"THE" REVISION.

The most novel event under the sun-if it comes to pass-will be the revision of the Bible by women. Such an intention is announced to be executed by a committee of American and English women. The Bible, like all other good things, seems to have been designed to favor men; ing originally in Wilford's Microcorm. The when it does not speak out plainly the interpretations are always constructed unfavorably to women. It is now openly regarded as a source of hindrance in the work of her enfranchisement. If the Book concerns the human race of to-day it is equally important to all; and, therefore, its many revisions have an interest to women as well as men. Hence, we think the several committees of past revisions should have been composed of both sexes, but it was not proposed, and we do not know that any one desired it. All who were so fortunate as to read "The Women's Constitution of the United States " will not there are many, many millions of people on this doubt their ability to alter the "Word" in a manner that shall make it read like a modern exposition of equal rights.

He depicted the condition of the are fed on husks; or worse still, they have stones instead of the bread of life. A portion of the Spiritualists devote themselves wholly to the inwork of their daily lives and ennoble and enrich the character which they must take with them to the other life. It is but justice to Mr. Ravlin to say that no brief notice like this can give any adequate idea of the ability and eloquence of the discourse.

A GOOD SOCIETY .- One of the best and most sensible societies is "The Maiden Assurance Society" of Copenhagen, that has been in operation for several generations, and is considered by the Danes one of their greatest public benefits. It is designed for single women, whom it shelters, cares for, and supplies with money by the following arrangements: When a girl child is born, the father registers her name in a certain association, at the same time paying a specified sum, and thereafter a fixed sum to the society. When a certain age is attained, and the girl not married, she is henceforth-until she marries or dies-entitled to a fixed income, and to a suite of rooms in a large, pleasant building, with park and garden, and the companionship of other ladies who have likewise become members. It seems to us the New World has nothing quite so admirable for single women as this. To have thus been provided for in infancy, would be to-day an inestimable blessing to thousands of single women who are not constituted to face the world in daily conflict for bread.

As to the contents of the book we can not speak too much praise. The selections are principally made up from the best things which have for several years been written for the Mercury by Mr. Owen. It is a collection of the beautiful thoughts-thoughts characteristic of the cultivated mind and warm heart of the author, clothed in the purest and best English. Mr. Owen, as a writer, has few equals on the Coast, and his "Sunday Talks" were penned in his happiest vein .- Footlight.

The compilation brings before us, in a compact form, the talented author's best and noblest thoughts on life and morals. Nothing in quiet hours will give more food for wholesome reflection than one of Bro. Owen's essays .- Gilry Advocate.

The volume is made up of short editorials on author's newspaper, which tell of studious application and observation, written in a pleasing and interesting style, and full of good "meat," with the intent of benefiting their minds.-Carson Appeal.

As a home production this collection of pleasing essays and flowing verse is peculiarly interesting. The author wields a graceful pen, and all of his efforts involve highly meral principl Although these are newspaper articles published by an editor in his daily round of duty, yet when now bound together in one volume they seem to breathe more of the spirit of the cloistered scholar than is wont to gather round the minutrations of the editorial tripod.-S. The contents are at creditable to Mr. Owen's literary ability as the handsome looking volume is to the taste and msources of the Mercury printing establishment .-- ' S. F. Call.

The articles in "Sunday Talks" are written in an easy, flowing style, enchaining the reader, and teaching grand doctrine. One lays down "Sunday Talks" feeling improved in spirit, with a renewed confidence in mankind and a brighter opinion of the world. The poems are beautiful and one in particular, "Across the Bar," name were not attached, would easily pass for the production of some of the noted poets of the country. The poems have a similar tone to the ballads of B. F. Taylor, one of the sweetest poets of America. "Sunday Talks" should have a large circulation .- Watsonville Page FORLAM.

The Young Man of To-day.

[From the Brooklyn Magazine.]

There are ten articles and essays written on the "modern young woman," where there is one that treats of the young man of to-day. We are apt to criticise the tendencies and weaknesses of the young woman, argetting that the young man offers an equal hundance of material for the critical calpel. The absurdity of modern fashthrough our principal avenues and streets. The cry is that the modern young woman is shallow in her conversation, with all her thoughts centered on her apparel. But is the young man of the present day so infinitely her superior? Is he so studious, so scholarly in his conversation? Are his endencies for dress and pleasure less marked? It is well sometimes to criticise the critic. The young men have, with much propriety, been demoninated the flowers of a country. More and more the young man of Amerca is establishing himself in the commercial interests of our country and in the high places of all professions, until one is at times amazed to find the interests and responsibilities of great commercial houses and professional enterprises resting upon youthful shoulders, and propelled by young ideas and brain. It is highly creditable to the young manhood of America that these instances of ambitious progress can be found; yet these cases are still in the minority. Take the average young man, and there is room for vast improvement. To what shall be attributed the scarcity of our young men in the public libraries, their meager attendance at societies and associations of intellectual and practical purposes? One of our prominent cities boasts of not less than twenty first-class literary societies, yet the combined attendance weekly is but two hundred and twenty-six! The same city has within its limits eighteen other educational associations of art, science and music, and the average attendance at each is but fourteen In business circles there is much the same condition of affairs. Nine out of every ten of our young men perform their duties in a mechanical manner, glad when the clock points to the hour which means the end of another day. It is not an uncommon thing for a young clerk to begin to watch at 3 o'clock for the approach of 5 P. M. The period of life through which they are passing has scarcely any meaning for them. They are forgetful of the important fact that they are standing at the opening gates of life, that they are passing through a season of their existence that should be crowded full of plans and An interest in sporting matters actions. takes the place of an interest in what most concerns them and their future. is much easier for thousands of our young men to remember the name of every one about a New York boot and shue member of the leading base-ball nines in the country, than to recollect the names of the customers with whom their firm has daily dealings. The scores of baseball games take the place of the discounts allowed certain customers in their minds. An intelligent interest in all games of exercise is healthy, but, like all things, it can become too absorbing, and business and the practical things of life become secondary matters. Every young man is in himself a parcel of tremendous possibilities, and these he realizes in proportion to his efforts to develop them. In a country which holds out so many opportunities for young men as that in which we live, it is remarkable that such little effort is made to embrace them. most extreme of unfortunate cases, for a respectable young man in America to fail of commercial and social success, if he before him. This thousands of our young men fail to comprehend, and here lies the secret of the standstill at which they find themselves. The inclination is too much toward pleasure and not enough to labor. It is in youth that we should work if when we arrive at manhood we would have our burdens easier. The young man of today is not, to our mind, what he should serve as poor foundation-stones upon which to build a successful career.

Nevertheless he drifted into the revival meeting and took a seat well up in front. It was rather close in the church, and the warm air was conducive to sleep. The drummer yielded to the drowsy god, and after nodding a little sank into a profound slumber, and slept through the minister's rather long and dry discourse. The audience sang a hymn, and the drummer slept on. When opportunities as they present themselves the evangelist asked them to be seated, one of the brothers in the same pew as the sleeping drummer, accidentally brushed against him as he sat down. The drummer rubbed his eyes, and partially awake, heard the last portion of the evangelist's request, which was: " Now, I want all of you who want to go to hell to stand up." The drummer struggled a little, leaned forward unsteadily, and rose from his seat or might be. There is a tendency to look in a dazed sort of a way. ### "Every Heart Knows Its Own Bitterness."

One Faithful Worker.

Oh, heart, go out of your hiding-place, And wander where you will, Through the city and through the town, Over the dale and hill-Over the sea with its thousand isles, Over the rivers-go In quest of a single human soul That never hath "known a woe."

You may enter the palace of the king-The poor man's humble cot-The palace where great wealth beautifies, And where it blesses not: But, should you travel for long, long years, Till centuries had flown. In search of mortals sorrow-proof, You'd come back, heart, alonel

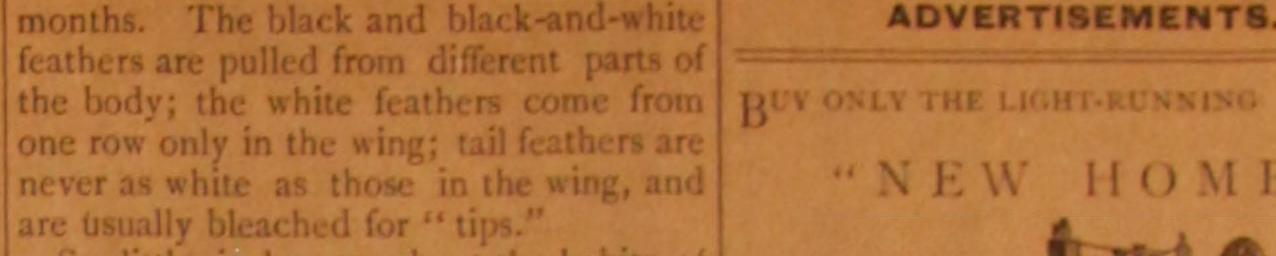

Oh, hands, that have too much work to do (?) And weary of your toil, That fain would change with idle hands, Fair hands, "too white to soil;" Work onl for you have the promise sweet To the faithful toilers given, As you sow good seed along the way From earth to the gate of heaven.

Oh, feet, that are climbing the up-hill road, Oft pierced with the sharpest thorns, Oft tempted out of the narrow way Into the flowery lawns, Climb on, with the aid of your trusty staff-Up, upward towards the sun-For the goal you seek is just in sight, And the bright crown almost won!

"Not yet;" the maiden murmurs, " By-and-bye-When he my soul must own as lord shall come-Then will earth blossom, and no bird be dumb Of all that carol forth life's ectasy, When I have solved the tender mystery The future holds." So dreams she. When warm tears Have been her Springtime's rain, and when the years Have ripened bitter harvest, she shall own The deepest bliss, the bliss we have not known.

"Not yet;" the mother thinks, who sees thrown back From baby eyes the sunshine of her smiles. "Sacred and sweet the simple, gracious wiles; But looking forward on Life's shining track, I see his glory and my pride." When black Has fallen the cloud of grief, perchance of shame, And only grassy mound or tarnished name Is left, she whispers, when her hope has died, " That highest joy is joy we have not tried."

"Not yet;" groans toil, with cark of care opprest, While aches the limb and flags the weary brain, And pinch of want begets the greed of gain. " They find the surest who make furthest quest-They garner fullest who have labored best," The ship comes home freighted with age and pain; The gathered gold is gathered oft in vain; And haven won too late, and failing powers Confess true rest the rest that is not ours.

"Not yet;" the worn soul questions. But when learned At last life's lesson-seeing each from each The half-blown blossoms fall, beyond her reach Hope's fruitage hanging, and the guerdon earned Withheld-meek eyes and trustful upward turned, "Not yet!" she prays. " Desires unsatisfied We bear as cross and follow as our guide. Fruition lies within Heaven's half-closed gate-Our Father holds it, and He bids us wait." -ANNIE ROTHWELL.

Do Your Best.

Have you failed to-day, Good Heart? 'Tis no cause for sorrow. Try again; the clouds may part-Perhaps may part to-morrow. If you are a brave, strong man, You will do the best you can. Do your best, and leave the rest; Better may come to-morrow.

Have you lost your land or gold? That's no cause for sighing; One bright hour doth oft enfold Many a year's denying. Be not weary or downcast; " Patience holds the gate at last." Do your best, and leave the rest, And never give up your trying.

Rich or poor, be all a man; Wear no golden fetter. Do the very best you can, And you'll soon do better. Every day you do your best Is a vantage for the rest. Don't complain; every gain Is making your best still better.

Simple Creeds.

If this were our creed, it were creed enough To keep us thoughtful and make us brave On this sad journey o'er pathways rough, That leads us steadily on to the grave:

Speak no evil, and cause no ache; Utter no jest that can pain awake; Guard your actions and bridle your tongue; Words are adders when hearts are stung.

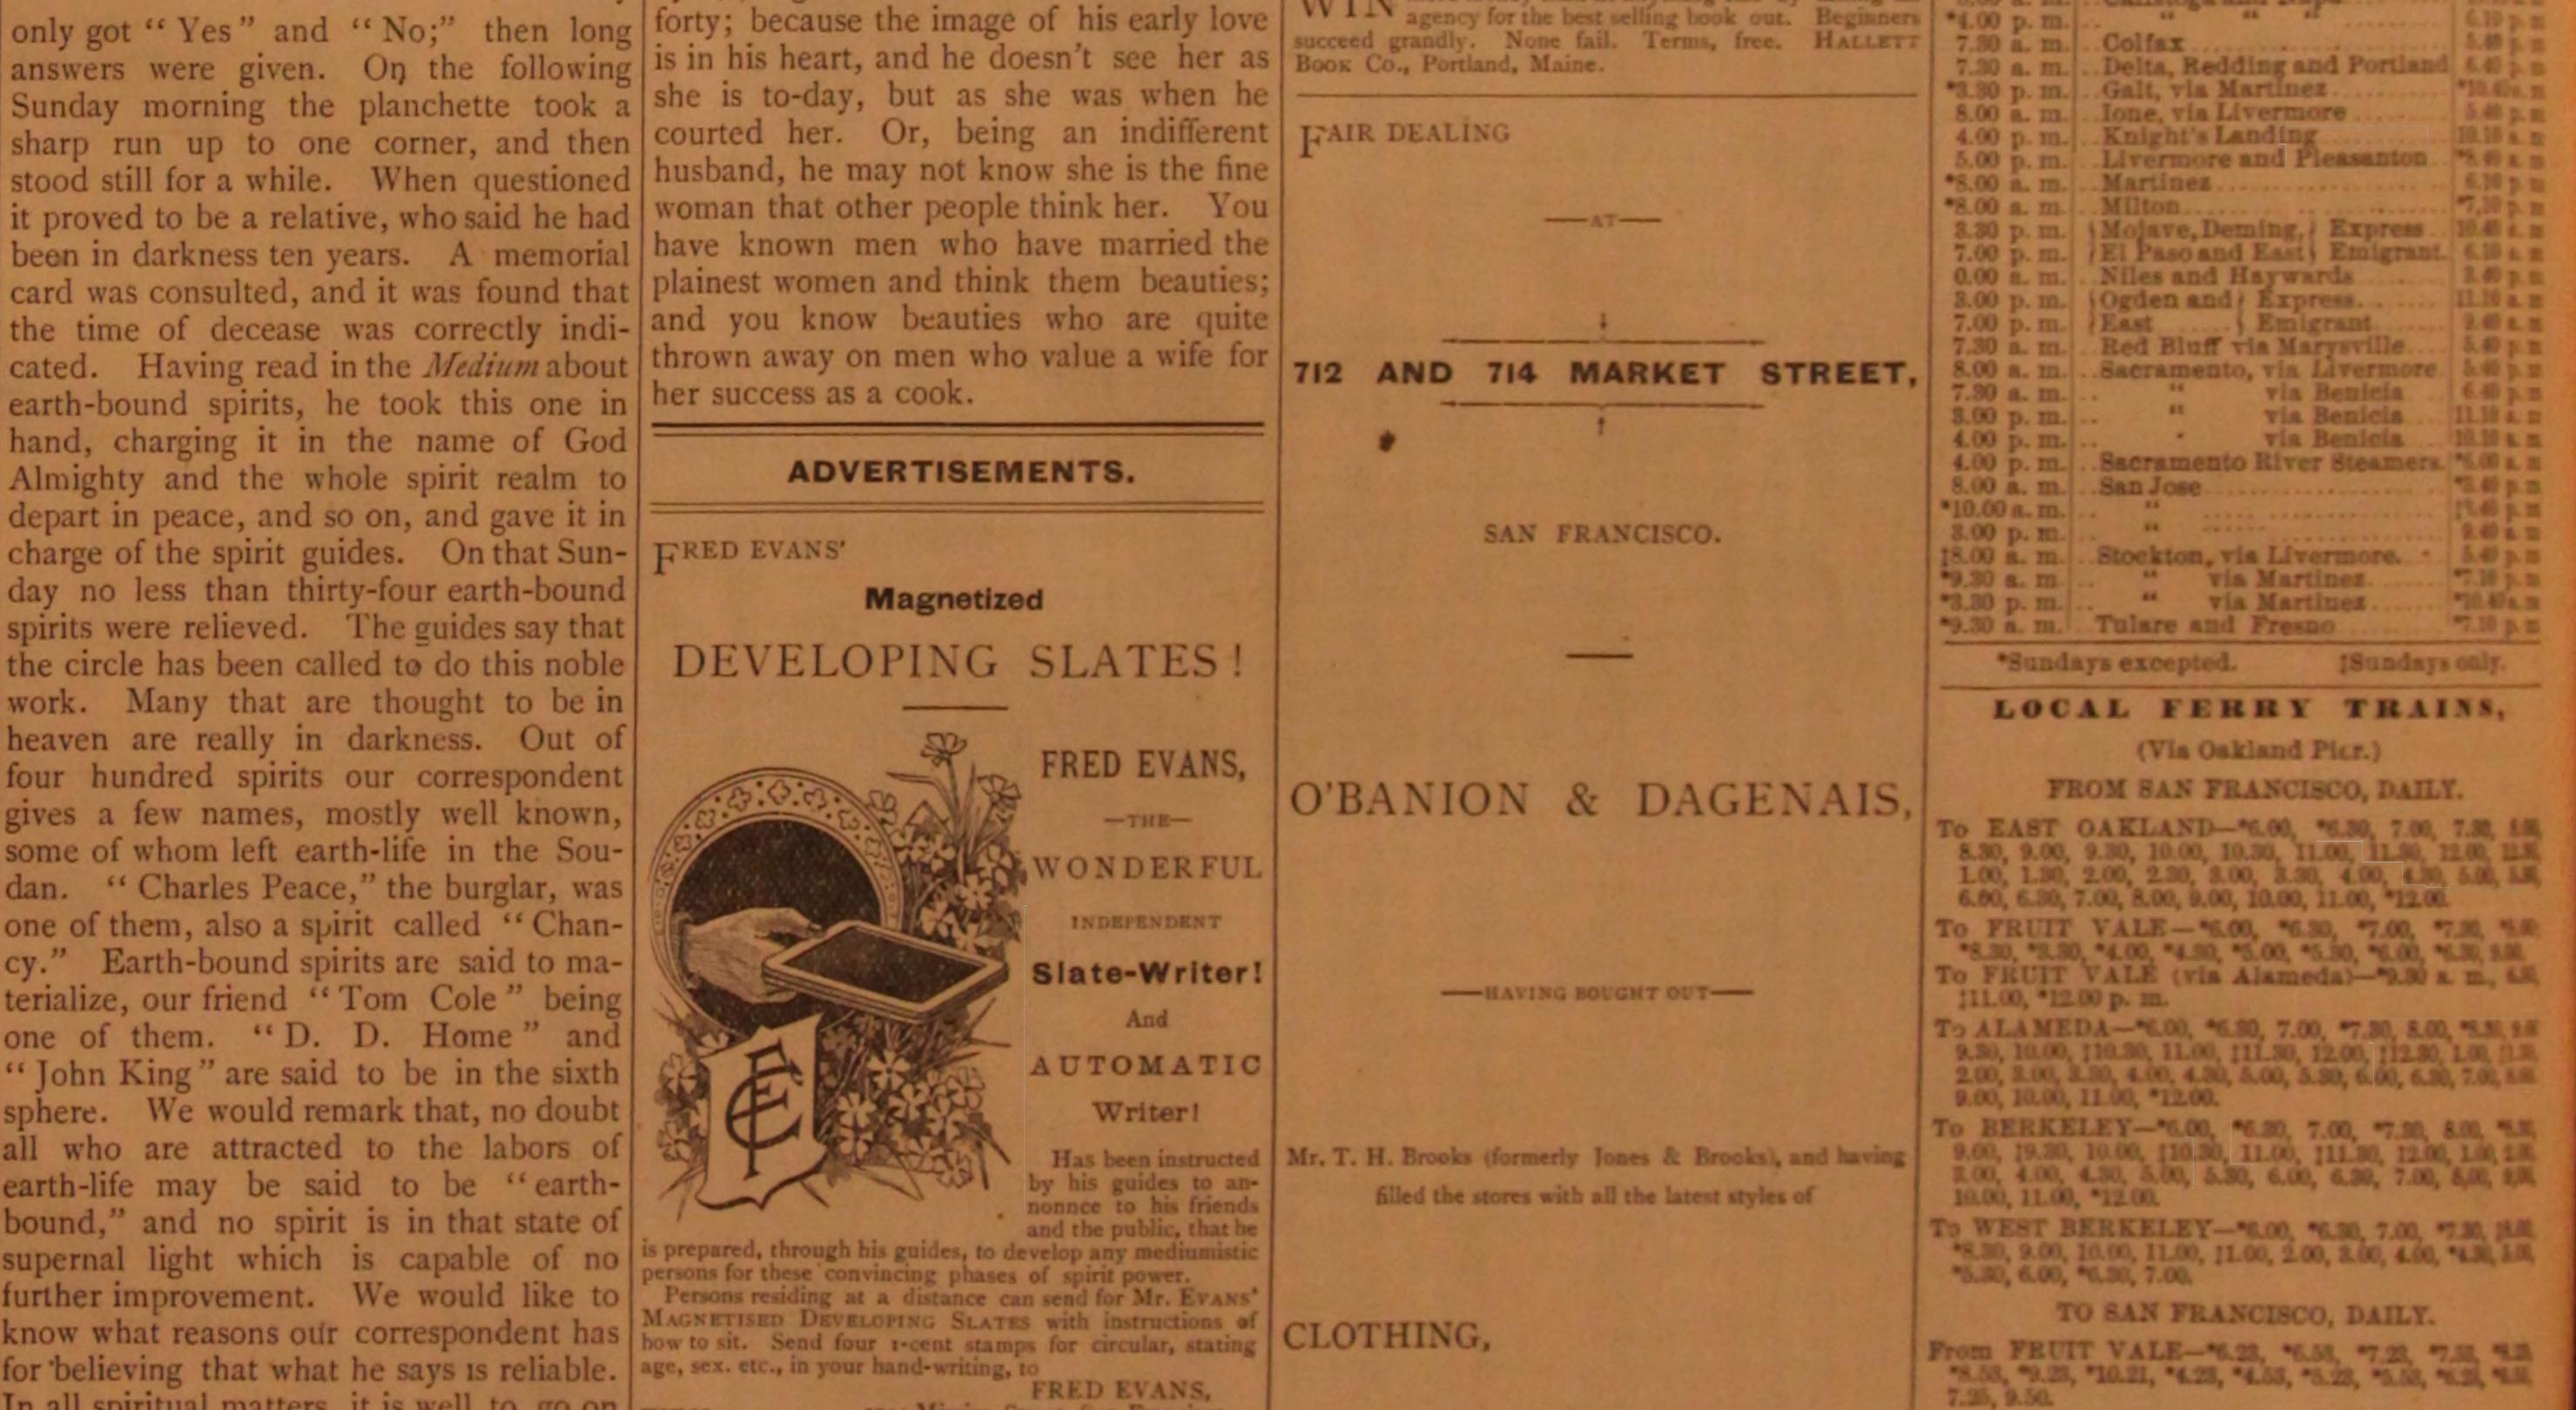

If this were our aim, it were all in sooth That any soul needs to climb to heaven, And we would not cumber the way of truth With dreary dogmas, or rites priest-given.

Help whoever, whenever you can: Man forever needs aid from man;

On that Sun- FRED EVANS' day no less than thirty-four earth-bound spirits were relieved. The guides say that the circle has been called to do this noble work. Many that are thought to be in heaven are really in darkness. Out of four hundred spirits our correspondent gives a few names, mostly well known, some of whom left earth-life in the Soudan. "Charles Peace," the burglar, was one of them, also a spirit called "Chancy." Earth-bound spirits are said to materialize, our friend "Tom Cole" being one of them. "D. D. Home" and "John King" are said to be in the sixth sphere. We would remark that, no doubt all who are attracted to the labors of earth-life may be said to be "earthbound," and no spirit is in that state of supernal light which is capable of no further improvement. We would like to CHEW'S There are many circles at which spirits are raised. Experience of earth-life is sufficient to convince us that the most of human beings are "earth-bound," attracted by influences in and around them that chain down the aspirations, and lead to desires that are incompatible with permanent happiness and spiritual good. It is the great spiritual problem of all.

臣

Let never a day die in the West That you have not comforted some sad breast.

Were this our belief we need not brood O'er intricate isms or modes of faith, For this embodies the highest good For the life we are living or after death.

We meet no trials we do not need; Well-borne sorrow is holy seed That shall rise in a harvest of golden grain; And a wise soul ever thanks God for pain. -ELLA WHEELER, in the "Independent."

Faith and Works.

No answer comes to those that pray, And idly stand And wait for stones to roll away At God's command. He will not break the binding chords Upon us laid If we depend on pleading words, And do not aid.

When hands are idle, words are vain To move the stone; An aiding angel would disdain To work alone. But he who prayeth, and is strong In faith and deed, And toileth earnestly, ere long He will succeed. -J. C. ROCKWELL.

IT is no dream, No castle-building time, that we call life. To catch the gleam Of heaven in the strife, Our toil must tend to reach the better life, There is much room For gratitude-much room for tenderness In all the gloom Of sorrow, much to bless, If we will labor more and murmur less.

Ostrich Feathers.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Ostrich chicken feathers are useless until they are a year old; they are rarely cut JOB PRINTING. before. At twelve months they are cut off. The stumps dry, and after a few weeks the bird sheds them, or they can be drawn out without pain and with ease. The feathers then take six months to grow before they can again be cut. Three pluckings are obtainable in two years' time. The process of plucking continues for many years, but it requires the greatest care to prevent the feathers deteriorating. The feathers from the wild bird are the longest and finest, but rarely more than three on one bird are sufficiently perfect to render them fit for commerce. Hence the necessity of the farm.
