WEST DERBY.—PENNYROCK LODGE (No. 1299).—The annual installation meeting of this excellent suburban lodge was held on Friday, the 19th inst., at the West Derby Hotel, West Derby, near Liverpool, where there was a very large and influential gathering of members and visitors. The business commenced shortly before three o'clock, when the lodge was opened by Bro. Peter Macmurdrow, W.M., and the officers who supported him at the initial proceedings were Bros. Joseph Clegg, I.P.M.; Wm. Crane, P.M.; W. Jones, S.W.; R. Bennett, J.W.; H. Liversage, Treasurer; A. E. Kirkpatrick, Secretary; G. Aspinall, J.D.; J. Capell, I.G.; W. S. Bennett, Steward; and H. Robinson, Tyler. The members of the lodge present were Bros. W. Brown, W. Hiles, J. Sutcliffe, P.M.; F. R. Bramham, J. Stephenson, J. Lonsdale, H. Hargreaves, T. Baxter, J. Holmes, J. Dawson, and J. Christian. The visitors present were Bros. W. Doyle, P. Prov. J. G. D., P.M. 667; J. Skeaf, P.G. Org., P.M. 216; J. Lunt, P.G.S., P.M. 1086; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; Rev. Dr. Hyde, 1016; J. P. Bryan, O. 1035; C. Humphries, W.M. 1013; R. Yelland, S.W. 1094; W. J. Chapman, 667; H. Nelson, W.M. 1505, P.M. 673; W. Wood, P.M. 1182; W. T. May, P.M. 673; R. Brown, S.W. 241, &c. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Wm. Jones, the W.M. elect, was presented to Bro. J. Clegg, P.M., by Bro. P. Macmurdrow, P.M., and Bro. Crane, P.M., for the benefit of installation. Bro. Clegg last year performed this ceremony in a remarkably effective manner, and although called upon for the second time at a few hours' notice, he went through the performance of the installation and the investiture proceedings in a creditable manner. Bro. Wm. Jones, after being placed in the chair of W.M. with the usual ceremonial, chose the following as his officers:—Bros. P. Macmurdrow, I.P.M.; Richard Bennett, S.W.; G. Aspinall, J.W.; H. Liversage, Treasurer, (unanimously re-elected for the third time); A. G. Kirkpatrick, Secretary; J. Capell, S.D.; W. S. Bennett, J.D.; John Dawson, I. G.; Joseph Clegg, P.M., D.C.; John Holme, S.S.; W. Hiles, J.S.; and H. Robinson, Tyler. At the conclusion of business, the brethren sat down to a capital banquet, provided by Bro. Rawlinson, "mine host" of the hotel in which the meeting was held. The W.M. briefly gave the toasts, "The Queen and the Craft," "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England, R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, and his Deputy, Bro. the Right Hon. F. Stanley." "The Health of the W.M." was pointedly and happily proposed by Bro. P. Macmurdrow, I.P.M., and then followed the toast of "The Installing Master, Bro. J. Clegg, P.M." The W.M. afterwards proposed "The I.P.M., Bro. P. Macmurdrow," to whom, in the name of the lodge, he presented a handsome Past Master's jewel, referring to the excellent way in which he had fulfilled the duties of the chair. "The Past Masters of No. 1299" was responded to by Bro. W. Crane, P.M.; "The Officers of No. 1299," by the S.W., Bro. R. Bennett; "The Visitors," by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Hyde; and "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," Bro. R. Brown, the Hon. Sec. to the noble charity. The Tyler's Toast brought the after-dinner proceedings to a termination at an early hour, and afterwards the lodge was closed in due form.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—The brethren of this lodge responded very numerously to the call of the W.M., which summoned them together for Masonic business on Tuesday the 16th inst., at Bro. Plock's, the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge Road, and some twenty visitors were also present to share in the working of the lodge, and the subsequent festivities which crowned the occasion, it being the night of installation in the lodge. The lodge was opened in due form at the appointed hour by Bro. Charles Smith, W.M., and founder, who, during his tenure of office, since the consecration of the lodge in the year before last, has discharged the duties of the chair in a manner which we trust will be long treasured up in the memories of the brethren of the Ivy Lodge, as one to be followed and imitated by every succeeding W.M. More especially we signal out for special approbation his careful husbanding of the funds of the lodge, the balance-sheet showing that the lodge has obtained, during its brief existence under his Mastership, a very satisfactory position, being not only free from debt, but with a considerable sum devoted to the benefit of the Masonic charities, and the promotion of a private benevolent fund attached to the lodge. Bro. Smith, who, we were sorry to observe, was suffering from indisposition, having opened the lodge, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed; the lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. D. H. Ashford was investigated as to his proficiency in the science preparatory to his being raised to the sublime degree, which was ultimately conferred upon him. The lodge having again been resumed to the proper degree, Bro. C. A. Cottelbrune, P.G.P., presented Bro. G. Matlock, S.W. and W.M. Elect, to receive from the hands of the W.M. the benefit of installation, a duty which was discharged by Bro. Smith in a manner which elicited the highest compliments and felicitations from the many eminent brethren who were present; he was rapturously applauded at the termination of his labours. In due course the officers were appointed for the ensuing year. Bro. Smith addressing each in appropriate terms on the duties of his station, viz., Bros. J. J. Cantle, S.W.; C. F. Poupard, J. W.; Smith, Treasurer; C. St. Jolly, Secretary; L. Cornelissen, S.D.; W. Ashwell, J.D.; J. F. K. Smith, I.G.; T. H. Cox, W.S.; R. Forster, D.C.; and G. T. Fox, P.M., Tyler. The ceremony of installation being concluded, the newly installed W.M. gave the brethren a taste of his quality, by initiating in a very creditable manner, Messrs. A. H. Miller and R. M. C. Gloag, two professional gentlemen of eminence, after which Bro. Matlock addressed the brethren thus:—"Brethren, I have now a duty to perform, which occasions me great satisfaction and pleasure. It is to present to Bro. Chas. Smith, our retiring W.M., a jewel, as a token of the affection and high esteem in which he is held by the members of the Ivy Lodge, and also a testimonial on vellum, expressing those sentiments entertained by the brethren. I need not make any comment upon his abilities as a Mason, or upon his conduct in public and private capacity. Suffice it to say that he is every where equally respected by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance and friendship. May he live long to be amongst us." The jewel was then affixed to Bro. Smith's breast, and the testimonial presented, which was elaborately emblazoned and surrounded with an admirably executed border, emblematic of the plant from which the lodge derives its name, and bearing the following inscription:—"Ivy Lodge, No. 1441: This testimonial, accompanying a Past Master's jewel, is presented to Bro. Charles Smith, one of the Founders and First Worshipful Master of the above Masonic lodge, upon his retirement from office, as a token of the sincere respect and admiration entertained by the brethren for the efficient manner in which he fulfilled the duties of that important position. In verification of which we have subscribed our names this 16th March, 1875. (Signed)." Bro. Smith expressed his acknowledgement in a few well chosen sentences, which showed that he fully appreciated the kind expressions of good will emanating from the brethren. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren proceeded to the Bridge House Hotel, where a superb banquet awaited them. The retiring W.M. was unable to remain with the brethren, having only left a sick room to discharge what to him was a solemn and imperative duty; and his absence from the banquet table was most materially felt.

HAMPTON HILL.—FRANCIS BURDETT LODGE (No. 1503).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel on the 10th inst. In consequence of the unavoidable absence of Bro. Col. Wigginton, the W.M., the proceedings were opened by Bro. Hammond, P.M., and W.M. of 1512, who kindly officiated in his stead, assisted by Bros. Saunders, S.W.; Tomlinson, P.G.S.D. of Norfolk, J.W.; Walls, acting S.D.; Deekes, J.D.; Vinaggo, Treasurer; Mitchell, Secretary; Jenkins, acting I.G.; Harrison, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Hammond raised Bros. Court and Vaughan to the sublime degree. The ceremony was well carried out. Bro. Horsley, P.M., &c., then assumed the position of W.M. and passed Bro. Bennett to the degree of Fellow Craft in an excellent manner. The W.M., Bro. Col. Wigginton, having arrived, then initiated Mr. W. Taylor into the Craft with his customary ability. The notice of motion, given by the W.M. at the last meeting, that the W.M. of the Francis Burdett Lodge for the time being should have the sum of £10 10s. voted to him to head his list as Steward to one of the three charities, was then fully discussed, and ultimately a resolution was unanimously passed to the effect that the W.M. for the time being, or a member should become a Life Governor of one of the three charities alternately. The W.M. also moved that a Masonic lending library should be formed and a Committee appointed to carry it out consisting of the W.M., P.M.'s the Wardens, the Secretary, and the Treasurer, who should be annually elected. This was seconded by the S.W. and unanimously carried. The W.M. further moved that a Lodge of Instruction—to be held under the sanction of the lodge—should be formed as soon as practicable; this was also seconded by the S.W. and carried without dissent. In introducing the next and last motion on the agenda as to the removal of the lodge, on account of the insufficiency of accommodation, the W.M. stated that he had personally used every endeavour to obtain at the last licensing sessions a licence for the house, but on account of the strong opposition and influence of one of the residents, the application was refused, and he believed that another petition would fare no better next year, and consequently, although he would rather have remained at the King's Arms Hotel, yet, as many of the brethren resided in town, it was necessary that some place should be obtained where the trains were more frequent, and where adequate refreshment and other accommodation could be obtained. He then called upon Bro. Horsley, P.M., to move a resolution upon the matter. Bro. Horsley said that as he had on the last occasion brought the matter forward at length, he should not trouble the brethren with many remarks on the subject that evening, but as he had heard that there was good accommodation to be had at the Albany Hotel, Twickenham Station, and as there were frequent trains to and from town from that place he should move that the Francis Burdett Lodge should be removed to the Albany Hotel, subject to the sanction and approval of Col. Burdett, the P.G.M. of Middlesex, or to some other place in its vicinity. This resolution was seconded by Bro. Saunders and unanimously carried, and a committee—consisting of the W.M., the Wardens and Bros. Horsley, Knaggs, and Mitchell, appointed to visit upon Col. Burdett upon the matter, and, if his consent were obtained, to immediately carry out the necessary arrangements. Some minor business having been transacted the lodge was duly closed and the brethren departed.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The regular March meeting of this lodge was held on the 18th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 69, Pentonville-road, under the presidency of Bro. James Willing, junr., W.M. Among the brethren present were Bros. J. J. Michael, S.W.; T.

Williams, J.W.; R. Rose, Treas.; George Tims, Sec.; H. Child, S.D.; R. T. Kingham, J.D.; J. T. Doreglass, I.G.; R. Fowler, D.C.; C. Scales, Steward; Rapkin, Side; Coles, Check; Tims, jun., Easy, Sainsbury, Shand, Cavet, Stiles, Gilbert, Clarke, Horton; and visitors, Bros. Tubbs, P.M.; Harris, P.M.; and H. M. Levy, P.M. Bros. Trimmings, H. G. Rapkin, Rogers, J. Timms and Hatton were raised, and Bros. Sainsbury, Shand and Tritton, passed; after which Mr. William Read, of Holford-place, was initiated into the Order. The brethren then proceeded with the elections, and Bro. Michael, S.W., was chosen W.M. for the next year. Bro. R. Rose was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. H. Daly, T. A motion of the W.M.'s was carried, "that a sumee festival, at which ladies are to be present, be held in the month of July," and a committee consisting of Bros. Scales, Side, Rapkin, Check, and Jones, was appointed to carry out the details. A P.M. jewel of the value of ten guineas was voted by Bro. Willing for the success which the lodge had attained during his year of office, there being now forty eight members on the roll. It was decided to have an emergency meeting on the 15th proximo for the dispatch of business, and the lodge was afterwards closed. The lodge work was succeeded by an excellent banquet, and the brethren wound up the evening by honouring the usual masonic toasts.

HAMPTON.—HEMMING LODGE (No. 1512).—A strong meeting of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, Hampton, on Thursday, the 18th inst., it being the last meeting of the season, and the night of election of W.M. The proceedings commenced at six o'clock in the evening. There were present—Bros. Hammond, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326, P.G.S. Middlesex, &c., W.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, S.W.; S. Hill, P.M. of several lodges, J.W.; J. Hammond, P.M., Sec.; Rowe, P.M. 969, acting I.P.M.; Hurst, S.D.; Walls, 141, 1381, W.S. 1503, I.G., acting J.D.; Jessop, acting I.G.; Gilbert, G.T. of Middlesex, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. Watts, P.M. 201; Carvell, P.M. 201; Wagner, S.W. 201; Jenkins, 382, 1503; Sadler, 1293. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, initiated Mr. Kent into the mysteries of the Craft, and passed Bro. Arnold to the second degree. The impressive ceremonies of both degrees were carefully and ably performed by the W.M. The Secretary then formally read the bye-laws, in compliance with the Book of Constitutions, which were passed without dissent. The ballot was then taken for the election of a Worshipful Master, which resulted in Bro. Hopwood, the S.W., being unanimously elected. The W.M. congratulated the S.W. on his success, and assured the lodge that their choice had fallen on a brother who would reflect honour on the position, as he was a P.M. of many years standing of one of the oldest lodges in the City of London. Bro. Hopwood having returned thanks, the ballot was taken for the election of a Treasurer in the place of Bro. Jephson, who had resigned that office in consequence of failing health, which ballot unanimously resulted in favour of Bro. Rowe, P.M. 969. A vote of condolence was ordered to be sent to the widow and family of Bro. Limpus, P.G.O. of Middlesex, Organist of the lodge, whose melancholy and premature death has cast a gloom in Masonic circles, where he had endeared himself by the exercise of those genial and musical abilities which he so amply possessed. Bro. Hopwood moved and Bro. Hill seconded, which was unanimously passed, that a Past Master's jewel should be presented at the next meeting to the W.M., who had carried out the duties of his position so ably. Bro. Hammond in reply to this mark of confidence and esteem said that he should prefer that the sum kindly voted by the lodge to purchase the decoration should be devoted towards purchasing a life governorship of one of the charities for some member of his family. The J.W. then addressed the lodge and said he hoped the W.M. would not pass the matter in that way, as he was of opinion that a P.M.'s jewel should always be awarded a W.M., when found deserving of the distinction, and should be worn by him as an incentive to those young members who were anxious to attain the chair. Bro. Walls also supported this view and said that as the W.M. was one of the founders of the lodge, and would hold next year the proud position of being first P.M., it was a duty he owed the lodge to accept the jewel and he respectfully hoped that Bro. Hammond would accede to the general wish of the lodge on the matter. The W.M. said that after the views that had been expressed by the several speakers and the unanimous vote of the lodge having been taken he would withdraw his request that the money should be devoted to one of the charities and desired to express his grateful acknowledgment for the honour of receiving a Past Master's jewel, which had been so kindly awarded him by his brethren of the Hemming Lodge. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, and the brethren having partaken of refreshment, the lodge was adjourned until October next.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MINGO (No. 27).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's hall, Buchanan-street, on the 18th inst. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported on the dais by Bros. Geo. Sinclair, P.M.; Archdeacon McTaggart, D.M.; Jas. W. Burns, R.W.M. 87; John Miller, P.M. 87; Alex. Bain, P.M. 103; and A. R. Wilson, Chaplain 27. Bros. Dr. McInnes, S.W.; McComb, J.W.; and W. Niven, Secretary, occupied their respective positions. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and passed, the chairman announced that at their next regular meeting, on 1st proximo, they would have the annual visitation of the P.G.L. of Glasgow, and thereafter would be favoured with a lecture from the Rev. Mr. Jamieson, of St. Matthew's Established Church. In the latter he expected a treat, and he hoped they would have a large and respectable meeting. The lodge was then called for a short time to refreshment, during which the chairman proposed the toast of "The Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupled with the name of Bro. Geo. Sinclair, Treasurer and convener of the P.G.L. Benevolent Fund. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Sinclair said he hoped that P.G.L. would be found continuing on as they had done in the past. It had done a good deal to raise the status of Masonry generally in the province, to keep the working of the various lodges in proper order, and see that their books were correctly kept, and in relieving poor and distressed persons—widows of Masons especially—who might have claims upon their sympathy. This last year, towards the fund, they had received from the lodges, from initiation fees, £190 5s., which represented, an addition of 761, to the membership of the Order, being an increase of 61 over the year preceding. Their total income for the year was about £215, and they had disbursed in charity the sum of £100. In some instances the grants awarded were of £4, £5, and even £6, respectively. They had also been instrumental in aiding not a few into a way of doing for themselves; one case being that of a widow whom they had managed to put into a little shop, whereby she now not only supported herself, but five of a family. The present gross capital of the fund was about £750; but the R.W.P.G.M. was presently taking steps to interest in the matter a few gentlemen who did not attend lodges, but could well spare a £5 note; and he (the speaker) saw no reason why they should not before long have £1,000 invested. When that was accomplished, they would be able to do much more in the way of benevolence. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" was then given by the S.W., and responded to by Bros. Burns, R.W.M. 87; A. C. Lindsay-Gray, D.M. 102; and A. Sage, P.M. 4. The lodge having thereafter been recalled to labour, it was moved by the R.W.M., seconded by the P.M., and agreed to, nem. con., that honorary affiliation to the lodge be conferred on Bro. Stewart, of Lodge Commercial, 360. The ceremony of affiliation was then performed by Bro. A. McTaggart, and Bro. Stewart having acknowledged the compliment paid him, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The 113th anniversary of this lodge was celebrated by a supper and ball, held in the Crown Rooms, Sauchiehall-street, on the 16th inst. At about eight o'clock the chair in the supper-room was taken by the R.W.M., Bro. James W. Burns, who was supported on the platform by Bros. John Mackie, John Miller, and John Fraser, Past Masters of the lodge; C. H. Jenkins, D.M.; and James Love, S.M.; Thomas Paton, Treasurer; Archd. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary; Robert McDougall, R.W.M. 553 (St. Vincent); and W. B. Paterson, 27. Bro. James Booth, S.W., officiated as Croupier, supported by Bros. William Wilson, J.W.; D. McDougall, Secretary; &c. There was a large attendance of brethren of the lodge and other lodges, with their wives, sweethearts, and daughters, and in all about 120 sat down to a supper at once amply and admirably purveyed by Bro. S. McPhee, of the St. Andrew Restaurant, Hutcheson-street. The substantials having been disposed of, the chairman proposed in order the toasts of "The Queen, Prince of Wales, and Royal Family," and that of "The Three Grand Lodges." He then gave the toast of "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupling with it the name of Bro. McTaggart, P.G. Sec. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. McTaggart said that he would fail in his duty to the company, as well as to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, if he did not return them his sincere thanks for the honour they had, through himself, done the Provincial Grand Lodge. And why, he would ask, was this honour always accorded, not only on all high and festive occasions, but on all occasions on which the brethren harmonised in the light? The answer, to his thinking, was easy. It was because, as he thought, the office-bearers of the different lodges, as well as the members generally, were satisfied that the Provincial Grand Lodge had endeavoured to do its duty. In regard to some of its schemes, it had no doubt failed; and amongst these might be reckoned the erection of a grand Masonic Temple in our midst—the scheme for the education of Masons' "bairns,"—and that of houses for decayed brethren, their widows and orphans. Still, when the past history of Masonry in Scotland came to be told, it would be discovered that, allowing for the poverty of their country, they had done their duty. All would have been made right but for the untimely death of Bro. Capt. Arch. A. Spiers, of Elderslie, their late P.G.M.,—than whom one more worthy never filled the chair, or was actuated by more noble principles. Death took him away; but, in his place, we have a man and a brother who will follow in his noble footsteps to elevate the principle of Masonry here, and extend it elsewhere. With regard to other very important objects, the speaker believed that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow had succeeded. They had succeeded, first, in bringing the working of the individual lodges into better order, and in giving them a better tone. Formerly there was no control over them whatever; but by their visitations and constant and regular supervision, the Provincial Grand Lodge had brought them into harmony. Again, they had made the lodges more tolerant of each other, readier to reciprocate kindnesses, and more harmonious in their relationships. Further, they had succeeded in fostering the principles of benevolence and charity. (Applause.) The membership was not a "benefit" society, but a benevolent society; they did not enter into it to get good, but to do good. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow had a hard fight to gain their object; but ultimately, through the assistance of the Grand Lodge, they succeeded in establishing a permanent benevolent fund. One of the chief of those who early laboured in this direction was Bro. James Thomson, who strove for it from the beginning, and who left it flourishing.

(Applause.) So much so, that they had a handsome sum funded, and were able to disburse a very large amount per annum amongst applicants who were found worthy of recognition and support. (Applause.) They had succeeded in another point—that was, in endeavouring constantly to inculcate a knowledge of the higher esoteric principles of the Order, to illustrate its symbolism, and expound its higher allegorical allusions. Finally, the P.G.L. of Glasgow had led the van of Provincial Grand Lodges in Scotland, and had thrown in its lot unreservedly with Grand Lodge, and had prevented dissensions and even schisms, which in past years were loudly and widely prevalent. In conclusion, he (Bro. McTaggart) hoped that in the future they should go on, until they saw the ancient Order flourishing in its pristine purity and unity. (Applause.) Before sitting down Bro. McTaggart said they would allow him to propose the toast of the evening—viz., "Lodge Thistle, 87." The lodge, he said, had seen its days of prosperity and of adversity, but now it had prosperity along with it. For the last ten years, he believed, it had been going on to prosper, and adding at the rate of about thirty per annum to its membership. It was due to the lodge to mention the Past Masters who had earnestly worked for its prosperity. And foremost among these they could not omit the name of Bro. Thomas Payton, who presided over it for no less a period than eleven years. (Applause.) To him succeeded Bro. John Fraser, the active and loyal brother; and next came Bro. John Miller, who occupied the chair—not for the first but second time—for three years. Now they had in the seat of honour to-night, Bro. Burns, in whose hands they expected the lodge would continue to flourish as it had done in time past. (Applause.) The speaker concluded by stating that in its intercourse, whether at labour or at refreshment, he hoped the lodge would always harmonise in the light, whether it might be in the light of brotherly love, moral truth or intellectual progress and forbearance. The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm. In briefly replying to it, the chairman said that he was comparatively a young member of the lodge. He had, on his right hand, the oldest member of 87 at the present moment, Bro. Mackie, who had been connected with it for over thirty years. Next to him was Bro. Miller, who had been twice Master during twenty-four years; and at the other end of the table was Bro. Sinclair, a member for twenty-one years. Under these circumstances he felt very young indeed; seeing he had been a member for only five years. Referring to a time previous to that, he said he was once so sceptical about secret societies of every sort—especially Freemasonry—that he denounced them and scoffed at them. He said to himself that he would become a Freemason from sheer curiosity, and then he could laugh and scoff at them more than ever. So strong was his scepticism, and utter abhorrence, that if he had been told when he entered Lodge 87, that within five years he would be Master, he would have replied that the man who said so would be in Gartnavel, or in his grave before he (the speaker) took the chair. However, he was not long in finding out how mistaken he had been, that the principles of Freemasonry are what the Almighty teaches in His holy works, and that those who deviate from its principles could not believe in the Bible. In a few words, with reference to the lodge affairs, the chairman stated that, in Nov. 1873, their cash in hand amounted to about £105; and in November last (1874) to over £119. After paying all their expenses last year, which amounted to about £30, and giving away £14 in charity, the balance in hand was the sum mentioned (£119) which the lodge had on hand to dispense in charity if required. The sum thus disbursed last year might, he stated, have been trebled, if it had been wanted. Immediately on concluding his reply, the chairman said he had now the most arduous duty of the evening to perform, namely, a presentation to the late Master of the lodge, Bro. John Miller, who had twice occupied the chair, and the last time for three years in succession. After a few complimentary remarks, the chairman accordingly made formal presentation to Bro. Miller of a valuable gold watch, together with a silver tea set and salver for Mrs. Miller. On the watch was an inscription stating that it was presented by brethren of the lodge and friends as a mark of respect and esteem. The salver was also suitably inscribed. Bro. Miller, in feeling terms, acknowledged the gifts. He had, he said, for some time been making up his mind to withdraw, in a great measure, from the Order. He thought he had done his duty, and wanted to make room for new blood. However, this token of their respect had put a binding tie upon him in such a manner that he could not withdraw from it just yet a while. Amongst the remaining toasts on the programme, subsequent to the presentation, were "The Ladies," proposed in unusually happy terms by Bro. Wilson, J.W.; and replied to by Bro. McDougall, Secretary; "The Press," by Bro. W. P. Paterson, acknowledged by Bro. W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and "Visiting Friends," by Bro. John Fraser, P.M., responded to by Bro. R. McDougall, R.W.M. 533 (St. Vincent). The routine of toast and speech, we should add, was agreeably varied by music, vocal and instrumental, and the proceedings in the supper room having been concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," the majority of the company proceeded down stairs to the ball-room, where dancing was commenced forthwith, and kept up with unflagging spirit till an early hour.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The third of a series of harmony meetings got up in this lodge was held on the 16th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, presided, supported by Bros. Halket, P.M.; Harper, R.W.M. Lodge Clyde, 408; John Smith, Secretary; and a large number of visiting brethren. The business in chief of the evening was the delivery of a lecture on "Coal Mines, and a Visit to a Coal Pit," by the R.W.M. The subject, as might have been expected under the circumstances, was handled in a masterly manner, and at the close the lecturer received a cordial vote of thanks from the lodge. The next lecture is to be delivered by Bro. Bairnsfather on 29th inst. The subject is "Egypt," and the lecture will be illustrated by pictures exhibited under the lime-light.

PARTICK.—LODGE ST. MARY (No. 117).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held on 17th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. W. Wylie, presided, supported on the dais by Bro. Ferguson, R.W.M., 503; and the P.M., D.M., S.M., and Treasurer of the Lodge 117. There was an unusually large attendance, including deputations from Lodge St. John, Dalmeir; and St. Vincent, Glasgow, (553). The business consisted of passing, a raising, five candidates having been duly initiated by Bro. Bain, D.M., and eight passed to the F.C. degree, and subsequently raised to the sublime degree, by Bros. Borland and R.W.M., Wylie. The lodge, we may mention, has arranged for erecting a new hall, the plans for which are already out of the architect's hands.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. GEORGE (No. 333).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on Wednesday 10th inst. The R.W.M., Bro. Alexander Thomson, presided, and there were also present as officers of the lodge, Bros. John M'Farlane, D.M.; Jas. Forsyth, S.W.; Robert Anderson, J.W.; Archd. McIntyre, Secretary; Thomas Hill, J.D.; and Jno. McDonald, Architect. The lodge having been opened, two candidates, namely, Robert Fairbairn and James Rutherford, farrier-sergeant 5th Dragoon Guards, who had both been duly recommended, received the E.A. degree at the hands of Bro. Wm. Robertson, P.M. of the lodge. The latter candidate, his case being one of emergency, was subsequently passed to the Fellow Craft degree by Bro. Robertson, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason by Bro. J. O. Park. Thereafter, the R.W.M. stated that there had been forwarded to him by Bro. Wm. Dobson, of the Theatre Royal, a petition to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, craving that body to sanction the erection of a new lodge within the Province of Glasgow, for the special benefit of members of the Craft belonging to the musical and dramatic professions. The petition referred to the fact that, owing to the peculiar exigencies of these professions, the members thereof were debarred from attending lodge meetings at the hours at which such were usually held, and stated that, to meet these exigencies, the hour of assemblage of the proposed lodge would be three o'clock p.m. The proposed name of the lodge was to be "The Dramatic," and the place of meeting at 163, Renfield-street, corner of Cowcaddens. The petition had been sent to Lodge St. George for the purpose of having the signature of the Master and Wardens of the latter attached thereto, should the lodge acquiesce in its prayer. The R.W.M., after explaining the scope of the petition, announced his decided objection to its being endorsed by Lodge St. George. He thought there was no present necessity whatever for the erection of a new lodge in the district; and there was a particular objection in the case of such a lodge as that proposed, namely, that they could not have a staff of permanent office-bearers. The nature of the "professional's" avocations forbade this. They were migratory in their habits—here this week and gone the next. Under these circumstances, they could not have a staff of office-bearers such as was requisite to the regular conduct of a lodge. He therefore moved that Lodge St. George have nothing to do with the petition, but send it back as they had received it. The motion was seconded by Bro. John M'Farlane, D.M., and unanimously agreed to. The lodge was thereafter closed in due and ancient form.

The anniversary of this lodge was celebrated on the 19th inst. in the large hall of Bro. Middleton's dining rooms, Trongate, when between sixty and seventy brethren sat down to an excellent supper soon after eight o'clock, p.m. The chair was occupied by Bro. Alexander Thompson, R.W.M.; Bro. Andrew McIntyre, P.M., officiating as Croupier. Supporting these there were Bros. John Winton, Wm. Robertson, and Robert Adam, P.M.'s of the lodge; James Forsyth, S.W.; John Clark, Chaplain; A. McIntyre, jun., Secretary. The tables having been cleared after an excellent supper, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, including that of "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," were given in succession and duly honoured. The chairman then delivered a short address, in the course of which he said that Masonry was a great moral institution. Its principles were taken from the Bible—and the latter was the great luminary of their Order. Bereft of the Bible, Masonry was bankrupt. The objects of Masonry were not prohibited, nor were they confined to any denomination or any sect. It had been the means of uniting millions of men of all nations and of all creeds in one common bond of amity. The name of the Prince of Wales was a guarantee that loyalty to their sovereign and country was their true and sterling watchword, and they had the experience of 3,000 years to show that charity to mankind and love to the brethren were and had been the leading and guiding principles of their noble Craft, and the great and ultimate ends of their association. The toast of "Lodge St. George, 333," was then given by Bro. Gilchrist, drank with enthusiasm, and responded to Bro. Winton, with whose name it had been coupled. The chairman then said:—I now rise to perform a pleasing duty, namely, to present our friend Bro. Winton with a small token of our respect. I have no doubt some might perform the duty with more ability; but no one could do so with kinder and more brotherly love than I now do. It is not the value of the article I am about to present, but the way in which this testimonial has been got up that makes its value; and nothing could be more pleasing to Bro. Winton, or to any man, than to receive in so brotherly a way the approval of those with whom he has been long associated. I am pleased at being the medium through which this is to pass; and I trust he may be long spared to use it; and that every time the hands pass round the dial it may remind him that his time on earth is one hour less, than that he may with greater earnestness prepare for so entering the Grand Lodge above. The chairman then said he had great pleasure in formally handing over to Bro. Winton the testimonial in question, which consisted of a very handsome marble ormolu time-piece and a pair of heroic bronze figures. After a brief interval, Bro. Winton in suitable and feeling terms acknowledged the compliments paid him. Among the remaining toasts were "Past Masters of 333," acknowledged by Bro. Robert Adam; "Visiting Brethren," acknowledged by Bro. Peter Stewart, of Scone Lodge, Perth; "Absent Brethren," "The Festival Committee," "The Chairman," "The Croupier," and "The Health of Bro. Middleton," Purveyor.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL, No. 360.—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, No. 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 19th inst. Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., occupied the chair, Bro. J. M. J. Olliver, S.W.; Bro. T. Graham, acting J.W. There was also present, Bro. John Davidson, P.M.; Bro. J. E. Spiers, S.M.; Bro. W. H. Bickerton, Secretary, and many other members of the lodge. Among the visitors we noticed Bro. W. Shaw, R.W.M., Lodge Caledonian, No. 354; Bro. Wm. Wylie, R.W.M. Lodge St. Mary, No. 117; Bro. L. Moritz, and a deputation from Lodge Caledonian, 354. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, and the Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. The lodge was raised to F.C., and Bros. W. Harrison and A. Martin were passed to that degree, Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., officiating in his usual efficient manner. There being no other business the lodge was closed. The next regular meeting of this lodge will take place on Friday, 2nd April, in their hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow. (Business passing and raising). Visitors are cordially invited, and a full attendance of members requested.

ROCHDALE.—LODGE OF FAITH, (No. 20).—The quarterly meeting of this M.M.M. lodge was held on Thursday, March 4th, and there was a numerous attendance of the brethren this being, the annual festival. The lodge was opened in due form at 6.15, and the minutes of the last lodge were read and put for confirmation and were unanimously carried. Bro. J. J. Smith of Naphthali Lodge having been proposed by letter, was balloted for and approved, he was then admitted and regularly advanced to the rank of a M.M.M., by P.M., William Davis. Bro. F. B. Ashworth having served the office of W.M., in the Craft in such a manner that the brethren unanimously elected him to the office of W.M., of this M.M.M.'s, lodge, and he was duly installed according to custom by W. Davis, P.M., supported by Bros. W. Roberts, P.M.; W. H. Prince, P.G.S.W.; C. W. Jones, P.M. The installation of the W.M., being finished the Board of Installed Masters was closed, and the brethren were admitted, and the W.M., appointed the following officers, Bros. J. Bell, S.W.; J. Partington, S.W.; R. Gorton, M.O.; J. Holt, S.O.; Richardson, S.O.; J. J. Smith, Chaplain; D. Mitchell, P.M., Treasurer; W. Briggs, Secretary; H. Chadwick, Reg. of M.; J. Burnish, S.D.; W. Davis, P.M., Dir. of Cer.; C. O'Dherty, J.D.; W. Schofield, I.G.; P.M., J. M. Taylor. After rendering the communications and receiving hearty good wishes from the Prov. Grand Lodge of Lancashire, and the Prov. Grand Lodge, West Yorkshire, also from Roberts Lodge, No. 24. The lodge was closed at eight p.m., and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was sumptuously provided by P.M. W. Ashworth. The W.M. took the chair and was well supported by his officers and brethren after the cloth was removed the M.W. proposed "The Health of the Queen." The W.M. next gave "H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and the Members of the Royal Family." The W.M. next gave the W.M. Grand Mark Master Mason, the Rt. Hon. Earl Percy, and with it the M.W. Past Grand Mark Master Masons, the Rt. Hon. Lord Leigh Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Viscount Holmesdale M. P.; W. W. Beach Esq. M. P. and the Rev. George Raymond, Portal, M. A. The next toast given was the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick, and the rest of the Grand Officers. The W.M. gave the R. W. Provincial Grand Master for Lancashire—The S.W. gave Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale Deputy, P.G.M. The J. W. gave the rest of the P. G. Officers. The Health of the newly Installed Master was next proposed. The W.M. on rising, thanks the brethren very heartily for having once more placed him in the honourable position of W.M. and assured them that it would be his constant study to merit their esteem. The Health of the Installing Master was given and briefly responded to. The W.M. gave to all poor and distressed &c. and the brethren separated after having spent a very pleasant evening.

SOCIETATIS ROSICRUCIANÆ IN ANGLIA.

A meeting of the Rosicrucian United College of Manchester, Liverpool, and the Northern Counties was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Saturday, the 20th inst. There were present R. W. Frater C. Fitzgerald Matier, 19°; C. A. Frater J. Yarker, P.S.G. (F.C.O.); Fraters G. Turner, J. Wood, Entwistle, Brockbank, Robinson, Leather, Clark, Green, Petty, Hine, H. Nelson, Wilson, and others. The M.C. was opened at half-past four o'clock, and after confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting held at Liverpool and ballot for aspirants the following were admitted to the grade of Zelator:—Bros. Joseph H. Woodworth, Ohanness Andreasian, R. Hardman Holt, and Thomas Wainman Holmes. Frater Yarker afterwards read a paper upon "The Egyptian Ritual of the Book of the Dead." He commenced by quoting the words of St. Matthew, "Out of Egypt have I called my Son," and drew from thence arguments favouring the divine nature of Jesus. He then showed the doubtful and uninspired nature of the biblical chronology, and the arguments upon which the antiquity of man was founded, and the general derivation of all nations from the highlands of Central Asia. Frater Yarker passed from this to the cosmogonical theories of the Chinese, Babylonians, Egyptians, &c., and from thence to the doctrines of the "Book of the Dead," which he showed to embrace an antiquity of from 5,000 to 10,000 years, and to include all the salient points of the Christian faith. Quoting from this ancient source he showed the divine origin of man, the immortal nature of his soul, and the temptations to which he is subjected in the future state until justified by Hesiari the "meek-hearted," the primitive man soul, who gave His own blood that we might partake of His divine nature, the Chauratic father, brother, and spiritual judge, like all living souls "begotten by Ptah out of Neith," or the male and female primal source acted upon by Turn, the Polar rays through Saturn or Rhea—time and space. At length the Hesiari, A.B. (discard), is crowned as a faithful servant of the gods, who address him:—"Thy father Turn has bound Thee with this good crown of justification, with that living frontlet, beloved of the gods, thou livest for ever." After a short discussion, led by the R.W. Chief Adept, Frater Matier, a vote of thanks was carried to Frater Yarker by acclamation.

EARLY GRAND ENCAMPMENT, SCOTLAND.

The quarterly communication of Grand Council of the Early Grand Encampment was held on the 6th inst., at the Sun Inn, Kilmarnock, the M.N.G.A., Sir Knight Hodge, presiding. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Council proceeded with their usual business.

The Encampments were not so well represented at this meeting as they generally are. The Encampment of Muirkirk, which, to a certain extent, has seceded from the general body, and though notified to attend, did not put in their appearance. They, however, intimated by letter the cause of their absence. For certain reasons their expulsion from the Early Grand Encampment of Scotland was agreed upon.

The following motion, being proposed, seconded, and carried by acclamation, that, having considered the conduct of Muirkirk, and their pertinacity in retaining in their possession the paraphernalia, the property of Grand Encampment, their time having expired to their rightful use of the same; and although Grand Encampment, acting upon legal advice, could easily recover the same, they do not wish to bring the matter so far, as being quite inconsistent with our Masonic teachings, they have, however, resolved to expel from their body the Encampment of Muirkirk. The said Encampment of Muirkirk shall henceforth neither hold name or number in the records of the Early Grand Encampment of Scotland from this date.

This resolution of Grand Encampment was arrived at with much regret; better by far to have withstood the tyrannising and usurpation of Muirkirk, than be forced to adopt such stringent measures as this. The previous warnings of the Grand Encampment being set at naught, their willingness to accede to any honourable proposal, made by Muirkirk, and the many methods adopted to bring a happy termination to the matter being utterly futile, they have, with much sorrow, been forced to part from and expel the Encampment of Muirkirk.

A petition, praying for a charter of erection in Airdrie, was presented, and having met with approval, will be granted in the usual way.

The Most Noble Commander informed the Sir Knights that Grand Encampment was in communication with various places in Scotland, desirous of erecting Encampments under the sanction of the E.G., and in all likelihood, petitions from several parts of the country would be presented at next quarterly communication of Grand Council. This enterprising spirit on the part of our brethren proves that our labours are not neglected, and our Order, in receiving such an unexpected impetus, augurs well for the future prosperity of the Early Grand Encampment.

The sentinels, being withdrawn from their posts, the Grand Encampment was duly closed.

INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AS M.W. GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

As a W.M., I wish to attend the installation of His Royal Highness, and have noticed the agitation as regards the dress to be worn on that occasion. I am not rich, but wish to carry out the principles of Masonry to the best of my ability. I intended to become a life subscriber to the Boys' School, but if I must buy a dress coat for that occasion, and possibly never want it again, it will deprive the charity of that amount which is so much wanted. Is not the idea absurd?

Yours fraternally,

J.H.

[The worthy brother must see that there must be some regulation on the subject. He had better wait to see it, before he complains.—Ed.]

COMMEMORATION JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Up to the present time, I have heard no suggestions as to the jewel to be struck for this occasion; doubtless it will have due attention, as to style and size. Nevertheless, I venture to offer an opinion, that it should be a solid gold circular medal, with bust of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. on the obverse, and a suitable inscription on the reverse, suspended by a ribbon of Craft blue with edges of Grand Lodge purple forming three stripes. In such a medal there would be no pretension, no failure of design (such as we have too often to lament in Masonic decorations) and yet it would be an ornament which any Mason could display with pleasure and pride. It need not be larger than between the size of a shilling and florin, nor thicker than a sovereign, so there would be no difficulty in supplying a thoroughly well struck medal, in good quality gold, at the proposed price. Another point I would notice as to the Craft blue collar, required to be worn in Grand Lodge. In the case of Prov. Grand Officers who attend Grand Lodge, this collar is usually worn over the purple collar, with the provincial purple and gold apron, the effect of which is too well known to need remark. It is to be hoped upon this occasion this requirement will not be insisted on, and so the effect for large numbers of brethren in purple and gold will not be marred.

I am, sir, yours fraternally,

AN OLD P.M. AND A PROV. G. OFFICER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hope the suggestion of your correspondent of last week will be carried out, viz.: that an Albert Edward Commemorative Jewel will be struck, and which said jewel may be permitted to be worn by the whole Craft who are "Master Masons" on the date of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, this being an event which will only happen once in a lifetime, and all know the universal satisfaction that was felt throughout the Craft when it was announced that the heir to the throne of England would accept the Grand Mastership of the Masonic Order.

I would suggest that the jewel, of whatever device it may be, should embrace the "Prince of Wales' Feathers," in honour of His Royal Highness. That it should be made of "gold," and also in "silver gilt," so as to come within the means of all, and to be applied for by the brethren through the Masters of their own lodges.

Hundreds of Masons would apply for this jewel, and a moiety of the price of each one sold could be set aside and applied to a fund to be equally divided between the three charities after they were all disposed of.

Yours fraternally,

D. H. A.

THE APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has been called to a letter of "An Old P.M." in your edition of March the 6th. I think it would have been better, in the first place, if "An Old P.M." had written to the W.M. or Secretary of the Apollo Lodge, to know if the report was correct. The report was not sent up by the W.M. or any person authorised by the lodge to send it, and though in the main correct, it was a very short report, and in the particular noticed by your correspondent was not accurate; a dispensation to initiate more than five candidates at one time was and is always obtained and read, and the lodge was closed in the usual way, viz., "in due form and order with solemn prayer and adjourned." The statement that it was closed in "ample form," was probably made for brevity's sake, but it is inapplicable and inaccurate.

I am, sir, yours fraternally,

FRED. MORRELL, I.Y.M. 357, P.S.G.W. Oxon. Black Hall, Oxford, March 17th, 1875.

THE ENSUING ELECTIONS OF THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have just received the voting papers and description of the candidates for the Royal Masonic Institutions for Girls and Boys, London, and have made the following scrutiny of their contents.

For the girls there are 31 candidates for 13 vacancies, one of whom had applied twice before, and five once, the remaining 18 being their first application; 26 of the candidates are fatherless, two, the parents are both dead, one is motherless, and the parents of two are both living.

The fathers of the candidates have on an average subscribed to the Grand Lodge (or their lodge) for nine years, but one had only been a member for one year, another not three years, and 17 for less than the average of nine years.

The subscriptions, then, of the average nine years' members, with their initiation fees would cover the cost of the maintenance of the candidates if all were elected for about six months!

Of the 31 brethren whose daughters are now candidates for the R.M.I. for Girls only two were subscribers to the Masonic charities, Bro. Richard Phillips being a Life Governor of the Girls' School, and the lamented Bro. Jesse F. Owens having served six stewardships and contributed to each. Four are said to have subscribed through their lodges, whatever that may mean, but except such an equivocal form of contribution, 29 of the brethren out of 31 have never subscribed to either of the institutions, and the majority appear to have been of little use to the fraternity else.

For the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys there are 48 candidates for eight vacancies, 20 applying for the first time, 11 once before, 10 twice before, two the third time, two for the fourth time, two for the sixth time, and one for the seventh time.

40 of the candidates are fatherless, 6 have lost both of their parents, and two have their parents still alive.

The fathers of 45 of the candidates have contributed to their lodges on an average for 8½ years, but only six out of the 48 have subscribed to either of the Masonic charities.

The average contributions and initiation fees of the brethren whose sons are candidates for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys would be sufficient to maintain the 48 candidates for about four months, or in other words each brother in question during his life-time—excepting the few who subscribed to the Masonic charities—contributed sufficient to his lodge to support his son in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys—for education, clothing, &c., for about four months, and in all probability not a hundredth part even of his subscription reached the institution in question.

Of course it should be remembered that several of the brethren contributed to their lodges until their decease, but the facts remain unaltered that out of 79 candidates for 21 vacancies in the Royal Masonic Institutions for Girls and Boys the fathers of only eight of the children subscribed to either of the Masonic charities during their lifetime, or presumed prosperity, and their average subscriptions and fees together contributed to their lodges for all purposes would scarcely pay for the maintenance of one of each of their children at either of the institutions for six months.

W. JAMES HUGHAN.

THE STATUS OF PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you allow me a few words on this vexatious question? I write, with all due respect to older and wiser Masons, and with no wish to reopen the subject if now at rest.

Let us take it as follows, A. B. and C. pass the chair of K.S. respectively, A. and C. in, say the year 1850, B. in 1852. A. and B. belong to one lodge, say No. 1, C. to another, say No. 1000. These several brethren having passed the chair and received the benefits thereof, are for life Past Masters or Installed Masters (quocumque nomine vocantur).

A., from private or unforeseen causes, ceases to be a subscriber to his lodge, therefore losing right of speaking and voting (membership) in Grand Lodge (vide constitutions) and his own lodge. B., his successor as senior Past Master in his own lodge, still subscribes. Likewise, C., his own equal in standing in the other lodge, to said other lodge. What is A.'s position?

A., having taken the rank of Past Master, and received the benefits thereof, is a Past Master for life, only by the Constitutions he is unable to speak or vote in Grand Lodge until he has again passed the chair of K.S.: or in his own lodge till he has re-joined. In Grand Lodge, the governing body of the Craft, A., having now again qualified by passing the chair, takes his seat again; from which date therefore does his rank count? Be it remembered he has not taken the degree again, but simply passed the chair a second time to qualify for membership.

But now, in his position in his own lodge, A., in re-joining, re-acquires the power to vote and speak; he is no longer senior Past Master of said lodge, B. occupying that position as successor to A., but in the Craft at large, A. ranks as the senior, equal in fact to C., if he be visiting said lodge No. 1.

A. becomes in fact in Lodge No. 1, a co-equal Past Master, as to status with C., as a visiting brother, and has by courtesy, precedence, according to standing in the Craft, but as to visiting power or personal status in the lodge B., his successor, still remains senior Past Master.

A. is a Past Master (according to date of receiving the degree) for ever, but on taking the chair (a second time after default) in his own lodge, he ranks in that lodge (quā that lodge) only in the same position as if he had just received the degree. Courtesy precedence only can be given him, as if he was a senior Past Master of another lodge, visiting!

Having given my ideas without wishing to raise a controversy, I leave the matter in the hands of wiser and clearer heads than my own.

I am, sir and brother, yours fraternally,

A.P.M.

MR. BRADLAUGH AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I can say a word or two in regard to this question, and I express the hope that our brethren will in prudence do no more than set our brethren in different parts of the world on their guard against this coward and intruder, for your space and our time are too valuable to be wasted over "Iconoclast."

A few years ago my professional duties threw me into the company of a Frenchman who wore a Masonic jewel. I tested him in every possible way, but he knew none of our signs at all, so I challenged him with making a show of being that which he was not. He declared that he was a Mason, and I asked him of what lodge. His answer was the name of one—which I forget—held at the Eclectic Institute, a democratic meeting-house used by Irish and foreigners of the agitating classes, and he gave the name of Bradlaugh as the "Venerable." I had the pocket-book with me and searched for the name in vain among the list of lodges—else I might have been temporarily deceived. I told him then that there was no such lodge, and that, moreover, Bradlaugh could not be a Mason, for it was well known that Masons were obligated in some form or the other, taking pledges of faith, and how, I asked him, could an atheist be bound in faith to his fellows?

The answer shows the idolatry of these impious men. It was that the brethren were "obligated" to the "Goddess of Reason." The men who deny God bind themselves to an unknown "Goddess!" He declared too, and our Grand Lodge ought to inquire how far it is true, that this precious assemblage of idolatrous atheists is recognised by the Grand Orient of France. I do not believe it. I know from my experience abroad, that foreign Masons are very chary of letting even proved Masons see their "working" of the ceremonies, and I expect that all Bradlaugh has been admitted to in America has been to a gathering like his own—children of the "Goddess of Reason."

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

DEUX ETOILES.

THE GLASGOW ST. MUNGO LODGE, NO. 27, AND ITS PARENT LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your elaborate and well-arranged reports of the Scottish lodges, I see an account of the 46th anniversary of the Lodge St. Mungo, No. 27. In that account I observe the R.W.M. stating that—"The history of their parent lodge was very ancient, dating as far back distinctly as the days of Michael Canmore, A.D. 1068, more than 800 years ago." Now I have for some years back taken an interest in the rise of Freemasonry in Glasgow, and I confess that if Bro. Butler can really "distinctly" prove his assertion, he will have added something to our knowledge of the history of Freemasonry in Glasgow. Four years ago I was authorised by the St. Mungo Lodge to examine its old minute books, which I did, but I know of nothing in them to support Bro. Butler's statement, but the very opposite.

I would therefore request him either to back up his statement by informing us upon what foundation he makes it, or, if he cannot do that, let him apologise for making it, and never make it again. I consider he has simply been misled in the matter.

I am, yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN.

AN IMPOSTOR.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you lend the brethren of St. Peter's Lodge, No. 442, your assistance in putting the members of the Craft generally on their guard against relieving a man who is travelling through the country asking alms, he gives his name "F. G. Risse," and represents himself as being a member of this lodge.

He is not, and never was, on the roll of St. Peter's, but letters of enquiry are constantly reaching us from all parts of England, and, unfortunately, in many cases, assistance has been rendered him before the truth of his story has been ascertained.

The man is nothing more or less than an impostor, and it is expressly the wish of the brethren of this lodge, that after this caution, members of the Craft will not assist him in what is really a system of "obtaining money under false pretences."

The man is about 60 years of age, height about 5 feet 10 inches, hair grey, has a slight limp in his walk, and speaks with a foreign accent.

Brethren in distress ought never to be relieved unless their certificate is produced.

I am, dear sir, very fraternally yours,

W. DIXEY, Secretary.

Poetry.

28TH APRIL, 1875.

All hail to England's hope—heir to the British Crown,
The Free-Masonic Chief, who dared Rome's deadly frown;
Who, spite of Peter's curse—regardless of the fray—
Accepted our defence, our Battle fights to-day!

The insult "Pio mad" with bitter hatred hurl'd,
(As though his "single will" were Master to the World),
Gallant Albert Edward, like our good king of old,
Resents with scorn and swears—like him, good, true, and bold,—

That no Italian priest, in self-made thunders clad,
On England's soil shall rule! It must be very sad, (Oh, pardon, Pope, the rub), for imbeciles to see,
How Albert Edward treats,—Infallibility!

'Tis done! Our Mason's chief, is this day crown'd with love.

With truth his brow is deck'd,—the truth of Him above!
This truth,—Masonic Truth,—poor Pio never knew,
He ne'er had this, and that is why he hates the "Blue."

We've had for ages past, to bear with much from him,
Who now proclaims aloud, that Masonry is sin!
Yet, true and faithful to Masonic rules and laws,
We have but pitied those who've tried to crush our cause.

May Pius get some sense, and judge of what we learn
By our own acts, and see if he can find the germ
Of aught that's bad in those. We're taught, on broadest grounds,
To love our neighbour with the love that knows no bounds.

E'en then for him, we let no curse rise aloft,
But e'en for him, we wish but blessings sweet and soft;
Yet heed he must that voice now ringing through the land,

"God bless our noble Prince, chief of our Holy Band!"

P. Prov. G. D. C. Worcestershire.

INSTRUCTION.—The ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be worked by Bro. James Terry, P.Prov. G. D. C. Herts, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, held at the Southwark Park Tavern, on Wednesday, March 31st.

"THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST."—If this doctrine be true, it is imperative for us to keep our bodily health at the highest possible standard, so as to render ourselves efficient for the performance of the arduous duties which are the lot of most of us, otherwise we fall back in the struggle and perhaps succumb to some trifling disease. The purifying and strengthening properties of Holloway's remedies are undoubted and no one should be without them; they cleanse the blood from impurities, invigorate the nervous system, and impart tonic to the unstrung fibre. By their judicious use mental depression is replaced by a genial flow of spirits and the whole system invigorated. Mankind has reason to be thankful for their invention.—ADVT.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

The announcement we made last week, on authority, that the arrangements for the installation are under the direction and management of Bros. Sir Albert W. Woods and Thomas Fenn, is one calculated to afford unqualified approval to the entire Order. The main arrangements are in the care of Sir Albert W. Woods, so long our Grand Director of Ceremonies, while the direction of the accommodation for the seating of the large number expected to attend could not possibly be more appropriately confided than to Bro. Thomas Fenn. We feel sure that all that skill can effect and thoughtfulness contrive will be effected and contrived by those two distinguished brethren. It is a feature in Freemasonry that duties, which, at ordinary public meetings, are fulfilled by paid officials, are on occasions like the present discharged by the members themselves. The number of Masons volunteering their services as Stewards on this occasion for such duties is very large, including many Grand Officers and other Masons of high standing, all willing to undertake any duty which may be assigned to them. The provinces have been invited to send also a prescribed number of Stewards—and they will, no doubt, have appropriate work found for them. It is, however, obvious that the greater part of the real work must fall upon the London brethren, who are alone in a position to attend meetings at the shortest notice, and who will no doubt have several preparatory assemblies to attend. The details of the arrangements have not, we believe, been finally approved of, so as to be published with authority, but we are informed that from the fairness and clearness by which they are specially marked they are calculated to give general satisfaction. The executive are evidently exercising an earnest desire to meet, so far as is practicable, the wishes of the brethren and the loyal anxiety of the Craft. As we pointed out a fortnight ago, the seats of the Albert Hall being arranged in the form of an amphitheatre a view of the whole proceedings can be obtained from every seat. The advantage of this form of building on the present occasion will be this, that no one seat can be better than another. Under these circumstances the arrangements can, if thought necessary, be made with a regard to colour and effect, and no brother need be or can be dissatisfied, who is asked to change his seat with this object. We hope to give more detailed information next week.

MR. CHARLES BRADLAUGH.

It seems, from what has appeared in our columns, that this well-known person, who has been attending one or more meetings of Freemasons in the United States, is not a regularly made Freemason under the English Constitution at all, nor indeed under any regular constitution at all. According to his own account, he was made in the Loge des Philadelphes, 9th March, 1859, a spurious political and unrecognized Order, and he adds that he was received in the Loge de la Perseverante Amitié, Grand Orient of France, 11th March, 1862. We, however, can find no such lodge under the Grand Orient. Mr. Bradlaugh was, it appears, admitted a joining member of the High Cross Lodge, Tottenham, 754, after some discussion, to which he modestly alludes, on his anti-theological opinions, a somewhat curious expression, though he does not state in what year. He only, however, subscribed one year. Upon the accession of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, Mr. Bradlaugh returned his certificate to our good Bro. Hervey, cancelled. At the time, then, of Mr. Bradlaugh's visit to America, he was unaffiliated to any lodge, and more than this, he was not, in our opinion, legitimately a Freemason at all. In his original initiation he was radically wrong, and nothing but a member of a spurious fraternity. If the Loge de la Perseverante Amitié be a regular lodge under the Grand Orient, even his reception there does not do away with his original vicious admission, and at the time he joined the High Cross Lodge, Tottenham, he was, as far as we understand his own position, ipso facto, ineligible, being made in an illegal and unwarranted lodge. Mr. Bradlaugh complacently tells us that he was an avowed atheist then, as at all times, and that the fact was known to the brethren of the High Cross Lodge. We feel bound, therefore, with these facts before us, to ask for a little explanation. How did Mr. Bradlaugh get into the High Cross Lodge? At the time he was admitted, how did they know that he was a Freemason? We must all of us greatly deplore the laxity manifested by that lodge. Here is a person of known atheistical opinions, made in a spurious political lodge, mixed up with revolutionary proclivities, admitted into a respectable English lodge. Even on Mr. Bradlaugh's own showing there was a taint on his original admission which, as far as Freemasonry is concerned, is in itself fatal to his joining an English lodge. But what is La Perseverante Amitié? Is it under the Grand Orient of France, or is it under the Rite Ecossaise, or the so-called "Rite of Misraim"? What certificate had he when visiting the American lodges? Answers to these questions will serve to make the matter more clear, though enough has been said and put forward to prove, that Mr. Bradlaugh has no right to call himself a Freemason, or to claim the privileges of Freemasonry. We hope that the members of the High Cross Lodge can give some satisfactory explanation of a most anomalous and unprecedented proceeding.

OUR LODGE MEETINGS.

We alluded, in our last issue, to the lodge meetings of other days. We propose to call attention now to the meetings of our lodges "de mense in mensem." We have no right or warrant for believing that there is much difference in the general routine, though we have heard that some of our younger W. Masters and Past Masters are not so well up and attached to our purely oral ceremonies as we used to be. Otherwise we presume that there is little difference. The same round of customary work goes on there, the same old familiar ritual, with all its beauties is performed, and their business being over, the brethren adjourn to refreshment. Whatever may have been the want of memory or want of interest previously, we fancy no one need complain of the attendance of the majority of the brethren at this mysterious and agreeable degree. The symbols suggest a good deal to the thoughtful mind. Curiously enough it is the only degree which all are equally willing to take part in, and it is one which seems to commend itself to the objectiveness and subjectiveness, to use some fine modern words, of us all alike, old or young, neophyte or veteran. And no doubt, just as of yore, our lodge meetings are still very pleasant. They are meetings, for the most part, of good men and true, honest fellows and loyal friends. For a little hour the conventionalities and conflicts of the outer world are at an end, we breathe an atmosphere of moral freedom, we live in a land of harmony and geniality where all these things are forgotten. What matters to us, as Freemasons, the quarrels of mankind, the controversies of theologians, the insane disputes of the "big-endians" and the "little-endians." We are brethren, we are friends, we are happy, and we are contented. Life has few rosier hours for any of us harassed mortals, than those which, within the peaceful portals of a Freemason's lodge, have made us a "band of brothers." Long may it be so! and still, as time moves on, and years fade, though our goodly gatherings grow less numerous, may we, as Freemasons, united in the sacred bonds of a friendship which never wavers, an interest which never grows selfish, a brotherhood which never decays, find many of the happiest moments of our little lives, in that good old lodge of ours, with which are stored up all the gracious memories of our Masonic career. But it has been said that "sameness tires," and that the "chilling influence of routine diminishes interest, and weakens satisfaction." It may be so, and therefore we have thought well to add one or two further suggestions for those who now mainly direct the course of our lodges. Could not something be done to arouse a little intellectual activity in the lodges? Would not a series of lectures, or of conversaciones, in which the artistic, or scientific, or archaeological, or mystical aspect of Freemasonry is set forth, serve to animate any flagging interest, or to stimulate waning activity? Indeed, we do not see why our sisters should not be pressed now and then into the service of our gallant Craft. They have, we know, the best of intentions; they are endowed with the warmest of hearts; and were we but to ask them now and then to grace our gatherings, and shed a lustre on our secluded halls, we should, we are bold to think, make our Order more generally popular amongst the fairer sex than it is. For the most part they are apt to regard us with a mingled feeling of doubt, suspicion, and fear. They hear queer stories; their "lords and masters" are sometimes late. Bro. Thomas and Bro. Partington have on more than one occasion not re-appeared at the deserted domestic shrine until the "wee sma' hours," and both Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Partington have blamed Freemasonry of course. Now we would say to our readers, give up late sittings and go home early. But "en revanche," every now and then, invite the partners of your joys and your heart, present and future sisters, to a little Masonic "swarry," to a cup of tea, to a pleasant re-union. Once within the mysterious locale, once feeling themselves permitted to lift, if even but a corner of the veil, over the shrouded "Isis," they will begin to feel quite "Masozic." Of course such a luxury must not be indulged in too often, as, dear creatures as they are, good and true, they are still descendants of mother Eve, and always like to know as much as they can. But every now and then, once or twice a year, as an occasional "fillip" to the W.M., and the officers, and the brethren, after the long routine of lodge labours, we can think of no better or pleasanter contrast, than the beaming faces and silvery voices of those who still continue to make an Eden of this world of ours, for toiling, and contentious, and ungrateful man.

THE CANDIDATES FOR THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

At the next election, April 10th, out of 31 candidates, 13 are to be elected. The candidates come mostly from the provinces. There are nine London candidates; three from Devonshire and Middlesex each; two from Staffordshire, Suffolk and Lincolnshire; and one each from South Wales, Hants, Monmouthshire, South Africa, Kent, Norfolk, Cambridgeshire, Durham and Antigua. No words of ours are needed to prove the universality alike of the wants of our Order, and the benefits to the recipients. There is no institution in the land which can surpass the Girls' School, either in the perfection of its adaptability as a means to an end, just as there is no educational establishment we know of, comparable to it, in its good order and efficiency, in the home character it imparts, and the practical education which it gives. We wish Bro. Little, heartily, all success.

MASONIC BORES.

Most of us know what a "bore" is. We are privileged to have one in our families and circle of friends who is always the "enfant terrible" of domestic life. He is always in the way, always says something he ought not to say, always does something he ought not to do; he frightens the old, he fidgets the young by his irrepressible garrulity, and his hopeless "betise." But there he is, we avoid him, we are afraid of him, we complain of him, but we cannot get rid of him, so we shrug our shoulders and resign ourselves through life to that terrible infliction the bore "par excellence." And as Freemasonry is a counterpart of worldly struggles and domestic life in some respects, we are not without that interesting individual, even in our more sheltered and select assemblies. Alas! who of us does not know well the Masonic bore? We hear him—nay, we see him now. Loud in tone, noisy in utterance, loquacious and cheeky, self-opinionated, and of intense importance, the brassy tones of that grating voice vibrate still on our acute if suffering ears. He is always to the fore; go where you will, you meet him, always ready for the banquet, always full of self assurance. He is ever positive and ever wrong. You never hear him say anything which does not work back upon himself, you never know him do anything out of mere love for Masonry. We have met this awful character under various forms and in different scenes, but he is always consistent in praising himself, and even when he spouts Masonry in making his platitudes and his volubility minister to himself, and himself alone. We make allowances for the earnest advocate for some good cause, betrayed by human infirmity into an occasional "lapsus linguae," we sympathise with the able lecturer who now and then precipitates himself on the horn of a dilemma, through the impetuosity and impulsiveness of his psychological formation. But what can we say for a Freemason who bores us on every occasion, who will speak when an abler man is present, to whom all are willing to listen, who will give us his dreary iterations and his commonplace verbosity, when we wish to gain mental illumination from one of the lights of Masonry? He is a dreadful infliction, the Masonic bore, and many of our lodges are suffering from his presence and his patronage. We shall some of us remember how Brown, Jones, and Robinson, in their continental tour met and dodged the bore on the "glorious Rhine" and amid the ruins, of Heidelberg; the terror with which his presence impressed them, and the happy manner in which a good genius rescued them from his clutches in the pleasant town of Frankfurt-on-the-Maine. We fear that no such good luck is in store for us Freemasons. The bore exists; the bore talks; the bore holds forth; the bore lays down the law; the bore has got a tongue; the bore knows "what's what," and the bore "won't be put upon;" and many a happy gathering, and many a cheery fraternity, are overpowered by his mournful eloquence. "O, fortunati nimum," we say to all who are yet free from this pernicious parasite on the good old tree of Freemasonry. May you never know, and may you never experience, what it is to be bored hopelessly by "eccentric assumptions" as Mr. Disraeli says, by pretentious ignorance, and by unabashed audacity.

FOREIGN FREEMASONS AND THE INSTALLATION

In answer to numerous enquiries, we print a copy of the official reply to all such applicants.

"Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 22nd March, 1875.

"Sir and Brother,—I regret to have to inform you that the applications for admission to the Royal Albert Hall from brethren who are subscribing members of lodges under the English Constitution, are so numerous as to render it impossible to comply with your request to be present on the occasion.

"Yours fraternally, "JOHN HERVEY, G.S."

We believe that the matter will be finally decided this week, and we hope to announce the actual regulations on the subject next week.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426.)

GRAND ENTERTAINMENT TO THE LORD MAYOR AND SHERIFFS OF LONDON.

One of the most splendid Masonic entertainments ever witnessed in the City of London, was given on Saturday last, by this young but pre-eminently famous lodge, at the City Terminus Hotel. Having closed their year of labour, on the previous Saturday, and elected a new Worshipful Master for Installation in October, the brethren resolved to hold an emergency meeting for the initiation of some gentlemen into the Order, and for a Grand entertainment to the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London and other civic dignitaries, as well as a large company of visitors, Officers of Grand Lodge and others. The meeting was arranged to take place on Saturday last, and every endeavour was made by the W.M. and his officers to make the event a complete success. In this they were not disappointed, for as a reward of all their labours, the entertainment was pronounced by every one who was fortunate enough to take part in it, unexceptionable. The lodge was summoned for four o'clock in the afternoon, and long before that time had arrived, the brethren began to assemble in great numbers. Lodge was not, however, opened at that hour, the brethren coming in very fast about that time, and as all of them had to sign before entering the lodge, an operation which took a long time, for their convenience, as an opportunity was given to every one to see the lodge work, the opening of the lodge was delayed till half past four. The officers of the lodge were most assiduous in the discharge of their duties, and those, of director of ceremonies, which were exceedingly onerous on this occasion were most ably discharged by Bro. T. Preston, the Director of Ceremonies for the year. Lodge was opened by Bro. Nathan Bryant Headon, W.M., with the assistance of his officers, Bros. Townend, S. W.; and W.M. Elect; Seex, J. Letters of apology and regret for absence were received from Lord Tenterden, P.G.S.W.; Earl Percy, M.P., P.G.S.W.; E. J. McIntyre, Q.C., G. Reg; Sir. F. Wyatt Truscott, W. S. Gover, No. 1; J. Symonds, P.G.D., and Sheriff Shaw.

After the opening of the lodge Messrs. H. Durrant, D. McNiven and W. H. Farmer were initiated, the work being performed by the W.M. and his officers in a style which elicited the warmest approval of all the brethren present. From the date of the constitution of the lodge, May 3rd, 1873, down to the present time, the lodge has been celebrated for the excellence of the working of its Worshipful Master and Officers, and on Saturday last no exception was made to the rule, for in all particulars the lodge working was perfection: Nothing was omitted which could give impressiveness to the ceremony; and an excellent organ accompaniment by Bro. W. H. Hook, the Organist of the lodge, greatly assisted the proceedings.

When the ceremony was completed the Lord Mayor was unanimously elected an honorary member of the lodge, on the motion of the Master, seconded by the Master Elect. For this compliment his lordship returned thanks, and said that he looked on membership of this lodge as a very great honour, and added that it would give him great pleasure to see the Great City Lodge the foremost lodge in the City of London. There was no further Masonic business before the lodge, and it was then closed, and the company adjourned to the great hall, where a sumptuous banquet was spread, and where the walls were decorated with a fine display of the flags of different nations. The Worshipful Master presided, having the Lord Mayor on his right hand, and Bro. James Stevens, the Immediate Past Master of the lodge, on his left. During the progress of the dinner the band of the Grenadier Guards, under the direction of Mr. Dan Godfrey, played a selection of beautiful music. At the clearing of the cloth grace was sung by Bros. Hodges, G. T. Carter, and Chaplin Henry, under the direction of Bro. W. H. Hook, with Bro. C. Warwick Jordan at the piano. The toasts were then proposed and honoured.

The W.M. in proposing "The Queen and the Craft," said that as time was fast advancing, all the speeches would be very brief; but this was a toast that there was no need to expatiate upon, for all he would say would only amount to what the brethren already knew, and felt in their hearts. He would not attempt to extol the virtues and excellencies of Her Majesty further than to say that she was a pattern to all her sex, and an example to all her subjects.

The W.M. then said it was with the sincerest pleasure and gratification that he proposed the next toast, "The Health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of Freemasons." He had the privilege of being present in the Grand Lodge as one of the representatives of the Great City Lodge on the 3rd inst., at the election of His Royal Highness, and when he was proclaimed M.W.G.M. in the presence of one of the largest assemblies of Masons that had ever been known. He was gratified and delighted beyond measure to hear the applause which followed the announcement, and to-night they would re-echo that applause, and so endorse all that was done at last Grand Lodge. They were all on the tip-toe of expectation with regard to the ceremony of installation, which would be performed on the 28th April, and he believed it would be one of the greatest ceremonies that had yet taken place in Freemasonry. There would be a greater assemblage of Freemasons at that meeting than had ever been gathered at the installation of a Grand Master, and he (the W.M.) hoped, as the representative of the Great City Lodge, to be there.

The W.M., in giving the next toast, "The Pro Grand Master—the Earl of Carnarvon," said it would ill-become him, in the presence of so many Grand Officers, to attempt to eulogise their Pro Grand Master, whose great abilities and administrative talents were so well known and fully recognised throughout the Craft. It was a matter for the highest congratulation that they had such an efficient and distinguished Pro Grand Master, than whom there was no member of the Order more respected or highly esteemed. In his recent sad bereavement he had the deepest sympathy, not only of every member of the Great City Lodge, but of the Craft.

Col. Burdett, in responding to the toast, said he thanked the W.M. very much for the kind and flattering way in which he had put before the brethren the virtues of the Pro Grand Master. All would agree with him that it required a better member of the Order than he (Col. Burdett) to reply properly to this toast. (No, no.) He felt that he did not do it as he ought, but it was a great pleasure to him, nevertheless, to have to respond to such a toast in the presence of perhaps the largest assemblage of Freemasons in a private lodge that had ever met together. He would not trespass on the time of the brethren by dilating on the virtues, high qualities, and excellences with which the Pro Grand Master adorned his position, but would confine himself simply to thanking the brethren for the way in which the toast had been proposed and drunk.

The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," and reminded the brethren of the cheerfulness and readiness with which all the Grand Officers performed the very important duties which devolved upon them. Composed as the Great City Lodge was of business men, and situated as it was in the midst of a great hive of industry, they could appreciate the exertions of hard-working men. At the present time competition was so great that everything was conducted at express speed, and therefore the Grand Officers' duties were the more arduous that they had to be discharged in time which was snatched from other engagements. The Grand Officers made great sacrifices for the Craft, and the brethren who were present, he was sure, would be glad to have this opportunity of acknowledging their sense of the benefits conferred by the Grand Officers. (Cheers.)

Bro. the Rev. J. Edmund Cox, L.L.D., Past Grand Chaplain, replied, and thanked the lodge on behalf of himself, and all the past and present Grand Officers whether at the table, or dispersed throughout the kingdom. Whilst doing so, he thanked the brethren also most heartily for the privilege accorded to him and the other Grand Officers around for being allowed to see so good an assemblage. But more he congratulated the lodge and the Craft generally on the admirable working which they had all witnessed that evening. It was of the highest character, and offered a pattern to the lodges throughout the metropolis. He was not disposed to flatter, but, as almost the father of the Grand Officers of England, having been connected with Grand Lodge for nearly 30 years as a Grand Officer and Past Grand Officer, and in that character having visited many lodges, both in the metropolis and the provinces, he could say, without fear of contradiction, that he had never in the whole of his Masonic career witnessed the initiation of brethren with so much pleasure and delight as he had that evening. But he must not forget that he had to respond for the Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers, and he hoped he would not be considered as travelling out of the record when he said that it was also a pleasure to find the principles of the order so well enunciated as they had been that night by the Worshipful Master. It was a matter of immense importance that they should be then assembled in the City of London—a gathering together of Masons from all quarters of the world, at a time when Masonry was distinguishing itself as it had not distinguished itself for many and many an age past, when it was producing that universal love of freedom which was the cementing bond of the nations, and more especially in one quarter, where it had mounted itself above the depression which had been put upon it in times past—it was a great thing that such a lodge as this should be found working so correctly, manifesting the highest principles of the Craft, and showing that there was something more in Freemasonry than the outer world gave it credit for, and something more than that for which pedantry and bigotry condemned it. Conducted as the Great City Lodge was, no men being admitted into it without the tongue of good report being most thoroughly heard in their favour, which was a most vital thing at a time when Masonry was making such great strides, he could not doubt that in all its members quality and not quantity was considered. When the members of the Order were men of character and respectability it mattered not what their circumstances were. But if there were anything like a stain on their characters, or if they sought Masonry for private purposes, let Masons have none of them. These guiding principles had made the order what it was—a cementing bond of unity, which brought "peace on earth," and promoted "goodwill amongst men." (Cheers.)

The Rev. R. J. Simpson, P. G. C., said that by the permission of the I. P. M., Bro. James Stevens, he was privileged to propose "The Health of the W.M." In doing so he might be permitted for a moment to say that, as there were two kings of Brentford, so there was a kind of dual government in this Great City, they had the chief magistrate of the City of London present, and the chief magistrate of the Great City Lodge. He was sure he would not be considered guilty of what was called in another place a "breach of privilege" when he asserted the title for this lodge of imperium in imperio. There would be no brother so ready to acknowledge the claim as the right hon. brother who had that evening been made a member of the lodge. He would have wished, in the presence of the initiates, to speak of the principles of Freemasonry; but time did not admit of it; still he could point to a glorious past, in which our ancestors asserted not only the principles of the Order, but that independence of thought and freedom from that spiritual domination, which unhappily prevailed even in the 19th century. He could point, too, to that glorious future to which Masons were taught to look, to that future which "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard." But he would not do so. He would speak of the living present, of those glorious principles founded upon piety and virtue, of those symbols which set forth to all not only that which put them in mind of what was noble, but which descended into the practical duties of every-day life; and in doing so he could not do better than speak of the Master of the lodge. Bro. Cox had so well and eloquently described the working of that night, that he (Bro. Simpson) would not dilate upon that subject. Speaking not of what he had witnessed only on that evening, but as a frequent attendant at the lodge during its short but brilliant history, he could testify to the admirable working of the lodge, and the excellent conduct of its business. He would advise brethren to come to it not on a grand night such as the present was, but to "steal in, as the inspectors of schools did sometimes" (a laugh), on an ordinary occasion, and he could promise them always a treat as great as they had just had. The W.M. had commended himself to all his brethren, not only by his able working, but by his urbanity, constant courtesy, and kindness, and in proposing his health he felt sure that the visitors as well as the members of the lodge would acknowledge the efficient manner in which he had that evening presided. (Cheers.)

The W.M., while acknowledging most heartily the compliment just paid to him, said he would not profess to have any new words to reply to this toast, which was drunk at every Masonic meeting, and therefore imposed a great difficulty on a brother to find something fresh to say. He felt it a high privilege to be the Master of this lodge, and if they would really believe in him as a friend as well as a brother, he would feel it a greater pleasure than they could imagine. He hoped for many years to be associated with the brethren then around him, and he also hoped that he might never fail to receive that which he had hitherto always enjoyed—the very highest respect and regard of his brethren.

Bro. Joseph C. Parkinson, G.J.D., proposed "Prosperity to the Great City Lodge, and Bro. James Stevens, the Immediate Past Master." He said, Worshipful Master, my Lord Mayor, Bro. Sheriff, and brethren,—I have the pleasing duty of proposing success to the Great City Lodge, and I do so with the greater confidence by reason of the presence of the Lord Mayor and a Sheriff of the City of London, for Freemasonry and civic institutions have, I think, much in common. Benevolence, education, and hospitality are inscribed on the shields of our ancient city guilds, and in countries where civil liberty and religious freedom are assured the vast revenues and potent social forces of Freemasonry are devoted to the same ends. (Hear, hear.) The principle of self-government is enshrined in our Masonic constitutions, and our annual election of Masters, our profound obedience to laws made by ourselves, and binding upon all who take our obligations, whether rulers or ruled, our perfect system of representation, whereby every lodge sends its representative to Grand Lodge—the deliberative assembly which alone has power to alter or repeal laws—all these have their types in that free municipal life of which the City of London has been for 800 years the proud exemplar (cheers), which provides that representation and taxation shall go hand in hand, and that local communities shall be ruled by those whose public services, worth, and character have caused them to be selected by their fellow-citizens for distinction, honour, and power. (Hear, hear.) It is natural, therefore, that Freemasonry should in these, the days of its great prosperity, find a congenial home in the powerful City within whose walls it and its principles were cherished, even in times when the outer world looked coldly on. This Great City Lodge recalls by its title those far-off days when our brother, Elias Ashmole, the antiquary, had to travel some hundreds of miles to the City, as the only place where he could see an initiation, to other days when Wren was Deputy Grand Master of England, and erected the noble city cathedral which forms his monument, to days when the civil rights and religious liberties of the English people were assailed by the Popish monarch James, and when the only two Freemason's lodges in England which, according to Preston, worth working, were presided over, one at St. Paul's by Sir Christopher Wren, and the other at St. Thomas's Hospital by Sir Robert Clayton, the then Lord Mayor of London. (Cheers.) After the first general assembly of English Masons, in 1717, it was in the City where the Duke of Montagu was installed Grand Master, the ceremony taking place in Stationers' Hall. Before the Freemasons had acquired the property they possess now the great city companies were always ready to show their sympathy with the Craft by lending it their halls. In 1723 the Duke of Buccleuch was installed Grand Master in the hall of the Merchant Tailors' Company, in the presence of 400 Masons; and in 1731 Lord Lovel, afterwards Earl of Leicester, succeeded the Duke of Norfolk as Grand Master, and was installed in the hall of the Mercers' Company; and it would be easy to multiply examples. This Great City Lodge represents, therefore, by the circumstance of the present Lord Mayor of London (cheers) being one of its founders, and its striking numerical success, the close union which has long subsisted between the City of London and Freemasonry. (Hear, hear.) And, if I may turn for a moment to another memorable city, I will say that the most significant and the most encouraging spectacle the Masonic world has seen for many a century is the peaceful establishment of a Masonic temple within the walls of ancient Rome. (Loud cheers.) Liberty of conscience, natural equality, and mutual dependence, the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man, being the broad watchwords of Freemasonry, the capital of England might well send Masonic greetings to those brethren who, after years of persecution, have established themselves under the beneficent protection of Italian unity to proclaim their principles in spite of opposition, and in the face of the whole world. (Cheers.) For it is a good test of the government of a country to mark whether Freemasonry be fostered or proscribed. (Hear, hear.) Spiritual tyranny and civil oppression dread light; and wherever it is dangerous to admit yourself to be a Mason, wherever the Craft is denounced and punished, the historian need not look far for evidence of an unconstitutional government and an enslaved people. (Hear, hear.) In Italy, as in England, members of the ruling dynasty now give their active personal support to Freemasonry; and we shall, I trust, learn in due course, of meetings such as this, where the chief civic dignitaries of Rome will meet their brethren under the banner of a great city lodge. In London we have Freemasons numerously represented in the City guilds, in the Common Council, on the aldermanic bench, and among the high officers of the corporation. (Hear, hear.) The magnificent public buildings with which the City authorities have adorned their metropolis during the last few years, edifices combining the utmost architectural beauty with the greatest public usefulness, have been designed by and erected under the superintendence of a popular member of our fraternity, Bro. Horace Jones, the City Architect. The duties of the Town Clerk of the City are discharged by no less a person than the President of our Board of General Purposes, Bro. Monckton; and, culminating honour of all, in the year when the future King of England will be installed Grand Master, under circumstances of pomp and splendour such as the Craft has not seen since the days of Solomon, we have an experienced Past Master filling the high position of Lord Mayor of London, able by his Masonic rank to witness the greatest Masonic pageant the centuries have seen. Brethren, if I say that the Great City Lodge is 'worthy of the connection between the City and the Craft of which I have given evidence; that during its brief, vigorous life, it has been presided over by so excellent a working Mason as our Bro. James Stevens; that it has kept to its original programme and by its Saturday afternoon meetings conducted into our mysteries members of the great commercial community, whose multifarious duties and occupied lives make the day and hour especially convenient; that its contributions to our charities have been, thanks to its self-denial, most liberal; and if I further appeal to your knowledge of the benevolent character and excellent qualities of its present Master, to whom we are all indebted for the magnificent reception of to-night, and to whom the success we are commemorating is greatly due—I shall have said more than enough to ensure an enthusiastic reception to the toast I now submit to you, "Success to the Great City Lodge." (Cheers.)

Bro. James Stevens, I.P.M., said that the warmth with which the toast had been received was at once a reward, and an ample reward, for all his past labours on behalf of the lodge, and an encouragement to persevere in future efforts on behalf of Freemasonry in general, and of the Great City Lodge most particularly. For the other portion of the toast, "Prosperity to the Great City Lodge," he felt he should be wanting in his fair duty towards the brethren if he did not a little dilate on the subject of "The Lodge." He would, however, do so briefly. For himself, as well as for the other members of the lodge, he might say they had very great pride indeed in the past transactions of the lodge. It had been launched, after some amount of difficulty, and was put into its present position after encountering some storms. They all felt a pride in now being able to receive the chief magistrate of the City of London, and it was a still further pride to them that he felt happy to be one of them. They had reached this distinguished position by small steps, and he (Bro. Stevens) was quite sure that such an example would have a good effect on other lodges. They had strongly supported the charities of the Order, and they had the good wishes of all their brethren, and it would be very much their own fault if they did not do still greater things. (Applause.)

The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Lord Mayor." The brethren did not all know, although the founders of the Great City Lodge knew, that the Lord Mayor was with them in sympathy and in spirit from the very inception of the Great City Lodge. His signature appeared on the petition for the charter which he (the W.M.) had now the honour to hold. From a variety of circumstances, however, and the great pressure of other engagements, the Lord Mayor was unable to associate himself with the brethren at the formation of the lodge—a circumstance, he thought, that any of the brethren would not now regret, for, had it been otherwise, they would not have had the pleasure that night of enrolling his lordship as an honorary member of their lodge, and entertaining him as their guest. (Addressing the Lord Mayor, the W.M. said): My Lord, we feel it a very high and great privilege, and pleasure, to have had the opportunity of enrolling you to-night as a member of our lodge. I feel that I might dilate upon this toast to a most inordinate length, but I will only say how proud I am, and how happy we all are, to know that you have been pleased to accept the honorary membership of our lodge. We trust we may have many opportunities of greeting you at our meetings. I shall now call upon the brethren to respond to the toast I propose with the greatest enthusiasm. (Cheers, in the midst of which the toast was duly honoured.)

The Lord Mayor, in reply, said—I thank you, sir, very much for the kind way in which you have proposed my health, and the brethren present for the way in which it has been received. I should be ungrateful indeed if I did not warmly acknowledge the kind reception you have given me this evening. I consider myself to be, although rather an ancient Mason, yet somewhat of a negligent one. I must say that, having arrived at a certain position in Masonry, I have not stuck to it as I ought to have done. But I am now under the influence of this very, I may say, cordial reception you have given me to-night. I may say I am undergoing a kind of revival. (Laughter and cheers.) I begin to feel again that the respect and esteem of my brethren in Masonry is a possession worth having, and I feel that the honour you have paid to the office I hold is that which should be encouraged. All who hold that office should endeavour to obtain the esteem and the respect which you have shown to me this night. I also feel that you have called upon me in a year which is likely to be most eventful. We have already elected as our Grand Master the Prince of Wales. That is again a revival. (Laughter.) It was some years ago that the Grand Master of Masons was also a member of the Royal Family, but it is many more years since we have had, as the Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, the heir to the throne. This year, I am sure, will mark a great epoch in Freemasonry. When we meet together in that large and noble hall which has been erected for other purposes, but which will now be sanctified and made honourable by the ceremony of the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, I feel that we are now, if Masonry did require it, though it does not, being placed before the world in a better light than we have ever been. Our private charities and benevolence can never be much more than they are, but the knowledge of the beauty of them and the good they do may be increased and better and more widely promulgated than it has been. We know at the present time there is a contest going on between darkness and light; we know that Popery and the Pope himself are determined on putting down freedom and goodwill to men. It is the object of us Christians, and of us in this country, and of the Prince of Wales himself, to insist that light shall prevail, and that everything that is good, and graceful, and honourable, and beneficial, shall stand upward and be put most forward before all mankind (Hear, hear). Brethren, it is not for me to enlarge more upon this subject. I only wish to show you that although I have been rather neglectful, I have not been forgetful of the great principles of Freemasonry. I do now say that I feel very grateful indeed for the honour you have done me to-night in electing me a member of your Great City Lodge, and thus connecting my name, as chief magistrate of this City, with Freemasonry. Brother Parkinson, in his excellent speech, has shown that it is the duty of every official in this great Corporation of London to unite himself with Freemasonry. He has brought forward sufficient proof to show that this great city had much sympathy with Freemasonry, and that is a subject which should be deeply engraven on all our hearts. It shows to me that within the short space of two years so large a lodge as this has been collected together, has earned for itself such respect and esteem that a large body of Grand Officers have now met around your table. When I look on my right hand, and on my left, and see so many distinguished Freemasons present, I feel that it is an honour indeed to be elected a member of the Great City Lodge. They give to us very great countenance and support, and I hope to show you, by my acts rather than by my words, how great an honour I consider it to be a member of a lodge so highly esteemed. (Cheers).

Bro. Ex-Sheriff Hutton, G.J.D., then proposed "The Health of Sheriff Ellis," and remarked that it was a fact that deserved to be noted, that the Great City Lodge, after not two years' existence, should be able to entertain such a gathering of the brethren as were then assembled. Bro. Parkinson had alluded to the fact of municipal institutions going hand in hand with Freemasonry. He (Bro. Hutton) knew as a fact that for the first time the position of the municipality of the City of London had been attempted to be dealt with and interfered with, at, curiously enough, about the time that the Great City Lodge was instituted. Singularly enough, too, the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of the present year were all Masons—one of them, he was sorry to say, was absent through illness. When they saw men in such responsible positions in this metropolis of the world coming forward as Freemasons, and inculcating the principles of Masonry, the Order commended itself to the whole world, and they could confidently look forward to the future of Freemasonry. When they looked also to the circumstances under which Ultramontanum was defeated by taking up the gauntlet when it was thrown down, they had also much to congratulate themselves upon, and he thought those points would soon be brought to a very crucial strong test. It was not for any of those present to say what the effect might be; but this they knew—what was going on in Europe—it was a struggle between light and darkness, between intelligence and ignorance. No one knew this better than a Sheriff of London and Middlesex, who came in contact with scenes which proved it. The office was a very old and important one, although it had been shorn a good deal of late years. It went back many hundreds of years, and ranked only second to Her Majesty in the country. Bro. Ellis had not been neglectful of his Masonic duties, and he would no doubt soon become a famous Mason.

Bro. Sheriff Ellis, in reply, said he was afraid he should be unable to gather together the various threads which Bro. Hutton had entangled so as to address the brethren in a suitable reply to so able a speech as he had made, but he should not be wanting in his reply to the spirit in which the brethren had accepted the toast. He had been mightily delighted that evening to find that he was still again becoming a member of the institution of his country, which he believed had raised it to the pre-eminence it had attained. He remembered well that speaking in the Guildhall, one of our statesmen said, that individuals might form communities, but it was its institutions which made a nation. He, Bro. Ellis felt that this was addressed to Englishmen of every class. It was the institution of our country that had made our country great, and it was only when our country should forget what she owed to our institutions that the greatness of England should fall. From what he had heard since he had been a Freemason, he felt that Masonry might rank amongst the most glorious institutions of this country. He had been honoured among his fellow citizens; he had, at various times, had reason to be proud; but he had never felt a greater gratification than he had experienced on that occasion when he had been associated with the Lord Mayor of London. He believed there was nothing more glorious than for a man to be selected by his fellow citizens for that high and honourable office. Men had rarely, if ever, filled that post that had not risen from the ranks; but the most glorious point in the position which they occupied, was not that they should only occupy that position, but that from century to century, and from age to age, the glorious people of England should so maintain their integrity and their sense of the duty that was thrown upon them, as to place them in the same position—that he should honour them while they honoured him. Those were the sentiments which animated every Englishman, and the Craft of Freemasonry was only a concentration of freedom, and liberty, and religion, which every Englishman was proud of. Therefore, on that occasion, he was delighted to be present, and to be honoured by the brethren as he had been that evening. (Applause).

Bro. John Savage, P.G.D., proposed "The Masonic Charities."

Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D., responded, and referred to the fact that the Lord Mayor would take the chair at the Girls' School festival, and that Bro. Headon would represent the Great City Lodge as Steward on that occasion, with a list which he believed would be the largest known. It might be thought that he (Bro. Rucker) would be disposed to take advantage of this opportunity in order to call upon the brethren to be liberal towards the institutions, but when he looked at the position in which the charities stood, and the manner in which they had been supported by the members of the Craft throughout the length and breadth of the land, his duty, he thought, was to thank them for what they had done, rather than to exhort them to do more in the future. Every man knew his own power, and he (Bro. Rucker) was quite satisfied that every man who had been initiated, passed, and raised in Freemasonry, would do everything he could to support the institutions.

Bro. Farmer replied for "The Initiates."

Bro. John Hervey, G.S., in proposing "The Visitors," humorously alluded to the W.M.'s first speech, in which he said that the speeches would be brief. As far as he could see, the brethren had not thought fit to carry out the principle of brevity which was promised, and even the W.M. himself had not observed his own rule. He (Bro. Hervey) would however, even at that late hour, set the example, and as it was known that the visitors wanted no utterance of his to make them more happy than they had been at their reception that night, he should simply propose their health, and hope that this was not the last time they would assemble around the board of the Great City Lodge.

Bro. Samuel Tomkins, G.T., replied, and thanked the brethren for the admirable working and the hospitality of the lodge. He hoped that the energy and thoughtfulness exhibited would not be diminished in future. (Hear, hear.)

The toast of "The Officers" was responded to by Bro. Edward Moody, Secretary, and the Tyler's toast brought the evening to a termination about 12 o'clock, when the brethren separated.

Bro. Goodchild was an excellent toastmaster.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

The annual installation of the officers of the Waterloo Lodge (S.C.) took place in the Masonic Hall, Boulcott-st., Tuesday, Dec. 8. Bro. Gillon, P.M., presided as installing officer, and the following officers were invested according to ancient form:—Bros. Dr. Johnston, R.W.M.; Player, S.M.; Press, S.W.; McComisky, J.W.; Powles, P.M., Treasurer; Innes, Secretary; Lindsay, S.D.; McKirdy, Stevenson, I.G.; Sealy, Organist; Burns, Steward; Buck, Tyler. The Deputy Master elect, Bro. Downes, was absent through illness. Bro. Lambert, P.M., acted as Director of Ceremonies. After the installation, upwards of fifty brethren sat down to the usual banquet. The R.W.M. occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Gillon, P.M.; Woodward, P.M. Pacific Lodge; Toxward, P.M. Pacific Lodge; and Iggesden, W.M. elect of the Pacific Lodge (E.C.). The vice-chair was occupied by the retiring R.W.M., Bro. George, supported by Bros. Powles, P.M., and Koch, P.M. A considerable number of visitors were present, as well as members of the Pacific Lodge. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured and several excellent songs sung. The party broke up shortly before midnight, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Lodge, E.C., took place on 29th December (St. John's Day) in the Masonic Hall, Boulcott-street, the principal business being the installation of the W.M. and officers for the ensuing year. There was a large attendance of brethren and visitors, the work of installation in this instance being shared in by Bros. C. White, P.M.; E. Butts, P.M.; and T. J. Ladd, I.P.M.; was performed in a satisfactory manner. The brethren below the rank of Past Masters having withdrawn, a board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. C.M. Iggesden was duly inducted to the chair of K.S. The brethren having been recalled, the W.M. proceeded to invest and appoint the following officers:—Bros. T. J. Mountain, S.W.; N. Marchant, J.W.; Rev. Nicholls, Chaplain; R. Lambert, P.M., Treasurer; J. M. Taylor, Secretary; G. Sample, S.D.; F. C. Binns, J.D.; C. Hardy, and K. Wilson, Stewards; S. Brown, I.G.; E. Buck, Tyler. Immediately after closing the brethren adjourned to the banquet, provided by Bro. Doncker in his usual recherché style, after the enjoyment of which the W.M. gave the first toast "The Queen and the Craft." This was honoured by the brethren singing the first verse of the National Anthem. "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. designate," was received with enthusiasm, the brethren singing a stanza of "God Bless the Prince of Wales." Other loyal and Masonic toasts followed, as also some excellent singing by some of the musical brethren, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The Pacific lodge is to be congratulated on the selection of so earnest a Mason as Bro. Iggesden to fill the "curule chair."

Probably there is no other town of its size (about 2000 inhabitants) in the Southern Hemisphere where Masonry is so revered and regarded as a "labour of love" as in Grey-mouth, Westland, N.Z., the following lodges, chapters,

&c., being in full work: Greymouth Lodge and Chapter, E.C.; Grey River St. Andrew Lodge and Chapter, S.C.; Lewis Mark Lodge; E.C., Royal Ark Mariners' Lodge, a conclave of the Knights of Rome and Red Cross of Constantine, and a sanctuary of the K.H.S. A petition is now being forwarded to the proper authorities, through Sir Knt. E. Archer, for the degrees of Knights Templar and Rose Croix. Surely our brethren may eventually exclaim "Consummatus est!"

FREEMASONRY IN BERMUDA.

An emergency meeting of the Loyalty Lodge (No. 358) was held on the 31st Dec., in the Hall of the above lodge, Ireland Island, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. J. Bray, S.W., investing the officers for the ensuing year, and for celebrating the festival of our patron Saint John the Evangelist. The brethren assembled at the stated time, 6.30 p.m., when the lodge was opened with solemn prayer in due form by Bro. W. E. Warder, W.M., supported by Bros. P.Ms. Thiele and Tucker; Bros. J. Bray, S.W.; W. T. Llewellyn, J.W.; Balls, S.D.; J. Soby, J.D.; W. Downing, I.G.; and T. F. Barnes, Tyler. The lodge was then passed to the second degree, and the ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, and in a very solemn and impressive manner, Bro. J. Bray, W.M. elect, was inducted into the oriental chair of K.S. as W.M. of Loyalty Lodge, No. 358, the ceremony of installation being conducted by Bro. W. E. Warder, I.P.M., assisted by Bros. P.Ms. Thiele and Tucker. Too much praise could not be accorded those brethren for the very able manner in which it was carried out.

Bro. G. Bray, W.M., then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. W. E. Warder, I.P.M.; W. T. Llewellyn, S.W.; W. Cann, J.W.; C. Thiele, P.M., Treasurer; T. F. Barnes, Secretary; R. Pike, S.D.; E. Marsh, J.D.; D. Heath, I.G.; and A. E. Fiddy, Tyler.

Bro. W.M. Bray then, in a very neat and appropriate address to each of his officers, reminded them of the responsibilities they had this evening taken upon themselves, and desired them to look well to their different stations in the lodge, and finally congratulated the brethren upon their choice of Treasurer in the person of our most worthy and highly-esteemed Bro. P.M. Thiele, who had held that important office so long and so creditably.

The ceremonies of installation and investiture being completed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren, numbering about 65, sat down to an excellent repast, prepared by the Stewards, Bros. Bray, Warder, and Pike.

The very tasteful manner in which the hall was decorated reflected great credit on those brethren, who had devoted their time to that purpose, under the directions of the Stewards, while the table was such as to show into what able hands that department had fallen, and the brethren showed their appreciation of the provision made by doing ample justice to the good things provided.

The cloth being removed, several loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, among which were the most prominent:—"The Queen and Craft," "Navy and Army," "M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales, and the Grand Officers," "W.M. and Officers for 1875," "Retiring W.M. and Officers," "Guests," "Stewards," "Visitors," "Ladies," and, last but not least, "All Sick and Distressed Masons throughout the Universe."

"The Queen and Craft" was proposed by the W.M., and responded to by all the brethren, singing "God save the Queen."

The W.M., in proposing the toast "The M.W.G.M. and Grand Lodges of the United Kingdom," did not forget our near neighbours, the Grand Lodge of the City of New York, to which our Bro. R. A. Young, in his very agreeable style, responded in particular on behalf of the Grand Lodge of New York, expressing the pleasure he felt at being present at such a meeting, and above all the pleasure of being a member of such a well-conducted lodge as Loyalty, and concluded by wishing Bro. W.M. J. Bray and his officers a most happy and prosperous year.

On the toast of "The Retiring W.M. and Officers" being proposed, Bro. Bray, W.M., in congratulating Bro. Warder, I.P.M., on the prosperity of the lodge during his year of office, remarked that it was indeed something to be proud of, to be able to say that he had been the W.M. of Loyalty during one of the most prosperous years in the annals of the lodge, next in numbers to the worthy P.M. Bro. Tucker.

Whereupon Bro. P.M. Warder responded in the most able manner, giving a short but very clear account of the work of the year, concluding with the most hearty wishes for the continued prosperity of the lodge.

The toast of "The W.M. and Officers of 1875" being proposed by Bro. Warder, I.P.M., it was received with the most hearty applause and drank with true Masonic honours.

When Bro. Bray, W.M., responded and endeavoured to make the brethren understand that it should be his most earnest endeavour and constant study to convince them that their confidence had not been misplaced, and, as he had received the warrant from his predecessor, so he would labour hard to hand it to his successor, pure and unimpaired as he had that evening received it, and after a few neat but appropriate remarks to his officers, asked their regular and continued support, for the well-being of the Order generally and the continued prosperity of the lodge.

Bro. Cann, J.W., then responded on behalf of "The Officers" in a few but appropriate words, in which he showed the brethren that as he had then taken one step on the Masonic ladder he assured them that he would work hard to reach the topmost round, keeping that object in view, which every good Mason should strive for.

The toast of "Our Guests" was very ably responded to by Bro. Tucker, P.M., expressing sincere regret at the absence of those esteemed brethren, Bros. Watkins, P.M., and Darrell, P.M., who were then suffering—the one from bodily illness, the other from an accident. Their speedy and safe recovery was drank with enthusiasm. The other toasts then followed and were ably responded to by the several brethren.

While song and sentiment were proceeding in a very agreeable and pleasant manner the solemn tones of the clock struck the hour of 12. The W.M. then intimated that another year had passed away with all its hopes and fears, and the new year, 1875, had dawned upon us in its most pleasant form, and while we were enjoying the good things of this world let us not forget all sick and distressed brethren throughout the universe; and to close one of the most pleasant evenings "Auld Lang Syne" was sung right heartily, and the brethren retired to their respective homes.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

MASONIC SONG.

In answer to my excellent Bro. Constable, I beg to say, that I, with others, feel indebted to him for pointing out the "whereabouts" of a somewhat remarkable song. I had seen some of its words before, but did not know, nor do I yet, in what Masonic collection to find them. They do not exist in Stephen Jones's "Muse of Masonry" of 1797 and 1811, but they may be found in some other collection. In the "Institutes of Masonry," &c., addressed to the "Sea Captain's Lodge," and published at Liverpool in 1788, in Masonic Song 24, occur these two verses at its close, and which have a good deal of likeness to the last two verses quoted by Bro. Constable:—

Let's lead a good life while power we have,
And when that our bodies are laid in the grave,
We hope with good conscience to Heaven to climb,
And give Peter the password, the token, the sigh;
Saint Peter, he opens, and so we pass in,
To a place that's prepared for all those free from sin,
To that Heavenly lodge which is tyled most secure,
A place that's prepared for all Masons who're pure,
To all pure and upright Masons.

There is also a Song, No. 38, in the same book, which travels somewhat over the same ground, but is neither so clever, and much more coarse than Bro. Constable's quotation. This is one verse about Noah:—

Then, after the flood, like a brother so true,
Who still had the good of the Craft in his view,
He delved the ground, and he planted the vine,
He formed a lodge, aye, and he gave the lodge wine.
This song is to the tune of "Derry Down."

ARCHIVES OF THE MASON'S COMPANY.

I am happy to announce, that by some researches kindly made for me, through the courtesy of the Master and of H. H. Burnell, and Mr. Hunter, the present clerk, by Mr. Gwatkin, in the records of this ancient company, Mr. Wm. Gray, Mr. Samuel Taylor, and the two Mr. Wises, all mentioned by Elias Ashmole, have been found to be members of the Masons' Company at the period mentioned by Ashmole. I hope to learn something more before long, as I have asked the favour of other researches being made; though whether we shall clear away all the doubts and difficulties of the case, may be a question. Elias Ashmole, if I read his words aright, makes a difference between the "Society of Freemasons," and the "Masons' Company," and it is, I think, more than probable that they were two and distinct sodalities.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

PRESCOT.—LODGE OF LOYALTY (No. 86).—There was a good attendance at the usual monthly meeting of this lodge, held at present at the King's Arms Hotel, Prescott. After the usual business, including an initiation, Bro. Young, W.M., called attention to the special circular which he had issued to the members in reference to the approaching installation of our Royal brother, remarking that, as nearly the oldest lodge in the province, and one whose leading members had always taken a very active interest in everything concerning the Craft, he had no doubt many would be exceedingly anxious to witness the interesting ceremony. A long general conversation ensued as to the event, many expressing themselves desirous of being present, and various suggestions being made as to the best means of promoting the comfort and convenience of the brethren on the occasion, especially in reference to the railway travelling. Ultimately on the motion of Bro. J. Vaughan, J.W., it was unanimously resolved that Bros. Reginald Young, W.M.; H. Scott, I.P.M.; J.W.; J. Fowler, P.M.; Treasurer; and J. T. Hall, P.M., be requested to wait upon Bro. Shaw, the indefatigable and obliging district superintendent of the London and North Western Railway Company, to ascertain what arrangements could be made for the conveyance of the brethren, to and from London on the occasion. It was announced that the New Masonic Hall, which has been built for the accommodation of the lodge, was nearly ready for occupation and Bro. J. T. Hall, P.M., gave notice that at the next meeting of the lodge, he should move that it be removed, from and after the April meeting, to the new building.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 25th ult. Present:—Bros. Durand George, W.M.; C. Schulen, P. Prov. G.D.C.; C. Long, P.G.D.C. Cambs., S.W.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, P.G.C.; J.W.; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; A. J. Barber, P.G.O.; W. Spaulding, P.M., Secretary; H. Clarke, and others. The lodge was opened in ancient form and with solemn prayer. The minutes of last lodge having been read and confirmed Bros. Geo. Elliston and G. Pirie were examined, obligated, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, and Mr. Henry Edwards, who had been previously balloted for and accepted, was initiated into the mysteries of the first degree—both ceremonies being ably performed by Bro. George, W.M. The beautiful hymn "Days and Moments quickly flying" was given with great effect, adding much to the impressiveness of the third degree, which, we think, always needs the powerful adjunct of music to render it really sublime. The usual banquet succeeded, and of course was well attended and excellently served as usual.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—held an emergency meeting on Monday, 22nd ult., for the purpose of electing a Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as the Most Worshipful Grand Master. A greater number of members than might have been expected were present. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. S. L. Hickman, who after calling the attention of the brethren to the business of the meeting addressed the lodge, in his usual meek and gentlemanly manner, stating that he should feel great pleasure in representing the lodge as Steward on the occasion. Bro. I. Frankford (the oldest member of the lodge), proposed that the W.M. should represent the lodge as Steward at the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, which was seconded by Bros. S. Davis, when to the surprise of the majority present, it was opposed by Bro. Israel Abrahams, P.M., and Bro. O. Robert, I.P.M., who brought forward a candidate in the person of Bro. Albert, P.M. and Secretary. After a somewhat noisy discussion, the two propositions were put to the lodge, when Bro. Albert, finding his chance hopeless, gracefully retired from the contest, and the W.M. was formally elected to fill the important position. It may be remarked, that such a lack of deference to the W.M., emanating as it did from Past Masters, has rarely, if ever, been witnessed at the lodge.

UNITED PILGRIMS LODGE (No. 507).—On Wednesday, the 24th ult., the annual installation meeting of this lodge was held, at its old quarters, the Horns, Kenington. The lodge was opened by Bro. James Duckett, P.M. and Secretary, in the absence of Bro. Levy. There were present, Bros. Jas. Duckett; F. Lee, P.M.; S. Haddock, P.M.; W. R. Grellett, P.M.; North Ritherdon, S.W.; J. S. Terry, J.W.; J. Broadbent, S.D.; D. Barclay; J. M. Marr; Geo. Reeve; W. M. Marr; J. Bradley; W. Levantin; H. Grain; J. Gooch; and visitors Bros. P. Dickinson, 1298; M. S. Larham, 1216; H. O. Graham, 281; R. Charlwood, 376; W. F. Roger, P.M. 193; F. Coudercy, 79; John Oliver, W.M. 1328; H. Massey, 619 (Freemason); J. W. Weight, S.W. 1298; and Jas. Stevens, P.M., 1326. After the opening of the lodge, Bro. Grellett, P.M., in a most able and fluent style installed Bro. North Ritherdon, S.W., and W.M. Elect, in the Master's chair, who appointed as his officers, Bro. Terry, S.W.; Bro. Broadbent, J.W.; Bro. Lee, P.M., Treasurer; Bro. Duckett, P.M., Secretary; Bro. Hicklin, S.D.; Bro. Barclay, J.D.; Bro. Bradley, I.G.; Bro. Grain, W.S.; Bro. Grellett, D.C.; and Bro. Bentley, T. On the completion of the ceremony, the new W.M. initiated Mr. John William Watts, and performed his work in a most able manner. He afterwards read to the brethren the circular from the Grand Secretary concerning the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and called upon them to elect a Steward for the occasion. The brethren elected the W.M. unanimously, on the proposition of the S.W., seconded by the J.W. Bro. Lee, P.M., proposed, and Bro. Grellett, P.M., seconded the gift of a P.M. jewel to Bro. Levy, the I.P.M., who has filled the office of W.M. of the United Pilgrims Lodge twice; once ten years ago, and again last year. The motion was unanimously adopted, and the brethren then closed down, and adjourned to an elegant banquet, provided by Bro. J. Eaton, the proprietor of the "Horns." At the conclusion of the feast, which was much enjoyed by all the brethren, the toasts were proposed and honoured. After "The Queen and the Craft" and the other three opening toasts, Bro. Lee proposed the "W.M.," who, he said, they were all pleased to see working the ceremonies so ably. From the way he had hitherto conducted his Masonic duties, the brethren might be sure he would continue to discharge them with satisfaction to himself and gratification to his brethren, and no doubt they would all have a very delightful year under Bro. Ritherdon's reign. The W.M. in responding, said he had now an opportunity of thanking the brethren for the honour they had done him in electing him. The office of W.M. was a most important one, and he should endeavour to fill it properly. He trusted that they would have a successful year; but that depended as much upon the brethren as upon him. If they would do their part, he would do his, and he requested the officers to attend punctually and regularly, and support him, and the ceremonies would be conducted in such a way as to produce an impression on the candidates, which they should always receive. (Cheers.) In proposing "The Health of the Past-Masters," the W.M. said the lodge was much indebted to them for the assistance they rendered. Bro. Lee, P.M., responded. He regretted that the I.P.M. was not present. The W.M. had alluded to the approaching installation of the Prince of Wales, which would be a great event in the annals of Masonry. He would suggest that all the brethren of this lodge should attend the ceremony on that red letter day. As was mentioned by the Lord Mayor at the Great City Lodge, it would have a great effect on the country at large with regard to freedom of opinion and Popery. Now was the time for Masons to move and be stirring, and if they did, no doubt their lodges would be prosperous. He trusted that the United Pilgrims Lodge would prosper, and that a great number of brethren would be added to that fold, and uphold the dignity of the Craft. Bro. Grellett and Bro. Duckett also replied. "The Health of the Initiate" followed. In giving it, the W.M. said that he hoped that their newly-made brother would find that this lodge was not merely a place where its members might meet, but that it was a lodge of Freemasons—that is, every member doing his best for the Craft in general, and his own special lodge in particular. From the way Bro. Watts had gone through the ceremony, he had shown a desire to make himself a worthy brother among them. He had paid particular attention to the obligations, and exhibited a wish to go thoroughly into the Craft. He had seen the beneficial effects produced on others by their joining the Order, and was anxious that they should also be produced on himself. Bro. Watts said he was entering on a new phase of life, and it might be imagined he was rather anxious and nervous, for this reason, he craved the indulgence which was accorded to brethren addressing a lodge for the first time. He wished them to understand, that as far as lay in his power, he would always endeavour to uphold the dignity and the honour of the Craft, and of this lodge. His next aim would be to make himself thoroughly acquainted with all the mysteries appertaining to it. He did not know what they were, but it should be his purpose thoroughly to understand the whole art and mystery. On some future day, he hoped to be greeted with yet greater warmth than he had been that day. Bro. James Stevens in his reply to the toast of "The Visitors," remarked that he must inform those brethren who were not constant visitors at the hospitable board of this lodge, that this was the usual way in which the United Pilgrims treated their guests, consequently visitors were always glad to come to this lodge; as a frequent visitor himself he had often seen the W.M. do the Masonic work, and it was with very great satisfaction he saw Bro. Ritherdon placed in the high position of W.M. He was a Mason who would do honour to his position, to the Craft, and to the lodge. The visitors heartily wished him a successful year, and trusted he would have officers about him who would be willing to discharge their duties, in fact as they had now promised to do. Referring to the event which was now occupying so much attention among the Craft, he would say that it was much to the visitors' satisfaction that they had seen the W.M. elected as Steward. He thought the 28th of April would be a kind of holiday, and that the London lodges would consider it a point of duty to call their lodges together and get them to accompany them to the Albert Hall, and afterwards to entertain their country brethren at banquet at their lodges. The country brethren would be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing London working. The ceremony of installation would not last long, and a sort of jubilee might be kept by all the brethren, in honour of the event. The Prince of Wales taking the Grand Mastership, was an event of great importance at the present time. The events of the past two years had been such that they proved it; and from the capital of Italy utterances had come which showed that this installation would be distinctly impressed on the whole world. As Englishmen and as Masons, they were called upon to take notice of the notorious dogma which was antagonistic to them in every way, and they must give a distinct denial to any idea of supremacy from that part of the world which he spoke of. The utterances of the Lord Mayor on Saturday, the 20th March, were so explicit and definite that there could be no mistaking his meaning. He (Bro. Stevens), hoped that the 28th of April would be an unmistakable answer to what had been fulminated from Rome, and that from that day he should not be subjected to anathemas and excommunication. He looked to the event as one of great significance, and hoped it would last for years and years, and be the means of making Freemasonry flourish still more than it had ever done. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Grellett responded to the toast of "The Installing Master," and said that it was only by attending the late Bro. John Thomas's Lodge of Instruction, and paying attention to the information he was always ready to impart, that he had become proficient in the art. He then paid a just tribute of gratitude to Bro. Thomas for the liberality with which he always offered his time and his knowledge to such brethren as might wish to avail themselves of it for the purpose of learning Masonry, saying that he was never more pleased than when he could open the immense stores of Masonic learning which he had acquired. Bro. Grellett added that if any of that knowledge which he had so acquired was of any service to the W.M., if he wished to instal his successor he should be most happy to place it at his disposal (cheers). The W.M. then gave "The Officers," whom he described as the backbone of the lodge body. He had great confidence in those brethren he had appointed, and he believed they would use every endeavour to be properly qualified for their duties. He also related to the brethren how he became an efficient officer himself:—by attending lodges of instruction regularly, and leaving his friends and neighbours always when the lodge of instruction at Brixton met. Bros. Terry, Broadbent, Barclay and Duckett replied, the latter brother observing that he had done all he could to become an efficient officer under Brother Thomas; it was much to the regret of all that they had heard of his death. With respect to the remarks which had been made respecting the installation of the Prince of Wales, he thought it right that he who would one day wield the British sceptre should now wield the Masonic sceptre; and as to the anathemas of Rome, he looked upon them as the vapourings of envy. As long as brethren acted up to the ceremonies they would defy the vapourings of the envious, only let them be true to themselves and each other, forget their personal differences, support the Order and discharge their duties, and they would be strengthening the Craft. The lodge was a part of the body corporate, and if it was properly supported, and properly nurtured (for Masonry was only in its infancy at present) it would become one of those gigantic bodies that would last for all time (cheers). Bro. Lee also replied as Treasurer, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

DEPTFORD.—ROYAL OAK LODGE (871).—An emergency meeting was held at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, on Thursday, March 25th, 1875. There were present Bros. S. O. Lewin, W.M.; W. Wyatt, as S.W.; J. J. Pakes, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; R. Harman, D.C.; H. J. Fisher, Organist; G. Andrews, P.M.; H. A. Collington, P.M.; L. Lemon, W. A. R. Harris, C. Williams, G. Jones, T. Frith, A. Maers, E. James, E. Good, R. Harvey, J. Allen, J. Phillips, G. Porter, F. H. Burn, J. Rennie, and others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. W. Halsey, P.M. 134; J. V. Watkins, 1326. The work was done by Bro. G. Andrews. J. T. Phillips was passed, and G. Jones and T. Frith were raised. G. Andrews, P.M., was elected to be the Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Letters of condolence were unanimously agreed to be sent to the widows of Bros. J. W. Reed, P.M., who died on the 20th, and F. R. Hood, who died in the morning that the lodge met in the evening.

WALMER.—LORD WARREN LODGE (No. 1096).—On Friday, March 19th, the election of the W.M. for the ensuing year took place at the Lord Warren Hotel, Lower Walmer. The following brethren were present:—Bros. B. R. Eastes, W.M.; Rev. J. B. Harrison, I.P.M.; T. Ayling, S.W. pro tem.; T. E. Cavell, J.W.; J. W. Grimes, Chaplain, pro tem.; T. J. Usher, P.M., Sec.; R. The lodge opened in the first degree, and the minutes of the last lodge were read and confirmed; the ballot for the W.M. for the ensuing year was next taken, when Bro. T. E. Cavell was elected; the ballot for the Treasurer was next taken, when Bro. B. R. Eastes was elected, and the Tyler was re-elected; then the ballot was taken for Bro. G. Thompson to become a joining member, which was unanimous; the bye laws were next read in conformity with them. Then Mr. Samuel Michael Williams and Mr. George Wood were duly initiated into Freemasonry by the W.M., after which another brother was proposed to be balloted for next lodge night as a joining member. Nothing further being offered, the lodge closed. The brethren then spent a pleasant hour together.

ROCHDALE.—St. Chad Lodge (No. 1129).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Roebuck Hotel, Rochdale, 17th, March. The officers present Bros. E. W. Norris, W.M. Jos. Ireland, S.W. P. M. H. Turner, Secretary; P. M. James Hadfield, Treasurer; Peter Lee, S. D.; James Fletcher, J. D.; Hodgson, I. G.; The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 6.45; the minutes were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the second degree. Bro. T. Butterworth Collingwood presented himself and was examined, and the brethren were highly satisfied, he was therefore entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the candidate was admitted and duly raised by P. M. Richardson, in a pleasing manner. Bro. T. B. Collingwood was invested, and the business of this degree being ended the lodge was closed. The lodge was closed in the second degree. After reading the communications and making necessary arrangements to ascertain how many of the brethren intend to be present at the installation of H. R. II. the Prince of Wales, the lodge was finally closed at 8.15, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was provided by C. M. Jones, P.M.; and his wife, in that excellent manner they are so well noted for. The W.M. took the chair and was well supported by his officers and brethren. After the cloth was removed, the W.M. proposed "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen and the rest of the Royal Family," and the toasts were given in the usual manner. P. M. Turner proposed "The Health of the newly raised Bro. T. B. Collingwood," who on rising thanked them kindly for admitting him among them and said he would endeavour to become a Mason in act, as well as in deed and conform to the rules and regulations of the Order. The W.M. gave the closing toast, and the brethren departed in peace, and good will towards each other, after having enjoyed a comfortable evening.

NEWTON ABBOTT.—Devon Lodge (No. 1138).—The monthly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on the 16th ult. Present—Bros. W. R. King, W.M.; B. G. Beachey, I.P.M.; F. D. Bewes, P.M.; P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. S. Saunders, J.W.; W. Harris, S.D.; E. Huxtable, J.D.; R. L. Lloyd, Treas.; J. Oliver, Sec.; G. H. Hearder, Org.; F. J. Pratt, and C. Stevens, Stewards; Q. Crooke, I.G.; W. L. Pope, D.D.; P. Prov. G.C.; R. Hoskins, L. E. Bearne, W. H. Benfill, J. Williams, A. Christie, H. Voysey; visitor—W. Uglow, Morning Star Lodge, 1396. The lodge being opened and minutes confirmed, when Bro. N. H. Beazley, P.M., P. Prov. G.D. of C. West Lancashire, was balloted for as a joining member and unanimously elected. The lodge was then opened in the second and third degrees, when Bro. L. E. Bearne, who having proved his proficiency as a Fellow Craft, was most ably raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by Bro. F. D. Bewes, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B. The lodge was then resumed to the second, and then to the first degree, when the ballot was taken for Mr. Herbert Martin, and Mr. Robt. E. Burges, candidates for initiation into the mysteries of Freemasonry; being clear, they were initiated into the Order in a most impressive manner. Several accounts were passed, and a letter from Grand Lodge, announcing the installation of the M.W. Grand Master, was read, and some brethren stated it was their intention to attend if tickets could be obtained. The labour of the lodge (which had been open upwards of three hours) being ended, it was closed in the usual manner.

MILLOM.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge took place on the evening of the 16th ult. There was a goodly muster of brethren present. The minutes of last communication were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. T. B. Myers, of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, Liverpool, as a joining member, also for Mr. Wm. Hodgson, which proving favourable for both, the latter being in attendance, was initiated into the mysteries by the W.M., Bro. John Mills, P. Prov. G.S.B., the working tools being given by the S.W., Bro. Meredith, and the charge was most impressively rendered by Bro. McKay, being a visiting brother from the Union Lodge Kendal. This being the only business of the evening, at the request of the W.M., Bro. McKay, gave the lecture on the first tracing board, which was given with his usual good style, and at the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him for the treat the brethren had enjoyed, and hoped that it would not be the last that Bro. McKay would give to the brethren of this lodge. Bro. McKay thanked the W.M. and brethren for the compliment, and expressed himself glad to do anything to further Freemasonry and promote its principles among the brethren, and if, at any future time, he should be in the neighbourhood on lodge night, he would be pleased to give the more advanced lectures. On a letter being read from Bro. Postlethwaite, the J.W., saying that in consequence of his sad bereavement, he would not be present that evening, the W.M. rose to say a few words on this and another sad circumstance. He said in God's providence it had pleased Him to visit the homes of both our Wardens with that dreadful foe, death. Bro. Postlethwaite had met with the greatest loss that can fall upon a household in the loss of his wife, Bro. Meredith, also in the loss of all his dear children. We can well feel what those bereavements are. I have known both for some years, and I, in common with their friends and acquaintances, feel much for their loss. I am not prepared to make a speech; but that, I am sure, is unnecessary, because, as Masons, we cherish affectionate regard for each other in every relation of life, and inculcate those kind feelings towards each other, which makes us regard other's afflictions as our own. Among the brotherhood I am sure there is no need of eloquence to raise feelings of sympathy in our hearts; we can feel what ought to be said. I therefore propose that addresses of condolence be sent to Bros. Meredith and Postlethwaite, and that they be recorded on the minutes. A brother having seconded the motion, it was carried unanimously. Bro. Blakeney proposed, and Bro. Cooke seconded that Bro. the Rev. Wm. Barton, of Lodge Sincerity, 1019, be received as a joining member. There being no further business, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer at 10 p.m.

STONEHOUSE.—Lodge Metham (No. 1205).—On Monday, 15th ult., Bro. Lord Charles Beresford, R.N., M.P., was installed as W.M. of Lodge Metham, for the ensuing year, in the presence of about a hundred brethren, many of whom had come from various parts of the two counties, to do honour to his lordship, who is highly esteemed among his Masonic brethren. The interesting and imposing ceremony of installation was ably and impressively performed by Bro. Col. Elliott, assisted by Bro. Leigh, and at the conclusion the lodge choir sang the beautiful anthem "Behold how good and joyful it is for Brethren to dwell together in Unity." The annual banquet was held in the evening at St. George's Hall, under the presidency of Lord Charles Beresford, the newly-elected W.M. The hall was decorated with exceedingly good taste by Bro. Coath, P.M., of 893, under the direction of a committee of the lodge, with flags kindly lent by Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, K.C.B., and a variety of plants from the gardens of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe. The banquet was provided by Mrs. Coffin, of George-Street, Plymouth, and the wines by Mr. S. Vospre, of Stonehouse, and in each of these departments the greatest satisfaction was given. There were about 120 brethren present, including the majority of those who attended the installation, and in addition there were also present—Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, Bros. I. Latimer, P.M., 189; P.G.J.W.; W. Derry, P.P.G.S.D.; Risk, J. T. Smith, P.M. 223; Frœhnert, Fly, Sherwill, Haggarty, Hearle, P.M. and Treasurer, 156, P.G.A.D.C.; Bros. J. J. Avery, W.M. 70; J. Waldo Howe, J.W. 189; Twoose, P.M. 105; W. Coath, P.M. 893; A. Knowles, D.C. 159; H. Davey, S.S. 105; A. W. King, 1205; C. Walters, J. Pethick, and many others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed the removal of the cloth, and the W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Most Worshipful H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master," said his Royal Highness was a true, good-hearted Englishman who would always carry out to the fullest extent the truest principles of Freemasonry, and who would do honour to the high position he was soon about to occupy. The next toast was "The Pro-Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, and Past and Present Grand Officers, the Dep. Grand Master of Devon, and the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." This was drunk with the usual honours, and was followed by the toast of "The R.W. Brethren the Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.M. of Devon, and the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, P.G.M. of Cornwall." In proposing this the W.M. spoke in the highest terms of Bros. the Rev. J. Huyshe, and the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, both of whom were greatly beloved by the Masonic brethren of their respective provinces. Bro. Huyshe's name was a household word amongst Masons all over England. Bro. Col. Elliott, who responded, regretted the absence of the P.G.M., who had recently been laid upon a bed of sickness, and who, at one time, was so ill that his recovery was despaired of. He was now progressing towards convalescence, and he was sure every true Mason would heartily hope that the R.W. Brother might live for many years to preside over the province. Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe had fully intended to have been present at the installation of the W.M., but he was suddenly called away to London, and the lodge was, therefore, deprived of the honour of his presence. Bro. Metham would also have been present but for the death of his brother. He had written expressing his deep regret at the cause of his absence, inasmuch as he had hoped to have had the opportunity of thanking all the lodges for their generous subscriptions to the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum at Stoke. He (Bro. Elliott) was glad to be able to say that towards this fund Metham Lodge had contributed fifty guineas—(applause). He had now to ask the brethren to join him right heartily in drinking the health of their W.M., Bro. Lord Charles Beresford. The admirable manner in which his lordship had that afternoon discharged his duties after his installation was a sufficient justification—if there were no other—of the choice which the lodge had made. Metham Lodge should feel proud at having such a noble brother at its head, and also that it was the means of adding to the lists of members of the Grand Lodge of England one who was so thoroughly and entirely worthy to fill that honourable post, and whom they might shortly hope and expect to see filling a high office under His Royal Highness the Grand Master of England. Lord Charles Beresford in acknowledging the toasts, assured the brethren that he had the highest appreciation of the great honour which had that day been done him, and he hoped to be able to attend to the duties of the office during the greater part of the year. He was also glad that it would give him an opportunity of being present at the installation of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England. He had a very great idea of the value of Freemasonry, and believed it was one of the best institutions they had in the country. Under its banner high and low, rich and poor, old and young were brought together in social intercourse, and for benevolent and charitable purposes, such an institution was bound to do good. The next toast was that of "The Past Masters," proposed by the W.M., and suitably responded to by Bros. Colonel Elliott, Metham, and Leigh. "The Wardens and other Officers of the Lodge" was acknowledged by Bro. W. Harries, S.W., who thanked his lordship for the kindly terms in which he had proposed the toast. The office which had been conferred upon him was one which he valued very highly, and he hoped he should always be found performing its duties in a manner that would be in every way acceptable to the brethren generally. He was warmly attached to Masonry, and he need scarcely say that he was equally attached to his lodge, and he hoped he should always be found foremost in promoting that good feeling and those truly Masonic principles which were, or ought to be, the very essence of the Order. Metham Lodge was a lodge of which they had all reason to be proud, and the maintenance of its honour and reputation depended to a great extent upon the manner in which its officers discharged their functions. These functions required a vast amount of thought, study, and attention, and it would be his pleasure, as indeed it was his duty, to give to the office all that study and earnest attention which the brethren had a right to expect of him. Bro. Glover, J.W., also acknowledged the toast, and hoped the lodge would always find him at his post. Bro. Admiral Sir Henry Keppel responded for "The Visiting Brethren and Sister Lodges," and the last toast on the list was "Our Poor and Distressed Brethren." During the evening valuable musical services, vocal and instrumental, were rendered by Bros. Frœhnert, Fly, Hart, Cross, Harries, Emery, Gibbons, Mitten, Binding, Glover, Maher, Hele, and Rowlands. The evening, altogether, was a most enjoyable one.

SOUTHALL.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1309).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, March 23rd, at the Prince Alfred Hotel, Southall. Since the last regular meeting held in November the lodge has had to deplore the deaths of Bros. Richard Limpus, P. Prov. G. Organist Middlesex, W.M., and Edwin Sillifant, P. Prov. G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer. Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary, opened the lodge; Bro. C. Horsley, P. Prov. G.R. Middlesex, P.M., passed Bros. C. Paulson and J. Davies to the second degree and raised Bro. G. Wilson to the third degree, the work being done in an admirable manner. Letters of condolence were ordered to be sent to the widows of the deceased officers. A petition from a widow was recommended to the Lodge of Benevolence, and she had £8 10s. collected from amongst the dozen members present—to be increased to £10 0s. from the Charity Fund of the lodge. Bro. R. P. Tebb was unanimously elected as the Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming Festival of the Girls' School. There were present during the afternoon and evening Bros. C. G. S. Stahr, P.M.; C. A. Ferrier, S.W.; C. G. Rushworth, J.W.; J. W. George, J.D.; H. D'Arcy, G. W. Schollar, R. J. Tebb, T. S. Lewis, and others. Visitor—Bro. J. W. Baldwin, W.M. 1423. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. The brethren partook of tea and slight refreshment, and then returned to town.

LIVERPOOL.—The Hamer Lodge (No. 1393).—Of all the lodges in West Lancashire, perhaps none are at this moment so prosperous as the comparatively young one known as the Hamer, formerly meeting in Windermere Street, Liverpool, but now having elegant and comfortable quarters of its own at the Clarence Hotel, Everton road, Liverpool. For many reasons, but especially for the marked excellence of its working, and the great popularity of its W.M. Bro. R. H. Evans, and indeed of all its excellent officers there has for some months past, been a very large and constant accession to its members. Indeed so rapidly is the number increasing, that the necessity for greatly enlarged accommodation is every month becoming more and more urgent, though in other respects, the present place of meeting is so comfortable and convenient that all would regret to leave them. At the usual monthly meeting on Tuesday last, there were no fewer than five balloted for initiation, and three of them being in attendance were effectively passed through the first degree. Afterwards six were passed to the second degree, the ceremony being most impressively performed by the W.M. and his Wardens. There was an unusually large attendance of visitors, including brethren from several other neighbouring towns, and even from Ireland and Canada. At the close of the usual business of the lodge the W.M. called attention to the communication from the Secretary of Grand Lodge, in reference to the installation of "H. R. H. the Prince of Wales." The members expressed very great interest in the event, and many expressed their desire to witness the ceremony. Bro. J. Jones, I.P.M., said he thought it was highly desirable that as many members of the lodge as possible should visit the metropolis on such an auspicious occasion, but in his opinion the Hamer Lodge ought to be officially represented, and he had therefore very great pleasure in proposing that their esteemed Worshipful Master, Bro. Evans, be requested to attend the installation of our Royal Brother at the expense of the lodge. The motion was received with much favour, and unanimously adopted. The W.M. briefly acknowledged the compliment, and the lodge was closed shortly afterwards. A little later the brethren met together at supper, the W.M. presiding, and the vice chairs being occupied by Bro. Jackson, S.W., and Bro. McCarthy, J.W. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Visiting Brethren" expressing his gratification at seeing so many of them present with them that evening. He coupled with the toast the names of Bro. Crosby Leighton, W.M. 1035; J. Vaughan, J.W. 85; H. Vaughan, J.D. 86, and W. Simpson, 823, all of whom acknowledged the compliment, and spoke in high terms of the excellent working of the Hamer Lodge, and the very great hospitality and kindness which all its members invariably showed to visiting brethren. Other toasts followed, and the proceedings were altogether of an interesting and enjoyable character.

After some discussion it was decided to take no steps in the matter. The other routine business of the chapter having been disposed of, the companions shared the secrets, the Royal Arch Chapter was closed in due and solemn form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal toasts were given, and three Grand Principals were duly toasted, and a pleasant social hour was passed.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (time immemorial).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, March 25th. Present—V.W. Bros. Dr. Hopkins, Past G.J.W., and P.M. 26 and 74, acting as W.M.; Moutrie, acting as S.W.; James J. Dutton, J.W.; Milsom, S.D.; Birth, acting as J.D.; John Dutton, M.O.; Rubie, as S.O.; Keene, as J.O. The lodge was opened at 8 p.m. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. There were three candidates for advancement present, with regard to whom due notice had been given, namely, Bros. Gazzard, G. Falkner and P. Braham. For the first of these a ballot had been taken on a former occasion, and on the names of the other two being submitted to the brethren present, the result was unanimously in their favour. The ceremony was conducted by the acting W.M., and the candidates were duly admitted; first as Mark Men, and afterwards as Mark Master Masons.

Letters of apology for absence were read from Bro. Thompson, W.M., on account of illness, and from Bro. Major Preston, who was unavoidably from home. A ballot was taken for W.M. during the ensuing year, which resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. James J. Dutton, and in the same way, his brother, John Dutton, was appointed Treasurer. The Secretary presented the report of the committee of three members selected to draw up a code of by-laws, and the reading of them was commenced, but as it appeared probable that much discussion would arise, and that owing to the lateness of the hour, it would be impossible to complete them on that evening; it was determined to appoint a more extended committee for their reconsideration, with a view to their adoption at the next meeting. The lodge was finally closed at ten o'clock.

ROCHDALE.—ALBERT PRECEPTORY (No. 34).—The annual meeting of this preceptory was held in the Masonic Rooms, Ann Street, Rochdale, on Thursday, the 19th March, and I am sorry to say there was a very bad attendance of the Sir Knights. The Sir Knights present were Wm. Davies, Preceptor; John Fothergill, First Captain; Robert Whitworth, Second Captain; C. M. Jones, Past E.C., Treasurer; E. Woodcock, Registrar; James Holroyd, Past E.C., Almoner; John Ashworth, Equerry; William Ashworth, Prov. G. Chancellor, Lancashire; and Clement R. N. Beswick-Royds, Sub-Prior, Lancashire. The preceptory was opened in form, and the minutes were read and put for confirmation, and carried unanimously. After which the Sub-Prior took the chair, and proceeded to install Sir Knight John Fothergill, who had been elected Preceptor for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner, the newly installed Preceptor appointed the following officers:—Wm. Davies, Prelate; Robert Whitworth, First Captain; E. Woodcock, Second Captain; C. M. Jones, Treasurer; John Ashworth, Equerry. On account of so few being present, the Preceptor was unable to get a sufficient number of officers to support him during his term of office. Since the alterations in the statutes there has been a great falling off in the attendance of the Sir Knights. They say there is no inducement to attend, as past rank is abolished, the titles altered, and separated from the Masonic body. We get no new members, and those who have joined do not think it worth their while to attend. The Order is in a very unsatisfactory state, and if something is not done soon the Great Priory will have no need to suspend the preceptories in arrears. They will not meet in sufficient numbers to open. It is a great pity such alterations should have taken place for no earthly good. Why it has been done I do not understand, I have not heard anyone speak about the alterations, but entirely disapprove of them. Those who are installed Preceptors now are called upon to pay 10s. 6d. and after their time is expired fall into the ranks of a full private. Before the alterations, those who were installed Eminent Commanders had nothing to pay and enjoyed all the privileges of past-rank. It is a strange alteration, the sooner something is done the better, that the encampments once more may flourish and enjoy all the privileges they used to do.

ANNAN.—ST. ANDREW'S LODGE (No. 79).—This lodge gave a grand concert and ball on the evening of Thursday, 18th ult., under the patronage of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Annan, Lauderdale Maitland, of Eccles, P.G.M.; A. Johnstone Douglas, of Lockerbie House, R.W.M.; the Prov. Grand Lodge of Dumfriesshire; and sister lodges. The concert and ball were generously taken in hand by the brethren of the mystic tie, to raise funds in aid of the new Town Hall, proposed to be built in place of the "mickle o' stanes" at present doing duty as Town Hall; but unfortunately the public of Annan did not give the concert that amount of tangible encouragement, which the labour and pains bestowed on the object by Bros. J. Walsh and R. Jeffrey, as well as the other members of the lodge, deserved, and which praiseworthy end the Masonic brethren had in view should have commanded. The brethren, however, have the consciousness of knowing that no efforts were spared by them to make it a success.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MARK (No. 102).—The annual visitation of this lodge by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow took place on the 22nd ult., within St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The lodge having been opened by the R.W.M., Bro. J. F. Mitchell, the deputation from the P.G.L.—who had previously inspected the books and accounts of the lodge in an adjoining apartment—entered the hall. They appeared for the first time in their beautiful new clothing (specially made for them by Bro. George Kenning, of London, and Argyle-street here), and were received by the brethren standing, and with the customary honours. The deputation consisted of Bro. J. B. Walker, P.G. Treas.; A. McTaggart, P.G. Secy.; James Gillies, P.G.S.D.; George Thallon, P.G.J.D.; A. Allison, P.G. Jeweller; A. Baul, P.G.B.B.; and John Miller, P.G. Direc. of Music. The deputation having taken their seats on the dais, the R.W.M. said he had much pleasure in welcoming them within the sacred precincts of that lodge, and he hoped they would find the books of St. Mark in accordance with the requirements of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. Bro. McTaggart then said that the deputation had come there that night under very adverse circumstances, seeing that unfortunately they had with them neither the R.W. Provincial Grand Master nor his Depute-Master, both being unavoidably absent. However, he (Bro. McTaggart) would be able to report extremely favourable regarding the state of Lodge St. Mark and of its books during the past year. Having read the official report to that effect, signed by the inspectors, Bro. McTaggart continued that he was glad to say that from the manner in which the books and accounts had been kept the task of the deputation that night had been a very simple one, and they had found the condition of the lodge as good and as favourable now as it had been in times past. With regard to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, he was glad to say that the past history of its work was a very gratifying one, as was evinced by the progress made by the Order within the province. The number of members added to it during the last twelve months had been over 700; being, he thought, more than had been made in any twelve months preceding. This was very satisfactory, in view of the fact that there is a growing desire on the part of Masons to keep their membership more select, and to increase the amount of payment—that was, of lodge fees. It would be found that by comparison with other countries, the fees in this country were very small; and he thought that one of the first things to improve the Order in Scotland would be to increase them. He was led to believe that a motion was on foot, which had his entire approval, to the effect that the Grand Lodge should fix a minimum admission fee for all lodges holding under it. Bro. McTaggart then went on by referring to the gratifying condition and prospects of the Benevolent Fund in connection with Provincial Grand Lodge, and after touching on one or two other points of interest to the Craft within the province and generally, concluded by hoping that on their next year's visit they, or those who might form the deputation, would be able to report as favourably of Lodge St. Mark as they had been this year. The R.W.M., Bro. Mitchell, having thanked the deputation for the very flattering remarks they had made about the lodge, moved a hearty vote of thanks to them for their visit, which having been carried with acclamation the deputation withdrew. Thereafter, the lodge went on to business, when three candidates, Wm. Morrison, John Marshall, and John Hannay, received the first degree from the R.W.M., the charge at the close being delivered to them by the D.M., Bro. A. C. Lindsay-Gray. The chairman announced that the annual festival of the lodge would be held on the 23rd prox., being the eve of St. Mark's Day, and the lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE PARTICK ST. MARY (No. 117).—The 106th anniversary of this Lodge was celebrated by a supper and ball, held in the Burgh Hall, Maxwell-street, Partick, on the 26th ult. Soon after eight o'clock, the chair was taken at supper by the R.W.M., Bro. Robert Wylie; the duties of croupier devolving upon Bro. David Peacock, S.W. There were present: Bros. Thos. Grainger and Andrew Brunton, P.M.'s of the lodge; John Bain, S.W.; Andrew Agnew, J.W.; Forrest, S.D.; John M. Wylie, Treasurer; John Calderwood, S.D.; and Alfred Lawrence, Chaplain. There was a numerous attendance of members at lodge and visiting brethren, as well as a large proportion of ladies, about ninety in all sitting down to an excellent supper. The tables having been cleared, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and were heartily responded to. That of the "Army, Navy, and Volunteers," was coupled with the names of Bro. Forrest for the Navy, and Bro. Agnew for the last-named branch of the service. Each of these brethren having briefly replied, Bro. Brunton proposed "The Commercial Interests of Partick," coupled with the name of Bro. Grainger, by whom it was acknowledged. The toast of the "Provost and Town Council of Partick," having been given, in somewhat humorous terms by Mr. Lyon, and replied to in a corresponding vein by Bro. Wylie; Bro. Thomas Halket (102) said he had no doubt they would all heartily respond to the toast which had been given him to propose, namely, "Prosperity to Lodge Partick St. Mary's, No. 117." The success which had hitherto attended the lodge could not but be greatly gratifying to the Master and office-bearers, while the present meeting was a very good proof of the spirit and energy with which they conducted their business, as well as of the prosperity of the lodge. It gave him great pleasure to propose the toast. In Freemasonry there was no rivalry; Masons were one and indivisible, members of one brave brotherhood to promote all that was noble and good, all that was just and generous. In asking them, therefore, to honour that toast, he did not ask them to support anything selfish or exclusive. On the contrary, Masonry sought the good of all. In their Order, they had nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to apologise for. Its principles had been expounded by the most eminent men of all ages, who had given them their approval. There was one point in connection with that lodge he would just refer to—that was the proposal now before them—to get a hall for themselves. That showed that there was life and energy among them, and the erection of such a hall would make an era in the history of that ancient and honourable lodge. He hoped that their next anniversary meeting they would be able to hold in their own hall. The toast was coupled with the R.W.M. and office-bearers of the lodge, and replied to by the chairman in a sentence. He had to reply, he said, for their old mother Mary. She was 106 years old that night, and very vigorous. She gave birth every year to about fifty sons of the Craft, and he hoped she would many a fifty more. After one or two other toasts, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the entire company, the latter retired to allow of the hall being cleared for dancing. In about half-an-hour, or there about, afterwards the ball was opened and kept up with spirit till an early hour. The gathering was altogether an entire success.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held within their own hall, at No. 12, Trongate, on the 22nd ult. The R.W.M., Bro. John Morgan, occupied the chair; other office-bearers present being Bros. J. Garth, S.W.; J. Horn, J.W.; B.

Smart, Treasurer; and J. Crawford, Secretary. There was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren, among the latter being Bros. James Shaw, R.W.M., 354; Dugald Butler, R.W.M., 27; R. M. Yuill, R.W.M., 275; &c. The lodge having been opened, and minutes of the last meeting read and approved of, the following candidates for initiation having been duly proposed and seconded, and there being no objections, received the E.A. degree at the hands of the R.W.M.:—G. Finlay, J. Taylor, J. Hutcheson, W. Robertson, and J. Charles. Two cases for charity were then brought forward, which were favourably entertained; after which a deputation from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow entered the hall, having concluded their annual inspection of the lodge books in another apartment. The satisfactory result of this was announced from the dais by Bro. McTaggart, P.G. Secretary, which he followed up by an able, interesting, and most useful address to the brethren on points, the observance of which would conduce to the advancement and improvement within the province and generally. At the close, the R.W.M. (Bro. Morgan) thanked the P.G.L. for their kindness; and with reference to one or two little short-comings in their working which Bro. McTaggart had pointed out, said he would endeavour to have them remedied. Three of their number having been affiliated as members of Lodge Star, the deputation then withdrew, after which the lodge closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOL (No. 413).—The usual meeting of this lodge, held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on 23rd ult., was an unusually agreeable and successful one. The R.W.M., Bro. John Wallace, presided; and the other office-bearers present were Bros. John Miller, P.M.; James Loutitt, D.M.; Colin McKenzie, S.W.; Daniel Leeds, J.W.; Wm. Loutitt, S.D.; Robert McLeish, J.D.; and J. W. Stevenson, Secretary. Among the numerous visitors present were Bro. A. B. Thorburn, R.W.M., 4; David Horne, J.W. 34; Dr. McInnes, S.W., 27; James Booth, S.W., 87; and J. M. Oliver, S.W., 360. The general attendance was the largest that has been seen in the hall at any ordinary meeting for a lengthened period, no fewer than 103 in all, having signed the Tyler's book. The lodge having been opened, three approved candidates came forward for initiation—namely, James Crichton, Wm. Lockey, and George Robertson, who, there being no objections, received the E.A. degree at the hands of the R.W.M. Thereafter, the chairman announced that, in fulfilment of his kind promise made some time ago, Brother G. Walter Baynham had come forward that evening, to favour them with a short lecture, which he was sure they would all enjoy. Brother Baynham, who was seated on the dais at the Chairman's right, then commenced the delivery of his lecture, which was entitled "The Two Sides of Life." Of this we need but say that the chairman's prediction was realized to the full. The lecture, which occupied about half-an-hour in delivery, is a witty and a wise one in happy combination, discovering in its author much insight into human, and particularly social, life and character, and containing not a few shrewd shots at "folly as it flies," the most of which reach well home. It seems, we may add, with apt illustrations and anecdotes, which, we need scarcely add, were most felicitously "rendered." Bro. Baynham's elocutionary abilities and practised skill in dramatic delineation are as well, and much more widely known, without than within the craft; so that all and sundry will readily believe that the occasion was in the very truth a treat. The lecturer received that (as he so well knows) highest of all compliments, the rapt attention of his auditors throughout, save when at some happier stroke they perforce gave way; whilst universal and prolonged applause rang through the lodge-room when he had concluded. On the cessation of this, the Chairman, in a few words, expressed his lively sense, in which he was sure every brother present would join, of the high gratification afforded them by Bro. Baynham's admirable lecture; and said the least thing they could do was to award him a very hearty vote of thanks. This was thereupon given with a will, and the demonstration was renewed in full force when Bro. Baynham, in brief, returning thanks for the reception he had met with, announced his willingness on some other occasion, perhaps before the end of the present session, to give "another of the same." The lodge then adjourned to refreshment, when a very pleasant hour was spent. In the course of the proceedings the Chairman proposed the toast of "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupled with the name of Bro. John Miller, P.G. Dir. of Music; who, in a few words of reply, referred to the amount of work which fell to be gone through by the P.G.L., not the least of which was the annual visitations, just now commenced for the present year, which they paid in turn to each of the lodges within the province, now 27 in number. The orthodox toast of "The Last Laid Stones" having been neatly given by the chairman and duly honoured, the J.W. (Bro. Leeds) gave "The Visiting Brethren," of which he was happy to see so many present that evening, and hoped to see many of them back again. The toasts were coupled with the name of Bro. Thorburn (No. 4), and by him acknowledged. He was sure that he only spoke the mind of every visiting brother present in expressing his appreciation of the amusement and instruction they had received that night from Bro. Baynham's lecture; and he only wished they could have many more like it. The pleasure of the harmony hour, we should add, was greatly enhanced by the singing of a glee party, consisting of Bros. Miller, Shaw, and Robertson; and the efforts in the humorous direction of Bros. Scott and J. C. Burne. The "last toast" having been honoured, the lodge was recalled to labour, and, on its being found that there was no more business, the lodge was then closed in due form.

RENFREW.—COUNTY KILWINNING LODGE (No. 370).—On the 18th ult. the usual fortnightly meeting of the R.C.K. Lodge, 370, was held in their hall, High-street, and after the transaction of business Bro. Anderson, R.W.M., in a few well-chosen remarks, introduced to the meeting Bro. Thomson, of Glasgow, who is well-known among Masons for the grand enthusiasm he has shown at all times in providing for the wants of those of his brethren who may have been more unfortunate than the majority of us in connection with the good things of this life. Bro. Thomson, who was received with applause, delivered an excellent address, taking for his subject "Charity," which was listened to with great attention and frequently applauded, after which remarks were made by Bro. ex-Bailie Masson. The meeting then closed at an early hour, all having being well pleased with the evening's performance. This is the second lecture which has been given this season. The R.W.M. has arranged for a few more for the benefit of the Craft.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARYHILL (No. 510).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 167, Main-street, Maryhill, on 24th ult. Bro. John Lockhart, R.W.M., presided, and there were present Bros. Hugh Niven, P.M.; Jno. McKay, D.M.; Alex. Nevay, S.M.; Wm. Carey, S.W.; Jno. Govan, Treas.; P. F. Craigie, Sec.; and Matthew Wingate, S.D. There was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren, the occasion being the annual visitation by Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow. The lodge having been opened, and minutes read by the Secretary, the deputation from the Provincial Grand Lodge entered, being received by the brethren with due honour. Having taken their seats upon the dais, the R.W.M. presented his mallet to Bro. A. McTaggart, P.G. Sec., who said he accepted the same in the name of Bro. J. B. Walker, P.G. Treas., and himself, who had a special authority to come out and visit the lodge. He had much pleasure in returning the mallet to the R.W.M., being quite satisfied that, while the latter held it, it was in trustworthy hands. Bro. McTaggart then briefly addressed the lodge. He said it afforded him no small gratification to be there that night. He was in the position of being able to report to the brethren that the affairs of that lodge were in a highly satisfactory condition. The certificate he had inscribed in their book, he thought, was amply sufficient in testimony of the fact. It was to the effect that the deputation had found affairs in excellent condition, and that the lodge was working in strict harmony with the laws of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. A higher certificate than that they could hardly have had. In the first place, the sederunt book was exceedingly well kept; a fact which reflected great credit on their Outer Guard. This matter of the sederunt book, he might state, was an important point, inasmuch as of late years a spurious body of Masonry had sprung up, the promoters of which professed to give it cheaper than it could be obtained in legitimate lodges; but he (Bro. McTaggart) shrewdly suspected that it was just about value for the amount of money paid for it. It behoved them, therefore, to be well guarded; and the speaker then gave them some advice as to how to proceed when a stranger sought admission to the lodge. Continuing, he said he was very glad to see that their minute book was in capital condition, and gave not only a truthful but a very copious account of their proceedings. The roll-book was well kept, and the cash-book had been properly audited; and he was glad to see from the latter that the balance was on the right side. The receipt-book was also well kept. As to their cash-book he wished to say a word or two. He observed that in three cases where they had made new members the fees were not paid on the night of initiation. This he warned them to avoid in the future. The first preparation of a candidate should be the payment of his money, and a record of the same taken and kept. It was all very well to say that the proposer and seconder of a candidate were his securities and as such liable for the amount, but, in practice, did they ever know of a case where they were fallen back upon and compelled to pay. He was very glad that night to find that they had been able to subscribe no less a sum than £7 15s. to the Benevolent Fund of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow. During last year he saw they had initiated thirty-one members, and of that number there was not a single case where the three degrees had been given to a candidate in one night. In three cases two degrees had been given on the same night, the remaining twenty-eight members admitted having received the degrees according to the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. He might fearlessly say the records of the Provincial Grand Lodge had not shown another so clean a bill in this respect as the Lodge Maryhill. The hurrying through the three degrees in one night was clearly contrary to Grand Lodge law, but the latter was often disregarded in this matter on the shallowest pretext. No single man could take up at once the three degrees of Masonry; and it was therefore absurd in any man to seek them in one night, unless in cases of extreme emergency, for which Grand Lodge laws amply provided. In concluding Bro. McTaggart said they would allow him to congratulate them on the state of their lodge, and he hoped, if the deputation were spared, to see them another year, that they would find him in an equally faultless position. It was very gratifying that a lodge so young as theirs had made so much progress during its short existence; and he might say that if the Provincial Grand Lodge could in any way encourage them, it would be glad to do so. He thanked them for the reception they had given the deputation. Bro. Geo. Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of the P.G. Benevolent Fund, thereafter briefly addressed the meeting with reference to his own department, adducing in proof of the very satisfactory progress and position of the Fund, the figures which he brought forward at the meeting of Lodge St. Mary's a week previous, as recorded in the last issue of the Freemason. In looking over his books, he added, he did not find any applications for relief from Lodge Maryhill for the last two years. He was very happy that this should be so, if there was no necessity; but if they did want they must not be backward in coming forward for schedules, with which he should be happy to supply them. The speaker having concluded, Bro. McTaggart said they would allow him to supplement what Bro. Sinclair said by the announcement that the accounts of Brother Walker had been equally flourishing. When he was appointed Treasurer of the P.G.L. some six or seven years ago, he was in the unfortunate condition of having no funds. After his election, he (Bro. McTaggart) remembered very well saying that there was not much use in having a Treasurer when there was no funds to take charge of; and he proposed that the office should be abolished. This, however, was not done, and Bro. Walker was now in a different case. At the end of last year he had a balance in hand of over £50. Moreover, he had been able to provide and pay for, the fine new clothing which the deputation had brought out with them, and was then able to manage affairs without asking the lodges for a single penny more than they had been in the habit of paying. On the conclusion of Bro. McTaggart's remarks, the R.W.M., on behalf of the lodge, returned thanks for the encouragement the deputation had given them to go on; and thereafter stated his desire that those of their number not already affiliated to Lodge Maryhill should now be so. Accordingly Bros. Geo. Sinclair; R. Robb; P. G. Marshall, and W. Phillips, P.G.S.B., stepped forward to the altar, and received affiliation at the hands of Bro. McTaggart. Bro. Sinclair having returned thanks for the honour conferred upon them, the deputation retired, and the lodge adjourned for a short time for refreshment, being afterwards closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—CATHEDRAL CHAPTER (No. 67).—This Chapter held its regular monthly meeting in the F.M.H., 22, Struthers-street, Calton, on the 23rd ult.—Companions present, J. Duthie, Z.; J. Cunningham, H.; W. Taylor, J.; D. French, Scribe E.; D. Renald, First Sojourner; J. Nagle; Second Sojourner; J. Dickie, Third Sojourner; J. Mason, Scribe, N. Not only all the office-bearers were present, but the Treasurer and a full meeting of well qualified companions to constitute and hold the same. The visiting companions were G. W. Wheeler, Z., 73; Gilchrist, P.Z., 73; C. McKenzie, First Sojourner, 50; and Companion W. H. Bickerton, of Chapter 79. A Lodge of Mark Masters was opened, and the minutes of the former meeting read and approved of. Applications were then read from Brothers William Niven, of Lodge 27, and William Mitchell, of Lodge 3, for admission into this Chapter, which were approved of. The candidates having been duly prepared, were led into the lodge and instructed in the mysteries of this degree by Bro. Taylor, Past Z. The lodge was then closed on the Mark degree, and opened on the degree of Excellent Masters, when Bros. Laird, Niven, and Mitchell, were duly prepared and led into the lodge, and installed into the mysteries, by Companion Duthie, Z. The Lodge of Excellent Masters was then closed and the Holy Royal Arch Chapter opened, with Companion Duthie, Z.: Comp. Cummin, H.; Comp. Taylor, J.; all the office-bearers in their proper places. The three above named brethren being duly prepared, were led into the chapter by the First Sojourner and were instructed and received as Companions by the First Principal. A committee was, after discussion, appointed to make arrangements for the annual supper of the chapter, which is to take place in F.M.H., 22, Struthers-street, Calton, on Tuesday, 27th inst., at 7 o'clock, p.m. [The chapter was closed in due and ancient form by the three Principals, all the companions standing to order.]

GLASGOW.—GOVAN CHAPTER (No. 117).—A special meeting of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, Portland Buildings, Govan, on the 22nd ult., at 8 p.m. On the invitation of the officers, the chapter was opened by Comp. F. A. Barrow, P.G. Superintendent of Lanarkshire, for the purpose of installing newly-elected office-bearers. He was assisted by Comps. Thomas Halket, acting H.; James Balfour, acting J.; and John Fraser, P.G. Scribe N. There were present Comps. John McFarlane, Z. of the Chapter; John Sutherland, H.; John Hutcheson, J.; Archibald W. Berry, S.E.; John Miller, S.N.; Robert Muir, Treasurer; Thomas Lowther, First Soj.; William Ferguson, Second Soj.; Robert Dunlop, Third Soj.; John McIntyre, Janitor; and a considerable number of companions belonging to the Govan and other chapters. When the chapter had been duly opened, the P.G. Superintendent installed the above-named office-bearers into their several offices, and at the close of the ceremony, which was performed in an able and impressive manner, he congratulated the Chapter upon its present prospects, and hoped that after that meeting they would have in the future a prosperous career. Thereafter, Companion Jas. McFarlane, M.E.Z., thanked the P. G. Supt. for the kindness and courtesy he had shown the Chapter of Govan, and trusted that the remarks he had made would stimulate them to renewed efforts in the direction of promoting Royal Arch Masonry in the district, as well as in Lanarkshire at large. The P.G. Supt. made a suitable reply, in the course of which he gave some useful advice to the office-bearers and companions present. The following companions of the deputation were then affiliated, by the unanimous voice of the chapter, the newly-installed M.E.Z. officiating:—Thomas Halket, John Balfour, and John Fraser. Companion Halket, in replying for himself, said he would be most happy at any time to assist the chapter in any way within his power. Companions Balfour and Fraser also acknowledged the honour paid them, the latter adding that he felt it the more from that being the first chapter within the province from which he had received the distinction of honorary affiliation. The chapter was thereafter duly closed.

Much of the beauty of Masonry is seen in its traditions and legends. To ignore this fact would be to put a check on the prevalence of truth. To discard fiction, would be to reject the rhetoric or poetry of literature, and to prohibit all orators from edifying their hearers with fine perorations.

CHESHIRE EDUCATIONAL MASONIC INSTITUTION.

The annual meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held at the Masonic chambers, Argyle Street, Birkenhead, Bro. Donald Fraser, W.M. 477, presiding, and there was a numerous attendance of brethren from all parts of the Province.

The accounts for the past year having been audited and found correct, the following report for presentation to the Court of Governors to be held at Crewe, on the 31st instant, was read and unanimously agreed to:—

During the last twelve months, in consequence of the resignation by the Marquis of Ripon of the Grand Mastership of the Order, Masonry has been exposed to severe criticism, its principles called in question and much odium attempted to be cast on the fraternity; yet Masonry flourishes, and even its greatest traducers have been compelled to admit that the exertions of the Craft in the sacred cause of charity, and especially of education, are beyond all praise.

Year by year the great Masonic Institutions in London increase in usefulness and strength, conferring inestimable benefits on large numbers of poor and distressed Freemasons, widows, and orphans.

As these great institutions in the Metropolis administer to the necessities of the Craft in general, so this institution provides for the educational requirements of this Province in particular, and it is very gratifying to find that while the brethren exhibit an increasing interest in our local charity, their zeal on behalf of the general charities remains unabated.

The demands on the resources of your institution during the past year have been great, twenty children having received the benefits of education and two advanced in life, at a cost of £136 1s. 7d., and there are now five candidates for election.

These facts show how important it is for all the lodges in the province, and the brethren individually and collectively, to exert themselves to the utmost to procure a large annual increase in the donations and subscriptions.

Your Committee have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of a donation of £5 5s. the proceeds of a Masonic Ball, given by the brethren of Stockport; they also gratefully acknowledge the benevolent zeal of the brethren of the Mersey Lodge, No. 477, by whom the sum of £84 has been presented as the result of an amateur dramatic performance in December last, which was eminently successful, under the general superintendence of Bro. W.M. Asher, of that lodge, and of a picnic held in August; these examples of the benefits arising from combined effort will, it is hoped, have their due influence in stimulating other lodges in the province. We regret to find that notwithstanding the strong appeal made in our report at the close of the year 1872, to the W.M.'s in the province, there are some lodges who still stand aloof from contributing to the funds.

At the close of last year, the capital of the institution amounted to £1995 3s. 10d., the interest on the invested portion of which was £95 0s. 5d. During the current year an additional £365 has been securely invested, making the present capital £2216 11s. 2d.

Your Committee cannot close their report without again expressing their thanks to the Honorary Secretaries, Treasurer, and other Officers of the Institution, for the very valuable services rendered, and their constant watchfulness over its interests.

The five candidates for admission to the benefits of the Institution were in attendance, and after a careful consideration of each case it was resolved that the whole should be recommended for election, in the hope that, during the ensuing year the brethren will, by renewed exertions, make up the deficiency in the revenue legally applicable to the objects of the Charity.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

On St. John's Day the brethren of the Southern Star Lodge, 735, E.C., Nelson, New Zealand, held their annual Festival in the Masonic Hall, at high noon; the installation of officers took place, Bro. W. Westbrooke Squires, P.M., acting as Installing Officer, assisted by Bro. W. B. Sealy, P.M., conducting the ceremonies. Bro. William Lightfoot having been installed as Worshipful Master of the lodge, the following office-bearers were duly invested:—J. C. Moutray, S.W.; Leonard G. Boor, J.W.; W. M. Stanton, Treas.; John E. Green, Sec.; William Holmes, S.D.; W. T. Good, J.D.; John Cann, I.G.; Woolcott, Tyler. At the close of the ceremonies, the pleasing duty devolved on the retiring Worshipful Master, C. L. Maclean, of presenting, in the name of the lodge, to Bro. Past Master Sealy, a handsome silver cup, purchased by the subscriptions of the brethren, as a testimonial in recognition of his valued services and zeal in support of Masonry in Nelson for many years past, and particularly for the great interest shown by him in the instruction of the brethren. The cup bears the following inscription:—"To Bro. W. B. Sealy, P.M., Southern Star Lodge, 735, E.C., in acknowledgment of his able services as Instruction Master, Nelson, 1874." Bro. Sealy acknowledged the fraternal presentation in feeling terms, thanking the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had always co-operated with him, for the general good, and claiming no merit for the success attending his work, which at all times he felt to be not only his pleasure, but his duty to the Craft he so devotedly loved and revered. The banquet took place in the evening, and after the usual loyal, Masonic, and patriotic toasts, and a tribute of acknowledgement offered to the retiring Secretary, Bro. Geo. Collins (who retires by reason of failing health) the evening was pleasantly spent in music and social harmony. On the following Tuesday evening, the Trafalgar Royal Arch

Chapter of Nelson held its second convocation at the Masonic Hall, M.E. Comp. Sealy, Z, and the other Principals and officers being present. The new robes and chapter equipments, supplied by Comp. Geo. Kenning, having arrived, via Suez, were used for the first time on this occasion. Four Master Masons were exalted to the sublime degree of the Holy Royal Arch, and others were balloted for and elected. The chapter already numbers over thirty companions, besides the honorary members.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. E. G. WILLOUGHBY, P.M.

Birkenhead has just lost one of its oldest and most respected Freemasons by the death of Bro. Edward Gardner Willoughby, who died on Tuesday, the 23rd ult., at his residence, Carlton-road, Kingsland-park, Tranmere, near Birkenhead, at the ripe age of 77. Deceased was a native of London, of which city he was a Free Vintner, and for some years kept the Albion Hotel at Chester. He subsequently kept the Birkenhead Hotel, and for years rented, along with his brother, the Birkenhead Royal Mail Ferry from the Corporation of Liverpool, and also the Tranmere Ferry at a later period. He was well known and very highly respected in connection with these and other schemes, and on his retirement from business he carried with him the respect of every one who had had any dealings with him. Bro. Willoughby served his fellow citizens in various ways, being a churchwarden in St. Mary's Church, Birkenhead; a commissioner of the township; a poor law guardian; and one of the original promoters of St. Catherine's National Schools. By his fellow citizens he was highly esteemed and loved for his upright, gentle, and charitable character.

The deceased had been a prominent member of the Masonic Order for the long period of nearly half a century. Indeed, Bro. Willoughby and the late Bro. Clarke Rampling, architect, who died a fortnight ago, were amongst the oldest members of the fraternity in this country. The Mersey Lodge, No. 477 (Birkenhead), the first in the Hundred of Wirral, was founded 34 years ago, Bro. Rampling being the first W.M., and Bro. Willoughby the second. The latter had previously been W.M. of one of the Chester Lodges. He was some years Treasurer of the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution, now in existence for 12 years, having during that time educated 40 children, many of whom have received grants of money to advance them in life. The funeral on Saturday last was attended by a large number of friends, and an unusually large assembly of brethren belonging to the various lodges and chapters.

The following Royal Arch Chapters were represented:—Fidelity, 477, Birkenhead; Zion, 537, Birkenhead; De Tabley, 605, Seacombe; Grosvenor, 721, Chester. The lodges represented were the Cestrian, Chester, 425; Mersey, Birkenhead, 477; Zetland, Birkenhead, 537; Combermere, Seacombe, 605; Warren, Seacombe, 1276; and Rock, Rock Ferry, 1289. The Mark Master Mason lodges represented were the Joppa, 1A, Birkenhead; and the Egerton, Rock Ferry. Amongst the brethren in attendance were the following:—Bros. J.P. Platt, P. Prov. G.H. Cheshire; William Bulley, P. Prov. G.H. Cheshire; T. Platt, P.G.H. Cheshire; F. K. Stevenson, P. Prov. G.D. Cheshire; E. Harbord, P. Prov. G.S. Cheshire; J. B. Hignett, P.M. 537; T. E. Hignett, P.M. 537; J. Griffiths, P.M. 477; S. Jones, P.M. 477; R. Gracie, P.M. 477; H. Martin, P.M. 477; J. M. Radcliffe, P.M. 605; T. Leighton, P.M. 705; J. Williams, P.M. (Chester), 425; Donald Fraser, W.M. 477; E. Haddon, W.M. 605; Dr. Wilson, W.M. 537; W. M. Asher, R. Rhodes, J. Alsop, H. O. Jones, George Mowll, C. Cook, Charles Marsh, B. Elvis, William Corrie, W. Worrall, jun., T. Roden, Richard Hinton, Robert H. Hughes, M. N'Erney, Richard Ackersley, T. Dixon, Gallagher, John Walker, Godfrey, Davis, W. H. Hime, H. Green, and others. Each Freemason wore a spray of acacia as the Masonic emblem of purity.

The Rev. Canon Knox, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Rigby, officiated at the last service over the remains of his old friend. At the close of the service the brethren placed on the coffin, in a solemn manner, the sprigs of acacia which they had worn during the procession.

BRO. FRANCIS ROBINSON HOOD.

Bro. Hood died at his residence, 20, Union-street, Deptford, on Thursday, March 25th. He was initiated in the Royal Oak Lodge, (No. 871), on February 22nd, 1871, and continued a subscribing member until his death. He never took office in the lodge, as he entered the order late in life, and was in ill health for many years before his decease. He was an annual subscriber to the Boys' and Girls' Schools. He held a prominent position in the town in which he resided. No brother could possibly be more respected than he was. A sorrowing widow and family lament their heavy loss.

BRO. JOHN WILLIAM REED.

Bro. Reed died on Saturday, March, 20th, at the early age of 29 years. He was initiated in the Royal Oak Lodge, 871, on January, 22nd, 1868, and after filling several offices, was installed W.M. in February, 1872. He did good suit and service to Masonry, for he was a Life Governor to the Boys' and Girls' School, serving the office of Steward to the Boys', he being the only Installed Master of his lodge, who had been initiated in it, that was a Life Governor to both institutions. His good example was, in a measure, followed by one of his successors. Bro. William Myall, P.M., became a Life Governor of the Girls' School; and another, Bro. G. Andrews, P.M. of the Male and Female Annuities. Some of his predecessors in the chair, who had been joining members, were Life Governors and Vice-Presidents of the Masonic charities. He was exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry in the Pythagorean Chapter 79. He was buried on Thursday, March 25th.

He has left a father, brothers, widow, and family, to lament his early death. He died of consumption, after a long and protracted illness of intense suffering, which he bore with Christian resignation.

BRO. JOHN HOLMES FUDGE.

Bro. Fudge, we regret to say, died on Thursday morning, March 18th. He was initiated in the Perfect Ashlar Lodge, on November 9th, 1867, he being the first person initiated after the lodge had been consecrated in October 1867. He served every office in the lodge, and was last year Senior Warden. His wife died a short time before his election as W.M. last year. When his time came for election, in consequence of his loss and failing health, he declined being elected into the chair. He in a quiet and unobtrusive manner worked well in the cause of Masonry. He was an annual subscriber to the Male Annuity of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. He has left nine children to lament the heavy loss they have sustained in the irreparable death of one of the best of fathers and a thorough Mason.

MONUMENT TO THE LATE PROV. G. MASTER OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

Last Sunday, a ceremony of a peculiarly interesting nature took place at the handsome church of St. Mary's, Rufford, near Ormskirk, where a monument to the memory of the late Bro. the Right Hon. Sir Thomas George Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P. for West Lancashire, was unveiled in the presence of a numerous and influential congregation, comprising some of the best county families, and a goodly gathering of Freemasons. The monument has been erected by the eldest son of the deceased F. G. Fermor Hesketh, Esq., at a cost of 1000 guineas, and is placed in the corner of the north side of the chancel chapel. It is a recumbent figure in marble of the deceased baronet, weighing about three tons, resting on an alabaster tomb of great magnificence, bearing the simple inscription "Sacred to the memory of Sir Thomas George Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P., born January 11th, 1825; died August 20th, 1872." The whole subject and design have been admirably conceived and carried out by Mr. Noble, the eminent sculptor, of London. Afternoon service began at three o'clock. Prayers were read by Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G.C., West Lancashire, the beloved and much respected rector of the parish of Rufford—the church having a history which extends back 600 years. The lessons for the day were read by the Rev. J. Sperling, of Eccleston, and a very eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. Prebendary Cross, of St. Andrews, Southport, who took his text from the 27th chapter of St. Matthew, verse 60, "And they rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed." In the course of his discourse the preacher pointedly alluded to the many excellent qualities which had marked the late baronet, and spoke of the peculiar propriety of the monument they had that day met to unveil. It may be interesting to know that the Freemasons of West Lancashire have erected a marble font, certainly the finest in this part of the country as a mark of respect to the memory of their deceased P.G.M. Although the church contains a reredos, pulpit, reading desk, a real Flaxman tablet, and illuminated windows of great beauty, there is nothing at all to be compared to this really magnificent font, which is solid enough to last for centuries. The basin is formed of the red Victoria marble, weighing about one ton, supported by fine marble shafts of various colours, elegantly carved, and resting on two steps of Belgium or St. Ann's marble. The font has been erected by Messrs. Stubbs, of Liverpool, and will prove alike creditable to them and honourable to the Freemasons of West Lancashire. It is expected that there will be a Masonic demonstration at Rufford when the font is completed and given over for use in the Church.

Masonic Tidings.

Our Royal Grand Master is at Nice.

Bro. Emra Holmes, whose recent lecture at Colchester, on "Public Speaking," is about to be published in our contemporary, the "Masonic Magazine," gave a reading, à la Bellevue, at the Working Mens' College, Ipswich, last week, when about 400 were present, and numbers were turned away from the doors. The reading comprised selections, grave and gay, from Shakespeare, Hood, Arthur Sketchley, Gerald Massey, and others. Bro. Holmes is to give another reading at Colchester, during the present month.

The Right Hon. Lord Waveney, Prov. Grand Master of Suffolk, has appointed V.W. Bro. the Rev. Chas. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, and Bro. Lucia, Prov. G. Sec., as Stewards for the Province of Suffolk, at the installation of the Prince of Wales. No appointment could have been more popular in the province.

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.—On Tuesday last Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Arthur reached London, on his return from a visit to Egypt. He had left Paris on Monday evening by the mail train which starts from the Northern terminus at a quarter to eight, and had crossed the Channel from Calais to Dover, landing at four in the morning. His Royal Highness arrived at Charing Cross Station at ten minutes past six o'clock. There were in attendance on the Duke of Connaught three or four gentlemen of his suite, who accompanied him in a royal saloon carriage from Dover. Several of the Queen's carriages were in waiting at the Charing cross terminus of the South-Eastern Railway, and his Royal Highness drove at once to Buckingham Palace.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1875.

NOTICE.

With reference to the statement of the Times that "Certificates are required to be countersigned by the Secretaries," it is entirely incorrect and unfounded.

INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

We understand that after providing for all the qualified members of Grand Lodge there will be one Master Mason's ticket for each lodge that has made application.

DRESS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

With regard to this most important point we are in a position to say, that the following regulations on the subject will be printed on the cards for admission. We request our brethren carefully to note the rules and arrangements thus laid down. "Brethren to appear in evening dress (or black frock coats), white gloves, and full Masonic Craft clothing. Masters, Wardens, and Past Masters must, in addition, wear the collar and jewels of their respective offices. Provincial Grand Officers—the collars and jewels of the lodges and offices, respectively, in right of which they attend as members of Grand Lodge. Non-commissioned officers of the regular service in full dress uniform will be considered in evening dress. Volunteers must not appear in uniform. No jewels or emblems to be worn but those appertaining to Craft or Royal Arch Masonry. Brethren are recommended to bring their Grand Lodge certificates, as they cannot be admitted unless the Stewards in charge of the entrance are satisfied of their identity. This ticket is not to be given up, but is to be produced for inspection whenever required by the Stewards on duty. The places in the hall have been determined by ballot. A seat is provided for every brother to whom a ticket has been issued. Brethren are therefore expected to proceed quietly to the places assigned to them. Brethren bringing coats and hats must take them in the hall and place them under their seats out of view. The use of this ticket is an engagement by the brother named thereon to conform to all the regulations made by authority of the Grand Master. By command of the M.W. Grand Master. (Signed) John Hervey, Grand Secretary."

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

We think it well to give our friendly readers and the Craft a few words of fraternal advice and warning. Some lodges, it seems, despite the cautionary directions of the official circulars, are sending in the names of all their brethren, on the ground, we suppose, that if there is to be an allotment of tickets at the last, they may stand well as to numbers in the distribution. Now, we venture to think, and to say, that in so acting, they are not behaving quite fairly to the authorities, as they are giving them much increased trouble. It is not likely, as a general rule, that one half of the members of any lodge will attend, and as W. Masters are desired to return only the names of those who really mean to attend, we trust that they will consider a little the very heavy labours of those excellent brethren who have the arrangements of the gathering and the apportionment of the tickets. We trust, that all who are in authority in our lodges will endeavour strictly to comply with the rules and regulations laid down, and appreciate the evident desire of the central authorities and officials to be fair and considerate to all.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE.

The visit of our Bro. the Lord Mayor and other civic authorities to this new and most flourishing lodge, specially and fully recorded in our last impression, seems to have been a most successful and enjoyable one. We are glad to read such a list of visitors, we congratulate its worthy W.M. on so pleasant a "soiree." It puts us in mind, as we con over the names of those who gathered round the hospitable board, of what the oldest Masonic MS. still preserves for us, of the habits of our operative forefathers in their Grand Assembly.

And the grete burges of that syte,
They were there alle in their degre.

We heartily endorse all that was said about the friendly feeling that should ever exist between our ancient fraternities and the civic authorities of the oldest municipality in England, of the first municipality in the world. At this moment the important office of Lord Mayor is filled by our worthy and respected Bro. W. H. Stone, while the President of the Board of General Purposes is the Town Clerk to the venerable municipality; Bro. Ellis and Bro. Shaw, the two Sheriffs, are also Free and Accepted Masons. Several other members of the corporation belong to our Order, among them our excellent Bro. J. Symonds, and Bro. Horace Jones. We sincerely trust that the "entente cordiale" may long continue and increase as years move on. Freemasonry has yet but existed superficially so to say, in the city. We believe that it yet has to find there "a local habitation and a name," and probably a good hall, in which most of the City lodges could meet, would give impetus to its advance, and confer permanency on its existence. We hope to be privileged to record many more such truly fraternal reunions.

THE BANK HOLIDAY.

Though as Masonic journalists we are very wisely estopped from all purely political remarks and reveries, we are not prohibited, so far as we are aware, from noticing from time to time, some of those many social questions and usages which crop up in the onward passage of years, and the peaceful progress of mankind. We confess we are amongst those who fully approve of Bank Holidays. We think that many of us will remember the old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and most true it has proved like many others in the history of our Anglo-Saxon human race, and especially in Great Britain. We hear sometimes violent diatribes against the improvident and reckless habits of the operative population. But it may be fairly said of them, we contend, after much experience of their ways and feelings, that their virtues are their own, their vices the consequences, more or less, of social anomalies or exceptional causes. Given the same conditions to start with, there is no possible reason why our laborious fellow countrymen, or that important class which fills our banks, counting-houses, and warehouses, should not be every whit as intelligent, as self-restrained, as prudent, as well-conducted, as their "betters," to use a common form of expression. But until quite lately, the condition of these great classes was one of hard toil, so that the pursuit of material enjoyment, nay even of excessive relaxation, was the inevitable result of the long strain upon the human machine. We were in the parks on Monday, and we saw many hard-working clerks and workers, with their wives and children, enjoying the fresh air, and the verdure of those great lungs of London. No doubt the same scene was witnessed elsewhere in many crowded localities. We can conceive nothing better for the classes mainly interested, or indeed for every section of the community. Prince Albert said years ago, and no truer or wiser words have been uttered in our generation, that the "interest of the most widely contrasted classes," was, after all, "identical," and any legislation which tends to draw us all closer together, to give a stronger and kindlier cohesion to our social system, which lightens labour and takes away a little, if even for one hour, from the often depressing influences of toil, ought to be welcomed by the patriot, the philanthropist, and the Freemason. Sure we are of this, that with some faults and some errors, the result for the most part as, we said before, of much mistaken policy, the English people possesses in itself, the germs of the finest character the world has ever seen. Respectful and yet independent, loyal and peaceable, orderly and tractable, faithful to their employers, and most deeply attached to their kith and kin, they deserve, as they will no doubt receive in the wiser arrangements of administrative Government to-day, all that consideration, and all those social ameliorations, which will assuredly increase the general and domestic happiness of our nation, and render more stable the sacred institutions of home and Fatherland.

THE NEW GENERATION.

One of the most popular topics of the "high falutin" writers just now, appears to be, the intense wickedness and worthlessness of the new generation. One might almost fancy such scribes were wishful to take a leaf out of the book of those excellent men, Messrs. Moody and Sankey; to denounce, like the eloquent Mr. Stiggins, the wickedness of all around him, except one or two chosen "vessels." No doubt when Mr. D'Israeli, in the memorable pages of "Coningsby," put into the mouth of a great nobleman, "these are evil days for the new generation," he struck a chord which vibrated through many sensibilities. But time has passed on, the changes of the world have been many, and that suffering generation has vanished in turn, and here we are, on the whole, as "well as can be expected," at any rate to-day, and with numberless signs of prosperity, loyal order, and peaceful progress. It is well we think, then, never to allow ourselves to give way on any pretence to hasty censures of persons and events, or to a morbid view of things in general. The world, after all, is pretty much the same from generation to generation. Particular epochs may have special characteristics and possibly have, but on the whole, the normal state of the world and of mankind varies very little. "In the long run," said some one of old, "most things find their level here," and most true it is, that time, which carries everything away, heals most of the wounds and softens most of the changes it inflicts, and leaves us at last pretty much the same. It always has been the position of the passing generation to condemn the new one jostling it, and thrusting it on one side. The "post-nati," as good old Counsellor Pleydell said, have the advantage in a great measure of us old boys, and so we old boys get angry, and like angry people, some times inconsistent, are not very particular or uniform in the complaints we make, or the charges we bring forward. The "sensational" writer of to-day goes in for the "entire animal," and roundly asserts that there never was such a reckless, such a dissolute, such an ignorant, such a hypocritical lot, as those who are to succeed us. Well, we think the view is a morbid one, and the complaint exaggerated, and the position unreal. For curiously we ourselves remember almost the very same words when we ourselves were young. Then we were told, in sonorous emphasis, that we were headstrong and unmanageable, regardless of authority, and disobedient to rule. Then we were assured that our fathers behaved better than we did, and yet here we are repeating the same good old song to the ears, it may be, of laughing and chaffing youth. We, therefore, do not believe in the especial heinousness of the habits of this generation, as if beyond all preceding generations, in folly and perversity, though we do manfully avow our opinion—that there is much room for improvement. We are inclined to think that the "cram" system has a good deal to do with the alleged ignorance, the superficial acquirements of many of our young men. "Students' Humes" and other students' manuals are our utter abomination. Many of our boys, fine lads themselves, crammed like little quails in the poulterer's shops, for a special examination, know nothing correctly, and have mastered nothing thoroughly. As long as they can satisfy the examiners, as long as they are not "spun," that is all they seem to care for. They do not study for knowledge, or learning, or mental improvement, but for the "competitive examination," or the "qualifying examination," and when that object is gained they dismiss—as scarcely worth a thought, the crammed-up information of months. Hence our young men, as a fact, are behind our young ladies in everything, and once again in our history, if society is to be leavened with a purer spirit, and raised from its "slough of despond," our women must come to the rescue. There is no doubt that young men talk in society, of a good many things we kept to ourselves and there seems, therefore, generally to be a greater, "watershed" of evil in society. But as everything finds its level here, as we before observed, this very vicious freedom of speech has a counterpoise in the reaction sure to arise in all pure and gentle and ingenuous minds. We do not then, despite much that has been said, believe that our young men are essentially worse than our older generation, though they are fonder than they were of talking of themselves, and "trying to astonish the Browns." That there are many foolish young men in society, we do not attempt to dispute, who lead very dissolute lives, and say many silly words, and do many deplorable deeds. But so it has always been, and much as we regret it, much as we condemn it, it is not a new evil, but one which each age has successively witnessed. We do not think that "Young Masonry" is as yet, happily much to be blamed; it may be a little hasty in its opinion, and fidgety under restraint, but such are always attributes of youth. We do not believe, however, that much good comes either from jeremiads or denunciations. Our experience of life tells us that man is not only a "gregarious," but a "combative animal," and we do not "fancy" that he is ever much improved, either by "tall talk" or "high falutin." We especially deprecate the illogical generalization of many writers just now on this topic, the "post hoc, proper hoc," in which so many like to indulge, as though it may be very fine writing, it is to our minds extremely inconsequential and hopelessly unsound. We deprecate all uncharitable judgments and morbid anticipations, the nervous irritability of third rate intellects. The eminent physician was quite right who said to a moaning and agitated patient "put your feet in water, drink a glass of warm brandy and water before you go to bed, don't excite yourself, don't worry yourself with trifles, and please go to sleep."

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

Anything which concerns our illustrious Grand Master must be a subject of deep interest to us, his loyal brother craftsmen. The announcement of the Times that our Royal Brother intends to visit India in the autumn is a matter of the deepest gratification to our Order. It is very characteristic of our Royal Family that they are ever to be found visiting and warmly sympathizing with all the different dependencies of our great empire; and the visit of the Prince of Wales to Hindustan is in itself a very striking event. In that far, yet fascinating land, dear to Englishmen, from the lives and valour of our "white-faced children," which, someone has said, "has been won by English valour and is now preserved by English pluck," there is hardly a palm grove or a jungle, hardly a hill or a vale, or a winding river which is not endeared to us by the graves and deeds of our own flesh and blood. Indeed British India constitutes in itself almost a romance. From the time of the first merchant adventurers until Clive with a handful of men won Plassy, and established our dominion, through the laurels of the great Duke, the victories of Lord Gough and Lord Napier, the 'quelling of the oruel mutiny, Anglo-India life is but a recapitulation of all that is devoted, and daring, and true in English history. We have had amid nearly 180 millions of people, a little phalanx of "heroic women" and stout hearts, whom nothing has hindered and nothing has daunted. When the Prince of Wales lands in India he will see a mighty Empire, won by the stalwart prowess of his race, and he will meet with countless millions speaking a strange language, worshipping other gods, yet bowing down before the peaceful sovereignty of Victoria. The meeting of the Indian Princes, with the Heir Apparent to the English throne will be a great, important, and an affecting one. He may be said to go in the name of the Sovereign, to confirm to those masses of people, all the very sincere declarations of the English Government of wise laws, civilizing arrangements, and equal rights, and just rule. In that strange and still mysterious land he will be able to point to a wise administration, and a contented people, and in the assurance of his sympathy with the princes and the people of Hindustan, he will no doubt greatly advance, there, by his royal presence, the progress of improvement and the prospects of peace. India has a great future before it, and under the directing and controlling influence of the Anglo-Saxon will, and truth, and high courage, and noble aims, we trust that many years of tranquil happiness and expanding civilization will be the lot of that numerous portion of the human race.

CANDIDATES FOR THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have at length received the official list of the candidates for the Boys' School, that is, within the last few days, though we believe a list was published we presume on some official authority, some time back. Not however being favoured with such information, we can only deal with it, when it reaches us, officially. There are 48 candidates and 8 vacancies; fourteen candidates were elected last October. Of the present candidates, fourteen come from London, four from Hants, two from Cumberland, Kent, Devonshire, East Indies, Durham, East Lancashire, Dorsetshire, each; and one from each of the following provinces or districts: St. Helena, Gloucestershire, South Wales, Northamptonshire, Foreign Stations, Staffordshire, Gibraltar, Constantinople, Cheshire, Middlesex, West Yorkshire, Cambridgeshire and Warwickshire. This enumeration will suffice to show how cosmopolitan are alike the claimants for, and the operation of the benefits of the Boys' School. Indeed, it is an institution whose needs the Craft last year most surely testified of. We regret to note that only eight candidates out of forty-eight applicants can be elected this year—eight admitted, forty left out in the cold. Could not something be done to make a supplemental election in honour of the installation of our Royal Grand Master by special exertions, or an emergency fund? We believe that at a small outlay, many more boys can be admitted, and would it not be worthy of our great Order in honour of this auspicious event in the annals of English Freemasonry to try and reduce this sad margin of disappointed hopes and expectations? We observe that in the Times it is stated sixteen of the boys have passed the Cambridge Middle Class Local Examination, and we hope that the statement is correct. We wish all prosperity to the Boys' School, and we trust that Bro. Binckes may have a good field day on the 30th June. We congratulate the Province of West Yorkshire on having already a Steward's list of over £400.

AMERICAN MASONIC LITERATURE.

We alluded, a fortnight ago, to the memorial volume of the "Dedication Memorial of the new Masonic Temple at Philadelphia." We have since received the volume, and nothing but the very crowded state of our columns prevented our reviewing it last week. We had prepared a review of it for next week's Freemason, but we prefer to refer our readers to the remarks of our able and respected Bro. W. J. Hughan. It is really a most remarkable book in every way, most admirably edited, and reflecting every credit on its compilers, and the great cause it represents. It will possess the deepest interest for future generations of Freemasons. The following worthy and distinguished brethren were entrusted by unanimous vote of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania with the editorial duties, and right well have they fulfilled their task: Bros. Charles G. Meyer, Mark Richard Muckle, Robert H. Pattison, W. A. Burkhardt, Charles H. Ide, John L. Young, and Phineas Garrett. Of these the worthy and valued Rev. R. H. Pattison has gone to his rest before the completion of their noble labours. It is a work American Freemasonry may be proud of.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

The Times of Thursday has the following paragraph with reference to the installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master:—

"Yesterday was the last day on which returns could be received by Grand Lodge of the members of English lodges who desire to be present at the installation of the Prince of Wales in Albert Hall, and so great is the demand of the brethren that Grand Secretary John Hervey has sent a notification to foreign lodges to the effect that as the building selected for the ceremony will not more than suffice for the English brethren who desire admittance, places cannot be given to deputations of foreign lodges, and the applications from these were exceedingly numerous. As it is, the admissions to Albert Hall on the occasion will be very restricted, and a Steward from each London lodge, in most instances the Worshipful Master, and two from each Provincial Grand Lodge, will regulate the actual admission of the brethren, and three additional safeguards will be taken that those admitted are personally known, that they have with them their certificates signed by themselves and countersigned by the Secretaries, as well as tickets of admission, which they can only obtain through the Masters of their lodges. The Worshipful Masters of Lodges, Wardens, and Past Masters, the constituent members of Grand Lodge, will themselves only gain admission on this occasion by having sent in their names through their Worshipful Master or the Secretary of their lodge, and of the brethren of the lodges. As only a certain number of tickets can be allotted, ballots will be held for these, but none under the rank of a Master Mason is eligible even to take part in the ballot. Under no circumstance can any but subscribing Masons to a lodge be admitted. Among the host of applications for admission beyond those of the brethren entitled and beyond those of the Master Masons who will share in the ballot have been large numbers for the Press—so large a number, indeed, that a great amount of space would be taken up if they were granted. The Grand Lodge will, however, recognise none but those members of Grand Lodge who have been authorised to supply Press reports, the right of reporting the proceedings in all lodges being strictly reserved, and the Craft is not disposed to extend the limits of this privilege in the performance of a ceremony which will contain forms guarded not only from "cowans and intruders," but from the eyes of young, incautious, and indiscreet brethren. Sir Albert Woods, the Garter King at Arms, the Grand Director of Ceremonies, will direct the proceedings.

The anniversary festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will take place at Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday, the 11th of May.

Bro. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., has accepted the Provincial Grand Mastership of West Riding, Yorks, at the invitation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.

Bro. H. A. Dubois has been appointed Secretary to the Surrey Masonic Hall Company, in place of Bro. Edwin Sillifant, deceased.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES
AS M.W. GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is extremely gratifying to observe the efforts which are being made by the executive of Grand Lodge to ensure the comfort of the brethren at the approaching installation of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. on the 28th of this month, and I have no doubt all and every arrangement will be as satisfactory to the Craft as it is possible for them to be. Part of the special Stewards will probably act as scrutineers (accidentally printed sentinels in my last letter to you), others would, I should think, be appointed to see the brethren take their proper seats according to their names and the numbers on the tickets, corresponding with the number on the seat allotted to them. I would suggest that the brethren should be admitted by different coloured tickets.

Say Grand Lodge, Blue; Grand Stewards, Red; Provincial Officers, Blue and White; Past Masters and Wardens, Pale Blue; Master Masons, White; and that a large banner (calico would answer the purpose), should be placed over each entrance corresponding with the colour or pattern of the tickets to be admitted at that door. This would tend to prevent confusion, and greatly facilitate ingress.

I would also suggest to the brethren, not to go without their certificates, as, in the event of not being known to the scrutineers, and not vouched for by some well-known brother, they might be spared the disappointment of not obtaining admission.

And I beg to assure the brethren there are very strong reasons, (whether well founded or not), for urging the adoption of this suggestion.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BOYD, P.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It being decided that a jewel to commemorate the above event should be struck, to be worn by the brethren acting as Stewards on the occasion, do you not think it would be a splendid opportunity to benefit the whole of the Masonic Charities by extending the privilege of wearing the jewel to the whole of the members of the Grand Lodge, such as Past Masters, Masters, and Wardens, or even to the whole of the brethren who attend on the occasion, it being understood that they should give a subscription of one guinea to one of the charities, which could be easily managed by the subscriptions being sent to the Grand Secretary's Office, at which place the jewels could be obtained or forwarded to Provincial brethren. As a London brother, and also a subscribing member to provincial lodges, and knowing the large number who intend being present, I apprehend that not less than from £7000 to £8000 would easily be obtained in that manner. The jewel would be a gratification to the brethren, the subscription a benefit to the charities, and the event a red letter day in the annals of Masonry. Should you deem this worthy of consideration, kindly grant space for this letter in your next issue.

Yours fraternally,

M.E.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to add my suggestion to the rest, by expressing a hope that brethren acting as Stewards on this occasion will be permitted to wear some "special" jewel as a recompense for the labours they will undertake and perform, distinct from a mere commemorative jewel, which may be bestowed on the Order in general.

I also trust that members of the Craft who may be photographers may be engaged to take views, which might be sold for the benefit of the charities.

Could not some opportunity be given to ladies to view the hall after the ceremony—just a quiet march past the throne.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

N. R., W.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Feeling deeply for the W.M., who does not possess a dress coat, I beg to enclose the following advertisement out of the Standard of the 26th March, which may enable him to tide over this difficulty, without preventing him from becoming a life subscriber to the Masonic Boys' School.

Yours fraternally,

A RUSTIC BRIDGE.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any of your correspondents learned in Masonic Archæology, inform me what is the meaning of the letters P.X.J.H., now used by officials of "The Order of the Temple," so called, after their signatures?

Yours fraternally,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

The Directors of the "Hackney Public Hall Company, Limited," have altered their title to that of the "Hackney Public and Masonic Hall Company, Limited," and propose to adopt the plans of the front portion of their building, now in course of erection, by Messrs. Jno. Waldram & Company, of Kingsland-road, for Masonic purposes.

Reviews.

"Dedication Memorial of the new Masonic Temple, Philadelphia." A review by BRO. WILLIAM JAMES LUCIAN.

This grand and superb book has been already much admired; and no wonder, for it is without an equal of its kind, and Masonically immortalizes the Library Committee, to whom its compilation and publication was entrusted by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. The names of the brethren selected for such an important undertaking were Charles Eugene Meyer (Chairman); M. Richards Muckle, the Rev. Robert H. Pattison, D.D.; William H. Burkhardt, Charles K. Ide, Treas.; John L. Young, and Phineas Garrett, Sec.; who engaged to complete the work on their own responsibility, which meant a pecuniary loss of several hundreds of dollars, and not only considerable trouble in the providing the material, but also much anxiety during the progress of the several portions of the work. The volume has been produced through a wise division of labour, and a most judicious selection of assistants in the enterprise, represented by F. Faas, engraver; Thomas Hunter, lithographer; Collins, printer; J. Fagan and Son, stereotypers; and Claxton, Remsen, and Haffelfinger, of Philadelphia, publishers. The photographic artist for the various views of the exterior and interior of the extraordinary building, is the skillful Bro. Gutekunst, who had previously issued some really excellent views of the Masonic Temple. Each of the thousand copies of the work bears the certificate signed in facsimile by the committee, with the number of the copy inserted, and there is a complete list of the subscribers printed, including only some eight brethren under the Grand Lodge of England. Had it not been for the copies being so quickly applied for, and had it been known that the "Memorial volume" was to assume its present imposing character, many more would have gladly subscribed. Unfortunately, it is now too late, unless the library committee decide to publish a second edition, which we hope they will do.

We should state that the typographical merits of the volume are of the highest class, and reflect the greatest merit on all concerned. The size of the type is most pleasing to the eye, and a more judicious arrangement of the contents seems to us impossible.

The "Introduction" declares that the "volume is given to the Masonic world without any claim to originality." Certainly there is no such claim made, but any who would infer the absence of originality because of the statement, would err indeed.

The committee, each in their own departments, have not only presented in a connected form all the incidents of interest connected with the Masonic Temple—the grandest in the wide world—but the work contains a really valuable sketch of the history of Freemasonry down to the present time, evidently written by a brother well skilled in the art of Masonry, and thoroughly conversant with the eventful career of the Craft.

Various important documents have been carefully transcribed, and inserted to elucidate certain doubtful points, and an interesting letter is given in reduced facsimile, which was sent by Bro. Lawrence Dermott, Grand Sec. of the "Grand Lodge according to the old Constitutions," to the Grand Master of Pennsylvania, Jan. 11th., 1765, the earliest of its kind so far published in any Masonic work.

It is also clearly proved that so far Philadelphia has established its claim to possess evidence of being the oldest Masonic city in the United States, a lodge having been warranted there as early as A.D. 1730 by Daniel Coxe, whose patent as Prov. G.M. for New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, was dated June 5th., 1730, and issued by the authority of the Duke of Norfolk, M.W.G.M. of England. As this lodge was formed "during the fall" of 1730, and the patent as Prov. G.M. was only issued in June, it was scarcely possible to have constituted a lodge earlier, and so the "Keystone" state may await the trial with confidence.

The City of Philadelphia also establishes its claim to have built the first Masonic Hall in America, the subscription list for which, dated March 13th, 1754, forms a splendid facsimile—large and faithful—of the original document, which is interesting to all students of American Masonry.

We have not noticed any more special claims on behalf of the State of Pennsylvania, excepting that, without doubt, the New Masonic Temple (which was dedicated in "Ample Form," in September, 1873) stands unrivalled for its grandeur, proportions and magnificence in the "Old Country," or the "New."

The "corner stone" was laid by the Grand Officers on the 24th June, 1868, in the presence of 10,000 Freemasons and a vast concourse of spectators, the gavel used by Bro. George Washington, at the laying of the corner stone of the Federal Capitol, being employed for the occasion. A capital photograph of the six Grand Officers who officiated follows the description. The total cost of this wonder of the Masonic world was more than a million and a half of dollars, or about £300,000.

The portion raised by a loan might have been doubled or trebled with ease, so well does the credit of the Grand Lodge stand in the estimation of the "outer world." The architect of the imposing structure was Bro. Jas. Windrim, of the Philadelphia Lodge Hope, No. 72, the plan being adopted by the Building Committee with great unanimity, and afterwards duly approved by the Grand Lodge.

We should state that no less than 12,000 Masons assembled to take part in the dedicatory procession, many Grand Lodges being represented, and no expense or pains were spared to make the ceremony in every sense a reflection of the noble principles of the Order. The Grand Lodge entered the building at three p.m., but it was not until six that the youngest lodge passed through its portals.

The photograph exhibiting the Grand Officers at the Dedication, contains three brethren who took part officially in the Corner Stone Ceremony, viz.: M.W. Bro. Samuel C. Perkins, G.M., (then S.G.W.), R.W. Bro. Alfred R. Potter, G.M. (then J.G.W.); and our well-beloved M.W. Bro. John Thomson, the Grand Secretary. Words fail us to adequately describe this great undertaking so successfully begun, continued and completed by the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, and which the Memorial Volume, ably and graphically portrays, so we conclude by saying, "well done!"

PRESENTATION OF AN ADDRESS TO BRO. SIR
MICHAEL COSTA.

An invitation having been issued by the W.M. of Fidelity Lodge, 286, Leeds, to the brethren of the neighbourhood of Leeds to celebrate at a lodge of emergency the winter Festival of St. John on the 16th ult., about sixty members of the Craft assembled at the Masonic Hall, Carleton-Hill, Leeds, under the Mastership of Bro. William Spark, M.D., P.Prov.G.O. of West Yorkshire.

The object of this gathering of Masons was to welcome Sir Michael Costa on the occasion of his second visit to Leeds for conducting a performance in the Town Hall of his own oratorio of Eli. Bro. Thomas William Tew, J.P., P.M. of the Saint Oswald's Lodge, 910, Pontefract, P.Z. 495, &c., was invited to present the address to Sir Michael Costa.

The Fidelity Lodge was opened by the W.M. at 5.30 p.m., the other officers being Bros. Bakewell, S.W.; Walker, J.W.; Dixon, S.D.; Ostler, J.D.; Rowbottom, I.G.; Rawling, Tyler. The Fidelity brethren mustered strongly. Amongst the visiting brethren we noticed—Bros. H. Smith, P.G. Secretary of West Yorkshire; Collinson, P.Prov.G.S.B. North and East Ridings; Dr. Taylor, of Bradford, Captain E. T. Clark, of Snaith, John Simpson, P.M., Castleford; R. Holmes, Sir Michael Costa, T. W. Tew, with several others from neighbouring lodges. The lodge was opened by the W.M. at 5.45 p.m. in the first degree. Bro. Sir Michael Costa was introduced to the lodge by the Deacons and Stewards of the lodge, the brethren rising whilst their distinguished brother took his seat on the right of the W.M., Bro. Tew, P.M., being requested to be seated on the left of the W.M. The Master of Ceremonies of the Fidelity Lodge called upon the brethren present to salute Bro. Sir Michael Costa in the manner becoming Sir Michael's Masonic rank.

The W.M. then briefly addressed Sir Michael Costa, and said how gratified he and all the brethren present were at the opportunity afforded them of giving a right hearty Masonic welcome to Sir Michael, who was not only one of the most distinguished Masons—but one of the most accomplished musicians of the day, and that he had come to Leeds to conduct the performance of his own oratorio of Eli. The brethren of the Fidelity Lodge had drawn up an address which he hoped Sir Michael would accept as a testimony of the high esteem in which he was held by the brethren of the Craft, and which would be to him a record of the pleasure his second visit to Leeds had conferred. The W.M. would call upon Bro. Tew to present the address, which he had much delight in reading.

"The Worshipful Master, Officers, and Brethren of the Lodge of Fidelity at Leeds. No. 289, and in the province of West Yorkshire.

"To Bro. Sir Michael Costa.

"Tuesday, March 16, 1875.

"We, the Worshipful Master, Officers, and Brethren, of the Lodge of Fidelity, at Leeds, desire to convey to you, Sir Michael Costa, our hearty welcome on your visiting Leeds a second time; and this gratification is further enhanced that we are able to greet you as a distinguished member of the Ancient Order of Freemasons.

"Our sentiments towards you on this occasion of your coming amongst the brethren of the Craft are intensified by the recollection of the great pleasure you conferred upon all classes of the community at the Leeds Musical Festival last October.

"No one possessed of the smallest musical taste could but appreciate at that festival your masterly powers over masses of musicians, making choristers and performers so blend their voices and instruments together in one harmonious whole as if there had been but one single person sounding one single note.

Your talents as a conductor of mighty Oratorios always rule supreme, and by the best use of these thus give adequate interpretations of the sacred work of the giant masters of music, and which have universally received for their productions the hearty appreciation of all admirers of classical music.

Many times at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, the Crystal Palace, and Provincial Town Halls, have we listened to your direction of the masterpieces of Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Rossini, Donizetti, and Verdi, and greatly have we been impressed with the genius of your abilities in giving full force and meaning to such oratorios as 'The Messiah,' 'The Creation, and your own composition 'Eli,' as well as those lighter sparkling works the Barbiere de Sieglia, Don Giovanni, Der Freischütz, Robert le Diable, Lucresia Borgia, and Fidelio.

To-day then you have afforded us the opportunity of welcoming you in a Freemason's Lodge, and of offering our congratulations to an accomplished musician, as well as an eminent member of the brotherhood.

In conclusion we beg to assure you of the gratification you have conferred upon us by this visit, and we trust that the blessing of the Most High may ever rest upon you, and that it may please Him to grant you a long life, not only to fulfil the important duties attaching to your musical attainments, but that He may also long spare you to adorn with your talents and accomplishments the land of your adoption.

"Bro. W. SPARK, MUS. DOC.,
"P.P.G.O., W. MASTER.

"Masonic Hall, Carleton Hill, Leeds."

Bro. Spark, W.M., having read the address from his chair of office, called upon Past Master Tew to supplement it, who accordingly addressed Bro. Sir Michael Costa as follows:—

"Bro. Sir Michael Costa, Alpha Lodge, No. 16. The Worshipful Master, officers, and brethren of the Lodge of Fidelity, desire that as a P. Prov. G. S. W. of the Province of West Yorkshire, I should supplement an address which every brother present trusts you will be pleased to accept, with a few remarks in addition to those which have just fallen from the lips of the talented brother who has been elected to occupy the chair of this lodge for the year 1875.

The Lodge of Fidelity at Leeds, better known under its original number of 364 than 289, is not a lodge just recently established. It has now enrolled upon its books the names of upwards of 50 active members. Both from its old and rectified number on the registry of Grand Lodge of England, it will afford you gratification to learn the antiquity of this West Yorkshire Lodge of Fidelity at Leeds, and that the brethren are remarkable for the three grand principles embodied in the name of their lodge, Unity, Honesty, and Loyalty.

Leeds has much occasion to be gratified with this second visit within so short a time, and must long remember with pleasure your successful inauguration of the musical festival last October, which this town trusts, under the Mayor, who has chosen the motto "Mars denique Victor est," may prove a nucleus for the organization of triennial festivals.

In conducting at that festival, your masterly leadership gave adequate interpretations to works of such genius as the oratorios of St. Paul, Elijah, and The Messiah, as well as the lighter though equally difficult compositions Paradise and the Peri, and the Bride of Donkerron, and we understand with pleasure that your abilities as a composer will be displayed to an appreciative audience in your own oratorio of Eli.

This is a work which I may say not alone as at Birmingham, when first introduced to an enthusiastic assembly, but in other large towns since 1855, has added laurels to your fame as an eminent musical composer.

We, then, who anticipate much pleasure in listening to Eli, cheerfully acknowledge on this present occasion, surrounded by the brethren of the Craft, who would have been more numerous could the invitations of the W.M. have been extended to the 2841 members of the 58 Masonic Lodges of West Yorkshire, that our first and chief ears as Freemasons is to extend to you the right hand of mystic fellowship, and welcome you as a brother in the midst of the Fidelity Lodge.

We greet you with respect because as a brother Craftsman you have, we believe, taken every degree which the orders of Freemasonry in this country can confer, and which few Masons amongst us have been endowed with equal abilities to merit.

Our next cause of rejoicing at this welcome of an accomplished member of the Craft is still further enhanced that we have as our guest this evening a brother amongst us who, in addition to all these Masonic distinctions, has himself attained the very highest position among the living musicians of the world.

The decorative honours which have been conferred upon you by the crowned heads of Europe, and which you are permitted to wear in this country, are tangible proofs of the high estimation in which you are held by the best beloved and most talented in the long catalogue of British Sovereigns.

Sir Michael, we cannot but feel proud of you, as a gentleman, an accomplished musician, and as the designer of the grand organ for the Alexandra Palace, but perhaps still more proud that these qualities and attainments adorn a member of the fraternity of Freemasons.

We hope therefore this, your second visit to Leeds, will be as gratifying to you as a musical composer, as the first in last October, and more especially in this ancient lodge, where the W. Master, also a scientific organist and musician, can doubly appreciate you as the guest of the Fidelity brethren.

Bro. Dr. Spark has rendered valuable services to the cause of Freemasonry in this country. His musical publications, freely given for the use of the Craft at all their gatherings, and in all their lodges, have earned for his unselfishness well deserved respect. Dr. Spark long felt the urgent necessity of some fixed but classical standard of music, which should be recognized by the brethren generally, and should intensify the sublime dignity of our beautiful rites and ceremonies. In this object the W. Master has singularly succeeded, and by introducing good music at all our important gatherings has tended to increase their harmonious working in this country.

Long may you, Sir Michael, be able to devote yourself to disseminate amongst hundreds of people a love for sound classical music—as an art the most difficult and sublime of the seven liberal arts and sciences cultivated in a Fellow Craft's Lodge. May the Great Architect of the Universe grant you a long life to enable you still further to extend by new oratorios the genius of your abilities amongst all nations and all languages, so that when the Grand Geometrician of the Universe summons you from this earthly lodge to the everlasting lodge above, you may be permitted to join that grand chorus of all the Angels, Archangels, Cherubims, Seraphims, in the Celestial Lodge-sang, "Blessing and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for ever and ever.

May this crown of glory, and inheritance in the celestial lodge, be your everlasting grand reward.

Bro. Sir Michael Costa in returning thanks to Bro. Tew, the W.M., officers, and brethren of the Fidelity Lodge, said that he really did not know how to thank them sufficiently for the honour they had done him that day. He was an old and attached member of the Craft; he had worked hard for Freemasonry, for he loved it much, and more particularly English Freemasonry. English Freemasons did not, as was practised by Continental Freemasons, mix politics with Freemasonry, and the brethren in England were wise in not doing so. With reference to what had been said by the W.M. and Bro. Tew about his success in his profession, he could only observe that he had done his best to inculcate the love for classical music, and was thankful to God for what talents had been bestowed upon him. He had been much pleased with his visit to Leeds last October on the occasion of the musical festival, and he had noticed with pleasure the power and clearness of the Yorkshire voices. In again thanking the Lodge of Fidelity for the honour they had done him, Bro. Sir M. Costa said he should always look back upon this day as one of the happiest in his life.

The Lodge of Fidelity was closed in perfect peace and harmony at 6.30 p.m.

The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting-hall of the Fidelity Lodge, where an excellent dinner was provided.

The musical arrangements, which were of an exceptionally excellent kind, were under the guidance of Bro. S. Sewell, Joe Wood, Fred. R. Spark, Hamilton Clarke, Walker, and the Organist of the Fidelity Lodge, J. P. Bowling. The words and the music were taken from Dr. W. Spark's "Liber Musicus."

ANNUAL BALL OF THE RED CROSS ORDER.

The annual ball given by the members of this degree was held on Wednesday evening at Willis's Rooms. Dancing commenced shortly after nine o'clock, and was kept up with unflagging energy till supper time. After this repast had been partaken of, the knights and ladies entered again with undiminished vigour into the spirit of the entertainment, and kept it up till an early hour in the morning of Thursday.

The arrangements made for the comfort and pleasure of the dancers were of the most approved description. The supper and refreshments during the evening were admirably supplied, and Coote and Tinney's band fully maintained its character of being the best in the profession. The surplus pecuniary proceeds of the ball will be given to the Masonic Charities and the Almoner's Fund of the Red Cross Order.

A fuller report will appear in our next.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The monthly meeting of the general committee of this school was held on the 25th ult. in the library, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Major J. Creation, Vice-Patron, presided. The other brethren present were Bros. J. A. Rucker, S. Rosenthal, Richard Spencer, Robert B. Webster, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. Wentworth Little, Secretary.

There was very little business before the committee. The minutes of the former meeting, and of the house committee, having been read, authority was given to the chairman to sign cheques, and five petitions were read. The prayer of each was granted and the five candidates placed on the list for October election.

The committee then passed a vote of thanks to the chairman, and adjourned.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

On Wednesday, the 24th ult., the Lodge of Benevolence held its customary monthly meeting. The three chairs were occupied by Bros. J. M. Clabon, President; Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President; and James Brett, Junior Vice-President. Bros. John Hervey, G.S.; John Savage, P.G.D.; Herbert Dicketts, P.G.S.; Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; William Smith, P.G.S.; Hogg, P.G.D.; Samuel May, P.G.S.; John Boyd, P.G.P.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; Cubitt, G.P.; H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treasurer, Middlesex; and Bros. H. M. Levy, W. Mann, William Stephens, Bingham, Marsh, Hogard, Hemming, and Rogers, were also present.

The sitting of the lodge was a prolonged one, as there were a great many cases before the lodge, some of them of a peculiarly distressing character. Grants to the amount of £125, made by the former lodge, were confirmed, and additional grants made to the amount of £505. One of these was of £100, and one of £50. Seven grants of £30 each were made; three of £20; eight of £10; and one of £5.

Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. SIR GEORGE ELLIOTT M.P. P.G.S.W. Middlesex.—On Wednesday last a banquet, attended by upwards of a thousand persons, took place in the Market-Hall, in the city of Durham. At the same time a magnificent dessert service in silver, by Hunt and Roskell, was presented to Sir George. The service, consisting of ten pieces, cost £2000, and was subscribed for by friends and admirers of the hon. baronet. The Marquis of Londonderry occupied the chair, and made the presentation.

Tuesday's Gazette states that Her Majesty the Queen has been pleased to issue a Royal Commission to inquire into the working of the Factory and Workshops' Act to, among others, Bro. Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, Past Grand Senior Warden.

EGYPTIAN HALL.—As a rule, managers of entertainments give their patrons some extra novelties about Easter. Dr. Lynn, observing this good practice, presents to his visitors two lady pianists, the Sisters Gerbaldi, who at stated intervals play some most exquisite duets on two of Erard's grands, so that those who patronize Dr. Lynn's entertainment have just now an opportunity of witnessing some extraordinary feats of legerdemain and may alternate this by listening to some most delightful pianoforte recitals. The introduction of the Sisters Gerbaldi is an event in London musical circles.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—These remedies correct that state of the system which arises when the functions have been overworked, a low kind of inflammatory state arises in the blood, which is a fertile source of rheumatism and gout, the nerves partake of the general derangement and hence neuralgic pains so frequently occur, the acute suffering that ensues on the supervision of these pains must be felt to be understood. These pills strengthen and renovate the nervous system throughout, and consequently the whole bodily and mental functions are restored to vigour—they are of great value in those conditions of loss of tone, brought on by excess or free living, and in constitutions weakened by premature development or exertion.—ADVT.

METROPOLITAN.

EGYPTIAN LODGE (No. 27).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 1st inst., at Anderson's Hotel. There was a large attendance of the brethren, Bro. S. R. Lambie, W.M., presided, and among the other brethren present were Past Masters C. B. Payne, H. G. Buss (Treasurer), D. H. Jacobs, J. Sheppard, W. H. Libbis, H. F. Hoare, John Coutts, F. Harrison, J. B. Poole, and Charles Atkins. Among the officers were Bros. John Green, S.W.; John Walker, S.D.; Walter D. Pattenden, J.D.; W. Richards, I.G.; and T. J. Maidwell, D.C. The W.M. raised Bro. John Lindell, and initiated Mr. John Riches. It was resolved that a summer banquet should be held, and the brethren were informed that a lodge of instruction to work under this lodge had been established, to meet on those Thursday evenings throughout the year on which the parent lodge did not meet, the place of meeting to be Bro. Maidwell's, Hercules Tavern, 119, Leadenhall-street, and the hour 7.30; the lodge to be closed at 9.30. The brethren then voted ten guineas to the list of Bro. J. Poole, P.M., who stands as a Steward for the approaching festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls on the 11th proximo. The lodge was afterwards closed, and the W.M. accompanied by his officers and the other members of the lodge, and Bros. J. Crawley, 174; Arthur Grubb, 73, I.C.; and I. Ashur Allison, 90, sat down to a delightful banquet. The toasts were in due course proposed and honoured. The W.M. in reply to the toast proposed and drunk in his favour, assured the brethren that whether in the office he now filled, or in the others through which he had passed, he had always endeavoured to perform his duties. He then proposed "The Past Masters," of whom there were nine he had himself seen go through the chair since he joined, and he hoped they would all be spared many, many years to give the brethren their advice and instruction. The toast having been drunk, Bro. Buss, Treasurer, was called on to reply, and in the course of doing so assured the brethren that he was sensible of the honour of holding so high a position. As long as he had belonged to the lodge his chief object had been to promote its interests, and he had laboured hard with that object for many years. For a quarter of a century he had been Secretary, and also for a great part of that time acted as Treasurer, even while the late respected Bro. B. P. Todd was the actual Treasurer. No lodge had succeeded so well in arriving at a high position as the Egyptian had, and no lodge had subscribed so much to the charities. During the last 14 or 15 years £400 had been thus contributed. On that evening the lodge had entered on a new phase of existence; it had established a benevolent fund, and £150 was already in hand on that account. Next week £100 of that would be invested, so as to bring in the largest amount of revenue. It was not the intention of the lodge to make this fund available only for the members of this lodge, but it would, he hoped, aid the charities by placing a large sum on the list of any brother who would stand as Steward for whichever of the charities would be getting low. He was not one who wished to see a large fund accumulated. Let them give their money to cases of distress, and let the Masons of the future act for themselves. He could not see why the brethren should aspire to having £1,000 or £1,500 in hand, as some lodges had, and he hoped he should never see the benevolent fund of the Egyptian Lodge amount to that sum. If the brethren would support the institutions, they would be preventing so large a balance accumulating. Bro. Buss then thanked the brethren on behalf of himself and the other Past Masters, and concluded by wishing the lodge every prosperity. The remaining toasts were afterwards disposed of, and the brethren separated.

FAITH LODGE (111).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 29th ult. The proceedings commenced at half past four o'clock in the afternoon. The officers present were: Bros. Kennet, W.M.; Waygood, S.W.; Davis, J.W.; Malett, S.D.; Davis, Acting J.D.; Darey, I.G.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Themans, L.P.M. Among the visitors were Bros. Gardner, W.M. 1381; Parnell, 101. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Pilbrow, Steng, and Chambers, passed Bro. Isaacs, and initiated Messrs. Elverston and Field. The whole of the ceremonies were ably and impressively performed. Bro. Taylor, P.M., then addressed the lodge at length upon a notice of motion which he gave at the last meeting that the initiatory monetary bye-law, No. 7, of the lodge should be altered from £5 5s. to £10 10s., in consequence of the great strength of the lodge and insufficiency of accommodation. This motion was fully discussed and ultimately seconded by Bro. Thomas, I.P.M. The W.M. moved, as an amendment, that the initiation fee should be increased from £5 5s. to £7 7s., which was seconded by Bro. Catmur. The amendment, upon being put, was carried by a majority of eight, and then put and carried as an original motion. Bro. Taylor, P.M., then proposed that the joining fees should be increased from £2 2s. and £3 3s. to £4 4s. and £5 5s., which was seconded by Bro. Davis, D.C., and carried unanimously. Bro. Taylor then moved that the visiting fee, on partaking of refreshment, should be ten shillings, except on nights of installation, when it should be twenty-one shillings, which was seconded by Bro. Wilson. The W.M. moved, and Bro. Hopwood, P.M., seconded, that the refreshment fees should be altered from 5s. and 7s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. and 15s. The amendment was carried by a large majority. Bro. Carter, P.M., Treas., was unanimously elected to act as Steward at the forthcoming Royal Installation at the Albert Hall, and a resolution passed that all his expenses should be paid by the lodge. Bro. Carter returned thanks, but expressed his unwillingness to receive anything from the funds of the lodge towards the expenses of the honourable position which his brethren had so kindly elected him to fulfil. It was moved by Bro. Davis, D.C., that the sum of £5 5s. should be placed on Bro. Hopwood's list as Steward to the Girls' Festival, and a like sum to Bro. Bennett as Steward for the Boys. This gave rise to considerable discussion, and Bro. Walls moved that the sum voted to each Steward for the institutions should be £3 3s., but upon the representations made by the W.M. and the Treasurer, both motions were withdrawn. The proceedings, which were very lengthy and animated, then terminated, and the lodge having been duly closed, the brethren separated.

JORDAN LODGE (No. 201).—A meeting of this old established and flourishing lodge was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Friday, the 18th inst. There was a good muster of the brethren, who assembled at six o'clock in the evening, at which time the lodge was opened by Bros. Hume, W.M.; Wagner, S.W.; Elsom, P.M. (Dobie), J.W.; Watts, P.M., P.Z., &c., Treasurer; Arliss, P.M., P.Z., &c., Secretary; Palowka, S.D.; Read, J.D.; Sumner, I.G. Among the Past Masters of the lodge present were Bros. Hammond, W.M. 1512, &c.; Davage, Carvill, Whiting, Robinson. Bro. Walls, I.G. 1503, &c., visited the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, passed Bro. Park to the F.C. degree, in a most excellent manner. The W.M. was then unanimously elected to act as Steward at the Installation of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. Bro. Hume, in acknowledging the honour awarded him, stated that when he came to the lodge that evening, he had intended not to accept the position should it be offered him, as he was of opinion that one of the old Past Masters of the lodge should be elected, but as it appeared to be the general wish of the brethren that he should stand, he accepted the office, which he would endeavour to carry out to the best of his ability, and to the honour of the Jordan Lodge. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant repast. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft," which was duly honoured, and Bro. Read sang one verse of the National Anthem. The toasts of "The M.W.G.M.," and "The Pro G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers," followed, and were received by the brethren with excellent "fire." Bro. Whitney, the I.P.M., upon being entrusted with the gavel, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was heartily received. Bro. Hume, in reply thanked the brethren, and in the course of his speech, expressed his thanks to the Past Masters of the lodge who had, throughout his Masonic career, rendered him valuable aid, and by whose kindness and instruction he had been enabled to aspire, and ultimately attain, the dignified and honourable position which he then held. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Visitors," in a complimentary speech. Bro. Walls, in reply, said he felt unpleasantly situated at having to respond for himself as a visitor for the first time in his Masonic life. He had visited many lodges, and when the health of the visitors had been proposed, he had generally managed to escape from responding, by shifting the delicate duty upon another, but on the present occasion there was no help for it. He then touched briefly upon what he had witnessed, both in and out of the lodge, and in conclusion stated that the brethren of the Jordan Lodge ought to be proud of their Past Masters, many of whom had achieved high honours in other lodges and in many of the higher degrees, and he had to thank one of those distinguished brethren, viz. Bro. Hammond, for the pleasure he had that evening received in being invited to their lodge. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," which was duly responded to. In giving the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," the W.M. spoke very highly of the services rendered to the brethren by their Treasurer and Secretary. Bros. Watts and Arliss replied at length, and the former stated that he had been upwards of 30 years a Freemason, and that his love for the ancient Craft continued unabated, and that as long as his health would permit him, he should continue an active member of the Jordan Lodge. The latter reiterated the sentiments of his colleague, and hoped that his humble services as Secretary to the lodge would be always deemed worthy of receiving so hearty a recognition as the W.M. had been pleased to express that evening, and which the brethren had so kindly endorsed. Between the toasts Bros. Read, Walls, and Watts, contributed several songs and a reading. The Tyler's toast brought the successful proceedings to a close, and the lodge separated.

LODGE OF ST. JAMES (No. 765).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, at the Bridge House Hotel. Bro. Francis Child, W.M., presided, and initiated Mr. Benjamin Dafforn, and raised Bros. Marler, Nelson, Reed, and Taylor. Bro. Peter McCallum, of Glasgow, and Fetter Lane, London, was then installed as W.M. by Bro. Montagu Scott, P.M. and Secretary, and received the hearty congratulations of the brethren on his accession to the chair. The newly installed W.M. then appointed the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Thos. Brown, S.W.; R. W. Gibbs, J.W.; R. P. Hooton, Treasurer; M. Scott, Secretary; J. Cox, S.D.; S. W. Bidwell, J.D.; Goodwin, I.G.; Past Master Hyde, M.C.; I. Abbott, W.S.; W. G. Laing, Tyler. A P.M. jewel was presented to Bro. F. Child, for his great services to the lodge during his year of office. A banquet, provided by Bro. Joseph Spencer, was subsequently partaken of, and the toasts were proposed and responded to with a brevity and ability seldom equalled. Bro. Child in proposing the W.M.'s health, said he had watched his career with attention ever since that brother had become a Mason, and from what he had seen of him he was sure his year of office would be successful. The W.M., in reply, said that from the time he was initiated in this lodge he had been gratified at his progress, placed at last in the chair, and in a year that was to be such a crucial period in the history of Freemasonry, he must be said to have attained the summit of his ambition. He had longed for it for many a day. He had loved Masonry; it had been the solace of his soul, from his first joining it, and if people would only apply its principles and morality in their life and walk, it would be a consolation to their minds greater than any of the "Modes of Faith," which a zealot might fight for. Bro. Montagu Scott replied for the Past Masters. The initiate, Bro. Dafforn, said, he felt he had that night began a good lesson; but he had often thought of it, and he hoped to become a better man for Freemasonry than he had been. "The Health of the Visitors" was afterwards proposed, and the remaining toasts having also been honoured, the brethren separated. Amongst the visitors, were Bros. F. Walters, P. A. Nairne, P.M. 176; G. Lemann, P.M. 176; H. Massey (Freemason), and twenty-three others. The annual audit report, which was brought up, received, and adopted, showed a balance of £70 7s. 9d. on account of the "General Fund," and £67 6s. 4d. at the London and Westminster Bank to the credit of the "Benevolent Fund."

THE ASAPH LODGE (No. 1319) held its usual monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Monday, April 6th. Present—Bros. E. Frewin, W.M.; W. Reed, P.M., as S.W.; W. A. Tinney, J.W.; H. Tinney, I.G.; E. Swanborough, D.C.; E. S. Jones, P.M., Sec.; C. Coote, P.M., P.G. Org. Middlesex; J. M. Chamberlin, P.M.; James Weaver, I.P.M., P.M. 862, P. Prov. G. Org. Middlesex; and several other brethren. Bro. Coles was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. A notice of motion was given to remove the lodge from the Freemasons' Hall, in consequence of the ventilation of the Moira rooms being so bad; and the charge for the banquets at the tavern being considered exorbitant. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—This lodge met for the last time of its first year, under the presidency of Bro. William Stephens, W.M., at the Metropolitan Societies' Asylum, Ball's Pond Road, Dalston. The attendance of brethren was large, and included, besides the W.M., Bros. E. Somers, S.W.; W. D. Murlis, J.W.; Walford, Treasurer; W. Jones, P.M. 449, A.G.D.C., North, and Hunts, Secretary; Jessell, S.D.; E. Sim, I.G.; F. Ellen, Steward, numerous lay members of the lodge, and visitors, Bros. George Penn, G. W. Watkinson, 813; E. Crosby, 74; W. W. Fawn, 1305; E. Braine, 605; and T. H. Massey (Freemason). The W.M. raised Bros. Henry Morrey, George J. Glover, Samuel Smout, and Phillip A. Coard, and afterwards initiated Messrs. Charles Biggs, Charles Henry Fisher, and Frederick Charles Nevill. Bros. John Remington Brending, 781, and Henry Field, 200, were admitted as joining members of the lodge, and a motion by Bro. Murlis was carried to raise the initiation and joining fees. Bro. Somers, S.W., was elected unanimously W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. W. Stevens, Treasurer, and Bro. Gilchrist, Tyler. The brethren subsequently partook of a collation and honoured all the customary toasts. Bro. Stevens responded for the last time to the toast of his health as W.M., and congratulated the brethren on the high position which the lodge had attained by the exertions of all the brethren combined. He expressed his great gratification at this result, and the flourishing state of Freemasonry, and alluded to the forthcoming installation of the Prince of Wales, as an event to be remembered in the Order. With regard to what he had himself done, and which had been spoken of several times in this lodge in terms of approbation, he expressed the pleasure he felt at having so far succeeded in his endeavours to promote the good, both of the lodge, and the Order as to have secured the support of his brethren, and promised that in future his efforts in the same direction should not be relaxed. He afterwards proposed "The Initiates," whom he exhorted to follow the example that would be set them in the lodge, and to maintain the principles of the Order. The toast having been responded to, the W.M. proposed "The Past Masters," for whom Bros. Walford and Jones replied, the former brother passing a high compliment on the ability of the W.M., who would shortly be a P.M. The Past Masters he always looked upon as brethren who were the support of a lodge. They had been described as "pillars" and "pillows," pillars to support, and pillows to rest upon. He was glad that the toast had been proposed, as no doubt it was one which ought always to be honoured, and in this lodge it was acknowledged as it deserved to be. For himself, he hoped that whether as Treasurer, Deacon, Warden, or Master, he might be a pillar and a pillow, and respected by every member of the lodge. Bro. Jones, in his reply, congratulated the brethren on having had such a W.M. as Bro. Stephens, to whom he had been proud to render every assistance in his power. He was also glad to find that ever since the lodge had been started they had obtained such brethren as members and initiates as they had reason to be proud of. Their numbers were now getting so large, that at the former meeting they deemed it advisable to pass a motion restricting their number to fifty. They had initiated forty brethren since the establishment of the lodge. He trusted that in the future it would never be forgotten that Bro. Stephens had been the first Master of the lodge, and as an old Past Master he should look back upon this first year of the Marquis of Ripon Lodge with great delight. In proposing "The Officers," the W. Master thanked them for their services during his year, and felt sure that they would continue to do good to their fellow-creatures, as they had done in the past year. He also added that they deserved the thanks of every member of the lodge, and of the Craft generally. Brother Somers in reply said that this body never started as a featherbed lodge, if the P.M.'s wished to be pillows, he hoped that he should be a pillar, and that the foundation stone they had laid by giving 250 guineas towards the charities would lead to the capstone of a very much larger sum. If what they had done was a sure foundation stone for a noble building, which he trusted would be never disgraced, he would use his best exertions individually to improve the position of the lodge. If he should not do his work so well as the present W.M., it would not be from the want of will, but of power. From the time he entered into Masonry his heart had been in it, and he had endeavoured sincerely, zealously, and earnestly to carry his wishes out. He could only ask the brethren to help him to extend the advantages of the lodge as far as the charities were concerned, and prove that this was one of the brightest, ablest, and most useful of the lodges in London. Bro. Marlis also replied, and thanked the brethren for the support they had given to his list for the Girls' School. There were some brethren he had not yet asked, but if they felt themselves at all slighted he should be happy to receive their names. His list amounted to nearly £100 already, and he intended to make it more. If he had been rude in asking some brothers, or bashful in not asking others, he hoped the brethren to whom he had been rude would excuse him, and the brethren whom he had slighted would repair the defect. He had a capital list, and to show that it was perfectly respectable he would inform them that Bro. Wm. Gordon, M.P., for Chelsea had placed his name on it. Bros. Jessell and Sim likewise responded, the latter brother saying that whatever might be required of him to do to improve the position of the lodge he should always do it. What he had done for the charities was a very small matter, but he hoped that next time, which he trusted would be before long, that he represented the charities of the Order he would go up with an amount which he must be proud of. The Tyler's Toast brought this very pleasant evening to a conclusion.

INSTRUCTION.

EGYPTIAN LODGE (No. 27).—A meeting of the brethren was held on the 25th ult., at Bro. Maidwell's, Hercules Tavern, 191, Leadenhall Street, for the purpose of constituting a lodge of instruction in connection with the Egyptian Lodge, 27, to be called the Egyptian Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Charles Adkins, I.P.M., 27, occupied the chair, supported by Bros. H. T. Hoare, P.M. 27, T. J. Maidwell, D. C. 27, George B. Chapman, D. Salmonese, J. T. Dickenson, A. Head, J. Murch, Charles A. Grammer, W. O. Walbrook, and J. Crawley, P.M. 174. The Egyptian Lodge 27, having granted authority for a lodge of instruction being established in connection with it, it was proposed by Bro. Hoare, seconded by Bro. Walbrook, and resolved, that the Egyptian Lodge of Instruction should meet at the above address every Thursday evening, at 7.30, and be closed at 9.30. It was then proposed by Bro. Hoare, seconded by Bro. Chapman, and resolved, that Bro. Joseph Crawley, P.M. 174, be appointed Preceptor. Bro. Maidwell proposed, Bro. Hoare seconded, and it was resolved, that Bro. Chapman be appointed Secretary pro tem. On the motion of Bro. Chapman, seconded by Bro. Salmonese, Bro. Charles Adkins was appointed Treasurer. The joining fee and subscription were fixed, and the Treasurer and Secretary were instructed to purchase the necessary clothing for officers, furniture, and working tools. Instructions were also given to the Treasurer and Secretary to obtain the approval of Grand Lodge, to the bye-laws of the lodge, and all the brethren present having paid their joining fee and subscription for a year, the first meeting was appointed to be held on the 8th inst., and the brethren adjourned till that date.

DALHOUSIE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 860).—The annual festival of this lodge of instruction was held on Tuesday evening, at Bro. Allen's, Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney. Bro. Dalwood, W.M. of the parent lodge, presided, and was supported by Bros. Joseph Crawley, Preceptor of the lodge; W. H. Wallington, W.M. elect of the Dalhousie Lodge; W. Bristo, P.M.; Ashburner, P.M. 1278; Taylor, D.C. 1426; Crane, 933; Crouch, 1278; Perrin, Knox, J.W. 160; Smith, Wordsley, White, and about a score of others. The sum of £5 was voted to the Girls' School, a similar sum having previously been subscribed to the Male Fund of the Benevolent Institution, and a like sum to the Widows. The brethren then adjourned to an excellent banquet, and honoured the usual Masonic toasts. A fine musical treat was provided for the brethren by Bros. Bristo, Wallington, Perrin and Rien. Bro. Crawley also gave some good recitations. In the course of the evening, the W.M. was much congratulated on attaining his high position, and complimented on filling the Master's chair, after having been the first initiate the lodge had the pleasure of making.

Browning, J.W.; J. E. Wiltshire, S.D.; W. Sice, Org.; Strand, Tyler; John R. Hall, P.M., Hon. Sec.; Chas. Hallturn, P.M.; J. Coppin, P.M.; P. Higham, P.M.; Rev. L. G. H. The gavel was then placed in the hands of Bro. John R. Hale, P.M., and Doctor W. H. Longhurst, the Organist of Canterbury Cathedral, who had previously been regularly proposed, balloted for, and unanimously elected, was initiated according to ancient custom. A committee consisting of the W.M. and his Wardens was appointed to confer with the St. Augustine's and the Royal Military Lodges for the purpose of fixing the day and making such arrangements may be necessary for holding a banquet to celebrate the occasion of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales being installed as M.W.G.M. Some other business having been transacted the lodge was closed in due form and in due time.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 41).—The monthly meeting was held on Thursday, April 1st, which was but scantily attended, not more than 20 members being present. At 7.30 the lodge was opened by Bro. Mitchell, P.M., supported by Bros. Dr. Hopkins, acting as I.P.M.; Brown, S.W.; Everingham, J.W.; Ashley, P.M., Treas.; Falkner, Sec.; Wilkinson, S.D.; Braham, J.D.; Birth, acting as I.G.; Gazzard, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Letters of apology for non-attendance, caused by absence from Bath in each case, were read from Bros. Clark, W.M.; Major Preston, I.P.M.; and Carey, P.M. A ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. Major Bousfield, M.P. as a joining member, which was unanimous in his favour. A letter from the Grand Secretary, Bro. Hervey, was read, acknowledging receipt of a copy of the history of No. 41, as a present to the Library of Grand Lodge, and similar communications were announced from several private lodges. The chair was then taken by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, who had been deputed by the W.M. to perform the ceremonies. Bro. Radway, having been examined as to his proficiency, was entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the second degree, the candidate re-admitted, and duly passed to the rank of Fellow Craft, the symbolism of the working tools being carefully explained by Bro. Birth. Bro. Jacob Smith was examined as to his knowledge of this degree, and having been complimented on the correctness of his answers, and duly entrusted, withdrew. On his return to the lodge, he was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, who also gave the traditional history of the degree, and the charge connected with it, apologizing for omission of lectures on the tracing boards, for which there was not time. The lodge was resumed in the first degree. On the proposition of the S.W., seconded by the J.W. a vote of thanks was passed to the acting W.M. for the efficient manner in which he had presided and worked the ceremonies. The lodge was finally closed at a quarter to ten.

FOREST HILL.—WEST KENT LODGE (No. 1297).—The installation meeting of the West Kent Lodge, was held on the 27th ult., at the Forest Hill Hotel. Bro. Kindon, W.M., installed Bro. John Allen in the Master's chair, in the presence of a full lodge, and numerous visitors, among whom were Captain G. A. Smith, P.M. 619; Bro. C. J. Cooke, P.P.G.S.W. Kent; Bro. Alfred Avery, P.M. 619; and Bro. John White, W.M. 228. The W.M. appointed as his officers, Bros. H. D. Stead, S.W.; J. M. Stretch, J.W.; H.G. Warren, Treasurer; A. P. Leonard, Secretary; C. R. Crouch, S.D.; E. C. Massey, J.D.; and C. R. Crowden, I.G. The W.M. passed a brother to the second degree, and was afterwards unanimously elected himself to represent the lodge as Steward at the Installation of the Prince of Wales. A banquet followed the working of the lodge, and Bro. C. J. Cooke made an admirable speech in reply to the toast of "The Visitors."

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—The usual monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Saturday, April 3rd, at the Royal Archer, Dale-street. The lodge was opened punctually at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Smith. The minutes being read and confirmed, the ballot was then taken for an initiate and a joining member, and proved favourable in both cases. The W.M. then opened the lodge in the second degree, and passed Bros. Davies and Dickenson (they having previously answered the necessary questions and been entrusted). The ceremonies were most ably performed by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Pearson, S.W., who presented the working tools in such a manner as to call forth the unanimous praise of the brethren. Bro. Chas. J. Kent afterwards delivered the lecture on the second tracing board with such proficiency, as to be congratulated by the Past Masters and W.M. It is seldom we find in young lodges the J.W. being able to take such advanced positions as delivering the lectures, and lodges that possess such able workers in their junior officers can look forward to years of prosperity and proficiency. The lodge was then lowered to the first degree, and notice of motion given by the I.P.M., Bro. Jno. W. Turner, that the initiation and joining fees be raised. Amongst the visitors were Bros. W. H. Kershaw, W.M., Imperial George, 78, Middleton; N. Dunille, P.M. Virtue, 152; William Dunville, S.V., Richmond; Geo. Ellis, Stamford and Warrington, 1408, Stalybridge. Business being concluded, and the W.M. complimented on the efficiency of the working, the lodge was closed at 6.45. The refreshments, supplied by Bro. Potts, were, as usual, of the very best, and were appreciated by the members and visitors, and after the usual toasts, the brethren separated, well pleased and deeply impressed with the solemnity of the ceremonies they had seen so ably performed.

BARNSTAPLE.—LOYALTY AND VIRTUE CHAPTER (No. 251).—The quarterly communication of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Barnstaple, on Wednesday week. Chapter was opened by the Principals and Past Principals. Comp. Wiltshire as First Principal, assisted by an efficient staff of officers conducted the business of the chapter. Brothers Ficklin and Marks were exalted, and a proposition made for a joining member. This old chapter is now getting in a flourishing state; several brethren having of late joined it, it can now boast of a long list of members.

LIVERPOOL.—WILLIAM DE LA MORE PRECEPTORY (No. 49).—A meeting of this preceptory was held on the 18th ult., at the Court House, Prescott, near Liverpool. Amongst those present were Sir Knights J. Kellett Smith, E.P.; J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.P.; Captain Turner, P.E.P.; R. Young, 1st Captain Henry Nelson, Registrar; Joseph Wood, Treasurer; W. Tyrer, Almoner; W. J. Thomson, C. of G.; W. S. Matthews, P. H. Whittaker, &c. The visitors were Sir Knights Captain Berry, P.G.S.B. 1st G. Captain and P.E.P. Jacques de Molay Preceptory; H. Burrows, Alpass Preceptory. The preceptory was opened in solemn form, and with prayer by Em. Sir Knt. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, E.P. The muster roll was called over, and the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The Eminent Preceptor then proceeded to present Sir Knight Captain George Turner, P.E.P., with a very chaste and elegant silver cigar case, which had been subscribed for generally by the Sir Knights of the William de la More Preceptory in acknowledgment of his valuable and efficient services as G.M. Sir Knight Captain Berry eulogised in pointed and effective terms the peculiar aptitude of Sir Knight Turner for Masonic duties generally and Knight Templary in particular. Sir Knight H. Nelson, Registrar, then read a communication from the V.E. Prov. G. Prior, A. H. Roys, expressing his regret at not being able to attend the meeting; and expressing the pleasure it gave him to learn that the services of Sir Knight Turner were about to be recognised in a suitable manner, and complimenting the members of the preceptory generally on their presentation, of which he (the Prov. G. Prior) highly and heartily approved. The E.P. (Dr. Smith), then complimented Sir Knight Turner, and in an able and eloquent speech made the presentation. The article bore the following inscription:—"To Sir Knight Captain Turner, P.E.C., Prov. G.B.B., Lancashire, from the members of the William de la More Preceptory of Knights Templar, in recognition of past services, 1875." Sir Knight Turner, who appeared to be much affected by this token of approbation of his conduct, responded in feeling terms. The preceptory was then closed in solemn form, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the principal hotel, where a bounteous repast was served by Mrs. Lloyd in a most creditable and satisfactory manner.

GLASGOW.—PROVINCIAL GRAND ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER FOR LANARKSHIRE.—This chapter met in solemn conclave for the first time after a lapse of fifteen years, in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 31st ult. There was a large and distinctly representative body of Royal Arch Masons present, numbering in all somewhere about seventy. The chair was occupied by Comp. J. A. Barrow, Most Excellent Supt., 30°; and the duties of the Croupier-ship were discharged by Comps. Thos. Hallett, P.G. Treas. and A. McTaggart, P.G. Scribe E. Supporting the Chairman and Croupiers were Comps. Duckett, P.Z. 73; W. Smith, P.G. J., 30°; J. Balfour, P.G. 1st Soj.; John Fraser, P.G. Scribe N.; John Miller, Z. 50; Jas. Duthie, Z. 67; G. W. Wheeler, Z. 73; John Tweed, H. 73; Chalmers, No. 113; Paterson, 113; Grainger, 113; Wylie, 113; Schiff, 113; Ward, 113; Barr, 113; Julius Brodie, Z. 79; John Monro, Scribe E. 79; McDonald, P.Z. 73; John Stewart, J. 73; D. Gilchrist, P.Z. 73; A. Arrick Smith, 50; W. Phillips, Z. 87; D. Reid, 87; Robert Bell, M.E.C. St. Mungo Encampment; Comps. Mc Murdo, Z. 143; Laird, J. 143; Russell, N. 143; and Baker, E. 143. Amongst the general company we observed Comps. Robt. Fraser, 69; Sutherland, 117; Arch. W. Berry, 117; I. Miller, P. Prin. 117; Jas. Arnaud, Z. 144; Jno. Johnston, 122; Jas. Black, 119; &c. After supper, which was served up by Comp. S. Mc Phee, in the St. Andrew Restaurant, Hutcheson-st., in a chaste and elaborate style, the Chairman briefly addressed the companions. He said: "It is little more than three years since I received my commission as Prov. Grand Supt. for Lanarkshire from the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, and therefore nearly three years since we formed this P.G. Chapter. During that time we have endeavoured to aid and foster Royal Arch Masonry in our province; and the presence of so many office-bearers and companions here to-night, representing as they do nearly every chapter in Lanarkshire, shows the esteem in which they regard the Order. To the Craft Masons merely, the R.A. degree is one to be looked forward to, whilst by those who have obtained its privileges, these are valued for the more ex-altered knowledge of the principles of Freemasonry which they communicate. The Royal Arch is the highest order of Masonry, which can be called universal, and which may be adopted by men of all climes, and of every creed which acknowledges the Great Architect and Supreme Ruler of the Universe. The "higher orders," recognising and adopting the principles of the Christian faith, are not universal in the same sense. As R.A. Masons it is our duty and privilege to see that the principles of the Order are maintained and carried out to their full extent. These principles are, love to God, love to the brethren, charity towards all men, helping the distressed, and defending the cause of the orphan and widow. Let us endeavour to act up to these principles, so that at last we may receive in the Grand Chapter above the reward of "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." The P.G. Chapter having been duly opened, and immediately thereafter adjourned, the companions were called from labour to refreshment. The Chairman then proposed in succession the toasts of the "Queen and the Craft," the "Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal Family," the "Army, Navy, and Volunteers," and "The Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland." In reference to this last named, the chairman read an apology for absence which had been received from Comp Mackersy, expressing regret at his unavoidable absence, and a hope for the success of the meeting. In proposing the toast, the chairman referred to the full control exercised by the Supreme Chapter, and to past meetings of the R.A. Order under her superintendence; and expressed a hope that the present meeting would be a guarantee to the supreme body of the loyalty of the P.G. Chapter for Lanarkshire. In concluding, he (the chairman) was happy to say that the present state of R.A. Masonry in the province could bear favourable comparison with that during any other year in the past history. In proposing "The other Sup. Grand R.A. Chapters," Comp. W. Smith attributed to them much credit, especially to those of England, America, France, and Germany; remarking that they were far ahead of us in advocating and supporting every charitable institution that falls to be maintained by companions of the R.A. He hoped that in our own country, and more immediately in Glasgow, now that they had got a fresh start, they would put their shoulders to the wheel, and make renewed and increased endeavours to extend their charities. The toast of the "Prov. Grand R.A. Chapter for Lanarkshire" was then proposed by Comp. William Wylie. In the course of his remarks he referred to the importance of the toast, and to the principles of charity and benevolence touched upon by the previous speakers, and made graceful allusion to the late lamented Comp. Walker Arnott, whose name, he said, would go down to posterity, equally lauded for his position in literature and as a botanist, and for his indefatigable services to Freemasonry. He was glad to know that the present Superintendent was no unworthy successor to so eminent a companion. The M. E. Supt. shortly replied to the toast, remarking that he was not an orator but a worker. He had passed the best years of his life in the service of Craft Masonry, and could honestly say that while the latter was the school of their order, R.A. Masonry was its university. In conclusion he thanked the companions, especially the First Principals, for their cordial support in the past, and hoped by constant attention to his duties as P.G. Supt. to obtain their kindly aid in the future. The toast of "Daughter Chapters" was proposed by Comp. Jas. Balfour. He was certain, he said, that the toast would meet with hearty approval at their hands, because the success and prosperity of the Supreme and P.G. Chapters depended so greatly upon the healthy and good working condition of the daughter chapters under the jurisdiction. They all knew sufficient of R.A. Masonry to admire the grand principles upon which it was constituted, the order and regularity which pervaded it, and the good government necessitated at all times to carry out these principles. He hoped that their coming together that night would be the means of diffusing a more lively interest in R.A. Masonry, for there was no denying the fact that there had not hitherto been such an amount of this in the province as there might have been. He would suggest that the Principals should invite each other to their meetings, and the visitors lend a hand at the working of the degrees; and in case of there being no initiations or exaltations, they might form themselves into a Chapter of Instruction. Such reciprocity, he had no doubt, would tend greatly to increase the interest in R.A. Masonry. Several of the companions replied to the toast. After Comps. Jno. Miller and Jas. Duthie had briefly acknowledged it on behalf of their respective chapters, Comp. Wheeler made an elaborate reply, advocating unity in the Order, more general and systematic instruction in, and a higher appreciation of, its universal principles. From that night forward, he said, they should take a firmer and nobler step towards its advancement generally. Comp. J. Brodie, in his reply, referred to the fact that the P.G.R.A. Chapter for Lanarkshire had been, for some time, dead, but was now alive again, and likely to flourish in the future. Comp. Halkett made some appropriate remarks on the working of R.A. Masonry in England and elsewhere; and recommended periodical social meetings of the companions to be held at short intervals, to consider as to the best methods of advancing R.A. Masonry in this province, as well, generally, throughout the world. Comp. Annand replied for Lodge 124. He remarked that the want of success was not alone due to the office-bearers of the several chapters, but a good deal also to the members. He hoped that henceforth, at the end of every year, a grand demonstration would be held, that, in its issue, might tend to bind and consolidate the chapter, and the companions as well, in the social bond of unity. The P.G. Supt. next spoke in terms of commendation of the several replies which had been made by the First Principals. "The other Orders of Masonry" was then given by Comp. A. McTaggart, who observed that that was the first time that that toast had been put upon a Masonic programme; and in course of his remarks as to the origin and antiquity of Masonry, remarked that its principles culminated in the universal Order in the R.A. degree, and had its full exposition, as regards the three degrees, in the ritual of the Royal Order of Scotland. He also referred to the harmony of principle that existed in all the orders of Masonry; and spoke with effect as to their suitability to man's moral, social, and intellectual capacity and condition. The toast was coupled with the name of M. E. C. Robert Bell, of St. Mungo Encampment; who in his reply, expressed the pleasure it gave him to see and to know that so many of those present had taken the Knight Templar degree. He hoped that those who had not yet been advanced to the high Order would see it their duty to make early application. The remaining toasts were "Visiting Companions," by Comp. Phillips; "Benevolent Institutions," by Comp. Duthie; "The Press" by Comp. Halkett; and "The Ladies," by Comp. Jno. Fraser. The proceedings were agreeably relieved by songs, &c., most prominent among which were an original piece of poetry, entitled "The A B C of Masonry," recited by the author, Comp. Wheeler, and an impromptu song given by Comp. Robert Fraser, in which worthy and highly appreciative reference were made to the more notable companions present. A vote of thanks was passed to the proprietors of St. Mark's Hall for their kindness in giving the use of it for the meeting gratuitously; and with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," and the pledging of the "last toast," Happy to meet, &c., the pleasant gathering broke up.

RUTHERGLEN.—ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 116).—The 106th anniversary of this lodge was held in Bro. Don's Hall, Main-street, Rutherglen, on the 19th ult., and was celebrated by a supper, torchlight procession and assembly. There was a large attendance of brethren and gentlemen, with their wives and sweethearts. Bro. Wm. Ferguson, R.W.M., occupied the chair; there was also present, Bailies Edgar and Kinning, Councillor Laing, and several other worthy brethren and gentlemen. Bro. McGaveny acted as Croupier. The supper was served by the host and hostess, which was most amply and tastefully supplied. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, the Chairman said it gave him much pleasure to preside at this festival, supported by the municipal dignitaries of the Burgh of Rutherglen. He was glad to see that the brethren had availed themselves of the opportunity of bringing so many ladies to grace the annual festival. It was customary at such meetings as this for the Chairman to give an outline of the Order, and the benefits arising from it, with a history of the lodge, its progress and prospects. He did not intend to make a long speech, as he considered this unnecessary at a meeting of this description. They did not come, he expected, to hear long speeches, but to enjoy themselves otherwise. With reference to the lodge over which he had the honour to preside, although his presidency of the lodge had been comparatively short, only being elected to his present high position within the last few months, he had, however, been closely associated with the lodge for a period of ten years, during which time he had witnessed many changes, and many of his best known brethren had gone to their reward. Intimately connected with many of the brethren present as he was, he could speak with safety as to their Masonic knowledge, and zeal in everything tending to the good of the Order; and, in fact, without their assistance he could never fill the position he did at present hold, and he begged to thank them for their support and the high honour they had conferred upon him, and that nothing would be wanting on his part to further the interest of the lodge and the Order in general. He had already devoted a large amount of time to the cause of Freemasonry, and he would double his exertions and leave nothing unturned that he could do to further the cause of this noble Order. In our endeavours to work faithfully may we all be guided by a higher power, and may the Great Architect of the Universe, in His great love, teach us with the truths that the volume of the sacred law contains to make us good Freemasons, good citizens, and good members of the community. He would impress upon the younger members the necessity of attending the lodge meetings regularly, so that they might be well posted in Masonic matters. Bro. Councillor Lang then proposed the Army, Navy, and Volunteers, and in doing so said that our defences were never in such a prosperous condition as at the present time. The Army Reform would no doubt in the end work well, though in the meantime some little diffidence was felt in adopting those laws which had been made for their guidance. In our Navy we all recognize a power of which no country could boast of. What would we have been without it? May we long enjoy that safety and security, in the knowledge that we possess the first maritime fleet in the world. With regard to the Volunteers we all know they possess great strength and with the legislation and reform that was about to take place, and put them on another footing, they would be the backbone for the defence of our homes. Bailie Kinning then replied in a humorous and a few well chosen remarks. The following toasts were then given, that of the Royal Arch Lodge No. 116 from the chair coupled with the name of Bailie Edgar, the Council of the Burgh of Rutherglen by Bro. Wm. McGaveny, who referred to the spirit of the age now, to put good and intelligent men to represent them in council, and if their conduct did not meet with the approval of the electors they had only to choose others to fill their places. This toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Bailie Edgar, who referred to his services in the Burgh over thirty years as a criterion of his conduct as a magistrate. Their work was much more heavy now than in former years. He could remember when there was scarcely a case to be brought before the magistrates, but he regretted to say that now there were too many; this he attributed to the increasing population, and the influx of new industries necessitating a corresponding increase in the people. They (the magistrates) dealt gently with first offences, except cases committed upon the sabbath, which were stringently punished. After the toast of the Ladies, which was proposed by Bro. Lang, and replied to by Bro. J. Hamilton, several songs were most pleasingly rendered by several of the brethren and ladies. After the concert the brethren formed a torchlight procession and with their banners, clothing, and jewels, led by the Rutherglen Brass Band, really looked very striking. After going through the principal streets they returned to the Hall and commenced the assembly, dancing being kept up with great spirit until morning, everyone being well pleased with the 106th anniversary of Lodge 116.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION AND CROWN (No. 103).—The monthly meeting of this prosperous and well-attended lodge was held in the hall, 170, Buchanan Street, Glasgow, on Monday, the 26th ult. Bro. A. M. Wright, R.W.M., occupying the chair, supported by Bro. A. Bain, P.M.; Bro. J. Gilles, P.M.; R. Muir, D.M.; D. Murray, S.M.; W. Thomas, S.W.; R. Munro, J.W.; N. Cameron, Treas., &c., &c. Among the visitors we noticed, Bro. A. Thorburn, R.W.M. Lodge Glasgow, No. 4; M. E. Drummond, R.W.M. No. 5, Canongate and Leith, and a very large attendance of members and visitors. The R.W.M. opened the lodge, and the Secretary read the minutes of previous meetings, which were approved of. Mr. Robt. Fyfe, whose application for admission into Freemasonry had been well received, entered and received the E.A. degree, Bro. Wright, R.W.M., administering the ceremony in a most careful and impressive manner. After a little discussion of matters connected with the lodge, which was most amicably arranged, the lodge went from business to refreshment and harmony, and with toast and song spent the evening in a most pleasant manner.

POLLOKSHAWS.—ROYAL ARCH LODGE (No. 153).—The 92nd anniversary of this lodge was celebrated on the 19 inst. at the Maxwell Arms Inn, by a grand supper and ball, present Bros. John Peters, R.W.M., Chairman; Paton, S.W.; Black, J.W.; Rev. J. Rodgers Chaplain; Johnson, Sec.; Allen, Treas.; A. B. Thorburn, R.W.M. Glasgow, 4; J. Singleton, R.W.M. Scotia, 178; D. Lamb, D.M. 360; A. Mc. Gregor, R.W.M. 458; Scobie, R.W.M. 512; Wm. Jardine, Treas. 512; T. E. Schriden, Sec. 512; R. Mc. Ewan, J.W. 512; Julius Brodie, R.W.M. Marie Stuart, 541; T. Russell, D.M. 556; J. Rust, E.C.; and several others from the various lodges in the district. At 8 o'clock, the office-bearers entered the room, the band playing a march, all being seated and a blessing asked. Supper was done ample justice to, every description of good things being provided by the host, Bro. T. Galbraith. After supper, "Behold how good a thing it is," was sung by the company. The chairman being first on the programme, addressed the meeting as follows: "Ladies, Brethren, and Gentlemen, I find from the programme before me, that I am to give an address, but as the programme is somewhat lengthy, and so many of the fair sex present who will enjoy the latter part of the programme best, I will make my remarks as brief as possible. It gives me very great pleasure to occupy the position in which I am placed to-night, it being now ninety-two years since the charter was received from the Grand Lodge, authorizing this lodge to hold Masonic meetings, and since that time many hundreds have received, in this hall, the secrets of this, our ancient and most honourable Order, whose mysteries have, in all ages, been extolled by some as the true faith, by others as an offshoot of his Satanic Majesty; it has been praised by crowned heads, and banned by the priesthood, dreaded by others as a secret political engine, and admired by those in our fraternity for its complete indifference to all political matters. Freemasonry is still as complete a mystery to the uninitiated as it ever was. This brotherhood, which has outlived centuries of conflicts, of defeats and victories, and which has become so extended in its ramifications, must certainly contain, within itself, principles of paramount importance. I shall endeavour to point out some of these. When a candidate is once introduced into a Masonic Lodge, he is made to feel that, whatever distinctions there may be in the outer world, inside our doors all are equal and meet upon the common basis of brotherhood. (Cheers.) He is also required to declare his belief in the existence of a God, the centre of all good, the source of all knowledge, and the foundation of all light, and his first prayer is that he may be enabled to display the beauties of virtue to the praise and glory of that most holy name. His first lesson is one of charity and toleration, and our other lessons are such that no one who studies them can fail to become a truer and a better man. I do not claim for Masonry that it is a religion, but I say that Freemasonry is a pure, high-toned morality, to the practice of which every brother has voluntarily and solemnly pledged himself, and this cannot be set aside without condemnation and loss of character, both to the individual and to the Craft. Freemasonry in its teachings indicates the virtues which should rule and govern the actions of all its members, and these are based on such broad principles as enables gentlemen of all creeds, with the exception of atheists, to range under its banners. I feel that Freemasonry cannot maintain its ancient and honourable reputation, increase the number of its members, or promote the high and noble objects of its founders, unless its laws are strictly enforced and its principles exhibited in their practical appreciation. Freemasonry is practical as well as theoretical, and unless we look upon it as such and endeavour to carry out its requirements, we do ourselves and the institution an injustice. I am glad to find that in Scotland its practical application is likely soon to take a more tangible shape by our having an institution devoted solely to the taking care of aged and infirm Masons, their widows and orphans, although, during the year 1873, over £460 was disbursed by our Grand Lodge in Edinburgh, towards relieving our poor brethren; and this independent of what the various lodges have done themselves, and they number nearly 600 under the Scottish Constitution alone, and many have blessed our fraternity for their aid. In England there exist several Masonic institutions, such as that proposed for Scotland, and over £20,000 is annually subscribed for to support them. In America they abound, as indeed they do throughout the globe, so that a Freemason may travel throughout the whole world, and at all times feel that he is not far from one who will aid and assist him in a manner known to our fraternity. There is another feature that I would just mention, and that is the feeling of friendship, that is at once established between brother Freemasons, and that feeling is constantly kept prominently before us in all our meetings. No matter where or how you may come in contact with them, the same feeling is found, as I can testify from my own experience, in Italy, Azores, Bermuda, and America. I would just mention, that in forty States in America, during 1873, no less a number than 36,434 gentlemen were admitted members of our fraternity, and during the same period there were no less than 528,190 subscribing members belonging to the various lodges. In Scotland, I find that during the same period, no less than 3,683 were admitted to our fraternity, which must be very gratifying to all of you, showing that Freemasonry is flourishing in our midst, even to a greater extent than in America, were it is making such rapid strides. In conclusion it gives me very great pleasure in representing this ancient lodge, and seeing so many brethren and gentlemen, with their wives and sweethearts, present, to meet with us at this, our ninety-second anniversary, and I hope that all of us will enjoy this evening's amusement, and that it may be marked as a most successful gathering. Several loyal and patriotic toasts were given and responded to, which were followed by a well attended assembly, the ladies being in most elegant form, and the dancing was kept up with great spirit until morning. Too much credit cannot be given to Bro. Galbraith for the very excellent spread he provided on his own premises.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360), held their bi-monthly meeting in their hall, 30, Hope Street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 2nd inst., Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., presiding: J. M. Olliver, S.W.; T. Graham, S.D., acting as J.W.; A. Morton, I.P.M.; J. Brodie, S.M.; Bro. D. Lamb, D.M.: Visitors—Bro. A. Thorburn, R.W.M. Lodge Glasgow, No. 4; Bro. R. Munro, J.W. Lodge No. 4; Bro. Lindsay Gray, D.M. Lodge St. Mark, No. 102; and others. Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., opened the lodge, and the Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. Bro. D. Lamb, D.M., on behalf of the members of the lodge, presented Bro. A. Morton, late Secretary, with a gold pencil case, as token of their regard, and the very high estimation they held of Bro. Morton, both in and out of the lodge room, for he had always done his duty in a most courteous and faithful manner, and he hoped he would be long spared to be amongst them. Bro. Morton, in a few well chosen remarks, acknowledged the high compliment that had been paid to him, and said that any services he could at any time render to the lodge, it would give him great pleasure to do so. The lodge was then raised to the degree of Fellow Craft, when Bro. A. Martin and Bro. W. Harrison retired. The lodge being raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bros. Martin and Harrison re-entered, and received that degree, Bro. J. Brodie, S.M., and Bro. D. Lamb officiating. The lodge was then closed in due form.

THORNIEBANK.—THORNIEBANK LODGE (No. 512).—This lodge met in the School Room, Thorniebank, on Saturday, the 20th ult., present Bro. R. Scobie, R.W.M.; Bro. R. Fletcher, S.W.; Bro. R. McEwan, J.W.; Bro. W. Jardine, Treas.; Bro. T. E. Schuden, Sec., and several others. The lodge being opened by the R.W.M., the Secretary read the minutes of last meeting, which were approved of. Applications were read from the following gentlemen for admission into the Order, viz. John Ferguson; F. Gallagher; James Jardine; R. S. Slatt; A. Nicholson; and W. Buckley; there being no objection, the candidates received the E.A. degree, Bro. R. Scobie officiating in a very efficient manner. After several loyal and Masonic toasts had been given by the R.W.M., Bro. McEwan, J.W., proposed "The New Laid Stones," and said it augured well for the prosperity of the lodge when they found such worthy gentlemen as the present coming forward to join them. Bro. A. Nicholson said as a young Mason he thanked them for the honour they had conferred on him and his companions; he had thought a good deal about Masonry, and for many years had been opposed to it, but at last made up his mind to join it, and having done so he could only now express his regret that he had not done so before, for he really could now see some of the advantages of Freemasonry, and he would only be too happy to do all that might lie in his power to forward the interest of the Craft in general and the Thorniebank Lodge in particular. Bro. Buckley also replied. The R.W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. G. W. Wheeler, Lodge 73, Glasgow, the compliment being suitably acknowledged. After several songs, etc., from Bros. Gallagher, Clark, Hutton, and others, Bro. Wheeler proposed "Prosperity to the Thorniebank Lodge" coupled with the name of Bro. Scobie, R.W.M.; Bro. Scobie replied, and said while they continued to get good members, their prosperity was certain, and he should make it his study to bring about that result. The lodge was then closed in due form.

COATBRIDGE.—ST. ANDREW (No. 544).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in their Hall, Bank-street, on the 20th ult., Bro. A. Kennedy, R.W.M., presiding. Bro. Jas. Kennedy, S.W.; Bro. Mailer, acting J.W.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., and the three candidates who were proposed and ballotted for at the previous meeting received the E.A. degree, Bro. D. Reid, R.W.M. No. 465, officiating in a very impressive manner, Bro. Kennedy, R.W.M., giving a short lecture on the same degree. Bro. Bassett was raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bro. Kennedy, R.W.M. officiating. After other business connected with the lodge had been gone through, the lodge was closed in due form.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF THE MERCHANT TAYLORS' SCHOOL, BY HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES, M.W. GRAND MASTER.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, accompanied by her Royal Highness the Princess, by the Princess Mary and the Duke of Teck, and by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and a numerous assemblage, took the principal part in the ceremony of celebrating the installation of Merchant Taylors' School in the Charterhouse. Although Charterhouse School is removed to Godalming, the poor brethren remain in their old building to continue the long tradition of monkish life upon that spot. Parts of the old school have also been preserved—the gown-boys' buildings and the master's house—and form part of the edifice, the first stone of which was laid by the Duke of Edinburgh two years ago. There are now in the completed building, 19 class-rooms, two large school-rooms, a library, a lecture-theatre, and a magnificent assembly-room, in which the school will meet for prayers when the boys first arrive in the morning, and on grand days for speeches. It will easily hold the 400 or 500 boys whom the school now contains; and they are to assemble there on Saturday and Tuesday next. There are the old cloisters, some new cloisters, five courts, and a playground of considerable size for a city school. From the old Merchant Taylors' School some books have been brought up, together with the monitors' table and prompters' bench, on which from year to year the eight monitors and the eight boys who prompt them in their speeches have cut their names. There are also the masters' chairs of black oak. These relics take the place of the Charterhouse stones, similarly inscribed, which have gone to Godalming. Kitchens and dining-rooms in which the boys will be supplied at an extremely low tariff occupy a portion of the quadrangle. The principal building is a handsome red brick structure, designed by Mr. E. P. Anson, built by Messrs. Brown and Robinson, and ventilated throughout by Phipson's apparatus, which pours hot air in winter, cold air in summer into the class-room.

At half-past 8 yesterday morning there was a celebration of the Holy Communion, and at 11 service in the chapel of the pensioners of the Charterhouse. Here the Rev. Dr. Baker, the head master, read the service, and the Rev. Mr. Whittington, lecturer of St. Peter's, Cornhill, and the Rev. Mr. Airey, read the lessons. The Bishop of Ely (Dr. Woodford) preached a sermon from Ecclesiastes, "He that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow." He acknowledged the truth of the maxim spoken by the wisest of the children of the East, and followed it through the various branches of study—of science which only reveals remoter difficulties; of history, which shows man building up and finding that he laid his foundation on the sand; of the knowledge of humanity, which teaches the grown man to substitute wariness for the open trust of boys, and which, by revealing to him who was above all a Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief, the real thoughts of even the high spirits by whom He was surrounded, contributed probably a great part to His weight of sadness. But, he said, that nobility was revealed through suffering, and that it is not when the ship sits brightly upon a summer sea we recognize the skill of the constructor, but when she holds her own before the storm. Those who dwell upon this ground before the Reformation passed centuries of uneventful repose, but there came a time when, while serving God to the best of their knowledge, they had to choose between death and the denial of the faith which their hearts believed. A modern historian, who is without sympathy for the form of faith which these poor Carthusians professed, has described with admiration how they prepared for their end, not less deserving the memory of mankind than those 300 who combed their locks as they sat in the straight place of Thermopylae. So closes the last ante-Reformation scene in the history of the Charterhouse, with the sight of those hardened into greatness by persecution and the approach of death. Speaking next to the boys as their old school-fellow, he told them their lot was cast in days of much intellectual warfare, when old forms of thought were being sifted to the uttermost, and the very knowledge which they gained there might involve them in the struggle. By keeping their faith unshaken and their judgment clear they might attain in these quieter times a like nobility to those old Carthusians; and by following out the spirit in which their school was founded, "to the honour of Christ Jesus," they might become worthy servants of Him in Church and State.

Punctually at half-past one the Royal party arrived and proceeded to the lecture-theatre. They were received by the Master of the Company, Mr. J. Coysgarne Sim; the Head Master of the school, Dr. Baker; and the wardens. The 49th Middlesex (Post Office) Rifle Volunteers, under Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat Taylor, formed the guard of honour. Lord and Lady Suffield, Sir W. Knollys, and Colonel Ellis, Lady Caroline Cust and Captain St. John Mildmay were in attendance on their Royal Highnesses, who were received with enthusiastic applause, the Coldstream band, under Mr. F. Godfrey, playing "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The Prince was in ordinary morning dress, and the Princess wore a light polonaise, a dark hat, with light blue feather.

In the lecture-theatre, the Master (Mr. Sim), after a few words of gratitude for the fresh mark of the Royal favour to that institution which the Prince of Wales had given, called upon the clerk of the Company, Mr. F. Grantham Faithful, to read a statement in reference to the history and hopes of the school.

Mr. Grantham Faithful then read the following address, which was handed, on emblazoned vellum, to his Royal Highness:—

"May it please your Royal Highnesses, my Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—

"The London school of the Merchant Taylors' Company, known as Merchant Taylors' School, was founded more than three centuries ago—i.e., in the year 1561, with a view (as the statutes record) to the better education and bringing up of children in good manners and literature. It was established by the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Merchant Taylors' Company, at the suggestion of Sir Thomas White, the munificent founder of St John's College, Oxford, Mr. Richard lilles, and other prominent members of the guild, and was built in Lawrence Pountney-hill, partly by contributions from their private purses, partly out of the corporate funds of the Company. The school was designed for 250 boys. The building in which you are now assembled will hold twice that number. The old school on Lawrence Pountney-hill contained nothing within its precincts that could be dignified by the name of a playground, and this has always been considered by the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company a very great drawback. Here not only will the school buildings be large, airy, well-warmed, and well-ventilated, but there will be a good playground for the boys. Since the first stone of these buildings was laid in June, 1873, by his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, the school has been entirely re-organized, and whereas hitherto the education has been for the most part classical, a modern department has now been established, so that such boys as may desire to be instructed in modern languages, English literature, and natural science, will have an opportunity of studying those subjects under a competent staff of masters.

"The school has been much sought after in the past, partly in consequence of the excellence of the educational curriculum, which is fully up to the standard of our best public schools; partly on account of the valuable Scholarships and Exhibitions which it has in connection with the Universities, and especially with St. John's College, Oxford. Among the many distinguished men of bygone times who have received their education in it may be enumerated five translators of the Bible (among whom was Bishop Andrews), the pious and loyal Archbishop Juxon, Dr. Wren, Bishop of Ely; Dr. Mews, Bishop of Winchester; Lord Clive, the founder of our Indian Empire; and last, not least, Edmund Spenser, the poet, author of the "Faerie Queene," the fact of whose education at the school has only become known during the last year by the research of the Historical Manuscripts Commission among some papers in possession of the Townley family. Coming to the present time, it will, perhaps, be only necessary to mention, with the view of showing that the education given at Merchant Taylors' has not deteriorated, that of our present English Episcopate, the Bishop of Ely and the Suffragan Bishop of Nottingham were alumni of the school, and that of our Colonial Episcopate, the Bishop of Capetown and the Bishop designate of Ballarat received their education within its walls.

"Sorry, Sir, as we are to bid farewell to a building so full of interesting associations as the old school at Lawrence Pountney-hill, we may yet fairly predict for the new school, to be opened under your Royal Highness's auspices, a future, with God's blessing, no less distinguished than has been its past, and we contemplate with satisfaction the probability of a still larger measure of success attending the efforts of the Merchant Taylors' Company to further the cause of mental culture through the widening of the range of subjects to be taught here, and the twofold increase in the number of those for whom additional educational advantages will be provided.

On the conclusion of the reading the Prince of Wales said, addressing the Master, the Merchant Taylors, their Royal and Serene Highnesses, My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—I beg to return you my warmest thanks for the address you have presented to me, and for the excellent and admirable report it contains on the state of this ancient school. It only remains for me to assure you of the great interest which the Princess and myself take in the proceedings of to-day. I beg now to declare the Merchant Taylor's School open. (Loud cheers.)

An ode in Latin Alcaics was then declaimed with effect by Shearman, the head monitor of the school, "in order," said the Master of the Company, "that the first words spoken in the school, after your Royal Highness declared it open, should be from the monitor." Addressing the Prince of Wales as

"Amantis spes patriæ et decus,

"Quem semper artes ingenuas sequi

"Insuevit exemplum parentum," the ode went on—

"Tuque—O quibus te laudibus efferam?

"Incède! Præsens Gratia habere:

"Incède, Alexandra, festi

"Pars merito melior dici!

"Mutantur ædes, non animus: manet

"Immota prisca religio Domus:

"Æternus o Rector secundus

"Continet sine fine cursus!"

When the lines in which the Princess was addressed as "rightly the better half of the festival" were reached, the ode was interrupted by applause, which was also very loud at the end. The Master of the Company then handed to the Princess a gold medal, the obverse of which bore the likeness of their Highnesses, and the reverse the arms of the Company supported by its dromedaries. It bore the inscription—"Merc. Sciss. Schola re-aedificata, et ausp. Alberto Eduardo Galliarum Princ. et Alexandr. conj. ejus instaur." and the date April 6, 1875. A similar medal in silver was handed to the Prince of Wales, and by him presented to the head monitor.

The Archbishop of Canterbury then offered up the following prayer:—

"Almighty and everlasting God, by whose sway the whole body of the Church is governed and sanctified, receive our supplications and prayers, which we offer before Thee for all estates of men in Thy holy Church, that every member of the same in his ministry may truly and godlily serve Thee, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen. Almighty God, Who, through Thy own begotten Son Jesus Christ encountered death, and opened to us the gate of everlasting life, we humbly beseech Thee that as by Thy special grace preventing us Thou dost put into us good desires, so by Thy continual help we may bring the same to good effect, through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen."

The Lord's Prayer and the Benediction followed, and the Royal party left the lecture theatre. Luncheon was served in the assembly hall, and also in two other rooms and a marquee, to the Livery and the friends of pupils. The string band of the Royal Engineers, under Mr. Sauwerthal, played in the assembly hall. Grace having been said by the Archbishop of Canterbury,

The Master of the Company called upon those present to drink with the Guild of Merchant Taylors their time-honoured pledge of faith and loyalty "to Church and Queen."

The band played the National Anthem, and Mr. Sim next said it would not become him at that time and in that presence, to use words of praise in asking for a second expression of their loyalty to the Royal Family. Edward I., he continued, sire of Edward of Carnarvon, the first Prince of Wales, granted the Merchant Taylors the privileges of trading. Another Edward, his successor, had come among them that day, after 500 years of prosperity to the industry of that guild by devotion to their motto, "Concordia parvæ res crescunt." When Edward the Black Prince, the next Prince of Wales, came from France with the trophies of Poitiers and Cressy, he bore the plumes of Bohemia, with the legend, "Ich dien." Then came another Edward, their Royal guest that day, who hurried from the plains of France to fulfil the duties of a citizen and be faithful to the motto "I serve." He might be pardoned if he referred to the Prince who was among them too short a time, but long enough to leave his mark in the history of this country. He was a citizen of London and a Merchant Taylor, and now they humbly sought to acknowledge the visit of his son, a citizen and an honorary member of their company who worthily represented the Saxon Albert, the English Edward. In the year 1607 Ben Jonson wrote and Dr. John Bull composed the music of "God Save the Queen." It was first sung for the Merchant Taylors when King James I., and the Prince of Wales dined in their hall. The Queen of that monarch was Anne of Denmark. History repeats itself, "for you, Sire," continued the Master, "have entwined the flower of Denmark in the wreath of England." (Loud applause.) Long might it flourish, he said, in the affections of the English people, and he called upon them to drink "The Health of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Mary, the Duke of Cambridge, the Crown Prince of Prussia, his Serene Highness the Duke of Teck, and the other illustrious members of the Royal family."

Amid loud cheers the Royal party rose and bowed. It had been raining during part of the day, but the sun was now shining through the great window, decorated with flowers, over the high table, and the Prince of Wales said,—"For the excessively kind and flattering manner in which this toast has been proposed from the chair, and received by you all, I beg to return my warmest and most sincere thanks. I need hardly assure the Master and all those assembled here to-day what pleasure it has given to the Princess and myself to be present on this occasion. The numerous guilds of the City of London are well known for their hospitality, and especially distinguished is the Merchant Taylors' Company. At the same time, although they kindly and cordially receive their guests, they do all they can to make themselves useful in this great city. I will not recapitulate what we have heard in another room, and also from the lips of the Master, of the prosperity of this school. I hope it will continue to flourish; and that the sun which is now shining will bring prosperity to a school which has so long flourished and which is now moved to other buildings. I must say we cannot but congratulate the Master and the Guild on the beautiful building in which we are assembled at the present moment. In conclusion let me propose a toast I am sure you will all drink with enthusiasm—"Success to the Merchant Taylors' School." It affords me great pleasure to couple with it the name of the head Master, the Rev. Dr. Baker. (Continued applause.)

The Rev. Dr. Baker, in responding to the toast which had been proposed in such gracious and, he ventured to say, in such felicitous terms by his Royal Highness, said that his Highness had inaugurated a new era in the history of their school. They now enjoyed advantages such as they had never enjoyed before, while they retained the ennobling recollections of their past history. The present was the latest stage of that continued munificence and zeal for education which from the first had inspired the founders and supporters of this school, by which at the present time the children of parents residing in and about the metropolis could have an education which combined the home influences and parental authority with the generous spirit and healthy emulation of a public school. For himself he reaped rather than sowed from the work of his predecessor, but he knew that nothing could be witnessed with greater satisfaction by Dr. Hessey (cheers) than the proceedings of that day. He thanked his Royal Highness, on behalf of himself, the masters, and scholars of the Merchant Taylors' School.

The Master then proposed, "The Honorary Members of the Company," associating the toast with one who so fully performed his duties of a citizen, his duties to the Queen, to the younger Princes of the blood Royal, and to the people, as the Duke of Cambridge.

The Duke of Cambridge, in lying, said,—I feel extremely favoured that my name should have been coupled in such extremely complimentary terms by the master with the toast of the honorary members of this ancient union, and I have often had the honour of expressing my gratification at being a member of so ancient, useful, and important a body. If ever there was an occasion when the honorary members wished to support the chair, certainly it would be on this occasion, on which the guild show, not only, as his Royal Highness has said, that they receive their guests with the princely hospitality for which they are known to the world, but their usefulness and their value in developing such institutions as this. This school, which they have fostered for so many generations, has now entered on a new course of usefulness in these magnificent and these great and handsome buildings, and under no circumstances could such an inauguration have been made more acceptable to the society, more valuable in every public point of view, than by being graced with the presence of their Royal Highnesses. His Royal Highness had determined specially to be present on this occasion. When I heard the other day it was expected he would not be back I took the liberty of dissenting, for I was aware that he was so impressed with the importance of his public duties that nothing would have dissuaded him. (Cheers.) I feel sure that under such auspices this great institution will continue to flourish as it has hitherto done, and if it does not, that it will not be for the want of that support in the highest quarter which has so long been afforded to enable this country to maintain that bright and dignified position which it has attained, and which we should always desire it to retain. (Applause.)

The Archbishop of Canterbury proposed the health of "The Master of the Merchant Taylor's Company," and the Prince of Wales led the cheers with which the toast was received.

The Master, in responding, took the toast as one which referred to the whole of the company, and proposed in turn "The Visitors," many of whom were distinguished old scholars of the school. He called upon the Bishop of Ely to respond. The toast having been acknowledged with the expression of a hope that if centuries hence the school required further enlargement the same princely company would be found to enlarge its borders and one of our Royal House would still be found at whose regal touch the building they had constructed might quicken into active life.

The Prince of Wales said,—Ladies and gentlemen, before we separate I am anxious to make one request to the Master, which I feel sure that on the present occasion he will not be so unkind as to refuse, and that is, on the part of the Princess and myself, to beg that an extra week's holiday shall be given to the boy's school.

There were no signs of backwardness, to obey this command, and the assembly broke up. The Royal party walked round the playground, and then drove off amid the cheers of the boys and through other crowds in the neighbouring streets.

In commemoration of this event a medal has been struck by order of the Merchant Taylors' Company, containing, on the obverse, finely executed profiles of their Royal Highnesses, and on the reverse, the arms of the Merchant Taylors' Company, a description of which is herewith appended. The first patent of the arms was granted by Sir Thomas Holme, Knight, Clarencieux King of Arms, in 1480 (21st year of the reign of Edward IV.). The same Arms and Crest were confirmed by Thomas Wriothesley, Knight, in the 22nd year of the reign of Henry VIII. They were then somewhat altered, with a new crest and supporters, granted by Robert Cook, Clarencieux, in 1586 (the 20th year of Elizabeth's reign), the Armorial Ensigns are: Argent, a Tent Royal, between two Parliament Robes, Gules, lined ermine on a Chief azure; a Lion of England; crest a Holy Lamb in Glory proper, supporters two camels, or; motto "Concordia Parvæ Res Crescunt."

The medals are of gold, silver, and bronze, by George Kenning, Medallist, of Little Britain.

Obituary.

BRO. W. A. MUSGRAVE, P. M. 304.

On Easter Monday an accident, resulting fatally, occurred to Brother W. A. Musgrave, P.M.; Philanthropic Lodge, Leeds, 304, which cast a gloom over the brethren of that lodge, and over the brethren of other lodges in Leeds. Bro. Musgrave, who was an innkeeper of high repute amongst that class of tradesmen and the public generally, had been to witness the steeplechases at the neighbouring town of Wetherby, on Easter Monday, and had returned to within a ten minute's ride of his own house when a waggonette came into collision broadside with his horse. To save himself Bro. Musgrave raised one foot out of the stirrup, but his horse bolted, he fell, and, with one foot fast in the other stirrup, was dragged some distance along the kerbstone of the pavement, sustaining such a severe fracture of the skull that he died at eleven o'clock the same evening—four hours after the accident,—never regaining consciousness. At the regular lodge meeting of the deceased on Wednesday 29th ult., much regret at his loss, and deep sympathy with his bereaved widow was expressed by all the brethren. In speaking to a resolution of condolence with Mrs. Musgrave, Bro. Mason, P. M., eulogised the many excellent traits in Bro. Musgrave's character. He was a brother whose geniality of disposition, evenness of temper, willingness to perform any duty, affability with all men, had endeared him to every brother in the lodge. Nor were these virtues restricted to his brethren in Freemasonry. As a publican he bore an irreproachable character. His kind and frank manner as a man of business was the admiration of all who had dealings with him. About 80 brethren assembled on Friday to follow his remains to their last resting place, including the W.M., officers, and about 30 brethren of Bro. Musgrave's own lodge; the remaining brethren representing the whole of the other six Leeds lodges. The funeral was also attended by many publicans, and representatives of the local yeomanry Cavalry, in which body deceased held the rank of sergeant.

Masonic Tidings.

Our worthy Brother Alderman Mark Pearson, Mayor of Pontefract, was presented on Thursday, April 1st, 1875, with a silver tea service, bearing the following inscription. "Presented to Mark Pearson, Esq., J.P., Mayor and Alderman of Pontefract, by the inhabitants generally and a few other friends, as an expression of their high appreciation of his great moral worth, and more particularly of the unwearied assiduity and distinguished ability with which he has discharged the important duties of the Mayoralty of his native town from his first election to that office on the 9th November, 1873, to the present date, Pontefract Town Hall, 1st April, 1875."

The foundation stone of the new church of St. Paul's, Heaton Moor, near Stockport, was laid on Saturday by Bro. W. Romaine Callender, M.P. The church will seat 400, and will cost £5,500. The stone was laid by Bro. Callender, with full Masonic honours. Mr. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., and Mr. Hugh Birley, M.P., were also present. A luncheon was held in the school-room in the evening.

The annual festival of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction will be held at the White Swan Tavern, High Street, Deptford, on Monday, the 19th April. Bro. James Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will preside. Lodge will be opened at 7 p.m. banquet at 7.30.

The William Preston Lodge and the Lion and Lamb Lodge have united to give a grand banquet on Wednesday, April 28th, at the City Terminus Hotel, in honour of the Installation of H.R.H., The Prince of Wales.

Bro. Thos. Henry Wiles has entered into partnership with Messrs Keeling, Beville & Co.

We understand that the applications have been so very numerous for admission to the Dublin Masonic Hall, to be held in honour of the Duke of Abercorn, M.W. Grand Master of Ireland, that only one Master Mason from each lodge can be admitted.

The Graphic of Saturday last, the 3rd inst., contains a page illustration of the banquet at the Great City Lodge, on the occasion of the State Visit of the Lord Mayor.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Prince Leopold Lodge of Instruction (No. 1445) held at the Lord Stanley Tavern, Sandringham-road, Dalston, on Monday evening, April 12th, at 7 o'clock. Bro. T. Howe, P.M., will preside.

Mrs. Tweddell, the wife of Bro. G. M. Tweddell, has published a very interesting and clever little work, called "Rhymes and Sketches in the Cleveland Dialect," which we commend to the notice of all our brethren. The trifling price, 1s. 6d., places it within the reach of all. We recommend an early application to our publisher, Bro. Geo. Kenning, 108, Fleet-street, or to Tweddell and Co., Publishers, Stokesley, Yorkshire. We give a review of it in another column.

Bro. Dr. Canney, of Durham, died suddenly on Thursday, the 1st inst. He retired in his usual health at twelve o'clock, and his wife found him dead in bed at five a.m. Deceased enjoyed an extensive practice as a physician in the North, and had been medical adviser to three Bishops of Durham, besides the aristocracy of the district. He was Past Master of the Wear Valley Lodge, No. 1121, and Past Provincial Grand Junior Warden of the Province of Durham.

Prince Leopold, Her Majesty's youngest son, on Wednesday last, completed his 32nd year, having been born on the 27th April, 1853. The event was celebrated at Windsor with the customary honours. The bells of St. George's Chapel and the parish church rung out merry peals, and salutes were fired from the Long Walk, the Royal Adelaide frigate, and Fort Belvedere, Virginia Water.

The annual meeting of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum was held on the 31st ult. Bro W. Worrell, the Secretary, presented the report. The income of the past year amounted to £6352 2s. 8d. the number of children admitted last year was 38, the cost of food, clothing, lodging, education, and training the children in this institution being £18 16s. 9d. per head. By the kindness of the Duke of Edinburgh, who is president of the institution, the next concert of the Royal Albert Hall Amateur Orchestral Society, to be given on 24th inst, will be on behalf of the institution.

Bro. Sidney Spencer has been re-elected president of the Hotel Keeper's Association for the ensuing year.

Bros. Dr. Hogg, Josland and George Kenning have been chosen Overseers for St. Botolph Aldersgate for the ensuing year.

THE LIVER, THE STOMACH, AND THEIR AFFECTIONS.—Alteration of temperature, muggy weather, a troubled mind, sedentary habits, excesses at the table, and a gay, reckless mode of life, exert the most deleterious influence over the liver and stomach. When once these organs are fairly out of order, great inroads are quickly made on the general state of the health, the constitution, which loses the aid of two of its noblest organs, soon gives way, and diseases quickly follow, from which, if neglected, the worst consequences will inevitably result. If a course of Holloway's celebrated Pills be preserved in, all will be well again, as they are the finest and noblest correctives of the blood ever known, and effect certain cures of all disorders of the liver and stomach.—Adv.

DEATH.

BANKS.—On the 1st instant, deeply lamented, at the residence of his father, Overcliffe, Gravesend, in his 20th year, Percy, youngest son of Bro. Benjamin Banks, senr., (of the Polish National Lodge, and formerly co-lessee and manager of the Freemasons' Tavern.) He was educated in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and received the Canonbury Gold Medal on quitting the school.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1875.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

Thus far the arrangements for the Installation seem to be perfectly clear and satisfactory. The statement in the Times of Thursday, and quoted in our columns last week, about the counter-signature of the certificates by the Lodge Secretaries being requisite, has been at once repudiated and rectified on proper authority. Indeed, it was in itself so evidently incorrect, as hardly to merit correction, and must have proceeded from a non-Mason, as no Freemason could have made such a blunder. So great has been the demand for tickets of admission from those who are "de jure" entitled to be accommodated, that only one Master Mason's ticket can be allotted to each of the lodges. This will be evident when we say, that the application for seats are, in round numbers, 6000 qualified members of Grand Lodge, and 10,000 Master Masons. We understand that the one ticket allotted to each lodge for Master Masons may probably be offered to the oldest subscribing member of each lodge, a very Masonic arrangement. We also understand that it will be endeavoured to seat the London Lodges and the Provincial Brethren in groups, a very convenient and comfortable proceeding for our "country," brethren and "cousins." The limitation of Master Masons' tickets will, no doubt, be a very great disappointment to countless loyal and worthy brethren, but they must remember that as all present and past Grand Officers, all W. Masters and Past Masters, and all acting Wardens have a right to be first considered, the present posture of affairs is utterly unavoidable. We are sure of this, that if success will depend on the zealous labours of the directing officers, we need anticipate nothing but a most satisfactory result. The most earnest and painstaking efforts have been made, and still are making, day by day, to give contentment as far as possible to all applicants, and to render every arrangement as simple, as sensible, and as practicable as well may be.

We are authorised to say that the arrangements are proceeding as rapidly as the immense amount of work will permit. The work has been much increased by inattention to the directions in the forms of return. A great many lists, especially from the provinces, have to be returned for correction, whilst others, in many cases, have required the shifting of the names from one division of the list to the other. All additions to the list of qualified members received up to Monday night have been attended to. Those which may be received after that day must be put aside until after the tickets are all prepared, according to the lists as they stand. The ballot for places began on Monday in the presence of the President and Vice-President of the Board of G.P., the Grand Secretary, and others, and was completed yesterday. The ballot was so contrived, that all the members of each province may be together, and must enter at the same door. There will be twelve entrances, distinguished by numbers and colours—of these, three on the West side have been drawn by the London lodges, and the corresponding entrances on the East side, leading to similar places on that side of the hall, together with four other entrances, have fallen to the provinces. The remaining two, leading to the Picture Gallery will be used for the admission of the M.M.'s who may be fortunate enough to receive tickets. The tickets, bearing the colour of the different entrances, are all printed; the writing in of so large a number of names will be a work of some days, but they may be expected to be forwarded to the lodges next week. The Grand Officers' tickets of admission will be posted this week.

Our contemporary the Standard has the following note on the subject:—

All the returns from the various lodges in England having now been received they have been examined, and the names therein counted. It appears from these returns that the members of the Masonic fraternity who desire to be present in the Royal Albert Hall on the 28th inst. approach in number 20,000. As the hall will not accommodate with seats anything like half that number, the privilege of admission, which it was desired and resolved to extend to those who, being only Master Masons, are not members of Grand Lodge, has been of necessity so restricted as to give but one such admission to each of the 1000 lodges in England. No doubt much disappointment will be felt and expressed at this result; indeed, it has already begun to manifest itself, and the correspondence on the subject which daily pours in at the Grand Secretary's office is overwhelming. Those who have charge of the arrangements are anxious that it should be as widely known as possible that no alteration in the above restriction is at all admissible, and that in case of delay in replying to letters on the subject of the installation, should any occur, it must not be imputed to want of courtesy, or an absence of desire to consult the wishes and convenience of all, so far as is practicable, but to the extraordinary pressure, now daily increasing.

OUR CANADIAN BRETHREN.

Our able contemporary, the Craftsman, has taken us, in a very friendly and fraternal manner, a little to task because we have latterly said a good deal about the American Freemasonry and Freemasons, and nothing about our good brethren in Canada. On reflection we think that our contemporary will admit, that his complaint, if it be a complaint, has no valid foundation, either in reality or in equity. We were writing simply "ad hoc." The remark had been made, as remarks are often made by the ill-informed, about American Freemasonry and Freemasons, which we thought equally unwise and unjustifiable, betraying, moreover, an entire ignorance of the "status" of Freemasonry in the United States. In our duty to the Order, therefore, as critical censors of what is going on in our little Masonic world, we thought it well to enter our "caveat" against such ill-digested and hasty utterances, by whomsoever made. But when we said what we ventured to say in praise of the American Freemasons, praise which we make bold to add is their just due, we did not forget, much less did we undervalue, the Canadian Freemasons. On the contrary, we shall always be ready to admit, and hasten to acknowledge the worth, the zeal, and the true Masonic spirit of the numerous brotherhood in the Canadian Confederation. We belong to an old-fashioned school both of citizens and thinkers, and we are among the last to undervalue either the admirable qualities or the patriotic loyalty of our Canadian fellow-countrymen. We hope, therefore, that our contemporary will dismiss at once any such mistaken notion, and will believe our assurances and accept our fraternal good wishes. We shall always be happy to insert any account of Canadian Freemasonry, whether statistical or charitable, and we shall ever watch, with the utmost feelings of fraternal attachment and goodwill, the onward progress of our excellent Order amongst the intelligent population of Canada.

OUR NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICER BRETHREN.

We congratulate the central authorities on the just compliment paid to our non-commissioned officer brethren, under the direct sanction of H.R.H. the Grand Master. It is very satisfactory to observe and to realise, that the highest authority we have, recognizes alike the justice of their claims, and confirms the truth of what we have always said on the subject. It was quite clear to us, in the old Plymouth controversy, which we do not however, wish to revive, that some remarkable Masonic red-tape had been largely indulged in on that occasion by some one or other. There was not a shadow of justification for the exclusion of the non-commissioned officer brethren then, and we are glad to see that such an un-Masonic regulation is not to be perpetuated now. It will be a great satisfaction to our many worthy non-commissioned officer brethren to read and to hear, that the supreme Masonic authority fully concedes their claims, and openly recognizes their Masonic membership. We think that this wise and befitting regulation is another proof, if any proof be needed, how anxiously those who have the preparatory arrangements to make, are labouring to give satisfaction to all, and to render this great gathering a thoroughly successful and ever to be remembered Masonic anniversary.

MR. CHARLES BRADLAUGH.

The more we think of "l'affaire Bradlaugh," to use a French idiom, the more we feel how very bad a case it is. Here we are, a great Order, priding ourselves on our strictness, our regularity, and our carefully-tyled lodges, the due observance of the "Book of Constitutions," &c. &c., and yet, we find, all of a sudden, that all these things are "words, Sir, only words." As a rule, no one can be admitted a joining member of a lodge who does not bring his Grand Lodge Certificate with him, and is able to refer the authorities of the lodge he seeks to be affiliated with, to the authorities of the lodge from which he has demitted, or of which he is still a subscribing member. Now, we would venture to ask the brethren of the High Cross Lodge, for a grave responsibility rests upon them, as towards the Craft at large, what certificate did Mr. Bradlaugh bring with him when he was admitted a joining member of that lodge under our English Constitution? On what grounds did the High Cross Lodge obtain for Mr. Bradlaugh a certificate from the Grand Secretary's Office? For if we understand Mr. Bradlaugh's account correctly, he never was a member of a lawful lodge at all! His original initiation is clearly irregular, bad, and invalid, having taken place in a spurious order, and an unrecognised secret society. If "La Perseverante Amitié" be even under the Rite Ecossaise, in which French Lodge Mr. Bradlaugh tells us that he was "received," it does not, we apprehend, do away with his ineligibility to be received into an English lodge, except entirely "de novo," according to the "Book of Constitutions." But if "La Perseverante Amitié" be not a regular French Lodge, the case is rendered doubly irregular, and is, under all aspects, most deplorable. We however await some little explanation from the members of the High Cross Lodge, before saying anything further, though we have thought it best, for the honour of our loyal Order, to call attention at once to the known facts of the case.

THE SPRING OF THE YEAR.

The month is opening with "balmy breath" and genial sunshine, and "March winds and April showers" are at "a discount" in the "weather market." Our English Spring, when pleasant, is ever most reviving, and the country seems putting on that "robe of verdure," which always is such a relief to us poor Londoners, whose eyesight is sorely tried with the glare and deadness of our metropolitan streets and smoke-stained walls. But the "Clerk of the Weather," like a good many other high potentates, is often a little capricious, not to say, slightly variable in his "programme" of performances. To-day we are sweltering under a warm sun, and sighing for cooling drinks of wondrous names and composition; to-morrow the chill of the east winds is searching us through and through, making our old bones ache, bringing out gouty rheumatic pains everywhere, or we sit stewing at home, in all the "demon blues" of a good genuine English indigenous "Catarrh." Still we will hope for the best, and just as now everywhere in this old fair land of ours, "inque novos audent se gramina campis," so we will fondly allow "spes credula" to whisper to us of sunny weather and a pleasant year. The great metropolis seems to be preparing to hail a prosperous season, and we wish equally well to festive youth, and to expectant shopkeepers. One great event in our Masonic world will long make the season of 1875 famous in the annals of the Craft. We allude to the installation of our Royal Grand Master, which an universally loyal Order is regarding to-day with every sentiment of joyous anticipation, nay, of heartfelt congratulation! For, in addition to the many popular qualities of the heir to the throne, his high rank, and our loyal sentiments of unchanged Masonic devotion, we all feel that we have arrived at a "crisis," so to say, in the history of Freemasonry in general, and of English Freemasonry in particular. Never, at any time, in our history, have the attacks on our peaceful and innocuous Order been so many and so unwarrantable. We are denounced by conflicting creeds, and in distant countries, by an "odium theologicum," utterly unaccountable and unreasonable. That all of a sudden the Church of Rome should revive her persecuting animosities against our tolerant brotherhood, that she should furbish anew her rusty weapons of interdict and anathema, may be a question of surprise perhaps, but is not entirely inexplicable. But that so-called Protestant bodies should meet on a common ground, rather an uncommon ground, of hopeless intolerance, is indeed a matter for astonishment and regret. And hence a question may fairly arise how are we to meet this new "Armada"? Two views may fairly be held on the subject, as two views undoubtedly exist amongst thoughtful and zealous Freemasons. There are those who wish and seek to meet all such attacks, especially the Roman Catholic attack, as the French say "coup pour coup." They would answer incrimination by incrimination, and expletive by expletive. There are those however, and we profess to be numbered amongst them, who prefer to meet all such assaults, and all such assailants, be they what and who they may, with the calmness of dignified indifference. That we should state our views calmly and temperately, that we should from time to time, "more majorem," vindicate with the language of "truth and soberness" our benevolent and time-honoured fraternity, is alike to be expected and to be commended. Abroad, as a general rule, the attacks mostly proceed from one irreconcilable adversary, the Romish Church; at home, and in America we have a most heterogeneous alliance of Ritualists, Baptists and Presbyterians to contend with as well. Hence our line of defence cannot be always the same, and what may suit Germany or Italy may not suit us. In England the Roman Catholic authorities have not yet ventured, we believe, except in one obscure journal, to impute to us a shadow of political purpose, but they accuse us of being a secret society, irreligious, and opposed to the Roman Catholic Church, because condemned by successive Popes. Abroad the warfare between the "Freemasons" and the "Ultramontanes" has assumed very serious proportions, so much so, that "Emil Rittershaus," a writer of some note in Germany, has recently assailed the Pope in words of intense energy, and pointed acerbity. But we do not think, that we in England need fight our battle with such arms; we surely can afford to stand on our own dignity, and our tried character before our fellow countrymen. We are a loyal, a peaceable, a benevolent brotherhood, and here in 1875, when our quondam Grand Master has left us, the Prince of Wales comes forward, like his Royal ancestor, as our Grand Master, and his two brothers, the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, are members of our inculcated fraternity. So let us take heart and go on our way contented and exultant. What matter to us the vapid allocutions of irascible prelates, or the childish outpourings of sectarian vials? what hurt do the criticisms of self-made critics or the bombast of ignorant assailants do us, when we have at our head our Royal Grand Master, and the approval and sympathy of all good citizens and honest men? Let the Pope excommunicate us, let Ritualists, and Baptists, and Presbyterians denounce us; we care nothing for them at all, but like "John Brown," we are marching "onwards" full of good will and sympathy to our universal brotherhood, and ever actuated by kindly consideration for all "children of the dust."

INSTALLATION OF THE M.W. GRAND MASTER. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Several suggestions have been made in the Freemason with respect to the Installation—possibly our V.W. Brother Hervey, or our W. Brother Fenn have not found time to read those articles—but I venture to make a suggestion myself, and hope it will "meet the eye." We are led to believe that there will be only one ticket for M.M.'s. for each lodge, if so, there must be nearly 10,000 entitled to attend by virtue of office—now amongst those 10,000 who propose to attend, at least 500 will be absent from illness or other pressing emergency, and their seats must be blank, unless otherwise arranged for, as the tickets are not transferable. My suggestion is that an additional ticket to each lodge, to the extent of say 300, should be issued to 300 of the home lodges, to be allotted by each lodge by ballot, amongst the M.M. members, the same as the first ticket will be; it being understood that the brother who is the lucky holder, is only to be admitted to the outer circle half-an-hour before the Grand Lodge opens, and to the inner circle, a quarter of an hour before Grand Lodge opens, and from there they will be passed into the hall to fill up the blanks as far as can be done. Of course, I can see the look of horror to this addition to the labours of all concerned in the successful issue of the grand event, but when they consider the immense regret of the poor M.M.'s, when they are told that, on the average, only one in say 25 can go, they may pity them, and perhaps help them to the extent suggested.

MAGNUS OHREN, P.M. 33 and 452.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Can you explain the following portion of the regulations as to dress: "Provincial Grand Officers must wear the collars and jewels of the lodges and offices respectively, in right of which they attend as members of Grand Lodge," as no Prov. G. Offices give the right to sit in G.L., does this mean that Masters, P.M.'s, and Wardens who are Prov. G. Officers must wear in addition to, or instead of the purple collar, the collars of their offices in the Blue Lodge? In short, how must members of G.L. who are also Prov. G. Officers appear.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

W.M. 36, and Prov. G. Reg.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent N.R., W.M. remarks "Could not some opportunity be given to ladies to view the hall after the ceremony, just a quiet march past the throne."

There are plenty of duly qualified M.M.'s who, like myself, earnestly desired to be present, but are shut out, (with the exception of one to each lodge), by the apparent wholesale and indiscriminate manner in which returns have been in many cases sent to Grand Lodge. Whether all those recipients of tickets whose names were so returned, will be present, or not, is open to much doubt, and I am afraid will cause, notwithstanding the admirable efforts of the Grand Stewards, many much coveted seats to be unoccupied by their proper occupants.

Might I suggest, that the M.M.'s left out in the cold, might have the mercy extended to them after the ceremony of even just a "quiet march past the throne," for it certainly seems an anomaly that notwithstanding the vast capacity of the Albert Hall, only one M.M. to each lodge under the constitution of the Grand Lodge of England, can be found room for.

I am dear Sir, yours fraternally,

ONE M.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

It is not well, I think, as a general rule, to interfere with those to whom any special duty has been entrusted, and, seeing what an arduous undertaking is before those who are to conduct the approaching ceremony of the 28th, it would ill become me to make any suggestions to those who know so well their business.

As, however, one good idea has already seen the light in your columns, I may, perhaps, be permitted to again call attention to it, and respectfully urge its adoption if it should be found practicable.

There has been, and wisely too, a growing disposition to admit ladies as much as possible to our fetes. I say, wisely, because as the wives and mothers of future Masons they must necessarily exert an immense, albeit hidden, influence upon the well-being of the Craft.

I certainly can answer for one, who has always advanced the cause by every means in her power, has presented her husband with a jewel when he has passed into a superior degree, and who is so thoroughly convinced of the good of the brotherhood, that she brings up her sons to look forward to the day of initiation as a means of making themselves wiser, better, happier, and more useful men.

Would that there were more like her! But this will not be, so long as there is so much uncalled for suspicion engendered by foolishly excluding the helpmates of the brethren from those pleasant gatherings in which they may partake, with equal pleasure to themselves and profit to the brethren whose festivals they adorn.

The ladies hear us talking of the spectacle of the 28th, as, probably one of the grandest in the whole annals of Masonry—could not a view of the Hall (as your Correspondent suggests) be given to them after the actual ceremony is over.

Should more assistance be required, I do not, for a moment doubt, but that plenty of brethren would most gladly act as extra Stewards for this particular purpose.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

"P.M. & P.P.G.C."

MR. CHARLES BRADLAUGH.

A notre chere Frere Caubet, le Grand Secretaire du Grand Orient de la France.

T.C. Frere Caubet,

Mr. Charles Bradlaugh pretend qu'il a été reçu dans la loge "La Persévérante Amitié," en France. Pouvez vous nous informer s'il y a sous la Grand Orient de la France une loge ainsi nommée? Nous ne pouvons la trouver dans le "Cosmopolitain," ou la liste des loges sous le Grand Orient de la France, est fondée sur vos renseignements officiels, et nous craignons qu'il y a quelque erreur dans une telle description. Est ce qu'il y a par hasard une loge sous la Rite Ecossaise du même nom?

Pardonnez notre interrogation, et agréez mille amitiés fraternelles,

A.B., J.H.T., A.W.,

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

In the List of Candidates for the Boys' School, published in your paper of the 3rd inst., you state that there are two candidates from Dorset, No. 36, A. J. Green, from Lodge 1260; No. 41, G. W. Stanton from Lodge 417. This is an error; the only candidate from Dorset is A. J. Green. G. W. Stanton is a candidate from Lodge 855, Wootton-under-Edge, Gloucestershire. His father, Bro. G. R. Stanton, resigned membership of Lodge 417, Dorchester, in December, 1865, and left the Province of Dorset; and although he has many friends there who will be glad when disengaged to support the case, it is not brought forward by Dorset; nor can Stanton be correctly described as a Dorset candidate.

Yours fraternally,

THOS. COOMBS, P.G.A.D.C.,
Prov. G. Sec. Dorset.

BRITISH UNION LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report of Masonic meetings, of March 13th, I observed the particulars of the British Union Lodge meeting, and was particularly struck with the word "exclusive," as being applied to this lodge in particular. As there are three other very good lodges in the Town of Ipswich, whose working are quite equal to the British Union, I am at a loss to know why such a term, as I have before mentioned, should be used by that lodge. Perhaps some of your numerous readers, or yourself, can give me an answer? May I also ask some of the members of the British Union why the name of a certain brother was omitted, who, I understand, took a prominent part in the singing of that beautiful hymn to which you refer. I am one of those brothers who like to give honour to every brother to whom it is due, and not exclude any who assist at our Masonic meetings.

I enclose my card, and remain, yours fraternally,

FAIR PLAY.

THE MASONIC CHARITY FESTIVALS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As two of the Charity Festivals have yet to take place, allow me to caution brethren against a trick which was played off upon me last year at the Girls' Festival, and I hear I was not the only one served in that way. I had four tickets, two of them ladies', which I took out of the envelope, when a Steward took them out of my hand for the purpose of sorting them as I supposed, when heigh, presto! in the most perfectly "Lynnean" manner, a ladies ticket had vanished. I went to the top of the stairs to explain the matter, and regret to say I was subjected to some rude remarks from a brother. I had to purchase another ticket, which I consider somewhat hard, as I reported the circumstance there and then at the office, and the missing ticket must have come in; showing it had been used by some one.

I certainly don't mean in future to let my tickets go out of my hand,

I am, yours fraternally,

P. M.

DRESS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Bro.

Your correspondent, "A Rustic Bridge," might have saved himself some trouble, by referring the W.M. to the advertisement pages of the "Freemason," where he would perceive that the Charing Cross Toilet Club, (the principal of which is a well known and popular brother), can supply every article of dress needed at the forthcoming installation,

Yours faithfully,

M.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly tell me how the Principals and Officers in Royal Arch Chapters are appointed, and by whom?

Will you also kindly tell me if the country brethren are likely to have cheap railway trains to bring us to town at the installation, and oblige,

Yours, very fraternally,

A YOUNG R.A.

[We must refer our young companion to the Royal Arch Book of Constitutions. With regard to cheap trains, we have so far heard nothing about them.—Ed.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOMERSET.

A special meeting was convened for Tuesday, March 30th, at 2.30 p.m. to be held at the Masonic Hall, Bath, which was fairly attended, considering that it was not one of the regular convocations.

The chair was taken by Colonel A. W. Adair, Past Prov. G.M., supported by Bros. Shackleton, Prov. G. Chap; Vigne, as D.P.G.M.; Gen. Doherty, P.G.S.W.; Inskip, as P.G.J.W.; Else, P.G. Sec.; Payne, Past G.D.; Prov. G. Treas.; Carey, P.G.S.D.; Woodward, Prov. G. Tyler.

The brethren having taken their places in the lodge room, received the above and the past Grand Officers, as they entered in procession. Among those present were Bros. Rev. Davy, Past Grand Chap.; Jelley, P.P.G.S.D.; Woodforde, P.P.G.S.W.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43 and 958, and Past P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire; Perkins, W.M. 446; Edwards, W.M. 1199; Col. Ford, P.P.G. Reg.; Gordon, P.P.G. Ch.; Milborne, W.M. 329; Bailey, P.P.G.J.D.; J. C. Pigot, P.P.G.C.; Marshall, P.P.G.J.W.; Guyor, P.P.G. Reg.; Cooper, P.P.G.S.D.; Cox, P.M. 329; Clark W.M. 41; Moutrie, P.P.G.S.W.; Smith, P.M. 53; Simmons, W.M. 53; Hill, P.P.G. P.M.; Capt. R. Peel Floyd, P.P.G. Reg.; A. Hunt, P.M. 379; Helps, P.M. 53; Barnett, W.M. 235; Stothert, P.P.G.S.W.; Shum, P.P.G.S.W.; Reeves, P.P.G. Org.; Mitchell, P.P.G.D.C.; Wilton, P.M. 41, and P.P.G.S.W.; Atwell, P.M. 437; Robinson, 41; Lord, 53; Westcott, 814; Gummer, 41; W. Hunt, 41; Capt. Phayre, 53; Edwards, J.W. 437.

The circular of convocation having been read, and the names of the lodges of the Province having been called and responded to, the Rt. W. Provincial Grand Master, in appropriate terms, alluded to the object of the meeting, and read the draft of an address of condolence to the Rt. Hon. and R.W. Prov. Grand Master, on the deep affliction which has befallen his Lordship by the death of the Countess of Carnarvon, the adoption of which was proposed by the acting D.P.G.M., seconded by the Prov. G.S.W. and agreed to unanimously.

Another address to the R.W. the Prov. Grand Master, on his appointment by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, as M.W. Prov. Grand Master, after having been read by the acting Prov. G.M., was proposed for adoption by the Prov. G. Sec., Bro. Else, seconded by the Prov. G.S.W., and carried unanimously. After some discussion it was agreed that both should be inscribed on vellum, the former in a plain manner with a black border, and the latter in an elaborate illuminated style.

The following resolution, of which due notice had been given, was passed on the proposition of the Prov. Grand Treas., seconded by the acting Prov. Grand J.W.—"That in the event of the M.W. the Prov. Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W.P.G.M. of Somerset, taking the chair at the ensuing festival in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the Prov. Grand Treas. be authorized to pay, out of the funds of the Prov. Grand Lodge, the sum of one hundred guineas, in aid of the funds of the Institution, the same to be placed on the joint list of the Stewards serving in respect of the several lodges in this province." In support of it the P.G. Treas. stated that the funds in hand amounted to double that sum, besides £300 invested. An attempt was made to introduce the subject of the restoration of the West front of the Abbey, a portion of which has already been effected by the Masonic body, chiefly among those resident in Bath, but the acting P.G.M. decided that the question could not be considered at a special meeting convened for other purposes, to which the business must be entirely restricted.

The charity box was then handed round, and on examination the contents proved to amount to £2 7s. 10d, which it was determined to hand over to the Treas. of the Royal United Hospital, Bath.

The Prov. Grand Sec. proposed a cordial vote of thanks to Col. Adair, for so kindly coming to preside on the occasion, which was carried by acclamation.

The Prov. Grand Lodge was closed at 4 o'clock, and a portion of those present adjourned to the Castle Hotel for a banquet.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of West Lancashire for the transaction of the annual business of the province was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday afternoon, the 30th ult., when there was the largest and most influential gathering of the R.A. ever witnessed in this division of the county. This clearly shows that the Order makes steady progress, keeping hand-in-hand in the onward march with Craft Masonry. M.E. Comp. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. In accordance with notice, Comp. T. Wylie, P.G. 2nd P., moved—"That one-tenth of the annual income of Provincial Grand Chapter shall be set apart for the Masonic Charities. It was moved as an amendment by Comp. R. Wylie that one-fourth of the annual income of Prov. Grand Chapter should be devoted to that purpose. This was seconded by Comp. Dr. Smith, P.G.S.N., and carried. Comp. Broadbridge then moved and Comp. T. Wylie seconded a motion, which was adopted, that the first year's apportionment should be appropriated to the Hamer Benevolent Fund.

At the conclusion of the business, between 40 and 50 sat down to a banquet provided by Fick and Fairhurst, the P.G. Supt., presiding. The toasts included "The Queen," "The Prince of Wales, G. Supt., and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Earl of Carnarvon and Lord de Tabley, the two G. Principals," the last named toast being given by Comp. Allpass. Lord Skelmersdale replied in happy terms, again promising that it was his intention to visit all the lodges in his province. Speaking of the Prince of Wales, he said H.R.H. displayed wonderful interest in all that concerned his Masonic position, and went into even the smallest details.—"The Chiefs and Past Chiefs of P.G. Chapter," and "The Chiefs and Past Chiefs of Private Chapters," responded to by Comp. G.M. Man, of the Victoria Chapter, Eccles, No. 1345, were amongst the other toasts.

Music of an excellent kind was given by Comps. Veale, Haswell, Jones, Armstrong, &c.

MASONIC BANQUET TO BRO. CAPTAIN COLVILL AT BODMIN.

On the 30th ult. a complimentary banquet was given at Bro. Sandoe's, Royal Hotel, Bodmin, to Bro. Capt. Colvill, P.M. 330, P.G.S.W. of Cornwall, in recognition of the long and valuable services which he has rendered to Masonry, and as a proof of the high esteem in which he is held by the fraternity. The banquet was given by the members of "One and All" Lodge, of which Bro. Captain Colvill has twice filled the office of W.M., and invitations were extended to distinguished brethren in the provinces of Devon and Cornwall. The chair was occupied by Bro. Capt. F. J. Heat, P.M. 330, P.P.G.S.W.; and the vice-chair by Bro. R. Rich, P.M. 330, P.P.G.J.W.

The company included the following brethren:—J. Hele, W.M. 330, P.P.G.O.; W. J. Hughan, P.M. 131, P.G.D. of England, and P.P.G.S. of Cornwall; T. Solomon, P.M. 331, P.P.G.S.W.; the Rev. A. H. Ferris, S.W. 496, P.G. Chaplain; R. John, P.M. 131, P.P.G.D.C.; J. G. Couch, P.M. 330, P.P.G.J.W.; W. Geach, P.M. 856, P.P.G.J.W.; W. Guy, P.M. 496, P.P.G.D.C.; Captain R. Crang, Mayor of Bodmin; A. C. Sandoe, P.M. 330; T. Webber, S.W. 75; J. Bartlett, W.M. 856; C. Truscott, P.M. 496; R. S. Oliver, P.M. 330; W. Tonkin, P.M. 977; T. Hawken, S.W. 330; W. Rowe, J.W. 330; W. H. Beacock, J.D., 330; G. Garland, Organist 330; J. Fly, S.W. 1247 (Plymouth); C. Mutton, D.C. 1205 (Stonehouse); S. Trevel, D.C. 330; C. D. Stentiford, S.S. 159 (Stonehouse); G. Hawke, S. 330; W. Garland, J.S. 70 (Plymouth); H. Hander, 330; R. Adams, 330; J. G. Vincent, 330; E. T. Crabb, C. Crabb, jun., T. Hambly, J. Oliver, Roberts, Evelyn, Martyn, Stribley, O'Neill, I.G. 330; P. Carroll, Tyler, 330, &c. Unfortunately at the last moment it became known that Bro. Captain Colvill, in whose honour the banquet was given, was prevented, through illness, from being present. The worthy brother wrote a letter expressing his deep regret at the cause of his absence, and offering his fraternal greetings to the brethren.

The first toast was that of "the Queen and Craft," and it was received, as usual, with warm applause.

In proposing "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, and the Grand Lodge of England," the Chairman said the reception given to the Prince of Wales at Plymouth in August last was one in which a noble example was set to England. For its magnificence it was unknown in England before, and it also proved the real strength of Freemasonry in this part of the country. There was no doubt whatever that Freemasonry was prospering beyond measure. It had prospered greatly in Cornwall during the last five or ten years, and it had increased to an enormous extent all over the country. He thanked God for this, because in these days they wanted men who would reflect, and not men who would be led away by hasty and ill-formed opinions. Men of that kind were a danger to the country, because they did a great amount of mischief which very often could not be repaired. Such men, however, were not found among Freemasons (applause).

Bro. Hughan, who responded, and who was very warmly received, said all Masons had reason to be proud of the Grand Lodge of England. It was only founded in the early part of the last century, but already it had originated one hundred Grand Lodges, with ten thousand subordinate lodges, and about three millions of members—(applause). Of late years the Grand Lodge had been severely criticised, and it had been alleged against it that Freemasonry was opposed to religion, to the well-being of the State, and to society in general. But there was a complete answer to the first charge in the fact that there was scarcely a lodge in this or in any other country which had not either a clergyman or a minister of religion for its Chaplain. The voluntary contributions of the London Masonic Charities, by the brethren of this country, amounted to about £20,000 a year. The income of lodges in this country, and of lodges in other countries connected with the Grand Lodge of England, were close upon £150,000, and in all probability the incomes of all subordinate lodges was not less than a quarter of a million annually. (Applause.) This money was very carefully disbursed, and he was glad to say that a great deal more attention was now paid to the education of the children of deceased Masons than was formerly the case. One province alone educated fifty children, an adjoining province educated forty, in London, in the Royal Masonic School for Girls, there were 150 children fed, clothed, and educated, and in the Boys' School the same number, while in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution there were 230 aged Freemasons or widows who were carefully provided for, and who, if they did not get into the institution, received annuities of £36 and £28 respectively. Such an institution, then, could not be inimical to religion. Nor could it be opposed to the State, because they were now about to instal the Prince of Wales as their Grand Master, and nobody in his senses would endeavour to pull down his own throne. (Hear, hear, and applause.) And an institution that dispensed so many thousands of pounds could not be opposed to society in general. (Loud applause.)

"The Health of Earl Mount Edgcumbe, Provincial Grand Master of Cornwall, and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall," was drunk with enthusiasm, and Bros. Solomon and Couch responded.

"The Health of Bro. Capt. Colvill" was next proposed by the chairman, who deeply regretted Bro. Colvill's absence through illness, and spoke of him in the highest terms. As governor of the county gaol he had never been surpassed for his ability as a disciplinarian, and in his general kindness and forbearance towards the prisoners under his charge. As a Freemason he stood in the first rank of the fraternity, and no man more truly acted upon its principles than did Bro. Colvill. The toast was received with hearty cheering.

Bro. Stokes, in eulogistic terms, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," which met with a cordial reception. Bro. Hext suitably responded.

Bro. E. Leveson-Gower, M.P., who proposed "The Visitors," thanked all those brethren who had come from a distance to do honour to Capt. Colvill, of whom they were all proud. Freemasons were not a limited fraternity, and the more they were brought together from different places, the more would those feelings of benevolence and goodwill be excited, which it was the very essence of Freemasonry to encourage and practice. The greatest curse to mankind was the jealousies that existed between towns, counties, and countries, and one of the pre-eminent merits of Freemasonry was that it knocked down those jealousies. (Applause.)

Bros. Solomon, Webber, Guy, John Truscott, and Stribley responded.

Bro. the Rev. A. H. Ferris proposed "The W.M. and Officers of Lodge One and All."

Bros. Hele, Hawker, and Rowe, returned thanks. In the toasts that followed, Bros. Rich, Geach, Collins, Edyvean, and the Mayor of Bodmin spoke, all highly eulogizing Captain Colvill.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

On Tuesday afternoon a large number of the stewards of the late festival of this Institution, accompanied by Bro. James Terry, the Secretary, paid a visit to the Asylum at Croydon, for the purpose of inspecting it and the grounds attached to it, and conversing with the aged inmates of the Asylum. Among the brethren who made the journey were Bros. Major Creaton, Raynham W. Stewart, J. A. Farnfield, members of the House Committee; and the Rev. C. J. Martin, P.G.C.; Thos. Cubitt, P.M.; C. R. On arriving at the institution, Bro. Terry conducted the party over the building and grounds, and explained all the arrangements that were made for the comfort and happiness of the old people. He pointed out all the improvements in the building, and that the gardens had all been recently rearranged. The improvements he showed in the gardens were owing to the liberality of Bro. William Cutbush, of Barnet, who had made the institution a present of 300 or 400 trees and shrubs, and that brother hoped still further to add to the beauty of the place, by an additional gift of rhododendrons. After closely inspecting the place, and listening to Bro. Terry's description, the visitors unanimously expressed their approval of the arrangements.

They spent some hours on the premises, and took great pains to examine the practical working of the charity. Before separating for the evening, the brethren thought they could not do better than, over a glass of wine, wish prosperity to the institution, and Bro. Raynham Stewart taking the chair, proposed a few of the Masonic toasts. Bro. Terry, in responding to the toast "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," stated that this visit of the Stewards was the first that had ever been paid to the institution by Stewards of the festivals. He referred, in terms of gratification, to the success of the festival last January, and informed the brethren that through their exertions, the largest amount ever collected in one year for this charity was then brought in. It would be gratifying to them to know, that on account of this circumstance, the committee had been able to add further candidates to the list for election in the ensuing May, viz.: twelve widows and ten men, and that this would make a total number of 246 annuitants on the funds of the institution. "The Health of the Warden of the Asylum," Bro. James Norris, was proposed, and it was mentioned that he was one of the oldest Masons living, having been initiated in the year 1812. The brethren shortly afterwards returned to town, having spent a very gratifying afternoon.

Mr. Alderman Walker, the donor of the new Art Gallery at Liverpool, has requested the Council to give up the scheme for erecting a statue in his honour.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the general committee of the above school was held, last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart presided. There were also present Bros. S. Rosenthal, W. Roebuck, Hyde Pullen, T. J. Sabine, Thomas W. White, W. Noak, A. H. Tattershall, Benjamin Mallam, H. Massey, (Freemason), Jesse Turner, F. H. Ebsworth, H. Moore, J. C. Dwarber, John Symonds, George Tree, F. Adlard, D. Bear, W. Collard Moutrie, W. H. Saunders, I. J. Hooper Wilkins, Robert B. Webster, J. G. Chancellor, Richard Spencer, H. Dubosc, and F. Binckes, Secretary. The meeting was very fully attended.

Bro. Dwarber enquired what number of boys passed the late local examinations out of the total body that went up for examination.

Bro. Binckes replied that the number sent up was eighteen, and out of these sixteen passed.

Bro. Dwarber thought this was strong testimony to the efficiency of the head Master, Mr. Perrott. (Hear, Hear.)

The committee then fixed an additional remuneration for Bro. E. Harris, the collector of the institution, and afterwards appointed Messrs. Willis, Percival & Co. their bankers, Bro. Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, being a member of that firm.

Bro. Binckes read the letter from the Marquis of Ripon resigning his trusteeship. Bro. Binckes added that a Trustee of the General Fund and a Trustee of the Sustentation Fund would have to be elected at the Quarterly General Court on Monday next.

After some discussion of the question of the head mastership of the school, the report of the committee appointed to deal with the matter was read and adopted.

Two petitions were read, and the two candidates named in them were placed on the list for election in October. An outfit was granted to an ex-pupil, and the committee having passed a vote of thanks to the chairman, adjourned.

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION AT PHILADELPHIA.

[We think it well to call attention, for the information of our Brethren, to the following circular.—Ed.]

Tourist and Excursion Offices, Ludgate Circus, London, April, 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir,

We beg to call your attention to the accompanying Extract of a Letter received from the British Executive of the International Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876, under which we are appointed General Passenger Agents to the British Section.

Yours truly,

THOS. COOK & SON,

[COPY OF EXTRACT]

THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION OF 1876, AT PHILADELPHIA

Offices of the British Executive, 5, Craig's Court, Charing Cross, S.W.

March 4th, 1875.

Gentlemen,—His Grace the Duke of Richmond, K.G., Lord President of the Council, bearing in mind the able manner in which you conducted the transit arrangements to and from Vienna, both to the satisfaction of the Royal Commission, of which His Grace was a member, and the advantage of the British exhibitors and visitors to Vienna, has instructed me to offer you the appointment of General Passenger Agents to the British Section of the International Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876."

His Grace, aware how well the arrangements you effected at Vienna, worked for the interests of all concerned, desires that similar, and if possible greater, facilities may be afforded in Philadelphia, viz.: that your special representative on this, as on the occasion alluded to, should be under the immediate orders of the British Executive.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, Your obedient Servant,

P. CUNLIFFE OWEN, Executive Commissioner.

Thos. Cook & Son.

Under this appointment Thos. Cook & Son have to make on behalf of the British Executive the whole of the arrangements with the Atlantic steamers and railway companies for the conveyance of the Exhibitors, their assistants, and workpeople, and also for the conveyance of the goods to be exhibited; and the Exhibitors may rest assured that every effort will be made to obtain as liberal arrangements for crossing the Atlantic as were made for the English Exhibitors at the Vienna Exhibition of 1873.

A STERLING TESTIMONIAL.

On Monday the 5th instant one of those pleasing circumstances took place at Mouffet's Hotel, Newgate-street, which does not often occur in the city of London. The occasion was the presentation of a testimonial consisting of a very richly chased silver tankard, and a ladies' comforter, viz., a silver tea pot (Barnard and Sons), to Mr. George Headington, by his colleagues, on his having completed 50 years service, in the firm of Hutton & Co. Engraven upon the tankard was the following:—"Presented to Mr. G. Headington, upon his completion of 50 years service with Messrs. Hutton & Co., by his colleagues, as a token of their highest esteem." To Bro. Burdett Yeoman, was deputed the honour of the presentation, who stated that like the late Duke of Wellington, he believed that he had done his duty; of which the noble Duke was a true type, and said he, whilst a man does his duty, there are three powers he can defy. The Deity, man, and the devil. The Deity loves all men, and every man that does his duty, because in this essential there is no fear, for where fear there can be no love, to do duty is love. After a fervid and terse speech, Bro. Yeoman concluded, in the name of all present, by wishing Mr. Headington continued health and prosperity, with God's blessing. The friends sat down to a good Englishman's supper, which did the host credit.

Mulum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

ARCHIVES OF THE MASONS' COMPANY.

It gave me great pleasure to read the note by Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, that we are likely to get some information about the contents of the books of the Masons' Company of London. I have long had a wish to know something about them, believing they might be able to throw some light upon the early history of our Order. I trust our Rev. Brother will shortly be able to publish exact copies of several of their old minutes, about and prior to 1717. In connection with this, I would call attention to an article upon "Freemasonry," in The Graphic for December 19th, 1874, in which we are told "it is an historical fact that Henry VI. was initiated into Masonry in 1453, and was in the constant habit of attending lodges." We are also told that our William III. was a Mason, initiated in 1690." Now I would beg to ask the author of this article in The Graphic, where the evidence exists that Henry VI. was a Mason, and attended the lodges? And as to William III. I would ask: Where is the proof that he was "initiated in 1699?" and—supposing such really took place—in what lodge? Perhaps Bro. Woodford will be able to find out whether or not William III. joined the Mason's Company. Another assertion made in the Graphic article of date December 29th, 1874, is that the Duke of Edinburgh is a Mason. May I ask when and where the Duke of Edinburgh was initiated?—W. P. Buchan.

ERRATA.—At page 125, third column, second line, read "146th anniversary," and in sixth line, for "Michael Canmore," read "Malcolm Canmore."

Reviews.

We have read, with singular pleasure, a little book, lately published by Tweddell and Co., Stokesley, Yorkshire, and compiled by the wife of our well known Bro. G. M. Tweddell, entitled "Rhymes and Sketches in the Cleveland Dialect." Being, from long residence, always ready to say, "I see Yorkshire," we have perused the tiny volume with the deepest interest and pleasure. Both the rhymes and the prose are equally effective and true, as we can assert from a long residence in Yorkshire. We feel sure, that were several of the extracts of Mrs. Tweddell's zealous labour of love, read out to a Yorkshire audience, and this is the best of all tests as to truthfulness and effect, great would be the applause, heartily expressed would be the admiration. One friend of ours, of many years, we hear even now, whose rendering of either the humorous or the pathetic pieces, whether of "Polly River's Visit to Stowlsay Castle, Stow," or "The Poor Mother's Lament for her Little Bairn," would draw alike smiles and tears from a warm-hearted Yorkshire gathering. Even his own inimitable story of the amiable "Beer," and the courageous Yorkshire "Young Wumman" would pall in comparison before Polly's vivid description of the "two loving doves" and their "coo, coo, cooing." We hope that a large circulation may encourage Mrs. Tweddell to persevere in similar efforts, as we feel sure, that like the ironstone of pleasant Cleveland, she has struck happily on a vein of sterling "metal," not yet by a great deal, exhausted, and capable of being further worked out with pleasure and with profit. We commend the "Rhymes and Sketches in the Cleveland Dialect," to the notice of all our Yorkshire readers, nay, and for the matter of that, of our "Southerners" too.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

A circumstance occurred in Enniskillen lately, which might be of interest to Masonic readers. A man named Arthur Petty was admitted a pauper into Enniskillen workhouse, the master of which, Mr. Alex. Prince, highly esteemed as a man, is a R.W.M., of St. John's Lodge, and he held the office of Prov. G. S. Bearer for many years. Petty had been a Mason, and in consequence been denied the rites of his (the Roman Catholic) church for over 20 years by the parish priest of Tempo, where he had resided. Although he had not sat in lodge for many years he still held to the Craft which taught him the mysteries of the compasses and the square. Shortly after his admission the paupers and the Master recognized each other as brethren.

Petty got seriously ill and lay on his death bed. The master was at a loss to befriend his poor brother, but determined to try. He sent for the workhouse chaplain and directed him to the bedside of the dying man. The Chaplain, Rev. Mr. McKenna, administered to the dying man the rites of his church; and was leaving the house, when the Master met him, with a cheerful smile on his countenance.

"Mr. McKenna, you have obliged me greatly."

"How?"

"You have given the consolations of religion to a brother of mine, to Arthur Petty. He was a Freemason, and has been refused the rites of his church the last 20 years. But you have been very kind."

The Rev. gentleman smiled good-naturedly, although he had been told, and went his way. As for Bro. Price he had done his duty as a man, a Christian, and a Mason. Query—Petty was virtually excommunicated by the Pope as he did not recant. Father McKenna "fortified" him with the rites of the church. Which will have most effect with the G.A.U., in the Grand Lodge above?

METROPOLITAN.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—An exceedingly strong meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on the 23rd ult., at the Montpellier Tavern, Walworth. The proceedings commenced at a quarter-past four o'clock in the afternoon. The officers present were Bros. J. Wright, W.M.; Wise, S.W.; Macdonald, J.W.; Walton, S.D.; Allen, J.D.; Harris, I.G.; Wright, P.M., Treas.; Pulsford, P.M., Sec.; J. Potter, D.C.; H. Potter, P.M.; W. S. Stuart, A.D.C. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of the officers, raised Bros. Hobern, Colegrave, Wotton, Hadfield and Schrader to the sublime degree, passed Bros. Hooker, Creasy, Bunker, Russell and Gilbody, 1259, and initiated Mr. Mason. The ceremonies of each degree were ably and impressively performed by the W.M. By the unanimous vote of the lodge, the W.M. was elected to the position of Steward at the forthcoming installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. It being the night of election of a W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Wise, the S.W., was unanimously elected to fulfil the duties of that high and honorable position. Bro. Wright, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer, and Bros. Beck, Stuart and Newsham appointed Auditors. The W.M. having, during his year of office, presented the lodge with a new set of collars, and in many other ways testified his zeal to discharge the duties of Master liberally, thoroughly, and efficiently, the brethren unanimously passed him a special vote of thanks, in addition to the customary Past Master's jewel, in testimony of their high appreciation of his conduct in the chair of K.S. A vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Wright, I.P.M., for his services as Treasurer. Several minor matters having been transacted, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, catered for by Bro. Allatt. Among the visitors present were Bros. Dann, P.M. 75; W. Braham, P.M. 715; Walls, I.G. 141; 138, 1503, 1512; Harris, Domestic; Holmes, 1259; Gilbody, 1259; Sirgood, 1381; Charlton, 1446; Meadows. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was duly honoured and Bro. Fowler sang one verse of the "National Anthem." In proposing "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," the W.M. expressed a hope that His Royal Highness would be many years spared to carry out the duties of that high position, and said he took the opportunity of thanking the brethren for the honour they had bestowed upon him by electing him as Steward to represent the Southern Star at the great installation in the Albert Hall, which ceremonial would be an event unprecedented in the annals of Freemasonry. The Grand Officer's toast followed, and the W.M. alluded to the loss the Pro Grand Master had recently suffered by the untimely demise of Lady Carnarvon. The I.P.M. then briefly proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and said that it would be superfluous on his part to make any remarks upon Bro. Wright's merits after what had that day transpired in the lodge. This toast was heartily received, and the W.M. returned thanks. The initiate, Bro. Mason, according to ancient custom, was toasted, and made an excellent reply. The W.M. then gave "The Visitors," and in his speech alluded to several by name. This toast was received with great heartiness. Bro. Walls, in reply, said he was particularly gratified at having his name mentioned so flatteringly by the W.M. He had had the pleasure of seeing Bro. Wright installed W.M. of the Southern Star in May last, and as he had personally known him some years, it was very gratifying to him to think that the arduous duties of W.M. had been carried out by his old friend and brother so well as to call forth so unusual an expression of appreciation from the brethren as he had witnessed that afternoon in open lodge. In conclusion he congratulated the lodge upon possessing so zealous a worker in the cause of Freemasonry as Bro. Wright; and he also said that their W.M. elect, Bro. Wise, would equal, if not surpass him in carrying out the duties of the chair of K.S. efficiently. Bros. Braham, Meadows and Sirgood also briefly responded. The toast of "The Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge" was then given, and severally responded to. In the intervals, the brethren were entertained by the sentimental and humorous vocal efforts of Bros. Fowler, Walls, Meadows and Sirgood. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, and the lodge adjourned until May next.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—The usual bi-monthly meeting of this lodge, which it may be remembered is formed from amongst the members of the First Surrey Rifles, was held at the head-quarters of the camp, Flodden-road, Camberwell, on Thursday evening, last week, and was well attended. The lodge having been opened by Bro. Messenger, the W.M., the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and a ballot taken for C. H. Rugg, a candidate for initiation; and for Bro. Thomas Preston, F.C., Great City Lodge, as joining member. The ballot was unanimous in both cases. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bros. Goldring and Hutchins were examined; and then opened in the third, and Bro. Goldring was raised in a most impressive manner. Bro. J. H. Graham, Grand Master of Quebec, and Past Grand Master of Canada, was introduced by Bro. Major Irvine, P.M., and a deputation of Past Masters. Bro. Irvine explained that Bro. Graham was a member of the Legislative Assembly of the Dominion of Canada, a Doctor of Law, and an author of repute in North America. The W.M. greeted him cordially, and the brethren saluted him in accordance with his rank. Bros. Hutchins and Curnock were then separately raised to the sublime degree, and Mr. C. H. Rugg was duly initiated. Bro. J. H. Hastie, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. Styant was re-elected Treasurer, and W. Grant, Tyler. It was then proposed and carried unanimously, that the Master Mason's ticket for the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, be placed at the disposal of the W.M.; and the W.M., after some highly complimentary remarks, said he knew he should be carrying out the wishes of the lodge by giving the much coveted ticket to the Secretary, Bro. Curtis. The brethren applauded the W.M.'s award, and a resolution to present a P.M. jewel to Bro. Messenger, on the completion of his year of office was proposed and carried unanimously. Bro. G. R. Steel, of No. 1 Lodge, and C. J. Henton, of No. 1441, were proposed as joining members, and will be balloted for at the next lodge meeting. It was then proposed by Bro. A. L. Irvine, P.M., and seconded by Bro. S. H. Wagstaff, P.M., "that a petition be sent to the Grand Lodge for permission to form a Royal Arch Chapter in connection with the Macdonald Lodge (No. 1216)." This was unanimously agreed to, and the lodge having been closed, adjourned to the corps mess-room, where the brethren and their distinguished visitor supped together and spent a very pleasant hour before parting. The brethren present included W. G. Messenger, W.M.; J. H. Hastie, (W.M. elect) S.W.; M. S. Larham, J.W.; A. Styant, Treasurer; J. J. Curtis, Secretary; H. Hammond, S.D.; T. W. Carwell, J.D.; F. H. Cozens, Organist; C. Fountain, I.G.; and Bros. G. N. Bridges, I.P.M.; S. H. Wagstaff, P.M.; A. S. Irvine, P.M.; G. Waterall, P.M.; and Bro. T. G. Gardiner, (Colonel commanding 1st Surrey Rifles). Also Bros. C. E. Goldring, J. W. Holland, D. A. Ross, C. H. Nevill, J. Clay, B. B. Joy, T. A. Harper, J. B. Staley, F. Hutchins, A. C. Bradley, H. P. Jarman, W. A. Curnock, A. Youngman, J. D. Challoner, E. Eldridge, W. Gray, T. A. Fitzner, and W. C. Hale. Amongst the visitors were Bros. The Hon. J. H. Graham, LL.D., P.G.M. Canada, and G.M. Grand Lodge of Quebec; J. N. Greene, Union Lodge, No. 95, State of New York; N. B. Headon, W.M. Great City Lodge 1426; G. R. Steel, No. 1; F. de Grey, 706; H. Durham, 177; T. Preston, D.C. Great City Lodge, 1426; R. S. Stedall, 129; T. Edmondston, T. W. Farmer, 25; T. Headon, 1426; E. H. Hunt (Mount Moriah); G. Phythian, J.D. 22; C. G. Henton, 1441; J. Wilkinson, 176.

HERVEY LODGE No. (1260).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. C. Darby, W.M., presiding, who raised Bro. Monney, and passed Bro. Hooper. He then resigned the Chair to Bro. George King, junr., P.M., who initiated Messrs. Joseph Cox, James Mansell, and Charles William Robins. Bro. George King, P.M., presented to the acting W.M., (Bro. George King, junr.), Bro. Jabez Hogg, M.D., P.G.D., P.M., for installation. The ceremony having been performed, the new W.M. invested Bro. C. Darby, I.P.M., Bro. George Harrison, S.W., Bro. Southwood, J.W., Bro. C. Darby, I.P.M., Treas., Bro. George King, junr., P.M., Sec., Bro. Hollingsworth, S.D., Bro. Ward, J.D., Bro. Kingcombe, I.G., Bro. George King, D.C., and Bro. C. T. Speight, T. The W.M. presented a Past Master's jewel to Bro. Darby, who thanked the brethren for the gift, and said he should always be most happy to think he had been Master of this lodge. The S.W., Bro. Geo. Harrison, presented to the lodge new collars and jewels for the Master, Past Master, and Wardens. The J.W., Bro. Southwood, presented some very handsome menu cards, and Bro. Kingcombe, I.G., presented an engraved copper plate for the lodge summonses. The S.W. asked whether it would not be agreeable to the brethren to have a banquet on the evening of the Prince of Wales's Installation, as many other lodges would do, but the W.M. reminded him, that although it would be an excellent way of finishing up that day, many of the brethren were already engaged elsewhere, and he himself had made his arrangements for that evening. But the matter might be further considered among the brethren. The S.W. again gave notice of motion to hold the summer banquet this year. The Revd. C. J. Martyn, sent a telegram, and Sir Albert Woods, and Bro. Fenn, letters regretting their inability to be present. The Audit Committee's report was received. The lodge, it should be stated, unanimously voted at the last meeting Bro. George King, junr., to represent it as Steward at the Prince of Wales's Installation, and also voted all expenses and the cost of the commemorative jewel. The lodge was closed at the conclusion of the business, and the brethren adjourned to Bro. Cathie's, Simpson's Divan, Strand, and partook of a most elegant banquet, the serving of which was personally superintended by Bro. Cathie. When the banquet was disposed of the toasts were honoured in due course. The W.M., in giving the first toast, said that he need not offer any remarks upon the Queen, as her virtues and goodness commended her to all, what mortal could more the ladies adore, than Masons loved their Queen, the loved mother of Masons; the toast having been drunk, the W.M. proposed "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales." In doing so, he said, it needed no words to recommend this toast to the brethren, especially as at the present time Masons' thoughts were concentrated on the great event which was shortly to happen. It was a happy thing that H.R.H. had consented to take the head of the order, which was a very important body. Freemasonry was entering upon a new phase of existence; he should say now that H. R. H. had entered upon his duties as Grand Master, a great advancement of the Craft might be expected, and no doubt it would tend much to the advancement and advantage of the Craft. Every member of the Order, as well as every member of the Hervey Lodge, would wish that His Royal Highness might long be spared to reign over the Craft. He hoped that the members of the Hervey Lodge might also long be spared to wish His Royal Highness an enduring and prosperous reign. "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, &c.," was next proposed, and the W.M. in doing so, reminded the brethren of the many Grand Officers who had honoured them with their presence that evening. He had himself had the pleasure of meeting them on many occasions, and he gladly seized this opportunity of giving them a hearty welcome. The Rev. R. J. Simpson, in reply, said he esteemed it no common pleasure to return thanks for this toast. It was said that love was blind, and he was sure the brethren would form no exception to that rule, or if they did, the brother in the chair would not have indulged in the kind remarks he had made with regard to the Grand Officers. There were other brethren present, who, although perhaps younger than he, knew as well as he the merits of the officers who held grand rank in the Craft. They were greatly blessed in having such a great number of good and worthy men holding high office. They were specimens of the tenets of Freemasonry, and were looked upon as men who illustrated the principles of Masonry. He trusted that they would hand down to the future a noble and worthy heritage to Masons yet to come. As to Masonry itself, he believed it was rapidly progressing in this country, and he must say that, taking up the remark of an eloquent Dean of the Church, who pointed to true greatness as one of the great objects in life in all men; it was the object of all Masonry to attain to a position above the petty animosities that often divided men. Masonry was a great power, not only in England, but in the whole world, which no potentate could put down, as long as it was true to itself, which was the great point, and the little heaven that was to lighten the whole lump by making us what we ought to be, a true, straightforward, temperate and just people. He could not sit down without thanking the W.M. and the brethren for the very hospitable and kind way in which the Grand Officers had been received that evening, and not the less so because Bro. Cathie had seconded the lodge's noble and Masonic idea, by providing the best Masonic dinner he had ever sat down to. In wishing the Hervey Lodge prosperity, he hoped that though it was a young lodge, it would emulate its noble godfather in every way, and carry out the principles which that brother carried out both officially and non-officially. (Cheers.) Bro. Hervey proposed "The Health of the W.M." by desire of the I.P.M. He said that though he was not a visitor, he might, in one sense, be called one, for, through various engagements, he had been unable to come to the lodge once since it first saw the light. Formerly, the Hervey Lodge was held at a great distance, and was not easy to get at, and it was only lately that it had come into a civilised part of the world, the fashionable locality of the Strand, (laughter,) if he might say so, when he saw Bro. Simpson, the fashionable Rector of St. Clement Danes, beside him. Although he had not been able to come to the Hervey Lodge, he had always been anxious for its prosperity; and very naturally so, since it did him the honour to bear his name. Having made great progress since its launch upon the Masonic waters, and had sundry good Masters, it had followed up its principles, and chosen this year a Master that had never been found wanting. Whether to congratulate the lodge on having such a Master, or to congratulate him on having such a lodge to preside over, he scarcely knew. In either case, or in both cases, the brethren were to be congratulated, because, during the lodge's six years of existence, it had passed through many phases of difficulty. It had now, he hoped, achieved that position in the Craft, and that position of solidity, which would ensure its well being for many a year to come. Bro. Dr. Hogg was a Grand Officer of the Order, who had been Treasurer of the lodge for some time; and the brethren knew how much they owed to him in that position. They did not however know what they would owe to him in the year to come. He (Bro. Hervey) was not a prophet, and if he were, they knew that a prophet was not believed in his own locality. If he might prophesy what would be the result of Bro. Hogg's Master-ship he would say it would be a very successful period for the Hervey Lodge, and that the brethren would find that time twelvemonth when he gave up the gavel to one of the Wardens, he did not say which, he would give it up with the lodge in such a state of prosperity that his successor would have little to wish for as regarded the future, but to continue in the same course. For the successor of Bro. Hogg, he could only hope that he would have as successful a year as Bro. Hogg. Speaking for himself, it had given him great pleasure to be present that evening. The good dinner was not the least of the enjoyments of the evening, though he confessed he was sorry to hear Bro. Simpson allude so pointedly to it. (Laughter). Certainly it had proved so, and long might the brethren find similar enjoyment. Long too, might Bro. Hogg have health to participate in it. Bro. Hogg had mentioned in proposing the health of the M.W.G.M. that they all wished H.R.H. might long reign over them. He, (Bro. Hervey) wished the same good wish for Bro. Hogg, and that all the brethren present might live to congratulate him upon the position which he had taken in the lodge. (great cheering.) The W.M. in acknowledging the toast said he could scarcely find words to express his feelings for the kind and generous way in which Bro. Hervey had proposed this toast; but on more than one occasion he had experienced the same kindness and generosity not only on the part of Bro. Hervey, but on the part of the brethren of the lodge for six years, from the birth of the lodge, at which he assisted. He had assisted at a great many births in his early days, (laughter) but he did not know that he had ever assisted at one which gave him a greater degree of pride and satisfaction than the birth of the Hervey Lodge. He was very much impressed with the impressive way that Bro. Hervey consecrated the lodge, and at that time he thought, but he did not then expect that he would have any more to do with assisting the bantling. However, it was so to be, and he was glad he had been disappointed, for he had now attained a position which he could not refrain from saying, was a very distinguished position. He owed it to the kindness of the brethren, and to their generous feeling. He felt that he should have to ask the brethren to act with indulgence towards him during his Mastership, for although Bro. Hervey had said so much in his favour, he still felt very rusty. He was an old Mason; but perhaps in the presence of Bro. Hervey he ought not to say so, because he learned Masonry in Bro. Hervey's Lodge of Emulation many years ago. The present was his one-and-twentieth year in Masonry, and soon after joining the Order he became acquainted with his distinguished brother Hervey. From that time he had always felt the utmost regard and affection for him, (hear hear.) If the brethren observed any shortcomings in him (Bro. Hogg), during his year of office, he hoped the brethren would excuse them, for his head would be in his work, and all his endeavours would be to promote the good of Freemasonry in general, and of the Hervey Lodge in particular. (Cheers.) Before sitting down he had much pleasure in proposing as a toast, the health of the God-father of the lodge, Bro. Hervey, and he wished it had fallen to better hands to do so. He asked the brethren to drink "Long Life, Health, and Happiness" to him. The lodge had passed, as Bro. Hervey had told them, through some phases of difficulty and danger, but they had been surmounted, and he trusted the brethren would all live to see what Bro. Hervey had that night predicted, great prosperity for the lodge, and the existence of peace and harmony for many years to come. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Hervey thought there was a conspiracy against the comfort of the brethren seated at the W.M.'s end of the table, otherwise the W.M. would not have asked him to inflict another speech on them. But it should be but a short one. If the Lodge had not had good men at its head it would not have been in its present position. There were two brethren who had followed its Masters, Bro. King, senr. and Bro. King, junr., who had done their best for the Lodge's welfare (Hear, hear), and the Lodge ought to be very grateful to them. (Hear, hear.) To go to another subject he would advert for a moment to what was now going on in the Craft at large, and from that they would find that this Lodge during its brief existence had lived in the reign of three Grand Masters. It was consecrated during Lord Zetland's Grand Mastership, who granted the warrant; it had passed through the Grand Mastership of the Marquess of Ripon, and it was now under the Grand Mastership of the Prince of Wales. On that day fortnight one of the most striking ceremonies which had ever taken place in Masonry either in this country or elsewhere would be performed, and it was to be hoped that considering the exertions which were being made by the brethren who had undertaken the management of the arrangements on that occasion, it would be carried out with success. Of course a great deal of detail had to be considered, much more than met the eye, or would ever meet the eye, of any brother Mason. There was a large mass of brethren to be introduced into a building for every one of whom there was a place under their respective banners. They would find that they had not to fight for a seat, and that they had not when they got into the building to wander far and wide of the point to which they wished to attain. It was to be hoped that the result of the endeavours which were being made at the present moment would obviate all difficulties when the brethren went to the building, that they would find that various blocks which were parcelled out for their accommodation would accommodate all who had tickets for those blocks, they also would find that they would have no difficulty in being piloted to their seats, because the Stewards of the day would take care that the brethren were directed in the proper course, and that they would consequently, according to the letter on their cards, have to go to a particular block. These arrangements had not been arrived at without much thought and labour; and when the brethren came to consider that there were 1068 lodges in England, whose convenience had to be considered, they would agree with him (Bro. Hervey) that the brethren who undertook the duty were entitled to the gratitude of the Craft. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Sir Albert Woods and Bro. Fenn were doing their utmost to render the day successful as a matter of ceremony, but also consulting the convenience and comfort of each and every brother who would congregate at the Albert Hall on the 23rd inst., to show their loyalty to the Prince of Wales and their loyalty to the Craft. He did not know that he could give them any more detail, because the various circulars that had been sent out had given all the details which it was possible to give to enable the brethren to come to a conclusion as to what they had to do and to look forward to. Without going beyond "the secrets of the prison house" (laughter) he might inform the brethren that the various Stewards would all be accepted from the different lodges. It had been considered desirable to have them all, and that it would not be quite fair to ballot one out and another in. A redundancy of Stewards was deemed best, that they might all have the honour of acting on that great occasion, and doing their best for the success of such a gathering. (Hear, hear.) He was reminded by Bro. Simpson that the executive were very sorry indeed that the number of applications for the admission of Master Masons was so great that space could not be found for them, and that their admission was necessarily restricted to one Master Mason from each lodge. As there were 1068 lodges in England, this would give 1068 brethren beyond those whose rank entitled them to admission. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Hervey concluded by again thanking the brethren for drinking his health. The W.M., in proposing "The Initiates," hoped those brethren would feel that they had that day entered a body whose principles would do great service to them. If they kept their eyes open and studied the various emblematical and peculiar devices of Freemasonry, they would be very much pleased; perhaps it would prove to them that it was just what philosophers and men of all ages had been looking for, the best and shortest way of finding true human happiness. (Hear, hear.) He himself looked on the Masonic body as one of the best types of true brotherhood. He was going to say, but in presence of Bro. Simpson he must ask pardon for saying, it was an entrance upon life of as much importance as the Christian life; in that it was the binding of true happiness. Cicero mentioned a somewhat similar institution, in which he said he felt that those who entered it entered on a new phase of life. They were called initiates, and they were supposed to be initiated into a new union with men, a truer happiness with their fellow creatures, a universal brotherhood, a more perfect elysium. He hoped that might be the initiates' experience that evening; that they had joined a society which taught what the Christian religion taught, brotherly love, relief and truth; a society of men they might trust, to whom they might confide the secrets of their hearts, and look for support in any kind of adversity. (Hear, hear.) The initiates having replied, the toast of "The Visitors" followed, for which Dr. Erasmus Wilson, Bro. C. H. Hopwood, M.P., and D. Richardson responded. Bro. C. Derby replied as the P.M. to that toast. Bro. King, junr., for the "P.M.," Bro. Harrison, Southwood, and other brethren responded as "officers," and the Tyler's toast brought the evening to a close. Bros. Seymour Smith, Frank Elmore and Van Noorden entertained the brethren with some excellent music during the evening. Among the visitors present were the following brethren:—Bros. Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain; Professor Erasmus Wilson, No. 2, P.G. Steward and W.M. 1494; C. H. Hopwood, P.M. 263, Q.C. and M.P.; Wright, W.M. 1158; Holland, P.M. 172; Garner, P.M. 890; Richardson P.M. St. Andrews; Harvey, P.M. 902; Defriez, S.D. 45; Green, S.W. 27; Van Noorden, 118; Ballard, 511; Sears, 299; Davis, Burdett Coutts Lodge; Hennett, Universal Lodge; G. S. Marks, 205; Evans, 212; Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason); F. Elmore, 12; Seymour Smith, 742.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The last meeting of the season of this lodge was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Tuesday, the 6th inst. The proceedings commenced at six o'clock in the evening. In addition to Bro. Gardner, the W.M., there were present the following brethren, who in the absence of the regularly appointed officers acted for them, viz., Bros. Drysdale, P.M., S.W.; Walls, J.W.; Higgins, S.D.; Webb, J.D.; Pope, I.G.; Stuart, P.M., I.P.M. The Secretary, Bro. Stuart, read the minutes of the meeting in March last, and also the minutes of an emergency meeting, held on Friday the 19th ultimo, which was convened to consider the communication received from Grand Lodge, respecting the installation of H. R. H. the M.W. Grand Master, the proceedings of which meetings were confirmed. Letters were then read from Bros. Everett and Painter, the S. and J.W., explanatory of their absence from the lodge that day. The W.M., assisted by Bro. Stuart, P.M., and the rest of the officers, raised Bros. Fallows and Richardson to the third degree. Bro. Koch, I.P.M., having arrived, introduced, at length, a notice of motion given by him at the meeting in March, that a Benevolent Fund in connection with the lodge should be established. He stated that a very handsome amount could be accumulated by applying the sum of three shillings, which could be deducted annually from the subscriptions of the members—towards that worthy object, which would enable the lodge to assist a distressed brother or the family of a deceased one, in addition to what might be obtained for him or them from the Board of Benevolence. This matter was fully discussed by the W.M. and other brethren, and ultimately a resolution was passed that the further consideration of the subject should be adjourned until after the vacation. Bro. Koch then brought forward another notice of motion or agenda, that the services of the Secretary should be considered, with a view to their being remunerated. He spoke very highly of the efforts at all times made by Bro. Stuart to further the interests of Freemasonry, and the welfare of the lodges which he represented, and in conclusion he moved that the sum of not less than five guineas should be annually voted to Bro. Stuart as Secretary to the Kennington lodge, which was seconded by Bro. Robinson. Bro. Webb moved and Bro. Cruse seconded the following amendment, "that the sum of ten guineas should be awarded Bro. Stuart for his services." Bro. Walls moved as a further amendment, that the sum of five guineas should be immediately paid the Secretary as a gratuity for his past services in addition to an amount of not less than five guineas to be voted annually; this motion was seconded by Bro. Sirgood, but upon discussion this was withdrawn in favour of Bro. Webb's amendment, which was passed and carried. The lodge was then duly closed. There being no banquet, at the refreshment which followed labour the toasts were necessarily few, and but briefly given by the W.M. Bro. Koch proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was heartily received. Bro. Gardner in reply thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said he would take that opportunity of also tendering his acknowledgment to the brethren who had so kindly elected him on the 19th ult., to represent the Kennington Lodge as Steward at the installation of the Prince of Wales, the duties of which position he would endeavour to discharge to the best of his ability. The remainder of the evening was agreeably and convivially spent by the brethren, assisted by the vocal and dramatic efforts of the W.M., Bros. Stokes, Walls, and Richardson. Bro. Creed (1445) was the only visitor.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 7th inst. at the Sisters Tavern, Pownall Road, Haggerston, when Bro. W. H. Lee, W.M., presided, assisted by the following officers: Bro. T. C. Chapman, S.W.; H. Lister, J.W.; B. Meyer, Treasurer; N. Green, Secretary; Shackleton, S.D.; Syree, J.D.; and Baker, I.G. Meyer and Johnson, the work being ably performed by the W.M., assisted by his efficient staff of officers. The bye-laws were approved, and it was agreed that the lodge should meet on the last Thursday in every alternate month. Bro. Lee, W.M., has been nominated to serve as Steward at the installation of the M.W. Grand Master. Refreshment followed labour, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The visitors were Bros. Reed, Stretton, (1326), and Kleimenhagen (1298).

INSTRUCTION.

STRONG MAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 45).—This lodge held its regular weekly meeting on the 5th inst., at the Crown Tavern, Clerkenwell Green. Present—Bros. PROVINCIAL.

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—ADAMS LODGE (No. 158).—The annual meeting of this lodge took place at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 25th, at the board room of the Sheerness Local Board of Health, for the purpose of installing Bro. Thomas Jno. Firminger, S.W., W.M. elect, who was about to be placed in the chair, as his father had previously been, with honour to himself and credit to the lodge, which event attracted an unusually large attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, by the W.M., Bro. A. Oyston, assisted by his officers, when letters were read from the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. J. F. Eastes, and the Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. A. Spencer, of Kent, expressing their regret at being unable to attend, which deprived the brethren of the pleasure anticipated. The lodge being opened in the second degree, the W.M. elect was presented for the benefit of installation, by Bro. Jas. Bagshaw, P.M. and Secretary. After the Ancient Charges and Regulations were given and assented to, the chair of K.S. was then assumed by Bro. A. Spears, P.M. and P.P.G.O. of Kent, whose ceremony was most impressively rendered, and appreciated by all, who congratulated him on his excellent working. After Bro. Firminger had been placed in the chair of K.S., by the Board of Installed Masters, he by the power invested in him, closed the lodge down to the first degree. Oyston, I.P.M., proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman and members of the local Board of Health, for their kindness in granting them the use of the room, which was carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed in accordance with ancient custom and with solemn prayer. The brethren, about fifty in number, then adjourned to the Mason's Hall, where a most sumptuous banquet had been prepared under the direction of Mrs. Green, widow of late B. J. Green, P.M., which gave great satisfaction to all.

CHIPPENHAM.—LANSDOWN LODGE OF UNITY (No. 626).—On Tuesday, April 13th, the regular monthly meeting was held at 4 p.m., at the Town Hall. The W.M. being absent, by request the chair was taken by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire, who had been specially invited from Bath for the occasion. He was supported by Bros. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. A. A. Heady was examined, entrusted, and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the third degree, and the candidate being re-introduced, was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by the acting W.M., who also gave him the traditionary history of the degree, illustrated the working tools, delivered the charge, and also a lecture on the third degree, which was listened to with great attention by the members. The lodge was closed down to the first degree, and the Master's Chair was taken by Bro. Milsom, P.M. Several matters of business, of great interest to the members of the lodge, were postponed on account of the absence of the W.M. A cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Dr. Hopkins for his assistance, proposed and seconded by the Wardens, was carried by acclamation, and appropriately responded to. The proceedings concluded, and the lodge was closed soon after 6 p.m.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ROYAL ST. EDMUND'S LODGE (No. 1008).—On Friday 2nd inst., the eleventh anniversary and installation of the W.M. of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, 1008, took place at the Angel Hotel. The brethren, to the number of about 50, assembled in the lodge room at half-past three, and a candidate was duly initiated into Freemasonry, the impressive ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. the Rev. C.J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain of England. The ceremony of Installation was then proceeded with, Bro. Capt. J.N. York, P.G.S.W., Cambs., acting as Installing Master. The W.M. elect, Bro. J. Hedley Bevan, was conducted to the pedestal by two P.M.'s, and after taking the obligation, was duly proclaimed in the several degrees. The new W.M. elected and invested his officers as follows:—S.W., Bro. F. Fearnside; J.W., Bro. W. Patrick; S.D., Bro. H. Miller; J.D., Bro. T.F. Lucia; I.G., Bro. E.M. Fyson; D. of C., Bro. J.D. Perrott, P.M.; Chaplain Bro. the Rev. R. Evans; Steward, Bro. E.J. Griffiths; Organist, Bro. W.J. Nunn; Secretary, Bro. W.H. Lucia, P.M., P.G. Secretary. On the motion of Bro. W.E. Bailey, P.M., seconded by Bro. G. Thompson, P.M., Bro. Major T.J. Huddleston was elected Treasurer. Bro. Gooch was then re-elected Tyler. The admonitory address to the new W.M., the officers, and the brethren, was admirably given by Bro. W.H. Lucia. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. the Rev. J. Martyn, a vote of thanks was carried unanimously to Bro. York for the excellent manner in which he had performed his duties as Installing Master. After lodge was closed the brethren sat down to a recherché banquet, well worthy of the high reputation of Bro. W.G. Guy as a caterer. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. J. Hedley Bevan, and among those present were Bro. J.N. York, P.M.; Bro. Major, T.J. Huddleston, P.G.S.W.; Bro. G. Thompson, P.M.; Bro. J.D. Perrott, P.G.S.W., South Wales; Bro. the Rev.—Farnham, P.P.D.G.M. Bombay; Bro. the Rev. C.J. Martyn, P.G.C.; Bro. Wheeler, W.M., 1224; Bro. J.F. Hills, P.M. 1224; Bro. J.T. Smith, W.M. 514; Bro. W.H. Lucia, P.G. Sec., &c. The usual Masonic toasts were given, and the evening was greatly enlivened by a number of glees and songs given by the brethren, Bro. F. Fearnside presiding at the pianoforte. During the evening the Secretary stated that he had received a letter from P.G.M., Lord Waveney, expressing his regret that absence from England would prevent his being present. At midnight, one of the most successful anniversaries ever held in connection with this prosperous lodge, was brought to a close.

ECCLESHELL.—ECCLESHELL LODGE (No. 1034).—The brethren of this young, but enterprising lodge, assembled on Friday, the 19th March, to celebrate the festival of St. John the Evangelist, and the tenth anniversary of consecration. A large number of members and visiting brethren were present, amongst whom were the R.W. Bro. Bentley Shaw, P.G.W., Deputy Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire; Bros. Henry Smith, Prov. G. Sec.; Thos. Hill, P. Prov.

G.W., Chairman of Charity Committee; C. H. Taylor P. Prov. G.D.; Wm. Beanland, P.G. Supt. of Wks.; Christopher Pratt, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Wks.; John Clark; W.M. Hope, 302; Thos. Riley, W.M. Harmony, 600; S. W. Monckman, W.M. 1018. The lodge was opened by the W.M. (Bro. William Pratt) at 2.30 p.m., when Mr. Thos. Waterhouse and Mr. James Southworth, of Bradford, were ballotted for and unanimously elected, and afterwards initiated by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Wm. Beanland, P.M. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bro. James Hargreaves and Abraham Elsworth were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Jno. Procter, I.P.M. The W.M. afterwards announced that the installation of the W.M. and officers for the ensuing year would be proceeded with, and called upon Bro. Christopher Pratt, P.M., to perform the ceremony. Bro. Wm. Beanland, P.M., then presented Bro. Geo. Pearson, W.M. elect, and he was duly and properly installed Worshipful Master in a very impressive and able manner by the Installing Master. The W.M. invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Wm. Pratt, I.P.M.; Rev. Jno. Cartman, Chaplain; B. W. Feasington, S.W.; Geo. Bail, J.W.; Jno. Procter, P.M., Treas.; James Arnold, Sec.; Josh. Hardwick, S.D.; F. W. Nicholson, J.D.; Wm. Thos. Croft, Org.; F. Smart, M.C.; E. G. Rhodes, I.G.; Josh. Lightfoot, Tyler; John Cuss and Josh. Wilson, Stewards. The business being concluded, the R.W. Bro. Bentley Shaw, P.G.W., Deputy Prov. Grand Master, rose to address the brethren, who received him with acclamation. He first congratulated the W.M. upon the honour which the brethren had conferred upon him, by placing him in the chair, and he hoped that the Great Architect would bless him with health to discharge the important and responsible duties of that honourable position. He congratulated the Installing Master on the impressive and solemn manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation; and then referred to the time, ten years ago, when amongst the first of his official duties as Deputy Prov. Grand Master of West Yorkshire, he had the pleasure to consecrate the Eccleshill Lodge, and he had always retained a lively recollection of the kind and hearty reception he received from the first W.M. and the brethren on that occasion, and the pleasure he felt in meeting them in such a beautiful and appropriate lodge-room. Looking back upon those ten years of official life, he felt he had much reason to be grateful for the kindness he had invariably received from the brethren of the province, but at the same time he could not fail of being reminded that those ten years were ten years taken from the lives of himself and the brethren, and that many active Provincial Officers, some of whom assisted in the ceremony of the consecration of that lodge were now no more. In visiting the Eccleshill Lodge for the second time, and speaking to the brethren, who completely filled every part of that beautiful lodge room, it seemed to him that it would probably be the last occasion he should have the opportunity of joining them within those walls, or meeting them in his present official capacity, he concluded by wishing the lodge every prosperity, and with a full heart he bid his brethren an affectionate farewell. After the usual collection for poor and distressed Masons, the lodge was closed in accordance with ancient custom, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, before the conclusion of which the Dep. Prov. G.M. rose to take his leave, and, quoting from the old couplet:

"Inclination bids me stay,
"But duty calls me hence away."

he again thanked the brethren, and withdrew amidst the most enthusiastic cheering. After the banquet, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M. Bro. Chris. Pratt, P.M., proposed the toast of "The R.W. Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M., of West Yorks., and the rest of the Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge," and Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. Grand Secretary, responded. In the absence of the Chaplain, the toast of "The Immortal Memory of St. John the Evangelist," was proposed from the chair, and honoured by the brethren in the usual manner. Bro. John Procter, P.M., Treas., proposed, "The Health of the retiring W.M." in very eulogistic terms, he said it was unnecessary to enter into a detailed account of the many eminent qualities which characterized this worthy brother, as the brethren were already thoroughly acquainted with them, but he might be allowed to remark to the visitors who were present that Bro. Wm. Pratt, I.P.M., was a brother of whom the lodge might be justly proud. He had discharged the onerous duties of his exalted position with much credit and satisfaction, and had paid due regard to the correct working of the lodge, and by his uniform kindness and urbanity had secured the lasting esteem of his brethren. Bro. Wm. Pratt, I.P.M., thanked the brethren for the hearty manner in which they had honoured the toast, and for the kindness and courtesy he had always received at their hands. He expressed his obligation to the officers for the assiduity and punctual attendance they had given to their respective duties during the year. He said it would no doubt, on that occasion, be interesting to the brethren if he reverted to the history of their lodge since its commencement. The Eccleshill Lodge was founded by the nine members and four honorary Past Masters whose names were engraved on the marble tablet in the lodge room, and who at the time were all members, (principally past officers), of the Lodge of Hope, 302. It was consecrated on the 10th of March, 1865, by the Dep. Prov. Grand Master, (who had again honoured them with his much esteemed presence on this their 10th anniversary.) Since its consecration, 69 members had been initiated within its precincts, and 6 brethren had become joining members, the number of members on its roll at the present time being 63, which included the three hon. P.M.'s who are left of the four associates with the founders. And the best proof that proper care had been exercised in the admission of candidates was the right noble manner in which "the sacred claims of charity" had always been received by them. It would be the province of their much esteemed charity representative (Bro. S. G.

Hutchison, P.M.) to tell them of the support which he and his predecessors in the office had received. During the year of Bro. P. M. Procter, who preceded him in the chair, and to whose untiring efforts the lodge was indebted, the large, convenient, and well-ventilated refreshment room in which they were now met was built, and the brethren had been able during the past year to enjoy its superior comfort and convenience. He concluded by calling upon the brethren to drink with him the health of the highly respected brother, (Bro. George Pearson), who, possessing in an eminent degree the able and generous qualities befitting the important office, the brethren had unanimously selected to rule over them for the year, and he confidently trusted that the same harmony, love and charity, which had hitherto characterized the members of the Eccleshill Lodge, and contributed so much to its success, would still be continued under his auspices as Worshipful Master. The toast was received with the warmest approval, and Bro. George Pearson, W.M., in responding, begged to tender his sincere thanks to the I.P.M., for the very kind sentiments he had expressed towards him in proposing the toast, and to the Past Masters, officers, and brethren, for the hearty and Masonic manner in which they had received it. Having conferred upon him their highest honour, and knowing he had their best wishes, it would be his earnest desire, along with his brother officers, to endeavour to discharge the duties appertaining to the lodge in as faithful and satisfactory a manner in the future, as it had been all their good fortune to enjoy in the past. He hoped those Masonic principles which had animated the brethren towards the charities in the past, would stimulate them in the future. Bro. Thos. Shackleton, P.M., proposed in suitable terms "The Masonic Charities," coupling with the toast their newly re-elected Charity Representative, Bro. J. G. Hutchinson, P.M., and their distinguished brother, Thos. Hill, the Chairman of the Charity Committee of West Yorks. Brother J.G. Hutchison, P.M., in reply to the toast, thanked the brethren for re-electing him to the honourable office of their Charity Representative, an office which he regarded as a very important one, and having duties requiring careful attention; he also thanked the brethren for their liberal support of the Charities. The amount subscribed by members of the lodge since its foundation in 1865 exceeded £570, and at the present time the lodge was possessed of twenty-three votes in perpetuity, and members of the lodge had fifty-three votes, making a total number of seventy-five votes for the Masonic charities. During the year nine officers of the lodge had been endowed for the Boys' School, representing a payment of £94 10s., and the brethren had also, during the same period, contributed £63, as a donation to the widow of a deceased member. These facts shewed the spirit which animated the brethren of this lodge, in exercising the true characteristic of Masonry, viz., charity, which he had confidence would be continued, and intimated that in the coming year he would make an appeal to the brethren for the endowment of the remaining offices for the Girls' School. Bro. Thos. Hill, P.M., also responded to the toast. He congratulated the brethren of the Eccleshill Lodge upon the distinction they had gained in the province for their liberality in support of the Masonic Charities, and he was proud of being identified with the lodge as an honorary member from its foundation. The "Visiting Brethren," was proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Jno. Clark, W.M. 302; Thos. Riley, W.M. 600; J. W. Monckman, W.M. 1018, and A. Anty, 387. Other toasts, including the Past Masters, Past Officers and Present Officers of the lodge, were proposed and responded to, and the meeting enlivened by glees and solos sung by musical brethren present. This very happy celebration was brought to a successful conclusion by the customary last toast of the evening.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—On Wednesday evening, the 7th inst., the usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall. There were present—Bros. Henry T. Bobart, P. Prov. G.S.B., W.M.; F. Iliffe, I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M., Treas.; J. Worsnop, P.M., Sec.; Geo. Pipes, as S.D.; T. Gadsby, J.D.; J. Heathcote, I.G.; W. Stone, Tyler, P. The lodge was opened in the first degree. The circular convening the meeting was read, and the minutes of the last lodge were confirmed. Mr. Richard Daniel, and Mr. Jas. Parkins, jun., being in attendance, were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the W.M. The lodge unanimously voted funds for a Past Master's jewel, to be presented to Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M., Treas., as a small recognition of the appreciation of the lodge of his great services. Nothing further offering, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, and adjourned till the first Wednesday in the ensuing month.

HAMPION COURT.—THE ERA LODGE (No. 1423) held its regular meeting on Saturday, April 10th, 1875, at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court. The lodge was opened by Bro. James William Baldwin, W.M. There were present Bros. E. H. Thielley, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; F. Walters, P.E.P., Middlesex; Sec. E. W. Devereux, S.D.; S. Wolff, J.D.; A. F. Loos, I.G.; B. Wright, M.C.; W. A. Simmons, W.S.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, P.M.; M. Underwood, J. H. Pearson, J. Mason, H. Haija, J. A. Moore, W. Chartres, and others. The visitors were Bros. W. Hammond, P.G.S. Middlesex, P.M. 201, W.M. 1326, W.M. 1512; H. Keeble, P.M. 1275, S.D. 73; E. J. Drew, 1269; J. Brogden, 1326, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the admission of Mr. William Eagle. The W.M. proved his proficiency as a good worker in the Craft by doing all the ceremonies in an admirable manner. He raised Bros. W. Chartres and J. Brogden, 1326; passed Bro. J. A. Moore, and initiated Mr. Arthur Rumbelow.

Bro. F. Walters took the Chair and in his usual faultless style, initiated his old friend Mr. William Eagle into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The W.M., Bro. J. W. Baldwin, resumed the chair. It was unanimously resolved that a set of chairs for W.M., S.W. and J.W., as also platforms, be purchased for use of the lodge by the next meeting. A case of distress was relieved. The lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—HENSLEY LODGE (No. 1472).—On Tuesday, 6th inst., the above lodge held its monthly meeting, at Past Master West's hostelry, the 'Three Crowns, North Woolwich, this being the first meeting since the installation of the W.M. Bro. Brayshaw. The meeting was well attended. After the lodge had been duly opened, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the last meeting were confirmed. Bro. Watson was then passed to the second degree, and Mr. Williams, a candidate for Masonry was, after an unanimous ballot, initiated, the work being done by the W.M. with rare and impressive force. Bro. P.M. Sisley, the first W.M. of the lodge, was then presented with a superbly illuminated address, splendidly mounted and framed in gold, as a token of the esteem and regard in which he is held by the brethren of the lodge, as well as for the able manner in which he installed his successor at the recent ceremony. The address is signed by Bros. B. Brayshaw, W.M.; J. Ives, S.W.; W. Steel, J.W.; C. Ashdown, P.M. and Treas.; and E. West, Sec., pro tem. After Bro. P.M. Sisley had feelingly returned thanks for their very handsome testimonial, the lodge was closed, and the fourth degree entered into in a manner becoming its well known hospitality. After supper, the usual loyal Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Some excellent harmony enlivened the proceedings, till at an early hour the "Tyler's toast" closed a most excellent evening's work.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34 Bis.).—The most important meeting of this lodge since their festival at the close of the year, was that of the 6th inst., when the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow made their annual visit. The R.W.M., Bro. William Bell, presided, and there were also present, in their respective places, the following office bearers, namely, Bros. Thomas Fletcher, I.P.M.; John D. Young, S.W.; D. Horne, J.W.; P. Brownlie, S.D.; John Reid, J.D.; R. B. Dalzell, Treasurer; and John Dick, Secretary. Amongst the numerous attendance of visiting brethren present were Bros. J. B. McNair, R.W.M. 332; Wm. Harper, 408; John Wallace, 413, &c.; and, in all, no fewer than 105 signed the Tyler's book. The lodge having been opened, Bros. Wm. Scott and Andrew Gray, both of the ancient lodge St. John, Lesmahagow (No. 20), were affiliated as members of St. John (34), by Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M. 413. Thereafter, the deputation from Provincial Grand Lodge was introduced and received with all the honours. It consisted of Bros. John Baird, acting P.G.M.; J. B. Walker, Treasurer; A. McTaggart, Secretary; James Gillies, S.D.; James Ritchie, A.; John Fraser, Assistant Marshal; A. Allison, Jeweller; A. Bain, B.B.; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; W. Phillips, S.B.; A. Arrick Smith, I.G.; and George Sinclair, Treasurer and convenor of the P.G. Benevolent Fund. The deputation having taken their seats, the R.W.M. (Brother Bell) said he had the greatest pleasure in welcoming them there; and, in recognition of their authority, of resigning his chair and presenting his mallet to Bro. Baird, acting P.G.M. To this the latter replied that, as an act of loyalty on the part of the Master of Lodge St. John to the Prov. Grand Lodge, he received the mallet, but knowing that it could not be in better hands than that of the R.W.M., he begged to return it, and asked him to retain his chair during the remainder of the proceedings. He (Bro. Baird) then called upon the P.G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart) to state the result of the visitation of the Prov. Grand Lodge in regard to the condition in which they had found the affairs of the lodge. Bro. McTaggart said that the task devolving upon him that night was an important one, from the fact that their visit was to the oldest lodge within the province. He might say that the deputation had examined the lodge books somewhat minutely, with the result that they found that these had been very well and carefully kept during the past year, affording a just and faithful record of the lodge transactions. The position of the lodge was, possibly, higher now than ever at any past period of its history. They had, perhaps, made more Masons than ever before; and, distinctly, they had given more to the Prov. G. Lodge Benevolent Fund than ever they had done before in any one year. The sederunt-book and the minute-book had been exceedingly well kept; the roll book had, on the whole, been well kept, as had also the cash-book. The balance on the right side on the latter, they observed, was the handsome sum of £114 3s. 2d. In one way and another, the lodge distributed £30 in honest charity, and that did not include the sum of £18 15s., which they had handed over to Bro. Sinclair, Treasurer of the P.G. Benevolent Fund. During last working year they had made into the lodge the large number of 75 candidates. Bro. Baird said that after the exhaustive very statement made by the Secretary, it behoved him to say very few words indeed. He was more than delighted at hearing what he had heard of the working and prosperity of the lodge during the past year. The report showed something to be proud of. He congratulated the R.W.M. on his position, and on the prosperity that had attended his predecessor; and hoped that the report to be submitted, next year would be if possible better. The R.W.M. having briefly replied, Bro. Sinclair gave a short statement of the working of the Benevolent Fund for the past twelve months, from which it appeared that the sum of £97 13s had been distributed in grants to 49 applicants, and that the capital of the Fund at the present time was £570 2s 11d. It was very gratifying, he remarked, to see the latter had been increasing year by year, and he had reason for hoping that before long it would be more materially increased. On the motion of the Chairman a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the deputation, who then withdrew. After an approved candidate, Henry Winslow, had received the E.A. degree, the lodge adjourned to refreshment, at which they were by a 1d by joined by a portion of the Prov. Grand Lodge deputation. The toasts of "The P.G.L.," given by the Chairman, and replied to by Bro. Baird, and that of the "Visiting Brethren," given by the S.W., having been duly honoured, Bro. McTaggart asked permission to propose the health of the Chairman, the R.W.M. of the lodge. It was something, he said, for the visitors to meet with the lodge in such happy circumstances, with so many brethren congregated within their walls; but it was something more for the lodge to have at its head a man and a Mason who, in true heart and spirit, was worthy of the position in which they had placed him. The deputation wished him God speed in his future; and all success to the old lodge over which he presided. If he succeeded in advancing its prosperity even one step beyond what had been done by his predecessors, he would have gained a laurel—although, for the matter of that, the lodge had already given him the highest honour in their power in making him their Master. The toast was pledged with much enthusiasm, and replied to by R.W.M. He thanked them very kindly, he said, for the honour they had done him in proposing his health, and for the high eulogium passed upon him by the P.G. Secretary, which he felt, however, he did not deserve. In taking office in that lodge he had been at all times willing to do anything he could do; and whatever he did, he had done it at least with a good will. Therefore, when Bro. Fletcher was kind enough to ask him to take office, he said he would do so; and he was sure he was not an office-bearer of the lodge but could testify to the fact that never was a more harmonious year than that of Bro. Fletcher's reign. For his own part, as he now stood, he (the chairman) could say that never was a Master better supported than he was by his office-bearers; his Wardens, Bros. Young and Horn, having never been absent for one night. In conclusion, the chairman declared that it was his intention to do all that he could for the good of his mother lodge. The lodge was soon afterwards called to labour, and closed in due and ancient form.

DUMBARTON.—ST. JOHN'S KILWINNING (No. 18). The monthly communication of this Lodge was held in their Lodge Room on the evening of Friday, the 9th of April. After the usual formalities in opening the Lodge, five candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Order by the Senior Warden, Bro. B. Thomson. A long time was occupied ament. Notices of motions in the Grand Lodge, and the unsatisfactory manner in which the Grand Secretary transacted the duties of his office was reviewed in connection with No. 18. Answers to important communications cannot be got from him, although the R.W.M. was asked if in the event of the Lodge being invited to attend the opening of the new pier at Dumbarton, if it could do so. To which he replied that no invitation had yet been received although it was to be done; but considering that as there was nothing praiseworthy to be done he could not as Masons advise them to attend to take a secondary part, nor to lend themselves to every public occasion, an expression which was loudly applauded. Several other minor matters were then transacted, and the Lodge closed in due form.

LODGE THISTLE AND ROSE (No. 73).—The ordinary bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, at 170 Buchanan-st., on the 6th inst. The Chair was occupied by Bro. George McDonald, R.W.M., and there were also present Bros. George Weston, P.M.; Jno. Bannerman, D.M.; W. McCreeger, S.W.; Jas. S. Ampleford, Sec.; Walton, Treas.; Wm. T. Kay, S.D.; Geo. W. Wheeler, Chaplain; and others. There was a numerous attendance, the business toward being the annual visitation by the P.G.L. of Glasgow. The lodge being then opened, the deputation of the body entered, and were received with due honour. It consisted of the same brethren whose names are given above in our report of Lodge St. John's meeting. Having taken their seats upon the dais, and the R.W.M. having in customary form acknowledged the superiority of P.G.L., and requested by Bro. Baird to retain his seat and mallet, the P.G. Sec., (Bro. McTaggart), said it afforded him considerable pleasure at being able to report that after due examination, the deputation had found the books of the lodge in very good condition, and that the lodge was working, as heretofore, in strict harmony with the constitution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. He knew no Master in the province who had given so much and distinct attention to Grand Lodge law as Bro. McDonald, on whom, therefore, he thought the report they had been able to make reflected credit. In addition to the good condition of the books, he found also that their funds were flourishing. They had to their credit in the bank the sum of £44 15s. 2d. which, with £10 in the Treasurer's hands, made in all £54 15s. 2d. Their charity, independently of the levy to the Benevolent Fund, had been £19, which, with £4 15s. paid into the said fund that night, made their contributions to charity in all during the year £23 15s. They had made in all during the year 24 members, 3 of whom received the three degrees in one night; but, as he understood from the books, these were cases of real emergency. After a few further remarks, and some wholesome advice, Bro. McTaggart concluded by expressing his hope that the little defects he had pointed out would be taken in the true Masonic spirit in which they had been given. Their lodge stood very well in the province, as it always has done; and, for the sixth time in his experience as P.G. Secretary, he begged to congratulate them. Bro. Baird, in a few remarks also congratulated the lodge upon their prosperity. They would see that the visit of P. G. L. once a year to them was no mere formal matter, but a thorough investigation of their state; the object of which was to give confidence that everything was being done in proper order. He regretted the absence on that occasion of the R.W.P.G.M., but the deputation would take good care to inform him on the satisfactory condition of lodge 73. The R.W.M. having thanked the members of P.G.L. for their visit, and Bro. Sinclair having stated the present position of the P.G. Benevolent Fund, the deputation retired in order as they had come.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The annual festival of this lodge was held within their own hall, at 12, Trongate, on 31st ult. The chair was occupied by the R.W.M., Bro. J. Morgan, and Bros. Jasper Martin, D.M., and James Horn, J.W., officiated as Croupiers. The chairman was supported on the dais by Bros. Joseph Wilson, I.P.M.; Wm. Anderson, P.M.; Wm. Bell, R.W.M. 34; Alex. Bain, P.M. 103; W. H. Bickerton (Freemason); and W. B. Paterson, 27; whilst the body of the hall was completely filled, by brethren and visitors, with their wives, sweethearts, &c. After an excellent supper, purveyed by Bro. Middleton, of Trongate Dining Rooms, the chairman delivered a short opening address. He thanked them, in the first place for coming forward in such goodly numbers to assist at the 76th anniversary of Lodge Star. It was seldom, he believed, that the lodge-room had been graced by such a galaxy of talent and beauty as he saw before him. With regard to the ladies, he assured them that he made them heartily welcome to that hall; and he hoped that from what they had seen, and what they would see, they would forgive the brethren for on other occasions being compelled to leave them out. As to the condition of Lodge Star, he could only say that it was flourishing; and, he expected, would still shine out as bright, if not brighter, than any other in the Province of Glasgow. The chairman then made a few humorous remarks as to the antiquity of the Craft, and referring to the principles it inculcated, said that "morality was the watchword and charity the pass-word of Freemasonry," and this being the case, it was bound to go on and flourish in the future as it had done in the past. In conclusion, the Chairman remarked that that was the first time he had occupied that position, but he hoped it would not be the last. The toast list was then entered upon, the Chairman giving first, in succession, "The Queen and the Craft," and the "Three Grand Lodges," which were duly honoured. Bro. Martin, croupier, then proposed "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," coupled with the name of Bro. Bain, P.G.B.B., who ably replied to the same. The chairman then gave "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," coupled with Bro. W. B. Paterson, by whom it was acknowledged. The toast of "Lodge Star, 219," was then given by Brother Bain, pledged with enthusiasm, and replied to by the R.W.M., Bro. Morgan. The remaining toasts were the "Health of Bro. J. Wilson, P.M.," "Sister Lodges," coupled with the name of Bro. William Bell, R.W.M. 34, who replied; and "The Ladies," by Bro. Horn, croupier. At various intervals, the proceedings were agreeably relieved by the vocal efforts of Bros. Jas. Houston, Perston, and others. The occasion concluded with an assembly, which was kept up with unflagging spirit, until an early hour.

LODGE ST. MUNGO (No. 27).—The usual bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-st., on 1st inst. The R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler presided, the other office-bearers present being Bros. A. McTaggart, D.M.; Dr. McInnes, S.W.; Wm. Neven, Sec.; and A. R. Wilson, Chaplain. There was an unusually large attendance of members and visiting brethren present, for the reasons that the P.G.L. of Glasgow were to pay this lodge their annual visitation, and that the brethren were thereafter to be favoured with a lecture by Bro. the Rev. Jamieson, of St. Matthew's Established Church. The lodge having been opened, three candidates, duly proposed and seconded, received the E.A. degree at the hands of Bro. McTaggart. Thereafter, the deputation from the P.G.L. was introduced, consisting of Bros. John Baird, acting P.G.M.; J. B. Walker, Treasurer; A. McTaggart, Sec.; Geo. Sinclair, Treas., and Conv. of P.G. Benevolent Fund; J. Gillies, S.D.; Jno. Fraser, Assistant Marshal; A. Allison, Jeweller; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; John Miller, Director of Music; W. Phillips, S.B.; and A. A. Smith, I.G. The deputation having taken their places on the dais, the R.W.M. (Bro. Butler) acknowledged the authority of the P.G.L. in the usual form, by handing his mallet to Bro. Baird, the latter immediately returning it, with the remark that it could not be in better hands. The P.G. Sec. then read the report of the deputation. He would not, he said, trespass much upon their time. As they were all aware, he held one of the highest offices in Lodge 27, and, therefore, he did not think it would become him to go into detail about his own lodge. Briefly he might state that they were making satisfactory progress, and he believed both Bros. Sinclair and Walker were well content with what they had received during the past year. On the whole the deputation were remarkably well satisfied with the conduct of the lodge, and of its office-bearers, and with the support they had invariably given to the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow. Bro. Baird said he regretted exceedingly the absence of the R.W.P.G.M.; but he (the speaker) knew that he would be glad to hear the report the deputation had been able to make that night. The R.W.M. having briefly thanked the deputation for their visit, this portion of the proceedings terminated, and the chairman announced that Bro. Jamieson would give them his lecture, which the Rev. Bro. proceeded to do. It was entitled "The Clergy and Laity," and was mainly a powerful protest against the superstitious notions which prevail regarding the difference between the two classes, and by which a clergyman is prevented from joining with the people in regard to many innocent amusements and recreations. In regard to this matter, he held that what was innocent and proper and right for the laity, could not be much wrong for the clergy. On the conclusion of the lecture, which evoked great applause, and on the motion of the chairman, a hearty vote of thanks was recorded to the Rev. Bro., who briefly acknowledged the compliment. The lodge was thereafter duly closed.

PAISLEY.—LODGE RENFREW COUNTY KILWINNING (No. 370) held their regular fortnightly meeting on Thursday, 1st inst., in their hall, High street, Paisley. Bro. James Anderson, R.W.M., presiding. There was a good attendance of members and visitors, among whom we noticed, Bro. J. M. Olliver, Lodge Commercial, 360, Bro. Geo. Fisher, St. Mirren Lodge, 129, and Bro. Nicholson. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Anderson, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. There being no business before the lodge in particular, Bro. J. M. Olliver delivered an able and interesting address upon Freemasonry, which was very instructive and pleasing to all present. After a few remarks from Bro. Nicholson, Bro. Geo. Fisher addressed the brethren on the duty of becoming efficient members of the Order, with a few practical remarks and illustrations upon the principles and true spirit upon which Freemasonry is based. With Bro. Olliver's and Bro. Fisher's interesting lectures, and some excellent songs from the brethren, a very pleasant evening was spent, each one being highly pleased with the evening's entertainment. After a vote of thanks had been tendered to Bro. Olliver for his kindness in coming to address them, the lodge was closed in due form.

GOVAN.—LODGE GOVANDALE (No. 437).—The regular fortnightly meeting of this lodge, was held in their hall, Portland Buildings, Govan, on Tuesday, 6th inst., Bro. J. Mc. Farlane, R.W.M., presiding, supported by R. Muir, S.W.; Bro. W. Robb, acting J.W.; J. Miller, D.M.; and the remaining officers in their respective places. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. An application was read from Mr. Robert Blyth, for admission into the ancient customs and privileges of Freemasonry; there being no objection, the candidate received the E.A. degree, Bro. J. Miller, D.M., officiating. The lodge was then raised, and Bro. C. Petres and P. Guild received the F.C. degree, Bro. Wm. Ferguson officiating. The lodge being again raised Bro. John Robertson, C. Petres and P. Guild, received the sublime degree of Master Mason, Bro. J. Mc. Farlane, R.W.M., officiating. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form.

LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY (No. 454).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on 7th inst. Bro. James Shaw, R.W.M., presided; and office-bearers of the lodge were present, as follows:—Bros. D. Buchanan, P.M.; Wm. H. Caldwell, W.M.; Jno. W. Stafford, S.W.; H. B. Ferguson, J.W.; A. Carmichael, Treas.; Wm. R. Dunn, Sec.; Jno. Harley, S.D.; Jas. Doyle, J.D.; Collin More, Director of Ceremonies; Jno. Dorman, S.S. The lodge having been opened, the Treasurer gave notice that at the first general meeting in next month he would resign his books, owing to the fact that he was about to leave the country; and accordingly Bro. Colynham was appointed to assist in having the books audited against said meeting. Thereafter a deputation from the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow, who had, in adjoining department, examined the books and accounts of the lodge for the past year admitted, and took their seats upon the dais. The members of deputation were Bros. J. B. Walker, P.G. Treas.; A. McTaggart, Sec.; J. Gillies, S.D.; John Fraser, Assistant Marshal; Wm. Bell, Convener of Committee; A. Bain, B.B.; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; A. A. Smith, I.G.; and Geo. Sinclair, Treas., and Convener of Prov. G. Lodge Benevolent Fund. The R.W.M. having in customary form acknowledged the supremacy of Prov. Grand Lodge, and resumed his function as president of the meeting, Bro. McTaggart said that the report he had to submit to them was not much different from what he had given elsewhere, nor would his remarks in any material point differ much. He hoped, however, that if not novel, they might prove satisfactory to the brethren. The deputation had to certify that they had examined the books of the Lodge, and found them in excellent condition, also that, as formerly, the Lodge was working in strict accordance with Grand Lodge of Scotland laws. He was pleased to find that their funds were in a more prosperous condition than they were last year. In the way of charity they had done very well, having distributed the handsome sum of £23, not including £7 contributed to the Benevolent Fund, being in all £30 for the past year. After some further remarks, Bro. McTaggart said that in view of the high character of that Lodge, he did not see why their fees should not be higher. In fact they might almost be doubled. He did not see why that Lodge should not have the highest fees exigible in the province of Glasgow. Their fees were too cheap. Some persons said that if you raise your fees you will lose candidates. He (Bro. McTaggart) had not found it so. The craft hedged round and guarded their lodges in every possible way; otherwise, they said that candidates must be this and must be that, that their names must be well spoken of outside and inside the Lodge, and why should they not have them pay in a respectable way! Why not hedge round their Lodges with a money test as well; nor have it said that men could come from other countries and get made here cheaper and then go away back again! Another most advisable test was an annual subscription; and if Scotch masons were to elevate themselves in the eyes of the masonic world, they must have it. In conclusion, Bro. McTaggart said he had to congratulate the R.W.M. on the position he held in the Lodge, and also on the position the Lodge held the province of Glasgow. The R.W.M. shortly replied, thanking the deputation for this kind visit, and assuring them that the remarks of the P. G.

Sec. would receive the best attention of the Lodge and of the office-bearers. The deputation then withdrew.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

ROYAL FREEMASONS.

I do not suppose that the writer in The Graphic had any authority for the statement that Henry VI. was a Freemason beyond the tradition, such as it is, mixed up with the so-called Locke MS. There is, as far as I am aware, no evidence beyond the statement in our Masonic writers that William III. was initiated at Hampton Court. No record of it exists, as far as I am aware, and I have searched for it everywhere. There is no mention of it, I believe, before Anderson, in 1723, who, in the 1723 edition of the "Constitutions," states that "by most men he is reckoned as a Freemason," and in the 1738 edition, that "the King was privately made a Freemason." Preston says in his "new edition, with additions" in 1781, that King William was "privately initiated in 1795," and in his 13th edition mentions a lodge at Hampton Court, at which King William used to attend. Beyond this, there is, as far as I know, nothing to corroborate the statement. The Duke of Edinburgh is not a Freemason. The Archives of the Masons' Company are very difficult of access, and I do not expect much more result from researches at present.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE LIBRARY.

Is there any brother at Winchester who could obtain permission to make a search for me in the library of Winchester College. If any brother would put himself in communication with me on the subject I should be greatly obliged.

INSTALLATION OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The tickets for admission to this ceremony were issued on Wednesday evening with the accompanying circular Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., April, 1875.

Sir and Brother,

I send enclosed herewith — Tickets for qualified Members of Grand Lodge in accordance with your return, and one Ticket for a Master Mason, the number of applications being so unexpectedly large as to prevent the allotment of more than one Master Mason's admission to each Lodge.

You will be pleased to fill on this ticket the name of one of the Master Masons returned on your list and forward to me such name with as little delay as possible, as the ticket will not be available unless the name is previously returned.

It is of course no part of my duty to suggest the manner in which the Ticket for a Master Mason should be disposed of, but inasmuch as the question has already been in many instances asked, I am directed (for the purpose of saving needless correspondence) to say that in the opinion of the Committee having charge of the arrangements, an equitable plan for adoption, in cases where it is desired to avoid the process of balloting, would appear to be to allot the Ticket to the oldest subscribing Member on the list of Master Masons returned.

Any brother who may be unable to produce his Grand Lodge certificate is recommended to come with a known brother of the same Lodge or Province who can if necessary vouch for him.

I take this opportunity of drawing your especial attention to the regulations of the Craft which forbid unauthorised Masonic processions or display in the public streets, and of stating that the M.W.G.M. has expressly forbidden the appearance of any brother in Masonic clothing outside the Royal Albert Hall on the occasion of the Installation.

By Command of the M.W. Grand Master,

JOHN HERVEY.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

(From our occasional Correspondent.)

There is dearth of news of any Masonic events of any importance this month in the Britain of the South, nevertheless "Progress" is the watchword of the good old Craft here, as in other portions of the globe, and, notwithstanding the large amount of abuse, we in common with our brethren in the "old country" receive weekly from the Roman Catholic press, especially through the medium of the "Dunedin Tablet," denunciations loud and deep are poured upon us, but these have about the same effect as "water upon a duck's back," and I am inclined to think that the greatest annoyance is given the editor by being let alone; certainly he has one of the fraternity in the person of the editor of the Guardian, who does him the honour of arguing the point, and so the flame is kept sufficiently lively to suit his purpose, otherwise I am persuaded the subject would die of inanition, and I think I may venture to assert, even the "quietus" promised in the December number of the Contemporary, is not likely to disturb our mental equilibrium to any alarming extent.

There is one event, however, that I may note as somewhat of a curiosity, viz., the summoning of the Port Chalmers, Marine Lodge, E. C., to attend the funeral of the wife of their respected W.M. This is a case seems an outé proceeding. I think it is only justly due to the W.M. of a lodge, that his brethren should be near him in the hour of his affliction and show their love and respect by every means in their power, but I think they overstep the bounds of Masonic prudence by attending the funeral of even a Mason's wife, carrying sprigs of evergreen and depositing the same in a manner similar to that observed at the burial of a brother. It seems to me a departure from the landmarks, and a flagrant breach of the Constitutions, and though delicacy forbids one to say more than can be helped on a matter of this kind, yet frequent anomalous proceedings of the Craft at funerals (especially in the province of Octago) make it necessary that the attention of the proper authorities should be drawn thereto by means of the Masonic press.

PORTRAIT OF BRO. LEMON.—A portrait of Bro. Lemon is about to be published, and we are sure that all Bro. Lemon's friends in the north—and they are "legion"—will be glad. While being so well and widely known and as well and widely respected, Bro. Lemon stands high in the province as the Provincial Grand Treasurer of the Cumberland and Westmoreland Freemasons, and is therefore to be represented in his provincial clothing (his permission having been obtained for that purpose.) The portrait is to be engraved in superior style by Messrs. MacIure, Macdonald & Co., and we believe nothing will be wanting to produce a portrait of Bro. Lemon which shall do himself, the subscribers, and the publishers credit.

BECTIVE LODGE, CARLISLE (No. 1535).—The new lodge at Carlisle, to be called the Bective Lodge, is to be consecrated on Friday, April 23rd, on the same day as the preliminary provincial meeting for Cumberland and Westmoreland is to be held at Carlisle. New rooms are being prepared for the lodge, and no expense is being spared to fit them up in a suitable Masonic manner. The lodge requirements are to be procured through Bro. McMechan, and are to be supplied by Bro. Kenning, of London, so that in this respect there will be nothing wanting. The first W.M. of the lodge is to be Bro. Cook, of Carlisle.—Wigton Advertiser.

At the quarterly meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Staffordshire, the Earl of Shrewsbury, P.G.M., referring to the approaching installation of the Prince of Wales as G.M. of England invited the Staffordshire brethren to meet his lordship at his town residence in Dover-street, and after lunching with him to accompany him to the Albert Hall. It was stated that about 300 Masons from this district would be present.

The Freemasons of Llandudno have presented Bro. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., with a massive silver inkstand, "as a token of their deep sense of his services to the St. Tudno Lodge, and their high appreciation of his conduct as W.M. for four years, and of their fraternal regard and esteem."

On Saturday evening, at the close of his farewell performance in Liverpool, Bro. Barry Sullivan was presented with a magnificent service of gold plate by his friends and admirers in the "Good Old Town." The presentation took place on the stage of the Royal Amphitheatre, where Bro. Sullivan has had one of the most brilliant engagements ever known in Liverpool.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The long and trying winter in this variable climate sap the foundations of health in the strongest constitutions, and prepare the way for the inroads of disease and premature decay, and the results frequently show themselves when the advent of spring with its brighter and warmer days, calls into activity latent mischief. The peccant humours which infect the frame can be readily cast out by the use of these well-known and long esteemed pills. They address themselves directly to the stomach, promote and perfect the assimilation of the food, and thus effect permanent and life long good. They thoroughly cleanse the blood, regulate disordered digestion and circulation, and by so doing re-estate failing, weak or unsound health.—ADVT.

SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1875.

NOTICE.

The Freemason of May 1st, containing a full report of the Installation, will be considerably enlarged. Orders should be given at once, to any news-agent.

NOTICE.

We beg to caution our readers once again against paying attention to any statements respecting the Installation, its arrangements, or its regulations, which do not emanate from Great Queen Street. We carefully keep the Craft acquainted with everything that is authoritatively decided and announced. Everything is proceeding in the most satisfactory way, reflecting the highest credit on those who have many arduous duties to perform.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

We are authorised with reference to the correspondence on this subject in our last impression, to say:

1. No suggestions are overlooked, all are carefully considered, and those likely to be useful and practicable acted upon.

2. The one ticket per lodge for M.M.'s will amount, not to one in twenty-five, but to one in ten of those who have applied to be present. To alter the system at the last moment would be simply impracticable, looking at the restrictions and precautions under which the ceremony must be necessarily conducted. It is not proposed to extend special favours to London over provincial lodges, in respect of Master Masons' admission.

3. Provincial Grand Officers, who attend as members of Grand Lodge, must wear, (over their Provincial Grand clothing, if that be worn) the light blue collars of the offices in virtue of which they are members of Grand Lodge, in accordance with the Book of Constitutions.

4. After the conclusion of the ceremony and the departure of the brethren, there will be no sufficient attraction in the hall to warrant the admission of the public to view it.

PRINCE LEOPOLD.

Our Royal Bro. Prince Leopold has just given a fresh indication of his zeal for Freemasonry by joining a London Lodge. On Thursday, the 8th inst., the Prince was duly elected a joining member of that old and highly distinguished lodge, the Westminster and Key Stone, No. 10, which holds its meetings at Freemasons' Hall. On Thursday, the 4th of March, His Royal Highness was regularly proposed in open lodge by Bro. the Rev. T. Cochrane, Chaplain, and P. Prov. G. Chaplain, Oxon, and seconded by Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and Prov. Grand Master of West Lancashire, and our Royal brother was then duly ballotted for at the following regular meeting of No. 10, on the 8th inst., the ballot box going round, the lodge in the usual manner. We need hardly add that the ballot proved unanimous in the Prince's favour. We feel sure that the whole Craft will appreciate the conduct of His Royal Highness in submitting to the ordeal of the ballot, and in fact going through the same forms that any ordinary joining member would have to go through. We understand that the Prince's health being almost completely re-established, it is now His Royal Highness's intention to be "raised" to the sublime degree of a M.M. at an emergency meeting of his mother lodge, the Apollo University, at Oxford, this day (Saturday, the 17th inst.)

THE PROGRESS OF MASONIC ARCHÆOLOGY, NO. VII.

It is important to note what documents, the subject perhaps of much controversy, have been identified, as the study of Masonic Archæology has progressed. There is a document for instance, called the "Register of Wm. Molart," which for a long time puzzled Masonic students. It is quoted by most Masonic writers, principally on the faith of Wm. Preston, as a proof that in Henry VI. time Freemasonry was in existence in this country, and that Archbishop Chicheley was its patron, and that under his patronage a lodge was held at Canterbury during the early part of the fifteenth century. Mr. Halliwell first threw doubts on its existence, and no such register could be found. At last it occurred to a very learned antiquary, not a Freemason, Mr. W. Wallbran, of Ripon, the editor of the Charters of Fountains Abbey, that Wm. Molart was a misnomer for Wm. Molash, a quondam Prior of the same epoch, whose register was said to exist in Christ Church College library, Oxford. And there sure enough it was found by the sub-librarian of the Bodlian, the Rev. A. Hackman, also a non-mason. Thus the document was verified at last, showing that Wm. Preston's informant had probably seen the MS., but was too careless or too ignorant to transcribe its title correctly, much less its contents. On a page of the MS. is a record of the annual grant of "Murrey Cloth" by the priory to certain persons named, and at the head of the page, stands Archbishop Chicheley Armiger. Lower down is "Le Loge Latorum." On the same page of the register are the "Magister," the two "Guardiani," and seven "apprenticii." All their names are given—which it is unnecessary to mention here. Thus, then the document is a true document, and though it does not prove what it was, for in Preston, it does show that there was a lodge of operative Freemasons in the early part of the fifteenth century, attached to Christ Church, Canterbury, in an organized form, much akin to our own to-day. In some of the historians we hear of a constitution of Edward the Third's reign; that is only a mistaken use of either a portion of the MS. poem, or of the MS. commonly called Matthew Cooke's—which have had various ages given to them, practically ad libitum, by Masonic writers, to illustrate views of their own. So too, as regards a MS. of the reign of Edward IV., sometimes mentioned; it is an extract from the Additional MS. just mentioned. The truth is, that the Masonic poem and the additional MS. were both well known to Anderson, at least, we believe so, for various reasons, and they have been made to do much service in the cause of Masonic enquiry. Of their reality and authenticity there is now no doubt. The Masonic Poem is certainly very early fifteenth century, if it be not late fourteenth century, and we do not despair of yet finding its original, as the name of its "Latin original" is found in a will, bequeathing the book to a college library in the sixteenth century. The additional MS. edited by Bro. M. Cooke, is probably, as Mr. Bond, of the British Museum, thinks, of the early part of the fifteenth century, and these MSS. prove to our mind clearly, the truth of the old Masonic tradition, that the operative guilds of Freemasons, were directed and controlled by the Monastic orders and were under ecclesiastical patronage! That they had a secret form of admission, and preserved certain modes of secret recognition is also, we think, now pretty clear, and hence the guild theory" as it is called, has received, day by day, as documents are sifted, and MSS. are collated, and compared, additional proofs of its inherent soundness, and historic truth.

THE ATTACK OF THE "SATURDAY REVIEW."

The Saturday Review has been witty, "more suo," at the expense of our good old Order. Well, we are of opinion that, as Mr. Sam Weller would say, we shall "survive the operation." We have little fear, as we take but little concern of such attacks. Indeed, we think on the whole we "rather" like them. They do us a certain amount of good; they serve as a literary "stimulant" to Masonic zeal and ability, and they only tend to show us and to convince mankind how very ignorant a very witty "litterateur" can sometimes be. All that the Saturday Review has, by way of a joke against Freemasonry, and it falls, we confess, somewhat "stale, flat, and unprofitable" on us to-day, is that we "built the Tower of Babel," and that we "like a good dinner." These are two serious charges, and require an "exhaustive" treatment. If we did build the Tower of Babel we had a good deal to do probably with "bricks;" and that is why Freemasons are so often called "bricks," figuratively, for "good fellows." That they like a good dinner is undeniable, and we do not think the less of them on that account. Who does not? We will venture to say that the Saturday Review critic does as much as any one, and whether he eats it, surrounded by fellow literateurs, equally bland and sympathetic, or with dear, dear Lavinia at Laurel Cottage, "Oxon," we feel sure he enjoys it. Why should not Freemasons like a good dinner? We never could see, given the choice between a bad dinner and a good dinner, why Bro. Spriggins was to prefer the bad, and reject the good, even on any grounds whatever of philosophic asceticism. The truth is, that Freemasons, as men generally, do like good dinners, and when you have said that, you have said all, for they have a right to do so, and they are in the right in doing so. The Saturday Review takes an exception to Freemasonry, that it teaches nothing, "but the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." Well, these are great truths in themselves, and in these days are most important, because, strange to say, a good deal put on one side, in our childish disputes and heated controversies. But Freemasonry does a good deal more than this. It proclaims unceasingly the sacred cause of "toleration," it denounces the "debasement practice of persecution," by whomsoever practised, it upholds the inalienable rights of the human conscience and free thought. Freemasonry favours ever full discussion, and an unrestricted "liberty of prophesying" for the divergent creeds and denominations of the human race. And surely this is a good deal. We get often into such narrow grooves of thinking and acting that we are inclined to denounce everybody and disagree with everybody else. Now Freemasonry possesses this great characteristic, that it is entirely tolerant. It may be in error in such a position, but it is its position, and it is one on which alike its safety and its greatness equally depend. It may be blamed by some because it seems to antagonize Christian dogma, thought it does not; it may be anathematized by others because it appears to exalt itself against ecclesiastical jurisdiction, though equally it does not, for in fact, it has to do with neither. It is simply a friendly and fraternal institution, offering a broad platform for men of opposing views outside the lodge, for members of various denominations, for those who differ, and differ widely in things political and religious in the world; a platform, we say, whereon they meet for works of active benevolence for the practice of the moral virtues and the recognition of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. To some earnest minds such a position will appear to fall short of Christian teaching; to others it will seem to be opposed to denominational interests. But such is the teaching of Freemasonry, and if the "proof of the pudding," be, as they say "in the eating," the universality of Freemasonry is the keystone of the great Masonic Arch of brotherly union and concord and has attracted to its organization countless good men and true, and not the less sincere believers and devout Christians. Despite the ridicule of our contemporary, Freemasonry is very flourishing, and Freemasons are very much in earnest. They "believe" alike in the old Craft and its tolerant principles, and they mean to adhere to it, "through evil report and through good report." Over a hundred years ago, an ingenious Frenchman thought he had devalued and ecrasé Freemasonry, and here it is, more powerful than ever. We have every reason to believe and to hope, that it will manage to survive the last "deliverance of the Saturday Review."

SPURIOUS CERTIFICATES.

We beg to call attention to a very serious matter. A very worthy and respected correspondent has sent us a spurious certificate, in blank, which, it appears, is given by some surreptitious French lodge in England, and seeks to deceive our English brethren, by leading them to believe it is a certificate from the Grand Orient of France. Probably it was some such certificate as this, which misled the brethren of the High Cross Lodge. We give a copy, verbatim et literatim, of all that is printed.

A. L. G. D. G. A. D. L'U,
Au nom de la Maçonnerie universelle,
A tous les Maçons réguliers répandus sur la surface de la Terre,
S. F. U.

Nous Vénéral, Off, et M.M. de la Loge, St. Jean, sous le titre distinctif.

[In MS.] Jules Francois. Reynaud.
Who are Bros. Jules Francois and Reynaud? Are they brothers? We invite the attention of our excellent Bro. Caubet to this certificate, which we apprehend is entirely spurious.

The issue of certificates in blank is greatly to be deprecated, and we sincerely thank our worthy correspondent for calling attention to such an impropriety, and such an attempt to impose on our English brethren and others, as we cannot suppose that any regular body of Freemasons would sanction or commit such an irregular proceeding. The certificate is printed apparently at Marseilles, the name of the printer being illegible.

BROTHER CONSTABLE DRAWING.

We are requested by our worthy Bro. Constable to state, and we do so with much pleasure, that it has been decided to postpone the drawing until the 5th May, to take place, as previously arranged, at Bro. Chard's, White Hart Tavern, Abchurch Lane, Cannon St., E.C. Bro. Constable has already in hand sufficient money for 13 Life Governorships, and many of the supporters of the movement have intimated that their sales amount to a considerable sum. So far he sees his way clear to 18 Life Governorships, represented by upwards of 3,700 tickets. Bro. Constable states that his Stewardship at present amounts to £350, and this sum is lying on deposit at the Consolidated Bank. We congratulate our worthy brother on his praiseworthy efforts and the satisfactory response so far made to them by the Craft, and we trust that the result will be satisfactory alike to his own warm heart, will greatly benefit the charities, and will lead to the advancement of Masonic benevolence.

ENGLISH & FOREIGN FREEMASONRY.

Our article on this subject lately, seems to have discomposed somewhat one or two friendly and fraternal critics. Our good Bro. J. G. Findel, for instance, in the Bauhütte of April 3, though only in a four line paragraph, expresses his disagreement with our article, and imputes to it "many errors," while praising Bro. Bergmann's letter in the "Freemason" with reference to German Freemasonry. We did not understand Bro. Bergmann as at all complaining of our statements, or imputing error to them—on the contrary—we understood his letter to be confirmatory of our views in the main. We do not profess to understand of what Bro. Findel complains. All we stated as regards German Freemasonry was, that Freemasonry in Germany was at present under different systems and G. lodges, but that the tendency of German Freemasonry latterly was to be content with Craft Masonry. We apprehend that in both our statements we are entirely borne out by the facts of the case. On looking back to Bro. C. Von Daden's "Kalendar für Freimaurer" for 1875, published by Bro. J. G. Findel, we find there are eight Grand Lodges in Germany, of which one has sixteen Scottish Rite lodges, one has 25 Andrew's lodges, one 7 inner Orients, belonging to them, besides Johannite lodges. This is the different system from ours to which we alluded, and which confessedly exists. Beyond this our remarks did not apply to German Freemasons or German Freemasonry. It was only a short time previously that we strongly protested against Cardinal Manning's attack on our Teutonic brethren, we therefore do not, as we said before, profess to understand what are the "many errors," which Bro. J. G. Findel finds in the article alluded to. Bro. C. Von Gager, in the Vienna "Freimaurer Zeitung" of April 2, makes a vehement attack on the same article of ours, which he heads "Masonic Pharisaism." As we did not allude to the Austrian Freemasons, Bro. Von Gager's fiery assault is altogether a "logomachy," rather a waste of words. We rejoice to hear from our worthy if angry brother, that in Austria the Freemasons are loyal subjects and good citizens, never meddle with politics or the problems of an advanced "socialism." Such a distinct fact, must reassure, one should think, any lingering scruples of the eminent minister Von Lasser. Our brother Von Gager gives us a new history of the formation of the English Grand Lodge, in that he says it was, as everybody knows, a "Deistical protest against confession." We don't know it. Indeed we are convinced that our good old Masonic forefathers, in 1717, cared very little about confession and the Pope, and that our historical revival had as little to do with such veils or feelings as possibly could be in this world of ours. The revival of 1717 was but a natural conclusion to the previous struggles of the operative guilds, a simple continuation of a previous purely operative Grand Assembly, though during the latter part of the 17th Century, speculative Masons like Ashmole were more freely admitted perhaps into the local lodges. We do not conceive that English Freemasonry anywhere avows that it is "Deistical." All that it does say, is, that No Atheist can be admitted, but it is not a case of sequiter, that it therefore avows Deistical teaching, though it may for its own wise purposes of universal toleration, make its admission as wide as possibly could be, with safety to itself and its members. Bro. Von Gager goes a great deal further in his objections to our article and we see why he terms it Masonic Pharisaism, a somewhat unfaternal and unbecoming expression. He tells us, that the "highly praised proceedings of the English Lodges, as far as the religious portion is concerned, are unmasonic." That is to say, as he goes on to tell us, "the Bible is an unmasonic symbol." We should have been pleased had Bro. Von Gager stopped here, for even thus far there is sufficient difference between us in all conscience. But when he continues, "since the beginning of the last century, since the foundation of our Masonic Confederation, the sciences have made immense strides, especially the 'natural-sciences,' and the last have arrived at such a standpoint, that they by no means admit of an enquiry into the existence of a 'personal God'; we feel how hurtful would be the continuation of any controversy between us. For Bro. Von Gager goes on to say 'the fabric of the world exists, but of an Almighty Master Builder of all the Worlds, though faith knows well 'natural enquiry knows nothing of him.' Here then we stop, as we are pained ourselves, and our brethren in England will be pained we are sure, with such avowals. The progress of science in England has, we are warranted in saying, with some exceptions, no doubt, led to the conclusion that all we see around us here, so wonderful, so beautiful, so glorious, and so great, is the result of supreme contrivance, of infinite design, of eternal goodness, of Divine Creation; and that there is alike for natural enquiry, and for faithful trust, the one omnipotent and beneficent Architect of the Universe. We can quite understand Bro. Von Gager's dislike of 'Pharisaism,' and we might use angry expressions 'per contra,' but we refrain, remembering the good old adage, 'hard words butter no parsnips.' We confess that if Bro. Von Gager's views be the views of any large numbers of the Austrian Freemasons we hold the prospects of Austrian Freemasonry to be gloomy in the extreme, as such an absolute negation of all positive truth may well alarm the rulers of a country, and make Minister Von Lasser hesitate. We consider Bro. Von Gager's exposition of such opinions to be very unwise and very ill-timed and we are glad to think that we, in this old-fashioned England of ours, especially in our own true teaching of Freemasonry, are all as yet far removed, and long may we continue, from such destructive teaching, and such hurtful theories of philosophical unbelief.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

To the Editor of the Freemason

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As all of us Masons cannot attend the ceremony on the 28th inst. of the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, I suggest that every lodge should have a special meeting and banquet on the day of Installation.

Yours cordially,

A PAST MASTER AND P.P.G. OFFICER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Bro.

Much as I appreciate the suggestion of Bro. N.R. and others, in your paper of the 3rd inst., "that photographers should be engaged to take views of the installation," allow me to state to him that there are several reasons why his idea cannot be carried out; 1st, because the ceremony is to take place by gaslight; 2nd, photographers on that occasion must be Masons; 3rd, There is no lens yet constructed that would embrace the angle of the hall; 4th, that the experienced authorities having been consulted, very properly (I think) declined to give permission to take photographs. There is then only one method of rescuing so grand a sight from forgetfulness, and that is, the idea to which I have been giving my attention for the last three weeks, namely, to publish by means of photography a picture, which can be produced in different sizes, of the ceremony at a given time, from photographs taken from life, containing portraits of all the Grand Officers, Past Masters, Wardens and Brethren attending. This is now being completed by me, and I may state that I have already been favoured with sittings by between 2 and 300 brethren of distinction, and continue to receive many appointments from others desirous of furthering the object.

I am, Dear Sir and Bro., fraternally yours,

E. M. HAIGH, P.M., P.G. Steward.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Many suggestions having appeared in your columns for aiding our Masonic Charities at the forthcoming installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as the Grand Master of our Order, permit me, as a Provincial W.M., who hopes to have the honour of being present at the august procedure, to suggest to Bro. Binckes a scheme which would, I think, bring "grist to the mill," and at the same time accommodate many, who, like myself, will have to remain in London all night, and yet not be privileged to attend the grand banquet. Could not our brother arrange with some of our brethren who are lessees of London theatres to give a benefit night for the Royal Institution for Boys? If so, he then might send to each lodge a number of tickets to be disposed of; say at 5s., 7s. 6d., and 10s. each. I have no doubt a full house would thus be secured, and two most essential objects gained, viz.: amusement and philanthropy.

If you think the above hint worthy of consideration, you will greatly oblige by its insertion in your cosmopolitan journal.

Yours, most respectfully and fraternally,

R.H.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Hughan's letter, pointing out how small a proportion of the candidates for the two Masonic Schools are children of subscribers, is well worth the gravest consideration. I am afraid that in, but too many instances, candidates are admitted into Masonry, whose position and prospects are not such as admit the likelihood of their being able to afford subscriptions to the Masonic Charities, and I submit that when our Book of Constitutions was drawn up, the pecuniary limit then fixed, was intended to exclude such candidates. I do not know when the fee to Grand Lodge and the minimum below which no one was permitted to be initiated were fixed, but I think it dates back to the "Articles of Union;" anyhow no alteration has been made for many years, and looking to the change in the value of money, and how all classes have trodden closer on those above them, I am quite convinced that the time has come to raise the minimum fee, and I should be much pleased to see £5 5s. take the place of £3 3s. There is a growing feeling in the Craft, and especially in some provinces, that Freemasonry is too cheap, and that something must be done to keep up our prestige.

Yours fraternally,

P. G. D.

"THE SCOTTISH FREEMASONS' MAGAZINE" AND THE "DEFENCE OF FREEMASONRY."

To the Publisher of the Freemason.

Dear Brother Kenning,—

I have read a review of my little work in your recently established Scottish contemporary, which appears to call for a few remarks from me.

I am, as you know, the last person to deprecate honest criticism, and when the writer of the review states that "his style (that is, mine) is not so clear nor his method so logical as could be wished," I at once bow to such complimentary expressions, though I am somewhat amused to note, that the reviewer himself must fairly be admired for the bappy confusion of both thought and language, alike in his position and his arguments. The reviewer may be quite right in finding fault with the division of the objections into those of "theory" and those of "practice," but he is quite wrong in saying that the first objection under the first head, and the second objection under the second head may be regarded as anticipated in the third objection under the first head." There is great confusion of apprehension here, as no subjects can be more dissimilar or distinct. Indeed it is a criticism without force or meaning.

The reviewer is quite justified in pointing out that there does arise "a repetition of the treatment of the subject," but then that is the inevitable consequence of the objections I had to deal with. Had I lumped them altogether, I should have been told that I had not paid due attention to them, and therefore I preferred to take them "seriatim" and in detail, even at the risk of obvious "weakening of the force of the argument, taken as a whole." This repetition occurs in respect of the one objection that Freemasonry is an eclectic system (not an "elective" system as in the S.F.M.) in itself, "disregarding all other religious bodies," and Mr. Kerr's complaint that "it forms a Masonic bond of union among men, opposed to the true teaching of the Gospel." These objections had been made, and they had to be met and dealt with, and as one was theoretical and the other practical, I treated them accordingly. They might, perhaps, be more conveniently conjoined, and disposed of under the same head. Beyond this I note no remarks requiring much comment, except that for obvious causes, and to prevent any misapprehension of my views by the Scottish brethren, I feel bound to supplement this short answer with a few explanations.

I should have thought that the reviewer would see that the belief in God the Father necessarily led to an acceptance of the great truth of immortality. I did not deal with it, as it appeared to me a self-evident proposition, and I cannot understand any one accepting the Divine creation and moral government of the world, together with the inspired Revelation, who does not also accept the future life of man. On natural grounds we can arrive at it, as I believe, much more in the teachings and declarations of positive truth. I did not consider it therefore needful or advisable to dilate on such a subject, so clearly developed in all our Masonic symbolism and rites. The point of the prayers is a very difficult one. To myself, personally, of course, outside the lodge, I fully accept the common teaching of Christianity, but inside the lodge, on our own principles, how am I to act? We profess to receive Hebrews and other non-Christians. How are we to treat them? Are we to ignore their principles, or to disregard their beliefs? In fact is the lodge-room to be the arena of a Masonic proselytism? We must boldly face the difficulty of the whole question, and there is no use blinking it.

In England our prayers are universal or theistic for the most part now; in Scotland and in Ireland they are also sometimes Christian, though not universally. Many good men and true, and most orthodox in their generation, have found no difficulty, as I find none, in the "universal prayer" in the lodge room, on our avowed principles; and though I admit many may object to such a position, I believe it to be the true teaching of universal Freemasonry. But I speak with a good deal of hesitation and deference on the subject, as it is confessedly a very difficult one, and to many a "crucial test," an irremovable objection against Freemasonry.

I confess that I do not understand the reviewer's position or views on the subject, but that may arise from my own great dullness and want of a combination of vigour and delicacy of argumentive (sic) nervousness and wise discrimination, as the reviewer so eloquently writes. What he means by his own words, I don't pretend to understand, much less to explain.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,

A. F. A. WOODFORD, P.G.C.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me through your columns, on behalf of numerous brethren, to return our thanks to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, to Major-General Brownrigg, and to the brethren of Colchester, Aldershot, and the Brownrigg Lodge of Unity, Chatham, as well as to those of the provinces of Essex, Kent and Surrey, for securing by their votes the election into the Masonic Girls' School, to-day, of Fanny Craig, the orphan daughter of the late Serjt. Craig, of the 10th Regiment. While thanking them all very sincerely both for their votes and for their influence, I may perhaps call to the attention of the Craft generally, that the great interest which the Prince of Wales feels in our Order takes a practical form, and that the votes which he has in our charitable institutions by virtue of his liberal donations, are given to candidates at our half yearly elections.

I remain, dear sir and brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

SAMUEL COLE,

Quarter Master, Royal Engineers.

Aldershot, April 10th.

THE "FATHER OF FREEMASONRY"

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

In the Illustrated London News of Saturday last appeared a portrait of the oldest Freemason in England.

Having at the present moment living amongst us in "vigorous age," an older Freemason, although not an older man, I venture to trouble you with a very brief sketch of a worthy and esteemed brother, asking you to do me the favour to insert the same in your next paper.

Bro. Francis David Michael, of Russell-st., Swansea, is in his 91st year.

He was initiated into Freemasonry in April, 1814, at Haverfordwest, and is therefore 6 years the senior of the brother named in the Illustrated London News. Removing to Swansea, Bro. Michael took his second and third degrees in the Indefatigable Lodge, No. 333, became the W.M. in 1818, was one of the founders of the Virtue and Hope R. A. Chapter, filling in it almost every chair, including that of First Principal. He is at the present time an honorary member of almost every lodge in South Wales, is a Past Grand Warden of the Province, and for very many years held the post of Grand Director of Ceremonies. Bro. Michael has in the course of his Masonic career initiated upwards of 300 persons into Masonry.

His impressive rendering of the various ceremonies for many years left him without a rival, and among his brother Masons he is highly esteemed and beloved, his name being a "household word," invariably spoken with kindness.

I am, dear sir and brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,
EDWARD J. MORRIS, D.P.G.M.
Swansea, April 12th, 1875.

NEW MASONIC LODGE DRAMATIC.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your valuable journal of March 27th contains a report of Lodge St. George, 333, in which some allusion is made to our petition for Lodge Dramatic. The same article having been published in the North British Daily Mail, (Glasgow), I answered it, stating facts, and shewing our brethren the actual position in which we stand. The copy of my answer I send you now, and beg that you will make it as public as possible, for the other tends to injure us where this will disabuse the mind of all the Craft and shew that it is our desire to work sure and constitutionally.

I am yours fraternally,

WILLIAM DOBSON.

Sir,—I observe in your columns of Saturday a report of a meeting of Lodge St. George, 333. I would beg to call the attention of brother Masons to the fact that in speaking of the petition for proposed new Lodge Dramatic he (Bro. Alex. Thomson R. W. M.) mentions us as being migratory. That some theatrical people are so I do not deny; but as it tends to disparage our cause in the eyes of our Masonic brethren, I would beg to call the attention of the Craft to the following facts:—

1. We made it an especial study to select brethren who were householders, and had been citizens for years—knowing that to be qualified as office-bearers it was essential they should be so.

2. I am myself a householder for 13 years, and have been 15 years engaged in the theatre Royal.

3. Brother Barbour has been in theatre 12 years past, and householder for 14 years past.

4. Brother Jackman has been in theatre for 9 years, and householder for seven years.

5. Brother Sievwright has been in theatre for years, and a householder for a long time.

6. Brother Vallance has been in Theatre Royal and Gaiety for 10 years, and a householder for 7 years.

7. Brother Smyth has been in theatre for 7 years, and in Glasgow all his life.

8. Brother T. Hayes has been engaged in theatre for 5 years, and a householder.

9. Brother M'Gregor here in theatre for a long number of years, and a householder.

10. Brother Campbell here in theatre for years, and always in Glasgow.

11. Brother Mills in theatre for 7 years, and always in Glasgow.

12. Brother Groves at present here, and is now a permanent member.

Now, I have given a just account of who form our office-bearers, and I think we can be hardly brought under the category of "here to day and away to morrow." It may sound very well for them to use these terms, but I am sure that a lodge such as we petition for would be a great boon to professionals, and a want that no one can feel so much as we, the petitioners, do. Trusting you will give this a little space in your valuable paper.—I am, &c., Theatre Royal, March 13. WILLIAM DOBSON.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Bro. X.Y., a Scotch Mason, arrives in our town in October or November. Never visited the lodge, but is proposed as a joining member at a lodge of emergency in December. On St. John's Day, the business of the lodge, installation and investment of officers, is deferred (contrary to bye-law No. 11) by order of the W.M. (this being his second year in office) who directs the ballot for Bro. X.Y. to be taken, who is elected. Immediately after the W.M. proceeds with the business, and appoints and installs Bro. X.Y. as Senior Warden of the lodge, before his name could appear on any books as a member of the English Constitution, or the minutes of the lodge be confirmed.

Is this correct and legal?

Yours fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

[In our opinion, the brother alluded to was not eligible until he was registered in the English Grand Lodge, and had received his English Grand Lodge certificate. The confirmation of the minutes has nothing to do with the ballot. On appeal to the Board of General Purposes, the appointment would, we are inclined to think, be cancelled, as "ultra vires."—E.D.]

Reviews.

ROMAN CATHOLICISM AND FREEMASONRY.

By WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

A friend has sent me a copy of "The Irish Ecclesiastical Record" for April, published under the sanction of Cardinal Cullen, because it contains an article on "Freemasonry."

I hope that our learned Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., who has lately presented the Craft with a most readable and able "Defence of Freemasonry," will peruse it and favour us with a short answer in the pages of the Freemason, if indeed it merits any attention at all.

My object now is mainly to ask the fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, if they, the actual members, know aught of the society to which they belong, for if they do (and if we do) then the writer of the article in question cannot be speaking of the same institution, wilfully misrepresents it, or is "perpetuating a joke." It is not my intention to attempt any answer in the present sketch to the statement found in the "Irish Ecclesiastical Record," because I should much prefer our Rev. Bro. Woodford to have that gratification, he having so recently written a "Defence" of the society, in every sense, worthy of the cause. We shall simply furnish a few extracts for the amusement and information of your readers.

The first sentence is as follows:—"It needs no very acute observation to recognise the fact that Freemasonry is struggling with a fierce and a more determined energy than ever against the liberty, nay, against the very existence of the Catholic Church."

One great object of the Freemason is to enlighten the fraternity, and afford information to the Craft, so the above extract will, I think, be information indeed for the majority, if not for all of its readers.

The first charge in our Book of Constitutions, after declaring that "a Mason is obliged, by his tenure, to obey the moral law," and to heed the claims of conscience, states that Freemasons "are taught to view the errors of mankind with compassion." The latter clause was never much more wanted, I think, than at the present time, so we ask the forbearance and compassion of Masonic students whilst reading this, the first declaration in the Irish Record on Freemasonry.

The writer also says that "its chiefs make now but little effort to conceal what was all along felt by the Church to be a certainty, that its deadly warfare is with catholicity; its doctrines and morality; its spiritual head on earth; and those members of it who practice its precepts."

What can any one say to such a falsehood? It is really so absurd that it seems childish to desire a confutation. I have visited lodges a few times, but never heard Roman Catholicism referred to, and I believe our experience agrees with many whose widespread knowledge of the Order dwarfs my limited acquaintance with the Society, and suggests our silence on such a subject.

Occasionally at a banquet a speaker indulges in a little innocent mirth by making known a few of the latest objections of the Roman Catholic Priesthood to the Society, but that is only when the more serious business of the Order has been attended to, and certainly if so doing means being open to the charge of engaging in deadly warfare with the Roman Church, the assertion is true!

Then, again, a wonderful discovery is made and ushered in with the following startling words:—

"Freemasonry, even amongst ourselves, where it does not dare to put itself forth in all its native deformity and a bomination, means nothing less than a battle against Catholicism, and a perpetuation, though under another name, of the ascendancy that for so many generations sat, like a dismal and torturing nightmare, on the energy, the industry, the intellectual vigour, and the freedom of the Catholic people of Ireland."

Then to complete the discovery, and prove the simplicity of the writer, there follows this declaration:—

"We should be a marvellously simple, or a marvellously stupid race, if in the presence of the recent history of Freemasonry, we had failed to reach to this appreciation of the objects of the organisation."

Were it not that I am again reminded in our "ancient charges" already alluded to, that "Craftsmen are bound by peculiar ties to promote peace, cultivate harmony, and live in concord and brotherly love," I should be inclined to agree with the writer that he must be either "simple, or marvellously stupid," or most likely both.

We are gravely told that Freemasonry "keeps the mastery wherever it can, and holds up the temptation of advancement in professional life, of success in trade, of social recognition here at home, and social greeting abroad, as lures to catch Catholics within its toils. But its efforts have been comparatively fruitless, for Catholics are staunch against the proffered bribe."

Such a disgraceful misrepresentation of the Masonic Society cannot mislead the Craft, because they know otherwise, but it may possibly lead some to have doubts of the Order, there being a popular notion of such worldly advantages in connection with the fraternity.

No one can join our lodges without pledging himself to exactly the reverse of the foregoing description, so we leave it to any sane man to form his own opinion on the subject. Should any such beings as the worthy alluded to obtain a footing in our Order, and their practices be discovered, all we can say is, they are sure to meet with the treatment they deserve. Any anxious to be Freemasons with any such appreciations as the Roman Catholic writer holds out, and will pass over our threshold by telling deliberate lies, may rest assured that ultimately their low-minded and selfish propensities will be exposed, and held up to the scorn and contempt of all right thinking, pure-minded Masons.

But we are not only told what we know not of Freemasonry, but are treated to statistics. "At the close of last year there were no less than eight millions of Freemasons in the world!" This will be news for the Editor of the Freemason and ourselves, who from trustworthy documents, had come to the conclusion that there were about one million of contributing members, and probably about as many more unaffiliated!

Of these "eight millions" it appears, but few know anything of the real objects of the society, the maximum of the fully informed, not exceeding "five hundred thousand!" Then follows the charitable remark, that if the Craftsmen were asked to do "what the oath of Masonry pledges every man who takes it," in reference to any conceivable business or engagement of life, "they would look upon the man as an idiot, or more likely as a rogue and a scoundrel, fit for the attention and primitive administration of the nearest policeman."

"Idiot" or "scoundrel" are the terms he uses, but they are mild compared with those which he deserves, who has put together such trash, unless indeed he is but the tool of his party, and has, alas, sold his conscience and his mind to an intolerant, persecuting, and unscrupulous sect!

We leave this part, fully agreeing with the writer, that he is a rogue, an idiot and a scoundrel, who accepts this statement of what Freemasonry is.

The author of "Freemasonry" says, "It is idle to speak of the possibility of genuine Catholicity co-existing with Masonry," and yet, soon after, he actually finds fault with the Monde Maçonnique for declaring: "One cannot be at the same time a Mason and a Catholic." We do not accept the teachings of the Monde Maçonnique as rightly illustrative of Freemasonry, in fact many of its statements are at variance with our principles, both in this country and the United States, and generally throughout Germany; but in this instance the magazine has the support of the Irish Record, and in condemning it, the latter condemns also itself.

Towards the end, the motive which prompted the article being written is seen. "The heir apparent of the English throne, the Grand Master," is grouped with other illustrious personages to prove that Protestantism has yielded, and now the "Catholic Church is the only religious institution that dares to do battle with Masonry." Ride, si sapis!

LONG LIVE THE PRINCE.

This popular song, one among many in the "Freemason's Liber Musicus," will be sung by Bro. George Perren, at the installation Banquet on the 28th inst. The song having met with so great a success, the Composer Dr. Wm. Sparks has been induced to issue it in a separate form, with music, price 3s.

LONG LIVE THE PRINCE.

Oh! Masonry, our hearts inspire,
Warm us with thy true sacred fire,
Our Prince obedient to thy laws
With joy we hail him to the cause,
Oh! may our greatest pleasure be
To greet him Prince of Masonry,
For it, and virtue are the same
Loud then we'll hail his glorious name.

Chorus

Long live our Prince,
Just, true, and wise,
God bless the Prince
Masonry cries!

We are obedient to our laws,
Zealously to support our cause,
Like him we feel a brother's woe
And feeling comfort we bestow,
Letting no brother draw the sigh
His grief unnoticed pass him by Oh may he, as a brother true
The paths of Masonry pursue.

Chorus

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The April Quarterly Court of Subscribers to this school, was held on Saturday last, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Carter, (Strood); John Read, W. Smead, and R. W. Little, (Secretary). After the minutes of former meetings had been read, and confirmed, Bro. John Symonds proposed, and Bro. S. Rawson seconded the election of Bro. Samuel Tomkins, (Grand Treasurer), as Treasurer of this institution, and Bro. Tomkins was therefore elected unanimously. Bro. H. M. Levy was elected a member of the general committee of the school, and the court after appointing scrutineers of votes, proceeded to the election of thirteen girls, out of a list of thirty-two candidates. At the declaration of the poll the following candidates were declared duly elected, by the number of votes placed opposite to their respective names:—

Bingham, Mabel Ellen	1284

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Quarterly Court of Governors and Subscribers to this institution was held on Monday last, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds, vice-Patron and Trustee, occupied the chair, and among the brethren present were Bros. Major Creaton, Charles Cobb, Capt. Henry Smith (West Yorkshire); S. Rawson, H. Massey, Dr. Ramsay, Charles Greenwood, Hugh D. Sandeman, Thomas Smith, L. Finch, Sidney R. Brooks, Thomas W. White, Robert B. Webster, J. L. Hine, James A. Birch, W. F. C. Moutrie, Jesse Turner, F. Adlard, W. Lane, Joseph F. Starkey, J. Terry, J. M. Chadwick, J. Macdonald, Raynham W. Stewart, S. Rosenthal, John Huggins, Alfred A. Pendlebury, A. D. Loewenstark, Wm. Smead, E. Cox, Thomas Price, L. Stean, J. M. P. Montagu, John Marson, James Kidner, A. GreatRex, R. Harland Whiteman, E. Spooner, F. B. Davage, George M. E. Snow, E. Coste, W. B. Baylis, Alfred Avery, Wm. Stephens Page, of Maidstone; and F. Binckes, Secretary.

Bro. Major Creaton proposed, and Bro. Charles Greenwood seconded, the re-election of Bro. George Plucknett as Treasurer.

Bros. Henry Law and William Blackmur were elected to fill two vacancies which have occurred, one by death, and the other by qualification as life governor, on the General Committee. Lord Skelmersdale and Bro. Bentley Shaw were elected Trustees of the General Fund, and Lord Skelmersdale and Major Creaton, Trustees of the Sustentation Fund. Scrutineers of votes were then appointed, and the election of eight boys, out of a list of forty-eight candidates for admission to the school was proceeded with. At half-past four o'clock, Bro. S. Rawson, Chairman of the Scrutineers, came into the board-room with the Scrutineers and announced the result of the election, and the following boys were declared successful:—

Davies, James Sanders	2139
Armitage, Charles Edgar	1841
Swallow, John Tom	1828
Pilling, Thomas Smith	1765
Buttrey, James Armitage	1749
Marks, James Thomas	1637
Jackson, William Henry	1599
Kerr, Arthur David	1554

Capt. Smith proposed, and Bro. Edw. Cox seconded a vote of thanks to the Scrutineers, which was carried unanimously, and Bro. S. Rawson responded.

A vote of thanks to the chair was passed, and Bro. Symonds, in acknowledging it, said that they had been able that day to admit but very few boys to the school, which must be a great disappointment. But he hoped it would be a further incentive to the supporters of this institution to give and get still greater subscriptions, that its benefits might be extended, and that there might be less and less distress, consequent on unsuccessful candidates being thrown out.

This closed the proceedings, and the brethren separated

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee of this Institution met on Wednesday at Freemasons' Hall, Major John Creaton in the Chair. There were also present Bros. Joseph Smith, John Constable, C. A. Cottebrune, Thomas W. White, James Brett, W. Stephens, W. Hilton, John G. Stephens, H. M. Levy, Griffiths Smith, John Bellerby, Thomas Cubitt, J. Newton, K. Stean, C. Lacey, C. F. Hogard, and James Terry, Secretary.

There was but little business before the brethren. The minutes were read, and confirmed, and the announcement was made of the death of Bro. Osment, of Sherborne, Dorset, at the age of 100 years, and that he had received, while he had been a recipient of an annuity from this Institution, the amount of between £500 and £600 from its funds.

The Collector of the Institution, Bro. W. Lane, having volunteered, by letter read to the committee, to make a reduction in the amount of his commission on sums collected by him, the same was agreed to with the thanks of the Committee.

Bro. Griffith Smith asked whether the list of subscribers &c. could not be published every year instead of every two years. At present, the names of subscribers of last year were not to be found in the list, but only those of the year before.

The Chairman, having enquired of the Secretary how this matter stood,

Bro. Terry said that the 500 books that were printed lasted for two years, and no new book was published until the old stock was exhausted.

It was then arranged that a smaller number should be printed, and that a new list should be published every year.

The Committee then adjourned.

PRESENTATION TO A PAST GRAND CHAPLAIN.

The brethren of West Lancashire have again done themselves honour by recognising the valuable and hearty services rendered to the Craft by a distinguished member of the fraternity. Every brother in West Lancashire must have, on more than one occasion, admired the singular enthusiasm, cordiality, and invariable geniality with which Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, M.A., performed the important duties of Prov. Grand Chaplain during his tenure of office; and now that he is numbered amongst the Past P.G. Chaplains, the recognition of his excellent services was a natural result. This took place on Saturday last, when an interesting presentation of a handsome gold hunting watch, accompanied by a suitable address, was made to Bro. Goggin at his residence, Rufford Rectory, near Ormskirk. The subscriptions were given by the brethren in the province, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master England, Prov. Grand Master West Lancashire, being the President of the committee. The watch bore the following inscription:—"Presented to the Rev. J. F. Goggin, J.P., Past Prov. Grand Chaplain, by his Masonic brethren of West Lancashire, with their fraternal regards in recognition of past services." The address was as follows:—

"To the Rev. J. F. Goggin, J.P., Past Prov. G. Chaplain, W.L., Rufford Rectory.

Reverend and Dear Sir and Brother,—The brethren of the province of West Lancashire present you with the accompanying gold watch on your retirement from office as Prov. Grand Chaplain, in testimony of the high esteem in which you are held by those brethren, the kind and considerate manner in which you have discharged your important duties, the many admirable sentiments conveyed to them in the various special prayers and orations prepared by you with so much care and ability, and delivered so impressively, and of their heartiest wishes not only for your happiness and welfare, but that you will continue to take an active part in their Masonic institutions.—We are, reverend and dear sir and brother, yours very faithfully and fraternally, SKELMERSDALE, President, Dep. G.M., England, Prov. G.M., W.L.

GEORGE TURNER, Secretary and Treas., P.M. 86, 822, &c., PZ. 86, 216, 823.

Bro. Captain Turner (in the unavoidable absence of Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. G. M., president of the fund, on parliamentary duties), after expressing the great pleasure it afforded him in being the privileged medium through which the presentation was made, begged Bro. Goggin's acceptance of the watch as a slight acknowledgement of the feelings of the brethren of the province towards him, and their high appreciation of his endeavours to promote the Masonic principles of brotherly love, good feeling, and religious truth during his term of office, trusting that he would long be spared to wear it. The address having been read, Bro. Goepel, Prov. G.D. of C., added a few eulogistic remarks on Bro. Goggin's earnestness in the performance of his important duties; when Bro. Goggin, in a feeling manner, thanked the brethren for their kind consideration, which he felt to be far beyond his deserts, his duties having been throughout of a most pleasing character, and, accepting the watch as an earnest proof of the goodwill of the brethren, promised to continue his exertions in the interests of Masonry.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—An emergency meeting of the above lodge was held on the 15th ult., at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville-road. Bro. James Willing, junr., W.M., presided, and there were also present Bros. Michael, S.W.; Williams, J.W.; George Tims, Sect.; Kingham, S.D.; Side, J.D.; Douglass, I.G.; Thomas Adams, P.G.M.; Scales, Fowler, Cadell, Smith, Cheek, Rapkin, Jones, Saintsbury, Hatton, Stiles, Cox, Shand, Read; and visitors Bros. G. Plummer, F. H. Plummer, Robinson, and Harris. Bros. Horton, Shand, Saintsbury, and Triton of this lodge, and Bros. Robinson and Plummer of No. 177 were raised. Bro. Read was passed, and Messrs. Simond and Taylor were initiated. Bro. Brede, No. 73, was elected a joining member. Bro. T. Adams, P.G.P., Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction, was unanimously elected an honorary member of the parent lodge. The Master Mason's Ticket set apart for this lodge for the Installation of the Prince of Wales on Wednesday next was unanimously awarded to Bro. Kingham, J.D., on account of his progress in Freemasonry, his excellent working, his zeal for the lodge, and being one of its founders. The W.M. announced to the brethren his appointment as Steward for the same festival, and the brethren afterwards closed the lodge and adjourned to refreshment.

INSTRUCTION.

DEPTFORD.—WELLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 548).—On Monday, the 19th, the annual festival of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, 548, was held at the White Swan Inn, High Street, Deptford, when the chair was occupied by Bro. James Terry, P.G.D., Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, &c., supported by Bro. Griffin, P.M. 933, (the Treasurer of the lodge) as S.W., and by Bro. Green, as J.W. Several sections of the lecture in the first degree were worked by Bro. Terry, who was ably assisted by Bro. Dilley, P.M. 147 and 1155, the esteemed Preceptor of the lodge, and by Bro. Shaw, S.W. 79, the Assistant Preceptor. There were also present Bro. Dabac, S.W. 169; Bro. Waterman, J.D. 147; Bro. Hutchings, 147; Bro. R. A. Smith, 13; Bro. Massey, (Freemason); Bros. Bear, Bolton, Roper, Dingle, Mocketis, Johnson, Homan, and many others, members of lodges, in the neighbourhood of Deptford and Greenwich, making up a company of about fifty in all. We must not forget to mention Bro. Macdonald, J.W. 1151, the indefatigable Secretary, to whose exertions, and to the unremitting interest he takes in its affairs, the success of the lodge is, we believe, in a great measure due. After some time had been occupied in labour, the lodge was called off to refreshment, and proceeded to the banquet room, where an excellent repast had been provided by Mrs. Porter, the landlady, whose efforts to please her guests were crowned with complete success. On the cloth being withdrawn, the chairman proceeded to propose the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were warmly responded to by the brethren present. In proposing "The Health of the M.W. the Grand Master of England, the Prince of Wales," he said that his advent to the Masonic Throne on Wednesday next would be one of the greatest events that had ever happened in Freemasonry, as between 7000 and 8000 Masons entitled to be present at Grand Lodge would be gathered together by the interest excited by this great event through the length and breadth of the land; and that the event was sympathized in as a kind of protest against the secession which took place lately. Three Royal Princes were expected to be present; he believed that five Princes had been present on a former occasion of the kind, but three was the greatest number they could have at the present time. In proposing "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, the P. Grand Master, and the Earl of Skelmersdale, as Deputy Grand Master," the chairman said that the brethren were aware that the former had been selected, because of his being so thoroughly acquainted with the duties of his office, and with the business routine of Grand Lodge; Lord Skelmersdale was the most intimate friend of His Royal Highness, and his appointment as Deputy Grand Master was likely to prove one of the most popular appointments that the Prince of Wales could have made. He had already presided at the festival of one of the Institutions, and had adjourned the others, that whenever they needed a chairman he should be very happy to occupy the position. Bro. Terry concluded by expressing his belief that the remaining appointments of Grand Officers, to be made on the 28th by the Grand Master, would prove equally popular. Bro. Terry: I now have to submit to you what I may call the toast of the evening, that is, "Prosperity to the Wellington Lodge of Instruction." We all know that lodges of instruction cannot go on and prosper unless there are good officers attached to them. The first element of success is an excellent Secretary, and you must also look out for a brother to act as Preceptor. The Preceptor must be one who will not only occupy the position and discharge its duties, but he must be one whom the members can look up to with respect, and one endowed with a sense of responsibility and authority. Now, I believe that your great success as a lodge is due to the fact that you have a very excellent Secretary and a very excellent Preceptor. After referring to a very pleasant meeting held last year, at which he (the chairman) had worked the ceremony of Installation, he proceeded to wish continued prosperity to their efforts, and that as years went by they would witness the great benefits conferred by the lodge in the making its members qualified to undertake the duties of any office whose honours might be thrust upon them, reminding them that though as good Masons they were all prepared to serve and obey, no one was insensible to a little bit of decoration, and that the honours of office were a praiseworthy object to strive after. He concluded by drinking success to the lodge, with which he coupled the name of Bro. Bolton, who replied in a few words, leaving facts and figures to be stated by the Secretary. Bro. Dilley (Preceptor): In virtue of my office, as though we were in regular lodge, I ask you to look upon me as Immediate P.M., and it becomes my duty to propose "The Health of the Presiding Master." Well, we are not in a regular lodge, but we do know that we are being presided over by one who has carved a name in Freemasonry that I think I may honestly say is second to none that we know of. Every one who knows Bro. Terry, not only thinks of him as a good Mason, but as an excellent man. I have known Bro. Terry from my earliest moments in Masonry, and I have ever found him the kindest of men, always anxious to oblige and serve brethren individually, while he devotes his life to the good of the fraternity at large. I ask brethren to be upstanding, and drink to the health and happiness of our Presiding Master, Bro. Terry. Bro. Terry, in returning thanks, said that flattery had one good effect; by the praises expressed, the truth of which we doubted, we learned the speaker's ideal of a good man, and thus we might turn flattery to our advantage, if we learned from it to model our lives to deserve these praises. He thanked them for their cordial reception of this toast. He was under obligations to Freemasons throughout the whole country, but to those of this district he was specially indebted. The institution he represented had received great benefit from his friends in that neighbourhood. Whenever he was in want of a Steward, or required an effort made, his friends in the South were always ready to help him, and he felt proportionately grateful. Bro. Terry concluded with some genial remarks expressive of the warmth of his attachment to his friends in the district; and then proceeded to propose "The Health of the Secretary and Preceptor," whose speeches in reply we have not space to give in extenso, but must content ourselves with noting the very favourable results spoken of by Bro. Macdonald, viz., that they had had 52 meetings in the year, with a gross attendance of 805, giving an average attendance of 15½ at each meeting. Three years ago their average attendance was 9 and one ninth. Financially their position was also satisfactory. The balance brought forward was £3 2s., they had received £14 6s. 7s. They had paid £5 to the Aged Freemasons, and £5 5s. to the Boys' School. The expenses of the consecration were £5 5s., and there was a balance of 10s. in favour of the lodge. Bro. Macdonald concluded by saying that they all had cause to be proud of the manner in which the lodge had prospered, and trusted that he and those others who took so warm an interest in its success, might be spared to continue to promote its welfare.

LIVERPOOL.—MERCHANTS' LODGE (No. 241).—The monthly meeting of this prosperous and influential lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 13th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, where there was a very large assembly of members and distinguished visitors, testifying to the popularity of the W.M. of the lodge, whose year's reign will shortly terminate. The influence and position of the Merchants' Lodge have long been recognised in the province, and the results of its efforts have more than once given it a prominent place in Masonic records. The lodge business was opened by Bro. W. M. Chudley, W.M., who was supported by Bros. R. Robinson, P.M.; J. I. Knight, P.M.; R. Brown, S.W.; G. Hutchin, J.W.; S. J. McGeorge, P.M., Treas.; G. Peet, Hon. Sec.; J. Winsor, S.D.; — Smith, Organist; W. Savage, Johnston, J. Latta, Jacobs, and others; and amongst the visitors were Bros. H. Allpass, P.G. Sec.; P. Brabner, P.P.G. Reg.; J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C.; N. Turner, G. Fowler, S.W. 216; J. Vaughan, J.W. 86; W. Wood, P.M. 1182; and others. Mr. W. A. Cottle was initiated into the mysteries of the Order, and after the transaction of some other business the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Fisk and Fairhurst, Castle-street. During the evening several toasts were proposed, more than one speaker referring to the acknowledged high standing of the Merchants' Lodge, and the excellence of the manner in which the work had been done during the year by the W.M. It was agreed that Bro. G. Peet, the Hon. Sec., as a recognition of faithful and valuable services, should have the privilege of using the one ticket granted to Master Masons in connection with the approaching installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

After a very pleasant evening the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

BATH.—LODGE OF HONOUR (No. 379).—The last monthly meeting previous to the summer vacation was held at the Masonic Hall, at 8 p.m., on Monday, April 12th. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. S. Bartrum, W.M., supported by Bros. W. A. Hunt, P.M.; C. S. Barter, P.M. and Treasurer; Cooke, S.W.; George, J.W.; Dickenson, S.D.; Smythe, J.D.; Bush, acting as I.G. There were also present Bros. Simmons, W.M. 53; Collins, 53; Little, 379; Dr. Hopkins, 41, P.M. 43, and 958, and P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire, and several others. In the unavoidable absence of the Secretary, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the S.W. and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and at the request of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Hopkins gave the Lecture on the Second Tracing Board to the Fellow Craft who had passed at the last meeting. He was then examined as to his proficiency by Bro. Barter, acting as W.M., and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the third degree. Bro. Dr. Hopkins then took the chair, and raised Bro. Little to the sublime degree of M.M., giving the traditional history, explaining the working tools, &c. The lodge was resumed in the second and afterwards in the first degree. The W.M. mentioned the arrangements for the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as at present very indefinite, but Bro. Dr. Hopkins, having taken some trouble to ascertain them, was able to give information. A vote of thanks to him for his services in giving the lecture and working the ceremony was carried by acclamation. The lodge was finally closed at 10 p.m.

LIVERPOOL.—TEMPLE LODGE (No. 1094).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The lodge was opened at four o'clock by Bro. R. Washington, W.M., supported by Bros. Richard R. Martin, P.M.; E. M. Sheldon, P.M.; D. W. Winstanley, P.M.; Wm. Crand, P.M. 1094, 249, and 1299; J. Kellett Smith, P.M.; R. E. C. Yelland, S.W.; Wm. Smith, P.M., then took the chair, and in a remarkable and efficient manner installed Bro. R. C. Yelland, as the W.M. of the lodge. The following were the officers invested:—Bros. R. Washington, I.P.M.; William Healing, S.W.; A. Jarvis, J.W.; J. Wood, (re-elected by acclamation for the tenth time), Treasurer; T. Marsh, (tenth time), Secretary; T. G. Winstanley, S.D.; A. C. An excellent banquet followed the business, and during the evening a number of capital songs were given by Bros. Evans, Atkinson, Veale, and Forester, Bro. Skeaf presiding at the piano, and playing his own fantasia, "Sabbath Evening Chimes," during the evening as a solo.

RAMSGATE.—LEWIS' LODGE (No. 1209).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Hotel, Ramsgate, on Wednesday, April 14th, and was numerously attended by the members and a large body of distinguished visitors. The lodge was opened at 2.30, the following officers officiating, viz:—W. Call, Prov. G. Steward, W.M.; A. Wootton, Prov. G.D.C., P.M., 127, S.W.; Geo. Page, J.W.; Lewis Finch, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., Treas.; B. N. Hiscock, P.M., Sec.; James W. Smith, S.D.; W. H. Howard, as J.D.; E. Buss, as I.G.; and R. T. Rolfe, P.M. 429, Tyler. Among the members present were Bros. H. Wootton, P.P.G.A.S., P.M.; H. G. Curtis, P.M. 429; W. Winch, P.P.J.G.D., P.M. 429; E. Harnett, W.M. 127; G. Hill, C. J. Ayton, R. H. Torrens, and J. O. Eve. Griffiths was examined and entrusted. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and Bro. Griffiths was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by the W.M. The lodge was resumed in the first degree, and Bro. E. H. Mayner was examined and entrusted. The lodge was resumed in the second degree. It was then announced that the V.W. Bro. J. S. Eastes, Dep. P.G.M., for Kent, claimed admission, and the W.M. deputed several P.M.'s to conduct Bro. Eastes into the lodge with due honour. The procession of P.M.'s with the Dep. P.G.M. then entered, the brethren standing to order, and a voluntary being played on the organ by Bro. Aubrey. The W.M. placed his gavel in the hands of the Dep. P.G.M., who graciously returned it. The Dep. P.G.M. was saluted with five. Bro. Mayner was then passed to the degree of F.C. The W.M. Elect., Bro. Alfred Wootton, was presented by Bro. Ellerm to the W.M., to receive the benefit of installation, and, having assented to the ancient charges and regulations, took the O.B. of a W.M. Elect. The lodge was resumed in the third degree, and all the brethren below the rank of I.M. having retired, and a Board of I.M.'s formed, Bro. Wootton was installed in the chair of K.S. with the customary ceremonial. He invested Bro. Call with the P.M.'s collar, and declared the board of I.M.'s closed. The M.M.'s, F.C.'s and E.A.'s were successively re-admitted, the lodge being closed in the third and second degrees, and the W.M. saluted in each of the three degrees. The following officers were appointed and invested, viz.: Bros. Geo. Page, S.W.; James W. Smith, J.W.; Lewis Finch, P.M. Treas.; B. N. Hiscocks, P.M. Sec.; The Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, Chaplain; Wm. Call delivered the usual charges, performing the whole ceremony of installation in such a manner as could not fail to command the admiration of the brethren, and their hearty applause at its completion. A candidate was proposed and seconded for initiation at the next meeting, and the lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to the banquet-hall, and enjoyed an excellent dinner, served by Bro. Hiscocks in the usual good style, which is rarely surpassed elsewhere. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly responded to. One of the most important toasts was, of course, that of "The Health of the Dep. Prov. G.M.," who, in returning thanks, most strongly advocated the cause of the Masonic Charities, and urged the brethren to increased efforts in their behalf. Bros. Aubrey, Copland, Curtis, James W. Smith, Terry, and Ayton contributed to the entertainment of the evening by some capital vocal and instrumental music. The success of the meeting was unmistakable; and that every one enjoyed it was evinced by the reluctance of the brethren to depart, even when the last strokes of the closing hour had died away.

The consideration of this proposition was deferred. The chapter duly the companions retired to the banquet.

ERA LODGE OF MARK MASTERS (No. 176).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Friday, April 16th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark. Bro. John Thomas Moss, W.M., opened the lodge. There were present—Bros. H. A. Dubois, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; T. H. Miller, Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.P., P.M., Sec.; H. J. Green, M.O.; T. Dubois, S.W., being W.M.; and T. H. Miller, being re-elected Treasurer. The Tyler, Bro. W. Y. Laing, was re-elected Tyler. Several propositions for candidates for advancements were made. The lodge was closed. A good banquet followed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE KILWINNING (No. 4).—The annual visitation of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow was made to this lodge on 7th inst. There was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren, the R.W.M., Bro. A. Thorburn, presiding, and the deputation of the P.G.L. were received with due honour. After the preliminary formalities, Bro. McTaggart, Prov. Grand Secretary, said that his report was a short one, and was to the effect that the lodge books were in excellent condition, and that the lodge was working, as heretofore, in strict harmony with Grand Lodge laws. As regarded funds, he found that they had at the end of the working year to their credit a sum of £27 19s. 1d. During the year they had only had one emergency meeting, a fact which he did not altogether regret. Numbers alone was not the only criterion of the good condition of a lodge; and they (Glasgow Kilwinning) were able at the end of the year to present a very healthy statement of their affairs. The R.W.M. having expressed the pleasure the lodge must have felt at the flattering nature of the P.G. Secretary's report, and given explanation of a little matter touched upon therein, Bro. McTaggart said he had made a special note of said explanation, and added that the deputation had not within the province found any set of books better kept or more free from flaw. The deputation then retired, and the lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

LEITH.—LODGE CANONGATE (No. 5).—The regular monthly meeting of this most ancient lodge was held in their lodge-room, 86, Constitution-street, Leith, on Tuesday, 6th inst., Bro. E. Drummond, R.W.M., in the chair, and the office-bearers in their respective places. On the minutes of last meeting being read and confirmed, an application was read from Mr. A. Kennedy for admittance into the Order. There being no objection, the candidate received the E.A. degree, Bro. Drummond, R.W.M., officiating. Bro. Laird, S.W., read a communication from Bro. J. F. Lincoln, of Magnolia Lodge, No. 20, Columbia, with a present of two volumes neatly bound of proceedings of Grand Lodge of Ohio from 1808 to 1857, which was received with acclamation by the brethren. The R.W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Lincoln for his handsome gift, and that it be recorded in the minutes, which was agreed upon, the Secretary to communicate the same to Bro. Lincoln. The lodge was called to refreshment, and in the course of the evening some excellent songs, glees, and music were given by Bros. G. Davidson, Buchanan, Murdoch, Johnson, and Lawrie. Altogether, a most enjoyable evening was spent.

The candidates entered and received the E.A. degree, Bro. A. Bain, S.M., Union and Crown, 103, officiating in his usual effective style. Bro. Butler then intimated to the lodge that Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson, P.G.M. of Glasgow, would lay the foundation stone of the New Public Halls, Kent-road, Glasgow, on Saturday, the 22nd May next, and he hoped that as many as possible of the members of Lodge St. Mungo (that could attend) would be present to celebrate that occasion. The lodge was raised to F.C. degree, when Bro. J. McCuaigh was duly passed to that degree, Bro. A. Bain again officiating. There being no further business the lodge was closed in ancient form.

Wilson, P.M., handed over to him the insignia of his office, and raised the lodge to the F.C. degree, when Bro. G. Finlay, A. Robertson, J. Charles, J. Taylor and J. Hutcheson were duly passed to the F.C. degree, Bro. W. B. Patterson officiating in a very able manner. A deserving case of charity, also a proposition for testimonial to Bro. Wilson, I.P.M., having been brought forward, both cases were received with acclamation. The R.W.M. intimated to the lodge that there would be an emergency meeting on Friday, 16th inst. Harper, in ancient form, and immediately after the brethren were called to refreshment, when about thirty sat down to an excellent supper, Bro. Wm. Harper, R.W.M., presiding, supported by Bros. Downie and Buchanan, Past Masters of the lodge. Bro. Black officiated as Croupier, supported by Bro. McInnes, S.W.; and Bro. John Cunningham, R.W.M., Lodge St. John's Operative, Rutherglen, 347. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and duly honoured, the chairman proposed the toast of the evening, which on this occasion was "Health and Prosperity to Bro. Duncan Downie, I.P.M." In doing so he presented him on the behalf of the lodge, and in acknowledgment of their appreciation of his services to the lodge, and the high estimation they held of him as their I.P.M., with a handsome gold watch and appendages. Bro. Downie, in a few well-chosen remarks, expressed his gratification of the high compliment that had been conferred upon him that evening, one that he should always value, esteem, and hold dear. With toasts and songs, the brethren enjoyed a most pleasant evening, and with the last toast the brethren were recalled and the lodge closed in due form.

The R.W.M. opened the lodge, when the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved of. Bro. Wallace then intimated that the lodge would be visited by the Provincial Grand Lodge, on Monday, 26th inst., when he hoped there would be a good attendance of members on that occasion. The lodge was raised to the degree of F.C., when Bro. W. Lockie, George Robertson, and James Crichton received that degree, Bro. James Loutitt, D.M., officiating. There being no other business, the lodge was closed.

Lamb, D.M., Lodge Commercial, in consideration of his most valuable services rendered to this lodge, was then affiliated an honorary member, and Bro. Robert Walker was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. A letter was then read from Bro. J. D. Porteous, I.P.M. of Lodge Marie Stuart, now residing at Bolton, Lancashire, conveying valuable suggestions upon lodge affairs, which were highly approved of. Progress of the sale of tickets for Mrs. Skinner's Aquarium was reported, which was most satisfactory, after which the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

DREGHORN.—ST. MATTHEW LODGE (No. 549), met in the lodge room, Crown Hotel, on Monday, the 5th inst., Bro. Nisbet, R.W.M., presiding, and the remaining officers in their respective places. Hastings received the degree of F.C. and afterwards the sublime degree of Master Mason, the ceremony being performed in a very able and impressive manner. The Treasurer then submitted his financial report, which was very satisfactory, after which the lodge was closed.

LEITH.—PERSEVERANCE CHAPTER (No. 152).—The regular monthly meeting of this chapter was held at 86, Constitution Street, Leith, on Friday, 2nd inst.; present, Comps. J. Laurie, Z.; G. Hudson, H.; J. S. Matheson, P.Z.; D. Laird, S.E.; H. Jupp, S.N.; E. Drummond, Treasurer; E. Milner, Scribe, and a goodly number of companions. A lodge of Mark Masters having been opened, petitions were read from Bros. J. T. Saxby and William George, M. Masons of Lodge St. Margaret's, No. 548, also from Bro. C. M. Gardner, M. Mason of Lodge Canongate and Leith, No. 5. There being no objection, the candidates entered, and were advanced to the degrees of Mark Master and Excellent Master, and on a R.A. Chapter being opened, were exalted to that degree by Comp. J. Laurie, M.E.Z., in a most sublime manner. After a few discussions connected with the chapter, and there being no further business, the chapter was closed in due form.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Bad legs, wounds, and all description of sores are immediately cured by the power and diligent use of those inestimable preparations. To attempt to cure bad legs by plastering the edges of the wound together is a folly; for, should the skin unite, a baggy, diseased condition remains underneath, to break out with tentoid fury in a few days. The only rational and perfect treatment is to reduce the inflammation in and about the wound, to soothe the neighbouring nerves, to cool the heated blood as it courses along its vessels, and to render the thin, watery, ichorous discharge consistent and healthy. Happily for suffering humanity, Holloway's Ointment, assisted by judicious doses of his Pills, accomplishes these ends with unfailing certainty.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE INSTALLATION.

On Wednesday evening the first meeting of the Stewards was held at Freemasons' Hall, when the arrangements, as far as made, were communicated to the brethren by the chairman, Bro. Monckton, (President of the Board of General Purposes); Bro. Sir Albert Woods, (Garter), (Grand Director of Ceremonies); and Bro. Thomas Fenn, (Past Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies). The Temple, in which building the meeting was held, was nearly full, all the Stewards appearing to be most anxious to obtain the fullest information with respect to the duties they will be called upon to perform. Supporting the chairman, right and left, in addition to Sir Albert Woods and Bro. Fenn, were Bros. McIntyre, Q.C. (Grand Registrar); John Savage (Past Grand Deacon); Hugh D. Sandeman (District Grand Master of Bengal); Peter de Lande Long (Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes), and John Hervey (Grand Secretary).

The chairman said, in opening the proceedings, that the brethren would understand that under the care of the Board of General Purposes, not the banquet, but the great meeting for the Installation, had been placed; and as president of that board he now took the chair. The arrangements that had been in progress for the great meeting—he supposed the greatest ever held in the Craft—that would be held next week, had been incessantly going on up to the present time, and had entailed constant labour on one or two brethren who had been good enough to devote themselves to the work. Those brethren would lay before the meeting those details which the meeting was specially called for communicating to the Stewards. It might not be out of place for him to say that all the arrangements for the Installation were not yet quite ripe, and it was not to be expected that they could be. So many queries had come in from various brethren (all over London and the provinces) nominated as Stewards, that it was thought by the committee desirable that those brethren should be called together thus early in order that they might put questions if they thought fit, or at any rate to learn what had been determined on up to the present time. The Grand Director of Ceremonies, Sir Albert Woods, was, of course, at the head of those making the arrangements, by virtue of his position, and he (the chairman) would call upon him to tell the meeting what had already been determined upon. When that had been done, and the brethren had seen what arrangements they had been able to make, he (the chairman) would inform the brethren if any one of them had a question to put to elicit any further information, by all means they might put it, and the committee would be glad to answer to the best of their ability. At the same time he must inform the brethren that this meeting was not one for discussion, for the arrangements must be kept within the compass they were now in. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Albert Woods then rose, and said his observations would be very few, inasmuch as, although having the larger portion, or he might say, the responsible portion, of the coming ceremonial on his shoulders, he had been assisted by the committee of the Board of General Purposes. He had also had very great and valuable assistance from a brother whose name he should mention presently in connection with this ceremonial. It would therefore only be necessary for him to say that they had hitherto done their best, and all they could do, to give every possible effect to the solemnity that was about to take place. It must be plain to the brethren that it was impossible for any one brother to take upon himself the whole of the work; and he (Sir A. Woods) had therefore, with the sanction of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, requested Bro. Fenn to take upon himself the duties connected with the Albert Hall, that is to say, the seating arrangements there. He held in his hand the appointment of His Royal Highness for that purpose. Under those circumstances he would call upon Bro. Fenn to relate those matters of detail connected with the duties of the Stewards; any question those brethren might wish to ask in connection with those duties would be very gladly answered. Before sitting down he would say that the question of the jewel was now under consideration, and he hoped in the course of a very few days to submit a drawing for the approval of the Grand Master, and he trusted that the jewel would be one that would give the Stewards satisfaction to wear after this august ceremony. Bro. Fenn would now give the details in connection with the Albert Hall, to explain the duties the Stewards would have to perform, and it was to be hoped the brethren would aid the ceremony to the utmost of their power, and not from any position they might be placed in have a personal feeling, which would cause them to neglect their duties, which it was so incumbent should be fully and satisfactorily performed. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Thomas Fenn said, that having been deputed by Sir Albert Woods to give the details of the duties the Stewards would be called upon to perform, he should endeavour to do so in the fewest possible words. The building was capable of seating and giving a view of the ceremony to about 7000. In dealing with so large a number as 7000, the first object it appeared necessary to attempt was the dividing this large number into smaller and more manageable numbers, each with a separate entrance assigned to it, a block of seats, and a staff of Stewards. The peculiar construction of the building rendered this attainable without much difficulty. The building was so constructed that a line drawn through the centre from north to south divided it into two exactly corresponding parts, east and west. Indeed, those parts so exactly corresponded that a plan of the one—say for instance the east side—was, he might say, to a foot of space, the plan also of the west side, of course reversed. It followed, therefore, that the arrangements made for the east side applied also to the west side, and it would be unnecessary to explain more than one of those divisions. The entrances to the building were ten in number, the east arena entrance, east gallery entrance, east box entrance, east balcony entrance, west balcony entrance, west box entrance, west gallery entrance, west arena entrance, orchestra entrance, and the Royal entrance. The two latter he need not allude to, because they did not enter into the arrangements in which the Stewards would be called upon to take part. Taking off these two, there remained eight, leading to all parts of the building. These eight, by the erection of barriers and closing of doors, were made into twelve, leading to only part of the building, viz.: six on the east and six on the west, and were numbered one to twelve consecutively. Each of the entrances on the east side was distinguished by a colour, No. 1 red, No. 2 yellow, No. 3 mauve, No. 4 blue, No. 5 green, and No. 6 pink, and the entrances on the west side bore corresponding colours. Selecting the east side for the description, the first, or red entrance, led to the upper and lower east orchestra (Bro. Fenn explained on a plan that was exhibited all these details). The yellow, or No. 2 entrance, led to the eastern part of the arena only; the mauve led only to the gallery, or the eastern portion of the gallery, which would be occupied by the Master Masons; No. 4, or the blue, led to the amphitheatre and the loggia boxes; No. 5, green, led only to the first and second tier of boxes, the grand tier and second tier; and No. 6, pink, led only to the eastern portion of the balcony. These entrances would be marked very distinctly with colours in large type, so as to be distinctly visible at a considerable distance, and the figures would be printed on the appropriate colour of the entrance. Each of the tickets was likewise coloured the colour of the entrance, and bore a number on the outside (which many of the brethren had perhaps seen) which was to assist the police in directing brethren who might require it to their entrance. In allotting the blocks and seats care had been taken that members of each province should be admitted at one entrance only. This was not only more convenient and agreeable to the brethren themselves, but it was obviously necessary to assist identification, and with respect to London lodges, the members of each lodge would be admitted at the same entrance with the same object. The London lodges in like manner would be disposed of; each member of the lodge would enter at the same entrance, with same object. There were some few exceptions to this, but very few, that need only be explained to the officer in chief command at the entrance. Coming now to the arrangements for the admission of the brethren, he had selected for that purpose the east box entrance, of which the rough drawing is a plan; it was very rough and he hoped the brethren would not be critical, as he was not a professional draughtsman. It was drawn to scale, half an inch to a foot, and in this entrance he was describing the principles which would be adopted at all the entrances. Each entrance would have a staff of Stewards, under the command of a Grand Officer, consisting of the Grand Officer in command, the keeper of the outer entrance, and an assistant to the keeper of the door, an aide-de-camp, two acting as Grand Pursuivants examiners of clothing, three scrutineers; and in the cases where the entrances were appropriated to the provincial brethren, the Provincial Stewards, who were appointed for identifying the brethren of their provinces—Each of these stewards would be distinguished by a rosette of the colour of the entrance and block of seats in which his duties lay. The principal officer's duty at the entrance would be of a very onerous and responsible character, and in fact it required considerable Masonic knowledge, and experience, and authority, and it had been felt by the committee that these responsible and onerous duties ought only to be entrusted to Grand Officers, and if possible to those who were or had been members of the Board of General Purposes. The Grand Officer in command having once adopted the regulations which had been approved of by the W.M.G.M., and conducted to his post, would be independent of all other authority. All the Stewards at the entrance must obey him in every particular. All cases of difficulty or doubt would have to be decided by him; and in fact his decision must necessarily be final and without appeal. With the Grand Officer in command would rest the exclusion of brethren, those, for instance, who could not prove their identity to his satisfaction, those who might not comply with the regulations printed on the card, and those whom it might, for other reasons, be thought necessary to exclude or reject. The Grand Officers would of course exercise these powers without any interference, and when the outer doors were closed and one of the Stewards had been deputed to report to the brother in chief superintendent of the arrangements, he, the Grand Officer, with other Grand Officers that might be of his staff, would proceed to the Grand Officers' room, and afterwards join in the procession as usual at Quarterly Communications. Should the Grand Officer in command wish to obtain any information either from Sir Albert Woods or himself (Bro. Fenn), or make any communication to them, they might do so by means of the aide-de-camp. The instructions to the Stewards would be delivered to them in print or writing at some early day previous to the meeting. At present they were only in rough notes. The work of issuing the tickets and the correspondence had been so enormous, that it had occupied the time of Sir A. Woods and himself from early morning till late at night (Hear, hear), and it had been quite impossible to put those instructions into proper form within reasonable time. They would be communicated to the Stewards in due course. The duties of the Stewards, however, would certainly be indicated in general terms if he described now the methods of admitting the brethren at these entrances and passing them to their respective seats. Each Steward would have his duties cursorily touched upon, and perhaps the explanation so far would be sufficient for that evening. Take the blue entrance, No. 4 (referring to the diagram). The brethren with blue tickets, and numbered with a large figure 4 on them, would enter at that door (pointing). In this instance they were the brethren from Derby, West Lancashire, Cheshire, and West Yorkshire; and numbered in the aggregate 780. When the brethren had entered they would present their tickets to the keeper of the outer entrance, who would be attended by an assistant. Of course, any brother presenting any other ticket than that which entitled him to entrance at this door, must be absolutely rejected. He could not be allowed to enter without a regular ticket. When a brother had shewn his regular ticket he would be directed to a table (pointed out) to clothe. There was no accommodation for boxes in the lobbies, and those brethren the Stewards came in contact with they should recommend not to bring anything like boxes with them, or anything, in fact, that it would be necessary to leave behind them; because it would be attended with very considerable inconvenience to them, as there would be nobody to take charge of them. It would be impossible to give such accommodation for 7,000 people. Bro. Sir Albert Woods suggested that he should say that if any brethren thought it more convenient to clothe themselves before they came to the Hall they must take care that they were not seen in Masonic clothing outside the building; that was strictly forbidden; they might take a light coat to cover up all symbols of Masonry. After the brethren had clothed, the brother stationed at the table while the brethren clothed would call their attention to certain notices affixed. One would be to the effect that brethren having their Grand Lodge certificates would pass oneway and show them open with their tickets to the Scrutineer; and the other would be that those without Grand Lodge certificates must pass the table and show their tickets to the Scrutineer placed there. Those who were ready with their Grand Lodge certificates would pass without much difficulty into the Hall. There would be a Grand Pursuivant or examiner of clothing, whose duty would be—so far as had been possible these officers were selected from the Past Grand Pursuivants who were well acquainted with this duty—to see that the brethren were properly clothed and wore no jewels but those connected with Craft or Royal Arch Masonry. There would be the Scrutineer to examine the certificates and tickets. When he was satisfied he would tear the ticket in half, and that part which bore the number outside would be dropped into a box, many of which were provided at the Hall for that purpose. The other part bearing the name of the brother they would give back to him, and he would be directed to the part of the Hall where he was to take his seat. They would then pass into the corridor; here would be a Steward to direct them either to the part of the Amphitheatre marked on their cards, either to Q. R. or S, or to the Loggia Boxes on the same floor. If they carried tickets into the Amphitheatre they would go down a passage (pointed out), and pass into Q, R, or S, as the case might be. Arriving in the Amphitheatre there would be a Steward stationed at the top of the passage, and another at the bottom. The Steward at the top would direct all the brethren as they entered to proceed to the bottom to their seats, and the Stewards would fill the seats in one direction as the brethren entered, beginning at the lowest seat and filling the second and third, and so on until the top was also filled. Brethren with Loggia Box tickets would be directed in one course first, so as to fill up all the boxes towards the south. Of course, brethren who came early would prefer to take the best places, and perhaps if there was the slightest choice those might be considered the better places by the platform. There was very little, however, choice of seats in the Hall. Each seat had its own peculiar advantage over another, which he would refer to. He would now leave the brethren in the Hall and go back to the "green." Brethren with green tickets marked 5 would enter at one entrance (pointed out) and after showing their tickets to the keeper of the outer entrance, would be allowed to pass on in the former instance to the table to clothe. They would then be directed either to one part, or where the barrier was erected, to show their certificates and tickets, and if his proofs were satisfactory he would pass in a given direction. If he had not a certificate, he would be directed to go to the Scrutineers' table, where he would undergo a certain sort of questioning and examination. There were certain modes of identification which had been well thought of, but which it was not thought expedient to mention in that room; but they would be fully explained to the Scrutineers who would be at the table. After the brethren had given convincing proofs to the brethren at the table, they would pass up the winding staircase that led to the boxes. On arriving at the first floor, they would be directed by a Steward on the landing, either into the grand tier corridor or second tier corridor, according to their tickets of admission. When they had passed into the grand tier corridor the box-keepers would fill the boxes in like manner, beginning at one end, filling each box one after another until the whole were filled, and in like manner as in the other part. He ought perhaps to have mentioned before that the number of seats in each of the Loggia boxes would be sixteen; in each of the grand tier boxes twenty; and in each of the second tier boxes eight. That was about the extent the boxes would accommodate without considerable inconvenience. His brother president suggested that he (Bro. Fenn) should say they would hold more, and so they would if they crowded them; there would be space to move and to stand, but not to see with anything like comfort. At half past two punctually, the doors being closed, all communication between the inside and the outside of the building would be entirely cut off; consequently no brother could under any circumstances enter after half past two. The lobby once cleared, the Grand Officers, in command, after deputing a Steward to report that all was secure, would proceed to the east front or officers' clothing room to join in the procession. There would be an aide-de-camp in waiting at half past two to conduct the Stewards to the places prepared for them. With the exception of those Stewards who had particular duties in the blocks of the building, such as the gallery or the boxes and upper boxes, all Stewards who had been engaged in the entrance would proceed to inside of the Hall. They would occupy that portion of the amphitheatre stall (pointed out), so that in fact no Steward who undertook any of these duties would be excluded from the Hall or a sight of the whole proceedings. (Hear hear.) The doors after being closed would be locked and barred, and other precautions would be taken which he was not at liberty to mention. Between half past two and three o'clock there would be of course some dressing of the Hall required. There would be some vacant seats, some brethren being absent from illness, some unable to come; some unfortunate brethren perhaps would arrive too late. A plan had been adopted for filling those seats and "dressing" the Hall which would be explained to those Stewards who would be called upon to assist in doing so. There would be no difficulty in doing it, and it would be contained in the instructions to those Stewards appointed to those particular blocks. It would be observed, he thought, that some of these duties which he had described required very peculiar qualifications. He had already alluded to the Grand Officer in command, and the onerous and responsible duties he would be called upon to undertake. There was also the keeper of the outer door. He ought to be a man of rather imposing appearance and possessed of considerable firmness, and yet withal courteous and conciliatory in manner. Of course, some of these qualities it was found rather difficult to obtain in one single man, but still they must do their best. The examiners of clothing would be selected, as he had before mentioned, so far as possible from Past Grand Lodge Pursuivants; but inasmuch as he believed there were not 12 Past Grand Pursuivants they would have to call upon some experienced brethren to assist in that duty. They must be well acquainted with Masonic dress and the requirements that were exacted at Quarterly Communications. The Scrutineers likewise, he thought, ought to be selected from those who were in the habit of performing those duties at Quarterly Communications, or other intelligent Masons who would be thought fit to undertake it. These and other duties it was obviously necessary should be left to the discretion of the Committee managing this affair; but the other duties it was thought advisable should be determined by ballot. Some brethren would not like to be placed in corridors and galleries, and it might be invidious to direct a brother to take a position he did not like. The best way to avoid dissatisfaction or jealousy would be to ballot; and this could be done in a few days' time when there arose a little leisure. In the meantime, he hoped the written instructions would be ready, and that they would be sent out to the Stewards in the course of the week or on Monday. Those brethren who were not disposed to undertake the duties assigned to them would be expected to return these instructions, in order that other brethren might be appointed in their place. It was understood by the circular that the appointment of Stewards was conditional on their agreeing to undertake their duty, and on their not doing so they must submit to have their appointment cancelled and others made. They must remember that every Steward was part of a great piece of machinery, and a part that was wanting must be replaced before the machinery could go on in effective working. All the Stewards, although there might be a little dissatisfaction at being placed in the galleries or elsewhere, would have a good view. For the satisfaction of brethren placed high, he might inform them that some of the best views in the whole building were to be obtained from the balcony or even the galleries. Each seat had its own advantage over others. The seats down below (pointed out) would be nearer the procession and the actors in the ceremony; but for a mass view of the whole proceedings there was no place like the gallery, in fact the finest view of the whole building was in the gallery next the organ. He would advise any brother visiting the Hall to take a view from that particular part. It was very grand indeed. The brethren taking duties in the gallery would also have the advantage of a very fine collection of paintings (laughter), exhibition pictures, which would all be placed in position before that day. The Stewards as indicated on their cards, which would be given as the brethren left the meeting, must meet at the hall at eleven o'clock in the day. It was very early, but it was impossible to place them all in position unless they were there two hours before the doors were opened. Light refreshment—very light refreshment—(laughter) would be provided for them in the West Crush-room. They would have their rosettes given them there, and be marshalled in order according to their colours, and then be conducted to their posts. Some of the brethren who had been selected for peculiar duties would have to meet the committee at the Hall on some occasion previous to the day—the aide-de-camps in particular, who would have to make themselves acquainted with the intricacies of the building, must necessarily be there some considerable time, to learn their duties. The other Stewards who would be balloted for could have their duties pretty well explained to them by written instructions. There would be some he should select who, of course, must put themselves to the inconvenience of spending half-a-day at the Albert Hall.

ro. Edwd. Cox having asked a question, The Chairman said there had been some little difficulty about the purple collars of the provinces, but a circular had been printed, which even a child could understand, which would be sent to the brethren, and he thought there would be no possible difficulty on that head. He also said brethren would have to take their hats and overcoats into the Hall, as there was no place to accommodate them outside. The Stewards, however, would be accommodated in the West Crush-room, and the Grand Officers likewise. The ceremony of installation would last, Sir Albert Woods said, from an hour to an hour and a half.

Thanks were unanimously passed to Sir Albert Woods, Bro. Fenn, and the Chairman, and the meeting was adjourned.

INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The following circulars have been received:—
Sir and Brother,—

On referring to the return of Lodge No. — I find that the brethren to whom you allude are improperly returned in the "unqualified" or Masters' Masons' list. It is impossible to fully correct this without disturbing the entire arrangements. The committee, however, desire to do all in their power to prevent disappointment, and should it be found practicable to comply with your request you will receive a communication to that effect.

I am, faithfully and fraternally yours,
JOHN HERVEY, G.S.
Freemasons' Hall, April, 1875.

Provincial Grand Officers who attend as Members of Grand Lodge (that is as W.M.'s, Wardens, or P.M.'s) must wear over their Provincial Grand Lodge Clothing (if that be worn) the light blue collars of the offices in virtue of which they are Members of Grand Lodge, in accordance with the Book of Constitutions, page 123, line 13.

Provincial Grand Officers who are Master Masons only may wear their purple aprons.
Brethren are strongly recommended not to bring their clothing in boxes, as much inconvenience will be saved to them thereby.

JOHN HERVEY, G.S.
Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., April, 1875.

FREEMASONS' HALL, LONDON, W.C. April, 1875.
Sir and Brother,—

I regret to be obliged to say in reply to the numerous "late" applications that no more Tickets for the Installation Ceremony can be issued.

Fraternally Yours, JOHN HERVEY, G.S.

OUR ROYAL BROTHER PRINCE LEOPOLD.

An Oxford correspondent writes:—The members of the Masonic body throughout the kingdom will be interested in learning that Prince Leopold, who returned to his studies at Christ Church on Friday week, is likely to become an active working member of that body. At an emergency meeting of the Apollo University Lodge, No. 357, held on Saturday evening, his Royal Highness and his secretary, Bro. R. H. Collins, M.A., of Lincoln College, were raised to the degree of Master Mason, the Worshipful Master (Bro. Rev. H. A. Pickard, M.A., Christ Church, Past Provincial Senior Grand Warden presiding. Many Past Masters of the lodge, and a very large number of the members, were present. The ceremony was admirably and impressively performed by the Worshipful Master; and at its conclusion Prince Leopold took his place as Senior Warden of the lodge, to which office he was a short time since appointed. His Royal Highness appeared to have almost entirely recovered from his recent severe illness. He was initiated in the Apollo Lodge, of which his brother, the Prince of Wales, is a Past Master, last October term. It is confidently hoped that Prince Leopold will in due course occupy the high post now vacant of Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. R. J. Spiers) is about to retire from the office, and will be succeeded by Bro. Reginald Bird, a Past Master of the Apollo University Lodge and fellow and Vice-President of Magdalen College. It is intended to present a testimonial to Bro. Spiers on his retirement from the office, which he has held for the long period of thirty years, in recognition of the services he has rendered to the Craft. On his appointment there were but two lodges in the province, and there are now seven.

MASONIC BALL AT DUBLIN.

The number of persons who came from the country specially to attend the Masonic ball which took place at the Exhibition Palace at Dublin, in honour of the inauguration of the Duke of Abercorn as Grand Master, was so great that for some days it has been very difficult to obtain hotel accommodation. No more splendid fête has ever been given in this city, and the whole of the immense floor of the Palace was devoted to it, the Leinster Hall being appropriated to dancing, and the nave to promenading and refreshment. The splendid band of the Coldstream Guards, under Mr. Dan Godfrey, occupied the orchestra, and there were not less than 3,000 persons present. The decorations were very rich, and in excellent taste. At the junction of the nave and the Leinster Hall, in front of the organ, was erected a dais of three degrees, on which was placed the Grand Master's Throne, surmounted by a noble canopy in the form of a Turkish tent, composed of red, blue and black tapestries. On the screen at the back, covered with the same colours, behind which were elegant retiring rooms for the Viceregal suite, were displayed glittering breastplates and helmets, with many Masonic devices formed of bayonets, daggers, and swords, and as the radiance of the lights fell upon these it was reflected with a happy effect. The space beneath the galleries was covered with splendid carpets, and furnished with luxurious couches, chairs, cabinets, and mirrors, and the entire wall space was hung with lace curtains, depending under draperies of red, black, and blue silk, from a gilded cornice. Sheaves of lances, with red and white pennons, were arranged round the bases of the vine-wreathed columns that supported the gallery, the front of which was decorated with the banners of all nations, and shields bearing the devices of the various Masonic orders.

When the company had assembled, the scene, with the rich dresses of the ladies, the uniforms of the numerous military officers present, and the brilliant insignia of the Masons, was one of the most dazzling and enchanting that can be conceived. His Grace the Grand Master, with a distinguished party and a brilliant suite, arrived about half-past ten, and was received by the stewards and committee at the great door. His Grace was then conducted through the company to the throne, and when he appeared on the dais full Masonic honours were paid to him. Dancing soon afterwards commenced, and continued till a late hour.

A LODGE OF SORROW.

OMAGH.—LODGE CONCORD (No. 332).—This lodge met as a "Lodge of Sorrow" on Thursday, 1st inst., at the Masonic Hall, Omagh, to prepare an address of condolence to the family of the late lamented Bro. Dr. H. Thompson, M.D., P.M., deceased. There were present Bros. Dr. F. J. Wert, P.M., acting W.M.; Dr. W. S. Love, P.M., acting S.W.; R. Coffey, P.M., acting J.W.; the Rev. G. Lovett, acting Chaplain; R. Adams, S.D.; the Rev. G. Henning, acting J.D.; K. Houston, I.G.; W. J. Palmer, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. Kent, Treasurer and Secretary; M. Anderson, P.M.; A. C. Buchanan, P.M.; F. C. Dickil, P.M.; W. Muller, P.M.; C. J. McMuller, P.M.; R. Sproull, and Major Mervyn Vesey. Visitors—Bro. Cecil Moore, and C. Huntley, S. Krine, No. 45. The lodge was opened in the E.A. degree, the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed, and three candidates were initiated by the acting W.M.; Bro. P. M. Dickil acting as conductor to the candidates. A communication was read from the P.G. Secretary, announcing that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Tyrone and Fermanagh would meet in the Town Hall, Enniskillen, on Friday, 23rd inst., at two p.m. A letter was read from the W.M., Bro. W. Stawell Garnett, regretting his unavoidable absence in Dublin, and expressing his hearty concurrence in and approval of the proposed expression of sympathy from the lodge; also from Bro. Commander Charles Scott, R.N., P.M. 33°, acknowledging an invitation, regretting his inability to attend, and conveying his hearty good wishes to the brethren of Lodge No. 332. The lodge was then opened as a "Lodge of Sorrow," the solemn ritual being most impressively given by the acting W.M., ably assisted by the acting Chaplain and the Wardens. The following address of condolence was proposed by Bro. F. C. Dickil, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Dr. W. S. Love, P.M., and passed unanimously, viz.:—

"To Mrs. Thompson and the family of the late Dr. Henry Thompson, M.D.

"We, as members of Lodge Concord, No. 332, of Free and Accepted Masons, regularly, as a "Lodge of Sorrow," beg to tender to you our heartfelt sympathy and condolence on the occasion of the death of our highly-esteemed brother, Dr. Henry Thompson, one of the Senior Past Masters of our lodge. We desire to assure you that we shall ever cherish the memory of our late brother, and that in his death the lodge has sustained an irreparable loss. Eminent amongst the most eminent in his profession, a kind friend, a worthy brother, a courteous and Christian gentleman, he has been called to his eternal rest. His example will guide us, and his memory will long remain enshrined in our affections. We humbly pray that the Most High will, in His goodness and mercy, give you grace and support you all in this your hour of trial and deep affliction, and that we shall all be reunited in that Grand Home above, where there will be neither parting nor sorrow, but peace and fulness of joy shall reign for evermore.

(Sealed with the seal, and signed on behalf of the lodge)
"W. J. PALMER, P.M., Sec. 332."

The proposer, seconder, and the Secretary were appointed a deputation to present the address. The "Lodge of Sorrow" was then closed with solemn prayer. The address having been presented, the following reply was read to the deputation:—"Dear Friends,—On behalf of my mother, myself, and our family, I beg to return you, and through you to the members of your lodge, our heartfelt thanks for the kind and sympathetic address which you have just read. Some of my dear father's happiest moments were passed in the company of his brother Masons, and he often expressed his deep regret that failing health latterly prevented him from more frequently joining in their meetings. He lived a Christian, and as such he died, in perfect peace and happiness, trusting, as he expressed almost in the last words he ever uttered, 'in the finished work of Christ.' This knowledge naturally lessened in some measure the terrible blow with which a merciful God has thought fit to visit us. May we all be as well prepared when the day of reckoning comes to meet our Saviour. Allow me again to thank you most sincerely for your kindness and sympathy, which my mother and all of us will ever treasure as a mark of esteem and regard for one who was so universally respected and beloved by those who best knew and appreciated him.—Yours very faithfully,

"EDWARD C. THOMPSON."

MASONIC AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE.—We have pleasure in calling attention to the progress which this office has made and is making, notwithstanding the difficulties which all Life offices have had to encounter, and the work which has had to be done to secure new business. We specially call our friends' attention to this office, and recommend them to support the same by taking out policies or otherwise as may be convenient. Assuredly this office well deserves the support of the Craft generally.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening in the board room, Freemason's Hall. Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D., President, in the chair, Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President. Among the other brethren present were Herbert Dicketts, W. Smith, C. E., Hyde Pullen, Raynham W. Stewart, John White, James Willing, Jun., H. Garrod, C.] A. Cottebrune, Joseph Smith, John Boyd, John Savage, W. Dodd, J. G. Marsh, John Lewis Thomas, G. F. Swann, H. Bartlett, W. Carter, E. Wits, W.M. 144; W. C. Crick, Joseph Crawley, R. W. Little, Goddard, H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury and H. Massey, Freemason.

After confirming the small grants, amounting to £270, resolved last Lodge of Benevolence, the brethren proceeded to consider the new cases, and during the evening voted £470; one of their grants was for £150. Several grants were made of £20 each, two £40, and one £30. The remainder were the smaller grants of £10 and £5. Lodge was then closed.

SONG.

ON THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES AS M.W. GRAND MASTER.

By Bro. Dr. J. E. CARPENTER, P.M. 284 AND 1196.

I.

Ye brethren of the mystic rite
To greet your Royal Prince prepare,
The word is passed, the sign is right,
Behold! he fills the ancient chair!
The chair the wisest king of old,
Great Solomon, once deigned to fill,
Our grand construction to unfold,
Called by the universal will.

II.

Again, as in the days of yore,
The widow's son our work designs,
His skill the Temple raised before,
We follow working on his lines;
True to our old Masonic fame,
Long may our lofty columns stand,
Graced by our Albert Edward's name,
Made firmer by his ruling hand.

Obituary.

BRO. THE REV. A. HOLMES.

We deeply regret to announce that on Saturday last, the 17th inst., Bro. the Rev. Arthur Holmes, 18, a member of the University Rose Croix Chapter, Cambridge, committed suicide in a fit of temporary insanity. The deceased, besides being one of the most distinguished Masons in Cambridge, was also one of the most learned amongst the alumni of that ancient university. He gained the Bell (University) scholarship in 1856; the Craven University scholarship in the same year. He won the Porson prizes in 1856-7-8, the Bronze Medals for Greek Ode in 1857-8, and the Chancellor's Medal for English verse in 1858. In 1860 he was elected to a scholarship at St. John's. For many years he was classical lecturer at St. John's, and also at Clare College. In 1868 he was appointed Lady Margaret preacher, and also a select preacher before the University. In 1869-71 he was Cambridge preacher at the Chapel Royal, and at the time of his death was a member of the senate of the University. He was the author of various classical works, including the Midias of Demosthenes, and the Nemean Odes of Pindar, besides being editor of the Catena Classicorum. We are indebted to our contemporary, the Morning Post, for the above particulars of the classical achievements of our lamented brother.

Masonic Tidings.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER AT SHEFFIELD.—It has been stated that the Prince of Wales will stay at Sheffield two days on his forthcoming visit to that town in August next. He will open Page-hall Park on the day of his arrival, and in the evening will attend a ball given by the Mayor. On the following day he will be entertained at a banquet by the Cutlers' Company. It has been suggested that the Duke of Cambridge should be invited to accompany the Prince to Sheffield, and it is probable that if he accepts the invitation he will be the guest of the Master Cutler. His acceptance of the invitation is somewhat doubtful, inasmuch as when, some 18 years ago, he unveiled a monument to the memory of Sheffield soldiers who fell in the Crimea he was treated in a very disrespectful manner by the working men.

GLASGOW PUBLIC HALLS, Kent-road, off North-st.—It has now been decided that the foundation stone of these Halls shall be laid with full Masonic honours by the Provincial Grand Master for Glasgow, Walter Montgomerie Neilson, Esq., of Queenshill, on Saturday, 22nd May ensuing. Should the weather prove favourable it is anticipated that this will be the most imposing Masonic demonstration that has been within the province for a long time. The Lord Provost, Magistrates, and other civic dignitaries are expected to take part in the ceremonial. The day being Saturday, numerous deputations from lodges within a radius of a dozen or fifteen miles will doubtless join the procession. The post of honour to carry the tools will as a matter of course be filled by Lodge St. John, No. 3, it being the oldest lodge within the province, in connection with this. The Architect, Mr. Sellars, of Messrs. Campbell, Douglas and Sellars'; and the builder, Mr. James Watson, are both members of Lodge St. John.

The Priory Chapter No. 1000 will be consecrated (this day, Saturday), at the Middleton Hotel, Southend on Sea, by Bro. R. Wenworth Little, P.M., P.Z., Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex, at three o'clock. Comp. the Rev. R.S.R. Wyrant, P.Z., is the M.E.Z. Designate, Comp. E. E. Phillips, H. Designate; and Comp. A. Lucking, J. Designate. Trains leave London, as follows: Bishopgate St., 10.42. a.m.; Fenchurch St., 10.52. a.m.

The Prince of Wales's yacht, the Osborne, is ordered to be ready by the 1st of June for the use of his Royal Highness, who will proceed some distance to sea with the Arctic ships.

Bro. N. Knell has been elected Churchwarden of St. Giles, Cripplegate, and also one of the Assessment Committee.

On Monday last Bro. Emra Holmes gave his lecture on "Public Speaking" (which we understand will appear in the "Masonic Magazine" for May), at the Public Hall, Needham Market, Suffolk, the object being that thoroughly Masonic one, to assist the funds for the restoration of the chancel of the neighbouring church of Great Blakenham, of which his cousin, the Rev. W. Emra, is rector. There was a select, but very appreciative audience, the Rev. W. L. Elliott, Rural Dean, occupying the chair.

An excellent photograph portrait of our esteemed Bro. Hervey, the Grand Sec., has just been published by T. P. Avery, Ladbroke Grove.

The National Great Priory of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple and St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta, in England and Wales and the Dependencies thereof, will be held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon St., on Friday, the 14th May, at 3.30. p.m. The banquet will take place at 6.30. p.m.

We understand that Bro. E. J. Harty has received permission to make sketches of the installation of H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master, from which it is his intention to produce a splendid historical steel plate engraving, containing portraits of the most eminent brethren present on the occasion, so that the delineation of so memorable an event will not be wanting.

Bro. Horace Jones, the City Architect, was married at Marylebone Church, on Thursday, to Miss Elizabeth Ann Patch, daughter of Mr. John Patch, barrister-at-law, Temple.—City Press.

Messrs. Ritter and Clifford, the proprietors of the Guildhall Tavern, have purchased the freehold of the north-east corner of King-street, adjoining the Irish chambers, and immediately facing the Guildhall.

THE RED CROSS BALL AT WILLIS'S ROOMS.—There were nearly 200 present at this most successful re-union, amongst whom were Col. Francis Burdett and Mrs. Burdett, Sir Knights R. Wentworth Little, Roebuck, Dr. Ramsey, Rosenthal, Levander, McCartney, M.P., Cubitt, Thellay, Col. Peters, Rev.—Holden, Rev.—Vaughan, Yeoman, Boyd, Pythian, Keily, Hand, H. A. Dubois, and F. C. Hogard. The refreshments were first rate, and the supper and wines superabundant. The music was good, and in fact the ball was pronounced the best that had been held at Willis's Rooms this season. After supper those members of the degree of K.T. donned their picturesque clothing, and a special quadrille was danced by them with great effect.

HONOURS TO CAMBERWELL MASONS.—Bro. G. S. Mansell, of the Sphinx Lodge, 1,349, has been elected a member of the Camberwell Board of Guardians. Bro. J. H. Vockins,

W.M. of the same lodge, was then referred to by Bro. E. R. Buxton, who, at the meeting of the London School Board last week, in bringing up the report of the Bye-Law Committee, and alluding to the compulsion of attendance, said: "Comparing the increase in the different divisions, there was an extraordinary difference, no doubt to be accounted for by the increased efficiency of the Superintendent, or the Divisional Committee, or the visitors. The difficulty in dealing with the children in some districts arose from the class of children; at the same time the discrepancies were so great that he desired to call the attention of the divisional members to the fact, so that they might see whether some increased result might not be obtained. Lambeth appeared to have been more successful than other divisions, not only in the past half year, but since the commencement of the system of compulsion. It was due to Bro. Vockins, the very hard working Superintendent of Lambeth, to say that." The brethren of the "Sphinx" should feel pleased to find two of their officers thus "honourably mentioned."

THE "SPECIALITE" SHERRY.—This wine, which possesses really a genuine light and wholesome flavour, has attained great popularity, and is largely patronized by the medical profession. We find it free from that mineral acidity so invariably found in sherry of the present day. The wine has been submitted by Messrs. Felter and Sons, the importers, for analytical purposes, to many of our most able medical men, who unanimously, we may say, recommend it for its valuable and dietetic qualities. We understand that the business of this firm has increased so considerably that they intend shortly to remove from their present address, 26, Conduit-st., to much more commodious and extensive premises, situated in Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.—The preparations which have been in progress for the opening of the new Alexandra Palace during the past year are rapidly drawing to a close, and the final arrangements for the opening on the 1st May are completed. There is a very large demand for season tickets, no doubt occasioned by the attractive nature of the programme, which has been largely circulated, and also by the exceptional advantages afforded to season ticket holders by participation in the Art Union distribution of works of art. Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, and Bros. Ellis and Shaw (Sheriffs), with the Wardens of the principal City companies, will attend the opening ceremony in civic State, escorted by a Light Cavalry Troop of Honourable Artillery Company, and the Mayors of the chief provincial towns will also be present. The grand concert by members of Her Majesty's Italian Opera Company, conducted by Bro. Sir Michael Costa, will commence at 3 p.m. The picture galleries comprise a well-selected and attractive exhibition of modern works, amongst which the French and Belgian schools are fairly represented; whilst the works sent from Munich for exhibition, and to which one gallery is especially devoted, form the largest and most complete collection of high class Bavarian pictures ever exhibited in this country.

BRO. GLAISHER AND THE BALLOON ACCIDENT IN FRANCE.—Last week Dr. Sedgwick Saunders, the Medical Officer of Health and Public Analyst for the City of London, was presented with a handsome testimonial, consisting of a pair of candelabra, a Warwick vase, and a silver claret jug, in recognition of his public services in connection with the new Guildhall library. The presentation was made at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor. In the evening, Bro. John Symonds, the chairman, and the members of the Library Committee, entertained about eighty guests at dinner at the London Tavern. Towards the close of the entertainment Bro. James Glaisher, F.R.S., responding to a toast with which his name had been connected, took occasion to say, referring to the fatal balloon experiment in Paris, that he had been exceedingly pained to read the results, and that he could not but feel that a great mistake had been made. M. Tissandier, he said, with whom he was well acquainted, had previously been with him, and they had talked together about the power of a man to ascend a certain altitude, even to the height of five, six, or even seven miles. Bro. Glaisher argued then, as now, that no man, however experienced, should attempt to exceed that extreme limit who had any heart disease or any pulmonary affection, for in either of those cases, after ascending to a height of four miles, death might occur at any moment.

It is incorrect to say that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught will be made a Master Mason this week. He will be raised next week, but on a day previous to the installation of H.R.H. the Grand Master.

We understand that our worthy brother, the Lord Mayor, is the Junior Grand Warden for the year. We are very glad to hear it.

Mulum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

I am desirous of obtaining information about a Masonic Apron which belongs to my lodge, the "True Friendship," where it has been recently accidentally discovered. It is nearly as fresh and distinct as if it had just come from the printer's block. The beautiful engraving is printed on satin, and is mounted on a flag or a little stick covered with white silk. This apron was printed at Bristol, 1813, painted by Hobday, engraved by G. Johnson, and published by J. Hayes, all of Bristol. I am anxious to learn its history, and the meaning of the design. Is this specimen unique. It is a "Moira" apron.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

Before we meet our readers again this great event in our Masonic history will be past and gone, and we, therefore, think it well to recur to the subject generally for the last time. All the tickets are now out, and though many will be disappointed, those who have had the arrangements have laboured to do their duty to the Craft, without "partiality, favour, or affection." It is a most awkward position for them, and not a pleasant duty by any means to refuse admission to so many worthy applicants, but "sunt certidene fines," and no goodwill in the world, or wish to please the brethren, could overpass them.

From what we know of our excellent Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, and Bros. Thomas Fenn, and the Grand Secretary, we are well aware, with the Craft at large, that none feel more the disappointment of so many good men and Masons more keenly than they do.

All the arrangements thus far have been characterized by consummate tact and remarkable consideration for the Craft at large, and we feel sure that the Grand Stewards, with Bro. Erasmus Wilson at their head, are equal to every emergency, and acting Wardens to the Annual Offices, something might be said about the relaxation of the rule, as all Provincial Officers could then only be ipso facto members of Grand Lodge, but by the Book of Constitutions, as is well known, the only Provincial Officers who must be members of Grand Lodge are the Provincial Grand Wardens and the Provincial Grand Deacons, and if these are Past Wardens, they are not members of Grand Lodge, but though the rule must be adhered to, we feel bound to say that the authorities are all animated by a desire to eschew anything like the difficulties of the Circumlocution Office, and to suggest regulations and arrangements as helpful and as simple as may be, for the good of the Craft at large. We beg to call attention to Bro. Erasmus Wilson's seasonable letter, and to the interesting report of the meeting of the Stewards, which we specially commend to our readers' most careful consideration.

We are requested to call attention to the fact, that many brethren are still writing to the office, whose applications cannot be granted, and whose letters cannot even be answered, owing to the pressure of correspondence. Many brethren have not even taken the trouble to read the regulations, and have written about points which are already clearly laid down. It is impossible to answer them. Many of the lodges have made inaccurate returns, placing qualified brethren on the unqualified list, so that if any are excluded, it is alone the fault of the lodge officers. The rule about Clothing is distinct and precise in the Book of Constitutions, and all Provincial Officers, Past and Present, must wear their qualifying collar and jewel for Grand Lodge.

The agenda paper was not issued when we went to press.

THE PROVINCE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

Since the resignation of Lord Ripon, this distinguished province has been without a Chief. Those who know West Yorkshire, and are acquainted with its work, are well aware, that for many years it has most faithfully striven to perform all its Masonic duties, most truly and fully, with "freedom and fervency and zeal." It gave that happy impetus to the provincial movement in favour of the metropolitan charities which has reached such gratifying proportions, and its own contributions to our great central Institutions have been worthy of itself and the sacred cause it had so much at heart. Some of us may recall the genial rule of Lord Mexborough and of his kindly deputies Charles Lee and Dr. Fearnley; but most of us will best remember Lord Ripon's active and pleasant regime, and the warm heart and considerate counsels of his zealous and respected deputy, Bro. Bentley Shaw. Until the lamentable hour of Lord Ripon's separation from the province, nothing could be more harmonious or happy, and no Provincial Grand Mastership ever more tended to exalt the "prestige" of the Order in the eyes of non-Masons, amongst our shrewd fellow-countrymen in West Yorkshire.

Under Lord Ripon and Bro. Bentley Shaw, the great charitable movement progressed and expanded, while at the same time the building of Masonic Halls assumed a remarkable and unmistakable character. Indeed, we venture to add, from intimate acquaintance with the district, and without wishing, as they say in Yorkshire, to "crack over much," that there is no province in England where the principles of Freemasonry are more valued or better displayed. A great deal of this is owing to the happy influence of the provincial authorities, for it is a well known truism in the history of nations and communities and societies that the principles and character, and that the Special Stewards will be very useful in the separate duties allotted to them. We are asked, even so late as this week, how the Provincial officers are to be clothed? It has been already pointed out by us, as well as laid down in the regulations, which we hope all our brethren will carefully read, that the Provincial officers are to wear their qualifying collar of W.M., P.M., Senior or Junior Warden, over their Provincial Clothing. If all Provinces adhere to one rule, of appointing only W.M's., the ruled always bear a wonderful likeness to those of the ruler. We are not saying too much when we add that no province could be better administered, and no province was more truly sensible of the privileges and advantages it enjoyed. Bro. Sir H. Edwards, Bart., well known to Yorkshiremen, succeeds as P.G.M. in the room of Lord Ripon, and as Bro. Bentley Shaw wishes to retire, Bro. J. W. Tew, of Pontefract, a zealous Yorkshire Mason, is to be appointed D.P.G.M. And while we wish all prosperity to the new administration, while we feel sure that under their auspices Freemasonry in West Yorkshire will neither retrograde nor decay, we yet feel bound to remember those who have so far borne the burden and heat of the day. Neither should we forget the zealous efforts of Bro. R. M. Nelson, formerly P.G.S., nor the continued zeal of Bro. H. Smith. Bro. Bentley Shaw will carry with him, on his retirement from active business, the goodwill and regard of all his brethren. They will remember his geniality, his earnestness, his forbearance, his kindly consideration for all of whatever rank or degree, and we trust that he may be long spared to enjoy the attachment of his friends and his family circle, and the affectionate goodwill and regard of his brother Freemasons.

A PORTRAIT OF OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

We have been greatly pleased with an engraving of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, which Bro. Harty has submitted to our notice. As a work of art it is highly effective, and gives us a striking representation of our Grand Master in his full Masonic clothing as Grand Master. We beg to commend it to the notice of all our readers. We are of opinion that it does great credit to our good brother Harty, while it gives us a very striking portrait of our august Grand Master. The engraving would form a most appropriate ornament for every lodge room, under the English constitution, and we may add that as a specimen of lithography it is one of the finest and most highly finished of any we have ever seen.

MR. CHARLES BRADLAUGH.

We think it but fair to our readers to publish the following article on this subject, which appeared in our contemporary, The Birmingham Morning News, of April 13th, with some needful comments of our own at the conclusion:—

"A paragraph, which we copied yesterday from a Liverpool contemporary, calls attention to a question of considerable interest both to those who are, and those who may desire to become, Freemasons. That question is—Can a man join the Masonic body who refuses to express his belief in a God? Lately, in America, Mr. Bradlaugh was present as a Mason at some lodges, and the Freemason thereupon declared that he "was not a regularly made Freemason under the English constitution at all, nor, indeed, under any regular constitution at all;" adding that the Loge des Philadelphes, in which he was "made," is "a spurious political and unrecognised order." Mr. Bradlaugh having stated that he was received in the Loge de la Persévérante Amitié, Grand Orient of France, the Freemason says, "We can find no such lodge under the Grand Orient." To this Mr. Bradlaugh replies, "Your inability to find the Loge de la Persévérante Amitié of Paris is a matter on which I cannot help you. If you had applied at the proper source, you could not have avoided finding it; and if you do not know where to look, it will only be because your acquaintance with Freemasonry is of a very limited nature." After stating that his diploma, signed "Le Maréchal de France, Grand Maître de l'Ordre Maçonnique, Magnan," and duly countersigned, numbered, and sealed, is dated May 15, 1862, and was the certificate under which he visited the Adelpi and Columbian Lodges of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Mr. Bradlaugh says, in reply to the Freemason, "I say nothing of the good taste and Masonic feeling which permits you to suggest, through a correspondent, that these respectable and influential American lodges are also spurious assemblies; that is a matter for yourself; but if you had stopped to inquire, you would have well known and easily ascertained that it would be simply physically impossible for an irregular Masonic Lodge to meet in the Boston Masonic Temple." Mr. Bradlaugh was some time ago admitted into the High Cross Lodge, Tottenham, and the Freemason remarks thereupon—"We must all of us greatly deplore the laxity manifested by that lodge. He is a person of known Atheistical opinions, made in a spurious political lodge, mixed up with revolutionary proclivities, admitted into a respectable English Lodge. . . . We hope that the members of the High Cross Lodge can give some satisfactory explanation of a most anomalous and unprecedented proceeding." Mr. Bradlaugh says—"With your questions to the Tottenham High Cross Lodge I have little or no concern; but tell me how it is that the very Grand Lodge of England itself could have issued its solemn certificate, duly signed and countersigned, vouching me to be a regular Freemason, if there is, or could be, any doubt on the matter? Is the system of issuing Masonic certificates by the Grand Lodge of England so loose that it may possibly solemnly vouch one who is not a Mason? For several years I held this certificate; I returned it of my own motion, but only when a Grand Master was elected to whom I can never pretend to pay Masonic allegiance." This is a very pretty quarrel as it stands, among Freemasons, who, we understood, never quarrelled—at least, openly. There are two points in it—one of fact, as to whether Mr. Bradlaugh was or was not made a Mason; and one of principle, as to whether theological or political belief has anything to do with the admission of a person to the ranks of Masonry. On the first point, the advantage seems to lie powerfully with Mr. Bradlaugh—who, by the way, was a member of the Loge des Philadelphes in the honourable company of Louis Blanc and Garibaldi. As to the second point, we are not competent to judge. Mr. Bradlaugh states that he was an avowed Atheist before he was made a Mason. If, however, it be true, as the Freemason seems to imply, that a religious declaration is required in England in order to become a Mason, and that Freemasonry takes cognisance of political opinion also, the Pope will be gratified as well as surprised to learn that the Freemasons, like himself, are fighting for religion and established order. As the point has been raised, it is worth while to have it settled. Some persons, though believers in religion, might object to become Masons through a religious test, and others, who would confer honour on Masonry, would be excluded by that test on the Continent; and we can hardly see the use of maintaining it in England, for foreign Masons, infidels in religion, coming to reside in England, would wish to become affiliated members of English lodges, and could not very graciously be refused. If, however, there is now any religious test required by foreign Masonic lodges, then Masonry can hardly be making great progress amongst the educated classes of France, Italy, and North Germany, where unbelief is so common. Perhaps some one well acquainted with English and foreign Masonry will clear up these points—always supposing the dread 'secret' would not thereby divulged." The case then thus stands. Mr. Charles Bradlaugh was originally received in the "Philadelphes," as far as we are concerned, an illegal and unmasonic Order, and was received, in 1862, into the "Persévérante Amitié," a lodge, Mr. Bradlaugh states, under the French Grand Orient, and through which he received a formal French certificate, signed by Marshal Magnan, then Grand Master. Thus, according to Mr. Bradlaugh, he had a legitimate French certificate, but we venture to repeat such acceptance by the French lodge, even though it be regular, by no means condoned the offence of having been professedly received as an initiate in an unwarranted body, openly disavowed alike by the Grand Lodge of England and the Grand Orient of France. Upon this certificate Mr. Bradlaugh presented himself to the High Cross Lodge, and, without entering into questions personal to Mr. Bradlaugh, we think the High Cross Lodge may plead, as a justification, that they received him on a lawful certificate. The High Cross Lodge then apparently obtained a certificate from the Grand Secretary, on the payment of the usual fee, on the registration of Mr. Bradlaugh as a Master Mason under the English Constitution. It was no part clearly, of the Grand Secretary's duty to inquire into Mr. Bradlaugh's antecedents. The High Cross Lodge had received him, and were alone responsible for his admission into our English Order. We originally contended that Mr. Bradlaugh was not a legally made Freemason, and we assert so still. His reception in France by no means did away with his vicious admission, and as far as we are concerned in England, he is an irregularly made Mason. Mr. Bradlaugh quite misunderstands what we said about the American lodges. We nowhere implied in the slightest degree that we considered them in any way "illegitimate," but as Mr. Bradlaugh had no English certificate we did not understand how he was admitted. It appears that he was accepted on his French certificate. That is all very well, as regards the Grand Orient of France, though we do not profess to understand how they can accept as a French Freemason a person originally admitted into the Philadelphes. That is, however, a question for them to settle. For us the matter is plain. Mr. Bradlaugh is not a properly made Freemason. We will only add, that "La Persévérante Amitié" is not found on the official list of 1874, though it may have existed in 1862. With regard to our contemporary's remarks, we will say this: We have nothing to do with politics, and we require no political test whatever, but we have a right to say, and we do say, according to our well-known "standing order," that a man is "obliged by his tenets to obey the moral law, and if he rightly understand the art, he will never be a stupid atheist nor an irreligious libertine." We have nothing to do with foreign brethren or foreign notions, but according to our English system, no atheist can be received in our lodges. By this proper rule, if we know anything of English Freemasons, we feel sure that our brethren will sternly and unanimously abide.

VALE.

Hardly a week passes over our heads but we have to deplore the loss of some well-known brother of our Order. It may be, that the last time we saw him in lodge he seemed as strong and as genial as ever. No one could be more hearty in the cause of Freemasonry, no one could more contribute to the social happiness of the evening. And yet here is the inevitable obituary and he is not! He has passed away from home and friends, and kith and kin, from the office he filled so well, from the duties he discharged so faithfully, from the society he graced so much. And sometimes the pain of the intelligence is augmented by the suddenness of the event. Some unexpected illness, some dreadful accident, some unforeseen calamity, hurries away from us all, from time, from friends, from duty, from the lodge, some most worthy confrère, some faithful and zealous member of many years. At that time memory asserts its power, and it rushes with us on its pinions of magic swiftness, to other days and other scenes, to ancient meetings and good Masonic work. Then we, who are now old, and grey, and gouty, were full of zeal and energy. Pleasant were our meetings then, "O socii et so dales," and flourishing was that good old lodge of which we were the indigenous or the affiliated members. And he whom we mourn to-day, perhaps, was then in our very midst, most active with the active, earnest with his work, and foremost in all Masonic labours. Peace to him. He has passed away from earthly toil, and weakness, and suffering, and imperfection, to that "rest which remaineth," one day to be admitted, let us hope, by his Grand Master's goodness, into that everlasting lodge, where the World's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. We shall all feel how true is this simple description of the hebdomadal thoughts of many of us, who see recorded in the pages of the Freemason the names of old friends and fellow workers, as they pass away from us, from time, and home, and lodge; and though as Masons we fully believe that,

"We shall watch for the gleam of the flapping sail,

We shall hear the boat as it gains the strand,

We shall hail the approach of the boatman pale,

To bear us o'er to the better land," yet, still human like, and mortal like, we often deplore that we can no more have,

"The touch of a vanished hand,

And the sound of a voice that's still."

In Freemasonry it often happens that we meet most worthy men and good Masons, not of high social position, not of a great name or greater wealth, yet with them we consort on terms of Masonic equality in the lodge, and to us Freemasons it matters not whether they be high or humble, rich or poor; they are our brethren, and warmly do we regret their loss, and sincerely do we respect their memories.

IMPORTANT.—THE INSTALLATION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Every member of the Craft will, I am sure, give those on whom devolves the duty of planning the arrangements for the approaching grand ceremony credit for an earnest desire that the future, as well as the past, shall be an agreeable and a pleasant memory. As a small, but not unimportant element for securing this happy result, let me beg of you to remind the brethren who attend the festival, particularly those from the provinces, to distinguish between the hall and the tavern department of our magnificent building in Great Queen-street. In the hall they will find every convenience for clothing, and for the security of their property, and an active and zealous body of Tylers to provide for their comfort. After clothing in the hall they may pass leisurely to the banquetting-room of the tavern, and when the business of the evening is over, they may retire with equal composure and ease to the tyled apartment in which they have left their impedimenta, whereas the tavern must necessarily be bustling and occupied with its own affairs, and there is always the possibility of confusion.

I have known such an occurrence to arise, and I have heard reproaches directed against a presumed want of proper administration. But attention to the suggestion I have now made will prevent any repetition of a like inconvenience, and will protect the management from misunderstanding.

I need hardly say that it is the earnest wish of the Grand Stewards that the arrangements of the banquet shall be, in every sense, complete and harmonious.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF GRAND STEWARDS.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE INSTALLATION OF THE M.W.G.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I fear from what I can learn as to the uncertainty in the minds of many of the present and past officers of lodges in the provinces (especially the old Past Masters) that there will be (notwithstanding the plain instructions of Grand Lodge) great confusion and misapprehension as to the blue collar and pendent jewels necessary to be worn by all members of Grand Lodge. Some brethren too, with provincial or past provincial clothing, will, I fear, appear in that clothing minus the ordinary blue collar and silver jewel of the office in ordinary lodge, by virtue of which alone they are members of the Grand Lodge.

Some old Past Masters who have no blue collar or Past Master's pendent and silver jewel of their own, will, I expect appear in their old Past Master's apron only.

Again, several old lodges in the provinces have very old jewels, and not according to the present regulations of Grand Lodge.

Hence, if the stewards are strict, many of the brethren will not be admitted to the ceremony of the 28th, and would thus lose their journey to London.

To obviate so dire a disaster to any of our more obtuse brethren they should be enabled to purchase collars and jewels on the spot (i.e. at the Albert Hall). This could be done by your establishing for the morning, a sort of stalls in the vestibules, either for the sale of collars and pendent silver jewels, or the loan of them. If the latter, the borrower to deposit with you a sum of money sufficient to guarantee the safe return of the borrowed articles. The pendent silver jewels will be simply the four regulation ones, viz., W.M., P.M., S.W., and J.W.

Apologising for thus troubling you, I am, dear Sir and Brother,

RICHARD H. HOLMES,
P.G.S., Northumberland.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Some of us poor benighted "provincials" are still somewhat puzzled as to how we should "appear" on the 28th. I am a Past G. Reg. of a province, and W.M. of a lodge—what clothing must I wear? I enclose my card.

Yours fraternally,

BETA.

[Our good brother really should read the official directions and regulations—and not put them into the waste paper basket.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have seen in your paper several suggestions that the brethren of lodges, who have not access to the Grand Festival, should unite to hold festivals of their own upon the day of the Grand Festival, and I beg to point out that no lodge as such, and therefore no union of lodges, within the London district can have a Masonic feast on the day of the Grand Festival. (See Book of Constitutions, p. 23, sec. 13). If any banquet is held, it must therefore be strictly unmasonic in character and conduct.

Your obedient servant,

W.M.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am obliged for your opinion so kindly expressed in your paper of 19th December in reply to my letter of 3rd November. I think, however, you have overlooked a most particular point, in fact, the point on which the whole matter rests, viz., "at that meeting"—that is, at the first regular lodge when the minutes are read for confirmation. A contents that B should give notice of motion that at the next regular meeting he will propose that a certain clause in the minutes read be rescinded. The minutes would of course stand unconfirmed until after his proposal had been considered.

I have been requested to ask you to reply to a question as to the power of the W.M. to refuse to allow a member to ballot for a candidate on the ground that such member had stated to one or more members that he intended to black-bail every candidate who might be proposed during the year, or for a certain time.

Yours fraternally,

W. C. HOWARD.

Queenstown, Cape of Good Hope, March 19th.

[Our opinion is, that the W.M. has no right to prevent a brother voting, as he has no power, but we think that such a speech is unmasonic and might fairly be adjudged to be prejudicial to the best interests of the lodge. The W.M. could clearly summon the brother before the lodge on a charge of unmasonic conduct, tending to the injury of the lodge—Ed.]

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

In the Freemason for March 17th I pointed out the fact, that out of 31 candidates for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls only two of the fathers had contributed directly to its funds (one having been a "Steward six times and subscribed to all"). Also that out of 48 candidates for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, only six of the fathers had been contributors to our Masonic charities; in other words, only eight of the 79 brethren, whose children were candidates at the late elections, had contributed directly to either of the London Masonic charities, and only one out of the 79 had been a Steward. I mentioned also some other facts respecting the brethren whose children sought election, particularly that their average subscriptions to their lodges would about serve to clothe, educate, and board their 79 sons or daughters for six months in either of the institutions.

By some Freemasonry is looked upon as a most useful and expensive society, wherein one's pocket is drained of its contents, and nothing returned by way of compensation. It occurs to me, therefore, that the foregoing facts should tend to alter the views of all such objectors to our "Ancient and Honourable Fraternity."

I have since received a number of private letters on the subject, thanking me for drawing attention to the matter, and expressive of the hope that the publication of the communication will be the means of inducing many brethren, now in prosperous circumstances, to subscribe to our grand Masonic Charities, who have hitherto been content with ignoring the claims of indigent Masons, or their widows and orphan boys and girls. One correspondent, "Q," in a most friendly manner calls me to account for the remarks I have made, or rather the facts pointed out. I venture to think he has wholly mistaken the object I had in view by the publication of the communication, and consequently the inferences he deduced from the observations I made are his, not mine.

It is easy for a brother to fancy objections to a certain course, and then answer them to his own satisfaction. I am not at all concerned as to that, indeed, I have admired in two or three instances how neatly and completely "Q" has demolished various arguments brought to bear against certain methods of testing the qualifications of candidates; but then in each case the fallacies so exploded have not been my creation, but his own, so the advantages or disadvantages resulting therefrom are likewise his, not mine.

I do not say that "those candidates are the most eligible whose fathers contributed to our charities," and never have. Why should I? The result might be quite the contrary. But I do say that all who enter the Masonic Society should be able then to devote a portion of their income to relieve the distressed brethren, though subsequently their circumstances might change for the worse. This being so, I can only account for so many refusing to aid our charities, who are well able to do so, from sheer disregard of their obligations as Freemasons, or complete misconception of the meaning and intention of the aims of our society.

I have seen our indefatigable Bro. John Constable offer his shilling tickets, on behalf of the Masonic Charities, to brethren who refused their mites, and yet have spent a shilling or more the same evening in liquor, they would have been better without.

Certainly if two brethren in similar circumstances for years as Masons were to die—other conditions being equal—the children of the brother who had been a liberal subscriber or steward to our Masonic Charities should be preferred for election to those belonging to the other brother, who had never given one penny to either of our institutions. I fail to see anything unfair in this, and the late elections prove that subscribers are not going to lose sight of this view of the case, for the two little girls belonging to the two deceased brethren who had subscribed to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls were both elected, and one I know mainly because of the father's exertions on behalf of our noble institutions during his Masonic career, and whose income, be it remembered, was much less than many brethren who refuse to contribute to our Masonic Charities!

Three out of the six boys whose fathers had been subscribers to the charities were elected on the 12th inst., and only five more were successful out of the remaining forty-five!

I quite think with my friend & brother "Q" that "it would be most unfortunate if we gave or withheld our support in the case of a particular candidate on the sole ground that his or her father had or had not contributed to our charities during his lifetime, or presumed prosperity." It would be equally unfortunate if the children of Masons, equal as to claims in all other respects when candidates for our institutions, should be elected in preference to other children similarly worthy, only with the additional qualification that their fathers had been liberal supporters of the charities in question, whereas the others had not.

I do not wish to dogmatise in any respect on the subject, but I think Bro. "Q" will see with me that but a few of the many Masons in this country support our various charitable institutions, both in the country and in London, and making all due allowance for the different circumstances of the brethren, and the difference in incomes, it is still a melancholy fact, that many of our brethren who might have aided the charities when in good circumstances, (for their condition in life) never subscribed to any of the institutions, but spent their incomes in an extravagant and generally useless manner, and then have died, leaving us the legacies of their widows and children unprovided for.

I expect to see some more correspondence on the subject of our Masonic Charities in the Freemason when the excitement attending the Installation of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. is over, and I hope the readers of the paper will carefully ponder the letter in to-day's issue by Bro. —, P.G.D., which is "worthy of the gravest consideration."

I have long held that the minimum fee of "three guineas" (exclusive of the registration fee and certificate) is much too low, and should be doubled. Indeed, I have induced many lodges to do so, and until the authorities decide so to do let the members take the initiative, and agree to the increase themselves. I hope "P.G.D." will ventilate the matter by proposition in the Grand Lodge.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE.

The annual communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of this province was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Friday, the 2nd inst., the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. William Kelly, F.R.H.S., presiding. There were also present, Bros. Rev. William Langley, S. S. Partridge, C. Stretton, G. Toller, F. J. Baines, W. Sculthorpe, A. M. Duff, F. Amatt, H. James, R. B. Smith, J. C. Duncombe, C. P. Newcome, J. T. Thorp, W. T. Rowlett, T. A. Wykes, J. Young, S. Knight, J. Garner, G. W. Statham, J. W. Smith, G. Clifton, O. Law, H. Meadows, R. Taylor, W. Wear, and J. M. McAllister.

The Fowke Lodge having been previously opened, the Prov. Grand Master and his officers were received and saluted under the direction of Bro. J. T. Thorp, M.C.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in ample form by the Prov. Grand Master, assisted by Rev. Wm. Langley, P.D.P.G.M.; A. M. Duff, P.M., acting S.G.W., and Bro. S. S. Partridge, J.G.W. The minutes of the last regular meeting, and also of a special meeting, were read and confirmed. A favourable report was received of the progress of Mark Masonry in this district, and, with the exception of the Knights of Malta, No. 50, the other lodges in the province were well represented. Bro. Clement Stretton, Past Grand Steward, was unanimously re-elected Treasurer in the Provincial Grand Lodge, and received the hearty and cordial thanks of the Provincial Grand Master and brethren for the able and painstaking discharge of his important trust during the past year.

The Provincial Grand Master appointed the following brethren as Provincial Grand Officers for the usual term of office, and invested those present, Bros. Rev. William Langley, P.M., P.G.D.M.; S. S. Partridge, P.M., P.G.S.W.; J. C. Duncombe, W.M. No. 21, P.G.J.W.; Rev. H. E. von Stürmer, P.G. Chaplain; G. Toller, W.M. No. 19, P.G.M.O.; W. Sculthorpe, P.G.S.O.; R. A. Barber, P.G.J.O.; C. Stretton, P.G. Treasurer; Chester P. Newcome, P.G.R.M.; J. M. McAllister, P.M., Prov. Grand Secretary; R. B. Smith, P.G.S.D.; Robert Waite, P.G.J.D.; Dr. George Clifton, P.G.D.C.; F. Amatt, P.G.A.D.C.; W. T. Rowlett, P.G.J.W.; J. T. Thorp, P.G.S.B.; T. A. Wykes, P.G. Organist; J. W. Smith, P.G.I.G.; R. Taylor, G. Odell, H. James, P.G. Stewards; and C. Bembridge and T. Dunn, P.G. Tyler.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in ample form, and the business of the Fowke Lodge was resumed under the presidency of Bro. McAllister, W.M., when Bros. W. C. Shout, J. W. Noble, and R. Clarke were advanced to the degree of Mark Master.

The Installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Toller, was conducted by Bro. S. S. Partridge, I.M., in a manner which received the highest encomiums of praise from the R.W. Prov. Grand Master and the brethren who enjoyed the privilege of witnessing his perfect work.

The W.M., Bro. Toller, the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. C. Stretton, and the rest of the brethren, expressed by a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. McAllister, I.P.M., their satisfaction with the manner in which he had conducted the ceremonies and discharged the duties of the chair during his Mastership. The following brethren were appointed and invested with the collars of their respective offices:—Bro. C. Stretton, S.W.; W. Sculthorpe, J.W.; Rev. H. E. von Stürmer, Chaplain; R. A. Barber, M.O.; W. T. Rowlett, S.O.; F. J. Baines, J.O.; J. Garner, Treasurer; J. B. Hall, Sec.; G. W. Statham, Assis. Sec.; T. A. Wykes, R.M. and Organist; J. T. Thorp, S.D.; J. Young, J.D.; G. Odell, Director of Ceremonies; J. W. Smith, I.G.; W. Sculthorpe and R. Taylor, Stewards. The claims of the Masonic Charities received deserving attention, and the lodge was closed in due form.

The banquet which followed was numerously attended, and was graced by the presence of the Prov. Grand Master and other distinguished Mark Masons.

The usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to, especially the Prov. Grand Master, who is now the Senior Officer of that rank in England, having been appointed in 1858, and to whose individual exertions Mark Masonry in Leicestershire owes its very existence, and under whose fostering care it has attained the prosperity it is now our pleasing duty to report.

Bro. McAllister, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the newly Installed Worshipful Master," spoke in high terms of the zeal shown by that distinguished Mason in the discharge of the business and ceremonies of various degrees of Masonry, of his ability as administrator of the interests of the lodge, of his character as a citizen and a gentleman; and congratulated the brethren on having secured the services of one who would prove an able, urbane, firm, and thoroughly conscientious Master, while his own modesty of character would be the chief ornament of the high position he now occupies.

The toasts of "The Past Masters," coupled with the name of Bro. McAllister; "The Installing Master," Bro. S. S. Partridge; "The Officers of the Lodge," "The Newly Advanced Brethren," "The Ladies" and the Tyler's toast terminated a most enjoyable evening.

MASONIC PICNIC IN NEW ZEALAND.

The annual picnic given by the members of the Prince of Wales Lodge of Freemasons, was this year rendered less enjoyable than was anticipated, through the unfortunate change of the weather on the day. The party, consisting of about eighty ladies and gentlemen, assembled pretty punctually at the wharf, and embarked on board the p.s. "Takapuna," which had been specially chartered to convey them to the Lake, and about 11 o'clock started; the City band, under the direction of Mr. Impey, discoursing most delectable music. The spot selected for holding the picnic was a barn near the Lake Takapuna, where every preparation had been made by host Gorman, of the Alexander Hotel, Parnell, to whom had been entrusted the catering, and who had exerted himself to the utmost, besides providing most liberally for the commissariat department, having seen that the floor of the barn was in proper condition for the dancing, which forms so essential a part of a properly organised picnic. Scarcely had the party reached half way to the North Shore, where it was proposed to land some of the passengers who preferred going overland, when it began to be feared by the weather-wise that a thoroughly wet day was in store for the excursionists. Their fears were confirmed after they had rounded the North Head, and the sea running unpleasantly high, the ladies began to evince signs of becoming uncomfortable. It was represented to the committee that to land the party with such a sea, even in the splendid boats courteously placed at their disposal by Captain Le Vesconte, of the ship "Glenora," would be attended with great discomfort, if not with danger. Word was given, after some consultation, to "bout ship," and the party returned to the North Shore. Arrangements were at once made for the use of the large room at the Flagstaff Hotel, and messengers were dispatched to the Lake for the provisions which had been previously conveyed thither. By three o'clock everything was ready for dinner, and the ladies, with as many of the gentlemen as could find room at the tables, sat down to an ample and elegantly arranged feast. At the conclusion of this portion of the proceedings the "toasts" were proposed, but, in deference no doubt to the anxious looks of those gentlemen who had not been able to secure seats, the speeches were mercifully omitted. The Worshipful Master, G. N. Brassey, Esq., who occupied the chair, proposed "The Queen and Craft." Band: "National Anthem." The chairman then proposed "The Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," remarking that at the last picnic they knew his Royal Highness had just joined the Craft. Now he has taken his third degree. Band: "God Bless the Prince of Wales." Dr. Dawson gave the toast of "His Excellency the Governor, the Marquess of Normanby." Band: "Rule Britannia." The Rev. C. M. Nelson gave "The Press," stating that, however opinions might differ as to the "Three Estates," about which so much had been written, there was no disputing about the position of the "Fourth Estate." He was sorry to miss from among them their Bro. Snyder. Mr. Kinsella was called upon to acknowledge the toast. Band: "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. Dargaville, and responded to by Mr. E. Bennett, was the last toast on the programme. Band: "Here's a health to all Good Lasses." After the gentlemen had dined "The Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. Jenkins, and in his reply to the toast Mr. Brassey proposed "The Health of Captain Le Vesconte." The party then separated, and the weather having cleared up, strolled about the pretty nooks so well known to frequenters of the North Shore, some even scaling Mount Victoria at the risk of being blown off their feet. About six o'clock tea was served, and after the table had been cleared away dancing commenced, the indefatigable manager, Bro. A. H. Diethelm, acting as M.C. At nine o'clock the party returned to the "Takapuna," which soon landed them at the wharf, all expressing their thorough appreciation of the kindness and attention shown to them by the gentlemen of the committee, and their regret that the unpropitious weather should have frustrated plans so well prepared, and, as far as practicable, so well carried out.

FREEMASONRY IN BOMBAY.

LODGE CONCORD (No. 757) E.C.—The installation meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on the 16th January, 1875, when there were present upwards of one hundred brethren, amongst whom were conspicuous, R.W. Bros. the Hon. J. Gibbs, District Grand Master, who paid his official visit to the lodge, accompanied by his officers; Tyrrel Leith, Dr. J. Lumsdaine, W. F. Knapp, H. H. Riach, H. W. Barrow, R. G. Walton, Alfred King, C. E. Mitchell, A. McKenzie, B. Robinson, G. Henderson, &c. The lodge was opened with prayer. Bro. F. S. Llewellyn was elected a joining member. The District Grand Master having been announced, he was received with the customary honours. After making the usual inquiries if there were any complaints, and receiving no reply, he congratulated the W.M. and brethren on the prosperous state of the lodge. The business of the evening was to install Bro. W. C. Rowe, who was duly presented by Bros. King and Robinson, installed in the Eastern Chair, proclaimed, and saluted accordingly. The following officers were appointed: Bros. W. Whittaker, S.W.; A. Seabrooke, J.W.; F. Burdett, Treasurer; O. Tomlinson, Secretary; J. Luke, Director of Ceremonies; G. Tillot, S.D.; W. G. Davies, J. D.; J. Tyres, Organist; J. F. Grew, Steward; L. Thomas, I.G.; J. W. Seager, Tyler. Bro. Rowe then rose and said, "Right Worshipful Sir, Worshipful Sirs, and Brethren,—As this is the first time I have had the pleasure to fill the Master's chair, I feel that I cannot make better use of my newly-won honour, than thank you all most warmly for having favoured the lodge with your presence here to-night in such large numbers. To me, such a meeting is especially gratifying, but as the proceedings of the lodge have necessarily been somewhat long, I shall reserve a few remarks for our meeting below. I now beg to propose that the best thanks of the lodge be tendered to Bro. Henderson, for the admirable way in which he has conducted the ceremony of my installation, and that this lodge do recognize his past and valuable services by presenting him with a P.M. jewel and clothing of the lodge pattern, as they had done to their Worshipful Masters before." This was seconded by Bro. B. Robinson, P.M., and carried by an unanimous vote. Bro. Henderson then thanked the brethren of Lodge Concord in most suitable terms, and said that he had had a most prosperous year, and that he endeavoured to rule the lodge to the best of his ability, and he was thankful to say he had succeeded in doing his duty, which the brethren had most handsomely acknowledged in the vote they had just passed. He hoped the G.A.O.T.U. would spare him many years to wear and prize it as a memento of Lodge Concord. One candidate was proposed for initiation. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet. A band was in attendance and played some select music. After the removal of the cloth, the Worshipful Master proposed "The Health of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, and the Craft," and the band played the "National Anthem." The W.M. then said: "Brethren, I now ask you to join me in drinking the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of England, the Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland, also their Deputies." The band played "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Grand Master and his Deputy," said: "I am sure you will all agree with me that a better or more honoured ruler in the Craft is nowhere to be found. The toast, brethren, needs no commendation from me, and may the G.A.O.T.U. spare them long to rule over us." This was followed by the band playing the "Fine Old English Gentleman." The R.W. the District Grand Master said that it afforded him great pleasure to be able to pay his official visit to Lodge Concord on the night of their installation of a Worshipful Master, which was performed by the retiring Master in a very able manner. As it had been done that night, and from what he knew of their new W.M. in other degrees in Masonry, he had no doubt in his capacity as Master of Lodge Concord he would carry on the duties of that office with credit to himself and the lodge, and when he had the opportunity of paying his next official visit he hoped he should find the lodge in a good, if not in a more flourishing condition than he had found it that night. The band played the air of "A Jolly Good Fellow." He then thanked the brethren for the very cordial way in which his health had been received and responded to. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the R.W. the District Grand Master of Western India, R.W. Bro. Henry Morland, and his Deputy, R.W. Bro. Mackintosh Balfour," which was well received by the brethren. The R.W. the District Grand Master then proposed "The Health of the newly installed Master," which was received with great applause. He was very glad to say that the Craft was in a flourishing state throughout his district, and that he had not had a single complaint from any lodge for more than two years, which was a proof that everything was going on in the right way; and also alluded to the great good that he thought would arise from the new Hindoo lodge that had been started in his district, and trusted that the Craft would still go on flourishing. W. Bro. Rowe then rose and said: "R.W. Sir, W. Sirs, and Brethren,—Although we often hear men say of some particular matters that it is the proudest moment of their lives, I am sure you will allow that the event of this evening is indeed a proud moment for me, for ever since I became a Mason

I have steadily looked forward to attaining the Eastern Chair, and after a good many years of hard work in the rank and file I now find myself promoted to the full command of the Worshipful Company. If my poor services in the past have been in any way deserving of all the kind praise that has been lavished on me, I can only say that, with my increased responsibilities, I know it is due to you and myself that I should endeavour to fulfil them to the best of my ability and skill; and if I only do as well as the Masons of Concord who have gone before me I venture to hope that hereafter you will not think your confidence has been misplaced. In any case I will do my best, and if I succeed in ruling the lodge as effectively as Wor. Bro. Henderson has done, and in carrying out the ceremonial part of the work with anything like the same success, I trust I may look forward to gaining your applause. As to the officers I have appointed to-night, I can only assure you, brethren, that the Past Masters and officers, together with myself, have had but one object in view, the good of the lodge at heart; and if there are any of the brethren who consider that their claims to promotion have been overlooked, I beg they will put on one side any little annoyance when they recollect how limited the number of officers are compared with the large roll of members. For the very numerous and influential attendance here to-night, of the R.W. the District Grand Master, Masters, Past Masters, and brethren of the sister lodges who have favoured us with their presence, I beg on behalf of Lodge Concord and myself to return you our best thanks, accompanied by the assurance that during the ensuing year, as in years gone by, my brethren will be ever glad to offer their best welcome to visitors, be they few or be they many." The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master, Past Masters, and Past Officers of Lodge Concord," coupling the name of Bro. Henderson, the Immediate Past Master. He said that was a brother who, ever since he joined Masonry in India, has won for himself and maintained a high reputation as a worthy member of the Craft. The admirable way in which he managed the affairs of this lodge, and performed his duty as a ruler, was the best proof of his merits and of his claims to the affectionate esteem of his brethren. Wor. Bro. Henderson, in replying on behalf of Past Masters, Past Officers, and himself, thanked the Wor. Master for the very kind way he had put the toast before the brethren, and if they were satisfied with the way they had performed their duty during the past year it was very gratifying to them, and he hoped Wor. Bro. Rowe would have as prosperous a year as he had; that he had done his duty fearlessly and to the best of his ability, which he hoped the brethren were satisfied with, or they would never have acknowledged his services by voting to him the P.M. jewel and clothing, which he hoped to be spared to wear, and which he should do with pride; he thanked the W.M. and brethren for the very enthusiastic way the toast of their health had been received and responded to. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," coupled the name of Bro. Riach, P.P.G.S. of Oxford, who had, he was pleased to say, been able to attend their meeting that night during his short stay in Bombay while passing through a tour in the East. He need not say anything to assure the visitors of the hearty welcome the brethren always desire to give them on behalf of Lodge Concord. Bro. Riach rose amid loud applause and replied to the toast in very suitable terms, and said that the very able way in which the ceremony of the installation of the W.M. had been performed, and the way in which the newly installed W.M. had given the different charges to his officers as he invested them, was a credit to any lodge, and that Concord was a very appropriate name for the lodge, for he could see there was concord among the members of the lodge, or the work could never have been carried on in such a masterly manner; he should be able to inform his brethren in England of the way Masonry was worked in Bombay, and in Lodge Concord particularly; he thanked the W.M. and brethren, on behalf of himself and visitors, for the very pleasant evening they had spent; he wished them every prosperity, and that they would go on and flourish. The W.M. in giving the toast of the "Sister Lodges," coupled the name of Bro. Knapp (W.M. of the oldest lodge in the district, Lodge St. George). As the Master of Lodge Concord, it would be his best endeavour to follow the good example of Bro. Henderson and his predecessors in the Eastern Chair, and to uphold the high name of Concord among the lodges in Bombay and the Craft in general. Bro. Knapp on behalf of the Sister Lodges, said he only hoped that the same kindly feeling would exist among the sister lodges as was now the case for many years to come, and thanked the W.M. for the kind way in which he had proposed the toast, and the hearty way in which it was responded to by the brethren. The next toast was that of "The newly appointed Officers of Lodge Concord." The P. W.M. hoped that the selection that had been made would be for the benefit of the lodge, and that care had been exercised in appointing them; he hoped that the right men were in their right places, and trusted they would be punctual in their attendance; without the co-operation of the officers it was impossible for a Master to work or do credit to the lodge or himself. The band then played the air of "Cheer, Boys, Cheer." Bro. W. Whittaker, S.W., on behalf of himself and other officers, said that they would be punctual in their attendance, and use their best endeavours to assist their W.M. to keep the lodge up to that high standard in which it was now held, and that nothing would be wanting on their part to carry out the duties of the office to which they were appointed that evening, and thanked the W.M. and the brethren for the kind way in which the toast of their health had been received. The rest of the evening was spent in harmony by the brethren of both Constitutions singing many good songs, and at 11.45 the W.M. warned the brethren of the approaching hour, and called upon them to drink with him the last toast of the evening, which is always given in a very solemn way. Thus ended the installation meeting night of Lodge Concord No. 757. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Tyres, the newly-appointed Organist. The banquet hall was very handsomely decorated with flags, banners, and evergreens.

Poetry.

MASONIC NATIONAL ANTHEM.

By Bro. J. FOWLER, late D. G. Secretary for Ireland.

GOD save our gracious Queen!
Long live our noble Queen
God save the Queen!

Send her victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us—
God save the Queen!

Hail! mystic light divine,
May'st thou ne'er cease to shine
Over this land.

Wisdom in thee we find,
Beauty and strength combined;
Masons are ever joined,
In heart and hand.

Come then, ye sons of light!
In joyous strains unite,
God save the Queen.
Long may Victoria reign,
Queen of the azure main;
Masons! resound the strain,
God save the Queen.

THE FALL OF THE GAVEL.

A MASONIC SONG.

I.

In our myst'ry divine, when its first word and sign
To the trembling tyro's confided,
He is taught something more, on that square chequer'd floor,

Whither halting his steps have been guided.
At the fiat when light is conferred on his sight,
Ere his eyes round can timidly travel,
How he nervously starts at the quick rap imparts,
To his ears the sharp call of the gavel.

[CHORUS:]

The lesson is new: Here's a monitor true,
And through life conscience never can cavil
If we Mason's ne'er fail, when temptations assail,
To attend to the sound of the gavel.

II.

In this world we must learn that wherever we turn,
There is work for us always abounding,
Sin and suffering we see, and our task it must be
To encounter the evils surrounding.
And should our hearts quail:—should we fear to assail
The sad skeins we are charged to unravel,—
There's a sound will recall the most sluggish of all,
He must start at the stroke of the gavel.

[CHORUS:]

Tis a discipline stern, but how bracing to learn
There's a point whence no need far to travel,
How to find it is clear, you must just keep each ear,
Alert to the sound of the gavel.

III.

When a poor brother's need bids our hearts to give heed,
To one ever remembered monition,
And we pause and recall, how, in poverty, all
Once experienced his helpless condition,
Should cold prudence invite us the lesson to slight,
And tempt us from duty to travel,
There is conscience at hand, and her swift reprimand
Is as shrill as the sound of the gavel.

[CHORUS:]

At your peril neglect to pay ready respect
To the call, or with sophistry cavil
At your duty made plain, as your ears once again
Are assailed by the fall of the gavel.

IV.

And when, in the west, the sun sinking to rest
Sees your working tools gather'd and ready,
Prepar'd to depart, you will find that your heart
To the last gavel call can cry "Ready!"
Your labour complete, your reward you will meet:
Joy awaits at the end of his travail
The man who can say, "I am passing away,
But through life I have heeded the gavel."

[CHORUS:]

Thus in labour and stress, a sure guide we possess
And cheerily and straight we may travel,
Thoughts and actions well squared, if we're ever prepared
To respond to the sound of the gavel.

METROPOLITAN.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (228).—The last meeting of the season of this lodge was held at the Old Gate, St. John's of Jerusalem, Smithfield, on the 13th ult., the W.M., Bro. John While, in the chair. All the officers were present with the exception of a deacon, who had met with an accident, and thus caused a break in the constant and punctual attendance usual in the lodge. In the noble hall where Garrick essayed the part of the Mock Doctor, and where Dr. Johnson wrote the first reports of Parliament, the W.M. raised two brethren, passed two, and then initiated two gentlemen, one a well-known food analyst, the other a follower of Franklin's profession, and then, having resumed the third in order to finish the ceremony, the lodge was closed in the three degrees. All the work was done without calling off, and in an able manner on the part of all, the officers being Bro. Griggs, S.W., Bro. J. Hill, S.W., Bro. Halford, S.D., Bro. Killick, J.D., and Bro. Ingalls, I.G. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet, and besides a full lodge gathering, with a good muster of P.M.'s, there were many visitors, among them being Bros. T. W. Haselgrove, of 475; Frederick Garbet and Stack, of 1178; F. Varley, of the Britannia; J. Ednooke, of the Royal Jubilee; J. G. Glover, of Sincerity; and W. Loxcroft, of the Domestic. The whole, work and refreshment, were passed in perfect harmony.

SOUTH MIDDLESEX LODGE (No. 858).—The installation meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at Beaufort House, Walham Green—the head quarters of the South Middlesex Volunteer Rifle Brigade—on Thursday, the 22nd ult. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. Kirke, the outgoing W.M., and the formal business of reading and confirming the minutes of the last regular and an emergency meeting, taking the report of the Audit Committee, was at once gone through; besides which the ballot was taken for the admission as a joining member of the Hon. and Rev. Francis Edmund Cecil Byng (Apollo Lodge, Oxford), of St. Peter's Parsonage, Onslow Gardens (an hon. member of the South Middlesex Rifle Volunteers), who had been proposed by Bro. the W.M., and seconded by Bro. Egan, J.W. This having completed the business of the lodge in the first degree, it was opened in the second, and Bro. Wemyss, who was a candidate for raising, being in attendance, was examined as to his proficiency in the former degrees and entrusted, and having retired, the lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Wemyss was raised to the sublime degree of M.M., the ceremony being performed in a most able manner by Bro. Jones, I.P.M. At the conclusion of this ceremony the lodge was resumed to the second degree, and the chair occupied by Bro. Major Ratcliffe, P.M. and Treas.; when Bro. P.M. Cooper, D.C., presented Bro. Pamphillon, S.W. and W.M. elect, to the presiding Master, to receive from him the benefit of installation; and Bro. Pamphillon having given his assent to the ancient charges prescribed by the Constitution, was obligated, and a board of installed Masters having been formed, was installed in due form into the chair of K.S., after which the Master Masons and Fellow Crafts were re-admitted, and the W.M. proclaimed with the customary ceremony. To those who know Bro. Ratcliffe it is unnecessary to add that the work was ably performed and the addresses delivered in a most impressive manner; to those who have not the pleasure of knowing him, it may be useful information to say that in him the South Middlesex Lodge possesses a member of whose talents they may well be very proud, as we do not remember to have heard any brother's working to surpass his. This lodge is the more fortunate from the fact that Bro. Ratcliffe is not the only good worker it possesses. Indeed, there are so many good workmen here that it would be invidious to mention names unnecessarily, but we could easily count off half a dozen, at the least, of which any lodge might be proud; and that is more than can be said of some lodges. At the close of the ceremony the W.M. proceeded to appoint his officers, which he did as follows—Bro. Eagan, S.W.; Bro. Singleton, J.W.; Treas., Bro. Ratcliffe, Sec.; Bro. Shuter; S.D. Bro. Todd; J.D. Bro. Bird, I.G.; Bro. Pollard; D.C.; Bro. P.M. Cooper; Tyler, Bro. Woodstock. The P.M.'s present were Bros. Cooper, Worthington, Weaver, Jones, Wellsman, Godwin, and Shuter; while amongst the visitors we observed Bro. E.S. Snell, P.G.D. Bro. W. L. Holt, W.M. 5; Bro. H. G. Heald, Enoch 11; Bro. Sales, I.G. 13; Bro. H. I. Reynolds, S.W. 91, P.M. 101; Bro. Wimperis, 91; Bro. H. Kirke, P.M. S. Luke's, 144; Bro. Gamble, 706; and Bro. Preston the able D.C. of the Great City Lodge 1106; and E.C. Massey (Freemason). The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren present reassembled at the banquet-table, and partook of a most elegant repast, which reflects the highest credit on the managers of the commissariat department of the S.M.R.V. Corps. On the cloth being drawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The hour, however, being somewhat advanced, short speeches were the order of the evening. In proposing "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," the W.M. said: Brethren, the toast I have now to propose to you is one which I am sure you will all receive with English loyalty and Masonic enthusiasm. It is "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the M.W.G.M.," who is to be installed on the 28th at the Albert Hall, the chief ruler of the Craft in this country, and in loyalty to whom thousands of Masons from all points will throng together, and have the honour of working with him in Grand Lodge. I wish that we could all meet there on Wednesday, but even the Albert Hall, large as it is, will not accommodate all who would like to be present, so that such a meeting is impossible. Brethren, I give you "The Health of the M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales." W.M.: The next toast I have to call your attention to is "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Deputy G.M., the Earl of Skelmersdale." The appointment of these noblemen to fill the offices I have named promises to be highly popular and extremely beneficial to the Craft. They are both earnest and hearty Masons, who will afford their services whenever compatible with their political or social duties. W.M.: The next toast, brethren, is a most important one; it is "The Past Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present." We know from our own experience what very useful helps Past Masters are, and we can therefore well believe that in managing the affairs of Grand Lodge, as well as in the conduct of our own lodge, the assistance, advice, and experience afforded by Past Officers are most valuable to those at present in office. We have one Past Grand Officer present—Bro. Snell, whose name I will couple with this toast. Bro. Snell, P.G.D., in returning thanks, referred to the great exertions that were being bestowed upon the preparations for the grand event of Wednesday, particularly those of Bro. Sir H. Woods and Bro. Fenn, and the twelve experienced Masons in the Council, not forgetting the arduous labours of our worthy Grand Secretary, Bro. Harvey. I.P.M. Bro. Kirke proposed "The health of the W.M.," who, in returning thanks, proposed "The Health of the Visitors," remarking that the South Middlesex was always fortunate in this respect, as they always had the pleasure of seeing many visiting brethren at their lodge meetings. Bro. Holt (S.), whose name was coupled with this toast, returned thanks. The W.M. proceeded to propose "The Health of the I.P.M. Bro. Kirke," and in doing so presented him, on behalf of the lodge, with a P.M. Jewel. Bro. Kirke having replied, "The Health of the Past Masters and Officers" was drunk, followed by the Tyler's toast in the usual course, and the company separated at a somewhat late hour.

JORDAN LODGE (No. 201).—This lodge, which is presided over by Bro. J. Hume, held its last meeting of the session on Friday, at Freemasons' Tavern. In the summons convening the brethren to meet, appear two significant words, "No banquet." Whether this announcement, or the more private or public business, influenced the members is mustering, we are scarcely in a position to say; but certainly on this occasion, in comparison with former ones, the assembly was not numerous. We offer, however, for their acceptance our congratulations to the W.M., Bro. J. Hume, in conjunction with the support of Bros. P. Robinson, I.P.M.; Watts, P.M., Treas.; and Arliss, P.M., Sec., on this expression of their determination to endeavour to place the funds of the lodge in such a state as will enable it to continue to contribute, as hitherto, largely to the different charities. The admirable harmony which prevailed in the lodge, and the excellent working of the lodge and rendering of the ceremony of passing Bro. F. W. Kent, of the Hemming Lodge, No. 1512, who passed his examination very creditably, will compare most favourably with the best metropolitan lodges. The M.M.'s ticket for admission to witness the Grand Installation on the 28th inst. was disposed of by ballot, and, apropos, fell to the senior subscribing member, who was present below the Warden's chair. The fortunate possessor is Bro. Reed, J.D. A letter was read from Bro. Stroud, who was initiated in this lodge some years ago, but whose engagements have been of such a pressing nature as to preclude his attendance, desiring to be re-admitted. After a few favourably expressed feelings of sympathy and pleasure from Bros. Arliss, Carvill and Hammond, it was unanimously resolved to comply with Bro. Stroud's wishes. The brethren present were J. Hume, W.M.; Wagner, S.W.; J. Hammond, P.M., acting J.W.; Reed, J.D.; Watts, P.M., Treas.; H. M. Arliss, P.M., Sec.; P. Robinson, I.P.M., acting S.D. with his accustomed skill; Davage, P.M.; Carvill, P.M.; Sumner, W.M.; and another brother whose name we could not hear. The business of the evening being ended, the lodge was closed, and adjourned until the third Friday in October.

INSTRUCTION.

NEW CONCORD LODGE (No. 813).—The ceremony of consecration and installation was worked on Wednesday, April 21. About sixty members of the craft assembled. The work was most admirably performed. Among the brethren were Bros. Emmens, P.G.P., Bartlett, P.M., 813, Atkins, P.M., 813, H. J. Gabb, W.M., 813, Mather, P.M., 65, Main, P.M., Hill, Saul, Pearcey, Cusworth, Braine, Harper, Stead, Halford, &c., &c. After the closing of the lodge about forty brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Room, where a cold collation was provided, at which Bro. Terry presided. After the usual loyal toasts, the toast of "The G. Officers, Past and Present," was eloquently replied to by Bro. Emmens, P.G.P. "Continued Prosperity to the New Concord Lodge of Instruction," coupled with the name of the energetic Secretary, Bro. Main, P.M., who acknowledged the compliment in suitable terms. Bro. Bartlett, P.M., proposed "Bro. Terry's Health," thanking him for the grand treat he had afforded. Bro. Terry expressed the pleasure he had in attending, and begged to tender his thanks to the brethren for the very great attention they had paid to him, which made his work lighter; also for the excellent arrangements, and especially to the officers who had assisted him, more particularly to Bro. Walesby, Org., 813, for his musical talents. "The Health of the Host and Hostess" was facetiously responded to by Bro. Gabb, senior.

PROVINCIAL.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 14th April, at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was a numerous attendance of the brethren. All officers were present—Bros. Richard Simpson, W.M.; Ab. Barker, S.W.; James Burnish, J.W.; P.M. Dan Mitchell, Secretary; R. Collingwood, S.D.; Char. O'Doherty, J.D.; Bintliffe, I.G.; James Midgley, P.M., Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form at 5.30 p.m., and the minutes of the previous lodges were read and put for confirmation, and carried unanimously. Bro. John Thomas Worth was then called on and examined, and having satisfied the brethren was then entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. J. T. Worth was admitted and duly passed to the degree of F.C. by T. B. Ashworth, P.M. Bro. J. T. Worth was invested, and retired. The lodge was then closed in the second degree. The Secretary was now called upon to read the new Bye-laws, which had been drawn up in accordance with the Book of Constitutions and the Bye-laws of the Province, and they were highly approved of by the brethren. The lodge finally closed at 7.45, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was well provided by P.M. Wm. Ashworth and his wife. After the cloth was removed the usual toasts were gone through, commencing with the Queen and the rest of the Royal Family. The other toasts were given in succession. The closing toast was given and the brethren separated, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—The monthly meeting of this old centenary lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, the 15th ult. Present: Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; Rev. E. I. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; W. Boby, P.S.G.W.; acting J.W.; J. J. Burton, P.P.G.D.C., Cambridge, S.W.; Emra Holmes, P.P.G.R.; W. Spalding, P.M., Sect.; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; J. Allen, I.G.; and others. Visiting Bro.: A. Gamman, I.P.M., Perfect Friendship Lodge. The lodge was duly opened; the minutes read and confirmed; the ballot was taken for two brethren as joining members, and one for initiation, and all were unanimously accepted. Bro. Henry Edwards was examined and entrusted, and the lodge being opened in the second degree he was duly passed as a Fellow Craft, the W.M. performing the ceremony with his customary ability. The Secretary informed the lodge of the Grand Secretary's suggestion as to the disposal of the one ticket appropriated to Master Masons, and on the proposition of Bro. Barton it was allotted to Bro. Miller, the senior officer, not otherwise entitled to attend the Installation on the 28th. Bro. Emra Holmes said that whilst on the subject of the Installation he would venture to suggest that a new pair of gauntlets for the W.M. would be desirable, so that he might present a decent appearance in Grand Lodge. The present pair would certainly vouch for the artistry of the lodge; otherwise they were not ornamental. The W.M. suggested that new gauntlets would be equally necessary for the Wardens. Bro. Holmes was willing if the funds admitted to propose that gauntlets for the Wardens also be procured from Bro. Kenning, the great Masonic Jeweller, who, he believed, supplied these things as cheap, if not cheaper, than other houses. Bro. Boby thought that the order the clothing the more honourable—he could not support the proposition. Ultimately the motion was lost for want of a seconder, the general feeling seeming to be that the funds of the lodge might be better applied in supporting the charities than in purchasing regalia. The routine business having been disposed of the lodge was closed, and the brethren, under the chairmanship of the V.M., sat down to an excellent supper provided by the Masonic Hall Keeper and admirable chef, Bro. George Spalding. The usual toasts were proposed from the chair. Bro. Boby responded for that of "The Provincial Grand Officers," and in a humorous and sensible speech disposed of the brother who had written to the Freemason to complain because in one of the recent reports of the lodge meetings in that valuable organ of the Fraternity the lodge had been described as exclusive. Bro. Boby remarked that the writer of the letter had evidently quite misunderstood the meaning of the word exclusive, or, at any rate, the meaning we put upon it. We had a lodge no wish to exclude any one who had the true interests of Masonry at heart, no one who would be likely to act up to and carry out the true tenets of the Order, bearing in mind that charity was the ruling characteristic of a Freemason's heart—no one who would act and behave like a Mason and a gentleman, and this latter word was used in its broadest sense. A glance round the lodge room would at once show that; for although we were honoured by having a peer of the realm, several distinguished clergymen, brothers learned in the law, and others in the noble art of healing, still we had brethren in a great variety of useful trades and callings, but every one a gentleman in the truest and broadest sense of the word. Bro. Bobby observed that there was no desire to restrict the members of the lodge to one particular class or profession—far from it—all the lodge insisted upon was that its members should act like gentlemen. Exclusive the lodge was in the best sense, but not exclusive in the sense supposed by the brother who wrote to the Freemason. He was reminded of an anecdote of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, their Grand Master. It was well known that the Prince got his clothes from Poole, the great tailor, and that H.R.H., who was always very affable, would sometimes stroll in and have a chat with Poole. One day, it is said, the Prince said, "Well, Poole, you've been away, I find." "Yes, your Royal Highness, I have been down to Margate." "Enjoyed it?" asked the Prince, pleasantly. "Well, pretty well, your Royal Highness, but the company was very mixed." "D— it, man," said H.R.H., "you surely wouldn't have them all tailors!" (Laughter.) Bro. Bobby assured the brother who wrote the complaining letter to the Freemason that we didn't want all tailors in the lodge. Our pleasant, genial brother sat down amidst great applause. Two or three brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening, and the meeting was brought to a close at a reasonable hour.

WINDSOR.—ETONIAN LODGE OF ST. JOHN (No. 209).—On Tuesday afternoon, 6th ult., the brethren of this lodge assembled at their usual place of meeting, the Masonic Hall, St. Alban's-street, Windsor, under the presidency of Bro. John O. Carter, the W.M., who was supported by Bros. Denne, S.W.; Canvin, J.W.; Strange, P.M., Sec.; Pullin, P.M., Treas.; Garrett, acting S.D.; Roberts, I.G.; Dixon, I.P.M.; Reid, P.M.; Stacey, P.M.; Wilson, P.M.; Hiscock, Duffield, Spindler, Willoughby, Bladen, Lovegrove, Tully, and others. Visitors—Bros. Kent, 309; Bingham, P.M. 771; Tolley, P.M. 771; Harris, Fisk, and others. Unfortunately the five junior officers were unable to be present; but their duties were most ably performed in their absence by junior members of the lodge, who were thus afforded an opportunity of giving proof of their competency to take regular office should it at any future time be the pleasure of the W.M. to appoint them. Bro. Willoughby was passed to the second degree and Bro. H. T. Spindler raised to the third, the efficient working of the Master being a topic of conversation and commendation among the visitors present and the brethren. The usual work having been completed, the Master announced that twenty M.M.'s of the lodge had sent in their names as desirous of attending the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Order, at the Albert Hall, on the 28th April. All of those names had been duly forwarded to Grand Lodge. It was now, however, understood, though not officially, that only one M.M. could be present from each lodge, and he therefore proposed that a ballot be taken for the brother to whom the ticket should be given, supposing it to be at the discretion of the lodge. This proposal having been seconded, some conversation ensued; and an amendment was moved to the effect that the ticket be given to the senior member of the lodge on the list of those who had sent in their names to the W.M. This was put in the usual manner and lost by a large majority. The original motion was then put and carried nem. dis., and a ballot taken in open lodge, the choice falling on Bro. Garrett. Upon the motion of the Secretary (Bro. J. Strange) Bros. Cobbett and Grey, two members of the lodge who resigned some years ago, were proposed joining members, as were also Bros. Fisk and Harris, both of whom desired to join the lodge after having seen the admirable working of its members. After some conversation the lodge decided (upon the proposal of Bro. G. W. Dixon) to raise the initiation fee from £5 5s. to £6 6s., and the joining fee from £1 1s. to £2 2s. The lodge was then closed in due form. Bro. Tolley, of the Chapel Royal, Windsor, ably officiated as Organist. The brethren adjourned to the White Hart Hotel to an excellent repast, to which ample justice was done. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and duly responded to, and the brethren separated after having spent a very pleasant afternoon and evening.

LEICESTER.—JOHN O'GAUNT LODGE (No. 523).—The members of this lodge assembled at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday evening, the 15th ult., under the direction of their distinguished Master in the Craft, Bro. S. S. Partridge, to pursue their labours in speculative Masonry. Bro. Partridge, W.M., having at a previous meeting ably inducted the moral duties in the 1°. Bro. Gunn, who had made excellent improvement as an entered apprentice, was presented as a candidate for the 2°, and the zealous aspirant was permitted access by the winding staircase to that position which enables him to make the liberal arts and sciences his particular study. Bro. Partridge in the lecture of the degree so impressively traced the progress of the at nature and design of Freemasonry, as cannot fail to excite, in the Craftsman a spirit of enquiry, and induce him to emulate further acquisitions in Masonry. Among those present on the occasion were Bros. William Kelly, F.R.H.S., P.P.G.M.; J. T. Thorp, S.W.; W. T. Rowlett, J.W.; W. B. Smith, P.M., Treasurer; T. A. Wykes, Secretary; A. Ross, S.D.; R. Taylor, J.D.; W. C. Shout, I.G.; F. Baines, A.M. Duff, G. Toller, J. W. Smith, J. M. M. Allister, G. W. Statham, A. Sargeant, J. Ewing, W. Rushin, and others. The M.M. ticket for admission to the approaching Installation of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales was unanimously voted to the indefatigable and worthy Secretary of the lodge, Bro. T. A. Wykes.

COLCHESTER.—UNITED LODGE (No. 697).—The installation of Bro. A. R. Clench as W.M. of the United Lodge, No. 697, took place on Thursday, 22nd ult., in the presence of the R.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Matthew Edward Clark, who made his appearance in an Essex lodge for the first time since his appointment), the Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. John Wright Carr), the Provincial Grand Treasurer (Bro. J. Burton), and a very large number of visitors and members of the lodge. The ceremony was most ably performed by Bro. the Rev. G. J. Martyn, W.M., of the Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1,224, P.M., P.Z., and Past Grand Chaplain of England; and at its conclusion the new W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Eustace, P.M., S.W.; T. W. Naylor, J.W.; Thos. Rix, P.M., Secretary; B. Brailey, Treasurer; W. H. Bateman, S.D.; E. Henneymeyer, J.D.; W. R. Willcocks, I.G.; G. Guiver, Organist; W. Middleton, D.C.; H. Everitt and R. Emson, Stewards; and C. Gunner, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the R.W., the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the other grand officers for their kind attendance, and to Bro. the Rev. G. J. Martyn for the able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of the day. Forty-six brethren subsequently sat down to a sumptuous banquet à la Russe at the George Hotel. During the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk, and the enjoyments of the evening were very much enhanced by the vocal renderings of several brethren, Bro. G. Guiver acting as accompanist. In connexion with the toast of the Masonic Charities some gratulatory remarks were made in reference to the great success of the Colchester case at the election for the Boys' school on the previous Monday. Among those present, either in lodge or at the banquet, were:—The Right Worshipful the Past Prov. Grand Master for Western India, Bro. R. Bolton-Barton, L.L.D.; Bros. Charles Cobb, W.M.; A. Welch, S.W.; G. Gard Pye, J.W.; P.P.S. of Works, Essex; T. R. Quilter, P.M.; G. Allen, T. A. Middleton, W. W. Daniell, and T. J. Ralling, Secretary, of Angel Lodge, No. 51; W. Shury, P.M., 167, 548, and 51; F. Wright, 213, and 1,500; J. E. Wiseman, P.M., P.P.A.G.D.C.; and Secretary Henry York, P.M.; J. E. Richardson, P.M., P.G.S.B.; and A. Went, of Lodge of Hope, No. 433; Alfred Neck and J. Hope; and the following brethren of No. 697:—The Rev. E. H. Crate, I.P.M., P.P.G.C.; T. Rix, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Secretary; E. Williams, M.D., P.M.; T. Eustace, P.M.; W. Calthorpe, P.M., the Rev. T. C. Brettingham, E. Henneymeyer, B. Brailey, T. W. Naylor, W. Middleton, J. H. Boulton, T. Downing, G. Eustace, I. Harris, W. R. Willcocks, W. H. Bateman, T. Williams, H. Harlow, R. Nightingale, G. Harvey, Bandmaster Frayling, 5th Lancers, Sergt. G. Roberts, 5th Lancers, Sergt. Major McConnell, 88th, Colour-Sergt. Hendley, 88th, and Sergt.-Major Hunt, 10th Regiment.

WARDLE (NEAR ROCHEDALE).—ROYDS LODGE (No. 816).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 15th April, and there was a moderate attendance of the brethren. The officers present were Bros. John Ashworth, W.M.; the S.W. being prevented from attending, P.M. Stephen England filled his place; James Taylor, J.W.; P.M. James Kershaw, Treasurer; P.M. James Midgley, Secretary; John Thomas Stott, S.D.; John Helliwell, J.D.; Alf. Shore, I.G., pro tem; William Eastwood, Tyler, pro tem. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 7.30. The minutes of the previous lodge were read and confirmed, after which the W.M. called on P.M. William Davies to give an explanation of the First Tracing Board, and the brethren were very highly pleased to have had an opportunity of listening to such an interesting explanation. There being no other business, the W.M. closed the lodge at 8.45, after receiving hearty good wishes from Lodge of Hope (54) and Lodge of Benevolence (226), and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was beautifully provided by Bro. John Leach and his wife, in that homely and comfortable style which always gives satisfaction to the brethren. After the cloth was removed the W.M. proceeded with the toasts, commencing with the Queen and the members of the Royal Family, and the other toasts were given. To the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," Bro. Thomas Edward Heap, 226, responded. The last toast was given and the brethren separated after a very pleasant evening.

HAMPTON COURT.—BURDETT LODGE (No. 1293).—This lodge met for the transaction of business on Saturday the 24th ult., at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, Bro. Frederick Kelly, W.M., occupying the chair. The lodge having been opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the last regular lodge meeting were read and confirmed. There were five candidates for raising, three of whom were present, viz., Bro. T. R. Carrell, Bro. A. Wyatt, and Bro. W. J. Burdett; and these, when the lodge had been opened in the 2°, were examined and entrusted. On their retiring the lodge was opened in the 3°, when they were re-admitted and raised to the sublime degree of M.M., the ceremony being very ably performed by the W.M., a very thorough and very earnest Mason, who, by his conduct in the chair, is proving himself to be a very good workman. The lodge having been resumed to the 1°, the W.M. inquired whether the candidates for initiation—there being two on the summons—were in attendance, was answered in the negative, one being absent from an unexplained cause, and the other having met with a serious accident. In the absence of the R.W., Colonel Burdett, Prov. Grand Master, and of Bro. R. W. Little, Prov. G. Sect. (the proposer and seconder of a candidate for joining), both of whom were absent from an unavoidable cause, the ballot for the proposed joining member could not be proceeded with. The regular business of the lodge thus came to a conclusion somewhat earlier than was anticipated. Bro. Rosenthal proposed that the W.M., Bro. Kelly, be recommended to the Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex as one of the Prov. Grand Officers, which proposition was seconded and put by the S.W., and carried unanimously. After having thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him by this resolution, the W.M. said there was one matter to which he wished to call their attention before closing the lodge. He thought that the time had arrived for them to endeavour to obtain a suitable room in which to hold their lodge meetings. He had conceived the idea that they might erect a small Masonic Temple—he did not desire to interfere with the present arrangements as to banquet—but by the time of the next meeting he hoped to have some tangible proposal on the subject for their consideration. He added that he felt sure that if they did not do it some other lodge would, and he should be very sorry if any lodge but the Burdett were to take the initiative in this matter. The Secretary, he added, would please take these remarks as a notice that he, the W.M., intended to move a resolution on the subject at the next meeting. The lodge was then closed in perfect harmony. The members present were Bro. Kelly, W.M.; Bro. Pearce, S.W.; Bro. Berrie, J.W.; Bro. Buss, P.M. P.G. Treas.; Bro. Southwell, S.D.; Bro. Bindoff, J.D.; Bro. E. Shaboe, Prov. Grand Chaplain, Middlesex; Bro. Woollard, Steward; Bro. R. L. Sindall, I.G.; Bro. Still, P.M.; Bro. H. Phythian, P.M.; Bro. T. Massa, P.M.; Bro. Raynham Stuart, P.P.S.G.W., Middlesex; Bro. S. Rosenthal, P.P.S.G.W., Middlesex; and many other brethren, members of the lodge. Among the visitors we observed Bro. G. Phythian, Neptune 22; J. Thompson, Tranquility 185; Alfred Clark, Harmony 255; Dr. Ramsay, M.D., S.W., 259; W. Dennison, P.M. Alfred, 306; Charles Legg, East Surrey Concord 463; W. Reed, St. James 765; and E. C. Massey (Freemason). When their Masonic labours were brought to an end the brethren spent a short interval in the grounds of the charming old palace, and then re-assembled at the banquet table, where a handsome dinner was set before them, to which they did ample justice. On the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed from the chair, and were all most heartily responded to by the brethren present. "The Queen and the Craft," "the W.M., the G.M., and the 'Prov. Grand Master' having been drunk, the W.M. proposed 'The Health of the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present,' coupling therewith the name of Bro. Raynham Stuart. Bro. R. Stuart said that many of these toasts were merely formal, but he felt that this was no mere formal toast, considering the happy event that was to take place next Wednesday, and all that is being done by the Grand Officers, Past and Present, to promote the success of the proceedings on that day. Brethren, he continued, we are about to have the Prince of Wales before the people of England and before the whole world as the Grand Master of Freemasons of England. He is doing us a very great honour, an honour that we are very proud of; but let me tell you it is a very great honour to him; when he acquires that position he will know that he has 40,000 men ready to shed their hearts' blood for him; and, therefore, I say it is not only an honour he does us, but we do him a great honour indeed. Brethren, I thank you. The W.M.—Brethren, I have now to give you a toast that is always well received in this lodge, and that is, 'The Health of the R.W. Colonel Burdett, Prov. Grand Master, Middlesex.' It is very rarely indeed that he is absent, and though he is obliged to absent himself this evening, we know that his heart is with us, and that he wishes himself here. I have also to call your attention to the toast of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present; I believe we have four present this evening.—Bro. R. Stuart: Brethren, I feel that you must be getting very tired of me, but at the same time I am very proud of having been your first Dep. Prov. Grand Master, but I think I did you good suit and service by retiring from you, as there are so many fresh men coming on. I thank you very sincerely for your kindness, and for the very great respect that I have always received at your hands, and I hope that I shall always merit it.—Bro. Rosenthal said that there was never much to be said by any one coming after Bro. Raynham Stuart. He was very proud to stand in the position he occupied, and he thanked them for drinking his health.—Bro. Chaboe, Prov. G. Chaplain, also responded. We have not space for his speech, which was a warm plea for the charities. He took the opportunity, as he was going as Steward at the Girls' Festival, to ask the Lodge for £5, and instanced cases which had come under his personal observation of severe reverses of fortune, alleviated by means of the Masonic institutions. We have no space for a detailed report of the remaining speeches. Suffice it to say, that all the usual toasts were drunk, and all were responded to, and acknowledged, and the brethren separated at a comfortably early hour, so as to be able to reach home in reasonable time. We congratulate the W.M. on the able working of his officers, and the good feeling that pervades the whole Lodge; and we congratulate the lodge on being under the direction of so able and courteous a W.M. as Bro. Kelly.

LEICESTER.—COMMERCIAL LODGE (No. 1391).—The annual festival and installation meeting of the Commercial Lodge, 1391, was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Monday, the 12th ult. The [almost unprecedented number of brethren in attendance fully demonstrated the brotherly love and esteem for Bro. Barber, and the warm interest in the prosperity of this young lodge which pervades the heart and minds of the brethren of the local lodges. Among those present during the evening were—Bros. Wm. Kelly, F.R.H.S. (Hon. Mem.) P.P.G.M.; Clement Stretton, P.P.G.W.; G. Toller, P.P.G.W.; R. Waite, P.G.W.; S. S. Partridge, P.G.S.W.M. 523; W. B. Smith, P.G. Treas.; J. M. McAllister, P.G. S.D.; W. Weare, P.P.G.D.; J. B. Hall, P.M., P.G.D.C. and first Master of the lodge; J. Halford, P.M., P.P.G.A. D.C.; G. Clifton, M.D.W.M.; J. W. Smith, W.M. 279;

A. Palmer, P.M.; F. J. Baines, P.M.; J. T. Thorp, S.W. 523; G. B. Atkins, Alderman Barfoot, L. L. Atwood, G. W. Statham, J.W. 279, and other officers after mentioned. The following representative brethren were also present—Bros. Scott, 27; Pank, Treas., and Dixie, Sec., 442; Dorington, 935, and others. The lodge having been opened in due form by Bro. Dr. Clifton, W.M., and the preliminary business dispatched, our veteran brother, Wm. Kelly, P.P.G.M., took the chair, and performed the ceremony of installing Bro. Barber with more than usual effect. The whole proceedings were conducted with dignity, graced by courtesy and hospitality, and it would only be invidious to particularize when the same system has been so generally practised by the sister lodges in Leicester, and we may fairly omit enumerations where the record of good feeling is so general. The admirable working of Bro. Kelly was anxiously watched by the spirited and intelligent members of the lodge, and though unqualified to take any leading part therein, they evinced a thorough determination not to be sleeping partners in the great concern of Masonry. Bro. Barber, W.M., appointed and invested the following brethren as officers of the lodge for the ensuing year—Bros. E. Mason, S.W.; B. Moore, J.W.; R. Waite, Treasurer; J. Ewing, Secretary; A. Chamberlin, S.D.; G. Matt, J.D.; E. Butler, I.G.; C. McBride, D.C.; H. Meadows and J. W. Hunter, Stewards; and C. Bembridge and T. Dunn, Tylers. By the Treasurer's report the finance department is most prosperous, and this prosperity has enabled the lodge to contribute a liberal donation to the Boys' School. The lodge was closed in due form, and upwards of sixty brethren remained to the banquet, which was of the most recherché description. The arrangements generally reflected great credit upon Bro. C. McBride, E. Butler, J. W. Hunter, and Dr. Meadows, the officiating Stewards. The usual loyal and characteristic toasts were given, and Bro. Barber, in submitting them, enlivened and cheered the meeting with his usual urbanity of manner and social kindness. Bro. Clifton, I.P.M., in a humorous address, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which was supported by Bro. Stretton, P.P.G.W., in justly merited terms of encomium, and enthusiastically received by the brethren. The W.M., in reply, shortly detailed the plan he intended to pursue as Master, and expressed his desire for the promotion of the interests of the lodge and the Craft generally. The Past Masters of the Lodge who were all present, were next complimented in felicitous terms by the W.M., to which Bros. J. B. Hall, J. Halford, and Dr. Clifton responded in a manner which truly delighted an attentive auditory. The toast of "The Sister Lodges" was responded to by Bros. J. W. Smith, W.M. 279; S. S. Partridge, W.M. 523; G. Toller, P.M.; R. Waite, P.M., and several brethren of rank, whose laudatory remarks and happy allusions to the principles of the Order did honour alike to their heads and hearts. In short, the meeting was strongly characterized by an intellectuality of enjoyment, and the greatest harmony and goodwill prevailed the whole of the evening.

HAMPTON HILL.—FRANCIS BURDETT LODGE (No. 1503).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Hill, on Wednesday, April the 14th. The lodge was opened at six o'clock by the following officers:—Bros. Wigginton, P.M., &c.; W. M. Saunders, S.W.; Walls, acting J.W.; Horsley, P.M., P.Z., &c., acting I.P.M.; Knaggs, Treas.; Mitchell, Sec.; Court, acting I.G. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Taylor having been examined and entrusted, was passed to the second degree, and Bro. Bennett, having satisfactorily answered the usual questions, was also entrusted and raised to the degree of a Master Mason. Both ceremonies were carried out in their beautiful entirety by the W.M. most ably and impressively, although he was suffering very severely from a painful and distressing indisposition. Bro. Horsley, P.M., then reported that, in compliance with the unanimous resolution passed at the last lodge meeting, he had seen Colonel Burdett, the P.G.M. of Middlesex, upon the subject of removing the lodge to Twickenham, and that he had agreed to the same with one condition, that it should not be removed until it had completed one year of its existence. The W.M. also reported that he had both written to and seen the Colonel upon the matter, and informed him that a deputation had been appointed by the lodge to wait upon him to explain the reasons that had actuated the members in their unanimous desire to leave the King's Arms; but that their P.G.M. had declined to receive the deputation, as he stated he was perfectly satisfied with the statements and explanation given by him (Colonel Wigginton), and that he consented to the removal subject to the one condition as expressed by him to P.M. Horsley. After some discussion, Bro. Knaggs was elected to receive the Master Mason's ticket, entitling him to be present at the Prince of Wales's Installation as M.W.G.M. In answer to the Senior Warden's question as to what was going to be done towards establishing a Lodge of Instruction in connection with the lodge, the W.M. stated that as it had been finally determined that the lodge should be removed from Hampton Hill to Twickenham, he should immediately make the necessary application in order that the brethren might have an opportunity of attending at the Albany Hotel for Masonic instruction during the summer recess, where he intended the Lodge of Instruction should be held, and that he should have much pleasure in acting as Preceptor until the requirements of the lodge should necessitate the engagement of a permanent one. The following brethren, who had been proposed by the J.W. and seconded by the W.M., were balloted for and unanimously elected joining members:—Bros. P. V. Hutton, P. Prov. S.D. Nottingham, P.M. 402; Sugg, P. Prov. G. Surrey, 452; John Hutton, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Suffolk, 555; Kennedy, P.M. 820, W.M. Crescent; Bayliss, 820; and Grant, 957. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the residence of the W.M., where they were hospitably received and kindly entertained.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—A meeting of this old established Chapter was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-st., on Tuesday, the 13th of April last. There were present Companions Smith, M.E.Z.; Watts, P.Z., acting H.; J. Hammond; Davage, P.Z., acting S.E.; Wagner, S.N.; Elsam, P.S.; Robinson, A.S.; Honeywell, and A.S.; Bentley, Janitor. The minutes of the previous chapter having been read and confirmed, the M.E., assisted by his officers exalted Bros. T. E. Walls, 141, W.S. 1381, I.G. 1503, 1512, and J. Sumner, I.G. 201. The impressive and beautiful ceremony was most excellently well performed. This being the night of installation, Companion Smith was inducted for the second time to the chair of First Principal, and Companions Hammond and Elsam to the second and third. The ceremony was ably carried out by the veteran Companion Watts, P.Z., assisted by the other Past Principals of the Chapter, viz., Companions Holbrook, Lowenstark and Davage. The other officers appointed were Companions Davage, S.E.; Wagner S.N.; Robinson, P.S.; Honeywell, First A.S.; Mander, Second A.S.; Bentley, Janitor. The report of the Auditors, Companions Smith, Watts, Holbrook, Davage, Hammond and Stevens, after considerable discussion, was received and adopted, and the chapter having been duly closed, the companions adjourned to an elegant banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and R.A. toasts were given by the M.E. with commendable brevity, and duly honoured. Comp. Elsam proposed "The Health of the M.E." in an able speech, which was heartily received. Comp. Smith, in reply, stated that he was exceedingly proud at being again elected to the first chair. He was unfortunately suffering from illness when he left Cheshire to be present at the audit meeting of the chapter on the previous day, which indisposition had increased considerably, and he hoped that under the circumstances the companions would kindly overlook his shortcomings in the chair that evening, and on that account also excuse his brevity in proposing the various toasts. He was advised, on account of his state of health, not to leave the country, but knowing that his absence would have entailed considerable inconvenience to his officers, he had determined at all risks to be present at the last meeting of the season of his mother Chapter. The M.E. then proposed "The Healths of the Newly Exalted Companions, Walls and Sumner," and stated that from the recommendations that had been given to the chapter by their proposers and seconders—viz., Companions Hammond and Elsam, and Wayne and Savage—the "Jerusalem" had received a valuable addition to its ranks, and he felt sorry that the last named companion had been unable to stay to the banquet, in order that he might have had an opportunity of responding to the toast. Companion Walls, in reply, thanked the M.E. and the companions for the hearty manner in which his health, in conjunction with Companion Sumner's, had been drunk. The proceedings and technicalities of the R.A. were so different from the Craft that he felt quite out of his element, and hoped that any breach of etiquette he might commit upon that, the night of his début, would be kindly overlooked by the chapter. He then expatiated upon what he had seen of the working of the companions, and expressed how impressed he was with the solemn and beautiful ritual which had inspired them with ardour, and he hoped some day, by perseverance and attention, to arrive at the proud position of First Principal of the Jerusalem, the duties of which chair had been so ably carried out by their M.E., notwithstanding the difficulties under which he laboured through indisposition. The healths of the officers were next proposed and drank, and severally responded to by Comps. Hammond, Elsam, Robinson, Wagner, and Davage. The M.E. then proposed "The Health of their Visitor, Comp. E. Levy, P.Z." (Joppa), and expressed how gratified he felt at having had the company of so indefatigable and zealous a worker in the various degrees of Freemasonry, and he was sorry that that companion had not been present at the working of the chapter. This toast was well received, and Comp. Levy made an excellent reply. Between the intervals of the toasts Comps. Walls, Levy and Mander vocally and dramatically entertained the companions. The proceedings terminated at midnight, and the chapter separated until October.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND (Time Immemorial) LODGE.—The annual meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Monday, April 19th, at 6 p.m. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., the V.W., Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.J.W. of the Grand Lodge of England, P.M., 26 and 54, took the chair, supported by the following officers:—Bros. General Doherty, as S.W.; James Dutton, J.W.; Bagshawe, I.P.M.; Carey, as M.O.; Baldwin, as S.O.; John Dutton, as J.O.; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; S. Mitchell, as J.D.; Gazzard, as I.G. There were also present Bros. Smith, Rubie, Keene, Braham, Falkner, &c. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. It was reported that the Extended Committee appointed to revise the bye-laws as drawn up by the three brethren previously commissioned for the purpose had met and performed their duty. These were read by the acting W.M., and adopted seriatim, the exact wording of one or two being left open, contingent on points respecting which it was ordered that inquiry should be made. An order was made that they should be put in type and copies distributed to the members, previous to application for the sanction of the higher authorities, and final confirmation by the lodge. Bro. Dr. Hopkins then proceeded to the only remaining business—namely, the installation of the W.M. Bro. James Dutton was presented by Bro. Bagshawe, P.M., and the preliminary ceremony having been gone through, the brethren were requested to retire, and Bro. Dutton was legally installed in the chair of Adoniram. On the return of the brethren, after the Board of Installed Masters had been closed, the customary proclamation, procession, and salutation took place, the working tools and other things were presented to the W.M., and he was desired to appoint his officers, which he did as follows:—Thompson, I.P.M.; Dr. Rubie, S.O.; Caser, J.O.; John Dutton, Treasurer; Falkner, Registrar; Cater, Secretary; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; S. Mitchell, J.D.; Preston, I.G.; Gazzard, Steward. The Installing Master completed his work by giving the addresses respectively to the W.M., Wardens, Overseers, and the brethren. Some discussion took place as to the appointment of a Tyler, the brother who has hitherto filled that office having died suddenly, but nothing was definitely settled, as a similar vacancy will have to be filled up by the Cumberland Craft Lodge, to which this is considered an appendage. Letters of apology for absence were read from Bros. Thompson, P.M., and Parfitt, P.M., on account of illness, and Bros. Wilton and Jelley, owing to business engagements. A cordial vote of thanks to V.W. Bro. Dr. Hopkins, for the skilful manner in which he had conducted the ceremony of installation, was carried by acclamation. After the lodge had been closed by the new W.M. the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel for a banquet, which was most liberally supplied by the host, Bro. Rubie, and a pleasant evening was spent. There appears every probability that this, which is reported to be the oldest lodge of Mark Master Masons in England, will be restored to a position of efficiency and prosperity, after having been nearly dormant for some years.

Knights Templar.

LIVERPOOL.—ALPASS PRECEPTORY (No. 123).—The installation meeting of this very prosperous encampment was held on Wednesday, and the high estimation in which the E.P. Elect, Sir Knight W. Doyle, is held, brought together a strong muster of the members of the Conclave and the proceedings were graced by the presence of some of the principal Grand Officers of the Order, and visitors from the other conclaves in the district, including Sir Knt. Beswick Royds, Sub Prior; Sir Knt. Pierpoint, P.E.C., Prov. Grand Sec.; Capt. Jones, Sir Knt. Berry, P.E.C., Prov. Grand Standard Bearer; Sir Knt. Kennett Smith, E.P.; William de la More, Sir Knt. Alpess, P.E.C., 1st Grand Standard Bearer, and P. Prov. Grand Captain; and Sir Knts. Clarke, E.P.; W. Doyle, Jackson, Mawson, Brown, Kenyon, Shakespeare, Gallagher, Shortis, Sheath, Burrows, Evans, Matthews, Capell, Firth, Widdows, Chesworth, Bucknall, and others. The preceptory having been regularly opened by the E.P., Sir Knt. Clarke, Em. Sir Knt. Alpess proceeded to install Sir Knt. Wm. Doyle as E.P. for the ensuing year, and this having been done in solemn and impressive form, Sir Knt. Doyle invested his officers as follows:—Sir Knts. Thos. Clarke, P.E.P. and Treasurer; John E. Jackson, 1st Captain; Moses Mawson, 2nd Captain; Richard Brown, Registrar; W. H. Shakespeare, Expert; John Kenyon, Capt. of Lines; W. O. Bulman, Almoner; W. Shortis, 1st Standard Bearer; J. Gallagher, 2nd Standard Bearer; Thos. Evans, 1st Herald; J. Capell, 2nd Herald; Samuel Hinks, Chamberlain; Fabius N. Sheath, Organist. Sir Knight Beswick Royds alluded to the meeting of the National Great Priory on the 14th of May, and having entered into explanations as to the recent alterations made in the constitution regulating the Order, expressed a hope that the former arrangements might be restored, and the dissatisfaction which threatens the future progress of the Order avoided, a wish in which all the Sir Knights present heartily concurred. The balance of the Almoner's fund having been voted to that excellent charity the "Hamer Fund," and some other business having been transacted, the preceptory was closed, and the Sir Knights partook of the "bread of plenty and the cup of cheerfulness," which was so admirably provided by Sir Knight Ball as to call forth the unanimous approval of all present.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

IPSWICH.—VICTORIA SOVEREIGN ROSE CROIX CHAPTER.—On Monday, the 12th inst., the usual annual meeting of the members of this flourishing chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, when there were present, 11. Bros. the Rev. T. E. Beaumont, 30°, M.W.S., and Emma Holmes, 31°; M.E. Bro. W. T. Westgate, P.M.W.S., and the following Sov. Princes, Dr. Mills, 1st General; E. Robinson, 2nd General; Geo. Creswell, Marshal; P. Iornell, Raphael; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, and others.

The chapter was opened with the usual solemnities, and the minutes of last chapter were read and confirmed. This being the usual meeting for the installation of the lost Wise Sovereign Elect, Ill. Bro. Emma Holmes, he was duly inducted into that high office by the M.W.S., I. Bro. Beaumont, 30°, who conducted the impressive ceremonial in a befitting and dignified manner.

Ill. Bro. Emma Holmes then appointed the following his officers for the ensuing year:—Excellent Bros. Rev. J. B. Weed, High Prelate; E. J. Robertson, 1st General; George Creswell, 2nd General; Philip Cornell, Recorder; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, Marshal; W. P. Mills, M.D., Raphael; M.E. Bro. W. T. Westgate, Master of the ceremonies; Ex. Bro. A. J. Barber, Captain of the Guard; Serving Bro. George Spalding, Janitor.

It appeared by the minutes of last meeting that Bro. Clark, of the British Union Lodge, was duly proposed or perfected, but through some mistake his name had not appeared on the summons. The question arose as to whether the name could proceed to the ballot. The M.W.S. explained that the bye-laws were silent on the subject, merely requiring that a brother should be either proposed in open chapter or at nine days' notice, he would therefore leave it to the chapter to decide. Ex. Bro. Robertson, 1st General, proposed, and Ex. Bro. Dr. Mills, R., seconded the motion, that the ballot be proceeded with, which on being put to the meeting, was carried nem. con., and the ballot being taken, Bro. Clark was declared duly elected. It was decided afterwards, however, for the sake of regularity, to insert the candidate's name in the summons for next meeting if thought necessary.

The usual courteous letters expressing inability to attend from various causes, were received from Ill. Bros. C. J. Vigne, P.M., P.S.G.C. 33°; Cap. N. G. Phillips, P.M., P.S.G.C. 33°; and A. H. Royds; also from M.E. Bro. C. V. Childs, M.W.S., Oxford and Cambridge University Chapter, and others.

The routine business of the chapter having been disposed of, and the alms of the Princes having been collected, the Sovereign Chapter of Rose, Croix H.R.D.M., was declared duly closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment.

On the removal of the cloth, the M.W.S. asked the brethren as loyal subjects to honour the toast of "The Queen," which was of course heartily responded to, the National Anthem being sung. The Most Wise then proposed "The Supreme Grand Council, 33° of the Ancient and Accepted Rite," and in doing so, remarked that the position of that rite was stronger than it had ever been before. As the brethren were aware, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales had accepted the position of Grand Patron, he was also Grand Master of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital, and was about to be installed Grand Master of the Craft. He, Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes, believed that the three offices had never before been held by a Grand Master of the Freemasons before, and he thought it augured well for the high degrees, which would now occupy a very different position to that they held before. He regretted that they had not been honoured with the presence on this occasion of Ill. Bro. Rev. A. Bruce Fraser, 32°, the newly appointed Deputy Inspector General for this district, who had been duly invited, but from whom no reply had been received, probably in consequence of the summons having miscarried. The toast was duly given, with the honours peculiar to this ancient rite.

The M.W.S. then proposed "The Past M.W.S. of the Chapter, Ill. Bro. Rev. T. G. Beaumont, 30°," and in doing so bore testimony to the admirable way in which he had governed the Chapter for the last two years, and expressed his grateful thanks for Bro. Beaumont's kindness in installing him that evening.

Bro. Beaumont in responding, spoke deprecatingly of the praise bestowed on him by the M.W.S., who he hoped and felt sure would so fulfil the duties of his station that at the termination of his year of office the brethren would beg him to occupy the post of honour for another twelvemonth. He begged to propose "The Health of their Most W.S.," whom he had great pleasure in installing with the regular ceremonial into his high office that evening. Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes, in returning thanks, expressed his deep sense of the honour conferred upon him. He would do his utmost to carry out the duties of his office to the best of his ability, and he trusted that when next year he handed over to his successors his authority as M.W.S. he might do so with the feeling that it had lost nothing in his hands. He, of course, hoped they might have to install and perfect several candidates during the year, but yet he hoped to be able to find time to devote to a lecture on the Ineffable Degrees for the information of the members. These degrees were generally given by communication, and far too little was known about them. The brethren were no doubt aware that although the 18° could only be conferred on brethren who took the obligation to the Holy and Undivided Trinity, the subsidiary degrees to, he believed, the 17th, and certainly up to the 14th, might be conferred upon Jews and others unwilling or unable to take the Christian degrees. He remarked that brethren were eligible to take all these degrees up to the 17th, so soon as they were Master Masons, though the Rose Croix degree could not be conferred on Masons of less than twelve months' standing, except by special dispensation from the Supreme Council. He thought it would be a very good thing if some of the degrees were worked at length—of course with the sanction of the Supreme Council, and he hoped at the next meeting of the Chapter to give the brethren some account of the history and ritual of the Ineffable Degrees—some notion of their origin and object. He begged to thank them for the cordial way in which they had drank his health.

Bro. Spalding provided an excellent supper, to which ample justice was done—and a very pleasant evening was brought to an end before low twelve.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 33).—This lodge held their regular bi-monthly meeting in their Hall, 21, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Tuesday, the 20th ult.; present—Bros. Wm. Bell, R.W.M.; J. D. Young, S.W.; D. Horne, J.W.; D. M. Nelson, D.M.; R. B. Dalzel, Treas.; J. Dick, Sec.; P. Brownlie, S.D.; J. Reid, J.D.; Past Masters T. Fletcher, Park, McMillan, and Craig, and a large attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting read and approved of. The business of the evening consisted of the passing of Bros. S. McHarg, H. Winslow, I. Ross and A. Berridge, the work being ably performed by Bro. Loutitt. Bro. Young, S.W., proposed that new clothing be provided for the office-bearers of the lodge, which was seconded by Bro. Horne, J.W., and agreed to unanimously. Bros. Bell, Fletcher, Samuels, Dalzel and Dick being appointed as committee to carry out the same. Bro. Fletcher, P.M., said it now involved upon him, in behalf of Bro.

R. More, to perform a very pleasant duty, that of presenting to Lodge St. John a plumb, twenty-four inch gauge, and level; they were well worthy of the lodge's acceptance, and he hoped the members would accept them in the same spirit as they were given. The R.W.M., Bro. Wm. Bell, in behalf of the lodge, said he was sure that every brother of the lodge would appreciate Bro. More's very handsome present, and, through Bro. Fletcher, thank Bro. More for his kindness. Bro. McMillan, P.M., said he quite concurred with Bro. Bell, and that he was delighted to see such a special mark of Kindness shown to the lodge by Bro. More, and he hoped soon to see him amongst them, and that he might be spared many days to be amongst them; and he would now move that an inscription plate be put upon these emblems with the donor's name, etc., engraved upon them, which was agreed to unanimously. Bro. D. M. Nelson, D.M., also moved that the Secretary be instructed to write to Bro. More in behalf of the lodge, expressing their warmest thanks and high appreciation of his very handsome present, which was agreed to. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE THISTLE (No. 87).—The Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow paid their annual visit of inspection to this lodge on the 20th ult., within the hall occupied by the latter at No. 12, Trongate. The members of the deputation were Bros. J. B. Walker, Treas.; A. McTaggart, Sec.; J. Gillies, S.D.; Geo. Thallon, J.D.; J. Ritchie, A.; Jno. Fraser, Assistant Marshal; A. Bain, B.B.; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; A. Arrick Smith, I.G.; and Geo. Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of P.G.L. Benevolent Fund. The deputation having been received in the usual form by the R.W.M. of the lodge, Bro. J. W. Barns, the P.G. Sec. (Bro. McTaggart) submitted the report of the deputation. This bore that, with some exceptions, the books of the lodge had been found in very good condition, and that the lodge continued as usual to work in accordance with Grand Lodge law. The sederunt book had been as well kept as any other the deputation had as yet examined within the province. The minute book was very good; as was also the roll book, with the exception in the case of the latter that the signatures of candidates had not been in all cases written up at the proper time. It was of the utmost importance, the Secretary said, that the roll book of a lodge should be strictly kept, and the signatures entered at once, for the reason that the latter might quite possibly be required at a future time as a matter of reference. The receipt book, he was glad to say, had been very well kept. After pointing out one or two little irregularities, Bro. McTaggart stated that it appeared the number of entrants into the lodge last year had been 26; that he was glad to observe the increase in their funds, which showed £119 6s. 2d., as against £111 odd at previous balance. The amount of their private charity during the year was £11, and they had that night handed over to the P.G. Benevolent Fund the sum of £6. In conclusion the P.G. Sec. said that, with the few exceptions he had pointed out, the deputation might fairly congratulate the lodge upon their success. Whatever they had pointed out as amiss had been done in no spirit of fault finding, but in that of kindness, for the benefit of the office bearers and instruction of the brethren, to correct irregularities, and if possible to reform abuses. The R.W.M. (Bro. Burns), in thanking the deputation for their visit, said he was sorry to hear that the lodge had not been quite so correct as they might have been, but he was sure that they would lose nothing from the lesson that had been taught them. Bros. Sinclair, Ritchie, and Thallon having been affiliated as members of the lodge by Bro. John Fraser, P.M., the deputation retired to an adjoining apartment, where they were hospitably entertained by the Master and Wardens at a most excellent supper, excellently purveyed by Bro. S. McPhoe, of the St. Andrew Restaurant, Hutcheson-st., and P.G.L. Steward.

GLASGOW.—LODGE SCOTIA (No. 178).—The P.G.L. of Glasgow visited this lodge within the hall at 170, Buchanan-street, on the 14th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. Joseph Singleton, presided, and there was a very large attendance of brethren and visiting members. The deputation of the P.G.L. (headed by the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. W. Montgomerie Neilson) having entered and been received with the usual formalities, the P.G. Secretary (Bro. A. McTaggart) submitted the report of the deputation, remarking, in the first place, that he had to congratulate the lodge on that large meeting; he had not before visited it and found a larger gathering or a more pleasant one. The report was to the effect that the deputation had examined the books and found them in very good condition, with the exception of the cash book—for which, however, the present treasurer was in no way responsible. The deputation also found that Lodge 178 was working in harmony with the constitution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. With reference to the defective state of the cash book, the P.G. Secretary said that the deputation held the present treasurer entirely free from blame in the matter. But, in justice to the past treasurer, they must state that the lodge had more than doubled its funds since the year preceding. At the end of that year these amounted to £44; while at the end of last working year they amounted to £97 7s. 1d. So that if the book had been irregularly kept, the funds had been much improved; and, laying that and that together, the deputation need not be too severe upon the irregularity. Thereafter, the R.W.P.G.M. briefly addressed the meeting; and, the R.W.M. (Bro. Singleton) having thanked the deputation for their visit, and Bro. Ritchie, P.G.A., having been affiliated as a member of Lodge Scotia by Bro. McTaggart, the members of the deputation retired from the hall.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the hall, at 170, Buchanan-st., on 19th ult., when the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow paid it their annual visit of inspection. The deputation of Prov. Grand Lodge consisted of Bros. J. B.

Walker, Treas.; Archd. McTaggart, Sec.; J. Gillies, S.D.; W. Bell, Convener of Committee; Jno. Fraser, Assistant Marshal; J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; J. Miller, Director of Music; W. Phillips, S.B.; and Geo. Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of P.G. Benevolent Fund. The deputation was received with due honours, and the R.W.M. (Bro. J. B. McNair), in acknowledging in customary form the supremacy of Prov. Grand Lodge, said he was sure they would find no more loyal lodge in the province than Lodge Union. The Prov. Grand Sec. (Bro. A. McTaggart) said it gave him very great pleasure to see so many brethren congregated there that night, and to hear from the R.W.M. the assurance of the loyalty of the lodge. There was nothing more gratifying to the Prov. Grand Master and his office bearers than to hear such expressions, because they showed the existence of a mutual and kindly sympathy between the lodges of the province and the Prov. Grand Lodge. The report he, on behalf of the deputation, had to make of the state of Lodge Union was a very short one, and worded in terms much similar to those of other lodges they had visited; the reason of this being that they had found Masonry in the province this year in a very healthy state, growing in numbers, wealth, and general prosperity. As regarded the books of the lodge, he had nothing almost to say, except in the way of praise. He had not seen a better kept sederunt book this year in the province; while the minute book was unusually well kept. He would give them a meed of praise for the marginal notes with which the latter was illustrated; the book altogether gave a full record of the lodge's transactions. The roll book had been a little irregularly kept, inasmuch as in some cases the names had not been filled in at the proper time. He would recommend that on all occasions of initiation the roll book should be kept on the dais, and in each case the candidate should have to put his signature to it then and there. He was happy to see that their funds had very materially increased during the past year; while the number of members added to the lodge was 27, being the same exactly as they had made the year before. In touching upon the subject of admission fees, the Prov. Grand Sec. strongly advocated their being fixed at a higher rate; holding, as he did, that just in proportion as these fees were raised would the prosperity of Masonry in the province increase. In conclusion Bro. McTaggart hoped that the members of the lodge would take the remarks he had given in a kindly spirit, and he was sure that the deputation wished them all prosperity in the year to come. The R.W.M. (Bro. McNair) said he was sure that the brethren of Lodge Union would be very much pleased with the report which the Prov. Grand Lodge had given them; and, with reference to the raising of the admission fee, stated that it had been raised by the amount of 15s. since he (Bro. McNair) joined the lodge, and he thought that before they were many months older it would be raised still further. Before leaving, Bros. Bell, Sinclair, Miller, Thallon, and Phillips, members of the Prov. Grand Lodge deputation, were affiliated as members of Lodge Union by the R.W.M., Bro. McNair.

LODGE ST. GEORGE (No. 333).—The annual visitation of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow was made on the 14th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The deputation having been introduced, and the authority of the Prov. Grand Master recognized in customary form by the R.W.M. of the lodge, Bro. Alex. Thomson, the P.G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart) submitted the report of the deputation, and added to it a few remarks. From these it appeared that, after careful examination, the books had been found on the whole to be very well kept, and that the lodge was, as before, working in harmony with Grand Lodge law. Since last visitation the lodge had increased its funds from £93 to £101 odd; they had given during the year in charity the sum of £2 9s.; and that night they had given into the Benevolent Fund £2 13s., being exactly the same amount as they had done last year; and they had made 9 admissions into the lodge. Some years their lodge had not been remarkable for the great number of entrants, but they had always been noted for being very cautious as to whom they admitted. The lodge had its own duty to fulfil in the province of Glasgow, and he trusted it would go on to prosper. Touching the subject of lodge fees, Bro. McTaggart said the Prov. Grand Lodge had been thinking whether they could not manage to have these raised considerably above the present amount; and he thought they might call upon the lodge to raise them. He had never found a single lodge to lose members by so doing, as some said would be the inevitable result. Others again said that if you raise the fees you make the Order exclusive. That he entirely denied. He did not see why a working-man lodge should not have as good a guarantee for its members as the highest lodge in the land. The highest fees charged by the lodges occupying the highest places on the roll were miserable compared with what might be paid for the benefit of the Craft. Another thing was that they ought to have a respectable test fee; in England they had test fees of £1 and more. Well, the brethren got something for their money. They had their social gatherings, at which nothing was paid; and, on these occasions, much money was frequently collected for charity, to benefit the widow and the orphan. After some suggestions as to improvement in "refreshment" matters, and having urged the cause of the Benevolent Fund, Bro. McTaggart concluded by congratulating the lodge on being, upon the whole, in a very good condition. Bro. Winton, P.M., in reply to what the P.G. Secretary had said on the subject of fees, said that, so far as No. 333 was concerned, they were emphatically a working-men's lodge, and he did not think that by raising their admission fees much higher they would improve their position. He thought, however, that they might well raise their test fee; for his own part he would be happy to see it raised from two shillings, as at present, to ten shillings. Bro. McTaggart replied that in what he had said he did not at all mean to dictate to Lodge St. George, but merely to throw out his remarks as a hint. The R.W.P.G.M. than made a few remarks. The great desire of the P.G.L. and himself, he said, was to see that all the lodges within the province were maintained in full strength and integrity, and were working up to the ancient laws of Masonry. With regard to Lodge St. George, he need hardly say many words, as he understood that all matters therein were conducted with strict regularity and propriety. With regard to the fewness of their numbers, that was a feature that he did not regret, because he liked to be sure that all who were admitted into the Order were select; and when he saw too many members made in one year he was inclined to think that there must have been some looseness—that the door had been opened a little too widely. As to the fees, no doubt it would be very desirable if they could be raised, but Bro. Winton had given a very good reason why they could not call upon entrants to the lodge to pay a very high entrance fee. In this connection, however, he might throw out a hint to them, which was that the Grand Lodge of Scotland were contemplating taking action in the matter of very low fees. In concluding, the Prov. Grand Master touched upon the fact of the low condition of Scotland at present, and not only hoped, but believed, that the time was not far distant when they would be able to do something much more (hear, hear). On the motion of the chairman, Bros. Bain, Phillips, and Ritchie, members of the P.G.L. deputation, were then affiliated as members of Lodge 333, the ceremony being performed by Bro. William Robertson, P.M. of the lodge. This having been concluded, the R.W.M. (Bro. Thomson) said it was with great pleasure that Lodge St. George met with the deputation of the P.G.L. there that night. They (the lodge) had only the pleasure once a year, but in view of the instruction they (P.G.L.) gave, he should be very glad if it were four or five times a year. They of the lodge had great pleasure in acknowledging how they had been gratified by the visit of the P.G.L. The deputation then retired.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL, (No. 360).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held within their Hall, at No. 30, Hope Street, on 16th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, presided, and there were present Bros. Dr. A. Martin, I.P.M.; Julius Brodè, P.M.; D. Lamb, D.M.; I. M. Oliver, S.W.; James Gibson, S.D.; W. H. Bickerton, Secretary; &c. There was a numerous turn-out of visiting brethren, among whom were Bros. James W. Burns, R.W.M., 87; James Shaw, R.W.M., 354; Thomas J. Smillie, P.M. 34; James E. Wilson, P.M. 354; Dr. McInnes, S.W. 27; James Booth, S.W. 87; William Wilson, J.W. 87; John Johnson, 34; John Horn, Secretary, 275; W. B. Marr, Secretary, 441; John Peters, R.W.M. 153; James Anderson, R.W.M. 370; &c. The lodge having been opened, three duly approved candidates for initiation into the order received the E.A. degree at the hands of Bro. Lamb, D.M. Shortly thereafter, the lodge received, with all honours, a deputation from the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow, on their annual visit of inspection. The Prov. Grand Lodge deputation consisted of Bros. W. Montgomery Neilson, P.G.M.; I. B. Walker, treasurer; A. McTaggart, Secretary; William Bell, Convener of Committee; I. Gillies, S.D.; I. Ritchie, A.; A. Bain, B.B.; I. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies; William Phillips, S.B.; and George Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of I.P.G. Benevolent Fund. These brethren having been seated on the dais, the R.W.M. (Bro. Monro) tendered to the P. Grand Master the emblem of his authority, and had it returned to him, the Prov. G. Master well-knowing, he said, that the R.W.M. was well able and willing to rule the lodge. The P.G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart) then read the report of the deputation, which stated that the latter had that evening examined the various books of the lodge, and found them upon the whole correctly kept; also that the lodge was working as heretofore in accordance with Grand Lodge law. In a few supplementary remarks, the P.G. Secretary added that the lodge had at their credit in the bank nearly £170, that their contribution to the Benevolent Fund for the past year was £4 5s., that on that evening they had distributed £10 in three cases of charity, that the number of initiates into the lodge during the past working year had been 13, and that he thought he might fairly congratulate Lodge 360 on its present position and future prospects. Bro. Sinclair having briefly explained the state of the Benevolent Fund, the R.W.P.G.M. addressed a few remarks to the brethren, in which he urged upon them a strict observance of the ancient laws and customs of the Order, taking care not to have any looseness in their forms, which were their safe-guards, and must be kept intact. Of course they knew that their grand work was benevolence. As yet, Scotland was far below other countries in this respect, and the Prov. Grand Lodge were exceedingly anxious to do something in that direction to elevate Scottish Masonry higher in the estimation of foreign brethren. He did not see why they should not put themselves in a much higher position; and they would achieve it in course of time. The Prov. G. Master concluded, as he had begun, by expressing the very great pleasure and very great satisfaction he had had in visiting Lodge Commercial that night. The R.W.M. (Bro. Monro), in the name of the lodge and for himself, thanked the Prov. Grand Master and deputation for their attendance there that evening. Their visit was an occasion which the lodge always looked forward to with much interest and looked back upon with much satisfaction. Thereafter, the following members of the Prov. Grand Lodge deputation were affiliated as members of Lodge 360, the ceremonial being performed by Bro. Julius Brodè, P.M., viz:—Bros. Bell, Sinclair, Bain, Ritchie, Balfour, and Phillips. The deputation then retired, and the lodge went for a short time on to refreshment. After the usual preliminary toasts, that of "The Visiting Brethren" was duly honoured, and responded to by Bros. Burns (87) and Wilson (354); the latter proposing in return "Prosperity to Lodge 360," coupled with the name of the R.W.M. (Bro. Monro); who having suitably acknowledged the compliment, and the last toast, "Happy to meet," &c., having been pledged, the brethren were recalled to labour, and the lodge closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. CLAIR (No. 362).—The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow made their annual visitation of this lodge at the ordinary meeting of the latter within their hall in Robertson-street, on 12th ult. The lodge having been opened by the R.W.M., Bro. W. J. Hogg, the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge were shortly after introduced and received with due honour. The deputation consisted of Bros. W. Montgomery Neilson, R.W.P.G.M.; J. B. Walker, treasurer; A. McTaggart, secretary; J. Gillies, S.D.; J. Ritchie, A.; John Fraser, Assist. Mar.; A. Bain, B.B.; and J. Balfour, Director of Ceremonies. The deputation having taken their seats upon the dais, the R.W.M. (Bro. Hogg) resigned his seat and mallet to the Provincial Grand Master, but was in a minute or so reinstated by the latter, who knew, he said, from reports received by him from his office-bearers, that the mallet could not be in better hands than that of the master of the lodge. The chairman having intimated to the meeting that the members of the P.G.L. had decided to remain until a brother had received the F.C. degree, the P.G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart) submitted the report of the deputation, signed by each member of it. It certified that they had that evening examined the various books of the lodge, and found them in excellent condition; and also that the lodge was working, as formerly, in accordance with the constitution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. In a few remarks founded upon the report Bro. McTaggart said he thought he might fairly congratulate the lodge on the manner in which the books had been kept during the past year. The sederunt book had been very well kept, and that was an important point; the minute book contained a very faithful record of the lodge proceedings; the roll book was in excellent order, satisfying every test that was applied to it; the cash book was in very fair condition, and (the audit seemed to be very good. They had given in charity, to the widow and orphan, the sum of £6 6s., and had contributed to the P.G. Benevolent Fund the sum of £9. The R.W.P.G.M. then shortly addressed the meeting. After touching upon one or two points to which the P.G. Secretary had referred, he said that as to Masonry generally, he had not himself much to report since last he had been with them. Undoubtedly, however, it was advancing. The outer world were year by year coming to respect the Craft more than they used to do, and were not so prone to speak of it in terms of ridicule. He (the speaker) was exceedingly pleased that it should be so; because he thought it was a proof that the brethren were, and had been for some time past, conducting themselves in a manner to command the respect of the outer world. With regard, however, to their own peculiar sphere, he was exceedingly dissatisfied with the state of Freemasonry amongst them; and he supposed there was not a day but he was studying how it might be remedied. The position they occupied was very much below that occupied by Masons in other parts of the world. He did not know why this should be; and he should like it to be otherwise. They were doing more than they used to do, certainly; but by no means what they ought to do, or were capable of doing. In other countries, the speaker continued, Masons had great institutions and did great work; and he described the pleasure he had whilst in Paris last year in visiting the Grand Orient there, which was simply a magnificent place. He thought he counted within that building rooms for seven different lodges, with all appliances, and in connection with it there was another building something like a large hotel, where deserving brethren of all countries, if destitute, were provided for for an indefinite time. Perhaps in Scotland we did not require establishments on such a scale; still upon the whole he thought we ought to aim at something to put ourselves in a much better position than we were. They should have at least a place of creditable character where strangers coming to Glasgow could come and find them in some place with a good front door, and a respectable porter to attend to it—and that would show that they were not ashamed of themselves. In concluding, the P.G. Master said that as to Masonry itself he might say he had a great admiration for it, and thought a great deal more might be made of it as a grand scheme of benevolence; and not of that alone, but of honour, because he held that it was, and ought to be esteemed, a high honour to be a Freemason. After mentioning that he was in much better health this year than he had been last year, and more fit for duty, and hoping that in the future the brethren would give the P.G.L. all the support in their power and thereby strengthen their hands, the P.G.M. resumed his seat amid loud applause. In accordance with the intimation made by the chairman at the outset, a brother then received the F.C. degree at his hands; and at the close of the ceremony, the R.W.P.G.M. expressed himself as exceedingly pleased with the manner in which it had been worked by the R.W.M. The latter then proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the deputation for their kindness in waiting to see the lodge work; which having been given with a will, the deputation retired.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. ANDREW (No. 465).—The fortnightly meeting of this lodge was held on 15th ult.; Bro. David Reid, R.W.M., presiding. On this occasion the lodge was honoured by receiving the annual visit of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Glasgow, the deputation being headed by the P.G.M., Bro. Montgomery Neilson. After introduction in usual form, the Prov. G. Secretary (Bro. McTaggart) read the report of the deputation, which stated that the latter had examined the lodge books and found them, upon the whole, in satisfactory condition, and that the lodge was continuing to work in accordance with Grand Lodge of Scotland law. All the minutes they had read for reference with the roll book and the cash book they found to be strictly correct. The number of members the lodge had made during last working year was 62; there had been no applications made to the lodge for charity; and the amount of their contribution, through their initiatives, to the Prov. Grand Benevolent Fund, was £15 10s. Altogether, he thought the deputation might fairly congratulate Lodge St. Andrew on its working for the past year. Bro. Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of the Prov. Grand Benevolent Fund, then made a brief statement as to the condition of the latter. The salient points were that the income for the past year had been £215 12s. 11d.; that there had been 46 applicants for relief, among whom had been distributed £97 13s. 1d.; and that the capital of the fund at present was £570 2s. 11d. The Prov. Grand Master thereafter shortly addressed the brethren, remarking that he was very much satisfied with what he had seen. The Chairman (Bro. Reid), in reply, thanked the Prov. Grand Master for his presence at the head of the deputation; and Bros. Sinclair and Ritchie, P.G.A., having been affiliated members of Lodge St. Andrew by Bro. McTaggart, the deputation withdrew.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CLYDE (No. 408).—A special meeting of this lodge was held within the hall, at 170, Buchanan-street, on 15th ult. The R.W.M., Bro. William Harper, presided, by whom the lodge was opened, being immediately thereafter called to refreshment. There then sat down to supper about thirty brethren, the R.W.M. occupying the chair, supported on the right by Bros. Duncan Downie and Buchanan, both Past Masters of the lodge; while Bro. Black officiated as Croupier, supported right and left by Bros. McInnes, S.W., and Cunningham, R.W.M. 347. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured the chairman proposed the toast of the evening, which on this occasion was "Health and Prosperity to Bro. Duncan Brownie, P.M." In so doing, he presented him on behalf of the lodge, and in acknowledgment of their sense of his services, with a testimonial, consisting of a handsome gold watch and appendages. Bro. Downie having suitably replied, a few more toasts and songs followed, after which the brethren were recalled to labour and closed in due form.

THE ALEXANDRA PALACE.

The Lord Mayor, as it has been already announced, will attend in state with the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, to open the new Alexandra Palace this day (Saturday.) The civic procession will leave the Mansion House at half-past twelve, preceded by a body of mounted police, under Superintendent Manson, and escorted by the Light Cavalry Troop of the Hon. Artillery Company, under Captain Garrard. The police will keep the streets along the line of route, which will be by way of Moorgate-street, City-road, Liverpool-road, Holloway-road, Seven Sisters-road, Hornsey-road, Crouch-hill, and Park-road to the Muswell-hill gates. His lordship will be received at the western entrance of the palace by Sir Edward Lee, the chairman, and the directors of the company, and conducted to the concert-hall, the band of the Coldstream Guards heading the procession. The civic party, accompanied by the provincial mayors, will promenade portions of the building until close upon three o'clock, when they will take their seats upon a raised dais in front of the orchestra, where, at the request of the directors, the Lord Mayor will declare the Palace to be reopened. The concert, by members of Her Majesty's Opera Company, conducted by Sir Michael Costa, will then take place. This musical festival will be followed by a dejeuner, given by the directors to the civic party. The ceremonial arrangements have been organized by Sir E. Lee, the chairman of the company, and Mr. J. R. S. Vine, private secretary to the Lord Mayor. Nearly the whole of the Mayors of the United Kingdom have accepted invitations, and also a large number of the peers, and about half of the members of the House of Commons. Altogether, something like 15,000 to 20,000 complimentary invitations have been issued by the company, and out of that number but few have declined.

MASONIC CLUB.

It is with much pleasure we draw the attention of our readers to an advertisement in our columns, announcing the formation of a Masonic club in London. As the prospectus says, it is a want which has long been felt, and to country visitors will prove a great boon.

From our knowledge of the brethren concerned in the undertaking, we feel sure it cannot fail of success.

A country Mason comes up to town comparatively a stranger, and what could be more agreeable to him than to find a home; for such we consider a properly conducted club to be.

We give it our hearty good wishes, and if the brethren will only support it, as they should do (and we have no doubt they will) and thus prove themselves alive to their own interests. It is an excellent and necessary undertaking.

Obituary.

BRO. D. W. SAVAGE.

The funeral of the late Bro. D. W. Savage, of St. David's Lodge (No. 384), took place on Friday afternoon, the 23rd ult., at the Glanadda Cemetery, Bangor. The local lodges were well represented, amongst those present being Bros. J. Jones, W.M. 384; W. Robinson, I.P.M.; R. Owen, P.M.; J. Hughes, S.W.; W. Jarvis, J.D.; E. W. Thomas, P.M.; Org.; R. Roberts, P.M.; Wynn Williams, S.S.; Cameron, J.S.; Wm. Thomas, P.M.; M. Roberts, I.G., &c. The service was read by the Rev. D. Evans, senior vicar of Bangor. The great majority of the places of business in Bangor were closed during the afternoon, out of respect to the memory of an excellent brother.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. JOHN LAURIE.

On Thursday evening, 15th April, 1875, Bro. John Laurie, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and Past Master of Canongate and Leith Lodge of Freemasons, was entertained to a complimentary dinner in the Peacock Hotel, Newhaven, near Edinburgh. The occasion was also taken to present the honoured guest with a valuable token of the esteem of the members of the local lodge, as well as of other members of the Craft. The presentation which was very valuable, took the form of a handsome combined clock, barometer, &c., and a massive silver tea service for Mrs. Laurie. The former contained the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. John Laurie, along with a service of silver plate, by the office-bearers and brethren of Lodge Canongate and Leith, No. 5, in recognition of his valuable services and the able manner in which he discharged the duties of R. W. Master. Leith, 15th April 1875."

About fifty brethren sat down to dinner, including members of a number of sister lodges. Bro. W. presided, and Bro. E. Drummond, acted as Crouper. After dinner the chairman proposed "The Queen," "The Three Grand Masters," and "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces," with which was coupled the name of Sergeant Bryce.

The chairman then rose and asked the company to join him in drinking to The Health of their honoured and respected friend, Bro. Laurie. He had great pleasure in giving this toast from the chair, although he wished it had been filled by a better man, in order to have done it full justice, but if wanting in ability he excelled in a desire to pay honour to their guest. He had long and intimately known Bro. Laurie. He had seen him discharge many responsible duties in connection with their Craft—as assistant-secretary to the late Grand Secretary, as Grand Clerk, and now as occupying the responsible and laborious office of Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. Those who knew what the duties of that office were would understand somewhat the amount of labour, tact, and consideration required in their discharge. In Bro. Laurie he had found one of the most urbane, generous, and kind-hearted fellows he had ever met with. But further, he discharged his duties with a capability and with a vast knowledge of details—a knowledge probably not excelled by any living member of the Scottish Craft. Knowledge, they had been told long ago by that great philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, was power, and this was fully exemplified in the person of the Grand Secretary. Many people went about him, and many irksome questions were put to him, which their friend would often feel a difficulty in dealing with, but his ability overcame all. They in Leith had been more intimately connected with him of late in the discharge of the duties of Master of Lodge No. 5. During the period he held that office he had won their respect, and also the admiration of every one who had sat under his rule and who had the interest of Masonry at heart, and in particular the honour of that lodge. He was very much gratified they had met in such large numbers to mark the thorough respect and deep esteem they entertained for him, and more so as they were able to present to him a substantial mark of that respect and esteem. He had now to ask Bro. Laurie to accept of the testimonial as an indication of the high regard in which he was held by them, and of the deep gratitude which they all felt for the very efficient and admirable manner in which he had discharged the duties of Right Worshipful Master of Lodge No. 5, and in doing so he expressed a heartfelt wish that God would watch over him for good and all connected with him, and give him every abundantly grace and every blessing.

The toast was honoured enthusiastically, after which Bro. J. Laurie said he thought it was one of the most delightful features in connection with a meeting such as this that it made one feel perfectly at home. He was sure if there was anything calculated to give him confidence, placed in the trying circumstances in which he found himself that evening, it was the kind, genial faces which surrounded him. He earnestly wished he could rise to the level of the occasion, but he was sorry to say that while he did not wish to descend into anything like weakness, the rather enfeebled state of health in which he found himself exercised a depressive influence which took away all power of replying in adequate terms to the cordial toast as proposed by Bro. Officer, and so heartily and kindly responded to by them. In the very fact that they had selected Bro. Officer to preside over the meeting he recognised a kindness and consideration which he thoroughly appreciated. Bro. Officer was one of the oldest and best friends he had in connection with Freemasonry. He had given them some little account of his connection with the Grand Lodge, and had been kind enough to speak in eulogistic terms regarding him, but he assured them if he had had the happiness of gaining the approbation and earning the satisfaction of the brethren with whom he had come in contact, and in some measure discharging the duties that had fallen to his lot, it had been because such true-hearted Masons as the chairman had kindly lent him their encouragement, their countenance, and their support. And now what would he say in responding to their generous and hearty kindness, as manifested in the munificent present which they had been pleased to give as a testimonial of their regard? He felt that it was quite beyond his power to give expression to his feelings—indeed, words were too poor to say how deeply he thanked them. He thanked them not only for this expression of their esteem and respect, but for the kind expression of sympathy which had accompanied it. It was true that he had had some little experience in connection with their Craft. A good many years had passed away since he entered upon the duties in connection with their Order, and, as had been truly remarked by the chairman, he had necessarily gained a considerable knowledge of the details and matters affecting the interests of the Order, and no doubt, as he had very aptly put it, "knowledge was power," and had greatly assisted him in being able to discharge the duties of his office. Having undertaken that office, he had endeavoured as far as it lay in his power to discharge them so as to merit the satisfaction and approbation of his brethren. He had not altogether achieved what he had hoped, and what, if spared in the good providence of God, he might yet achieve, but he was glad that, so far as time had run, he had not to look back with anything like regret upon the exercise of his offices or the contact it had led him into with the brethren. It was his ambition to be associated with the progress of their Craft in this country. As regarded his relationship to Lodge No. 5, although it was a great many years since he first had the honour of being connected with the lodge, the time in which he had the more intimate relationship of holding office in it was comparatively short. They were good enough to ask him to occupy the chair of Lodge No. 5, and even in that there was an act of kindness. At the time that that request was preferred it became a matter almost of necessity that he should in the discharge of the other office he held have the chair or Installed Master's degree. That of course he had not attained previously, and when the request was made to occupy the chair of No. 5, he recognised in it a kindly desire on the part of his brethren in Leith to set the question at rest. During the time he had the honour and happiness of occupying the chair of No. 5 he had enjoyed a most delightful twelve months. He could truly say that from the first hour he had the pleasure of coming in contact with the members of No. 5, up to that moment, he had not had occasion to have a single jarring word, or a single unpleasant reminiscence to look back upon. Their meetings were thoroughly harmonious and pleasant; and although he came a comparative stranger among them, he received such hearty support, and at all times met with such consideration, that it was impossible that a more pleasant and profitable year could have been spent. He regretted that just at its close an unfortunate ailment had overtaken him, and since then it had almost been out of his power to be present at the meetings. He regretted that very much, as he had looked forward this year to being as frequently in his place as he had been in the past, and doing whatever little lay in his power to support the present R.W.M. in the discharge of the duties of his office. It had been a source of great satisfaction to know—for he had been carefully informed of the proceedings of the lodge—that its labours had been carried on with unabated zeal. For him to say that he thanked them most sincerely and from his heart was but simply to convey to them all that words could. He had felt touched with the very kind manner in which the presentation had been made, and so far as they had remembered one who was much dearer to him than himself—one who had been a sort of guiding star to him through life, with whom he had now been associated for the last twenty years—a true-hearted woman, and a devoted and loving wife. He scarcely knew how to thank them on her behalf. He knew she would feel deeply, and thoroughly appreciate the kindness they had been pleased to show her, for there was nothing that brought greater pleasure to her heart than to have evidence such as this, that her husband was respected. On her behalf he most sincerely thanked them. He had to beg that they would excuse his few rambling remarks, and on another occasion, perhaps, he would have the opportunity of saying more, and expressing to them more fully and more perfectly how deeply and how truly he felt and appreciated the generous kindness they had been pleased to show him.

Various other toasts were proposed during the evening, and the assemblage broke up at an early hour, highly gratified with the proceedings.

In our number of 24th October last we called attention to the valuable improvements in mineral oil lamps which Messrs. Dietz and Co., of Carter-lane, St. Paul's, E.C., had brought before the public, under the name of the Paragon Burner. A further application of these burners has recently been made, which is of special importance to the proprietors of shops, refreshment bars, &c. This new variety is called the Tube Lamp, and its particular excellence rests in the fact that it abrogates the use of breakable reservoirs, the burner being screwed direct into the tube, so that the support of the lamp is in reality the receptacle or container for the oil. As the exact hourly consumption of each burner has been ascertained, it follows that by simply regulating the cubical contents of the tube a lamp can be supplied which can be trimmed at distant intervals. This brings the convenience of mineral oil lamps up to a level with gas, whilst, as is well known, its illuminating properties, when consumed in the Paragon Burner, are of far greater intensity than coal gas, backed by considerable advantages on the score of economy, adaptability, and safety, with no deleterious influences upon health or household fittings and decorations. Mr. Latz, the managing partner of this eminent firm, has just patented an ingenious invention, which is likely to supersede other existing methods for suspending chandeliers, as it is more reliable than the old telescopic slide, or balancing weights, and entirely removes the well-known inconveniences attached thereto. It is equally applicable to chandeliers for oil or gas.

BRO. HARTY'S PICTURE.

Bro. Harty is preparing a picture of the Installation and would be glad if brethren would send their cartes de visite to Bro. Kenning's, 123, Little Britain, for him. Bro. Harty's portrait of the Prince of Wales is much admired.

We shall publish an account of the new Grand Officer's in our next.

Bro. J. Unite of Edgware Road supplied the scarlet and white bunting, &c., used in the corridors and entrance at the Albert Hall, on the occasion of the Installation.

The Illustrated London News contains this day (May 1st) two very interesting page illustrations of the Prince of Wales attired as Grand Master, and His Royal Highness's Installation.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Strickland Muggerridge, son of Bro. Henry Muggerridge, the well known and highly respected Masonic Preceptor.

THE MASONIC CARPET.

The Masonic carpet, laid down at the installation, was manufactured and designed at Halifax expressly by Bro. John Lewis (Westminster and Keystone No. 10) of Halifax and London, and approved by the committee under the presidency of Bro. Sir Albert Woods, G.D.C. The carpet, which has been presented by Bro. John Lewis, is of superior velvet pile, and runs the whole length from the Royal Entrance to the throne or dais. It is seven feet six inches in width, and 165 feet in length, having a border to suit. The ground is of rich Saxony blue, with the arms of the Grand Lodge of England, and in compliment to the Royal Grand Master the Prince of Wales. Feathers issuing from a crown, studded of jewellery, is also introduced alternately with the Coat of Arms. The border is composed of Grand Lodge emblems, viz.: ribbon with the wheat ear, vine and laurel inlaid in same.

The Albert Hall was visited by His Royal Highness the Grand Master, when Bro. Lewis personally received, from His Royal Highness, the very highest compliment, by expressing the great satisfaction that it gave him. Bro. Lewis had the furnishing of the Prince's Pavilion, at the Vienna Exhibition, and on that occasion the paintings even sent expressly from Savile Hall for that purpose, and Bro. Lewis received, from the Emperor of Austria, the decorations of Knight of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour.

It is the intention to remove this carpet to the Freemasons' Hall for the Grand Lodge Room.

The dais or throne was also covered by Bro. John Lewis with crimson cloth, on which was placed a magnificent mosque oriental carpet, fully one century old, which for beauty and softness of design can only be compared to a Raphaelite painting, and to complete the arrangements a sumptuous Indian rug of pure silk of beautiful design in Porcelain and gold, was placed at the foot of the chair on which rug the Royal Grand Master stood to be installed.

It may be remarked that it is only a few days since the design was approved of the Masonic carpet by the committee, and that the whole has been manufactured within a few days, thus shewing the rapidity of machinery and appliances of the present day.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S LODGE (No. 159.)

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught received his 3^d in this lodge on Tuesday evening, when the ceremony was most impressively performed by Bro. Robert Grey, Deputy Master of the lodge, the Prince of Wales being Master. The Duke of Connaught expressed himself in the highest terms of admiration of the way in which the ceremony was gone through, and afterwards remained to see the ceremony of initiation. Bro. Grey it will be seen from another portion of our impression of to-day, was on Wednesday appointed to Grand Office.

JOINT BANQUET OF THE LION AND LAMB AND THE WILLIAM PRESTON LODGES.

In commemoration of the grand event of Wednesday, the Lion and Lamb Lodge (192), and the William Preston Lodge (766) gave a joint banquet in the evening, at the Cannon Street Hotel, to which 121 brethren sat down. Among those present we noticed the following: Of those whose who belonged to the Lion and Lamb there were—Bro. G. Newman, W.M.; Bro. Conyew, S.W.; Bro. Arkell, J.W.; and Bros. Kenning, King, Roberts, Marsh, and Abbott, P.M.'s: while of those belonging to the William Preston Lodge, were Bro. Braun, W.M.; Bro. Pringle, S.W.; Bro. Newton, J.W.; and Bros. Abbott, J.W.; Wm. Worrell, G. J. Klein, W. J. Miller, and B. Abbott, P.M.'s. There were of course a large number of visitors, among whom were the Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Warwick, and some eight brethren from the Shakespeare Lodge, Warwick, besides whom there were Bro. J. M. Klenck, P.M., 1339; and Bro. Moore, 534; Bro. Yaxley, 463; Bro. Gray, 22; Bro. Jones, 1520; Bro. Woods, 87; Bro. C. Marsh, 460, and many others.

The chairman of the evening was Bro. Newman, the W.M. of the Lion and Lamb, that being the elder of the two lodges, but the toasts were so arranged that delivery of the various toasts was equitably divided between them.

The health of the Queen and the Craft was proposed by W.M. Bro. Newman, of the Lion and Lamb, after which "God Save the Queen" was sung, to the accompaniment of Bro. W. Wain, Grand Organist, on the pianoforte.

Brother Newman—The next toast that I have to propose is, I confess it, one that I feel thoroughly incompetent to do justice to; and I sincerely wish that it had been placed in the hands of my brother Braun (the W.M. of the William Preston) instead of mine. For it is the toast of the evening, "The health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the M.W.G.M. of England." I can only say that the sight I have seen to-day, in company with many more here present—I wish I could say with all of them—was such as neither they or I can ever forget to the longest day we live. Whatever of grandeur or imposing ceremony there may be in other degrees in Freemasonry, the event of to-day marks a grand epoch in Craft Masonry. If you had seen the Prince go through the ceremonies, and had heard his speech afterwards, you could not fail to have been deeply impressed. The Prince said that he looked upon Freemasonry as being the very essence of loyalty and charity, and that he meant to stand to the Craft as far as his manifold engagements would permit, so as not to dim the lustre shed upon it by those of his family who had occupied the Chair before him. What has taken place to-day has added an immense importance to Freemasonry. Accounts of what has taken place to-day will go (are most likely going now) to every quarter of the known world, and hereafter this day will be remembered as the brightest that has occurred in the annals of Masonry. Brethren, I give you the health of the Most Illustrious Grand Master, the Prince of Wales.

The health of the Pro-Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale; and the rest of the Grand Officers, was proposed by the W.M. of the William Preston Lodge, and was drunk with enthusiasm.

Bro. Worrall (P.M. of the Preston Lodge) rose and said—The toast that has been entrusted to me is the health of the W.M. of the Lion and Lamb Lodge. Loyalty and charity were the watchwords of the order, and the unanimity that existed between these two lodges was evidence of the loyalty and good feeling with which each of these lodges regard the other. Those who have been present at the Albert Hall to-day, have witnessed a ceremony such as the youngest among us cannot expect to witness again. As a Past Master of the Lion and Lamb, and William Preston Lodges, I am sure, I may say that no two Lodges ever worked together more harmoniously and more energetically to carry out truly Masonic objects; and I am sure that you must all be struck with the hearty good fellowship that has always existed between them. I feel too, that our visitors this evening, especially those from the province, will carry away with them very pleasing recollections of the joint banquet of the Lion and Lamb, and William Preston Lodges. The toast of health of the W.M. of the Lion and Lamb has been accorded to me as P.M. of the William Preston, but I claim it as a greater privilege to propose his health, because I feel that to him I owe my introduction to Freemasonry. I give you the health of the W.M. of the Lion and Lamb Lodge.

Bro. Newman (W.M. Lion and Lamb), in returning thanks, said that it was difficult for him to respond to the toast. He was very pleased to have this assurance that he was appreciated in the William Preston Lodge. In this, his mother lodge, he felt that he was also appreciated, for he bore upon his breast the evidence of the fact in the rosette appertaining to the stewardship of the lodge that day with which he had been intrusted. It had always been his ambition to fulfil his duties in both lodges, and if he had fallen short in anything that he had done it must be imputed to his inability, and not to his intention. He felt that they had done him a very, very great turn in sending him up as a steward on this great and grand festival to-day. He should always do what he considered his duty to both lodges.

Bro. C. Hosgood, P.M., said that if their W.M. was under a difficulty, he (Brother Hosgood) laboured under a greater. The health that they had just responded to was proposed by the immediate P.M., while his difficulty was that he was not a member of the William Preston Lodge. None the less heartily, however, did he ask them to drink this toast (if possible, in a bumper)—the W.M. of the William Preston Lodge.

Bro. Braun having returned thanks, the Chairman, Bro. Newman rose and said that the toast he had to propose was one that was always received in the Lion and Lamb Lodge, and also in the Preston Lodge. It was the health of the visitors. It was always a gratification to have visitors. The two lodges were specially fortunate to-night—(here the Secretary read a list of the visitors to both lodges). Brethren I am sure that list is a very pleasing one, and I may remind you that it contains the name of one (Captain Lathbury) who is secretary to a new Masonic Club Company now in course of formation. Visitors from the country will be able to realize the boon that such a club in London would be, as they would always feel when visiting the metropolis that they had a home to which they could go. Among so many visitors he did not feel himself justified in singling any one specially to respond to this toast, and he should therefore leave them to follow their inclinations in the matter of replying to the toast.

The Provincial Grand S.W. for Warwick, having responded, as also Captain Lathbury and most of the other visitors, the health of the Stewards who had served for their respective lodges at the installation of the Grand Master to-day was proposed and duly honoured and responded to, after which the health of the Past Masters of both lodges was given from the chair, and called forth replies from several of those present. Our space however, will not admit of giving these speeches in detail; and as they more or less turned on the great event of the day, but did not educe any additional point of interest, we must content ourselves with observing that the whole arrangements at this banquet were extremely good, and that the evening's enjoyment was a very worthy conclusion to the labours of the day.

In our report of the installation meeting of the Lewises' Lodge, Ramsgate, in last week's issue, the following was omitted:—"After the ceremony of installation, a very gratifying appreciation of the brethren was shown to Bro. W. Call, P.M. 1209, P.G.S., by presenting him with a handsome jewel. This pleasing duty was performed in very feeling terms by Bro. L. Finch, P.M. 429 and 1209, P.P.G.D.C., and suitably acknowledged by Bro. W. Call.

Mulum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

COMENIUS AND FREEMASONRY.

Having originally called Bro. J. Findel's attention to his remarkable statement about Comenius, I confess that I thought, with all deference to him, that his reply to Bro. Hughan, reprinted in the "Voice of Masonry" was but little satisfactory. Bro. Findel had originally stated, in page 281 of his "Geist und Form," &c. in a footnote (2nd edition) that Anderson had transferred "fast wörtlich in das Constitution's Buch," almost word for word into the Book of Constitutions, "many passages" out of the "Opera Didactica" of John Amos Comenius, who came to England in 1648. This struck me, as it did Bro. Hughan, as a most important fact, if correct, and so I called attention to it in "Notes and Queries." Bro. Findel's reply is not, however, satisfactory, from its vagueness. The "many places," "almost word for word," dwindled down to a certain "ähnlichkeit," to use a German word or figure of speech. I have not seen the "Opera Didactica" or the "Panegesia" to which Bro. Findel alludes, but I have lately perused and still have the "Via Lucis," dedicated to the members of the Royal Society in London, and published at Amsterdam, 1668. In this work he has the words "Collegium" and "Ars Architectonica," undoubtedly, and "frater," but in no passage that I have found does he give any one a fair right to say that he knows anything of the Guild or body of Freemasons. His work no doubt, has a mystical meaning under its turgid expressions, and it may well be that he was a Freemason, and probably a Rosicrucian, and his language greatly resembles some of their mystical jargon. "Via Lucis" is addressed, apparently, to the "philosophers" of his own epoch, though as, when he has the opportunity, he does not allude to the Freemasons, I do not think any one can fairly strain his words, and declare that they are Masonic. Bro. Findel is quite aware how essential verification and absolute correctness of all such statements are, and so far I feel bound to say he has not made good his original statement about Anderson and Comenius.

THE MASONS' COMPANY.

Subsequent researches through the kind aid of Mr. H. H. Burnell, to whom I tender my best thanks, have led to the following results:—

1. Ashmole is correct in saying, that Mr. Wise was Master of the Mason's Company in that year, 1861.
2. All the names he mentions are traceable in the minutes of the Mason's Company except Sir William. Sir William was admitted a member of the Mason's Company in January, 1678. Mr. Thomas Shorthose's name appears frequently in the minutes, as being Warden, and also on the Court; he was Warden in 1677.
3. There is no record of the meeting of the Company on March 10th, 1682, at least, "there is no minute to that effect."
4. Neither is there any record of the dinner at the Half-Moon, Cheapside, on that day, as stated by Ashmole.
5. There is no minute that the hall in Basinghall-street was lent to the Freemasons.
6. Ashmole was not a member of the Masons' Company.
7. Sir Christopher Wren was not a member of the Masons' Company.
8. Robert Padgett was not clerk to the Masons' Company in 1686; his name, after a careful examination, is not to be found in the minutes of the Masons' Company. Such is the result of a very careful search made kindly for me by the authorities of the Masons' Company. The case, then, assumes this striking aspect. In my opinion, the meeting Ashmole alludes to was purely a speculative Freemasons' meeting, at which the Master of the Masons' Company was present. Sir F. Palgrave seems to state, that there were two companies or brotherhoods, but that the Freemasons were not incorporated. This is confirmed to some extent, by Robert Padgett's statement on the Antiquity MS., that he was "clerke to the Worshipful Society of the Freemasons of the City of London," &c. The point to which we now, I think, must look, must be the fabric roll of St. Paul's, in order to see if any light can be thrown therefrom on the old City lodges.

THE MORIA APRON.

If your correspondent Bro. Rev. H. J. Hatch, Chaplain and J.W. 160, will refer to "The Freemason's Magazine" volume I. for 1859, at page 386; he will find a full description of the Moria Apron. They were printed on either as well as paper, and were sold at five shillings each.

The reference is not quite correct. It is Vol. II, 1859, page 386. We will give next week a copy of the description. [Ed.]

ASHMOLE.

Can any brother give me a clue to the whereabouts of Ashmole's MSS.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Bad legs, wounds, and all descriptions of sores are immediately cured by the power and diligent use of these inestimable preparations. To attempt to cure bad legs by slathering the edges of the wound together is a folly; for, should he skin unite, a baggy, diseased condition remains underneath, o break out with tentoid fury in a few days. The only rational and perfect treatment is to reduce the inflammation in and about the wound, to soothe the neighbouring nerves, to cool the heated blood as it courses along its vessels, and to render the skin, watery, ichorous discharge consistent and healthy. Happily for suffering humanity, Holloway's Ointment, assisted by judicious doses of his Pills, accomplishes these ends with unfailing certainty.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1875.

OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

The installation of the Prince of Wales as Royal Grand Master of English Freemasonry is an event in our Masonic history, the importance of which should not be undervalued or overlooked. In the first place, it is an answer clear and convincing to contumacious calumnies and illogical adversaries, in that the Heir to the English Throne, following the example of his great ancestors, at a time of much opprobrium and no little excitement, throws in his lot with us disloyal and disreputable Freemasons, takes our name, and places himself at our head! Surely, with such an answer to the invectives of the Ultramontane Press we may well be content, and leaving calumny and calumniators, anathema and anathematizer tranquilly behind us, we can go on our way rejoicing, "spe surgentis Iuli," and leaving the vindication of our good fame, our loyal character, and our benevolent efforts, to the honest and just of our fellow-countrymen. One of the popular axioms in use just now is, "Throw a sufficient quantity of dirt, and some of it must stick!" Yet, strange to say, this is not a "sequitur"; on the contrary, falsehood is always punished by itself, and sooner or later the "nec conscire sibi nullâ pallescere culpâ" carries straightforwardness and sincerity through the aspersions of the malevolent and the vituperations of the unjust. In the Installation of our Royal Grand Master we have the one good and sufficient reply to the allocation of Pio Nino, the excommunication of Cardinal Deschamps, the animadversions of Cardinal Manning, the disapproval of worthy but mistaken Monsigneur Dupanloup, and above all, to the childish bombast of the Church Herald, or the rowdy vulgarity of the Westminster Gazette. And in the next place, the Prince of Wales, in following the example of his Royal ancestors, and thus publicly patronizing and identifying himself with Freemasonry, is, in our opinion, not only "wise in his generation," but is pursuing a course alike honourable to himself and beneficial to society. The Masonic body, despite every allowance for mortal weakness and imperfection, is a brotherhood of very worthy men and very loyal subjects. In the darkest hours it has never failed in its rightful allegiance to the Sovereign of its native land, and the language in which the Grand Lodge of England once addressed King George the Third through its Grand Master, the then Prince of Wales, is the same "tolidem verbis" in which it would address its gracious Queen Victoria, through its Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, to-day. "We are the free citizens, your Majesty, of a free State, and number many thousands in our body. The Heir Apparent of the Empire is our chief. We fraternize for the purpose of social intercourse, of mutual assistance, of charity to the distressed, and goodwill to all. Fidelity to a trust, reverence to the magistrate, and obedience to the laws, are sculptured in capitals upon the pediment of our Institution." We think then that on this auspicious occasion it may be well to remind ourselves of that intimate connexion especially of the "House of Brunswick" with our Order, which has been so worthy of its exalted members, and so pleasurable and honourable to us. It has been said by some writers that King James I., King Charles I., King Charles II., and King William III. were all Freemasons, but, so far, no actual evidence has been forthcoming of the statement; and, leaving these good old legends to prehistoric times, let go on to see what is undoubtedly true and provable of after epochs and later generations. In Lord Darnley's Grand Mastership, from 1737 to 1738, Frederick, Prince of Wales, was, as far as we know, the first member of our Royal Family who saw the light of Freemasonry. He was admitted in 1737, at the Royal Palace of Kew, a special lodge, over which presided the well known Dr. Desaguliers. The author of "Multa Paucis" mentions Nov. 5th as the actual date, and adds, that his brother, the Duke of Cumberland, who commanded the English army at Fontenoy and Culloden, was also admitted shortly after, namely in 1743, though we believe he is the only writer who mentions this fact. Frederick, Prince of Wales, never seems to have gone beyond the degree of Master Mason. Anderson, however, dedicated to him the Constitutions of 1738. He died in 1751, and his son, George, III. not a Freemason. During the Grand Mastership of Lord Blayney, which lasted from 1764 to 1766, their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Cumberland and Gloucester became Freemasons. The Duke of York, the King's brother, was also initiated abroad, and in 1776 they were all proclaimed Past Grand Masters by our Grand Lodge. In 1782 the Duke of Cumberland became Grand Master, and presided over the Craft most admirably for many years. During his happy administration the Girls' School was founded, mainly by the benevolent initiative of the Chevalier Ruspini and others. In 1786 the Duke of Clarence was received into Freemasonry at Plymouth, and on Thursday, February 6th, 1787, His Royal Highness George, Prince of Wales, was received into the Order, the Duke of Cumberland the Grand Master, presiding in person. On Friday, 21st November following, the Duke of York was also received by the Grand Master at a special lodge, being introduced by his brother, the Prince of Wales. In subsequent years the Duke of Kent, the grandfather of our Grand Master, was initiated at Geneva, the Duke of Sussex at Berlin, and the Dukes of Cumberland and Gloucester, were likewise admitted into our fraternity in England. We believe that the Duke of Cambridge was not a Freemason, though we are not quite certain on the subject, but if so, all the sons of good King George III. became Freemasons, with this single exception. In 1790 our excellent and zealous Grand Master the Duke of Cumberland died, and was succeeded on the Masonic throne by George, Prince of Wales. He appointed the well-known Lord Moira, afterwards Marquis of Hastings, his Pro Grand Master, and presided over the Craft until his accession to the Regency in 1813. Before he resigned the Grand Mastership one of the most remarkable Masonic banquets that ever was witnessed took place in honour of Lord Moira's appointment to the Governor-Generalship of India. Six Royal Dukes were present at the festival, and the Prince of Wales sent his "heartiest good wishes." On December 1st, 1813, H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex was installed Grand Master of our Order, and remained so, a most devoted Freemason, until his death in 1843, when he was succeeded by our good old and lamented chief, Lord Zetland. The Prince of Wales, in 1813, became Patron of our Order, and remained so until his death. In 1813, the Duke of Kent was also elected Grand Master of the Athol Masons, for the purpose of promoting the union of the two divergent bodies, and healing a miserable and mournful schism. On St. John's Day, December 27th, 1813, the great Act of Union was consummated, which has tended so greatly to the progress and welfare of Freemasonry, under the auspices of the two Grand Masters, the Duke of Sussex and the Duke of Kent, the former remaining Grand Master of the now united organization, the latter becoming a Past Grand Master. We have then, surely, much cause, from this brief recapitulation of our past annals, to feel thankful to that Royal Family, whose presence has been so welcome, and whose countenance has been so beneficial, to our great brotherhood. At this moment, at a period of much anxiety, when we had lost a most effective and popular Grand Master, whose worth we all acknowledge though we deplore his proceedings, we have been cheered and strengthened by the fraternal readiness with which the Prince of Wales of to-day acknowledges our brotherhood, and assumes its headship. His two brothers, the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, are also members of our Order, and we, as English Freemasons, are, and may be, justly proud of the fact that our Princes have chivalrously come forward to testify to our loyal character, and to uphold our good fame before men. Under such a chief and with such rulers, and supported by some of the noblest of the land, we shall fear no enemy and be appalled by no excommunication. In 1875, the days of "Bulls" and "Interdicts" and "Anathemas," are surely over; we need no longer dread the outbreaks of unbridled fanaticism, nor the foolish idiosyncrasies of ill-regulated pseudo-religious faith. We shall march on our way a great and a loyal host, the Royal Standard and the Union Jack and the Masonic Banner over our heads, and ours will be the exulting shout of Englishmen and Freemasons. We fear no assailants, and we mean, God helping us, to advance under our gallant commander, our parole Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth, our countersign, "Dieu et mon Droit."

OUR DISAPPOINTED BRETHREN.

That many of our good brethren will have been sorely disappointed at not being able to find a place at the Installation of our Royal Grand Master is, we think, certain to be the case. Independently of the fact that English Freemasons have always constituted a loyal body, "pure et simple," there is a widespread feeling of personal appreciation of the truly fraternal manner in which our exalted brother has taken upon himself the responsibilities of the Grand Master's office. Hence there has been an universal desire to be present on so glad an occasion to the Craft, and to testify to those unanimous and deeply-seated feelings of fraternal attachment and loyal regard by which all English Freemasons are animated, in respect of the Heir to the Throne. No such large gathering has taken place in English Freemasonry before, and few so numerous attended are likely to occur again. It is quite clear now, that had even a much larger locale been selected it would have been filled, but, with one or two exceptions, London does not possess a place of assembly which would have been equal to the emergency. And other matters, as our good brethren know, have had to be taken into consideration by the authorities. The meeting is a meeting of Grand Lodge, and the greatest care has had to be taken in order to secure the needful condition of a Masonic meeting—due provision for the members, and a perfectly tyled lodge room. It is, we believe, very doubtful whether any other site could have been found so suitable in both these respects, and so easily adapted to the proceedings of Grand Lodge. We might probably have obtained a larger area, or we might, we do not dispute, have secured greater accommodation for the brethren, but, in our opinion, all this would have been accompanied by a very serious drawback, the impossibility of properly tying the Grand Lodge. We therefore think it well to remind our many readers to-day, some perhaps among the disappointed ones, that while the numbers seeking to be admitted is utterly without precedent, so those who have received tickets are beyond any previous calculation. Our Installation is the largest Masonic meeting ever held in England, and large as it is, it might no doubt have yet been tripled in numerical strength. Let those, then, who feel a natural disappointment consider carefully these simple facts, and they will be at once consoled by the remembrance and the knowledge that it is much more than doubtful if any other building could have been found, or safely made use of, at any rate, for the annual and festival Grand Assembly of English Craftsmen. We know with what unceasing zeal and devotion, and daily labour and anxiety, those to whom our Royal Grand Master has confided the arrangements for the Installation have striven to give effect to our august Brother's wishes, and to afford satisfaction to the Order. After the day's proceedings are over, after the installation of our Grand Master is, most happily for Freemasonry and our English fraternity, and we may add, for our universal brotherhood, a "fait accompli," we feel strongly that the best thanks of our brotherhood are due to Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, Bro. Fenn, Bro. Monckton, and our excellent Grand Secretary, for their long and sedulous endeavours to render the Installation a complete success. Their duties have been most responsible, and they have performed them in a most impartial spirit, and with true Masonic zeal, for the convenience of all, and for the honour of English Freemasonry.

OUR COUNTRY COUSINS AND THE LITTLE VILLAGE.

This week will witness an unwonted influx of our good brethren from the Provinces into the great Metropolis. It is just possible that among the many excellent and worthy W.M.'s. and P.M.'s, and members of our Order, whom the Installation has called out from their district habitations, some may never actually have been in London before, and, therefore, it is that, in the purest spirit of philanthropy and the truest sentiments of brotherhood we deem it well to offer them a few friendly words of sympathy and counsel. Many will come prepared to "do" the "little village," and some of more tender natures than others will have brought their wives or sisters with them. Among the great mass of comers Bros. "Brown, Jones, and Robinson" will be conspicuous, who have left their home and their "belongings" for a little "outing," and mean to have a "lark," as was once the word, though we believe the more fashionable expression just now is a "spree." They are at last in London, often heard of, never seen, by many before, and where, to say the truth, they feel, as they say themselves, like "fish out of water." They find that London is a somewhat difficult place to amuse themselves in properly, unless they seek to do so on a fixed plan. Having surmounted the difficulties of a room—curious that such a difficulty should be experienced in London—and having settled where to dine and what to have for dinner, most important duties and considerations, they mostly take a stroll and look about them. Oh! fortunate nimium if some specious bird of prey does not scent you from afar, and pounce upon you in your open and enquiring and believing mood! Lucky will it be for you if some interesting stranger does not accost you with a tale of monetary splendour, and entice you, all unwary, and confiding, and sympathetic, into the attractive restaurant or the exhilarating bar. There he will forthwith proceed to appeal to your warm heart, or your full pockets. Some wonderful tale of a large legacy just left him by a deceased and amiable first cousin, some shewing of money against money, the convenient stakeholder, and the affable referee, will all follow in due course, until early or late, hazy or clear, the "yokel" finds himself in Scotland Yard, where kindly men listen intently to his tale of depression and misery; and where he finds, much to his astonishment, that the fortunate legatee is an old familiar friend of Inspector Shore, and, in that meritorious officer's emphatic words, "one of the most dangerous parties out." Now, we do not say that such will be the fate of any of our esteemed brethren—we hope not; but London is full of dangers, and if you escape one you often fall into another, "Incidis in Scyllam cupiens evitare Charybdin." We might go through other forms of temptation and peril to the impulsive and the excitable, but we forbear. We would only caution all our readers against the interesting widows of sea captains on a long sea voyage, against seedy strangers who take a sudden interest in you, against "touts" of any description, against foreign "patriots," and soi-disant Barons. To all such may our good provincial brethren give a wide berth! We trust, indeed, to hear that of the goodly host of Freemasons whom the Installation of our Royal Grand Master has brought to London all have carefully evaded the prevailing drawbacks and difficulties of centralized civilization, and have found profitable amusement and pleasant memories to carry back home. Our brethren come from east and west, and north and south, and far away in quiet vale or in pleasant village, or in teeming town, are those who are fondly awaiting their return to their household gods, and to whom their journey to the great metropolis is actually an event in their lives. May all our brethren have a peaceful sojourn in town, and a prosperous journey home. London, however, affords many striking amusements to the rational and active. Woolwich will delight the volunteer and patriot Masons, while the Tower will supply food for wondrous legends and dreadful tales. There are the exhibitions of English and foreign artists, all redolent with intellectual improvement, with the cultivation of artistic taste, and which cannot be too highly commended. There is the National Gallery and the Portrait Gallery, both worthy of a great people. There are the Houses of Parliament, and Westminster Abbey, and St. Paul's, all deeply interesting to the thoughtful and studious Mason. The Parks should not be forgotten, which are, as Mr. Disraeli has so well said, such a charm to London and Londoners. And if our brethren are musical they can have Mme. Titiens or Mme. Patti; if they are humorous, they can drop in at the Haymarket, or Adelphi, or Strand. They can see "Hamlet" at the Lyceum, or they can patronize the little Prince of Wales's Theatre, or they can, if Italian scholars, pay their respects to the great actor, Signor Salvini, and look on the "sorrows of the Moor." Then having witnessed the Installation, having cheered their Grand Master, with many cheers and "one cheer more," feeling proud of their good old Order, and having enjoyed their stay in the "little village," they can go home, and delight those who have felt somewhat lonely without them, with a narrative of what they did and saw at the Great Installation Festival of the year of grace, 1875.

BRO. C. VON. GAGERN.

Our brother is very combative. Even before he receives an answer to a very childish, not to say unmasonic, attack on the Freemason, with more zeal than discretion, he repeats his incrimination under the pretence of commending Bro. Bergmann's letter. We find no fault with Bro. Bergmann's letter; "au contraire," we think it does him all credit. All Bro. Bergmann sought, in good taste and true Masonic feeling, to establish was, which he was quite justified in doing, that the situation of German Freemasonry was one of some duration, and that all things, as we ourselves had observed, tended to rightful amelioration and careful reforms. But Bro. Bergmann nowhere attacked either our "bona fides" or our Masonic sympathies. Our remarks, which have so angered Bro. C. Von Gagern, and to some extent, apparently, even our worthy Bro. J. G. Findel, were made in all honest intent, as a Masonic writer seeking to uphold, to improve, and to elevate the brotherhood. We are very sorry if in so doing we have trodden on any brother's tender foot, or upset his favourite theories. Our remarks did not, as Bro. Bergmann saw, apply to the German Freemasons, who do not, as a body, whatever an insignificant individual now and then may do, import political discussions into their Masonic assemblies. We regret to add that the tone and temper of Bro. C. Von Gagern is, in our opinion, so thoroughly unmasonic and partizan that we do not suppose that anything we can say, could tend in any way even to a reasonable discussion of "moot" points. If Bro. C. Von Gagern represents the opinion of any considerable number of Austrian Freemasons, either Masonically or theologically, we fear the "look out" for Freemasonry in Austria must be very bad indeed. The amusing fact of the whole is, that here we are old greyheaded Freemasons, who, for six "lustra" and more, have been working actively in Freemasonry, and we forsooth, are to be set right at once by a clearly but partially instructed Mason, who has a good deal to learn before he can profess to be the mouthpiece of others, much less to teach others. We have for many years advocated the universality of Freemasonry, we uphold it still, but we equally maintain and ever shall maintain the religious character of our Order, and the happy fact that the Holy Bible is found always open in every English Masonic lodge. If that is a fault, we plead guilty to it at once. If for that we are called "retrograde," "old fashioned," "bigoted" and "effete," we consider the epithets to be compliments, as we know that we are in full accord with the vast majority of our English brethren, and that we best express the unfaltering and goodly teaching of English Freemasonry.

THE INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Those of us who witnessed the sight of the Installation of our Royal Grand Master at the Albert Hall, on Wednesday, will not, probably, ever see such a sight again, at any rate in Freemasonry. We that are old and grey, and getting a little footsore in the race, may congratulate ourselves that we have been permitted to witness so grand an assembly of our brother Freemasons. For it was a noble gathering, and the sight of that goodly hall, with the dense rows of our beaming brethren, was one which must ever leave a deep impression on all who were privileged to take part in the Installation. Our Grand Master seemed himself to be quite struck with the sight of these assembled thousands of loyal Craftsmen, and the cheers which greeted him from his entrance to his departure seemed to overcome him almost at times, and were indeed worthy of English Freemasons. The proceedings went off without a hitch, and the arrangements were most satisfactory, reflecting the deepest credit on those able brethren to whom the Grand Master had confided the orderings of the day's important proceedings. We understand that all the details for the reception of the brethren were worked out most minutely and perfectly, and that though one or two cases may have occurred in which individual hardship may have been felt, everything was conducted on purely Masonic principles, and the greatest goodwill and forbearance were manifested by all alike. We do not think that, considering the arrangements related to the admission of many thousands of our brethren, any could possibly be more clear, more comprehensive, or more thoroughly business-like. As we said before, the coup d'œil on entering was very striking, the rows of blue collars, which appeared interminable, the serried ranks upon ranks of the brethren, ranging tier upon tier, all with a perfect view of the proceedings, convinced us how admirably and scientifically constructed the Albert Hall is. It is, in fact, a Roman amphitheatre, applied to modern uses. Its acoustic properties are also of a most satisfactory character, and, we think, prove that the Hall is a great success. It would be impossible to describe the hearty enthusiasm with which the Grand Master was greeted. Cheer followed upon cheer, and plaudits followed upon plaudits, until the great Hall fairly rang again, and His Royal Highness evidently felt deeply the warmth and loyalty of his brother Masons. The Masonic honours were given as we have never seen or heard them given before, and we never shall see or hear them given again. The speech of our Grand Master was modest, manly, and most Masonic, and appealed to the hearts and feelings of all who heard him; and when he told that vast but listening audience he should "never forget that day," those who heard the outbursts of Masonic cheering will ever retain a vivid remembrance of the scene, and the jubilant echoes, to the end of their Masonic career. Lord Carnarvon's speech was most admirable in tone, in verbiage, and in effect. His tribute to the ever loyal character of the Craft was greeted with enthusiasm; and whatever they may say or do in foreign countries, we in England as Freemasons never do and never will forget that as an Order two of its highest and most sacred duties are loyalty and affection to the Throne. Lord Skelmersdale's appointment as Deputy Grand Master was hailed with acclamations, and with some good Lancashire cheering; while the Lord Mayor of London, as Junior Grand Warden, received a perfect ovation. His elevation to Grand Office was evidently most popular, and in our humble opinion is as well conceived and deserved as it is popular. The Marquis of Hamilton, Senior Grand Warden, and the other new Grand Officers, were all well received, while the recognition of the services of Bro. Sir Michael Costa, of Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, of Bro. Thomas Fenn, were most heartily applauded. Our good brother, the Grand Secretary, received the unanimous plaudits of Grand Lodge, while the noble organ was most effectively played, amid much applause, we are told, by Bro. Willing. We cannot conclude without calling attention to the carpet, which, presented by Bro. John Lewis, of Halifax, and a member of the Westminster and Keystone Lodge, attracted the ardent admiration of all. It is a masterpiece of artistic skill, and reflects the highest credit on Bro. Lewis's Masonic zeal and on our English workmen. And so the great Installation of 1875 passed over. None of us, humanly speaking, are likely to behold such another gathering of the Craft, and we sincerely trust that, as our Royal Brother so well said, this auspicious day may be an omen of much happiness, prosperity, and peaceful progress to our Order. We pray that our august head may long remain in chief rule over us, and that our grand old Craft may evidence more and more before all men its ever exalted principles of loyalty and toleration, of charity and brotherly love.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The installation of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of English Freemasons, which has been looked forward to with so much eagerness by the whole Craft, was performed on Wednesday last, at the Royal Albert Hall. The event must ever be marked as the most noteworthy that has taken place in Freemasonry. Nothing in the whole annals of the Order, certainly nothing within the memory of living Masons, will bear comparison with the gorgeousness or the magnitude of the scene that presented itself; and we doubt whether any Freemason, in the wildest dreams of his imagination was prepared for what was witnessed on that occasion. From an early hour in the morning great activity was perceptible about the Albert Hall, and it was not to Masons alone that this was confined. The outer world took great interest also in the event, and assembled in great numbers to watch the arrival and departure of the brethren. But it was more especially the departure which drew great crowds together, for when the ceremony was over, and the brethren departed, the scene was much like that which was daily witnessed at the same spot just upon 24 years ago, when the Great Exhibition was held opposite the present Albert Hall, and on the site of the Albert Memorial. Thousands of people were massed together, and hundreds of vehicles were moving about.

The stewards, numbering several hundreds, arrived at eleven o'clock, but Sir Albert Woods, Mr. Fenn, Mr. Monckton, and Mr. Long, the committee for carrying out the arrangements, were there very much earlier, some as soon as six o'clock. The workmen in the building were banished from the scene at ten o'clock, and the edifice was left in sole possession of Freemasons. The stewards received the final instructions on their arrival, and their places were pointed out to them. Punctually at one the doors were opened to the brethren generally, and the arrangements were so complete that, with all the necessary precautions taken against the admission of the uninitiated, a concourse of between 7,000 and 8,000 Masons were passed to their places in perfect order by half-past two. When all were assembled the scene was most impressive. The usually sombre appearance of English gentlemen in evening dress may have led the uninitiated to fancy that the aspect of the hall would be very dull, but the fact was that all entitled to be present had a silk collar in right of their position in the Order. These, for the most part a light blue, gave their colour to the whole assemblage, and enlivened the scene in a very tasteful way. Here and there were gentlemen clothed in collars of different colours—some of deep crimson, others of a dark blue, while here and there was the blue and yellow of Sweden, or the scarlet coat of a military brother. The grand Old Throne and chairs presented by the late Duke of Sussex, and which form so conspicuous a feature in the Temple, were here, the Throne being again, after a lapse of many years, surmounted by the Prince's plume. Behind the throne, and in front of the organ, was the Royal Standard, in front of which was the Masonic Banner. The seats behind and to the right and left of the Throne were occupied by Past Grand Officers, clothed in their splendid collars and aprons, covered with jewels and gold embroidery, giving the lais a most magnificent appearance. The arrangement of the canvas screen above gave an additional peculiarity to the scene, those in the arena being all in shade, while those above caught the light, and appeared of quite a different complexion.

The route of the procession was covered with a splendid carpet bearing the Masonic arms and the Prince of Wales' plume. This carpet was manufactured specially for the occasion by Bro. Lewis, of Watling Street and Halifax, and presented by him to Grand Lodge.

At about ten minutes past three a blare of trumpets announced the Royal entrance, and the head of a procession appeared slowly passing down the stairs to the solemn music of the organ, and traversed the aisle before-mentioned to the dais. The order was as follows:—

The procession entered the hall while the organ was played by Bro. Willing, and Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Earl of Carnarvon, who was received with immense cheering. When his Lordship took his seat, he was again heartily cheered, and was visibly much moved by the wonderful cordiality of his reception.

The Earl of Carnarvon, as Pro Grand Master, took the chair; that of the Senior Warden being filled by the Right Hon. Lord H. Thynne, M.P., and that of the Junior Warden by Bro. H. C. Okeover. The Grand Lodge was then opened; the minutes of the last Grand Lodge read, from which it appeared that, on the motion of Brother Standish Grove O'Grady, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been unanimously elected to the office of Grand Master. These minutes being now confirmed that election was completed.

The Pro Grand Master then directed Sir A. Woods to form a deputation to introduce his Royal Highness; and mentioned in doing so that a telegram had just been put in his hands from Grand Lodge of Genoa offering their hearty congratulations (great cheering).

The deputation then went to the Prince's room, and in a few minutes the silver trumpets (Brothers Howard Reynolds, W. Neutzelring, S. West, and F. Magrath, Heralds,) drew attention to the entrance of the Prince and his sponsors in the following order, the organ playing a processional march, composed especially for the occasion by Brother Sir Michael Costa:—

Four Grand Stewards of the Year.

The Gloves and Apron of the G.M. on a cushion borne by the Master of a Lodge.	The Collar and Jewel of the G.M. on a cushion borne by the Master of a Lodge.
---	---

Grand Director of Ceremonies, Sir A. Woods.

Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey.

Pres. of Board of Gen. Purp., Bro. Monckton.

Grand Registrar, Bro. McIntyre, Q.C.

Grand Treasurer, Bro. S. Tomkins.

Grand Chaplains, R. P. Bent and Dr. Simpson.

Six Past Grand Wardens.

Six Provincial Grand Masters—viz., the Earls of Shrewsbury and Limerick, the Marquis of Londonderry, Lords R. Grosvenor, Tenterden, and Lonsdale.

The PRINCE OF WALES, Grand Master.

Two Grand Stewards.

The Prince of Wales was received with deafening cheers from the assembled brethren, which were again and again renewed until some time after he had taken his seat on the left of the Earl of Carnarvon. His Royal Highness seemed much gratified, and bowed his acknowledgments as often as the cheering was taken up. The Duke of Connaught stood all this time almost motionless, but apparently much struck with the impressive scene.

Everybody concerned having, under the direction of Sir A. Woods, taken his proper position, the brethren arose, and a prayer was offered by the Grand Chaplain. The Prince was then, with certain formalities, invested with the collar and jewel of his office, and placed in the chair; and the trumpets once more having challenged attention, Sir Albert Woods proclaimed to the brethren in the following form:

Be it known that the Most High, Most Puissant, and Most Illustrious Prince, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Duke of Saxony, Duke of Cornwall and Rothesay, Earl of Chester, Carrick, and Dublin, Baron of Renfrew, and Lord of the Isles, Great Steward of Scotland, K.G., K.P., K.T., G.C.B., Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India, Knight of the Elephant of Denmark, Knight of the Golden Fleece, has been elected Most Worshipful Grand Master of Freemasonry in England. Whom the Great Architect of the Universe long preserve!

The formal salutes having been given,

The Earl of Carnarvon.—Your Royal Highness and Most Worshipful Grand Master,—It has been from time immemorial the custom when any Master of the Craft was placed in this chair to remind him of the duties that he then undertook, and although it is unnecessary that I should remind your Royal Highness, who is so conversant with all the affairs of the Craft, of those duties, it is right that that old and time-honoured custom should not absolutely disappear, and therefore it is my duty to address to you a few words on this occasion. Sir, your Royal Highness knows well that Freemasonry possesses many titles to respect, even in the eyes of the outer world. It has first of all a great antiquity—an antiquity ascending into the sphere, I may say, of immemorial tradition. Secondly, it is known and practised in every country, in every clime, and in every race of civilised men, and lastly, in this country, above all, it has associated itself with human sympathies and charitable institutions. (Cheers.) Let me say further, that whilst in these modern times it has changed its character in some respects, it has lost nothing which can claim the respect of men. (Cheers.) Formerly, through the dim periods of the middle ages, it carved its records upon the public buildings of Europe, upon the tracery of the cathedral windows, and the ornamentation of palaces. Now, as I have said, it is content to devote itself to works of sympathy and charity, and in them it finds its highest praise and reward. Let me draw one further distinction—no one will say that it is an invidious one. In some other countries it has been unfortunately the lot of Freemasonry to find itself allied with faction and intrigue—with what I may call the darker side of politics. In England it has been signally the reverse. (Cheers.) The Craft here has allied itself with social order, with the great institutions of the country, and, above all, with Monarchy, the crowning institution of all. (Cheers.) Your Royal Highness is not the first, by many, of your illustrious family that have sat in that chair. By the lustre of your great name and position you will reflect honour upon the Craft to-day; but it is also something, Sir, to be at the head of such a body as this vast assembly now represents (cheers), for I may truly say that never before, in the whole history of Freemasonry, has such a Grand Lodge been convened as that on which my eyes rest at this moment. And there is this further and inner view to be taken—that far as my eye can carry me over these serried ranks of white and blue, of gold and purple, I recognise in them men who have solemnly undertaken obligations of worth and morality, men who have undertaken the duties of citizens and the loyalty of subjects. (Cheers.) Sir, I am but expressing, though very feebly, the feelings and the aspirations of this great assembly when I say that I trust that the connection of your Royal Highness with the Craft may be lasting, and that you may never, Sir, have occasion for one moment's regret or anxiety when you look back upon the events of to-day. (Loud cheers.)

His Royal Highness the Grand Master, who, on rising, was received with enthusiastic applause, said: Brethren, I am deeply grateful to the Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master for the excessively kind words which he has just spoken, and to you, brethren, for the cordial reception which you have given to them. It has been your unanimous wish, brethren, that I should occupy the chair in which you have this day installed me as your Grand Master. It is difficult for me to find words adequately to express my deep thanks for the high honour that has been bestowed upon me—an honour which has already been bestowed on several members of my family, my predecessors—and, brethren, in whose footsteps it will always be my most ardent and sincere wish to walk; and by God's help to fulfil the duties of that high office to which I have been called to-day in the same way that my illustrious predecessors fulfilled them. (Cheers.) The Pro Grand Master has told you, brethren, and I feel convinced it is so, that such an assemblage of Grand Lodge has never been known, and when I look round this vast and spacious hall, and see those who have come from the north and the south, from the east and the west, to be present on this auspicious occasion, it is, I trust, an omen of good. (Cheers.) The various public duties which in my position I have to perform will not enable me so frequently as I could wish to attend to my many duties connected with the Craft. But you, brethren, may rest assured that I shall do my utmost to maintain the Craft now in its present prosperity, and to do my duty by it and my duty by you on every possible occasion. (Cheers.) It would, brethren, I feel sure, be useless for me, at a moment like this, to recapitulate anything which has been so ably told you by the Pro Grand Master relative to Freemasonry. Every Englishman knows that the two watchwords of the Craft are "loyalty" and "charity." (Cheers.) As long as those are our watchwords, and as long as Freemasonry keeps itself from being mixed up with politics, so long will, I am sure, this great and ancient Order flourish, and its benign influences will tend to maintain the integrity of this great empire. (Hear hear.) I thank you once more, brethren, for your cordial reception of me to-day, and especially those who have come such immense distances to welcome me on this occasion. I assure you I shall never forget to-day. (Great cheering.)

Deputations from Scotland, Ireland, and Grand Lodge of Sweden were then presented to his Royal Highness, consisting of the following brethren:—

Scotland.—Bros. the Earl of Rosslyn, Representative of the Grand Lodge of England, R.W. Past Grand Master of Scotland; the Earl of Mar and Kellie, R.W., Deputy Grand Master; J. T. Oswald, of Dunniker, R.W., Sub-Grand Master; Lord Rosehill, R.W. Junior Grand Warden; the Hon. W. H. Gray, D.D., R.W., Grand Chaplain.

Ireland.—Bros. Robert W. Shekleton, Deputy Grand Master; Lord Dunboyne, Junior Grand Warden; Arthur Bushe, Grand Treasurer; Sir John M. Stewart, Pro Grand Master; the Hon. David Plunket.

Grand Lodge of Sweden.—Bros. Count Saltza, Admiral Lagercrantz, Baron Beck-Früs, Baron de Mecklenburg, Oscar Dickson.

The Grand Orient of France being most desirous of expressing their cordial participation in what they regard as an international event, sent, through Mr. Hyde Clarke, a letter of congratulation to be personally presented to his Royal Highness the Grand Master, as they had done to his predecessors, the Earl of Zetland and the Marquis of Ripon (Cheers).

An address of congratulation was presented from Rome as follows:—

"A. G. D. G. A. D. U. Massoneria Universal Commerione Italiana Liberta Fratellanza Ugualianza.—Grand Orient Della Massoneria in Italia en elle Colonie Italiane. To his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England.—May it please your Royal Highness to permit the Grand Master of the Grand Orient of Italy to unite the heartfelt applause of all our Italian brethren to that of our beloved brethren in England, who hail the elevation of their present Grand Master as 'one of the most auspicious and most memorable events of universal Masonry. By this event English Masonry, which has already deserved so well of universal humanity, will acquire even fresh titles to the gratitude and admiration of the whole civilised world. Italian Masonry, therefore, rejoices at the new lustre shed upon our world-wide institution, and sincerely prays that between the two Masonic communities may be drawn even more closely those fraternal ties which, through want of the official recognition which we venture to hope will soon be effected, have always bound us to English brethren, whose profound intelligence and unswerving activity we constantly appreciate and seek to follow. Accept then, Royal Highness, with all good wishes for your continued long life and prosperity, the expression of our profound homage and fraternal affection."

This address was presented by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D. on behalf of the Grand Orient.

His Royal Highness then proceeded to appoint the officers of the Grand Lodge for the year ensuing as follows:—

The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. Grand Master.
Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master.
The Marquis of Hamilton, Senior Grand Warden.
The Lord Mayor, Junior Grand Warden.
The Rev. James Simpson, D.C.L., and the Rev. Spencer Robert Wigram, Grand Chaplains.

Aeneas J. M'Intyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar.

John Hervey, Grand Secretary.

Ernest Emil Wendt, Grand Secretary, German Correspondence.

Montague J. Guest and William Speed, Senior Grand Deacons.

Bro. R. Woodman, Grand Swordbearer.

Wilhelm Kuhe, Grand Organist.

His Royal Highness the Grand Master then announced that Bro. Sir A. Woods was authorised to take the rank and wear the clothing of P.J.G.W.; and Bro. Fenn, of P.S.G.D., in acknowledgment of their services in the proceedings of the day. (Cheers.) Bro. Sir M. Costa was likewise authorised to wear the clothing of P.J.G.W., and Bro. Thos. Cubitt of P.G. Pursuivant.

The names of the brethren returned by the lodges appointing Grand Stewards for the year ensuing were presented and approved, and the Grand Lodge was closed with the usual formalities.

The Prince of Wales, attended by his officers, then left in procession, and the proceedings terminated at five minutes to five o'clock.

The whole of these protracted ceremonies, of which the above account discloses merely a tithe, were conducted with remarkable precision by Sir A. Woods, Garter, who was Director of Ceremonies. The admission and seating of the brethren, which, as we have already stated, was admirably managed, was under the direction of Bro. Thos. Fenn, Bro. Monckton, the President, and the other members of Committee of the Board of General Purposes, were indefatigable and most successful in the discharge of their duties, and it must be a matter of great satisfaction to the Craft in general that so large a gathering, exceeding 10,000 in number, could be congregated and dispersed without the slightest confusion or difficulty.

THE BANQUET.

The banquet took place, as usual on such occasions, in the large hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, and in consequence of its comparatively limited proportions but a very small number of those who were at the Albert Hall had an opportunity of being present. There were, however, about 400 brethren fortunate enough to obtain that privilege, and amongst them a large proportion of Grand Officers. The hall was very tastefully decorated with flowers, and everything appeared to have been done to give it a picturesque appearance. At half-past seven His Royal Highness entered the hall amidst the greatest applause.

Amongst those present at the banquet were: the Grand Secretary, President of the Board of General Purposes, Grand Registrar, Grand Chaplain (Rev. Canon Simpson), Grand Treasurer, A. Bushe (G.T. Ireland), Lord Dunboyne (J.G.W. Ireland), Sir John M. Stewart (Ireland), Baron Mecklenburg (Sweden), Hon. David Plunket (Ireland), Robert W. Shekleton (D.G.M. Ireland), R. Hamilton (G.M. of Jamaica), Earl of Rosslyn (Scotland), Count Saltza (Sweden), George Laurie, P.D.G.M. of Turkey, Lord Leigh (P.G.M. Warwickshire), the Grand Director of Ceremonies, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, the Marquis of Hamilton, Lord Methuen, the Deputy Grand Master; Admiral Lagercrantz (Sweden), the Duke of Manchester (P.G.M. Northamptonshire), Lord Holmesdale (P.G.M. Kent), Earl of Mar and Kellie (Scotland), Rev. John Huyshe (P.G.M. Devon), Baron Beckforius, Albert H. Roy (P.G.M. Worcestershire), Oscar Dickson (Sweden), Hugh D. Sandeman (District G.M. of Bengal), S. T. Oswald (Sub-Grand Master Scotland), Dr. Gray (G.C. Scotland), Grand Chaplain (Rev. Spencer R. Wigram), W. Mann (P.G.W. Scotland), Junior Warden, the Right Hon. Lord Mayor. The above were the brethren who occupied seats at the table presided over by H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master. Amongst the other brethren present at the other tables were Colonel Burdett, the Earl of Hardwicke, Lord Balfour, Lord Limerick, Sir Daniel Gooch, Lord Shrewsbury, General Brownrigg, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., Sir H. Williamson, Hon. F. Walpole, Lord Tenterden, Lord Suffield, Bros. Francis Knollys, Thomas Fenn, F.A. Philbrick, Romaine Callender, &c., &c.

It was nine o'clock before the dinner was finished, and, the tables having been cleared,

The Most Worshipful Grand Master rose, amid prolonged cheering, to propose the first toast. He said: Brethren, the first toast I shall have the honour of proposing to you this evening is one which, I know, will require as few words as possible, as it is that toast which is always drunk with enthusiasm (cheers) on all great gatherings of Englishmen, more especially at the meetings of the Craft (loud cheers). I propose "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen, the Patroness of Our Order" (prolonged cheers).

The toast was drunk with musical honours.

The Duke of Manchester: Your Royal Highness, M.W.G.M. of Freemasons, my Lords, and Brethren, I now propose to ask you to drink "The Health of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales." (Loud applause.) It is not necessary for me to praise her. You all admire her and praise her in your ordinary conversation (Hear, hear.) Those who have the pleasure and honour of knowing her esteem her and praise her most of all. (Cheers.) In the words which you will soon hear sung, and with which you will sympathise,

"May heavenly flowers bestrew her path,

May wisdom guide her feet!

That blessings on her head may fall

We here our prayer repeat."

(Loud applause.) I have to propose to you "The Health of the Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." (Cheers.) We have for the first time amongst us, as Most Worshipful Grand Master, the eldest son of Her Majesty, and his brother, the Duke of Connaught (cheers), whom we all most highly esteem and love as the sons of a father whose memory we all so fondly cherish, and whom we so much regret. (Loud cheers.) I propose to you "The Health of Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family."

The toast was received with every demonstration of loyalty.

The Duke of Connaught (who was greeted with hearty and loud applause) said: Most Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren,—In the name of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family, I beg to thank you most sincerely for the very kind way in which you have received this toast. I am sure that you are aware—in fact, the Pro Grand Master, who I am sorry to say is not here to-night, told you—how great an interest the Royal Family had always taken in Freemasonry. (Cheers.) I hope that those of the Royal Family who are following their ancestors, including the M.W. Grand Master and myself (prolonged cheering), I hope that we shall prove ourselves no less worthy members of the Craft than the Duke of Sussex and the Duke of Kent. (Cheers.) I am sure that, as the M.W. Grand Master said this afternoon, the fact that the great mottoes of the Craft are “loyalty” and “charity” is alone sufficient to make the Royal Family take the deepest interest in a Craft with such good mottoes as those. (Cheers.) Brethren, before sitting down, I may say that a great honour has been conferred upon me, and that is no less than that of proposing to you “The Health of our Most Worshipful Grand Master.” (Reiterated applause.) I only wish, brethren, that this task had fallen to one who is more worthy to propose it, as you all know I am the Junior Master Mason of England. And being in a very humble position, I am naturally careful, and what is more, nervous, in speaking before you all (cheers) on a toast of such great importance as this is. (Hear, hear.) Another reason that I am sure will suggest itself to you is that I am doubly related on this occasion to our Most Worshipful Grand Master. (Cheers and laughter.) It will not do for brothers to be flattering each other, but I am sure, from the way in which the mere mention of our Most Worshipful Grand Master’s health was received, that you all respect and admire him in his new and important office. (Applause.) I can assure you, brethren, that there is no one—I will challenge every member of the Craft on this point—who has taken a deeper interest in Freemasonry than His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master. (Loud cheers.) I am sure you will find in him one who will uphold the honour and the integrity of this most noble and most ancient Craft. (Applause.) Brethren, I propose to you “The Health of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master.”

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, the cheering being again and again renewed.

The Prince of Wales: Brethren, I beg to return my most sincere and my most grateful thanks to the Junior Master Mason of England (laughter) for the kind way in which he has proposed my health, and to you, brethren, for the cordial manner in which you have received it. This is the first time, brethren, that I have had the honour of presiding at the grand festival. I can assure you I am very grateful for your kind reception of me this evening, and I sincerely hope that we may have the pleasure of meeting together on these festive occasions many many long years to come. I shall never forget, brethren, the ceremony of to-day (hear, hear), and the reception which you gave me. I only hope that you may never regret the choice you have made of your Grand Master. Brethren, I assure you on all occasions I shall do my utmost to do my duty in the position in which you have so kindly placed me. (Hear, hear.) Before sitting down, brethren, I have a toast to propose, which I feel sure you will all drink with cordiality, and which to me is a specially gratifying toast, that is, “The Health of our Illustrious Brother the King of Sweden and Norway.” (Applause.) It affords me especial pleasure to propose this toast, as seven years ago I became a member of this Craft, initiated by the late King, the brother of the present one. Thereby I consider I have a more special interest in Sweden, and I hope that the Grand Lodges of Sweden and of England may always be bound together in good will and in fraternal feeling. Our illustrious brother the King has been especially pleased to send over five distinguished brethren to take part in my Installation. (Applause.) Therefore it affords me special gratification to drink to the health of one who I know is such a keen Freemason at heart, and so keen an Englishman that he has frequently visited our shores. Most cordially and most heartily do I call upon you, brethren, to drink to “The Health of our Illustrious Brother the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Sweden, his Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway.”

Count Salcza responded, speaking in French. He passed a high eulogium on Freemasonry, and expressed his great gratification at the magnificent ceremony that had been witnessed in the afternoon, laying especial stress upon the Masonic good feeling between Sweden and Great Britain.

The Grand Master then rose and said: Brethren, we are honoured here this evening by the representatives of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, of Ireland, and of Sweden, and I feel convinced that you will all drink with me most cordially and most heartily to their health (cheers). The Grand Lodge of England is most desirous on being on the best possible terms with the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Ireland. Although separate through having other Grand Masters, still those three Grand Lodges may consider one another more or less as one. I have great pleasure in proposing the health of my noble friend and brother, Lord Rosslyn, as representative of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and I cannot forget the kind reception I met with at Edinburgh some years ago when he was Deputy Grand Master, and I received the rank of Patron of Scotch Freemasons at the hands of the late Earl Dalhousie. It also gives me great pleasure to propose the health of the representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, coupled with the name of Bro. Shekleton, Deputy Grand Master. I have also the great privilege of being Patron of the Irish Grand Lodge. I also remember, a few years ago, my reception from the late Duke of Leinster, who was the popular Grand Master of Ireland at that time, and the reception I met with I shall not easily forget. As the representative of the Grand Lodge of Sweden it affords me great pleasure to couple with this toast the name of the admiral on my left, who with the other gentlemen of this deputation from the King of Sweden are present here this evening. As my earliest associations in Freemasonry have been with the Grand Lodge of Sweden, I know when I address those gentlemen I see before me they will appreciate the pleasure it affords me in proposing this toast. (Cheers.) Brethren, I give you the toast of “The Grand Lodges of Scotland, Ireland, and Sweden,” coupled with the names Lord Rosslyn, Brother Shekleton, and Admiral Oscar Dickson. I also include in this toast all the other Grand Lodges.

The toast having been drunk,

Lord Rosslyn said: Most Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren,—The honour that your Royal Highness has done the deputation of the Grand Lodge of Scotland is warmly felt and appreciated by them, and I regret exceedingly that our Right Worshipful Master is upon this most interesting occasion prevented from being present by severe domestic sorrow. One other also of our deputation, one to whom all members of the Grand Lodge of Scotland have a great regard, our Grand Secretary, is prevented from being present on this occasion by a very severe and dangerous illness. But I am glad, indeed, to have had the opportunity, after so many years connection with the Grand Lodge in Scotland—no less than 25 years—of congratulating the Craft of England, and your Royal Highness also, upon the most magnificent scene I have ever witnessed in my life. I am glad also to think that the splendour, and, I must add, admirable management of the display to-day, does not quite efface from your Royal Highness’s recollection the scene upon a similar scale which we endeavoured to offer you when we had the honour of having your name as patron of the Scottish Craft. Your Royal Highness has been good enough to say that you have not forgotten the occasion. I can assure Royal Highness no Scotchman will ever forget it, and I can speak on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, with which I have been so long connected, having served every office in it, from Junior Deacon up to Grand Master, having been not quite a holiday Freemason, but worked my way from the ranks up to the position I have the honour to hold now. His Royal Highness has this day told us what the duties of Freemasonry are, and there is no doubt he has summed them up in two words—loyalty and charity; which includes mercy, a quality which has been described by the greatest poets as becoming “the throned monarch better than his crown.” There can be no doubt that under the auspices of the Most Worshipful Grand Master the Grand Lodge of England will flourish, and will continue to be a standard for Masonry all over the world. (Hear, hear.) I beg to thank you on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and I should have felt entirely happy in all the arrangements that you have given me the opportunity of addressing you this evening, if I had not found that the brother about to follow me is in a much better position than myself; for, while we are placed, according to the book of songs before me, “By the sad sea waves,” he has the pleasure of being “By Celia’s arbour.” (Laughter.)

Bro. R. W. Shekleton, Deputy Grand Master of Ireland, said: Your Royal Highness, my Lords, and Brethren,—I have been deputed by his Grace the Grand Master of Ireland to express to you his great personal regret that his official duties as a Viceroy of her Most Gracious Majesty debar him from being present here in person to do all honour to your Royal Highness, and in his behalf to bid you all hail in the name of the fraternity of the sister kingdom. Your Royal Highness and Brethren of England, on behalf of his Grace I desire to tender to you his most grateful acknowledgments for the way in which his name has been received, and the invitation which was extended to him to take part in the imposing and august ceremonial of to-day. But, your Royal Highness, there is another matter which, as far as I am aware, his Grace is not cognisant until to-day, and that is the honour you have conferred upon him by installing his son in the Grand Senior Warden’s chair (applause). As his Grace takes great interest in Freemasonry, the honour you have thus conferred upon his son is one of the greatest honours you could confer upon him personally (hear). On behalf of those who represented the Grand Lodge of Ireland I should be wanting in my duty if I did not take this opportunity of thanking you for this opportunity of taking part in the ceremony of to-day, which we have seen, and which probably will never be seen again—an event which will be an era in our Masonic lives. We thank you also for having been invited to take part in this festive ceremony, which, as most of the outside world will suppose, was most indispensable to us, whom they regard as a gormandising fraternity. (Laughter.) In an assemblage of English Masons it may seem absurd to talk about loyalty, but I can assure your Royal Highness that no Masons are more loyal than the Masons of the Emerald Isle (immense applause), which God grant may never cease to be an integral portion of Her Majesty’s dominions; and we pray that the Emerald Isle may never be woven in the crown of any stranger. In our lodges we have no treason, no plots, or conspiracies—we form no secret societies; but we are remarkable for our fear of God, our fealty to the Sovereign, love to the brotherhood, and a friendship to all classes and creeds. Those are the principles which are inculcated in Irish lodges, as well as English, and therefore it is absurd to speak of us in the way we have been spoken of. Your Royal Highness has been threatened with certain pains and penalties if you visit our shores. I can assure your Royal Highness, as far as that is concerned, we are only too happy to see your Royal Highness on any occasion, and I think there will be no necessity to put his prerogative of mercy into operation if you visit us. I have said that we are loyal, and I say it on behalf of my impulsive countrymen that they are loyal to the heart’s core; and that although we have not had the honour of seeing the members of the Royal Family as often as we would like, yet I know it is only necessary that they should be as familiar to us in Ireland as in England to be equally beloved in England and in Scotland; and somewhat to alter the words of one whose genius as a writer we may admire, though we may not agree in his political opinions, I would say—

“Come in the evening, come in the morning,

Come when you will, or come without warning,
Bright smiles of welcome you’ll find there before you,
And the oftener you come the more we’ll adore you.”

Brother Admiral Oscar Dickson (who spoke in a clear English accent).—Speaking in the capital of England, may it please your Royal Highness, Most Worshipful Grand Master, to receive the humble thanks of the Swedish Grand Lodge for the honour which you have conferred upon them (applause).

The most Worshipful Grand Master.—It is now my duty to propose to you the last toast which I shall have the honour of giving you. It is one which is always at this, our annual meeting, received most cordially and enthusiastically. On this occasion the toast will be that of "The Pro-Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Masters, and the Grand Officers" (cheers). I regret very much the absence, from domestic affliction, of the Pro-Grand Master (hear, hear). He is not able to be in his accustomed place to respond to this toast, but the Deputy Grand Master is here this evening, and I shall have great pleasure in coupling his name with it (cheers). To the Provincial Grand Masters, who I see before me and around me this evening, I beg to tender my sincere thanks for their kindness in supporting me both this afternoon and now, and to assure them what gratification and pleasure it has given me to see them muster so strongly at our ceremony of to-day (cheers). I know that upon several of the Grand Officers devolved the duty of making the arrangements for carrying out that ceremony, and I can only tender them my sincere thanks for, and at the same congratulate them, upon the admirable manner in which the arrangements were carried out (applause). This evening, during the dinner, I received a communication, dated at 7.35, from Brother Wentworth Cole, who was present to day, in which he says "that after dismissing the police and shutting the doors, the police report was that no casualty or mishap of any kind had taken place" (loud cheers). There were between 7,000 and 8,000 brethren at that hall, and they all entered and left it without accident, which is a great thing to be able to say (cheers). I beg of you now to drink the health of those brethren whose names I have just mentioned (loud applause).

Lord Skelmersdale.—Most Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren.—In the name of the numerous assembly on behalf of whom I have to respond, I beg to return you our hearty thanks. No one can regret more than I do the absence of the Pro-Grand Master, but I think you will agree with me in saying that we owe him a deep debt of gratitude for having laid aside his sorrow and come forward to take part in the ceremony of this afternoon (hear, hear). I need not dilate on the admirable way in which he performed his duty (cheers). He always does everything he undertakes in the same way, and I repeat that we owe him a deep debt of gratitude for what he has done for us to-day (cheers). I only hope that he has happier days before him, and that he will long enjoy the honours which have been conferred upon him (applause). I am sure you will feel it is almost presumptuous in me to say anything on behalf of the Provincial Grand Officers, being such a junior officer myself; but perhaps I may do so having the honour of holding the rank of Grand Master in one of the largest provinces in the county (hear, hear). I am sure all the Provincial Grand Officers will, equally with myself, feel delighted, honoured, and gratified at seeing his Royal Highness placed in the position he now occupies (cheers), and only wish that he may occupy it for many years to come (applause). I assure him that we will do all we can to lighten his duties and to make his task an easy one (hear, hear). For my own part, I can assure you that I feel deeply sensible of the honour which has been conferred upon me this day. I only hope that I shall be able to do the duty of the high office confided to me, and I trust to be able to do it with all my heart (hear, hear). If anything would add to my anxiety to do so, it would be the invariable kindness I have personally received from his Royal Highness, and the invariable kindness and attention which he has given to Masonic matters (applause). I can assure you that that attention has not been lightly taxed lately (hear, hear). Brethren, in the name of the grand officers and those enumerated in the toast which has been so kindly proposed, I beg to thank you most heartily for the kind way in which you have received this toast, and to assure you that we hope to do our duties to the best of our abilities (loud cheers).

The Marquis of Hamilton (Senior Grand Warden): Your Royal Highness, my lords, and brethren, the toast which I have now to propose to you is that of "The Stewards of this Festival," and in proposing this toast I must claim your indulgence, as this is the first time that I have had the honour of addressing you as an officer of Grand Lodge (hear, hear). Although this toast is put down in the book as the last, I do not think it should be considered the least, and for two reasons. One is that the brethren whose names are connected with this toast come from no less than 18 lodges in the United Kingdom, and amongst them are members of the highest and most important degrees connected with Freemasonry (hear, hear). Another reason is that the brethren with whose names I couple this toast have had their attention this evening closely and carefully connected with our material and, I might say also, our interior welfare and happiness (hear, and laughter). Brethren, you witnessed this morning a magnificent spectacle in the Albert Hall—a spectacle which can never be surpassed in the annals of Freemasonry in this country (hear, hear, and applause). Every particle, every minutiae of detail was most exactly and splendidly carried out (applause). Those brethren who had the duty of carrying out that magnificent ceremony have had their name duly proposed and honoured this evening. It is therefore, with great pleasure that I propose to you "The Health of the Stewards," and I am certain that you will all honour it upstanding with three cheers. In giving you this toast I beg to couple with it the name of Brother Erasmus Wilson (applause).

Bro. Erasmus Wilson, President of the Board of Stewards, in responding, said—M.W.G.M., your Royal Highness, and Brethren,—The Grand Stewards of the year are deeply grateful to you for your generous recognition of our very humble but most cordially rendered services. (Hear, hear.) The Grand Stewards constitute a useful and somewhat curious link in the venerable and patriarchal chain of our Masonic organisation; and prominent amongst their functions is the very important one of engaging the brethren in the happiest and most necessary of the ceremonies consequent on our sublimary existence. (Laughter.) It is for the Grand Stewards in an essential degree to endeavour to please the brethren, and, in the beautiful words of our ritual "to lead them to unite in the grand design of being happy, and communicating happiness." (Cheers.) It is likewise for the Grand Stewards to realise, in the interests of the brethren, that after labour should follow refreshment—(hear, hear)—and although the labour of this great day has been in a supreme degree a labour of love, yet our convictions must have proved to us that love is none the less an active promoter of appetite. (Cheers and laughter.) I therefore trust that the poor efforts of the Grand Stewards to relieve that necessity of our nature, aided by the practical help of our good brother Francatelli, may not have proved labour in vain. (Cheers.) But as within our bosom our heart is next door neighbour to the stomach, so may the comforts and refreshments of the stomach further warm our hearts to a fervent congratulation on the events of this most auspicious and never-to-be-forgotten day. (Applause.)

The Duke of St. Albans was unable to be present on account of domestic affliction.

The musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Wilhelm Kuhe, who was assisted by Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Annie Sinclair, and Madame Patey, and Messrs. George Perren, Thomas Baxter, Carter, Theodore Distin, F. Penna, and Maybrick. Mr. Kuhe was also assisted by Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Past Grand Organist, and Mr. Carrodus performed on the violin.

The banquet was admirably supplied by the Freemasons' Tavern Company's manager, Bro. Francatelli, and, drew forth the special commendation of Dr. Erasmus Wilson.

Bro. Harker, the City toastmaster, officiated on the occasion.

The banquet concluded shortly after ten.

The whole of the floral decorations at the Albert Hall were supplied by Bro. J. Wills, of the Royal Exotic Nursery, Onslow-crescent. The Prince's room was very tastefully decorated with a choice collection of handsome foliage and flowering plants, which were very judiciously arranged in groups about the room, the great feature of the decoration being the table usually in the centre of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales's room, the surface of which was entirely covered with undulating banks of lycopodium, on the raised portions of which were hillocks surrounded by graceful palms, interspersed with the beautiful orchid, Odontoglossum Alexandriae. The groundwork below was embellished with lilies of the valley, arranged naturally, as if growing on mossy banks. These were relieved by masses of Marshal Niel roses, jardinias, stephanotis, and various other sweet-smelling flowers. On the four corners of the table were placed Masonic emblems—in one the square and compass, arranged with lilies of the valley and light blue cinerarias, the opposite corner being occupied by the square, the centre of which was composed of blue cinerarias, with a margin of lilies of the valley; in the other two corners the plummet and compass were similarly depicted. On a raised terrace in the centre of this lovely plateau the following initials were placed—"H.R.H. A.E., M.W.G.M.," wrought in dark blue cinerarias. Right and left of the stairs leading to the dais were handsome groups of plants, consisting of palms, dracaenas, azalias, and many other growing and foliage plants, the whole being surrounded by an undulating bank of isolepis and lycopodium, the surface of the dais being covered with crimson cloth. Bro. Wills had arranged a margin of yellow genistas beneath a canopy of graceful palms, which imparted to the eye the appearance of a charming prism, the whole being in complete harmony with the other decorations of this noble hall. Bro. Wills was ably assisted in the above arrangements by Bro. A. F. Barron, superintendent of the Royal Horticultural Gardens at South Kensington and Chiswick.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE M.W.G.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A new epoch has occurred in the annals of English Freemasonry. The eldest son of our Sovereign, and heir to the Throne of England, has graciously accepted the office of Grand Master of the Order.

This event is in itself of great importance to the Craft, and cannot fail to make more popular an institution which adopts as its three grand principles Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth, and, to quote the words of our M.W.G.M., whose watchwords are "Loyalty and Charity."

The great increase in the numbers of the brethren within the last few years is satisfactory proof that Freemasonry is flourishing, and we trust will, by the favour of the Great Architect, continue to extend its beneficent influences in proportion to the fostering care of those who administer its affairs; while the condition of the three Masonic institutions (admitting all that remains to be done) bears ample testimony that the brethren are not unmindful that of all the virtues which adorn mankind, "the greatest of these is Charity."

Our Royal and Illustrious Grand Master may see fit to commemorate his accession to the throne of King Solomon by some act gratifying and advantageous to the Craft, and I venture most deferentially to suggest whether his Royal Highness could give his assent to any proposition more calculated to increase (if it were possible) his own popularity, or more likely to afford gratification to the general body of Masons, than by any enlargement of the present very limited number of Grand Stewards.

Since the Act of Union of 1813, the number of Grand Stewards has, in spite of the vast increase in the numbers of the Craft, remained at Eighteen. Has not, therefore, the time arrived when the honour of wearing a red apron might be consistently conferred upon a few more of the ancient and distinguished lodges, serving thereby to awaken a new interest, and rendering still more useful and popular the occasion of the Grand Festival, by admitting a larger representation of the various lodges.

I trust an abler pen than mine will take the subject up, and that some distinguished brother will bring the matter before Grand Lodge, feeling convinced that, with the concurrence of that assembly, His Royal Highness the M.W.G.M. would confer a privilege and honour which would be most gratefully appreciated.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,

P.M.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

Yesterday the ceremony of the installation of Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., as Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, as successor to the Marquis of Ripon, took place at Halifax. West Yorkshire, for a period of 14 years, had been well and ably governed by the Marquis of Ripon, whose installation took place in Leeds, in 1861, but on the secession of that nobleman from the English Church, the faith he embraced precluded him from longer remaining a member of an Order like that of Freemasonry. Many were the opinions as to who should succeed the Marquis, but ultimately the choice of the Prince of Wales fell upon Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., a gentleman of undoubted popularity in the entire county of Yorkshire, and immediately associated in many ways with the province of West Yorkshire, and, a gentleman whose openness of heart, magnanimous disposition, and firmness of character, will make him an able and respected ruler. The ceremony of installation took place in the Drill Hall, Halifax, and the preliminary lodge was opened up by Bro. James Menzies, W.M., and the officers of the Probity Lodge, 61, of which lodge Sir Henry Edwards is a P.M. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by W. Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M., and the brethren assembled numbered about 600, representing 58 out of 59 lodges in the Province. After the customary salutation of the D.P.G.M., Bro. Bentley Shaw said he once more thanked the brethren for the kind expression of their feeling towards him. This, he said, was the last time he should preside over their meetings, and even on this occasion he would have to crave their indulgence for not making a lengthened speech. Owing to the very feeble state of his health, having just come from home after a month's severe illness, they must excuse him saying more than from his heart he thanked them for their present and many previous kindnesses.

Bro. Major Le Gendre N. Starkie, Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, in acknowledging the salutation of the brethren, said he was glad to be present on this occasion, knowing well the enthusiasm of West Yorkshire Masons. He paid a high compliment to Bro. Bentley Shaw, for the able manner he had always discharged the duties of his office.

The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with by Bro. Starkie, and he was conducted to the chair by Bro. B. Shaw, who stated that Bro. Starkie had kindly consented to perform the duty of installation most readily. They were all glad to see him in West Yorkshire again. The royal patent of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales had been granted to Sir Henry Edwards, and Bro. Shaw expressed his belief that as their late chief had been respected and loved by the brethren, so would their brother who had been selected for the distinguished office of Provincial Grand Master, receive their loyal love, and that fraternal devotion which it was the duty of every loyal Freemason to render to their chief.

Bro. Starkie, in taking the chair, said they were met on an occasion of no ordinary Masonic interest. This was patent when they reflected on that nobleman who had till lately so ably, so loyally, and so kindly governed them. He was a man who stood high, not only in this province, but in the craft generally, and who, by his moral and honourable character upheld the tenets of Freemasonry and the interests of the Craft. The Marquis of Ripon was always honourable in action, upright in character, and bold in principle. West Yorkshire would miss him at its gatherings, but whilst they deeply regretted the cause of his resignation, they would esteem his actions, and respect his memory. In his successor, however, they had a worthy brother, and he hoped the members of that lodge, and the brethren of the province would render to him a truly Masonic honour, and had faith in that if they would entrust to him their confidence, be guided by his counsel, and conform to his ruling, the high position and character of the province would be maintained, and that West Yorkshire would retain that prestige in the Craft that had been left it by its late distinguished chief. (Applause.)

The patent of Sir H. Edwards having been examined and read, he was conducted into Provincial Grand Lodge, and was addressed by Bro. Starkie in reference to the high and dignified office to which he had been appointed, and was exhorted to maintain a firm but honourable rule in the province.

Having entered into the necessary requirements of Provincial Grand Lodge, Sir Henry Edwards was invested with the apron, chain, and jewel of his office, and was conducted to the throne amid the applause of the brethren, and saluted according to ancient custom.

The Right Worshipful Grand Master then addressed the brethren, saying he felt deeply sensible of the condescension of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in appointing him to the important office of Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, the largest and, he believed, most compact province in England, numbering 59 lodges, and nearly 3,000 brethren. When the Prince of Wales first intimated his wish to appoint him to the office, he accepted the post, but it was loyalty that prompted him to accept it, yet he did so with trepidation and diffidence. He said he should have to rely on their forbearance for his shortcomings in the discharge of his duties. Already he was assured of the support of their respected, able, and, he might say, illustrious brother, Bentley Shaw. (Loud and prolonged applause.) He regretted that that gentleman could not longer fill the post he had so ably done for the period of eleven years, owing to failing health. During that eleven years he had only been absent from one meeting. Referring to his own office, he said, now that the time had arrived he felt more alarmed at the duties of the office, and would stand aghast did he not feel assured of the same support his predecessor had received. It would always be his aim to serve the interests of the Craft, and assist in promoting the three grand principles upon which the Order is founded. In concluding he urged the brethren to observe the necessity of acting the part of true Freemasonry, which he found fully portrayed in a passage of holy writ—"Honour all men; love the brotherhood; fear God; honour the king."

The following brethren were then appointed, and invested, to the various offices:—

Bros. Thomas Wm. Tew, D.P.G.M.; Major T. G. Parker, P.S.G.W.; W. H. Brittain, P.J.G.W.; Rev. A. W. Hamilton, Rev. G. S. Dunbar, P.G.C.; R. I. Critchley, P.G.T.; E. M. Wavell, P.G.R.; Henry Smith, P.G.S.; W. Tasker, P.S.G.D.; Thos. Heaton, P.J.G.D.; C. Mandall Hartley, P.G.S. of W.; W. Roddewig and W. J. Beck, P.G.D. of C.; F. Crossley, P.G.S.B.; F. W. Nicholson, P.G. Organist; A. E. Powolny, and J. Richardson, P.G.P.; J. R. Armitage, J. Ibberson, Allen Jackson, Geo. Haigh, J. Marshall, and Henry Ward, P.G.S.; Joshua Lee and Jonas Sheard, P.G.T.

The R.W.P.G.M. then proposed, and the D.P.G.M. seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Bentley Shaw for his invaluable services during his period as D.G.M. of this province, which was most enthusiastically carried.

In replying Bro. Shaw eulogised the character of Lord Ripon, at whose hands, he said, he had always received the greatest possible kindness; and he never knew a better friend or a more sincere brother.

The brethren were then marshalled into procession, and headed by the band of the 2nd West York Yeomanry Cavalry, proceeded to the Parish Church, where an able discourse was delivered by one of the Provincial Grand Chaplains.

After these proceedings a sumptuous banquet was served in the Assembly Rooms, where about 100 brethren sat down. After dinner the chair was occupied by Bro. Sir Henry Edwards, P.G.M., and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily received.

Dewsbury was decided on as the next meeting place of Provincial Grand Lodge, under the banner of Three Grand Principles, 208.

TASMANIAN MASONIC BENEVOLENT FUND.—REPORT FOR 1875.

The committee of management, in addressing the subscribers and contributors to the Tasmanian Masonic Benevolent Fund, has again to congratulate them upon the continued success which has attended the operations of the institution during the past year, and desires to express its appreciation of the increased amount of subscriptions from individual brethren, and the enlarged sum contributed by the several Masonic bodies, thus fully meeting the increased amount of expenditure required, and augmenting the balance to the credit of the fund.

The statement of accounts and balance sheet fully explain the income and expenditure during the past year, as well as the present position of the fund; and the committee earnestly trusts that this association, which has been and still is of material benefit to aged brethren, and widows and orphans of departed ones, may receive the continued and increased support of the fraternity, so that more adequate means may be provided for enlarging its sphere of usefulness, and extending its benefits, which should keep pace with the present unexampled progress of the Craft.

Correspondence.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is with feelings of great reluctance I write to complain of what I consider the unnecessary interference of the Installation Committee, or

Grand Secretary, if he be the responsible person, in suggesting, or, as in this case it has proved, dictating the manner of disposing of the single M.M. tickets for the Albert Hall issued to each lodge. Who, Sir, are the men to whom the proceedings on next Wednesday are likely to be most interesting and useful? The Junior Officers of lodges; and I imagine, in consequence of the suggestion made in the circular addressed by the Grand Secretary to the Secretaries of lodges, few (if any) of these gentlemen are likely to be present on the occasion.

The Senior Subscribing M.M. is, generally speaking, a man who, from disinclination for work, or perhaps other more satisfactory private reasons, desires to rest on his laurels, and therefore refuses year after year to accept office, and only occasionally attends the working of his lodge, thereby allowing his juniors to step before him. I maintain that the fairest way would have been to have given the Junior Officers the first offer of refusal in rotation, which I believe would have been the plan adopted in my own lodge but for the circular above alluded to, and I should not then have had to sign myself as I do now,

A DISAPPOINTED J.D.

[Our Brother has, we think, overstated the force of the recommendation. It was a fraternal and Masonic recommendation, but nothing more. Each lodge had full power to act upon it or not, as it seemed advisable to the feelings and judgment of the Brethren. There was no binding or constraining power in what was intended only as a considerate suggestion.—ED.]

INSTALLATION JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am not aware whether or not it has been decided to have a Jewel struck in commemoration of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and every brother who attends permitted to wear one. If such should be the case, it will give a splendid opportunity of assisting the Masonic Schools or Charities, by requiring every brother who wears one to pay as a fee of honour, say, half a guinea. I venture to say there would be very few who would not be proud to do so. By ventilating the matter in the Freemason, I have but little doubt the above suggestion will meet with the approbation of the brethren generally.

I am, yours fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

[We have already suggested that a "Commemoration Jewel" should be authorized by the G.M., in addition to the Stewards' Jewel.—ED.]

THE GUILDHALL LIBRARY.

Last week Dr. Sedgwick Saunders, the Medical Officer of Health and Public Analyst of the City of London, was presented with a handsome testimonial, consisting of a pair of candelabra, a Warwick vase, and a silver claret jug, in recognition of his public services in connection with the new Guildhall Library. The presentation was made at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor, in the presence of Alderman Sir William Rose; Alderman Sir Thos. Dakin; Alderman Sir Chas. Whetham; Mr. Alderman M'Arthur, M.P.; the President of the Royal College of Surgeons, Mr. F. Le Gros Clark; the President of the Statistical Society, De Guy; Rev. Dr. Sparrow Simpson; Mr. Janson; Mr. John Symonds, Chairman of the Library Committee of the Corporation; Sir John Bennett; Mr. R. A. Gray, and many others. Dr. Saunders made a suitable acknowledgment of the compliment. In the evening Mr. John Symonds, the chairman, and the members of the Library Committee entertained about eighty guests at dinner at the London Tavern, including the Lord Mayor; Major-Gen. Brownrigg, C.B.; Major Bousfield, M.P.; Sir Thos. Chambers, M.P.; Mr. Alderman Figgins; Mr. Warren de la Rue, F.R.S., the President of the London Institution; Mr. R. B. Martin; Mr. James Glaisher; Sir Albert Woods; Mr. McIntyre, Q.C.; Dr. Saunders; Rev. W. Rogers; Dr. Zerffi; Mr. Geo. Grove; Mr. Deputy Shephard; Mr. John Staples, and others. Towards the close of the entertainment, Mr. Glaisher, responding to a toast with which his name had been connected, took occasion to say—referring to the fatal balloon experiment in Paris—that he had been exceedingly pained to read the results, and that he could not but feel that a great mistake had been made. M. Tissandier, with whom he was well acquainted, had previously been with him, and they had talked together about the power of man to ascend a certain altitude, even to the height of five, six, or seven miles. Mr. Glaisher argued then, as now, that no man, however experienced, should attempt to exceed that extreme limit who had any heart disease or any pulmonary affection, for in either of those cases, after ascending to a height of four miles, death might occur at any moment.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

NEW CONCORD LODGE (813).—The brethren of this lodge met at the Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, on Thursday, April 15th. All the work was performed by Bro. Gabb in an excellent manner. The ticket for the Installation of H.R.H. was given to Bro. Sinclair, Treas., he being the oldest subscribing and initiated member. Bro. Fowkes, Crystal Palace Lodge, was the only visitor. The votes of the lodge were solicited and given to Bro. Emmens, P.M., on behalf of the candidate, Bro. Cooper. At the supper, after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Emmens, P.G.P., responded for the Grand Officers. Bro. Cusworth, J.W., replied on behalf of the charities, particularly for the Boys' School, at whose festival he is a Steward. Bro. Main, P.M. and S., responded for the Past Master, urging the necessity of attending Lodges of Instruction, and drawing attention to the ceremonies to be worked on the 21st at the New Concord Lodge of Instruction. The S.W. being prevented by domestic affliction from staying to the supper, the Treas. replied for the Officers. Bro. Fowkes, as a visitor, acknowledged the hospitality, also the admirable way in which the W.M. carried out all his duties. Some good singing and recitations from Bros. Baylis, Swales, Salisbury, and Cusworth were much enjoyed, and the Tyler's toast finished an agreeable evening.

GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held last Saturday at the City Terminus Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. N. B. Headon, P.M. There was a very large attendance of the brethren, and the officers were all in their places. Lodge was opened at three o'clock, and the work was immediately commenced. Assisted by Bro. James Stevens, I.P.M., and the officers, the W.M. performed five initiations, two raisings and seven passings. Messrs. Wm. Henry Rowe, John Liscombe, Charles Lord, George Goodman, and Thomas Benskin took the First Degree; Bros. E. Crickmay and Gray, the Third; and Bros. White, Bristow, Measures, Hicks, Durrant, McNiver, and Fa-mer the Second. There were several propositions for new members; and the brethren, after calling off for refreshment at six o'clock, proceeded with the business of the lodge afterwards; and when this was entirely completed, adjourned. The whole of the work was, as usual, well performed.

INSTRUCTION.

STABILITY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 217).—The annual festival of Bro. Henry Muggeridge's celebrated Lodge of Instruction was held, according to ancient custom, on the Friday succeeding Grand Festival. As usual, it was very numerously attended, and the large lodge room at the City Terminus Hotel, as well as the Great Hall, where the banquet was subsequently spread, was crowded on the occasion. The character which the lodge has obtained for its correct working was fully maintained. Bro. Muggeridge presided in lodge, and after its formal opening proceeded with the lectures of the Second Degree. Bro. Bailey gave the answers in the 1st Section; Bro. Russell, 2nd; Bro. Jonas, 3rd, and Bro. Scriven 4th and 5th, Lodge Board. All these brethren were afterwards congratulated on their proficiency, and the readiness with which their replies were given. The following sums were voted to the Masonic Institutions:—Ten guineas to Girls' School; fifteen guineas to Boys' School; ten pounds to Benevolent Institution. Bro. Scriven proposed, and Bro. Jones seconded, a vote of thanks to Bro. Muggeridge, the Preceptor, which having been carried, Bro. Edward Spooner proposed, and Bro. Thomas James seconded, a vote of condolence and sympathy for the great calamity that has befallen Bro. Muggeridge, in the death of his son, Bro. Strickland Muggeridge, the Secretary. Bro. E. S. Snell, P.G.D., proposed, and Bro. R. Townsend seconded a vote of thanks to the Working Brethren. 25 new members were then elected, and the lodge was closed. There were present among others, Bros. Muggeridge, W.M.; Russell, S.W.; Jonas, S.W.; Scriven, S.D.; Bailey, J.D.; Storr, J.D. Colonel Burdett, G.M.M.; E. S. Snell, P.G.D.; E. M. Hubbard, P.G.S.; J. F. Jackson,

P.G.S.; John Bodenham, P.G. Treasurer, Staffordshire; Larkins, P.G.S.; Winkfield, D. Crombie, Mergan, P.G.S.; T. James, Paddle, Vickers, Birdseye, Gale, Myres, Henry Marsh, Henry Mellon, Copestick, Phythian, F. W. Bryant, Thomas Corgill, Bennie, Crossfield, Batten, Fellows, Kibble, G. Kenning, C. Arkell, and a large number of brethren. The visitors were—Bros. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.M.; Goepel, P.M.; and Scott, P.M., all of Liverpool. It was nearly nine o'clock before the brethren left the lodge for the banquet; at which, however, Bro. Muggeridge did not take part on account of his recent domestic affliction. This threw a gloom over the whole proceedings of the evening, and the mirth that prevailed was of a very qualified description. Colonel Francis Burdett, Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, took the chair, supported on his right by Bro. E. S. Snell, Past Grand Deacon. Many of the brethren present were visitors from the country, who had come up for the Installation of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and availed themselves of the opportunity afforded of witnessing the working of the Stability Lodge. The banquet was admirably provided for by Bro. Spencer, and on the removal of the cloth the musical brethren (Baxter, Donald King, and Theodore Distin) rendered grace ("Not unto us, O Lord") in excellent style. The toasts were then proposed. Colonel Burdett, in proposing the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," said that Masonry, as Lord Carnarvon mentioned on Wednesday in the Albert Hall, in very few words but an excellent speech, consisted of loyalty and charity. He (the Chairman) need not say much about loyalty, because every brother was as loyal as could be desired; and in following up the principles of loyalty for which they were famous, he would call upon them to honour the toast he now proposed. The toast having been heartily received, was followed by the "National Anthem." Colonel Burdett next proposed "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales." It was a toast which he felt confident would be drunk that evening with even more enthusiasm than the brethren had ever displayed before. Masons had now actually got His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as their Grand Master. He had taken them by the hand, and now ruled them in a kind and goodly spirit. He would do everything he could for them in his position as Grand Master. His appreciation of the Order was manifested by his introduction of two of his brothers into it. In a short time it was to be hoped these brothers would hold a high position in the Craft. They were sure to be good Masons, as they took up Freemasonry as enthusiastically as did the Prince of Wales. This was the first time His Royal Highness's health had been drunk in a body like that since the Installation, and it was therefore with additional pleasure he (Colonel Burdett) now proposed it. Colonel Burdett then proposed "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and Grand Officers." The brethren all knew how well the Grand Officers performed their duties, and lately some of them had had very arduous and difficult duties to perform. They had, however, carried them out in a most exemplary way, and on Wednesday especially. Nothing could have been better than the arrangements on that occasion. It was for them to uphold the position of the Grand Master, and they would best do it by performing their duties in the same satisfactory way as heretofore. He would couple with this toast the name of an old Grand Officer, who had been a constant member of this Lodge of Instruction for many years, and who was then present, Bro. E. S. Snell, Past Grand Deacon. New song, Bro. Donald King: "Our Song." Bro. E. S. Snell said he thought it was 28 years ago when he joined this Lodge of Instruction, and he had never felt greater pleasure than when he was receiving instruction in it. He had the greatest possible regard for Bro. Muggeridge, its Preceptor, and looked with satisfaction on the wide diffusion of a knowledge of Freemasonry which he had been the means of effecting. The Grand Officers had been spoken of by Colonel Burdett in a very flattering way, and their performance of their duties had drawn forth great praise. Bros. Sir Albert Woods and Thomas Fenn had lately been working like slaves, and they had had the pleasure of seeing their exertions crowned by the most unexampled success. Never had such a scene been witnessed as that of Wednesday previously, and many persons would wonder how a body of men nearly 8,000 strong could have acted with such regularity. The truth was that Sir Albert Woods and Bro. Fenn had managed things so well that this consequence was produced. At the dinner in the evening he received a message from Bro. Wentworth Cole to say he had dismissed the police, locked up the hall, and found there was not a single accident to report. (Cheers.) Colonel Burdett proposed "The Lodge of Instruction, and Bro. Henry Muggeridge," and said he did so with a great deal of pleasure and a great deal of pain. They had all known Bro. Muggeridge for a very long time, and they all appreciated him. All appreciated his great loss, and regretted his unavoidable absence at the banquet table. Bro. Muggeridge gave a great deal of time to this Lodge of Instruction, and worked it in a most praiseworthy manner; but Bro. Muggeridge must be very proud of many apt pupils which he had, and of the way they performed their work. Under the melancholy circumstances of the occasion he (Col. Burdett) thought it best not to say any more. Bro. E. S. Snell, P.G.D., proposed "The Health of Col. Burdett," a representative of Grand Lodge of Ireland in Grand Lodge of England, a Past Grand Warden, and Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, who was always ready to take the chair and perform any services he could for Masonry. Col. Burdett responded in his usual happy and kindly way, and expressed the great gratification it afforded him at any time to be of service to Freemasonry. He then proposed "The Working Brethren, Bros. Wm. Bailey, J. E. Russell, John Jonas, and J. B. Scriven," and after a song by Bro. T. Distin, "Mine Host," Bro. Wm. Bailey and J. B. Scriven replied. Bro. J. G. Marsh proposed "The Sister Lodge of Instruction," and Col. Burdett concluded the business of the evening by proposing "The Masonic Charities," after which the brethren separated.

GREAT CITY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1426).—The Lodge of Instruction in connection with the Great City Lodge met on Thursday, the 29th ult., at the lodge rooms, 111, Cheapside, when a very large muster of the Craft were present. Bro. James Stevens, I.P.M., took the chair, for the purpose of performing the ceremony of installation. Bro. N. B. Headon, the W.M. of the Great City Lodge, was the W.M. Elect for the occasion. Among other brethren present were the principal officers of the parent lodge, and among the visitors—Bros. J. H. Gresham, J.L.D., P.G.M., Quebec; Greene, New York; Isaac Watts, Lodge of Fortitude, Plymouth; Wm. Cole, Lodge of Loyalty, Southampton; Page, No. 39, Exeter; Venn, No. 49; Staley, No. 1216; Allen, Islington Lodge; R. N. Field, W.M. No. 902, Hounds, Birmingham, and many other distinguished brethren. The ceremony of installation was most ably performed, and after the business of the lodge was finished the brethren adjourned to Bro. Townsend's, Kennan's Hotel, Cheapside, and partook of a very sumptuous repast. Afterwards the usual loyal toasts were honoured, and "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Headon," was most cordially received, the mere so as he had put aside an important engagement in order to forward the interests of the lodge. Bro. Wm. Cole, by permission of the W.M., proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," and referred to many services which had been rendered by that brother to Masonry in the province of Devonshire and elsewhere. "The Health of the Visitors" was proposed by the W.M., and in replying, Bro. Graham spoke in terms of unqualified satisfaction of the working of the ceremony he had witnessed that evening, and of the cordiality with which he had been received, not only in that Lodge of Instruction but in many other lodges with which he had had an opportunity of being connected during the time of his stay in London. He also referred to the grand ceremony which he had witnessed on the previous evening. He was followed by Bro. Greene, of New York, who in similar terms expressed his great appreciation of English Masonry, as he had found it carried out both in private lodges and at the Royal Albert Hall the day previously. Bros. Cole, Page, and other brethren also thanked the W.M. and officers of the Great City Lodge of Instruction for the great treat with which they had just been favoured. The evening was highly satisfactory, and the catering of Bro. Townsend was warmly praised.

PROVINCIAL.

ROCHESTER.—GUNDULPH LODGE (1050).—On Wednesday, April 28th, the installation of Bro. G. H. Curell took place in the presence of a number of distinguished brethren. The ceremony of installation was performed by P.M. Bro. John Nicholls, in his usual eloquent and impressive manner; after which the Worshipful Master presented to the out-going Master a very handsome Past Master's jewel. The W.M. then appointed his officers as under—Treasurer, P.M. Wyles; Secretary, P.M.G. Watson, I.P.M. Bro. T. Newton; S.W. Bro. T. Watson; J.W. Bro. J. P. Griffin; S.D. Bro. M. Barnes; J.D. Bro. A. Randall; I.G. Bro. W. Henderson. Stewards, Bros. Abott and Barnett; D.C. Bro. F. Newman; Tyler, Bro. Pearne. After which the brethren to the number of 60 partook of a banquet. The usual toasts were well received and responded to. Amongst those present were P.G.S.W. Bro. Page, and Bro. Blakey, Royal Navy.

Scotland.

WISIAW.—LODGE ST. MARY'S, COLTNESS (No. 31) had a meeting on the night of the 28th ult., which was largely attended by the members, in order to celebrate the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Freemasons of England. The chair was occupied by Bro. Kelso, R.W.M., who gave the toast of the evening "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," which was responded to with great enthusiasm by the brethren. Bro. T. Young likewise gave an address in praise of H.R.H., in the course of which he said, that through the Pope winning a Marquis Freemasonry had gained a Prince, which was received with great cheering from the brethren. The night was spent in song and sentiment.

ALLOA.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 69).—A special meeting of the brethren of Alloa St. John's Lodge of Freemasons was held in the Prince of Wales Hotel, on Wednesday, the 28th April, 28th April, 1875, in honour of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master Mason of England. The lodge was duly opened by Bro. G. B. Graham, W.M., assisted by Bros. John Philp, S.W., and James Brown, J.W., and other office-bearers, and members of the lodge in the apprentice degree, and was thereafter called from labour to refreshment, when the brethren partook of a service of cake and wine; the W.M., G. B. Graham, in the chair. The toasts of "The Queen, and Craft," and the "Three Grand Lodges of England, Scotland, and Ireland," being given from the chair, and duly drunk in true Masonic style, thereafter the W.M. called for a special bumper for the toast of the evening, and the cause of our meeting here as congregated Masons. The W.M. said they had assembled for the purpose of doing honour to His Royal Highness, who had that day been installed into the high position of Craft Masonry, and trusted he would be long spared to wield the sceptre of Masonic power; and after a few other appropriate remarks, gave "Long Life and Happiness to our Noble Brother, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master Mason of England," which was drunk amidst great enthusiasm, the brethren singing "Long Live the Prince of Wales." Bro. John Philp, S.W., gave "The Health of our Noble Brother, Lord Mar-and Kellie, Deputy Grand Master of Scotland," and expressed a wish the day was not far distant when his Lordship would fill the seat in Scotland which his Royal Highness had been installed into this afternoon in England, and he (the S.W.) knew he was expressing the feelings of every member of the Alloa Lodge 69, along with his own, when he said that would be a proud day for the Masonic brethren of Alloa, and an honour to the Craft at large, to have the Throne occupied by such a keen Mason and warmhearted nobleman as our brother Lord Mar and Kellie. I now ask you, brethren, to join with me in drinking long life and happiness to our much respected noble brother, Lord Mar and Kellie, which was drank in true Masonic style, after which Bro. Todd sang "The Braes of Mar." At this stage of the proceedings it was arranged that a couple of telegrams of congratulation be sent to London, one to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the other to the Grand Lodge of England—the one to his Royal Highness on his ascension to the Masonic Throne of England; the other congratulating the members of the Grand Lodge of England on having H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to rule over them. Bro. William Knox then gave our noble selves in proposing No. 69 Alloa. I don't know whether other lodges in Scotland have met to-night or not, but this I have to say is, that they ought to have done so, as true Masonry and Loyalty are inseparably allied. This is a memorable day in the history of England, and who that has the heart of a Freemason within him does not glow with rapture when he thinks of the future King of Britain being this day installed as Grand Master Freemason of England. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in thus placing himself at the head of this beneficent Institution has proved himself a worthy son of Albert the Good, and of our noble Queen, whose reign has been distinguished by that golden quality mercy, which is mightiest in the mighty, and becomes the throned Monarch better than his crown. We regard it as a sign that he appreciates the spirit of the time in which he lives, and the genius of the constitution over which he is destined, we believe, one day to preside. If there is any thing that places Great Britain above the other nations of the earth it is the multitude and variety of her beneficent institutions. It is to be hoped that some day, not far distant, our noble brother, the Earl of Mar and Kellie, will occupy the position of Grand Master of Scotland, an honour which he justly deserves, and which we would regard as an honour to ourselves. The toast of our noble selves having been replied to by Bro. S. N. Morrison, one of the oldest members of 69, the company was favoured with a song from one of the brethren. Bro. Morrison then gave the next toast, "The Visiting Brethren," coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Goudie, of Berwick, who replied in feeling terms, expressing his and the other stranger brethren's warmest thanks for the kindness No. 69 had shown them this evening. Bro. Goudie then favoured the brethren with the song "My mither ment my auld breks." Bro. Philp gave "The Health of our W.M." Bro. Graham replied in appropriate terms. Bro. Hill gave the toast "The Health of our S.W.," to which Bro. Philp made a suitable reply. Other toasts and songs having been given, and about 11 p.m. the brethren were called from refreshment to labour. After spending a most enjoyable evening, the W.M. closed the lodge in due and ancient form. On the following day, Thursday, 20th, the following telegram was duly received from Sir H. Knollys, Malborough House, London, to the W.M. of Alloa St. John's Lodge of Freemasons:—"The Prince of Wales desires me to thank you very sincerely for your congratulations and good wishes."

GLASGOW.—LODGE ATHOLE (No. 413).—At the fortnightly meeting of this lodge, on 27th ult., the P.G.L. of Glasgow paid its annual visit of inspection, the deputation consisted of Bros. A. McTaggart, Sec.; James Gillies, S.D.; G. Thain, J.D.; J. Ritchie, A.; John Fraser, Assist. Marshall; and A. Arlick Smith, I.G. These brethren having been received with the usual formalities, and taken their seats upon the dais, the P.G. Sec. (Bro. McTaggart), after congratulating the R.W.M., Bro. John Wallace, on having such a large and pleasant meeting that evening, reported that the deputation had examined the books of the lodge and found them in excellent condition, and also that the lodge continued to work in harmony with the constitution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. In connection with the books, the P.G. Sec. referred specially to the admirably well kept state of the cash book, and paid a high compliment to the esteemed Treasurer, Bro. Peter Agnew. He had to congratulate the lodge on having in that office so able a brother, such an old, well-tried, and faithful servant, and he thought they were well entitled to award him a hearty vote of thanks for his past services. He (the P.G. Sec.) was glad to observe that their funds had increased during the year to the extent of about £10. At last visitation the amount to the good was £88 15s. 7½d., this year it was about £98. They had distributed in private charity the sum of £6 10s., and had made during the year fourteen new members. Bro. McTaggart having concluded, the R.W.M. (Bro. Wallace) said he was sure they must all be much gratified at the favourable character of the P.G.L. report, as he was sure they would all have been very much dissatisfied had it been otherwise. From the character of their officers, however, they might have believed it would be such as it had been. He had very great pleasure in asking the brethren to propose a hearty vote of thanks to the deputation for their visit, and for the inquiry they had made into the lodge books; and said he was sure that since these periodical visitations were commenced the lodges had been far more punctual in their payments and more correct in their working generally. The vote of thanks having been accorded with enthusiasm, Bro. McTaggart returned thanks for the same, in the name of the deputation and of the R.W.P.G. Master himself. It was some little consolation to the deputation for their labours to get a reception such as they had met with that night. They had endeavoured to do their duty, and they hoped another year to find Lodge Athole in as good condition as they had that night found it. With reference to what the R.W.M. had said concerning the good result of these visitations, he (the speaker) had simply to state that this year the deputation had to note a visible, marked, and distinct improvement in all the lodges over the existing state of matters in former years. This, he thought, augured well for the future of Masonry within the province; and he believed there was not a member of the deputation but would do all that he had done in regard to these visitations over again, if he thought it would do the province good. The deputation shortly thereafter retired.

GLASGOW.—CATHEDRAL ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER (No. 67).—The regular monthly meeting of this chapter, on 27th ult., was likewise the occasion of their annual supper. It was held in the Masonic Hall, at 22, Struthers-street, Calton, First Principal, James Duthie, presiding. After a substantial and excellently-served supper, purveyed by Comp. Malcolm, the chapter was opened on the Royal Arch Degree, and the Scribe E. read the minutes of the two former meetings, which were duly approved of and passed. The companions then went on to harmony, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured with enthusiasm, more particularly that of "The Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Prince of Wales." The toast of "Cathedral Royal Arch Chapter" was given by the chairman. He said—It is customary to drink healths, whether sick or doing well. Now, the Cathedral Royal Arch Chapter seems like being in good health at present, and so are some of the companions here to-night. Whether the chapter gets on well or ill she always looks healthy-like on one night as the year goes round, and that is on the night of the annual supper. You must be all aware, companions, that we are here to-night enjoying ourselves, when the Cathedral Royal Arch Chapter is in its last year of the first quarter of a century. Having been established in the year 1850, the chapter is now 25 years old, and it is to be hoped that before another 25 years pass by, she shall have many captives made free, so that when her year of jubilee does come round it will be a season of great joy and festivity amongst her companions, which I hope may grow and increase into a multitude, and disperse, carrying her name with them to every clime, through the length and breadth of the universe. The toast list having been concluded, the chapter was closed in due and ancient form; and the companions separated after having spent a most harmonious and happy evening.

GLASGOW.—COMMERCIAL CHAPTER (No. 79).—This chapter continues to make satisfactory progress, and is now in what might be called good working order, since its reposal last autumn. We visited it on the evening of Friday, the 30th ult., and were much pleased to see a good attendance. Companion Brode, First Principal of the chapter, was present and presided, the other offices being filled by their respective occupants, or in their absence, by well qualified substitutes. There were two candidates for the Royal Arch Degrees who were duly admitted into the Mark Lodge connected with the chapter, as a preliminary to their further preferment and exaltation at another time. The ceremony was most efficiently performed by Bro. David Lamb, whose accomplishments as a careful student of the ritual are such as to entitle him to the highest honour in the Order. We must say that his rendering, not only of this, but of the Craft degrees, is at once instructive and striking. Calling his elocutionary powers into requisition, he invests the lectures, which in other circumstances are but dry, with a pathos and beauty which to be fully appreciated needs to be seen and felt. On this occasion Bro. Lamb if possible surpassed himself, and we congratulate the candidates on their good fortune in having had the degree conferred upon them at his hands. After the Mark Lodge was closed, the Royal Arch Chapter was opened for the purpose of investing Bro. Lamb as Deputy Principal of the chapter. This office was recently created in the chapter by a bye-law having been adopted for this purpose, and consequently this is the first time it has been held by any one. Companion Brode obligated and invested Companion Lamb, and afterwards presided at the reception of Companion James Duthie, Z, No. 67, who had been proposed as an honorary affiliated member of Chapter 79, in recognition of the many acts of kindness which he has rendered to the chapter since its reposal, by giving his able services in the various ceremonies at all times when called on, and otherwise assisting and encouraging the Office Bearers in their duties. Companion Duthie was hailed by those present with much applause as a member of the chapter. No further business being before the meeting, the chapter was closed in due and ancient form. The regular meetings are held on the last Friday monthly, in the comfortable hall of the Lodge Commercial (360), at No. 3, Hope-street.

Obituary.

FUNERAL OF BRO. CAPTAIN BRIDGES.

The mortal remains of Capt. Henry Bridges, whose lamented decease, in his 70th year, was announced last week, were conveyed to their last resting-place, in the Bridgewater Cemetery, on Saturday. The distinguished position which the deceased held in Freemasonry gave rise to the natural expectation, as soon as the fatal termination of his protracted illness became known, that the funeral would be a Masonic as well as military one, and that an opportunity would thus be afforded all those with whom he was intimately associated of paying, in public, their last token of respect for one who was held in such general esteem.

From an early hour in the morning the flags usually displayed in the town, with several additions, were half-mast high; many of the shops were partially closed; and during the forenoon a large number of visitors entered the town from the surrounding neighbourhood, and also by the trains. Special facilities were afforded to Masonic brethren by the Great Western, Bristol and Exeter, and South Devon Companies, and it was evident that a large number had availed themselves of the privilege, their mourning costume being an indication of the purpose for which they had come. The members of the 26th S.R.C., who mustered in full strength, paraded in front of the Armoury at a quarter to two o'clock. The corps was soon afterwards marched to West-street, there to await the arrival of the hearse, mourning coaches, &c., from Long Thorns, the late residence of the deceased. In the meantime the Masonic brethren, according to arrangement, met at the Royal Clarence Hotel, where the Lodge of "Perpetual Friendship," Bridgwater No. 135, has its head-quarters. On this occasion the lodges of Perpetual Friendship and Rural Philanthropic, High-bridge, No. 291 (of which the deceased was P.M. and one of the most active members), united, and a dispensation having been obtained from the R.W.P.G.M., the Right Hon. Earl of Carnarvon, brethren from a distance were invited to an emergent meeting of these united lodges for the purpose of taking part in the funeral. The ordinary lodge-room not being sufficiently large to accommodate all the brethren, the assembly-room was specially fitted up as a lodge. The room proved to be of just about the required capacity, and answered the purpose remarkably well. Before entering the lodge-room each brother was supplied with a sprig of acacia, which was worn in the button-hole of his coat, and a memorial card, setting forth the positions which the deceased brother held in Freemasonry, of which the following is a copy:—

"In memoriam V.W. Brother Henry Bridges, of lodges 1,222, 1,223, 906, 818, 683, 471, 446, 135, 106, 53, and 41. P.M. of 797, 772, 710, 463, 291, 33. P.G.S.B. England; P. Prov. S.G.D. Surrey; D. Prov. G.M., Somerset; P.Z. 291; P.G.D.C., G.C. of England, &c., born 2nd September, 1805; died 10th April, 1875."

Bro. George Ricks, W.M. of No. 135, assisted by Bro. Rev. J. C. Pigot, P.P.G. chaplain and W.M. No. 291, performed the duties of W.M., and Bros. Hunt and Batten those of S.W. and J.W. respectively. Letters were acknowledged to have been received from several Freemasons of distinguished rank, expressing regret at their inability to attend, and Bro. Rev. J. C. Pigot delivered a short and very feeling address in reference to the loss the brethren had sustained. Subsequently, the brethren, all of whom wore black mourning costumes and white gloves, as well as their Masonic clothing and jewels, every apron having thereon crape rosettes, were formed into procession, which was marshalled by Bro. J. B. Soper, P.M. 135, and Bro. H. W. Batten, J.W. 291, who officiated throughout as directors of ceremonies. The various lodges represented ranked in the procession according to seniority, the junior preceding and the members of the united local lodges bringing up the rear. As the brethren, walking two and two, and numbering about two hundred, wended their way through High-street, the whole length of which was fully occupied, the sight was a very imposing one. It was nearly three o'clock before the hearse, mourning coaches, and private carriages, &c., arrived from Long Thorn into West-street.

The band played the "Dead March in Saul," and when the cortege arrived at the cemetery gates the coffin of massive oak, with brass handles, &c., and having within it a lead coffin and shell, was removed from the hearse and borne upon the shoulders of some of the Volunteers. The mourners, including three brothers of the deceased, and accompanied by Messrs. J. and F. Parsons (medical men), next alighted from their carriages, and the Masonic brethren having formed into line on either side of the pathway, Bro. Rev. M. Shackleton, M.A., of Wincanton, Prov. Grand Chaplain, Somerset (who walked in the procession in his white robes of office), commenced reading the burial service—"I am the Resurrection," &c. In the church, which could only accommodate comparatively a few of the brethren, the Rev. J. West, of Aisholt, impressively read the rest portion of the service. The family vault of the deceased, close to the edifice, was, by this time, surrounded by a large number of Freemasons, the firing party having also taken up a good position, and room having been made for the officiating clergymen and mourners, the concluding and most solemn portion of the service was read by the vicar of St. Mary's—Rev. W. G. Fitzgerald. The coffin, from which had been just previously removed some of the insignia of the order of Freemasonry and Volunteer uniform worn by the deceased, but which still had upon it a beautiful wreath of flowers, was then lowered into the vault.

The ceremony having concluded, the Rev. M. Shackleton, P.G. Chaplain, appropriately addressed those assembled.

Immediately after the delivery of the address the firing party discharged a volley.

Before leaving, the whole of the brethren dropped upon the coffin the sprigs of acacia they had worn, and the procession was then re-formed, the members of the senior lodges on this occasion waiting in front, and the visiting brethren bringing up the rear. Although diminished in number, a great many spectators still lined the various thoroughfares along the route. The Masonic brethren again entered the lodge, which was closed in the usual form.

On the following (Sunday) morning, at St. Mary's Church, the vicar (Rev. W. G. Fitzgerald) preached an appropriate sermon.

The Graphic of this day's issue contains illustration of the Installation and Banquet.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

INSTALLATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AS GRAND FIRST PRINCIPAL.

The Quarterly Convocation of Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. The assemblage of Royal Arch Masons gathered together on the occasion was larger than has been known hitherto in this Degree. Acting on a natural presumption that as soon as the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England had been installed in that high office he would supplement his position in the Craft by taking the seat which goes as a matter of course with it in the Arch, Freemasons held the belief that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales would present himself for Installation as First Grand Principal on Wednesday; but there was no authoritative announcement made or information given that this would be the case. The paragraph in the daily press the day before that this event would occur was entirely unauthorised; and though the result proved the accuracy of the intelligence given the information was supplied only on supposition. But on arriving at the Hall it was evident that His Royal Highness was expected, for in place of the Zetland Room being prepared for Grand Chapter, as is usually the case, the Temple was arranged for the meeting; and the many companions who assembled on the assumption that they would see another installation of the Heir to the British Throne were not likely to be disappointed. In the clothing and signing room the companions were very numerous, and on repairing to the Temple there was found to be a still larger gathering, and the seats, which were very comfortably and symmetrically disposed, were well filled. The appearance of the Temple at this time was very pleasing, the showy, yet uniform, clothing of the companions, giving an exceedingly picturesque character to the assembly. It is almost needless to say that as a spectacle it was not to be compared to the grand sight of the former Wednesday, because there the immense number of Masons collected together naturally had the advantage of giving a more imposing effect; but the convocation of last Wednesday, though consisting of about a fortieth part of the same number, was striking even to the eyes of Royal Arch Freemasons. The Royal Arch Chapter is always more remarkable as a spectacle than the Masonic Lodge, and its "furniture" partakes much of the character of "stage properties." The ceremony of exalting a brother into the degree of the Royal Arch is also somewhat dramatic; but the Royal Arch has, notwithstanding, less members by many thousands than the plain Craft, the Mason's "first love," and to which he looks with never-failing affection. The Installation of the Prince of Wales as First Grand Principal, therefore, was attended by fewer Masons than his Installation as Grand Master, not because it was of less interest, but because the Royal Arch Companions are so much smaller in number than the Craftsmen, and because the fact that His Royal Highness would actually come up for Installation was not known among the companions.

It is impossible to give the names of all the companions present, but among them we recognised Companions Sir Albert Woods (Garter), Hugh D. Sandeman, S. Rawson, John Havers, Thomas Fenn, Hyde Pullen, John B. Monckton, Peter de L. Long, Joshua Nunn, the Lord Mayor, Rev. H. C. Levander, Dr. W. R. Woodman, E. S. Snell, R. J. Spiers, Rev. J. Edmund Cox, D.D.; Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C.; C. A. Merton, Francis Roxburgh, Q.C.; Joseph C. Parkinson, J. E. Saunders, H. Browne, Benjamin Head, W. Speed, John Hervey, F. Pattison, N. Bradford, J. A. Rucker, R. Wentworth Little, Major Creation, James Lewis Thomas, James Brett, John Boyd, Thomas W. White, Griffiths Smith, John Savage, W. Hilton, W. Ough, H. Mugeridge, James Terry, W. H. Noehmer, Robert Gray, Charles Lacey, George Neal, James Glaisher, Joseph Smith, W. Smith, C.E.; John Coutts, Jeffreys, Montague, H. Garrod, G. K. Lemann, C. F. Hogard, W. Paas, George King, Jun., D. R. Still, J. K. Stead, H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, John Hart, T. R. Parker, James Stevens, W. Stephens, Collard Moutrie, J. W. Halsey, Dr. Goldsboro, George Bolton, Colls, Trego, G. A. Smith, W. H. Green, Peter Matthews, Charles Watson, W. Mann, A. D. Lowenstark, J. H. Bellerby, and F. Adlard.

At the opening of the Grand Chapter, Comp. Havers took the Z. chair; Comp. S. Rawson, H.; Comp. H. D. Sandeman, J.; Comp. John Hervey, S.E.; Comp. J. E. Saunders, S.N.; Comp. J. A. Rucker, P.S.; Comp. S. L. Tompkins, 1st A.; Comp. E. S. Snell, 2nd A.; and Comp. J. C. Parkinson was Sword Bearer.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of last Convocation, Comp. Havers said he had to inform Grand Chapter that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of Free and Accepted Masons of England, was in attendance that evening to be installed and take the chair as Grand Z. of the Order. (Cheers.) He would therefore request the Grand Director of Ceremonies to form a deputation of companions to retire and conduct His Royal Highness into Grand Chapter.

The deputation, composed of Comps. Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C.; F. Roxburgh, Q.C.; Rev. J. Edmund Cox, D.D.; and F. Pattison, under the conduct of Sir Albert Woods, thereupon retired, and shortly afterwards returned, bringing with them the Prince of Wales and Lord Skelmersdale. As soon as the Prince of Wales entered Grand Chapter, the companions, who stood to receive the procession, cheered most heartily. His Royal Highness was conducted to the proper point in Grand Chapter, and addressed by Comp. Havers, who said that His Royal Highness having been elected by the unanimous voice of the Craft to be their Grand Master, he succeeded by right of that office to the possession of the chair of Grand First Principal. In accordance, however, with the laws and constitution of this Order, it was necessary that he should first go through a ceremony.

The Prince of Wales having bowed assent, he was formally constituted Grand Z., invested, and placed in the chair. The action was received with immense applause.

The Prince of Wales then proceeded with the official appointments for the year, and said that the Earl of Carnarvon, by virtue of his office as Pro Grand Master, would be Pro Grand First Principal.

Lord Skelmersdale would be Grand H.

Lord Skelmersdale was then constituted Grand Second Principal, according to ancient form.

Lord De Tabley was re-appointed J.

On the completion of these appointments,

The Prince of Wales said: Companions, it affords me great pleasure to bear this office; but I regret that my other engagements will not allow me to stay throughout the business of the evening. I can, however, assure you that it will be most agreeable to me to come among you on future occasions, and I may add that I have seized the first opportunity that occurred after my Installation as Grand Master to come up to Grand Chapter, and take the chair. (Cheers.) I return you my best thanks for your kindness to me on this occasion.

His Royal Highness then retired, accompanied by Lord Skelmersdale, the Lord Mayor, and the deputation, amidst renewed hearty cheering.

Comp. Havers resumed the Z. chair, and Comp. S. Rawson the H. chair, and the other business was proceeded with.

Comp. Havers said that by an oversight there had been omitted from the agenda paper the election of six members to serve on the committee for the year, but they would now proceed to supply the omission.

Comps. J. L. Thomas, P.Z. 13; James Brett, H. C. Levander, John Boyd, J. E. Saunders, and Joseph Smith were nominated, seconded, and elected as these six members of the Committee of General Purposes, and Comp. Havers announced that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales had nominated Comp. John Savage, President, and Comps. Benj. Head and J. L. Creation members of the same committee.

The following report of the Committee of General Purposes was then brought up by Comp. Sandeman, and ordered to be entered in the minutes.

To the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England.

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts from the 20th January, 1875, to the 20th April, 1875, both inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

To Balance 20th January	...	£526	4	0
„ Subsequent Receipts	...	475	13	0
		£1,001	17	0
By Disbursements during the
Quarter	...	191	15	6
„ Balance	...	810	1	6
		£1,001	17	0

which balance is in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., Bankers of the Grand Treasurer.

The committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Comps. Thomas Cooke, junior, as Z, John William Hancock as H, Robert Bindley as J, and eleven others for a chapter to be attached to the Marmion Lodge, No. 1060, Tamworth, to be called "The Marmion Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Rooms, Tamworth, in the county of Stafford.

2nd. From His Grace the Duke of Manchester as Z, Edward Israel Orford as H, John Clark Duncomb as J, and eleven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Merit, No. 446, Stamford, to be called "The Montagu Chapter," and to meet at the George Hotel, Stamford, in the County of Northampton.

3rd. From Comps. John Coutts as Z, William Bourne as H, James Summers as J, and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Ebury Lodge, No. 1348, Millbank, to be called "The Ebury Chapter," and to meet at the Morpeth Arms Tavern, Ponsonby Street, Millbank, Westminster.

4th. From George William Harvey as Z, Murray Richard Gissing as H, Charles Broad as J, and ten others for a Chapter to be attached to the Pacific Lodge, 1453, Reefton, New Zealand, to be called "The Reefton Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Reefton, in the Province of Nelson, in Westland, New Zealand.

These petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted, although they have not lost sight of the fact that the Pacific Lodge, No. 1453, has not been three years in existence. As, however, it is situated in the Province of Nelson, where at present no Chapter exists, the Committee recommend that the accustomed limitation of three years be not in this case insisted on.

The Marquis of Ripon having addressed a letter to the Grand Scribe, E., resigning the Trusteeship of the Funds of Grand Chapter, the Committee recommend that the resignation be accepted, and that necessary steps taken for carrying it into effect.

It is with very sincere regret that the Committee have to impart to Grand Chapter the melancholy intelligence of the decease, on the 9th of March last, of the E. Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, who had uninterruptedly presided over them since May, 1864. The Committee desire to record their deep feeling of sorrow at this sad event, and to express their sense of the great loss Royal Arch Masonry has sustained thereby, a sentiment which they feel assured will be unanimously participated in by the Members of Grand Chapter.

(Signed) HUGH D. SANDEMAN,

Capt. Sandeman moved and Comp. Saunders seconded the granting of all the above mentioned chapters, and the motions were carried unanimously. With reference to the Pacific Chapter, he reiterated what he had said on former occasions. The lodge not having been three years in existence, it had been the custom of Grand Chapter not to issue charters for chapters to be attached to them; but it had been brought to the notice of Grand Chapter, especially by himself as having a large experience of Freemasonry abroad, that it would be a dangerous thing not to give a certain degree of elasticity to this rule. As Royal Arch Freemasons Grand Chapter was in a great difficulty, inasmuch as brethren might join chapters working under the Grand Chapter of Scotland, and he thought it would be imprudent on the part of Grand Chapter of England if they made a hard and fast rule and not allow these applicants to join together as a chapter. If they were not so allowed they would go over to another constitution. He therefore recommended the granting of this petition. With reference to the paragraph in the report referring to the letter from the Marquis of Ripon, resigning his trusteeship of the funds of Grand Chapter, he moved the acceptance of the resignation and that steps be taken to fill the vacancy.

This having been seconded by Comp. Saunders, and carried,

Comp. Sandeman proposed the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon and the death of the Earl of Zetland, subject to the acceptance of the office by Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale.

Comp. John Savage seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Comp. Sandeman, with reference to the last paragraph in the report as to the late Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, said he should like to add a word to it. Every member of Grand Chapter would gladly sympathise with the Committee in the expression they had put on record of their very great regret at hearing of the death of one who had so long been connected with Royal Arch Masonry. Comp. Scott presided over the Committee of General Purposes for nearly eleven years, and the Committee wished to record their feelings of sorrow at losing him. Although they did not come before Grand Chapter with any proposition, the Committee felt that all in Grand Chapter would heartily sympathise with what they had done that night by putting on permanent record an expression of their sincere regret at the loss of a very loved and esteemed companion (Hear, hear.)

Comp. John Savage (President of the Committee of General Purposes) said that Comp. Scott filled the office so well, and behaved with so much courtesy to every one, that he was sure Grand Chapter felt that Royal Arch Masonry had sustained a very serious loss by his death.

Comp. Havers said he must add his testimony to what had been already said. He heartily and entirely concurred in what had fallen from Comps. Sandeman and Savage, and he grieved at the loss of such a right-minded and excellent companion.

The resolution was put and carried nem. con.

Comp. Sandeman thought that companions would be glad to learn that the Committee of General Purposes had carefully gone over the regulations, the alterations in which were confirmed at last quarterly Convocation, and he believed Grand Scribe E. would announce that they would very shortly be ready for distribution as altered.

Comp. John Hervey said they would; and he thought it but due to their excellent friend who had just addressed Grand Chapter to say that he had been good enough to take very great pains in revising the regulations for Grand Chapter, and he (Comp. Hervey) was personally deeply indebted to him for the assistance he had given him in the revision of those regulations. (Hear, hear.)

Grand Chapter was then closed.

CONSECRATION OF THE "BECTIVE" LODGE, CARLISLE.

On Friday, 23rd ult., a new lodge was opened and consecrated in Carlisle, its name being the Bective, No. 1532. There are, therefore, now two lodges in Carlisle, the name of the other being the Union, No. 310. A number of years ago there were two lodges, but for a long time Carlisle has only had one lodge of Masons, so that the "merrie city" cannot be said to have been taking its position in the county as regards Freemasonry. Wigton, with perhaps 4,000 inhabitants, has a lodge of forty brethren, Cockermouth, with a little larger population, a lodge of nearly the same number, and Whitehaven has long had two lodges. Amongst Masons, therefore, it has been felt that the county town, with over thirty thousand inhabitants, was behind the towns in the county with Freemasons' Lodges, and it has long been a matter of surprise that another lodge has not ere this been applied for. A few months ago a few of the members of the old lodge resolved to try to establish a new one, and sent up a petition to the Grand Lodge, and the preliminary and necessary inquiries having been made and satisfactorily replied to, a warrant was granted by the Grand Lodge, it being one of the first bearing the signature of the new Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, and intending members of the new lodge pushed forward their preparations with energy. A capital suite of rooms was secured, and a lease taken of them. They are situated at the top of Mr. C. Ling's building in English-street, opposite the Steel monument. The rooms are five in number, and comprise a spacious lodge room, banquetting room, business room, &c., &c. They have all been entirely fitted up and decorated anew, in excellent taste. The lodge room, especially, has been artistically and Masonically decorated, and the whole of the arrangements are about as perfect as possible. The lodge furniture, too, is very complete and handsome.

At first it had been intended to have the consecration on the 16th of this month, but Lord Bective, R.W. Provincial Grand Master, having fixed for the preliminary provincial meeting for the province to take place at Carlisle on the 23rd, it was resolved to hold both affairs together. The result consequently was to make the meeting one of the largest and most important of the kind ever before held in the province, as there would not be many short of one hundred brethren present—an attendance unprecedented in the province, either at a provincial meeting or the consecration of a lodge.

The proceedings commenced with the opening of an emergency lodge, by Bro. Taylor, P.M., Union Lodge, Carlisle, and P.P.G.D.C. The officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge were then announced, and were received with the honour appertaining to their distinguished position, the W.M.'s chair being taken (in the unavoidable absence of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the Earl Bective, M.P., by the Right Worshipful Bro. John Whitwell, M.P., Grand Warden of England, and Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The impressive and imposing and very ancient ceremony of the consecration of the new lodge was then gone through by Bro. Porter, Provincial Grand Senior Warden, of No. 327, Wigton, in a very perfect and able manner, assisted by Bro. the Rev. F. W. Wicks, of Whitehaven, Provincial Grand Chaplain, Bro. P. T. Freeman, Provincial Grand Organist, presiding at the organ with consummate skill and taste. A most efficient choir of brethren took the musical part of the ceremony with great effect.

The installation of the first Master of the new lodge then took place, when Bro. James Cook was duly presented, and was declared duly elected by the brethren of the Bective Lodge. He was then duly installed as Worshipful Master by Bro. Porter, P.M., P.G.S.W., and Bro. Gibson, P.M., Prov. G. Secretary, in their usual masterly manner. After being duly installed by the largest board of Installed Masters ever perhaps present at any installation in the province, no fewer than thirty-one being present, the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers, which he did as follows:—Bros. George Potter, S.W.; James Caddy Mason, J.W.; the Rev. Joshua Tyson, Chaplain; William Jobling, Sec.; Thomas Hodgson, S.D.; George Nookes, J.D.; George Thorpe, Org. Bro. George Hetherington was unanimously elected Treasurer, and Bro. Martin Higgins, Tyler.

The Worshipful Master then closed the Craft lodge, and the Provincial Grand Officers took their chairs again, and the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge was proceeded with. The Charity Committee had met previously, and their reports were unanimously adopted, and the votes of money for charitable purposes duly confirmed. The motion of Bro. Dodgson, of Millom, on the question of establishing an educational organisation for the education of children in the province being sons and daughters of deceased or prior Masons, stands over until next meeting, as does also the motion made by Bro. Alsop, of Whitehaven, as to the desirability of the brethren attending church in procession on the occasion of the provincial meeting.

The business of the lodge being finished, it was duly closed, and at about half-past three o'clock the brethren sat down to the number of nearly fifty to a banquet at the County Hotel, of which little more need be said than that it did every credit to the establishment. As well as everything in season being placed before the guests in most admirable style, the waiting and serving were perfect, and called forth the laudation of the company.

The chair was taken by Bro. Colonel Whitwell, M.P., R.W.D.P.G.M., supported right and left by Bro. the Rev. F. W. Wicks, P.G. Chaplain; Bro. Gibson, P.G. Secretary; Bro. Talbot, P.G.S.W.; Bros. Captain Heron Maxwell, the Rev. J. Beeby, P.G.A. Chaplain; Lemon, P.G. Treas.; J. Wheatley, P.M.; W. Carrick, Carlisle; W. Alsop, P.P.G. Pursuivant; J. Tyson, J.W., Whitehaven, &c. The vice-chair was taken by Bro. James Porter, of Wigton, P.M., P.G.S.W., supported by Bros. Kenworthy, P.P.G.J.W.; Cook, W.M., Bective Lodge; Taylor, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Thorpe, Organist, &c. Amongst the brethren present we noticed Bros. Gate, of Wigton, P.M., P.P.G.R.; Mc. Mehan, W.M., St. John's 327, Wigton; Quarter-Master Sergeant Noakes, 55th Regiment; Bain, W.M., Harrington; the Rev. Joshua Tyson; Pratchit. Bro. Tnope presided at the pianoforte. The toast list comprised the usual loyal and patriotic toasts until the room was "tiled," after which the Masonic toasts were given by the chairman and others. One novelty we noticed which is worthy of notice. Whether it was the fact of its being the anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare, or whether it was owing to the Shakesperian proclivities of some brother who had a hand in the arrangements did not appear, but, in addition to the regular toast list, there was a Shakesperian list, each toast being followed by a most apt quotation from the great poet. For instance, after the toast of "The Queen" came the quotation from Richard III.—"Many years of happy days befall our gracious over-erign, our most loving liege. Until the heavens, envying earth's good hap, add an immortal title to a crown." After the toast of the Right Worshipful Grand Master was the line from Henry IV.—"A braver place in our heart's love hath no man." In the course of an excellent speech the chairman alluded to the formation of the new lodge in Carlisle, and expressed his opinion that in a town of the size of Carlisle there was quite room for both the lodges. He said they had now nearly 900 Freemasons in the province, and he hoped their excellent Secretary, Bro. Gibson, would before very long have a thousand members' names on his books. After spending an hour or so in a truly Masonic and agreeable manner, the meeting broke up at half-past six o'clock, and concluded what was altogether one of the most important and successful Masonic meetings held in the north for some time.

It ought to be mentioned that the furnishings of the lodge were supplied by Bro. G. Kenning, of London, and were very much admired by all the brethren present. The decoration of the hall was done by Bro. Hill, of Carlisle, and is of a very suitable and tasteful character.—Carlisle Journal.

I thank you for reminding me of the number of years I have occupied the post I hold, it makes me push my thoughts further back, and embrace the whole period of my Masonic career; this career, chequered though the pavement of its path has been, has always been cheered by a love for Freemasonry, and I feel truly thankful for the assurance now given me that the esteem and affection of my brethren is the rich reward of that career. Accept my deep and sincere thanks for your sympathy with my infirm state of health, and good wishes for my voyage to regain strength, and believe me that nothing will afford me greater pleasure than to return speedily with renewed health to labour with you, and enjoy your society.

"I remain, dear brethren, very fraternally yours,

"P. J. DELISLE."

The following lodges were represented: Himalayan Brotherhood, 459; Charity, 563, Hope and Perseverance, 782; Wahab, 988; Ravee, 1215; Indus, 1279; Jumna, 1394; Mayo, 1413; Light in the Himalayahs, 1448; Sutlej, 1442; St. John the Evangelist, 1483; Industry, 1405.

District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 7.30, prayer being evoked by the D.G. Chaplain.

The acting District Grand Master informed the brethren that this District Grand Lodge had been assembled for the purpose of installing R. Wor. Bro. Marmaduke Ramsay as District Grand Master of the Punjab. The District Grand Director of Ceremonies having informed the Offg. D.G.M. that the deputation appointed to conduct the R.W.D.G.M. into Grand Lodge was ready, it was duly announced, the whole Grand Lodge standing to order, the organ playing a Grand March. The R.W.D.G. Master was conducted to the front of the Altar, and duly presented by Bro. W. E. Ball, P.D.G.S.W. The Offg. D.G.M. called upon the D.G. Secretary to read the Patent of Office from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of Freemasons of England.

The District Grand Secretary then read the Patent of Office.

The R. W. District Grand Master then addressed District Grand Lodge as follows:—

Wor. Sirs and Brethren,—

I do not intend to keep you long, but I feel on an occasion like this I am bound to say a few words. It is now nearly 4½ years since a D.G. Master addressed you from this chair, Right Wor. Bro. Mercer's last appearance having been at the communication held on the 27th October, 1870. During 1871 and up to October, 1872, Wor. Bro. Basevi presided over our meetings as D.D.G.M. with full powers. Since then I have had the honour of doing so in a similar capacity.

First let me return my best thanks to Wor. Bro. Daly for his kindness in coming up to instal me, and to congratulate him on the part of all here present on the admirable and impressive manner in which he has performed the ceremony.

Early last year, when Right Wor. Bro. Mercer intimated his intention of resigning, and desired to have the opinion of the leading brethren in the district as to a successor, a circular was issued addressed to all W. Masters, Past Masters and Wardens, and requesting that the replies might be sent to a committee of D.G. Lodge Officers, who were to open and record them.

I need hardly say, brethren, I saw none of the replies, so am quite ignorant of how any brother voted, or who voted or who did not; but I do know that the result of the voting was that a very large majority did me the high honour of naming me as the most acceptable successor in this Chair. The high office in which I have been installed this evening, I am happy to think I owe chiefly to the suffrages of the brethren over whom I am now to rule, and this makes the pleasure I feel at being appointed to so exalted a position in the Craft doubly pleasant to me. I return you all my most hearty thanks for the honour you have done me, and sincerely trust that I may prove myself deserving of the confidence that has been placed in me; and, the G.A.O.T.U. helping me, I will do all in my power to realise the wishes and hopes of the brethren.

The appointment of a new D.G. Master being a new starting point in Masonry, let us review very shortly the progress of the Craft during the past years. This District was founded, as you all know, in accordance with a petition sent to the M.W. the G.M. in 1868, and Right Wor. Bro. Mercer was installed in this Hall on the 12th March, 1869. There were at that time 7 lodges only in the province: Himalayan Brotherhood, Charity, Khybur, Hope and Perseverance, Wahab, Phoenix, and Ravee, and the first returns showed the total number of subscribing Masons as 217. At the end of 1869, Indus and Multan had been added to our roll. In 1870 Light of the North sprang into existence. In 1871 no new lodge was added to our number, but Lodge Phoenix having ceased to work for two years was placed in abeyance. In 1872, Jumna and Mayo got their warrants, but 1873 was the year in which Masonry took its stride in advance, the warrants of no less than six lodges having been either received or applied for during that year: Morning Star, Sutlej, Industry, Light in the Himalayas, Northern Star, and St. John the Evangelist. During 1874 the work of consolidating and strengthening went on, and no new lodge was opened, but the returns of the last quarter of 1874 show that we had on the 31st December on our rolls no less than 463 Masons. Thus since this province was raised to a separate District our lodges have increased from 7 to 17, and our subscribing Masons from 217 to 463. No one can deny that this is a real solid step in advancement; and not only has our number of lodges increased, but all are progressing in a most satisfactory manner. During the last two years every lodge I think has been officially visited by myself or one or other of the higher D.G.L. officers, and in every case the report has been a most cheering and satisfactory one.

The other point to which I wish to draw your attention is our Masonic Institution. It commenced first with Lodge Hope and Perseverance, and took its present shape in 1871. If you look back to the D.G.L. meeting of the 14th January of that year you will find the scheme all laid out in a proposition brought before the Board of General Purposes by W. Bro. Basevi, who was then D.G.S. Warden. We received from the funds of Lodge Hope and Perseverance about Rs. 4,000. At the end of 1874 we had so increased this sum that the account stood as follows: Invested money Rs. 12,800; in bank and Hon. Secretary's hands Rs. 6,366-4, or a grand total of Rs. 13,436-6-4. We are educating four boys, two at the Bishop's School at Simla, and two at the Lahore High School. So we may consider this Institution as financially in a most satisfactory state, and that the grand virtue of our Order, "Charity," is not neglected in the province.

In conclusion, brethren, a few words as regards myself. I cannot express to you that I feel to-night the highest honour to which a Mason can hope to rise, and which so few are able to attain, is now mine—thanks mainly to the brethren of this province. I don't care to make, and I am sure you don't care to hear, long protestations; but I ask you to believe that I speak from my heart when I say that all I can do to advance Masonry in this province, to distribute the honours of the purple fairly and impartially, and to endeavour to retain the fraternal affection of one and all of the brethren over whom I am now to rule, shall be done by me with all the earnestness and sincerity which I can bring to bear on it.

Before sitting down, brethren, I have to inform you that I have appointed W. Bro. Major G. N. Money, Past D.G.S. Warden, as D.D.G.M. of the district. I have also appointed W. Bro. J. R. Campbell, W.M. of Lodge Mayo, and an old P.M., to be D.G. Director of Ceremonies in room of W. Bro. Colonel Minchin, who, being unable to take up the duties, has to my great regret placed his resignation of that office in my hands.

Vote of thanks to Bro. Major Beamish, 36th Regiment, for making over the Vice-Presidentship of P.M.I. to the District Grand Master for the time being.

Resolution.—That this District Grand Lodge desires to return its most cordial thanks to Bro. Major Beamish, 36th Regiment, for having made over the Vice-Presidentship of the P.M.I. to the District Grand Master of this district, and directs that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to that brother with their fraternal good wishes.

The District Grand Secretary read warm and hearty letters of congratulation from the R.W. Acting D.G. Master of Bengal, from "Lodges Hope and Perseverance," "Ravee," "St. John the Evangelist," and "Industry," and other lodges of the district, which were ordered to be recorded and suitable replies returned.

Apologies were then read from the brethren who owing to distance and other causes were prevented from being present, which were ordered to be duly recorded.

There being no more business before D.G. Lodge it was closed in due form with prayer, at 10 p.m.

Treasurer Middlesex, who acted most efficiently as Director of Ceremonies.

In addition to the above mentioned, there were present Comps. Rev. S. R. Wigram, P.Z. 214, Grand Chaplain of England; Col. Wilkinson, P.Z., P.Prov. G.P. Soj. Cheshire; H. A. Dubois, 1326, Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex; G. Cooper, M.E.Z. 214; J. H. Spencer, 73; Mason, 73; F. Dawson, 188; W. T. Christian, 544; C. Eltham, 544; W. Skilleter, 829; J. G. Marsh, 975; J. Green, 975; E. E. Phillips, 379; A. Lucking, 1293; Spencer R. Weston, 7; J. C. Johnstone, J. A. Wardell, 1293; Rev. H. J. Hatch, 1293; Jas. Willing, jun., 177; T. W. Gower, 1293; W. T. Allen.

Those present who had signed the petition, having signified their approval of the companions named in the warrant to be the Principals, viz., Comps. Rev. S. R. Wigram, Z.; E. E. Phillips, H.; and A. Lucking, J., the chapter was duly consecrated. That interesting ceremony being ended, the installation of the Principals was proceeded with and carried out in a most able manner. The following officers were then nominated and elected—Comps. S. R. Weston, Treasurer; J. C. Johnstone, Scribe E.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, Scribe N.; J. A. Wardell, P. Soj.; Jas. Willing, jun., 1st Assistant Soj.; J. W. Gower, 2nd Assistant Soj., E.B., Mountain Janitor.

The musical arrangements were carried out under the direction of Comp. F. Dawson, 188.

The rank of Honorary Member was unanimously conferred upon E. Comps. R. W. Little, J. Percy Leith, J. Boyd, and H. G. Buss.

Several brethren were proposed for exaltation.

The business of the day having terminated and the Chapter closed, the companions adjourned to a sumptuous banquet provided by Bro. F. Cantor, and presided over by the M.E.Z. The usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given and responded to. E. Comp. J. Percy Leith, replied for the Grand Officers. In responding to the toast of the "The Masonic Charities" E. Comp. Little, the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, made an excellent speech, and in the course of his remarks mentioned that the Chapter would be represented at the annual festival on the 11th of May, as Comp. A. Lucking, J., had expressed his intention of serving as Steward. During the evening Comp. Rev. H. J. Hatch sang a song composed by himself in commemoration of the installation of the M.W.G. Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, which was enthusiastically received. The Janitor's toast having been given, the companions separated, all well pleased with a happy, instructive, and delightful day.

It is superfluous to add that everything passed off admirably, and that the chapter bids fair in every respect to be a worthy adjunct to the lodge from which it derives its parentage and name.

The furniture and appointments were manufactured by Comp. Geo. Kenning, and were very much admired.

The sixth Triennial Festival of the Railway Guards' Universal Friendly Society was held at the City Terminus Hotel, on Wednesday; total amount received £1,551; Bro. George Abbott's list amounted to £183.

In our report of the appointments of Grand Officers, we omitted to state that Bro. S. G. Homfray, Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Monmouth, was appointed Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.

As society advances in the paths of civilization the development of moral and social virtues increases with every step. Each stride in general culture owes its impulse to a different source, but whether attributable to the development of morality itself or to any violent and coercive measures of a progressive legislation, its results are always beneficial to the cherished Palladium of Masonry. Probably no social events can measure the welfare of the general community so well as the extensive establishment and patronage of societies for promoting sociality and general kindness, and when this barometer records the development of the original project into an important movement extending all over the country, and points to the simultaneous establishment of numerous prominent clubs in great centres of Masonry, it argues well for the health and strength of our Craft and the universal acceptance of our fundamental precepts; for as Masonry teaches, clubs realise.

It is therefore with unfeigned pleasure that we welcome the announcement of another club, which shall not only promote the laudable ends of all its confrères, but will be particularly devoted to the interests of Masons, and the practice of their immortal principles. Masons will be the only persons eligible for membership, and in the social seclusion, so to speak, of their club-house, surrounded by their brother Masons, encompassed by the paraphernalia of the Craft, with a library teeming with historic records and works speaking but of "universal good will," all friends and brothers without introduction, practising their mysteries over their after-dinner wine, recognising congenial comrades through the aromatic fumes of the smoking room, they will have nothing to remind them of the outside world, its doubtful pleasures and lamentable vices. This picture, if realized (and we see no reason why it should not be realized) represents a club as it should be, but as it can only be where the moral code of Masonry reigns in undisputed sway, and where every member knows his co-member to be free from those social vices which are tolerated in society, but which are inconsistent with the teachings of their common Craft.

The impulse which Masonry has received by the recent Installation of the Prince of Wales, the prominence into which it has been called by this great ceremony, the additional force which has thus been infused into its world-wide ramifications, render the new project most plausible. The concourse of provincial and continental brethren which has assembled in this great metropolis, will not fail to be surprised at the absence of an institution which in their localities has long been established, and found to be necessary and successful; and the good sense of the projectors in bringing their scheme before the public at so propitious a moment cannot but be fraught with pleasing results.

The project originated in the restless philanthropic activity of some of our brethren, who have wisely formed themselves into a Limited Liability Company, for the better consummation of their scheme. It will be seen that to render this project the success it deserves to be the movers must throw themselves entirely upon the generosity of their brethren, and we are sure that now the prospectus is published it will hardly be able to fall through for lack of support. It must be recollected that although Masonry is one great club in itself, and the entire world the scene of its labours, the practice of its moral and social precepts is better realized in centres specially devoted to their development, and acquires greater force from such excellent demonstration of their utility.

METROPOLITAN COLLEGE OF THE ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY.—The M.W. Frater, H. C. Levander, M.A., Master of the Temple, held the Quarterly Convocation at the Royal Masonic Hall, 68, Regent Street, W., on Friday, the 30th April. Present—R. W. Little, Dr. Harrison, Dr. Woodman, Hubbard, Matier, Dr. J. K. Smith, Goepel, George Turner, H. C. Levander, Church, Cubitt, White, Stanton Jones, Mackenzie, Thomas, George Kenning, P. M. Holden, and others. The following were balloted for and admitted to the grade of Zelator—Bros. Charles Horsley, 2, Staple Inn, E.C.; Capt. George Cockle, 9, Bolton Gardens, South Kensington, W.; Edward Amphlett, 32, Wimpole Street, Cavendish Square, W.; John Wm. Ellison Macartney, M.P., House of Commons, S.W. Frater Frederick Hockley, 167, Liverpool Road, N. (of the Bristol College), was admitted as a joining member.

"THE BATTLE OF THE DIETS."—It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and recent discussions that have taken place as to the value or worthlessness of various kinds of prepared foods, however distasteful they may have been to the manufacturers, who, from ignorance of scientific principles, have been extracting all the nutriment from their farina, seem likely to teach the public at large how to distinguish with ease between good and bad. A good general rule was laid down by Dr. Stone in a letter to the Times on the first ultimo. He tells us that whenever the food is perfectly white and of extreme fineness, it should be rejected as being almost entirely composed of starch alone. When, however, the natural brownish colour has been preserved, and nutrition has not been sacrificed to appearance, these foods contain even more nourishment than meat. One of this latter description is Dr. Ridge's Patent (cooked) Food, which has been long recognized as a most valuable article of diet, and the only efficient substitute for milk for infants and invalids, as while the process to which it is subjected during preparation renders it exceptionally easy of digestion, none of the nutritious properties of the pure wheat of which it is composed have been driven off, and it is therefore rich in all the substances necessary for forming flesh, blood, and bone.

MEMORIES OF THE GREAT INSTALLATION.

By this time most of our good brethren have gone home again, and find themselves amid the joys and comforts of their "own fireside." We trust that they will carry a tale back to those who will eagerly listen, of all that is precious and pleasant connected with that red letter day henceforth in our Masonic calendar, April 28th, 1875. They will, we think, take away with them, at least we hope so, many pleasurable reminiscences. They saw and heard their Grand Master, in all the warmth of his amiable kindness, and in all the manly sincerity of his genial nature. They witnessed a sight, that they will never forget, in the enthusiastic fervour of commander and brethren, and the most famous, and best disciplined meeting that our Order has ever been privileged to hold. Why, even to-day we are still regarding with astonishment and pride those serried lines of exulting Craftsmen. We even still can behold their manipulations. All honour to them! They came from all directions, and they proved themselves to be what we knew them to be, despite the vaticinations of some and the fear of others, a most warm-hearted, gentlemanly, amiable and loyal body of men, obedient to lawful authority, and eager to please and be pleased. Even the profane press, the Times for example, is deeply struck by the order, the zeal, the perfect subordination of that mighty assembly, and there can be no doubt, that that noble gathering has given, and will give, much additional "eclat" and "prestige" to our Order generally. The banquet passed over as well as the meeting, and the speeches were equally marked by good taste, much happy facility, and above all with true Masonic teaching. Anything more thoroughly and truly in the spirit of our old Grand Masters than the heartfelt expressions of our august Grand Master, we have never read, and we augur well indeed for the Craft and for him. The Duke of Connaught was loudly cheered, as he well deserved to be, and the Duke of Manchester's opportune little address deserves to be specially commended. Bro. Erasmus Wilson and his Board of Stewards demand all praise and many thanks. The genial Doctor himself made a very effective speech, and under his skilful direction there could be no doubt that not only was the festival itself a great success, but the guests thoroughly enjoyed their dinner. Some one has said that "the things of to-day are the things of to-morrow," but we doubt the truth of the axiom as regards April 28th, 1875. We shall never behold such another assembly again. It was quite pleasant to see so many old Freemasons, and to shake hands with so many ancient friends, and we are not likely or willing to let go its agreeable souvenirs. But, like as when one bids adieu to an old mate who is setting off for a distant clime, or just as when we leave some old familiar spot with a sigh and a wrench of the heart, so as we wish good bye to our great Installation gathering, as we say "valè" to its brilliant pageant, and its glorious heartiness, we do so with mingled pleasure and regret. Pleasure to have been present, regret that it is now a thing of the past! But for us in England it will never remain an event of imperishable recollections, and nothing can ever lessen its value or dim its grandeur to our English and loyal Craft. As Moore sang of old, it is still ever true in this mundane existence of ours, in great things as well as in humble—

You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.

THE ADVANTAGES OF DISCIPLINE.

It is well known that it is not an easy matter to move a large body of men. In theory it may seem a facile operation, and the book of manoeuvres may be very precise, but yet in practice it requires, as all know who have anything to do with such things, no little carefulness, much self-possession, and a great deal of "savoir faire," to say nothing of a "memoria technica." And so to many the control over from 7 to 8,000 Freemasons seemed somewhat dubious, and not a little hazardous. And yet here "without a casualty," such is the police report, they all moved in and they all moved out, without the least difficulty or the smallest confusion. Too much praise cannot be accorded to their commanders, too much admiration cannot be expended upon them. We do not know to whom exactly belongs the praise of drawing out the scheme for the arrange of the brethren, but we believe it to belong to Bro. Albert W. Woods and Brother Thomas Fenn alone. Whoever it was, has a clear talent for organization, and we may be glad that we have one brother or more capable of successfully handling and controlling large masses of Freemasons. But still equal kudos, we think, ought to be given to our brethren. An old soldier once said that the "greatest merit of all was to know how to obey orders," and certainly no body of men could have been more docile or more tractable than those many thousands of Freemasons on April 28th. Indeed, Freemasonry teaches us all the good lesson of discipline, whether general or personal, from first to last. From the time we see the light until we pass away from all of earth, so long as we are affiliated—and all Masons ought to be affiliated Masons—ours is a continuous exhortation, alike to discipline of self and discipline in the lodge. We are, as Lord Winchelsea once said of the great Duke, "taught to command by learning to obey," and he, in our opinion, is the truest Freemason who has learnt the best of all lessons next to self discipline, namely, obedience. And though Freemasons, like all Englishmen, have a slight tendency to grumble, they are not as a general rule either "frondeurs" or insubordinate. They are, for the most part, a very cheerful, contented, easily gratified, orderly body of men, amenable to authority, and loyal to their chiefs. We have, happily, few disagreements, and no cabals amongst us; complaints are unfrequent, and controversy is at a discount. Hence we have every element of stable prosperity and peaceful progress. And long may it so continue. Long may we be free from idle questions and hurtful logomachies, long may we remain a loving, a forbearing, a tolerant, an united Order. When we are gone, and another generation has taken our places, and they talk of our great Installation of 1875, may they be as happily cemented as we are in all fraternal good will, may they equally manifest the advantages of discipline, and of obedience to authority.

THE NEW GRAND OFFICERS.

We have much pleasure in being enabled to publish the following short memoirs of some of the new Grand Officers:—

JUNIOR GRAND WARDEN.

The Lord Mayor was initiated in the Tuscan Lodge, 14, in the year 1855; in 1857 joined the Grand Masters' Lodge, No. 1; served all the offices, including Master; appointed Grand Steward by the Grand Masters' Lodge; served the office and was appointed President of the Grand Stewards. Joined the Moira Chapter, R.A.; filled the three chairs and is M.E.Z., and will be promoted to Grand Chapter on Wednesday. Subsequently became a member of a Surrey lodge, the Frederick of Unity, also joined chapter connected with it. Is also a member of the Rose Croix and a K. Templar. Has served the office of Steward on several occasions.

GRAND CHAPLAIN.

The Rev. Spencer Robert Wigram, M.A., Balliol College, Oxon, vicar of Prittlewell, Essex, and rural dean, was initiated in Romford, Lodge Hope and Unity, No. 214; Past Grand Chaplain of the Province of Essex; J.W. Priory Lodge, 1000, and P.M. and P.Z. 214. Son of Bro. Octavius Wigram, of Bryanstone Square, for many years Governor of Royal Exchange Assurance, a very hard-working Mason; has devoted a great deal of time to the interests of the Craft in Essex, and is well known and extremely liked by all who have the pleasure of coming in contact with him.

JUNIOR GRAND DEACON.

Bro. Robert Grey was initiated into Freemasonry on the 13th February, 1860, in the St. Andrews-in-the-East Lodge, No. 222, and passed the chair of that lodge in 1865-6. He joined the Prince of Wales's Lodge, No. 259, on the 23rd February, 1864, and represented that lodge as Grand Steward in 1866. In 1869 he acted as one of the Stewards at the Inauguration Festival. In 1874, on the occasion of the Installation of the Prince of Wales as W.M. of the Prince of Wales's Lodge, H.R.H. appointed Bro. Grey his Deputy Master, to which office he was re-appointed this year. Bro. Grey assisted H.R.H. in the ceremony of initiating his brother, the Duke of Connaught, in March, 1874, and raised His Royal Highness to the third degree on the evening preceding the great event at the Royal Albert Hall. Bro. Grey served on the Board of General Purposes in 1865 as W.M. of the St. Andrew's Lodge; and is again a member this year as Deputy Master of the Prince of Wales's Lodge. He is Vice-President of each of the charities, of which he has served the stewardships four times. He is also P.Z. of Chapter No. 7.

GRAND SWORD BEARER.

Dr. William R. Woodman, Grand Sword Bearer in Grand Lodge, Grand Director of Ceremonies in Grand Chapter, is the son of an Exeter surgeon. He was a pupil of the late John Haddy James, surgeon to the Devon and Exeter Hospital, and a distinguished Waterloo officer; he afterwards served the office of house surgeon. He was appointed assistant surgeon to the "North Star" in the Arctic Expedition under Captain Sir Edward Belcher, but the appointment was not finally confirmed. When he had completed his medical career in London he went to Paris, to benefit by further study, and was just in time to volunteer his services as surgeon to attend the wounded of the Coup d'Etat of December 2nd, 1851, and was under fire during the three days and nights of that exciting period. He was initiated in the St. George's Lodge, Exeter, in April 1852. He afterwards joined the Grenadiers' Lodge, No. 66, worked his way up from the lowest office to that of W.M. in 1863 (this lodge has always been distinguished for its perfect working and strict ritual). He entered the Royal Arch in 1864, in the Britannic Chapter, No. 33, and served all the offices with distinction, and his working in the chair was unusually excellent and thorough. He was one of the leading brethren who assisted Bro. Little in transferring the Bard of Avon Lodge from Stratford-on-Avon to Middlesex, and saving it from extinction. He assisted in founding the Campbell Lodge in Middlesex, and is also a member of the Royal Middlesex Chapter. He is a Prov. Grand Steward of Middlesex, and Prov. Grand Sojourner in the same Province. He served the office of Secretary to the Lodge of Union (No. 444), Starcross, Devon, and is now S.Warden and W.M. elect. He has ever been an ardent supporter of the charities, all of which he has served with zeal, and it was a great pleasure to him to be called on on Thursday, the day after the Installation, in company with the Secretary (Bro. Little), to assist the Earl of Shrewsbury in escorting the deputation from the King of Sweden to the Royal Masonic Girls' School. He has also done good service in the Christian Orders, and has long held the office of Grand Recorder in the Red Cross and Secretary General in the Rosicrucian Society. He is a Mark Mason (No. 1 Lodge), a Knight Templar, and a Rose Croix.

ASSISTANT GRAND PURSUIVANT.

Bro. E. P. Albert was initiated in the Lodge of Joppa (No. 188), 23 years ago, passed the chair and all the various offices, and has acted as Hon. Secretary for 12 years. Was one of the founders of the Montifore Lodge, No. 1017; acted as W.M. for two years under an emergency, on the death of the first Master, and has been Hon. Secretary of this lodge for 7 years as a Royal Arch Mason, and served the Chapter as M.E.Z., similarly to that of W.M., on a pressing occasion, receiving the thanks of the lodge and chapter (inscribed in the minutes), besides substantial marks of their favour in the shape of a service of plate and a number of jewels; is an Honorary Member of the Lodge of Friendship (S.C.) at the Mauritius, which was unanimously voted to him for his services in procuring for the brethren a warrant under the Constitution of Scotland, electing him also Proxy Master to represent their interests at Grand Lodge. He is also an Honorary Member of the oldest lodge of Scotland (the Canongate and Leith), unanimously awarded to him for supporting the dignity of the Scotch lodges on some special occasion.

[We shall continue these notices next week.]

THE WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

We have perused the report of this useful subsidiary Educational Institution with much interest and attention. It seems, to use the words of the report, that "continued prosperity, progress and usefulness" are the happy lot of this benevolent offshoot of West Lancashire educational sympathies. The society has now vested funds to the amount of £11,515 1s. 4d., and the interest of the same amounts to £481 12s. 11d. To this has to be added the proceeds of the Masonic ball, £224, and donations and subscriptions to the amount of £588 19s., making a total of actual income of £12,999 in round numbers. If to this is added the balance of 1873, £695, and the repayment of a Mersey Dock Bond, £510, the audit side of the balance sheet reaches to £2516 1s. 10d. Per contra, paid for educating 46 children, and for the advancement of 3, £288 15s. 7d., some minor miscellaneous expenses, £61, in round numbers, and £1950 invested. The balance that is carried forward is £215 1s. 4d. Financially this is a very satisfactory report, and reflects great credit on the managers and the West Lancashire brethren. The committee propose now, "in certain cases," to grant also "clothing," and we think the suggestion a very good one, and likely to tend to the personal elevation of the children. The amount paid for education seems to range from £10 to £15s. annually, as the maximum and minimum amount respectively, and we feel strongly that the mere payment of a fixed sum is not in itself the only test of good education. We should like to ask one question, in all friendliness and good will, having had for years the education of the young very much at heart, how is the worth of such education tested? Is there any examination of the children? Any ascertaining of their actual proficiency? We are, from long experience, impressed with the advisability, in order to render education both valuable and lasting in its effects, of imbuing children with something of that "esprit du corps" which arises from a regular school residence, from kindly treatment, careful supervision, good food, healthy recreation and the continuous training under skilled direction. As an assistance to many struggling widows and widowers, as a great blessing to many a poor orphan, as a preservation, above all, from the workhouse, we think the West Lancashire Educational Institution, however, deserving of much commendation, and all "hearty good wishes." We wish indeed well to it and all our warm-hearted Lancashire brethren.

THE GRAND ORIENT AND THE CHAPITRES.

As some of our readers know, some time ago the Grand Orient of France decided by a large majority, to exclude in future all the representatives of the "Chapitres" from their body, that is, all who did not belong to symbolical Masonry. To this resolution no one had a right to object, as, even supposing, as some alleged, a "concordat" to exist between the High Grades and Symbolical Masonry, it was clearly in the power of either side to terminate such an arrangement. Indeed, we do not profess to understand how such an agreement ever could endure for any length of time, and we fully sympathized with the French Grand Orient in the difficulties of their position, and thought that on the whole their decision was the best solution of all the existing controversies, "qui juris nodos et legum enigmata solvit." But owing, it appears, to some intricate arrangements of which we do not quite realize the good or object, it is evident that, notwithstanding their removal of all the delegates of the "Chapitres" from the Grand Orient, the Grand Orient still claims to keep the control over and the regulation of the "Chapitres," through "Le Conseil de l'Ordre." Now, this it is which we cannot understand. They have dissolved the "liens" which bound the "Chapitres" to the Grand Orient, and yet it is asserted that "Le Conseil de l'Ordre," emanating from the Grand Orient, is still the supreme authority to which all the "Chapitres" are amenable, and which Conseil de l'Ordre is still practically the mouthpiece of the Grand Orient. So that the Grand Orient still legislates, in some fashion, for the Chapitres, though the Chapitres have nothing to do with the Grand Orient any longer. One would have thought that the simple and more Masonic way would have been to have allowed the Chapitres, henceforth, "entiere liberté," so that, if they liked to form a "Grand Chapitre de la France," they might have the opportunity and full consent of the Grand Orient to do so: It is, in our humble opinion, the only possible arrangement by which peace and fraternal good will can be preserved. It is impossible to suppose that the "Chapitres" will be content with the government of the Conseil de l'Ordre, and it is in vain for the Grand Orient, in our opinion, to try to do what no one else has ever succeeded in doing in this world, namely, to "have their cake and eat it." They have severed the Chapitres from the Grand Orient, and the Chapitres are "dans leur droit" in now seeking to form a government and central authority of their own. The Grand Orient have condemned three chapters, the chapter of "Candour," the "Star of Progress," and the "Free Knights of St. Andrew of Scotland," all in the Valley of Bordeaux, which have declared that, in consequence of the resolution of the Grand Orient previously alluded to, they have separated from the Grand Orient, and ceased all direct and indirect relations. We regret the step of the Grand Orient in the interests of Masonic toleration, justice, and fair play, as we cannot understand why the Grand Orient should wish to keep any authority over the High Grade Chapters which they have resolved are not to be represented in the Grand Orient itself. We are complaining against the Roman Catholic authorities for foolish interdicts and unreasonable condemnations, and here we have before our very eyes, such is the inconsistency of us all, proving too truly, "que nous sommes tous mortels," the Grand Orient of France, "frappant" with "major and minor excommunication," these three "chapters" in France. We are sorry for it, we repeat, as we think it a mistake, and we venture frankly to say so, because we are of opinion, though not belonging to the High Grades ourselves, that they have a right to fair play and Masonic consideration! It is their undoubted privilege, we venture to conceive, to establish, under their altered circumstances, a grand governing "Chapitre" of their own, rendered necessary for their independence and preservation, by the act of the Grand Orient itself.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND THE "SCOTTISH FREEMASONS' MAGAZINE."

We most deeply deplore, in the best interests of Freemasonry in Scotland, and as an act of injustice to a most loyal body of men, the Scottish Freemasons, the utterly uncalled for and very unbecoming remarks on this subject in our contemporary of May 1st. We believe that such opinions in no way represent those of our good brethren across the border, and will be at once repudiated by them one and all. The Scottish Freemasons are every whit as loyal as the English Freemasons, and the distinguished deputation from Scotland was most warmly greeted in Grand Lodge, April 28th.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—E.O.]

AN INSTALLATION JEWEL. To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Deeply delighted as I was with the Installation, being privileged to be present, I yet cannot but feel for many excellent and disappointed brethren. It has occurred to me that, as a consolation to many who, absent in body, were present in spirit, our Royal Grand Master might authorise the institution of an Installation Commemoration Jewel, to be worn by all affiliated Freemasons at the date of his installation. Such a jewel would be a happy commemoration of a great event. If the jewel had simply an enamel miniature of our Grand Master, surmounted by the Prince of Wales's feather, and on the reverse the five-pointed star, with these watch words, "Loyalty and Charity," April 28th, 1875, it would commend itself to the devotion and sympathies of thousands of our Order. I trust too that, well managed, such an institution might greatly benefit our charities and Masonic benevolence. All applications should come through the Masters of Lodges to the Grand Secretary, on a form prepared for that purpose, and the jewel should be sent to the W.M., and given in open lodge.

If the Board of General Purposes would issue a notification to the Craft that they would receive a design for such a jewel, many, no doubt, would be sent in, and, selecting the most appropriate, they could contract with some one Masonic jeweller to supply the authorities with the number they required from time to time. The price for each, as delivered to the W.M., would be fixed by the Board of General Purposes, the W.M. and lodge would be responsible for the amount, and after the jeweller was paid as per contract, the overplus on each jewel, which on the whole would amount to a considerable sum, could be divided by the Board of General Purposes among such of our Masonic Charities as most needed it, or might be paid over to the Grand Treasurer for the Fund of Benevolence. Some may object to the mixing up of charity with such a matter as the institution of a Commemorative Jewel, but I, on the contrary, think it a very good and wholesome restraint on any tendency we have to fine ornamentation, as I have felt that those who want a "pine apple" must pay for it. Besides, as our Order is emphatically a charitable as well as a loyal Order, in this as in everything else, we are true to our watchword, and make loyalty and charity go hand in hand.

I am, dear Friend and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

A PAST GRAND CHAPLAIN.

THE EARL OF CARNARVON ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The great Masonic event which has just taken place, and which is so well portrayed in your columns—viz., the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as the Grand Master of the English Freemasons—is one which will long be remembered, and prove a landmark in the annals of the Craft. After the Prince had been duly robed and chaired, he was thereafter addressed or admonished by the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, in a most admirable speech, which might have been faultless had the Right Honourable Speaker not marred it by unnecessarily introducing certain pseudo historical remarks, based, as it appears to me, not upon fact, but upon fiction. The words which I object to are in the latter portion of the remark—"Freemasonry possesses many titles to respect, even in the eyes of the outer world. It has first of all a great antiquity—an antiquity ascending into the sphere, I may say, of immemorial tradition." And further on, where the speaker says—"Formerly, through the dim periods of the middle ages, it carried its records upon the public buildings of Europe, upon the tracery of the cathedral windows, and the ornamentation of palaces." Now, as a student of the history of Freemasonry, I beg to say that, so far as I can judge from the records which I have perused, our Freemasonry is not of "great antiquity," for no evidence has been produced of its existence even so recently as two hundred years ago. (Even you, yourself, brother Editor, at page 178 of to-day's Freemason, relegate the "legends" of King James I., Charles I. and II., William III. being Freemasons to "pre-historic times.") Consequently to talk of it "carrying its records" upon cathedrals and palaces "in the middle ages" is simply absurd. If however our Right Honourable brother is possessed of private evidence supporting his statements, as yet unknown to other Masonic students, I shall be both ready and willing to withdraw, and apologise for the foregoing criticisms so soon as I have seen or heard and duly weighed this new evidence. In concluding this letter I would beg leave to add that it is written in no mere captious spirit, but from a pure desire to support or bring out the truth. I am very glad indeed that the void left by the retrogression or retirement of the Marquis of Ripon has been more than filled up by the accession of the Prince of Wales, who I trust will long be spared to fill with honour the high position he holds.

I am, yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN.

THE FATHER OF FREEMASONS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"The Father of Freemasons," says the Illustrated London News, in their issue of April 10th, commenting upon the decease of a Bro. D. Osmett, who died at Sherborne, Dorset, on the 21st ult., at the advanced age of ninety-nine years, "was the oldest member of the Craft." This is incorrect, as the respected deceased brother was initiated in the Lodge of Benevolence No. 459, Sherborne, in January 1820, and, being partially blind, his deserving and honourable conduct caused his election as an annuitant on the Royal Masonic Benevolent Fund till the time of his death. During the last four years he was a constant worshipper at the Abbey Church, Sherborne, celebrating his last three birthdays by partaking of the sacred Eucharist, his health being good till within a few weeks of his death. Deceased was born on Midsummer-day 1775, and lived with his daughter (Mrs. Guppy), who devoted much loving affection towards him in his declining years. The Illustrated is in error regarding "The Father of Freemasons." Our correspondent acknowledges the respect due to the advanced age of 99 years, but he veritably assures us that Bro. Isaac Townsend, a younger man, born in Essex, July 26th, 1793, Sic in copy, is an older member of the Craft, he being initiated into the rites of Masonry in Lodge 79, Greenwich, in March, 1793, Sic in copy, subsequently affiliating himself to Lodge 158, of Sheerness (Adam's), on the 7th January, 1834. Bro. Townsend was W.M. in the year 1840; Z in the Royal Arch 1845; G. R. for the province of Kent 1853, and 28 years Secretary of Adam's Lodge. He has the pleasing recognition of his untired services to the Craft by the presentation of a valuable watch, as also a pair of gold spectacles, in case mounted with silver, with a suitable inscription, for his energy and zeal, in forwarding the cause of Masonry. We are also creditably informed that P. W. Thorpe, of Ashford, although younger, is an older Mason than the deceased brother.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL.

We are glad to be able to publish this appeal in the interest of common humanity.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir,—

Permit me, on behalf of the committee of the Seamen's Hospital, to draw your kind attention to the accompanying appeal for funds in aid of an institution so worthy of your support—the applicants for admission are numerous—the need of help is urgent—donations will be thankfully received; but specially do the committee plead for additional Annual Subscriptions, to impart increased persistence and steadiness to their operations.

The committee rely upon the generous support of the Press to aid them in their present great necessities.

I am, dear Sir, yours sincerely,

H. BURDETT, Secretary.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly state in your next edition whether H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh is a member of our ancient Order or not, as I often read of his health being proposed as such. I think it quite necessary every Freemason should be in possession of this information, and I know of no better means than through your valuable columns.

Your early reply will oblige,

Yours fraternally, "MASTER MASON."

[The Duke of Edinburgh is not a Freemason.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In looking over a periodical the other day I saw the assertion that a lady was a Freemason, and she was likewise the founder of the Dublin Benevolent Institution for Orphan Daughters of Masons, and it further states that she was the Hon. Mrs. Aldworth; will you kindly inform me, through the medium of your paper, if these facts are true. T. R. D.

THE MOIRA APRON.

The following is the description of the Moira Apron taken from "Freemasons' Magazine," November, 19, 1859, page 386, Vol. II., 1859, or rather Vol. I., new series:—

"The design of this apron is truly unique. I shall state the outline in reference to the figures represented in the margin.

"Fig 1. Enoch, the Priest, Excellent Grand Master, in posture of adoration. 2. Moses reading the Tables of the Law, and the measuring rod with Aholiab and Bezaleel. 3. St. John with his banner and the lamb. 4. His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, G.M.; the Earl of Moira, A.G.M.; and the Duke of Sussex, D.G.M. 5. A perfect Masonic Abraxis surrounded by rays, the iris in a peculiar manner. 6. The G.M. of Scotland, the G.M. of Ireland, and the Earl of Moira in the centre pleading for a union of all the lodges. 7. Solomon King of Israel, Hiram King of Tyre, and Hiram Abiff. 8. St. John with the Holy Bible. 9. Z, H and J. All the figures are most beautifully engraved in their respective and appropriate robes, and printed on leather for an apron, and on paper for a frame.

"2, Lower College-street, Bristol, January 6th, 1873."

My quotation about the "Moira Apron" is quite correct, viz., "Freemasons' Magazine," Vol. 1, for 1859, "not Vol. II." Volume II. is for the first half of the year 1860.

HENRY T. BOBART.

[Our brother is correct in part and so are we. The quotation occurs in the 2nd part of the actual volume for 1859, though it is Vol. I. of the new series. Vol. I. is properly the volume from January to June.—Ed.]

THE MASONS' COMPANY.—No. 2.

The Freemason for May 1st, 1875, will not only be remarkable because of its being the Royal number, but I venture to state that the communication from Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., on the above subject will also make it one of the most valuable ever issued in an archaeological sense.

Bro. Woodford has condensed the result of his inquiries of the Clerk of the Masons' Company under eight divisions, as follows:—

1. Ashmole is correct in saying, that Mr. Wise was Master of the Masons' Company in that year, 1682. (Not 1862 as in Freemason.)

Ashmole makes the statement in his diary March 10th, 1682, and which is the second time he alludes to Freemasonry in that interesting journal. The first is dated October 16th, 1646, and is to the following effect:—"I was made a Freemason at Warrington, in Lancashire, with Colonel Mainwaring of Karticham, in Cheshire; the names of those that were then at the lodge, Mr. Richard Penket, Warden; Mr. James Collier, Mr. Richard Sankey, Henry Littler, John Ellam, and Hugh Brewer."

2. All the names he mentions are traceable in the minutes of the Masons' Company, except Sir William Wiseman and Captain Richard Borthwick. Mr. William Woodman was admitted a member of the Masons' Company in January, 1678. Mr. Thomas Shorthose's name appears frequently in the minutes, as being Warden, and also on the Court; he was Warden in 1677.

The extract alluded to by Bro. Woodford is as follows, by which it will appear that no mention is made of "Sir William Wiseman" referred to by our indefatigable brother, but of Mr. William Wise. May this not account for his name not being found in the register? If so it is worth another search, as in all probability Mr. William Wise was a relative of Mr. Thomas Wise, the Master of the Company in 1682.

Under date March 10th, 1682, occurs this important entry of Ashmole's:—"About 5 p.m. I received a summons to appear at a lodge to be held the next day at Masons' Hall in London. Accordingly I went, and about noon was admitted into the fellowship of Freemasons by Sir William Wilson, Knight; Captain Richard Borthwick, Mr. William Woodman, Mr. William Grey, Mr. Samuel Taylour, and Mr. William Wise. I was the senior fellow among them (it being thirty-five years since I was admitted); there was present, besides myself, the fellows after named. Mr. Thomas Wise, Master of the Masons' Company this present year; Mr. Thomas Shorthose, Mr. Thomas Shadbolt, —Wardsford, Esq.; Mr. Nicholas Young, Mr. John Thompson, and Mr. William Stanton. We all dined at the Half Moon Tavern, in Cheapside, at a noble dinner, prepared at the charge of the new accepted Masons."

3. There is no record of the meeting of the Company on March 10th, 1682, at least, "there is no minute to that effect."

If there had been it would not follow that it meant the one described by Ashmole, and as there is internal evidence of the two Societies being distinct, we quite agree with Bro. Woodford that the assembly at which Ashmole was present was a purely speculative lodge of Freemasons.

4. Neither is there any record of the dinner at the Half Moon, Cheapside, on that day, as stated by Ashmole.

We should like to know, however, if the Masons' Company was in the habit of dining at the "Half Moon," for it is not unlikely that the two Societies were on most intimate terms.

5. There is no minute that the Hall in Basinghall-st. was lent to the Freemasons.

Was there another Masons' Hall in London at this date? If so, where? Was it usual for a minute to be made when the Hall was lent for other purposes than those required for the Company, and is it not likely that the Hall was not used exclusively at the period in question for the Company's business? We still think it likely that this Hall is the one referred to by Ashmole, but of course without further evidence it is impossible to decide the matter, and so we must wait patiently and gratefully for any subsequent information from Bro. Woodford's most important researches on a subject hitherto either neglected by Masonic students, or beyond their abilities to secure an authentic account of, as it has proved with us.

6. Ashmole was not a member of the Masons' Company.

This statement, brief as it is, is about the most suggestive of the whole, and to our mind establishes the fact, that the society which met in 1682, as already noted, was not the Masons' Company.

7. Sir Christopher Wren was not a member of the Masons' Company.

This is also a fact which should be carefully considered, for as our old documents are discovered, and neglected MSS. are studied, they one by one appear to confirm the fact of Sir Christopher Wren having had little to do with our Freemasonry.

8. Robert Padgett was not Clerk to the Masons' Company in 1686; his name, after a careful examination, is not to be found in the minutes of the Masons' Company.

Bro. Padgett's signature occurs to the "Antiquity MS.," of which an exact transcript is to be found in our "Old Charges of British Freemasons," and, as Bro. Woodford points out, he describes himself as "Clerke to the Worshipful Society of the Freemasons of the City of London," which would not be the title of the Masons' Company, and consequently proves the two Clerks, just as the two societies, were distinct.

I wish Bro. Woodford every success in his examination of the fabric rolls of St. Paul's, and congratulate him most sincerely on his success in his researches respecting the Masons' Company. I do so the more warmly, well knowing what such a pursuit involves, and also being aware that other Masonic pursuits (including myself) have not succeeded in achieving what he has done. His question also about the Ashmole MSS. will, I trust, be answered to the satisfaction of all concerned and interested in such enquiry.

Invalids too often fruitlessly exhaust every effort to obtain release from their sufferings, when a little reflection and moderate faith would supply them with a remedy for Rheumatism, Gout, Colds, &c. Holloway's Ointment, well rubbed upon the skin, after repeated fomentations, gives instant relief on these diseases. Thousands of testimonials bear witness to the wonderful comfort obtained from this safe and simple treatment, which all sufferers can instantly and successfully adapt, without any further advice, than is afforded in the accompanying directions. Holloway's Ointment, assisted by the judicious use of his Pills, is specially serviceable in assuaging the suffering from cramps, other muscular pains, and the great inconvenience of varicose veins.—Advrt.

VISIT OF THE SWEDISH DEPUTATION TO THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

On Thursday, the 29th ult., the day after the Installation of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, Bros. Count Saleza, Admiral Lagercrantz, Baron Beck-Früs, Baron de Mecklenburg, and Oscar Dickson, the deputation from the King of Sweden and Norway to the Installation, accompanied by the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot and Viscount Ingestre, Dr. W. R. Woodman, Grand Sword Bearer, and Bro. R. Wentworth Little, paid a visit to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise. On their arrival at the school they were met by some of the members of the House Committee, including Bros. Griffiths Smith, Joshua Nunn, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, and Alderman Randall, of Oxford, Alderman Spiers, of Oxford, and Bro. Massa, Surveyor of the Institution. They were then introduced to Miss Davis, the head governess, and the other governesses, and conducted over the building and grounds. At the conclusion of the inspection Miss Davis put the children through their calisthenic exercises, and vocal and instrumental musical performances. The children afterwards gave several recitations in English, French, and German. The Earl of Shrewsbury addressed the children, and the Count de Saleza also spoke, expressing the great pleasure he and the other members of the deputation had experienced in visiting the school, and seeing all the inmates so well, so happy, and so admirably educated and cared for. He concluded by asking for a half-holiday for the pupils, and on this being granted he was saluted with ringing cheers from the whole school. The Earl of Shrewsbury also expressed his pleasure at what he had witnessed, not for the first time; and after many cordial greetings the company returned to town.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this School met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, and was numerously attended. Bro. John Wordsworth was in the chair, and the other brethren present included Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Raynham W. Stewart, Jesse Turner, John Symonds, Hyde Pullen, W. Mann, Benjamin Mallam, Leopold Ruf, S. Rosenthal, Benjamin Head, H. Browne, R. B. Webster, W. H. Saunders, J. G. Chancellor, J. Llewellyn Jones, W. F. C. Moutrie, F. Adlard, W. Clifton Crick, S. R. Wilson, H. Dubosc, E. M. Haigh, D. W. Pearse, and F. Binckes (Secretary). Two petitions were received, and two outfits granted to ex-pupils; after which the nominations for the House and Audit Committees took place, and the brethren proceeded to discuss other subjects, which kept them engaged for nearly two hours. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution assembled on the 29th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. The chair was taken by Major J. Creaton, M.P., who was supported by Bros. H. Browne, A. H. Tattershall, Raynham W. Stewart, Dr. Ramsay, Thomas W. White, H. M. Levy, the Rev. J. M. Vaughan, H. A. Dubois, H. Dubosc, Richard Spencer, Robert B. Webster, Capt. Wordsworth, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little, Secretary.

There was but little business before the meeting. The minutes of former meetings were read and passed, and the petitions of three candidates were received and admitted. One petition was deferred.

The Chairman was authorised to sign cheques in payment of bills, and after a vote of thanks had been accorded to the Chairman the meeting separated.

Heaven bless him for our country,
Our Queen, and Princess dear,
And hear our prayer to spare him
Thro' many a future year.

Oh! from our, &c.

With loyal hearts applauding,
With joyous loud acclaim,
We hail our new Grand Master—
Our Royal Brother's name.

And Heaven-born Charity.

A SERIOUS FIRE.—Many brethren will regret to hear that St. James's Hall, Liverpool, owned by Bro. Sam Hague, was almost entirely destroyed by fire last Saturday evening. The whole of the roof of the hall was destroyed. The scenic effects, properties, dresses, instruments, &c. were also burned, and the interior of the once beautiful hall is now a mass of charred ruins. A short time ago Bro. Hague bought the building for £30,000. The loss is to some extent covered by insurance, the building being insured for £5000, and the fittings for £4000, but Bro. Hague will suffer much by the occurrence, and the greatest sympathy is expressed for him on all hands. Among the articles destroyed was Herr Schalkenbach's marvellous electric organ, which cost him 15 years' labour and study, and which it will be impossible to replace.

Masonic Tidings.

NOTICE.—The brethren are requested to kindly return any articles they may have picked up in Albert Hall, to the Grand Secretary's Office.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., gave a dinner at Marlborough House, on the 30th ult., to Count de Saleza, Admiral Lagercrantz, and Mr. Oscar Dickson, the members of the deputation who were appointed by his Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway to represent the Grand Lodge of Sweden at the installation of his Royal Highness as Grand Master of the Freemasons of England. The following were invited to meet them:—His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Manchester, his Excellency the Swedish and Norwegian Minister (Baron Hörschöld), the Marquis of Hamilton, the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Rosslyn, the Earl of Limerick, Lord Suffolk, Lord Skelmersdale, the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Albert Woods, Mr. Sheekleton, J. Hervey, Major Pickard (in attendance on the Duke of Connaught), General the Right Hon. Sir W. Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel A. Ellis.

It is rumoured that private information has been received by a resident in Douglas that Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., contemplates visiting the Isle of Man during the summer.

Previous to the installation of the Prince of Wales, on Wednesday last, Bro. Fredk. Whitaker, P.M., P.P.J.G.D., W.M. St. James's Lodge, 448, entertained to luncheon, at his hotel, (Bro. Hogg's Royal Opera Hotel, Bow Street, Covent Garden, London,) brethren to the number of 30, representing lodges St. James's, 448, and De Warren, 1302, Halifax; Three Graces, 408, Haworth; Savile, 1231, Elland; Prince Frederick, 307, Hebden Bridge; Trafalgar, 971, Batley; and Friendly, 1513, Barnsley. Bro. Thomas Ogden, W.M., Three Graces, 408, proposed the health of Bro. Whitaker in very appropriate terms; and in responding to the toast, the latter said that as the brethren had come so great a distance to be present at the most important ceremony that had ever taken place in the annals of Freemasonry, he hoped all of them would do their best to carry out the regulations of the Stewards, and that everything would be so conducted that each of them might feel perfectly satisfied with the day's proceedings.

Mr. Charles Watkins, of Parliament-street, has had the honour of attending at Marlborough House, and has been favoured with several sittings by the Prince of Wales in full Masonic dress, as the Grand Master of the Freemasons of England. Prince Louis of Battenberg also honoured Mr. Watkins with sittings.

The Duke of Connaught has arrived at Aldershot for the purpose of doing duty as Brigade-Major of Cavalry at the Camp until the end of July.

THE CHARLES LAMB MEMORIAL.—The Rev. G. C. Bell, head master of Christ's Hospital, makes another appeal on behalf of the Charles Lamb memorial, which he suggested at the centenary of Lamb's birthday recently. He has received only about £25. He says there must be many "Blues" and others who might find it hard to give a large subscription, but could find a few shillings wherewith to express their sympathy for the proposal to honour Lamb's memory. Scarcely any writer of his generation won the affection of so large a circle of readers; and certainly no Blue has done more to make Christ's Hospital a household word among thousands of educated men than Charles Lamb did by his two characteristic essays. Mr. Bell adds that he has received suggestions to devote the fund that should be raised to one or more of the following objects:—An English essay prize, in the shape of books or medals (which might bear on one face the profile of Lamb); a Scholarship for the encouragement of the study of English literature and composition; a "mural of sculptural record." The first of these has received the most support. But not even the most unpretending of these suggestions can be carried into execution with the amount at present subscribed.

The Pictorial World contains portraits of the M.W.G.M., the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, the Grand Master, the Lord Mayor, J.G.W., the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Leopold.

The anniversary festival of the Churchill Lodge of Freemasons was held on the 4th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Oxford, where there was an unusually large and distinguished gathering of the brethren, among those present being Brother H.R.H. Prince Leopold. A récherché banquet was served at half-past seven.

The Prince of Wales, on behalf of Her Majesty, will hold a levée at St. James's Palace on Monday, the 31st instant.

ST. HELEN'S, BISHOPSGATE STREET.—On Saturday (this day) at 3.30 p.m., the members of the Architectural Association will, by the kind permission of the Vicar-in-Charge, Bro. the Rev. J. E. Cox, D.D., visit the venerable church of St. Helen, Bishopsgate-street, when a paper upon its history and antiquities will be read by the President, Mr. George H. Birch. During the recent restoration many important architectural features have been discovered, and the addition of several fine monuments from the destroyed church of St. Martin Outwich has added considerably to the picturesque beauty of this ancient edifice, the merits of which deserve a larger recognition from the public than it has hitherto received. As admission to the church will not be restricted to members of the association, it may be as well to direct special attention to a few of its most noted monuments, of which the Otswiche effigies in the Lady Chapel excel in beauty and refinement of workmanship, to those of Sir John and Lady Crosbie (circa 1475) in the Chapel of the Holy Ghost; and, belonging to a later period, the superb figure of Sir William Pickering, said to have been an aspirant to the hand of Queen Elizabeth; as also to the costly but more debased effigies of Sir John and Lady Spencer, ancestors of the present Northampton family; and to the renaissance tombs of Sir Thomas Gresham, from whom the Leveson-Gower family claim direct descent.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF FAITH (No. 141).—A strong meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 27th ult., at Anderton's Hotel. The lodge was opened by Bros. Kennet, W.M.; Waygood, S.W.; D. Davis, acting J.W.; Mallett, S.D.; Walls, acting J.D.; Darey, I.G.; Carter, P.M.; Treas; Stuart, P.M. Sec.; Themans, I.P.M.; Hopwood, Taylor, Green, Past Masters. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, raised Bro. Isaacs to the Third Degree, and passed Bro. Field to the Degree of a F.C. The ceremonies were ably performed. The W.M. informed the brethren that in consequence of the shortness of the notice he had received from G.L., respecting the last arrangements in connection with the Installation of the Prince of Wales, he found it would have been almost impossible to have summoned a special meeting to ballot for the one Master Mason's ticket for admission to the ceremony, and had accordingly given it to the S.D., Bro. Mallett, a choice which he felt sure would meet with their approbation. In answer to a question from Bro. Walls, respecting the centenary jewel, Bros. Stuart and Hopwood stated, in compliance with the resolution passed some time since, they had waited upon the authorities at Freemasons' Hall, but had been unable to obtain any certain information respecting it, owing to the great pressure of business at the Hall, in connection with the W.M.G.M.'s Installation, but that they would again see the Secretary, and report to the lodge the result of their enquiries at the next meeting. Some minor business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent repast. Among the visitors present were Bros. Wright, W.M. Southern Star; Frodsham, 3; Turner, 902; 1266; Harris, 1339. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft" and "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M." Both toasts were heartily received, and Bro. Walls sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The usual healths were then proposed and responded to. Bro. Themans proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who briefly replied. Bro. Wright responded for the Visitors in a neat speech, and Bro. Stuart for the Past Masters, and Bro. Waygood for the Officers. Between the toasts, Bros. Mallett, Walls, Bird, Themans and Burton, vocally, instrumentally, and dramatically amused the brethren. Bro. Longstaffe having giving the last toast, the lodge separated until September next.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—A banquet in celebration of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England, was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Wednesday, the 28th ult., and was exceedingly well attended by the brethren. Bro. Allatt, of the Southern Star was present as a visitor. Amongst the members of the lodge present were Bros. Gardner, W.M.; Everett, S.W.; W.M. of the Domestic; Reeves, S.D.; Higgins, J.D.; Koch, P.M.; Lily of Richmond, I.P.M.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Pope, P.M.; Webb, I.G.; Walls, W.S.; W. A. Ellis, Organist. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave "The Queen and Craft," which was received and responded to by the brethren with excellent fire. In proposing the health of the M.W.G.M., the W.M. stated that he hoped the brethren would excuse his being somewhat longer in prefacing this toast than on former occasions. He had just come from assisting at one of the greatest gatherings ever witnessed in England, and an event that he should ever remember as a red letter day in his Masonic career. He could remember the great excitement occasioned at the acceptance of the Grand Master-ship by the late Duke of Sussex, whose portraits in Craft costume were in every shop window, and were for a long time sold in the public streets, and although very young, he even then thought there was something in Freemasonry more than an empty name, which idea had increased as he grew in years, by the great attention his father, who held provincial rank, always manifested in things Masonic. In conclusion, he hoped that the Craft would continue to prosper under the rule of Albert Edward, and that Englishmen would be for many years to come be able to sing—

Among our ancient mountains,
And through our lovely vales,
Oh! let the prayer re-echo,
God Bless the Prince of Wales!

This toast, it is needless to state, was most enthusiastically received, and Bro. Walls contributed the Anthem "God Bless the Prince of Wales." At the request of Bro. Ellis, sen., the W.M. gave a resumé of the proceedings at the Albert Hall, which was supplemented by Bro. Wormald, the fortunate recipient of the one Master Mason's ticket. The I.P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M., who made a brief reply. The W.M. then gave the health of the S.W., who had declined three other invitations that evening, in order to be present at the Kennington banquet. Bro. Everett suitably acknowledged this special compliment. The other toasts then followed in quick succession, Bros. Koch, Stuart and Pope replying for the Past Masters. The latter, who had been the lodge caterer since its formation, made an excellent speech in bidding the brethren farewell in that capacity, he being about for a time to retire into private life. Bros. Reeves, Higgins, Webb, Walls and Ellis jun., responded for the junior officers. Between the toasts, the W.M. and Bros. Sirgood, Cruse, Walls, Allatt, Wormald and Richardson, socially entertained the brethren, who separated at a late hour, after enjoying a most pleasant and convivial evening.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—Another emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 7th inst., at the Metropolitan Societies' Asylum, Ball's Pond Road, Dalston. Bro. William Stephens, W.M., presided, and performed all the work of the lodge, assisted by Bros. E. Somers, S.W. and W.M. elect; W. J. Murlis, J.W.; J. E. Walford, P.M., Treasurer; W. Jones, P.M., Secretary; and several other members of the lodge, and visitors, Bros. W. H. Lee, W.M. 1524; and Robert Wright, P.M. 504. The work consisted of passing Bros. C. Biggs, J. Hanney, D. Martin, and F. C. Nevill, and the initiation of Messrs. W. Langford, S. Smout, jun., H. Johns, and J. Pushman. After the work was finished, it was found necessary to hold another emergency, there being yet several gentlemen waiting for initiation in this lodge. When the business of the evening was concluded, the brethren partook of very slight refreshment and then honoured the usual toasts. Bros. Walford, P.M. and Treasurer, and Jones, P.M. and Secretary, replied for the P.M.'s, and Bros. Wright and W. H. Lee for the visitors; and the W.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M. elect," made special allusion to the fact of there being still several initiates to come up to this lodge. He referred to this as a mark of the prosperity of the lodge, which he was sure would lose none of its splendour under the new W.M. That brother would do all he could for the benefit of the institution, and would be most zealous in the cause. Indeed he was sure that that brother would do more for it than he (Bro. Stephens) had done ("No, no"), and although the brethren said "No," he spoke advisedly, and was sure the brethren would be better pleased with Bro. Jones at the end of his year of office than they were with him (Bro. Stephens) ("No, no.") Bro. Somers replied. Speaking of the W.M.'s connection with the Marquess of Ripon Lodge, they had, he said, been guided by the same principle, to improve and benefit Freemasonry by introducing gentlemen into it who would be an honour to it. During his year of office, the brethren had had the pleasure of being presided over by a brother who had delighted them by his happy and genial manners, and he (Bro. Somers) hoped to be as successful while he was in the chair. He assured them that he would endeavour not to allow the lustre of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge to fade. In proposing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. again drew the attention of the brethren to the success of the lodge, and asked, how could it be otherwise when the Master was supported by such able officers? Moreover, the officers had been successful in the cause of the charities, and Bro. Murlis would take up over 100 guineas to the festival of the Girls' School. Bro. Murlis responded. If he had a weakness in persevering, it was in a good cause, and more especially was he enthusiastic on behalf of little girls, who must be acknowledged to be in a most deplorable and forlorn condition if left without a father. For the Girls' School, as well as for the other charities, he believed in working with all the heart, strength and might. He would not boast, but he hoped he should not disgrace this lodge by taking up at least £120 to the Girls' School Festival. This had been done by dint of a little perseverance, and he was happy to say that his appeals had been most readily responded to. He had received £55, from a M.P., and one of the initiates that evening had given his half-guinea. Speaking of charities, however, he must remind the brethren that charity began at home, and he did not believe in any brother neglecting home and depriving his family of support for the sake of giving it to Masonry. He had supported the Girls' School this year on account of a favourable impression he derived when he visited that school twelve months ago with the W.M. "The Lay Members of the Lodge" was a toast which brought up Bro. John Hligh, the first joining member, who simply thanked the W.M. and brethren for proposing and drinking his health. Bro. Field announced that Bro. Fisher, who was initiated at last meeting and left for America, had not since been heard of. A vessel which left for the same port as the vessel he shipped in, ten days afterwards, had arrived in safety, but nothing had been heard of his vessel. The brethren having expressed their sorrow at the sad intelligence, shortly afterwards separated.

VICTORIA LODGE (No. 1056).—The installation meeting of this very flourishing lodge took place at Anderton's Hotel on Thursday, when, after the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Alfred Henry Kirton was raised by the Master, Bro. Joseph Morton; to the degree of Master Mason. The new Master, Bro. Joseph Slade Brown, was then duly installed as Master, the ceremony being very ably performed by Bros. Frederick York Latcille and Alfred Robbins, the last named brother giving the addresses. The Master then appointed and invested the following as his officers:—Bros. William Perrin, S.W.; Thomas William Skelton, J.W.; William Wrenn, Treas.; A. A. Pendlebury, Sec.; George M. Felton, S.D.; William Gange Durrant, J.D.; E. H. Williams, I.G.; William Tomsett, Director of Ceremonies; Henry Allen, W.S.; and William Grant, Tyler. Other business of the lodge having been disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the banquet. A full report of the proceedings thereafter will be given in our next.

PROVINCIAL.

BATH.—ROYAL CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 41).—On Thursday, May 6th, the members of this ancient lodge met for the last time before the summer vacation, which will continue till October, and just cleared up all the work by giving the Third Degree to a candidate. The chair was taken at quarter to eight by the I.P.M., supported by Bros. Cooper, Dr. Hopkins, Moutrie, Rubie, Reeves, Wilton, P.M.s, and the following officers—Brown, S.W.; James Dutton, acting as J.W.; Falkner, Sec.; Wilton, D.C.; C. Wilkinson, S.D.; Baldwin, as J.D.; Murliss, as I.G.; Gummer and W. Hunt, Stewards; Broome, Tyler. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the circular of summons was read, and also a communication from the W.M., apologizing for absence, and appointing Bro. Major Preston, I.P.M., as his substitute in ruling the lodge, and Bro. Dr. Hopkins in working the ceremony. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Dr. Hopkins took the chair, and examined the candidate, Bro. C. W. Radway, as to his proficiency; this proving satisfactory he was entrusted and dismissed for preparation. In his absence the necessary changes were made, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The Organist not being present, Bro. Reeves kindly took his place at the instrument. On the re-admission of the candidate, the ceremony was performed by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, including the Traditionary History, the explanation of the working tools, and the Charge, with a promise, as there will not be another meeting for five months, privately to give the candidate an interesting lecture on the Third Degree. Bro. Cooper kindly rendered efficient help by most impressively giving the appropriate quotations from Scripture. Bro. Major Preston again took the chair, and resumed the lodge in the First Degree, when several matters of only private interest were discussed, and some communications read. The last business was the reading of the bye-laws, a duty required at least once in each year, and which had been fixed for this evening. In compliance with an official intimation from Provincial headquarters, the brethren appeared with their aprons and collars in mourning, as a token of respect for the late D.P.G.M., Captain Bridges, whose death had occurred since the last meeting of the lodge. He was greatly beloved in the province of Somerset, as marked by the attendance of about 300 brethren when his body was consigned to its resting place at Bridgewater. No other business offering, the lodge was closed at 10 o'clock. Several visitors were present during the proceedings, namely, Bros. Sarre, 1402; Parkhouse, 1125; General Doherty, 53; Sumson, 855; Captain Gyles, 53; Reeves, 906.

HAVERFORDWEST.—CAMBRIAN LODGE (No. 464).—On Wednesday, the 28th ult., the brethren of Cambrian Lodge held a banquet at the Masonic Hall, in honour of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W. G.M. Bro. Alderman J. D. Brown presided with his usual skill and affability, and on the removal of the cloth, gave the customary Masonic toasts, which were heartily responded to. The conviviality of the evening was considerably enhanced by the excellent singing of several of the brethren. There was a goodly attendance of the Craft, and the entire proceedings passed of most harmoniously.

BRADFORD.—SHAKESPEARE LODGE (No. 1018).—The installation of office-bearers of this lodge for the current year took place within the Masonic Hall, Salem-street, on 14th ult., when there was a most numerous turn-out of members and visiting brethren. Bro. William Morgan having been installed as Worshipful Master by the retiring W.M., Bro. J. W. Monckman, assisted by Bro. Wroe, P.M., afterwards invested his office-bearers, as follows—Bros. R. F. Harrison, S.W.; H. R. C. Latimer, J.W.; H. Fordoff, Treas.; W. Longley, Sec.; J. H. Switherbank, S.D.; S. Whaley, J.D.; H. Harrison, I.G.; J. G. E. Ferrand, O.G.; W. H. Halsey, J. Cooper, and S. Bulmer, Stewards; and H. Tordoff, S. of W. Amongst the visitors were the following distinguished brethren—Bros. J. Guant, W.M. 1522, P.S.G.D.; Dr. Spark, Mus. Doc., W.M. 289, P.P.G.S.D.; W. Beandler, P.M. 1034, P.G.S. of W.; S. O. Bailey, P.M. 600; J. Clark, W.M. 302; G. Pearson, W.M. 1034; Thos. Riley, W.M. 600; L. Eismann, W.M. 827; E. Poppleton, P.M. 827; J. Proctor, P.M. 1034; J. Foster, P.M. 974; J. W. Berry, W.M. 974; L. Goldstein, P.M. 600; C. H. Taylor, P.P.G.S.D. The musical brethren present were, Ed. de Jong, Celtic Lodge; Robt. Fraser, 413, Glasgow; F. C. Atkinson, 302; J. Rogers, 31, Glasgow; J. O. Leslie, 31, Glasgow; John Billington, Michael Mullen, 600. After the ceremony of installation the brethren adjourned to the banquetting hall, where a first-class entertainment was provided and partaken of. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts and "The Health of the Retiring Master," Bro. P.M. Wroe proposed "The Health of the Newly Installed W.M.," which was most enthusiastically drunk by the brethren present, after which the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. Morgan, replied. He said: Worthy Past Master, Worshipful Masters, Officers and Brethren—To say that the present moment is not to me a proud one would be very much to underrate my own feelings, or to say that the ambition to rise to the position which, by the kindness of the brethren of the Shakespeare Lodge, I have now attained, has not been my ambition for years past, would be simply to mislead you and deceive myself. When I was first initiated into Freemasonry I well remember with what a large amount of respect, almost bordering on veneration, I looked upon the W.M. who so ably occupied the chair at that time. I looked upon him as occupying a position that years of attention to the duties of the lodge and Masonry has amply compensated for; and I feel that all the time and attention I have devoted to the duties of the various offices to which I have been from time to time appointed, even if that time was doubled—I feel that it is more than compensated for by the high and honourable position I occupy at the present time. Brethren, the ambition to rise in the estimation of your fellow men by commendable and legitimate means is worthy ambition—in whatever state of society it may occur it is something to be proud of; but when that position is no less than to preside over a society of Freemasons, all brethren linked in the same bonds of brotherhood, how much more proud ought he to feel for having such a high and distinguished honour conferred upon him. I hope and trust I shall be able to carry out all your expectations, and prove myself competent to discharge all the responsible duties appertaining to the high office to which I have been elected and installed, and continue to the Shakespeare Lodge the success that has characterized the past, more particularly the last twelve months, which I may truly say, without offending any of its Past Masters, has been the most successful year since its consecration. In the first place, the past year has been almost unprecedentedly successful in its acquisition of new members, and when I say new members I don't merely allude to numbers, but also to the quality of our new brethren of the past year. Again, the past year gave us an opportunity of showing our great esteem, in a practical and substantial way, to one of our worthiest and most respected brothers and his good lady, on each of them attaining their 50th birthday, which, by a remarkable coincidence, happened on this particular occasion on the same day—I allude to the Dewhurst testimonial; and, though last, not least, the last year stands out prominent in the annals of the Shakespeare Lodge, from its very handsome donations to the Masonic Charities, so liberally subscribed by the Shakespeare brethren generally. Brethren, if at the termination of my year I am able to look back with the same assurance of success, I shall feel happy. I can assure you I will do my utmost, and with the co-operation of such an efficient staff of officers as I shall have the honour to work with, not forgetting the most important of all, my immediate P.M., Bro. Monckman, on whom I rely so much for assistance and support—I say with these advantages I don't know why the next year should not be as successful and prosperous as any of the past. I have a great many reasons for feeling extremely grateful to the Shakespeare Lodge, reasons which it would be very much out of place to explain here, but I will try my utmost to prove my gratitude by paying every attention, and using all the administrative skill my capabilities will permit in efficiently discharging all the duties required of me as Master of the lodge. Other toasts followed; and, with the amount of professional talent present, we need scarcely add that the musical contributions to the enjoyment of the occasion were ample and of rare excellence. Bro. Dr. Sparks played his own new composition, "Long Live the Prince," Bros. Rogers and Leslie gave some favourite duets in their own unrivalled style, while Bro. Billington appropriately favoured with a Yorkshire song. Perhaps, however, the climax of success was capped when Bro. Robert Fraser, of Glasgow, gave an extempore ditty, in which the surroundings of the moment were caught up and capitalised on the spot with a facility and ease a felicity that literally set the table in a roar. There was complete truth in the remark of one, that the reception of Bro. Fraser's song was precisely the reverse of its burden—the latter being, "In a quiet sort of way." Altogether the occasion was a complete success—a result towards which his full share was contributed by Bro. Dewhurst, who so kindly undertook and so successfully carried out the purveying of the banquet.

DEBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, the 5th inst. Bro. Henry T. Bojar, W.M., presided, and there were present, Bros. F. Iliffe, I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.M., Treas.; J. Worsnop, P.M., Sec.; Theo. Hills, S.D.; T. Gadsby, J.D.; G. Pipes, D. of C.; J. Heathcote, I.G.; W. Stone, Tyler; J. H. Biggs, W. B. Hextall, J. E. Russell, J. O. Manton, Henry Mills, Richard Daniel, Jas. Parkins, jun. Visitor: V. H. Marsden, P.G.S. and W.M. 253. The lodge was opened in the First Degree; the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Daniel and Parkins, who were candidates for passing, being in attendance, were examined as to their proficiency in the former degree and entrusted, and having retired, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Daniel and Parkins were passed to that degree by the W.M. The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree. Nothing further being offered the lodge was closed in ancient form and with solemn prayer.

TIVERTON.—ST. PETER'S LODGE (No. 1125).—We extract the following from the Tiverton Gazette of the 4th inst.:—"In honour of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Freemasons of England on Wednesday last, the band of the 14th D.R.V. met at the Town Hall about 3 o'clock, the hour at which the ceremony was performed, and marched through the streets of the town playing "God bless the Prince of Wales," and other airs. A halt was made opposite the house of Bro. T. Parkhouse, the W.M. of St. Peter's Lodge, and also before Bro. Reed's, in St. Peter Street, where a banner was displayed. Besides Bro. Parkhouse, the members of the local lodge who were present at the Albert Hall, Kensington, where the ceremony was performed, were Bro. T. B. Paterson, I.P.M.; J. Mills, P.M., P.G.O.; J. Sharland,

P.M., P.P.G.T.; H. Davey, P.M.; F. A. Payne, M.M.; and C. A. W. Troyte, S.W."

NEWTON ABBOT.—DEVON LODGE (No. 1138).—The regular meeting was held on the 20th ult., present: W. R. King, W.M.; F. D. Bewes, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. S. Saunders, J.W.; R. L. Lloyd, Treas.; J. Oliver, Sec.; W. Harris, S.D.; E. Huxtable, J.D.; R. Crooke, I.G.; G. H. Hearder, Org.; F. J. Pratt and C. Stevens. Stewards: W. L. Pope, D.D., P.P.G.C.; Richard Hosking, J. Hazwood, R. E. Burges, L. E. Beame, P. Symons, Herbert Martin, Henry Voysey. Visitors: T. B. Purnell and J. Chapple, of Morning Star Lodge No. 1396. The lodge being opened, and the minutes of last meeting confirmed, Bros. H. Martin and R. E. Burges proved their proficiency as E.A.'s. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bros. H. Martin and R. E. Burges passed to the degree of Fellow Craft in a most able manner by the W.M. The lodge was then resumed to the first degree, and Mr. Fitz-Martin, who had been regularly proposed and seconded, at seven days' notice, was balloted for, and, being unanimously elected, was initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The W.M. then informed the lodge that one ticket only had been received for a M.M. to attend the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales on the 28th April, and suggested that it be given to Bro. Banfill, he being an early applicant, and such was agreed to. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

PORTMADOC.—MADOC LODGE (No. 1509).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge, the youngest in the Province of North Wales and Shropshire, was held on the 13th ult., at the Queen's Hotel. The lodge having been opened in form, and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, the I.P.M., in the absence through severe illness of the W.M., Bro. Edward Breese, P.G. Reg. of Herefordshire, initiated into Freemasonry Messrs. Jones, Campbell, and Wm. Jones, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason Bros. Ignatius Williams, David Williams, S. P. Owen, and W.M. Griffith. The lodge having been closed to the First Degree, Bro. Thos. Casson, S.W. and Organist, intimated that he was about to leave Portmadoc for Liverpool, and would therefore have to sever his connection as an officer with the lodge. The brethren expressed themselves sorry to hear of Bro. Casson's departure, and resolved that a banquet be held and a souvenir presented to him, and accordingly on Friday, the 30th ult., a large number of the members met at the Sportsman Hotel, to a banquet which reflected great credit on the host, under the presidency of Bro. J. W. Wallace, I.P.M., the west and south being filled by Bros. Supt. Davies, J.W., and Dr. Jones Morris, Sec. The tables having been cleared, the toast of "The Queen" was given by the chairman, who, in the course of his remarks, said that as a Queen, as a mother, as a woman, our Queen was incomparable, and he was sure the toast would be received with applause by the brethren, who were as patriotic as any in her dominions. He therefore gave the Queen, the daughter of a Mason and mother of Masons. The next toast, that of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was given by the chairman, who gave a description of the magnificent spectacle at the Albert Hall on Wednesday and only wished he was eloquent enough to give them a correct description of the ceremony; but if he used all the words in the dictionary they would be inadequate to convey to them the reception of the Prince by that enthusiastic gathering of over 8000 Masons. He was proud the Prince had accepted the honoured position of M.W.G.M., more especially at the present time, when the anathemas of the Pope, the bulls of the Vatican, and the doctrines of cardinals were so freely used against Freemasonry; but in vain, our future King heeded them not, but manfully came forward and repelled their attacks with "Dieu et Mon Droit." He was assured it would greatly enhance his popularity if such was needed, as he believed there was not a more popular Prince. He was also glad to find the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold following in the footsteps of their illustrious brother. The next toast, that of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, and the rest of the Officers of the Grand Lodge" was given by the chairman, who remarked that the Earl of Carnarvon was a most practical statesman, and one who knew the secrets of almost every country with regard to diplomatic matters, and in connection with such had made his name one to be honoured by posterity; but still he found the time, and had the inclination to devote himself most assiduously to the affairs of Freemasonry. The next toast was that of "Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, R.W. Prov. Grand Master, and the Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge." In proposing it, the chairman said they had toasted the Prince of Wales, now they were going to drink the health of the Prince in Wales. As a Provincial Grand Master Sir Watkin was equal to none; he took very great interest in the affairs of the province, always attended the consecration of every lodge in the province, and when money was wanted for the good of Freemasonry he put his hand in his pocket, and he assured them it did not come out empty. He was a Freemason in every sense of the word, and acted up to the principles of the Craft, and so reflected credit upon himself and the Craft, in which he had made such a signal mark. "The W.M." was then proposed by the chairman, who very much regretted that he was obliged to fill that chair that evening through the inability of the W.M. to be present, especially as it arose from illness, and he was sure his absence would cause a pang in many hearts. It had pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to afflict him, but he hoped he would soon be able to be amongst them. They could not drink the health of a kinder, worthier, more gentle man than their W.M. Since he had known Bro. Breese he had found him always a man, something more than a empty name. He had done his duty nobly in connection with the lodge, by his advice, his example, and his benevolence. He wished him a speedy recovery. Bro. Dr. Roberts, S.D., in reply thanked them on behalf of his brother-in-law, the W.M., and was glad to tell them he was slowly recovering. He had seen him that evening, and had wished him to announce how sorry he was not to be with them, but if not present in body his heart and soul were with them, and also to express his regret at the departure of Major Casson. The Chairman then called upon them to fill their glasses a bumper to the next toast on the list, which was, he might say, the toast of the evening, viz., "The Health of Bro. Casson, S.W.;" and in proposing it said it gave him pleasure, though mingled with pain, to perform the duty, and was sorry it had not fallen into abler hands. They all had known him longer than he had, which was for about two years, and he had at first only known him as a gentleman of enlightened mind, doing his duty to all and by all, forward in every good cause, always ready to assist in any act of charity, for which his name was a household word in the district, and having formed a good opinion of him, and having esteemed him as such, it gave him greater pleasure to learn that he was a brother Mason, but before knowing that he was sure he was one in heart. He said they were met together that evening as Masons, and he called upon any brothers to supplement his remarks who from their longer acquaintance were better enabled to speak of his good qualities; but before sitting down he had great pleasure, on behalf of his brethren of the Madoc Lodge, to present him with a silver kettle as a mark of their fraternal regard and esteem. The silver kettle, by Elkington and Co. of Regent-street, London, was one of that celebrated firm's newest designs in solid silver, and had the inscription on one side, "Presented to Bro. Major Casson, first S.W. and O., by the brethren of Madoc Lodge 1509, as a souvenir of their fraternal regard and esteem, on his departure from Portmadoc, April 30th, 1875," and on the reverse the Major's crest. Bro. Dr. Roberts said he was sorry to part with Bro. Casson, not only as an officer of the lodge, but as a kind neighbour, always willing to do anything he could in a good cause. He had often in the course of his professional life occasion to see his charity displayed in ministering to the wants of the poor, and relieving their necessities in times of sickness. Bro. Davies, J.W., expressed his regret at the departure of Bro. Casson, and hoped he would be blessed in his new sphere of action. Bro. Cledwyn Owen, as a native of Parhelli, remarked that they there joined with them in Portmadoc in regretting the departure of Bro. Casson, and spoke of his usefulness, especially in the volunteer cause. Bro. Casson, in response, thanked them all for their beautiful testimonial, and said he felt proud to receive it, as he was sure it was a mark of their regard and esteem, but that he was wholly undeserving of it for anything he had done in connection with the lodge; he had merely done his duty as far as lay in him, and he thought every one who accepted any office should do that. It would always remind him of them, and if any of them came to Liverpool he would be happy to see them, to test its "brewing" powers. "The Visiting Brethren" was responded to by Bro. Anwyll Owen, of Jersey, who hoped to have the pleasure of seeing their work in lodge at their next meeting. "The Recently Initiated" was proposed by the vice-chairman, who remarked he was glad to see so many present that evening, and assured them the more they saw the more would they appreciate the privileges of having been admitted members of the ancient and honourable Craft. It was responded to by Bros. Wheeler Campbell, Isaac Cledwyn Owen, and Wm. Jones. Bro. Davies, J.W., then proposed "The Immediate Past Master, Bro. Wallace, their Chairman," and said it did not require any remarks from him, as they all knew how anxious Bro. Wallace was at all times to do his utmost for the good of the lodge, by assisting at its ceremonies and in every way he could. Bro. Wallace suitably responded. Bro. Dr. Shelton Jones proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge," whom he said did their work very well, and, having had some experience as an officer in a lodge, to do that they must attend lodges of instruction often, as it was there the real work was done, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Dr. Jones Morris, the Secretary, who had been so instrumental in getting up the lodge, and had worked zealously in connection with it since. Bro. Dr. Jones Morris, in reply, said that six months ago Sir Watkin was present to consecrate their lodge, and he, assisted by others, were present at its birth on that occasion, and he was happy to say the infant was now able to walk alone, and was sure that Bro. Dr. Roberts would bear him out it was quite an infant prodigy, by which he meant that the lodge, numbering nearly eighty members, was now, after paying over £200, perfectly free from debt, and could snap its fingers at any one, and he hoped before long it would be able to hold its own with any of the crack lodges in the provinces with regard to their subscription to the charities, for they intended to devote their surplus funds to them. He was very sorry to part with Bro. Casson, and his departure called upon all the officers to redouble energy, and he was sure they would, and hoped the members of the lodge would do their utmost to assist them, so that when the present officers retired others and he hoped abler brethren would fill their places. "The Charities," "Bro. W. G. Casson, Treasurer," and "The Tyler's" toast followed, and the brethren separated after a most enjoyable evening, the speeches being interspersed with songs by Bros. Campbell, Wallace, Williams, and Dr. Jones Morris; Bro. R. H. Williams ably acting as accompanist.

The proceedings commenced at half-past five o'clock in the afternoon, and were held in the fine Masonic Hall. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. The manner in which the beautiful ritual of the lectures was carried out reflected great credit on all concerned. The visiting brethren who had assisted in the working were unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge, and a special vote of thanks passed to Bro. Austin for presiding, who made an able response. Bro. Felton replied on behalf of the visiting brethren. Bro. Walls proposed and Bro. Myers seconded that Bro. Court (1503) should be elected a joining member, which was unanimously carried, and the brother returned thanks. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren partook of an excellent cold collation, catered for by Bro. Palmer, and presided over by Bro. Myers. At the conclusion of the repast the remainder of the evening was devoted to harmony, which was contributed by Bros. Perkins, Walls, Walters, and several other brethren, whose efforts to amuse appeared to give every satisfaction, and the proceedings, which were eminently successful throughout—thanks to the exertions of Bro. Myers, W.M. of the mother lodge, who had carried out the whole of the arrangements, and given many country brethren an opportunity of spending an agreeable and instructive evening—terminated.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The quarterly communication of this body was held last week in the Freemasons' Hall, George-street, Edinburgh. There was a large attendance of the brethren. In the unavoidable absence of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master (Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Bart.), the throne was occupied by Bro. J. White-Melville of Bennoch and Strathness, R.W.P.G.M., who was supported by Sir Molyneux Nepean, Bart., Colonel W. M. Neilson, Major Hamilton Ramsay of Garton; Bro. F. A. Barrow, acting Junior Grand Warden; Rev. Dr. Gray and Rev. A. T. Grant, Joint Grand Chaplains; W. Hay, J.D.; A. Hay, G.J.; D. Robertson, Bible Bearer. Besides the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, the Earl of Rosslyn, the Earl of Kellie, Bro. J. T. Oswald of Dunnikier, Captain Colt of Gartsherrie, and the Grand Secretary sent apologies for absence. The Grand Secretary's absence was caused by severe indisposition. The usual preliminary business having been disposed of, there was submitted a report by the deputation appointed to represent Grand Lodge at the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Freemasons of England, from which it appeared that the deputation had been received with every possible honour and attention, and that the ceremonial on the occasion was of the most imposing character. Charters for new lodges were ordered to be expedite for Manohau, Sydney, New South Wales; Southern Cross, Calicut, Madras; and Morland, Secunderabad. A petition from Glasgow, for the erection of a lodge in connection with the brethren associated together in the drama in that city, was remitted to the Provincial Grand Lodge of the district to report upon. Bro. Ch. Dalrymple, M.P., was appointed unanimously Prov. Grand Master for Argyle and the Isles. Bro. Dr. J. T. Loth presented his credentials as representative from the Grand Orient, France, and was duly confirmed in that appointment. A motion for the admission of immediate Past Masters as members of Provincial Grand Lodges, was considered and adopted. Thereafter Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The quarterly convocation of this body was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on the 29th ult. The Provincial Grand Depute Master, Bro. F. A. Barrow, presided, with Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., 34, as acting S.W., and Bro. George McDonald, R.W.M. 73, acting J.W. There was a numerous attendance of office-bearers and members of the P.G.L. The lodge having been opened by the P.G.D.M., Bro. Archd. McTaggart, P.G. Sec., read the minutes of last quarterly meeting, and also of the various meetings of the Benevolent Fund Committee from 11th January last, which were duly passed. The next business on the card was with reference to the laying of the memorial stone of the new Public Halls for Glasgow, on the 22nd inst., with reference to which the chairman said that it had been arranged that the Masons of Glasgow intending to be present would muster at 2 o'clock p.m., in the Queen's Rooms. Further arrangements had not yet been completed; but as soon as they were a programme would be issued, and each lodge in the province would be furnished with a copy of it; and might he ask them to have as large an attendance as possible on the occasion. It had been communicated to him only yesterday that the memorial stone of the new Merchants' Hall, at the corner of George-square and West George-street, was also to be laid with Masonic honours in a fortnight or three weeks after that of the Public Halls—that was to say, on the 5th or 12th June next. They would thus see that two very important buildings in Glasgow were to be laid under their auspices, which he thought the Craft in the province might regard as an honour. Further, he might mention that the memorial stone of the aquarium at Rothesay was to be similarly laid. As he understood, Mr. Dalrymple, M.P. for the county of Bute, was to be appointed Prov. Grand Master for Argyle and the Isles, and in laying the memorial stone at Rothesay he would have the honour of performing his maiden ceremonial. In reference to the billet of business for the quarterly meeting of Grand Lodge in Edinburgh on Monday next, the Chairman reminded them of the motion he was there and then to bring forward with reference to giving I.P. Masters of lodges a status in Provincial Grand Lodge; and asked those of them who approved of the same to go through and support it. Bro. G. McDonald, acting S.W., brought up the subject of the movement, originated some time ago, for the erection of a lodge dramatic within the province. The petition of the promoters, he said, was presented to him in due form; and in looking over it he could see no objection to signing it—on the conditions, however, that the entrance fee should not be less than three guineas, that the lodge should not be open after midnight, and that no office-bearers should be appointed who were non-resident in Glasgow. With reference to this matter, the Prov. G. Sec., Bro. McTaggart, said he could not forbear saying that it was a very great hardship indeed that members of the dramatic and musical professions could not meet with their brethren occasionally. He thought it would be doing no injury to any lodge in the province to grant their petition, and he hoped the brethren going through to Edinburgh would give it their warm support. In answer to a question as to the opening of the new pier at Dumbarton, on the 8th inst., to which the Glasgow Masons have been invited, the Chairman said that, under the circumstances, it would be most unmasonic to go. Unless the head of the Masonic body in the province performed any such ceremony, Masons should not turn out in clothing—they had no right, as Masons, to be there. After a short conversational discussion as to the filling up of certain vacancies in the list of office-bearers of the Prov. G. Lodge, Bro. J. F. Mitchell, R.W.M. 102, moved to the effect that the Provincial Grand Depute Master (the chairman) by unanimous voice of the lodge, be asked to reconsider his announced resolution of retiring from office. The motion having been carried by acclamation, the Chairman said that he did not feel prepared to give a final reply that evening, but he might say that he would take the matter into consideration. It was then moved by Bro. John Munro, R.W.M. 360, and unanimously agreed to, that the P.G. Secretary be instructed to transmit a copy of the minute containing Bro. Mitchell's motion to the Provincial Grand Master. There being no further business toward, the Prov. G. Lodge was then duly closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34) held their bi-monthly meeting in their hall, No. 213, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, the 4th inst., Bro. W. Bell, R.W.M., presiding. J. D. Young, S.W.; D. Horne, J.W.; T. Fletcher, I.P.M.; D. M. Nelson, D.M.; R. B. Dalzell, Treas.; J. Dick, Sec.; P. Brownlie, S.D.; R. Craig, P.M.; J. Reid, J.D.; A. Cameron, I.G.; J. Wright, Tyler; and as usual a very large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. W. Bell, and the Secretary read the minutes, which were approved of. Mr. W. Baird and Mr. John Murray, who had been regularly proposed and seconded for initiation into Freemasonry, and there being no objection raised, entered and duly received the E.A. Degree, Bro. W. Bell, R.W.M., officiating in a most efficient manner. Bro. John Dick, Sec., intimated that any members of the lodge who were about or had changed their residence, would much oblige by intimating the same to him. Bro. Bell, R.W.M., then called upon the brethren to select a spot for the annual trip on the 24th June. After several suggestions had been thrown out, and several spots proposed, it was decided in favour of going to the Falls of Clyde; the following brethren being appointed as committee to carry out the same, viz., R. D. Samuels, D. M. Nelson, J. Dick, R. B. Dalzell, J. D. Young, D. Horne, J. Anderson, J. Fletcher, and J. McMillan. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and with toast and song spent a most enjoyable evening.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. MURDO (No. 27).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, No. 213, Buchanan-street, on Thursday, 6th inst. Bro. Dugald Butler, R.W.M., occupied the chair, Bro. A. Bain, I.P.M., Lodge Union and Crown, No. 103, acting S.W.; Bro. G. McComb, J.W.; Bro. Archibald McTaggart, D.M., Prov. G. Sec.; and the other office-bearers in their respective places. The Secretary read the minutes of last regular meeting, which were approved of. The business before the meeting being the initiation of Mr. R. L. Morrison, who was duly vouched for and approved of, and the raising of Bro. John McCuiagh to the sublime degree of M.M., the ceremony being most ably performed in both cases, and there being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION (No. 332).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, 170, Buchanan-street, on Monday the 3rd inst. In the absence of Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., and the Senior and Junior Wardens, who were at Edinburgh, at the quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge, Bro. Robert Mitchell, P.M., opened the lodge, Bro. Murray acting S.W.; Bro. J. McInnes, J.W. The minutes of last meeting, also those of an emergency meeting, having been read and approved of, the lodge was raised to the F.C. degree, and Bro. J. B. Macnair, R.W.M., and his S.W. then entered and occupied their respective places. One brother was then passed to the degree of F.C., and two raised to the sublime degree of M.M. In both cases the ceremony was performed in a most able and impressive manner; the F.C. degree by Bro. R. Mitchell, P.M., and the M.M. degree by the R.W.M., Bro. J. B. Macnair. There being no other business before the meeting, the lodge was closed.

THE RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE IN YORKSHIRE.

A Charter of Constitution has been granted by the Grand Imperial Council of the Masonic and Military Order of Knights of the Red Cross of Constantine and appendant Orders, to certain members in Sheffield, to hold a conclave there, to be called the "White Rose of York," No. 120; Em. Sir Knight, W. H. Brittain, 31st, M.P.S., designate; Em. Sir Knight, Wm. Roddewig, 30th, V.E., designate.

The consecration is to take place early in June next. This being the first conclave in Yorkshire, and the White Rose being adopted as a distinctive emblem upon all the insignia, it is anticipated the degree will go with great éclat.

Any brother wishing to take the degree of Knight of the Red Cross of Constantine, K.H.S. and St. John the Evangelist, had better communicate at once with Bro. W. H. Brittain, Alma Works, Sheffield, or Bro. Joseph Binney, Queen-street Chambers, Sheffield.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The 87th anniversary festival of this Institution was held on Tuesday evening at Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor, Grand Junior Warden of England. About 500 brethren and ladies were present during the evening, and the arrangements made for their comfort and convenience were of the most gratifying description. Although the hall was very full no inconvenience was occasioned, and no brother lacked any attention that could be bestowed on him. The Stewards were unremitting in their exertions, and lost no opportunity of contributing to the general harmony of the evening.

Among the brethren on the dais supporting the chairman were the Earl of Jersey, Col. Lyne, Sir Albert Woods, Bros. Monckton, Peter de L. Long, John Hervey, S. Tomkins, James Mason, W. Paas, Joshua Nunn, Brette, Capt. Wordsworth, John Sutcliffe (Lincoln), H. Browse, Dr. Barringer, J. R. N. Vine, (Lord Mayor's Secretary), J. A. Rucker, J. C. Parkinson, D. Jabez Hogg, Thomas, Fenn, John Symonds, Raynham W. Stewart, Rev. E. Thompson, Vicar of Wandsworth, N. B. Headon, Peter Matthews, A. H. Tattershall, George Kenning, A. J. D. Filer, Thomas Cubitt, C. A. Cottebrune, Joseph Smith, James Brett; and a great many other present and past Grand Officers.

At the conclusion of dinner grace was sung, and the following speeches were delivered in proposing the toasts:—

The Chairman: Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, the first toast that I have the honour to propose to you this evening is "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen." It is always a pleasure, and especially with Masons, to propose this toast, because we are always prepared to acknowledge in her the most powerful as well as the most constitutional of Sovereigns who has ever sat on the throne of this country; and at the same time we are proud to look on her as being a bright example in every condition of life, and as the exemplar of every private and domestic virtue. I propose to you "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen."

After the National Anthem had been sung,

The Chairman rose and said: Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, I have now the peculiar honour to propose to you the next toast. I believe this is the first time, at all events in this Institution, that the form of this toast has been altered. I have now to propose it in this significant form, "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master," (cheers), "Patron and President of this Institution; the Princess of Wales, Patroness; and the other Members of the Royal Family." Brethren, I think you will acknowledge that this is a proud occasion on which I have the honour to propose this toast to you. We feel all of us, I am sure, most deeply grateful as well as greatly honoured by the position to which His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has attained in Masonry. We have also the pleasure of knowing that he is the Patron and President of the Institution, which we have met here to-night to endeavour to do the utmost we can to promote the interests of. We are also glad to know that the Princess of Wales assumes her position of Patroness; and I cannot help thinking you will agree with me that this is an opportunity when we may, among ourselves, acknowledge the deep obligation we owe to the Prince of Wales and the Princess of Wales for the good they have done for Freemasonry. It is not for me to enlarge more upon that subject, but it is only right for me to say as much as I have said. You will, however, concur with me in not only drinking to the health of the Prince and Princess of Wales, but will also remember that the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold are also Masons; and that the Duke of Connaught did us the honour to be present at the Installation in the Albert Hall. When I say that, I think we are coming back to the right position in which Freemasonry ought to stand. (Hear, hear.) Without saying more I will propose to you the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., Patron of this Institution, Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, the Patroness of the Institution, and the other Members of the Royal Family." (Cheers.) The toast having been drunk with great enthusiasm, was followed by the song "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

The Chairman again rose and said: Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, I have now the very great pleasure of proposing to you "The Health of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master." (Applause.) Brethren, I am sure I have only to allude to the fact that on the recent occasion of the Installation of our M.W.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon should, for a short time, leave his sorrow to come among us to perform a most important duty. I am sure you will all agree with me that he performed it in a way which rendered Masonry illustrious. We feel deeply for him in his sorrow, and we trust that at some distant period he may appear among us in that pleasant, and genial, and free, and happy way in which he always has appeared among us heretofore. I need not say any more with respect to this toast, except that I am sure every Mason in this country appreciates and admires the Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon. (Hear, hear.)

After the toast had been duly honoured,

The Chairman said: Brethren, I have now the honour to propose to you the next toast, which is that of "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, present and past." (Applause.) Brethren, I am sure that we are all proud to acknowledge the services of the Deputy Grand Master. None of us who were present on a recent occasion but admired the great presence with which he performed his part in that ceremony. I should also feel inclined to pay him my earnest and warmest respects for that. We have also present to-day several of the Grand Officers in Freemasonry. I am proud to feel that so many of the Grand Officers are present to-night, not so much on my own account, because it makes me feel rather bashful and timid as to the mode in which I express myself before so august a body. I am very thankful indeed, and I am sure, brethren, that we all of us are grateful that we have so many brethren holding high offices in the Craft now present. It is due to them to say that on every public occasion, and on every occasion of charity, and whenever good can be done, we always find our brethren, the Grand Officers past and present, are always equal to the occasion. (Hear, hear.) I will now ask you to drink to that toast, and I will connect with it the name of my friend the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex (hear, hear), who is also the representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland in Grand Lodge of England. I may remind you that on the recent occasion I have before referred to, our Irish brethren shewed themselves very forward and very anxious to perform their part of the duty incumbent on Freemasons, and we only accord to our brother, Colonel Burdett, the honour due to him as Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, and representative of Grand Lodge of Ireland, when we drink his health with that of the Grand Officers. I propose to you the toast.

Col. Burdett, who, on rising, was received with great applause, said: Right Honourable my Lord Mayor, and Brethren here assembled, I assure you it is a great gratification to me to have this opportunity of thanking you for the very kind manner in which you have received the health of Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers. I had almost wished it had fallen in other hands to respond to this toast; but I can assure you that no other brother could do it with greater good wishes than I do it at the present moment. I may say that Lord Skelmersdale has been known to me a considerable time, longer than perhaps he has been known to any other brother now present; and I have great pleasure in stating the manner in which he has always performed his duties. It is only very lately that he has been brought before the brotherhood in London, but he has done his duties in the provinces in a manner which must be commended by every brother of the Order. I am quite certain he would never have been placed in the high and proud position he now holds unless his duties had been properly performed. They have been done properly, and they have been thoroughly appreciated by those around me. I have a great deal of pleasure also in returning thanks for the rest of the Grand Officers, because most of you are fully aware how they have discharged their duties. These duties are not for them merely to come before you at a festival of this sort; they are, as you well know, more onerous, perhaps, than they are at first anticipate, when they undertake the position they hold. The duties they perform are for the benefit of the Order, and they are carried out in such a way that they are appreciated by the brethren of the Order in general. I will not trespass upon your time, but I will return thanks for Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers, as well as myself, for the kind manner in which you have received this toast. (Cheers.)

The Earl of Jersey: Brethren, I have the great privilege, with the consent of our Worshipful President, to propose a toast, and I hasten to do so, feeling sure every brother present is eager to respond to it. It is "The Health of our Worshipful Chairman, the Lord Mayor of London," (Great applause.) Only a few words of mine will be required to bring this toast to your notice. I need hardly say that we are under great obligation to our Worshipful Chairman for coming here to-night in the midst of the numerous and heavy duties which belong to the high position which he holds in this great city, to plead the cause of this charity, which we are all so anxious should succeed. (Hear, hear.) I know that every brother here feels under a great obligation to the Worshipful Chairman for being here to-night. But his lordship will have the consolation of knowing that not only do his brother Masons in this hall thank him for it, but also that many of these young girls whom we are anxious to bring up and send forth into the world prepared to perform their duty in it, will thank him with silent but equally heartfelt and as generous thanks as any man could possibly desire. Brethren, I shall not speak in any terms of panegyric of our worshipful brother in his presence, but I shall call upon you to respond to this toast, and to shew that you are thankful to him for having taken the chair to-night. (Cheers.)

The Chairman: My Lord, Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, I thank you, my Lord, for the very kind way in which you have introduced my name to this meeting of brethren, and I thank you, brethren, for the very enthusiastic way in which you have received the toast of so unworthy a Mason as myself. (No, no.) Brethren, I feel under the obligation to say that the honours which have been so recently conferred upon myself have been in recognition of the services of the Masons in the old City of London. (Hear, hear.) If I may say so, the leader and nurse of that illustrious and useful body, the Masons. It has been said on a recent occasion by our Bro. Parkinson that there was a time when the City of London did somewhat to assist in the promotion of Freemasonry, when circumstances and occasions were not so favourable as they are at present; and therefore I do feel myself somewhat in a proud position as representing the old corporation of London to-night. With respect to my duties as chairman this evening, I must say I entered upon them with a very large amount of diffidence, because I have not been—and I am free to confess it, and no man can do better than confess his fault—that I have not been of late years so constant an attendant on Freemasonry as I ought to have been. But now I shall endeavour to amend my ways. I hope to become a better Mason, and you could not give me a better opportunity than offering me the first chance of advocating the cause of the ladies. (Hear, hear.) I can assure you, brethren and my lord, that I thank you very much indeed for the honour you have paid me. I think perhaps this toast is a little out of place, because it is usually given when the chairman of such festivals as this has said something for the purpose for which he takes the chair. Well, now it may be that I may disappoint you, and, therefore, possibly you may have been too kind to me; but at all events for the very great kindness and enthusiasm which you have shewn in receiving my name as the representative of the old City of London, I thank you very much indeed. (Cheers.)

After a brief interval, during which there was some more singing,

The Chairman said: Worshipful Sirs, and Brethren, I have now the pleasure to rise to propose what is termed very properly the toast of the evening (hear, hear), and that is, "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls." (Cheers.) Brethren, I have advocated many a cause for charity, but I do not know one which I have approached with more pleasure than I do this particular one. I do so, not because this institution needs any advocacy on the grounds of its juvenility; but it needs this, that every brother who holds the position which I have the honour to hold on this occasion, should be able to say that that which has been so munificently given has been as beneficially spent. (Hear, hear.) I am one of those who do not like to call anything by a wrong name, and I must therefore say that this institution for the daughters of distressed Masons is a successful institution. I am proud to say that I have had an opportunity of seeing, and that very recently, in what way this institution is conducted, and when you or I have seen that, I think we shall all be prepared to say that not only ourselves but those who have preceded us in Masonry did make no mistake whatever when they inaugurated and instituted a school like this. (Hear, hear.) We all have had the privilege of reading the history of this school. We know how it was founded; we know that at that time royal personages patronised Masonry, as they do now, and we find that the first fruits of royal patronage was the institution and formation of this school, for we know as a fact that this school in its first formation was called "The Cumberland School for Girls," and was so called after the late Duke of Cumberland, who, I believe we are all pleased to acknowledge, even at this late date, was one of the greatest promoters and friends of Masonry. (Hear, hear.) Carried on as this school has been from that time to the present, and gradually rising in numbers, in efficiency, and in good conduct, we find that during that period something like 1000 girls have been admitted into it, have been clothed, and fed, and taught, and have been rendered useful members of society, and we know, as a fact, that if I may use a commercial term, the girls of the Masonic Institution are at a premium. In saying that, I only speak from my own experience, for I had an opportunity on Saturday last, in distributing the prizes to those girls, of knowing actually what a good institution it is, and what girls can be made when they are admitted into and educated in an Institution like the Girls' School in Masonry. (Hear, hear.) Now, it may be said, and no doubt it is said, why does such an institution, which is so wealthy as this, require an annual festival to increase its funds? There is a very good answer to that. Rich as this institution may be, it is not rich enough. I, for myself, like to know this fact, that there may be times of adversity; there may be times when even the brethren may not be in a position to come forward in such an ample way as to find a sufficient income for the maintenance of this school; and when we know that providing for 149 or 150 girls is no trifling cost, but does amount to a large revenue, although possibly upon the face of it it would not appear to be so, but when we take everything into account, it does require a large revenue, it is most advisable and beneficial that an institution like this should have a good nest egg laid by in the shape of a large investment, so that it may have an opportunity of something to fall back upon. But in addition I see no reason why the school should be kept down to the number of 150. This school may be raised by the same principles on which it has educated a small number of children to educate double the number; and therefore, there is no reason at all why we should relax in our efforts to raise such a fund that we may be enabled at a future time not only to increase the number of the pupils, but to increase and enlarge the building. (Hear, hear.) Well, if that is so we may do it by following the course that is now being pursued in this very school, viz., that we may bring up children there for all sorts of good purposes in life. In this way we may have girls there who may be converted into ladies. I saw on Saturday last, one, two, or three girls who I say would be fit associates for any ladies in the land, (Hear, hear), who by their manners, education and appearance are fit for any society. Under the able tuition of the chief governess one young lady, I call her a young lady, and it is quite right that I should so call her, delivered a recitation in German equal in pronunciation and diction to any German scholar. I also heard other young ladies—I still keep to that term—deliver a dialogue in French; and I must say that I should be very proud if I could speak French as well. Then, we find that she has been enabled to impart a good musical knowledge, and experience, and practice among these girls. When you find twelve girls sit down to pianos, and all of them keep that exact time that you cannot detect a wrong note or a wrong time, I say there must be great proficiency in that. Then comes this question, is it not a good thing when you find girls of that calibre, and of that brain that they can receive this education, that they should receive it? Why should they not? There may be reasons on the other side no doubt, but there are enough girls in this School to be educated to household work, to become as they no doubt would become, very good domestic servants, because I found that in that respect even those young people I call ladies are obliged to learn all domestic duties. They perform all duties which will render them useful members of society in whatever position they may be placed; and that is one of the benefits of this Institution—if a girl cannot do one thing she can always do another. And if that is so I am sure this Institution has attained its highest degree of success.

With respect to finance, that is a subject on which I must offer somewhat of congratulation. I feel this to be a great benefit indeed, that one of the objects in which we always consider Masons to be most successful, is that of charity and benevolence. I know of no other gathering of any class whatever who are so liberal in their gifts, charities and donations, as the Masonic body. When we look at the amount raised year by year, not only for this Institution, but the Boys' School and the Aged Freemasons, it is wonderful what a large amount is collected; and I must say it is not in any way too large. It is only that which shows us what we can do if we have the means. It shows us we can relieve, and take from parents children who might be demoralised, and instead of becoming benefits to society might be its pests; instead of benefitting a parish might go to the criminal courts, as in former times no doubt they did, and so society was deteriorated. Now, brethren, I do not know that I have much more to say in this cause, except one thing, and that I think is very material; as it shows that at all events girls can compete in these local examinations. Now, we find that an average of ten of these girls in our school are competitors in the Cambridge local examinations, and on every occasion every one of them have either received honours or certificates of merit. I consider that to be a great thing indeed, because it is right on one hand that no girls should be raised much above another, that no favoritism should be practised in respect of some girls who may be supposed to have superior merits, and that the rest should be left untutored or neglected. Now that is not so in this school. Ten girls every year are brought forward to show what the school can do; but in doing so they set an example to those who remain behind. (Hear hear.) Now I really do not know that I can say anything more in praise of this excellent Institution. It is one which gave me exceeding pleasure in visiting last Saturday, and I certainly was only sorry that the climate did not favour us to that extent it might have done. Still, it enabled us to see more of the interior of the building. Though we did not see how the cabbages were grown in the garden, we saw and are prepared to testify how human beings grow and improve. Therefore brethren, I am sure that although I am bound to say that this Institution is in a flourishing state, I think it is our duty to make it still more flourishing, and therefore ask you not to stop and to think you have done enough; but I hope on this occasion you will be found to be inclined to do more. I give you "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," and in doing so I have to ask a friend of mine, and a very great friend to the Institution, to respond to it—the Treasurer, Bro. Tomkins. (Hear hear.) I am sure of this, that our Bro. Tomkins knows how to receive money, how to invest it better, how to take care of the profits, or to see them well and properly applied. He has been the Treasurer of Grand Lodge and this Institution for so large a number of years, that I believe we may place implicit confidence in him. I know this, that the larger amount we place in his hands the better he will like it. (Cheers.)

Bro. S. Tomkins said: My Lords and Brethren, after the eloquent address which you have just heard on behalf of the noble charity, which we are met this evening to support, there is very little left for me to say. I am quite sure when you hear the amount of the sums collected you will be gratified at the exertions which the Craft has made on this occasion. When we see year by year our Masonic subscriptions rise to so noble an amount, I think we ought never to forget that the increase of the Masonic body is such that it must evidently and inevitably bring on our charities in future years greater demands than we have seen in past years. Therefore, when we congratulate ourselves on our success, and cannot but feel a certain amount of pride that our charities are so well supported, we must remember that the future will bring upon us very heavy and serious claims, and that it is very necessary that the admirable traditions of the past should be handed down to the future—that we shall find in the future as large and efficient a body of Stewards as we have upon the present occasion, that there is a laudable emulation that the subscriptions of future years should exceed those of the past. I think it used to be considered that it was always a most successful meeting when the subscriptions did not amount to more than a tenth of what they do to-night. It is peculiarly gratifying that we should bring out the strong and forcible point of view, that of the connection between the ancient Corporation of London and the great Masonic body. It is a very pleasant thing that the intimate union between the Corporation of London and that great body has this year received a decided impulse in the acceptance by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of the chair of this festival. (Hear hear.) When you hear the announcement of the lists you will see what great success has been obtained, and I am sure that you will each and all of you see that the success which has hitherto attended us has not fallen off on the present occasion.

Bro. Little (Secretary) here read the list of subscriptions. Colonel Lyne: My Lord, Right Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, the toast confided to my charge is that of "The Vice Patrons, the Vice Presidents, the Trustees, the various Committees, and the Medical Officers." Now, it is only those who have served in those various offices who are aware of the difficulties and the onerous and responsible duties which they have to perform; in fact I know of no more responsible duties, unless it be on the part of him who has to propose their health. (Laughter.) I think we may safely congratulate those brethren on the great success which has resulted from their good and kind offices. I think the receipts which we have just heard fully justify me in making that observation; for when we hear that so large a sum as £7,269 3s. has been subscribed at one meeting for the purposes which the Right Worshipful the Lord Mayor has stated, I think that whatever trouble those brethren may have taken they have been amply rewarded, for these brethren, if they have not been rewarded in this respect, though I think they have, yet there are other respects in which they have at all events been rewarded. The Right Worshipful the Lord Mayor observed in the early part of the evening that we were coming back to the right place in Masonry when His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was made the head of our Order. (Hear, hear.) Permit me to give another illustration of that, which is, when we see the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor presiding at our banquet. (Hear, hear.) That is one source of congratulation that I have to mention. Another source of gratification is this, the manner in which we have seen the tables, surrounded as they have been this evening. Another thing, which I am sure will give them equal pleasure—and though I mention it last it is not least—I think in the early part of the evening the brethren must have been delighted to see the gathering of youth and beauty and fashion there assembled. I say all these results must be gratifying to those brethren whose names I have the honour to propose; and when I ask you to drink that toast, I will couple with it the name of one who will at all events make up for any deficiency I have shown in proposing the toast, and will fully compensate for me, I mean Bro. Parkinson, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex.

Bro. Parkinson having left, Bro. John Symonds was called upon to respond.

Bro. Symonds: Brethren, I am taken considerably by surprise by the coupling of my name with the toast, for although it so happens that I am a very old Vice-president of this Institution, of late, owing to the fact that the meetings of its various committees are held on a day when it is impossible for me to attend, I have not taken that active part I could have wished in the affairs of the School. But, my Lord Mayor, when you are pleased to couple my name with the toast, it is my duty to respond to it; and I can assure you and the brethren that although, as I have said, I am taken by surprise, it is to me a very great gratification to respond for such a glorious institution. I have seen in former years sometimes, although not so often lately as formerly, how the various committees of this institution devote themselves to its welfare. I have seen them working day after day for the benefit of this institution, and if it had not been that under their care it had prospered so gloriously, you could not have had the magnificent result which you have achieved to-day, of receiving subscriptions to the amount of upwards of £7000. Brethren, I feel by this toast being coupled with the working men of the institution, that it is owing to their admirable exertions that the School has attained the proud position it now occupies. I remember the time when we met in this hall when we were gratified with subscriptions of £800. We thought it a magnificent result. Now, however, we get the sum of £7000 (cheers). On behalf of those who have worked for it I beg to thank you most cordially.

The Rev. C. J. Martyn proposed, "The other Masonic Charities." If there was any force in numbers this was the toast of the evening, inasmuch as the Lord Mayor proposed success to one charity, and the present toast embraced two. Whatever had been said in praise of the Girls' School could be said of the Boys', and whatever could be said of the Boys' could be said of the Benevolent Institution. He wished the claims of both were advocated more than they were. He was sorry to say that in provinces not very far off, from where brethren came up to the late Installation, they were quite ignorant as to these Institutions. They seemed as if they would not understand these things. He hoped, however, their eyes would soon be opened. He would call on Bro. Binckes to respond. He did not think that if he were to search England through, he could find a man who had done more for the charities than Bro. Binckes.

Bro. Binckes replied, and congratulated the Benevolent Institution and the Girls' School on the success of their festivals. There was a new word used at present, "trilogy," which occurred to him in connection with this subject—the three Masonic Institutions were a trilogy. If asked to explain, he would say the first institution's festival should be good, the second better, and the third best. He was looking forward to the superlative for the festival of his Institution, the Boys', which would happen on the 30th June, and he hoped that the brethren would come forward and support it liberally. (Cheers.)

The Chairman proposed "The Stewards," coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Monckton.

Bro. Monckton, in responding, said: Right Worshipful Sirs and Brethren, the Stewards have but little to say that you have not already heard from our brother the Secretary of the Girls' School. It has been well said, and will be to the end of time, that the end crowns the work. If, brethren, you are satisfied with the end, depend upon it, we Stewards have no reason to regret, but on the contrary, to rejoice at what we have done, and very heartily we thank you. (Cheers.)

The Chairman proposed "The Ladies," who he believed were very anxious to know something more about Freemasons than they were willing to divulge. They were, however, willing to shew them that they were capable of performing great acts of charity. He had been much pleased with the number of ladies who had graced the gallery that evening, and was only sorry they could not sit down side by side with the brethren.

Bro. P. de L. Long responded, and thought it would be better to join them immediately in the concert room instead of expatiating on their merits.

This was done, and the company separated about eleven o'clock.

The dinner was well supplied by Bro. Francatelli, and gave great satisfaction. Bro. Harker was toast-master, and under the direction of Bro. Kerr Gedge a beautiful selection of music was performed by Miss Josephine Sherrington, Madame Thaddeus Wells, Miss Florence Winn, Madame Varley Liebe, and Bros. Hodges, Wilford Morgan, Winn, De Lacey, and W. H. Thomas.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The committee of this institution was held on Wednesday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Benj. Head presided, and there were also present—Bros. Joseph Smith, W. Hilton, L. Stein, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, J. G. Stevens, Wm. Stephens, James Brett, J. Newton, Charles Lacey, F. Adlard, Griffiths Smith, J. A. Farnfield, Raynham W. Stewart, Capt. J. Wordsworth, C. F. Hogard, Capt. Cubitt, and James Terry, Secretary.

A letter from Bro. Dr. W. Strong was read by the Secretary, thanking the committee for making him a Vice-president of the institution.

The Secretary also reported that Messrs. Cutbush had presented another dozen of rhododendrons to the institution, and on the motion of Bro. Griffiths Smith, seconded by Bro. Joseph Smith, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Cutbush for the generous and timely gift.

The report of the Committee of Management was read, by which it appears that with the additional 22 aged persons resolved to be put on the funds of the institution, there would now be 230 (130 males and 100 females) annuitants to be provided for, at a cost annually of £7743.

Some other business was then transacted, and the committee adjourned.

The election will take place on Friday next.

Masonic Tidings.

The Prince of Wales has sent a donation of twenty guineas to the Cabmen's Shelter Fund.

An illustration of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will appear in the Freemason of the 22nd inst.

We understand that the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held at the Alexandra Palace.

The Surrey Masonic Hall will shortly be opened by the Deputy Grand Master, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale.

Bro. Erasmus Wilson has given to the British Medical Benevolent Fund the sum of 100 guineas for the augmentation of annuities for aged or disabled qualified members of the medical profession. Bro. Wilson recently presented to the Royal College of Surgeons of England the sums of £5,000 to found a professorship in the college, £5,000 for the purpose of building a new wing to the Royal Medical Benevolent College at Epsom, and £2,000 for repairing Swanscombe Church.

Bro. Robert John Chappell, (Gutierrez, Chappell & Co., Old Broad-street), liveryman and stationer, has been elected a member of the Common Council, in the room of the late Mr. Deputy John Banister, deceased.

Bro. F. Kent, C.C., has been elected on the court of assistants of the Wheelwrights' Company.

Though the Grand Lodge of Freemasons at Berlin still refuses to accept Jews as members, several independent lodges which ignore these exclusions have been formed in that city.

The Rev. Dr. Brette, of Christ's Hospital, has been elected by the Senate of the University of London examiner in the University. Dr. Brette held the same position from 1865 to 1870.

"EGYPTIAN HALL."—Dr. Lynn has, within the last few days, introduced to his patrons two wonderfully clever Mandoline players, who now alternate the honours of the musical portion of the programme with the Sisters Gerbaldi. As professors of this charming instrument they evince talent of the highest order, going through some most difficult pieces with the finest effect. Dr. Lynn is to be complimented on his latest musical addition to his already most extraordinary entertainment.

The "Spécialité" sherry sold by Messrs. Felton and Sons, of Conduit-street, Bond-street, is vouched for by various chemical and medical authorities as being pure. We will take that as the very best and most satisfactory basis to start from to criticise the wine. From thenceforward we claim to have as good a right to speak, and when we say that the taste of the "Spécialité" sherry is very refined—something that meets the modern notion of dry, and yet fulfils the desires of those who ask for the old-fashioned nutty flavour—we think the public may exclaim—"We have found it! This is the very wine!"—Court Journal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—At all seasons of the year mankind is subject to disease, but some seasons are particularly dangerous, and none more so than the Spring, with its sudden alterations of temperature and varying climate. That a remedy of some kind is requisite at this season to purify the blood has been a recognised fact for ages, and at different times strange remedies have been resorted to for the carrying this into effect. The discovery of the above named remedies has been most opportune, for, by their use as purifying and strengthening agents, the blood is quickly relieved of effete matters, and at the same time no risk is incurred by undue purging or weakening in any way.—Advt.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1875.

GRAND CHAPTER.

The meeting of Grand Chapter was rendered most interesting by the appearance of our Royal Brother, the Prince of Wales. He was duly installed in the First chair, the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master in the other two respectively, and the meeting began as it ended, amid the warm enthusiasm of the companions. We think that it is a matter of much rejoicing that our Royal Grand Master thus accepts and so warmly enters into his Masonic duties and position, and we feel more than ever how good an omen it is for the future welfare of our Order, when we see our august brother so calmly intent on losing no opportunity of proclaiming openly his attachment to our body, his approval of our principles, and his entire sympathy with our labours and our efforts! His appearance on Wednesday, 5th, at Grand Chapter was a befitting "corollary" of all his previous friendly words, and will convince the Craft from one end of England to the other how thoroughly he has inherited that goodwill for our peaceful, benevolent, and tolerant brotherhood, which distinguished in years gone by so many of his illustrious family.

LORD CARNARVON'S SPEECH.

We have read with great attention our able Bro. Buchan's criticism on the eloquent address of our distinguished Pro Grand Master, but we confess we cannot understand what he finds amiss in it. Our noble brother only adopted the guild theory, which is also upheld by Bro. Hughan, "Masonic Student," and others, and we cannot see that the address to the Grand Master, opportune and admirable as it was, is in any way obnoxious to critical animadversion. We fully endorse his words, with all deference to Bro. Buchan. We believe, as he does, that our Speculative Order is but the continuation of the old operative guilds, and therefore we hold, and hold strongly, that Lord Carnarvon in all that he said, and said so well, is alike archæologically and historically correct. We certainly do not accept as proved facts, the assumed affiliation of King James I., King Charles I., King Charles II., and King William III., though we do not mean to say that the traditions in that respect are utterly untrue! But as we have no evidence of the statements, we relegate them to the period of legend and tradition alone, assuming that our actual trustworthy history begins with 1717. But we say all this with deference and with reserve, so neglected has been the study of Masonic antiquity amongst us, neglected that is, on scientific principles, and evidential accuracy, that, as we feel sure Bro. W. J. Hughan will agree, we must look upon ourselves as yet upon the threshold of enquiry and verification. If the logical result of the argument, for instance, arising out of the facts as proved by the Masons' Company books be accepted, as we think it will be, the consequence will be that in 1646 Speculative Freemasonry was known and practised in this country, and that in 1682 the Freemasons were a distinct organization, openly receiving speculative members. So that there is no limit, possibly, to the interesting evidences and illustrations of our Order yet forthcoming, which are like the "dissecta membra" of the poet, lying here and there in long unopened boxes, and dusty muniment rooms: Bearing all this in mind, and believing in the great and material identity of the Speculative and Operative Order or guilds, call them by what name you like, we entirely concur with our Pro Grand Master in his brief but eloquent sketch of Masonic history. We quite understand that Bro. Buchan, who still clings to the 1717 theory most manfully, may object to any statement antagonistic to his amiable little "vanity," but we cannot agree with him, and we know that he is too tolerant and too good a Freemason not to concede to others, the same absolute freedom of opinion he claims for himself.

THE "SATURDAY REVIEW" AGAIN.

Our old friend is as usual as cynical and as unsparing as ever. "Semper idem" is its motto in its weekly utterances of polished sarcasm and somewhat acidulated chaff. The Saturday Review has made a great discovery, which is, not merely that there is nothing in Freemasonry, but that the great object of the Masonic gathering is love of dress and show. With the memories of old days and of the Latin grammar, the reviewer would touchingly say "Veniunt spectatum veniunt spectentur ut ipsi." Most remarkable discovery, and still more remarkable fact. The Saturday Review retreats from the "love-of-a-good-dinner theory." Perhaps it did just occur to the writer that Saturday Reviewers liked and could eat a good dinner as well as the Freemasons, and that it was not a fact which proved much any way. A good many Englishmen, and good Englishmen too, have liked and do like a good dinner, and why are Freemasons wrong in doing the same; on what principles, either of high "salutin," or the lower grounds of a depressing asceticism, are Freemasons to be condemned for preferring a good dinner to a bad one? We pause for a reply. The Saturday Reviewer felt that this "prandial" theory was untenable, and so he now asserts that the great ends of Freemasonry are the apron and the jewel! We do not suppose that all men will see Freemasonry as we do. We do not expect that at once all objections are to be removed, and all hesitation ended, but what we do ask for is fair dealing and truthful statements. The argument "ad absurdum" is often very effective, and may be very witty, we will even concede logical, but it fails in its end utterly; it is nothing but the idle invention of a morbid jester when it assumes the character of an incriminating falsehood. Now, we say distinctly that love of dress is not any end of Freemasonry, or any object of the great mass of Freemasons.

That we may have those amongst us who like to disport themselves in Masonic red, blue, or purple may be true; that we have Masonic "jackdaws" is not, we apprehend, deniable by any of us, but the vast bulk of our fraternity are actuated and animated by no such unworthy motives. Freemasonry to them is a social, a tolerant, a charitable institution, where amid contentions both political and religious, the faithful Freemason can happily meet his brother Freemasons and his pleasant friends, forgetful of the one and ignorant of the other. Freemasonry would seek to throw a little of the sweetness of charity, a little of the softness of brotherly sympathy, over this often arid wilderness of life. Men often contend long and bitterly here about "trifles light as air," which nevertheless estrange them from each other, and keep them in antagonism, even amid the pressing claims of social life. But in the Masonic lodge the tumult of politics is unknown, in that peaceful region no polemical warfare intrudes, the "odium theologicum" and the "odium humanum" are alike unheard of, and many of us find our lodge room a pleasant reunion of warm hearts and kindly companions. We have read over carefully the article in the Saturday Review, and have, we believe, found the only one "point" of its lengthy tirade and heavy facetiousness. Indeed, all we read there we have often read before, and the objections, veiled partly by jest and sarcasm, are but those which we have had to encounter in the past, and shall have to encounter in the future, from all who object to Freemasonry "in limine," who disbelieve its claims to historic antiquity, who undervalue its efforts in the cause of benevolence. Most of our readers, like ourselves, have long since made up their minds as to the real value and the true mission of our good old Order, and as we are not deterred by threats, so we shall not be induced by ridicule to disavow its membership or desert its colours.

BRO. CONSTABLE'S DRAWING.

We are requested by our worthy and zealous brother to announce that four other names have been sent in. 430, Bro. Jabez Garrett, 13, Broad Street; 776, Benjamin Hammond, Stepney; 1512, R. Jennings, J.D. Royal Albert, 907; and 3137, John Megg, Sheerness. We congratulate Bro. Constable on the result of his charitable labours, devoted and persevering as we know them to have been. It seems that for this year 4000 tickets were issued, of which 3780 were sold, representing 18 life-governorships of 10 guineas each, or £189. By the particulars of the numbers published, it would seem that there were five prizes for the first thousand, four in the second, five in the third, and four in the fourth, a distribution certainly not inequitable. As our brethren and readers may like to know the "modus operandi" of the ballot, we give it to them. The whole 4000 corresponding numbers were placed in a basket, thoroughly intermixed, and the first eighteen tickets drawn (singly) represented the eighteen life-governorships. We are happy to learn that marked success has crowned all our brother's efforts, a satisfactory reward to all his difficulties and even rebuffs, and that his steward's list will amount at least to £415. It is no doubt perfectly true, that the shillings have come in from sources where larger subscriptions, if asked for, would have been nil, and we think that such a fact says a great deal, not only for the original idea of Bro. Constable, but for his unwearied efforts. We should remember that this scheme of Bro. Constable's is not before us for the first time. We hear the result of his endeavours for 1875, namely, the creation of eighteen life-governorships for the Girls' School; but we must not forget that in 1874 the same disinterested energy produced £349 for the Benevolent Institution, £760 in round numbers in two years. We thank Bro. Constable for his praiseworthy devotion to and personal sympathy for the cause of Masonic charity generally, and we congratulate him on his favourable return for 1875. We presume that our worthy brother, though he may perhaps hesitate at wearying out his many friends, will yet also try and do a good turn for the Boys' School. We tender to him "our heartly good wishes" and our warm appreciation of his benevolent labours.

THE NEEDLEMAKERS' COMPANY.

Pressure on our space, which is quite overwhelming just now, prevents us giving in extenso the interesting report of this practically resuscitated company, over which our worthy and able Bro. J. C. Parkinson so fitly presides. A very large number of our Order attended the livery banquet, and, as we read the list, we observe many well known both in Grand Lodge and in private lodge. It appears that the Needle-makers' Company dates from the time of Henry VIII., it was never chartered, however, until the time of the Commonwealth, but subsequently received a Royal charter from King Charles II. Being one of the minor companies it had gradually dwindled away, until it was revived by some zealous members, many of them Freemasons, a short time ago, including Bro. Sir George Elliott, M.P., and our excellent Grand Registrar, as we are informed. If we may judge of the future success of the Company, by the abundance of its good cheer, the number of its visitors, and the animation of their speeches, we should be disposed to augur long life and much prosperity for it. Our distinguished Bro. the Lord Mayor was also present, and made a very effective speech, indeed we cannot fail to be struck with the sterling quality of the addresses, the "speaking power" so remarkably displayed. We would especially call attention to the speech of Bro. Parkinson, and to the as usual happy response of the Lord Chief Justice. The old guilds used to have their "morning speech," we have so far improved on them as to have an "evening speech," equally useful and probably a little more effective. The account of this genial gathering in our contemporary, the City Press, for May 8th, will amply repay perusal. We trust that all success will attend the reanimated company, and that, like the other former guilds of the City of London, it may show from year to year equally pleasant tokens of its vitality and its hospitality.

SENIOR GRAND WARDEN.

Bro. the Marquis of Hamilton was initiated in the Apollo Lodge, 357, at Oxford, in 1857, and served his qualifying offices, we are informed, in the Churchill Lodge, No. 478, Oxford.

SENIOR GRAND DEACON.

Bro. Speed has been a member of the Middlesex Lodge, No. 143, since 1837, having been initiated two years before, and a member of Moriah Chapter, No. 9, from the same date, in both of which he has served all the offices.

JUNIOR GRAND DEACON.

Bro. F. P. Morrell was initiated in the Apollo Lodge, 357, served offices therein, and followed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as W.M. in 1874. He is a subscriber to the Girls' School, and a Life Governor of the Boys'.

ASSISTANT GRAND DIRECTOR OF CEREMONIES.

Bro. P. G. Homfray was initiated in the Isca Lodge, No. 683, Newport, Mon., in 1859. He served in the offices up to J.W. in that lodge, and on the foundation of St. George's Lodge, 1098, at Tredegar, this being his native place, he became a joining member of that lodge. About seven years ago he was elected W.M.; became P.M. and served the lodge faithfully for three years. He was made D. Prov. G.M. of Monmouthshire about four years ago, by Lient. Col. Lyne; is now Prov. G.M., having previously held the offices of Prov. G.S.B. and P.G.J.W. He is P.Z. of Chapters 237, 471 and 818; P.M. W.S. Ivor Hael Chapter, Rose Croix; E.P. Gwent Preceptory, and is Prov. G.H. of Monmouthshire.

GRAND PURSUIVANT.

Bro. John Wright was initiated in the Lodge of Unity, No. 183, London, March 26th, 1853, and subscribed about two years. Joined the Lodge of Sincerity, No. 174, in January, 1856, and contributed to 1869. Joined the High Cross Lodge, No. 754, Tottenham, in 1858, was W.M.

in 1864 and contributed to 1866. Joined the Merchant Navy Lodge, Poplar, No. 781, in September, 1861, was W.M. in 1862, and is still a member and Treasurer of the lodge. He is also a member of the Friar's Lodge, No. 1349 since its formation in 1871. He was exalted in the High Cross Chapter, No. 754, Tottenham, in 1863, and was among the promoters and is a present member of the Chapter of Sincerity, No. 174.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The anniversary festival of this excellent institution took place on Tuesday, May 11th, and we are glad to be able to report to the Craft that this second great charitable meeting of our Order has not been behind the first in attendance or in result. We are happy in being able to announce that the lists produced the generous contribution of £7269 3s., and while congratulating our Order and the committee we are compelled, by want of space, to stop now. Next week we shall call the attention of our readers to the subject more fully, and shall give the Lists of Subscriptions.

RUMOURS OF WAR.

As Freemasons we are not politicians, but we have, and ever should have, a deep interest in all that concerns humanity. Hence to our peaceful Order all war, unless a war of defence or absolutely necessary in the interests of justice, right, and honour, is a matter of sincere regret. Especially should we deplore a great European war. We will hope that the happy influences of civilization and progress may not be retarded by another outbreak of angry passions, by the fell tide of devastating and destructive hostilities sweeping over fair lands now in peace, and bringing ruin to the homestead and misery to family life. The Duke of Wellington once said, that no soldier who had seen much of war would ever wish needlessly to inflict its horrors on any country whatever; and we fondly trust that conciliatory counsels and the good sense of great and experienced statesmen will yet avert, in God's good Providence, so great a trial and so mournful a calamity from Europe, now like the mighty sea in its pleasant calm and glorious expanse of blue waters, tranquil and at rest, after fearful storms and destructive hurricanes. With the poet we too well may say to-day, "Nulla salus bello, pacem te poscimus omnes." We are happy to add that reassuring news has been received by Her Majesty's Government.

NOTICE.

The June number of the "Masonic Magazine" which is the closing number of the 2nd volume, will be increased in letter-press, and will be ornamented by a photograph of H.R.H. the Grand Master. In order to prevent disappointment, non-subscribers should send an order at once to the publisher, 198, Fleet-street, E.C., who is most anxious to accommodate all who apply in time. The price of the single number is 6d., seven shillings for the whole year, and postage paid. With the end of the second volume it is a good time for many of our brethren to subscribe for the next twelve months.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE INSTALLATION OF THE M.W. GRAND MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As I am sure the Craft generally would be pleased to be informed on authority how many brethren were really present at the Albert Hall on the 28th ult., I shall be obliged if you will kindly give the required information. I should also be glad to know how it was that Prince Leopold was not present. Was he unfortunately unwell again?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

EDWIN PRIOR.

LODGE VOTES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I ask, through the columns of your journal, for information on the following point, which has arisen in the course of a most amicable discussion on the subject of the votes belonging to my lodge, but standing in the name of "the W.M."

Would it be the duty of the W.M. to place all such votes at the disposal of the lodge and use them only in such way as might be resolved upon, or has he a perfect right, if so disposed, to use them as he might privately think fit?

I have no doubt that if the W.M. voted for any candidate and returned the paper duly signed, such vote or votes would be perfectly legal so far as the election was concerned, even presuming that the W.M. had voted contrary to the unanimous wish of the lodge, and although there may be no doubt as to the course which any W.M. ought to take in the matter, I am desirous of knowing what would be his duty.

Yours fraternally,

G.A.J., P.M.

[We apprehend that the votes are at the disposal of the W.M. for the time being, absolutely.—Ed.]

RED APRON LODGES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The suggestion of a P.M. in your last issue that it would be a wise and gracious act of Grand Lodge to commemorate the installation of our Royal Worshipful Grand Master by increasing the number of Grand Stewards is one that will meet with general approval from the largely increased, and ever increasing body, to the interests of whom your journal is devoted.

There are many ancient lodges well worthy of the honour, not only from their antiquity, but by their devotion to the Masonic cause, and the upholding of its various charities and purposes.

I am greatly mistaken if the present Grand Stewards would do other than rejoice at the admission of some of their ancient brethren, who would enter within their boundary without scruple, believing they had justly earned the position, and as it is the hope of reward that sweetens labour, let every brother work on in every good work, being sustained by the hope that ere long there may be yet another reason for congratulation in having a Royal Worshipful Grand Master.

Yours fraternally,

L.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the time for the meeting of the Great Priory is now at hand, I think it may be useful to call the attention of the members of various preceptories, who are interested in a revision of statutes of the Templar Order, to the necessity that exists for a large attendance of the supporters of that revision at the meeting of the Great Priory, not only of those who bear a vote by their offices, but of all other members of the preceptories who are in accord with us on these points. The object of a large attendance is to show that the dissatisfaction at the present state of things is not confined to a few preceptories, or even to those few who have sent in memorials, but is deep and widespread. This will be as effectually shown by a large attendance of the dissentients as by the votes of those who have a right to a voice in the Great Priory. Let, then, every one of us, who thinks that the prosperity of the Order demands an alteration in the statutes, be there and hold up our hands for a consideration of the memorials sent in to the Great Priory, and thereby show to those with whom the decision lies, that we are unanimous in our requirements, and are of such number, and therefore of importance to the Order, as may ensure attention and redress of our grievances. It is undeniably apparent that among some of the chiefs of the Order there exists a strong disinclination to any alteration of the present statutes, and of course, the high position of those officers can but render necessary a more strenuous effort (if success is to be hoped for) by those who, though greater in number, are in less exalted positions than the rulers over us. I confess it appears to us to be hopeless to expect a successful result in future if we should fail now, when we have, so far as possible, organised, to some extent, an united action, as in that case our present defeat will militate strongly against a future success. Now, if ever, is our opportunity, and it behoves us all not, by indifference, to let it pass by without a result, such as we seek and are convinced is necessary to the welfare of the Order, and if not essential to its existence, at least most influential in keeping up its prestige.

I am, Sir, yours right fraternally,

J.C.G.L.

Mulum in Parvo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE MASONS' COMPANY.

Sir Wm. Wiseman is a misprint for Wilson. So far the two Wises, Mr. Thomas Shorthose, William Woodman, Mr. Samuel Taylour, are all verified as members of the Masons' Company. These are all the names mentioned in Preston's seventeenth edition, but "seven more old Freemasons" are spoken of. On looking back to Ashmole's life and diary, in the edition of 1774, it seems that the quotation, as given by Dr. Oliver in the note, is not correct, for the words "seven old Freemasons" do not occur, but the following names are given—Mr. Thomas Shadbolt Wadsworth, Esq., Mr. Nicholas Young, Mr. John Shorthose, Mr. William Hamon, Mr. John Thompson and Mr. William Stanton. Of these the only so far verified is John Shorthose as well as Thomas Shorthose, Captain

Borthwick and Sir William Wilson are not traceable. I am endeavouring to have another search made, and will report progress. Unless Oliver took his extract from some other work, this quotation, as will be seen, must be incorrect. Ashmole nowhere talks of "seven other old Freemasons," though the names mentioned with Thomas Shorthose amount to eight. The point is most important, and too much trouble cannot be taken to clear it up fully. Bro. Hughan and myself quite feel this.

THE ASTROLOGERS' FEAST.

I want to call my Bro. W. J. Hughan's attention to this feast, too often mentioned by Ashmole. Can any light be thrown upon it? Sir John Heydon, who is an early patron of Ashmole, was also not unknown to astrological fame. The first mention of it is under the name of the Mathematical Feast, February 24th, 1647, at the White Hart in the Old Bailey, "where I dined." The next meeting appears to be August 1st, 1649. The Astrologers' Feast at Painters' Hall, the same year, October 31st. There was another, August 8th, 1650, "I being at the Astrologers' Feast, 2. hor. post merid, I was chosen steward for the following year, August 14th, 1651. The next was again at Painters' Hall, March 18th, 1653. The Astrologers' Feast was held August 22nd, 1654. Another, August 29th, 1656. Another, November 2nd, 1659. The diary ends October 8th, 1687, but he nowhere mentions the Astrologers' Feast again. He mentions the Antiquaries' Feast, July 2nd, 1659, but that is clearly another meeting. It appears that on the 23rd of May, 1686, Dr. Plot presented him with "His Natural History of Staffordshire." Is there any minute in the book of the Painters' Company, if such still exists, as to the loan of this hall, and where was it. The Painters' Company was one of the minor companies, and its hall, like many others, probably perished in the great fire.

ASHMOLE'S MSS.

In reply to the query of the Rev. Bro. Woodford, I have pleasure in informing him that the MSS. of Elias Ashmole are in the library at Oxford, and, as I hear from a friend in that city, there are two excellent catalogues of them; one a general catalogue, the other of names of persons and places.

WILLIAM KELLY, P.P.G.M.

The Ashmole MSS. in the Bodleian have all been searched over and over again. I allude to his private MSS. Many thanks to Bro. Kelly. A. F. A. W.

Obituary.

BRO. BENJAMIN TAYLOR.

Our readers generally, and the Masonic fraternity in particular, will regret to learn that Bro. Benjamin Taylor died on Thursday, 29th ult. Deceased was one of the oldest public officers in Huddersfield, having been assistant overseer for the long period of thirty-two years, and which post he ultimately resigned through age and infirmity. He was throughout life a man of sterling integrity, and discharged his public duties in a manner which elicited the warmest praise from the inhabitants generally. He was also a Free and Accepted Mason, of whom the Craft were justly proud, and his long and honourable connection with the Order is testified to by the oil painting of him, in Masonic costume, which adorns the walls of the Lodge of Harmony in South Parade. A paragraph appeared in the Illustrated News, of the 10th of last month, representing that a Masonic brother, who had been fifty-three years a member, was the oldest in England; but as Mr. Taylor was initiated on the 6th of June, 1816, he had a clear claim to seniority. He had held nearly every office in Masonry, and about three years ago he performed the unusual ceremony of initiating his grandson, Mr. James Taylor. When he completed his 50th year of membership the brethren of the Lodge of Harmony presented him with a silver cup, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented by the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and brethren of the Lodge of Harmony, 275, of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, Huddersfield, to Bro. Benjamin Taylor, P.M., P.Z., P.P. S.G.D. of West Yorkshire, in commemoration of his attaining his 50th year of membership in the Order, and in token of the high esteem and fraternal regard entertained for him by the lodge; he having by his upright conduct and exemplary character as a citizen, by his rarely equalled attainments in knowledge of Masonic ritual, by his assiduous attention to all Masonic duties, and by his readiness to undertake any office or ceremony assigned to him, justly endeared himself to his brethren and companions. June, 1866." The ratepayers also evinced a lively desire to mark their appreciation of his private character and public worth, after his retirement from the office of assistant overseer. On the 31st of July, 1872, an illuminated address, a silver snuff box, and £250 in money were presented him. The address was as follows:—"To Mr. Benjamin Taylor, late assistant overseer of the poor of Huddersfield, this address, together with a purse of £250, and a silver snuff box, is presented by the principal ratepayers and inhabitants of Huddersfield, in testimony of their high appreciation of the valuable services which he has for over thirty-two years past rendered to the town, and of the unswerving integrity and assiduous industry with which he discharged the duties of his office throughout an unusually lengthened period, nearly a quarter of a million sterling of poor rates having passed through his hands to the satisfaction of the overseers in chief." The substance of this address was also engraved on the snuff box. Throughout life Bro. Taylor was identified with the Methodist New Connexion body, and for many years, and up to the time of his death, was a trustee of High-street Chapel. He has passed away at the ripe age of eighty years, leaving an example which public officers in every department would do well to imitate. Two sons of Bro. Taylor were also members of the Craft, and of good standing and esteem in their respective lodges. The youngest son, Joe Taylor, was successively Deacon, Secretary of the Lodge of Harmony, 275, and was appointed Warden for the current year, but died suddenly soon after the appointment, and before the day of his installation arrived. He left a family of young children in a very unprovided state, one of whom, Louisa Jane Taylor, is a candidate for admission to the Freemasons' Girls' School at the next October election, and as it is, on account of her age, her first and only chance—it is the earnest hope of her friends that her descent from two generations of worthy Masons will ensure her the sympathy and support of a goodly number of the Craft.

BRO. WILLIAM DOBSON.

This worthy and esteemed member of the Craft, who resided at 145, Mile End-road, London, E., died on the 19th April, in the 66th year of his age. He was for many years a member of Lodge 812 (old No.), Mile End, and was greatly esteemed by all the brethren who had the happiness of being acquainted with him. By profession he was an architect, surveyor, and valuer, and in the latter capacity especially he was always regarded by his professional brethren as a competent authority. A thorough Christian, his conduct was always characterised by strict integrity, and he was an unostentatious disciple of those noble principles which are so intimately associated with the Craft. He was a kind husband and an affectionate parent, and his loss is deeply deplored by a large sorrowing family, as well as a wide circle of admiring friends, whose grief is considerably alleviated by a flattering hope that his soul has ascended to those immortal mansions whence all goodness emanates. Failing health had, during the last two years, incapacitated him from following the duties of his profession; but a lasting memorial of him remains in the magnificent pile known as the Mile End Old Town Workhouse, for which building he was the successful competing architect some years ago. It is a consolation to know that his end was peaceful in the extreme, he having, up to the last, expressed his strong faith in and based his chief hopes on the mercy of the Grand Architect.

Oh! may each reader here the lesson learn,

Which can alone the bleeding heart sustain,

Where friendship weeps at virtue's funeral urn,

That to the pure in heart to die is gain.

THE LATE BRO. DR. SHANNON, OF WIGTON.

There are few men who have so rapidly risen into public esteem, and whose loss will be so keenly felt in the district where he worked, as the subject of this notice. When the news of his sudden death, at Monaco, in the South of France, reached Wigton last week, there was such universal feeling of regret and such warm expressions of attachment to him as we have seldom witnessed. Although little more than thirty years of age, he was looked upon by both rich and poor as a warm and kind friend, and he had endeared himself to all by his courteous and genial manner, his warm sympathies, and the sound knowledge of his profession, in the practice of which he had gained much reputation. He was born at Magherafelt, in the North of Ireland, and was the son of a much esteemed practitioner in that district. His medical studies were pursued in the Belfast Medical School, in connection with the Queen's University of Ireland. His student's career was a successful and brilliant one, he having obtained more than the usual share of prizes in the different departments of study that fall to the lot of an average medical student. In 1861, he graduated as M.D. at Queen's University, and shortly afterwards became assistant to Dr. Tiffen, of Wigton, where he remained for some years, and was much respected. In 1864, he became a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. Subsequently he acted for some time as surgeon to ocean steamers, and then settled in practice in his native town of Magherafelt, and the esteem in which he was held here may be judged from the following extract of a letter:—"He was loved and valued here as well as in the North of England, and there is many a cheek bedewed with tears for him to day." He longed for a greater sphere of usefulness, and in 1869 he became a partner with his former master, Dr. Tiffen, where he soon won many friends, and extended an already large practice. He was enthusiastic in his profession, and happy when fully occupied; but hard work told upon a not over-vigorous constitution, and a neglected cold led to the development of insidious disease of the lungs, for which his medical friends, in the autumn of last year, urged him to give up work, and take a much-needed rest. Those most competent to judge advised him to take a long sea voyage, in the hope that it would lead to the full restoration to health.

As is known, his intention of sailing to Melbourne was not fulfilled, on account of the burning of the ship in which he intended to sail, so he went up the Mediterranean. As he moved about from place to place, his friends seldom knew of his whereabouts, but about three weeks ago he wrote from Naples, expressing himself as a great deal better, and on his way home, where he expected to be early this month. His death, therefore, came upon his many friends as a great shock, and one they were quite unprepared for. Full particulars have not yet arrived, but it is probable that his end was due to an attack of hæmoptysis, from which he had previously suffered.

Two of Dr. Shannon's friends, who are also his executors—Mr. Porter and Mr. W. Carrick, of Wigton—at once set out for Monaco, on receipt of the intelligence of his death, and arrived, we understand, just in time to see his remains interred.

The above Bro. Dr. Shannon was P.M., St. John's Lodge 327, Wigton, and P. Prov. J.D. Ceremonies of the province of Cumb. and West., Scribe, E. St. John's Chapter, and Prov. G. Jun. Deacon of Mark Masters in the province. Died at Monaco, April 29th, 1875.

VISIT OF THE LORD MAYOR TO THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

Last Saturday afternoon the Lord Mayor, preparatory to his taking the chair at the eighty-seventh anniversary festival of this school on Tuesday, paid a visit in state, accompanied by the Lady Mayoress, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Stone, and Mrs. Sheriff Ellis, to the Institution at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise, according to annual custom. On their arrival at the school they were met by Col. Burdett, Prov. G. M. of Middlesex, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Dep. Prov. G.M. of Middlesex, and Chairman of the Board of Stewards, Bros. Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, the Rev. J. M. Vaughan, the Rev. H. C. Levander, Bros. Joshua Nunn, A. H. Tattershall, James Terry, Robt. B. Webster, W. Paas, Raynham W. Stewart, N. B. Headon, H. Massey (Freemason), Benjamin Head, H. G. Buss, R. W. Little (Secretary), Miss Davis (Head Governess), and Miss Jarwood, (Matron). They immediately proceeded to the exercise room, where the girls went through their famous calisthenic exercises, which have drawn at different times warm applause from the visitors to the school for their exactness and regularity. On this occasion they were in no way inferior to former examples, and the Lord Mayor when they were concluded congratulating Miss Davis on having brought the girls to such a state of perfection, remarking that their evolutions had been gone through with all the precision of a regiment of soldiers. The whole party of visitors next viewed the building, and were conducted through the dormitories by Miss Jarwood. The large amount of space in the airy and well-lighted rooms, and all the arrangements for the health and comfort of the pupils, were greatly admired by the party, who expressed the greatest satisfaction with everything they had seen. On descending, after partaking of slight refreshment, his lordship and the company proceeded to witness the children's proficiency in their studies, and by this time about 400 ladies and gentlemen had assembled. The recitations in English, French, German, and performances on the piano-forte were given, and the Lord Mayor, after stating how pleased he was to find the standard of education in the school so high, and how gratified he was at everything he had seen and heard that day, proceeded, with the assistance of the Lady Mayoress, to distribute to the following girls the prizes awarded to them.

GRAND MASONIC FETE.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES TO THE PUPILS OF THE MASONIC ORPHAN SCHOOLS, DUBLIN.

The annual fete on behalf of the Masonic Orphan Schools took place in the Exhibition Palace, Dublin, on Monday evening, the 19th ultimo, under the presidency of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, K.G., Viceroy of Ireland. It was marked by greater brilliancy than usual, chiefly because of the splendid decorations which remained since the Masonic Ball on the previous Friday night. There seemed also to be a larger concourse than at previous anniversaries, for albeit the colossal size of the building, promenading was a matter of tedious steering through the gaps made by those of the fashionable throng moving to and fro. Nearly 8,000 were present. Viewed from the galleries, the sight presented was one of singular beauty and magnificence. The many colours of the rich costumes set off with dazzling gems, together with the glory of the decorations illuminated by ten thousand lights, seemed almost dazzling. Of course the brethren were arrayed in the panoply of their insignia, except the Knights Templar, who were not so conspicuous as they were last year, with their tunics and mantles adorned with the Rose Croix. All had donned the jewels of their rank, from the third to the thirty-third degree. Many of the ladies, too, wore Masonic emblems, quite innocent of their mystic significance. But it was not unseemly for the ladies while secluded from the penetralia to adorn themselves with the gems of the order or countenance it by their presence, seeing that those of their own sex are chief objects of its solicitude, the school for orphan boys having only been established within the past few years. And here it will not be amiss to pay a respectful tribute to the memory of the late Grand Master, Augustus Frederick Duke of Leinster (who watched over the interests of the craft in this country with the care of a father for his children, during half a century), since the cause of the Masonic orphans has sustained in him a very serious loss. The great interest which his Grace manifested in the female orphan school mainly contributed to placing that institution in its present position. During the early period of its existence his subscriptions were nearly as large as those of the rest of the order put together. Of late years, happily, this was not the case, as the brethren became aware of the existence of the school and the duty devolving upon them to support it. His Grace the Duke of Leinster took special pleasure in presiding over the annual festival of charity, at which he distributed the prizes to the deserving pupils. At last year's reunion, which took place in the month of May, he looked hale and happy; but a few months afterwards his health gave away, and he was summoned hence amid the sincere mourning of all the brethren, who felt that they could scarcely expect to "look upon his like again." But the darkest hour is that before dawn; and thus, in common with their English brethren, who had also lost their chief, but under different circumstances, they found abundant cause to rejoice in the successor to the vacant throne of the order. In England, the Heir Apparent to the Crown of these realms became head of the Craft. In Ireland its governance was undertaken by the Viceroy, who had been a Mason since his college days in Oxford. With the steadily increasing influence of the Order, the prosperity of the orphan schools will, in like manner, become assured, so that the day may not be far distant when every deserving case will receive assistance. There are now 63 orphans maintained by the Order. Of those, 40 are girls. Unfortunately the governors were unable last year to admit any additional orphans to the girls' school for want of room. However, it is anticipated that the negotiations pending will enable them soon to begin the erection of a new school, which is to be sufficiently commodious to accommodate double the number that the present building does. In view of this, and the hope of greater aid from the order, four vacancies have been declared for the next election. During the past year, some of the pupils competed in the Royal Dublin Society's art examinations, and one of them obtained a certificate from the Council of Education of South Kensington, while two others received certificates from the Royal Dublin Society. There can be no doubt of the soundness of the education imparted, the institution being under the constant supervision of the committee, including the Right Hon. the Vice-Chancellor, the Hon Judge Townsend, Rev. Lord Plunket, Rev. J. J. MacSorley, Dr. Elrington, Q.C.; Messrs. L. H. Deering, G. Huband, and C. H. Woodroffe. The boys, 23 in number, are at the establishment of Brother the Rev. S. S. Skeen, Adelaide Hall, Merrion, and are making satisfactory progress, as was reported by some learned brethren, including the Rev. Dr. Haughton, F.T.C.D.; Mr. Hugh Holmes, and Mr. G. V. Hart, who examined them at the request of the Committee. Within the past few days, one of the boys, James Brett, who will be shortly leaving, took first place at the Apothecaries' Hall arts examination direct from the school, though he was the youngest of the candidates. It is in contemplation, to establish an institute similar to that of the girls for the boys, but the Committee, very judiciously considering the advantages of class education, have thought it advisable not to do so until they can support a sufficient number of pupils. Altogether both schools show hopeful signs of prosperity. It was evident last night that the cause of the charity had come home to the hearts of many, judging by the vast numbers who displayed governors' badges, and those included the distinguished and wealthy in the land, the nobility, the learned, the princely merchants, and the great middle classes. Owing to the illness of a near relative, the Rev. Lord Plunket, Grand Chaplain, and the Hon. David Plunket, Q.C., M.P., Solicitor-General, were absent.

During the evening the fine band of the Coldstream Guards, under the direction of Bro. Fred Godfrey, performed a choice selection of operatic music and some new pieces specially arranged for the occasion by the talented conductor himself.

At a quarter before nine o'clock his Grace the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Georgiana Hamilton, together with a brilliant retinue arrived, and were received by the Deputy Grand Master and the grand officers. The ladies were conducted to the place reserved for them immediately in front of the dais, while his Grace withdrew to the anteroom, where he robed himself as Grand Master. The reception party included:—Lady Georgiana Hamilton, Hon. L. Gerald Dillon and Mrs. Dillon, Gustavus Lambart, Esq., Lady Fanny and Misses Lambart, Sir J. M. and Lady Stewart, Colonel B. W., Mrs. and Miss Bernard; Lord and Lady Walscourt, and others. At nine o'clock the Grand Officers, the Provincial Grand Officers, the representatives from Foreign Grand Lodges, the Masters, Wardens, and Secretaries of the several Dublin Lodges, and those distinguished brethren and governors of the schools, intended to occupy places on the platform, formed a procession and, led by a host of stewards, under the direction of Worshipful George Woods Maunsell, D.L., Grand Steward, conducted the Most Worshipful Grand Master to the Concert Hall through an avenue composed of the brethren, whilst organ and band pealed forth a grand Masonic march.

On the procession reaching the dais, the brethren filed off, and took the stations assigned to them by the stewards, and the M.W. Grand Master took his seat upon the throne amidst the heartiest plaudits. Then the pupils of the girls' schools all neatly attired in white and blue, followed by that of the boys' school wearing blue neck ties, entered two and two, and took their places along the lower tiers of the orchestra. At the bidding of the Deputy Grand Master, all the brethren and even the pupils saluted the Grand Master according to ancient custom. The 100th Psalm was then sung "with one consent."

His Grace the Most Worshipful Grand Master then rose and said—Brethren, ladies and gentlemen, it gives me the most sincere gratification that my first public appearance in the high position in which I have been placed, as Grand Master of the Freemasons of Ireland, has been an occasion which so fully exemplifies the leading objects of our great ancient order (hear, hear). These great objects are unity, benevolence, and charity to all men (hear, hear), and in no way can these great principles be better or more usefully carried out than in contributing, as far as lies in our power, to the education and instruction of our rising generation in such a way as that by God's Providence may serve to render them both sincere and good Christians, and also useful members of the universal brotherhood of mankind (hear, hear).

Dr. Elrington, Q.C., hon. secretary, read the report, of which the following are the salient parts:

"The Governors of the Masonic Female Orphan School beg leave to present the following report for the year ending December 31st, 1874. The revenue of the School for the year from all sources, including the balance from the previous annual account of £747 4s. 8d., amounted to £3,162 4s. 5d., shewing a decrease in the total revenue of £349 2s. 6d. This decrease, however, is, to a great extent, explained by the presence of some exceptional items in the account for the year 1873. Of this sum, £1,993 18s. 6d., was expended, while the capital was increased by an investment of £100 in Masonic Hall Company Shares, leaving a cash balance to the credit of the Institution of £1,158 5s. 11d. The total amount appearing in the stock account, invested for the benefit of the Institution, was £8,682 2s. 1d. The annual subscriptions shew an increase of £40 over the amount for 1873, which, as mentioned in the report for that year, was £183 10s. less than that of the previous year, so that there is no real improvement under this head. It is to be regretted that the explanation of this falling off in the subscriptions appears to arise from a loss of subscribers, previously known as supporters of the School, and not from any want of new names in the subscription lists. From the number of pupils in the Institution, and the limited accommodation of the Schoolhouse, the Board of Governors came to the determination of suspending the election of candidates for admission during the whole of 1874. The Governors have reason to believe that the withdrawal of some well-known names from the subscription list, arises from the fact that admission has thus, of necessity, been refused to a number of candidates whose claims were undoubted, but for whom there was no accommodation in the Schoolhouse, within the limits prescribed by the medical officers of the Institution. The expenditure is slightly in excess of last year's total, but does not call for any particular remark. The Governors are pressed by the importance of providing increased accommodation for the School; but they regret that they have not succeeded in completing negotiations for a new site suitable for the Masonic Orphan School of the future. Much anxious discussion has taken place as to the quantity of ground required, the situation, and the amount which may be, with prudence, expended on a new Schoolhouse. The Governors think that it would be better in the present state of the question, not further to allude to it than to say, that at the last special meeting of the Board, called for that purpose, it was determined that the site of the present Schoolhouse was not desirable for a School of the extent which, it is hoped, the Masonic Orphan School will be, and that a new site should be secured, having space for the recreation of the pupils as well as a suitable situation for the house itself. It is probable that the arrangements for this purpose will be completed before the next Report; but in any event the whole amount of available investments now to the credit of the School will not be more than enough to erect a building of suitable size and structure, and the expenditure of this capital will largely decrease the annual income. It is hoped that the Masonic Order in Ireland will assist the brethren to make the Female Orphan School an institution capable of receiving all those candidates for its benefits who are now kept out of it by a cause which their liberality can at once remove. In other respects the School is without change; the education is still carried on as heretofore, and the late examination has developed results which are in the highest degree gratifying, as indicating the progress of the pupils. The Education Committee has every reason to be satisfied with the election of Miss Leech, as successor to Miss Cuthbert, whose removal upon her marriage, deprived the School of services which, for many years past, have been acknowledged to be of great value to the pupils under her care."

The report concluded with a feeling allusion to the late Duke of Leinster, G.M.; and acceptance of that office by the Duke of Abercorn, who thus becomes President of the School, under whose auspices the Governors confidently trust the Institution will still continue to prosper.

The Right Worshipful Sir John Marcus Stewart, P.G.M. of Tyrone and Fermanagh, moved the first resolution—"That the report now read be adopted, printed and circulated, and that the thanks of this meeting are due to the members of the ladies, education, finance and apprentice committee of the institution, and also to the medical officers of the school for the zealous and efficient manner in which they have discharged the duties devolving upon them, and for the lively interest they manifest in everything conducive to the prosperity of the pupils of the Masonic Female Orphan School."

The Right Worshipful Anderson Cooper, D.P.G.M. of Munster, seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Colonel Ffolliott moved the second resolution, as follows:—"That, whilst acknowledging with gratitude the liberal support and assistance which the institution has hitherto experienced, the governors would earnestly invite the co-operation of the brethren in order still further to extend the usefulness of the institution."

Bro. Robert Warren, High Sheriff of the city of Dublin (in the absence of the Hon. Judge Townsend, LL.D.), seconded the resolution, which was unanimously carried.

In the intervals between the speeches some of the pupils played a selection of music on the piano-forte, their ability meriting much hearty applause.

The "business" proceedings having terminated, the National Anthem was sung, after which a procession was formed to grand dais, at the northern end of the glass building; the Grand Master passed on to the throne, the Grand Officers and Provincial Grand Masters in positions around him.

Lady Georgiana Hamilton gracefully distributed the prizes to both girls and boys. This was a novel and pleasing feature in the ceremonial.

After the prizes were distributed the M.W. Grand Master made some observations to the pupils.

Shortly after eleven o'clock his grace the Duke of Abercorn and the Viceregal suite left and were enthusiastically cheered.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

HIGH CROSS LODGE (No. 754).—Few lodges of Masons occupy a more favourable position in a variety of respects than the Tottenham High Cross Lodge (No. 754) does at this moment. Of late years its progress has been most marked. The brethren have largely increased in number, and such anxiety is displayed to enter the lodge that a few months ago it was deemed advisable to add two or three guineas to the initiation fee. The meetings are held at the Seven Sisters' Tavern, Page-green, Tottenham; and in order to provide the necessary accommodation for the augmented brotherhood of the lodge, and visitors—who always receive a very hearty welcome—Mr. Oddy, the universally respected host, recently built a splendid hall, the advantage of which was fully demonstrated last Wednesday evening. The High Cross Lodge, noted as it is for its benevolence, loyalty, and enterprise in Masonic affairs, could not permit the occasion of the Installation of the Prince of Wales to pass without making a special effort to afford pleasure to its own members and to those of other lodges who were invited to attend. Bro. J. Maller, the present W.M., is very popular in the Order, and being generally surrounded by such good men and true as Bros. D. Roberts, P.M.; T. Cunningham, P.M.; Jones, P.M.; Wells, P.M.; Linzell, P.M.; Townshend, S.W.; Barham, J.W.; Cocksedge, Farrin, Stephens, Burford, and others too numerous to mention, an opportunity to be present is rarely neglected. Last Wednesday there were many visitors, including several from the Hertford Lodge; Bros. Perry, Peace and Harmony; Girling, Priory, Southend; Harris, Albion; Strong, Leopold; Fisher, Perseverance; Ord, Horsey; Cackett, Macdonald; Schleifer, Montefiore; Trebeck and Driscoll, United Mariners. Altogether upwards of a hundred brethren were in attendance. Bro. Cunningham presided when the lodge was opened. The business was only of a formal character. Bro. Maller was in his proper place at the head of the table at the banquet. The bill of fare was unusually attractive, and the dinner reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Oddy, the host, and also Bro. Joseph Smith, of Lower Tottenham, who shared in the catering and general superintendence. With such able commanders, success was certain. It is unnecessary to state that on such a day the toasts relating to Her Majesty and the Prince of Wales were received with the utmost enthusiasm; and when reference was made by the W.M., Bro. Cunningham, and others who had attended the Installation, to the magnificent spectacle they had witnessed at the Albert Hall, the brothers who had not been fortunate enough to obtain tickets of admission sighed with regret. They were told that they could form no idea of the grandeur of the scene; and the privilege of being present at such a ceremony was held to be amply sufficient to inspire the younger members of the Craft to endeavour to attain a position which would entitle them to take part in a similar display, should it ever occur. When the health of the Worshipful Master was given, the speaker dwelt upon the deservedly exalted position which Bro. Maller held in the estimation of all the brethren of the lodge, and the advantage which the lodge derived from having such a head. Bro. Maller replied in suitable terms, expressing a hope that he should continue to deserve the confidence which had been reposed in him. During the evening a Tyler's sword and a square and compasses, in silver, were presented to the lodge by the brethren from Hertford, Bro. Metcalf being the principal spokesman on their behalf. He mentioned the invariable kindness evinced by the High Cross Lodge towards every brother who visited it, and referred particularly to the unstinted hospitality which had been frequently shown to the members of the Hertford Lodge. It afforded great pleasure to mix with the Tottenham brethren, and they might rest assured that they would be most warmly welcomed if they honoured the Hertford Lodge with a visit. Bro. Maller said he accepted the presents on behalf of the lodge, with a full appreciation of the sincerity with which they had been offered; and he then buckled the sword on to the Tyler amidst loud cheers. Several additional toasts were proposed, and interesting remarks made by Bro. D. Roberts, and various other brethren, but want of space prevents our entering further into the matter on the present occasion. The Host was specially toasted for his uniform liberality and desire to conduce to the comfort of Masons generally.

VICTORIA LODGE (No. 1056).—The installation meeting of this very flourishing lodge took place at Anderson's Hotel on Thursday week, when, after the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Alfred Henry Kirtan was raised by the W.M., Bro. Joseph Morton, to the degree of Master Mason. The new Master, Bro. Joseph Slade Brown, was then duly installed as Master, the ceremony being very ably performed by Bros. Frederick York Latreille and Alfred Robbins, the last named brother giving the addresses. The Master then appointed and invested the following as his officers:—Bros. William Perrin, S.W.; Thomas William Skelton, J.W.; William Wrenn, Treas.; A. A. Pendlebury, Sec.; George M. Felton, S.D.; William Gange Durant, J.D.; E. H. Williams, I.G.; William Tonsett, Director of Ceremonies; Henry Allen, W.S.; and William Grant, Tyler. Other business of the lodge having been disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the banquet. On the cloth being removed, the first toast proposed was "The Queen and the Craft," which was responded to in the usual hearty manner amongst Freemasons and musical honours. That of "The M.W. Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales" was then received with great applause. The W. Master in proposing it, took occasion to speak of the Installation of H.R. Highness at the Albert Hall, and the reception he had, a spectacle which will be impressed on the minds of those brethren who were able to be present as long as they live. "God bless the Prince of Wales" was then sung. "The Health of the W. Master" was proposed by Bro. J. Morton, who, in the course of his remarks, congratulated the brethren on their choice of a brother, who would make such an excellent Master; one who would exert himself to the utmost of his power in furthering the interests of the lodge, and the happiness of its members. Bro. Morton regretted that indisposition had prevented his being in a position to instal his successor, a duty which would have afforded him so very much pleasure. The Master, in his reply, expressed his great desire and determination to emulate his predecessors in the discharge of the duties of the high office to which the brethren had unanimously elected him, an honour of which he was very proud, and he trusted they would never have cause to regret the confidence they had placed in him. After a song by one of the brethren, "The Health of the I.P.M." was proposed in very suitable terms, and, in doing so, the Master decorated Bro. Morton with a Past Master's jewel, which the brethren had been pleased to vote to him as a slight mark of their appreciation of his valuable services, and the great esteem in which he is held by one and all of the members of his lodge. The Master, in concluding his very able speech, hoped the brother might long live to wear it, and be amongst the brethren of the lodge. Bro. Morton replied in a neat and suitable speech, in which he expressed his grateful thanks to the brethren for the kindnesses he had ever received at their hands. On "The Health of the Visitors" being proposed, the Master coupled with it the name of one who replied for the whole—of whom there were about twenty-seven present, who on behalf of their respective lodges brought hearty good wishes—and expressed thanks for their cordial reception and the kind manner in which the Master had spoken of them. "The Health of the Past Masters" was then proposed, and responded to with much favour. Whereupon one of them said,—W. Master and Brethren—
I now rise with a great deal of pleasure,
To say I feel, almost beyond measure,
The kindness which you, this day, have all shown,
And which proves you all good friends of our own.
In receiving the toast of the very good health,
Of the Past Masters, including myself,
For which I return our thanks most sincere,
And hope to do so again for many a year,
Whenever we meet thus happy and free,
As I trust will ever continue to be
The fate of a lodge we all so much prize,
Whose success we laud up to the skies.
Its glories increase to our great delight,
As evinced by our labours here to-night,
When we're now all assembled together,
Without any thought of the rain or the weather.
Our work being ended in lodge room above,
We now enjoy ourselves in brotherly love,
Sipping our wine in an affectionate way,
Chattering over the affairs of the day;
Making long speeches almost without end,
Extolling the virtues of brother or friend;
Singing old songs, or good tales reciting,
Which always render our party inviting.
Joyful are we when our meeting draws nigh,
Especially when Dear Billy Wrenn,
Does not think it wrong to give us a song,
And to remind us of days gone by,
When he at music was not quite so shy,
But was pleased, without much persuasion,
To give us a treat on many occasion.
And then, in a most generous manner,
Out with his notes and so stop our clamour;
Warble that story about "dear little Sally,"
That girl, we're told, who lived in our alley;
Or another that always pleased us the same,
Whom folks do name "My pretty Jane."
Why dear Billy Wrenn sings not as of yore

I cannot tell you, I am perfectly sure,
Unless it be that in days gone by
To practice his pipes he'd frequently try;
And when not inclined for a roam
Out of doors he sat quietly at home,
Making a noise, being almost alone;
And so practise the art
By singing his part,
Till he made his throat smart,
Or was quite perfect in "Home, sweet home."
At that time music was more in his line—
As some of you know, his singing was fine;
And gave us delight in the West and the South,
Whenever he pleased to open his mouth.
His chicks in those days were little and young,
And in the musical line had scarcely begun;
But now a fair daughter whose music so sweet,
Has put dear Billy quite out of conceit;
For as she improves in age, size and ability,
He finds he can't warble with that facility,
And practise at home as once was his pleasure,
Before she grew up to be such a treasure;
For when she was only a wee little mite,
To instruct her was his greatest delight.
But now father Time has changed all this,
And listening to her affords Wrenn more bliss,
Than singing to us here every lodge night,
And giving his brethren that great delight,
Which they used to hail with very much pleasure
When a few years ago they all met together.
Having referred to the lodge in times long gone by,
To say something about it I'll now endeavour to try:
Ten years are gone since our first Master was installed,
In which time he has grown very grey, if not at all bald.
Of founders of the lodge not many now remain,
But of those I am sure you will never complain;
For all are Past Masters, and when they began
Their labours, they all worked hard and well to a man;
And do now what they did then—whatever they can,
To promote the prosperity of the lodge and each member,
A circumstance I am certain you'll ever remember.
But as most of you have joined since those happy times,
Perhaps it will not be amiss to say a few lines;
And give you the history of Lodge Victoria's birth,
Though in my poor attempt I may cause you some mirth
By the queer way I shall do it,
Not yet being much of a poet;
For you'll find each little line
Won't appear exactly in rhyme;
But no matter for that
If you don't find it flat,
Or think it a bit of a bore,
To listen to anything more
Than I've already said on a subject of worth,
As a lodge is to a Mason who dwells on the earth,
I will do what I can to tell you the story
Of the first days of Lodge we now call Victory.
So not to create any further debate,
I will at once make a start before it grows late.
Of the founders but few now remain
Who can carry back their memories again
To the birth of this lodge, when
A few of us then, very young men,
With a knowledge of Masonry so exceedingly small
That it really might be considered nothing at all,
After a little palaver and plenty of fuss
Had the good luck to meet with the favourite, Buss,
Who, endowed with the wisdom of several men,
Put it into the head of our sweet Jenny Wrenn
To petition at once, without further remark,
For a lodge to be opened near Victoria Park.
It was very soon done, as some of you know,
At least Bro. George Roberts and Bro. George Snow,
Who with dear Billy Wrenn, myself, and a few Friends on the spot, who were asked what they could do
To assist with their names to get the Petition in What might be considered quite a very good trim;
And who kindly lent us their good wishes and aid,
That we might have success and be amply repaid
For our labours in forming a lodge of our own,
Not far from our dwellings, to keep us near home.
The Petition when ready was sent in a crack,
And a letter to strengthen it made fast to its back.
Some short time elapsed, when, to our great delight,
Bro. W. Gray Clarke told us the thing was all right.
We then set to work without further delay
To get everything ready for the opening day.
The fees they were paid and the warrant obtained,
So the principal thing in the matter was gained;
The furniture ready and in the room placed,
Only wanted ourselves to be thoroughly graced.
In opening the lodge the Grand Master lent us a bridge,
When he appointed to consecrate it Brother Muggeridge,
Who very kindly came down on the day,
And found us assembled in splendid array.
I should have much rejoiced to have seen him to-day,
A pleasure which seldom now falls in our way,
For we are all delighted to see his round, jovial face
Whenever he finds convenient our table to grace.
The lodge being consecrated in a masterly style,
Which in order to see brethren travelled many a mile,
The next thing to be done was to instal the First Master,
And thereby enable us to get on a bit faster,
Which Muggeridge did well when
He placed in the chair sweet Jenny Wrenn,
Who, with a twinkle in his eye exceedingly merry,
Invested as Senior Warden his friend Pendlebury;
Then the Junior Warden—a brother when living,
We admired for the instruction he gained and was giving,
Who was well known, beloved, and respected by all,
And it naves me feel sad when to memory I call

His virtues, his goodness and affectionate heart,
And willingness at all times to bear well his part
In aiding the orphan, the widow, or friend,
Who from sickness or age could no longer depend
On himself alone for his daily bread,
But forced to seek help that his children might be fed;
For such as these Turner's great heart nobly bled.
He became my Senior Warden the very next year,
When Muggeridge kindly installed me in the chair.
And Turner in his turn I also placed there,
Performing his duties in a most able way,
Till sickness and death at length took him away
From amongst us, just about Brother G. Snow's election,
When we mourned a brother we loved with affection.
By your leave, I'll go back to where I began,
And so say a word or two respecting each man;
We were sure from the first the lodge never could fail,
When Freemasons we made the Brothers Latreille, Then came Chittum, George Adams, H. Wainwright, and dark Brown,

For further proof that the lodge would gain great renown,
Of which we were certain when on looking before,
We saw men on the road like Alf Robbins and Moore,
With Tisen and Atter in a good steady march,
And, quite close at their heels, Shears, Joe Morton, and Marsh;

Then noble Will Ashby, Maggs, and Joseph Slade Brown—
That brother who just now has gained such renown,
Having kept up the pace, and run in the great race,
Till at last he has reached the much coveted place,
Where we know he will work in a most masterly way,
And amply repay us for our labours to-day.
Our lodge soon commenced to grow big like a whale,
When we introduced O'Neill, Macgregor, and Gale,
With John Williams and White, and a great many more,
Including James C. Henry, and fair Arthur Willmore;
And Will Perrin, that boy we're all glad to have seen,
Who, with his "Old Grey Mare" and his "Thomas's Machine,"

Has ever been galloping, trotting, and pegging away,
Till our Senior Warden he's appointed to-day;
Then have we H. Allen, George Harwood, and Skelton—
The new Junior Warden—and brave Georgie Felton
Who on being S.D. was thoroughly bent on,
And with George Gange Durrant for his good Junior D., Sure no blithe Irish boy could much happier be,
For his duties, I know, he will never find hard,
When he is backed up by that great Inner Guard,
Who will stand firm like a town that is walled,
Though he may have become a little bit bald.
There are others to mention if I only had time,
Or could manage to dish up a little more rhyme,
For our Brothers, Will. Medcalf, James Boulton, and Long,

Whose good names I should wish to bring into my song,
With Will. Tomsett and Calkin, Samuel Cochrane and Coutts,

For such names to find rhyme I should wear out my boots;
And it is just the same with Musson, Byford, and Port,
For in their cases also I appear to run rather short,
So with Morrison, George Collier, and more even now,
As Brothers James Pullen, Ralph Hayward, and Hough,
With other supports like strong beams that are feruled,
When we also include James Felton and Herold.

We now come to the last of our Freemasons born—
Bowles, Wilven, and Bassam, also Bro. Cleghorn;
So having mentioned all I will now draw the curtain
On him raised to-night, our new Bro. Alf. Kirton.
Yet stay, we have another most worthy of praises,
And that is our good friend and kind Brother Davies;
And here let me add, I have been much to blame,
As I long ago ought to have mentioned his name,
Because most of you know, if not indeed all,
How kindly he responded, last year, to my call,
When a Girls' Steward we wanted to go to the Hall,
And take our subscriptions to increase the amount,
Which we only hoped would be too much to count.

We have now a great duty, that's a very sure fact—
We must not go to sleep, but all be ready to act,
And lay well to our hearts that Masonic great rule,
Brotherly love, and get Quelch into the School;
So I call upon each, saying, Now don't be a nitny,
But open your purses and out with a guinea,
And buy for the small boy a great number of votes,
And so land him in school o'er a bridge of our boats;
I appeal to you all, whether Scotch, Irish, or Welsh,
Whatever you do, don't forget poor little Quelch;
At the last election he fell short by a few,
So at the next his case must depend upon you.

Bro. Wrenn, our Steward has consented to be,
Therefore I trust you will do your utmost with me,
And make up his good list to a fair sum to-night,
And so render him thanks, and thus give him delight;
For, good man that he is, his great joy now will be
On Lodge Victoria's list a good round sum to see;
Save prudence, let your benevolence not know any bounds,
Till you raise the amount to quite a full hundred pounds.
In order to do this we want a goodish bit more,
For the total at present is but about fifty-four,
So Wrenn will take the chance, as soon as he's able,
To send his boy's paper once more round the table.
We are all in good feather, in a prosperous state,
For we have in our ranks men of great weight—
A Bishop, a King, besides birds of song both early and late;

There's a sweet Jenny Wrenn, a little Cock Robin,
A Martin and Eagles to keep them all bobbing,
Both a White, a Dunn, a Light, and dark Brown,
And a Moore, and a Marsh on which to fly down;
And we hope in their songs they never may fail,
Though it blow a strong Winder or even a Gale,
For the note of this Robin on road or rail,
Is a music to charm even Brother Latreille.

If you think in my rhyme any folly appears,
You can soon lop it off with our excellent Shears;
Or should any one say I have made use of a growl,
He need not wait long to wipe it out with a Towell,
Or if you imagine I've said anything rude,
Remember, it's done in a comical mood;
But if what I have said can make any one merry,
It will afford much pleasure to Alf Pendlebury.
I suppose I must return thanks for not only myself,
But for the rest of the lumber that's placed on the shelf,
As the chirping Cock Robin has thought proper to name
The Masters, when their year is over and they are crowned by fame.

This day we have another P.M. to add to our number—Brother Joe Morton, a noble specimen of very fine form;
To assist the new Master who will near him sit under.
We're all ready when wanted to be taken down and dusted,
And prove to the Brethren we are not at all rusted
By being laid up thus so quietly out of the way,
But ready to help should the Master go a little astray;
For we're ever at hand, with our knowledge and aid,
At all times when needful or application be made.
I will now conclude the few words I have to say
By wishing you all many happy returns of the day
Of these happy meetings, where we ever desire
To join you in the toasts and the Victoria fire,
For many years to come, and have pleasure to find
Your reception of us will be always as kind
As it has hitherto been for many years past,
And which I trust will continue so to the last.
The other Past Masters a few words have to say,
To thank you all for your good wishes to-day—
Robbins, Wrenn, Roberts, Morton, Latreille and George Snow

Are first-rate Past Masters, as all of you know,
And whom you are always delighted to see
When at lodge they make it convenient to be.
For myself I will say no more than wish you good night, Hope you'll get home early, and not put your wives in a fright.

"The Principal Officers and other Officers" were then proposed, and allusions made to the able manner in which they had discharged the duties of their offices. The Master observed that it afforded him much pleasure to have such officers, well knowing what an advantage it is to a new Master to have the assistance of officers so well acquainted with their work, and who, when in their turn they arrived at the exalted position he now held, would maintain the prestige of the lodge by performing their duties in a most able manner. The Senior Warden, on behalf of the Officers, in a neat and able speech, returned thanks, and promised that the Master would be aided by his officers to the utmost of their ability. Bro. Calkin, and several other brethren, enlivened the evening with their musical abilities, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close of one of the largest meetings of the lodge since its foundation.

PROVINCIAL.

HULL.—HUMBER LODGE (No. 57).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the forty-eighth anniversary of laying the foundation-stone of the Freemasons' Hall, in Osborne Street, on Friday week. At seven o'clock the lodge was opened in the First Degree, the Worshipful Master, Bro. J.
West, presiding. At the close of the business a banquet was provided by Bro. Preston, I.P.M. of the lodge, when nearly seventy brethren sat down, the company including the Worshipful Masters of the Kingston and Minerva Lodges, Hull; the Constitutional Lodge, Beverley; the Crystal Palace Lodge, Kew; and many Past Masters and Officers. After the repast, the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" was proposed, followed by that of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master," in giving which W.M. Bro. West made appropriate allusion to the recent installation ceremony at the Albert Hall.
He then proposed "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. G.M.; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M.; the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland,
R.W.P.G.M. of North and East Yorkshire; and Bro. John Pearson Bell, M.D., P.S.G.D. of England, W.D.P.G.M. of North and East Yorkshire, and P.M. and Trustee of the Humber Lodge." The toast was received with the utmost enthusiasm. The W.D. Prov. G.M., in responding, expressed his sense of the honour conferred upon him by being called upon to return thanks for the toast just presented. With regard to the names which had been mentioned, he reminded them that the Earl of Carnarvon stood in the same position as he would do if he were in reality the Grand Master of England. The M.W. Grand Master being, as they all rejoiced to know, a Prince of the blood Royal, has the prerogative of appointing a Pro-Grand Master, who, in the absence of His Royal Highness, possesses all the powers of the Grand Master himself.

They must, therefore, in reality, look upon the Earl of Carnarvon for all practical purposes, and honour him as a Grand Master, and upon Lord Skelmersdale as the Deputy Grand Master of England. With regard to his own excellent chief, the Earl of Zetland, he (the speaker) had the pleasure of meeting him the other day in Grand Lodge, when his Lordship expressed his gratification that everything was going on so harmoniously and well in the Province. He also trusted that, as there was to be a meeting of the Board of Benevolence at Scarborough next month, as many of the members of the Provincial Grand Chapter as could make it convenient would endeavour to be present. Now that they had Royalty so nearly allied to the Craft, he trusted it would go on and prosper still more in the future than it had done in the past. With the greater impetus that had been given to Freemasonry it would behave them to be more careful as to admission into the Order, and he trusted that the various lodges would take this matter into their serious consideration. They did not require numbers as much as stability in membership. The question also presented itself of increasing the fees to Grand Lodge, and no doubt that was a matter which would soon receive due attention from the private lodges throughout the kingdom. With regard to the position of Masonry, the Craft never appeared under more auspicious circumstances than it did at present. Never in its history was it so popular as at this moment, and the speaker contrasted the present aspect of the Order with that which it presented half a century ago. Fifty years ago society was exclusive, but now it had become more diffused and general in its lines of demarcation. Freemasonry was now a society composed chiefly of the middle classes, and never was it more deservedly popular. To maintain this popularity ought to be the aim of every member of the fraternity, who ought to feel that the character of the society depended in a great measure upon himself individually. Therefore, every one ought, as far as he could, to act in accordance with the tenets and principles which had been taught him in his lodge. With regard to the attacks that had been made upon Freemasonry, he thought the demonstration the other day in the Albert Hall set at nought whatever might have been said by the detractors of the Craft. There could be no doubt at all of the loyalty of the Order; they should not have had the Prince of Wales at their head if there had been the slightest feeling of disloyalty amongst any of them. Therefore he felt quite happy that the asper-sions recently cast upon Masonry had been completely met by the demonstration to which he had alluded. In a violent attack made upon them by the Saturday Review the writer seemed to labour under the impression that Masons were a lot of men who merely boasted of having built the Tower of Babel, and of being fond of good dinners.
The Saturday Review was, however, cleverly answered by an article in the Freemason, of last week, which amongst other things remarked that if Masons built the Tower of Babel it showed they were "bricks;" and the term
"brick" in common parlance signified a good fellow.
As for a good dinner, a writer who replied to the Saturday Review hinted that he who penned the attack would himself not object to one. It had been said, moreover, that Masonry taught nothing but the "Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man." Well, if that were all, there was a great deal in such a belief. Many did not believe in the fatherhood of God, and as to the brotherhood of man, if they could meet in unity and harmony in their lodges, sinking all political and religious differences in their aim to benefit and elevate each other, they were content to do so. As long as the universality of Freemasonry was maintained it must go on and prosper, and he for one was content to allow the outer world to think that the "Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man" was one of the lessons which Masonry taught. Bro. Holden, P.M., P.G.S.D., next gave "The Founders of the Humber Lodge," the toast being drunk in solemn silence; and it was replied to by P.M. Bro.
Martin Kemp, W.D.P.G.M. Bro. Bell next proposed "The Worshipful Master and Officers of the Humber Lodge," to which Bro. Jonathan West, W.M., Bro. Francis Summers (Sheriff of Hull), S.W., and Bro. H. Tozer responded.
P.M. Bro. John Wilson then gave "The Worshipful Masters, Officers, and Brethren of the Sister Lodges;" Bro.
Emes, W.M. of the Minerva 250, and Bro. Garforth W.M. of the Kingston 1101, responding in suitable terms. Bro.
Emes proposed "The Trustees, Treasurers, and Past Masters of the Humber Lodge," for whom replies were made by the W.D.G.P.M. of North and East Yorkshire, and P.M.
Bro. Banks Hay. Bro. Dr. Bell next gave "The Masonic Charities," and in doing so dilated upon the essential principle of charity which was characteristic of Freemasonry.
S.W. Bro. F. Summerson proposed "The Visiting Brethren," the toast being acknowledged by P.M. Bro. Acton, of the Crystal Palace Lodge 742, and by Bro. H. J. Amphlett, of the Alexandra Lodge 1511, Hull. S.W. J. D. Bro. T. Taylor gave "The Absent Members of the Humber Lodge," especially the Sea-going Brethren, and the list closed with "Prosperity, Unity, and Perpetuity to the Humber Lodge."

LEICESTER.—S. JONES'S LODGE (No. 279).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, the 5th of May. There were present Bros. J. W. Smith, W.M., A. Palmer, I.P.M., J. M. MacAllister, S.W., G. W. Statham, J.W., W. Wear,
P.M., Treasurer, S. Knight, 1391, as Secretary; S. Cleaver,
S.D., S. Tebbin, J.D., Orlando Law, I.G., William Kelly,
P.P.G.M., Cleaver Stretton, P.M., R. Waite, P.M., G.
Toller, 279, P.M. 523; S. S. Partridge 279, W.M. 523;

F. J. Baines, I.P.M. 523, J. T. Thorp, S.W. 523, E. Mason, S.W. 1391, J. Farndale, J. Jessop, the Rev. T. W. Gordon, W. E. Buck, 279, C. MacBride, 1391, G. Roberts, 673, J. F. Dixon, 1019, and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed. Bros. W. E. Buck and the Rev. T. W. Gordon were raised to the Third Degree, the ceremony being very impressively performed by the W.M. The W.M. informed the brethren that, on Wednesday, the 28th of April, he attended the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, at the Royal Albert Hall, South Kensington, and that he was accompanied by the following brethren of this lodge, namely, Bros. A. Palmer, I.P.M., Clement Stretton, P.M., Robert Waite, P.M., W. Wear, P.M., G. W. Statham, J.W., Clement Edwin Stretton, Secretary. The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren partook of refreshment, after which the loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

SHEFFIELD.—WENTWORTH LODGE (No. 1239).—The usual monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Monday, May 3rd. The lodge was opened at seven o'clock by the following officers:—Bro. F. M. Tindall, W.M.; Bro. A. Scargill, I.P.M.; Bro. H. J. Garnett, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Treas.; Bros. Matthews, Pfirschnmidt, Bennett and Wostenholm, P.M.'s; Bro. W. White, S.W.; Bro. S. B. Ellis, J.W.; Bro. R. Renton, Sec.; Bro. Dr. Thomas, S.D.; Bro. C. Harvey, J.D.; Bro. J. Clarke, I.G., the whole of the Past Masters and officers of the lodge being present. Amongst the visitors were Bro. W. Roddewig, P.M. 296, Prov. G.D.C., W. Yorks, and Bro. W. Botham, 139. The minutes of the last regular lodge having been read and confirmed, Mr. Richard Roberts and Mr. P. C. Watts were admitted (separately), and duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, the ceremonies being conducted by the W.M. in a most impressive manner. One candidate for initiation was balloted for and elected, and another was proposed. Although the fees for the Craft have been raised (in Sheffield) to ten guineas there is still a steady and regular demand for admission to the Order. The W.M. read some correspondence that had taken place between the W.M.'s of the Wentworth, 1239, Royal Brunswick, 296, and Britannia, 139 Lodges, with the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., as to the desirability of presenting to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., a Masonic address on the occasion of His Royal Highness's visit to Sheffield in August next. Sir Henry Edwards offering his assistance, the W.M. stated the affair had been put in process. The ballot for Bro. J. M. While, of the Ashbury Lodge, 1459, as a joining member, was postponed on account of that lodge not having replied to the questions (as provided by the Prov. Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire), this being an imperative rule in W. Yorks. The lodge having been closed, supper was served, after which the usual toasts were given, the W.M. paying a high tribute to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in his capacity of M.W.G.M., describing him as the "facile princeps" of Grand Masters. This lodge holding the first meeting in Sheffield since the grand ceremony of the 28th April, "a loving cup" was provided for this special toast. In proposing "The Health of the new R.W.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire," the W.M. spoke in high terms of Sir Henry Edwards, that he was undoubtedly "the right man in the right place," and that at the July Prov. Grand Lodge he (Bro. Tindall) should petition the Prov. Grand Master to hold the next Prov. Grand Lodge in Sheffield under the banner of the Wentworth Lodge; this was received with great enthusiasm, as also when the W.M. said that Bro. Wm. Tew, D.P.G.M., had stated it was his intention to visit all the important lodges in W. Yorks. The Wentworth Lodge was of necessity one of those, seeing it numbered 67 members, and he knew the P.M.'s, his officers and brethren, would rally round him to give Bro. Tew a thorough Masonic reception. The meeting throughout was most harmonious, happy and enjoyable.

WOOLWICH.—THE HENLEY LODGE (No. 1472).—On Tuesday, the 4th inst., the above lodge assembled at Host West's, the Three Crowns, North Woolwich, for its monthly business. Present: Bros. B. B. Brayshaw, P.M., W.M.; H. G. Sisley, P.M., and Sec.; J. Ives, S.W.; W. Steele, J.W.; I. Silver, S.D.; Manning, I.G. The Pattison, Union Waterloo, and Capper Lodges were represented by several visiting brethren, and there was a goodly attendance on the part of the members of the lodge. The lodge having been duly and reverently opened, Bro. Watson was raised to the Sublime Degree, and Bros. Berry and Williams were duly passed; Messrs. Fletcher, Davis, and Little, after regular ballot and approval, were then initiated, and Bro. W. T. Turner was received as a joining member. The whole of the three ceremonies were most impressively worked by the W.M. On the motion of Bro. Sisley, seconded by the W.M., a Lodge Benevolent Fund was formed, the members being unanimous as to the value of such an institution. The lodge being closed, the brethren partook of an excellent cold collation, provided in an adjoining room, and upon returning to the lodge the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bros. C. Jolly and Moore replying for the Visitors. Some excellent songs and recitations enlivened the proceedings, until at an early hour the Tyler's toast concluded a most enjoyable evening.

Colonel Campbell intimated that Bro. J. D. Porteous, Crosshill, having resigned the position he held as Junior Warden in the Provincial Lodge, he had appointed Bro. James Gilmour, P.M. 129, to fill the vacant chair. Thereafter, Bro. Andrew Wallace, jun., P.M. 129, was installed as Senior Deacon, the ceremony being performed by Col. Campbell in a most impressive manner. The P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. Robert Stephen, M.A., Renfrew, having intimated that he was prepared to deliver a Masonic sermon, Bros. H. S. Edmond, R.W.M., Paisley, and J. Glen, R.W.M., Renfrew, were requested by Colonel Campbell to wait on the Chaplain and get the necessary arrangements completed. It is expected that the sermon will be delivered in Paisley.

NEW PUBLIC HALLS FOR GLASGOW.

LAYING THE MEMORIAL STONE.

As the public of Glasgow and district are aware, the memorial stone of the new public halls for Glasgow, in Granville-street, off New-street, is to be laid with full Masonic honours, this day. Should the weather prove propitious, the occasion will be an unusually important and memorable one, as may be judged of from the arrangements, which are as follows:—Captain Alexander McCall is to be Grand Marshal for the civic portion, and Robert Robb, Esq., Provincial Grand Marshal, for the Masonic portion of the procession. The committee of the Public Halls Company will meet in the large hall of the Queen's Rooms, Clifton-street, at 2 p.m. precisely, to receive the Magistrates and Councillors of the city, and others invited to join in the procession and take part in the ceremonial; and gentlemen in procession are expected to wear their official robes or uniforms. The Provincial Grand Lodge will open in the lower hall of the rooms at the same time, and thereafter the Marshals will arrange the procession according to this order:—Band of music, Chief Constable, Officers of Police, the Town Officers with halberets, the Lord Provost and Magistrates, followed by the Town Council; Judicial and Civil Officers of the Corporation, Lord Dean of Guild, Deacon-Convener, Officers of Police, Sheriff of Lanarkshire and Sheriffs-Substitute, Clergy, Officers of the Police, Chairman and Directors of the Chamber of Commerce; Chairman and Members of the Public Halls Committee, Inspector of Works and Contractors, Officers of Police, the Knights Templar, the Masonic Lodges, the Junior in front; band of music, the Provincial Grand Lodge, Officers of Police. Having been marshalled, the procession will proceed through the West-End Park, along Park Terrace, Woodlands Terrace, Scotland Street, Woodside Crescent, North Street, St. Vincent Street, and Cleveland Street, to site of the building in Granville Street. On its arrival there, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and others will take their places on the platform, to the north side of the memorial stone. When the Junior Masonic Lodge arrives at the entrance of the enclosure it will remain stationary, opening right and left, and so on with all the lodges to the Provincial Grand Lodge. The latter will then advance through all the lodges, ascending the platform to the memorial stone, followed by the other lodges according to seniority, but as only a limited number can be accommodated upon the platform, the majority will have to take their places within the enclosure, and in front of the stone. When silence has been proclaimed by the Provincial Grand Marshal, the band will play the "National Anthem," after which the chairman of the Halls Committee will ask the Provincial Grand Master to proceed with the ceremony. The Provincial Grand Chaplain having offered up a prayer, the Provincial Grand Treasurer will deposit in the cavity of the stone a hermetically sealed glass jar containing coins of the present reign, records, &c., and the Provincial Grand Secretary will read the inscription on the plate and deposit in the memorial stone. The 100th Psalm will then be sung by a vocal choir, and the stone lowered into its place. The operatives having completed their part of the work, the Provincial Grand Master will lay the memorial stone with the usual ceremonial, spreading corn on it, and pouring out wine and oil thereon, repeating the while a short form of prayer. At the conclusion of the prayer, the brethren will give three cheers, and the band will play the "Masons' Anthem." The Provincial Grand Master will then address the brethren and those present, and report to the chairman of the Public Halls Committee the satisfaction which he has had in taking part in an undertaking of such importance, and of such advantage to the city of Glasgow. The chairman of committee will then, on the part of the shareholders, address the Provincial Grand Master, and thank the civic and Masonic bodies who have assisted on the occasion. The ceremonial will be concluded with three cheers, the band playing "Rule Britannia." The Provincial Grand Lodge will then return to the Queen's Rooms, where it will be closed in due form, and the members thereafter entertained at cake and wine by the Building Committee.

PERTH.—SCOON AND PERTH LODGE (No. 3).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting, R.W. Bro. Chalmers presiding, on Tuesday, the 6th ult., when it was proposed to invite the co-operation of the Sister Perth Lodges to resuscitate the District Grand Lodge for the eastern district of the county, which has been in a dormant state for some years. The Secretary was directed to communicate with the other lodges in the city, and ascertain their views and wishes with reference to this, in order that joint action might be taken. Their being no further business of importance, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony a little after nine p.m., having been in session over one hour. The usual hour of meeting is 8 p.m., and meetings are held in the Lodge-room, High-street.

PERTH.—ST. ANDREW'S LODGE (No. 74).—This lodge met for instruction at the Royal George Hotel, at 8 p.m., on Tuesday, the 6th ult., R.W. Bro. Young, in absence of R.W. Bro. Col. Williamson, presiding. Instruction was given in the First and Second Degrees. R.W. Bro. Dr. William Cowan, R.W.P.M. of Great Western Lodge (No. 47) of Canada, and R.W.P.M. of Eastern Bengal Railway Lodge (No. 444) of Scotland, in Bengal, visited the lodge, and were received with the usual cordial welcome. A very pleasant evening was spent in social harmony, after which the lodge was closed at 11 p.m.

On the 20th an emergent meeting of this lodge was held, at which the Rev. Bro. Carmichael, of the East Church, and Bro. Richardson, of Pitfour, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason by R.W. Bro. Young, P.M., in the absence of R.W. Bro. Williamson. The lodge having agreed to admit Bro. Dr. William Cowan as an affiliated member, the usual obligation was then administered to him by the R.W.M. officiating, after which the lodge was called from labour to refreshment. The brethren having passed a pleasant and agreeable time during the hours of refreshment, again resumed labour, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 11 p.m.

An emergent meeting of this lodge was again held at the Royal George Hotel, on Friday, the 30th, to give a farewell to Bros. Richardson, of Pitfour, and Smythe, of Methven. The brethren sat down at 6 p.m. to a magnificent banquet, provided for them by Bro. Kennedy, of the Royal George, under the presidency of R.W. Bro. Col. Williamson, of Lawers, the R.W.M. of the lodge. The R.W.M., who was well supported by the officers and brethren of the lodge, and several visiting brethren numbering about thirty, performed the duties of the chair in a most agreeable and satisfactory manner. After the cloth was removed the brethren were called to order, and the lodge was opened in due and ancient form in the First Degree. The R.W.M. then gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts of obligation, after which he addressed the guests of the evening on their Masonic and other duties, and said that as each of them would in the course of time be called upon, as landed proprietors in the county, and as the representatives of the old families of Smythe of Methven, and Richardson of Pitfour, who had long been in possession of distinguished and honourable names in the county, they would so hold the everlasting principles of our ancient and honourable Order as to become useful to society, and an ornament to the Order—that as the one, Bro. Smythe, was an officer of a most distinguished and gallant regiment, the 79th Highlanders, and the other, Bro. Richardson, held also a commission from her Majesty, as her representative and consul in the distant country of Buenos Ayres, both would in their intercourse with the external world in these influential positions have ample opportunities for the display of their principles, and show to the neutral world that brotherly love, relief, and truth and faith, hope and charity, were no mere empty vaunts in the mouths of Freemasons. The healths of these two brethren were then proposed by the R.W.M., and responded to by the brethren, and all wished them God speed on their departure from the fair city. After several other toasts had been proposed and responded to, R.W. Bro. Young, P.M., proposed, in a neat and appropriate manner, "The Health of our R.W.M., Bro. Col. Williamson, of Lawers," a man beloved by all who knew him, and whose name, in connection with the lodge, had, in itself, been, as it were, a "host." It was hoped that he would be often presiding over the brethren of St. Andrew's. The toast was warmly and enthusiastically responded to by the brethren. With song and toast and sentiment, a most pleasant evening was spent. The lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 11 p.m.

PERTH.—ST. JOHNSTONE CHAPTER (No. 134) met at the Moncrieff Arms Inn, Princes-street, on the 24th April, at 5 p.m., M.E. Comp. Macrae, P.Z., presiding. Comp. Dr. William Cowan, P.F.Z. of Chapter Kilwinning in the East, was present as a visitor. Bro. Charles Wilson, of Errol, received the Degrees of Most Excellent Master and Royal Arch Companion, and, there being no other business, the chapter was closed at 8 p.m.

DUNBAR.—DUNBAR CASTLE LODGE (No. 75).—At a monthly meeting of this lodge, held on Tuesday, the 4th inst., under the presidency of P.M. Brand, D.M. for present year, in the absence of the R.W.M., Capt. Denistoun, 64th regiment, a purse and sovereigns were presented, in a very full lodge, to P.M. David Vallance, the purse bearing, on a gold entablature, the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. D. Vallance, by the brethren of the Dunbar Castle Lodge, as a mark of respect for long service as R.W.M., 4th May, 1875." In making the presentation, the D.M., in very eloquent terms, reminded the assembled brethren of the long connection subsisting between Bro. Vallance and the lodge, extending over a period of nineteen years, and especially to his services as an office-bearer for seventeen years, the last six years of which as R.W.M., and referred to the very important number of brethren who had been brought to a knowledge of "Masonic light" through the instrumentality of the worthy P.M. The presentation was acknowledged in feeling terms by Bro. Vallance. It may be mentioned, in connection with this presentation, that nearly 100 brethren have received their initiation and subsequent degrees from Bro. Vallance. This is the third Masonic presentation received by him, including a medal from the Stranraer Kilwinning Lodge, for services rendered in the resuscitation of that lodge in 1872, under its old charter. The Dunbar Castle Lodge is at present in a most flourishing state, both in numbers and efficiency of working.

GLASGOW.—LODGE UNION AND CROWN (No. 103).—The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow made their annual visit of inspection to this lodge at the usual monthly meeting of the latter, held on 26th ult., in the Hall, 170, Buchanan-street. The deputation of P.G.L., which was an unusually numerous one, having been received by the R.W.M. (Bro. A. M. Wright) with the usual formalities, the P.G. Secretary (Bro. A. McTaggart) submitted the report of the deputation, which he said was a very short one. They had very few faults indeed to find with the working of Lodge 103 during the past year—in fact, almost none worthy of mention. The examination of the books had discovered that they were in excellent condition; while their cash-book, he thought, was admirably kept. In fact, he did not think he exceeded the proper limits of praise when he said that there was no better kept cash-book within the province of Glasgow; nor would it be too much if he said that the Treasurer of that lodge was the most regular in his payments to the P.G.L. Ordinary Fund, and also to that of Benevolence. It must have been very gratifying to the lodge to find how much their funds had increased at last balance, being all but double what they amounted to the year before. On the 30th March last year the amount of their funds was £36; while that the deputation had found that they (the lodge) had cash in bank and on hand amounting to £70 6s. 3d. Now that was a very satisfactory state of matters. Further, they had distributed during the year in private charity the handsome sum of £20; had contributed £6 to the P.G. Benevolent Fund; and had made in all 39 members. In concluding, Bro. McTaggart begged to return the sincere thanks of the deputation for the cordial welcome they had received from the lodge, and to congratulate the latter on their prosperous state; and hoped that those who might visit them next year as representing the P.G.L. might find them equally prosperous. The R.W.M. having briefly thanked the deputation for their visit, said there was a little matter he would like to bring before them previous to their leaving. In the course of the lodge business that evening there had been read a communication from the Town Council of Dumbarton, with reference to the opening of the new pier there on the 8th of next month. Some of the brethren objected to go down there on that occasion, seeing that Masons were not to take a prominent part in the proceedings; and therefore the lodge would like to have the advice of the P.G.L. on the matter. Bro. McTaggart, P.G. Sec., in reply, said that he would be guided by the opinion of his colleagues present, but it seemed to him that the occasion in question was one upon which Masons were not called to be present. It was the opening of a new pier; and they (Freemasons) were to be mixed up with Odd Fellows, Shepherds, Free Gardeners, Good Templars, &c. In the absence of any Masonic ceremony, he did not see that they could go there in Masonic clothing to take part in a matter with which they had nothing to do. If his advice were taken, he would say they should have nothing to do with it. Upon another occasion, a fortnight later—namely, the laying of the foundation stone of the new Public Halls for Glasgow—they would have a very good and legitimate opportunity of airing their regalia, and he thought that should compensate for any loss any one might feel at giving up Dumbarton. On the motion of Bro. James Gillies, Secretary, the following members of the P.G. deputation were affiliated as members of Lodge 103, viz.:—Bros. William Bell, Convener of Committee; G. Thallon, J.D.; J. Ritchie, A.; and A. Allison, Jeweller. The ceremonial of affiliation was performed by Bro. A. Bain, P.M.; and Bro. Bell having on behalf of his colleagues and himself returned thanks for the honour done them, the deputation thereafter retired.

PAISLEY.—ST. MIRREN'S LODGE (No. 129).—On Monday evening, 10th inst., a meeting of the brethren of this lodge was held in St. Mirren's Hall, Moss-street. The Right Worshipful Master, Bro. H. Edmonds, presided, supported on the dais by Bros. the Rev. W. S. Mills, Lodge Chaplain; J. Gilmour, P.G.J.W.; George Glen, R.W.M., Prince of Wales Lodge, 426, Renfrew; Alexander McLeod, P.M. 129; Alex. McIntosh, P.D.M.; William Gemmil, S.W.; and George Fisher, J.W. There was a large attendance. On the lodge being duly constituted and opened on the First Degree, Bro. Alex. McPherson, Secretary, read the minutes of previous meeting, which were adopted. Bro. Edmonds stated that before proceeding with the business of the evening he felt it to be his duty to take this opportunity, as Master of this lodge, to congratulate Bro. Gilmour on his appointment to the honourable and important position of Junior Warden for the Province of Renfrewshire East. The nomination had given the greatest satisfaction in the province, proving thereby that Colonel Campbell, their Provincial Grand Master, had on this occasion put the right man in the right place. The brethren of St. Mirren's also felt themselves highly honoured from the fact that Bro. Gilmour was an old office-bearer of St. Mirren's Lodge, and he could safely say that no master had ever discharged the duties of the chair in a more conscientious manner. He had much pleasure in wishing Bro. Gilmour health and prosperity to enjoy his new honour. The R.W.M. called the attention of the brethren to an article in the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine, published on 1st inst., headed, "Princes and Grand Masters," in which article, in his opinion, an indirect attack was made on the character of the Prince of Wales, and it also stigmatised their English brethren as going mad with toadyism, and prostituting their institution for the mere name of "Prince." The R.W.M. said that, had the article appeared in the columns of a neutral paper he would not have demeaned himself by taking the least notice of it; but appearing in a journal supposed to represent the opinions of the Craft in Scotland, and said to be recognised by the Grand Lodge, he considered he would be unworthy the name of a loyal subject if he did not denounce it as a contemptible article, an insult to Royalty, and entirely antagonistic to the feelings of the Scottish brethren. He was very glad to know that in this opinion he was supported by the Masters of the Thornliebank and Renfrew Lodges, and he trusted by all Masons who prized honour and virtue above all the external advantages of rank and fortune; he therefore called upon the brethren to vindicate the Prince from the insult levelled at him. Several brethren spoke strongly and eloquently against the article, and ultimately a motion to the following effect was carried by acclamation,—namely, that the office-bearers of this lodge be appointed as a committee to draw up a report on this subject, and forward same to Colonel Campbell, requesting him to bring the matter under the consideration of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The Rev. Bro. Mills intimated that, as Chaplain of this lodge, he would be glad to deliver a sermon under the auspices of the Order on Sunday, the 27th June. A committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. Thereafter, the lodge was passed to the Second Degree; and after the workings on this degree were finished, the lodge was reduced, and closed in due form. We understand that a meeting of the office-bearers of the lodge was held, at which a mild but dignified protest against the article in the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine referred to above was drawn up and forwarded to Col. Campbell.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held in their Hall, No. 12, Trongate, Glasgow, on Monday, the 10th inst. Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., occupied the chair, Wardens and other Office-bearers in their respective places. There was as usual a large attendance; among the visitors were Bros. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M. 556; J. Campbell, 128; A. Thomson, 333; Wilson, 27. On the lodge being opened, the Secretary, Bro. J. Crawford, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved of. Applications were then read (with names of proposer and seconder) from two gentlemen for admission into the Order. There being no objection offered, it was resolved that the two candidates be brought forward for initiation into the E.A. Degree, on Friday, the 21st inst. Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., then brought up the subject of having an annual test fee of membership paid into the lodge in accordance with Grand Lodge Laws, Art. 24, page 53, strongly recommending the same, explaining various reasons for the necessity of an annual test fee being paid. After a little discussion upon this matter, it was duly proposed and seconded, that an annual test fee be paid, and that this subject be brought up for discussion at next regular meeting, which was agreed to. Bro. Morgan reminded the brethren of the laying the foundation stone of the Public Halls, Glasgow, with Masonic honours, on Saturday, the 22nd inst.; he hoped to be present himself heading a large deputation of Lodge Star, which would be a red letter day in Glasgow for the cause of Freemasonry. There being no further business the lodge was called to refreshment. The R.W.M., Bro. Morgan, proposed the usual loyal toasts, which were responded to with great acclamation (quite apart from the article which appeared in the S.F.M. of the 1st inst.) The toast of the three Grand Lodges, coupled with their respective Grand Masters—Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, Lodge Star, Sister Lodges, and Visiting Brethren were then given, in the intervals several most excellent songs enlivened the brethren. The toasts of Lodge Star, Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, and Sister Lodges, were most ably replied to by Bros. Phillips, Morgan, Thomson, and Campbell. Altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent, and after the last toast had been given the brethren, who had kept within due hail, were called together and dismissed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE CALEDONIAN RAILWAY No. (354) met in St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Wednesday, the 5th inst., being their regular meeting, present: Bros. James Shaw, R.W.M.; Stafford, S.W.; Ferguson, J.W.; A. A. Smith, I.P.M.; John Morgan, R.W.M. Lodge Star 219, and a fair attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. James Shaw, and the motion of raising the initiation fees, also that of having an annual test fee, brought before the lodge, which was carried unanimously; on the minutes of the last regular meeting, also that of a special meeting, having been read and approved of, Mr. James Smith and Mr. F. McMonagh, who had been regularly proposed and seconded for initiation into Freemasonry, and no objection offered, entered and received the E.A. Degree. Bro. James Shaw intimated that the Treasurer, Bro. A. Carmichael, had tendered his resignation on account of his being about to leave Scotland, which was accepted; the lodge then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and with the usual loyal toasts, enlivened with some excellent songs, the evening was brought most happily to a close. The next regular meeting of this lodge will take place in the Masonic Hall, 30, Hope-street, on Wednesday, the 2nd June.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—A special meeting of this lodge was held in their Hall, 30, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, the 14th inst., and Monday the 17th inst., for admittance into the Order of Freemasonry of Dr. Wm. Oswald Livingstone, son of the late illustrious African explorer, who had been regularly proposed, seconded, and balloted for at last regular meeting. The ballot having proved favourable, this gentleman came forward on Friday, the 14th inst., and received the E.A. and F.C. Degrees, the R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, and Bro. D. Lamb, D.M., officiating. On Monday, the 17th inst., Bro. Wm. Oswald Livingstone was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., Bro. D. Lamb, D.M., officiating. On both occasions the ceremony of each degree was performed in a masterly and most impressive manner, great pains being taken in the degrees, though two were given in one night, and the Master Mason Degree so soon after. The manner, and great care with which they were given, will, we are sure, make a lasting impression upon Bro. Livingstone's mind. On both occasions there was a large attendance of members of Lodge Commercial, and deputations from most of the lodges of the district.

At the conclusion of the ceremony on Monday evening, Bro. Lamb addressed Bro. Livingstone upon the beauties of the Order of Freemasonry, which elicited great applause. Bro. Livingstone, we understand, leaves Glasgow on Tuesday, the 25th inst., for Trinidad, there to reside and practise his profession as a surgeon. We wish Bro. Livingstone a safe and pleasant journey, and may his life be happy and prosperous, a honour to the Craft and the memory of his illustrious father.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360) met in their hall, Hope-street, Glasgow, on Friday, 7th inst.; present, Bros. John Monro, R.W.M.; J. Brodie, P.M., acting as J.W.; J. M. Olliver, S.W.; J. Davidson, P.M.; A. Morton, I.P.M.; D. Lamb, D.M.; W. Finlay, Treas.; W. H. Bickerton, Sec.; J. Gibson, S.D.; Thomas Graham, J.D.; T. Keiller, I.G.; Jas. Minnoch, Tyler. Jas. Shaw, R.W.M. 354; J. W. Burns, R.W.M. 87; James Anderson, R.W.M. 370, and a very large attendance (69) having signed the sederunt book. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. Mr. Scott, who had been regularly proposed and balloted for, and no objection offered, was admitted into the ancient Order of Freemasonry in the E.A. Degree, Bro. John Monro officiating in a most careful manner, and Bros. Jas. Kerr, Thos. Ross, and James Neish were advanced to the Degree of F.C., Bros. John Monro and J. Brodie, P.M., officiating. Bro. J. Brodie moved that new clothing for the office-bearers, also a Past Master's jewel for presentation to their I.P.M., Bro. A. Morton, be got, which was agreed to unanimously. The lodge was then closed in due form.

CROSSHILL.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541) met in the Masonic Hall, Prince of Wales Terrace, Crosshill, on Monday, the 10th inst., being the regular meeting of the lodge. Bro. Julius Brodie, R.W.M., occupied the chair; Bro. A. Morton, S.W.; J. Fraser, J.W. There was a large attendance of brethren present, the business of the evening being a subscription sale for the benefit of Mrs. Stamm, widow of the late Bro. Stamm, Junior Warden of the lodge, the result of which proved very gratifying to all, the sum of £38 having been realized. Bro. J. Brodie in a few well chosen remarks, said that it gave him great pleasure to see that the brethren had come so nobly forward to assist him in carrying out that great principle of the Order, charity. Mrs. Stamm was one that was highly respectable and deserving; her late husband was a most zealous and a good Mason, and highly respected by all who knew him. Before sitting down, he begged to thank the brethren for their kindness and support in this case, for without their support his efforts would have been very small. After a few brief remarks from other brethren, the business was brought to a close.

PARTICK.—ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER (No. 113).—The Provincial Grand Superintendent, Comp. F. A. Barrow, accompanied by his office-bearers, visited the above chapter on Wednesday evening week. After a strict scrutiny of the books of the chapter, a minute was recorded by the deputation to the effect that everything during the past working year had been conducted in consonance with the practice and principles of Royal Arch Masonry. The deputation, it should be stated, was received with the usual formalities; but, on this occasion, they preferred to see the opening of the chapter, and to have personal evidence as to how the different office-bearers discharged their several offices. The chapter was then opened in regular form; and the authority of the Most Excellent Superintendent having been duly recognised by Companion Halket, Z., Comp. Barrow returned him his mallet with an expression of full confidence that it would be wielded on that occasion with the same judgment that it had always been done in the past. The report of the Prov. G. Scribe E., was then read, which showed that everything had met the highest approval of the deputation. Thereafter, the Most Excellent Superintendent entered into some particulars as to the working of Royal Arch Masonry in the province, and made some valuable suggestions in reference to the desirability of having a uniformity of ritual and of general working in the Order. He concluded by complimenting the First Principal and the Chapter on the position they occupied in the province, and hoping that they might always be in a position to claim and occupy as high a position. The First Principal made a suitable reply to the remarks of the Prov. G. Supt., and asked the Companions to award a hearty vote of thanks to the Prov. G. Chapter for their kindly visit and for the high eulogiums they had passed upon the working and upon the general success of Chapter No. 113. The chapter was then duly closed, and thereafter they entertained the members of the Prov. G. deputation for a short time at refreshment. During this the toast of "The Prov. Grand R.A. Chapter of Lanarkshire" was duly recognised; after which "Chapter Partick, No. 113," was proposed by the M.E. Supt., and replied to in felicitous terms by the First Principal. Several other toasts were given and responded to—notably that of "Companion Grange," P. First Principal, and a companion noted for all the social and moral virtues demanded by the constitution and underlying the principles of the Order. The proceedings further were agreeably interspersed with song and sentiment; and, after a short sojourn, the deputation required to leave by the latest conveyance homeward.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS, ST. JOHN'S HILL, BATTERSEA RISE.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. The three chairs were occupied by Bros. J. M. Clabon, President, Joshua Nunn, S.V.P., and James Brett, J.V.P. Among the other brethren present there were Bros. John Savage, Thomas Cubitt, John Hervey, W. Mann, John While, James Willing, jun., H. Massey (Freemason), Joseph Smith, Bengemann, A. A. Pendlebury, Wright, C. A. Cottebrune, Steadwell, H. G. Buss, Wm. Smith, J. E. Saunders, Bartlett, H. Garrod, Griffiths Smith, W. Stephens, Kennett, and Payne.

At the Board of Masters, previously held, several notices of motion were given for the ensuing Grand Lodge, and the report of the Board of General Purposes was received. Grants made at last Lodge of Benevolence were confirmed, and Scrutineers were elected. The Lodge then proceeded to consider new petitions, and at its closing it was found that £301 had been granted. One grant was of £100, one £40, one £30, five £20, and two £10. The remainder were small sums.

Lodge was then closed.

Masonic Tidings.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Gloucestershire was held at Newnham-on-the-Severn, on Tuesday, the 18th inst., when a considerable gathering of the Craft assembled. Lord Sherborne, Prov. Grand Master, presided. After an interesting discussion on the Masonic charities, a testimonial was presented to Bro. Newarch, the Deputy Prov. G.M., and the brethren subsequently dined at the Victoria Hotel, under the presidency of Lord Sherborne, supported by Bro. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

An Ultramontane paper, the Osservatore Romano, has published an article in which it takes the Prince of Wales to task for accepting the post of Grand Master of the English Freemasons. It ascribes the downfall of Charles X., Louis Philippe, and Louis Napoleon to their connection with the Craft, and implores the Prince to take warning before it is too late.

THE VISIT OF THE PRINCE OF WALES TO INDIA.—The Central News states that Admiral Rowley Lambert, C.B., will succeed Admiral Randolph, C.B., in command when the ships of the Flying Squadron arrive at Gibraltar, and the first-named gallant officer will convoy the Prince of Wales to India. The following are the ships of the squadron which will proceed with the Prince to Calcutta: —Narcissus (flagship), Commander Alfred Jephson; Doris, Captain Hon. Edmund Fremantle, C.B.; Immortalité, Captain Francis A. Hume; Newcastle, Captain Robert G. Douglas; Raleigh, Captain George Tryon,

C.B.; Topaze, Captain Arthur T. Thrupp. It is understood that the Flying Squadron will not come to England, and accordingly will not take part in the departure of the Prince of Wales. The ships will, however, meet the troopship conveying his Royal Highness off Gibraltar, and proceed thence, via the Suez Canal, to Calcutta. Here the vessels will remain until the return of the Prince. His Royal Highness, it is anticipated, will be back in England by next May.

The Lord Mayor (Grand Junior Warden of England) honoured with his presence May 14th the Bank of England Lodge of Freemasons, at their last meeting before the summer vacation, held at the Albion Tavern. His lordship, who was accompanied by several distinguished brethren, was received by numerous members of the lodge, amongst them being Bros. F. Micheli, W.M.; G. Chance, of the Treasury, and other Past Masters; Bro. Captain Elliott (of the Royal Naval Reserve), and Bro. Magee. Bro. Chance proposed the Lord Mayor's health in eulogistic terms, dwelling particularly on the distinguished position in the Craft to which he had attained. The toast was received with the greatest acclamation by the brethren present. The Lord Mayor replied in appropriate terms.

We learn by telegraph that Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, her Majesty's Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, has arrived at Holyrood House, Edinburgh. He was formally presented to the Lord Provost and Magistrates with the keys of the city, which were returned to the keeping of the civic authorities. His Grace and the Countess of Rosslyn afterwards entertained a large party of noblemen and gentlemen at dinner.

The Camden Lodge of Instruction will, on and after Monday, the 31st inst., meet at the Stanhope Arms, James-street, Camden Town.

Bro. Boord, M.P., presided at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Conservative Alliance held on Tuesday at the Westminster Palace Hotel.

At Madame Tussaud's several new figures have been added, including the Prince of Wales, in his garb of Grand Master of the Freemasons, and King Alfonso XII.

Bro. Defries and Son furnished the whole of the decorations for the Royal visit to Leeds, on Thursday.

BOSTON ELECTION COMMISSION.—A Royal Commission has just issued, appointing Bro. Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C., Mr. Wyndham Slade, and Bro. Douglas Straight, Commissioners to inquire into the existence of corrupt practices reported by Mr. Justice Grove to have extensively prevailed at the last election for Boston. The inquiry will be held in August. Mr. Ernest Baggallay has been appointed Secretary to the Commission.

At a meeting of the Council of the Miners' Defence Association, held at the Royal Hotel, Cardiff, the following resolution was passed:—"That a committee be appointed to consider a future sliding scale of wages for fixed periods, to be based upon the selling price of coal, and after the men on strike have returned to work on the terms named (of 15 per cent. reduction) to suggest such a scheme to the Council at an early meeting for arrangement with the men, and that such committee shall consist of the following gentlemen, viz.:—Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Messrs. Richard Fothergill, M.P., (Chairman); David Davis, W. Thomas Lewis, Archd. Hood, W. Menelaus, W. Perch, J. O. Riches, W. T. Crawshaw, John Nixon, W. S. Cartwright, Basil Jayne, Edward Jones, Robert Jordan, R. Laybourne, H. Hussey Vivian, M.P., and F. A. Yeo.

The 29th annual report of the Sovereign Life Assurance Company has just been issued. The revenue has exceeded that of the preceding year by £3,362. 349 new policies were issued last year. The dividend recommended on the capital and bonus additions is based on the rate of interest actually earned, and is equal this year to 5½ per cent. on the original amount paid up.

ANOTHER VISIT OF VOLUNTEERS TO FRANCE.—Bro. Charles Mercier has had the honour of receiving from Monsieur E. Langer, the president of the Société Havraise de Tir, a most cordial invitation to English volunteers, to take part in a rifle competition, which will be held at Havre about the end of July:—"As this invitation is another pledge of international friendship, I beg you will kindly make it known, mentioning at the same time that the Société Havraise de Tir, in addition to other improvements, have been endeavouring to provide shooting in the 'open,' and at long ranges. As, however, unexpected difficulties have arisen, firing in the 'open' may be unattainable, in which case, if the invitation is accepted, volunteers must not count upon this facility, and may have to be content with the Society's ordinary 'stand.' Nor must they expect a repetition of the grand demonstrations and hospitality of last year, which took all so completely by surprise. I venture to mention these points—this specially—as, in consequence of impaired health and pressing professional engagements, it will not be in my power to take any further part in general public work, or in promoting international rifle competitions, though, as a consultation may be necessary, I should be happy, if no more suitable place is available, for volunteers interested to meet at my residence; this intimation being accepted as a sufficient invitation."

Our Brother, H.R.H. Prince Leopold, has been proposed as a joining member of the Lodge of Antiquity, No. 2.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—No one should treat the present changes in the weather with indifference, for they undoubtedly have a great effect upon the human body. It is necessary for every one to be cautious and watchful. Cautious as regards clothing and exposure, and watchfulness as regards the effect on the body. The skin, nervous system, and breathing organs often suffer severely, as is evidenced by Erysipelas, Rheumatism, Colds, Sore Throats, &c. When, therefore, symptoms of any of the above diseases show themselves, they should be at once attended to. The Ointment should be rubbed into the parts affected, and the Pills taken according to the printed directions; this treatment soon eradicates the disease and restores the general health.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1875.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

We congratulate the Committee, and Bro. Little, and the Order generally, on the successful result of the anniversary for 1875. Everything seems to have prospered with it, from the Chairman down to the weather. We are glad to record the fact that our distinguished brother, the Lord Mayor, presided, and we still more rejoice to call attention to his sensible and Masonic address. That the result of so numerous and animated a meeting would be large and gratifying we did not doubt, and we feel some little honest pride, as Freemasons, for our benevolent Order, in adding that the Stewards' lists realised the large sum of £7,268 3s. All honour to that maligned Craft of ours, which is yet untiring and unrelaxing in its efforts to promote the great and sacred cause of benevolence and charity. The returns, as usual, are very striking. The metropolis is to the fore with £4,811, in round numbers. The provinces send up £2,257 10s. 6d., and miscellaneous and foreign £200, in round numbers, a little more or less. Bro. Constable heads the metropolitan list with the goodly sum of £420 12s., Bro. Headon of 1426, follows with £211 1s.; while Bro. Palmer, 1348, brings up £174; Bro. Hyde Pullen, 1382, £170 2s.; Bro. J. G. Stevens, 933, £142 16s.; Bro. J. L. Thomas, 1328, £133 7s.; Bro. S. Poynter, 1491, £118 0s. 6d.; Bro. F. Lough, 69, £115 10s.; and Bro. W. H. Stevens, 607, and Bro. W. J. Murlis, 1489, £102 18s. and £120 respectively. In the provinces, Middlesex and West Yorkshire have a close race for it, the former winning by a head on the post with £581 19s. against £580 17s. The next is Monmouth with £464 10s., followed by Kent with £142 3s.; the remaining 19 provinces not exceeding the two figures. The return, however, is a very striking one, as we have said before, and reflects the highest credit on the zeal and energy of the Stewards, and tells also a good tale for the ready liberality of our Craft. We are happy to state that the financial affairs of the Girls' School to the close of 1874 are in a very prosperous condition. The Lord Mayor alluded to the Balance Sheet in warm terms of commendation, and certainly it is very gratifying. The credit side of the account for 1874 shews from all sources, including balance of preceding year, the sum of £11,557 9s. 4d. The debit amounts to £10,258 18s., leaving a balance, when all is paid, at the bankers at the close of 1874, of £1,298 11s. 4d., with £70 for petty cash. It is, however, fair to observe that of this amount of £10,258 18s., £2,296 2s. 6d. was invested in £2,500 Consols, leaving the vested property of the School at £23,000, Three-per-Cent. Consols. This surely is a most praiseworthy state of affairs, and says much for the effective management of the Committee and the Secretary. Our distinguished brother the Lord Mayor asked why with such great advantages, with the blessings of such an Institution, not double the number of inmates, making them 285 or 300? We believe, though Bro. Little can inform us officially, that there is no more room at the School for new buildings! But two questions arise. Cannot land be purchased? and cannot the School be extended in one direction or the other? We apprehend that with our rapidly increasing numbers, rapidly augmenting claims will come upon us, and we fear that is impossible to suppose that in the present state of our Order 145 girls can represent the permanent number of the inmates of the Girls' School. The question is so important, and the Girls' School is so well managed by those able and painstaking brethren who look after its interests and control its affairs, and Bro. Little is so alive to its educational value and the needs of our Order, that we only venture to suggest the consideration of the increase of numbers to the attention of those best qualified in all respects to deal with so grave a question.

THE POPE AND THE FREEMASONS.

Telegrams dated Paris, Sunday night, state that Bishop Dupanloup has received the following letter from the Pope, congratulating him on his pamphlet against Freemasonry:—"Venerable Brother,—Salutation and apostolical benediction. In this war waged on all sides against the Catholic Church by the Masonic sect, your publication was most useful and opportune, especially because this sect, long secret, has now unmasked itself. It avows its designs, and in a certain country, not under the pretext of public rights, but in its own name, does guilty battle with the Church. It is useful because, the nefarious character of the sect being known, there is no honest man who must not turn from it with horror, and perhaps many members who do not know the secret mysteries will now withdraw. What is particularly useful is the perspicacity with which you demonstrate to all attentive minds the real tendency of the taking words, 'Fraternity and Equality,' which have deceived and seduced so many, and the true origin and object of the much boasted liberties of conscience, of public worship, and of the Press. After reading your work nobody can doubt that all this came from Freemasonry to overturn civil and religious order, and consequently the Church has wisely condemned those who practise and defend such liberties. It is manifest that all partisans of these liberties, albeit unknown to themselves, favour the Masonic sect, and the more honest they are the more disastrous is their support to such principles. We therefore wish you many intelligent readers, for it is no small advantage to perceive the snare, and as a pledge of Divine favour and our special goodwill we give you, venerable brother, from the bottom of our heart, to you and your diocese, our Apostolical benediction.

"In the twenty-ninth year of our Pontificate,—
"PIUS IX., POPE."

THE "SCOTTISH FREEMASONS' MAGAZINE."

Having said our say about the most unfortunate little "faux pas" of our Scottish contemporary, in the best interests, as we consider, both of Scottish and English Freemasonry, we do not deem it wise to continue a very inopportune, and, in our opinion, unwarrantable discussion. But we must protest, as before both the English and Scottish Craft, against the tone and temper of that most injudicious writer, who could pen such an article, alike disloyal in utterance, and impertinent to all English Freemasons. And what shall we say of his defence of it? All that his best friends can possibly urge in mitigation of his renewed unmasonic temperament is, that his words seem so strange, his opinions so incoherent, that, as Meg Merrilies observed, if we remember rightly, to Dominie Sampson, so we all must say, "Mon, ye maun be either fou or fast-ing." We are very, very sorry for the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine, and having said this—we say no more. We observe, however, that our contemporary likens himself, by implication, to John Knox, and apparently ventures to compare his most unmasonic and unfounded tirade against English Freemasons and their Royal Grand Master, to the old reformer's fervid utterances of what he believed was Truth. The writer in the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine puts us in mind of a young friend of ours who has just returned from a great public school, in which his report for the half is, that he is "addicted to idleness," and, what is worst of all, that he is "self-complacent in his idleness." We do not suppose that the egotism or self-complacency of our sensational confrere can be exceeded by any journalist at the present hour.

A PLEASANT SCENE.

If it is true that "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin," we think that never did the application of the truism appeal more forcibly to our own sense of what is true, sympathetic, and natural, than in the little incident to which we have given the above name. The Times of Thursday records a meeting at Windsor Castle, where the Queen of many millions surrounds herself with all the highest charms of home life amid the splendour of a palace, and seems to forget the shadow of the great sorrow of her being in the bright hopes and gracious promise of her grandchildren! We are amongst those writers and thinkers—call us realistic if you will—who believe that the best history of the times in which we live, of the world in its progress from age to age, in the onward way of all of human kind, is to be found in the actual habits and wonted customs of public, and, above all, of private life! The eyes of men are sometimes dazzled by the tinsel and the trappings of outward sensationalism, but we should gain a sorry picture, either of the world as it has been really, or as it is truly now, if we ever forgot for one moment that it is in the inner lives of peoples and of persons that you are to look for the certain clue to the hopes and plans and longings and aspirations of successive generations. Beneath the gilded show of the great "Vanity Fair" of life lies the quiet, hidden existence in the home, by the fireside, and there we must go, after all, for those ennobling touches of our wondrous humanity, which give reality to fiction, certainty to history, and lighten up the continuous kalendar of time with unmistakable tokens of reliability and truth. It was one of the greatest characteristics of all the many excellent counsels and endeavours of the late Prince Consort, to which as a people we are, and shall ever be most deeply indebted, to throw the colouring of his cherished German "Heimlichkeit," over the often garish and dangerous splendors of the Court and of high social rank. When, like a wise master builder, he strove so earnestly to impart his conceptions to our English mind, he found a soil well prepared for the growth of such goodly plants as home life and domestic happiness. How well he prospered in his labours we need not recount to-day; the evidence of many "lustra" points to the unmistakable success of his goodly plans and his life-long care. In England the love of home in its intense practicability has been at the foundation of all our real greatness and national prosperity. But the lesson the Prince Consort essayed to teach us was another one. High rank and great place, the ceaseless exactments of needful ceremonial, often left but little time for the enjoyment of domestic retirement and sympathies. But it was not enough to be intent on Court duties, on the brilliant gathering; on the splendid outer life; there was an inner life, of simple home tastes and pursuits, which had to be fostered, upheld, and vitalized, if all was to go well and to be well. Nothing, we venture to think, has so strengthened the Throne in the hearts of the English people as this fellow-feeling with their most cherished ideas and actual daily, hourly, often trying and laborious, existence. And so to-day we, as Freemasons, remembering that our Gracious Sovereign is not only the daughter of an old Grand Master, but our ever kindly Patroness—that three of her sons and one of her sons-in-law are members of our great fraternity, that we boast more than one little "Lewis" of the "House of Brunswick"—we shall rejoice, as all patriotic Englishmen will rejoice, over that little family gathering which took place on May 10th, in that great castle, so bound up with the imperishable memories of England, of the English Throne, and of the English people. May the hopes of many millions, and the trust of many loyal hearts, be fulfilled in those of the coming generation, who when we of this present epoch are passed away, and gone from the "Battle-field of Life," will yet have high duties to perform alike in the holy interests of civilization, and peace, and progress; in the conservation of society, in the living welfare of our own great country, as well as in the increased happiness, liberty, and union of the great brotherhood of mankind.

THE MERRY MONTH OF MAY.

May is amongst us in all its freshness and brightness, with the balmy breezes of the closing spring, and with the genial warmth of the opening summer. Though ours is proverbially changeable weather, and London is specially credited with fogs and rain, King Charles the Second used to say, and he was a very good judge of the matter, that the climate of England was on the whole the best he knew, as it enabled you to be out of doors, after all, more than in any other. And we citizens of our "Little Village" may well be glad when May therefore puts on her most smiling face for us. As we all know, an English May in the country is very pleasant, especially when fine, and we are inclined to think that from the last fortnight in May, and until the end of June, there is not much anywhere that can compare with the aspect of our good old Fatherland. The hedges are leafy, the daisies are visible, the grass is lifting up its head, the hawthorn is fragrant in pink and white, while the chestnuts are beginning to bloom, and the oaks to be green again amid an increasing freshness and verdure of lane and mead, of wood and covert. A fine May is therefore not only very pleasant to the "country mouse," but has its special attraction for the "town mouse." For all our Londoners, pent up between interminable rows of dull brick, or smoky stone, or pretentious stucco, often sigh for a glimpse of green fields, for the hum of bees, for the cawing of rooks, for the songs of birds, and the umbrageous shelter of lime or elm. And those of us are wise in their generation, especially those to whom belong the cares and responsibilities of family life, if they run down with their belongings, great and small, to have a look at the pastures and shady lanes within some easy distance of town. Nothing is so healthy for us all as to have from early years the love of natural sights and common things. Especially is this so in that wonderful creation, that treasure house of goodness and wisdom and compassion, wherein the Great Architect of the Universe has given us all so many clear tokens of His presence, of infinite contrivance and design, of omnipotent constructiveness and care. In that glorious handiwork of excelling majesty and mercy there is nothing, however humble, from which we may not learn something alike striking to the intellect, and refreshing to the mind. Indeed, every consideration or survey of this world's frame and fabric and goodly sights and pleasant scenes must lead us all to the inevitable conclusion, as it has led so many of the wisest and best of earth, that the hand which made all these outer things and us is indeed Divine. Therefore, in this merry month of May let us not be chary of visiting, with our young and with our old, the fair extent of rural spots around our overgrown and toiling and sweltering metropolis. Happy privilege for our married brethren, goodly chance for some rash, if trembling aspirants for all the mysteries of Hymen, that they can enjoy, in the company of those they love the best, the sights and sounds of this merry month of May, amid the pleasant perfume of hawthorn hedges and budding trees and verdant fields, already studded with the daisy, the cowslip, and the primrose. But what a melancholy "outcome" and "lookout" for miserable bachelor Masons, still left to wander on "separatim" in this troublesome world, whose solitary excursion must be, for the most part, to the Welsh Harp or the Spotted Dog, to Greenwich or Blackwall, and who return as they go, little better for their outing, slightly heated and considerably bored. Even May, with all its refreshing hours and gladdening and revivifying influences, has its Nemesis for all those infatuated persons who, despite warnings very many, and chances not a few, resolutely continue "unblest and singularly single," with no dear, dear Jezebel to cheer, to worry, to govern, or to obey, still, "save at circuit unretained, and save at chess unmated."

NOTICE.

The June number of the "Masonic Magazine" which is the closing number of the 2nd volume, will be increased in letter-press. The photograph of H.R.H. the Grand Master is not yet ready, owing to the great demand on the Photographer, but we will publish it with the MASONIC MAGAZINE as soon as our arrangement is perfected. In order to prevent disappointment, non-subscribers should send an order at once to the publisher, 108, Fleet-street, E.C., who is most anxious to accommodate all who apply in time. The price of the single number is 6d., seven shillings for the whole year, and postage paid. With the end of the second volume it is a good time for many of our brethren to subscribe for the next twelve months.

We beg to call attention to the very interesting illustration of the Girls' School on another page, which originally appeared in the Illustrated London News.

We shall publish in the next Freemason some interesting letters from Bro. Buchan, W. J. Hughan, and "Masonic Student" on the Guild Theory. We shall also insert a communication from our esteemed Bro. Hughan, relative to a Mark Lodge of the last century, in America.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.
To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—
In the Illustrated London News of May 1st there appears an engraving with the title of "Inmates of the Royal Masonic Institution for the Aged and Widows," which I assert without hesitation to be a caricature. To my certain knowledge there has never been such a party. Had an illustration been given in the style of those of the Schools, the inmates of this noble Institution would have considered it a compliment, but the one in question is an insult to the aged, and particularly to the widows, which the editor ought not to have allowed to appear. If you will give this a place in your Journal you will oblige, Sir and Brother, yours respectfully and fraternally,
L. B.

Royal Masonic Institution, Croydon, May 11th.
[We do not suppose that there was any intended disrespect, as both the letterpress and illustrations were marked alike by kindness to the inmates and the Craft, and a desire evidently to call friendly attention to the Institutions of our Order.—Ed.]

THE FATHER OF FREEMASONS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
In your issue of Saturday last you inserted a letter signed "Honour to whom Honour is Due," relating to our esteemed Bro. Isaac Townsend, a member of Adam's Lodge, No. 158, Sheerness, as the father of Freemasons, in opposition to Bro. D. Osmet, of Sherborne, Dorset, who was initiated in January, 1820. But as your correspondent made an error in the date of Bro. Townsend's initiation, I beg to correct it, as it may be the means of bringing forth the name of the oldest member of the Craft, who, I am sure, the brethren will delight to honour.

Bro. Isaac Townsend was born in Essex on July 26th, 1793, and was initiated into the rites of Masonry in Lodge 79, Greenwich, in March, 1815, consequently he has been sixty years a Freemason. We have likewise, in the Province of Kent, Bro. P. W. Thorpe, Provincial Grand Treasurer, who, I believe, was initiated in the same year as Bro. Townsend. The brethren of the Province of Kent are proud of having among them the two oldest brethren of the Craft.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
A. SPARRS, P.M. of 158.
Sheerness, 11th May, 1875.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Seeing my father's name (Benj. Thorpe) mentioned in a letter headed "The Father of Freemasons," in your journal of the 8th inst. with a confusion of dates, as far as he is concerned I can give them correctly. He was born in June, 1793, and was initiated in the Wellington Lodge, Rye, Sussex, in October, 1814. He is now, and has been for some years past, the Provincial Grand Treasurer for Kent, and this year, I am thankful to say, he has performed the duties of his office, correspondence, &c., without any assistance. He had the pleasure of initiating his grandson in the Invicta Lodge, 709, in August, 1862, now nearly thirteen years since, and rarely fails to attend the monthly meetings of his lodge.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
B. K. THORPE, P.M. 709, P. Prov. G.R. Kent.

THE "SCOTTISH FREEMASONS' MAGAZINE."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I am very much amused at the remarks I have recently read about myself in the "Scottish Freemasons' Magazine." I believe that I have met the writer of them before in controversy, and, therefore, I am not astonished at anything he says. I learn for the first time that it is not customary or competent for writers to protest against unfair critics and unjust criticism. I care nothing for honest criticism, come from what quarter it may, but I do object to personalities, and above all, to shallow utterances and pretentious pomposity. I do not believe that in treating of literary matters you are at liberty to import into what assumes to my mind, in one aspect, a judicial deliverance, any of the prejudices of personal encounters!

We ought as Freemasons to be above all such lower grounds of literary pettiness, and leave them to the profane world.

The Reviewer had a clear right to criticise any little work I published "more suo," on grounds which appeal to fact, to truth, and reason. But if in doing so a critic shows convincingly to any dispassionate bystander that he has not half read the work he is criticising, and that he does not for some one reason or other clearly understand what he has read, and if, too, the critic demonstrates that at best his views on the whole subject are hazy, and his knowledge but skin deep, any author, I contend, has a right to appeal to the supreme court of the public, in order to prove that the critic is "hardly up to the mark," and that his criticism is valueless, "per se."

I only write on public grounds; on personal, I care nothing for any animadversions; as I feel quite sure, from the opinions of some of the best informed Masons in England and America, that however I may have failed from want of power to illustrate and enforce my argument, my premises are sound, and my conclusions irrefragable.

With regard to the question of "nervousness" for "inciviness," which I confess not to have noticed, it is, like "argumentative," only a printer's mistake, which the writer might surely have seen.

But I do not wish to complain of remarks, or to defend my little essay; all I desire is to record my humble protest against the thoroughly unmasonic temper which colours the startling "dicta" of an old offender against the rules of courtesy and fairness in Masonic controversy.

THE INSTALLATION JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Is anything settled about the Steward's jewel?
How is it to be arranged?
Are designs to be offered, and is the competition to be open?
Is there any chance of a general commemoration jewel?
Yours fraternally,
May Day, 1875.

EXPECTANS.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
In justice to myself, I feel bound to call your attention to either a "misprint" on your part, or an "error" on the part of your informant, with respect to the kindly report of our festive gathering, in celebration of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. of England. Your report states that I said, in the course of my remarks—"I will remember the great excitement occasioned at the acceptance of the Grand Mastership by the late Duke of Sussex," &c., &c., &c. This is most incorrect. The words I used were—"I will remember, although young, the death of his late R.H. the Duke of Sussex, and the grief expressed by numerous members of the Craft at the loss of so distinguished a nobleman and so good a Mason." I trust you will do me the justice to insert this explanation, and oblige,

Yours fraternally,
S. W. GARDNER, W.M. 1381.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL HOUSE COMMITTEE.

We have received the following circular:—
"Dear Sir and Brother,—I beg to inform you that I have been nominated to fill the vacancy on the Board of the House Committee occasioned by the election of Col. Francis Burdett as one of the Trustees; and I shall feel obliged if you could make it convenient to attend the meeting of the Life Governors, to be held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 27th inst., and there record one of your votes in my favour. The interest I take in all Masonic matters, and more especially in this Institution, being so well known to you that I am led to hope the same may be sufficient to secure for me your support on that occasion. I have no desire to displace any of the brethren who at present constitute the House Committee, but solely to fill the vacancy before referred to.

"I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
"H. A. DUBOIS.

THE MASONS' COMPANY.

On looking carefully over Ashmole's Diary, I find that he does mention the Astrologers' Feast after 1759, namely, July 13th, 1682—"The Astrologers' Feast was restored by Mr. Moxon;" and, again, January 29, 1683—"The Astrologers' Feast was held at the Three Cranes in Chancery-lane, Sir Edward Deering and the Town Clerk of London were Stewards." With regard to the "Old Freemasons," &c., though it is true that, in Preston's Edition of 1788, the words occur, as Bro. Hughan properly points out, yet, as Bro. Dr. Oliver made that footnote his own, in his Edition of 1861, the 17th, by greatly altering and abbreviating it, I venture to think that he ought to have verified his authorities. Preston, with all his merit, which is very great, was somewhat careless in collating quotations and MSS., but this want of correctness constitutes one of the greatest difficulties of the Masonic student. All our writers more or less accept too readily the unverified statements of others, and hand them on, without hesitation, from one to another.

A. F. A. WOODFORD.

In answer to our most active and indefatigable Masonic student, Bro. Woodford, I desire to state that in the Freemason for May 8th, I gave the entries in Elias Ashmole's Diary respecting his initiation in a lodge at Warrington, A.D. 1646, and his visitation of a lodge in London, A.D. 1682, which I transcribed from the Edition of Lilly's and Ashmole's Lives of A.D. 1774, and which Bro. Woodford some time since informed me were the same as the first edition of the Diary, published in 1714.

I cannot find any authority for the reference to the "seven other Old Freemasons," in Preston's "Illustrations of Masonry," which latter statement is not only to be found in the excellent edition of that well-known, by the revered Bro. Dr. Oliver (Spencer, London), but also in the earlier issues, even to 1788, which I have now before me. In the first and second editions but little historical information is to be found, but the successive issues were much enlarged from time to time.

Will Bro. Woodford kindly have the whole of the reference to Elias Ashmole transcribed from the History of Berkshire, so far as the author refers to Freemasonry? It would be a boon to many, and would, I feel, be appreciated by the numerous readers of the Freemason. Also state date of the edition of the History of Berkshire in which the reference to Ashmole's Masonic career occurs. I presume Dr. Knipe's statement is the authority for the assertion in the "Biographia Britannica" that Ashmole's election as a member of Masonic lodge was by him "considered as a mark of great honour." The quotation is to be found in Dr. Mackay's Grand Encyclopædia of Freemasonry, but I should like an authorised transcript of the original, and also date of first publication of work. We know nothing as yet about the Astrologers' Feast, but for certain Bro. Ashmole was not only a Freemason, but also a believer in Astrology. In fact, he apparently fancied studies which were by the majority considered unfathomable.

Preston's transcripts from old documents are sometimes most inaccurate.

W. J. HUGHAN.

Reviews.

Mr. Heckethorn has written a work professedly on secret societies, lately published by Bentley and Son. We opened it expecting to find a work of original research and careful verification, for a history of secret societies must always be a very difficult undertaking from the very nature of the case. We must confess to our entire disappointment. We say nothing of the childish attacks on Freemasonry, and Mr. Heckethorn's evident ignorance of what Freemasonry is or professes to be; but we cannot concede that Mr. Heckethorn's jottings and cuttings and extracts can fairly be called a history of secret societies at all. The history of secret societies is, as we said before, not only a very difficult one, but it is a very interesting one, and requires to be studied and elaborated with much of care and no little of power. It is a very curious chapter, look at it which way you will, in the history of the human race, and cannot be disposed of by some shallow sciolist who has not yet mastered the A B C of his subject, and utterly misapprehends the true records of this remarkable feature of the human love for the mysterious and the incommunicable. Mr. Heckethorn's dissertation on secret societies strikes us as eminently weak and unsatisfactory, and clearly based on a somewhat imperfect acquaintance with the subject on which he is dilating. There are two other great drawbacks to his work, its superficiality and its imperfection. It professes to be a history of all secret societies, and it only deals with those of which we have even already fuller and more minute information than Mr. Heckethorn imparts, while it ostentatiously ignores altogether many of which we should like to know something. All, therefore, that Mr. Heckethorn's work can fairly be called is, a "Contribution towards the History of Secret Societies," a little diffuse and somewhat heavy. We feel bound to say this, in the interest of Masonic students, as we could not allow it to be a work of any authority on "Secret Societies." With regard to his attack on Freemasonry, we can afford simply to laugh at it. His verbiage and line of attack seems, to say the truth, to savour of a Roman Catholic School of thought and feeling; and if Mr. Heckethorn be not a disciple of Stoneyhurst, the animus of his incriminations of our Order coincides in a somewhat remarkable measure with the effusions generally everywhere of the Ultramontane Press just now. Be that as it may, this new attack on our good old Craft will do it and us no harm. To use a young man's phrase just now, it is in "very bad form," and the "rubbing in" does not go down. And while we say this, we do not wish to assert that Mr. Heckethorn's book is without value. "Au contraire," subject to much reservation as to his authorities and views, we think his book, for what it does contain, may be scanned over by the Masonic student who is working up the history of secret societies. But for a publication which shall give us the "raison d'être" of such societies, on higher and more satisfactory grounds—for a more calm, and critical, and philosophical, and exhaustive treatment of a large subject—we must, we fear, wait yet for the coming writer, as such conditions are hardly to be found in the one-sided and sketchy history of Mr. Heckethorn.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BENGAL.

A Quarterly Communication of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal was held at Freemasons' Hall, Calcutta, on Saturday the 20th of March. Present: Bros. John B. Roberts, Past Dep. D.G.M., as District Grand Master; F. Jennings, Past Dep. D.G.M., as Dep. District Grand Master; W. B. Mactavish, D.S.G.W.; W. G. Amos, Past D.G.D., as D.J.G.W.; J. B. Knight, Past D.S.G.W.; W. H. Jones, D.G. Treas.; W. C. Bonnerjee, D.G. Reg.; D. J. Zemin, Past D.G. Reg.; Thomas Jones, Past D.G. Reg.; H. H. Locke, Past Dep. D.G.M., as D.G. Sec.; W. H. Fitze, Past D.S.G.D., as D.S.G.D.; A. LeFranc, D.J.G.D.; Jas. Watson, D.G.D. of C.; P. C. Dutt, D.G. Assist., of C.; W. M. Benwell, Past D.G.A.D. of C.; J. H. Turner, Past D.G.S.B., as D.G.S.B.; J. H. E. Beer, Past D.G. Org., as D.G. Org.; C. H. Compton, Past D.G. Org.; W. H. T. Ayres, D.G. Purst; T. Leach, of L. 232, B.B.; J. Mumford, C. F. Egerton Allen, H. M. Rustomjee, J. L. Anderson, Lieut. B. D. Hayes, Robt. Monk, D. G. Stewards; Bro. G. Alexander, D. G. Tyler. The following lodges were represented:—Star in the East, No. 67; True Friendship, No. 218; Humility with Fortitude, No. 229; Marine, No. 232; Anchor and Hope, No. 234; Courage with Humanity, No. 392; St. John, No. 486; Excelsior, No. 825; Star of Orissa, No. 1106; Temperance and Benevolence, No. 1160; Sandeman, No. 1374; Pioneer, No. 2490.

The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 28th December, 1875, were read and confirmed.

The District Grand Master in the Chair reminded the brethren that since the last Quarterly Communication of District Grand Lodge, that held on the 28th December, the minutes of which had just been confirmed,—there had been, on the 7th January, a Special Communication, for the purpose of dealing with certain propositions relative to the support of the Bengal Masonic Association. The minutes of this Special Communication would now be put before District Grand Lodge for confirmation, but he wished the brethren to understand clearly that the confirmation which would now be asked for was a confirmation of the minutes only, not of the resolutions of which they were the record. The confirmation of the resolutions by which (with the final sanction of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England) they would acquire the force of law, in and for the Province of Bengal, could only be voted at a meeting held after the lapse of a period of not less than three months from the Special Communication of the 7th January. Summonses were about to be issued immediately for such a meeting, and with each summons it was required by Art. 8, page 59 of the Book of Constitutions, that a copy of the resolutions which had been agreed to at the first meeting should be sent to every lodge. All therefore that District Grand Lodge was now asked to do, by "confirming the minutes" of the Special Communication of the 7th January, was to certify that the business which these minutes declared had been transacted at the meeting in question, had taken place, and had been correctly recorded.

Bro. Prosonno Coomarr Dutt moved—That the minutes of the proceedings of District Grand Lodge, at a Special Communication held on the 7th January, 1875, having been printed and circulated, be taken as read. Seconded by Bro. W. H. Fitze, P.M. 218, and Past D.S.G.D., and carried.

Bro. D. J. Zemin, P.M. 229, and Past D.G. Registrar, then moved that the aforesaid minutes of the 7th January, 1875, be declared to be correctly recorded. Seconded by Bro. W. G. Amos, W.M. 229, and Past D.G. Deacon, and carried.

The District Grand Master in the Chair addressed the District Grand Lodge as follows:—

"It is customary for you to receive an address from this chair at our Quarterly Communications of District Grand Lodge, but my words to you this evening will be but few. I will not be guilty of the mock modesty of saying that I could not have prepared an address, but still, having only taken charge four days ago, you would scarcely expect me to speak very glibly of the affairs of the Province. The Acting District Grand Secretary has, however, furnished me with a few notes, from which I find that at the close of the year 1874 there were 27 lodges working, and 675 subscribing members, as against 25 lodges and 581 members at the close of 1873.

"Financially, our position is also extremely satisfactory, as you will see from the Reports from our two Committees (the Committee of General Purposes and the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence) which will be put before you this evening.

"The punctuality with which nearly all the lodges in the Province have submitted their returns is most marked, and it is also very gratifying to me that there is not one single subject of a disagreeable nature to bring before you. No exclusions have been reported from any lodge in the Province since we last met.

"It gives me much pleasure to announce to you that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, our Most Worshipful Grand Master, has been pleased to appoint Captain Marmaduke Ramsay, of Meen Meer, to be District Grand Master for the Punjab. Our R. W. brother was installed at Lahore on the 26th of last month, and it will be gratifying to you all to know that the Installing Officer was a Past Deputy District Grand Master of Bengal. In the Masonic periodical which I have in my hand (the "Masonic Record of Western India," for March, 1875) there is a very interesting account of the ceremony, and an allusion to the great Masonic worth of our Bro. H. H. Locke, which greatly commends itself to me, written with a warmth of language exceedingly pleasant to read. I am sure that you will join me in congratulating both the District of the Punjab and our Bro. Ramsay on this appointment, and in sincere and most cordial good wishes for the prosperity of our sister Grand District under his rule.

"In conclusion I would say a word to you about our Bengal Freemasons' Almanac and Diary for 1875. It has been considerably enlarged this year, and now gives as much Masonic information concerning the sister Grand Districts of Madras, Bombay, British Burmah, and the Punjab as for Bengal itself. A very great amount of labour has been devoted to it by Bro. Locke and Bro. Dutt, and the expense which has been incurred in getting together the latest information from distant places and in producing the work in its present enlarged form, and in the best style in which it could be executed in Calcutta, has naturally been considerable; unless therefore a proportionately larger sale is obtained, the amount which our Fund of Benevolence (to which, as you know, all the profits upon our Diary are devoted) will derive from it will fail to be in any way commensurate with the pains which have been taken to please you. Our Bro. Locke says that he confidently expects a larger sale this year, and he has had, I know, a sufficient number of copies printed to enable every working Bengal Freemason (according to the statistics which I gave you a little while since) to possess himself of one. I hope, brethren, that you will all do your best to see that he is not disappointed in his expectation, which to me seems certainly a reasonable one, for I hardly know how any real working Mason could manage to get on without his Bengal Diary—I know, at any rate, that I could not."

The report of the Committee of General Purposes having been printed and circulated, was, on motion made by Bro.

Zemin, Past D.G. Reg., seconded by Bro. Fitze, Past D.G. Deacon, taken as read.

Bro. W. C. Bonnerjee, D. G. Reg., moved, and Bro. P. C. Dutt, D. G. Assist. D. of C., seconded, that the accounts of the District Grand Lodge and Fund of Benevolence for the quarter ending 28th February, 1875, as presented in the abstracts furnished in the report of the Committee of General Purposes, be accepted and passed as correct, which was carried.

Bro. Fitze, Past D. G. Deacon, moved, and Bro. Mactavish, D. S. G. W., seconded, that the remainder of the report of the Committee of General Purposes be also adopted and recorded, which was carried.

It was proposed by Bro. Mactavish, D. S. G. W., and seconded by Bro. J. H. Turner, Past D. G. S. B., that the report from the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence be adopted and recorded. Carried.

Pursuant to notice, Bro. J. H. E. Beer moved that Worshipful Bro. John Blessington Roberts be the nominee of this District Grand Lodge for the vacant office of District Grand Master of Bengal.

The District Grand Master in the Chair said he must ask Bro. Beer not to move this resolution, at any rate in its present form as to wording. However desirable it might be to approach the M. W. the Grand Master with some representation upon the subject (and he believed the wishes of the brethren in Bengal that some representation should be made were very strong), he did not think that the mode of doing so, which the motion in question appeared to contemplate, was the proper one.

Bro. H. H. Locke likewise took exception to the course proposed by Bro. Beer's motion. It was, he thought, entirely out of the question that this District Grand Lodge should take any such step as that of "nomination;" in fact, were such a resolution passed, it must prove wholly infructuous, even if it did not subject us to censure from the Grand Lodge of England for encroaching, or at any rate seeming to encroach, upon the prerogative of the M. W. the Grand Master. At the same time he thought that the lodges in the Province might, without impropriety, make known to the M. W. the G. M. their desires upon a subject of such near concern to their prosperity; and although the Grand Master was in no way bound to adopt any recommendation that might be made, it was not, he thought, unlikely that, in the event of their being anything like a general concurrence in the wishes of the brethren, it would receive full consideration, and would doubtless much assist the M.W. the G.M. in determining his choice. He thought that if Bro. Beer would amend his motion, so that it should simply invite the lodges in the Province to express any wishes they might have upon the subject, it would meet with full support from all present. He should himself be very happy to second the motion in such a shape, whereas in its present form, though in full sympathy with its object, he should feel compelled to vote against it.

Bro. Thomas Jones, Past D.G. Reg., expressed his concurrence in the view taken by Bro. Locke as to the form which the motion should take.

Bro. Beer declared his entire readiness to amend his motion as suggested.

Bro. C. H. Compton, Past D.G. Org., was of opinion that Bro. Beer could not alter the motion from the form in which he had placed it upon the Agenda paper.

Bro. Bonnerjee, D.G. Reg., and Bro. Thomas Jones, Past D.G. Reg., were of the same opinion.

Bro. Locke thought that Bro. Beer could do so with the consent of the meeting, but of course not without this; and, as objection had been made, he supposed Bro. Beer would be obliged to adhere to the motion as entered on the Agenda paper. He much regretted, however, that Bro. Beer was not permitted to move an amended motion instead.

Bro. Beer then said that, simply as a matter of form, and for the purpose of giving the opportunity of an amendment being proposed, of the kind suggested by the District Grand Master in the Chair and by Bro. Locke, he would move his original resolution, as given above.

The motion was seconded, pro forma, by Bro. F. Jennings, Past Dep. D.G.M., in order that the resolution of Bro. Beer might not fall for want of a seconder, and so preclude the adoption of an amendment which it was intended should be put.

Bro. H. H. Locke, Past Dep. D.G.M., then moved the following amendment:—"That the lodges in the Province be invited to send in, to the District Grand Secretary, the name of the brother whom they would wish to see appointed to the office of District Grand Master, with a view to the submission of the same to the M.W. the Grand Master for his gracious consideration."

This amendment was seconded by Bro. Thomas Jones, Past D.G. Reg., who spoke very forcibly in support of it. On being put to the vote, the amendment was declared to be carried.

After some other business had been transacted, the usual collection was made for the Fund of Benevolence. The amount was announced to be Rs. 122, and was made over to the District Grand Treasurer.

District Grand Lodge was then closed in form.

ARREST OF A MASONIC SWINDLER.

It affords us a great deal of pleasure and gratification to be able to announce that a most consummate Masonic swindler has been arrested and brought to justice in California, and at the present time he is serving a sentence of imprisonment in the county jail of Solano County, for obtaining money by false representations.

At the last session of the Grand Lodge, the Grand Master called attention to the operations of this rascal, who had been operating in the Western States, and cautioned the Craft to be on the look-out for him, as it was probable he would visit California. Shortly after the adjournment of the Grand Lodge the fellow made his appearance in San Francisco. He even had the audacity to visit the Temple, and interview the President of the Board of Relief. Brother Past Master Elias Rodecker examined the swindler and found him to be an unusually bright Mason. He gave the name of Alexander Craig, said he had been a deputy lecturer, and told a story of distress which so aroused the sympathies of Brothers McCormick and Rodecker that they gave him quite a large sum of money. When Brother Alexander G. Abell, the Grand Secretary, was informed of the case, he immediately recognized the description as that of the man who had been mentioned by the Grand Master, and for whom the brethren were notified to keep watch. Efforts were made to secure the arrest of the rascal in the city, but he succeeded in eluding those who were sent to look after him, and escaped into the country. Every few days the fellow would be heard from, but, like the Irishman's flea, he was always gone when you went to put your finger on him. After a time he turned up in Vallejo, where he "went for" some of the brethren, and succeeding in getting sums ranging from £10 to £50. Immediately after obtaining the money he started for San Francisco, but had hardly taken his departure before it was discovered that he was a confidence operator. A telegram was forwarded to Grand Secretary Abell, requesting him to cause the arrest of the fugitive on the arrival of the boat in San Francisco. Unfortunately the dispatch was forwarded to Oakland instead of San Francisco, and the opportunity to make the arrest was lost. On the boat, while coming from Vallejo, the plausible rascal succeeded in obtaining money from two of the passengers and the captain.

When informed of the miscarriage of the telegram, and the consequent failure to arrest the rascal, the Sheriff of Solano county visited San Francisco and began a search for the fugitive, whom he found in one of the theatres hob-nobbing with a police officer. He whispered to the officer to keep an eye on the fellow until the boat was ready to depart for Vallejo, when the arrest was made and the prisoner conveyed to Solano county.

A grand jury was immediately empanelled and the case submitted, and a true bill found against the prisoner, to which he pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the county jail—the utmost penalty allowed by the law.

This precious rascal is twenty-eight or thirty years of age; about six feet high; large dark eyes, with an unusual amount of white in them, and with a restless expression—presenting a wild gaze, as though he momentarily expected to be seized by an officer of the law. His hair is a dark brown, with whiskers lighter in colour. His complexion is medium blonde, and his weight is, perhaps, 140 to 150 pounds. The fellow is a good billiard player, and was in the habit of loafing about billiard saloons, playing pool, etc.

Obituary.

BRO. J. HOLLAND.

The High Cross Lodge has lost a valuable member by the death of Bro. J. Holland, of Northumberland Park. The deceased was much respected wherever he was known. He was always ready to perform an act of kindness; and the very large attendance at Abney Park Cemetery when he was interred was an unmistakeable proof of the affection with which he was regarded.

BRO. C. T. WALMSLEY.

We regret to have to record the death of Bro. Charles Thomas Walmsley, who was for nearly twenty years Deputy Grand Secretary of Grand Lodge of Ireland. He was in his 63rd year, and died on the 13th inst., after a short illness, at the house of his brother, in Belsize-road, Hampstead, near London.

BRO. WILLIAM ROBERTSON, P.M. 333.

The funeral of this lamented brother, whose death at the early age of forty-eight years was announced in our obituary on Monday, 10th inst., took place on Tuesday. It having been resolved that the funeral should be a public one, the brethren met at two o'clock in Edgin-street, U.P. Church Hall, where appropriate devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Mr. M'Bride. Thereafter the procession of brethren was formed four abreast, headed by the R.W.M. and Past Masters of Lodge 333, and followed by the hearse, and two carriages containing the immediate relatives of the deceased, marched from the house of the latter in Pollokshaws-road to the Necropolis, where the remains of the departed brother were interred in a site selected and acquired by him only some eight months ago. By the removal of Bro. Robertson the province has untimely lost one of its most zealous and accomplished brethren. He joined the Craft in the year 1864, being entered, passed, and raised in Lodge St. George, No. 333, which at that time held its meetings in Hutcheson-street. He speedily discovered himself to be one who had the good of Freemasonry at heart, and both willing and able to work for the furthering of its interests. Accordingly, he was soon promoted to office, holding the Senior Warden's chair in 1863 and 1864, and being installed in the year following. At the close of 1866 he resigned the R.W.M. chair, but up to the time of his fatal illness, about a month ago, he was a chief column at all meetings of the lodge where there was work to be done. Nor were his services confined to his mother lodge alone, but freely given throughout the Province of Glasgow and adjoining provinces; inasmuch so that, in acknowledgment of them, he had been affiliated as honorary member in no fewer than twenty-two lodges. Bro. Robertson leaves behind him a widow and eight children, four sons and four daughters.

METROPOLITAN.

SPHINX LODGE (No. 1329).—This lodge met at the Bridge House Hotel on Saturday, May 15th, Bro. J. H. Vockins, W.M., presiding, and Bro. Nairne acting as S.W. Bros. C. A. Read, J. H. Walker, A. S. Stribling, and W. C. Gleadall were raised to the Sublime Degree; Bro. R. J. Voisey was passed, and Mr. Wm. Lawey Permewan was initiated. The removal of the lodge to the Surrey Masonic Hall, already resolved, was delayed until the arrangements were finally completed. Bro. Reynolds moved, and it was unanimously resolved, to present each of the charities in rotation with the sum of five guineas at each half-yearly collection. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent dinner, provided by Bro. Spencer, who was present, and enthusiastically toasted.

PROVINCIAL.

ROCHDALE.—HOPE LODGE (No. 54).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, May 12th, at the Spread Eagle Inn, Rochdale, and there was a good attendance of the brethren. The officers present were Bros. Richard Simpson, W.M.; Ab. Barker, S.W.; James Burnish, J.W.; Dan Mitchell, P.M. Secretary; R. Collingwood, S.D.; C. H. Bintliff, I.G.; James Midgley, P.M., Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 6.15 p.m., and the minutes of the previous lodges were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree. Bros. James Metcalf and John Thomasworth, candidates for the Third Degree, were then called upon to show their proficiency in the former degrees, and, having satisfied the brethren, they were entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree. Bro. James Metcalf was then admitted and duly raised by P.M. Wm. Davies; Bro. J. T. Worth was also admitted and duly raised by T. B. Ashworth, P.M. The lodge was then closed in the Third Degree. The lodge was also closed in the Second Degree. Bro. Edward Clegg, the late Treasurer, having departed this life, Ben. Collinge, P.M., was unanimously elected Treasurer in his stead. The Secretary's salary was next determined on. There being no other business the lodge was finally closed at 7.45 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, which was provided by P.M. Wm. Ashworth and his wife in their usual elegant style. After the cloth was removed the W.M. gave the usual toasts, commencing with "The Queen and the Royal Family." He next proposed "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England." "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master," was next given. Among the toasts of the evening "The newly-raised Brethren" was given. Bros. Metcalf and Worth responded in a very pleasing manner. The usual closing toast was given, and the brethren separated after having spent a very pleasant evening.

SUNDERLAND.—WILLIAMSON LODGE (No. 949).—The meeting for the installation of the W.M., &c., was held in the lodge-room, at the Royal Hotel, Sunderland, on Monday, May 10th, when upwards of 70 votaries of our mystic science attended to pay their respects to the W.M. elect. BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1021).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on Monday, 12th May, the proceedings deriving their highest interest from the presentation of a magnificent Past Prov. Senior Grand Warden's Jewel, subscribed for by the brethren, to Bro. Sir James Ramsden, I.P.M., P.P.S.G.W. for W. Lancashire, in recognition of the valuable support given to the lodge during the term of his Mastership for two consecutive years, 1873 and 1874. It was intended that this pleasing ceremony should have taken place at the previous lodge, when Bro. Henry Cook, P.M. 1021, 119, P.P.G.R., &c. for C. and W., was presented with a beautiful jewel (P.Prov.G.S. of Works for C and W), which had been heartily subscribed for by the brethren in token of their fraternal regard and esteem for the many services rendered to the Craft since his residence in the town. The jewels were manufactured by Bro. Geo. Kenning, and were greatly admired by all.

ROCK FERRY.—ROCK LODGE (No. 1289).—The last meeting of this flourishing lodge, prior to the summer vacation, took place on Friday, 14th inst., and, in spite of the beautiful weather and numerous outdoor attractions, was very numerous attended. Bro. Ellis, W.M., was supported by Bros. Bolton, S.W.; Paton, M.D., J.W.; Wallace and Stanton, Deacons; Townsend, I.G.; Stevenson, Treas. and P.M.; S. Lewis, P.M.; E. Friend, P.M., &c. Visitors—Bros. Friend. Bro. Ellis, W.M., then resumed the chair and passed a candidate to the Second Degree. Before the lodge was closed those brethren who had been present at the Installation of the M.W.G.M. having been requested to state their experience, took the opportunity of urging the younger brethren to constant attention to their Masonic duties, which would in time qualify them to visit Grand Lodge themselves as members of our Masonic Parliament. Candidates for initiation and joining having been proposed the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and a most agreeable evening ensued.

It was of a very recherche character, reflecting great credit on the cuisine of the establishment, and the liberality of the host and hostess, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. In replying for that of the Prince of Wales, M.W.G. Master, Bro. Metham spoke in glowing terms of the Installation in Albert Hall, and said, however much Masons regretted (at the time) the secession of the Marquis of Ripon from the Craft, that scene in London was an answer to the world that the solid basis of the Order could not be shaken. V. W. Bro. Col. Ridgeway, P.P.G.S.W., responded for the Prov. Grand Master, R. W. Bro. Rev. J. Hayshe, whose extended rule over the Province had been so conducive to its welfare. Whether as a clergyman, a magistrate, an old English gentleman, or a Freemason, his conduct had gained for him the admiration and esteem of all who had the honour and pleasure of being associated with him. W. Bro. Fox, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the D. Prov. G. Master," who replied, and concluded by proposing "The Health of the Master, Bro. Haynes," trusting that his long experience and zeal for the Order would conduce to the prosperity of lodge 1486, now under his guidance. Bro. Haynes warmly thanked the proposer and brethren for the honour, assuring them that nothing should be wanting on his part to preserve harmony and charity amongst the members. The banquet was much enlivened by the excellent instrumental and vocal music of Bros. Cranch; G. Emery, 105; Hart, 1205; and Evans, 1486, and a very pleasant evening was spent. Letters of regret for their absence were sent by several brethren, including V.W. Bro. Latimer, P.I.G.W., and W. Bros. Nicholls, Westacott, Ven. Archdeacon Earle, Bro. Gard, and amongst those present, in addition to those named, were V.W. Bros. Major Bewes, P.M., P.P.G., S.B.; Twose, P.M., 105; Heath, 710; Leal, 710; Beachey; H. W. Thomas, S.W., 70; R. Bird, J.W., 70; E. T. Tarratt, J.D., 70; Thorne, 70; Leal, 710; Toms, 1091; Holland; Sawyer, V.W.; R. Rodd, P.M., P.P.G.R.

HAMPTON.—FRANCIS BURDETT LODGE (No. 1503).—The last regular meeting for the season of this lodge was held at the Lion Hotel, Hampton, in the rooms of the Lebanon and Hemming Lodges, by the kind permission of their W.M., Bro. Hammond, P.G.S. of Middlesex. There were present, Bros. Col. Wigginton, W.M., P. Prov. G.D.C. of Worcestershire; Saunders, S.W.; Horsley, P. Prov. G.R. of Middlesex, &c., acting J.W.; Hammond, W.M. 1326 and 1512, &c., acting I.P.M.; Walls, acting J.D.; Palmer (Burdett), acting Secretary. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, raised Bro. Taylor to the Third Degree. The solemn and impressive ceremony was exceedingly well carried out. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Ramsay, Confidence, and A. Taylor, La Estabilidad Caracas, Venezuela, as joining members, and declared unanimous. Bro. Buchill, P.M., &c., &c., proposed, and Bro. Wigginton, W.M., seconded, that Mr. Emmett and the Rev. Mr. D'Orsey should be members for initiation at the next meeting. Several names were then submitted as members for joining and initiation, and some minor business having been transacted, a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hammond for the kind use of the Lebanon Lodge room and furniture, and the lodge was duly closed. At the cold collation which followed labour, Bros. Saunders and Walls presided, in the unavoidable absence of the W.M. The usual Royal and Craft toasts were duly honoured, and the "National Anthem" sung by the S.W. and I.G. "The Health of Bro. Col. Wigginton" was proposed by P.M. Bro. Horsley in fitting terms, and replied to by Bro. Saunders, in the absence of the W.M. Bros. Horsley and Hammond replied to the toast of "The Grand Officers of the Province." Bro. Saunders gave "The Health of the Visitors," among whom were Bros. Hammond, Jordan, Lebanon, and Hemming; Palmer, Burdett; Court, Unanimity; Taylor, La Estabilidad. This toast was heartily received and acknowledged by Bro. Hammond, who, in the course of his reply, reverted to the very flattering manner in which his name had been mentioned in connection with the Lebanon by the W.M. in the lodge that afternoon, and concluded by stating that his humble services were always at the disposal of the brethren of the Francis Burdett. Bro. Hammond then gave "The Health of the S.W.; Bro. Saunders," and complimented him upon the able manner in which he had presided at the convivial board. Bro. Saunders made a suitable reply, and said that should the brethren ever deem him worthy to fulfil the duties of W.M. of the Francis Burdett Lodge, it would be his great desire and aim to discharge the responsibilities of the position satisfactorily; and he had to thank them very kindly for the hearty manner in which his health had been received. The S.W. then proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. Walls. Between the toasts, Bros. Saunders, Walls and Court, jun., contributed several vocal effusions. The proceedings terminated at a comparatively early hour, and the brethren separated until September next.

EDINBURGH CONCLAVE (No. 4).—The annual meeting of this convocation was held in the Conclave Rooms, St. James' Hall, Writers' Court, Edinburgh, on the 27th ult., for the installation of officers for the ensuing year. The convocation having been opened in regular form by Em. Sir Knt. D. Milne, M.P.S., and the minutes of election read and confirmed, Sir Knt. Milne unveiled the throne, which was then occupied by the P.S. (J. M. Sir Knight C. G. C. Christie, Int. Gen. Midlothian), who after having paid a high eulogium to Em. Sir Knt. Milne for the able manner in which he had discharged his duties as Sovereign during the past year, and congratulated him on his re-election, proceeded to install him into the Chair of C. The M.P.S. having thanked the Sir Knights for the honour they had conferred on him in re-electing him as Sovereign, expressed his determination to do all in his power to still further promote the interests of the convocation and maintain it in its very prosperous position, assisted as he felt assured he would be by the officers appointed to support him. The other officers were then declared duly elected and installed. The ceremony of installation over, Em. Sir Knights G. W. Wheeler, M.P.S., and J. Johnston, V., of the Glasgow Conclave, No. 114, being present, were elected and duly installed as honorary members of No. 4. The convocation was thereafter closed in due form, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the Prince of Wales Hotel to celebrate their annual festival, where they sat down to an excellent banquet provided in a most recherche style by Sir Knight Gaillard. Em. Sir Knt. Milne, M.P.S., occupied the chair, being supported on his right by J. A. Sir Knt. Christie, Int. Gen.; G. W. Wheeler, M.P.S., No. 114; J. McPherson, M.P.S., No. 103; J. Walker, S.G.; A. M. Bruce, Treas., &c. On the left were V. Em. Sir Knt. J. B. Mercer, K.G.C., P.S., H.P.; Lieut. M. Tracey, R.A.P.S. Concord Conclave, No. 8, Jersey; A. Henry, Hon. Sov., No. 4; H. E. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and chivalrous toasts were given from the chair and heartily responded to. The Chairman then gave "The Health of J. M. Sir Knt. Christie, Int. Gen., who, in reply, expressed his great satisfaction in seeing representatives from the Third Scottish Conclave present, as it was an evidence of that harmony which ought to exist among the Order. Among the other toasts were "The Intendant General," responded to by J. M. Sir Knt. Christie; "The Knights of Grand Cross," responded to by V. Em. Sir Knt. J. B. Mercer; "The Sovereigns of other Conclaves," responded to by Em. Sir Knt. Lieut. M. Tracey, P.S. No. 8; J. McPherson, No. 103; and G. W. Wheeler, No. 114. The Int. GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. JOHN (No. 34).—A special meeting of this lodge was held within their hall at No. 213, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, 18th inst. The chair was occupied by the P.W.M., Bro. William Bell, and there were present Bros. Thomson Fletcher, I.P.M.; Robert Craig, Gavin Park, J. B. Walker, John Baird, and James McMillan, Past Masters; D. M. Nelson, D.M.; John D. Young, S.W.; Peter Brownlie, S.D.; J. Reid, J.D.; R. B. Dalzell, Treas.; and John Dick, Sec. The general attendance, including visiting brethren, of whom there were comparatively few, numbered over 120. The lodge having been duly opened applications for admission into the Order were read by the Secretary from the following, viz., Messrs.

John Mossman, sculptor, Glasgow; Campbell Douglas, architect, Glasgow; James Robertson, builder, Pollokshields; John Scott, engineer, Glasgow; M. Wylie, wine merchant, Glasgow; D. Paterson, manufacturer, Lenzie; and J. Couper, tobacco manufacturer, Glasgow. Each candidate having been duly proposed and seconded, and there being no objections, they were properly prepared and admitted, and received the Entered Apprentice Degree at the hands of the R.W.M. Thereafter, the lodge having been raised to the Fellow-Craft Degree, they were passed to that Degree by Bro. Thomas B. Bell; and, finally received the Sublime Degree of Master Mason at the hands of P.M. Bro. James McMillan. Subsequently, the lodge adjourned to refreshment, at which the R.W.M. gave in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," and "The last-laid Stones of Lodge St. John." In proposing the latter, the chairman stated that their lodge was the oldest in the province, and that during last working year they had done more for Masonry than any of the others. They had made 75 members, had distributed between £30 and £40 in private charity, and contributed between £18 and £19 to the P.G.L. Benevolent Fund. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. John Mossman, who briefly replied. Speaking for himself, and for those who had been made with him that evening, he begged to express the pleasure and delight they felt in having got beyond the regions of darkness and into those of light. To be a member of the Craft of Freemasonry was what any man might be proud of, but to be a member of that particular lodge was something additional. The S.W. (Bro. J. D. Young) then proposed "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. R. McDougall, R.W.M., Lodge St. Vincent (553), by whom it was acknowledged in felicitous terms, and the lodge was shortly afterwards recalled to labour, and closed in due and ancient form.

DUMBERTON.—ST. JOHN'S KILWINNING LODGE (No. 18).—The regular monthly communication of this lodge was held on the evening of Friday, the 14th inst., in their lodge-room; R.W.M., Wm. Bave, occupied the chair. The lodge being opened with the usual formalities, was passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, when three candidates were instructed in the mysteries therein by the Senior Warden, Bro. R. B. Thomson, after which the lodge was reduced, when a brother was affiliated into Lodge No. 18. The R.W.M. gave a short report of the recent communication of the Grand Lodge and his visit thereto. A committee was appointed to arrange about the annual excursion, and as the Master of 18, at a recent festival of a sister lodge, had suggested the idea of having an excursion of all the lodges in the Province of Dumbarton, or at least in the surrounding district, and which was highly approved of, the Secretary was appointed Convener, and empowered to communicate with the neighbouring lodges. A number of candidates were nominated for initiation, after which the lodge was duly closed, to meet on Tuesday night, the 18th inst., when the R.W.M. again presided over a very large assembly of the brethren, met together for a very interesting purpose. The lodge having been opened in the E.A. Degree, the R.W.M. took the opportunity of reading to the brethren the article which appeared in the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine of May 1st, entitled "Princes and Grand Master," and in a very long and able manner related the remarks and expressed his dissent to the sentiments therein given, and in the name of Dumbarton Kilwinning Lodge, one of the largest and oldest lodges in Scotland, repudiated such sentiments as anti-Masonic, remarks which were very loudly applauded. He also read to the brethren a letter from the Pope to the Bishop of Orleans, and commented thereon. He likewise read a history of the lodge, with numerous interesting extracts from the Minute Books, especially of the older records. This history was written by Bro. McKellar, for some time Secretary of No. 18, but now residing in the East Indies, from where he sent the documents. After a few arrangements were made in connection with attending the laying of the foundation stone of a new city hall in Glasgow and an aquarium in Rothesay with Masonic honours, the lodge passed from labour to refreshment. The usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts having been given and responded to, the R.W.M., in rising, said he had now come to the business for which they had particularly assembled, viz.: that of doing honour to a worthy brother and officer of the lodge, Bro. R. B. Thomson, Senior Warden, who had taken a very active part in all matters since he joined the Order nine years ago. Since he (the R.W.M.) was called to the chair he had received very able assistance from several brethren, in the working of the various degrees, and considerable forbearance from the brethren. There was likewise a large number of brethren who were able to instruct the newly initiated candidates into the mysteries of the Order. Bro. Thomson, along with the late Secretary, Bro. McKellar, and others, a number of years ago formed themselves into a circle to post themselves up in Masonic knowledge. The result of their labour then had now come down to their day, and the majority of brethren made have been indebted to none more than to Bro. Thomson, who was always ready, able, and willing to give instruction. Last year there was formed an instruction class, which met regularly during the winter, presided over by Bro. Thomson, the result of whose labour has been edifying to the attendants. And to endeavour to recompense you, Bro. Thomson, they have now taken this opportunity of presenting it; nor have they forgotten that you have a partner in life, who has often been deprived of your society. I have therefore to present you with this valuable gold Albert chain, and to Mrs. Thomson this gold brooch. To the chain was attached a beautiful Masonic emblem, on which was a suitable inscription. The R.W.M. then gave the toast, "Bro. R. B. Thomson, Senior Warden," which was most enthusiastically responded to, and likewise followed by "Dumbarton fire." Bro. Thomson expressed, in very feeling terms, his gratitude towards the brethren for their magnificent gifts to himself and wife. What he had performed was done for his mother lodge, and his duty to the Order. He next gave an interesting history of his efforts a number of years ago, in connection with an instruction class, but which was not appreciated by the then R.W.M., and in doing so passed a high eulogium to Bro. McKellar, late Secretary, who had been the means of exciting many, him among the rest, to delve deep into Masonic knowledge; and in concluding paid a passing tribute to the R.W.M., and others who had rendered him assistance in his researches, teachings, and advice. A number of other toasts were then given and responded to. During the course of the evening a number of the brethren sang a number of songs. The lodge was afterwards closed in due form.

PARTICK.—LODGE ST. MARY'S (No. 117).—The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow paid their annual visit of inspection to this lodge on Wednesday, the 19th inst. The deputation consisted of Bros. F. A. Barrow, P.G.D.M.; John Baird, S.W.; J. B. Walker, Treas.; A. McTaggart, Sec.; James Gillies, S.D.; J. Ritchie, A.; and George Sinclair, Treasurer of P.G.L. Benevolent Fund. In the absence, through indisposition, of the R.W.M. of the lodge (Bro. William Wylie) the visitors were received by Bro. Andrew Brunton, P.M., who acknowledged the supremacy of the P.G.L. in the usual manner, and had the mallet returned to him by the Depute Master. Thereafter the P.G. Secretary submitted the report of the deputation as to the state of the lodge affairs, which was to the effect that, on the whole, it was in a very healthy state. They had added thirty-five to its membership during the past year, had given away in private charity £9, and had handed over to the P.G. Benevolent Fund the very handsome sum of £12 10s. Moreover, at last audit the funds of the lodge were found to be £85 15s. 10³/₄d., as against £65 6s. 7¹/₂d. at the one previous, being an increase of fully £20. In the course of his remarks in connection with the report, the P.G. Secretary, as he has done at most of the visitations this season, strongly deprecated the practice of giving any candidate more than one degree in one night, unless in bona-fide cases of extreme emergency. The Depute Master afterwards shortly addressed the meeting, expressing at the outset his sympathy with the lodge and its Master in regard to the absence of the latter, and the cause of it, but congratulating them on having such a worthy Past Master to act in his place. He (the speaker) had entirely to endorse what had been said by the Secretary in the matter of giving two or three degrees in one night. The P.G.L. was rigidly opposed to the practice, which, indeed, rendered a lodge guilty of 'it liable to suspension, and he trusted, therefore, that Masters would look to it. In concluding, the Depute Master congratulated the lodge upon its success during the past year, and bespoke a good turn out of their number at the ceremonial of Saturday. The chairman having in the name of the lodge thanked the deputation for their visit and for their kind remarks—which he would take care to convey to the R.W.M.—the visitors withdrew.

GLASGOW.—LODGE COMMERCIAL (No. 360).—A meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 30, Hope-street, on Friday, the 21st inst., Bro. Monro, R.W.M., in the chair; Bros. J. M. Olliver, S.W.; John Fraser, J.W., and a goodly number of brethren present. On the lodge being opened the Secretary read the minutes of previous meetings, which were approved of. The R.W.M. read a letter of application, with name of proposer and second, from a gentleman for admittance into the Order of Freemasonry. There being no objection it was resolved that the candidate be balloted for at next general meeting, Friday, 4th June, and if favourable that he receive the E.A. Degree. The R.W.M., Bro. John Monro, said it now devolved upon him to perform a most pleasant duty on behalf of the lodge, that of presenting their I.P.M., Bro. Dr. Morton, with a Past Master's jewel in testimony of his attention and zeal for the lodge while in the chair. Bro. Dr. Morton had done a great deal for the lodge, and in appreciation of what he had done he would now present him with this little token of their esteem, trusting that he might long be spared to wear it and come amongst them. Bro. Morton in a few well-chosen remarks said that he had not the slightest idea of being amongst them that evening, or that such an honour was going to be bestowed upon him, in fact, if Bro. J. Brode, P.M., his most esteemed friend and brother, had not called upon him and pressed him to come, he should not have been at the lodge that night, for he had been a member of the lodge for many years and was getting old, and with that and his profession he could not come very often amongst them. When he was called upon to occupy the chair it was with reluctance that he did so, knowing that there were members of the lodge more able to occupy such an important position than he was; however, in accepting that office he had performed the various duties to the best of his ability, and with the valuable assistance of Bro. Monro, their present R.W.M., had managed to get on better than he expected. It gave him great pleasure to know that the lodge appreciated what he had done by presenting him with this token of esteem, which he should ever prize, not from its intrinsic value, but for the spirit in which it was given. He would now thank the brethren for their kindness, assuring them that this token of appreciation he should never forget. The lodge was raised thereafter to the degree of F.C., when Bro. John Brash was passed to this degree, Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., officiating. The R.W.M., Bro. Monro, then proposed for honorary affiliation into this lodge Bro. G. R. Harriott, Provincial Grand Master of Wighton and Kircudbright, promoter of the scheme of the Benevolent Institution for Scotland, which was received with acclamation. Bro. Harriott was then affiliated by Bro. Monro, R.W.M., and on retaking his position on the right hand of the R.W.M. he thanked Bro. Monro for his kindness in proposing him for affiliation into Lodge Commercial, No. 360, and the brethren for the manner in which they had received it. From the high character he had heard of the lodge he had reasons to be proud of the high honour they had conferred upon him. He should always be pleased to meet any of them, and anything he could do to promote the interest of the lodge it would be a great pleasure for him to do. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

At the close of business the brethren proceeded in procession to the Co-operative Hall, where the banquet took place.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS OF CHESHIRE AND NORTH WALES.

By command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. the Right Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., a Provincial Lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Masonic Hall, Llandudno, on Friday, the 21st inst., at three o'clock, when and where all Worshipful Past Masters, Acting Wardens, and overseers of lodges within the province, as well as from neighbouring provinces, were invited to attend the duties of the annual meeting. The invitation was cordially responded to, and the consequence was a large, influential, and unanimous gathering of brethren of the Mark Degree. There were representatives from the most distant parts of the wide-spread province, but Birkenhead was the most numerous represented. Amongst those who attended we observed the following:—Bros. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., R.W.P.M.M.; W. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., P. Prov. G.S.W.; Major Platt, P.G.J.D.; T. LAYING OF THE MEMORIAL STONE OF THE NEW PUBLIC HALLS, GLASGOW.

On Saturday, 22nd inst., with full Masonic honours, under the most favourable circumstances as regards weather, and in presence of an immense concourse of spectators, the memorial stone of the Glasgow New Public Halls was laid by Col. W. Montgomerie Neilson, of Queenshill, Provincial Grand Master. The want of a building such as that now being erected has long been felt by the citizens of Glasgow. Impressed with the absolute necessity that existed for a building commensurate with the requirements of Glasgow, a number of gentlemen formed themselves into a company with the view of supplying this defect. The committee of the Public Halls Company having purchased at a cost of £12,258 that large square of ground extending from North-street to Granville-street, and bounded on the north by Berkeley-street, and on the south by Kent-road, and covering an area of 5492 yards, they proposed to erect a large building comprising a concert room, resembling the Philharmonic in Liverpool, although on a much larger scale, and a number of other halls in which assemblies, soirees, and meetings of societies could be held. The designs of the late Mr. Cunningham, of Liverpool, and Mr. Campbell Douglas, of Glasgow, were selected, although the plans of these gentlemen did not embrace the original intentions of the company. The contractors at once set to work, and the main walls are already approaching completion. The principal entrance to the hall will be by Granville-street. On the ground floor a large vestibule, 29 feet by 28, with inner octagonal hall 36 feet in diameter, gives access on either side to two halls 75 by 40 feet, besides various reception-rooms, retiring-rooms, and other conveniences. From these halls, as well as from the vestibule, there is communication with the great hall, which occupies the entire area of the eastmost portion of the building, and measures about 185 feet in length by 75 feet wide, the height of the ceiling being 56 feet. It will afford fully one half more accommodation than any other room in the city, and with the two smaller halls and the octagon chamber on the same floor, all of which are connected by spacious doorways, it will form one of the finest suites of rooms in the country for banquets or demonstrations of a public nature.

From the progress already made with the work, the committee are confidently of opinion that the halls will be finished in time to admit of the British Association holding their meeting within them in the autumn of 1876.

Shortly before two o'clock the committee of the Glasgow Public Halls Company assembled in the large hall of the Queen's Rooms, where they received the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and others invited to take part in the ceremony. Amongst those who took part in the procession were the Lord Provost, Sir James Watson, Lord Dean of Guild, Sheriff Clark, Sheriff Galbraith, Professor Douglas, Rev. Henry Batchelor, Dr. Logan Aikman, Rev. Dr. Marshall Lang, Rev. John Page Hopps, Dr. W. C. Smith; Baines Torrens, Burt, Young, and Millar; Councillors Grierson, Wilson, Brownlie, Moir, McDonald, Martin, Clark, Osborne, Fulton, Finlay, and John Taylor, jun.; Deacon Convener Smith, Preceptor McDonald, Messrs. J. Campbell of Tillichewan, R. T. Middleton, John Mathieson, jun.; James Hannan, E. Robinow, R. G. McGregor, A. W. Auld, Anthony Inglis, Daniel Macnee, Arch. Galbraith, A. B. McGregor, Hugh Brown, David Rowan, Frank Baird, Provost Wilson, Govan, &c., &c. Captain McCall, who acted as Grand Marshal for the civic portion, then arranged the procession according to the order in the programme; while Mr. Robert Robb, who officiated as Provincial Grand Master for the Masonic portion, arranged the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons, who had assembled in the Lower Hall, the Provincial Grand Master, Colonel W. Montgomerie Neilson, of Queenshill, presiding. The other office-bearers present were F. A. Barrow, Deputy P.G. Master, and Senior Deacon Grand Lodge of Scotland; John Baird, S.P.G.M.; J. B. Walker, P.G. Treas.; George Sinclair, Treas. of P.G.L. Benevolent Fund; A. M'Taggart, P.G. Sec.; Rev. Dr. Burns, P.G. Chaplain; Rev. Dr. Penney, P.G. Vice-Chaplain; James Gillies, P.G.S.D.; George Thallon, P.G.J.D.; Alex. Bain, P.G.B.B.; Andrew Allison, P.G. Jeweller; Robert Robb, Chief P.G. Marshal; John Fraser, P.G. Marshal; John Balfour, P.G. Director of Ceremonies; John Miller, Director of Music; Wm. Phillips, P.G. Sword Bearer; A. Arck Smith, P.G.I.G.; and J. B. Hardie, P.G. Tyler. There were also present H. F. M'Lean, Provincial Grand Master Upper Ward of Lanarkshire; Alex. Smollett, Provincial Grand Master Dumbartonshire; and Capt. G. R. Harriot, Provincial Grand Master Wigtown and Kirkcudbright. The Provincial Grand Master having, by virtue of the powers conferred upon him by Grand Lodge of Scotland, declared the lodge opened, the brethren proceeded to take their part in the procession, which, according to the programme and to Masonic etiquette, was at the end of all the lodges present. The Masonic portion of the procession included representatives or deputations from fully fifty lodges. Making allowance for one or two lodges, the numbers of which could not be made out by the Marshals, the Masonic procession would muster in all about 1700 strong. On being marshalled the procession proceeded through the West-End Park, Park Terrace, Woodlands Terrace, Scotland-street, Woodside Crescent, North-street, St. Vincent-street, and Cleveland-street, to the site of the new building in Granville-street, in the following order:—Band of Music; Chief Constable; Officers of Police; the Town Officers with Halberts; the Lord Provost and Magistrates; followed by the Town Council; Judicial and Civil Officers of the Corporation; Lord Dean of Guild; Deacon-Convener; Officers of Police; Sheriff of Lanarkshire and Sheriffs-Substitute; Clergy; Officers of Police; Chairman and Directors of the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce; Chairman and Members of the Public Halls Committee and Architect; Inspector of Works and Contractors; Officers of Police; the Knights Templar; the Masonic Lodges, the junior in front; Band of Music; the Provincial Grand Lodge; Officers of Police.

The procession as it wended its way through the streets was witnessed by immense crowds of people. The Knights Templar, dressed in a pure white garb, the Freemasons wearing the insignia of their office, and the numerous flags which were born aloft in the breeze, gave the procession quite an imposing appearance. On arriving at the hall in Granville-street, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and others, took up their places on the platform, to the south side, and the Freemasons in front of the memorial stone. When silence had been proclaimed by the Provincial Grand Marshal, the band played the National Anthem, and the Provincial Grand Chaplain having offered up an impressive prayer, the Provincial Grand Treasurer deposited in the cavity of the stone a hermetically sealed glass jar containing the current coins of the realm, copies of the various newspapers, &c. The Grand Secretary, previous to depositing the plate in the memorial stone, read the inscription thereon, which was as follows:—"This memorial stone of the Glasgow Public Halls was laid by Colonel W. Montgomerie Neilson, of Queenshill, Provincial Grand Master of Glasgow, on 22nd May, 1875, assisted by his Provincial Grand Office-bearers, and a large number of Freemasons, in presence of the Hon. James Bain, Lord Provost, the Magistrates of the city, the Sheriffs of the county, James Campbell, Esq., of Tillichewan, Chairman and the Directors of the Public Halls' Company, and a great concourse of spectators." The 100th Psalm was then sung by a well-trained choir in connection with the Choral Union, and the stone lowered into its place. The operatives having completed their part of the work, the Provincial Grand Master laid the memorial stone with the usual ceremonial, spreading corn on it, and pouring out wine and oil thereon, repeating the while a short prayer, at the conclusion of which the band played the "Masons' Anthem," and three cheers were given by the brethren.

The Provincial Grand Master said:—It is now expected that I should say a few words to the Chairman of the committee who have undertaken the erection of this edifice. I therefore address myself for a moment to Mr. Campbell and his excellent committee. I have to say that, according to your request, we have laid the foundation stone—or rather, in this case, the memorial stone—of this building according to our ancient rites and ceremonies. Allow me, in name of the brethren, to congratulate you so far upon the great success of this enterprise. It is unnecessary for me here at this time to say much, but allow me to state that we, the brethren and public of Glasgow at large, have long felt the great want of such a hall as we now see being erected around us. It is exceedingly gratifying to find we are at last to be provided with accommodation so much required. Many around me know that there is not a city in the whole of England, even of the second class, which cannot boast of a magnificent public hall. It is much to be regretted that we in Glasgow, who boast that our city is the second in the Empire, have not till this moment made any tangible effort to have such a hall. I have read in your reports that the subscribers to these halls number from 314 to 320. Now you all, and our friend the Lord Provost, may say, and perhaps with some truth, that we are a great city, a public-spirited city, and that we can boast of our 600,000 inhabitants. But it is surprising to the brethren, as it is to me somewhat a matter of surprise, that with such a large population we can find only 314 individuals who are public spirited enough to subscribe to such an institution as we have here. (Applause.) I cannot explain this phenomena. I leave you to do so; but I have no doubt many of the thousands in Glasgow who cannot afford to subscribe for such a purpose, and who, I hope, will enjoy many hours of recreation and instruction within these walls, are much indebted indeed, and have much reason to be thankful, to you and to these 314 gentlemen who have done so much for them in this way. Not long ago we heard a great deal as to the character of some of our music saloons—much indeed which was not to our credit, but rather to our shame. We should, however, remember that there are thousands in Glasgow who are wealthy enough to have their own drawing rooms and their own music and dancing at home. I am afraid that many of them forget that the great majority of the teeming thousands of this city have no such opportunities. I fear they do not keep in mind that there are thousands of young men who have, as absolute strangers and without friends, come to our city to fight the battle of life. Is it to be expected that these young men are to be without recreation and amusement, and if we do not provide both of a suitable kind, I do not know we can blame them for accepting such amusement as they can find. I am afraid that much of the blame must lie at the door of the wealthy citizens of Glasgow. I therefore trust that there will be found within these walls such recreation, amusement, and instruction as shall be beneficial, not only to our young men, but to all classes of the community. Allow me, in conclusion, to express the hope that before six months are over there shall be, instead of 300 subscribers, 3000 to these public halls.

Mr. James Campbell said:—Sir, on behalf of the shareholders and directors of the New Halls Company, I beg to tender to you, Colonel Neilson, as Provincial Grand Master, and the other members of the Masonic body present, our very best thanks for the interest and trouble you have taken in laying the memorial stone of these buildings. One cannot doubt but that the interesting ceremony, which has now been completed, gives a happy augury to the future of the undertaking. I have now the gratification of presenting to you, as Provincial Grand Master, this Masonic emblem as a remembrance of the occasion, to be preserved by you and yours. (Applause.) I have also very great pleasure in publicly expressing our very warm thanks to the Honourable the Lord Provost, the Magistrates, and members of the Town Council, for their attendance here to-day. To the Lord Provost our thanks are particularly due, for the warm interest he has taken in and the practical aid he has given to this undertaking ever since it originated. We have also to acknowledge gratefully the attendance of various gentlemen representing other public bodies in the city, who give us their countenance and encouragement. And now that these halls are fairly under way I trust that they will externally, under the guidance of our talented and painstaking architect, prove an ornament to our city, and be internally in all respects adequate for the various purposes for which they have been erected. We hope to have the buildings completed in time for a grand musical festival in the autumn of next year. (Applause.) I have only one word to say in conclusion, and that is that it will be quite necessary for us to have our whole authorised capital subscribed, so as to have the buildings finished free of debt. This matter I leave in the hands of my fellow-townsmen, with a strong conviction that they will enable us to do this, and so maintain the name for liberality which I am glad to say Glasgow possesses. (Applause.)

The Lord Provost—Mr. Campbell, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, My Brethren, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—I feel highly honoured to be called upon on this occasion, and to be supported by my fellow magistrates and many members of the Town Council, in celebrating such an event as the laying of the memorial stone of a building which, I trust, so inaugurated, will last long and be a great advantage to the community. You, Right Worshipful Grand Master, have stated truly, that amusement and recreation are necessary for the human kind, and your words, I have no doubt, will bear weight in the city, and that we shall see quite a rush of people becoming subscribers to these halls. (Applause.) I am sure that nothing is more gratifying to the citizens than to have a place of rational amusement, and on no occasion can the city be better served than to have the memorial stone of this building laid by you, Right Worshipful Grand Master, in the midst of such a concourse of fellow-citizens, with such an amount of honour and respect. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master, turning to the Freemasons, said,—I beg to offer my thanks to you, my brethren, for having come here to lay this memorial stone. You have heard the Lord Provost and Mr. Campbell express their gratification at our presence. I trust when such an occasion occurs again you will, as you have done to-day, keep such order as has done credit to the Craft. I again thank you for your attendance to-day. (Applause.)

This concluded the proceedings at the memorial stone. The Masonic emblem, which was a trowel of solid silver, with a beautifully-carved ivory handle, bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Col. Montgomerie Neilson, of Queenshill, Provincial Grand Master, on the occasion of his laying the memorial stone of the New Public Halls.—Glasgow, 22nd May, 1875."

The proceedings at the building having been concluded, the Provincial Grand Lodge returned to the Queen's Rooms, and in the Pillar Hall there—with Bro. William Bell, R.W.M., Lodge St. John, acting Senior Warden, and Bro. Geo. McDonald, R.W.M., Lodge Thistle and Rose, acting Junior Warden—was closed in regular form.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Building Committee entertained the Lord Provost, magistrates, and the members of the Craft to luncheon in the Queen's Rooms—Mr. James Campbell, of Tillichewan, presiding. The company present was, with the addition of Mr. Alex. Smollett, of Bonhill, the same as that whose names are previously mentioned.

The Chairman gave the toast of "The Queen," which was warmly responded to.

The Lord Provost proposed "Success to the Glasgow Public Halls Company." In proposing the toast his lordship said that Friday was a day of storm and rain, but on Saturday we had had gleams of sunshine, and the Masonic brethren had been able to lay the memorial stone of the Glasgow Public Halls with the sun shining upon the occasion. He thought they might accept it as an omen that, although the commencement of the construction of the halls had been somewhat involved in difficulty, the end of them would be a great success. Glasgow was sadly in want of public halls, particularly in the west end of the city; for, with the exception of the Queen's Rooms, which was good enough of its kind, they had no other. The east and the south of the city were comparatively well provided for, and in the centre they had the City Hall, which, though large and commodious, was by no means accessible to the residents in the west end. The area of the new hall will be one-third larger than the City Hall, and it will have retiring rooms and accessories, such as are not to be found in the neighbourhood of Candleriggs. He felt that the gentlemen who had set agoing this scheme, and had carried it on so far amidst great difficulties, were entitled to the thanks of the citizens of Glasgow for providing such a building as that now being erected, which would supply a long felt want.

Mr. James Campbell replied. He assured those present that the undertaking was a very serious one, and he took that opportunity of stating candidly to them that if it had not been for the zeal and energy of his co-directors the scheme would have broken down altogether. But they had worked with zeal and determination, and endeavoured to give to the city a good hall, and to get money to pay for it. Although they were not in a position to say that they had sufficient of public support to enable them to open the halls free of debt, he was yet in sanguine hopes that before the building was finished every farthing would be paid. He had every confidence in the generosity of his fellow-citizens, and felt sure that the halls would be opened free of debt.

Several other toasts followed.

A marriage was solemnized on Saturday last, at St. John's Church, Forest Hill, of a particularly interesting nature. The affianced couple, together with their friends, were evidently well known, for long before the carriages arrived to convey the parties to church, the villagers of Bell-green, Lower Sydenham, also the employees of the gas works, by whom they are highly esteemed, were out and lining the road, patiently waiting to obtain a glimpse of the bride and bridegroom, the latter being Bro. Charles Magnus Ohren, son of Bro. Magnus Ohren, of Lower Sydenham, and the former being Elizabeth, eldest daughter of James Watson, Esq., C.E., of Aberdalgie Lodge, Lower Sydenham. The bride was enthusiastically cheered as she entered her carriage, and the cheering renewed on the return from church. The ceremony was impressively conducted by the Rev. Dr. Boyd, in the presence of a large number of persons that had thronged the pews nearest the chancel. The bridesmaids were Miss Rose Ohren, Miss Kate Ohren, Miss Nellie Watson, and Miss Mary Macrostic, all of whom were richly clad, presenting a most charming spectacle. After the breakfast, which was prepared by Messrs. Sawyer, of the Crystal Palace, the happy couple left for their honeymoon, carrying with them heartfelt wishes for their happiness and enjoyment. The number of the wedding presents was very large, testifying to the prevailing regard and estimation towards the happy pair.

WELL DESERVED COMPLIMENT.—A benefit was recently given to Bro. Sam Hague, proprietor of St. James's Hall, Liverpool, who has been rendered houseless by the recent disastrous fire. The benefit, which was most successful, took place at the Royal Amphitheatre, under the patronage of His Worship the Mayor (Bro. Lieut. Col. Steble), Bros. John Pearson (High Sheriff of Lancashire), Capt. G. Turner, and others; and the attendance of brethren from various local lodges was very numerous, showing how deeply Bro. Hague's loss is sympathised with by the brethren. A second night was generously given up by Bro. Hague for the benefit of his company, who were also great sufferers by the fire.

THE LONDON TAVERN.—In announcing the approaching sale of this tavern (on June 2nd, unless an acceptable offer be previously made by private contract), Messrs. Gadsden, Ellis and Co. state that the building is of a very substantial character, and affords the following accommodation:—On the upper floor—which is approached by principal and secondary staircases, the former being lighted by means of a handsome glazed dome—the justly celebrated and admirably proportioned banqueting hall, extending along the entire front of the tavern, a very large reception room, communicating with the court room, serving lobby, and spacious landing. On the second floor—three front rooms, with set of lavatories, four back rooms, corridor, and landing. On the first floor—the pillar room—a lofty and beautifully decorated saloon, with ornamental coved and panelled ceiling and enriched cornice and entablature, supported by Corinthian columns and pilasters, and wall panelling; two other large and well-lighted rooms, used for public meetings and auction sales; a well lighted front office, spacious landing, and a large room at the rear, approached by an outer staircase.

SCOTSMEN IN LONDON.—Last evening a number of gentlemen met at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to Bro. Macrae Moir. The Marquis of Huntly presided, and among those present were several representative Scotsmen resident in the metropolis. In opening the proceedings the chairman said that the testimonial was started quite spontaneously in recognition of Mr. Moir's efforts on behalf of his distressed countrymen. In a brief space of time the subscriptions had amounted to about £700, and the movement was cordially supported by Scotsmen of every political creed, and in every part of the country. The chairman subsequently presented the purse to Bro. Moir, with whom he warmly shook hands. In the course of his reply the recipient said that he took the testimonial as an incitement to do more in the future than he had accomplished in the past. Bro. Dr. Erasmus Wilson proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which, seconded by Mr. Lyell, was cordially endorsed by the company. The names appended to the list of subscribers were printed on an illuminated scroll. They included the chairman, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Duke of Buccleuch, the Duke of Montrose, the Duke of Richmond, Sir Richard Wallace, Sir W. Fergusson, and Professor Blackie, together with personal friends of Bro. Moir. There were altogether something like 236 subscribers.

BRO. SIR JOHN BENNETT AND THE AGRICULTURAL LABOURERS.—A mass meeting of agricultural labourers was held on Ham-hill on Monday afternoon. Sir John Bennett occupied the chair, and there were several thousand persons present. Mr. G. Mitchell moved a petition to Parliament praying that an investigation may be made as to the condition of the public charities. Mr. G. Potter moved a resolution in favour of the extension of the franchise, and Mr. Bradlaugh supported it. Other resolutions, asking the compulsory formation of school boards and the restoration of public lands to the poor, were also passed.

ROYAL LONDON MILITIA.—This regiment will commence its annual training, under Colonel-Commandant Bro. Sir William Anderson Rose, on Monday, the 31st instant. The recruits have been at drill for some time past, so as to enable them to join the ranks when the main body assembles for 27 days' exercise, which takes place this year at the artillery ground abutting on the militia barracks in the City-road.

THE summer excursion of the Cripplegate Pension Society has been arranged to take place at Rosherville Gardens on June 23rd. Bro. Alderman Knight is to be the chairman on this occasion.

"The Board of General Purposes have to report as follows:—

"It appeared from the return of its members made to the Grand Secretary by a Provincial Lodge, that the names of initiates were withheld from such return. This being in contravention of the Constitutions (Art. 14, page 66), the attention of the lodge was called to the circumstance, and an explanation requested, and it was stated in reply (and upon investigation the board have every reason to be satisfied with the bona fides of the statement), that the belief had always prevailed in the lodge that members ought not to be returned until raised to the Third Degree. The Board have received the strongest expressions of regret that such a mistake should have occurred, and have admonished the lodge in respect of it.

"It is thought right to report the matter to Grand Lodge, as a warning to other lodges in case a similar misapprehension prevails elsewhere.

(Signed) "JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

"Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.

"18th May, 1875."

At the meeting of the Board held on Tuesday, the 18th instant, after the ordinary business had been disposed of, it was unanimously resolved, "That the thanks of the Board be given to the President, Bro. John B. Monckton, for the urbanity and unvarying courtesy which he has displayed, and the very able and satisfactory way in which he has conducted the business of the Board during the past eventful year."

(Signed) PETER D. L. LONG, Vice-President.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 14th day of May instant, shewing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3883 17s. 8d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

APPEAL.

Appeal of a brother of the Bulwer Lodge, No. 891, Constantinople, against the ruling of the Deputy District Grand Master, relative to the resignation and subsequent election of Bro. Taylor as Master of the lodge, and also against his (the appellant's) suspension from his Masonic privileges.

N.B.—The papers relating to this appeal will be in the Grand Secretary's Office till the meeting of Grand Lodge, and open for the inspection of the brethren during office hours.

PROPOSED MOTIONS.

1.—By Brother J. H. Wynne, No. 101 and 554:—That this Grand Lodge recommend from the funds of Grand Lodge that five pounds be given to each unsuccessful candidate at the election for annuitants of old men and women, belonging to the Craft of Freemasons, held on the 21st May, 1875.

2.—By Brother Benjamin Head, P.G.D.:—That the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes. 3.—Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.M. Grand Stewards' Lodge, on confirmation of minutes, will move—That the two hundred pounds awarded by the Board of Benevolence, and confirmed by Grand Lodge in March last, to a brother, be placed in the hands of three brethren, in trust, for the benefit of the said brother.

We notice that Messrs. Felton and Sons, the Proprietors of the Spécialité Sherry, have removed to more extensive premises, No. 27, Albemarle-street, facing the Royal Institution.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of the subscribers of this Institution met on Thursday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Major John Creaton, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. Browse, Benj. Head, John Symonds, Joshua Nunn, Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, John A. Rucker, W. Paas, C. F. Hogard, Robert B. Webster, Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, Treasurer of the Institution, S. L. Tomkins, Past Grand Deacon, Geo. Kenning, E. H. Thielley, W. F. C. Moutrie, A. D. Loewenstark, E. Harris, H. Massey (Freemason); H. M. Levy, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, A. H. Tattershall, A. H. Draper, Col. Peters, H. Phythian, Thomas Cubitt, W. H. Hemsworth, W. H. Swallow, A. A. Pendlebury, H. G. Buss, F. Binckes, Raynham W. Stewart, J. T. Moss, R. Ramsay, H. A. Dubois, Charles Hammetton, E. Barron, Major Finney, Col. Burdett, and Robt. Wentworth Little, Sec. The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed, and the minutes of the House Committee, which were read for information, conveyed the intelligence that on the election of a new head governess of the Girls' School, Miss Moss, the second governess, had been chosen in place of Miss Davis, who resigns at Midsummer. A gift of one hundred guineas was voted by the House Committee to Miss Davis for the faithful discharge of her duties during her long occupancy of the office of Head Governess, and the gift was recommended to the next Quarterly Court. (Cheers). The election of Miss Moss, as Head Governess, was confirmed. The Surgeon of the Institution, Bro. Howell, having declined to receive his fees, the thanks of the House Committee were voted to him with a recommendation that the rank of Vice-President of the Institution should be conferred upon him.

The brethren then proceeded with the election of members of the House Committee, the election being conducted under the new rule, scrutineers of votes being appointed, and the poll being kept open till five o'clock, Bros. Thielley, Webster, and Moutrie were chosen scrutineers.

While this was proceeding the petitions were read, and six children were placed on the list for next election in October.

Bro. F. Binckes said: That with respect to the recommendation to the Quarterly Court concerning Miss Davis, he did not wish for a single moment to interfere with the Committee of Management, though he wished to say something on the subject. When a change was made in the head mistressship of the Girls' School, now many years ago, he, with Bro. Symonds and Bro. Lyall, were appointed to enquire into the best course of conducting the school, and they gave elaborate reports, when they were fortunate enough to find the lady to preside over the institution, who had since conducted it so admirably. They were very sorry now to lose the services of that admirable lady, and he meant to ask whether, though the recommendation of a gift to her had been made by the committee, some testimonial should not be added to it in the shape of an emblazoned vote on a neat piece of vellum, framed and glazed, expressing, not in fulsome language, but in a simple concise statement of why the testimonial was presented and embodying the appreciation which the committee, and, indeed, all friends of the institution, entertained of Miss Davis's services. Remembering as vividly and so well as he did all the circumstances which occurred when that lady was elected, he could not allow this opportunity to pass without asking to be allowed to add what he had proposed to the notice of motion already given for the Quarterly Court.

The Chairman said he could see no objection at all to Bro. Binckes making the above mentioned addition to the notice of motion, and every one would concur in it. He then read from the minutes:—"Notice for the Quarterly General Court—Gratuity £105 to Miss Davis."

Bro. Binckes said he would then add the words, "accompanied by a presentation of a testimonial on vellum and framed, embodying the sense of the appreciation of the committee of the services rendered by Miss Davis." (Hear, hear).

At five o'clock the voting papers for members of the House Committee were read out by the Chairman, when the following were found to have been elected, with the number of votes set against their names:

Bro. Thomas W. White	48
" Joshua Nunn	47
" Griffiths Smith	46
" J. A. Rucker	45

Chancellor, Henry C. Ley-ander, H. M. Levy, John G. Marsh, Joshua Nunn, William Paas, William Roebuck, John Symonds, and Robert B. Webster, remain the Audit Committee for the year.

Votes of thanks to the Chairman and Scrutineers closed the proceedings.

AMERICAN NOTES.

The centennial of the battle of Bunker Hill will be celebrated in Boston, on June 17th next, with the greatest enthusiasm. The Masonic Fraternity has been invited to participate in the celebration, through a communication addressed to the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

Mozart Lodge, No. 436, of Philadelphia, was full of "work" at its recent stated meeting, last when we looked in upon the brethren for a little while. All the degrees were conferred, and there were also several brethren who desired to sit for a brief space in the chair of King Solomon. "Mozart" was never more prosperous than just now.

THE CRAFT IN LOUISIANA.—Grand Master Girard reports that throughout the entire jurisdiction of Louisiana, notwithstanding the calamities that have befallen many brethren, and the general prostration of business, our beloved Fraternity is in a prosperous condition. Although there has not been as much work done as in other years, it is even in a much better condition than for years past. 'Tis true the numbers may have been lessened but that loss has been a real gain. A number of drones only have been stricken from the hives, a number of loiterers have been taught that they could no longer eat their bread in idleness and be welcome. A new vigor has been thereby instilled in the body of Masonry in Louisiana, and much less of its strength will be wasted on bad material that has now become useless rubbish. From the reports of the Committee of Work, through R. W. Bro. J. C. Gordy, who visited every part of the State, and of D.D.G.M.'s, tidings come corroborative of this statement, and commendatory of the experiment in District Lodge of Instruction.

In 1801 a golden urn containing a lock of Washington's hair, was presented to Grand Master Dunn, of Massachusetts, at his installation; and at every succeeding installation since it has been confided to the care and custody of the incoming Grand Master, with solemn and imperative injunctions to carefully preserve it, and at the expiration of his term of office, to transmit it to his successor, with the like charge. In December last, the urn was delivered to Grand Master Everett.

Mount Lebanon Lodge, Boston, has contributed to its Grand Lodge a portrait of Past Grand Master Bro. Simon W. Robinson, who sat in the Grand East in 1846-7-8, and died in 1864. It was painted by Bro. J. Harvey Young, of Joseph Warren Lodge, Boston.

St. John's Day, December 27th, was celebrated in 1732 by the brethren of the first lodge in Boston, "with that beauty and harmony of parts so peculiar to the Ancient and Honourable Craft,"—so the ancient minutes express it.

The Right Rev. Bro. Edward Bass, D.D., the first Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts, officiated as Grand Chaplain in 1768, at the institution of Bro. John Rowe, as Provincial Grand Master of New England.

The New England Freemason, for March, contains a very fine steel-engraved portrait of its able editor, Bro. Sereno D. Nickerson, Past Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts; also a number of interesting and valuable Masonic articles.

PROPOSED SECOND ENGLISH VOLUNTEER VISIT TO FRANCE.—A meeting of Volunteers took place on Saturday at the studio of Captain Mercier, for the purpose of receiving and considering an invitation from the Société Havreuse de Tir to English marksmen in the volunteer service to participate in the shooting competition for prizes to be offered by the society at the latter end of July. Lieutenant-Colonel E. T. Gourley, M.P., presided. After some discussion it was resolved that, subject to a sufficient number of volunteers entering their names by the 6th June, the invitation shall be accepted; that a committee should be appointed to carry out all necessary arrangements; and that in the event of a sufficient number of names being entered by the time specified to take part in the visit, the committee shall be empowered to make application to the Secretary of State for War for a similar sanction to that given last year for the visit of the volunteers to France to be made. It was further resolved that the entrance fee should be the same as last year, 12s. 6d.; that the general arrangements of the previous visit having proved so successful, they be followed as nearly as possible, and that the number of entries to be accepted should be limited to 300. Lieutenant Chaffey, of the 3rd London Rifles, having consented to act as honorary secretary pro tem, it was resolved that all applications for entry should be addressed to him, care of Captain Mercier, 12, Albert-terrace, Hyde-park. The meeting adjourned till Saturday, the 6th proximo.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—No one should treat the present changes in the weather with indifference, for they undoubtedly have a great effect upon the human body. It is necessary for every one to be cautious and watchful. Cautious as regards clothing and exposure, and watchfulness as regards the effect on the body. The skin, nervous system, and breathing organs often suffer severely, as is evidenced by Erysipelas, Rheumatism, Colds, Sore Throats, &c. When, therefore, symptoms of any of the above diseases show themselves, they should be at once attended to. The Ointment should be rubbed into the parts affected, and the Pills taken according to the printed directions; this treatment soon eradicates the disease and restores the general health.—AUNT.

MASONIC TIDINGS.—A little too personal.

We have received a communication "hailing" from Scotland so wild and so virulent, written, moreover, in a scrawl that it is impossible to decipher, that we naturally decline to publish it. The writer, in our opinion, ought to be looked after by his friends. Such of his statements as we can read are either the opinions of a vulgar non-Mason, or a confirmed lunatic.

Letters from H. Newbolt, D. Dist. G.M. Turkey; R. Rich; H. H.; Beta; Funeral of Bro. G. Stuttard; Laying Foundation Stone of St. Luke's Church, Dudley; Bro. Hughan's review of Mr. Heckethorn; Reports of Lodges 177, 720, E.C.; 219, 541, S.C.; and many other English and Scotch Lodges unavoidably stand over.

The great pressure of matter week by week must be our plea for the forbearance of our brethren. We are reluctantly compelled this week to keep back several most interesting reports and communications, which will appear duly next week.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1875.

THE POPE AND THE FREEMASONS.

Most of our brethren will have read with pain, not perhaps unmingled with some little amusement, the Papal letter to Bishop Dupanloup, which appeared in our last impression. And though it be true that much of the force and most of the incriminations of the venerable Pontiff fall short, as far as we are concerned in England, yet, as we do uphold liberty of conscience, free worship, and the public press, we must, to a certain extent, feel that the censure, such as it is, is also intended for us. It is probable, indeed, that other Freemasons than our English brotherhood are the persons primarily intended; but still, as we are not afraid to avow our principles before all men, we must be also prepared to-day, if we properly can, to cast in our lot with our inculcated brethren elsewhere. But we think it right to observe that we English Freemasons have no such watchwords as "liberty, equality, and fraternity." We entirely disclaim them as our watchwords for many good reasons, though as Freemasons we believe in and practise all three. Our only watchwords are brotherly love, relief and truth, loyalty and charity. If then we are not clearly obnoxious to many of the angry remarks of the Venerable Pontiff, we yet feel bound to observe that if we are to be condemned in common with other Freemasons because we uphold a free conscience, full toleration, and the liberty of the Press, as English citizens, and under our wise, constitution we are pledged manifestly as patriots to avow and conserve one and all. Nothing, we make bold to add, will make Englishmen ever swerve from these great first principles, alike of English law and English belief. We deeply regret to see the Roman Catholic authorities, and the chief of them especially, running a-muck literally against everything like constitutional freedom and religious toleration. It is a most mournful sign of the times, and seems to point to much of trial and of discord in the future for nations and for religious communities. But the language of this letter to Bishop Dupanloup, angry and unwise as it is, is most mild when compared with the utterances of another "brief" of Pope Pius the IX., which we give in another page, and which we have translated from the Monde Maçonnique for May. It seems that there is a society in France called the Reparative Society towards the Holy Trinity, which is under the patronage of St. Michael, for the purpose of praying to God for the extinction of all social societies, and the conversion of their members. The editor of the Monde Maçonnique calls it "ce curieux document," we would rather term it a sad document. Our good Bro. Caubet, the editor of the Monde Maçonnique, feels it so much that he adds, "sans le faire suivre d'aucune réflexion." Indeed, what could he say? What can any one say? We think that when our readers have perused it they will agree with us that it is positively a parody on all that is true, loving, or religious. Is it not most melancholy to realize that here is the personally benevolent Pontiff in his "green old age," the spiritual head of the largest Christian denomination in the world, denouncing all Freemasons, without any exception, as children of Satan, and declaring that in their lodges they heap up insults and blasphemies against the Most High, that they "break the tie which constitutes society," and that "many are the evils which they cause alike to religion and to civil society." We say nothing here of the wild assertions and the exaggerated and excited declaration of this mournful pastoral, as perhaps Bro. Caubet is right, the "least said is soonest mended." But we feel bound to subjoin one remark. We wonder that the authorities of the Church of Rome do not see that all their stage tricks, all this claptrap of unreasoning tremor, all this "anomia" of an untenable spiritual power, are one and all a heavy blow and great discouragement to true religion. It is but fair to bear in mind that the Church of Rome is not single in this revived inquisitorial persecution, as some Protestant bodies use language equally untrue, and equally insulting in respect of our peaceful fraternity, and seem rather to indicate a wish to revive burning and auto da fes, pains and penalties, and spiritual persecutions. It is, we venture to think and to say, most humiliating to all who wish well to religion and recognise gladly the effects of denominational zeal in the unceasing struggles of good and evil, to have religion itself, and the denominational unit, so to say, thus rendered a laughing stock to many, and a stumbling block to more. The Church of Rome, true to her malign feelings, her want of liberality and toleration, oblivious of the great power it does wield and might wield for the moral regeneration and religious happiness of mankind, is now condescending to make use of a low sensationalism, and is now deluging the contemporary literature of this and other lands with all the vituperation of an utterly harmless and benevolent Order, which a fertile and unscrupulous vocabulary can suggest. It is indeed a most sorry sight for men and angels, and most antagonistic to every true theory, whether of benevolence, or sympathy, of toleration, or of charity.

OUR BRETHREN IN SCOTLAND.

It seems from some reports that we published last week from Scotland, that the views we ventured to express respecting the utterly unbefitting and uncalled for "deliverance" of the Scottish Freemasons' Magazine "anent" our English Order and our Royal Grand Master are fully shared in and approved of, as we felt sure they would be, by our worthy and warm-hearted brethren in Scotland. We felt persuaded from the first that such perverse and ill-regulated opinions in no sense whatever could be supposed to represent the real sentiments of Scottish Freemasons, and we rejoice to think and to know that all we ventured to say on so serious a subject has been fully endorsed by many able and excellent brethren "across the border." It would have been very strange indeed had it been otherwise. Why, because we English Freemasons had been so fortunate, in a time of great anxiety and depression, as to have obtained the kindly personal presence amongst us of our Royal Grand Master, and that we greatly rejoiced thereat—that, therefore, we were to be blamed, we could not and cannot understand. Why, again, because we were naturally exultant at such a solution of passing difficulties, at such an answer to the heated complaints of the Ultramontane Press, at such a prospect of future peaceful and wise administration, and because we said so, that we were to be "called over the coals" for our loyal exultation and gratification, we did not realise then, and we do not profess to realise now. No doubt the writer had some great compelling motive which induced him thus, "more" John Knox, in his own opinion, to hold forth and to "testify." We did not see it in England. We don't see it yet, and being alike independent in mind and free spoken in utterance, we thought it better at once to say what we sincerely felt, at so unreasonable, so unwise, so unmasonic a tirade! And we are therefore glad to find that our motives and our words are properly appreciated by our equally independent and outspoken brethren in Scotland. We hope that our contemporary will take warning, improve his style, and amend his vocabulary. Luckily, like all similar foolish and hasty attacks on Freemasonry just now, that utterly baseless charge against English Freemasons (which ought never to have been made), and those most uncalled-for remarks about an exalted personage, can have no effect on any one. Marked by bad taste, vulgar both in conception and expression, they are at once condemned by the good sense and simple loyalty, as well of Scottish as of English Craftsmen. We are accustomed, indeed, to Jesuit assailants and Ultramontane extravagances; we are not unprepared for an episcopal anathema or a Papal excommunication. We are resigned to the watery outpourings of deeply diving Baptists; to Habakkuk Mucklewrath's Presbyterian objurgations and censures; nay, to the æsthetic performances of a sucking Ritualist. But to receive such cruel aspersions from an old brother Mason, a regular old stager in the mystic circle, a fraternal confrere in the literary arena, is indeed too much. We say, as the great Roman once said, with a sigh of Masonic grief, "Et tu Brute."

MR. HECKETHORN'S OPINION OF FREEMASONS AND FREEMASONRY.

By a review of Mr. Heckethorn's History of Secret Societies of all ages and countries (a most ambitious title), which appeared in our last impression, our brethren will see that among other of his characteristics he has made another very violent attack on our Order. It seems as if there was a "mot d'ordre" just now to continue these futile incriminations of Freemasonry everywhere, and no one can fail to be struck with the peculiar tone running through Mr. Heckethorn's work, as if he was writing from a brief, and had to conduct his argument in one and one only direction, and to one and only one end! We pass over many of his allegations, which do not deserve notice at our hands, and give a specimen of his inflated style and veracious statements for the amusement, and information, and edification of our brethren.

Listen attentively, all ye sturdy and loyal Freemasons, to Mr. Heckethorn's happy representation of your feelings, your motives, your proceedings as attached members of the Craft. Page 389, vol. I. "Selfishness, an eye to business, vanity, frivolity, gluttony, and a love of mystery mongering, concealed under the pretence of brotherly love and a longing for instruction, these are the motives which lead men into the lodge." Is this statement true? We reply with the poet, and with a young lady, "emphatically no." As far as our experience of our Order goes, and it is somewhat extended now, ranging over many lustra, we do not hesitate to affirm, that no more unfounded assertion ever was made by even the most ignorant of cowans. Has Mr. Heckethorn ever heard of the Boys' and the Girls' School, or the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution? Does he know anything of the large sums of money we annually grant in charitable aid to the decayed, or aged, or suffering of our Order? We hope not, and surely in his case, we may all say with much unction, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'twere folly to be wise." Passing over this libel on our kindly and friendly brotherhood, let us take another equally startling passage: "The facility and frequency with which worthless characters are received into the Order, the manner in which all its statutes are disregarded, the dislike which any brother who insists on reform is looked on by the rest, the introduction of many spurious rites, the deceptiveness of the rites themselves . . . the puerility of the symbolism . . . all these too plainly shew that the lodge has banished Freemasonry." It may be true that Mr. Heckethorn has hit a blot with respect to the too easy admission of members; but that known worthless characters are freely admitted into Freemasonry in England we utterly deny. As for the rest of the complaints they are simply chimeras. In no Order are the statutes, &c., regarded as with us, and no wise or needful reform is ever long resisted. But many proposals are called reform, which are, in fact, only revolution, and therefore, we in England knowing full well "that the proof of the pudding is best known by its eating," and seeing how well the Masonic machine is working, as practical men we do not encourage excited proposals for unmeaning and unnecessary changes. It is very curious that Mr. Heckethorn will mix up English and Foreign Freemasonry, as if whatever was done abroad we do at home in our quiet land. Much that abroad is called Masonry we utterly repudiate in England, and we are quite one with Mr. Heckethorn in condemnation of many of the ridiculous proceedings which he mentions, such as the most absurd citation of Napoleon III., of the Emperor of Germany, of the Pope of Rome, and of Marshal Prim, before Masonic tribunals. All such proceedings are utterly opposed, in our opinion, to the peaceful and loyal character of true Freemasonry. Mr. Heckethorn adds, "like monasticism and chivalry, it (Freemasonry) is no longer wanted." We entirely disagree with Mr. Heckethorn, in such a doctrine. Whatever may be the case as regards chivalry and monasticism, Freemasonry has, as we believe, outlived them both, and has still a great future before it, as its mission seems to us to be especially marked out for it in these cantankerous days, by its gentle message of tolerating forbearance, and its kindly deeds of active benevolence.

THE FREIMAURER ZEITUNG.

Our contemporary, as we say, is "at it again." Not content with having attacked us, in the last number we have seen, it turns its attention to the Masonic Magazine, and declares that its utterances are equally pharasaical with our own, and that the views which have been expressed about the loyalty of English Freemasons, both in the Freemason and the Magazine, are most un-masonic. Luckily for us, such censure affects us very slightly indeed. We know that in what we say we express the feelings of an overwhelming majority of our English brotherhood, and beyond that point we do not seek to go, and we do not care to go. The Freimaurer Zeitung asserts that in such remarks as we have made, whether in the Freemason or in the Masonic

Magazine, against political discussions in lodges, that we oppose their best interests in Austria and elsewhere, and side with their opponents. We, "au contraire," claim that we are their best friends, and warn them in plain and straightforward language, of what we deem to be the cause of government objection and also interference in many countries, and advise them to become, like us, a purely unpolitical body, a benevolent brotherhood, a religious but tolerant sodality, and then they need not fear that any government will concern itself about either their meetings or their maxims. But the Freimaurer Zeitung does not like the advice. Perhaps not, but that does not prove that the advice is not good, and that the warning is not needful. Just the reverse. The child, nay, for that, the man, does not always like the doctor's prescription; the advice seeker does not always swallow down at once the somewhat unpalatable utterance of the advice giver, probably the true friend. Hence the Freimaurer Zeitung and Bro. C. Von Gagern must be good enough to believe that we say what we mean, and mean what we say. All that we have put forward has been in the truest spirit of fraternal goodwill and sincere good wishes for the Austrian Freemasons; but having some little experience of the matter, knowing something alike of the prosperity and the drawbacks of Freemasonry, especially in foreign lands, we have thought it well, as brother Freemasons, to tender our honest advice, which, whether liked or disliked, accepted or rejected, was based on a close and careful study of our own Masonic annals, and was animated by a firm persuasion of the intrinsic excellences of Masonry when worked on true principles, and in accordance with its own great and sacred lore.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—E.O.]

THE GUILD THEORY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I read Bro. Buchan's letter with much interest, but do not agree with him, as he knows. We most fraternally disagree. And so to-day as the question has cropped up again, I want to ask my good brother one or two questions, as the discussion of the Guild Theory will, I think, do good, if conducted on truly Masonic principles.

Has it ever struck him, in his able efforts to maintain his favourite theory, he falls into the difficulty suggested by the old French proverb, "qui prouve trop, prouve rien."

That Freemasonry existed before 1717 we have the most undoubted proofs. We have the evidence of Ashmole in 1646, and again in 1682. We have about the same time the evidence of Dr. Plot, who was a non-mason, and not very friendly to the Order. We have Robert Padgett, Clerk to the Society of Freemasons 1685; we have a lodge at York in 1693; and we have the minute book of the Lodge of Alnwick in 1702. We also read of the Freemasons as an organized body, with signs, &c., mentioned in the "Tatler" in 1709, and which quotation is verified in the old Freemasons' Magazine for 1863, vol. IX, new series, page 3. I say nothing of the Scotch lodges, as I do not wish to poach on Bro. W. J. Hughan's manor, but certainly I know that in his mind, as in mine, the evidence is irrefragable that before 1717, speculative Masonry existed both in England and in Scotland, and that we, the revived Grand Lodge of 1797, are the continuation of the operative guilds.

I would ask Bro. Buchan another question. If he denies the connexion between the operative Grand assembly and the speculative Grand Lodge, where did the 1717 Freemasonry come from?

If it was entirely distinct from the ceremonies and ritual, and teaching of the operative guilds, who concocted it? When they met in 1716, or 1717, how did they meet? As operatives or speculative, or neither, or both?

Does Bro. Buchan mean to contend that our speculative system took its rise 1717?—that it was entirely distinct from the operative guilds and the quasi speculative lodges in Scotland?

Who then were the Freemasons at Warrington who received Ashmole? Who were the Freemasons who met in Basinghall-street in 1682? What was the Worshipful Society of Freemasons of which Robert Padgett was "Clerk" in 1685? Who were the Freemasons at York in 1693? Who were the Freemasons in Staffordshire? It is quite clear that the Masons' Company and the Society of Freemasons were two distinct bodies, and, therefore, we are brought back to this, that towards the end of the 17th century a society of Freemasons existed in this country, which we have every reason to believe is certainly identical with our present speculative Order. I might adduce many other "points" and "illustrations" but I forbear, as these are enough for my present purpose, the more so as I am quite sure that their important bearing and precise value will be at once seen by so able and a correct brother as W. P. Buchan. He is it seems to me, on two horns of a dilemma—if he says before 1717, I find no traces of speculative Freemasonry, who then invented it all in 1717? If he says he does, and admits the slightest identity between our Freemasonry and the Freemasonry in vogue before 1717, he practically adopts the guild theory.

As I have often said before, I am only writing in the cause of masonic truth, but at present I see no other possible ground by which you can historically account for the preservation and continuation of the Masonic lodge, and of the Masonic system, except in the guild theory.

Yours fraternally,

A MASONIC STUDENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

I am more convinced than ever of the reasonableness of what is termed the "Guild Theory," in explanation of the origin of Freemasonry, and so I am working with Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, in unearthing all documents bearing in any way on Freemasonry, which are to be found in old lodge chests and in muniment rooms, which have been considered heretofore of no account in our researches.

The last few years speak of the success which has crowned our efforts, and I purpose shortly to enumerate the MSS. known by, or familiar to the Craft, a dozen years ago, and those accessible to the fraternity of to-day.

I am quite convinced that Freemasonry, as a secret institution, operative and speculative, sometimes both, and at other times one only of these two departments, existed centuries before the Grand Lodge of England was constituted in 1717, which was the first Grand Lodge ever formed, and at which meeting the first Grand Master ever elected was installed; but I am not prepared to admit that our three degrees, including the Royal Arch, are so ancient. I am fully prepared to defend my position, but at present I prefer letting my friend Bro. Buchan rest, as he is engaged in preparing a scientific work of considerable usefulness to those in his line of business, and which we believe has already taken exceedingly well in the United States, where genuine information and authentic facts are appreciated. When he is ready I am willing to say a few words if needs be.

LORD CARNARVON'S SPEECH.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have carefully perused your leader at page 202, under the above heading, and I beg to thank you for the truly Masonic spirit in which it is written, at the same time you must excuse me for still standing by my little "vanity." No good but harm would ensue by me throwing it up before being properly satisfied that it was wrong. A good many brethren now consider that there is something in the 1717 theory, and although it may require a little touching up here and there, yet upon the whole it is not far off the mark.

I see you claim Lord Carnarvon as a supporter of the "guild theory," but I am not sure that that is exactly correct, for, quite possibly, for all we as yet know, his lordship may hold by or believe in the Solomonic theory! I see you also claim Bro. Hughan as an upholder of the guild theory, but I can scarcely admit that either, without a little explanation, for in our views upon the history of Freemasonry, Bro. Hughan and I sail side by side for at least nineteen-twentieths of the way. There is a good deal of difference between Bro. Woodford and myself upon the history of Freemasonry, but between the published statements of Bros. W. J. Hughan and D. Murray Lyon and myself I find very little; and to remove that little what is wanted is the publication of such records as those of the Masons' Company of London, not forgetting also the publication of the records of a number of the companies, crafts, and guilds. Were these all published I believe they would support the 1717 theory; you think otherwise, very good, but time and the records decide betwixt us. I think that is but fair seeing that at page 202 you, yourself, state that we are as yet only "upon the threshold of enquiry and verification."

Before closing this letter I would beg leave of you to allow me to state what my 1717 theory is. I ask this because I believe that the Freemason has of late had many additions to its readers, and as many of these will be young Masons, they will scarcely understand what is meant without a little explanation.

The 1717 theory draws a broad line of demarcation between speculative and operative Masonry, and asserts that the mediæval and earlier guilds were not the ancestors of the Grand Lodge of A.D. 1717. It also affirms that the Masons of the middle ages neither knew aught of nor practised our system of Freemasonry. It further asserts that our system of three degrees was altogether unknown to the Craftsmen of the middle ages, said degrees being the product of the brains of Desaguliers, Anderson, and their confreres, in or about A.D. 1717. It also asserts the old Masonic guilds had no private mystical teaching, or none which was not at any rate common to other trades and "mysteries," and that the guilds were merely trading and operative bodies and friendly societies. And, in conclusion, it affirms that instead of the transactions of A.D. 1717 being the "revival" of speculative Freemasonry, they were its foundation; and instead of the four old London lodges either knowing or practising our system of Freemasonry before A.D. 1717 they were simply made use of in starting it.

Supposing the 1717 theory to be wrong in whole or in part, we have the Ashmole theory (as enunciated e.g. in Chambers, Encyclopedia, ed. 1875) to fall back upon before we come to the guild theory.

Let, however, the 1717 theory receive its quietus first.

I am, Yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the representative Steward this year to the Girls' School festival from the Province of South Wales, Eastern Division, I desire to record my protest against the plan adopted by the Secretary, Bro. Little, of "lumping together," in one amount, the contributions from distinctly separate provinces.

I ask the favour of your kind permission to do this through the medium of your valuable paper.

My Steward's list of contributions from members and lodges of my province amounted to £160, and not unnaturally I looked to find the amount duly chronicled in your columns as usual, instead of which I find South Wales bracketed with Monmouthshire, a province with which we have no more to do than with Gloucestershire, Bristol, Hereford, or Somerset, indeed, far less.

The contributions to the Masonic Charities from this province since the establishment in it of the system of Steward representation by our Dep. Prov. G.M., have exceeded £2500, but if we had only subscribed £10 we should have equally been entitled to ask to have this sum recorded.

Having no wish to lessen the credit fairly due to any other province by being associated with it, the record is calculated in the present case to give a wrong impression.

You have yourself been misled, as in your leading article you give the whole credit to Monmouthshire, and none to South Wales.

Separate records are given of amounts received from the London lodges; no two lodges are linked together, each getting credit for its own exertions and liberality. A fortiori separate records should be given of the subscriptions from separate provinces.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully,

SAMUEL BROWNING POWER,

P. Prov. G. Registrar, South Wales, Eastern Division.

BALLOT FOR GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to announce in the Freemason that I am about to endeavour to follow the example set by Bro. Constable, and carry out a ballot in aid of the Girls' School Festival, 1876. The only difference between the two being that the present one will be confined to the Province of East Lancashire.

Yours fraternally,

C. M. STUART, S.W. 934.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly answer the following question:—I am a member of the Scotch and Irish Constitutions, but not of the E.C. I am also a life member of the Boys' Benevolent Institution, E.C. What I want to know is whether in the event of either of my offspring requiring at some future time the benefit of this institution, are they entitled? W.D. 489, S.C.

[We think not, as W.D. is not an English Mason, but have called Bro. Binckes attention to the question, who will no doubt efficiently answer it.—Ed.]

MARK MASTER MASONS' LODGES IN UNITED STATES LAST CENTURY.

I enclose an interesting account of a Mark Master Masons' lodge of last century, which was contained in the New York Dispatch for 31st January, 1875. The following first appeared in that paper, and on seeing it I at once communicated with my dear friend and brother, Charles Eugene Meyer, of Philadelphia (P.G.H.P. of Pennsylvania), for the promised notice. Doubtless, M.W. Bro. Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., and R.W. Bro. F. Binckes, G. Sec., will be pleased to read the particulars, and so will many others.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

The minutes of Holland Mark Lodge, formerly held in this city, supposed for many years to have been lost or destroyed, have recently come to light, and we are indebted to Bro. Edward Bill for an examination of them.

"But few of the brethren of the present day have a very distinct idea of the earlier methods of Masonry in this country. Doubtless, if asked, a majority would answer, without hesitation, that its organisation had always been the same as at present. This, however, is not the case, as will be seen by the following: April 8th, 1788, a number of brethren, members of Holland Lodge, No. 8, in this city, were convened for the purpose of, as the record phrases it, founding a Mark Degree in connection with that lodge, and a Mark Lodge was accordingly opened under the symbolic warrant, and a number of brethren received the degree of Mark Master. In 1789, six members of Steuben Lodge applied for, and received the degree. In 1791, the lodge issued a dispensation to a number of brethren from Connecticut to empower them to form and hold a Mark Lodge in that State. In this year, also, the lodge began conferring the Chair Degree on Masters elect and other officers. The warrant above referred to bore the name of Hiram Mark Lodge, located at Newtown, Fairfield county, Connecticut. September 22, 1791, a dispensation was issued to form a Mark Lodge in the Dutch West Indies.

The lodge, in 1815, ceased to act under the authority of its Grand Lodge Warrant, and took out a charter from the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the State, which charter was numbered 79.

"Among the distinguished members of this Mark Lodge was John Pintard, fourth Master of Holland Lodge, and a well-known citizen, John Jacob Astor, De Witt Clinton, Peter R. Maverick, Robert R. Livingston, Chancellor of the State, and associated with Robert Fulton in his steamboat enterprises, Wm. Malcolm, Cadwallader D. Colden, Samuel Jones, jun., a lawyer and judge, John Wells, Nathaniel Sandford, David Longworth, of Directory fame, Ebenezer Irving, Gen. H. G. Stevens, of the Revolutionary Army, Stephen Price, of the Park Theatre, his brother, William and John Blake, Fitz Greene Halleck, and others, the mere mention of whose names stirs the blood of every Knickerbocker.

"It will be noticed that this Mark Lodge began its labours and did much of its work under authority of a Blue Lodge warrant, and more than this, assumed authority to create similar bodies in other States, from which may be deduced at least one fact, namely: that Masonry was much less governed then than now.

"The warrant of Holland Mark Lodge, in common with several others existing in the State, was ultimately surrendered to the Grand Chapter, and the degree conferred by them reserved exclusively to the subordinate chapters, but at what date we are unable at present to state. We take great pleasure, however, in behalf of Holland Lodge, and in the interest of the Craft generally, in acknowledging the kindness of Bro. Asa Worthington, a veteran of 87, by whom the records here referred to have been placed in custody of Holland Lodge, of which he is a member."

A PONTIFICAL BRIEF.

TRANSLATED FROM THE "MONDE MAÇONNIQUE" OF MAY.

Pius IX. Dear Son, Salutation and Apostolical Benediction.

For a long time already, and almost since the origin of the Masonic sect, the Holy See, which very clearly discovered its malice, had condemned and smitten it (frappe) with reiterated excommunications.

The Holy See had well predicted all the evils which it was about to cause to religion and to civil society. In truth, this worthy daughter of Satan making man as God, and establishing each as the supreme judge of his own conduct, rejects by this very fact all authority divine and human, and shatters, in consequence, the tie which constitutes all society. The warnings of the Church have been useless, and many men among those who ought to have suppressed this monster have not feared to favour it so well that at the present moment no human power is capable of struggling against it. It is necessary then, in order to tear out this venomous root of evils which affects the nations and forces into the eternal abyss the souls which it severs from life and salvation, to have recourse to the Omnipotent. Alone He was able to drive from Heaven the true father of this sect; alone He can make it at present disappear from the earth. We deem it right then to recommend the project which you have formed of appeasing the Divine Being, offended by this impious sect, which in its lodges ("antres") especially heaps insults and blasphemies upon Him, to ask at the same time of the Lord the destruction of this sect, and the conversion of those who belong to it, and for this to form, with the permission of the ecclesiastical authority, a society of which the members, if they are priests, should unite in threes every day to offer up the holy sacrifice of the mass to the Holy Trinity; and if they are laymen to make to the same end and every day three communions. We are rejoiced to learn that the society scarcely formed has already received a great augmentation. We wish it still more considerable increase, that so in multiplying those who pray, it may appease more rapidly the anger of God, and obtain the grace which we desire. It is for this, my dear son, that we give you, with love to you and all your associates in this work, the Apostolic Benediction, mark of the heavenly favour and pledge of our paternal good will.

Given at Rome, at St. Peter's, the 7th January, of the year 1875, of our Pontificate the twenty-ninth.

The following addenda, viz.: "That any member of the lodge whose dues are 12 (twelve) months in arrears shall be deemed to have resigned," was then put to the meeting and carried. Bro. G. R. A letter was read from Bro. H. Boyen, requesting that he may be placed on the absent list, owing to his being called away on duty to Kandahar.

Bro. G. R. Henderson then proposed a vote of thanks to the W.M., Bro. W. C. Rowe, for the very handsome present of a wardrobe to the lodge to protect the banner and kit.

Bro. W. C. Rowe then proposed, and Bro. W. W. Whitaker seconded, that Rs. 50 be granted from the General Charity Fund, for the assistance of the widow and family of the late Bro. O'Brien.

There being no further business before the lodge, it was closed with solemn prayer at 9.15 p.m.

FREEMASONRY IN SMYRNA.

The Smyrna lodges under the English Constitution held a special meeting on Wednesday, the 28th of April, in commemoration to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales' Installation, and was attended by a large number of members and visiting brethren from far and near. The chair was occupied by Bro. Canale, P.M. 896, Z. 132; and among those present at the meeting and at the banquet afterwards may be mentioned Bros. Dr. Cricca, Delegate of the Grand Orient of Italy; Carver, P.Z. 132, and others. An address of congratulation to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, proposed by Bro. Canale and seconded by Bro. Carrer, was unanimously passed. After labour the lodge was called off to refreshment, and proceeded to the banquet room, where, in number about sixty, they sat down to partake of the good things provided for them. At ten o'clock the speaking was commenced by the Chairman. He said:—"To-night we are gathered together to commemorate the great event in the Masonic world, viz. the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master of England. On this I will but lightly touch, for there are present among you eloquent brethren—athletes in the use of language—who will do justice to the subject, and to them I leave it. I therefore esteem it a great privilege to submit to you the toast of the evening, 'The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of English Freemasons.' The toast was warmly responded to by the brethren present. Speeches were also delivered in Italian by Bro. Cricca, in French by Bro. Carrer, in Turkish by Bro. Gabriel Effendi, in Armenian by Bro. Alparian, and in Greek by Bro. Gregoriades. After a very pleasant evening the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

FREEMASONRY IN JAMAICA.

The Annual Installation of the Master and Officers of Westmoreland Lodge, 1377, took place at the lodge-room, Larar.nalamar, on Thursday, 8th April, at 7 p.m., when a goodly number of members and brethren were gathered to do honour to the occasion, the inclemency of the weather preventing a much larger attendance.

The retiring Master, Bro. C. P. Bovell, delivered an appropriate address, at the close of which he summoned Bro. John Williamson Menell, Master elect, to the East, where the several charges were delivered and his answers returned. The brethren, at the request of the presiding Master, retired from the floor of the lodge while the ceremony of installation was being performed. The sound of the Gavel re-assembled the brethren, to find seated in the "Oriental Chair" their late Senior Warden, from which opposite direction he now addressed them as their elected and duly installed Master for the ensuing year. He then proceeded to install his officers, which are as follows:—Bro. Geo. A. Dalby, S.W.; James C. Young, J.W.; A. M. Forrest, Treas.; C. H. Distin, Sec.; Philip Stern, S.D.; John Jamieson, J.D.; F. J. Preston, I.G.; Bros. J. Robert Hopwood, George Fenton, Stewards; Robert Johnstone, Tyler.

The Treasurer and Tyler, with the W.M., were elected on a previous occasion, in accordance with the Bye-laws of the lodge.

The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form, and the brethren, after exchanging compliments and expressing their satisfaction in the wise and commendable selection of officers, bespeak for him a "pleasurable" and "profitable" administration.

The banqueting board was replete with such of the good things of this life as were within the grasp of the indefatigable caterer, while the brethren manifested their high appreciation in something more reliable than mere words.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts went the rounds, and the brethren dispersed before the approach of the small hours. A more agreeable evening is rarely spent out of ladies' company.

We are glad to be able to call attention, with words of sincere commendation, to Bro. Harty's Chromo Lithograph of the Installation of our Royal Grand Master. It will furnish a handsome pendant, to the Lithograph of our Royal Brother, and we have no doubt that many of our lodges will be glad to adorn their walls with these appropriate mementoes of a very joyful event for English Freemasons.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual meeting of the subscribers and governors of this Institution was held on Friday, the 21st inst., at Freemasons' Hall. The chair was taken by Bro. John Savage, who was supported by Bros. Major J. Creaton, John Hervey, S. Rawson, Thomas Fenn, Edward Cox, F. Binckes, Major Philipps, W. Hale, H. M. Levy, James Terry (Secretary), H. Muggeridge, E. Harris, James Stevens, Samuel May, Thomas W. White, James Brett, Capt. Wordsworth, Henry Thompson, C. F. Hogard, H. Dubosc, A. H. Tattershall, W. Hilton, John Symonds, W. H. Green, Walter Hopekirk, J. G. Stevens, Thomas Cochrane, James Kindred, Richard Graves, Richard Spencer, G. Bolton, S. Oldroyd, John Chadwick, Henry Smith, George Wyatt, F. West, Samuel May, H. Browne, J. J. Berry, J. L. Hine, F. Adlard, L. Steane.

The following report of the committee was read by Bro. James Terry (Secretary).

In presenting to the governors and subscribers a record of the proceedings of the Institution for the past year the committee of management desire to express their grateful appreciation of the very generous and increasing support accorded to it.

To the Rt. Hon the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Prov. G.M. for Staffordshire, in the first place, their best thanks are due for presiding at the annual festival on the 27th January last, and also to the 175 stewards who so handsomely seconded his lordship's efforts upon the occasion. By their exertions the largest sum yet realized was brought in, viz., £7020 16s. 6d., an amount a few years since even its most sanguine supporters could not have anticipated would have been raised for this Institution.

To the Supreme Grand Chapter the committee also return their thanks for the vote of £500 stock, as well as to the United Grand Lodge for again placing at their disposal by a grant of £70, the means of providing coals during the winter months to the inmates of the Institution at Croydon.

The committee have also much pleasure in stating that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., &c., M.W.G.M., has accepted the position of President of the Institution; the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., M.W.P.G.M., has been filled up by the election of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., as Trustee of the Male and Widows' Funds, and of Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M., of the Sustentation Fund. Another vacancy has also occurred in the Trusteeship by the death of the R.W. Benjamin Bond Cabbell, Prov. G.M. for Norfolk. This will have to be filled up to day.

Since the institution has been in existence 392 men and widows have been elected annuitants, who have received up to the present time £73,659 10s., viz., £48,642 5s. to the former and £25,017 5s. to the latter.

After the last election there were 120 men and 88 widows upon the Fund; the former now receive £36, and the latter £28 per annum each. There were also 14 widows in receipt of half the annuity allowed to their husbands, and this is continued to them (provided they are eligible) for a period of three years, or until their election to the full annuity at an earlier period.

There are on the list for election to-day 33 male and 34 female candidates. The deaths which have occurred during the past year have been 18 men and 6 widows; and the committee determined that all these vacancies should be filled up, and not only these, but in view of the large number of candidates, they have also determined to take on 22 additional annuitants, viz., 10 men and 12 widows, so that there will be 130 males and 100 females upon the funds, and 11 widows receiving the half annuity. The committee believe that this will meet with the approval of the governors and subscribers, and be especially gratifying to the Rt. Hon. Chairman and Board of Stewards of the late Festival, chiefly through whose exertions they have been enabled to increase the number.

The sum annually required to be raised to pay the annuitants will amount after this election to £7743, and the committee, relying upon the liberality of the Craft, venture to hope that not only may this be received, but that a much larger sum may be placed at their disposal to enable them to cope with the pressing claims of the numerous candidates constantly coming before them.

The committee have also to report that they have spent a considerable sum upon the Asylum at Croydon, in consequence of the nuisance caused to the inmates by the smoky chimneys; the measures taken they believe have proved a success, and added much to the comfort and enjoyment of the residents. They especially tender their thanks to H. J. Strong, Esq., M.D., the Hon. Surgeon, for the unremitting care and attention he at all times bestows upon the annuitants.

Subjoined is a statement of the receipts and disbursements during the past year, ending the 31st March, 1875, together with the particulars of the permanent income of the Institution.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held on the 7th July, at the Alexandra Palace, Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master, and Prov. Grand Master of Somerset, presiding. For this festival there are already some 230 stewards, a number which will probably be considerably increased during the next six weeks. The dinner will be served at five o'clock, which is an hour earlier than usual, and this novelty will be added to by the innovation on customary Masonic rules of ladies joining the brethren at the banquet table. Four novelties at one festival—change of date and change in location, earlier hours, and lady participants—are surely enough to satisfy any brethren who may wish to see a departure from Masonic line and rule. For the success of the new plan the Institution has our best wishes, though we should have been pleased to see the old ways adhered to, and the old home of Freemasonry, Freemasons' Hall and the Tavern, preserved at the scene where the great triumphs of all the Charitable Institutions of the Craft have been achieved. Still the change should not cause any brethren who may entertain the ancient opinions to relax in the measure of their support to this great educational establishment; for, after all, it is in the object to be attained, and not in the details of the manner of attaining it, that assistance is sought from the Craft. In this object we feel confident all will concur, and we hope to have the gratification of announcing in due course that the 77th Anniversary Festival has been the most successful yet held by the subscribers of the Boys' School. Madame Thaddeus Wells, Bros. Wilhelm Ganz, Chaplin Henry, Kerr Gedde, and E. Van Noorden will provide the musical entertainment on the occasion.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF ST. LUKE'S CHURCH, DUDLEY.

On Monday morning, the corner stone of St. Luke's New Church, Wellington Road, was laid with full Masonic ceremonial, by the Provincial Grand Master of Worcestershire, Bro. Albert Hudson Royds, in the presence of a large number of the Craft, and also of Visitors. For some time past there has been a great want of Church accommodation in the neighbourhood of the dock and the Wellington Road, the services having to be held in a Mission Room in the dock. The funds being limited, the Church is to be built in a plain and inexpensive manner, the architects, Bros. Davies and Middleton, intending to rely more on solidity of construction and general proportion than upon ornamentation. The material is to be red bricks inside and out, the bricks being much thinner than those usually employed. The edifice will be relieved by brick mouldings, as will also the lancet-headed windows. The Church is to consist of a nave 96 feet by 35 feet, with aisles used for passages only 6 feet wide. There will be a clear storey carried by an arcade of six bays, light being given to the Church by the large windows in the clear storey. All the seats are to be placed within the columns, so that the worshippers may have an unobstructed view of the chancel and the preacher. This was a novelty four years ago when the plans were made. Its advantages are obvious. The chancel is to be 35 feet by 21 feet, with an organ chapel on the north side, and a priests' vestry on the south side. A vestry suitable for church business will be made beneath the chancel. The Church when finished will accommodate 500 persons, but with chairs in the aisles, about 150 more. The Church is to be entirely free and unappropriated for ever.

The brethren of the Provincial Grand Lodge assembled at the Dudley Arms Hotel about eleven o'clock, when the following were in attendance:—The R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. A. Hudson Royds; Worshipful Brothers, W. Masfield, D.P.G.M.; J. Rutland, P.S.G.W.; W. H. Westwood, P.J.G.W.; S. Smith, P.P.G.S.W.; and the following Worshipful Brethren:—W. H. Jones, P.P.G.W.; W. After the Brethren had partaken of an excellent luncheon, which was generously provided by the Mayor of Dudley (Bro. J. Stokes), the Craft Lodge was opened in the third degree by the W.M. (Bro. J. Stokes) of the Harmonic Lodge (No. 252).

The lodge having been closed in due form the P.G.M. and his officers entered it, when the P.G.M. opened the P.G.L. in the third degree. It was afterwards resumed to the first degree, when three entered apprentices were admitted to take part in the closing ceremony, after which the brethren went in procession to the Parish Church, headed by the united choirs of the Churches in Dudley, and the following clergy:—E. H. L. Noot; G. Bradley; J. J. Slade; H. J. Phillips; Dr. Dixon; A. O. Cherrington; J. Jordan; J. T. Grosvenor, and the Rev. Dr. Cosens, who wore his robes of Doctor of Divinity.

The united choirs led the way singing the processional hymn "Brightly Gleams our Banner." After them followed the Mayor (Bro. J. Stokes) in his robes of office, and his clothing as W.M. of the Harmonic Lodge, accompanied by the Town Clerk (Mr. J. H. Brooke), and some members of the Corporation. The P.G.M. and his officers followed lastly, and just before reaching the Church the leading files of the Freemasons opened to allow the P.G.M. and his officers to pass through their ranks, a ceremony which was subsequently repeated at the site of the New Church, and also at the Public Hall.

At the Parish Church, a short service was held, and an eloquent and impressive address delivered, by the Rev. Bro. Canon Baynes, M.A., Vicar of St. Michael's Coventry, after which, the brethren reformed, and walked in procession to the site of the New Church, where the stone was laid according to the ancient customs of the Craft.

The P.G.M. said, they had met that day for the purpose of laying the foundation stone of a Church to be dedicated to the Great Architect of the Universe. It was to be laid in accordance with Masonic ritual, and he would ask the P.G.T. if he held the dispensation for such a service. Bro. W. Bristow stepped forward, and read the dispensation, after which the P.G.M. addressed the W.M. of the Harmonic Lodge (Bro. J. Stokes), and said: "You have my commands that that dispensation be kept on the minute of your lodge, there to appear for ages to come." Bro. C. C. Whitney Griffiths, P.G. Treasurer then placed in a cavity in the under stone, a sealed bottle, containing copies of the local papers, and the current coins of the realm.

Bro. W. Bristow, P.G.T., then read the inscription engraved on the plate as follows:—[Maltese Cross] "The foundation stone of the Church of St. Luke was laid this 24th day of May, A.L. 5875, A.D. 1875, by Bro. Albert Hudson Royds, R.W. P.G.M., in accordance with the ancient customs and usages of the Craft."—[Maltese Cross]. (Signed) Davies and Middleton, architects; Wm. Nelson, builder.

The stone having been lowered into its place, the P.G.M. then asked Bro. J. B. Davies if he was an entered apprentice, and being answered by him in the affirmative, presented to him the "levers," and with it a command that the "levers" be placed among the archives of his lodge.

The stone was then duly proven by plumb, rule, level, and square, after which the P.G.M. was presented with a silver trowel, when he laid the stone saying, "Christ our Priest, Christ our Prophet, Christ our King, I declare this stone well and truly laid." He then presented to Bro. J. Stokes, the "gavel," to be placed among the archives of his lodge. He was likewise presented with the plumb, rule, level and square, the P.G.M. saying, "enter these upon the archives of your lodge, and remember that upright behaviour, level step and square conduct, will help you or any other man to bear the hard knocks of the world."

He then took corn from a M.M., and sprinkling a portion of it upon the stone, said, "I dedicate this stone by sprinkling upon it corn, the emblem of plenteousness." Pouring upon it wine he said, "I dedicate this stone by pouring upon it wine, the emblem of gladness." Likewise pouring upon it oil, he said, "I dedicate this stone by pouring upon it oil, the emblem of consolation, and may the Great God whom we worship grant a blessing to it." A number of ladies then placed purses upon the stone, after which three hearty cheers were given for the Queen, three for the P.G.M., and three for the Mayor, when the procession was reformed and proceeded to the Public Hall, where a luncheon was given.

After the removal of the cloth the Mayor presided, and the usual loyal toasts having been given and duly honoured, the Mayor gave the toast, "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese."

The Rev. Bro. Canon Baynes in responding said, he regretted that the toast had fallen to him, because upon his right sat his dear brother the Vicar of Dudley, whose office it was. They all regretted that the Vicar of Dudley had lost his voice through cold, therefore he was at a very great disadvantage. He knew how full Dr. Cosens' heart was, and he very much regretted that Dr. Cosens' throat was so much inferior to the state of his heart. In conclusion he was glad to congratulate his dear brother the Vicar of Dudley, for it was a grand thing to lay a foundation stone of a church in any parish, and they could not help feeling that the grand work they were now beginning was a work in which all must feel the deepest interest. (Applause.)

The Mayor then proposed "Success to St. Luke's Church," and, in doing so, said that every person who worshipped God ought to rejoice to see another temple raised to the worship of that God. (Cheers.)

The Rev. Bro. Dr. Cosens, in responding to the toast, said that he could not forget that on the previous day he entered upon the thirty-third year of his ministry. He regretted that he was debarred from speaking much, but still he was not speaking in words of affectation when he said that he regarded that day as a golden one in his life. He returned his sincere thanks to his dear brother in his own Craft, who had come that day to lay the stone, as well as to his other brethren, who had so nobly assisted in the ceremony. (Applause.) He was quite sure that neither churchmen nor the members of any other religious body, nay, he might say even of that body who had been most bitter against the Craft in recent times, could do otherwise than say that the ceremony of that day had been dignified or Christian. (Cheers.) There had entered their minds the one thought of the supreme God whom they served. The praises sung in the sanctuary first, and then the solemn way with all the peculiarities (if they liked) and old traditions of their Craft, in which the stone was laid, was a way that would never be forgotten in the minds of those who were present that day. (Loud cheers.)

The Mayor, in proposing the health of the P.G.M., said the ladies were always so anxious to learn the secrets of the Craft, that for this occasion he would reveal them; they were to reverence God, to love their brother, to relieve their necessities, and to subdue their own feelings. (Applause.) That was what they had to illustrate when they met as Masons, and after that he hoped no lady would keep her husband back. (Laughter.)

The P.G.M. having responded, the proceedings shortly afterwards terminated.

EDINBURGH—A FUNERAL LODGE.

A Funeral Lodge was held in the Lodge, St. Andrew, No. 48, in Freemasons' Hall, George-street, on Friday, the 21st ult., in memory of Bro. Dr. William Hammond, R.W.M. The lodge was opened and raised to the Third Degree by Bro. Dr. W. S. Carmichael, P.M., assisted by Bro. Lindsay Mackersy, P.M., acting S.W.; Bro. C. G. Christie, P.M., No. 36, acting J.W.; David Knight, Sec.; Dr. Jas. Carmichael, D.M.; W. Hay, P.M.; D. Kinnear, P.M.; D. J. T. Loth, P.M., and a large attendance of the brethren, Bro. W. M. Bryce acting as Director of Ceremonies. There were also present Bros. William Officer, P.M., No. 1, P.G.D., G.L. of Scotland; W. W. Kennedy, R.W.M., No. 36; Dr. Geo. Dickson, S.M., No. 1, Rev. Wm. Graham, No. 48; R. Wadler, R.W.M., No. 145; R. S. Brown, P.M., No. 145; Dr. Stevenson, D.M., No. 160, &c., &c. The following is the programme of the proceedings:—

ORATION, BY BRO. WILLIAM HAY, PM.,
Senior Deacon, Grand Lodge of Scotland.

Brethren, we are called upon by a most solemn admonition to regard the uncertainty of human life—the immutable certainty of death, and the vanity of all human pursuits. Decrepitude and decay are written on every living thing. Weakness and imperfection are the incidents of our fallen condition; the damp dark grave is our destiny and our doom. The cradle and the coffin stand in juxtaposition, and as soon as we begin to live, that moment we also begin to die. What an eloquent commentary is here exhibited on the instability of every human pursuit, and how strikingly does it echo the sad sentiment of that great preacher who wrote for our perpetual warning the immortal text: "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." There is a moment in the performance of one of the most sublime of all the degrees of Masonry (the third degree) that is calculated strongly to impress the mind with the most solemn reflections on the subject of death: there is a moment also in the experience of every one who has followed the remains of a friend or relation to their long home when those impressions must be deepened by the solemnities accompanying the last sad offices paid to the dead—dust to dust—ashes to ashes—when the sound of the falling earth strikes upon the ear with its dull hollow thud, what heart does not beat with bated force? What soul does not feel a momentary sympathy with the spirit of the departed? How eagerly do we desire to think and speak of its worth? how tenderly do we treat of its foibles and imperfections? Notwithstanding the lessons which are inculcated by our most solemn ceremonies—the constant preaching of religion and science, regarding the mutability of nature—the proofs of all this, which are constantly passing in review, including the scenes of sorrow we daily witness, we are too apt to forget that we are born to die. The brother, whose death we are met this evening to deplore, was, only a few weeks ago, in the enjoyment of vigorous health. By the sudden attack of a virulent disease, caught, it is believed, in the exercise of his professional duty, his life is ended at the early age of 43 years.

Although not long a member of our fraternity, having been initiated in this lodge only three years ago, his amiable and genial nature soon attracted the notice and secured the affections of his brethren, as they did also all who came into contact with him. He occupied the chair of this lodge since last St. John's Day; he entered upon its duties with a true desire to fulfil his obligations to the best of his ability, and we all know how well he performed his task. Had he been spared he would have been an ornament to the Craft, but he has been called upon, at the summons of the Great Master, to take his place in the Grand Lodge above, where the wages are jointly and equally paid, whether we have wrought here out one short hour or have borne the burden and heat of the day. The life of our late brother was so uniform that it was more like the gentle gliding stream than the rapid and turbulent river. When he completed his medical education, and had taken his degree in the University of St. Andrews, he practised for twelve years in his native town of Brechin, where he was most useful and greatly respected. He held the office of Medical Director in the Royal Infirmary of this town, as well as secretary to the Literary and Scientific Institute. He removed to Edinburgh about five years ago, where he continued to practice with considerable success. He was recently appointed Medical Officer to one of the Parochial Boards of this city, and one of his first duties was to attend the family of a poor widow, where six children were ill of scarlet fever. The children had scarcely got well when the poor mother took ill of typhus. Our late brother's attendance on this poor family was constant and untiring, and his kindness will ever be gratefully remembered. I have no doubt by the poor widow and her children, for it may be said to have cost him his life. But he died, we may say, nobly at his post, and there is no greater hero than the physician who hazards his life for the well being of his kind, and not only his own, but the lives of his family and friends, by the constant danger of contact with virulent disease. Brethren let us cherish the memory of a brother so brave and good. Let the broad mantle of a Mason's charity cover his imperfections, whatever they may have been. Here is a brother dead in the middle of his days—and so have we seen many others die. Let us take heed that our work be done. The finger on our dial may be approaching the concluding twelve; our glass may have in it but a little sand; our sun may be going down. The shadows of the evening with some of us are already stretched out upon the mountains, and in a few moments it may be night with us, when we cannot work. Let us take heed that when the grave opens to receive us, that our sins do not lie down with us in the dust.

Brethren. So mote it be.

Service, with responses.

Master. Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his.

Brethren. God is our God for ever and ever; He will be our God even unto death.

Grand honours.

Anthem—Kent.

O Lord, our Governor, O how excellent is Thy name in all the world.

Service with responses.

Master. May we be true and faithful; and may we live and die in love.

Brethren. So mote it be.

Master. May we always profess what is good; and may we always act agreeably to our profession.

Brethren. So mote it be.

Anthem—"Vital Spark."

Master. May the Lord bless us, and prosper us; and may our good intentions be crowned with success.

Brethren. So mote it be.

Master. Glory be to God on high,—on earth peace, and goodwill towards men.

Brethren. So mote it be; now, from henceforth, and for evermore. Amen.

Grand honours.

Bro. the Rev. William Graham, then gave the following address: Brethren, this solemn service throughout has reminded me of the feelings expressed on Tabor—"It is good for us to be here." The funeral dirge, at all times solemn, but never more so than in a Masonic assembly. We have the emblems of the grave—the coffin—the darkened room—the black drapery—the deep-toned choruses—and the sacred hallelujah—raising the soul from the sorrows below to the joys above, whither we believe our departed brother has ascended, by the stary pathway into the presence of the Great Master, and of the assembled throng. While cherishing his memory of self-sacrificing deeds among the sick and the dying, we forget not in our prayers the widow and the orphan boy. May the Great Architect of the Universe put it into the hearts of survivors to be kind to them for the father's sake. There is no night of sorrow, however dark, but has some star visible. It is so here to night, above us the stars seem shining; around us are the Word of God and the square and compasses pointing to the great and the only true Centre yonder, and the columns of the Great Temple, and the light streaming beyond, the first step into which leads the brother on step by step, through corridors and hall, up to Heaven's Temple, in whose Holy of holies, the Great Master sits, Himself the "LOGOS," emphatically THE WORD. With such emblems above, around, and yonder, we are thus able in our mourning to trace upwards, through the skies, the progress of our departed brother, who has found the celestial centre. He is in light. "The vital spark of heavenly flames" is before the great centre sun. May we so walk in the light here, that when our labours are finished in building the temple, our dying song may be, "O grave, where is thy victory, O death, where is thy sting?" and our eternal progress through the stars may be in the midst of light—endlessly—our sun never again going down, and our moon never again withdrawing her shining, but when THE WORD Himself will be the everlasting light, and the days of our mourning shall be ended.

Prayer by the Chaplain.

"Almighty Architect of the Universe, unto the grave has been resigned the body of our loving brother, to remain until the day of general resurrection. We earnestly pray thee, at that great and dreadful day to extend thy infinite mercy towards all of us, and to crown our felicity with everlasting bliss in Thy heavenly kingdom. Amen.

Grand honours.

The Past Master then closed the funeral lodge.

The choral services were under the management of Bro. A. Edmunds, supported by Bro. G. M. Davidson, and a choir of eight voices. Bro. F. W. Bridgman presiding at the organ. The choruses were most effectively and correctly rendered—the whole ceremony having a most solemn and impressive effect upon all present.

INITIATION FEES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you grant space to discuss a subject of a very practical character, viz., Initiation Fees?

The lodge of which I have the honour to be W.M. has lately revised its by-laws, and on completion of the revision sent a copy to the proper authorities for approval and endorsement. The said authority took exception to the initiation fee of £4 4s., as being insufficient and less than is required by the Book of Constitutions—article, "Of Proposing Members," clause 9. This clause runs as follows:

"No person shall be made a Mason for less than three guineas, exclusive of the registering fee, nor shall a lodge on any pretence remit or defer payment of any part of this sum."

The aforesaid authority ruled that the term "registering fee" includes—

1.	The Grand Lodge Fee	-	£0	10	6
2.	Certificate Fee	-	0	6	6
3.	Prov. G.L. Dues	-	0	5	0
			£1	2	0

The phrase "registering fee" is, however, in the singular, and wherever it occurs in the Book of Constitutions in connection with initiated members, seems always to mean the 10s. 6d. for registering in Books of Grand Lodge, and nothing more.

Indeed, under the article "Certificates," clause 1, a distinction is expressly made between the registering fee and the fee for certificates, which latter, it says, "may be taken out of the initiation fee." This appears conclusive.

As to Prov. G.L. dues, under the article "Prov. Grand Lodges," clause 4, permission is given to Prov. Grand Lodges to form a Provincial Fund of Benevolence, and to levy dues for its maintenance on the lodges within its province. But I submit these dues are levied on the lodges and not on individuals, although, for the purposes there stated and for the sake of equity, the dues assume a caputal form. Further, the Prov. G.L. "may," or may not, fix these dues at the maximum there laid down, and has power to charge 5s., 4s., 3s., 2s., 1s., or 0s. I have had some trouble as regards the foregoing, and hope some Brother with leisure and experience will state his views of the matter.

I cannot think the "ipse dixit" of any authority, however high, should impose conditions on a lodge against the wish of its members, unless based on the clear statements of the Book of Constitutions.

I am, yours fraternally,

BETA, W.M., P.M., P.G.S.D.

NOTE.—1. The fee in the old by-laws has been £4 4s. for many years. 2. In London district 21s. is the registering fee.

PAST RANK.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

In your paper of the 1st inst. I observe amongst the names of the brethren occupying the seats of the table presided over by H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master, that of George Laurie, P.D.G.M. of Turkey.

For my own information, as well as that of the Masonic body under the English constitution in Constantinople, you will oblige me by stating how this error found a place in your valuable paper.

Bro. George Laurie never was District Grand Master of Turkey, and consequently could not be Past District Grand Master. In consequence of the death of our D.G.M. John P. Brown, and that of the D.D.G.M. Alex. Thompson, which followed very closely, Bro. Geo. Laurie exercised the functions of D.G.M. for some months. But article 7, page 58 of the Book of Constitutions, states that the "brother exercising such functions shall not assume that title; nor shall he, after having so acted, be entitled to rank as a Past District Grand Master, or to wear the Masonic clothing appropriate to that office."

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,

HENRY NEWBOLT, D.D.G.M. for Turkey.

THE FATHER OF FREEMASONS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Referring to the several letters under the above heading which have appeared in the recent issues of the Freemason, it is pleasing to observe the great deference paid to our aged brethren. In a letter from Bro. Spears, P.M. 158, in the Freemason of the 22nd instant, he states, "The brethren of the Province of Kent are proud of having among them the two oldest brethren of the Craft," who, it appears, were initiated in 1814 and 1815 respectively.

I have great pleasure in stating, for Bro. Spears' information, that there is now residing at Hayle, Cornwall, an older member of the craft than either of the above, in the person of Bro. Nicholas Donithorne, who was initiated in the One and All Lodge 330, Bodmin, April 6th, 1812. It is therefore, to the brethren of the Province of Cornwall that belong the honour of having among them the oldest brother of the Craft, and he a Cornishman.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

RICH. RICH, P.M. 330,

P. Prov. J.G.W. of Cornwall.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

There appears to be often a difficulty, on the advancement of a brother to the rank of Mark Master Mason, in the selection of an appropriate mark, no intimation having previously been given as to the necessity for it. Thus the time of the members of the lodge is wasted, and the candidate is probably afterwards dissatisfied with his hurried selection, made under excitement, and when he hardly comprehends what is required. Some twelve years ago, on the formation of a Mark Lodge in another province, I established a book with hundreds of suitable Masonic Marks, as suggestive to candidates, and from which they might make a choice. Having now undertaken to prepare a similar book for another Mark Lodge which I have lately joined, I have looked through the Freemason's Magazine, from 1858 till the publication of it ceased in 1871, under an impression that from this source I obtained most of the marks, copied from ancient buildings. I find only a few, however; but have met with a reference to the publication of some sheets containing a large collection. Can any Bro. give information where they may be obtained?

H. H., P.G.J.W. of England.

A DOUBTFUL MASONIC ACT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

The lodge with which I have the honour to be connected has recently received, for sale to the brethren, a number of tickets for a lottery in connection with the St. John's Lodge, Hawick, No. 111. I should like to ask if such a method of raising the wind is permitted by Grand Lodge? It is evident that the promoters of the "spec" are not the most highly educated of mortals, for one prize is described as "Aneroid's Barometer." It may be they are as ignorant of the law of the country with respect to lotteries, as I am of the whereabouts of "Mr. Aneroid," who he was, and why he so called himself. If so, it is very easy to be charitable, and give them credit for only being mistaken and not wilful sinners. Will you kindly give the members of No. 111 a hint to, anyhow, keep their gambling to themselves, and not to offend by thrusting their illegal and unmasonic raffle tickets into respectable lodges.

I am, fraternally yours,

JOSIAH ROSE.

STEWARDS' JEWEL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I have just seen a circular letter addressed by the Grand Secretary to the brethren who officiated as Stewards on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, asking them whether they would desire to receive a Commemoration Jewel. The cost of each jewel is to be £5, the intrinsic value of the metal contained in it being a little over £2. As there were some 400 Stewards at the installation, the aggregate difference between the cost and value of the jewels will (supposing each Steward to provide himself with one) amount to some £1,100 or £1,200, which seems a long price to pay for design and labour.

I venture to think that, unless it is announced that a large share of this handsome surplus is to be devoted to charity, 400 jewels will not be asked for, and that it would have been well to have fixed a lower price for a decoration which each Steward would like to possess, but which he may not be in a position to purchase.

I am, yours fraternally,

BUSY BEE.

SECOND NOTICE.

BY WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Secret Societies. By Charles William Heckethorn.

"Secret Societies" is the title of a new work issued from the Chiswick Press, and published by Richard Bentley & Son, in two vols., small 8vo. The book is most compactly arranged, and being in numbered paragraphs, nothing could be better for convenience of reference. From the preface I gather that Mr. Heckethorn has for many years been fascinated with the subject of secret societies, the study of which has long engaged his attention, and it was his intention to collect, in a comprehensive work, all the information that could be obtained concerning one of the most curious phases of the history of mankind—those secret organizations, religious, political and social, which have existed from the most remote ages down to the present time.

It would be strange if all this could be found in the two volumes now before us of some 700 pages; but certainly an immense quantity of interesting particulars of many societies but little known, and of others now forgotten, have been condensed, and presented in a most readable form by Mr. Heckethorn, and though we cannot sympathize with many of his views, I am none the less ready to acknowledge the industry and skill which have been manifested in the production of the volumes in question. Much of the labours of Signor De Castro have been utilized in the present work, especially his "Il Mondo Segreto," which Mr. Heckethorn first intended to translate, but which translation, commenced at first for publication, was abandoned for independent researches, and simply using De Castro as required.

The author's rule has been to include in the work "all societies as secret which had or have secret rites and ceremonies kept from the outer world, though the society itself be no secret at all." He considers that, thanks to secret societies themselves, they are no longer needed, at least not in the realms of thought; but whilst uttering this opinion, I learn in the next paragraph that, "in politics, however, circumstances will arise in every age to call them into existence, and though they seldom attain their direct object, yet they are not without influence on the relations between ruler and ruled, advantageously for the latter in the long run, though not immediately."

In a brief notice such as this it would be impossible to follow the author in his researches, and especially in the region where he is as much at a loss as ourselves; but, if space permitted, I should certainly like to correct a few of the errors he has fallen into in attempting to describe and put a value on the Society of Freemasons, of whose aims and objects he is evidently in ignorance, though he attempts to teach us what is Freemasonry! Mr. Heckethorn declares that "few statements are made which could not be supported by numerous and weighty authorities," but on applying that test to his remarks on Freemasonry, I find that such is not the case, for he could not furnish us with one "weighty authority" for several of his assertions. In the list of authorities are Barruel, Robinson, Carlile, and others such. To learn what Freemasonry is from a man like Carlile, who spent a portion of his life in Bedford jail, for blasphemy, and never was a Mason, would be as reasonable as to be taught the contents of the Holy Bible from Tom Paine's "Age of Reason."

Mr. Heckethorn is not a Mason, but I venture to think that had he carefully studied a few of the other authorities he mentions, such as Dr. Mackay, and the Rev. George Oliver, D.D., he could not have so misrepresented our ancient and honourable Society. The answer to "What Mote it be" would not result in such as the following, if the works of those who knew what they wrote about had been consulted:—"There is nothing in the history of modern Masonry, in this country at least, that deserves to be recorded," (p. 311). Again, after speaking of the three principles of the Society (brotherly love, relief, and truth), the writer asks, "To what does this action amount? To eating, drinking, and mummery." Now, although I find many excellent suggestions and views of Freemasonry scattered over the two volumes, I cannot shut my eyes to the foregoing, and I can scarcely help thinking that some other motive than what appears on the surface must have prompted Mr. Heckethorn to so describe a Society to which he devotes about half of one volume in a consideration of its history and character. Further on in the work I read—"After this necessarily brief account of Freemasonry, past and present, the question naturally suggests itself, What is its present use? Is it not an institution that has outlived the object of its foundation? Are its pretensions not groundless, and its existence a delusion and anachronism? The answers to all these questions must be unfavourable to Freemasonry. . . . It must eventually die from sheer inanition." Then again I read—"It is almost absurd to talk of Masonic literature; it scarcely exists. Except the works written by Oliver, Mackay, Findel, and Ragon, there is scarcely anything worth reading about Freemasonry of which a Freemason is the author." What estimate is this of some 12,000 works on Freemasonry, many of which would grace any library, and be a credit to any society, however learned or distinguished. Mr. Heckethorn does good service, however, in exposing some of the forgeries which have been sought at times to be foisted on the fraternity.

Of the Templars he says—"In 1705 Philip, Duke of Orleans, collected the remaining members of the Society that had renounced its first scope to cultivate politics. A Jesuit Father, Bonani, a learned rogue, fabricated the famous list of supposititious Grand Masters of the Temple since Molay, beginning with his immediate successor, Larmenius. No imposture was ever sustained with greater sagacity. The document offered all the requisite characteristics of authenticity, and was calculated to deceive the most experienced palæologist. Its object was to connect the new institution with the ancient Templars. To render the deception more perfect, the volume containing the false list was filled with minutes of deliberations at fictitious meetings, under false dates. Two members were even sent to Lisbon to obtain, if possible, a document of legitimacy from the 'Knights of Christ,' an Order supposed to have been founded on the ruins of the Order of the Temple. But the deputies were unmasked, and very badly received. One had to take refuge in England, the other was transported to Africa, where he died."

He, however, accepts as authentic the story of Ramsay's visit to the Grand Lodge of England in 1728 respecting his new degrees, of which there has not been one iota of evidence produced. So I perceive that Mr. Heckethorn is not incapable of being hoodwinked himself, even though he is anxious to enlighten Freemasons about their Society, of which he is not a member.

His remarks about Freemasons occupying only a portion of the work, it would be unfair to judge of the whole from the failures to which I have thought it right to draw attention.

Much valuable and interesting information is afforded respecting the "Ancient Mysteries," and certainly I know not where so much varied intelligence about secret societies of all kinds—good and bad—religious and political—social and philosophical—is to be obtained, save in these two volumes, which, with all their faults, and notwithstanding their elementary character, are well worth a perusal by the fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, and all interested in the origin and character of such Societies.

Messrs. Ditlef F. Hald, Jas. Davidson, and Dan. Campbell were initiated. The installation was very excellently performed by the outgoing W.M., Bro. George E. Eachus, and the W.M. having been placed in the chair at once invested his I.P.M. and the Treasurer, and appointed and invested his officers as follows:—F. Pendered, S.W.; John Davis, J.W.; Thos. A. Chubb, Sec.; John S. Peirce, D.C.; Henry E. Wallis, S.D.; Edward Palmer, J.D.; John Dixon, I.G.; Jas. J. Wallis and Edward Strouts, Stewards. It was unanimously resolved that the sum of £5 5s. be given to each of the Stewards to put upon their lists for the Girls' and the Boys' Schools. The I.P.M. was then invested with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel, and the lodge adjourned. A banquet followed—the musical arrangements being in the hands of Bro. Lawler.

LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 206).—This flourishing lodge held a special emergency meeting on Friday, the 21st day of May last, at the Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-street, E.C., expressly to initiate Captain Boyton into the Craft. The Craft at large, and the lodges ranging under the Grand Lodge of England particularly, will be pleased to learn of this interesting event, and every English Freemason will, in a measure, no doubt take it as a compliment paid to the fraternity by the gallant Captain in thus becoming a member of the Order in a lodge in this country. Captain Boyton's notoriety in connection with his life-saving dress is now world-wide, but there is one feature which is not so generally known, and that is his private worth. It would be in a measure excusable were he occasionally to display a little ostentation, but his demeanour at his initiation indicated he was entirely free from that species of vanity, and amongst the many agreeable traits of character he displayed none was more conspicuous than his simple and unaffected bearing in everything he did and said. The earnest manner in which he entered on the solemn business in hand, and the easy way in which he seemed to have lost his own individuality and to have become one of the brethren in feeling and action, were very observable indeed. Every one present approached him with ease, and he gained the hearts of all present by his frank and open nature. The officers and brethren of the lodge present were the following:—Brothers John Waters, W.M.; Allen R. Rumsey, S.W.; Thos. Taylor, J.W.; J. Javitt Stephens, S.D.; Elijah Squirrel, J.D.; Wm. H. Godolphin, I.G.; William Rumsey, P.M.; and Treasurer, John Rumsey, P.M. and Secretary, Samuel Gamman, I.P.M.; F. G. Harrison, P.M.; Fredk. Wiggins, P.M.; E. B. Barnard, P.M.; Robert Bowman, T. J. Steel, W. Medcalf, John Hurrell, and C. H. Barrett. The visitors were the following:—C. G. Smithers, P.M. 901; J. Rug, P.M. 781; Samuel Vasey, P.M. 183; F. Rath, S.W. 534; John Aspinall, J.D. 534; R. G. Seaborn, I.G. 217; W. Aspinwall, 23; and W. R. Bagshot, 354. The lodge was opened in due and ancient form and with solemn prayer at 6 o'clock p.m., and the minutes of the last lodge meeting were read and confirmed unanimously. The ceremony of initiation was at once proceeded with, Captain Boyton having been duly balloted for at the last lodge meeting. It is almost needless to say that the ballot proved unanimous in his favour. The candidate would have been initiated at that lodge meeting, but a pressing public engagement prevented this, and the present emergency meeting was summoned and held for that purpose. The ceremony of initiation was performed by the Immediate Past Master, Brother Samuel Gamman, in an impressive and a perfect manner. Brother Gamman's style is similar to that of a fluent extempore speaker giving utterance to his thoughts as they arise in his mind, and few candidates would think he was actually delivering a set ritual. Brother Gamman's working evoked deserved praise from every one present. The deaconing of Bro. J. Jewitt Stephens, S.D., was everything that could be desired. The working of the other officers was well performed, and met with due commendation. The impressive ceremony did not fail to have its due effect upon the candidate, as it invariably does upon those who, like him, are ever susceptible to receive impressions from that which is associated with solemnity and awe. It is no derogation to the gallant Captain (now a brother), who has proved beyond all doubt he is possessed of true manly courage, to say that he is endowed with a sensitive nature. On the contrary, his known and tried personal qualities are rather enhanced than otherwise, when coupled with that characteristic essential to all that is truly great and noble. There being no other business to transact, the lodge was then duly closed. There was no banquet, but a pleasant re-union of the members of the lodge, the newly-made initiate, and the visitors present took place. The re-union was most enjoyable, and proved that Freemasons can happily intermingling with each other without the incentive of a banquet, relying for their gratification and amusement on an interchange of brotherly feeling, coupled with the satisfaction that they are members of a society which not only professes but practices tolerance and charity. The gathering of 206 on this memorable evening was a substantive answer to our detractors, who aver that the chief object of a Mason's heart is a banquet. The usual Masonic toasts having been given and responded to, Bro. Samuel Gamman, the Immediate Past Master, rose, and in feeling and appropriate terms proposed the toast of "The Brother Initiate." He adverted to the pleasure he experienced in having performed the ceremony of initiation that evening, and, however perceptible his drawbacks were in the conduct of the duties of the chair—and he felt they were many—he trusted the brethren present would pass over them on the score that he had endeavoured to do his best, and they must accept the attempt for what should have been the result. He referred in complimentary terms to the exploits of Bro. Boyton, and said he felt sure that he (Bro. Boyton) would perform the unprecedented feat of swimming across the Channel. Bro. Boyton had no doubt been so absorbed in his work that hitherto he had been prevented from entering the Order. Still throughout his (Bro. Boyton's) career he had acted virtually as a Mason; for was there not a close connection between what Bro. Boyton had been doing, and would still continue to do, and the fundamental teaching inculcated by Freemasonry—namely, the practice of doing good, for Bro. Boyton's invention would, he felt sure, ere long be of the greatest benefit to mankind? He trusted the brethren present would drink with heartiness and goodwill to the brother initiate, which was accordingly done with the greatest enthusiasm. In rising to respond, Bro. Boyton said: Worshipful Master and Brethren, I feel particularly gratified this evening in having been made a Freemason in this lodge, and on this occasion, when so goodly a number of the fraternity are around me, I must ask you to excuse me for not having, as arranged, presented myself for the ceremony on your last lodge meeting; but, as you are aware, a public engagement prevented this. I must further ask you to excuse the seemingly negligent manner, so far as my personal appearance is concerned, in coming before you this evening, but this slight informality will be excused when you know I have only just returned from Oxford. I was desirous of appearing here at all hazards, to-night, knowing you had considerably convened this lodge meeting for my convenience, and I thank you for this kindness. I am fully alive to the Masonic obligations I have entered into this evening, and brethren, I cannot deny that I was deeply affected by the impressive ceremony. I have heard a great deal about Masonry, and I am now proud of being one. I will try to be a good Mason. No endeavour shall be wanting on my part. I feel pleasure that my humble attempts to further the chances of saving life at sea have been referred to by our Immediate Past Master as Masonic acts. I will still continue in my endeavours to bring those attempts to a perfectly successful issue. Brethren, whether you credit it or not, my one sole object in constructing my apparatus and performing the different experiments I have, is to benefit humanity. I feel satisfied I can have no higher or purer aim, and I wish for none other. I was staying at Wolverhampton the other day at a place where a lodge was being held. Hearing I was in the hotel some of the brethren, thinking no doubt that I must be a Mason, courteously asked me to join them. I felt sorry to confess I was no Mason, and from that moment I determined to become one as soon as I conveniently could, and brethren, I thank you that you have on this present occasion afforded me an opportunity of carrying that determination into effect. In conclusion allow me, Brother Gamman, to thank you for the kind way in which you proposed the toast of the Brother Initiate, and you, brethren all, for the genial manner in which you accepted it. Without giving Bro. Boyton an opportunity of resuming his seat, all present earnestly begged him to give an account of the different experiments he had made with his life-saving dress, and the reasons he had applied himself to the task of bringing the apparatus to that perfection he had. Bro. Boyton then at considerable length stated he was connected with a body in America whose duty was to save the lives of shipwrecked mariners and others when in danger, and that subsequently he filled the post of commander of this body. In the performance of his duties he was too frequently brought into contact with heartrending scenes. The poor results attending his and the men's exertions to save life were out of all proportion to their efforts, and his idea then struck him. It stood to reason that in a heavy sea, or even on ordinary occasions, the swimmer, however good his intentions, had enough to do to sustain himself in the water, and very little of his efforts could be expended upon others. From the first, therefore, his object was to construct such an apparatus, and of such buoyant capabilities, that the swimmer should not be required to expend one iota of his strength towards keeping afloat, thus reserving all his powers for the object in hand—saving life. At last he produced his dress. The greatest difficulty he experienced in its construction was so to shape the head piece as to prevent water from entering, and in this, after repeated trials, he happily succeeded. At the commencement his dress did not meet with that approval he humbly thought it deserved, but time and patience on his part procured the favourable opinion of the public. He essayed many attempts to perform experiments with his invention on dangerous occasions, and he was often prevented from doing this. At last prejudice toned down, and he convinced the public in America that his dress fully answered the purposes for which it was intended; that it was of special use when shipwrecks occurred on a dangerous coast, with a heavy sea raging and no means save the unaided efforts of a good swimmer at hand to convey a line to connect the ship with the coast, and when the efforts of the most powerful swimmer to do this were entirely unavailing. Then it was when a plucky man safely ensconced in his dress could perform all requirements with comparative ease. He feelingly alluded to the recent disastrous wreck of the Schiller on the Scilly Isles, and felt confident that had there been a few of his dresses on board the ill-fated ship, at the time she struck, the majority of the unhappy passengers and crew who met with so cruel a fate could easily have been saved. Amongst other experiments he alluded to the one he had made off the coast of Ireland, when coming from America to this country. He entered the sea many miles from the coast, with a packet of letters; on that occasion he experienced great difficulty in reaching land, and when he did he found nothing but high rocky cliffs to the east of Cape Clear, and no place offering a safe landing. The sea was running so high that sometimes he appeared to be on a level with the summits of the stupendous rocks, and at others he would appear to sink down into an awful abyss, those same rocks and cliffs looming up before him like great mountains. He had an awful time of it, he was obliged to confess, and he thought his end was come. It was the only time, he believed, he ever experienced sea sickness. Finding no opportunity of effecting a landing, he went out to sea again, and presently espied an inlet into the land, into which he succeeded in getting, and then landed, to the surprise of the simple inhabitants, who were not expecting such a strange visitor, and when he told them in reply to their anxious enquiries he had come from America (which he had) they were more scared than ever, and at once put him down to be a certain unmentionable gentleman. However, Bro. Boyton quieted their nerves somewhat by stripping off his dress. He engaged a man, after much difficulty, to drive him to Skibbereen. The poor fellow was so perplexed throughout the journey as left no doubt but that he thought that Bro. Boyton was veritably the aforesaid gentleman. The alacrity with which the man dispossessed himself of his burden at his journey's end highly amused our brother (no doubt Bro. Boyton fully compensated him for the fright he had undergone). With respect to his recent attempt to cross the English Channel he thought he should have, in common fairness, performed the feat. The doctor who examined him occasionally, from the commencement of the experiment to its conclusion, and who, he would give him credit, acted from the purest motives and intentions, delayed him considerably; and then on the voyage there was an altercation between the English and French Pilots, and it turned out much to his (Bro. Boyton's) chagrin that the people on board did not know where they were. He would say, when he was compelled to leave the water, he was, so to speak, as fresh as when he entered it, and to prove that, he, without extra exertion, performed some evolutions round the boat just as he would have done on ordinary occasions. He concluded by saying that on the following evening he should proceed to France, preparatory to trying the same experiment, only from the opposite shore, and he trusted that before he met the brethren again he should have performed the feat successfully. His object was to produce something of benefit to his kind, and he said, with an emphasis, the meaning of which could not be mistaken, that if a dress could be produced to-morrow in any way superior to his he would instantly drop the latter and take up the former. Throughout Bro. Boyton's speech he was listened to with marked attention, and proved he was not only endowed with the inventive faculty, but with capacity of delivering a neat off-handed speech, and a witty one too, for now and then he throws off some humorous remark or other which cannot fail to be provocative of considerable merriment to those whom he addresses. Bro. W. Rumsey, the father of the lodge, then sang the Entered Apprentice Song in his usually vigorous style, and some good songs were given afterwards by Bro. Boyton, John Rumsey, J. Jewitt Stephens, J. Hurrell, R. Bowman, and R. G. Seaborn, and the Immediate Past Master gave a capital recitation. The I.G. was then requested by the father of the lodge to say a few words in connection with the interesting event, and in compliance therewith Bro. Godolphin stated that ordinarily the I.G.'s position was an unenviable one, as he was called upon to address the brethren after every one else had had his say, and much to his regret found that the materials for a neat little speech were all used up previously, but on this present occasion he was not left in quite so forlorn a condition. It was not for an humble individual like him to eulogise Bro. Boyton or expatiate upon his merits, the Public Press, acting as the reflex of public opinion, having performed both so efficiently and satisfactorily. He would merely say, referring to Bro. Boyton's exploits, that all present loved noble daring, especially when that daring was performed for the furtherance of the interests of humanity, and was at the same time unassociated with the least taint of vulgar bravado. He could only give expression to the predominant feeling in his mind, and that was the complete satisfaction he felt that the introduction of Brother Boyton into their ancient and honourable order was effected through Lodge No. 206, under the Roll of the Grand Lodge of England. He could confidently assert that this feeling was shared in by every member of the lodge present, and next to his own lodge, by every visitor, at least, he could say this for his friends Bros. Aspinall and Rath. He could fully endorse the happy expression of the I.P.M. that their newly-made brother had virtually been a Mason from the commencement of his career. One happy circumstance he could not help alluding to was that Bro. Boyton as it were belonged to one section of the two great English-speaking peoples, and the rest of the brethren present to the other, and however far-fetched the idea might be to some, he felt that that evening they had formed a tiny link, and he, for himself, thought not an unimportant one either, in the chain which had been for a long time and now was in course of formation, and would inevitably bind these two great peoples in the bonds of peace and good will. He would remind the brethren that great general results were the products of seemingly unimportant individual acts. He did not know much of Bro. Boyton's movements. Perhaps the time was not far distant when he must leave this country and proceed to his native land; if so, Bro. Boyton could rest assured that the good wishes of all the brethren present would always accompany him. He felt certain that Bro. Boyton would, amongst the different assemblies to which his notoriety alone (apart from all his other deserts) would give him access, never lose the recollection of the time when he first became a Mason; and, finally, he would say that should Brother Boyton in his various wanderings come to England now and again, he would ever be received as an honoured and welcome guest by the members of his mother lodge. The reunion then terminated. It was throughout of a most joyous and fraternal character, and the remembrance of it will not quickly pass out of the minds of one and all privileged to be present on the interesting occasion.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on Monday, May 17th, and was attended by the W.M., Bro. Payne, with Bros. Pulman, S.W.; Withall, J.W.; Trussler, S.D.; Lane, J.D.; Burgess, I.G.; Broadbridge, S.; and Biddlecombe, Org.; and Bros. Wolfe, Leonard, Lilley, Moore, McMurray, McKay, Sanders, and several other brethren, to whom may be added the following visitors:—Bros. Barron Turner, W.M. 183; Geider, P.M. 507; Hiscox, P.M. 1420; Southam, S.W. 1420; Norris, Bye, and Lawson, Thos. Poese, I.P.M. and Treas.; and Jas. Stevens, P.M. of 720, 1216, and 1426. The lodge was opened in the First and Second Degrees, and Bro. Sanders and McMurray having qualified themselves for the next Degree retired and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and they were raised to the sublime Degree of M.M. The ceremony of installation was then performed in a perfect manner, and Bro. Charles Pulman was installed W.M. of the lodge by Bro. Poese, P.M., as Installing Master, with Bro. James Stevens, P.M., as Director of Ceremonies, and it was remarked by several of the visitors that the ceremony was well carried out by both those officers. The W.M. having appointed as officers Bros. Withall, S.W.; Trussler, J.W.; Payne, I.P.M.; Poese, P.M. and Treas.; B. Richardson, Sec.; Lane, S.D.; Burgess, J.D.; Broadbridge, I.G.; Biddlecombe, Org.; Wolfe, S.; Stedman, Tyler. A vote of thanks was unanimously agreed to be recorded on the minutes as an expression of the thanks of the lodge to Bros. Poese and Stevens for their kind and efficient services during the ceremony. The lodge then adjourned to a banquet provided by Bro. Lilley in his usual liberal and excellent manner, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to good fellowship, during which a P.M. jewel was presented to the I.P.M. by the W.M. on behalf of the lodge, with the wish that he would long have health to wear it.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—A very strong meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on the 25th inst. at the "Montpellier" Tavern, Walworth. The lodge was opened early in the afternoon by Bros. J. Wright, W.M.; Wise, S.W.; Macdonald, J.W.; A. Wright, I.P.M.; Clarke and Thomas, Past Masters; Pulsford, P.M., Sec.; Walters, S.D.; Allan, J.D.; Harris, I.G.; H. Potter, W.S.; Potter, D.C.; Stuart, A.D.C. Among the numerous visitors present we noticed Bros. Ough, G.P.G. of England; F. Binckes, P.G.S. of England, Secretary of the Masonic Institution for Boys; Wright, P.M. (504), P.G.S.D. of Herts; Neall, P.M. (1360), P.G.A.D.C. of Kent; Dann, P.M. (72); Koch, P.M. (820, 1381); Basilio, P.M. (917); Whitley, P.M. (944); Bethell, W.M. (30); Hocking, W.M. (1329); Burrell, W.M. (1446); Walls, I.G. (1503); Meadows, (898), &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Wise, the S.W., was conducted to the Chair of K.S. The ceremony was ably performed by the retiring Master, Bro. J. Wright. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows: Bros. Macdonald, S.W.; Walters, J.W.; Allan, S.D.; Harris, J.D.; Potter, I.G.; Stuart, D.C.; Smith, W.S. Messrs. Wells, Brady, Pritchard, and Hall were then initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M. most excellently. A notice of motion by Bro. Nomico, that a benevolent fund should be established in connection with the lodge, was then fully considered, and after some considerable discussion it was seconded, but, upon being formally put to the lodge, it was lost by a large majority. A vote of thanks was then passed to Bro. J. Wright, I.P.M., for the very handsome manner in which he had entertained the brethren of the Audit Committee at his house on the previous Wednesday. It was moved by Bro. A. Wright, P.M., and seconded by the S.D., that the cost of the Steward's Installation Jewel should be defrayed by the lodge and presented to Bro. Wright, I.P.M., who had officiated at the recent Albert Hall ceremonial. This was unanimously carried, and Bro. Wright made a very feeling reply in acknowledgment of the kindness of his brethren. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren, to the number of nearly ninety, adjourned to the banquet, which was well served in the large hall attached to the tavern. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were enthusiastically received, and Bros. Fowler and Walls contributed one verse each of the "National Anthem" and the "Globe and the Prince of Wales."

In proposing "The Health of the Grand Officers," the W.M. alluded to the satisfaction he had derived from the presence of two of that distinguished body in the lodge that day, namely, Bros. Ough and Binckes. The first named briefly acknowledged the compliment, but the latter brother made a most eloquent reply. In the course of his speech he alluded to the great national event of the 28th of April last, and directed the attention of the brethren to those remarkable words which had fallen so forcibly from the lips of the Prince of Wales on that ever memorable occasion—"Loyalty and Charity." He was of opinion that the Heir Apparent had done more to cement the loyalty of the English people to the throne of this great country by assuming the responsibilities and position of M.W.G.M. of Freemasons than any other act ever performed by his immediate Royal predecessors. It was highly necessary for a personage of the Prince's rank to steer clear of any partiality, and to avoid creating dissatisfaction in any community of Her Majesty's subjects; but in the recent instance he had, notwithstanding the attacks made upon Freemasonry by a powerful religious body, bravely disregarded their puerile displeasure, and had become the chief head and ruler of the Craft. This act, and the peculiar circumstances attending it, coupled with the genial speech he had made on the day of his Installation, must ever endear the Prince to the brethren as well as to the nation at large. The speaker then went on to state that many men joined the Craft for the sake of conviviality and the pleasures of the banquet table, others for the love of ostentation, which the tinsel and glitter of the regalia afforded, and some for charity. He then enlarged upon the charitable advantages of the three great Masonic Institutions, which were mainly supported by voluntary contributions, and expressed how sorry he felt that, although there were so many brethren on the Grand Register of England, but few comparatively, in proportion to the number enrolled, individually contributed to those excellent charities for the relief of the orphan, the widow, and the aged. In conclusion, the worthy brother made a warm appeal to the charity of the members of the Southern Star, on behalf of the forthcoming festival of the Boys' School, and hoped that they would send their Steward, Bro. J. Wright, I.P.M., with an ample list worthy of the occasion and of their powerful lodge; and finally he entreated them to bear in mind those watchwords "Loyalty and Charity," and always to act as true men and good Masons. It is needless to state that in the course of his speech the indefatigable Secretary of the Boys' School was warmly applauded by the brethren, and, upon resuming his seat, received a very enthusiastic mark of Masonic approval. "The Health of the W.M." was then proposed by the I.P.M., who congratulated the lodge upon the choice it had made in unanimously electing Bro. Wise to that position. This toast was received with excellent "fire," and the W.M. made a brief reply. "The Health of the Initiates" followed, and Bro. Brady responded. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. again alluded to the honour the lodge had received by the presence that day of several members of Grand Lodge and of Provincial Grand Lodges, and also for the attendance of a great number of Past Masters and Worshipful Masters and members of many distinguished Metropolitan Lodges. The hour being late, some of the visitors had left, but Bros. Wright, Neall, Koch, Walls, and Meadows on their behalf and for themselves briefly acknowledged the compliment. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed, coupled with the names of Bros. J. Wright, Pulsford, Clarke, Thomas, and A. Wright. In the progress of this toast, Bro. Wright, I.P.M., was invested by the W.M. with the very handsome jewel of P.M. of the Southern Star Lodge. The P.M.'s whose names were mentioned individually responded. The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" was duly honoured and severally responded to. Between the intervals of the toasts and the replies, Bros. Bird, Meadows, Walls, and Fowler instrumentally and vocally amused the brethren. The Tyler's toast brought one of the most successful and numerous gatherings that had ever taken place of the Southern Star Lodge to a formal conclusion, and the members adjourned until September next.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—The installation meeting of this flourishing lodge was held at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, Flodden-road, Camberwell, on Thursday, 13th May, and was well attended. The lodge was opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed, after which a ballot, which was unanimous, was taken for Bros. C. R. Steel, Grand Stewards' Lodge, and C. J. Henton, 144, as joining members. Bro. C. H. Rugg was examined and entrusted, and afterwards passed. Mr. Geo. Baxter having been ballotted for, was duly initiated. The ceremony of installation was then effectively conducted by Bro. W. J. Messenger, I.P.M., as Installing Master. The Senior Warden, Bro. J. H. Hastie, being the W.M. elect, was duly introduced and installed, and appointed his officers as follows:—M. S. Larham, S.W.; H. Hammond, J.W.; C. C. Dunville, Chaplain; A. Styan, Treas.; J. J. Curtis, Sec.; T. W. Carnell, S.D.; C. Fountain, J.D.; J. Stevens, D.C.; D. A. Ross, I.G.; F. H. Cozens, Org.; W. Gray, W.S.; W. C. Hale, C.S. A Past Master's jewel was then presented to Bro. W. J. Messenger, and the new W.M. most impressively initiated Mr. G. Baxter. The report of the Audit Committee was then considered, and being highly satisfactory, its adoption was carried with applause. Messrs. C. W. Davies and H. A. Price were proposed for initiation at the next lodge meeting, and the brethren then unanimously agreed that the G.M. Installation Steward's jewel should be presented to the I.P.M., Bro. Messenger. The lodge was then closed, and the banquet was served in the lodge mess room of the corps. The brethren there enjoyed themselves for three hours, the new W.M. acquitting himself admirably, and setting an example of brevity of speech which was highly appreciated, and followed by all present in others, that he was brought to abrupt silence by the roar of laughter which greeted the notes of a piping bullfinch, which a brother had accidentally set going and could not stop.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on the 27th ult. There were present: Bros. Gardner, W.M.; Koch, I.P.M.; Stuart, P.M.; Secretary; Drysdale, P.M., Acting S.W.; Stokes, Acting J.W.; Walls, Acting S.D.; Webb, Acting J.D.; Kohler, Acting I.G. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, but the confirmation thereof stood over until the next regular meeting. The W.M. then initiated Messrs. Pomeroy and Stranger into Craft mysteries, and passed Bro. Rogers to the F.C. Degree. The lodge having been duly closed the brethren adjourned to supper, which was presided over by the W.M., assisted by Bros. Walls and Stokes. Among the visitors were Bros. P. Parsons, (749); Westwood, Urban; Haddon, Metropolitan. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave, in well expressed terms, "The Queen and Craft," and "The M.W. G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales." These toasts were loyally drunk, and Bro. Walls contributed one verse of the popular ode to H.R.H.'s honour. "The Health of the Grand Officers" followed, and the W.M. alluded to the admirable manner in which the duties of Pro Grand Master and Deputy Grand Master were performed by Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale. The toast of the W.M. was proposed by the I.P.M., and Bro. Gardner acknowledged the compliment at length. In giving "The Health of the Initiates" the W.M. stated that from the recommendations he had received from their proposers, and from his own personal knowledge of their antecedents, he felt assured that the Kennington Lodge would have reason to congratulate itself upon having enlisted into its ranks two such worthy members as Bros. Pomeroy and Shanger. Bro. Parsons having sang the "Entered Apprentice," all the initiates responded, and the former made an excellent reply, in which he stated that having been a great deal abroad, he had witnessed the universal bond of fraternity which appeared to unite Freemasons of every country and creed of religion, and from what he had seen in his perambulations and heard from his personal friends, who were members of the Craft, he firmly believed that the artificial and un-Christian-like barricades, which for centuries past have kept men of different nationalities asunder, were rapidly being levelled by the moral and intellectual influences of Freemasonry; and in conclusion he expressed how impressed he had been that evening by the almost Divine language of the ritual. The toast of the visitors followed, and was responded to by Bros. Parsons and Haddon. The toasts of "The Past Masters" and "Junior Officers of the Lodge" were then given. Bros. Koch and Stuart replied for the former, and Bros. Reeves, Webb, and Walls, for the latter. Between the toasts Bros. Cruse, Pomeroy, Walls and Webb vocally amused the brethren. The Tyler's toast brought an agreeable meeting to a conclusion, and the members of the lodge separated for the summer recess.

EARL SPENCER LODGE (No. 1420).—This young and prosperous lodge held its third installation meeting at the Northcote Hotel, Battersea Rise, on Friday, May 14th, and was attended by Bros. Chas. Jackson, W.M.; Edwd. Spooner, I.P.M. and Treas.; Dr. Kempster, J.W.; Josh. W. Hiscox, Sec.; Wm. Hudson, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; A. Southam, S.D.; C. Pullman, J.D.; Chas. Estlin, I.G.; W. B. Miller, Jno. Gibson, A. Brown, H. R. Baker, J. S. Sinclair, J. D. Pildisch, J. J. Joseph, M.D.; W. Salter, Fredk. Reed, Benj. Miller. The lodge was opened at six o'clock, and the minutes having been read, and the election of Bro. Dr. Kempster as W.M. having been confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the ceremony of installation was proceeded with by Bro. Spooner, P.M., as Installing Master, assisted by Bro. Jackson, the retiring W.M., and the efficient manner in which those services were performed gave the brethren great satisfaction. The officers appointed by the W.M. to assist him during his year of office were Bro. A. Southam, S.W.; C. Pullman, J.W.; C. Jackson, I.P.M.; E. Spooner, P.M., Treas.; J. J. Hiscox, P.M., Sec.; C. Esther, S.D.; J. Gibson, J.D.; W. B. Miller, I.G.; J. J. Joseph, M.D., S.; J. Gilbert, Tyler. A vote of thanks was then tendered to Bro. E. Spooner, P.M., for the kind way and efficient manner that he had installed the W.M.; and the W.M. having presented to Bro. Jackson the beautiful P.M. jewel, voted to him by the lodge with the brethren's best wishes, the lodge was closed and adjourned to an excellent banquet, which reflected great credit upon the proprietor of the hotel. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to, and peace, harmony, and brotherly love were enjoyed during the remainder of the evening. We may add that there is a Lodge of Instruction attached to this lodge, which meets every alternate Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, and the members of the Earl Spencer Lodge will be glad to receive any brother in search of instruction.

PROVINCIAL.

GATESHEAD-ON-TYNE.—LODGE OF INDUSTRY (No. 48).—The regular meeting of this old and prosperous lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, West-street, on Monday evening, May 25th, at seven o'clock. The lodge was opened by Bro. Rd. Gregory, W.M., and the following officers, viz.:—Bros. Dr. K. F. Cook, P.M., M. of C., D.P.G.S.D.; John Ed. Robson, I.P.M. and Treasurer; J. D. Stephen, S.W.; Thos. Allison, J.W.; J. G. Waddington, S.D.; M. Corbett, J.D.; R. Terry, Org.; J. H. Rowell, I.G.; J. T. Smith, S.S.; R. Whitfield, J.S. (who also acted as Secretary in the absence of Bro. D. Sinclair); C. O. Gay, A.S.; J. Curry, Tyler. There was a goodly attendance on the part of the members and visiting brethren, amongst whom were—Bros. A. Harkness, P.M. 48, Prov. G.S.D.; W. E. Franklin, P.M. 424, Prov. G.S.D.; Benj. Frazer, M. T. Plotnicki, T. Hopkins, T. Sinclair, B. Smith, W. Whitfield, John Wood, Robt. Brason, Wm. Douglas, John G. Robertson, F. P. Jones, P.M. 48; Jos.

Cook, W.M. 481; Thos. Blenkinsop, P.M., R. Smaile, P.M., T. Best, B. Dewar, 541. The minutes of last regular lodge and lodge of emergency held May 19th having been read and confirmed and ballots taken, Mr. Edward Liddell was admitted and duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by Bro. John Ed. Robson, I.P.M., in a most impressive manner. Bros. Sadanski, Harrison, and J. W. Robertson were passed to the F.C. Degree in an able manner by Bro. A. Harkness, P.M. Bros. Jackson, Hewitt, Grieves, and Mendelssohn were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by Bro. John Ed. Robson, I.P.M. The W.M. then closed the lodge down to the First Degree. Five candidates were proposed for initiation, and two brethren as subscribing members. The W.M., on behalf of the subscribers, members of the lodge, then presented Bro. John Ed. Robson, the I.P.M., with a P.M.'s jewel of exquisite workmanship, as a mark of their appreciation of his services, not only when Master of the lodge, but in other various offices, and concluded an able speech by wishing the I.P.M. long life to wear the jewel, health, wealth, and prosperity; also that the time may be far distant when his (the I.P.M.'s) connection with Lodge 48 would cease. Bro. Robson acknowledged the presentation in very feeling terms, and said he would ever be grateful to the brethren and wear that beautiful jewel with becoming pride. That he did not attach so much elation to it on account of its intrinsic value as the good feeling he found manifested towards himself, and the desire of the brethren to regard any services which he may have rendered the lodge, and it should be an incentive to him to continue working for "old 48," to the best of his abilities. It is said that brevity is the soul of wit. With him that evening he was brief, not owing to wit, but because no language could find words to express his appreciation of their kindness. The jewel bears the following inscription at back:—"Presented by the brethren to Bro. John Ed. Robson, P.M., as a mark of esteem, May, 1875;" also in front: "Industry Lodge, 48." The lodge was closed at 10 o'clock, when the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, where they partook of refreshment and passed the remainder of the evening in social harmony, the glees and part songs being performed by the choir in a masterly style. The usual toasts were given, "The Queen," "Prince of Wales," "Rest of Royal Family," "The Newly Initiated," "Visitors." The I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who, in reply, thanked the brethren for the kind manner in which it had been proposed and received, and hoped he would hand over to his successor the affairs of the lodge in the same satisfactory state as it had been by previous Masters. He had a very important duty to perform yet, which was to propose "The Health of the Officers," and in doing so it was a matter of great importance to state that all the officers were present except one, and that was the worthy Secretary, through illness. He would couple with it the name of Bro. Dr. R. F. Cook, P.M., Master of Ceremonies. The M.C. in returning thanks thought that the fact of all the officers being present to fill their respective positions should be very gratifying to the W.M., as indeed every Master who had passed through that chair knew what a great assistance it was while giving the degrees to have every officer in his post, and able to do his duty. He was glad to find the W.M. so well supported at the Installation of the Prince of Wales—that magnificent ceremonial which took place in the Albert Hall, on 28th April. Behold 10,000 richly jewelled breasts beneath which lay the brightest genius and talent which this or any other country or nation could collect—a scene which no one who had been present would ever forget, and it was also gratifying to find the Province of Durham enjoying so good a position, especially "48," being close to the Throne, and he trusted the officers would show themselves worthy of the name of "48" by their industry. He had now to refer to the name of one who had worked willingly and well in the cause of Freemasonry and the interests of this lodge, Bro. John Ed. Robson their I.P.M. and Treasurer. In attaching to his breast that evening the presentation jewel, while they were doing him an honour, they were also performing a duty, and he had now great pleasure in proposing the toast of the I.P.M. Bro. Jas. Robson, I.P.M., said he now found himself in one of the most unpleasant situations in which a man could get, viz., that of replying to a toast on the occasion of a presentation—because in proposing that toast it was customary, in fact he might say it was the rule, to speak of all the good qualities, and say nothing about the bad—our good Bro. Dr. Cook, P.M., had done so on this occasion. What little he (I.P.M.) had done was without doubt appreciated by the brethren; but he had done no more than was his duty, and in keeping with the first obligation and charge in Masonry. The jewel with which he had been presented he should always look upon with pleasure, and as an heir-loom. The W.M. proposed "Our Next Merry Meeting," which terminated another of the many happy and harmonious meetings of this ancient lodge. This lodge was well and worthily represented at the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales by Bros. Rd. Gregory, W.M.; John Ed. Robson, I.P.M.; A. Harkness, P.M., P.G.S.D.; Robt. F. Cook, P.P.G.S.D.; J. H. Thompson, P.P.G.S.B.; W. E. Franklin, P.M. 424 P.P.G.S.D.; J. D. Stephen, S.W.; Thos. Allison, J.W.; R. Whitfield, M.M. The Provincial Grand Master of Durham, John Fawcett, Esq., acted as Deputy Grand Master, and Bro. Wm. Hy. Crookes, P.G. Sec., and Bro. John Bailey, P.P.J.G.W., as Stewards for the Province of Durham.

COLCHESTER.—ANGEL LODGE (No. 51).—At the monthly meeting of the Angel Lodge of Freemasons, No. 51, held at the lodge room, Three Cups Hotel, Colchester, on Tuesday evening, May 18th, 1875, a valuable gold keyless lever watch was presented to Bro. T. J. Ralling, who has occupied the post of Honorary Secretary for upwards of four years. The business of the lodge having been concluded, the Worshipful Master (Bro. Charles Cobb) invited Bro. Ralling to advance to the pedestal, and addressed him as follows: Bro. Ralling, I have been instructed by the Past Masters, Officers, and brethren of this lodge, to present you this evening with a mark of their appreciation of the way in which you have carried out the duties of Honorary Secretary of this lodge during the last few years. I can assure you that the brethren generally feel that the duties have been so onerous, and that you have carried them out with such skill and ability, that these circumstances call for a mark of their approval. With respect to the Past Masters, I am sure they appreciate the way in which you have aided them, and personally I may say I have received the greatest attention and assistance at your hands: in fact, I could not have carried out the duties of my office had I not been aided as I have been. We have been favoured, by the kindness of our Bro. Atkins, with valuable assistance in this presentation. He has, with the ability and skill which has always characterised him, and also with great kindness, engrossed the sentiments of this lodge on the vellum which you see before you. I will now read it, so that you may hear what is upon it. The W.M. then read the following inscription, which was engrossed on vellum by Bro. C. Wilson Atkins, and handsomely framed: "Angel Lodge, No. 51, of Ancient Free, and Accepted Masons of England. To Thomas J. Ralling, Secretary. Dear Sir and Brother,—We, the Worshipful Master, Wardens, Past Masters, and Brethren of the Angel Lodge, in presenting you with the accompanying testimonial, embrace this opportunity to convey to you the very high sense of our appreciation of your valued and zealous services in promoting the interest of our lodge, and of Freemasonry in general, during the years that you have so ably performed the arduous duties of Secretary; and we also express our sincere wish that the Great Architect of the Universe will bestow on you the blessing of health in this world to perform the duties he may call upon you to do, and the greater blessing of happiness in the Grand Lodge above. Signed on behalf of the brethren. Chas. Cobb, W.M.; Alfred Welsh, S.W.; G. Gard Pye, J.W.; Fred A. Cole, I.P.M." The Worshipful Master continued—The form of testimonial we have decided upon, Bro. Ralling, is a watch, and I trust you may long live to wear it. I cannot add anything to the sentiments engrossed on that tablet; they express the sentiments of the whole lodge, and they are ratified and confirmed by the presence of the worthy brethren you see around you. May you long live to carry out the duties of Secretary, and to wear the watch I now present to you. Allow me to congratulate you, Brother Secretary, on this occasion. The watch, which was supplied by Bro. Samuel, of East Hill, bears Bro. Ralling's initials in monogram, and also the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. T. J. Ralling, by the brethren of the Angel Lodge of Freemasons, No. 51, in grateful recognition of his valued and efficient services as Secretary.—Colchester, May 18th, 1875." Bro. Ralling on receiving the present, replied as follows:—Right Worshipful Sir, Worshipful Master, and Brethren,—You will readily believe me when I say that I do not think I ever was placed in a more difficult position than that in which I find myself at the present moment. If I were an orator, like some of our brethren, I might not feel any diffidence, but I can assure you that I am perfectly at a loss adequately to express my feelings on the present occasion. A distinguished public man, in addressing a large gathering in this very room but a few evenings since, stated that whilst listening to the speech in which his health had been proposed he had had some little misgivings as to his own identity. I fear I must plead guilty to a feeling somewhat akin to his, for after listening to the excessively kind and flattering remarks in which our W.M. has conveyed to me this handsome testimonial of your esteem, I have felt that my poor services have been, to say the least, very much over-rated. It is true I have, by your continued confidence, occupied this post for more than four years, and during that time my earnest endeavour has been to carry out the duties to the very best of my ability; but the only reward which I have desired has been your approval where it could be justly bestowed, and your forbearance in any cases in which I may have been found wanting. I have always felt my position to be one of great trust and responsibility, not only in being the medium through which all the funds of the lodge are conveyed to the Treasurer, but as being answerable for many little matters which do not come before the lodge at our monthly meetings. On every occasion it has been my endeavour to uphold the dignity of the Craft generally, and of this ancient lodge particularly, and to promote by every means in my power the comfort and convenience of individual brethren. In this, however, I cannot claim to be an exception to the generality of our members. Do we not meet here for a common object? Art we not all zealous for our Craft, and jealous for the honour and credit of our lodge? and I feel sure that there are many brethren who would have fulfilled the Secretary's duties with far greater ability than I have done, though, I hope I may be allowed to say, not with a more earnest desire to do their duty. We are reminded in the course of our ceremonies that nature has implanted in our breasts a deep and indissoluble attachment to the land of our birth; and this, I think, may be extended to the lodge which saw our birth in Masonry. At all events, that feeling of attachment has always influenced me in the fulfilment of my duties. I have felt that, as a dutiful child, I was bound to do all in my power to further the interests of my mother lodge, even if at times it may have required a slight stretch of my cable-tow; and I hope I may take this handsome gift of yours as an index that I have been to some extent successful. I thank you all from the bottom of my heart, for the great kindness you have exhibited towards me, not only in the heyday of pleasure, but in the time of affliction; and in accepting this beautiful testimonial, allow me to say that I shall never look upon it without feelings of the greatest pleasure, not only on account of its intrinsic value, but as an evidence of what I esteem far more highly—the good will and good opinion of my Masonic brethren. Once more I thank you. The Worshipful Master: Brethren, I feel that our thanks are due to Bro. Atkins for the great skill and ability he has shown in executing the tablet. It is really a work of art, and I am sure I cannot be wrong in moving that a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Atkins be entered on the minutes. Bro. Welch (Senior Warden): I have much pleasure in seconding the motion. Bro. Ralling: Perhaps I may be allowed to add my own special thanks to Bro. Atkins for so kindly devoting his time and talents in my behalf. I ought to have done so just now, but under the peculiar circumstances of my position, I am sure Bro. Atkins will not feel that I intended any slight to his beautiful workmanship. It entitles him to my warmest thanks. The motion was put and carried unanimously. The brethren present upon the occasion were:—Bros. the Right Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Province (Matthew E. Clark); Chas. Cobb, W.M.; Fred A. Cole, I.P.M.; A. Welch, S.W.; G. Gard Pye, J.W.; T. J. Ralling, Sec.; W. P. Lewis, P.M.; T. R. Quilker, P.M.; A. Cobb, P.M.; H. Samuel, P.M.; C. O. G. Becker, P.M.; Col. Stallard, R.A.; Capt. Owen, 88th Regt.; Capt. Bowen, 88th; T. A. Middleton, W. Club, A. R. Clench, W. S. Sprent, J. L. Browne, W. W. Daniell, J. Hanley, C. E. Denton, C. Nicholl, junr., J. J. C. Turner, W. Bray, W. R. Wilcocks, G. Mercer, and Wm. G. Oliver, P.M. United Pilgrims' Lodge, No. 507.

IPSWICH.—BRITISH UNION LODGE (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting of the above old and flourishing lodge came off at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on the 20th ult., when there were present Bros. A. D. George, W.M.; W. Rev. E. I. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.P.G.C.; C. Schulen, P.P.G.D.C.; Emra Holmes, P.P.G.; Reg., M. C.; P. Cornell, P.P.G.S.D.; A. J. Barber, P.G.O.; J. J. Burton, P.P.G.D.C. Cambridge, S.W.; S. Wright, Acting J.W.; W. Spalding, P.M. Sec.; H. Miller, S.D.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, J.D.; H. Clarke, acting I.G., &c. &c. The lodge having been opened in ancient form and the minutes confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Samuel Shortridge, gentleman; Mr. Wm. Fraser, junr. merchant; Mr. John Ireland Bowes, surgeon; and Mr. Harry Ribbans, gentleman, all of whom were unanimously elected for initiation. The last named candidate was not present. The W.M. having resigned the gavel into the hands of the D.P.G.M., the venerable brother with much impressiveness and simple dignity initiated Mr. Shortridge into the mysteries and privileges of the Craft universal. Bro. A. J. Barber initiated Mr. Fraser, and the W.M. assuming the gavel introduced Mr. Bowes to the Masonic world. The lodge having been opened in the Third Degree, Bro. Edwards was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, the W.M. ably performing the ceremony; Bro. Barber, P.G.O., who presided at the organ, played the Dead March in Saul, and the brethren, led by Bro. Clarke, chanting that noble hymn, "Days and moments quickly flying," added much to the solemnity of the proceedings. The Secretary read a communication from the P.G. Sec., relative to the charity scheme which had been propounded by Bro. Boby, P.S.G.W.; and it was proposed by Bro. Emra Holmes, and carried unanimously, that the W.M. represent the lodge on the committee formed to consider the scheme. A communication was received from the Masonic Hall Company asking for an increase of rent, which was cheerfully accorded, the prosperous state of the lodge fairly warranting the same. Dr. Wm. Elliston, P.M. of the Perfect Friendship Lodge, was proposed as a joining member. The other business of the lodge having been disposed of, the W.M. announced that at next meeting he should hold the Feast of Roses as customary, when he hoped there would be a large attendance. The usual supper, toasts, and harmony followed, and the brethren separated at a reasonable hour.

WARRINGTON.—LODGE OF LIGHTS (No. 148).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening last. The W.M., Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P. Prot. G. Reg. Cumberland and Westmoreland, was supported by Bros. John Harding, I.P.M.; W. H. Robinson, S.W.; Thomas Tunstall, J.W.; W. Richardson, P.M.; W. Monop, P.M. 1250; J. R. Young, J.D.; D. Wilkins, Hon. Sec.; C. E. Hindley, I.G.; W. H. Spring, George A. Clark, John Armstrong, R. Hooper, Thomas Jones, James Hannah, Tyler. Visitors: Bros. J. R. Tomlinson, W.M. 368; P. J. Edelsten, W.M. 1134; K. Brierley, W.M. 1250; Edward Aston, S.W. 758; John Lightburn, Org. 758. The lodge was opened with prayer and the minutes declared to be correctly recorded. The ballot was taken for Mr. James Paterson, and it being unanimously in his favour, and the candidate being present, he was introduced in due form and initiated by the W.M. The working tools were presented and explained by the J.W., and the charges impressively delivered by the S.W., Bro. W. H. Robinson. The W.M. reported that Bro. Robert Gibbons had been successful in his application to the Royal Benevolent Institution. Votes of thanks were entered on the minutes to Bro. Robert Wylie and the W.M. for the trouble they had taken in the matter. Bro. Armstrong drew attention to the improved appearance of the lodge by the introduction of the columns purchased from the Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge, Whitehaven. The W.M. remarked that they were wrongly placed, and promised to give the brethren a lecture on "Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty,"—of which the columns were symbolic—the first evening that was "open." After fraternal greetings from the visitors and some routine business, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren separated in harmony.

Thompson, the W.M. elect, to Bro. Mackney, the Installing Master, for installation. Lodge opened in the Third Degree, all but Installed Masters retired, when a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Thompson duly installed with all ancient rites. Board of Installed Masters closed, when the Master Masons were admitted, the W.M. proclaimed, and saluted according to custom. Lodge closed in the Third Degree, when the Fellow Crafts were admitted, the W.M. proclaimed and saluted. Lodge closed in the Second Degree, the E.A. admitted, the W.M. proclaimed and saluted. The following brethren were then appointed as officers for the ensuing year, and invested:—Bros. Kingstone, S.W.; J. J. Davison, J.W.; N. Martin, P.M.; Treas. Harvey, P.M.; Sec. Wills, S.D.; Wingrove, J.D.; Churchley, I.G.; Sears, D.C.; Wells, Steward; Egerton, Steward. After the usual addresses, and a vote of thanks unanimously accorded to Bro. Mackney, Installing Master, the lodge was closed in due form with prayer, and the brethren repaired to banquet, served in Bro. Bray's usual good style, 56 sitting down. The W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was received with musical honours, Bro. Miles singing the solo of the National Anthem. "The M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales" being the next toast, was most enthusiastically received by the brethren. The toasts of "The Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon," "The Prov. G.M. of Kent, Lord Holmsdale," and "The Prov. Grand Officers" followed, all of which were received with due honour. The I.P.M. Bro. Russell, then proposed "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Thompson," in highly eulogistic terms, and the W.M. in responding, thanked the brethren for the very hearty manner in which they had received the toast. The I.P.M. in performing it had, he thought, very much flattered him; but he hoped always to retain the esteem which the brethren had evinced by electing him to the high position he held at the present time, by occupying the chair of K.S. He would fulfil the proud position to the very best of his abilities, and he doubted not the officers of the lodge would give him that assistance which was necessary in all ceremonies; that they might lose none of their beauty or solemnity during the time he had the honour of presiding over the lodge. "The Health of the I.P.M." was then proposed by the W.M., who spoke of the services rendered to the lodge during the past twelve months, and as a token of the manner in which his (Bro. Russell's) services were appreciated, he had great pleasure in attaching to his left breast a P.M. jewel, unanimously voted by the lodge, and he hoped T.G.A.O.T.U. would long spare Bro. Russell to wear it. The Last Rose of Summer was then sung in Bro. Tibby's best style, and Bro. Russell, in replying, thanked the W.M. for the many kind things said in his (Bro. Russell's) favour; but he was not aware he merited such a testimonial. He was exceedingly obliged to the brethren for the handsome jewel, but he thought when he was elected to the chair of K.S. it was the greatest honour they could have bestowed on him, and he could not find words to express how grateful he was for the kind manner in which they had shewn their approval of his past services, which had not been arduous, but labours of love, and he could only most heartily express his gratitude for the present. "The Installing Master and P.M.'s of the Lodge" was then proposed by the W.M., and he said this might be considered a home toast, for he was sure much depended upon the P.M.'s, and those who aspired to the high office he now filled, would do well to emulate the worthy manner in which those P.M.'s had performed their duties. Bro. Mackney responded for the toast, and said it was a pleasurable duty to him to assist his lodge at any time, and whether as Installing Master or otherwise, he was always only too glad to be with the lodge. The W.M. then claimed the attention of the brethren for a few moments in proposing "The Masonic Charities." Bro. Terry, Secretary to the Aged Freemasons' Institution, replied in what was really the speech of the evening. Bro. Terry said it was a great pleasure for him to be with the Lodge of Emulation that evening, for he always visited a lodge in Kent feeling proud of the noble support the province gave to the charities. It was part of their duties as Masons never forgotten, and he could thank most heartily the Kentish brethren for the generous and persistent support they gave to the three institutions in years gone by. Whatever the outside world might say about Masonry being only a cloak for eating and drinking, the meeting a week since, when £7,300 was brought into the funds of the Girls' School by the Lord Mayor, which provided for 150 young girls, from 8 to 16 years of age, to be clothed and educated, and to be made good and useful women; and on 7th July, when the Boys' School festival would be held, when, if report speaks truly, the sum would reach five figures (not less than £10,000), when the Pro G.M. of England would preside, and that would mean the providing for 176 young lads with the same advantages we were trying to give our own sons. In January last the list of subscriptions to the Institution for Aged Freemasons amounted to from £6,000 to £7,000, which supported 246 old men and women. Some people might sneer at Freemasonry and call it hard names, but something practical remained, and he would defy any remarks to contradict or refute the great truth that brotherly love, relief and truth were the grand watchwords of the Order. Two others had been brought immediately to the notice of the Craft by the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales, loyalty and charity; the loyalty of the brethren was never questioned, for it was deeply rooted in our hearts, and the charity to each other only received a fresh impetus by the words of our Royal brother the M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales, and he could only thank the brethren of Kent for their undeviating support to the three institutions, and wish God speed to the whole charities of the Order. "The Visitors," proposed by the W.M., was responded to by Bro. Russell, of the Erasmus Wilson Lodge, and Bro. C. H. Jardine, of the U.S.A. Craft. Bro. Russell could only feel proud of the honour of coupling his name with the toast, for he looked forward to many years of mutual prosperity for the Lodge of Emulation 299, and he hoped it would not be considered an undesired compliment when he said he had never been so pleased in visiting any lodge as that evening, for it had been a great treat to witness the thorough manner in which Bro. Mackney had performed the installation ceremony. He had witnessed Masonry in Egypt and India, and he had been much edified by what had taken place that evening. He returned his sincere thanks for the kind manner in which the health of the visitors had been proposed and received, and he would give way for his Bro. Jardine. Bro. Jardine felt a peculiar pleasure in replying to the toast, for though he was made, passed and raised, in the wide world he was a Dartfordian, it was his native place. He could speak from experience of the firm ties of Masonry, and give much information with respect to the Craft in the new world, and in referring to the expedition about to start for the Arctic Regions, asked whether it was beyond the bounds of possibility that Masonry might extend even farther than it had yet, and that perhaps a lodge of Freemasons might be established even under the very Pole itself. He gave many instances of the fellowship of the Craft, and the bonds that tied each member of the Craft true to each other, and hoped many of the fraternity would avail themselves of visiting America upon the occasion of celebrating their centenary, where they would receive such a welcome as only Masons could give. "The Officers of the Lodge" and the Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion one of the most successful meetings of this old Kentish Lodge. Bro. Knight presided at the harmonium, and Bros. De Jersey, Butt, Lush, Fletcher and Chilcott rendered capital songs after the toasts, which contributed much to the enjoyment of the brethren.

LEICESTER.—JOHN O'GAUNT LODGE (No. 523).—The ordinary monthly meeting of the John O'Gaunt Lodge No. 523, was held on Thursday, the 20th ultimo, at the Freemasons' Hall, on which occasion there was a numerous assemblage of the brethren, including Bro. S. S. Partridge, Prov. Grand Sec., W.M.; F. J. Baines, I.P.M.; G. Toller, P.M.; W. B. Smith, P.M.; A. M. Duff, P.M.; Clement Stretton, P.P.G.W.; C. E. Stretton, P.G.A.D.C.; J. W. Smith, W.M. 279; E. Mason, S.W. 1391; J. T. Thorp, S.W.; T. A. Wykes, Sec.; A. Ross, S.D.; R. Taylor, J.D.; W. Le Shout, I.G.; G. B. Atkins, J. Farmer, Perseverance Lodge, 349, Ohio, U.S.A., and others. The lodge was opened in due form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and Mr. M. P. McCormack-McCormack, L.R.C.P., was unanimously approved by ballot as a candidate for initiation. The attentive ear of the neophyte received from the instructive tongue of the W.M. those sacred mysteries of the First Degree which are safely lodged in the repository of faithful breasts. Bro. J. T. Thorp, S.W., a young Mason of considerable ability, was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; as also Bro. W. B. Smith, P.M., to the important office of Treasurer of the Lodge.

JERSEY.—LODGE LA CESAREE (No. 590).—The twenty-fourth anniversary meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, on Thursday, the 27th of May, and was, as usual, well attended, for the purpose of initiating a profane and installing the newly elected W.M. Soon after three o'clock p.m. the lodge was opened by Bro. Ph. W. Binet, I.P.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Jos. Pallot, W.M., visited by a very serious illness, who was assisted by Bros. H. E. Durell, S.W.; A. Grant, J.W.; A. Schmitt, P.M.; P. Prov. G.S.W.; Sec. Dr. Durell, P.M.; P. Prov. G.S.W., Treas.; Geo. J. Renouf, P.M., P.G.S.W.; A. Viel, P.M.; P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; J. Oatley, P.M., P.G.J.W., &c., &c. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Captain A. Briard and declared to be unanimous in favour of his admission, who, being in attendance, was, according to ancient custom, initiated into the secrets and mysteries of the Order. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Schmitt took the chair as Installing Master, when Bros. Ph. W. Binet and Geo. J. Renouf presented Bro. Grant as W.M. elect. The customary enumeration of duties was made and acknowledged; the ancient charges read and sincerely assented to, and the Obl. of M.W. elect administered. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and all who had not passed the chair were then called to withdraw. A Board of Installed Masters was formed, among whom were W. Bros. Ph. W. Binet, J. Durell, G. J. Renouf, J. O. Le Sueur, P.M. 491, P.G. Sec.; Ed. Martel, W.M. 958, P.G.D.C.; J. Oatley, W. Z. Pugsley, P.M., W.M. 245, P. Prov. G.J.W.; M. Gallican, P.M. and W.M. 877, P. Prov. G.S.W.; G. Rogers, P.M. 1003, &c. The Installing Master then duly placed Bro. A. Grant in the chair of K.S., according to immemorial custom. After the board had been closed, the several classes of Master Masons, Fellow Crafts, and Entered Apprentices were in turn admitted. The processions, greetings, and proclamations were gone through, and the impressive address to the W.M. and Officers delivered, after which the W.M. appointed the following to be his officers for the ensuing year, Bro. A. Schmitt in each case officiating and offering appropriate observations, viz:—Bros. Advocate Durell, S.W.; Capt. Ph. Messervy, J.W.; J. Durell, re-elected Treas.; H. Jordan, S.D.; Jno. Le Gros, J.D.; A. Gallican, I.G.; H. Du Jardin, Tyler; and the W.M. invested Bro. A. Schmitt as Sec. The proceedings connected with the ceremony of installation having been brought to a close, the Secretary read the minutes of the Audit Committee, which contained a number of suggestions and recommendations. It was proposed by the Secretary, seconded by the Treasurer, and unanimously resolved, that this report be received, approved, and entered on the minutes; and that the recommendations of the Board to the lodge be adopted. The Secretary, faithful to the custom he has been acting upon for some time past, read, for the information of the members, a summary sketch of the proceedings during the tenure of office by the retiring W.M. In concluding he paid a well-deserved eulogium on Bro. Pallot, and proposed a resolution, "That some token be presented to the I.P.M., Bro. Pallot, as a visible testimony of our feelings of gratitude, of esteem, and of fraternal affection for his zeal, his enthusiastic attachment to the Craft, and the admirable and intelligent manner in which he has discharged all his onerous obligations." The proposition, being seconded by Bro. A. Viel, passed unanimously. The Secretary proposed, seconded by the Treasurer, and carried unanimously, "That the sum of £3 be gracefully voted by the lodge towards the relief of a worthy and highly deserving Bro., P.M. 245, who has been unmercifully victimised by the collapse of the Joint Stock Bank, and lately seriously paralyzed." No other business offering, the lodge was closed at six o'clock in perfect harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room. The W.M., who of course presided, was supported on his right by Bros. Schmitt, Benham, Martel, J. O. Le Sueur; and on his left by P.M. Durell, Binch, Viel, Renouf, Oatley, &c. The usual loyal toasts and others were proposed and duly responded to. A special toast, "Bros. Dr. H. Hopkins and W. J. Hughan, the first Hon. G.S.D. of England, Hon. Members of the Lodge," was not forgotten. The proceedings were enlivened by songs from Bros. Jordan, Binch, Oulton, Carre, &c., and the brethren separated before ten o'clock.

BRECON.—BRECKNOCK LODGE (No. 651).—A few evenings since the Freemasons at Brecon entertained Bro. Frederick Broughton, P.M. 651, P.P.J.G.W., P.M. 40, Ireland, &c., to a banquet at the Castle Hotel, prior to his departure for Canada. Brother Broughton has attained a high degree of personal popularity, both among his brother Masons and every other section of the local community, and his departure is very greatly regretted on all hands. The banquet was presided over by Bro. E. C. Phillips, the Worshipful Master 651, and there were also present Bros. Edward J. Morris, D. Prov. G.M.; James G. Hall, P. Prov. S.G.W.; M. Tennant, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Richard Eve, P. Prov. S.G.W., Hants, and P. Prov. G. Purst, South Wales; John Jones, Prov. G. Treasurer; W. Whittington, Prov. G. Secretary; Henry Green, P. Prov. S.G.D.; H. St. G. Caulfield, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Herbert Rich, P. Prov. G. Steward; James Goodall, W.M., No. 237; W. P. Garrett, S.W., No. 364; Rd. Webb, Treasurer, 651; Dd. Evans, John Gwynne-Vaughan, &c., &c. After an excellent dinner, the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" was given from the chair, and heartily received. The Worshipful Master afterwards said—Brethren, the next toast I have the honour of introducing to your notice is a toast which will be drunk with emotion by some and with enthusiasm by all. It is "The Health of our Grand Master." Any one who was present the other day at his installation, and who saw those serried lines—as Earl Carnarvon called them—of blue and silver, and purple and gold, would not doubt for one moment that Masonry was stronger than ever; and no one who heard the stately and heartfelt thanks of our Grand Master, as they welled from his very inmost heart up our ranks, and observed the marked tremor that characterised the latter part of his speech, could doubt for one moment that our Grand Master was not only a Mason in heart, but also in deed. Brethren, you, no doubt, saw a very good account of that installation—a ceremony which has not had its equal before in the annals of Freemasonry—in the Times; but I hope I may be pardoned for saying that I trust a great many of you did not see the article which the Times thought proper to write upon it. It was an article meaning, no doubt, to give scant praise, but at the same time ridiculing Freemasonry. I do not know whether you saw it yourselves, but it was an article that accused Freemasonry of lavishness in its charities and childishness in its organisation. With regard to the first charge, I would say that you cannot do a good thing too well. And with regard to the second, if those ten thousand brethren who assembled in London to do honour to their Master were children, all I can say is that proud must be the mother who can produce such children. Brethren, I assert that that article was not worthy of a paper of the magnitude of the Times, far less was it worthy of a body of men who are received with acclamation and honour in every quarter of the globe, and whose enemies number but a few despots, who, fearing right-minded men, throw cold water on our works and our charities. Brethren, I can only tell you that if Freemasonry is childish it must cease to exist, but if Freemasonry is carried out in its purity it must remain to the end. I give you "The Health of our most Worshipful Grand Master." The toast was received with great cordiality. The Worshipful Master next proposed the toasts of "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master," and "The W. Dep. Prov. Grand Master," which were heartily received. The Dep. Prov. G.M., in responding, said that on the part of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master and himself, he could say that the departure of Bro. Broughton from the province of the eastern division of South Wales was a departure they greatly deplored. This statement would be felt more especially by the Brecon Lodge, for there they had been especially and directly aided by the great capacity and the administrative ability of Bro Broughton. In losing him, the speaker and the Provincial Grand Master felt that they were losing a sound, adviser, and a thoroughly efficient and capable Freemason, one who had done the Province of South Wales great credit, and had represented it in a way which reflected honour upon the province to which he belonged. His future he trusted might be successful, and he begged to assure him that he went to his new abode freighted with the kindest and most fraternal good wishes for his health and happiness. They warmly hoped that whatever prosperity he had enjoyed in the past would be doubled and trebled in the future; that he might find, if possible, even kinder friends in a distant land than in his own; and that he might not quite forget them—that they might occasionally see him and frequently hear of his happiness, his progress, and his prosperity. The Worshipful Master, who in proposing the next toast betrayed great emotion, said they had met to drink the health of a very old and valued brother who was shortly going from amongst them—the health of Bro. Broughton. He would ask them first to drink it as the health of a Mason, and, secondly, as a man. In the first capacity they would remember how, when the lodge was under a cloud, Bro. Broughton had come forward and rescued it from the oblivion and the very heavy difficulties which surrounded it. They would not forget how well he had represented them both in London and elsewhere, how he had brought honour to the lodge and to himself. He was now going to a foreign land, far away from them, but when he looked upon the jewel, which the lodge had previously presented to him, and which represented the love of 24 or 25 Masons, his thoughts would find their way back over the intervening thousands of miles, and he would remember with pleasure those many evenings they had spent and enjoyed together. They all wished him God speed. Referring to Bro. Broughton in his other capacity, the speaker said that, looking back upon the many happy hours he had spent in the society of Bro. Broughton and his wife, and thinking that they would recur no more, the future seemed to him blank indeed. Every heart present would beat with his (the speaker's), and every feeling would go with his when he asserted that they would sorely miss their brother, that they wished him a prosperous journey, and remembering that they might never meet him there again, he would express the hope that they might all assemble in that Grand Lodge above where partings never take place. The toast was received with every mark of fraternal affection. Bro. Broughton, in responding, said there was a passage in Shakespeare which ran thus:—"It has been taught us from the primal state that the ebb'd-man, ne'er loved till ne'er worth love, comes 'deared by being lacked.'" With all due respect to the immortal poet, he ventured to think that he was wrong. The kindness which the members of the Brecon Lodge had shown towards him on a former occasion, their presence that night, and the words which had fallen from the Worshipful Master, would prove that they, at all events, did not wait till a man had gone from the world before they acknowledged what they believed to be his merits. He thanked them most sincerely, and he also thanked Masonry, which put into every man's heart those kindly, brotherly, affectionate feelings. Their watch-words of brotherly love and truth did well compare with the words of that old Book which they all so much respected, and which bid them "do unto others as they would be done by," and told them that charity covered a multitude of sins. These were the sentiments which should and did fill the hearts of Masons; and when they looked upon the Order in that light they found that it disposed them to kinder and more generous feelings—that it enabled them to put a more charitable construction upon each other's actions—and that it caused them to relieve men when they would not otherwise do so. It smoothed the way of life, and provided them with a platform on which politics, and religion, and sectarian differences found no part. Whether a man was a Unitarian, a Trinitarian, or even an Atheist, if he was a Mason, he should believe him to be an honest man. He (the speaker) could hardly see how an Atheist could be a Freemason. Freemasonry might include all men who believed in a God, without reference to sect or religion, but no man could enter a lodge and remain there who did not believe in an All-seeing Providence. Of course there were many Masons who were not what they ought to be; but he contended that Freemasonry was a thing which helped to make them good—a thing which no man need be ashamed of, and of which every man might be proud. Referring to the immediate subject of the toast, Brother Broughton thanked them with great fervour for their kindness, and remarked, in conclusion, that it might yet please the All-Wise Being to let him lay his bones and those of his wife and children in the country of his birth. However that might be, he left England with the full determination to do his best in the country of his adoption, and, please God, he would also do his best to keep up the cause of Freemasonry there. A succession of other toasts followed, and a most agreeable evening was passed.

GIBRALTAR.—MERIDIAN LODGE (No. 743).—A meeting of this lodge was held at Governor's Parade, Gibraltar, on Wednesday, 12th May, 1875. Present: Bros. Lieut. W. T. Deverell, P.M.; W. Woodward, P.M.; W. Vines, Acting S.W.; M. A. McInerney, J.W.; W. A. Barron, Sec.; H. Rowe, S.D.; Major-Surgeon T. J. Tucker, I.G.; A. Burton, Tyler and Steward; W. Franklin, F. Compton, Lieut. R. W. F. Phillips, T. Woodward. Visitors: Bros. D. Dallas, P.M. 325; T. Beale, P.M. 325; J. J. R. Morgan, P.M. 115; J. Holliday, P.M. 325; and 19 Master Masons, &c., as visitors. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. In the absence of the outgoing W.M., Bro. Major T. E. Swettenham, through a family bereavement, the chair was ably filled by our distinguished and excellent P.M. Lieut. W. T. Deverell, who has always taken the very highest interest in the Craft and our lodge in particular. He was supported by the P.M.'s above mentioned. The lodge being opened in the First Degree, the presiding Master stated the business of the evening, viz., the installation of Bro. W. Vines, M.M.M. and R.A., as W.M., in accordance with the minutes of the previous meeting, besides which Bro. Lieut. R. W. Fergusson Phillips was proposed a joining member by Bro. Deverell, and seconded by Bro. Vines, which proposition was unanimously carried. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. Deverell requested the Installing Master to be so kind as to preside, which request was at once complied with. All brethren not P.M.'s were then requested to retire, and on being re-admitted went through the usual Masonic acknowledgments, the proclamation being most ably and enthusiastically made and declared by the Installing Master, Bro. Morgan, who declared that Bro. W. Vines had been duly installed W.M. of the Meridian Lodge, No. 743, for the present year. The W.M. then invested his officers with their badges of office as follows:—Bros. Phillips, S.W.; J. Franklin (M.M.M., R.A.), and Knt. Comp. of the B.E. of Prussia, J.W.; W. Arthur Barron (for the third year), Sec.; J. Herbert, Treas.; T. Woodward, I.G.; H. Rowe, S.D.; R. Randall, J.D.; A. Burton, Tyler. A vote of thanks was then proposed by the W.M., and seconded by P.M. Deverell, to P.M. Morgan for his kindness in conducting the installation, and also for the very admirable way in which he carried out his difficult but always heartfelt duty. Nothing further having been proposed for the good of Freemasonry, or this lodge in particular, the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer, and the brethren retired to their banqueting room, where a splendid repast was provided under the direction of the newly installed W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts, "The Queen and the Craft," were given and responded to, and short speeches were the order of the evening. "The Health of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," was next proposed by the W.M., and responded to as Masons only can respond to their Royal Master. "The Health of the Visiting Brethren" was then proposed, and the W.M. in doing so remarked that the Meridian Lodge was always fortunate in this respect, as they, the Meridian Lodge, invariably had the pleasure of seeing many visiting members at their lodge meetings, and trusted that such a good feeling might continue during their stay at Gibraltar. The usual Tyler's toast followed, and after it had been responded to the brethren separated, after having spent a very pleasant and happy evening.

JERSEY.—ST. AUBIN'S LODGE (No. 958).—This prosperous lodge held its 12th anniversary meeting at the Masonic Temple, Jersey, on Tuesday, the 18th May, for the purpose of installing Wor. Bro. Edward Martel, S.W., P.M. 491, P.G.D.C., and Prov. Grand Steward at the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. In consequence of the absence of the W.M., Wor. Bro. J. O'Flaherty, the ceremony of installation was performed in a most admirable style by Wor. Bro. Dr. R. J. F. Smith, P.P.G.J.W. The officers were invested with their respective badges by the newly-installed W.M. in a manner deserving of the highest praise, to which, be it said, every appointment met with the approbation of all present. After the lodge business was terminated the brethren adjourned to the Banqueting Hall, where a sumptuous dinner was provided by W. Bro. W. H. Long, P.M. of the lodge. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received in a most enthusiastic manner. In the course of the evening the W.M. drew the attention of the brethren to the ceremony of presenting a silver snuff-box and Masonic jewel (proceeds from a general subscription) to Bro. G. Rogers, in token of his faithful services as Tyler to the different lodges in the Province. At the request of the W.M. the Prov. Grand Secretary presented the tokens in a manner which fully interpreted the feelings of all present. Bro. Rogers thanked the brethren for their kindness, and said the beautiful present that was made to him would be a talisman for further diligence and assiduity to the cause of Masonry. Past Master J. O. Le Sueur proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and spoke of his capital working, and likewise of his sterling qualities as a working Mason. The W.M. responded in very appropriate terms, and proposed the toast of the Visitors. Bros. present—J. Durell, P.M. 590, and P.P.G.S.W.; M. Gallechan, P.M. 491, W.M. 877, and P.P.G.S.W.; Ed. Gilley, W.M. 491, P.G.A.D.C., and Prov. G. Steward at H.R.H. the Prince of Wales' Installation; J. O. Le Sueur, P.M. 491, and Prov. G. Sec., and several distinguished brethren. The toast was responded to by Wor. Bro. T. W. Benham, P.M. 1003, W.M. 244, and Prov. G. Treas. After several good songs, the Tyler's toast concluded an evening which will be long remembered in the annals of St. Aubin's Lodge.

SOUTHEND.—PRIORY LODGE (No. 1000).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Middleton Hotel, Southend-on-Sea, on Tuesday, the 25th May. The W.M., Bro. A. Lucking, P.M. 160, and P.A.G.D.C., opened the lodge, assisted by his officers, viz.: Bros. E. E. Phillips, P.M. 379, S.W.; Rev. S. R. Wigram, P.M. and P.Z. 214, M.E.Z. 1000, Grand Chaplain, J.W.; F. The following members were also present:—Bros. J. R. Hemmann, I.P.M.; H. Rowley, P.M. and P.P.S.G.D.; S. Cox, P.M.; W. Chaplin, J. S. Hanson, A. M. Masterson, H. Hicks, G. F. Jones, L. Warren, G. The business of the lodge consisted of raising Bro. G. F. Jones to the sublime degree of M.M., and initiating into the mysteries of the Craft Mr. Henry

Joseph Hancock, the whole of the ceremonies, including the traditional history of the Third Degree, being very ably performed by the W.M., the charge to the candidate being given by the S.W. with his usual ability. The W.M. then rose and said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to beg Bro. Rev. S. R. Wigram's acceptance of an address, signed by the members of the lodge, congratulating him upon being appointed to the dignity of Grand Chaplain of England by the M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The W.M., on presenting the address to him, in the course of his remarks said that it would hand down to his family the memory of how he was honoured and respected by the members of the Priory Lodge. Bro. Wigram thanked the brethren for their kind feelings toward him in an appropriate speech. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the brethren separated until September next. The address is a beautiful of the highest style of illumination, and framed in a handsome gilt frame.

Parkhouse, W.M.; Patterson, I.P.M.; Dickinson, Chaplain; Davey, P.M., as S.W.; Reed, jun., J.W.; Mills, P.M., P.G.O., Sec.; Cockram, S.D.; Bartlett, J.D.; Williams, as I.G.; John Melhuish and B. Taylor, Stewards; Crabb, M. C.; Andrews, Org.; Reed, P.M., P.Prov.G.D.; H. Melhuish, O. P. Martin, and Vaughan. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. F. E. Pike and Mr. A. Arbery, two candidates for Freemasonry, and in both cases was found in the affirmative. The former gentleman being in attendance, was duly initiated, the ceremony being performed in an admirable manner by the W.M., ably assisted as to the musical arrangements by Bro. Andrews, Org. The W.M. then, on behalf of himself and the other members of the lodge who had attended the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, presented, as a slight memorial of that grand event, a proof copy of the excellent portrait of our M.W.G.M., engraved by Bro. Hart, observing that, striking and grand as was the spectacle in itself, the thought that most impressed itself on his mind was the proof it gave of the reality and vitality of Freemasonry, that large and yet selected assemblage being brought together, not to discuss any great question, but simply to evince their loyalty to the Craft, and to pay their homage to the Prince who had consented to become their head. A vote of thanks to the donors for their acceptable present, proposed by Bro. Partridge, and seconded by Bro. Reed, P.M., terminated the proceedings.

LIVERPOOL.—DUKE OF EDINBURGH LODGE (No. 1182).

—This lodge, which has recently been transplanted from the coffee house, Wavertree, to town quarters at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, met there on Thursday, the 13th ult., when the First and Second Degrees were capitally given by Bro. J. A. Edginton, W.M. The officers and brethren present were Bros. J. W. Williams, I.P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; T. B. Myers, S.W.; R. Martin, jun., J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. Williams, Sec.; T. Davies, S.D.; G. Musker, J.D.; A. Vaughan, I.G.; T. Smelson, S.; P. M. Larsen, P.M.; Tyler, A. D. Hesketh, J. O. Rea, T. Lincoln, A. Barclay, J. Parry, G. L. Brunton, R. Leader, J. Weston, J. T. Wood, W. Guylar, T. Hunt, J. Cleworth, H. Sawyer, C. Llewellyn, H. Sale, J. Bundell, J. Curlander, C. Jones, R. Pennock, B. Wilson, S. Newbold, R. Hargreaves, A. Thoms, and T. Curtis. The visitors were Bros. G. Graham, 823; A. Robertson, 22 (S.C.), and W. D. Rowse, I.P.M. 594. During the evening the revised by-laws with additions, were taken into consideration, and the whole of the suggestions made by the revising committee were agreed to, the most important alteration being the raising of the initiation fee. It was agreed, on the motion of Bro. Martin, J.W., that the thanks of the lodge should be conveyed to Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., and W. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S.B., who had acted as arbitrators in connection with a recent reference in connection with the lodge. Five or six propositions for initiation having been made, the lodge was duly and solemnly closed.

MANCHESTER.—LODGE OF TRUTH (No. 1458).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, May 1st, at the Royal Archer, Dale-street. The lodge was opened at 4 o'clock by the W.M., Bro. H. Smith. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the candidate for initiation not being present, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bros. Davies and Dickenson then answered the necessary questions in a very satisfactory manner, and having been entrusted, retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when Bros. Davies and Dickenson were duly raised, the former by the W.M., the latter by Bro. R. Caldwell, P.M. and D. of C., whose working is too well known in East Lancashire to need comment, the general good working of the lodge being due to his zeal and ability as Instruction Master. The Historical Lecture was most ably given by Bro. C. Pearson, S.W., who also presented the working tools. After the lodge had been lowered to the First Degree, hearty good wishes were given from visitors, and two propositions for initiation. In consequence of the much regretted absence of the I.P.M., Bro. J. W. Turner, the motion to alter fees stands adjourned. At the banquet twenty-nine brethren sat down, the same being served by Bro. Potts, in his usual satisfactory style. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed at the festive board, that of "The Visitors" being responded to by Bro. Cope, P.M., of Townley Parker; C. Raynor, S.W. of 149; and Bro. Holbrook, of Integrity, 163, who eulogised the working of the lodge, making special mention of the part taken by Bro. Pearson, S.W., whose position as W.M. of the Wilton, 1077, well qualifies him to discharge such important duties.

LIVERPOOL.—LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 1505).—The usual monthly meeting of this young but most prosperous lodge was held on Monday evening, 17th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The duties of the lodge were under the direction of Bro. Ralph Robinson, W.M., who was supported in their discharge by Bros. Maurice de Frece, S.W.; A. J. Henochsberg, J.W.; Professor J. Prag, Chaplain; Isaac de Frece, Treas.; M. Hart, Sec.; S. Schonstadt, J.D.; B. Woolf, I.G.; P. H. Crozier, S.; A. Hart, S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The "Privates" were represented by Bros. R. Brown, J. Moss, D. M. Joseph, D. L. Marcus, I. Seline, S. Levy, W. Levy, A. Rabow, J. Frank, J. Goldberg, A. Saqui, S. Jacobs, J. H. Locke, I. Woolfe, M. Aaronsberg, J. Lazarus, S. Waring, M. A. Prenchan, A. Vandyke, A. A. Lyons, A. Lamb, G. J. Somers, N. Tieski, H. M. Silver, and L. Simmons. The visitors were Bros. J. R. Goepel, P.G.D.C., W.L.; Mendoza, 673; J. R. Grant, 1356; T. G. Bark, W.M. 1380; J. Capell, S.D. 1299; W. C. Webb, 1264; E. Lebschütz, 1264; H. Hart, 1094; and R. M. Freeman, 27. During the evening the Rev. Dr. W. Stern, minister of one of the Jewish congregations in Liverpool, and Mr. Joseph Sabar, a South African merchant, were initiated into the Order by the W.M. in a manner which has rarely been equalled for effect and efficiency, the whole of the officers doing their work in an admirable manner. At the banquet which followed business, the W.M. presided, and in giving the usual loyal and Masonic toasts he spoke of the installation of the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. (at which he had been present as the representative of his lodge), as one of the most magnificent sights he (Bro. Robinson) had seen, far surpassing his highest expectations. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, referred to the flourishing state of the lodge, which was clearly shown by a very substantial balance in the hands of the Treasurer. Bro. Professor Prag responded to the toast of "The Chaplain" in a most eloquent and appropriate speech. "The Newly Initiated Brethren" was very forcibly acknowledged by Bro. Dr. Stern and Bro. Sabar. "The Visitors" was acknowledged by Bro. Bark, W.M. 1380. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed. Harmony, which prevailed to a great degree, was much promoted by the vocal efforts of Bros. R. Brown, M. Hart, Sec.; Jacobs, &c., and the excellent recitation of the S.W. (Bro. A. J. Henochsberg.)

INSTRUCTION.

DOMATIC LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 177).—The brethren of this flourishing lodge of instruction met on Tuesday evening last, at the Palmerston Arms, Grosvenor Park-Camberwell Gate. Present—Bros. Mark S. Larham, Preceptor; T. Harvey, W.M.; E. Towell, S.W.; W. Snow, den, J.W.; G. Palmer, S.D.; I. Dann, J.D.; T. Sleep, I.G.; T. Young, Sec., pro tem; also Bros. Cackett, Wallis, Hampton, Acocis, Chalk and Guider. The lodge was opened in due form. Bro. Chalk, having offered himself as candidate, was initiated. The Second Degree was then ably worked, with Bro. Guider as candidate. The lodge was closed down. Bro. Towell was proposed as W.M. for the ensuing week.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—This flourishing lodge held its last meeting of the session at the Castle Tavern, Holloway, on Friday, the 28th ult., when the 15 Sections were worked by the brethren in the following order, Bro. Friday Rogers, P.M., of Confidence Lodge putting the questions. There were also Bros. Pincler, S.W.; Dickinson, J.W.; Gilchrist, P.M.; Ballantyne, P.M. Royal Standard, and numerous brethren from the mother and other lodges. 1st Section, Bro. Dunn; 2nd Section, Lee; 3rd Section, Dickinson; 4th Section, Shackell; 5th Section, Turner; 6th Section, Gilchrist; 7th Section, Pincler. Second Degree, 1st Section, Burr; 2nd Section, Wright; 3rd Section, Shackell; 4th Section, Pincler; 5th Section, Gilchrist. Third Degree, 1st Section, Ballantyne; 2nd Section, Yeomans; 3rd Section, Rogers. The lodge then resumed to the First Degree, when a vote of thanks was carried unanimously for the able manner in which Bro. Rogers, the Preceptor, had filled the chair on the occasion. Bro. Rogers thanked the brethren who had so kindly assisted, and assured them that it had afforded him great pleasure to see the manner in which the brethren had worked the various Sections. The lodge closed and adjourned until the first Friday in October.

STRONG MAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—This lodge held the regular weekly meeting at the Crown, Clerkenwell-green, at seven, p.m., on Monday last, Bro. Beckett, Prec., presiding. The Fifteen Sections were admirably worked by Bros. Pearcey, Killick, Defriez, Pross, Sadler, Tolmie, Saul, and Beckett. Bros. Killick, P.M., 781, Stedman, P.M., 754, and Pross, 1278, were unanimously elected joining members. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded the brethren, members of other lodges, who had assisted in working the Sections, and also to the W.M. for the able manner in which he had presided.

LIVERPOOL.—MARINERS' LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 249).—What was termed the "closing night of the season" of this very successful instruction lodge was fixed for Thursday evening, the 27th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool. There was a large attendance of members. The lodge enjoys the privilege of the preceptorial talents of Bro. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M., who, at much sacrifice of valuable time, has long given the Masonic students of the lodge his valuable tuition at almost every meeting. The business before the meeting on this occasion was the Second Degree, which was given with considerable efficiency. The W.M. was H. P. Price; Bros. W. Hamilton, the S.W.; W. P. Jennings, the J.W.; R. R. Martin, the Treas.; J. Hayes (W.M. of the regular lodge) the Sec.; W. Corbett, the S.D.; E. A. Wright, the J.D.; T. Bodin, the I.G.; and R. W. Jones, the candidate for the evening. The other members present were Bros. N. Whalley, R. Washington, F. Cooper, J. Lawrie, W. Garlick, E. J. Callow, J. R. Cave, J. C. Robinson, R. Jones, F. Mollett, W. Healing, W. G. Veale, C. Leighton, J. B. Mackenzie, and others. On the motion of Bro. Dr. Smith, Preceptor, it was unanimously resolved to have an extra meeting, so as to give Bro. J.

Hayes, W.M. of 249, the opportunity of performing the installation ceremony in view of his installing his successor in the regular chair of the lodge. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet under the chairmanship of Bro. Dr. Smith, Preceptor, and the vice-chairmanship of Bro. Price, the W.M. for the evening. After the usual toasts, "The Health of the Preceptor" was proposed in eulogistic terms by Bro. Price. Bro. Dr. Smith, in thanking the brethren for this compliment, said that although he had hitherto attended the Lodge of Instruction at considerable inconvenience and loss, still he was willing to be as useful as he could in the future if it was their pleasure to have him again as their Preceptor; the only favour he would ask being a change in the night of meeting. During his two years' preceptorship everything had gone on very smoothly—there had not been a single wrangling word, and he hoped this true Masonic spirit would continue. "The Secretary and Treasurer," given by the Preceptor, was suitably acknowledged by Bros. Hayes and Martin. The Preceptor also proposed "The P.M.'s of the Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. Hamilton in a humorous speech. "The W.M. and Vice-Chairman," acknowledged by Bro. Price. "The Honorary Members," responded to by Bros. Veale and Mackenzie. "The Private Members of the Lodge of Instruction," acknowledged by Bro. Washington; and "Health and Prosperity to the Mariners' Lodge No. 249," responded to by Bro. Hayes, W.M., were the other toasts. A most enjoyable evening was greatly enlivened by the excellent singing of Bros. Washington, Veale, Martin, Smith, Price, Robinson, Cave, and others.

GLASGOW.—LODGE STAR (No. 219).—A meeting of this lodge was held in their hall, 12, Trongate, on Monday, the 24th ult., Bro. John Morgan, R.W.M., in the chair. Bro. Horne, J.W., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Garth, acting S.W.; Bro. Ross Rennie, S.D., acting J.W. There was a goodly number of members and visiting brethren present, amongst whom were Bros. J. Wilson, I.P.M.; Wilson, 27; A. Bain, P.M., Union and Crown; and W. H. Bickerton (Freemason). Bro. Morgan, in opening the lodge, said he regretted that the Secretary, Bro. Crawford, was not present to read the minutes of last meeting, but that Bro. Crawford, he expected, would be present in about one hour's time. At this stage of the proceedings, Bro. Garth, S.W., entered and took his office, and Bro. Horne that of J.W. Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., informed the lodge that Bro. Angus McEwen, of Lodge No. 926, Madras, had applied to him for affiliation into Lodge Star. He now held Bro. McEwen's diploma, also an acknowledgment from Lodge No. 926, Madras, stating that all dues had been paid, and that Bro. McEwen was a very worthy brother, and from what he knew of him, which was a great deal, he had much pleasure in proposing that the affiliation should be granted, which was received with acclamation. Bro. A. Bain, P.M., Union and Crown, No. 103, administered the obligation of affiliation. The motion of the lodge for having a test fee, tabled at last meeting, was then brought forward. Bro. Smart, Treas., spoke at length in support of the motion. In the course of his remarks, he pointed out to the brethren the great advantages and necessity for the same, and that even in the recommendation of Bro. McEwen, who had been affiliated into the lodge that evening, it was supported by a certificate, showing that he had paid his fees and was eligible. At the conclusion of Bro. Smart's excellent remarks the motion was proposed and carried unanimously. The lodge was then raised to the degree of Fellow Craft when Bros. John Morgan, sen., John Macfarlane, and James Patterson entered, and were passed to that degree by Bro. A. Bain, P.M., Union and Crown, No. 103, in his usual masterly style. The Secretary, Bro. Crawford, then entered and took the seat of his office. Bro. Morgan, R.W.M., informed the brethren that their I.P.M., Bro. Wilson, he was sorry to say, was about to leave Glasgow for Rothesay. They all knew Bro. Wilson's value as a member of the lodge, and he knew that he could safely say for himself and the members of the lodge that they very much regretted his having to go from amongst them, but hoped that he would be long spared, and that they might occasionally have a visit from him. Bro. Wilson said that he was sorry to leave Glasgow, but that his health compelled him to leave, and that should any of the brethren have an occasion to come to Rothesay, he hoped they would give him a call. He should always be pleased to meet any of them and stretch out the right hand of fellowship. The presentation of a beautiful lithograph from Bro. Ira Chase, Lodge Cain, New York, to Lodge Star, 219, Glasgow, was then brought up, and decided that a committee be appointed to draw up a letter in behalf of the lodge, thanking Bro. Chase for his most handsome present. Bro. Morgan said he was about to close the lodge, but before doing so he thought there would be something wanting on his part if he did not propose Bros. Bain and Bickerton a hearty vote of thanks for their services to Lodge Star. He therefore would call upon the brethren to join with him in so doing, which was received with acclamation. Bro. Bickerton, on behalf of himself and Bro. Bain, thanked Bro. Morgan and the members of Lodge Star for their kindness, and assured them that anything they could do for the benefit of Lodge Star, or Masonry in general, they should always be happy to do so. The lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE MARIE STUART (No. 541).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, 24th ult., within Queen's Park Rooms. Present: Bros. Julius Brodie, R.W.M.; W. M. G. Mason, S.W.; S. Findlater, J.W.; and a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. On the recommendation of the Standing Committee, Mr. William Blair, bookseller and stationer, Queen's Park, was admitted a member of the lodge—the E.A. Degree being given by the R.W.M. in a style which commended itself to all the brethren present. A circular from St. John's Lodge, Rothesay, inviting a deputation to be present at the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the Rothesay Aquarium, on Saturday, June 5th, was read, and it was agreed that as many of the members as could find it convenient to go should signify their intention to the Secretary before 29th ult. After the transaction of some other business the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

His Majesty afterwards paid visits to the foreign Ambassadors, and called in his carriage at the residence of Field-Marshal Count von Moltke, who is away on his estate in Silesia. At eleven a.m. he drove with the Emperor and Imperial Crown Prince to Potsdam. The Queen of Sweden and the Crown Princess of Germany will proceed thither this afternoon, being engaged this morning in visiting the charitable institutions of Berlin. MASONIC FINANCE.

The two balance-sheets we published last week are both most satisfactory. First with regard to Grand Lodge. By that balance-sheet it appears the whole receipts of the Fund of Benevolence, including balance for 1873, and repayment of loan, dividends, &c., amounted to £12,913 5s. 6d. Per contra, £4020 were voted to petitioners, £800 were voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; small expenses amounted to £16; £6,953 3s. were invested in the purchase of £7500 3 Per Cent. stock; while a balance remains of £1124. This balance is less again than last year, and demonstrates the absolute necessity of not in any way forestalling further our funds for benevolent purposes. The whole amount of the Fund for General Purposes reached to £12,040 14s. 8d. The outgoings included the repayment of £5091 17s. 6d. to Fund of Benevolence, and the balance at the end of the year amounted to £1195 11s. 7d. Thus the two accounts put together amounted in receipts to £24,954 0s. 2d., and the payments to £22,632 7s. 7d., leaving a balance on both accounts of £2321 14s. 8d. This is, we think, a very satisfactory state of affairs. As regards the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, the accounts are equally flourishing. To the 31st of March, 1875, the receipts for the Male Fund amounted to £10,051 16s. 10d., and the payments to £7822 2s. 5d. These payments included a purchase of £1500 3 Per Cent. Bank Annuities, and £1500 placed at deposit. The balance on this amount is £2219 14s. 5d. For the Female Fund the receipts are £6785 7s. 4d., and the disbursements £5227 13s. 1d. This amount includes a purchase of £1500 3 Per Cents. The balance to the good is on this account £1557 14s. 3d. We observe that the actual income for the two Funds is £2162 17s. 3d., while the present payment to annuitants amounts for the two Funds to £6728. Hence, though the balance-sheet is very good, there remains a large margin to be supplied annually by the zeal and energy of our Order. Financial statistics are generally dry, and it is said you can prove anything by them; these, however, we think do prove at any rate that, even taken by themselves, our English Freemasonry is materially most prosperous.

THE MASONIC PRESS.

On looking over some bygone Masonic journals we have been struck with the greatly improved tone of the Masonic Press at the present hour. To the Freemason of a well-regulated mind it is almost depressing to-day to note the personalities of happily forgotten pages. There are some unfortunate Masons in the world who never can write without attacking others; be the subject what it may, they will lug in their hateful pettiness of thought and feeling, their bad taste, their perverted sympathies, and their rancorous animosities. Hence to them even the peaceful arena of a Masonic journal becomes a battle field; the tone they give to all Masonic discussion is as bad as bad can be, because, based on low personal grounds, it is ever marked by vulgarity, and tainted by unbrotherly uncharitableness. The polished and educated Freemason shrinks from these tirades of inflated egotism, or these childish vapourings of a hopeless self-sufficiency, these maunderings of an ill-regulated intellect, or this wordy warfare of a Masonic Ishmaelite. Nothing has done Freemasonry so much harm in the past as the personalities of its journalism, because these weekly evidences of irrepressible and unbrotherly utterance gave a simple if practical lie to every Masonic profession of fraternal love or fraternal consideration. We rejoice in an altered condition of affairs, and, as far as the Freemason is concerned, we do not intend to allow the older character to be revived amongst us. If now and then tokens of the ancient leaven peep out, if now and then "sputterings," so to say, of the old animus crop up, if the fire is only smothered not put out, we yet now are happily on our guard, and for whatever else the pages of the Freemason may be blamed, they will not be blamed for personality. But we must say one word more. Everything is not personality which some angry correspondents may consider personality. There are times when the honest writer has to speak plainly. If you have to deal with a professed begging letter writer you hand him over, "pro bono publico," to that useful personage, Mr. Horsford. If you have to encounter a nocturnal visitor, or some agreeable swindler, you invoke the aid of one of the experienced gentlemen from Scotland Yard. And so in literary work you may often have to speak plainly and act decidedly. Some impostor comes forward, for instance, and tries to impose on the credulity of your contemporaries; are you not justified in telling him that he is an impostor? Some charlatan seeks by his pretentious ignorance to claim an honour for himself which is due to others, or endeavours to palm himself off on the public as the great discoverer, or the greater light of the hour! Are you not to tell him that he is a charlatan, and that those who heed him are dupes? If some vulgar overbearing individual seeks with a plethora of ill-digested sentences to make you credit his utterances of infallibility, and to accept his many assertions, are you not at liberty to tell him that he is both overbearing and ignorant, vulgar and incompetent, and that you deny his assertions and reject his conclusion? Surely, in all these cases, and many more might be adduced if needed, there is, and can be, no personality, even in the plainest speaking! What we consider personality proper we will now venture to put before our readers. When some feeble writer of the press finds he cannot meet argument, he always has recourse to "cheek" and to abuse. He will tell you, though you may have devoted a lifetime to the study of the question, that you know nothing whatever about it. He will assert that you are animated, in your dissent from his views only by personal feelings; that you are no wiser or better than you should be; that, in short, you yourself are "no great shakes;" and that your ignorance is only equalled by your audacity. Whenever you see, in the writing of these hopeless personalists, any imputation of bad motives to their opponents, which almost always immediately is alleged, you know at once with whom you have to do, and you shun that writer, or you had better do so, as you would the plague. None of his contributions can do any good, either to Freemasonry or to truth; they are not written honestly; they are simply intended to promote personality, and to praise Number One. When Dr. Johnson said that he who wanted to write the English language well must give his "days and nights to the study of Addison," he meant to encourage a style of writing equally clear and correct. But some there are who take part of his advice and devote themselves on all occasions to personalities. No occasion is too great, no matter too trivial, for that angry, that intemperate, that low-minded spirit. We know nothing more melancholy, or more unmasonic. For Freemasonry would teach us at a holier and a better lore. It would bid us give up our own personal selfishness and littlenesses, our love of display, our egotism, our overbearing tendencies, our quarrelsome disposition, and would invite us to be kind and considerate, temperate of speech, and thoughtful of others, never even imputing bad motives, never condescending to low personalities, never forgetting that every Freemason is a gentleman in tone and manners alike, in outward decorum, and in inward feelings. Let us hope that the age of personality is over for Freemasonry, and that we may show to the world that our professions are true which declare our great characteristic to be Brotherly Love.

THE DERBY DAY.

The great meeting on Epsom Downs for 1875 has past and gone, amid the exultation of the winners and the depression of the losers. "Galopin" has galloped to the fore, and Prince Batthyany's colours have received a well deserved ovation. Seldom, probably, did a Derby Day witness finer weather, or a more enthusiastic and orderly assembly. The presence of that goodly muster of our Royal Family added alike prestige and grace to the wonderful spectacle, and augmented in a remarkable measure the gratification of sightseers and the pleasurable reminiscences of a popular holiday. How childish and perverse it is for cynics and puritans to rail at the annual Derby Day. For though moralists may moralize, and preachers may preach, and the jester may jest, the fact remains indisputable, that this annual gathering is a great annual "outing" for a large section of our English people. And we are inclined to think that not only long will it continue so to be, humanly speaking, but that it is very well that it should be so. For despite the opposition and even denunciations of well meaning enthusiasts, if somewhat weak and very wordy, we confess to have no little liking for that annual celebration of the English "Hippodrome" which is so cherished by our people, and is so attractive to foreigners. Look at it which way you will, it is a very great sight in itself, unequalled actually in the world, and affords a great deal of enjoyment and healthy recreation for an almost overwhelming mass of holiday seekers. If Mawworm comes in with a very sour look and says "people might better amuse themselves," if true in theory probably, yet practically the same thing may be actually said of any worldly amusement. We know of no purely amusement of earth, whether attracting large numbers or small coteries, of which the same might not be predicated. And if it is added that the "accessories are bad, and the associations are hurtful," not only is a race-course not the only locale in this sublunary scene where the associations are hurtful, and the accessories are bad, but we may and do meet the same bad and hurtful things wherever we are and wherever we go. Indeed, if "Stiggins" is right in his view of the evil attaching to such places, the monks in the Thebaid were perfectly right who left the world of old for deserts and for caves, and practically helpless idleness. The great old moralist condemned all this illogical perversity years ago, when he said even with his reverential spirit to the head of a Nunnery in Paris, "Madam, you are not here from love of virtue, but from fear of vice." The old canon, in our opinion, may then fairly be pleaded, "defendit numerus," and that other equally true axiom, "it is not the thing that is wrong but the person." We apprehend that seeing a race, and admiring the horses, and meeting pleasant friends, and eating a good luncheon, and enjoying a rural drive do not constitute in whole or in part, a very grave moral offence. It may be true that you may witness lamentable outbreaks of painful inebriety, and listen to the coarse jests of the vulgar or the "rough," but we fancy a good many of these descriptions are "sensational," something like the "Dwarf and the Dog" of the "Casual Warder," creditable to the imagination but hardly consonant with fact. But even if so, "Abusus non tollit usum," and we have yet to learn that well-conducted people are to give up their legitimate amusements because some foolish persons possibly may and actually do misconduct themselves. This is "post hoc propter hoc" with a vengeance! We are therefore prepared to contend, pace Sir Wilfred Lawson, not only that Lord Palmerston was quite right in the thoroughly English and practical view he took of the matter, but that our legislators are wise in their generation in giving themselves this annual holiday. Nothing is so easy, as we well know, for persons to take the "high moral line" on very childish, perverse, fanatical grounds, and often on no grounds at all. Nothing is so simple as to make merry at old customs, or even, if you like, cherished idiosyncrasies. But he is the wiser and sounder person, and especially is this the case with the statesman, who seeks to recognize the national instinct and the national tastes, especially when by a wise concession he can afford a day's amusement of social pleasantries and agreeable companionship to many a toiling and many a smoke-dried fellow-citizen. Notwithstanding then the complaints of those, to whom life with all its sunshine and brightness, and gay day-dreams, and softening imaginations, seems to be ever dark with clouds, and whose sky is ever lurid with the threatenings of a coming storm, we prefer that more genial philosophy which finds a proper season and time for everything, which declines to make us miserable when we should be joyous, or serious when we are full of cheerful associations, and which does not disdain above all to think of the people, and with the people, and for the people, and is even willing to condescend for the nonce to share in "Suburban Saturnalia," and to take part in a "Cockney Carnival."

MONSEIGNEUR DUPANLOUP.

We have read with much attention, and we may add, with much interest, the "Etude sur la Francmaçonnerie," recently put forth by the well known Monseigneur Dupanloup, R.C. Bishop of Orleans, and which "Etude" has already reached a third edition. Many of our readers well know that that eminent French prelate is a writer of very great ability, and that his literary productions always command, as in truth they justly merit, not only respect, but perusal. We may not, and probably shall not, agree with all he says, but we shall gladly recognize the honesty of his convictions and the outspokenness of his statements. It is given, moreover, to few writers to possess a clearer style or a more forcible utterance of his views, and he has this singular recommendation, in these days of wordy obscurity or mystic jargon, that he always makes you understand what it is he is "driving at," while he is gifted with a power, shared by few writers of the hour, of putting into the fewest possible, but equally the clearest possible words what it is he has got to say. As Freemasons, we are specially bound to be ever tolerant and generous even in the hottest controversy, and we should be always willing to admire, as we believe, to our credit we are, those evidences of "geist" and talent, which always appeal so forcibly to the mind and the approval of men. Monseigneur Dupanloup, it seems, has recently made an "Etude" of Freemasonry, and that "Etude" has been so unsatisfactory, his original bad opinion of Freemasonry has been made so much worse by the result of his investigations, that he feels bound, he tells us, to make known at the earliest possible opportunity, these, his conclusions, discoveries, fears, and griefs to others, that they may avoid the dreadful delusions and the fearful pitfalls of Freemasonry. Indeed, so alarming, in his view, are the real end and teaching of Freemasonry, that, agreeing with the opinion of Bishop Ketteler of Mayence, he declares that no true Roman Catholic, no religiously-minded person, nay, no man of sense, can be or ought to be a Freemason. Well, these are very hard words, and this is a very serious conclusion, especially when spoken and deliberately avowed by the Bishop of Orleans, and we therefore have thought it well to call the attention of our readers to the subject and the controversy. It is well to observe, that this pamphlet of ninety pages, written in the Bishop's usual vigorous verbiage, is mainly directed against French and Belgian Freemasonry. He does not actually deal with Freemasonry in general, except by implication, and therefore his remarks have more of a particular than a general bearing. English Freemasonry is not by name actually assailed, though no doubt he would strongly disapprove equally of our basis of organization and of our universal platform. But, as it is, we are not named either in his criticisms or his censures, severe as they are, and we think we may fairly say, that had Monseigneur Dupanloup only to deal with our Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, he would not have thought it necessary to have published the "Etude." For we fear that it must be fairly confessed, that the Bishop of Orleans has some grounds for complaining of many of the indiscreet utterances of our brethren in Masonry in Belgium and France. As he introduces these to our notice, we see at once how alien they are from the truer teaching of our good and peaceable English craft. We know nothing in England of political discussions or of religious controversies. Ours is purely a benevolent and philanthropic order, most kindly to all men, most attached to the brotherhood, and most friendly, on our sound English principles, to toleration and civilization, to progress and improvement, to liberty of conscience and liberty of worship! We quarrel with no man's dogmas, we cavil at no brother's creed, and we are tolerant of all, yet holding firmly the sanctity of the individual belief, and the importance and need and blessing of religious truth. We equally uphold as a great feature of our Order the governing, controlling, Divine moral law, and we keep from us the avowed atheist and the open libertine. But if the extracts adduced by the Bishop of Orleans be correct, (we hope that some of them are coloured,) though he apparently confirms them by published authorities, some of the French and Belgian Freemasons have certainly openly identified themselves with one political party in each country, namely, the extreme revolutionary party. But we would fain believe, that such violent words are rather those of individual than of general concurrence, and that whatever some Freemasons may hold in both countries they are still a minority in the Order. We in England should utterly repudiate their expressed views alike on political questions, as on religious topics, as we strongly hold that Freemasons have nothing whatever to do with either, and we deeply deplore many of those very acts to which the Bishop alludes, just as we deprecate many of the addresses to which he refers. We have always contended, and we always shall contend, that there is but one safe onward path for Freemasonry, namely, that happy via media which passes through the host of angry politicians on the one side, and of angrier controversialists on the other. We have always lamented that coquetry, for instance, with the Commune, which so many of the French Freemasons seemed so rashly to approve of, for such proceedings are, we believe, most opposed to the teachings of true Freemasonry, and most detrimental to the peaceful and loyal character of Freemasons. Equally repulsive to us are those negations of the Supreme Being, of the immortality of the soul, of the Divine Law of morality, of religious rites, and of religious instructions, all sad echoes from dark and dangerous days, which we, alas! find are so often and so loudly expressed by some Freemasons both in France and Belgium. Few English Freemasons we believe there are, who from our good old-fashioned way of looking at all these questions, would not practically agree with Monseigneur Dupanloup even, in his energetic reprobation of such declarations and such teaching. But beyond this we cannot go with him. Though he has not attacked Freemasonry in general, he does so, as we said before, by implication, and especially when, as a faithful child of the Roman Church, he adduces the Papal Briefs, entirely condemnatory as they are of Freemasonry generally everywhere, as decisive of the whole question. Here it is then where he and we must respectfully part company. With him we warmly regret and openly disavow all those mistaken views which would represent Freemasonry as an atheistical, or a communistic, or a revolutionary association, which would assert it to be in perpetual war with the very idea of a church, with revelation, with religious instruction, with government, with society, and, in fact, with liberty of conscience and toleration of opinions. For curiously enough, just as there is nothing like the "credulité des incrédules," so there is nothing to equal the intolerance of Freethinkers. But we cannot agree with the Bishop that because "Roma locuta est causa finita est." Here in England, as in Scotland and Ireland, and the United States, Freemasonry is flourishing in spite of "ban" and "anathema," and flourish it will everywhere, we believe, so long as its members remain true to its great landmarks and its leading principles. We can quite understand that conscientious religionists may object to the constitution of Freemasonry, per se, but yet Freemasonry is, we believe, too strong, both in its inherent worth and its practical utility, to be impeded or put down either by menace or by censure. And then, even in France and Belgium, the words and acts which the Bishop holds up to reprobation are no doubt the result of honest conviction, and he must also permit us to say, the intolerance of his Church against any thing like untrammelled thought, freedom of conscience, and individual liberty of action, has rendered the antagonism of many whose sympathies are warm and whose opinions are decided, almost an internecine war. We do not say this to excuse many of these unwise and unfitting avowals to which the Bishop calls attention, but simply to explain what is the actual condition of affairs, greatly to be regretted in our opinion, the more so as it is not, and ought not to be, the normal position of Freemasonry. We do not in conclusion think that the Bishop of Orleans's "Etude" will have much effect on the Freemasons in France or Belgium. The struggle has become so very severe and is becoming hourly more embittered. We should ourselves rejoice if the French and Belgian Freemasons could be induced to retrace their steps and become once again a purely non-political body; if they could be persuaded to disassociate themselves openly from any avowed sympathies, either with the "Commune" or with revolution. If too they can see their way to remove from their official regulations any negation of religion, of the Supreme Being, of the immortality of the soul, to become once again if a tolerant yet a theistic body, we feel sure the greatest good would ensue to Freemasonry and to themselves. We then should have but little fear for their future progress, and no apprehension whatever either for the hostile criticism of the outer world, or the vehement denunciations of the ablest of their adversaries.

A COMMEMORATION INSTALLATION MEDAL.

We have to announce that in answer to many applications, Bro. George Kenning is about to issue a medal commemorative of the Installation of our Royal Grand Master, of which further particulars will be announced in the columns of the Freemason. The medals will be of gold, silver, and bronze, and will bear on one side the bust of our Grand Master, in Masonic costume, and on the reverse, the date of the Installation, and his and our watchwords, Loyalty and Charity. Though simple, the design appears to us to be most effective, and Bro. Kenning may be relied on to issue a medal which shall do credit to the occasion and the Craft.

PORTRAIT OF OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

We have seen, with great pleasure, a photographic portrait of H.R.H. the Grand Master, taken by Bro. Charles Watkins, of Parliament-street. The likeness is most true, and the expression most happy.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

We have been requested to inform the Craft that the July number of this very useful and interesting periodical will be adorned with a portrait of our Royal Brother the Grand Master, and that subsequent numbers will also be illustrated by portraits of brethren distinguished in Masonry. With the July number the Masonic Magazine will be permanently increased with eight pages of letter-press. We recommend our readers, if not subscribers, now to begin with the volume commencing July. We have also been requested to state that the bound volumes for 1873 and 1874 will shortly be ready.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The quarterly communication of Grand Lodge of England, was held on Wednesday evening in the Temple. The building was very full of the brethren, and as every meeting appears to increase the numbers of those who attend, in an extraordinary degree, it is not unlikely that before another two years are past the Temple will not be nearly large enough to hold the brethren, leaving out of the question its capability to accommodate them with comfort. On Wednesday evening, comfort formed no part of the proceedings, for although the brethren were seated to a larger number than on any previous occasion, the room was almost insufferably hot. The general appearance of the lodge was somewhat altered, and certainly not for the better. The magnificent throne was placed at the back of the dais behind the chair in which the acting Grand Master sat; thus causing considerable inconvenience to the Past Grand Officers; while the Senior Warden's chair was placed to the left of the entrance to Grand Lodge, destroying the square appearance of the assembly, and giving the notion of something or other being out of place. On the whole, Grand Lodge looked much like the reception room of a London house, out of the season, which, on a sudden emergency arising, had been hastily and imperfectly arrayed for a party. The splendid carpet presented to Grand Lodge for the Installation (for which, however, there was no vote of thanks proposed) was laid down the centre of the room.

For some days previously it had been expected that the M.W.G. Master himself would be present to propose the vote of thanks which stood on the agenda paper in his name to the Committee of the Board of General Purposes, Bro. Sir Albert Woods, and Bro. Thomas Fenn, for the successful arrangements made by them for the Installation of H.R.H. on the 28th of April. A great number of the brethren, no doubt, attended in that belief, but a great many more were probably influenced by a desire to vote for the members of the Board of General Purposes. Long before seven o'clock, the body of Grand Lodge was full, and at that hour, to the music of Bro. Kuhe, on the organ, the procession entered. The Prince of Wales, however, formed no part of it; neither did Lord Carnarvon; but Lord Skelmersdale, for the first time in his Masonic career, appeared in the place of the Grand Master. His lordship was vociferously cheered as he entered and took his seat, surrounded by a large body of present and past Grand Officers, amongst whom were the Marquis of Hamilton, G.S.W.; Colonel Whitwell, M.P., as G.J.W.; Dr. Hamilton, as Dep. G.M.; Bros. Sir Michael Costa; W. Beach, M.P.; Sir Albert Woods (Garter), G.D.C.; H. D. Sandeman; S. Rawson; Thomas Fenn; J. C. Parkinson; Dr. Hogg; W. E. Gumbleton; R. W. Stewart; H. Browse; Joshua Nunn; James Mason; John Havers; R. J. Spiers; Dr. Erasmus Wilson; E. S. Snell; W. Winn; Revs. A. B. Frazer, Sir J. Warren Hayes, James Simpson, D.C.L., S. R. Wigram, and C. J. Martyn; Capt. Platt; J. B. Monckton; — McIntyre, Q.C., G.R.; Dr. Woodman, G.S.B.; John M. Clabon; Samuel Tomkins; S. L. Tomkins; Hyde Pullen; — Savage; Brackstone Baker; John Symonds; John Hervey, G.S.; Ough; Brett; Cubitt; Jos. Smith; Thomas Wright; and E. P. Albert.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, and the minutes read and confirmed,

The Acting Grand Master rose and said—Brethren, it is now my pleasing duty to propose to you three resolutions; but before doing so, I must express to you the regret H.R.H. the Grand Master wished me to convey to you, at not being able to be present on this occasion. He hopes to be able to attend more regularly in the future. I have also to regret that the Pro-Grand Master is not here to-night; but we all know how great a task it was for him to perform that he undertook on the 28th of April, and how little we ought to expect from him at present. The Grand Master wished me also to express to you his cordial assent to the resolutions which I am about to propose to you. I need hardly dilate on them, for I think all who were present on the 28th of April must have expressed astonishment at the admirable way in which all the arrangements were carried out. (Hear, hear.) I will not detain you by saying any more on the subject, for I am sure you will endorse everything that has been said in public and in private. I will read the resolutions to you. His lordship then read the following resolutions, which were put seriatim, seconded by Dr. Hamilton, and carried amidst great applause:

"That the cordial thanks of the Grand Lodge are due and are hereby given to Bro. John B. Monckton, the President, and to the members of the committee appointed by the Board of General Purposes to assist the Grand Director of Ceremonies, for their successful exertions in carrying out the arrangements for the installation of H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master, at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 28th April last, and to the Grand Secretary and the executive generally for their willing and able assistance on the occasion."

"That the best and most cordial thanks of this Grand Lodge are eminently due and are hereby given to Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, Garter, P.G.W., Grand Director of Ceremonies, for the most able manner in which he conceived and carried out the details of the ceremony of installation of H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master, at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 28th day of April, 1875."

"That the cordial thanks of Grand Lodge are due and are hereby given to Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., for the very able manner in which he carried out the duties of superintending the arrangements relating to the admission and seating of the brethren on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master, at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 28th of April, 1875, and for his indefatigable exertions in the discharge of that duty."

His Lordship observed, on putting the motions, that he was shure he need hardly put them, as he knew the brethren were of the same opinion as himself with regard to the whole arrangements on the 28th of April.

On the election of Trustees of Grand Lodge Funds coming on, Dr. Hamilton said, he begged to propose the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro-Grand Master, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the Right Hon. the Marquis of Hamilton, Senior Grand Warden, as such trustees.

Bro. Hugh D. Sandeman seconded the proposition, which was put and carried.

The election of members of the Board of General Purposes was then taken, and scrutineers appointed.

There was no contest for the membership of the Colonial Board, or the Committee of Management of the Benevolent Institution, the requisite number only having been nominated. They therefore stand as follows:

Colonial Board.—Bros. Brackstone Baker (21), James Brett (177), J. M. Case (1), H. Gröning (197), J. G. Marsh (28), W. F. Nettleship (14), and S. Poynter (1491).

Committee of Management of the Benevolent Institution.—Bros. James Brett (177), C. A. Cottebrune, (733), T. Cubitt (157), J. A. Farnfield (256), H. M. Levy (188), J. G. Stevens (554), A. H. Tattershall (140), H. G. Warren (173), and Thomas White (21).

Bro. Hervey afterwards read the report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.:—A brother of the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, 12, London, £100; a brother of the St. Paul's Lodge, 374, Montreal, Canada East, £50; the widow of a brother of the Lodge of Sincerity, 189, East Stonehouse, £150; the widow of a brother of the Belgrave Lodge, 749, London, £50; a brother of the St. Thomas's Lodge, 142, London, £100.

All these grants were then proposed by Bro. John M. Clabon, president of the lodge, and four of them were seconded by Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President. Bro. H. Garrod seconded the fourth on the list. All the grants were confirmed.

Bro. John B. Monckton, P.G.D., President of the Board of General Purposes, moved that the following report of the Board of General Purposes, printed on the agenda paper, be taken as read, which was agreed to:—

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England. The Board of General Purposes have to report as follows:—It appeared from the return of its members made to the Grand Secretary by a Provincial Lodge, that the names of initiates were withheld from such return. This being in contravention of the Constitutions (Art. 14, page 66), the attention of the Lodge was called to the circumstance and an explanation requested, and it was stated in reply (and upon investigation the Board have every reason to be satisfied with the bona fides of the statement,) that the belief had always prevailed in the Lodge that members ought not to be returned until raised to the third degree. The Board have received the strongest expressions of regret that such a mistake should have occurred, and have admonished the Lodge in respect to it.

It is thought right to report the matter to Grand Lodge, as a warning to other lodges in case a similar misapprehension prevails elsewhere. (Signed) John B. Monckton, Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C. President.

18th May, 1875.

In moving that it be received and entered on the minutes, Bro. Monckton said, that though it had been taken as read, he trusted that no member of Grand Lodge would be satisfied without reading that report in its entirety, because it contained that which without being intended to be at all severe on the lodge in question, was brought before Grand Lodge as a warning to lodges that might not be so well-informed as others of their responsibilities and liabilities. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. John Savage, P.G.D., seconded the motion, which was put by the Acting Grand Master, and carried.

Bro. Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C., G.R., said that as he did not see the Vice-President of the Board (Bro. Peter De L. Long) in his place, he would move that the rest of the report be received and entered in the minutes. He was sure it would be immediately adopted by Grand Lodge, because all the brethren were aware how well and ably the President of the Board of General Purposes had discharged his duties. (Hear, hear.) The report was as follows:—

At the meeting of the Board held on Tuesday, the 18th instant, after the ordinary business had been disposed of, it was unanimously resolved:—"That the thanks of the Board be given to the President, Brother John B. Monckton, for the urbanity and unvarying courtesy which he has displayed, and the very able and satisfactory way in which he has conducted the business of the Board during the past eventful year." (Signed) Peter D. L. Long, Vice-President.

Amidst much laughter Bro. Long (whom Bro. McIntyre "did not see in his place,") rose and seconded the motion.

The motion was put and adopted nem. dis., accompanied by loud cheers.

The next business was the—Appeal of Brother William F. H. Temple, W. Master of the Bulwer Lodge, No. 891, Constantinople, against the ruling of the Deputy District Grand Master, relative to the resignation and subsequent election of Bro. Taylor as Master of the lodge, and also against his (Bro. Temple's) suspension from his Masonic privileges.

Bro. McIntyre, G.R., stated the circumstances of the case, from which it appeared that a dispute had arisen between the two brethren, between the date of the election of Bro. Taylor and that when he should have been installed. Charges had been made by Bro. Taylor against Bro. Temple on matters of business, and entirely outside Masonry; and, moreover, the charges were not made in a Masonic Lodge, and had nothing to do with Masonic conduct. Bro. Temple preferred a complaint to the District Grand Lodge. The District Grand Master was away, and a deputy was acting. The matter was brought before the Dist. Board of Gen. Purposes, who met, and after having heard the statements of both parties, decided that Bro. Temple was not guilty of the charges brought against him by Bro. Taylor, and that the latter should apologise. There was some little difference between the Dep. Dist. Grand Master and Bro. Temple as to the words used, but the result was, Bro. Taylor having been urged to make an apology, said, "I regret I have made a charge, and have not been able to substantiate it." (Laughter.) Bro. Temple, however, accepted this as an apology, according to the Dep. Dist. Grand Master, though Bro. Temple said he never did. Bro. Taylor then resigned his membership of the Bulwer Lodge by letter, which was read in lodge, and a resolution was passed accepting the resignation. (Bro. McIntyre then repeated what he has frequently said before, and which is perfectly well known to Masons in general, that if a member of a lodge resigns, even though his dues are unpaid, he ceases to be a member of the lodge; that no motion of the lodge is necessary upon that resignation; and that no lodge can compel a resigning member to remain a member, incurring fresh liability for dues, until his dues in arrear are paid. Freemasonry is a voluntary society, and whenever a member wishes to resign he may resign. If dues are unpaid, he remains liable to the lodge for those dues.) The lodge accepted, which was not necessary, the resignation, and it was complete and entered on the minutes. The Secretary of the lodge, who was clerk of the W.M. elect (Bro. Taylor), sent in his resignation as well, which was also accepted. Shortly afterwards the Deputy District Grand Master, who was a P.M. of the same lodge, and several other members, thought it would be good for Freemasonry that the resignations should be allowed to be withdrawn, and at the next meeting, when Bro. Taylor was in the chair, a motion was made that a resolution be come to, asking Bro. Taylor and the Secretary to withdraw their resignations. The W.M. said that the resolution could not be put. Bro. Taylor had ceased to be a member, and he could only come in again in the ordinary way by proposition as a rejoining member, and ballot. The Deputy District Grand Master, whose decision was now appealed against, was in lodge but not clothed in the paraphernalia of his office. He seemed to have advised the W.M. that the resolution could be put; but the W. M. was firm, and refused to put it. Lodge was closed, and afterwards communications took place between members of the lodge and the W. M., and a great many were in favour of Bro. Taylor withdrawing his resignation. Still the W. M. declined to accede to anything of the sort. At the next meeting of the lodge the Deputy District Grand Master again attended, and being then clothed in his official clothing, the gavel was presented to him, and he took the chair, and proceeded to rule the lodge. Among the first things that were done, a resolution was moved that Brother Taylor and Brother Secretary be requested to withdraw their resignations. The W.M. stated that as their resignations had been accepted, they could not withdraw them; it was too late, and they had ceased to be members of the lodge. The Deputy District Grand Master seeing that there were not eight members, under the English Constitution, present when the resignation was accepted, ruled that every proceeding at that lodge was annulled, and that there was no resignation sent in or accepted. (Laughter.) Therefore, he ruled that this resolution would be put, the W.M. protesting against it in very energetic language, which the Dep. Dist. Grand Master said was of much stronger expression. Bro. Temple, W.M., said he was responsible to the Dist. Grand Master and to Grand Lodge of England for the observance of the rules and laws of Masonry within the lodge, and could not be superseded by the Deputy District Grand Master coming and taking the chair. In spite of all his opposition, the resolution to ask the W.M. elect, and the Secretary to withdraw their resignations was put by the Deputy District Grand Master, and carried. That took place in February. The W.M. protested and wrote to the District Grand Master; but the day after the meeting of the lodge, when the W.M. energetically, and perhaps rudely, protested against the proceedings, the Deputy District Grand Master, without calling upon him or summoning him before him, acted on his own knowledge, and suspended Brother Temple from all his Masonic functions, not only from this lodge, but two other lodges in the province. So that he was thenceforth entirely suspended. A District Grand Lodge had since been held, and this brother, in consequence of his suspension, had not been able to attend it, and could not be elected to grand office until the decision of Grand Lodge of England on the appeal was known. He was not a Mason to all intents and purposes in the district. The Deputy District Grand Master did not stop there, but called a Lodge of Emergency, the summons for which was of a peculiar character; it was, "to meet to receive the answer of Bro. Taylor, W.M., elect, and the brother who was the secretary of the lodge," to the letter requesting them to withdraw their resignations, and if withdrawn, to instal Bro. Taylor in the to the chair." Bro. Temple was more furious than before. The Lodge of Emergency was held; the brethren withdrew their resignations, and Bro. Taylor was installed; he appointed the officers and reappointed the Secretary. Bro. Temple complained that the Deputy District Grand Master chose to suspend him from all his Masonic functions without ever having summoned him before him to be heard; the Deputy District Grand Master did not deny that, according to the accounts of both sides. It was a principle both of Freemasonry and of the law of every civilised country that a man should be heard before he was condemned. The Deputy District Grand Master said, "I had heard enough of him before I suspended him." (Laughter.) Under these circumstances he (Grand Registrar) would move "That Bro. Temple's appeal be allowed, and that he be restored to his Masonic rights and privileges." Great powers and privileges were given to Provincial and District Grand Masters, and they ought to take very great care that those powers, rights, and privileges were exercised with due caution. If they found in any case that there was an arbitrary use of power Grand Lodge should mark its sense of it and admonish the District Grand Master. He would therefore add, "and that the Deputy District Grand Master be admonished not to act in a similar way on another occasion." Then there was another important point to be considered. Bro. Taylor had ceased to be a member of the lodge, and having so ceased two irregularities were committed by the Deputy District Grand Master; first of all, he incited the lodge to pass a vote asking a brother to withdraw his resignation after it had been formally sent in and accepted by the lodge; secondly, he put it that the resignation when accepted by the lodge was not sufficient until the acceptance had been communicated to the resigning brother. He (Grand Registrar) held that the Deputy District Grand Master was wrong. If a member of a lodge in the heat of the moment said, "I resign my membership of this lodge," and other members said, "Don't do that; pray don't resign," he might withdraw what he said; for until the resignation was recorded it was no resignation at all. But if he wrote a letter resigning his position, and so showed his intention of resigning, and, moreover, when that resignation was accepted, he could not withdraw it. A man might have sufficient friends in a lodge to out-vote the Master. It was not for the Master of a lodge to be called upon to say that the resignation should be withdrawn. It was a thing accomplished. As to the other point, there not being eight Master Masons under the English Constitution present when the resignation was sent in, it was absurd. The requisite number of Masons were present to form a lodge, and the thing was perfect. He would also move, "That the installation of Bro. Taylor as W.M. of the Bulwer Lodge was, and is hereby declared to be, illegal." (Cheers)

Bro. James Mason seconded the proposition, which, after a few words from Dr. Hogg, were carried unanimously in the following form:—"That the appeal of Bro. Temple be allowed, and that brother restored to his Masonic rights and privileges, and that the Deputy District Grand Master, not having summoned Bro. Temple and heard him in his defence, be seriously admonished not to act in the same manner on a similar occasion," and "That the installation of Bro. Taylor as W.M. of the Bulwer Lodge, was, and is hereby declared to be, null and void."

The motion by Bro. J. H. Wynne, No. 101 and 554—"That this Grand Lodge recommend from the funds of Grand Lodge that five pounds be given to each unsuccessful candidate at the election for annuitants of old men and women, belonging to the Craft of Freemasons, held on the 21st May, 1875"—not finding a seconder, fell to the ground.

Brother Benjamin Head, P.G.D., moved "That the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes. That the money be placed in the hands of the Secretary of the 'Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons,' to supply the inmates at Croydon with coals during the winter season."

Bro. Monckton seconded the motion, which was then put and carried.

Bro. Binckes, according to notice, moved "That the £200 awarded by the Board of Benevolence, and confirmed by Grand Lodge in March last, voted to a brother, be placed in the hands of certain brethren in trust for the said brother."

Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, seconded the motion; but after opposition on the part of the Grand Registrar, and especially of Bro. John Havers, it was lost.

Grand Lodge was then closed and adjourned, the Acting G.M. saying that as the scrutineers of votes had not completed their task, he would take the result of the election in his private room.

Late at night the following return was made:—

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The half-yearly communication of the Grand Lodge in this Degree was held on Tuesday evening at the Freemasons' Tavern. The Grand Master, Earl Percy, M.P., was not present, having to return immediately to Northumberland, but his lordship sent a note explaining the circumstance and regretting his inability to attend. The Master's chair was, in his absence, occupied by the Most Worshipful brother, the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., Past Grand Master.

Lodge was very numerously attended, and among the brethren present were Bros. Rev. G. R. Portal, M.W.P.G.M.; Col. Fras. Burdett, Pr. G.M., Middlesex and Surrey; Sir Jno. Cordy Burrows, Pr. G.M., Sussex; Magnus Ohren, P.G.M.O.; Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O.; Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, J. Hordern Jukes, and D. J. Drakeford, P.G. Chaplains; Morton Edwards, P.G.D.; J. F. Lilley, P.G.D.; H. R. Trigg, P.G.D.; Geo. Lambert, P.G.D.; E. T. Inskip, P.G.D.; Geo. Neall, P.G. Supt. of Works; Thos. Cubitt and S. Rosenthal, P.G.D.C.'s; T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C.; T. W. Coffin, P.G. Swd. B.; S. W. Lazarus, P.G. Org.; Wm. Worrell, P.G. Org.; J. H. Wynne, P.G.I.G.; S. Funkensztein, P.G.I.G.; C. T. Speight, G. Tyler; D. M. Dewar, James W. Smith, Geo. Page, Clement Stretton, Rev. C. R. Davy, G. Stewards; H. Massey, P.G. Steward; Major Geo. Barlow, P.J.W., R. W. Edes, P.P.G.T.W., and Thos. H. Parker, Pr. G.S.D., Midx. & Surrey; James Holroyd, P.Pr.G.S.D., and W. Roberts, P.Pr.G.M.O., West Yorkshire; Wm. Robert Wood, Pr.G.O., and Thomas Trollope, Pr.G.S.W., Sussex; and the Masters, Past Masters, Wardens, Overseers, and Brethren of many private lodges.

Grand Lodge when opened was formed as follows:—Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M., as G.M.; Bros. Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick, Dep. G.M.; Tyrrell Leith, G.S.W.; Col. Burdett, G.J.W.; R. W. Little, G.M.O.; Meggy, G.S.O.; Wilkins, G.J.O.; T. F. Ravenshaw and D. J. Drakeford, G. Chaplains; Frederic Davison, G. Treas.; H. C. Levander, G. Reg.; F. Binckes, G. Sec.; S. Rosenthal, P.G.D.C. as G.D.C.; Henry Dubosc, Sen., G. Swd. B.; S. R. Ade, G. Std.B.; Henry Parker, G. Org.; Henry W. Binckes, Asst. G. Sec.; G. I.G.; C. T. Speight, G. Tyler. The minutes of last Grand Lodge—December—having been read by G. Sec. and confirmed, Bro. Thomas Meggy asked a question with regard to the festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund last year. The sum of £168 had been said to have been subscribed on that occasion, whereas only £100 had been received. Had application been made to the brethren whose names had been given in as donors for the £68 not received?

Grand Secretary replied that numerous applications had been made for the amount, but hitherto without success.

Grand Secretary then read the minutes of the Special Grand Lodge at which the Earl of Limerick was elected Grand Master, which were then put and confirmed. He then read the following report of the General Board:—

In the six months ending the 31st March last the number of certificates issued was 444.

During the same period warrants for the following new lodges have been granted:—

- No. 180, Ramsay, Bengal.
- " 181, Burdett.
- " 182, Humber, Hull.
- " 183, Baldwyn, Bristol.

Though the important question of recognition of this Grand Lodge by other supreme bodies has not made all the progress anticipated, it is believed to be in a fair way of satisfactory settlement. It was discussed at the triennial meeting of the General Grand Chapter of America held in 1874, and its consideration deferred to the next triennial meeting.

The Grand Chapter of Ireland gives evidence of its continued friendly feeling and of its fraternal desire for a close and more intimate relationship between the two bodies.

The Board thus publicly reminds the brethren that the Annual Festival in aid of the Mark Benevolent Fund will be held, as already announced, at the Alexandra Palace, on Wednesday, the 21st of July. R.W. Bro. W. Romaine Callender, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Lancashire, Deputy Grand Mark Master, has kindly consented to preside, and it is hoped that the success of the gathering will exceed that of former years.

A committee has been appointed to consider the question of the expenses of the Annual Installation Banquet, in connection with the stewardship and responsibilities connected with the Mark Benevolent Festival. They hope to be prepared at the next meeting of Grand Lodge to submit recommendations, the object of which will be to reduce the personal expenses of the brethren who from year to year undertake these duties.

Notice has been received from the acting authority of the Great Priory of the Order of the Temple of the expulsion from the Order of a member who is also a member of this degree.

Representations having been addressed to the Board as to the desirability of reprinting the early half-yearly reports of proceedings in style and form similar to the present half-yearly issue, the Board has resolved to invite estimates of cost for this, and for printing the papers connected with the proceedings which resulted in the formation of this Grand Lodge.

The Board recommends that, in order to facilitate business and the settlement of questions which sometimes arise, the Grand Treasurer and the Grand Registrar be ex officio members of the General Board, and other committees of Grand Lodge, and that the necessary alterations to that effect be made in the Book of Constitutions.

Subjoined are the Treasurer's accounts for the half-year ending 31st March, 1875, shewing a balance in favour of Grand Lodge of £359 on General account, and £146 9s. 6d. on Benevolence account.

(Signed) THOS. MEGGY, Auditor.

28 May, 1875.

Grand Secretary said that, before going further, perhaps he had better read the following letter he had received from Earl Percy:—

25, Grosvenor-square,
31st May, 1875.

Dear Sir,—I have just returned to town from Northumberland on business, but I am sorry to say I must go north again to-morrow morning. Under these circumstances I fear it will be impossible for me to be present at Grand Lodge to-morrow, and to have the satisfaction of installing Lord Limerick in the chair of Grand Lodge of Mark Masters. Will you convey to Lord Limerick my sincere regret for my enforced absence, and my best wishes for the success of his tenure of office, and to the brethren my best thanks for the support I have always received during my Grand Mastership, which I shall always look back upon with satisfaction.

I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

(Signed) PERCY.

F. Binckes, Esq.

The recommendation of the report that Grand Treasurer and Grand Registrar should, ex officio, be members of the Board of Committees was then adopted, and after an amendment had been moved, seconded, and lost on another clause of the report, Grand Treasurer read his accounts, which were also adopted, and the report of the Board was confirmed.

The Earl of Limerick here retired, and a deputation was formed to escort him into Grand Lodge to be installed. On his entry, Bro. Le Gendre N. Starkie presented his lordship to the Grand Master, and informed him that Lord Limerick had been duly elected to fill the Grand Master's chair. His lordship's zeal for Freemasonry was well known. It was well that a man's actions should be known, as on this occasion it gave the brethren an opportunity of testifying to their appreciation of the services of a brother who deserved well at their hands. The highest reward they could give for his eminent usefulness to the Order was to elect him as their Grand Master, and this they had done unanimously. It was therefore his pleasing duty to present the Earl of Limerick for installation. (Cheers.)

The M.W.G.M. said he was happy to carry out the request made by Bro. Starkie. He perfectly coincided in what Bro. Starkie had said, and he was happy to find that Lord Limerick had been unanimously elected. He was sure it was the wisest choice the brethren could have made.

After the ceremony of installation had been performed,

The Earl of Limerick, M.W.G.M., M.M., speaking from the throne, said—Brethren, as the time is late I will not detain you long in expressing to you my sense of the high honour you have done me to-night. It is a high honour indeed to be placed in the chair of this Grand Lodge, and to succeed such a number of distinguished brethren as have previously occupied the chair. Through their labours, brethren, this degree of Mark Masonry has gone on flourishing in a most remarkable manner. It has spread wide its branches and extended deep its roots; and I trust that what has been going on during the past time will be continued during the time that I occupy the chair in which you have so kindly placed me. I can only say that my efforts shall always be at the service of this Grand Lodge, and I trust that every member of this Grand Lodge will place the most favourable construction upon all my acts, and that I may receive that support in this degree that you have extended to those who have preceded me in this chair. I thank you, brethren, for the honour you have done me (applause).

The following brethren were then appointed Grand Officers for the year, and invested by his Lordship with the insignia of their rank:—

The jewels for Stewards of the Benevolent Fund Festival were afterwards presented by Lord Limerick to Bros. Page, Charles Lacey, F. Richardson, Stretton (Leicester), and Cerexhe. The other Stewards not being present, the presentation of their jewels was deferred till December communication.

Bros. the Rev. G. R. Portal, W. E. Gumbleton, Thomas Meggy, James Stevens, S. Rosenthal and Magnus Ohren were nominated by the Grand Master as six members to serve on the General Board; and Bros. T. J. Sabine, D. M. Dewar, Stidolph, Neall, and Cubitt were elected by the brethren as members of the same body.

[The Report of Grand Mark Lodge will be continued next week.]

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

A further meeting of the Stewards for the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Wednesday evening in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. J. A. Rucker, Past Grand Senior Deacon, in the chair for a short time, when he was succeeded by Bro. Montague, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, Dorset. There were also present Bros. Bingemann, W.M. 55; D. Betts, W.M. 1351; H. J. Adam, P.M. 569; S. Rosenthal, A. Barfield, C. Barker, P.M. 834; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; Robert B. Webster, S.W. 1320; J. H. Thompson, W.M. 1237; F. Adlard, P.M. 7; R. R. Davis, W.M. 156; W. Stephens, W.M. 1365; W. H. Smith, 108; H. Hollis, P.M. 167; H. Dubosc, P.M. 156; I. J. Hooper Wilkins, W.M. 73; John Healey, P.M. 59; E. C. Woodward, Samuel Jones, 112, P. Prov. G.S.D.; C. J. Morgan, G.S. and S.W. 8; A. H. Burrell, W.M. 1446; W. H. Farnfield P.M. 907; W. C. Parsons, W.M. 180; Joseph Reade, 951; John R. Vine, P.M. 173; Israel Abrahams, P.M. and P.Z. 188; J. C. Cox, W.M. 1257; and W. Lane, W.M. 28.

Bro. Binckes, Hon. Sec. to the Board of Stewards, read the minutes of the meeting of the 12th of May, from which it appeared that the former minutes were received and adopted, and the following arrangements were made—the sub-committee on music recommending that proposals for the musical entertainment be invited from Madame Thaddeus Wells, Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, and Bro. Chaplin Henry, when it was resolved that to these be added the names of Bro. J. Kerr Gedge and Bro. E. Van Noorden, the sum allotted being thirty-five guineas.

The report of the sub-committee appointed to enquire as to the facilities for holding the festival at the Alexandra Palace, with recommendations, which, by separate resolutions, were approved, shewed—

- 1.—That the accommodation at the Alexandra Palace is in every respect admirable, and more than ample for any possible number attending the festival.
- 2.—That the Board receives with regret the information that the Palace has already been secured for the 30th of June, and that the negotiations for a surrender for that day have failed.
- 3.—That recognising the desirability of holding the festival at the Alexandra Palace, the sanction of the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master, as Chairman, be sought for a change in the date, from Wednesday, 30th of June, to Wednesday, 7th of July.
- 4.—That in the event of such sanction being obtained, the festival be held at the Alexandra Palace, and that ladies and brethren dine together at the same tables.
- 5.—That the price of dinner tickets be—ladies fifteen shillings; brethren one guinea.
- 6.—That dinner be served at five o'clock precisely.
- 7.—That morning dress be worn, ladies with or without bonnets as may be preferred.

The following brethren were elected as special Stewards:

Bro. Adlard, Frederick	Lodge	7
" Morgan, C. J.	"	8
" Marsh, W. R.	"	9

" Gray, C. W.	"	22

" Sabine, Thomas J.	" Mark Degreee.
" Venn, Henry	" Rose Croix.

And the Officers of the Board, ex-officio.

With power to add to their number.

F. BINCKES,
Hon. Sec. Bd. of Stds.

The report of the sub-committee on the music recommended that five guineas be authorised to be set apart for the musical arrangements in case it should be wanted.

The report was received and adopted. As to the ladies' tickets to be issued, it was resolved that the number should be unlimited for each Steward. It was resolved that the applications for tickets should be made by the 28th of June, for the purpose of balloting for places, both for brethren and ladies. It was also resolved that the ballot for places should be left to the officers of the Board.

Bro. Binckes then explained the Alexandra Palace and the arrangements he had made for the successful carrying out of the festivals, for the information of the Stewards and Special Stewards.

Bro. Wilkins moved, and Bro. Israel Abrahams seconded, the adoption of these arrangements, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Binckes said he was much obliged to the brethren for adopting his suggestions for arrangements. He had spent a good deal of time incubating them, and they seemed to him to be the best that could be made, and Messrs. Bertram and Roberts had written him a letter saying they could make no improvement upon them.

Bro. Binckes then explained that he had received the permission of the Grand Master to clothing being worn, provided it was not worn in public, or going to or coming from the Alexandra Palace. Bro. Binckes then submitted whether collars and jewels only should be worn.

Bro. W. R. Marsh proposed, and Bro. R. B. Webster seconded, that the clothing should be full Masonic Craft clothing to be worn on the occasion.

This was carried unanimously.

It was understood that either evening or morning dress should be worn, and the ladies with or without bonnets at pleasure.

Bro. Binckes read a letter from Bro. Francis Bennoch as to the removal of the festival from Freemasons' Tavern, of which company he is the chairman. Bro. Binckes also read his reply to Bro. Bennoch.

The letter in reply was unanimously authorised to be written and sent by the Secretary to Bro. Bennoch.

Bro. Wilkins having asked what arrangements had been made about the wines, Bro. Dubosc said the wines were stipulated to be of known brands.

As to the trains, Bro. Binckes said he would have further information to give on this point at next meeting.

Bro. Binckes added that as the annual visit to the Boys' School on the 8th of July would this year be done away with, the Stewards' visit preparatory to the festival would be made on the 30th of June. Lord Carnarvon could not attend on that day to distribute the prizes, but he had authorised the President of the Board of Stewards, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, P.G.S.W., to do so for him. That nobleman had consented, and the visit would take place on that day.

After it had been arranged that the next meeting of the Stewards should be held on the 28th inst., at 5 p.m., a vote of thanks was passed to the chairman, and the meeting separated.

Bro. Captain Boyton's successful attempt to cross the Channel terminated amid a warm welcome from the people of Folkestone about half-past two o'clock on Saturday morning last. Although he had been in the water twenty-three hours and a half, he showed but few symptoms of fatigue.

Ever on the look out for novelty, and interesting subjects, the managers of Madame Tussaud's Exhibition have added to their already diversified collection a portrait figure of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in the insignia of M.W. Grand Master. We can say that to the minutest detail everything is complete.

THE LORD MAYOR AND THE PREFECT OF THE SEINE.—At a meeting of the Common Council, held at the Guildhall, it was resolved, on the motion of Mr. William Lawley, chairman of the City Lands Committee, that the Council, desiring to evince its high appreciation of the cordial reception accorded to the Lord Mayor on the occasion of his visit to Paris, and being also desirous of maintaining the friendly feeling which has always existed between the representatives of local self-government, invite the Prefect of the Seine and the municipal authorities of various cities of France, and other parts of the Continent, to meet the Mayors and the Corporations of the United Kingdom to a banquet in the Guildhall, and that a Ward Committee be appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

THE LONDON TAVERN IN THE AUCTION MARKET.—The announcement of the sale by auction of the London Tavern, on the premises in Bishopsgate, on Wednesday, brought together a large company of capitalists and City men. The property covers an area of 6500 superficial feet and included in the sale were the licences and goodwill of the trade of the tavern, which has been carried on for more than a century. The property is subject to a mortgage debt of £50,000, which it was stated would be allowed to remain. Messrs. Gadsden, Ellis, and Co., were the auctioneers. The biddings rose to £84,500, at which sum the property was brought in by the vendors.

The Lord Mayor has consented to preside at a meeting at the Mansion House on the 19th inst., at three o'clock, in aid of a fund for obtaining permanent premises for the Association for Promoting the General Welfare of the blind. There will also be a meeting for the same object at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, on the 17th inst., the Earl of Aberdeen in the chair.

Twenty-eight drags took part in the meeting of the Four-in-hand Club in Hyde Park on Wednesday. The Prince of Wales drove with the Duke of Beaufort, and Prince Louis of Hesse occupied a seat on another coach.

Visitor—Bro. E. Stegemann.

District Grand Lodge was opened in form at 5.40 p.m. Apologies for non-attendance were announced from several brethren.

The following notice, which had been issued to every lodge in the province, with the summons for this special communication of District Grand Lodge, was read:—

"Worshipful Master,—I am directed to notify to you, and to the Wardens of your lodge, and to such Past Masters in the Craft as are subscribing members of your lodge, that a special communication of District Grand Lodge will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Bentinck-st., Calcutta, on Thursday, the 15th April, at half-past five o'clock p.m., for the purpose of confirming the resolutions passed at the special communication of the 7th Feb., the minutes of which are herewith enclosed as required by the Constitutions.

"I am to request that you will make known this notice to your Wardens and Past Masters; three spare copies being enclosed for circulation.

"I am, Worshipful Master, yours fraternally,

"H. H. Locke, "P.D.D.G.M., A.D.G.S."

The District Grand Master in the chair:—Worshipful Brethren, I might say that I am sorry to call you together to an extra meeting of District Grand Lodge at a season of the year when the heat is so trying as it now is, and at an hour when many of you have barely concluded your business for the day, but I am sure that you do not regret being so summoned on this occasion, the business before us being the completion of a circle of Masonic labour which was begun some nine months ago. Looking to what this work is (and I may tell you that, even although it is not yet fully accomplished, it has already called forth not only a unanimous support from the members of our fraternity, but expressions of admiration from those who are outsiders), looking, I say, to what this work is, I feel sure that, with me, you all feel glad that at this communication of D.G.L. in which we are met this afternoon, we have to take what is, for us at any rate, the last step towards its complete accomplishment.

W. Bro. McGregor, W.M. 392, moved—

"That the minutes of the special communication of District Grand Lodge held on the 7th January, 1875, having been printed and circulated, and having been passed at the quarterly communication of the 20th March, 1875, as a correct record of the proceedings of the aforesaid special communication of the 9th January, 1875, be now taken as read."

W. Bro. Mactavish, D.S.G.W. and P.M. 109, seconded the motion, which was carried.

W. Bro. Fitze, P.D.G.D. & P.M. 218, moved—

"That the resolutions passed at the special communication of District Grand Lodge held on the 7th January, 1875, be now confirmed."

The resolutions referred to are as follows:—

"That an assessment of one rupee per quarter be paid by all Lodges in the province of Bengal towards the support of the Bengal Masonic Association for the Education of the Children of Indigent Freemasons.

"That in order to give effect to the foregoing provision, the following alterations and additions be made in, and to, the Bye-laws of District Grand Lodge, and transmitted to England for the approval of the M.W. the Grand Master.

"Page 10.—After the line '2nd—The Fund of Benevolence' insert as a separate line, the words '3rd.—The Masonic Association Assessment.'

"The headings 'Masonic Hall Sustentation Fund' and 'Grand Stewards' Banqueting Fund,' now numbered respectively '3rd' and '4th,'—to be numbered respectively '4th' and '5th.'

"Between the Bye-laws No. 20 and No. 21, insert the following, which shall be numbered 21, the present No. 21 becoming 22, and all the following numbers being altered so as to follow in proper sequence. The Masonic Association Assessment is a subscription towards the support of the Bengal Masonic Association for the Education of Children of Indigent Freemasons, and consists of a contribution from each lodge in the province of one rupee per quarter for every Brother who has been a subscribing member of such lodge for any part of the quarter. The payments on account of this Assessment shall be sent to the District Grand Treasurer, along with the returns and dues to District Grand Lodge and Fund of Benevolence, and the District Grand Treasurer shall, within three clear office days of his receipt thereof, pay the same over to the Treasurer of the Association.

"At page 13, in the Bye-law now numbered 40, but which, as provided for above, will become No. 41, after the words 'Fund of Benevolence' insert 'and the Masonic Association Assessment.'

"At page 25, endorsement of Form A, under the head 'abstract of dues,' insert below the word 'contributions to Fund of Benevolence,' 'Ditto to Masonic Association (same amount).'

"At page 26, insert 'Masonic Association,' as above, under the words 'Fund of Benevolence,' in the abstract of payments at foot of returns."

W. Bro. W. G. Amos, P.D.G.D. and W.M. 229, seconded W. Bro. Fitze's motion, for the confirmation of the above resolutions; the motion was then put, and was declared by the District Grand Master to be carried unanimously.

W. Bro. D. McGregor, W.M. 392, said that on behalf of his lodge which had voted against the proposed assessment when it was first brought forward, he desired to say that they had opposed the measure simply because it was thought that it would be found impracticable to carry it out, and because some members thought that improvements might be made as to the manner of the elections to the benefits of the Bengal Masonic Association.

W. Bro. W. H. Ayres, D.G.P. and W.M. 825, said that his lodge had also been set down as against the proposition, but they had not really disapproved of it; they had only suggested another way of attaining the same result.

W. Bro. Locke, P.D.D.G.M. and A.D.G.S., said it must have been gratifying to have heard the remarks just made by Bros. McGregor and Ayres, as practically the number of dissentient lodges was now reduced to three; even these appeared to have abandoned opposition at the last stage, inasmuch as no vote had been given by any of them against the resolutions.

After a few words from the D.G.M., the lodge was closed in due form.

Correspondence.

THE 1717 ASSERTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Bro.,

I observe that Bro. Hughan offers to enter upon a controversy with Bro. Buchan upon this exploded subject.

Bro. Hughan's time, devoted to Masonic writings and researches, is valuable, and I would ask him to pause ere he enters upon the waste of it, which would be involved in such a discussion.

What is erroneously called a "theory" (1717) has never been shown to have any other origin than the bare persistent assertion of Bro. Buchan himself. That brother has never supported it by one single piece of evidence; and what is still worse, he ignores any evidence which is adduced by anybody else. He challenged me to produce any proof of the use of the word "speculative," in any document dated before 1717; I accepted his challenge, and produced two instances in the M.S.

of circa, 1500, of which a transcript was published by Bro. Cooke. Bro. Buchan then cast doubts upon the genuineness of the M.S., and upon the good faith of the transcriber; upon which I took the trouble to have the original examined and verified by a competent expert, and published an extract from his letter. What was the result? Why, Bro. Buchan, who as good as placed his "theory" in the balance with his challenge, said not a word afterwards, but retreated into defeated silence until the circumstance was perhaps forgotten, and then reproduced his pet myth as fresh as ever. I observe that he now repeats his 1717 assertions for the benefit of new brethren, and new readers; but I would call their attention to the foregoing fact, and I warn them that the 1717 theory (so called) is nothing but a bare assertion, which has been long since amply disproved.

I strongly recommend Bro. Hughan to enter upon no such discussion until Bro. Buchan will be content to fairly admit distinct evidences when they are published, and on his own part to adduce proofs (which he has never yet done) instead of mere personal assertions. I some time since called attention to an Indenture of Covenants, temp. Hen. VI., noticed in XXV Quarterly Review, p. 146, between the churchwardens of a parish in Suffolk, and a company of Freemasons, which contains a stipulation as to white apron and gloves, and a properly tyed lodge, to be provided at the expense of the parish. The original of this indenture can perhaps be inspected, and I invite Bro. Woodford's attention to it. If it bears out the notice in the Quarterly, it may go far, if not the whole way, to prove that these were operative Masons, practising the speculative element.

LUPUS.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I can best answer the query of "W.D., 489, S.C.," in your last number, by quoting from the Laws of the Institution. "2. Object. To receive under its protection, and to maintain, clothe, and educate the sons of Freemasons of every religious denomination under the English Constitution," &c.

This definition amounts to an exclusion of the sons of brethren under the Irish or Scotch Constitution.

Our Irish brethren are energetically promoting the cause of Masonic education. Their schools for boys and girls, though in their infancy, especially the former, are making wonderful progress. It was my good fortune to be present, in April last, at the distribution of prizes to the pupils of both schools. The Queen's representative presided, the prizes were given by his daughter, Lady Georgina Hamilton, in the presence of 9,000 of the élite of the Order, and of Irish society. I regarded the scene with singular feelings of surprise, admiration, and—I must confess it—envy; and while indulging in the hope that I might live to witness such a scene in England in association with our own schools, I could not repress a sigh in despair at its accomplishment.

As regards our Scotch brethren, I opened a correspondence with the late Grand Secretary, some few years since, on the suggestion of an influential and generous brother, who is both an English and an Irish Mason, and a noble supporter of our Institution, with a view to an enquiry if it were not possible that by some well-arranged scheme, approved by the authorities in both kingdoms, the benefits of our Institutions might be rendered available for the children of Scottish Masons. My communication found its way, as I presume, to its most fitting destination—the Grand Secretary's waste paper basket—for no reply was vouchsafed, and the matter ended.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,
FREDERICK BINCKES,
Secretary.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE GRAND MASTER H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

A letter appears in your issue of February 6th, from the pen of a worthy brother T. C. W. 141, 1381, 1503. I am sure many of the brethren in this distant part of Her Majesty's dominions will cordially agree with all its contents, and all the office bearers of lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, would be proud to wear some memento of that kind, and got up in that way, to commemorate the most important Masonic event in 1875, viz.: the Installation of H.R.H. as Grand Master.

Trusting you will kindly do me the honour of inserting this humble epistle in your interesting paper, I remain, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

J. J. MAY, S.W., No. 1233, E.C.
Greymouth, N.Z., April 10th, 1875.

OLD TIME FREEMASONRY.

The following reminiscences of Freemasons' Lodges, and the famous Freemasons' Tavern, London, are taken from Timbs's Club Life of London, vol. 2, pp. 263, 280, and will interest our readers, as being views of the Craft by non-Masons:—

FREEMASONS' LODGES.

Mr. Elmes, in his admirable work, Sir Christopher Wren and his Times, 1852, thus glances at the position of Freemasonry in the metropolis two centuries since, or from the time of the Great Fire:

"In 1666 Wren was nominated Deputy Grand Master under Earl Rivers, and distinguished himself above all his predecessors in legislating for the body at large, and in promoting the interests of the lodges under his immediate care. He was Master of the St. Paul's Lodge, which, during the building of the Cathedral, assembled at the Goose and Gridiron, in St. Paul's Churchyard, and is now the Lodge of Antiquity, acting by immemorial prescription, and regularly presided at its meetings for upwards of eighteen years. During his presidency, he presented that lodge with three mahogany candlesticks, beautifully carved, and the trowel and mallet which he used in laying the first stone of the Cathedral, June 21, 1675, which the brethren of that ancient and distinguished lodge still possess and duly appreciate.

"During the building of the city, lodges were held by the fraternity in different places, and several new ones constituted, which were attended by the leading architects and the best builders of the day, and amateur brethren of the mystic Craft. In 1674 Earl Rivers resigned his Grand Mastership, and George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, was elected to the dignified office. He left the care of the Grand Lodge and the brotherhood to the Deputy Grand Master Wren and his Wardens. During the short reign of James II., who tolerated no secret societies but the Jesuits, the lodges were but thinly attended; but in 1685, Sir Christopher Wren was elected Grand Master of the Order, and nominated Gabriel Cibber, the sculptor, and Edward Strong, the Master Mason at St. Paul's and other of the city churches, as Grand Wardens. The society has continued with various degrees of success to the present day, particularly under the Grand Masterships of the Prince of Wales, afterwards King George IV., and his brother, the late Duke of Sussex, and since the death of the latter, under that of the Earl of Zetland; and lodges under the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of England are held in every part of the habitable world, as its commercially and annually-increasing lists abundantly show."

Sir Francis Palgrave, in an elaborate paper in the Edinburgh Review, April, 1839, however, takes another view of the subject, telling us that "the connection between the operative Masons, and those whom, without disrespect, we must term a convivial society of good fellows, met at the 'Goose and Gridiron, in St. Paul his Churchyard,' appears to have been finally dissolved about the beginning of the eighteenth century. The theoretical and mystic, for we dare not say ancient, Freemasons, separated from the Worshipful Company of Masons and Citizens of London, about the period above mentioned. It appears from an inventory of the contents of the chest of the London Company, that not very long since it contained 'a book wrote on parchment, and bound or stitched in parchment, containing 113 annals of the antiquity, rise, and progress of the art and mystery of Masonry.' But this document is not now to be found."

There is in existence, and known to persons who take an interest in the history of Freemasonry, a copperplate list of Freemasons' lodges in London in the reign of Queen Anne, with a representation of the signs, and some Masonic ceremony, in which are eleven figures of well-dressed men, in the costume of the above period. There were then 129 lodges, of which 86 were in London, 36 in English cities, and 7 abroad.

Freemasonry evidently sprang up in London at the building of St. Paul's; and many of the oldest lodges are in the neighbourhood. But the headquarters of Freemasonry are at the Grand Hall, in the rear of Freemasons' Tavern, 62 Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn Fields: it was commenced May 1, 1775, from the designs of Thomas Sandby, R.A., Professor of Architecture in the Royal Academy. £5000 was raised by a Tontine towards the cost; and the hall was opened and dedicated in solemn form, May 23, 1776; Lord Petre, Grand Master. "It is the first house built in this country with the appropriate symbols of Masonry, and with the suitable apartments for the holding of lodges, the initiating, raising, and exalting of brethren." Here are held the grand and other lodges, which hitherto assembled in the halls of the City Companies.

Freemasons' Hall, as originally decorated, is shown in a print of the annual procession of the Freemasons' Orphans, by T. Stothard, R.A. It is a finely-proportioned room, 92 feet by 43 feet, and 60 feet high; and will hold 1500 persons: it was re-decorated in 1856; the ceiling and coving are richly decorated; above the principal entrance is a large gallery, with an organ; and at the opposite end is a covered recess, flanked by a pair of fluted Ionic columns, and Egyptian doorways; the sides are decorated with fluted Ionic pilasters; and throughout the room in the frieze are Masonic emblems, gilt upon a transparent blue ground. In the intercolumniations are full-length Royal and other Masonic portraits, including that of the Duke of Sussex, as Grand Master, by Sir W. Beechey, R.A. In the end recess is a marble statue of the Duke of Sussex, executed for the Grand Lodge, by E. H. Bailey, R.A. The statue is seven feet six inches high, and the pedestal six feet; the Duke wears the robes of a Knight of the Garter, and the Guelphic insignia; at his side is a small altar, sculptured with Masonic emblems.

FREEMASONS' TAVERN, GREAT QUEEN STREET.

This well-appointed tavern, built by William Tyler, in 1786, and since considerably enlarged, in addition to the usual appointments, possesses the great advantage of Freemasons' Hall, wherein take place some of our leading public festivals and anniversary dinners, the latter mostly in May and June. Here was given the farewell dinner to John Philip Kemble, upon his retirement from the stage, in 1817; the public dinner, on his birthday, to James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd, in 1832; Mollard, who has published an excellent Art of Cookery, was many years Maitre d'Hotel, and proprietor of the Freemasons' Tavern.

In the Hall meet the Madrigal Society, the Methodists' and other musical clubs; and the annual dinners of the Theatrical Fund, Artists' Societies, and other public institutions, are given here.

Freemasons' Hall obtained some notoriety as the arena in which were delivered and acted the Addresses at the Anniversary Dinners of the Literary Fund, upon whose eccentricities we find an amusing note in the latest edition of the Rejected Addresses.—Keystone.

INSTALLATION OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

The following circular has been issued relative to the commemorative jewel for the Stewards:—

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 26th May, 1875.

Sir and Brother,—

It has already been intimated that his Royal Highness the M.W. Grand Master has sanctioned the adoption of a commemorative jewel, to be worn by those brethren who acted as Stewards on the occasion of his Installation at the Royal Albert Hall on the 28th April.

The Grand Master having now approved the design of such jewel, instructions will be forthwith given for its striking. I have, therefore, to ask the favour of your returning to me the enclosed form, duly filled up and signed, within one week from this date.

The approximate period for the completion of the jewel will be about two months from the present time, and the issue will take place solely through this office.

The cost to each brother will be £5, and as no more than the precise number of jewels required will be ordered, it is necessary that this amount should be remitted to me with the enclosed form, if filled up affirmatively.

So soon as the number of jewels so required have been supplied the dies will be destroyed.

Until the completion of the jewels the amount of these contributions will be placed on deposit in the names of two members of the Installation Committee.

A drawing of the approved jewel is enclosed.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JOHN HERVEY, G.S.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

The annual picnic of the Prince of Wales Lodge, Auckland, was appointed for Feb. 18th, and from the able exertions of the stewards would have been an unqualified success; but the fates, in the shape of the weather, were decidedly against the movement. In spite of the threatening sky, the brethren, with a large number of the gentler sex, started for the trysting-place, on the banks of Lake Takapuna, but after getting within sight of the landing place there were signs made that no landing could be effected, and there was nothing for it but a return; before effecting this the rain came down in earnest. Notwithstanding this, the indefatigable stewards were determined the annual treat should not be altogether a failure, and took immediate steps to ensconce the party at that favourite suburban retreat, the Flagstaff Hotel, where, between the spacious rooms and tasteful grounds, a very pleasant and thoroughly enjoyable day was spent in social converse and amusing games, the evening being devoted to Terpsichore, so that notwithstanding the apparent failure in the morning, every one seemed heartily pleased with their day out.

The annual meeting of the Pacific Lodge, 1229, Westland District, took place on Tuesday, March 9th, when the installation of the W.M. and investment of his officers was the principal work of the day. We have only to say that the impressive ceremony was performed by the D.G.M., Bro. J. Lazar, and that he was assisted by P.M.'s Bevan and Hudson. To satisfy any member of the Craft who has ever visited the province that the work was well and truly done, and to those of our brethren who have not had the pleasure of seeing and hearing the venerable District Grand Master of Westland at his work, we can only say they are not likely to experience a similar pleasure during their lifetime. Such another Master of the work is not to be met with in these colonies. The list of officers for the ensuing year is as follows:—Bros. T. Bramwell, W.M.; W. Ramsay, S.W.; C. Hill, J.W.; C. T. Lineman, Treas.; H. S. Wales, Sec.; G. Benning, S.D.; J. Dixon, J.D.; J. M. Douglas, I.G. The brethren assembled at the banquet in the evening, and, as is their usual custom on such occasions, thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The prospectus of a Masonic Hall Company at Auckland has been issued; capital £10,000, in shares of £2 each. We wish the company every success in its enterprise. If successful in accomplishing their object, they will supply a want long felt by the brethren of that city.

An instruction lodge is now being held attached to the Pacific Lodge (Wellington), the J.W. of the Pacific, Bro. N. Marchant, being the Convener, and P.M. Edwd. D. Butts, a Past Grand Steward of the Grand Lodge of England, the Preceptor.

An application has been made for a warrant to open a M.M.'s lodge at Hokitika, Westland District, to be held under Grand Mark Lodge of England, and to be named the "Lazar Lodge." Bro. C. D. Cuddeford is appointed the first W.M.

THE RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Sir Kt. Comp. George W. Gregg, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was appointed Grand Representative of this Grand Council near the Grand Council of Michigan.

M.I. Sir George O. Tyler presented credentials as Grand Representative of the Grand Council of Michigan, and he was received and acknowledged as such.

The Grand Statutes and Regulations of the Grand Council of Michigan, with the design of the seal, were adopted as the Grand Statutes and Regulations, and Grand Seal of this Grand Council, making the necessary changes of wording and dates.

The original charters issued to the subordinate conclaves in this jurisdiction by the Imperial Grand Council of England and the Grand Imperial Council of Michigan were surrendered to this Grand Council for its endorsement.

The time of annual meeting was referred to a committee, and will be held on its call, of which due notice will be given.

The fees for conferring the orders shall not be less than twenty-five dollars. And on either or all of the degrees the fees to this Grand Council shall be five dollars.

The Orders shall only be conferred on Knights Templar or members of the 32° A.A.S.R. in good standing.

The "Text Book of Christian Knighthood," by M.I.C.L. Stowell, 33°, Grand Sovereign of Grand Imperial Council of Penn., was adopted as the text book of this jurisdiction.

A motion requesting fraternal recognition and interchange of Grand Representatives with other Grand Councils of the Order was adopted.

On motion of Sir Kt. Comp. William Brinsmaid it was unanimously resolved "That the thanks of the Imperial Grand Council of Vermont be, and are hereby tendered, to M.I. Sir D. Burnham Tracy, 33°, Grand Sovereign of Grand Council of Michigan, for the very able and courteous manner in which he has presided over the ceremonies of our inauguration, and for the interest manifested for the future advancement and prosperity of this Grand Council."

The Grand Council then adjourned, subject to the call of its committee.

Obituary.

BRO. GEORGE STUTTARD, P.M. 126, 1504, 56.

The funeral of this lamented brother, who died at the early age of forty-two years, took place on Thursday, May 20th. Notwithstanding the extremely unfavourable weather, the following lodges were represented:—East Lancashire Provincial Grand Lodge; West Lancashire Provincial Grand Lodge; 1476, Blackpool; 268, Ashton-under-Lyne; 219 (Prudence) 67 (Temperance), Todmorden; 308, Bottoms, near Todmorden; 116, Colne; 1504, Padiham; 462, Accrington; 1064, (Borough) 126, (Silent Temple), Burnley. The deceased was one with whom Freemasonry had become second nature. Always ready to perform an act of kindness, the large attendance at the Church of St. Mary le Gill, Barnoldswick, was an unmistakable proof of the affection with which he was regarded.

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD.

At the regular meeting of the Oxford University Rose Croix Chapter on Friday, 28th ult., Prince Leopold was admitted to the 18°, the ceremony being ably performed by the Most Wise Sovereign, Bro. Hugh H. Riach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—No one should treat the present changes in the weather with indifference, for they undoubtedly have a great effect upon the human body. It is necessary for every one to be cautious and watchful. Cautious as regards clothing and exposure, and watchfulness as regards the effect on the body. The skin, nervous system, and breathing organs often suffer severely, as is evidenced by Erysipelas, Rheumatism, Colds, Sore Throats, &c. When, therefore, symptoms of any of the above diseases show themselves, they should be at once attended to. The Ointment should be rubbed into the parts affected, and the Pills taken according to the printed directions; this treatment soon eradicates the disease and restores the general health.—Adv.

PROVINCIAL.

DERBY.—HARTINGTON LODGE (No. 1085).—On Wednesday evening, the 2nd inst., the monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, at which the following brethren were present:—Bros. Henry T. Bobart, P.P.G.S.B., W.M.; F. Iliffe, P.J.G.W., I.P.M.; S. Pipes, S.W.; W. Heathcote, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, P.P.S.G.W.; P.M., Treas.; J. Worsnop, P.P.G.P., P.M., Sec.; Theo. Hills, S.D.; J. H. Biggs, as J.D.; J. Heathcote, I.G.; W. Stone, Tyler; J. M. Moore, P.M., P.P.G.R.; J. T. Eaton, J. E. Russell, J. O. Mantion, Matthew Hill, W. Butterfield, James Parkins, jun. Visitor: G. T. Wright, P.M. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 7.30 p.m. The circular convening the meeting was first read, and afterwards the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. James Parkins, jun., was then called upon by the W.M. to show his proficiency in the former degree, and, having satisfied the brethren, he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bro. Parkins was admitted and duly raised to the Third or Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by the W.M. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree. Bro. Iliffe, P.M., in the name of the lodge, then presented to Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M. Treas., a handsome Past Master's jewel, as a recognition of his services and a token of sincere esteem. The jewel bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the Hartington Lodge No. 1085 to Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., in recognition of his valuable services to the lodge since its formation. 2nd June, 1875." Bro. M. H. Bobart acknowledged the kindness of the brethren, assuring them that his humble services would always be at their disposal, and that he should value the jewel they had just presented him with as a lasting memento of their kindness. The lodge was then closed according to ancient custom, and adjourned until the 7th July.

ROMFORD.—LIBERTY OF HAVERING LODGE (No. 1437).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the White Hart Hotel, Romford, on Wednesday, May 26. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Tydemann, W.M.; Knox, P.M., acting as I.P.M.; E. West, S.W.; B. Brayshaw, J. W.; Patmore, J.D.; Naylor, I.G.; T. Bishop, Treas.; J. Ellis, Sec.; J. Garnett, W.S.; Bros. Playl, W. Earley, J. H. Whisker, and others. The lodge was opened in the First Degree. The minutes of previous meetings were read and confirmed. Bros. Earley, Whisker, and Playl, candidates for the Second Degree, were entrusted, and retired. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, they were readmitted and passed to the degree of F.C. The brethren next proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when their choice was unanimous in favour of Bro. E. West, S.W. and P.P.G.S.D., Hert. Bro. T. F. Bishop was for the third time elected Treasurer, and Bro. Steedman, Tyler. Bros. Naylor and Patmore were appointed on the Audit Committee. A Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. Tydemann, W.M., in recognition of the untiring zeal displayed by him for the welfare of the lodge, and the admirable way he had fulfilled his duties as W.M. for the past year. Two brethren were proposed as joining members. A vote of thanks was proposed and carried to Bro. Naylor for representing this lodge as Steward at the last annual festival of the Girls' School. The lodge was adjourned until the fourth Wednesday in June (when the Installation of the W.M. elect and investiture of officers will take place).

HALLIFORD.—THAMES VALLEY LODGE (No. 1460).—This lodge met at the Ship Hotel, Halliford, on Saturday last. Bro. the Rev. Dr. Brette, of Christ's Hospital, W.M., presided, and among the numerous brethren who attended were Colonel Peters, I.P.M.; W. T. Howe, Asst. S.W.; J. L. Jones, J.W.; W. Paas, Treas.; J. G. Marsh, Sec.; H. H. Blythe, J.W.; H. R. Gowan, W. Sweetland, Robert Stone, Joseph Davis, Vernon Lockwood, C. J. Davis, J. Evans Kershaw, Charles Semple, W. H. Doyle, and T. B. Yeoman. There were also several visitors present, and among these were Bros. F. E. Hafely, of the Republic Lodge No. 690, New York State; T. R. Gibson, No. 1446; George Townsend, S.W. No. 754; H. C. Levander, No. 742; E. Roberts, P.M. No. 192; H. Massey (Freemason), P.M. No. 619; J. W. Levick, No. 151;

H. H. Collins, No. 23; and P. Collins, No. 1293. Dr. Brette opened the lodge, and afterwards Bro. J. G. Marsh, Sec., passed Bro. H. H. Blythe to the Second Degree. He afterwards raised Bros. C. Semple, W. Sweetland, J. E. Kershaw, C. J. Davis, and J. W. H. R. Gowan, and subsequently initiated Messrs. Mark Davis and E. C. Hislop. The lodge then elected Bro. Edward Semple, No. 14, as a joining member. Bro. Colonel Peters, I.P.M., proposed, and the W.M. seconded, the gift of five guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to be placed on Bro. Marsh's list as the Steward representing this lodge at the late festival. The motion was adopted unanimously, and the W.M. proposed, and Bro. Colonel Peters, I.P.M., seconded, the recommendation of Bro. W. T. Howe, who was acting as S.W. to the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, for the office of Provincial Grand Steward. This motion was also unanimously carried, the brethren entertaining the same views as the W.M., that Bro. Howe's services to the lodge had been very great. The report of the Audit Committee was read and received, and the brethren shortly afterwards closed the lodge, and sat down to a choice banquet supplied by Bro. R. Stone. The time unfortunately was very short, as the brethren occupied three hours continuously in completing the work of the lodge, and there were not two hours left for dispatching the banquet and catching the last train to town. The speeches were consequently of the briefest description after banquet, and they were not even relieved by the pleasant musical efforts which several members of the lodge are famous for. Bro. J. G. Marsh responded for the Provincial Grand Master and Officers. Col. Peters proposed "The W.M.," of whom he assured the brethren too much could not be said favourably. The W.M. in reply said that when he accepted the office he promised he would do the best in his power, and when his year of office had expired he hoped it would be found he had been faithful to his promise. He then proposed, "The I.P.M., Col. Peters," who, in responding, said it had been a great pleasure to him that the lodge had prospered as it had. Under the auspices of the present W.M. success would continue to attend it, and he hoped to live to see a great many Past Masters sitting alongside him. There was no want of the good stuff in the province of which W.M.'s were made, and he did not think there was any better than was to be found in the W.M. The initiates who had been introduced to the lodge he had great hopes of in this respect, and with such material the lodge would become an honour to the Craft. The W.M. proposed "The Initiates," Bros. M. Davis and E. C. Hislop respectively replying. Afterwards the W.M. proposed, "The Visitors," and called upon Bro. H. C. Levander, who on the Wednesday preceding had been elected on the Board of General Purposes, to respond. Bro. Levander replied, and said that all the visitors as well as himself had felt the greatest possible pleasure at being present on that occasion, and which he hoped would not be the last. Bro. W. Paas, Treasurer, replied for the officers of the lodge, and alluded especially to Bro. W. T. Howe, who he was glad to see occupying the post of S.W., and whose services all the brethren were so well aware of. For himself, as Treasurer, he would simply say that as long as they gave him their money he should be happy to do all he could for their comfort and happiness at that table; but if they kept him short he could not dispense hospitality. He was always happy to make the brethren comfortable. The W.M. next gave a special toast for Bro. Howe, who had always been ready to do any work he might be called upon for, and who did it, when called upon, well and thoroughly. Bro. W. T. Howe replied, and promised the brethren that if health and strength were vouchsafed to him, he would continue to do in the future as he had done in the past. Having been recommended to the Provincial Grand Master for grand office he should feel the greatest happiness in representing this lodge, and he trusted he should do his duty as Steward as well as he had performed his duties in that lodge, and in the Prince Leopold Lodge, of which he was a founder. The toast of "The Masonic Press" and the Tyler's toast brought the meeting to a close.

THE ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.—The annual gathering of this celebrated conclave was held on Monday evening, the 31st May, at the Masonic Hall, Café Royal, Regent-street, W., for the installation of its officers and other business. The conclave being opened according to ancient custom by the M.P.S., Sir Knt. R. Wentworth Little, M.P.S., acting in the place of the late lamented M.P.S., Sir Knt. E. Siliffant, the minutes of the last assembly of the conclave were read and confirmed. The following gentlemen were balloted for, approved, and installed Knights of the Order:—Bros. Burleigh Tresseman, Lodge 200, Old Globe, Scarborough; John Mason, Lodge of Harmony, 309; Thomas Howe, 1445, P.M. Prince Leopold, 1460. On the conclusion of the installation of the aforementioned new Knights companions, the special business of the conclave commenced, which was the enthronement of the V.E. Sir Knt. T. Burdett Yeoman, Viceroy and M.P.S. elect, and the appointment of officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Sir Knts. T. Burdett Yeoman, M.P.S.; H. A. Dubois, V.; Rev. Dr. E. Brette, S.G.; Rev. J. M. Vaughan, I.G.; Rev. P. Melancthon Holden, H.P.; T. Cubitt, Treas.; R. Wentworth Little, Recorder; H. C. Levander, Asst. Recorder; T. Kingston, Orator; A. Moore, Prefect; J. Parker, Org.; Col. J. Peters, Std. Bearer; T. Massa, Herald; E. H. Thielley, 1st Aide; J. E. Symons, 2nd A.D.C.; J. Gilbert, Sentinel. The ceremony of installation being finished, the M.P.S. was warmly greeted and congratulated by the whole of the Sir Knights present. The conclave was closed after the Royal Standard of our departed Grand Sovereign had been safely deposited in ancient form. The Sir Knights adjourned to their banqueting hall to celebrate their annual festival. V.E. Sir Knt. T. Burdett Yeoman, M.P.S., occupied the chair, and was supported on the right by Col. Francis Burdett, Grand Viceroy, on the left by Sir Knt. R. Wentworth Little, P.S., Grand Treasurer, and the rest of the officers beforementioned, and the following:—Sir Knts. Hubbard, P.S.; J. G. Marsh, P.S.; T. Moss, P.S.; G. Kenning, P.S.; T. Howe, Burleigh Tresseman, J. Mason, S. Palmer, A. F. Hand; visitors—J. Thomas, P.S.; Hyde Pullen, P.S.; and others. Grace was sung by the following eminent artists:—Miss Jessie Royd, Messrs. Stedman and Frank Ellmore; piano, H. Parker. On the cloth being removed, the usual loyal and chivalric toasts were given, all of which were heartily responded to. The M.P.S. remarked that wherever the name of Her Majesty the Queen of England was mentioned it was always with the highest respect, and that in her name old England stood out exalted above all nations. On the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family" being given, it was received with tremendous applause; this was supplemented by a few observations from the chair, that were very warmly applauded. On the toast of "The Grand Sovereign, Sir Frederick M. Williams, Bart., M.P.," being given, it was replied to by Colonel Francis Burdett, Grand Viceroy, in his usual happy and felicitous style, at the same time he paid a very great compliment to the M.P.S., who had been chosen to preside over the Premier Conclave. The M.P.S. is most ready of speech, and the whole of the toasts were given in a manner that met with marked approval. The toasts were interspersed with some splendid singing, and the ballad song, "So please you, Sir," rendered by Miss Royd, was received by an ovation of applause. Attention and care will place her above mediocrity in her profession. Mr. Stedman's singing was simply splendid, and we all know the value of our old friend and brother, Ellmore. The toast of "The Premier Conclave and her Officers and Past Officers" was responded to by Sir Knt. R. Wentworth Little, who stated that there were now enrolled under our banner 130 conclaves, and some twelve others were ready to join; he spoke most encouragingly. "The Health of the M.P.S." was given by Sir Knt. Moss, whom he was proud to have as a friend; wherever he met him it was always in the character of a gentleman. May health, wealth, and prosperity follow you wherever you go. The following toasts were given:—"The Viceroy, H. A. Dubois," "The Visiting Knights," responded to by Sir Knts. Hyde Pullen and Thomas—their words were kind and gracious; and lastly "The Sentinel's" toast brought to a conclusion an evening spent in pleasurable delight. There was no want of interest during the whole of the time spent together, and the same was much enlivened by the recitations of Sir Knt. the Rev. Phillip Melancthon Holden, H.P., and the newly initiated Knt., Comp. Burleigh Tresselman, who amazed us by his singing and performance on the piano in the most artistic style. Talent was not wanting among the Sir Knts. present. Colonel Peters gave "Vivela!" accompanying himself. Sir Knt. Marsh also lent his musical talents. The piano was most efficiently handled by the eminent Knt. Comp. J. Parker, who had the management of the artists engaged on this auspicious occasion.

Chapter. The M.E.P.G. Supt., congratulating the comps. on the success of the festival, expressed his firm conviction that such meetings had a tendency to consolidate and give an impulse, not only to R.A. Masonry in particular, but to Masonry in general in all its bearings. The resignation of Comp. Geo. Baxter Adams as P.G. 3rd Soj. was accepted, and it was agreed to leave that office vacant until the next quarterly communication in September, when the annual election of office bearers takes place. After a little conversation among the comps. the chapter was closed in due and ancient form.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the P.G.M. congratulated the newly-advanced brethren upon the position they had now attained in this high order of Masonry, and expressed a hope that they would prove diligent in their endeavours to acquire a due knowledge of its beautiful ritual and ceremonials, so that in the working of the P.G. Lodge they might be able to assist at the advancement of many honourable and distinguished brethren in the future. The newly-dubbed Knights suitably recognised and responded to the good wishes of the P.G. Master. There being no further business, the P.G.L. was then closed according to ancient custom.

After the subject of the laying of the foundation-stone of the Rothesay Aquarium, and the annual trip of the lodge, had been brought up and discussed, the lodge was called to refreshment. Bro. Wm. Bell, R.W.M., having retired on account of urgent private affairs, Bro. John Baird, P.M., occupied the chair, and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were well received. The proceedings were enlivened by several most excellent songs. Bro. D. M. Nelson, D.M., said before parting there was one toast he would feel great pleasure in proposing, that was "The Press," coupled with the names of Bros. W. H. Bickerton and John Stewart. The business of the lodge had been most truthfully and well reported in the Freemason, which Bro. Bickerton represented, and he would now call upon them to pledge this toast with a hearty bumper, which was done accordingly with quick fire and three times three. Bro. Bickerton most suitably replied, which Bro. Stewart endorsed. After spending a most enjoyable evening, and the last toast given, which brought the proceedings to a close, the brethren, after assisting the R.W.M. to close the lodge, retired.

Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., of Commercial (No. 360), said he was glad to find them so well satisfied with the change they had made, and it would be alike the endeavour as it was the pleasure and the duty of No. 360 to make them as comfortable as possible. Bro. J. W. Burns, the R.W.M., having arrived, took the chair, when a letter was read from Bro. Geddis, making application for a little assistance to enable him to proceed to New Zealand along with his wife and family. Bro. John Miller tabled a motion for next meeting, viz., "That a sum of money be granted from the funds of the lodge." This was seconded by Bro. John Fraser, P.M., and agreed to unanimously. In reply to a question from a brother the R.W.M. said they had made no arrangements for the use of the harmonium. Bro. Pinto moved that arrangements should be made for its use; this was seconded by Bro. W. Stewart, S.D., and agreed to. An application was made from Bros. W. Pollock, of Lodge Lindores (No. 106), and John Corbett, of Beath St. John's (No. 157), to become affiliated members of the Thistle (No. 87), Glasgow, which was supported by Bros. Booth and Fraser, and entertained. Bro. J. Fraser, P.M., administered the necessary obligation, and both were received members of the lodge. There being no further business in this degree the lodge was passed to the Second Degree, when Bro. Olef Thomas Olsen received the F.C. Degree, Bro. W. J. Burns, R.W.M., effectively officiating. GLASGOW.—LODGE SHAMROCK AND THISTLE (No. 275).—The monthly meeting of this lodge took place on Friday, the 4th inst. in their hall, 22, Struthers-street. There was a large turn out of the brethren. Bro. R. M. Yuille, R.W.M., occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Paterson, S.W., and Findlay, J.W., in their respective chairs. The lodge was opened and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and agreed to, and declared confirmed. The Secretary read a letter from Bro. Jas. Ferguson, who, it appeared, was in very reduced circumstances, and out of employment. After a little friendly conversation among the brethren regarding the character and position of Bro. Ferguson, it was unanimously agreed to give a sum of money from the lodge benevolent funds for his immediate relief. Then came up the question of the annual excursion for final arrangement. After various suggestions it was agreed that it take the character of a picnic to the beautiful and picturesque grounds of Bowling Glen, on the 19th of June, leaving and returning to Glasgow by rail. The R.W.M. also intimated that brethren who have not had an opportunity of subscribing to the memorial to the late Bro. Ure might do so any time before the 10th June, circulars being now in the hands of the committee. There being no further business in this degree, the lodge was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., when Bros. Thos. Ross, James Kerr, and James Neish received that degree from the R.W.M. in his usual impressive style. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

Bickerton, read the minutes of last regular meeting, also those of a special meeting on the 31st ult., which were approved of. The R.W.M. then informed the brethren that Mr. Cowper, whose application for admission into Freemasonry had been read at the last general meeting, and no objection offered, would now be ballotted for, which was accordingly done, and proved favourable. Mr. Cowper then entered and received the E.A. Degree, Bros. J. M. Oliver and John Monro officiating. On Bro. Cowper retiring, the lodge was raised to the Degree of Fellow Craft, and Bro. Scott, who had made excellent improvement as an Entered Apprentice, was presented as a candidate for this degree. Bro. Monro, R.W.M., in the lecture of the degree, so impressively traced the progress of the art, nature, and design of Freemasonry as cannot fail to excite in the Craftsman a spirit of enquiry, and induce him to emulate further acquisitions in Freemasonry. There being no further business, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. ANDREWS (No. 465).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place in their hall, Garngad-road, on the 3rd inst.; the R.W.M., Bro. D. Reid, presided. Bros. McLeish, acting S.W.; J. Davidson, J.W., occupying his own chair. As usual, the meeting was exceedingly well attended. The lodge was opened at 7.30, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary and confirmed. Applications were read for admittance into Freemasonry from the following gentlemen, viz.: Peter Douglas, proposed by Bro. John Douglas, seconded by Bro. W. Gray; Bro. Pirratt, proposed by Bro. And. Herron, seconded by Bro. Jas. Morrison; J. McFarlan, proposed by Bro. Slight, seconded by Bro. John McDonald; Richard Milne, proposed by Bro. Arch. Stevenson, seconded by Bro. S.W. Campbell. Those applications being satisfactory to the members of the lodge, the First Degree was imparted to them by the R.W.M. in a very able manner. Instructors having been appointed to the candidates, and no further business on this degree, the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, when Bros. Renney McLane, Richard Milne and John Wilson were passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft, the R.W.M. again presiding. This being all the business on this degree, the lodge was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. This having been conferred on Bros. emergency meeting would be held on Saturday, 12th June, for the dispatch of business, and also that a meeting for harmony would take place on the 24th, to celebrate the Summer Festival of St. John. This brought the labours of a hard night's work to a most satisfactory close, and reflected much credit upon the energetic perseverance of Bro. D. Reid, the much respected R.W.M. of this lodge.

GLASGOW.—LODGE ST. VINCENT (553).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday the 3rd inst. Bro. Malcolm Stark, D.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. R. McDougall, R.W.M., occupied the chair; Bro. Hunter, S.W., Bro. Stevens, J.W., with a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. On the lodge being opened by Bro. Stark, he read applications from the following gentlemen for admission into Freemasonry, viz.: D. McDoe and J. Groves, which were duly received and no objections offered. They were duly initiated, Bro. John Monro, R.W.M., Lodge Commercial No. 360, performing the ceremony in his usual masterly style. Bro. Stark then read a letter from Bro. R. McDougall, R.W.M., apologizing for his absence that evening, regretting that he was not able to be with them. Bro. Stark said he was sure that Bro. McDougall would doubly regret his absence that night when he informed him of the distinguished and very worthy brothers that had honoured them by their visit on this occasion: he assured them in behalf of the R.W.M. and Lodge St. Vincent that he was very thankful to them, and hoped they would often come amongst them. They were not very comfortable in their present temporary quarter, but they were about to get a hall of their own, and then they would be more comfortable; and before setting down he would again thank the visitors for their company on this occasion. Bro. Stark said that it was rather unusual, at the close of the proceedings, for the minutes to be read, but on this occasion it was most suitable. The Secretary, Bro. J. Hally, then proceeded to read the minutes of previous meeting which was confirmed. Bro. Hunter, S.W., said before closing the lodge he had one duty to perform—that of proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Monro, R.W.M., of Lodge Commercial No. 360, for his kindness in consenting, also the very able manner he had instructed the candidates in the E.A. degree that night: he was sure that the lodge, also the candidates were very much indebted to Bro. Monro, and he would move that it be recorded in the minutes. This proposition, also the vote of thanks, were received with acclamation. The lodge was thereafter closed in due form, and the brethren for a short time adjourned for refreshment, and with the usual loyal toasts, together with that of the visiting brethren and the newly-initiated, which was most ably replied to. The brethren, after spending a most pleasant evening, and the last toast being given—Happy to meet, &c.—dispersed.

A memorial tablet, on which is the following inscription, now marks the spot in Westminster Abbey where the remains of Dr. Livingstone are deposited:—"Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, missionary, traveller, philanthropist. Born March 19, 1813; died May 1, 1873, at Chitamba's Village, Ulala. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearied effort to evangelise the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, to abolish the desolating slave trade of Central Africa, and where with his last words, he wrote—'All I can add in my solitude is, may Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English, or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world!'"

HIS HOLINESS AND THE MOST WORSHIPFUL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"The Pope, he leads a happy life," is one of those poetic fictions which contrast sadly with the sterner realities of His Holiness's sublunar pilgrimage, and when we read "one of those strange tricks," as Cleopatra's maid says, "which sorrow shoots out o' his mind," in his epistle of the 7th January last, we are led to a very startling inference.

It is a saying, founded on the deepest study of human nature, that no man is a hero to his valet, and we should be very much surprised if His Holiness should appear a Christian—we say this advisedly—to the keeper, whoever that may be, of his conscience. Indeed, it is difficult to believe that an Italian, trained to all the arts of priestcraft, can be much short of a pagan himself, and it is a curious circumstance how inadvertently, as it were, His Holiness, in his epistle just referred to against the Masonic brotherhood, betrays the symbolism of a Pythagorean. Why "three priests" and "three communions daily," as His Holiness recommends, should exasperate a God of love against an eminently pacific institution, such as Masonry, whose fundamental principles are charity in its widest sense, and liberality in its theological, is indeed passing strange.

But to the archaeological Freemason, the secret thought thus oozing out is very significant of the faith really held by the Pontiff in the "sanctum sanctorum" of his heart, if indeed one so exalted possesses so commonplace an organ, but does not rather place his hand, when oppressed by the Masonic dread, upon "that aching spot where beats the human heart," but which is something more, or perhaps less.

The truth is, all enlightened Roman Catholics who read for themselves, and draw knowledge from the fountain head, and not the brackish stuff so called through another, are not blind to the fact that the power of the priesthood droops at the headquarters of the sect, and that education and travel altogether destroy its oppressive and pernicious influence—just as in India railways are gradually undermining Brahminism. But the analogy might be pointed still more sharply were we not cautious of giving offence to those brethren who may still have a lingering feeling or superstition in favour of a Church in which they have been reared.

Freemasonry may well pardon the unseemly violence and hatred of "the old man," with something of Lear's "hysteria passio."

He stands condemned by his own pretensions, and it is in vain that he opposes the charity and liberality of Freemasons with vituperation, attempted oppression, malice, conspiracy, and all the weapons of Jesuitism. We know him by his works—"Can a clean thing come out of an unclean?"

His Holiness knows more than he ought, or we are very much mistaken. He appears to look upon Freemasonry as a rival house, drawing off custom from himself. On close examination the decimal system (mystic of course) will be found at the bottom of all this Papal exasperation; and as His Holiness is said to be infallible we will take him at his word, that "no human power (not even the spiritual) is capable of struggling against" us.

But we will not condescend to bandy words with His Holiness. He is welcome to his keys and to his strong box. The world is large enough surely for us all, but should His Holiness require change of air, let him by all means pay a friendly untheological visit to the Great Llama, for "The Most Worshipful" cannot put him up, or put up with him, at present—this being the season when other engagements are pressing. RAHU.

THE 1717 ASSERTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In to-day's Freemason there appears a letter from Bro. "Lupus" in reference to myself, which would be simply amusing were it not for its unmasonic tone, and certain statements contained in it. He tells us that I at one time challenged him in reference to the use of the word "speculative" in the middle ages, and that he got a certain old MS. examined by some one to see if that word was really in it. He published the result of this examination, and, as he tells us, the result was that Bro. Buchan "said not a word afterwards, but retreated into defeated silence." Now, we shall at once see the untruthfulness of this assertion by referring to the back numbers of the Freemason. From pages 26 and 27 of the Freemason for January, 1871, I think it will be seen that it was "An American Freemason," hailing from Cincinnati, O., who was at loggerheads with Bro. "Lupus" about "speculative." Then, if we take the Freemason for April 15th, 1871, pp. 233 and 234, we find "Lupus" stating upon the authority of some unnamed individual that "speculative" really occurs in some old MS., and upon the very same leaf we find Bro. Buchan making the same statement, and naming as his authority Mr. Bond, the keeper of the MSS. in the British Museum! Further on again, viz., at p. 300 of the Freemason for May 13th, 1871, we find Bro. Buchan giving Bro. "Lupus" the benefit of a column and a half of remarks. Then at p. 316, May 20th, we find Bro. "Lupus" telling us he has had enough of it, his opening remark being, "I have no intention to prolong this discussion." Bro. Buchan, at pp. 333, 344 of the Freemason for May 27th, 1871, replied, and so the friendly correspondence closed. Now, how all this can be shown to be Bro. Buchan's "retreat into defeated silence" I cannot imagine. Possibly, however, Bro. "Lupus" will be able to show. For my part, I fear it can only be that the wish was father to the thought; or, again, if he is fond of a glass of good old port now and then, some one has unfortunately happened to touch his toe while the gout was troubling him, and he, being earnestly engaged reading the Freemason at the time, just where Bro. Buchan's name occurred, up goes the walking stick, and poor Bro. Buchan gets the benefit.

I am, fraternally yours,

W. P. BUCHAN.

Glasgow, June 5th, 1875.

P.S.—As to the remarks about white aprons and gloves having to be provided for the Masons in the time of Henry VI., I beg to be allowed to refer to p. 442 of the Freemason for July 15th, 1871; and also to the valuable old 1670 statutes of the Aberdeen Lodge, which appeared at pp. 501 and 550 of the Freemason for August 12th and September 2nd, 1871. Possibly Bro. "Lupus" imagines it was he who sent these contributions to the Freemason. If so, he had better look again.—W.P.B.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am obliged to Bro. "Lupus" for his kind communication, and his interest on my behalf, but at present there does not seem much difficulty as to my offer being carried out, and it is better to give evidence for our theories, assertions, and beliefs in full, in order that the question at issue may be settled at once and for ever, than to decline the controversy, for the "1717 theory" is not the pet notion of "one Mason only," and indeed for my part I am convinced that many both in and outside the Masonic society have a fancy that our claim to antiquity is a portion of our fabulous history.

When time permits I am quite content to abide by my offer, and, with a clearly defined object to be attained, and only three as short letters as possible from my friend Bro. Buchan, and the same number in reply by me, I hope we shall arrive at an agreement on the subject. At present, however, I am not quite clear as to what the "1717 theory" really means.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

PRECEDENCE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you favour me with your opinion in the following case in an early number of the Freemason?

A lodge was formed and a brother became a joining member just before any were initiated. The W.M. elect states his intention to advance the first initiate of the lodge (who is both able and willing to serve) to the vacancy created by the rise of the officers. On this, because he refused to appoint the joining member instead of the initiate, a brother proposed the non-confirmation of that part of the minutes, electing the S.W. to be W.M.

Which has the greater claim to the office, the joining member or the initiate?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

HADLEY.

[As a general rule the actual bona-fide member of the lodge, the initiate, in fact, though any member of the lodge is available for office. In this case the initiate and joining brother became members of the lodge about the same time, so it is a most difficult question to decide.—Ed.]

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me space in your columns to thank Bro. W. J. Hughan for his valuable letter of the 16th January, in re the Mark Degree, and to heartily return his fraternal greeting. The information conveyed is valuable from its plain and concise statement, but doubly so when emanating from a brother so well versed in Masonic lore as Bro. Hughan.

My thanks are equally due to our distinguished Bro. Binckes for his able and exhaustive letter on the subject. As he very properly observes, it is almost impossible to discuss the propositions in public, otherwise there are yet several important points I should like to draw his attention to. In the meantime, however, I hope, and believe, that our correspondence (short as it is) has been of some service to my companions of the Mark.

Trusting these zealous and able brethren may be long spared to the Craft,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

WALTER HILL, P.M. 49, E.C.

Wellington, New Zealand, April 11th, 1875.

BELGIAN BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The Belgian Benevolent Society for the relief of distressed Belgians in this country holds a banquet in aid of the funds on Saturday, 19th June, at Willis's Rooms.

Probably some of those who were entertained by the Belgian brethren at Liege and other places a few years ago may be glad of this opportunity of giving a trifle to a charity so consonant with true Freemasonry.

Any sum sent to me shall be properly applied and duly acknowledged.

I am, yours fraternally,

THOMAS PRESTON, D.C. Great City Lodge.

Obituary.

BROS. T. HAWORTH, R. W. O'NEIL, AND J. S. REDFERN, OF BURY.

The brethren in Bury (Lancashire) have latterly sustained a series of painful losses. Bro. Thomas Haworth, of Lodge Relief, 42, was lost in the foundering of the steamer Cadiz, when on his way from Spain, where he had but a short time before entered on an engagement under Messrs. McCullum, Cannon-Street, London, and his body has not been recovered; then on Thursday in Whit-week Bro. Robert Wright O'Neil and Richard Battersby, the former W.M. and the latter S.D. of Lodge Prince of Wales, 1012, were overbalanced by a lurch while on a yatching excursion in Morecambe Bay, thrown into the sea, and drowned; and only one of the bodies—that of Bro. O'Neil, a young but very promising brother both in Arch and Craft—has been recovered; and, on Wednesday, the 26th ult., within a few minutes of the return of the brethren from Bro. O'Neil's funeral, Bro. John Smith Redfern, of Lodge 42, P. Pro G.P. East Lancashire, (in his 68th year, and the oldest Mason in Bury), died in the Knowsley Hotel, in the arms of Bro. Fred Anderton. On the way from the cemetery Bro. Redfern (who had suffered more or less from heart disease), complained of a pain in his side, and he called at the hotel for a stimulant, thinking it might give him ease. However, before he had time to raise the glass to his lips his spirit passed away without a struggle. A medical gentleman was called in, and gave the opinion that the deceased had died from syncope, probably induced by over exertion in the procession. Bro. Redfern had been a member of the Craft about 47 years, being W.M. of Lodge 42 (the oldest but one in the province of East Lancashire) as long as 40 years ago, and it will easily be understood that among the brethren in that locality his name was "familiar as a household word." Take him for all in all, he was a Mason whose like will not soon be seen again in Bury, and his death is deeply deplored.

Bro. O'Neil's funeral took place on Wednesday forenoon, the 26th ult., and witnessed by a considerable number of persons. The members of the Craft paid tribute to his memory by following his remains to the grave. Altogether 122 Masons attended, and these included members from the several lodges in the town, and brethren from Radcliffe, Whitefield, Rochdale, Ramsbottom, and Haslingden. They met at the Derby Hotel, where the Prince of Wales Lodge is held, and from there proceeded to the late home of their deceased brother in Manchester-road. The carriers were Past Provincial Grand Sword Bearer (East Lancashire) Henry Maiden, P.M. John Halliwell, P.M. John Randle Fletcher, P.M. J. Smethurst, and Bros. Lawrence Stead (Ramsbottom), Nicholas Worsley (Haslingden), Alfred Hopkinson, and Harry Woodcock. There was no display of the emblematical insignia of the Order, but each Mason wore a white necktie and white gloves.

The Rev. E. Westerman performed the last sad offices of the dead. The coffin was of oak, with a handsome brass shield. On the top there were laid a cross and a wreath of flowers, the gifts of friends intimately connected with the family, and the coffin was lowered into the grave bearing these choicely fashioned tributes.

Bro. Lawrence Booth, P. Pro. G.S.B., E.L., acted as director of ceremonies.

The interment of Bro. Redfern's remains took place at All Saints' churchyard, Elton, on Saturday afternoon, the 29th ult. A warrant having been granted by Bro. Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Pro. G.M., for the attendance of the Masonic brethren in their regalia and the observance of Craft honours in connection with the funeral, the event proved no less interesting to the various local lodges than it was attractive to the general public. The brethren, 211 strong, and including representatives of more than a score of lodges, mustered at the Albion Hotel, the meeting place of the lodge of which Bro. Redfern was a member, and after forming in processional order proceeded to their deceased brother's late residence in Georgiana-street, where they took precedence of the hearse and mourning coaches, and marched to the place of burial. The streets were thronged with thousands of spectators, and at various business places and houses on the line of route the shutters and blinds were disposed in mourning fashion.

Upon the arrival of the mourning cortège at the entrance to the churchyard the brethren filed to either side of the avenue leading to the sacred edifice, and there with bared heads awaited the passage of the corpse, which was borne by Bros. Warwick Wood, W.M. 128, Richard Pilkington, W.M. 1392, Edmund Whittam, Samuel Greenhalgh, John Atherton, James Cass, Joseph Place, and Robert Carter. As the funeral party entered the church Bro. J. Randle Fletcher played Mendelssohn's Funeral March on the organ. The general body of the brethren becoming seated, Bro. Phillips (with whom was present the Rev. E. Westerman, vicar of All Saints') read the service for the dead, the 90th Psalm being chanted by a body of surpliced choristers made up from the choirs of the Parish Church and All Saints', and among whom were several members of the Craft. While the corpse was being borne from the church Bro. Randle Fletcher played the "Dead March" in Saul. The corpse was deposited in a newly-built vault on the western side of the church, the choristers giving the responses incidental to the remaining portion of the burial service. This concluded, and the chief mourners moved away, the brethren were formed in more exact circle around the grave, and, at a signal from the P. Pro. Grand Chaplain, they joined in a silent parting salute to their departed brother. The duties of director of ceremonies fell to the lot of Bro. Robert Whittaker, 350 and 678, P. Pro. G.D.C., E.L., who was assisted by Bros. Harry Grundy, P.M. (acting for Bro. E.

Eccles, W.M., 42), Thomas Carter, S.D., Thomas Barker, J.D., and Samuel Mosley, I.G., all of Lodge 42. Bro. J. W. Kenyon, P.M. 42, was the undertaker. We may state that the coffin was of polished oak, with massive brass furniture, the costly metal appointments being the gift of Mr. Joseph Downham, ironmonger, Fleet-street, who, although a non-Mason, was a close friend of Bro. Redfern. The shield was of brass, graven with Masonic emblems, and above and below there was disposed polished brasswork in a cruciform style. Choice flowers, the gifts of Bros. G. O'Neil and J. M. Whitehead—the former contributing a beautiful wreath, and the latter a rare collection of flowers formed into Masonic emblems—were laid on the coffin. On Sunday morning, the 30th ult., a funeral sermon was preached at All Saints' Church by the Rev. E. Westerman, members of the O'Neil and Redfern families, as well as several members of the Masonic body, being present. The text was 1st John, iv., 11—"Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." Mr. J. R. Fletcher presided at the organ, and played a funeral march as an opening voluntary, and the "Dead March" at the close. The hymns sung were "Thy will be done," "Jesu, Lover of my soul," and "Christ is our Corner Stone," from "Hymns Ancient and Modern."

Poetry.

Dedicated to COLONEL PETERS, I.P.M., Lodge 1460, by T. BURDETT YEMAN, 1460.

A SONG—THE I.P.M.—"HEARTY GOOD WISHES."

In ev'ry land and ev'ry clime some form of faith is found,
In North or South, in East or West, this feeling does abound;
Savage and Christian have their rites, and we Freemasons too,

The fame of whom does fill the world, so honour'd is the Blue.

CHORUS—Then sound our name in worthy song, lift up the Standard high;

With soul and voice in love and truth,
"Hearty good wishes cry!"

We're all as one, a solid mass; one thought is in our mind,
To fill all hearts with happiness, and leave dull care behind:
To help a brother and do one good—this is our constant aim;

To heal the sick and cheer the soul by love's undying flame.

CHORUS—Then sound our name in cheerful song, &c.
We'll tell the world that we are men who have no selfish end,

But work in unity and zeal, one's happiness to blend;
To sow the seeds of light and love—a Mason's creed is this,

To make a man say "I'm a man," and fill the world with bliss.

CHORUS—Then sing aloud in joyful song, &c.
So we'll march on and do our part, the world shall be our stage,

Resolved our light to shed abroad, and shun the bigot's rage.

We hold the key that does unlock, the holy high command:
Do unto others as ye would, my free Masonic band.

CHORUS—So we will sing a joyous song, &c.

THE PAPAL ALLOCUTIONS.

"Thady," says Patsey, "mighty strange
Are all these Allocutions,
They are coming in like nice grane paas,
And Spanish revolutions;
They are just as thick as gooseberries,
And plintful as Banes,
And cropping up like foine new praties
Or grane hidges in the lanes."

"Oh, don't you know, dear Patsey,
It's all thim bad Freemasons,
Those chaps who ride upon a goat,
And use hot pokers on all occashuns;
They are a mighty noisy lot,
And ate no ind of dinners,
And jist as shure as eggs is iggs
They all are drifful sinners."

"They don't respect the haythen,
Not even Cardinal Cullen,
The L.L. is their Grand Masther,
At which some folks look sullen;
They're always up to mischief,
And 'spalpanes' are they all,
And everything that's base and brutal
Father O'Rourke does the naygys call."

"They must be bad," says Patsey,
"Because they've a secret dodge,
They won't tell us what they say or do
When shut up within the lodge.
They must have some drifful secret,
Or hedad why do they hide
Their faces, collars, and their aprons,
And many things beside?"

"And yit," says Thady, "it's most quare,
They say they hilp ache other,
That they look after old and young,
And take care of ache poor brother.
Maybe it's jist because of this,
We know so little of 'em,
That we declare they're good for nothing,
And call curses down upon 'em."

If we were Masons, oh!" says Thady
"We should be excommunicate;
If we were Masons, we should know
The truth about their state."

Oh! honest Patsey, friendly Thady,
Dismiss each fear and doubt,
Let a brother 'inthro juice' you,
You'll no more be put about.

But all as plain as A B C,
Will fill you with delight,
Gone are your dreadful fancies,
Your anger and your fright;
A lodge is a band of loving brethren,
Without pretence of art,
Which binds closer to each other
Every loyal Irish heart.

LAYING MEMORIAL STONE OF ROTHESAY AQUARIUM.

To Rothesay belongs the honour of giving to Scotland its first public Aquarium, the memorial stone of which was on Saturday, the 5th inst., laid with full Masonic honours by Bro. Charles Dalrymple, M.P. for Buteshire, and Provincial Grand Master of Argyre and the Isles. The Aquarium occupies an excellent site on the Ascog shore, at the spot occupied by the old battery. When completed the building will have an imposing appearance. Externally it has a frontage of 102 feet, is graced below with a rusticated basement and cornice, is surmounted by a chaste open balustrade, and rising from the centre there will be an ornamental tower 47 feet in height. A short flight of circular steps leads from the outside to a commodious vestibule which communicates with a promenade hall, lighted by a dome, and intended for concerts, social gatherings, and the like. Adjoining the hall are smaller rooms as suitable accessories, and also rooms in which will be fitted table tanks. Entering from the promenade hall is a magnificent corridor, forming the main portion of the building, and measuring 90 feet by 15 feet. Ranged on each side of it will be sixteen tanks, while in two adjacent rooms are to be placed twenty others, for the reception of the smaller species of salt and fresh water animals. Besides those mentioned there will be nine tanks to be used chiefly for experiments. For the tanks 20,000 gallons of sea water and 12,000 gallons of fresh water will be required; but it has been considered necessary to have to supply reservoirs beneath the building capable of containing 100,000 and 40,000 gallons respectively, the extra quantity being indispensable in having the water thoroughly aerated. A water engine pumps the water into pipes, from which it is sent in a spray from jets in the roof, and in the event of an accident to this engine, a supplementary one, worked by steam, is to be provided. The tanks in which the animals are to be placed will be similar to those in the English Aquaria, three sides being of slate, and the front of one-inch plate glass. Artificial rock work is to be placed inside, and the bottom will be covered with shingle. It is not yet known from what source the sea water will be drawn, fears being entertained that the water in the vicinity of the Aquarium may prove unsuitable. After the reservoirs are filled there will be little need of replenishing, the sweetness of the fluid being maintained by machinery, and as each tank is placed in a lower level than the one next it, the water, by an overflow pipe, finds its way back to the reservoirs. To maintain an equal temperature of water, and in the building, hot water pipes are to be brought into requisition. It is proposed to use several tanks in promoting scientific research, more particularly in the department of embryology, and after the Aquarium has been fairly started the directors hope to be able to add a sealground, and also a home for porpoises. The total cost is estimated at £10,000, and of this £1,000 has been contributed by the Marquis of Bute, who, in addition, gave a free site for the building, and £1,000 by the Corporation of Rothesay, the remainder being made up by shares of £5 each.

Rothesay has always been a favourite place of resort for those who, during the summer, can afford to leave Glasgow for a couple of months, weeks, or it may be only days; and there is no doubt that the Aquarium will add another to the many existing attractions of the town. On Saturday flags were displayed from many buildings, and the yachts anchored in the neighbourhood were almost hid with bunting. As was to be expected, the inhabitants turned out en masse to witness the proceedings, while steamer after steamer arrived, bringing thousands of strangers to the pretty little island, thus showing the great interest that is being taken in the Aquarium by those at a distance. The procession was timed to leave the Esplanade at one o'clock, and as the bands that were to take part in it had previously been discoursing music at various points, a very large number of people had congregated long before that hour.

At half-past 12 o'clock the Provincial Grand Lodge of Argyre and the Isles was opened in the Town Hall, the office-bearers having been furnished with the suitable clothing by Bro. W. M. Bryce, Grand Tyler, who was through from Edinburgh for the occasion with Grand Lodge paraphernalia. In the absence of the R.W.P.G.M. the R.W.M. of Rothesay St. John's (292), Bro. Alex. Duncan, presided, with Bros. R. M'Farlane and George Innes acting Senior and Junior P.G. Wardens respectively. The lodge having been duly constituted, the R.W.P.G.M. moved that Bros. Robert Robb, Prov. Grand Marshal, and J. Balfour, Prov. Grand Master of Ceremonies, P.G.L. of Glasgow, as also Bro. W. M. Bryce, Grand Tyler, should, for the honour they had done Lodge 292 in coming down to assist them that day, receive honorary affiliation to the lodge, which was unanimously agreed to. At this stage the P.G. Master, Bro. Dalrymple, arrived, and was received with due honour. Having taken his seat upon the dais, and been informed as to the state of matters, the P.G.M. immediately adjourned the meeting until after the ceremonial at the building, and those present proceeded to join their brethren on the Esplanade. As nearly as we could make out the following were the lodges represented by deputations varying in numbers, the most numerous (the local lodge of course excepted) being that from Lodge Royal Arch, Cambuslang, which consisted of no fewer than thirty-seven members. Lodges St. John, Glasgow, 34; Journeyman, Edinburgh, 8; Greenock Kilwinning, 12; St. John Kilwinning, Dumbarton, 18; Doric Kilwinning, Port-Glasgow, 68; Thistle and Rose, Glasgow, 73; Montrose, Airdrie, 88; Royal Arch, Cambuslang, 114; Royal Arch, Rutherglen, 116; St. Mary's, Partick, 117; St. Mirren, Paisley, 129; St. Barnabas, Kilbarchan, 156; Greenock St. John, 175; St. James', Old Monkland, 177; Garthland St. Winnoch, Lochwinnoch, 205; Star, Glasgow, 219; Hamilton, Hamilton, 233; Blair, Dalry, 290; Rothesay St. John's, 292; Royal Arch, West Kilbride, 314; St. Andrews Royal Arch, Alexandria, 321; St. George, Glasgow, 333; Argyre, Dunoon, 335; Commercial, Glasgow, 360; Kelburne, Millport, 459; St. Munn, Dunoon, 496; St. Andrews, East Kilbride, 524; St. Andrews, Coatbridge, 544.

Bro. Robert Robb, Provincial Grand Marshal, and Bro. J. Balfour, Provincial Grand Master of Ceremonies, having marshalled the procession, a start was made shortly after one o'clock in the following order:—Band of music; Captain-Commandant M'Kirdy and Bute Artillery Volunteers; Chief-Constable M'Alpine and the officers of police; John Duncan, Esq., Provost (in his official robes), and the Magistrates of Rothesay; the members of the Town Council; the Sheriff and Sheriff-Substitute (Patrick Fraser, Esq., LL.D., and Robert Orr, Esq., advocates); the Provincial Grand Chaplain, the Rev. Bro. Gascoigne Weldon, and other clergymen of Rothesay; the Chairman and Directors of the Aquarium Co. (Limited); J. Russell Thompson, Esq., architect of the Aquarium; the inspector and contractors; the Foresters; Masonic lodges, juniors in front; band of music; R.W.M. Alexander Duncan and the office-bearers and brethren of the Rothesay St. John's; the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Argyre and the Isles (Bro. C. Dalrymple, M.P.); officers of police.

Arriving at the Aquarium, and all having taken up the various positions allotted them, the band played the National Anthem.

Provost Duncan then, in the name of the directors of the Aquarium Company, presented the Provincial Grand Master with a silver trowel, bearing a suitable inscription. Prayer having been offered up by the Rev. Bro. Weldon, Acting Chaplain, Bro. Bryce, Treasurer, deposited in the cavity of the stone a glass jar containing specimens of coins of the realm, copies of various newspapers, &c.

The stone having been properly laid "according to the rules of Masonry," three hearty cheers were given, and the band struck up "The Merry Masons."

The Provincial Grand Master then said—On a day long expected by many here present the foundation or memorial stone of the Rothesay Aquarium has been laid in your sight with all the solemnity which the Masonic craft can lend to a ceremony. It remains for me, with your permission, briefly to address you. Has it seemed to any one here present that the ceremony of to-day has been attended with a solemnity almost inappropriate, and that it was hardly suitable that a building destined to a secular purpose should be inaugurated with sacred rites? And yet I am sure that none of us will question the force of the words, "Nisi Dominus frustra"—Except the Lord build, except the Lord keep, the watching and waiting are vain: it is but lost labour. We who are met in the brightness of this opening summertime—omen, I hope, of the success of the whole undertaking—can hardly think it out of place, looking to the character of the future building, looking also to the associations of the surrounding scenery, to invoke upon the work to-day inaugurated "blessings of the heaven above, and of the deep that lieth under, and unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills." It is of the very essence of our business here to-day to wish prosperity to this enterprise, which is, I may remind you, the product of much care and anxiety on the part of its promoters. I am bold to say that it reflects the highest credit, not only on the energy of the originators of the plan, but on the skill of those who devised, and on the public spirit of those who determined to carry out the work. It would be an affectation, of which none of us would be guilty, to pretend that we do not look for material advantage to this place from the erection of the Aquarium. I venture to assert that if our expectations are realised, it is no more than Rothesay deserves if great material advantages should ensue, inasmuch as in this place is being instituted the first Scottish Aquarium. It is satisfactory to know that it is matter of positive knowledge that an Aquarium has elsewhere been what is called a paying concern. We shall not expect quite to emulate the financial triumphs of the famous Aquariums of the South, but it is worth mentioning that the Crystal Palace Aquarium shows a profit of 30 per cent. on the capital laid out upon it, while the grand Aquarium at Hamburg is also a great pecuniary success. I can well believe that to this "Brighton of the Clyde," as it has been called, in reference to our new venture, many visitors will be attracted by the Aquarium. We may flatter ourselves that not only travellers from Glasgow and Edinburgh and other parts of Scotland, but pilgrims from remote places to the classic shrines of Scotland who, among other pleasures of travel, delight in the beauties of the Clyde, its mountain-bound lochs, its picturesque seaside retreats, and its haunts of romantic and storied interest, will also desire to visit in the Island of Bute the Aquarium of the West of Scotland. For my own part, I should not hesitate to say to any who failed to pay us a visit for this purpose, "Your other exploits of travel are all very well, but you have not only missed visiting a sight of great interest, but, what is much worse, you have failed to pay your tribute of acknowledgment to that gifted and remarkable people called the Brandanes, who, among other rare qualities, have been pioneers to all Scotland in the matter of an Aquarium." But to-day I claim a measure of homage for this enterprise on higher grounds. I believe that when completed the Aquarium is calculated to be the source of much useful and interesting information; and it is an ambition worthy of any institution to be a source of intellectual life to a place and neighbourhood. No one would wish on this occasion to be made the victim of an imposture; and I should rank high among impostors if I were to attempt to speak to you of an Aquarium in respect to its scientific value. This only I will say, that those who have visited an Aquarium elsewhere know what a treasure-house of constant interest it is found to be; and I believe that, high as may be the expectations raised in the minds of those who see this building rise, the wonders of the deep on which we shall hereafter be allowed to gaze within its walls will satisfy the most ardent and exacting expectations. It has lately been said with some force that "though man cannot descend into the sea, or observe in the depths of ocean how fish live and grow, yet he achieves a greater triumph. He brings the fish from the great deep in which they live, and compels them to render up in his presence the secrets of their birth and the ratio of their growth." You have already by acclamation, with emphatic heartiness, wished prosperity to this undertaking. I will only say, in conclusion, that I trust its success is certain, and will be conspicuous, thereby affording an example to other places, and an encouragement and reward to the public spirited promoters of the scheme.

Bro. A. B. Stewart of Ascog, and Provost Duncan, on behalf of the directors and promoters of the company, and Bailie Orkney on behalf of the magistrates and councillors, having thanked the Prov. Grand Master for his presence that day, and he having replied in a few words, the procession was reformed and marched back to the Esplanade, where it was dispersed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge proceeded to the Town Hall, where it was resumed. Bro. Duncan, R.W.M. 292, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the Provincial Grand Master for his services that day. They must feel proud also that the Provincial Grand Master of Argyre and the Isles should be a member of Lodge 292. The P.G.M. briefly acknowledged the compliment. On the motion of a brother of Lodge 292, a hearty vote of thanks was awarded by acclamation to all the lodges who had come forward from various parts of the country to assist in the proceedings of the day. Bro. the Rev. A. Weldon, chaplain of 292, said he thought they might all congratulate themselves upon the success of their proceedings so far, and their special thanks were due to the P.G. Master for coming so great a distance to do them honour that day. After a vote of thanks had been awarded to the chaplain, Bro. Duncan, as instructed by the P.G. Master, closed the lodge in due form.

At three o'clock a banquet was held in the Bute Hotel, when upwards of sixty ladies and gentlemen were present. Provost Duncan presided, and the chair was occupied by Mr. A. B. Stewart.

Bro. Dalrymple responded to the toast, "The Houses of Parliament."

The Croupier gave, "Success to the Rothesay Aquarium," and in doing so stated that he did not for a few years expect any return for the shareholders, but he promised that they would not be allowed to suffer any loss, as he would make good any deficiency. He believed that the Aquarium would be the means of inducing many people to come to Rothesay, and that it would be the means of educating the one and profiting the other. He said he would be glad to provide whatever specimens he could for the Aquarium by means of his yacht.

The other toasts usual to such occasions having been duly honoured, the proceedings terminated.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of Management of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons Hall. Bro. Major Creation, P.G.D., presided. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, J. A. Farnfield, J. Newton, J. M. Stedwell, Thos. Cubitt, H. G. Warren, R. W. Little, J. Belterby, G. Bolton, Joseph Smith, John G. Stevens, W. Hale, L. Stean, A. H. Tattershall, H. M. Levy, Joshua Nunn, Dr. Jabez Hogg, and James Terry (Secretary).

Bro. Terry having read the minutes of the 12th May, which were confirmed, read a letter from Lord Skelmersdale, accepting the trusteeship of the Sustentation Fund; he also announced the deaths of two annuitants, the list of the Committee of Management, and the names of the successful candidates at last election on 21st May. Cheques were ordered to be drawn for their annuities. The Warden's and House Committee's reports were read, and Bros. Hervey, Head, Creation, Hale, and Warren were elected members of the Finance Committee. Bros. Head, Creation, Stewart, Joseph Smith, and J. A. Farnfield were elected on the House Committee, and some general business having been transacted, the Committee adjourned.

The name of Bro. H. Thompson (P.M. 177, 1158, &c.) was unintentionally omitted in our report of the Southern Star Lodge, which appeared in the Freemason of last issue.

FELTON AND SONS' (OF ALBEMARLE-STREET) "SPECIALITE" SHERRY.—Looking upon sherry as one of the most useful of the dietetic and medicinal agents of the physician, when used with the care and prescribed with the exactness which we are distinctly of opinion should be required at his hands, we can speak very favourably of this wine. It has, in four specimens which we have collected over varying intervals extending for eight months, presented all the characters of a sound, palatable, and wholesome stimulant, such as those may use with pleasure who treat wine as a part of their ordinary luxuries of diet, and such as those may prescribe with confidence who find it necessary to order wine as a medicine.—British Medical Journal.

CIVIC VISIT TO BRO. SIR JOHN AND LADY BENNETT.—Bro. Sir John and Lady Bennett have invited the Lord Mayor to a garden party at their country residence, The Banks, Mounthfield, Sussex, to meet the Mayor and Corporation of Hastings, which is but about 10 miles from The Banks. The Lord Mayor was born at Hastings, and it occurred to Bro. Sir John and Lady Bennett that his lordship might like to meet the municipal representatives of his native place. The invitation was cordially accepted, and his lordship intimated his intention to make the visit in state, accompanied by his sheriffs. The day fixed on is Saturday, the 26th instant. The Mayor and Corporation of Hastings have intimated their intention to make theirs a state visit.

MASONIC MEDALS.

In our last impression we stated that Bro. George Kenning was about to issue a medal, commemorative of the installation of our Royal Grand Master. To us of this generation, to all English Freemasons, the 28th of April, 1875, will ever remain an "alba dies" of warm, and loyal, and pleasureable memories. It seems most right then and very opportune, that Bro. Kenning should seek to keep alive the gracious recollection of that wonderful scene and that auspicious day by the issue of a medal both appropriate in design, and Masonic in symbolism. We believe that such a "memento" will be gladly welcomed and warmly appreciated by the Craft at large, the more so as we understand the medal is to be struck in gold, silver, and bronze, thus commending itself to the feelings and capabilities of all our brethren. But the issue by Bro. Kenning of a medal in 1875 seems to call our attention to the subject of Masonic medals generally. This history of Masonic English medals is still an unwritten chapter in our insular annals. We have no work on English Masonic Numismatics, and not even so far any attempt to publish a perfect list of English Masonic medals at all. The subject has been alluded to more than once, but only cursorily or partially. It may be that we have MS. collections amongst us, but they have not been given to the archaeological Masonic student. It is true that English Masonic medals are on the whole very "few and far between," and yet some do exist, and it is just possible that more exist in reality than we are aware of, as in the last century especially, some lodges had tokens or medals of their own, and in earlier times the guilds of the town or "limits" probably had their special tokens. A few Masonic medals exist for instance in the British Museum, but not of any early date, and if any brother could afford time to hunt them up and publish a carefully compiled list of them he would confer a great benefit on all Masonic students. In Germany there are to be found some very interesting works on Masonic numismatology, such as "Mossdorf's Deckmünzen," &c., &c., and we believe that an enterprising French brother at Lille is now engaged in preparing a somewhat similar work, or has already prepared it. But in Great Britain, as we before observed, the history of Masonic medals has to be penned, and we shall gladly welcome the "coming man" and Mason who will give us a lucid account and a verified list of all our Masonic medals. At the present time when we are laboriously striving to collect the "disjecta membra" of Masonic history and customs, and habits, and acts, and evidences, the numismatic history of English Freemasonry ought not to be entirely overlooked. We fear that there is not much perhaps in the "looking up" of English Masonic medals to reward the collector or the enquirer, as for some reason or other which we do not pretend to explain, English Masonic medals are comparatively very few in number, and of rather modern date. That some lodge tokens and medals do however exist we have often ocular proofs, and we shall be very happy in our Masonic Notes and Queries, to afford room to any of our brethren who may be willing kindly to forward to us descriptions of any Masonic English medals, which they either possess or know to be still extant, or have been issued in former days. We congratulate Bro. Kenning on his determination in answer to many applications to issue a commemorative medal in 1875, following the precedent of the Commemoration Medal for the Installation of George Prince of Wales, and we trust that his praiseworthy design may receive the generous support of the Anglo-Saxon Brotherhood.

BRO. CAPTAIN BOYTON.

We shall all have read, and read with pleasure not unmixed with admiration, how gallantly our Bro. Captain Boyton has passed over the "intervening waters" between the white cliffs of old England and the opposite fair land of France. Starting from Cape Grisnez and landing near to Dover, our persevering and courageous brother has proved alike the value of his apparatus and the feasibility of his theory. Even on the first occasion it is clear now he might have succeeded, and his last and prosperous effort must convince all, even the most sceptical, how, well armed in his quaint panoply, he can practically defy wind, and weather, and water. One amusing little incident seems to have occurred which we take from our contemporary, The Graphic. A porpoise, it is stated, drew near to have a look at this unusual inhabitant of the deep, and our brother was at first apprehensive that the interesting stranger was a shark. But so happily it turned out not to be, though our brother stood up ready for the fray. Whether the porpoise was, as they say he is, a member of the Marine Peace Society, or whether there is a Freemasonry even among fishes, and that the startled monster looked on the adventurous Captain as a "friend and a brother," we know not, but, leaping over the aquatic traveller, the porpoise is said to have dived down into the recesses of the azure main. How our brother would have fared had he met, as Sir Hugo once did, the "Wasser Mädchen mit nodings on," we do not presume to imagine even, but we gladly welcome him safe and sound from his little and somewhat hazardous "trajet." What effect the possibility of such a passage may have scientifically we cannot venture now to anticipate. We have probably in this fact the reality of "floatability" made even more distinct and decided. It is possible that the system may be well applied to life-boats and the like, though necessarily with some adaptation of means and apparatus. But be this as it may, the record of Bro. Captain Boyton's successful, if perilous experiment, will long remain a very striking one, and a very satisfactory one, of the endurance, and energy, and pluck, and prowess of our gallant, and zealous, and adventurous brother. Her Majesty the Queen and our Royal Grand Master have alike testified their great pleasure and admiration at our brother's notable achievement, and the news of his success will be hailed with simultaneous feelings of hearty rejoicing, alike in the United States as in Great Britain.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Mr. Heckethorn has amused himself by saying that Freemasonry has no literature. A more gratuitous and wilful mis-statement never was made by any writer of any epoch. In 1846 George Kloss put forth, at "Frankfurt-am-Main," his most valuable and important "Bibliographie der Freimaurerei!" That remarkable work contains the names of 5393 books and pamphlets, bearing on the various branches of Freemasonry, and some of the kindred and quasi-Masonic subjects. In addition he gives an appendix containing 200 more names of writers and of works, making in all 5,600, more or less. Since that date, many additional works, some of no little merit and ability, have been published in England, Germany, and the United States especially; and we shall not err in saying that if all known Masonic productions could be put together, they would now reach to close on 7,000 in number. What becomes of Mr. Heckethorn's unwarrantable assertions that Freemasonry has no literature? There is a large field of Masonic literature, though traversed only, perhaps, so far, by a few enthusiastic students, but we believe that the number of Masonic readers and thinkers is strongly increasing, and it may be, as we trust, that a brighter day may yet dawn alike for Masonic literature and Masonic students. Bro. Walter Spencer has now advertised the very interesting library collected through many years by his father, Bro. Richard Spencer, to be sold by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson and Hodge on July 27th and 28th this year. We anticipate a large assemblage of Masonic literati from all quarters of the habitable globe, as in some respects the collection thus offered "pro bono publico" is unique. The catalogue contains 600 lots, and there are in it some very rare and valuable works. Many of the books and MSS. formerly belonged to Bro. Dr. Oliver, and some of them will be, and are, deeply interesting to all Masonic students and collectors. We confess that we had looked for a larger store alike of printed and MS. authorities belonging to him, but still such as Bro. Spencer submits for sale are most striking in themselves. We have been kindly permitted, by the favour and courtesy of Bro. Walter Spencer, to peruse, some time back, some of the MSS., and very much struck we were with them, one and all. Most important they are for the true history of English Masonic Ritualism, many of them certainly, and they ought to be most carefully preserved. It seems now a great pity that this unique library should be disposed of by public auction, as its like cannot possibly be gathered together again. Were it not that we are well aware of the peculiar apathy of our good brethren, in respect of Masonic literature, we should be disposed to say that Grand Lodge should at once seize the opportunity, which may never occur again, of forming a first-rate Masonic library, attached to our Grand Lodge premises at Freemasons' Hall. If the scheme appears, as it probably will appear, too great to some, too expensive to others, we can only urge that our English Grand Lodge ought to have, for the honour and spread of Masonic literature, a good and valuable library. We now have, thanks to the administrative skill of Bro. Havers and other zealous brethren, a Masonic centre worthy of our great English brotherhood, but we still want a library. We have a few books, but books, like everything else, require good accessories, especially for true students, such as a fitting room, a proper catalogue, and expert attendants. If it be said that readers are few, and that any expenditure for books or for a library would be money thrown away, we would venture to submit that an intellectual and cultivated body of men like our English Freemasons ought in this era of expanding education to set the good example of giving a "pabulum mentis," as well as a "pabulum corporis," to our rising generation of Freemasons. The time has arrived, and especially with this opportunity before
