening, the 4th of August, the regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall. The brethren present were: Bros. Henry T. Bobart, W.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M., Treas.; James Worsnop, P.M., Secretary; Thos. Gadsby, J.D.; G. Pipes, D. of C.; Jos. Heathcote, I.G.; T. Slinn, Tyler; J. M. Moore, P.M.; Jos. Shaw; J. W. Shepherd, J. H. Biggs, J.D. 802; J. H. Hepworth, Edgar Taylor, J. O. Manton; visitor, Thomas Cox, P.P.S.G.W., P.M. 253. The lodge was opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, at 7 p.m. The circular convening the lodge was read, and also the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. The sum of five guineas was voted to be presented to Bro. Stone on retiring from his duties of Tyler to the lodge, as a small token of appreciation of the zealous manner in which he has fulfilled the duties of the office for so many years. There being no other business, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the usual quarterly supper, when the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to by appropriate speeches.

PAIGNTON.—TORBAY LODGE (No. 1358).—The annual meeting of this lodge took place at the lodge-rooms, Town Hall, Paignton, on Monday, 2nd inst., when Bro. W. E. Warren, the W.M. elect, was installed by Bro. Rev. R. Bowden, P.M., P.P.G.C.; the Board of Installed Masters comprising Bros. J. T. Goodridge, I.P.M. 1358; S. Cash, P.M. 328; T. Oliver, P.M. 328; J. C. C. Piller, P.M. 1358; Jas. Greenfield, P.M. 328, 1358, P.P.G.J.D.; Harland, P.M. 328, P.P.G.J.D.; Dr. Colston, I.P.M. 248, P.G.S.; Law, 1358, P.M., P.P.G.S. W. Herts. There was a numerous attendance of the lodge members, among whom, in addition to those above mentioned, were Bros. Couldrey, Pope, Chinnock, T. Tozer, W. Windram, H. Jackson, Hunt, King, Palk, Crute, Evans, Gordon, Campbell, West, Bridgeman, Brooks, Bovey, and Rev. N. Platt. The visitors were Bros. Hurrell, Hawley Lodge; Dr. Colston, 248, and Harland, 328. Too much praise cannot be given to Bro. Bowden for the effective manner in which the ceremony was performed. After the usual salutations, the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers, viz., Bros. J. T. Goodridge, I.P.M.; J. Couldrey, S.W.; T. Pope, J.W.; Jas. Greenfield, P.M., P.P.G.J.D., Treas.; W. Windram, Sec.; Rev. N. Platt, Chaplain; Jas. Chinnock, S.D.; T. Tozer, J.D.; H. Jackson, I.G.; C. H. Law, P.M., Dir. of Cer.; Brooks, Org.; Maunders and Evans, Stewards, and Tozer, Tyler. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Gerston Hotel, and, under the presidency of the newly installed W.M., partook of a magnificent banquet, provided by the manager, Mr. Codner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to by the brethren, the reply of Bro. Colston to the toast of "The Visitors" being an eloquent outburst of Masonic feeling. After one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent by this young lodge, the brethren separated early, expressing themselves much delighted with the day's proceedings and with high hopes of the ensuing year being equally as prosperous as the past.

DAWLISH.—SALEN LODGE (No. 1443).—At the last regular meeting of this lodge there was one passing and two raisings. The ballot was taken for one joining member, which proved unanimous. Bro. W. Ball was elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. J. S. Whidborne, the Treasurer, and Bro. Haggarty, the Tyler, were also elected. The banquet will take place at Bro. Ball's on August 18th, at 6 p.m. The installation will take place at the Town Hall, at 3 p.m. Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire, an hon. member of the lodge, took part in the proceedings.

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—The members of this lodge held their regular meeting at the house of Bro. Potts, Royal Archer Hotel, Dale-street, Manchester, on Saturday, the 7th August. Amongst the brethren present we noticed Bros. Henry Smith, W.M.; Charles Pearson, S.W.; Charles Joel Kent, J.W.; John Knider, P.M., Sec.; Thomas Tyers, P.M. Treas.; Jno. W. Turner, I.P.M. Visitors: John Croll, 25; Daniel Lomas, 823; John H. Walton, 412, Oswego, United States America; R. Dottie, 1161; J. Pierpoint, 645; John Hey, S.W. 387. Business commenced by punctually opening the lodge at 4.50 p.m. The minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. Oldham to the Second Degree. Business being concluded the lodge was closed in the two degrees, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The cloth being drawn the W.M. proceeded with the Masonic toasts, which were enthusiastically responded to. Bro. Turner, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and said on that occasion he was especially gratified to have that toast entrusted to him by the W.M., as he had two intimate friends there, in Bro. Jno. H. Walton from America, and Bro. John Hey, S.W. 387, from Bradford, the first of whom had rendered them assistance during the formation of the lodge, and to whom it would be a special pleasure to see them so prosperous and happy. Respecting Bro. Hey, he (the I.P.M.) said he was proud to have him for a friend, knowing him to be such a good and conscientious Mason, and one who had made his position in Masonry by his abilities and perseverance. In responding Bro. Walton said it was a very great pleasure to him to be amongst them that evening, and the greatest pleasure he had enjoyed for a very long time to see the members work in unison with each other, and vie to make every one happy amongst them. Bro. Hey also congratulated the members on the prosperous appearance of the lodge, and said it had certainly been a great pleasure to be amongst them, and he should carry into Yorkshire the kindest feelings for his reception that evening. The other visitors responded in suitable terms to the toast and expressed their pleasure at the efficient working and brotherly reception. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in glowing terms by Bro. Tyers, P.M. The W.M. responded by expressing his wish to be of more service to the lodge (which was not necessary as all the members are aware of his anxiety for their comfort and the prosperity of the lodge). After the toasts of "The P.M.'s and the Officers" had been responded to, the S.W. and J.W. were called upon for their respective toasts, and the brethren separated about 9 pm., after spending an entertaining and agreeable evening.

Knights Templars.

PROVINCIAL PRIORY OF LANCASHIRE.

By command of Sir Knight Albert Hudson Royds, Provincial Prior, all Preceptors, P.G. Commanders, and such companions as were entitled to be present, were summoned to attend the meeting of the Provincial Priory of Lancashire, on Thursday, the 29th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, and in reply to the invitation there was a large gathering of the Knights of the Order. The Provincial Preceptory was held under the banner of the Alpass Preceptory.

The Alpass Preceptory was opened at one o'clock, by Sir Knight W. Doyle, E.P. of the Alpass Preceptory, and shortly afterwards the Provincial Officers entered in procession, and were received under the arch of steel.

The Provincial Priory was then opened in form by Em. Sir Knight A. A. H. Roysds, Prov. Prior. The Registrar then called over the muster roll of Prov. Officers and of the Priors in the province, when it was found that only one preceptory (the Plains of Tabor, Colne) was unrepresented. The Chancellor's report was read and confirmed, and the accounts of the Prov. Grand Treasurer, which had been audited, were passed. Sir Knight Birch, was unanimously re-elected P.G. Treasurer, and Sir Knight Lawson, the P.G. Equerry. The Committee of General Purposes was re-elected, with the exception of one member who retired, Sir Knight W. Doyle being substituted in his place.

The following officers were appointed and invested for the ensuing year:—Sir Knights A. H. Roysds, Prov. Prior; C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, Sub. Prov. Prior; J. B. Phillips, Prelate; W. Ashworth, Chancellor; W. Doyle, Constable; J. A. Hall, Marshal; Birch, Treas.; J. Chadwick, Registrar; S. H. Smith, Sub-Marshal; T. Clark, Herald; T. H. Jenkins, Warden of Regalia; J. Greaves, Almoner; C. Jones, 1st Standard Bearer; J. Worsley, 2nd Standard Bearer; J. E. Hall, 1st Aide-de-camp; J. B. Carr, 2nd Aide-de-camp; J. W. Taylor, Captain of Guards; J. E. Jackson, Sword Bearer; J. L. Goodwin, Org.; J. K. Smith, 1st Purs.; H. Thomas, 2nd Purs.; G. Turner, Vice-Chancellor; J. Lawson, Equerry.

The next meeting was appointed to be held at Oldham. The sum of £10 was voted out of the Almoner's fund for the Masonic charities, the division being left in the hands of Prov. Prior, Treas., and Almoner.

A vote of thanks was cordially passed to the Provincial Prior (Sir Knight A. H. Roysds) for the great amount of labour he had used in promoting the interests of the Order. In acknowledging the vote the Prov. Prior thanked the Sir Knights for the support he had received in connection with his office, and trusted they would continue to render him the same warm and continuous support in the fulfilment of his duties.

The Provincial Priory, was then closed, and the officers retired under the arch of steel. The E.P. of the Alpass Preceptory afterwards closed that encampment in due form.

The hall was beautifully and most effectively decorated with flags and banners, including three very large Grand Lodge, Knight Templars, and Red Cross flags, sent from the well-known establishment of Sir Knight G. Kenning, the general arrangement being under the superintendence of Sir Knight J. Wood, who is at the head of the Liverpool section of the business. The banners of many Sir Knights gave increased and striking effect to the tout ensemble.

A banquet was, after business, served in the large banquet hall of the Masonic Temple, the chair being occupied by Sir Knight A. H. Roysds, Prov. Prior. After banquet he gave the toasts of "The Queen, Patroness of the Order," "Their Royal Highnesses the Princess of Wales, and the Rest of the Royal Family," "The Prince of Wales, Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master," and "The Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, the Very High and Eminent Great Prior of England." Sir Knight Captain T. Berry, P.G.C., proposed "The Very Eminent Prior of Lancashire, Sir Knight A. H. Roysds;" and Sir Knight Pierpoint, "The Eminent Sub-Prior of Lancashire, Sir Knight C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds." The Sub-Prior gave "The Very Eminent Priors and Officers of the Neighbouring Provinces;" and Sir Knight R. Brown, Reg., "The P.G. Officers of Lancashire, Past and Present," which was responded to by Sir Knight J. A. Hall. The P. Prior proposed "The E.P. of this Preceptory," which was responded to by Sir Knight Doyle, E.P.

Scotland.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF RENFREWSHIRE EAST.

A communication of this lodge was held in Paisley, on Saturday, the 7th inst. Bro. Col. Campbell, of Blythswood, the Provincial Grand Master, presided; Bro. James Caldwell acted as S.W., and Bro. James Gilmour as J.W. The lodges represented were—Royal Arch, Rutherglen, 116; St. Mirren, Paisley, 129; Royal Arch, Pollokshaws, 153; St. Barchan, Kilbarchan, 156; Prince of Wales, Renfrew, 246; Renfrew County, Kilwinning, Paisley, 370; and St. John's, Rutherglen, 374. The Grand Master made a statement in connection with the meeting, and thereafter installed Bro. James Gilmour into the office of J.W. of the lodge. It was arranged that the consecration of the new hall for Rutherglen St. John's Lodge take place on the 5th of November prox. A conversation took place regarding the consecration of the Pollokshaws Lodge, but no definite resolution was come to, though it was understood that the ceremony would take place shortly before or after the consecration of St. John's.

NOTICE.—The memorial stone of the new public school at Old Cummock, Ayrshire, will be laid with full Masonic honours by Bro. Col. Mure, M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master for Ayrshire, on Thursday, the 19th inst.

The brethren are to assemble in the Black Bull Hotel at a quarter-past one o'clock p.m.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire will be opened in the lodge room of St. Barnabas, Old Cummock, at half-past one o'clock precisely.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—The regular meeting of this most ancient and flourishing lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., in the chair, Bro. J. B. Young, S.W.; Bro. D. Horn, J.W.; with a large attendance of members of the lodge and visitors. Among the visitors were Bros. George Kenning, 30° E.C. (proprietor of the Freemason); W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); J. Wallace, R.W.M., Lodge Athole, and others. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. William Bell, and the Secretary, Bro. John Dick, read the minutes of the last regular meeting, also of an emergency meeting. The minutes of the emergency meeting brought up a discussion as to whether it was not detrimental to the Order to get up these hurried meetings, after which the minutes were confirmed. The lodge was then raised to the degree of F.C., when the following brethren were passed to that degree, viz., Bros. Peddie, Neilson, Blackwood, Clark, and Allan, Bro. John Dick officiating. The lodge was then called from labour to refreshment, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts given and responded to, "The Queen," and "Three Grand Lodges," by the R.W.M., Bro. Bell; "The Prince of Wales," by Bro. J. B. Young, S.W.; "United Brethren," by Bro. D. Horn, J.W.; and "Sister Lodges" by Bro. G. Park, P.M. The R.W.M., in proposing "The Three Grand Lodges," called upon Bro. George Kenning to respond on behalf of England. Bro. George Kenning rose and spoke at length, and in the course of his remarks alluded to the various Masonic Charities they had in England, also to the different working, and that it would give him great pleasure to see the brethren putting their shoulder to the wheel, and have something to show for Freemasonry in Scotland in the way of a home for decayed Freemasons, their widows, and orphans; also that he should like to see those hurried initiations and emergency meetings done away with, for, as the Senior Warden, Bro. Young, had justly remarked, it was detrimental to the Order. Before sitting down he would thank them kindly on behalf of the English Constitution for the kind manner in which the toast had been proposed and responded to. Bro. Wallace, R.W.M., Lodge Athole, in responding for the Sister Lodges, said:—In respect to what Bro. Kenning had said respecting Masonic charities, and the system of hurrying the degrees, he was sorry to say it was the truth, and a disgrace to Scottish Freemasonry, and hoped that the brethren would start with heart and will at once, and see whether they could not, like other countries, show what the beauties of the Order were in the way of Masonic institutions for the aged, the widow, and the orphan. After a few remarks from several of the brethren, the lodge was called to labour, when Bro. Horn, J.W., reminded them of his motion for raising the fees. The R.W.M. said, before closing the lodge, he had a pleasant duty to perform, that of proposing a worthy and highly-esteemed brother, who had come amongst them that evening for affiliation into this lodge, Bro. George Kenning, proprietor of the Freemason. Bro. Park seconded the proposition, which was received by all with acclamation. Bro. W. Bell, R.W.M., performed the ceremony of affiliation. The lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE KILWINNING (No. 4).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 4th inst. In the absence of the R.W.M., Bro. S. Henderson, S.W., presided, and was well supported by the other office-bearers present. There was very little business before the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting, also of an emergency meeting, were read and confirmed. Bro. J. Currie, Sec., read a letter from the widow of the late Bro. Capt. F. Elliott, who, it appeared, was not in pleasant circumstances, her eyesight failing, and her means being scant. After a conversation among the brethren present, it was agreed, on the motion of Bro. Adams, that the R.W.M. and his Wardens lose no time in making the necessary enquiry into the case, they having the authority of the lodge to grant immediate assistance until proper arrangements can be made for her support. Bro. Henderson then intimated that as soon as the summer holidays were over the usual fortnightly meetings for instruction would be commenced, which he hoped would be well attended. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE AND ROSE (No. 73).—The monthly meeting of this old lodge was held on the 3rd inst. in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-st. The R.W.M., Bro. G. McDonald, presided, supported by his Wardens, Bros. W. MacGeorge, S.W.; J. F. Hanbridge, J.W.; James Bannerman, D.M.; J. S. Ampleford, Sec., &c. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, when the lodge was passed to the Square Degree. The Secretary said that he would have a proof of the new bye-laws to submit to the lodge for approval at next meeting. It was then agreed to order 1000 copies. The R.W.M. then said he had seen one of the very old members of the lodge, who, he was sorry to say, was not in the most prosperous circumstances. He, therefore, took the liberty to ask the brethren present to vote some assistance to him to help him over his present difficulty, which was at once done in a handsome manner. The lodge was then raised to the Sublime Degree, when Bros. McLeod and Cameron received that degree, Bro. McDonald officiating with his usual ability. While the candidates were being prepared for the Third Degree, Bro. McDonald read a circular from Bro. G. Kenning, of London, Liverpool, and Glasgow, which had been handed to him by Bro. G. B. Adams (of the Freemason), who was present. It referred to a new work being brought out by Bro. G. Kenning, viz., a new Masonic "Encyclopaedia," which he recommended to their favourable consideration. Brethren could get forms for intending subscribers filling up from Bro. Adams, or at the establishment of Bro. Kenning, 9, West Howard-st. The lodge was then reduced to the degree of E.A., and applications from two gentlemen were read, craving admission into the Order, viz., Mr. John Thomas Crome and Mr. Joseph Solomons. They were proposed and seconded by Bro. C. T. Owen and R. McKean. They were approved of, and received the First Degree, Bro. McDonald officiating. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the 3rd inst., in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street. The meeting was very well attended. Bro. James W. Burns, R.W.M., took the chair and was supported by Bros. J. Booth, S.W.; W. Wilson, J.W.; John Miller, P.M.; John Fraser, P.M. (acting Sec.); Arch. McTaggart, M.A., P.G. Sec.; Thos. Paton, Treas.; Walter Stewart, S.D., &c., &c. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. Bros. John Kirkland and David Marr, both of Lodge Baron of Paisley, No. 114, were affiliated members of Lodge Thistle, No. 87, Bro. A. McTaggart performing the ceremony in his usual minutely correct way. The office of J.D. having become vacant, Bro. Fraser, P.M., proposed that Bro. McLauchlane be elected to fill the duties of that office. This was seconded by Bro. Wilson, and unanimously agreed to, and he was declared elected, and was installed into office by Bro. McTaggart. No business of further importance being brought up, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

RUTHERGLEN.—LODGE ROYAL ARCH (No. 116).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, Rutherglen, on the 6th inst. Bro. W. Ferguson, R.W.M., presided, supported by Bros. W. McGaveny, S.W.; Jas. Gilmour, J.W., and a large number of brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed. The R.W.M. said that the widow of the late Bro. A. Park was in very straitened circumstances, and he called the earnest attention of the brethren to the case. After some little conversation it was resolved that, in the mean time, a sum of money be granted from the lodge funds, and his case brought up before the Provincial and Grand Lodge Benevolent Committees, the R.W.M. undertaking to see this done. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

SHETTLSTON.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 128) held its monthly meeting on the 4th inst., in the Masonic Hall, at Shetlston, the R.W.M., Bro. Campbell, presiding, supported by Bros. C. Webster, S.W.; Jas. Miller, J.W.; and a large number of well qualified brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Geo. McLeod called the attention of the brethren to the fact that it was now nearly twelve months since the last picnic of the lodge took place. Many of the members of the lodge thought that now, when we had splendid weather, was the time to arrange about the getting up of one. He would therefore propose that the 28th of August be fixed as the day for that purpose, and the place of resort be "Barr," a beautiful spot of romantic verdure. This was seconded by Bro. John Allan, and supported by the brethren present, and a committee appointed to see the arrangements completed. After some further business of the usual character, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 2nd inst. The attendance of members was very good indeed, but the attendance of visiting brethren was much more than an average. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair, was unable to be present on account of the quarterly meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland being held on the same evening, which he had to attend, in Edinburgh. In his absence Bro. Mitchell, P.M., took the chair, and was very ably supported by many brethren of ability and popularity. Among those present were Bros. Murray, acting S.W.; A. Conachie, J.W.; John McInnes, Sec.; J. Balfour, P.M.; J. Laurie, Treas.; Thomson, R.W.M. 333; Forsyth, S.W. 333; R. Andrews, J.W. 333; R. Campbell, St. John's, New Brunswick, No. 22; J. Stewart, 360; James Crabbe, 242; Jas. Wilson, 169, and others. The lodge was opened and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. There being no more business in this degree the lodge was passed to the F.C. A request from the R.W.M. of Lodge Union and Crown, 103, to pass a brother of that lodge to the Fellow Craft on their behalf was at once complied with. Bros. W. G. Burns and J. H. Gill, of Lodge Union, and Bro. John Campbell, Lodge Union and Crown, then received that degree; it was most ably given by Bro. Mitchell in his best style, and was much admired by the brethren present. This finished the pressing business before the lodge, and it was called to harmony under the care of the J.W., when a really pleasant and profitable hour was spent. Bro. Mitchell, who was in excellent form for the chair, brimfull of good humour and common sense, gave the customary loyal and Masonic toasts, which were loyally and Masonically responded to by the brethren. He then in a most able and eloquent speech gave "The Press," passing a high eulogium on the manner in which the press was conducted in this country. Touching on the Masonic press, he paid a high compliment to the energy, great ability, and perseverance of Bro. G. Kenning, proprietor of the Freemason and Masonic Magazine. He said the endeavours of Bro. Kenning to meet the wants of the brethren were beyond all praise, and he hoped soon to see the circulation of these papers multiplied a hundred fold. Bro. Stewart replied for the Local Press, and Bro. Adams for the Masonic. He next gave the toast of "The Visiting Brethren." He said it afforded him much pleasure to see so many present; it was at all times pleasant and profitable to meet together, and hoped the visiting brethren had all enjoyed their visit to the Union Lodge that night. Several brothers replied on behalf of their own lodges, Bro. J. Wilson, 169, remarking that though he might be the oldest Mason among them, he was no speaker; he would therefore only thank them for the kind reception he had met with. After a few remarks from Bros. James Crabbe, 242; Thomson, 333; Robt. Campbell, St. John's, New Brunswick, warmly thanking the Union Lodge for the kind reception they had met with, "The Health of the Presiding R.W.M." was given, and warmly responded to. Bro. Mitchell, in reply, gave some interesting information about lodges in Canada and the States while he was visiting them some years ago. He concluded by saying he had not yet lost taste for Masonic working: although he had six sons Freemasons, four of them holding office, he must say he still felt at home when he was in the chair of a lodge. "Happy to meet and happy to part" brought the night to a close. All went away pleased.

RUTHERGLEN.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 347).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in Read's Hall, Rutherglen, on the 30th ult. There were present in their respective places, the R.W.M., the Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary, and a number of well-qualified brethren to constitute and a lodge, which was opened in the E.A. Degree, and the minutes were read and confirmed. An application for admittance was read from Mr. Thomas Brown; this was favourably entertained, and he received the First Degree. Bro. John Templeton, a member of Lodge Commercial, No. 180, Oben, was then affiliated as a joining member of St. John's Rutherglen, No. 347. The lodge was passed to the F.C. Degree, when Bros A. Robertson and Dougald McLarplan were instructed in that degree. The lodge being raised to the Sublime Degree, the same brothers received that, the R.W.M. officiating through the three degrees. After an intimation that the next meeting would be held in their new hall, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 354).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 6th inst. The R.W.M. was in the chair, supported by his Wardens and other office-bearers, together with a goodly number of brethren. The only business was the reading of the minutes, which were confirmed, and the installation of Bro. Colquhoun as Treasurer, which was done by the R.W.M. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, situated at 30, Hope-street, on the 23rd ult. The object of the meeting was to confer the Sublime Degree upon those brethren who were prepared to receive it, so as to leave the business before the next regular meeting no more than what can be got through in one night. The lodge was opened, Bro. Monro, R.W.M., presiding, aided by Bros. J. M. Oliver, S.W.; Reid, acting J.W.; together with a sufficient number of well qualified brethren to constitute a lodge. There was only one brother forward for the Master Mason Degree, viz., Bro. Brash, who received it, Bro. Monro officiating in his usual able manner.

The regular meeting of this lodge took place on the 6th inst., in their lodge-room, 30, Hope-street. The meeting was well attended by members and visitors, among whom were the following:—J. Monro, R.W.M.; J. M. Oliver, S.W.; T. Graham, acting J.W.; Dr. Alex. Morton, I.P.M.; J. D. Porteous, P.M.; J. Brodie, P.M.; J. E. Spiers, S.M.; S. J. McGeorge, P.M. 241, E.C.; James Wilson, 915, E.C.; J. W. Burns, R.W.M. 87; and others. The minutes of the previous meetings being read and confirmed, a conversation took place regarding some diplomas, which appear to have been so carefully laid past, that they cannot now be found; but no doubt they will turn up after another careful search, which was ordered to be made again. A pretty lengthy correspondence ensued between Bros. Lamb, Treas.; P. M. Sage, and Monro, R.W.M., ancient the Cummings testimonial. After various brethren having expressed their opinions upon it, the Secretary was instructed to communicate with Bro. Sage, and request him to be present at the next meeting, in order to get the matter satisfactorily arranged. The lodge was then raised to the Master Mason Degree, when Bro. Cooper was raised to that degree, P.M. J. Brodie working the First Section; Bro. Monro, R.W.M., the Second, which work was gone through in excellent style by those two able brothers. This finished the business before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. ANDREW (No. 465) held their regular meeting on the 5th inst., in their hall, Garnad-road: present, Bros. Read, R.W.M.; Clark, S.W.; Davidson, J.W.; W. Campbell, Sec.; &c. The meeting was a large one. The lodge being opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. An application for Freemasonry was read from Mr. Daniel McMaster, which met with the approval of the assembled brethren, and he received the First Degree. The lodge was then passed to the Second Degree, when Bros. Milliken and Davidson received that degree. When the lodge was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bros. Davidson, Milliken, Wilson, and Steward, were completed in their Masonic desires. It was then proposed by Bro. Charlton, and seconded Bro. Herron, that Bro. Rotheram receive honorary affiliation into St. Andrew Lodge as a mark of their appreciation of his services to the Craft, which was agreed to, he stepping to the altar and receiving the usual obligation. Bro. Read, R.W.M., went through the work of the evening in capital style. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (No. 553).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, Kent Road, on the evening of the 5th inst. The R.W.M. was in his own place, supported by Bros. J. B. McNaught, S.W.; J. Best, J.W.; R. Bell, R.W.M. 34; Dick, Sec. 34; Lamb, D.M. 360, &c. The meeting was well attended by the members of the lodge, and a considerable number of visiting brethren were present. The lodge was opened, when, as usual, the first business was the reading of the minutes. Besides those of the regular meeting, there were some emergency meetings, all of which were approved and confirmed. The bye-law question was then brought up for settlement. The R.W.M. said he had a proof copy, but, as the three degrees were to be worked that night, it was resolved to have a special meeting that day fortnight, to settle that and any other business standing over. There were two candidates for the First Degree, which was very cleverly given by Bro. D. Lamb, D.M. 360. When the lodge was passed to the Second Degree three brothers appeared for that degree, which was given Bro. Bell, R.W.M. 34, in his usual solid way. For the Sublime Degree four brethren were presented. In this degree, Bro. Lamb again was placed at the altar to officiate, his exertions in this giving evident satisfaction to the brethren present. This young lodge has been working very hard since its establishment. Its members seem to be endowed with a great deal of Masonic enthusiasm. We trust its office-bearers will take advantage of this, and by their smoothly working together they will "flourish like a green bay tree." The business being ended, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DEVON.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Devonshire Freemasons was held on Tuesday, August 3rd, at the Victoria Hall, Exeter, the Right W. Brother, the Rev. J. Huyshe, Prov. Grand Master, presiding. Amongst a large attendance of brethren were the following:—

After the minutes of the previous Provincial Grand Lodge meeting had been read and confirmed,

Bro. Rogers read the Secretary's report, which showed that returns had been received from all the lodges in the province, and that the total amount of dues was £278 19s.

Bro. Hambley read the Treasurer's report. The balance in hand from the last account was £209 9s. 8d. The fees of honour amounted to £27 10s.; the dues from lodges, as stated above, £278 19s.; dispensation, 10s.; proportion of expenses received from Cornwall on account of the visit of the Prince of Wales, £47 17s. 4d.; total £563 13s. 1d. The expenditure included £15 to the widow of a deceased brother; £105 to the Female Orphan Asylum, Stoke; £50 to the Fortescue Annuity Fund; £10 to the Torbay Infirmary Fund; £95 12s. 9d. expenses incurred in connection with the visit of the Prince of Wales; £19 10s. 8d. for printing and advertising; £49 14s. 6d. dues in respect of the Fortescue Annuity Fund; £15 voted by the Committee of Petitions, and other smaller items. The balance now in the hands of the Treasurer is £176 5s. 7d.

The reports were received and adopted.

Bro. Gover brought up the report of the Committee of Petitions, which was as follows:—The Committee of Petitions beg to submit to the Provincial Grand Lodge a statement of their proceedings for the past year. In the first place, they have pleasure in reporting that by the exertions of the committee, and by the kind assistance of Bro. H. Dubose, the election of a widow as a pensioner on the Widows' Fund was secured. By the power vested in them the committee voted £5 to the widow of a late brother of Lodge 39, Exeter, and they further recommend that £10 be voted by the Provincial Grand Lodge; also £5 to the widow of a late brother of Lodge 156, Plymouth, and recommend that the Provincial Grand Lodge grant a further sum of £5. £5 was voted in aid of the education of a daughter of a late brother of Lodge 282, Tavistock. £5 was contributed for the relief of a member of Lodge 112, Exeter, to assist him in his serious illness—and the Provincial Grand Lodge was recommended to grant a further sum of £15,—to be given through the Provincial Grand Secretary: the committee further recommend that the sum of £5 be granted to the widow of a deceased brother of Lodge 223, Plymouth, to be expended at the discretion of the clergyman of her parish. Also a sum of £5 to a member of Lodge 106, Exmouth. The committee very much regret that they have failed to secure the election of their candidates for the Boys' and Girls' Schools. This is the more to be deplored, from the fact that there are several strong and deserving cases waiting their turn to be placed on the list of candidates. The committee cannot disguise from themselves, and cannot too strongly impress upon the Provincial Grand Lodge, that every year brings with it a greatly increased difficulty in obtaining successful results in the Masonic charity. They are willing to believe that this is owing to the increased interest felt by almost every other province, as shown by their entering the lists in the laudable effort to provide for their destitute brethren, their widows, and orphans. This is peculiarly the case with regard to the Boys' School, to ensure success in which double the number of votes are now required than were necessary only two or three years ago. It is the duty of the committee to point out this difficulty. It rests with the Provincial Grand Lodge to provide the remedy. Its influence may possibly avail to induce a larger and more earnest support of the Masonic charities by the lodges in the province, and greater unanimity in co-operating to secure the election of the candidates selected by the committee. (Applause.)

Bro. Metham proposed the adoption of the report, and in so doing he congratulated the Provincial Grand Lodge that during the last year, through the agency of the Committee of Petitions, more good had been done than had formerly been the case. Cases had been brought before them of a most distressing character, and he knew that great judgment had been exercised in apportioning relief to them. He called attention to the proposal which he made some years ago, that a Provincial Masonic fund should be raised for the purpose of educating the children of deceased and needy Masons in the province. The proposition was then overruled, but he was still convinced that it was the right thing to be done, and would yet be done, and whoever brought it forward at a future Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, would receive his most cordial support (hear, hear), for the scheme which he had proposed would, he was sure, be the only cure for the present evil.

The report was adopted.

The report of the Fortescue Annuity Fund was read by Bro. Rogers. There is a balance in hand of £48 7s. 6d. The fund is made up as follows:—Invested in Consols, £928 15s., and a further sum of £185 15s.; Devon and Exeter Club, £400; in Savings' Banks, £215 9s. 4d.; due on Williams' Mortgage, £140.

In accordance with a notice of motion previously given, Bro. S. Jew, P.P.G. Treasurer, moved the following alterations in the bye-laws:—

"That every brother, on his appointment to either of the following offices, shall pay towards the fund of General Purposes the undermentioned sums, viz.:—D.G. Master, £8 8s.; G. Wardens, each £4 4s.; G. Chaplain, £2 2s.; G. Treasurer, £2 2s.; G. Registrar, £2 2s.; G. Secretary, £2 2s.; G. Deacons, each £2 2s.; G. Sup. of Works, £2 2s.; G. Director of Ceremonies, £2 2s.; G. Asst. Dir. of Ceremonies, £2 2s.; G. Sword Bearer, £2 2s.; G. Organist, £2 2s.; G. Pursuivant, £1 1s.; G. Stewards, each £1 1s. That every brother who may be promoted from an inferior to a superior office, or re-appointed to office in the Provincial Grand Lodge (except the Provincial Grand Secretary) shall pay the full fee as provided for in Law No. 2. Except also in the cases of Provincial Grand Pursuivant or Provincial Grand Stewards, who shall only pay the difference between the fees due in the office which they leave and that to which they are advanced."

In proposing this motion, Bro. Jew said it had long been before the province, and therefore it was not necessary that he should enlarge upon it, but he wished to point out that from the year 1860 to 1871 there were twenty-two re-appointments. This he had discovered while examining the Treasurer's books to ascertain the names of those who had not paid the augmented fees of honour. It would be observed, therefore, not only that twenty-two brethren were deprived of provincial honours, but that a loss accrued to the province of £71 8s. But that was not all. As well as he could remember, from 1868 to 1874, about the same number of reappointments were made, and he should imagine that about the same amount of money was lost to the province. Thus, forty-four brethren remained undecorated who should have possessed purple collars, and the province had lost within the last fifteen years about £140 or £150 simply by re-appointments. He thought it was enough for so many brethren to bear with the loss of a much coveted honour, without the funds of the P.G. Lodge suffering also. (Hear, hear.) If the whole of the offices were filled (excepting that of Secretary, who was a permanent officer), by new appointments, including the two P.G. Chaplains, only fifteen brethren could obtain Pro. honours, exclusive of the stewards who did not carry past rank, and there being forty-six lodges in the province, only one-third could obtain purple collars in face of the fact that there were in the province about two hundred brethren eligible for them. When calls were made upon them for charity those calls were always responded to in no ungrudging spirit. (Hear, hear.) As an instance of this he would mention that when, two years ago, the P.G.M. went up to represent the aged Freemasons they gave him the sum of £100, and last year they gave to the D.P.G.M. a hundred guineas for the Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke. (Applause.) But in order to sustain this it was necessary that the fees of honor should be paid in full, and he therefore hoped that his proposal would be carried without opposition. (Applause.)

Bro. LEIGH said he should be quite willing to second the motion if the D.P.G.M. was excepted from it. He quite thought that if a brother was promoted from a lower to a higher office he should pay the full fee.

Bro. METHAM explained that he held his office by patent from the Grand Lodge of England, and therefore was unaffected by the proposition.

Bro. RONDA supported the motion, which, after a short discussion, was carried.

Bro. ROGERS moved for £50 for the Fortescue Annuity Fund, which was allowed.

Bro. JONES moved for fifty guineas be given to the Devon and Exeter Hospital.

This was opened by Bro. WATTS and other brethren, and an amendment was removed to reduce the sum by twenty-five guineas. Bro. Watts contended that it was not Masonic to give money to instances that were in no way connected with Masonry.

Bro. METHAM protested against this remark, and argued that it was essentially Masonic. It was their duty, as Masons, to first take care of the household of their own faith and then to carry comfort and consolation to others. (Applause.)

The proposition of Bro. Jones was carried by a large majority.

Bro. W. S. Passmore, of Lodge 444, was elected as Treasurer for the coming year.

The P.G.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. L. P. Metham, D.P.G.M.; Lord Charles Beresford, W.M. of 1205, (Metham), P.G.S.W.; the Rev. T. Russell, 489, (Bideford), P.G.J.W.; the Rev. W. Whitley, 156, (Plymouth), P.G.S. Chaplain; the Rev. C. H. Deshon, 303, (Teignmouth), P.G.J. Chaplain; W. H. Barker, 847, (Honiton), P.G. Registrar; W. G. Rogers, 112 (Exeter), P.G. Secretary; W. H. Hancock, 164 (Sidmouth), P.G.S.D.; H. Dubose, 156 (Plymouth), P.G.J.D.; G. C. Bignell, 105 (Plymouth), P.G. Supt. Works; J. Gould, 444 (Starcross), P.G.D.C.; J. Redgate, 1212 (Stoke), P.G.A.D.C.; S. Willoughby, 1099 (Stoke), P.G. Sword Bearer; J. S. Short, 1443 (Dawlish), P.G. Organist; D. Attwood, (Ilfracombe), P.G. Pursuivant; J. H. Tonkin, 282 (Tavistock), P.G. D. Michelmore, (Newton); J. Harper, 251 (Barnstaple); S. B. Coulston, (Brixham); and H. M. Body, 1332, Prov. Grand Stewards.

At the conclusion of the business of Grand Lodge, a number of the brethren dined together at the New London Inn, under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Master. The usual Masonic toasts were proposed.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

(From our Correspondent.)

WELLINGTON, June 7th, 1875.

A very melancholy event had occurred previous to my last letter, but the particulars did not reach me in time for the mail—I refer to the suicidal death by poison of Mr. Lansigne, of Dunedin, long and favourably known in business circles as a wool-broker, and in society generally as a warm-hearted and kindly gentleman. The news of his death (and by such means) cast quite a gloom over the commercial community in the city. But acting this way on society generally, the feeling was intensified among the Masonic fraternity, with whom he was an especial favorite. He was one of those who had "put his principles in some measure to the test" being a Frenchman, and naturally, you may say, a Roman Catholic, the time came when he had to choose between Romanism and Masonry. He, without hesitation, held firmly to the latter, and laughed to scorn the excommunication the Church pronounced over him. By his death Scottish Masonry has lost a zealous workman; he was a P.M. of the Otago Kilwinning, and Grand Secretary of the Prov. Grand Lodge of New Zealand, S.C., he also held office in the Prov. Royal Arch Chapter S.C.. The last time I saw him was in the discharge of his duties as Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies at the installation of Bro. John Hislop as Prov. G.M. for New Zealand, S.C., a work which he got through with great satisfaction, although the number of Masons assembled (about 350) was probably the largest ever before seen in any hall in the colony, then in excellent health, and spirits; a few short months have passed, and he has launched his frail bark on the river of death, gliding onwards to the deep and unfathomable ocean of eternity. That he should have taken his own life, all must deeply deplore, but that it was done in a fit of insanity few that knew him will doubt. Between the cares of business and the recent loss of a dearly loved child his brain became impaired, reason lost her seat, and what had a short time previously been to him a world of life and of hope, became a black gulph of despair. Being of a peculiarly sensitive disposition he concealed his feelings, from even his intimates in Masonry, and those who saw him, at the opera, with his daughters, the evening previous, in more than his usual high spirits, little dreamed of finding him next day a corpse. Bro. Lansigne's life was insured for a thousand pounds, which, it is satisfactory to know, was promptly paid by the Government Life Assurance. Bro. Lansigne was buried with Masonic honours, a large number of brethren, of six Craft lodges, and one R.A. Chapter, being in attendance.

Turning to a more cheerful theme, I have to record a special meeting of the Reelton Pacific Lodge, No. 1453 (Province of Nelson, South-west), to present Bro. P.M. Gessing with an illuminated address, expressive of the high esteem in which he was held by the brethren, and their regret at his departure from among them (on a visit to England). There was a large muster of the brethren, including Bro. Millar, F.S.A., Grand Superintendent of Works, Prov. Grand Lodge Otago, S.C.; and Bro. P. M. Broad. The W.M., Bro. Carreras, presented the address in a very effective speech, and Bro. Gessing, who was much affected, gave a feeling reply. Thereafter, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, and to wish, Bro. Gessing "God speed."

I have come across an extract from the Australian Freemason, and I think it worth recording. "A new lodge called the 'Manoah,' holding under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, was inaugurated at Sydney on the 12th of April last. During his address the R.W.M. referred to three characteristics in the principles of the lodge. 1. The abolition of all dues. 2. No spirituous or intoxicating liquors whatever shall form part of the lodge refreshment, all the promoters being teetotalers, and so strict is this principle held, that the clause of the by-laws embodying this point cannot be altered under any circumstances. 3. That there be a yearly settlement of the lodge funds, and it is provided that no Master allow himself to be reinstated or surrender the chair to his successor until the profits (if any) have been distributed pro rata amongst members who comply with a certain by-law." This is the first time I have heard of a lodge in the colonies having no dues; as a rule, dues are too high, and the result is that some pay, but by far the larger number fall in arrears, and eventually disappear from the lodge-room, if not from the lodge books.

The Nelson Mark Masonic Lodge, No. 57, has closed, and the warrant has been returned to Grand Mark Lodge.

The annual meeting of the Southern Cross Lodge, No. 997, E.C., was held at the lodge-room, Invercargill, on May 19th, at noon, for the purpose of installing Bro. David Macrorie as Worshipful Master; the Installing Officer was Bro. Wade, P.M. After the ceremony, the W.M. appointed, and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. G. Fox, S.W.; A. C. Henderson, J.W.; W. J. Moffet, Treasurer; W. B. Scandrett, S.D.; J. Hamilton, J.D.; Heywood, Steward; Sugar, Tyler. After the usual salutations from the brethren, and "the hearty good wishes" of the visitor, the lodge was closed in due form.

FREEMASONRY AT THE RIVER PLATE.

A Mount correspondent writes as follows:—

The 24th (St. John's day) passed off very quietly, different in every way to the time when we as youngsters looked forward to it with an object of amusement. This was a cold, a bitter cold day, and but few people ventured into the streets, much preferring a warm fireside, or, perhaps, a warmer bed, to rambling about town. The only people who appeared to be on the alert were the Freemasons, and under many a topcoat a pair of black unmentionables, or a glimpse of a swallow-tail, denoted the wearer's occupation of the day. The installation of the W.M. of the Acacia Lodge took place at the usual hour, and for the ensuing year our old and esteemed friend Chevalier John Oldham holds this position; the Masonic banquet was held at Dr. Fleury's mansion, and at it several most eloquent speeches were made.—Buenos Ayres Standard.

MASONIC MEDALS AND TOKENS.

In the Freemason of 31st July I described a Masonic token under this heading; and I have since been much puzzled to discover the event which a silver medal, belonging to the same brother, was intended to commemorate. The following is a description of it:—It is a little larger and a little heavier than a half-crown. In the upper portion of the obverse is a conventional sun, under which is No. (the number has however never been added), under this again has been engraved the name of a gentleman who was one of the permanent Grand Officers of the "Moderns" during the latter part of the last, and for the first decade of the present century. I may mention that he is described as Mr., the term brother being much more sparingly used than than now, particularly when there was a possibility of its being seen or heard by the outer world. The inscription is FREE.MASONS.HALL. The obverse contains the square, level, plumb-rule, compasses, and sword, fastened together by a ribbon tied in a triple bow. The inscription is VIDE.AUDI.TACE. The medal is in perfect preservation. A very distinguished brother, to whom it was shown recently, thought it must be a pass of some kind, from the fact that the owner's name was engraved upon it. I believe this suggestion was not far from the truth; for having occasion to refer to Preston's Illustrations (11th edition, 1804) on another subject, I found (page 289) that it was resolved at the Grand Lodge, in June 1779, to raise a loan of £2000, without interest, to pay off the debts upon the hall. No subscriptions of less than £25 were to be received, and there were not to be more than 100 subscribers. "It was also determined that an honorary medal should be presented to every subscriber, as a mark of respect, on account of the service which he had rendered this society, and that the bearer of such medal, if a Master Mason, should have the privilege of being present at, and voting in, all the future meetings of the Grand Lodge." One can hardly resist the conviction that the foregoing extract refers to the medal described above, although the absence of a date upon the medal must be borne in mind. E. S.

Having read the many letters which appeared in the Freemason, relative to a token in commemoration of the Installation of the Prince of Wales in 1790, it will give me much pleasure to send you one for your inspection (if you have not already seen one), on which you can make your own comments. I knew I had one when some time ago it was spoken of in your paper; but could not then put my hand upon it. The date, you will see, on the face is 1790, but on the edge 1794. The arms much resemble those of my mother lodge. I do not think the animals leopards, as stated in your issue of the 31st, but beavers. Should any brother wish to possess it, they can have it for a consideration. I came by it thus. About seven years ago I purchased some fruit in the Bristol Market, and that token was among the coppers as change. Should you desire to see it, if you will kindly tell me how I can send it, the same will be instantly forwarded.

Yours fraternally, WM. HAZARD,
P.M. 103, Senior Tyler No. 8.

HUGHAN'S MASONIC TOKEN OF A.D. 1794.

I have again examined the token, and this time with extra care, so as to clearly establish the fact that the different issues of the little copper coin differ only in minor details.

The one mentioned by Bro. E. S. varies a little from mine, and the others mentioned in the Freemason, but the obverse and reverse of the coins are in agreement. The arms, crest, and motto are alike in each of the tokens; so also the inscription. The supporters are in all probability beavers, though they might do for a mild form of leopard. Bros. E. S. and T. F. think the Bible (or a book) is represented on the reverse, and not an hour-glass, as I fancied. They may be correct, but really it almost does for either equally well.

On the rim of my coin is "Masonic Token, I. Schichley, Feit, 1794." In my former communication the prefix "I" to Schichley was omitted. Bro. Colonel Burdett's issue has "Masonic halfpenny token" on the rim, whilst the one alluded to by Bro. E. S. has "Halfpenny, payable at the Black Horse, Tower Hill."

It is evident, then, that the inscription on the rim of the different issues of the token varied according to the fancy of the customers who ordered them, and so we may take it for granted that virtually all the coins refer to but the one original, with slight variations.

The size of the one in my possession is exactly one inch and one-eighth in diameter, and weighs a mere trifle over a quarter of an ounce.

Although H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was elected Grand Master 24th Nov., 1790 (as the inscription on the token states), the installation did not take place until 2nd May, 1792.

The arms on the obverse were those adopted by the Grand Lodge of England ("Moderns") until A.D. 1813, when, the "Union" being consummated, the United Grand Lodge of England has since been distinguished by a blending of the arms which severally distinguished the "Moderns" and "Ancients" before that period.

SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN A "FREEMASON."

I do not see any reason to doubt the fact that Sir Christopher Wren was a "Freemason," and that his admission occurred on May 18th, 1691, when Aubrey stated it was to take place.

There does not, however, appear to be any evidence of Sir Christopher Wren's connection with the Lodge of Antiquity prior to 1720, and even if the three candlesticks were presented by him to the lodge in 1675, it is not at all likely such a presentation was made during his presidency, for his initiation (or adoption) was not to take place until 1691.

Sir Christopher Wren may have made the gift to the Master or President of the lodge in 1675, who may have officially taken part, with other old lodges, at the laying of the first stone of the cathedral, or he may not. In the absence of the evidence, our speculations are of no value.

ALPHA AND THE "SUSSEX LODGE," 1841.

Cannot "Alpha" communicate a few more particulars as to the lodge about which he desires information. Was it called the "Sussex Lodge," and did it meet in Kensington Palace? If so, why refer to the Sussex Arms. I shall be happy to search any calendars in my possession, and will communicate the result, provided I have some certain data to go by before commencing the search.

"The Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite." Illustrated. By Bro. J. T. LOTH, P.H. Dr.

We have received this handsomely got up book with much pleasure, and looked through it with much interest. For those who belong to the A. and A. Scottish Rite, as it is called, this work will be a sort of vade mecum, as regards grades and blazonries. Bro. Loth must have taken the greatest pains in its preparation and publication, and we are pleased in the interest of archaeology, and of all that tends to illustrate and adorn the somewhat barren path of the literature of the Craft, and of the high grades, to note the fact, and to commend this work to the approval and patronage of our many readers. All such efforts we think deserve encouragement which serve to prove even to the outside world, too ready to scoff at Masonic literary endeavours of any kind, that whether it be in respect of Craft Masonry proper, or what may be fairly termed the Christian Grades, we have amongst us those whose Masonic knowledge, and whose archaeological attainments, are worthy of much admiration. We therefore heartily welcome Dr. Loth's book, and we trust that, unlike Masonic litterateurs generally, he may not experience the result of many Masonic sufferers in the cause of literature, discouragement, apathy, and loss. We trust to hear "au contraire" that his "labour of love" has been a thorough success. One point, in the interests of Masonic history and correct archaeology, we wish to call attention to. Of course the "Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite," though very interesting to its own adepts, ought not, and indeed cannot, be looked upon as a representative of Freemasonry proper. It is in fact a system of its own, modern as regards date, and purely Christian as opposed to the universal teaching of Craft Freemasonry. At present it consists of thirty-three degrees, but was previously of twenty-five, and first of all—if the "Rite Ecossais" is the child of the Chevalier Ramsay's fertile imagination—three, Scotch Master or Scotchman, the Novice, and the Knight of the Temple, which may be perhaps called the "Rite de Bouillon." The Rite de Bouillon is probably of date about 1728. The present French Rite Ecossais is nearly analogous "nominatim" with the Scottish Rite, though why it is called the Scottish Rite we know not, as until Ramsay's manipulations no one had ever heard of the "Rite Ecossais," or of the "Rite Ancien," or of the "Maçonnerie de Perfection," which were all supposed to be, as a French writer puts it, "grades originaux d'Edinbourg." Various attempts have been made from time to time to reduce the "Rite Ecossais." Le Chevalier de St. Martin is said to have reduced it to ten degrees, and another form of it is composed of seven, the last four being Ancient Master, Elect, Scotch, Kadosh. The Rite Francais, "ou rite moderne," which may be said probably to date from about 1786, consists of seven grades, the three Craft, and Elect, Scotch, Knight of the East, and Sovereign Prince Rose Croix. But the basis of all these rites is our ancient Craft system, more ancient than any other, and whether those brethren were right who, not content with the Spartan simplicity of our forefathers, grafted these mediæval, mystic, and Knightly grades on to the old parent tree, must be left to the individual judgment of the educated and expert Freemason. As a literary effort we congratulate Bro. Loth on his work.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee met at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, 11th August. Present:—Bros. Major Creation, Chairman, H. G. Warren, R. Spencer, J. A. Farnfield, J. G. Stevens, A. H. Tattershall, L. Stean, W. Stevens, James Brett, S. Rawson, Griffiths Smith, I. Newton, Thomas Cubitt, W. Hilton, Prof. Erasmus Wilson, and Jabez Hogg. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The Wardens' Report stated that the entertainment kindly voted at the last meeting was held on the 30th ultimo, and gave great pleasure to the inmates assembled. The death of two annuitants was reported. The Chairman was authorised to sign cheques for payment of annuities due 1st September. One candidate was placed on the list for election in May next, and permission was granted to an annuitant to reside in the Asylum at Croydon. Votes of thanks were accorded to Bro. Griffiths Smith, for drawing up agreement, and to the Chairman.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of the Subscribers to this Institution met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. J. G. Chancellor, V.P., in the chair. The other members of the Committee then present were Bros. Henry Browse, Benj. Mallam, John Symonds, Richard Spencer, S. Rosenthal, W. Roebuck, W. F. Moutrie, H. Dubosc, J. W. Dosell, Hyde Pullen, George J. Palmer, and F. Binckes, Secretary. Bro. Binckes announced that the result of the late festival was a list of subscriptions amounting to £12,704.

It was then resolved that £500 be transferred from the General to the sustentation account, and the chairman was authorised to sign cheques for house bills amounting to £2,775 3s. 3d.

One petition was afterwards accepted, and the Committee then adjourned.

WHAT MASONRY IS.

Walter Scott well defines Freemasonry when he says:

It is the secret sympathy,
The silver link, the silken tie,
That heart to heart and mind to mind,
In body and in soul can bind.

And Prior, who said:

It is like the ladder in Jacob's dream,
Its foot on earth, its height above the skies.
Diffused in its virtues; boundless in its power;
'Tis public health and universal cure,
Of heavenly manna, 'tis a second feast,
A nation's food, and all to every taste.

MASONIC EPITAPH.—

Be this alone my epitaph,
When life has closed its span,
"Beneath this stone a Brother sleeps
Who loved his fellow man."

"There is a world where all are equal,

We are hurrying towards it fast—

We shall meet upon the Level there, when the gates of death are past;

We shall stand before the Orient, and the Master will be there,

To try the blocks we offer, with His own unerring square.

"Let us meet upon the Level, then, while labouring patient here;

Let us meet and let us labour, though the labour be severe;

Already in the western sky, the signs bid us prepare
To gather up our working tools and part upon the square."

SONNET.

O'er Nature free, 'mid her green hills and plains,
Or link'd to art in gardens neatly trim'd,
The wild bee, golden-strak'd and hairy-limb'd,
With ceaseless joy and ceaseless toil and pains,
A pleasing task, embraces close and drains
The deep contents of flow'r-cups honey-brim'd.
Nor quits his hold of each bright chalice rim'd
With glowing hues till not a drop remains.
His is a jocund, yet a busy life,
That workman blythe, the devious-roaming bee,
Nor with one health glad pledg'd, though largely rife
With heav'n's nectarous sweets, content is he.
But like a bard he all the smiling day
In endless feast of Nature's charms doth stray.

Masonic Tidings.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction on Friday, the 27th of August, by Bro. David Rose, P.M., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich (not at the Earl of Chatham as previously announced). The lodge will be opened at seven o'clock sharp.

An alarm, which threatened serious consequences, took place in the Pavilion on Hastings Pier, a groundless cry of fire having been raised. By the presence of mind of Bro. Marriott, the conductor of the band, the fear of the visitors was allayed, our brother quietly sitting down to the piano, and thus arresting the attention of the alarmed people.

A PRESENT FROM THE QUEEN TO THE BRIGHTON AQUARIUM.—A gigantic turtle, from the Island of Ascension, weighing over 3 cwt., has been presented by the Queen to the Brighton Aquarium. It is considered the finest specimen ever seen alive in this country. It will be exhibited in a temporary tank in the Central Hall during the preparation of a tank for its permanent reception.

Friday, 6th inst., being the birthday of Bro. the Duke of Edinburgh, was observed at Windsor with the customary honours. His Royal Highness was born at Windsor Castle on the 6th August, 1844.

Tuesday night's Gazette contains an announcement of the promotion of Bro. the Duke of Connaught of the 7th Hussars from the rank of captain to that of major, with seniority from that day.

The Earl of Rosslyn, of Easton Lodge, Essex, acting as representative of the Manor of Walthamstow, has succeeded the late Mr. E. Warner, M.P., of Higham Hall, as a vice-president of Forest School.

The circulation of the Bible in Turkey has now been authorised by the Porte.

The Lord Mayor has left London for the vacation.

The Earl of Carnarvon has left town for Cowes, and will take a short cruise in his yacht.

THE VISIT OF THE PRINCE OF WALES TO INDIA.—"According to present arrangements," says the Times of India, "the Prince of Wales will, after remaining in Bombay for a short time, go on to Ceylon and thence to Madras. From Madras the Prince goes by sea to Calcutta, and, as it has been arranged that he is to arrive there on Christmas-day, there will be a considerable interval to dispose of in the neighbourhood of Madras. Probably Bangalore will be visited, and Mysore elephants hunted; and it may be that Hyderabad may be looked in upon. Preparations for the forthcoming visit are also being made in Calcutta. The East India Railway Company are constructing a royal train to consist of five carriages, one of which is to be a State reception saloon, one a sleeping carriage, two carriages for the staff, and one for the personal attendants of His Royal Highness. The reception saloon and sleeping carriage are being furnished and upholstered in a very elegant style. Extensive alterations and improvements are also being effected at Government House. The Public Works Department are busily engaged renovating the whole building, and making alterations where needed. A suite of apartments in the S.W. wing are being fitted up especially for the Prince's private use, the old throne is to be replaced by an elegant structure, the drapery of which will consist of the finest crimson velvet trimmed with gold and emblazoned with the Royal Arms. It appears that the Nizam's Government are making preparations on a munificent scale for the reception of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at the capital of the Deccan. Very costly furniture has been ordered through a European firm in Madras, to grace the Royal Banqueting Hall to be fitted up for the occasion." The Bombay Gazette says:—"Now that the day has been fixed on which the Prince of Wales may be expected to land in Bombay, the leading native gentlemen of the city evince considerable interest in the coming event, and there can be no doubt that the reception of His Royal Highness will be very cordial."

DALRY GRAVITATION WATER WORKS.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE WITH MASONIC HONOURS. Monday, the 2nd inst., will henceforth be regarded as a red letter day, and one that will not soon be forgotten in the history of the parish. The day was one of autumn's loveliest, and the occasion of the demonstration was the laying of the foundation stone of the Gravitation Water Works at Wee Auldmuir, near to the Auldmuir Burn, in the valley between the first-named place and the Baidland range of hills. Monday being "St. Margaret's Day," which is an annual fair holiday, the public works were closed, and the inhabitants, in holiday attire, turned out en masse to witness the ceremony. The members of Dalry Blair Lodge, 290, joined by deputations from Mother Kilwinning, Royal Blue (Kilbirnie), and St. John's (Kilmarnock), assembled in the lodge-room, and proceeded thence to the more capacious F.C. school-room previous to forming into marching order.

[A detailed account of the proceedings will appear in our next.]

ANOTHER RITUALISTIC ATTACK.

The Ritualists, like the Romanists, seem to be in a state of great exacerbation as regards Freemasons and Freemasonry. It is to them apparently just now like the bit of "red rag" to the stamping bull, and has the same effect apparently both on their tempers and their feelings! We deplore the fact exceedingly, but we can do no more, as veracious chroniclers and careful observers of the way of the world, than note it for the information of all whom it may concern. There is not much in it perhaps one way or the other, but in this hot weather unnecessary agitation and nervous excitement are equally to be deprecated. The meeting for the consecration of the Alexandra Lodge, and the speeches then delivered, seems to have stirred up the bile of a correspondent of our juvenile contemporary, The Church Herald, who rushes into print with a childish volubility and inexperience which would be amusing were they not somewhat distressing. We wonder that our contemporary admits such a very slip-slop bit of writing in its ornate pages, but as not so long ago we read a very unwhorled and unfounded attack on our Order in the Church Herald, we do not wonder when we behold the following weak and silly ebullition which appeared in the issue of August 4th. We give the letter in extenso for the benefit of our readers.

"MASONIC INFIDELITY."

"Sir,—Let me call your attention to a speech recently delivered at the Alexandra Palace by Mr. J. C. Parkinson, a well known authority in Freemasonry, and one who has done more than any man living to show how thoroughly hostile are the principles of the Craft to all that Christians and Churchmen hold dear:—

"I think it is useful, on occasions of this character, to take a brief survey of the position of Freemasonry, and to mark its progress at home and abroad; and this is the more necessary from the impotent antagonism which continues to threaten and denounce all within its pale. The triumphant installation of the Prince of Wales as our Grand Master has been followed by the usual exhibitions. His Holiness the Pope has again anathematised what he is pleased to denominate 'the Masonic sect.' (A laugh.) Bishop Dupanloup has honoured us by a bitterly hostile pamphlet; the organ of Ultramontanism has declared that 'the Protestant religion and Freemasonry are identical and must stand or fall together'—a proposition it is certainly not worth our while to dispute; and an elaborate volume has been published on what is alleged to be the secret warfare of Freemasonry against the Church. The battle ground is not of our seeking; for we are ready to welcome, and do welcome as brothers, Roman Catholics if they are worthily recommended, and if they can take our obligations and obey our laws. These indispensable conditions being fulfilled, we hail the enlightened Roman Catholic as a Mason with the same cordiality as we extend to the Jew, the Mahomedan, or the Parsee. The very first page of our Book of Constitutions states that, 'let a man's religion or mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order provided he believe in the Glorious Architect of Heaven and Earth, and practise the sacred duties of morality; and it is this broad toleration and true Christian charity which shocks bigotry, and makes priestcraft tremble.' (Cheers.)

"Mr. Parkinson next exulted at the official recognition of the Freemasons of Italy by their brethren in this country, and quoted a glowing letter from the Grand Orient to himself thanking him for his 'trenchant public utterances' on this subject. Finally he remarked:—'Official relations having been established between the Grand Lodge of Italy and that of England, the best answer Freemasons can make to the embittered railing of those who would, doubtless, put them to the torture if they dared, is Loyalty and Charity—Loyalty to the principles and rulers of the Craft; Charity and toleration to all mankind, including our persecutors and slanderers. A Roman Catholic poet once wrote in a purely Masonic spirit,

"For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight,
He can't be wrong whose life is in the right."

Here we have an authoritative definition of Loyalty and Charity—Loyalty to principles opposed to the Church—but Mr. Parkinson did not end here. As if to defy decency and proclaim the absolute indifference of Freemasonry to the vital truths of Christianity, this arch apostle of latitudinarianism ended his speech with this abominable sentence:—'Freemasonry has nothing to do with sects or creeds, or with its professors as such. Its motto is Liberty of Conscience.' And this profession of negation was received, according to the report, with loud and enthusiastic cheering from an assembly which included many of the chief Freemasons of England. Surely, Sir, after this we shall hear no more of men who profess themselves Christians belonging to this wicked, secret organization.

"I see that the name of an English priest, the Rev. R. J. Simpson, the Rector of St. Clement Danes, was given as present at this orgy of infidelity, but I cannot believe this without corroboration. Is not the reverend gentleman's diocesan the proper person to appeal to?

"A CHURCHMAN."

What do our readers think of this very foolish attack by this anonymous and intolerant "Churchman" on our two worthy Brothers J. C. Parkinson and R. J. Simpson? The suggestion in the P.S., that our good brother the Rector of St. Clement Danes has rendered himself amenable to his diocesan by advocating toleration and friendliness, loyalty and charity, is really almost too delicious, and shews to what lengths the spirit of persecution, whether in Ritualist or Romanist, will lead some people! We on the contrary fully endorse all that was said by Bro. Parkinson and Bro. Simpson, and for this controversial sciolist to seek to brand the expression of such philanthropic and kindly addresses as Masonic infidelity, is an insult alike to truth, to religion, and Freemasonry. Can we induce such obtuse, though perhaps honest writers, like "A Churchman" to think? If so, he will perhaps be ready to admit, that because we proclaim an open platform to be the basis of our Order, it does not take away from us our individual belief in any degree. Out of the lodge we may be earnest Roman Catholics, members of the Church of England, or of any denomination, and zealous in our own measure and degree for what we believe conscientiously to answer the query, what is truth? But in the lodge we know nothing of religious disputations, differences, decrees, or dogmas; we accept all good men who believe in the Great Architect of the Universe, and revere the Revelation which he has given us. This position seems to some inconsistent, but it is not; it is both very simple and very distinct! Indeed, it seems to us a waste of time to argue the point, as, after all, the Ritualists in this, as in other things, have only borrowed the "old clothes" of the Roman Catholic arraigners of Freemasonry. The letter of "A Churchman" is in one respect a simple impertinence, though we may fairly allow something for a very hazy understanding, while in another it is as jesuitical a production as we have ever perused. Despite "A Churchman," (we doubt such being a fitting appellation for the writer of so much intolerant bombast) we cordially accept Bro. Parkinson's definition of our principles, just as we entirely assent to what our good Past Grand Chaplain said on that interesting occasion.

PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY IN SCOTLAND.

We are glad to be able to transcribe from the Edinburgh Courier of Friday, July 23, the following remarks on Scottish Freemasonry, which we have read with pleasure, and which we think our brethren will be glad also to peruse. These words were penned with reference to Rev. Dr. Loth's recent work, which we have reviewed elsewhere, but they are in themselves both kindly and weighty, and represent, we believe, fairly and truly, what is the actual position of Freemasonry among our warm-hearted fellow-countrymen, under the auspices of the Scottish Grand Lodge. We also think well to call attention to them, because they contain some statements and suggestions, which it will do our Scottish brethren much good to ponder over and follow out.

"FREEMASONRY IN SCOTLAND."

"In this country Freemasonry is making gigantic as well as rapid strides in our day. It is in the fashion at present, as every social institution is sure to be at any time when Royalty comes to the front of it, taking a lead in the control of its affairs. It would be interesting to learn the number of Masons who have been made since the day of that splendid gathering—a durbur of more than Oriental magnificence—on which His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was inaugurated as the Grand Master of English Masons. But nobody knows. It is disappointing when one begins to enquire about the numerical strength of this, the most powerful social organisation, next to the Church, in the country, to find that there are no reliable statistics bearing on the question. In Scotland very few lodges could inform the public of the number of their own members. Any of them could give you the names of all who have paid their subscriptions for an indefinite number of years. The minute-book records the names of those who attend the meetings for labour and recreation. But how about the scores or hundreds connected by Masonic generation with each lodge who never attend and have given over paying their annual tribute? A man is made in a lodge, and his name remains on its books; he may discontinue attending its meetings for any of an unrecordable number of reasons: he may get tired of them, may shift his residence in the city, may go to another town, go abroad, or he may die, and all the time his name is on the books. When the Earl of Rosslyn mounted the Scottish Masonic throne he proposed certain financial reforms, which, if they had been carried, would by-and-bye have helped to supply the item of information here desiderated; but they were not carried. In England matters are on a slightly better footing. There, when a man leaves a town, he is supposed to take away with him a certificate of membership from the lodge he was connected with, and by receiving this certificate he ceases to be a member of it. Each lodge, when this rule is attended to, can tell the number of its living members; for a Mason in connection with a lodge is not allowed to die and be buried like a dog. But does the brother who leaves the town join another lodge? Are all the Masons in any town members of lodges? Not at all. It is but a very small fraction of the men who could work their way into the mystic presence of a Right Worshipful Master.

"It is mere guess work, but some who have the means of making a very good guess estimate that in England, Ireland, and Scotland there cannot be less than three millions of living Freemasons. Happily it is a fundamental principle of their organization not to meddle with politics in any of the protean forms of that practical study. If it were otherwise the results would be very bad for either the country or Masonic Craft. All would depend on the strength or weakness of the force of cohesion among the members of lodges and between the lodges. As it is, Freemasonry exercises an untold control over hundreds of thousands of our countrymen. This is not a suitable occasion for referring to its influence all over the world. In that respect it is powerful enough to render the head of the Roman Catholic Church uneasy about it in the countries where he is supposed to be regarded as a Pope—a father in religious reality. But in our own country the social influence of Masonry is immense, and as things go, is mainly for the good of its members. It promotes personal intercourse and kindly feeling. It brings men together who would otherwise remain not only strangers but aliens to each other. The genialities of our nature find a free scope and cordial greeting in a Masonic lodge—so testify many of the wisest and best of men."

We agree with the writer. We believe that Freemasonry has a great future before it among the Scottish people, if only its Grand Lodge can muster up courage to tighten, up so to say, the private lodge system, which, in our opinion, is in Scotland greatly behind ours in England. Many Scotch brethren are sensible of the fact, many Scotch lodges are moving on in a right direction; but three points press upon them, and hinder their reforms and impede their advance. The first is the lowness of the initiation fee in many lodges, the second is the want of a greater interval between each degree as the normal regulation of the Scottish lodges, and thirdly, the want of a compulsory subscription in every lodge, under the Grand Lodge of Scotland. Were these reforms at once carried out, the status of Scottish Freemasonry would be immediately raised, more so we believe, than many of us even suppose. But we do not want to seem to be too dogmatic, and we rather, following in the wake of the Edinburgh Courant, support the very intelligible points and suggestions of a "Scottish Brother," and we shall be glad to insert any letters on the subject, which, moderate in tone, and fraternal in spirit, seem to merit the consideration and perusal of our numerous readers.

A MIGHTY COOL SUGGESTION.

We find the following striking little article in the Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer, a Roman Catholic journal, published at Belfast, of July 24th. We have thought it well to transfer it to our columns, as it may interest some of our readers.

"The question of Freemasonry in the Royal Irish Constabulary has been dealt with already by one of the Dublin journals. Freemasonry is undeniably present in the ranks of this force, and it is important in proportion to the duties of the body in which it is noticeable. The Prince of Wales is the Grand Master of the Freemasons, and he is the coming King. The King can do no wrong, but a policeman can do wrong. He is the immediate guardian of society, and as such should preserve the confidence of society's humblest member. By binding him up with a small section of the people, Freemasonry must have the effect of lessening the confidence of the great mass in the individual. Confidence is also shaken in the entire constabulary. We do not mean to say that Freemasonry is, at present at least, of much political significance or power in this country; but it is well-known that the Society of Freemasons is a powerful political organisation in other countries. We have admitted the thin end of the wedge, and the Prince of Wales has assisted his own and his house's downfall. There can be no doubt that the diametric opponent of Freemasonry is the Catholic Church. The Society of Freemasons is a secret one, bound by oaths, and the members of which owe implicit obedience to the chiefs of the Craft. The Catholic Church is open, and proclaims its objects on its banners and from its lips. No Catholic can be a Freemason. He puts off his Catholicity as soon as he puts on its badge and learns "the grip." It is said that there are 17,000,000 Freemasons. There are 200,000,000 of Catholics in the world. Which is likely to win—the secret society or the frank and open presence of the Catholic Church? It is not too much to say that even already English Masonry has begun to assume the aspect of that foreign branch of the society from which the Bishop of Orleans stripped the veil in his "Etude sur la Franc Maçonnerie." A good deal of light has been let in by the publication of a little book by a German author, which has now been translated into English, entitled "The Secret Warfare of Freemasonry against Church and State." Yet even if Masonry in the police were of no actual danger, the force ought to be, like Cæsar's wife, above suspicion, and in a purely Catholic country like this the people ought not to be made distrustful by the committal of their persons and property to the care of men whom they believe to be secretly banded together in hostility to the great institution to which they belong. We are sure that the matter has only to be brought under the notice of the authorities, when it will be as compatible to be a policeman and a Freemason as it now is to be a Catholic and a Freemason."

Is it not almost pitiable to see to what lengths so called religious fanaticism and unreasoning intolerance will lead rational beings? Here is a writer not probably unkind or unbrotherly in private life, pointedly putting forth in type the most cruel and unthinking theories of deliberate persecution. He has nothing to allege against Freemasonry. It is too absurd in Great Britain to talk of Freemasonry as having anything to do with politics, and this writer therefore can only appeal to that sectarianism which is always deplorable, and to that want of charity which is always hurtful. Because the Pope has condemned Freemasonry "proprio motu" unheard, and undefended, because the present possessor of the "Chair of St. Peter" has suddenly evoked from the dust of years the allocutions of Clement and Benedict, which some Roman Catholic authorities have held are obsolete, all Freemasonry is to be condemned. In Great Britain, in England, and Ireland, the Masonic body is undeniably composed of most respectable, religious, loyal citizens, and despite their social position and their benevolent undertakings, they are to be held up to the religious (?) hatred of all firm Roman Catholics, because former Popes condemned the Carbonari, and Pio Nono, has excommunicated the Communists! The best of the joke is, that in all probability the good old Pope himself is a Carbonari. He was in his "hot youth" a great friend of Mazzini and Co., and all the stories current about his being a Freemason probably resolve themselves into this, that when an ardent Liberal, and opposed actually to the then Papal Government, he was admitted into the "Carbonari" or "Madre Natura." Surely it is time that Roman Catholic scribes, like this ardent young man in the columns of the Weekly Examiner, &c., should give up attacking alike the religious and the loyal character of Freemasons. It says a great deal for the cool assurance, and not a little for the extreme violence of the Ultramontane party, that they should venture to put forth openly such a demand, or even make such a suggestion. Let us hope that the Irish Government, happily presided over by our noble brother, its most distinguished head, will, on the contrary, turn a deaf ear to all similar requests, whether proffered with unadulterated "cheek" or genuine "blarney," and refuse in the slightest measure to interfere with the sacredness of liberty of conscience, or by unwise concessions pave the way for universal religious persecution. Everywhere the Church of Rome, just now supposed to be wise in her generation, in her attacks on Freemasonry, and especially in Great Britain, is demonstrating to all clear-minded observers how unchanged she is, and that, despite her profession of liberal ideas, she has "rien appris" and "rien oublié." Her voice may perhaps be heard in favour of what she terms toleration and religious freedom, but her acts too clearly evince, that still before her glowing mind are looming in the distance visions of delightful "Auto-da-Fès," and of those better and happier days when the brave, the faithful, the virtuous and the chaste, were at the cruel mercies of the familiars of the Holy Inquisition. However, save the mark! Let us hope that a brighter future is in store for poor "ould Ireland," and that Irish Freemasonry, despite its intolerant opponents and vilifiers, may "go on and prosper," upholding manfully the rights of conscience, proclaiming peace and toleration, loyalty and charity, and demonstrating even to its bitterest and most foul-mouthed opponents, that its great abiding anthem is "Glory to God" in the highest, and "on earth" "Peace and good-will towards men."

CREDULITY.

What a wonderful history is that of the human race. As we look back on the fact to-day, and study the veracious annals of history, notwithstanding Sir R. Walpole's condemnatory dictum, we see how each successive age has been marked in many things by a spirit of hopeless credulity. Men have believed without thought, without reason, and without logic, alike the assurances of the charlatan, and the announcements of the impostor. The most idle stories have been propagated by the perverse or the fanatic, the most ridiculous allegations have been made by the interested or the "intrigant," and have found favour with that countless horde of "gobemouches" of all ages, lands, and tongues, which has thronged the Vanity Fair of life in past ages, and is neither fewer nor less credulous in every pathway of public and private life to-day. And one of the most painful facts connected with this apparently inherent, may we not say innate, propensity of mankind, is that religion has sometimes called in the spirit of credulity to foster fanaticism and encourage persecution. As Freemasons, we are not justified in dealing with the creeds or practice of religious denominations, quæ creeds and practice, but only as facts of history to point the moral or illustrate the argument. Thus we may fairly instance lying miracles and idle legends, by whomsoever invented, as proofs of credulity in past ages, even alas! in our own, just as we turn to such hopeless impostures as the "Liquifaction" of St. Janarius, and the Greek fire at Jerusalem, with a sigh, nay, a tear, as we realize what startling evidence they afford us of the continued credulity of our fellow-creatures. Now, just at this moment, the credulity of a large number of Roman Catholics and Ritualists, and of other denominations, and even Protestants professedly, by the way, is most remarkable in respect of Freemasonry and Freemasons. Urged only by their spiritual guides, who ought to know better, and do, we believe, really know better, a great many worthy and religious people have the most extraordinary notions concerning our peaceful Order. Nothing is too bad for some to say, nothing is too bad for others to believe, or profess to believe. We published in our last impression a story taken from a Canadian Roman Catholic paper, Le Nouveau Monde, Montreal, and forwarded to us by a responsible correspondent, which serves to show what people can say and what people will believe of us wicked and dangerous Freemasons. Yet can any one credit the statement of the sealed paper? or the sanguinary oath? Can any one even believe in the existence of the good "Passionist Father," whose kindly feelings were so dreadfully hurt, by this too fearful confirmation of his doubts and dread of Freemasons? The whole story is, we fancy, a "pious fraud," and though it may suit the warm imaginations and susceptible emotions of Roman Catholic religionists in Canada; it will not meet the requirements of our more sifting and careful criticism in England. We believe the whole story to be a pure myth, even the good old monk to be a figure of speech. It is a very pretty story, the agony is piled up wonderfully, and does Mr. J. Marshall, the American correspondent of the Monde, infinite credit. Who is this eloquent writer? As the conclusion is that "Freemasonry is the same all over the world," the clear object of this veracious anecdote is to make the credulous believe what the writer himself knows to be a lie—we can use no more polished word—that in England, or the Canadas, or the United States, Freemasonry has anything whatever to do with politics. The hero of the story, if it be not Mr. Fitz Marshall himself (see Pickwick passim), is a German, and we can say at once, on behalf of our good Teutonic brethren, that such a proceeding is a mendacious burlesque on German Freemasonry. We can only deplore deeply the bitter intolerance of such writers, and look with heartfelt regret on this fresh chapter of the history of the hurtful credulity of mankind.

MASONIC ENTHUSIASM.

We confess that we like a little enthusiasm in all things of earth. Enthusiasm is, however, not the feature of the hour which is most conspicuous. Indeed, the very reverse is the case, and in most of worldly ways, and even in religious duties, we constantly hear complaints of the coldness of the age, and the want of some little enthusiasm. Mr. Anthony Trollope, in his clever contemporary satire of many prevailing weaknesses, and much existing "basesse," puts in the mouth of "Marie Melmotte" the statement that she does "not care for swells," that they "don't mean what they say," that they are "generally half asleep, and don't care for anybody." It must be feared, we admit, that our youth do not shew much enthusiasm for anything, except it be Hurlingham or Newmarket, and that just at the present hour society is in the greatest need of a little enthusiasm. In all this we say nothing of the ladies, who, in their higher natures, keep alive any enthusiasm which still exists for anything in the world. But we live professedly in a cold, a cautious, a prosaic, a doubting age, and we can hardly expect to find much enthusiasm for anything. Like Mr. Sam Weller, the general theory of us all, apparently, just now, is to eat our "melting pears," to ask for no "names," and to get on "pretty well." Voila tout! And the spirit of the world re-acts upon Freemasonry. When the world was social Freemasonry was social, when the world was reforming Freemasonry was reforming, when the world "rests" and is "thankful," Freemasonry becomes contented and prosperous, and, like the world, deprecating any evidence of too much zeal, and averse to enthusiasm. Of course there is a good deal of common sense in all this, a proof of that hard practicality which is the boast and pride of our Anglo-Saxon family. And to some of us, no doubt, the days of enthusiasm are over in most things, and even in Freemasonry time has destroyed our illusions and thinned our friends; age has made us old and wheezy, gouty and irritable. No "couleur de rose" appears on the scene for us now; all is dry and dusty, and brown and withered. What charmed us once charms us no more. What once was the delight of our eyes has passed away in the finished record of our being. And so there has come upon us a numbing of interest and a quenching of enthusiasm. Anticipation and realization are two very different things. The promises of youth have faded before the stern advances of years. We shake our heads to-day at the eager impetuosity of youth; we are no longer enthusiasts, we deprecate enthusiasm, we condemn sentimentality, and we denounce impracticality. Those of us who began our Masonic career some years back may remember early days of Masonic enthusiasm. And, to say the truth, the experience of onward "lustra" has not really diminished our love for the good old Craft. If we are a little more measured in our words, a little less high-flown in our theories; if we keep before us ever that Freemasons are but men, and that we cannot expect impossibilities, we still have lost nothing of that enthusiasm for our Order which led us to make many sacrifices for it, and to give much time, and care, and thought to it, a long, long time ago! It is still, despite some drawbacks, what it always professed to be. It is still, despite some weaknesses and defects, a great, a useful, a beneficent Order; and if, following the colder current of the great gulf stream of the world and society, we are less enthusiastic in speech and estimate, we do not the less undervalue its claims, or deny its mission in the world. Never does a thought come over us of deserting its honoured flag. To us that flag seems floating out high and full, and under it we are happy to march, and for it we are ready to fight. It will not be pulled down by us. Other hands may seek to do so, enemies and calumniators may arise, but we shall never let go our loyal adherence to that old Brotherhood of whose great name we are proud, and for whose principles, let the world say what it will, we are still enthusiastic.

MINUTES AND THEIR CONFIRMATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As there seems to be a considerable and important divergence of opinion upon this subject, perhaps you will kindly grant me a little space in order that I may draw the attention of your readers to it; and if I should succeed, as I hope I shall, in enlisting the sympathy of some of our working brethren, an official declaration in the matter may be the result, followed (if necessary) by an alteration of the existing mode of procedure. Indeed, I go so far as to hope that you, Sir, may lend the weight of your editorial opinion upon the disputed question.

The conflicting opinions, then, upon this subject, briefly stated, are these:—

1. The confirmation of minutes is merely the affirming the clerical correctness of the report of what took place at a former meeting.

2. That by the formal confirmation of the minutes of a previous meeting what was then done receives a formal sanction, without which such former action is void and of no effect.

Now, Sir, I have been greatly astonished to find that the latter opinion is held to be the correct one, by some of the officials at Freemasons' Hall, upon some portions of our working; for instance, the election of W.M.; indeed, in a recent issue of your paper (June 12th), by a letter on "Precedence," signed "Hadley," it seems that this view was actually carried out.

Now, Sir, I trust that I shall be able to show, firstly, that this view would be very inexpedient, if it were the correct one, and therefore demands alteration; and secondly, that the view is not correct.

Firstly, then, with regard to the inexpediency of the course in question:—When a matter, of which due notice has been given to all the brethren of a lodge, has been once voted for and carried, it can be neither right nor expedient that the next lodge, consisting probably of entirely different brethren, should have the power to arbitrarily reject a deliberate vote of the former one, and that without any notice whatever, or that the former supporters of the measure, knowing nothing of the fate awaiting their already (supposed) settled action, may not even be present to again support it. Again in the case of election of W.M., what a door it opens to pique and spite, as in the instance quoted above, where the W.M. elect, having offended certain brethren by the premature announcements of his appointment of officers, had his election cancelled by the non-confirmation of minutes.

Secondly, I cannot think that such a course is even legal, for what is a "minute"? Simply the record of something that has been done. What is the "confirmation of this minute"? Simply the asserting at a subsequent meeting that this something done has been correctly reported.

Now let us see what the "Constitutions" say with regard to the election of W.M. In section 1 "Of the Masters and Wardens of Lodges" (p. 56) it is laid down that "Previously to the installation of the Master, the minutes of the preceding meeting of the lodge must be read and confirmed, so far at least as the election of Master, after which, &c."

Now this may seem perhaps to give colour to the view that I am opposing, but does it do this in reality?

The true spirit of any passage is always obtained by comparing it with the context, let us, therefore, turn to section 2 "Of Private Lodges" (Cons. p. 62), and we there find, "At the next meeting after his election, when the minutes are confirmed, he shall be duly installed," almost the same statement, yet sufficiently differing from the former as to give us an explanation of the true meaning.

Now in the latter passage it states that the W.M. elect shall be installed at the next lodge, i.e., the lodge "when" (in the ordinary course of things) "the minutes are confirmed." Nothing with respect to the validity of the election, therefore, depends upon the confirmation of the minutes, but the words are simply used as a true qualification or description of the proper degree of installation; had the other course have been intended the wording would not be "when the minutes are confirmed," but "when the minutes shall have been confirmed."

The latter clause of section 1 on page 76 then comes in to direct that in case of the non-confirmation of the minutes (i.e., if it be decided that there is not a proper record of the former proceedings, notice shall issue for a new election.

This same section further directs that, although "no Master elect shall assume the Master's chair until he shall have been regularly installed," yet "that he may in the interim rule the lodge," and this, mark you, as a right, and with no restrictions as to absence of P.M.'s, or the like. Surely it would be a gross absurdity to allow a brother to assume a position of absolute authority, and others at the very next meeting take it from him by reversing his election.

I may add, Sir, that I think my view is strengthened by the fact that no corresponding difficulty can occur under the "R. A. Regulations" with respect to the election of the three principals, who are considered "jointly as the Master, and each severally as a Master" (sec. 7, p. 15).

And, yet once more, how would such a cause of repudiation of a W.M. elect have been possible "in ancient times," when "no brother, however skilled in the craft, was called a Master Mason until he had been elected" (not installed) "into the chair of a lodge" (Ant. Ch. iv.).

In conclusion, Sir, I would ask you, and through you the Craft at large, whether it would not be better for the powers that be to settle this much-vexed question, which has, ere now, disturbed the tranquillity of even Grand Lodge, by a definite statement as to the effect of confirmation of minutes generally, appending, if needs be, directions that, in certain cases (such as election of W.M.), a vote given at one lodge must be ratified at the next by a more formal procedure than a so-called confirmation of minutes; but, in such case it might be well to expunge the permission of his taking up a rule that he may be so summarily deprived of.

With fraternal greetings, I remain, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

WM. TEBBS, P.M. 285,
P.P.G. Chaplain, Somerset.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF HAMPSHIRE, AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has been called to a report of the late meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, which appeared in the Freemason of the 31st. ult. I do not know who is responsible for the report, but the selection of names of those present has been made with a degree of partiality, which is, in my opinion, highly reprehensible. From my lodge, the oldest lodge in the United Province by many years, five brethren attended, three being Past Masters, while from the Albany Lodge, No. 151, at Newport, the attendance was much more numerous; yet in the published list the presence of members from No. 35 and No. 151 is systematically ignored. I venture to think, Sir, that persons who presume to write reports of Masonic meetings should either omit names altogether, or else make their selection in such a manner as to avoid the accusation of partiality; and more especially was such caution necessary in this instance, since, although the Union of the Isle Wight with Hampshire has been frankly and loyally accepted by the Island Masons as a body, there yet remains a feeling that we were not fairly dealt with, and a feeling of that description is not likely to be allayed by our presence at a meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge being quietly ignored. Understand, Sir, that I am not complaining of the omission of my own name, because I was not present, having been prevented at the last moment, by unavoidable circumstances, from putting in an appearance. Nothing could have been more appropriate and courteous than the remarks of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Beach, when he alluded to the union of the two provinces, and I am quite sure that no sentiments actuate him, but those of perfect fairness and impartiality, but your report, as it stands, leaves this impression—that although a Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Isle of Wight, not a single member from the two senior lodges in the Island was present. I protest most emphatically against such garbled reports, and I say that whoever wrote the report in question ought to have been better informed.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

T. W. FAULKNER, W.M. No. 35,
Past P.G.J.W., Isle of Wight.

PAPAL POWER IN TEMPORALS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The "Crusader" Organ of the "League of St. Sebastian" for July has an article "Chivalry—the trumpet of Rebellion inciting Latin Papalists to declare war against our ally the King of Italy and the inhabitants of Rome!" Some M.P. ought to stand up in his place in Parliament, and ask, "Are English subjects rightly members of the League, under the direction of the Jesuits, who have no legal existence in Britain?" The Papal Guards are members of the Ultramontrane League. Private persons, British subjects, must not do hostile acts against the King of Italy, our ally. A deputation should wait upon the heads of the League and say:—

We come to be informed by yourselves what the conditions of that league must be. When foes combine friends must unite. Germany and Britain must continue their amity in spite of the truculent trumpeters of the "Crusader."

The League wants temporal power restored to the Popes? On what, then, do they found this claim? On the pretended grant of Constantine, which has been proved to be a forgery. We are told that Silvester, the Bishop of Rome, healed Constantine of the leprosy—making him out to be a second Naaman; and that the Emperor, moved by gratitude to his priestly physician, made over to him Rome, Italy, and the provinces of the west. On this grant, which was never made known till some centuries afterwards, we are required to believe in the supremacy of the Pope over all Christendom. Of the forged decretals, too, on which so much power was assumed, I need not say a word. Phocas again, in the 7th century, murdered his Royal Master, Mauritius, Emperor of the West, usurped his throne, and was confirmed in it by the Pope, with the understanding that Phocas would recognize and support him as universal bishop, which he did. So the temporal power of the Pope comes from a murderer and usurper, an abandoned Zimri who slew his master. Spiritual power thus accrues to the Popes from one of the worst of men, and is the result of his wickedness. Pepin again, mayor of the palace to Childeric, King of France, got the Pope's leave to dethrone his master on the promise of receiving many provinces, which he did in return for his atrocious villainy. Charlemagne also, Pepin's son, added many further grants, thus increasing the Pope's territorial rights and also his spiritual power. These transactions remind one of Satan's proposal to Jesus to give him all the kingdoms of the world on the promise that he would fall down and worship him. The spiritual power of the Pope has been gained in these exceptionable ways, and therefore on how sandy a foundation it stands! Any donations from a temporal prince or emperor clearly set them above the Popes, since they who give authority are clearly above him who receives it, and Constantine presided at the Council of Nice.

I am, yours faithfully,
Bristol, 7th Aug. 1875.

A FREEMASON.

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Although I have declined to reply to the anonymous attack by a "Mark Master," I think that, since you have, in the interests of Masonry, now proposed an inquiry by a committee of Masons, it may be well for me to overlook the nature of a "Mark Master's" attack, and to reply to his questions.

1. I have already stated that the person to whom I communicated the fact of my ceasing to be a Masonic Templar was the gentleman who at the time of the disappearance of the Government of Masonic Templars was its Secretary. That letter to him was not a private communication, and he sent me an official acknowledgment of its receipt: the enclosure with it was a private communication, and was intended to be a detailed explanation to him of the cause of my ceasing to be a Masonic Templar, after having so long struggled for the restoration of that Order. I wished it to be private because I had no intention of bringing any charge, because I was heartily ashamed, for the sake of Masonry, that a Masonic Templar could act as one had acted. It is not true that I wrote a private letter to the Vice-Chancellor of the Temple and made in it a false charge, and marked the letter "private" in order to avoid the consequences of so doing.

2. One morning in November last a letter was brought to me on which I had to pay ninepence postage; observing that it came from the spurious "Order," I wrote to Mr. Tinkler, saying, that I should receive no more letters from that source; it seemed to me to be a poor kind of practical joke to have to pay ninepence for suffering an impertinence, and that I was justified in taking steps to prevent its repetition. I have previously stated that I could not be in London on the day arbitrarily fixed by the Temple. It has indeed occurred to me that such time was fixed upon because some of the Knights knew that I was unlikely to be able to be in London then.

3. "A Mark Master" says that only one representative of the Temple was present at the Judicial Council on 13th February last. No doubt, "A Mark Master" was present, but he forgets that I was there also, and the persons whom I saw there sitting at the judicial table were the following:

1. The Earl of Limerick (Prior of the Order of the Temple) in the chair; 2. the Rev. G. R. Portal; 3. General Clerk; 4. Major Clarke, (Sub Prior of the Order); 5. Lt.-Col. Chas. Hutton Gregory, (Masonic Templar); 6. Earl Percy; 7. Mr. Beach, M.P.; 8. Sir P. Colquhoun; 9. Mr. Tinkler; 10. a person with a strong Irish brogue, name unknown to me. Thus, instead of the case being as "A Mark Master" puts it, it was precisely the reverse; for there being only one Masonic Templar present, there was consequently only one upon whose sympathy I could reckon. As to the proceedings of the so called "Judicial" body, the less attempted to be said, in their defence, the better. The Earl of Limerick, who presided, ruled that notes of proceedings could only be taken by one of those present, and refused me the services of a shorthand writer, whom I had employed to render to me a true and complete account of the whole proceedings. Of the charges brought against me by the Irishman prompted by Sir P. Colquhoun I know but little; the matter for discussion on which I had asked for the meeting to be held was not allowed to be discussed; but having a hurried opportunity after the rising of the meeting of reading the charges, I learned (the only one that remains in my memory) that I was accused of "insubordination to my superior officer." Who that officer is I did not discover, but I understand by such charge being made, that this new order of knighthood assumes to be organised under the provisions of the Mutiny Act and Articles of War, clearly proving that it is not a Masonic body. "A Mark Master" has not a good memory. He has omitted to state that whilst denying the right of the Temple to summon me at all, I offered to that body, in writing, before the "Judicial Council," to place myself in the hands of two Masonic Templars, and to abide by their decision, on the understanding that their finding, and the whole of the evidence, should be published by "the Order of the Temple" in the Freemason, and read out in each preceptory in England and Ireland. For some reason—perhaps considering this "childish"—the "Order" has carefully avoided any acceptance of the proposal; but the fact of my having made it, and of the Temple having avoided accepting it, places upon my not withdrawing the statement of the real cause of my ceasing to be a Masonic Templar a very different construction from that insinuated by "A Mark Master."

In November, 1873, an official complaint of slander and falsehood by a certain "Knight" was made to the Council of the Great Prior, signed by Lord Eliot, the Rev. G. R. Portal, Sir E. Lechmere, Mr. R. Woof, and other Masons. The council declined to inquire into it. When this "Knight" was appointed by the Rev. G. R. Portal (on the recommendation of Lord Limerick) to office in the Mark Grand Lodge, I on that account resigned the post of member of the general board of the Mark Degree, and subsequently that of Grand Register of Marks. How comes it that the Temple refused to notice that official complaint, but became so angry with me when an unproved offence of a similar nature was alleged against me. Can "A Mark Master" explain the apparent inconsistency?

The further my case is inquired into, the stronger will be the proof of the correctness of the view taken in your article of this date, that there is at present no safety for Mark Masons—that, in fact, Sir P. Colquhoun, not, so far as I am aware, himself a member of the Mark degree, is its absolute and irresponsible Master.

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

There are two points which require to be cleared up in the above case.

1. A Mark Master who happens to be a Templar or a member of the 33° is not "necessitate handed over to the decision of an alien and non-Masonic tribunal." The Judicial Council consists of Masons, as both the Temple and 33° consist solely of Masons, and it includes, out of its nine members, three Past Grand Masters of the Mark Degree. I admit that I think it would be well if these three were required to be unanimous before the sentence of the court were carried out in the Mark Degree.

2. Major Burgess's case is emphatically not a case of "pure Templar discipline from first to last." His conduct in making a disgraceful charge against a brother Mason, a gentleman of high character and social position, and refusing when called upon either to withdraw or prove his charge, is not a matter of "discipline" at all.

It is conduct which would make me, and others in the Mark Degree as well, refuse to meet him in lodge or private society. Major Burgess denies that he made any charge against the brother in question, I will therefore ask you to print his letter, and then I will leave the matter, regretting that there should be any difference of opinion among Masons as to what is honourable conduct, and what is not.

"East Maccall, Old Charlton, Kent, S.E.

"8th August, 1874.

"Dear Sir,

"In consequence of the conduct of the Hon. —, as a Masonic Templar, I have resigned membership of that body.

I shall be obliged by your informing me whether I owe any dues to either the Faith and Fidelity or New Temple Encampments, in order that they may at once be paid.

"Yours faithfully,

"W. Tinkler, Esq."

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally.

A MARK MASTER.

[We have omitted a passage in Bro. Burgess's letter, as it does not affect the question in any way, and we think it a paragraph we ought not as Freemasons to publish to the profane world.]

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your being the Editor of the principal organ of the Craft, of which I have the honour of being a poor member, leads me to believe that when I state my case you will excuse the liberty I take in addressing you.

I was initiated, passed, and raised in Loyalty Lodge, No. 243, in the Island of Guernsey.

I am a government writer, and as the hours of employment are very short (being paid by the hour), my earnings are very small. My object, therefore, in troubling you, is to try and obtain your assistance in the way of an introduction to some brother, who would kindly give me some writing (law, ornamental, or otherwise) to do in my spare time. By doing so, you would confer on me a benefit for which I would be ever grateful.

I tried an advertisement in the Freemason, but it met with no response, and I have adopted this course.

Trusting that you will forgive me if I have intruded on your valuable time, and hoping that you will give my case your favourable consideration,

I beg to remain, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

ROBT. S. R. B.

[We shall be very happy to put any brother in communication with our correspondent.—Ed.]

Obituary.

BRO. GEORGE JONES OF CIRENCESTER.

From the Wills and Gloucester Standard.

We have to announce the death of a well-known and respected inhabitant of Cirencester, and one who was in the prime of life and with his powers for usefulness unimpaired—Bro. George Jones, of Dyer-street. The deceased had for many years been town-surveyor, and in this capacity he had been a most valuable public officer. In no particular, probably, was his fitness for the post more conspicuous than in the question of flood-water, which had always at certain seasons inundated the cellars of parts of the town. He was also inspector of nuisances both under the urban and rural sanitary authorities, and the energy and ability with which he prosecuted his arduous duties were all that could be wished. In addition, Mr. Jones was an auctioneer, and, as our advertising columns have lately shown, possessed the confidence of some of the leading landowners in the district. On Saturday morning, after giving instructions to his men with regard to certain obstructions in the river Churn, he started off on a journey on the business of his inspectorship, pausing at various points on his way to notice the current of the river, &c., in connection with the subject which mainly engrossed his attention. On his return in the evening he put his horse in at the Three Horse Shoes Inn; transacted business with the landlord, and mentioned that he was trying another means of getting rid of the water out of the cellars, which he hoped to find would be effectual, and left for home. This was near six o'clock. On his way down Dyer-street he met a police-constable, and passed on in the direction of his house. From this time all is conjecture as to his movements, but, thanks to the earnestness with which Mr. Superintendent Wood conducted his inquiries, we are able to say that the deceased gentleman, instead of going indoors at once, went direct to the bridge a little lower down, to see if his instructions had been complied with, and their result. There is a stone near the bridge, by which he could tell the height of the water in the stream, and as this place is the only outlet for the water which flows through the town, it was his custom early and late to visit the spot. It was very dark, and he must have knelt on the bridge to look over, and by some sad fatality slipped, falling into the shallow stream on his head, and before regaining consciousness he was drowned.

The shocking tidings quickly spread over the town, and a feeling of gloom pervaded all classes of the inhabitants. The deceased leaves a widow and nine children to deplore the loss of a kind husband and parent. The inquest was held on Monday, at the Bull Inn. The unanimous verdict of the jury was "That the deceased, George Jones, while engaged in the performance of his duty as town surveyor was accidentally killed by falling from the bridge over the Churn, either by injuries in the fall or by drowning and suffocation, and the jury deeply lament the loss of a faithful public servant."

His daughter is a candidate for the next election of the Girls' School, and her case is supported by a number of influential brethren.

BROTHER E. H. FINNEY, JUN., P.M.

A large number of our readers will hear with regret of the death, at the early age of 27, of Bro. E. H. Finney, jun., the only son of Bro. Major E. H. Finney. His health gave way seriously last autumn, and for the greater part of the winter he was confined to his bed-room, but he so far rallied recently as to give his friends grounds for hoping that the improvement would be permanent. Indeed, when the writer met him a month ago he appeared to have thoroughly recovered. On Sunday, the 25th of July, he dined with some friends, and seemed in good health; but a sudden change for the worse took place on the Tuesday, and he expired on Sunday, the 1st of August. He was interred on the following Friday, and had it not been for his father's wish that the funeral should be strictly private, many brethren would have testified their respect to his memory by attending.

At the time of his decease he was I.P.M. of the United Service Lodge, No. 1361, and H. of the Hope and Unity, Chapter, No. 214. He also filled the office of Assistant S.E. of the Metropolitan Royal Arch Chapter of Improvement, although his failing health prevented the companions seeing him amongst them during the last session. He was a member of, and held corresponding office in, each of the "High" degrees.

In conclusion, we are sure that all who knew him will feel the sincerest sympathy for Bro. Major Finney in his bereavement.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—During hot and sultry weather all persons who are afflicted with Bad Legs, Ulcerations, Varicose Veins, and cutaneous inflammations, suffer much more severely from their effects than at any other season of the year. Such persons will derive incalculable benefit from the assiduous use of these remedies, for by the local sedative influence of the Ointment on the blood vessels and nerves of the skin and subjacent structures, the congested condition of the former is subdued, and the irritated state of the latter calmed and mollified, and at the same time the internal use of the Pills in alterative doses cools the overheated blood and subdues the inflammation; these combined effects are soon productive of ease.—ADVT.

PROVINCIAL.

RUNCORN.—ELLESMERE LODGE (No. 758).—This prosperous lodge held the regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, August 11th. The lodge was opened at 6.30 p.m. with solemn prayer the officers present being Bros. R. Rigby, W.M.; Edward Aston, S.W.; J. Warburton, J.W.; Charles Gerrard, J.D.; J. Fothergill, P.M.; W. Wass, I.G.; J. W. Lightburn, Org.; G. Purver, Tyler. Visitor: Joseph K. Digges, W.M. of No. 673. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Couth was passed to the F.C. Degree. The ceremony was beautifully and impressively rendered. The First Tracing Board was fully explained and delivered in a masterly and creditable manner by Bro. Edward Aston, S.W., after which the lodge closed in due and ancient form at 8.30 p.m.

LIVERPOOL.—DE GREY AND RIPON LODGE (No. 1356).—The usual monthly meeting of this excellently conducted lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 11th inst., at the hall, 80, North Hill-street, Toxteth Park, Liverpool. Although the Master has only been a month in the chair, two emergencies have already been held, and as there were no fewer than six candidates on this occasion for admission into the Order, these facts will show how "prosper the art" is abundantly illustrated in the De Grey and Ripon Lodge. Bro. Joseph Bell, W.M., occupied the chair in the East; and amongst those present were Bros. S. E. Ibbs, P.M.; T. Evans, P.M.; B. B. Marson, P.M.; T. Horne, S.W.; T. Nickson, J.W.; J. Ireland, Treas.; Jos. Jones, Sec.; M. Williams, S.D.; C. W. Costigan, J.D.; R. Roberts, I.G.; A. Woolrich, S.; C. Harding, S.; P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler; J. Winram, T. Williams, W. McVicker, M. Major, P. Askew, W. Andrews, H. Pritchard, W. Evans, J. Casement, W. Parrington, W. Brown, H. Buchanan, J. W. Johnson, W. Heath, H. Williams, T. R. Cooper, E. George, T. Lewis, P. Faust, T. Williams, J. Kenwright, W. Brough; with Bro. Owen Lewis, 1264, and Bro. J. Williams, 149, as visitors. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to initiate the following six candidates into the ancient order:—Mr. E. Pauli, Mr. H. G. Stafford, Mr. Hugh R. Parry, Mr. Henry Leech, Mr. G. F. Penny, and Mr. Edward Sandson. Bro. Pritchard was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The working in both degrees of Bro. Bell, the W.M., was of the most admirable and masterly character, and he was ably assisted by his principal officers. On the motion of Bro. T. Evans, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of ten guineas should be voted from the funds of the lodge to the Mott Testimonial Fund, which has now reached a goodly sum. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony.

LIVERPOOL.—DUKE OF EDINBURGH LODGE (No. 1182).—The largest gathering ever secured in connection with any meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 12th inst., when the brethren met for the annual installation of the W.M. The lodge has recently been removed from suburban quarters at the Coffee House, Waverley, and is now located at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool. Upwards of 100 members and visitors were present. The brethren were summoned to assemble at half-past four o'clock, and shortly after that hour the lodge was opened by Bro. J. E. Edginton, W.M., who was supported by Bros. P. R. Thorn, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M.; J. W. Williams, P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; T. B. Myers, S.W.; R. Martin, jun., J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. Williams, Sec.; T. Davis, S.D.; G. Musker, J.D.; A. Vaughan, I.G.; W. Thomason, S.; T. Snelson, S.; P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler. The members present were Bros. J. L. Wood, R. Mugford, H. J. Hughes, A. D. Hesketh, J. O. Rea, H. Sawyer, T. Hunt, J. Cleworth, C. Llewellyn, W. H. Spring, J. Thompson, F. J. Parry, W. C. Wiggins, R. Stirzaker, T. Curlender, W. Guyler, P. S. Macdonald, J. H. Wilson, L. B. Macdonald, James Thompson, S. A. Romain, C. Williams, A. Barclay, B. Thornton, J. Haslem, C. Jones, T. Dutton, G. Marsh, J. C. Brew, J. N. Parkes, G. Collings, J. Cleworth, J. Weston, R. Baines, J. Sale, B. Wilson, J. B. MacKenzie, R. Pennock, S. Newbold, R. Jones, W. Graves, D. Buchanan, R. Hargreaves, G. Baldsall, D. Kaye. The list of visitors included Bros. W. Healing, S.W. 1094; B. B. Marson, P.M. 1356; J. Bell, W.M. 1356; J. Jacobs, 724; C. Leedham, P.M. 220; J. G. Hartley, 594; J. W. Johnson, 1356; W. Morris, 673; J. Penney, 1393; F. Day, W.M. 1013; C. Humphries, P.M. 1013; J. Leeming, 667; E. Kyle, P.M. 673; E. Johnston, W.M. 203; J. Mercer Johnson, P.M. 155, 1094; R. P. France, S.W. 594; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; J. L. Houghton, 594; C. Costigan, J.D. 1356; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1264; J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C.; C. Leighton, P.M. 1325; G. G. Walmsley, 292; T. Roberts, S.W. 673; H. Burrows, J.W. 673; J. Garratt, 823; T. Whitfield, 594; W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D.; B. L. Johannesen, 594; T. Whitfield, 203; H. Brunsgaard, 5; A. Morrison, 594; J. H. Gregory, 667; D. Jackson, S.D. 673; A. Gilfillan, 1393; J. McBenett, W.M. 1350; W. S. Foster, 484; J. Wood, Treas. 1094; A. Woolrich, 1356 and 241; A. Bucknall, 667; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; W. Savage, 241; R. Pearson, P.M. 673; H. Nelson, W.M. 1505; R. Douglas, 667; J. Jones, 605; J. H. Martin, 594; F. W. Durrans, 1094. The lodge having been opened by the retiring W.M., the minutes were read and unanimously confirmed. The chair was then taken by Bro. B. B. Marson, P.M. 1356, who proceeded to install Bro. T. B. Myers as the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, the presentation being made by Bro. J. E. Edginton, I.P.M., and Bro. J. Thornton, the oldest P.M. of the lodge. This is the first time Bro. P.M. Marson has performed the ceremony of installation, and the remarkably impressive, complete, and efficient manner in which he went through the whole ceremony delighted and astonished every brother present. It is long since a Masonic treat of this character was afforded to the brethren, and the repeated commendation which Bro. Marson received during the evening was but an evidence of the universal opinion of the great merits of his working. We hope soon to see him again performing like duties. The following brethren were invested officers of the lodge for the ensuing year: Bros. J. E. Edginton, I.P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M., D.C.; R. Martin, jun., S.W.; J. Williams, J.W.; W. Brown, Treasurer (re-elected for the seventh or eighth time); T. Davis, Secretary; G. Musker, S.D.; W. Thomason, J.D.; C. Williams, Org.; A. D. Hesketh, I.G.; T. Snelson, S.S.; J. Barclay, J.S.; J. Curlender, A.S.; and P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler (re-elected). A candidate was subsequently initiated by the new W.M. in an exceedingly able and telling manner. The I.P.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Marson, P.M. 1356, for the exceedingly impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation; and he further moved that the same should be recorded on the minutes. The motion was seconded by Bro. J. W. Williams, P.M., and carried unanimously. Bro. Marson, in acknowledging the compliment, said it afforded him the greatest pleasure to install Bro. Myers that afternoon, and he must thank the P.M.'s of the lodge for withdrawing their claims, and allowing him to do the pleasant work. It would ever be a pleasant remembrance in his heart to know that in the lodge where he first saw the light he had had the privilege of first performing the ceremony of installation. The lodge was closed after four guineas had been voted to help the widow of a deceased brother. The brethren then retired to the large dining hall, where a very excellent banquet was served by Bro. Eve, 667. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and Bro. J. W. Williams, P.M., the toast of "The Masonic Charitable Institutions," which was coupled with the name of Bro. G. G. Walmsley, 292. Bro. J. E. Edginton, I.P.M., gave "The Health of the Worshipful Master," and Bro. Myers, in responding, expressed his thanks for the cordiality with which the toast had been proposed and received, assuring the members of the lodge that he would do his best to fulfil satisfactorily the duties of the high office to which he had been appointed. The W.M. then gave "The Visiting Brethren," which was acknowledged by Bros. W. Healing, S.W. 1094; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673, S.W. 1505; T. Dilcock, W.M. 594; and C. Leedham, P.M. 220, each of whom referred to the admirable manner in which the installation ceremony that afternoon had been performed. Bro. Larsen, P.M., Tyler, also returned thanks on behalf of Bro. Brunsgaard, of Lodge 5, a Norwegian captain, who was present, but unable to speak English fluently. Bro. Thorn, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," and in doing so said that as an old Mason of seventeen years' standing he could safely say that he never saw the ceremony of installation more effectively performed. Bro. P.M. Marson thanked the brethren sincerely for their kind expressions of approval, and said he hoped they would all be able to build up living temples as noble in plan and grand in design—as noble and massive as their brethren in antique times. He hoped the W.M. would have health and strength to fulfil his duties. "The Worshipful Past Masters," given by the W.M., was responded to by Bros. P.M.'s Edginton, Thornton, Thorn, and Williams. The other toasts were "Our Newly Installed Brethren," "The Officers," responded to by Bro. R. Martin, jun., S.W., and Bro. J. Williams, S.W.; and "Poor and Distressed Brethren." Excellent songs were given by Bros. Parry (whose "Holy Friar" was greatly appreciated), Gilfillan, Jacobs, Edginton, and others. On Friday morning about 130 ladies and brethren started from Lime-street Station by first-class special for the Overton Hills, near Frodsham, where the catering was capably done by Mr. Rigby. There were one or two showers, but on the whole the weather was good, and every one present thoroughly enjoyed the "out." During the day a handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. J. E. Edginton, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem of the brethren.

NEWPORT.—ALBERT EDWARD, PRINCE OF WALES, LODGE (No. 1429).—The ceremony of installing Bro. John Gristock Huxtable, P.P.G.A.D.C., as W.M. of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Lodge, took place on Thursday, at the Masonic Hall, Newport. The lodge was opened in due form at 2.30 p.m. by Bro. Wm. Watkins, the retiring W.M. He was supported by a numerous assembly of the brethren, not only of his lodge, but also representatives of each lodge in the town and province of Monmouth. Shortly after the opening Bro. Capt. S. Geo. Homfray, A.G.D.C. of England, and D.P.G.M. of Monmouth, entered the lodge, preceded by his Sword Bearer, Bro. Wickey Homfray, W.M. Isca Lodge, and followed by Bros. B. Lawrence, W.M. Silurian; Dr. Morgan, John Middleton, and a number of other brethren, members of the Grand Lodge of the province. The formal business having been disposed of, the deeply interesting ceremony of installing Bro. Huxtable was conducted with much skill and ability by Bro. Charles Rowe, Prov. G.S. of Monmouth. This having terminated, the W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Wm. Watkins, I.P.M. and P.P.G.S. Wks.; E. Whitehall, S.W., P.G.St.; F. Orders, J.W.; J. W. Bebell, Sec., P.G.S.Wks.; J. Horner, sen., Treas., P.G.D.C.; J. James, S.D.; W. Twist, J.D.; E. W. Perren, Org.; W. M. Locke, Supt. Works; C. Rowe, D.C., P.G. Sec.; J. Horner, jun., I.G.; J. Poole, L. Hermessen, H. Richards, S. Brukewich, Stewards; H. Fletcher, Tyler; W. Hopton, Asst. Tyler, &c., &c. Subsequently the accustomed votes of thanks were passed, and appropriately acknowledged in a manner peculiar to the Craft. The lodge was closed in due form, and then the brethren repaired to the Westgate Hotel, where the annual banquet took place. Bro. Hallen, as he invariably does, placed upon the tables a provision of unusual excellence, and his arrangements were such that the requirements of his guests were attended to in the fullest and most ample manner. Bro. Huxtable, W.M., presided, and was supported at the banquet by the following brethren, covers having been laid for 60:—S. George Homfray, A.G.D.C., and D.P.G.M., Mon.; Wm. Watkins, I.P.M. 1429, and P.P.G.S. Wks., Mon.; W. H. Wickey Homfray, W.M. 693, and P.P.G.S.B., Mon.; W. W. Morgan, P.M. 683, and P.P.G. Sec., Mon.; Chas. Rowe, P.M. 471, and 1429, and P.G. Sec., Mon.; John Middleton, P.M. 683, and 1098, P.P.G.S.W.; Thomas Jones Davies, 471; Thos. Boswell, 1429; W. Milton Locke, S.Wks., 1429; T. Frederick, 1429; D. L. James, 471; C. M. Venri, 36, 1133; R. G. Shaddick, 1429; F. Orders, S.W. 1429 and 471; John James, S.P. 1429 and 471; Henry Evans, 1429; W. Welsford, 1429; E. W. Perren, Org. 1429; J. A. Seys, 1429; Samuel Davies, P.P.G.S.B., Gloucester, P.M. 1363 and 270, 471, 1429; James Horner, jun., I.G. 1429; John Randall, 1429; J. W. Bebell, Sec. 1429, P.G.S.Wks.; Jacob Berlyn, 471; Hartley Feather, Prov. G. Purst, and Secretary Kennard Lodge, 1258, Pontypool; James Stallard, 1429; John Sims, 1429; Simeon Wyatt, 147; John Hooper, 251; John Neck, 201 and 1429; Wm. Kinsey Morgan, 1429; John Summers, 1429; James Horner, P.D.A.D.C., Treasurer 1429 and 471; S. Brinkewick, Std., 1429 and 471; Wm. Twist, 471, J.D. 1429; F. J. Hey-byrne, 1429; John Summers, 1429; J. Evans Thomas, 1429; Henry Richards, S. 1429; Alfred Taylor, 471 and 1429; Isaac T. Dando, 683; Henry Fletcher, A.P.G.T., 471; Wm. Hopton, Assistant Tyler 1429. On the removal of the cloth, the Worshipful Master proceeded with the toast list, proposing in the most loyal terms, "The Health of the Queen and the Craft." The toast was drunk right loyally, and "God save the Queen" sung by the brethren, Bro. Perren skilfully presiding at the pianoforte, as he did throughout the entire proceedings of the evening. The W.M. next gave "The W.M. the G.M. of England, H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, K.G." He spoke befittingly of the illustrious head of the Masonic Order, and of the joy and gratification he experienced in being present to witness the grand ceremonial of the installation of H.R.H. There could be no higher honour conferred upon the Freemasons of this kingdom than to have His Royal Highness to preside over them, and no greater honour could be conferred upon a Prince than to be the chosen head of such a body of men as were the Freemasons of Great Britain. Never should he forget the words spoken by H.R.H. at the time of his installation, viz., "Loyalty and Charity." These were the grand principles that bound Masons together in one individual band of brotherhood. The toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Twist sang the air and the brethren joined in the chorus of "God bless the Prince of Wales." The W.M. gave "The M.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Viscount Skelmersdale, and Officers of the Grand Lodge of England." He pertinently alluded to the high qualifications as well as the social rank and position of the brethren who composed the Grand Lodge. Great benefits must necessarily follow to the Craft when noblemen and gentlemen of such high renown were leaders in the movement. Bro. S. G. Homfray, as one of the Grand Lodge Officers, acknowledged the toast. It was the first time that he had had the extreme pleasure of appearing in any lodge with the new and valuable insignia of office which had been presented to him by the Grand Lodge of Monmouthshire. He felt extreme pride in being amongst them, and could not but feel proud at the honour of receiving the appointment which he held, and to which he had been raised by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. So far as the province was concerned, as so far as he was able, nothing should be lost to strengthen and uphold the genuine tenets and principles of Freemasonry. Bro. Middleton proposed "The R.W. the Provincial Grand Master for Monmouthshire, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Lyne." He regretted his absence, through indisposition. On that account, however, he could speak the more freely on his merits, and distinguished position as a Mason, as a citizen, and as a public man. The W.M. gave "The V.W. the D.P.G.M. for Monmouthshire, Capt. S. G. Homfray, A.G.D.C. of England, and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge of Monmouthshire." Bro. Homfray responded to the toast at length, and thanked the brethren most sincerely for the manner in which they had received his name. Nothing gave him greater pleasure than being amongst them that evening, and the brethren of the Albert Edward Lodge might rest assured that all he could do to further their interests would be most readily and heartily done.

He congratulated them on the sound and vigorous condition of their lodge. Bro. Watkins rose to propose the next toast, and called upon the brethren to drink in a bumper "The Health of their W.M., Bro. J. G. Huxtable." No one was more pleased or gratified than he to see the W.M. installed into the chair of King Solomon. He was one of the founders of the lodge, and he yet hoped to see other brethren who had assisted in its formation occupy the distinguished position to which he had attained. The W.M. responded, and thanked them most sincerely for the kind manner in which they had proposed and drunk his health. He felt proud of the position to which he had been elected. Advancing in years as he was, he felt that his memory was not so clear or so active as in days gone by, but he promised them that he would do his best to carry out the important duties of his office faithfully and honourably. Whatever defects they may see in his efforts he trusted to their generosity and leniency, and he promised to do all in his power to hand down the warrant which had been entrusted to his keeping that day as pure and untarnished as he had received it from the hands of their late W.M., Bro. Watkins. He felt he should need the aid of his officers and brethren, and particularly that of his I.P.M. and Bro. Charles Rowe, to whom they were all so much indebted. After alluding to the formation and progress of the Prince of Wales Lodge, he expressed the belief that in quality as well as numbers it would bear comparison with any lodge in the province, and concluded by again thanking the brethren for the honour conferred upon him by placing him in so proud a position as that which he now occupied. (Applause.) Bro. Homfray proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Watkins, P.P.G.S.Ws.," and in the course of his observations took occasion to invest Bro. Watkins with a valuable P.M. jewel on behalf of the lodge, referring to the meritorious Masonic career of the recipient, and expressing the hope that he may long be spared to wear the jewel on his breast (loud and prolonged cheering). The jewel was supplied by Bro. George Kenning, and the inscription was as follows:—"Presented to Bro. Wm. Watkins, P.M. 1429, and P.P.G.S.W., Mon., for valuable service rendered the lodge, August 12th, 1875." Bro. Watkins, in appropriate and feeling terms, acknowledged the compliment that had been paid him, not merely in drinking his health, but in presenting him with so valuable a jewel. To adequately thank the brethren for their kindness and manifest appreciation of his services would be one of the most difficult tasks he had been called upon to perform since he had been in the chair of this lodge. He had ever aimed at doing his duty, and he now began to think that to some extent, at least, he must have succeeded in that direction. (Applause.) His aim would still be to labour to promote the interest of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Lodge, so that it should stand second to none in the province. The W.M. gave "The Installing Master, Bro. Chas. Rowe, P.G.S." Long may he live to be an honour to the province. Bro. Rowe acknowledged the toast in suitable terms. The remaining toasts were, "The Visitors," "The W.M.'s and Brethren of the Silurian and Isca Lodges," "The Other Lodges of the Province," "The Officers of the Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Lodge," "The Masonic Charities," "To all Poor and Distressed Masons." These were acknowledged respectively by Bros. Capt. G. Homfray, A.G.D.C. of England, and D.P.G.M. of Mon.; Wyatt, Heath, Wickey Homfray, W.M., Isca Lodge; Hartley Feather, Pontypool; F. Orders, and Bro. H. Fletcher, Tyler. The entire proceedings were characterised by the greatest cordiality and harmony. The brethren separated at an early hour.

WALTHAM NEW TOWN.—THE KING HAROLD LODGE (No. 1327) held its usual monthly meeting at the Britannia Hotel, Waltham New Town, Herts, on Tuesday, the 17th of August. Bro. Charles Lacey, P.M., P.P.G.J.D. Herts, the W.M., presided, supported by Bros. West, P.M. and W.M. 1437, P.P.G.S.D. Herts; Young, I.P.M., P.G.A.D.C. Herts; Tydeman, P.M. 1437, P.G.A.P. Essex; Reilly, J.W.; Barwick, Treas.; Malcolm, Sec.; Jacobs, acting as S.W.; Tydeman, P.M. 1437, P.G.A.P. Essex, S.D.; Holmes, J.D.; Fisher, acting as I.G.; Steedman, P.M., Tyler. There was a good muster of the brethren. The lodge was honoured by a visit from the Provincial Grand Secretary of Hertfordshire, Bro. Dr. Wilson Iles, P.M., P.P.G.S.W. Herts. The business of the evening was to pass Bro. Taylor; to ballot for four candidates for initiation, viz., Mr. John William Newman, Mr. James Bull, Mr. G. T. Ridley, and Mr. C. Fuller. The ballot was unanimous in favour of these gentlemen. The W.M. then presented a suit of P.G. Lodge clothing to the I.P.M., Bro. J. K. Young, P.G.A.D.C. Hertfordshire, which was purchased by the members of the King Harold Lodge in recognition of the valuable services rendered by Bro. Young to the lodge. The W.M., Bro. Lacey, expressed the great pleasure it afforded him in being the medium of conveying to Bro. Young the feelings of fraternal regard entertained for him by the brethren, and concluded by investing Bro. Young with the clothing. Bro. Young thanked the W.M. and brethren in a suitable manner, saying that it was the happiest moment of his life. The business of the evening being concluded, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony with solemn prayer, after which the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. Bro. Dr. Iles, replying to that of "The Provincial Grand Officers of Hertfordshire," said he was very pleased to see the very able manner in which the W.M., Bro. Lacey, and his officers worked the ceremonies, and also the cordial and harmonious feeling that existed between the King Harold and the Gresham Lodges, both being situated in close proximity at Waltham. The evening was enlivened by some very good harmony, rendered in excellent style by Bro. Malcolm, Sec., 1327, and Bro. Goggs, from London; and, after thoroughly enjoying themselves, the brethren broke up at an early hour.

CHISLEHURST.—CHISLEHURST LODGE (No. 1531).—An emergency meeting of this young lodge was held on Saturday, August 14th, at the Bull's Head Hotel, Chislehurst. Bro. J. Coutts, P.G.P. P.M., W.M., presided, and in an able, proficient, and impressive manner passed Bros. Wain, Hooker, and Luck to the Second Degree, and initiated Messrs. Gerard Humphreys and George Benjamin West into Freemasonry. The candidates were introduced separately, which added to the importance of the ceremonies. There were present, Bros. Hutchings as S.W.; W. Kipps, J.W.; J. Griffin, P.M. Sec.; J. Mason, S.D.; H. Gloster, J.D.; W. Hardman, I.G.; Hunt, Skinner, and others. There was only one visitor present. Bro. Robert Russell, P.P.G.D.C., Kent, P.M. 299, was unanimously elected a joining member, and acted as Past Master. Bros. G. F. Guest, S.W., and F. Walters, P.P.G.P., Midx., P.M., were absent from circumstances beyond their control. A very good banquet followed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORK-SHIRE.

The regular half-yearly meeting of this Prov. G. Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 11th inst., at Eastwood, near Todmorden, by invitation from the W.M. and brethren of the Prince Edward Lodge, No. 14. A lodge of Mark Masters having been opened by the W.M. and officers, the Provincial G.M.M. (R.W. Bro. Thomas Perkinson, Past G.S.O.) entered the room, accompanied by the following officers:—

John Wordsworth	D.P.G.M.
W. F. Wilkinson	P.S.G.W.
John C. Taylor	P.J.G.W.
T. S. Higgins, P.P.G.M.O., as	P.G.M.O.
Alfred Scargill	P.G.S.O.
E. Hartley, P.P.G.J.O., as	P.G.J.O.
E. Sewell, M.A.	P.G. Chap.
G. Normanton	P.G. Treas.
R. Williamson	P.G. Reg.
William Cooke	P.G. Sec.
W. S. Wade, M.D.	P.S.G.D.
J. Holroyde, P.P.S.G.D., as	P.J.G.D.
W. Roberts, P.P.G.M.O., as	P.G.D. of C.
W. Tasker	P.G.I. of W.
H. W. Wrigley	P.G.S.W.B.
W. White	P.S.St.B.
C. F. Unna	P.G. Org.
J. S. Seanor	P.G.I.G.
Hy. Beaumont	P.G. St.
Geo. Marshall as	P.G. St.
J. Greenwood	P.G. Tyler.

The Prov. G. Lodge was then duly opened, and prayer offered by the P.G. Chaplain. The roll of lodges was then called, and also of the P.G. officers, past and present. The minutes of the Prov. G. Lodge, holden at Bradford in February last, were then confirmed; after which the P.G. Sec. read letters of apology from various brethren who had been prevented from attending the meeting. The remaining business (which was of a formal character) having been transacted, and an invitation from the W.M. of the Lodge of Truth, No. 137, having been given the Prov. G.M.M. to hold the February meeting at Huddersfield, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed. The brethren, at 4 p.m., retired for refreshment, and afterwards spent a very pleasant evening, there being a good attendance from Rochdale, Todmorden, Halifax, Bradford, Leeds, Huddersfield, Wakefield, and Sheffield.

GLASGOW.—ST. ANDREW'S ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER (No. 69) met on the 10th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. Comp. T. M. Campbell, P.Z., presided, and was supported by Comps. J. Duthie, Z. 67, acting H.; J. O. Park, Z. 122, acting J.; J. M. Oliver, S.E.; J. Gibson, S.N.; W. Thomas, Treas.; J. Balfour, P.Z. 73, acting 1st Soj.; G. B. Adams, 50, acting 2nd Soj.; Geo. Heron, H. 69, acting 3rd Soj.; Thos. Halket, Z. 113; W. Dotie, P.Z. 119, and others. There were two aspirants for Royal Arch honours, Bro. Wm. McMillan, M.M. of Mother Kilwinning No. 0, and Bro. Wm. Jones on behalf of the Thetis, R.A. Chapter No. 122. A lodge of M.E. Mark Masters was opened, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and that degree given to the candidates in Comp. Duthie's best style. In the R.A. Degree Comp. T. M. Campbell displayed rare ability, and familiarity with this beautiful degree of Masonry; throughout he was ably assisted by the companions taking part in the work.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE AND ROSE (No. 73).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 9th inst., at three o'clock. Present—Bros. Geo. McDonald, R.W.M.; G. Weston, P.M., acting S.W.; J. F. Hanbridge, J.W.; J. S. Ampleford, Sec.; and others. Two gentlemen were instructed in the First Degree of Masonry, who were proposed and seconded by Bro. Chas. T. Oliver and Robt. McKean, the R.W.M., G. McDonald, performing the ceremony. At the next regular meeting they will be prepared to be advanced further. The lodge was then closed in usual form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SCOTIA (No. 178).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 11th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. Bro. J. Singleton, R.W.M., with his Wardens, Bro. B. Gairdner, S.W., J. W. Hepburn, J.W., conducted the business before the lodge, which consisted of initiation and F.C. Degree, one candidate for each being presented. The office of I.G. having become vacant, Bro. B. McDonald was proposed for that office and elected. After some further business of an ordinary character was got through the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 9th inst., and was exceedingly well attended. The R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, presided; Bro. Renton in the S.W. chair; Bro. Kerr in the J.W.; and there were present Bros. T. Halket, P.M.; A. C. Lindsay Gray, D.M.; W. Westerton, S.M.; A. Paterson, Treas.; J. Smith, Sec.; W. Bell, R.W.M. (31 St. John's); H. McMillan, J.D.; Fenfar, D. of Music, presiding at the harmonium; F. W. Louch, P.M. 738, E.C. (Port Natal); F. Marshall, of Lodge Avalon, No. 776, E.C., St. John's, Newfoundland; J. Booth, S.W. 87; G. B. Adams, 360 (Freemason), and others. The minutes of the previous meetings (two) were read by the Secretary, found to be correct, and confirmed. An application for admittance into Freemasonry, through St. Mark's Lodge, from Mr. Joseph Cotter, was submitted to the brethren. The ballot was found clear, and he received the First Degree, the R.W.M. officiating. The R.W.M., thinking this was a case where the discretionary power allowed him by Grand Lodge laws in the case of a candidate leaving the country might be used, the brother was passed through the F.C. Degree, and raised to that of M.M., Bro. Mitchell performing the work in a style marked by masterly carefulness. The R.W.M. then said, if it was agreeable to the lodge, he would take this opportunity of conferring upon Bro. Bell, R.W.M. of the St. John 34, the honorary membership of this lodge, as a mark of their sense of his worth as a brother. This was unanimously agreed to, and that honour was conferred upon him. Bro. Bell replied that the honour from a lodge of such high standing in the Craft as St. Mark's was no ordinary mark of respect. The R.W.M. then referred in the most kind and feeling manner to the character and career of the late Bro. Huggins, who was an old and esteemed member of this lodge. By his death Masonry had sustained a severe loss, and this lodge, in which he took such a deep interest, would hear with sorrow and regret the news of his death. He would take the liberty of asking the office-bearers and members of the lodge to join him in sending a letter of sympathy and condolence to his sorrowing widow, and that the same be recorded in the minutes of the lodge. The Treasurer then gave notice of a motion for next meeting, viz., that the attention of the members of the lodge be called to the recent conduct and language of a brother; at that meeting he would lay the case fully before them, and propose what course the lodge ought to adopt in reference thereto. This finished the business of the lodge, when it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. GEORGE (No. 333).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 11th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. There was a large attendance of the members of the lodge and visiting brethren. Bro. Thomson, R.W.M., took the chair, supported by Bros. J. Forsyth, S.W.; R. Andrews, J.W.; McIntyre, Sec.; and others. The lodge was opened with the usual fullness, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed, and after being raised to the Sublime Degree, the work before the brethren was that of conferring the Master Mason Degree upon Bros. R. Mitchell, John Teiman, and W. McLeish. This being satisfactorily accomplished, a letter from Bro. Stewart was read, intimating the accidental death of Bro. Dougald Paterson, who has left a widow and family to mourn his loss in adverse circumstances. It was arranged that proper inquiry be made into the matter, and, if necessary, pecuniary assistance given to the widow. The R.W.M. then read a circular he had received from Bro. G. Kenning, calling attention to a "Cyclopedia of Freemasonry" he is about to publish. He said the well-known character of Bro. Kenning was sufficient guarantee that the work would be no commonplace concern, and he himself, with confidence, could recommend it to them. He called upon Bro. Adams, of the Freemason, to explain the nature of the work, which he did, the members expressing themselves satisfied, and some of them becoming subscribers to the work. This finished the business, and the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. CLAIR (No. 362) met in their hall, situated at 25, Robertson-street, on the 9th inst. A considerable number of brethren were present at the meeting. The R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Hogg, took the chair, the S.W. chair being filled by Bro. Adam Rutherford, the J.W. by Bro. Callen Galletlay. The lodge being opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, which finished the business on this degree. The lodge was then passed to that of F.C., when Bro. Michael Jones was instructed in this degree, Bro. Thallion, P.M., officiating. The lodge was then raised to the Sublime Degree, and Bro. Jones was duly made M.M., Bro. Wm. Hogg, R.W.M., officiating with his usual clearness. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOL (No. 413).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. Bro. J. Wallace, R.W.M., presided, and among others present were Bros. J. Louttit, D.M.; C. McKenzie, S.W.; D. Leeds, J.W.; J. B. McNair, R.W.M. 332; A. Bridges, P.M. 291; E. C. R. Mitchell, P.M. 332; J. McInnes, S.W. 408; J. Dick, Sec. 34, and others. The lodge was opened and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed, when Bro. John Kelly, who had made application to the Lodge Union, No. 332, to be admitted into the Order, received the First Degree on behalf of that lodge, Bro. McNair, R.W.M., No. 332, officiating. There was no more business of importance before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE GLASGOW (No. 441).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Lodge, 21, Struthers-street, on the 10th inst. Present—Bros. John Tullock, R.W.M.; Jas. Woods, S.W.; Geo. Muir, D.M. 103, acting J.W.; and a large number of brethren, including members of the lodge and visitors. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Applications for admittance into the Order were read from the following gentlemen, viz.:—Capt. George Coates, Alex. Caldwell, Robert Thomson, Gavin Hamilton, and William Thomson. These gentlemen being proposed and seconded in the usual way by two members of the lodge, were found clear by the ballot, and received the First Degree, Bro. David Ronald, S.W. 275, officiating with great ability and clearness of style. This was all the business before the lodge, when it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARYHILL (No. 510).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, Maryhill, on the 11th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. John Lockhart, presided; Bro. Wm. Carey, S.W.; Bro. Jas. Kay, acting J.W., together with a large number of well-qualified brethren, supported him in that position. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, when the lodge was passed to the F.C. Degree. Bros. John Gibson, Robert Pollock, George Scott, George Fleming, George Finister, William Rintoul, and Robert Adams, were found worthy to receive that degree, and were put in possession of it, Bro. Alex. Nevay, S.M., officiating. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER (No. 50).—The regular meeting of this chapter took place on the 12th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. In the absence of Comp. Miller, Z., Comp. J. Duthie, Z. 67, presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, but no other business of importance was before the chapter. After a little instructive conversation, it was closed in usual form.

GLASGOW.—ST. ROLLOX CHAPTER (No. 144).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, Gargad-road, on the 13th inst. Present—Comps. J. Annand, Z.; J. McLeish, H.; J. Booth, S.E.; Mills and Morrison, Soj.; J. Duthie, Z. 69; D. Gilchrist, P.Z. 73; and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The following brothers were made Royal Arch Masons:—James Fletcher and Sampson, J. S. Allan, Alex. McAllum, and Archd. Stevenson; Comp. Duthie officiating. There being no business of further importance, the chapter was closed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Monmouthshire took place at Monmouth on the 13th inst. The brethren assembled in the lodge room, 457, at High Noon, shortly after which the Grand Lodge was opened with due ceremony by the Right Worshipful Colonel Charles Lyne, Prov. G.M., supported by the Worshipful S. George Homfray, Esq., A.G.D.C. of England, D.P.G.M., and the Right Worshipful J. A. Lloyd Phillips, Prov. G.M. of South Wales (Western Division). There was a numerous assemblage, most of the leading brethren of the province being in their places.

Bro. Charles Rowe, P.G.S., read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly confirmed.

The Prov. G.T., who (being abroad) was represented by Bro. Watkins (1429), Prov. G.S. Wks., presented the annual balance-sheet. The accounts were subjected to a slight criticism. They showed that the province, financially speaking, was in a sound position, there being a considerable balance in the hands of the Treasurer. The accounts were unanimously passed.

Bro. Pickford, P.G. Treasurer, was re-elected unanimously, and thanked for his past valuable services for upwards of 23 years.

Bro. Preece was re-elected Prov. G. Tyler, and owing to the onerous and increasing duties devolving upon him, Bro. Henry Fletcher was elected Assistant P.G.T.

The following were appointed and invested by the Rt. Worshipful P.G.M. as officers to constitute the Provincial Grand Lodge for the ensuing year, in addition to the Prov. G.M. and D.P.G.M.:—

Charles H. Oliver.....	Prov. G.S.W.
R. J. Chambers.....	Prov. G.J.W.
W. Davies.....	Prov. G.S.D.
B. D. Thomas.....	Prov. G.J.D.
H. Feather.....	Prov. G. Purst.
W. B. Broad.....	Prov. G. Org.
J. W. Bebell.....	Prov. G.S. Wks.
Coates.....	Prov. G.D.C.
James Horner.....	Prov. G. As. D.C.
Charles Rowe.....	Prov. G. Sec.
George Gould.....	Prov. G. Reg.
W. Pickford.....	Prov. G.T.
J. W. Osman.....	Prov. G. Chaplain.

Fees of honour were duly paid by all the Prov. Grand Officers.

The returns from the different lodges of the province were handed in by the Prov. Grand Registrar.

The Rt. Worshipful P.G.M., addressing the brethren, said he was about to perform a most pleasing and highly gratifying duty, viz., that of presenting for the acceptance of their D.P.G.M., the insignia of office as the Assistant G.D.C. of England, for which high and distinguished position he had been selected from a great number of eligible brethren by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. (Applause.) In felicitous and most appropriate terms he complimented the D.P.G.M. on his exalted and distinguished position among Masons, and he likewise congratulated the Province of Monmouth on having so able and efficient a brother as Samuel George Homfray (renewed applause) raised to such an honourable and distinguished office. He, therefore, had the greatest pleasure in presenting and investing him with the insignia of his office, on behalf of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Monmouth. (Applause.)

Bro. Homfray suitably acknowledged the valuable gift. He thanked the brethren most sincerely for the high estimation in which he was held by them, and pledged himself to do in the future as he had done in the past—all he could to promote the interests of Freemasonry in general, and the Province of Monmouth in particular. Another opportunity would be afforded to him of addressing the brethren, when he hoped to be able to express to them more fully that which he now felt in his heart and was unable to express. (Applause.)

The business of the lodge having been disposed of, the brethren formed themselves into a procession, clothed in their regalia, and carrying the banners of the various lodges comprising the province. The band of the Royal Monmouth Militia headed the procession, which proceeded en route to St. Mary's Church.

On arriving at the entrance to St. Mary's Church, the brethren opened out to right and left, and thereby inverted the order of procession, allowing the Prov. G. Master to pass up the centre, preceded by his Standard and Sword Bearer, the Prov. Grand Officers and brethren closing in from the rear and so proceeding into church, the well-known hymn (385 Ancient and Modern selection), "Onward, Christian Soldiers," was being sung by the choir, under the direction of Bro. W. Broad, the newly appointed Prov. G. Organist. The brethren having taken their seats joined with the choir in rendering this remaining portion of the hymn, which produced a very pleasing effect. Bro. the Rev. J. W. Osman preached the sermon. The rev. gentleman selected his text from 1st Epistle to Corinthians, 14 c., 1 v.: "Follow after charity." He said: Dear Brethren,—Happily the principles of our ancient and honourable Craft suggest many subjects to which we may with profit direct our thoughts, especially on such an occasion as this, when we are assembled in the temple of the Great Architect of the Universe for prayer and praise in the name of His Son Jesus Christ, our Lord. From these principles I select brotherly love. This lifts up our devout contemplation to Him who is the perfect type of brotherly love; yea, manhood's true perfection. His religion is a religion of love. Its origin is love—love in the heart of God towards mankind. "Herein is love," writes the beloved disciple, "not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be a propitiation for our sins." And when Christ's redeeming work was done, and He had ascended up far beyond all heavens to the eternal throne, and the twelve men whom He had called and ordained were evangelising the world, we find that this great principle of brotherly love was everywhere and without ceasing taught by them, insisted upon, enforced! What an instance we have of this in the chapter immediately preceding the text; the text being the practical lesson derived from it, "Follow after charity." In the Church of Corinth at this time many of her members, both clerical and lay, possessed the extraordinary gifts of the Spirit—such as working of miracles, prophecy, discerning of spirits, different kinds of tongues, the interpretation of these different kinds of languages. The possession of these gifts had led certain who possessed them to overlook, to lose sight of charity, love, brotherly love. Hence, their unchristian conduct towards one another, their strife, their connivance at the sins of fornication and glorying in the transgression, as illustrating what they supposed their free liberty to indulge in it or not, just as they pleased. The apostle, using means to correct the disorder which had followed upon such views and conduct, calls their thoughts to the superiority of charity over the gifts they were so proud of, and which, through their folly and want of usefulness, had been the means of leading them into dangerous delusion and open sin. "Charity never faileth; but whether there be prophecies they shall fail; whether there be tongues they shall cease; whether there be knowledge it shall vanish away." How weighty are these words! The writer had the gift of prophecy and the power of working miracles. He "spoke with tongues more than they all." His knowledge of eternal things was far greater than any among them possessed; through him they had been put to the knowledge of truth. He was their father in Christ, yet to them his children he shows the inferiority of these gifts; he declares they will fail, will all vanish away; whilst charity, the greatest, the mightiest operation of God's spirit in a renewed soul; charity, which they had for ever in the paradise of God. Brethren, are not we in danger of losing sight of charity while we exalt, and very properly exalt, faith? Do we not too often leave charity in the background while we lay undue stress upon happy frames of mind and glowing Christian experience? Is it not the object of the enemy to keep our thoughts as much as possible from that which is the unfailing proof, the sure evidence of life of God in the soul, "Charity out of a pure heart, as the result of faith unfeigned? Faith may be wrong in its nature, or as to its object. It may be the faith which, as St. James tells us, the devils have faith, that is to say, which acknowledges the existence and attributes of Almighty God, which leads man to tremble at the thought of Him and of judgment to come;" but yet tends to no change of heart, no holiness of life. Or it may be wrong as to its object, faith, i.e., which leads men to rest for acceptance before God in Christ partly upon the merits of the Saviour, partly upon their own good works, and which is, therefore, inasmuch as it leads not to entire dependence upon the Redeemer's finished work, utterly opposed to the spirit and teaching of the New Testament. And then in reference to hope. Though called Christian it may be unscriptural hope—hope that the Most High will show mercy at the hour of death and at the judgment, though the whole life is wilfully, rebelliously spent in pursuit of the pleasures of sin. But it is not so easy for any evil influence to usurp the place of Christian charity. And in that respect also it is greater than faith and hope; Charity will never fail on earth.

Prophecies, tongues, and knowledge such as that which is spoken of in the 13th chapter were necessary during certain periods of the world's history, but as soon as the necessity for them ceased they passed away, but the bond of peace and of all virtues is as necessary now as at the beginning. And this holy bond will make all believers in one body until the Lord's coming again! Secondly—Charity will never fail in the family of the redeemed in Heaven. One step taken into the eternal world, and the accidents of our earthly state, the surroundings of our lot here, will have passed away with the earthly life. The prestige and local influence we lay so much stress upon now; wealth, territory, names, rank, titles, power, learning, will be useless then. Every circumstance of worldly advantage and temporal distinction, viewed in the light of the eternal world, will sink into insignificance and obscurity. The race for wealth, the plotting and scheming, the labour and toil, the reckless speculation, and fierce contention to attain the pleasant things this world can give, will have ceased. Ah! in how many cases leaving behind a ruined soul, an outcast from Heaven, wandering over the plains of immortality, an heir of utter misery and irretrievable woe. But when all are gone, and every one failed, "Charity faileth not." The faithful soul walking with God in peace and holiness, will lose faith in sight, the pilgrim's toil gone, the days of mourning ended, temptation's power no more, the warfare accomplished, rest come, the glories and joy of immortality in possession! Every characteristic of the time—state, save one, gone, charity, that remains! Hope, scriptural hope, real hope, which used to cheer in "life's long day," and which, most of all, lit up the dark valley, showing in the far distance the portals of the heavenly home beyond; hope, which kept up the fainting heart in duty's path, in times of conflict which spake a brighter day, and whispered glorious things of a coming future; hope, the sweet companion of life's pilgrimage, is lost in possession, but charity finds her rest, her home, her eternal home, where all is love, all is holiness unto the Lord for ever. Does it not follow, brethren, that it is the best spiritual possession which is in the power of us all to attain unto? You can, by abundant charity, glorify God far more than he does who, possessed of more brilliant gifts, like the Corinthians, falls short of this, the recognised expression of "the life of God in the soul of man," may possess the gifts which attract the notice and command the admiration of their fellow-men, but which, after all, are only of secondary import in the sight of the Most High. Great faith, unclouded hope, clear testimony of acceptance before God in Christ, may not fall to the lot of all, but every believer, however weak and humble, can, by abounding charity, adorn the doctrine of Him who calls us to glory and virtue, and thus show forth His praise for calling us out of darkness unto His marvellous light. It is charity which ennoble the meanest, enriches the poorest, exalts the most lowly, blesses the most uncleaned of all who call upon God. How earnestly the Redeemer presses the cultivation of charity on all who are called by His holy name. In the last hours of His earthly life, when His violent and cruel death was at hand, it lay very near His heart. With one glance sweeping through the long intervening ages, between His ascension into heaven and His coming again to judge mankind, He saw how little, comparatively, this blessed fruit of the Spirit would be sought after, realised. He saw the contention and strife that would separate one from another—many who profess love and service to Him; and hence He prayed that all who professed to follow Him, "May be one, as Thou," He saith, "O Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me." Then He charged all who believed on Him, and all who would hereafter believe on Him to the end of time, to love one another, saying, as His last commands before His voice was silent in death, "A new command I give unto you, that ye love one another." If, therefore, we desire the best gifts with that earnestness, intense earnestness, we should desire and seek to possess the gift of charity, abundant, ever increasing charity, which is most excellent of all! With what care and diligence should we every day and every hour of life, cultivate this distinguishing grace of God's Holy Spirit. In the 13th chapter, which, I doubt not, is familiar to you all, you will see how it operates in the daily walk and conduct. Frequently study that short sketch of its operation and its blessings. Make it the ground of self-examination and prayer. Are the workings of brotherly love seen in our intercourse with all men, more particularly with those whom we are bound by Masonic obligation to uphold in the practice of all that is good and true, and to defend, as far as in us lies, from unfriendly attack in daily life? In our spirit towards the brethren and towards all men? In our way of thinking and of speaking of them too? Are we thus under the influence of the chief grace of the Blessed Spirit? Has our conduct reference by means of this to the life which, after rising from the tomb of transgression, we hope to attain unto? Follow, "we beseech you, brethren, after charity;" her home is heaven, her lustre brightens ever step taken in the way leading to it, her path is peace, her sweetness, blessing, and joy gladden every pilgrim pressing forward in the shining pathway of the just. Yea, "follow after charity." She is the safe guide, the soul's friend, leading onward and upward to the general assembly and church of the firstborn, where "the builder and maker of all things" lives and reigns for evermore. Unto which, in His mercy, may He bring us all through Jesus Christ, His Son, our Lord. Amen.

A collection was then made on behalf of local and Masonic charities.

The benediction having been pronounced, the congregation began to disperse, as the organist played the concluding voluntary—"Grand Offertorie"—Lefebvre—Wely.

The procession was re-formed, and, headed by the band, proceeded by another route to the lodge-room, where the remaining business was quickly gone through. It consisted chiefly in passing the usual votes of thanks to brethren who had served in office during the past year.

The Right Worshipful Prov. G.M. closed the lodge in ample form, and

The Prov. G. Chaplain pronounced the benediction.

The majority of the brethren then proceeded to the banquetting hall, the spacious borough court having been lent and decorated for the occasion. Bro. Jno. Thomas, the respected proprietor of the King's Head Hotel, was entrusted with the catering, and he prepared a sumptuous repast, not merely in an unexceptionable, but highly creditable manner.

Right Worshipful Colonel Lyne, Prov. Grand Master, presided, and was supported right and left by S. George Homfray, A.G.D.C. and D.P.G.M., Mon.; J. A. Lloyd Phillips, Provincial Grand Master South Wales (Western Division); Shadwell H. Clerke, P.M. 349, and P.P.S.G. Warden, Devon; Alfred T. Perkins, W.M. 446, Wells, Somerset; D. G. "W.M.'s of other lodges, and Provincial Grand Officers."

"The Lodges of the Province."

"The Masonic Charities."

"To all poor and distressed Masons, &c."

The band of the Royal Monmouth Militia performed a choice programme of music at intervals throughout the evening, and the proceedings passed off with the greatest harmony.

Obituary.

BRO. W. H. GRESHAM.

An emergency meeting of the Sandridge Marine Lodge, E.C., was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Sandridge, Victoria, Australia, on Monday, 29th ult., when a solemn mortuary service was held, in memory of the late Bro. William Hutcheson Gresham, one of the founders and members of the lodge. The handsome hall belonging to the lodge had a very sombre appearance, in consequence of the furniture and the brethren's regalia and jewels being draped in crape. There were about eighty brethren present, including many visitors of Masonic note. After the W.M., Bro. M. Goldstein, had explained the reason of holding an emergency meeting, he delivered an appropriate address, and the following funeral service was commenced by one of the members of the lodge choir singing "Rest in the Lord," after which a Masonic Litany was read, with the choir chanting the responses. The Rev. Bro. F. C. Platts, who officiated as Chaplain, offered up an earnest prayer for those nearest and dearest to the late departed brother. Bro. Edward Clark, P.M. and W.M. elect, then gave an oration in a feeling and most impressive manner, several passages of which we quote, and regret that want of space precludes us from publishing it in its entirety:—"The sad, sudden, and shocking disappearance from our midst of our lamented brother Gresham, who was one of the first members of this lodge, is an event which should awaken in the hearts and minds of every true Mason sorrow and sympathy of the most genuine kind. Sorrow for the loss we, in common with the rest of the fraternity have, thus sustained, and sympathy with those more immediately connected with our late brother by ties of kindred and intimate friendship, for whenever the King of Terror does strike, whether the young or old, the depths of every heart are for the time being stirred to the utmost, and those emotions which the Great Creator has implanted within us spring into fullest and freest action. The sigh, the tear, cannot be withheld. Sad, indeed! Think of the circumstances surrounding it. Here was our unfortunate brother in the full vigour of manhood, in the eager pursuit of his lawful avocation, actuated by the laudable desire to repair his shattered fortunes, wishful by the exercise of persevering energy to once more raise himself and his family back to the social position they formerly held, and pressing on like a brave man, seemingly blind to impending danger, trusting himself and his two equally unfortunate companions in a light skiff, on a dark and stormy morning, with strong and variable winds about him, and heavy, restless, uncertain waters below him. Starting with hope and enterprise, battling with surrounding difficulties, and thinking, no doubt, to surmount them all and come back successful and victorious, until alas! in a fatal moment, unseen by helpful neighbours or friends, away from any possibility of rescue, the tiny mast and sail break from the thwarts and cords which held them, and the unhappy occupants of the all too frail bark are hopelessly engulfed in the waters of the bay, never apparently again to be seen by mortal eye till the resurrection morn. Sad, sad indeed! What thoughts of home, of wife, of children of friends, of books, ambitions, of the chequered scenes of former life, and a thousand and one various ideas, may have flitted through his mind in the interval between the first shock and the final loss of mortal consciousness. Let us hope that when the last fatal struggle was over he was permitted by the Great Giver of Life to enter into that inheritance which is incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away, and which will eternally compensate him for all mere earthly loss. Sad, sad indeed! Of him and his companions we may exclaim with Miranda—

'Poor souls! they perish'd.

Had I been any god of power, I would Have sunk the sea within the earth, or e'er

It should the frail boat so have swallow'd, and

The fraughting souls within her.'

What is death?—that unsparing tyrant, that comes 'now with measured steps and slow,' and now with lightning-like velocity; who, whether slow or swift, never misses his aim, but with unerring precision strikes down his victim, and bears away from earthly gaze the best, the bravest, the most beautiful, equally with the worst, the vilest, and the most craven. What is death? Primarily the antithesis of life. It is that which is in constant antagonism to growth, progress, development; which seems to blast all hope, which dashes the most brilliant prospects to shivers, and seems to close all avenues to what is brighter and better. We look back and seem to hear the never ceasing tramp of endless troops of men coming and going, living and struggling, loving and hating, hoping and rejoicing, and then drooping and dying. The place that once knew them now knows them no more, the last atom of the earthly forms in which once dwelt their souls faded out of sight and mingled in one common ruin with the very dust and ashes of the earth. Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death has fed upon them, and the grave is an habitation to every one of them. Certain it is that the doing what is good, and right, and just, and true can never fill us with regrets, and if there be any period of our career when the mind and heart should be freed from the burden of regret, it should be at that peculiar moment when we are called upon to 'shuffle off this mortal coil.' The wish of every good man and every true Mason doubtless is, 'Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his.' How is this to be brought about? Let each one ask the question to himself, ponder on it, and look to the G. A. O. T. U. to help him to find the true answer. Thus have we endeavoured to extract comfort and consolation from this melancholy event which has brought us here together, and aided by the power of the great and Everlasting Spirit, whose all-seeing eye beholds us, and who is ever near us; to lift our contemplation from the sombre grave to the light, and life, and liberty beyond, and, imitating afar off the glorious luminary that enlightens the world from east to west, from north to south, to extract from death and corruption new life and energy, and to surround ourselves with a brighter, a purer, and a more refined moral atmosphere. And now farewell! a long farewell to thee, our brother. May we all be permitted to meet thee at the last in the Grand Lodge above, where the world's G.A. lives and reigns for ever. Farewell! farewell!"

At the conclusion of the oration the funeral service, according to ancient custom, was proceeded with—the choir giving several selections of appropriate music. The Chaplain, Bro. F. C. Platts, then gave a short address and offered another prayer. After a few remarks from the W.M. the solemn and impressive ceremony terminated.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—No family should be without these Pills when hot and sultry weather predisposes to fevers of all kinds, more especially remittent typhus, typhoid, or, as the last is now newly named, enteric fever. Their long tried efficacy in removing indigestion, stimulating the bowels and purifying the blood, has secured for them imperishable praise throughout the globe. Whatever the disease, a few doses will remove the more urgent symptoms, and thereafter control all disordered action, rouse the torpid liver, empty the engorged spleen, cleanse the obstructed kidneys, assimilate the food, improve the blood, and thereby confer on the brain, and every function, healthful vigour, natural activity, and wholesome regularity. In trying seasons this medicine will save many lives.—ADVT.

SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN A "FREEMASON."

At page 359, our highly esteemed Bro. Hughan says that he does not see any reason to "doubt the fact" that Wren was adopted in 1691, but so far as we have yet seen, the statement has not risen to the dignity or position of a "fact." So soon as it does so then there will be no sensible reason for doubt.

I see Bro. Hughan states that "There does not, however, appear to be any evidence of Sir C. Wren's connection with the Lodge of Antiquity prior to 1720." May I ask why he says "prior to 1720?" Is there proof that Wren was a member of the Lodge of Antiquity in 1720? I cannot at present remember what Bro. Hughan may be referring to, but perhaps he will kindly explain.

So far as the mere adoption or non-adoption of Wren in 1691 is concerned, it matters little in connection with the history of Freemasonry, as he would only be one of many; but admitting that 1691 is the real date of his adoption, what about the grand Masonic career given to him by Preston, and others long before then?

MASONIC HALFPENNY TOKEN.

The various letters which have appeared on the subject of this token have induced a brother to send two more of these coins to me for comparison with the first I described. As far as the coin itself is concerned, it is evident they are all from the same die. The words on the rims of the two fresh ones are alike; but differ from the first. One has been very clearly stamped in the centre of the rim, the words being, "Masonic token J. S. Schley fecit 1794;" in the other the letters have not been stamped so carefully, and consequently the name might easily be read "Schichley." They are both in very good preservation, the compasses on the arms being quite distinct on each; and there can be no doubt that the article on the reverse, which we have had difficulty in describing, is a Bible. Unquestionably the supporters to the arms are beavers, not leopards as I conjectured, and I thank Bro. T. F. for the correction.

I hope to refer to the arms on this coin on a future occasion; they differ from those of the Masons' Company, as I have already pointed out, and also from the arms of the Craft, as given in Mackey's Lexicon of Freemasonry (Griffiths and Co., London); but possibly some brother who is better informed in heraldry will trace the various changes in the arms of Masonry in this country and give our readers the benefit of his researches.

As pointed out by Bro. Hughan in the Freemason of the 14th August, we have now clearly proved that there have been three different issues of this token; the obverse and reverse being the same in each instance, the distinction being in the inscription on the rim. The question now is, have there been any more issues of it? E. S.

PUNJAB MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

A general meeting of the members of the Institution was held in Freemasons' Hall, Lahore, on Tuesday, the 13th April, 1875. Present—R.W. Bros. Major M. Ramsay, President; Major G. N. Money, Major A. Stewart, W. E. Ball, Major W. H. Mackesy, George Davies, C. W. Calthrop, M.D.; Henry T. Tanner, John Goldney, C. H. Chetham, Captain Lewis, James Wilkinson, W. Walter Adlard, Hon. Sec., and a large number of brethren.

The Honorary Secretary read the minutes of the meeting of the Life Governors, showing the state of the funds on the 6th April, which after examination was accepted by the general meeting as correct.

Right Worshipful Bro. M. Ramsay then informed the meeting that with much regret he had now to inform the brethren that Worshipful Bro. Adlard, the Honorary Secretary, had placed his resignation before the meeting. He made this intimation with extreme regret, but as Worshipful Bro. Adlard adhered to his desire to resign they had no option but to accept it. He took advantage however of this opportunity to express his sense of the zeal and untiring energy displayed by Worshipful Bro. Adlard as Honorary Secretary, extending over a period of more than three years, during which time he had lost no opportunity of promoting the interests of the Institution, and the result of his labours was most satisfactory. When the Institution was formed it had Rs. 4000 only in hand, and now it had an actual invested fund of Rs. 14,800, with an increasing subscription list. Surely such a result was most praiseworthy; and although the money had been subscribed by the Masons of the district, yet, all must allow that without untiring zeal and an earnest spirit on the part of the Secretary, in bringing the claims of the Institution to notice, these splendid results could never have been attained. He felt that they should express their sense of the services rendered by the Honorary Secretary, during these three past years, in a form that will remain amongst them; he proposed, therefore, that the sum of Rs. 500 be invested in Government paper, and he put aside as a scholarship to be denominated the "Adlard Scholarship," and to be assigned in such manner as may be determined upon hereinafter.

Worshipful Bro. A. Stewart seconded the proposition with great pleasure. All knew how thoroughly he was one in spirit with the Punjab Masonic Institution. The services of Worshipful Bro. W. Adlard were too patent to all to need comment, and after what had been said by the Right Worshipful District Grand Master, he felt nothing more than a cordial approval of the proposal was needed from him.

Worshipful Bro. W. Adlard then addressed the meeting to the following effect:—

"Right Worshipful Sirs and Brethren,—I cannot express to you how grateful I am for the kind things you have said of me. When you tell me my efforts have met with your approval, when you recognize that I have to the utmost of my power served the Institution faithfully and with all my heart, you pay me the highest compliment I ever coveted. It has been a labour of love. My whole heart has been in my work, and in resigning the Secretaryship, I feel as if I was putting away from me a part, I was going to say a vital part, of myself. It is a noble mission to labour in the cause of education. I cannot realize any more gratifying position than that of being the servant of an Institution like this, providing as it does the means of earning a livelihood in this world. Indeed more, for we place such an education within the reach of our adopted sons, that they may, if they strive, win a foremost place in the race of life. Without such an institution what would be the fate of the children of our indigent or deceased brethren? Right Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, think of it for a moment, we have colleges and high standard schools for natives, but for the European simply no provision whatever. If it is intended therefore, that our boys are to hold their own in the battle of life, it is absolutely essential that they should be educated, and it is to provide this means of competing with the natives of the country, to meet the pressing want of the age, that this institution has been formed; and it has been to attain this end that I have laboured during the past three years. It has been earnest service, and I am more than delighted to find that it has been approved service. I find I now need rest, I must, therefore, make over my duties to some one else; but by and by, when our newly elected brother finds himself in my present position, I need not say how delighted I shall be if you will permit me then to resume my old position as your Secretary. And now, R. W. Sir and Brethren, you have been pleased to recognize my services in a way most pleasing and congenial to myself, but will you allow me to add one word to it. I am now a Vice-President, will you allow me to add my Rs. 500 to the Rs. 500 you have granted, and make it Rs. 1000, to be used in the way already proposed? Only one word more. Do not I beg of you suppose that I am severing my connection with the Institution, but rather consider me as an invalid in hospital, husbanding strength for future efforts in support of this monument of Masonic love in the Punjab."

Before the R.W.D.G.M. had time to put the proposition of Worshipful Bro. Adlard to the vote it was carried by acclamation.

The R.W.D.G.M. then proposed Worshipful Bro. George Davies, D.G.S., as Honorary Secretary to the Institution, which, being duly seconded by Worshipful Bro. W. E. Ball, was carried unanimously.

There being no more business before the meeting it was declared closed at 7 pm.

ROMAN CATHOLICS AND FREEMASONRY IN INDIA.

On this subject the "Englishman" says:—

Some sensation has been caused during the week by a harmless onslaught by Father Lafont on the ancient Craft of Freemasonry. The influence of Freemasonry, at least in England, has always been so entirely social in its nature, the conduct of the Craft is so non-aggressive, and it has in modern times so completely got rid of the odium that might once have attached to it as a secret Society, that it is difficult to understand the motive which could have dictated such an attack so late in the day. It may have been, that, the elevation of the Prince of Wales to the Headship of the Order in England has conferred on Masonry a prestige intolerable to the Jesuits; or it may have been, that the offence was the exclusion of the Head of the Roman Catholic Church from the lodge, of which, under a different name (sic dicunt), he was once a member. At any rate, a large multitude, impelled in most instances, no doubt, by that curiosity which the supposed mysterious character of Freemasonry excites in the vulgar, and naturally expecting that a man who had undertaken to prove its impiety would have something more than the outside world knew to tell of its esoteric character, repaired to St. Thomas's to hear the Rev. Father's Philippic. Never were expectant hearers more disappointed. Instead of having any secrets to impart to them, Father Lafont candidly confessed, that he knew nothing more of the Craft than that it inculcated morality on independent grounds. His address is a unique specimen of illogical and uncalled for ecclesiastical literature. Doubtless the brotherhood, whose eight million members, according to Father Lafont, are distributed over our planet, and almost all of whom, he tells us, are blue, will be made considerably bluer by the attack of this clerical Don Quixote. They will feel, that what the combined strength of the Popes could not achieve in past centuries, a simple and very foolish discourse, delivered in a Calcutta church, is certain to accomplish immediately. The result, so desirable for the future progress of mankind, will be the speedy decay of the Craft, and the abandonment of lodges for the bosom of the Mother Church.

McNEIL GREIG'S PATENT SANITARY TRAPS.—Amongst the many inventions of late years for the improvement of sanitary matters in connection with buildings we may mention the trap patented by Bro. Greig, which for excellence of construction and completeness of action stands unrivalled. By its appliance to closets and sinks all noxious smells are at once stayed, and so typhoid fever and other deadly diseases are eradicated. Another important item in connection with this trap is its simplicity of construction, combined with its cheapness, which brings it within the reach of every household. No mansion is to be considered perfect without this sanitary arrangement.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BENGAL.

A Quarterly Communication of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal was held at Freemasons' Hall, 55, Bentinck-street, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 24th of June, 1875. Present: W. Bros. John B. Roberts, Past Dep. D.G.M., as District Grand Master; F. Jennings, Past Dep. D.G.M., as Dep. District Grand Master; W. B. Mactavish, D.S.G.W.; J. L. Taylor, P.D.S.G.W., as D.J.G.W.; W. H. Fitze, Offg. D.G. Treas.; W. C. Bonnerjee, D.G. Regr.; D. J. Zemin, Past D.G. Regr.; H. H. Locke, Past Dep. D.G.M., as D.G. Sec.; W. Girdling, Past D.G. Dir. of Cer., as D.S.G. Deacon; A. LeFranc, D.J.G. Deacon; C. H. Wilson, Past D.G. Dencon; J. Blackburn, Past D.G. Supdt. of Works; Jas. Watson, D.G. Dir. of Cer.; P. C. Dutt, D.G. Assist. Dir. of Cer.; J. H. Turner, Past D.G. Sword Bearer, as D.G. Sword Bearer; C. H. Compton, Past D.G. Organist, as D.G. Organist; W. H. T. Ayres, D.G. Pursuivant; Bros. G. Kemp, of Lodge 756, D.G. Master's Banner Bearer; C. F. Egerton Allen, Bar-at-law; H. M. Rustomjee, J. L. Anderson, Lieut. B. D. Hayes, Robt. Monk, G. Alexander, and D. G. Tyler, D.G. Stewards.

There were also present representatives from Lodges Star in the East, No. 67; Industry and Perseverance, No. 109; True Friendship, No. 218; Humility and Fortitude, No. 229; Mariue, No. 232; Anchor and Hope, No. 234; Courage with Humanity, No. 392; Harmony, No. 438; St. John, No. 486; Excelsior, No. 825; Star of Orissa, No. 1106; Temperance and Benevolence, No. 1160; Sandeman, No. 1374; and Pioneer, 1490.

The visitors were Bros. J. W. Browne, P.M. 218; G. H. Matlin, 229; G. Kemp, 756; J. Giles, 1374; H. J. Walker, 1374; and F. Fletcher, 1490.

District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 6.45 p.m. The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 20th March, 1875, and of a Special Communication held on the 15th April, 1875, having been printed and circulated, were, on the motion of W. Bro. W. B. Mactavish, D.S.G.W., and P.M. 109, seconded by W. Bro. P. C. Dutt, W.M. 234, and D.G. Assist. Dir. of Cer., taken as read, and W. Bro. P. C. Dutt further moved that they be confirmed. The motion was seconded by W. Bro. W. H. Fitze, P.M. 218, and Acting D.G. Treas., and on being put to the vote was carried.

The District Grand Master in the Chair addressed the District Grand Lodge as follows:—

I think it right to address a few words to you—in fact you will, I have no doubt, fully expect that I should do so—on the subject of the intended visit of His Royal Highness our Most Worshipful Grand Master.

The interest which this visit of our beloved Queen's son, the Prince of Wales, has awakened among all classes of Her Majesty's subjects in this land, must undoubtedly be stronger and warmer among those to whom His Royal Highness stands in the double relation in which he does to all who bear the honourable name of Freemasons.

"I speaking for myself, feel more than a glow of the old ardour for Masonic work—nay, I mean not the old, but the young, bright ardour of nearly three years decades gone, now dimmed, perhaps, but as yet unbroken—and altogether confident am I that the members of the Craft in Bengal (to speak now only of the Province with which I am more immediately connected) will desire, perhaps will even demand, that so important and so interesting a landmark in the history of Masonry in India, as the actual presence among us of our Queen's son, the Grand Master of our Order, should not pass by unheeded or unhonoured.

I hasten, therefore, to assure the Craft in Bengal, how completely alive I am to the great responsibility devolving upon me, and upon District Grand Lodge, in respect to meeting what are certain to be the views and wishes of the brethren generally upon this important matter; and as a first step towards considering with you the ways and means by which these may best be accomplished, I will proceed to sketch those broad outlines of the question as they have presented themselves to me.

It appears then to me, in the first place, that at every town or station at which His Royal Highness may stop, even for a short time, the lodge, if there be a lodge there—whether a large one or a small one, will desire to come forth, as a lodge of Benevolence should, and meet their Grand Master with the homage due to him; and I am disposed to think that the Grand Master, beset though he is sure to be with many scores of public bodies and distinguished individuals desiring to approach him, will yet, nevertheless, as far as it may be possible to him, accord the opportunity for every lodge thus lying in the path of his tour, to present itself before him for the expression of those sentiments which so rare and gratifying an occasion must infallibly call forth.

[The report of the proceedings will be continued next week.]

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, and was one of the most numerous attended ever witnessed. Although the board-room in which the lodge is held is very large and lofty, owing to the great number of brethren present it soon became insufferably hot. The three chairs were occupied by their appointed holders, Bros. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., president; Joshua Nuan, P.G.S.B., S.V.P.; and James Brett, P.G.P., J.V.P. Among the other brethren present were Bros. E. P. Albert, A.G.P.; H. Bartlett, Joseph Smith, Wm. Smith, C.E.; W. T. Howe, P.M. 1445; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; S. Rawson, Dist. G.M. China; James Mason, P.G.S.B.; H. W. Hemsworth, W. Clifton, Crick, James Wright, G.P.; R. Scott, Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; Æ. J. McIntyre, G.R.; H. Maudesley, P.G.S.D.; R. J. Spiers, P.G.S.B.; James Ebenezer Saunders, P.G.D.;—Ward, T. H. Waterworth, E. Wits, J. Bingemann, J. M. Stedwell, J. A. L. Barnard, L. Keays, H. T. Wood, Francis Buckland, Charles Horsley, C. Driver, J. Kennett, James Willing, jun., J. Austin, F. Binckes, H. Smith, W. Ashworth, J. Oak, D. Betts, H. I. Gardner, C. T. Dorey, C. Wise, M. S. Larham, M. L. Alexander, J. Gingle, W. R. Marsh, R. Mansfield, G. A. Rooks, W. Pennedather, J. Jones, J. J. West, W. V. Bedolfe, M. L. Hayward, H. Massey, and Robert Ayton.

Nine petitioners were relieved by the board with £103; 2 were recommended to the G.M. for £60; and 3 to Grand Lodge for £300, making altogether £463. Two cases were deferred, and the lodge was closed.

Masonic Tidings.

Bro. William Worrell, secretary of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum, has been robbed while bathing at Brill's Baths, Brighton. His watch and chain, his return ticket to London, and some money were taken from his pocket, his loss altogether amounting to £25. Other robberies at the baths have been reported.

Sir Frederick Gooch's Coralie won the Southampton Yacht Club cutter match on Saturday last, although she lost her topmast early in the race; the Bloodhound, belonging to the Marquis of Ailsa, taking second.

The preparations for the reception of the Prince of Wales in India continue on a grand scale. The Bombay Municipality has requested the Government to permit it to spend fifty thousand rupees towards the suitable reception of his Royal Highness. Lord Northbrook will meet the Prince at Bombay, and accompany him to Calcutta, via Madras and Ceylon. Already Colonel Earle, military secretary to the Viceroy, is in Calcutta superintending the preparations for the reception of the Prince. The investiture of his Royal Highness with the Grand Cross of the Star of India is fixed for the last day of the year.

Our Glasgow correspondent telegraphs that Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold intends honouring Bro. Colonel Campbell with a visit to Blythwood House, near Glasgow, on 21st September. Preparations are about to be made for the Royal visit at the Mansion House. The Prince will probably remain at Blythwood for several days. His Royal Highness has long been intimately acquainted with Bro. Campbell's younger brother, Mr. Walter Campbell, while studying at Christ Church College, Oxford.

M. Desanges has had the honour of submitting to her Majesty a portrait of the Prince of Wales, painted by him for the Grand Lodge of Freemasons.

The Ecuador authorities profess to expect an attack at Guayaquil by an armed force organised in Peru. It is asserted that Urbini, the leader of the movement, has obtained the funds for the expedition from the Masonic brethren. This is, however, believed by some parties to be merely a ruse of Garcia Mouno to send a strong force here until after his reinstatement by the Senate.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.—The Royal Infirmary for the Diseases of Women and Children, situated in the Waterloo Road, of which the Prince of Wales is patron, and which in 1810 was founded by his late grandfather, the Duke of Kent, is built on a plot of land the property of the Duchy of Cornwall. This was up to a short time ago held by the Council of the Institution on a 35 years' lease at a ground rent of £40 per annum from the original lessee. Considerable inconvenience having arisen, the committee purchased the lease for a sum of £800, and then communicated with his Royal Highness, who, on the representation of that body, generously sold them the freehold for £1000 (being only about a third of its value). The hospital authorities are now engaged in enlarging the hospital, at a cost of £3000, and propose to double the bed accommodation of the institution.

Bro. ex-President Andrew Johnson was buried with "Masonic honours" and amidst popular demonstrations of respect and sympathy at Greenville, East Tennessee, on the 3rd inst. In pursuance of a wish expressed by him some time back the body was wrapped in the national flag, and a copy of the United States Constitution was placed between his hands. In obedience to an executive order issued from Washington and signed by President Grant all the public offices were dressed in mourning for several days before the funeral, and the War and Navy Departments paid "suitable honours on the occasion to the memory of the illustrious dead."

The annual fête of the Foresters took place on Tuesday at the Crystal Palace, and was as successful as beautiful weather, a full programme of amusements, and large crowds of visitors could make it. Nearly fifty-four thousand persons were present.

The Earl of Carnarvon, accompanied by the Countess of Portsmouth, has arrived at Highclere Castle, near Newbury, from Cowes.

Bro. Ward Hunt and some of his colleagues at the Admiralty have been to Portsmouth, but not on an official visit. The Admiralty yacht Enchantress is to be sent to Devonport to be repaired for the reception of the Duke of Connaught, who is about to proceed to Gibraltar.

FOUNDERS.—Is there such a thing known in Freemasonry as a founder or founders of a lodge?—ENQUIRER. [There is no provision for any such person or persons in the Book of Constitutions. But Masonic custom, which is a law to our lodges in many things, permits and encourages the reservation of a name or names in our lodge records as the founder or the founders of the lodge. The founders, properly speaking, are the names recited in the warrant.]

ERRATA.—"Minutes and their confirmation" (p. 362 of col. 3), lines 6 and 7, for "a true qualification or description of the proper degree" read—"a term qualifying or descriptive of the proper day." Line 31, for "cause of" read "course as."

The following stand over:—

"An absent W.M.," Bro. George Burgess, The P.G.S., Hants, J. Smith.

IRISH MASONIC ORPHAN BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have to thank Bro. J. H. Neilson for the seventh annual report of this valuable little institution, which we have read with all interest. We are glad to note, as in its kindred and sister charity, a prosperous balance sheet. The whole receipts for the year amounted to £2,322 4s. 5d., which is made up in the following manner:—Balance from last account, £367 6s. 5d.; donations, £556 os. od.; annual subscriptions from brethren, £600 10s. 6d.; and from lodges, £101 1s. od.; collections, £4 19s. 6d.; bequest from Lord Kingston, £500 os. od.; dividends on stock, £191 18s. od.; in all £2,322 4s. 5d. The expenditure is as follows:—Maintenance, education, and clothing of pupils, £810 os. od.; outfits and extra clothing, £10 13s. 9d.; expenses, £109 os. 5d.; invested, £994 10s. od.; balance in bank, £396 16s. 6d. The institution has £7,787 12s. 1d. of invested capital. There are now twenty-one elected orphans, all under the care of Bro. the Rev. S. S. Skeen, at Adelaide Hall, Merrien, and one, George Macartney, who, for special reasons, is educated and taken care of elsewhere. The boys have passed an examination before some very able examiners, the Rev. Professor Haughton, F.T.C.D.; Rev. S. S. Gray, F.T.C.D.; Hugh Holmes, George V. Hart, and the Rev. B. Gibson, who have all reported most favourably of the education which the boys have been receiving, and of their attainments in the several branches of study in which they were examined. The committee are strongly of opinion, in which we heartily concur, that despite this satisfactory state of things financially, such a position does not after all in any way represent the amount which might be expected would have been subscribed by the Order in Ireland, prosperous as it is, to carry on this good work. Like the committee, however, we trust "that in time," we hope also like them, "not far distant," this posture of affairs may be remedied, and that all Irish Freemasons will unite in one effort to render assistance to the orphans of their deceased brethren, and make the Irish Masonic Orphan Boys' School a credit to the Order. We also have the same pleasant anticipation, and feel sure that future enlarged usefulness and increased means of doing good await the managers of this needful and excellent institution. We thank Bro. Neilson for calling our attention to the subject.

SERMONS AGAINST FREEMASONRY.

By a statement published in another column it will be seen that, not content with denouncing and excommunicating Freemasons, some foolish persons are preaching against Freemasonry. We have heard of this recently in America, and even in Great Britain, though we cannot fancy a greater waste of a preacher's time, and a more deplorable infliction on a suffering congregation. Still, such is the energy of fanaticism when once it is roused, that it will lose no opportunity of imparting its own burning ideas and suggestions to others. We do not deny that preachers may, in the exercise of the liberty of the pulpit and of the ministry, dilate upon such a subject—we concede fully the right abstractedly; practically, the exercise of it, as an act either of duty or wisdom, is more than doubtful. A true preacher has many more important matters to address his congregation upon, and we are inclined to think that he must be either a very weak or a very perverse person who wastes his golden season of pulpit ministration by denouncing our harmless, loyal, and religious order. It seems that a Father Lafont, at Calcutta, has been drawing large congregations by denouncing the Freemasons. But as he could not tell his audience anything new, it did not, to use a slang phrase of the day, "rub in well." Our readers will be glad to know, on the authority of the editor of the "Masonic Herald" of Calcutta, that the kind father's attempt was, in fact, a "fiasco." This is what he says:—"Father E. Lafont, of Calcutta, desirous of gaining popularity among his flock, has thought proper to attack Freemasonry, and so much had he to say about it, that he had set aside three Sundays to prove that Freemasonry is 'eminently un-Christian and impious.' The preacher candidly acknowledged at the commencement of his tirade that he knew something of Freemasonry, but not everything, and the little that he knew he picked up from a spurious ritual. Father Lafont has evidently received his inspiration from 'The Irish Ecclesiastical Record' for April, published under the sanction of Cardinal Cullen, which contains an attack on Freemasonry; for he quotes the very words of the 'Irish Record,' that there are no less than eight millions of Freemasons in the world, of which number only five hundred thousand are active members; while the truth is that there are about one million of active members, and about as many more unaffiliated. Father Lafont has certainly failed. It was too comprehensive for him to have grappled with. Apart from a legal or moral view of the question, logically and historically, the failure has been signal. This we expected at the beginning when we read his first sermon—Ex pede Herculem—and the end has verified that expectation. Better if he had not entered the arena than to have entered it to expose his weakness rather than exhibit his strength; since he has proved no point and effected no purpose. His 'labour of love' has indeed been 'love's labour lost.' Let us all rejoice. If these reverend assailants of Freemasonry want to preach against our Order let them borrow the old sermon in the British Museum, "Freemasonry, the Way to Hell," as we are quite sure they can say nothing new or better, and the fanaticism of the past may, perhaps, be somewhat more reasoning, it cannot be less logical or offensive, than the blatant vulgarity of the intolerant of various so-called religious bodies in respect of Freemasonry at the present hour. But such attacks do Freemasonry no harm; they only recoil on its maligners.

"THE UNION REVIEW."

The "Union Review" is an Anglican Ritualistic Magazine, has reached its 73rd number, and is published by John H. Batty, 2, Bedford-street, Strand, also the publisher of the "Church Herald," from which we quoted last week. This review contains in its August number an article on Freemasonry, like its contemporary the "Church Herald," highly incriminative and utterly unjust. The article professes to review a work originally published in Germany, anonymously it is said, in 1873, but now translated into English, and issued by Burns, Oates, and Co., Roman Catholic booksellers, this year. The original work was termed "The Secret Warfare of Freemasonry against Church and State," and as it was unknown to us previously, we shall, when we have duly perused it, take the liberty of calling our readers' attention to it again. The principal charges brought by the writer in the "Union Review" against Freemasonry are as follows, serious enough if seriously made. 1st. That its secrecy and alleged secret obligations are proofs of concealed evil of some kind, and the writer actually brings the well known Louis Blanc to strengthen his own argument. Happy and holy alliance! One would have thought, prima facie, that the writer had heard of "unnatural coalitions," but no, the good man is most impressive with his new and strange ally. It would be amusing, were it not saddening to the thoughtful mind, to observe how greedily Ultramontane and ritualistic writers, to-day, universally catch at any "straws" to prop up a desperate cause, and make use of allies of whom Cardinal Wiseman would have been ashamed, and whom no true son of the Church of England would own. We say nothing against Bro. Louis Blanc, as his views are his own, but it is too ridiculous for a ritualistic controversialist to quote him on a subject of which, to speak frankly, he knows but very little. Bro. Caubet has already shewn that his views of Freemasonry are altogether erroneous and unreliable. Bro. Louis Blanc will, however, be astonished, we feel sure, to find himself in such peculiar company. The second charge is indifference to Christian Truth, which charge is founded on Anderson's Constitutions, and on the speeches of one or two German brethren, H. C. F. Krause and Dr. Herz. The argument is absolutely beneath notice, just as the statement hardly deserves a moment's consideration. It is too ridiculous. The third charge is that of discrediting the principles of Christianity by the careful avoidance of all Christian symbols. This charge is supported by the fervid oration of a Hebrew brother at Frankfort-on-the-Maine. But we in England know that a class of writers, with Oliver at their head, has always existed, and always will exist, which finds Christian teaching in many symbols, and Christian doctrines in many portions of our oral ritual. The two views of the Universal School and the Christian School of Freemasonry are both clearly within its comprehensive and tolerant limits, and they will long so remain, as we believe that there is room for both, and both may find much to uphold their dogmata in the ancient symbolism and teaching of Freemasonry, as preserved in Anglo Saxon lodges everywhere. A fourth charge is the open opposition to the Christian doctrine of the Trinity by our use of the formulary, "In the Name of the Great Architect of the Universe." This charge is based on a work professedly by "Maryale Reghelin de Schio," and on a letter said to have been written in 1816 by Prince Frederick of Orange. This letter we have never seen, and if it is genuine has nothing to do with Craft Masonry. It relates to the Rose Croix Grade and teaching alone. We need only add that such a charge is too puerile and illogical to require the trouble of confutation. The fifth charge is that of the "blankest infidelity," because, forsooth, a German writer of the well-known name of Eckert has put forward some peculiar Eckertian views, but which are not, never were, and never will be Masonic. The sixth charge is opposition to the Church generally, made out by the speech of a Bro. Bello, very fit name for a combatant in this intereojne controversy, by an unwise remark of "Edgar Quinet," by an oration of our very worthy brother the Lord Mayor, as well as by an after dinner address delivered by our worthy Bro. J. C. Parkinson. We believe that the writer has completely misunderstood the purport of both these speeches, which merely went to prove that the present claim of the Roman Catholic Church to condemn Freemasonry everywhere is alike irrational and untenable, and that the principles of ultramontaniam were—who can deny it?—opposed alike to liberty and to peace, to the rights of conscience, and the well being of this or any other land. The Lord Mayor is we know a loyal member of the Church of England, but we are not aware of Bro. Parkinson's religious opinions. Sure we are that two more tolerant brethren do not exist anywhere. The writer goes on to say that the constitution of Freemasonry is democratic and its operations revolutionary. These two last charges are entirely founded on foreign periodicals, and on an oration of a Bro. Peigne. Such is the attack. With us in England it has after all only a partial concern, as it is mainly foreign Freemasonry which is thus inveighed against. These accusations of irreligion and revolution can only raise a smile in the Anglo-Saxon fraternity, as no more religious or loyal body exists than the Masonic body in England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominion of the Canadas; and no more God-fearing or law-abiding one than in the United States. We regret to read such deliberately continued attacks upon our Order, because they too evidently display the real animus alike of Ritualist and Romanist, that virus of intolerance and persecution which still lingers in the latter powerful organization, and forms part of the programme of its ritualistic imitators, in everything great and small, mighty and mean. It is a proof of what both would do if only they could do it, and we fear that all this vituperation and violence against our loyal and religiously minded brotherhood fully justifies those, who look on the Church of Rome and the ritualistic party in the Church of England as inimical to progress, liberty, and religious toleration. "Una est injusti cæcula forma maris," sang the poet of old, and here is the Church of Rome, "semper eadem," at home and abroad, in all climes and continents, ceaseless in her opposition to everything which tends to advance universal toleration, and to acknowledge the sanctity of the religious conscience; while the Ritualists, following blindly her dangerous dogmas, seem even to be out-Heroding Herod in the violence of their language, and the childishness of their denunciations. Freemasonry has, however, nothing to fear from such animosity or such accusations, but goes on its way like Una, strong in its innocence, its humanity, its utility, its charity, and its truth.

BRO. CAUBET'S REPLY TO THE BISHOP OF ORLEANS.

We have perused this pamphlet with much interest, not only on account of the controversy itself, but because our worthy Bro. Caubet is a

Freemason of long standing and much eminence, the able editor of the "Monde Maçonnique" and is the highly respected Grand Secretary of the Grand Orient of France. We wish, however, that we could fairly say, that his skilful defence is a full and satisfactory reply to his vivacious opponent. But interesting as it is in itself, and clearly stated, and admirably expressed, it fails, we think we are bound to say, as regards the main allegations of the Bishop, though it undoubtedly has shaken the effect of the whole attack considerably, by some very effective rejoinders on sundry points and topics. For instance, we think that Bro. Caubet clearly proves, that Monsignor Dupanloup has misunderstood the quotation he adduces from the "Monde Maçonnique." Bro. Caubet undoubtedly demonstrates that the expression "would cover them with honte," of which the Bishop makes so much, does not refer to the affirmation of Deism, but to the exclusion of the "Non-contents" from the Grand Orient. The Bishop may say, "This is after all quite a minor point," and so relatively it is, but still it is one scored to Bro. Caubet. Bro. Caubet points out also clearly, that happily Felix Pyat is no Masonic authority, being an irregular Mason, and that Louis Blanc's views of "hier," are not necessarily those of "lendemain." We greatly admire Bro. Caubet's eloquent and appreciative view of the true position of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, for which we cordially thank him. Bro. Caubet also successfully invalidates the Bishop's argument against Freemasonry generally, by pointing out how he condemns 10,000 lodges, according to his own statement, for the offences of 350, plus 16 in Belgium and France, and he has therefore argued from a particular to an universal, a great "lâches" in so skilled a controversialist as Monsignor Dupanloup. We called attention to this very weak point in the Bishop's "Etude" originally, and we are glad Bro. Caubet has treated it so lucidly and so incisively. We are also of opinion that Bro. Caubet is fully justified in protesting, that the views of "le Loge l'Avenir" are not those of the Grand Orient of France, and also against the Bishop's habit of making individual opinions and individual speeches the representation of Freemasonry proper in France or Belgium. Freemasonry, like all other human institutions, has its "weak brethren," its perverse speakers, and its perverse adherents, but Freemasonry can only be fairly judged by its authoritative explanations, and its official documents. But when we have said this, we feel bound to add, if sorrowfully and regretfully, that we fear Bro. Caubet has not essentially shaken the Bishop's position in respect of many unwise, irreligious, and political speeches, by several individual Freemasons in both countries. We in England cannot have, and should not have, the slightest possible sympathy with the expressions and addresses as regards religion and politics to which the Bishop calls attention. They are entirely opposed to all our traditions and all our teaching in England. We cannot therefore deny the right of the Bishop of Orleans, or any one else, to call attention to such published evidences of the opinions of some Freemasons, though they be only those of individuals, and in no sense are calculated to bind or to compromise the Grand Orient of France or Belgium. But with these evidences of indiscreet partizanship before us, and of unsound, most unsound, teaching professedly from Freemasons, we can only as "amici curiæ" advise the French and Belgian Freemasons to fall back within the old lines of French Freemasonry, which were both theistic and non-political. Let them give up at once any tampering with the strictness of true Masonic teaching, let them eschew once and for all alike political and religious questions. If they would only devote themselves to the pressing claims of Masonic Benevolence in various forms and institutions, they would have no more time for these sterile discussions, which are a burlesque on the principles and injure the fair fame of Freemasonry. Owing to some unfortunate influences Freemasonry in France and Belgium has latterly more or less identified itself with, "La Morale Indépendante," and the views of modern doubt and unbelief, as if characteristic of freedom of the mind, and an exemption from "faiblesse." Hence many of the addresses are dreary repetitions of a semi-Atheistic creed, the mournful utterances of a polished paganism. As we read some modern funeral orations in both countries, we are reminded of the lugubrious heathen cry "Valeas in æternum." Such principles and such views must soon bring down Freemasonry anywhere. We wish that we could have more completely identified ourselves with Bro. Caubet in his able defence, but as we believe nothing is ever gained by a "suppressio veri," so we feel sure that we are right in upholding our Masonic dictum, that plain dealing, and fair speaking, and simple sincerity should always distinguish Freemasons, and, above all, those who write in the interests of absolute Masonic truth, justice, honour, and right.

THE CLOSE OF THE LONDON SEASON.

London is looking empty, the streets are thinning, the legislative bodies have separated, and the Ministers have mostly departed for the grouse and their "otium cum dignitate." A very large portion of our fellow citizens, male and female, is wending its way in various directions, some to Brittany, some to Switzerland, some to the Tyrol, some to the Rhine, some to the healing springs of Kissingen or Marienbad, and a still greater section is crowding to the bathing places and seaside localities of our own pleasant land. The London season is therefore over for 1875, and for some time this great metropolis will have lost that sense of ceaseless crowds, and that block of thronging carriages, which has marked the brief season which has now past and gone. Some writers who are fond of moralizing on all occasions, or, as Mr. Sam Weller remarks, giving "advice gratis," are always down upon the London season, and its waste of time, money, health, and even talents. Nothing, they contend, is worse in any way than that mass of assembled frivolity and extravagance which a London season displays each succeeding year. People seem just now in a morbid state of mind, perhaps it is the heat of August, for nothing apparently goes right either with their tempers or their digestions. Our contemporary, "The Times," which is evidently displeased with everybody and everything in this sultry weather, so much so even as to run a muck, quite hopelessly however, at the most genial of Premiers, has recently made a great and alarming discovery, like the Eastern Potentate, that the women are the cause of everything that is bad, are at the bottom of all the criminality, all the bassesse all the extravagance, the Bohemianism of the hour. The writer of this remarkable suggestion, evidently a married man, bases this most serious charge on the unconquerable love of dress, and show, and expense displayed by the "weaker vessels." Oh! most clear-sighted and just of mentors! That women like dress and show, and are not averse to expense, who denies? but to heap on their devoted heads the criminalities, and follies, and parade of the hour is too unjust, and too preposterous. Women are, in our humble opinion, for the most part what men make them, and if we see a general tendency to fastness, or undue expenditure, or license in any portion of the feminine world, we may feel assured it is because, and only because, the habits of the male section of society are re-acting injuriously upon them. For what can we say of our "nova progenies," of horse-racing, pigeon-shooting, absinthe-imbibing, masculine youth? To note the general decadence in manners and habits, to observe how the taste, the dress, the language of the ring have deteriorated the fine character of Englishmen, to realize their intemperate ways, their irregular habits, and, above all, their debased views of things generally whether of duty or responsibility, is somewhat saddening to the sympathising and the sober-minded. The attempt of "The Times" to make women responsible for the questionable habits and unworthy tone of modern society is as ungenerous as it is unfair. We, therefore, do not take the same mournful view of the London season that many pseudo-critics do just now. It is, we believe, neither better nor worse than the majority of the past. It may display more "nouveaux riches," and may see more "roturiers" within its mystic circle, but it is pretty much what it always was and will always be. In this, our great metropolis, the London season is an absolute necessity for a large number of industrious tradesmen, and affords the means of living to many useful dependants, and it therefore seems to us the excess of moralizing bathos, to denounce what is alike needful and inevitable, especially when it is more than doubtful if that high moral tone which some assume so readily to-day may not be, after all, the result of conventional criticism, and even of sanctimonious hypocrisy.

THE FATAL ACCIDENT TO A YACHT.

Our always loyal brotherhood will feel deeply with the Queen, affected as she was with this mournful accident. Had the position been reversed, as the "Times" well puts it, what grief and regrets would have been ours. As Freemasons we shall deeply sympathise with our inestimable Sovereign, and with the suffering family left to mourn so great a calamity.

THE ADDRESS OF THE SHEFFIELD FREEMASONS TO THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The following address from the Freemasons of Sheffield, richly illuminated by Mr. H. J. Jones, and handsomely bound in brown morocco, ornamented with Masonic emblems and the arms of Sheffield in heraldic colours, by Messrs. Pawson and Brailsford, has been transmitted to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, through the Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, Lieut.-Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., D.L., J.P.:

"To the Most High, Most Puissant, and Most Illustrious Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, K.G., K.P., K.T., G.C.B., Most Worshipful Grand Master of Freemasonry in England, whom may the Great Architect of the Universe long preserve.

"May it please your Royal Highness.

"In anticipation of the visit of your Royal Highness to Sheffield on the 16th day of August, we, the Masters, Past Masters, Wardens, and brethren of the Britannia No. 139, Royal Brunswick No. 296, and Wentworth No. 1239, lodges of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, beg to express the great delight with which we shall welcome the presence of your Royal Highness, and that of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, to this seat of manufacturing industry, in the province of West Yorkshire.

"We embrace this opportunity of assuring your Royal Highness of our warm attachment to the Queen, to yourself, and the Princess of Wales, and of our steadfast loyalty to the Throne and Constitution of these realms.

"We desire also to express our unfeigned gratification at your recent installation as Most Worshipful Grand Master of Freemasonry in England. We rejoice in the possession by your Royal Highness of the position so long and so worthily filled by your illustrious relatives the late Dukes of Sussex and Kent, and we acknowledge with pride and gratitude our fraternal attachment to your person, as well as our loyal obedience to you as the recognised head of our ancient and honourable institution.

"We fervently pray that your Royal Highness may be long spared to rule and govern the Craft, and that its fundamental principles of 'Brotherly love, relief, and truth,' may take deep root, not only in the hearts of all Masons, but in the hearts of all men.

"Commending your Royal Highness to the protection of the Great Architect of the Universe, we are, in the name of the Craft of Sheffield, your Royal Highness's most devoted and faithful servants,

BRO. MAJOR BURGESS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the interest of fair play, I have reason, I think, to complain of your suppression of the most important part of Major Burgess's letter to Mr. Tinkler, which I sent to you last week.

So far from the passage which you thought fit to omit "not affecting the question in any way," it is the very passage which contained the gravest and most offensive accusation which one Mason, or indeed one gentleman, can bring against another. And this you ought, I think, to have stated, as the fragment of the letter which you have published does not contain the offensive charge at all, to prove or withdraw which Major Burgess was summoned before the authorities of the Temple.

I never stated that there was only one member of the Temple present on the Judicial Council. All present were members of the Temple—one only "represented" them—viz., Lord Limerick. General Clerk, Major Clerke, and Colonel Hutton Gregory represented the 33rd; Earl Percy, M.P., Mr. Beach, M.P., and the Rev. G. R. Portal represented the Mark Degree. Neither Sir P. Colquhoun, nor Mr. Tinkler sat at all. The former was present in the room as prosecutor while the charge was being made, the latter was Secretary to the Judicial Council, and took notes of the proceedings.

I again repeat (as the fragment which you have printed of Major Burgess's letter shows) that the reason assigned by that brother for his resignation of membership with the Temple was the alleged disgraceful conduct of another Templar. This charge, affecting the honour of the Order, and of the brother in question, Major Burgess is summoned to prove or to withdraw. He does neither, either then or before the Judicial Council to which he appealed. For this, which is a matter of honourable conduct, and not of "discipline" at all, he has been most justly removed from a society of honourable men.

Yours fraternally,

A MARK MASTER.

[We disagree with our worthy correspondent on two points. First, we feel sure we are right in not yielding to this hyper-publication of Masonic formulae, and this discussion publicly of points only to be discussed in lodge. The same rule applies to the high grades. And secondly, we look at the whole matter as simply a question of discipline. We may be wrong, but such is our honest opinion, and we feel bound to say so.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you allow me to suggest that all writers upon this question should sign their real names to their letters. At present we have nameless individuals bandying innuendos calculated to take away a man's character, whilst talking childishly about the select aristocratic exclusiveness of the "Mark" Degree, mere moonshine, and having no real foundation in fact or history. I should like to know what has become of the good old-fashioned theory that in Masonry the prince and the peasant are equal.

There is, I understand, some threat of legal proceedings, which prevents my mentioning names; but I have to ask this "Mark Master" whether his Grand Lodge did not last year expel a brother Mason (one of the most worthy gentlemen and Masons I ever knew), who, to my certain knowledge, and, I doubt not, that of "Mark Master's" also, had resigned all connection with "Mark" exclusiveness (!) many years ago. Did they do so or not?—the Mark Degree having no charge against him save that, although he did not belong to the Mark degree, he did belong to orders outside genuine Craft Masonry of which this un-Masonic alliance did not approve. Where, then, is our freedom?—honesty already has fled.

One thing is quite clear, and that is that peace has for ever departed from all the combined tripartite-treaty bodies, and dissolution or suppression must necessarily soon follow if there is still, as I believe, much true Masonry left outside them. Therefore, although I know nothing of the pretty quarrel which is now progressing, I suspect the worst, and hope that you will allow me a word of warning to innocent brethren, and a caution that they be not misled by the clap-trap of an organization which has been working all along under false history. Let us, then, have the truth or nothing, under real names.

I remain, yours truly,

JOHN YARKER.

DEVON PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with much interest in your last paper the report of the above lodge meeting at Exeter, particularly the motion made by Bro. Jones to give 50 guineas to the Devon and Exeter Hospital, which was opposed by Bro. Watts and other brethren, who contended that it was not Masonic to give money to institutions that were in no way connected with Masonry. I am one of the "other brethren" who supported Bro. Watts. Bro. Metham protested against this remark of Bro. Watts, and argued that it was ostensibly Masonic. I shall be very much obliged if Bro. Metham will refer me to the page and paragraph in our Book of Constitutions that warrants him in so saying, for by that book, and by that book alone, we are governed, and not by the dictum of Bro. Metham.

I am, Sir, your faithful Brother,

AN OLD P.M., ONE, &c.

MINUTES AND THEIR CONFIRMATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you permit an old Mason who has had some experience in the administration of our laws to endeavour once for all to put right a matter which, however simple in itself, seems to have sorely exercised some of our brethren? I refer to the question again raised in your last issue by Bro. Tebbs, P.P. G. Chaplain, Somerset, in regard to "Minutes and their Confirmation." Had I not received several letters asking for information on this subject, from brethren who I had imagined must have known the law, I could hardly have believed that so much misconception could have existed on the matter.

Let me state the case as I believe it has always been stated by the executive, and as it has been declared more than once in Grand Lodge.

The Constitutions provide that certain matters shall not be binding, unless they have been proposed, seconded, and carried at one meeting and have been confirmed at the next ensuing meeting (see p. 28, sec. 8). The matters stated to require confirmation are few but important, and it is from their very importance that they are made to require confirmation—e.g., the election of Master from the Grand Master downwards, grants of money beyond a certain amount, the making of a new law, or the alteration or repeal of an old one, &c., &c., &c. These all require a second, separate, and distinct action at an ensuing lodge before they become valid. This second and separate action is called confirmation, and without it the first act, namely, that of carrying the motion, is null and void.

I cannot agree with Bro. Tebbs in his views of our laws, nor in thinking that at a lodge meeting where the brethren meet for the purpose of confirming the minutes as to the election of W.M., the members present will be found to "consist probably of entirely different brethren." I should have thought that it would not be so in most lodges; be that however as it may, it is the evident intention and spirit of the law that all the brethren should at each of the two meetings, viz., that for the election of W.M. and that for confirmation of his election, have the opportunity of voting for or against him. This provision is made not only for the purpose of assuring time for due consideration of so important a matter, but that every member may have an opportunity of recording his vote at, at least, one or other of the meetings.

I have referred to some of the matters which require confirmation. There are others, and they are a large majority, which do not require confirmation, but are acts done and accomplished in full by one vote of the lodge, such as, in private lodges, the election of a candidate or joining member, the resignation of members, &c., &c.; in Grand Lodge the grant of money below a certain amount, the appointment of boards or committees, the reception of reports, &c., &c.

It may, I think, be laid down as a general rule that nothing requires confirmation at subsequent lodge to make it valid except such cases as are provided for by the Book of Constitutions, or by an approved bye-law of a lodge.

Why then, it is asked, are all minutes put for confirmation? The answer is simple. Minutes are put for confirmation for two, I may say for three, reasons. 1st. That any previous acts therein recorded, and which require confirmation, may be confirmed. 2nd. To show that all acts done are correctly recorded; and 3rd. For the information of those who were not present on the last occasion.

Upon the minutes being put for confirmation, it is competent to any brother to move the non-confirmation of any resolution passed at a previous meeting, provided that such resolution is one which the Constitutions, or an approved bye-law of a private lodge, state shall require confirmation—if the notice for non-confirmation be carried the previous act of the lodge becomes null and void; but in any other case it is not competent to a brother to move the non-confirmation of the previous resolutions of the lodge; he can object to the accuracy of the record, and may move to have it amended, i.e., he may alter the description, but he must let the fact alone.

Yours fraternally,

P.G.W.

Review.

"The Union Review." J. H. BARRY, 2, Bedford-street, Strand.

It seems somewhat odd, perhaps, that an Anglican Ritualistic Review, the "Union," which calls itself a "Magazine of Catholic Literature and Art," should be reviewed in the "Freemason," but as it has been specially forwarded to us, we feel bound to make some allusion to it. Probably the reason why we have received it is, that it contains a very laboured and, we must say, unfair article on Freemasonry. For all such writers do not deal with Freemasonry fairly. They take a part for the whole, and argue from a particular to an universal, or they rely on the angry compilations of some hot-headed fanatic, with more zeal than brains, who by the use of manipulated selections of garbled passages, and of unauthorised documents, seeks in unseemly haste to make out a case against Freemasonry, nearly always, let us observe, from an Ultramontane point of view. And, therefore, from isolated speeches, and individual opinions, the illogical writer condemns all Freemasonry and all Freemasons. He does not even take the trouble to point out the great difference between continental and Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, but as he unhesitatingly brands the former as irreligious and revolutionary, so he brings the other without the shadow of excuse for his unreasoning folly under the same fell charge. There is nothing in the article which has not been repeated over and over again, "usque ad nauseam," and even if the writer could make good all his allegations, which he cannot, we in England have happily nothing to do either with the attack or the defence! The matter does not concern us. But with somewhat of Jesuitical finesse, though the writer does not directly attack Freemasonry in Great Britain, he evidently wishes his readers to infer, that Freemasonry is the same everywhere, and that Freemasons are a "deuced bad lot." One remark of his however, seems to affect us as much as our continental brethren, and therefore we think well to notice it. The universal formula of Freemasonry, "In the Name of the Great Architect of the Universe," is made a distinct charge of heresy against all Freemasons. Because, says this careful reader of Old Aldrich, because the Freemasons put this at the head of their circulars, they are pure Deists, they deny and antagonize the doctrine of the Holy Trinity. Most logical of accusers! Yet our good friend's argument is alike unsound in its premise, and untrue in its assumption. We can well fancy the surprise and alarm which many of our worthy and most orthodox brethren will experience when they hear that this well-known and most innocent formula is a proof of their flagrant heterodoxy. As a rule we Freemasons object to have anything to do with anybody else's "doxy," but we fancy that the great majority of Freemasons out of the lodge are as respectable Christians and as orthodox believers as the most advanced of Ritualists, perhaps even somewhat more orthodox. This formula is well known to be one of universal comprehension, but in no way affects or excludes the individual faith of the individual Freemason. It would be quite as reasonable to allege that because we say "Our Father" we cannot therefore be Trinitarians. The truth is, the whole argument is based simply on an outburst of Ultramontane and ritualistic impertinence. We can quite understand, indeed, how such an allegation would delight an inquisitor, and how such a distinct proof would satisfy the Holy Office, but no one else in the world! Is it not most melancholy and humiliating for all who believe in the upward tendencies of the human mind, to note where unbridled fanaticism and overbearing arrogance are leading this new school of thought and "pose" to-day? And here we stop. We do not see that any good can come to anybody by reviewing at large this reiterated attack on our Order. It is not likely to be read by many, it is excessively dull and heavy, and marked by "awful prejudices," and we wish that we could think it was the result of careful thought or honest study of the subject. It is entirely based, as we said before, on an anonymous German work published in 1873, and translated and issued by Burns and Co., Roman Catholic publishers, this year of grace, and as it is simply an emanation of Ultramontane Roman Catholic thought and Jesuit views, it really has no claim whatever on the attention of any cultivated or tolerant Freemason. DALRY GRAVITATION WATER WORKS.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE WITH MASONIC HONOURS. Monday, the 2nd inst., will henceforth be regarded as a red letter day, and one that will not soon be forgotten in the history of the parish. The day was one of autumn's loveliest, and the occasion of the demonstration was the laying of the foundation stone of the Gravitation Water Works at Wee Auldmuir, near to the Auldmuir Burn, in the valley between the first-named place and the Baidland range of hills. Monday being "St. Margaret's Day," which is an annual fair holiday, the public works were closed, and the inhabitants, in holiday attire, turned out en masse to witness the ceremony. The members of Dalry Blair Lodge, 290, joined by deputations from Mother Kilwinning, Royal Blue (Kilbirnie), and St. John's (Kilmarnock), assembled in the lodge-room, and proceeded thence to the more capacious F.C. school-room previous to forming into marching order. On leaving the school-room the procession, headed by the Largs and Fergushill instrumental bands, proceeded through the town and via Broadley-road to the centre of attraction at Auldmuir. Parties desirous of having a good view of the procession took up a position on the mounds that here and there lined the route. At Bradley Smiddy, and at Reddane Row, the "goodly dames" and their following came flocking out to witness the procession, which, enlivened by the spirited music discoursed (in good time and tune) by the bands, moved slowly up the hill past Mr. Livingstone's farm of Broadley, and through the finely-wooded grove that leads to the Flashcoat-road. At this point many left the line of procession, choosing to continue the march by the old and rugged Broadley-road, which is wooded to the summit of the hill, and which, besides shortening the distance to be travelled, afforded protection from the intense sun-heat that prevailed. On reaching Wee Auldmuir farm, the pedestrians took up positions on the surrounding heights commanding a good view of the works. Soon after the main body of the procession reached the scene of action.

Amongst the many present we observed—J. M. McCosh, Esq., of Merksworth; Theophilus Paton, Esq., of Swinlees (chairman of the Works' Committee); R. Wylie, Esq., J.P., and Secretary to Mother Lodge Kilwinning; A. B. Aitken, Esq., Carshead; —Bicket, Esq.; Thos. Biggart, Esq., Bridgend Mills; —Gray, Esq., Stanley Bank; —Patrick, Esq., Greenbank; John Gow, Esq., Bridgend Mills; —Mr. Comrie, inspector; Mr. Alexander, Dalry; —Craig, Esq., Fleshwood; —Wylie, Esq., Holmbyre; Mr. Walker, merchant, Dalry; Mr. Willison, Mr. Fulton, and Mr. Allan of Munnoch. Also, the Misses McCosh and party; the Misses Aitken and party; the Misses Allan and party, &c., &c.

The Masonic brethren, headed by Bro. J. M. McCosh, R.W.M., of Blair Dalry; Bros. R. Wylie, Past G.M., of Mother Kilwinning; J. Caruthers, A.D.M.; John Johnston, S.W.; James Gibson, S.W.; John Tweed, Proxy Junior Warden, Grand Lodge, Edinburgh, and of Mother Kilwinning; D. Brown Past Master; and Bro. Graham, D.M. of Blair, Dalry, having taken up their position on the platform, the band played the "Queen's Anthem," after which the Chaplain of Blair Dalry Lodge, Bro. Burt, engaged shortly in prayer, asking that the blessing of Almighty God might attend the work about to be entered upon, even till its close, and greatly bless the undertaking.

Band—Old Hundredth.

Bro. McCosh then called upon the Treasurer to place the casket in the cavity of the stone. The casket contained copies of the Glasgow daily and other local papers, the "Western Supplement," Sketches of the County of Ayr, and also the current coins of the realm. The inscription on the plate, which was placed face downwards on the stone, is as follows:—

Dalry Gravitation Water Works,
FOUNDATION STONE
Laid with Masonic Honours

BY
JAMES M. McCOSH, Esq.,
R.W.M. Dalry Blair Lodge, 290,
August 2nd, 1875,
And Year of Light 5879.

The Depute-Master, Bro. Graham, then presented the R.W.M. with a handsome silver trowel, remarking that, small in value though it was, he might accept of it as a pledge of the goodwill that was borne him by the brethren, who hoped that he might be long spared to them, and that he might enjoy every other needed comfort. (Applause.)

The trowel bore the following inscription:—

Presented

TO
JAMES M. McCOSH, Esq.,
R.W.M. Dalry Blair Lodge, 290,
ON THE OCCASION
OF his Laying the Foundation Stone
OF Dalry Water Works,
2nd August, 1875.

Year of Light, 5879.

The R.W.M. then spread the lime; and the stone being lowered into position, the various Wardens were called upon to do their duty. The plummet, the level, and the square having been applied to the stone as is customary in Masonry, and all pronounced right, the R.W.M. finished the work with three distinct knocks, saying, "May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity upon our present undertaking, and crown the edifice, of which we have now laid the foundations, with every success."

Three hearty cheers were given, and the band played the National Anthem.

Bro. McCosh, again advancing, to the stone, strewed a handful of corn thereon and poured out wine, ascribing praise to the Lord, who supports the pillars of nations, and maintains in harmony surrounding worlds, and implored His aid; also, that the Almighty Ruler of events might direct the hands of their Sovereign, and bless all her people.

Bro. Wylie applied the match, and burned up the corn and wine, and so ended this ceremony or rite of the ancient use of Masonry.

Band—The Merry Masons.

R.W.M. Bro. J. M. McCosh then addressed the assemblage as follows:—Most Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Masters of lodges, and brethren, ladies, and gentlemen,—To have been permitted to officiate upon the present occasion has afforded me great pleasure, and I feel proud, indeed, of the honour. To many, the laying of the foundation or memorial stone of an important building or work with Masonic honours may seem meaningless; but those acquainted with the tradition of our Craft are at no loss to comprehend, not only how significant, but also how becoming and proper is the observance of this time-honoured ceremony. It is now four years since the Craft were engaged in a similar duty in this parish. Most of us remember the laying of the memorial stone of the new Parish Church by the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of Ayrshire, Bro. Colonel Mure of Caldwell, who acquitted himself on the occasion with a grace and dignity worthy of his ancient and honoured name. The erection of the church was in many respects a most important work for the parish. Happily, the building was carried through and completed without a single accident. The workmanship, in every department, is perfect, and the finished whole reflects the greatest credit on all concerned—the architect, the contractor, and the committee of management alike. Indeed, I venture to say there is scarcely a person connected with the parish who does not feel proud of the church. At present it is the only object of architectural interest in the neighbourhood that we can take a stranger to see. When, however, the work in which we have to-day been engaged is completed, this will no longer, I think, be said. I believe I am safe in predicting that Dalry people will have as much credit and as much pride in their water works as in their church. Let us just look around for a moment. Behind us are the grand slopes of the Baidland Hill; below us there lies, so to speak, spread at our feet, all that is historical or romantic in Ayrshire. The eye takes in the land of Bruce, of Wallace, and of Burns. (Applause.) We have before us the Carrick coast, with Turnberry in the far distance; the Barns o' Ayr and Craighie; and Barnweil; with its Wallace Tower, the low thatched "Cottage," "The Auld Brig," and the "Bonnie Doon." And to our left, again, we distinguish Loudoun Hill, and the land of the Covenanters. In the fore-ground we see Eglinton Castle and the old house of Blair; while, in addition to the spires of half a dozen towns and villages, we behold the whole valley below us teeming with the evidences of industry, prosperity, and wealth. The situation is a magnificent one, and when the reservoir is completed I make no doubt but it will be a favourite resort, and even out-rival the church as a place of attraction for visitors. The propriety of the selection of the ground as the site for a reservoir must, I think, be evident to the eye of the most inexperienced. There is nothing on a higher level but trap rock; there is green grass, with scarcely an acre of arable land; nor is there the most distant chance of there ever arising any contingency whereby the "catchment" or drainage area, may be injuriously interfered with or the water supply diminished. Indeed on the contrary, I believe that both the "catchment" and the reservoir may at any future time be immensely increased at a comparatively small cost. The piping leading to the town I am informed, through the generosity of one of the committee, whom we are proud to own as a Craftsman and a member of our lodge, been laid down of such a capacity as will supply the requirements of the district, even should these come to exceed the capabilities of the seemingly very ample present reservoir. That the works may, like the church, be carried through and completed without accident to life or limb I am sure every one present sincerely trusts. We hope and believe, too, that when finished the whole will be found as complete and satisfactory in every respect. Indeed, we cannot for a moment entertain a doubt on the subject when we consider to whom we have to look for the completion of the work. The engineers are, I have no hesitation in saying, second to none in their profession. The contractor, Bro. Scott, has already given ample evidence of his abundant energy and thorough knowledge of his work. Then he is followed everywhere by the jealous eye of Bro. Young, the master of works, who possesses all the qualities, experience, prudence, and firmness necessary, for the discharge of his important trust. Of the Local Authority Committee I would simply say that it was a most responsible charge they undertook; and since their appointment they have devoted the greatest attention to the work entrusted to them. Each member of the committee has endeavoured to be more zealous than the other, and the time and anxiety they have both individually and collectively given to the different details will, I fear, never be fully appreciated. Without for a moment wishing to be invidious, I would desire just to refer to the enthusiastic, efficient, and unselfish services of the chairman, who has, besides, most generously promised to erect a fountain in the court-yard of the West-End Public School—a fountain which will not, however, rival the very handsome one which is to replace the old parish pump at the Cross, for which the inhabitants will be indebted to the liberality of that other member of committee to whom I have already alluded, Bro. Biggart. In connection with the labour of the committee, I must notice the handsome conduct of the landed proprietors in giving their lands voluntarily at a valuation, namely—Mr. Wylie, of Little Auldmuir; Mr. Motion, of Thirdpart, who gave the land for the reservoir; and the Earl of Glasgow, the land for the filters and cistern at Flashwood. (Applause.) I might enlarge on the advantages likely to accrue to the community from the completion of the works were time and place suitable, but I will merely remark in a word that, according to modern ideas of sanitary requirements, and indeed, of domestic comforts, a supply of water by gravitation has become an indispensable necessity. Before closing, I would acknowledge with thanks the courtesy and kindness of the Provincial Lodge, in ceding to Dalry Blair Lodge the place of precedence on this occasion. I have also to thank for their attendance the deputation from Mother Kilwinning, and to thank the deputations from the different sister lodges, and the various visiting brethren who have honoured us with their attendance and support to-day. We are also indebted to the Water Committee for their courtesy in connection with this day's proceedings; and to the contractor for his excellent arrangements for those engaged in the ceremony. To those ladies and gentlemen who have graced the occasion with their presence we feel deeply grateful, and I would conclude with asking them to join us in again wishing that every success may attend the completion of the undertaking. (Applause.)

Theophilus Paton, Esq., of Swinlees, said—Right Worshipful Master and Members of the Masonic Brotherhood,—On behalf of the local authority of this parish, I beg to express our gratification at the fit and solemn inauguration of this important public undertaking. In the ordinary intercourse of life formalities are essential. They are expressive of common interests, and are the cement which binds society together. Upon an important occasion, such as this, it is fitting that an imposing and suggestive ceremony should widen our sympathies, smooth down asperities, and mark an epoch in our lives. To your ancient Order such duties have long been delegated, and although the full import of the mystic ceremony may not be recognized by those outside the pale of brotherhood, it is not difficult to perceive that at least a sympathetic approach is being made to unseen things in the mystery of creation. Gentlemen, in the present state of the works everything is necessarily crude and chaotic; but a few months will effect a great change; and as nothing has been neglected which can add to their efficiency, we can safely assert that when completed they will be found perfect in every respect, and be a source of continual pride and gratification to the inhabitants of Dalry. (Applause.)

The brethren were then called from "labour to refreshment," after which they returned in inverted order to the hall of the Blair Dalry Lodge, about 5 o'clock, and the R.W.M., with the assistance of his Wardens, closed the lodge in ample form.

PAPERS ENCLOSED IN THE CASKET.

"This foundation stone was laid with full Masonic honours on the second day of August, A.D. 1875, and Year of Light 5879, by James Manson McCosh, Esq., Right Worshipful Master of Dalry Blair Lodge, No. 290, at the head of the members of the lodge, in presence of a deputation from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire, and deputations from sister lodges of the province; also in presence of the committee appointed by the local authority of Dalry for carrying out the works, and a numerous assemblage of the inhabitants of the town and district."

"The Dalry Blair Lodge, No. 290, was instituted on the 7th day of May, and consecrated on the 21st day of December, 1821, by the celebrated Sir Alexander Boswell, of Auchinleck, who composed a favourite inauguration song for the occasion."

"The first Master was Colonel William Blair, of Blair, which family, as will be seen from the annexed list of Masters, afterwards frequently honoured the lodge by holding that office. The lodge has prospered, and has added no fewer than 680 members to the Craft. The office-bearers for the current year are James M. McCosh, Right Worshipful Master; James Little, Depute Master; Robert Graham, Past Master; Thomas Hawthorn, Senior Warden; James Archibald, Junior Warden; William Burt, Chaplain; Thomas Steen, Treasurer; James Muir, Secretary; William Oliver, Senior Deacon; James Baxter, Junior Deacon; William Logan, Senior Steward; James J. Hunter and Thomas Dixon, Assistant Stewards; Thomas Wylie, Junior Steward; James Ritchie, Inner Guard; Hugh Logan, Outer Guard; Thos. Steen and W. J. Hunter, Decorators; and Jas. Watson and Robert Young, Auditors."

"The want of an abundant and pure supply of water has been long felt in the Town of Dalry, the inhabitants hitherto having been mostly supplied from wells sunk in the immediate neighbourhood of dwelling-houses. The waters of many of these wells, on analysis, were found to be defective in quality, and in some cases so tainted as to be altogether unsuited for domestic use.

"After considerable discussion as to the best method of supplying Dalry with water, the parochial board of the parish, as constituted local authority under the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, resolved, on the 4th day of December, 1873, to provide a supply of gravitation water according to a scheme proposed by Messrs. J. and A. Leslie, civil engineers, Edinburgh, whereby the waters of the south-western slopes of Baidland Hill should be impounded and stored in this reservoir, which is formed partly on the lands of Thirdpart, belonging to James Motion, Esq., Hapland, West Kilbride; and partly on the lands of Little Auldmuir, the property of William Wylie, Esq., of Doggartland. This reservoir is capable of holding about twenty million gallons of water. From the reservoir the water is to run in iron pipes through the said lands of Little Auldmuir and the lands of Bendlavo, the property of Theo. Paton, Esq., of Swinlees, to the parish road at Baidlandhowe, thence down the side of the old parish road to filters and a covered store cistern on the lands of the Earl of Glasgow near Flashwood. From the store cistern the water will be conveyed by an 8-inch iron pipe to the town, and distributed in pipes of various sizes throughout the water supply district.

"The works were commenced in the beginning of March, 1875, and are expected to be completed early in the spring, 1876. The expense of the works will be about £8,500, and it is supposed they will provide an ample supply of water for the district for many years to come.

"The following are the names of the committee of the local authority charged with the execution of the works:—Theophilus Paton, of Swinlees, Dalry, chairman and convener; Thomas Biggart, of Baidland, Dalry; John Gow, of Highgate, banker, &c., Dalry; Andrew Blair Aitken, of Carshead, Dalry; Robert Gray, of Keyshill, Stanley Cottage, Dalry; and William Alexander, merchant, Dalry. Engineers—Messrs. J. and A. Leslie, Edinburgh. Contractor—John Scott, Middleton, Dalry. Inspector of works—Walter Young, Edinburgh.

"A description of the town and parish of Dalry appears in the Sketch of Cuninghame, deposited herewith.

"Sealed with the seal of the lodge, and subscribed by the Right Worshipful Grand Master, and also by the clerk of the local authority, Brother Alexander Comrie, this second day of August, 1875.

(Signed) "J. M. M'COSH, R.W.M.
ALEX. COMRIE,
Clerk to Local Authority."

The advantages offered by the National Safe Deposit Company, 1, Victoria-street, Mansion House, cannot be too overrated. To the brotherhood it not only offers absolute security for jewels, lodge property, &c., but also affords protection from burglars and fire for general securities and valuables. Travellers, and families leaving home for a season, can do so without anxiety. This massive building, completely isolated, is the most perfect of its kind.

METROPOLITAN.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—The members of this lodge paid a visit to St. Albans, on Thursday, and passed a thoroughly enjoyable day. The brethren assembled at the Abbey at noon, when Bro. Chapple, clerk of the works, who is a member of the lodge, proceeded to give them a historical and architectural description of the building, beginning in the one instance with the foundation of the church by Offa, King of Mercia, in 796, to the building of the great monastery by Abbot Paul, and continuing the history of its career, its splendour, its vicissitudes, and its struggle to maintain its position until the present day; ending with an account of the late proceedings, in Parliament, establishing a new bishopric. The architectural features were then dilated on, commencing with those of the Saxon period, passing successively through the Norman, early English, decorated, perpendicular, and subsequent styles, illustrated in every instance by the magnificent arches and mouldings on the spot. Many of the brethren being of the architectural or engineering profession, they entered into a critical examination of the executed works, and expressed their appreciation of the means taken to save the great central tower, as by so doing all the eastern arm of the church was undoubtedly saved from destruction. The Lady Chapel restoration was an object of great interest; so much having been rescued from almost total destruction, the Ante-Chapel especially having been almost in the last stage of decay. Bro. Wood, manager to Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A., fully explained the state of dilapidation, and the means taken to repair the whole building. The beautiful fragments of Roman tiles, mouldings, and sculpture exhibited in the south transept occupied a large share of attention, illustrating as they do the work of eighteen centuries. The party then proceeded to inspect the ruins of Verulam, the broken dyke, the Roman wall and fosse, and minutely examined the sections here laid bare. The Earl of Verulam had kindly placed Gorbamby Park at the disposal of the lodge, but the inspection of the Abbey occupied so much time that a visit to the ruins of Lord Bacon's house was abandoned with regret. At 5 o'clock the members of the lodge, and a few visitors, sat down to an excellent banquet at the Peahen. The chair was taken by Bro. Oliver, W.M., supported by Bros. J. Lewis Thomas, P.M.; Hyde Pullen, and S. Larham, W.M. 1539; Secretary Bro. Thomas, P.M., F.R.G.S., F.S.A.; Muggeridge, S.W., and others; the vice-chair being occupied by Bro. West, J.W., supported by Bros. Payne, J.D.; Chapple, and others. "The Healths of the Queen and Royal Family" were drunk with enthusiasm, as well as those of "The Prince of Wales, G.M.," "The Earl of Carnarvon, D.G.M.," and "The Various Lodge Officers;" also that of "Bro. Chapple" for his services. At the close of the banquet a conversation took place relative to the Granite Lodge leaving at the Abbey a memento of their visit, and it was resolved that an early meeting be called in London, with the view of raising a fund to repair a special portion of the fabric, so that a distinctive mark may be left in remembrance of a day happily and pleasantly spent, which was also mingled with a high degree of satisfaction from the circumstance that it was felt by all much instruction had been derived from such an architectural and archaeological investigation.

PROVINCIAL.

UPTON.—UPTON LODGE (No. 227).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place at the Spotted Dog Tavern, Upton, on Thursday, the 19th August. The lodge was opened by Bro. Dr. Levic, W.M., at four p.m., who was assisted by Bro. Holtham, S.W., W.M. Elect; Bro. Slec, J.W., and other officers. There were also present Bros. Picking, P.M.; Bolton, P.M.; Bratton, P.M.; and several members of the lodge. Visitors:—Bros. Lattrel, Gathercole, Lazarus, P.P.S.G. Warden, Wilts; and others. Minutes read and confirmed. Lodge opened in Second Degree. Bro. Alfred Holtham was presented for installation. Having given assent to the ancient charges, the lodge opened in the Third Degree, and the non-qualified brethren retired. A board of Installed Masters was opened, when Bro. Holtham was duly installed into the Eastern chair, in the presence of nine P. Masters. The board and lodge closed in succession to the First Degree. The W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, according to ancient custom. Bro. Dr. Levic was the installing officer. The W. Master appointed the following his officers:—Bros. Slec, S.W.; Posener, J.W.; Brown, S.D.; Page, J.D., Treas., re-invested; Picking, P.M., Sec.; and the usual junior officers. The lodge resumed to the Second Degree, when a brother was passed to a F.C. Business over, the lodge closed in peace and harmony. As usual, refreshment after labour. An excellent banquet was provided, to which the brethren did ample justice, after which the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given in appropriate terms by the W.M., and very cordially responded to. Bro. Dr. Levic proposed "The Health of the W.M." in very glowing terms, and, as a matter of course, it was received by the brethren most heartily. The W.M., in reply, said that I.P.M. Levic had spoken in too high terms of himself, much more than he was entitled to, but he would endeavour to merit those kind expressions by a faithful discharge of his duties, and hoped, when the time arrived for him to vacate that honourable position he now held the brethren would have no reason to regret having placed him there. "The Health of the Visitors" was proposed by the Master, who expressed the pleasure he had in seeing so many distinguished brothers present, and gave them a hearty welcome. Bro. Lazarus replied on behalf of the visitors and himself, and expressed the great pleasure they had received in witnessing the efficient manner in which the lodge was worked, which augured well for its future prosperity, by having such an excellent staff of officers. "The P. Masters" was responded to by the I.P.M., Bro. Dr. Levic, who was invested by the W.M. with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, in recognition of his valuable services as W.M. for the past year. The junior officers were honourably noticed and acknowledged. The brethren separated at ten o'clock, highly delighted with the proceedings of the day.

PETERBOROUGH.—ST. PETER'S LODGE (No. 442).—The Craft in general will learn with much regret of the death of Bro. W. Strickland, P.M., P.P.G.S. Norths. and Hunts. The melancholy event took place on Tuesday, the 10th inst. Bro. Strickland was well known as a worthy member of the Order, having the welfare of his brethren always at heart. His kind and generous disposition will long be remembered, and his loss is deeply felt in the mother lodge, and throughout the province. The funeral took place in the cemetery at Peterborough on Saturday, the 14th inst. A number of the brethren of the province followed (as personal friends) the remains of their lamented brother to their last resting-place.

BARNES.—ROSE OF DENMARK LODGE (No. 975).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the White Hart, Barnes, on Friday, the 20th inst., under the presidency of Bro. G. J. Edmonds, W.M., assisted by the following officers:—Bro. E. W. Clarke, S.W.; W. H. Lee, (W.M. 1524), J.W.; J. H. Tyler, P.M.; C. A. Smith, P.M. and Treas.; G. H. Wigglesworth, J.D.; J. Gamar, I.G.; Gilbert, Tyler. The only business was the passing of Bro. Childs to the Second Degree, which ceremony was performed by the W.M. in his usual able manner. It was proposed by Bro. Smith, P.M. and Treas., seconded by Bro. Gamar, I.G., and carried unanimously, that the cost of the Steward's jewel worn by the W.M., commemorative of the Installation of the M.W. Grand Master, be defrayed from the lodge funds. There was no banquet. Visitors: Bros. D. Hinton, P.M. 360; H. Lister, J.W. 1524; W. W. Fawn, 1505.

HAMPTON COURT.—BURDETT LODGE (No. 1293).—This lodge met at the Mitre Tavern, Hampton Court, on Saturday, the 24th July. The brethren present were Bros. Frederick Keily, W.M.; D. W. Pearce, S.W.; S. W. Berrie, J.W.; R. W. Little, P.M., Prov. G. Sec., Treas.; H. G. Buss, P.M., Prov. G. Treas., Sec.; E. Southall, S.D.; D. Bindoff, J.D.; Rev. D. Shaboe, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; C. Coote, Org.; R. L. Sindall, I.G.; T. E. Woollard, Steward; Henry Phythian, P.M.; E. Baxter, P.M., Prov. G. Steward; and several other members of the lodge, Col. Burdett, the Prov. G. Master, being unavoidably absent on military duty. The visitors were Bros. Grabham, P.M. 1494; W. Stowen, 15; G. P. Gillard, 657; Rev. W. F. Reynolds, 708. The lodge was opened in the several degrees, but only routine business was performed, there being no candidates present. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by the host, Bro. Sadler, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, enlivened by a few songs by Bros. Coote and Baxter, and the brethren retired at an early hour.

HAMPTON.—LEBANON LODGE (No. 1326).—The last regular meeting of the season was held on Saturday, August 21st, at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P. Prov. G.A.D.C. Middlesex, P.M. 1423, the W.M., was absent through the sudden death of his eldest sister, which melancholy event took place on 20th inst. Very great sympathy and condolence was expressed by the members of the lodge when it was known the great loss the W.M. had sustained. J. W. Baldwin, W.M. 1423, I.G., opened the lodge. The minutes of the meeting held on Saturday, July 17th, were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots taken separately were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bro. James Triptree, of Woolwich, as a joining member, and all the candidates for initiation, Bros. Fletcher, Knight, Charles Graham, and W. F. Davis, 1423, were raised. Bros. J. T. Adams and J. Greenwood passed. Bro. W. Hammond, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, I.P.M., took the chair, and presided over the meeting for the remainder of the evening. He initiated Messrs. J. Hernaman and W. T. Crout into Freemasonry. The ceremonies were all very well rendered and impressively done. On the motion of Bro. F. Walters, P. Prov. G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec., the sum of two guineas was voted from the charity fund, and given to a distressed member of the lodge, whose case had been helped at Lodge of Benevolence on previous Wednesday with ten pounds. Twenty guineas was voted from the lodge funds to be spent in purchasing a life governorship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in the name of the W.M. for the time being. Both amounts were carried unanimously. On motion, duly made and seconded, the petitions of the widow of a deceased member were duly recommended by the lodge. It was also unanimously resolved that Bro. E. Gilbert's name be sent up to the R.W.P.G.M., Col. F. Burdett, as the member whom the lodge would like to see selected for a Provincial Grand Steward. Some joining members were proposed, and candidates for initiation. Business being ended, the lodge was closed until next regular meeting, to be held on Saturday, May 20th, 1876. Refreshment followed labour. There were present, besides those named, Bros. E. Gilbert, S.W.; C. W. Fox, J.W.; F. Walters, P. Prov. G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; R. W. Williams, S.D.; H. Potter, W.S.; H. Gloster, D.C.; J. B. Shackleton, Org.; H. Cutress, Assistant Steward; D. Steinhauer, R. J. Richards, J. Lawrence, W. Mitchell, W. Prattent, J. R. Croft, W. Crush, W. Middleton, J. Brogden, and several others. The visitors were Bros. C. Horsley, P. Prov. G.R. Middlesex, P.M., P.Z., &c.; M. Scott, P.M., Hon. Sec. 765; J. W. Halsey, P.M. 134, P.Z.; F. J. Davis, 1423; and others.

PLUMSTEAD.—UNITED MILITARY LODGE (No. 1536).—The first meeting of this lodge since its consecration took place on Friday evening, the 13th inst., at the new hall, specially erected for it, adjoining the "Sir Robert Peel," Anglesea Hill, Plumstead. There was a large number of members and visitors present, including the following:—Bros. C. Norman, P.M. 700; C. Hobson, P.M. 700; T. Ward, W.M. 700; C. Jolly, 913; C. Cooke, 13; E. W. Fisher, 700; J. Nutton, 13; W. McCoy, 700; W. Allen, 434; W. G. Pinkney, 913; B. Blaisted, 913; C. Morris, 1331; W. Busby, 1260; C. Hulce, 1331. The following officers of the lodge were present:—F. Pownall, W.M.; Col. A. H. King, acting I.P.M.; W. Weston, S.W.; G. Spinks, J.W.; Murphy, Treas.; T. Cooper, Sec.; W. G. Picken, S.D.; H. Shaw, J.D.; Rev. E. L. Walsh, Chaplain; J. McCaffrey, Steward; and J. Lackland, Tyler. The lodge having been duly opened, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the last meeting were formally passed. No less than forty-two joining members were then called and admitted, after which five of a large number of candidates were initiated by the W.M. in a most impressive and eloquent manner. Several other candidates were proposed, all of whom were, by the constitution of the lodge, military men above or having the rank of sergeant or staff sergeant in either of the Queen's corps. The lodge was then closed, and the visitors were cordially invited by the W.M. to join the lodge at refreshment. The whole of the ceremonies and working was satisfactory. The brethren being seated, the first toast was, of course, "The Queen and the Craft." "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales," was then most loyally received. "Lord Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master; Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers" was duly honoured. In giving the toast of "The Provincial Grand Master of the Province of Kent, Lord Holmesdale," the W.M. spoke highly of his lordship's ability and energy in the cause of Freemasonry, a like compliment being paid to the D.G.M. and the rest of the officers of the province. Bro. T. Ward, W.M. 700, having had the gavel placed in his hands by permission of the W.M., proposed his (the W.M.'s) health in eulogistic terms, and said the manner in which he (the W.M.) had carried out the business of the evening was both a credit to the lodge and Craft in general. He wished him a happy and prosperous year of office, and that under his guidance the lodge would so flourish, that it would be second to none in the Province of Kent. The W.M., in reply, thanked them for their kind expressions of regard, and especially his old friend Bro. Ward, for so feelingly uttering them. He desired to do his duty, and trusted it would be by him so carried out, that when he left that chair he should have done it to their satisfaction, and that they would never regret the confidence reposed in him. Bro. Richmond replied for himself and brother initiates. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and in testifying to the great pleasure he had at seeing so many visiting brothers present, spoke highly of the many kindnesses he had received from the officers and brethren of the various lodges in the neighbourhood, more especially from Bro. Penfold, the W.M. of the Pattison, 913, who he said had recently initiated him into the mysteries of their Provincial Grand Lodge; he felt proud to see present members of the Union Waterloo and Nelson Lodges, and he could assure them the United Military Lodge would be happy at all times to welcome them to its gatherings. He begged to couple the toast with the name of Bro. Ward, W.M. of the Nelson Lodge. Bro. Ward and P.M. C. Hobson, 700, responded for the visitors. Bro. Weston, S.W., returned thanks for the officers of the lodge. Bro. C. Jolly, 913, responded to a very flattering notice from the W.M., of the "Masonic Press," and Bro. B. Plaisted, the esteemed host, for a cordial vote of thanks for his exertions in getting ready their new room, and general efforts for their comfort. Nor must we conclude without giving Bro. C. Cooke, 913, our meed of praise for his excellent and gratuitous services at the harmonium, which he kindly lent for the occasion. Altogether a most interesting and enjoyable Masonic evening was spent in brotherly love, and the Tyler's toast brought the business of the meeting to a conclusion.

DAWLISH.—SALAM LODGE (No. 1443).—The installation of Bro. W. Ball as W.M. of the above lodge took place at the lodge-room, Town Hall, on Wednesday, the 18th inst. W. Bro. John B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes, P.G.D. England, was introduced by Bro. J. S. Short, P.M., G.P.O., and after his reception with Masonic honours, and the usual lodge business over, the distinguished officer installed the W.M. with great ability. The W.M. elected the following brethren as office-bearers for the ensuing year:—S. Loram, I.P.M.; G. B. Avant, S.W.; J. S. Whidborne, J.W. and Treas.; W. H. Discombe, Sec.; H. L. Friend, S.D.; T. D. Smith, J.D.; J. Horsham, I.G.; B. Ferris, S.S.; H. P. Hatcher, J.S.; J. Chinnock, Org.; J. Haggarty, Tyler. Among the brethren present were:—H. W. Hooper, P.P.G.R., P.M. 1254, I.P.M. 444; F. C. Hallett, P.M. 303; G. N. Burden, P.M. 303; H. A. Corneek, Com. R.N., P.M.; S. H. Douglass, Com. R.N., P.M.; W. Gray, 474; Herbert Monckton, 197; J. Foot, P.M. 1091; F. Stephens, 1443; J. W. Peyton, 1443; R. Williams, 1443; A. M. Dallas Hill, 944; Geo. Gordon Johnston, W.M. Elect 1402. At the close of the lodge the brethren sat down to a splendid banquet at the W.M.'s, 16, Strand. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were received with true Masonic enthusiasm. An interesting ceremony in connection with the banquet was the presentation of a handsome jewel to Bro. S. Loram, the W.M. for the past year, which was suitably acknowledged by the worthy recipient.

LIVERPOOL.—LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 1502).—This lodge, during its nine months' existence, has greatly prospered, thanks to the zeal, ability, and conscientiousness with which the W.M. and all his officers fulfil their respective duties, and there seems every likelihood of 1502 becoming one of the first in the largest province in the kingdom. The usual monthly meeting, held on Monday evening, the 16th inst., was largely attended. Bro. Ralph Robinson, W.M., was in his place, and the officers and "privates" present were Bros. A. J. Henochsberg, J.W., acting as S.W.; J. de Frece, Treas.; M. Hart, Sec.; Professor Prag, Chaplain; A. Jones, S.D., acting as J.W., in consequence of the absence of Bro. M. de Frece, S.W., from indisposition; B. Woolf, I.G.; A. Hart, S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; D. L. Marcus, J. R. Grant, Dr. W. Stern, J. Frank, A. Rabow, S. Waring, S. J. Henochsberg, L. Hart, G. Somers, L. Wagner, J. Taber, H. Lumb, H. M. Silver, A. Saqui, B. Levy, J. Goldberg, and H. Liebschutz. The visitors present were Bros. P. Barnett, 223; H. Vaughan, S.D. 86; B. Wohlgemath, 203; H. Horspool, 1924; L. B. Goodman, 594; R. C. Yelland, W.M. 1094; W. Jones, W.M. 1229, P.M. 220; J. B. MacKenzie, 1356; and others. Bros. S. J. Henochsberg and B. Wohlgemath, of Lodge 203, having proved proficient, were entrusted, and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The work was admirably performed by the W.M., the working tools being given by the J.W. in a very effective and masterly style. The brethren subsequently supped, and at the conclusion of the repast, which was capably served by Bro. Fairhurst, the W.M. (Bro. Robinson) gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts with great point and in excellent taste. "The Chaplain," given by the W.M., was responded to by Bro. Professor Prag. "The Worshipful Master," given by Bro. Henochsberg, J.W., was responded to by Bro. Robinson, W.M., who next gave "The Newly Passed Brethren," acknowledged by Bro. S. J. Henochsberg. "The Officers" was replied to by the J.W., and "The Visitors," given by the W.M. in a warm-hearted manner, was responded to by Bros. Hart, W. Jones, P.M. 220; H. Vaughan, S.D. 86; R. C. Yelland, W.M. 1094; J. B. MacKenzie, and B. Wohlgemath, each of whom spoke in the highest terms of the working of the lodge. The proceedings were greatly enlivened by some capital songs given by the W.M., Bros. Veale, M. Hart, W. Jones, and others.

GREAT STANMORE.—ABERCORN LODGE (No. 1549).—This prosperous new lodge held a meeting of emergency at the Abercorn Hotel, on the 3rd inst., for the purpose of forwarding the lodge business before the season became too far advanced; Bro. Robt. Helsdon (P.M. 733), W.M., in the chair, supported by all the officers. The lodge having been duly opened with solemn prayer, and the usual preliminary business disposed of, Bros. Best, Swatton, and Felton were passed. On the lodge being resumed to 1°, the ballot was unanimously taken in favour of Mr. W. Eversden as a candidate for initiation, which ceremony was also performed by the W.M. in his usually effective manner; the ballot was also favourable for the admission of Bro. W. H. Linton, M.M. 889, as a joining member. The lodge was closed at 6 p.m. in solemn prayer. The evening was passed in the usual harmonious manner; the banquet, combined with the superior musical talent of several of the brethren, giving general satisfaction, the usual loyal and fraternal toasts meeting with a hearty reception. The next regular meeting takes place on the 7th prox., when three more candidates are announced for initiation.

Royal Arch.

HAMPTON.—LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 1326).—The final regular meeting of this prosperous chapter was held on Saturday, August 21st, 1875, at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. The chapter was opened by Comps. M. Scott, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; J. W. Halsey, P.Z., as H.; F. Walters, P.Z., S.E., as J. The companions were admitted. The minutes of the convocation held on July 17th were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots were unanimous in favour of the admission of Comp. E. H. Thiellay, 145, as a joining member, and all the candidates for exaltation. Bros. W. Prattent and J. R. Croft, both from 1326, were introduced and exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry. The ceremony was beautifully rendered and most impressively performed. Comp. C. Horsley did the work of the J. chair. Comp. W. Hammond, the H., presented the chapter with three splendid and expensive candlesticks for the greater lights. A special vote of thanks was given him for this munificent present. These members were unanimously recommended by the chapter as those whom they would like to see selected for Provincial Grand Chapter honours, namely, Comps. W. Hammond, F. Walters, P.Z., S.E.; the Rev. P. M. Holden, and E. H. Thiellay.

Some candidates were proposed for exaltation. The chapter was closed until Saturday, June 17th, 1876. The visitors were Comps. C. Horsley, P.P.G.R. Midx., P.Z.; M. Scott, P.Z. 176; J. W. Halsey, P.Z. 507; R. W. Williams, 79; J. W. Baldwin, J. 73, and others. Refreshment followed labour.

Red Cross of Constantine.

JERSEY.—CONCORD CONCLAVE (No. 8).—A special assembly of the conclave was held on Friday, the 13th of August, at the Masonic Temple. It was opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Immediately after a Mount Horeb Sanctuary of K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John the Evangelist were opened by Sir Knt. A. Schmitt, acting M.E.C., assisted by Sir Knts. P. W. Benham, Jn. Oatley, and several others, when the minutes of the preliminary Sanctuary and Commandery, held on the 15th of April, were read and unanimously confirmed. At this stage of the proceedings, the Ill. Sir Knts. R. Wentworth Little, Treas. Gen.; and E. H. Thiellay, Knt. Commander of Mount Carmel Commandery, were announced, admitted, and most enthusiastically welcomed. The M.E.C., acting, now informed the Knights that the prayers of their petition to the Patriarchal Council were granted to work those degrees, and in virtue of his being duly authorised to that effect, he proceeded at once to install Sir Knts. C. P. W. Benham, the First Prelate and Commander (nominate), Jn. Oatley, the First Seneschal and Deputy Commander (nominate), into their respective offices, and they were proclaimed and saluted as such by the Knights present. The following approved candidates, R.A.M.'s, being in attendance, were duly received and proclaimed as Sir Knights of those degrees:—Jn. Blampied, F. F. Amy, Wm. H. Chapman, and L. Blanchard. The following Sir Knights were then elected and invested office-bearers for the ensuing year:—Ed. Martel, Prior; A. J. Boullier, Sub-Prior; Jos. O'Flaherty, C. of the G.; A. Schmitt, Registrar; Jn. Blampied, Treas.; Ph. Binet, Hospitaller; F. F. Amy, First Lieut.; L. Blanchard, Second Lieut.; Wm. H. Long, G. of the S.V.; Wm. B. Payne, S.B.; Ph. J. Boudier, Z.B.; Wm. Metherell, Verger; and Wm. H. Chapman, Warder. A hearty vote of thanks to their distinguished hon. member of the conclave, R. Wentworth Little, for his presence on that occasion, was cheerfully carried, and on the proposition of Sir Knt. A. Schmitt, seconded by the M.E.C., it was also resolved by acclamation "that the Ill. Sir Knt. R. W. Little be elected an honorary member of the Mount Horeb Sanctuary and Commandery," who courteously and gracefully acknowledged that mark of esteem and fraternal amity thus evinced towards him by the Knights. The Commandery was then closed according to ancient custom, and the Knights adjourned to the refectory, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, peculiar to the Order, were proposed. The special toast of the evening, "The Health of Sir Knt. R. Wentworth Little," was duly honoured, and Sir Knt. E. H. Thiellay responded for "The Visitors." A very pleasant and instructive evening was spent.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 19th inst., D. Butler, R.W.M., presiding, supported by G. McDonald, R.W.M. 73, acting S.W.; J. Burns, R.W.M. 87; J. M. Oliver, S.W. 360; J. Law, R.W.M. 570; D. Lamb, D.M. 360; Wm. Brown, 33; G. Stevenson Greenock, St. John's, 175; and others. The lodge was opened. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. An application from Mr. H. L. Craig (which was supported by Bros. H. Hay and Niven, Sec.) was entertained, and he received the First Degree, Bro. G. McDonald officiating. The lodge was then passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, when seven brethren received that, one being on behalf of the Thistle Lodge, 87. This being all the business before the lodge, it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, 30, Hope-street, on the 18th inst., when Mr. James Brooke, who was proposed by Bro. J. Burns, R.W.M., and seconded by Bro. John Miller, P.M., received the First Degree of Masonry. Bro. J. Booth, S.W., officiated at the altar in a manner that reflected much credit upon himself, and gave great satisfaction to the brethren present, among whom were J. Burns, R.W.M.; John Miller, P.M.; D. McDougall, Sec.; A. A. Smith, P.M. 354; J. Balfour, P.M. 332; G. B. Adams, 360; S. McPhee, and others.

GLASGOW.—LODGE DRAMATIC (No. 571).—The first meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 18th inst., at three o'clock. The petition of the promoters of this lodge has been before the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow and the Grand Lodge of Scotland for some time; being now granted, their first meeting was held on the above date, when a large number of the members and office-bearers of the lodges in the province were present to welcome them as the last chartered lodge. Among those we observed Bros. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G. Master; A. McTaggart, M.A., P.G. Sec.; J. Balfour, P.M. 332; J. F. Mitchell, R.W.M. 102; John Wallace, R.W.M. 413; J. Annand, R.W.M. 465; J. Love, S.M. 242; J. Booth, S.W. 87; J. M. Oliver, S.W. 360; R. Ronald, S.W. 275; R. Morrison, 27; Auld, 27; J. Whitehead, Treas. 556; Hardie, 102; Thos. Marshall, St. John, 776, North Brunswick; Reid, R.W.M. 465; J. Peterkin, 219; Edmonds, 129; Kelly, 87; G. B. Adams, 360 ("Freemason"). The following office-bearers for the lodge were elected and installed:—W. Dobson, R.W.M.; Jas. Houston, D.M.; W. S. Vallance, S.M.; H. W. Jackment, S.W.; Siewwright, J.W.; Barbow, Treas.; D. Campbell, Sec.; McGregor, S.D.; R. Smyth, J.D.; J. Hay, I.G.; Mills, Tyler. The lodge was opened, when the R.W.M., in most graceful terms, thanked the brethren present for their kindness in coming to assist at the opening of this lodge. The following brethren were then proposed as honorary members of the lodge, viz.:—John Fraser, P.M. 87; J. Booth, S.W. 87; Mitchell, R.W.M. 102; A. Thorburn, R.W.M. 4; Annand, 465; D. Reid, R.W.M. 465; and A. McTaggart, P.G. Sec.; the R.W.M., Bro. Dobson, officiating at the altar. Bros. Fraser and McTaggart returned thanks for themselves and those who had received honorary affiliation, assuring the members of the Lodge Dramatic that any assistance they could give them would be most freely granted. Applications from three gentlemen were laid before the members of the lodge, who desired to become members of the Craft through the Lodge Dramatic, W. Forsyth, D. Noble, and C. H. Bayles. The three gentlemen were found clear by the ballot. Messrs. Forsyth and Noble, who were present, received the First Degree, Bro. Reid, R.W.M. of 465, officiating. The meetings of the lodge have been fixed for the 1st and 3rd Wednesday of every month, at three o'clock.

GLASGOW.—ST. MUNGO ENCAMPMENT OF KNIGHTS TEMPLARS.—A meeting of this encampment was held in St. Mark's Masonic Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Monday, the 16th inst. Among others, there were present Sir Knights Bell, McKenzie, Jas. Smith, H. T. Shiells, R. Campbell, J. McLeish, G. B. Adams, J. Johnston, Hallady, Gilchrist (acting Sec.), McDade. A great deal of business was placed before the meeting for arrangement and settlement, prominent among which was the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year. It was therefore agreed upon to continue the meeting till that day week, the 23rd inst., when a larger meeting and more of the office-bearers would be present, and business could be settled in a full and satisfactory manner.

But even though every lodge in Bengal should in this way be able to present itself before His Royal Highness—(which of course will not be the case)—it is naturally in Calcutta, not only as the Capital of India, but as the Headquarters of the oldest of the five District Grand Lodges which India and British Burmah now possess,—the oldest in fact, and the largest, among all the District Grand Lodges in the East—it is in Calcutta alone that anything like a really adequate ceremonial, a Masonic State reception,—if I may use the words—of our Grand Master, can, and should, take place.

This brings me to the first point for consideration by our Mofussil Lodges:—What arrangements can each lodge in Bengal make to send their Masters and Wardens, or other representatives, to Calcutta, to be present at an especial Grand Lodge, or other fitting ceremonial, for the reception of our Grand Master?

It is, of course, impossible to name any precise date now, but it would probably be about the middle of December."

The next point we have to think about is the question of expense. Without any attempt on my part to describe to you the various details of expenditure which must arise, it will be evident to all of you, that in the preparation and proper execution of such a ceremonial as the province, unless I am much mistaken, will desire should be compassed on such an unwonted occasion, a considerable expenditure will be inevitable.

The funds of District Grand Lodge (notwithstanding their present prosperous condition for ordinary needs) will certainly not suffice to bear the whole strain, though of course all that it has will be at the disposal of the occasion.

I am disposed to think we shall need to raise at least Rs. 2000.

Considering that the brethren in the Mofussil (at any rate those who come down to Calcutta) will have to bear expenses which will not fall upon those who are resident in Calcutta, it appears to me that if the eleven Calcutta lodges would raise among them Rs. 1000 and the sixteen Mofussil lodges the remaining Rs. 1000, it would be a very fair division of the burden of expense.

Will you then, Worshipful Masters of Lodges, both in Calcutta and in the Mofussil, take this subject of ways and means into your consideration, and will you kindly let me know what your views and feelings about the matter are, and how far your respective lodges will be able to contribute either in purse, or in person, or in both, towards attaining to a successful accomplishment of what is before us.

My words now are merely with a view to inviting you to consider the matter carefully in all its aspects—I refrain purposely from entering into minute detail—I speak simply as it were to introduce the subject, and I would ask you to send me your own opinions upon it freely and candidly—and as early as you can.

There is, however, one suggestion which I cannot abstain from bringing forward. Is this not a fitting time to make a final and determined effort, distinguished from the tantalizing and unsatisfying projects of the past, for the erection of a Freemasons' Hall in Calcutta, worthy of the fraternity in this ancient Province of Bengal? Are we ever, do you think, likely to have again such a favourable opportunity of bringing the undertaking (so often begun, but to be abandoned) to a successful issue? Is there any sort of ceremonial which we could organise for the Masonic reception of our Grand Master that could compare with one of which a portion should be his laying the first foundation stone in the N.W. corner of a Freemasons' Hall, which should, let us say, bear his name and be the lasting memorial of his visit to the Metropolis of India, and the oldest and largest of the Eastern Provinces of his Masonic rule?

Brethren, think well of this suggestion, and if the thought you will give to it is masculine, and the expression masterly and of the true stamp, your answer will unanimously be, "Let it be done, if it can be done." Phrases engrave themselves on memory. It can be done, I think, and the ways (for there is more than one way) of doing it are the following:—

1st. If the brethren in Bengal, numbering little short of 700 (not counting the many scores, I fear I may even say hundreds, who, representing the "ungarnished increment," do not subscribe to any lodge) can raise by debentures a sum of Rs. 70,000 or 80,000, i.e., a little over Rs. 100 each, not as a gift, be it understood, but as a loan—a loan too, at handsome interest, say 6 or 7 per cent.

2nd. It can be done, if not in the best way as first proposed, by getting (and he can be got) a capitalist to build for us a Hall at such a cost as we may determine, we paying on the capital expended a given rate of interest, on the understanding that we can, by any instalment we think fit, pay off the debt, the interest payable being, of course, on the balance due.

You know, brethren, how I have fought for the secure investment of the surplus of our several Charity Funds, and though I objected to the loan of these moneys to District Grand Lodge without security, I should favour a loan secured by a mortgage on the proposed Masonic Hall, and receiving good interest. There are some brethren who think that the rents collected by District Grand Lodge from the Craft will not suffice to pay the interest; but it should be remembered that we need not at first have a building of greater extent than will just answer our requirements, adding to it from time to time as money comes in; and money will come in, brethren, as surely as it is coming in for the Bengal Masonic Association, and, may be, by bequests, perhaps not very large, but likely enough to be many.

But of this I am assured, that the time for beginning is now—that we may be ready for the laying of the foundation stone by the M.W.G.M., if he will graciously be pleased to perform that duty.

To-day we must do something, and that is to appoint a committee, to report by the 31st July to the Dist. Grand Secretary, so that the District Grand Master may decide whether it would be well to summon an emergent meeting of Dist. Grand Lodge, to consider or to act upon the report.

I will ask some brother to propose at a later part of this evening the names of the brethren who should constitute this committee.

I referred parenthetically to the "ungarnished increment" in Masonry. To those brothers who have made a break in their Masonic career I would put a question, and follow it up by exhortation for the future, "to keep the covenant, as the stars keep their courses."

Demitted brothers—Is it not now the time for you to rekindle "the light that none but Craftsmen ever saw?" and with lamp full of the oil of gladness appear in close allegiance to, and alliance with, the M.W.G. Master, who so lately declared that to be a Freemason was to be a loyal and peaceable subject, and a charitable man.

Numbers unprecedented have entered our Order, numbers more are at our portals seeking admission. What will the Masonic world think of me for my seeming impertinence when I say, "Reflect on what you are doing?"

Brothers—quit now and for ever the cave of Adullam. You have rested on your oars more than long enough, take (not a spurt) but a steady pull in the Ancient Craft, and be no longer content with half lights.

To return to the subject of our preparations for our Grand Master's visit; it has occurred to me that Freemasons' Hall, or a portion of it may be used as a club for the convenience of the brethren who may come to Calcutta for the purpose of being present at the Masonic reception of the Prince of Wales. Possibly we might also be able to make arrangements to secure a suitable house, or houses, for dormitories; a troublesome business no doubt—but it may be done if we are very much in earnest (and I think we are) and if we take the field early.

However, as I said when beginning, it is not my intention to go into details now. These must be dealt with hereafter, though soon, and by the committee which we shall I trust, see appointed this evening.

I regret to have to report to you the exclusion from their lodges for non-payment of dues, of two brethren, namely, Bro. Peter Peterson, from Lodge True Brothers, Dinapore, and Bro. Archibald Paxton from Lodge Temperance and Benevolence, Calcutta.

A report of proceedings at a meeting of the Committee of General Purposes, held on the 31st June, having been printed and circulated, was, on motion made by W. Bro. W. B. Mactavish, D.S.G.W., and P.M. of Lodge 109, seconded by W. Bro. Bonnerjee, D.G. Registrar, and W.M. of Lodge 67, taken as read, and W. Bro. A. LeFranc, D.J.G. Deacon, and W.M. of Lodge 229, moved that it be adopted and recorded. Seconded by W. Bro. Fitz, acting D.G. Treas., and P.M. of Lodge 218, and carried.

A report of proceedings of the Committee of General Purposes, at a meeting held on the 7th June, having been printed and circulated, W. Bro. Beer, W.M. 218, and Past D.G. Organist, moved that it be taken as read. Seconded by W. Bro. Girling, W.M. of Lodge 232, and Past D.G. Dir. of Cer., and carried.

W. Bro. Bonnerjee, D.G. Registrar, and W.M. of Lodge 67, moved that the accounts as exhibited in the abstracts contained in said report be accepted as correct and passed. W. Bro. Turner, Past D.G. Sword Bearer, and P.M. of Lodge 1374, seconded the motion, which was carried.

W. Bro. Zemin, Past D.G. Registrar, and P.M. of Lodge 229, moved that the recommendation made by the Committee of General Purposes in the third paragraph of their report of the 7th June be adopted. Seconded by W. Bro. W. Girling, Past D.G. Dir. of Cer., and W.M. of Lodge 232, and carried.

W. Bro. LeFranc, D.J.G.D., and W.M. of Lodge 229, moved that the report of the Grand Committee of the Fund of Benevolence (from the 18th March to 14th June, 1875), having been printed and circulated, be taken as read. Seconded by W. Bro. Fitz, acting D.G. Treas., and P.M. of Lodge 218, and carried.

W. Bro. Blackburn, Past D.G. Superintendent of Works, and P.M. of Lodge 218, moved that the report referred to in the foregoing resolution be adopted and recorded. Seconded by W. Bro. Dutt, D.G. Assist. Dir. of Ceremonies, and W.M. of Lodge 234, and carried.

The District Grand Master in the chair said, with reference to the next business upon the agenda paper, viz., "to elect a brother to act as Treasurer during the absence of W. Bro. W. H. Jones, or until the period for the next annual election," that, as many of them knew, the D.G. Treasurer (W. Bro. W. H. Jones) had a short time since left Calcutta for England, and it had accordingly become necessary that he (the District Grand Master in the chair) should, until the next meeting of District Grand Lodge, appoint a brother to act as Treasurer. He had appointed W. Bro. Fitz, having the fullest confidence in that brother's special qualifications for the office, as well as in his general worth as a man and as a Mason—a confidence which was the fruit of many years of close acquaintance. W. Bro. Fitz had taken over charge of the books and moneys from W. Bro. Jones on the 1st May, and since that date had acted as District Grand Treasurer. His appointment however was valid only for the purpose of carrying on the current work until a meeting of District Grand Lodge should take place; and it would now be for District Grand Lodge either to confirm W. Bro. Fitz in the appointment of Treasurer, or elect some other brother thereto.

W. Brosunno Coomaz Dutt, D. Assist. G. Dir. of Ceremonies, and W.M. of Lodge 234, moved that W. Bro. William Henry Fitz, Past Dist. Grand Deacon, and P.M. of Lodge 218, be elected to fill the office of District Grand Treasurer during the absence of W. Bro. William Henry Jones, or until the period for the next annual election. Seconded by W. Bro. James Blackburn, Past D.G. Supdt. of Works, and P.M. of Lodge 218.

The District Grand Master in the chair enquired if any member of District Grand Lodge had any other nomination to make. None being proposed, W. Bro. Dutt's motion was put, and was declared to be carried unanimously.

The acting District Grand Secretary having announced that the next business standing on the agenda paper was a notice of motion by W. Bro. Major Young, on the subject of the transmission of a memorial from this District Grand Lodge to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, our M.W.G.M., praying him to appoint our W. Bro. Roberts to be his District Grand Master for Bengal.

The District Grand Master in the chair expressed his desire to retire while this portion of the business of the evening was under consideration, and called upon W. Bro. Frederick Jennings, Past Deputy District Grand Master, to take the chair.

W. Bro. Roberts then handed the Hiram of District Grand Lodge to W. Bro. Jennings, and left the lodge-room, duly attended to the ante-room by the Dist. Grand Deacons and Dist. Grand Stewards, under the orders of the District Grand Director of Ceremonies.

Pursuant to notice duly entered on the agenda paper, W. Bro. Major Thomas Newton Young, W.M. of Lodge Sandeman, No. 1374, P.M. of Lodges 552, 836, 988, and 1065, and Past D.G. Superintendent of Works of the District Grand Lodge of the Punjab, then moved that the following memorial be sent from this District Grand Lodge to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master:—

"The Most High, Puissant and Most Illustrious Prince Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Duke of Saxony, Duke of Cornwall and Rothesay, Earl of Chester, Carrick, and Dublin, Baron of Renfrew, and Lord of the Isles, Great Steward of Scotland, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, Knight of the Most Ancient and Noble Order of the Thistle, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Knight of the most Illustrious Order of St. Patrick, and Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, &c., &c., &c., Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:—

"The humble memorial of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, and of twenty of the daughter lodges thereof, working under the United Grand Lodge of England:—

Sheweth—that upwards of two years have now elapsed since the departure, from this country, of District Grand Master Hugh David Sandeman. That during this time the province has successfully been under the rule of, and District Grand Lodge has been presided over by, Past Deputy District Grand Masters Kennedy, Locke, and Roberts; the last appointed Deputy (W. Bro. Murray) having left India even before District Grand Master Sandeman himself did. That your memorialists have no desire to complain of, or feel the smallest dissatisfaction at, the manner in which the important responsibilities connected with the care and charge of the province have been discharged by the aforesaid Past Deputy District Grand Masters; on the contrary, your memorialists are anxious to declare, and would hereby record, their full sense of the services rendered to Freemasonry in Bengal by the Worshipful Brethren above-named, whereby the Craft is at the present moment in a condition certainly not less prosperous than it was at the time of, and previous to, the departure of the District Grand Master. That your memorialists however are of opinion that any further delay in the appointment of a regular and resident successor to R.W. Bro. H. D. Sandeman, as District Grand Master for Bengal, cannot but be exceedingly prejudicial to the best interests of Freemasonry in this large and ancient province. That the aforesaid District Grand Master Sandeman did announce to the province, in District Grand Lodge assembled, on the 27th day of December, 1872, that he had tendered to the M.W. the G.M.] the resignation of his high office—and your memorialists have since learnt, from the said District Grand Master Sandeman himself, that it is not his intention to return to India. Wherefore your memorialists, having the prosperity of the Craft at heart, do now humbly pray that it may please your Royal Highness to appoint a trusty and expert brother, of fit station and of due worth and knowledge, to be your Royal Highness's District Grand Master in, and for, Bengal.

"And this Memorial further sheweth—that having ascertained what the wishes of the lodges in the province are, with respect to this appointment, your memorialists humbly venture to approach your Royal Highness with the following recommendation:—

"That your Royal Highness will be graciously pleased to appoint to the office of District Grand Master for Bengal of the under-mentioned W. brother, to wit:—John Blessington Roberts, of Calcutta, Esquire, Superintendent of Her Majesty's Indian Stationery and Stamp Office, Justice of the Peace, &c., &c., &c.; a Master Mason of nearly thirty years' standing, a Past Master in the Craft, who has held almost every office in this District Grand Lodge up to that of Deputy Grand Master, which he filled nearly ten years ago, and who is an able, worthy, and high-minded brother, in whom your memorialists can confidently pray your Royal Highness to repose full trust.

"That your memorialists are in no wise forgetful that the appointment of District Grand Master is wholly and entirely a prerogative of your Royal Highness's exalted office as Grand Master of the Order, and that your memorialists have, as of use, wont, or right, no voice, vote, or choice whatever, but your memorialists venture to believe that, having regard to the great distance which separates this province from your Royal Highness, you will be graciously pleased to permit and suffer your memorialists to offer this humble declaration of their opinions and desires, and to accord to the same your Royal Highness's gracious and valuable consideration.

"And your memorialists as in duty bound will ever pray."

In moving his resolution, W. Bro. Major Young said he felt that he need have no hesitation in urging its adoption. The name of W. Bro. Roberts was so well known, his Masonic reputation had extended so far and wide, the unanimity shown by the lodges in favour of his appointment as head of the province had been so marked, that it needed no words from him to recommend the resolution which he had the honour to move. The unanimity regarding it which he had referred to was in itself a convincing proof, if any were needed, of the high consideration and esteem with which W. Bro. Roberts was universally regarded by the Craft in Bengal.

W. Bro. Bonnerjee, barrister-at-law, D.G. Registrar, and W.M. of Lodge 67, said he concurred in every word W. Bro. Young had uttered, and most heartily seconded his motion.

The District Grand Master in the chair, in putting the motion, said it must be generally felt that the step proposed to be taken was one of the highest importance to Freemasonry in this province. It surely could not be beneficial to the interests of the Craft that the province should be left virtually without a responsible ruler for an indefinite time, and he was glad that District Grand Lodge had decided to recommend to the M.W. the Grand Master, for appointment to the high office of District Grand Master, a Mason so able, and so experienced, as W. Bro. Roberts. The motion was then put and carried unanimously.

The District Grand Master in the chair then desired the D.G. Dir. of Cer. to proceed with the Dist. Grand Deacons and Dist. Grand Stewards to the ante-room, and to beg W. Bro. Roberts to return to District Grand Lodge.

W. Bro. Roberts having re-entered, and re-assumed the Hiram, W. Bro. Jennings reported the resolution which had been passed in his absence.

W. Bro. Roberts thanked the brethren for the mark of their confidence, and said, that whatever might be the result of the resolution which they had just recorded, his best services would always be at the disposal of the Freemasons in Bengal.

The Acting District Grand Secretary reported the receipt of apologies from the several brethren for unavoidable non-attendance that evening.

The Acting District Grand Secretary moved, that the Committee for considering, and reporting upon, the means by which a Freemasons' Hall may be erected in Calcutta, and for managing all arrangements in connection with any Masonic ceremonial that may take place on the occasion of the Prince of Wales's visit, be constituted as follows, namely, the present Committee of General Purposes, with the addition thereto, by the Acting District Grand Master, of such brethren as he may think likely to be able to assist in the work. The Committee to report on the subject of the Freemasons' Hall by the 31st July. Seconded by W. Bro. J. L. Taylor, Past D.S.G.W., and P.M. of Lodges 392 and 1374, and carried.

There being no further business to be brought forward, the usual collection was made for the Fund of Benevolence; the amount was announced to be Rs. 87-12.

District Grand Lodge was then closed in form.

THE POSITION OF MASONRY IN THE YEAR 1875, AND ITS NOBLE CHARITIES.

This year has no doubt been a year "par excellence" for Masonry, as far as Great Britain is concerned: we have seen our future King devoting himself to our interests, coming amongst us at a critical moment to work with us, and assist us in building up the great Masonic edifice of Faith, Hope, and Charity.

Yes, my brethren, a new stone has been laid, on which, I trust, a superstructure will rise worthy of its builder. The stone has been laid and the key-note struck, and already numbers are flocking to our gates, seeking admission to what before they thought of no account, but now worthy of their special notice.

Another stone has been laid in the unprecedented amount of donations to our three noble charities, as I read over £27,000 for this year. Our brethren have indeed acted well and truly; they have done their duty nobly.

There remains for us now matter of deep consideration, calling forth our utmost energy. "We must be careful who we may admit out of the numbers seeking admission." A moment of prosperity is with us! it depends on you, my brethren—aye, all of us together—to use this prosperity that it may last for ever.

The tide and the breeze are with us; with a flowing sail we joyfully career on our course, we see not the dangers before us; but the sentry on duty, the watchman in the fore-castle, suddenly cries "Breakers ahead." All is confusion, but the craft is sound, the officers able and efficient; the danger may be and can be avoided, with due care and a sharp look out. Breakers are indeed ahead of our good old Craft!—breakers of indifference! breakers of misrule! breakers of self-indulgence, self-love, self-seeking.

On what is Masonry founded? A pure system of morality! What are its objects? To love the Lord our God with all our hearts, our neighbours as ourselves, and to be in charity with all men! These are great lessons, which are practically evidenced by an observance of the three great Masonic characteristics, viz., Faith, Hope, and Charity. How can we gain this strict observance? Only by following the details of Prudence, Temperance, Fortitude, and Justice.

To be a Mason in name is one thing! to be a Mason in deed is another! It is not quantity that we require, but quality. Now, my brethren, do you see the breakers ahead?

Among the numbers seeking admission, we may (nay, I may say shall) find those who, having gained the portals of our Order, from incapacity or other causes may become indifferent.

How many now have we in our Order who are ignorant of our deep mysteries—who, in fact, never practise charity? Others again there will be of good intentions, true and honourable men, who, from want of temper, or other unhappy qualities, will for ever be causing disunion in the lodge! others again who, having passed the portals, seek only the convivial, to the detriment of the business department of the Order! In fact, I have heard it related, that certain brethren, who were always late at business (event when their attendance was necessary), coming in for the convivial, and, business not being concluded, complaining, aye, complaining bitterly, that dinner or supper should be delayed because the working brethren had commenced late! Other breakers there are ahead! viz., those who, having joined Masonry, seek not its high aims, but their own aggrandisement, or their own self-advantage.

These are the breakers that have ever and always will be ahead of the true Craftsman, and what fitter occasion than the present can there be to lay down the chart (not a new one) of the real duties of a true and worthy brother?

But you may say, why bring forward these difficulties now, if they always have and always will exist? Why? Simply because now, with the plethora of applications for admission, we must duly and truly discriminate as to who are fit and worthy candidates for admission to our Order. We know that Masonry is now the fashion, many prompted by this, many by vanity, may come before us: we must reflect, we must discriminate, that in the future no evil shall come on the Craft. In the words of Holy Writ, then, on which we work and have our being, again I say "Watch."

Brethren of the Craft, you have numbers seeking admission; eschew haste, enquire diligently into the moral and actual life of aspirants to our secrets! Consider their capabilities! Keep not out the poor for the rich; there are equally good candidates in both degrees! Seek only excellence, and one stone will be well laid.

I have already mentioned our three great Masonic characteristics, viz.: Faith, Hope, and Charity; our Faith will consolidate our true character, and lead us to carry out in our lives and actions our two great duties to God and our neighbour; Hope will encourage us; and in our Charity we can prove for ever our due and earnest endeavour to do our duty as true men and Masons.

Charity comprises the whole, as we find in Scripture: but what is charity? Charity, says the inspired apostle, "thinketh no evil, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up." Our neighbour is as ourself! We cannot judge him, only the great God alone! Human words are inadequate to truly designate charity; the glowing words of St. Paul to the Corinthians must serve me; "that though you may give your goods, though you may offer yourself as a sacrifice, and have not charity, it profiteth nothing." Away, then, with pride and envy; be charitable and forgiving; seek not your own good but that of others; serve your Creator; your neighbour as yourself; and do your utmost to fulfil the duties which as a denizen of this life you are called upon to perform.

I now come to the second question, viz., our charities and institutions. I have already mentioned that over £27,000 has this year been contributed to these good works in England, besides other amounts given in the provinces and privately. The statistics have been published, so I need not discuss them. Even in this case there are breakers ahead, and what time can be more fitting than the present to enlarge upon them.

We have an axiom in Masonry, "that we should give our utmost to charity without detriment to ourselves or our families." It may be answered, we do so! but how many of those who have given—aye, willingly while their means lasted—have thought on this subject; have they not often given too much; while the callous, the indifferent, and the negligent have been looking on doing nothing. Who are those that give? I can answer on behalf of my brethren who these are. They are those who knowing their duty, have done it. These good men think no evil; they think not of themselves; they see the suffering and the destitute before them; their large hearts are opened, and they give freely: I speak of the good and true, whether rich or whether poor—those I maintain are those who have given and do give either of their abundance or of their penury; but what proportion of our Order belong to this class? If all our brethren were actuated by these feelings our returns would be twenty, aye, fifty, times greater. Look at the statistics and you will see how few, how very few, contributors we have in proportion to our recorded members. Let us mark this era in Masonry by laying another stone by inciting the indifferent, the callous, the negligent to come forward; then we may feel that we have one and all done our duty. How many have refrained from giving in this and previous years? how many have been callous and half-hearted? Come forward then, ye erring brethren; help in the great work! Your institutions are before you! They are well carried, on as their success shows. This is no new call I make upon you; remember your admission into Masonry and do your duty.

It is an acknowledged fact that Masonry in Great Britain is in the ascendant, I therefore implore the Master, Wardens, and brethren of the Craft to exercise due care as to what candidates they admit, and when admitted to teach them thoroughly their Masonic duties, to urge them to seek deep into our mysteries, and to inculcate the practice of charity. This would be a fitting tribute to our Royal Grand Master, and make his reign one of the greatest eras in Masonry. I appeal to you now, my newly-initiated brethren, seek information from all zealous and well-instructed Masons, and, above all, cultivate charity, charity of mind, charity of feeling, and charity of action! God the Creator has blessed your store, give freely and ungrudgingly what you are able.

I now appeal to all in England, Ireland, and Scotland. The two first nations have grand institutions for the orphans, the widows, and aged. Scotland will, I trust, soon answer to the call. In fact, I know that a grand institution there is now being promoted, and gaining support far and wide among all classes of the brotherhood. Think, my friends, of the good that is done. The widow's heart cheered in her misery, children lamenting their parents supported and educated, aged and destitute brethren relieved. Think of the hearty prayers offered up by the fatherless and widows; think of the blessings invoked daily—nay, hourly—by those poor sufferers on the heads of those good and true Masons who have come to their support.

Another acknowledged fact. The contributions in England have this year reached no less a sum than £27,000.

You who are half-hearted, you who are negligent of your Masonic duties, you who, in fact, from various causes have resigned active participation in our mysteries, surely you cannot withstand the cry of the helpless; your hearts cannot be so hardened. Show that you are men and Masons. Freely ye have received, freely give.

Have I not now proved that there are "breakers ahead?" have I not proved that, spite of the large donations, we should do yet more? We must, one and all of us, help to put our house in order. This present prosperity may make or mar our institution.

We must not relax our endeavours for good, but press forward anxiously in our calling. Care, forethought, attention to our duties, industry will swell the tide of prosperity. Negligence, apathy, carelessness, will destroy the work of centuries.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF THE GRIMSBY MASONIC HALL.

Monday, the 16th, was probably the most important, and more deserving to be remembered, of any day in the modern history of Grimsby Freemasonry, for seldom indeed is it that a public demonstration of the character and ceremonial surrounding the proceedings that then took place is witnessed in this town; and though much of the extraordinary interest manifested in the events of the day arose from curiosity, yet the magnificence, combined with the solemnity of the display, lent its peculiar attractiveness to the occasion. The "Pelham Pillar" Lodge was established at Chapman's Hotel in September, 1859, and having been for three years conducted at that house, the lodge was for various reasons, and during the Mastership of Bro. Whalley, removed to premises in Bullring-lane, where it is still held. It was in 1867, when Bro. Copeland was Worshipful Master, that the necessity for having a Masonic Hall was first mooted, but at that time the site required could not be obtained, and the question laid dormant until a fresh movement was started in 1873 by Bro. Hadfield, who was then the Worshipful Master, and who manifested a special interest in the matter. Since then the proposal has gained in strength, until a few months ago the "Pelham Pillar" Masonic Hall Company was formed, the chief promoters being Bro. Hadfield and the other P.M.'s. The site of the proposed hall is at the junction of George-street and Osborne-street. [On this site, as many old inhabitants of Grimsby will remember, stood a hawthorn tree, in whose branches the school boys of bygone years have disported themselves. Additional historic celebrity will henceforth attach to this tree, now removed, in the fact that the working tools, and the box containing them, used in the stone-laying ceremony of Monday last were manufactured out of it. The brethren on this occasion permitted the uninitiated in Masonic mysteries to be present, and for the special convenience and accommodation of ladies a platform was kindly provided, from which about 300 fashionably attired ladies viewed the proceedings, adding a charm to their picturesqueness and brilliancy. A profuse display of flags also enlivened the scene. The hall is estimated to cost £2835. Mr. T. G. Barker is the architect, and Mr. Thomas Drew the builder. Mr. Hasten Clark has been appointed secretary to the company, and Mr. A. Bates solicitor. A glass jar deposited in a cavity cut in the stone contained copies of the "Grimsby Observer, News, and Herald," a memorandum of the articles of the company, a programme of the day's proceedings, and some current coins of the realm.

After a Provincial Grand Lodge of Emergency had been opened at the Mechanics' Hall, the brethren formed and marched to the site of the proposed building.

The procession was a very large one, and had an impressive and imposing appearance.

Arrived at the entrance to the site, the brethren divided to the right and left, facing inwards, leaving an avenue for the Prov. Grand Standard Bearer, the Prov. Grand Sword Bearer, Bro. Sutcliffe, and the deputy of R.W. Prov. G.M., who passed up to the foundation stone, followed by the officers of Prov. G. Lodge and other acting officers. The inscription is as follows:—"This stone was laid by Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., August 2nd, 1875." The officiating brethren having duly taken their positions round the stone, the Prov. Grand Chaplain invoked a blessing on the undertaking, the Chaplain and brethren alternately reciting the psalm, "Except the Lord build the house," &c. The R.W. D.P.S.M., Bro. W. H. Smyth, having read his dispensation appointing Bro. John Sutcliffe to officiate in laying the stone according to ancient Masonic custom, Bro. Sutcliffe stated that they were assembled to lay the corner or foundation stone of a building to be hereafter erected, and which was specially intended to accommodate Masons, the Craft in Grimsby having made great progress, and their numbers and importance now rendered a Masonic Hall desirable and necessary. The superintendent of works then presented the plans of the proposed edifice to the officiating officer, who after examining, approved and returned them to the superintendent. The Secretary (Bro. H. Clark) next read a copy of the document placed in the phial deposited in the cavity of the stone.

The officiating officer having spread the cement, the stone was slowly lowered to its bed, the band playing "Rule Britannia." A flourish of trumpets then indicated that the stone was placed on its base. "God bless the Prince of Wales" was then played. The officiating officer then directed the bearers of the plumb rule, the level, and the square to the performance of their respective duties. The first declared the stone to be perfect and trustworthy, the second well founded, and the third that it was true. The O.O. "having full confidence in their skill in the Royal art," proceeded to complete the work, knocking the stone thrice with a mallet, and declaring it properly laid in accordance with the ancient rules of architecture. After a performance by the band, corn in a cornucopia, wine in an ewer, and oil and salt in vessels, were handed in turn to the O.O., and poured by him on the stone. In doing so he said:—"I scatter corn upon this stone as an emblem of plenty, and may the blessings of bounteous Heaven be showered upon us, and may our hearts be filled with gratitude to the Giver of all good gifts."—"I pour wine upon this stone, the emblem of joy and gladness. May our hearts be made glad with the influence of Divine truth, and may virtue flourish as a vine."—"I pour oil as an emblem of peace. May peace and harmony, goodwill and brotherly love, abound amongst us all."—"I scatter salt, the emblem of purity, of hospitality, of fidelity, and of friendship; and I dedicate this building to the peaceful pursuits of Freemasonry."—After each of these formalities the Chaplain read an appropriate text of Scripture, and concluded with a brief prayer.

The Treasurer (Bro. M. Dawson) placed some current coins of the realm in the phial, which he deposited in the cavity of the stone, which the officiating officer saw properly secured with cement. Bro. Acey's band was in attendance and played a solemn dirge whilst the stone was being lowered by three distinct drops, the last leaving it suspended about 10 inches from its bed.

Bro. John Hadfield, advancing to the officiating officer and presenting him with a beautiful silver trowel, said: Right Worshipful Sir, you are very well aware that the room in the old Masonic lodge in Grimsby has now become far too small to accommodate the brethren; therefore we propose to erect this building in order to make room for more gentlemen who wish to become members; and I, being chairman of the company who are about to erect this hall, have been requested by my brother directors to present you with this trowel for the purpose of laying the foundation stone. In presenting you with this trowel I am simply paying you the compliment which the brethren of the province think you deserve, knowing as they do how long you have been a good and faithful Freemason (hear hear), how long you have fought the battles of the Craft, and how long you have always done your best to assist the suffering widows and orphans. In presenting you with this trowel, and in wishing you health, long life, and prosperity, I am sure a responsive throb of joy will emanate from every Mason in this assembly. (Applause.)

The trowel, which was supplied by Mrs. Webber, widow of Bro. Webber, bore the inscription—"Presented to Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., on the occasion of laying the foundation stone of the new Masonic Hall, Grimsby. Monday, August 2nd, 1875."

Bro. Sutcliffe then addressed the assembly, saying: Brethren, ladies, and gentlemen—We have met here to-day for the purpose of laying the foundation stone of a new house in which the Freemasons of this town and ancient port may assemble. It has devolved upon me—unworthy though I am—as the oldest Freemason in the town, to discharge this duty. This must be to me a very proud day, and one which I shall ever remember with gratitude to my brethren for their selection of me to perform this office. In the outer world the principles of Freemasonry are a good deal criticised by men who do not thoroughly understand or even know our precepts or our practices. We are generally described as a party of men who meet together for social enjoyments. Admitted we do, is there anything improper in that? I say no. But we have higher, higher motives than that of occasionally meeting together for social pleasure. We meet for the promotion amongst ourselves of brotherly love and charity and assistance to all—more especially our brethren perhaps—but to all who may require it outside the pale of our association. (Hear, hear.) I think I may safely say there is never any great national calamity arises but you see the Masons assisting the helpless and the sufferers. (Hear, hear.) We have amongst us high educational institutions. We care for the aged and infirm brethren and their widows, and find a home, education, and clothing for the orphans of our deceased brethren and sisters. In many places schools are maintained by the Masons of a province. In addition to them we have those grand institutions—an asylum for aged and infirm brethren and our magnificent and splendid schools for boys and girls. Upwards of 200 aged Freemasons, and the widows of brethren, now receive very handsome annuities from the fund which is devoted to that purpose. In this province there are several widows—I don't know exactly how many—who receive an annuity of £26 per annum, and brethren who receive an annuity of £36 per annum. These allowances must be a great assistance and comfort to them in their old age. Then we have a school for girls, in which 150 daughters of decayed Freemasons are taught, educated, and clothed, and after they leave school respectable positions are found for them. At present this province of Lincolnshire has 4 children in the Girls' School. But we have another institution of which we all feel proud—prouder almost than of any other institution connected with the Craft—I mean the Boys' school. (Hear, hear.) In it 178 orphan boys—children of deceased Masons—are educated and clothed, and a very excellent and superior education is given to them. These three institutions are supported by the voluntary contributions of the Masons of England, and during the past year no less a sum than £27,000 has been subscribed towards their maintenance. (Applause.) There is not another order, I believe, in this country that can boast such noble subscriptions. To the Boys' School alone the subscription was nearly £13,000, and that is unprecedented I believe, in the annals of almost any charitable institution. (Hear, hear.) The outer world has thought proper within the last two or three years to attack us, more especially one class or clique of men, who charge us with being irreligious and disloyal. This charge is made against us by a leading member of that party who said his second loyalty is due to the Queen of this country, but his first loyalty is due to the potentate of a foreign land. I leave you to judge whether that charge of disloyalty comes with good grace from men of that character. As to our being irreligious, why whenever we assemble the volume of Sacred Law is laid open, and it guides and rules all our actions and proceedings. (Hear, hear.) Thus much for their charge of irreligion. I think the public do not think we are such great hypocrites as to meet in this manner, if we were not really sincere in our principles. As to the charge of disloyalty, coming from a class of men who say their second loyalty only is due to this country, and that their loyalty is firstly due to a foreign potentate, I think the lie has been crammed down their throats by our Her Apparent to the Throne having taken the office of Grand Master. (Applause.) But before he came into that position he knew and had studied the principles of Freemasonry. He came to the fore, and gave the lie to scandalous, libellous fellows. (Hear, hear.) I have now only to say that we have placed this stone here to-day for the erection of a Masonic Hall for the purpose of affording more accommodation to the members who are crowding to our craft. I have been a Mason over twenty-three years. At that time we had only 600 lodges on the grand roll of England. Now the number has greatly increased, and we can count 1500 lodges, showing that in twenty years the number has more than doubled. The increase has been going on more rapidly during the past three years than during any previous period. We do not go hawking about the streets, in all the highways and by-ways, what we do, but our principles only want to be known, I am quite sure, to be admired. (Applause.) Turning to the ladies' platform, Bro. Sutcliffe said:—I thank you for the great compliment you have paid me and the Craft by gracing with your presence the ceremonial of to-day. (Applause.)

The Masonic version of the National Anthem was then sung, the air being taken by Bro. Copeland. With this the ceremony terminated, and the procession re-formed in inverted order. The brethren walked back to the Mechanics' Institute, where Grand Lodge was formally closed.

The banquet held in the evening in the large room at the Town-hall was presided over by Bro. John Hadfield, P.M., P.P.G.J.D. for Lincoln, as chairman of the Masonic Hall Company, Bro. and Mrs. Sutcliffe occupying the post of honour. There was a large attendance of Masons, the board being graced by the presence of their wives and daughters. Amongst the brethren present were the following guests of Bro. Sutcliffe:—W. H. Radley, Boston; Wm. Watkins, Lincoln; Rev. Dr. Ace, Loughton; W. J. Bland, Boston; W. G. Moore, Grimsby; E. J. Cullen, Lincoln; A. Kirk, Gainsborough; R. Goodmann, Gainsborough; Thos. Slaton, jun., Boston; J. A. Thomas, Boston; Rev. J. C. K. Saunders, Thornton-le-moor; C. M. Nesbitt, Louth; F. O. Marsden, Louth; T. W. Thimbleby, Spilsby; Alfd. Parkin, Doncaster; Wm. Pooles, Boston; Geo. Nelson, Limber; Wm. Swallow, Barton; Jno. Barnclough, Lincoln; J. W. Palmer, Boston; W. B. Bratley, Boston; Wm. Sissons, Barton; Thos. Fryer, Brigg; G. G. Birkett, Louth; H. C. Chambers, Market Rasen; Rev. R. T. Ward, Salmonby; Martin Kemp, Hull; R. W. Vivian, Hull; F. Binckes, London; W. Pallitt, Manchester; J. Spink, F. Phillipson, Smith, Terry, and Little, Grimsby. A sumptuous repast was provided by Bro. W. H. Roberts, of the Yarborough Hotel. Mr. O'Connor, fruiterer, of Victoria-street, supplied the excellent dessert, and tastefully adorned the tables with flowers and plants.

The Chairman gave the three loyal toasts in enthusiastic terms; followed by Bro. Radley (Boston) with "The Bishop and Clergy," to which Bro. the Rev. J. C. K. Saunders, P.G.C., responded. Bro. Thomas proposed the patriotic toast, coupled with the name of Capt. Garvey, who returned thanks for the three services; after which several official healths were honoured.

The Chairman then proposed "The Health of Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., and acting D.S.G.M., on laying the foundation stone." (Applause.) He invited the company to drink the health of Bro. Sutcliffe in a bumper, observing that it was needless for him to dilate on the many excellences of that gentleman, many of which, however, he dwelt upon, and thus called forth an exuberance of cheering.

Bro. Sutcliffe thanked the company most sincerely and heartily. He felt that he should retire from the position he held in Masonry, and make room for a younger man. ("No.") There were as good fish in the sea as ever were caught. He had taken a prominent position in Masonry because he loved it, and because he thought it was the finest institution in the world. It inculcated brotherly love, and they were enabled to look more generously upon the little failings of a brother than upon those of the outer world. He then alluded to the charities which the brethren upheld, and proceeded to remark upon the growth of the Craft in numbers and strength.

The Chairman next proposed "The Visiting Brethren," for whom Bro. McMurchie, Bro. Swallow, and Bro. Nelson responded.

Bro. Sutcliffe proposed "The Chairman and Directors of the Pelham Pillar Masonic Hall Company, Limited, and success to the undertaking." In doing so he remarked that the perseverance which their chairman had displayed in the matter was admirable (hear, hear), and he was to be congratulated upon the result of his exertions.

The Chairman, in responding, stated that the total cost of the building would be £3000, towards which not a single gift would be received. The capital would be subscribed by Masons in £1 shares, and £1700 worth had been applied for.

Bro. Vivian proposed "The W.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, and the W. Masters of our Lodges present."

Bro. W. Marshall (Vice-Chairman) acknowledged the compliment paid him.

Bro. A. Bates gave "The Masonic Charities" in a speech full of kindly sympathy.

The remaining toasts were "The Ladies," and "All Poor and Distressed Masons throughout the world," responded to by Bro. Collinson.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following is the agenda of business to be transacted in Grand Lodge on Wednesday, 1st September, 1875.

1. The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 2nd June for confirmation.

No. 129, Kendal..... £50 0 0
The widow of a brother of the Acacia Lodge,
No. 1309, Southall..... 100 0 0
A brother of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 298,
Rochdale..... 50 0 0
A brother of the Westminster and Keystone
Lodge, No. 10, London..... 150 0 0
3. The Report of the Board of General Purposes to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:—

The Board of General Purposes beg to report that the subject of wearing special or commemorative jewels unauthorized by the Most Worshipful Grand Master having been brought under their notice, they have considered it desirable to direct the Grand Secretary to issue a circular to the Provincial Grand Secretaries and other Masonic authorities, requesting them to warn the brethren under their several jurisdictions against wearing any such jewels, except those which have previously received the sanction of the Most Worshipful Grand Master.

(Signed) PETER DE L. LONG,
Vice-President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 17th Aug. 1875.
To the Report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 13th day of August inst., showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3481 10s. 7d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

4. The Annual Report of "The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons," dated the 21st May, 1875, will be laid before Grand Lodge.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF NEW SCHOOLS AT OLD CUMNOCK.

On Thursday afternoon the usually quiet little village of Old Cumnock was the scene of an event of considerable interest, namely, the laying of the memorial stone of a public school in course of erection there. The building, which is situated on the Barrhill Road, in close proximity to the old graveyard, is of the Gothic style of architecture. It is a handsome structure, similar to the other School Board schools, and, being designed to accommodate upwards of 800 scholars, will supply the requisite school accommodation for the children residing in the district. It has been erected at a cost of nearly £4000, and will supply a want in the locality which has been felt for some time past. To witness the ceremony of laying the memorial stone of the school the inhabitants turned out en masse on Thursday. In the forenoon contingents from Kilmarnock, Ayr, Troon, Catrine, and a number of other Masonic lodges began to arrive, and by mid-day the streets of the village were crowded with visitors. Shortly after two o'clock the procession, headed by a brass band, left the Black Bull Hotel for the new building.

"MASONIC INFIDELITY."

[We extract this choice little bit of nonsense from the "Church Herald."]

SIR,—It seems to me "Mr. Dore" is more bold than wise, when he affirms that "Freemasonry is essentially a religious and Conservative institution." Will he have the kindness to explain what he means by a religious institution? We are told by a Masonic writer that "according to Freemasonry it belongs to reason to create not the form alone, but also the substance of religion." The last efforts made to uphold ecclesiastical Christianity occasioned its complete expulsion from the realm of reason. . . . However, reason became aware of the irreconcilable enmity existing between its own teaching and the dogmas of the Church."

This is quoted from a Masonic book, at page 208, of "The Secret Warfare of Freemasonry." (Burns.) Again, as to its Conservative character, (page 93), "The Secret of Freemasonry consists in these words, equality and liberty; all men are free, all men are equal." Though this book has been noticed publicly by Freemasons, I have nowhere heard of their attempting to deny the accuracy of its information, and I am sure no thoughtful Christian can read it without being convinced that Freemasonry is essentially anti-Christian and Socialistic.

The Inauguration Banquet of the Beacontree Lodge of Instruction No. 1228, will take place on Tuesday, September 7th, at the Red Lion, Leytonstone, at half-past eight precisely. The Lodge of Instruction will meet at the Red Lion on every succeeding Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

THE FREEMASONS' TAVERN.—The balance-sheet submitted by the directors of the Freemasons' Tavern Company to the shareholders shows a deficiency in the trading account for the past year, which is attributed partly to the cost of repairs and furnishing, and partly to special competition encountered by the company; but a hope is expressed that certain alterations at present under consideration will have the effect of bringing about a more satisfactory state of things.—"City Press."

Prince Leopold has been admitted a member of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St Andrew's.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon has left Highclere Castle, Newbury, and rejoined his yacht at Cowes.

At a special meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Ulster, held on Thursday, the Right Worshipful W. E. Scott, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, presiding, an address was read to be presented to his Grace the Lord-Lieutenant, hailing with satisfaction his accession to the office of Grand Master of the Order in Ireland. A deputation of the Provincial Grand Officers was appointed to attend on his Grace at the Palace, and present the address, which was subsequently done. The Duke read a gracious reply.

FREEMASONRY IN NORTH WALES.—The Provincial Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, which was to have been held at Bangor on the 27th instant, has been indefinitely postponed. The abandonment of the lodge has been a great disappointment, not only to the brethren, but to the townspeople generally, as the arrangements had so far progressed that a full choral service was to have been held in the cathedral, and a special sermon preached by the Bishop of Bangor.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught left on Wednesday, Aug. 24, for Krauchenwies, on a visit to the princely family of Hohenzollern. His Royal Highness then proceeded to Darmstadt. He will take his departure for Gibraltar during the second week in October, and will return to England early in the spring.

The Rev. Basil Wilberforce, of Southampton, who is one of the leaders in the Church of England Temperance movement, has received a letter announcing that his Royal Highness Prince Leopold will become president of the Oxford branch of the Church of England Temperance Society.

HAVE THE REMEDY WITHIN YOUR REACH.—Nothing has yet equalled the efficacy of Holloway's balsamic Pills in checking disease in and restoring vigour to the human body. They root out all impurities from the blood, and regulate and invigorate every organ. Immense care is taken to secure the genuine preparation to the public, that no disappointment may be caused to invalids seeking health by Holloway's medicine. Their composition and careful packing prevent the impaction of the virtues by time, sea voyage, or climate. They never gripe or cause inconvenience. In disturbances of the system, disorders of the digestive apparatus, and derangements of the bowels, these Pills exercise an almost magical power, which conquers disease, safely, quickly, conveniently, and cheaply.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUG. 28, 1875.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER AT SHEFFIELD.

We congratulate the Craft on the happy and glorious reception of our Grand Master in the good town of Sheffield. We have never been among those who doubted the loyalty and true-heartedness of the Hallamshire Boys and the "Sheffield Blades." We know better than most people the real worth and sterling merit of warm-hearted Yorkshiremen generally, and even amid the smoke and din of Sheffield there were, we felt sure, as "leal" and as sympathetic hearts as in any other portion of the realm of England. We therefore congratulate alike our Grand Master and the Sheffield people on this auspicious event, and trust that the marked feelings of admiration and gratification may never be forgotten on either side. Sure are we that old and young will long remember the visit of our Royal and genial Grand Master, the winning presence of his charming consort, and all those loyal and bettering emotions which such happy meetings are calculated to produce among all classes of English citizens. Sheffield seems to have done nobly. All the arrangements were faultless, and the fact that that mighty mass of people were so easily controlled and so admirably behaved may teach other localities a lesson, and proves, we think, that the "residuum," as someone has foolishly termed a section of our countrymen, is going ahead, and is moving up. The Freemasons in Sheffield, always zealous, have presented a most appropriate address to the Grand Master, which expresses the feelings well of all Yorkshire and English Freemasons. The Mayor, who has shown himself to be of first-rate "metal," has, by his philanthropic gift to his toiling fellow citizens, and the felicitous manner in which he has offered the civic hospitality to his august visitors, gained for himself the golden opinions of all. We know of no brighter page in our recent annals than the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Sheffield.
