Our Royal brother landed at Bombay at four o'clock on the 8th inst., accompanied by the Viceroy and his suite, who had gone on board the Serapis immediately on her arrival. On leaving the Serapis, a procession was formed astern of the Royal barge by the Admirals and Captains of the Queen's ships in their boats. Salutes were fired by the squadron and the shore batteries. All the ships in harbour were dressed with flags and their yards manned, forming a grand spectacle. His Royal Highness, who wore the uniform of a Field-Marshal, was received on landing by Sir Philip Wodehouse, Governor of Bombay; Lord Napier of Magdala, Commander-in-Chief in India; the Hon. Sir Michael R. Westropp, Chief Justice of Bombay; and other high civil and military officials. Upwards of 70 native Princes, Chiefs, and Sardars, in glittering Oriental costume, were also present. An address of welcome was presented by the Municipality of Bombay, to which the Prince briefly replied. A brilliant procession was then formed, which proceeded at a slow pace towards the Government House. Troops lined the road as far as the native town, from which point the way was kept by the police. The greeting given by the people to his Royal Highness was at once cordial and respectful. The utmost enthusiasm was manifested along the whole line of route, a dense, seething mass of people of all castes occupying every inch of standing room from the ground to the house-tops. It is computed that nearly 200,000 persons came from the Mofussil alone. As the Prince neared certain points, the excitement increased, the mob gathering round the carriage and catching the enthusiasm of the Europeans. Nevertheless, excellent order prevailed. His Royal Highness looked very well, and appeared highly gratified with the demonstrations in his honour. The whole city is splendidly decorated, and there is a series of eight triumphal arches along the route taken by the procession. In celebration of the Prince's visit there will be a general holiday until the 15th inst. The Parsees met on the 6th inst. at the splendid Fire Temple belonging to the Ardaseer Hormusjee Wadia family, of Cowjee Castle, in order to offer prayers for the safe arrival and departure from India of the Prince of Wales. The reception of the Native Princes by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on the 9th, was stately and splendid. After the Rajahs of Kolapoor, Mysore, Oodeypore, Kutch, and Baroda, came Sir Salar Jung, with the Nizam's deputation, which contained many Rajahs, Nawabs, and Chiefs. The Prince's birthday was celebrated by salutes all over India. At 4 p.m. the Prince visited the Admirals. Salutes were fired, and the fleet was illuminated on the departure of the Prince. On his landing he was received by the Viceroy and the Governor at the Mazagon Stairs. The Prince and the Governor and Viceroy, with their suites, drove in seven carriages for two hours through Bombay, which was illuminated. It was a marvellous sight with the miles of lamps and the cheers, which are unusual from natives. There were myriads of quaint devices; among others, "Tell Mama we are happy." After the Queen's health, the Governor proposed that of the Prince, who expressed pleasure at his reception. He had, he said, always wished to see India, and never would forget his 34th birthday, which had been passed in that great Empire of the Queen. Among the natives in general the impression was most satisfactory, and the important Chiefs were greatly pleased. The thermometer is at 88 degrees. Every one is well. Bombay is still en fête, and there is tremendous excitement, never such a sight having been beheld there. The Prince thanked the Governor for the arrangements. He gave a dinner to the crews of the Serapis and Osborne.

The "Times" of Thursday has the following:— "During the Guildhall banquet on Tuesday evening the Lord Mayor addressed the following telegram to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Bombay:—'The Lord Mayor and his distinguished guests now assembled wish your Royal Highness many happy returns of the day.' Yesterday morning the Prince replied by a telegram dated 'Parell (Bombay), 11.40 a.m., 10th November:—'Accept my very best thanks for your kind wishes and those of your distinguished guests on the occasion of my birthday, and I wish you and the Corporation every possible prosperity.' A similar message was sent by the Benchers from Middle Temple Hall, and as promptly and graciously acknowledged."

NEW LODGES.

Our readers will note, as week follows week, that our columns record the consecration of new lodges and the dedication of Masonic halls. Our present issue contains the account of the consecration of two lodges, one chapter, and one Masonic hall. Our muster roll of lodges is fast approaching to 1600, and that number will, no doubt, ere long actually be reached. This ought to be a subject of rejoicing to all loyal Freemasons. We cannot affect to sympathise with that lackadaisical or apathetic view of the case which, if it had any encouragement, would throw cold water on any tendencies amongst us to enlarge and to advance. On the contrary, we firmly believe that all such ideas are both shallow and meaningless, and that, of course within due limits, the extension of our lodge system is greatly to be desiderated and heartily to be welcomed. Two points seem to press upon us from the facts before us which we shall do well to notice. The one is a note of warning, the other a voice of encouragement. Freemasonry is not, let us bear in mind, a plaything or a sensation. It is a very useful, unassuming, benevolent, and valuable Order, a friend to true progress and improving civilisation, which asks for and obtains the warm support of the intellectual, the moral, the kindly disposed, and the honest hearted. It is an institution around which we may freely rally, amid many opposing schools of thought and sympathy to-day, as offering us a standpoint, to use a German phrase, on which we ourselves can plant as on a firm basis its goodly standard of toleration, honour, loyalty, and charity. Freemasonry does not ask our adhesion or our adherence simply because it is a pleasant social institution, because it dispenses honours or bestows rank, or even because in it we can frequent the agreeable gathering, and enjoy some beneficial moments of needful recreation! These motives may sway some, no doubt, but they are all secondary motives, and not the motives which Freemasonry requires and approves. But when to us Freemasonry has become something more than a name, when we have mastered its esoteric teachings as well as its exoteric forms, we think we discover and clearly discern how specially suited it is to the conflicts and exigencies of the hour. We are all of us now, in this self-asserting age, too much inclined to put forward our subjective theories of religion, truth, and sound teaching, for instance, as if they were objective realities. We like to invest our own personal "doxy" with the belief and the feelings of the Ego, with the colouring of abstract truth and of everybody else's "doxy." And hence arise inevitable collisions of thought and action, the regrettable though apparently unavoidable outbreaks of that "odium theologicum," which has wrought so much mischief in the world. Now, Freemasonry seems to speak to us all to-day in the calm, convincing tones of reason, charity, and common sense. "Do not allow yourselves ever to surrender the best feelings of your nature to polemical strife, to meaningless controversies. There are times, indeed, as we all know, in the history of individuals and nations when we have to be very bold for the truth as we hold it and cling to it. But, as a general rule, men waste a deal of time hurtfully on puerile contentions, on shallow logomachies. Come, then, within my peaceful portals, and learn the lesson I would teach you and all my members. Hold what you deem the truth in love, not judging one another, not condemning one another. Within my dwelling no disputes prevail, and no discussions perplex. All is calm and kindly, forbearing and serene. I know neither of the cries of party nor the differences of religion, but I welcome all good men who bow before the great Creator of all. Be you content to abide by His moral law, not asking about the precise creed of a brother, not involving yourselves in doctrinal discussions beyond my scope, but offering every loyal heart a safe and consistent platform of religious sympathy, morality, piety, and brotherly love!" Such seems to be the voice and words of our "Alma mater" to-day, and amid all that noise of angry combatants, which fills our streets with the din and turmoil of sectarian animosities, it is pleasant for us all to remember that Freemasonry affords a "Rendezvous" for all who like for a few passing hours to forget the animosities of humanity, and to welcome the pleasant emotions of harmonious concord, toleration and union, friendship and affection.

SEMPER EADEM.

Roman Catholicism is ever the same, in that it seems to oppose itself, no doubt on some wonderful principles of its own, not patent indeed to the uninitiated, to the claims of individual liberty of thought and action, to the wants of an emancipated conscience, and even to the stern requirements often of actual fact and historical truth! In nothing more do we see this than in the effect that Roman Catholic teaching often has on enlightened minds and ardent wills. The Roman Catholic would no doubt say, that the very axiom of Romanism proper is the surrender of the moral judgment and the intellectual powers of the individual to the voice of the Church, and the decision of the successor of St Peter. But here it is where we join issue with our Roman Catholic brethren. We cannot think it to be a good thing, that human reason and understanding, the sympathies and sentiments of the individual, should be subjected to this severe strain of iron, unbending, irresponsible authority! For the effect is simply the effect of reaction. The string has been too tightly extended, and the bow snaps. Hence, as a general rule, in all Roman Catholic countries the revulsion from Ultramontanism has led to scepticism, Voltairianism, infidelity. We do not say that such a state of things is not also to be found in professedly un-Roman Catholic countries, because it undoubtedly is, but those who have ever lived in Roman Catholic countries, or mixed much with Roman Catholic laymen, must be well aware, that too often beneath hollow forms of outward conformity are lurking, in full swing and energy too, the baneful emotions of a sneering scepticism, a disregard of ecclesiastical claims, and even of moral restraints. It is then this benumbing and intolerant influence of Rome to which we so strongly object. You may be the most amiable and benevolent of men, kind, cultivated, and "sympatico" in the highest degree, but once hug the Ultramontane chain of infallible authority, and unerring dogma, all is changed with you, you are hardly the same person. You who were so benevolent, so philanthropic, so menschenfreundlich as the Germans say, in all that concerns the Roman Church of your birth or adoption, are as violent as Allen, and as un pitying as Torquemada. Let us take Daniel O'Connell's letter on Freemasonry, in our last issue, as an illustration. Daniel O'Connell was emphatically in himself a large-hearted man; he had a genial and kindly spirit, a love of pleasantry and fun, and seems to have represented in many respects all the most amiable aspects of the Irish character. He once was a good Freemason, he had learnt and taught its lessons of toleration and goodwill, and no doubt, had cracked many a joke and had been a very pleasant companion of the social hour. But no sooner does he become thoroughly under the power of his spiritual advisers than he gives up Freemasonry, and denounces it. He, it is curious and amusing to note, professes not to have known of the decrees of Clement, of Benedict, or of Leo, and seems to say that their famous Bulls had not reached "Ould Ireland." But all of a sudden his conscience is awakened, and he gives up the "filthy thing." We take no notice of his angry remarks, or unfair animadversions, for they mean nothing, and count as nothing. He is making out the best case he can for himself, and we can afford to be charitable to him. For Rome had mastered his fiery spirit, and he "caved in." We like truth, and so we published his letter, that the fact might be clearly and finally disposed of. But the moral to our mind is simple and plain. Rome dislikes Freemasonry, condemns Freemasonry, curses Freemasonry. Why? Because Freemasonry, without wishing to interfere in religious discussion or denominational differences, gives a warran hand, offers a hearty welcome, to all who are friends to the freedom of the human conscience, and the right of private judgment; who condemn no man for his creed or church; who love toleration, charity, peace, and goodwill; and who in a spirit of true religion, while avowing and adoring the great Creator of all, decline to act as inquisitors into the faith or feelings of others, and especially object to that "crematory" process, which has ever been the "ultima ratio" of the persecutor, the bigot, and the intolerant.

MASONIC TRUTH.

It might almost seem superfluous to write on such a subject, since "Truth" is supposed to be a Masonic cardinal virtue, and said to be one of its distinguishing characteristics! But alas! Freemasonry is human, and of this earth, earthy, like everything else in this sublunary world, and it has not escaped altogether the process of worldly adulteration or "decay's effacing fingers." Freemasons, like all men, do not always practise what they preach; they do not always square their deeds with their professions! In society and in common life, amid its struggles and its cares, and its business, and the pursuit of wealth, to which we all more or less devote the best energies of our wills, our feelings, and our affections, we are often, despite our good Masonic teaching, led to identify ourselves with the fashionable dicta of the hour, apt to be affected by the hidden leaven ever upwards working of a debased morality, of a corrupt code. We think all means righteous to gain our object. We echo the old saying, "in love and war all things are fair;" we are very ready to think that the "end justifies the means;" and we applaud the sophistical axiom, that "we may do evil that good may come." Hence very often there comes over even our Masonic dealings, and words, and ways, a colouring of insincerity, of unreliability, of a want of openness, of a tendency to go beyond a brother. We do not run straight. We smile in a brother's presence, we backbite him in his absence. We listen to the ready tongue of the malicious or revengeful; we greedily catch up some idle story to his discredit, and we pass it on with zest, or we palm it off eagerly on some credulous listener "as a fact, sir," a reality, a truth! Now, friendship itself is a very sacred bond, given by the Great Architect of all for the happiness and peace of man here, and ought always to be looked upon as something very dear, precious, and inviolable. It is one of our greatest blessings and our purest joys. But Masonic friendship has charms and claims of its own. We are members of a little band of warm and genial friends, children of the light, brethren of love, guiding our steps over life's troublous sea by the beacon lights of Faith, Hope, Charity, and Truth! To ignore a brother's claims upon us for kindly consideration and fair treatment, to be slanderous where we should be chivalrous, and detractors where we should be upholders, is indeed a sad commentary on the reality of Masonic principles, on the vitality of Masonic practice! It is base enough in the common vulgar crowd of hurrying mortals to sacrifice right and truth to low expediency and cowardly subterfuge. It is sad to see friendship betrayed and loyal trust disappear in the too frequent violations of every law of honour, morality, and duty. But to forget that as brethren we seem to form a phalanx of kindly hearts and honourable associates, that we are bound to be true to one another and our good old Order in every contingency of life's often trying pathway, is, and must be a subject of deep regret to every good Freemason. If faith and charity are destined to leave our toiling hosts of mortals to-day, if the progress of society is only to be marked by the sad evidences of a failing love of veracity, by demoralizing habits and mournful prevarications, let us seek to keep our lodges still the home of truth, the refuge of honour, friendship, and devotion, where brethren can meet as brethren, and friend rely on friend.

JOTTINGS OF TRANSATLANTIC FREEMASONRY.

We were glad to have been able to give a report from the "Old Dominion" of the progress of our good brethren under the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and we always heartily welcome the reports of Canadian Freemasonry. Our brethren have two very able periodicals there, the "Canadian Craftsman," and the "Canadian Masonic News," both very well edited, and we are pleased from time to time to cull from their columns many an interesting item of Masonic intelligence from that far-off land, for the information of our brethren at home. We are always happy to hear of Canadian "sayings and doings." We have also received the "St. Francisco Chronicle" of October the 14th, in which is contained the meeting of the Californian Grand Lodge of October 13th, under G.M., G. C. Wilkins. From his address we learn that all is prospering with Freemasonry, and with the Grand Lodge. We are glad to hear, and our readers will too, what the Grand Master terms the "moral influence of Freemasonry" in that remarkable land. "Could the secret history of our own State be unfolded," he says, "the works of charity and pure beneficence bestowed by Masonry would command the reverence of many who now revile it. For many years in the mining portions of our State it was the prevailing moral influence that kept men within the bounds of moderation, and taught them to 'do unto others as they would wish that others should do unto them.' Its votaries ministered to the sick, relieved the destitute, and performed the last sad tribute of respect to the dead. Thus is Masonry ever quietly and unostentatiously performing its mission among us, receiving within its folds those only who voluntarily knock for admission and are found worthy—men of every nationality and creed, with no religious prohibition except the one requisite belief in God, the Supreme Intelligence which prevades all nature. Jew and Gentile, Mahomedan and Christian, meet within our lodges upon one common level, working harmoniously together for their moral improvement and social regeneration." It seems that there are 198 lodges in this jurisdiction working under charters from the Grand Lodge, and four working under dispensation. These 202 lodges have a membership of about 12,000, all the lodges having during the year increased their membership. The financial report of the Grand Lodge is said also to be very good, and the Grand Master thus speaks of the Board of Relief, though, as will be seen, no actual figures are given. "The earnest appeal of the Grand Master, in his last annual address in behalf of the Masonic Board of Relief in this city, I would again commend to your consideration. The good work daily performed by the members of that board is deserving of all praise and honour. Their report will, I think, show a very large increase, during the present year, in the number who have applied to the board for assistance, who, if they are found worthy and deserving, are always granted aid sufficient to relieve them of their immediate necessities, and as far as practicable they are assisted to some work where they may earn an honest livelihood. I trust that the Grand Lodge will make a liberal appropriation to this truly benevolent organization." The address was well delivered and loudly applauded. The Grand Master closes with the following incident, which we think is well worthy of note and remembrance:—"A certain man, before leaving his old home in the East, had been made a Mason, but since coming to the Pacific coast had not visited a lodge, but had fallen upon evil paths and been led into dissipation. One day he was looking for some articles in his trunk, when he came upon a forgotten package, which, when opened, was found to contain his lambkin apron (for the lodge wherein he was made a Mason had made it a custom to present each member with this emblem of Masonry). The sight of the spotless vestment, more ancient than the Golden Fleece or Roman Eagle, aroused a flood of recollection in his bosom. In imagination he was carried back to his old home where he had been honoured and respected; to the time when he stood in the north-east corner a just and upright man, where it had been given him strictly in charge thus ever to act and walk. He asked himself how he had fulfilled the charge? Had he walked as an upright man? He felt that he had not. But the spark of manhood which still lingered in his bosom was strong enough to kindle a raging fire for reform. He put the apron away, and went forth determined to conquer the terrible demon that had been leading him on to the abyss of destruction." It is then, we trust, an interesting fact in itself, and one very encouraging to all Freemasons, that our great brotherhood is even more powerful, and more advancing, in the new world than in the old. In the Dominion of Canada, under the Canadian Confederation, and in the United States, the number of Freemasons cannot be less than 650,000, and if to this be added English, and Irish, and Scotch Freemasons, and our lodges in India, the Mediterranean, the Cape of Good Hope, the West Indies, the Mauritius, &c., Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, without much exaggeration, may be placed at something short of a million of members. May all of good attend the onward progress of our universal brotherhood.

ALBÆ DIES.

Since last we met our readers two great anniversaries have been observed and have taken place within the good City of London. The one, the birthday of our Royal Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, the other, Lord Mayor's Day. Both of these events have much meaning and interest for all patriotic Englishmen. Despite the unwholesome virulence of a few unreasoning fanatics, the great mass of our free English people is emphatically loyal to their hearts' core! We may have our days of trial and even discontent, low wages may affect us, a bad trade may try us, but the pulse of England always beats full and true in its healthy hours, unchanged in its loyalty and devotion to the best of Queens, and the great and glorious institution of our free and constitutional government. Under it a wise and understanding people has thriven and progressed in contentment, order, comfort, peace, and wealth. Party cries have become less and less, social reforms long needed, now attract the energies of the statesman, and the sympathies poem is made up of many old "saws," which he has incorporated into and perhaps expanded in his witty verses. Bro. Bernard will have it that I did quote Butler, though I say I did not, and in his superabundant spirit of the truest Masonic teaching, he not only gives me the lie direct but is persuaded that I have never read Butler at all. This, I beg to observe, is a piece of gratuitous and vulgar impertinence.

After a longish life, and much careful study of the English as well as foreign and ancient classics, it is a little too bad to be told by a brother who professes to write Masonically, though he knows nothing of me he says, that he will be "greatly surprised" if I possess "any familiarity" with the poem.

Those of us who have read "Typee" will remember how the amusing writer finds one great merit in poor "Toby," that he knew his Hudibras, and as Butler has been very familiar to me for many years, and many are the quotations I have transcribed for "lectures" and other purposes from its pleasant pages, I am not likely to have blundered. I was also aware that an old controversy had taken place about this very couplet, and that the commonly quoted verses were not Butler's actually, though very commonly attributed to him—that is to say, that the correct version was somewhat different. I should then not have been guilty of such literary "laches," as quoting Butler for what he did not actually write.

III. With regard to Bro. Bernard's misspelling, when in one place he spells "odorous" "orderous," and in another "oderous" in the same copy one cannot but feel that a writer who is so slipshod in his spelling, and also in his verbiage as "do he," which is a pure "provincialism" is not a competent critic of any other writer, and that all such pseudo criticism in his hands is ridiculous and unmeaning, in fact hardly deserving of notice.

IV. One thing is clear from this correspondence, how personal and how perverse some Masonic correspondents can be.

Let me recommend Bro. Bernard before he ventures again to assail others to remember, that ignorance is not criticism, and vulgarity is not wit.

The Freemasonry we both profess to believe in might have taught him a truer lore, and as I do not wish to waste my time in replying to a correspondent who, instead of being critical, is only personal, I must decline the honour of continuing such a puerile and worthless logomachy.

THE WRITER OF THE ARTICLE.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to correct what appears to be an error in your article entitled "Recent Provincial Grand Lodges," published in your last number.

You say, "In West Lancashire, under the presidency of our active and distinguished Deputy Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Lodge (in accordance with the powers of the Book of Constitutions) has unanimously resolved to tax all the lodges in West Yorkshire for the purposes of benevolence, and in order to aid the charities." And you further add, "No doubt this may appear, and probably will be, a heavy burden on some lodges which are not so prosperous as others, but it is a step which we venture to deem greatly calculated to promote the cause and real end of Freemasonry."*

Now I think you must surely be in error, for West Lancashire has no power or authority to tax West Yorkshire for the benefit of the Masonic charities.

But if you really mean that West Lancashire is about to tax all the lodges in that province for the benefit of the charities, I for one am very glad to hear of it, inasmuch as I have for a long time thought that a pro rata system of support of our charitable institutions would be more reliable and efficient than the present impulsive and desultory mode.

In fact, I have on two separate occasions brought the subject under the notice of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire; the first time was so far back as 1868, and the second was at our last Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Sheffield on the 20th ult. On the first occasion I proved from statistics extending over the previous five years that less than twopence-halfpenny per member would have been sufficient to meet all the claims made upon West Yorkshire during that time; and I have not the slightest doubt that a similar small sum pro rata would meet all our present claims.

This, I think, is an answer to your remark that the pro rata principle would be a heavy burden on some lodges, for surely any lodge ought to be able out of its yearly income to afford such a small sum, nay, even were it doubled or trebled, it would only be cutting down a supper or two during the year, in order to meet any additional demand for the support of our charities. And when we consider that the lowest yearly subscription to a lodge is one guinea per year, it is obvious the pro rata system would not be a burden upon any.

I remain, dear Sir and brother, yours fraternally,

S. O. BAILEY, P.P.G.S. of W., W. Yorks.

* West Yorkshire was a misprint for West Lancashire.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me (through your paper) to thank "Mark Master" for answering my queries so fully, and for which I am obliged, especially for answer No. 4, and if the English Royal Arch Masons, not being Mark Masters, are debarred from entering a chapter while at work in Scotland, Ireland, Canada, and the United States, &c., the sooner it is made likewise compulsory in England the better, either before exaltation or before Royal Arch certificate is granted. If the Mark Degree is recognized by the lodges so much abroad it should be in England; at all events, I am about to be exalted (hence, my making the enquiry I have), and have come to the conclusion that I had better become a Mark Master also, as I should feel rather vexed, as an English Royal Arch Mason abroad, to find myself shut out of a chapter at work through not being a Mark Master. The English Masonic laws want mending on this point, it appears, otherwise it would render their own Royal Arch perfect, so as to enable them to enter foreign chapters without the inconvenience of being debarred therefrom.

Yours fraternally,

AN ENQUIRING M.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I do not propose to take part in this controversy, for it is in able hands, further than to say that I quite concur with "P.M. of Mark Lodge" as to his statements about the York Grand Lodge and Mark Masonry.

I note a statement of Bro. Yarker's that the York Masons recognised the Knights Templar and the priestly order of Melchizedek. Where Bro. Yarker got his information from I know not; it is new to me, and will be, I fancy, to Bro. W. J. Hughan. The York Masons worked no degrees but the three Craft, and the R.A. Knight Templarism appeared among them about 1780, not earlier, and it was altogether a separate grade, though the G.S. of the York Grand Lodge then appears also to have been a Templar—hence the seeming union. Bro. Yarker may be in possession of facts of which I am ignorant. Of course he has some authority for his statement, so I shall be glad to know it. The old idea, so long prevalent, that York was the origin of High Grade development is a pure myth.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

MASONIC JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very much obliged to Bro. Nepean for his reply to my letter upon the subject of Masonic jewels, but I certainly cannot agree with him in his saying that the jewel does not appertain to the Third Degree. I beg to quote Bro. Nepean's words, "Certainly the rule laid down in the Book of Constitutions is rather vague, but we have no intimation either in the ritual or elsewhere that I know of, that that jewel in any way appertains to the Third Degree." Now, in the first place, the "five-pointed star" represents the five p—s of f—p, which appertain to the Third Degree, and in the second place, on those points you are raised, and therefore must consider that the jewel belongs to the Third Degree. As the question regarding this jewel has turned up, it will be as well to have this question finally settled at the Grand Lodge "whether the jewel is a Third Degree jewel," and all M.M.'s entitled to wear it," should they wish to do so. What is the "Charity jewel" mentioned by Bro. Nepean?

I remain, yours fraternally,

AN ENQUIRING M.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The much-vexed question of the legality of wearing such jewels as the five-pointed star, and square and compasses, as honorary jewels, is still open in your columns, and I am greatly surprised to see that they find in you an editorial adherent.

I fail to discover that the Book of Constitutions in any way mentions the five-pointed star as a jewel appertaining to any degree in Masonry, nor do I see it mentioned anywhere amongst the jewels, except as forming part of that appointed for the D.G.M. Your correspondent Bro. J. J. H. Wilkins very dogmatically assures "An Enquiring M.M." that the five-pointed star is a perfectly legitimate jewel, &c., because, forsooth, he has worn it in Grand Lodge, and at the installation of the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M., but because he incorrectly wears it, and it passes unnoticed by those who are engaged in more important work elsewhere, it does not follow that it is a legal jewel. I have seen the Mark jewel worn both in Grand Lodge and at the installation referred to, but that does not constitute it a legitimate jewel. I agree with him, however, that the question should be at once set at rest, and can only say further that so much am I convinced of its illegality that should a brother enter a lodge in which I were W.M. I should at once request him to remove it.

I am yours fraternally,

J. DANIEL MOORE,

P.G.S.B., Eng., P.M. 281, 1051; W.M. 1561, &c.

[Our correspondent does not see that the five-pointed star is "consistent" with the three degrees recognised by Grand Lodge, the Mark jewel is not.—Ed.]

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys met on Saturday, November 6, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. J. Symonds, Vice-Patron, in the chair. The other brethren present were Bros. J. Boyd, Winn, Montrie, Herbert Dicketts, I. J. H. Wilkins, S. Rosenthal, Jesse Turner, J. C. Dwarber, J. G. Chancellor, J. W. Dosell, H. V. Garman, Hyde Pullen, George Palmer, W. Paas, A. H. Diaper, F. Adlard, W. Roebuck, Col. Ridgway, N. G. Philips, F. J. Cox, C. Horsley, H. Day, J. France, Benjamin Head, and others.

Bro. Binckes, the Secretary, read the minutes of the General Committee of October 2nd, which were confirmed.

On the minutes of the Audit Committee being read, and which showed a balance in favour of the institution of £3681 5s. 5d., it was recommended that £2000 Consols should be purchased as an investment.

Bro. Dwarber wished upon this to ask a question. He was not so frequent in his attendance at their committees as he ought to be, and the question he wished to put was solely for the purpose of obtaining information, and that was, would the vote of the committee be final upon this matter as to the proposed investment in Consols.

The Chairman said he believed so, as it was so in the Girls' School.

Bro. Dwarber said he wished to have an answer either in the negative or affirmative. Had that committee the power to come to such a vote, or was there any other power to negative their action in this matter?

Several members.—No, no.

Bro. Dwarber was very happy to hear it, and so he believed would be every brother present, and he thought they ought to congratulate themselves on their prospects for the future. He was glad they had got some money to be invested in Consols, but at the same time he hoped there would be no attempt to force this charity beyond its healthy and natural limits. He hoped that it would allay the agitation which had been got up out of doors, and as they had got something in Consols, it would be a happy thing for them to point to, and thus allay those agitating spirits who made attacks on their institution.

It was then proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that £2000 Consols be purchased on behalf of the institution.

Bro. Col. Ridgway said, as one of the members of the committee, although he was not so frequent in his attendance as he ought to be, he thought that was a good opportunity for expressing his great satisfaction at the resolution which had just been passed. He could scarcely agree, however, with the brother who had just sat down, that while they invested a sum in Consols, they ought not to push the benefits of the society beyond natural and healthy limits. Now, for his part, he believed that there could be no limit to charity in Masonry, and that no limits could be deemed unnatural or unhealthy when they looked at the progress of the school, the good that was done in it, and the interest that was taken in it by the Craft. Their school afforded an immense amount of education to the sons of their poorer brethren, and there could scarcely be any limits to such a healthy extension of it. (Cheers.) He knew not what took place out of doors, but he thought that too much attention ought not to be paid to it, and if there was any complaint to be made, let those who made it come in doors and bring forward some specific resolution, for they all had a deep interest in the institution. They had to consider the proper condition of the school, and after having secured such great results in the benefit of education, they had still been enabled to invest £2000 Consols for future operations. It was for that the committee had great cause for congratulation, and it ought to inspire them with confidence for the future (hear, and cheers); and show to the world at large the successful position to which they had attained.

The next business was the reception of three candidates for the next election, and their names were ordered to be placed on the list.

Bro. Binckes, the Secretary, then rose, and said he wished to call attention to a charge which had been made against him in a pamphlet which had been circulated by a member of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire, in conjunction with the late Head Master of the School, this being the first committee meeting since it had been issued. He should not have brought the matter forward were the charges confined to the management of the institution or its condition, his own manner, demeanour, or the language he employed, for those were matters upon which every brother had the right fully and freely to express his opinion; but when imputations were made upon him in a pamphlet circulated throughout the Craft, in which he was charged with being guilty of a malversation of the funds of the institution, and after having for 14 years acted as their Secretary, he felt bound to clear himself in the mind of every member of that institution. Such a charge could not be made with impunity, for it cut at the very root of mutual confidence which without he had no right whatever to hold the position of their Secretary. He confidently asserted, without fear of contradiction, that no item of expenditure, whether it was for food, clothing, or anything else, had ever been passed without the proper voucher for it being brought before the committee. In a pamphlet published in reply to one by himself at page 29 he found the following words:—"Since writing, and as we had hoped, concluding, the preceding pages, we have discovered an item in the accounts for 1872, 1873, and 1874, which of itself is enough to warrant us in condemning in the strongest terms the way in which the school expenditure is presented. We refer to the item under the head of 'Gratuities' to (with grants and outfits for) boys leaving the institution. The amount expended (see different reports for 1872, 1873, and 1874) for the last three years is £314 5s. (viz. £119 in 1872, £126 10s. in 1873, and £68 15s. for 1874), of which sum only £172 10s. are accounted for, leaving £141 15s. of which no account is rendered." In page 30 it goes on to say:—"In fine, all the returns under this head of grants are so confused that it is not surprising that those who before investigated them have been entrapped. We have looked in vain for the missing sum of £141 15s., and must wait, perhaps, till some satisfactory explanation is given of this most bewildering statement of accounts of a great and noble institution, supported by the voluntary gifts of some hundreds of our brethren." Now, he said, it did not require any great knowledge of the English language to see that if these words meant anything at all they meant this, that he, as the Secretary of their institution, had embezzled the sum of £141 15s. Although every item was doubly checked, the inference which his accusers wished to be drawn was that he had appropriated £141 15s. to his own use. Now, he had had a statement prepared, in which it would be found that there was a voucher from every boy for every farthing of the total sum of £314 5s. This was laid upon the table amidst the enthusiastic cheering of the entire meeting.) He most urgently asked and wished the committee to examine these documents, and then see if he had not completely cleared himself from the atrocious charges which had been brought against him (renewed cheering). He had worked hard for the institution for fourteen years, and had during that time enjoyed the confidence of every committee of management, and never had there been the slightest charge brought against him as to his conduct, and he repudiated with scorn the charge made in a public print that he had embezzled a sum of £141 15s., which ought to have been received by the poor boys of their institution (loud cheering).

Bro. Jesse Turner said he could not help thinking that the sooner anything in the form of a charge was grappled with the better it would be for all parties. He might be told that every one was not acquainted with, he would not say the facts, but the statements in the pamphlet which had been placed before the world by two brethren, and it was their duty to set the matters contained in this pamphlet at rest. According to the statements of it the House and Audit Committees were but mere puppets, and were moved to do anything by the Secretary. Now, as a member of the Audit Committee, he would not say such a charge was utterly and entirely false, but he would say such an assertion was a complete mistake (a laugh). There was something more to which Bro. Binckes had alluded in the remarks he had made, and in which, to some extent, his (Bro. Turner's) honour was impugned, and that was that he had connived at Bro. Binckes appropriating to himself a sum of money to which he was not entitled. Now that was another mistake. Then the matron of the institution was attacked, and an attempt was made to injure her fair fame, at the time it being well known that she was not in a position to issue a counter pamphlet. If there was any charge to be made, why was it not brought forward, so that it might have been investigated, and if any improper performances had been gone through that it was not creditable to the institution should take place, why was not the charge brought forward, so that it might have been inquired into and thoroughly investigated? As an individual he repelled it all as a foul slander, but he would ask them to appoint a committee, so as to give their accusers an opportunity of proving their charges if they could, but at the same time he did not believe that they could do so, and it would be found, after all, that it was but a "mockery, a delusion, and a snare." He moved, "That a special committee be appointed to investigate the management and accounts of this institution, and report thereon to this committee."

Bro. Dosell seconded the motion. He said that from his experience he knew there was a double check upon all the accounts, and during the last five or six years he had been on the committee he never found an error that was not easily corrected, but as regarded the charge of their Secretary having embezzled £142, that must be a matter for special investigation. The committee were to a certain extent bound up with Bro. Binckes, and they must set their character right before the public.

Bro. Col. Ridgway said it appeared that two members of the committee were about to pass censure upon themselves, as charges of this sort had never been brought before the committee, but were merely charges floating in the air, and that reminded him of a saying, "Give a lie to the air, and in twelve months you will not catch it again." He felt they ought not to take up so much time with so atrocious a slander as that which had been promulgated by this pamphlet, and he would move as an amendment, "That this General Committee have unqualified confidence in the business ability and honour of the Audit Committee, and in the unquestionable integrity of their Secretary." It seemed to him that it was not so much a question about the £142, as to endeavour to inculpate their Secretary, and by throwing as much mud as possible in the hope that some of it might stick. (Hear, hear.) He could remember some sixteen years ago, when this school was in a very different position to what it is at the present moment. At their annual festivals then £1500 or £1600 was looked upon as a very respectable sum, as they were then compelled to remain at a very respectful distance from the pet charity of the Craft, which was the Girls' School (hear, hear); but when their present Secretary came all was changed, for now they considered £1500 as a mere trifle, and looked forward to something like £15,000 or £16,000. Since Bro. Binckes had been their Secretary they had doubled and quadrupled their income, and in fact he had been the making of their institution for the benefit of those poor children who were there grouped together. What the life subscribers had done might be counted by tens and hundreds, but what their Secretary had done could only be counted by thousands and tens of thousands, and it was to his zeal, ability, integrity, and honour that they were enabled to boast of the proud and useful position in which their institution stood at the present time. (Cheers.) He concluded by moving his amendment.

Bro. Rosenthal seconded.

Bro. C. Horsley said he agreed in every syllable spoken by Bro. Ridgway, but he considered the conclusion to which he had come was contrary to the eloquence of his speech. It seemed to him that the Audit Committee might stand on the consciousness of their own rectitude, and that this committee were of the same opinion; but were he one of the Auditors he would press to the death the passing of the original resolution. For himself he might say that they were fully worthy of their confidence, but there was a vast body of Masons outside that room, not only throughout the kingdom, but in India, Australia, and other parts of the world, where the virus of this poison had been disseminated, and even that very week he had heard that not only the charges contained in the pamphlet would be proceeded with, but that graver charges of a criminal nature would be prosecuted. He asked the Board if such statements were going broadcast over communities, and they had others watching with vigilance to take offence if there was the least semblance of a ground for doing so, whether such charges ought not to be investigated. The vote of confidence which the Board was desirous to give ought to be such as Auditors would be glad to receive. If he was an Auditor he would not receive such a vote of confidence as that Board could give, as it might be said that they were his friends, that they were only a unit, while in the world there were millions, and therefore he said that these charges should undergo a thorough investigation, so that they might get rid of the vile calumnies which were thrown first at the head of their Secretary, and next at the governing body at large; and therefore he supported the original resolution.

Bro. Head, as a member of the Audit Committee, claimed an investigation, for such charges ought not to be made against them without it being proved which was right.

Bro. W. Winn said if the motion proposed by Bro. Ridgway was passed by 30 brethren then assembled, outside there were millions, and such a resolution would not be satisfactory to West Yorkshire. He thought, however, that when the committee was appointed a professional accountant should also be appointed to assist them in the investigation of the accounts. For the honour of the Audit Committee and Bro. Binckes, he hoped there would be the fullest inquiry. He spoke feelingly when he said the brethren of West Yorkshire were not satisfied with the accounts, but he hoped on investigation that every figure would be found correct.

Bro. Binckes said that all the accounts were certified by the committee in gross, and were doubly checked; but he published in detail particulars more fully than there was a necessity for, and it was simply in carrying out the details that these discrepancies had occurred. He would ask any one who was conversant with accounts if clerical errors were not almost inseparable from published accounts. He courted the fullest investigation as to every shilling that had passed through his hands. As to the remark of Bro. Winn, with reference to the Province of West Yorkshire, he questioned if there were six brethren of that province who supported the views of the Deputy Prov. G. Master.

Bro. Ridgway withdrew his amendment, as he wished to see an unanimous vote upon the question, but at the same time he had the utmost confidence in the honour of the committee that the accounts were correct, and his faith in the integrity of their Secretary was unshaken.

The original motion of Bro. Jesse Turner was then put, and unanimously agreed to.

Bro. Col. Ridgway then moved, "That it be a special instruction to the committee to report specifically on the charge in page 29, in the pamphlet now produced, as to whether there is any ground for the charges brought by Bro. Tew and Bro. Perrott, that £141 15s., or any part thereof, is not accounted for, as stated in the pamphlet."

Bro. Horsley seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

The committee was named, and consists of the following brethren:—Bros. Col. Ridgway, Dwarber, Dicketts, Diaper and Motion.

Bro. Winn moved "That the committee be empowered to call in the assistance of a professional accountant, to assist them in the investigation of the accounts."

Bro. Moutrie seconded the motion, which was also put and agreed to.

Bro. Col. Ridgway protested against the assumption of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire in respect to the government of the Boys' School, and said that it was entitled to no more weight than that of a single individual subscriber.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman, and a meeting which had been all but unanimous throughout the whole of its proceedings was brought to a close.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of this institution was held on Wednesday in the library, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Lieut. Col. Creaton in the chair. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Benj. Head, Dr. Jabez Hogg, W. Stephens, R. W. Little, James Brett, Charles Lacey, C. A. Cotterburne, Raynham W. Stewart, Joseph Smith, Hyde Pullen, W. Hilton, Thos. Cubitt, J. G. Stevens, H. G. Warren, Thos. W. White, Joshua Nunn, F. Adlard, Col. Ridgway, J. Newton, L. Stean, J. M. Stedall, H. Massey ("Freemason"), James Terry, (Secretary), and W. Lane.

A letter was read from Lord Skelmersdale stating that the 9th of February, 1876, would suit him admirably, and he should be most happy to preside at the festival on that day.

The Secretary announced the death of one annuitant after having received £246 in annuities.

Three candidates were placed on the list for next May.

A discussion followed as to the receipt of some subscriptions from a brother whose relatives said he was insane, and the matter in the end was ordered to stand over.

The committee then adjourned.

In compliance with a requisition, signed in conformity with the laws of this institution, a special general meeting of the Governors and Subscribers was held on Wednesday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall, to take into consideration a proposed alteration of clause 19 of the laws, and also any further proposition or motion which might be made to give effect to the same. The chair was occupied by Bro. Lieut. Col. Creaton, Vice-Patron, who was supported by Bros. Benjamin Head, L. Stean, John Newton, Charles Lacey, John G. Stevens, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, J. A. Farnfield, Col. Alex. Ridgway, H. M. Levy, John Symonds, H. Massey ("Freemason"), James Terry, (Secretary), and W. Lane.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, which appeared in the advertisement columns of the "Freemason" last week,

The Chairman explained the object of the meeting; whereupon,

Bro. John Symonds rose, and said he begged to move that the following words be added to Clause 19:—"Every Steward at the anniversary festivals who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his own donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50." He supposed that he need not enter into any detail on this matter. The question was fully discussed when the alteration was made both in the Boys' and the Girls' Schools, and the alteration now proposed was the same, with the difference of the number of votes, in accordance with the different practice of the different amount subscribed in this institution as compared with those. He might just mention that the main reason for the proposed alteration was this—that many brethren put their names down as Stewards, and subscribed £5 or £10, and secured thus additional privileges as Stewards without giving themselves further trouble in the matter, or adding another sixpence to the funds of the institution. Another brother perhaps would take no end of trouble: he would serve as Steward for an important province; he would go about visiting various lodges; he would incur great expense in postages and journeys; and he would receive no higher privilege than the brother who had given himself no trouble about the matter. Then it was thought that the brother who had taken so much trouble should have some reward in the shape of a few extra votes; and it was in order to carry out that view that this alteration was proposed. If the proposition was adopted, the laws of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution would be brought in harmony with those of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys and the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; and he thought that as far as regarded the success of the festivals of the Benevolent Institution the Stewards should not be in a worse position than the Stewards of the Boys' and Girls' Schools.

Bro. Benj. Head seconded the motion.

The Chairman then put the resolution to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously.

Bro. Symonds again rose, and said he would now move the remaining portion of the proposition contained in the requisition for this meeting,—"To expunge the following words:—If unaccompanied with a personal donation, but by means of his services, not less than £20 shall be paid to the funds, he shall be entitled to one additional vote for every subsequent Stewardship." That had not been found to work well in the other institutions, and it had consequently been expunged from their rules. The alteration made by expunging these words would likewise bring the laws of the Benevolent Institution equally in accord with the rules of the other Masonic institutions.

Bro. Head seconded the motion.

The Chairman having read the proposition,

Bro. Jno. G. Stevens said he took it that it was a matter of course that these words should be expunged. They must come out if the first proposition was carried.

The Chairman said that was perfectly correct. He took it for granted that they would have to come out; that was why the motion was made.

Bro. Jno. G. Stevens thought so. If the law was to be properly made it must be done in this way.

Bro. J. Symonds would suggest that the new law that they had adopted should follow between the 2nd and 3rd clause, as a clause by itself.

Bro. James Terry:—Immediately after the words—"served as Stewards."

Bro. Symonds:—I have now very great pleasure in moving "That the thanks of this special general meeting be given to our worthy Bro. Lieut. Col.-Creaton, for attending here this day and presiding over us." We have heard with great satisfaction of the additional honour that has been conferred upon him. He has been a faithful servant of Her Majesty for a long while, and I am quite sure that the honour thus bestowed has been very well earned. I am sure that we have every reason to be gratified with the kind attention our brother always gives to the affairs of this institution, as well as to the affairs of the other institutions connected with the Order. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Benj. Head:—I have very great pleasure in seconding this motion. I have seconded the other motions of Bro. Symonds to day; but I second this one with even still more pleasure than I did those. We have been associated together so long that I am quite pleased to congratulate our brother chairman on having attained the additional rank which has been conferred upon him by Her Majesty.

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

The Chairman.—Bro. Symonds, Bro. Head, and brethren, I thank you very sincerely for the compliment you have paid me; and in reference to my promotion in military rank I do feel very much gratified, for this simple reason: I have not been pitchforked into that rank, I have served a quarter of a century; and by having done so I feel that I have earned my title. Consequently, as I said, I feel very much gratified at it. As you have been kind enough to refer to it, I regard your doing so as a very great compliment. I thank you all, brethren, for your kindness.

Bro. James Terry.—We will report what we have done to day to the Board of Masters next Wednesday, and it will come before Grand Lodge this day three weeks.

The brethren then separated.

CONSECRATION OF THE MOUNT EDGCUMBE LODGE, NO. 1554, AT CAMBORNE.

The twenty-seventh Masonic Lodge in Cornwall was consecrated on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., by the Earl of Mount Edgcombe, Grand Master of the Province. The first effort to form this lodge was made about the spring of the year, there being several Masonic brethren residing in and about Camborne. A committee was formed, consisting of Bros. Angove (chairman), W. Rowe, W. Bailey, E. Lakey, J. Rodda, F. Bartle, W. H. Thomas, and F. J. Lee. A petition, signed by thirty-three members, was sent to the P.G.M., and his lordship's sanction was obtained. After a little difficulty a suitable room was found in Fore-street, Mr. Rabling allowing one of a row of houses to be adapted to the wants of the brethren of the Craft. The decoration of the lodge was done by the committee, the gas fittings were given by the Camborne Gas Company, and the centrepiece was presented by Bro. W. Bailey, the Secretary's desk by Bro. W. Rowe, the set of gavels by Bro. John Coombe, and there were various other gifts. The lodge-room is capacious and is exceedingly well fitted up.

Bro. Colonel Peard acted as Prov. S.W., in the place of Bro. T. Chirgwin, who was unable to be present through illness, and letters were received from the following absent brethren:—K. R. Rogers, Chirgwin, E. T. Carlyon, Lethbridge, Rev. G. L. Church, Polkinghorn, Solomon, and Jenkins.

The P.G.M. announced that Bro. Lyne, the P.G. Registrar, had met with his death by a fall from his horse, and the P.G.M. gave the vacant collar to Bro. N. J. West, 450, Hayle.

The P.G.M. delivered a forcible and practical address on the nature of Freemasonry. In the ceremonial of Freemasonry, and especially in the consecration ceremony, religion was always most prominently brought forward. The volume of the Sacred Law, which always lay open, contained unmistakeably the command of the Great Architect Himself—that His name should not be taken in vain; and while, therefore, they in their ceremonies invariably invoked His name, and prayed for a blessing upon their endeavours, it would be very great hypocrisy on their part, and hypocrisy of a most hateful nature, if they were not to act upon the feeling of religion, with a desire to please God. Freemasonry must be either one thing or the other. It must either be a high system of morality, based upon the highest principles, or else be a form of hypocrisy of which they all should be greatly ashamed. They could all acknowledge with pride that Masonry was free from all religious controversy. Those who were not Masons sometimes thought it was a form of religion of their own, and that it was inconsistent with true religion, with Christianity, or with any form of religion. But Masonry was not so, and for this reason it never touched in any way upon the form or manner of the worship of God. It simply inculcated and enforced, as strong as it could, the one thing which must form part of every true religion, and most certainly a part of every Christian religion, that they should do unto their neighbours as they would their neighbours should do to them, and act honourably, honestly, and unselfishly in their dealings with mankind, not only from the idea of doing them good, still less from the idea of getting credit for themselves, but from the highest motive of all, to please the Most High. He did not for one moment consider that Masonry could be a higher principle, or a higher inducement to right action, than religion. It was not a substitute for religion, in that respect, and far be it from him to say so. But it did this. It enabled most men who had no other thing in common between them, whose business and whose position would keep them naturally apart, to meet together and to speak upon questions which perhaps they never would touch upon otherwise, questions as to what was right, and what was wrong, what was noble and what was mean; and, in fact, all that which really was the sum total of religion was the matter about which Masons could openly talk in a lodge, which they never would think of doing without a certain feeling of shyness and reserve which existed in every man's mind unless they had this open communion together. In this way Masonry very often did good. He mentioned this particularly at the establishment of a new lodge, because no doubt many new members would be enrolled, and it was of the greatest importance that these points should be more or less made known to them before they were initiated. Although a candidate came into Freemasonry blind with regard to their secrets and to the mysteries of their ceremonies, he should be made acquainted with the principles upon which the Order was founded, and upon what would be expected of him as a member of the Craft. He trusted that great care would be exercised as to those who would be admitted members of the lodge. It was very important that this should be attended to; indeed, too much attention could not be paid to the matter.

The installing ceremony was impressively performed by Bro. Penrose. The following are the officers of the lodge:—John Rosewarne, W.M.; John Coombe, I.P.M.; William Teague, jun., S.W.; W. H. Thomas, J.W.; H. Bartle, Treas.; W. Rowe, jun., Sec.; W. Bailey, S.D.; W. Trevithick, J.D.; J. Hensley I.G.; F. J. Lee, D.C.; J. T. Rodda, Org.; Edmund Lakey and E. Vine, Stewards.—"Western Morning News."

The following has been forwarded to us for publication, and is, we believe, the account submitted by the Secretary of the School (Bro. Binckes) to the Special Committee appointed last Saturday to enquire into the charges contained in the pamphlet of Messrs. Tew and Perrott:—

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DURHAM.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge for the Province of Durham was held on 26th October, in the Freemasons' Hall, Old Elvet, Durham, and was a most successful gathering. The lodge was opened at two o'clock by the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. John Fawcett, assisted by Bros. Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart., Deputy Provincial Grand Master; the Rev. Canon Tristram, P.G.S.W.; Henry Lawrence, P.G.J.W.; Rev. F. W. Bewsher, D.G. Chaplain, and other officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge. The Treasurer's report having been read, the reports from the different provinces were received, all of which were of a highly satisfactory and gratifying nature. The Provincial Grand Master then addressed the brethren, and expressed great satisfaction at the favourable reports he had heard read from the different lodges within his jurisdiction. He briefly alluded to the honour that had been conferred upon the Craft by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, in of England. The officers of the past year having been thanked for their services, the following elections took place.—Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart., D.P.G.M.; Dr. S. Gourley, P.G.S.W.; W. Hunter, P.G.J.W.; Rev. W. having undertaken the duties of the office of Grand Master Leeman, M.A., P.G. Chaplain; Rev. J. Cundill, B.D., P.G. Treasurer; R. T. Richardson, P.G. Registrar; W. H. Crookes, P.G. Secretary; A. S. Fowler, P.G.S.D.; J. Laidler, P.G.J.D.; J. S. Wilson, P.G. S. of W.; R. Hudson, P.G.D. of C.; G. Greenwell, P.G. Assist. D. of C.; W. Coxon, P.G.S.B.; Angelo Forrest, P.G. Organist; J. H. Coates, P.G. Pursuivant; J. Thompson, P.G. Tyler. The brethren then adjourned to the Town Hall, when 130 sat down to an excellent repast, provided by Mrs. Carr, Half Moon Hotel, Durham. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were cordially given and responded to, the health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and that of the Provincial Grand Master being enthusiastically received.

THE OWL CLUB.—This well-known club for musical evenings has migrated from the Langham Hotel to the Guildhall Tavern, and opened its winter season most successfully on Monday week, under the presidency of J. H. Buckingham, Esq. The club is under the management of several well-known brethren, and they have taken care to show that the "Owls" do not desire to limit their amusements and entertainments to their own sex, for provision has been made for two ladies' evenings in December, and on the closing night, the 27th of March. On Monday week a most attractive programme was presented, and the opening piece was Sir H. Bishop's charming serenade, "O by rivers, by whose falls," which was exquisitely sung by Messrs. Burgess Perry, Thornton, Evison, Moss, Hubbard, and Master Matthews, the latter's voice, having all the melody and sweetness of a woman's, lent an additional charm to this fine old poem. Messrs. Terry, Thornton, Moss and Hubbard, then gave the glee, "Go Idle Boy," by Calcott and presented a perfect rendering of this gem of English music. Mr. Albert Hubbard and Master Matthews were then the singers, the first of the part song, "Lady, rise, sweet morn's awaking," and the latter of the touching and plaintive ballad "The Skipper and his Boy." Master Matthews fully proved by his performance that he has, young as he is, discovered the art of seizing and holding his listeners' sympathy, and the end of his song came as the end of a story too briefly told. In the interval between the first and second parts the President addressed the gathering, welcoming old and new friends, stating that the club would be open on each alternate Monday, and that the club room would contain newspapers, and such means of comfort as citizens required after the toils of the day. For the comfort of all, the smoking did not commence until after the first part, and for the encouragement of the too long neglected art of music, if any of the members or their friends felt inclined to take a part in the entertainment, the Secretary, Mr. A. Berry, would be happy to receive their names. For the second part, pieces by Mendelssohn, Tours, Calcott, Morley, and Bishop were performed, and Mr. John C. Ward, added, if possible, to his reputation by the ability with which the musical arrangements were conducted. Mr. W. H. Harper ably presided at the pianoforte.

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE FREEMASON.

I see, with very great regret, a correspondence in your papers of a most un-Masonic character, in reference to the Boys' School management.

What has become of our grand principles, "Brotherly Love, and Charity?" They appear to be converted into "envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness."

The course of action now taken can never bring about a satisfactory settlement of the question. It is a most unjustifiable course on the part of Bros. Tew and Perrott to publish as they did an "ex parte" statement to all the outer world.

Why Bro. Binckes should have been attacked so personally I cannot see, except to satisfy the spite of a disappointed clergyman. His question had been decided by the House Committee, and they, not Binckes, are the responsible parties, if injustice has been done him.

One or two Brethren should be selected by each party to investigate and set at rest the whole question privately, and report result of their inquiries, and not as is now being done, holding up the Craft to the ridicule of all its enemies.

I would advise Bro. Binckes to keep quiet, and not lay himself open to be "shot at" as he now is.

I think it will be quite time enough to get up a Testimonial to Bro. Perrott after the report is out, and when it is found the amount of injury he has done to the Charities of our Order.

Yours truly, JOHN SUTCLIFFE.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BRITANNIC LODGE (No. 33).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall on Friday, the 12th inst. There were present Bros. J. Chynoweth, W.M.; J. Pendered, S.W.; John Davis, J.W.; Lewis Crombie, Treas.; Thos. A. Chubb, Sec.; J. S. Pearce, Dir. of Cer.; and Edward Strouts, Steward. The following P.M.'s: Bros. G. E. Eachus, Wm. Smith, John Strapp, Magnus Ohren, Jas. Glaisher, Fredk. G. Finch; and the following Bros.: Geo. Furness, G. N. Strawbridge, Chas. Horsley, Chas. W. Turner, Jno. Robertson, Wm. Clouston, Chas. Pawley, David Hodge, Wm. Sugg, Henry Finlay, John Ricks, Wm. P. Boddy, A. E. Hodge, A. J. Dudgeon, W. L. Dudgeon, Geo. T. Huntley, J. W. Goodall, Fredk. H. Varley, J. S. Tamburini, Wm. G. Davis, and other brethren and several visitors. Bros. William Battye, P.M. 142; Wm. Robt. Woodman, M.D., 66; and Charles Bennett, P.M. 25, were proposed and accepted as joining members. Bros. Hallows and Millar were raised, and Bros. Hald, Davidson, and Campbell were passed. A motion, of which notice had been given by Bro. Ohren, P.M., was duly carried—"That after the word 'deposit' in the Bye-Law No. 15, page 10, line 12, the following words be added: unless the joining brother be a Principal or Past Principal of the Britannic Chapter, in which case the joining fee for such brother shall be five guineas only, including the deposit." Stewards were appointed to the Masonic charities for the ensuing year, the usual sums being voted to head the Stewards' lists. The sum of £5 was given from the charity box for a distressed brother. The lodge adjourned to banquet about half-past six, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, Bro. Lawler, as usual, being the leader of the professionals, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The regular monthly meeting of this old lodge was held on the 12th inst. at its usual quarters, Anderson's Hotel. The W.M., Bro. George Everett, presided, having a great number of brethren to assist him in his work. Among these were many visitors. The officers were Bros. A. Treadwell, S.W.; James Willing, jun., J.W.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.M., Treas.; Thomas Williams, Sec.; J. W. Palmer, S.D.; John Buscall, J.D.; J. Clark, I.G.; and J. Daly, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. H. Baschett, 5, I.C.; James Mazzini, 957; Charles Matthew, 263; George Darcy, 901; W. Porter, 1269; Sampson George, 813; J. H. Ryley, 188; G. J. Scales, 1507; E. Conrau, 73; T. G. Walls, 141, &c.; F. Somers, 1489; W. D. Evans, 1286; W. Battye, W.M. 749; George Anderson, 60; Rev. P.M. Holden, P.G.C. Middlesex; and H. Massey ("Freemason"). Bro. Osborne was raised. Bros. Harding, Wigmore, Beverstock, Pierpoint, Pinhey, and Sherlock were passed, and Messrs. Ferrier, Zoebeli, W. Friend, W. J. Bennett, and J. Billinghurst were initiated. Bro. F. Kent, C.C., moved "That a committee be formed for the purpose of considering and determining upon the propriety of the removal of the lodge," a motion which was seconded by Bro. G. Plummer and carried. The committee was then named, the P.M.'s and officers of the lodge, and Bros. Plummer, F. Kent, W. H. Richards, Foxcroft, Montague, and J. Jones being the members. Bro. James Willing was announced as Steward for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February, after which the lodge was closed, and the usual banquet held, about eighty brethren partaking thereof. The W.M. proposed the toasts subsequently with considerable ability, and in proposing that of "The Initiates," dwelt with much emphasis on the pleasure it afforded not only the Domatic Lodge, himself, and all Masons to welcome new members to the Order, particularly when, as was then the case, the gentlemen introduced were men of such exceeding promise. One of the initiates replied for the whole body, thanking the brethren of this lodge for holding out the hand of brotherhood to them, and promising that their object should be to promote the good of the Craft, which made all its members equal. The toast of "The Visitors" followed, the W.M. remarking that there was always a goodly number at the meetings of the Domatic Lodge. In the lodge there had been some mention made of visitors not meeting with sufficient attention, but, nevertheless, there were fifteen visitors present on that occasion. The practice of visiting lodges was a very wholesome and happy one. It served to show what was going on in the Craft, and enabled brethren to compare one lodge with another. It was quite true that as the banquets of this lodge were crowded the brethren were unable to afford the visitors all the attention they would wish, but if the visitors would accept the will for the deed they could see that they were heartily welcome. Nothing pleased the lodge more than to minister to the comforts of the visitors, and as often as they chose to come there was the same cordial reception awaiting their arrival. Adverting again to what had been said in lodge, he hoped everything had been done to the visitors' satisfaction. Bro. the Rev. P.M. Holden, P.G.C. Middlesex, was called on to respond, and in returning thanks, he said he felt very deeply the cordial way in which the W.M. had proposed the toast. Something had been said in the lodge-room with regard to the hospitality and the good cheer the brethren received. He paid a visit to the lodge about twelve months ago, when Bro. Kent was in the chair, and the reception he then met with was excellent, and every attention was paid to his wants. Perhaps the brethren might say that that was owing to some other cause than his being simply a visitor. Being a substantial person he was not likely to be overlooked. Perhaps his Masonic father, Bro. Smith, gave him a good recommendation. Perhaps, more than any other reason, it was because he was a clergyman. He could assure the brethren that during the last two years he had always found, wherever he had been in a Masonic lodge or at the banquet table, the greatest kindness and attention paid to him as a clergyman. He was proud of being a Mason, because the more he knew of Masonry, the more he studied Masonry, the more he found in it to instruct, improve, and enlighten his mind. He spoke what he sincerely felt from the bottom of his heart when he said that he was all the better a man for being a Mason. No doubt there were many clergymen in the Masonic Order; and he wished there were more. Sometimes clergymen who were out of the Order said to him, "Well, but, Holden, you don't mean to say really that you are a Mason." He replied, "Yes, I do." "But," said they, "Surely not a Mason! Why, they are a parcel of heathens." He had rejoined, "Come, be a Mason yourself, and you shall soon see whether we are heathens or not." And he really and truly thought that if all clergymen could only be Masons, they would get rid of one peculiarity there was about clergymen. He did not wish to say a word against his own profession: he was proud of it; and there were many brilliant exceptions to the rule: but he did say if there was one objection against the clerical profession, it was that they were disposed to be rather narrow-minded. He was sure that if the clergy could be all Masons, their narrow-mindedness would be done away with at once and for ever. Bros. Walls, Ryley, and Conran also replied to the same toast. The W.M. proceeded to toast "The P.M.'s," for whom, he said, in some lodges there was but little to do. In the Domatic Lodge it was not so, however, for there was plenty for them to do there. If it was not for them, the W.M. would not be able to get on with his work at all. At all times he had been assisted by them, and it was on their account that he had gone through his year so successfully. The P.M.'s of this lodge were very able men, and they had contributed essentially to the prosperity of the lodge. He might mention the names of Bros. Walford, Kent, and Joseph Smith, the Treasurer, and he was looking forward eagerly to the time when he himself would be able to recline on those happy benches on which they sat, and where he would probably have nothing to do. With regard to Bro. Smith, he was the best of Treasurers, and what the Domatic Lodge would do without him would not really bear thinking about. He was always looking after the interests of the lodge, and he had the gratification of reflecting how prosperous it had become. Bro. F. Kent, C.C., P.M., was the first to reply, and he said that it was usual for the Lord Mayor, when elected, to promise that he would support and maintain all the rights and privileges of the corporation. As he (Bro. Kent) was the Immediate P.M. of the lodge, it was his duty to maintain the rights and privileges of the P.M.'s; and the privilege was always accorded to the I.P.M. of responding to the toast. Therefore, although Bro. Smith was associated with this toast, he (Bro. Kent) claimed the right of responding to it; and he might say to any P.M. who might succeed him that he would never be able to lay to his (Bro. Kent's) charge that he had not supported the privileges of his office. He was quite aware that he was a very unworthy representative of them; but, unworthy though he was, he had striven in that position to do his duty; and whether he had succeeded or not, in his own mind he felt that he had, and the way in which the toast had been received was a proof to his mind that such was the case. But he had to complain of the W.M. that evening, for he spoke very unkindly when he reminded that he (the W.M.) had Divinity on his right hand, and Law on his left. (Laughter.) He spoke of them very improperly (laughter), so much so, that he (Bro. Kent) felt inclined to say, as they used to say when he was young, "Between two stools the fool falls to the ground." But that was a mistake, for no one fell to the ground on that occasion. (Hear hear.) The P.M.'s were the ornate bench of this lodge. He looked round, and he was only too pleased to think that his name was coupled with such a glorious past. His friend, Bro. Walford, one of his particular friends—how well he was supported as W.M., and how worthy he was of support, for the way in which he performed the ceremonies, all the three degrees. No doubt he could still do so. The other P.M.'s also could perform the ceremonies. The lodge had therefore a strong body of P.M.'s, and he would say of them that they were all ready to take the chair of the lodge at any time. That was a very gratifying position for a lodge to be in; and as long as the brethren would stand by them they (the P.M.'s) did not intend to prove unworthy of them. (Cheers.) Bro. Joseph Smith said that in another capacity, as Treasurer, his position was a very responsible one—very different from that of the P.M.'s. He had to take all their money, and then to take care of it. Sometimes there was great difficulty in doing it. He was not surprised at the W.M. leaning towards the P.M.'s now, because he knew that at the next meeting of the lodge the brethren would be called upon to elect a new Master, and he, instead of being at the top of the tree, as he was now, would then be at the bottom. He might inform the brethren that whenever a W.M. was in a difficulty he was sure to fall upon the P.M.'s. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge." With respect to Bro. Willing, who was one of them, he could say nothing but what was good of him. A more valuable officer or assistant in the duties of the lodge it would be impossible to find. The S.W., Bro. Treadwell, S.W., was likewise, always at his post, ready and able to do his duty. Of Bro. Williams, acting J.W., he could say the same. Looking round from the highest to the lowest he found all his officers most efficient, most able, and always ready at the proper time to do their duty. He included Bros. Buscall and Clark in these remarks. Bro. Treadwell, S.W., responded. Perhaps he might be allowed to say that that day month the brethren would be again called upon to elect a successor to the chair, at present so ably filled by Bro. Everett. Having been 20 years a member of this, his mother lodge, and five years in office, and never absent one evening, and having received many votes of thanks (by which he felt very much flattered, because he saw that any little services he had rendered were acceptable to the brethren), he might perhaps look forward with some confidence to being elected to fill the proudest position a brother could fill in any lodge, or the Craft could confer on a brother. It was a proud position for a brother to occupy the chair of any lodge, and more particularly was it so in such a lodge as the Domatic. If ever it should be his good fortune to occupy the chair he would promise that he would do nothing that would be detrimental to the interests of the lodge. He would promote its interests in the same way as his predecessors had, and he would take no step that would promote anything but amity. He would make it his study to do everything in his power that would cause the brethren, at the end of his year of office, to say that he had given them satisfaction, and himself to feel that he had discharged his duties properly. Bro. Willing said he had not been in the room while the W.M. was mentioning his name, and it was his peculiar fatality to be absent when anything flattering was being said of him. He was glad to say that the lodge was so prosperous and happy that the brethren regretted they did not meet twelve times a year instead of six. Respecting the removal of the lodge, they ought to be very careful. He would candidly admit that the room was not large enough to accommodate the lodge; but this was not the only large lodge that met at Anderson's. The Zetland Lodge met there in the same large numbers, and the same objection applied to that lodge as to this. The Domatic wanted to move, no doubt; but the brethren must bear in mind that they were well received by the landlords, who did everything in their power to make them comfortable. The lodge, therefore, ought not to make an alteration unless that alteration was an improvement. Before they decided to move the lodge he wanted to know where they were going, what would be done for them where they were going, what they would have to pay for their accommodation, and how they were going to get there. The room they had at present was undoubtedly small for their numbers; but that was the only objection. The other officers also replied, and shortly afterwards the brethren separated.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE (No. 534).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 11th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. The lodge was opened by Bro. W. G. Moore, W.M., assisted by Bro. Edward B. Grabham, P.M., Provincial Grand Steward of Middlesex, acting as I.P.M. (in the absence of Bro. Cherrill, the Immediate Past Master), and the following officers:—Bros. Rath, S.W.; Cummings, J.W.; Ebner, S.D.; Aspinall, J.D.; Taylor, I.G. Visitors: Bros. Sorrell, W.M. 176; Seigert, P.M.; R. V. Hayday, P.M. 157; Edward B. Grabham, P.M. 1494, P. G.S. Middlesex; J. L. Dulan, 1426; and several others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Bro. William Paas, P.M., and unanimously confirmed. Ballots were separately taken for Mr. Washington Hayday, candidate for initiation, and Bro. E. V. Hayday, P.M. 157, and Bro. J. L. Dulan, 1426, for joining, the result being unanimous in favour of all three candidates. Bro. Barnes was raised to the Third Degree. Mr. Washington Hayday was initiated. No further business offering, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, presided over by the W.M. On the cloth being removed, the usual loyal toasts were given and duly honoured. Bro. John Boyd, P.G.P. Treas., proposed in very complimentary terms "The Health of the W.M.," which was drunk with much enthusiasm by all present. "The Health of the Initiate" was responded to by Bro. Washington Hayday, in a few well chosen sentences, in which he expressed his appreciation of the important ceremony which he had witnessed, and the honour thus conferred upon him. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. Edward B. Grabham, P.M., who congratulated the brethren upon having so efficient a W.M. as their present one, and predicted a prosperous year for the lodge whilst under his presidency. "The Health of the Past Masters, Treasurer, and Secretary" having been responded to, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Officers," and thanked them for the support they had rendered him by the very satisfactory manner in which they had severally discharged their duties, and trusted they would render to his successor the same support, so necessary in the well governing of the lodge. Bro. Rath, S.W., and the other officers having responded, the "Tyler's" toast was duly honoured, and the brethren separated, after the enjoyment of a most successful meeting.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening at Anderson's Hotel, and was presided over by Bro. A. R. Haley, W.M. As usual at installation meetings, the lodge was full, members and visitors being very numerous. Among these were, besides the W.M., Bros. James Weaver, P.M.; W. F. Smith, P.M.; W. Hurlstone, P.M.; R. W. Little, P.M., Sec.; F. N. Quilty, P.M., Treas.; John Walmisley, J.D.; and Alfred Moore, I.G. Visitors: Bro. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; F. Binckes, P. G.S.; T. A. Adams, P.G.P.; John Boyd, P.G.P.; F. Davison, P.G.S.W. Middlesex; James Moore, 714; James W. Baldwin, 1423; Edward W. Davis, P.M. 95 and 172; Peter Robinson, 201; J. F. Wuest, P.M. 753; Alex. Adams, P.M. 252; T. J. Maidwell, 17; W. Langridge, 1425; Chas. W. Hudson, J.D. 315 and 1540; W. F. Savage, W.M. 1425, J.W. 834; James Forbes, W.M. 1287; C. Hampton, P.M.; John George Marsh, P.M. 28, P.G.P. Middlesex; M. S. Larham, W.M. Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge; T. W. Clarke, Elliot Lodge; Samuel T. Kingston, Stanhope Lodge; Henry Webb, P.M. 72, 193, 890; C. Chesterton, 72; H. Massey, P.M. 619 ("Freemason"); G. Clarke, 177; A. Beasley, P.M. 780; J. Readly, 597; J. S. Brown; and J. H. Chaplin. The lodge was opened shortly after five o'clock, and after the usual preliminaries Bro. Alfred Allen, jun., 813; and Bro. D. J. Ross, 813, were unanimously elected joining members. Bros. Smith, Richardson, and Devine were afterwards passed to the Second Degree by the W.M. Bro. James Weaver, P.G. Org. Middlesex, P.M., afterwards took the chair by desire of the W.M., who presented to him Bro. Thomas Kingston, S.W. and W.M. elect, for the purpose of being installed as Master of the lodge. Bro. Thomas Adams, P.G.P., took the S.W. chair during the ceremony. After Bro. Kingston had been installed in the chair and saluted according to custom, he appointed Bro. A. R. Haley, I.P.M.; Bro. Walker, S.W.; Bro. Moore, J.W.; Bro. F. N. Quilty, P.M., Treas.; Bro. James Weaver, P.G. Org. Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund; Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G.S.W. Middlesex, Sec.; Bro. Walmisley, S.D.; Bro. Blakemore, J.D.; Bro. Packer, I.G.; Bro. Gilbert, Tyler; Bro. A. R. Haley, P.M., W.S. Bro. Little, on being re-invested as Secretary, thanked the W.M. for the appointment, and also the ten W.M.'s under whom he had served for their uniform kindness and courtesy. This was the last time that he would hold the office of Secretary; but the brethren would allow him to say that it was with great gratification he had witnessed the prosperity of the lodge in past years, and he hoped it would continue unabated. He now must inform the brethren that he only held the office of Secretary until the W.M. was pleased to appoint his successor. Bro. Weaver then delivered the addresses, after which the W.M. immediately proceeded with his work and initiated Mr. John Collinson in Freemasonry. The ceremony was admirably performed, the W.M. giving proof that the brethren had made an excellent choice in electing him as their head. The other new officers were also well up in their work. Notice of motion for a revision of the bye-laws was given by Bro. Haley, I.P.M., and the Secretary read a circular from the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, requesting a Steward from this lodge for the next festival of this Institution on the 9th February, 1876. There being no further business before the lodge, the brethren then adjourned to the banquetting rooms, where an excellent repast awaited them, to which they did ample justice. At the clearing of the cloth grace was said, and the W.M. proceeded with the toasts. In giving that of "The Queen and the Craft," he said it was a toast which was always received in assemblies of Englishmen with enthusiasm, and particularly at Masonic gatherings, Her Majesty being, as they were well aware, a patron of the noble charities of the Order. In giving the toast of "The M.W.G.M.," he said Masons were all proud of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, both as heir to the Crown and head of the Craft. He sincerely hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe would be with his Royal Highness in his travels both by sea and land, and restore him safely to his home. It was very gratifying to all Masons to see the great interest he took in Freemasonry, and those Freemasons who were present at the installation of his Royal Highness some months since must have felt proud of him when they saw the admirable way in which he discharged his duties as Grand Master. The W.M. observed, in proposing "The Pro G.M., the Deputy G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, &c.," that the Craft were deeply indebted to, and ought to be proud to have one so able and willing to fill the lofty position of Pro Grand Master as Lord Carnarvon. Col. Burdett responding, said although there were other Grand Officers present who could respond to this toast, no one could do so with a greater wish for the benefit of the Order than himself. The Grand Officers were continually being asked out to these festival meetings, and they felt great pleasure in attending them. Happily they did not seem to interfere much with their digestion or health. One of the Grand Officers present that evening (Bro. Adams) had reached the age of four score years and four, and he was one among many instances of those whom Freemasonry had not deteriorated. The Grand Officers were glad to be able to feel that while they had done all the work required of them conscientiously, they had done it so well that they had met with the approbation of the Craft. (Cheers.) Bro. John Boyd, P.G.P., also replied, and, referring to the remarks of Col. Burdett respecting the age of Bro. Adams, said that there was a Past Master of the Whittington Lodge present, (Bro. Hurlstone,) who was 87 years of age, and still in the enjoyment of excellent health. It was a great pleasure to him (Bro. Boyd) to see him present. When he (Bro. Boyd) was a young man in Masonry, Bro. Hurlstone was comparatively an old man, and yet he went through the different degrees in lodges of instruction. It was very gratifying to Freemasons to find that such a brother had had conferred upon him the highest honour the lodge could bestow. Moreover, there was not a brother around that hospitable board who was not pleased to see Bro. Hurlstone, notwithstanding his age, able to join and sit amongst them. Bro. A. R. Haley, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He stated that it was with much pleasure he did so. Those of the brethren who had known him a long time knew how to appreciate him. Those who had seen him for the first time that evening performing the work in the lodge would also appreciate him for the admirable manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation, and also conducted the affairs of the lodge. As far as he (Bro. Haley) was concerned, he had never seen a W.M. the first time he was in the chair so fluent in his working. What, then, might they expect from him during the remainder of his year? He concluded by calling on the brethren to drink the W.M.'s health in bumpers, and most heartily. The toast was drunk with the utmost cordiality, after which the W.M. said:—Worshipful Bro. Haley, P.M.'s, Wardens, and brethren,—It is with a great deal of pleasure that I rise to return thanks for the very kind manner in which my health has been proposed and received as W.M. of the Whittington Lodge. I need not tell you that I feel very proud to fill so distinguished a position as Master of this lodge. I only hope I shall be able to discharge my duties to your entire satisfaction. This being the first time in my life that I have filled the chair of King Solomon, you must not expect me to make a long speech, as I feel somewhat out of my element. Therefore, you must excuse me. I hope I shall be better next time. I again thank you very much for the kind manner in which my health has been proposed and received. The W.M. afterwards proposed "The Visitors," observing that the lodge was very much pleased to see so many around the table, and hoping not only that this would not be the last time they would come, but that they had had a pleasant evening. Bro. F. Davison, P.P.G.W. Middlesex, replied. From what he had seen that day, and from what he had heard fall from the lips of the W.M., he thought the Whittington Lodge would lose none of that lustre it had already secured, or the position it had taken in Freemasonry. He hoped the W.M. would have a year of office as pleasurable to himself as to the brethren at the table. He would depute to Bro. Binckes the duty of concluding the visitors' reply. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G. Steward, after some preliminary observations, said that the visitors had been extremely happy to have had the opportunity of being present on such an auspicious occasion as the installation in the Whittington Lodge. His first duty was to return the brethren's sincere and warm congratulations to the W.M. on being placed in the chair, the highest position the lodge had the power to confer on any of its members, and secondly to wish every prosperity to the lodge over which the W.M. had been called upon to rule. To the W.M. he wished all the health and happiness which he could wish himself. From what the visitors had witnessed, they could entertain no possible doubt that the brethren had exercised a most wise discretion in the choice they had made of one so accomplished as the W.M. to be their ruler. Comparisons were always invidious; but when he looked back on a long line of distinguished brethren who had ruled over this lodge and displayed a large amount of ability, he would be doing an injustice to them and paying no compliment to the W.M. if he did not expect that the W.M. would not excel all former efforts and prove himself equal to any who had gone before him. That, in the opinion of the visitors, was very high praise indeed. He looked around the table and saw a great number of visitors to this lodge, many of whom he knew, some of whom he did not know; but he and they had all had the pleasure, as well as the honour, of being guests of the Whittington Lodge. He had looked forward to this visit with much pleasure, and it would have been a great disappointment to him if he had been prevented coming. By coming he had the opportunity of expressing the warmest thanks of the visitors for the hospitality of the lodge, and of tendering their best wishes for the happiness and prosperity of the lodge during the W.M.'s reign. At the hospitable board the W.M. had been no less distinguished than he had been in the working of the lodge, and the less the visitors deserved the more merit to the lodge's bounty and hospitality. The W.M. proposed "The Initiate," and said: Brethren, the toast I am now about to propose I know will be received with the greatest enthusiasm by you all when I tell you that it is the health of our brother initiate. Bro. Collinson I have known for a great many years, and feel proud in having had the honour to initiate so worthy a brother to so distinguished a lodge as the Whittington. I feel satisfied that he will be an ornament to the Craft and a valuable addition to this lodge. Bro. Collinson, in reply, thanked the W.M. for initiating him. He had had but a very faint idea of what he would have to go through. He knew it would be something very serious. From what he had heard he gathered that he was expected to be a very honourable and virtuous man, and he should endeavour to carry out those excellent qualities. The W.M. next gave "The P.M.'s." Without P.M.'s the W.M.'s would often find themselves in a very serious dilemma. The P.M.'s were always ready to assist, and he hoped they would help him in his year of office. The lodge was very proud of its P.M.'s, and he had very much pleasure in presenting Bro. Haley, the I.P.M., with the jewel of his office, wishing him many years of life to enjoy the wearing of it. Bro. A. R. Haley, I.P.M., replied, thanking the brethren very much for the handsome jewel just presented to him, as well as for the handsome jewel commemorative of the Prince of Wales's installation as Grand Master. He felt it a very great honour, and hoped he would always so consider it. His experience of the W.M. chair was that if a brother wished to do his duty in it, and determined to do it, the brethren would sympathise with him, and would render him all the assistance in their power. In the choice they had made of the present W.M. he thought they could not have done better, as they would all find as they went into the chair that the principle on which to govern a lodge was to conduct it in harmony, to sink yourself as much as you could, and study the happiness of the brethren. Bro. W. Hurlstone, P.M., said the P.M.'s were at all times anxious to assist the W.M., as well as to encourage those who were desirous of going into the Master's chair. It was a position that any man might be proud of. As the oldest P.M. of the lodge he felt that position a great honour. The lodge had been successful in its career, although that had been but a short one. The lodge had arrived at a high position in the Craft. It had many P.M.'s, some of them Past Grand Officers. He had himself met with great kindness from the brethren. Time, however, had the advantage of him now, but still he was able, thank God, and desirous to perform some little duties; and he was proud to meet the brethren on this occasion. When he entered the lodge that night he little thought that he should meet his younger brother (Adams), or so many distinguished Masons. He found many brethren there whom he did not know before; but it was a great pride to him in his latter days to make these new acquaintances. With respect to the W.M., he felt that he had fair to make a worthy addition to the P.M.'s of the lodge. Though he (Bro. Hurlstone) could not say much for himself, because his day in Freemasonry had gone by, he was a great admirer of Freemasonry; and he would not have adhered to it so long if he had not seen that it was good. He should remain a Freemason as long as he lived, and if he should not again have the opportunity of thanking the brethren for this toast, he would say now with heartiness and sincerity that he thanked them very much for not forgetting him on this important occasion. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and the W.M. reminded them that if they brought their best efforts to bear in assisting him during his year of office, in due time they would arrive at the position he had attained to. Bro. Walker, S.W., said it was his pleasure, as well as his duty, to assist the W.M., and he was thankful that his efforts had been recognised by placing him in the S.W. chair that night. It was about ten years ago that he and the W.M. joined the lodge, the W.M. as an initiate, and himself as a joining member. They were now next to each other in office, and he would use his best exertions to promote the prosperity of the lodge and the happiness of the W.M.'s year of office. Bro. Alfred Moore, J.W., also replied. He appreciated most highly the W.M.'s kindness in placing him in the distinguished position of J.W. He would fulfil the duties of that distinguished position with due ability. Any office in a lodge was a dignified one; in fact, every one as soon as he entered Masonry was, if he proved himself a true Mason, a more dignified man than he was before. The man became a Mason, and if he held any position whatever, however humble, it was dignified. He was gratified when the W.M. invested him with his collar of office, and told him his situation was in the south. They all knew that that position was not the highest, although the sun was at its highest, at the meridian. In that position they might remember the J.W. was high up, and ere long, if no clouds intervened, would shine still brighter. He also remembered the duties the W.M. apprised him of; and he would remind the brethren that their pleasures in Masonry or in any other capacity in this life should be accepted in such a way that they might never exceed the bounds of what was honourable. The brethren should always so place themselves as to be capable of performing their duty. He would do his utmost to merit the esteem of the W.M., and of the brethren. "The Health of the Treasurer, Bro. Quilty," and "The Secretary, Bro. Little," followed. Bro. Quilty, Treas., said that it was a source of great gratification to him to see the lodge prosper as it had. As far as his individual efforts were concerned he had endeavoured to support the lodge as much as he could. In entrusting him with the care of their funds, they might rely on it that he would do everything he could to promote their interests. Bro. James Weaver, Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund, said he had £77 15s. in hand, but he wanted to get rid of it and invest it. He asked the brethren to contribute enough to enable him to purchase £100 stock. It was a fund that must ultimately grow, and if it was now invested the brethren would not want to touch it. If any draught was wanted to be made for a small amount they would not have to sell out. At the audit meeting brethren had told him if he wanted any addition to the fund they would be £5 each to it. He did not want so much; he only wished to have a small individual contribution. It was, however, necessary that they should have a fund to apply to in case misfortune should overtake a brother. He therefore appealed to the brethren for the means to purchase £100 stock. Bro. Little, Sec., as one of the officers included in the toast, was pleased that the brethren and visitors were gratified with their reception that evening. He then referred to what he had said in lodge as to his inability to continue to discharge the onerous duties of Secretary. He found that the duties of his Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls increasing so much that he could not also discharge the duties of Secretary of the Whittington Lodge. It was with very great pleasure he found the lodge so flourishing. They had been increasing for a long time, and the lodge was now enabled to say it would have some funded property. The members introduced during the time he had belonged to the lodge were men of the right calibre; men disposed to do their duty to the Craft; men imbued with the true principles of Masonry. This was very pleasing and satisfactory. The time had now come when he must sever his connexion with the lodge as its Secretary. The Girls' School (he spoke it in the presence of Bro. Binckes) must claim his first attention; he could not, perhaps, say his undivided attention, because his greatest pleasure was in Freemasonry, which had always been his feeling. He became the Secretary of the lodge through a deputation waiting upon him, and asking him to accept the office; and this he consented to do, and in that position he had striven hard to perform his duties. His endeavours had been successful, and he had had the pleasure of seeing the lodge most prosperous. Not the least part of that success was the establishment of the Benevolent Fund. It would always be a pleasure to him to see the lodge flourish, and to see it extend, as it always had extended, to brethren the right hand of fellowship. "The Tyler's" toast was then given, and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

ST. CLEMENTS DANES LODGE (No. 1351).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Bro. Carr's, King's Head Hotel, Strand, on the 5th of the present month, when, as is usual, a goodly number of brethren assisted in the working, which was performed in a manner that few lodges so young can boast of. Bro. Steward, the W.M., raised, passed, and initiated, and went through the working with ease and impressiveness; Bros. Livett, S.W.; Wilson, J.W.; Porter, S.D.; Wigg, J.D.; Perryman, D.C.; Butler, I.G.; Barnes, Org., were at the working; whilst that which is always a feature and a most welcome one at this lodge—the presence of the Past Masters of it—was not wanting, as there were the well-known faces of Bros. Betts, I.P.M.; Hilton, Sec.; Parker, Treas.; Hamilton, and Hale to be seen, making the younger brethren feel how deep was the "mystic tie" that bound them and their seniors in the Craft so closely together. After the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Carr, which was as ample as it was inclusive of all that is in season. Amongst those who were present at it were, besides the above named, Bros. Mott, Arthur Betts, Wiseman, Hepburn, Chas. Blamey, Duncan Harrison, Townley, Brannan, Gages, 3; Harward, Hutton, 2; Movand, William H. Hall, Tedbury, &c., and several visitors. The usual Masonic and loyal toasts were duly given and responded to, and a most agreeable evening was spent, to which the brethren possessing musical accomplishments greatly contributed. We are glad to state that the lodge of instruction, held on a Wednesday evening, is well attended, and that not only those brethren who were amongst the first to constitute the lodge, but the younger ones, Masonically speaking, also put in an appearance, and the word "instruction" is really shown to be the meaning of the gathering.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—A meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, when there was as usual a capital attendance of brethren. Bro. J. Hamilton Townend, W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. Seax, S.W.; Stanway, J.W.; Blackie, S.D.; Catchpole, J.D.; Thomas Preston, I.G.; Edward Moody, Sec.; Henry Thompson, P.M.; and others. By the kind courtesy of the W.M., Bro. Henry Thompson, P.M., whose eldest son was a candidate for the Second Degree, took the chair for that ceremony, and passed Bros. Wright, Wynne, W. E. Thompson, Cadiot, Bertram, and Evenett. Bro. Townend, W.M., performed the other ceremonies, raising Bros. Skinner, Benskin, J. Hartley, Lockitt, and Clark; and initiating Messrs. Powell, M. K. Frith, T. E. Lugg, and L. J. Hudd. The W.M. performed the raising three times, and admirably acquitted himself as W.M. Four propositions were given in for new candidates at next meeting. Bro. Edward Moody gave notice that he would move at the next lodge meeting that the initiation fee should be raised to ten guineas. This was the whole of the business before the brethren, who then adjourned to a nice supper, and afterwards honoured the usual toasts. The W.M. presided. In proposing the toast of "The M.W.G.M.," he wished his Royal Highness the best of health, and that his journey to India might prove a benefit both to that country and to this. In giving "The Pro Grand Master," the W.M. referred to him as a brother who had been of eminent service to the Craft, and was also a good-Mason and able statesman. When giving the toast of "The D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, &c.," the W.M. reminded the brethren of The Great City Lodge that the Junior Grand Warden of England for the present year (Bro. Alderman Stone) was a member of their lodge, and therefore more especially might be asked them to do all honour to the toast. Bro. N. B. Headon, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M." It was the first time since his installation that he had had the pleasure of doing so. He might say that the W.M. had that day disposed of a large amount of business, and every one who had witnessed it must have been gratified at the able manner in which it had been done. He felt assured that the more the brethren saw of the W.M. the more they would be pleased with him. He would be glad when the time arrived that he would have to make room for such a worthy Mason. After Bro. Hook had rendered in a superior style "The Village Blacksmith," the W.M. replied, and said the remarks of the I.P.M. were very flattering, and he was much obliged for the kind feeling which had dictated them. He was afraid, however, that Brother Headon had, for friendship's sake, passed over his imperfections, as it was known he worked a different system, although he wished to follow in the steps of his predecessors. He regretted that there was a difference in the rituals; but he thought by blending the two together one of the most beautiful rituals might be produced ever known in the world. He hoped that he should get better as he went on. He would do his best to serve them as Master of the lodge, and trusted that at the end of his year of office they would have no cause to regret having placed him in the chair. The W.M. next gave "The P.M.'s," for whom Bros. Headon and James Stevens returned thanks. He then gave "The Initiates," remarking that since The Great City Lodge had been formed it had never met without having an infusion of new blood. Very seldom had it met without four or five gentlemen coming forward for membership of the Craft. Frequently also an emergency had to be called to admit them. The Great City Lodge always held out to them "the right hand of fellowship." Without initiates a lodge would soon die out, an event which was not likely to befall The Great City Lodge. Bro. M. K. Frith and the other new brethren responded to the toast of "The Initiates." A brother from China replied for "The Visitors," and remarked that he had been in China for 18 years, and he had found Freemasonry there to be in a very flourishing condition. On his way to England he had passed through France, and visited a lodge at Marseilles. He there found a very great difference in the working of lodges, but he found the same principle carried out in all, fitting brethren for admission to the Grand Lodge above. Several other toasts were given, and the evening was delightfully spent.

Pentreath. The ballot was unanimously favourable in each case, and the candidates being present, were initiated into Freemasonry according to ancient custom. On the W.M. rising for the first time, it was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that the following votes of thanks be recorded on the lodge minutes, viz.:—To all the officers of the lodge, for kindness and generosity in presenting their collars and jewels to the lodge; to the W.M., for zeal and untiring energy in the formation and establishment of the lodge; to the S.W., for lending harmonium to lodge at consecration; to the S.D., for presenting a box for safe keeping of collars, jewels, &c.; to the Steward, for services rendered to lodge as Secretary at preliminary meetings; to Bro. S. J. Harvey, D.C. Royal Jubilee, 72, for present of square and compasses for Sacred Volume. Notice of motion was given to raise the initiation fee from five to seven guineas. Proposition was made and seconded for three gentlemen as initiates. The bye-laws, as sanctioned by Grand Lodge, were read in open lodge and confirmed. All Masonic business being ended, the lodge was closed in due form, &c., and adjourned till the second Thursday in December. The brethren adjourned to refreshment, and the remainder of the evening was very pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of creature comforts and complimentary speeches. This new lodge is now fairly established, and its success appears to be sure and certain.

PROVINCIAL.

Worthington, S.W., was unanimously called to the chair. Bro. T. W. Clarke, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer. Some propositions of candidates for initiation were postponed until next meeting. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when a very sumptuous dinner was fully done justice to, and thanks duly awarded for the liberal catering of the host. This old lodge, which has on more than one occasion nearly died out, seems now to be in a good way to become one of the best in the province out of Leicester.

PRESCOT.—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86).—The annual installation meeting of this ancient lodge, now about 110 years old, was held on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Derby-street, Prescott, near Liverpool. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not so large as might have been expected. Bro. Reginald Young, W.M., occupied the chair at the beginning of the proceedings, and amongst the other officers and brethren present were Bros. J. W. R. Fowler, P.M.; J. T. Hall, P.M.; W. Tyrer, S.W.; J. W. J. Fowler, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., P.M., Treas.; R. G. Elstone, acting Sec.; H. Vaughan, S.D.; F. Smith, I.G.; A. Tebbutt, S.; J. A. Stoddart, S.; G. Morgan, acting J.W.; A. Fraser, W. Dunn, W.M. 897; and others. The position of Installing Master was taken by Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, who placed Bro. W. Tyrer in the chair of W.M. with much ability. The charges to the following appointed officers were given by Bro. Fowler, jun.:—Bros. R. Young, I.P.M.; J. Vaughan, S.W. (by proxy); H. Vaughan, J.W.; J. W. J. Fowler, Treas.; F. Smith, Sec.; A. Tebbutt, S.D.; R. S. Reynolds, J.D.; W. Jackson, I.G.; J. A. Stoddart, Tyrer, the W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts with terseness and force. "The Provincial Grand Officers of West Lancashire, Past and Present," was responded to by Bro. Collins, P. Prov. G.J.W., and Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, P. Prov. G.A.D.C. Bro. R. Young, I.P.M., proposed "The Worshipful Master and Officers," and in doing so paid a high compliment to Bro. Tyrer, promising him his cordial support during his year of office. Bro. Tyrer, W.M., briefly acknowledged the compliment, and also Bro. H. Vaughan, J.W. The W.M. then presented Bro. Reginald Young, I.P.M., in the name of the brethren, with an exceedingly handsome Past Master's jewel, as a mark of fraternal regard and esteem, and admiration for him during his year of office. Bro. Reginald Young suitably responded, and subsequently presented Bro. J. W. J. Fowler with a chaste and valuable silver salver, on the occasion of his leaving Prescott to take up his residence at Southport, the testimonial being got up by his Masonic friends in recognition of his long and valuable services in connection with the Craft, Royal Arch, and other Masonic Orders. Bro. Fowler responded in suitable terms. "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution" was acknowledged by Bro. J. T. Hall, P.M., who referred to the rapid increase of Freemasonry all over the country, and the necessity for a more cordial support of the charities. About a century ago, he said, Masonry began to revive in England, and in London and district there were now 200 lodges, and nearly 1600 belonging to the Grand Lodge in England. The number of Masons connected with these lodges was about 170,000; in Scotland there were about 100,000 Masons; in Ireland, 50,000; on the Continent of Europe—say 600,000; and in the United States, 300,000. "The Visitors" was acknowledged by Bro. Councillor Fowler, S.W. 216. The proceedings terminated at an early hour.

As the election of W.M. for the ensuing year will take place on the next lodge night, a list of the brethren eligible for the chair was announced. Before the lodge was closed a prayer for the safety of our Grand Master during his visit to India (composed by Bro. the Rev. A. Robins, Chaplain of Windsor Castle Lodge, 771), was read by the W.M. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Bro. Tolley for the excellent manner in which he presided at the organ during the evening. His performance during the third ceremony was very effective.

Bro. Biretta was advanced to the degree of Master Mason, the ceremony being performed in the usual impressive manner by Wor. Bro. Carver. Immediately after the ceremony the Rt. Wor. the D.G.M. and the P.D.G.M. escorted our visiting Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught into the lodge, when, after some ordinary business had transpired, the lodge was closed in the usual manner by the W.M. The brethren then adjourned to the refreshment room, where the usual refreshment awaited them; and W. Bro. Carver having taken the chair, being supported by the D.G.M. and his efficient Wardens. The usual loyal toasts were given and duly honoured. The W.M., the D.G. Master, then arose to call the attention of the brethren to the presence among them this evening of our distinguished Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and after a very appropriate and warm address regarding the connection of His Royal Highness and his distinguished brother, the Grand Master of England, with the Craft, called upon the brethren to drink his health with the usual honours, which were heartily responded to by the brethren. The newly raised brother having also duly responded, the brethren separated, after spending a most enjoyable evening.

The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to raise Bro. Crick to the Third, and also to pass Bro. Manton to the Second Degree. Bro. Statham, J.W., proposed a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Stretton, P.M., for a presentation of firing glasses to the lodge, which having been seconded by Bro. Weare, P.M., and supported by Bro. Smith, W.M., was carried unanimously. Bro. Stretton suitably acknowledged the compliment. The Grand Lodge certificate having been presented to Bro. Bird, and a gentleman proposed for initiation, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the supper room, after which the loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The musical talents of Bros. Palmer, Cleaver, Weare, and Dr. Hunt causing the evening hours to swiftly "speed on."

Da Cunha were raised to the Sublime Degree to a Master Mason. All below the rank of M.M. were requested to retire. The Secretary, then read a letter dated 4th October, from the D.G. Secretary, in reference to the coming Masonic demonstration, viz., the laying of the foundation stone of the Elphinstone Docks by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The W. Master had, in order to save time, and to ensure the keeping of the brethren informed of the arrangements, appointed Bros. G. R. Henderson, I.P.M.; B. Robinson, P.M., and J. Luke, to represent Lodge Concord as members of the committee for making the necessary arrangements. This was then put to the meeting and carried. Letter from Bro. G. R. Henderson, I.P.M., tendering the resignation of Bro. H. A. Moss, which was accepted with regret. Letter from Bro. Calderwood, acknowledging receipt of his clearance certificate read. Letter from Bros. C. J. Hall and Isaac Holt, asking to be placed on absent dues, read and seconded. Two gentlemen were proposed for initiation. £10 sterling was voted to the widow of a late brother. There being no further business before the lodge, it was closed with solemn prayer at 9.40 p.m.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The first meeting of the members of the above lodge after the usual summer interregnum took place on Thursday, the 4th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Plumstead, and a goodly number of both members and visitors assembled to welcome the new W.M., Bro. A. Penfold, to the position he has so well earned as head of one of the most flourishing and influential lodges in the Province of Kent. The following officers were present beside the W.M.: J. McDougall, I.P.M.; T. Vincent, S.W.; H. Butler, J.W.; T. H. Hayes, S.D.; W. B. Lloyd, J.D.; B. Lester, O.G.; R. G. Cook, D.C. Bro. H. Mabbett, in the absence of Bro. Chapman, acted as I.G. Among the visitors present were Bros. T. Ward, W.M. 700; H. Carnelly, W.M. 13; F. G. Dawson, P.M. 700; C. Hobson, P.M. 700; T. Butt, S.W. 700; W. A. Weston, S.W. 1536; H. S. Syer, Sec. 13; E. B. Hobson, 700; R. Beaver, 700; W. T. Beaver, 700; H. Shaw, 700; E. W. Fisher, 700; J. Warren, 700; T. Hastings, 829; and W. Topp, 879. The lodge having been opened in due form and the usual business settled, Mr. T. Cartland (silversmith) was, after ballot and approval, initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry, and Bro. D. Capon was raised to the Sublime Degree, both ceremonies being most eloquently and impressively worked by the W.M. The W.M. then read a letter from the P.G. Lodge respecting the wearing of jewels in the lodge, which we may say is the same in text as the letter sent to the Metropolitan Lodge from G.L., from which arose a discussion respecting the commemorative jewel spoken of as being necessary to celebrate the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in the Grand Chair of England. The discussion was ultimately adjourned till the next monthly meeting. Two guineas were then voted to the widow of a deceased brother, this being the second donation to her. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren sat down to a most excellent dinner, served in good style by Bro. Tucker, the new host. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk most enthusiastically. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was, by the W.M., in the toast of "The Most Worshipful Grand Master of England," wished every health and success upon the important mission of peace and goodwill that he has so nobly undertaken to India, and a safe and speedy return when that mission was accomplished. The name of "Lord Holmesdale, the P.G. Master of Kent," was most cordially received, as was that of "Bro. Eastes and the rest of the P.G. Officers." The latter was acknowledged by Bro. P.M. T. Smith, P.P.G.P. of Kent. P.M. McDougall then proposed "The Health of the W.M." in a few choice sentences, saying that the brethren might see what they had to expect in the working of the lodge during Bro. Penfold's year of office from the really excellent manner in which he had carried it out that evening. He (the W.M.) was, and always had been, a credit to the lodge, and he hoped the Great Architect of the Universe would long spare him, and make the lodge increase tenfold, both in numbers and brotherly love, under his guidance. The W.M., in reply, thanked them for their kind reception of his name, and modestly accused himself of some trifling imperfections, which certainly were not inexcusable, more particularly as that was his first effort, and he therefore said, with the Scriptures—"Let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." He spoke highly of the late W.M., Bro. McDougall, and trusted he should ever sustain the high prestige and best interests of the Pattison Lodge by doing his duty and following the example set by not only the late but every P.M. who had sat in that chair. He again thanked the brethren for their kind wishes and assistance. Bro. Ward, P.M. 700, responded for "The Visitors," and expressed the pleasure he felt at visiting and receiving the brethren of the Pattison Lodge—a feeling, he said, he felt sure was reciprocated by every member of the Nelson Lodge, and which he hoped would long continue between both lodges. He paid a most hearty tribute of praise to the W.M., who, he said, must have studied hard to acquire so high a standard of efficiency as they had witnessed that evening in the working of the lodge. He regretted the absence of Bro. P.M. Pownall, of the United Military Lodge, through illness, who, he knew, looked forward to visiting the Pattison Lodge with a deal of pleasure, and concluded a clear and forcible address by wishing both the lodge and its W.M. every success and prosperity. "The Initiate" was of course duly honoured, and P.M.'s McDougall, Paine, Smith, and Denton had their health drunk most cordially. Bro. Tucker (host) was especially complimented by the W.M. for his excellent catering, and then "The Tyler's" toast concluded a very happy evening.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—On Wednesday evening, the 3rd inst., the monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street. The following brethren were present:—Bros. Henry T. Bobart, P.G.A.D. of C., W.M.; F. Hille, P. Prov. J.G.W., I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; J. H. Biggs, as J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P. Prov. S.G.W., P.M., Treas.; J. Worsnop, P. Prov. G.P., P.M., Sec.; E. R. Ward, as S.D.; Thos. Gadsby, J.D.; G. Pipes, D. of C.; Jos. Heathcote, I.G.; T. Slina, O.G.; T. Mainprize, J. M. Moore, P. Prov. G.R., P.M.; W. Heathcote, Thos. Roe, jun., P.M. 802; W. B. Hextall, C. D. Hart, T. H. Hepworth, S. Steele, E. Taylor, J. O. Manton, M. Hill, W. Butterfield, Henry Mills, Rd. Daniel, J. Parkins, Jos. Griggs. Visitors: J. Smith, W. Whitaker, Stafford, Burton, J. C. Merry, W.M. 731; Thos. Merry, A. Frazer, A. Moore, J. Brown, G. T. Wright, all being members of the Arboretum Lodge, 731; W. H. Marsden, P.S.G.W., P.M. 253. The lodge was opened in the First Degree at 7 p.m. After the circular convening the lodge was read, the minutes of the last meeting were confirmed. Mr. Joseph Griggs, elected at a former meeting, was regularly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the W.M. The charge was given by the S.W. in a masterly style, and the lecture on the Tracing Board was ably delivered by Bro. J. M. Moore, P.M. The lodge was closed in ancient and solemn form, and the brethren adjourned to the quarterly supper, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

NORTHALLERTON.—Anchor Lodge (No. 1337).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 3rd. Bro. J. Fairburn, W.M., presided, supported by his officers, as follows:—G. F. Clarkson, S.W.; R. Palliser, J.W.; W. A. Hutchence, Treas.; Thomas Bell, Sec.; J. Wheldon, S.D.; H. Rymer, J.D.; M. Walmsley, I.G.; E. Wilkinson, Tyler; P.M. Warstell and Bros. W. Hardy and E. Milburn were also present. The work performed comprised the initiation of Richard Henry Sootheran, the ritual being most ably rendered by the W. Master. At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the refreshment room, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the evening was spent in the most harmonious manner, and in the true spirit of Masonry.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Saturday, Nov. 6th, at the Royal Archer, Dale-street. The lodge was opened at 4.30 (called for four o'clock) by the W.M., Bro. Henry Smith. The minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. Nicholson was passed. Bro. Brayshaw was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. The lodge was then lowered to the First Degree, when the election of W.M. for the ensuing year took place, and, to the surprise of many, the J.W. was elected in preference to the S.W., and more especially as Bro. Pearson, the S.W., is known not only in this lodge, but throughout the Province of East Lancashire, to be such an excellent worker, and to possess every qualification for the office of W.M. Such a circumstance can only be accounted for by the votes of some of the junior members—who have had little Masonic experience—making a personal matter of the election without studying the interests of the lodge, thereby looking for preferment by disposing of the S.W. The more experienced of the members would have preferred the election to have gone otherwise. Bro. Tyers, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, as also Bro. Beswick, Tyler. The business was concluded about seven o'clock.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Hensley Lodge (No. 1472).—The regular monthly meeting of the above lodge was held on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., at Bro. West's, the Three Crowns, there being a good attendance of members. Bro. P.M. West, in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. Brayshaw, fulfilled the duties of W.M., and duly initiated Mr. Cavey, engineer, assisted by the following officers:—J. Ives, S.W.; W. Steele, J.W.; I. Silver, S.D.; Chambers, J.D.; Manning, I.G.; and Steadman, O.G. After the initiation Bro. Brayshaw, who had now arrived, resumed the chair, and presented P.M. West, in the name of the lodge, with a letter of condolence on the death of Mrs. West, to which Bro. West replied in a feeling and most suitable manner. Bro. Turner was then elected Assistant Secretary, and the lodge closed in due form. The brethren and visitors then adjourned to supper, and afterwards spent a most enjoyable evening in pure Masonic fashion.

LANCASTER.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The first meeting of this newly consecrated lodge was held on Friday, the 5th inst., at the North Western Hotel, Morecambe, Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. England, the W.M., opening the lodge and presiding over its business. Messrs. Ward and Bannister were initiated, the working being efficiently performed by the W.M., in which he was ably assisted by Bro. E. Airey, I.P.M., and Bro. H. Longman, 1051, as S.W. Two joining members were proposed, and after a pleasant meeting, the lodge closed in ancient form.

Royal Arch.

Edward Harris (collector of the Boys' School), M.E.Z.; J. H. Butten, H., M.E.Z. elect; J. W. Baldwin, J.; F. Walters, P.Z., S.E.; M. D. Loewenstark, S.N.; B. Isaacs, P.S.; W. Smeed, P.Z.; J. S. Baldwin, J.; F. Walters, P.Z.; and others. The minutes of the meeting held in October were read and unanimously confirmed. Comp. W. Smeed, P.Z., as M.E.Z., installed Comp. J. H. Butten as M.E.Z.; and exalted Bro. T. W. Adams, Southwark Lodge, 889. Business being ended, the chapter was closed. The next meeting will be held on Thursday, January 11th, 1876. A slight refreshment followed, after which the presentation of the usual five-guinea P.Z.'s jewel (which had been unanimously voted to him from the chapter funds) to Comp. E. Harris, P.Z., took place. On behalf of the chapter, Comp. F. Walters, P.Z. (the father of the chapter), pinned on the jewel to Comp. E. Harris's breast, expressing the pleasure he felt after twenty years' acquaintance in presenting him with the jewel.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—A convocation of this old established chapter was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Thursday, October the 28th last. There were present Comps. T. A. Adams, acting M. E.Z.; C. Cottebrune, P.Z., acting H.; M. Scott, J.; J. R. Foulger, I.P.Z., acting S.N.; Palmer, S.E.; C. J. Hill, P.S.; Tredwell, First Assistant; D. Lawrence, Second Assistant; H. G. Buss, P.Z., Treasurer. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken on behalf of Comp. G. Everett, 975, and W.M. of 177, as a joining member, and resulted in an unanimous vote of approval. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Ambrose (177) and Clarke (Ebury) for exaltation, and having been declared unanimous, those brothers were duly exalted. From the names of the Principals engaged in the ceremony, the companions anticipated a fine rendering of the ritual, and they were not disappointed, for the working of Comps. Adams and Cottebrune, assisted by Comp. Scott as J., left nothing to be desired. At the conclusion of the ceremony a very pleasant circumstance took place, viz., the conferring of a honorary membership upon Comp. Morrison, P.Z., No. 26, Michigan, U.S.A., as a slight recognition for the valuable aid he had rendered to Comp. Hill, P.S., while suffering from a dangerous illness when in America. The convocation having been closed, the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet, presided over by Comp. Foulger, the I.P.Z., in the unavoidable absence of the M.E.Z., Comp. Bolton. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual Royal Arch toasts were given and enthusiastically received. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed and drank, and most ably responded to by Comp. Foulger on behalf of Comp. Bolton, whose absence, he regretted to say, was owing to indisposition. "The Health of the Newly Exalted Companions" was then proposed, and responded to at length by Comps. Ambrose and Clarke. The "Visitors" toast was responded to by Companions Morrison, H. Pullen, Lathbury, and Walls. The former acknowledged the great honour that had been conferred upon him that evening by the companions of the Domatic in electing him an honorary member. In the course of his speech he said that the services he had rendered to Comp. Hill in America were only what every brother, of whatever grade in Freemasonry he might belong, should cheerfully and voluntarily do to one in distress or danger. Ever since he had been connected with Masonic institutions he had endeavoured to carry out to the best of his ability and means those vital principles of the Craft, "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." "The Health of the P.Z.'s of the Domatic" having been given, was acknowledged by Companions Buss, Adams, and Little; and Companions Palmer and Hill replied on behalf of the junior officers. Between the numerous toasts Companions Palmer, Lawrence, Walls, and Lathbury vocally amused the brethren, who separated at a late hour after enjoying a most instructive and agreeable evening.

GATESHEAD.—De Burgh Chapter (No. 424).—On Thursday, 28th October, the members held their annual meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, West-street, for the purpose of installing E. Comps. James Hune Thompson, Z.; Andrew Harkness, H.; and John Edward Robson, J. Comp. Robert Smaile, P.Z., Installing Master, performed the ceremony. The following were invested as officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—A. Clapham, P.Z., Treas.; Rd. Gregory, E.; J. D. Stephen, N.; M. Guthrie, P.S.; N. Brown, First A.S.; J. Montgomery, Second A.S.; and J. Curry, Janitor. Amongst the visitors and members were Wm. Henry Crookes, Prov. G.E. Durham; Wm. Liddell, P.G.J.; E. D. Davis, P. Prov. G.H.; Dr. R. F. Crook, P.Z.; F. P. Jonn, P.Z. 414; Jas. Humphrey, 97. The companions then adjourned to the banquet, after which followed the various loyal and Masonic toasts.

Mark Masonry.

DOVER.—Cingre Ports Lodge (No. 152).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday at Bro. Terson's room, Townwall-street, Dover. The lodge was opened by Bro. Terson, and afterwards Bro. Iggesden was installed as W.M. by Bro. F. Binckes. The following P.M.'s were present:—H. C. Fuhr, Osmond, Terson, Bros. T. Terson, Camm, Wilkins, Whiche, Turner, H. M. Baker. After the lodge work was completed the brethren adjourned to Bro. Fuhr's Hotel de Paris, where a banquet, in all respects unexceptionable, was provided, to which the brethren did ample justice, and afterwards honoured the toasts usual at all meetings of Mark Masters. The lodge, which has been in abeyance for some time, appears now to have taken a fresh start; and it is said there is every prospect of it becoming very successful. Already there are four candidates for advancement at next meeting, and several others are expected to come.

[The above appeared in our second edition of last week.]
HINCKLEY.—The Knights of Malta, Time Immemorial Lodge (No. 30 on the roll of the English Grand Lodge of Mark Masters), after two years' inaction, met again for an emergency meeting on Monday, the 1st inst., Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, Past Chaplain of Grand Mark Lodge and D.P.G.M.M., in the W.M.'s chair. Bros. R. Boughton Smith, S.W. 21, as S.W.; T. W. Clarke, J.W.; Nugent, M.O.; Griffiths, S.O.; J. Atkins, J.O.; T. Harrold, Secretary; J. T. Thorpe, S.D. of 19, as Deacon; Tippits, as I.G. The minutes of the last lodge having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for five candidates: Bros. F. Worthington, C. Synsome Preston, Thomas Marson, Joseph Barber, and Robert Bradshaw Smith, all members of the old Craft, Lodge 50, and being unanimously elected, they were advanced to the honourable degree of a M.M. by the acting W.M. and the old officers of the lodge, assisted by Bros. R. Boughton Smith and Thorpe, who most ably performed their duties. Bro. Rev. W. Langley was then unanimously elected W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, and Bro. T. Clarke, Treasurer. Two brethren were proposed as candidates for advancement at the next meeting, and the lodge was closed. Letters of apology for absence were then read from Bros. W. Kelly, Prov. G.M.M., and J. Spittall, W.M. Now that a little fresh life is stirred up in this old Time Immemorial Lodge it will in all probability make up for lost time, and regain its position in the province as second only to the well worked and prosperous Fowke Lodge, No. 19, held at Leicester. It is hoped by the Hinckley brethren that Bro. Kelly will hold his next annual Provincial Grand Mark Lodge under its banner, and so give encouragement to those who have taken great interest in its resuscitation.

DEVIZES.—Wiltshire Keystone Mark Lodge (No. 178).—The annual meeting of this young lodge, which was consecrated a year ago, was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Town Hall, when the Rev. T. F. T. Ravenshaw, P.G.M. Ch., the W.M.M. elect for the ensuing year, was duly installed in the chair of A. by the retiring Master, Bro. Wm. Nott, G. Mk. St., assisted by Bro. William Munro, W.M.M. 119. The newly-installed Master then appointed and invested his officers, the principal of whom were as follows: The Rev. Henry Richardson, S.W.; John Chandler, J.W.; D. A. Gibbs, M.O.; F. V. Holloway, S.O.; J. H. Chandler, J.O.; D. A. Gibbs, Treas.; W. Nott, I.P.M. Sec.; H. J. Ward, Reg. A candidate for advancement at the next meeting having been proposed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned and afterwards dined together at the Crown Hotel.

Royal and Select Masters.

A Council of this body met on Wednesday at the new lodge rooms, Red Lion Square. The Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., M.P.G.M., presided, and he was supported by Captain N. G. Phillips, D.G.M.; Comps. Frederick Binckes, G. Recorder; Hyde Pullen, G.P.C. Work; Frederick Davison, G. T.; Shadwell Clarke, T. W. Coffin, S. Rosenthal, T.I.M. No. 3; and John Read, Org.

A lodge of Most Excellent Masters was opened, and the minutes of former meetings of council were read and confirmed.

Two candidates presented themselves for reception, the Rev. Dr. Brette, of Christ's Hospital, and the Rev. Wm. Ambrose Hall, of Walton-on-the-Hill. These worthy companions were respectively acknowledged as Most Excellent Masters, received Royal Masters, greeted Select Masters, and created Super Excellent Masters.

The council was then duly closed and adjourned.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF PERTSHIRE, EAST.

On Friday, the 29th ult., a meeting of the Prov. G.L. of Perthshire, East was held in the hall of the R.A. Lodge, Perth, at four o'clock p.m., for the purpose of installing the Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird, K.T., as Prov. Grand Master, and his officers. The officers were as follows:—Bros. J. B. Brown-Morrison, Depute Master, Dr. William Cowan, Substitute Master; Rev. W. G. H. Carmichael, Chaplain; William MacLeish, Senior Warden; Colonel D. R. Williamson, of Lawers, Junior Warden; Robert Mitchell, Secretary; Right Worshipful Bro. John Chalmers, Scon and Perth Lodge, No. 3, Treasurer; Past Master Robert Dow, Royal Arch Lodge, 122, Senior Deacon; Robert Lees, Lodge St. Andrews, 74, Junior Deacon; Past Master John Young, C.E., Lodge St. Andrews, 74, Architect; John Baird, Scon and Perth Lodge, Jeweller; John Wilson, Royal Arch Lodge, Bible-Bearer; Right Worshipful Bro. George Hutton, Royal Arch Lodge, Director of Ceremonies; John Scott, Royal Arch Lodge, Sword Bearer; William Bryson, St. Andrew's Lodge, Director of Music; James Rolfe, Royal Arch Lodge, Standard Bearer; Peter Carmichael, Scon and Perth Lodge, Steward; John Robertson, St. Andrew's Lodge, Inner Guard; David Cockrane, St. Andrew's Lodge, Tyler.

The lodge having been duly constituted, a prayer was offered up by the Worshipful and Rev. Chaplain, W. G. H. Carmichael, and opened in due and ancient form.

The installation ceremony was performed in a most imposing and impressive manner by Bro. George R. Harriot, of Kilmore, R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Wigtown and Kirkcudbrightshire. There was a large attendance of the fraternity, the number being over 200, and included deputations from the lodges in the Province, as well as from Dunkeld, Dundee, Forfar, and various other places. There has seldom been in Perthshire such a large gathering of the respectable and ancient fraternity, and certainly no gathering where the success was so great. After the installation ceremony, Right Worshipful Bro. Harriot gave a most interesting address on the great and universal principles of the Order, which are founded on the purest principles of piety and virtue.

It may be mentioned that the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lord Kinnaird, has taken a great interest in restoring to the province the benefits of a Grand Lodge, which will now be able to take that supervision over the various lodges in the province which is so necessary for the proper and efficient working of the ancient Craft. This Provincial Grand Lodge has been in a dormant state for several years, and it is due to the Provincial Grand Master to say that when a proposal to resuscitate the lodge was put before him, he entered into the whole matter with that zeal and amiability for which he is so well and deservedly known and respected. The brethren in the city have made a determination to range themselves round his lordship, and, shoulder-to-shoulder, press forward in the work of brotherly love, benevolence, and charity, which are well known to be the watchwords of the Craft.

After the installation ceremony had been concluded, the brethren, in a quiet way, and without any parade, pomp, or ceremony, wended their way towards the Salutation Hotel, where a splendid banquet had been prepared for them by Bro. Peter Carmichael, Provincial Grand Steward. The chair was occupied by the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lord Kinnaird, and the croupiers were Bro. William MacLeish, who filled the chair of Senior Warden; Bro. John Young (in the absence of Colonel Williamson), Junior Warden; and Bro. Robert Dow, Senior Deacon. Over 200 brethren were seated round the tables in the great hall of the hotel, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, by the care and industry of Bro. Dow, with various banners, on which were painted a number of beautiful symbols and emblems of the Craft. There were many brethren present clothed in the uniform of the 42nd Royal Highlanders and the 79th (Queen's Own) Cameron Highlanders; and these brethren, along with the officers and Wardens of the various lodges present, clothed with their aprons, collars, gauntlets, and jewels, presented a very pleasing effect, and one that is not likely soon to be forgotten by the brethren who were present.

After the lodge had been opened in due and ancient form, and constituted by prayer by the W. and R. Chaplain,

The Provincial Grand Master proposed "The Health of the Queen." Although Her Majesty was not a Mason, and could not by the rules of Masonry be one, yet from what he personally knew of her virtues, he felt quite sure that she was a Mason at heart, and he had no doubt the Masons present, as did every Mason throughout the empire, would enthusiastically drink to Her Majesty's long life, health, and happiness. (Applause.) One of the first things that a Mason on being initiated learned was to be loyal and obedient to the laws of the realm, both of his own country and of any state or country in the world where Providence might cast his lot.

The toast was responded to with great heartiness, and the band—under the efficient leadership of Bro. William Bryson, Director of Music—played "God save the Queen."

The Provincial Grand Master then said that although this toast had been put upon the list as "The Queen, and the rest of the Royal Family," he considered it right and proper, on the present occasion, that the two should be separated, especially on account of an interesting fact which he had to announce, and of which the brethren were previously ignorant, namely, that her Royal and Imperial Highness the Duchess of Edinburgh had that day given birth to a daughter. (Applause.)

The toast was then drunk with all the honours.

The Provincial Grand Master next proposed "The Grand Lodge of England, and Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." He hoped that His Royal Highness would safely return from the far country to which he had gone, after having spent a pleasant, happy, and profitable time in India. They were well aware that recently a certain body had taken away their Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Earl of Ripon, and thus a blow was struck at the Order, which was supposed at the time to have a most dangerous effect; instead of this, however, it had been quite the opposite, as His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales came manfully forward, and filled the breach, and thus gave to Masonry an impetus which it never had before. (Applause.) He trusted that the impetus which had been given to the Craft in England would extend, as undoubtedly it had extended, to Scotland, and that this Grand Lodge which had now been restored in their midst would be one of those branches of the grand old Craft which would tend to extend the Order wider and deeper than ever. (Applause.) He concluded by expressing the hope that God would grant His Royal Highness long life, health, and happiness. (Applause.)

The toast having been drunk with great enthusiasm,

Brother Greig of Glencarse responded for the Grand Lodge of England. In the course of his reply, Brother Greig said he had been made a Mason in England some fifty years ago. His being present on that occasion brought to his remembrance a banquet that was given to the late Earl of Yarborough, who was adopted Grand Master of England, and it was attended by many of the elite of the land, and there, as he found in Scotland, Masons proved themselves right good fellows. (Cheers.) No doubt, the very fact of His Royal Highness being the Grand Master of England would bring thousands to join the Craft, and the impetus that must be given from what had taken place that day in the Fair City of Perth would add hundreds, he should like to say thousands, to the Craft. (Cheers.) He had great pleasure in being present that day to witness their noble Chairman placed in the position he now occupied. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master proposed "The Grand Lodge of Ireland, and Brother the Duke of Abercorn, M.W.G.M." He knew but little of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, and the doings of the daughter lodges in that part of the kingdom; but as he was connected by family ties to Ireland, he could vouch that the brethren of Ireland were good men and true, and paid great attention to their duties as Craftsmen. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master proposed "The Grand Lodge of Scotland, and Brother Sir Michael Robert Shaw Stewart, M.W.G.M." He said that Sir Michael Shaw Stewart paid great attention to the duties of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, which was in good working order, and he hoped that this branch which had now been restored would be useful in aiding and assisting in the work.

The Provincial Grand Master next proposed "The Sister Provincial Grand Lodges of Scotland." He was glad to see such a large representation of the brethren from Dundee and Forfar—a province he knew which was endeavouring, as had that day been done in Perthshire East, to restore to that province a Provincial Grand Lodge; and he was quite sure, from the efficient manner in which the duties of the evening had been performed by their Installing Master, the Right Worshipful Brother George R. Harriot, they would leave the "Fair City" after having learned many useful lessons that would enable them still further to proceed with the work they had in view. (Applause.)

This toast was very ably responded to by the Right Worshipful Master of the Operative Lodge, Dundee, and also by the Right Worshipful Master of one of the Forfar lodges.

R. Wor. Bro. R. G. Harriott then proposed the toast of the evening, "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Perthshire, East, and Bro. Lord Kinnaird, R.W.P.G.M." In submitting the toast, he said it gave him great pleasure to be present. He had no doubt from what he had seen of Lord Kinnaird, and the officers and brethren of this lodge, in their endeavour to restore the lodge to the province, that they would do their work in an able and efficient manner, and would be enabled to raise the Craft to that position in the eyes of the world which it should ever hold. If Masonry was not a religion, it was at least a handmaid to Christianity, and embraced all the principles which ought to guide a man through life. Freemasonry enabled a man of whatever country, clime, or race, to live a righteous life, and showed him his duty to God, his neighbour, and to himself.

The toast was drunk by the brethren of the visiting lodges with great enthusiasm.

The Provincial Grand Master replied in an able and impressive manner. He hoped that the lodge which had now been restored would prosper, and stated that he personally would make every endeavour to secure this end. He trusted, and, indeed, he had no doubt, the officers who had that day been installed would manfully support him, and he had great hopes of their doing much good amongst the lodges in the province, and restoring many of them now in a dormant state to life again. He knew that there were sometimes great difficulties in working country lodges in a proper and efficient manner; but now that a uniform standard had been sanctioned by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, there could be little difficulty in Masters of Lodges informing themselves of the same, as any Master within the province could make application either to himself personally or to his Depute or Substitute Masters, and receive the information which would enable them to do their work efficiently. He begged, in the name of the lodge, and of himself and officers, to thank Right Worshipful Bro. Harriot for the very able and effective manner in which he had performed the duties of the day, and for his great kindness in being present, as well as for the interesting address which he had given to the brethren concerning the great principles of their universally-spread Order.

Bro. Dr. William Cowan, R.W.P.G.S.M., proposed "R. W. Bro. George R. Harriot, Wigton and Kirkcudbright, Installing Master." In proposing the toast, Dr. Cowan said they had great reason to thank Bro. Harriot, and to be proud of having such a brother amongst them. He knew Bro. Harriot to be an enthusiastic Mason and a good man. Masonry itself, he said, was a great and good thing. He himself had traversed throughout every region of the globe, and wherever he had gone he had felt the benefits of Masonry, not only in his own person, but he was enabled on many occasions to assist worthy and deserving brothers, with whom by no other means he could have become acquainted or have known of their difficulties. While he had been enabled to assist those worthy brethren in earning their daily bread, he had also been assisted, both professionally and otherwise, on every occasion he had sought it. If Masonry was not a system of religion at all events it was the closest approach to a universal religion on the face of the earth, for by it a brother Mason was enabled, and he had been so enabled, to take by the hand a Mahomedan, a Jew, a Parsee, a Hindoo, and even a Cherokee Indian, and call them brothers. While Master of a Canadian Lodge (Great Western Lodge, No. 47) in Windsor, Canada West, he had on his left hand while sitting in that lodge, a Cherokee chief, who was Master of a lodge working in the Rocky Mountains. That chief had dropped the tomahawk, and taken to preaching the principles and tenets of Freemasonry; and should any of the brethren now present ever be called, in the Providence of God, to visit that distant region, they would probably find that worthy brother—who was a brother-professional of his (Dr. C.), being a great medicine man—who would greet them warmly as brethren, and who, in place of offering them the scalping knife, would hold out his hand as a pledge of brotherhood. This brother to whom he referred could not only work the lodge of which he was Master in his mother tongue, but he could also work it fluently in English. This was not the only lodge among the Cherokee Indians, as there were three working lodges within that tribe, as he had been informed both by this chief and brother Mason himself, and by worthy brethren in Detroit and Windsor. Such, then, being the principles and results of Masonry, it was well worthy of the acceptance of all men, and of the support of every worthy brother. Their Right Worshipful Bro. George R. Harriot was a most enthusiastic Mason, and was at the present moment spending large sums of money from his private purse, and giving a great deal of his time, in endeavouring to establish in their midst, a benevolent institution for decayed and distressed Masons, and for the widows and orphans of Masons. They ought warmly to cherish such a brother, and give him every support and assistance in their power, in so noble, and useful, and benevolent an undertaking. Large sums of money have been expended in nearly every other country in the establishment of such institutions, and in the sister kingdom of England there at present existed an institution of his kind for which during the past year above £27,000 had been raised by donations and subscriptions—not to establish it, for it had been in existence for several years, but to carry it on, and pay its working expenses. Surely Scotland would not be behind in this noble work. He hoped the brethren present would do all in their power to forward the great cause which Bro. Harriot had so much at heart, and again returned his sincere and heartfelt thanks to Bro. Harriot for the way in which he had come forward to do the duties of the day, and for the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the recent imposing ceremony.

The toast was drunk with all Masonic honours.

Bro. Harriot in reply, said Bro. Cowan had pretty nearly taken the words out of his mouth. This was the only country almost in the world which had a Grand Lodge of its own which had not a place of refuge for its widows and orphans. In the States of America these institutions existed. Some had orphanages and some had homes, but in every State there were some such institutions. Ireland had two institutions; England, three; France had its institutions; and Sweden, that poor, small, thinly-populated country, had an orphanage which would shame the world to know it. It maintained 800 children. If a poor, thinly-populated country like that could do what he had said what should they do with their boasted rights in Great Britain? England and Ireland had done its quota. It remained for Scotland to perform its proportion. The taunt had been thrown in his face that many Scotch beggars, saying they were Masons, were continually crying for alms. There were as good and as independent Masons in Scotland as there was anywhere else, but what they wanted was an institution or institutions such as he had indicated. He professed no originality in his scheme; he simply adopted what was in use in other countries. He referred to the fact that he had been sounding the country on the subject, and sat down amid great applause.

Brother Morison, R.W.G.P.D.M., proposed "The Daughter Lodges beyond the Province." His toast included the welfare of Masonry throughout Scotland. He said Freemasonry was perhaps not a religion, but it was the next thing to it—it had the elements of Christianity strongly developed. And if the different members of the lodges of this country would square their actions, and have them tested by the level and the plumb-line, so that when at last they were called upon to pass through that valley which they knew was illustrated in Freemasonry, and when at last they ascended to the Grand Lodge, they might receive from the Great Architect of the Universe the welcome words, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

The toast was replied to briefly by Bro. John Wilson, R.W.M., Operative, Dundee, No. 47; Bro. David Anderson, R.W.M. St. David's, Dundee, No. 78; Bro. Robt. Jack, R.W.M. Operative, Dunkeld, No. 152.

"The Daughter Lodges of the Province" was proposed from the chair, and briefly and ably responded to by the Senior Masters of the lodges present, namely, Bros. John Chalmers, R.W.M. Scone and Perth, No. 3; and John Young, P.M. St. Andrew.

Bro. M'Currah proposed "W.P.G.S.W. and J.W., Bros. William MacLeish and Colonel D. R. Williamson, of Lawyers."

Bros. MacLeish and John Young replied, the latter officiating for Bro. Williamson.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed "All poor and distressed Masons wherever dispersed throughout the world, and a speedy relief to their sufferings."

After this toast R.W. Bro. Cowan in capital style, sung "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again,"—a song which had never been heard in Perth before, and which was greatly relished.

The sentiment of the song was then proposed by the Provincial Grand Master; after which the lodge was closed in due form and harmony, all being delighted with the proceedings.

The lodges represented at the banquet were:—St. John, 14, Dunkeld; Operative, 47, Dundee, deputation of three, R.W. Bro. Henry; Ancient Dundee, 49, Dundee, deputation of four, R.W. Bro. James Thompson; St. David, 78, Dundee, deputation of four, R.W. Bro. Anderson; Kilwinning, 90, Forfar, deputation of four, R.W. Bro. Hill; Operative, 152, Dunkeld, deputation of six, R.W. Bro. Jack; Forfar and Kincardine, 225, Dundee, deputation of three, R.W. Bro. Fyffe.

The deputations from country lodges within the province were:—St. John, 105, Coupar Angus, deputation of four, R.W. Bro. Gill; St. John, 174, Dunning, deputation of three, R.W.M. Bro. Mensies.

There were present at the banquet about seventy brethren from the three city lodges, viz., Scone and Perth, 3; St. Andrew, 74; and Royal Arch, 122.

It may be added that the lodge jewels, which were very valuable, were supplied by Bro. John Baird, Grand Jeweller, George-street, Perth; and the clothing by Bro. George Kenning, 9, West Howard-street, Glasgow, and were the subject of general admiration.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The quarterly convocation of this body was held on Thursday, in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. Bro. F. A. Barrow, P.G. Depute Master, presided, and the other office-bearers present were Bros. James B. Walker, Treas.; Archibald M'Taggart, Sec.; James Gillies, S.D.; G. Thallon, J.D.; Robert Robb, Marshal; John Fraser, Asst. Marshal; A. Bain, B.B.; J. Balfour, Dir. of Cers.; J. Miller, Dir. of Music; Wm. Phillip, Sword Bearer; and Geo. Sinclair, Treas. of P.G. Benevolent Fund; Bro. G. McDonald, R.W.M. Lodge 73, as J.W.; and J. W. Burns, R.W.M. Lodge 87, as I.G.

There was an unusually large attendance of visiting brethren.

The lodge having been opened, the chairman stated that he had that day communicated with Grand Lodge, calling their attention to one or two matters in the way of irregularities calling for their interference. Referring to one of these, namely, as advertised in the "Citizen," instructions to be given in Masonry in some non-Masonic hall at the east end, he said that anything so irregular and illegal had never occurred in the province before, within his knowledge.

The Secretary (Bro. M'Taggart) then read the minutes of last convocation, which were passed; and Bro. Sinclair those of several meetings of the Benevolence Committee, which were also passed.

The bye-laws of Lodges 73 and 219, after amendment, were passed.

Bro. Jas. F. Mitchell, R.W.M. 102, then called attention to the systematic violation of Grand Lodge laws by various lodges, especially in regard to giving more than one degree in one night. He added that he knew there was an agency in Glasgow for taking persons out of the province to get made Masons, and where they got made so much cheaper than, in addition, they could pay their railway fare and get a good supper, all for less than they could get made in town. He brought the matter forward now to ask what would be the best way to bring it before the Grand Lodge.

The chairman said that in his opinion it was quite correct to go forward in the matter; but Bro. Mitchell should have given a notice of motion regarding it, and that would have backed up his application. However, he thought it was quite competent at that moment to approach Grand Lodge and say that such things were going on, and asking them to deal with it. That is to say, if they, the P.G.L., were unanimous on the subject they could take action in this form at once.

Ultimately, Bro. Mitchell's views were shaped into the following resolution, which was seconded by Bro. James S. Scott, R.W.M. No. 419, and agreed to nem. con.:—"That the attention of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow having been called to the fact of the systematic violation of Grand Lodge of Scotland laws by lodges holding charters of said Grand Lodge, by giving more than one degree in one night, without just cause, thereby bringing Freemasonry into contempt; therefore the P.G.L. of Glasgow protests against the system in question, and unanimously resolve to transmit to Grand Lodge this requisition, requesting them to take steps to prevent a continuance of such violation."

Thereafter, in reply to the Secretary (Bro. M'Taggart), who desired to know whether an honorary affiliated member of any lodge, his name having been inscribed in the books of said lodge, was eligible to hold office therein, the P.G. Depute Master ruled that there was no such designation as "honorary affiliated member." Any member of the Craft could be made an honorary member of a lodge, but to become duly affiliated he must pay the affiliation fee specified in the bye-laws of said lodge, and then the "honorary" ceased. The Grand Lodge said distinctly that an honorary member had no vote nor voice in a lodge.

Bro. McNaught called attention to the fact that a lodge in the province was holding a meeting on that evening simultaneously with the meeting of the P.G. Lodge. The chairman said that such a proceeding was quite illegal, and instructed the Secretary to write to the lodge in question regarding the matter. If a proper explanation was not given they ought to be fined.

There being no further business on the card the Chairman expressed his gratitude for the very harmonious and orderly meeting they had had, and the P.G.L. was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 34).—The regular meeting of this crack lodge was held in their lodge-room, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 2nd inst. Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., took the chair, supported by Bros. T. Fletcher, P.M.; D. Neilson, D.M.; D. Horn, J.W.; Robt. B. Dalziel, Treas.; John Dick, Sec.; D. Lindsay, Chaplain; P. Brownlee, S.D., and a goodly number of members and visiting brethren. The business which ought to have come before the lodge was initiation, a considerable number of candidates being on the roll for the First Degree. None of these candidates having come forward, possibly owing to the extremely wet and stormy night, left the members without any work, a most unusual occurrence in St. John's Lodge. They therefore went into a little practical instruction in Masonry, after which the lodge was called to harmony. After enjoying a short time in pleasure and profit, the lodge was duly closed in ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Kilwinning (No. 4).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the evening of the 3rd inst. In the absence of the R.W.M., Bro. Prout, S.M., took the chair, supported by Bros. W. T. Henderson, S.W.; John Currie, Sec.; W. McCulloch, S.D.; Walker, Chaplain; Jas. Booth, S.W. 87; Sage, P.M. 360; and others. The lodge was opened for the dispatch of business. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were passed. An application from Mr. James McGilvrey for initiation was received and approved of, and he received the E.A. Degree, Bro. Prout, the acting R.W.M., officiating. It was then arranged that they should meet on the 9th November for the nomination of office-bearers for the next year, and on the same night the business of passing and raising would take place. The lodge was then closed in due form, the brethren adjourning to the side room for a short time in harmony.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mungo (No. 27).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this old and prosperous lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Thursday evening, 4th inst., Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. George Sinclair, P.M.; Arch. McTaggart, D.M.; J. McInnes, S.W.; G. McCome, J.W.; A. K. McEwan, James Kidd, R. Carmichael, and others. The lodge was opened on the Entered Apprentice Degree, and the Secretary read minutes of last regular meeting, which were adopted. The R.W.M. then called upon the Secretary to read the list of names of office-bearers recommended by the committee, which were also approved of. The R.W.M. read applications from two gentlemen, viz., Messrs. Moses McGregor and Robert Speirs, which were favourably received, who were then admitted and initiated into the Entered Apprentice Degree of Freemasonry by Bro. Arch. McTaggart, D.M., in a beautiful and most impressive style, explaining the emblems and symbols of the Order to the delight of the brethren present. The lodge was thereafter transferred from labour to refreshment, and a short time spent in harmony. The lodge on being re-transferred was closed in due and ancient form. [The report of St. Mark's Lodge, No. 102, in our impression of the 6th inst. was incorrectly headed as St. Mungo's.]

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 2nd inst. in the hall, situated at 170, Buchanan-street. There was one application before the lodge to be disposed of, viz., that of Mr. William Caldwell, Sapper Royal Engineers, who had been proposed by Bro. Walton, Treas., and seconded by Bro. Ampleford, Sec. This application being sustained, the gentleman was admitted and received the First Degree, the R.W.M. performing the ceremony with his accustomed ability. The lodge was thereafter raised to the F.C. degree, when Bro. John Wright was put in possession of that degree, Bro. Currie officiating. This concluded the business before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

It was unanimously agreed to delay removing to the new Masonic Hall, now nearly finished, in Douglas-street, until after the consecration of the lodge-room, which is expected to take place about the middle of December. An application was then read from Mr. Donald Bain, which was favourably received, and he was admitted and initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by Bro. Bain, D.M., in a careful manner. The lodge was then opened in the Fellow Craft Degree, when Bros. J. S. Rowling, Robert Martin, and John Galt were passed to that degree by Bro. Boreland. The lodge was thereafter opened on the M.M. Degree, and Bros. John Arnott, George McKear, and J. S. Rowling were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason (the last-mentioned brother having to leave Scotland in a few days), Bro. J. Bain officiating. The lodge was then reduced to the E.A. Degree, and closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Shamrock and Thistle (No. 275).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 22, Struthers-street, Calton, on Friday evening, the 5th inst., Bro. R.M. Yuill, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. Ronald, S.W., and Findlay, J.W., with the other office-bearers in their respective places, and a full attendance of members, and a large number of visiting brethren present, among whom were Bro. Angus, John E. MacLaren, Peter & McCulloch. The lodge was then opened in the Fellow Craft Degree, when Bros. Sergeant Robert Evans and James Gillan were advanced to that degree by Bro. Paterson, S.M. The lodge was thereafter reduced to the E.A. Degree, and transferred from labour to refreshment. After spending a short time in harmony, in which the brethren heartily enjoyed themselves with song and sentiment, the lodge was re-transferred, and closed in due and proper form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 1st inst. The meeting was remarkably well attended. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. The R.W.M. called the attention of the brethren to the fact that this was the night fixed for the nomination of office-bearers for the current year, and those brethren who had not paid the test fees would have an opportunity of doing so before the nomination commenced. An application was read from Mr. John Gray (iron moulder), aged 24. His proposer and seconder were Bros. D. McKirdy, S.W., and John McInnes, Sec. The proposal was agreed to, and he received the First Degree in Masonry, Bro. McKirdy, S.W., officiating in capital style. The other business before the lodge was passing and raising, but, as the nomination of office-bearers was fixed for that night, the passing was dispensed with and the lodge raised to the Sublime Degree, when Bro. Thos. McGhee and also a brother from the Union and Crown Lodge were put in possession of that degree. Thereafter the nomination was proceeded with, and the following was the result: R.W.M., Bro. GLASGOW.—Lodge Commercial (No. 360).—The regular meeting of this most prosperous and well regulated lodge was held in their hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 5th inst., the business of the evening being the election and installation of office-bearers for the ensuing year. Bro. John Davidson, P.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Davidson. Bro. James Colquhoun was then raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bro. D. Lamb performing the ceremony in a most careful and impressive manner. On conclusion of this ceremony, the lodge was reduced to the Degree of E.A., when Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., entered, and occupied the seat vacated by Bro. John Davidson, as R.W.M. Bro. Monro, R.W.M., then called upon the Secretary to read the minutes of last regular meeting and special meeting, and also the names of those brethren who had been nominated for office. There being no objection, the minutes were passed and the brethren duly elected. The ceremony of installation was proceeded with in the usual and constitutional manner, Bro. Dr. A. Morton, I.P.M., installing the R.W.M., D.M., and S.M., in a most effective manner. These officers having taken their seats on the dais, the harmonium struck up with the grand march, the brethren marched in procession, signifying their subjection and obedience by the usual salutations. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The next business taken up was that of raising the fees for initiation to £3 3s. A very pleasant and animated conversation followed upon this proposal being made, Bros. the R.W.M. Gordon, P.M.; Downie, S.M.; Buchanan, P.M.; Stewart, Treas. (whose motion it was), and others expressing themselves freely and fully on the proposal. It was ultimately agreed that in future the fees of the lodge for initiation shall be £3 3s. The next business was that of the nomination of office-bearers for the coming year. The following is the result of the nominations:—R.W.M., Bro. W. Harper; S.M., Bros. Black and McInnes; S.W., Bros. GLASGOW.—Lodge Dramatic (No. 571).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at 3 o'clock. Bro. W. J. E. Adams, 360, ("Freemason"), and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed. The R.W.M. then reminded the brethren that at this time of the year it was necessary to elect office-bearers for the coming year, but as this was their first year he was not quite sure whether that was necessary or not, but would be glad to hear the opinions of any of the brethren present on this point. Bro. John Fraser said that the present office-bearers were appointed to act till the lodge was consecrated; the lodge had only been three months in existence, and it would be most advisable that the present office-bearers should continue in office, going through the form of nomination and election to keep them in conformity with Grand Lodge laws. Bro. Miller supported Bro. Fraser in this idea, and it was therefore agreed that the nomination should take place at the next regular meeting of the lodge. The lodge was then raised to the F.C. Degree, and a brother waiting for that degree was entrusted with it, Bro. Booth officiating. Thereafter the lodge was closed.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

Our Royal Grand Master has been at Bombay and Bareilly since our last, and has also visited Poonah, and many other places of interest. We give the "Times" telegrams up to 2.43 a.m. 17th inst:—The Prince has spent a quiet day. There was a display of presents in the forenoon, and later he witnessed the performance of conjurors and snake charmers, and received the Akha Khan, said to be a descendant of the Old Man of the Mountains, who expressed great delight at seeing the descendant of Edward of England. At 4.30 the Prince drove in state to the Secretariat, and mounted to the Esplanade. There were immense crowds collected to see him, including many native Chiefs and Europeans. He subsequently presented colours to the 21st Regiment of Native Infantry or Marine Battalion. There were present on the parade the 3rd Hussars, and Queen's, 1st Bombay Lancers, Poonah Horse, troops of Artillery, Garrison Battery, and two Native Regiments. The Prince expressed the pleasure he felt in presenting colours to such a distinguished regiment, and in seeing native troops for the second time. He congratulated them on their soldier-like appearance and steadiness under arms. The Prince then begged Colonel Carnegie the favour of allowing him to take possession of the old colours of the regiment, which in two years would have completed a century, and said he would give them a place in his house. The march past was very good. The crowds evinced great loyalty by their cheers and behaviour. The Governor, after dinner to the Prince and suite, gave a grand ball, which was very successful and brilliant. The results of the Royal visit are described on all hands as being most extraordinary. The Native Press is exuberant in its expressions of gratification. The Poonah reception astonished even old Indians. The "Brahmin hotbed" was as loyal as any town in England. The Prince is in excellent health. Telegrams from Southern India are anxiously awaited, as the movements depend on them. Bro. Lord Charles Beresford is perfectly well. The Serapis sails on Monday, and probably will visit Goa and call at Beypore. She will thence proceed to Colombo. The Prince will visit Ceylon, and go from Tuticorin to Madras. It is considered necessary to call at Madras. Captain Glyn takes the responsibility. The Prince will go thence to Calcutta. A banquet will be given on board the Serapis to the Government authorities.

GOOD NEWS FROM INDIA.

Very pleasant for all loyal Freemasons and, we may add, for all patriotic Englishmen, is the telegraphic intelligence from India. The progress of our Grand Master seems to be one of uninterrupted success in every respect, and if his reception at Bombay be an omen of his subsequent welcome at Calcutta and other portions of our great Indian dependency, we may fairly regard it as one long ovation of loyalty and devotion on the part of a happy, a progressing, and a well governed people. Nothing so much strikes us as this evidence of the real feelings of the Indian population, despite the sometimes vapid and childish jeremiades of journalists and politicians. The great mass of the toiling peoples of Hindostan are thoroughly loyal and perfectly contented. The British Government of India is alike honourable to the governors and beneficial to the governed. No longer at the mercy of each petty tyrant, no longer ground to the dust by unlicensed exaction and irresponsible authority, the natives are well aware that English laws are administered impartially, and that English justice secures to all a fair hearing, and equitable decisions. Hence the many millions of an industrious population under British rule pursue the "even tenour of their way" in peace and prosperity, "no one making them afraid," and with an ever present sense alike of the certainty of protection, and the power of appeal from temporary injustice or wrong. In our opinion, no greater history in the annals of any nation can be found than that of our Indian administration, no nobler page can be perused in the long chronology of mankind. Despite the hasty opinions of some, and the party-coloured assertions of more, the English dominion in Hindostan has been of untold blessing to humanity, an inexpressible gain to the weak, the suffering, and the oppressed. We say nothing here of that evidence of Anglo-Saxon courage, endurance, heroism, and loyalty, whether shown by man or woman, which the presence of the "Feringhee" has educated, and the lives and deaths of our compatriots have manifested. Indeed, when we come seriously to think of it, calmly and peacefully at home, the history of British India, always romantic, borders even upon the marvellous. In that "land of many millions," so many that their number is almost alarming, there has stood a little band of white men and white women, whom no dangers could daunt, and no difficulties could turn back. Onwards and forwards that little phalanx has gone, in loyal courage and unwearied devotion, perilling life, and enduring disease, without a murmur and without a fear. It has stood sometimes, a mere handful of men, against overwhelming masses, and won the victory; it has advanced on the deadly intrenchment and crowded camp, a thin red line, a thin green line; it has beaten back large armies with small detachments, and overpowering hosts with weak battalions. Hardly a town or village, a hill or plain, a jungle or a forest, but has been the scene of English courage and is the locale of a hero's grave. Sometimes all most alone, in a little station, sometimes far up the country, with no European near, our fellow-countrymen and fellow-countrywomen have maintained their country's prestige and attracted the admiration of the native population. And to-day, with the progress of education, with the improvement of social conditions, with the administration of just laws for all alike, there seems no limit, except what time itself must bring, to the advance of Hindostan in civilization, in order, in improvement, and in loyalty to the British Crown. Greatly, then, must we who "live at home at ease" rejoice to hear, through the wondrous instrumentality of the electric telegraph, of the journey of our Prince, and of his recent joyous reception in India, by every class of the community. May each succeeding report continue to testify alike of his kindness, and geniality, and admirable qualities, and of the gratification and happiness of an exultant and well-disposed people. May a kind Providence be with him in his travels, and give him health and strength to complete his Royal progress and his historical tour, and may he be restored ere long to devoted hearts at home, who count the moments of his absence and long for his hourly return.

A PLEA AD MISERICORDIAM.

We do not often appeal to our kind correspondents, but we do so most emphatically to-day, and we trust that our plea for a little fraternal consideration will not be altogether made in vain. We are just now embarrassed by a great pressure on our columns, and by a sympathetic plethora of active correspondence, which seems to remind us of the words, "The cry is still they come." So great for the last few weeks have been the demands on our space, and the favours of ready friends, that we have had the greatest difficulty in finding room, whether for lucid report or interesting letter. And if our publisher, with his wonted energy, enables us to get over partly the almost insurmountable stumbling block at first of restricted pages and limited matter, our editorial responsibility is thereby not lessened, but increased. However difficult and abstruse Darwin's principle of "selection" may have been, ours is still more pressing and peculiar. Our main "impedimentum" has been what to leave out and what to insert, what to send up to the printer, what to make a "remanet" of. We almost wish at times that, like the young gentleman recorded in "Vanity Fair," we could make our decision, and announce our choice as clearly, as calmly and as decisively as he did. As an amusing illustration, we commend the story, very good in its way, to the notice and consideration of our many readers:—"A country gentleman had a small son who, having been early taken about to the stables and kennels and initiated into their secrets, had become quite a baby-expert in all matters pertaining thereto, and quite ready to give his opinion as to a horse or a litter of pups with as much serious certainty as though, instead of being a child, he were an old and hardened sportsman and fancier. The country gentleman had the good fortune to be presented with twin daughters by his wife, and the boy after his usual round among the animals, was taken to see these little creatures as they lay in their cradle. The child looked at them gravely, pulled their legs, pinched their arms, opened their eyelids, and, after a moment of reflection, pointing to one of the two, said, "Keep this one." Certainly, we greatly envy the facility of decision evidenced by, as a good friend of ours says, (and, we may observe, he is a married man) this "discerning little rascal." We are always saying to ourselves "keep this contribution, and get rid of the other." Yet, alas! such is the fallibility of human judgment, that in the opinion of one correspondent, at any rate, we have kept the wrong one, and rejected the right one. For, curiously enough, everybody thinks his contribution the contribution for the "Freemason;" and is apt to consider that it ought to go in; that the editor must be a very stupid fellow for not discerning its special merits, and that room ought to have been found for it, even if something else had been left out. We, then, must ask from all our many and kind, but sometimes a little impatient, friends, alike fraternal consideration and good-humoured allowance. We have to select that which appears most likely to instruct, inform, edify, amuse, to do most good to the Order locally and generally, and to advance at the same time both the welfare of Freemasonry and the interests of the "Freemason." Our task is often difficult, and our decision sometimes apparently capricious. But we would, we repeat, request our correspondents to believe that nothing but the insuperable difficulties of space or type can make us reject or keep back the overflowing reports and valuable correspondence of our many well-disposed contributors. We thank them one and all for many favours, we assure them very gratefully received, and we trust that their past and present most liberal supply of the "pabulum mentis latomicae" may be an augury of their continued interest and kindly communications for the future.

FREEMASONRY AND ROMAN CATHOLICISM IN FRANCE.

Our attention has been called by a courteous correspondent to an able letter on this subject in the "Journal de Geneve," and which is dated Paris, October 8th. We have perused it with much attention, and we think it worthy of note in the "Freemason," as we are always anxious to keep our brethren "au courant," alike of the Masonic literature of the hour, as well as of the comments and criticisms of the profane, the scientific, the journalistic world of letters and opinions. Having very carefully considered the communication of the correspondent of the "Journal de Geneve," we wish to point out, where it is we agree and where it is we differ respectfully from him. We are very sorry that we cannot reproduce the article, as it is all too long for our crowded pages. But we will try and give its general bearing. In the first place, we venture to think that the writer, as foreign Masonic writers often do, overestimates the exact position of Freemasonry, and the actual conflict existing between it and the Roman Catholic Church. He would represent Freemasonry and Roman Catholicism as two hostile camps, the one, Freemasonry, representing liberalism, progress, and toleration; the other, Roman Catholicism, representing intolerance, retrogression, and persecution. This is the gist of the argument of a long letter, exceedingly well written, and very carefully elaborated. Now, though in the abstract the writer's position is correct enough, generally stated, and in the concrete also, "par vole du fait," as the lawyers say, Rome seems to be taking up the untenable and untoward position of unceasing denunciation of Freemasonry everywhere, yet it does not follow that because Rome does wrong Freemasonry should follow suit. We deny in toto that such is necessarily—and, above all, that such should be—the position of Freemasonry in the matter. To condemn Freemasonry to such a lifelong and sterile contest is to deprive it of any possible means of doing real good in the world. For because Rome is belligerent, aggressive, minatory, and condemnatory, it is not a case of sequitur that Freemasonry is to meet allocation by oration, anathema by protest, "coup par coup." In the first place, however abstractedly it may be true, that owing to a false position and false appreciation, alike of the facts of history and the needs of the hour, the Romish Curia is placing the body in a perpetual state of hostility to Freemasonry, it does not result from this as a logical consequence, that such is the true position of Rome, even on the question itself. Neither can it be safely affirmed by any one that because Rome does do so, Freemasonry is therefore to do so and so, in reprisal or return. Two blacks never can make one white, and though Rome does wrong, and is wrong, there is no further reason why Freemasonry should not be right and do right. We therefore do not agree with the position the able writer has assumed, that Freemasonry represents liberalism in this great contest. Freemasonry is liberal and tolerant, and peaceful and progressive enough; it advocates ever the liberty of thought, the cultivation of the reason, the sanctity of the individual conscience; but it does not advocate these principles in opposition to the Church of Rome or any other religious community, but simply because they have been, and are still, and ever will be its own leading principles of teaching and of action. Freemasonry is right in holding such great and solemn truths, truths most necessary for the safety and happiness, and peaceful progress of mankind, whether in a state or as individuals. But because Freemasonry thus asserts its own unceasing sympathy with and interest in the struggles of humanity, the triumphs of peace, and the welfare alike of the individual citizen and of the body politic, it does not intend nor wish to mix itself up with the lower struggles of party or to adopt the often debasing war cries of faction and a pseudo liberalism. All is not gold that glitters, and all is not truly liberal that passes under the name. Like Madame Roland we can still often say to-day, "Oh Liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name!" We must demur, therefore, to the main argument, either that Freemasonry is simply in antagonism to the Romish Church, or that it represents liberalism, or is opposed to illiberalism, or that it is bound to wage a perpetual warfare with the Church of Rome. Freemasonry has nothing to do with the Church of Rome, quâ the Church of Rome, or any other religious denomination, and only comes into contact or collision with it, when that religious body goes out of its way to attack or anathematize a peaceful, loyal, benevolent, and religious association. Freemasonry has nothing either to do with political contests or party cares. It upholds liberty in its fullest sense, but it utterly ignores the manifestoes of a so-called liberalism, about which it knows nothing, and which, though it assumes loudly enough the name of liberty, has after all but little to do with it, and may only be but another name for revolution. Freemasonry, amid many changes, is still unchanging, and will ever be found ready on its own peaceful and unpolitical principles to advocate liberty, toleration, and freedom of conscience in the clearest measure, and to the fullest extent.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

Our readers, like ourselves, will have perused the last report of the Boys' School General Committee with much interest and approval. By it we learn that a special Committee, consisting of Bros. Col. Ridgway, Dwarber, Dicketts, Diaper, and Motion, has been appointed "to investigate the management and accounts of this institution, and report thereon to this Committee," and also "to report specifically on the charge on page 29 of the pamphlet now produced, as to whether there is any ground for the charges brought by Bro. Tew and Bro. Perrott, that £141 15s., or any part thereof, is not accounted for, as stated in the pamphlet." We note that a professional accountant is to be called in by the Committee to assist them in the investigation of the accounts, and we think that this unanimous decision of the General Committee will afford the greatest satisfaction to the Craft. We are of opinion that the matter being now "sub judice," all correspondence should cease on the subject until the Committee has made its report, and we also feel that we shall be acting most fully in the spirit of Freemasonry and the interest of the Boys' School if we announce to-day, that after this issue we consider the discussion closed until then, and that we shall admit no more letters on the subject in the interim. We venture also to add that we feel there is a good deal of force in our worthy Bro. Sutcliffe's remarks, which he has incorporated in an advertisement, page 516, of our last issue, and with him we deeply regret that so many unseemly personalities have been so ostentatiously obtruded on the notice of the Craft. But then, as Bro. Sutcliffe well knows, and our readers are also aware, in all these conflicts of human opinion and interest, it always is characteristic of weakness and want of ballast, to be alike hasty in judgment and personal in incrimination. We cannot, as Freemasons, but sincerely deplore that on ex parte statements, and on ex parte statements alone, any Masonic body, or member of our tolerant Order, should hastily assume the truth of ill-digested charges and partizan inculpations. We quite agree with Bro. Sutcliffe that the proper course would have been to go to the House Committee, not to the public press, to make a statement calmly to that body, and not openly and violently attack Bro. Binckes. We are very glad to see that Bro. Col. Ridgway's views as regards the real position, whether of Lodges, of Provincial Grand Lodges, or of Grand Lodge, itself, as regards the educational charities constitutionally, are entirely identical with our own. We await the report of the special Committee, with the fullest assurance of its impartiality and justice.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

By the report of the last monthly meeting a resolution has been arrived at, which is as follows:—"Every Steward at the anniversary festivals who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his own donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50." By this resolution it will be seen, if a brother takes in on his list £50 in addition to his own donation, he will receive two additional votes at each election, and also two further additional votes for every additional sum of not less than £50. As the matter has got to come before Grand Lodge, we say nothing more in the interim, except that we fully agree with everything that our excellent Bro. John Symonds said so well on the subject, and that we deem the alteration a needful and salutary one in every respect.

OUR KIND CRITIC.

We had not intended to allude any more to the Boys' School, until the Committee had reported, as we said in a previous article, but a letter of the Rev. Bro. Perrott's requires a few words of remark. We had called attention to a great Masonic "laches" on his part and his confrere, in persistently calling Bro. Binckes "Mr. Binckes," which we deemed alike unmasonic and improper. We still think so. Bro. Perrott accepts our correction as to the titular description, though without any proper expression of regret at so unmasonic an offence against good taste, and common propriety, but sends us a "Tu quoque." At school in our days a "Tu quoque" was always visited with condign punishment. We do not see its force of application here. Albi Dies was an editorial oversight; Albi Dies, as the old line says, "sole dies referente siccos," and as Faccioliati tells us that Dies is masculine and feminine in singular, masculine "tantum," in the plural: We do not ourselves, from this little specimen of Bro. Perrott's customary style of writing, profess to have any doubt as to where, in the late "fracas" in the school, to use a familiar expression, "the shoe pinched."

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am desirous to anticipate the shout of exultation which I fancy I can hear over the statement of accounts as published in your number of last Saturday when compared with that given in a previous number.

The latter I had prepared for me, and I was not satisfied with it, especially as regards the discrepancy of £3, but anxious to let your readers know that the expenditure could and should be accounted for, I sent it for publication. Subsequently, I went carefully into the figures myself, and happily arrived at a result equally accurate as satisfactory. That has been submitted to the "Special Committee," appointed at the last meeting of the General Committee, whose report thereon will be laid before the next meeting on Saturday, 4th December. My opponents are welcome to any capital they may make out of this.

May it not be regarded as a fortunate coincidence that simultaneously with this organised attack upon the management of our Institution there should be presented to the General Committee the most favourable report by the Audit Committee ever presented since the sale of our funded property in 1864? We now stand before the Craft with the largest number of boys we have ever had (177, as compared with 80 in 1865—ten years since), better fed, better clothed, and, I hope I may now say, better educated than they have ever been; the original building and its additions paid for; no debts, with the exception of two or three small unadjusted balances waiting the architect's examination and certificate; and, at last, the commencement of invested capital by the purchase of £2000 Consols, carrying over a good balance to meet current expenditure. Surely, a management which has effected thus much is deserving, at least, of indulgent consideration, if not entitled to unqualified approval.

Neither on behalf of the Committee, nor myself, nor of others connected in the administration of the affairs of the Institution, do I make any mere "ad captandum" appeal. We do not fear the strictures of heated partisans, our reliance being on the wisdom, justice, and impartiality of those who delegated to us the discharge of our respective functions.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
FREDERICK BINCKES.
London, 15th Nov., 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I again request the favour of space in your columns for a few remarks on the account said to be submitted to the Special Committee of the Boys' School.

I read on the title page of the Report for 1874 the following words:—"Statement of receipts and expenditure: Report of the House Committee for the year ending December 31st, 1874." I ask, then, why is the sum of £30, paid this year, introduced into the accounts for the last three years. It is impossible to admit this, and therefore, instead of £287 15s to be accounted for, there is a sum of £317 15s. for "grants and outfits" alone; add to this £19 15s. for gratuities (should be, however, £31, see Reports for 1872, 1873, and 1874) and erroneous charge for silver medal, and we have £337 10s., less five shillings, "clerical error," £337 5s. Now, this is £23 too much, for the total in the three Reports is, as given in page 29 of last pamphlet, £314 5s. Again, I observe that in the last three issues of your journal three different amounts have been assigned to the year 1871, viz., £55, £45, and finally, £72 15s. The same may be said for 1874. Why, again, are the pages 41 and 42 from Report for 1871 brought forward, when we are dealing with Reports for 1872, 1873, and 1874? The deduction of £15, thus brought forward, would not make matters straight, whilst only £19 15s. of the £31, said to be given as "gratuities" and not for grants and outfits, are reckoned in the statement. I will only observe, that our calculations in the pamphlet are based on the different statements in the Reports, which are, or ought to be, the reliable records for the years they represent.

I acknowledge your correction of our titular description—"Mr."—of the Secretary, and, as a "tu quoque," will you allow me to suggest a correction of the superscription of one of your leaders of last week? I think the heading should have been "Albi Dies," not "Albæ Dies," as "Dies" is always masculine in the plural, though both masculine and feminine in the singular, according to the sense.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
O. G. D. PERROTT.

KNIGHT TEMPLAR PRIEST.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am writing now from memory, and do not think it will be necessary for me to look up authorities, as I feel sure your indefatigable correspondent, the "Masonic Student," must have written his letter hastily and without examination, as I believe that he himself gave me the first evidence that the York Masons practised this degree in a mention both of the ritual and of the first draft of a warrant. The degree sometimes went by the name of "The Band." However, if he will refer to Godfrey Higgins's "Anacalypsis," he will find that Bro. Higgins got information of this degree from Bro. Blanchard, the Secretary of the Grand Lodge of York, and that he attempts to trace it up to a most remote antiquity. There is, I think, no doubt of the perfect accuracy of my statement, that the York Masons practised the Three Degrees of Royal Arch, Knight Templar, and Knight Templar Priest; and that in each of these sections the presiding officer, in the most ancient rituals, was a High Priest. In the absence of positive proof, there is really strong ground for belief that the three grades were a Rosicrucian concoction of pre-1717 speculative Masons.

The degree of Templar Priest was practised in the York Encampment of Manchester, and was supposed to confer power to preside in absence of the E. Commander. It was ruled by seven pillars and a High Priest, and the candidate went seven times round and answered seven questions. In my estimation it is the most beautiful ceremony in all Masonry. The altar has upon it a book with seven seals.

Yours fraternally,

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your edition of the 30th ult. contains the account of a recent meeting of the "Alexandra Palace Lodge," wherein you inform your readers that in the absence of the W.M. the S.W. took the chair, and performed the duties of the evening, which included initiating a candidate and afterwards presiding at the banquet. Now, I have always understood it is quite contrary to Masonic law for the S.W. to act as W.M., and perform the ceremonies of either of the Craft degrees in open lodge on regular lodge nights. In this province (in the absence of the W.M.) the chair is taken by a P.M. Will you kindly state in your next edition the strict "Masonic law" on this point, as I am anxious to know really what is correct.

Yours fraternally,
MASTER MASON,
Bristol.

[We agree with the writer.—Ed.]

MASONIC JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very much obliged to the W.M. of Lodge No. 73 for his letter upon the subject of Masonic Jewels which appeared in your paper last week, and shall thereupon "wear the jewel" in my lodge, and if I meet with any interference as to my so doing I shall immediately appeal, as he suggests, and place myself in communication with him upon the subject, and for the assistance he kindly offers, should occasion require it.

I may mention I have since seen a very old Mason upon the subject, and he informs me that the "five-pointed star" is a proper Third Degree M.M.'s jewel, that he wears it himself, and it ought to be worn by all the M.M.'s, and the reason they do not do so is because they do not know anything about it, and are ignorant of the fact that they are entitled to wear it, the jewel to a certain extent having fallen into abeyance, more especially in the London lodges.

I remain, dear Sir, yours fraternally,

AN ENQUIRING M.M.

THE MASONIC CLUB.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should be glad if you could give me some information regarding the "Masonic Club," the prospectus of which has been advertised in your columns for several months past. I have not even heard whether my name has been accepted as a member, albeit it was submitted to the committee more than four months ago, though I have good reason to hope it will not be rejected. Surely considerable progress has been made in the matter, for there can be little doubt that so admirable a project as a Masonic Rendezvous has met with sufficient support from the Craft in general as to warrant the speedy establishment of the club. Any information that you can afford, as to the locus of the proposed club, and when it will be opened, will be gratefully received by all, and especially by

Yours fraternally,

FREEMASONRY IN ST. PETERSBURG.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A friend and brother wished me to write to you to see if you can inform him on a certain point. He joined the Hamatt Lodge, East Boston, America, in 1868. Since then he has lost his certificate. What I want to ask you is, can you give me the number of the Hamatt Lodge, and also, to whom can he apply for another certificate.

Yours fraternally,

A. VINALL.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You have omitted the words "per week" in my letter on your article "Recent Provincial Grand Lodges." The sentence should read "on the first occasion I proved from statistics extending over the previous five years, that less than twopence-halfpenny per member per week would have been sufficient to meet all the claims made upon West Yorkshire during that time."

Yours fraternally,

S. O. BAILEY.

BRO. NORTON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I deeply regret the advertisement you so kindly inserted a few weeks ago has not had the desired effect.

Surely the brethren do not know one of the Craft is sinking into imbecility for want of a little brotherly aid. Two years ago I was pronounced incurable, and admitted a candidate for the "Home." For upwards of five years I have been helpless, twelve months of which I have passed in three hospitals. My system is now throwing off the disease, and a few weeks stay at Bath and a course of Turkish baths would regain me the use of my legs.

I gave reference in advertisements, and some consideration I earnestly crave.

I am fraternally yours,

CHEVALIER RAMSAY AND FREEMASONRY.

Bro. Jacob Norton has written me to know if there still exists "Appologetical and Historical Account of the Secrets of Freemasonry," which is alluded to in the "Gentleman's Magazine" of 1739, and which Ramsay says was published by Odonoke, Dublin. Also reprinted in Paris, the latter being burnt by order of the Inquisition at Rome.

Did Ramsay visit Ireland in 1739, Bro. Norton also wishes to know.

I have never seen the work in question, but on reference to Dr. Kloss's "Bibliographie du Freimaurerei," I find it given under No. 251, page 22, as "Relation apologetique et historique de la société des F.M., par J.G.D.M.F. M., Dublin, chez Patrice Odonoke, 1738, 8vo., pp. 92."

It was then, by the Junior Grand Deacon, Bro. M. F. M. The sentence, according to another notice by Dr. Kloss, appears to have been promulgated by authority of the "Sacra congregatio Inquisitionum," on the 18th February, 1739.

I have not time just now to further investigate the matter, but it is certainly worth while to trace the whereabouts of this work, and to discover whether any copies exist either in Dublin or in the British Museum, London.

CONSECRATION OF THE ELLIOT LODGE (No. 1567).

Col. Burdett thanked the lodge, and trusted that he and his brethren would frequently have an opportunity of witnessing the success of the lodge. The S.W. proposed, and the J.W. seconded, a vote of thanks to Bro. Little for consecrating the lodge, and another vote of thanks to Bros. Holden, Hervey, Cottebrune, and White, for assisting. Both these votes were carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a beautiful banquet supplied by Bro. Harris, of the Railway Hotel, Feltham, whom Bro. Stone, of the Ship, at Hallsford, with a true brotherly feeling, came over to assist. When the banquet was concluded the toasts were proposed in due order. Brother John Hervey, G.S., responded for "The Grand Officers." It had given the Grand Officers who were present much pleasure to witness the consecration of the Elliot Lodge, and the ceremony carried out so well. He was quite satisfied that he expressed the feelings of the Grand Officers when he said that to see the ceremonies properly performed was a great gratification. When they were performed by his good friend on his right (Bro. Little) they all knew that they would be well performed, and could look forward to their being carried out in the most, if he might use the term, rigid manner. They had been so performed, and Bro. Holden, and those who assisted, had also added greatly to the performance by the part they so ably took. If the Prince of Wales had been present he must have been gratified. It seldom fell to his (Bro. Hervey's) lot to return thanks for the Grand Officers; but as the opportunity now occurred, he might say that the Prince of Wales himself would have congratulated the W.M. on this lodge having been brought into existence under such favourable circumstances, and on Bro. Mason being placed in the chair of such a lodge. For himself he could say he was very much gratified at the manner in which the lodge had been constituted, and also on its having such a Master and Wardens. Bro. Little proposed "The W.M.," a toast which he said was acceptable not only to the founders and members of the lodge, but to those who had the honour and pleasure of participating in the ceremonies of the day. It was always a pleasure to Masons, whether young or old, to see a new lodge springing up in any particular neighbourhood, and it was a peculiar gratification to those who were more immediately connected with Middlesex to find a lodge founded on what was, as far as Masonry was concerned, virgin ground. The gratification was increased when they knew that the Grand Master had entrusted the carrying out of the important duties and responsibilities which attached to the Master of a lodge, but which were peculiarly the duties and responsibilities of the first Master, to such a well-known and excellent brother as Bro. John Mason. He was pleased to congratulate the W.M. upon the inauguration and consecration of this lodge. He might also tell those not acquainted with the fact, that the W.M. had been a Mason for a considerable number of years, and that brought him to a point which he was anxious to place before the brethren in as strong a light as he could. Their W.M. had been for a long time, and was still, a member of the Lodge of Harmony at Fareham; and it must be most gratifying to them all to know that the members of that lodge in which he first saw the light of Masonry, and of which he was now a member, could not allow the present occasion to pass without recording their satisfaction by congratulating him on his being placed in the chair. With the permission of the W.M., he would read a letter which he had received:—"Lodge of Harmony, 309, Nov. 6, 1875.—Dear Sir and Brother,—It having become known to the members of his mother lodge that our Brother Mason was about to be installed W.M. of a new lodge, it was at once decided to present him with a vote of congratulation on that occasion, and I have to request you, on their behalf, to make the presentation. It was my intention and earnest desire to have been present to-day and made the presentation to so worthy a member of their lodge, but I am unfortunately prevented by an important business engagement. I can only wish Bro. Mason a prosperous year of office, with fraternal regards. I am, very faithfully, E. G. Holbrook, P.M., and Sec. 309. To the Installing Master, Elliot Lodge, 1567." In pursuance of the duty which devolved upon him, he (Bro. Little) had now to present the W.M. with a testimony of the estimation in which he was held by his mother lodge, and, addressing himself to Masons, he was perfectly convinced that no better testimony to his worth could be presented. Thirteen or fourteen years ago the brethren knew him as a young Mason, when he had not the experience he had now; but now he was a Mason of ripe experience, and it was with great pleasure he announced to the W.M. that he had to present the following testimonial:—"At a meeting of the Lodge of Harmony, 309, held at Fareham, Hants, on Thursday, Oct. 7th, 1875, it was unanimously resolved, on the motion of Bro. Edmonds, seconded by Bro. Whale, S.W., that an address of congratulation be sent from this lodge to Bro. John Mason, one of its oldest subscribing members, on the occasion of his installation as W.M. of the Elliot Lodge, 1567.—Edward George Holbrook, P.M. and Sec., 309." (Cheers.) (This testimonial was handsomely written on vellum, and framed and glazed.) Bro. Little concluded by wishing Bro. Mason long life and prosperity, and coupled with this, "Success to the lodge." The W.M., in acknowledging the compliment, said it was with feelings of great gratification that he rose to respond to this toast. It was but a very short time ago that he had almost given up all thoughts of even aspiring to the office of Master. He had belonged to Masonry many years, and had had so many disappointments, though belonging and sticking to many lodges, that he had resolved almost to be a lay member. He had to thank many brethren present for his advancement, and he also thanked the company for drinking his health. He could not express the gratification he felt, or his warm thanks for the cordial greeting he had met with, and for the testimonial from his mother lodge. He hoped this would be handed down from generation to generation in his family. He had the honour to date Freemasonry in his family for three generations, and he trusted that not only three but thirty generations would be able to call this day blessed. It had given him a fresh stimulus in Masonry, and nothing that he could now do would be considered too much. He should always consider it his uniform duty to act as a true and faithful husband to Masonry, also a true and faithful son; and he should consider himself a husband to this new lodge. (A voice—Father.) Father, they might say, but he had not yet any children in the lodge, this being but the wedding day. (Laughter.) His mother lodge, to which he had belonged for such a number of years, that he was now the third oldest in the lodge books, he must ever consider as his mother lodge. To that mother he owed due allegiance. He did not say it boastfully, that he did not do as some young Masons did, if they saw a chance of getting into office, left their old mother; but he stuck to her, and if she wanted any assistance he was ready to give it. He could now go down and assist the brethren in their ceremonies; and he would have an opportunity then of thanking the brethren for this testimonial. Speaking of the Elliot Lodge, however, he must look to that; that was his own vineyard; and in Feltham they must work. It was not a very lively place in winter; but summer was the time they intended to hold the lodge, and the brethren instead of stopping in town could go to Feltham and enjoy some beautiful scenery. (Cheers.) The W.M. next gave "The Consecrating and Installing Officer." To this toast Bro. Little responded, but he would not dissociate himself from the brethren who had assisted him. They could not forget that they had inaugurated a new lodge, and when they looked back on the past they could not help thinking what Middlesex Masonry was fourteen or fifteen years ago. At that time he was himself initiated in Middlesex, and there were then but three lodges in the Province. They were like Mahomet's coffin, they were not in London, and though in Middlesex, it was not a Province, and they had no Provincial Grand Master. At present there were 21 lodges in Middlesex, which was now a Province, and there was a petition before the Grand Master for a 22nd lodge. Middlesex would then be one of the first Provinces in the kingdom. Numerically the Province could not compete with Provinces like Yorkshire and Lancashire, but it was gigantic nevertheless, and it was a strong supporter of the charities.

In the course of the evening "The Prov. G. Masters' and Grand Officers' Health" was proposed and drunk, and Col. Burdett replied, stating how much he was pleased with this province, and what excellent officers he had. He was astonished to find that so good and able a brother as the W.M. had not before this occupied the W.M. chair, although he had been a long time member of a lodge, in consequence of having moved with the world. A similar circumstance happened to him (Colonel Burdett.) He was about the world; soldiers were seldom at one place more than a year or two. He, however, took on one occasion advantage of an opportunity offered him of being Master of a lodge, and afterwards he was placed in a higher position. So it was with the W.M. Having attained that position, he was entitled to hope for a higher. Not only had he deserved the brethren's estimation, but he (Col. Burdett) found from his working that evening, that he thoroughly deserved the position he held. He had also instituted a Lodge of Instruction. (Cheers.)

Bro. Little announced that the W.M. had offered himself as the first Steward of the lodge for the Girls' School. (Applause.)

In returning thanks for "The Visitors," Bro. Tndor Trevor said: Worshipful Master, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Worshipful Sirs, and Brethren of Lodge Elliot,—I shall not attempt to respond for that great body of visiting brethren present this evening, whose names are far better known to fame than that of a foreign and humble Mason like myself, but before I return thanks for the honour you have done the Grand Lodge of Hindostan, which hails under the banner of Scotland, allow me, as the Worshipful Master of a lodge under the English Constitution, to acknowledge the deep obligation you, Worshipful Sir, and brethren of Lodge Elliott have laid me under, not only for the profuse hospitality I have had the good fortune to receive at your hands this evening, but also for the most unexpected and gratifying opportunity you have afforded me of making the acquaintance, for the first time, of so many brethren illustrious in the Craft, and, notably, of a brother, the fame of whose name is simply world-wide. I mean Bro. John Hervey, the Grand Secretary, for it is almost the first name in the Craft the newly-initiated Mason learns to revere, since he finds it inscribed in the copy of the Constitutions presented to him on first admission into our ancient brotherhood. Referring also, for a moment, to another matter relating to the English Constitution, let me say, both as an encouragement to young Masons, and in allusion to the remarks made by the W.M. on his attainment this evening of a distinction he has aspired to for so many years, that I have at this moment the proud honour of being the W.M. of the lodge in which I first saw eight, only a little more than three years ago. It may further interest you, Worshipful Sir, to know that Masonry flourishes to a great extent in our Indian empire, and particularly in Bombay, where I think we have at least fourteen different Masonic bodies meeting regularly in the English Masonic Hall. Addressing myself now to the compliment you have paid the Grand Lodge of all Hindostan, in which I have the high honour of holding the post of Grand Bible Bearer, it may not be known to the brethren present that it was only constituted as an independent Grand Lodge, under a warrant from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, in the early part of the present year, having existed previously only as a Provincial Grand Lodge. Much then as I prize the Grand honours I hold under Scotland, I cannot forget, and it gives me especial pleasure on the present occasion, when I have for the first time witnessed either the consecration of a lodge or the installation of a W.M., to remember that I am the W.M. of an English lodge. I thank you again, Worshipful Sir and brethren of Lodge Elliot, for the honour you have done me this evening as a visiting brother, and for connecting my name with the Grand Lodge of Scottish Freemasonry in all India.

The W.M. in proposing, "The Health of the Officers," took occasion to remark that having the assistance of suitable officers as he had (both his Wardens being P.M.'s), he saw no reason why the Elliot Lodge should not in a short time stand at the top in the province.

The S.W. replied in a very neat speech on behalf of himself and the other officers, assuring the W.M. that nothing should be wanting on their parts to ensure success.

After the Tyler's toast the brethren separated, having spent a most pleasant evening, and those brethren who came from town returned in a saloon specially provided by the L. & S. W. Ry. Co., through the kindness of Mr Scott.

The music of the evening was performed by Brother Knight Smith, assisted by Brother Cattle.

The lodge was furnished by Bro. George Kenning.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1560, AT LEICESTER.

The annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford-street, Leicester, when a large number of the Craft assembled at one o'clock. Amongst those present were the Provincial Grand Master, the Earl Ferrers, Bros. Kelly, Past Prov. G.M.; Rev. W. Langley, P.P. S.G.W., who acted as deputy Prov. G.M.; W. Beaumont Smith, P.P.S.G.W., as P.S.G.W.; Deane, P.P.J.G.W., as P.J.G.W.; S. S. Partridge, P.G. Secretary; M. McAllister, Prov. G.S.D.; J. B. Hall, P.G.A.D.C.; J. T. Thorp, P.G.A.D.C.; C. S. Chaplains; and a large number of other Past Provincial Grand Officers and brethren of the several lodges in the province. Amongst the visitors was Bro. J. Terry, Sec., Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The Grand Lodge having been opened, the rolls of lodges and of Prov. Grand officers were called over and the minutes of the last general meeting read and confirmed. A very favourable report from the Committee of General Purposes, as to the satisfactory state of the Treasurer's accounts, the flourishing condition of Masonry in the province, and the increased interest shown by the brethren in the Masonic Charities, was submitted and by unanimous resolution adopted. The several recommendations contained in the report, as to the stated meetings of the Leicester Masonic Hall Committee, the appointment of a Charity Steward, the selection of a charity to be supported by the province during the ensuing year, and other matters, were ordered to be carried out.

Some other business having been disposed of, the constitution and dedication of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560, was proceeded with; the Prov. Grand Master (who had been selected as the first W.M.) vacating his chair in favour of Bro. W. Kelly, P.P.G.M., the consecrating officer.

The ceremony of consecration was performed by the P.P.G.M. in the most able and impressive manner, and elicited the warmest expressions of approval from the brethren present. Bro. Kelly was ably supported by the other Prov. G. Officers, and the musical arrangements were admirably conducted and carried out by the Prov. G. Org., Bro. F. A. Wykes.

A very eloquent and masterly oration was delivered by the Senior Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. J. H. Smith.

Bro. Kelly then installed the P.G.M. as first W.M. of the new lodge, and the officers having been appointed and installed, amongst whom we may mention Bros. Canon Burfield, S.W.; Dr. Hunt, J.W.; C. Stretton, Treas.; Rev. W. Langley, Sec.; J. G. F. Richardson, Asst. Sec;

Rev. F. H. Richardson, S.D.; J. F. L. Rolleston, J.D.; Dr. W. E. Buck, I.G. Several candidates for initiation at the next meeting were proposed, and a very large number of brethren as joining members. It was then proposed that, as a slight acknowledgment of their services on this occasion, Bros. Kelly and Rev. J. H. Smith be elected honorary members of the lodge, which being duly seconded, was carried with acclamation, and other business of the Craft Lodge having been disposed of, the Albert Edward Lodge was closed, and the Provincial Grand Lodge was resumed. Bro W. Beaumont Smith was re-elected as P.G. Treasurer.

The Provincial Grand Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers:—

Rev. J. Halford	Prov. S.G.W.
J. C. Duncombe	Prov. J.G.W.
Rev. J. H. Smith	Prov. G. Chaplain.
Rev. Canon Burfield	Prov. G. Chaplain.
W. B. Smith	Prov. G. Treas.
C. C. Woodcock	Prov. G. Regr.
S. S. Partridge	Prov. G. Secy.
F. J. Baines	Prov. G.S.D.
T. Macaulay, M.D.	Prov. G.J.D.
R. Dalgleish	Prov. Sup. W.
J. B. Hall	Prov. G.D.C.
C.J.J. McBride	Prov. G.A.D.C.
H. James	Prov. G.S.B.
T. A. Wykes	Prov. G. Org.
J. W. Smith	Prov. G. Purst.
L. Riley	Prov. G.A.P.
T. Worthington	Prov. G.St.B.
C. Bembridge and T. Dunn	Prov. G. Tylers

S. Cleaver, A. C. Smith, W. Gough, J. Selby, J. Healey, and E. Mason were appointed Stewards.

Bro Kelly then proposed "That a sum of ten pounds be voted from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the purchase of two Stewards' jewels, commemorative of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M., for presentation to the Provincial Grand Stewards at the ceremony, viz., to Bros. Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W., and S. S. Partridge, P.G. Sec." This proposition having been seconded by Bro. Duff, was carried with acclamation; and the Stewards were presented with the jewels by the P.G.M., for which suitable acknowledgment was made by them. It was decided to select the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and their widows, for support in the province during the ensuing year; Bro. Stretton being appointed Steward, with a donation from P.G. Lodge funds. The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was attended by the Mayor of Leicester, and about ninety brethren, under the presidency of Bro. Kelly, Past Provincial Grand Master, much disappointment being felt and expressed, at the absence of the Provincial Grand Master, and his Deputy, Bro. Sir Henry St. John Halford, Bart. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and responded to, and one of the largest and most enjoyable Masonic gatherings held in this province was brought to a close at ten o'clock.

Great credit is due to the banquet stewards for their excellent catering, and the admirable arrangements made for the comfort and convenience of the brethren; also to the Prov. G. Org., for the careful selection of the lodge music, and the songs delivered at the banquet.

CONSECRATION OF THE FORT LODGE No. 1528, AT NEWQUAY, CORNWALL.

For many years past the members of the Masonic fraternity residing in Newquay and the neighbourhood have been desirous of establishing a lodge in the town, for the purpose of making themselves more intimately acquainted with the mysteries of the Craft, but from various causes the matter was postponed until about a year ago, when the brethren determined that their town should no longer bear the stigma of being unrepresented in the Masonic roll of the province, and accordingly they forwarded a petition to the Provincial Grand Master (the Earl of Mount Edgcombe) for transmission to the Grand Master of England (the Prince of Wales), praying that they might be constituted into a lodge, to be named the "Fort," after the residence of the first W.M. designate, who has taken a prominent part in the necessary preliminaries. A warrant was granted by Grand Lodge, and the "Fort" Lodge stands enrolled as No. 1528 in its archives. On Tuesday, the 2nd inst., the lodge was consecrated by the P.G.M., and is now the twenty-sixth lodge in Cornwall.

The P.G.M. was assisted by his principal officers, except Bro. T. Chirgwin, P.S.W., whose absence on account of illness was much regretted, Bro. Captain Colville officiated in his stead. The P.G.M. offered up the prayers in the absence of the P.G. Chap., and also empowered the members of the lodge to exercise all their rights and privileges agreeably to the tenure of their charter and the ancient usages of the fraternity. An eloquent charge on the nature and objects of Masonry was delivered by the P.G.M. Masonry was, he said, thought by many people outside the Order a kind of religion of its own, which must be inconsistent with Christianity. He denied that it was so. They were free from religious controversy, simply because Masonry never attempted to trench upon the worship of God, but made its object solely to inculcate and enforce the command which formed part of all forms of Christian religion, to love one's neighbour as oneself. They should act honourably and unselfishly in their dealings with their fellow men, and in all relations of life; not from worldly motives, not merely because it benefitted them, but from the higher principle that they believed that in acting so they were doing what was a blessing to the Most High.

Bro. Wm. Edwards Michell was installed as the first W.M. by Bro. Colville, at the request of the P.G.M., and he appointed Bros. Thos. Gill Prout as S.W.; W. C. Martyn, J.W.; E. A. Bennett, Treas.; W. R. White, Sec.; B. Wellington, S.D.; and W. Bellamy, J.D.

The lodge was furnished by Bro. George Kenning.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN SAVAGE, P.G.D.

We deeply regret to have to announce to the Craft the decease of our well-known and very worthy Bro. John Savage. He has been so active a member of Grand Lodge for many years, that the absence of his familiar face will long be felt in that assembly. His many and excellent qualities endeared him to a large circle of friends, by whom he will be very sincerely mourned. We give the particulars of his death, and of his Masonic career.

Bro. John Savage was initiated in Lodge No. 12, on the 9th November, 1835, when he was 27 years of age. He afterwards joined the Egyptian Lodge, No. 29, now No. 27, on the 13th March, 1837, and became J.W. of this lodge in 1838. He joined the Athelstan, No. 19, on the 9th of January, 1839, and was W.M. thereof in 1841 and 1847. He was exalted as a Royal Arch Mason, in the Royal York Chapter of Perseverance, No. 7, on the 24th January, 1837, and was Z. of the same chapter in 1843 and 1865. He was appointed Senior Grand Deacon of England by the late Earl of Zetland in 1859, and Grand Sword Bearer in Grand Chapter in the same year. He became a member of the Board of General Purposes in 1845, and was Vice-President in 1847. He was a member of Grand Chapter Committee, and a very active member of the Building Committee appointed to carry out the erection of the new buildings in Great Queen-street. He was also a Vice-President of the Annuity Fund of the Benevolent Institution, and a Life Governor of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. His first signature as connected with the Benevolent Institution appears in the books of that Institution on the 28th October, 1847. He regularly attended the Lodge of Benevolence, and was at its last meeting, on October 20th. He also constantly attended the Board of General Purposes, and the Committee of General Purposes of Grand Chapter. He was looked upon almost as the established Installing Master in the Egyptian Lodge, having installed all the Masters of that lodge, with the exception of Bro. H. G. Buss, for the last thirty years. He also frequently installed the Masters of the Royal Athelstan, No. 19. Three weeks ago, on the 26th October, he presided as M.E.Z. in Chapter No. 7, in the place of Comp. Boord, M.P., and installed the H. of that chapter, besides exalting three candidates. Afterwards he took the chair at the banquet table, and was full of his accustomed health and spirits. Last week, however, he was taken ill, and he died on Saturday, the 13th, at his residence, Thornhill Square, Islington, aged 68. A seat of the Board of Works, and among the churchwardens of St. Mary, Islington, become vacant by his death.

The following letter was sent to the brethren of the Athelstan Lodge in reference to the funeral of Bro. Savage:—

"Nov. 16th, 1875.

"Dear Sir and Brother,

"I deeply regret to inform you of the death of our much esteemed Bro. John Savage, P.G.D. Eng., P.M. No. 19, &c., &c., which occurred on the 13th instant. The funeral is appointed to take place at Highgate Cemetery on Friday next, the 19th instant, at half-past one o'clock. In order to pay a last sad tribute of respect to departed merit, the Past Masters and members of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, will meet at the cemetery lodge gate at a quarter-past one o'clock. White neck-ties and white gloves will be worn on this occasion.

"I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally, "WITHAM M. BYWATER.

BRO. JAMES FRANKLIN.

Freemasonry in general, and West Yorkshire Freemasons in particular, have to deplore the loss of our worthy brother, James Franklin, of Halifax. We hope to give a sketch of his Masonic career in our next.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS, AND THE PROVINCE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

[The following appeared in our second edition of last week.]

The Special Committee appointed last Saturday to inquire into the allegations made against this institution in the pamphlet of Bros. Tew and Perrott, met yesterday at Freemasons' Hall. Bros. Reviews.

"A CHANNEL STEAM FERRY." By HUGH A. EGERTON.—Folkard and Sons, London.

We have been deeply affected by this skilfully compiled pamphlet. We have seen some stormy passages across those "dividing waters" which sever "perfidious Albion from 'la belle France,'" the "brouillards de Tamise" from the "Boulevards de Paris;" we have witnessed the sufferings of heroic women and young swells, and of patient and desponding foreigners; and we do not deny that we are ourselves well aware what "mal du mer" really means. Hence, then, the proposal of a steam ferry to take us across, as they say, "in a jiffy" train and all, despite wind or fog, and "tumultuous billows heaving," is indeed a prospect fraught with soothing influences and joyful anticipations. To know that you may leave London at "early dawn, or in the dark shades of night," and go across the stormy Channel comfortably and calmly, is a very exhilarating look-out. To realize the fact that you may leave Pall Mall in the morning and be in the Rue de Rivoli in the evening, without leaving your train, which goes across with you, will, we think, lead to an invasion of the fair Parisian capital by an army of English "Goths and Vandals," who will monopolize all the cafés, fill all the theatres, swarm in all the hotels, and crowd all the Boulevards. Happy prospect for Parisians, happier still for some who like Paris at all seasons; and to whom "la Grande Ville" has ceaseless attractions, which time does not lessen, but rather augments. But we fear this is a dream of the future, like the "argosies with magic sails" of Tennyson. Still, nothing is impossible to this inventive age, and we must say this for Mr. Egerton, that whether his proposal is chimerical, or his plan moonshine, he has presented a very readable pamphlet to the great public, and one which we ourselves have received and perused with the greatest of interest and of pleasure. w.

THE PYTHAGOREAN TRIANGLE, by the late BRO. REV. G. OLIVER, D.D. London, Hogg, and Co., Paternoster Row.

We have perused this posthumous contribution of our lamented and learned brother to the science of numbers. Arithmancy, as some term it, is in itself an interesting, if somewhat abstruse subject, and one in which Dr. Oliver took much pleasure, and to which he seems to have devoted great attention. He has evidently been a careful reader of many treatises on the subject, and has collected together many curious facts, and recondite authorities. We think that the publication of the MS. is very proper, and will prove interesting to many readers, and admirers of the good old Doctor. At the same time we do not suppose, that beyond our own Order, the subject will be deemed now-a-days to possess much to interest or attract the more sensational tastes of the hour. With too many just now, thought is ever laborious, and study of course a bore. Men cannot afford time to stop and meditate, and think and decide for themselves, and so they cram themselves up for the conversation of the day, by second-hand reflections, and opinions ready made. We cannot therefore predicate for Dr. Oliver's Pythagorean Triangle, either a very large or critical circle of students. Still, as we said before, the subject is interesting in itself, and demands a careful consideration from all who like to dabble in the more abstruse points of Masonic antiquarian lore. Masonic writers have liked to believe that Pythagoras held that esoteric teaching, which seems to have come down to us, though the Egyptian mysteries, to have been coloured by Judaic influences and terminology, and to have been found in the oral ritual and tradition of the building societies of the East and of Europe successively. We therefore commend this posthumous publication of an old friend and distinguished Masonic litterateur, to the attention of our readers, and we thank Messrs. Hogg for this fresh addition to our Masonic literature, and this last contribution to Masonic Archaeology. w.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Special Committee appointed to take into consideration the lately mooted subject of enlarging the Girls' School, met yesterday in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Lieut.-Col. Creton, V.P., presided, and there were also present Bros. H. Browne, Benjamin Head, Colonel Peters, H. A. Dubois, Joshua Nunn, W. Paas, A. H. Tattershall, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, J. A. Rucker, Thomas W. White, Raynham W. Stewart, Thos. Massa, and R. Wentworth Little, (Secretary). Various plans and estimates were laid before the committee, but as the deliberations of the brethren are not yet ripe for publication, we reserve our report.

Coombs, W. P. Appleton, J. Dwyer, R. H. Mallom, Charles Wise, Geo. Payne, S. W. Gardner, G. Gale, H. Michael, H. Massey ("Freemason"), and C. B. Payne, G.T. Altogether about 100 brethren were present.

At the Board of Masters, whose meeting preceded the opening of the Lodge of Benevolence, the paper of business for Grand Lodge of the 1st December was settled, and at the opening of the lodge the grants made by the last lodge which required confirmation, amounting in all to £205, were confirmed. The brethren then proceeded with the new cases on the paper, which numbered in all 31. Of these, one was dismissed, and two were deferred; and to the remaining 28 the sum of £865 was voted. £250 was recommended in one case, and three cases were recommended for grants of £50 each. £30, £20, £15, and £10 were recommended or granted in the other cases. There were but five small grants of £5 each.

Lodge was then closed, but before the brethren separated Bro. Herbert Dicketts wished to draw their attention to the death of Bro. John Savage, P.G.D., notice of which they had but recently received. He had been a constant attendant at the Lodge of Benevolence, and had paid great attention at all times to the business of the lodge. He did not know whether he was in order, but if he was he would now move a resolution expressing regret at Bro. Savage's death, and ask the brethren to let the resolution be entered on the minutes.

Bro. Joseph Smith said this could not be done. It had been brought before the Board of General Purposes, but it was found that it was out of order, and could not be allowed.

Bro. Joshua Nunn added that the Lodge of Benevolence had no minutes, and therefore the resolution could not be recorded if passed; nevertheless, the brethren might express their regret among themselves, and in this he heartily joined.

Bro. Herbert Dicketts said the opportunity offered itself for his giving expression to his feelings on the occasion, and he did not like to let the opportunity pass.

The brethren then separated.

GRAND LODGE.—In anticipation of the meeting of Grand Lodge on the 1st of December, we may call the attention of the brethren to the usual custom at this annual meeting, which they will find by reference to their old business papers, of nominating the Most Worshipful Grand Master for the next year, the appointment of President of the Lodge of Benevolence, the election of a Senior and a Junior Vice-President of the same lodge, and the election of 12 Past Masters to serve on the same Board. There will, no doubt, be a large attendance of members of Grand Lodge on the occasion, the number of whom will, no doubt, be much increased by the new W.M.'s who have been installed in the present session.

Our worthy Bro. Rev. J. J. Farnham, (P.D.S.G.W., Bombay), the proposed restoration of whose church at Westhorpe, in Suffolk, has been noticed in these columns, has been lecturing last week at the Working Men's College, Ipswich, a very flourishing institution of about 1000 members, under the presidency of the Lord Chief Baron. A local paper thus reports:—A lecture was given on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at the Working Men's College, on "Popular Proverbs," by the Rev. J. J. Farnham, of Westhorpe. The lecturer dealt first in an easy colloquial manner of the various definitions of proverbs, some of which—saying proverbs had "shortness, sense, and salt," and styling them "the wit of one and the wisdom of many"—he showed to be more or less inaccurate. Proceeding to the universality of these sayings, he said the ancient Greek and Latin abounded with them—so did the French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and other modern languages—and those found in the Scriptures were the best of all collections; they were, as the wise King of Israel said, "apples of gold in pictures of silver." Bro. Farnham went on to discuss some of the best known proverbs in various languages on honesty, industry, contentment, thrift, companionship, pride, truth, love of home, &c., contending that many well known proverbs must be used with discrimination; but that those in the English language were mostly on the side of right and virtue. He then adverted to some on the tongue; and quoting the well known sayings "enough is as good as a feast," and "brevity is the soul of wit," concluded a brief but interesting lecture amid much applause. Bro. Emma Holmes, who was well received by a large audience, presided, owing to the absence of Dr. Christian from indisposition.

The first part of Bro. Emma Holmes' notes on the old minute books of the British Union Lodge, No. 114, A.D. 1764, will appear in the "Masonic Magazine" for December.

Bro. George H. Smith, of St. John's Lodge, No. 1, of Providence, who has for some years past been residing in London, and is the manager of the North Metropolitan Tramway Co., has presented to the M.W. Grand Lodge of Rhode Island an elegant photograph in colours, of Prince Albert Edward, Grand Master of Masons in England, in his full regalia of office. The picture is a large one, taken from life, and is most artistically coloured and finished. It will be a most welcome addition to the collection of Masonic portraits in the halls occupied by the fraternity in this city. The same brother has also presented a copy of the same picture to M.W. Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, and one to Providence Consistory S.P. R.S., of which latter named body he is a member.—"Freemason's Repository."

We learn from a contemporary the following details of the arrival of our brother the Duke of Connaught at Gibraltar. His Royal Highness was received with a Royal salute of twenty-one guns from the artillery, and by a guard of honour of the 31st Regiment, of one hundred men, under the command of Captain Eccles, Lieutenants Seatham and Frodsham. Officers of the general and the brigade staff, the heads of the military and civil departments, field officers, regiments off duty, and the chairman of the Sanitary Commissioners, were in waiting to receive the Prince, who, on landing, was presented to them by Major-General Somerset, who takes charge of the fortress during the temporary absence of His Excellency Sir Fenwick Williams. The streets were filled with crowds of people, who cheered the Prince on his way to the convent. Major-General Somerset was sworn in as acting-governor, in the presence of the staff-heads of the departments and the commanding officers of the regiments, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught being present, attended by Major Pickard. Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught was present at the last regular meeting of Lodge Friendship, No. 278, Gibraltar, a report of which appears in another column.

An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Surrey Masonic Hall Company, Limited, will be held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road, on Saturday, the 27th inst.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Bengal has decided upon the construction of a Masonic Temple worthy of the Institution and of the capital of India. For this end it has formed a company with a capital of 150,000 rupees.

We understand that the Transactions of the Grand Lodge of New York from 1781 to 1816 are about to be published, in eight monthly parts of 64 pages each, by Messrs. D. Sickels and Co., New York City.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE IN LIVERPOOL.—The Prince Arthur Lodge of Freemasons will be consecrated on Wednesday next, the 24th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Upper Hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool. Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., West Lancashire, will be the first W.M., and Bro. T. Evans the first S.W.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. of Eng., R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, was, on Thursday, the 11th inst., elected President of the Royal Manchester, Liverpool, and North Lancashire Agricultural Society.

Freemasonry in Italy has suffered a severe loss by the death of Bro. F. de Luca, Past Grand Master. The Grand Orient of Italy has ordered all lodges to go in mourning for seven consecutive meetings to honour the memory of this brother. We have also to record the death of Bro. Muriano Marisca, Honorary Grand Master, also of Italy.

Bro. Griffiths Smith, of 15, Farnival's-inn, has been appointed a London Commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature.

Bro. Lord C. Bersford was thrown from his horse: while present at the review, at Poona, on the 15th. We are happy to learn that the injuries he received are not serious.

Luncheons, Dinners, Fish and Tripe Suppers, at strictly moderate charges. Ample Accommodation for Large or Small Marriage or Supper Parties, Committee, Meetings, &c.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—The November regular meeting of this lodge, which has always been spoken of in terms of congratulation for the praiseworthy manner in which it is working its way up in the Craft, was held on Tuesday, the 16th Nov. inst., at the Windsor Castle Hotel, Southwark. The lodge has the neat and very appropriate name "Ivy," for like a slip of ivy planted by the side of a house, it quietly grows till it reaches the top thereof, so is the Ivy Lodge quietly and progressively making its way to the top of Freemasonry, and bids fair to become one of our best and well regulated Craft lodges. The lodge was called for half-past six o'clock, and was duly opened in ancient form by the W.M., Bro. George Mattock. The minutes of the last meeting were then read and confirmed. The lodge then opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Miller and Goodman, being candidates for raising, were each severally examined in the usual way by the W.M. and retired. Again we have pleasure in mentioning the very perfect manner in which Bro. Goodman answered the necessary questions, which clearly shows he must be working away at the lodges of instruction, as also the interest he already appears to take in Masonry. The lodge having opened up into the Third Degree, Bros. Miller and Goodman were re-admitted, and in a most perfect and impressive manner were raised by the W.M. to the Sublime Degree of M.M. There being no passings, the lodge was resumed to the First Degree, when the W.M. again displayed his skill and ability in initiating M. Chambers into the Masonic Order. The ceremonies being ended, the next business on hand was a notice of motion proposed by Bro. Cantle, S.W., and seconded by Bro. Poupard, J.W., that the lodge be removed to the Surrey Masonic Hall, and the notice having been put to the lodge, it was unanimously carried, and ordered to be recorded on the lodge minutes. All business being ended, the lodge was closed in ancient form with solemn prayer. The officers present were Bros. Mattock, W.M.; C. Smith, I.P.M.; Cantle, S.W.; Poupard, J.W.; Cornhillson, S.D.; Ashwell, J.D.; and D. H. Ashford, as I.G. for Bro. Knight Smith, who kindly undertook the musical arrangements; Fox, Tyler. There were also present Bros. Noke, Burgess, J. R. Ashford, Vernon, Miller, Goodman, Gloag, Skegg, Plock, and several other brethren of the lodge, and Bro. Welsford, 548, visitor. The brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet, provided by Bro. Plock with his usual care and style, to which ample justice was done, after which the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured. "The Healths of the Initiate and Visitor" were each severally proposed and responded to by those brethren in a few neat and well-chosen words. Bros. Cantle, Knight, Smith, and Vernon greatly added to the harmony of the evening by their excellent singing. The Tyler's toast was given by Bro. Fox, the much respected Tyler of the lodge, which brought the proceedings of a very pleasant and enjoyable evening to a close, and the brethren then separated in perfect peace and harmony, to return home to their respective domestic lodges.

SPHINX LODGE (No. 1329).—The installation meeting of the Sphinx Lodge, No. 1329, was held on Saturday evening, the 20th ult., at the Bridge House Hotel London Bridge. Bro. James Hadland Vockins, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. John Sugden, S.W., W.M., elect; J. S. Abbot Dunbar, J.W.; H. Martin, S.D.; G. T. Bickerton, J.D.; Dr. Bedolfe, P.M.; Nairne, P.M.; P. A. Director of Ceremonies; and a large body of visitors, among whom were C. A. Cottebrune, P.G. Purst; Edward Clark, P.M. 134; Griffiths, 1446; D. R. Carren, P.M. 1159; Morell, 704; H. Thompson, 1426, and P.M. 177, and 1158; D. Rose, P.M. 73; Martin, 188; Pritchett, 1317; Bridges, P.M. 1216; Goodwin, 1326; W. Hook, 1426; and others. The lodge was opened punctually at three o'clock, and the reading and confirmation of the minutes having taken place, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Pardoe and Thos. E. Heller were passed to the Second Degree. The next business was the raising of Bro. J. H. Salter to the Sublime Degree, both these ceremonies being excellently performed by the W.M. The next and principal business of the day was the installation of Bro. John Sugden, W.M. elect, into the chair as Master of the lodge. The usual presentation by Bro. Nairne, P.M., and preliminaries having been gone through, and all the brethren below the chair having retired, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Sugden was in ancient form installed into the chair as W.M. for the ensuing year. The brethren having been admitted, the new W.M. received the customary salutes, after which he appointed his officers as follows:—J. S. Abbot Dunbar, S.W.; H. Martin, J.W.; J. C. Reynolds, sen., Treas.; W. Andrews, Hon. Sec.; G. T. Bickerton, S.D.; R. Lyon, J.D.; B. R. Bryant, I.G.; P. A. Nairne, P.M.; D.C.; G. S. Mansell and H. Forbes, Stewards; Ströbling, Org.; and Harrison, Tyler. Bro. Vockins, I.P.M., then delivered the usual addresses in a most impressive manner, and indeed the whole of the installation ceremony was rendered in such an admirable style that he well earned the applause with which the conclusion of his labours was rewarded. The W.M. then said that he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present Bro. Vockins, I.P.M., with a jewel, which had been voted to him by the brethren as a small tribute of their respect and esteem. Bro. Vockins thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said he should always look upon it with pleasure as a token of the esteem entertained for him by the Sphinx Lodge. The newly-installed W.M. immediately entered upon his duties by initiating Mr. James Charles Welch and Mr. William Henry Fraiser into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry, and afterwards passed Bro. Richard Bruce to the Second Degree. The report of the Audit Committee was presented, which showed the financial matters of the lodge to be in a very flourishing condition. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren, about 70 in number, retired to the banqueting room for refreshment. It may be remarked that the floral decorations of the principal table were very artistic, and excited general admiration. The banquet itself was varied and bountiful, and gave complete satisfaction. On the withdrawal of the cloth, the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was duly honoured. The W.M. said the next toast was one that he was sure would meet with the most hearty response, as it was "The Health of their Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Prince of Wales." He was sure that those who witnessed the able manner in which he discharged his duties in the Albert Hall would ever remember it, and but one wish would be amongst them, and that was his safe return to this country. He gave then "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," a toast which was most cordially responded to. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was one that he was sure would be well received, as it was "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon." Many of those present, no doubt, had often met him in Grand Lodge, and they knew how ably he always acquitted himself there, and how high he stood in the estimation of the Craft. The W. Master said the next toast was "The Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," and coupled with it was the name of Bro. Cottebrune, P.G. Pursuivant. Bro. Cottebrune said: Worshipful Master and Brethren—I thank you kindly for the honour you have done me in coupling my name with that of our distinguished brother, the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, and I must say I was greatly pleased at the manner in which your Immediate Past Master performed the ceremony of installation, and also at the way in which your present W. Master went through the two ceremonies of initiation and passing. I have been most gratified, and on leaving this lodge I shall not fail to mention to my friends that the Sphinx Lodge is one of the best worked in London. Bro. Vockins, I.P.M., then said he had for the first time since he had been a member of the Sphinx Lodge to propose "The Health of their W. Master, Bro. Sugden." At his period of life it was no easy task to go to school again, but he had laboured hard to do them justice, and he was sure that they would appreciate his services when he sat in the chair, and which he had done that evening for the first time. They would find that Bro. Sugden was a man to whom any brother might safely pour forth his sorrows, and he was also sure that in the future he would do all that was required of him. If there was anything wanting in the bead it would be amply made up for by the heart, and at the end of his year they would be able to say of him, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," and they would have the same satisfaction in placing a jewel on his breast as he (Bro. Vockins) had received from them that evening. This toast was most enthusiastically responded to. The W. Master thanked Bro. Vockins for the very kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and he thanked the brethren generally for responding to it. It was his principal object to live not only in the esteem of his brethren but of the outer world, and he would make it his constant study to attend to the wishes of the brethren and the visitors to the Sphinx Lodge. He had no doubt from the support he should receive from the Past Masters that he should have little difficulty in performing the duties during his year of office. He said the next toast he had to propose was that of "The Initiates," and he felt great pleasure in proposing their health, and he felt sure they would reflect great credit to the lodge and their Masonic institutions. The newly initiated brethren severally returned thanks. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was one that he was sure would be well received. They were that evening honoured by the presence of a number of visitors distinguished in the Craft, and had all done good suit and service, and he gave them a hearty welcome to the Sphinx Lodge. Bro. Edward Clark, P.M. 134, in reply to the toast of "The Visitors," congratulated the lodge on the accession of such a W.M., and said the Sphinx Lodge was one of the most important on the south side of the Thames, and hoped that its present success would be increased during his year of office. He also congratulated the W.M. on his proud position in presiding over such a lodge. There were a number of visitors at the lodge that evening who represented the world-wide fellowship of the Craft, and although they in England were without a head, he was away and doing duty amongst races who spoke in tongues older than our own, and who moved amongst the relics of civilisation more luxurious than were to be found in England at the present time. Having alluded to the antiquity of Freemasonry, as was evidenced by the marks of it that were to be traced on the ancient edifices of India, he said that its influence was not limited by churches, countries, or national boundaries, and it tended to make men happy wherever it might be their lot to live. The W.M. said he had now to ask the brethren to drink "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," and he was sure that was a toast that would meet with the acceptance of the members. Their brother visitors were not aware of the amount of work they had to perform, and he asked them to drink their health. He coupled with the toast the names of Bros. Vockins and Dr. Bedolfe. Bro. Vockins, I.P.M., said he was pleased to see so many visitors present to welcome their W.M. that night, and it was a double pleasure to him to look round and see that out of a total number of 45 or 46 members, he was senior or grandfather to 33 of them. His year of office had been a very happy one, and indeed the Sphinx Lodge always had years of happiness. He had never known the slightest ill feeling, and he had always found brotherly love and charity to prevail, which was the real heart of Freemasonry. When he saw anything else, no longer would he be a member of the lodge. Many might think that as he had left the chair his duties would cease, but they would by no means cease, for he should feel it to be his duty to attend to the Masonic interests of the fifteen whom he had initiated during his year of office, and, as they were all fit and proper persons, to lift them up the ladder until they held the sam-

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—

The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, 18th inst., and in consequence of the large amount of work, it was hoped the brethren and candidates would have been in good time, but unfortunately some were late, and thereby caused much inconvenience. The W.M. (Bro. J. Forbes), who was supported at first by I.P.M. Bro. Slaton, and afterwards by P.M. Bro. Reed, as S.W., and Bro. Lancaster, as J.W., opened his lodge in the First and Second Degrees, and examined Bros. Short, Tribbel, and Stevenson. The lodge was then resumed in the First, when Bros. Hobbs, Arding, Cushion, Fisher, Wymark, and Whewell, and afterwards Bro. Phillips, were also examined. These brethren having retired, the W.M. opened in the Third, and duly raised the three candidates. He then resumed in the Second, and passed the latter-named gentleman. Ballot was then taken for Messrs. J. H. Whitfield, J. Gray, and S. Nicholls, which proving satisfactory, they were admitted into the Order. The W.M. having risen as usual, two candidates were proposed, and a notice of motion for granting a sum of money from the lodge Benevolent Fund having been put to the meeting, was duly carried. This having brought the business of the evening to a close, the lodge was adjourned till December.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1318).—On Saturday, the 13th November, the brethren of this lodge were summoned to attend at Freemasons' Hall, and with visitors there were some sixty present. So large a gathering not being expected, a little inconvenience at the banquet table was experienced from mine host, Simpson, in the Strand, not having a room suitably large enough to hold all the brethren. It is a great mistake on the part of those who would entertain so large a number of brethren to let them leave our noble hall without making it worth their attraction to banquet on the premises. It is very evident that the brethren are made of granite, and that they can put up with incommodiousness rather than have a lukewarm repast, especially when they can pay for it. The well-known Secretary's (Bro. J. W. Thomas, P.M.) business habits are combined with amazing activity, firmness, and courtesy, and are also thoroughly Masonic in their nature, which all true Craftsmen must admire. Such Secretaries must be splendid adjuncts in helping on the onerous duties of the W.M. of any lodge, more especially so when the brethren are men of high art and classical standing, and in this lodge are to be found sculptors, architects, draughtsmen, and builders of reason; admirably chosen is their motto, "Frangas non Flectis." These granite men have not granite hearts, for 20 guineas were voted to be placed on the W.M.'s list towards one of the charities. Good Granite brethren. You are worthy of the Royal sign, all glory be to God. At the opening of the lodge at 4.15 forty brethren were present. The weather was unpropitious. This lodge numbers over eighty members, twenty-five of which have been initiated, passed, and raised to the sublime degree of M.M. These said twenty-five have also been introduced by Bro. John Oliver, W.M., all honour to him, and the more so because these are men of standing, and Masonry makes them better men. Such can help our charities. The following is an excerpt of the work of the lodge on this occasion by the W.M. Initiates, Mr. T. W. Rowe, Mr. Alfred J. Martin. To pass, Bros. W. Halliday, R. Richardson, W. Brindley, T. L. Carter. To Raise, Bros. F. G. Wyatt, George Landsdown, Jasper Wager. Two gentlemen were ballotted for, and one for joining. The whole of the work was admirably done by Bro. J. Oliver, W.M., in a manner worthy of any recognised preceptor. The W.M. was most efficiently supported by Bro. Muggeridge, S.W., son of Sir — Muggeridge, Knt.; Bro. West, J.W. The S.D. performed his duties with great acceptance; so did the I.G. It is always a pleasure to see the minor officers well up in their duties—moral, a great actor never shines unless he is well supported by those about him. The usual and ordinary toasts position as their W.M. did that evening, and if they called upon him in any way and at any time he should be happy to assist them. He was happy to meet them at that festive board, and he hoped that he should do so on other occasions, and with the same amount of happiness they had done that evening. The W.M. next, in highly complimentary terms, proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," for which Bro. Reynolds, Treas.; Bro. Andrews, Sec., and other officers responded. The W.M. next gave "The Press," for which Bros. Thompson and Middlemass returned thanks. The Tyler's toast brought a very happy meeting to a close, which had been diversified by some excellent songs, and particularly a recitation given by Bro. Bramley, who gave a very amusing and characteristic imitation of Mark Twain.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 18th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, Pentonville Road. Bro. J. J. Michael, W.M., presided, supported by Bro. James Willing, I.P.M.; Williams, S.W.; Kingham, J.W.; Rose, Treas.; Tims, Sec.; Douglass, S.D.; Scales, J.D.; Side, I.G.; Stiles, D.C. and Asst. Sec.; Colls, W.S.; Saintsbury, Gilbert (2), Simona, Clarke, Jones, Cheek, Hatton, Tims, jun., and Read; and visitors: Bros. Walford, P.M. (No. 177); Fowler (No. 244); Morris (No. 177); and nearly fifty other brethren. Bros. Dunmore, Simona, Taylor, Erwood, Levy, Little, Rogers, and Fowler were raised; and Bros. H. Stiles, Solomon, T. Gilbert, jun., and Swagman passed. There were also initiated Messrs. E. J. Cave, Jean Francis Van Camp, Henry Lovegrove, Paul Edward Vanderpump, and George John Vanderpump; and Bro. E. J. Cain, of Lodge No. 1475, was elected a joining member. On the proposition of the J.W., a vote of thanks was passed to the brethren of the committee appointed to carry out the execution and presentation to the lodge of the portrait of Bro. James Willing, I.P.M.; and for this vote Bros. Scales, Treas., and Stiles, Sec., responded. A vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Willing for his gift to the lodge of the pictures of the Masonic institutions. All Masonic business being concluded, the brethren repaired to the banquet table, and after the banquet had been disposed of, they honoured the list of toasts. In giving the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. James Willing, I.P.M., congratulated the lodge sincerely on having such an excellent W.M. as Bro. Michael, who had displayed great ability that day in the performance of his work. This was of no ordinary kind, for he had done eight raisings, four passings, and five initiations. The manner in which this had been done had afforded great pleasure to the brethren, and must have been satisfactory to the W.M. himself, although he must have been much fatigued by the amount of work. He was, however, such a good Mason that the consciousness of having added so largely to the number of the brotherhood overrode all other considerations. The W.M. briefly replied, and expressed his earnest desire to discharge his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren. He trusted that he should have a happy year of office, and at the end of that time, the approval of the brethren; and the consciousness that he had not laboured in vain would be in some measure a reward for his toils. The other toasts followed, and the brethren adjourned shortly afterwards. The lodge, we may state, is in a very flourishing condition, for although it has been in existence only a little more than a twelvemonth it numbers already 62 members.

PROVINCIAL.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting of this prosperous and popular lodge was held on Thursday, the 11th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, when there was an unusually large gathering of the members. Amongst those present were Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; W. Boby, P.P.G.S.W.; Emma Holmes, P.P.G. Reg. and P.G.D.C., M.C.; W. Spalding, P.M. Sec.; J. J. Burton, P.P.G.D.C. Cambs., S.W.; W. Clarke, P.G.A.D.C., acting J.W.; H. Miller, P.G.P., S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, P.G. Chap., J.D.; T. Casley, acting I.G.; J. Cobbold, 33° of Brazil; A. J. Barber, P.G.O.; J. Cornell, P.P.S.G.D., &c. Visiting Bros. N. Tracy, P.P.S.G.W., W.M. Perfect Friendship Lodge; Rev. J. J. Farnham, P.D.S.G.W., Bombay; Major Fryer, we believe of the Ancient Union Lodge, Limerick, the officer commanding the Carabineers at Ipswich; T. H. Staddon, P.P.G.S.D. of the Perfect Friendship Lodge, &c. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes confirmed, the ballot was taken for Rev. Nelson Godwin, of East Bergholt, who was unanimously accepted, obligated, and initiated as an E. A. Freemason, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. The lodge being opened in the Third Degree, Bros. Bowes and Fraser were severally raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, Bro. Cornell, P.M., performing the ceremony and Bro. Barber presiding at the organ, and playing the Dead March in Saul. The brethren also sang that beautiful hymn, "Days and moments quickly flying," which added much to the impressiveness of the ceremony. The election of W.M. and Treasurer was next proceeded with, when Bro. J. J. Burton was unanimously elected to fill the chair of K.S., Bro. Schuller being re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. G. Spalding, Tyler. Two officers, one in the army and one in the navy, were proposed for initiation. Bro. Boby proposed that the thanks of the lodge should be given to Bro. George for his able conduct in the chair during the past year, and that the same be recorded on the minutes, which was seconded by Bro. Lockwood, who said the office had never been better filled. The motion was put and carried unanimously. The lodge was closed at a late hour, and the brethren retired to the dining hall, where Bro. G. Spalding had provided, as usual, an excellent repast, to which the brethren did ample justice. We are bound to add, however, that the waiting was not all that could be desired. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the chair, the W.M. making a passing allusion to the Indian visit of our Grand Master, expressing a hope that he might return to us in health and his visit be productive of much good—a wish in which every one cordially joined. In responding to the toast of "The Newly-Initiated Brother," Bro. Godwin, who is an archaeologist of some local celebrity, spoke very warmly of the ceremony through which he had just passed, and of the manner in which he had been impressed by it, and expressed a hope that he might become in time a credit to the Craft. Major Fryer replied on behalf of the visitors, and said that it gave him very great pleasure to visit their lodge. He thought every soldier ought to be a Mason, and eulogised the Craft for the way in which it brought men of all classes and all shades of opinion together and taught them to know each other and respect each other's opinions. He was delighted with the working of the lodge, and thanked the W.M. for inviting and entertaining him so hospitably and the brethren for receiving him so cordially. Bro. Farnham kindly volunteered an original reading from the "Bombay Masonic Paper" on the initiation of Mr. Brown, the husband of the far-famed Mrs. Brown of Arthur Sketchley origin, which caused some amusement, and the brethren separated, after a very pleasant evening, at low twelve.

DEVONPORT.—Lodge Charity (No. 223).—The members of this lodge met numerously on Tuesday, the 16th inst., for the dispatch of the ordinary business, and to elect the Worshipful Master and Treasurer for the ensuing year. The Worshipful Master, Bro. S. R. Anniss, occupied the chair. The Senior Warden, Bro. E. Patten, was unanimously elected to succeed to the chair. For the office of Treasurer two brethren were nominated, Bro. J. M. Hifley, P.M., and Bro. J. W. Cornish, P.M. A vote by ballot was then taken, and the result was that eleven voted for Bro. Hifley and thirty-two for Bro. Cornish. A few brethren did not vote. The W.M. then declared Bro. J. W. Cornish duly elected Treasurer for the coming year. The W.M. and Treasurer elect returned thanks for the honour conferred. Bro. W. Browning, P.M. and Secretary of the lodge, having discharged the Treasurer's duties since the death of the late Treasurer, Bro. T. Pollard, P.M., was warmly thanked for his services. The lodge then voted five guineas towards the Masonic window proposed to be erected in the new Guildhall, to commemorate the visit of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England, last year, proposed by Bro. Woolf, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Cornish, P.M.

LANCASTER.—Fortitude Lodge (No. 281).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst. at the Athenæum, Lancaster, Bro. E. Airey occupying the W.M.'s chair in the latter's absence. The meeting was rendered more than usually interesting from the fact that Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. England, was announced to give a lecture on Masonic O.B. The lecture was given in a clear, terse style, and was highly interesting, and the information it conveyed was thoroughly appreciated by the members and visitors present. At its close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Dr. Moore. Two candidates were proposed for initiation, and the lodge closed in peace and harmony.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Howe and Charnwood Lodge (No. 1007).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 16th ult., at the Bull's Head Hotel, Loughborough. Owing to the large floods in the neighbourhood, and the great fair in the town, the attendance was not large. Bro. F. Amatt, P.M., in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., occupied the chair at the commencement of the proceedings, and was supported by Bros. R. Broughton-Smith, as S.W.; Gough, as J.W.; Vial, S.D.; and others. Bro. H. Deane, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.W., then took the chair, and impressively performed that very interesting and important ceremony of installing Bro. R. Broughton-Smith, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., in the chair of W.M. for the ensuing year, having been elected to that office by the unanimous vote of the brethren. The officers appointed and invested by the W.M. were Bros. James, I.P.M.; Gough, S.W.; Vial, J.W., and Treas.; H. Deane, Sec.; A. Marshall, S.D.; J. Hodson, J.D.; W. Vial, Org.; G. Hodson, and C. H. Crossle, Stewards; H. Walker, and G. Bishop, Tylers. The brethren subsequently dined under the presidency of the W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. H. James, I.P.M., proposed "The Worshipful Master," and in doing so, paid a high compliment to Bro. Broughton-Smith, promising him his cordial support during his year of office. Several other toasts were given, and the brethren separated at an early hour.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1502).—As might have been anticipated from the Masonic enthusiasm and high social standing of the brethren who identified themselves with the Lodge of Israel at its consecration, and the members who have since joined and been initiated, the first anniversary of the birth of the lodge, held on Monday, the 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, showed that an almost unprecedented prosperity had attended the first year's existence of the excellently-worked and admirably-conducted lodge. The eminently-satisfactory result has been due in a large measure to the admirable manner in which the first W.M. and all his officers have done their work, and the cordial seconding they have received from every member of the lodge; and there is no doubt, now that the first mile-stone of its existence has been passed, that there is a brilliant future for the Israel Lodge in Liverpool. The attendance on the occasion of the first anniversary celebration was numerous and influential, comprising representatives of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and visitors from London, Manchester, &c., all of whom had specially journeyed for the purpose of being present at the installation of Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, the W.M. elect, and to give a parting countenance to Bro. R. Robinson, the retiring W.M. The brethren were summoned to their Masonic duties at four o'clock, and shortly after that hour the lodge was opened by Bro. Ralph Robinson, W.M., who was efficiently supported by the following efficient staff of officers:—Bros. M. de Frece, S.W.; A. J. Henochsberg, J.W.; I. de Frece, Treas.; M. Hart, Sec.; A. Jones, S.D.; S. Schonstadt, J.D.; B. Woolf, I.G.; A. Hart, S.S.; P. Crozier, J.S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members of the lodge who were present comprised Bros. I. Levy, I. Woolf, M. T. Tueski, B. Levy, J. Frank, W. Frank, A. Liebschutz, S. Levy, W. Levy, P. Barnett, I. Joseph, H. M. Silver, D. Herman, J. R. Grant, A. Cohen, A. Rabow, M. Parkes, L. Simmons, L. Hart, J. Sabur, J. Goldberg, D. L. Marcus, J. Lazarus, W. Aronsberg, S. J. Henochsberg, H. D. Marks, J. M. Preslau, A. Saqui, A. N. Lyons, H. Lumb, J. W. Lock, S. Moss, G. J. Somers, M. Aronsberg, and J. Prag. The numerous visitors included names of Bros. J. Maudeley, P.P.G. Reg. and P.P.G.S.; I. Jacobs, 724; L. J. Salomons, I.G. (Montefiore) 1017; R. R. Martin, P.M. 1094; T. Lloyd, 1356; J. W. Ballard, W.M. 724; P. Faust, 1359; Sol. Davies, 188; W. Healing, S.W. 1094; Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C., W.M. 1547; J. Lipson, 124; M. Goldstone, 249; Louis Davies, S. Scherl, 1287; R. C. Velland, W.M. 1094; F. Siemmes, 241; W. Durrans, 1094; J. Jackson, 424; J. R. Bottomley, 1356; J. Cullender, 1182; J. W. Aronsberg, J. W. Johnson, 1356; T. Gray, 1276; and others. After the minutes had been confirmed and the Treasurer's accounts (which showed the lodge in a monetarily healthy state) had been received and passed, Bros. Hart, Levy, and Franks were passed to the Second Degree by Bro. Robinson, W.M., who performed the ceremony in a faultless manner. He then concluded his valuable and admirable services by installing his successor, Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, in the chair of W.M., the whole of the installation work, as well as the charges to the officers, being remarkable for the masterly style and earnestness with which they were performed. The following brethren were subsequently appointed and invested as the officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. the Rev. J. Prag, Chaplain; R. Robinson, I.P.M.; Maurice Hart, S.W.; Alex. Jones, J.W.; Isaac de Frece, Treas. (re-elected); B. Levy, Sec.; S. Schonstadt, S.D.; B. Woolf, J.D.; P. A. Crozier, I.G.; Isaac Woolf, S.S.; S. J. Wareing, J.S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. In consequence of ill-health, Bro. Maurice de Frece, the first S.W. of the lodge, was unable to accept the office of W.M., or any other appointment, and the brethren therefore took the opportunity of presenting him with a very handsome gold locket as a mark of respect and esteem. Bro. Henochsberg, the W.M., in making the presentation, said it afforded him the greatest pleasure to be the means of conveying to Bro. de Frece that token of the regard of the brethren, which was also an evidence of the sympathy they felt for him in connection with his illness. Although he was not then able to accept the office of W.M., the brethren hoped he (Bro. de Frece) would soon be restored to perfect health, and be enabled to fill the office of the chair which he was so capable of doing. Bro. Maurice de Frece thanked the brethren for that mark of their esteem, and regretted that ill-health had debarred him from reaching the summit of his ambition, namely, to occupy the chair of W.M. in that lodge. "Man proposes, but God disposes," and they must all remember that they were in the hands of the G.A.O.T.U. He was sure that they had a wise choice in electing Bro. Henochsberg to the office of W.M., and that he would do honour to the lodge and credit to himself. The locket bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. Maurice de Frece, the first S.W. of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, by a few friends, members of the lodge, as a mark of their respect and esteem." On the motion of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., it was resolved that the subscriptions to non-resident brethren should be one guinea per annum. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet, provided in first-class style by Messrs. Fisk and Fairhurst, and during the evening the usual loyal, Masonic, and complimentary toasts were given and cordially responded to, an almost universal expression for the complete success of the W.M.'s year being given. In giving "The Queen," the W.M. (Bro. A. J. Henochsberg) said there were no more loyal people in the kingdom than the Freemasons, and they are all the more loyal because they knew Her Majesty took the greatest interest in all their institutions. The W.M. also gave "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," and in doing so said the wife of their Grand Master had endeared herself to the people of England by her many virtues, and therefore he had much pleasure in submitting the toast, which was honoured with the greatest enthusiasm. "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the Pro. Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," was next given by the W.M., who said that they had at the head of their Order the heir to the throne of England, and it was indeed a very great honour for the Freemasons of England to be thus acknowledged and honoured by His Royal Highness, who fulfilled his duties most conscientiously. His duties had now called him elsewhere, and they must all rejoice at the reception accorded to him in India on every side—not the least hearty being the welcome given by the Freemasons. Everyone would join him (the W.M.) in wishing His Royal Highness pleasure on his journey, desiring that it might be productive of good, and further wishing him "God speed" and a speedy return to his native country. The toast was drunk with Masonic enthusiasm and honours. The next toast to the "carte" was "The R.W. Dep. G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M. of West Lancashire, and the Prov. G. Officers," and in submitting it the W.M. said they had at the head of Freemasonry in that province one of the first and finest noblemen in England; one whose sole effort was to carry out the duties of his office with the utmost fidelity. Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G. Chaplain, in responding for the toast, said he had not been disappointed in his expectations with regard to the prosperity of the Lodge of Israel. He saw it in its infancy, and was now proud to find it had grown into a stout and plump boy, and had no doubt it would develop into a fine manhood. He believed they could not have placed a better man in the chair than Bro. Henochsberg, whom he had always found kind, noble, and gentleman-like. Bro. Ralph Robinson, I.P.M., said it gave him great pleasure to propose the toast of "The Worshipful Master," and he was sure the brethren would receive it with the same amount of pleasure. In Bro. Henochsberg they had secured a man of energy and zeal, who would strive, as Master, to make the lodge second to none in the province. It had been to him (Bro. Robinson) a source of great pleasure to have the honour of installing him in the chair, as he felt that their W.M. would well and worthily represent and uphold the highest interests of the lodge. He felt regret that their first S.W. (Bro. M. de Frece) had not been able to go into the chair, but after that expression of regret he must add that if he (Bro. Robinson) had been asked to appoint his successor, he would have said, "Appoint Bro. Henochsberg." The W.M., whose health was drunk with great enthusiasm, in acknowledging the compliment said he hardly knew what to say in answer to the flattering and complimentary way in which Bro. Robinson had spoken of him. He thanked him very sincerely for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast, and he must also thank the brethren for the cordial response given to it. He (the W.M.) was not by a long way what Bro. Robinson had painted him, but by his future conduct he would endeavour to bear up and bear out many of the kind things which had been said. He considered it indeed an honour to be elected to that high office, and he felt it to be so, especially coming after their first W.M. Bro. Robinson had referred to his (the W.M.'s) virtues, but he had not told them the advantage which he possessed in coming after such a Master, who had ever been so ready and willing to give advice and help when they were needed. It was his (the W.M.'s) intention during the year, if blessed with health, to carry out the duties of the office upon the same principles as they had been carried out during the past year. He could not hope to do them as well, but he would try to imitate the noble example which had been set him. He would look to the officers for their support, and to the brethren for that forbearance which would lead them to comply with this request—

"Be to my faults a little blind,
And to my virtues ever kind."

The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master," and said he could hardly find terms to adequately express all he felt regarding Bro. Robinson. They had all seen that day a sample of his abilities, and every one must say that the way in which he had performed the ceremony was unequalled. He (the W.M.) had a pleasing duty to perform, and that was to present Bro. Robinson, in name of the lodge, with a Past Master's jewel, bearing the inscription:—"Presented by the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, to Bro. Ralph Robinson, the first W.M., as a token of fraternal regard and esteem." The W.M. added—"To you, Bro. Robinson, is due the very great success which has attended this lodge during the first year of its existence, and to you it is indebted for the proud position which it occupies as being second to none in the province of West Lancashire. You have, by your correct rendering of our beautiful Masonic ritual—by your amiability—by your firmness in the chair, and by your willingness to afford instruction to the brethren, endeared yourself to us all, and I have now the greatest pleasure in handing you this "token of fraternal regard and esteem." Bro. Robinson, in response, said he felt in something like the position expressed by the Spanish phrase, "Things come to such a pitch at times when you must either laugh or cry." He felt inclined to cry, but he must heartily thank the R.W.M. for the kind manner in which he had spoken of him. He could not, however, allow him to say that the success of the lodge was due only to him (Bro. Robinson). He had had the good fortune to be blessed with officers who had done wonders for the lodge; if left in his hands, it would have been a failure. Our Treasurer (Bro. Isaac de Frece) is a gem of a man, and they had no idea how much he had done, not only to conserve the funds of the lodge, but to add to them in every way. Beyond that, they had been fortunate in securing the services of Bro. M. de Frece, who was really the father and founder of the lodge. (Hear, hear.) The Secretary (Bro. M. Hart) had also been a great help, and invaluable in the performance of his duties. After referring to the Lodge of Israel, he said he only asked for certain peculiarities in the ceremonies, as their right as compared with other lodges, and then referred to the kind countenance it had received from Christian brethren. This was a great encouragement, and he most heartily thanked all helpers in the first year of their lodge. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and Bro. Mawdsley, P.P.G. Reg., in responding, expressed the pleasure it gave him to visit that lodge, and see the excellent working, which he had never seen equalled during his long Masonic career. After detailing his rapid progress in Masonry, he counselled every one to strive for distinction in his lodge. Bro. Hardy also responded, and so, from what he knew of the W.M., commercially and masonically, he was certain of his success in the chair. Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin also conveyed his congratulations to the W.M., and said it was something to be proud of when they remembered that in a Masonic lodge, Jews and Christians alike could find a hand ready to grasp another, and a heart ready to feel for another. Bros. F. D. Siemms, C. S. Davies, S. Schmerl, Louis, Davis, and Solomons, 1507, also responded, each wishing the W.M. and the lodge the greatest success. Bro. R. Robinson gave "The Fund of Benevolence," and alluded at some length to the benefits which would accrue from such a fund. "The Chaplain" and "Officers" were amongst the other toasts. An excellent musical programme was furnished by Bros. S. Jacobs, M. Hart, S. Schonstadt, W. G. Veale, Franks, S. J. Henochsberg, &c. "Marie," the recently published song by Bro. A. Saqui, a member of the lodge, was well rendered by Bro. S. Jacobs, and cordially received.

PORTMADOC.—Madoc Lodge (No. 1509).—The installation meeting of this lodge, the youngest in the Province of North Wales and Shropshire, was held at the Queen's Hotel, Portmadoc, on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at three o'clock, Bro. Ed. Breese, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. Cornelius Davies, J.W., as S.W.; J. W. Poole, P.M., J.W.; and J. W. Wallace, as I.P.M. The lodge was opened in form, after solemn prayer, by the W.M., and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Wm. Long, which was unanimous in his favour, and he was accordingly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The Treasurer's report was then read in his absence by Bro. P.M. Wallace, and showed that the lodge, after paying over £300, was only in debt £25, a state of things satisfactory to all. The Installing Master then called Bro. Breese, and informed him that the brethren had unanimously re-elected him, and having signified his assent to the ancient charges, installed him in the chair of K.S. He subsequently invested the following as his officers, viz.: Bros. C. Davies, S.W.; Dr. Robert Roberts, J.W.; Rev. John Lewis, Rector of Dolbenmaen, Chaplain; E. Seymour Greaves, Treas.; Dr. Jones Morris, Sec. (re-elected); Dr. Samuel Griffith, S.D.; O. Morris Roberts, J.D.; Morris Jones, I.G.; Edward Pryce, Dir. of Cers.; F. H. Strowger, Org.; Owen Morris, Dep. Org.; John Roberts and R. F. Roberts, Stewards. At the close of the investiture, Bro. Wallace, on behalf of the brethren of the lodge, presented Bro. Ed. Breese with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, for which the W.M., in suitable words, sincerely thanked the brethren. The brethren then repaired to the Royal and Commercial Hotel to partake of a banquet, which was of a most recherché character, and reflected great credit on the host and hostess, Bro. R. F. Roberts, and Mrs. Roberts. Among those present were Bros. John Francis, P.P.G. J.W.; J. W. Wallace, J. W. Poole, P.M. 606; C. H. Rees, R. J. Davids, W.M. 606; C. Elliot, S.W. elect of the proposed Corbet Lodge; Rev. J. Boucher, S.W. 606; R. Thomas, 606; C. Davies, Rev. J. Lewis, Drs. Roberts, Griffith, and Jones Morris; O. M. Roberts, Morris Isaac, J. W. Wheeler, J. Roberts, T. B. Humphrey, F. H. Strowger, G. T. Picton Jones, Cledwyn Owen, R. Williams, and others. The W.M., in proposing "The Queen," congratulated the brethren on having such a good example of religion and morality at their head. Drank with enthusiasm. The next toast the W.M. proposed was "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and he remarked he hoped his journey to India would be productive of great benefit to him, and also to his future subjects in the far East. He was sure it was no journey of pleasure, but was prompted by the Prince's desire to fit himself for the position he would some day hold. It was a matter of congratulation to the Freemasons of Wales that the head of the Craft should receive his title from their country. Bro. Davids reminded the W.M. it was the Prince's birthday. "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was then most loyally given by the company. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon," said that as Freemasons in Wales they had cause for congratulation because the Prince was their head; they of Carnarvonshire had more cause, as his deputy took his title from their country. He was sure the Prince could not have selected a better and worthier gentleman than the Earl, and the ability displayed by him during the interregnum, occasioned by an event they all regretted, pointed him out as one well able to rule over them had not H.R.H. accepted the M.W.G. Mastership. In proposing "The Health of Sir Watkin Wynn," the W.M. said that there was to be no end of congratulating themselves as Masons, as in addition to all the other names he had mentioned they now had to toast the "Prince in Wales," and who was also their Prince with regard to Masonry. He was sure they could not drink the health of a better man, a more kind-hearted landlord, a thorough patriot, a most excellent Mason; and, whoever was second, there was no better Provincial Grand Master than Sir Watkin, one who acted up in deed and word to the grand principles of Freemasonry. It had pleased the G.A. to afflict him, but he was now better, and he hoped his voyage abroad would be a great benefit to him, and, under the blessing of heaven, would be the means of thoroughly re-establishing his health, so that he may be spared to them for many years. Song: "Sir Watkin Wynn," excellently given by Bro. Picton Jones. The next toast was that of "Bro. J. R. Ormsby Gore, M.P., Dep. Prov. G.M.," who, the W.M. said, was well known to them, his land being around on all sides, as a most kind-hearted landlord and an excellent neighbour. He had told the W.M. he would be present with them that evening if his health permitted, and he was sorry his absence was caused by illness. The I.P.M. then said the next toast was placed in his hands, and he was sure no words of his were necessary to ensure a most enthusiastic welcome to the toast. They had all known the W.M. longer than he, but for his true Masonic spirit he did not think any one had had more opportunities of observing them than he. He was a true Mason, and he need not say anything more than that in praise of Bro. Breese, who had done a great deal for the lodge, and he questioned if the wonderful success that they had had during the year was not altogether due to his exertion and influence. Drank most enthusiastically, with Masonic fire. The W.M., in replying, thanked the I.P.M. for the very kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and also the brethren for the flattering way with which they had received it, as he was sure there was sincerity on both sides. He was sorry he had been absent from many meetings owing to illness, but although that had been the case he never forgot them. He most eloquently dilated on the grand principles of the Order, and in referring to charity, remarked that, owing to other claims pressing on the lodge, they had not the means to do what they would have wished with regard to this grand principle, but he hoped that now those claims were settled they would be found at the front, if not at the head, of the lodges of the province as far as their contributions to the Masonic charities. Before sitting down he had a toast to propose, viz., "The Immediate Past Master, Bro. Wallace," who had done so much for the lodge, and who was highly esteemed by them all. Bro. Wallace suitably responded. In replying to the toast of "The W.M.'s of the Province," Bro. Davids, W.M. 606, thanked them for the honour done him in coupling his name with the toast, as he was the youngest Master almost in the province, and that was his first appearance since his installation as Master of his lodge at any other lodge, and it gave him great pleasure to be present at the re-installation of one whom his brethren had, owing to his eminent qualities, both socially and Masonically, selected to fill the chair of that lodge for the ensuing twelve months, and he hoped that his example would tend to make all the brethren more zealous in their attendance and discharge of their duties. Masonry, he said, ought to be looked up to, not from its social or mystic position, but on account of the honourable position it had in this country. In proposing "The Visiting Brethren," the W.M. said that he was afraid that was a misnomer, and was not wisely put on the toast list, as they had an idea, from the title, of some brethren whom they never wish to see again, and who were of no ornament to the Craft, but by it was meant their "visitors" that evening, whom they all wished to honour and would most heartily receive again; some of whom had come a considerable distance to be present among them that evening. He was always glad to see visitors, as they always put the officers on their mettle, and sometimes took the little ideas they had of themselves out of them—more especially in country lodges was this the case, as the officers were sometimes inclined to think themselves perfection, and to consider the world as if it were constituted of but three or four miles around them. Bros. Elliot and Francis suitably replied. The other toasts were "The Wardens and Officers," "The Newly Initiated," "The Ladies," and "The Tyler's." This lodge, which was consecrated twelve months ago with 20 original members, now numbers 82 members, 20 of whom have been initiated, and the others affiliated from other lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Grand Orient of France and Italy.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—The first meeting since the installation of Bro. Hopwood, as W.M. of this lodge, was held at the Lion Hotel, on Thursday, the 18th inst. The lodge was opened at half-past five o'clock in the afternoon by Bro. Hopwood, P.M. 141, W.M., assisted by Bros. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, P.J.G.D. of Middlesex, I.P.M.; S. Hill, P.M., S.W.; J. Hurst, J.W.; T. Wheeler, S.D.; T. W. Ockenden, acting J.D.; J. C. Jessell, I.G.; D. B. Raw, P.M., Treas.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, &c., Sec. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, with the exception of that portion of them referring to the resignation of one of the members, which was unanimously rescinded. The ballot was then taken to admit, as joining members, Bros. Knaggs, Treasurer and S.D.; Rogers, S.; and Evans, I.G., all of No. 1503, and upon investigation, was declared by the W.M. to be unanimous. The ballot was also taken on behalf of Messrs. Thomas Moody, Harry Tagg, and William Messenger, and having been unanimously approved, the two first named gentlemen were duly and impressively initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M. Bro. B. R. Aston was passed to the Degree of F.C. by the W.M. At the request of the W.M., who was indisposed, Bro. Hammond, the I.P.M., raised Bros. J. E. Hunt and J. W. Hiscox to the Third Degree. Several minor matters having been discussed, the lodge was closed according to ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to a cold collation. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. stated that as the hour was late he should not enlarge upon the subject matter of the toasts any more than was actually necessary. He then, with a few brief remarks, gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was well received. In proposing "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," the W.M. stated that as a Mason he was exceedingly pleased to read that thus far His Royal Highness's trip had been eminently successful, and he hoped that throughout the whole tour nothing would occur to mar the proceedings. It was also very gratifying to the Craft at home to hear that their brethren in India had given the Prince a most magnificent reception, and he had no doubt that a very great number of people in England who were not royalists or Freemasons were very much disappointed that His Royal Highness had been so favourably received by all classes abroad and that they have been charmed by his affability and geniality. This toast was most enthusiastically received. "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," having been proposed and drank, the W.M. gave "The R.W. the P.G.M. of Middlesex," and expressed how grateful he felt at holding the position of W.M. in a lodge that had been so favourably spoken of as the Hemming had been by that distinguished Mason, Bro. Colonel Burdett. This toast having been duly honoured, the W.M. gave "The rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," coupled with the name of Bro. William Hammond, the Junior Grand Deacon of Middlesex, who made an excellent reply for the honour that had been accorded to him in coupling his name with the Grand Officers of so important a province as that of Middlesex. The I.P.M. then rose and proposed in very happy terms "The Health of the W.M.," who had made his "debut" in the Hemming Lodge that evening as a thoroughly good working Mason. From the care and attention that Bro. Hopwood as S.W. had displayed in the discharge of his duties during the past year he (Bro. Hammond) had felt assured that the responsibilities and ceremonies of the position would be creditably performed, and he had not been disappointed, for he was sure that the brethren of the lodge would agree with him that the W.M., although slightly indisposed, "worked" the first and second ceremonies well, and that he was capable of performing the third, but from circumstances already explained

Bro. Hopwood did not that evening feel equal to the work. This toast having been drunk, the W.M. briefly replied, and stated that he hoped the brethren would excuse any shortcomings of his that evening, and that he would at the next lodge meeting endeavour to carry out the whole of the work to their satisfaction, but as they were all aware he had had a very severe illness, and did not feel quite recovered from its effects yet, and that it had to a very great extent interfered with his Masonic working. The next toast was "The Initiates," which was prefaced by the W.M. with a few appropriate remarks. Bros. Tagg and Moody both acknowledged the compliment, and the latter particularly expressed his obligations at having been allowed by the brethren of the Hemming Lodge to become a member of the ancient and noble order of Freemasons, which not only taught the precepts of harmony and benevolence to its members, but endeavoured by its example to disseminate those principles throughout the world. The proceedings having been enlivened by the dramatic and vocal selections of Bros. Ockenden, Hurst, Tagg, Jessit and Walls, the W.M. rose and proposed "The Health of their Visitor, Bro. H. Jones, 1326." In his remarks he stated that he had known Bro. Jones many years, and that he was very pleased to see him as a guest of the Hemming Lodge, which usually had the pleasure of receiving visits from many brethren, and he was very sorry to state that this was the first occasion in its history that its hospitality had been dispensed to only one visitor. "The Health of the Past Masters" was then proposed by the W.M., coupled with the name of the I.P.M., without whose valuable assistance the lodge could never have succeeded, in so short a time, in establishing for itself the good name that it bore in the province. Bro. Hammond having suitably acknowledged the compliment, the W.M. gave "The other Officers of the Lodge," mentioning each personally by name. The toast having been honoured, Bros. Hill, Hurst, Wheeler, Jessit and Ockenden severally replied. Bro. Walls having by request of the W.M. sang a portion of the "National Anthem," and "God Bless the Prince of Wales," the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated until the third Thursday in January.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—In closing the first season of this highly successful new lodge, held at the Abercorn Arms Hotel, we have to record two emergencies, which has enabled all the new members to rank as M.M. The first meeting, held on the 5th ult., was fully attended by the officers and brethren, and under the very able direction of the W.M., Bro. Helsdon, P.M., Bro. Eversden was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. Bros. Hackney, Thompson, and Lloyd were passed. The Secretary then read, to the great satisfaction of the brethren, a reply to his application from the V.W. Bro. the Marquis of Hamilton, S.G.W., accepting the offer of the lodge to become hon. member, upon which Bro. Joshua Nunn, J.W., P.M. and P.G.S.B., proposed, and Bro. Holden, S.D., seconded, that such be duly recorded on the lodge minutes, which was carried unanimously. After the usual enquiries, the lodge closed in perfect harmony at 6 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment and mutual enjoyment.

The last meeting was held on the 2nd inst., in the presence of the following brethren:—R. Helsdon, P.M., W.M.; J. W. Garrod, S.W.; O. Vincent, acting J.W.; C. Veal, P.M., Hon. Sec.; J. Holden, S.D.; G. Tidcombe, J.D.; J. Patterson, I.G.; and Bros. Best, Swatton, Eversden, Hackney, Thompson, and Lloyd; and visitors, Bros. Netherlands, 920, and M. Drury Lavin, 404, the R.W.P.G.M. and several other brethren sending suitable apologies for their absence. The lodge was opened at 3.45. Bros. Hackney, Thompson and Lloyd were raised to M.M.'s, the usual requirements made for the good of the Craft. The following were proposed as joining members, subject to ballot at next meeting:—Bro. Joseph Ebbs, W.M. 733, proposed by the W.M., and seconded by the S.W.; and Bro. Reuben Roy, M.M. 188, proposed by the Secretary, and seconded by Bro. Felton. The Secretary then brought forward a sad case of adversity, which had ended in a summons from the G.A. O.T.U. to Bro. T. Mackintosh, M.M. Scoon and Perth, No. 3, just as he was about to become a joining member of the lodge. The Secretary himself, with Bros. Felton and Roy, followed him to his last resting place with the sincere hope of his ascending to the Grand Lodge above. Much sympathy was expressed for the widow, and the right hand of charity extended to meet present requirements. Several minor matters were then disposed of, and the lodge adjourned until the first Tuesday in April, when several new members are expected. The brethren then met at banquet with the usual loyalty and harmony, and in replying to his health, proposed by Bro. Veal, P.M., the W.M. expressed his great gratification at the success of their first season, complimenting the officers respectively on their united efforts, and Bro. Veal, Hon. Sec., whom he described as the father and founder of the lodge. On the officers replying through Bro. Garrod, S.W., the Tyler's toast concluded the evening with general satisfaction.

DOMATIC LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 177).—Since this old established Lodge of Instruction has been removed to the Surrey Masonic Hall, in the Camberwell New Road, there is an increased number of Masons at its weekly meetings, which has no doubt been brought about in consequence of the business of the lodge being carried on apart from tavern accommodation. On Tuesday last there was a very full attendance, the evening being set apart for rehearsing the ceremony of installation. Bro. Field, the W.M. of the Burgoyne Lodge, occupied the chair, and there were several Past Masters present, amongst whom were Bros. Messenger, H. 1216; Wallis, 905; H. Thompson, 177 and 1158; Dann, 72; and others. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Larham (Preceptor of the lodge) presented Bro.

Wallis to receive the benefit of instruction, and the usual ceremony having progressed to the usual point, the brethren below the chair retired, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Wallis was in due form installed into the chair. After the re-admission of the brethren, Bro. Field gave the usual addresses, and at the close of the ceremony he was greeted with hearty cheering.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—The first meeting of the season was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, Nov. 18th, summoned for half-past seven, but not opened till after eight o'clock by Ex. Comps. Jelley, M.E.Z.; Jas. Parfitt, H.; Thompson, J., in the presence of Past First Principals Geo. Parfitt, Dr. Hopkins, Moutrie, Rubie, Mann, and Reeves. On the admission of nearly 20 companions, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Bro. Williamson, which proving unanimously favourable, he and Bro. C. Brookes (previously balloted for) were prepared for the ceremony. The acting subordinate officers were R. Carey, K.; Hearn, N.; Moutrie, P.Z. Treas.; Hill, Pr. Soj.; Howes, Asst. Soj. On the admission of the candidates the first part of the ceremony, as far as the Obligation, was conducted by the M.E.Z., and completed by Dr. Hopkins, P.Z., who also gave the historical, symbolical, and mystical lectures. These were listened to with marked attention, and on their conclusion elicited the approbation of those present by loud applause. A vote of thanks was passed to him for his assistance. The bye-laws were read, as is usual once in each year. The following appointments to office for next year were made: Jas. Parfitt, Z.; Thompson, H.; R. Carey, J.; Hill, E.; Hearn, N.; Moutrie, P.Z., Treas. (Other business of no general interest protracted the proceedings, which did not terminate till nearly 11 o'clock.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Charnwood Chapter (No. 1007).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Bull's Head Hotel, on Tuesday, the 16th ult., under the presidency of Comp. J. C. Duncombe, M.E.Z. 1130, Prov. G.A.S., in the absence of Earl Ferrers, M.E.Z., Prov. G.H. Among the other officers present were Comps. H. Deane, P.Z., P.G.R.; Arnatt, J.; R. Boughton-Smith, Prov. G. Std. B., S.E. The only business of the evening was to elect the officers for the ensuing year, when a ballot took place, and the following were declared to be duly elected, viz.:—Comps. Deane, M.E.Z.; Arnatt, H.; Boughton-Smith, J. and Treas.; James E. Cooke, N.; Gough, P.S.; Dobell, A.S.; Crossle, A.S.; Story, M.C.; Jacques, Std. B.; Walker, Janitor. This being the whole of the business, the chapter was closed.

Mark Masonry.

SOUTHWARK LODGE (No. 22).—Time was, say about three years since—when this very old lodge had, except in name, become almost extinct. It was, we believe, originally held under the Scottish Constitution, but in the year 1866 it acknowledged the supremacy of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, and it has since been held under the authority of that now distinguished body. As we have said, three years since the lodge was almost, if not quite in abeyance, but a few energetic members, still left on the muster roll, decided that such a state of things should exist no longer, and the result of their exertions is, that there is now a lodge, built certainly on the ruins of the old, but a lodge of a far different character. Instead of a very few members, some of whom never attended, it now numbers between thirty and forty, and in closing our preliminary remarks, we wish it every success in its new career. But to return. The lodge held its annual installation meeting at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Tuesday, the 9th inst., and it was exceedingly well attended. There were present W. Bros. E. S. Stidolph, G.S.W.M.; Sparkes, P.P.G.S. Middlesex, S.W. and W.M. Elect.; J. H. Spencer, P.G.S., J.W.; J. J. Hooper Wilkins, P.G.J.O., P.M., Treas.; John Read, P.G. Org., Sec.; and many other brethren. Visitors: Bros. Major Shadwell Clarke, Hyde Pullen, John Webb, F. Binckes, G. Sec.; and Magnus Ohren. The lodge having been duly opened by the W.M., the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, as also was the report of the Audit Committee. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Poore, P.M., then ascended the chair of A., and in a very impressive manner advanced Bro. the Rev. J. Hatch to the degree of a M.M.M. The next step was to install the new W.M., and his duty was also undertaken and most efficiently carried out by Bro. Poore, and here it may be mentioned that this duty was imposed on Bro. Poore at a moment's notice, it having been understood that another worthy and distinguished brother would officiate, but who was absent from some cause which was not explained. The W.M. having been duly installed then invested his officers as follows:—W. Bros. Stidolph, G.S. I.P.M.; Spencer, P.G.S., S.W.; J. Cattle Mason, J.W.; Rev. J. Hatch, Chap.; J. J. Hooper Wilkins, P.G.J.O., P.M., Treas.; John Read, P.G. Org., P.M., Sec.; Poore, P.M., Assist. Sec.; Gilbert, M.O.; Horton, G.O.; Van Baerle, J.O.; Hutt, Reg. Wks.; Klingenstein, S.D.; Walshaw, J.D.; Brettie, I.G.; Middleton, Steward; Austin, Tyler. After some formal business the lodge was then closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to one of those banquets for which Bro. Spencer is so famous. After the removal of the cloth grace was said by the Rev. J. Hatch, Chaplain. The W.M. then proposed "The Queen and M. Masonry," and the toast was duly honoured. Next came "The M.W. Grand M.M. P.G. Masters, and the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," and with this was associated the name of the

R. W. Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary. Bro. Binckes, in reply, briefly sketched the progress the Order had made in the last few years, and congratulated the Southwark Lodge on the position it had attained, and wished it every success. The I.P.M., Bro. Stidolph, then proposed "The Health of the W.M." in an effective speech, and expressed his gratification at the choice the brethren had made, being confident that the brother now in the chair was in every respect well qualified for that high position. "The Health of Bro. the Rev. J. Hatch" was next proposed, and suitably acknowledged. The W.M. then introduced the next toast, which was that of "The I.P.M., Bro. Stidolph, remarking that the great services he had rendered to the lodge, both as S.W. and afterwards as W.M., and the liberal and handsome manner in which he had always promoted its best interests, called for a more substantial recognition than a merely complimentary speech. He had, therefore, much pleasure in presenting him with a P.M.'s jewel, voted by the lodge as a slight acknowledgment of the respect in which he was held by every member, at the same time wishing him all possible happiness in the future. Bro. Stidolph returned thanks, and was proud to have such a jewel, and he further assured the brethren that although now past the chair, he should still continue to give the lodge his warmest support. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and was very glad indeed to see such a bevy of distinguished Masons present. He assured them that the Southwark Lodge would at all times be glad to accord them a hearty greeting. Bro. Magnus Ohren replied, as also did Bro. Hyde Pullen and Bro. Major Shadwell Clarke. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Poore," associating with it that of the P.M.'s, Bros. John Read and Hooper Wilkins, but they, being Past Grand Officers, a toast already responded to—he would now only call on Bro. Poore to reply. The W.M. paid a well-deserved compliment to Bro. Poore for the manner in which he had performed the duties which had so suddenly devolved upon him, and Bro. Binckes supplemented this by observing that he had been extremely pleased with the whole of the proceedings, and he complimented Bro. Poore in terms which must have been highly gratifying to that able and zealous member of the order. "The Health of the Officers" then brought a most successful and pleasant evening to a close.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 6th inst. The first business was to install Bro. J. T. Shapland, as W.M. for the year ensuing. This was very ably done by the R.W.P.G. Master, Bro. Major Davey, who very kindly attended at much personal inconvenience for the purpose. The W.M. then appointed his officers for the year ensuing as follows:—Bros. T. Sanders, I.P.M.; R. L. Riccard, S.W.; J. Brewer, J.W.; J. Galliford, M.G.; J. Wood, S.O.; J. T. Widgery, J.O.; Rev. F. King, Chaplain; J. Galliford, Treas.; J. T. Widgery, Registrar of Marks; J. E. Galliford, Sec.; W. Cole S.D.; W. Britton, J.D.; W. C. Oliver, I.G.; R. Kingdon, Tyler. Bro. Thomas Hancock, W.M. of Lodge Concord, No. 1135, was duly advanced. The brethren afterwards dined together at Bro. Cole's, Unicorn Hotel and a very pleasant evening was spent.

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge (No. 65).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday, Nov. 3rd, and proved a most successful gathering. During the past 12 months the W.M., Bro. Henry Nelson, had advanced no fewer than twenty-five brethren to this honourable degree, many of them Masons of the highest standing, which satisfactorily shows the progress that Mark Masonry is making in this district. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. H. Nelson, P. Prov. G.S.O., who was supported by the following officers and brethren:—Wm. Shortis, P.G.I. of Wks., S.W.; T. Clark, P.M., P.G.M.O.; W. T. May, P.M.; J. Kellott Smith, P.M., P.G.J.W.; J. R. Goepel, P.G.M.O., Treas.; H. Jackson, Sec.; A. Bucknall, M.O.; H. Hayes, S.O.; H. Morris, J.O.; H. Burrows, S.D.; J. Capell, Reg.; T. Large, J.D.; H. S. Alpass, P.G.M.O.; T. J. Jeffery, P. B. Forshaw, Thos. Smyth, T. Hooper, F. Cooper, J. Armstrong, T. Chesworth, T. McWear, T. H. Bibby, R. H. Evans, G. A. Wright, W. P. Jennings, W. Fish, R. Reader, A. C. Wylie, Geo. Hutchin, and J. Thompson. The visitors were Bros. G. H. Wilson, P.M. 11, P.G.J.D.; Jno. Pemberton, J. Baxendale, and C. Leighton. After some routine business had been transacted, the W.M. elect, Bro. Wm. Shortis, was presented by Bro. Dr. Smith, P.M., P.G.J.W., and Bro. Thos. Clark, P.M., P.G.M.O., to the W.M., Bro. H. Nelson, for installation. The brethren below the rank of Installed Masters then retired, and on their return Bro. Shortis was duly proclaimed and saluted as W.M., Bro. Nelson acting throughout as Installing Master. Bro. Shortis then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. H. Jackson, S.W.; H. Hayes, J.W.; J. R. Goepel, Treas.; A. Bucknall, Sec.; Reg. Young, Chaplain (by proxy); H. Burrows, M.O.; T. Large, S.O.; J. Capell, J.O.; R. H. Evans, S.D.; W. H. Cooper, J.D.; T. Clark, P.M., D.C.; J. Armstrong, Reg.; T. Thompson, I.G.; Geo. Hutchin, S.S.; A. C. Wylie, J.S.; and Peter Ball, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in solemn and ancient form. The brethren subsequently sat down to banquet under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Wm. Shortis, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DUMBERTON.

The quarterly communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Dumbarton was held in the Elephant Hotel, High-street, Dumbarton, on Saturday evening, the 6th inst., the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Alexander Smollett, presiding. The P.G. Lodge was opened and minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The P.G. Master then referred to the lamented decease of Bro. Paterson, late P.G.S.W., and said he was one who in his Masonic, social, and business capacities had endeared himself to all with whom he came into contact. He had the interests of Masonry at heart, and we deeply mourn and regret the loss of his presence amongst us. I, as one, shall ever regard his memory with the greatest affection and esteem, and in my official character shall deeply feel his loss. It is, therefore, necessary, under the sad circumstances to fill up the vacant office of P. Grand Senior Warden, and I have now much pleasure in appointing Bro. John Babbie, the present P. Grand Junior Warden, to that office, and Bro. Alexander Denny, the present P. Grand Secretary, to the office of P.G.J.W., and Bro. A. S. MacBride, the present P. Grand Clerk, to the office of P. Grand Secretary. These brethren intimated their willingness to accept the offices named.

The P.G. Lodge then proceeded to elect the other office-bearers for the ensuing year, and the following is now the full list of the office-bearers appointed by the P.G. Master and elected by the P.G. Lodge, viz.: Bros. Alexander Smollett, Provincial Grand Master; Archibald Orr Ewing, M.P., Provincial G. Deputy Master; W. C. Steele, Sheriff Substitute, Provincial G. Substitute Master; John Babbie, Provincial Grand Senior Warden; Alexander Denny, Provincial Grand Junior Warden; A. S. MacBride, Provincial Grand Sec.; William Hodge, Provincial Grand Treas.; Robert Andrew Gray, Prov. G. Chaplain; John McLeish, I.P.M. 321, Prov. G. Senior Deacon; James Marsland, R.W.M. 503, Prov. G. Junior Deacon; Patrick Moir, Prov. G. Bible Bearer; Alexander McGregor, Prov. G.S. Steward; William Ferguson, R.W.M. 543, Prov. G.J. Steward; Thomas Higgins, Prov. G. Inner Guard; John Kennedy, Prov. G. Tyler.

The following were appointed as the Provincial Grand Lodge Committee, viz.: William Barr, R.W.M. 18; David Paul, R.W.M. 170; James Stewart, R.W.M. 321; John McLeish, I.P.M. 321; and Robert Thomson, S.W. 18. After going through a good deal of other business, the P.G. Lodge was closed in due and ancient form by the R.W.P.G. Master.

EDINBURGH.—Lodge of Edinburgh (Mary's Chapel) (No. 1).—Owing to unavoidable circumstances, the second monthly meeting of this ancient lodge for the season was held in the lodge-room, Waterloo Place, on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst., instead of the 9th. The lodge was opened on the E.A. Degree by Bro. J. J. Muirhead, R.W.M., who was supported by Bros. Officer, P.M.; Roy, D.M.; Dr. Dickson, S.M.; E. M. Nightingale, S.W.; W. J. Shiress, J.W.; D. Kinnear, P.M. 291, J.G.D. elect; Hudson, P.M. 5; Matheson, P.M. 5; R. F. Shaw Stewart, P.J.W., &c., and a numerous attendance of brethren. A petition was then read from Mr. George Wilson, Murrayfield House, praying to be initiated into the Craft, and this application having been found to be in regular order, the petitioner was reinitiated to a successful ballot, after which the E.A. Degree was conferred upon him by Bro. Dr. Dickson, S.M. Petitions were also read from Bro. Henry Erskine Gordon, advocate, of Lodge St. Luke, 44, Edinburgh, and from Bro. D. Smith, solicitor, a Fellow Craft of Lodge St. Machar, Aberdeen, 54, respectively, each desiring to be admitted an affiliated member, and these brethren having also passed through the ballot test successfully, were duly welded as the "last links" of a somewhat lengthy chain. The minutes of last monthly meeting were then read and confirmed. The R.W.M., in a very feeling manner, adverted to the severe domestic affliction through which Bro. Abbott, the worthy and esteemed I.P.M. of the lodge, had recently passed by the death of two of his children. After paying a just tribute to the many and varied services Bro. Abbott had rendered to his mother lodge, he moved that a record should be placed on the minutes, expressive of the deep sympathy of the brethren with him and the other members of his family in a bereavement which must have thrown so deep a shadow over their fireside. Bro. Officer, P.M., seconded the motion, which was cordially agreed to. This having concluded the business, the lodge was then summoned to refreshment, and after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, the R.W.M. took occasion to propose "The Health of Bro. R. F. Shaw Stewart," whom he singled out as his probable successor to the chair, and whose personal character and high social and Masonic position were a sure guarantee, he thought, of a successful career as Master. Bro. Shaw Stewart, who was received with great applause, returned thanks for the honour which had just been done him. Bro. Officer, P.M., reminded the brethren that, as this would be the last occasion on which Bro. Muirhead would preside at a monthly meeting as Master (owing to his intended departure for the continent), he asked the brethren to join with him in proposing a hearty vote of thanks to him for the services he had rendered to the lodge during his three years' tenure of office as R.W.M. Bro. Roy, D.M., seconded the motion, which was heartily agreed to. Bro. Muirhead replied in suitable terms. The lodge was shortly afterwards called to labour, and the brethren having been reminded to appear in great force on St. Andrew's Day, 30th Nov., it was closed according to ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mark (No. 102).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on Monday, the 8th inst. There were present Bros. J. F. Mitchell, R.W.M., in the chair; James Kerr, S.W. chair; D. J. Forfar, J.W. chair; D. H. Miller, P.M.; A. C. Lindsay Gray, D.M.; Wm. Nicholson, S.M.; A. C. Paterson, Treas.; D. Davidson, P.M.; C. Arthur, Mother Kilwinning; J. McInnes, S.W. 408; Wm. Bisland, J.W. 408; and others. The first business before the lodge was, as usual, the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. Then came the nomination of office-bearers for the coming year, which resulted in the following selection:—J. Oswald Smith, R.W.M.; Thos. Kerr, S.M.; John Renton, S.W.; J. Thomson, J.W.; A. C. Paterson, Treas.; D. J. Forfar and John Gladston, Secs.; H. McMillan, S.D.; John Leckie, J.D.; Geo. Littlejohn, I.G.; D. M. Miller, Director of Ceremonies; D. J. Forfar, Director of Music; Seth Dory, S.S.; Moor, P.G.S.; and Hardy, O.G. The R.W.M. then intimated that the election and installation of office-bearers would take place that day fortnight in the hall, at the usual hour of meeting, eight o'clock. Applications from the following gentlemen were read:—Messrs. Charles Stewart, John Christie Smith, Alexander Calder, and John Monteith, who were all found clear, after the ballot had been examined, and received the First Degree, the R.W.M. officiating with his characteristic ability. The lodge was then passed to the F.C. Degree, and raised to that of Sublime, or M.M., when two brothers, John Hannay and James Henry Crawford, proved themselves capable of advancement in the Order, and were entrusted with the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bro. D. H. Miller, P.M., officiating in a most complete and impressive style. This brought the business of the evening to a close, and the lodge was closed in ample form.

An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 13th inst., at 12 o'clock. The R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, presided, and explained that the object for calling the meeting was to get through with some of the business before the lodge, so that the next regular meeting might be entirely devoted to the election and installation of office-bearers, which to do properly would occupy the whole of the evening. Among those present were Bros. W. Nicholson, S.M.; J. Renton, S.W.; G. B. Adams, acting J.W.; A. A. Smith, P.M. 354; W. Spiers, 4; A. C. Paterson Prior, Neil Brown, 570; D. McRae, Neil Campbell, and others. An application for affiliation into St. Mark's from Bro. N. Brown, M.M. of Lodge 570, and he was affiliated in the usual form. There was only one candidate forward for the E.A. Degree, though more were expected to have been present; Mr. Smith was therefore put in possession of the First Degree at the very able hands of Bro. A. A. Smith, P.M. of 354. The lodge was then passed to the Square Degree, when four brethren, members of the lodge, received it, the R.W.M. officiating. After being raised to the Sublime Degree, there appeared five brethren ready to be raised, which was cleverly done by the R.W.M., who, then proposed that Bro. A. A. Smith should be made an honorary member of this lodge for the many valuable services he had rendered from time to time. This was carried, but it was found that Bro. Smith had gone, and the formal ceremony was left over till next meeting. This finished the business, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Scotia (No. 171).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst., in the Masons' Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. Bro. Joseph Singleton, R.W.M., presided, supported by his office-bearers and a large number of members of the lodge and visiting brethren. We observed among others the following:—R. Gardiner, S.W.; P. Hepburn, J.W.; John Miller, D.M.; Wm. Higgins, Chaplain; Wm. King, Treas.; S. Scott, Sec.; George Gilmour, S.M.; Alex. Singleton, S.D.; Alex. Mercer, J.D.; J. Miller, P.M. 87; J. GLASGOW.—Lodge Star (No. 219).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 8th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 12, Trongate, Glasgow, Bro. J. Morgan, R.W.M., in the chair, Bro. J. Crawford, Secretary, read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. The business before the meeting, being the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year, brought a large number of brethren together, numbering over 100. After the nomination of officers, Auditors were appointed, and a committee to take an inventory of the lodge furniture, jewels, clothing, &c., and report at next meeting. Later on in the evening a number of brethren visited the lodge who arrived in Glasgow from Edinburgh, being there attending Grand Lodge, viz., Bro. Councillor Wm. Barr, R.W.M. Dumbarton Kilwinning, 18; Bro. Alex. Bain, P.M. (103) Union and Crown; and Bros. G. C. H. McNaught, P.M. 275; Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M. 543; J. M. Oliver, S.W. 360; A. Ferguson, J.W., and others. GLASGOW.—Lodge Commercial (No. 360).—A special meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street. Bro. J. M. Oliver, S.W., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., occupied the chair; Bro. J. Graham, J.W., acting S.W.; Bro. W. Keiller, S.D. acting J.W. The lodge was opened in the First or E.A. Degree, and from the first it was opened in the Second or F.C. Degree, when Bros. Clark and Schroeder, E.A.'s, were passed to the Square Degree of Fellow Craft, Bro. J. M. Oliver officiating in a very able manner. The lodge was then reduced to the E.A. Degree, and closed in due and proper form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. George (No. 333).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on the 10th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street. The meeting was remarkably well attended. The R.W.M., Bro. Alexander Thomson, took the chair, the S.W. chair being occupied by Bro. Jas. Forsyth, that of J.W. by Bro. Anderson. The R.W.M. was supported on the dais by Bros. J. McFarlane, D.M.; J. Findlay, S.M.; Thos. S. Thomson, Treas.; A. McIntyre, Sec.; and others. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Several cases for Masonic charity were brought before the lodge, and disposed of in a satisfactory manner. A letter was read from Bro. Trumper, who has now settled in Columbia, requesting that a letter of demit should be sent to him, which the Secretary was instructed to forward. A circular from Bro. Kenning was read, regarding the new "Scottish Calendar for 1876." The Secretary was then instructed to order the number of copies necessary to procure a page for the names of the office-bearers. The nomination of office-bearers was then proceeded with. The R.W.M. read to the brethren a list of names for the various offices which the working committee had submitted. This was unanimously adopted by the brethren present, and the nomination declared completed. The names are Bros. A. Thomson, R.W.M.; Jas. Findlay, S.M.; John McFarlane, D.M.; James Forsyth, S.W.; R. Anderson, J.W.; Andrew Dunn, Treas.; Archd. McIntyre, Sec.; Thos. Hill, S.D.; And. Boyd, J.D., Chaplain; John Clark, S.S.; J. Allan, J.S.; Wm. Miller, M. of C.; A. McIntyre, S.T. Kinnard received that degree, after which the lodge was raised to the Sublime Degree, and Bro. S. D. A. Arnott and G. Kinnard received that degree, Bro. Jas. Findlay officiating with admirable style. This finished the business before the lodge, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Glasgow (No. 441).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on Tuesday, the 9th inst., in the Masonic Hall, 22, Struthers-street. The meeting was unusually large, perhaps owing to the important business of nomination having to take place that night. The R.W.M., Bro. H. Tulloch, took the chair, supported by Bros. J. Nagle, S.W.; P. McManey, J.W.; W. Sloan, Treas.; J. A. Goldie, Sec.; and other office-bearers of the lodge. The lodge was opened for business in the usual form, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The R.W.M. then intimated to the members of the lodge that on Friday, the 26th, a special meeting would be held for harmony, and in honour of Bro. Jackson, when, as the members of the lodge were aware, a tangible acknowledgment of his valuable services would be given to him. After a considerable amount of business was got through, a letter was read from an American brother, who had been shipwrecked, and was in great need of assistance. The case was heartily taken up and satisfactorily disposed of. An application from Mr. James H. Adams for admission into Masonry at the next regular meeting, was ordered to stand over till then. Initiation should have taken place that night, but as none of the candidates were forward, the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year was proceeded with. The following is the result:—R.W.M., John Mason; S.M., Serj. Wood; S.W., McCinnay; J.W., Nagle; Sec. Goldie; Treas., Martin; S.D., Duncan; Campbell; and Mather; J.D., Sivewright; Chaplain, Caldwell; B.L., B. Cunningham; S.T. B., M. Walters; Jeweller, Lawson; Archt., McKirdy, and Forsyth; S.S., J. B. Boyls; J.S., French; P.G.S., Martin; and J. Rannie; I.G., A. Boag; O.G., A. Crawford. A committee was then appointed, to take an inventory of the lodge property, consisting of Bros. Campbell, Boyle, and Rennie. The Auditors were Bros. Martin and Mason. The R.W.M. then congratulated the brethren upon the success of the nomination. The brethren whose names stood on the nomination list were sufficient guarantee for the future success of the lodge. The lodge was then passed to the F.C. and raised to the M.M. Degree, when the following brethren were found worthy to receive that degree, Bro. Bain, P.M. 103, officiating in capital style:—For Lodge Glasgow, No. 441, Bro. McNece; for Lodge Shamrock and Thistle, No. 275, Bros. R. Bald, D. McEwin, Jas. Gibson, L. G. Whittings, P. McCulloch, Serj. Evans; for Lodge Star, No. 219, Bro. Wm. Dalen. This brought the business of the lodge to an end, and it was closed in due and ancient form.

DALMUIR.—Lodge St. John (No. 543).—The usual fortnightly meeting of this young and prosperous lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., in the New Masonic Hall at Dalmeir. Bro. William Ferguson, R.W.M., occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Thomas T. Johnstone, D.M.; John Crawford, S.M.; James Barrie, S.W.; Robert Struthers, J.W.; Samuel Leckie, Secretary; Thomas Scott, Treasurer; Thomas Millar, S.D.; and others, and a large number of brethren present. The lodge was opened in the First, or Entered Apprentice Degree. At the request of the R.W.M., Bro. S. Leckie, Sec., read the minutes of last regular meeting, which were approved of. The R.W.M. then stated that the meeting was called by circular for the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year, at the same time informing the brethren that in consequence of his removing to Glasgow he could not allow himself to be nominated or office another year. The nomination of office-bearers was then proceeded with, after which Auditors were appointed to balance the books of the lodge. It was agreed to have the installation of office-bearers on Tuesday, the 14th December. There was no further business brought forward, and the lodge was transferred from labour to refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to. The R.W.M., in proposing "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," coupled the toast with Bro. Col-Sergt. James Barrie, who replied. Bro. T. T. Johnstone, D.M., proposed "The Press," and coupled the name of the R.W.M. with the toast. Bro. Ferguson, of "The Freemason," replied on behalf of Bro. George Kenning. A number of songs were sung, and after spending a happy hour in song and sentiment, the lodge was re-transferred to labour, and closed in due and proper form by the R.W.M.

GLASGOW.—Glasgow Chapter (No. 50).—The regular meeting of this chapter took place in the chapter rooms, St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, on the 11th inst. In the absence of Comp. Miller, Z., Comp. Duthie, Z. of Chapter 67, presided, and opened a lodge of Mark Masters. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. An application for admittance into R.A. Masonry was read from Bro. John Crawford, M.M. of St. John's 34. He was approved of, and was put in possession of the Mark Master's degree, Comp. Mercer officiating. The highly finished and comprehensive style of Comp. Mercer in this degree called forth from Comps. Duthie, Wheeler, and Loutitt an expression of the pleasure they felt in listening to his able rendering of this beautiful degree, and on the motion of Comp. Loutitt, a vote of thanks was given to Comp. Mercer. A lodge was then opened in the Excellent Degree, when Bro. Crawford was instructed in and intrusted with it, Comp. Duthie ably officiating. A Royal Arch Chapter was then opened, Comps. Duthie, acting Z.; Wheeler, II.; Loutitt, J.; Colin MacKenzie, 1st Soj.; Gourley, 2nd Soj.; Wright, 3rd Soj.; Morrison, S.E.; Agnew, Treas.; and a large number of well-qualified companions. Bro. Crawford was then admitted a companion of the Holy Royal Arch. The able and careful way in which Comp. Duthie performed the ceremony was very much admired, and must have left a lasting impression on the candidate, who paid great attention to the ceremony throughout. The chapter was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—St. Rollox Chapter (No. 144).—The regular meeting of this chapter took place on the 12th inst., in the Masons' Hall, Garngad-road. Comp. Peter Young, M.M. of St. John's Lodge, Kilwig, No. 39. He was found worthy and received the Mark Master Degree, Comp. Duthie, Z. of 67, officiating. Royal Arch Chapter was opened, and the following office-bearers, who had been duly elected, were installed into office by the M.E.Z.:—J. Mill, as J.; John Morrison, Treas.; and B. PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORFOLK.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Norfolk was held on Saturday at the Masonic Hall, Norwich, when Bro. the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P., was installed Provincial Grand Master, in the room of the late Bro. Benjamin Bond Cabbell, who held the office for many years. The popularity of the Hon. F. Walpole, who for many years had held the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the unanimity with which his appointment by H.R.H. the Grand Master of England was received in the provinces, served to bring together probably the largest assemblage of Masons ever gathered at a Prov. G. Lodge in Norfolk. Upwards of 300 brethren were present, including not merely Norfolk Masons, but many from Suffolk, Essex, Leicestershire, and London. The lodge was opened in due form at high twelve, the Right Worshipful P.G. Master designate occupying the chair, with Bros. Colonel L'Estrange, S.W.; Col. Duff, J.W.; A. M. F. Morgan, Prov. G.S.; H. J. Mason, P.G.D.C.; G. Baxter, Assist. G.D.C.; and George Brittain, P.G.O. Among the brethren in lodge were—Lord Waveney, P.G.M. of Suffolk; Lord Henwick, the Right Hon. E. Knatchbull-Hugessen, Sir R. J. Buxton, M.P.; Sir F. Boileau, W. A. Tyssen Amherst, Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C.; J. Bond Cabbell, R. T. Gurdon, Rev. J. Cholmeley, Prov. G.C.; Rev. H. Evans Lombe, J. B. Graver Browne, Lieut.-Col. Boileau, Lieut.-Col. Bignold, Major Penrice, Rev. J. Edmund Cox, P.G.C.; Captain Hastings Parker, F. Binckes, P.G.S.; J. Terry, (Prov. G.D.C., Herts); and others.

The banner lodges, whose banners were placed against the walls, were the Faithful, No. 85; the Social, No. 93; the Friendship, No. 100; the Perseverance, No. 213; the Cabbell, No. 803; the Sincerity, No. 943; the Doric, No. 1193; and the Walpole, No. 1500. The other lodges represented were the Joppa, United Friends, Philanthropic, Union, Sondes, and the Unanimity. The W.M. of every one of these lodges were present, with the exception of the Joppa, one of whose Past Masters was its sponsor.

After the formal opening of Prov. Grand Lodge, the Prov. G. Secretary read the rules to be observed in the government of Prov. G. L., and then called over the roll of the lodges. Last Grand Lodge minutes were then read and confirmed and then the Grand Officers for the past year yielded up their collars and jewels of office.

Before the installation of Grand Master, Bro. the Hon. F. Walpole said he wished to propose a vote of thanks from the Grand Lodge to, unfortunately not a Mason, but a worthy Christian, at all events, Mr. Fox, who had obtained a legacy for the province of Norfolk. It had been left to it, but the brethren knew nothing of it, and it would have been lost to the province if Mr. Fox had not unweariedly worked the matter out. It was hardly worth while now to thank the munificent donor, and he thought they had better, therefore, thank Mr. Fox. The vote was seconded and carried unanimously. Bro. Walpole thereupon left the chair and the lodge, and a deputation went out of lodge to conduct Lord Skelmersdale in. On his lordship entering, he was most warmly greeted until he had taken the chair, when the Masonic salute, which created such a profound sensation at the installation of the Prince of Wales in April last, was given. Lord Skelmersdale having bowed his acknowledgments, gave directions that the Worshipful Master Designate (the Hon. F. Walpole) should send in his patent of appointment, and the brethren having agreed to accept this as read, the deputation, which had been sent as an escort for the Worshipful Provincial Grand Master designate, then demanded admission, and, being admitted by command of the W.M., they conducted the new Prov. G. Master into the lodge. Lord Skelmersdale, addressing him, said that all the brethren, both of the province of Norfolk and of the adjoining provinces, would agree with him that it was a good thing for them that the choice of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had fallen on the Hon. F. Walpole, as Prov. G. Master for Norfolk. Not to dilate upon all the duties that this high office would entail upon the Provincial Grand Master, who, it was certain, would perform them to the utmost of his ability, and would carry on the work which had been so well performed by his predecessor, he might say that Masonry had made such great strides throughout the world of late years, and had become of such importance, that every brother would feel the importance of having a good man, and a man high in office, at the head of the province. In Bro. Walpole they had such a man, and he felt sure that he was a man who would conscientiously discharge the duties of his office. He then inquired of Bro. Walpole if he was willing to accept the office. The Hon. F. Walpole having signified his assent, he went through that portion of the ceremony, without which no Master can be placed in the chair. He was invested with the magnificent insignia of his office, and afterwards seated on the traditional throne of King Solomon. The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, in a short address, said he highly appreciated the honour that had been done him. He was thoroughly conscious of the responsibilities he had taken on himself. He would endeavour faithfully to perform what he had undertaken, and he was grateful to the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. He was also grateful to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who had thought him worthy of the great honour of being Provincial Grand Master. He would fulfil the duties of his office, and take care that Masonry in general, and the Province of Norfolk in particular, should lose nothing by his having been inducted in the chair of the province. This announcement was received with much applause. The next part of the ceremony was the appointment and investiture of a Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and to the great satisfaction of the brethren, the honour fell upon Bro. A. M. F. Morgan, who for ten years past has performed the onerous duties of Provincial Grand Secretary. The other Grand Lodge Officers for the ensuing year were appointed as follows:—Bros. Colonel L'Estrange, S.W.; Colonel Duff, J.W.; J. Barwell, Treasurer; Rev. J. Cholmeley, Chaplain; C. Clarke, Registrar; H. Barwell, Secretary; J. H. Thoulless, S.D.; J. B. Aldis, J.D.; H. J. Mason, G.D.C.; G. Baxter, A.G.D.C.; G. Brittain, G.O.; J. Bond, G.P.; R. Gunn, Tyler; Smart, W.M. Sondes; D. R. Fowler, Friendship; J. Commins, S.W. Social; and R. Lamb W. M. Cabbell, Stewards.

Votes of thanks were afterwards passed to the brethren of the neighbouring province of Suffolk and visitors from other provinces, Lord Waveney and Lord Skelmersdale being especially selected. Lord Skelmersdale first, and Lord Waveney next, returned thanks, both expressing their pleasure at attending the installation of the Hon. F. Walpole.

Provincial Grand Lodge was thereupon duly closed.

At half-past two o'clock the brethren assembled, by permission of the Rev. Dr. Jessopp, at the Grammar School, from whence at three o'clock they proceeded to the Cathedral in procession. Every Mason present was clothed according to his rank in the Order, and each lodge was headed by its banner. Forming a line on each side of the nave, the brethren thus opened their ranks to allow the D.G.M. of England, the G.M. of the Province, and the officers of Prov. G. Lodge, together with the distinguished visitors, to pass through.

The brethren then closed and followed to their seats in the choir, which had been, by the kindness of the Very Rev. the Dean, set apart for the accommodation of the Craft. The service was intoned by the Dean, Precentor Medley, and Minor Canon Moore, and the lessons were read by the Dean and the Rev. Canon Nisbet. The Prov. Grand Chaplain, the Rev. J. Cholmeley, preached a sermon from Daniel vi., part of the 23rd verse: "He believed in his God." The collection, which was devoted to the local charities, amounted to about £30.

In the evening the brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet in honour of the occasion at St. Andrew's Hall, which had been specially decorated by Messrs. J. and J. King. The Prov. Grand Master presided.

During the evening the speeches were most agreeably interspersed by the excellent singing of Bros. Minns, Smith, and Thoulless, of the Cathedral choir, and Bro. J. S. Offord, W.M. of Perseverance. Bro. G. Brittain, P.G.O., presided at the pianoforte.

Dinner over,

The Provincial Grand Master gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was received with acclamation, and the brethren sang the National (Masonic) Anthem.

The Provincial Grand Master next rose to propose the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," and in doing so said, the next toast is one that I am sure will recommend itself to you, even under the simple form of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and when it comes as a conjoined one of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England, I am sure you will receive it with the enthusiasm that it deserves. (Cheers.) H.R.H. has left this country on one of the most glorious missions that ever called a man forth. The Indian race knows well the determined courage and the fierce energy of the Anglo-Saxon. Often have they been conquered by Englishmen, and now the Prince of Wales has gone forth to conquer them in a way that they have seldom been used to—by kindness and courtesy—to give to them a lesson which they have not had taught, that the strongest can be the gentlest, and that the mightiest can be the most courteous. The Prince has taken his place nobly among the workmen of England. Eminently has he done the Order good by the patronage that he has cast over it. Let us wish him then a prosperous voyage, health, and happiness there, and may he soon and speedily return again to honour our body by sitting as our head. (Cheers.)

The toast having been drunk,

The Provincial Grand Master, in proposing the next toast, said—In giving you this toast I must say it is one which no words of mine are needed to recommend to your reception. Whatever my shortcomings may be, I am sure you will receive it with all Masonic honour and cordiality. It is, "The Health of our Worthy Brother the Deputy Grand Master of England." His kindness in coming here is an honour to us all, and it is the highest honour he could have conferred upon me personally and upon Masonry in Norfolk, for it is a recognition of the equality and loyalty that exists among all Masons. (Hear, hear.) I am sure that you are all grateful to him for having come amongst us, and I trust when he returns to the Grand Lodge he will, at all events, give the Masons of Norfolk somewhat of a good character, and tell His Royal Highness, our Grand Master, that no people are more loyal than the inhabitants of Norfolk, and none are more earnest Masons than the Masons of Norfolk. (Cheers.) I give you "The Health of the Lord Skelmersdale." (Loud cheers.)

Lord Skelmersdale, having returned thanks for the reception accorded the toast, said he should always look back with great pleasure to this day, and with agreeable remembrances of the great kindness with which the brethren in this province had received him. In accepting the office to which he had had the honour of being appointed, he determined to do the duty which belonged to it, and, as he told them in lodge, this was the first instalment of it out of London. They had placed him under an obligation to them which would be further increased if they would have the kindness of meeting him in London on the 9th of February, when he should have the honour of presiding at the Festival of the Benevolent Institution. (Hear, hear, and applause.) Having expressed a warm desire for the continuance of harmony in the province, the noble lord gave "The Health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk," remarking that the brethren were well aware what a good appointment it was of his friend and brother Walpole, who took so warm an interest in Masonry, and all would join with him in the hope that he would long live to occupy the chair into which he had the honour of installing him that day. (Loud cheers.)

The Provincial Grand Master (who was received with deafening cheers), in reply, said,—Brethren, I thank you for the kindness of that reception. It encourages me. I was wishing rather to postpone the time of returning thanks, thinking to arrange my ideas; but finding no ideas really to arrange, I get up at your call. It is very difficult to speak on an occasion of this sort. I am sure that when, nearly one and thirty years ago, as a midshipman in Her Majesty's navy, I entered into Masonry, I little thought that in the grand hall of Norfolk I should be installed as a Prov. G. Master. I little thought when, having given it up reluctantly, as it were, recalled into Masonry after a quarter of a century of work, I should be in this first hall of Norfolk the first Freemason of the province, but I have received all along one continued course of kindness, which renders those increasing years, years which we wish also to enjoy, and regret that they are passed. The Right Worshipful Brother on my right hand has spoken of the harmony existing among us. Why, sir, most of the brethren about me, except our guests—they at least that are of Norfolk—I have known from my boyhood upwards. They are men that I meet in daily intercourse. They have been to me "a little more of kin if less of kind," and I feel deeply grateful to them for recommending me to His Royal Highness. Whatever His Royal Highness's wishes were, I should have been rejoiced to obey them, but when I heard that it was almost the unanimous wish of those Masons among whom I had worked for years that I should take this place, I could not but immediately consent to take it. Having accepted it, I will engage truthfully and sincerely to the best of my power to endeavour to do my duty in the office, so that when the time comes for me to retire, neither those who conferred the honour upon me, nor those who, by their kindness and their wish, had it conferred upon me, shall regret it. Having again thanked the brethren, the Prov. G.M. said he would now proceed to a livelier theme than speaking of himself, the toast of "The Visitors." Suffolk was hardly regarded as a "stranger" or a "foreigner;" it was not a "shire," but it was a friend and relation. He was grateful to the Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk for the sacrifice he had made in coming to Norfolk to this installation. He had been a hard-working man, and he deserved the heartiest reception. He also proposed Bro. Lord Henniker in connection with this toast.

Lord Waverley, after a renewal of cheering, said—Right Worshipful Sir, I believe one of the first characteristics of Masonry is to be quick about your work, to get it well made up and cleanly carried out, and such has been the course this evening with the Right Worshipful Grand Master. (Hear, hear.) He took me, I confess, quite by surprise in so promptly bringing before you the claim he was pleased to think I had of returning thanks as a visitor for those who partake of your magnificent hospitality this day—a day ever memorable in Norfolk, and to me, who have somewhat of an experience of such gatherings, very memorable indeed. (Cheers.) Three times I have been present at an installation. The first, you will understand, was a matter of high interest to me; on the second I was the most important person on the spot at the time, filling the position which has been occupied by the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master of England to-day—(cheers)—and on this, the third occasion, I stand as a pleased spectator of the brilliant and successful results of this day's proceedings, upon which I heartily congratulate you, Right Worshipful Sir, and the brethren of this great province. (Cheers.) The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master has been pleased to say that he looks upon us Suffolk brethren as very near indeed. We accept that kindness most thankfully, and we are pleased also that with us are associated the many brethren who have come out of the shires, and have had the opportunity of knowing what we can do in the East Anglian corner of the country. (Hear, hear.) I have only this to say, that from my experience in the honourable position which the Right Worshipful Brother has been placed in this day, I know that without the assistance of a willing province and of active Grand Officers progress is always difficult, but with such assistance it is impossible to fail. (Hear, hear.) I would, as a veteran, send you, Right Worshipful Sir, forward on your career with auspices such as those I am sure will be recorded the last time when you shall exercise your power, and which will be verified by the fact, that, under your management, the province has grown from good to better, and from great to greater, not with reference to any disparagement of your predecessor, but on account of the increasing power of Masonry throughout the country. (Cheers.) On behalf of the visitors I beg to return to you and to the brethren my most grateful and sincere thanks. (Renewed cheering.)

Lord Henniker, who also responded, said—As a young Mason I should have been shy of responding to this toast were it not that my name has been mentioned by my very old friend, your Prov. G.M. I thank you most sincerely for the very kind way you have received me as a visitor. It has given me the very greatest pleasure to be present here to-day, and I thank your P.G.M. for giving me the opportunity of being here at this splendid entertainment, and also at the service at the Cathedral and the lodge this morning; and if you don't want me to come another time, you must not give me an invitation. (Laughter.) I am especially pleased at being present on the occasion of my old friend, my very esteemed friend, being installed as your P.G.M. I am sure this province cannot be in better hands. Though a young Mason, I claim to be second to none in my wishes for the good of Masonry, and I hope as years go by to have an opportunity of making myself useful, not only to the lodges in my district, but throughout England. (Hear, hear.) In conclusion, I must express a wish that your P.G.M. may live many years to hold the position which he will not fail to hold successfully. (Cheers.)

Bro. the Rev. J. E. Cox then proposed, "The Provincial Grand Chaplain," and in so doing stated that 31 years ago he was initiated into Masonry in Norfolk, and was a native of Norwich, having been educated at the Grammar School under Edward Valpy, and a chorister boy—the only one that had risen from the choir to preach in the Cathedral pulpit. On behalf of the brethren, he thanked the preacher of the day for his excellent sermon, and concluded by proposing the toast.

The Rev. J. Cholmeley, in reply, said he thanked the brethren for the cordial reception they had given to the toast, though he had received it with some reluctance, because he was not competent for the office. (No, no.) He knew himself better than his brethren knew him. When he heard he was to be appointed Grand Chaplain he went to Bro. Morgan to tell him he hoped some one else would take his position, but that brother that night had returned from some professional engagement very sleepy, and could not listen to him. He was now thankful he was so sleepy, or he would not now have had the pleasure of supplying a fact he had omitted from his sermon. He then narrated the old Masonic tale of the Masonic chest of an English regiment being stolen in the American war, and returned afterwards by the French at Dominica.

Bro. Bond Cabbell gave "The Provincial Grand Officers of Norfolk," coupled with the healths of Bro. Morgan, D.P.G.M.; Bro. L'Estrange, S.W.; and Bro. Duff, J.W.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who was warmly cheered, said that if the day of his marriage was the happiest of his life, this was the proudest. (Hear, hear.) With all his brother Masons in the province, he had looked forward to this day, when they should see the man of their choice in the position which he held to-day. (Applause.) He was sorry that the first duty that truth compelled him to adopt was to correct the Provincial Grand Master in saying that he took his position by the almost unanimous wish of the Craft. He appealed to them whether it was not the unanimous wish of the Craft that he should occupy that distinguished post. (Cheers.) If anything could possibly enhance the pleasure with which he himself had received the honourable appointment of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, it was that it had been conferred by a Mason for whom he had such Masonic esteem as Bro. Walpole, the great honour he felt in acting under such a Master and that the brethren had so kindly approved of the appointment. (Applause.) He could not deny that for something like the eleven years during which he had been their Secretary he had endeavoured to promote the welfare of the Craft generally, and to-day all his Masonic ambition was fulfilled and consummated. (Hear, hear.) The executive duties of the Prov. Grand Lodge would be thoroughly well represented by the Senior Warden, Bro. Colonel L'Estrange and by the Junior Warden, Bro. Colonel Duff, both of whom were admirably fitted for the positions, and especially in physique and general appearance. (Loud cheers.)

Bros. Col. L'Estrange and Col. Duff, both of whom were greeted with great cordiality, also responded, the last-named brother mentioning that he had been a Mason 25 years, and that he should endeavour to perform the duties of the high office to which he had been appointed, to the advantage of this lodge in particular, and of Masonry in general.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then proposed "Prosperity to the Lodges in the Province." He said that since he had the high privilege and honour of being a Mason the number of lodges in Norfolk had increased from seven to fourteen. (Hear, hear.) He could look back to the time when it was necessary at every installation of Worshipful Master, to fall back upon a very old and much esteemed brother—Henry J. Mason—to go through the ritual; but now every retiring Master installs his successor. (Hear, hear.) The working of the lodges in this province of Norfolk would be acknowledged to be most satisfactory by any Grand Officer who might honour them with his presence. (Hear, hear.) In proposing the toast he coupled with it the name of Bro. Aldis, the Worshipful Master of the senior lodge—Union Lodge, 52—and he took this opportunity of saying that a great deal of the anxiety and work or preparing for this celebration had been taken off his hands by Bro. Aldis, who had greatly assisted him. (Cheers.)

Bro. Aldis, W.M., in responding, said that if any of the Grand Officers visited the lodges they would find that in this province the old landmarks of the Order were preserved, and further, that every Master vied with each other in carrying on the work of his lodge with credit to himself and the province. (Loud cheers.) Norfolk had ever been celebrated for freedom of thought, speech, and action, and as Masonry was the very first flower of freedom, it was no wonder that it took early, deep, and abiding root in the Masonic free soil of this good old county. As early as 1731 (quoting from Preston) a certain Francis, then Duke of Lorraine, and afterwards Emperor of Germany, was raised to the Third Degree in the ancestral home of the Walpoles, at Houghton Hall, in Norfolk, at an occasional lodge held there. (Cheers.) It was also recorded that in 1736 Masonry made great progress in Norfolk under Edward Bacon, one of the two lodges which were founded under his auspices being Lodge Union, of which he (Bro. Aldis) had the distinguished honour of being Master. (Cheers.) A few years subsequent Richard Bacon was esteemed so highly for his Masonic attainments that to him was delegated the high privilege of initiating the then Duke of Gloucester, and that Richard Bacon was an ancestor of the present P.G. Secretary, Bro. Henry Barwell, than whom a better Mason does not exist. (Loud cheers.) Bro. Aldis concluded by a reference to the proceedings at the installation in the morning, and by thanking the brethren for the reception they had given to the toast.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed "The Past Provincial Grand Officers," whose services had been so valuable that they ought to have their healths drunk enthusiastically. (Hear, hear.) He coupled with the toast the name of Major Penrice, who might almost be called the father of Masonry in Norfolk.

Bro. Penrice, in the course of his reply, referred to the great impulse Freemasonry had received from the Grand Mastership of the Prince of Wales, and congratulated the province on the advent to the Deputy-Provincial Grand Mastership of Bro. Morgan, who had been a hard-working Mason, and always performed his duties with ability.

The Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., proposed "The Masonic Institutions," and referred to the great good they did. He reminded the brethren of Lord Skelmersdale's presidency of the Masonic Institution's Festival on the 9th of February, trusting that Norfolk would strongly support his lordship, and also referred to the recent complaints which had been made against the Boys' School. He, however, spoke in the highest terms of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of that institution, and stated that it was to him the great success of that school was due.

Bro. F. Binckes made an excellent reply, in which he amusingly alluded to the attempts that had been made to cause Freemasons to withdraw their confidence from him. He also mentioned the charge that had been made as to the institution being always in difficulties. He was happy, however, to say that the institution had not wanted money.

Bro. Terry also replied, and exhorted the brethren to support Lord Skelmersdale on the 9th of February, when he would take the chair for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

The Provincial Grand Master then proposed "The Health of a Distinguished Visitor"—one who, although sitting on the Opposition side of the house (laughter), was unfortunately a Privy Councillor, and must not be passed over. He referred to a good and worthy brother Mason, "The Right Hon. E. Knatchbull-Hugessen." (Loud cheers.)

Bro. the Right Hon. Knatchbull-Hugessen, who was loudly cheered, said,—Right Worshipful Sir and Brother Masons, I am rather overcome with delight at being so honoured by our worthy Provincial Grand Master, that I forgive him having said it is unfortunate I am a Privy Councillor. (Laughter and hear, hear.) I confess that when I was unable to decide where I ought to walk in the procession to-day, I felt entirely overcome with modesty when a gentlemen of great power in your institution, the Master of the Ceremonies, called to me to stand forward as "a distinguished visitor." (Laughter and hear, hear.) But overcoming that natural modesty which all Masons, and especially those who are only "erratic Masons," possess (laughter), I took my place in the procession, and I have been highly interested by witnessing the performances which have taken place to-day. (Applause.) Brethren, my regard for Masonry and for you is so great, that knowing that special trains wait for no man, I will not detain you by any long speech to-night. Suffice it for me to say that an institution like that of Masonry, founded upon the great and immutable principles of brotherly love and universal charity, must commend itself to the regard of every man who seeks to lead a Christian life according to those principles which are found in the Book of Holy Writ. (Cheers.) Brethren, satisfied that in Masonry is to be found one of the best supports of a Christian life, I for my part support Masonry, and glad I am to see that it is so worthily supported in this county of Norfolk. (Applause.) Brethren, I am taken by surprise in being called upon my legs to-night, but I live in a county close by the sea where we are never taken by surprise, or, if we are, we always endeavour to be equal to the emergency. (Laughter.) Had I been called upon at an earlier part of the evening I might, perhaps, have noticed at greater length the observations made by the Grand Master, and if I had done so, I should have reciprocated the kindly feeling which he has expressed towards myself as one of the Opposition, and also have expressed the hope that many years would not elapse before I could return to him the compliment—(laughter and cheers)—and recognise in friendly opposition a countenance, which, whether by my side or opposite me, is always the countenance of an honest and faithful friend. (Great cheering.)

Bro. J. B. Graver Browne proposed the last toast—that of "The Ladies," and in doing so took occasion to say, he was proud of the lodge to which he belonged—the Doric—although that was one of the youngest lodges in the province, and no lodge was more delighted at the installation of the Hon. F. Walpole as Provincial Grand Master.

Bro. Geoffrey Buxton having responded to the toast, this successful meeting broke up.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

The record of the last week may be briefly summed up in the statement that His Royal Highness has been enjoying Indian sporting with much of zest and activity, despite the great heat. He has been to Baroda, has witnessed the cheetah hunting, has enjoyed quail and snipe shooting, and wild boar hunting. His visit seems to be producing very good results.

THE LAST LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

Our readers, we think, will have been struck with the last report of the meeting of this most important committee of Masonic Benevolence. The new cases dealt with amounted to thirty-one, of which one was dismissed and two deferred; and, for the remaining twenty-eight the large amount of £865 was voted. One case was recommended for £250, three cases received £50 each, five small grants were made of £5 each, and the remainder was taken up by various cases receiving £30, £20, £15, and £10 respectively, so as to reach the large amount on the whole, as we said before, of £865. We think that all our brethren will agree that this is a very "strong order," and opening out many serious considerations. Were anything like this to be the average amount of the sums voted by the monthly Lodge of Benevolence, the Fund of Benevolence would require an income of £10,000 a year. And though we are inclined to hope, and to believe, that such claims on our Masonic Charity are exceptional, yet we must not shut our eyes to the fact, for it is one of very pressing import for us all alike, that there is a tendency just now in our Order to increased and increasing demands upon all our benevolent grants and institutions. A question, then, may fairly be asked by the observant Freemason, whence arises this overwhelming application for the benefits of our Masonic funds of relief, aid, and education generally? Whence this strain—for it is a strain, say what you will—on the Fund of Benevolence in particular? We ascribe it to three causes. First, there is, and has been, a tendency in many lodges to relax the older regulations as regards the strictness of admission. Some brethren contend, that if a man can pay his fees and annual subscription at the time of his admission, no one has a right to look further or demand more. But we beg respectfully to point out that a great fallacy lurks within such a premise. It does not follow that because a man is flourishing to-day he will be so to-morrow, and, in our opinion, before any one is admitted into Freemasonry it ought to be clearly ascertained that he is in such a position as to afford the fair presumption that he will not hastily or speedily have to appeal to his brethren for eleemosynary aid. There are several callings and trades in which, from special causes, life is less secure, and the prosperity is more fluctuating than in others, and where the overweening superabundance of to-day is followed by depression and decadence to-morrow. If candidates are recommendable to lodges only because they are now well-to-do, there is and can be no possible limit to the probable eventual demands on our charitable resources. We, therefore, beg to suggest that lodges should be more careful than they are in admitting many members of doubtful or precarious trades, inasmuch as in nine cases out of ten the ultimate appeal to the benevolence of our good Order is only a question of time. So, too, as regards the habit of granting relief to unaffiliated Masons, a practice we cannot too highly deprecate. Many brethren join a lodge, they then pay two years' subscription; they then "demit," to use an American phrase; they become unaffiliated to any lodge; and yet, after the lapse of five, or seven, or ten years, or even more, of inactive Masonic life, they appeal on the letter of the law for aid and relief. In our humble opinion, all such applications should be considered as only deserving the minimum of benevolence. It is idle to contend that if a brother has so little interest in the Order as to leave it, after two years' membership, and to allow his brethren to bear all the "burden and heat of the day," he is placidly to come in, when need overtakes him, or sickness weakens him, and claim relief on the ground of a qualifying subscription of two years. We do not say that he is not to be relieved, we only advocate the very minimum of Masonic benevolence. Some brethren may be too poor to continue their subscriptions, but we have known cases where brethren have paid for two years, then "demit," then lived on in much apparent material prosperity, and then, "apres tout," have recourse to the Lodge of Benevolence for relief and aid. And, lastly, there is a feeling abroad amongst many that Freemasonry is a wealthy body, and so they enter it for what they can get from it. They join it with the full intention of receiving their "quid pro quo," and there is a large class which thus constitutes a "dead weight" on our prosperous Order. No doubt the very effect of numerical increase and material well doing is to entail on us, owing to the "wear and tear of life," and the inevitable accident and changes of the world, a large class of claimants for temporal assistance. But many cases come before the Board of Benevolence which ought never to be entered on the Grand Secretary's list, and very often the friends of suffering brethren are more to blame than the applicants themselves, as they shift their own burden of responsibility and affection on to the "shoulders," if we may so say, of Masonic benevolence. We shall be glad if the ideas we have suggested may find favour with some of the abler and experienced heads of our Order, and we shall be pleased if they will favour us with their matured and judicious opinions on this most important subject.

PLEASANT MEMORIES.

It is a necessity of this lower earth to lament and lose our friends, and brethren, and companions. It is a compensation however for irreparable loss to remember their pleasant presence, or their useful lives, their warm hearts, or their sunny associations. In Freemasonry we often form fast friendships and warm attachments, and many of us have constantly to mourn over the loss of some familiar friend, the departure—often unexpected, of some much valued and long-known brother. Then it is that memory, with its vivid power, cheers the present, and soothes the sorrow by the pleasant vision it conjures up for us, of all that was good and graceful, or valuable or consoling in the past hours, struggles, efforts, and career of those whose faces we miss, and whose place on earth or in the lodge knows them no more. Two brethren have lately left us, John Savage, well known in the metropolis, and James Franklin, highly esteemed in West Yorkshire, to whom a few lines of feeling and fraternal tribute may fairly be offered in the pages of the "Freemason." Bro. John Savage was well known in London and in the Grand Lodge, where his voice was often heard, and where his presence will long be missed. It may be that we did not always agree with his frankly expressed views, but we believe him to have been honest in his convictions, and sincere in his professions. We knew him to have been a zealous and earnest Mason, as well as a useful and valued citizen. He was a true friend and a genial comrade, and he worked on to the last, retaining the good will and sympathy of his friends and brethren, being always to the fore, and ready for every Masonic work, and most interested in all plans affecting the active development of Masonic benevolence. He was a very valued member of our good Order, and seemed well to typify many of its most ornate and abiding characteristics. Bro. James Franklin was a very respected solicitor at Halifax, and a very zealous member of the old Lodge of Probity, one of the oldest of English lodges, and had received the highest provincial honours. He was emphatically a hard-working, earnest, and resolute man, much looked up to in his own special avocation, and ever foremost in upholding and avowing the true principles of Freemasonry. He was an agreeable companion, a true brother, and a good friend. They were both types in their way of our active metropolitan and provincial Masonic life, and fully represent the energy, and steadfastness, and sterling worth of Freemasonry. They have both left in their respective spheres "pleasant memories" to those who survive, (a good deal, mind, for any of us to say,) and those of us who knew them both in lodge or chapter, or Provincial or Grand Lodge, may well to-day deeply regret that we shall hail their kindly presence, or listen to their familiar voice no more here, as we realize that the Masonic career is ended of John Savage and of James Franklin.

MASONIC CORRESPONDENCE.

Is it not very singular how very unmasonic all Masonic correspondence is apt to become? So marked is this fact, imprinted on the pages indelibly of all Masonic journalism, more or less, that one of the greatest difficulties which publishers of Masonic papers have to contend with, is the disposition of correspondents to "run riot," the habitual tendency to be personal, unmasonic, and even scurrilous. Is it not a strange phenomenon, we ask again, in the history of men, and in the annals of Freemasonry, that the "odium humanum" of our race is so strong in the Masonic body? And yet why is this? We profess to be "brethren of a mystic tie;" "brotherly love" is ever on our lips; we talk by the hour, and spin tremendous long yarns about philanthropy, benevolence, sympathy, toleration, charity; and yet the moment we run into print we become the most bitter, overbearing, and irate of men. Mournful inconsistency! Were it not, indeed, that the Masonic philosopher knows well the inherent weakness and littleness of human nature in all ages, under all circumstances, and in all earthly contingencies, he might be disposed to think, as somebody once foolishly said, that "there is nothing new, and nothing true, and that it does not at all signify." Now, we wish to give a little plain and outspoken advice to our brethren, which we trust they will take in good part. It is this—Never write personally if you possibly can help it. By this we mean, do not ever, if you are attacked, descend to the lower arena of "scribbling vulgarity." Do not damage a good cause by untoward personal reflections on your opponent; do not defend a weak cause by scurrilous repartee. In the first place, few subjects are worth the exposure of this ceaseless weakness of us all alike. We admit that often it is very difficult, "currente calamo," to restrain the burst of honest indignation, or the full force of effective retort. We feel that there are cases where the perverse disputant, the incompetent critic, or the thoroughly unmasonic scribe deserves famous old Wilson's "Ambrosian" treatment. And, no doubt, we will now add, such is the infirmity of the flesh, such the "lapsus calami," that even the most job-like of men, of editors, and of writers, may be induced warmly perhaps to expose the ignorance of the impertinent, to ridicule the presumption of the impostor, or to silence the virulence of the malignant. But yet, on the whole, it is, we feel, better for us as mortals, and especially as Masons, to cultivate the gentler graces of forbearance, and calmness, and consideration. Now and then "stern duty" calls us to speak out plainly, and plainly, no doubt, it is better for us to speak, and alike clearly and unmistakably at the same time. But nothing is gained, we feel, by violence of language, while everything is secured by moderation of expression. "A soft answer," our old Grand Master told us, "turneth away wrath," and still most true it is that the reply of geniality, or the turn of harmless chaff, or the half serious, half jocose rejoinder, has more effect than lines of reiterated violence, and the hopeless effusions of excited vulgarity. We therefore recommend to all our correspondents to improve their style, and "amend their vocabulary," all, we mean, who may think themselves aggrieved and "write in haste to repent at leisure." Somebody has said, that almost every man commits himself when he rushes into print, and we all know how some of the ablest of their kind look very small in the columns of a daily journal. As Freemasons we are bound to show to others that we really believe in what we profess, and that we wish to practise what we talk about so eloquently at times; and nothing does Freemasonry so much harm, or is such a stumbling-block in the way of the enlarged spread of Masonic journalism, as that unkindly spirit which, do what you will, creeps into our tolerant pages, together with those personal littlenesses which so often mark the bustling philanthropist, and the zealous Freemason.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

We are very glad to note the resolution unanimously agreed to by this important Scottish province, namely, to call the attention of their Grand Lodge, to the systematic violation of its own laws, in the common granting more than one degree in one night. We are quite convinced that if the Grand Lodge of Scotland will deal with the matter at once much good will arise to Scottish Freemasonry in every respect. If the Scottish Grand Lodge would place its law on the subject in exact accordance with that of the English Grand Lodge, which has worked so well, a step would be taken in advance, towards that identity of Masonic legislation, which we hope to see one day, sooner or later attained, between the two Grand Lodges. May we press upon our good Scottish brethren the advisability of one or two other like, and we have reason to believe, needed reforms? Surely the time has come to raise both the initiation and joining fee, to require an annual subscription, and to establish a capitation payment towards a Fund of Benevolence. We say nothing of the question of proxy Masters, because there are evidently two sides to the question, and we hardly feel ourselves competent to express a decided opinion on the subject. But if the three changes we venture to advocate, and the improvement suggested by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, be carried into effect, we confess we should think, the prospects of Scottish Freemasonry would look brighter for the future. We fear that if the Grand Lodge continues to maintain its "status quo," without any attempt to advance, or improve, or reform, it may have ere long to deal with a financial difficulty, and such a dilemma might be a severe strain on Scottish Freemasonry. We write, as we feel, in all sincere good will, and hearty sympathy for our brethren, and "Scotch Cousins" across the border. Knowing how many brethren of moral worth, social position, and Masonic excellence and intellectual calibre, are to be found in the ranks of Scottish Freemasonry, we desiderate only the safe development and the peaceful progress of the good old Order to which they belong. The valuable labours and original researches of Bro. D. M. Lyon have lately cast a new light on the past annals of our Scottish brotherhood, and we trust, by a judicious reform of evident anomalies, by a strengthening of weak points, incontestably in their Masonic system, theirs may be a pleasant and prosperous present state of Masonic life and activity, and a still increasing future of Masonic usefulness and Masonic reality.

NARROW ESCAPE OF BRO. SIR MICHAEL SHAW STEWART.

Intelligence has been received of the narrow escape from drowning, in the Bay of Biscay, of Bro. Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart., of Ardgowan, Lord Lieutenant of the county of Renfrew, and Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Scotland. About ten days ago Sir Michael left England in his steam yacht Chevalier, intending to spend the winter in the Mediterranean with the Lady Octavia and other members of his family. While passing through the Bay of Biscay, the yacht was caught in a fearful gale, and the sea running very high carried away the yacht's bulwarks, stove her bow, and swept the decks of boats and every moveable. The tiny vessel continued to labour fearfully for some time, when eventually the steering gear gave way, and she was for a length of time left perfectly helpless, indeed, those on board expected every moment the vessel would founder. After great exertions, however, the yacht was put about and reached Plymouth towards the end of last week, in a very crippled state. Sir Michael will now proceed overland to the Mediterranean,

THE CHEQUE BANK.

We are sorry to note in the money article of the "Times," always we may add worth reading, that there is a proposal to wind up the affairs of this very useful institution. We regret such a resolution and such a result for many reasons. We believe that the Cheque Bank has been found most helpful in the transmission of small sums, and for the payment of small accounts, and we believe that its undoubted value has been more and more appreciated by business firms, as time has passed on. We are assured by the head of a large firm of some hundred employes, that he uses it and finds its daily utility in a variety of ways, and as we understand it has surmounted its preliminary difficulties of establishment and confidence. We cannot but express our regret that such should be the decision, as the "Times" tells us, of a persevering minority. Is there no avoidance of such a resolution? Is there no resuscitation of the bank on another footing, and with other shareholders? It seems to us to involve a question of much personal interest and convenience to many business firms, and if we are correct in our assumptions we certainly cannot but express our regretful feelings that the convenience of the many should be sacrificed to the claims of the few.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"An enquiring M.M." may be interested to learn that he will not effect the object he seeks by taking the English Mark Degree. In America before he can visit a R.A. Chapter, he must have taken the three degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, and Most Excellent Master, (as I have done); and, if I am not much mistaken, he must have taken the Past Master's Degree, as well as that of the Mark, before he can enter a Scotch Royal Arch Chapter.

His remarks on the subject of "the English Masonic laws wanting mending on this point" are, I should conceive, the ideas of a very young Mason; probably when he is older, and when he has studied the subject, he will see cause to change his opinions.

Yours fraternally,

P.J.

JOINING MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Would you kindly in your next impression inform me and several brethren, whose vehicle I am, what is the status of a Past Master, or any other brother, holding the rank of a Warden, or who may have held that rank, when he joins a new lodge. Instances have frequently occurred in newly formed and other lodges where Past Masters and others who have held office have joined with the desire of taking office should an opportunity present itself, and after attending the lodge regularly and paying their subscriptions punctually, and possibly also rendering assistance as subordinate officers, they have been passed over by junior members. Upon them very naturally protesting, they have been told that initiates had priority of claim, although possibly they may have only been initiated into the Craft as many months as those they supplanted had been years. Fortunately these disagreeable cases do not always occur, but when they do they invariably create disappointment and dissatisfaction. I do not think that there is anything said about this matter in the Book of Constitutions, but there ought to be some recognized usage on the subject. Many good old Masons are deterred from becoming joining members of young lodges where their experience and abilities might be of great service, because of the uncertainty of their ever becoming principal officers; and being working Masons they do not care about subscribing to lodges for the sole purpose of becoming partakers of the pleasures of the Fourth Degree. In conclusion I will furnish an example which came under my personal knowledge. An I.P.M., upon the request of several members joined a new lodge which was greatly in need of experienced brethren, and in the course of time he attained the rank of S.D., and believed he was steadily and legitimately progressing towards the chair, but imagine his disappointment when the S.W., upon being elected W.M., appointed the J.D. to the J.W. chair, but considerably allowed him to retain his position of S.D. Upon his demanding an explanation, he was quietly informed by the W.M. that the J.D. being an initiate of the lodge was entitled to reach the chair first. The young Mason thus honoured was I believe qualified in every respect for the Warden's chair, but as he had only been a Mason a very short time, and owed his prominent position in the lodge to a chapter of accidents, it appeared so great an injustice to the S.D., who had worked so energetically and zealously to further its interests, that he immediately resigned, although the members of the lodge, with one or two exceptions, were unanimously of opinion that the W.M. had displayed too great a partiality, and did all they could to induce him to remain. By kindly affording any information on this question you will greatly oblige

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE AND MASONIC JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In to-day's "Freemason" a M.M., Bristol, asks for "the strict Masonic law" respecting the legality of a S.W., in the absence of the W.M., initiating a candidate. I do not presume to be able to give it, but Dr. Oliver, in his work on Masonic jurisprudence, when writing of the "Powers of a Warden," says:—"The Constitutions provide, 'in the Master's absence the I.P.M., or, if he be absent, the S.P.M. of the lodge present shall take the chair. And if no past Master of the lodge be present, then the Senior Warden, or in his absence the Junior Warden, shall rule the lodge.'"

By this law it is clearly intended that during the temporary or permanent absence of the Master, as the case may be, the Senior Warden may summon the lodge, but not rule it if there be a P.M. present. In such a case the S.W., although competent to rule the lodge, ought not to assume the Master's chair, in which he has not been installed, but to occupy a seat in front of or to the right of it, in accordance with the practice of Grand Lodge, as a token of his incompetency to perform the highest rites of the Craft, because the chair is for installed Masons only, and no initiations can be legally performed from any other place in the lodge. If these premises be correct, it follows, as a matter of course, that, being a mere locum tenens, he has no power to initiate, pass, or raise—for the terms "rule a lodge" do not embrace the privilege of admitting candidates. In a case of extreme emergency, however, the conferring of degrees by a Warden, in the absence of any P.M. or actual Master, would not be held absolutely illegal, though highly undesirable.

Respecting Masonic jewels, I have a letter before me, dated 23rd June, 1875, from our worthy and respected Grand Secretary, Bro. Hervey, in which he says:—"I am not aware of any jewels authorised to be worn, save the Charity Jewel, especially sanctioned by the Grand Master, and such jewels of past officers as are named in the Book of Constitutions. A lodge cannot adopt a distinctive jewel without the express authority of the Grand Master, and very few lodges, I should think scarcely half-a-dozen, enjoy that privilege. The indiscriminate wearing of jewels is not permitted, and if it were, would lead to much abuse." Dr. Oliver admits, in the work referred to above, that "there is some difficulty in understanding the question of honorary jewels," but after a perusal of Bro. Hervey's letter, I should imagine that difficulty would exist no longer. Seeing a brother's breast bedizened with a multiplicity of jewels is anything but pleasing to the eye, or satisfactory to the judgment of the truly zealous Mason, because it appears to fix attention on the trappings of the Craft, and prevent many brethren, who might otherwise become bright Masons, from penetrating more deeply into the rich mine of knowledge which is open to their researches by an erroneous impression that Freemasonry is something like gilt gingerbread, with all its glittering treasures spread over its surface.

Apologising for the length of this, believe me, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JAMES A. HAYES.

NUMBERS OF LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On the 6th July, 1863, fourteen years ago, a circular was sent to all lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England who were affected by it, altering their numbers, so as to fill up the blanks caused by the suspension or voluntary surrender of warrants by many lodges that had ceased to exist. On this occasion Lodge Repose, Derby, which was then nearly the junior lodge, rose from 1104 to 803, a difference of 301.

It may perhaps interest your readers to learn that at the present time there are 111 vacancies in the roll of lodges, and I would, with all deference, suggest to the Board of General Purposes, and to the Grand Secretary, that the course pursued in 1863 should be again carried out, in which case the present junior lodge, No. 1574, would become No. 1463. I would further suggest that, as the number of lodges increases so rapidly—no less than 150 warrants having been granted in 1874, and fifty more already in 1875—that this might be done before any new warrants are granted, so that any lodge warrant granted after the warrant of Lodge 1574 might bear its real number, 1464, instead of 1575. I enclose a list of the missing numbers to verify my statement.

Yours fraternally,

COCKER.

A QUESTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Who is the Bro. William Watson to whom the large sum of £250 has been granted by the last Board of Benevolence? Is he the same brother who has previously received grants? and does he still sit and vote in Grand Lodge?

Yours enquiringly,

THE ALEXANDRA PALACE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

On my return to town this day, after a somewhat prolonged absence, I find, among other matters requiring attention, a query from a "Master Mason," in the last issue of the "Freemason," respecting the Alexandra Palace Lodge. The Master Mason "has always understood it to be quite contrary to Masonic law for the S.W. to act as W.M., and perform the ceremonies;" and having read that at a recent meeting of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, in the absence of the W.M. (myself), the S.W. took the chair, initiated a candidate, and presided at the banquet, a "Master Mason" asks whether such a course was "correct." My answer on behalf of the lodge is, "Yes, perfectly correct under the circumstances, for the Senior Warden of the Alexandra Palace Lodge kindly undertook the duties of the chair at my request, and he Bro. Kelly King, P.G.S., is an old and experienced Past Master." I may add that the Alexandra Palace Lodge contains among its officers several notably able Past Masters in the Craft, and that its "work" is never likely to suffer from the unavoidable absence of

P.S.—I should perhaps explain to a "Master Mason" that the Alexandra Palace Lodge is in the first year of its existence, and that there are consequently no Past Masters of the lodge itself.

TEW AND PERROTT v. BINCKES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Freemason," Oct. 23rd, you insert a letter from Bro. Binckes, dated Oct. 16th, 1875, in which occurs the following:—"The insinuation is palpable, and what I complain of is that Mr. Tew, &c., and again—"In opposition to the views of Messrs. Tew and Perrott, &c., and four times afterwards in the same letter he speaks of Mr. Perrott. I submit, therefore, that your stricture would have been more appropriately applied to Bro. Binckes, seeing that he committed the first offence. In fairness to Bros. Tew and Perrott I ask you to insert this in your next issue.

I am, yours fraternally,

MASONIC HALFPENNY TOKENS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In looking over a Masonic relic published in November, 1794, I find the following account of the token in question. The engravings are in good preservation, and your correspondent "T. F." is quite correct as to the animals being beavers. I will try to get our W.M. to make a copy of them, and will send it for your further information.

Yours fraternally,

A MEMBER OF 1089.

"MASONIC TOKENS.—In the course of the past month some copper pieces, newly struck from a die which appears to be executed in a style superior to any of the provincial coins at present in circulation, came to the hands of the proprietor of this magazine. On inspection they appear to be called Masonic Tokens, and to have been invented by a brother who intended them to serve as pocket pieces; but, either from the novelty of the idea or the excellence of the workmanship, it would appear that many persons have been content to receive them in change as halfpence, in the same manner as the Liverpool, Norwich, Lancaster, Anglesey, Bungay, Macclesfield, Leak, Manchester, Coventry, &c., coins have acquired credit and currency."

ELECTION OF W.M. 1458, MANCHESTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your issue of November 20th, contains a report (so-called) of the regular meeting of the Lodge of Truth, held at the Royal Archer, Dale-st, Manchester, on the 6th inst. I think that the portion referring to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year requires a little modification, especially when the title of Lodge 1458 is considered—"The Lodge of Truth." Your report states that, to the surprise of many, the J.W. was elected in preference to the S.W. The surprise, I believe, was confined to few, twenty-two members being present, and the ballot being as follows:—Bro. Charles J. Kent, J.W., 17; Charles Pearson, S.W., and W.M. of 1077, 3; Thomas Tyers, P.M. and Treas., 1; John Kinder, P.M. and S., 1. Bro. Kent was therefore elected by a great majority. Prior to the ballot being taken, Bro. Pearson, S.W., reminded the members that he held the office of W.M. in the Wilton Lodge, 1077, and that on the event of his being elected W.M. of 1458, a dispensation would have to be procured in order for him to act; he did not wish to influence the ballot in any way, but considered it justice to the lodge to mention the fact. This fact, however, is not included in the report sent you; therefore, a stranger to the lodge would infer that our truly Masonic brother, Bro. Pearson, S.W., was not in favour with the junior members of 1458. Such, however, is not the case, he is admired by all, and would certainly have been elected W.M., had there not have been an uncertainty with respect to the granting of a dispensation, a grant which has seldom been allowed in East Lancashire. The "junior members" of a junior lodge (query, Who are the seniors? the lodge being not yet three years old) have not been at complimented in the report sent you. They are charged with not studying the interests of the lodge, making the election a personal matter, and looking for preferment by disposing of the S.W. Such remarks are not Masonic, and will tend to diminish, instead of increase, a desire for Masonic knowledge. I have no hesitation in saying that Bro. Pearson, S.W., would have been elected without one opposing vote, had not the difficulty of a dispensation have presented itself. Bro. Kent, J.W., is now W.M. elect. He has filled the J.W.'s chair ably, and, to the satisfaction, I think, of all, and I doubt not, after a little working, he will be as efficient in the chair of K.S. I trust the disparaging remarks referred to may not impoverish his zeal; or that of the members in the majority—the juniors. By inserting this somewhat lengthy letter you will oblige. I would attach my real name, but by so doing might be termed an office seeker. I therefore subscribe myself,

Fraternally yours,

A JUNIOR MEMBER.

AN OLD JEWEL.

A small jewel has been forwarded to us to ascertain its real meaning. It is in gold, in form of a shield with an apostle, with the halo of glory round his head, holding in his hands a scroll, on which is a cross. Behind him stands a lion, and on a raised ground in the left hand corner are the square and compasses. The whole is suspended to a red hanger by a triangle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: Indigestion.—Dreary November is proverbial for its unpleasantness, which may lead directly to disease, unless some tonic like these Pills be occasionally taken to sustain the appetite and relish for food. In all cases of indigestion, producing weariness, low spirits, palpitation, and feverishness, these famous Pills should be resorted to as the gentlest and surest corrective of the stomach, the best antidotes to its ailments. These Pills dispel the cause of dyspepsia. Every one afflicted with it may rejoice at the safe and satisfactory results, which can be secured at so small a charge as the purchase of a box of Holloway's Pills. They purify, strengthen, and remedy imperfect development of growth and health in young persons.—ADVT.

"KALENDAR FÜR FREIMAURER." BRO. C. VAN DALEN. Leipzig: Bro. J. G. Findel.

We welcome this well-known and useful little Germanic vade mecum, as put forth by our worthy Bro. C. Van Dalen, Berlin, and by our well-known and able Bro. J. G. Findel. From it we are annually enabled to obtain accurate statistics of German Freemasonry, and through its well arranged pages we learn the progress amid the "Deutsch-sprechender Volk" of our valuable and cosmopolitan Craft. There are some minor points of difference, as to detail and ritual, as between Teutonic and Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry and each has special observances or systematic peculiarities, which each deems to be preferable to the other's. But there is, nevertheless, much of "ähnlichkeit," to use a German word, between our Masonic system and teaching and theirs; the one essential difference being (we speak of Craft Masonry), the completing grade of the R.A. with us, of which in Germany they know but little, that is, actively, in usual work. But despite the foolish attack of some heated writers, some angry and agitated Ultramontane complainants, we believe that as a general rule German Freemasonry, like ours in Great Britain, is entirely free from political proclivities, or religious discussions. Like us, German Freemasons accept and believe in the great principles of toleration and philanthropy, of liberty of conscience and freedom of belief, of the due cultivation of the intellectual faculties, and yet of the encouragement of religious aspirations. Like ours, German Freemasonry is expansive and cosmopolitan, and accepts all who, in a spirit of universal comprehension for the purpose of humanitarian work and sympathy, accept a theistic avowal of faith and truth, and openly acknowledge the great Architect and Creator of all. We therefore gladly hail once again Bro. Van Dalen's useful Masonic compendium and companion, and beg especially to call the attention of our many German brethren in England to its utility and information.

"FREEMASONRY, ITS SECRECY, &c." AN Oration by Bro. the REV. THOMAS RUSSELL, P.P.G.C. Oxon, and J.G.W. Devon, and W.M. of the Lodge of Benevolence, Bideford, 489. Delivered at Bideford, Oct. 13th, 1875.

We have perused our Rev. Bro.'s oration with much pleasure, and we gladly commend it to the notice of the Craft. It appears to us to be an able refutation of the common fallacy which exists in all the arguments of the "perverse disputant," respecting the secrecy of Freemasonry: At the same time we say this, we feel bound to express our opinion that as the objection to a secret society can only really arise from its being illegal by the laws of the land, in Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, and in most countries happily now, such an objection becomes "a fabella exoleta" altogether. A religious body no doubt might say to its adherents, "I make it a term of communion that you do not belong to any secret society," but then that is only laying down a subjective if abstract enunciation of work or duty, and seeking to make it objective, as religious bodies often have done, and probably will often do again. The Roman Catholics assert that there is an objection to Freemasonry from its secrecy, arising out of what they term the natural law of right, &c., as between man and man, but that we believe to be utterly untenable. We also accept Bro. Russell's definition of the true position of Freemasonry as regards religious truth, and quite agree with him that Freemasonry, though it assumes a position of absolute neutrality, by no means proclaims its indifference to religious truth, inasmuch as, though not professing to teach religion absolutely, it bases all its moral enunciations, whether of decorum or duty, on the very word of God. We are happy to think that many of our clergy are now beginning to recognize the arguments put forth by the friends of Freemasonry, and to see that Freemasonry, though not religion, is ever friendly to religion; and that the accusations of indifference utterly fail in this, that they do not touch the self-evident truism, that Freemasonry need not be indifferent because it does not pronounce an opinion on matters beyond its scope and its constitution.

CONSECRATION OF THE ELLINGTON LODGE, No. 1566, AT MAIDENHEAD.

Wednesday, the 10th inst., witnessed the inauguration of a new Masonic Lodge, bearing the name of the "The Ellington Lodge," and ranking as No. 1566, in the rising town of Maidenhead. The ceremony was fixed for 2.30 p.m., and by that hour the brethren interested in the formation of the lodge assembled at the Bell Hotel, where they were joined by others, who had come many of them from a distance, to assist in the inaugural ceremonies; in addition to brethren from London, the neighbouring Lodges Etonian and Windsor Castle, Windsor, Union and Greyfriars, Reading, the Wycombe and St. John's, Maidenhead, were well represented. The ceremonies of constitution and consecration were undertaken by the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Berks and Bucks, who, in the course of the proceedings, delivered an impressive address on a subject sufficiently important to brethren at large to warrant a report in extenso. He remarked—It has always been the peculiar characteristic of English Freemasonry to avoid carefully all interference in political matters. The Pro Grand Master of England, at the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, emphatically asserted this fact. "In some countries," he said, "it has been unfortunately the lot of Freemasonry to find itself allied with faction and intrigue—with what I may call the darker side of politics. In England this has been signally the reverse." His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales fully accepted and endorsed the sentiments of the Pro Grand Master. "As long," he said, "as Freemasonry keeps itself from being mixed up with politics, so long will, I am sure, this great and ancient Order flourish." With these assertions, made publicly by the two leading rulers of the Craft, it becomes our duty, surely, to guard this peculiar landmark of our Order, to watch carefully any danger that may seem to affect it. I do think that in our intercourse—our fraternal intercourse—with foreign Grand Lodges we must not forget the words of our Pro Grand Master. It cannot be denied that in some foreign countries to be a Freemason is practically always to be a member of one particular party. So long as and wheresoever this is the case, there must be a wide difference between our principles and those of our foreign brethren. The Grand Lodge of England acts very wisely in her intercourse with foreign Grand Lodges; she receives their representatives, and is represented at their meetings; but this must not be construed into an endorsement of the principles by which, in many matters, those foreign Grand Lodges are actuated. Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen did not commit herself to a despotic line of policy by her public reception of the Shah of Persia. The representative of the Sultan is received at the Court of St. James, but our country does not thereby accept the principles of Turkish finance, and so our Most Worshipful Grand Master by the reception of a deputation from the Grand Orient of Italy at his installation, did not endorse, or give any opinion on the policy of that Grand Lodge. It is very important to keep these facts before our minds, as there are not wanting indications that some Masons in this country are desirous of a closer union between us and foreign Masons, a union, in my humble opinion, likely to interfere with our non-political character, and so to alienate from our ranks those whom we can ill afford to lose. Many of us can labour heartily and conscientiously for the Craft as it is worked in England; we shall be forced to re-consider our position if we are more closely identified with the Grand Orients of Italy or France. I heartily trust that those words of our Grand Master and of our Pro Grand Master which I have quoted may be long treasured and remembered by English Masons, may be a warning and an incitement to us to preserve always pure and unsullied the genuine precepts and principles of the Craft.

We have only to add that the whole of the inaugural ceremony was conducted in a most efficient and impressive manner, and that the musical arrangements were in the hands of Bro. Tolley, of Windsor.

Subsequently W. Bro. Brownrigg installed the Worshipful Master, W. Bro. William B. Farr, 825, Bengal, who, in turn, invested the following brethren with their insignia of office, viz.; W. Bro. J. Fuller, S.W.; Bro. J. J. Britton, J.W.; W. Bro. H. H. Hodges, Sec.; Bro. H. Turner, Treas.; and Bro. H. H. Durrant, I.G. The proposition of a long list of candidates for initiation closed the proceedings.

In the evening the members of the new lodge and their visitors sat down to an admirable banquet at the Bell Hotel. After the removal of the cloth the Worshipful Master proposed "The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master," and other loyal and Masonic toasts, not omitting that of "The Visitors." "The Health of the Worshipful Master, and Success to the Ellington Lodge," followed, and was responded to by the W. Master, who said that after the delay and difficulty that had been experienced he was rejoiced to see the lodge really formed. He was confident that, in addition to the long list of names read, many others would join their ranks, "but," he added, "let us each be careful who we introduce to the privileges of our Order, so that we may reckon our strength not so much by our muster roll as by the individual worth of our members; let us so guard our lodge that, from the foundation laid to-day may a superstructure be raised perfect in its parts and honourable to its builders."

In closing our notice of the banquet we must not forget to add that the singing and accompaniments of Bros. Tolley and Videon Harding were warmly applauded.

CONSECRATION OF A MASONIC HALL AT RUTHERGLEN.

The consecration of St. John's Masonic Hall, built by the members of St. John's Operative Lodge, No. 347, took place on Friday evening, the 12th inst., in due form, by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Renfrewshire, East.

The lodge was opened at 7.30 p.m. by Bro. John Cunningham, R.W.M., supported by his office-bearers as follows:—Bros. Wm. Gardner, I.P.M.; Samuel Abbot, D.M.; David Smart, S.M.; John Murdoch, S.W.; Thomas Alston, J.W.; Alex. Warnock, Sec.; Wm. Miller, Treas.; Wm. Young, S.D.; Thomas Brodie, J.D.; And. Pearson, Chaplain; Matthew Abbot, P.G.S.; James Ritchie, S.S.; and Wm. McKemmie, I.G. There were deputations from the several lodges in the province, as also from the lodges in Glasgow and neighbouring provinces. In all, there would be no less than about 350 brethren present, and the holding capacity of the hall, which for all ordinary occasions is more than ample, was taxed almost beyond its utmost. The following R.W. Masters were present:—Bros. A. B. Thorburn, Kilwinning, 4, Glasgow; David Anderson, Cambslang, 114, Royal Arch; William Ferguson, Rutherglen, 116, Royal Arch; David Allen, Pollokshaws, 153, Royal Arch; Joseph Singleton, Scotia, 178; John Morgan, Star, 219; R. M. Yuill, Shamrock and Thistle, 275; J. B. Macnair, Union, 332; Alexander Thomson, St. George, 333; James Anderson, Renfrew County Kilwinning, 370, Paisley; William Harper, Clyde, 408; George Glen, Prince of Wales, 426, Renfrew; David Reid, St. Andrew's, 465; William Ferguson, St. John's, 543, Dalmaur; and Wm. Phillips, Clydesdale, 556, and others; also a large number of Past Masters and other office-bearers from the respective lodges.

The brethren having all assembled, the R.W.M. then informed them that the office-bearers of the Provincial Grand Lodge were now in waiting, and requested all to be upstanding.

The P.G.L. then entered, and was received with the accustomed honours. The deputation consisted of Bros. Colonel Archibald, C. Campbell, of Blythswood, R.W. Provincial Grand Master; Lieut.-Col. Reid, of Gallowflat, acting Depute P.G.M.; Ex-Baillie James Caldwell, of Paisley, P.G.S.W.; James Gilmour, P.G.J.W.; Rev. George Campbell, acting P.G. Chaplain; L. R. Henderson, P.G. Sec.; James B. Lamb, P.G. Architect; John Carswell, P.G.M.C.; Ex-Baillie John Fisher, P.G.B.B.; James Buchan, P.G.S.B.;

Alexander McPherson, P.G.S.B.; Andrew Wallace, P.G.S.D.; and Joseph Forrest, P.G. Inner Guard. Having taken their seats on and around the dias, the R.W.M. (Bro. Cunningham) in due form handed over his mallet to and vacated his chair in favour of the P.G. Master, which the latter similarly accepted, and, on the formal request of the R.W.M., proceeded to the work of consecration, the programme of the ceremonial being that authorised by Grand Lodge of Scotland, with slight modifications, and including a brief address by the P.G. Master, having reference mainly to the wonderful corroboration of the Bible narratives of the early history of the world, which have recently been found as the result of Egyptian and Ninevite explorations by Mr. Smith, of the British Museum, and others. In concluding, he said that having dedicated that lodge hall to the Almighty, and recognising Him in the proceedings throughout, they should remember in their lives that he was always looking at them. They had all got to do their duty in this world, but their souls were not bound down to the earth, and he believed that when the Almighty called them to the Grand Lodge above they would find that it would not be a vague, purposeless existence there, but much more active than this, and they would look back and wonder how they could have loved this so much when they should see the glory that should be in the future. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master then declared the hall consecrated to the purposes of Freemasonry, and, in handing back the mallet to the R.W.M., said he felt that he was returning it to a brother who would support all the objects of Freemasonry, who would be an honour to his lodge, and a blessing to the Craft. (Applause.)

The R.W.M. said he had now, in the name of Lodge 347, to return the P.G.M. their heartfelt thanks for his kindness in officiating at the consecration. Before going to refreshment, he added, there was a duty which he thought they ought to perform there and then, and he had therefore much pleasure in proposing that honorary affiliation to the lodge should be bestowed upon the Acting Depute P.G.M., Bro. Lieut.-Col. Reid, and the office-bearers of the P.G.L., whom they had that night with them. The proposal having been carried by acclamation, the brethren in question assembled round the altar, and were obligated accordingly at the hands of the R.W. Master. By command of the R.W.M. the J.W. then transferred the lodge from labour to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, as also that of "The Three Grand Lodges," were given from the chair and duly honoured.

The Chairman next proposed "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Renfrewshire (East)," coupled with the name of the R.W.P.G.M. In so doing he said they ought to be proud of such a Master, who not only occupied the highest position in his province, but, as they were aware, had been recently visited by Royalty. (Applause.)

The R.W.P.G.M., in acknowledging the compliment, said that nothing had given him greater pleasure than to be able to preside at meetings of that kind, accompanied, he would say, by his Provincial Grand Lodge, because he had always found that when he made a mistake they were able to correct him. With regard to the reference made by the R.W.M. as to his lately having had a distinguished guest staying with him, he desired to say a word. He had seen it stated that the visit of Prince Leopold to Blythswood, was done with an ulterior object. Before them all, he declared that there was no truth in that whatever. He (the speaker) had no more notion a month or two before that event, that His Royal Highness was coming to Blythswood than they had that he was going to come into this lodge. The sole reason of the visit was the Prince's friendship with his (the speaker's) brother, whom he desired to visit, and, when that wish was expressed, it was simply his duty to acquiesce. In concluding, the P.G.M. stated that he had heard from Prince Leopold himself that his reception in Renfrewshire had caused him the liveliest delight, and the deepest and greatest satisfaction. (Applause.)

coupled with the name of Bro. Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M. No. 116.

"The Chairman," proposed in eloquent terms by Bro. J. B. Macquair, R.W.M. No. 332, was modestly acknowledged by Bro. Cunningham, and others. We should state that the musical portion of the consecration ceremonial was rendered by a vocal choir, under the conduct of Bro. John Miller, Dir. of Music, P.G.L. of Glasgow, and that the routine of toasts subsequently was agreeably relieved by song and recitation, contributed by Bros. Allen, Wm. Niven, 27, and others. As a description of the building has already appeared in the columns of the "Freemason," when the memorial stone was laid with Masonic honours by Bro. John Cunningham, R.W.M., in the month of March last, it will suffice to repeat here that it is a substantial stone and brick structure, the main hall being 40 feet by 30 feet, inside measurement, with an 18 feet ceiling, that the ventilation and lighting are each unusually excellent, and that when the painter and decorator have finished their share of the work it will be in most essentials the finest Masonic temple in the west of Scotland.

CORNISH FACTS AND NOTIONS.

The next Provincial Grand meeting of the Cornish Masons will, in all probability, be held at Falmouth. Eleven years have passed since a Grand Lodge was held in that town. The new Mayor (Bro. Webber) is the M.W. of the Falmouth Lodge, "Love and Honour," No. 75. It is likely that before long a Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the Province of Cornwall will be formed, as the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe is the Provincial Grand Superintendent nominate. There are now eight active chapters in Cornwall for this degree, and one dormant, Royal Arch Masonry having been practised in the province for nearly a century. Chapters meet in Penzance, Truro, Liskeard, Tywardreath, St. Day, St. Germans, Hayle, and St. Austell. The old chapter at Falmouth, which is dormant, is likely to be soon restored.

Many have tried to compile a list of Masonic lodges in existence at the time of the union in 1813, but have failed, until in 1875 it had fallen to the lot of that exceptionally zealous and distinguished Mason, Bro. W. J. Hughan, of Truro, who is a Masonic author of great repute, to accomplish this difficult task. The difficulty of its compilation has been much increased because of the paucity of the materials from which the information has been gleaned. A complete list of all lodges in existence at the union of the "Ancients" and "Moderns," or the "Regular" and "Athol Masons," is given, with subsequent alterations, and he also shows those in existence at the present time. There were nine Cornish lodges in existence at the time of the union. "Love and Honour," Falmouth, was warranted in 1751. Then its number was 110, now it is 75. In 1869 a centennial warrant was granted to it. Next comes "Druids," Redruth, No. 127 at the union, now 589. The warrant is dated 1754. The lodge became extinct about 1830, but was renewed under a new warrant. The "Mount Sinai," Penzance, was warranted in 1771, was numbered 200 at the time of the union, and is now 121 under a new warrant granted in 1813. The "Fortitude," Truro, follows in order. At the union it was numbered 213, having been warranted in 1772. It is described in the official calendars and documents as "In Royal Regiment of Cornish Miners," and was transferred to a civil lodge under a warrant dated 1826. Coming next was the "Unity," Falmouth, which was warranted about the year 1780, was 244 on the register at the union, and became extinct about 1830. The "Three Grand Principles," Penryn, was warranted in 1799, and was numbered 596 at the time of the union. About 1830 it became extinct, but was revived by a new warrant, numbered 970. Succeeding is the "True and Faithful," Helston, 76 years old; "One and All," Bodmin, 65 years old, and at the time it was warranted (1810) it was numbered 625, and was described as "Royal Cornwall Lodge in Cornwall Regiment of Militia" (Cornwall Rangers). It was afterwards changed to a civil lodge, and is now No. 330. The "Phoenix," Truro, is of the same age, was numbered 627 at the union, but is now registered 331. There are now over 1500 lodges under the Grand Lodge of England. At the time of the union there were 647 lodges. Of them 339 exist under the Grand Lodge of England, the remainder having joined other lodges or ceased to exist. We may add that this list is published for private circulation, and is an appendix to Bro. Hughan's "Memorials of the Union," issued last year, and now out of print.—"Western Morning News."

Obituary.

BRO. JAMES FRANKLIN.

Bro. James Franklin, whose loss we have to deplore, was a well-known solicitor in Halifax, and a member of the leading firm of Messrs. Stocks and Franklin. He was an active and much respected citizen. Bro. Franklin was an ardent Freemason, and in the long roll of surviving members of the Ancient Lodge of Probity he stood ninth on the list, having been initiated in 1849. In 1854 he was elected Master of the lodge. He also became a member of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and in that served as Grand Warden. He was also a Past Principal of the chapter and P.P.G. officer in the P.G. chapter of West Yorkshire. He was interred on Saturday, the 13th inst., amid many regrets, and he will long be remembered by his brethren in Freemasonry.

BRO. J. CHAMBERS, P.G. CHAPLAIN, PENNSYLVANIA.

We deeply regret to have to record the death of Bro. Rev. John Chambers, Grand Chaplain of both the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania. Bro. Chambers died, however, full of years and full of honours—having well spent a long life. Bro. Chambers was admitted a member of Lodge No. 51, of Pennsylvania, on May 22, 1851. On April 17, 1856, he was exalted a Royal Arch Mason, in Oriental Chapter, No. 183. He was created a Knight Templar in St. John's Commandery, No. 4, and upon the formation of Kadosh Commandery, No. 29, he was one of its charter members. In all of these relations he was beloved and respected by his brethren and companions.

"The report of the Board of General Purposes, to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:—

"The Board of General Purposes have to report that they have taken into consideration a complaint of two members of the Blackheath Lodge, No. 1320, Blackheath, to the effect that on the 17th day of June last the W.M. elect was installed without the previous confirmation of the minutes. And further, that on the 15th day of July the lodge was opened before the time named in the summons. After a long investigation of the facts of the case and hearing the evidence, the Board decided that the specific charges made were not proved. As however great laxity appeared to have prevailed in recording the minutes of the lodge, the Board admonished the Master to be more careful in future in seeing that the proceedings of the lodge were duly and properly recorded, reminding him that although the Secretary was the proper person to take the minutes, the Master was at all times responsible for their being correctly entered.

(Signed) "JOHN B. MONCKTON, President."

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 12th day of November instant, shewing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3436 19s. 2d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

The appeal of Bro. Robert Levingstone, of the Lodge Orion in the West, No. 415, Poona, against the decision of the District Grand Master of Bombay, that Bro. Braine was eligible to be elected the Master of Lodge No. 415.

N.B.—The papers relating to this appeal will be in the Grand Secretary's Office till the meeting of Grand Lodge, and open for the inspection of the brethren during office hours.

Report of a special meeting of the Governors and subscribers of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, held at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday, the 10th day of November, 1875, will be laid before Grand Lodge, and the following proposed alterations of the rules which were then agreed to will, in accordance with the laws of the institution, be submitted for the approval of Grand Lodge, viz:—

To add to Clause 19, page 10 of the rules and regulations, after the words "Serving the Stewardship," and as a new paragraph, the following:—

"Every Steward at the anniversary festival who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his personal donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50."

And also to expunge from the same clause the following:—

"If unaccompanied with a personal donation, but by means of his services, not less than £20 shall be paid to the funds, he shall be entitled to one additional vote for every subsequent Stewardship."

That the law as altered now read thus:—

"A Life Governor who has served the office of Steward at the anniversary festival and subscribed £10 or upwards shall, on every occasion of subsequent service of such office, if accompanied with a similar donation, be entitled to four votes; if accompanied with a donation of £5, to two extra votes. A donor, who has qualified as a Life Governor and afterwards served the office of Steward at the anniversary festival, and qualifies again as a Life Governor, shall be entitled to the same number of votes as if he had paid both at the time of serving the Stewardship."

"Every Steward at the anniversary festival who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his personal donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50."

Notice of motion:—By Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain:—

"That the sum of one hundred guineas be granted by this Grand Lodge in aid of the Palestine Exploration Fund, with the view of promoting the continued prosecution of the interesting and important work of exploring the ancient landmarks of the Holy Land."

The Prov. G. Chapter was then opened in form by E. Comp. John Hervey, G.S.E., and the officers of Prov. G. Chapter. The roll of Prov. G. Chapters was called. The roll of Present and Past G. Officers was called.

The minutes of Prov. G. Chapter, holden at Halifax May 20th, 1874, were presented for confirmation, when it was moved by Comp. John Wordsworth, seconded by Comp. C. L. Mason, and resolved, that the "minutes be taken as read." Moved by Comp. Wordsworth, and seconded by Comp. W. J. Beck, and resolved, "That the minutes be confirmed."

E. Comp. John Hervey, G.S.E., who was warmly greeted, addressed the chapter, briefly explaining the reason for his occupying the chair, and the special duty he had undertaken to discharge.

Comp. S. N. announced that Comp. Bentley Shaw, P.P.G. H., was at the door, asking to be admitted for the purpose of being installed. E. Comp. John Hervey directed that Comp. Bentley Shaw should send in his patent. The Prov. G. Registrar examined and read the patent.

E. Comp. Z. then directed the following deputation to retire and introduce the Prov. G. Superintendent nominate:—E. Comps. John Fisher, 61; John Wordsworth, 154; James Hunter, 208; John Booth, 258; W. W. Widdop, 275; Wm. Smith, 290; Manoa Rhodes, 302; Thomas Hill, 302; Thos. Schofield, 306; John Gill, 495. Comp. Bentley Shaw, G. Superintendent nominate, was then introduced and presented by E. Comp. Manoa Rhodes.

The greeting was of so warm a character that it was some time before the ceremony could be proceeded with. E. Comp. Z. then addressed the G.S. nominate, and heartily congratulated him on his appointment, which he was happy to find was so acceptable to the province, for had he ever doubted the propriety of the selection, the warmth of the reception must have in one moment dispelled it. E. Comp. the P.G. Superintendent nominate was then placed in the centre, and took upon himself the obligation attached to the office: he was then invested with the collar and jewel, and the sceptre placed in his hands, and in each instance suitable addresses were given. The G.S. was then placed on the throne, amidst the cheers and applause of a crowded chapter. The G.S., in most feeling terms, endeavoured adequately to thank the installing officer, E. Comp. John Hervey, G.S.E., for having as the representative of the Grand Superintendent, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., installed him. His admirable address to the companions also was listened to with feelings of deep respect and admiration, and repeatedly applauded.

The G.S. then appointed E. Comps. T. W. Tew, P.Z. 495, H., and Henry Day, P.Z. 208, J., who were accordingly installed and addressed by E. Comp. John Hervey, G.S.E.

The G.S. then appointed and invested the following officers:—

Moved by E. Comp. W. W. Weddop, seconded by E. Comp. T. Ruddock, and unanimously resolved, "That E. Comp. John Fisher be re-elected Treasurer, and that the best thanks of this Prov. G. Chapter be accorded to him for his past services."

The G. Superintendent then addressed the Prov. G. Chapter, concluding his remarks by moving, "That the best thanks of this Prov. G. Chapter be given to Comp. John Hervey, G.S.E., for attending here to perform the ceremony of installation at this inclement season." Seconded by E. Comp. T. W. Tew, supported by E. Comp. Henry Day, J., and carried unanimously.

The Grand Superintendent then proposed a cordial vote of thanks to the Chapter Three Grand Principals, 208, for the sumptuous manner in which they had received and entertained Prov. G. Chapter at their own cost. E. Comp. J. Wordsworth seconded the proposition, which was unanimously carried. E. Comp. C. E. Rhodes, in the absence of E. Comp. James Hunter, feelingly replied.

E. Comp. W. F. Smithson, Z. 289, invited the Prov. G. Supt. to hold the next chapter in Leeds, under the Banner of Fidelity, No. 289, at the Masonic Hall, Carlton Hill, to which he acceded.

The Prov. G. Chapter was then closed in due form at 5.30 p.m.

The companions repaired to the banquet hall, where refreshments were served, preparations having been made for 100, and about that number sat down. After the banquet numerous loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and a most harmonious evening spent.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of Subscribers to this school was held in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Lieut. Col. Creaton, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Thomas Massa, Thomas W. White, L. Ruf, Hyde Pullen, Griffiths Smith, Robt. B. Webster, Walter Wellman, Wm. Paas, H. M. Levy, H. Massey, "Freemason;" Robt. Kenyon, Benj. Head, H. A. Dubois, Dr. Ramsay, Wm. Jones, A. H. Diaper, and R. Wentworth Little, Secretary.

After the preliminary business of the Committee had been transacted, the Secretary read the schemes which had been submitted to the Special Committee to consider the enlargement of the school building, and announced that the Special Committee had determined to recommend Col. Creaton's suggestion to build a large hall with dormitories capable of accommodating 94 children, to erect a covered way between the old and new building, and to erect larger laundries at the end of the grounds.

The Chairman having said a few words, explaining the advantages of his plan, and stated that the cost would be under £20,000.

Bro. Kenyon proposed as an amendment the purchase of land at Sunninghill, and the erection of a building there, whole cost not to be more than £12,000.

The Chairman ruled, on Bro. H. A. Dubois suggestion, that the amendment of Bro. Kenyon must be moved at the Quarterly or Special Court.

Bro. Head proposed, and Bro. Dubois seconded the adoption of Lt. Col. Creaton's scheme for recommendation to the Quarterly Court, and the motion having been carried, the brethren proceeded with the remaining business, and placed four candidates on next election list.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The new Masonic Temple at Albany, N.Y., was dedicated on the 8th September. It was a memorable occasion; the largest assembly of Masons that ever congregated at the capital of the State were present, and everything passed off pleasantly and with great credit to the fraternity.

The Grand Commandery of Knights Templars, New York, continued its annual convocation on the 13th of October. The grand procession in the afternoon was the finest and most attractive exhibition ever seen in Rochester. About one thousand Sir Knights were in line, and their glittering accoutrements, elegant uniform, and disciplined movements attracted much admiration. An immense throng of spectators filled the streets. At the Driving Park the line was reviewed by the Grand Officers, followed by the dress parade. At the conclusion of the parade, St. Omer, Hugh de Payen, and Central City Commanderies entered into competition in tactics and drill for the prize banner offered by Monroe Commandery. The prize was awarded to Hugh de Payen Commandery of Buffalo. The following officers were elected: Sir Knt. Charles Roome, G.C.; Sir Knt. Robert Black, D.G.; Sir Knt. Townsend Fonday, G.G.; Sir Knt. Charles H. Holden, G.C.G.; Sir Knt. the Rev. John G. Webster, G. Prelate; Sir Knt. Thomas C. Chittenden, G.S.W.; Sir Knt. George W. Walgrove, G.J.W.; Sir Knt. John S. Perry, G. Treas.; Sir Knt. Robert Macoy (for the twenty-sixth time), G. Rec.; Sir Knt. S. V. McDowell, G. St. B.; Sir Knt. John S. Bartlett, G. Sd. B.; Sir Knt. William S. Bull, G. Warder; Sir Knt. Johnson Fountain, G. Sentinel. The Committee, through its chairman, reported the next place of meeting for the Grand Commandery to be in New York city.

Monsignor Roncetti, the Papal envoy, who was deputed by the Pope to bear to the newly created American Cardinal his berretta of the Cardinalate, was lately appointed Papal Legate to the Republic of Ecuador, S.A. Owing, however, to the fact that the authorities of Ecuador have taken the position of defenders of the Craft against the persecutions of the Romanists, the Holy Father has withdrawn his commission to Roncetti, and must look for "Peter's pence" elsewhere. In spite of all this, Ecuador will live; and the longer the Papal Legate stops out of the country, the more prosperous will the country grow.—"The Square."

Amongst other country papers which have quoted the recent article in our contemporary "The Masonic Magazine" on the "Freemasons and Architecture," and particularly the suggestion of Bro. Emra Holmes, that Grand Lodge should help in the completion of St. Paul's, we notice that the "South Durham and Cleveland Mercury," the leading Liberal organ in the district, and the "Grimsby Observer and Humber News," of the 3rd inst., both notice the proposal with approval. Let us hope Grand Lodge will awake to a sense of its duty and give £500 towards the new peal of bells.

In consequence of alterations which are being made at the Castle Tavern, Holloway, the "Royal Standard" Lodge of Instruction will meet for the present at the Finsbury-park Tavern, Seven Sisters-road, Holloway, every Friday at 8 p.m.

Bro. J. Perry Godfrey, S.D., Golden Rule Lodge, 1261, of Gray's Inn, solicitor, has been appointed by the Hon. Sir Richard Davies Hanson, Knight, Chief Justice of South Australia, and the Hon. Edward Castles Gwynne, Judge of the Supreme Court of that province, a Commissioner of the said Supreme Court to take affidavits therein. And the Hon. Sir A. P. Burt, Chief Justice of the colony of Western Australia, has also appointed Bro. Godfrey a Commissioner to administer oaths, and to receive acknowledgments of deeds by married women in and for that colony.

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland will be held in Freemasons' Hall, George-street, Edinburgh, on Tuesday, the 30th inst., at five o'clock p.m., for the election of Grand Office-Bearers; and also in the same place, at six o'clock p.m., at a banquet in celebration of the Festival of St. Andrew, over which the Right Hon. the Earl of Mar and Kellie, &c., &c., R.W. Depute Grand Master Mason, will preside, supported by the G. Wardens, Major Hamilton-Ramsay, of Garion, and the Right Hon. Lord Rosehill.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh has leased Gunton Hall, Norwich, the seat of Bro. Lord Suffield.

Bro. Henry Gabb, of the Rosemary Branch, Islington, Past Governor of the Incorporated Society of Licensed Victuallers, and Past Chairman of the Licensed Victuallers' Protection Society, has been elected to the office of Chairman of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum for the ensuing year.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Provincial Grand Master of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire, will be exalted to the Royal Arch Degree on Wednesday next, in the Zetland Chapter attached to the York Lodge, No. 236. The chapter will be held at the Masonic Hall, Duncombe-place, York, at 4 o'clock.

The King of Denmark has presented Bro. John Shaw, the general manager of the South Eastern Railway, with a magnificently mounted diamond ring, in acknowledgment of the valuable services rendered by him to His Majesty and family on the occasions when they have travelled over the South Eastern Railway.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES.—For many reasons the public will regret to learn that Mr. Emra Holmes, of H.M.'s Customs, so well known amongst us as a lecturer and reader, is leaving Ipswich. It is, however, satisfactory to know that Mr. Holmes is not going to a distance. He was first offered the collectorship of Banff, in Scotland, but declined it, and his valuable official services have now been rewarded by the collectorship of Woodbridge. The inhabitants of Ipswich have too often been indebted to Bro. Holmes for instruction and amusement to allow him to depart even to a neighbouring town without the public expression of thanks which we hereby tender him on their behalf.—"East Anglian Daily Times."

The William Preston Lodge, No. 766, met on Thursday last. A full report will appear in our next issue.

EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.—The annual festival of this lodge took place on Friday. A full account of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.

LATE STEAMER ON THE THAMES.—For the accommodation of playgoers, but more especially of theatrical artists living up the river, the steamer Victoria has been converted into a commodious saloon-boat, by the covering-in of her after-deck; and she will now leave Putney every evening, weather permitting, for Waterloo Pier, calling at Chelsea and Charing-cross. Her return voyage is made at half-past twelve from Waterloo, Putney being reached in an hour.

Why is an engaged lover like a Freemason? Because he is free and accepted.—"Punch."

Felton and Sons' (of Albemarle-street) "Spécialité" sherry is deservedly making its way, chiefly through the recommendations of the medical profession, founded on its honestly excellent qualities, its freedom from acidity and heat, and its uniform soundness.—"British Medical Journal."

WIPE YOUR FEET.—The best Cocoa Nut Mats and Matting are made by Treloar & Sons, 69, Ludgate Hill.

DAYLIGHT reflected in dark rooms. Gas superseded in day time. Health, comfort, and economy promoted by adopting Chappuis' Patent Daylight Reflectors.—Manufacture, 69, Fleet-street, London.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 22).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, on Thursday, the 25th ult. The business consisted in the raising of Bros. Newton, Roberts, and Jolliffe. Captain Matthew Webb, of swimming notoriety, after being proposed and unanimously elected, was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by Bro. Eames, W.M. Bro. A. Partridge, S.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. Wilcox re-elected Treasurer. A Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. Eames for the valuable services rendered by him during his year of office. Banquet followed.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The installation meeting of this celebrated "Banner Lodge" (No. 766) was held on Thursday, the 25th ult., at the Cannon-street Hotel, and the proceedings, which were of the most pleasant character, were attended by some brilliant ornaments of the Craft. Bro. Augustus Braun, whose Mastership was that evening to draw to a close, opened the lodge in the three degrees, assisted by Bros. John Pringle, W.M. elect, as S.W.; W. Manfield Newton, J.W.; P.M. George Newman, I.P.M.; P.M. Worrell, P.M. Kain, P.M. Dr. Whitman, and P.M. Abbott. There were also present many visitors, among whom were Bros. Albert, G.P.P.; G. Abbott, P.M. 192; Charles Horsley, Eve, P.G.S.W. of Hants; Tribble, No. 1287; Dr. Barringer, P.G.S. of Herts; G. V. Lucu, A. G. Francis, P.G.S.D. Surrey; J. C. Downing, 108; C. Pugsley, 179; Donald W. King, P.M. 12; Dr. Wm. Carpenter, P.M. of the Urban and Shakespeare Lodges; H. H. Dyne, 396; Edward Drew; Benham, W.M. 1339; and While, W.M. United Strength, No. 128 ("Freemason"). The first business was, after the confirmation of the minutes, in the Primary Degree, and then the W.M. conferred the degree of M.M. upon a foreign nobleman who had been regularly initiated and passed in the lodge. The name of our noble brother cannot be given for particular reasons associated with the law under which the Order lies in the country to whose ruler the newly-raised brother is subject. Bro. W. J. Collins and our foreign brother having been taken separately through the first part of the ceremony, were taken together through the concluding part, and the W.M., notwithstanding a serious feverish cold, performed that beautiful degree with fine effect. In order to relieve the W.M. after his arduous labours, and to leave the new W.M. free for the evening, P.M. Worrell performed the initiation of Mr. J. A. S. Matthews. The W.M. again took the chair, and Bro. Pringle having been presented, Bro. Braun proceeded with the installation in pure "Emulation" working, with the exception of the last address, which, though a little deviation, was worth listening to, especially as given by Bro. Braun with vivacity and excellent elocution. The new W.M. appointed Bro. W. Manfield Newton as S.W., evidently thus giving the lodge another efficient W.M.; W. E. Newton, as J.W.; S. D. Ewins, as S.D.; Cutmore, as J.D.; Kidman, as I.G.; Drake, as D.C.; and P.M. Newman, amid general applause, as Steward. The I.P.M., Bro. Braun, was then presented with a beautiful Past Master's jewel, manufactured by Bro. G. Kenning, and the words of the W.M. in presenting it, as well as the applause of the brethren at the presentation, testified to the high merits of the retiring W.M., and the high estimation in which he is held. The lodge being closed, the brethren partook of an excellently served banquet. The W.M. proposed the loyal toasts, and in giving "The Health of His Royal Highness the Grand Master," wished him a speedy and safe return to his native country. Bro. Albert returned thanks for "The Officers of Grand Lodge," and said that Grand Lodge was proud to have such an excellent lodge as the William Preston under its charters. The I.P.M., in proposing the toast of "The W.M.," expressed his pleasure at seeing Bro. Pringle rewarded by the brethren for his unflagging industry by being elected to the eminent position of W.M., and he expressed the fervent hope that their W.M. might have good health to carry out the duties of his station. The toast was duly honoured, and the W.M., in reply, expressed his acknowledgements for the honour bestowed upon him, and to his I.P.M. for the instruction always afforded to him. Bro. Worrell, in an excellent and eloquent speech, proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," reminding the brethren of the perfection and eloquence with which he had performed the ceremony, and, amid cheers, speaking of the fact that the I.P.M. had installed his successor as a proud feature in the history of the William Preston Lodge, as Bro. Braun had thereby followed the example of the late Masters, and had set an example to those who came after. Like a Lord Mayor, the Master of a lodge held his office only for a year, but while the Lord Mayor, on passing his chair, sunk into the position of an ordinary alderman, the W.M. of a lodge, on passing his chair, however, rose into the high dignity of P.M., and as P.M., now they greeted Bro. Braun. The toast was drunk with all honours, and Bro. Braun, in reply, said the expression of satisfaction which they had given him was a great reward for his struggle against a serious illness to discharge his duty, and he warmly thanked the brethren for the generous treatment they had always accorded to him. "The Initiate" was then toasted with the usual honours, and he, in reply, expressed the hope that he might not only be a "good Mason," but in time become a "great Mason." Bro. P.M. Newman then proposed an unusual toast, that of "The Junior M.M.s"—those who had been raised that evening. His reason for proposing the toast, he said, was that the brethren might take formal leave of their good brother who had been described to them as a "foreign nobleman," and of whose nationality or name nothing could be said out of the lodge. In the course of his speech Bro. Newman gave the distinguished brother to understand that the William Preston Lodge would not forget him, and that if he returned to this country they should always be glad to greet him. "The Foreign Brother," in reply thanked the brethren for the kindness they had always shown him, and said that when a year had passed he hoped they would see him again, for it was his intention to return for the purpose of being exalted. He looked with confidence to the time when the government of his country would look with a less "green eye" upon the Craft, and to his being able to be one of the first to introduce into his native land the noble precepts of Freemasonry. At the conclusion of a very able speech (an outline of which cannot be given for obvious reasons), the brother thanked Bros. Newman, Newton, and the I.P.M. To the toast of "The Visitors," Bro. Charles Horsley made a long and eloquent speech, and expressed his delight with all he had witnessed there that evening. Bro. Eve also responded, and, speaking from his experience of the lodge, said he was greatly rejoiced to see it flourishing so well. To the toast of "The P.M.s," Bros. Whitman, Worrell, Kain, Abbott, Jerrett, Miller, and Newman responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Press," saying that without a paper like the "Freemason" the members of the Craft would be at a great disadvantage, for they would not generally know what was being done in the Craft, and especially in regard to the charities, without which the Craft would be of no benefit to the world. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. While, representing the "Freemason," and he, in reply, said his profession was highly honoured by having present an officer of Grand Lodge who was an amateur reporter, and had actually applied for a report of a speech, which Bro. While, amid much laughter, said he should not give, for he did not care about trusting to the discretion of amateurs. He referred to the connection of the William Preston Lodge with literature in the name it held, and, pointing to the presence of those eminent representatives of literature, science, and the arts, Bros. Carpenter, Donald King, and Barringer, he said the William Preston was following worthily in the footsteps of him whose name it bore, and the "Freemason" was proud as a journal to represent a Craft which had so appreciative a lodge. Bro. Manfield Newton responded to the toast of "The Officers," and after a lively speech by Bro. Dr. Barringer the proceedings ended with "The Tyler's" toast. The banner of the Master, it should be stated, bore the legend. It was supplied by Bro. Kenning.

PECKHAM LODGE (No. 1475).—On Thursday, the 25th ult., an emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. John Thos. Dalby, supported by Bro. Watkins, the I.P.M.; Bro. Canton, S.W.; Bro. G. Duck, J.W.; Bro. W. G. Warren, P.M., Treas.; Bro. W. E. Gompertz, P.M., Sec., and about forty brethren and several visitors. The agenda paper was heavy, comprising work in each of the three degrees, which the W.M. performed in an able manner. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The W.M. informed the brethren it was his intention to serve as Steward at the forthcoming Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons. Bro. Gompertz, P.M. and Sec., gave notice that at the next regular meeting he should move that £10 from the lodge funds be placed on the Master's list, which was then sent round the lodge, and a considerable sum collected as the private subscription of the brethren. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the dining hall, where dinner was prepared. The usual toasts were proposed by the W.M. Bro. Watkins, the I.P.M., proposed "The Master's Health" in very feeling terms, congratulating him on the improved status of the lodge. The W.M. thanked the brethren for their co-operation with him in all that concerned the welfare of the lodge. Bro. Warren, Treas., said, as one of the founders, he felt proud of the success that had attended the lodge, and hoped he should, with the other founders in turn, at some time or other, be permitted to fill the chair. He would not wish to do so or press his claims if it were at all likely to interfere with the harmony of the lodge; but he hoped the brethren would concede to the founders the honour of enrolling their names as Past Masters of the lodge. Bro. Gompertz, P.M. and Sec., congratulated the W.M. that it should have fallen to his lot to preside over the lodge during this very eventful period of its history, and that we had been so successful in disconnecting Masonry from tavern influence. The teachings of our ceremonies were far too serious and solemn to be performed with decency and decorum when exposed to the jeers and derisive banter of the uninitiated, who, from the want of proper privacy in the tavern, have seen or heard sufficient, without knowing the symbolic meaning of what they may have heard or seen, to burlesque our time-honoured and beneficent institution. The best thanks of all who desired to uphold the character of Masonry were due to those worthy brothers by whose zeal and perseverance this peaceful home had been reared, and may it long continue a successful monument. He was happy also to tell the W.M. that there were 55 members on the roll of the lodge, and that all demands to this date were paid; and the Treasurer held a balance of over £50, which had been that evening augmented by £24, so that their present position, for a lodge not yet completed its second year, may fairly be considered as prosperous. He, like their brother Treasurer, would certainly like to change the duties of Secretary for the honours of the chair. It might be thought by some of the junior members that the Secretary's duties ended in the lodge, but he could assure them that that was the smallest part of his work; he was in constant communication with the Master and corresponding on all matters of detail in the interest and working of the lodge, and providing for the comfort and successful performance of all the minutiae connected with it; but still, while he had their confidence and respect he was content to give them his best services. The toast of "The Initiates" was responded to by all three. In responding to the very cordial manner in which the W.M. proposed the toast of "The Visitors," each expressed himself highly pleased with the work in the lodge and the bountiful manner they had been entertained at its social board, and several expressed a desire to become joining members of the lodge. The Tyler's toast brought the meeting to an end. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Norris, 177; A. Wilkins, of the St. Paul's Lodge, Boston, U.S.A.; Hooper, 879; Smith, 1257; Garner, 975; Caink, 1056; C. B. Cheese, 869; Sinclair, and others.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The November meeting of this lodge was held on the 25th ult., when there were present Bros. W. H. Lee, W.M.; Thos. C. Chapman, S.W.; H. Lister, J.W.; B. Meyer, Treas.; N. Green, Sec.; J. B. Shackleton, S.D.; James Symes, J.D.; R. Philp, as I.G.; Gilchrist, Tyler. Among the members present were Bros. W. H. Brand, Meyer, Johnson, Dallas, Alford, Brasted, and Harding. The business of the evening commenced with the raising of Bro. F. A. Kelly, passing of Bro. Varney, and initiation of Mr. Moon, the charge in the First Degree being most impressively rendered by the W.M. The lodge then proceeded to ballot for the W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. Thos. Chapman, S.W., was unanimously elected to that office. Bro. B. Meyer was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Gilchrist, Tyler. Propositions were received for the next meeting. It was then proposed, seconded, and unanimously carried, that Bro. W. H. Lee, the most respected W.M., should be presented with a Past Master's jewel in recognition of the very valuable services rendered by him during his year of office. Bro. Lee then offered to represent the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The lodge was then closed. The brethren shortly afterwards sat down to a slight repast. The usual toasts followed. That of "The W.M. Elect" was neatly responded to by Bro. Chapman. Bro. Shead, 1366, responded for "The Visitors." The toast of "The Masonic Charities," given by the W.M. in most appropriate terms, was very ably responded to by Bro. Shackleton. After a little harmony, the brethren separated.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, November 25th, at the Asheton Arms Hotel. The lodge was opened at 6 p.m. promptly by Bro. W. H. Kershaw, W.M. The Secretary, Bro. Forrester Fothergill, having read the minutes of the last meeting, they were duly confirmed. Referring to the minutes, we may here mention that with the assistance (at all times so willingly given) of our Bro. Forrester Fothergill, we hope in a future issue to publish a brief but interesting "History of the Imperial George Lodge," its minutes being preserved intact for upwards of a century. The minutes confirmed, the brethren then proceeded to ballot for, as a joining member, Bro. Iliff (Lodge of Truth, 1458, Manchester) proposed by Bro. Bradbury, J.W. The ballot being investigated by the W.M., his election was declared to be unanimous. The remaining business on the circular was to elect the W.M. and Treas. for the ensuing year; also to appoint Auditors and elect Tyler. David Reid, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, he being such an excellent worker, and like his predecessor, well-qualified to keep up the fire of "True Masonry" in the lodge. Bro. Heywood, P.M., was then re-elected Treas. Bros. Lees, Millhouse, and Newton were appointed Auditors, the two first-named by the members of the lodge, and the latter by the W.M. Bro. John Kent was re-elected Tyler; he is a brother esteemed by all, and has tyled the lodge for the past ten years. His Masonic qualities are as lofty as his stature, which is considerably above the average. By command of the W.M., Bro. Kent was summoned into lodge, and informed of his re-election, and after having thanked the brethren in his usual quaint manner, he returned to his post of O.G. Mr. Moses Mills was proposed. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired from labour to refreshment, so ably provided by mine hostess, Mrs. Harrison. The cloth having been withdrawn, the usual toasts were given and responded to, interspersed with harmony from the Middleton and Manchester brethren.

Wykes, J.W., having tendered an apology from Bro. Tertius Rowlett, S.W., on account of family bereavement, the Secretary was instructed, as an expression of sympathy, to record on the minutes the melancholy cause of same. Moved by the W.M. and seconded by Bro. Taylor, Secretary. "That the thanks of the lodge be accorded to Bro. MacAllister, S.W. 279, for his services as acting Secretary for the previous two months, during Bro. Taylor's absence abroad. The brethren repaired to supper. It being exactly five years that evening since the W.M. first saw "The Light" he in proposing the health of the candidates, and in assuring them the more they studied to make themselves Masters of our arcane science, the more pleasure they would feel in seeking Masonic knowledge, trusted that their career might be as prosperous, successful, and enjoyable as his own. The evening was, as usual enlivened by some excellent instrumental and vocal music, and passed only too quickly.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The installation of the W.M. (Capt. E. R. Green, J.P.) of this important lodge was held on Wednesday, Nov. 24th, in their lodge-room, at the Swan Hotel. The lodge having been exceedingly well worked through the three degrees, an unusually large board of Installed Masters was formed, and the W.M. elect duly installed by the late I.P.M. Billson, to whom W.M. Lester gave way. The charges were impressively delivered by P.M. Prior, M.D., coroner for the borough. The newly-installed W.M. chose and invested as his officers Bros. Work being over, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, when a splendid banquet was served by Bro. W. Wicks. It is almost needless to add that all the toasts were happily proposed, enthusiastically received, and heartily responded to. We trust that a wish expressed by certain brethren, for the building of a Masonic hall for this large and rapidly increasing lodge, may be speedily carried into effect; and we cannot conclude without a parting wish to see work as thoroughly well done and as amply rewarded by such a pleasant period of refreshment as was enjoyed on Wednesday last by the brethren and visitors of the Stuart Lodge.

BARNES.—Rose of Denmark Lodge (No. 975).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the White Hart, Barnes, on Friday, the 19th ult. Present: Bros. G. J. Edmonds, W.M.; E. W. Clarke, S.W.; W. Childs and Harrison to the Third Degree, the work being efficiently performed by the W.M. The W.M. then proceeded to install Bro. E. W. Clarke, the W.M. elect into the chair, according to ancient custom, the ceremony being correctly and impressively performed. The newly-installed W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Edmonds, I.P.M.; Lee, (W.M. 1524) S.W.; Phillips, J.W.; Smith, P.M., Treasurer; Little, Prov. G.S.W. Middlesex, Secretary; Wigglesworth, S.D.; Gamar, J.D.; Riches, I.G.; and Gilbert, T. The usual addresses were then delivered in a manner that elicited the warm applause of all present. The W.M. then proceeded to initiate Messrs. Revill, Crane, Masters, and Percheron into Freemasonry, and from the very excellent manner in which he performed the ceremony satisfied the brethren that he is well skilled in the noble science and well able to discharge the duties of the chair. The lodge having been closed the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet served under the personal superintendence of Bro. T. T. Wilcox. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Edmonds, was proposed by the W.M., who took that opportunity of presenting him with a Past Master's jewel which had been voted by the lodge at the previous meeting. Bro. Edmonds, P.M., responded in suitable terms. Bro. Revill responded for "The Initiates;" Bro. Rose, P.M. 73, for "The Visitors;" Bro. Little, P.M. for "The P.M.'s;" and Bro. Lee for "The Officers." The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

Birchill, P.M. 795, P.P.G.S.B., and others. The lodge was summoned for the special purpose of initiating three gentlemen into the Order, but two of them were unavoidably compelled to forego this opportunity, and the only one that attended was Mr. Charles H. Brookfield, the candidate of the W.M. The chair was taken by Bro. Keily at half-past three, and the business at once proceeded with by the reading of the summons calling the emergency. The ballot having been taken, Mr. Brookfield was unanimously elected, introduced in due form, and initiated; the ceremony being performed by the W.M. in a most perfect and masterly style. This being an extraordinary meeting there was no lodge banquet, but the brethren partook, at their own expense, of an excellent dinner provided by Bro. Sadler, after which the usual toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Little, Prov. S.G.W., responding for "The Prov. Grand Officers," "The Health of the W.M." was proposed and most heartily received, as also that of "The Master elect, Bro. David W. Pearse, and were duly responded to by both those brethren. Bro. Buss returned thanks for the rest of the officers of the lodge. The candidate and the visitors, each and all, were complimented by the W.M., and they severally replied, and expressed the great satisfaction they had experienced at the admirable way in which the lodge was worked, and their thanks for the hearty reception they had individually experienced. After a most enjoyable evening, enlivened by a few very good songs, the brethren separated at an early hour. The R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Burdett, sent a message to the W.M., regretting that he was unavoidably compelled to be absent on this occasion.

SOUTHALL.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1309).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 23rd ult., at the Prince Alfred Hotel. There were present: Bros. Charles Horsley, P.P.G.R. The ballots for initiation were in each case declared to be unanimous in favour of admission. Mr. A. Ranger was initiated. Bro. J. Sutcliffe, was passed. Bro. Sjoberg was raised, all the work being well done. Some candidates were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Bro. Rev. Thos. Cave Wells was appointed Secretary, Bro. H. Kenward, Sec., having resigned in consequence of ill health. A banquet followed.

FELTHAM.—Elliot Lodge (No. 1567).—A lodge of emergency, being the first meeting of this, the youngest lodge in the Province of Middlesex, was held on Thursday, the 25th ult., under the most favourable auspices, at the Railway Hotel, Feltham. Amongst the brethren present were:—Bros. J. Mason, W.M.; F. Green, S.W.; W. Dunham, J.W.; J. Nichols, S.D.; J. Ireton, J.D.; S. L. Green, D.C., acting as I.G.; Howe, P.G. Steward (Treasurer); J. Elliott, Secretary; T. W. Clarke, W.S.; Harris, Pemberton, Nichols, and others; W. Bro. Cotebrune, P.G. Pursuivant, acting as P.M. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the W.M. immediately proceeded to business, the first on the notice being to ballot for the brethren who were proposed at the installation meeting as joining members. The ballot was then taken for the four gentlemen named in the summons for initiation, which was in each case unanimous. The W.M. then proceeded with the ceremony of initiation in a most solemn and impressive manner, which he performed not only to the satisfaction, but we may add admiration of the brethren present, and after his admirable working we can only re-echo the sentiments expressed by the R. W. Prov. G.M., Col. Burdett, that we congratulate the lodge on having such a W.M. After several propositions for new members had been received, the lodge was closed in the usual manner, and the brethren sat down to refreshment, after partaking of which the usual toasts were given and responded to in truly Masonic manner. Bro. Howe, as Treasurer to the lodge informed the brethren that while he should at all times like to see them enjoy themselves at the festive board, yet they must not forget the W.M. was anxious to take up as large a list as he possibly could for the Girls' School, for which institution he was standing as Steward, to which appeal several of the brethren heartily responded, and over twenty guineas was put down as a start on the list, several intimating their intention of doing more before the festival, and the Treasurer hoped the lodge itself would be able, if not on the first occasion to qualify as a Vice President, to at least vote a good sum towards it, as he was pleased to inform the brethren that the lodge was really in the happy position of being out of debt, and having funds in hand on this their first meeting, which was not often the case after incurring the heavy expenses they all knew were attendant on starting a new lodge. The enjoyment of the evening was much enhanced by the singing of some of the brethren and especially by the recitations of Bro. F. Green, the S.W., one of which was entitled the "Gift of the Gab" and met with rapturous applause. Bro. Austin responded to "The Health of the Initiates," thanking the members for having elected them members of the Craft, and expressing their intention of working zealously as Masons; and assuring the W.M. how deeply they were impressed with the ceremony through which they had passed. The officers responded individually, stating that it was their intention of carrying out their respective duties to the best of their ability. The S.W. trusted that in a short time the words of the W.M. would be verified, that this lodge should stand A 1 in the province. The Tyler's toast, brought this very pleasant evening to a close.

LEICESTER.—Fowke Lodge (No. 19).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, 25th November, and was attended by the R.W. Bro. W. Kelly, P. Prov. G.M.M.; Bros. G. Toller, jun., W.M.; J. M. McAllister, I.P.M.; S. S. Partridge, A. M. Duff, and W. Wear, P.M.'s; C. Stretton, S.W.; W. Sculthorpe, J.W., and many other officers and members of the lodge. The only visitor was Bro. T. Worthington, 30. Of the four candidates for advancement only Bro. C. J. McBride put in an appearance, and he was duly advanced to the Degree of Mark Master. The W.M. afterwards gave the lecture on the Tracing Board of the degree for the first time in this lodge. Some discussion ensued as to the propriety of inviting the Grand Master to hold the next moveable Grand Lodge at Leicester, and it was at length unanimously resolved to do so, the members doubtless being influenced in their determination by a recollection of the great success which attended the former visit of Grand Lodge in 1870, and the advantage which accrued to this lodge therefrom. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the members adjourned to refreshment.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (Time Immemorial).—An ordinary meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, November 25th. Present: Bros. John Dutton, W.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. and Past G.J.W., Chaplain; Moutrie, as S.W.; Carey, J.W.; Cater, Sec.; James Dutton, Treas.; Braham, as M.O.; Rubie, S.O.; Cater, J.O.; Mitchell, as J.D.; Major Preston, I.G.; Slater, Tyler; Mann, Murless, and others. Dr. Hopkins acted as S.D. The lodge having been opened and the minutes read and confirmed, Bros. Brown, Brooke, Radway and Howse, after a favourable ballot, were introduced and duly advanced to the Degree of M.M.M. by the W.M. The lecture, which was to have been given by the Chaplain, was deferred owing to the lateness of the hour. Several matters of interest only to the members were discussed and settled, and the lodge was closed at 10 o'clock.

Shand, 102; T. Barnett, 553; J. Douglas, 354; G. B. Adams, 360 ("Freemason"), and others. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. Mr. Thos. Gavans received the E.A. Degree, Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M. of Lodge Union, 332, performing the ceremony with his usual ability. The R.W.M. then called the attention of the members of the lodge to the position of the sufferers from the late fire in Bridgeton, and proposed that a sum of five guineas be voted from the funds of the lodge for their relief, which was unanimously carried. A subscription sheet was also passed round the lodge, which procured an extra sum of £8 10s., making in all the sum of £13 15s., raised that night. And in order that the absent members of the lodge might have an opportunity of contributing, a committee was appointed to wait upon them for their subscriptions, which we have no doubt will be both numerous and liberal.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place in the hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on the 16th ult. Bro. Geo. McDonald, the much-respected R.W.M., took the chair, and opened the lodge with the assistance of his office-bearers, Bro. W. Macgregor in the S.W. chair; Bro. John H. Hanbridge in that of J.W.; J. Bannerman, D.M.; G. W. Wheeler, Chaplain; W. D. Hay, S.D.; and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was raised to the Sublime Degree, which was conferred upon Bro. J. Wright, the R.W.M., officiating. The lodge was then reduced to the E.A., and the nomination of office-bearers for the next year proceeded with, the result of which was as follows: R.W.M., Bro. G. McDonald; S.W., Bro. A. McLeod; J.W., Bro. J. H. Hanbridge; Treas., A. S. Ampleford; Sec., R. Richards; S.D., W. Kay; J.D., J. Yule; Chaplain, G. W. Wheeler; P.G.S., Jas. McQueen; S.S., J. Kinnard; J.S., G. GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle (No. 87).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on Tuesday evening, 16th ult. Bro. J. W. Burns, R.W.M., in the chair, and was supported by Bros. John Miller, I.P.M.; James Love, S.M.; James Booth, S.W.; William Wilson, J.W.; Archd. McPhee, Interim. Sec.; John McLachlan, J.D.; Samuel McPhee, P.G.S.; I. G. Ritchie, S.S.B., &c., with a very large attendance of members and visiting brethren present, including Bros. Thomas B. Bell, 34; David Proudfoot, 34; Alex. Callen, 116; Robert Reid, 204; John Stewart, 360; John Adams, 360; Joseph C. Campbell, 553. The lodge was opened on the First or E.A. Degree, and the minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. The Auditors' report for the past year was then read and unanimously adopted. Said report showed that the lodge is in a healthy and prosperous condition, and reflects credit on the respective office-bearers. At this juncture the I.G. informed the R.W.M. that Bro. James Wallace, P.M. 360, wished to be admitted into the lodge. The R.W.M. immediately stated to the brethren that he could not, in justice to himself, as Master of the lodge, admit Bro. Wallace, seeing that the letter he received some time ago from the P.G.L. of Glasgow, suspending him (Bro. Wallace) had not as yet been countermanded by the P.G.L. He had nothing personally to say against Bro. Wallace, but on these grounds he was sorry he could not admit him. The brethren unanimously concurred in this decision. The election of office-bearers for the ensuing year then took place, when the following brethren were duly elected, viz.: Bros. James Booth, R.W.M.; J. W. Burns, I.P.M.; William Wilson, D.M.; John Ritchie, S.M.; Walter Stewart, S.W.; Robert Bair, J.W.; Thomas Paton, Treas.; Archd. McPhee, Sec.; John McLachlan, S.D.; James Cossar, J.D.; Samuel McPhee, P.G.S.; John Miller, S.S.; John Fife, J.S.; W. Pollock, S.S.B.; Robertson, J.S.B.; Andrew Coventry, Chaplain; S. Gunning, I.G.; and James Sinclair, Tyler. The foregoing office-bearers were then installed into their respective offices, the ceremony of installation being performed by Bro. J. W. Burns, I.P.M., in an able manner. The lodge was then transferred to refreshment, and placed under the care of the J.W., Bro. Booth, the Master (newly-elected) in the chair. The usual toasts were given and responded to. "The P.G. Lodge of Glasgow," was proposed from the chair, and coupled with the name of Bro. J. W. Burns, who made a suitable reply. After spending a short time in song and sentiment, the lodge was retransferred, and closed in due and proper form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Mark (No. 102).—The installation of office-bearers of this lodge elected for the ensuing year took place in their hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday evening, the 22nd ult. The retiring R.W.M., Bro. James F. Mitchell, presided, supported on the dais by Bros. Alex. McDonald, P.M.; Lindsay Gray, D.M.; Alex. Clark, 102; John Baird, P.M. 34; A. M. Wright, R.W.M. 103; W. J. E. Dobson, R.W.M. 571; and A. Arrick Smith, P.M. 354. The lodge having been opened on the First Degree, Bro. A. C. Paterson, acting Secretary, read the minutes of two previous meetings, which were approved of and passed. The Chairman then said that before commencing the business of the evening he had to propose that honorary affiliation to the lodge be conferred upon Bros. John Baird and W. J. E. Dobson, which being unanimously agreed to, they were affiliated accordingly, together with Bro. Arrick Smith (upon whom it had been agreed at a previous meeting to bestow the same compliment), the R.W.M. officiating. Bros. Baird and Dobson having returned thanks for the honour done them, the business of installation was proceeded with, in so far as regarded the office-bearers present. Prior to commencing, however, the chairman read a letter of apology for absence from the R.W.M. elect, in which the latter stated that he had unfortunately sprained his ankle, and was laid up; and his medical attendant would not allow him to go out as yet. He trusted, however, that nothing would prevent him from being present at next meeting. The following is the new list of office-bearers, with exception of the D.M., who has yet to be appointed by the Master, and the Chaplain, also yet to be appointed:—

R.W.M., James O. Smith; I.P.M., J. F. Mitchell; S.M., T. Kerr; S.W., J. Renton; J.W., J. Thomson; Treasurer, A. C. Paterson; Secretary, John Monteath; S.D., Hugh McMillan; J.D., Jno. Leckie; B.B., Thos. Halket; D. of Ceremonies, D. H. Miller; D. of Music, D. J. Forfar; Prov. G.V. Steward, N. N. Currie; Sen. Steward, Seth Dory; J.G., George Littlejohn; Tyler, J. Burton Hardie. After the installation proceedings the lodge adjourned for a short time to refreshment, at which, after the usual preliminary toasts, the Chairman gave that of "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupled with the name of its S.M., Bro. John Baird. In the course of replying to the compliment, Bro. Baird announced to the brethren that Bro. F. A. Barrow, Prov. G. Depute Master, had sent in his resignation of office, which he (Bro. Baird) must say he thought was the worst stroke that had befallen the P.G.L. for a long time. Thereafter the Chairman proposed the toast of "Lodge St. Mark," coupled with the health of one of their trustees, Bro. Alexander Clark, who was about to depart on a visit to the Holy Land. They all wished him good health, with a happy and pleasant voyage, and safe return; and when he came back they would ask him to give them a lecture on his travels. The toast was pledged with Masonic enthusiasm, and duly acknowledged by Bro. Clark, who in so doing stated that it was 25 years since he was made a member of that lodge and 20 years since he had last visited it. It was true, he said that, he was one of the trustees on their property in that building. Their property was a very valuable one, and he had no doubt it would yield them a very good reversion, and he would give them every assistance he could in having it secured for the benefit of the lodge. In replying to the toast of "The Past Masters of 102" Bro. McDonald also took occasion to refer to the question of the lodge property, distinctly repudiating on his own behalf any design of taking advantage of the terms of the deed, and emphatically avowing that the property must, as was intended, be that of the lodge. After one or two other toasts the lodge was recalled to labour; when, on the motion of the Chairman, the sum of five guineas was voted from the lodge funds in aid of the sufferers from the recent great fire at Bridgeton. There being no other business, the lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

PARTICK.—Lodge St. Mary's (No. 117).—The regular monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 17th ult., in St. Mary's Hall, Partick, the business before the meeting being the election of office-bearers for the ensuing year. Bro. Andrew Brunton, I.P.M., occupied the chair, supported on the dais by Bros. W. Wylie, R.W.M.; Thomas Granger, P.M.; John Bain, D.M.; John M. Wylie, Treas.; John Maitland, Sec.; and Alfred Lawrence, Chaplain; David Peacock, S.W.; Andrew Agnew, J.W.; David Forrest, S.D.; John McSwan, J.D.; W. Borland; James Donaldson, &c., and a very large and respectable attendance of members and visiting brethren. Among the latter were Bros. William Rule, Lodge Westland, Kilwinning, Hokitika, N.Z., No. 467 (S.C.); William Richmond, 362; Robert Nicol, 419; John McClure, 343; James Barton, 543; and Ferguson, 543 ("Freemason"). The Secretary read the minutes of last regular and two emergency meetings, which were approved of. The auditors then gave a statement of the income and expenditure of the past year, which was very satisfactory, the income being over £370. It may be mentioned that about £24 10s. was given towards charitable purposes during the past year. The election of office-bearers then took place, when the following brethren were duly elected:—W. Wylie, R.W.M.; Andrew Brunton, P.M.; John Bain, D.M.; James Donaldson, S.M.; David Peacock, S.W.; Andrew Agnew, J.W.; Rev. — Loftus, Chaplain; Alfred Lawrence, Sec.; J. W. Wylie, Treas.; John McSwan, S.D.; Thomas Wallace, J.D.; James Miller, S.B.; John Calderwood, S.S.; John Boyd, J.S.; David McFarlane, I.G.; and James Bruce, Tyler. The office-bearers were then installed by Bro. Andrew Brunton, P.M., in a most efficient manner.

GREENOCK.—Lodge St. John (No. 175).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 16th ult. Bro. Alex. M'Master, R.W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Urie, D.M.; James Rodger, Treas.; W. Wright, jun., Sec.; J. M. Pollock, S.W.; J. M'Quarrie, J.W.; John Fleming, S.D.; and J. Mitchell, J.D. The lodge having been opened in due and ancient form, three candidates were initiated, the ceremony being performed by the Master and his officers. The business of the evening having been disposed of, the R.W.M., in proposing "The Health of Sir Michael Robert Shaw-Stewart, Bart., M.W. Grand Master Mason of Scotland," made reference to the very narrow escape that honoured and respected brother had in the late very severe gale in the Bay of Biscay, while proceeding in his yacht to the Mediterranean, and expressed the great joy they all felt that so valuable a life had been spared. He moved that a letter be sent from the brethren of the lodge to Sir Michael, congratulating him on his escape. The motion and remarks of the R.W.M. were received with the greatest enthusiasm. The election of office-bearers for the lodge took place on the 25th ult., a report of which will appear in our next. During the year now drawing to a close no fewer than 120 names have been added to the membership of the lodge, thereby affording evidence of the popularity of the R.W.M. and his office-bearers. It is well known that the success of any lodge depends a good deal on the popularity of the Master and the indefatigability of the Secretary and other officers, and we are proud to be able to report that if Scotland were sought through it would be difficult to find men more devoted to the interests of the Craft, or who carried out the duties they undertook with more anxiety that they should be well performed.

The annual general meeting of this lodge was held on the 25th ult., in St. John's Hall, Cathcart-street, Bro. Alex. M'Master, R.W.M., presiding. The following brethren were elected office-bearers for the ensuing session and duly installed into their respective offices, viz.:—Alex. M'Master, R.W.M.; Robert Urie, D.M.; Charles Grey, P.M.; Donald Anderson, O.M.; Duncan M'Intyre, S.W.; Thomas Napier Douglas, J.W.; Wm. Wright, jun., Secretary; James Rodger, Treasurer; James Scott, S.D.; James M'Bryde, J.D.; John Fleming, 1st S.S.; David Anderson, 2nd S.S.; James C. Mitchell, 1st J.S.; Edward Roberts, 2nd J.S.; Stephenson Stewart, I.G.; Alex. Cruden, Tyler. The annual statement of the income and expenditure of the lodge was read and gave much satisfaction, showing the lodge to be in a most flourishing condition. A hearty vote of thanks was awarded to the retiring officebearers, and to the Depute Master for his valuable assistance during the past session. The meeting, which was of the most cordial description, was largely attended by the brethren.

CAMPBELL.—Lodge St. John Caledonian (No. 195).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held in their lodge room (Lennox Arms Hotel, Campsie), on Wednesday evening, 24th ult. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Dr. Wilson, R.W.M., the chair was occupied by Bro. John Stewart, P.M., now residing in Glasgow. The meeting was largely attended by the members, and a more than usual number of visiting brethren were present. Bro. J. Morgan, R.W.M., took the chair, and was supported by Bros. J. Martin, D.M.; W. Henderson, S.M.; J. Gaith, S.W.; J. Horn, J.W. B. Stewart, Treas.; J. Crawford, Sec.; and others. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, Messrs. Geo. Westcott and Geo. Forrest were introduced as candidates, and received the First Degree, the R.W.M. officiating. Bro. J. Duthie then read the report of the committee appointed to take the inventory of the lodge property, &c., which was satisfactory. Bro. Alston submitted the auditors' report, which also gave satisfaction. The election of office-bearers for the next year was then proceeded with, and the following was the result:—J. Morgan, R.W.M.; Jasper Martin, D.M.; W. Andrews, S.M.; J. Horn, S.W.; D. Mearns, J.W.; B. Smart, Treas.; F. Dow, Sec.; R. Watson, Chap.; J. Brown, S.D.; D. Taylor, J.D.; J. Laurence, B.B.; J. Morgan, the R.W.M., installed the remaining office-bearers. The carefulness and precision which he displayed in performing this important duty were much admired by all present. The lodge was then called to harmony. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and followed by a song from Bro. Jameson. The R.W.M. then gave "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupled with Bro. Bain, P.M. 103, and B.B. P.G.L. Bro. Campbell followed with an excellent song. Bro. Bain replied in brief and choice language. The R.W.M. then said he had now a very pleasant and important duty to perform; it was to ask their much respected P.M., Bro. Wilson, to accept from the members of the lodge a small testimony of the high esteem and regard in which they hold him. The presentation took the form of a very handsome marble timepiece and a P.M.'s jewel. On attaching the jewel to Bro. Wilson's breast, he assured him that the pleasure it gave was very great indeed, and wished him long life to wear it. The following inscription was on the timepiece:—"Presented along with a P.M.'s jewel by the members of Lodge Star, No. 219, to Bro. Joseph Wilson, P.M., as a token of fraternal affection and esteem, 22nd Nov., 1875." Bro. Wilson, in a speech, characterised by great good taste and feeling, returned thanks for the handsome testimonial, and the honour they had done him. Bro. McEwing then enlivened the proceedings by a song. The toast of "The Last Laid Stones" was then given from the chair, and replied to by the young brothers. Bro. Duthie then gave a short reading, "The Village Post," which was much appreciated. After a short time spent in harmony the lodge was closed, and all seemed well pleased with the night's proceedings.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 331).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 16th ult., in the hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair, presided, supported by D. The lodge was opened. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The result of the nomination of office-bearers for the next year, which took place at last meeting, was read. The R.W.M. then intimated that he had received notice that they could not have possession of the hall where they now met longer than next May. A committee was thereupon appointed to secure other premises to meet in, and report to the members at next meeting. The annual re-union of the members of the lodge was then taken up, and it was agreed to take the form of a supper and ball. A committee was then appointed to carry it out, and due notice would be given to the members when their arrangements were completed.

John Cunningham, R.W.M., presiding; John Murdoch, S.W.; Thos. Alston, J.W., &c. The R.W.M. then submitted the names of Bros. J. Johnston, 738, E.C., and J. Stewart, 360, for honorary affiliation into the lodge, which was agreed to, and performed by Bro. A. A. Smith, P.M. A sum of two pounds was then granted from the funds of the lodge to the fund, for relief of the sufferers at the recent fire at Bridgeton. At the instance of Bro. C. McKenzie a very animated and instructive discussion took place as to the actual position of honorary members and their privileges, which ended in a committee being appointed to examine into the matter, and report to the lodge at the next regular meeting. Three brethren were entrusted with it, Bro. Miller, P.M. 87, officiating.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Clair (No. 362).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 25, Robertson-street, on Monday evening, the 22nd ult., Bro. William J. Hogg, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. George Thallon, I.P.M.; Robert Glass, D.M.; Adam Rutherford, S.W.; Colin Galletly, J.W.; W. Pascoe, Treas.; George Fraser, Sec.; J. Brock, S.D., &c. There was a large turn out of the members, and a great number of visiting brethren, among whom were Bros. Robert S. Lyall, 4; John Knight, 73; Thomas Lawrie, 87; John McWaters, 17; W. Mitchell, 114; Allan Stevenson, 114; John Callen, 116; Thomas Gordon, 237; and W. Ferguson, 543 ("Freemason.") The lodge was opened on the Entered Apprentice Degree, and the Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. The Treasurer then read the financial statement of the lodge for the past year, which showed that the lodge is in a very satisfactory position. The election of office-bearers for the ensuing year then took place, when the following brethren were duly elected, viz.: Bros. William J. Hogg, R.W.M.; George Thallon, I.P.M.; Robert Glass, D.M.; William Dobbie, S.M.; Adam Rutherford, S.W.; Colin Galletly, J.W.; George Fraser, Sec.; William Pascoe, Treas.; Alex. Bowie, Chaplain; William Galbraith, S.D.; Mark Fox, J.D.; John Richardson, B.B.; David Pinto, P.G.S.; Robert McBroom, S.S.; Robert Leadbetter, J.S.; James Robertson, S.B.; Arch. Taylor, Org.; E. S. May, I.G.; and Thomas Warnock, Tyler. The brethren were then installed into their respective offices, Bro. G. Thallon, P.M., officiating in a very impressive manner. The first business brought forward by the newly-elected office-bearers was a motion to grant a sum of money towards the Bridgeton Fire Relief Fund. The motion was unanimously agreed to, and £4.4s. was voted towards the said fund as a first donation. The lodge was then transferred to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The R.W.M. proposed the P.G.L. of Glasgow, coupled with the name of Bro. G. Thallon, P.G.J.D. Bro. Thallon suitably replied. The "Visiting Brethren" were proposed and heartily received; the toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Wm. Ferguson, 543 ("Freemason"), who replied at some length. After spending some time in song and sentiment harmoniously together, the lodge was recalled to labour, and closed in due and ancient form by the R.W.M.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clyde (No. 408).—The third annual festival of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 18th ult., in the Assembly Rooms, Bath-street, the large hall of which was profusely and tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, banners, &c. Bro. Wm. Harper, R.W.M. of the lodge, presided, supported on the right and left by Bros. Duncan Downie, P.M.; J. S. Black, S.M.; Thomas Gordon, D.M.; James Stewart, Treas.; D. S. Mitchell, Sec.; Andrew Strathern, Chap.; Rev. R. Thomson, John Cunningham, R.W.M. No. 347; John Buchanan, John Clare, John Crosbie, &c. The general attendance of brethren, with their wives, sweethearts, children, and friends, filled the hall to overflowing. After tea the chairman delivered a brief address, in which he referred to the antiquity of Masonry, to its spread in our island from the ancient City of York, in England, and the ancient burgh of Kilwinning, as centres, respectively; and to its progress among us up to the present day, when the Prince of Wales was Grand Master Mason of England. He (the speaker) had great hopes that there would yet be more said about, and yet further progress made in Freemasonry among us, and especially that in Scotland we should by-and-by have such benevolent institutions as existed elsewhere, as schools for the education of the orphan or fatherless children of brethren, &c. In the course of his remarks the chairman took occasion to state that the Lodge Clyde was founded in 1860, since which time they had made in all 750 members, or at the rate of about 43 annually. At a later period in the evening the Rev. Robt. Thomson shortly addressed the meeting, giving some interesting reminiscences of his trip to the Continent and up the Mediterranean last year. The earlier portion of the evening was mainly occupied by an excellent concert, at which the artistes were Miss Marian Vallance, the greatly popular ballad vocalist; Mr. Jas. Ritchie, basso; Mr. George Clarence, tenor; and—a host in himself—Bro. James Houston, the perennial Scottish humorist, on whose each appearance the hall rang with uncontrollable laughter. Moreover, in lieu of an address by Bro. Blair, who was unavoidably absent, Mr. Max Gregor, the well known lecturer of the Kibble Art Palace, favoured the company with a recitation of that much admired morceau, "Little Jim." Immediately after the concert the hall was cleared for dancing, and an assembly concluded the proceedings of unquestionably the most successful of the Lodge Clyde festivals.

John Wallace, R.W.M., presiding; Colin McKenzie, S.W.; Daniel Leeds, J.W., and the other office-bearers in their respective places. The business before the meeting was the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year, and the following brethren were duly nominated: For R.W.M., J. L. Louttit; D.M., Walter Neilson; S.M., John Baikie; S.W., D. Leeds; J.W., A. GLASGOW.—Lodge Glasgow (No. 441).—A meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 23, Struthers-street, Calton, on Friday night, the 26th ult. Business—Presentation to Bro. W. H. Jackson, I.P.M. The chair was occupied by Bro. Hugh Tulloch, R.W.M.; Bros. Sergt. James Wood, Senior Warden; and Peter McInnery, Junior Warden. The R.W.M. was supported on the dais by Bros. W. H. Jackson, I.P.M.; John Campbell, R.W.M. 128; James A. Goldie, Sec.; William Ferguson, 543 (Freemason). There were also present John Nagle, S.D.; John Booth, I.G.; John Mason (R.W.M. elect); Geo. Christie, Joseph Howat, John Brown, John Crosbie, William Findlay, J.W. 275; John Horn, Sec. 275; Andrew Clark, 275; Hugh Matheson, 275; Robert Jack, 128; James Thomson, 321; Wm. Mitchell, 347; and Andrew Crawford, Tyler, &c. The lodge having been duly constituted was transferred to refreshment, and placed under the care of the J.W., the R.W.M. proposed in succession the following toasts, which were enthusiastically responded to, viz.: "The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince of Wales and other Members of the Royal Family," "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," "The Three Grand Lodges," "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow." Bro. J. Campbell, R.W.M. 128, replied. The R.W.M. then proposed the toast of the evening, "The Health and Prosperity of Bro. W. H. Jackson, I.P.M." In the course of an able address, the chairman said it gave him much pleasure in proposing the toast. Bro. Jackson had served the Lodge Glasgow faithfully as R.W.M. for two years, and the members considered it their duty to recognise his services by presenting him with a token of esteem for the able manner he conducted the affairs of the lodge during his term of office. The chairman then said,—Brother Jackson, the happy task is mine to present you, in the name of the members of the Lodge Glasgow, No. 441, with this handsome drawing-room (bronze) clock with two side ornaments, all under glass shades, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. W. H. Jackson, P.M., by the brethren of Lodge Glasgow (441) as a token of respect, esteem, and appreciation of services rendered as R.W.M. during 1873-74. 26th Nov., 1875." Take it, Bro. Jackson, not for its intrinsic value, but as a memento of our regard for you; and as I believe you are about to take a partner for life, may many blessings attend you both. The toast was drunk with all the honours. Bro. Jackson made a feeling reply, thanking the brethren for the valuable presentation he had just received. He said—R.W. Sir, you mentioned the fact to me about three years ago, that it was a difficult task to reply on receiving a presentation on an occasion of this kind. I laughed at the idea; but, brethren, you have placed me in the position to-night that I feel inadequate to reply in suitable terms for the honour you have done me; but rest assured that I will at all times do my utmost to promote the interests of Freemasonry in general and this lodge in particular. "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by the S.W. Bro. Campbell, R.W.M. 128, and Anderson, 103, replied. "The Lodge Glasgow" (441), was proposed by Bro. Jackson, P.M., in a very able style. Bro. Tulloch, R.W.M., replied. Bro. John Campbell, R.W.M. 128, proposed "The Masonic Press," which he did very efficiently, and pointed out that it was a great pity that the Masonic Press was not supported to a larger extent in Scotland. In England and America it was supported by every Freemason, and he trusted that it would also be better patronised in Scotland. He had much pleasure in coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Wm. Ferguson. Bro. Ferguson replied on behalf of the "Freemason." Songs were sung during the evening by a number of the brethren, who heartily enjoyed themselves till 11 p.m., when "The Tyler's" toast was drunk. The lodge was called to labour, and closed in proper form.

Annand and Phillips speaking at considerable length on the subject, which then dropped. A request from the R.W.M. of Lodge Busby St. John, No. 458, to do them the favour of conferring the M.M. Degree on two members of that lodge was then read and agreed to, and Bros. Stewart and Walker (St. John's Busby, 458), along with Bros. W. Davidson, J. The ceremony of consecration of the Prince Arthur Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1570, took place on Wednesday, the 24th day of November, at the Masonic Rooms, 80, North Hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool. There was a large gathering of brethren at the business portion of the proceedings. Bro. R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.S.D., P. Prov. G.D.C. of West Lancashire, who had been appointed by Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., P.G.M.W.L., to perform the interesting ceremony of consecration, took the chair at three o'clock, and appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. W. C. Deeley, P.G. Bryant, P.M. 203; J. Archdeacon, 667; W. Hiles, 1299; H. J. Atkinson, 1505; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 494, &c.

The consecrating officer having addressed the brethren, called upon the acting Secretary to read the petition and warrant of the Prince Arthur Lodge, the following being the names attached thereto:—Bros. H. S. Alpass, as first W.M.; T. Evans, as first S.W.; Archibald Morrison as first J.W.; S. Hinks, Sec.; R. Roberts, S.D.; H. Worthington, J.D., and R. Douglas, I.G. The consecration was then proceeded with, and the P.G. Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. J. M. Morgan, delivered an appropriate and eloquent oration, which he had specially prepared for the occasion. The various elements in the consecration were borne by Bros. Dr. Smith, H. Williams, W. A. Clayton, J. McKune, and the Rev. J. Morgan. Bro. Skeaf ably presided at the harmonium, and his splendid musical consecration service was very effectively rendered by Bros. Haswell, Queen, Atkinson, and Muir.

The consecration having been concluded, the Presiding Officer proceeded to install Bro. Horace S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., in the chair of K.S., the ancient charges being read by Bro. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.G. Reg. After the usual P.M.'s lodge had been held and the brethren below the rank of Installed Masters had been re-admitted and had saluted the first W.M. of the new lodge, the following were appointed by him as his officers:—Bros. T. Evans, S.W.; A. Morrison, J.W.; S. Hinks, Sec.; R. Roberts, S.D.; H. Worthington, J.D.; and R. Douglas, I.G. Bro. J. Ireland was unanimously elected Treasurer; and Bro. P. M. Larsen, was also unanimously elected Tyler. There were two propositions for initiation and 17 for joining.

The brethren subsequently banqueted under the presidency of the W.M., there being upwards of 30 present. "The Queen," and "H.R.H. Bro. Albert Edward, the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," "The Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," were given by the W.M., and in proposing the second he referred to the fact that the first thing which Bro. Prince Arthur did on arriving at Gibraltar was to visit a Masonic lodge. "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.," and "The Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M." were also given from the chair, and the W.M. referred especially to the capabilities of the Pro G.M. to preside with honour and dignity at the head of the Craft during the G.M.'s absence in India. With regard to Lord Skelmersdale, the W.M. said that as director of the Province of West Lancashire he had the good of Freemasonry at heart; his official duties alone kept him from visiting all the lodges under his rule. Bro. W. A. Clayton gave "The Hon. F. Stanley, D.P.G.M., and the Officers of the Prov. G. Lodge," which was acknowledged by Bro. J. W. Turley, P.G. J.D. In proposing "The Consecrating Officers," the W.M. thanked Bro. R. Wylie for the admirable manner in which he had performed the ceremony that day. Bro. Wylie, in reply, thanked Bro. Alpass for his kind remarks, and expressed the great pleasure it had given him to be selected by the P.G.M. to do the work, as there were many other brethren who were quite as able and willing to have done the work. "Prosperity to the Prince Arthur Lodge, No. 1570," was given by Bro. R. Wylie, and acknowledged by Bro. T. Evans. Bro. Deeley, P.G. J.W., gave "The Worshipful Master," who, in replying, said he felt it indeed a great honour to have been elected the first to fill the chair in that lodge, but he felt he had accepted no ordinary responsibility. He counselled the brethren to be very careful in their conduct, and strongly urged the claims of charity on their consideration. "The Officers of the Lodge" was responded to by Bro. A. Morrison, J.W., and the other officers. Bro. Dr. Smith gave "The Charities, the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, &c.," which was acknowledged by Bro. Wylie. "The Visitors," (coupled with the name of Bro. Dr. Crawford), "The Musical Brethren," and "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," were the remaining toasts on the list.

TEMPLARS, UNITARIANS, AND FREEMASONS.

On Wednesday evening, the 24th ult., these three classes of persons were made the subject of an interesting lecture by Dr. Hunter, of the Literary and Philosophical Association, to a large and respectable audience assembled at Hedling House, Bath.

The chair was occupied by the Rev. W. Odgers, who introduced the lecturer with a humorous speculation on the manner in which the subject was to be treated, and anticipated, among other hypotheses, that the mode of discussion would perhaps be alphabetical—analytically, biographically, chronologically, didactically, ethnologically, facetiously, geographically, historically, ingenuously, knowingly, learnedly, perhaps methodically; at all events, it might be narratively, not offensively, philosophically, not querulously, rationally, statistically, theologically, not uncharitably, but veraciously, and at all events wittily and wisely.

Dr. Hunter said he had first written his lecture and then selected the title. To conceive a title and write up to it would be like writing your epitaph in youth and suiting your whole life to the phrases employed. As to the composite nature of the title, it was pre-destined from the beginning of the world. The almanacks had warned them of extraordinary conjunctions, and what could he do but yield to fate? Unlike the German, French and Irish, or even the Scotch, the English had no genius for secret societies, and might pass in or out of every country without any man thinking it worth while to ask them a question, and they were rather proud of their insignificance. In fact, in politics an Englishman sat upon the ground and need fear no fall. In a recent syllabus, or index of Papal edicts, it appeared that among things forbidden in the Catholic Church were socialism, communism, clandestine societies, Freemasonry, Bible societies, and clerico-literary societies, all of which were repeatedly condemned in various encyclical letters issued between 1846 and 1863. Freemasonry and all clandestine societies were reprobated by the Pope, and all their votaries excommunicated. The present Pope was the author of all these condemnations of Freemasonry, and he happened to be a Freemason. Excommunication was not visited upon those who imprisoned the Popes and warred against the Holy See, it was reserved for some few offences, nearly all of which consisted of some error of dogmatic religion. Englishmen agreed however that, as usual, there was no accounting for foreigners. It was quite another thing when Fenians blew up houses in London, and a distinguished nobleman and experienced Liberal politician, the head of English Freemasonry, became a Roman Catholic, and as a necessary consequence was compelled to abandon Freemasonry, which had been for a great many years a chief interest of his life. What he knew of Masons was all in their favour as a benevolent society, but it was the opinion of the experts of police that Englishmen were not admitted to a knowledge of the real objects of the order, and that although noblemen and princes might be called Grand Grands and Noble Grands, they were merely marionettes whose strings were pulled by a secret council sitting somewhere in Germany. Quoting from the "Mores Catholici," Dr. Hunter said it was believed that the only part the rich man bore in the order was analogous to that of the ass who bore the Bacchanalian mysteries. He did not know whether the Pope's excommunication of Masonry arose from his knowledge of its principles, but he dismissed as repugnant to common sense the idea that it was condemned because it was secret. One writer had said that the benevolent branch of the order was strongly discountenanced on the continent, and that the whole machinery was maintained for the purpose of gaining a bloody revenge for the death of one Jacques de Molay, who was unjustly put to death by Philip le Bel, King of France, and whose chief offence seems to have been a denial of the deity of Christ. He did not take this view of the thing; still, it was well to know something of the subject, and to review and arrange what they did know. It was very natural for the Pope and King to war against those who they were informed had vowed their destruction, but it did not require much logic to discriminate between a determination to avenge the merciless death of a friend and a continuous sympathy with that friend's denial of the cardinal principle of Catholicity. Dr Hunter now proceeded to sketch the early history of the Order of Knights Templar till the year 1307. At that time the designs for the conquest of Palestine had failed, and the King of France, Phillip IV., in conjunction with Pope Clement V., whose election he had obtained, appeared to have resolved on their overthrow, and after a short interval the Grand Master and 37 knights were executed upon charges of infidelity, denial of the divinity of Christ, and various other crimes. According to the police the secret of the Freemasons was no less than this—that on the death of De Molay a small number of Templars who escaped from France swore vengeance on the King of France and Pope of Rome, in perpetuity; in Scotland and other ends of the earth it was said they formed a Liberal and democratic conspiracy, which they veiled under form of an ancient trades union, and it was to them that Europe owed, in 1789, 1793, 1848, 1859, 1870, the humiliation of the Popes and the scattering of the Bourbons. The lecturer diverged for a short time to consider the denial of the Divinity of Christ, which was the chief crime of the Templars, and compared the heterodox thesis of Abelard on the Trinity, which illustrated the Triune Deity, by stating that it resembled a syllogism, of which the Father was the Major proposition, the Son the minor, and the Holy Ghost the conclusion, to the orthodox dogma of St. Bernard, in which the Divinity was compared to the human understanding, as consisting of memory, intelligence, and will. At the time the Templar organisation is said to have been reviving in the Hebrides the Rosicrucians sprung up in Germany, and during the 14th century certain literary societies in Italy were persecuted on the same grounds as the Templars. It is now stated, in order to convince the world of the danger in which it stands from the unsatisfied revenge of the Order, that there are 5000 lodges of Freemasons, with 8,000,000 members, of whom several hundred thousands are conspirators. It is alleged that only in the highest orders is the soul of Masonry divulged, and then to avenge the death of Jacques de Molay, "Philosophic Judge, Grand Commander Unknown," is held forth as the object of all the symbolism the Mason has before witnessed. Such an absurd amount of hatred still attaches to the very name of Templar that the veto of the Pope has been placed on a teetotal organisation recently started, and although the Worthy Grand Chief Templar and Worthy Grand Secretary have waited on Cardinal Manning with reference to the subject, they were unable to get the ban removed, and were told that the difficulties in the way of removing the disabilities are insuperable. Charles I. of England once threatened the president of the Society of the Rosy Cross with execution, and Frederick the Great of Prussia stated to Count Darnberg that the Freemasons "established a religious sect in their lodges." Prince Philip of Orleans was also a Freemason. After deprecating the idea of consistent revenge set forth by the foreign theorists on the subject, Dr. Hunter asked, "Is there any political importance in Freemasonry? I am inclined to think not." He said, "What say you? I do not claim to do more than report to you on this subject. But if this story is true and we must draw a moral, it shall not be pointed against the Roman Church, from whom we derive all our Christianity, nor against the Freemasons, whom I believe to be practised in genial virtues. The moral shall be 'Cave Canem,' 'Beware of the Dog.' If a man of ecclesiastic or Bourbonist turn of mind cannot keep his hands from heretics he may get a bite. He may go on well and hearty for years and yet live in fear, and possibly die a miserable death."

The Rev. J. Wright proposed the thanks of the meeting to Dr. Hunter for his suggestive and interesting lecture. He thought there was great probability in the assertion against the Templars, that they discussed religion amongst themselves with much freer views than the Catholic Church allowed, for their position was likely to give rise to speculation. Whether this speculation continued among the Freemasons he was not qualified to say, but he thought the story of their political tendency was one of the bugbears the continental police found necessary to their existence.

The Chairman asked the Rev. Brooke Harford, from Manchester, who is about to remove to Chicago, to address the meeting.

Mr. Harford was not quite sure the Templars were such immaculate martyrs as had been represented in the lecture, but all must have felt that the death they endured would wipe out the shame of even worse things than philosophic idleness. He thought also that the continental Freemasons were parties to political machinations. It was remarkable that in America, the country to which he was going, and which was apparently the freest country in the world, there were more secret societies than in any other land.

Dr. Hopkins, who announced himself as a Freemason of nearly 30 years' standing, complimented the lecturer on his interesting production, evidently prepared with much care, and wished emphatically to state that in England Freemasonry was not in any way hostile to any party whatever, but a society banded together with the object of doing good. It was their especial care to admit none among them knowingly unless, after considerable investigation, they believed their characters to be such as approved themselves to all right-thinking men. Only those were admitted who professed a belief in an Almighty Creator and Preserver, and in a future state. He stated that, believing the lecturer not to belong to the Order, he had felt considerable curiosity as to how he would treat the subject, and fearing that he might make an unfavourable attack upon it, he had come prepared to refute any hostile remarks, if necessary, and had requested several other members of the Craft to accompany him with that view. He was happy to find that such was not the case, and therefore contented himself with but few remarks, adding that the lateness of the hour prevented him from alluding to several points in the lecture on which he should otherwise have ventured to offer a few comments, in regard to which, however, his position manifestly required him to exercise considerable reservation. He concluded by assuring the audience that in England discussions on politics and religion in Freemasons' lodges are strictly forbidden by the Constitutions of the Fraternity.

Mr. Edmund White said that although he was a Mason of 50 years' standing, and had filled every attainable grade, from mortar boy upwards, he had learned particulars respecting Freemasonry that evening which it had afforded him great pleasure to hear expressed in the terms Dr. Hunter had employed, but which were totally at variance with his own experience and information. He had also had experience of modern Templarism, which was a benevolent Christian order, whose members were obliged to venerate the cross and practise other rites which it was impossible for him to particularise in a meeting not composed of Masons. He had much pleasure in seconding the vote of thanks.

The resolution having been carried, the meeting separated.

LITERARY INTELLIGENCE.—Mr. Whitaker, whose Almanack is so widely known, is about to publish a Weekly Penny Journal for popular reading. By providing a really interesting magazine, in which high-class fiction will form a considerable portion, and, by making the work thoroughly attractive, he hopes in some measure to counteract the influence now unhappily exercised by criminal and unwholesome literature, especially upon young readers.—"Academy."

INTERESTING PRESENTATION IN LIVERPOOL.

The last meeting of the companions of the Mariners' Chapter, No. 249, which took place on the 18th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, was specially interesting, as the opportunity was taken of presenting Comp. Wm. Doyle, P.Z. of the chapter, with his portrait (to be hung up in the Masonic Hall) as well as a very handsome jewel, to indicate the high esteem in which he is deservedly held by all his companions. The compliment was well earned, as Comp. Doyle has always shown his readiness to assist in every branch of Masonry, and he has further established his popularity by invariable urbanity, kindness, and generosity. The chapter was opened by Comps. H. Pearson, M.E.Z.; Hugh Williams, P.P.G.S.B. W.L., P.Z. 580, acting as H.; P. B. Gee being in the chair of J.; and amongst the others present were Comps. Wm. Doyle, P.Z.; A. Davies, S.E.; the Rev. P. Hains, S.N.; J. E. Jackson, P.S.; J. Wood, Treas.; W. H. Ball, Janitor; H. Firth, J. Croston, J. Hughes, R. Douglas, J. H. Gregory, E. T. Jones, P. Robbie, A. Cutter, J. Kerrison, W. Curtis, J. Frazer, E. Carter, E. Arkwright, W. P. Jennings, R. Carter, J. Griffiths, J. Normington, J. Archdeacon, M. Davies, J. Bewhill, T. Ellis, W. Brittain, J. E. Grant, C. Leighton, W. H. Shakespeare, and W. Firth. The visitors included Comps. H. Williams, P.Z. 580; J. Thornton, P.Z. 673, M.E.Z. 1183; H. Burrows, 673; A. C. Wylie, 1264; R. R. Martin, H. 1094; G. Musker, 673; J. Carlander, and T. Smyth, 673; R. C. Yelland, S.N. 1094; and J. Cramer, 303. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for two candidates, who were duly elected. As they were in attendance, they were afterwards prepared, admitted, and exalted by the M.E.Z. Comp. J. E. Jackson, P.S., did his work in a remarkably able and masterly manner, eliciting the admiration of the large gathering of companions. Comp. Pearson, M.E.Z., in a very telling speech, in the name of the companions of the Mariners' Chapter, presented Comp. W. Doyle, the Immediate Past Principal, with a very neat P.Z. jewel, as a small acknowledgment of the valuable services he had rendered to the chapter, and the great pains he had taken in personally introducing so many good and valuable companions into the chapter during his year of office as M.E.Z., so that the "Mariners' Chapter" was now one of the largest in the province. Comp. Doyle responded in feeling and appropriate terms. After various propositions for exaltation had been made, and hearty good wishes expressed by visitors for the Z., the chapter was closed in due form. The companions then retired to the banquetting room, where an excellent supper was provided. After the usual toasts had been given and responded to, the M.E.Z. rose, and in a highly complimentary address presented Comp. W. Doyle, P.Z., with a large and valuable portrait of himself in oil, in handsome gilt frame, surmounted and surrounded by Masonic emblems. The portrait was executed by the eminent firm of "Vandyke and Brown" (Bro. Richard Brown, and Co., sole proprietors), and reflected the highest credit upon the well-known artists, who have a world-wide reputation. Bro. the Rev. Philip Hains, S.N., also spoke in highly eulogistic terms of the many valuable qualities possessed by Comp. Doyle. In acknowledging the splendid presentation, Comp. Doyle, who seemed much affected, said—Most E. and Companions,—I rise with much pleasure, but a great amount of difficulty, to respond to the honour you have just done me. With difficulty, well knowing how incapable I am of finding words to thank you sufficiently for the great honour you have done me this evening in presenting me with this magnificent work of art. I know that I am expected to say a few words; but, companions, you little know the effort it requires. It has caused me to review my Masonic life, when some 15 years ago I became a Mason, and shortly afterwards was made I.G., and how I thought I should like to become W.M. of the lodge in course of time. My companions, after passing through several offices, it pleased the brethren to unanimously place me in the chair. I thought then that it was impossible for me ever to receive any more favours, when after three years it pleased them a second time to elect me. From that time honours have been bestowed upon me in all directions, amongst them Prov. G. Deacon of West Lancashire, Constable of the Prov. of Lancashire in the Knight Templars, and the very high position of Third Principal of Prov. G. Chapter of W.L. sufficient honours, my companions, to flatter the most vain of men; but, to crown all, you have thought me worthy of a portrait—an honour that a king might be proud of, more especially when I am sure it is accompanied with such good and kind feeling, as I am sure it is, from every member of this chapter. Thanking you, M.E. for the very flattering manner you were pleased to speak of me, and you, most worthy Chaplain, for your kindness and good wishes, allow me to add that I trust, when time with me shall be no more, that those who may look on this picture, which will live long after I am gone, will think of me at least with kindness. Companions, once more from my heart I thank you.

The three chiefs, the officers, the newly-exalted, and the visitors were afterwards toasted, and the harmonious proceedings closed at an early hour.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Much watchfulness must be exercised as winter advances, and the earliest evidences of ill-health must be immediately checked or removed; or a slight illness may result in a serious malady. Relaxed and Sore Throat, Diphtheria, Quinsy, Throat Cough, Chronic Cough, Bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections, will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as near as practicable to the seat of mischief. This treatment, so simple and effective, is admirably adapted for the removal of these diseases during infancy and youth. Old Asthmatic Invalids will derive marvellous relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have brought round many such sufferers, and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.—ADVT.

may be termed didactic Masonry, of esoteric teaching. But we do not find that such writing takes with the generality of our readers, and we feel persuaded that our publisher's course has been from the beginning, and still is, a wise one, and the only correct one, to give to a large and increasing clientèle, as good an account, hebdomadally, as he can, of Masonic life amongst us at the present hour, superadding those necessary leading articles, those items of intelligence, and judicious selections of passing Masonic literature, which tend to give variety to the crowded pages of the "Freemason," and make it alike readable and welcome wherever it goes, a true exponent of the actual wants, and wishes, and feelings, and fancies of our universal Craft.

MASONIC LITTLENESSES.

It has been said that everybody has his littlenesses, and that no one is a "hero to his valet de chambre." Even we Freemasons are not above the frailty and littlenesses of humanity, and such being admittedly the case, we think it well didactically to impress this little fact on the attention of our many readers to-day. Now there are two especial forms of these Masonic littlenesses of ours, to tell of no others which greatly affect us as journalists, and to which we feel compelled to allude, though, we trust, in all good humour, and we are sure in a truly Masonic spirit. One is the readiness of a correspondent to take offence because his special contribution is not put in immediately, or because he sees something which he does not like. Now, we venture to ask our many kind friends and good readers, why do they as Freemasons so deal with us poor Masonic journalists? They do not for one moment think of doing so with a profane paper, or, in technical phraseology, that is, the "Times," or "Standard," or "Bell's Life," or the "Saturday Review." Why should they then do so with the humbler "Freemason"? They must see many things in all and each they do not like, but in that case they do not quarrel with "their bread and butter." But no sooner do they notice some trifling matter in the "Freemason," which they think they may complain of or find fault with, than, hey presto! comes a letter of complaint, or of notice of non-subscription any longer. Now, we think that this is not quite fair to us, and we must beg to call attention to such, as we deem them, Masonic littlenesses. That the "Freemason" has been conducted, and is conducted, with the greatest care and circumspection is, we think, evident to all; that occasional errors may be exhibited we do not for one moment deny—indeed, we rather affirm that such slips, either of pen or type, are necessarily to be expected. But on the whole we are quite prepared to challenge a comparison with any other contemporary journal, and we must beg therefore all our friends and correspondents to make for us the same needful allowances they make so readily for other newspapers. Mistakes will occur in the best regulated families, and printers' errors are often many and peculiarly trying to the helpless writer, but, such as they are, they are a call for Masonic consideration and patience rather than for anything else. A correspondent can always, as a general rule, have his contribution inserted. He must have a little patience sometimes, alike with publisher and editor, and it is not fair to visit on their devoted heads what is alike inevitable and unavoidable often is merely a temporary delay, or the admission of what had better perhaps not have appeared. There is an amusing story told of a brother who met the publisher of a journal and said to him, "I have stopped the paper." "Dear me," said the publisher, "come to the office." When he got there he said to the kindly brother, "you must be mistaken, the paper is going on as usual." "Oh!" said the other, "I mean I have stopped my paper." That, replied the publisher, is altogether another pair of shoes. When the irate swell of old days said to Hoby, the boot-maker, "Mr. Hoby, I shall withdraw my custom," "Thomas," said Hoby immediately, "put up the shutters, Captain Jones withdraws his custom." And in the same way we sometimes smile, when for some little petty trifle not worth mentioning, we receive the announcement, "I shall not subscribe to the 'Freemason' any longer." At this period of the year, when

This good year is growing old,
The fogs are heavy, and the weather cold, and when all tells us of another closing cycle of time, we are also naturally reminded of another trifling but amiable littleness of many of our worthy confreres. We all remember that agreeable gentleman in "Nicholas Nickleby" who liked to leave little accounts owing; and just at this moment we have a vivid appreciation of the fact that we have a good many petty accounts owing for the "Freemason." Many brethren seem sometimes to forget that the weekly publication of the "Freemason" costs money, that somebody must pay for it, that printers, and reporters, and writers have to be subsidized. But they don't like to be asked for "little accounts." We none of us do, and often when the demand for a year's subscription is made, there comes back a P.O. Order, with the magic and fraternal word "discontinue." Now, we hope all will take well what we have now ventured to intimate, as we have spoken in all geniality of feeling and all fraternal goodwill. We feel almost as regards some good friends of ours, whose amiable weaknesses we deplore (as much as we deplore any thing in this queer world), like the two Irishmen mentioned in the following paragraph. "Mike, have you settled that affair with Lewis yet? "Yes, he kicked me off the step last week, and since that he has stopped bothering me." Verbum sat sapienti.

A NEW FREEMASONRY.

Some years ago it was our lot to preach to a friendly Order, on its anniversary, called the "New Delight." An old, and kind, and witty friend of ours walked up in the evening to our quondam home, and said to us, "I hear you have been preaching to the New Delight. Well, the world is old, and I am old, and you are not so young as you were, and as most of the old delights are worn out, I am anxious to learn what this New Delight really is." Somewhat similar will be the anxiety, we think, of our brethren to hear something about a new Freemasonry. "What's the new idea?" says Bro. Jones. "What is it all about?" says Bro. Robinson. "What is there in it?" says Bro. Brown. So we think it well shortly to reply to-day to these fraternal questions. It seems that there is in London a French Bro. Valleton, who has an idea that he has a call apparently to reconstruct Freemasonry, and to regenerate humanity. He is the same brother who made an attack on English Freemasonry some time back, principally apparently on the ground that there were "chaplains" in the lodges, that even "clerical" were admitted into Freemasonry in England. It is sad for us in England to note this absurd dislike of the clerical profession per se, which is patent in many foreign writers and brethren. Indeed, it often reminds us how prejudices may become hatreds, if wrongly persisted in, until they culminate, like as at Paris not long ago, in the destruction of unoffending victims, and the cruel murder of the excellent and virtuous Archbishop Darboy. Well, Bro. Valleton, who is, we believe, an able man scientifically, but whose views are clearly very "prononcés" has invented what he terms "Maçonnerie du Rite Occidental." Our cautious and able Bro. Caubet, in the "Monde Maconique" of September-October, 1875, tells us that he has received the programme of the "Maçonnerie anthropologique du Rite Occidental," "autour lequel se commencement d'agitation fait en Angleterre, et sur le continent." We almost wonder that a cautious Masonic old bird like Bro. Caubet could be taken in by such nonsense. As for anything being known about it in England, we can safely say that nothing is really known beyond some little café near "Lester Square." We also can, without hesitation, freely declare that it is not at all likely to meet either the principles, or tastes, or feelings, or views of Englishmen. As a curiosity, we give the programme:—

We have not translated the French, for it is perfectly easy, and our space is limited. We fancy that for most English Freemasons the perusal will be enough, and that they will not be very anxious to hear much more about this new mystico, socialistico, Fourieristico, revolutionistico, democratico, androgynistico, Freemasonry. How any one can call such a programme Masonic, or suppose that he can enlist adherents under such a banner we will not stop to discuss. We will only add our conviction that all English Freemasons who read this programme will prefer "stare super via antiquas," will recur lovingly and devotedly to the true and better teachings of our good old Anglo-Saxon Craft, which has weathered the storm of many years, which, ever a friend to order, liberty, and peace, is necessarily opposed to revolution, anarchy, and socialism, and upholds "yesterday, to-day, and for ever," its own unchanging principles of freedom, toleration, truth, honour, right, and duty, brotherly love, loyalty, and charity.

MASONIC LIBRARIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is impossible to over-estimate the advantages to be derived from a well-selected and well-stocked Masonic library. Masonic books having but a circumscribed field, are, of necessity, expensive; and so the student, who frequently possesses more zeal than funds, is beset with difficulties that are apt to cause him to despair of acquiring the desired knowledge, and ultimately drive him into relinquishing the pursuit. In Masonic, as in scientific or philosophical literature, it is not sufficient to read but one or two books, for one work is so based upon another, or written in refutation, that unless the system can be taken entire, and in proper order, the process is unsatisfactory and even dangerous. The Entered Apprentice is charged "to make a daily advancement in Masonic knowledge;" the Fellow Craft is charged "to extend his researches into the hidden mysteries of nature and science;" yet how few opportunities there are of carrying out these objects. We have now nearly 1600 lodges on the roll of the United Grand Lodge of England; we wonder how many lodges have a library connected with them. We could count them on our two hands, we fear. It seems to us a most surprising matter that in many of the large towns in the Midland and Northern counties why the lodges do not unite in the formation of a Masonic library. Let but a few energetic members in a town get together a representative committee, which sets to work quietly, getting a grant from each lodge and donations of Masonic books, or money from individuals, and they will be surprised at the amount of support they will receive. Once get the interest of the brethren aroused to the sense of their loss, once get them to feel the manifold advantages of such a library, and the results (if they are but small at starting) will in time gladden the hearts of the promoters; for the dissemination of the many glorious (yet hidden) beauties of our Order, the purification of the mind consequent upon the study of such ennobling works, the exemplification of the Divine truths embraced in the disquisitions of the Craft, require but the proper channel to arrest the attention of its members, when they must speedily sink deep into the hearts of all true Masons. Let us take the case of a liberal-minded man just received into our Order, with which he is favourably impressed; put within his reach the means of comprehending its principles, he soon passes his expectations and finds himself on a new track, the surroundings of which surprise, delight, and ultimately charm him. By the time that he masters but a moiety it elevates his mind, tones down its asperities, and as a Masonic student he does not merely acquire the fascinating lore of the Craft, but attains a calm, peaceful, and Christian-like philosophy, which attribute helps to make up the sum of life into a pleasurable period.

We would not suggest that every lodge should possess a library, because where there are two or more lodges in a town great advantages are to be gained by joining. We trust, however, whether singly or united, that the day is not far distant when every lodge will have a Masonic library attached to it.

In conclusion, we would remark that in these days of high-pressure matters of this kind are apt to get overlooked by the younger members, and pooh-poohed by the older members, but we would wish to express a sincere hope that our remarks may be carefully weighed and fall on some good ground, for we should feel proud to record some results. Our readers must see that it stands somewhat to the disgrace of a powerful society like ours if it allows such schemes as Masonic libraries to fail for want of funds. The literary ability is (at present) in the hands of so very few members of the Craft that anything that would extend Masonic literature is desirable; for if we once get Masonic readers they would soon develop into thinkers, and ultimately into Masonic writers. More workers in the field we should welcome with delight.

Yours fraternally,

S. B. E.

JOINING MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The letter of "Enquirer" opens up a subject of great interest to many brothers I know, and to myself in particular. I have frequently heard it argued that initiates have a superior claim to office in the lodge to a joining member. I know that a step-mother will probably have a greater affection for her own children, but, to say the least of it, she is very indiscreet should she allow that affection to cause her to show partiality in her household management. Your correspondent in the instance quoted by him does not say which was the older member of the lodge, the I.P.M. or the J.D., who was made J.W.; if the latter, I do not see any great cause of jealousy. For my own part, as one who anxiously looks forward to attaining the rank of an Installed Master, I am quite willing that all older members of the lodge, irrespective of the time they may have been Masons (if qualified), should have the precedence, but for one to go before me who was initiated after I joined the lodge would be another thing, and I should "ask the reason why." But the whole subject is one of difficulty and delicacy—difficulty from the fact that so many material circumstances may give a peculiarity to any case, and delicacy as it is apt to be an undue interference with the prerogative of the W.M.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

A JOINING MEMBER.

A PAST MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in the "Freemason" of Nov. 27th a letter signed by Henry Ingham (who styles himself a Past Master), Batley. The purport of his letter does not prompt me to reply so much as the manner in which he assumes the title of Past Master.

As a Past Master, and the Secretary of the Trafalgar Lodge, No. 971, Batley, I beg to state that Bro. H. Ingham has no such rank as P.M., inasmuch as he has not contributed to any Craft Lodge since March 1875.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JIM SHEARD.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read many letters on the management of the Masonic Boys' School, none of which appear to me to meet the object of the writers, nor that of the committee, which is now engaged in investigating the various items of expenditure of that establishment. I am not going to challenge a figure or a word issued by the committee in their annual report, as to their accuracy or otherwise; nor will I for one moment call in question the character, integrity, or devotion of my good Bro. Binckes. I think he is a most earnest, indefatigable Secretary, and that the school owes much of its success to his untiring industry and love of duties.

I will now take the liberty of drawing the attention of the Boys' School Committee to a few facts, which will show to them the rate of expenditure per head in their and other kindred institutions. At page 42 in the Boys' report, the ordinary expenses are stated at £6840; at page 41 a list of extraordinary expenses occur, which I consider nothing more than yearly charges, and must be included with the former, which will make the cost per boy about £51 each.

On examining the Commercial Travellers' School, to which I have subscribed from the foundation, I find that the entire cost per head, including all charges, is £30 4s.; the London Orphan, I am also interested in, costs £31 6s. 3d.; Ackworth School, £31 10s. 6d.; Sidcot, £33 19s. 4d.; Yorkshire Boys, £33 0s. 0d. But to go a little further into these calculations and costs of the various departments,

I have prepared a statement of the above schools, and beg to give them for the information of the committee and subscribers of the Masonic Boys' School.

	Number.	Cost per head.	Maintenance.	Clothing.	Masters.	Servants.	Office.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Masonic Boys	156	51 0 0	16 4 0	7 11 6	6 0 0	2 4 0	8 0 0
London Orphan,	491	31 6 3	12 0 0	3 10 0	4 15 0	2 0 0	2 8 0
Commercial Travellers	228	30 4 0	12 0 0	0 0 0	4 0 0	2 0 0	4 0 0
Ackworth	290	31 10 6	16 0 0	2 4 0	8 10 0	1 7 6	15 0

It will be seen from the above statement that the cost of our boys is £20 os. od. above the London Orphan or Commercial Travellers' Schools.

I know full well that the education given in the above schools is all that is necessary to fit a boy to fill any commercial situation in life. They are well fed, clothed, and can take an equal standard with any school in the kingdom of the same nature. As a life governor of the Boys' School, I feel that the cost per boy should be reduced to at least £36 os. od., thus saving the large sum of £2340, or sufficient to educate sixty more boys than the present number. In offering the above remarks, I am actuated with a sincere desire for the extended usefulness of the institution, and I trust that the facts which I have brought forward will meet with the kind consideration of the House Committee, who have laboured zealously in the administration of its affairs.

I beg to remain, yours fraternally,

CHARLES PEGLER.

THE LODGE OF TRUTH, 1458.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to your correspondent, signing himself "A Junior Member," he is evidently annoyed at my "so called" report of the meeting of the above lodge on November 6th. I am surprised he should doubt the truthfulness of the "so called" report, as I am anxious to observe it on all occasions. If "A Junior Member" will communicate direct with me I will put him in possession of a few facts of which he is not aware. I may here say that a dispensation would have been granted had Bro. Pearson been elected W.M. I quite agree with "A Junior Member" as to the high esteem in which Bro. Pearson is held by the members of 1458, and most deservedly so, and there is no greater admirer of his truly Masonic character than myself. I can only in justice pay the same tribute to Bro. Kent; and now he is W.M. elect, on his occupying the chair of K.S. I wish him a happy and prosperous year.

My "so called" report was not expected to raise a newspaper correspondence, and I do not intend entering upon one, therefore this will conclude the matter so far as I am concerned. If "A Junior Member" feels himself aggrieved, he can get my address from the Secretary of the lodge, and I will then convince him that my "so called" report was not intended to cause any uneasiness or unpleasantness to any member of the lodge.

There are many remarks in a "A Junior Member's" letter that I do not consider Masonic. I am not aware that my "so called" report makes any remark "disparaging" to Bro. Kent; if it does, I am sorry for it, and offer Bro. Kent publicly an apology.

In conclusion, I may frankly say that anything that has emanated from my pen was not intended to cause uneasiness to any member of the lodge.

I shall be glad to hear from your correspondent privately, and I think I can give him a satisfactory answer to all his queries.

By inserting this in your next impression you will oblige, yours faithfully and fraternally,

THE WRITER OF THE "SO CALLED" REPORT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your issue of the 20th ult. appears a report of the meeting of Lodge of Truth, 1458, Manchester. This report, so far as it relates to the election of W.M., is calculated to mislead those not conversant with the circumstance, in consequence of the omission of a very important fact, viz., that Bro. Pearson, if elected, could not have been installed, except under dispensation from the M.W. Grand Master, he being now W.M. of the Wilton, 1077, his year of office not expiring until the first Monday in February. This is why the J.W. was elected, not that he was preferred to Bro. Pearson, who fully merits all that has been said of his abilities as a worker; at the same time the reports which have appeared in your valuable paper during the year is sufficient proof that the W.M. elect is well up in his work, and I have full confidence will be found to possess the other qualifications for the duties of Master. That the result could be a surprise to many is impossible, the J.W. having 17 and the S.W. 3 votes out of 22 members present. I should not have troubled you with these details had I not felt the strong remarks in reference to the junior members unmerited by them, also that they reflect upon the W.M. elect.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

HENRY SMITH, W.M. 1458.

FREEMASONRY IN ST. PETERSBURG.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to Bro. G.C., I think I may safely say that there is no lodge, either English, French or Russian, in St. Petersburg. Some seven or eight years ago I introduced into Masonry a friend of mine, who was leaving this country to reside at Moscow. I learnt from him, some time after, that although there were Freemasons amongst the citizens, there was no lodge in Moscow, and he was informed that there were no lodges in Russia.

GRAND LODGE DIPLOMAS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Could you kindly in your next impression inform me, and several brethren interested, if a brother when he receives the M.M. Degree is bound to come to his mother lodge for his diploma and write his signature on the margin in open lodge, or is the lodge bound to send his diploma to his residence and allow him to write his signature on the margin out of lodge room altogether.

By kindly giving information on these questions you will much oblige,

Yours fraternally,

AN INQUIRING M.M.

RAMSAY AND FREEMASONRY, A.D. 1738.

I have had my attention drawn to the fact that a copy of the curious work I noticed last week occurred for sale in Bro. Spencer's large library; its authorship being ascribed to Ramsay.

I am sorry I failed to notice the work in question at Bro. Spencer's sale, and shall feel much obliged if the purchaser of Lot 3 (in which the book was) on the catalogue will kindly communicate with me, or mention in the pages of the "Freemason" the character of the "Relation Historique et Apologetique," and especially as to the author.

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

HAMMATT LODGE, EAST BOSTON, U.S.A.

In answer to Bro. Vinal, I have searched the "Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts" for 1875, and find that the Hammatt Lodge, East Boston, has for its Secretary Bro. Samuel L. Fowle (of East Boston), through whom application should be made for the purpose desired. Bro. Vinal's friend surely must know some members of the Hammatt Lodge who can vouch for his respectability, as all would hinge on his character. Added to which, the W.M. and members of the lodge must be consulted, as it is not usual for Grand Lodge in the United States to issue certificates, but the lodges do so.

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

YORK MASONRY.

I have perused with interest the letters of Bro. Yarker and the Masonic Student as to the degrees recognised by the "Grand Lodge of all England," formerly held at York. Bro. Yarker, in the "Freemason" for Nov. 6th, says that body "never did acknowledge the Mark or any analogous degree; it only recognised the Royal Arch, Knights Templar, and Priestly Order of Melchisedek" (i.e., beyond the Master Mason).

Our brother, the "Masonic Student," writes in the following number to say such an assertion as to the Knights Templar and Priestly Order is new to him and me.

I am quite certain that Bro. Yarker is correct in stating that the Knights Templar Degrees were recognised by the York Grand Lodge, for such was agreed to at a meeting of that body held on the 20th June, 1780, but not before; and a few years later it ceased to exist. At the present day, and in fact at the "Union of 1813," it had not a legal representative in existence—either a lodge or chapter—and so its extinction is complete, though virtually it will never be without a relative to carefully treasure its records whilst the York Lodge continues its most useful and honourable career.

In page 17 of my "Unpublished Records of the Craft" (also page 147, American edition, "Masonic Sketches and Reprints") I give full particulars of the event. The re-

LAYING THE MEMORIAL STONE OF THE ACADEMY AT KILMARNOCK.

In accordance with previous arrangements the memorial stone of the New Academy Public School was, on Saturday afternoon, the 20th ult., laid with Masonic honours, in the presence of several thousand spectators. The brethren met in the Corn Exchange Hall and Butter Market, and, having been formed in order, marched along King-street and St. Marnock-street to North Hamilton-street. There were deputations from the following lodges:—Mother Kilwinning, 0; St. John, Glasgow, 3½; St. John, Kilmarnock, 22; Navigation, Troon, 86; St. Marnock, Kilmarnock, 126; Thistle, Stewarton, 127; St. John, Kilwinning, Beith, 157; Thistle and Rose, Stewarton, 167; St. Mary's, Mauchline, 179; St. Clement's, Riccarton, 202; St. Peter's, Galston, 331; Neptune, Ardrossan, 442; St. John, Catrin, 497; Burns, St. Mary, Halford, 505; Clydesdale, Glasgow, 556; and Dramatic, Glasgow, 571. There were also present and assisting R. W. Cochran Patrick, Trearner, D.P.G.M.; W. Ralston Patrick, Sub-Pro G.M.; J. G. Halket, P.S.P.G.M.; D. Murray Lyon, P.S.G.W.; John McKay, acting Prov. G.J.W.; Rev. Alex. Inglis, Kilmaurs, P.G. Chaplain; Robert Wyllie, J.P., Prov. G.S.; and John Whinton, P.G.T. All the preparations being complete, Provost Sturrock presented Bro. C. Patrick with a handsome silver trowel, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. R. W. Cochran Patrick, Esq., of Woodside, D.P.G.M., on the occasion of the laying of the memorial stone of Kilmarnock Academy Public School with Masonic honours on the 20th November, 1875." The usual ceremony of applying the plummet, level, and square, and pouring the wine and oil, and inserting a bottle with various papers and documents, was then gone through, and the Grand Chaplain, the Rev. Bro. Inglis, offered an appropriate and impressive prayer. The Grand Master then, amid three cheers, declared the memorial stone duly and properly laid.

Bro. Patrick then gave a short address. Seventy years ago the provost and magistrates of Kilmarnock, assisted by the Masons, laid the foundation stone of the old Academy. More than two generations have passed since that time, and the School Board, assisted by the Masons have met and assisted in laying the foundation stone of a larger, more commodious, and handsome building. It was right and proper that Masons as a body should be present on such an occasion, as one of their great objects as a body was to make men better. And on no occasion did they come with more alacrity than to promote education. Time was when Scotchmen were found to fill any situation where honesty and integrity were required to fill them, and it is so still. For this they were doubtless much indebted to their peculiar national character, but more so to the system of education which prevailed, and which was the glory of the country. Circumstances have now greatly changed. The population was now gathered in great centres, and there was a fear lest the national character should deteriorate. Hence the necessity of better and more extended means of education, and so the Education Act was passed. By its operation we find large numbers of buildings similar to the one they were now in being erected to provide elementary education for the young. It must be very gratifying to the School Board of Kilmarnock to know that now there were 750 more children receiving education than there were two years ago. Bro. Patrick then urged the need for the establishment throughout the country not only of elementary but of secondary schools, where our youths could be trained to pass into our universities, and where a higher intellectual training could be given than in ordinary public schools. He was sure there was in the country vast numbers who, if properly trained, would be able to sift truth, and be able to guide in a right direction that popular opinion which ruled the country. He was glad the Board had appointed a gentleman who would be a finished teacher of the young, and he hoped their successors in office would see to it that the higher branches of education would not suffer, and the Academy Public School would raise and send out men who would prove a credit to the town and to Scotland. (Applause.)

Mr. James Blackwood, convenor of the Building Committee, in thanking the D.P.G.M. for coming to take part in the proceedings, expressed the hope that the Kilmarnock New Academy would excel the old one, and that in time it would be the great centre of education in Ayrshire. The proceedings then terminated, and the procession marched backed to the town, when the lodges separated.

The members of the School Board, the Town Council, and the members of the P.G.L. afterwards dined in the George Hotel. In the unavoidable absence of ex Provost Dickie, Mr. James Blackwood occupied the chair, and Provost Sturrock officiated as Croupier. After dinner and the usual loyal and constitutional toasts, "The Health of Bro. C. Patrick, D.P.G.M." was given by the Chairman.

Bro. Patrick, in his reply, again urged the necessity for establishing secondary schools throughout the country, and the founding of bursaries to assist the clever sons of working-class men. There was no fear of such education ever injuring the country or the men in it, as they had Christian truths and Christian doctrines to guide them, and to enable them at all times to separate truth from error and humbug. "Success to the New Academy" was proposed by the Croupier, and replied to by Mr. Logan. Mr. Shaw proposed "The School Board," which was replied to by the Chairman. Other toasts were given and replied to, and the meeting broke up.

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. NINIAN LODGE AT NAIRN, N.B.

The Masons of Nairn and neighbourhood assembled together at two o'clock on Friday, the 19th ult., for the purpose of consecrating a lodge, which was dedicated to the patron saint of the town, viz., St. Ninian. The consecrating brother was Bro. J. Davidson, P.G.C. of Banffshire, who is held in the highest esteem by all the brethren in the Highlands. The ceremony, which was performed in the most impressive manner, elicited the warmest expressions of approbation from the brethren present. The consecrating brother was well supported by Bro. W.M.'s Guyere, Harris, Mackenzie, Mackintosh, Simpson, and others. Bro. T. B. Pegler, first Principal of the St. Andrew's Chapter (the oldest) of Banff, then delivered a very eloquent and masterly oration on the great principles of Freemasonry, which was much approved by the brethren present. Bro. Davidson then proceeded to instal Bro. T. B. Pegler, of 52, 92, 339, 837 lodges, the latter (Marquis of Ripon) being his mother lodge. His election met with the heartiest approbation from all present, and it is only just to add that few if any brother has done so much to perfect himself in all our ceremonies during his residence of 47 years in the Highlands. His Ripon brethren may be justly proud of their young son, for all the honours he has received he justly merits. Bros. Morrison and Simpson were appointed Wardens; Mackintosh, Treasurer; Howard Harris, Secretary, who with the W.M. have done much towards establishing this lodge. At the conclusion, 10 gentlemen were proposed for initiation, and Bro. Davidson, P.G.C.; Wm. Guyere, of Kingussie; and Bro. C. Pegler, of 52, 304, 837, 1036, and 555, were elected honorary members, the latter having exercised his good offices in assisting in the formation of the lodge. The brethren adjourned for dinner to the Havelock Hotel, presided over most ably by the W.M. elect. After the usual loyal toasts, Bro. Howard Harris proposed "Success to the St. Ninian Lodge," and gave a history of the ancient lodge, going back to 1608. In a minute book of that date it is stated that the two previous minute books are in the possession of Bro. ———. Deputy Master Mackenzie then proposed "The W.M.'s Health," ably supported by Bro. Davidson, who said that he had known the W.M. since he first came amongst them, and had watched his advancement in Masonic knowledge with much interest, and he could assure the brethren of 555 that the choice they had made that day would afford them every opportunity of being second to none in the Highlands. The toast was received with Masonic and real Highland honours. Other appropriate toasts then followed, including "The Health of Bro. C. Pegler of Leeds," father of the W.M., who is a most liberal, kind-hearted brother, ready to help those in need. The brethren retired at 11 o'clock upon Forbes Mackenzie's name being introduced.

Reviews.

"THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE 2ND CHRISTIAN EPOCH."

We do not ordinarily review books of religious teaching in the "Freemason," but we confess we have been so much struck with this little work that we cannot forbear saying a few words about it.

The writer is anonymous, but calls himself a "Christian." We do not exactly know to what special denomination he belongs. He is apparently a "nondescript," and also—we say it very kindly and respectfully—a little "off the nut." The truth is, that his work is nothing but a reproduction of "Fourierism," with a peculiar colouring of a very peculiar Christianity indeed. His aim is apparently to revive the theories of that amiable, and probably well-intentioned, but mistaken visionary, "Fourier," and to reproduce his "Utopia," which is not and could not be an Utopia at all, but only a complication of benevolent aspirations and impossible contrivances.

Indeed, the whole theory of Fourier becomes grotesque from its almost puerile absurdity of detail, its incongruous arrangements, and its hopeless proposals of alteration and revolution of social existence.

The world may have many anomalies, inconsistencies and inequalities, no doubt it has many wrongs to redress, and many reforms to witness in the tone and system of society generally; but, we are sure of this, that among the many chimeras of the world, and of reformers, few have been so idle as those of the benevolent but mistaken Fourier.

This work has two parts—one religious, the other social.

The religious is very painful to read; the social is, as we have said, an expanded Fourierism, and perfectly unpractical and impracticable. A more hopeless effort of the human brain, a more unreal chirograph of the human pen we have never perused. It is indeed "chaos" from beginning to end. The only one page in the book we agree with is the last, and which we commend to the notice of many now-a-days who will force their painful platitudes and weary and dreary essays on an ungrateful public. "The writer of this little book having now accomplished the mission . . . entrusted to him will write no more, and henceforth will remain unknown, . . . will keep his mouth shut, and lay aside his pen. Therefore, should any one say he has again written, or has said so, believe it not, but consider the teller of the untruth an impostor, and make the teller amenable to the criminal law."

How many unprofitable writers might well imitate the example of this shrinking and self-denying author? Indeed, Præd, in one of his witty couplets, even gives the same advice, though in a different way, to the softer sex, to which we yield our bachelor assent to-day:—

"I wish some girls that I could name
Were half as silent as their pictures."

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

Since leaving Madras His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been to Beypore, and reached Colombo on the 1st of December. He landed at 4 p.m. that day, and was very well received. He was much pleased with everything. He was to leave for Kandy on the 2nd; the next three days were to be quiet; and he was to go to Tuticorin on the 8th.

COMPARATIVE COST OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We print elsewhere a letter from Bro. C. Pegler, of Leeds, on this subject, and which, as it does not happily turn on the late personal controversy, we admit readily into our pages. We feel sure that our Boys' School will not suffer from any fair discussion, but rather gain in every way. We also deem it right to call attention to Bro. Pegler's letter, because it is practically the revival of the question, which was settled so far back as 1869, in the Province of West Yorkshire, to which Bro. Pegler belongs. Bro. Pegler has not read, or at any-rate remembered the special report of the Charity Committee, October, 28th, 1868, which is signed A. F. A. Woodford and R. A. Nelson, and which specially dealt, and dealt exhaustively with the important question of "comparative cost." Before then we notice Bro. C. Pegler's letter, we think it well to reproduce the passages of that report which treated on the "comparative cost." "As questions have arisen from time to time relative to the cost of the boys in the school, the committee think it right to say a few words on that head. The cost of the boys per head to the close of 1867 for actual domestic and educational expenditure, including office expenses and the education of boys out of the school, amounted to £36 12s. 2½d., including office expenses, rates and taxes, and all expenditure, to £46 15s. 1d., or £1 2s. 1d. less than in 1866. No doubt this seems at first sight a large amount, but on analysis it is susceptible of satisfactory explanation. The Freemasons' Boys' School is made up of very different classes of society, and requires therefore a higher standard alike in clothing, food, and education, than is given to the orphans of merely eleemosynary institutions, or boys of any one particular class. It must always also be borne in mind that the object of the Boys' School is not to make our boys charity boys, or to reduce them to the level of a pauper institution, but to give them the same education they would have had had God spared the lives of their parents, so as to fit them for the social position they were destined, humanly speaking, to fill. And we must always keep this before us when we consider the cost of the education given in the Boys' School, or compare it with that of any other. A careful analysis of the Boys' School per head, with that of several of the London institutions of somewhat of a kindred nature, gives the following result:—The expenditure per head is in excess of such schools as the Commercial Travellers', Warehousemen and Clerks', British Orphan, City Freemans' Orphan School, St. Anne's, London Orphan—but is equal to that of the Clergy Orphan, and less than that of the Royal Medical Benevolent. The much larger numbers in almost all the schools will in every case account for the difference in expenditure. For instance, the office expenses in the Boys' are larger per head than all the other schools, simply because of the limited number of boys. Whereas in the London Orphan, with 145 girls and 290 boys, the office expenses are £3 12s. 3½d. per head, or in round numbers £1,520; in the Commercial Travellers' with 125 boys and 60 girls, in all 191, £7 7s. 5d. per head, in round numbers £1,400; in the Clergy Orphan, with 14 girls and 96 boys, in all 179, £4 4s. 8½d., in round numbers £751. Our Boys' School is £9 1s. 10½d. per head, in all £909 9s. 9d. for 104 boys. If the number of boys could be increased to 150, and eventually to 200, this expenditure would not be increased in the aggregate, and would show a reduction per head of from four to five pounds! As regards clothing, the expenditure of the boys is larger per head than all the charities mentioned. We give the boys two suits of good clothing a year, an extra pair of trousers, and linen and underclothing in great liberality. This is unusual in other schools, but has tended much to the health of the boys. As regards food—we give the boys of the best, and the consequence is an infirmary always empty, and a school of healthy, active, and happy lads, of whom their medical man says, they are both a pleasure and a marvel. As it may interest the Provincial Grand Lodge to know what is the amount per head spent in food by the other charities, the committee append a tabular statement, and if an average is taken of these eight schools it will appear to be £13 14s. 6d., or £1 2s. 4½d. in excess of what is paid in the Boys' School—£12 12s. 2½d. per head."

	Boys.	Girls.	Total.	Cost of Food per head.

Such was the argument, fairly stated, in 1868, and we do not fancy that much change if any is required for 1875, except a slight readjustment of figures more or less. It might be very interesting if Bro. Binckes could ascertain how far the published reports of 1874 of the institutions mentioned in 1868, still keep proportionally the same normal amount of expenditure per head. We believe that the position taken up by the West Yorkshire Charity Committee of 1868, is a true representation of statistical facts, and the best answer to any hasty or fallacious assumptions. With regard to the institutions mentioned by Bro. C. Pegler, two remarks necessarily occur to all who have studied the great question involved in all its bearings for years. With regard to the Provincial Schools cited, Bro. C. Pegler must add, as he himself knows well, at least 35 per cent for the different cost as between London and Provincial living, and as regards the London schools, it must be seen what is the actual class of boys educated therein, and what is the real system of education and maintenance before any satisfactory comparison can fairly be made. In the Boys' School, the clothing and food are arranged on the advice of the medical officer, and we have yet to learn that they are either extravagant or unusual.

Bro. Pegler says authoritatively that the cost per head is £20 too much; but we must beg to observe that he apparently has no ground for his statements, except his own personal opinion. He assumes that the expense is £51 per head. That involves the question of the extraordinary expenditure; but supposing even that he could reduce the items for food and clothing, which we greatly doubt, that is only a saving of £7 out of his £20, which we venture to think a very questionable and arbitrary calculation. Even if you add special expenditure, the amount is only raised to a little over £47, not £51, as Bro. Pegler has it. We may add that the actual number of boys is 177, not 156; that without office expenses, the amount is £37 13s. 11½d., which has been reduced to £36 9s. 11d., and with the office expenses, it will now be £46 12s. 11d. Bro. Pegler includes the extraordinary expenditure; we do not, as it varies from year to year. We shall await Bro. Binckes's notice of the letter with much interest, and in the meantime we earnestly invite all our brethren to suspend their judgment, to hear carefully both sides, and above all, not to be hastily led away by questionable statements, or to endorse utterly untenable propositions—propositions very damaging, perhaps, to the present progress and future welfare of the Boys' School.

LODGE REPORTS.

We are sometimes taken to task for our lodge reports, which no doubt take up much space, and seem at the best to have but little in them. We are told that we are making a mistake, that we are keeping out better matter, that the reading we thus supply is neither wholesome, interesting, nor intellectual. And no doubt a good deal may be said upon this topic, and we do not pretend to deny that there is not even more than a "scintilla" of truth, in such complaints and animadversions. But there is also another side to the question. The "Freemason" is purely a Masonic journal, intended for Freemasons, and devoted to Freemasonry. Hence its staple must be Masonic intelligence, and Masonic intelligence alone. And by the word intelligence we do not understand merely the item of daily or weekly news, in "rebus latomcis," for they will not supply a journal with more than a column, but we comprehend in the term all that appertains to lodge life, and work, and proceedings amongst us—the outer evidences of the inner teaching, of Freemasonry. And as the life of Freemasonry is made up of lodge work and lodge reports, it is an inevitable necessity that we publish in our columns the accounts of the meetings and the speeches of our Order. Now, though it may be true that these meetings may be somewhat commonplace, and the speeches not A 1 either in tone or intellectual power, yet their report interests some few subscribers, and it is this weekly resumé of lodge work that finds a large and ever increasing circle of readers. And we will say this, in addition. We read most of the Masonic periodicals now "out," and we do not find that the absence of lodge reports makes a journal read better, or renders it more intellectual, or assures it a larger circle of readers. On the contrary, we have noted that those journals flourish most which give the truest records of present Masonic life amongst us in carefully compiled accounts of lodge work and refreshment hours; and that those journals which either neglect this subject, or reduce it to meaningless abbreviations, whatever their other excellences may be, invariably come to grief. We have considered the subject well over, and have determined to adhere to our old arrangements and system. That very often lodge reports and speeches may be curtailed we apprehend is indubitable; that repetitive and tautologous expressions may be judiciously excised we admit, that all references to the ritual may be expunged we freely concede; but when we have said this we have said all. It is impossible to condense or shorten materially a lodge report of Masonic speeches without taking out the spirit of the entire narrative, and so we prefer to let our brethren speak for themselves, except when common sense, or propriety, or constitutional law, happily seldom called into requisition, demand suppression or alteration. Some brethren might wish for a larger amount of what cognition included the three Craft degrees, the Royal Arch and Knights Templar. What authority Bro. Yarker has for the Priestly Order we know not. Bro. Higgins refers in his "Anacalypsis" to certain records of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter which he had from Bro. Blanchford, and presented to H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex. These are now in the archives of the York Lodge, and from them I took my extracts as to the degrees of 1780. Not a word occurs as to the Priestly Order, and I feel confident, from actual examination of all the other minute books, that such a degree was never officially recognised at York.

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

(An abridged report of the following appeared last week.)

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of Subscribers to this school was held in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Lieut. Col. Creaton, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Thomas Massa, Thomas W. White, L. Ruf, Hyde Pullen, Griffiths Smith, Robt. B. Webster, Walter Wellsman, Wm. Paas, H. M. Levy, H. Massey ("Freemason"); Robert Kenyon, Benjamin Head, H. A. Dubois, Dr. Ramsay, William Jones, A. H. Diaper, and R. Wentworth Little, Secretary.

After the preliminary business of the Committee had been transacted, the Secretary read the schemes which had been submitted to the Special Committee to consider the enlargement of the school building, and announced that the Special Committee had determined to recommend Col. Creaton's suggestion to build a large hall with dormitories capable of accommodating 94 children, to erect a covered way between the old and new buildings, and to erect larger laundries at the end of the grounds.

The Chairman said that he might now tell the Committee that the Special Committee had considered the different schemes, and had taken a great deal of pains and care in going through them. They had looked into the matter very closely, and having determined on recommending a certain scheme, now asked the General Committee to confirm that, as far as they had the power to confirm it, which was by recommending it to the Special or Quarterly Court. With regard to the cost of the new buildings, the brethren must remember, in the first place, they would have a very large hall, which they had not at the present time at the school, and which they had found very necessary on many occasions. In addition to the hall they would have dormitories and offices. The dormitories, they had heard read, would accommodate 94 extra children—not that they proposed to take 94 more at this time; but there would be the building for them if at any time it was proposed to take them in. There would be an extension of the dining-room; and then it must be remembered that the laundries must be removed whether the building was increased or not, the present laundries being quite insufficient for even the present requirements of the School. The cost of all this would be under £20,000, but everything would be perfect and good. He submitted this scheme to the brethren, but he would be happy to hear any brother who had anything to say upon it.

Bro. Robert Kenyon said he had the honour of submitting to this Special Committee a proposition by letter, and it was very possible that many brethren around the table had not heard this proposition; perhaps Bro. Little would read the letter.

The Chairman told Bro. Kenyon that his letter was read to the Special Committee, and full consideration was given to it. The Committee highly appreciated it, and were very much obliged to Bro. Kenyon for sending it.

Bro. Little then read the letter of Bro. Kenyon, which stated that it was desirable to secure in some healthy locality within about an hour's ride by rail, at a moderate cost, a sufficient number of acres of freehold land to enable the Committee to erect a building with spacious wings. At Sunninghill there were 10½ acres (a portion of which was well-timbered) which could be had for £3500. The building would not cost more than £9000, and there would be a most charming home for the children.

Bro. Dr. Ramsay asked what were the propositions of the other brethren, Bro. J. A. Rucker, and Bro. Raynham Stewart.

Bro. Little replied that Bro. Rucker's proposition was that a site elsewhere should be sought for, and Bro. Stewart's was that the Infirmary be utilised. Both these brethren had withdrawn in favour of Lieut. Col. Creaton's plan. Bro. J. B. Monckton had written about a large building at Richmond, close to the Star and Garter; but it was not thought advisable that the children should be located there.

Bro. R. Kenyon then said that having written the letter he wished to make a few observations upon it. In the first place he thought it most desirable before a single step was taken, that the brethren should ascertain where they were going to. With respect to Clapham Junction, he did not think that a very desirable site now, and every year they would find it become more unhealthy, as the whole neighbourhood was being surrounded with small houses. This Institution with a large number of children in it, would not thrive well in the midst of small houses. In the next place, carrying out a suggestion that had been made, he thought it desirable to have a junior branch establishment and he thought it should be erected in a healthy locality. He thought they would find it difficult to get the Governors of the Institution to sanction the expenditure of the £20,000 on the proposed extension at Clapham Junction. He knew the difficulty that Bro. Binckes had in getting the Boys' School out of debt; it took year after year in time, and a great expenditure of energy. They must all admit that no one could have shewn a greater amount of energy than Bro. Binckes on behalf of the Boys' School; and yet it took him and everyone else who felt an interest in the Craft many years to free the Boys' School from debt.

The Chairman said that without wishing to curtail the observations of Bro. Kenyon at all, he might be allowed to say that the Boys' School was struggling and had no money at the time Bro. Kenyon was alluding to; but the Girls' School had money.

Bro. Kenyon said, although he knew they had £40,000 invested, it was perfectly well-known that the intention was to admit more children into the school. It must be remembered they must then provide for them; and was it wise to continue to utilise the present institution until the railway company wanted it? Therefore, he said, having the present institution, all they had to provide for was a certain number more of children say 100 at the outside. It was his own experience that they could erect a building and buy land cheaper; they could erect a building in a proper place capable of accommodating the extra children without going to the expense of £20,000 or anything like it. If they purchased ten acres of freehold land they would have an abundance of space for all time, however large their institution might become. He did not say that in our time we should not be able to educate and clothe more than 300 children at the outside; at all events, we did not propose to do anything of the sort now. We did, however, propose to admit into the school thirty or forty more children than at present. He therefore thought it would be very unwise to launch into an expense of £20,000—probably it might be £25,000—on the present occasion, and it was with very great regret he had to move an amendment to the chairman's proposal. He regretted it. He wished the proposition had been made by some one else than Lieut.-Col. Creaton; for knowing the great interest he always took in the institution he (Bro. Kenyon) felt quite nervous when he got up to propose an amendment. Having, however, advanced a proposition he felt bound to support it, and therefore he moved his amendment. He knew that his amendment could be practically carried out. His amendment was this:—"Resolved that a branch school be established as soon as practicable, and that a committee of five governors be appointed to inspect a freehold estate at Sunning hill, comprising about 10½ acres of land, with a view of purchasing the same, and with a view of erecting necessary schools thereon. That the entire cost of the land and building shall not exceed £10,000." He was quite satisfied in his own mind, if they should purchase this land at a reasonable price, that £7000 could erect a school quite capable of accommodating 60, 70, or 80 children; and not only that, but his proposition was that they should build the centre of the building, and if the whole school were taken down they could then add wings as required. This would not absorb more at present than £9000 or £10,000 at the outside. Then, it must be remembered, they would have a freehold estate in case the railway should want their property. He had seen the railway surveyor, who told him what they had done at Clapham Junction was not half enough. With that expression of opinion before the brethren he left them to judge whether the school would not be pulled down some day or other. His amendment, it would be seen, involved a sum of money much within the limits of Colonel Creaton's. It was only for £12,000.

Bro. Leopold Ruf seconded the amendment.

Bro. H. A. Dubois thought the amendment could not be put to this meeting. All that the Committee had to do was to decide whether they should or should not recommend Colonel Creaton's plan, which had already been accepted by the Special Committee, to the Quarterly Court. An amendment, if moved at all, must be moved at the Quarterly Court.

The Chairman agreed with Bro. Dubois.

Bro. Dubois said this Committee could not send up another resolution to the Quarterly Court, because a committee had been specially appointed to decide upon different schemes, and having decided, they recommended it to the General Committee, who recommended that scheme to the Quarterly Court.

Bro. Kenyon reminded the Committee that at the Quarterly Court he proposed that suggestions might be received from any of the brethren when he supported Bro. Binckes's motion, and that he was told that any suggestions would be accepted.

The Chairman said he remembered that Bro. Kenyon did so; but with Bro. Dubois he thought that any amendment must be made at the Quarterly Court. A Special Committee had been appointed by the Quarterly Court to recommend a scheme to the General Committee, who were to recommend to the Quarterly Court; but at the Quarterly Court it was quite competent for any Governor to move an amendment.

Bro. Kenyon said the reference was to a Special House Committee, not to this General Committee.

The Chairman replied that the Special House Committee was to investigate and to report to this General Committee.

Dr. Ramsay reminded the meeting that they must either accept or reject the recommendation. No motion could be put other than this, excepting moving the previous question.

Bro. Little read the rule of the institution with reference to such a subject, when it was found that the Chairman's ruling was correct.

Bro. Benj. Head then moved the adoption of Lieut.-Col. Creaton's scheme, and its recommendation to the Quarterly Court.

Bro. Dubois seconded it, and it was carried with only two dissentients, Bros. Kenyon and Ruf.

Bro. Kenyon said he should bring his amendment before the Quarterly Court.

The Chairman thought there should be a special court for the purpose. The next regular Quarterly Court was in January, and if the matter was deferred till then the confirmation of what that meeting might do would only take place in April, and the building operations would thus be driven off to a late period in the season.

The brethren then proceeded with their other business, and placed four children on the list for election in April.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge of England was held on Wednesday evening in Freemasons' Hall. There was a very large attendance of brethren, notwithstanding the inclement weather, though many old and familiar faces, especially of those accustomed to sit on the dais, were not present. The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, had signified to Grand Secretary his intention of being present, but, owing to an accident, he was unable to attend. A letter of apology was read by Grand Secretary at the commencement of the proceedings announcing the fact, as were also letters of apology for absence from the Grand Junior Warden (Bro. Alderman Stone), and many others. In the absence of the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master, the Grand Master's chair was taken by Bro. Colonel Lyne, Prov. G.M. of Monmouthshire, who was supported by Major-General Brownrigg, as Deputy-Grand Master, and Bros. R. J. Bagshaw, as Past Grand Master; H. D. Sandeman, Lord Tenterden, as S.G.W.; Capt. Platt as J.W.; Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, Rev. A. B. Fraser, Le Gendre, N. Starkie, P.G.M. E. Lancashire; S. Rawson, C. Hutton Gregory, Rev. S. R. Wigram, J. M. Clabon, A. J. McIntyre, G.C.; Rev. R. J. Simpson, Dr. Hogg, Wilhelm Ganz, J. B. Monckton, W. E. Gumbleton, H. Browne, Joshua Nunn, J. Symonds, Dr. Sedgwick, J. Glaisher, W. Speed, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, Rev. C. J. Martyn, S. May, Thomas W. White, H. Marsh, Sir Albert Woods, Benj. Head, Rev. C. R. Davy, R. J. Spiers, John Boyd, C. A. Cottebrune, Dr. Carpenter, George Everett, Thomas Hargrave, James Terry, Hon.—Jocelyn, Sub-Grand Master of Ireland, E. P. Albert, James Mason, Captain Ridgway, Raynham W. Stewart, Rev. J. Hordern Jukes, Ex-Sheriff Hutton, George Lambert, Griffiths Smith, J. M. Case, P.M.; Wilhelm Kuhe, G. Org.; Thomas Fenn, B. H. Swallow, A. H. Diaper, J. C. Parkinson, Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, and E. S. Snell.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, Bro. Hervey made the above-mentioned announcement as to the absence of the Earl of Carnarvon, and read the letters from the other absent brethren.

The Acting Grand Master then stated that Bro. Alderman Hadley had been appointed to succeed the late Bro. John Savage on the Board of General Purposes. After this announcement,

Bro. J. M. Case, P.G.S., P.M. No. 1, rose, and said that he had the pleasure of having to propose the Most Worshipful the Grand Master for the ensuing year, this being the day for the nomination of Grand Master. After the experience which the Craft had had for some little period, there could be but one opinion as to whom he desired to propose to the brethren, and there could also be but one opinion as to what would be the result of that proposition. There was no doubt that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had so endeared himself to the Craft that any thing he (Bro. Case) might say in dilating upon the subject would be out of place. Whilst His Royal Highness was travelling in the East there was but one feeling towards him which existed in the minds of the brethren, that though they wished him a most prosperous and pleasant journey, they looked anxiously forward to his happy return to England, and this was an event which would be hailed with gratification by the Craft generally. Without taking up the time of the brethren unnecessarily, he begged to nominate His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year. (Great applause.)

The Acting Grand Master said the next business on the paper was the appointment of a President of the Lodge of Benevolence, and he had therefore to inform the brethren that Bro. John M. Clabon was re-appointed. (Cheers.) He had also to state that the election of the Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents would now, in the ordinary course of events, take place, but as no others than the brethren last elected to the office had been put in nomination no election was necessary, and Bro. Joshua Nunn would again be Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President. (Applause.)

The election of twelve Past Masters to serve on the Lodge of Benevolence next ensued, and scrutineers having been appointed, the brethren proceeded with that business. (After Grand Lodge had been closed, the result of this election was made known to the Acting Grand Master in his private room, it not having been completed while Grand Lodge was in session.) The following is the result: Bros. C. F. Hogard, W. T. Howe, Herbert Dicketts, H. Bartlett, Griffiths Smith, W. Hilton, Samuel Poynter, W. Mann, W. Myers, W. Clifton Crick, William Stephens, and Samuel May.

The Grand Secretary read the report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which were recommendations for the following grants:—

"The report of the Board of General Purposes, to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:—

"The Board of General Purposes have to report that they have taken into consideration a complaint of two members of the Blackheath Lodge, No. 1320, Blackheath, to the effect that on the 17th day of June last the W.M. elect was installed without the previous confirmation of the minutes. And further, that on the 15th day of July the lodge was opened before the time named in the summons. After a long investigation of the facts of the case and hearing the evidence, the Board decided that the specific charges made were not proved. As however great laxity appeared to have prevailed in recording the minutes of the lodge, the Board admonished the Master to be more careful in future in seeing that the proceedings of the lodge were duly and properly recorded, reminding him that although the Secretary was the proper person to take the minutes, the Master was at all times responsible for their being correctly entered.

(Signed) "JOHN B. MONCKTON, President."

Bro. Monckton, after this report had been taken as read, said, in moving that it be received and entered on the minutes, that he would not take up the time of Grand Lodge in stating the case, as it sufficiently appeared upon the report.

The motion was carried, after having been seconded by Bro. Peter de L. Long.

Grand Registrar brought up the appeal of Bro. Robert Levingstone, of the Lodge Orion in the West, No. 415, Poona, against the decision of the District Grand Master of Bombay, that Bro. Braine was eligible to be elected the Master of Lodge No. 415. In doing so he explained the circumstances of the case. The W.M. of No. 415, when installed, duly appointed his Wardens. At that time another brother, who now claimed to be Master of the lodge, Bro. Braine, was not a member of the lodge, but he was proposed as a joining member. The W.M. elect was placed in the chair, and notice of proposition of Bro. Braine as a joining member was given. At the next meeting he was elected. Being elected, he was placed by the W.M. in the J.W. chair. The J.W., who had been previously appointed, being a military brother, had meantime been appointed to another station, and being obliged to leave Poona, had resigned his Junior Wardenship. At the following election of Master, an objection was made that Bro. Braine, not having been J.W. for twelve months, was not eligible; but this was overruled, and he was elected by a majority of the brethren. Complaint was made to the District Grand Master; but he, probably not having the full facts before him, decided that he was eligible. Now, it was a fundamental principle of the Constitutions that no one could be Master of a lodge who had not served the office of Warden in a regular lodge for a year. This brother had not done so, for he was not even a member of the lodge when the J.W. was appointed. Therefore, with very great deference to the opinion of the District Grand Master, who was a member of his (Bro. McIntyre's) own profession, he must decide that Bro. Braine was not properly qualified to be a W.M. He therefore moved that the appeal be allowed.

The motion was seconded.

Bro. H. D. Sandeman asked whether the brother had served as Warden in another lodge.

Grand Registrar replied that from all that appeared he had not.

Bro. Jas. Mason having made some observations, repeating Grand Registrar's, amid general signs of impatience, the motion was carried.

Grand Secretary next read the following report:—

Report of a special meeting of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, held at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday, the 10th day of November, 1875, will be laid before Grand Lodge, and the following proposed alterations of the rules which were then agreed to will, in accordance with the laws of the institution, be submitted for the approval of Grand Lodge, viz.:—

To add to Clause 19, page 10 of the rules and regulations, after the words "Serving the Stewardship," and as a new paragraph, the following:—

"Every Steward at the anniversary festival who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his personal donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50."

And also to expunge from the same clause the following:—

"If unaccompanied with a personal donation, but by means of his services, not less than £20 shall be paid to the funds, he shall be entitled to one additional vote for every subsequent Stewardship."

That the law as altered now read thus:—

"A Life Governor who has served the office of Steward at the anniversary festival and subscribed £10 or upwards shall, on every occasion of subsequent service of such office, if accompanied with a similar donation, be entitled to four votes; if accompanied with a donation of £5, to two extra votes. A donor, who has qualified as a Life Governor and afterwards served the office of Steward at the anniversary festival, and qualifies again as a Life Governor, shall be entitled to the same number of votes as if he had paid both at the time of serving the Stewardship.

"Every Steward at the anniversary festival who shall procure donations or subscriptions to the extent of not less than £50, in addition to his personal donation, shall receive two additional votes at each election, and two further extra votes for every additional sum of not less than £50."

Bro. John Symonds, in bringing this matter forward, said that these alterations had been brought before the subscribers of the institution in order that the laws of all the Masonic charitable institutions might be in harmony. At present these proposed privileges were in force in the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and it was thought right that the Benevolent Institution should place its supporters on a similar footing. The alterations were unanimously agreed to by a special meeting of the subscribers. He moved their adoption.

Bro. Buckstone Baker seconded this motion, said that ever since he had been associated with the Masonic institutions he had endeavoured to carry out harmony in their rules.

Bro. C. Hutton Gregory asked whether this graceful act would be retrospective, and be a reward not for future services only, but for past.

Bro. Symonds did not apprehend that that was the practice; if it was carried out in the other institutions, it ought to be carried out in this institution.

The motion was carried nem. con.

The Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., moved, "That the sum of one hundred guineas be granted by this Grand Lodge in aid of the Palestine Exploration Fund, with the view of promoting the continued prosecution of the interesting and important work of exploring the ancient landmarks of the Holy Land." It was the duty of every man who brought forward a motion which was not for an exclusively Masonic object to shew cause why the object should have the support of Grand Lodge. He was in this case happily precluded from entering upon such an investigation, inasmuch as years ago Grand Lodge was good enough to make a grant for the very purpose for which he asked it to make a grant to-night. Consequently the principle in this case, he might take it for granted, had been known in Grand Lodge. (Hear, hear.) He said so in the first place, because he took it for granted that Grand Lodge seven or eight years ago would have been as competent to decide on a matter of principle as Grand Lodge of to-night, and to show how far by its vote it believed the object in question to be one that harmonised with the sympathies and feelings of Freemasons. He did it for this purpose—to show that he would not wish to inflict a speech upon Grand Lodge. Permit him however, to say, that the work which was begun seven or eight years ago had been most successfully and unweariedly carried out up to the present moment by the exploring party, among whom Bro. Lieut. Warren was chief. He (Bro. Simpson) had had the pleasure of hearing from him personally during the present month, and also from Mrs. Fern, the widow of the late Consul at Jerusalem, and for 19 years resident there. They had most satisfactory accounts of the progress made by the exploring party. The very name of this fund would suggest the design for which the fund had been collected, viz., for endeavouring to exhume from that land so full of memory, so deeply interesting to us all, some of the remnants of former days, in order to prove—if nothing else, to show the light which was thrown upon that Holy Volume which we all alike respected and venerated. He was sure also that the fact that the M.W.G.M. had himself been in that land, and taken a deep interest in its concerns, would have something to say for Masonry. But he (Bro. Simpson) proposed this vote because he felt that it was a vote in which every true-hearted Mason must have a deep interest, inasmuch as it was interesting both to them as Masons and as men; and he felt also that in the present case he might have the authority of their Treasurer, who he was very sorry to see was not present that night, for saying that Grand Lodge could afford to meet such a vote. He (Bro. Simpson) was to be seconded by a brother whom he was sure they all exceedingly respected, and he was quite sure one to whom they would more gladly listen; and therefore he should content himself by simply moving the resolution which he had placed in the hands of the brethren.

Bro. Dr. Erasmus Wilson had much pleasure in seconding the proposition which had been put by Bro. Simpson. He believed that the work in which the Palestine Exploration was concerned was one that was deeply interesting to the Craft, and calculated to develop materially the connecting links between it and Masonry, the nature of which we had hardly been able to comprehend at the present time. He would not detract from the eloquence of the speech which had been made by Bro. Simpson, and anything more which might be said on the subject might interfere with the effect which he trusted Bro. Simpson's speech would have upon the brethren.

Bro. Dr. Carpenter moved, as an amendment, the re-gating of the proposition.

Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, seconded it.

The amendment was put, and but a few hands were held up for it, whereupon Bro. Constable wished to withdraw from seconding the amendment, but was told by the Acting G. Master, amid derisive laughter, that he was too late.

The motion was put and carried.

Bro. S. L. Tomkins, P.G.D., said that he was commissioned by Grand Treasurer to say that on this, as on other occasions, Grand Treasurer would pay the amount immediately, without waiting for the confirmation of the vote.

Grand Lodge was then closed.

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS OF ENGLAND AND WALES, &c.

The Half-Yearly Communication to Grand Mark Lodge was held at Freemasons' Tavern on Tuesday. Colonel Burdett presided, the Earl of Limerick being unable to attend through the death of the Dowager Countess of Limerick. The following brethren were present:—M.W. Bro. G. R. Portal, M.W.P.G.M.M.M.; R.W. Bro. Hugh D. Sandeman, P.P.G.M. Bengal, as D.G.M.M.M.; Col. Francis Burdett, Pro G.M.M.M. Midx. and Surrey; V.W. Bro. Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, P.G.W., as G.S.W.; Captain N.G. Philips, G.J.W.; Major George Barlow, G.M.O.; Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., as G.S.O.; John Trotter, G.J.O.; Rev. C. R. Davy, G. Chaplain; Frederick Davison, G. Treas.; H. C. Levander, G. Reg.; F. Binckes, P.G.W., G. Sec.; W. Bros. Samuel Jones, G.S.D.; Thomas Trollope, G. Dir. of Cer.; Thomas Cubitt, G. Sword Bearer; T. S. Mortlock; G. Standard Bearer; Henry Parker, G. Org.; H. W. Binckes, Assistant G. Sec.; J. H. Spencer, G.I.G.; C. T. Speight, G. Tyler; Frank Richardson, G. Steward; George Yaxley, G. Steward; with the following Past Grand Officers:—V.W. Bros. W. E. Gumbleton, P.G.J.W.; Alexander Ridgeway, P.G.J.W.; Rev. J. Hordern Jukes, P.G. Chaplain; R. W. Little, P.G.M.O.; W. Bros. Thomas Hargreaves, P.G.D.; G. Lambert, P.G.D.; Chas. Hammerton, P.G.D.C.; James W. Smith, C. Stretton, and H. Massey ("Freemason"), P.G. Stewards. Provincial Grand Officers: W. Bros. Hyde Pullen, P.M.; Shadwell H. Clerke, P.M., Ireland; R. J. Mure, Prov. G.M.O., Middlesex and Surrey. And the following Masters, Past Masters, Wardens, and Overseers of Private Lodges:—W. Bros. E. M. Haigh, P.M. Bon. Accord; Edwd. J. Harty, I.G., Bon. Accord; Chas. Pulman, W.M. Panmure, 139; J. R. Pitt, Macdonald Lodge, 104; Thos. Wood, Holmesdale Lodge, 129; W. Scott, Armstrong Lodge, 120, Bengal; John Mapleson, S.D., Panmure, 139; W. Steedman, 139; James Sinclair, 139. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Thomas Hargreaves nominated the Earl of Limerick as Grand Master. He was sure he need not repeat the words which had been used six months ago when the M.W.G.M. was installed in the chair. His zeal for Masonry, more particularly Mark Masonry, was such as to entitle him to the brethren's warmest esteem; and he had therefore great pleasure in nominating his lordship as M.W.G.M. for the ensuing year.

Bro. Thomas Mortlock moved the re-election of Bro. F. Davison as Grand Treasurer.

Bro. Gumbleton seconded it, and it was carried unanimously.

Bro. Davison returned his thanks to the brethren for the compliment.

Bro. Binckes read the report of the General Board.

4. Report of the General Board, which includes the following recommendations:—

A.—"That the existing treaty with the Supreme Council 33°, and the Grand Master of the Temple, requires modification in the following sense:—

B.—"That no sentence shall be carried out in the Mark Degree, unless with the unanimous consent of the representatives of the Mark Degree present at the meeting of the Judicial Council (on appeal), two representatives being a quorum.

C.—"That an appeal be in all cases allowed to Grand Lodge.

D.—"That the Grand Stewards' contributions towards expenses of Grand Festival be fixed at two guineas (£2 2s.)

E.—"That the sum of £25 be granted from the Fund of Benevolence to Bro. P. . . . That the sum of £5 per annum be granted from the Fund of Benevolence to Mrs. S. . . . widow of the late Bro. J. R. S. . . ."

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, before moving resolutions A B and C, said he was happy to inform the brethren that Prince Leopold was advanced as a Mark Mason at Oxford in the previous week. Bro. Portal then entered on the question of the alteration proposed, and said that the opinions he had formerly expressed with regard to the Tripartite Treaty he had seen reason to change. The present alterations he thought would be beneficial.

Bro. Little, in seconding the motion, was glad to see that there was an intended alteration. On the last occasion when the matter was before the Grand Lodge he felt very deeply on the subject and spoke with some warmth. It was exceedingly gratifying to him to see the change which had come over the minds of the brethren.

After considerable discussion the motion was carried.

Bro. Frank Richardson proposed, and Bro. Clement Stretton seconded, the investment of £200 in Canadian 5 per Cent Bonds.

The motion was carried.

The other motions were then carried.

Bro. F. Davison, G.T., brought up his report for confirmation as follows:—

Bro. Hammerton moved, and Bro. Samuel Jones seconded, the reception and adoption of these accounts, which was put and carried unanimously, and Grand Lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards partook of banquet.

GRAND MASONIC DEMONSTRATION AND CONCERT IN LIVERPOOL.

In the annals of Freemasonry in West Lancashire, there probably was never a more striking gathering than that which took place on Tuesday evening, the 23rd November, at the Philharmonic Hall, Liverpool, where a grand Masonic testimonial concert was given to Bro. Joseph Skeaf, P.M. 216, Prov. Grand Organist, in recognition of his many services in connection with the Craft and other orders in Masonry. The compliment was honestly earned by Bro. Skeaf, who during many years past has devoted much time and his talents to help in every way the high standing and progress of Masonry. The spontaneous nature of the manner in which the concert was organised and carried out was reciprocated by the brethren, and the result was eminently creditable to all concerned, as well as most honouring to the brother for whose interests it was intended. The Philharmonic Hall in Liverpool is fairly considered the finest of its kind in the kingdom, and the sight it presented on this occasion was the most picturesque and striking ever witnessed within its walls. Every corner of the vast hall was crowded, and even then there were many who failed to gain admission. It is not very often that Freemasons make a show of their "fiery," but on this occasion a dispensation enabled them to wear the clothing, insignia, and jewels of the various orders to which they belonged, thus making the compliment to Bro. Skeaf all the more valuable and interesting. This privilege was taken advantage of to the full extent, and in the boxes and stalls nearly every order of Freemasonry was represented. The Craft, of course, predominated, but there were also represented the Royal Arch, Mark Masonry, Red Cross of Constantine, Rose Croix, and Knight Templars. The concert enjoyed the patronage of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M. and R.W. Prov. Grand Master; Bro. the Hon. A. F. Stanley, M.P., R.W. Dep. Prov. G.M.; Bro. Sir James Ramsden, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Bro. W. C. Deeley, Prov. G.S.W.; and officers of Provincial Grand Lodge; officers and brethren in West Lancashire and the adjoining provinces. The chairman of committee was Bro. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec.; the Treasurer, Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M. 249, and P. Prov. G. Reg.; and vice-chairman, Bro. Richard Washington, P.M. 1004. There were no fewer than 60 names on the committee, and the arrangements in connection with the concert could hardly have been better carried out. This satisfactory result is due in a large measure to the excellent working of the committee, special praise being due to Bro. R. Brown, W.M. 241, one of the Secretaries, who was assisted by Bro. Dr. Kisch, 216. Bro. H. E. Hime also deserves favourable recognition in connection with the concert. A helping hand was also given by Bro. W. S. Vines, P.M. 220, who generously gave the profits of the "refreshment" to the concert fund. The artists included Madame Liebhart, Miss M. Severn, Mr. H. Guy, Bro. Seymour Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. Blagrove, Bro. and Mrs. Skeaf, and the Liverpool Vocalists' Union, under the direction of Bro. Queen. The performances of the "Union" were certainly the most interesting in the programme; and their rendering of the several pieces was marked by all the delicacy and fine vocal effect which have made the members' names so popular. A new setting of "The Wreck of the Hesperus," by Bro. Skeaf, was highly artistic and effective, leading to an encore, when "Comrades in Arms" was rendered with the musical colouring for which the "Union" is famous. Madame Liebhart's most successful effort was in Allen's "Little Bird," which was so crisply and naively rendered as to secure another encore. Miss Severn apparently had a cold, and therefore her efforts were not quite up to the mark. Mrs. Skeaf always sings naturally and without pretence, and her vocal efforts last evening were highly appreciated. Mr. H. Guy sang very artistically, and Mr. and Mrs. Blagrove contributed in no small degree to the success of the concert. Bro. Seymour Smith not only accompanied with fine taste, but gave two buffo songs with an effect which showed he possesses rare talent. His operatic reminiscences displayed much talent, and his imitations of the perturbed father, the silly lovers, and the peculiar orchestral surroundings of the opera showed he has a true sense and appreciation of the ridiculous. In his "Dinner Party" Bro. S. Smith also displayed talents of a high order. Bro. Skeaf, who received quite an ovation, played his fantasia, "The Fisherman," with the finest effect, and was recalled to the platform at its conclusion. The gathering was the most substantial compliment which has been paid to a Liverpool Mason for a long time, and Bro. Skeaf well deserved it. The next Masonic festival meeting of interest in Liverpool will be the annual Masonic ball, at the Town Hall, on the 11th January, in aid of the West Lancashire Educational Institution, when, it is expected, the Mayor and Mayoress of Liverpool will be present.

BOMBAY DOCKS.—The Government of Bombay have accepted, on the recommendation of the Bombay Port Trust, the tender of Messrs. Glover and Co., well known in India as successful contractors, for the construction of the Elphinstone Wet Dock, being the most important of the magnificent series of works in that harbour which have been in progress during the last seventeen years. The present contract for the masonry and dams will amount to about £30,000, but the other portions of the work, including gates and excavations, &c., will probably involve a further expenditure of about half a million sterling. The presence in Bombay of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has been availed of for laying the foundation stone with full Masonic honours. This took place on the 11th ult., and is the most important event in the history of the "Craft" in India. The spectacle on this occasion was one of singular magnificence, not the least striking part of it being the great assemblage of Parsees, Hindoos, and Mahomedan brethren, testifying to the bond of brotherhood between the East and the West.

Greece is to be congratulated in having a Grand Lodge presided over by a Prince whose liberality is so well known, and who, as regards ancestry, is second to none in Europe. We may add that the Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Greece, Major Spouridion Karaiskakes, is the present Minister of war of Greece.

The Duke afterwards landed, and was saluted from the fort and from the Guard of Honour of the Guardia Civil. On the arrival at the Governor's house, the Duke was saluted by a section of cavalry, and by a guard of a regiment of reserve, and on entering the Governor's house was received by Major-General Torres, and conducted to the saloon, the royal standard of England being hoisted on the balcony. The Duke of Connaught paid a visit on the 22nd to Captain Adolph Nolting on board the Austro-Hungarian corvette Graf Dandolo, which vessel called here on her way to the Brazils. The Duke afterwards embarked on board his yacht Vega, for Tarifa, on a shooting excursion, and thence proceeds to Tangiers to join in boat hunts arranged by the British Minister Plenipotentiary, Sir John Drummond Hay.

WIPK YOUR FEET.—The best Cocoa Nut Mats and Matting are made by Tinslor & Sons, 69 Ludgate Hill.

We regret to learn that her Grace the Duchess of Manchester met with a serious accident on Wednesday last. Her Grace was returning from Lord Fitzhardinge's decoy pools in a Whitechapel dog-cart, drawn by a pony driven by Miss Chetwynd, when within half a mile of Berkeley Castle they came into collision with a four-wheel conveyance. Miss Chetwynd and her Grace were thrown out of the trap. The former escaped with a dislocated thumb, but her Grace received a severe fracture of her left arm.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement took place on Friday, the 26th ult., a report of which unavoidably stands over in consequence of the pressure on our columns.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—A regular meeting of this well known lodge was held at the Canaan Street Hotel, on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at which were present Bros. Geo. Newman, W.M.; T. Cohu, S.W.; C. Arkell, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; E. Jones, S.D.; H. Legge, J.D.; F. Fellowes, I.G.; W. T. Rickwood, D.C.; and E. King, P.M., Steward; also Bros. Geo. Abbott, I.P.M.; G. Kenning, P.M.; E. J. Kellaway, G. H. Gillam, W. L. Pontch, Geo. Bartholemew, S. Haynes, C. J. Benson, W. F. Poulton, Robt. Clank, R. E. Bright, C. J. Scholes, S. T. Lucas, T. Fisher, S. Edwards, J. Kent, E. Bunch, J. Larkin, W. Small, A. Lewis, W. Alfatt, B. Penkins, R. H. Goddard, T. Perrin, the Rev. J. H. Jukes, P.P. G.W. Herford; and H. Stevenson. The lodge was duly opened, and the minutes read and confirmed. Bro. W. L. Pontch was passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Geo. Borer was initiated into the mysteries of the Order. This meeting being the day of election, Bro. T. Cohu was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; and Bro. Geo. Kenning was elected Treasurer. The sum of £5 was voted to Bro. George Newman, W.M., to defray the expense of the installation jewel granted by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, as the Steward representing the lodge on that occasion. Notice of motion was also given by Bro. Marsh to present to the W.M. the usual gold jewel of the lodge for the very able manner he has presided over the lodge during the past year. The minor business of the lodge having been transacted, the lodge was closed in due form and adjourned. The brethren then adjourned to the usual banquetting room, where a most excellent repast was served, the W.M. presiding. During the evening the loyal and Masonic toasts usually given were proposed and most heartily responded to. The W.M. gave "The Health of the W.M. Elect," which was received with the greatest enthusiasm. We are glad to notice that the lodge was honoured with the presence of its new member, Bro. the Rev. J. H. Jukes, P.P.G.W. Herford, who presented to the lodge a short time since an ancient apron of the Craft belonging to one of the members of this lodge, and which bears date 1800—in consideration of which the said brother was unanimously elected a honorary member. The newly elected brother was most warmly received and congratulated, and returned thanks in an eloquent speech. The W.M., as usual, in the most hearty terms gave "The Visitors," which met with a general response—thanking the W.M. for the most kind and liberal hospitality always accorded to visitors by the Lion and Lamb Lodge. The W.M. announced that he had another pleasing duty to perform—amongst the many that fell to his lot during his year of office—that was to present to Bro. Marsh a slight testimonial, as a recognition of the able services he has rendered to the lodge and the members during the last eight years as its Secretary. The testimonial was set on foot a few months since amongst the members, and he had the great pleasure to announce that the testimonial consisted of a purse containing £50; and he hoped Bro. Marsh would receive it as a slight testimonial of the respect and esteem of the brethren, and as an appreciation of the services so ably rendered to the lodge during his eight years' Secretaryship. The W.M. having made the presentation, Bro. Marsh most cordially thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said he had been a member of the lodge 16 years, half of which had been devoted to the work of Secretary; and he hoped to continue to serve the lodge in that office for many years to come. The "Officers" and "Tyler's" toast brought a most agreeable meeting to a close. The visitors present were Bros. W. H. Lee, W.M. 1524; H. B. Dunn, Geo. Clarke, 177; W. Parker, 753; J. Jessett, 1489; W. F. Smart, 766; A. Leard, P.M. 1185; and J. W. Berrie, 1293.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, 25th ult., at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford. Present, Bros. S. O. Lewin, W.M.; H. Tuson, S.W.; J. Pake, J.W. Bro. Wells having resigned his office, W. Myatt, P.M. was appointed S.D. in his stead. J. Langley (who acted as Secretary), J.D.; G. Lima, I.G.; J. Vehmanns, W.S.; J.

Bavin, P.M. 147; Tyler. Past Masters, Bros. G. Andrews, I.P.M.; W. Myatt, P.M. Visitors, Bros. J. W. Baldwin, W.M. 1423; W. M. Goss, S.W. 176; W. T. Lover, J.W. 1178; and others. The lodge being opened by the W.M., Bro. S. O. Lewin, the minutes of the meeting held in October were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the W.M. Bro. G. Andrews, I.P.M., took the chair, and in an able manner raised Bro. T. W. Crout, 1326, to the Third Degree. The notice of motion by Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. Sec., to revise the bye-laws was referred to a committee, to consist of the W.M. and officers of the lodge.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—The December meeting of this lodge was held on Monday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. C. D. Jekyll, W.M., presiding. There were also present Bros. W. A. Tinney, S.W.; E. Terry, J.W.; C. Coote, P.M.; E. Frewin, I.P.M.; John Read, P.M.; E. Swanborough, J.D.; Charles Wellard, I.G.; Arthur Swanborough; Harry Cox, D.C.; C. Stephenson, W.S.; H. J. E. Tinney, Abraham Henson, H. Snyders, E. Stanton Jones, Secretary; Edmund Reynolds, E. Chamberlain, P.M.; R. Soutar, John Maclean, and G. R. Egerton, Org. There was also present a distinguished Past Master from India. Mr. W. B. Fair was initiated, and this was the only business before the brethren; the ceremony was splendidly performed in the usual Asaph Lodge style. After this the lodge was closed, and the brethren separated.

ST. CLEMENT'S DANE LODGE (No. 1351).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 1st inst., at the King's Head Hotel, Strand, when as usual, there was a goodly muster of the brethren. Unfortunately Bro. Steward, the W.M., was prevented by illness from occupying the chair of K.S., and Bro. Betts, I.P.M., filled the position. Four brethren were raised to the Sublime Degree, and the two initiates of the previous meeting were passed, the acting W.M. performing his duties to the great satisfaction of the brethren, and with that evident knowledge of his work which made his year of office so enjoyable. After labour the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was provided by Bro. Carr in his usual good style. There were present—Bros. Betts, I.P.M. (presiding); Hale, P.M.; Hilton, P.M. (Secretary); Parker, P.M. (Treasurer); Wilson, J.W.; Parter, S.D.; Wigg, J.D.; Butler, I.G.; Paryman, D.C.; Barnes, Org. Amongst the other brethren present were—Bros. Tedbury, Hutton (2), Gazes (3), Deighton, Arthur Betts, Brannan, Townley, Wiseman, Harrison, W. H. Hall, Dr. Fan, Grieve, Williams, and others. After the cloth had been removed, Bro. Betts gave the usual Masonic and loyal toasts, and when proposing "The Health of the W.M.," he alluded to him in high terms and his sentiments were fully endorsed by those present. Those brethren who possess vocal capabilities added to the enjoyment of the evening, which was spent in that thorough harmony and good feeling which has ever been the leading characteristic of this young and rising lodge.

PROVINCIAL.

STONEHOUSE.—Brunswick Lodge (No. 159).—A full meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 1st inst., in the lodge room at Stonehouse, the W.M., Bro. A. R. Lethbridge, presiding. The S.W., Bro. E. Hawke, was elected W.M. for the year ensuing; Bro. Carter, Treasurer, and Bro. Chapman was re-elected Tyler. In consequence of some change in the tenure of Lodge Metham, the W.M. stated that he and the Wardens had waited upon Lodge Charity and had received from that lodge an acceptance of Lodge Brunswick, and it was therefore proposed that in future Brunswick should meet Lodge Charity. This was unanimously agreed to. The Secretary then read the statement of accounts for the past year, which showed a very satisfactory amount of income and an expenditure that included much benevolent work and subscriptions. There had been 25 meetings of the lodge in the course of the year, and 15 initiations, with probably three initiations at the next meeting. The accounts were accepted and passed unanimously. It was agreed that the installation of the W.M. elect should take place on the 29th inst. at three o'clock, and that the annual banquet should be held at six o'clock on the same day at Bro. Thomas's, Great Western Hotel, Plymouth. Bro. Latimer then introduced the subject of the commemoration window in the New Guildhall, stating that he had attended every lodge in the Three Towns, and that all with only one exception had contributed, and that that lodge would have done so but for the state of its funds. The Secretary then proposed, and the W.M. elect seconded, and other brethren supported the proposal, that a sum of five guineas be contributed, which was unanimously agreed to. Bro. Latimer thanked the lodge for the cordial and graceful manner in which it had responded, as one of the oldest lodges, to his appeal. It was then resolved to vote a P.M.'s jewel to the W.M., Bro. A. R. Lethbridge; and on the motion of Bro. Stentford a similar jewel was most cheerfully voted to Bro. J. C. Stephens, the only Past Master of Lodge Brunswick who had not received a jewel. It seemed to be a pleasure to all present that this honour should be accorded to Bro. Stephens, who has been a member of Lodge Brunswick for nearly forty years, and was its Master some twenty-eight years ago. Bro. Stephens expressed his sense of the kindness which influenced the brethren, and said that although the vote was to him quite unexpected, he should greatly esteem the kindness which had prompted it. The lodge has been in existence nearly a hundred years, and has enrolled in its books some names highly honoured in the Three Towns' history. It has had its ups and downs; happily at present it seems to be in a state that is so flourishing as to be a source of pleasure to all its members.

CAMBRIDGE.—Isaac Newton University Lodge (No. 859).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Old Union Rooms, Cambridge, on Monday, Nov. 29th. The Rev. J. W. Cartmell (Fellow of Christ's),

P.P.G.C., who was installed as W.M. at the last lodge, performed the active duties of the chair for the first time, and that in a very effective manner. Four brethren were raised, eleven passed, and thirteen members of the University were initiated, the necessary dispensation having been obtained. This active lodge has never been in a more flourishing condition, and the brethren are now looking for a site to build a Masonic Hall, which is much wanted in Cambridge.

AUCKLAND, N.Z.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1338).—The annual festival of this lodge took place in the Masonic room of Mr. Avey's hotel, Princes-street, at the annual reunion of the Prince of Wales Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1338, E.C. There were about fifteen Past Masters present, besides a very full attendance of the brotherhood. The ceremonies were commenced shortly after six o'clock, the proceedings being opened by Bro. G. W. Brassey, W.M. After other business had been disposed of, the installation of the W.M. took place, Bro. P.M. Leers in the chair. This ceremony was performed by Bro. P.M. Leers, with the assistance of a number of Past Masters, and was a most interesting one. The newly-appointed W.M., Bro. Skinner, then proceeded with the appointment of officers for the ensuing year:—S.W., Clayton; J.W., Rev. C. M. Nelson; Treasurer, Stoddart; Secretary, P.M. Leers; S.D., Dawson; J.D., Dyer; Rattray, I.G.; Porter, Tyler. When the official business of the lodge had been concluded, the repast provided by Bro. Avey was partaken of by a company which well filled the room. The toasts were—"The Queen and Craft," by the W.M. He said it would be unnecessary that he should do more than name the toast to ensure for it a hearty response. "The Grand Master, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," by the W.M.; responded to with considerable enthusiasm, and with Masonic honours. "The Grand Masters of the Irish and Scottish Constitutions," by the W.M.; responded to by Bro. G. P. Pierce, P.G.M., I.C., and Bro. Niccol, R.W.M. St. Andrew's Lodge. "The Worshipful Master," by Bro. G. W. Brassey, P.M.; responded to by the W.M. "The Past Masters," by the W.M.; responded to by Bros. Brassey, P.M., and Moss, P.M. "The Installing Master" was proposed by Bro. E. Bennett in a happy and appropriate speech; responded to by Bro. S. M. Leers, P.M. "The Officers," by Bro. W. J. Rees, P.M. Lodge Am; responded to by Bro. F. G. Clayton, S.W., and Bro. C. M. Nelson, J.W. "The Visitors," by Bro. W. H. Kissling, P.M.; responded to by Bros. Anderson, Hughes, Robinson, Burns, Green, Burton, and Niccol. "The Entered Apprentices," by Bros. M. S. Leers, P.M.; responded to by Bro. G. Jones. "The Brethren who rendered the Music of the Evening," by Bro. C. M. Nelson, J.W.; responded to by Bros. J. Brown and Diethelm. "The Ladies," by Bro. W. H. Kissling, P.M.; responded to by Bro. C. M. Nelson, J.W., and Bro. W. Rattray, I.G. "The Tyler's Toast." During the course of the evening many excellent suggestions were made—those of Bros. Niccol, Nelson, and Hughes being particularly noticeable. A little discussion took place on the desirability of amalgamating the various lodges in the Colony of New Zealand under one dispensation, and Bros. Niccol and Moss were animated in their remarks upon this question; the former being in favour of a Colonial Grand Lodge, the latter of opinion that such a thing would be premature. It is some time since a Masonic ceremony on such a scale and possessing so much interest has occurred in the city, and indeed throughout the whole proceedings the greatest amount of unanimity of feeling and happiness prevailed. Bros. Browne, W. J. Rees, Diethelm, Harker, Higgins, Skinner, and Jones contributed much to this end, the vocal music, which had been prepared by Bro. Browne, being sung exceedingly well. To Bro. Avey is due great praise for the manner in which the banquet was conducted. The meeting broke up at half past eleven o'clock.

HALLIFORD.—The Thames Valley Lodge (No. 1460).—The last regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, Halliford, on Saturday last. The members present were Bros. the Rev. Dr. Bretts, Prov. G. Chaplain Middlesex, W.M.; J. Llewellyn Jones, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.P.G.P., Secretary; W. T. Howe, P.G.P., S.D.; Colonel James Peters, P.G.D., I.P.M.; R. W. Little, P.G.S.W.; James Davis, C. I. Davis, W. Sweetland, E. C. Hialop, J. H. R. Gowan, W. Alcock, Major the Hon. O. G. Lambert, J. S. Tyler, P. Dunn, Geo. Townsend, and R. Strong. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes read and confirmed, the following brethren were passed to the Second Degree: Bros. P. Dunn and J. S. Tyler. Bros. Alcock, Hialop, and Major the Hon. O. G. Lambert were raised to the Third Degree, the ceremonies being worked by Bro. R. W. Little by the especial wish of the W.M. Bro. Geo. Townsend, P.M. 754, was unanimously elected a joining member. Bro. J. Llewellyn Jones, J.W., was unanimously elected as W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. W. Paas, P.M. 28, was also unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Woodstock, Tyler. Owing to the great success which has attended this lodge, which is comparatively new in the province, a resolution was passed to increase the number of members from thirty to forty-five, and also to make the lodge a summer lodge, by ranging its meetings between the months of March and September in each year. The handsome gold jewel, designed by Bro. Marsh, Secretary, which was voted to Col. Peters last year, was unanimously accorded to the much esteemed W.M. for the year now terminating, the Rev. Dr. Bretts. Several new members were proposed, and the lodge was closed in due form. After this the brethren adjourned to a well served repast, provided by Bro. Stone, the W.M., Bro. Dr. Bretts, presiding. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured in the most hearty manner, including "Col. Buxton, the popular Grand Master of the Province," and "The Grand Officers." Bro. W. T. Howe returned thanks for the Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. Colonel Peters proposed "The Health of the W.M.," to whom the lodge was much indebted for the very able manner he had discharged his duties during his year of office, and for the kind and genial manner he had displayed in presiding over the lodge meetings. The toast was received with the heartiest approval. Bro. Colonel Peters returned thanks as the I.P.M., and R. Wentworth Little for "The Masonic Charities." Bro. Jones responded to the toast specially proposed for "The W.M. Elect," and the toast of "The Officers" was replied to by Bro. J. G. Marsh, Secretary, and Bro. W. T. Howe, S.D. The Tyler's toast concluded a most agreeable evening, and the brethren then returned to town.

INSTRUCTION.

EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT (under the direction of the Lodge of Unions, No. 256).—The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was held on the 26th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Annually this lodge (strongly supported though it always has been) becomes better and better supported, and the large additions there yearly are to the Craft supply a very numerous body of brethren who join this excellent lodge, notwithstanding the many lodges of instruction which are to be found in all the districts of the metropolis. One of the evidences of the strong support this lodge receives is to be found in the number of brethren that are ever ready to offer their services as Stewards of the festival, and on the present occasion the same readiness was evinced as has been the case on former occasions. Among those who found on the Stewards' list for the festival of 1875 were Bros. J. Hervey, G.S., Treas.; H. Bishop, S.W. 66; G. B. Brodie, J.W. 1118; G. Copeland Capper, W.M. 162; R. J. Chappell, P.M. 7 and 1228; F. Clever, W.M. 12; A. G. Cooke, S.W. 212; J. Cree, 181; R. R. Davis, W.M. 256; H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.; C. C. Dumas, P.A.G.D.C.; H. E. Diamond, W.M. 353; A. Durrant, W.M. 1185; G. E. Eachus, P.M. 33; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; E. W. Fithian, S.D. 193; J. J. Forrester, P.M. 269; J. Gibson, J.D. 1420; J. P. Godfrey, S.D. 1261; Montague Gosset, P.M. 66; R. Grey, J.G.D.; E. J. Harty, S.D. 1201; J. F. Huggins, P.M. 18; E. Legg, J.W. 861; P. de L. Long, Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes; Edwin March, P.M. 99; C. A. Murton, P.G.D.; J. Muzio, J.W. 1150; E. Nash, J.W. 14; J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; A. A. Richards, P.G.S.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; J. Savage, P.G.D.; W. Smallpeice, P.M. 1395; Sec.; G. B. Smallpeice, P.M. 370; W. W. Smith, W.M. 1261; E. H. Stammwitz, S.W. 435; H. T. Wood, W.M. 1159; and J. Verity, S.W. 1348. The attendance at the lodge was very large, about 300 brethren being present. The lodge was opened at 6 o'clock. Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., presided as W.M.; while Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D., was appointed to the S.W. chair, and Bro. H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D., to the J.W. chair. Bro. G. B. Brodie, J.W. No. 1118, was S.D.; Bro. H. Bishop, S.W. No. 66, was J.D.; and Bro. H. T. Wood, W.M. No. 1159, I.G. The work performed was the Second Lecture, and the whole of the five sections were admirably rendered by the W.M. and his officers, in the following order:—

- 1st Section by Bro. H. T. Wood, W.M. 1159.
- 2nd " " " H. Bishop, S.W. 66.
- 3rd " " " H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.
- 4th " " " J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.
- 5th " " " G. B. Brodie, J.W. 1118.

Bro. Wood in the 1st, and Bro. Rucker in the 4th section were successful in a very marked degree, and obtained immense applause. All the working brethren, however, did their work admirably, and all were applauded. At the conclusion of the ceremony the usual votes of thanks were passed, and complimentary speeches made, and a list of 45 brethren to be voted for as joining members at next meeting, were read out, proposed, and seconded. At the termination of these formalities the brethren adjourned to supper in Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Bro. J. B. Monckton, P.G.D., Town Clerk of London. The speeches in proposing and replying to the toasts were very brief. Bro. Fenn proposed "The Chairman's Health," and the chairman proposed "Prosperity to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement," for which Bro. Hervey, G.S., Treas., responded. "The Working Brethren" was given by the chairman, and Bro. Rucker and Bro. Dumas replied. "The Sister Lodges of Instruction" was responded to by Bro. H. Muggeridge, Treasurer and Preceptor of the Stability, No. 217. "The Parent Lodge of Unions," given by the chairman, was acknowledged by Bro. R. R. Davis, W.M., and Bro. Joseph C. Parkinson was sponsor for "The Masonic Charities." The evening, which was not enlivened by any of the aids of music and singing, was a remarkably successful one, and was heartily enjoyed by the brethren. Bros. John Symonds, R. Brandt, Hyde Pullen, Peter de L. Long, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, A. A. Richards, F. Robinson, Clever, Dr. Paul, Winkfield, and Spooner were among the guests. Bro. W. Smallpeice, the Secretary, P.M. No. 1395, whose duties were of a somewhat onerous character throughout the evening, discharged them as usual with perfect satisfaction to the brethren. The lodge, we may remind our readers, meets every Friday evening throughout the year at Freemasons' Hall, and is open to Master Masons only. It should be remembered also, as we are frequently reminded, that it is what its name implies, a lodge of improvement, not a lodge of instruction, and is intended for the further improvement of those brethren who have already acquired a knowledge of Masonic working. Its instructors are therefore the crème de la crème of Masonic preceptors. The company on the 26th ult. were dismissed with the chairman's benediction, "And so, brethren, Heaven be with you!"

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—The election and installation meeting was held on Saturday, 27th ult., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. There were present Comps. W. Wyman, H.; G. Lemann, J.; Frederick Walters, P. 1st G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., Treas.; Walter Miller Goss, S.N.; J. Sorrell, 1st A.S.; A. W. Thorpe, D.C.; R. S. Foreman, P.Z.; P. A. Nairne, P.Z.; M. Scott, P.Z. The Visitors were Comps. J. Lacey, P.Z. 176; H. Garrod, P.Z. 507; and others. The chapter was opened by Comp. M. Scott, as M.E.Z.; W. S. Wyman, H.; G. K. Lemann, J.; and all the P.Z.'s. The minutes of the October meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots for exaltation were unanimous in favour of the admission of the candidates. Bros. W. T. Lover, J.W. 1178; J. Johnson, 1423; J. B. Sorrell, jun., S.D. 176; were exalted. The elections were unanimous in favour of the following companions as the officers for ensuing year, viz.:—S. Wyman, M.E.Z.; G. K. Lemann, H.; J. B. Sorrell, S.J.; F. Walters, P.Z., Treas., re-elected for eighth time; W. M. Goss, S.E.; W. J. Stride, S.N.; J. B. Langley, P.S.; C. J. Speight, unanimously re-elected Janitor. M. Scott, P.Z., installed W. S. Wyman, M.E.Z., and G. K. Lemann, H.; H. Garrod, P.Z., installed J. B. Sorrell, J. These members were invested with collars, jewels, and robes of office, viz., Comps. F. Walters, P. 1st G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., Treas.; W. M. Goss, S.E.; W. J. Stride, S.N.; J. Baxter Langley, P.S.; S. Pownceby, 1st A.S.; R. P. Tebb, 2nd A.S.; H. Faija, C.E., W.S.; A. Middlemass, M.C.; C. J. Speight, Janitor. Several candidates were proposed for exaltation.

JOPPA CHAPTER (No. 188).—A convocation of this chapter was held on Monday evening at the Albion, Aldersgate-street, where there was a large attendance of companions. Comp. H. M. Levy, Z., presided, with Comp. M. Emanuel, H. After the opening of the chapter, and the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the installation of Principals was proceeded with, and Comp. M. Emanuel having been placed in the First Principal's chair he installed, in admirably fluent style, Comp. M. I. Emanuel as H., after which Comp. Wolff-Littaur was placed in the H. chair. The other officers appointed were Comps. S. V. Abrahams, Treas.; P. Dickinson, S.E.; L. Lazarus, S.N.; L. Jacobs, P.S.; and Comp. Smith, Janitor. After this Bros. Grove-Ellis and Buderus were exalted into R.A. Masonry. Among the companions present during the evening were P.Z.'s E. P. Albert, E. Stanton Jones, A. Lazarus, and Comps. W. C. Parsons, G. J. Kain, H. Massey, Jennings, E. M. Haigh, and S. Politzer. Before the chapter was closed a handsome P.Z. jewel and silver goblet were presented to Comp. H. M. Levy. In presenting these gifts the M.E.Z. said they were evidences of the opinion which the companions of the chapter had of him, and of the good he had done for the chapter. The presentation was accompanied with some other complimentary remarks which showed that the companions had a high estimate of Comp. Levy's merits. Comp. Levy returned his thanks, and assured the companions that the gift would ever be engraven on his heart. He had always tried to do good for the Chapter, and he was sorry that during the last year he had not been able to do more. The balance-sheet was then read, which showed that the chapter was in a flourishing condition. After this the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Jennings. Subsequently the usual R.A. toasts were proposed by the M.E.Z., who, being an experienced orator, ran off the speeches with which they were accompanied with a facility which was very agreeable. The companions spent a most delightful evening, and the new M.E.Z.'s year of office was inaugurated with the happiest circumstances.

WHITTINGTON CHAPTER (No. 862).—The latest convocation of this chapter was held on the 26th ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Comps. W. Hurlstone, Z.; W. Jones, H.; and W. Stephens, P.Z., J.; James Weaver, P.Z.; R. W. Little, P.Z., S.E.; Thomas Kingston, S.M.; W. A. Tinney, P.S.; W. H. Murlis, John High, J. H. Glaskin, W. McDonnell, W. F. Norman, James Paul, T. Jessett, John Boyd, and H. Massey being present. After the opening of the chapter, Comp. W. Stephens took the Z. chair for work, and exalted Bros. Grist, 1489; Starkey, 1489; and H. Parkhouse, 511, into R.A. Masonry. At the conclusion of this ceremony, in which Comp. Boyd gave the J. and H. explanations, and Comp. Stephens the Z., the installation of Principals was proceeded with, and on presentation duly made of Comp. W. Jones, Comp. R. W. Little installed him in the Z. chair. Comp. W. Stephens, H. elect, being already an installed First Principal, was simply placed in the H. chair, and his first duty was to install the J. Comp. Thomas Kingston was presented to him for that purpose, and Comp. W. Stephens then installed him in the Third Principal's chair. Comp. Hurlstone took the rank of I.P.Z., and the rest of the officers were thereupon severally invested:—Comps. R. W. Little, P.Z., Treas.; James Weaver, P.Z., S.E.; W. A. Tinney, S.N.; Prichard, P.S.; F. Prichard, First A.S.; Moore, Second A.S.; W. H. Murlis, D.C.; and J. G. Ebert, Janitor. A handsome P.Z.'s jewel, set with diamonds, was presented to Comp. W. Hurlstone by the M.E.Z. in a complimentary speech, to which Comp. Hurlstone made a suitable and effective reply. After this the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to a comfortable little banquet, at which they honoured all the toasts customary in chapters, and wished the M.E.Z. a very happy and prosperous year of office. Comp. Hurlstone replied for "The P.Z.'s," and, notwithstanding his age, exhibited all the fervency and zeal for Freemasonry which habitually characterise the younger members of the Order. The companions separated early.

YORK.—Zetland Chapter (No. 336).—An emergency meeting was held on the 1st inst. at the Masonic Hall, York, for the purpose of exalting the Rt. Hon. Lawrence Dundas, Earl of Zetland, Past Master of the Lennox Lodge, Richmond, and R.W.P.G.M. North and East Riding of Yorkshire. The chapter was opened in form at 4 p.m. by Comp. J. Todd, P.Z., as Z.; Comp. C. Smith, Z., as H.; and Comp. T. Smurthwaite, J.; and the following officers and companions were also present:—Comps. T. B. Whytehead, S.E.; G. Balford, S.N.; W. Lawton, P.Z., P.S.; J. S. Walton, First A.S.; Wilson, Second A.S.; W. Cowling, P.Z., Treas.; T. S. Camidge-Org.; R. W. Hollon, P.D.C. England; Sir James Meek, P.G.P.H.; Rev. J. E. M. Young, P.Z.; R. Davison, P.Z.; Rev. H. V. Palmer, B. Wormald, Hon. W. Orde-Powlett, and a number of other companions, members of the chapter, and visitors. A ballot was taken for his lordship, which having proved successful, he was duly exalted to the Supreme Degree of a Royal Arch Mason. The Historical Lecture was given by Comp. T. Smurthwaite, the Symbolical by Comp. Sir James Meek, and the Mystical by Comp. J. Todd. The chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet room, where an excellent cold collation had been prepared, supplied by Comp. C. Abbott. The M.E.Z. presided, supported by the Second and Third Principals and the Past Z.'s. The usual loyal toasts having been duly honoured, the M.E.Z. explained that the newly-exalted candidate would have to leave early in order to reach Aske Hall that night, and he should therefore depart from the usual order of toasts. He then proposed "The Health of Comp. Lord Zetland," who was a most worthy descendant of his illustrious uncle, whose memory was so dear to Masons. It was both a pleasure and a honour to the chapter to have the Earl of Zetland amongst them that evening, and no words were needed from him to give colour to the happy proceedings of that day. The toast was enthusiastically received, and his lordship, in returning thanks, expressed his regret at the shortness of the time at his disposal. He thanked the chapter for the very cordial manner in which his health had been drank, and for the kind manner in which his predecessor had been referred to. The late Earl was beloved not only by his family but by all who knew him. It had been a great pleasure to him to be present that evening; and he might say that the proceedings in which he had just taken part had corroborated an opinion he had previously formed, that the Royal Arch Degree was the climax of Masonry, and that every good Mason should take that degree. The M.E.Z. then proposed "The Health of the G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," in whose welfare at the present moment Masons took a special interest. The toast was drank with the grand honours. Comp. Sir Jas. Meek, who, on rising, was most cordially received, congratulated the Zetland Chapter upon its present and future prospects. It was a great satisfaction to them all that the Earl of Zetland had chosen it as the medium of his exaltation, and it was a great honour to the chapter to have been privileged to exalt the P.G.M. of the North and East Ridings. The ceremony must have been very gratifying to their noble companion, performed as it had been with the utmost perfection by those who had the working of the chapter. He should propose "The Health of the Three Principals." The toast was received with the honours, and was acknowledged by Comps. C. Smith, J. Todd, and T. Smurthwaite; the M.E.Z. acknowledging the valuable assistance he had received during his term of office from Comp. Todd, and alluding to the excellence of the delivery of the three lectures that evening. Comp. Todd, in returning thanks, expressed a hope that Lord Zetland would soon occupy a distinguished position with regard to Royal Arch Masonry in that province. Comp. Terry (ex-Lord Mayor) proposed "The Health of the Past Z.'s," which was replied to by Comp. Cowling, who said they could not but feel it an honour done to the chapter by his lordship's selection. The name of Dundas was well known and venerated in York, and had been so for generations. Members of that family had been Lord Mayors of York and had represented the city in parliament, and even yet the family held large properties in the city. Times had now changed, and county men no longer served as Lord Mayors, but he hoped to see some means yet discovered whereby the county and city families would be bound together by closer ties of interest, and he could not but regard the institution of Freemasonry as one of the means which might tend to such a result. At any rate, the step taken that night by his lordship proved that the interest of the Dundas family in York was not altogether dead. Comp. Cowling then went on to compliment the members of the chapter on the excellent Masonic spirit they had always shown, and expressed a hope that the future would be as successful a time for the chapter as the past had been. Several other toasts were duly honoured, and the proceedings were enlivened by the singing of Comps. Cumberland, Todd, and others, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

IPSWICH.—Royal Sussex Chapter.—The quarterly convocation of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Wednesday, the 1st inst., when there were present Comps. P. Cornell, M.E.Z.; N. Tracy, H.; R. D. Fraser, J.; H. Luff, Scribe E.; D. Mills, P.Z.; C. Barfoot, C. Pedder, C. Godbold, A. Gamman, W. Clarke, and others. Visiting: Comps. Emma Holmes, M.E.Z. St. Luke's Chapter; W. T. Westgate, P.Z. Alexandra Chapter; G. Abbott, Prin. Soj. St. Luke's Chapter; and others. Chapter having been opened in due form, the installation of the three Principals was proceeded with, Comp. Tracy being inducted into that of Z., Comp. Fraser as H., Comp. W. A. Smith, who had been elected as J. for the ensuing year, not being present, his installation into the Third Chair was postponed. Bro. Henry C. Casley, of the British Union Lodge, having been proposed, balloted for, and approved as a candidate for exaltation, he was admitted, obligated, and exalted to the Sublime Degree of Holy Royal Arch, the ceremony being performed by Comp. Mills, in a very able manner. Comp. Tracy gave the Symbolical and Comp. Fraser the Historical Lecture, the mystical portion being impressively given by the acting Z., Comp. Mills. Comp. Abbott most efficiently sustained the office of Prin. Soj., and performed that onerous duty in a manner we have seldom if ever seen excelled. The other officers appointed, we understand, were Comps. A. Gamman, as Prin. Soj.; C. Pedder, as Scribe N.; Mills and H. Luff being re-appointed Treasurer and Secretary. At the conclusion of the customary business, and after two new candidates had been proposed, the companions shared the secrets, and the chapter was closed. A substantial banquet was served in the adjacent dining hall, to which all the visitors were hospitably invited, and a most pleasant evening was spent. The Royal Sussex occupies the same position in Suffolk in Royal Arch Masonry that the British Union does in the Craft. It is emphatically the chapter in the province, and long may it continue to prosper. The customary loyal toast of "The Queen" was duly honoured of course. Then followed that of "The Three Grand Principals," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Earl of Camarvon, H., and Lord Skelmersdale, J." To the toast of "The Newly Installed Principals, Comps. Tracy and Fraser," both brethren made suitable, modest, and well-chosen words in reply. Comp. Casley, in responding to the toast of "The Newly-Exalted Comp.," proposed by the M.E.Z., who remarked upon the smallness of the numbers of candidates for the R.A. from the British Union Lodge, of which Comp. Casley was a member, adverted to the observation of the M.E.Z., and said that it had often struck him with surprise how little the British Union members seemed to appreciate the Royal Arch, but he should do his best endeavours to persuade the younger members especially to take the degree, which had greatly impressed him. The more he saw of Masonry the more he was convinced that the three grand principles of the Order, Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth, were in reality practised amongst Masons. Comp. Cornell, P.Z., in eulogistic terms proposed "The Health of Comp. Mills," who had so ably performed the ceremony; and that brother, in reply, said that he felt the difficulty that evening of filling the part which had heretofore been so admirably sustained by their late esteemed friends, Comps. King and Franks—now no more. He felt their loss very much, for they had kept up this degree, and he was conscious how far he fell short of their ability in working it. He had often remarked with surprise how few of the British Union members came forward for this degree, considering that as Master Masons they only had the casual signs, the substituted secrets, and it was not until they were in possession of this degree that they learned the real secrets of Masonry. He hoped, however, that Bro. Casley's advent would be the means of drawing many more from that lodge into the Royal Arch. Comp. Tracy, M.E.Z., proposed "The Visitors," to which Comps. Holmes, Abbott, and Westgate suitably responded. Comp. Abbott also kindly sang "The Irish Emigrant" and another song, the title of which we forget, in a manner which elicited the warmest approval. Our companion is the possessor of a lovely tenor voice, and when we say he sings as well as he performs his Masonic duties, we say a good deal. Comp. Westgate acted as M.C., and very efficiently performed his by no means light duties. The companions were loath to separate at a late hour.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NEW ZEALAND (S.C.).

The very interesting and imposing ceremony of installing Bro. William McCullough into the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master of New Zealand, under the Scottish Constitution, took place at the lodge room, Masonic Hotel. At 7.30 p.m. Lodge St. Andrew, 1418

S.C., was opened in the Third Degree by Bro. M. Niccol, R.W.M. The Provincial Grand Lodge, I.C., was then announced and received in due form, and the P.G.L. Officers took the place of the Craft Officers and opened the P.G. Lodge in ample form. Bro. McCullough was then presented to the P.G.M. of New Zealand, I.C., Bro. G. P. Pierce, for installation, Bro. Pierce having been requested by the P.G.M., S.C., who is resident in Dunedin, to do so. The D.P.G.M. elect was presented by Past Masters Hay, Dewar, Anderson, and Niccol, the last named of whom made a few appropriate remarks. Bro. McCullough was then invested and installed, Bro. Pierce conducting the ceremony in the most impressive manner, and ably assisted by the V.W.P.G. Chaplain, Dr. Kidd, and Bro. Rev. D. Bruce, Chaplain of St. Andrew's. The D.P.G.M. having been placed to the right of the P.G.M., and saluted with grand honours, Dr. Kidd then delivered a very able and instructive address which was listened to with pleasure by the brethren, many expressing the desire that the oration might be printed. Bro. McCullough having briefly thanked the brethren, the P.G. Lodge was closed, the officers of Lodge St. Andrew resumed their chairs, and closed. The brethren afterwards sat down, to the number of about fifty, to an excellent supper, provided by Host Ave, at which Bro. Niccol, R.W.M. of St. Andrew, presided, supported on the right by Bro. G. P. Pierce, P.G.M. of New Zealand, S.C., and on the left by Bro. McCullough, D.P.G.M. of New Zealand, S.C., when the list of toasts were gone through. The brethren separated at half-past 11, after spending a most enjoyable evening, the gathering having been the largest that has been known for many years. The lodge-room was inconveniently crowded, and many obliged to go away, not being able to find room. This, as was remarked by several speakers, shows the urgent necessity of a Masonic Hall in Auckland, and we trust the brethren composing the directory of the company recently formed for this purpose will not relax their efforts till they have effected their object. A considerable number of the shares have been applied for, but a number are still open for application, &c.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on the 4th inst. at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. John Symonds, V.P., in the chair. There were also present—Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, Hyde Pullen, A. H. Tattershall, W. F. C. Moutrie, Benj. Head, G. Bolton, Jesse Turner, H. Massey ("Freemason"), John Boyd, Col. Alexander Ridgway, Herbert Dicketts, A. H. Diaper, John W. Denison, Barrow Turner (W.M. 183), Robert B. Webster, F. Adlard, W. Maple, G. J. Palmer, C. W. Todd, J. G. Chancellor, and F. Binckes (Secretary).

After the formalities of reading and confirming the minutes of the last meeting, and the reading of the meetings of House and Audit Committees for information, Bro. Binckes informed the Committee that a sad occurrence took place at the School the day before. A lad named Nevill, from the Province of West Yorkshire, eleven years of age, was seized with rheumatic pains in the middle of the day, when Mr. Hall, the medical officer, attended him. He saw him again later in the day, and again in the evening, and found he got worse. Directions were at once given to have the lad's mother telegraphed to, which was accordingly done, and Mr. Hall remained with him till four o'clock in the morning, at which hour the poor little fellow died from stoppage of the heart, caused by rheumatics. The lad's mother answered the telegram, and desired that his funeral might take place on Tuesday following, at the Tottenham Cemetery, for which directions were accordingly given.

The Committee then considered petitions of candidates, of whom they placed four on the list for next election.

Bro. Alexander Ridgway next brought up the report of the Special Committee appointed to enquire into the charges brought by Bros. Tew and Perrott against Bro. Binckes, and stated that every member of the Special Committee agreed to the report.

The following is the report referred to:—

Report of a Special Committee appointed on the 6th day of Nov. 1875, by the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

The committee have directed their attention to a paragraph at p. 29 of a pamphlet, published at Pontefract on the 29th of September, 1875, by Bro. T. W. Tew, of Pontefract, D. Prov. G.M. of the Province of West Yorkshire, and Bro. the Rev. O. G. D. Perrott, late Head Master of this Institution.

The paragraph is as follows:—"Since writing, and, as we had hoped, concluding the preceding pages, we have discovered an item in the accounts for 1872, 1873, and 1874, which, of itself, is enough to warrant us in condemning in the strongest terms the way in which the School expenditure is presented. We refer to the item under the head of 'Gratuities to (with grants and outfits for) Boys leaving the Institution.' The amount so expended (see different Reports for 1872, 1873, and 1874) for the last three years is £314 5s. (viz.: £119 in 1872; £126 10s. in 1873; and £68 15s. for 1874), of which sum only £172 10s. are accounted for, leaving £141 15s. of which no account is rendered! We note too, according to Reports, that during six years and a half, i.e., from June, 1868 (see Report for 1872, p. 40) to December, 1874 (see Report for 1874, p. 48) only £362 15s. have been awarded in grants, of which sum £314 5s., is assigned to the last three years, 1872, 1873, and 1874; so that for the preceding three years and a half only £48 10s. appears to have been spent in this way. Now, all this can be verified by referring to the three Reports, but great care is needed in consequence of the numerous blunders; and we assert what we mean when we say, that these blunders are sufficient to make any one look at these accounts with very grave doubts."

They have also had before them the different Reports of the Institution for 1872, 1873, and 1874, referred to in the pamphlet. At page 34 of the Report for 1872 they found a schedule of receipts and expenditure, in which, under the latter head, there appeared the two following items namely:—

A. Grants and outfits for boys leaving the Institution	£110 0 0
B. Gratuities to boys on leaving the Institution	9 0 0

which appears to be the sum of "£119 in 1872" referred to in the pamphlet.

At page 37 of the Report for 1873 they found a similar schedule, in which, under the head of expenditure, they found the following items, namely:—

C. Grant and outfit for boys leaving Institution	£122 0 0
D. Gratuities to boys on leaving Institution	4 10 0

which appears to be the sum of "£126 10s. in 1873," referred to in the pamphlet.

At page 41 of the Report for 1874 they found a similar schedule, in which, under the head of special expenditure, there appeared the following items, namely:—

E. Gratuities to boys on leaving Institution	£ 5 0 0
F. Grants and outfits for boys leaving Institution	62 10 0
G. Silver Medal	1 5 0

which appears to be the sum of "£68 15s. for 1874" referred to in the pamphlet.

The attention of the committee was called to the fact that this sum of £68 15s., comprising the above three items, is entered in the schedule attached to some of the Reports under the following description:—

First—Gratuities to boys on leaving the Institution	£ 17 10 0
Secondly—Grants and outfits for boys leaving the Institution	51 5 0 making together the same total of

This apparent discrepancy was investigated by the Committee, and was found to result from a less specific analysis of the several items under the heads of Grants and Gratuities and Outfits in the latter case than in the former case.

The committee next proceeded to examine the vouchers for each item in the sums marked A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, with the following results:—

The sum A of £110 charged for grants and outfits for boys on leaving the Institution paid in 1872, for sums awarded in that and previous years, is fully vouched by receipts which are sealed together, marked A, and presented with this Report.

The sum B of £9 charged for gratuities was found to consist of 18 several sums of 10s. each, which was ordered by the General Committee to be paid to as many deserving boys on their leaving the school, as provided for by the by-laws. They examined the minute book and found that on the 21st June, 1872, £5 10s. was paid to 11 boys, and on the 20th December, 1872, £4 was paid to 8 boys, making together £9 10s.

The sum C, namely £122, was found to consist of £120, the amount of grants paid in 1873 for sums awarded in that and previous years, which sums are fully vouched by receipts which are sealed together, marked C, and presented with this Report; and further, that the sum of £2 for clothing for Harry Smith, which was omitted under the head of clothing, is vouched by a receipt which is annexed separately to the other receipts under the letter C.

The sum D of £4 10s. was found to consist of 9 several sums of 10s. each, which were paid to as many deserving boys on their leaving school, in accordance with a minute of the House Committee, dated 20th June, 1873. These two sums, namely C £122 and D £4 10s., thus found to be vouched, amount to £126 10s., the sum referred to in the pamphlet.

The sum F, namely £62 10s., charged for grants paid in 1874 for sums awarded in that and the previous years, is fully vouched by receipts, which are sealed together and marked E, and presented with this Report.

The sum E, being £5 charged for gratuities, was found to consist in the first place of 10s. previously authorised to be paid as above stated, but not paid in 1874, and secondly of £4 10s. authorised to be paid in nine several sums, according to the minutes of the House Committee, follows, namely: On the 24th July, 1874, at folios 268 and 269, £3; and on the 23rd day of October, 1874, at folio 282, 10s.; and on the 20th November, 1874, at folio 296, 10s.; and on the 18th of December, £1.

The sum G, namely £1 5s., was found to be the cost of a silver medal which was voted by the House Committee, as appears by a minute dated 24th Oct., 1874, and the committee see no reason to doubt that the payment was properly vouched to the auditors in the regular way. These three sums, namely, E, £62 10s.; F, £5; and G, £1 5s. form together £68 15s., which they consider to be properly vouched. The three sums of £119, charged in 1872; £126 10s., charged in 1873; and £68 15s., charged in 1874, make up together the £314 5s. referred to in the pamphlet of Bros. Tew and Perrott.

There appears to the committee no intricacy of account connected with these sums; they are found in lump sums in the three annual reports, and the details of the names of the boys for whom the grants were ordered by the General Committee appear set forth at length at page 40 of the Report for 1872, and in continuation of a similar list up to Dec., 1874, as apparently referred to in the pamphlet of Bros. Tew and Perrott. The lump sums, therefore, which have been charged in the published accounts of the Institution, amounting to £314 5s., will be found to agree with the vouchers and minutes as above set forth.

The schedules of the names of the boys who have received the grants, which range from page 40 of the Report for 1872 down to the month of Dec. in the Report of 1874, illustrate and explain the agreement of the vouchers and the sums debited. Having thus arrived at the conclusion that the sum expended for the years 1872, 1873, and 1874 for grants and gratuities, amounting to £314 5s., is satisfactorily accounted for, the committee next directed their attention to the statement of Bros. Tew and Perrott, that out of this sum of £314 5s. only £172 10s. is accounted for, leaving £141 15s., of which no account is rendered.

In this second portion of the investigation they have entirely failed to discover any ground for such a statement; there is no such sum as £172 10s., forming the aggregate of grants and gratuities or grants and outfits, accounted for in the three years of 1872, 1873, and 1874; on the contrary, as above stated, it has been found that the full sum of £314 5s. has been so accounted for, and that there is clearly no ground for the statement that "no account is rendered" of the sum of £141 15s., or of any part thereof.

The committee did not find that any necessity existed for calling in the assistance of a professional accountant to enable them to investigate and report upon this matter, nor did they consider that they would be justified in putting the charity to the expense of any professional accountant under such circumstances.

It appears to the committee that this serious imputation upon the accounts of the Secretary has not been caused by any lack of clearness in the published accounts. There is, however, one clause in that paragraph of the pamphlet to which attention has been directed, which suggests that Bros. Tew and Perrott have had a confused impression regarding the periods in respect of which the various grants were voted, and the dates on which these various grants were applied for and paid. The committee ground this opinion on the very loose and unbusiness-like expression that the sum of £314 5s. is "assigned" to the last three years. In other words, there appears to have been a difficulty in discriminating between, on the one hand, sums debited within a certain period in the cash account and properly vouched, and, on the other hand, sums based upon events which may have merely occurred in any given period, the items of which, of course, can only be dealt with as "assigned" in the form of a schedule.

The Secretary and his clerk have afforded us every information and assistance in reply to our searching enquiries.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart asked whether the committee had directed their attention to the mistakes in the spelling of the names. Bros. Tew and Perrott made out their case by the leaving out of the o or the u in a name.

Bro. Ridgway said that the committee felt that they had to deal with certain specific figures, and they also felt that it was impossible to go into things in general. If they could detect in these particular figures named any amount of error, they thought they would then be justified in going on investigating matters of a more general character; and with that view they therefore dealt with the specific sum of £314 5s. In investigating this sum they found the vouchers clearly vouching for every item of the sum debited. If it did so happen that there had been a dozen boys named a dozen times over, it would have affected in no degree the accuracy of these accounts; and he had no doubt whatever—and the committee referred to it in their report—that Bros. Tew and Perrott had probably misled themselves in dealing with what was not an account, instead of with the account itself. The committee did not direct their attention to any other matter, any side issue, as it were. The reference to the committee was to see whether those sums were vouched for. They did not look, nor did they consider it necessary for them to look, into any mis-spelling of names or repetition of names. It was quite clear if a boy's name appeared twice in the reports it must have been a blunder; at all events, they were not charged twice, and the committee did not find (that was the point of Bro. Stewart's question) that any boy had been charged for twice over.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart said then the committee so satisfied their own minds that the sum was right—they did not see two vouchers for the same sum. He had rather regretted that their report did not go further than that, and say that among the vouchers there was no mis-spelling of names. There was the great charge that the names were mis-spelt.

Bro. Ridgway said whether they were clerical errors or printers' errors to which Bros. Tew and Perrott referred, they were not matters which came before the committee. The simple fact that came before them was whether a certain sum of money had been expended by Bro. Binckes; they required vouchers for those sums; vouchers were given them; and they found among them no duplicate charge for the same voucher. So that having found all these properly vouched they had not followed up a loose statement.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart added that he did not doubt the thing for a moment; but looking at Bros. Tew and Perrott's pamphlet, it was not only a slur upon Bro. Binckes, but upon the auditors of the school, saying "You have been deceived and gulled; and you are parties to it."

Bro. Ridgway said he was afraid it was a much more serious matter. It was very clear—the committee were unquestionably of opinion—that there was no basis for those charges made in this pamphlet with respect to the figures.

Bro. C. W. Todd said he supposed the committee were also of opinion that they were amounts which ought to be paid.

Bro. Ridgway replied yes; and not only so, but they were ordered to be paid, and there were the minutes which showed that the order was given.

Bro. C. W. Todd thought so, and the committee looked into the amounts. He understood Bro. Ridgway to say that everything was examined, and everything was vouched except a silver medal, £1 5s.

Bro. Ridgway said yes; and the committee had no reason to doubt that that voucher was at the institution, and that it had been produced to the auditors when they passed the accounts. It was for a silver medal, which was a matter of such notoriety to the House Committee that no one, he presumed, would doubt that that money was paid for the medal.

Bro. Herbert Dicketts said the Special Committee had not sent to Warrington's for a receipt.

Bro. Ridgway then read some letters which had passed between the committee and Bros. Tew and Perrott with reference to the report of the Special Committee. The first was from Bro. Dicketts, the chairman of the committee, and was sent in duplicate, one to Bro. Tew and the other to Bro. Perrott, on the 26th November. The committee, after satisfying themselves as to what the state of the facts was with regard to these specific figures, considered they were in a position to communicate with Bros. Tew and Perrott, to give them an opportunity of explaining the specific charges with which they had more particularly to deal, and therefore a week ago they instructed their chairman, Bro. Dicketts, to write a letter to Bros. Tew and Perrott. This he did, and the letter was in the following words:—"Dear Sir and Brother,—The Special Committee appointed to investigate certain charges published in a pamphlet reflecting upon the accuracy of the accounts of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys have had under their consideration the £141 15s. considered by you to be unaccounted for in the accounts of the institution. If you are desirous of making any distinct specification of the items comprised in that sum supposed to be thus unaccounted for, I shall be happy to receive a communication from you at your earliest convenience." Bro. Dicketts received the two following letters in reply:—

"Enfield Villa, Hanwell,
Nov. 27th, 1875.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of yesterday's date, and I note its contents. As I presume a similar letter has been addressed to Bro. Tew, I must wait till I hear from him as to the course we shall adopt; when this is determined on, we shall at once communicate with you; in the meantime I may be allowed to observe that in the "Freemason" of last week I offered some remarks on the statement of account in the matter, (1) 'Gratuities' and (2), 'Grants and Outfits,' said to be the one submitted to yourself and colleagues.

"I am, dear Sir and Brother, very faithfully and fraternally yours,
"H. Dicketts, Esq."

"The Grange, Carleton, Pontefract, 3rd Dec., 1875.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—We jointly beg to acknowledge your communication to us on the subject of our pamphlet in reference to the Masonic Boys' School, only one portion of which appears to have been submitted to the notice of the committee. We therefore see no reason for withdrawing our statements respecting the very unsatisfactory manner in which the accounts in the published official reports have been drawn up; and we shall therefore wait for any explanation that may be forthcoming.

"We remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
"THOS. Wm. TEW.
"O. G. D. PERROTT.

"H. Dicketts, Esq., No. 6, Freemasons' Hall." The committee produced this correspondence in order to show that they had given Bros. Tew and Perrott an opportunity of explaining and enabling the committee more specifically to enter into those two sums named; but as they had not chosen to do so the committee had not the slightest hesitation whatever in holding to their report that those sums said not to be accounted for were accounted for and vouched. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Geo. J. Palmer moved, "That the report of the Special Committee be received and adopted by the General Committee."

Bro. J. G. Chancellor seconded the motion.
Carried nem. con.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart thought that that report ought to be printed and circulated among the brethren. It would, of course, remain with Bro. Binckes to take further steps or make a further statement. There never was a more unjustifiable attack on a number of brethren without the slightest rhyme or reason. A more libellous pamphlet could not have been written. He would, therefore, move, "That the report be printed and circulated."

Bro. J. G. Chancellor seconded it.

Bro. Ridgway thought after what had occurred that it was right for him to say that the pamphlet was not only false and libellous, but the object with which it was circulated could not be recognised by brother Masons as in the slightest degree of an honourable or fraternal character. (Hear, hear.)

The Chairman said that perhaps the better motion would be "That the report of the Committee of Investigation, together with the letters from Bros. Tew and Perrott, be printed under the direction of the committee, and circulated among the subscribers."

In this form the motion was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Raynham Stewart thought that the brethren owed a very great debt of gratitude to the committee for the great pains they had taken in the enquiry in order to give the brethren a true statement. He was sure they must have had great trouble, and they were deserving of the best thanks of the General Committee for voluntarily taking the work upon them. He begged to move the thanks of the General Committee to the brethren of the Special Committee.

Bro. John Boyd seconded the motion, which was put, and carried unanimously.

The Chairman, addressing Bro. Dicketts as Chairman of the Special Committee, said he cordially concurred in the resolution the brethren had come to; and perhaps he might be permitted to say it was very satisfactory to them all that the motion should have come from Bro. Stewart, who, though his views were not entirely in accordance with the majority of the other brethren with regard to Bro. Perrott's resignation, now came and condemned most emphatically, and he must add, most justly, the course taken by Bros. Perrott and Tew.

Bro. Dicketts in returning thanks said that he had occupied the post of Chairman of the Special Committee with some reluctance. The brethren's thanks were mainly due to Bro. Ridgway whose assistance had been most valuable to the Committee. They had met several times and spent several hours over the report, because they were fully determined that there should be nothing wanting as far as they were concerned. The report they had presented was the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Bro. Benj. Head proposed, and Bro. F. Adlard seconded, a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was unanimously adopted.

The Chairman acknowledged the compliment, and said he never had had the slightest doubt but that Bro. Binckes would be able to clear himself from the odious imputation cast upon him. He (the Chairman) had never been one of those who had flattered Bro. Binckes, but he had often had to speak to him with respect to what he might call his over zeal in behalf of the Institution. He could remember the time when £800 collected at a festival was considered a large sum. Since Bro. Binckes had been Secretary it had gone on increasing until at last festival the amount was £12,700, and mainly by the exertions of Bro. Binckes. If such a man were to be driven from his Secretaryship they would be stopping up the source from which the Institution derived its income.

The meeting then separated.

BANQUET TO BRO. ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S.

On Monday week, the Grand Steward's of 1874-5 entertained Bro. Erasmus Wilson, their president, at a grand banquet at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. Bro. George Payne, W.M. 1; Treasurer of the late Board of Stewards, took the chair, having Bro. Wilson on his right hand. The other brethren present were Bros. J. E. Middleton, W.M. 29, Secretary of the late Board, in Vice President's chair; W. B. Rogers, J.W. 91; H. H. Bothamley, W.M. 14; Sir Bruce M. Seton, Bart., 6; C. E. Stoltenhoff, P.M. 21; H. Whitfield, W.M. 60; James Warner, P.M. 23; J. Oastler, 197; Alfred H. Diaper, 5; Alfred Richards, P.M. 46; and Visitors, Bros. C. A. Payne, S. A. Nott, 29; E. M. Haigh, P.M. 29; H. J. Chapman, Hugh D. Sandeman, P.G.D.M., Bengal; W. V. Brown, Captain Marcus Sharpe, W. Hollingsworth, Lieut.-Col. Creaton, P.G.D.; Dr. Paula, Stephen Pearce, S.D. 2; and H. Massey, ("Freemason.")

The dinner was supplied in splendid style by Bro. Jennings, and at its conclusion four toasts only were proposed, "The Queen and the Craft," "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," and "The Visitors." In giving the toast of the "evening," Bro. Erasmus Wilson, the Chairman said that it was with much diffidence he rose to propose it, as it required a brother of greater power of speech than he to do full justice to it. Simply, however, to express his feelings and those of the other Grand Stewards in recognition of his courteous conduct to them whilst president of their Board, was not so difficult a task, and this he begged to do most heartily and sincerely, and as powerfully as he could. Bro. Wilson's generous hospitality towards them, and the labour he undertook to obtain for them some mark of recognition from Grand Lodge during the late eventful year in Masonry, had incited the brethren to pass the compliment upon him of entertaining him at this dinner. The project had met with the approbation of every Grand Steward, although there were some who, from unavoidable circumstances, were absent that evening, some unfortunately through domestic affliction. Still, he knew he expressed the feelings of the whole body of Grand Stewards when he said that they all wished Bro. Wilson might be spared long to practise that profession he so much adorned. It was also one of their earnest wishes that he might achieve high rank in Grand Lodge, which his Masonic ability and geniality fairly entitled him to. (Cheers.)

Bro. Wilson, in reply, said he hoped and believed that the brotherhood which had been established under circumstances certainly so peculiar, and scarcely likely to recur—the installation of a Prince of Wales as G.M.—in our time, would be a lasting one. In taking an active part in the ceremony the Grand Stewards had formed personal friendships which he was sanguine enough to hope might be maintained by their meeting year by year in future till time should be with them no more. He trusted that at the end of another year the Grand Stewards would become his guests at the Conservative Club, so that they might together perpetuate the auspicious ceremony of the installation of their present Grand Master, and their happy union by that great event. (Cheers.)

The Chairman, in giving the toast of "The Visitors," said the Grand Stewards were especially pleased on that occasion to have visitors, because two of them were members of Bro. Wilson's own lodge, one a P.M., and one the S.D. The Past District Grand Master of Bengal, Bro. Sandeman, he (the Chairman) was proud to claim as a member of his own lodge, No. 1. They were also obliged to the visitors for having come to assist them in paying a compliment to Bro. Wilson. (Hear, hear.)

Lieut.-Col. Creaton, in reply, said that, as a member of Bro. Wilson's lodge, he was delighted at being present to witness the compliment paid to him. They had all been surprised at Bro. Wilson's work in Masonry, and he was a highly valued member of his lodge.

Bro. H. D. Sandeman also responded, and the brethren then adjourned to the drawing-room.

CONSECRATION OF THE CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1572.

The consecration of this new lodge took place on Saturday last at the Albion, Aldersgate-street. The ceremony was performed by Bro. John Hervey, G.S., P.G.D. (the officer appointed for the purpose by the M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales, K.G.), assisted by Bro. James Terry, P.M., P.G.D.C., Herts, as D.C.; Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas., Middlesex, as S.W.; Bro. J. Bingemann, W.M. No. 55, as J.W., and the following brethren—G. A. Brock, 765; A. Taylor, 765; J. L. Mather, P.M. 65; D. R. Still, P.M. 1293; J. Slade Brown, W.M. 1056; J. Cowan, 765; N. Reed, 765; H. Crump, 765; R. N. Field, W.M. 902; Muggeridge, 538; J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180; P. Hickman, W.M. Joppa, 168; P. Tucker, 765; C. W. Thompson, J.D. 969; A. G. Marks, 192; A. Townsend, 22; W. Leman, 765; W. S. Whitaker, 765; B. Dafforn, 765; F. Wilcocks, 765; A. White, 318; J. McCubbin, P.P.G.S.D. Bucks, P.M. 948; R. Hobbs, 765; C. Soppitt, 55; J. Gardner, 183; C. Daniel, J.W. 65; W. Bray, 511; C. B. Payne, P.M. 27; E. Turner, 157; W. Munro, 765; J. Jolmasson, J.W. 657; W. Buck, S.W. 657; J. Clarricoats, 765; T. Brown, S.W. 765; J. Margetts, 765; T. Hellier, 765; G. Briggs, 765; A. Jaceard, 1314; J. Burman, 1314. The ceremony was performed with all the customary formalities, and with the ability which habitually distinguishes the working of consecrating officers. The Rev. W. Taylor Jones, as Chaplain, and Bro. Van Noorden as Organist, for the consecrating ceremony, were absent, and sent letters expressing their regret at their inability to attend. When the consecration ceremony was concluded, Bro. Hervey proceeded to instal Bro. Richard Pawson Hooton, P.M. and Treasurer, No. 765, as Worshipful Master, and when this had been performed the brethren below the degree of Installed Master were admitted, and the customary proceedings followed. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. W. S. Whitaker, S.W.; J. Cowan, J.W.; W. Clarricoats, Treasurer; Mont. Scott, Secretary; T. Hellier, S.D.; Nelson Reed J.D.; James Briggs, I.G.; T. Brown, D.C.; G. A. Brock, W.S.; and Steedman, Tyler. Votes of thanks were afterwards passed to the consecrating officers, who were also elected hon. members of the lodge. Several names were given in of gentlemen wishing to be initiated in the Order, and the lodge was thereafter closed. The brethren, forming a very nice little party, then partook of a delightful banquet, supplied at the Albion by Bro. Jennings, and when this, which was thoroughly enjoyed, had been disposed of, the toasts were honoured.

In proposing "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said that Her Majesty must take a deep interest in all their doings, inasmuch as her eldest son was in the high position of the Grand Master of Freemasons.

The W.M. referred to the Prince of Wales's visit to the East, when he proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," and revived the recollection of the brethren with regard to the wonderful sight seen on the 28th of April last, when H.R.H. was installed. In undertaking the duties of G.M., Freemasons felt it was an honour conferred upon them individually. The Prince's heart was in Masonry, and there was not the slightest doubt that he was in all respects a Freemason, a man, and a brother.

The W.M. also spoke in the highest terms of the Masonic merits and virtues of all the Grand Officers in giving the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." Being at Liverpool a few days ago, he found that Lord Skelmersdale stood as high in the estimation of the Lancashire brethren as it was possible for a man to stand in the opinion of his fellow men. (Cheers.)

Bro. Hervey replied. He did not wonder at the W.M. using such eulogistic expressions of the Grand Officers, inasmuch as the lodge had appropriated the Pro Grand Master's name. He did not think it could have appropriated a better. There was not a position in life which Lord Carnarvon had filled that he had not occupied well and worthily, and which he had not honoured. With regard to Lord Skelmersdale, the W.M. had expressed what was felt throughout the length and breadth of West Lancashire; there was not a brother they would wish to have as Prov. G.M. in preference to Lord Skelmersdale; there was not a brother in the Craft who did his duty more genially, with more sincerity, with more real feeling, or with more anxiety than the work of the Craft should be well done, than Lord Skelmersdale. Bro. Hervey then thanked the brethren for the rest of the Grand Officers, and ended by proposing "Success to the Carnarvon Lodge, and the Health of the W.M." It was ten years that very day that the W.M. was initiated in Freemasonry. It was a strange coincidence that on the day ten years after his initiation he should be installed W.M. of a new lodge. It augured well for the future of the lodge that the W.M. was so highly appreciated as to be selected by the brethren to preside over them when his natal day in Freemasonry fell on his natal day in the Carnarvon Lodge. He would not have been recommended to the Grand Master if the brethren had not felt confidence in the way he would work the lodge. Bro. Hervey was also sure that Bro. Hooton would not have undertaken the task if he had not felt himself competent to undertake his duties; and he called upon the brethren of all grades of office in the lodge to support Bro. Hooton to the utmost of their ability. (Cheers.)

The W.M. said it was with infinite pleasure he looked on the fact of his having been ten years a Mason. During that time he had done all in his power to fulfil and carry out the principles that were instilled into his mind at his Masonic baptism. In undertaking the duties of the W.M. chair of this lodge he did it for one special reason, to further the advancement of the brethren who had belonged to the lodge from which they all emanated. He was quite certain that if they all worked together they would be a good lodge. If they were not harmonious of course they must come to the ground. It was one thing to be placed in his dignified position; it was another thing to be supported when in it. He was sure that the officers he had just appointed would be most able, and willing, and assiduous in their duties. Within his own mind he felt that the prosperity of the Carnarvon Lodge would be enhanced by the brethren knowing their duties. He thanked the brethren for the dignity they had conferred upon him, and promised to perform his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren. (Cheers.) The W.M. next gave "The Consecrating Officer," and said it was a distinguished privilege to have Bro. Hervey to perform the ceremony. Alluding to what Grand Secretary had said in lodge, that if the brethren were not bound together they were as nothing, he thanked Bro. Hervey for saying so; and he hoped that he would frequently come among them, to see how they were getting on. No one could charge G. Secretary with not coming among the brethren, for he was very often seen among them, and was always ready to render any assistance he could in the work of ceremonies. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Hervey responded in a very few words.

Bro. Terry replied for "The Visitors," and wished the lodge every prosperity.

The W.M. next gave "The Officers of the Lodge," and said that he was quite clear that no W.M. in the annals of Freemasonry ever ascended the throne of King Solomon with a more efficient staff of officers than he had around him. He felt in his own heart and mind that all the officers were brethren who were competent to perform their duty, although they were all young Masons. He then named all the brethren who were appointed to office and enumerated the offices they held.

Bros. Carlton, Whitaker, Cowan, Clarricoats, Mont. Scott, Hellier, Nelson Reed, Briggs, Brown, and Brock responded, and the evening was brought to a close with "The Tyler's" toast, given by Bro. Steedman.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

A meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the rooms of the Isaac Newton University Lodge, on Saturday, Dec. 2nd. In the absence of the Earl of Hardwicke, R.W.P.G.M., the chair was occupied by Bro. John Deighton, D.P.G.M., the Wardens' chairs being filled by Bros. Fetch and Professor Miller. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. Bro. T. Nichols was re-elected Treas., and the following Provincial Grand Officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—A. F. Donagan, S.W.; J. Leach, J.W.; Rev. W. D. Stephens (Corpus Christi Coll.) and Rev. W. B. Coyte, (Clare), Chaplains; H. Browne (Clare), Registrar; E. Haggis, Sec.; E. A. Maund (St. Peter's), S.D.; B. Chennell, J.D.; Carrick, Supt. of Works; A. J. Brogden (Downing), Dir. of Cers.; C. Jennings, Ass. Dir. of Cers.; H. Bossard, Sword Bearer; W. D. Jones (Trinity), Organist; Squire, Pursuivant; the Hon. J. W. Plunkett, and five other members of the University, Stewards.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

We cannot too often call the attention of the Craft to the claims of the various Masonic Institutions, and remind them that those splendid buildings erected at Croydon as an asylum for aged Freemasons and widows, and at Wood Green and Battersea Rise, as schools for the sons and daughters of Freemasons, cannot be maintained in their present state of efficiency, and their inmates increased, without the liberal contributions of the Craft.

There are at the present time 130 aged Freemasons in receipt of annuities of £36 per annum, 100 widows in receipt of annuities of £28 per annum, and 11 widows in receipt of half annuities, most of whom are also inmates of the asylum; also 177 boys and 148 girls in the schools, while about 402 aged Freemasons, 186 widows, 1266 boys, and 1039 girls have been benefitted by the institutions since their foundations.

Every member of the Craft should subscribe to one or other of the institutions, and brethren who have not already subscribed should, through such an association as the Metropolitan Masonic Benevolent Association, become life subscribers or life governors of the institutions by payment of the small sum of one shilling per week, and thus have the privilege of voting at each election of annuitants and inmates.

The President of the association is our well-known and highly respected Bro. J. R. Stacey, W.M. 180, Preceptor of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction; the Vice-President, Bro. J. White, W.M. 228; and the Treasurer, Bro. J. Bingemann, W.M. 55; and the association holds its meetings at the Portugal Hotel, 155, Fleet-street, E.C., on the first Friday in every month at 8.30 in the evening, after the closing of the Lodge of Instruction, when the sums in the hands of the Treasurer are balloted for.

Any brother, lady, or lewis may become a member of the association, and, for the convenience of members residing at a distance, the subscriptions may be sent by post-office order to the Honorary Secretary, Bro. Wm. W. Snelling, who will forward prospectus and bye-laws of the association free to any brother desirous of becoming a member.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: Vigorous health.—With winter come sore trials to the soundest constitutions, while the naturally delicate and feeble find it too frequently a prolonged struggle against or undue suffering. All diseases affecting the nervous system arise from impurity in the blood, irregularity of organic action, or vitiated secretions. Holloway's Pills are invaluable for removing all poisonous elements from the body, and are famed for curing indigestion, flatulency, and costiveness, as well as palpitation, pain in the side, and other morbid feelings. The neuralgic pains, attendant on the nervous class of diseases, soon yield to these purifying Pills—the sensations of anxiety daily diminish under their use, sound sleep supersedes nights of watching, and calm repose displaces hideous dreams.—ADVT.

THE DISCREPANCIES OF FREEMASONRY. BY REV. G. OLIVER, D.D. John Hogg & Co.

We are among those who always welcome all contributions to the common store of Masonic archaeological literature, even when we do not agree with the views of the writers, and we certainly are always glad to peruse the works of our able Bro. Dr. Oliver. The work before us is a posthumous publication by Bro. Hogg of a MS., as we understand, purchased at Bro. R. Spencer's sale. It is rather curious to note that three posthumous works of Dr. Oliver's are now before the Masonic reading public. The Pythagorean Triangle, the book before us, and the Hermes Analogy, now appearing monthly in the "Masonic Magazine." And one thing, we think, is incontestable, that Bro. Dr. Oliver's name keeps, so to say, the Masonic market. And we do not wonder at it, for, despite some obvious faults, our Bro. the Dr. was a man of great reading, great industry, and much acumen. At the same time all great men have their faults, and our good old teacher was not exempt from them, as indeed no one is. We are among those who think that he often touched on subjects he had better have left in repose. There can be no doubt that to Dr. Oliver the realistic school of Masonic writers owes its origin, and we seem following his example too eagerly, and to be pushing things to extremes just now in many matters, alike in over publication and in uncalled-for confidences. The public does not want our extreme expansiveness and readiness of explanation, and the Craft is none the better for it. We especially object to public discussions on the minutiae of the ritual—and we have always regretted that Dr. Oliver set an example, which has been too readily followed by the discussion of matters only to be properly treated in lodge. Interesting as this posthumous MS. of the Dr.'s is, and we do not at all find fault with Bro. Hogg for publishing it, yet, we feel, it will strike many, as it has struck us, that it deals with many subjects, hardly suitable for general publication or discussion. Not that we fear publicity or discussion, or object to scientific research, or intellectual studies, far from it. But the archaeology of Freemasonry is one thing, the arcana of Freemasonry is another, and while we all hail investigation into and publication of the former, we deprecate explanation of and publication of the latter. Readable and animated as the little work is, we doubt somewhat whether it will add much to the writer's Masonic or literary fame. There are one or two glaring errors as to matter of fact and archaeological accuracy, and we think that as a work on the whole it is hastily put together and hurriedly worked out. Still we will not be either too fastidious, or too hypercritical, or "look," as they say, a "gift horse in the mouth," and so we hope that this last publication of our reverend and worthy brother may find a considerable circle of appreciating Masonic readers. As Masonic students we thank Bro. Hogg for another contribution to Masonic literature.

ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST OF MASONIC CLOTHING. Price 5s. GEORGE KENNING. Third Edition.

Despite an inconvenience in the matter, we cannot ourselves see why we should not notice here all publications coming bona fide from our publisher. Whether some may cavil, or others complain, we, to say the truth, care very little, and we therefore in the first place beg to call the attention of all lodges and brethren to that very interesting establishment which is now open at 1, 2 and 3, Little Britain, and which reflects the highest credit on the skill of the architect, and the energy of Bro. Kenning. We believe that we are warranted in saying that if our brethren like to take their wives, and daughters, and sisters, and sweethearts with them when they visit this unique Masonic Emporium, Bro. Kenning will be glad that they shall see the rooms, alike for work and show, and sure we are they will be much pleased with the same.—Bro. Kenning's elaborate and artistically executed "Price List," a specialité in its way, is an evidence both of a happy conception by himself, and a most successful execution by the printers, Messrs. Reeves. We beg to repeat, the exhibition at 1, 2, and 3, Little Britain, is worth a visit.

THE ROYAL MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA. Edited by BRO. KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE. Bro. John Hogg.

Part 2 of this new undertaking is before us, and leaves us about half way through the letter G. It seems to be progressing carefully and well, and evidences a considerable amount of hard work, alike in research and study. If we do not agree with every position of its undoubtedly able editor, we like the frankness of his statements, and the honest manner in which he propounds his own opinions. We think that all such handbooks are most useful to Masonic students, and we can honestly and sincerely say, we wish fraternally all success to the Royal Masonic Cyclopædia.

THE CITY DIARY FOR 1876. W. H. COLLINGRIDGE. "City Press" Office.

We have received and looked over this diary, and like it much. It is neat, compact, and handy, and we think is likely to be acceptable to many business men and students. The cheapness of price, one shilling, strikes us as something very remarkable, even in these days of cheap everything. We can safely commend it to the notice of our many readers.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE "GRAPHIC."

The Christmas number of this illustrated periodical will, we doubt not, be very acceptable to a large number of readers, especially our juvenile "lot," as the irreverent youth term them: Miss Thompson's splendid picture will be much and justly admired.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this institution was held on Wednesday at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creton, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Benj. Head, Thomas W. White, A. H. Tattershall, Charles Lacey, John Constable, C. F. Hogard, James Brett, W. Stephens, W. Hilton, John Belterby, J. A. Farnfield, R. H. Giraud, A. A. Richards, John Newton, Thomas Cubitt, F. Adlard, J. Ebenezer Saunders, and James Terry (Secretary).

The Secretary reported that one of the candidates had died since last meeting. The alterations at the asylum had not been completed, owing to the unfavourable weather. The inmates of the institution were very happy, and expressed themselves thoroughly satisfied with the arrangements for their comfort.

Seven candidates were placed on the list for election, after which a letter was read from Dr. Strong, the honorary surgeon to the institution, respecting the insufficient water supply and sewer system at the asylum. The letter enclosed a plan showing the piping on the premises. On the motion of Bro. C. F. Hogard, the motion was referred to the House Committee to consult the architect immediately, and have the necessary remedies applied at once.

Bro. James Terry, Secretary, asked for and obtained the permission of the Committee for the use of the hall and rooms, at the commencement of the new year, for the purpose of giving the old people a new year's dinner and entertainment, for which the requisite funds were now coming in.

The Chairman, before the Committee separated, said that as this was the last time the Committee would meet this year, he wished them and theirs a very happy Christmas.

Bro. J. Constable: Allow us, Bro. Chairman, most heartily to reciprocate your kind wish.

The Committee then adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.—A special General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution will be held at Freemasons' Hall this day (Saturday), at twelve o'clock.

The name of Bro. S. G. Homfray, A.G.D.C. and D.P. G.M. Monmouthshire, was omitted in our report of the meeting of the United Grand Lodge.

The engraving of the Installation is rapidly approaching completion. A photograph of it was exhibited by Bro. E. M. Haigh, at the dinner given by the Grand Stewards to Dr. Erasmus Wilson on Monday week. Bro. Harty informs us that among the subscribers are the King of Sweden, the Swedish deputation, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and the Irish deputation. He also expects to have the Emperor of Germany, the King of the Belgians, several other crowned heads, and the Khedive.

At the last regular meeting, on Monday, the 6th inst., of the Library Committee of the Corporation of London, of which Bro. John Symonds, P.G.A.D.C., has been the chairman for the year, the following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That the Committee desire to express to their Chairman, John Symonds, Esq., their sincere and hearty thanks for the zealous and efficient manner in which he has discharged the arduous and important duties of his office during the past year, and for the readiness with which he has devoted himself to the consideration of every question which has had for its object the extension of the usefulness of the great public institution entrusted by the Corporation to their care. Whilst appreciating the constant anxiety for the development of the resources of the Library, his colleagues desire also to acknowledge their sense of the invariable courtesy which characterized his demeanour towards every member."

The Christmas number of the "Freemason" will consist of 32 pages, and will contain a portrait of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master. The price of this number to non-subscribers will be fourpence.

Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold has been elected Worshipful Master of the Apollo University Lodge, Oxford, for the ensuing year.

On Monday evening, the 6th inst., Bro. Charles Du Val, an entertainer of a high order, gave his entertainment, "Odds and Ends," at the Concert Hall, Liscard, near Birkenhead, in aid of the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution. The effort enjoyed the patronage of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G.M.; Bro. G. C. Leigh, D. P.G.M.; the officers of the P.G. Lodge of Cheshire; and the W.M.'s, Wardens, and officers of Lodges 477 and 537, Birkenhead; 605 and 1276, Seacombe; and 1289, Rock Ferry. Bro. Du Val generously repeated his clever entertainment at Birkenhead and Rock Ferry on Tuesday and Wednesday for the same object.

Next week we shall publish a paper issued from the Chancery of the Order of the Temple, and which throws considerable light upon the compilation and authorship of the new statutes of the Order, about which so much has been written in the "Freemason." By the time our paper is in the hands of our readers, Great Priory will be sitting at Cannon-street Hotel (why not at Freemasons' Tavern?), and considerable discussion is likely to ensue on the operation of the statutes, which appear to find scant favour in many quarters. The supporters of the new regime aver that the operation of the new statutes must be beneficial in the end, their tendency being to raise the Order in social status, and so approximate more nearly to the Ancient Knights.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction on Wednesday, the 15th inst., by Bro. S. L. Hickman, W.M. 188, at Bro. Gosden's, Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C. The lodge will be opened at 7.30.

The "Masonic Magazine" will, on and after January, 1876, be enlarged to 48 pages.

The Leopold Lodge No. 1571, was consecrated on Tuesday last. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Volumes 1 and 2 of the "Masonic Magazine" are now ready, price 9s. 6d. each.

HEALTH, comfort, and economy promoted. Gas superseded in day time, and daylight reflected in dark rooms by adopting Chappuis' Patent Daylight Reflectors. Manufactory, 69, Fleet-street, London.

SATURDAY, DEC. 11, 1875.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

In our condensed report last week, we had to leave out an important item, our Royal Grand Master's visit to Goa en passant. We give the newspaper account of it, therefore, this week. On Saturday morning the Prince landed at Goa, and was received with Royal honours by the Portuguese authorities. The special telegram to the "Times" states that the Governor and his suite came off in a curious eighteen-oar galley, the oarsmen wearing scarlet caps, with very antique silver plaques. A crowd of respectable citizens received the Prince and the Governor, the natives being very eager to obtain a sight of the illustrious visitor. The Prince passed along the line of Sepoys and the Portuguese corps to the Government House, which contains a most interesting collection of portraits of Portuguese Governors, and Viceroys—Albuquerque, De Gama, Castro, Constantine, Braganza, &c. The Governor presented the principal officials, after which the Prince and the Governor, with their suites, embarked on board two steam launches, and proceeded up the river to old Goa—half-an-hour's run.—There the Prince inspected the monuments of the ancient greatness and departed splendour of the Portuguese settlement. The quays and the old arsenal are now ruins, as are also the Government buildings. Convents, monasteries, churches, and palaces crown the heights, and the shores are lined with cocoa-nut and palm trees, with a densely wooded background. The Prince landed and drove with his suite, in two carriages, under the ancient gateway of Vasco de Gama, under which every Viceroy of Goa must pass. He visited St. Catherine's Cathedral, passing the Palace of the Inquisition and the Church of St. Caetan, built after the model of St. Peter's at Rome. This church possesses a noble interior, with many rich shrines. There were a few native Christian women praying, but no crowd. There are no remains of the ancient city or houses. The Prince walked round and examined the shrines; and next, in litters called mancheels, or on foot, the party proceeded to Bom Jesus Church, a very fine edifice, with a curious shrine of St. Francis Xavier. The altar is of marble, and was presented by the Grand Duke of Tuscany. It has silver and bronze ornaments, with relics, and the windows have oyster-shell films in lieu of glass. The Prince inspected the solid gold and chased silver vessels containing the sacred elements, and the quaint cabinets, which are most interesting. As regards the visit to Madras, we find the following:—The cholera is all over the country, not raging very severely, but sufficiently widespread to induce caution. The Prince of Wales was obliged to decline the Rajah's invitation to visit Travancore. The visit to Madras will depend on the news received at Colombo. The Prince entertained the Madras officials at lunch on board the Serapis. There is immense disappointment expressed on all sides at the abandonment of the Prince's visit. The preparations were extensive and most costly all over the Presidency, and (says the telegram) the ladies especially are disconsolate. As we said in our last, the Prince landed at Colombo on the 1st. He was well received everywhere, especially by the natives. Despite heavy rains and a thunderstorm, he has been hunting elephants at Hebulgala, and on December 7th the "Times" reports the following successful results. The Prince of Wales left the camp Dec. 6th at 6.30, and drove to the forest, where elephants had been traced. The Prince reached the jungle at 9 a.m., and, attended by Lord C. Beresford, took post on a stand for six hours. Every effort to drive the elephants failed, the old tusker having led the herd through the beaters again and again, and defeated every attempt to drive him. Elephants could be heard crashing through the trees with a noise like pistol shots, but only glimpses of their backs could be seen. As the beaters could not trace the elephants, the Prince, having got a shot at one, descended and advanced into the jungle on foot, with M. Varen and Mr. Fisher, followed by Lord C. Beresford and Lord Suffield, with rifles. They were amid the elephants, and the Prince showed the utmost coolness as he stood within ten yards of the wounded beast, who prepared to charge, when the Prince dropped him dead. The Prince also hit two others, which are reported dead in the jungle. The hunters said the situation was critical. The scene over the dead elephant in the river was very exciting. Crowds of natives were waiting outside the jungle to learn the result. The Prince was much pleased, and has just arrived here after an upset in a ditch, but he was not in the least hurt, nor was any of the party. It was a most successful day. The Prince leaves for Colombo in the morning. He is in excellent health and spirits.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

If there was not any matter of very great importance to be discussed and decided at the last Grand Lodge, there was yet sufficient on the agenda paper, and notwithstanding the ungenial weather, to draw together a numerous assemblage. Our Royal G. Master was proposed for re-election—naturally, one should say and feel—in an effective speech by Bro. J. M. Case, P.G.S. and P.M. No. 1, and amid the sympathizing cheers of Grand Lodge. Bro. Clabon was re-appointed by the Grand Master President of the Board of Benevolence, and Bros. Nunn and Brett, Vice-Presidents, by the G. Lodge, there being no other nominations. Bro. Alderman Hadley was nominated on the Board of General Purposes in the place of Bro. Savage. The Report of the Lodge of Benevolence was received, and the votes confirmed, except the large vote for £250, which was, in our opinion, properly reduced to £100. The appeal of Bro. Robert Levingstone was allowed, and Bro. Braine declared to be ineligible, on the facts as stated, to be elected to the Master's chair. The alterations proposed in the rules of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution were unanimously confirmed. Bro. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., brought forward a resolution that Grand Lodge should grant a vote of £100 towards the "Palestine Exploration Fund," and which, after some regrettable opposition, was carried by a large majority. We do not pretend to understand why our good brothers Carpenter and Constable, both Masons of note, should have opposed so innocent and natural a proposition, but we presume that they had good reasons for so doing. No doubt, happily, in Grand Lodge, as in this good old land of ours, thoughts are untrammelled and speech is free, and we have, thank God, both liberty of utterance and liberty of conscience, still, the Masonic student or philosopher must somewhat wonder why two such good Masons should have set themselves against so reasonable a resolution. Grand Lodge has so often set the precedent, on special occasions, of granting special votes for special purposes, if not even actually Masonic, that it is utterly in vain for any one to raise the old stereotyped objection that such grants do not come within the scope of Freemasonry. All matters which affect the sufferings of our common humanity, or any form of Masonry, of natural or local distress, may fairly be deemed, if not actually Masonic, quasi-Masonic, for the purpose of active benevolence and temporary aid. But in this particular case not only was the common sense of the matter with our Past Grand Chaplain, but all the "sentiment" of Freemasonry, so to say. He had precedent in his favour, even in respect of the grant he asked for, and in what could Freemasonry find a closer or a deeper interest than in that "Holy Ground," which appealed alike to their own reverential memories; and the long cherished traditions of their Order. We rejoice, therefore, to find that Grand Lodge acceded to Bro. Simpson's resolution by a large majority, and we only regret that the grace of the grant was not augmented by the unanimous vote of Grand Lodge. There is no society which has done more good for Biblical archaeology than that influential and distinguished Committee formed for the exploration of Palestine, and we wish it all success in its arduous and most interesting labours.

MASONIC APPEALS.

While we all rejoice to think that we have in our Grand Lodge a Supreme Court of Appeal for our entire Order, we must also regret that much of its valuable time is wasted in dealing with cases which ought not properly to come before it at all. The Book of Constitutions is before us all, its admirable provisions are in all our hands, and yet, strange to say, many an appeal is made because those who ought to read the Book of Constitutions will not take the trouble to do so, or read it so carelessly and to so little purpose, or their heads really are so thick, that they commit illegalities with the greatest readiness and ease, with a high hand and a smiling face. Then come long folios of manuscript, to weary the patience of our Grand Secretary and our Grand Registrar, and time is taken up in deciding cases which really require no decision, in dealing with perverse illegalities, or preposterous evasions of the laws of Masonry. Take this last appeal as an illustration.—A Bro. Braine is elected a joining member of the Lodge Orion, in the West, No. 415, Poonah, and on the evening of his election he is placed by the W.M. in the Junior Warden's chair. The Master had been initiated at the previously monthly meeting, and the brother then legally and duly appointed J.W. had since left the district on a military emergency. So far all is plain sailing. The W.M. was without a J.W., and no doubt he had to fill up the post. It was a "strong order" to appoint a brother J.W. of a lodge the very night of his ballot as a joining member, and the W.M., if he took the step deliberately, could never for one moment have realised what a blow he was inflicting on the harmony and peaceful progress of the lodge. But so it was, and Bro. Braine was invested with the collar of the J.W. But the lodge meeting came round for the election of W.M., and of course Bro. Braine had only served eleven months, not twelve. He was clearly ipso facto "ineligible" as W.M., but "non obstante" the Book of Constitutions, the lodge elected him, and the District Grand Master of Bombay confirmed the election, pace the objection of Bro. R. Levingstone. Why he, the D.G. Master, so decided we do not gather, and we cannot profess to understand on what grounds he could base such a decision. As the Grand Registrar cogently put it, Bro. Braine was not even a member of the lodge the night the J.W. was appointed; how could he have served the necessary twelve months? The Grand Lodge unanimously reversed the decision of the D.G. Master, and declared that Bro. Braine could not legally continue as W.M. or be considered in consequence a lawfully installed W.M. Now, we allude to this appeal for the purpose of impressing on our readers, first of all, the duty of all W.M.'s, and indeed of all our brethren, to read and study carefully the Book of Constitutions; and secondly, of urging on our active brotherhood the great need there is of careful adherence to the letter of our wise and admirable laws. The great feature of English Freemasonry has been, like our natural character, happily, its law-abiding and constitutional progress, and greatly will it be to be deplored if inattention to the provisions of the Book of Constitutions, or any deliberate departure from its enactments, on any pretences, or for any reasons, be ever in any way carelessly or easily regarded amongst us. We cannot understand how any brother, in the face of the Book of Constitutions, so clear and explicit as the present, could elect as W.M. a brother who had not been twelve months Junior Warden, much less how a D.G. Master could sanction such a proceeding. Yet so it is. We beg, therefore, at this period of the year especially, to commend to all W.M.'s and Secretaries and brethren of our Order, the careful study of the Book of Constitutions, to remind them of our unalterable laws, and to point out the one simple course of duty in any similar question of doubt or debate. We think that the late decision of Grand Lodge will have a very good effect in convincing the Craft, that our laws are made to be obeyed in all contingencies, and not evaded or explained away.

MASONIC FORBEARANCE.

"It is a queer world we live in, my masters," is a saying as true as when it was first written, or given to the world. We note every day striking evidences before us, how very strange are its ups and downs, how very peculiar are its votaries, how very reckless its ways, and how little scrupulous are we all for the most part, whether as regards our neighbours, our friends, our brethren, or our compeers. We cannot have lived long or seen much of society if we do not ourselves fully realize the fact, that selfishness is a motto, so to say, emblazoned on many of this world's armorial bearings, over its palaces, over its "emporia" of business, over its "shining halls of pleasure," over even the palaces of the high, and the houses of the humbler. To many of us all life is only a struggle, in which all means are fair and all manœuvres lawful. To distance our neighbours in the race for wealth or profit, to head them in the dirty and dusty arena, to become prosperous though they fail, and to be fortunate when they are crushed down to earth, seems to many the real aim of the great battle of life. Hence to them all earthly existence is but an enduring struggle, in which the strong prevail and the weak are worsted, and in the hurry of the hour, in the excitement of the conflict, they have little time for thought and less for sympathy. "People must take their chance," "People can't all expect to win," "People must do as others do, and bear as others bear," "People should not go into a fight and then whine because they are beaten;" these, and sayings like these, we often hear from the lips of the successful, if somewhat selfish athletes, when to them, in their hour of mortal success, has come the chaplet of honour or the wreath of victory! Now it is against this ingrained selfishness that Freemasonry seems ever to protest! Such persons for the most part, as we see them act, and hear them talk, whether at home or abroad, whether in the house of merchandize or the house of feasting, whether in the "forum" or some other select assembly, are ever most overbearing and intolerant. They have done very well, why has not every one else? is their apparent idea. Therefore, they have no endurance and no forbearance for others, for those, the weary, who have either made a false start or mistaken the course, or grown weak, and faint, and weary; or who, for some cause or another, have utterly failed, whether in the struggle or the race. Now, it is just in these points that Freemasonry may give us all many a beneficial lesson. We all of us need forbearance ourselves in countless things and many ways, though we are ignorant of the fact or choose to forget it; and Freemasonry bids us all remember it, and therefore shew forbearance to others. The world in which we live is made up of incongruities and inconsistencies, of anomalies very many, of contradictions most abounding; and many are its pitfalls, as well as its falls; its weaknesses as well as its errors; its misfortunes as well as its tribulations for every brother and sister of the dust! We all know life is not, and cannot be, always sunshine to any of us here; for many of us its grass has long since withered, its trees have lost their foliage, its songs are hushed, and its flowers are faded, and we are like the guests of the fairy story, where the table is surrounded by phantom associates, and where the food, and the garlands, and the wine, and the plate, are all but tinsel, covering the dust and ashes underneath! Freemasonry comes to us then, and bids us be considerate, tolerant, and forbearing. We are to feel for others and with others. If we are prosperous we should seek to help others in adverse circumstances; if we are happy we should endeavour kindly to solace the bruised spirit and the grieving heart; if we are full of this life's good things we should remember ever and anon that some are not so blessed as we are. And, above all, we should be very forbearing in thought, and will, and work. When the world makes no allowance we should make every allowance. When others are calumnious or malignant we should be very charitable, when others greedily accept the poisoned rumour, or the slanderous tale, we should not "look down with contempt upon the dirt;" when others are open-mouthed we should be reticent; and when others are overbearing we should be forbearing. This should be our golden law of life, our silver rule of action. We should ever keep before us the fact that we are brethren, and as true and steady Craftsmen we should never cease to be full of sympathy for our brethren, but should ever endeavour to be most forbearing, conscious that we all need, ever greatly need, forbearance ourselves.

WHAT JEWELS MAY LEGALLY BE WORN IN LODGE.

We apprehend that the question "What jewels may legally be worn in lodge," is entirely governed by the Book of Constitutions, and can only be answered by proper authority. When our laws talk of a "honorary or other jewel," of medals, an "emblem," or "device," which may each and all be worn in lodge if "consistent with those degrees of Masonry which are recognised by Grand Lodge," or "under its control," they surely carry a distinct meaning, and allow a definite interpretation. That meaning and interpretation we contend are as follows. Emblems, medals, and devices which may be fitly worn in lodge, just as all those jewels or medals, or devices, or emblems, which belong to a grade not recognised are strictly forbidden and can never be Masonically put on in lodge. Hence we see that the real discussion turns and turns alone on this one fact—what are really the jewels, &c., which are consistent with the Grand Lodge recognition of pure and ancient Masonry, and which in consequence may be worn by our brethren in lodge; And here, confessedly, the matter assumes a somewhat difficult phasis. The three provisions of the Book of Constitutions which refer to the subject seem only to relate to the jewels of present or past rank pendent to collars, and no other jewel is apparently recognised by the Book of Constitutions but the "Centenary Jewel." The Charity Medal, strangely enough, is not mentioned in the Book of Constitutions, and rests on the authority of the conjoint sanction of the Grand Master and the Grand Lodge. In the last "Freemason" there appeared an extract from what purports to be a reply of our esteemed and worthy Grand Secretary on the subject, but which we think does not quite fully or fairly represent Bro. Hervey's views on the matter. He seems to say, that he is "not aware of any jewels authorised to be worn save the Charity Medal, especially sanctioned by the Grand Master, and such jewels of Grand Officers as are named in the Book of Constitutions." The letter is of date June 23rd, this year, and addressed, "sic dicitur," to Bro. J. A. Hayes. We do not, however, deem it to be quite correct or complete, for this reason, that our Grand Secretary, who is well known to be a "Master" alike of Constitutional lore and ritualistic enactments, entirely leaves out the "Centenary Jewel." Bro. Hervey points out what is undeniable, that lodge jewels, and jewels with the name of a lodge upon them, without the sanction of the Grand Master are absolutely illegal, and in this we heartily agree with him. He also adds, as we ourselves said, a short time back, that there are probably not more than half a dozen lodges possessing a lodge jewel. Now it is quite clear to us that, though the Book of Constitutions is silent upon the subject, probably for a good reason, the Grand Master "Virtute Officii," and "jure suo," is the fountain of Masonic honour, just as the sovereign is the fountain of all civic dignity. The sovereign can issue orders to form a new order of knighthood or appoint a decoration to be worn to-morrow, just as she can forbid all foreign insignia to be exhibited by her subjects. And in like manner our Grand Master can give his sanction to a lodge to establish an honorary jewel, to be worn by its members, and such sanction rests alone upon his supreme authority in that respect. Indeed, as we have before said, we venture we think, that if each lodge had its own lodge jewel under the warrant of the Grand Master, and on payment of a regular fee, the "jewel question" would be naturally lessened in importance; and much good would accrue to our Fund of Benevolence if the fee for each lodge warrant to have a lodge jewel as specified on the warrant, subject to needful expenses in the Grand Secretary's office, was made a portion of the income of the Fund of Benevolence. The question must ere long be authoritatively settled, as at present there is much necessary doubt on the subject. It is quite clear to us, for instance, that the Book of Constitutions means something when it talks of an "honorary or other jewel," an "emblem," a medal, a "device," but what does it mean? A "medal" certainly is not a "jewel," a "jewel" is not a "device," a "device" is not an "emblem;" these are not synonymous or even alternative terms, they have each and all an independent and special meaning. Therefore we come back to the original query, what are they, which are they? In our humble opinion, all emblems, devices, medals, honorary or other jewels which are consistent with the three degrees of Masonry, are wearable in lodge! And, however hypercritical or paradoxical it may seem to some, we doubt very much whether Royal Arch jewels can be worn out of a Royal Arch Chapter. We hope, however, ere long that the question may be officially settled, but we confess that we fancy, it is not quite so easy a matter judicially to decide, in a spirit of careful and legal interpretation, as some of our correspondents appear to think. The wording of the Book of Constitutions is so special and yet so peculiar on the subject, that we feel quite persuaded it must require a good deal both of legal acumen and common sense, to give a judicial deliverance on so "vexata" a "questio."

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The Special General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Girls' School takes place at Freemasons' Hall, this day (Saturday), at 12 o'clock, and we recommend all qualified members to be there. We were very glad to see our excellent Bro. Col. Creaton's motion, and trust that it may be unanimously agreed to. We shall recur to the subject next week.

THE LATE QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION OF GRAND LODGE.—At the conclusion of our report of this meeting in the "Freemason" of last week, it is stated that Bro. Carpenter moved the negating of the Rev. R. J. Simpson's proposition for granting £100 to the Palestine Exploration Fund, and that Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, seconded Dr. Carpenter's amendment. "The amendment was put, and but few hands were held up for it; whereupon Bro. Constable wished to withdraw from seconding the amendment." Bro. Constable informs our reporter that this is a mistake; that he did not rise to withdraw from his position as seconder of the amendment, but that he rose and asked the acting Grand Master what was the purport of the amendment which he himself had just seconded.

THE LAST LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

The three causes mentioned in last week's "Freemason" have no doubt a very great deal to do with the demand for so much relief being required; but it seems to me, from what I have seen of Masonry, that there is another and greater cause, which is the lodges being held at public-houses, and I am not the only brother who can see the great evil arising from this cause.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is the Grand Master and head of the Order, but the number of publicans belonging to the Order is so great, that their power has a great influence over the brethren, and, speaking within bounds, I should say that a considerable sum of the money spent by Masons on Masonry finds its way into their pockets, and it is this which gives them so much power. In my opinion it is through them so many are brought into the Order that should not be allowed in, for a publican having a lodge in his house will recommend any one who may offer themselves, so long as they are good customers and drink freely. Again, another great evil, when an initiate has been admitted, where he is to go for instruction but to a tavern; in fact, there is nothing but that from his entry into the Order—to his craving for charity—and here again this is felt, as many of the brothers who apply for charity are tradesmen who enter Masonry when first rising in business, and if ambitious to rise in the Order they have to spend so much of their valuable time in the public-house instead of attending to their business. Of course men who have attained a good position, and can employ others to look after their affairs, can afford to spend their time as they like without feeling it, but not so with beginners in business. I know many brothers who spend much of their time in public-houses (where lodges are held) on Masonic business, and so they must go on (until lodge rooms be provided away from these places) with habits which are the forerunner of the claims on the Lodge of Benevolence.

Yours truly,

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

I had almost arrived at the determination not to reply to the letter of Bro. Charles Pegler, but after reading your editorial comments thereon, it would seem ungracious not to do so. I write, however, with extreme distaste and reluctance, for nothing to my mind is so painful and wearying as to be constantly on the defence of that which you know to be undeserving of censures. This feeling is intensified when you are conscious of pleading in the presence of prejudiced judges who have formed their opinions without fair enquiry, and who having once adopted certain views adhere to them with pertinacity, refusing to admit evidence which is calculated to modify them.

I write this without the least intention to cast any reflection upon any brother, or to find fault with the course which he may think it wise, in the exercise of his discretion, to pursue. The strongest impression on my mind is that of utter hopelessness in attempting to convince our critics that the standard they have fixed is one utterly at variance with all our traditions (no matter of how modern an origin they may be).

To come to the point without further preface, it is very evident that we have now two classes of contributors—the one contending that cheapness is the true test of good management—the other maintaining that, while a prudent economy is by all means to be observed, there are other considerations of greater importance than those involved in the question, "At how low a rate can such and such results be produced, and how large a number can be done for a given sum?" This is the philosophy of "Dothéboys' Hall," which has never yet found favour in the charitable institutions connected with Freemasonry. The ruling motive or principle in the management of our schools during the period I have been associated with them—extending over twenty years—has been to treat the children as if they were members of your own family, as in a sense, I hope understood by at least the large majority of Masons, they undoubtedly are—and to deprive the benefits they receive of everything that would imply an idea of charity. This has been successfully achieved, not without cost, I admit, and until I know to what extent similar notions prevail in other institutions, it is idle and fallacious to attempt analytical comparisons of expenditure.

If those who find their highest gratification in microscopically dissecting accounts, and in denouncing what they term extravagance, are in earnest, why do they not give notice of motion for the Quarterly Courts to the effect "that the present management of the Masonic schools is disapproved, and that the children therein shall be educated and maintained at a cost not exceeding £—per head. We shall then have a fair chance of arriving at the real feeling of the governors and subscribers by whose voluntary contributions the institutions are supported. From the time of the controversy now going on, an outsider would imagine that our institutions are maintained by a poll tax, or by an enforced rate, instead of by voluntary effort. I state with confidence that hundreds of donations have been given entirely on account of the care and attention paid to health and comfort in our establishments, and have every reason to believe that many of our kindest friends and most liberal contributors would discontinue their assistance were we to adopt a cheeseparing policy of parsimony.

As to the comparative expenditure for clothing and provisions I decline to enter fully until I am in a position to ascertain the particulars of the quantity and quality of the former and of the diet regulating the latter in the various institutions of a somewhat kindred nature, though I will quote the cost of these items in one or two schools. The cost is for Clothing.	Provisions.

Royal Medical Benevolent	7 18 3	17 12 9
Clergy Orphan	5 10 4	17 2 7
British Orphan	5 4 8	13 8 9

	Average
Masonic Boys' School	7 11 7	12 11 9

But let us turn to two other important items, and with reference to these I will quote from the reports of the above and other societies, because in school labours and office work there is closer affinity than in details such as the above, and because in respect of one of these items many unjust and undeserved strictures have been published.

	Number.	Office Expenses.			School Salaries and Wages.
		Total.	Per Head.		Total.	Per Head.
Royal Medical Benevolent	200	1189 11 2	5 19 0		2947 12 7	14 4 9
Clergy Orphan	110	731 9 9	6 13 0		1134 15 8	10 6 4
British Orphan	182	1447 19 7	7 19 1		1117 1 1	6 2 9
Warehousemen and Clerks	143	983 11 11	6 17 7		804 3 2	5 12 5
Commercial Travellers	288	1301 10 4	4 10 4		1317 8 10	4 11 6
Average		1130 16 6	6 7 9		1464 4 3	8 5 7
Masonic Boys' School		959 10 10	6 3 0		1286 2 8	8 4 10

I have abjured fractions, and have given our office expenses in two accounts, the smaller exclusive, the larger inclusive, of the £200 so "suspiciously" placed in another account, and which, from the special circumstances attending it I still contend ought not to form part of the ordinary charge.

I regret not having obtained a larger number of reports, but the above will afford evidence that in our expenditure there is no such extravagance as to warrant the serious accusations brought against us.

You very justly draw attention to the Report of the West Yorkshire Charity Committee issued in October, 1868, and I hope its reproduction in your columns may not be without effect. The peculiar circumstances of our position are there put forcibly and fairly, and I contend that it is neither wise nor just to attempt the disparagement of an institution by contrasting it unfavourably with others with which no strict grounds of comparison exist. Our system has been the growth of ten years' approval of numerous, distinguished, and influential members of the Craft, by whom, as well as by a large number of well-qualified judges belonging to the outer world, the entire arrangements of the establishment at Wood Green have been awarded the highest praise and admiration.

All that is now needed is the best possible middle class Education combined with good discipline, and this I conscientiously believe we are now in a fair way of securing.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINCKES, Secretary.

London, 6th December, 1875.

WHAT'S IN THE WIND NOW?

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Is it true that some few brethren in West Yorkshire are preparing a scheme for a snug little berth for an ex-Master of the Boys' School? One should like to know. For just now some few brethren of that most distinguished province seem to be running-a-muck at our Metropolitan Educational Institutions.

Yours fraternally,

A YORKSHIRE TYKE.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

How difficult it is for a man to lay aside his ordinary habits may be estimated any day by carefully watching ourselves and those around us. Particular forms of speech or action become so ingrained in us, that no matter how inappropriate the time or place, we find it impossible to leave them off. An example or two will best explain this. Suppose a man, remarkable for the force rather than elegance of his diction, finds himself in the society of respectable chapel-going elderly ladies: how frequently he will have to beg their pardon for his want of appreciation of the conversational value of the letter "h," as compared with the monosyllable "damn;" or suppose a gang of miners, listening to one of their fellows as wraptly and rapturously as to the parson (during a strike) while he relates to them the historic encounter of "Brumby;" how instinctively they all throw themselves into that elegant attitude known as "squatting on their haunches," which they have long accustomed themselves to down the pit. And if these things be so in their cases, and many similar ones in our own, how can we wonder that a distinguished W.M. of a metropolitan lodge, who rose at a meeting of the Criterion Building Society to second a proposition, should do so after saluting the chairman in the approved Masonic manner.

A.L.H.

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A Provincial Grand Lodge, comprising three counties, and meeting alternately in the principal town of each county, passed, five years ago, the following resolution:—

"That at the annual Election of P.G. Officers the Senior Warden retire, and the other officers to be promoted one step, so that the Inner Guard's place alone has to be filled up, and that by a brother from the three counties alternately."

This rule was duly entered in the minute book of the Provincial Grand Lodge, signed in due time by the R.W. D.G. Master, and acted on with great success, without intermission or question as to its utility; but it was not on the book of bye-laws, as we had not any printed since, nor was it reported to the Grand Lodge of the country for confirmation, as this was deemed unnecessary.

At the last election, however, the members of the county where the election was held, without notice of any sort, without rescinding the above rule, proposed and elected members of their own county only to all the various offices from P.I.G. to P.S.W.

Will you kindly inform me whether this election is legal, or ought another election to take place, as there is considerable doubt whether the election, having taken place on the day appointed by the bye-laws, can be disturbed?

FAIR PLAY.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has just been directed to a letter in one of your issues having reference to the above club.

I beg to assure your correspondent that no little has been lost in securing suitable club premises, and I have every reason to hope that a few days will enable me officially to notify to those interested the situation and date of opening.

As I am not writing with the authority of the Directors, I take this opportunity of saying that each of those brethren have spared neither time or trouble in looking after and promoting the undertaking.

The difficulty has been in obtaining premises and to know for what number to make provision, which would have been obviated by intending members sending in their names earlier.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JOHN A. LATEBURY.

COLOURED MASONS IN THE UNITED STATES V. PRINCE HALL GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your issue of October 23rd you have given your decision against the legality of the coloured Masons in the United States because their lodge was erased from the English list of lodges in 1813. But I beg respectfully to ask whether you can find in the history of Freemasonry, during the last century, any Grand Lodge that was formed on the Continent of Europe, or in America, which acted in a different manner from that of the African Lodge at Boston?

Thus, France received its first charter from England in 1724, and within a dozen years the French Lodge, or lodges, formed themselves into a Grand Lodge. And so it was with Holland; and so it was with all the lodges on the American continent.

In 1769 the Grand Lodge of Scotland sent a deputation to Dr. (afterwards General) Joseph Warren appointing him Prov. G.M. over a certain part of New England. Gen. Warren died on Bunker Hill in 1775, and on March 8th, 1777, the officers of this defunct Scotch Provincial Grand Lodge formed themselves into an independent Grand Lodge by the name or title of "The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts;" and in 1792 the several lodges, which originally owed allegiance to the Grand Lodge of England, also formed themselves into an independent Grand Lodge, and then the two Grand Lodges united. It will be seen that the coloured Masons of Boston followed the example set them by their white brothers at that period, for neither the Scotch, nor the English lodges in Boston, consulted their respective parent Grand Lodges as to whether they might or might not secede.

There was even no formal notice sent to the Grand Lodge of England that the Boston white Masons did secede (vide letter of Wm. White below), and I frankly admit that in the light of Masonic law of to-day their unceremonious secession from their parent Grand Lodge was illegal; yet, what was the practice at that time with American Grand Lodges? We find, as we have already said, that on March 8th, 1777, the Masons of Boston, of Scottish origin, without the counsel or consent of their parent Grand Lodge, formed a Grand Lodge at Boston, under the name of "The Massachusetts Grand Lodge."

Again, the St. John's Grand Lodge claiming to have descended from English authority, without giving previous notice, or in any way notifying their mother Grand Lodge, united with their Scottish brethren and formed the present Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. This they did in 1792.

Now, if in consequence of the illegal action of the African Lodge, the coloured Masons in the United States have lost their right as Masons, why should you not also deprive the white Masons of their Masonic rights, because their predecessors in 1777, and in 1792, did in like manner unceremoniously secede from their parent Grand Lodges? There can be but one reason; and that is this: one was white and the other black.

It will be seen that in 1868 the late D.G.M., C. W. Moore, of Boston, wrote to the R.W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Lodge of England, asking whether he (Bro. Hervey) did not think that the coloured Masons in the United States were an illegitimate body. Bro. Hervey replied in the affirmative; but the letter had scarcely been mailed when Bro. Hervey came to an opposite conclusion, and he immediately wrote another letter to Bro. Moore recalling his first decision. And in conversation upon the subject with Bro. Jacob Norton, Bro. Hervey told Bro. Norton that he really could not see any difference between the legality of the white and coloured organizations in the United States.

In 1870 Bro. W. S. Gardner made a strong effort to prove the illegitimacy of the coloured lodges. Bro. Jacob Norton reviewed Bro. Gardner's address, and Bro. Gardner frankly admitted afterwards that Bro. Norton dealt fairly and squarely in his criticisms, assuring him, however, that when he compiled his address he did not know of Bro. Hervey's second letter.

That was the only objection Bro. Gardner made to Bro. Norton's article, and in the following issue of the "Masonic Monthly" Bro. Norton exonerated Bro. Gardner from the charge of ignoring the second letter of Bro. Hervey. The same year, 1871, Bro. Joseph Robbins, as chairman of the Committee of Foreign Correspondence, also reviewed Bro. Gardner's address in the proceedings of the G.L. of Illinois, and indorsed fully and unequivocally Bro. Norton's arguments.

And, last but not least, the G.L. of Ohio, at its last annual session, gave utterance in our favour, as the following will show:—

"Proposed Recognition of the Coloured Grand Lodge of Ohio.

"Your committee, to whom was referred so much of the annual address of the Most Worshipful Grand Master and accompanying documents as relates to the so-called coloured lodges, and more especially to the coloured Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Ohio, have given the subject careful consideration, and respectfully submit the following:—

"We do not propose, nor do we deem it necessary, at this time, to enter into the history of the origin of so-called coloured Freemasonry in this country. That subject has been fully discussed in all the Grand Lodges and Masonic periodicals of this country for more than 25 years past. Your committee deem it sufficient to say that they are satisfied beyond all question that coloured Freemasonry had a legitimate beginning in this country, as much so as any other Freemasonry; in fact, it came from the same source.

"Your committee will not attempt, at this time, to investigate as to the transmission of this legitimate beginning down to the present time, when we find more than 40 subordinate lodges and a Grand Lodge of so-called coloured Freemasons, and an aggregate of more than 800 members in the State of Ohio. Your committee have only to say that such is the fact.

"Your committee have the most satisfactory and conclusive evidence that these coloured Freemasons practise the very same rites and ceremonies, and have substantially the same esoteric or secret modes of recognition, as are practised by the universal family of Freemasons throughout the world.

"The question of the recognition of these coloured Freemasons has long been before this Grand Body, and your committee feel that its importance is pressing upon us and demanding, prompt, serious, and decided action.

"Your committee, therefore, offer for adoption the following resolution:—

"Resolved, by the 'Grand Lodge of the Most Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Ohio,' that this Grand Body will recognise the so-called Grand Lodge of Coloured Free Masons of the State of Ohio as a legitimate and independent Grand Lodge, on condition that the so-called Coloured Grand Lodge shall change its constitutional title, so that it shall read as follows: 'The African Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Ohio.' And if the so-called Coloured Grand Lodge shall accept the recognition and make the suggested change in its constitutional title, then, and in that case, upon said being reported to the M. W. Grand Master of this Grand Lodge, under the seal of said body, then the M. W. Grand Master is hereby authorized and instructed to issue his proclamation to the subordinates to this Grand Lodge, and to the Grand Lodges throughout the world with which we are in fraternal correspondence, recognising the said Coloured Grand Lodge as an independent Grand Lodge in the State of Ohio, under the title of 'The African Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Ohio.'

"Respectfully submitted.

"L. V. BIERCE.

"E. T. CARSON.

"F. WILLIAMS.

"C. A. WOODWARD.

After discussion thereon, Bro. Lewis H. Williams, W.M. Russellville Lodge, No. 166, now R.W. Grand Junior Warden, moved that final action on the subject matter of the Coloured Grand Lodge, as above, be deferred until the next annual Communication, which was agreed to.

In the name of justice to a wronged race, I therefore beg you to publish the above in the "Freemason," and also Bro. Norton's article above alluded to, so that English Masons may learn to understand the true nature of the controversy; and when once the truth is known, I am satisfied that English justice will decide in our favour.

Yours, in behalf of truth and justice,

LEWIS HAYDEN,
P.G.M. Prince Hall Grand Lodge.
"London, August 20th, 1792."

"Right Worshipful Brother,—

"I have the pleasure of sending inclosed the printed proceedings of the Grand Lodge, by which you will perceive the flourishing state of our society, and in the account of the 24th November, 1787, you will find accredited your donation to the Charity Fund ten dollars, sent by Capt. Scott, and that of the 18th of April last your donation of one guinea. I am much obliged to you for the summons you sent me, which I think very well written, and very appropriate for the occasion. When you next write to me I should be obliged to you if you would let me know if the lodges in the inclosed list, which were constituted by the Grand Lodge of England, are yet in being, as we have never heard from them since the commencement of the late war in America, or, indeed, long before, and in case they have ceased to meet, which I rather apprehend, they ought to be erased from our list of lodges. I am much obliged to you for the account you give respecting your own lodge, to which I sincerely wish success as I should be happy to have it in my power to contribute thereto. I, inclosed, send you one of the calendars for the present year, which I beg your acceptance.

"I remain, with fraternal regard, Right Worshipful Brother, your obedient Servant and Brother,

"(Signed) "WILLIAM WHITE."

COLOURED LODGES IN THE UNITED STATES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Only few words as answer to the last article of the "Freemason" on this question. If the Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Boston, i.e., the African Lodge, was ever for some time gone asleep and inactive, but still in possession of its warrant, as was the case, then it had without any doubt the right to assume labour as a just and perfect lodge, and the more so as her mother, the Grand Lodge of England, had not erased it from the roll. But there is no evidence that the African Lodge was at any time dormant. Bro. Dr. R. Barthelmess, of Brooklyn (now at Nuremberg) has published in the "Bauhütte," 1861, a report, drawn from the memorials of Bro. Prince Hall, containing the letters to the Grand Lodge of England and the answers of its Grand Secretary. This correspondence proves that the Grand Lodge of England, as in many other instances, did not answer and not much care for her daughter. This correspondence between Prince Hall and the Grand Lodge goes from 1784 to 1806, and not sooner than 1819 Prince Hall Grand Lodge declared herself independent. If my dear English brethren will direct their attention to Hutchinson's Spirit of Masonry, 1795, 2 ed.; to Jones' Masonic Miscellanies, eds. 1797 and 1811; to the Freemasons' Anthologie of 1813, they will find, that the African Lodge is made mention of as an active lodge, and as a legitimate daughter of Grand Lodge of England. But, alas, there is at last a happy end of this question, as will be seen from the admirable and truly Masonic documents of the M.W. Grand Lodge of Ohio, to which, I am sure, the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts will follow. I make no other remark, as these important documents, the pride of American Masonry, speak for themselves.

J. G. FINDEL.

[We do not republish these printed documents, as they have been before the public, the more so, as we also publish a letter from America on the subject.—ED.]

ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On the 6th of March last you kindly inserted a letter of mine, on the above very important subject, and you were pleased to make some complimentary remarks upon the perspicuity of my plans for removing the baneful results of the present lax system. I advocated a complete system of enquiries—that no person should be initiated, nor a brother affiliated, in any place elsewhere than where he resides without making certain enquiries—under severe penalties. I explained a system "in extenso," that any brother who takes an interest in the matter will, perhaps, do well to refer to the letter above alluded to. It is so seldom this subject gets ventilated that I beg you will grant me the space I now ask.

I am proud of being a Mason, would like to see all my best friends in our ranks, yet nothing would induce me to importune them to enter. I would never stoop to proselytism.

If brethren would but bear in mind that portion of the charge at initiation, what an amount of good would accrue to our Order.

"By refraining to recommend anyone to a participation of our secrets, unless you have strong grounds to believe that, &c." I underline strong, but instead of this many lodges seem to look upon making Masons as a matter of "work," or "fees," having a meeting they "must have a candidate." Two instances of this deplorable state of things has recently come under my notice; my wish is to place them before the Craft to illustrate the necessity of stringent rules.

1. A young man in business on his own account does not seek admission in the town where he resides, but goes to London and is at once admitted and in due time becomes a M.M. Now had this man sought initiation in his own town he could not possibly have been received, for it was known he was carrying on a fraudulent trade, which culminated in fictitious claims on railway companies, &c., Making the place too hot, he ran his country.

2. A man in the confidential loan and "status" enquiry business sought, admission to a lodge held in the town where he resided—he had been heard to say that his object was to further his business (especially the latter portion). The lodge knowing the man's character, and business traits, and having heard of the above remarks, refused him admission. He went to London and in a short time became a full-blown Mason. Within eighteen months of his initiation he had bolted from England—investigation of his affairs showed that he had embezzled some hundreds of pounds—swindled his creditors; lastly, he deserted his wife and family.

In neither case did the London lodges make the slightest enquiries of lodges held where these men had resided for years, and were well known—one having been already refused—but they admitted them, to the disgrace of the Order.

Wherever these men go they are English Masons. I ask, is it not a scandal that such blots should be seen on our escutcheon?

In case No. 2, when the man was newly initiated he went about snapping his fingers in the face of Masons, saying, "I am a Mason in spite of you all," and once, in a public room, was heard to remark (after shaking hands) "that so and so were Masons, but so and so were not," as he had just proved.

Will not Grand Lodge give us the power to protect ourselves? The apathy of many of those high in power is really surprising. If every Mason would but take the trouble to report to you every case, (similar to these two) that came to his knowledge, we should soon have the "Freemason" teeming with them, week after week, until steps would have to be taken.

What are we drifting to? English Craft Masonry will soon be on as low a level as Scotch, or perhaps as friendly societies whose members delight to parade the streets in regalia. In which case our Craft Lodges will but become "a matter of form to go through" for those who wish to enter the High Grades, where (in such a case) as each lands, he kicks away the ladder as an unclean thing.

In conclusion let me beg of the brethren to rally round the glorious old Craft, and prevent such a future as I have sketched, that when it is said of a man "he is a Mason," the world may know him to be a good man. I trust abler pens than mine will follow up this subject.

Fraternally yours,

"AD REM."

MASONIC LIBRARIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The letter from Bro. S.B.E. will, I hope, draw the special attention of the members of lodges to the desirability of forming Masonic libraries.

In addition to the many advantages resulting from libraries, so graphically described by Bro. S.B.E., who is evidently a warm-hearted Mason, and does not begrudge his subscriptions for his Masonic papers and works, I may mention one important reason why such a subject should receive the support of the members of the Craft generally.

How many lodges keep their old minutes, and books presented by the members from time to time. In preparing the history of an old lodge the other day, I was more than surprised to find from an examination of the records that very many books, and several volumes of the minutes had disappeared, and the majority were quite unknown to the present members. I found few of the quarterly communications preserved, all the "Freemasons' Magazine" lost, and a chance copy of the "Freemason" here and there, &c.

Now, all these would, in all probability, have been preserved had there been a Masonic library in connection with the lodge, and from the want of it, the brethren are now lamenting the loss, which no money can replace, for much of the history of the lodge in times gone by is lost for ever.

I need not attempt to say more to induce the members of the lodges to consider the vital question of the establishment of Masonic libraries, for those who have read Bro. S.B.E.'s communication, or have at all thought over the matter, will see the necessity for action, and I hope many lodges will set their house in order at once.

There are many Masonic libraries scattered over the country, and several more than Bro. S.B.E. has fingers on his hands—if of the usual number. The more the better.

REVIRESCO.

"NOBLE GRANDS."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observe in to-day's "Freemason" a report of a lecture delivered by Dr. Hunter to the Bath Literary and Philosophical Association on the 24th ult., in which he says:—

"What he knew of Masons was all in their favour as a benevolent society, but it was the opinion of the experts of police that Englishmen were not admitted to a knowledge of the real objects of the Order, and that although noble men and princes might be called Grand Grands and Noble Grands, they were merely marionettes whose strings were pulled by a secret council sitting somewhere in Germany."

I think before a man undertakes to lecture on Masonry, or even to touch on it in his lectures, he ought to know better than to attribute to us such very foolish titles as "Grand Grands and Noble Grands." It is bad enough (as is sometimes done) to appoint a "Grand Provincial Superintendent of Works," who can neither name the orders of architecture nor superintend the erection of a pig-stye. My brother Oddfellows, I am sorry to say, still retain the foolish title of "Noble Grand" for president of a lodge, but they did not derive the name from any Masonic body; but borrowed or stole it from the Ancient Order of Bucks, which was a burlesque on the Craft.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL.
Rose Cottage, Stokesley, Dec. 4th, 1875.

AN OLD JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The jewel described at page 540 is an old Mark badge, possibly of Ireland; and the figure attended by the lion is that of the Evangelist St. Mark. Our theory, to which I subscribe, is that the Mark degree represents that skilled branch of the Fellow Crafts to which was entrusted the geometric form or more florid ornamentation required in the component stones of the building, and which they identified, each by the mark he had adopted. Is it possible that any other theory has ever prevailed, and that this section of the Craft was ever alleged to be called "Mark Masonry" after the name of the Evangelist? I cannot make these few observations without alluding to the use in this degree of the passage "read Mark," &c., which appears to me so strange and far-fetched an application of the one word, generally made very prominent, that I should be glad to see a revision in this.

LUPUS.

THE "MASONIC MAGAZINE."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you allow me to draw the attention of my brother Knights Templar to the valuable and interesting address of the Grand Prior of Canada which appears in the December number of the Magazine. It is important that all should read it before attending Grand Priory on the 10th inst. The Magazine is interesting this month in many ways, particularly to our wives and daughters.

There are three or four illustrations, including a capital woodcut of our Grand Secretary.

Wishing every success to the Magazine,

I am, fraternally yours, EMMA HOLMES, Æ 31.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

In my letter in your last issue headed "A Past Master" there appears a mistake in the latter part of it as follows: "Bro. Henry Ingham has no such rank as P.M. inasmuch as he has not contributed to any Craft Lodge since March, 1875," it should have been since March, 1870. Will you kindly make the correction and oblige, Yours fraternally, JIM SHEARD, P.M. 971.

Craft Masonry.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—This large lodge held one of its most interesting and important meetings of the year, on the 10th inst., at Anderson's Hotel. We say "interesting and important" as the election night of a lodge is both interesting to the Craft, as the lodge gives to it, for good or ill, another ruler; and important to the lodge, as for a year it commits itself to the government of one of its members, who, too, will represent it on all occasions among the other rulers in Grand Lodge. That the lodge was fully alive to the importance of the occasion was shown by the very large attendance, nearly 100 members being present and more than two-thirds of the members recorded their votes. Bro. George Everett, the W.M., occupied his chair, and commenced his work by going through the ceremony of raising in a manner worthy of a lodge of this character. A touching event of the evening was that the father performed this ceremony in respect to his own son, Bro. G. L. Everett, to whom was given a privilege which must endear to him the Craft until his latest hour. We should be afraid to say how many brethren had this degree bestowed, but so many as to necessitate the ceremony being repeated again and again. Everything is done on a big scale in the Domatic, hence it was necessary to do the same in regard to the ceremony of passing, for no less than nine names were down for this degree. Fortunately for the lodge there was no initiation, not that no names were on the paper, but the candidates did not show in time, and therefore the lodge proceeded to that work of the evening which would govern directly the coming year—the election of Master. The ballot was taken, and Bro. Treadwell, the Senior Warden, was elected by exactly the same numbers as the W.M. who then faced him, showing that the members are faithful to the principle of electing a Senior Warden who is considered worthy of the "highest honour the lodge has it in its power to bestow upon any of its members." Bro. Willing, the Junior Warden up to this night, is evidently a great favourite, and his energetic service as acting Secretary, as well as the instruction he is always able and willing to impart, would bring to the minds of his brethren the idea that there could be no mistake, as regards work, in having so well informed a brother at the top of the tree, instead of near the top; but the brother did not support these views, for he went to his Secretarial duties, leaving his chair in the hands of an able brother. Bro. Joseph Smith was elected again as Treasurer, and it came out in the course of the speeches that Bro. Smith (whose other titles it is unnecessary to give) had been upwards of 36 years in the lodge, which statement was greeted warmly, and hopes were expressed—and there is every hope of their fulfilment—that Bro. Treas. Smith would be in the same condition of excellent health when the like period should again have passed. The proposal to present the retiring W.M. with the P.M.'s jewel, set before the lodge by Bros. J. Smith and F. Kent, was adopted unanimously, and very many kind things were said of him in regard to the success which had attended his year, and the perfect manner in which he had performed his work. It was then proposed to present the W.M. with a "scroll" on parchment, but the W.M. said he was content with the honour he had already received. It was then proposed by the W.M. elect, seconded by the Senior Deacon, Bro. Palmer, to present the W.M. with the cost of the Installation jewel, and it was put to the lodge that more respect could be felt for a jewel which was presented than for one which was paid for by the wearer. The sentiment was loudly applauded, but the strange question was raised as to the "legality" of the lodge paying for the jewel, the speaker saying, indeed, that no one elected could be a Steward without paying for the jewel—(when the fact is that the payment for the jewel was not asked for until a month after the installation), and the W.M. raised a laugh by saying that the brethren seemed desirous to overwhelm him—a fact which was, perhaps, owing to the weather—declining, at the same time to be reimbursed the cost of representing the lodge on the occasion. The lodge being closed, the members adjourned to an excellent banquet, and no fewer than nineteen visitors were present. After the cloths were cleared away the W.M. proposed the usual loyal toasts, and in giving the toast of "Past and Present Grand Officers," he pointed to the fact that the Domatic had three P. Grand Officers in the P.M. ranks, and Bro. P.M. Adams responded. Bro. J. Smith, in the absence of the I.P.M., Bro. F. Kent, C.C., who was absent from the banquet on account of the illness of a relative, proposed the toast of "The W.M.," and in doing so said that the brethren would, by toasting Brother Everett, be giving honour where honour was due. If Bro. Everett had not been of a modest disposition he would have been W.M. years before, but he would not take upon himself the office until he was competent for the duty, and when he was competent and stood forward for the office, the lodge elected him, and the members had had no reason to repent of the choice they had made, for the way in which he had performed these ceremonies presented a model for any following W.M. to follow. There were following in the steps of Bro. Everett many worthy brethren; but the lodge would always look back with pleasure on the year of office of the brother who was then retiring. In all the thirty-six years which had passed since he himself had been a member there had only been one member whose Mastership was looked back upon with regret, and this fact showed that the members exercised the greatest discretion in electing to this post. The toast was drunk with all honours, and Bro. Walls sang an old melody with excellent taste and feeling. The W.M., in responding, thanked the Treasurer for the kind way in which he had submitted the toast, and the brethren for the manner in which they had received it. He said that when he undertook the office he had full need of assistance, and this was cheerfully given to him by the Past Masters and his officers, all of whom he thanked warmly for the help which had enabled him to pass through his year of office with comparative ease. Referring to the kind things said of him in lodge, he said he believed that there had been a general understanding for them to pour down kindness on him—a kindness which he was sure was sincere. He then proposed the toast of "The Past Masters." Bro. Walford responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and said he hoped the nineteen present would accept the cordial welcome of the lodge, but, he said, when a lodge sat down so strong it was impossible to give any special attention to the visitors. He called upon Bro. While, W.M. of 128 (representing the "Freemason") to respond, and he, on behalf of the visitors, expressed the perfect satisfaction with which everything, both before and behind the curtain, had given to himself and his 18 visiting brethren. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The W.M. Elect," expressed the satisfaction which the election of Bro. Treadwell in regular order had given to him. Bro. Treadwell, in responding, said that he was proud of the position to which he had been elected, and that he should follow in the steps of those who had gone before him by preferring a step higher each officer in the lodge. The Treasurer and Secretary were next toasted, and the former responded, saying that he could testify to the excellence of the work carried out by Bro. Willing, who got in the money in a most successful manner, and it was to be hoped that next year would see Bro. Willing standing before them as W.M. elect. The toast of "The Officers," given by the W.M., brought the merits of every brother thus distinguished to the front, and each answered for himself—Bros. Palmer, S.D.; Buscal, J.D.; George Clarke, I.G.; White, Steward; and Spinks, Assistant Steward. "The Tyler's" toast brought the proceedings to a close at 10 o'clock, and then those who cared to stay enjoyed themselves with song and recitation, Bros. Walls, Palmer, Jones, W.M., and other brethren contributing to the harmony.

J. J. Limebeer, passed Bro. C. Marr to the Second Degree. Some propositions were received for initiations and joinings. The usual banquet followed.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The regular meeting of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, was held on Saturday, December 11th, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, and was very numerously attended by members and visitors. The visitors were Bros. Boyd, P.G.P.; Little, Secretary of the Girls' School; G. Simpson, 405, Scotch Constitution; A. Ebbatt, 463; R. Allison, 1806; C. P. McKay, 726; W. Marden, 205; P. F. Porsway, 1260; Swallow, W.M. 1563; E. White, S.W. 1563; J. Yolland, 1385; W. Morgan, 1385; J. R. Pitt, 463; Walton, 1445. The W.M., (Bro. J. Hamilton Townend), presided; Seex, S.W.; Stannay, J.W.; Moody, Sec.; Blockie, S.D.; Catchpole, J.D.; Hamer, D.C.; Hook, Org. The lodge was opened at three o'clock, Bro. Headon, I.P.M., taking the chair until the arrival of the W.M. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second and Third Degrees, and Bros. Wright, Wynne, Cadot and Everett were raised to the Sublime Degree. The W.M. then very kindly and courteously resigned the chair to Bro. Henry Thompson, P.M., who, in an impressive manner, raised his son, Bro. W. G. Thompson (whom he had initiated and passed) and Bro. Bertram to the Degree of M.M., and gave the concluding portion of the ceremony to the other candidates for the Sublime Degree. The W.M. then resumed the chair, and passed Bros. Powell, Keith, Frith, Luggar and Hudd to the Second Degree, and afterwards initiated Messrs. Shore, Julius J. Wyler, Robert Lawson, and John March Ginders into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. On the motion of Bro. Moody, the Secretary, it was agreed that from the 1st of January next the initiation fee shall be raised to ten guineas. Several propositions for initiation were made, and the lodge was closed after upwards of five hours of continuous working, and the brethren retired to a supper, which was exceedingly well served under the superintendence of Bro. Lord, the manager of the hotel. On the withdrawal of the cloth, the W.M. expressed his intention to carry out a most laudable principle he has inaugurated in this lodge, and that is the avoidance of long speeches in proposing the usual and formal toasts, and it is to be hoped that so good an example will not only form one of the "distinguishing characteristics" of this lodge, but be imitated by others, so that those who wish it may be enabled to reach their homes in good time, and thus save those who desire to do so the appearance of discourtesy in quitting the table before the usual complimentary toasts have been given and responded to. "The Queen and the Craft," and "The Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master," having been duly honoured, Bro. Boyd, P.G. Purs., responded for "The Grand Officers," stating how gratified he had been at the working of the lodge, and that he had never seen better. He was at the consecration of it, he was glad to see the progress it had made, and he wished it the highest amount of prosperity. Bro. Headon, I.P.M., in a few well chosen sentences proposed "The Health of the W. Master," after which Bro. Hook, the Organist of the lodge, sung with great taste, "The Anchor's Weighed." The W. Master said while it was his wish to say as little as possible, he was greatly obliged to the brethren for their hearty response to the toast Bro. Headon had proposed. He was also obliged to them for the fraternal feeling which existed in the lodge, and which had always been shown to him since he entered it, and which, he trusted, would never depart from it, and that they would all do their best not only to promote happiness amongst themselves, but amongst those who might come after them. He then gave "The Past Masters of the Lodge," for which Bros. Stevens and Headon very briefly replied. The W.M. next gave "The Visitors," saying that The Great City Lodge gave them a hearty welcome. Bro. Little, Secretary of the Girls' School, in responding, thanked the brethren for their hospitality and congratulated them on the success which had attended the lodge in the past two years, for it was now placed on a solid foundation which could never be disturbed, and must be a source of satisfaction to all who would follow in the chair. This was a lodge that any one might feel proud to belong to, and having been present at its consecration, he must offer his congratulations on the enormous success which had been achieved in the City of London. Bro. Swallow, W.M. of the City of Westminster Lodge (recently consecrated), returned thanks for the invitation given to the officers of the lodge to visit that one in the City of London, and he was sorry that he could only bring one with him. He took it as a very kind act to give them the invitation, and in return he begged to invite all the officers of The Great City Lodge to visit them on the second Thursday in January, and they would then give them a fraternal welcome. Some other visitors responded. "The Initiates" and other toasts were proposed and responded to, and the proceedings were brought to a close at 11 o'clock.

CHELMSFORD.—Lodge of Good Fellowship (No. 276).—The installation of Bro. E. Hunt Carter, the W.M. elect for the Lodge of Good Fellowship, took place on Thursday, the 9th inst., at the Shire Hall, the magistrates having, as usual, kindly placed the Grand Jury Room at the disposal of the lodge for this annual ceremony. We may here, perhaps, correct a statement which appeared a week or two since in a contemporary, in reference to the November meeting of the above-named lodge. The nomination of two brethren to fill the chair for the ensuing year was therein detailed, as was also the supposed result of the motion. No "motion" was made, nor could be made, according to the laws of the Craft, and the paragraph in this respect was a mere invention. About 20 of the brethren were eligible for the chair. It was also stated that Bro. J. Burton retired from the office of Treasurer, which he had held for about 20 years; this was correct, but nothing was said, in the paragraph referred to, as to a substantial acknowledgment to the Past Treasurer, which it was unanimously resolved should be awarded him, and a subscription list for which purpose was at once opened and has been heartily responded to, of which more in proper time. With this digression we will now return to the installation, and need only mention the name of W. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, as the Installing Master, to let it at once be known that the ceremony was of the most impressive nature, and was acknowledged as such by the assembled brethren in true Masonic manner. The following amongst other brethren were present:—P.M.'s F. Whitmore, the Rev. F. B. Shepherd, A. Durrant, T. Smea, J. Nicholls, A. C. Veley, A. Goodchild, W. Pullen, E. Robbins, and J. P. Sarel; Bros. Rev. B. S. Barnes, Chaplain and P.M.; J. Burton, Treasurer and P.M.; H. E. Stidolph, S.D.; A. Ginn, J.D.; J. W. Hair, Sec.; D. M. B. Wheeler, I.G.; F. A. Jones, J. Wright Carr, Prov. Grand Secretary; R. W. Sheldermine, W. H. L. Pattison, Dr. Clarke, W. Tippler, Captain Bannister, E. Shedd, G. W. Pascal, J. P. Lewin, J. H. Peacock, &c., &c. The following visitors also honoured the lodge with their presence:—A. R. Clench (Colchester), J. B. Spence (Dorking), H. J. Moxon (London), A. Clapham (Dunmow), J. T. Weldon (Felsted), and F. Binckes (Secretary of the Boys' School), &c. In the course of the evening Bro. H. E. Stidolph tendered his resignation as S.D. and Organist. The new W.M., Bro. E. Hunt Carter, having been duly installed, proceeded to the appointment of his officers for the year as follows:—E. Robbins, S.W.; D. M. B. Wheeler, J.W.; A. Ginn, S.W.; — Borrodale, J.D.; F. Whitmore, Treasurer; J. Nicholls, Sec.; Rev. B. S. Barnes, Chap.; A. Durrant, D.C.; G. S. Toler, I.G.; T. S. Sarel, O.G.; G. W. Pascal and R. W. Sheldermine, Stewards. A vote of thanks was accorded to the magistrates for the use of the Shire Hall. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the White Hart, where an excellent banquet was provided by Bro. Sheldrake. The sum of £38 5s. was subscribed for the Boys' School.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, December 1st, under the presidency of Bro. J. W. Smith, W.M., supported by the following officers and brethren:—S. S. Partridge, as I.P.M.; J. M. MacAllister, S.W.; G. W. Statham, J.W.; W. Wear, Treas.; C. E. Stretton, Sec.; S. Cleaver, S.D.; J. Ewing, 1391, as J.D.; J. Orlando Law, I.G.; G. Toller, I.P.M. 1560; J. T. Thorp, W.M. 523; W. B. Smith, P.M. 523; T. Worthington, S.W. 50; E. Mason, S.W. 1391; R. Taylor, Sec. 523; also Bros. I. Hart, J. Farndale, W. E. Buck, J. Jessop, F. Crick, G. Manton, and others. The minutes of the last regular meeting were confirmed. Mr. John Roadknight was initiated, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. Bro. Israel Hart was passed to the Second Degree by Bro. S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Sec. The W.M. announced that the next business was to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year, and called upon the Secretary to read the list of brethren qualified to serve as W.M., after which the ballot was taken, and resulted in the election of Bro. McAllister, S.W. The name of Malcolm McAllister will be familiar to all readers of Masonic meetings in the province of Leicestershire and Rutland. His Masonic career extends over a period of fifteen years, during which he has held high rank in Provincial Grand Lodge, as well as having been W.M. of the Mark Lodge, No. 19. He has also held every office in Craft lodges, either in Scotland or England. His working of the ceremonies has always been characterised by great exactness and dignity, and as this is combined with courtesy of manner, the brethren anticipate in the coming year a time of harmony and prosperity to St. John's Lodge.

NEWBURY.—Lodge of Hope (No. 574).—One of the most pleasant and prosperous years in the annals of Freemasonry in Newbury closed on Friday, the 10th inst., when Bro. John Bance vacated his position as W.M. of the Lodge of Hope. It is only a few years ago that the members of the Newbury Lodge formed so small a body that their numbers might have been counted on one's fingers, but since then the ancient Order has extended itself rapidly all over the world, and in the Newbury Lodge the number of the brethren has increased from eight or nine to about 50. During Bro. Bance's year of office several initiations have taken place, and at the present moment the lodge occupies a position which places it in the foremost rank in the list of Masonic lodges in the Province of Berks and Bucks, presided over by Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P. On Friday evening, Bro. Wheeler, of the Alfred Lodge, Oxford, was unanimously elected as a joining member; Bro. W. Balding was passed to the Second Degree; and Mr. Jarman, of H.M.'s Excise, was initiated, and took the Degree of E.A. At the conclusion of these ceremonies, which were performed by the Worshipful Master and his officers with much efficiency, the brethren proceeded to the election of the S.W., Bro. W. H. Herbert, of Wyfield Court, Boxford, as W.M. for the ensuing year, which was declared to have been unanimous. Bro. W. Knight subsequently proposed, and Bro. Cosburn seconded, that a P.M.'s jewel be presented to Bro. Bance in recognition of his valuable services as W.M. during the past year. The motion was unanimously carried. Bro. F. G. Hall, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Bance moved that a Past Master's jewel be presented to Bro. Hall, as an acknowledgment of his valued services for many years past, and further that he be elected an honorary member of the lodge. Bro. Biggs, P.M., Provincial Grand Secretary, seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted. The lodge also voted £5 5s. to the Masonic Benevolent Fund, and £5 5s. to the Widows' Fund. Bro. Dodd was re-elected Tyler. At the close of the lodge business, the brethren, to the number of thirty, partook of a sumptuous supper at the King's Arms Hotel, liberally provided by the retiring W.M., Bro. Bance, who presided, supported by Bros. W. Biggs, P.G.S.; B. Fielder, F. G. Hall, T. Deller, G. Boyer, and A. Burns, P.M.'s; A. Stradling, Geo. J. Cosburn, P.G.S.; G. M. Knight, W. Knight, S. Knight, R. Ravenor, J.W.; S. G. Hunt, G. Glover, F. Lyon, E. Head, J. G. O'Farrell, Stacey, Hattatt, Smith, W. Balding, W. Wilson, W. Wheeler, Jarman, Dodd, and others. The W.M. elect occupied the vice-chair.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday, 17th November, at Woolwich. Present: Bros. T. Ward, W.M.; S. Goddard, C. Norman, W. Graham, Past Masters; T. Butt, S.W.; F. Waters, J.W.; F. G. Dawson, P.M. and Treasurer; J. Henderson, P.M. and Secretary; A. Woodley, S.D.; J. Warren, J.D.; J. Wilkins, I.G.; E. Hobson, D.C.; B. Norman, O.G. Among the visitors were C. Cameron, 105 (Scotch); H. Pryce, 913; W. Gibson, 1536; P. Cullinan, 1331; E. G. Latham, 1536; and I. C. Jolly, 913. The work before the lodge was the raising of Bros. Saunders, Forme, and Fraser, the passing of Bro. Orford, and a motion by Bro. Dawson, having reference to the adjournment of the lodge for refreshment. Bro. Ward then, in a few chosen sentences, expressed the gratification it afforded all to hear such glowing accounts of our Royal Grand Master's reception by the people of India, and concluded by hoping that he would be spared to return and long rule the Craft, at the head of which he had been so unanimously placed. In proposing the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. P.M. Dawson (in the absence of Bro. Riches, I.P.M.) said he was again pleased of the opportunity of bearing testimony to the excellent working of the W.M.; he had upheld the prestige of the lodge, and he (Bro. Dawson) was sure that he would continue to uphold the standard of efficiency it had attained, and he was convinced they would agree with him when he stated the W.M. was a credit to Masonry and to the lodge over which he so worthily presided. Bro. Ward in response, thanked P.M. Dawson for the kind remarks he had made, and the members for the manner in which they had received them; he had always taken the greatest interest in the working of the lodge, and had made it his business to study closely the working of the several W.M.'s who occupied the chair during the period he held subordinate offices, and had worked hard to obtain his present proud position amongst them. He was gratified to find the brethren appreciated his working, and he could assure them that he would conscientiously carry out the duties pertaining to his office, and he hoped that the same kind spirit would be shown him throughout the remainder of his year of office. He had made it a point through life to appreciate old friends, and he could look upon the many old friends present, and say that he was proud of their lasting friendship, and trusted that they would all, in the future, spend as many happy hours as they had done in past years. The toast of "The Visitors" was most cordially given, and coupled with the name of Bro. Pryce, of the Pattison, who spoke in eulogistic terms of the conduct of business of the Nelson Lodge. This was supplemented by a few appropriate sentences by Bros. Latham and Cameron; the latter, although brief, was very happy in the comments he made, and fully bore out the opinion universally formed of him as a most fluent speaker. The health of the Past Masters of the lodge followed. Bro. P.M. Dawson replied to the toast. Past Master Charles W. Hobson, who arrived as Bro. P.M. Dawson was concluding his remarks, rose and informed the brethren that he had just arrived from Grand Lodge, where he had been with others to support the petition of one of the local brethren, and he was happy to inform them that they had been instrumental in obtaining a grant of £30 for him. The few words he had heard expressed by Bro. P.M. Dawson he quite concurred in, and he would be happy at all times to render that ready assistance due from him as a P.M. The W.M. said Bro. P.M. Hobson had rendered him a good service in representing him in this case at the Board of Benevolence. He could speak with great pleasure of the ready manner in which Bro. P.M. Hobson consented to undertake the duty, and he begged to tender him his thanks for it. The W.M. then cordially thanked Bro. Jolly for his kindness in reporting (with prudence) the successful meetings of the lodge, in the regularly authorised paper, the "Freemason." Bro. Jolly responded, and the brethren then separated.

ASHFORD.—Invicta Lodge (No. 709).—There was an unusually large gathering of Freemasons, not only of the Province of Kent, but of those belonging to more distant parts of the country, on Friday, the 10th inst., on the occasion of the installation at the Corn Exchange of Bro. Charles G. Robinson, Lieutenant Royal Navy, as Worshipful Master of the Invicta Lodge, No. 709, held in this town. Among the brethren present on the occasion were:—Bros. Eastes, Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Kent; Thorp, Prov. Grand Treasurer; Blakey, P. Prov. A.D.C.; Goldfinch, P. Prov. J.D.; Warne, P. Prov. G.A.S.; Bathurst, P. Prov. G.R.; Finch, P. Prov. D.C.; Ashdown, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Clarke, P. Prov. G.P.; Greenhill, P. Prov. J.D.; Woodruff, P.M.; Chubb, Geraud, Terson, W.M. 199; and others. The ceremony of installation was most ably performed by Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson, M.A., P. Prov. G.S.W., Vicar of Chart Sutton, Staplehurst, the father of the Worshipful Master elect, who was inducted, according to the ancient rites, to the chair of King Solomon, where he received the homage of the assembled brethren. The newly-elected Master having appointed the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year, a unanimous vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson for the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the installation ceremony. At the termination of the Masonic business the lodge was closed, and the brethren afterwards adjourned to the Saracen's Head Hotel, where they partook of a sumptuous banquet, presided over by Bro. Robinson, the newly-appointed Master, who was supported by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the leading brethren of the province. The usual Masonic and other toasts were duly given and responded to, the proceedings throughout being of a very agreeable character.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, the 1st inst. Bro. F. Iliffe, I.P.M., presided (the W.M., Bro. Henry T. Griggs being a candidate for passing, was examined as to his proficiency in the former degree, and being entrusted, he retired. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Griggs was passed to that degree. The lodge was closed in the Second Degree. Bros. Iliffe and Worsnop were appointed Auditors. A brother being proposed as a joining member, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, and adjourned until 5th Jan., 1876.

LLANGFNI.—Anglesea Lodge (No. 1113).—The annual installation meeting took place at the lodge room, Llangfni, on Wednesday, the 8th inst. There was a large attendance of the brethren. Bro. J. Lloyd Griffith, P.M. St. Cybi, 597, was the installing officer. The following were installed, invested, and elected:—W.M., Bro. Edmund Hicks; S.W., Bro. Dr. Evan Williams; J.W., Bro. T. H. Warrington; S.D., Bro. T. Pritchard;

J.D., Bro. J. Inglis Williams; Sec., Bro. G. J. Hughes; Treas., Bro. W. Hughes; Chaplain, Bro. Rev. T. Lloyd Kyffin, I.P.M.; I.G., Bro. R. H. Williams; Steward, Bro. J. Crewdson; Tyler, Bro. EXETER.—Semper Fidelis Lodge (No. 1254).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, the 6th inst., to celebrate their seventh yearly festival; and, according to ancient custom, to install the W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. B. Barber was unanimously selected at the previous lodge to fill the chair. Bro. H. W. Hooper, P. Prov. G. Reg., presented Bro. Barber to the installing Master, Bro. H. L. Brewster, P. Prov. G. Reg., as the W.M. elect for 1876. The ceremony of installation was most effectively gone through. The following brethren were then invested:—Bros. F. Horspool, I.P.M.; G. Huxham, S.W.; W. Brodie, J.W.; H. W. Hooper, Treas.; W. Pidsley, Sec.; E. T. Falford, S.D.; W. A. Gregory, J.D.; W. R. Commings, I.G.; W. Roberts, Org.; J. Sampson, C.; R. Nobbs, D.C.; F. Sanders, S.S.; H. Elmore, J.S.; P. L. Planchard, Tyler; Blanchard, jun., Asst. Tyler. Bro. Barber, in most appropriate language, and alluding to the happy Masonic year just brought to a close, as well as the many excellent and estimable qualities of the worthy brother, in the name of the lodge presented him with a handsome and valuable Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the lodge, added to which was an artistic and beautifully illuminated scroll (executed by Mr. Charles H. Clarke) containing the names of the brethren who had subscribed thereto, and the following inscription, viz:—"This scroll, together with a P.M.'s gold jewel, was presented to Bro. Frederick Horspool, the last of the Founders, by the Officers and Brethren of Semper Fidelis Lodge, No. 1254, as a mark of their fraternal respect and esteem, and in recognition of his valuable services as W.M. during the past year." The scroll was mounted in a handsome frame, decorated with Masonic emblems, by the Messrs. Rowden. The jewel took the form of a Masonic square, suspended from the top bar by a gold ribbon, bearing in raised letters of solid gold the name and number of the lodge. Unanimous and long-continued applause heartily testified to the pleasure experienced by the brethren in thus conveying to the recipient such a tangible proof of their full appreciation of the successful efforts he had made (during his year of office) towards having the beautiful and impressive Masonic ritual carried out in all its integrity. Bro. Horspool, on stepping forward to acknowledge the receipt of the jewel and scroll, said he deeply felt the honour conferred upon him, and the handsome jewel would ever remind him of their great kindness. The beautiful scroll, hung up in his home, would be treasured by him and his. He was more than satisfied with his past year's work from the expressions of approval of those around him, and he trusted that the strings of the bond of union between Masons had been drawn more closely together, and Masonic principles had been thoroughly understood and practised during his year of office. The brethren adjourned to Bro. Langdon's, Globe Hotel, and partook of the annual banquet. Bro. Barber, as W.M., occupied the chair, supported by about forty of the brethren of Semper Fidelis and other sister lodges. The son of an old Exonian, Bro. J. H. Mance, of Lodge Commercial, No. 180, Scotland, responded to the toast of "Visiting Brethren."

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Emulation (No. 1505).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was recently held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, the proceedings being greatly increased in interest by the fact that a very handsome presentation was made to Bro.

Nelson, I.P.M., with a magnificent ornolu drawing-room eight day timepiece, with a handsome pair of vases en suite, and, in doing so, spoke in high terms of the services rendered by Bro. Nelson to the cause of Masonry generally, and the Emulation Lodge in particular. The timepiece was richly embellished in Sevres plaque, painted in Watteau subjects, mounted on gilt stand, under glass shades and bore the following inscription on a silver tablet in front:—"Presented to Bro. Henry Nelson by the members of the Lodge of Emulation, 1505, of Free and Accepted Masons, as a token of esteem for his untiring energy as one of its promoters, and for the efficient manner in which he performed the duties as first Worshipful Master. Liverpool, December, 1875." Bro. Nelson acknowledged the splendid gift in an excellent speech, assuring his brethren that he would continue to work for the good of the Order. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were giving during the evening.

He then initiated Messrs. Joseph Williams, Lipman, Samuels, and Thomas Rayner Hayhow.

INSTRUCTION.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 153).—The annual festival of the above lodge was held on Friday, the 3rd of December, at the Sir Robert Peel Tavern, Crescent-road, Plumstead, Bro. B. Plaisted's. Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 147 and 1155, was in the chair, and up till recently the Preceptor of the lodge. Among the company were Bros. Macdonald, S.W. 1158, the present Preceptor; Rose, P.M. 73 and 1475; Pownell, W.M. 1536 and S.W. 13; Henderson, P.M. 13, 700, &c.; &c.; Reed, J.W. 13; Weston, S.W. 1536; Goddard, P.M. 13; Loeing, P.M. 45; C. Meckell, and others. The dinner, which was both elegant and plentiful, gave unlimited satisfaction, and was much enjoyed. Upon the cloth being removed, the chairman gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which, it is needless to say, were well received and enthusiastically responded to. In proposing "The Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction," the chairman said that Lodges of Instruction were not so well attended as they should be. Many Masons thought that as soon as they had taken the three degrees that they had learnt all that Masonry had to teach, but never was there a greater mistake made; take the regular monthly meetings of most regular lodges, and they did not extend above six times a year, and in those lodges the whole of the work was seldom carried out, but in the Lodges of Instruction there was always the diligent and earnest Preceptor weekly at his post to go through and teach the beautiful ceremonies of the Craft to all who desired to be taught them. He then spoke of the difficulties attending the exertions of the Preceptors, and concluded an eloquent address by proposing "Continued Success to the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction." "The Health of Bro. Dilley" was then proposed by the Preceptor, Bro. Macdonald, in glowing terms. Bro. Dilley, in reply, spoke of his long and earnest love and work for Freemasonry, and owned he had had his reward in the many pupils of his that were now shining lights in their particular lodges. He felt proud of them, and their distinction was all the reward looked to by him; and he trusted they in their turn would do good work in teaching young Masons the beautiful and impressive mysteries of the Craft. He explained that having to enter a new line of business at Rotherhithe had compelled him to give up the Preceptorship of the lodge, and he left them with every confidence in the hands of Bro. Macdonald. He spoke of the difficulties attending even his getting from Rotherhithe that night (which place he declared was the last invented), and cautioned them first to look to business and then Freemasonry; for a man who neglected his business for Freemasonry was not a good Mason. It is impossible in our limited space to do justice to Bro. Dilley's excellent remarks, but they were cheered by the brethren most enthusiastically, and upon his retiring shortly after he received quite an ovation. "The Officers of the Lodge, Bros. Macdonald, Preceptor; Reilly and Syer, Secs.; and S. Goddard, Treas." were then honoured; and Bro. Reilly gave the following results of their first year:—Number of members, 111; 3 deaths; number of meetings, 48; total of attendants, 972; average of attendants, 204; subscriptions, fees, &c., £15 9s. 1d.; expenditure, £11 10s. 7d.; balance, £3 18s. 6d.; and no liabilities. "The Health of the Stewards, Bros. Macdonald, G. Davies, S. Goddard, N. Brown, H. S. Syer, and R. A. Smith" followed, and Bro. Goddard, in reply, said they commenced work with only a square for tools, and now they had everything of their own, with the exception of wands, and those they meant to have shortly. Several other toasts followed, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by the brethren.

LEICESTER.—Byzantine Conclave (No. 44).—A meeting of this prosperous conclave (postponed from November in consequence of the consecration of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560), took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Tuesday, the 7th inst., when there were present:—Sir Knts. W. Kelly, Int. Gen.; G. Toller, jun.; G. O.; S. S. Partridge, K.G.C.; F. J. Baines, M.P.S.; C. Stretton, Rev. W. Langley, Major Woodall, C. J. McBride, (Premier); and J. C. Duncombe, P. Sovs.; W. Weate, V.E.; W. Sculthorpe, Treas.; R. B. Smith, Rec.; J. T. Thorpe, S.G.; and most of the other officers Visitor, Sir Knt. B. Ellis, P. Sov. 120 (Sheffield). The first business was the enthronement of Sir Knt. Comp. J. C. Duncombe, V.E. as Hon. Sov., which was performed by Knt. Comp. G. Toller, jun., assisted by the Rev. W. Langley as V.E. and C. J. McBride as Herald. A sanctuary of K.H.S. was then opened, Sir Knt. W. Kelly officiating as M.E.C., when Sir Knts. Major Woodall, C. McBride, and T. M. Quin were received, and afterwards installed as Knights of St. John. Owing to its great length the impressive ritual of these degrees was obliged to be somewhat curtailed, but enough was given to prove to the candidates that—properly worked, and with all the accessories complete—they would rank second to none of the high degrees. The conclave having been resumed, Bro. E. J. Mason, S.W. 1391, was admitted and installed as a Knight of the Red Cross, the ceremony being ably conducted by Sir Knt. Partridge, as M.P.S., assisted by the other officers. A banquet took place at the closing of the conclave, after which a very pleasant evening was spent, the flourishing state of the Order in general, and of this conclave in particular, being a subject of general congratulation.

Election and installation of office-bearers for the next year was the business before the lodge, but previous to beginning the election Bro. J. Winton, P.M., rose and said, they were all aware that the Past Master's jewel belonging to the lodge had been lost a considerable time ago. The want of it had been felt very much, as it was the jewel of an important office. He then, in a few graceful words, requested the R.W.M. to accept on behalf of the lodge, from him (Bro. Winton) a P.M.'s jewel, to replace the one lost. The R.W.M. thanked Bro. Winton for his handsome present to the lodge, and proposed a vote of thanks to be recorded in the minute book. Bro. Winton briefly replied, and business was then proceeded with. There being no opposition to any of the office-bearers nominated, the election was declared carried. Bro. Winton, P.M., then proceeded to install the various officers into their respective positions, which he completed in a most excellent manner. The R.W.M. then made a few remarks on the annual balance sheet, showing the position of the lodge. He said they would find from the abstract put into their hands that the lodge did not stand in a pecuniary point of view quite so well off as it did last year, but otherwise they were in a prosperous condition. This finished all the business before the lodge, when it was called to refreshment for a short time. The following is the list of office-bearers:—Alex. Monro, presided, and said, he had the pleasure of informing them that the Rev. D. McCorqudale, of Crosshill Established Church, was waiting outside to become a member of this lodge, with a view to become also its Chaplain. The reverend gentleman having been duly recommended by two brethren of the lodge, was then accordingly introduced, and received the Entered Apprentice Degree at the hands of the W. Master, Bros. John Mitchell and John Clark received the Third Degree at the hands of the deputy Master, Bro. D. Lamb.

RUTHERGLEN.—Lodge St. John Operative (No. 347).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 10 inst., in their new Masonic Hall, Rutherglen, Bro. Smart, W.M., in the chair; Bro. J. Murdoch, S.W.; and Alston, J.W. A large number of members were present, among whom were many visitors, viz., Bros. W. Ferguson, W.M. 116; W. Harper, W.M. 408; W. Ferguson, 543 ("Freemason"); J. Low, 34; J. Millar, 114; J. Hamilton, 114; J. Hamilton, 116; G. Love 116; J. Cunningham, I.P.M. 347; W. Gardner, P.M., Treas.; A. Pearson, Chaplain; M. Abbott, D.M.; A. Warnock, Sec.; W. Young, S.D.; A. Robertson, J.D.; R. Hastie, J.S.; J. Cairn, Tyler, and others. Messrs. McAllan, J. Thomson, and J. Hall were initiated into the First Degree by Bro. D. Smart, W.M. The ceremony was ably carried out and reflects credit on the choice of the lodge in electing Bro. Smart to the chair. Thereafter, a board of Installed Masters, consisting of Bros. J. Cunningham, 347; W. Ferguson, 543; W. Harper, 408; and A. Warnock, 347, were formed, when the ceremony of Installed Master was conferred upon Bros. D. Smart, W.M. 347; W. Ferguson, W.M. 116, ("Freemason"); and W. Gardner, P.M. 347. On the lodge being resumed, Bros. W. Gardner, Treas., and W. Young, S.D., were installed into office by Bro. Cunningham, I.P.M. The lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clyde (No. 408).—The election of office-bearers of this lodge for the ensuing year took place on Friday evening, the 10th inst., within the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, the following being the result:—Bros. Wm. Harper, W.M.; Thomas Gordon, D.M.; John McInnes, S.M.; William Bisland, S.W.; John McKinnon, J.W.; Wm. Anderson, Treas.; Alexr.

Cross, Sec.; Andrew Strathearn, Chap.; John Buchanan, B.B.; Wm. Williamson, S.D.; Robt. Wallace, J.D.; James Blackstock, Architect; James Morton Jeweller; John Clare, P.G.S.; John McCall, S.S.; James Harkness, I.S.; John Archer, S.B.; George Baillie I.G.; and David Ramsay, Tyler. The ceremony of installing the W.M., together with his Depute and Substitute Masters, was performed by Bro. J. P. Macnair, W.M. Lodge Union (332). The remaining office bearers were installed by Bro. Harper himself.

GOVAN.—Lodge Govandale (No. 437).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 7th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Govan, Bro. J. McFarlane, W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. A. Campbell, P.M.; J. Millar, D.M.; R. Muir, S.W.; G. Wilson, J.W.; J. Sutherland, Secretary; and others. The business before the meeting was the nomination of office-bearers for the ensuing year. The majority of offices were keenly contested. The following were unanimously elected:—Bros. J. Millar, W.M.; J. Hutcheson, D.M.; R. Muir, S.W.; A. James, J.W.; J. Sutherland, Secretary; J. Moggin, Inner Guard; J. McIntyre, Tyler. The election and installation of office-bearers is to take place on Tuesday night, 21st inst.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clydesdale (No. 556).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, 106, Rose-street, S.S., on the 6th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. W. Phillips, took the chair, and presided over one of the largest meetings that ever took place in the Clydesdale Lodge. He was supported by all his office-bearers being in their respective places. The lodge was opened and raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., when Bro. James Roberts, W. Lockhart, W. Riddell, and R. Paterson were found worthy, and received that degree, the R.W.M. officiating. Thereafter, the lodge was reduced to the E.A. Degree, and the minutes of last regular meeting, and those of the emergency, were read and confirmed. Then came the business of the evening, viz., the election of office-bearers for the next year. Nearly every office being contested, the excitement that prevailed was great. The sharpest and most exciting of the contests was that for the W.M. chair, between Bro. Phillips and McNaught, Bro. Phillips gaining the position by the small majority of one vote. The list of elected office-bearers is as follows:—W.M., W. Phillips; D.M., Hugh McCulloch; S.M., James Boyle; S.W., John McNaught; J.W., Thomas Phillips; S.D., Peter Young; J.D., McCameron; Treas., McKechnie; Sec., G. B. Yulle; Chaplain, Bro. Webster; Architect, Geddis; P.G.S., Middleton; S.S., Simpson, J.S.; John McMillan; Std. Bearer, Tait; I.G., W. Smith; Tyler, W. Graham. A motion was then brought forward to alter the night of meeting. After some discussion the matter was left over till the next meeting, when the installation of the office-bearers will also take place.

KILMUN.—Lodge St. Munn Ardnadam (No. 496).—The anniversary meeting of this lodge took place on Friday, 26th ult., in Kilmun Hotel (Mr. William Morrison's). There was but an average attendance. Bro. the Rev. G. Masson Sandbank occupied the chair, and Bro. Mercer discharged the duties of Croupier. After dinner, several topics affecting the membership of the lodge were brought up and discussed. Regret was expressed at the loss about to be sustained by the removal to another sphere of usefulness of Bro. the Rev. L. Dobbie, of Strone. The reverend gentleman, who was present, thanked the lodge for the fraternal feeling expressed. The remaining part of the evening was spent in a most agreeable manner.

GLASGOW.—St. Rollox Chapter (No. 144), held their regular meeting in the chapter rooms, Garngad-road, on the 10th inst. The M.E.Z., Comp. J. Armand, presided, and was supported by Comps. J. McLeish, H.; D. Gilchrist, P.Z. 73; G. W. Wheeler, Z. 73; J. H. Shiells, Z. 143; J. S. Allan, 1st. Soj.; and W. Sampson, 3rd Soj.; D. Reid, 87; and a number of well-qualified companions. A lodge of M.E. Mark Masters was opened, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. It was expected that a number of brethren would have been present for this degree, but only one came forward. He received that from Comp. G. W. Wheeler in excellent style. An R.A. Chapter was afterwards opened, when the same brother was made a companion of the Holy R.A., Comp. Shiells officiating.

THE URBAN CLUB.

The seventeenth annual dinner of the Urban Club was held on Friday in the large hall of the St. John's-gate Tavern, when some 60 or 70 gentlemen sat down to a substantial repast, provided by the Steward of St. Edmund Lachmere, the Master of the Knights of St. John. Bro. Sir John Bennett occupied the chair. There were present Bros. Chas. Horsley, Dr. Carpenter, S. Wickens. After dinner Bro. Sir John Bennett proposed "The Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." "Our National Forces" was the next toast given by the Chairman, which was duly responded to for the Volunteers by "Colonel" George Cruikshank and Captain G. W. Challis. The toast of the evening, "Success to the Urban Club," was introduced with great warmth by Sir John. He was glad to see so many friends of literature present, not only from our own country but from America and many other countries in Europe. Mr. J. Redding Ware then proposed "The Fine Arts," which was responded to by Mr. Geo. Cruikshank. Dr. F. G. Luke, M.A., rose to propose "Literature and Science." Mr. Karl Blind responded on behalf of Literature. Dr. Richardson replied on behalf of "Science." Dr. W. C. Bennett proposed "The Drama and the Stage," which was responded to by Dr. W. B. Richardson, M.A., of Boston, U.S., in a very effective manner. Bro. Chas. Horsley proposed "The Health of the Chairman."

BRO. H. SEEBOHM IN SIBERIA.

A lecture of more than ordinary interest was given recently in the School of Art, Sheffield, by Bro. H. Seebohm, who has recently returned from a journey to Siberia. Some idea of his adventures in the "desolate land of ice and snow" may be gained from the fact that for five months he slept in his clothes, and had nothing but a few wild onions for his vegetable diet. Starting from London he went to St. Petersburg, from thence to Moscow, and forward to Vologda. Then he sledged to Archangel, where he stayed for three weeks, getting information as to the rest of his journey. Setting out again, he sledged eight hundred miles due east to Petchora, along the course of which great river he met with the chief of his adventures. In search of rare birds, he found, not only ornithological treasures, but saw strange sights, and came across strange people. Sometimes journeying over vast tracts of ice, at others being threatened with starvation, now anticipating even a more violent death by the break-up of the mighty river, and the annihilation of his dwelling by the rapidly rising waters. At one time ingratiating himself into the good graces of the philosophical Samoyedes, a nomadic tribe of singularly stoical tendencies, who, in the words of the lecturer, "must have blood in their veins, although it runs very deep beneath their sallow skins." One day passing his time with the Ziriani, and the next coming across another tribe with a still more unpronounceable name. Oft-times in the midst of scenery wildly picturesque, and frequently traversing weird-looking tracts of country disheartening in their "blackness of darkness." Passing the Arctic circle, where the distinction of day and night ceased, and making his way to Dromik, where he, and his fellow travellers, took possession of a stranded wreck, and spent a week there, making most interesting discoveries. And as in all these experiences he never lost sight of the importance of gaining knowledge relative to the national characteristics of the people, no wonder his lecture was interesting. Moreover, he accomplished the great object of his visit, which was the pursuit of birds. In the course of his travels he has secured 1000 skins and 1000 eggs, so his journey has not been in vain. Besides he has discovered one bird entirely new to science, which will be called after his own name; found several birds entirely new to Europe, one of them hitherto known only as a visitant to India, and another known as a winter visitant to Persia, as well as the eggs of four birds whose breeding places have been a mystery. The excursion has certainly been a great ornithological success; and the products of it non-ornithological caused considerable amusement at the lecture, especially the donning of a Siberian travelling costume by Mr. Seebohm, and the exhibition of the attire worn by the Samoyede ladies. The Rev. C. G. Coombe, M.A., presided at the lecture, which was delivered in connection with the Literary and Philosophical Society. In proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, the rev. gentleman regretted that the lecture had been delivered to comparatively few persons, although the room was crowded. The description of the journey to Siberia had been so very interesting that he hoped Bro. Seebohm would be prevailed upon to deliver it in the Cutler's Hall to a much larger audience. Mr. Parkes second the motion, and it was carried unanimously. In acknowledging the vote, the lecturer said if, upon reconsideration, they thought it worth while, he should be very glad to deliver the lecture again. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS ROUTLEDGE, P.M. 327.

It is our duty to record the death of Bro. P.M. Thomas Routledge, of the St. John's Lodge, No. 327, who died on the 5th November, 1875, at his residence, Emerald Villas, Garden-street, Lower Broughton, Manchester, in the 83rd year of his age. He was well known throughout this province, having been upwards of 40 years a member of his lodge. As a Royal Arch Mason, he was most active and persevering, and in his capacity of First Principal and P.Z. exalted upwards of 200 members. His services were held in high estimation by the Order in general throughout the North of England.

THE "FREEMASON" LECTURE BY THE REV. P. P. AGNEW.

The Rev. P. P. Agnew delivered a lecture at the Lorne-street Hall, Auckland, New Zealand, on the subject of Freemasonry. Several distinguished members of the Craft were present on the platform. Mr. G. P. Pierce, P.G.M. of New Zealand, I.C., occupied the chair, and introduced the rev. lecturer to the audience.

The Rev. Mr. Agnew, in opening his remarks, alluded to his being, perhaps, the first who had received authority to lecture on the subject. There were some who went so far as to say that the origin of the Craft dated back so far as the Creation, and others traced it to the erection of the Tower of Babel. But it was to be observed that the Tower of Babel was of brick. Now, in all Masonic legends, in all Masonic emblems, no mention was anywhere made of brick, neither was there any reference to it; therefore it was to be concluded that Masonry was in no way connected with the Tower of Babel, for brick formed no part of true Masonry. In referring to ancient architecture, it appeared that at the present time we, with all our knowledge and enlightenment, were ignorant of the means by which the massive masonry of the old cities was put into position; and besides, we had no tools at the present time at all suitable for preparing the huge blocks of stone that might be seen, for instance, as forming part of the ruined Egyptian cities. The true origin of Masonry lay in the Temple of Solomon. This was their sure foundation, on the great glory of which Freemasonry rested as the model of Masonic teaching. After describing the great costliness of the Temple, on which no less than £943,000,000 sterling had been expended, the rev. lecturer traced the existence of the Craft through the intermediate ages to Numa Pompilius, the King or Prince of Rome, who, being desirous of introducing stone into the architecture of ancient Rome, called into his service certain of the Craft. Coming down to later times, and the introduction of Masonry into Britain, it would be found to have become established about the time of King Alfred, and in the year 928 it was said that Prince Edwin, a brother of the King, called the first meeting of Masons in England at the city of York, and there drew up the first English Constitution. In what might be termed the present day, 1813, the Grand Lodges of York and London were united. Regarding those who were member of the Craft, he might say the Pope had been a Mason. The Prince of Wales was a Mason, and their Grand Master, so that at some future day they might look forward to seeing seated on the throne of Britain one who had worn the apron and used the trowel. The Rev. Mr. Agnew said he would introduce to his hearers some of the pleasing mysteries of the Craft itself. They took as their guide the Word of God. Every candidate for admission to the brotherhood must be made to feel that he was ignorant, and in the greatest need of Divine assistance. He was instructed that in that Book lay the surest guide for him, and that by a careful and diligent study of it he was to mark out his course in life, and be most careful never on any occasion to utter irreverently and without respect the name of the Supreme Deity. No lodge could be worked unless the Word of God lay open before the Master. It was a strange fact that Masonry existed among the Chinese in a form which led to the belief that its origin was still more remote than the generally received authority. There was in his (the lecturer's) possession a Chinese chart which contained emblems of far greater antiquity than any in use among the Masons of the present day. In this chart were to be found the ark of Noah, the dove, the olive branch, the pillar of cloud, &c., and many signs which were as yet inexplicable, and this antiquity was further borne out by the very excellent Masons who were to be found amongst the Chinese. There was in Victoria, on its very borders, a colony of Chinese, who received and treated him (Bro. Agnew) with the greatest kindness and consideration, solely from the fact of his being a brother. The lecture gave many instances in which the bond of Masonic friendship had been of great assistance to him, and he also gave an instance in which a Masonic sign actually prevented the execution of a sentence of death. In conclusion, the rev. gentleman most quaintly recited to his hearers Mrs. Caudle's Curtain Lecture, anent the Craft, and drew many signs of appreciation from them, resuming his seat amidst applause. Mr. M. Niccol proposed, in a neat speech, a vote of thanks to the rev. lecturer, which was accorded by acclamation. In thanking the brethren and the audience for their attention that evening, Bro. Agnew intimated that on Sunday evening he would hold Divine service, according to the Church of England, at the City Hall, which would probably be the last opportunity he would have of addressing an Auckland audience. His object in coming to New Zealand, and it was not the first time he had been in the colony—for he was here during the Hone Heke war and at the sack of Kororarake—was that he might raise sufficient funds to enable him to proceed to England, for the purpose of finding, and bringing out to the colonies, some of the ardent youthful spirits, who would take up the ministry in places where they were now waiting for them to appear. Many of these congregations he had laid the foundation of himself. He again thanked those present for their attention. The company then dispersed.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A special meeting of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, on the following business:—

"To consider, and if approved, adopt, the Report of the Special Committee, appointed by the Quarterly General Court on the 9th October, 1875, with reference to the subject of providing accommodation for an increased number of girls, the scheme to be submitted having also been recommended by the General Committee on the 25th November, and further, in the event of the adoption of the Report, to nominate a Building Committee, who shall be charged with the superintendence of the necessary works, with full power to draw cheques, and perform all such duties as may appertain to their office."

Bro. Lieut. Col. Creaton, Vice-Patron, was voted to the chair, and among the other brethren present were Bros. Lieut.-Col. J. Creaton, Thomas W. White, John Boyd, J. A. Farnfield, Herbert Dicketts, S. Rawson, A. H. Tattershall, H. Massey ("Freemason"), R. W. Stewart, G. Bolton, H. Browne, W. Smeed, John A. Rucker, W. A. Bowler, William Roebeck, Griffiths Smith, Thomas T. Peacock, Z. D. Berry, Charles Jardine, W. J. Mullis, John Healey, R. B. Webster, James W. Baldwin, Charles Lacey, G. R. Shirvell, C. Wright, J. C. Parkinson, H. A. Dubois, Colonel Francis Burdett, William Ramsey, Nathaniel George Phillips, Robert Kenyon, J. M. P. Montagu, William Stephens, George Kenning, Thomas Bartlett, H. Phythian, C. J. Hampden, Joseph Smith, F. B. Dudgeon, Lieutenant Colonel Peters, E. J. Barron, W. Winn, John Symonds, C. Butcher, George Angold, F. B. Lemaitre, Hyde Pullen, Charles G. Hill, E. C. Woodward, Thomas J. Sabine, J. M. Vaughan, J. Terry, Charles Fish, Frederick Binckes, William F. C. Moutrie, J. L. Coulton, E. H. Thielay, Jesse Turner, W. C. Ramm, W. Barrett, Thomas Massa, F. W. H. Ramsay, M.D.; and Dudley Rolls.

The Chairman said this special meeting had been convened for the purpose of receiving a recommendation from the General Committee in accordance with law No. 31 in the Institution's book, and he thought he should be best studying the convenience of the brethren by having that law read at the outset.

Bro. Little then read the rule, which directed that before a special meeting could be called a requisition must be signed by a certain number of brethren and given to the Secretary. Bro. Little afterwards read the requisition, and the names attached thereto. The advertisement convening the meeting was taken as read, and Bro. Little concluded by reading that part of the minutes of the General Committee of 25th November which related the business before the Special Court.

The Chairman thought that before going further it would be better to read the schemes for the enlargement of the school, by which the brethren would have full information as to what was proposed to be done.

Bro. Little thereupon read the following schemes:—

Report of the Special Committee, composed of the House Committee, appointed by the Quarterly General Court on the 9th October, 1875, to consider and report upon the subject of providing accommodation for an increased number of girls:—

"Pursuant to the resolution of the Quarterly Court, the Special Committee held its first meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Friday, the 5th November, when a proposition was made and seconded that a site for the erection of a new school, to be subsidiary to the establishment at Battersea Rise, be sought for, to which an amendment was moved and seconded that an additional building be provided on the present site. After some discussion, it was resolved to adjourn the consideration of the question to Friday, the 12th November, when the committee held its second meeting, at which it was resolved that the present grounds be utilized for the purpose of providing the extra accommodation required.

"The committee then adjourned, for the production of plans and estimates, to Monday, the 22nd November, when the third meeting was held. Several plans were submitted, upon the suggestions of several of the members present, and having been fully considered and discussed, it was resolved, without a dissentient, to recommend the adoption of a plan brought forward by the Chairman, Bro. Lieut.-Colonel J. Creaton, which includes the erection of a large hall, with class rooms and offices, on the ground floor, and dormitories with governesses' rooms, providing for 94 additional children, on the floors above.

"(Signed) A. J. CREATON, Chairman."

The Chairman said these were the schemes which the Special House Committee had submitted to the General Committee, and the General Committee had recommended to this Special Court.

Bro. Thomas W. White had much pleasure in moving that this scheme, the estimated cost of which amounted to £20,790, be adopted.

Bro. H. A. Dubois seconded the motion.

Bro. W. Ramsey asked whether the cost would not exceed the estimated sum.

The Chairman said that the committee had gone well through the scheme and the estimate, and they believed they had taken the outside cost. He thought that instead of being more, it would come to less than the amount stated.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart presumed that this would be without the architect's commission, which would amount to £1250.

The Chairman asked Bro. Massa whether he could enlighten the brethren on this point. For himself and the committee, they had gone very carefully through the prices, and they thought the chances were in favour of a much less sum than £20,790 being enough to cover the cost. Bro. Massa would be able to say whether this was right.

Bro. Massa: Yes.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart: But it is exclusive of your commission.

Bro. Massa: Yes. The commission would be some £1200.

The Chairman said, that perhaps the brethren might ask why the committee were proposing to build so large a school. It was for these simple reasons; first, that the requirements of the Craft were rapidly becoming very large, and there was no doubt that in ten or fifteen years all the space now proposed to be given would be required; and secondly, that instead of patching, as they had been doing for the last twelve years, it was thought best to do all that was required at once, and make but one job of it. From the year 1862 they had been putting on a bit here to the building, and a bit there, and this had cost £15,609. He would ask whether it was not better to go into the thing at once and do it properly, than continue on this principle.

Bro. Kenyon said it would probably be in the recollection of many of the brethren that at the last quarterly meeting several propositions were brought forward, one by Bro. Joshua Nunn, that £25,000 should be expended in the purchase of land and the erection of a new building elsewhere than at Battersea Rise. There was also a proposition of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart that they should utilise the infirmary, on which a large sum of money had already been expended. Bro. Rucker brought forward another proposition; and the result was that the whole question was referred to a Special House Committee; but this House Committee was to receive suggestions which any brother might feel disposed to offer, and give them due consideration. He understood that the House Committee did receive such suggestions, considered, and then ignored them one after another. The scheme now before the meeting he understood met with the approval of the majority of the House Committee. To that scheme he had some objection, and at the monthly meeting of the General Committee, which was held on the 25th November, he proposed an amendment to the report of the House Committee. He was met by Bro. Dubois starting the objection that he could not put that amendment at that meeting, and the Chairman ruled in Bro. Dubois' favour, that it could not be done at the committee meeting, but must be done at this court.

The Chairman said no, not at this Special Court, but at the regular Quarterly Court. Bro. Kenyon could do so still by giving proper notice to the General Committee.

Bro. Kenyon said, at all events he was to bring it on here. The Chairman proposed to call a Special Court in order to save time. However, he (Bro. Kenyon) was debarred from bringing his amendment on at the General Committee.

The Chairman, interposing, said, in the first place Bro. Kenyon did not give notice of his motion. He must do that. He (the Chairman) told him he could bring his motion forward at a Quarterly Court, but it was not his business to tell him to give notice there and then.

Bro. Kenyon replied that he had received a letter from Bro. Little saying that he could not bring his motion on at the present Special Meeting; he would therefore move the rejection of the proposition and go to the Quarterly Court with his own scheme, which he proposed to have carried out. He would now state the reason why he opposed the adoption of this Report. In the first place he thought it very impolitic and unwise to go to so large an expense to erect a building on the present site. They all knew very well it was not one of the most healthy. They also knew that the land which they now possessed was not very extensive; and to erect a very large building, in addition to that which they already possessed, would be foolish, inasmuch as they ought not to crowd a large number of children together in a building. In the next place they knew, for they saw it every day of their lives, that there was a large colony of small houses springing up around this school; and in a few years there would be found a very crowded neighbourhood there, which would not be conducive to the health of the children. The next objection he had was to the very large amount of money which it was proposed to spend. Now, it was perfectly true they had £40,000, the accumulated fund of several years' saving; but the Committee came down to this court, and proposed at one fell swoop to strike off about £21,000. Let them bear this in mind; they proposed to take upon themselves the increased responsibility of another ninety-four children, whom they must clothe, feed, and educate; and at the same time they were knocking off £1000 a year from their income by expending the £21,000 on the building. No man of ordinary business pursuits would do such a thing. And what had they got when they had done this? If there had before been a chance of the railway company taking the present building, when the compensation they would have to pay was increased by £20,000 or £30,000 that chance would be destroyed. A railway company, before embarking on an extension of their works, would hesitate when they had such a sum to pay as £40,000 or £50,000; and they would gladly abandon the project when it could only be done on such terms. The brethren would be wrong in spending such a large sum of money on the present site. They should look out for a healthy locality where they might have extensive grounds, and where a building might be erected which was fit for Freemasons to have, not for the present only, but for the future. He thought Bro. Massa was wrong when they said the expense would be less than the estimate, rather than more. He had never known such a thing in his life—he did not know whether any one else had—of a building costing less than the original estimate. The building, he thought, would cost more than £30,000, instead of less than £20,000. It always had been the case, and always would be. Every one who had entered in building operations knew that an estimate never was reduced. Therefore he had a very strong objection to the expenditure of this money. He did not think that because they had £40,000 they ought to expend £25,000 in erecting an addition to this present building on a portion of the land they had, in which building they would crowd the children, and so not conduce to their health. He would therefore move, "That this Report be rejected," and if it were rejected, as he hoped it would be, then the House Committee could bring forward any other proposal they think fit. He would then bring forward his proposition, which would not cost half the amount, and the brethren would get an institution of their own worthy of them. He was precluded from introducing the particulars of his proposal by the ruling of the Chairman.

The Chairman: No, not by my ruling, but by the rules of this Institution.

Bro. Kenyon: If this Report were rejected (he did not see that there was any haste required in the matter) he would bring forward his motion as a substantive motion at the next Quarterly General Court.

Bro. John Symonds said that as a matter of form there was no necessity to move an amendment. Bro. Kenyon, if he disagreed with the mover of the proposition, could vote with those who opposed it.

Bro. H. Browne had no doubt that the brethren must add very considerably to the estimate of £21,000. Never in his life had he seen an estimate from an architect—and he had had large experience—when it had not been exceeded. It had even been the case with this Institution. The infirmary was an instance. He was quite sure that for £21,000 ought to be read £25,000 at least. Do not let them go into the undertaking under any false impression; it would not be done, he thought, even for £25,000.

Bro. W. Winn: And then there is the cost of the furniture.

Bro. H. Browne: There had been other schemes before the committee which would cost but half the money.

Bro. W. Ramsey said that a remark had been made by Bro. Kenyon in respect of the healthiness of the present site; it was true that this site was not a healthy one?

The Chairman said he would answer that question by saying that in seven years they had had but two deaths.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart observed that he did not think they were justified in going to this enormous expense; there was really no necessity for it. Although they had an estimate for a new building, the Infirmary might be utilised; and at a small cost they might be able to accommodate a large additional number of children. They might build a hall, and the whole expense would come out at about £10,000; £14,000 at the very extreme. That had been his proposition; but he was met by the architect, saying (at least he believed he said) that his (Bro. Stewart's) plan was to pull down this place, which cost £7000, and build up another which must cost £14,000. That was not his proposition; he would have been an idiot to propose such a thing. As that was the feeling, he withdrew his scheme. His scheme was still to utilise the infirmary. The chairman had said they had had only two deaths in seven years. If that was the case they did not want such an infirmary. Let them make use of it; lengthen their dining hall; and go to an expense of £10,000 or £11,000; and then, if the railway company wanted their premises they would pay them compensation. He did not think there was any chance of the railway coming there; but at the same time, as Bro. Browne had said, this new scheme could not be covered by £25,000, or anything like it; therefore he could not say he agreed in the plan.

Bro. Herbert Dicketts wished to call attention to the subject of the healthiness of the neighbourhood of the present building. Her Majesty's Government always looked out for the most healthy places to build their gaols; and they issued royal commissions to enquire into the subject. There had been two such commissions, and both had reported favourably on this locality; and in it they had built the Royal Patriotic School for Girls and the Royal Patriotic School for Boys. The parish too had proposed to build a district workhouse there.

Bro. Z. D. Berry, P.M. 179, said it was a mistake to think that the present site was an unhealthy one. A more healthy spot did not exist, with the exception perhaps of Hampstead. As to the building of a large place, he thought that any business man would face a difficulty at once. Instead of frittering away their money as they had been doing for the last thirteen years, they should have their expense once for all. His experience was that the cheapest way was to grasp the subject now; and meet their liabilities and demands. Was it possible that they were to be retrograde in their movements, and not maintain the position they had hitherto attained? Was there any reason for believing that their subscriptions would not advance, as he was glad to say the Boys' School subscriptions had advanced? The arguments he had heard had convinced him of the desirability of adopting the recommendations of the committee. He was well acquainted with subjects of this kind. He had been on a great number of committees, more perhaps than any one in that room, and he knew that questions referred to them were fully considered. Was it fair to the committee to waste a lot of time, now that they came forward with a report, to which there were but two dissentients? Let them at once put their shoulders to the wheel and act upon it. As to finances, there would be no difficulty; but as to the railway coming on to the site of the school, it was only a bugbear: there was not much probability of their coming.

Col. Burdett said that the brethren were all aware that the neighbourhood of Clapham Junction was beginning to be crowded with houses and other buildings; and although it was very healthy now, when it became more crowded a different state of circumstances might occur, and it might be found to be a very unhealthy position indeed. They would then find that having spent a large sum of money, it had been thrown away, and a much larger sum than was now proposed to be laid out would be required for another building. This question he thought required a great deal more consideration than it had yet had. It was one of vital importance to themselves and those who were under their care. If the building got hemmed in by all sorts of buildings—they could not tell what they might be—they might repent having laid out so much money, although the healthiness of the spot might now be very great. With regard to the House of Correction, and other large public buildings having been erected in the neighbourhood, it must be remembered that they were at a very great distance from the Girls' School, and not likely to be shut in by houses being erected.

Bro. Z. D. Berry said there was a large space of ground round about the Girls' School, on which no buildings could be erected, as it was secured for ever to the general public. (No, no.)

Bro. E. J. Barron remarked that there was one conclusive answer to the brother who last spoke (Col. Burdett), that they had Wandsworth Common within three four minutes' walk, which could not possibly be built upon. They also had Clapham Common, which could not be built upon on that side of them. Then again, there was the railway on the other side, which could not be built upon.

Bro. W. Roebuck thought it would assist the brethren in their deliberations if they were to be told what acreage of ground was already the property of the school.

The Chairman: Two acres-and-a-half.

Bro. W. Roebuck believed that it ought to be considered before they laid out £25,000 in placing more buildings on this space, of which an acre was already covered, whether it was likely they would be able to acquire more ground adjoining.

The Chairman: We are promised the refusal of some adjoining ground on the death of a lady who is now very old.

Bro. Roebuck: If we are only promised we have very little to depend upon. As regards the buildings springing up around us not on the railway side, no doubt every year we shall be built in more than we are now. I quite agree with Col. Burdett that before we agree to spend £25,000, which may be £30,000, the matter ought to be more considered than it has been up to the present moment.

Bro. Dudley Rolls believed that after laying out this money it would be found expedient at a future time to remove these schools. In connection with all the various termini in London as Clapham Junction was, no doubt in course of time the neighbourhood would become as densely populated as Whitechapel. The time was therefore, not far distant when they would have again to take into consideration the removal of the school to a more beneficial site. They had now two-and-a-half acres of land. It would increase in value in the course of years, and they would get a larger sum for it than now, in addition to the value of the building materials. They would then go to a purer district, where they would have all that they wanted. Such being the case it appeared to him evident that whatever sum of money was laid out now would be entirely useless and absolutely thrown away.

Bro. W. Winn reminded the Court that although the Chairman had stated they had had but two deaths in seven years, he had omitted to state that they had had various epidemics. In cases of illness it was necessary to have perfect quiet round the building; but with the railway locomotives screeching night and day this could not be obtained, and it was very detrimental to sick people. The time must come, he thought, when they must follow the example of other institutions, and remove out of the densely populated neighbourhood of London to seek the fine and healthy atmosphere of the country, where they would have larger grounds, a better institution, and more inmates than they could have in their present circumscribed space.

Bro. Dr. Ramsay had not intended to oppose the proposition of the Special Committee; but he thought he must oppose it now on the following grounds:—That to erect a building to cost upwards of £25,000, or even £20,000, on an area of two-and-a-half acres seemed to him most unwise and opposed to sound policy. The arguments adduced by Col. Burdett and others had great weight with him. Had the sum been moderate he would not have opposed it; but a large expenditure of this kind without a large equivalent was a waste of money. It was highly improbable that they would ever get it back—however long they might wait for it—or anything like that sum. Whether the spot was or was not unhealthy now, in a short time it would be hemmed in, and they must remove the children to a better position.

Bro. Joseph Smith would move an amendment with the view of bringing both parties together, and he thought the brethren ought to be very nearly unanimous in supporting it. He was not disposed to reject the report of the committee, because he thought they must have taken a great deal of trouble about it. His amendment was that after having heard the arguments pro and con the report should be referred back to the committee for further consideration. If that should be carried by anything like a majority the committee, when they had the report back, would consider any other scheme involving a smaller expenditure of money. That could then be brought before the Court, and if they could be unanimous it would be desirable. If the present report was carried, he was sure it would not be by a large majority. If it were carried by only a few votes it would not be satisfactory to the Craft. They must look to the Craft at large for support; and if it went forth that they were spending a large sum of money it might do harm. But if after consideration they should come to the conclusion to spend a large sum, no doubt as Masonry was increasing, and they should extend their building, it would meet with the concurrence of the whole Craft.

Bro. John Boyd seconded the amendment.

Bro. H. Browne said it was true that this was the report of the committee with only two dissentients; but there had been two other schemes before that committee which had not been laid before this meeting. One of the schemes was to enlarge the north wing of the present building by extending it some forty feet further westward, and sixty feet on the other side, which would give accommodation for some sixty additional children; then, to enlarge the dining hall. This scheme was estimated to cost about £8000. By enlarging the dining hall, which was an absolute necessity, they would have a large hall, which was very desirable. It would be sixty feet by forty, or 2400 feet of surface. With dormitories over, that would give accommodation, the surveyor said, for thirty-two children. But how he made out that there would be accommodation for ninety-four children, when the extra space was 2500 feet, when the enlarging of the dining hall by 2400 feet would only accommodate thirty-two children, he (Bro. Browne) could not understand.

The Chairman said he did not think it quite right for Bro. Browne to explain this scheme now, when the question was whether the report brought up should be referred back to the committee. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Browne thought it was quite competent for him to explain.

Bro. Symonds agreed that as a point of order they could hardly limit Bro. Browne. The other schemes formed an element in the question whether the report should be referred back for the consideration of the committee. Bro. Browne had no power to propose a new scheme, but he was entitled to state in his speech that there were other schemes which were practicable that would involve a less expenditure of money.

The Chairman said he had no objection himself to it; but he thought if Bro. Kenyon was precluded from bringing forward his scheme, no one else should be allowed to bring one forward.

Bro. Browne continued: The great desirability was that they should have a large hall in which to meet (they had none such now), and which might be utilised as a play room for the children in inclement weather. They had not such a room now. There were new schemes for this; and without going into the estimated cost of either of them including that of enlarging the dining hall and building new laundries, with other expenses, the expense of a covered way (£700) to go from one establishment to the other, it would not be more than £11,000 or £12,000. For these reasons he should support the amendment. All the accommodation required could be got without setting up separate establishments, the building of which was in fact beginning, if the proposed scheme was adopted.

The Chairman observed that if the report went back to the committee all schemes would be considered which might be presented.

Bro. Dubois believed he was justified in saying that all the schemes had been fully discussed which had been placed before the committee. There had been several meetings, and the scheme laid before the court that day was after due consideration finally adopted, sent up to the General Committee, and by them recommended to the Special Court. If the sense of the committee were taken as to whether the school should remain where it was or go elsewhere, he thought it would be in favour of the former.

Dr. Ramsay rose to speak to the amendment. It appeared to him that if they sent this matter back to the committee they must not dictate to them what they should do. There had been suggestions made as to what they should do. He thought they should consider the whole matter. The sum, no doubt, was enormously large; but the question was whether any sum should be spent in increasing the school where it at present was. He, for one, thought it would be very unwise to expend any sum of money on that object; but of course there were others who thought differently. He would suggest that, as the question was referred to the House Committee to reconsider, the House Committee should be associated with certain of the Life Governors. That perhaps would give more satisfaction to the general body, because they would then obtain the views of the general body. This meeting was not justified in discussing any scheme, because the House Committee had discussed the matter thoroughly, and were justly entitled to the brethren's best thanks. It would be wise to adopt the suggestion that had been made, and refer the matter back to the House Committee, to be associated with a certain number of Life Governors.

A Brother enquired of the chairman what was the extent of the land adjoining, which he had spoken of, belonging to an old lady, and of which the institution had been promised the refusal; also what was the price that might be expected to be asked for it.

The Chairman said he believed there were seven or eight acres. He could say nothing about the price.

The brother thought the price was pretty certain to be a very large one.

Another Brother said they had already been told by the Report of the Special Committee that £20,000 or £25,000 would be required to complete what was required to make the school adequate to the demands made upon it. Here was a proposition on the board, after they had been patching for some years, that they should still further patch the building at the cost of half the amount of money which the report recommended as requisite to make the school complete. What was required was that the building should be at once made to answer all demands that might be made on it for some time. He thought the report ought to be adopted.

Bro. Kenyon thought that if this matter were referred back to the committee and any number of Life Governors, the proposition should be to include the consideration of all the schemes that had been sent before the committee in the first instance. Those schemes would then be properly discussed.

The Chairman said that every one of the schemes had been thoroughly discussed, and Bro. Kenyon's amongst the others.

Bro. Symonds asked Bro. Joseph Smith whether his amendment embraced the reference of all schemes to the committee.

Bro. Joseph Smith: Yes.

Bro. Samuel Poynter: The whole subject is to be included in the re-reference—whether the school is to be retained on its present site, and enlarged, or whether it is to be removed to any other part of the country.

Bro. Thomas J. Sabine would like to suggest, as this matter was to be referred back to the House Committee, that when any future report they might make should come before the Quarterly or Special Court that report should be printed prior to the meeting of the Court, and sent out to all the Life Governors, Vice-Patrons, and other subscribers. Many of the brethren came there that day, never having seen the report, and those who came in late—of course that was their own fault—had not heard the report read. Consequently many of them were kept in the dark as to its purport. It would be a very fair and judicious thing, when such a serious outlay was in contemplation that all the brethren who were going to attend the meeting, should be posted up before they came to the meeting in the terms of the report they were called together to consider. The decision must be a most important one whichever way it went, and the brethren could not be too well informed of the facts, figures, and circumstances, which had been determined on by the committee (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Jesse Turner agreed with the last speaker. The more information they had the better for each and all of them. It was quite certain they would become better prepared for discussion if they had had an opportunity of reading the report at home.

The Chairman: It has been moved and seconded "That this Report be adopted by this Special Court;" upon which an amendment has been proposed, "That the whole subject be referred back to the committee." I put the amendment first.

The amendment was carried by an overwhelming majority, and Bro. Joseph Smith moved (Bro. William Stephens seconded) the addition of Life Governors to the Committee. This having been carried, Bros. Poynter, Kenyon, Dr. Ramsay, Joseph Smith, Dudley Rolls, John Boyd, W. Roebuck, William Ramsey, George Kenning, Fish, and W. Stephens were named for the office, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

TEMPLE BAR.—A deputation from the City Lands Committee on Tuesday waited upon Lord Henry Lennox, First Commissioner of Works, to call his attention to the state of Temple-bar as it affects the approaches to the new Law Courts. The City authorities were willing to remove Temple-bar, and contribute to the scheme by removing the houses on the north side. His lordship expressed the great interest he felt in the matter, but at the same time pointed out how very small a share the City authorities, under the proposed arrangement, would take on themselves. However, he promised to call the attention of the Government to the matter.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER IN INDIA.

The Prince having left Ceylon, reached Tuticorin on the 11th; Madura at 5.30 the same afternoon. He reached Madras from Trichonopoly at 7.30 on the 14th. The Times gives us the following interesting details:—"The Prince of Wales landed at Tuticorin at 8.40, where he had an enthusiastic reception. The landing-place and town were very prettily decorated, and a number of presents from the Chiefs were offered. The first train that ever has run on the South India Railway was started. Dr. Caldwell presented an address from the Tinnevely Christians, and 600 Natives sang a number of hymns. Madura was reached at 5.30, and 60,000 people were assembled to welcome the Prince. The sight was remarkable, and the greatest enthusiasm was displayed, all the people of the country having apparently come to cheer their illustrious visitor. But they were not very well able to recognize him, as he wore no distinctive uniform. At every station the Chiefs of the district had assembled. The streets of Madura were handsomely decorated, and a Guard of Honour of the 19th Madras Sepoys was at the railway station, and one of the 189th Regiment at headquarters. The Rajah of Roodocotah received and offered presents, and the Prince was greatly pleased with the scene. The fireworks and illuminations to-night are magnificent. The Chiefs and the people have spent £5000 in providing a suitable reception for the Prince. The State dinner at the Queen's House, given by the Governor, was very successful. As to the Club ball, at which the Prince, the Governor's guests, and the élite of the British, Foreign, and Cingalese residents were present, it may be fairly set down as one of the greatest of many pretty and expensive efforts made to entertain the Prince, and to have been triumphantly successful. The Prince wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars. He appeared to enjoy the evening very much, and did not leave till after the tenth dance. Next day was a field-day among the jewellers and box wallahs, and then the Prince drove to Leechman's factory, where coconut oil, fibre, coir, &c., are made on a large scale. The Cingalese seemed never to tire of waiting to see the Prince. Colombo was en fete, and business was suspended, shops being closed all along the route. On Sunday Divine Service was celebrated at 12.30. The Prince left Trichonopoly station at 4 in the afternoon. The axles of the carriage were so much heated that the train had to stop twice. It arrived at Madras one hour late, at 7.30. The Governor, his Staff, and the authorities awaited the Prince's, and there was a presentation of native Chiefs. The procession was accompanied by the 16th Lancers, the body guard and suite preceding the carriage of the Prince and Governor with Major-General Probyn. An escort of horse and a foot cortege of the authorities followed. The arrangements were admirable. Only the municipal police kept order in the poorest suburb. The streets were packed. Thousands had come into the town the night before. Every place was occupied. At dawn the troops lined the way to Government House. Christian children sang with a pretty effect. All along the route there were flags and streamers and striking native dresses. The Prince was known to the crowd by his gold umbrella. He was received everywhere with marks of intense interest and curious respect. There was no cheering or noise. The Prince reached Government House at 9, when presentations were made. Breakfast was at 12. The Maharajah of Travancore paid a visit to the Prince. The visit was private, but was conducted in great state. He speaks English. The Prince expressed his regret that he could not visit Travancore. The Maharajah seemed much pleased. The next visit was from the Rajah of Cochin. He spoke about the trade of Cochin, and also seemed greatly gratified. The Prince of Arcot and four Sardars followed. The Prince of Arcot said the dreams of his life were at last realised. The Prince gave attar to each, and proper salutes and honours were paid. At one levee there were upwards of 500 Chiefs and Europeans. The Prince stood in front of a splendid silver chair on a raised dais. The Duke of Buckingham and Sir Bartle Frere were on his right, and the Duke of Sutherland on his left. The native officers presented wore very magnificent costumes. At 8 there was a State Banquet with 50 covers: the Bench, the Clergy, and the Civil and Military authorities were represented. The Governor of Pondicherry, and his suite were also present. There was an illumination at 10.30. The Prince, the Governor, and his suite rode out to Guindy Park. To-morrow is the anniversary of the Prince Consort's death, and will be spent there in seclusion by the Prince.

THE REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

Most of our readers will have anticipated the result which the recently appointed Special Committee of the Boys' School has now brought about. Indeed, there could be but one answer to so foolish and perverse an insinuation. We are not now going into the general and loudly re-iterated charges of mismanagement, extravagance, incompetence, and impropriety, which brethren have thought well for some time past to disperse broadcast among the Craft. Some may wish that a Special Committee had been appointed to enquire generally into all the charges, and bring accused and accusers face to face. But the special point into which the Committee had to enquire which has now presented its Report, and which appeared in the last "Freemason," is whether or no the sum of £141 15s. was accounted for. The Special Committee finds that the sum is accounted for, and that the mistake is purely on the part of Bros. Tew and Perrott, and that there is not the least confusion in the accounts, nor the slightest pretence for saying so. Such, then, is the result of the investigation, entirely exonerative of Bro. Binckes, of the House Committee, and of the Auditors. We feel bound to add that we fully concur in Bro. Ridgway's remarks, that the pamphlets as circulated are practically "false and libellous," and that the "object" with which they have been so pertinaciously "circulated" can not be "recognised by brother Masons as in the slightest degree of an honourable or fraternal character." We have always contended, and still contend, that had Bros. Tew and Perrott any real or imaginary grievances there was but one proper course open to them, namely to go before the General Committee in the first instance, and move for the appointment of a Special Committee to enquire into all these allegations, which, under the circumstances, would assuredly have been at once granted, and we have reason to believe that no one would have hailed such an appointment more readily than Bro. Binckes himself. But, instead of this honourable, straightforward, manly, and Masonic course, what have Bros. Tew and Perrott done? The first attack on the Boys' School was made on the eve of the Boys' School Anniversary this year, when such insinuations and assertions and charges might naturally have affected the returns to the Charity itself. Happily, the good sense and loyal sympathies of the Craft prevailed over ungenerous imputations and unwarranted allegations. Then comes the second pamphlet, though we must not forget the interlude of a semi-pamphlet by Bro. Perrott, printed at Pontefract, which certainly was a pamphlet sui generis. Amid much of wild writing and illogical statement, the second pamphlet contained certain modest demands on the part of two members of our great Craft. First, that Bro. Binckes and the Matron should be removed; secondly, that the House Committee should be changed; and thirdly, that Bro. Perrott should be reinstated. Certainly, these were wonderful requisitions to be peremptorily submitted to a startled brotherhood and a competent executive; and we do not ourselves call to mind any proceedings during our Craft membership more unbecoming or un-Masonic from first to last. Indeed, we are inclined to treat the whole matter as a Masonic Comedy of Errors, were it not possible that a perpetuation of such a Parthian warfare might seriously affect the returns to the Boys' School, which is entirely dependent on the voluntary offerings of the Order. We should be ready to say "Risum teneatis Fratres," were it not that there is a very serious side to the matter, namely, in the personal feelings evoked and the unfraternal animus displayed. As it is, we think it best to leave the matter here; and we consider the discussion closed, and the controversy at an end. The Special Committee has clearly proved that the charges of want of clearness of accounts, &c., are unfounded, that all payments are vouched for; and we can only hope that such an exhibition of indiscreet partizanship as certain unfortunate pamphlets have exhibited, and which have rendered this recent committee necessary, may never occur again. Like our able and respected Bro. J. Symonds, we have never flattered Bro. Binckes; we have very often disagreed with him, and not unfrequently been opposed to his views; but we have ever done justice to his energy and earnestness, and to his great and most successful exertions on behalf of the Boys' School. We fully endorse in this spirit Bro. Symonds' concluding remarks; and we trust that Bro. Binckes may now be left alone to carry on the important duties of the Secretariat. Surely Bros. Tew and Perrott have said quite enough, and the Craft generally, not excluding the great majority of West Yorkshire brethren, is heartily sick of personal attacks and illogical statements.

MASONIC CALUMNY.

What a burlesque on every profession and axiom of Freemasonry, is the fact, that Masons are calumnious, and that Masonic calumny exists? Is it not? To realise that we, who profess to uphold a brother's character in his absence, as we would in his presence, that we, who declare brotherly love the foundation on which Freemasonry rests, should slander one another, is as ridiculous as it is regrettable. Whence comes this increasing weakness of Freemasonry? Whence springs this odious evidence of the littleness or bitterness of the human mind? We fear there is but one reply, "Nous sommes tous mortels," and until we "shuffle off this mortal coil," amid every turn of the road, and through every catastrophe of humanity we still shall remain the same vacillating or perverse beings, as our fathers have been before us, and as our children will be after us. There seems to be inherent in us all, a distrust, a jealousy of our brethren, of our neighbours, in the world, whether as comrades or companions, whether as fellow citizens or fellow labourers here, whether in business or in pleasure, in toil or trouble, in joy or sorrow, in life or death. But why this tendency to calumny, and to impute bad motives, to make false charges? All we can say, so it is, and such seems positively to be the normal condition of the human race! But then, remarks our enthusiastic Bro. Puddleton—"we are Freemasons, we are above such littlenesses and weaknesses, and evil tendencies; we are to shine as lights of the world," we are to be fraternal, while others are uncharitable, and considerate when others are cold. Far from us, the unfeeling or cynical question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" "We know nothing of the impassible emotions of heartless indifference. No! Freemasonry teaches us all kindlier sympathies, a gentler and a better lore." Now my dear and enthusiastic brother, yours is an amiable but harmless delusion. Freemasons may talk a great deal in the high moral tone, or in the low falutin style, but their deeds are those of the great crowd of careless and bustling mortals, just like those whom they often term "profanes." "Is, then, there nothing in Freemasonry?" asks Bro. Puddleton, hastily. Amiable confrère, we do not say so, but rather we do assert that "exceptio probat regulum." Freemasonry is unchanging alike in its mission of good and its aspirations of benevolence, though Freemasons sometimes overlook the former and neglect the latter. We are now writing didactically, and we are asserting general principles, without any reference to persons or special manifestations. The truth is, that as ever, we find here in this, as in everything else of earth, another proof of the old old story, that dogma is one thing and deeds are another thing, that profession goes one way and practice very often the other. We should not therefore be surprised or disheartened; we should not wonder or complain, when such a state of things is before us. We should only seek to appreciate more than ever the true, the beautiful, the loving, the good, and allow such better seeds to germinate in our bosoms, and to elevate our longings and aims. But we can set ourselves sternly against the calumniator and the calumny. Whether in public affairs or private, whether, in the body corporate or the individual, we should at once repel the insidious shafts of slander, and openly rebuke the slanderer, be he who he may. As a general rule calumny is the evidence of a little mind, of a reckless disposition, of a gnarled heart, of a morbid brain. Calumniators generally are very small men, who seek to rise to notice, on the ruin of a friend's, or neighbour's, or brother's reputation. Let us, as Freemasons, then, denounce calumny, and give a cold shoulder to calumniators. They are the curse of all earthly society. They will undermine any organization into which they get access. Freemasonry loves truth and honesty, and fair-speaking, and brotherly kindness; it indignantly denounces that callous disposition which feels nothing for the annoyance of another, that unscrupulous pen which assails fair fame or honest worth, that "prava imaginatio" which sees the mote in its brother's eyes, but forgets the beam in its own, and above all that uncharitable and overstrained spirit of calumny which not only without hesitation affirms what is false to be true and what is true to be false, but calmly robs another, perhaps a trusting friend, of that good name which is most precious in his eyes, of that reputation which is dearer to him than life itself.

MASONIC LIBRARIES.

The subject to which Bros. "S. B. E." and "Reviresco" have recently called our attention is one of great importance. For certain it is, from one cause or another, that our good English Craft, has lent itself, and adapted itself so to say, more to the social than the intellectual side of Freemasonry. We do not overlook the fact, that many of our Order belong to the hard-working classes of society, and that the lodge gathering is alike a social relaxation and a social necessity for many, who have all the day been toiling and toiling hard, in counting-house, and office, and study, and chambers. To them the Masonic meeting after needful labour of another kind, becomes an agreeable social reunion, a pleasant and hospitable symposium. But it is undeniable, that our lodges, however flourishing they may be materially, have not kept pace with the intellectual demands of the era, or even with the requirements of a growing body of Masonic students. The existence of Masonic libraries is an exception; the possession of a Masonic library belongs comparatively to but very few lodges indeed. Our Grand Lodge has no befitting library, and we are sometimes inclined to think, that until Grand Lodge itself moves in the matter, and wakes up, so to say, from its literary slumber, we cannot expect any very general activity in the brotherhood, in respect of a subject which is not considered needful by some, and is treated apathetically by more. Still there are among us some few lodges which discern the utility and value of a library, just as there are some few brethren who have all along advocated the creation and conservation of lodge libraries. In the "Freemason" some short time back we called attention to the subject, though with no response; and from time to time, during the last 20 years some of our intelligent students have forcibly advocated the institution of Masonic libraries. We, therefore, hail the repetition of the movement by younger brethren, such as "S. B. E." and "Reviresco," and we trust that better success will attend on their praiseworthy efforts and suggestion, that has been the lot of us "old fogies." We say it, in all sincerity, no greater boon can be conferred on any lodge, if only our brethren will think so, than the erection of a lodge reading-room and library, specially set apart for Masonic literature. It is a little odd, though it is a fitting commentary on the prevailing Masonic sentiment on the subject, that when our Masonic architects lay down the lines of a new Masonic hall, they never think of a library or reading-room. Why? In our humble opinion every lodge which has a proper Masonic Hall ought to have a Masonic reading-room and library attached to it; and we will go further and say that we also venture to think that every lodge ought to have, as one of its officers, a librarian and keeper of the archives. One of the results of this want of interest in the intellectual character of our Order in England has been that as a rule our lodge archives have been utterly neglected. At this moment very few lodges preserve any minutes earlier than the beginning of this century, some even not so early, or if they exist they are stowed away in inaccessible boxes, or are scattered among the private libraries of descendants of Past Masters and early Secretaries. This should not be so. Our Bro. W. J. Hughan will confirm our statement when we add that nothing has so increased the difficulties of arriving at a true history of English Freemasonry as the absence of authentic Anglican lodge records. They probably still exist, but we cannot get at them. Next week we shall call attention to the purely literary question, on which we have a good deal to say. To-day we confine ourselves to a hearty welcome of the movement "per se," hoping that our younger Masons and brethren will come to the rescue, and see their way to the zealous and hearty support, both of a good cause and of a very needful reform. We invite our readers to consider the facts which we shall seek to put before them next week from a literary point of view alone, in respect both of the utility and value of Masonic libraries.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The result of the Special General Court, on the 11th inst., has been, that the report of the Committee is referred to it for reconsideration, and we therefore defer any remarks until we have the amended and revised report before us. We trust that in the assertion of individual opinions, or the development of personal views, the great and real interests at stake may not be forgotten.

THE COMPARATIVE COST OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We defer to next week necessarily, owing to the heavy demands on our space, some more remarks on this very important question. The discussion, as will be seen, is continued this week.

Original Correspondence.

ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observe notices in your issue of the 11th inst., at pages 565-6, that you propose to publish "an official reply by the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital to certain memorials," which reply, you state, "throws considerable light upon the compilation and authorship of the new statutes of the Order." I presume your two paragraphs refer to the same pamphlet, a copy of which I have received, and in a foot-note to which I observe personal allusion made to myself. I hope I may therefore be excused for addressing you on the subject. Permit me to point out that the pamphlet is not "official," but, on the contrary, is an anonymous publication, with which the Vice-Chancellor's department ought not to be identified. No official reply to memorials could be given without the sanction of Convent-General or Great Priory, and surely the very strong and uncomplimentary terms to which the good brethren of Dorset are treated must at once relieve Convent-General and Great Priory from the imputation that the pamphlet in question is an "official" reply.

You will notice that the pamphlet contrasts a memorial of the province of Worcester, of 1863, with a memorial of the province of Dorset, of 1874, an interval of eleven years; and it must be at once plain that there is a motive in this proceeding which the language of the pamphlet does not disclose, and when I consider the fact that the courtesy of a preliminary communication was not accorded to the Prior of Worcestershire, or to myself, the Sub-Prior, and that any mention of the 1874 memorial of this province, with which the contrast, if any, ought to be made, is avoided, I may be excused some doubts whether the motive for publishing this pamphlet is, as it ought to be, a true and unselfish regard for the interests of the Order at large.

You have, very naturally, concluded that the pamphlet throws light upon the compilation and authorship of the new statutes. I, myself, assumed that the compiler must have been inspired by the Worcestershire memorial, and had forgotten to acknowledge the circumstance; but this is distinctly denied by Vice Chancellor Tinkler (with whom I have had a correspondence, which I am quite ready to submit to the consideration of the Order), and I have his statement in writing that the Worcestershire memorial of 1863 had no influence whatever in the framing of the new statutes; that he discovered the memorial only in the early part of the present year, and that its existence had been previously unknown in the chancellerie. I cannot now speak to the precise origin of the memorial, and had, myself, forgotten its existence, although I appear to have appended notes to it; but I have made myself sufficiently acquainted with the facts to learn that the memorial was presented when a committee was deliberating upon new statutes, with a view to rectify the extraordinary changes which had been made in the system prevailing before 1853. The province of Worcester desired to aid in this, as I venture to say, it has invariably done when the good of the Order could be promoted, and in its desire for uniformity, its memorial of 1863, which is an echo of the Scottish Statutes, was presented. This memorial desired the real union of the two Orders "as one," and as prevailing before 1853, but in no way affected the question of past rank, and in these respects the Worcestershire memorial of 1874 is identical; the only material difference between the two being the question of the title "Masonic." Many changes must occur amongst the members of a province in eleven years, and, moreover, there are many reasons connected with the administration of the Order which have induced their present views on this point; but that they hold no obstinate or unreasonable opinion on any question which may conduce to the good of the Order I can venture to give my personal assurance. This is the first communication, relative to the Temple Order, which I have addressed to a public print, or in which I have been directly or indirectly concerned, for the past two years, and I wish now to say no one word which may give offence to any brother interested in the subject. I desire the true interests of the Temple Order, and I here aver that I am, and have been, and willing to give my humble influence and aid to such arrangements as may, if possible, heal those differences which seem unhappily to have existed, provided the arrangements secure the just, honourable, and kindly treatment of all who may be willing to give their meed of help to the Order, whether their views may, or may not, accord with the opinions of their superiors in office.

For my own strivings to do the best in my power as a Commissioner under the uniformity treaties I have no self reproach.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully yours,

RICHARD WOOLF,
Sub. Prior of Worcestershire,
Honorary Deputy Grand Commander, Canada.

[This pamphlet, it appears, being non-official, though we understood the contrary, will appear in our Christmas number, merely as an ordinary communication.]

LODGE TRUTH, BOMBAY. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,

As I see that a Punjab P.M. has called public attention in the issue of the "Masonic Record of Western India" for November (which came to hand by last mail), to the fact that the Second and Third Degrees were lately conferred at one meeting on the same individual in Lodge Truth, Bombay, under dispensation of the Deputy D.G.M., will you allow me to say in your widely-circulating columns that I was obliged by severe illness to leave Bombay in March last, and that I was, therefore, in no way personally responsible for this obvious breach of the Constitutions of our Order. I think this disclaimer is in justice due to myself, and I hope the editor of the "Masonic Record of Western India," with whom doubtless you exchange, will re-publish it in his well-known journal.

Yours fraternally,

TUDOR TREVOR,
W.M. Lodge Truth, Bombay, No. 944, E.C.

PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In signing myself as a Past Master at the foot of the note I addressed to you on the 22nd of November, I had no thought or intention of provoking the criticism of any one, especially that of Bro. Jim Sheard, whose zeal, I fear, is running riot on his reason.

Presuming that Bro. Sheard bases his opinion on the first rule in the Book of Constitutions, I would advise that he engage some one to read it for him whose mind is less prejudiced and better capable of understanding its meaning.

Had I attempted as a non-subscribing Past Master to lay claim to a right of membership of the Grand or Provincial Grand Lodge there would have been some apparent consistency in Bro. Sheard's remarks. Apparent consistency, I say, for even then I should have objected to the dictum of Bro. Sheard, on the ground that those who appeal to the law ought to submit to be governed by the law, and Bro. Jim Sheard and his confederates in the Trafalgar Lodge have for a considerable period persisted in violating the constitutions of the fraternity and the bye-laws of the Provincial Grand Lodge; their conduct has already formed the subject of an enquiry before the late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Bentley Shaw, and a board of Provincial Officers, at which enquiry the award was given against them; and the fact that Bro. Sheard and his confederates have for more than twelve months persistently refused to comply with the conditions of that award will not, I venture to think, advance them in the good opinion of loyal Masons.

For fear any of your readers should think that this is mere verbiage I quote the following letter, addressed to the present W.M. of the Trafalgar Lodge:—

"52, New Street, Huddersfield, 13th April, 1875.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—

"I am directed by the Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Bentley Shaw, J.P., D.L., to ask if you have received any application, under Provincial Bye-law No. 48, from the W.M. or Secretary of the Scarborough Lodge, No. 1214, Batley, with respect to Bro. P.M. Henry Ingham, and if you have received any application I am further directed to instruct you to answer the same immediately.

"The W.D.P.G.M. also instructs me to inform you that at a board of enquiry, duly convened and held on the 15th of August last, it was proved and decided that Bro. Henry Ingham was not indebted to the Trafalgar Lodge for contributions or otherwise.

"Your immediate compliance with this letter is directed.

"Yours fraternally,

(Signed)

"J. BOTTOMLEY,
Prov. G. Reg.

"The W.M., Trafalgar Lodge, 971, Batley."

On the 20th of April, six days after the receipt of the above letter, the form of enquiry required and provided under the above-named bye-law was returned, the answers being filled in, the document signed and delivered by "Bro. Jim Sheard, at 2.45 p.m. on the very day that my candidature for affiliation to the Scarborough Lodge was to be brought forward.

The first question on the above-named form, and the one which gave rise to the before-mentioned enquiry, is as follows:—

Have all contributions, subscriptions, and fees due been paid? No, is the answer they give in the face of the above letter. Is there a greater insult that can be offered to a gentleman by any man than to give him the lie? And when we see this from those who call themselves Masons, who profess to be peaceable, loyal, observant, and obedient members of our time-honoured society—see this, and consider to whom it is rendered, we are constrained to hide our heads in shame for those who have no shame for themselves. One would have imagined, after listening to the beautiful admonitory remarks which fell from the lips of Bro. Bentley Shaw at the conclusion of the before-mentioned enquiry, that the veriest ingrate in creation would not have been capable of such wanton outrage.

Great clemency has been shown to the Trafalgar in this matter, but I am yet to be convinced that the Province of West Yorkshire will suffer the action of its officers to be thus insolently disregarded with impunity, and unless they repent of the evil, and obtain grace, they may speedily find themselves in a less enviable position than that of a non-subscribing Pas Master.

I remain, yours fraternally,

HENRY INGHAM,
P.M., P.Z. 258, H. 1214.

Batley, 6th Dec., 1875.

THE LODGE OF TRUTH 1458. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to the letter appearing in your columns of to-day, signed "The Writer of the so-called Report," such letter referring to the report of the meeting of the above lodge on November 6th, (a curtailed account of which appeared in your issue of the 20th ult.), I beg to say that I think the letter signed "Henry Smith, W.M. 1458," appearing in your paper of to-day, fully confirms that the remarks I made in my letter of last week, signed a "Junior Member," were not uncalled for. The ruler of the lodge (at the time of the report) in his correspondence in yours of to-day endorses my opinion.

1st. That a very important fact with reference to the election of W.M. was omitted from the said report and was calculated to mislead; not showing "the reason why" the J.W. was elected W.M., instead of the S.W. I therefore contend that the report has justly merited the definition "so called."

2nd. That the junior members of the lodge were taxed with a serious charge, unmerited by them, viz., that they did not study the interests of the lodge, but simply their own preference.

3rd. That the result of the election could be a surprise to many was impossible, the J.W. having 17 and the S.W. three votes out of 22 members present.

4th. That the strong remarks in reference to the junior members also reflected upon the W.M. elect, and which reflection I termed "disparaging" in my letter, signed "A Junior Member."

I am pleased to see that "The Writer of the so-called Report" did not intentionally wish to wound the feelings of any member; but I think if the writer will review his report, he will agree with me, that the tone of it could not possibly do otherwise. I regret that I cannot comply with the request of your correspondent to communicate with him privately on this subject; a grave charge has been laid upon the junior members of the lodge, and sent forth to the Masonic and outside world, through a newspaper. Your correspondent declines to enter into a newspaper correspondence upon the matter; considering he was the promoter of such, I think a second thought will convince him that the same medium employed to send forth the charge, should also be used to prove or withdraw the same.

I am, dear Sir, and Brother, fraternally yours,

JOHN EDWARD ILIFF.

Manchester, December 4th, 1875.

ELECTION OF PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTERS. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The Grand Lodge yearly elects its Master, and so do all private lodges, and why is that privilege kept from the members of the P.G. Lodge? This is a question I have, through your kindness, heretofore asked through your paper, and have never received a satisfactory answer. I sincerely wish that some member of Grand Lodge would endeavour to pass a law that we should have the privilege, and he would very much oblige the members of the P.G. Lodge in general as well as,

Yours fraternally, AN OLD P.M., ONE, &c.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am much indebted to you for having brought my letter before the notice of the subscribers of the Boys' School. The strictures you have made on several points I feel bound to answer. With the report of the Committee of 1868 I have nothing to do, but will just mention that in that year the London Orphan cost £3 12s. 3d.; last year's report states £2 8s. Commercial Travellers in 1868, you say, cost £7 7s. 5d.; last year they were £4 4s. for office expenses per head. You charge me with being guilty of hasty and fallacious assumptions; I merely called attention to the facts that are issued by the committees of the various schools mentioned. You further say that I know full well that provincial schools are carried on 35 per cent. less than London schools. I maintain that meat is cheaper in Leadenhall, flour in Mark Lane, groceries in Mincing Lane, than in any provincial town in the kingdom, and clothing can be had cheaper of several firms in London, than of country makers. As to the quality of education, I have before me a letter from the Secretary of the London Orphan School, and I quote his words, "The education given to our children will bear comparison with that imparted to any middle-class or commercial school in the world. I am greatly obliged for your enquiries." I did not state the cost of our boys was twenty pounds too much, but that our expenditure was twenty pounds above that of others, and I considered £36 per boy ample for all charges. You state there were 177 boys in the School last year, the Committee's report at page 12 gives the average number at 156. In your concluding remarks you desire the brethren not to be led away by questionable statements and untenable propositions. My conclusions have been arrived at from the reports of the various schools, and are offered to the Committee in the best possible spirit.

I beg to remain, yours fraternally,

CHARLES PEGLER.

YORK MASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I do not care to waste time in supporting any high grade system as now constituted. I have given our worthy Bro. Hughan the sources, whence he can ascertain for himself that the Degree of Templar Priest was an old York degree; but my time is of too much importance to seek out chapter and verse.

I have examined a great quantity of old rituals, and have taken the Degree of Templar Priest myself, and know the truth of what I am now stating.

The Templar Priest was the second ceremony in No. 1 Encampment at Edinburgh, at its commencement, about 1798. It was an old Irish Templar Degree; further, it is found in the system of both Bath and Bristol, and I have perhaps four or five different and varying rituals of it. It seems to have been suppressed in Ireland for some political reason—at least it is said so.

The "Masonic Student" once gave the draft of a warrant of the degree found at York, dated 1780. The York Masonry, at the close of last century, consisted of seven degrees. He received a certificate with the formula: "Wisdom hath builded her House. She hath hewn out her Seven Pillars." These seven refer to the signs of these seven degrees, and this was old York, Irish, and Scottish Templary.

Having proof somewhere of so much, I quite willingly admit that it was but a modern system at York. Bro. Francis Drake clearly proves that in 1725 only the three Degrees of E.A., F.C., and M.M. were known and practised at York. The Grand Lodge became dormant for above twenty years about 1740, and when revived after 1760 the Masons composing it adopted three more degrees, for which they required the ceremony of P.M.

There are now quite sufficient documents to prove that pre-1717 Masonry was an operative and speculative system, embracing all the knowledge of our present three first degrees operatively, and something more, but that Royal Arch, Templar, and Templar Priest, or any secret belonging to them, were equally unknown. Mark, Red Cross, Ark Mariners, and Cryptic Masonry are simply too contemptible for enumeration, because they all pretend to be what they are not. If they please any one, let them practice them, however.

Truly and fraternally yours,

JOHN YARKER.

LODGE JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the controversy which has been raging on this question one important point has been overlooked in the statements made as to the rights of members of particular lodges to wear jewels. This point is, that at the "Union" in 1813 all lodges then existing were confirmed in the privileges they enjoyed respectively under the "Grand Lodge of England," and the "Grand Lodge of All England." My lodge, for instance, was a York Lodge, and holds the charter from the Grand Lodge of all England, and it was known or distinguished by a jewel, which every member has a right to wear. To deny this right would be equal to denying the legality of the charter under which the lodge is held, for the one has the same right of existence as the other. The value of the jewel was shown some six years ago, when a poor old woman came to the lodge bringing one. She had traced the lodge by the jewel, and it bore the date 1812. Her husband left the lodge in 1814. He died in 1830, leaving his widow well provided for; but 39 years had robbed her of friends and means, and she had to fall back upon her husband's Masonic brethren, to whom she appealed with her husband's jewel and "discharge," as a good brother who had paid his dues. The jewel, in this instance, gave the lodge a means of assisting the long widowed sister, and was therefore useful as well as ornamental.

Yours fraternally,

W.M.

MASONIC JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have before me a copy of the "Constitutions of the Antient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, published by the authority of the United Grand Lodge, by John Hervey as Grand Secretary," and dated MDCCLXXXIII., which devotes the whole of page 137 to "Centenary Jewels." The appendix, which professes to give "drawings of the various jewels," exhibits in plate 14 a "Centenary Jewel. I am had at descriptions, but a twisted cord, a serpent with its tail in its mouth, and the letter C. are plainly visible.—Yours fraternally,

JAMES A. HAYES.

CONSECRATION OF THE LEOPOLD LODGE.

The south-east of London—that part which lies upon the shores of the Thames between London Bridge and Rotherhithe, known by the name of Bermondsey—was enriched on the 7th inst. by the consecration of a new lodge, named after our Royal Brother Leopold, numbered on the registry of the Grand Lodge as No. 1571. The home, at least for the present, of the new lodge is the Woolpack Tavern, in Bermondsey-street, a name that bespeaks the general work in the neighbourhood; and to meet the wants of the merchant-workers there, the charter of the Leopold was granted. Bro. James Terry, the able, courteous, and energetic Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, P.G. Director of Ceremonies of Herts, and a learned Past Master, having filled the office of Master to several lodges, was, by special command, the consecrating officer, and he fulfilled the duty without the usual assistance of a clerical brother, he being his own Chaplain. Bro. Terry, on taking the chair, appointed as his pro tem. S.W. Bro. H. G. Buss, the Provincial Grand Treasurer of Middlesex, and Bro. John Coutts, P.G.P., as Junior Warden. The lodge thus formed—and very handsome it looked with the furniture and appointments by Bro. Kenning—the consecrating officer arranged the new lodge brethren in order, and after Bro. Sherwin, who presided at the harmonium, had played a solemn march, the usual address on the nature of the meeting was delivered with that point and exquisite elocution for which Bro. Terry has made himself famous. The address was given by the Secretary, and the petition and warrant having been read, the brethren signified their approval of the officers named in the warrant—Bros. Charles William Kent, P.M. 879, as W.M. designate; Henry Hudson, as S.W.; H. Bartlett, P.M. 147, as Treasurer; and others. The presiding officer, amid the breathless attention of the large company, delivered the oration in a charming manner, and then was sung the hymn which ends—

"God of the widow, hear,
Our work of mercy bless;
God of the fatherless, be near,
And grant us great success."

The prayers and invocation were given by Bro. Terry throughout, and the Scriptures having been read in those parts having touching references to the ceremony, the lodge board were uncovered, and the elements of consecration were displayed in the usual manner, and then the psalm followed—

"O Lord, how joyful 'tis to see
The brethren joined in love to Thee;
On Thee alone their heart relies,
Their only strength Thy grace supplies."

Bro. Terry, acting as Chaplain, then performed the duties which follow, and giving, with clerical effect, the second portion of the prayer. The hymn, "Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah," having been chanted, Bro. Terry, as presiding officer, dedicated and constituted the lodge.

The ceremony of installing Bro. Kent as W.M. was then performed by Bro. Terry, who was untiring in his work, which he rendered with perfect "Emulation" ritual. The appointment of officers followed, and the first minutes recorded were a vote of thanks to Bro. Terry for his services, and his election, unanimously, as an honorary member of the lodge he had consecrated. The brethren then adjourned to an excellent dinner, and the only fault was that it was rather delayed, so much, indeed, that the after dinner toasts had to be briefly given. They were mostly shorn of replies, for the necessity of catching trains had taken many of the brethren away, and among others the "brief chronicler of the time."

CONSECRATION OF THE AVALON CHAPTER, NO. 446, AT WELLS.

The ceremony of the consecration of the Avalon Chapter, attached to the Benevolent Lodge, No. 446, was held in the Town Hall, Wells, Somerset, on Tuesday, the 30th ult. (St. Andrew's Day), by M.E. Comp. S. G. Homfray, Standard Bearer of Grand Chapter, P.Z., G.A.D.C. England, and D.P.G.M. of Monmouthshire, assisted by M.E. Comp. H. J. Gratte, P.Z., as H.; and M.E. Comp. H. Hellyer, as J. Amongst others the following companions were present:—E. Turner Payne, Past Gd. Std. Br.; F. R. Prideaux; W. Marchant, A. Baily, T. E. Jelley, F. W. Wood, F. H. Woodforde, J. B. Colthurst, W. B. Stocker, J. Wedgwood Yeckes, W. Westcott, J. Phillis, J. C. Hunt, J. Chandler, J. W. Parfett, F. Fisher, J. Cornwall, J. E. Wilson, D. Williams, &c., &c.

Chapter was opened by the acting Principals at 2.15, and the Acting Scribe E., read the petition, and the Charter of Constitution from Grand Chapter, after which the consecrating M.E.Z. proceeded to consecrate the following companions into a regular chapter, viz:—M.E. Comp. R. C. Else, as L.; A. T. Perkins, as H.; and E. Bath, as J.; S. H. Clerke, S. G. Homfray, C. L. F. Edwards, Wm. Long, J. A. Bright, John Hurd, F. C. George, and W. J. Welsh.

The Acting Principal J., M. E. Comp. Hy. Hellyer, delivered a most interesting and excellent oration on the nature and principles of the Order, and the chapter was duly dedicated and consecrated.

The Acting M.E.Z. then proceeded to install in due form, Comp. R. C. Else, as M.E.Z.; Comp. Alfred T. Perkins, as H.; and Comp. Edward Bath, as J. for the ensuing twelve months, and on the readmission of all companions below those ranks he delivered the charge in a most impressive manner.

The companions then proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year, when the following were elected and invested with their collars by the M.E.Z., viz:—Comp. C. L. F. Edwards, E.; Wm. Long, N.; J. A. Bright, P. Soj. The election of Treasurer and Janitor, as well as the appointment of the other officers, was deferred until the first regular meeting, when there would be a larger number of companions belonging to the chapter.

The M.E.Z. then said that the first duty of the newly consecrated chapter, and which duty devolved upon him as the first Z., was to propose a vote of thanks to the M.E. Comp. S. G. Homfray, who had kindly come from a distance to perform the ceremonies of the day, and who had performed them in so able and impressive a manner. Comp. Perkins, H., seconded the vote, and added that it would be a great pleasure to the chapter, and a lasting memento of M.E. Comp. Homfray's services to the companions on this day, if he would accept the office of I.P.Z. M.E. Comp. Homfray having signified his willingness to accept this office, the vote of thanks and election of office were carried by acclamation.

M.E. Comp. S. G. Homfray, I.P.Z., then rose, and said that the next minute that ought to appear on the books of this chapter was a vote of thanks to Comp. A. T. Perkins, H., as it was through his untiring energy that this chapter has been brought into existence; that it was he who prepared the petition, got the signatures attached to it, and sent it to the Supreme Grand Chapter; and that he has since been at the sole trouble and expense of fitting up the chapter, the excellence of the furniture and the completeness of the fittings of which, must have been the admiration of all who were there that day, as also the completeness of the arrangements which had made the proceedings of this day such a success. He therefore proposed a cordial vote of thanks to the Comp. H., and also that the chapter should shew their appreciation of his services, and make him a slight recompense for the trouble and anxiety he had gone through, by presenting him with a handsome R.A. jewel.

M.E. Comp. R.C. Else, Z., seconded the proposition, which was carried by acclamation.

There were five candidates proposed for exaltation, and four companions as joining members.

The business being concluded, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet, which was provided by Bro. F. C. Wickenden, of Lodge 446, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

Comp. Kenning furnished the chapter.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We have been requested to insert the following:—

URGENT APPEAL.
51, Threadneedle-street, City, E.C.,
November, 1875.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I trust the cause will plead for the liberty in addressing you on the following subject:—The "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons" have at the present time great calls on their funds, and the increasing number of applicants makes it necessary for every Mason to plead on behalf of so excellent an institution. Knowing with what a liberal hand all our Masonic institutions are supported by the Craft, I now appeal to the ladies, viz., mothers, wives, daughters, and friends of Masons, in order that where a guinea cannot be obtained our ladies may appeal among their many friends for shillings as well as larger sums. You will see by the sheet enclosed, the lady to whom you hand my contribution sheet will have whatever is collected placed in her name on the list of subscribers, or life donors, as the sum will allow. Kindly assist me in forwarding the object I have in view by handing the list enclosed to a lady. As a Steward at the festival in February, I hope to present a list of donations, &c., which will be called "The Ladies' List," feeling assured that this appeal, if placed before them, will prove a great success.

This appeal is made to the ladies, viz., mothers, wives, daughters, and friends of Masons, on behalf of the aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons. The smallest contributions will be thankfully received, if only from one shilling upwards. A few hundred pounds raised in this way will be the means of softening the sorrows of those who, in their declining years, cannot assist themselves; but with your aid they may (after having borne the heat and burden of the day) settle down in the evening of life, exempt from further toil. Let me, in their behalf, touch your hearts.

BRO. FRANCIS FELLOWS,
Steward, No. 592.

MASONIC FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL, DUBLIN.

A general meeting of the Board of Governors of the Masonic Female Orphan School was held at the School House, Burlington-road, on Tuesday, the 7th of December, R.W. Robert Shekleton, D.G.M., Vice-Patron, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read, were confirmed and signed.

The following report from the scrutineers of the ballot was then read:—We, the undersigned scrutineers of the ballot for the election of four pupils into the Masonic Female Orphan School, have to report that, with the aid of the Assistant Secretary, we have examined the several voting papers sent in. The total number of papers received up to the time of the scrutiny was 1130. Of these 18 were not properly signed, and 51 were from Governors whose subscriptions were unpaid. The recording of the rejected votes would not have made any alteration in the relative position of the candidates.

Florence Hendley, daughter of James Hendley, of Lodge 242, Boyle, Lieutenant and Quartermaster of the Mayo Militia, and previously of the 80th regiment; Laura Bradburne, daughter of Samuel Tudor Bradburne, of Lodges 20 and 125, Dublin, accountant; Ida Florence Anketell, of Lodge 131, Mullingar, station master on the HOLLOWAY'S PILLS: Winter specifics.—All can estimate the disadvantages to the human system from breathing foul air, such as must necessarily be inhaled during our winters. The safest correctives and best purifiers of the blood are Holloway's Balsamic Pills, which are too well known and too highly esteemed to require commendation here. Besides cleansing the system, they improve the appetite, render digestion perfect, admirably regulate the liver, increase the secretion of the kidneys, they mildly yet effectually act upon the bowels without griping or causing any inconvenience. So long as human nature remains what it is, every person will now and again require regulation of organs disordered by irregular or too generous living, and too liberal potations.—ADVT.

Midland Railway; and Lilla Jane Cullinan, daughter of Cormac Michael Cullinan, Lodge 60, Ennis, assistant surgeon in the army, were then declared duly elected as pupils of the school.

From the report of the Finance Committee it appeared that the receipts during November amounted to £268, making the total amount now to the credit of the institution £10,735. A cheque was drawn for the month's expenses, £203 2s. 5d.

A ballot having taken place for the honorary officers and committees of the school for 1876, the following were declared duly elected:—

THE RED CROSS.

The "Bulletin International des Sociétés de Secours aux Blessés" calls attention to the appearance since the Franco-German War of 1870-71 of some spurious "Orders," one at Geneva under the name of "The Order of the Red Cross," whose members are described as "Templiers," "Joannites," and "Trinitaires," and which has an agency in London; and one in London which started up about the same time, bearing a striking resemblance to the other, and calling itself "The Order of the Temple and of St. John of Jerusalem," whose members also profess to be "Trinitaires." Both these societies appear to have traded upon the reputation of the Red Cross, in adopting as their badge a red cross, with straight ends, upon a white ground, so nearly a copy of the well-known insignia of all the national Red Cross societies that the "Bulletin" has thought proper, in order to distinguish the actual from the would-be Red Cross men, to publish the names of those Englishmen who, in souvenir of services rendered in the cause of humanity during the Franco-German War, have received the decoration of the French National Red Cross Society. The list is as follows, viz.:—

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Lieut.-Col. Henry Brackenbury, Major C. J. Burgess, Lord Bury, K.C.M.G.; Dr. Sidney Chater, Mr. Henry Crookshank, Dr. Philip Frank, Lieut.-Col. Keith Fraser, Mr. John Furley, Captain Douglas-Galton, C.B.; Mr. Ernest Hart, Dr. Henry Kane, Mr. V. Barrington Kennett, Mr. H. Barrington Kennett, Sir Edward Lechmere, Bart.; Lieut.-Col. Hon. C. H. Lindsay, Lieut.-Col. Loyd-Lindsay, V.C.; Mr. J. Lyman, the Duke of Manchester, Mr. W. MacCormac, Surgeon-Major Manley, V.C.; Surgeon-Major McNulty, Sir James Paget, Bart.; Surgeon-Major Porter, Lieut. Rennick, Mr. N. M. de Rothschild, M.P.; Mr. John Scott, General Sir John St. George, K.C.B.; the Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G.; Mr. Stewart Sutherland, Mr. Jenerly Shee, Sir Harry Verney, Bart.; the Duke of Westminster, Mr. Robert Walker, Major de Winton, Surgeon-Major Wyatt, Mr. Edward Walford, Mr. Richard Woof, and Mr. John Smith Young.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF TRANQUILLITY (No. 185) met on Monday evening at the City Terminus Hotel. The W.M., Bro. John North Ross, presided, assisted by his officers, Bros. J. D. Daniell, S.W.; S. Posener, J.W.; G. S. Pare, S.D.; H. D. Bayley, J.D.; F. Croker, I.G.; G. Betty, Organist; George Pearce, Treas.; Philip Levy, Sec.; John Constable, P.M.; Nathan Moss, P.M.; S. Moss, M. Harris, E. Harfeld, Bloomfield, P.M.; Fred. Saul Solomon, Parkinson, P.M.; E. Gotthel, P.M.; and a large number of the members of the lodge. There were also present, as is usual in this famous lodge, several visitors, among whom were Bros. James Cox, S.D. 765; W. Lean, P.M. 1087; John Smith, 1257; H. Roberts, 22; H. Massey, P.M. 619 ("Freemason"); and Jacob J. Cohen, S.W. 1340, Smyrna. There was a heavy evening's work before the lodge. Three out of four candidates for raising were in time to take the degree, but the fourth arrived a minute or two too late for the opening of the ceremony, and he was deferred, unfortunately, till next meeting. Bros. Saillard, Bush, and Cohen were the brethren who took the degree, which was admirably and impressively worked by the W.M. and his assistants. The lodge was then lowered to the First Degree, and ballots were taken for Messrs. M. J. E. Schultze, C. K. L. Gablonz, and Moss Davis, who, the ballot being unanimously in their favour, were duly initiated, with the same correctness and impressiveness as the W.M. and his officers exhibited in the Third Degree. The lodge working was accompanied by some beautiful music by the Organist, Bro. Betty, which produced a fine effect. Bro. A. I. Myers, 65, was elected a joining member of the lodge. Previous to the ballot for this brother, his proposer, Bro. Daniel Marks, according to the custom, had to vouch for him, whereupon two brethren could not allow such an opportunity to pass without testifying to this brother's great worth, his intellectual capacity, and his ability to confer honour upon the lodge. As a literary brother, it was thought he would be a great acquisition to the lodge, and several other brethren regretted that they had not had the duty cast upon them of seconding the election of Bro. Myers. The Committee of the Benevolent Fund was then re-elected, the brethren being Bros. Saul Solomon, A. E. Sydney, Maurice Hart, M. Harris, S. E. Moss, and E. Harfeld. Bro. John Constable, P.M., gave notice of motion that ten guineas be voted by the lodge for a P.M.'s jewel to be presented to the W.M. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was well supplied by Bro. Lord, the manager of the hotel. On the removal of the cloth the toasts were proposed, and honoured with the fervour which this lodge never fails to exhibit. The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," said that as our Royal Master gave "Loyalty and Charity" as the watchwords of the Order, it would not require any words of his to recommend this toast to the notice of the brethren. (Cheers.) In giving the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master," the W.M. said that the universal topic of conversation for some time past had been the recent visit of the Grand Master to India, and there was not a brother who did not wish him God speed on his journey. Before him he knew there was not a brother who would not respond to this toast. (Cheers.) When the toast had been drunk most cordially, the W.M. next gave "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, &c.," and said it had been asserted that he who delegated his power to other hands ill deserved the crown he wore. Such, however, would not apply in the present instance, for the M.W.G.M. had left behind him such a representative that no one allied to the Craft could have the least doubt of his capabilities. He was speaking of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Pro Grand Master, and with the assistance of the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, the Craft must be steered with safety by the Pro Grand Master. "The Initiates" was the next toast, and the W.M., in proposing it, said that the accession of gentlemen to the Order from time to time had made the position of the brethren as Masons one of pre-eminence, and he was very pleased to think that the Lodge of Tranquillity had men of such high intelligence, great moral character, and good social standing, seeking its aid to become members of the Order. If it were not for initiates, Freemasonry would fall into desuetude; but with the addition of such gentlemen as they had that night, the credit of the Craft would be added to, and the stability of the lodge assured. (Cheers.) Bros. Lederer, Moss Davis, and Schultze responded. Bro. John Constable proposed "The W.M.," and appealed to the brethren to confirm him in his opinion that the ceremonies had been admirably worked, notwithstanding the hoarseness which a severe bronchial affection had produced. (Hear, hear.) The W.M., in reply, said he thanked the brethren for their cordial reception of the toast. He had but one object in view, to do the best he possibly could for the lodge, and to make the brethren happy. As long as he was in the Master's chair he would endeavour to do as he had done. (Cheers.) "The Visitors" was the next toast, to which Bro. W. Lean, P.M. 1087, was the first respondent, and he said he thought Bro. Constable's remarks in apologising for the W.M. were not wanted, because the way in which the ceremonies had been rendered that evening were certainly in the good old style; at any rate, they revived the good old feelings which the hearing of those ceremonies always revived in his own breast. As the brethren present were not all M.M.'s he would allude to the initiation ceremony, in which there was a reference made to the grandest of all the Masonic virtues, charity. We were fast approaching that period of the year when we all rejoice to meet together, both abroad and in the family home; and he thought they could not do better than remember those less favoured brethren who had been once in a position not less fortunate than that of the brethren present. When the business brethren were making up their balance sheets he would recommend them to set apart a small amount for the benefit of the three Masonic Institutions, the grandest in the country. In this way they would be showing true charity. Bro. Roberts, 22, in his reply for the same toast, referred to the recent initiation of Captain Webb in that lodge (Neptune), and the great enthusiasm with which he was received on the occasion of his entering into Freemasonry. The W.M. afterwards gave "The Health of the P.M.'s," who had at all times been of great service to the lodge, and who would never be found wanting in the performance of the duties of the officers should any be absent. He was looking forward to the time when he himself should go into "retirement," and be numbered with that glorious band. Bro. Bloomfield replying, said the P.M.'s of the Lodge of Tranquillity were always very ready and very willing, at the same time that they were able, to do anything they could for the lodge. They were ready and willing to assist the Master in his duties whenever required. Fortunately, in any of the offices very little was ever required of them, and they had merely to sit in the lodge and witness the ceremonies. They were all zealous men, and even if they were called upon in the middle of the night to give assistance he was sure they would do so. (Laughter.) He could assure the brethren that nothing could happen in the lodge which would make a call on them that the P.M.'s would not be found at hand with assistance. "The Benevolent Fund of the Lodge of Tranquillity" was then given by the W.M., and the object of the fund was briefly stated. Bro. Saul Solomon, Treasurer of the fund, in his reply, gave a fuller exposition of the purposes for which the fund was established, preceding his remarks by recurring to the observations of Bro. Lean, as to the opportunity afforded at this season of the year for remembering those less fortunate than ourselves. He advised a "charity column" in books, as well as a "money column." The fund had been originated by one brother now abroad and another now dead; and he (Bro. Saul Solomon) had been, he was happy to say, connected with it from its inception. The fund had done a vast amount of good to poor brethren who had in their season of prosperity, when they belonged to the lodge, joined them at the hospitable board. The assistance given had always been liberal, so much so as to give the recipients a fresh start in life, and a great feature was, though the amount was duly accounted for, in no case was the name of the brother made known by the board before whom he came. At present the fund amounted to £600 or £700. It was all very well to say to brethren in distress that there was the Lodge of Benevolence, the Boys' School, the Girls' School, and the Benevolent Institution; but he contended that the brethren were first entitled to be relieved by their own lodge. Members of the lodge only were allowed to subscribe to this fund, because it was only members of the lodge who could be relieved by it. His call had ever been liberally responded to, and for the information of the brethren he might say the moneys subscribed by them were never misapplied. He might give one instance. A brother lately was relieved with £100 to enable him to go abroad. After his arrival they gave him £25 more; and at the Cape, whither he had gone, he was already doing well. Lost it could not be, because it was given for a charitable purpose. In one case the money had been refunded; and it was a pleasure to the subscribers sitting round that table to reflect that by means of small subscriptions at different times they had been able to raise brethren from indigence to a state of prosperity. He hoped that evening would be the precursor of many others of equal liberality, and that they would conduce to the placing of many brethren in a state of peace and prosperity. Bro. Saul Solomon concluded by saying that the great advantage of the money being distributed anonymously was that a brother relieved was able to meet the other members of the lodge without any fear of his just and honest personal pride being affected. He trusted that the brethren would assist in making the fund £1,000, and he had much pleasure in stating that the initiates of the day had each contributed a guinea towards that amount. The W.M. gave "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary" next, both of which officers returned thanks. The Treasurer said both he and his brother Secretary were pleased to perform their offices, and as long as they had health and strength they would continue to do so. The W.M. concluded by proposing "The Health of the Officers," which he gave with the utmost pride and satisfaction. He boasted that there was not one, from the S.W. to the I.G., who was not perfectly able to perform his duties. As this was the last occasion before Christmas when the brethren would have an opportunity of hearing his voice, he would wish them a merry and very happy Christmas. The S.W. responded, and said he was sure that the efficiency which the W.M. had so often noticed in the officers, if it was deserving of his commendation, was only derived from those who had gone before them in their different positions. The Tyler's toast concluded a most agreeable evening.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 128).—The "election night" of this old lodge was held on the 14th inst. in the banquet hall of the Old St. John of Jerusalem Gate, Clerkenwell, the W.M., Bro. J. While ("Freemason"), presiding. There was a very full attendance of brethren and visitors, and the officers were at their posts with the punctuality for which the lodge is celebrated. Bro. Griggs was S.W.; J. Hill, J.W.; Snare, S.D.; Halford, J.D.; Percy, I.G.; J. Crump, Sec., and father of the lodge; J. Hillhouse, I.P.M.; J. Terry, P.M.; Coulston, P.M.; E. Davies, P.M.; Hart, S.D. 1201, acting as Organist, and there were also present as visitors Bros. Charles Horsley, W.M. Acacia, P. Grand Registrar of Middlesex; G. Killick, P.M. of Merchant Navy Lodge; C. Hill, S.W. of the Highgate Lodge; G. Clarke, of the Phoenix; W. Senior, of the Alexandra Palace Lodge; J. B. Edwards, of No. 861; A. Henson, of the Asaph; Herbert T. Parsons, of the Minerva, Hull; J. W. Adams, the Southwark; and Thomas Danson, of Port Madoc. Bros. Brieholt, Baker, Adams, Gedge, and Bellot, who had been initiated at previous meetings, having, with Bro. Senior, the well-known journalist, of the Alexandra Palace Lodge, answered the usual questions, were entrusted, and the lodge then opened in the Second Degree. Three of these brethren were then passed, and the other three followed, the ceremony from beginning to end being gone through twice. The ballot—an unanimous one in the result—having been taken for Mr. W. G. Hanchet, a sculptor, the Rev. W. Dawson, M.A., Rector of St. John's, Clerkenwell, and Mr. T. H. Coles, the candidates were introduced in due form, and the ceremony repeated up to a certain part in their case. The interesting work was done according to Emulation ritual. The ballot was then taken for Bro. W. Malthouse, of the Wellington, No. 518, as a joining member, and this was also unanimous. The ballot for W.M. was then taken, and resulted in practically an unanimous election of the S.W., Bro. Griggs, who was warmly greeted according to Masonic form when he rose to thank the brethren for the honour conferred upon him, and to assure them that he should not be wanting in his work. The ballot was then taken for Treas., and Bro. Winsland, P.M., who, unfortunately, was absent through illness, was again unanimously elected, and Bro. Steed was elected as Tyler, in the place of the retiring Tyler, Bro. Beckett. On the motion of Bro. James Terry, P.M., P.G.D.C. of Herts, who spoke of the excellent work of the retiring W.M. during the year, and the great success which had attended the lodge during his period of Mastership, the lodge unanimously voted Bro. While the P.M. jewel, to be ready on the installation night. The lodge being closed, the brethren banqueted together, the large hall being completely full. After the usual toasts the W.M. gave the toast of "The W.M. elect," and took occasion to warmly thank the W.M. elect and the officers generally for the assistance they had given him during the year, both in punctual attendance and in ability, when present, to carry out the work in a thorough manner. He reminded the members generally that by that election all the appointments to office, except that of Treasurer, became vested in the Master, who, following the traditions of the lodge, would, no doubt, select as his officers those who had done good suit and service in bygone times, and both the principal and assistant officers had done this. If members who were not in office desired at some time to be adorned with the collar, their only means, he warned them, of obtaining the position would be by attending at the opening of the lodge, and by accepting any opportunity which offered, through the absence of any officer, prove to the future Masters where they would have to look for members with the requisite knowledge to do credit to a post. If any Master placed a brother in the lowest position, even, who was not competent to work the higher positions, that Master was not only doing an injustice to the lodge, in storing up for it a future difficulty, but he was placing the brother in a position which in time to come would be one to him of mortification, for the lodge would use its judgment, and would pronounce distinctly against the Mastership of a brother unless the members were convinced of his competency to discharge the duties, and of the soundness of his judgment. The W.M. hoped then that those brethren who desired office would by attendance at instruction, and at the opening of the lodge, prove their willingness and ability, that future Masters should have no difficulty in selecting brethren who to the ambition for office added the necessary qualifications. The W.M. elect was one who had so worked, and had so proved himself. He had been a constant attendant, a good worker, and before he held any office had worked the chair in Lodge of Instruction. Before his adornment with the collar in the junior ranks of office he had been ready and able to fill any position vacant in bygone years by the absence of a brother, and the lodge had only given Bro. Griggs his due by electing him to the proud position he that night occupied. Bro. Griggs, the W.M. elect, in responding, warmly thanked the brethren for their reception of him, and gave them the assurance that he fully appreciated the honour they had bestowed upon him. The W.M. was toasted, and the toast was acknowledged, and in proposing the toast of "The Past Masters of the Lodge," the W.M. said the lodge was fortunate in having among those on the left of the chair such brethren as the quarter-of-a-century Secretary, Bro. Crump, their respected Treasurer, Bro. Winsland, their energetic Bro. James Terry, and no less active and earnest brethren, Coulston, Davies, and Hillhouse. The toast was acknowledged by the latter, and then the toast of "The Visitors" was given by the W.M., and Bro. Charles Horsley, in reply, thanked the W.M. for the opportunity he had that night of seeing the United Strength Lodge thus ably worked, and having declared the words the W.M. had addressed to the brethren who desired to be officers to be words of wisdom, the speaker, in a happy vein of poetic lore, proceeded to connect the W.M.'s name with the refrain of various well-known songs, much to the amusement of the company. Dr. Hunter, one of the joining members elected at the last meeting, responded to the toast of his health, and Bros. Hill, the J.W.; Halford, J.D.; and Patmore (Steward), responded for the officers. The W.M.'s toast brought the proceedings to a close.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—This lodge held its second regular meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Thursday, the 9th inst. Present: Bros. W. Snowden, W.M.; W. S. Cackett, S.W.; T. Sleep, J.W.; J. Dann, P.M. and Sec.; W. Mitchell, S.D.; A. Runacres, J.D.; J. Kemp, I.G.; W. Chalk, W.S.; F. Geider, Tyler. Also Bros. C. E. Power, T. Taylor, E. Pearman, E. Sims, J. E. Pentreath, W. Rowlands, G. Harris, J. H. Swan, J. Emms. Visitors: Bros. C. B. Wright, Asaph, 1319; S. J. Harvey, Royal Jubilee, 72; C. E. Towell, Victoria 1056; J. M. Walters, Westbourne, 733; T. T. Dryson, Royal Union, 382. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. vacated the chair, and Bro. P.M. Dann officiated. Bros. Power, Taylor, Pearman, Sims, and Pentreath were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. W. Rowlands, of the Royal Jubilee Lodge, 72, was enrolled as a member of the lodge. Messrs. G. Harris, J. H. Swan, and J. Emms were initiated into Freemasonry. The Secretary read a copy of a communication from Grand Lodge, dated 7th December, 1875, respecting the Master's light in the Third Degree. Bro. Sleep, J.W., moved that the question of raising the initiation fee from five to seven guineas be taken into consideration, as more conducive to the interests of the lodge. Bro. Mitchell, S.D., seconded the motion. Bro. Chalk, W.S., moved as an amendment, that the motion be deferred. Bro. Dann, P.M. and Sec., seconded the amendment, which was put to the lodge and lost. The original motion was then put and carried by a large majority. Bro. Rowlands proposed, as a joining member, Bro. John Morgan Walters, of the Westbourne Lodge, No. 733. Two gentlemen were proposed and seconded as candidates for initiation. The lodge was adjourned till the second Thursday in January next. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment, at which the usual toasts were duly honoured.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The annual meeting of this old lodge was held on Thursday, the 9th inst., when there were present: Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; J. J. Burton, P. Prov. G.D.C. Cambridge, S.W., W.M. elect; Rev. E. J. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; W. Spalding, P.M., Sec.; W. Eoby, P. Prov. S.G.W.; W. Clarke, P.G.A.D.C.; Emra Holmes, P. Prov. G.R. and P.G.D.C.; Viscount Mahon, M.P., Junior Lord of the Treasury; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; P. de Lande Long, P.M., Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes, &c., &c. Visitors: Bros. N. Tracy, P. Prov. S.G.W., W.M. Perfect Friendship Lodge; W. T. Westgate, W.M. St. Luke's Lodge; G. Cresswell, P.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge; J. Wilson, an officer of the Carabineers, &c., &c. The lodge having been opened in due and ancient form, and the minutes confirmed, Commander John Parsons, R.N., of H.M.S. Porcupine, and a young officer of the Carabineers, Wm. Longhurst, were introduced and initiated into Masonry, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. At the conclusion of the ceremony the President of the Board of General Purposes was announced, and on the entrance of our excellent and esteemed brother, J. B. Monckton, the brethren rose to order, and, under the direction of the M.C., saluted him with the honours suitable to his rank in Grand Lodge. Bro. George giving the gavel to V.W. Bro. Monckton, he assumed the chair, and proceeded to install Bro. Burton as W.M. for the ensuing year. The whole of this long ceremony, with the charges to the Master, Wardens, and brethren, were admirably and faultlessly given, and performed according to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement working, and we cannot speak in too high praise of the manner in which the W.M. was inducted into the chair of K.S. We can only hope the brethren will always endeavour to secure the services of so bright a Mason, and so valued a member of the lodge, as Bro. Monckton. One or two brethren having been proposed for joining and initiation, and the customary business disposed of, the officers were appointed and invested as follows, the Installing Master addressing a few words to each:—Bro. A. D. George, I.P.M.; Rev. T. B. Tweed, P.G.C., S.W.; H. Miller, P.G.P., J.W.; H. Casley, S.D.; G. Elliston, J.D.; Ridley King, F.R.I.B.A., I.G. Bros. W. Spalding, Sec.; Emra Holmes, M.C.; and Geo. Spalding, Tyler, were re-appointed. The lodge having been closed, the brethren numbering about 30, retired to the dining hall, where an excellent banquet was served, but where the waiting, as usual, was bad. In responding to the toast of "The D.P.G.M.," Bro. the Rev. E. J. Lockwood spoke with great pleasure on the increasing interest shown in Masonry by the clergy of the Church of England, an interest which could not but be productive of good, and the more so because it was a complete answer to such brethren as the brother at Lowestoft, who gave up his office in Prov. Grand Lodge at the last meeting, assigning as a reason that he found that Masonry was incompatible with his Christian obligations. Their W.M. would ere their next meeting be ordained; their S.W., his (the speaker's) relative, was a clergyman, at their last meeting they had initiated another clergyman, and he thought so much interest could not be felt in Masonry by the clergy had there been anything inimical to the interests of true religion in the principles of the Craft. Bro. Monckton responded to the toast of "The Officers of the Grand Lodge of England," and admitted that he was proud of being a member of that distinguished body. The Very Worshipful Brother made a characteristic, eloquent, and withal modest speech in acknowledging the toast, and was heartily applauded as he took his seat. Bro. Tracy responded on behalf of the visitors, and reminded the brethren of the Perfect Ashlar Lodge of Instruction, which met weekly under the banner of the British Union, and of which he was Preceptor, where the brethren might have an opportunity of qualifying themselves for the posts which they filled. Bro. Westgate also responded, as did Bro. Wilson, who hoped on the next occasion to be a member of the lodge, and not a visitor. The newly-initiated brethren responded in the manner common to new initiates, and the Secretary's and Tyler's toasts having been duly honoured, the brethren separated. Neither the National Anthem nor any other song was given, and the lack of music probably took somewhat from the enjoyment of an otherwise pleasant evening. Bro. Burton, W.M., presided at the banquet, and performed the arduous duties of chairman in a manner befitting the occasion. As the brethren dined in collars and jewels, and the tables were handsomely decorated with flowers and coloured glass, the effect was very good, though the banquet as a whole was not to be compared to the summer festival, the Feast of Roses. A hundred years ago the installation of W.M. always took place on St. John's Day, so that the festival of St. John was always duly kept. This excellent practice seems to have fallen into desuetude, and we confess we should like to see a return to the old paths, and the festival restored. Bro. Emra Holmes' notes on the old minute books of the British Union Lodge are now in course of publication in the pages of our contemporary, the "Masonic Magazine," the first portion appearing this month.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 9th inst. Present: Bros. J. O. Carter, W.M.; Deane, S.W.; Canvin, J.W.; Pullin, P.M., Treas.; Strange, P.M., Sec.; Crowhurst, S.D.; Hume, J.D.; Roberts, I.G.; Schiemann, D.C.; Pears, S.; Dixon, I.P.M., P.G.D.C.; Stacey, P.M.; Wilson, P.M.; Cross, P.M.; Reid, P.M.; McIlwham, P.M.; Hawker, Stollery, Pennicott, Woods, Cousins, Spindler, Legg, &c. Visitors: Bros. Tolley, P.M. 771; Johnson, 771; T. Bryett, 834; Knighton, 834; Whittaker, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. raised Bro. Cousins to the degree of M.M. The brethren unanimously elected Bro. Dennis, S.W., to the office of W.M. for the ensuing year, and voted a Past Master's jewel to the W.M. Bro. Wilson, P.M., was elected Treasurer, in the place of Bro. Pullin, P.M., who retires, and in consideration of the services rendered to the lodge (extending over many years) by Bro. Pullin, the brethren voted a sum of money to purchase a testimonial to him; the form of such recognition was left to the ultimate decision of that worthy brother. The two brethren elected to audit the accounts were Bros. Hume and Pears. Bro. Case was again appointed Tyler. Two candidates for initiation having been proposed, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302).—On Monday, the 13th December, at the Masonic Hall, Godwin-street, the brethren of this lodge celebrated the festival of St. John the Evangelist, and the installation of Bro. Hanson Farrar as W.M. of this lodge took place. The brethren assembled at six o'clock in large numbers, including the following:—Bros. Thos. Hill, P.M., P.P.G.W., Chairman of Charity Committee; J. J. Schaeppi, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; C. H. Taylor, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; J. D. Sugden, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; W. W. Barton, P.M.; Geo. Richardson, P.M.; C. Pratt, P.M., P.P.G. Sup. of W.; J. Ambler, P.M.; W. Bottomley, P.M.; and the undermentioned visitors, namely, Fred. W. Nicholson 1034, Prov. G.O.; T. Senior, W.M. 974, P. Prov. G. Reg.; W. Morgan, W.M. 1018; H. Lambert, 129; Chas. Bartlett, 903; G. Alsing, 113; Sam. Pecke, 254; Sam. B. Walmsley, P.M. 974; Jos. Dobson, 289; Chas. F. Unna, P.M. 600; Geo. Althorpe, P.M. 1018; R. Richardson, P.M. 974. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by Bro. B. Broughton, I.P.M. The W.M. Elect was conducted to the pedestal by Bro. T. Hill, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., and afterwards was duly proclaimed. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Chas. Gott, S.W.; T. G. Andrews, J.W.; Rev. T. H. Flynn, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; M. S. Rhodes, Treas.; T. C. Hope, Sec.; J. Harland, Assist. Sec.; J. Pickles, S.D.; T. F. Pettinger, J.D.; F. C. Atkinson, Org.; J. D. Sugden, D.C.; T. G. Boyce, Assist. D.C.; Thos. Hill, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W. Charity Steward; T. C. Pearson, Almshouse; Rob. Breuer, I.G.; J. J. Holmes, Tyler. The ordinary business of the lodge was brought to a close by the W.M. at 8.30. We should not omit to allude to the very handsome and valuable presentation to the lodge by Bro. Manoh Sharpley Rhodes, Treasurer, of an excellent coloured portrait of His Royal Highness Bro. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England, in full Masonic clothing, in a beautiful gilt frame, which was accepted by the brethren with acclamation, and directed to be hung in the lodge-room. From the skill displayed by Bro. Hanson Farrar, W.M., in performing the duties devolving upon him during the evening, it seems as though the mantle of his late sire, who was one of the ablest P.M.'s of the Lodge of Hope, had fallen on his shoulders; and we augur that he will successfully exert himself to tread in the footsteps of his accomplished ancestor, whose abilities and example are so eminently worthy of remembrance and imitation. Lodge business over, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment room, and sat down to a recherché banquet, in keeping with the high reputation of Bro. R. Breuer as a caterer. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to; amongst the latter we may allude to "The Immortal Memory of St. John the Evangelist," proposed by Bro. the Rev. T. H. Flynn, the Chaplain, in an able address replete with good words and instruction. "The Clergy," was put down to be proposed by Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M., P.P.G.W., but owing to his unavoidable absence, that duty was undertaken by Bro. Geo. Richardson, P.M., and was responded to by Bros. Rev. T. H. Flynn, P.P.G.C., and H. Lambert. "The Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. T. G. Andrews, J.W., who, addressing the W.M., Officers, and brethren, said that the toast he had to propose was dear to the hearts of Freemasons. He did not feel equal to the task assigned him, but the sincerity and heartiness of his remarks must be his apology for any shortcomings. He felt it a pleasure, as it was his duty, to bring under their notice the claims of those noble institutions—our Masonic Charities, and in doing so he naturally had in mind three of the virtues inculcated by our Order—Faith, Hope, and Charity; they are great elements for doing good, and we, as a brotherhood, are banded together to do good. Our Masonic charities are the outcome of all that is good, as you know they are for the education and maintenance of our orphan children, and for providing annuities for our aged and unfortunate brethren. Those of you who have not already done so, I ask to visit some of the annual festivals of these admirable institutions, and then I know what a thrill must come over your hearts when you there see what good some of the brethren have aided in doing. Some of you may say I should be very glad to give my mite, but do not feel at liberty to be a Steward. Well, I may inform you that there is the way to do this, and that is by several brethren joining to endow one of the chairs, and most of our chairs have been so endowed. But I would have every chair endowed, and, further, I would increase that of those that are already endowed, because in that way you increase your voting powers. Our W.M. (Bro. Hanson Farrar), has nobly contributed to these charities, and let each of us strive to do his best. I may mention to you that the contributions to our charities in the year 1875, amount to the sum of £26,604, of which sum our Province of West Yorkshire, contributed £1845. On a similar occasion to this last year there was contributed in this room the sum of £100, and I hope that will be increased this year. Brethren, it would ill become me were I to close these remarks without reference to the services of Bro. T. Hill, P.M., Prov. G.S.W., our Charity Steward. He is also Chairman of the Charity Committee, and it is a great honour to this lodge. We all heard what fell from him in lodge, that he felt that he ought to give way to some other brother, after filling the position for so many years, but we all hope he will not think of that, we all know how he has worked for the good of the charities, and that we owe him a debt of gratitude we can never repay. In conclusion, I have faith that the brethren of this lodge will assist the charities as they have hitherto done, and I hope that I am not mistaken in my faith. Bro. Thomas Hill, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., Chairman of the Charity Committee, in responding to the toast, said that the first thing that was brought under the notice of every brother on his initiation was, that we, as an Order, have poor and distressed brethren amongst us; and whilst we hope that we ourselves may never be brought low, yet we have seen in our lodge, as in others, that some of our dear brethren who have moved in good society, have had to succumb to misfortune and death, and in some of these cases their children have been liberally educated, clothed, and maintained, until they attained the age of 16 years, in our Royal Masonic Schools. The knowledge of this ought to incite us to do all we can in support of our charities, and I hope the appeal, so ably made by Bro. Andrews, will be as liberally responded to as it was last year, when £100 was subscribed round this table; and I believe our respected Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. Henry Smith then had a few slips printed with our subscriptions inserted, and this proved the starting point to £2000 being raised in the province. I hope the brethren present will respond as they feel able; already I have received a few names. We profess to be charitable, and it is but right that our professions should be brought into practice. Bro. Andrews made reference to my office as Chairman of the Charity Committee, and I must say that, although I have held high office in the Craft, there is none I so highly esteem, and I think it is a position that any brother may feel proud to hold, yet I think it should not always be in the same hands. Brethren, I again thank you most heartily for the honour you have done me in coupling my name with the toast. Bro. Hill afterwards announced that he had that evening received seventy guineas for the Charities. The W.M. then said that whilst we thought of our Masonic charities, towards which he had felt it his duty to subscribe ever since he was a Mason, we must not overlook our local Charities, and he understood that the Masonic Ward in the Bradford Infirmary, some years ago furnished by us, was in need of more blankets, and he hoped the brethren would give some small donations for that. The result of this announcement was that the sum of £9 2s. 6d. was collected. Bro. B. Broughton, P.M., in proposing "The Retiring Master," said,—And a very retiring Master he is, brethren. I remember, at the commencement of the year of his office, he expressed his diffidence in taking the chair, but he accepted it at your hands. I also remember how, as

(No. 145).—The regular convocation of the Chapter of Prudent Brethren was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Tuesday, 14th inst. The chapter was opened by Comps. N. Walford, C. A. Long, and T. Bull, the three Principals, with the assistance of Comps. States and Pratt. After the opening of the chapter, and the admission of the companions below the chair, the ballots were taken for Bros. N. B. Headon, W. Miller, W. Braine, F. R. Williams, and Masters, which having proved unanimous, ballots were taken for the Principals, and Comps. Long, Bull, and E. Moody were duly elected. These companions were afterwards installed by Comp. Boyd in the Z., H., and J. chairs respectively, and the following officers were invested:—Comp. States, P.Z.; Scribe, E.; Comp. Joseph Last, Treas.; Comp. Parkins, S.N.; Comp. Thicllay, P.S.; Comp. Cox, 1st A.S.; Comp. Venn, 2nd A.S.; and Comp. Grant, Janitor; Bros. Headon, Williams, Braine, Masters, and Miller were then introduced, and exalted as R.A.M. Letters of resignation were read by Comp. States from Comps. Horwood and Avrillon, and the resignations were accepted with regret. On the motion of Comp. Warrington, seconded by Comp. Walford, a list of members of the chapter was ordered to be printed and circulated. The companions then closed the chapter, and adjourned to banquet. The following companions were present during the evening:—J. E. Walford, C. A. Long, Thos. Bull, Edw.d. Moody, J. Parkins, E. H. Thicllay, John Cox, J. Last, John Boyd, Herbert Dicketts, Wm. Platt, R. Storrington, J. G. Manby, R. Douglas, D. M. Belfrage, J. H. Leggate, John Chinnery, Geo. Biggs, James Rance, D. Haslett, Fred. Godfrey, Geo. Purkess, E. W. Braine, W. P. Masters, M. B. Williams, W. H. Miller, Visitors:—J. Barnes Amor, 91; Edw.d. White, 1305; C. A. Cottebrune, P.Z. 177; John Read, P.Z. 720, S.E. 319; J. Bond, P.Z. 657; H. Massey, ("Freemason,") P.Z. 619; H. M. Levy, P.Z. 188; John Seex, J. 186. When the toasts were proposed the M.E.Z.'s speeches were very interesting, and had in them a freshness of expression which rendered them highly agreeable. In giving "The Queen and R.A. Masonry," he said, "When a man lives in a country that is well governed, that is, at peace with the whole world; when he forms part of a community where liberty is respected, and where his property is not touched by other hands; when he is in a society where the arts and sciences are cultivated in quiet, and to some great extent, he is apt to forget the means by which this security has been attained; and I do not think as Englishmen, although we are excessively loyal—and as Masons we are extra loyal—we fully appreciate the steps that have been taken to produce this security. We must be fully aware that among the principal reasons why we are in this secure and comfortable state is that we have been blessed for a great many years with Sovereigns who have reigned over us—with an iron hand, possibly—but that iron hand has been covered with velvet. In the present era we have no reason to think differently. Our present Queen, Her Most Gracious Majesty, has ruled over us in a manner so highly creditable to the line from which she has descended, and she has also made matters so very comfortable to Englishmen in all parts of the globe, that I am sure you can have no hesitation in feeling gratified that she is our Sovereign. Therefore, I would ask you to look upon her as our patroness, as she has given several pledges that she means well towards us. We have our full liberty of meeting, and our full liberty of discussion, which is a great thing. The next toast was "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.E.G.Z." I dare say, said the M.E.Z., in giving it, the thought has occurred to a great many of us, and not infrequently, what a jolly thing it must be to be born a prince. You have, under these circumstances, everything that you can wish for in this world—possibly health—but certainly riches, and the goodwill and good feeling of all your fellow creatures. But there is a reverse to the medal; and a prince in this country and in this century has no easy time of it. Where we look upon it as civilians as a great pleasure, he must look upon it as a great bore in many instances; and at the present time our M.E.Z. is doing very heavy duty indeed in a hot climate. Any one who follows his progress must be fully aware that no Indian servant, no member of the Army, or of the Civil Service ever has or would be liable to work so hard as our Prince and G.Z. is working at the present moment. We all of us feel when he is engaged in anything that the matter is sure to come right; we feel that he is a capable man in every way, and that is why, as Masons, we feel so comfortable to have him at the head of our Order. We feel that whatever he is called upon to do he will do at a proper time, in a proper manner, and in princely style. This toast having been duly honoured, the M.E.Z. said, "There are three companions who sometimes one hears coupled in chapters with the former toast; but I think that considering the work that they have to do, they are deserving, as far as they can be, of a separate recognition, that is the Pro Grand Z., the Grand H., and the Grand J. They are hard-working Masons in every sense of the word, and it strikes me that during the time our M.E.Z. is in the chair they will have a tolerably hard time to keep pace with the Grand Z. We must always remember that as they together form the Grand Arch; the bigger the Keystone the more pressure he puts on the neighbouring stones; so that as we have a very big Keystone in the Prince of Wales, it will require the others to be strong in proportion to support him. (Hear.) Comp. J. E. Walford, I.P.Z., proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z." He felt himself, he said, quite unequal to the task of doing this properly; but as the duty fell to him as the P.Z. he did it with great pleasure. The companions who had been in chapter were witnesses of the perfect way in which he could perform his work, and it must have afforded them all the greatest satisfaction; but especially was it gratifying to the P.Z.'s to see that their successors were treading in their footsteps, and that they were quite equal to their task whenever it was imposed upon them. He was sure that the M.E.Z. and his immediate supporters would do honour to this famous chapter, and worthily tread in the steps of their predecessors. They were deserving of all the praise that could be given them, and it was a pleasure to see officers coming up so well in rotation for the chair. (Cheers.) The toast was most heartily received, and the M.E.Z. said, in acknowledging it, "Companions, I hardly know what to say in returning you my thanks for the very gratifying way in which you have received any little thing I have been able to do for the chapter. I feel quite new in my present position, and I do not like to say too much of what I can do or what I will do. But this much I will say, that I will endeavour to do the best I can for the interests of the chapter, and in any way in which I can serve it by the work that I can do in the chair, or in any other way in or out of the chair, I shall be only too happy to serve it. At present it seems too early a time to speak about it; but at the future time, perhaps this time next year, I may be able to say something of what I have done. Now, it is a carte blanche in front of me, and I really hardly know how to fill it up. But I suppose circumstances will arise during my year of office that will enable me to distinguish myself in some way before the chapter, and I trust I shall benefit the chapter and the companions in doing so. I am not, as I sometimes say, an eloquent man; but if I had all the eloquence of Cicero, or the rhetoric of Demosthenes, or any of those great men of history, I could not say more than that I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the way in which you receive me and treat me. In proposing "The Newly-exalted Companions," the M.E.Z. said that it was well known that in every structure it was necessary to have some good materials; it was the very first thing that a builder looked to in raising a structure. That evening they had had some distinguished brethren, whom they had raised from the Craft to their Sublime Degree. He felt certain from the way in which they had received the small amount of tuition which they could have that evening, that they bade fair to be very honourable members of Royal Arch Masonry; that they would continue to progress in that branch of Masonry the same as they had in the Craft; and that some day the companions would see them passing through that chair, very much to their own credit, and certainly to the benefit of the chapter. "The Visitors" was the next toast, and the M.E.Z. observed that when King Solomon completed his temple at Jerusalem he asked the princes of his own country and the princes of neighbouring states to come and view it. The Chapter of Prudent Brethren had that evening completed their new building, and they had asked the princes and rulers in the Order to come and see what they had done. He trusted that their verdict would be equally favourable with that of the princes of Solomon's time, to the builders of their modern temple. His only regret was that there was no Queen of Sheba present. On behalf of the chapter he might say he was much pleased at the distinguished array of visitors, who, he trusted, would find themselves so comfortable, that whenever they had an opportunity they would come again. (Hear, hear.) Comps. Cottebrunne, Barnes Amor, and John Read responded. The M.E.Z. next gave "The Past Principals." We always value, said he, the opinion of any one who has really earned his knowledge by experience, and therefore it is that, as Principal of this chapter, I very highly value the opinion and advice that I receive from my Past Principals; they have gone through all the work, all the hard work, for some years, and therefore their advice and their opinion on any subject on which I consult them is to be esteemed most highly. I have found very great service from consulting the Past Principals of this chapter, because it is no easy matter, as many companions will know who pass through the chair of their lodges, to take the command of any institution, and any body of men. There are certain things which it is necessary for a Principal to consult his predecessors upon, and to draw upon their experience to a certain extent. A man would make a very bad hit if he did not look for information to the experience of others. I have found the greatest benefit from consulting my Past Principals, and I have no doubt that during my year of office they will give me the same good advice and kind consideration as they have given me up to the present time. (Applause.) Comp. Walford, in the course of a brief reply, said the Past Principals were always ready and anxious to render what service they could to the Principals of the chapter; and it mattered not what office might be vacant they were always prepared to fill it. (Hear, hear.) Referring to the old adage that "two were company, but three were none," the truth of which he could not see, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of the H. and J." He reminded the companions of what they had heard in chapter, and of the unhesitating and smooth way in which his two subordinate Principals delivered their portion of the ritual. Trusting to see them in due course in his own exalted position, he called on the companions to honour the toast. This having been done, Comps. Bull and Moody replied. "The rest of the Officers" was the succeeding toast. The M.E.Z. said—"The architect may strike his arch, and the mason may put most accurately the stone in answer to the drawings supplied him by the architect; and the arch may be thoroughly well formed; but it would cut but a very poor figure indeed in architecture if it had not exactness and solidity in the foundation on which it was set. We have erected an arch this evening, and, as I said before, we trust to complete it. I look forward to the support of my officers as a sure substratum for building upon, and for making our undertaking a great success. I am sure that the companions who form the other parts of the structure are fully equal to the office they have undertaken. Comp. E. H. Thielay, P.S., replied, promising a faithful performance of his duties, and feeling confident that his Assistants would do the same. The Janitor's toast was then given, and the companions separated, after having spent an instructive and delightful evening.

ADMISSION OF NEW MEMBERS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
The letters by "1446" and "Ad Rem" deserve the particular attention of all interested in the real and permanent prosperity of the Grand Lodge of England. "The number of publicans who belong to our Order," mentioned by "Bro. 1446," is certainly very great, and leads many not members to consider Freemasonry to be an eating and drinking institution. The pernicious system of the "feeding" lodges, receiving never more than 24s. annually in subscriptions from their members, and yet, at every monthly meeting, having "a glass of grog," &c., and also the annual banquet, defrayed out of the funds of the lodge, cannot be too severely condemned. Indeed, there is actual need of Grand Lodge legislation on the subject, the extent to which some lodges spend their funds being lamentably un-Masonic, and a disgrace to their profession. It is much to be desired that the Grand Lodge authorities were as explicit and as authoritative as to keeping the moneys for subscriptions and banquets distinct from those paid into the lodge for the General Fund and for the Grand Lodge. We have proved to members "over and over again" that by attending the lodge regularly, and "sitting down afterwards," also by being present at the quarterly suppers and annual banquets, they receive in "feeds" more than their stipulated subscriptions, and hence the lodge has to pay out of the funds every year their annual fees to the Provincial and Grand Lodges, and their fair quota of the ordinary expenses. We do not, of course, allude now to those lodges who have inclusive and exclusive terms of subscription to the funds and banquets, neither do we speak of those who charge sufficient to defray the ordinary and banqueting expenses combined, but simply of those lodges, as before stated, who permit their members to feed monthly at the expense of the funds, to the detriment of the Order, and to the injury of themselves, the subscriptions not being sufficient to defray the bills for the "suppers and banquets." Hence, such lodges are either deeply in debt or by securing initiation fees use that money to meet the gormandizing propensities of its members. Lodges being held in hotels doubtless induce increased expenditure in this direction, but the chief evil lies in the system of allowing such wholesale waste and extravagance, and in not being sufficiently careful in the choice of members.

With respect to Bro. "Ad Rem's" remarks—excepting those as to the "low level" of Scottish Freemasonry, wholly out of place—I quite concur with him in regretting the present facilities for men blackballed in one town being accepted and installed in another, to the great injury of our society. Worthless fellows, quite the scum in a neighbourhood, have thus been received into our ranks, by being proposed and accepted by lodges held in towns in which they are strangers, excepting probably to the proposer, and thus this system of initiation out of towns in which the candidates reside is fraught with danger, and requires immediat legislation by individual, Provincial Grand, and Grand Lodges.

This evil has been provided for by the Grand Lodge of Ireland, the extract from its constitutions being inserted below, and in this country the Provincial Grand Lodges are gradually doing what ought to be done by the Grand Lodge. In the Provinces of West Yorkshire, East Lancashire, Cornwall, Leicestershire, and Rutland, and probably others, the following law is in operation, with slight variations, and we can speak from actual observation that the regulation works exceedingly well, excepting that while it answers thoroughly for the provinces in question, candidates blackballed under their jurisdiction can be again proposed in neighbouring provinces, and initiated. Sometimes good men have been blackballed, and in such cases the necessary enquiry would simply reveal them to be of good report, but generally the seeking of membership away from one's own town or province is a suspicious occurrence, and should be distrusted.

I hope that other provinces will take the matter up, and, when ripe, that the Grand Lodge will deal with the subject, as it has done in so many other instances for the welfare of the Craft.

Believe me, yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Truro, 11th December, 1875.

Constitutions, Grand Lodge of Ireland, 1875, p. 38:—"A lodge shall not ballot for, or initiate into Freemasonry, any person who is not a resident in the town, village, or neighbourhood in which the lodge into which he seeks to be admitted holds its meetings, until due enquiry shall have been made of such lodge or lodges as may exist in the neighbourhood of his residence respecting the character of the applicant for admission, and a satisfactory reply shall have been received and read in open lodge, under a penalty of having its warrant suspended or cancelled, or of payment of a fine not exceeding five pounds, as the Grand Lodge may determine."

Bye-laws Provincial Grand Lodge of East Lancashire, 1872, pp. 25-6:—"In case any person resident in a town or place where a lodge is established shall become a candidate for admission into any lodge established elsewhere within this province, it shall be incumbent on the Master of the lodge wherein he so seeks admission, to make enquiry in writing of the Master of some lodge established in the town or place wherein the candidate resides, touching the character and moral fitness of such candidate. And it shall be incumbent on the brother from whom such enquiry shall be made, if within this province, to make prompt reply thereto in writing, and to set forth any ground of objection within his knowledge to the admission of such candidate into Masonry, but if not within this province, then the Master of such lodge shall be respectfully requested to furnish the foregoing particulars as far as his knowledge or information may extend, and the purport of the reply shall be made known to the brethren of the lodge into which the candidate seeks admission, before the ballot for such candidate takes place. A copy of this bye-law shall accompany the enquiry."

MASONIC FORBEARANCE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your article on "Masonic Forbearance" last week can only command approbation from every brother who has read it. I was, however, pained to find a flagrant exception, to what we plume ourselves upon possessing, very shortly after reading the article I mention.

Last Saturday week, returning from our lodge at Wood Green, Lewis, No. 1185, five of the brethren got into a compartment by themselves. We all had left the train except one brother, who, just before arriving at Aldersgate-street, saw a small parcel on the seat, and having no doubt it belonged to one of our lodge, opened it, and found it to be a Masonic apron, belonging, however, to a member of another lodge. As you, Sir, and, no doubt, any Mason, would have done, he took the apron home, wrote to the Secretary of the lodge, saying what he had found, and if the brother to whom it belonged would call at his business address, in Cheapside, he should be pleased to hand it to him.

The brother called for his apron in due course, and, instead of thanking the finder, actually bullied him for not leaving the parcel where he saw it, saying that he had had the trouble of going to the lost property office about it. I say bullied, and with reason, for when he had gone some friends who were standing by, and had heard his gross incivility, said to our brother, "Is that fellow a brother?"

Our brother was also called upon by an authority at King's Cross to give an explanation of his conduct in taking a parcel away out of their carriage.

I know, Sir, your principles are thoroughly antagonistic to such conduct, especially in one who has been raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

Dec. 16.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—ENFERLED EXISTENCE. This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy; it overturns the foundations of disease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially serviceable and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, being a medicine of incomparable utility for young persons and those of feeble constitutions. They never cause pain or irritate the most sensitive nerves or most tender bowels. Holloway's Pills are the best known purifiers of the blood, the most active promoters of absorption and secretion, whereby all poisonous and obnoxious particles are removed from both solids and fluids.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Throng around yon Christmas tree;
All our Ediths, Ethels, Maries,
Toms and Bobbies now we see;
Sophy, Maud, and Jane, and Milly,
Dick, and Kit, and George are there,
Laughing Amy, pleasant Polly,
Gentle faces bright and fair.

Hear the shouts of cheery voices
Echoing from the "sacred room,"
How the heart of youth rejoices,
Banished every care and gloom:
Carols sweet the children singing,
Remind us of a roundelay
Rais'd by voices dear and ringing,
In the mists of "far away."

Once again the room is thronging
With sweet faces known so well,
Many an old and lov'd belonging
Seems that busy crowd to swell;
We listen to their airy patter,
We see their forms all full of grace;
Mid the merry cries and clatter,
We watch again each cherished face.

Little children, laughing lasses,
And the front of boisterous youth;
All are there—how fast time passes,
Vanish'd all of grace and truth!
Kindly shadows still abiding,
Seem to flock around yon tree:
All so gentle and confiding,
Full of love and chivalry!

'Tis a delusion! I am dreaming:
'Tis but fancy's fond mirage;
Alas! 'tis only seeming
All that gathering gay and large.
Other voices shout in gladness,
Other pleasant forms are here;
And amidst the heart's deep sadness
Those dear phantoms disappear.

Merry maidens come beguiling,
Asking, with resistless mien,
"Why are you not gay and smiling?
Paying homage to our Queen?"
"Fair girls, this poor old heart has travell'd
To other gatherings, other days,
And the twisted skeins unravell'd
Of life's dark and weary maze."

Still may all of joy attend you
Joyous maidens in your games,
Still may all of good befriend you
Lasses with your classic names!
Still, fond youth, may you remem'ber,
As the whispered tale you tell,
January has its December,
All too soon for loving well!

May this Christmas gather glad'y,
Cheery boys and maidens glee,
As the fun arises madly
Round that fairy Christmas tree.
May liliesome forms and glowing tresses,
Of flashing eyes the glad some gleams,
Lighten with some soft caresses
All your pleasant Christmas dreams!

CELEBS.

Reviews.

SCOTTISH PROVERBS. A New Edition, by James Donald.—Tegg, and Co., London, 1875. This little work is a reprint, by James Donald, of Andrew Henderson's collection of proverbs. It is a very interesting little work, and we especially call the attention of our readers to it. Proverbs have been the staple vernacular literature of all nations so to say, and yet nothing is so difficult as, after all, to define a proverb. Some have called them the "oracular wisdom of centuries." Good old Johnson defined a proverb to be "a short sentence frequently repeated by the people," and he is, as he usually is, we venture to think, very near the mark. Some have said that his definition does not cover all proverbs, but as a general rule it does, as after all there is no true proverb which is not popular in its use and tradition. Motherwell in his preface, in 1832, to that edition of Henderson, tells us that Howell says the true ingredients of a proverb are "sense, shortness, and salt," and Motherwell puts it well when he quotes Benjamin D'Israeli as laying down "the essential feature" of proverbs, that they are the "condensation of much thought and observation within a small compass." It seems, that the first published book of Scottish Proverbs was in 1598, when a collection was issued by Mr. David Ferguson, Presbyterian minister. James Kelly published a large work, and very valuable one on the subject, in 1721, at London, and Allan Ramsay published two thousand two hundred proverbs in 1737 and in successive editions. This new edition of Donald's is based on Henderson's, and is a welcome addition to our paræmiographical literature, if we may use so hard a word. Those of us who have read the Archbishop of Dublin's charming little work on "Proverbs" will remember and realize how much pleasure and improvement result from the study of what Benjamin D'Israeli called "those abridgements of knowledge," conveying "great results with a parsimony of words prodigal of sense." How true and yet how witty are some of the Scottish proverbs. There's nane sae busy as them that has least to do. 'Twa heads are better than ane, though they were only sheeps' heads. Wanton kittens make douce cats. Forsake not God till you find a better master. A faithful friend is the medicine of life. Canny chiefs carry cloaks when it's fair; the fool, when it's foul has nane to wear. Fortune can take naething but what she gave. Ane wud and aye waur. A gossip speaks ill of a' and a' of her. A gude wife and health is a man's best wealth. East or West, hame is best. Its curly and crooked, as the De'il said of his horns. Ladies and Turkeys need delicate upbringing. Waes the wife that wants the tongue, but weel's the man that gets her. Virtue never grows auld. And so we might go on, practically ad infinitum, but we stop here, in mercy to our readers, commending these pleasant proverbs to all who like honest wit and true good sense, accompanied with that cheerful spirit which characterizes so remarkably many of the proverbs of North Britain. For, as the saying truly runs, "As long lives the merry man as the sad."

We have received, and looked over, this gardening serial with sincere pleasure and gratification. It is most admirably got up, and the coloured drawings are both striking and unique. To all who are interested in the most healthy and gracious of all pursuits, "horticulture," this periodical must be an invaluable "vade mecum," and a more desirable present at this Christmas season we do not know than the seven volumes of this meritorious and valuable publication. We commend it to the notice of all our flower-loving readers.

HAND AND HEART. Thomas B. Burrows, 75, Shoe-lane, Fleet-street, conducted by the Editor of "Home Words."

This is a new candidate for popular approval, to appear January 7th, 1876. To us Freemasons it is particularly welcome, as containing a portrait of our little Royal Lewis, Prince Albert Victor, with his autograph in 1875. The journal is intended, it is said, for the "industrious class," and is neatly printed, well arranged, and admirably illustrated. A journal which the working classes will really read is a great desideratum. A good many well-intentioned people seem to think the average working man a sort of demi-savage, and heathen, and that it is proper and necessary to speak and preach to him as such. Indeed, these addresses are generally "ad hominem" sermons, and we fear, as a rule, John Dobbs, skilled mechanic, is not an ardent admirer of sermons, per se. What he rather wants, we fancy, is a good and instructive paper, full of technical information and illustrative anecdotes, together with good Anglo-Saxon prose, and readable poetry, with a considerable amount of natural history, and of mechanical science. Such topics will always find, we are inclined to believe, many grateful readers among our skilled working men, for our estimate of working men generally is higher than most of our contemporaries. We shall be glad if "Heart and Hand" succeeds in its object, as no doubt nothing can be worse than that "cheap and nasty literature," now so prevalent, that garbage of journalism which is distributed wholesale and broadcast, alike in London and the country districts. We wish the editor and publisher all success.

PENNY ALMANACK AND DIARY.—Moses & Son.

Last year we spoke approvingly of this little book—we do the same this year. It is very convenient and portable, and as our copy was given to a young lady, who immediately put it into the pocket of her jacket,—Yes, jacket—we feel that we have said enough for it to-day. We quote her remark—"It's a very cosy little book," and so we wish it all success. W. P. A.

CONSECRATION OF THE "STUART" CHAPTER, BEDFORD (540).

Tuesday, the 14th of December, will long be a day to be remembered amongst Masons, not only of Bedford in particular, but also of Bedfordshire in general, for on it was founded the first chapter of Royal Arch Masons in the county.

Eight and twenty years ago the late Bro. Stuart founded, and for many a long day after he and his brother fostered, the lodge which bears their name, one of them, indeed, exchanging at the close of one well-remembered lodge-night, the labour of his earthly lodge for the well-earned refreshment and rest of the Eternal lodge above.

The lodge then truly lost its early patrons, but there was still one of the old names left to exercise the same care over its fortunes, and it never, even for a moment, lost its prestige or popularity.

For many years Colonel Stuart, the present S.W. of the lodge, has felt the desirability of leading Bedfordshire Masons to the climax of Masonry, and on Tuesday week this desirable consummation was effected.

On that day were assembled at the lodge-room of 540 a goodly number of Royal Arch companions, including Colonel William Stuart, High Sheriff of Bedfordshire, J.P., P.G.H.; P.S.G.W., &c.; R. Wentworth Little, P.S.G.W. Midx., P.G.H. Midx., M.E.P.Z.'s of 19; Byett, Graham, Lynes, M.E.Z. 834; Read, and Barfield; Comps. Rev. W. Tebbs, 285; Rev. R. Faussett Ward, 712; Brook, 304; Capt. Polhill-Turner, Bull, Cookson, Captain Colburn, Trapp, Cuthbert, Captain Green, Leslie, Whyley, &c.

After some time spent in inspecting the admirable appointments of the chapter, supplied by Comp. Kenning, a chapter was opened with the following acting officers:—M.E.Z., R. W. Little; H., Barfield; and J., Lynes.

On the admission of the brethren, Comp. R. W. Little, assisted by Comps. Rev. W. Tebbs, Chaplain; Read, as P.S.; and Barfield and Lynes, as the other two P.Z.'s, duly consecrated, dedicated, and constituted the Stuart Chapter, 540, Bedford, of Royal Arch Masons of England.

To say that the ceremony was that usually adopted by Comp. Little is simply to say that it was performed in a most impressive manner, giving the companions of the newly constituted chapter a most thorough insight into the solemnities of this holy and Royal rite.

Comp. Little next instituted the three First Principals:—Comps. Col. Stuart, M.E.Z.; Bull, H.; Cookson, J.

After which the Most Excellent invested as officers Comps. Rev. Wm. Tebbs, Chaplain; J. Trapp, Treas.; Captain Colburn, E.; Captain Polhill-Turner, N.; Cuthbert, P.S.; the last named then investing as his assistants Comps. Captains Green and Fisher.

The chapter, as its first duty, asked the acceptance by Comp. Little of honorary membership of the chapter he had thus constituted, together with its thanks for his kind offices.

This vote was warmly acknowledged by the recipient of the honour.

As its next business the chapter unanimously elected Bro. George Reynolds, the old and much respected Tyler of Stuart Lodge, as its future Janitor.

Many joining members and candidates for exaltation were then proposed, after which, in answer to the M.E.Z.'s demand for "propositions of benefit," "hearty good wishes" were announced from Royal Arch Chapters 19, 285, 304, 712, 834, 840, and 948. After which the chapter was closed in due form.

The companions subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Wicks; when an exceedingly pleasant evening was spent. After the usual official toasts, "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed by Comp. Trapp (Treasurer), and most feelingly acknowledged.

The M.E.Z. then proposed the healths of "Comp. R. W. Little," "The Visitors," "Principals H. and J.," "P.S. Cuthbert and other Officers," and of "Chaplain, Rev. W. Tebbs." After which the proceedings of this auspicious day were brought to a close.

We cannot conclude without remarking the musical arrangements of Comp. Cookson; the way in which Comp. Gilbert (of Richmond) fulfilled the duties of Janitor; the unflagging energy and zeal of Comps. Bull and Cuthbert; and the substantial support of the M.E.Z., who, as his predecessors had done in days gone by for the lodge, thus gave the benefit of his Masonic knowledge, as well as the honour of his name, to the Stuart Chapter.

CHRISTMAS.

If Christmas comes, as it is said, but once a year, yet it draws near ever a welcome guest, whether in the palace or in the cottage. Indeed, it is a very large class of mortal beings for whom Christmas is an anniversary of pleasantness and good will. The schoolboy poring over a stiff passage in Thucydides, the school girl weary with her French exercise, that huge crowd of rosy cheeks and merry voices and smiling faces, which still fills Dr. Birch's Academy, or Miss Brown's, Laurel Grove, to say nothing of a variegated collection of home blossoms,—all are eagerly anticipating the Christmas tree, the Christmas present, and the Christmas gathering. But there are bigger children for whom, also, Christmas has an ever-abiding and pleasant summons. Many of us toil from year's end to year's end at the desk, in the counting-house, in the office, in the chambers; and our holidays are short, and sometimes far between. Some are seeking by an honest business to be the breadwinners for a large family, others are laboriously toiling for literary reputation; the banker, the merchant, the lawyer, the medical man, the author, the soldier, the sailor, the skilled mechanic, and the industrious artizan, all are filling their various parts in life, and all work hard with their hands and with their brains to advance their individual interests, and to increase the national prosperity. From how many families up and down our good land have gone forth those "stems" and "off-shoots" who, in many situations, and in various ways, make up the staple of the great laborious classes; and how many are the severances and intervening distances which divide loving hearts from one another, nearly all through the year, and diminish that once joyous family circle by those missing links which are united all so closely together, and which, though absent, are not forgotten. For all these divisions of society and of industrial occupation Christmas is a very engaging season of re-union and in-gathering. No doubt the recurrence of Christmas year by year cannot be for any of us of unmixed joy and undimmed happiness. Amid the shouts of the young and the staid congratulations of the old there will float over our memories a strain of other days, a carol of "auld lang syne," which we shall never hear sung again here, at any rate, not by the same pleasant voices. Each Christmas, as it meets us on our onward pilgrimage, with all its gracious associations, reminds us inevitably of gaps in our family circles, of honest hearts, and dear eyes, and sunny faces, and warm hands, no longer to the fore, of some whom are missing, of many who are wanting, when we keep our Christmas holiday. It seems but yesterday that we were all together, young, frank, loving, sincere! Alas! where are we all now? How few of that goodly band are still lingering on earth? and how impossible it is to collect those "disiecta membra" once again here? No, the friends—the tender, the open-handed, the genial, the trusting, all are gone; their place on earth knows them no more; they have left us in youth, or in prime, in ripened powers, or in fading old age, in fell disease, or amid the shouts of victory; and for us never again, all together, can the yule log be lighted, or the mistle-toe hung up, or the Lord of Misrule issue his decrees of ancient wisdom, and of modern fun! Christmas, therefore, has a deep and solemn interest for us all alike. It summons the young from their studies, and mature life from its burdens, and dull old age from its griefs and weakness, to join once again in festive array. The family once more assembles in that well-known room. The kind master and the smiling mistress are there, as genial and as hospitable as ever; tall men and comely women reassemble, like as of yore, around the family dinner table; the bright muster of pleasant maidens and the bold fervour of ardent youth are all there, to add lightness and brilliancy to the scene; while above all is heard Master Bobby's shout, and Miss Edith's exclamations! Pleasant scenes for the sage and the sympathising. Happy holiday for the learned and laborious, the careworn and the complaining, the troubled and the tried, the man of letters and the man of money, for rich and poor, for high and low, for learned and unlearned. Some writers have complained that the world has too much appropriated Christmas to itself, and has thrown its colouring over the scene, and has mingled its tares with the fairer wheat. Now we do not hold with such "pessimists." We cannot see why you are to take such a morbid view of life and man, and things and facts. Let us rather, as it seems to us, accustom ourselves to accept things as they really are, to rate them at their proper worth, to estimate them at their true intent, and then we shall not fall either into the folly of undervaluing, or into the extravagance of over estimating, into the lugubriousness of the "Slough of Despond," or into the frivolity and evil of a merely sensual commemoration! Christmastide, depend upon it, is a great and a good institution for us all, and one which the world, ever wise in its generation, has eagerly appropriated no doubt, and cheerfully observes, simply on those humanitarian grounds, which appeal so profoundly to the hearts and memories, and thoughts and affections, of us all. There is, as we all well know, a very religious side to Christmas, but it is one which for obvious reasons we cannot dilate upon in the "Freemason." All that we can fairly do is to greet it as it meets us with a dying year, as it invites us to present happiness around "our own firesides," as it reminds us of a buried past still very dear to our recollection, as it suggests kindly consideration for the wants and woes of others! When, then, Christmas-day once again assembles under many a "roof tree" the long scattered members of a confiding family circle, when it gives lustre to the eye, and tinges with roseate animation the cheeks of the young, the fair, the graceful, when it even bows down stalwart manhood beneath the tender sway of silvery voices and "wreathed smiles," when it reanimates old age with some bright memories and faded dreams, let us all bear in mind that Christmas time, and Christmas gatherings, all warn us that some are not so blessed as we are. Let not our Christmas leave us without some few kind thoughts and gentle deeds for the poor, the friendless, the fallen, the outcast; and then our sweets will prove sweeter, and our own enjoyment will be augmented by the pleasant consciousness that we have not been selfish in our own happiness, but, full of good things and glad hours ourselves, have sought to make others happy too, have lightened, if only for a few passing moments, the burdens of affliction, and sought to wipe away the tear-drops of humanity! To all the readers of the "Freemason," to all our brethren, their wives, sisters, and sweethearts, to the little world of Lewises and laughing fairies, and countless Masonic blossoms, whom Christmas fills with glad and innocent gaiety, we wish most sincerely from the very bottom of our heart a very merry and happy Christmas, indeed!

SUMMARY OF MASONIC EVENTS
FOR 1875.

The New Year of 1875 began well for Freemasonry, and especially for our good brethren in Ireland, for it witnessed the installation of our most distinguished Brother the Lord Lieutenant, His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, as Grand Master of our genial Order, in the "Green Island." As Paddy would say, "Good luck attend the Freemasons, notwithstanding Cardinal Paul," and "here's to the Hilt of the Lard Lifenant, and more power to his arm." The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution held its anniversary in January, when the large sum of £6630 was collected, and the labours of its energetic Secretary, Bro. James Terry, were fully rewarded. During this month the Craft had to deplore the untimely death of the Countess of Carnarvon, the gentle and amiable wife of our Deputy G. Master. In April, our Royal Grand Master laid the foundation of the New Merchant Taylor's School, amid a large assemblage, and with great applause. May witnessed a never-to-be-forgotten scene by this generation of English Masons, the installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the English brotherhood, at the Albert Hall. Those of us who were present on that "alba dies" will never lose the vivid reality of the gathering or the scene, and we shall rejoice to think amid the onward march of years, that we were permitted to behold so great a high day of Freemasonry, to rally round our Royal Grand Master, and to hail the unparalleled demonstration of our English Order. The arrangements were perfect, and reflect the greatest credit on Bros. Sir A. Woods and Thomas Fenn. The Swedish deputation which had been sent to congratulate our Grand Master, who was, be it remembered, initiated into the Order in Sweden, visited the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and expressed warmly the great pleasure the visit had caused them. Our Royal Grand Master was also in May installed as First Principal of the Grand Chapter. During this "merry month" the anniversary of the Girls' School took place, when £7000 were collected. June witnessed, across the dividing waters of the Atlantic, a great Masonic ceremony in New York, namely the Masonic dedication of the new hall. It was a most imposing demonstration, telling well for those who arranged the proceedings, and we in England have the deepest interest in and sympathy for our American brethren of the "mystic tie." July brought the Boys' School anniversary, when the unprecedentedly large amount of £12,700 was announced at the Alexandra Palace by Bro. Binckes. Bro. Binckes may fairly claim great credit for his "coup," and we trust that after some little clouds over the internal regime of the school have completely passed away, all will go on well with that great institution. Some perverse and personal attacks have been made on Bro. Binckes and the House Committee, but like all similar manifestations, in Masonry or out of Masonry, they generally both fail in their purpose, and react on those who initiate them. During this month the Surrey Masonic Hall was dedicated with much eclat, under the presidency of our distinguished and amiable Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, the D.G. Master. In August we have to note the presentation by that kindly Lady Baroness Burdett Coutts of a most beautiful Bible to the Burdett Coutts Lodge. The proceedings, under the direction of Bro. J. Terry, were most animated and interesting. The foundation stone of a Masonic Hall at Grimsby also was laid in this month. In the month of September a presentation was made to our well-known and worthy Bro. J. C. Parkinson, which afforded great pleasure to his many friends. Bro. Lord Mayo's statue was unveiled at Cocker-moath, and then across the Atlantic we heard of the foundation stone of a new Masonic Hall at Halifax, Nova Scotia, having been laid. We may note here that during the last year the Lord Mayor of London, our worthy Bro. D. Stone, has been made Junior Grand Warden. In October the presentation of an address to our Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, before his

UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

[Memorials against the New Statutes having appeared in our columns from time to time, we think it only fair to publish the following paper issued from the Chancery, and which at the present time cannot fail to interest such of our readers as are Knights Templar.]

Sundry Memorials addressed to the Great Prior having been circulated, and as these Memorials contain various errors, both as to facts and the effect of the Statutes, the following Commentary on these Documents is designed to correct the erroneous impression created by such statements.

By the treaties with Scotland and Ireland of the 8th October, 1867, and 27th November, 1868, it was provided that a joint committee of the three kingdoms should be appointed to draw up Articles of Union. The Irish and English members met, and ultimately, in 1872, completed statutes framed to meet the emergency of the case.

The committee consisted of the following gentlemen:—

On the part of England:—Sir P. Colquhoun, the Rev. J. D. Huyshe, R. Woof, Captain N. G. Phillips, and J. Tepper. On the part of Ireland:—The Hon. Judge Townshend, the Earl of Limerick, Colonel Francis Burdett, Captain N. G. Phillips, and W. E. Gumbleton.

This committee drew up a unanimous report, which, having been submitted to Grand Conclave in December, 1872, was, after discussion, accepted.

A similar course was pursued in Ireland.

Thus these statutes were under consideration between four and five years, and Grand Conclave, if it had confidence in the men it appointed, could not but accept the result so carefully prepared; how can it then with truth be said, "that by reason of the hurried manner in which the new statutes were brought forward, no consideration could be given to their probable effect, and the expediency of their enactment?"

Material alterations were requisite, not so much in the existing national Governing Bodies, the names alone of which were altered, as in the creation and constitution of a new Supreme Body. The Grand Conclave of England became the Great Priory of England, and a similar change was made in Ireland, both being bodies subordinated to the Convent General, of which H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was to assume the Headship. The internal government of the two component bodies was not interfered with except in the election of the Great Priors, who are now appointed by the Grand Master.

It is, however, more than probable that many who neither attended Grand Conclave, nor troubled themselves to read the Biennial Reports, knew little or nothing of the matter, otherwise their ignorance of the facts could not have been thus used to mislead them.

The first grievance in the Dorsetshire Memorial, of which the others are for the most part mere transcripts, is a general and unsupported assertion, viz., that "the experience since acquired of the effect and working of these new statutes convinces the memorialists that they are detrimental to the best interests of the Order, and must inevitably in the course of time thin its ranks and weaken its influence."

After this general and sweeping assertion the memorial enters into detail.

First, it states it is undesirable to drop the title "Masonic." Let it now be seen how this matter stands.

It is acknowledged that the Order is a Christian Society. That the Masonic qualification is indispensable is granted; but, on the other hand, it may be alleged that the word "Masonic" is the exclusive right of Craft Masonry, and is an assumption on the part of any other Secret Society, for in Templary there is no Masonic allegory. The Irish designate themselves as High Templars. The Scotch do not assume it. The American branch repudiates it as inappropriate, and as the assumption of the title of another degree. As this prefix was an introduction of modern date and changed nothing in the substance, the committee had no difficulty in acceding to its omission, but strengthened the bond by adding the condition that a candidate must not only be a R.A., but also a M.M. of two years' standing.

As the old Order of the Temple was abolished 562 years ago, there is no other body which assumes this title; the military virtues of the old Knights are supposed to be represented as to the moral part by the new Order. The Articles of Union of the Craft of 1813 acknowledge it as a chivalric degree attached to, but not incorporated with Masonry, and the clause is purely permissive. The body therefore, be it called what it may, is as much under the protection of 39 Geo. III., c. 79, and 57 Geo. III., c. 19, as Craft Masonry, for all members are Craft Masons, but few know that these statutes only apply to Lodges existent at that time. These Acts therefore do not protect even Craft Lodges established since that date (1799), and those preceptories only which were existent before that date.

With respect to the nomenclature of the Order, it is strange to find men persistently advocating the perpetuation of an historical error.

The Masters of Temple houses were called House Preceptors; the Masters of Provinces, Great Preceptors. The head of the Order was originally termed simply Master, or later Magnus Magister, or Great Master. The word "grand" was merely the French for great. The equivalent designation of the Hospitalers was Commander, and their estates were called commanderies, whereas those of the Templars were termed Preceptories.

The question of Past Rank has, too, been misrepresented, and it is almost impossible to conceive such ignorance of the statutes as that alleged in the memorial.

Formerly he who had passed "the Chair" was designated a Past Commander, that is a retired Commander. The new statutes make him an actual Preceptor for life, with the right of voting in the Great Body, or Parliament of the Order, so long as he continues to subscribe to some Preceptory—nay, he may cease to do so for any length of time—but so soon as he places his name on the roll of any Preceptory his right and franchise revive; but in Craft Masonry, if he cease to subscribe for a year, his right lapses, and he becomes a mere Master Mason, nor can he recover his position and franchise without again serving as Master of a Lodge.

The position of the present Preceptor is therefore improved: the office once given to him is lasting. Should, however, those who have served the office before the last statutes prefer the title of "Past" Preceptor they are at liberty to adopt it, for all existing rights are reserved.

The dignities of Grand Cross and Commander are superadded: they take nothing from the members, but give something in addition, and it was considered by the joint committees it was due to his Royal Highness, when he condescended to assume the Headship of the Order, that he should have the rights belonging to all Crowned Heads, for in that light the Prince of Wales must be considered in relation to the Order; the more so since he had induced her Majesty as head of the State, to take the Order under her patronage and protection. No new dignities or titles have been created in the Order; they all existed in England, Scotland, or Ireland.

With regard to the Past Grand Rank, the number of those who obtained it yearly were twice as many as those who obtained the same rank in the Craft, yet the Temple only counts 2,500 active members, while the Craft numbers as many thousands.

The Provinces complain they cannot induce the members to pay fees for Grand Rank except it be permanent; they could provide for their necessary expenses by a small Capitation Tax, which would not press heavily, and so dispense with the fees of office.

At present, every member pays to the Central Authority an annual contribution of 3s. 6d.; London Craft Lodges pay 4s., and Country Lodges 2s., yet the class which belong to the latter are less able to pay these quarterages than the members of the Temple, who, in fact, contribute no more than Craft Masons. But as all existing rights are reserved, those who held this Past Grand Rank before the late statutes still enjoy it, while those who have obtained Grand Rank since have done so with the full knowledge that it was an annual office.

To meet, however, any objection, the following motion was passed at the Great Prior's Council, and incorporated in its report to the Great Priory in May, 1875, and the Great Prior has given effect to it by giving notice of amendments for the next Convent General:—

"That a limited restoration of Past Rank is desirable. That such Past Rank should only be given to Great Officers, National Great Officers, and Provincial Great Officers, and also to the Great, and National, and Provincial Vice-Chancellors and Sub-Masters, provided these latter Officers have served two years in their respective ranks."

Some offices, indeed the majority of them, are purely nominal, others are permanent, and it would be unreasonable to suppose that such as have real duties to perform could be changed annually; under such a system, the Order would fall into hopeless confusion.

Lastly, many members will be surprised to learn that the changes now made were in substance advocated 13 years ago, as the following memorial shows:—

Copy Memorial from the Province of Worcester, laid before Committee, 1863.

THE ORDER OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR, MALTA, &c.

To the Very High and Eminent the Deputy Grand Master, the Very Eminent the Grand Chancellor, the Provincial Grand Commander for Kent, the Grand Treasurer, and the Grand Registrar:—

The Knights of the Ancient Order of the Temple and of Malta, in the Province of Worcester, assembled in Provincial Grand Conclave on the 2nd day of October, 1862, having ascertained that a committee has been appointed by the Grand Conclave of England to revise the statutes of the Order, desire to offer a few suggestions, which they trust may not be deemed unworthy of consideration. They are induced to venture these suggestions from a sincere desire to advance and exalt the Order, and from a wish to see it more closely assimilated with the brilliant and picturesque model presented by the early chivalrous constitution from which it is supposed to be descended.

The suggestions which are respectfully offered for the consideration of the committee are—

1. That the title of the Order be "The Royal Exalted Order of Knights Templar and Knights of St. John of Jerusalem."—(Burnes' Hist., p. 63.)

It is conceived that the additions, "Religious and Military" and "Masonic" are unnecessary, as being qualities of the Order and qualifications for it which form no essential part of its name or title.

2. That resting upon traditional belief it may be declared by the statutes that the Order of the Temple is descended and perpetuated from the ancient Constitution, and that on the suppression of the Templars by the Statute "de terris Templariorum," 17 Edward II., Stat. 3, A.D. 1324, they were probably incorporated with the Knights Hospitalers of St. John of Jerusalem, now commonly known as Knights of Malta.—(Burnes' Hist., p. 73.)

It appears a reasonable supposition that an incorporation of the Order may have obtained in this country, as well as in Scotland, where it cannot be disputed, and this appears to have been the belief of the present constitution of the Order prior to the edition of statutes now in force.—(Burnes' Hist., p. 63.)

3. That every Initiate be received into both Orders as one.

4. That the dignities of the Order as distinguished from the titles of its Officers, be Knights Grand Cross, Knights Commander, and Knights Companion.—(Statutes of the Scotch Templars, p. 9. Vertot's Knights of Malta, small edition, v. 5, p. 241, and the present Order in Portugal and Italy.)

5. That each country holding under the Grand Conclave be constituted a Grand Priory, and be governed by a Grand Prior.

6. That each country or such other district as may be assigned (now called a "Province") be constituted and called a "Preceptory."—(See Letter herewith, Mar. 28, 1863. R. W.)

7. That the present Provincial Grand Commanders be called "Preceptors" during office.

8. That all installed Grand Priors and Preceptors with such other Knights Commanders as may be distinguished by patent of the Grand Master be Knights Grand Cross for life.—(See Letter herewith, Mar. 28, 1863. R. W.)

9. That all "Eminent Commanders" be called "Commanders" during office.

10. That all installed Commanders be Knights Commanders for life.—(See Letter, R. W.)

11. That the jewel of a Knight Grand Cross be a gold cross of eight points, two inches and-a-half across, enamelled white, bearing on the centre a cross pattée, enamelled gules, and surmounted by the Grand Master's crown, worn round the neck, pendant from a gold or gilt collar.—(Burnes' Hist., p. 5.)

12. That the jewel of a Knight Commander be of the same size and kind, worn round the neck pendant from a scarlet ribbon edged with white.

13. That the jewel of a Knight Companion be of the same kind, but measuring an inch and-a-half across, or of smaller size if preferred, worn on the left breast from a similar ribbon.

This appears to be only a restitution of the old jewels as to Commanders and Companions. The Provincial Grand Commanders appear to have been distinguished by a gold patriarchal cross, but the foregoing suggestions seem to give greater uniformity and preserve the one form of jewel.

14. That the star be worn only by Grand Crosses and Commanders, and that it be of distinctive form for each rank.

15. That the triple, double, and patriarchal cross be used as heretofore, but only as badges of office instead of as jewels of the Order, and be not worn after expiration or resignation of office except on the mantle.

16. That the hood of the mantle be lined with silk of a distinctive colour. For a Grand Cross or Grand Officer who is a Knight Commander, of violet; for a Knight Commander or Grand Officer who is not a Knight Commander, of scarlet; and for a Knight Companion, of white.

17. That if any additional jewel be deemed desirable in distinct perpetuation of the Order of Saint John, it be a gold cross of eight points enamelled white, surmounted by an Imperial Crown, and worn on the left breast pendant from a black ribbon.—(From a History published about 1800.)

18. That the velvet belt and apron now in use be discontinued, and a narrow sword belt substituted, of black leather, with a silver clasp for Knights wearing white hoods, and of red, with a gold clasp, for Knights wearing violet or scarlet hoods.—(Scotch Statutes, p. 22.)

19. That the term "baldrick" be discontinued, and "ribbon of investiture" substituted, and the ribbon thereby restored to its original purpose.—(History of 1800.)

20. That a crosshilted sword be used, without specifying or restricting any particular pattern.

21. That right be reserved to present members of the Order to wear all such jewels as they have been heretofore entitled to wear.

It is thought that these suggestions need not in any way interfere with the use of the Jewels of the Grand Conclave, which were the handsome gift of the late Grand Master, as they are essentially Badges of Office, as distinguished from Jewels of Rank in the grades of the Order.

These suggestions are offered on historic and antiquarian grounds, in the belief that they comprise alterations consistent with the regulations of the ancient Orders, and they are earnestly and confidently commended to the consideration of the committee with the intent alone that the modern constitution shall be advanced and secured in dignity and position.

Given under my hand in the Provincial Grand Conclave of the Province of Worcester, on the day and year first before written.

Provincial Grand Commander.

I have carefully perused the above, and feel so pleased with the suggestions that I have laid them before my Provincial Grand Conclave with an earnest recommendation to the Sir Knights to give them their best support.

Prov. Gr. Comr., Dorset.

13th Oct., 1862.

Instead of the ranks of the Order being thinned as asserted, they have numerically increased, the best test of which is the greatly increasing number of certificates issued from the Chancery of the Order.

The members of the Order are invited thoughtfully to consider those matters for themselves, in that spirit of moderation and fairness which only can promote the good of the Order.

"SINGULA QUÆQUE LOCUM SORTITA DECENTER."

We have been requested to publish the following report of a meeting called by circular, addressed "to those gentlemen who, as Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons under the Grand Lodge of England, signed a petition in July last, directed to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of the Order in England."

The brethren who had petitioned the Grand Lodge of England in July of this year for a warrant to be granted to English resident brethren in Belgium, to form a Masonic Lodge under the English Constitution, was called together on Wednesday evening, the 3rd Nov., to receive the official reply received.

Colonel Kemeys Tynte, P.P.G.M., the Master-Elect of the English Lodge "in spe," occupied the chair. He stated in opening the proceedings of the evening that he was exceedingly disappointed in having to communicate to the brethren the answer he had received from the Grand Lodge, but that, as members of that illustrious body, the Free and Accepted Masons of England, there remained but one course open, and that was to obey the decrees of the governing body. He then proceeded to read the reply, which was signed by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary. It was to the effect that previous to the departure of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales for India, the petition of the brethren had been laid before him, but that he regretted he could not accede to their request, as his doing so might be considered as an innovation of a Foreign Masonic Jurisdiction, and a breach of Masonic usage and etiquette.

Having read the communication, Colonel Kemeys-Tynte invited any of the brethren present who might wish to make some suggestions or observations on the subject matter, to do so.

Bro. W. C. A. Roettger, P.M., and P.Z., the Senior Warden-elect, then rose, and expressed his deep regret at what had been just communicated to the meeting. He said he was the more sorry as there were several candidates who would have been happy to be initiated into the much-coveted mysteries of the Order, but who were now lost to the Fraternity, as they were only agreeable to take "that mystic step" under the guarantee of a National Lodge, i.e., Grand Lodge of England. There were a great many English brethren resident in Belgium, who, although they quite appreciated the objects English Masons have in view, in common with the Fraternity in Belgium, more especially charity and brotherly love, they yet felt strangers in the Lodges of this country, where, partly through the imperfect knowledge of the language, and partly through difference in Rite, they did not feel at home, and consequently very rarely visited Belgian Lodges. Although bowing to the decision of the Grand Lodge, he said he trusted some means might be found available to bring about the so much desired object—the establishment of an English Lodge, besides the already existing Lodges, which are under the "Rite Ecossaise moderne," for he was quite certain there was ample room for both. Moreover, from his personal knowledge of the dignitaries of the Grand Orient of Belgium, he was quite sure that they would be very much pleased to see an English Lodge exist in Belgium, besides the already-established Belgian Lodges.

Bro. Humberston, P.M., made similar remarks, and expressed a hope that the wishes of the brethren might yet be crowned with success.

After various other observations from the brethren present, all testifying to the great regret felt about the polite, yet distinct refusal, and agreeing in the course to be taken—that is, implicit obedience to the decrees of the Grand Lodge to which they belong, Bro. Roettger rose, and, in addressing Col. Tynte, and the other brethren, said—Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren, it is now my pleasing duty of returning to our Master-elect (the gallant and Right Worshipful Brother Col.

Kemeys Tynte) our most heartfelt and sincere thanks for the great interest and trouble he has taken in aiding our united endeavours to bring about the establishment of an English Lodge in Brussels. That we have not succeeded, sir, is not for want of interest on your part. Your name alone, which may be almost looked upon as a pass-word in Masonry, would have been sufficient guarantee to have had our prayers granted, had there been a possibility of this being done by his Royal Highness the Grand Master; but, suffice it to say, Right Worshipful Sir, that, although we have not been successful in our most earnest endeavours, we are fully sensible of the great and sincere interest and support you have given to our petition. I am exceedingly sorry, sir, that I have not that flow of language at my command to express all that I—and I am certain my brethren feel—impressed with the sentiments of gratitude. Be assured, however, Right Worshipful Brother, that our sentiment and wishes are sincere. May, then, the Great Architect of the Universe permit you to sojourn a long time yet among us, and to remain an ornament amongst the Rulers of the Craft to which we all have the honour to belong.

Colonel Kemeys Tynte tendered his heartfelt thanks to Bro. Roettger and the other brethren for the kind sentiments expressed towards him. He said he valued the words that had just been spoken, all the more because he knew that they were not meant as flattery, but proceeded from a sincere desire of giving some appreciation to the very trifling assistance he had rendered to the movement. He begged in the meantime to assure the brethren present that, should there be at any future time a chance of seeing their wishes as to the establishment of a Lodge, under the English Constitution, realised, he would come forward and do all in his power to further that object.

Bro. Col. Whitle then rose and tendered his thanks to the Chairman on behalf of the absent brethren. He said—Right Worshipful Sir and Brother, I am commissioned by the absent brethren to return to you, sir, their heartfelt thanks for the efforts you have made to support their prayer for a Craft Lodge to be held in Brussels, and, on their behalf, to bow to the decision of the Grand Lodge of England. We are well aware, as Bro. Roettger says, that, had it been possible to grant our prayer, no name on the time-honoured roll of Free and Accepted Masons could have carried greater weight than yours, Right Worshipful Sir. It now devolves upon me to ask you, sir, in the name of the brethren who signed the petition, to accept from my hands all the correspondence and documents relating to this our effort to establish an English Lodge in Brussels, with the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe may take you and yours into His keeping, until you are translated to the Great Lodge above. "So mote it be!"

NIL DESPERANDUM.—True hope is based on energy of character. A strong mind always hopes, because it knows the mutability of human affairs, and how slight a circumstance may change the whole course of events. Such a spirit, too, rests upon itself, and it is not confined to partial views or to one particular object, and if at last all should be lost, it has saved itself, its own integrity and worth. Hope awakens courage, while despondency is the last of all evils; it is the abandonment of good, the giving up of the battle of life with dead nothingness. He who can implant courage in the human soul is its best physician.

GOOD WINE NEEDS NO BUSH.—In the spring of 1874, a daily contemporary writing of The General Expenditure Assurance Company, says:—By a clever and happily conceived arrangement, so simple and judicious that it is wonderful it was not thought of before, the company is enabled to assure the return of all money spent for the ordinary wants of life. At this festive season, to all patrons, this information will be an addition of "good cheer," and we commend the pamphlet, brimful of information, published by The General Expenditure Assurance Company, obtainable at their several offices, and Smith and Son's Railway-bookstalls—to the notice of heads of families and our readers generally. From the period above-named the company has rapidly extended its operations; the trade members are numbered by thousands, and the success of the Coupon Trading System is now assured. In addition to the London Office, 8, Old Jewry, E.C., Branch Offices are established in Dublin, Liverpool, Newcastle, Brighton, and other chief towns. Bro. the Hon. F. Walpole, M.P., P. Grand Master of Norfolk, is a trustee of the Company.

OUR GRAND-MASTER ELEPHANT HUNTING.

We are indebted to the Times for the following animated description of a day of hard work, and no little risk:—

All Sunday night rain gathered in the roof of our calico and bamboo dwellings. When Monday morning dawned, the landscape was shrouded in steaming vapour, but preparations for the elephant drive were actively begun. At 6 all were ready, and the Prince turned out in a broad-brimmed solar topee, a dark shooting suit and knickerbockers, and those necessary articles called leech-gaiters, which are required to baffle the efforts of the Ceylon leeches to suck travellers dry. The jungle in which the elephants were abiding was about seven miles from Ruanwella, and horses were sent on to await the party, and take them by a bridle-path to the Kraal.

Lord Aylesford, Dr. Fayrer, Lord C. Beresford, Mr. Hall, Mr. Fisher, and Mr. Varian went ahead in a mail coach. The Prince, with Lord Suffield and Major-General Probyn, escorted by two Lancers of the Governor's Body Guard, followed in a carriage. Mr. Birch, Mr. Fitz-George, Lieutenant Thackwell, and I closed the rear. We drove through a wooded country, sparsely peopled, in which the view was shut in by walls of dense forests. Men and children flocked to the roadside to see the cortège pass, but women were not visible once. On the main road the people were more numerous. At 8 our carriage pulled up at a small village, called, I believe, Algeda, where several hundred Cingalese were congregated. Two or three saddle-horses were standing by the roadside. "Where is the Prince?" exclaimed Mr. Birch. "He has gone," was the reply. Mr. Birch was in despair. Lieutenant Thackwell mounted and rode after him. Mr. Campbell, of the Police, galloped off, and Mr. Varian set out on foot, but the Prince reached the ferry at Avisawella, nearly three miles, before he was overtaken and brought back to the place which had been overshot so unaccountably. There was a chance that the delay would have proved very injurious, for the beaters had begun to drive nearly two hours before the Prince was at his post. Meanwhile Mr. Fitz-George and I resolved to walk to the rendezvous. A path, deep-trodden by many feet, led by the side of a clear stream through the forest, but the impressions of solitude were dissipated by the appearance of police sentries guarding the path. After proceeding half a mile we came to some bamboo huts and the embers of watch-fires. There we found some huts, in which bread, eggs, and fruit were on sale. Besides elephants, some thousand men had been engaged for more than a fortnight making the road, watching and constructing the Kraal. We then passed two barriers guarded by police, and finally arrived at a raised platform, on which we found Lord Aylesford, Dr. Fayrer, and others, awaiting the arrival of the Prince. The platform was, in fact, a grand stand, from which we looked down on a stockade. Outside, running across the jungle from the valley, up the hillside, was a kind of net, into which, when it was opened, the beaters could drive the elephants after they had been forced past the high rock on which the Prince was to be placed. In the jungle at the other side of the stockade, trees, creepers, and bamboos were so thick that 20 or 30 yards off the stockade could hardly be seen. Beyond was the impenetrable forest gloom.

At 9 the Prince arrived, but the yells of the beaters had been audible some time before. We proceeded at once to the Prince's stand inside the forest, and, attended, by Lord C. Beresford, Mr. Fisher, and Mr. Varian, noted the shots. Mr. Hall was placed within sight on a similar stand in a tree. No one else was allowed inside. What followed may be told shortly, though it lasted for a long time. In the jungle were two herds, one an old tusker, charged with the death at different times of four European sportsmen and of many cattle, with three females, kept apart from another herd of seven elephants.

When the beaters came up the latter put themselves under a leader whose courage and coolness were only equalled by his sagacity and strategical skill. The animal not only refused to be driven in the direction wished for, but, charging the line of beaters at the head of his column, he broke through them again and again, driving them up trees for shelter, and comparatively spoiling the sport. So hour after hour passed. "One herd," cry out the beaters, "is coming nearer"—just as in a deer drive in the Highlands; and every eye was strained to pierce the forest depths where bamboos and young trees cracked like pistol shots beneath the tramping of hoofs. Every ear listened for the report of the Prince's rifle, as they must be close to the Prince. The platform was deserted, and every one crossed to the Kraal armed with bamboos to thrust through the interstices and drive back the elephants. The Natives were expectant, but silent, the old chief who directed the proceedings walking to and fro in a state of great agitation. Suddenly the cries of the beaters ceased, and the crashing and snapping noise in the jungle receded. The tusker had broken through. 11, 12, 1 o'clock came and went, still no shot was fired. Thrice the Prince caught a glimpse of a ridge like the top of a loaf of brown bread moving swiftly through the jungle. A suspicion arose that the Chief was playing falsely. He was to have whatever elephants could be kraaled, and if the Prince fired there was small chance of driving them outwards to the enclosure; so it was supposed he had given secret orders to dodge the Prince's stand if possible, and he was told that if the Prince did not get a shot the Kraal would be destroyed that night. Perhaps he was wronged.

About 2 o'clock, when the Prince had been five hours on the stand, a report came that the old tusker and the three ladies he was guarding so devotedly had separated from the herd of seven, and had escaped clean away through the beaters into the forest. Before the tusker got away Lord Suffield sent to the Prince for leave to go and shoot him when he was reported to be close, but the Prince thought it would be best to wait, so he got off without being shot at. Even then several of the animals were unmanageable. In vain the beaters yelled like demons; they were charged, routed, and obliged to run up the hill and descend in rear of the herd, and begin again. At last it was resolved to apply the ordeal of fire which elephants so much dread, and dried timbers were piled up in a line to windward. Mr. Fisher and Mr. Varian marshalled the beaters once more, and permission was given to fire on the elephants in the rear to urge them on. Presently a couple of shots were heard, the branches shook, trees were crushed. On rushed an elephant, like some great rock tearing down a hillside, to within 20 yards of the Prince, who fired and hit him in the head, but he went on and was lost. At this moment up came Mr. Fisher, and said, "Sir, if you will come with me I can get you a shot. I have wounded an elephant, and think you can kill him." Lord Suffield, hearing the Prince fire, joined him just as he set out creeping through the dense jungle, with Mr. Fisher and Mr. Varian on each side in front, and Lord C. Beresford, Mr. Robertson, and Mr. Hall in the rear. Hats were lost and clothes torn, the heat was great, and it was impossible to see two yards ahead. Suddenly a small elephant which had been wounded was discovered. The Prince fired coolly at him, and the elephant dropped and lay as if dead. Mr. Hall stopped to take a sketch, but the elephant began to move, and then to kick, and finally to get on his legs, whereupon Mr. Hall, doubting whether with a lead pencil he could challenge an encounter, sought safety in temporary flight. The native heaters got up the trees. Mr. Fisher and Mr. Varian became uneasy and alarmed, for elephants were heard close at hand, but they could not be seen. At any moment an elephant, driven mad by passion, might rush out upon the Prince where evasion and escape were hopeless, for in such a dense jungle no man could do more than creep. Lord Suffield and Mr. Robertson were astonished at the agitation evinced by the practised hunters, but the Prince's aim was as steady as if he were out pheasant shooting. All at once Mr. Fisher perceived an elephant as if in the very act of charging not ten yards off. The Prince fired and struck it in the side of the head, and it disappeared in the jungle. In a few minutes more an elephant was seen by the side of the inlet, where the bush was not so dense. The Prince fired, and the great beast fell over on its side and lay dead in a stream, where it dammed up the waters. The Cingalese and Europeans dashed into the stream, and the Prince cut off the tail of the animal according to custom, and the crowd cheered again and again as the Prince was seen standing on the prostrate body.

It was getting dark and quite time to get out of the jungle. The Prince, wet, streaming with perspiration, his clothes torn, returned, amid continued cheering, to the road side, where carriages were waiting to take him to Avisawella. As soon as his back was turned the Cingalese cut off pieces of the ear of the elephant as trophies. So far the day had ended well. Seven hours of patient waiting had been rewarded, but when the Prince arrived at Hanvele, where Governor Gregory and others were waiting to receive him, having come down the river by boat, he dismayed them by laughingly narrating how he had been upset on his way. Lord Aylesford was on the box beside the driver. General Probyn, Lord C. Beresford, and Mr. FitzGeorge were inside with the Prince. At the corner of a small bridge, where there was a small deep ditch, the carriage went right over, flinging the occupants on each other. The vehicle was broken, but no one was hurt, and there was a hearty laugh at the misadventure.

A MASONIC BALL AT GEORGETOWN BRITISH GUIANA.

The Ball given by the Union Lodge of Freemasons, in the Assembly Rooms on the 19th November, was, as Mr. Longden characterised it, in replying to the toast of "The Governor," "superb and magnificent." As the Masons of the Union Lodge had on several previous well-remembered occasions, given substantial proofs of their possessing amongst their other secrets, the secret of giving a brilliant and successful ball, the present party, from the time it was announced, was looked forward to with eager interest by those who had had the good fortune to receive an invitation, and there was much speculation as to whether the present would surpass in excellence the ball given in 1871, which, after a lapse of four years, still maintained its position in the popular estimation, as the best ball ever given here. It required a very short survey of the hall to convince the hundreds of guests present, that the former entertainment would have to rank second to its successor. The decoration of the hall had been left to Bro. C. B. Hamilton, J.W., and Bro. F. A. S. Lambert, I.G., and the admirable selection of the general style of decoration, together with the exquisite taste displayed in carrying out the details, received unqualified praise. The decorations were very fully and correctly described by a contemporary in a paragraph, which we take the liberty of making use of here, with some slight alterations and addenda:—The staircase was decorated with palm leaves and plants in ornamental pots, and spanned by arches of evergreens, relieved by bouquets of flowers. The sweep from the head of the staircase to the entrance of the ball-room was draped with blue and white, with the monogram of the Lodge, tastefully decorated with flowers on either hand. The western end of the room presented to view ten pillars, representing the five orders of architecture in duplicate, supporting a screen, the space between the pillars hung with massive folds of many coloured and rich-looking drapery. In the centre, and immediately in front of this screen, was the throne of the Master of the Lodge, which stood on an elevated dais covered with blue and white cloth and flanked on each side with two minor platforms covered with crimson, the whole extending across the entire breadth of the room. In front of the dais stood two noble looking columns capped respectively with a terrestrial and celestial globe, and which on other occasions, we understand, form part of the furniture of the Lodge. The arches between the pillars which support the roof on either side were festooned with blue and white, the apex of each being picked out with a Masonic emblem. On the pillars, hung alternately the banners of the Knights Templar and others bearing Masonic devices. These pillars also bore ornaments of blue and white drapery, which covered the stems of bunches of flowers disposed around them. The eastern end of the room, in front of the orchestra, was draped with white and crimson, and bore monograms containing combinations of initials appropriate to the occasion. The centrepiece consisted of a trophy of flags, surrounding the Prince of Wales' plumes, resting on a handsomely gilded star. A large quantity of rare and beautiful plants imparted to this end of the room a garden-like and delightfully cool and refreshing appearance. The sides of the room above the arches were covered with Masonic devices florally decorated and the roof was studded with silver stars arranged to represent several of the best known constellations. The appearance of the well-lighted and brilliantly decorated room, enlivened with the moving figures of gaily dressed ladies and jewel bedecked Masons was dazzling beyond description.

Worshipful Master Jacobs	Mrs. Longden
The Governor	Miss Jacobs
Senior Warden Van Eeden	Miss Klien
Junior Warden Hamilton	Mrs. Van Eeden
Worshipful Past Master Imlach	Mrs. Jeffrey
Senior Deacon McGowan	Mrs. Phillips
Worshipful Master Bracker, Concordia
Lodge, Surinam	Mrs. McGowan
Inner Guard Lambert	Mrs. Luckie.

There were four Masonic quadrilles on the programme. The first was that of the Blue Lodge; the second, No. 5 on the programme, the Royal Arch; the third, No. 11 on the programme, the Knight Templars; and the fourth, No. 18 the Rosicrucians. When the programme was half gone through, the company formed a procession, and—The Worshipful Master and His Excellency the Governor leading the way, marched to the fine old tune of "The Roast Beef of Old England," to the supper tables which were spread in the shape of an immense horse shoe in the Billiard Room downstairs, a few snug side tables being placed on the southern gallery.

After a due time spent in recruiting exhausted nature, the Worshipful Master rose and gave as the first toast "The Queen, Patroness of the Craft." The next toast was "The Prince of Wales the Worshipful Grand Master of Great Britain." In proposing this toast, the Worshipful Master said—"Masonry is not only one of the oldest but one of the most honourable of institutions, as it has existed from time immemorial, and it tends to make all who strictly adhere to its precepts upright and truthful; and to so high an eminence has its credit been advanced, that in all ages monarchs themselves have been promoters of the craft, have not thought it derogatory to their dignity to exchange the sceptre for the trowel, partaken of our mysteries, and joined in our assemblies. And we have what I am stating to you gloriously exemplified in our present Worshipful Grand Master; for what greater honour could any institution desire, or where is the other that can boast of so high a distinction as having the heir to one of the greatest kingdoms, as their ruler and guide. In the speech of our W.G.M. which he gave on the day of his installation in presence of some 7,000 or 8,000 Masons, he then said that he considered that the greatest honour which could be conferred on him had been conferred on him in placing him in the chair, and I would ask you if that is not sufficient to satisfy the pride of any member of the Craft. And to display our loyalty and our delight we are giving this ball in honour of so great an event. I know that the Brethren will join me heartily in this toast, but I would also urge upon them to perform their duties as Masons with fidelity and zeal, and so lessen the arduous duties of our W.G.M. Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen, Brethren of the craft, I give you the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Great Britain His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales."

The toast was most enthusiastically received, and after the uninitiated had expended their untutored cheers, the Worshipful Master called on all Masons present to receive the toast with "Grand Honours" the time to be taken from W.P.M. Imlach. The "Grand Honours" were a surprise to most of the guests, and the solemn, regular, and rhythmical clapping of hands created quite a sensation.

The third toast, "The Grand Officers of Great Britain," was received by the Masons with "Honours in the first Degree."

The fourth toast was "The Governor." The Worshipful Master on proposing it said:—

We have, like good and loyal subjects duly honoured the National Toast, and I have now much gratification in proposing the health of Governor Longden. It is an easy matter, gentlemen, to get a hearty response to a toast like this, for no eulogium of mine could increase the regard and respect which His Excellency, since his arrival among us, has won from all classes of society. The position of the Governor of a British Colony is not a bed of roses. John Bull is a great grumbler, and I take you all to witness that his children in this Colony bear him a strong family likeness in this respect, but in spite of our disposition to make ourselves happy by being dissatisfied, we must all confess that under the rule of our present Governor, we have had little opportunity to indulge in our favourite pastime. "Through the exercise of his energy, ability, and kindness, he has given evidence of his desire to do everything in his power to promote the welfare of the Colony, and it is for us to acknowledge our appreciation of his zeal and discretion, and to express the wish which is general amongst us, that the remaining portion of Governor Longden's regime here may be as happy and prosperous as that already past, and that when the time comes for him to depart from our shores, it will be to assume even a higher and more exalted position in her Majesty's service.

The toast was most loyally received and the Governor in returning thanks, after alluding to the magnificence of the entertainment and the grandeur of the hospitality shown the guests, remarked on the kind and friendly reception he had always met with in every part of the Colony he had visited. He finished his remarks by some complimentary comments on the order of Freemasonry, and on the conduct of the Brethren, and sat down amid much applause.

In proposing the next toast "Mrs. Longden," the Worshipful Master spoke as follows:

Perhaps you fancy you received the last toast with as much enthusiasm as you could possibly display, but I think you will receive the present toast with even greater warmth and louder cheers. The last toast was the Governor; this one is his partner in life—Mrs. Longden. The influence of a Governor of this Colony in political and official matters is almost unbounded, but great as it is, it is quite equalled by the influence his wife can bring to bear on social circles; so powerful and valuable can this become, that a Governor without a wife may be regarded as only half a Governor, the better half of him being wanting, and in the opinion of many persons, especially ladies, Her Majesty the Queen should carefully exclude such incomplete creatures as Bachelors from Colonial Governorships. However, at the present moment, we have every reason to be satisfied with our Governor's qualifications in this respect. The lady who presides at Government House is the life and soul of local society, and her cheerful drawing-room is the great centre of attraction where both young and old always meet with a courteous and friendly reception. As a community we owe a great deal to her exertions to relieve the monotony of our existence; her well-earned popularity is certain to go on increasing as long as she remains in her present honoured position, and we shall always remember and look back upon the days of her Government with a keen and lively pleasure.

The Governor returned thanks for Mrs. Longden, and amidst cheers from the gentlemen and gratified smiles from the ladies, admitted his good fortune in having had since the Queen had been pleased to entrust him with the charge of one of her colonies, the companionship of one so valuable to him in the social duties of his position. He thanked the company warmly for the complimentary manner in which they had received the toast.

The next toast was "The Concordia Lodge, Surinam," in proposing which, the Worshipful Master spoke of the hospitality dispensed by that Lodge to the Demerara Brethren on a recent occasion. Brother Barnett in behalf of W. M. Bracker, who does not speak English with much fluency, returned thanks in a neat speech for the honour that had just been done their Lodge.

The last toast on the list was "The Ladies," which, the Worshipful Master introduced with some humorous remarks, describing a wife's opportunity to arrive at her husband's Masons' Secret. After detailing the interesting domestic colloquies, he proceeded, "We Masons are often upbraided with ungallant conduct, because we do not receive the fair sex into our Craft, but although the severe and rigid rules of our Order deny us the co-operation of our dear sisters there is no saying what may come to pass in course of time. Ladies are making headway in every direction, they are taking degrees in medicine, as well as in law, and by and bye it is just possible they may be taking degrees in Freemasonry; and on some future occasion when the Lodge are entertaining their friends, there may probably be a Worshipful Mistress in the chair, and amongst the guests an honourable Attorney-General, and a talented and fashionable Crown Solicitor. How I envy his Excellency the pleasant task he will have of presenting some fair and gushing applicant to a comfortable medical or legal appointment! These will be happy times for Masons, when they come round; we shall then be able to take to the Lodge our daughters, our wives, and those who are not our wives—just yet. But the contemplation of so much happiness I can see is making some of the younger Brethren envious of the rising generation, so I shall not harass their tender feelings any longer but ask you to join me in the toast—The Ladies.

Immediately after this toast, which was received with unbounded enthusiasm, the company returned to the Ball Room.

To satisfy the curious in such matters we annex here the copy of the Dance Programme, adding the names of the music selected. The ball was opened by the Militia Band under Mr. Fricke; the second dance was played by the band of the 1st West, under Mr. Kershaw, and the two bands took the dances alternately to the end of the programme, doing their respective leaders very much credit:—

CHRISTMAS MORNING.

Now merry bells! and Christmas chimes!
Awaken thoughts of happy times,
And joys long run away.

And by our thoughts of those old bells,
A momentary cloud dispels
Some brightness of to-day.

For Christmas Day, and Christmas cheer,
Are wont to rouse sad thoughts each year,
Even with hearty friends.

But hearty friends, and hearty fare,
And hearty homes with love to share,
Are joys Old Christmas sends.

And Faith, and Hope, and happy deed,
And kindness of heart proceed
From Christmas, every year.

And Charity! that always lends
Such beaming aid to make amends
For dull or stormy days,

Shall help us to unite The Three—
Our Faith! and Hope! and Charity!—
With Peace!—which Christmas sends.

THE SENTENCE ON THE FREE-MASONS AT PORTO RICO.

It seems that on the 22nd of April last, sixteen Freemasons, received from Mr. le Dr. Don Jose Conrado Hernandez, Judge of "Premiere Instance" at Porto Rico, a sentence of imprisonment for two years, and perpetual loss of all civil rights."

The names of the Brethren so sentenced are as follows:—Don Jose de C. Balzac, D. Francois-Marie Quinones, D. Manuel Rodugnez, D. Juan, D. Francois and D. Manuel Anton-georgi, D. Antoine Francioni, D. Michel Ramirez, D. Antoine Ramirez, D. Antoine Riviera, D. Antoine Lebron, D. Ezia Fabiany, D. Pompie Bellony, and the Dr. Ange Franco. They were accused of being members of an illegal secret society, of not having a permit to be so assembled, of having arms without a licence, and also of the fact of being Masons, forbidden by the Article 210 of the Penal Code, and on these four charges were sentenced, as before stated.

When they were arrested by the Civic Guard, under a certain Brigadier Torres Navarro, and Sous-Brigadier, Antoine Vara, they were supposed by the guard to be secret gamblers, so they assert; but finding that they were Masons, they at once took possession of the furniture, arms, books, as well as their persons.

The Freemasons asserted that they had a licence to meet, signed by the Alcalde of Sabana Grande.

The Government prosecutor states that this statement is untrue, and that if they had any permission, it was only one to Bro. C. Balzac, to entertain his friends at supper.

The Lodge was held in Bro. C. Balzac's house.

With regard to the arms seized—two cutlasses, two sabres, a revolver, and a double-barrelled gun—it appears that no licence for the same was produced. Under these circumstances, the rigorous sentence was pronounced, against which an appeal was made by the Masons; but, so far, we do not know with what effect. Now we cannot, according to our known principles, approve of Brethren meeting illicitly or surreptitiously any where "contrateeges," and we feel that both as regards unto that point, and the want of an arms licence—we have nothing to say. But we certainly may, and must protest against any law in any country, which makes Freemasonry a crime, and Freemasons criminals, simply as such—though if such a law exist—until it be repealed, Freemasons are bound, we hold, to obey it. For we emphatically deny that Freemasonry is either a political fraternity, or a secret revolutionary association; and we affirm that its aim is good, and its principles most loyal. We deeply regret that any State can be so stigmatize a beneficent, an honourable, an orderly, and charitable society like that of Freemasonry. And we can only hope that in the progress of civilization and the development of more liberal (in a good sense) and tolerant views, such penal enactments and such hostile theories may be among the things of the past.

But until that happier epoch arrives, Freemasons are bound to obey the laws of the country where they live pro tempore, or which is their Mother Land, or which gives them its privileges as traders, or affords them its protection as peaceable citizens.

While, then, we deeply deplore the fate and the sentence of our Brethren at Port Rico, we regret that a manifest error of judgment, and perhaps some emotions of Masonic zeal not tempered with discretion, should have led them to contravene these municipal regulations as those general laws, which, as true Freemasons and good patriots, they were all equally bound to comply with, and bear in mind.

Two brothers, D. Francois Serra, and Dr. Francois Yanque have been acquitted, and set at liberty, and we hope that the same happy lot may befall our brethren, if the Court of Appeal confirms the sentence of the "Premiere Instance" on a proper appeal to the authorities, and an honest recognition of the binding nature of the laws of the land, and of the infraction committed by themselves.

We feel that we are bound to say this much—since as Freemasons, we in Anglo-Saxon Masonry especially, ever avow respect to lawful authority, and complete deference and cheerful obedience to the enactments of the supreme Legislature, wherever we ourselves are to be found in any quarter of the world.

We have taken this precis of the case, leaving out a large number of the reasons of the sentence, which, in our opinion, are not material to the matter, from the "Monde Maconnique," of November.

ROMAN CATHOLIC INTOLERANCE AND DESECRATION OF THE DEAD.

The accompanying narrative will in all probability prove of melancholy interest to many of your readers, as it shows the amount of intolerance still existing in Chili:—

A little more than a month ago there died at Serena, Bro. James Wallace, son of Mr. Samuel Wallace, of that city; the deceased being a Protestant was buried at Guayacan; the body had to be conveyed by rail, and as the station is some distance from the city a hearse had to be procured; application was made in the proper quarter for hire of same, but the request was only granted after considerable delay. The ecclesiastical authorities being quite indisposed to permit the use of it; the body, however, at last reached Guayacan cemetery, where, after the usual religious ceremonies, it was interred with some simple Masonic rites, the deceased brother being a member, and, I believe, one of the founders of the Sevena Lodge. I may here mention that this Lodge was always held under circumstances of the greatest difficulty and danger, for La Sarena is notorious as being the hotbed of Roman Catholicism and the point from which many denunciations of the most vindictive character have lately issued against Masonry and its sympathisers.

However, to proceed, on the 21st of October, some boys playing in or about the cemetery, found a plate bearing the name of Jas. Wallace, and on examination his grave was found open, the corpse exposed and mutilated; on the adobe wall, immediately opposite the grave, was found deeply cut a cross, thus showing that some muttered threats which had been heard at the funeral had been carried into effect. The body was immediately removed and sent to Valparaiso (196 miles) for interment. It may now be remarked that the spirit of intolerance which refuses to allow the ashes of those who in life professed different beliefs, to commingle together in one God's common acre is bad enough, but the fanaticism which prompts to the desecration of the dead is infinitely worse. It is, however, some consolation to know that there is no surer sign that fanaticism and bigotry are being driven from their ancient strongholds, than when, in despair, they seek to regain power by profaning the ashes of the dead.

The desecration of our deceased brother's remains will be, in all probability, the death-knell of bigotry and priestcraft in Serena, for since that occurrence Masonry has received such a large accession of members in Serena as must, before long, work out many great and salutary changes in that part of the country. Every effort is being made—as may be supposed—by the priests to shield their dastardly agents. But a reward of 500 dols. has been offered, and it is to be hoped that a just punishment for their cowardly and barbarous act will soon be meted out to the perpetrators. Nothing short of this will satisfy public opinion, the affair having called forth expressions of the deepest indignation throughout the coast of South America.

Mr. Samuel Wallace, the father of Bro. James Wallace, has since died very suddenly, it is said from the effects of the shock caused by the occurrence mentioned.

La Serena is close to Coquemo, a well-known port, 196 miles north of Valparaiso, and is the seat of a Roman Catholic Bishop. Guayacan is a mile or two south of Coquemo. T.W.P.

THE ALEXANDRA PALACE.

Notwithstanding the unfavourable state of the weather, there was a numerous attendance at the Alexandra Palace on Saturday, 11th inst., to hear the second performance of "Esther." It is simply marvellous that this oratorio has been heard only twice, in its entirety, since its great composer's death; we trust, however, that ere long "Esther" will become almost, if not quite, as popular as the "Messiah" and other works from the pen of the illustrious Handel. The performance from the commencement to the end was most satisfactory.

Madame Nouver proved an excellent substitute for Madame Blanche Cole, who was unable to attend through indisposition. Mr. Vernon Rigby being again absent from the same cause, his place was supplied most efficiently by Mr. W. Shakspeare. Madame Nouver was especially successful in "Praise the Lord," "Tears assist me," and in the lovely duett, "Who calls my parting soul?" with Mr. Shakspeare; she also gave "Flattering tongue no more I hear thee" with great dramatic effect. Madlle. Enriquez's exquisite rendering of the pathetic air, "O Jordan, Jordan, sacred tide," must not pass unnoticed; she was also equally effective in the "Invocation" immediately preceding the chorus "He comes to end our woes." Mr. Shakspeare was exceptionally good in "Who dares intrude into our presence?" and in Haman's song "Dread not, righteous queen, the danger;" but he deserves special praise for his expressive rendering of the lovely air, "O beauteous queen, unclothe those eyes." Mr. Wadmore obtained an encore in the recitative "Turn not, O queen;" he also gave with much feeling, "How art thou fallen." Mr. Howell sang with great expression, but his voice did not appear sufficiently powerful for so large a Hall; we imagine those at the extreme end of the hall would have great difficulty in hearing him. The choruses, "Ye sons of Israel mourn," and "He comes to end our woes," were given with remarkable effect, while the magnificent final chorus, with solo, "The Lord our enemy hath slain," was almost beyond criticism. The orchestral accompaniments were admirably played, Mr. Weist-Hill conducting with his accustomed ability. We cannot lose this opportunity of publicly expressing our intense disapprobation at the thoughtlessness and bad taste evinced by those persons who persist in leaving their seats during the performance, and thereby causing extreme annoyance to the musical portion of the audience, who wish to listen undisturbed to the whole of the oratorio; this practice seems to be considered quite au fait amongst a certain class at the Alexandra Palace; such a proceeding would not be tolerated at Exeter Hall, nor even at the Crystal Palace to the same extent, and we can see no reason why it should be permitted in one case more than another. There is ample opportunity afforded those desirous of leaving before the end to do so between the pieces or during the interval. The practice we so strongly deprecate is most uncomplimentary to the artistes who take part in the performance, and surely the smallest tribute we can offer to the memory of those who have bequeathed us the gems of their immortal genius is that of listening to the same with silent and respectful attention. We earnestly trust that this slight reproof will produce the desired effect, and that in future neither Mr. Weist-Hill nor anyone else will be disturbed in a similar manner.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

I have been startled not a little to read a letter signed by "W. M." respecting his Lodge holding a Charter from the Grand Lodge of All England! and that the members thereof have the privilege of wearing a jewel by virtue of such Charter, confirmed at the Union of 1813. There surely must be a mistake in these statements by "W. M.," for there was not a single lodge in existence, under the authority of the Grand Lodge of All England, held at York, to take place at the Union of 1813, the lodges uniting being those under the Grand Lodge of England ("Moderns"), and the Grand Lodge, according to the old Constitutions ("Ancients") respectively, under the Grand Mastership of H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, and H.R.H. the Duke of Kent. Will "W.M." kindly inform us of the character of the jewel mentioned, and the name and number of his lodge, so that we might investigate the matter, and prove that the assertions are incorrect or otherwise.

Ellis and White, of 29, New Bond-street, have a copy of Caxton's Polycricon for sale, of 1842 (circa) £210. Would it not be well to secure this for one of our Masonic Libraries, or for the Grand Lodge Library? Its value is very great indeed, and was, in our opinion, the basis of the major portion of the historical reproductions to our old charges from 14th century, the chronicle having previously existed in MS. from early in the 14th century, apparently being the work of one Roger, Monk of St. Werberg, in Chester, amplified by Ralph Higden of the same monastery, who died prior to 1360, of which several copies are still extant in MS. In 1387 it was translated by Trevisa into English, and was revised about a hundred years later by Caxton, which he finished on July 22nd, 1842, and printed soon after. The above is one of many very curious and valuable for sale by these noted firm of antiquarian booksellers, and if a copy could be made of such a work for publication in the "Freemason" or "Masonic Magazine," it would gladden the hearts of many Masonic students now prevented owning such from the high price.

THE CHINESE MASONIC CHART.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Adverting to the lecture given by the Rev. P. P. Agnew on the subject of Freemasonry, an account of which appeared in the "Freemason" newspaper of the 18th instant, he remarked, "Coming down to later times, and the introduction of Masonry into Britain, it would be found to have become established about the time of King Alfred, and in the year 928 it was said that Prince Edwin, a brother of the King, called the first meeting of Masons in England at the City of York, and there drew up the first English Constitution." I have to inform you for the benefit of such of your readers as may not be aware of it, that St. Alban formed the first Grand Lodge in Britain, A.D. 287, and King Athelstane granted a charter to Freemasons in 926, the same year in which Prince Edwin formed a Grand Lodge at York; this I deem it essential to mention, as, until the publication of the "Freemason," many old intelligent members of our Ancient Order and high in Masonic rank, have endeavoured to impress more juvenile members with the idea that there was no legitimate record of the establishment of Masonry prior to the completion of St. Paul's by Freemasons in 1713.

I chanced to meet with a Masonic book a few days ago, printed in the commencement of the present century, from which I cull the earlier date (287) of remarkable events in Masonry, the title of which work, with other particulars thereof, I now send you:—

A PROVINCIAL P.M.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report in to-day's "Freemason," of a lecture on Freemasonry, by the Rev. P. P. Agnew, delivered at the Lorne-street Hall, Auckland, New Zealand, we are told:—"It was a strange fact that Masonry existed among the Chinese in a form which led to the belief that its origin was still more remote than the generally received authority. There was in his (the lecturer's) possession a Chinese chart which contained emblems of far greater antiquity than any in use among the Masons of the present day. In this chart were to be found the ark of Noah, the dove, the olive branch, the pillar of cloud, &c., and many signs which were as yet inexplicable, and this antiquity was further borne out by the very excellent Masons who were to be found amongst the Chinese."

I very much doubt the antiquity of the Chinese chart. Emblems of Noah's ark, the dove and olive branch, &c., are frequent in British Masonic charts, both of last century and the present, and belong to the Ark Degree, still practised, I believe, in Lancashire. At least I know that I got it and others at an Ark, Mark, Link, and Wrestle Lodge, at Radcliffe Bridge, for thirteence-pence-halfpenny, some years ago. I will be glad to learn full particulars of the present state of all the Side Degrees in the North of England.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL.

MASONIC JEWELS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Kindly allow me to point out to "W. M." that the extract given in my letter of the 27th ult., made special mention of some Lodges having jewels of their own.

Believe me, yours fraternally,

JAMES A. HAYES.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you be kind enough to answer the following question for our information:—Has the Tyler of the Lodge any right to vote for the election of Master, or any other purpose? I may add that our Tyler is a subscribing member and is returned to Grand Lodge as such, at the same time the Lodge pays him a sum each year for his services. In Bro. R. H. Mackenzie's Royal Masonic Cyclopædia (page 65) I read: "The Tyler who is not necessarily a member of the Lodge, and, in the case of payment for his services, has no vote." Please say which is correct.

In the event of the W.M. placing the ruling of the Lodge in the hands of the S.W. would it be necessary for the S.W. to leave his chair and take a seat in the E, or could he rule the Lodge from the W, and could he (all business being ended) close the Lodge. Thanking you for past courtesies,

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

S. C. H.

[1. We are decidedly of opinion that supposing the Tyler was not initiated in the Lodge as a serving brother, and has joined it since in the usual way, and is now a subscribing member of the same, he is "entitled to all the privileges and benefits of the craft" (see page 87 Book of Constitutions,) and is clearly entitled to vote. We cannot accept Bro. Mackenzie's dictum as to payment for services being a disqualification, such a view is clearly erroneous.

2. The S.W. rules the lodge. In our opinion, if not an installed master, he must take a chair next the W.Ms. chair, and appoint a new S.W. pro tempore. With this seat he can open and close the Lodge.—ED.]

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. THOMAS SLEATOR.

A noble, large-hearted, and universally respected Mason has recently passed away, and we deem it our duty, as a faithful chronicle of the Craft, to bear testimony to his worth and integrity of purpose. We refer to Bro. Thomas Sleator, who had reached nearly 68 years of age, and who resided at Oak Villa, Summerland, Waterford.

On Friday night, the 3rd instant, at about eleven o'clock he fell into a slumber which proved to be literally "the sleep that knows no waking," as in almost twenty-four hours he quietly passed away without having awakened. His life was useful and good, his death peaceful and calm.

Deceased was P.M. of Lodges 5, 32, and 297; P.Z. of Chapters 5 and 32; a member of the Temple Lodge, No. 1,094, Liverpool; Secretary to Lodge No. 5, Waterford, P.G. Secretary of the South-eastern Division of Ireland; a Governor of the Masonic Male and Female Orphan Schools, Dublin; Life Governor of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution; and a Governor of the Commercial Travellers' School. These sufficiently indicate the zeal and true charity which Bro. Sleator brought to bear on the Masonic duties of his life. His hand was ever ready to help the struggling, his heart to sympathise with the distressed; and no case of genuine charity was ever allowed by him to pass without recognition and succour. With all his charity he was invariably unostentatious, and with the simplicity of a child his invariable desire was to remain out of sight when deeds of charity were performed by him. Combined with those and many other noble qualities, Bro. Sleator was an enthusiastic member of the Craft, and it will not be easy to fill the blank which his departure has created.

The Waterford Mirror, of the 9th instant, thus describes the funeral of Bro. Sleator:—"Upon this sad event becoming known in the city (Waterford) on Sunday it was resolved by the Masonic Body that with the consent of his afflicted family the funeral should be celebrated with the honours due to one who had occupied a high position in the Order for many years, and during that time acted up to its principles as a true and worthy brother. Bros. H. R. Sargent, Alexander Nelson, and H. Waugh having been elected stewards the following arrangements were made and carried out on Wednesday, the 8th instant.

Brethren assembled at the residence of deceased, Oak Villa, at a quarter to one precisely.

The stewards appointed to marshal the procession each carried a wand with a piece of crape tied on the top. The Brethren proceeded, as directed by those stewards:—

Master Masons (not now in office) two abreast.

Royal Arch Masons, two abreast.

Knights Templar, two abreast.

MOURNERS.

The route taken was through Thomas-street, the Quay, Henrietta-street, to the front entrance of the Cathedral. Arriving there the procession then marched up the aisle, separating on either side, the organ softly murmuring a solemn voluntary, and the coffin being brought into the church by the bearers, who were selected from the Knight Templars and Royal Arch Masons, the two highest grades to which the deceased belonged. The funeral cortege was met by the Rev. Mr. Bradley, M.A., who read the usual service for the dead, after which Mr. T. Artherton sang, "I know that my Redeemer liveth" (Messiah), which was followed by the full choir of the Cathedral, chanting the Psalm appointed for the service, and the appropriate hymn, "Great Captain of Salvation." After the service concluded the coffin was again borne from the aisle through the outer transept and the main entrance to the Cathedral square, where it was placed on the hearse, Bro. James Moreland playing Handel's "Dead March" in Saul. The procession then went by Colbeck and Catherine-streets, up John's Hill to the cemetery. The coffin was then carried to the grave by the bearers. When deposited a circle of the Brethren was formed, with the Chaplain and Deputy Provincial Grand Master at the head of the grave. The Burial Service was then read, after which the Masonic Lecture was read by the Chaplain, the Deacons holding their wands crossed over the coffin. At the conclusion the silent salute was given, time being taken from Bro. Harry R. Sargent. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master then placed the deceased's apron in the grave, and each Brother likewise placed his sprig of Acacia there.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Abram Denny, then removing the deceased Knight Templar's Sash and Apron from the top of the coffin, replaced them by a Mason Master's Apron, after which the coffin was lowered to its last resting place, while the beautiful words of the hymn "Thy will be done" were sung by a hundred voices with marked effect.

BRO. JAMES BURTON.

* It is with regret that we have to announce the death of an old and highly-esteemed brother of the Craft, Bro. James Burton. This well-known brother died on the 30th of November, rather suddenly. He was initiated in the Albion Lodge, No. 9, 1850; he served all the offices, and was for some time secretary of that lodge; joined the Globe Lodge, No. 23; Phoenix Lodge, No. 170; Berkhamstead Lodge, No. 504; was Past Provincial Grand Senior Warden of Hertfordshire; was P.Z. of the Jerusalem Chapter, No. 185; and Knight Templar. He took a great interest in the charities of the Order, having been a Life Governor of the three Masonic charities and served the office of Steward on five occasions. The death of this brother is deeply regretted by the Craft generally.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.—We are glad to see that the effort to establish a Masonic Club has been successful. The premises, which are situate 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., and are handsome, spacious and central, will be opened for the use of members on or before the 1st March next, and no doubt brethren will gladly avail themselves of what we look upon as a great boon to the Craft. Difficulty has been experienced in meeting with a suitable site, but the premises now taken are certainly all that could be wished, and are capable of being enlarged to meet all requirements should the influx of members render extension necessary. Our space precludes referring to this interesting subject at greater length on this occasion, but we shall refer to it in future numbers; in the meantime we wish it every success, and recommend our Masonic readers to send in their applications for membership without delay, and refer for further information to our advertising columns.

From a report made by Sir Gilbert Scott, in reply to certain inquiries made by Sir Edward Beckett, relative to the condition of the south arcade wall of St. Alban's Abbey, it appears that this part of the building is in need of "immediate and serious attention," and Sir Edward Beckett has offered the munificent sum of £1000 towards the same. At the opening of the lodge the grants made at former lodges which required confirmation were confirmed, amounting to £320. There were thirty-one new cases on the list for relief. Of these two were dismissed and three deferred, and the remaining cases were relieved with £500 in all. Of this sum two cases were relieved with £40 each; six with £30 each; six with £20 each; three with £15 each; six with £10 each; and three with £5 each. The grant made in each case was very liberal. Grand Lodge was thereupon closed.

METROPOLITAN.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE.—On Thursday, the 16th inst. the members of this flourishing Lodge held the usual monthly meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, under W.M. Bro. James Forbes, who was supported by P.M. T. H. Seaton as S.W., and Bro. E. Lancaster as J.W. There were also present P.M. Webb (Treasurer), and Bros. Jupe, Christie, West, and a large number of the Brethren. The visitors were represented by P.M. Goldham, 109, and Bro. Foss, 1260. The W.M. having opened the Lodge in the first and second degrees, proceeded to entrust Bros. Hobbs, Arding, Cushion, Fisher, Wymark, Phillips and Whewell, prior to their being raised to the sublime degree. Having retired for preparation, and presenting themselves at the call of the W.M., they were all in due course raised in his usual careful manner. The Lodge was then closed to the first degree, and the ballot taken for Messrs. A. D. Smith and William Cleghorn, which, proving satisfactory, they were initiated into the ancient order, and having retired, Bros. Gray and Whitfield were examined and entrusted. The latter named Brethren having also retired, the Lodge was resumed in the second, and on their return, they were duly passed. This brought the regular Lodge work to a close, but a very agreeable portion yet remained, in which all were able to participate, viz., the election of W.M., Treasurer and Tyler for the ensuing year. The Secretary having announced who were eligible for the chair, and the P.M.'s having decided not to seek re-election, the Lodge elected the J.W., Bro. Lancaster, who returned thanks for the same. P.M. Webb was re-elected Treasurer and Rawles, Tyler. The Audit Committee having been appointed, it was proposed, seconded and carried unanimously, that the usual amount should be voted from the Lodge funds for the purchase of a jewel for the retiring W.M. Bro. Forbes then closed his Lodge, after upwards of four hours steady work.

PLUMSTEAD.—UNITED MILITARY LODGE (No. 1536).—The members of this young and rapidly increasing Lodge assembled for their monthly meeting at the Hall, Plumstead, on Friday the 10th December, upwards of a hundred Brethren and visitors being present. The business of the Lodge was the passing of Bros. J. A. Mason and G. Smith, and the raising of Bro. S. Morrish, both ceremonies being worked by the W.M., Bro. F. G. Pownall. Among the visitors present were:—J. Ward, W.M. 700; C. Coupland, P.M., 913; and P.G.S. for the Province of Kent; G. D. Roe, P.M., 378 and 1424 and P.P.G.S. for the Western Division of South Wales; Captain Phillips, P.M., 13; J. Headley, P.M., 13; J. McDougall, P.M., 913; T. Butt, S.W., 700; J. Allen, 913; A. Cooper, Secretary; H. G. Picken, S.D.; H. Shaw, J.D.; Joseph McCaffery, Steward; J. Lackland, Tyler. The Brethren adjourned for refreshment, and the W.M. gave the usual toasts in appropriate terms.

PROVINCIAL.

FREEMASONRY IN SHEFFIELD.—ROYAL BRUNSWICK LODGE.—The Royal Brunswick Lodge, No. 296, held its anniversary in the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, on the evening of Monday, December 13th, when Bro. Henry Ecroyd, (the Worshipful Master-Elect), was installed in the chair of K.S., in succession to Bro. H. W. Pawson, I.P.M., who very ably performed the solemn ceremony of Installation, in due and ancient form, and in the presence of a large number of the brethren of the Craft. Amongst the distinguished visitors from other Lodges were Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. Grand Secretary of West Yorks; Bro. Rev. A. W. Hamilton, M.A., Muc. Bac., Senior Prov. Grand Chaplain of West Yorks; Bro. William Roddewig, Prov. Director of Ceremonies; the Worshipful Masters of the Britannia and Wentworth Lodges, Sheffield, Scarsdale Lodge, Chesterfield; Phoenix Lodge, Rotherham; Pelham Lodge, Worksop; Bro. Robert Stevenson, Nottingham; Bro. Rev. Vernon Russell, Worksop; Bro. John Denton, member of the Grand Lodge of Sweden and Norway; Bros. Major Vigors, Capt. Traill, and Capt. Adjutant Mills; Bros. Alexander Hay, and H. J. Garnett (Past Prov. Grand Sword Bearers, etc.). The Prov. Grand Master of West Yorks; Bro. Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., and Bro. Tew, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, were unavoidable absent. After the customary homage had been paid to the newly installed Master, he invested his officers as follows:—Bro. John Ridal, Senior Warden; Bro. Walter Nicholson, Junior Warden; Bro. Rev. Samuel W. Earnshaw, M.A., Chaplain; Bro. M. de Bartolome, M.D., Treasurer; Bro. Robert Schott, Secretary; Bro. Geo. Cubley, Senior Deacon; Bro. Wm. Skinner, M.R.C.S., Junior Deacon; Bro. John Marples, Director of Ceremonies; Bro. Thomas Harrison, Inner Guard; Bro. Charles Clement Carr, and Bro. Moses Hartley, Stewards; and Bro. Suckley, Organist. The Brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. Brookes, at which Bro. Ecroyd presided. The health of the Worshipful Master was proposed by Bro. Past Master Seebohm, F.Z.S., that of the Visiting Brethren was proposed by Bro. Past Master Longden, and responded to by Bro. Captain Traill.

ST. LUKE'S LODGE (No. 225).—This Lodge met on Wednesday last, the 8th inst., at the Coach and Horses Hotel, and, it being the evening for Installing Brother P.M. Westgate, your readers of this town and the many Brethren members of this Lodge, who I may truly say are scattered over the four quarters of the globe, will not be surprised to know that the Lodge was filled to excess by its numerous members, and a large gathering of visitors from the other Lodges of the town. The meeting had been fixed for seven o'clock, Bro. Turner, P.M., having taken the chair, in consequence of that lamentable occurrence, which took place in Lodge that day twelve months, when our beloved and esteemed Bro. King was summoned from this sublunary abode to that Grand Lodge above, just as he was in the act of performing the duties of W.M. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Wentworth passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft. Mr. Antcliff was initiated. The Installation of W.M. being the next and most important business of the evening, the duties of Installing Master devolved upon Bro. J. W. Whitehead, P.M., who presented the W.M. Elect and afterwards conducted the whole proceedings. The new W.M. having taken the chair, commenced at once to Invest his officers as follows:—Bro. Dakin, S.W.; Bro. Hillyard, I.W.; Bro. Booth, S.D.; Bro. Canham, I.D.; Bro. Orton, I.G. The W.M. then rose and addressed the Brethren, thanking them for the high honour they had conferred upon him for the second time, and then in most feeling terms alluded to that melancholy event to which we have before referred. Before concluding his remarks he announced to the Brethren that they had a very short time since the pleasure of affording relief to a worthy, although distressed Bro., and he believed that the Secretary had received a communication from him expressive of the deep feeling of gratitude he owed to the Lodge. There being no further business before the Lodge, he proceeded to close the Lodge, after which the Brethren then adjourned to refreshment. The usual toasts being duly honoured, the W. Master, in proposing for "The Visitors," said: Brethren it is always one of the most pleasing duties which a W.M. has to perform at the festive board is proposing the health of Visiting Brothers, and upon this occasion it was especially so, when he saw before him such a goodly number representing, not only the Lodges in this Province, but others from a greater distance. He thanked them for the honour they had done him, and he assured them that any time the St. Luke's Lodge would be ever ready to receive with a hearty welcome all who would favour him with their presence. The W.M. then coupled the names of this toast with the Rev. Bro. Sanderson, P.M., and P.P.G.C. of Lodge Prince of Wales; Bro. Tracey, P.M., Lodge Perfect Friendship; Bro. Clarke, J.W., Lodge British Union; Bro. Stevens, Lodge Perseverance, Norwich; all of whom responded.

ROCHDALE.—PROBITY AND FREEDOM LODGE (No. 367).—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday the 16th inst., at the Bull's Head Hotel, Smallbridge, Rochdale, and was well attended. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting unanimously confirmed. The ballot for Mr. James Leach proving favourable he was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. Wm. Schofield, W.M. elect, was then installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom, and appointed the following officers: Bros. William J. Kinder, S.W.; Wm. Beswicke, J.W.; A. F. Shore, S.D.; J. Schofield, J.D.; C. M. Jones, P.M., Treasurer; Swift, Secretary; Robert Wren, P.M. D. of C.; Henry Ashworth, I.G.; W. Davis Tyler. The ceremony of Installation was performed by Bro. T. Baker Ashworth, P.M., in the most impressive and eloquent manner. Four candidates were proposed for initiation at next meeting, and the Lodge was then closed. An excellent banquet was served by Bro. McOwen. The usual toasts were proposed by the W.M. Responding to the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, Bro. Jones, P.M., and Bro. Roberts, P.M., both P.P.G. Officers, gave the brethren some interesting information, respecting the proposed East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution.

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—This Lodge met at the Royal Archer Hotel, Dale Street, on the 4th inst. The minutes of last regular meeting, which included the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, were confirmed unanimously. Mr. Wm. Richardson was initiated into Freemasonry. Bro. Caldwell, P.M. D. of C., assisted by Bro. James E. Hall, W.M. 1459, then installed Bro. Charles Joel Kent, W.M. elect, in the chair of K.S., and the ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner. The following officers were appointed by the W.M.:—Bros. James Batchelder, S.W.; Jas. Branton, J.W.; Thos. Tyers, P.M., Treasurer; Wm. John Kinder, Secretary; Robt. Fallows, S.D.; Wm. Cox, J.D.; J. Taylor, I.G.; E. Walton, and R. Wheelton, Stewards; C. Beswick Tyler. Many visitors were present, and the following Lodges were represented, viz.:—Provincial Grand Lodge, 581, 879, 999, 1011, 1077, 1083, 1161, 1219, 1357. After the Lodge was closed, the brethren adjourned to banquet, and to celebrate the Festival of St. John. The usual toasts were given and duly honoured. A handsome P.M.'s jewel had been subscribed for amongst the brethren, and the W.M. presented it to the immediate Past Master, Bro. Smith, who accepted it with an appropriate acknowledgment. An event of a gratifying character was the attendance of Bro. Charles W. Kent, P.M., 879, the W.M.'s father who, within three days afterwards was himself installed first W.M. of the Leopold Lodge, No. 1571, Bermondsey, London. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Batchelder, and all carried out in a creditable manner.

LEICESTER.—JOHN OF GAUNT (No. 523).—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge, was held at Freemason's Hall, Thursday, December 16. The W.M.,

J. T. Thorpe, in the chair, supported by Bros. S. S. Partridge, I.P.M.; W. T. Rowlett; T. A. Wykes, J.W.; W. B. Smith, Treas.; R. Taylor, Secy.; W. C. Shout, S.D.; J. Odell, J.D.; J. Young, I.G.; J. F. Smith, Steward; C. Bembidge, Tyler; and Bros. T. Worthington, W.M., 50; F. J. Baines, P.M.; A. S. Dale, T. R. Pickering, J. M. Padmore, E. W. Potter, J. T. Gunn, W. Chamberlain, W. H. Church, J. M. Quin, S. Knight, J. McAllister, E. Mason, S. Cleaver, G. W. Statham, &c. The Lodge being duly opened, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. gave the first tracing board to the initiates of preceding month. Bros. J. Mitchell, Padmore and Arthur Shallot Dale, having been examined in the first degree, were passed in regular order to the degree of Fellowcraft. Resuming business in the first degree, Bro. Partridge, I.P.M., on behalf of the new Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560, asked a loan of the John of Gaunt furniture, &c. until such time as arrangements then pending could be made for the purchase of a new set at the probable joint expense of the several town lodges, which application was willingly granted. Bro. Partridge, I.P.M., after apologizing for the absence of Bro. C. Stretton, P.M., 279, announced that the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and Freemasons' widows, would be held early in February, and Bro. Stretton having been appointed to represent the province as Steward on that occasion, Bro. Partridge gave notice of motion, that at the next regular meeting he should move, that a donation be voted from the funds of this Lodge to the R.M.B.I., to be placed on Bro. Stretton's list as steward. Apologies for absence having been received from Bros. G. Toller, P.M., and C. Johnson, P.M., Organist, the Lodge was closed in due form.

HERWARD LODGE, BOURN, LINCOLNSHIRE (No. 1,232).—On Wednesday evening, December 8, 1875, this Lodge assembled and unanimously confirmed their previous Lodge minutes in their election of W.M. for the ensuing year. When the Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., P.P.G.C. for Lincolnshire, of Lodges 650, 1,232, and 1,482, and at present P.G.C. for Provincial Royal Arch Chapter, and Mark Grand Lodge for Lincolnshire, was duly installed W.M. of Hereward Lodge (No. 1,232), Bourn, Lincolnshire, 1875-6. The Brethren were favoured with the distinguished presence of two of the Secretaries of our Masonic charities in London to do honour to the new W.M., one of those gentlemen attesting that he had personally known their new W.M. for nearly twenty years, both as a clergyman in the metropolis and as a member of the Craft; and in every relation of life he had proved him a gentleman of the highest honour and integrity. Several high officers, very eminent in the Craft, would have been present had not the weather proved extremely inclement. The brethren, however, who assembled on this auspicious occasion spent a most enjoyable evening, not the shadow of a shade to disturb their harmony. The speeches, too, delivered were admirable, especially those of our London Secretaries on the utility of our Masonic charities, and their urgent claims for support. The Lodge at Bourn has very creditably for some time past worked its way successfully under difficulties; and it is confidently expected that their new Master and his Wardens, with the Past Masters and other honoured Brethren, will fully prove that the Hereward Lodge has undeniable claims for distinction and success, to which it is entitled by charitable exertions and quiet perseverance in well doing.

G. R. Henderson, I.P.M., seconded Mr. Samuel Needs, Loco Fireman, B.B., and C. I. Ry Parel as a candidate for initiation. Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson, I.P.M., then informed the lodge that a letter had been received by Wor. Bro. B. Robinson, P.M., respecting the proposition for Mr. Samuel Needs, but it was received too late to bring before the last regular meeting, so it was sent to the Wor. Mas. W. C. Rowe, and received his sanction to be entered on the summons for the regular meeting of 20th November, 1875. The ballot was then taken for Mr. F. W. Brownnuth, Mr. Jeronimo Accacio De Gama and Mr. Samuel Needs, and announced duly elected. Mr. Thomas William Brownnuth, Mr. Jeronimo Accacio De Gama, and Mr. Samuel Needs, properly prepared, were then duly and respectively admitted and initiated into the secrets and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. Rowe, then said that all Brethren that were in arrears should be informed, that no Brethren in arrears will be entitled to give their vote at the next election, unless they are clear on the books, as per bye-laws (see Voting, Art. XVIII). A letter from Bro. A. W. Seabrook, J. W., was then read, asking to have his name placed on the absent list, at the expiration of his term of office, and was recorded as desired by the Wor. Master. Wor. Bro. G. R. Henderson, I.P.M., then read a letter received from the Wor. Master, which accompanied a very handsome red silk-velvet cushion, with the device, name and number of the lodge, exquisitely worked in gold. This cushion is to have the Volume of the Sacred Law laid thereon. The Brethren being duly informed of the above, a cordial vote of thanks was returned for this most valuable and fraternal gift. A letter from Wor. Bro. Alfred King was then read, asking for a receipt or voucher, to produce should he desire to join a lodge at home, he being on twelvemonths' leave. His absent dues being paid up to June, 1875, inclusive, a certificate was granted. There being no further business before the lodge, it was closed with solemn prayer at 9.50 p.m.

Scotland.

SCOTLAND, PAISLEY.—THE ST. MIRREN LODGE, (No. 129), held a funeral Lodge on Monday evening, the 13th inst., in memory of the late Brothers Alex. Morrison, S.S.P.G.L.R.E., and Geo. Smith, Standard Bearer of the Lodge. The Lodge was opened at seven o'clock by Bro. Henry Sheppard Edmonds, R.W.M., and on the dais were:—Brothers the Rev. W. Fowler Mills, Lodge Chaplain; John Peters, R.W.M., No. 153, Pollokshaws; John Cunningham, I.P.M., No. 347, Rutherglen; Geo. Glen, R.W.M., No. 426, Renfrew; Wm. Lewis, M.D., Houston, R.W.M., No. 242; Alex. McLeod, P.M., No. 129, Paisley; and Thos. Bustard, D.M., No. 129, Paisley. The Wardens' chairs were occupied by Wm. Gemmill, S.W., and George Fisher, J.W., and there was a good attendance.

Rev. Brother Mills said—The solemn occasion, brethren, which brings us together to-night is a striking instance of the uncertainty of life and the vanity of all human pursuits, and it cannot fail to produce those suitable sensations and correct sentiments which such occurrences are peculiarly calculated to inspire. The last offices paid to the dead, although they cannot affect the state of the departed, are useful as lectures to the living. From them we may derive instruction, and consider every solemnity of this kind as a summons to prepare for our own approaching dissolution. In addressing you upon the death of our departed Brothers, much might be advanced relative to them; but it will be needless for me to particularise, as any omission of mine will be readily supplied by many present, who both knew and admired them. The large assembly bears witness to their worth as Masons, and we have every reason to believe that both were esteemed and respected as Christians. Perfection, it is true, is not an attribute of man; in vain may we seek for it in any. Frailty and infirmity cleave inseparably to us all. But whatever were the foibles which they might have shared in common with their species, they were counterbalanced by the redeeming qualities of the heart and mind. Our chief aim, however, is to make this solemn meeting subservient to the important purposes of religious and personal edification. "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return" is a sentence, which, when the fulfilment of it is immediately presented to our eyes, cannot but strike terror into every attentive mind. Who could in reference to the respected subjects of our discourse, abstain from reflecting that the same destiny which has befallen those whom we so lately consigned to the silent chambers of the tomb, awaits himself? "That the place which now knows him shall know him no more for ever?" These words do not affect the immediate connection only of the departed, they speak aloud to us all. A voice from the tomb's echoes back the awakening declaration of the Scriptures which assures us, "That man walketh in a vain show." What is our life? "It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time then vanishes away. Death, that indiscriminate leveller brings down the vigour of manhood with as much certainty as he crushes the helplessness of infancy or sweeps away the decrepitude of age. If reflections on that awful event tend to depress the pride of the human heart, so should they also elevate their thoughts to that higher world, where no sorrows are ever permitted to damp the ardour of our joys, and where no corroding causes invade that fulness of felicity which, in inexhaustible streams is poured out continually upon its blessed inhabitants, to that celestial city where the sun shall be no more thy light by day, neither shall the moon give to thee by night; but the Lord shall be unto thee as an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. When the warning stroke comes to us, shall it find us with faces and hearts turned towards the heavenly Jerusalem, seeking with full purpose of mind the mansions of the blessed, or shall it find us combined about much serving—swallowed up in worldly cares, and given over to the lusts of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life. Let me urge upon you the necessity of preparing for the momentous issue towards which we are all rapidly hastening. Every succeeding hour and minute is numbering many with the silent dead. As it is appointed unto men once for all to die, so after death is the judgment—that awful hour when the universal register of every act, word, and thought, shall be unfolded before an assembled world, angels and arch-angels assisting at that last assize. How important then, is readiness for death. Remember, it will come whether we are ready or not. And, oh, how often it comes at an unexpected hour. How many go to bed well, and never rise more. How many go out from home well, and never return! Some are snatched away in the midst of their amusements, and others while engaged in their calling. How necessary then to be always ready—to be ready now. Delay in this case is dangerous, indeed, almost all men talk of preparing at some time when sickness brings them to the brink of the grave or when relatives or neighbours are removed they promise themselves they will repent, but often the impression dies away. The world like the returning tide fills their hearts with its pleasures and cares and the writing on the sand is all obliterated, so dies in human hearts thoughts of death. If a man is living in sin he cannot be happy; he may try to be happy by forgetting death; but he cannot forget it, and he cannot enjoy life for fear of death. On the other hand, happy is the life of that man who has hope through grace. He truly enjoys life, and he may smile at death. He may say, "For me to live is Christ, and die is gain. While I live here Christ is with me; when I die I shall be with Christ." O let us prepare to follow our departed friends, favoured with an early call to glory, whilst we remain here below; let us be active for God, let us support with propriety the character of our Order, by a holy life and religious conversation; let us live each day as if it were the last; let us live to-day as if we were never to see to-morrow, of the very existence of which none of us are at all assured. Let us strive to enter in at the narrow gate which leadeth unto everlasting life, and walk worthy of the high vocation to which we are called, that as we may at last arrive at those blessed mansions of glory where we shall join our kindred spirits around the throne, where the corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and where there shall be no more death. This, we beg, for the honour of Christ's name, to whom be glory now and for ever. Amen.

A beautiful and impressive funeral service was gone through, at the conclusion of which the Right Worshipful Masters, who accompanied Brother Edmonds to the dais, were unanimously elected as honorary members of the Paisley, St. Mirrens' Lodge. Thereafter the Lodge was closed and the benediction pronounced by the Chaplain.

GLASGOW.—LODGE "KENMUIR," (No. 570).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, 16th inst., in their lodge-room, Eastfield-place, Springburn, and was numerously attended by the members and visiting brethren, Brother John Law, R.W.M., presiding. Bro. Robert Aikman (Master elect), and the other office bearers in their respective places. The business before the meeting was the installation of office-bearers; the ceremony was performed by Brother John Law, I.P.M., in a most impressive manner, after which the brethren saluted the newly-elected R.W.M. with the usual honours. The R.W.M. then complimented Bro. Law for the way he had discharged the duties of the chair since the erection of the lodge; he had won the good opinion of all the brethren from his untiring efforts to promote the interests of Lodge Kenmuir. The lodge was then transferred from labour to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and after the Tyler's toast the lodge was recalled to labour, and closed in due form.

KILBURCHAM.—LODGE ST. BURCHAM (No. 156).—A special meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, 15th inst., for the purpose of installing the office-bearers who had been elected on St. Andrew's night. Bro. Daniel Cunningham presided, and performed the ceremony of installation. The office-bearers for the ensuing year are as follows:—William Lewis, M.D. (Houston), R.W.M.; D. Cunningham, I.P.M.; Andrew Buchanan, D.M.; D. Scrymgeour, S.M.; R. Craig, S.W.; John Orr, J.W.; W. Kirkland, Ireus; Anst. Grant, Sec.; J. Wylie, S.D.; Jas. Stevenson, J.D.; John Hill, B.B.; W. Crawford, S.B.; Peter Woodrow, Architect; Alex. Anderson, S.S.; R. Caldwell, J.S.; J. Lindsay, I.G.; and A. Mitchell, Tyler. Bro. Dr. Lewis, R.W.M., having returned thanks to Bro. Cunningham for having presided, it was unanimously agreed to celebrate the Festival of St. John on 22nd December, after which the lodge was closed in proper form.

ACCIDENTS.—So frequent are carriage accidents becoming, both in town and country, that the total is said to number over one hundred thousand annually, and it is a fact, proved beyond all question, that accidental injury to vehicles of all kinds is greatly on the increase. Many accidents are occasioned by the carelessness of drivers and furious driving; and it is a feature in insurance, highly commendable to the company, and deserving of notice, that we call attention to a coachman's good-conduct bonus, given by The London and Provincial Carriage Insurance Company, Limited, 17, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., to encourage as much as possible the steadiness of servants having the charge of carriages and horses. In the company's detailed prospectus every information is given as to the frequent sources of accidents to vehicles (the annual damage being estimated at nearly £500,000) with rate of insurance, &c., that will commend itself to private, professional, and commercial readers. All who are in the habit of driving can realize the continual dangers to which they are exposed, and an accident easily occasioned often results in severe pecuniary loss. A policy of insurance in this company is a full indemnification against loss. Conducted on sound principles, The London and Provincial Carriage Insurance Company is deserving of the warmest support.

departure to India, took place, which was warmly expressed and graciously received. November saw the departure of our Royal Grand Master for India, where his journey has been, so far, one great success, and where he has won golden opinions from all. He assisted at a Masonic ceremony at Bombay. December brought special meetings of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, the former to enquire into certain alleged errors in the accounts, the latter to consider a scheme for increasing its accommodation. In the former case the Special Committee has reported that no grounds exist for such perverse charges; in the latter the committee has yet finally to report. Bro. Erasmus Wilson, M.D., well known for his zeal and benevolence, was entertained at a complimentary dinner; and Bro. the Earl of Zetland, nephew and heir of our old chief and Prov.G.M. for North and East Yorkshire, was exalted in the Zetland Chapter, York. During the last twelve months very many lodges, alike in town and the provinces, have been added to the English muster roll, which will apparently soon reach 1600. We note especially the "Chaucer," and the new lodge at the Surrey Masonic Hall, "The Carnarvon," and many others, too many in fact to name here, where the consecration ceremonies have been marked by heartiness of tone, and effectiveness of ritual. In many of these our worthy and admirable Grand Secretary took, most effectively, the leading part. English Masonic provincial life and work have proceeded during 1875 with increasing energy, and our great provinces are teeming with active and young and zealous members. A large numerical addition has been made to our Order, but we hope that our lodges will never forget the good old motto "Festina lente." It appears to us, that just now we want, so to say, "tightening up," as regards the admission of members. Abroad Masonry has gone on, and still is going on, favourably and prosperously on the whole. The Masonic Congress at Lausanne seems to have been a great success, and alike in Italy and France, Freemasonry seems to be regaining its normal position. The one great defect of much of individual and lodge Freemasonry abroad, is a tendency to deal with very questionable subjects, and much needed reform must be introduced in many jurisdictions if Freemasonry is ever to rise to the proper level of its true mission. Freemasonry has nothing properly to do with politics, affairs of state, or religious controversies, nor even social questions, and the sooner some of our foreign brethren realize this undoubted truth, the better for Freemasonry and for themselves. The Roman Catholic Church has continued impetuously through 1875 its hopeless and ill-advised crusade against Freemasonry, and there appears at present no lull in the fury of the storm, no abatement in the violence of our traducers. That religious body has certainly evinced great "cursing powers," and despite the deprecatory remarks of that amiable Roman Catholic, Sir George Bowyer, as regards our Order the Church of Rome has been, and still is, a "cursing church." It is all excessively silly and meaningless. If the Roman Catholic authorities have to complain of the words or acts of lodges or brethren abroad, their best plan is not to notice them, but for the most part their grievances are really imaginary, and their facts utter fictions. The worst feature of the case to our mind is, their deliberate "suppressio veri" and "suggestio falsi" in lumping all Freemasons together as revolutionists, conspirators, infidels, &c., whereas they know that in Great Britain, and America, and Canada, to say nothing of Germany and Holland, at any rate, Freemasonry is a non-political body. There may be some foolish and violent brethren, there as everywhere, but the great mass is loyal to Masonic principles. Indeed, as far as we are aware, no grand orient or governing body anywhere can be charged with interference in political matters. If the Church of Rome likes to continue "cursing and swearing," persecuting and even desecrating the graves of Freemasons, she will eventually disgust and alienate her more enlightened children, and she will assuredly receive, as she will merit, the censure of indignant humanity. We have had to deplore the loss of many worthy brethren alike in th metropolis and in the provinces, like Bros. Savage, Llewellyn Evans, Freeman and Franklin, "cum multis aliis," all good men and true, and "worthy Freemasons," whose Masonic place on earth knows them no more. Peace be to them. We give a detailed list elsewhere. Freemasonry in England leaves the old year and awaits a new, alike prosperous and peaceful, contented and united. It is moving on. Loyalty and charity are emblazoned on its "Banner of Blue," together with toleration and freedom, benevolence and goodwill, the right of conscience, and the sanctity of honest conviction. We have no doubt as to the result of the struggle. 1876 we trust will witness a still greater manifestation of Masonic principles and charitable efforts, and our good old Craft leaves an old year behind it, if somewhat sadly with the memories of parted comrades, yet with bright anticipations of its work and witness in the new year which lies before it.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER'S VISIT TO INDIA.

The following interesting account from Madras appears in the "Times" of the 20th:—If all goes on well, the Serapis, in company with the Osborne and the Raleigh, will leave Madras Roads before 5 o'clock on the 19th. Great preparations are being made. Although not in bed till past 2, after a hard day's work, the Prince went out hunting soon after dawn this morning, and was rewarded by a nine-mile run and kill. The Princess of Tanjore visited the Prince at Government House, and was presented to the ladies of the Duke's family. The Prince was introduced at a corner screened off. The Prince put out his hand, and the Princess grasped it. Mr. Henderson interpreted, the Princess of Tanjore speaking little English. She styled the Prince her Royal brother, and spoke of the Queen as her Royal sister. Next the Prince drove to a children's fête at the People's Park, where immense crowds had assembled. It was a pretty sight. Thousands of children sang and played games. The Prince was loudly cheered on leaving to attend the review. A vast multitude was present. Two batteries (A and C) of the 20th Brigade, and a detachment of the 16th Lancers, formed the body guard. The 80th (Europeans), the Madras Volunteers, the 10th, 13th, 14th, and 37th Madras Infantry (Natives), marched past. They looked well. The Prince dined with the Commander-in-Chief. All day the people are in the streets, and remain waiting for hours to see the Prince. The preparations for the illuminations are very extensive. The people are not so demonstrative as at Bombay, nor do they clap hands as in the South, but they are not less enthusiastic. The Prince will never see in India or elsewhere any spectacle so strange and awful as what was called the "illumination of the surf." Neither pen nor pencil can give any idea of it. It was weirdly beautiful, exciting, grand. As if to render homage to the occasion, the wind had risen and the surf was high. The sight was fine on the pier, through the base of which ran curling breakers. Seats were placed for the Prince, the Governor, his family, and suite out of the reach of the spray. The buildings along the beach, transparencies, and triumphal arches, all brilliantly illuminated, formed a background, above which rose steeples, columns, and lamps. Southwards, where the rollers swept up to the roadway, there were rows of natives with blazing torches and blue lights. There was occasionally a wash of larger billows behind the multitude, and facing seawards an ocean of white turbans. The Serapis, Osborne, and Raleigh were illuminated outside. Between the outer darkness and the beach the moonlight now and then revealed dark objects rising and falling on the billows. The Prince having arrived from dinner with the Commander-in-Chief, after a grand discharge from the ship Raleigh, there was one flight of 190 coloured rockets. The Osborne and Serapis vied with each other in the display. It seemed as if volcanoes were emitting volumes of coloured flames. Presently appeared fires, here and there seawards, amid waves drifting landwards, like fire ships from afar. These multiplied, dipping, rising, now and then, through the waves, while occasionally came a light from the other side. It had an immense effect. Suddenly from the beach dashed the black forms of Masouwah boats and catamarans, which, amid the wildest yells, charged into the serried ranks of the foam-crested breakers, and dark objects seaward were revealed, as the boats tossed violently on the outer ridge of the breakers. There never was such an awful regatta. Amid a sea now black as ink, now like fire glistening jet, in a creaming surf the catamaran men were swept off and regained their craft, or disappeared beneath the billows. There was an awful suspense till they were landed safe on the beach. The Masouwah boats, swept from stem to stern by the breakers, forced their way into the smoother sea, to return still more animated. Their skill is beyond praise. These hardy fellows, watching an opportunity, keep the top of the wave by tremendous efforts, and are borne past with wonderful velocity, yet emerge safely from each succeeding breaker. This extraordinary spectacle was renewed repeatedly. One might fancy it a combat of water gods. The people amid the blue lights, the rockets, and the boiling surf remained almost quiet. It was midnight before the Prince drove off to the native festival. The crowd broke in, followed, and surrounded the Prince's open carriage. The railway station was converted into a reception hall. The sides, pillars, and roofs were decorated with wonderful richness. It was filled with many thousands of Europeans, Asiatics, Hindoos, and Mussulmans, who had waited two hours. The Prince was seated in a silver chair on a raised dais.

MASONIC LIBRARIES.

It is very remarkable how very little we Freemasons, for the most part, know of our own Masonic literature. Indeed, one of the objections to Masonic libraries used to be of old, that we had not books enough to fill them, and that with the exception of the stereotyped editions of Oliver's Works, Preston's History, Ash, Calcott, Smith and Hutchinson, Laurie, and the various editions of Anderson's Constitutions, we had not many books worth reading, and certainly not worth buying. There were, indeed, smaller works like "Freemasons' Companions," and Collections of Songs, and "Ahiman Rezon" and Cole's and Finch's works, but we have heard it generally contended, once upon a time, that such works would exhaust our Masonic literature. Mr. Heckethorn, amid his other amenities, and his lamentable caricature of our Order, has specially gone out of his way to say that we have practically "no literature." But, in this, as in a good many other details of his recent work, he only demonstrates to bona-fide Masonic students how very little he knows of the subject on which he so dogmatically dilates. Will it surprise our readers to be told, that Freemasonry has a large literature of its own and one that is rapidly increasing? Indeed, at this moment, we may fairly point to such works as D. M. Lyon's History of the Lodge of Edinburgh, Findel's History of Freemasonry, Steinbrenner's Smaller Essay, Mackey's Encyclopædia, Fort's History of Freemasons, Bro. Hughan's Collection of the Constitutions, and many more, as works of which as an Order we may all be proud, critically. In Germany especially, the writings of Kloss, Krause, Mossdorff, Winzer, Fessler, Schauberg, and many others deserve the highest commendation, archæologically, intellectually, and scientifically. We will, therefore, leave Mr. Heckethorn in all of contemptuous silence henceforth to his own remarkable display of knowledge of our Fraternity, whether as regards its real history, its true teaching, its literature or its habits, its endeavours or its end. Some thirty years ago Kloss published his remarkable "Bibliographie der Freimaurerei," which must ever remain the great "vade mecum" of Masonic bibliomaniacs, and the one text book of Masonic Bibliography. That work contained close upon the names of 6000 works, and many publications have been issued yearly since from the German, French, American (including Scotch and Irish), and Dutch Masonic press, to say nothing of many minor contributions from other countries. Indeed, we do not know of another Order in existence which has on the whole such a very wonderful amount of actual literature to offer, alike to its "alumni" and to the "profane world." No doubt amid the "wheat" there is a good deal of "chaff;" no doubt too all that often passes under the name of Masonic literature does not deserve the name at all. We have, we admit, to make many deductions from the gross total, in consequence of uncritical theories, unreliable statements, and empirical views. But when we peruse the careful pages of Kloss we must be struck not only by the diversity of subjects but the wideness of range which mark our Masonic literature. History and tradition, ritual and laws, attack and defence, poetry and the drama, philosophy and archæology, numismatology and biography, all are there classified and abounding, and every collector of Masonic books is fully aware how many Masonic works really exist, and how many even of which for the most part we know nothing about. And the only way to bring such knowledge home to the minds of Freemasons is the creation of Masonic libraries. There are plenty of Masonic works, old and modern, to be found, and every Masonic library at a reasonable outlay, and under the advice of a competent librarian, can now procure many curious productions to fill its shelves. In our opinion it has long been a standing reproach to our Order that our libraries are so sparse and our readers so few. We believe that the absence of libraries has tended to encourage and add to our Craft apathy on the subject. At any rate, the time seems to have come when in all our Masonic halls libraries should be formed and books should be collected, and readers and students should both be encouraged. We think we have said enough to show that there is no real difficulty in the matter, if only we will but have it so. The staple product is forthcoming, and all that is really wanted is pecuniary support or generous aid. To our younger and sapient brethren, "Verbum sat."

ROMAN CATHOLIC INTOLERANCE.

Our readers will, we fear, be almost tired of such a subject, and yet we seem to have no other course left open to us, but again to call attention to the mournful and indubitable fact. We publish a very sad recital of a very lamentable outbreak of Roman Catholic feeling against a Freemason and a Protestant in South America, and we beg to invite the attention of Roman Catholics themselves to it. An English Freemason and Protestant, Bro. Wallace, was interred in the public cemetery at Guayacan. After a time it was quite clear, by ocular demonstration, that the coffin had been disturbed, and, as we understand the painful recital, the body removed from the coffin. And, what adds to the grotesque barbarity of the whole proceeding, a cross appears to have been marked on the wall of the cemetery near to the grave, to point out, we suppose, what had been effected in the name of religion, peace, and charity, and, above all, professedly in His blessed Name who came to show love and pity to all the human race, and died on the actual cross to save all mankind. A more saddening narrative of bigotry never was sent to us, a more depressing evidence of human intolerance never came before our notice. We are accustomed, indeed, to fierce anathemas and bellicose bishops; we have read, and read quite calmly, unfounded calumnies and bitter incriminations. We have even got quite accustomed to the violence of Ultramontane abuse, and the assertions and announcements, equally erroneous and untrue, of so-called infallible authority. But to realise that the war with the living is to be perpetuated in the quiet cemetery, to know that death, which levels all distinctions, closes all debates, and hushes all strife, is not, from the Ultramontane view, to put an end to the rancour or the antagonism of earth, is, indeed, most painful to every thoughtful mind. For surely, just as we cannot carry away our riches with us when we are deposited in the silent grave, when, as children of the dust, we find our common level, so surely in the one resting-place of humanity, there should be deposited the angry passions and the intolerant animosities which divide us from one another here, and mar the peaceful progress of society with hateful variance and cruel strife. Indeed, moralists and philosophers have often rejoiced to think and to believe there was one spot where human passions would be stilled, where the bitter hatred and the deadly dislike might be unknown, when over the excited imagination, the busy brain, the perverse disposition, and the tenacious will, might fall, so to say, the peaceful slumber of that intermediate state, which stretches out in its unfathomable mystery and silence, and sternness and repose, between earth and Heaven, between time and eternity. The popular saying has ever been, whether sound or unsound, or even "humbug," as Archdeacon Grantley remarked, "di mortuis nil nisi bonum," and we all of us more or less feel, we believe, be we who we may, that in the grave all enmities should end, and in death all old griefs, and complaints, and wrath should be at any rate forgotten. But the Church of Rome, with hazardous boldness, seems to say, "I am above the 'consensus' of humanity; I ignore the most deeply rooted sentiments of mortals. 'Extra Ecclesiam nulla salus'; and for those who defy my laws, for those who reject my teaching, who claim liberty of conscience, or avow a difference of belief, I have curses while living; I have no forgiveness when dead." For we feel sure of this, that were it not for this detestable teaching, worthy only of the "Avvocato del Diavolo," Roman Catholics, who are not unlike other men, would never be consenting parties to, or share in, such revolting inhumanity, by which affection is deeply wounded, and which is indeed an outrage on every kindly feeling of the human race. But we have said enough on so humiliating a topic, humiliating alike to all who, like ourselves, believe in the regeneration of humanity. And having called attention to the subject, as was our imperative duty, we leave it in all its morbid sadness of stern and indubitable truth, to the bitterest of Ultramontane assailants, and the appreciation of our universal brotherhood.

COMPARATIVE COST OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

Owing to press of matter, and our Christmas number, we defer until next week our remarks on this subject. We do so the more readily as the subject is not very pressing, nor, to say the truth, very important.
