

ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS, EDITOR. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, NOV. 29, 1862

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

Two Dollars a year, payable in advance. One Dollar for six months. Single Copies, 5 cents. Money sent at our risk. For all large sums, drafts on New York should be procured, if possible.

We devote much of our inside space this week to the evidence respecting the Spirit Photographs. The intense interest felt upon this question will make this large appropriation of space not unacceptable to our readers.

To Agents and Clubs.

On and after December 1st, our subscription price will be uniformly two dollars a year—one dollar for six months. No discount to clubs or agents.

We make this change, only in obedience to an imperative necessity, in consequence of the greater cost of material and increased expense of publication. We can give no assurance of permanent adherence even to these rates.

To Purchasers and Dealers.

In view of the increased price of paper, we find that every copy of the HERALD OF PROGRESS sold to periodical dealers is sold at a loss to us. Paper has advanced fully fifty per cent, while as yet our prices have remained unchanged.

On and after the first of December we shall advance one cent in the retail price of the HERALD, fixing it at five cents per copy. This increase is by no means equal in proportion to the greater cost, but we hope, by an increased effort on the part of our readers, to be able to furnish our paper permanently at this rate.

The President's Proclamation.

In the November Atlantic, Mr. Emerson said of Mr. Lincoln's Proclamation of the 22d September: "It was well to delay the steamers at the wharves, until this edict could be put on board. It will be an insurance to the ship as it goes plunging through the sea with glad tidings to all people. Happy are the young who find the pestilence cleansed out of the earth, leaving open to them an honest career. Happy the old, who see Nature purified before they depart. Do not let the dying die: hold them back to this world, until you have charged their ear and heart with this message to other spiritual societies, announcing the amelioration of our planet."

Lectures to Women.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Eliza W. Farnham is soon to give free lectures to women on the Laws of Health and Human Development, at the Cooper Institute. The first lecture will be given in the large music room on the fourth floor, Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1862, at 2 P. M. Those of our readers who can possibly avail themselves of Mrs. Farnham's course may be assured they will be well repaid.

A Question Answered.

The Principia gives the following in answer to the question—"How are the slaves to know anything about the Proclamation?" "A citizen of Kentucky, writing from McCord's station, Indiana, to a friend in this city, says: 'I have recently been to Helena, Ark.: I found a slave, twenty miles below Memphis, who could repeat the President's Proclamation nine days after it was issued.'"

The Atlantic for December needs but one recommendation—a reference to "My Hunt after the Captain," an intensely interesting sketch, by Oliver Wendell Holmes. It alone is worth the price of the magazine.

Mr. Mason Jones, an eloquent Irish Orator, is addressing large houses in this city. His bold defense of the principles of freedom, and broad application of them to all races, have subjected him to the abuse of the New York Herald, and attempts at riots at his lectures. The better class of citizens will sustain him in his noble utterances.

AIR LINE DISPATCHES

TO THE Herald of Progress.

NEW LESSONS FOR AMERICA.

Opening Prison Doors.

EUROPEAN MONARCHS NOT JEALOUS OF AMERICA.

Feeling in the Rebel Capital.

DECLINE OF MORAL POWER IN PUBLIC MEN.

Rebels still Plotting to get between our Army and Washington.

Self-Conceit of Americans.

MORE OPERATIONS IN THE VICINITY OF GEN. BUTLER.

ACTING FROM IMPULSE.

The President recently remarked to the Secretary of War that actions popularly ascribed to "impulse" are regarded as the best if successful, and the worst if unsuccessful. He wanted calculation and the principle of obedience to prevail, but he was of opinion that more dashing "impulse" in the army would be attended with greater Union victories.

MORE DEFEATS FOR OUR TROOPS.

The weather, and not our generals, will now preside over future operations. Providence, however, does not respect the party more than the other. The rebels are more religious, and therefore receive more spiritual encouragement from their spirit friends, yet they do not feel assured of God's particular favor. It is written in fate that the army of Liberty will ultimately be victorious, only after it has been duly chastened by suffering and the country humbled by unexpected and unnecessary defeats.

OPENING THE PRISON DOORS.

The recent order releasing from imprisonment those who had violated the laws of good government, is merely a sign of what will happen when the secession war ends. The Government will be compelled to open its heart to thousands of stupendous criminals. All the leaders of the rebellion will have to be provided with high political stations, their crimes all freely pardoned, their defections and abominations forgotten, and everybody invited to dinner on the return of the prodigal son. The negroes will also be "forgiven" for having been born, and "abolitionists" pardoned for their ferocious crimes. Factions will be excused on moral principle, and "moral principle" will be attributed to factions. The war for the Union will be entombed in forgetfulness.

JEALOUSY OF EUROPEAN MONARCHS.

It is idle conceit in Americans to suppose that the social, commercial, and political prosperity of this country is a source of unrest to the monarchs of Europe. They have no faith in the permanency of a political system which is controlled by ballot-box tricksters and professional demagogues. Monarchs all believe that the fabric of ballot-box government is destined soon to crumble into nothingness. This explains their disposition to look with considerable favor upon the effort of the rebels. France is anxious to open the ball of "Mediation" through some other power. It is fortunate for the North that Napoleon has been so completely "blocked" in his military invasion of Mexico.

END OF THE FIRST THREE MONTH'S CAMPAIGN.

President Lincoln's first call for seventy-five thousand troops to put down a combination too powerful to be suppressed by ordinary methods, was ridiculed by the rebels, because they had measured their strength and knew our weakness. It is remembered that the termination of that three months' campaign was a Bull Run. This happened more than fourteen months ago, and the rebel power is still unsubdued. In no country are men more loyal to their Government, no country can boast of an army of braver men, and still the rebels are not crushed. The cause is this: We have weakened our efforts by over-estimating our strength, while the rebels have strengthened themselves by properly estimating their weakness.

CONSTERNATION IN THE REBEL CAPITAL. "The bloody hand" that was seen by the rebel courier stretched over Richmond, is almost literally visible to the President and associates, who are now actually trembling lest it will be found necessary to remove the government from Virginia by the first of January.

CHARACTER OF OUR PUBLIC MEN. Our national prosperity, our expanded commerce, our free institutions, do not compensate for the decline in the character of our public men. This deterioration in the political departments admits of but one explanation. It is owing wholly to the unphilosophical and absurd system of political administration. There is no harmony between moral integrity and the duties of a government officer.

OPPOSING ARMIES AT FREDERICKSBURG. It is not the intention of the rebel Generals to hold out long at Fredericksburg. The object is to check the advance of our army until their fortifications several miles back are completed. The position of Sigel is very important. The government should give him more troops, for the rebels are excessively busy in maturing their long-contemplated flank and rear movement. Gen. Longstreet thinks he can effectually check the Union army at Fredericksburg. Now is the time for the gunboat expedition to make itself felt. Richmond is defended by two rams of great power in the James River, and the rams are protected by Fort Darling and a new line of defenses nearer the city. Richmond will be hard to take just now.

THE VOICE OF SELF-CONCEIT.

The preposterous self-importance of the American people has received humiliating lessons since the war commenced. We have counted our vast resources and paraded our national strength; but the rebels, although limited in every essential, have repelled us and crippled our advance from the first. Our self-conceit has been the lurking evil in all national operations. We prided ourselves as white men, on making this "a white man's war." We scorned the idea that negroes were to be employed on our side of the struggle. No! Our ability to put down the rebellion, and at the same time leave the blacks to aid their masters, was stupendous. From President down to the meanest official, this self-conceit was popular. Another conviction has at last dawned upon the minds of the people. We are not now too proud to accept the negroes.

THE VICINITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

Some weeks ago I telegraphed to your Herald the designs of rebels in and about New Orleans. The plans were delayed by unfavorable reports from the rebel Commissioner in France. Now, however, the Gulf is to be visited by French steamers of war merely "on a visit of the most friendly (?) character," and the rebels feel strong in their ability to execute long-cherished plans against New Orleans and Gen. Butler. Happily, however, they will not succeed in reaching the city. An attack upon it is nearly impossible. But Gen. Butler cannot be too cautious nor too rapid in preparing his loyal blacks for military service.

IRREVERENCE AND INSUBORDINATION.

The American mind, like the aboriginal inhabitants of this continent, are deficient in reverence for individuals. This trait in the Northern army, especially among officers, is a great obstacle to our military success. In the kingdom of Jeff. Davis the case is different. Insubordination is not tolerated in his Confederacy. Military organization and discipline, and a marked reverence for appointed leaders, are prominent features in the Confederate army and navy. The South is military and vindictive; the North is individualized and indifferent. The South is clannish; the North is full of "persons." The first is united; the latter is separated. The South makes slaves of all; the North gives freedom and personal independence.

Spiritual Photography.

To the Editors of the Evening Post: Your article of yesterday in regard to Spiritual Photography professes to solve the mystery, and announces that Appleton's artist can do the same thing, wherever there is a photograph of the dead person. That is not the mystery of this thing. But it is to take a picture containing a likeness of a person who is dead, and of whom there is no photograph or likeness in existence! This is what the Boston operator professes to do, and the question is, is that so? J. W. EDMONDS.

A Word with the Dailies.

For several weeks we have published statements respecting the "spirit photographs" alleged to have been taken in Boston. Our articles have embodied well-authenticated testimony respecting actual occurrences. During the same length of time we have had on exhibition at this office, free to public inspection, specimens of these "spirit photographs"—specimens that awaken interest if not credence in every honest observer.

Of neither statement or exhibition have the daily papers been conscious. Not one line has been published respecting this most wonderful—if true—of spirit manifestations! Enterprise and industry that serve to discover and record every drunken brawl in Worth street, every petty fire up town, and plenty, if not all, of the current bits of domestic scandal, have failed to find even an item in this most startling demonstration of the future existence and living presence of our loved departed. Conscious as every editor or penny-a-liner must be that the only real interests of life are the eternal, while the fights, and broils, and riots, are but unimportant incidents, they still persist in ignoring the one while multiplying words and manufacturing interest respecting the other. This beautiful, inviting, almost transporting fact (or alleged fact) is not even discussed, while all the dark, foul, and loathsome scenes and events of life are fully portrayed. As if the office of a newspaper were to mirror life's saddest incidents and record men's darkest deeds, while the brighter scenes and purer actions are suffered to pass unnoticed.

Such was the condition of things up to a few days since. But we record a change. A member of an enterprising publishing and photographing house, alive to the sound of something new in art, calls at our office and inspects the photographs. He calls again with the artist of the establishment, who is freely permitted to examine the pictures and is candidly asked if he could produce anything like them. In equal candor he replies: "Aside from all question of recognition" (which, by the way, is the very question.) "I can." We cordially invite him to do so, and express the hope that he can make some as good.

Two or three days pass, and lo! the entire daily press of New York is suddenly awakened to attention to this subject. The army of reporters, whose omniscience discovers every bar-room brawl, if not every domestic broil, yet who have failed to trace the existence of the most intensely interesting phenomena of the age—a development that promises to rival in importance the most prominent events of history, are galvanized by—what? Why, by a counterfeit! Two weeks' existence of the genuine they failed to know. Yet not two days elapse after the imitation is attempted before they are on the scent! What a commentary upon the mission of the New York dailies! What an evidence of the capital detective qualities of New York reporters! Let Superintendent Kennedy make a note of this.

Within two days the following stereotyped sensation item is adopted, approved, and published by most of the dailies:

"THE MYSTERY OF SPIRITUAL PHOTOGRAPHY SOLVED.—Certain magistrates skilled in Spiritualism have recently started a new 'sensational' in the shape of photographs of persons who have 'shuffled off the mortal coil,' representing them as they appear now to their relatives. The story runs thus: A photographer of Boston made a picture of himself, and on developing the plate he discovered a shadowy outline of his wife. Many other pictures have been produced, some representing husbands, others daughters, who have in each case been dead some years. It is said, also, that the operator cannot take more than five pictures a day without becoming exhausted in the effort.

"A. H. Turner, photographer for the house of D. Appleton & Co., has shown us several pictures presenting the same effects, which are produced without any spiritual agency whatever. Mr. Turner did not become exhausted by the effort, but would in all probability be able to produce the departed spirit of any one whose photograph may be in existence. The photographs may be seen at Appleton's book-store."

One paper, the World, adds the information that the other pictures (the genuine) "may be seen at Andrew Jackson Davis's concern in Canal street." Mark the position of the "respectable" dailies of New York—including, we are sorry to say, the Tribune and Evening Post, from which papers we had reason to expect greater integrity. By the publication of this paragraph a paper becomes party to a fraud, the defender of a counterfeit, and advertiser of a counterfeiting establishment, just as clearly as if Messrs. Appleton & Co. had issued imitation postal currency and the city press had recommended the staff to the public—the issuers resorting to the scheme as an advertising dodge to extend their legitimate business.

Let it be distinctly understood that, so far from objecting to the production of these imitations, we have from the first invited them. In our first article upon the subject we distinctly said:

"Similar results to those mentioned above can perhaps be produced by any skillful photographer, by introducing forms during a portion of the time a plate is exposed, or reflecting an image upon the sensitive surface in the dark room. We trust scientific and truth-loving photographers will experiment, that, if possible, the fraud or accident, if either exist, may be exposed, or the means made use of by spirits to project an image upon the air exposed to the line of vision of the camera be discovered."

"While we have the fullest confidence in the truth of the circumstantial account given above, the very interesting and even startling character of the alleged phenomena, and the
