Having finished his engagement with the Free Congregational Society of Florence will answer invitations to lecture for liber	e, EMILY J. LEONARD,
CHARLES SUMNER	CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT
A Bealthanans of Massachusetts' great Sei	n- with six-cent return stamp, C. ROSS, a hne necessor a recent Photograph t stor, is for sale at THE INDEX office, an will be sent by mail to any address on receij of the price-fifty cents.	H H H H H D I C C C C C C C C C C C C C C C C C C
Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. THE BOUND INDEX FOR 187	- 9L and 7L P. M. All that relates to the Rengious,
The bound volume of THE INDEX for 18	V Doppingter them
address on receipt of $3, by express, i the purchaser's expense. A complete file fi the year can be furnished in no other form. Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	first school year of this Family and Day School, FOR BOTH SEXES, will begin Wednes- day, September 16, 1874.
A CHEAP OFFER A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTI from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to	At home Saturdays.
Address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS, Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass	TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.
TO ADVERTISERS	Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone,
The following states the experience of successful Bookseller who has advertised in THE INDEX:- The Part of 1879	a for for composition, press-work, and mailing, a for one or more weekly papers.
TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1872. TO THE INDEX ASSO., Toledo, O.: Genilemen,-Having had occasion to adver	7 Tremont Place, Boston,
Gentlemen, - Having had occasion to act tise in your paper during the past two year quite largely, I take pleasure in stating tha I have always obtained very satisfactory for turns-better in fact than from book adver	Please examine the revised list of POPU- LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this tisements in any other paper I have adver tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi ate results, but orders have frequently been weceived months after the insertion of the	THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur- chase English, German, or French Books, or
Reper on file and referred to by your readers Yours truly,	s who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have HENRY S. STERBING. Special arrangements will be made at re- duced terms for long-time or extended ad vertisements. Address THE INDEX,	BOUND VOLUMES OF THE Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871,
NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston.	1872 and 1973 will be sent by express (at the
CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.	purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.06, $2. 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will faruls as instructive read-
PROPHETIC VOICES
By CHABLES SUMNER. Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por- trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2.	1 Tremont Place, Boston,
Aside from its literary and historical mer- the, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which r. Summer was engaged before his denth.	TRUE CIVILIZATION. Price 60 cents.
"PROPRETIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the his- tory of our country, so full is it of passages	PRAUTICAL DETAILS, in which the unexampled prosperity of our fand has been forefold by philosophers, posts,	COST DELVOYEE statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament- ed author has also given interesting sketches. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price.
Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	S. H. MORSE, 25 Bromfield St., Boston.
B U S T O F THEODORE PARKER.
BY
SIDNEY H MORSE	THE
SIDNEY H. MORSE. Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi-	SONG MONARCH !!
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled his awa heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun- alogly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv- ng flore. We are tempted to exclaim, as we thand beside it, as the old artist did to his	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, A hook admirably fitted for the use of Sing- ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a compact theoretical course, more than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Tauces, &c., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathu through the clay; the artist has so filled his awa heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun- alogly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv- ng flore. We are tempted to exclaim, as we tand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are a the bust,-his prectness, his goodness, his ounderness, his love. You cannot rive life to	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a compact theoretical course, nore than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Tutters, &c., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminaries, and Social Sings. Price 76 cts., or $7.50 per dozen.
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the chry; the artist has so filled bis awa heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun- alogly to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrongit on the lity- ag fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are a the bustlis prentness, his goodness, his bard erness, his love. You can perpesent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydia D. Parker to Monnah E. Stevensón.	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- tog School Teachers, having, in addition to a compact theoretical course, more than 180 pages filled with Gless, Quartettes, Airs, Tunes, Sc., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminarles, and Social Sings. Price 75 cts., or $7.50 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. THE LEADER !!
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breather through the clay; the artist has so filled bis awa ficart with appreciation of that noble life that the has been able cun- aboly to mould it into those delicate lines which the onlaries and wrought ou the liv- ag fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist vide to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust-mis greatness, his goodness, his onderness, his love. You cannot give life to lay or marble; but you can represent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydda D. Parker to Sonnah E. Stevenson. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears; he lops are set firm with the resolution of im who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight"	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a roomjact theoretical course, usore than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Taues, Sc., Sc., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, or Seminarles, and Social Sings. Price 76 cts., or $7.50 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. THE LEADERS! is the Leader of all Church Music Books for 1874 and 1876, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filled bis awa heart with appreciation of that noble life that the has been able cun- alogy to mould it into those delicate lines which the onharacter had wrought ou the liv- ag flore. We are tempted to exclaim, as we than beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are a the bust-mis greatness, his goodness, his onderness, his love. You cannot give life to fany or martile; but you can represent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydda D. Parker to Sonnah E. Stevenson. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears; he lips are set firm with the resolution of im who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" se well as "give a reason."-Samuel Longfel- ov.	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a room; act theoretical course, use than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Taues, &c., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminarles, and Social Sings. Price 76 cts. or 87.50 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. The Leader of all Church Music Books for fist and 1876, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chilcago, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, of Booton, containing also compositions from the hands of large humbers of American Music writ- press.
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breather through the clay; the artist has so filled bis own heart with appreciation of that noble life that the has been able cun- alogy to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrought on the liv- ng flore. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak them?"-Hannah E. Stevenson. All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust-mis greatness, his goodness, his anderness, his love. You cannot give life to day or martile; but you can represent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydia D. Parker to Monnah E. Stevenson. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears; he lips are set firm with the resolution of im who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."-Samuel Longfe- or. The first time I have seen Theodore Parker these he liedWm. Sparrel.	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- Ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a commact theoretical course, usore than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, ratics, Sc., Sc., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminaries, and Social Sings. Price 76 cts., or 87.80 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. The Leader of all Church Music Books for field and 1875, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by the compositions from the hands of ange sumbers of American Music writ- ers. For CONVENTIONS, Chores and SINGING
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the clay; the artist has so filed bis awn heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun- algely to mould it into these deficate lines which the character had wrongit to at he liv- ag fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E. Stownson. All the characteristics of my husband are a the bust-mis greatness, his goodness, his baderness, his love. You cannot give life to lay or marile; but you can represent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydia D. Parker to Mannah E. Steenson. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible tears; be lips are set firm with the resolution of the well as "give a reason."-Samuel Longde- wel.	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a roomjact theoretical course, usore than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Taues, Sc., Sc., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, or Seminarles, and Social Sings. Price 76 cts., or $7.50 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. CHOERS AND CONVENTIONS. By Choires and the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by . L. O. EMERSON, of Boston, containing also compositions from the hands of large numbers of American Music write. B. The LEADER has Be fagges of Singing School Music, the same as that in the Yong Mon- arch, and Large numbers of sums and Anthema, all by the best composers. Price §1.38, or $12.00 per dozen.
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the chry; the artist bas so filed bis own heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun- shiply to mould it into those delicate lines which the character had wrongit on the lity- and base of the character had wrong it on the lity- and base it is at he old artist of the lity- and base it is at he old artist of the lity- and base it is at he old artist of the lity- than beside it, as the old artist of the lity- than beside it, as the old artist of the lity- methy of the lity of the artist of the lity of the barderness, his love. You cannot give life to lay or marble; but you can represent it, and his Mr. Morse has doneLydia D. Parker to Mannah E. Stetensón. The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaning with possible indignation, with possible texts; he lips are set firm with the resolution of him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reasor."-Samuel Longde- so. The first time I have seen Theodore Parker fince he utedWin. Sparred. The base is goodRoaton Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be. the lips are stor beauty alone, or finds, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is lorgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore Parker	SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing- fing School Teachers, having, in addition to a room, act theoretical course, under than 81 and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, or Seminaries, and Social Sings. Brie 75 octs, or 87.50 per dozen. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS. DEDEMONSTORMS States of all Church, Music Books for for 4 and 1876, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by . L. O. EMERSON, of Books for first and 1876, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by . L. O. EMERSON, of Books for first and 1876, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by . L. O. EMERSON, of Books for first and 1876, being the first in the first and a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by . L. O. EMERSON, of Books for first and 1876, being the first in the first and a character that cannot be excelled. By H. B. Character, and have an interior character, and by the best composers. The LEADER has Be fages of Singing School March, and Large numbers of new Tunes and and the same as that in the Yong Mon- ter, and Large numbers of per dozen. The first, sitz 00 per dozen. Specimen copies of the above book mailed, port-paid, for retail price.

Google

THE INDEX-A

420

P

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

WHOLE NO. 245.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be excempt from just taxation. 5. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militis, and in pitcons, sprimms, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

2. We demand that all public appropriations for educahall o shall coase. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostenai-bly as text-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-will, shall be prohibited.

ship, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 5. We demand that the judicial each in the courts and or all other departurents of the government shall be abol-sheed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-sities of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

besied. 8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial likerty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spo-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administrated on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this ond shall be consistently, unflinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Formers, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republicant institutions is imperilied, the advance of civili-anion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and teligion; and whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-fical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religions liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; December 2005 and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following country in securing the needed reforms. Awr. 3. - The means employed in working for these objects mail be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-srai, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Asr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a wo-thirds vote of the members.

Ast, 5.-Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreement. Ant. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Becretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be more commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be excolled delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Ant. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the pistform of INE INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that t will yet be accepted universally by the American people, s the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Iberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princiles wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals he wherever half a dozon entriest and resolute hadrass an begot together. Being convinced that the movement i secure compliance with these just "Demands" must urely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and titre co-operation of every man and every woman who be-ives in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-rt promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-ries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion riss. Intolerance and bigotry will choken and reason are that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are rAt, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of My waters. FRANCIS &, ABBOT, Editor.

SOFTON, Sepi. 1, 1878.

BELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CON-STITUTION.

ARTICLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an as-tabilahment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise insered; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to poiltion the Gov-arment for a redress of grievances. Baromos 2.—No State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thercois; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble sud to polition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any States and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any for the orderformance of any opinions he or she may hold or the performance of any opinions he or she may hold on the subject of religion. Baromo 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the assond section of this Article by appropri-ate legislation.

GLIMPSES.

BY F. R. A.

UNITARIANISM is the "Mutual Friend" of Christianity and Free Religion.

THE POPE is reported to have just invested eighteen millions of francs in Belgian securities. How does the good old gentleman expect to get through the "needle's eye" with all that luggage?

THE SUPREME COURT of Illinois has forbidden public school directors to discriminate between white and black children by building separate schoolhouses for each class. This is refreshing. There is no other WST.

ICELAND must really have got to the "millennium." The prison at Rejklavik is the finest building in the place, but it has not a single occupant! Would it not pay to import that prison-even though the prison reformers found their occupation gone?

THE HONOB of the whole country is pledged to prevent the irruption of mining parties into the region of the Black Hills. We heartily second the ap-peal of the Independent to President Grant to protect the rights of the Sloux Indians, already solemnly guaranteed by treaty.

IF THEODORE PARKER was not an "unbellever" in the Independent's sense of the word, why did it urge his greater "strength of unbelief," as compared with his successors? The Independent evidently does not know what it did mean, and we are sure we do not. But we give elsewhere its reply in full.

THE Independent thinks we ought to be "ashamed" to work with Horace Seaver, a man of most honest and blameless life and as brave and true to freedom as any man living, while it is not "ashamed" of the part played in the Brooklyn scandal by its own editor and proprietor. Which of the two is the "sorrier companion," we forbear to discuss.

THE MILLENNIAL CELEBRATION at Iceland was rather a chilly occasion, according to Bayard Taylor. King Christian, of Denmark, could not have enjoyed the climate. The wind was bitingly cold, and the people were colder still. But then it is well understood on this side of the water that kings and the millennium cannot agree with each other.

MR. ROWLAND CONNOR, who has just closed his engagement with the Free Congregational Society at Florence, Massachusetts, is now open to engagements for Sunday services of a radical kind. He made a very wide-awake address at the last convention of the Free Religious Association, of which he was one of the original founders, and is well known as a success ful speaker on radical topics.

AN ADVOCATE of free-love recently declared himself opposed to "promiscuity," but in favor of "variety." This little dialogue will suit his cas

Indignant Employer .- Jack is lazy, madam, naturally lasy !

Fond Mother .- No, sir! How can you talk so, sir! Jack hasn't a lazy hair in his head. But I must allow that he is constitutionally indolent!

· THE SOUTHERN Democrats learn nothing, and are as little to be trusted as ever. They have carried several elections by setting the white race avowedly against the black. If they had their way, they would reduce the negroes to a state of semi-slavery once more; and this in spite of the Cincinnati and Baltimore conventions of 1872. The decease of both the great parties is a consummation devoutly to be wished; but the work of the Republicans must continue till the Democratic party, as such, undergoes cremation.

THE ENGLISH PREMIER is reported as having favored the Public Worship Bill, which Mr. Voysey explained in the last INDEX, on the ground that "a great struggle between the temporal and spiritual powers is coming on, and England's safety will then be found in adhering to the principles of the Reformation." This struggle is foreseen by every far-sighted man, because its causes are everywhere noticeable; and it must break out here as well as in Europe. But the character it will assume, whether bloodless or bloody, will depend greatly on what liberals are doing, or neglecting to do, to-day. Now is the hour for educating this nation out of Christianity into the religion of its own Constitution-the religion of liberty, justice, and equal rights. Disraeli spoke for two continents.

AN AMERICAN ARTIST, Mrs. I. R. Morrell, has won great praise in Paris by two historical paintings, the "First Battle of the Puritans" and "Washington's Welcoming of the Provision Trains." Says the Paris correspondent of the New York Herald: "I stood looking at them, spellbound and delighted, in company with a pale little lady, who spoke in a simple, modest voice to me, as if she had done nothing worthy of note. I told her that she was about to win a great renown. 'I only wished to please my husband,' replied the American lady, gently; but I saw that something glittered in her eyes, and her lips trembled as they smiled." Doubtless many reformatrembled as they smilled." tory lips will curl disdainfully at this new and mortifying proof of "woman's subjection." But we venture to think that the picture of home-life painted with seven short words by this "pale little lady" has a higher beauty than even her brush can have realized. May that "brute of a husband" be pleased, to the heart's content of the doubly-gifted wife!

WE WISH to acknowledge the kindness of frequent personal allusions in the Christian Register to the editor of THE INDEX. Mr. Mumford has long been a valued and esteemed friend of ours. It is a little bewildering to reflect that he made the ordaining prayer at our "ordination," on August 31, 1864, considering how far we have since strayed from the true fold. But he knows how warm our heart is towards the old fellowship we have been constrained to leave, and how free from personal bitterness are all our wicked allusions to the Unitarian Ism. We have a most sincere and cordial greeting for any of our old comrades who favor us with a call, and for none more than for Thomas J. Mumford, whose occasional pins are stuck into "Free Religionists" with the most benevolent intentions. He picks off their legs and wings with all the charming and innocent delight of a child that has caught its first fly; and he treats them to eau sucré with equal pleasure. Long may the genial tormentor continue his pastimes of both sorts; and, when he gets to the hot place whither Orthodoxy consigns Unitarians and "Free Religionists" alike, may he never lack for ice-cream !

Google Google

THE INDEX -- SEPTEMBER 3, 1574.

LIST OF LISEBAL LEAGUES.

422

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BORTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Hacon, Secretaries. JEFFERMON, OMIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. Secretary. BAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, etary. 50, 10WA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre TOLE tary. InstLand' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Recrutary. Becretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easiey, Scoretary. OLATES, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Scoretary. DETROIT, MICH .- W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. Bassbavilla, Mion. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Enovice, Secretary. GSOEDLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. Secretary. Barts, Mr.-T. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Buzaris, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. WashiNorow, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Secretary. AUSUEM, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-MINNEAPOLIS, MINN .-- Presidenty J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. Josephi, Mo .- P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, 81 Becretary. Ear Chains, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. Balasci, Iso.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New Unitary, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace. BAY CITY, MIGE.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEAMFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Becretary. BAUR CITY, Win.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Bobert Cunradi, Secretary. Secretary. A DGUSTA, W15. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vanz, Secretary.

(For THE INDEX.)

About Meeting-Houses.

BT HON. G. F. TALBOT.

The proposal to tax church edifices, now so gener-fly discussed, brings up for consideration the sub-ject of the beneficial uses of such edifices. Perhaps all who favor such taxation have accepted as inevita-ble the result that fewer church edifices will be erected, and that many improvidently and unnecessa-rity built will be devoted to secular objects. For taxation, although a feeble force, being a permanent one, operates insidiously, like the rain, frost, and at-mosphere; and in the long run eats up estates that cannot supply its annual demand out of some availa-ble income, or offset against it some recognized util-ity. This demand for taxation is so evidently just, and is so feebly opposed, even by the prejudices of religious people, that we may anticipate that before long meeting-houses will be generally taxed at a just and equal valuation; and we may consider whether they may not be put to so many more religious, edu-cational, and social uses as fairly to justify not only their continuance, but their increase in number, cost-lines, and decoration. Through the early periods of New England history the meeting-house was a capacious structure, in which elegance and every architectural effect was east in the meeting-house the we expact on the seart in events. The proposal to tax church edifices, now so gener-

In both the carly formers of the weak and the control of the second structure, in which elegance and every architectural effect was acarliced to room. To shelter from the weather, and to seat in tolerable comfort and within easy audience of one man's voice the largest number of persons, was the problem which the builder, who did not even pretend to be an architect, proposed to himself. The material used was wood, because it was the cheapest. If there was to be no bell, the roof was as atraight and plain as upon a barn; and where a bell was, or was hoped, a shingled tower was built to contain it, looking like an aborted rudiment of a steeple sprouting from one end of the roof tree. If paint was used it was upon the outside, to protect the building from the weather, not on the inside for ornament; unless the pulpit, the chef d'œuers of the country carpenter, claimed the distinction of artificial color to indicate lits sanctity.

Its sanctity. It taxed the narrow incomes of our hard-working an cestors to erect these public buildings; but, when once erected, there was no superstitious equeamisiness which interdicted or restricted their use for all necessreeted, there was no superstitious squeamishness which interilicied or restricted their use for all neces-sary public purposes. The meeting-house was the town-house. The annual assembly of the people in mass to regulate their town affairs, where the grim hu-mor and grave drollery of the Yankee character never failed to show itself in some crisp or biting speech, or in some travesty or formal jest, was always held in this house, with no thought of its incongruousness. The impish and accular spirits that on the week days leared over the tops of the pen-like pews, unchal-leaged by prissily exorcism, quietly decamped from the premises before next Lord's day, without disturb-ing even the fancy of the solemn congregation, while the sounding board was vibrating with the fervid ex-hortations of the preacher, and the white washed ceiling was echoing with the minor melodize of the pealms. Up to the very communion-table, where the rude ballot hox was tended by the selectmen, sober and drunken men pushed, or were pushed, to give in their votes, with all the uproar that characterizes a modern wasi from on election day. And yet, when the site stane table, with its apoleas cioth, its two plates evenly piled with columnar cubes of whites thead the wine was slowly on the solver, in which the read wine was slowly poured by the trembling hand of the minster, and the two decons, with seri-ous faces, sitting behind it, like translated Moses and Elias, seem any the less awfully sanctified. The meet-ing-house, too, was used for Fourth of July celebra-tions, for public funerais, for college and academic exhibitions; and if the May training was not held within it, the green in its front served for the militia parade, and the long wooden steps made a base upon which the captain could form his line. Agricultural fairs as yet were not, but when they came later they gladly availed themselves of the roomy accommoda-tions of such of these primitive structures as modern innovation had left atanding. If the New England puritans had believed in dancing, or theatrical amuse-ments, they would have had no scruple whatever at giving up the meeting-house on proper occasions to such diversions. But they looked upon these prac-tices as simple abominations everywhere, and just as reprachensible in theatres, halls, and houses as they would be in churches. Whatever in the way of social practices the puritans thought fit to do at all, no su-perstition would have withheld them from doing in the meeting-house.

would be in churches. Whatever in the way of social practices the puritans thought fit to do at all, no su-persition would have withheld them from doing in the meeting-house. Such a building, devoted to such various uses, fity represents the ideas of the last century. Let us look at the changes in structure and uses until they culmi-nate in the modern church, and the uses for which it stands. The name itself, now averywhere improperly used, not so applied by our ancestors, but standing with them for something quite different, has an index of the great departure in the direction of what, with more emphasis than charity, they would have called idolatry and the serving of tables. The old, unpaint-ed barn first gave place to the smart, painted, preten-tious, single-storied meeting-house of forty years ago, with its mahogany trimmings, its carpeted aisles, its bell and lofty spire, the velvet upholatery of its pul-pit, and its thousand dollar organ. From five to twenty thousand dollars, according to its size, would pay the cost of such buildings, which really had no superfluous adjuncts but the bell and spire. But they have become entirely unadapted to the luxury of modern ideas and the dainty decorum of modern worship. So within the last twenty years they in their turn have given place to fanciful structures, in which the elaborate and mediasval fancies of profes-sional architects have run riot, in utter disregard of expanse, in contempt of the conveniences of seeing and listening, and in the determination to convert the meeting-house from a place where the largest num-ber of persons can stay with the least physical incon-venience, while their undrastandings are edified by the access of knowledge, and their consciences are quickened in the apprehension of duty, into a dainty shrine where certain sethetic influences can creep over the feelings, excited by the modulated tones and faultiess rhetoric of the preacher, by the exquisite harmony of elaborate music, or by the contemplation of anlique, statuesque for faulties rhetoric of the preacher, by the exquisite frauties rhetoric of the preacher, by the contemplation of anlique, statucaue forms, shaded in a dim, re-licous light. The very change in the general fashion of struct-we of church edifices a large proportion of worship-pers have failen off. There were families, perhaps, held to the old places simply by force of habit. The new places looked so strange and unnatural to them bered and redoient of paint; they look in, miles the old doors, and betake themelves to the free, wild woods. Old couples that used to trudge their three miles and find free seats and largest liberty—a grand outlook upon the congregation and a point-blank ear-shot of the minister, in the common of the great gal-ery—come once, look in upon the ground-floor, where every man eits sentry, back to, at the head of his pew, sit uncomfortably one Sunday as the guests and dependents of a family better dressed than them-selves, and conclude ever afterwards that three miles is too far to waik to meeting. With many it is a con-sideration of expense, and necessarily so. They paid formerly a few dollars a year to the minister, always fing the amount according to their own ability and liberality, and for this pittance they were free to all the liberies of the sanctuary. Now, although the dure property is subjected to no tar, the rent by which the parish expenses are assessed upon the pews and instrumental concert, in which Jenny Lind or the expenses of public workshipper than would be two hours of an Italian opera, or a first-class vocal and instrumental concert, in which Jenny Lind or the scenesses of public workships that would be there have bad their confluence there, and work for a the narrow space the foundations cover. He which must have had their confluence there, and work for a stee seconse of the temple of Apolio, and won-form at the armony space where the immense populace assem-by the found to have bad their confluence there, and wor fore a legot received his sacrifice, his incense, his priest and his assistants, duly draped, and according to the formulas of the Church, perform the service alone, - the blessing cannot be prevented. It comes down, charging all the place with superfluons sanc-tity and grace; it fails like a universal, unseen shower upon the dwelling places and haunts of men; it sanc-tites the earth and makes it yield a richer fruitse; it sweetens the heavens and keeps the very stars in their courses. So the churches are built for the cer-emonies. There must be ample space to surround the shrines with processions and prostrations; there must be high walls whence the painted sains can look down with seraphic benignity, and lofty atches under which the chanted antiscus can roll out to their softest cadence. The images of the dead saints must have ample and luxurious accommodations; the ouly invitation to living sains to take a silent part in the service is naked pavements or rude chains that seem to have been borrowed from a neighboring prison. Christianity, certainly Protestantism, if it ment the only invitation to living saints to take asiles that seem to have been borrowed from a neighboring prion. This is an ity, certainly Protestanism, if it mean anything, meant to deny all this. The assembly was for the purpose of doctrine, correction, and instru-tion in rightcourses. God was to be worshipped by the spirit and in the effort to apprehend and compr-end the trath, and not by sacrifices, ceremonies, or ritual. The building required for such an assembly ought to afford abelier, warmth, and sufficient physi-cal comfort to leave the mind free to occup itself with elevated and ennobling thoughts, and least dis-tor sound to gratify an assite it taste. The full of the transformer and adjunct of sight or sound to gratify an assite it taste. The other the diffeces resulted in ~ diminution of furch attendance, but in a diminished utility of the edifice itself. When we replaced the homely old meeting-house of the last certary with what Mr. Gargery not inapply termed the architectores is upply precedent, to the backs of the selectmer, with the physical strateging managers, who at that early day had hardly begun the practice, now so disreputably exhibited, of buying and selling human c.ttle. Next we extruded the abolicion lecturer; and there was a glaring hypocrisy in this. We disliked his opinione, and, knowing that in many communities to every specific form of benevolence and of practical thread on a long face and gratified our prejudice under pretext of zeal for the bouse of God. This hypocri-sy, howerer, compelied us, in order to be consistent, or phy the asame exclusion to the temperance lecturer rule advocate of peace, of woman's rights, of pri-or neform,—in fine, to the advocates and spacifies of every specific form of benevolence and of practical theritabing the exclusiveness and sanctity of these protect of zeal for the bouse of God. This hypocr-isy, however, compelied us, in order to be consistent or the advocate of peace, of woman's rights, of pri-on reform,—in fine, to the advocates and spa that has ourdened itself with debt and weard du-tant brethreu with importunate solicitations for dona-tions to an edifice which, when built, is only fit for such rare use, must immediately go to work and build a vestry or chapel, where the effective service of their religion can be performed. For X are built made

Shall we utilize it to the utmost extent by inviting

Shall we reinstate the ancient New England mere-ing-house in all its ugliness and roomy capacity shall we utilize it to the utmost extent by inviting back to it the spring town meeting and the antuma election? Shall we open it to the agricultural fair and the questionable dramatic exhibition, musical concert, and dancing assembly, and make it free to every roving stump-speaker, male or female, who is its not desirable, and it is an obviously not possible; but let us consider if we may not do something. Fourier said that the township was the natural unit of the new social order, — the integer which, one reduced to order upon scientific principles, gave the not deus of the perfect State. So it might be but for the treconcilable differences in religious belief, which retorencilable differences in religious belief, which street, are living in spheres of thought and feeling as diverse from those of their neighbors as if hey lived in the tree social life and nucleas of the State. The parish is already organized, if that tern could be and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and centre of the parish, at once its regresentative, its and tentre, non practical difficulties in the save of the state and religions uses of the parish. There are no practical difficulties in the save of the state and religions uses of the parish. The meeting-house to correspond with modern want is abuiling that shall auberve all the social, as the is the natural grouping together by the affinity of common religious convictions of a certain number of persons. Inasmuch as a man's religious notions gen-erally dominate, and in a manner indicate the char-acter of all his subordinate notions, we have a right to expect that the individuals forming a parish to which they have been attracted by religious affinity will harmonionaly work together in maintaining a general moral, intellectual, and social cultus. They might not have all the same political prejudices; some might be ascetic and some liberal in their habits of asting and drinking; there might be a variety of intellectual tastes among them, --but there would be a certain community of spirit which would harmonize feeling and promote fellowship, while differences of opinion would really give a zest to a frank and toler-ant intercourse.

opinion would really give a zest to a frank and toler-ant intercourse. Now let us suppose that there is a certain parish in a certain city—say, if you please, of Unitarians,— who have outgrown their old church edifice and con-template a new one. What might such a Unitarian community, guided by an enlightened and liberal spirit, do, not only for themselves but as a most in-sinuating example for other communities and other sects? They might erect a building of which the following is a general description: A central, rec-tangular hall, into which the light is let from the roof, or upper part of the walls. At one end is the main entrance and vestibule and stairway, with a gal-lery over it for the organ and choir. The other three sides are surrounded by suites of rooms, opening into each other and with access from the outside. The basement must have the general heating apparatus, with conveniences for cooking; and, after reserving in it sufficient space for the janitor and his family, there may still be space enough to be leased for any occupation not inconsistent with the quiet and con-venience of the main building. The primary use of the central hall is for the religious services of Sunday. But such use should not be considered inconsistent with the free occupation of it for all other purposes requiring the saccommodation of a general assembly. The suites of rooms, fittingly furnished and adorned, become the general social exchange of the parish, ui-timately taking the place and better unswering the use to which the stately, costly, and little used pri-vate parlor is now dedicated. One room should be insome athe minister's, where, during such hours of the week as he might have for parochial visits, he might meet and confer with his parishioners. One nished with a plano, should be always available for amateurs to meet for practice or entertainment; and in one should be a library and a file of periodicals and newspapers such as are not met with in counting rooms and private houses. What comprehensive conveni Now let us suppose that there is a certain parish in or dwallings the formis social ceremonies and incon-renient accial conventions, and made them more free and cordial upon some common ground of meeting, of our own homes. When we are no longer obliged to build and deco-frate suites of roome for mere show, or to maintain a provided similar accommodations, there will be less into the generosity and their love of art by giving such costly objects—the more valuable, the larger muber they can please—to ornament the walls of the room where the gengral social life of the people schemes where the gengral social life of the people is chemes where the gengral social life of the people is chemes where the gengral social life of the people of the room where the gengral social life of the people is chemes of man. If character sometimes gives form in abstract and internal order of congenial and sanc-tified social. It was a concrete and completed insti-tution, a perfected city of God, coming down from heaven beautifully and mioutely adapted to the high-mesor of man. If character sometimes gives form in stitutions, institutions have as often developed and given direction to character. Who shall asy that the Formpie of the Jews, the Portico of the Greeks, the Formo of the Komana, and hee Cathedral of medi-seless and types of national and religious character was of Fourier's new social order. Unitarian society only thonght of building themselves a new church; bui what yes tand wered solving? In a free competition among men of un-quip powers, some will of necessity become rich, and the por we have always with ast. How shall the rich man bear his prosperity so meekly and decorously as fortune, and to failing into despondency, which he re-nearly reached this, at least among men, where a un-form at his prosperity is more divising for all men in the community. Indress, we have nearly reached this, at least among men, where

<text><text><text><text>

DEX - SEPTEMBER.

3, 1874. 423
come at last to the general understanding that the frich main, living substantially like the poor main, is free to indulge any degree of luxury, to gratify all his stature, his in fine picture, his stature, his ornamental window, his memorial tablet, his freecoed ceiling, is the distinction of his generosity in sharing the pleasure of beholding these objects with his poorest exclusion.
The new house has thus become itself a most potent influence of culture. Its whole spirit is frare rank more beautiful in the gifts of the living and mementoes of the dead, its silent walls preach a powerful sermion of brotherly love, a prophesy of peace on earth and good-will to man.
Nor is this all. How shall we conduct our social mecreations so that they shall not becrubering influence, with a sense of invidous separation and contempt? How shall we insugurate that kind of feast which Jeaus approved, to which we are not to call our rich acqualitance who can recompense us again, but the persons of most of the vice and crime that lifts who approved, to which we are not to call our rich acqualitance who can recompense us again, but the port in fortune, talent, or spirit, who cannot recompense us again, but the prevent us again? It is not by including all whom a common religious sympathy has brought into affiliation with us in all our social enjoyments? How warrantable envices of whole ranks of men and women, who, we have too hastily concluded, had noth riers against vice have we done to remove that bitter and reserving to do with us or our lives? Then, too, what barriers against vice have we done to remove and excessive and universes against vice have we done to remove that bitter and reserving the object who we have too hastily concluded, had noth riers against vice have we done to remove that bitter and reserving the second of the vice and crime that infest pociety, when we have considerately cared for the riers against vice have we done to remove that bitter and reserving the object and univ ings, and guide by the counsels of experience and principle! It will need no special propagandism to bring into fashion an institution so vital and attractive. When the Unitarian parish has made such a bome and foundation for its religious and social life, sectarian competition will repeat the experiment. The Meth-odista and the Baptists will never permit the young of their own communities, or the general unchurched public, to be won over to liberal theology, by the at-traction of elegant apartments, blamele-s amuse-ments, and high social culture. The details of their arrangements might be more austere and devout than such as are here sketched. There would be more praying, and perhaps less dancing. Still their cus-toms would be none the less congenial to their preva-lent tastes, and social and attractive to persons cheitshing their peculiar ideas; and it would be only in details, not essential to the main features of the plan, that the institution in their hands would differ from that under the conduct of the most liberal sects. Where is the enlightened community to set so fasci-mating an example?

[For THE INDEL.] THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE AT HART-FORD.

BY PROFESSOR W. D. GUNNING.

Once a year the scientists corre together, in mer-candie phrase, "to take account of stock." They estimate the gains of the year, or, to drop the lan-guage of the counter for that of the camp, their con-quests over the domain of darkness, survey the ene-my's intrenchments, and map out campaigns for the future. In the Hartford campaign, the outlying realm of darkness suffered invasion at many points. There was "a movement all slong the lines." Prof. William B. Rogers ied the advance against one of the strongest outworks.

<text><text><text><text>

Google

Displiced by of a creature nearly related to man. We mean a moth. And we are weighing our words when we say "nearly related." Structurally, the kinship is re-mote. Psychologically, we are cousins. For We mean a

Between the wings of bees and building wasps,"-

Between the wings of bees and building wasps,"-is it not the same in kind as our own? Do we not know that men who shrink and hide from the true light dash with all the wing-power of their souls into flickering rush-lights? Now the moth that simmers in your lamp-do not think that she rushed to her death through pure love of light. Nothing of the kind. Goethe's death-song never entered the head of a moth. That moth has spent every day of her life in the deep receases of a leafy bush or shrub, skulk-ing and hiding away from the sunlight. If men did not behave much in the same way, here would be a great mystery. That men do behave in the same way makes the mystery greater still. When Time ISDEX has solved the problem on its human side, and abown why men-so many men-shrink from the natural and therefore true light "which lighteth every man that cometh into the world," and scorch their souls in the glare of creeds, we will renew our studies on insects.

souls in the grate of determined of the source of the sour carnivorous propensities and the behavior of certain band. Everybody knows the saracenia or pitcher plant of our northern bogs. Very few had known, even by while they are carnivorous, and, while they would not refuse (as Gray has shown of the North Carolina sundew) a moreel of beef, they delight infer the same and files. Like the spliter, they must contrive some way to catch the files. The spliter splite a web, and from this act alone your would infer one of whose organization makes even consclousness impossible; and what does it do? Of course it makes in e, a bait, a trap, and a something which answers for a storach. The stitention of a fly is attracted by coreted by the plant's throat—into an inflated sec—the plant's throat—into an inflated sec—the plant's bars. Pass your finger down along the tube; it splites the briefted surface as over a surface of ol-cloth. "Facilis descensus Areni."

"Facilis descensus Averni,"

Now draw your finger back; the tips of the bristles rasp, and if you were no stronger than a fly would arrest you.

"Sed recooars gradum, superasque evadere ad auras. Hoc opus, hic labor est."

<text><text><text><text>

people whose tongues get them into trouble. And man is not the only host who sometimes violates the obligations of hospitality. Think of this host slay-ing its invited guest, and that, too, while the guest is in the very act of performing a vital service! It would seem from facts like these that Nature, if viewed as the school of Paley would view her-viewed as a system of "designs," "adaptations," "contriv-ances,"-never works perfectly, and sometimes su-icidally and diabolically. icidally and diabolically.

icidally and diabolically. Of a hundred and fity papers read, each supposed to be an original contribution to science, we have skimmed only two or three. Enough! We have borne you company to the borders of a new field of research; and here on the borders we separate, to meet, perchance, at another time, in the deeper re-CABSE

A CHANCE TO PUNISH HERETICS.

the District of Columbia, has been hunted up by a correspondent of the New York Tribune, and reads as follows:--"An act to punish blasphemous swearers, drunk-ards, and Substh-breakers, and for repealing the laws heretofore made for the punishing such offenders. "Be it enacted by the Right Honrable the Lord Pro-prietor, by and with the advice and consent of his Lordship Governor, and the Upper and Lower Houses of Assembly, and the authority of the same: "That if any person shall hereafter, within this province, wittingly, maliciously, and advisedly, by writing or epeaking, blaspheme or curse God, or deny our Saviour Jeaus Christ to be the Son of God, or shall deny the Holy Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, or the Godhead, or shall utter any profane words concerning the Holy Trinity or any of the persons thereof, and shall be thereof convict by verdict or confession, shall for the first offence be bored through the tongue and fined £20 sterling to the Lord Proprietor, to be applied to the use of the county where the offence shall be committed, to be levied on the offence shall be committed, to be levied on the offence shall second fine cannot be levied, the offender's body, goods and chattels, lands or tenements; and in case the said fine cannot be levied, shall be stigmatized by burning in the fore-head with the letter B, and fined £40 sterling to the Lord Proprietor, to be applied and levied as aforesaid, and in case the same cannot be levied the offender shall suffer tweive months' imprisonment without bail or mainprise; and that for the second offence; the offender, being thereof convict as aforesaid, shall be stigmatized by burning in the fore-head with the letter B, and fined £40 sterling to the Lord Proprietor, to be applied and levied as aforesaid, and in case the same cannot be levied the offender shall suffer tweive months' imprisonment without bail or mainprise; and that for the third offence, the offender, being convict as aforesaid, shall suffer teath without benefit of clergy." If here

[There are fourteen actions more, but they refer to swearing, drinking, and breaking the Sabbath.] If any person, anywhere in the United States, shall, by writing, deny that Christ is the Son of God, or deny the Holy Trinity, or the Godhead of either Person of the Trinity, or write profanely of either of such Persons, and a copy of such paper is found in the District of Columbia, then the persons o writing may, under the Poland law, be indicted, arrested, and tried in the District of Columbia, and, if convicted, be bored through the tongue; and if the offence be re-peated be branded on the forehead with the letter B; and for a third offence be hanged.

peated be branded on the forehead with the letter B; and for a third offence be hanged. This is the style and character of the law of libel in force in the District of Columbia, to which laws the entire newspaper press of the United States have been made amenable under the Poland-Butler-Car-penter-Conkling law of the last session. This is lit-erally going back to the dark sges and a revival of a code which exists in no part of the civilized world outside of the District of Columbia.—Chicago Tribure.

THE NOTRE DAME SCHOOLHOUSE.

THE NOTHE DAME SCHOOLHOUSE. Yeaterday afternoon, the dedication of the new Catholic schoolhouse on Vernon Street took place be-fore a large assembly of people. The building is built upon the lot adjoining the Notre Dame Convent, and consists of three stories and basement, and towers at each side in front. It is of brick with granite trimmings, is large, well arranged, and admirably adapted to its intended purpose. The ceremonies consisted of solemn high mass in the morning at St. John's Church, and in the afternoon of religious exer-cises and observances at the schoolhouse. In the afternoon a procession was formed of the Catholic societies in the city, and marched to the schoolhouse in the following order, to the music of the Father Matthew Temperance Band, and the French Band:--

French' Band :

The Father Matthew Temperance Society, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the American Socie-ty of Hibernians (1st and 2d divisions), the St. Jean Baptiste Society, the Married Men's Sodality, the Young Men's Sodality, the Boys' Sodality, the Mar-ried Ladies' Sodality, the Young Ladies' Sodality, the Children of Mary's Sodality, the Sodality of the Holy Angels, the Sodality of the Infant Jezus, the clergy and bishops in carriages. The exercises consisted of music by the bands and the choir of St. John's Church, and the bleasing of the building by Bishop P. T. O'Reilly, and an address by Bishop McQuade, of Rochester, who spoke as fol-lows:-- the building by Bishop P. T. O'Keilly, and an address by Bishop McQuade, of Rochester, who spoke as fol-lows:--Brethren and Fellow Citizens,-We are assembled this afternoon to witness the blessing of this new schoolhouse; a blessing that has come down from heaven; a blessing that covers this building from root to foundation stone; a biessing that comes upon the material used in its construction and upon the teachers that consecrate their lives to the work to be carried on within its walls. Here stands the building which you have paid for,-an honest building, built with honest men's money, cheerfully und freely given. No en-forced taxation, no constable or officer of the law, has taken from an unwilling people this money. It is an honest building throughout, erected by this mass of poor people, where shall be wrought out the primary principles of education upon a religious basis. He here contrasted it with the enforced building of the public schoolhouses in this city, where, he said, they might read over the entrance, Education withou God and without religion. God, as he has spoken and manifested, has no right, by law at least, to enter the public schoolhouses of the United States. This noble work of establishing religious schoolhouses, once begun, must go on, and will go on; neither the city of Worcester nor the State of Massachusette canstop it. This great question, he said, will in time agitate noble work of establishing religious schoolhouse, once begun, must go on, and will go on: neither thecity of Worcester nor the State of Massachusetts can stop it. This great question, he said, will in time agitate the whole country, and will surely be settled upon principles of right and wrong. In this city we have the two great principles facing each other, -education with religion, and education without-religion. He here spoke of the morality which is claimed to be taught in the schools, saying that he did not want to go back to ancient Greece, to pagan morality, or want that morality which teaches that honesty is the best policy; there can be no Christian morality with-out religion. The struggle between these two great principles, he said, would, in this country, he despe-ate; not desperate in the manner of European coun-tries, of settling all questions with the musket, but will be carried on upon the platform, in the pulpit, by the press, and in argument among the people. You are all American citizens, with rights; you are not here by the favor of any one. Catholic labor, brains, and blood have won you that right under God, and we mean to claim those rights, one of which is the eight to give our children the kind of education we choose, and we intend to give them as good a core as can be obtained in the schools of this city. He did not ask any one to believe his statement that the educational system of this country was wrong, but cited the recent meeting of the Methodist Episcopal bishops in Louisville, Ky., where, he said, they protested against school government by the State, as tending directly and rapidly to infidelly, and also a meeting of Baptists, where the charge was repeated, as confirmation of his remarks that the in-fluence of public schools was corrupting and immord. The intellect may be cultivated, but it is only to make men greaster rascale than they were before; the conscience that knows there is a heaven and a hell, and can distinguish between right and wrong, mustbe roused to activity.

and can distinguish between right and wrong, must be roused to activity. He further considered the subject, claiming that the establishment of such schools was in the cause of virtue, morality, and love of country, and was intend-ed to breed a race of self-reliant, independent fre-men, and was placing the question exactly where it belonged—in the hands of the parents, and not in the government of the State. At the conclusion of the address, there was singing by the choir, music by the bands, followed by the benediction of Bishop O'Relly. — Worcester (Mass.) Spy, of Aug. 17.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHILDREN!

<text><text><text>

Google Clorineed by the green leaves and silken tassels in which it grows? If children stay at home they get little of the relig-dous instruction they need; but if they go to the Sun-day-school they get wholesome and helpful influences mixed up with these pictorial representations and su-persitions." On the whole, this writer concludes that the best thing that radicals can do for their children is to let them go to the Orthodox Sunday-schools and "to cor-rect false impressions as far as they are able." The conclusion does credit to his judgment. But could anything be more pitiful than the picture which this honest man draws of the desolation which Free Re-picton proposes to make in the lives of little children ? We have sometimes said that the work of these peo-ple is almost wholly destructive—that they offer us nothing in place of that which they take away. Are not our criticisms more than justified by these frank damissions of an intelligent radical? What shall be said of a scheme of religion that asks our support, but has yet made no provision for the education of our children ?—Independent.

WHAT TEACHING?

<text><text><text><text><text>

ous experiment of teaching a theology, half of which will have to be untaught. There is no need of such teaching being dry. If the teacher is interested, he will interest the child. The little book of Mr. Clodd, The Childhood of the World, shows that the elements of rational religion and be taught in an interesting way, and is worth a part-load of catechisms. NEW YORK, Aug. 1, 1874.

"UNBELIEF" ONCE MORE.

"UNBELLEE" ONCE MORE.

belief in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth—had no cort of sympathy with the germs of the views since called Free Religions, and that those who to-day are nearest him in opinion are very far from Mr. Abbot's platform, and are not unbeller-ers in the sense in which the term has been used in reference to this matter—unbelievers or but half be-llevers in God, in the soul, in an inviolable con-science, in revelation, in Christianity as the eternal Church. As for the Free Religious conventions, all Boston knows that they have been less influential of late than they were five years ago, and a few New Yorkers remember the slender attendance at their last meeting here. The Boston Radical Club is a pleasant arens for people to meet and talk in, but to speak of its "incalculable" influence is wild and vague. The church taxation question has no more to do with radicalism than has the Christian amendment question. We have already admitted that for seventy-five years we have had an ignorant set of infidel and pipiritualistic sceptics whose rise and progress have been independent of Free Religion; we therefore fail to see how The Incestigator (established in 1830) and the Banner of Light (established in 1830) and the Banner of Light (established in 1830) and the science has called to its defence. We may men-ion too, as an offact to the access of these two papers, that the New York journal edited by a man of scholarship and culture affords a virtual ad-mission, however, of the trath of our statements con-cerning the sorriness of the companions the Free Re-ligious cause has called to its defence. We may men-tion, too, as an offact to the auccess of these two papers, that the New York journal edited by a heat president of the National Spiritualistic Association has apparently auspended publication in consequences of the recent departure of that functionary for Eu-rope.—Independent, August 27.

PROFESSOR HUXLEY ON HIGHER EDU-CATION FOR GIRLS.

PROFESSOL HUXLEY ON HIGHER EDU-CATION PROCESS.
PROFESSOL TO A DATA ON THE PROFESSION OF CATION PROCESSION.
A public meeting, convened under the anapices of the Women's Education Union, was held at the Eyre Arm, St. John's Wood, London, recently, for the purpose of promoting the establishment of a girls' who occupied the chair in the absence of Lord Aber, outred to exclude the subject by referring to the three outress open to a man who desired to educate his achieves the boarding school ; but there were few thoroughly good ones, and those were school was the last he should select. The next alternative was home education, which had a great deal moreover, deprived girls of the healthy influences of coming in contact with other young minds and different teachers. The day school was the third and bet course, combining, as it did, both the advantages of thorough achool and home teachings; and the object for Women's Education Union was to establish such achools, not as they are but as they ought on be in all the great suburban districts of London. No object, he conceived, could be calculated to extern monther for the district of St. John's Wood, where an other is a direction of the order worker to be given would be equal to that provide the bread at university College. School. It was not proposed to establish auch achools, not as the quality of woman and man, be diagoned this position. Experience proved at university college. School. It was not be for a basen of the district of St. John's Wood, where you did be requested to be a stablish of believe in the equality of woman and man, be did not believe in the equality of woman and man, be did not believe in the equality of woman and man, be did not believe in the equality of woman and man, be districted acpacity was rather bighter in the fremely and more bend average, the central point of more than the lower of the woman. Troop was the third and be the object and woman, the word hower or provide the discover normany in assets the requesting the the the

WE MET with this witty retort in a sketch of a short trip through a portion of Ireland. The writer is con-versing with his car driver :--"You are a Catholic, Jimmie ?" "Yes, yer honor." "And you pray to the Virgin Mary ?" "I do, yer honor." "Well, there's no doubt she was a good woman. The Bible says so. But she may have been no better than your mother or mine." "That's true, yer honor; but then you will allow there's a mighty difference in their children."

"WHAT MAKES your bair so white, grandpa?" in-quired a little maiden. "I am very old, my dear. I was in the ark." says grandpa, with a laugh. "Oh!" the child rejoined. "Are you Noah?" "No; I am not Noah." "Are you Shem, then?" "No; I i am not Shem." "Are you Shem, then?" "No; i am Ham." "Then you must be Japheth." impatiently said the child. "No; I'm not Japheth." "Then, grandpa, you're a beast."

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEL.]

THE HOLY GRAIL.

- In the days of Arthur, the kingly king (So runs the beautiful tale).
- Wont in quest of the Holy Grad-The flagon that held the Juice of the graps,
- When the Church's mystic Head, The Son of the Highest in human shape, With the twelve last broke the bread.
- Borne by a vision of angels three Through the lonely forest by night, With a flood of splendor on award and tree,
- And the gleaming of raiment white-How the stout knights burned for a fleeting glance Of the wondrous chalice of God, And rushed on the perils of sword and lance, And trampled the bloody sod!

- But the years came in, and the years went out, And the black beard faded to gray, And full-flushed hope paled to sorrow and doubt, And died in despair away;
- And died in despair away; *For to knights that were pure and stainless alone, To spirits without a spot, Might the mystic pageant of heaven be shown; And the vision divine came not.
- Vanished for aye is the knightly crew That wandered in quest forlorn; But the hero's heart is forever new,

- And in each age newly born. 'Twas the blessed thirst for the purer and higher That begot the antique tale; And my soul burns deep with a smothered fire, As I dream of the Holy Grail.
- The Holy Grall! 'Tis the Present Hour,
- And brims with the sacred wine-Duty and beauty, truth, hope, and power, And peace, and love divine:

- Not borne by a vision of angels three Is the gleam of its yellow gold, But its glory is resting on you and me, And our bands the bleat flagon hold.
- Sparkling and ruddy, with jewelled bead,
- The eternal draught beggars the tale, And each human soul, howe'er stained in deed. And each human sonl, how or stained Inherits the Holy Grail. Amber-clear, without dregs or less, Shines the vintage of life and light; And whose will shall the goblet seize, And drink of God's wine to-night!

MAY 34, 1874.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

ASTERISE.

Mrs. F. W. Christern,	New York City,	One al	hare,	$109
Bichard B. Westbrook	Sonman, Pa.			100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two		204
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	Ope	. 64	108
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass.			100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	44	000
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminaville, O.	Ope	. 48	100
John Welss,	Boston, Mass.			100
W. C. Russel,	Ithacs, N. Y.	44	14	100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.	44		108
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.			108
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.	- 44	- 64	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.		68	100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.	64		100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.			100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.		. 44	100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.	fi -	40	300
J. E. Oliver.	Ithaca, N.Y.		- 14	300
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.	44	68	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.		. 41	300
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two	- 44	900
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.1.			100
L. F. Garvin,	Lousdale, R.I.	One	44	100
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.			105
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.	- 44		100

CASH BECRIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUGUST 29.

<text><section-header><text><text><text><text><text><text>

Digitizativy Google

The Inder. PUBLISHED SVERY THURSDAY BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 25 Monsos STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound iearning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Bights, and Brotherly Love.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, B ABBAM WALTER STETENS, Associate Editor, OUTAVIUS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WERTWORTH HIGGDINON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENOES, MEM. E. D. CHENEY, ROY. CHARLES VOYARY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWHAM (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will cture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

IT MUST be true-this story of "liberals who live within themselves for fear of public opinion ;" for we hear too much of them in our correspondence. But what narrow quarters they live in!

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S sagacious remark," says the Boston Advertiser, "that the republic could not endure half slave and half free was based on a clear apprehension of human nature and of the spirit of our institutions." Everybody sees the truth of this remark with reference to political slavery; how long will it be before everybody sees that it is just as true of mental slavery? Christianity and freedom are irreconcilable, and the republic cannot endure unless the former succumbs to the latter.

THE NEW LIBEL LAW passed by the last Congress. as explained by an article we copy elsewhere from the Chicago Tribune, authorizes the punishment of "blasphemers" in the District of Columbia by boring the tongue, branding the forehead with the letter B, and hanging; and it applies to the entire newspaper press of the United States. Any offender of this sort can be dragged to Washington for trial. Is it not about time for the adoption of the Religious Freedom Amendment of the United States Constitution ?

IF ANY ONE has absolutely made up his mind to discontinue THE INDEX, it would be a kindness to notify us of the fact and pay whatever is due at the same time. But we hope that no one now on our list will withhold the small amount of assistance to the paper involved in the three dollars a year. Every subscription helps. The best possible aid is to subscribe yourself and help us to get new subscribers. Give us now the good cheer and encouragement of seeing the circulation grow, and that, too, by the unbought good will of those who believe in our cause.

BISHOP MCQUADE, of Rochester, New York, delivered an address at Worcester, Massachusetts, on the occasion of the dedication of the Notre Dame school house. He contrasted the public school houses, built by taxation, with this "honest building" built by poor people on behalf of "education with religion," and denounced secular education in round terms, The struggle over this question is coming, friends, and no shutting of the eyes and folding of the hands to sleep will avert it. Are we going to face it like man, or suffer our liberal principles to melt away in a general "mush of concessions"?

MANT OF OUR subscribers, some of them proved friends to the paper, have allowed their subscriptions to become so long overdue, notwithstanding the monthly bills sent out from this office, that their arrearages now amount to a large sum in the aggregate. The business of the Index Association is conducted on a cash basis, all bills being paid promptly on presentation. This renders it necessary for those who owe us to be equally prompt in payment, unless they are willing to involve the Association in embarrassment by their dilatoriness. We hope our friends will honor the bills now sent out with speedy payment of arrearages and advance subscriptions, and thus contribute their share to the common cause.

THERE IS something exquisitely touching in the story of the sergeant at Lookout Mountain, struck down before he could plant the victorious standard o his country on the heights. Is it not the fate of every one who strives to plant his ideal on the summit of the real? The tragedy of duty never abandoned, but never fulfilled in all its greatness, is acted in many an obscure life unheeded by the world; yet not, we trust, unheeded by the audience of One. Tragedythat was an ill-chosen word : let us hope that the drama finds not here its closing scene, and that this is better than tragic. Here is the story

"Almost up! almost up!" was the cry of the wounded sergeant, as they laid him down on the bat-tie-field, and watched tenderly his dying struggles. Where did they hit you, sergeant

"No, sergeant; but where did the ball strike you ?" "Almost up!" was the reply. "But, sergeant, you do not understand. Where are you wounded ?"

Turning back the cloak which had been thrown over the wound, he showed the upper arm and shoulder mashed and mangled with a shell. Looking at his wound, he said, "That is what did it. I was hugging the standard to my blouse, and making for the top. I was almost up, when that ugly shell knocked me over. If they had let me alone s little longer—two minutes longer—I should have planted the colors on the top—almost up, almost up!" The fight and the flag held all his thoughts. And while his car was growing heavy in death, with a flushed face and look of inefishle regret, he was re-peating, "Almost up! almost up!" urning back the closk which had been thrown

WHOEVER is desirous to know what the early Quakers meant by the "inner" or "inward light" should send to George C. Herbert, 5 Central Avenue, Lynn, Massachusetts, for two recent pamphlets, The Principles, Methods, and History of the Society of Friends, by Augustine Jones, and The Quaker Doc trine of the Inward Light Vindicated, by Charles E. Pratt. The price of each is twenty cents. The numerous and clear passages here cited from the highest Quaker authorities seem to settle beyond a doubt what this famous and beautiful doctrine really is. To be sure, it is not a doctrine tenable to-day, at least in its accepted form, by those who have embraced a thoroughly naturalistic philosophy; for the "inward light" is a supernatural influx, and not a product or intensification of natural human faculties. But there is no little truth covered by the phrase, which might be taken to express the general illumination of the mind consequent on the full and harmonious activity of all the faculties of thought, feeling, and will-these being in a high sense the supreme manifestation or revelation of universal Nature. So interpreted, all pure and elevated action of the human mind becomes the inwardly shining light of the Divine Mind, the realized oneness or identity of the most intensely individual with the most broadly universal. This, to us, is a far sublimer conception than that of the irruption of a supernatural, irradiating influence into a humanity which is in itself merely a darkened chamber. Men have tried long enough to exalt God by depressing man; now let us try to exalt our thoughts of both as in reality inseparable,-nay, if you please, indistinguishable save as the ocean is distinguishable from the drop.

HENRY BRUGSCH-BEY, vice-president of the free schools at Cairo, and a learned Egyptologist, has been making investigations respecting the exodus of the Hebrews under Moses and the route they probably adopted; and his main effort has been to discover a point where the "passage of the Red Sea" could have been made without assuming an absolute miracle. In this effort he is reported to have succeeded. He has discovered the city of Raamses, in building the great fortress of which the Hebrews were employed as stone-workers and brick-makers. Raamses was situated on the Tanitic branch of the Nile, then a very large stream, and was the key to the passage between Egypt and Asia; it was near Migdol and Pithone. other fortresses of the region including Goshen and inhabited by the Khalon, a race not Egyptian in origin and still occupying the borders of Lake Menzaleh. By a treaty between Raamses and a powerful Cansanitish prince, fugitive slaves were to be returned by each contracting party to the othes. Hence Moses avoided the regular established route, led the Hebrews more to the North, and crossed, not the Red Sea, but the lake anciently called Sirbonis, at the lower coasts of the Mediterranean. The high tide which overtook the army of Pharaoh Meneptah, in whose reign the exodus took place, is a common occurrence in those parts. Strabo and Diodorus Siculus state that sudden swellings of the water sometimes happen in the regions called "the gulfs," and that King Artaxerxes, leading an expedition against Egypt, lost his whole army there by drowning. These facts explain the story of the exodus without any miracle whatever, by showing that a natural phenomenon is entirely adequate to account for it.

CONSCIENCE FOR FRREBOM : A POINT TO CABRY.

One of the great disadvantages of a weekly journal, as compared with the daily press, is the impossibility of keeping pace, in editorial articles, with the subjects that seem to demand immediate notice. Often wondered at, and sometimes unreasonably blamed, for delays that are inevitable in treating such subjects or in publishing communications that bear upon them, we hope that the majority of our readers have suffclent imagination to guess at the difficulties of the case without any formal explanation, and even to extend this charity (whose other name is justice) to the case of matters which drift so rapidly to the rear as to clude notice altogether. Where so many things of so many kinds have to be done, some are preity sure not to be done with the utmost desirable daspatch or satisfactoriness.

These reflections are suggested by the fact that we have been for several weeks wishing to make some remarks on radical organization for which an admirable opening was made by Mr. Frothingham's articla on that subject in THE INDEX of July 23, and by Mr. Angell's little communication referring to it which will be found in the appropriate department of this issue. It need not be said that we attach great Importance to the question of organization, for this is well known to all our readers: and the general views presented by Mr. Frothingham and Mr. Angell ought not to be suffered, even at this somewhat late day, to be slighted or passed over without the degree of attention they justly merit.

The leading points of Mr. Frothingham's very able article were these. Every organization must be "People never organize for the for a definite object. sake of organizing;" there must be a point to be carried. Moreover, every organization must be adapted to carry its special point; what is adapted to carry one point is not adapted to carry another. The Church, for instance, is adapted only for certain permanent, general ends, and not for the special work of securing the passage of the Christian Amendment. A crisis must be imminent before the organization it requires can be called into existence, and then it at once creates the army; the shot at Sumter was neces-sary to ronse the North. "It is of no use to preach organization before the need of it is, as men say, realized ;" it will "come at the last moment, but not before." The danger from attempts to enact more stringent Sunday laws, Bible-in-school laws, and Christian Amendments, is too remote to constitute a reason for organizing now. The Orthodox, on the one hand, are not united to-day; the radicals, on the other, will be ready to unite as soon as they do. "Ideal perils are none; real perils alone stir the blood." This is well. "The age of discussion must terminate before the age of organization opens; and the age of discussion has not yet reached its culmination.'

This, we believe, is a fair epitome of the article referred to; and what we wish to do is, not at all to controvert it (there is altogether too much truth in It for that), but to supplement it by urging other conalderations which again seem to make the other scale of the balance preponderate. Mr. Frothingham will once more, as he has often done before, goodhumoredly let the "champion fanatic" of the Free Religious Association have his say! As President of that body, he has taught us all to differ on the platform without carrying into the discussion any other feelings than those which are worthy of a true "fellowship of the spirit;" and he, at least, will know that his own frank and strong presentment in THE INDEX of reasons for not doing what the editor of THE INDEX especially aims to do, is exactly as welcome and appropriate there as if he aimed to do the same thing himself. Outsiders are hopelessly perplexed over such a state of affairs, and cannot for their lives conceive what people who have such diverse ideas on important matters can have in common. Never mind-that is the paradox of Free Religion. Mr. Frothingham did us a real kindness by unreservedly stating his views on this subject in THE INDEX, and we hope all others who have views will do so too. Meanwhile he will wish us to be as unreserved in the expression of our own views. The only object being the truth itself, there is no room for discontent when each one loyally delivers his own message.

Now, conceding the substantial truth of all that Mr. Frothingham has said, the real question is, have the liberals any point to carry ? That is, any point of sufficient importance to justify or demand immediate organization. If they have, Mr. Frothingham will probably favor such a step. If not, we shall certainly disfavorit. Whether there is or is not at this time any practical point calling for organized action by the radicals, is a question transcending in importance all others that may be before them. In the one case, organization is the great duty of the hour; in the other case, THE INDEX (so far as we are concerned) is an anschronism.

Dallast by GOOQIC

But the answer to this question whether the liberals have any real point to carry depends ultimately upon the answer to be rendered to another question : is there indeed an irrepressible conflict between Chris tianity and Freedom ? If there is not, organization is a luxury, to be indulged in by those who have a taste in that direction; but if there is, we respectfully submit that organization is a public duty, to be discharged by all who perceive its existence and recognize its obligation. For what does the fact of this irrepressible conflict necessarily teach? Not only that Church and State ought abstractly to be separate, but also that the least mixture of the two is pregnant with sure practical disaster to the State; that the stronger infinence Christianity has on the administration of the government, so much the more violent will be the convulsion by which the State must sooner or later eject the poison from its system; that in proportion as the State is built on principles of genuine liberty, so much the more disorganizing and fraught with disturbance is the action of Christian principles upon and within the body politic; that all wise and true patriots must be impelled to seek, by all possible means, to introduce harmony with the fundamental ideas of liberty into the total administration of political affairs; and that this result can only be accomplished by combined efforts and energies, that is, by organization. Whoever comprehends the absolute antagonism between the foundation principles of the Church and the Republic, and is moved by a spirit of high and enlightened devotion to the welfare of his native land, will consecrate his citizenship to the duty of carrying out to completion the half-finished task of the Republic's founders. Not to discern this antagonism of course absolves from the duty; and we attribute the inertness and slowness of the radicals in the matter of organization to their want of discernment. The whole object of THE INDEX, proved by its utterances from the very first number, has been to convince the world that Christianity and Freedom are absolutely incompatible, and that Freedom alone can be the law of a purified humanity. If this is true,-if these nearly five years of labor have not been wofully misspent,-then organization for the purpose of rescuing the Republic from the clutches of a dying but still daugerous ecclesiasticism is necessarily one of the chief ends for which this paper exists. Not until evasion of our main point ceases and those who cry out against THE INDEX show some signs of understanding our main charge against Christianity,-not until it can be shown that Chris-Manity is the friend of Freedom, and therefore that our premises are all wrong,-will it be possible to overthrow the logic by which we deduce the duty of radical organization from the fact of an irreprestible conflict in the heart of American republicanism. The radicals have this great point of transcendent mportance to carry: the deliverance of the Republic rom the desperate, tenacious, and tightening clutches I the Church. To secure this point, they ought to sganize at once for discussion, for agitation, for dearmined action. When their eyes are opened, as bey certainly will be by the course of events in the of distant future, they will doubtless be prompt to st; but if they would only learn wisdom from the mr, they would act to-day.

The danger to be guarded against is not a special it general one; the Christian Amendment moveant is merely one symptom of it. It is really to be and in the chaos of ideas which alone renders posble the abuses specified in the Demands of Liberala. Out of this chaos no one knows what may serge. The tinder and the filnt lie side by side on mak of powder. What is wanted is to open eyes d to prick consciences, just as in the days of Antiwery; and the way to do this is to organize, not for cussion or agitation alone, but for political action the most efficient means of discussion and agitaa. The public mind needs to be stirred up to retion on the immediate bearing of the United tes Constitution on the New Testament. Show w flatly the former contradicts the latter; show w the fundamental law of the Republic is not only in-Christian, but Anti-Christian ; show that Chrissom is the victim of a dream, when it fancies it aves in the Sermon on the Mount, and that Jesus Ino more comprehension of a democratic republic a he had of spectrum analysis; show that the Rights of Man, not Faith in Christ, pitch the key of all modern civilization. To-day, a bitter religious contest is liable to be precipitated at any moment because the allegiance of the people is divided between battling principles, and no one can foresee what unlooked-for event may precipitate it. This is the true function of the Liberal League—to be the lightning-rod by which the deadly bolt hidden in the bosom of the cloud shall be silently discharged into the earth, instead of tearing with premature ruin through the magnificent political structure now slowly rising. Where agitation is open, no worse danger is to be feared than a little bad taste now and then; but beware of the silent conspiracy.

The dread lest the Liberal League shall excite danerous commotion is groundless; that was the old, foolish cry against the Anti-Slavery Society. But the secret plotting of ecclesiastics, the stealthy steps by which they get themselves intrenched in laws and customs through the apathy of liberals, the sly tapping of the public treasury for sectarian purp and all the other devices by which Christianity, Rom ish and Protestant, is seeking to retain its present place and power and get more, are always parilous and active causes of evil. Organization avowedly to carry out and develop the ground-principles of the Republic is a greatly needed influence here and now; it is a positive, constructive force; and we appeal straight to the consciences of radicals throughout the land to take a large view of the situation and multiply Liberal Leagues. Their objects are few and intelligible; their plan is simple; their work is all-important. There is precisely as much justification, precisely as much demand in reason, justice, and philanthropy, for the Liberal League to-day as there ever was for the Anti-Slavery Society. The slaveprinciple is active and powerful in society and government; the evil it works, though not appealing so openly to superficial observation and inflammable sympathies, is just as subtle and deadly as ever, and is preparing the way for some great convulsion in the fature. Now is the hour for prevention. The danger is perhaps "remote," and perhaps not; but who shall wisely leave a match burning in the corner of his house because the smoke and flame are still insignificant? Face fairly and fully the facts that Christianity and Freedom are hostile principles,-that they coexist in our political home, each an evident and powerful cause of human action,-that all over the land little indications are to be seen of bitter collision between the two; and then deny who can the existence of a smouldering fire which it is manifest duty to extinguish. The great abuse is the usurpation, permitted and increasing, of political power by the Church. The great duty of radicals is to abolish this dangerous abuse from constitution, statute and administration. Have a conscience for FREEDOM; for that is the point to carry!

F. R. A. ANNUAL REPORT.

The Report of the Proceedings of the last Annual Meeting of the Free Religious Association (1874) has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for distribution.

It contains the annual report of the Secretary, and verbatim reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Judaism," and of the statements by Mesars. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their respective attitudes with regard to Christianity,—as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Extra-Christian."

Members of the Association are entitled to the tract gratis. Price to others, single copy, 35 cents; package of four or more, 25 cents each. It can be obtained in Boston at A. Williams & Co. s, and at the office of the Association, No. 1 Tremont Place. Applications for it from abroad may be sent to the office in Boston, or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. Win J. Portrae, Secretary.

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC.

Is there not too little respect for private life in this country? Are not we Americans too fond of publicity, of reputation, and insufficiently disposed to cultivate a modest, retiring, and unambilious character? Are not we too curious to know how our neighbors live, too willing to uncover the secrets and sanctitles of their individual and personal relations, and too desirous to impress and astoniah them with our own significance and importance?

I think it is too true that we Americans have an inborn liking to "show off." We are not satisfied to do our best quietly and unpretendingly, but love to challenge attention to our deed. Every man, and now every woman, wants "a career." Long all our boys have been taught that they may aspire to be congressmen and presidents, and it would seem that it is likely to come to pass that our girls in the future will scarcely be satisfied with a much less distinction. Ambition is in general a human, but in particular an American, passion. We all wish to write a book, or make a speech, or edit a newspaper, or be an officeholder, or flourish as the leader of some cause or party. We desire to be distinguished, and cannot bear to be overlooked or to live unnoticed. Our class of public men is becoming fearfully large, and a largeclass of public women appears to be very imminent. Evidently there is less and less contentment with a simple, undemonstrative, and quiet life. The homewould seem to be losing its power of attraction, and the hotel and the boarding house to be taking itsplace,-with all their accompaniments begetting competition of personal vanity and pride, their haste and noise, their general openness to everybody's inquisition, and their inconvenience to the amenities and refined delights of domesticity.

This living so much in the eye of the public has a bad effect on character. Few men or women can do lt, and come off unspoiled. The indulgence of ambition and the experience of popularity breed conceit and vanity, and an aggravation of self-conscious personality, in all but the very greatest natures. The more applause we have the more we want. The more power we are allowed to exercise over others the more demanding and exacting we are of deference and submission. Fame, like alcohol, produces an appetite for itself. Publicity destroys the taste for privacy. As kings hate to abdicate, so reformers hate to lose their occupation, and leaders to give up their leadership. Many lecturers and platform speakers continue to talk, and many authors continue to write, long after they have ceased to have anything worth saying, simply because they have become so infatuated with a public life that they cannot be content with a private one; they continue to live on a reputation since they are not satisfied to live on character. We have plenty of literary people, but no great literature. We have an abundance of lacturers, but very few lectures that are worth hearing.

Publicity seems somehow to extract and absorb the rich juices of a fine nature, and to hinder the development of its noblest and most admirable qualities. We have all sorts of brilliant geniuses in this country, but we really have not the genius of character. Perhaps no man better than Mr. Emerson has endeavored to teach us how to have this, but we have been slow to learn. And we have been slow to learn because we have cultivated private life so little, and have been so anxious to take ourselves, and all our mental and moral belongings, into the hot and hasty and dusty and scorching arena of public life. We must have a change in this particular, or we shall not have a fine growth of knightly men and graciouswomen; we shall not have many philosophers, or poets, or saints, or herces, or even statesmen. We must cultivate peace, not war; we must cultivate the art of conversation more than of debate and discusalon; we must cultivate the science of society rather than politics or ecclesiasticism; we must cultivate. private friendships, and domestic loves, and calm vocations.

Then, too, we must invoke less the public judgment to settle what ought to be left to the judgment of the individual. We must try less to regulate personal relations and responsibilities by public opinion and legislative enactment. We must look upon the liberty and the privacy of the individual as too sacred to be invaded except in the last exigency of socialwelfare. It is none of our business how our neighbor lives,-what he cats or drinks or wears, or thinks. or says or does, -so long as he is just and kind to us; nor is it any more the business of the public how the Individual lives in private, so long as all his relations and responsibilities to society are properly discharged. It is an impertinent and un wholesome curiosity which would seek to unearth and publish and discuss secrets that had better never be revealed, or to meddle with concerns of private life that have no necessary connection with public good. Natural morality and natural religion are to be encouraged; not that which is conventional and traditional. All sumptuary laws should be avoided, and every restriction upon individual rights which the true science of society does not prescribe. It is our first concern to make ourselves true and pure; our last to make our neighbor so. We must live by the rule that seems to us commanding, and suffer and incite him to do the same. The law of evolution is the great gospel of the nineteenth century; for that instructs us to have faith in human nature and human progress. He who has such faith looks out upon the world, upon all its ignorance and foolishness and sin, with a calm and cheerful heart; since he sees what vast betterment has been accomplished already for man, and believes in vast and vaster improvement to come.

neterin Google

Literary Hotices.

A. W. S.

THE ANCIENT CITY: A Study on the Religion, Laws, and Institutions of Greece and Rome. By Fustel de Conlanges. Boston: Lee & Shepard. 1874.

and Institutions of Greece and Rome. By Fustel de Conlanges. Boston: Lee & Shepard. 1874. La Clifé Antique should especially be read by two classes of thinkers: Those who regard religion as an experience, varying according to the circumstances and moment of its development, through which the race has been gradually passing; and those who con-sider religion as one of the primai intuitions of man. Each would find something to change in or add to the judgment he has already formed, and would become more and more convinced of the close connection be-tween intelligence and outward progress, and of the dependence of civilization upon knowledge, and free-dom from supersition, rather than upon morality. In the early days of Greece and Rome (for the in-stitutions in each were so similar that what was true of the one was measurably true of the other also), earlier than the period at which fheir history usually begins, we find religion was the authority and the educator of the family and the tribe,--religion not as we know it, but religion in the narrow sense of a cult, with all its superstitious and binding rites. Belief concerning the soul and death, the worship of the dead, the eacred fire, and the domenticity of religion comprised the circle of doctrines held by the early ancients.

<text><text><text><text><text>

confederation respecting the civil and religious inde-petitical secondaria contrast, and families. Thus soci-ty was only developed as ideas of religiou marged. The "citit" among the ancients was the religious and political association of families, while the "trill" was its place of reunion, the sanctuary. Of course relig-ions rites accompanied its foundation. Not only the king but the magistrates were consecrated by relig-jours rites accompanied its foundation. Not only the station to which the was relegated by the censors till the next cenans was taken four years later. Woe to an aspiring Romani. Perhaps lobying was practised them. As new isaw wore constantly made and none ever changed, dexterity in the splication of them equalled legal corruptness in more familiar places. An exile them was not as comfortably situated as some of our modern colonial convicts, but was driven from his cut, his hearth five, and the lutrati water of sacrifice. Conlanges attenuously insists that such a religion, holding auch immense power, even deciding upon war and peace, could never have been feigned, but must have been developed as a natural growth. If this is true, how could the ancient city have fallen? Portwo reasons: 1. Beccuse the huma will continues to develop, not stopping in the encloaure of the bearth fire, and because men exists doutied of it who auffered from it. The plebeian who had no part in this astoceratic cut grew restiva, and formed his own cult. The particians or fathers submitted through astonishment. The king, who at first was both priest and king, loat his political anthority like primitive unity, cllentship was gradually ameliorated; in Greece it disappeared through the influence of Solon; at Rome, freedom dwared more slowly. Fam-denominated tyrants. So broke upon these minds, enalwed for generations to religious anthority like in the the kingh, and meeting with a partial success in the estabilishment of shiefs whom, as they denominated tyrants. So broke upon these minds, enalwed for generations to rel series of revolutions, until it disappeared as the the tory of Christianity marked the limit of ancient society. All this and much more is told in a clear and direct style that is delightful to read. The purpose of the book is constantly kept in view,—the religious basis of ancient society; albeit with too much repetition, which, though it may impress the truth on the hasty, is wearlsome to the careful, reader. Like all studies of the past, the analogies it suggests between that time and the present are as suggestive of future im-provement as they are full of mystery and bewitch-ment. Whatever their religion may have been or ours is now, to it do we both owe all that loyalty to right and impulse for constant development which led them from their sacred "hearth fre" to our God. and is leading us to a wider recognition of that same God. RATE GANNETT WELLS,

"GEORGE," ASKED the teacher of a Sunday-school class, "who above all others shall you first wish to see when you get to heaven ?" With a face brighten-ing up with anticipation, the little failow should, "Gerliah!"

Communications.

WAITING TO ORGANIZE.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 25, 1874.

PASSARC, N. J., July 25, 1874. EDITOR INDEX: Data Sit, —The article on "Organization," by it, fraction, in this week's paper, "hits the nall of the head," I think, and will create an earnest feeling. It is true that when the danger becomes imminent we will be ready. The fact that those who are earnestly and openly free thinkers are few in number merely proves that be ready. Many Hue in a business work to do which tess trees, Many Hue in a business work to do which tess the readicals, they do that which is at hand. Entre radicals, they do that which is at hand. Let the leaders keep their armor bright, and the market when the time comes that the roll-call fa-sounded, the reaponse will be in no uncertain sounds. Let the leaders keep their armor bright, and the market assured the rank and file will be ready. The tart civil war developed leaders from the low of the army; so it will be always. Is thou true that every man living a true lift, thinking for himself, acting out his deepest contes to have need or church, which will creat aposition the need or church which will creat aposition the need or ch

Very truly, F. A. ANOELL

[This breathes a spirit which every broad and balanced radical mind must especially like, for it is the spirit of courage and high purpose,-of practical earnestness, determination, and lofty aims. There cannot be too much of it. Whether there is now any need of organization, is discussed in the editorial columns of this issue, where further thoughts on this subject will be found .- ED.]

SECRET ORGANIZATION PROPOSED.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Aug. 16, 1874. EDITOR OF INDEX :

EDITOR OF INDEX:--In all parts of our country, and especially in small villages, may be found earnest, honest men, of free religious opinions, standing almost alone for what hey think the truth; not always scholars, yet readers and thinkers, bold in the utterance of opinions, and gen-erally wanting in that policy which orings thrit. Others there are, equally decided in their view, whose worldly wisdom leads them, if not to ignore, at least to cover up their real sentiments. This first class, particularly, though markedly inde-pendent and self-austained, at times strongly feel their isolation and want of helping sympathy. With the 'infidel of the bar-room,' whose arowed opinion is the result of his surroundings rather than that of clear conviction, they cannot fraternize; and their prethren of ''discretion'' repel them by their shuffing policy.

brethren of "discretion" repei them by their shuffing policy. Now, throughout the country, this first class mut number thousands who, though respected by society in a general way for their sterling qualities, yet fel that they are viewed with a certain auspicion or di-truet, and are of themselves very weak to oppose the prejudices everywhere about them. The question has occurred to me whether there was not a way by which to reach such persons (and all other liberals) and unite them, that they may feel the strength which numbers give: this union to be in some sort secret—that is, having signs or pass-word known to members only,—bound by no creed or authority, but having for their watchword "Liberty and Truth," and for their object "Fraternity and the Promotion of Free Thought." Would not such an organization or union as I have

Would not such an organization or union as I have hinted at give strength to the individual, and incline him to work for the definite purpose of adding to its numbers?

The style or name might be "The Brotherhood,"

The style or name might be "The Brotherhood," "Troth Seekers," "Freedom Lovers," or some simi-lar name. Of course women would be eligible on the lar name. Of course would an exponent or organ, same terms as men. Such fraternity would need an exponent or organ, and THE INDEX is ready to supply that need. Yours for truth, E, C. ALPHONSE.

[It is very likely that many liberals could be induced to join a secret organization of this sort, especlally if its chief objects were social and benevolent The mystery and secrecy might add a charm to the proposal not possessed by the simple idea of further-log a principle; and, if properly and honorably conducted, such an association might blamelessly accomplish a great deal of good. Yet we must frankly confess that what attracts many repels us, and we suspect we are not alone in this. All our instincts are opposed to secret organization. Secrecy could not, we think, effect anything good that might not be beter effected by openness and absence of mystification. Still, the subject is a very fitting one to discuss, and my further thoughts on it will be carefully heeded .-ED.]

WOMEN AND PRIESPS.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

[As we purpose to say something on this subject at greater length than is possible in a mere note, we will refrain at present from replying to the considerations to forcibly suggested by Mr. Honey .- ED.]

WOMAN AND THE CHURCHES.

It is often urged by some liberals, as a strong objec-lon against woman suffrage, that the granting of that will be in effect a step backward in reform, inasmuch as Ion against woman suffrage, that the granting of that ill be in effect a step back ward in reform, inasmuch as romen are the principal mainstay and support of the hurches; and that, in case of the ballot being given bem, their influence will indoubtedly be used to up-old and strengthen bigotry and superstition, and so erhaps swing us back a century or two, or at the sat bring us for a while to a dead halt in our hur-ied onward march. So they say, "Let us withhold win her so potent a power, which she may possibly se to our disadvantage." That there is danger of this, it would be useless to any; but, conceding so much, and setting aside the dishness and moral cowardice implied by this will-gness to deny to others a right claimed for them-fits an advantage on which they build their own be of success, would it not be well for these ill-als to consider whether that will be true progress bich will grant certain benefits to one-half of hu-snity at the expense and hindrance of the other? build a school where the teacher gave his undivided ignerse, to the progress and improvement of the ster on the progress and improvement of the ster of a lower ones. Sention to the progress and improvement of the gher classes, to the total neglect of the lower ones, considered a successful and model institution of uning? It is full time that the attention and efforts of radi uning? It is full time that the attention and efforts of radi-is be directed to some proper modes of weaning men from their absorbing devotion to their churches is to their pastors. Those who would deny woman ballot on this ground seem to think that it is wigh to neutralize an evil without any attempt at dicating it. What is needed is not only protection wast an evil, but the uprooting of the evil itself. s ballot, I contend, will be the most effectual anti-e to the poison of feminine devotesism. That woman's nature is more religious, reverential, I devotional than man's is no longer a question; in referring to her past history and education and developed feeling at the expense of intel-semption at the expense of knowledge. Woman's wathy, her love, her fear even, have been cullivat-by ages of dependence into morbid activity; her the for love and sympathy has increased beyond it's power to satisfy. Ben, with a larger, wider sphere of action, and more varied ambitions and interests, can live, if need be, a loveless life without conacions loss, while their energies are engrossed by intellectual cravings and achievements. Lacking these cravings and achieve-ments of the brain, woman has only the cravings of her heart to satisfy; and, if she fail to find objects of love and sympathy, she is unhappy beyond all words. Nay, so strong has this need of sympathy become through ages of cultivation that, even in those wom-en whose intellect has a man's power and strength, the achievements of that intellect fail to astify the woman's emotional nature, which cries out, as Mrs. Browning makes Aurors Leigh :--

The churches have always ministered to this femi-nine demand for sympathy and love. In the ideal Christ women find all that they miss so in the real man. Every ceremony and sermon of the churches is based on feeling, to the exclusion and bewilder-ment of the intellect; and only in religion can wom-an, as she is now constituted, find entire solace and satisfaction. satisfaction.

"Man for the field and woman for the hearth, Man for the sword and for the needle she, Man with the head and woman with the heart, Man to command and woman to obey; All clse confusion."

All cles confinance and woman to obey: All cles confusion." That there will a change in woman's character re-sult from the enlargement of her mind and consequent wider range of thought and pursuits, there can be no doubt. We confess so much; but we do not confess or think that this enlargement and widening of char-acter is going to deteriorate her, or render her less loving or lovable. The cultivated and intellectual man is not found to lose, because of his culture and intellectualism, anything of the sweetness and strength of his emotional nature. No more will the cultivated and intellectual woman. Because feeling is under the control and guidance of intellect, it is not any the less feeling; nay, the emotional nature is then likely to accomplish more than when it was its own guide and master. Intellect makes the better general, feeling the better soldier; both perform an equal part in the winning of battle. What we demand for woman is that no more ob-stacles be placed in her path to enlarged knowledge than are placed in that of man. It is little enough to ask that the weaker shall have as few hindrances as the stronger. Instead of the weak fears expressed by some that to sak that the weak fears expressed by some that as the stronger. Instead of the weak fears expressed by some that equal liberty accorded to woman will bring to a sud-den standstill the car of progress, let them rather learn to echo the brave, manly words of Tennyson's hero in The Princess :-

in The Princess:---"Blame not thyself too much, I said, nor blame Too much the sons of men and barbarous laws; These were the rough wars of the world ull not Henceforth thou hast a hilper, me, that know That woman's cause is man's; they rise or sluk Together, dwarfed or godlike, bond or free."

SARA A. UNDERWOOD.

CHICOPEE, Mass.

[This beautiful paper, no less strong than beautiful, will certainly be greeted with a hearty welcome by the readers of THE INDEX .-- ED.]

LAWS CONCERNING THE SEXES.

BALTIMORE, August 18, 1874.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT: FRANCIS E. ABBOT: My Dear Sir,-In your criticism of Mrs. Woodhull's communication appearing in THE INDEX of August 13, you say: "If an unmarried man and woman choose to live together, we know of no criminal pros-ecution to which they are liable." The Revised Statutes of Massachusetts, p. 739, chap. 130, sect. 5, provide: "If any man shall commit fornication with an unmarried woman, each of them shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jall not more than two months, or by fine not exceeding thirty dollars." Turning to Bouvier's Law Dictionary, we read: "Fornication-the unlawful carnal knowledge of an unmarried woman with another, whether the latter be married or not." 10 Mass. R. 163 reads: "A criminal cohabitation will not be presumed by the proof of a single act of criminal intercourse between a man and a woman not married," which thus makes continued residence with a woman without marriage more criminal, the law is still more rigid toward those who have been separated by divorce. Rev. Stat. Mass., p. 481, chap. 76, sect. 19, reads: "If any persons, after being divorced from the bond of matrimony, shall cohabit as husband and wife, or shall like together in the same house, they shall be liable to all the penalties provided by the laws against adultery."

I begue to offer the abore by way of correction of your information, and think you will find similar laws in some other States. Marriage. to ny mind, is the buttress, the butwark, the foundation stone of all decent and refined society; and whoever attempts to chack is the foundations with a word decent and refined society; and whoever attempts to the law if a context is the states hand is well de-

by the laws against adultery." The provided of the shore of by way of correction of four information, and think you will find similar fab outfress the burstwark, the foundation stone of all decent people. Nevertheless, the prevention of the output of several public divorce equally for this drop. Living with proving intolerable to her, and the shame of a speake most pathetically of hit. "departed companies of the output of several for the care and mainters in the proving intolerable to her are and mainters in the proving intolerable to the care and mainters in the output of divorce. The union of Church and State, the most arbitrary and tyranuical laws in radius of several divorce docelety has outprown? It seems to me that provide divers and children. The union of Church and State, the most arbitrary and the same of relation between of the date of the severe in lower conditions of a deelopment, provided for. Would not a relaxation of the laws which any public optime muscless and begin vorticed and provided for the the severe in lower on ability and scientific several and severe of the divorce of relation between the outpert of the same of main the prevented and perfection of the severe in the improvement of hores and califies are related to the severe individe and relax califies and which any prevention of the severe individe and the severe individe and the severe individe and there individes of provided and vind

[We are obliged to our correspondent for his correction of our ignorance as to the law. With him, we are in favor of amelioration of all unwise statutes on this subject, and In favor of more liberal divorce laws than generally prevall. But all legislation, in our view, should be governed by a purpose to make marriage honorable and home sacred.-ED.]

"PAT," SAID a traveller, "why do you make the-stone wall around your shanty so thick?" "Why, plase yer honor. I hear they have extraordinary high winds in Ameriky, so I thought if I built it about as thick as it was high, if it should blow over it would be just as it was afore, yer honor."

Meining Google

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1 8 7 4.	PUBLICATIONS,
THE PATRONAGE	LEADING INDEX WEITERS.	THE INDEX,	OF THE
A Contraction of the second se	Including	THE INDEAS	FREE fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt	O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON,	A Weekly Journal of the liberal advantising public is respect- fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honefuly made to keep the advantis- ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and	W. J. POTTER,	DEVOTED TO	RELIGIOUS thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to	W. H. SPENCER, which its general contractor and principies, and thus to formak to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to fits patrons, but also workby of their most generous support. To this end, all improper of "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed is be formulated or wrises to are on with ba	F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY,	FREE RELIGION.	ASSOCIATION.
or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed	A. W. STEVENS,	PUBLISHED BY THE
to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted.	F. E. ABBOT,	INDEX ASSOCIATION.	Beport of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Host-
THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who		india abbo orarion,	ing in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was organ
will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.	on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25	AT	facel, Containing addresses by 0. B Post-
ADVERTISING RATES.	cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50.	No. 1 Tremont Place, Beston.	ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretta Motti Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John
Por 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line.	Address, THE INDEX,	EDITOR: FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT.	son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. His-
	No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.		ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.
On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column	INDEX TRACTS.	ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.	(This pamphlet has not been on sale fors.
advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is	No. 1Truths for the Times, by F. E.	BDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:	number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not
paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCISE. ABBOT, Editor.	Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MB. CHARLES	O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.	possess this.) Price 50 cents.
be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.	DARWIN, anthor of "The Origin of Spe-	T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.R.	Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-
CIRCULATE   Circulate     Circu-	cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig- inally intended for publication, but subse-	W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.	ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Re-hate THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel satis- fied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have asked every one to sign it. Get good, infu-	quently authorized to be used : "I have now	R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Pisin, Mass.	straint in Religion," and by David A. Was endal names.	read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to	F. W. NEWMAN, England.	son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Prothing-
GET EVERYBODY.	almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	CHARLES VOYSEY, England.	ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Des-
Don't neglect to show the patition to any coe, because he is a stockholder in some church, or	No. 2Fear of the Living God, by O.	THE INDEX aims-	ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Br- tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rewland other exempted property, as many such persons admit the justice of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility	B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-		Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and
Don't delay! We want the petitions returned	acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-	To increase general intelligence with respect to religion:	others; with an appendix on "Outline of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.
BARIN. Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BORTON LINERAL LEACUE.	thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-	To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher	Proceedings of Third Annual New-
The second s	tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	purpose, both in society and in the indi- vidual:	ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essays
CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.	No. 3Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-	To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right	by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by
김 대학 전 승규는 것이 같아.	whelming demonstration of the imperfec- tions and errors of the Bible, both in the	for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity	addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature
The Index Association,	Old and the New Testaments. New Edition,	for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism	of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re- ligion as a Social Force, especially in reis-
OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON,	Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish achemes.	tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by has been organized with a capital stock fixed at	No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness,	In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig-	F. E. Abbot on "The Fature of Balgiou Organization, as affected by the Spirit of
ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the	costliness, and inefficiency of the System	ion shall take the place of dogmatiam and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and	the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," folpurpose of publishing Tracis, Books, and	of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents;	when the welfare of humanity here and	lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent
THE INDEX,	12 copies $1.00.	now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.	and Progressive Elements of Judaian," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism,"
Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational	No. 8"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-	In addition to its general objects, the prac-	by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of . Religion.	posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-	tical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE	China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Religion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a
It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and	ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur-	discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, est matured thought of the age on all religious	No. 6"The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-	pose of securing the more complete and con- sistent secularization of the political and ed-	Babbi Wise, and others.
usetions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.	bury, denounces Subbatarian superstition.	ucational institutions of the United States.	and the second second second
It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by	New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last	Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet- ing, 1872. E cents. (Four or more, 2
BRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of	No. 7""Compulsory Education," by	vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be	cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in ditorial Contributors :-	F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the	wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them	Amarica." by C. D. B. Mills on "Bellgion M
O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.	State to ensure it an education. Price 5	into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must	the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froth-
WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.	cents; 12 copies 50 cents,	make a united demand, and present an un-	ingham on "The Religion of Humanity,"
WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.	No. 8The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-	broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize	with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A.
MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.	terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5	a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM.	Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alerander Loos,
REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England,	cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the	and others.
PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.	No. 9The Christian Amondment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-	circulation of THE INDEX.	Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-
Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, s the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-	ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan- gelical Christian Creed In the U. S. Consti-	SPECIAL FEATURES.	ing, 1878. 35 cents. (Four or more, a
ism. Every Christian minister, and every think-	tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	The publication of a valuable leading pa- per or essay of a thoughtful character, in	Tohnson on Wirzeedom in Religion, and of ig church-member, should subscribe for it as	No. 10The Impeachment of Christi-	each issue, will continue to be one of the	John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale as clearest, most candid, and most scholarly er- stition of the differences between Free Thought	anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou- sand. Sent for free distribution to any one	most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will con-	Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longie- low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lo-
d Evangelical Christianity, and as the heat	who will distribute it, in packages of from	tinue to be furnished by the well-known em-	cretia Mott.
eans of becoming well informed of the area-	five to one hundred copies.	inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high poents and the movements which the Church will we to meet in the future.	No 11The God of Science, by F. E. Ab- bot, attempts to show the real influence of	sition. Mr. Voysey has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER	Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. He ginson, 25 cents.
Almost every number contains a discourse or	modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	containing matters of general interest to rad-	and the second ading article, which alone is worth the price of	No. 12Is Romanism Real Christian-	ical readers. Other interesting correspond- ence, communications, extracts from valua-	Religions of Chins, by Wm. H. Cha- ning. 25 cents.
ne year's subscription.	ity? Two easays by Francis W. Newman	ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous
Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX	and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to	Beason and Revelation, by William J.
or January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a	No.13On the Vision of Heaven, by	time as circumstances shall render possible.	Potter. 10 cents.
burnal entirely devoted to Beligion in the wideat	Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes	AGENTS.	Taxation of Church Property, by Jal.
mae of the word abould be felt in America-that ach a journal should have been started and so	the Obristian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted	Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.
owerfully supported by the best minds of your		in every city and town throughout the coun- try. The most liberal terms are offered.	And the second sec

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered. These publications are for sale at the office

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Flace, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTER, Sm. F. E. A.

of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1888 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1875 is Pre · lett for J Journ comes of the word should be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your No. 14. - A Study of Heligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself country, -is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still : "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

430

Sand $3.00 for one year, or 75 centalfor three months on trial. Address

THE INDEX No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boaton, Mass.

Address

THE INDEX,

POPULAE BOOKS' SENT BY MAIL Bights to Labor" ..... DABWIN'S Origin of Species The Descent of Man. 2 vols AT. PUBLISHERS' PRICES! Journal of Researches..... Emotional Expression of Ma er Animals... The Variation of Animals an Domestication. I vols., illu ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. DESCARTES (RENE.) Disc Method of Rightly conducti and Seeking Truth in the Se Mathod of Righly conductin and Backing Truth in the Sc DiCKENS'Child's Hatory of J DUHRING (JULA) Philo Foois. A Study...... LIOT'S (GEURGE) Novals. H ULOT'S (GEURGE) Novals. H ULOT'S (GEURGE) Novals. H Comprising-Adam Sele. Bornols. The SMII on the Flost. Fells. Marruland Scenes of Stills. Stills. Stills. Stills. Stills. Middlemarch. 2 Not Scills. Stills. Stills. How Liss Loyed the King.... NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. wy BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other ANT BUCK in the successful and the cosing will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH. Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. How fins toyed the King.. EMEBSON'S (R. W.) Essays Essays, Second Beries... Mincellanies... English Traits... Conduct of Life... Poems. With Fortrait... May-day and Other Pieces. Essays. Blue and Gold... Prose Works. 7 vols... Bodiety and Solitude WANS (F. P. D. D. LCOTT (LOUISA m), Latte vonnet, Avo son Bospini Skotches and Charp and Firedde 1004-Pachtoned Girl. 1004-Pachtoned Girl. 1006-Pachtoned Girl. 1006-Pachtoned Cirl. 1006-P EVAN3 (E. P., Ph. D). F Transformations of Chris the Fronch of Athanase Younger.... The Life and Works of Go Lessing. Transisted from Adolf Stahr. 3 vols..... ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTRETAINMENTS. 1.50 FARRAR'S Critical History o in reference to the Christian FEDERBACH (LUDWIG.) Christianity. "George Ello FISKE'S (JOHN) Mythe and FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) B manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers . Child's Book of Religion .... Life of Theodore Parker... FULLER'S (MARGARET) C including Memoirs by Eme-and others. A new edition. BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ...... 2.05 BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON). The Begin-OREO'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Literary and Social Julgun Oreed of Christendom..... GROTE'S LIFE. Complied fr uments, Private Memorand Leiters to and from Vario Mrs. Grote. Second Editi trait HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Book I. In England. Book Eook II. In France. Thoughts shout Art. The Unknown Siver. The Unknown Siver. Chapters on Animals. Control Onto in the above cases in the Exact Err T (NNA C.). The Education of American Oicia. BEOOKS'(CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Breviary 225 The World Frief. 70 The Fall Student. 70 BAMILTON (GAIL). Child V BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 1.35 Child World, Part First ... BUCKLER (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. Now edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vola..... HAMILTON'S Loctures. 1. Metaphysical Lectures ... 2. Logical Loctures ...... 2. Logical Lectures HAWTHORNE'S (NATHAN New Illustrated Library Edi Per vol... Twice-Toid Tales Mozeocrite Lector, and Exarite Lector, and The House of the Seven G Snow Image. The Kapilsh Note-Books. The American Note-Book The American Note-Book The French and Italian N Our Old House, and Septi House New York W. Det-8.00 HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'I HUMBOLD T (ALEXANDEE Translated from the Genna three portrails. HUME'S (DAVID) Zeessys an HUNT'S (M BB. LELEN). 'V Hita of Travel. HUXLEY'S Man's Place in N On the Origin of Species ... More Criticians on Darwin trative Nibiliam A Manual of the Anatomy Animal of the Anatomy Animal of the Anatomy The Monitors of the Unas Beuge of Seven ... INGELOW'S (JEAN) Process HUGO'S (V.) New Novel. " High Studies for Biories Burles tof Biories Burles told to a Child. F Sories, Bye-Hours Athetes Bye-Hours Mopes the Fairy: A Story Mopes the Fairy: A Story Mopes the Fairy: A Story Mopes Children (Children (Children

3

11:

7

5

2

÷

Bights to Labor"	VI. The New Chemistry. By Joelah P. Cooke, Jr. VII. The Conservation of Energy. By Bal-	of Familiar Casayson Scientific Subjects, Natural Phenomena.
Superioral Expression of Man and the Low-	Vi. 100 New Commary, by Jonasi F. 2.00 Yooks, Sciencerstino f Energy, Br Bai- tor Biswart, with an Appendix, Irea- ing of the Vital and Meula Applications of the Doctrine Meula Applications 1.50 VIII. Animal Locomotion; or, Walking,	Natural Prenomina
er Animals	of the Doctrine YIII. Animai Locomotion; or, Waiking, Swimming, and Flying, with a Diserta- tion on Aeronantics. If J. Bell Pettigrew, L75 IX. Responsibility in Monial Disease. By Henry Maudaloy, M.D	harr r hotographs and many ristes, Charts, DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Mathod of Rightly conducting the Eugeon and Seeking Truth in the Sciences	LX. Responsibility in Montal Disease. By Henry Maudaloy, M.D 1.59	the Expanse of Heaven and Seeking Truth in the Sciences 2.25 DICKENS' Child's History of England 1.50	JERBOLD (DOUGLAS), Fireside Saints, Mr.	BOSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dents
DUHRING (JULIA.) Philosophers and Fools. A Study 2.00	JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Belation to Universal Beligion.	SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly
ELIOT'S(GEORGE) Novals. Household Edi- tion. 5 vols., each	India	BOILENCE PRIMERA
Adam Beds. Romels. The Mill on the Floss.	JOWETT. The Dialognes of Plato. Trans-	1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.B.S., 50 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Roscoe, 50 3. Physics, By Balfour Stawart, With U-
Felix Holt. Silas Marner and Scenes of Clerical Life.	lated into English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliot College, Orford, and Regius Pro- fessor of Greek. Four vols	4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei- kio, LL.D., F.B.S., ferible cloth
The Same. Library Edition. 2 vols 3.50 Middlemarch, 2 vols	the sector was a sector between the sector of the sector o	SCOTT'S Waverley Novels. 25 vols
The Spanish Gypsy		SCOTT'S (THOMAS) The English Life of Jesus. Second Edition
Easays. Second Beries	LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vola	SMILES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help 1.59 SPENCER (HERBERT.) Education, Intel-
English Traite	tus to Charlemagne. 2 vols 5.00	lectual, Moral, and Physical. 1.25 Pirst Principles 2.50 Escays: Moral, Political, and Astinetic. 2.50 Illustrations of Universal Progress. A Se- lection of bla best Papers. A Se- lection of bla best Papers. 2.50 Social Stations on The Conditions Second
Conductor Life 2.00 Conductor Life 2.00 Poems. With Portrait 2.00 May-day and Other Pieces 2.00 Easays. Bice and Gold. 1.50 Poems. Bice and Gold. 1.50 Poems Works. 3 vois 3.50 Society and Solitude 2.00	LEGGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 Confucius and Chinese Classics	lection of bla best Papers
Poeins. Blue and Gold	LESSING'S (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans- lated by Ellen Frothingham	lection of his best Fapera
EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the	LEWES' Physiclogy of Common Life. 3 vols. 3.00 Biographical Haiory of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Fresent Day. 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda-	The Principles of Psychology, 2 vols 5.00 Philosophy of Style
the French of Athausse Coquerel the Younger	Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- tions of a Creed	Boclology
Younger. 1.50 The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Transisted from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 yols	LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.50	BFINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The- ologico-Politicus
FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion 2.00	LEWIN (RXV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju- daism? or, a Few Words to the Jews, 1.00 LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait.	Life, Correspondence and Ethics 9.09 STOWE (HARBLET BLECHER.) Pink and
FECERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 2.00	2 vols 4.00 Prose Works, Portrait	While Tyrany
FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers. 2.00 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Hu-	LOWELL'S (J. R.) Foems. 7 vols	STRAUSS (D. P.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jesus. Authorized translamanity 1.50 Beliefs of the Unbellevers	Among iny Hooks. 2.00 My Study Windows	Hon. I vold
Lafe of Theodore Parker 3.00	LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Postes for Children73 LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-	TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Liters- ture. 2 vola The Ulasa-Room Tains. History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John
FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Chauning, and others. A new edition. 6 vols	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Mau 2.00 Pre-historic Times	Flake
GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse- quences	LYELL'S Principles of Geology. 2 vola 8.00 Elements of Geology	THACKERAY'S (W. M.) Novela. Household Edition. Complete in 6 volumes, Per vol., 1.25
GOETHE'S Fanst. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 yols. Per yoi 5.00	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter	Baltion, Complete in S volumes, Por vol., 1.25 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip.
GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affilities. Wilhelm Melster. Translated by Thomas Cartyle, Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Borace Mann. By his Wife	Pendennis,
100 % LOFOTOPROPER	Annual Reports on Education, from 1889 to 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann	Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings. Household Edi- tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com- pletein 5 vols. With new Portrait. Par vol. 1.25
GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life		plete in 5 vols. With new Portrait, Per vol. 1.35 This edition includes all the matter in the lataporress tige Compiled from Faulty Doc-	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theologicsi. 2 vols. Per vol 2.50 The New Affinities of Faith	This edition includes all the matter in the lat- est English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the cheapest and mest complete Thackeray in the market.
nments, Privste Memoranda, and Original Leiters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por- trait. 600	MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind	1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Dismoud, &c. 2. Paris, and Irish Skelch-Books, &c. 3. Suobs, Sketches, Donis Durai, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humorist, &c. 5. Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre-
HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter a Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France.	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire	4. Four Georges, Humorists, &c. 5. Catherine, Christmas Buoks, and Unre- printed Pieces.
Book III. In France	service of a state principal ments. This scientification and	THAXTER'S (Mas. CELIA) Among the balse of Shoals
The Intellectual Life	MILL (JOHN STUART) Dissertations and 2.35 Discussions. Avoids, Gach	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden: gr. Life in
BAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec- oud	1.95	the Woods
DA STT TON'S Lookavas.	Easay on Liberty	Cape Cod
1. Mataphysical Lectures	Autobiography	Rivers
HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANDEL) Works, New Illustrated Library Edition, Nine vols, Per vol	Songs of the San Lands 1.00	TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind
Per vol	MORLEY (PROF. JOHN.) Voltaire	TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov- erer. 1.00 Fragments of Science for Unscientific Peo-
Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image. The Marble Faun.	Edussoau, 2 vols	Pragments of Science for Onscienting rec- pie
The English Note-Books.	Thme Stories	Hours of Exercise in the Alps
The American Note-Books. The French and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimius Felton.	Actauce of Language. Pirst Series	On Sound
HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Bonnance	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Science of Language. First Series	Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tyndall
Oldport Days	and Customs. Vol. III. Enably on Anti- erature, Biography and Antiquities. Three vols. Price per volume	Modern Painters and their Paintings 1.59
HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed- ding Journey 2.00 Suburban Sketches 2.00 Venetian Life. 2.00	NASRY (PETROLEUM V). Swingtn' Round the Cirkle	VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vois I and V., each
Venetian Life	the Cirkle	Vols III, IV, and VI., each
WITCOM (V ) New Novel. " 'Ninety-Three"., L75	Hebrew Monarchy. Phases of Fulth; or, Passages from the History of my Creed. 2.00	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in
HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON), Life of, Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits	The Soul, its Serrows and its Aspirations. 2.00 Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church	Back-Log Stadies 2.00
HUME'S (DAVID) Essays and Life 1.30	Thelam, Doctrinal and Practical 4.23	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion 1.00 Life of Theodore Parker. 2 yola
Bits of Travel	Againat Hero-making in teengiouttettett	WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life Las Essays and Boviews. Character and Characteristic Men
On the Origin of Species	Matters Pertaining to Beligion	The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth 1.00 Success and its Conditions
Animala Addresses, and Reviews 1.75	Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occa-	WHITNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer in
The Monitions of the Unseen	6 Oritical and Miscellaneous Writings	The Other Oriz Panalos, A volume of Poena
INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. On the Basi-	troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham I.M. The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis- demeanor of a Speech to Fancuil Hall
		Child Life
Burles told to a Child. First and Second 12 A Sinter's Bys-Bonrs 12 Mopes the Phiry A Story 1.1 Mopes and Check 1.1 Mopes	PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite
INGERSOLLS (AODI. O.) Ido dout 20	PHELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The
Nu. I. Forms of Water, in Clouds, Rain,	Men, Women, and Ghosta 1.5	THE INDEX.
Rivers, Ice, and Gisciers. By John 170- 13. II. Physics and Politics; or, Thoughts on	Hedged In The Silent Partner. 1.5 What to Wear !
Rivers, Ice, and Glachers. By John 1920 19 fail	PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por- trait, Cabinet Edition
· weiter and the second second

431

$25 A, DAY GUARANTEED and good barriers well AUGEB AND DRILL in good barriers. HIGHEST TESTINONIAL and Control and ANAL AND ANAL AND	STUDENTS FITTED for any	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bons,
	Please address EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn.	Our organization some time since decided to di-	ed pamphlets free. Address
St. Louis, no.	CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT	rect its efforts for the present towards securing the
ROWLAND CONNOR. Having databad his engagement with the Bree Congregational Society of Florence Bree Congregational Society of Florence		Repeal of the Laws	THE AMERICAN EDITION
WUI ADSWET INVICATIONS to recture the		whereby church and other corporate property is	MONCURE D. CONWAT'S
THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873	FREE DISCUSSION	notestly arounted from the share of the burden	SACRED ANTHOLOGY,
A THE DIDEY FOR 1871	I BLAND THE P. All that relates to the Bellgious.	As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURE, has just been published, and will be sen postpaid on receipt of the and will be sen
The bound volume of THE INDEX forwarded to any (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of 30, by express, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for the purchaser's expense.	tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for male every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.	TRACT	the processing the price, $4.00.
the purchaser a capendo. In no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	WEST NEWTON ENGLISH		Address THE INDEL, 1 TREMONT PLACE,
PENN MEDICAL UNIVERSITY,	first school year of this Family and Day School, FOR BOTH SEXES, will begin Wednes-	on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 37.	G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,
OF PHILADELPHIA. The regular course of Lectures in this In-	day, September 16, 1874. For particulars address NATH'L T. ALLEN, Principal,	We have already issued three editions, the list of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to issue	BANKEBS, the regime commence on the first Monday in October, and is open to both acces. The achool is liberal and progressive, and thor- ough in its teachings. For announcement laine terms and other particulars, address	Went Newton, Miner.	Another Large Edition	LEBOY, MINN.
-ongh in its teachings. For announcement giving terms and other particulars, address E. D. BUCK MAN, M.D., DEAN, No. 1030 Spring Garden St.	TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.	of this and other tracts. on the subject, so	Branch Office, 187 Breadway, S. T.
		that we can place a copy in the hands of	Money Invested in First Mortgages on in- proved Farms in Minnesota and lows, run- ning three to five years, with Coupon Interest Notes, drawing 9 page out
TO ADVERTISERS. The following states the experience of a	Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone,	EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,	Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad- vance, or ten per cent, paid semi-annually in advance, or 15 per cent, per annum annually, free of expense to the Longer.
successful Bookseller who has advertised in THE INDEX:-	best of references given, and satisfactory	and generously to supply the calls for them in other States.	at the Bank or in Nam The receipt of money
TOLEDO, Onio, Sept. 20, 1812.	7 Tremont Place, Boston.	To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract	For Full Particulars, send for Circular. 137 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.
TO THE INDEX AND, TORGO, U. Gentleman, Having had occasion to adver- tise in your paper during the past two years outle largely, I take pleasure in statism that I have always obtained very satisfactory re- tarted the state of the prome hook adver-	TO BOOK-BUYERS. Please examine the revised list of POPU-	at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear	PEAL ESTATE SECTION
I have always obtained very saturation of it turns-better in fact than from book adver- thements in any other paper 1 have adver- tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-		the entire expense alone. Will not, then, j	heltere a to in bor ospir mission of received months after the insertion of the	chase English, German, or French Books, or	All Friends of the Movement	Investments in Real Estats in Chicage and visinity, if judicionaly made, are the best and miss modes of ampleton souther and miss wept on file and referred to by your readers.	who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Fereign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-	All Friends of the movement	and an outproying capital. The old
HENRY S. STEBSING. Special arrangements will be made at re-	their orders promptly filled and their inqui- ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, i Tremont Place, Boston.	come forward and help us with liberal donations ? We frequently receive communications from	Real Estate and Loan Agency or
-duced terms for long-time or extended ad- wertlsements. Address	BOUND VOLUMES OF THE	parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the	EBNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STREET Chicago (Established 1863),
THE INDEX, No. 1 TREMONT PLACE,	Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the	cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand of Stants are hundred to all the still	Guarantees perfect title and ample security .
CHARLES SUMNER'S	purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective	thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-	Firstclass securities always on hand, la- terest and principal collected without charge, Real Estate Investments made on commission
GREAT WORK.	of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent	ating them gratuitously throughout the country. Lust winter this subject was brought be-	Orders of capitalists and real estate men
PROPHETIC VOICES	interest, and will furnish as instructive read- ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend	fora the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of	ere respectively solicited.
CONCERNING AMERICA. By CHABLES SCHNER.	struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX,	these unjust laws. The matter is still in their hands, and at the	REASONS FOR USING THE
Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por- trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2.	1 Tremont Place, Boston.	next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
Aside from its literary and historical mer- its, this volume has a special interest, from	WARREN'S TRUE CIVILIZATION.	Voice of the People,	It is full length. It is full size. It is the fact that it was the last work on which r. Sumner was engaged before his death.	Price 50 cents.	favoring justice and equity, should be dis- tinctly heard.	smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine are
"PROPRETIC VOICES" will be found of great walne to all who take an interest in the his-	PRACTICAL DETAILS,	We shall soon be ready to send out	Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect
tory of our country, so full is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of our	showing the workings of the	BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN,	fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented land has been foretold by philosophers, posts, statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament-	COST PRINCIPLE. Price 25 cents.	thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already done so, to protest against this	to be, and of so poor a quality as to be units for use. The ladies will always find the Ru-
ed author has also given interesting sketches. Seat, post-paid, on receipt of price.	For sale by	continued wrong. Let us make it	reka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's
Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	S. H. MORSE, 25 Bromdeld St., Boston.	THE LARGEST PETITION	name indefibly branded on every spool. Call for it.
B U S T O F	FOR SINGING CLASSES!	ever presented to our legislative body.	RADICAL AND LITERABY
THEODORE PARKER, BT.	THE	Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please	LECETER
SIDNEY H. MORSE.	SONG MONARCH !!	SEND IN THEIR NAMES?	LECTUBES
Dignity, reverence, sweetness, vigor, equi- poise, breathe through the clay; the artist bas so filed his own heart with appreciation of that noble life that he has been able cun-	By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, A book admirably fitted for the use of Sing-	We would asy, also that we feel despiy the need of	JOHN WEISS, which the character had wrought on the liv-	ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a	Other Orest I
ing fibre. We are tempted to exclaim, as we stand beside it, as the old artist did to his perfected work, "Speak then!"-Hannah E.	pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Tunes, &c., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for somiroring and Social Finance	Other Organizations	BADICAL LECTURES.
Stevenson, All the characteristics of my husband are in the bust, his greatness, his goodness, his	for Seminaries, and Social Store, Stars. Price 75 cts., or $7,50 per dozen.	in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands	The Idea of Hereafter. Au Act of Faith.
in the bust,—his greatness, his goodness, his tendorness, his love. You cannot give life to clay or marble; but you can represent it, and this Mr. Morse has done.—Lydia D. Parker to Hannet E. Starreto	FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS.	of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to	Intelligence in Religion. Religion and Science.
nannan F. Stevenson.	THE LEADER!!	Form a Liberal League,	Heart in Beligion.
The eyes, though but of clay, are gleaming with possible indignation, with possible tears; the lips are set firm with the resolution of him who like Paul could (like ht each first).	is the Leader of all Church Music Books for 1874 and 1875, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled.		SHARSPEARIAN LECTURES.
him who, like Paul, could "fight a good fight" as well as "give a reason."-Samuel Longfel- tore.	By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, of Boston,	we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.	FIRST SERIES. 1. Cause of Laughter.
The first time I have seen Theodore Parker since he diedWm. Sparrell.	containing also compositions from the hands of large numbers of American Music writ- ers.	1	2. Irony and Humor. 3. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Tonchstone.
The best representation of Mr. Parker ever executed in clay.—Boston Daily Globe. The face is strong and noble as it should be.	For CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS and SINGENG CLASSES,	LIBERALS!	4. Ajax in Troilus and Cressids: The Por- ter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear.
The likeness is good Roston Daily Advertiser.	The LEADER has 86 pages of Singing School Music, the same us that in the Song Mon- arch, and large numbers of new Tunes and	If all will units and work, the results sought	5. Falstaff. 6. Hamlet.
Nothing appears for beauty alone, or finish, or to show the vanity of the artist. All is forgotten in the man-the true, real, Yankee man, Theodore ParkerL. S. H. in the Golden And	Price $1.38, or $12.00 per dozen.	can be accompliabed Address	SECOND SERIES. 1. The Women of Shakspears.
- ayo	Specimen copies of the above book mailed, post-paid, for retail price.	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,	2. Portis. 3. Ophelia.
Copies of this Bast, finely finished n plas- ter, $10 each. Boxing for transportation, $1 extra. Freight or expressage pabl by party sending order. Weight of tox about fifty pounds. Orders may be sent to 5 11 Wares	OLIVER DITSON & CO.,		4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.
pounds. Orders may be sent to S. II. Worker,	CHAS, H. DITSON & CO.,	NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the	<ol> <li>Contrast in Shakspeare's Characters.</li> <li>Address JOHN WEISS,</li> </ol>
Boom 13, 25 Bromfield S ., noston, Mass.	711 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.	EXBOUTIVE COMMITTEE.	at E. Brookline St., Boston.

manan Google

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

432

Three Dollars a Year.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

We demand that churches and other sociesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation.
 We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, systums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.
3. We demand that all public appropriations for educational and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cesse.
4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensibly as a txt-book or arowedly as a book of religious worship, shall be prohibited.
5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governor of the various States, of all religious fastion under the paint and penaltical and fasts shall wholy cease.
6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and penalties of perjury shall be arabilished in its stead.
7. We demand that all laws dioking to the enforcement of such shall be account and penalted.

ing the observance of buildly as the baroam state of the pealed. 8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the Dratical States and of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceled to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our onitre political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unflicchingly, and prompily made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION. Brarcas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of epublican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-ation inspecied, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of relignon; and religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious libers; the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the satire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT. AET. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-ERAL LEAGUE OF _____.

EAL LEAGUE OF ______. Asr. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-cure practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-ism" throughout the country, and especially in _____: Allo, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to sond two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-ter called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the country in securing the needed reforms. Asr. 3.—The means employed in workhow for the security of the se country in securing the besteel ritorias. Arr. a. The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right. Arr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members. Arr. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

ment. Asr. 5.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, A Vice Preadent, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execo-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be hose commonly portaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ax-officio delegates to the Natival Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Asr. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-diar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

and right.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 246.

VOLUME 5.

12.70 210

2

ħ 14 2 うち Dr a 30 ð

١,

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

FROFOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. SKOTTON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religin, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious test shall ever be required as a condition of suffrage, or as a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of n is or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any poincions he or she may hold on the subject of religion. BEOTOR 3.—CONGRESS and have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-ate legislation.

GLIMPSES.

GEN. FORBEST, hero of the Fort Pillow massacre, appears as a protestant against the Trenton massacre. It must have been horrible indeed to call out a murderer's protest against murder.

Got DEWITH MATD is the heroine of the hour. She made her mile in 2:14. Rev. Mr. Murray may cease his search for the "Perfect Horse;" and the womansuffragiets may point triumphantly to her exploits.

THE CATHOLIC Bishop of Dubuque, by refusing to pay his taxes on a block of stores and houses, has had it cold by public authority, and is likely to lose at least half of it. He strained the exemption privi-lege a little too far, and "bit his own nose off."

JEFFERSON DAVIS, the pious Churchman who slew multitudes of helpless Northern prisoners at Libby and Andersonville by slow tortures of starvation and exposure, joins in the protest against the Trenton massacre. Can we have heard the worst of it yet?

THE CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY of the First Continental Congress was held at Philadelphia on the fifth of September. "There were giants in those days;" and a hundred years hence posterity will discover giants in these. But the real giants do not always get into history.

THE EPISCOPAL CONGRESS is condemned by Bishop Potter, but the people of his sect are "getting their backs up," and also their noses, at the Bishop's arbitrary interference. Even Bishops in this country must be cautious how they twitch the reins, or they may be thrown out of the vehicle.

THE VIGOBOUS POLICY of the government with regard to the assassinations perpetrated by the "White League" at the South deserves universal approval. The President's letter to the Secretary of War is all that could be asked; and there is ground to hope that such insufferable outrages as have lately disgraced the country will for the future be effectually prevented.

AT NEWTON, Massachusetts, it is reported by the Boston Journal that "a Young Men's Christian Association has been formed in Ward One for the purchase of real estate. Each member is to pay into. the common fund the sum of $5 monthly." This is doubtless for the purchase of real estate in the New Jerusalem-in obedience to the precept: "Lay not up, etc., etc."

A "MASSACHUSETTS CHURCHMAN" expostulates with Bishop Potter, of New York, for his ecclesiastical impertinence in wanting to muzzle the laymen of his church. He declares that "the policy of ultra-montanism is to rule in a realm of enforced silence," and adds: "You adopt very logically, in the position you hold, the motto 'What we need preëminently is not talk, but work."" There is a wonderfully familiar sound in that motto. We have heard it in Unitarian Conferences. It always means the same thing, . and that is-gag-law.

THERE SEEMS to be too much evidence of a widespread conspiracy at the South to intimidate the negroes into submission to white rule. The White League threatens to revive the Ku-Klux-Klan under a new name; and the brutal murders now reported every day will soon raise public indignation at the North to a great heat. In some manner or other protection should be given to the negroes, who, whatever they may have been provoked to do in self-defence, are manifestly more sinned against than sinning. The longer the whites persist in outrage, the worse it will be for them. Every true friend of the South (and we certainly claim to be one) must perceive that her only hope of prosperity lies in scrupulous respect for equal human rights.

DR. BLAUVELT admits, in the Independent of August 27, that Orthodox Christianity is in a very bad way. He says, with as much honesty as courage: "Depend upon it, therefore, if we American Christians begin the conflict for Christianity-now inevitable, now fairly opened here-with modern unbelief on the supposition that our current Orthodox or evangelical conceptions of Christianity, as such, are de fensible, no choice will eventually be left us but to surrender battle after battle until a perfect panic will overspread this entire Christian nation,-no one being able to conjecture where defeat will end. Either our Orthodox conceptions of Christianity must, in many most important and most unexpected particulars, be abandoned as neither tenable nor consonant with Christianity, or else Christianity itself is doubt-less doomed to meet the same overthrow here as on the other side." But even Dr. Blauvelt fails to see that Orthodox Christianity cannot modify itself as he desires without committing suicide.

PROFESSOR TYNDALL'S address before the British Association for the Advancement of Science is likely to arouse no little discussion. "Abandoning all disguise," he says, "the confession that I feel bound to make before you is that I prolong the vision backward across the boundary of the experimental evidence, and discern in that matter which we in our ignorance, and notwithstanding our professed reverence for its creator, have hitherto covered with opprobrium, the promise and potency of every form and quality of life." This is a frank profession of acceptance of the fundamental principle of scientific or philosophic materialism. But Tyndall adds: "The whole process of evolution is the manifestation of a power absolutely inscrutable to the intellect of man. . It is by the operation of an insoluble mystery that life is evolved, species differentiated, and mind unfolded, from their prepotent elements in the immeasurable past. There is, you will observe, no very rank materialism here.... We have the concep-tion that all we see around us and all we feel within us-the phenomena of physical nature as well as those of the human mind-have their unsearchable roots in a cosmical life, if I dare apply the term, an Infinitesimal span of which only is offered to the in-vestigation of man." It is this conception of a cosmical life, of which the life of man is the highest expression and manifestation, that is coming more and more to be emphasized by modern science; and it is this conception that we have unfolded as best we could in "The God of Science." The tendency now freshly illustrated by Professor Tyndall is one which must be studied most attentively by all who would comprehend the real drift of modern thought; and we do not see how any one can fail to perceive that a new kind of theism is germinating in the very heart of that "physical science" of which too many stand In Irrational terror.

BOWTON, Bept. 1, 1873.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of fur investigation of the investigation of the investigation of the investigation interval is will yet be accepted universally by the American people, is the only platform consistent with religious ilberty. A liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals and be got together. Being convinced that the movement to scure compliance with these just "Demands" must arely, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make True Ixvex and the investment of every man and every woman who be lives in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-ported that its grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are to the their organized voice be heard like the sound of any man. TRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

Google Google

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

434

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; F. A. La Grille, Secretaries. L. La Grille, Secretaries. Boeron, Mass.-F. & Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; J. L. Hatch, -M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, Secretary. SAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. TOLEDO, lowA .-- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. VinglAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NZE.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, OLATHE, MICH .- W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETROIT, Secretary. BEREDEVILLE, MICH. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Socretary. OSCIAL, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. Secretary. BATH, ME-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. BERLIN, WIB.-President, J. D. Wallers; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Washingron, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. AUBURN, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN .- President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, JOSEPH, MO .- P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, 8 Becretary, Ext Challes, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALERO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New OutEans, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace.

E. Wallace. Bay Cirv, Mion.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEARFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. BAUE CITY, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cuaradi, Becretary. AUOUSTA, WIS. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vaux, Secretary.

Christian---Extra-Christian---or Anti-Christian?

THE CHRISTIAN'S PLEA.

ADDRESS OF REV. S. E. CALTHROP, AT THE SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION, IN BOSTON, MAY 29, 1874.

One word to enforce what our President has said in regard to this platform. This platform is not, ought not to be, and I trust never will be, a "Christian" platform. To so name it would be an insult to the gentlemen of the Buddhistic, Hindu, Chinese, or Jewish religions whom we ask to meet with us on equal terms. Certainly, also, this platform is not an "Anti-Christian" platform. That would be to omit the word "Free" from its name. It might still be a religious platform from which all Christians were ex-cluded,—a very natural alliance perhaps, but one not universal. It would be an odd thing to have a uni-versal free Congress of Nations Anti-Englisk. And again, this platform is not an "Extra-Christian" plat-form, because that would mean the same thing in a milder form. It would be merely your International One word to enforce what our President has said in sorm, because this would mean the same thing in a milder form. It would be merely your International Congress of Nations with the English, we will say, left out in the cold. The Free Religious platform, then, is a place where the religions of the earth can shake hands and say a mutual "God bless you," and "God sneed." 'God speed,'

"God speed." Now, I am not here to say there is no other religion but the Christian religion: the whole includes the parts. I am simply here to speak for those persons who are born with Christian nerves and constitutions, blood and bones, and under Christian circumstances and traditions. I am here to claim for myself and those born under like circumstances precisely what I claim for my Buddhistic brother; and if his rights on in forance I at and un for him first of all I claim for my Buddhistic brother; and if his rights are in danger, I stand up for him first of all. I should be foolish indeed to suppose that my exotic thought could go right into China and into that East-ern world, and instantly supplant Buddhism, and do for that world what Buddhism does to-day. To do it, a thousand years of labor would hardly suffice; and what, in the meantime, are those millions to do if they now have no light at all? So much, then, by way of neuliming.

what, in the meantime, are those millions to do if they now have no light at all? So much, then, by way of preliminary. And now I ask your thoughtful attention to the reasons why most of us here ought to stand, as I think, where I do. My friend, the Rabbi here, an-swers me that he is glad to stand as I do,-that is, by his own religious name and traditions. It would be a shame for him to refuse the splendid inspiration of his own faith; he knows that inspiration better than I, and be can witness for it better than I, and can cleanse its impurities better than I. It is not my business even to state these impurities and corrup-tions. Let me keep my own door-step clean. But I have a certain religious history, and that history gives me my religious position and duties. I have a uni-versal history, and I have a special history. Let uts first, then, see the universal history; and upon this you will find that all the speakers to-day will be sub-stantially in accord. Paul said, eighteen centuries ago, "The promises of God are yea." In nineteenth century language, that delights in longer words, the same thought is stated by saying the universe is an affirmation and ot a negation. Atheism, pure and is desk made the world, made the universe and the galaxies. You would amile at me, because this desk is a very little thing; but take away that desk, and ay the vacancy made the world. It is still more is problem. Atheism means the human mind giving up in despair and saying, I cannot understand. Atheism says an everlasting No to the world; and so inevitably your answer tends towards Yes. The uni-verse, then, is a reality; to solve it you have got to find a power that shall do all that ever has been done or ever can be done. You have not to give to your

A the ism says an everlasting No to the world; and so ineritably your answer tends towards Yes. The uni-verse, then, is a reality; to solve it you have got to find a power that shall do all that ever has been done or ever can be done. You have got to give to your primal Force, if you will so call it, power enough to keep the galaxies centred; you have got to put into your primal Force mind enough to produce all the minds that have ever lived on the earth and in all worlds; you have got to provide for something capa-ble of evolving angel intelligence, capable of evolving all the poetry, beauty, and wisdom of mankind; you have got mentally to manufacture a power which is as much beyond the finite being of all worlds as man is above the mummy; and when you have got that Power, that Life, I do not care what you call it, pro-vided only that you bow the knee before the infinite beauty, and splendor, and greatness. Now science, with its doctrine of "nothing can come of nothing." is going to reaffirm this grand in-stinct of the heart of man. Yet more: it is going to reaffirm, one by one, the most sacred beliefs and hopes of men; and, in its restatement of them, it is going to prove, as never before, that they rest on the solid rock of reality. Does any one doubt this? Well, see that already science has reaffirmed the trustworthiness of the common sense of unreality over the whole outward universe. But not only does science pronounce the universe to be real in exactly the sense that men and women have always understood it to be real, but it gets rid at once of a thousand perplexing questione by showing that this reality is a reality of growth. Stars grow; galaxtes grow; eans, planets, moons, grow; strata grow; plants, animals, men, grow; thoughts, institutions, grow; and son welt up put into one word, if we can, just what science means by the universe being a reality of growth. Science have and an eal man eurounded: and so science bids un look at each particular limb of man, and each particular organ and function of had only a few hundreds, and my monad ancestor had none at all; and so I hope that my children's children's children will have a hundred thousand or a million. And so on through all the faculties of man. Each is a reality of growth: But now see what we have arrived at. Science says that this real leg, with all its nerves and all its muscles and all its bones, has got secret and subtle connections with real forces outside of it. My limbs bow themselves instinctively to the law of gravita-tion. Space and time have been around organisms since time began, and, at last, nerve connections, in-finite in their number, have been made in bodies, so that we instluctively know we are living in vital con-nection with real space and time. A real something outside, a real faculty inside; a real faculty inside, prophesying a real thing outside. Now this is true of every faculty of man from his foot up to his fore-head. Let us see now what it says here, on the top of the head. There is a real organism up there, isn't there? The doctrine is that uothing can come of nothing. The human mind has got an outward eye, It came of light, the light around every man. The human mind has got what we call an inward eye,-conscience, the sense of justice, love, etc. Is that made by no reality, by sham? The doctrine is that organisms cannot be produced without reality. You can get dream and fancy and myth without it, but legitimate, real organisms, never. And so in me I have an organism which yields a consciourness of truth, justice, spiritual light, beauity, goodness, and a love which lives forever; and I know very well this inside faculty is produced by an Infinite Justice, Truth, and Beneficence outside of man. The reality without must correspond with the reality within. This may perhaps seem vague now, yet some day it will be the simplest matter of science. For if you produce these qualities of yourself, it is inevitable to say that a real thing to produce it from. Where did you get your organ from ? But the real universe produce these quarties or yoursen, it is normalis to say that a real thing is produced in the human race without a real thing to produce it from. Where did you get your organ from? But the real universe keeps enforcing justice, enlarging cience, and ex-panding art. The reason is, the Infinite Mind is getting organized here, and is making its spokesmen and spokeswomen speak with louder tongues. We then together bow—all religions, knowingly or unknowingly, bow—before an Infinite Power which produces the beauty and glory of things. This is the universal element, common to all religions; the ever-lasting foundation on which all religions rest. We must now consider, in the second place, the connection of the universal with the special, and the true relation of species to each other. You may say, if you please, that the special is the universal work-

IO, 1874. ing under conditions, under the limitations of time, place, and circumstance. To bring the limitations place, and circumstance. To bring the limitations place, and circumstance. To bring the limitations appears to be the master difficulty of the universe. When you thick of an infinite power which throws its streams of life and force into you, it is a worder that things do not go up into heaven at once; but when you carefully investigate the intense consertse then, on the other hand, the surprise is that any progress should be made at all. When you thick here did should come from the parent, it is hard to see how new things get into this world at all. Now, here is exactly the difficulty of science. When you this demand: Show us the evolution of a single spe-ciens. Those who have studied species know the in-tense permanence of them: how, after millions of hypers that in religion you can put your finger upon the birth of species, and show eatily how the rogress started, and get some glimpse at its law. The evolutionist tells you that you have to suppose, in the first place, an exceptionally favored locality is then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each here there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and therefore you have to look to your each then there will be a possibility of a movement up-ward; and tional locality and organisms, and then jou get the phenomena of religious progress, or the origin of apecies in religion. When Sextus Tarquin got possession of the town of Gabil he sent a secret messenger to the old catly statesman, his father, and said, "I have got the con-fidence of the people: what am I to do next?" His father did not answer a word, but took the messen-ger lito his garden, and took his cance with him, and came to a beautiful poppy bed. He took his said and snipped off the heads of the tallest poppies; the messenger carried back word of this action to Sextu Tarquin, who understood his father's meaning to be that he was to cut off all the progressive and men powerful minds in the town. He did so; and when was Gabil? And so when Protestantism swept through Europe, and Spain, being the strong town of Catholicism, cut off the tallest poppies its do main, what became of the Reformation there? So you can easily kill out your rising faculty, your nex thought, your forming species. A thousand times a new thought or movement has thus been killed. You perceive, then, the necessity of carfol investi-gation of places where the thoughts had a chance. Now let us look at Judaism. You will see that for one phenomenon it had a race of prophets, and als lief in the living Spirit which comes over and into men as' inspiration. Now, if the Jewish people had cut off all those prophetic heads, where would Jew ish progress have been? Does not this seem to sho one phenomenon it had a race of prophets, and a le-lief in the living Spirit which comes over and into men as'inspiration. Now, if the Jewish people had cut off all those prophetic heads, where would Jew-ish progress have been? Does not this seem to how a little the necessity, as a condition of progress, of able minds, touched with a high idea, before other minds can grasp it? Cut off Phillips, Parker, May, and Garrison from the auti-slavery movement-cut off its great men as fast as the crop comes up,-and where is the republic of to-day? This, then, is he divine place for exceptional minds; and of course the higher the minds the more complete the manifest-tion of their uplifting power. Now, a friend of mise says that the universal in each religion is its sole and essential great truth, and that it shares this with all others; and that the specialty in the religions. Ver well. If each specialty is necessarily antagonistic all other specialties, all special claims are false, or all but one are false, because you cannot have two utc-essarily antagonistic truths. But what are the fut in regard to our special religions? It happens to be a fact that five hundred years before the Christin era a beautiful mind rose up in India and rowed be-fore the universe that he would try to make an end of evil, and pain, and sorrow, and wrong; and the firs that was in his heart amote millions of hearts.md they said, Let us bring pain and wrong to an end by means of justice, and truth, and love to sil. This <text>

Google .

learned Christ, —but that he yearns to do for the Bast: namely to make an end of milesty, pain, and wrong, and to fring in the kingdom of heaven; and the givry of Jesua is that his perconality that and wrong, and to fring in the kingdom of heaven; and the givry of Jesua is that his perconality that an influence so deep, ped forws in millions of Christian branks. If we say, therefore, if your special claim is made in a special claim comes in mediately into conflict with it. But if my special claim shakes hands with 9000 special claim of all religions to the ity of the special claim of all religions to the ity of the special claim of all religions to the ity of the special claim of all religions to the ity of the special claim of all religions to the ity of the other, the grace of God comes to may on the special claim of all religions to the ity of the other. And we find, I think, if we look a little further, where will be an odd thing in the clip of Boaton, if fr. A, B, C, and D, down to X, Y, and X, had no special alists, built and we will be an odd thing in the clip of Boaton, if fr. A, B, C, and D, down to X, Y, and X, had no is pecial alists, built and we will be an odd thing in the clip of Boaton, if yor builtes to be drift of the special duity. Yow, it would be an odd thing in the clip of Boaton, if yor builtes to male the special duity. Yow are the possessor of your own inspiration; it is not my builtess and miles to be drift and fired. You are the possessor of your own inspiration; it is your builtess and miles to be drift. The method is the special duity. We are to religion a the special duity was then be the special duity. We are to this resson one of our free religion a wear. For this resson one of our free religion at the the there and miles to be drift that that has reared us and made in any difference it is glore, and we will be an other the special duity. We are to the special duity was the special duity to the special duity was the develop our own religion at the special duity is the bad of the s sight into Buddha's character, and a carlcature of the character of Jesus. It does not mean sympathy it does not mean our going from our own house of faith to inhabit the houses of our neighbors. You don't shall the house of the dervishes buddha's temples would put you to slee. Nordees free Religion mean pulling down—fraternally, of insue all other religious houses under heaven and insugrating a universal camping out while a new building shall be built. I suppose it must be done free the process. It is very laborious to camp out while and he shall pull down the house of the dervishes of the dervishes of the dervishes of the dervishes or discovers. Well, what then is the task? It is to be suite that we never constitute ourselves examining the laber of lowes his Chinese or Hindus just as much as he doel loves his Chinese or Hindus just as much as he doel has the the sole. Norder the process, but how exolic they would be when the low on the do it, so that we never patronize the Spirit-born; it is to be suite that we never patronize the Spirit-born; it is to be suite they the or hearter, booking just like everybody else. Nordees free friends stop where they below. They would have never heart hey how a the derker, on while you to have and their own costume and in their own costume and in their own ensure they would be they tried from our fathers in the spirit; and is not now, is all be done's the message they to ophen when the great religions of the world shall no twe have either the proces the marke in creates, but

[For THE INDEX.] THE BELIGION OF PAIN AND THE RE-LIGION OF PLEASURE.

LIGION OF PLEASURE. Matthew Arnold, in his essay on "Pagan and Medi-wal Religious Sentiment," after speaking of the "Christian extreme, the heart and imagination sub-jugating the senses and understanding," quotes the following passage from Heine:— "All through the Middle Age these sufferings, this fever, this over-tension lasted; and we moderns still feel in all our limbs the pain and weakness from them. Even those of us who are cured have still to live with a hospital-atmosphere all around us, and find ourselves as wretched in it as a strong man among the sick. Some day or other, when humanity shall have made their peace together, the factitious quarrel which Christianity has cocked up between the facter and happier generations, offspring of un-fettered unions that will rise up and bloom in the atmosphere of a religion of pleasure, will smile sadly, when they think of their poor ancestors whose life was passed in melancholy abstinence from the joys of this beautiful earth, and who faded away into spectres from the mortal compression which they put upon the surance I say it, our descendants will be fairer and happier than we are; for I am a bellever in progress, and I hold God to be a kind being who intended man to be happ." Mr. Arnold goes on to say that, while the sentiment happier than we are; for I an a believer in progress, and I hold God to be a kind being who intended man to be happy." Mr. Arnold goes on to say that, while the sentiment of a religion of pleasure has in it much that is natu-ral, still its fitted only for a world whose inhabitants are never either sick or sorry; that it cannot abide the test to which a life of hardship or suffering must put it; that it is powerless to help or console; that the sentiment of a religion of sorrow has a vast advantage over it as a stay for the mass of mankind, as some-thing by which they can live and die. But if it is not a religion of pleasure which we not accept to-day, neither—far from us be the thought—is it a religion of pain. Since time began, the danger for humanity has always been that of nunning to extremes. Generation after generation has passed, balancing itself on one or the other verge of thought, and only modern ideas move along the intermediate spaces, and find within them satisfying pause. We speak the word "Greece," and before our mind's eye appear its sun-crowned hills and plains; its seas sparkling with a light that never was before or since; its theatres holding entranced audi-ences; beyond the stage a natural scenery; upon it actors uttering the immortal sentences of the great dramatists; its beautiful women, in graceful, tralling procession of philosophers, statesmen, orators, and picates; ins warriors and heroes bay-filleted; its long procession of philosophers, statesmen, orators, and procession of philosophers, statesmen, orators, and picates impulsively: "Oh, to have been a Greek! Theirs was the only life, theirs the only religion."

<text><text><text><text><text>

dened by the promise of new dawns. To live in harmony with Nature, and with knowl-edge and appreciation of her laws.—that is the re-ligion of Nature, the religion of the future. It, in its turn, may pass and be no more; but those that live by it will be harmonicus, healthful beings, strong and cheerful, and, if not rapturously happy, patient and content. With this religion one may be sick or sorry from the thousand ills to which mortali-ty is helr; but his wounds, like those of Milton's arch-angels, will soon heal, and for the same reason—be-cause he is of the divine essence.

cause he is of the divine essence. Such a religion is often accused of being a purely selfah one. No one can accept it, people say, save those who have a natural love of beauty, an instinctive comprehension of Nature, and something, at least, of the old Greek temperament. These go on their way rejoicing, with no thought for the millions shut out by circumstances, by privation, and misery, and dis-ease, from the benefits they enjoy. But 1 do not be-lieve that it is any more selfah than any other form of belief. No individual can help trying to perfect himself before he undertakes to perfect others; and he who strives to make his own life a harmonions note in the great aymphony of Nature must inevita-bly do his utmost to ameliorate the conditions of others, and to bring all existence into tune.

There are some questions the conditions of others, and to bring all existence into tune. There are some questions which can never be an-swered, some ideas which cannot be grasped by mor-tal mind. Who or what ever solved the riddle of the unequal distribution of fortune? Who or what shall answer the one question which, like the skeleton at the feast, intrudes into the most beautiful scheme of life, and forces itself through the perfect purpose of the universe, the fatal question—cui bono ? But this question, terrible to sensitive organizations, and only to be set aside by abeer force of will, is applicable everywhere. What would be the use of eternities spent in praising? What the use of immortality de-voted to the acquisition of learning, or to endless ca-reers through worlds and spheres, since the sum of eternal, how the mind shrinks from such endless activity, and turns to the idea of final rest with relief and gratitude!

and gratitude! Since we are not great enough to comprehend the use of a universe self-poised and self-contained, de-veloping in regular order and keauty when some must die that many may live—each one of us with his place and part in the whole, whether his part be that of the stunted apple or the perfect tree,—since we are not great enough to comprehend the use of this, let us at least assume that there is one; let us patiently do our nimosi to become the perfect tree, yet nobly resigned if the hand of fate snatches us, an unformed fruit, from the bough. J. SWAMPSCOTT, Mass.

Google Google

FOR THE INDEX.] TRE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE AT HART-FORD.

A NEW DOCTRINE OF REGENERATION.

BY PROFESSOR W. D. GUNNING.

BY PROFESSOR W. D. GUNNING. Our text is a paper written in German, although not in the German language, by Prof. Elsberg. Prof. Elsberg's paper carried a heavy title: Regen-eration, or the Conservation of the Organic Molecule : a Contribution to the Doctrine of Evolution. We have learned about "regeneration" in the Shorter Catechism. Through Spencer and Darwin and Huxley we have heard something about evolu-tion. From some of our theologians we have heard that regeneration does not go with evolution; that if you cleave to the one you must forsake the other; that if you have been evolved you cannot be regener-ated. We are afraid that Elsberg's thesis would force a new reading on our catechism. Let us see how it would run as amended :-"Question.-What is regeneration ? "Answer.-Regeneration is the conservation of or-ganic plastidules." Shade of Jonathan Edwards, has it come to that!

Shade of Jonathan Edwards, has it come to that!

Shade of Jonathan Edwards, has it come to that! Let us consider these "plastidules." A very mysterious thing is the genesis of a new be-ing. Nearly three hundred years ago Montaigne wrote in quaint old French: "What monster is that, that seminal speck (cette poutte de semenee) from which we grow, that it can carry in itself not only the bodily form but the thoughts and inclinations of the par-ents?" Only a few months ago Heckel took up the same strain. "We reflect with wonder," he saya, "on the fact that the simple ovicell and the seme-fila-ment so accurately transmit the individual vital, mo-lecular movement of two individual that their mi-nutast physical and mental peculiarities reappear in the offspring."

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

authors have called 'abbreviated heredity,' and must be understood as the running out and final cutting off of the organic plastidules of the old man aforesaid." Many facts in biology, dark hitherto, are brought by this view into light. Two fundamental laws are heredity and adapta-tion. Heredity is the conservation of organic force and form by the transmission from generation to gen-eration of unmodified plastidules. Adaptation is the effort of an organism to adjust itself to its environ-ment. It includes growth, and denotes all the changes which occur in the being from inception to death. In the depths of the ocean, where the environment does not change, adaptation is at the minimum, and heredity at the maximum. Bathybius, it is presumed, differs not at all from the bathybius which lay on the bottom of the Huronian sea in the very morning of organic life.

organic life. In zones of latitude where annual alternations of

In zones of latitude where annual alternations of heat and cold are most extreme, or where the land surface, undergoing secular changes of level, induces secular changes of climate, heredity is at the mini-mum, and adaptation at the maximum. The mam-mals and reptiles of to-day have only a remote resem-blance to those which peopled the lake borders of Wyoming and Colorado in the age of the earlier and middle tertiary. And yet, so obvious is the genetic connection between the past and the present that sci-ence has chosen names for many of the Colorado spe-cies, which designate them as the ancestors of certain living species.

ence has chosen names for many of the Colorado spe-cies, which designate them as the ancestors of certain living species. The transmutation which an organism has under-gone is a complicated resultant. It embraces many factors, "the struggle for existence," and all the in-fluences of environment. If in the abysmal world we find persistence of type, it is because one class of factors (change of environment) disappears, and the other class (struggle for existence) appears at mini-mum. In low organisms (and such, in general, are those of the sea-bottom), even growth implies no modification of cells. The organism is built up sim-ply by a multiplication of cells, and none of the cells which pass from parent to offspring are modified by the process of growth into nerve or tissue or fibre. The plastidules of the Huronian bathybus may exist unchanged in the bathybus of to-day. If in the higher organisms we find less persistence of type, it is because all the factors of evolution are present and dominant. The body is no longer cellu-lar. Ovicell and sperm-filament, with most of the plastid molecules they contain, in the process of growth are modified and transformed. Fewer ances-tral plastidules pass into the progeny. Heredity is sooner "abbreviated," the ancestral line sooner cut of. A man is farther removed from his great-great-grandfather than an oyster.

(For THE LNDEL.)

WOMAN'S BIGHT TO THE SUFFRAGE.

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX :

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:-I sent to you three questions, asking in substance whether anybody might rightfully be refused the suf-frage, provided the suffrage is a natural right; if so, upon what grounds; and how, on grounds of expedi-ency, you could reconcile your advocacy of woman suffrage with your hostility to the Christian Amend-ment, in case you believe the suffrage not a natural right, since Christian women will most of them favor that amendment.

at amendment. Your rebuke, implied in the sentence-"It seems four reduce, implied in the sentence—"It seems atrange that so clear and simple a principle should not be better understood," at the end of your com-ments on these questions, would furnish a molive, if one were otherwise wanting, for offering the follow-ing considerations in relation to the matters involved in them.

To svoid all chance of misapprehension, let me say at the outset that I make no discrimination against against the enlightenment which is the "breath of life" of free institutions. Indeed, there are numls-takable indications, in many quarters, of the coming of the "irrepressible conflict" between ecclesiasticism and free government. Who can doubt that, if the Christian Amendment party succeeds, free press and free speech will be next assalled? The same argu-ments that are serving in favor of the proposed Amendment will then apply against enlightenment by publications and discussions, and with the added force resulting from their nearer and (to large classes of the people) more obvious application. To quote of the people more between the as in Germany:

<text><text><text><text>

ments that are serving in favor of the propeed Amendment will then apply against enlightement by publications and discussions, and with the added force resulting from their nearer and (to large classes your own words as pertinent here as in Germany: "Why it at self-preservation as persecution?" I am willing, carcious, to yield the same likety which I demand for myself. I will yield even more. But I don't demand likety to deatroy likety. For myself, I say to the Christian Amendment party, "You may take away my right to vote because I am an infide, or an athelets, if you so decree, and I will offer no physical resistance. If you leave to me free-dom of speech and press, I can wait in the hope and confident expectation of personding write. I can have no such hope. I am then totally and hopelesiy disarmed. I may then become a perpetual victim. There will be, then, no appeal but to force." 4. Now can any clear-minded man beliere that force, war, which respect an or privilege, and no right, would be justifiable under such circumstances, in order to regain liberty, but that now, in time of peec, such a war itself, to withhold a privilege of doubtid expediency, is wholly inercueable? Pardon me; the sentiment is too sickly for earnest mer. What! The liberty gained by so many centuries of suffices, of matrydoms, surrendered while means for its defence remain! The past and future alls forbid. Besides, what assure for freedom equal by itak which we now possess, a like emergency will not require a like surrender? Why not advance? In the "right" of Y andals to destroy more ascred than my right to preserve? Is it hours all foronist four-tions have regained a measure of freedom self-inmo-lations have regained a measure of genous tode-fend the citadel, but a crime to guard the formier Must I respect the right of another, yet be free to trample upon my own? Is here any difference here except in the victure? Surely, it will not be seriously urged that one may not proteet the right by prevet-ing the wrong? Most clearly, there at best, of only average goodness. Surely, the de-potism of the best of our fellows would be preferable to the despotism of the average one. 6. "Whether they use or abuse it," say you? In-deed, why don't we give the ballot to "hores," but that they would make no rational, that is, no proper, use of it? Whether life itself is a right, or not, de-pends upon the manner of its employument; whether usefully and beneficently, or in rapine and murder. It ceases to be a right, when it is perverted to a cr-tain degree. So of liberty: we deny it to the hard-ened criminal so soon as our officer can apprehend him. So of the "pursuit of happiness," It is a right only so long as the happiness pursued is legitimate. One whose happiness consists, as Jesse Pomeroy's, in mutilation and murder of helpless children, is not for public uses, and it deprives my spendthrift neigh-bor of the control of his property. The conviction is incradicable that it is right use which determines right.

right. 7. You say : "There is no more reason for disfranchising them (the women favorers of the Christian Amendment) than for disfranchising the male advo-cates of that pernicious measure." Quite true. I chaing them (the women havores of the male advo-cates of that pernicious measure." Quite true. I never thought the contrary. But the question of dis-franchieling men is not now in issue before the Amer-ican people. When it is, it will be time to consider whether we will require, on pain of disfranchiesment, an "iron clad oath," by every voter, that he has no wish, or intention, to destroy or abridge freedom of discussion; or in some other manner guard againal the catastrophe of such destruction or abridgement. But the question of enfranchising women, large num-bers of whom will, as soon as opportunity offers, use that franchise to strike down free discussion, is before them. For one, till otherwise advised. I must, for that reason, conscientiously say NO to their request. 8. Will it be said that I am intolerant? Granted; but it is in favor of liberty that I am so. Intolerance per se cannot be objected against. My alternatives liberty. The result will be as much my act in one case as in the other. 9. You east touch that '' liberty must perish in this liberty. The result case as in the other.

case as in the other. 9. You say truly that "Liberty must perish in this country, unless the majority of the people, men and women together, love it enough to preserve it." I love it. To contribute to preserve it is what I aim to do by my refusal to confer power upon its enemies. While, therefore, I would save liberty from fanatics, I would save the fanatics from themselves. 10. In brief, the right of suffrage not inhering, but being dependent upon fitness, in the individual, it is just and expedient, when practicable, to refuse it to persons who are unfit. That the mass of women are unft, by reason of their intolerance of rational lib-erty, is evinced by their affiliation and sympathy with systems and measures which are hostile to it. The manner of the presentation of their demand for the suffrage is not such that discriminations can be made to favor of those of them who are fit; therefore, it is the right and the duty of the friends of freedom to oppose the movement to give the suffrage indiscrimi-nately to women. Joins FitANCIS SMITH. WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 18, 1874.

Google

[If our first quoted remark seemed a "rebuke," we

5

45

14923

1244

「日本をな

0 6210

20.02

apologize for it. No "rebuke" was intended. In fact, the original occasion of our note was lost eight of in the thoughts that came into mind as we wrote, Mr. Smith's questions deserved only the most respectful attention, and we meant to give it; and we cannot forbear to express our great admiration of the ability and dignified tone of the above article. Our reply to its various points will be found in the editorial columns.-ED.]

[For THE INDEX.] PLYMOUTH CHURCH AND MOBOCHACY.

BY CHARLES D. B. MILLS

BY CHARLES D. B. MILLS. The late treatment of Mr. Francis D. Moulton at the meeting of Plymouth Church on Friday evening, Angost 23, is such as may well make the cars to tin-de and the meeting of the Investigating Committee was to be presented and acted upon. He had, as appears, fail right to be there, as he was and for a long time have the report of the society. Quite civilly and very quietly, he requested of the Chairman, by a note sent bim, to permit him a word in the course of ker which has be deemed, were aside from the accorded to him. Mr. K. W. Raymond, in a speech which throughout must have been charged with ve-hemance and strong partisanship, made violent per-sonal assult upon Mr. Moulton, branding him with treachery and a long course of mean, malignant iters, clamoring boisterously, "Put him out! Put him outper at Mr. Moulton, Stale, do they seem to baye butter "liar." The crowd became excited and vio-ing, Mr. Moulton, side, do they seem to baye butter at Mis." De to be be as the sectified with the clamoring boisterously, "Put him out! Put him outper at Mr. Moulton's side, do they seem to baye butter of the source of pollecemen, who parts and med the meeting, while the Dorology was

<text><text><text><text>

Tilton and Moulton are pursued and denounced as conspirators and miscreants unfit to live. Heaven grant that this strange and (I fear) wanton infatua-tion and perverseness, may not be the precursor, and also in large degree the procuring cause, of a like ter-rible retributive visitation as was that of 1859! It is time for all to speak. Every right-minded man and woman, every friend of justice and the de-cencies of behavior, must take position in this regard by the side of Moulton. He stands in the deadly im-minent breach; he is doing battle, and that against fearful odds, for the right. Honor to him for his stands determined at every cost to abide by and maintain it. May God help him! And Henry Ward Beecher, who, if there be truth at all in the solemn statement of Mr. Moulton, in the sworn declaration of Theodore Tilton, strengthened as they both are by points in evidence patent, unde-niable, and of very positive indication, is a criminal, a malefactor against virtue, soclety, the public weal, beyond any other of this generation, -this man is to go forth still as a public teacher, more ilonized, be-praised, and run after than ever before; is to appear the coming winter in the large lecture halls through our country, hired at fabuious prices, to instruct the young men and women of the tand in the principles of morality, and the methods of the true and worthy life! What shall we think of the Christianity, aye, of the professed morality of a community in which such life! What shall we think of the Christianity, aye, of the professed morality of a community in which such things are possible? Theodore Tilton testifies of Mrs. Tilton that she had so admired and adored, that erewhile Beecher had become verily Jesus Christ him-self to her. Have the body of the American people so suffered illusion that to their eye also he is that, or some approximation to it? If so, a moral corrup-tion and debauching, not less but more dreadful than can have befallen her, awaits them. STRACUSE, N.Y., Sept. 2, 1874.

TAX EXEMPTION.

TAX EXEMPTION. Tombiless one of the questions of the future, a question sure to awaken an active controversy, and one which may possibly be made a feature of political property of churches and charitable and educational institutions from taxation. If it were possible for this question to be precipitated upon us prematurely, and before we are ready for its settlement, it could be some of the corporations and institutions which are so peculiarly favored. The city of Dubuque, Iowa, fast recently afforded a case in point. The Roman Catholic Bishop owns in that city, among other prop-erty, a block known as Bishop's Block, which is cor-ert with residences and business houses. Claiming this the solet, as the property of an ecclesiastical or path, and was sold to a man named Hintrager. The Bishop, in his endeavor to avoid the legitimate mayment of taxes, has simply overreached himself, and the chances now are that he will have to part in the chances no was that he will have to part in the chances no was that he will have to part at the block in order to redeem the remainder. Another illustration of the same matter we find in decision just rendered at Chicago by the County fourt. The Northweitern University owns several handred acress of land in the county, a considerable indiced acress of land in the county, a considerable indiced acress of land in the city limits, and is built over with business blocks. A large area of the isotic tits occupanta, and has never paid any taxes. The word is the occupant, and has never paid any taxes, the area were levied against these lands, their payment portion of which lies within the city limits, and is built over with business blocks. A large area of the city of Evanaton is also held by the University and leased to its occupants, and has never paid any taxes. Taxes were levied against these lands, their payment was resisted by the University, and the County Treas-urer claimed judgment. The decision of the court sustains this claim on the ground that exemption from taxation, according to the constitution, is to be made in accordance with the general law, and that this law expressly restricts the exemption to property used exclusively for the purposes of education, etc., and excludes property which is held for profit. The University has appealed to the Supreme Court, and the whole question will be re-argued there. The ulti-mate decision will be awaited with considerable inter-est, as the question in this way brought to an issue is one of the utmost importance. Without reference to the main question as to whether any property whatever which derives benefit from public protection and improvements abould be exempt from bearing its share of the public burdens, it must be apparent that such exemption, if granted, should be restricted to property actually in use for the purposes indicated. Any corporation or institution which seeks to stretch the meaning of the statute, and actropy over the exemption to property held purely for profit and income, plunders the public pures to just that extent to which it is successful, and runs a risk of precipitating upon itself and upon all other institutions similarly situated the withdrawal of its peculiar privileges. There is no being in the world more democratic in his tastes than the tax-gatherer, and the community is coming to look with increasing jealousy and hostility puon everything which has the aspect of an unequal distribution of public burdens. —Boston Journal.

"How DISMAL YOU look!" said a bucket to his

"How DISMAT, YoU look!" said a bucket to his companion, as they were going to the well. "Ah!" replied the other. "I was reflecting on the naelessness of our being filled; for, let us go away ever so full, we always come back empty." "Dear mel how strange to look at it in that way!" said the bucket. "Now I enjoy the thought that, however empty we come, we always go away full. Only look at it in that light, and you'll be as cheerful as I am." as I am.

Hoetry.

LIKE ME.

437

BV MRS. M. P. DUTTS.

What would bappen, do you suppose, If the mignometic should say to the rose : "The pride of roses I hate to see: Why don't you keep near the ground like me?"

What if the rose should say to the phlox: My form and color are Orthodox To please your Maker, you've got to be Precisely in all respects like me."

What if a grape should say to a pear: "Why are you flaunting about up there? Beware of swinging alone and free; You ought to cling to a trellis, like me."

What if a river should say to a rill: "If you weren't too lazy, you'd turn a mill. Study my method, and try to be A rushing, roaring river like me."

What if a swan should say to a crow: "You belong to the race of so-and-so; It's a deadly sin for you to be free; Your only hope is in serving me.

What if a goose should teach a wron, Or an eagle try to follow a ben! What if the monkeys should all agree That there ought to be uniformity!

What if a man should say to another: "Differ with me and you're not my brother; I have the truth, as the oracles tell: Go with me, or you'll go to hell !

-Seribner's for July.

.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern, Richard B. Westbrook	New York City,	One sl	hare,
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.			108
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	Two		200
Chas. W. Story,		One		100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Boston, Mass.		-	100
Jacob Hoffner,	Detroit, Mich.	Five		500
	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.		×1	100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.			104
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mich.			100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.			100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.			100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass,			100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.		44	100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.			100
Mrs. A. L. Bichmond,	Lowell, Mass.	1.44		100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson.	Lypp, Mass,			100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, B.I.	44		100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.1.		44
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.1.			100
Mrs. E. B. Chase,		Two	-	200
	Valley Falls, R.1.			100
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, R.I.	One		100
James Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.			100
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.		.86	100
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 6.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 5.
R. H. Hubbard, 25 cts.; Wm. Pfaffiln, $2; H. Greene, $5; Henry Schnull, $4; Mrs. S. M. Carroll, $1.69; Sawteile and Humphery, $125; Hettle Bateman, $2; Chas. M. Weather-ber, $3; A. Eriebach, 75 cts., Franklin Muir, $3; Edward Donney, $1.59; W. H. Fitch., 17, $3; W. B. Kingeler, $5; S. M. Headle, $3; L. C.Childs, $3; Ther. L. West, $1; S. G. Haynes, 50; D. C. Potter, 30 cts.; S. S. A. Haynes, $2; Hennet: Allen, $3; J. Berry, $2; W. J. Gill, $5; Wakson Gill, $3; Pulaski Antar, $3; C. C. Ranebaci, $6,50; D. M. Jenkins, $40; S. F. Kennedy, $6; C. C. Ranebaci, $6,50; D. M. Jenkins, $40; S. F. Vennetiy, $6; C. C. Ranebaci, $5,75; Heury Pearson, $2; J. C. Euwer, $2; W. J. Gill, $5; Winson Gill, $3; J. South Wead, $6,52; W. W. J. Gull, $5; W. R. Connigham, $2,69; A. L. Walte, $2,50; G. A. Koloe, $4,22; J. Acob Mueller, $3; F. L. Kessler, $3,75; T. B. Forbush, $3,75; J. Acob Mueller, $3; F. L. Kessler, $3,75; T. B. Forbush, $3,76; G. W. Yaead, $5,25; W. W. Laundon, $1,75; Y. Mr. K. Cannigham, $2,69; A. L. Walte, $3,50; Robert Law, $7,50; Max Juug-$101, $2,75; John Hamm, $7; Wm. Peter, $4; E. W. Koch, $9; J. C. Klotz, $4,30; George Jerome, $5,50; D. J. Davison, $7,50; D. V. Bell, $3,52; Charles Robinson, $3,52; O. A. Rog-er, $6 cts.; S. S. Fernald, $3; K. Kohler, $3; As C. Pierce, $3,76; James Purinton, $4,50; John Faxter, $6; F. F. Ficher, $3,76; James Purinton, $4,50; John Faxter, $6; F. Her, C. Neville, $1,80; David Forter, $3; D. S. Grandin, 10 cts.; 4, Judd, $2; Andrew J. High, $1,75; Herman Lieber, $6; H. C. Neville, $1,80; David Forter, $5,76; M. A. Moore, $5,55; A. K. Loring, 20,55; Joharlas, K. K. Channett, $5; A. Hop-$5,55; A. K. Loring, 20,55; Joharlas, K. W. A. Moore, $5,55; M. W. P. F. Kina, $1,40; J. S. Ford, $5, S. W. A. Moore, $5,55; M. W. P. F. Kina, $1,40; J. S. Ford, $5, S. K. M. Moore, $5,55; M. S. M. D. Bardwell, $5, S. J. H. Allen, $5; A. Stopp Maxkins, $1,60; George W. Piper, $2,10; F. W. A. Moore, $5,55; M. M. G. Gorge, W. Piper, $2,10; F. W. Man-$5,

All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other roceipt sent unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.

N. B.—Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit.

N. B .- Orders for Tracts or single numbers of Tracts part which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be otherwise filled to the same amount without further notice.

N.B .-- Postage on THE INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery.

N. B .- When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remittance as exactly as possible.

N. B .- Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your INDEX mail-tag, and report at once any error in either.

The Inder. PUBLISHED EVERY THUBBOAT

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible, it recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Articles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES.-The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a convenient distance of Boston.

THE Independent has concluded to class the "advocates of the Religious [Christian] Amendment," as well as the readers of THE INDEX, with "the unlettered sceptics of the West." This sly thrust, which is so worded as not to be noticed by a casual reader, seems to be prompted by a statement in the Christian Statesman of August 29 that the "frank, unconcealed assaults [of THE INDEX] on Christianity and the Christian features of our government secure on every hand a measure of respect which the Independent, nominally a Christian journal, but really following the same flag at a safer distance, will never win."

ONE OF THE most esteemed citizens of New York State has an indignant article in another column on the mobbing of Mr. Francis D. Moulton. It should be read by every one. Yet it must be said that Mr. Moulton's intemperate language, notwithstanding the provocation of it, could hardly have produced any other effect at such a time. It takes a better head than ours to discover the truth in this whole business, and it is too much to say that Mr. Moulton is ''doing battle for the right'' beyond a doubt. Somebody is doing desperate battle for the wrong, and uncertainty as to the wrong-doer is no proof of demoralization anywhere. But we can see our way clear to unqualified condemnation both of Mr. Moulton's passionate word and the mob's passionate reply.

FROM THE just published Proceedings of the Seventh Annual Meeting of the Free Religious Association, we propose to reprint (by permission) the three addresses by Messrs. Calthrop, Higginson, and Abbot, on the true relation of Free Religion to Christianity. The first of these is published to-day, and will be followed by the other two in their order. Mr. Calthrop's plea for Christianity, though brilliant and able, as was to be expected, would have been more satisfactory to us, if what he defended had been really Christianity; but he defende a view of his own which he calls Christianity its real power in the world. We wish that a Catholic could have been found to plead the cause of Christianity, for he alone could really speak for it.

THE MAN who wrote this paragraph in the Brooklyn Catholic Review of September 1, and did not know that he was firing off a blunderbuss of sober argument at a bubble of sheer fun, must have ears as long as the Atlantic cable : "The Boston INDEX publishes a little paragraph in which it affirms that the Catholic Review compliments it with the title of the 'Sacred Congregation of the Index.' What makes the thing amusing is that this egregious blunder immediately precedes another paragraph in which the editor dissents from the view of a contemporary who says that 'patient study and thought' are 'precisely what the Free Religionists lack,' and claims that for his own part, at least, although the results of his study and thought may not be valuable, their patience he would 'modestly testify to.' How much patient study would have been required to ascertain the fact that there is in Rome a Sacred Congregation of the Index,' a part of whose duties might be, were the Boston INDEX less ridiculous or sufficiently influential and well known, to indicate it as undesirable and unsafe reading ?"

"WOMAN'S BIGHT TO THE SUFFEAGE." An unusually vigorous and by no means hackneyed argument by Mr. Smith against woman sufneyed argument by Mr. Smith against woman suffrage will be found in another column under the above heading. It seems to demand a reply point by point, and we will try and do it justice. 1. Because we admit that the right of suffrage does

1. Because we shint that the right of annuage or on the provided and the right of annuage of the provided and the provided

The difference between rights which inhere in the individual and rights which inhere in society as such seems here to be overlooked; and it is fundamental to our position on this question. The individual's right to exist is contained in the very fact of his existence; it naturally inheres in him as an individual being until he forfeits it in some way (for we hold that no right whatever is absolutely "inalienable"). But the individual's right to vote is not contained in the mere fact of his own existence, since he can be conceived to exist alone, in which case suffrage is meaningless. His right to vote, however, is contained in the fact that many individuals co-exist in such close relations that the acts of each affect every other. In other words, the right of each individual to vote is contained in the bare fact of society's existence; for no reason can be assigned why (other things being equal) one individual has not as good a right to influence the decision of questions of common interest as any other individual. In the absence of all "divine right to rule" on the part of a favored individual, all the individual members of society have an equal right to decide them, since all have an equal interest at stake. Some special reason must be shown why any particular individual should not be allowed to vote; the presumption is wholly on his side, until rebutted by some positive evidence that his right has lapsed. In this manner we deduce the right of suffrage, not from the nature of the individual as such, but from the nature of society itself, as composed of a number of individuals: all being pecessarily supposed to have equal rights until disparity of rights has been fairly proved. But all rights are "natural" which result from natural relations, or the nature of things; and for this reason we consider the right to vote as a natural right, resulting, however, from the nature of society rather than from the nature of the individual.

Mr. Smith will perceive, therefore, that we are not "both upon grounds of expediency." We, at least, are upon grounds of natural right-natural right which is absolute until proved by special reasons to have lapsed in special cases. Woman's right to vote. then, if we are correct, resta solely upon the fact of her membership in society, as an individual whose right to vote cannot be proved to have lapsed. While Mr. Smith apparently holds that fitness must be proved before the suffrage can be granted, we hold that fitness must be disproved before the suffrage can be taken away: a most important distinction, since it throws the burden of proof on the opponents, not the advocates, of woman suffrage. Democratic or free institutions are all built on the assumption of equal human rights; and whoever would introduce discriminations is bound to show good reasons for them.

2. We "insist upon a degree of [mental and moral] fitness," as a condition of voting, because man is a mental and moral being who is not born full-grown, but rather as an infant, whose faculties very slowly develop. All the interests of society being ultimately mental or moral, the absence of either mental or moral fitness is precisely the evidence required to suspend the exercise of a particular individual's right to vote. Hence children, idiots, lunatics, and criminals are disfranchised. The requisite degree of fitness should be determined by a purely utilitarian standard: but women as a class cannot be disfranchised, unless it can be proved that no woman attains to this requisite degree of fitness. Mr. Smith very excellently states the true principle as to fitness: "Its minimum must not be less than sufficient to insure free institutions against destruction by unfitness," To exclude women as such, therefore, from the polls, it must be shown that all women are unfit to vote to a degree below this minimum of fitness. But Mr. Smith concedes that this cannot be shown, when he says: "Let me say at the outset that I make no discrimination against women as women." 3 and 4. Mr. Smith's argument under his third and fourth heads is directed, not towards the disfranchisement of women as such, but towards the dis. franchisement of the Christian Amendment party, as proving themselves by their very enterprise to be below the requisite minimum of intelligence or moral fitness. His reasoning is so forcible that we confess it has momentarily staggered us. Certainly the success of that enterprise would be the death of republicanism; and the attempt to make it successful is, in fact, the worst species of treason against the republic. If it was justifiable to disfranchise Southern rebels (and we never doubted that their rebellion was a crime for which disfranchisement was the mildest possible penalty), we cannot deny that the attempt to carry the Christian Amendment by force would demand at least as severe a penalty. But if the second sionists had confined their efforts to appeal and pesceable persuasion, we could not justly have dis-franchised them; speech must be kept free, even if irrational or treasonable, so long as treason or anreason does not take up arms or proceed to overt acts; even solicitations to national suicide, so long as no attempt to commit national murder is made, must be tolerated. Similarly, so long as the Christian Amendment party operate by peaceable means, no matter how treasonable their enterprise is in fact, they cannot be disfranchised without violation of our own principles. As a matter of expediency, such a course would be a great blunder, giving the Christianizen all the glory and prestige of martyrdom for their cause. Let it be remembered that free discussion always helps our side, not theirs, in this great controversy between Christianity and Freedom; and the victory will assuredly be ours, if we lose not faith in the weapons of Freedom. Perhaps it is true that the Christianizers prove themselves, by their very undertaking, to be really unfit for suffrage in a democratic republic; nevertheless, in advance of some actual crime against the government, we cannot justly disfranchise them, any more than we could disfranchise a man whom we suspected of meditating burglary or murder. Wait till the crime is committed, before you proceed to punish it. Criminals may not role; but they must be actual, not prospective, criminals. Let us defend ourselves against the suspected crime by such means as are truly republican, and not stoop to "fight the devil with fire."

5. We cannot admit that "the power to rule best is a 'divine right to rule,' whether the sovereign be king or people." That smacks too much of Carlyle, who is no true democrat. It is necessary to-day to adhere inflexibly to the equal rights of mankind, and to carry out our great democratic experiment, in spite of all buffeting winds and waves. Give us no "despotism of intelligence and virtue"! We want here no oligarchy of saints or philosophers; we want to make the people themselves "virtuous and intelligent," and the only way to do it is to throw them upon themselves. If they blunder, let them smart for it, and be wiser next time. If we put our standard of fitness so high as to rule out the great bulk of the people, freedom will languish and die. No! Let us stand by our ship, and, if need be, go down with it to the bottom. Better die with falth in man in our hearts than live to have faith only in the few!

6. The people to-day wofully "abuse" the ballotno doubt of that! So every one of us more or less "abuses" the freedom he would die to defend. If only "right use determines right," what right has any man? Let us rather say, imperfect use must precede right use; otherwise, no man will ever possess a right.

7. Mr. Smith very frankly admits that there is no more reason for disfranchising the female than the male advocates of the Christian Amendment, but urges that the men, being already enfranchised, cannot be disfranchised, while it is still possible to prevent the great accession of strength to that treasonable enterprise which would result from indiscriminately enfranchising women. This, we frankly allow, is the only argument against woman suffrage which has ever weighed much with us; and we concede its full force. There can be little doubt, we think, that a majority of women could easily be persuaded to favor and vote for the Christian Amendment; while a respectable minority would doubtless vote against it. The great probability that a formidable increase of the ecclesiastical party would result from the imme-diate establishment of woman suffrage has conduced to a feeling of resignation over its postponement; yet, when called to vote directly on that issue, it would be impossible for us to deny our profoundest convictions of right by voting against her. It is not our habit to count consequences in a question of equal justice; and so long as Christianizing men have the suffrage, we cannot help saying that Christianizing women have exactly as good a right to it as We must put our confidence in the common they. sense of the whole people, men and women together. It is onr own individual duty to vote as we believe; we believe that women, as women, have the same right to the ballot that men have, as men; and, break what may, we can never vote otherwise. The peril to liberty that would undoubtedly result from the universal suffrage of women might be the very provocative that is needed to rouse the liberals from their present dangerous torpor: who knows? Be this as it may, what have we to trust in, if we cannot trust in the sternal expediency of justice? For one, we stand by that till the crack of doom.

(Biguard b) Google

438

8. The question of "intolerance" in the abstract is not specially interesting in this connection: the question of equal rights is the one now under debate. Are we not all in favor of equal rights?

9. There is no way so sure to "save fanatics from themselves," and win them to the love of liberty, as that of showing them how tender we can be of their rights, even when they trample upon ours. If there is anything omnipotent in this universe, it is justice.

10. It is not enough, in order to justify withholding the ballot from women, to show that the "mass of women" are unfit to exercise it: it must be shown that all women are unfit. Otherwise we shall be withholding the ballot from those who, by our own showing, are fit for it. The one thing we will never be a party to is the doing of evil that good may come; and all our radicalism is smoke if it does not teach that principle. Sooner or later the ballot will be given to women, as it has been to negroes; certainly as large a proportion of women are fit for it as of negroes; and does Mr. Smith regret the establishment of negro suffrage? Some do; but we do not, despite all the incidental evils that have followed in its wake. For America is the Land of Equal Rights; and we see no hope of its future but by holding up that banner with steadfast courage and unflinching adherence to the logic of liberty. "Hoc signo vinces!"

P. B. A. ANNUAL REPORT.

The Report of the Proceedings of the last Annual Meeting of the Free Religious Association (1874) has been printed in pamphlet form, and is now ready for distribution.

It contains the annual report of the Secretary, and verbatim reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Judaism," and of the statements by Messrs. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their respective attitudes with regard to Christlanity,-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Extra-Christian."

Members of the Association are entitled to the tract gratis. Price to others, single copy, 35 cents; package of four or more, 25 cents each. It can be ob-tained in Boston at A. Williams & Co. s, and at the office of the Association, No. 1 Tremont Place. Applications for it from abroad may be sent to the office In Boston, or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. Wm. J. POTTER, Secretary.

LETTER FROM SCOTLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX :

Sir,-I dld not intend to recur to the subject of ree love in your columns, seeing how my former leter roused the angry feelings of its champions. But think the late events in New York justify me in the adeavor to improve the occasion by pointing out fresh the moral and social dangers to which we hould be exposed were the principles of free love to revail.

I would first remark that Mrs. Woodhull's reply to e in THE INDEX was no reply at all. With singular ility she urged certain changes in the present matmonial conditions which I should be quite as anzas to see carried out as herself; but she studiously olded the advocacy, and even the bare mention, of at part of her theory which I attack. Many perignorant of her other writings, and supposing at her letter in THE INDEX contained the princi-# which I combat, naturally thought that I had an unjust and unreasonably severe. Let them id more of her lectures and judge for themselves. in reference to the Beecher scandal, I wish to say thing personal. I would not for the world pollute ir columns with the details of which every decent mber of our communities must be quite sick. r would I venture to give an opinion upon a matwhich can only be decided by a court of law exering the most exact and elaborate scrutiny. In all such cases there is always hard lying, and the discov-ery of the truth is nearly impossible. But it is within my province to call attention to this case as an illustration of the dire mischlef which must follow upon any degree of tampering with the sanctity of the marriage tie.

Take first the hypothesis of Mr. Beecher's innocence of the actual crime of adultery. He has, we will assume, kept within the legal limits of intimacy and familiarity. Even, let us suppose, that there was not a single act of endearment, such as a caress, or warm and significant pressure of the hand. I ask this question: Is Mr. Tilton less injured in having been robbed of his wife's affections than if the graver offence had been committed ? As a man, I affirm that the injury, the irreparable wrong, was done when the wife's heart was enticed away and fixed upon another to the detriment of her former sole attachment to her husband.

I indignantly repudiate as sheer nonsense the suggestion that Mrs. Tilton only felt that kind of grate ful affection to Mr. Beecher which naturally and purely springs from the relation of pastor and flock. That would never have caused the pastor any remorse, nor the husband any ground for jealousy. If a lady had been in the position of the pastor, Mrs. Tilton's affections would never have gone beyond the purely spiritual and innocent degree. But as the pastor was a man, and his disciple a woman, the inevitable consequence of too great intimacy and too much spiritual counsel was that the disciple was betrayed into becoming a lover. And this condition, I aver, was in itself the greatest wrong that could have been inflicted on a married couple. Now we will suppose that these persons, the pastor and the wife, never met again, never exchanged a kiss or caress; could that wife ever again feel the same spotless affection for her husband, or the husband for the wife? I say no; like a broken pearl the rounded lustre of their love could never be restored.

But some of the advocates of free love are urging more and more of this sort of Platonic friendship between married persons and third parties. Leaving aside the extreme danger of gross adultery into which such persons may be tempted, I say that the total destruction of domestic peace and joy takes place in and through the first alienation of the heart, whether of husband or wife. That is the most cruel of wrongs, and being the first step in a downward course ought to be guarded against with the utmost care.

By this time, Mr. Tilton's eyes must be sadly opened to see the fruits of his persistent advocacy of free love in the pages of the Golden Age. It is a cruel retribution that his own home has been shattered, and perhaps his own heart broken, by the practical application of those very principles which he has so honestly yet so blindly espoused.

And so I would say that granting Mrs. Woodhull to be herself the model of purity-the blessed Virgin Mary of modern times, -her principles and philosophy include the inevitable corruption of domestic happiness, and bear the bitterest fruit of domestic misery. Let her do her utmost to liberate married women from the brutal tyranny of husbands who do not deserve the name of men. To these efforts I would say "God speed." But let her, in the name of all that is precious in earthly bliss, in the name of all that is pure and elevating in domestic life, refrain from encouraging Platonic loves, still more from advocating the indulgence of unlawful fancies-fancies unlawful, not because they happen to lead to a breach of the marriage laws, or to a violation of ecclesiastical obligations, but unlawful because they are unspeakably demoralizing, and are deadly to peace between husband and wife.

On the most charitable construction of Mr. Beecher's conduct, and on the hypothesis of his entire legal innocence, the relations between him and Mrs. Tilton have nevertheless resulted in the utter ruin of her home. Must have done so inevitably, even if Mr. Tilton himself be innocent of the counter charges brought against him.

If I am right in fixing the central injury in the first tampering with the affections of a married woman-or man, -we have no need to consider the moral aspect of what the world calls the graver crime. If I have understood Mrs. Woodhull, she teaches that if Mrs. Tilton preferred Mr. Beecher to her own husband as the father to her offspring. she had a perfect right-nay, it was her duty,-to act as wife towards her pastor. It is this kind of teaching which must be forthwith justified on the eternal principles of right, or it must be denounced with all the indignation one can summon, as one is bound to attack every foe to human happiness and progress, and most of all bound to attack those foes who approach under the garb of friends.

No epithets that I have previously used are too strong to apply to the teachings of which I complain -if I am right in regarding them as fatal to domeatic purity and peace. God knows we want more and not less moral restraint to control the most imperious of our passions; and, while I unfeignedly express my pity for those who find them ungovernable, I as unfeignedly express my detestation of those who would make our passions more ungovernable still.

1 am, sir, very truly yours, CHARLES VOYSEY.

SCOTLAND, August 17, 1874.

Communications.

ON THE CHRISTIAN PANTHRISM OF THE NINTH CENTURY.

A THE CHARGETTAN PANTHEIEM OF THE NINTH OENTURY. DITTOR OF THE INDEX:-The Gameti says of Picton (The Mystery of Matter, Ninthe State of The State of The State of Matter, Ninthe State of The State of State of State of State of State religion" other than that of a "Christian pantheism." Religion in this form, says Mr. Gannett, "Is sure, and never was form so grand and true; . . . the deeper views of the universe are dissipating the common the-istic notions of creation—providence, personality, and design,—and replacing them with ideas of the One-in-All in process of transcendent evolution. But to-day's pantheism does not, Itke Spinoz's, pretend to explain the Great Fact. It simply accepts it, ignor-ine conjuing in the Eternal Unity the living substance of all that has been, is, or can be." Mr. Gannett admits that the early Christian fathers were unjust in their attempts to exalt Christianity by viting the Greek pagan religions, and treating the detics of the old faith as "demons, powers of dark-ness and evil." Those are unjust who endeavor to exal the Protestant Church by vilifying the popula-tions under the ancient Roman Catholic Church, and representing her as having exercised from the fifth to isocome a barbarous age of darkness, and disaving and of ignorance (which it was not); and of having function of generance (which it was not); and of having the static entury, founded on the principle of "the pilosophy to ignorance," which it was not; and the sing of the static that a Christian panthelism of to day by day its aperiority to the panthelism of to day by the static entury, founded on the principle of "the pilosophy is guorance," which it was not; and the sing of the function of the school of the palace, point day its aperiority to the panthelism of by inter-tion of France, Germany, and Italy, and was en-point of y its apperiority to the panthelism of by inter-tion of the school of the palace, and the view haveneed of his viritings, are ex-pointed by his direct

In the because it is supports the popular notion that the human mind in Western Europe had become de-based in an unparalleled degree during the so-called Dark Ages. The Protestiant historians of theology and philosophy hold opposite opinions regarding this ing and knowledge in the tenth century than in the succeeding ages, particularly the twelfth and thir-tenth centuries. Mosheim calls this "an extrava-gant assertion," and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so Brucker regards it. Hallam, Bresoll and Locky indorse Mosheim's opinion. In-gent assertion, and so bern the subject is the there was a set the Dark Ages. 'Write a subject is the printing to think, to reason, and to Investigate; and that now a few infidels have made it possible for the genius of the nineteenth century to revolutionize the rule creeds and supersitions of mankind. It is sur-prising that they do not know that the infidels of the infidels of the Dark Ages. Mr. Frothingham says that the Protestantism of the thirteenth century the shad not come for theological doubt on the Or-tent, fail, and redemption. Luther and his disci-ples did all they could to prevent doubt on these ques-trains of statt, the Chirteian Church, as soon as it got established, proved itself the unhesitating and it and absolutely to control his faith and conduct. There really was no freedom in the Church for centur-tries; the rule of anthority excluded personal inde-uendence. Every free tongene was bound; every free toney maked. The eccleatastical mandate was any and absolutely to control his faith and conduct succeed in debasing the human mind to the extent which is popularly supposed. Guizot says that the period comprising the eighth, ninth, and tenth centu-ries was not one of apathy and moral sterility, and without intellectual activity. It was eminently other-wise. John Stuart Mill said, in the Edinburgh Re-view, 1845: "When the history of what are called the Dark Ages ... shall be written as they deserve to be, that will be seen by all which is already recognized by the great historical inquirers of the present time,— that at no period of history was human intellect more active or society more unmistakably in a state of rapid advance than during a great part of the so much vili-fied fendal period." Guizot says: "Impartiality will never be popular; the masses are governed by exclu-sive ideas and passions, and there is no fear of their ever judging too favorably of the social and intellect-ual state of the Dark or Middle Ages." JOHN CHAPPELLSMITH. JOHN CHAPPELLSMITH.

Google

'NEW HARMONY, Indiana, July 20, 1874.

[Mr. Chappelismith is substantially correct. The broad generalization needs to be supplemented by the careful qualification. But it is true that, while the Church has fostered thought in accordance with its creed, it has always done its best to suppress thought not in accordance with it; that this repression has succeeded in proportion to its power; and that it made the "Middle Ages" certainly "dark" in comparison either with Graco-Roman civilization or with the civilization of modern science .- ED.]

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION.

EDITOR INDEX:

Dear Sir,-Allow me to presume upon your pa-tience so far as to say that the "explanation" called for in my article on "Prohibition," in THE INDEX of August 0, is not satisfactory, and by your permission August d, is not satisfactory, and by your permission I will state why. "You say: "Selling liquor for gain is not a crime." Here we join issue. Correct definitions are always in order. Webster defines crime to be: "1st. Any viola-tion of law, either divine or human." I need scarce-ly say that it was not in this sense that I used the word, because violations of law are not always crimes (instance, the Fugitive Slave Law and the Sunday Law); and crimes are not always violations of law (lastance, selling men and women into slavery, and selling alcoholic poisons as a beverage under license). "2d. Any aggravated offence against morality or the public welfare." This latter was the definition had in view. Now the question arises, Does selling liquor for gain come under this head? I answer, it does. public weither." This latter was the demition had in view. Now the question arises, Does selling liquor for gain come under this head? I answer, it does. I do not assert that selling alcohol for any purpose is a crime; my desire to be brief prevented me from saying so in my last communication. I meant sell-saying so in my last communication. I meant self-ing it for gain as a beverage, knowing that it would be used as such. "The only crime in the case is the subsequent abuse of the liquor sold. Of course, if the liquor-seller knows or believes that the liquor will be abused, he becomes an accomplice in the crime; but this does not justify society in punishing him simply for sell-ing. There is no getting over or round or under this fact."

fact." I am surprised that one usually so clear and forci-ble in argument should give us both law and logic in such questionable shape. Suppose an apothecary aells arsenic to a customer to poison rats; would not the act be right in every sense of the word? I twould, because the death of the vermin would conduce to the happiness of the individual and to society at large; utility being the standard of morality. But if the apothecary had heard the customer declare his intention to use the arsenic to poison himself or his neighbor, would not the selling become a crime, and would uot society be justified in punishing the vend-or, and does not the law itself recognize him as a criminal? criminal?

would not society be justified in punishing the vend-or, and does not the law itself recognize him as a criminal?
Now let me ask further. How many of the 175,000 salon-keepers in the United States believe that the 13,000,000 glasses of poison they annually deal out will be used for medical or mechanical purposes? It is the height of absurdity to suppose them ignorant of the misery, destitution, and crime which their hell-ish traffic entails. If they sell, knowing the effects of the traffic, but persist because "it pays," are they not legally and morally guilty? And has not society a right to restrain them?
"One and the same principle requires compulsory education and forbids prohibition." This is an as-sumption based upon two other assumptions; namely, that the vendor of alcoholic poisons piles his trade in-nocently, and that society proposes coercion for other purposes than self-protection. No one has claimed the right to coerce or restrain the liquor-seller on any other grounds than the protection of society.
I confess my inability to suppose a philosophy which characterizes the "free love" theories of Aus-tin Kent as "disgusting" and "hideous" because of the exils which it is feared may flow from them, if put in practice, and at the same time advocates free liquor, the evils of which are real, tangible, and pres-ent_—felt in every household, and mourned over by every one who hopes for a better future for our race. The same spirit which declares against prohibition would condemn the Chinese for legislating against orium, and laud the amiable Englishmen who forced it down the throats of the obstinate Celesila. Yours for the right. HARRY HoovyEn. CUEWENSYILLE, Clearfield Co., Pa., J August 16, 1874. ]
[May we without discourtesy say that Mr. Hoover's reply is itself not "satisfactorr"?

[May we without discourtesy say that Mr. Hoover's reply is itself not "satisfactory"?

1. In this discussion the word crime should be used in the sense of "an offence against society which society has the right to prohibit or to punish." Lying is an "aggravated offence against morality or the public welfare ;" but only certain kinds of lies are crimes in this sense. If all "aggravated offences against morality or the public welfare" may be properly prohibited or punished, we demand forthwith a sweeping statute against lying. Lying is always injurious, directly or indirectly, as undermining that mutual confidence without which society is impossible; but society will have its hands full, if it undertakes to deal with remote consequences. It can deal only with immediate consequences; and this principle must limit its right to prohibit or punish.

2. The apothecary who sells liquor for medicine sells it "for gain," but he confessedly commits no Mr. Hoover now admits (if we understand crime. him) that selling liquor for gain is not always a crime, thus modifying his former unguarded statement. He now says that "selling it for gain as a beverage" is a crime. But this is not true, unless the use of it "as a beverage" is a crime. Will be maintain that all use of it as such is a crime? If he does, we must decidedly take contrary ground. But Mr. Hoover must either maintain this hazardous position, or else admit that "selling liquor for gain as a beverage" is not always a crime, and still further modify his first statement.

3. The illustration of the arsenic is all on our side; for it only shows that, while selling arsenic for ratpoison is innocent, selling it for man-poison is criminal. Precisely; that is what we urged. Selling liquor for temperate use, even as a beverage, is innocent; selling it for intemperate use is criminal.

4. The saloon-keepers will like our doctrine just as little as the tectotallers, for it blnds them to a conscientious discrimination among their customers. Sale to any one whom they suspect of the least excess is just as wrong on our principle as on Mr. Hoover's; and society has a right to hold them as accomplices in any subsequent excess. 5. The "vendor of alcoholic poisons," by Mr. Hoo-ver's own previous admissions, does sometimes "ply his trade innocently;" it is, then, no more our as-sumption than his. But he evidently has not perceived the full force of the argument so inadequately met.

6. The closing paragraph of the above letter "strikes out wildly"-too wildly to be replied to. One thing at a time; and, above all, don't misrepresent. But Mr. Hoover is far too ingenuous and fair-minded to intend any misrepresentation at all. The spirit of his article is all that could be wished .- Ep. ]

PLEDGES AND CONTRACTS.

FRANCIS E. AUBOT, ESQ.: Dear Sir,--1 have read very carefully your very able argument published in THE INDEX, August 20, 1874, on "Temperance and Total Abstinence," and beg to say that I heartily concur in every word you have to say on the subject. It has been suggested to me that the second ground of argument presented by you (see page 308) is as of argument presented by you (see page 308) is as applicable to the marriage tie as to the pledge of "total abstinence" from liquor. That is, suppose that the marriage-pledge were the pledge under dis-cussion, in what respects would your arguments not be pertinent? Yours truly, H.

I. The temperance pledge is an attempt to enter into a contract with oneself for the non-performance of a particular act, and thereby to add to the real force of a voluntary resolution the artificial sanction of a formal external bond. But, the party contract-ing and the party contracted with being identical, the contract itself is an illusion, or what might be called a "moral fiction." The pledge has no more power to prevent the performance of the given act, than an internal, secret resolve not to perform it, except so far as the pledge-taker calls the world to witness that he has made this resolve and fortifies himself against temptation by imprecating social contempt as the penalty for yielding to it. The pledge is therefore a public confession of moral weakness, and so far tends to lessen the protective power of self-respect; the artificial contract it creates is merely a device to reinforce by external aids that sturdy self-reliance which, though the essence of all moral strength, is felt to be deficient. As a help to feeble wills, therefore, the pledge is practically of value, though logically abourd, while to a strong will it becomes an irritant, and adds nothing but a sense of quasi-degradation-as if a whole man were to walk the streets on crutches.

2. The marriage tie is a real contract between two different parties, which is necessary for the protection of mutual happiness and the welfare of children. Its essence is not in any legal formula, but in the solemn recognition by both parties of a sacred obligation to each other. For the sake of a greater good, each surrenders the right to form sexual alliances with any other party than the one contracted with; it is a contract freely formed, but, like all contracts, it limits subsequent freedom of action in some respects. The objections we bring against the nureal contract of the pledge do not apply to the real contract of the marriage tie, unless the principle of freedom requires the abolition of all contracts; which we deny. Moral strength is perfectly consistent with reverence for the force of all real contracts, or else society is impossible except among moral weaklings .- ED.]

WHAT IS "LEGAL MABBIAGE"

that opponents continually defend and extol, not the present marriage institution, but an ideal marriage, more or less high and pure according to the character of the individual. Hence it is necessary clearly to define marriage, adultery, divorce, prostitution, etc., before any intelligent, candid, and dispassionate dia-cussion of these subjects can be had. Thus Mr. Ab-bot demurs to our statement that ownership of the wife is the corner-stone of marriage as it is, and pro-ceeds to tell us what is the corner-stone of that insti-tution. But he favors us with no indisputable dia-tions of fact: he only talks of "mutual contracts," "the freely formed union of equals," "true hus-bands," etc.; all of which must form part of some marital Utopia, as they can very seldom be affirmed bands," etc.; all of which must form part of some marital Utopia, as they can very seldom be affirmed of the present marriage system. In considering the nature of the civil contract called marriage, it may be held that that aloue is marriage which is so recognized in the law courts of to-day. But following the rule that obtains in re-spect to civil law in general, we shall make it to in-clude universal and immemorial usage and tradition. According to Bishop's Law of Marriage, it is "a citle contract by which two persons of opposite sexes, who have arrived at the proper age, mutually agree to take each other for husband and wife so long as both shall live."

shall live." "No form of ceremony is necessary." "The con-sent of the parties, in the presence of any respectable witness, is sufficient." Under the head "Evidence of Marriage," we find, however, that marriage may of Marriage," we be inferred thus:-

"The admission of the parties that they are bu-band and wife; "The fact of their passing for husband and wife;

"Their general reputation as busband and wife; "Their general reputation as busband and wife; "Their holding out of each other to friends, neigh-bors, and the world, as husband and wife,— "Are, in law, sufficient to prove that they are bus-band and wife."

bors, and the world, as husband and wife,— "Are, in law, sufficient to prove that they are hus-band and wife." Here we have a legal peculiarity, which is lodi-crous, and would be laughable, if it were not for the terrible liability entailed. We refer to the trap-like provisions under which even an agreement of 'me its character and terms) to be marriage in all its cr-press terms; and two persons to whom 'legal mar-riage' might be utterly repugnant could not associate intimately, even upon the highest, purest plane of social life, without incurring the liability of "the hated bond" by having "the general reputation of husband and wife" fastened upon them by gossipping neighbors. Marriage "for better or worse," in which scarcely an honorable divorce, except the divorce of death, is provided, seems to be inplied, however the parties may have contracted with each other. Its might be likened to a net catching and holding un-suspecting victims. In considering critically the terms and phraseology of the marriage bond itself, we are led to ask if, after all, the whole thing be not farcical, since the wife's unconditional vow of life-long love becomes an im-possibility, should a certain contingency arise, in which case the promise would be null and void if made in relation to any other matter. The life-long vow of obedience under those conditions simply make the wife a slave, for she solenny vows to 'obey'' in the absence of both love and honor, both on her own and her husband's part. It is notorious that in every feature of this contract the man is given "the inside track." A contract is only valid and to be respected to the extent that it is possible to fulfil it, and this been objected to the marriage tow that it wholly is nores the nature of love, treating it precisely as something within the control of the parties covenant-ing.

Ing. Pope's immortal couplet was never better quoted than in this connection :---

"Love, free as air, at sight of human ties Spreads his light wings, and in a moment flies."

This is manifestly its nature, confessedly the one

This is manifestly its nature, confessedly the one great essential element in marriage; yet by the terms of the contract it is wholly subverted, and other ele-ments the most base and mercenary take precedence. It is an old adage that a bad promise is better broken than kept, and we stoutly assert that the mar-riage obligation is such a promise, simply because it is not made conditional. Free-lovers are much ma-ligned and misrepresented; but on this point do not let us be misunderstood. We say most emphaically that love, par excellence, is first and all, N.B., though it does not in our view necessarily imply either ser-ual commerce or offspring; and we inquire if it is not the one genuine guarantee of the "permanence of the home," with all relations appertaining there unto.

Much of the criticism of the advocates of social much of the criticism of the advocates of some freedom and their views is a sad muddle, because it is wanting in the important ingredient—knowledge. Believing that the true relation of the sexes is as jet unknown to the human race, and believing that the laws of that relation can never be discovered, confirmed, and applied to the extinction of sexual evila and the elevation of mankind except through con-scientious, scientific sexual experimentation, we re-main "open," piedged to abide the issue of social freedom as defined to mean, not a broader license for passion, but the opportunity (or, shall we say the possibility) for such experimentation. Studying the sexual relations of animals, birds, etc., we do not discover that coercive power has been rested in the males; but it would seem that man has assumed it, or by both the terms and tradi-tions of marriage he becomes "clothed upon" there-with. and the elevation of mankind except through con-man has assumed it, or by both the terms and traditions of marriage he becomes "clothed upon" therewith.

Digitizent My GOOgle -

 The INDEX may ignore, or may wish to waive the consideration of the total effect of this sexual subjection of women; but surely THE INDEX may not deny the immemorial sad fact. Many great minds in the past have regarded the power or influence which has operated to keep women bound to exclusive sexual servitude during life, or what is almost as bad, doomed her to ignominy, should she seek alliances with man in obedience to the primal instinct of her motherhood outside of marriage, as the monster evil of humanity. Dr. Rosch observes: "If it were possible to bring home simultaneously to the minds of marriage is a monstrous contradiction to all the principles of the modern world." And again, in this connection: "Marriage is the only actual bondage known to our law. There remain no legal slaves, accept the mistrees of every house." (See Mill's Subjection of Women; page 147.)
 Let THE INDEX, then, be assured that our warfare is not Quizotic, and has not been initiated without a full connected to effect the removal of this bondage, which has been justly regarded as the curse of the moder morial of the subjection of womes. There is already much agitation of the fundamental questions of society, and the omens indicate that ere long it will become evident to all earnest reformers that an emancipated motherhood is the bottom reck on which the new divine temple of society must be builded.

must be builded.

must be builded. We are very glad THE INDEX agrees with the free-lovers at least so far as to give its chaste and noble word in favor of agitation, looking to the incoming of that fair millennial era,—

"When woman's life no more shall be The play-ground of hypocrisy, But carnost, natural, and free; And Love shall stay unfrighted, And offer service revenut For marriage shall be sacrament, When this old earth is righted."

Thanking THE INDEX for its courage and liberality, I remain, A. BRIGGS DAVIS. I remain, CHARLTON DEPOT, Mass.

[1. It is an equally "noticeable feature of the free love controversy" that advocates of that doctrine argue on the assumption of an ideal social state which requires everybody to be perfect; whereas all laws, including marriage laws, are based on the fact that nobody is perfect.

2. In order to refute our statement that the idea of a civil contract, and not that of ownership of the wife by the husband, is the corner-stone of marriage, Mr. Davis quotes a legal authority which defines marrisge simply as a "civil contract," and in terms which treat both parties to it as absolutely equal! This supports our statement, and nothing else; and it is difficult to see why Mr. Davis should quote an authority which annihilates his own case.

3. The husband, as much as the wife, makes the "unconditional vow of life-long love." So far, then, narriage is as much the wife's ownership of the hus-)and as the husband's ownership of the wife.

4. The vow to "obey" is rapidly growing obsolete. t is already disused in the majority of marriages; nd it is not quite fair to consider it otherwise.

5. The marriage contract, it is true, ought to be ade on equal terms in all respects; this we have alady admitted.

6. We cannot admit that love is wholly beyond ontrol. On the contrary, we hold it to be both a ossibility and a duty to prevent the formation of an tachment known to be in violation of a solemply cognized obligation. It is a miserably weak charter which surrenders itself to the absolute guidance emotion, and moth-like rushes into the flame.

7. No marriage ought ever to be formed where love es not already exist; and the marriage contract ght to be based wholly upon it. How, then, is "e "wholly subverted" by marriage ?

3. Whoever wants to make his marriage promise onditional" proves that he or she does not love ough to make the promise at all. No wholeiled love can admit the possibility of its own death. is is the justification of the unconditional promise. . Mr. Davis inquires if love "is not the one genuguarantee of the 'permanence of the home.'" the unconditional promise can be safely made. if not, the free-love doctrine evidently threatens permanence of the home.

). The experience of mankind for thousands of " has decided that the "true relation of the sexes" is marriage; and it is as preposterous as it is revolting to suppose that "scientific sexual experimentation" could throw the least additional light upon it. There have been, and are, too many experiments in that direction, to countenance any such Utopian notion.

11. "Coercive power" is an abuse possible only to human brutes. It is no part of marriage as defended by any one. 12. THE INDEX is as decidedly opposed to the "subjection of woman" as Mr. Mill or anybody else. The duty of conjugal fidelity is as absolute for man. as for woman, whatever lax notions on this polut may prevail in immoral quarters. If this is "sexual servitude," it includes husband and wife impartially; but the servitude which is simply mutual fidelity is the highest possible freedom, namely, freedom from all outside interference to obey the natural laws of right,

13. Neither "emancipated motherhood" nor emancipated fatherhood nor emancipated donkeyhood is the rock on which any "divine temple" will be built. It is "Quixotic" in the highest degree to suppose that the social welfare of humanity can depend on anything but the permanence, the purity, and the sanctity of home.

THE INDEX certainly favors the brave and 14. open agitation of all questions of public concern, belleving that repression is always the worst possible policy for the truth. The utmost possible agitation can do nothing but deepen both man's and woman's reverence for faithful wedded love .- En.]

SIGNS OF REACTION.

BEAVER, BEAVER Co., Pa., 19 August, 1874.

BEAVER, BEAVER Co., Pa., 19 August, 1814. MR. F. E. ABBOT: My dear Sir, -- You have thought it proper to pub-lish my views in regard to Mrs. Victoria Woodhull's "Free-Love" doctrine. Permit me to make the fol-lowing addenda, in justice to myself and in view of the fact that my communication was dated June 23d, and that, consequently, the famous number of her Weekly containing your quotation from an editorial on the Beecher-Tilton Scandal had not then appeared. As long as the principles Mrs. Woodhull advocated could be formulated into the following propositions, I think she was entitled to an audience; but when she As long as the principles are. Woodhull advocated could be formulated into the following propositions. I think she was entitled to an audience; but when she appears in her new role defending adultery and seduc-tion, and proclaiming an (assumed) miserable hypo-crite as the Messiah of the coming Social Revolution, then I agree with you that it is time to protest, even if I do not believe it necessary to baptize her new social republic "heil," as you do. Her propositions formerly were as follows:--"I. Marriage-laws that would be consistent with the theory of individual rights would be such as regu-late all other associations of people. They should only be obliged to file marriage-articles, containing whatever provisions may be agreed upon as to their personal rights, rights of property, of children, or whatever else they may deem proper for them to agree upon."-Principles of Social Freedom. "2. These, then, are our deductions:--"We demand for woman that she shall be emanci-pated irom dependence upon the individual man for pated from dependence upon the individual man for

"We demand for woman that she shall be emanci-pated from dependence upon the individual man for physical support; that such an order of industry shall be inaugurated as will make it unnecessary for women to depend upon or surrender their sex for mainte-nance, which they now do almost wholly, whether in or out of marriage; that their relations to man shall be such that their maternal functions shall remain under their own control absolutely; that they shall never be called upon to submit to sexual intercourse except at their own election, and that they shall be so except at their own election, and that they shall be so enlightened about the science of generation, procrea-tion, and gestation, that bereafter none but the best children, physically, mentally, and morally, may be boro."----Weekly, Aug. 15, 1874. There is nothing in these propositions which is shameless, immoral, or calculated to encourage vice, duitery, seduction, crime. Here Mrs. Woodbull fol-lows in the footsteps of such earnest social reformers as John H. Noyas, Ann Lee, Robert Owen, Robert Dale Owen. Frances Wright, Margaret Fuller, and Wolfgang Goethe. There has been a very ignorant cry raised against Goethe's Wahterwandtschaften (Elective Affinitles), as very dangerous reading for the young, the uneducated, the ignorant: "as if dul and ignorant people wanting insight and imagination would not find the highest literature of every land,"-says Hepworth Dixon, in his Spiritual Wires, "be it profane or be it sacred, the Nibe, the Talmud, the Yeaks, the Koran,--to be dangerous reading for the young." So far, then, Mrs. Woodbull was an earnest reyoung.

Vedas, the Korah,---to be angerous reaching for the young." So far, then, Mrs. Woodhull was an earnest re-former; but she did even more than her noble prede-cessor, that inspired rhapsodist of free lovo, Frances Wright, the female companion of Dale Owen, who preached the new gospel of emancipation before large audiences, who publicly declared that the law of mar-riage, as enforced by the Church, makes every woman who adopts it a slave. Mrs. Frances Wright was also in favor of free divorce, and described the wedding days as symbols of the chains of female slavery. She published the Free Enguirer in New York, and no doubt the advanced thoughts on social, political, and religious questions published through that fearless paper very often shocked the more plous and conser-vative minds. Yet no American mob ever attempted to tar and feather, or to insult, her or her noble com-

to tar and feather, or to insult, her or her noble com-banco. It is not very long since THE INDEX contained the following words from Mr. A. W. Stevens: "We do not expect the truth ever to become popular; it will always be too 'new' and 'radical' for any but the bravest and most rational minds to receive." So it was to be expected that Mrs. Woodhull would have to suffer a little martyrdom. But she was persecuted; in her person the entire American press was outraged; and the silence of the large, influential journals of New York at the time of her arrest and her imprison-ment in Ludlow Street jail was cowardly and con-temptible. My dear Mr. Abbot, I do not endorse Mrs. Wood-hull's flank movement; indeed, I find not even an explanation for it. I sincerely regret her step, as it will probably result in a general reaction. There is no necessity to disguise the fact that through Beech-er's fall liberalism suffers a loss, – the whole liberal movement will have to bear the stigma, the odium, for years to come! In silenific et spe ! Fraternally, HUGO ANDRIESSEM. [So frank a repudiation of the repulsive extreme to [So frank a repudiation of the repulsive extreme to which Mrs. Woodhull has carried her doctrine (we must say that it seems to us only a logical development of it), and by one who has more or less sympathy with this doctrine in its undeveloped form, ought to exert a very wholesome influence. But we must enter here a protest against the conclusion that "liberalism" will ever have to suffer the odium of Mr. Beecher's as yet unproved crime. It will be a peril-ous and fatuous blunder for Orthodoxy to attempt to make such capital as that out of the Brooklyn scandal: a crushing retort will be ready, which we forbear even to hint till the crime is proved beyond a reasonable doubt. If the Orthodox do not go crazy, they will shrink from any such assault on liberalism as is here suggested; for the charge will be a boomerang of the most deadly description. That the Orthodox are not unconscious of this fact is clear enough from the desperate energy with which Mr. Beecher has been defended. Let them beware of dealing a foul blow against the free thought which they have hitherto attacked as being "mere morality." If they ever turn about and charge it with being "mere immorality," let them look to their weapons; for they will have to fight every inch of their way .- ED.]

A VETERAN'S OPINIONS.

SPARTA, Wis., July 16, 1874.

DEAR INDEX:--Enclosed find $3.00 for one year's subscription. I like you now, after over twelve months' acquaintance. Did not, when a friend induced me to receive your weekly visits. At first, I was determined you abould discontinue them; reason, war in your household, which looked too much like Christians. "Liberal" men don't quarrel. When they do, they are illiberal. I like you now "muchly;" though not because your religious faith (excuse the word) harmonizes with mine, but for your free inquiry. This is the only panacea for the ills of this life. As for the uert, I know mothing about it, and don't care to know, until we learn how to use the one we have. If there be one, it will take care of itself. Speculation about another, world lies across the path DEAR INDENS know nothing about it, and don't care to know, until we learn how to use the one we have. If there be one, it will take care of itself. Speculation about another world lies across the path of science, while creds choke out the reason. I am an old man; have watched the progress of events for fifty years, and am not discouraged at the result. When very young, I learned the difference between knowledge and bellef. The persecution of my father for harboring Frances Wright opened my eyes wide, though I was but fourteen years old; though I never knew a time when they were shut light enough to be a Christian. I never had any faith in what is called religion, never took stock in any people's God. If I did, it would be the heathen's God, as I like tangible things. I have not read much of late years except current events; I was one of the sarliest supporters of the Investigator, when it cost something to be a heretic. I left it at the time I considered its influences was on the side of the slave power. I believe its principles now harmonize with mine more than THE INDEX; though I believe your correspondents are good thinkers, and thinking is what is to save the world, not the Christs. I was much interested in Mr. Potter's easay published some time since, though un-able to comprehend his God any better than I can the "God of Abraham, Itaac, and Mosce." Matter and its laws to me are sufficient. To speak find or intelligence apart from matter, or to sep-arate thought from brain, is to me as incomprehensi-ble as to talk of the secretion of bile or the digestion of the problem,—only causes the fancy to wan-der beyond facts into the realms of supersition. If death, as we call it, is to develop new light, I can wait; I am not dead. If it brings new life and new dutes, I hope to be able to meet them. But, dear innex; I did not intend to bore you. I free thought can, after a fair trial, do no more for man than Christianity the, it is do letter, if you.

can i for petter we many what we believe. If free thought can, after a fair trial, do no more for man than Christianity has, it had better die now. Yours truly, J. LAMBOBN.

Demonstra Garagle

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

Inches and a second sec
Advertisements.	GOOD
THE PATRONAGE	LEADING
of be liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for TAR iNDEX. The attempt will be honeatly made to keep the advertis- ing pages of TAE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to faraish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will	O. B. FROTHI T. W. HIG W. J. W.
be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES.	Are now for sa and will be m on receipt of cents each; c graphs, $1.50.
For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line. 11 13 11 25 11 5 11 5 11 11 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10	Address, No. 1 Tr
On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent, will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.	INDE No. 1Truth Abbot, conta and "Modern DARWIN, an
CIRCULATE ! Circulate ! ! Circu- fied when your petition is a yard long, unless you have aaked every one to sign it. Get good, infla- suital names.	cles," suys, ir inally intend quently suth read 'TRUTHS them from m
GET EVERYBODY.	almost every 10 cents; 12 c

on't neglect to show the petition to any ause he is a stockholder in some churc sr exempted property, as many such per it the justice of the demand; and those not should be made to take the responsiof refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned early.

Per order of EXEC. COMM. of the BOSTON LINEBAL LEAGUE.

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON.

has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of Editorial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.L. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM B. SPENCEE, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. RET. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England.

PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Beligious Liberalism. Every Christian minister, and every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or · leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prot. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal ontirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be telt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later atill: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

THE INDEX

OOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1
OF
ADING INDEX WEITERS. Incinding
. FROTHINGHAM,	· .
T. W. HIGGINSON,	A
W. J. POTTER,	-
W. H. SPENCER,
F. W. NEWMAN,	F
CHAS. VOYSEY,
A. W. STEVENS,
F. E. ABBOT,	IND
now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, will be mailed postpaid to any address	~~~~~~
eccipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 s each; complete Set of Eight Photo- hs, $1.50.	N

	Address,				THE INDEX,
		No.	1	Tr	emont	Plo	ice,	Bost	ion,	Ma	89.
Ŧ	N	D		E	x	T	R	A	C	т	S.

hs for the Times, by F. E. alus the "Fifty Affirmations" n Principles." MR. CHARLES author of "The Origin of Spen a letter to the editor not orig-led for publication, but subse-norized to be used: "I have now is FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire ny inmost heart; and I agree to word." New Edition. Price oples $1,00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. R. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wortby of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 5.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No.6. ""The Sabbath," by Parker Pille-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-54Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8 .- The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.—The Impeachment of Christimakey, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thon-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Homanism Beal Christian ityl Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot, Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. — A Study of Heilgion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are indequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX. Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO REE RELIGION.

7

4.

FREE

8

PUBLISHED BY THE DEX ASSOCIATION.

AT

lo. I Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

- O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.
- W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. Mas. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass

F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianis for sectarianiam, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig-ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purse of securing the more complete and con sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic In the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful characte each issue, will continue to be one of most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con tinue to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOVEEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Bollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

ASSOCIATION. Report of the Addresses and other

PUBLICATIONS.

OF THE

RELIGIOUS

Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-Lucd. Containing addresses by 0. B Froth-ingham, Henry Bianchard, Lucretia Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-war, F. E. Abbor, D. A. Wassao, T. W. Ho. son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Raiph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not ess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meeting, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essaya by Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Re-straint in Beligion," and by David A. Wasson on "The Belation of Social Science to Beligion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Decton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horacs Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaiam" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains essay by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by Free Religious Association," followed of addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religion Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabit Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaiam," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedaniam," by W. Higginson on "Mohammedaniam," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Beligion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Babbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. Scents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion & Meetics," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion & the Expression of a Permanent Ber iment Ine Expression of a Permanent Semiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froth-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and other and others.

Proceedings of Sirth Annual Seei-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 55 cents each.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Bellgion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Lougfel-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lucretia Mott.

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Elg-ginson. 25 cents.

Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Chapning. 25 cents.

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jat-Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1873 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

Entreatly GOOGLE

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

2.0

5.00

1.75

POPULAR BOOKS SENT BY MAIL AT. PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other DRTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as prinuptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanded with the CASH. E0 Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two 3.00 Logital Sketches and Camp and Fireside Bopital Sketches and Camp and Fireside An Old Frashlourd GPL Little Men. My Boys, &c. Shawl. Straps Work: A Story of Experience ... 1.50 ... 1.50 ... 1.50 ... 1.00 ... 1.00 ... 1.75 ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.30 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Orid-BACON'S Eastlys ..... 1.00 BAIN (ALEXANDER), Mental Science: A Compendium of Parchology and History of Philosophy Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics, 1 vol. BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniama. 2.50 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations .......... 8.00 BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 2.25 BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotlagd. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vols...... 6.00 work, with a complete index. 2 vols...... OARLYLE'S Works, Cheapedition, Compris-ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 vols.; Prench Revolution, 3 vosil's Estters, lek the great, 10 vois Resartins, 1 vol.; John Starf Discussion, 1 vol.; Herces and Herce Wor-ship, 1 vol.; Latter Day Furnphiets, 1 vol. Any volume soli exparately, 3 vols. Lon-don, 1871-S. Per vol CARPENTER (Dg. W. B.) The Principles of Mental Physiology, with their Applica-tions to the Training and Disciplice of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-tions. ..... DERVANTES' Don Quizote ...... 1.50 OBANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau; The Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse, 2.0 CLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Tou Great Bellgions CLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World .73 World World BOBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Bocial Subjects. Darwinism in Morals, and other Essays..... The Religious Demands of the Age...... CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pilgrimage.

Youmans, M.D. 1 vol. OULTURE, DEMANDED BY MODERN LIFE; Its True Aims and Requirements A Series of Addrassos. By Tyndail, Huz-ley, Whewell, Furaday, Spencer, Draper, Masson, Lycel, ric. Zdited by Edward L Youmans DALL (Mus, CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Gitsenably.

mprising-

Comprising – Adam Bedie. Romola. The Mill on the Floas. Fellx Molt. Silas Marridbrary Edition. 2 vols..... Middhemarch. 2 vols..... Middhemarch. 2 vols..... Middhemarch. 2 vols..... Middhemarch. 2 vols..... Historia (Spanish Gypsy.... How Liss. Loved the King.....

How Lies Lovel the King: EMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. Pirst Series. Essays. Social siertes. Miscellanies. Miscellanies. English Traits. Conduct of Lifes. Poemis. With Portrait. May-lay and Othor Pieces. Essays. Blue and Gold. Prose Works. 2 vols. Society and Solitude Forkas. C. P. D. D. Max Historical Society and Southas EVANS (E. P., Pb. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthoid Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vols. 1.50

FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Bellgion.

FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, J.00

FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00

FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Roligion of Hu-1.50 .20 1.00 3.00 manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker......

FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition, s vols ...... 9.00 and others. A new solution, s tons in the second se

GREO'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments..... Creed of Christendom.....

GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doc-uments, Private Memorands, and Original "Lotters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edition. With Por-trait

HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Paintor s Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Sociland. Book II. In Frauez. Thoughts about Art. The United and Art. The United and Life. Chapters ou Auimais. 1.50 2.00 8.00 2.00 4.00

HAMILTON (GAIL), Uhild World, Part See Ond 1.00 Child World. Part First..... 1.50

Twice-Told Tales. Mossee from au Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Bitthedale Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Snow Image. The Kaglish Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Preuch and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Money, and Septimius Felton.

BIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papars ... Maluone. An Oldport Romance... Arny Life in a Black Regiment. Atlantic Resays. Oldport Days .... 1.501.501.502.002.50

HowELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-uing Journey Suburban Seatches Tealin Journeys Tealin Journeys A Chance Acquaintance

2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.50

Lay Sormons, Addresses, and Meriows. The Monitions of the Unkeen Songs of Saven. INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-len Stories tool to a Child. First and Second Series. A Sister's Hys-Hours. Mopus the Fairy: A Chulde Intellect. Foor Mart, or. Tool Tool Tool Tool Store Hours. NGERSOLL'S (ROBT. G.) The Gods and Other Lociuron, 2.00

Locurres. 2.00 INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES. No. I. Forms of Water, in Clove, Rain, Rivers, Ice, and Glaclers. By John 771-dall, with and Form 1.50 II. De Application of the Principles of "Natural Sciencing" and "Inheritance" to Political Society. By Waiter Bagehot, 1.50

3.00

VI. The 'New Chemistry. By Josish P. Gonke, J. Gonke, G. Gonke, J. Gonke, G. Gonke, Gonke, G. Gonke, G. Gonke, G. Gonke, Go 1.50

ERROLD (DOUGLAS), Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. L.S.

lated into English, with Auslysia and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A. Master of Ballioi College, Oxford, and Regius Pro-fessor of Greek. Four vola.

LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne. 2 vols...... 6.00

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.60

LEWIN (REV. BAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-daism? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.00

ONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait 2 vols Prose Works. Portrait

LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. 2 vols .... The Biglow Papers. First Series ... The Biglow Papers. Second Series . Among my Books ...... My Study Windows. 4.00 1.50 1.50 2.00 2.00

LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Postes for Children. .75 EUBDOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. Pre-historic Times. a.. 2.00

MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's

MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horacs Mann. Hy his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 200 Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to

1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Hornes Mann 1.25

Horace Mann. MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph Iosi and Theological. 2 vois. Per vol.... The New Affinities of Faith 2.50

Conversion of the Ardener Saddmann MILL (JOHN STUART.) Dissertations and Discussions. 4 vols, each. The Examination of the Hilosophy of Sir William Hamilton. 1 vols., each. The Positive Philosophy of Auguste Conte. Political Economy. New and revised self-1.25 2.35 apresentative Government utoblography semorial Volume. His Life and Works... 23

MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of Species 1.75

MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed-

2.50

2.50

1.50

6.50

3.00

1.75

1.80 4.50

3.00

Against Hero-Making in Religion. PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Mattors Pertaining to Religion. Speeches, Addresses, and Occasional Ber-mons. Join. Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occa-eional Sermons. Tools. Critical and Miscelbaneous Writings. Historic Americans.- Franklin. Washing-ton, Adams, and Jefferson. With an In-troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham... The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Hall against Kläinsping; whirmions.-A.D.I. and MDCCCLV. A Chiratunas Story.-PARSONS (THEOPHYLLUS.) The Institu-1.50

.50 PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite and the Finite ..... 1,00

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.00

T

and the Flute PHELPS' (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Guton Alar The Truity Book Men, Women, and Ghosta Hedged In The Silent Partner: What to Wear?

s. Por- 2.00 ROOTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poer

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

443

3.60

5.00

50

PROCTOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ours: the Flurality of Worlds atua-led under the Light of Recent Scientific Researches. With Colored Plates. In Light Science for Leature Hours. A Scries of Familiar Decayons. A Science of Fapers of Familiar Decayons. Science of Fapers with the Reconvolutions. A Science of Fapers of Panels and Jet Ywa, the Sun, etc. Withest and Jet Ywa, the Sun, etc. The Moon, her Motions, Aspecta Sciency, and Physical Conditions. with Three La-nar Photographs and many Plates, Charts, utc. Boss Error (CHRISTIN A G.) A Shadow of the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Rodies. J. Litroductory De Prof. Huxley, F.E.S. J. Chemistry De Prof. Huxley, F.E.S. J. Physics. By Balfour Scowart, With H-luwirations. J. Physics. By Balfour Scowart, With H-Luwirations. J. Physics Geography. By Archibald Gei-ke, LL.D., F.E.S., familie cloth.

ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of

SCHELI,EN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Flaysical Constitution of the Heavenly Redies.

TRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the 2.00

ew Life of Jesus. Authorized transla-tion. 2 vols. 12.09

THACKEBAY'S (W.M.) Novels. Household Edition. Completes in 6 volumes. Per vol., L26 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Fendennis.

Pensonna. The Virginians. Barmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellancents Writings. Household Edi-uon. Uniform with the Novels. Com-plets in Svols. With new Portrait. For vol. 1.36 This edition includes all the matter in the ist-set English editions, which many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the chespest and meet somplies The kerstry to hem to Through the Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Dismond, &c.

 Paris, and Irish Skelch-Books, &c.
 Snobs, Sketches, Denis Duvsi, &c.
 Four Georges, Humorists, Ac.
 Catherins, Christinas Books, and Unre-printed Pieces.

2.00

1.00

2.00 1.25 2.00 2.00 2.00

1.50 3.00 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden : ur, Life in

Cape Cod. Letters A Yankee in Canada A Week ou the Concord and Merrimae Rivers

Hivers IVLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind Primitive Culture. 2 vols.

TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-

TYNDALL (JOIN), Faraday as a Discor-erer, -Pragments of Science for Unacloudide Peo-Light and Electricity. Hours of Exercise in the Alpa. Heat as a Mode of Modon. On Sound Radiant Heat. Forms of Water. Lectures on Light. Proceedings at the Farawell Banquoi to Prof. Tydial.

Life of Theodore Parker, 2 von. WHIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life ..... Character and Characteristic Men. The Literature of the skys of Elizabeth. Success and its Conditions Weahington and the Revolution

ADDERSI

1 Tremont Piace, Boston

HE INDEX,

Instanting Google

VEISS (JOHN.) American Religion ...... 1.50 Life of Theodore Parker, 2 yols.......... 6.00

$25 A DAY GUARANTEED in good certitory. HIGHEST TESTINONIALS FROM GOVERNORS OF IOWA, ARKANARA AND DAKOTA. Catalogues free. St. Louis, Mo. STUDENTS FITTED for any BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. College. Flease address EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn. Our organization some time since decided to di-rect its efforts for the present towards securing the CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.-At home, male or female, 50 a week war-ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with siz-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y. ROWLAND CONNOR, R or initial dis engagement with the Free Congregational Society of Florence, will answer invitations to lecture for liberal societies. Address at JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS. Repeal of the Laws whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden FREE DISCUSSION whereas unjustly exempted from its share or two out-of taration. As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a a bold at HOSPITALLER HALL, 59 Washing-ton Strots, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 7% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Political, and Social Interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale avery Sunday at Hospitaller Hall. TRACT WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.-The twenty-first school year of this Family and Day School, ros Born Exces, will begin Wednes-day, September 16, 1874. For particulars address MATH'L T. ALLEN. Principal, West Newton, Mass. At home Saturdays THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. We desire soon to issue At home Saturdays. TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS. Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, 1 should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. KLL18, Tremont Place, Boston. other States. TO BOOK-BUYERS. Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filed and their inqui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. BOUND VOLUMES OF THE Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-60, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. duced terms for reas rertisements. Address THE INDEX. Boston. THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Address Meanwhile the WARREN'S GREAT WORK. TRUE CIVILIZATION. Price 50 cents. hard. CONCERNING AMERICA. PRACTICAL DETAILS. showing the workings of the-COST PRINCIPLE. Price 25 cents. For sale by continued wrong. Let us make it S. H. MORSE 35 Bromfield St., Boston. FOR SINGING CLASSES! ed author has also given interesting sketches. Sent, nost-paid, on receipt of price. Address THE INDEX, THE SONG MONARCH !! By H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON by R. R. FALME, assisted of D. O. EMERICO. A book admirably filted for the use of Sing-ing School Teachers, having, in addition to a compact theoretical course, more than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Alra, Tunes, &c., &c., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of fully. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminaries, and Social Sings. Price 75 cts., or $7.50 per dozen. By Andrew Jackson Davis. FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS.

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. We have already issued three editions, the G. last of which is nearly exhausted. Another Large Edition of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of EVEBY VOTER IN THE STATE, and generously to supply the calls for them in To do this, we need funds; for, although To do this, we need funds; for, sithongh have made arrangements for printing the Tr at very low cost, it is impossible for the Bost League, with its various other expenses, to be the entire expense alone. Will not, then, All Friends of the Movement come forward and help us with liberal donations 7 We frequently receive communications from parties vishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $1.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-ating them gratations in the purpose of circu-tant winter this subject was brought be-fore the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of petitions were presented asking a repeal of these unjust laws. The matter is still in their hands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon Voice of the People, favoring justice and equity, should be distinetly heard. We shall soon he ready to send out BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN, thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already done so, to protest against this for it. THE LARGEST PETITION ever presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please SEND IN THEIR NAMES? BY We would say, also that we feel deeply the JOHN Other Organizations to cooperate with us in securing a Act of Faith equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberaliam." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to Religion and Scient Heart in Religion. Form a Liberal League, are ready to render such assistance as lies in 4. Ajax in Troilus and Cressids: The Por-ter in Macbeth: The Pool in Lear. LIBERALSI 5. Falstaff. If all will units and work, the results sought 6. Hamlet a be accomplished Address 2. Portia. 5. Ophelia. BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Address Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Billins. Illustration ed pamphetes free. Address BEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER. 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. THE, AMERICAN EDITION 07 MONCURE D. CONWAY'S SACRED ANTHOLOGY. A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sent postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00 Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMOST PLACE, Boston, Mass. L. HENDERSON & CO. BANKERS, LEROY, MINN. Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N. Y. HERECE Office, 137 Broadway, N. Y. Money Invested in First Mortgages on Im-proved Farms in Minnesota and Iowa, rm-ning three to five years, with Coupon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad-vance, or ten per cent, part annually in ad-vance, or 12 per cent, part annually, free of expense to the Loaner. If of the per cent, part and on receipt of moser at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular. 137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per cer Investments in Real Estate in Chicago and vicinity, If judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Loan Agency OF ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH STRAFT Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand, Is-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; tares paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

BEASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is fall longth. It is full size. It is smooth and slastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Eu-reks Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacture's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call

RADICAL AND LITERABY

LECTURES

WEISS,

BADICAL LECTURES.

The Idea of Heresfter. Intelligence in Religion.

SHAKSPEABIAN LECTURES. FIRST SERIES.

- t. Cause of Langhter.
- 2. Irony and Humor.
- 3. Dogberry, Malvollo, Bottom, Touchstoon.

- SECOND SERIES.
- 1. The Women of Shakspeare.

- 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.
- 6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Characters. JOHN WEISS,

Google _

32 E. Brookline St., Boston.

CHARLES SUMNER.

A fine likeness of Massachusetta' great Sen-ator, tos copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at Tum Inbex office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-dity cents. THE INDEX, Address Theorem I Mark Daries

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.

The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of 33, by express, at the prechaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

PENN MEDICAL UNIVERSITY,

OF PHILADELPHIA.

The regular course of Lectures in this In-stitution will commence on the first Monday in October, and is open to both series. The echool is liberal and progressive, and thor-ough in its teachings. For announcement giving terms and other particulars, address E. D. BUCKMAN, M.D., DEAN, No. 1030 Spring Garden St.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The following states the experience of a successful Bookseller who has advertised in Special arrangements will be made at re duced terms for long-time or extended ad-

NO. 1 TERMONT PLACE,

CHARLES SUMNER'S

PROPHETIC VOICES

. By CHARLES SUMNER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2.

Aside from its literary and historical merits, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which

r. Summer was engaged before his death, "PROPRETIO VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the history of our country, so full is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been forefold by philosophers, poets, statesmen, and orstors, of whom the lament

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE.

Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmietakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

by all women and men. ... Onr friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly fouches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare, - Gold-m Age.

en Age. Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-some cloth, 75 cents; in full ~ilt and extra binding, $1. Postage free, The trade sup-plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing House" of A. J. DAVIS& CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City.

THE LEADER!!

is the Leader of all Church Music Books for 1874 and 1875, being the first in the field, and of a character that cannot be excelled. By H. R. PALMER, of Chicngo, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, of Boston, containing also compositions from the hands of large numbers of American Music writ

The LEADER has 80 pages of Singing School Music, the same as that in the Yong Mon-arch, and large numbers of new Tines and Anthems, all by the best composers.

For CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS and SINGING CLASSES.

Price $1.35, or $12.00 per dozen. Specimen copies of the above book mailed, post-paid, for retail price.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

WHOLE NO. 247.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

demand that churches and other ecclesiastical shall no longer be exempt from just taxation.

ORGANIZE!

2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the may and milita, and in prisons, asyluma, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and theritable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

shall cease.
We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as text-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-silp, shall be prohibited.
We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholy cease.
We demand the buildist onth in the counter and of all religious restrivans such as such as the out of the courts and s. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-aluce of perjury shall be established in its stead.

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed. 6. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws aball be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.

equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the pratage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, and inchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Therea, it is our profound conviction that the safety of regulican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civil-stor impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-tinged, by the least interference of the State in matters of rights, and religion; and Whereas, Cartain grave inconsistencies with the general pirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-feal administration of our political system, threatening the erpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public chools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-elves together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

LL LEAOUE OF _____. Arr. 2.-The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-me practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-m" inroughont the country, and especially in ______. Lie, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues, shall we have formed in different places, to send two delegates a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-realied, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the arr. 3.-The means employed in working for the Ant, a recurring the needed reforms. Ant, a rote means employed in working for these objects all be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, dresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-l, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, dright.

a right. Lar. 4.-Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a o-thirds vote of the members.

URT. 6.—Any person may become a member of the League subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-n.

and the second s

far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of INDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that If yet be accepted universally by the American people, is only platform consistent with religious liberty. A ral League ought to be formed to carry out its princiwherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals be got together. Being convinced that the movement scure compliance with these just "Demaude" must zure compliance with these just "Demands" mines y, even if slowly, spread, I hope to make TEE INDEX zas of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and 6 co-operation of every man and every woman who be-in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-bromptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-Intelest and Secre-

. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion at list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are let their organized voice be heard like the sound of waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. row, Sept. 1, 1878.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

ABTICLE 1.

GLIMPSES.

GUIZOT DIED on September 13, at the age of nearly eighty-seven.

WHAT Uriah Heep was it who exclaimed, "I'm the Publican, not the Pharisee-thank God !"

THE COMPLETE "Address" of Professor Tyndall, in neat pamphlet form, will now be mailed from this office, postpaid, on receipt of the price, twenty cents.

GUIZOT'S History of Civilization is a striking illustration of our thesis that Protestantism is a mechanical mixture of Christianity and Free Religion-two elements that have no chemical affinity whatever for each other.

MATTERS ARE COMING to a crisis in Louisians. Two things only are certain-that the government of the United States will be sustained by the people, and that the equal rights of both whites and blacks will be defended by the government.

THE REPORTED whipping to death of a little child only five years old, at the New York Five Points House of Industry, is too sickening to be believed without absolute proof. Nobody but a loup-garou could be capable of such fiendishness.

SWITZERLAND has decreed "free marriages." That is, marriage has been redeemed in that country from the obstructions and superstitious regulations imposed upon it by Catholicism, and henceforth will be subject only to such laws as the people themselves determine. Another step forward,

WHEN FATHER HYACINTHE says that he wants to reform the old Church, not found a new one, the Golden Age responds that "he might as well try to reform the Alps." Yet the Age itself is trying to reform the religion of the same old Church; and we in our turn make the same response.

IN WOONSOCKET, Rhode Island, F. C. Birtle, a photographer, was fined $1.00 and costs before a Justice Court (so-called), for taking a picture on Sunday for a customer who could not come on a week-day. So says the Woonsocket Daily Reporter of August 31. Only clergymen are allowed to work on Sunday.

PROFESSOR SEELVE, of Amherst College, one of the most distinguished advocates of the Christian Amendment, is presented as candidate for Congress-man by his friends. What is to hinder his election? For all that the liberals are doing or likely to do, men of his well-known opinion can be elected in every Congressional district throughout the Union.

"THE PATRIOTIC SONS OF AMERICA" is the name of an organization (numbering in all 26,000 members) which on September 5 held a picnic in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania. One of their objects is to oppose all encroachments upon liberty by Roman Catholics; and they profess to be equally opposed to encroachments by Protestants,-their principles requiring Church and State to be separate and distinct. These statements are made on the authority of a confidential letter which we are not at liberty to quote. Having never before heard of this organization, we shall be grateful to any one who can give us further information on the subject.

THIS EXTRACT from a private letter which we have received under date of August 30, 1874, from an old resident of Louisiana, is mournful corroboration of the reports with which the daily press is now teeming: "Colfax, where seventy-six negroes were ruthlessly murdered, is only thirty miles from here. Some three or four negroes have been shot in this parish since I have been here, say about three weeks. No arrests have been made, so far as I have yet heard. In fact, the people here have been so intred to crime, to cutting and shooting, for the past forty years, that they look upon these acts with as much indifference as they would upon the killing of a domestic animal."

VICTOR Hugo declined to attend the Peace Conference at Geneva because he thinks another war has got to be waged between France and Germany-s duel between republicanism and monarchy. When the Germans marched on Parls after Sedan, instead of peaceably going home when they had destroyed the Empire that attacked them, they put themselves in the wrong before the world; and we expressed this opinion at the time in a lecture in THE INDEX. Germany chose to trample her foe into the mire; the royal vicior cunningly took advantage of his people's ancient grudge to strengthen his own throne; and the wrong then done will undoubtedly work out its own retribution in more blood by-and-by.

"IF WE NEEDED a proof," says the London Speciator, "that this age feels the meaning of that mysterious descent of power from above as much as ever, it would be afforded by the reception which was given to Ecce Homo a few years ago,-a book the great literary point of which was to set forth the absolutely imperative character of Christ's personal claims." The words we have italicized emphasize a fact from which all Liberal Christianity studiously averts its eyes; and notably the Golden Age. To hunt for the secret fountain-head of Christianity's power over mankind in any other thing than faith in the per-sonal Christ, is to walk directly away from the object sought. Free Religion can thrive only on ideas, and perishes in person-worship; but Christianity evaporates wholly except as it flows through the sap-channels of its own Vine.

THE FOLLOWING telegraphic despatch from Washington, under date of June 22, seems worth reviving, now that General Butler is running again as candidate for Congress. . It proves that politicians who care only for popularity find their interest in catering to sectarianism in a most dangerous way, although liberals persist in seeing no danger anywhere: "There was a vigorous discussion in the House, this afternoon, over the item in the sundry Civil Appropriation bill, inserted by the Senate, to appropriate $25,000 for the Roman Catholic charitable organization known as the Little Sisters of the Poor. When the bill was first before the House, Judge Hoar tried to have this provision inserted, but failed ; to day, Mr. Garfield made a strong speech against giving away the nation's money to any sectarian organization, putting it on the broad ground of whee public policy to avoid all such acts. On the other side there appeared Judge Hoar, Gen. Butler, and Mr. Packer, of Missourl, and they carried the House with them. There was also left on the bill an appropriation of $25,000 for erecting a building for the Young Women's Christian Association of this city." No one of these gentlemen except Mr. Garfield ough to receive a single liberal's vote.

monzed by Google

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

446

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Borron, MAS.-F. Z. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; J. L. Hatch, Berretary. Ban Joes, Cal.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. Becretary. ToLEDO, lowA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-VIRELAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Cinte, Becretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEE.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, OLATHE, KAN.-S. D. S. Whood President; A. T. Garretaon, Secretary, MUGH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretaon, Secretary, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. B. Knowles, Secretary, Secretary, T. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Osciola, alo.--E. F. Hompson, President; M. Secretary, Berretary, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, BRLIN, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. WABRINGTON, D.C.- George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. A DEORN, OMIO.-Jobu Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-urer. urer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Scoretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. Sr. Joskph, Mo.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary, Beretary, E & Claine, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, B. aso, Jro.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New ORIZANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Walloce, Mon.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Baroura, Mich.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. CLEARFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. SAUE CITY, WIS .- Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. AugustA, Wis. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vaux, Secretary.

Christian---Extra-Christian---or Anti-Christian?

THE ANTI-CHRISTIAN'S PLEA.

ADDRESS OF FRANCIS E. ABBOT, AT THE BEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FREE BELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION, IN BOSTON, MAY 29, 1874.

<text><text><text><text>

God, and salvation by faith in Christ alone: doc-trines in which three hundred millions of Christians agree as essential and fundamental to their faith,— doctrines which only a small handful of two or three hundred thousand exiles believe to be unessential. The characteristic principle of Aurnoutry, now rep-resented by the Church, now by the Pope, now by the Bible, determines what Christianity is, leaving us no option to evolve a new or fantastical definition out of our own modernized ideas of what is true and right. In all its forms the Orthodox Christian Church claims to hold still the same great fundamental doc-trines on divine authority, and defines Christianity substantially in the same way. Christianity, it says, is the religion of Christians; and Christians gospel. This is the answer given to our question by the Church itself: justice and common fairness, as well as schol-arly criticism, demand that this answer be accepted is the answer given to our question by the Church-ittelf: justice and common fairness, as well as schol-arly criticism, demand that this answer be accepted as the definition of Christianity. It is not true, then, when I am criticised for hav-ing or framing a narrow definition, that I have any definition at all of my own. I make none. I have none. I simply find, and accept what I find. It would be an impertinence to come before you, or be-fore the world, and say. "This is my definition, and I call upon you to accept it." I have no definition of my own. I say, "There is the Church's definition of Christianity; there is the definition which Chris-tianity has written out on the great page of history for itself: take that." By that must the radical's position be determined, if I am sound in my view; by that definition of Christianity must we settle the question, Which is the true position to hold, the Christian, the Extra-Christian, or the Anti-Chris-tian? tian ?

Christian, the Extra-Christian, or the Anti-Chris-tian? It would be a very long and tiresome task, were I to go through the whole history of Christendom, and trace out for you what has been the working of Christianity, thus defined, in the world,—what it has done for man and what it has left undone; what good and what evil it has accomplished in the long course of the ages. Enough for me to say that in fairness we must credit to the Christian Church, and to Christianity thus defined, both the good and the evil they have done. We must recognize in Chris-tianity all the conserving and evolving powers it has called into play; we must recognize the great historic place that the Church filled in the middle ages, and still fills to a large extent to-day; we must accept with generous approval and hearty applause all the noble words that have dropped from the lips of Christian teachers, all the divine and beautiful deeds that have been done by Christian believers, all the sweet and beneficial influences that have proceeded from Christian souls; yes, amen to all that! I do ac-cept them, and I am grakeful for them. Far be it from me to disparage a single one of those noble and beautiful things. No! But I insist also upon the other side; I insist beautiful things. No! But I insist also upon the other side; I insist that you must also credit to the Christian Church the dom of the human mind. This ground may seem dogmatic and unsupported by truth; but I must take it, and go on. To say that Christianity is essentially an organized slavery of the human mind, may seem dogmatic, may seem harsh, may seem bitter, may seem malevolent; but it is the honest and earnest conviction of at least one man in this audience, and I can speak for no more. It is my deep conviction that the innermost spirit of Chris-served. If I am correct, then, in holding that Christianity itself is a denial of freedom, that this denial is in its very warp and well, and cannot be got out except by destroying the whole fabric, then I say that all free-dom-lovers, whether they know it or not, are Anti-Christians. I hold that every Protestant is more or less an Anti-Christian. I hold that every Liberal Christian is still more an Anti-Christian; I hold that the American Division and Anti-Christian; I hold that dom-lovers, whether they know it or not, are Anti-Christians. I hold that every Protestant is more of less an Anti-Christian. I hold that every Liberi Christian is still more an Anti-Christian; I hold that the Pree K- lipid that any and every body of mer who try to the Anti-Christian association; I hold that any and every body of mer who try to the breach and every body of mer who try to the breach and every body of mer who try to the breach and every body of mer who try to the the Anti-Christian association; I hold that any and every body of mer who try to the breach and every body of mer who try to the breach and every body of mer who try to the the addience, I suppose, to be other than intense activity to perpetuate slavery of the mind-I suppose there is none here, except it be perhaps a try Catholic, who will deny that the Catholic fourch is opposed to freedom. Very well, their every Catholic, who will deny that the Catholic, so far as the Protestant agrees with the Catholic, so far as the Protestant agrees also to belleve the fail of man, the depravity of man, the wrath of God, and salvation by Christ alone? Is not that in both their or here as a strention by the chains of ecclesiant(a) and the greater chains of ignorance. The may outside of Christianity denies all this, and there reason why the Catholic church cannot educe the people, and why it keeps the Scriptures in a maximum to ngue, and concentrates learning and inelligence in its own clergy. So is the everythere, where the submoded over the land. That is the reason friends, why the Protestant Evangelia body come for the work of the droman and obliged to within its communion, and yet a man who has brooded over the land. That is the reason who with the submation because his persecutions and obliged to within its communion, and yet a man who has been hounded down by persecution and obliged to within its communion, and yet a man who has been hounded down by persecution and obliged to within its communion, and yet a man who has there been unfair and unin

The provided of the provided o

<page-header>

mannan Google

rery respectable,—the Unitarian Association, I mean ų

representable,—the Unitarian Association, I mean. I we draw there by an intense desire to witness the last battle between Christianity and freedom. I mean statution thereform do our friend Mr. Potter's neares statung me in the face, and vendered how there. I saw those good men (good on both dides; conservatives good, radicals good; both earnest, both honest in the main, and filed with a good spirit), I saw them battling and striving to get over an historic necessity which was too strong for all their efforts. They were all pledged at the outset to be Christians; they, not tail into quirdin the man our Christians; they not call hims quirdin the man our Christians; they not call hims quirdin the man our Christians; they not call hims quirdin the man our Christians; they not call hims quirdin the man our Christians in a discredit to any man to say he cannot accom-plink a contradiction. They had to choice the who will not call himself a Christian. Well, friends, it is no discredit to any man to say he cannot accom-plink a contradiction. They had to choice the seven on et wo things: they must either take in a Non-Christian and thereby sacrifice the Christian ground they profess to occupy, or else they must ex-cina. How could they heip themselves? It was not their say close to rotain the filowship of a man prime of the theorem they profess to carry of the seven on of two things: they must exident of the seven on or two things: the the fault if or the sake of remaining all Chris-tian. On or two they cross two the group of the the sake of remaining all Chris-tian of motion a logical necessity, working and compelling the to accure momense whom they love and honor from their common followship. Certainly they then the sake and counds, this sepre-son of individual libery. " The the hard fact which we cannot get over: the the hard fact which we cannot get over: they do the sake of the great samity in Mith seven the hard fact which we cannot the they compare the hard fact which we cannot the they shard their save do no special faiths must give way to that at last; and then for the first time will the spirit of Anti-Christianity, which is simply the spirit of pro-freedom, become universal throughout the world. That is the coming of the unbroken human fellowship, and the unfet-tered union of soul with soul in the love of truth and the love of man, and the common upsurging of the human heart to that Power which we so little know, but from which we cannot withhold the allegiance of our immost being. our inmost being.

[For THE INDEX.] ECCLESIASTICAL TRIALS.

BY BISHOP FERRETTE.

<text>

adopt this course, we should demand your resigna-tion." It seems to me wonderful that the churches of this country have not thought ere this of adopting a mode of procedure so simple. The only cases which should ever publicly come before ecclestastical courts are those concerning the respective Orthodoxies of the various sects, as a court of law "will be no judge of such matters." That is, in most countries it will not, but in England and America it will, as the great modern revolution which, in Europe, separated the Church from the State, never really extended to countries governed by the Anglo-Saxon law. So in England and in most of the American States, if not in all, when a legacy has been made, say to the first Presbyterian Church of such a city,—if a part of the congregation with the minister, as the age is progressing, happen to adopt views less absurd than those of the Confession of Faith for the support of which the legacy was made, a court of law has gravely to sit as a theological court; and, though composed of Jews and Papists and infi-dels, to decide on the precise amount of depravity of Presbyterian babies, and to say whether the pastor, as a good Presbyterian within the terms of the Con-fession of Faith, is to be maintained in his emolu-ments, or whether he is to be turned out as a heretic. The sheriff then executes the sentence, by force if it is needed. is needed.

is needed. Such a relic of medlaval rubbish in the codes of the enlightened American States, as late as nearly the last quarter of the nineteenth century, belongs really to what we may call THE HUMORS OF LAW, and ab-solutely calls for legislative reform. Additional legis-lation is also required for putting down the public nuisance of criminal trials by so-called ecclesiastical courts, or by any other private parties.

[For THE INDEX.]

INTOLEBANCE AT THE SOUTH.

ALEXANDRIA, La., August 29, 1874. MR. EDITOR :-

There is no doubt of Mr. Pillebury's position that There is no doubt of Mr. Fillsbury's position that the Christians of the South universally justified the institution of slavery by the teachings of the Bible, and that through their influence the people were en-couraged in the most inhuman treatment of their slaves; and finally, with a religious fervor scarcely equalled in the annals of history, to enact with pious zeal the most barbarous laws that ever disgraced a statute book.

equalized in the annals of history, to enact with pious seal the most barbarous laws that ever disgraced a statute book. These facts I have verified by actual observation and study in the South since 1850. Up to the close of the war it was worth a man's liberty, if not his neck, in many places, to proclaim abolition sentiments. Political and religious intolerance was and still is the marked characteristic of the Southern mind. This is manifested in the ostracism attempted, as well as the many brutal murders that have disgraced the country since the war. Viewing the matter from my standpoint, I think I can anfely say from experience, without fear of suc-cessful contradiction, that the Christians all over the South have not only been the most barbarously in-human masters, but' they have in politics view with each other as holy inquisitors in ferreting out and persecuting people of supposed antislavery senti-ments; while on the contrary the free-thinkers gene-rally were the notoriously humane. My mind now rests, as I hurriedly write, upon three prominent examples at this place. Gov. J. M. Wells, an old line whig, and the staunch-est Union man of the State, was a heavy slave-owner, a humane master, an emancipationist, and free-thinker; and finally, to save his life, he was with his sons compelled to flee to New Orleans for the pro-tection of the Government and army under General Banks. Smith Gordon, also a heavy slave-holder, was a

Banks.

his sons compelled to fiee to New Orleans for the pro-tection of the Government and army under General Banks. Smith Gordon, also a heavy slave-holder, was a free-thinker, and notoriously one of the most hu-mane of masters. He died before the war. Dr. J. Casson, one of your subscribers (and, by the way, one of the ablest physicians and most learned men in our State), was notoriously one of the most humane and kind-hearted of masters. Many years ago when he inherited eight slaves from his parents (all the property he then had save a little landed property), he at once took them to Ohio, set them free, and provided for their education. On returning to this parish (Rapids), his native bome, the religious and political fanatics had so polsoned the public mind against him on account of his acts that he removed to California, where he fol-lowed his profession for several years. He has since returned, and now enjoys a large if not lucrative practice. The fanatical prejudice against him has not yet died out; his superior acquirements, however, together with the result of the war and his charitable nature, has disarmed intolerance of its venom. He, too, is a freethinker. I might mention hundreds of others all over Louisians. It might be a pleasure to place in contrast the many bright sides of the picture, for surely there were many deserving of notice which to s casual observer served to amellorate the foul blot of slavery upon the pages of our nation's history; but these softening scenes sprang not from the Chris-tan side of the picture, but from the liberal and athelsic side. The truth is that Christianity, from about the year 1840, attempted in the South to yistify, if not sanctify, this vile institution by Bible authority against every principle of natural morality and the dictates of human nature. Christianity formished an excuse for every species of villany and oppression, sanctified it by the so-uled most of God ared the laws of man. Strange to human nature. Christianity furnished an excuse for every species of villany and oppression, sanctified it by the so-called word of God and the laws of man. Strange to say, the religious portion of the community, together with the worst class of thoughtless young men of Louisiana, are to day our White Leaguers, the human butchers of the country. It is they who patronize such vile sheets as the New York Day Book, wherein I notice a leader in the issue of July 11, 1874, speaking of Gerrit Smith, the re-nowned scholar and humanitarian, in the following language:-

language:--"What a life this old heathen has lived, to be sure l the sole consistency in which is his warfare sgainst the Christian religion; for not only has he done this openly and directly, but all his other labors, and espe-cially those in regard to the negro, necessarily tend to blot it out uiterly." It is mainful to share home to Christianity in the blot it out utterly." It is painful to charge home to Christianlty in the South the many injulities I know to be facts,—to ac-cuse Christians of being the sycophantic followers of public passion, of justifying the "peculiar institu-tion" in all of its horrid enormities, instead of at-tempting to direct public sentiment and morals. The priesthood, whether Catholic or Protestant,

Digition of GOOGLE

have heretofore fostered and still foster public depra have heretofore fostered and still foster public deprav-ity. They scout at all reforms wherein humanity is most concerned, as a violation of Bible doctrines and the Divine dispensation. The exertion of The Home Mission Herald of New York is the only apparently healthy effort, outside of our public school system. I have seen put forth by any Ohristian sect since the war. Although the negrose have made rapid advances in some sections towards acquiring the fundamental branches of an education, still as a general rule their progress has been so slight as acarcely to be appreci-able. Out of 280.000 educable children in Louisiana, only able. Out of 280,000 educable children in Louisiana, only about 53,000 attended our public schools last year. Fully seventy-five per cent. of our entire population can neither read nor write. The most indifferent teacher finds no trouble in earning from fifty to seventy-five dollars per month. The colored people are anxious to learn, but have no suitable teachers, or part to none comparatively.

It is the nature of those who from want of mental discipline are incapable of reasoning for themselves, to rely upon authority. Christ, Summer, and Lincoln are the authoritative triad of the colored people gene-

The politicians and priests alike seek to delude these people, and inflame their passions; none seem willing to instruct them even in the rudimental branches. There is a strong prejudice here, mainly originating from the Catholics, against a compulsory education law; hence we have as yet failed to enact and education law; hence we have as yet failed to enace one. There is a wide field in the South for the liberal-minded teacher which the Liberals of the North and elsewhere ought to improve. Out of the 4,600,000 recently enfranchised slaves, very few have any education whatever. The elder ones can never expect to receive any moral or mental training farther than what can be acquired from the pulpit, the stump, or the rostrum of the public lec-turer. Their natural preference is for teachers, preachers, and lecturers of their own color. The antagonism manifested in the South between the two races springs mainly from the following causes:-

 Labor has always been regarded as disreputable by the white people of the South, and now they are too poor to hire laborers, and too proud to be seen at work themselves.

work themselves. 2. Their priests have so long taught them to hate the Yankees, that in their absence they make the negro the scape-goat of their own idleness, as the vis-ible cause of all their poverty and wretchedness. 3. The negro, in bis growing appreciation of his manhood as a freeman, is led to assert his rights as a man under the law, which his former master will in no wise allow or tolerate; hence the negro labors for him indifferently,—is suilen and morose. The first great duty of the public press, the politi-cian, the lecturer, and the teacher toward the Southern-people is to teach them that labor is honorable, and the quaint old adage of Franklin is true:— "He who by the plongh would thrive.

"He who by the plough would thrive, Himself must either hold or drive."

Yours,

SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

J. M.

CONCLUSION OF THE ADDRESS BY PROFESSOR TYN-DALL BEFORE THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

CONCLUSION OF THE ADDRESS BY PROFESSOR TYN-BAUNCEMENT OF SCIENC.

sured by Democritus, and as defined for generations in our scientific text-books, the absolute impossibility of any form of life coming out of it would be suff-clent to render any other hypothesis preferable; but the definitions of matter given in our text-books were intended to cover its purely physical and mechanical properties. And, taught as we have been to regard ithese definitions as complete, we naturally and right-ity reject the monstrous notion that out of such mat-ter any form of life could possibly arise. But are the definitions complete? Everything depends on the answer to be given to this question. Trace the line of life backwards, and see it approaching more and more to what we call the purely physical condi-tion. We reach at length those organisms which I have compared to drops of oll suspended in a mixture of alcohol and water. We reach the protogenes of Hackel, in which we have "a type distinguishable from a fragment of albumen only by its finely granu-lar character." Can we pause here? We break a magnet and find two poles in each of its fragments. We continue the process of breaking, but, however small the pairity of the whole. And, when we can break no longer, we prolong the intellectual vision to the polar molecules. Are we not urged to do some-bled, the polarity of the whole. And, when we can break no longer, we prolong the intellectual vision to the polar molecules. Are we not urged to do some-thing similar in the case of life? I shore not a temptation to close to some extent with Lucretius, when he affirms that "Nature is seen to do all things or with Bruno, when he declares that matter is not "that mere empty capacity which philosophers have pictured her to be, but the universal mother, who brigs forth all things as the fruit of her own womb"? The questions here raised are inevitable. They are approaching us with accelerated speed, and it is wordby?

The questions here raised are inevitable. They are approaching us with accelerated speed, and it is not a matter of indifference whether they are introduced with reverence. A bandoning all disguise, the confession that I feel bound to make before you is that I prolong the vision back, and discern in that matter, which we in our ignorance, and notwithstanding our professed reverence for its creator, have hither of covered with opprobrium, the promise and potency of every form and quality of life. The "materialism" here enunciated may be different from what you suppose, and I therefore crave your gracious patience, to the end. "The question of an external world," say Mr. J. S. Mill, "is the great battle-ground of metaphysics." Mr. Mill himself reduces external phenomena to possibilities of senastion. Kant, as where seen, made time and space "forms" of our own constitutions. Fichte, having first, by the inexcrable logic of his understanding, proved binself to be a mere link in that chain of eternal causation, which holds ao rigidly in Nature, violently broke the chain by making Nature and all that it inherits an apparition of bis own mind. And it is byno meane easy to combat such notions. For when I say I see you, and that I have not the least doubt about it, the reply is that what I am really conscious of is not that you are there, but that the nerves of my hand have undergome a change. All we hear, and see, and touch, and taste, and smell are, it would be that I am equality transgressing the limits of fact; for what I am really conscious of an inference, to which all validity would be derived by an idealist like Berkeley, or by a sceptic like Hume. No should be differentiated, who thinks that the world real voluction, beyond which, even to the eastend of a hair's breadth, we cannot go. That anything answering to our impressions exists outcide of ourselvers is not a fact but an inference, to which all validity would be derived by an idealist like Berkeley, or by a sceptic like Hume. Miseley foro

But we try to soar in a vacuum the moment we seek to comprehend the connection between them.

177, 1874.

ferred to, but the love of the beautiful, physical, and moral, in nature, poetry, and art. There is also has deep set feeling which, since the earliest dawn of history, and probably for ages prior to all history, in-corporated itself in the religions of the world. You who have escaped from these religions into the high and dry light of the understanding may deride them; but in so doing you deride accidents of form merity, and fail to touch the immovable basis of the religions sentiment in the emotional nature of man. To yield this sentiment reasonable satisfaction is the problem <text>

Distance GOOD

every effort towards the bettering of man's estate. Single-handed, and supported not by outward sympa-thy but by inward force, it has built at least one great wing of the many-mansioned home which man in his is totality demands. And if rough walls and protruding rafter ends indicate that on one side the edifice is still incomplete, it is only by wise combination of the parts required with those already irrevocably built that we can hope for completeness. There is no necessary incongruity between, what has been accomplished and what remains to be done. The moral give of Socrates, which we all feel by ignition, has in it noting incompatible with the physics of Anarazors which be so much acorned, but which he would hardly score to-day. And here 1 am reminded of one among us, hoary, but still strong, whose prophetoics some that y, and there is an obleness is latent in its most gifted minds—one fit to stand basid socrates or the Maccabean Eleazer, and to dare and sufficient. The shows and utilize all that they dared and suffered—fits as he one seal of Fichte. 'We have been the teacher of the Stos, and to have discoursed of beauty and vitue in physica of Anadema.'' With a capacity to grasp physical principles which has friend Goothe did not obsen able to reduce to atrophy, it is the world's loss thind and sympathies to cleanes, and make it is conclusion a portion of his message to mankind. Marreliously endwel as the examplication of a spirit and in the word did of peace. And now the end is come. With a socrate it and the understanding,—he might world now the service of the signification in the word of peace. And now the end is come. The socrate more did with the reduce to a socrate its and in the word is not well together in unity of spirit and in the word of peace. And now the service of the signification the with the second prove the set end is to reduce the state of the socrate in the second prove the second prow

24.5

14 - F

「ため」

1.24112

1.21 2

ά;

22

4 記

 $\mathbb{C}_{2}$

THE RELIGIOUS CONDITION OF FRANCE.

THE RELIGIOUS CONDITION OF FRANCE. The distinguished French divine, Dr. E. de Pres-sensé, contributes to the International Review for September a very interesting and instructive survey of the present religious condition of France. The chronic instability of French political institutions he explains by the general unwillingness to sacrifice preference to judgment; and by the fact that the con-political motives, clericalism in the form of royalism having formed the project of reconquering France. Since the wild outbreak of the Revolution, the Ultra-montane school has grown in importance every day. Liberal Catholiciem was absolutely prostrated by the Gouncil of 1870, with its afirmation of the dogua of Papal Infallibility. Henceforth the pulpit teaching of Ultramoutanism is nothing more than a feverish exaltation of the Papacy. The miracles of Lourdes and La Salette coined money for the church treasury; and in the pilgrimages to these shrines the acciama-tion "Long live Henry V." has been blended with the cry "Long live the Pope and his temporal power." The Catholic party has domineered over public in-struction, discarding the great system of compulsory education; it has clamored for great Ultramontane universities in order to create a breach in similar lay institutions; it seeks to usurp authority over the national army; and it inspires the Government with prejudices against universal religious liberty. Antgonized to this oppressive Church influence is found a radical unbelief, which does not contend simply against religious observances, but against re-ligion itself. The positivism of Conte, the material-ism of Büchner, the panthelam of Rénan, with the school of English scepticism, have resulted in a marked intellectual movement tending to lead the minds of men far from the cause of Christianity, and trom all that is spiritual. This tendency has been ac-celerated by the antipathy aroused by the extreme demands of Ultramontanism, and it is this, in the opinion of Dr. Presensé, which constitutes the grav-est side of the situation. From an absolute faith men have sunk to the depths of a fearful scepticism, or a materialism which neither acknowledges the soul nor God. This unbelief, instead of being con-fined to the cultured and scholarly circles of society, has pervaded the laboring classes, inspiring them with a furious hatred for everything which suggests relig-tor.

And the second secon

Tract the popular mind and heart.—Boston Journal. The statement regarding the new growth of pectoral and tail-fins of various fresh-water fish has been proven in the aquarium of the Boston Young Men's Chris-tian Union. The discovery was made by Prof. F. W. Clarke, who communicated the fact to the American Naturalist. It appears that in the spring of 1873 a fish-fungus made its appearance in the tank, and several fine fishes died. Among the specimens at-tacked by the fungus was a young gold-fish, which, by some unknown means, had lost its tail-fin. The fungus covered the whole stump of the tail; the fish became sick, and was apparently dying. Mr. Clarke's attention having been called to the case, he at once concluded that he had some parasite to deal with, and resolved to exterminate it. He applied a few drops of nitrie acid to the tail-stump, allowing it to remain a moment or two, and put the fish back in the tank. In the parasite, of course, was killed; the patches of fungus sloughed off, and the fish was soon well. In the course of a few days he though the eaw the fun-gus again appearing on the affected part; but, on looking closely, found that the appearance was really due to the growth of new rays. A month later, a new tail-fin, about a fourth of an inch long, had ap-peared, and three months from the time of the experi-ment the fish was undistinguishable from others of the same species in the aquarium.—Commoncedith.

ENGLAND'S DEBT AND WEALTH.—The whole national debt of Great Britain, amounting to $3,700,-000,000, and all British municipal debts, estimated at $500,000,000, are held by English capitalists. Bonds of other nations, including those of political and municipal subdivisions of other countries, are owned in England to an estimated amount fully equal to the total British debt. The debts of all kinds due to the capitalists of Great Britain by the nations of the East yield, it is stated, $500,000,000 per annum, indi-cating, at a general average of from six to seven per cent. for interest, a principal of $8,000,000,000.

Doetry.

[For THE INDEX.] A PRISONER

A captive bird with broken wing, I strive to soar, I strive to sing; Unheard my feeble warblings die, Repeating oft one enger cry: "Better one hour of liberty Than ages of captivity!"

I watch the flight of upward wings; From azure heights the rapture rings Through morning's sunny hours, while I, Imprisoned, only gaze and sigh, And beat my bars and watch and wait, Unhoping freedom soon or inte.

I mind me of those earlier days When life was filled with tuneful lays. The shady wildwood's green retreat, Where just to be allve was aweet; While fair the future stretched screne, Lost in a baze of heavenly sheen.

When this brief life is overpast, A heap of ashes at the last, Shall I return to mother earth, And never know another birth? What matter whether free or chained. If naughabeyond this life be gained ?

Nay! I am sure that God doth keep, Beyond Death's pale, mysterious al Some recompense for such as I; He will not mock me with a lie! He gave my soul's unquenched desire

For something nobler, purer, higher. And fairer regions now unknown Will be my spirit's final home, While each high longing here repressed Will find its utmost aim expressed: A life of endless growth will be The sweetest joy of being free!

GRACE MORVEN.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WREE ENDING SEPTEMBER 12.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 12. G. H. FOSIEr, 45 cents; W. Willouth, 40 cents; H. D. Lyman, 75 cents; A. Milliams & Co., 88 cents; F. A. Angell, 35 cents; A. J. Davis & Co., 81 cents; A. Wulppic, 96; W. Storey, 32. Charles I. Church, $3; R. M. Wulppic, 96; B. C. Magie, 75 cents; Lewis G. Janes, 84; Anstin Koss, 82; John Hardy, $3; W. S. George, $3; S. P. Putnam, $3; A. A. Grouse, $5; M. E. Matin, $4; H. B. Buck, $2; J. F. Adams, $5; A. Klebe, $4; T. H. Evarts, $2,25; John S. Baldwin, $2; J. F. Adams, $5; A. Klebe, $4; T. H. Evarts, $2,25; John S. Baldwin, $2; M. F. Matin, $4; H. B. Buck, Si Marshall Pierce, $1,30; M. H. Isbell, $1,30; Jndeon A. Gager, $1,60; D. R. Lamson, $1; C. Hazqline, $1; J. P. Smith, $2; H. L. Halb, $1,50; S. S. Hunting, $2; Johas C. Balgway, $3; Leirapith, $2; J. Janes Dillaway, $3; Hariy Deering, $2; John L. Butin, $1; G. G. Briggs, $5; C. N. Harlow, $2; J. John Brakle, $5; E. S. Cross, $5; D. E. de Lara, $3; Henry C. Finney, $2; Julia E. Miller, $3; Henry Deering, $2; J. Ohn Z. Brakler, $5; D. E. Miller, $5; E. R. Honey, 75 cents; A. d'Erlach, 76 cents; S. H. Holmes, 76 cents; G. Shields, Frank J. Mead, $4,10; W. Barker, $1; Benj, S. Brites, 75 cents; Frank J. Mead, $4,10; W. Barker, $1; Benj, S. Brites, 75 cents; A. H. K. Loring, 54 cents; A. Harlow, $5; cents; N. Barker, $1; Benj, S. Brites, 75 cents; S. M. Barker, $1; Benj, S. Brites, 75 cents; S. M. Loring, 55 cents; S. A. Micory, 55 cents; S. A. Harlow, 55 cents; A. Barker, $1; Benj, S. Brites, 75 cents; S. Barnard, 35 cents; S. Barnard, 35 cents; S. Barnard, 35 cents; S. Barnard, 55 cents; S. All recelpts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and Starnard, 50 cents; S. A. Starnard, 50 cents; S. All recelpts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and Starnard, Starnard, Prime J. Mean, 94.10; Wien, Barker, 31; Benj, S. Brice, io cents; A. K. Loring, 24 cents; S. Sarnard, 55 cents.

 All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent unleas specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.
 N. B.--Please remit by post-office money-order, by registered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to disconnt, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit, N. B.--Diders for Tracts or single numbers of The Empty which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be otherwise filled to the same amount without further notice.
 N. B.--Postage on TIE INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first aumber, payable in advance at the place of delivery.
 N. B.--Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your interior.

BECEIVED.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

PLATO, PHILO, AND PAUL: or, The Pagan Conception of a "Divine Logos" shown to have been the Basis of the Christian Dogma of the Deity of Christ. By Rev. J. W. Lake. London: Thomas Scott. (Price, one shilling. pp.

78.] HALF-HOUR REGESTIONS IN POPULAR SCIENCE. No. The Circulation of the Waters on the Surface of the East By H. W. Dove. What is Actinism? Boston: Estes Toucht?

- <sup>101</sup>
  <

Tumpzer by Google

PART OF Professor Tyndall's address is republished on another page. If we had not begun to reprint the three addresses on Christianity, just before securing a complete copy of it, we should have reproduced it in full. What we now republish is enough to accompany our editorial comments without injustice to the distinguished Professor.

TYNDALL'S ADDRESS.

The address of Professor Tyndall before the British Association at Belfast, on August 19, is attracting a degree of attention which shows afresh the wide and deep interest taken in seemingly abstract speculation. It is marked by the usual lucidity and elegance of his style, and also by a somewhat baffling vagueness of thought on the fundamental problems he discusses. Professor Tyndall ranks very high among the students, promoters, and expositors science, and has won a world-wide reputation by the charms of his literary culture and the exquisite beauty of his spirit; but those who look to him for a permanent enlargement or advancement of the philosophy of science will scarcely be helped by his present address. Some criticisms and reflections ang gested by it will not be out of place here, though it will not be possible to go into a detailed discussion of the points involved.

Apparently Professor Tyndall makes a "new departne" in the direction of "materialism," or at least is supposed quite generally to do so, "Abandoning all disguise," as he expresses himself, he now "feels bound" to "make a confession" that he discerns in matter the "promise and potency of every form and quality of life." But it is difficult to see what disguise he has abandoned. He had already said as much, and quite as explicitly, before. In his address on "The Scope and Limit of Scientific Materialism," delivered before the mathematical and physical section of the British Association at Norwich, August 10, 1868, he said: "You see I am not mincing matters, but avowing nakedly what many scientific thinkers more or less distinctly believe. The formation of a crystal, a plant, or an animal, is in their eyes a purely mechanical problem, which differs from the problems of ordinary mechanics in the smallness of the masses and the complexity of the processes involved." In this same address, however, he also says: "In affirming that the growth of the body is mechanical, and that thought, as exercised by us, has its correlative in the physics of the brain, I think the position of the 'materialist' is stated, so far as that position is a tenable one. I think the materialist will be able finally to maintain this position against all attacks; but I do not think, in the present condition of the human mind, that he can pass beyond this position. I do not think he is entitled to say that his molecular groupings and his molecular motions explain everything. In reality they explain nothing. The utmost he can affirm is the association of two classes of phenomena, of whose real bond of union he is in absolute ignorance. The problem of the connection of body and soul is as insoluble in its modern form as it was in the pre-scientific ages. . On both sides of the zone here assigned to the materialist, he is equally helpless. If you ask him whence is this 'matter' of which we have been discoursing, who or what divided it into molecules, who or what Impressed upon them this necessity of running into organic forms, he has no answer. . . . Let us lower our heads, and acknowledge our ignorance, priest and philosopher, one and all."

We cannot see that Professor Tyndall has said any more than this in his recent address. He now says: "Molecular force becomes structural. It required no great boldness of thought to extend its play into or ganic nature, and to recognize in molecular force the agency by which both plants and animals are built up." But he also says still, as emphatically as before: "We can trace the development of a nervous system, and correlate with it the parallel phenomena of sensation and thought. We see with undoubting certainty that they go hand in hand. But we try to soar in a vacuum the moment we seek to comprehend the connection between them.... The same parallelism, without contact, or even approach to contact, is implied. There is no fusion possible between the two classes of facts [physical and psychical]—no motor energy in the intellect of man to carry it without logical rupture from the one to the other."

In both these addresses, therefore, the one delivered in 1868 and the other in 1874, Professor Tyndall advances substantially the same propositions; namely, that physics alone will account for the brain and all its motions,-that brain-motions are correlative with all thought-processes,-but that neither class of phenomena will explain the other. To him who would take advantage of his admissions to infer that "matter" can be taken as "explaining everything," Professor Tyndall replies by urging the arguments of idealism,-""and it is by no means easy to combat such notions." He seems to admit that he himself is unable to combat them, when he says: "The 'materialism' here enunciated may be different from what you suppose, and I therefore crave your gracious patience to the end ;" and when, after stating the idealist's position as represented by various thinkers, he winds up with these words: "Considered fundamentally, it is by the operation of an insoluble mystery that life is evolved, species differentiated, and mind unfolded from their prepotent elements in the immeasurable past. There is, you will observe, no very rank materialism here."

In fact, neither of these two addresses, if carefully analyzed, will be found to state anything more pronounced in the direction of materialism than is contained in an article of our own published in the Christian Examiner for March, 1866,-more than two years before the earlier address of Professor Tyndall was delivered. We shall be pardoned for quoting from this paper a few sentences here, though it was republished in THE INDEX for July 20 and 27, 1872. It will be seen that Professor Tyndall takes the identical position on this subject which we then took with equal precision and explicitness: "Two synchronous series of phenomena take place in the life of every human being, the one physical, the other mental. Admitting that all changes in the physical organism are changes of position among its component atoms, according to a certain order, it does not follow that all changes in the formation of intellectual and moral character are also re-arrangement of atoms; these are changes quite as real as the former, yet only rash and presumptuous hypothesis will pronounce them to be mere atomic re-distributions. The connection between these two orders of phenomena may be as close as you please, and it is undoubtedly very close; yet the want of parallelism between them is too great to suffer a true Positivism, at least in the present state of science, to fuse the two, or regard one as the efficient cause of the other. . . . Positivism, which is simply science true to herself, finds two radically distinct orders of phenomena presented to her observation and study,-the one material, the other mental; and, in her present stage of development, she can neither reduce one to the other, nor yet trace their ontological connection. Any hypothesis as to their ontological dualism or monism is at present premature, or at best can serve only as a convenient supposition which may turn out either a reality or a fiction. The philosophic instinct favors, perhaps, the theory of monism; but, until this instinct shall be either inductively or deductively justified by verification, the question between moniam and dualism must remain an open one. All fanciful guesses, however plausible, must be rigorously shut out from the sphere of science, and never elevated to the rank of positive results. . . . If physical science sneeringly objects that mental science proceeds on a sheer assumption of mind, the retort is cogent and crushing that physical science proceeds on the sheer assumption of matter. Who ever yet demonstrated the ex-Istence of either? Something must be given, as a ba sis, as the condition of all science, whether physical or mental; and the problem of the connection between these two bases, if it cannot be positively solved, may be indefinitely postponed. But this is clear, that, starting from matter alone, science can never arrive at mind; and, starting from mind alone, can never arrive at matter."

Nothing can be more clear, on close analysis, than that Professor Tyndall has not adopted "materialism" in the sense that "matter explains everything," or in the sense that it explains the "phenomena of sensation and thought." We repeat, then, comparing his two addresses, that we do not see what "disguise" he has "abandoned." Even the special form guise" he has "abandoned. Even the special form of "scientific materialism," which he has openly professed at least since 1868, seems to introduce elements into the conception of matter which make the term "materialism" far less descriptive of his philosophy than the term monism, which denotes the inherence of all phenomenal qualities in one sole substance. Referring to the reticence of Darwin and Spencer a to the origination of life, he says: "We need clearness and thoroughness here. Two courses, and two only, are possible. Either let us open our doors freely to the conception of creative acts, or, abandoning them, let us radically change our notions of malter." This is what he does. He idealizes matter, so to speak, by discarding the old Democritean conception of atoms for a conception which endows them with Inherent polar forces, and reduces the "activity of each animal" to the "transferred activities of its molecules." (By the way, why does Professor Tyndall, in his account of the atomistic philosophy, mention Democritus and Empedocles, but pass over Leucippus and Anaxagoras,-the latter of whom was forty years older than Democritus, and whose doctrine of homoiomere, or semina rerum, undoubtedly suggested to Democritus the atomic theory itself?) But it is precisely here that the difficulty of materialism in all its forms centres. So long a all motion is communicated from without, the laws of mechanics can be conceived as applying equally to molar and molecular motions; but how can they be conceived as applying to motions originating from within? For instance, the polarity of the whole magnet, according to Professor Tyndall, is the sum of the polarities of its molecules; all polarity must be traced ultimately to the molecule itself. That is, each molecule spontaneously manifests a polar force not referable to any outside cause, while this polar force acts as an outside cause upon all other mole-The fundamental conceptions of physics cules. break down here; they cannot explain why the opposite poles of the molecule should manifest opposite attractions, or indeed any attraction at all. Professor Tyndall comes to ponder more profoundly the enormous difficulty here indicated, we suspect that he will be driven to make a still more "radical change" in his "notions of matter." In fact, whether the notion of matter itself must not absolutely melt into that of force, is the next question; and how much even of "scientific materialism" will remain when that question is answered, is another question of absorbing philosophical interest. It will, we believe, be found that the present materialistic conception of substantial atoms permanently endowed with inherent forces or qualities must dissolve, under the influence of the new doctrine of the Conservation of Energy, into that of pure forces manifesting themselves under fixed conditions of ertension in space and, of permanence in time; and this atomo-dynamical conception, as it might be termed, is the reverse of materialistic in the ordinary meaning of the word. The analogies it suggests are more in barmony with the ordinary notion of "spirit" than with the ordinary notion of "matter," though neither of these words has, it is true, any strictly defined signification in popular use. Moreover, the assumption of an independent existence in the old atoms, which reduces the universe to a multiplicity insoluble in any real unity, must in some way give place to a philosophy which shall preserve equally the many and the one in its treatment of matter; and this, too, is a result of the atomo-dynamical theory. When the essential idea of matter has been thus fundamentally revolutionized, it is of little consequence whether matter or spirit is selected as the most fitting name for the one reality underlying all things. The distinctness of the two orders of phenomena, physical and psychical, will be preserved, without postulating two substances absolutely irreducible one to the other, while at least a path leading to their ultimate reduction will have been opened. Professor Tyndall has not carried his thought to the consideration of these root-problems, and leaves his subject, therefore, shrouded in no little obscurity. His arbitrary and unsatisfactory stoppage in "mystery" is not a procedure likely to prove universally imitable; while his admission of two ultimate orders of phenemens, coupled with his statement that "no fusion is possible" between them, however closely "correlated" they may be, is likely to act only as a powerful provocative of further speculation. A new philosophy is demanded by the present state of science, as the absolute condition of its advance beyond the bog in which it seems just now stuck fast; and sooner or Inter it will be developed.

mannan Google

22

14

190

а.

1.

5

-

 $\mathbb{R}_{2}$

Following Herbert Spencer with a fidelity to which that philosopher is by no means entitled, although his merits in many respects are indubitably great, Professor Tyndall settles down into the recognition of an "insoluble mystery" as the last word of modern science. "In fact, the whole process of evolution," he says, in an exposition of Spencer's thought which he apparently gives as also his own, "is the manifestation of a Power absolutely inscrutable to the intellect of man." Are we, then, shut down to the submissive acknowledgment that evolution is the manifestation of a Power which does not manifest itself? If so, science is degraded to the rank of the theological cosmogonies which Professor Tyndall so energetically repudiates, and the human intellect is driven to the hara-kiri of a new sacred contradiction, which it must accept by a new species of "faith." For one, we repudiate such science as we repudiate the theology of which it is the bastard offspring. Science that deserves the name will refuse to admit the existence of any "insoluble mystery." She must, by the very law of her being, assume that every mystery is soluble, and forthwith proceed to solve it. She recognizes the co-existence of the known and the unknown, and admits that the latter is probably vaster, nay, inconceivably vaster, than the former,-an admission she justifies solely on the ground of her own past experience; but she cannot possibly recognize the existence of the "unknowable," since even to affirm it would be to affirm some knowledge of it. The "Power" which manifests itself in "the whole process of evolution" manifests itself, does it not? It cannot, then, be "inscrutable to the intellect of man." The business of science is to study the maniman." festation of it, and not to cut her own throat by the confession that the "manifestation" of anything under heaven is "Inscrutable" to her. The unutterable shallowness of this Spencerian philosophy of "the unknowable," now so fashionable, is the intellectual disgrace of the century. It makes a quasi-God out of "the unknowable" by printing its name with a big U as "the Unknowable;" it sets aside "theism, pantheism, and atheism" as equally untenable, notwithstanding the fact that, by the law of contradiction, either theism or atheism must be true (pantheism be ing merely one form of theism); and so it contrives to cheat its deluded followers into believing that philosophy sits between yes and no on the little end of nothing whittled down to a point. It is enough to make every thinker blush with shame to see philosophy so villainously impaled. Most certainly the humiliating spectacle will be a brief one. Compared with this farce of a philosophy, straight-out atheism is infinitely respectable. The issue raised by modern scientific reflection is a serious and honest one; does God exist or not? The answer must be as honest as the question : yes or no. Science herself must give the answer, for science herself propounds the question; and, as our readers' already understand, we belleve her answer will be yes. That is the true state of the case; and we are sorry to see Professor Tyndall helping to confuse the public mind still further by reiterating Herbert Spencer's meaningless jargon on the subject. There is no religion in ignorance; but there is religion in a knowledge that seeks to les sen its own ignorance. There is no religion in mystification, or in the apotheosis of "insoluble mystery;" but there is religion in the modest recognition of a mystery which we are here to solve, and thereby to convert into known and putritions truth. That we shall solve it all, least of all in our own day, is not to be expected; but to give up the attempt to solve it on the plea that it is insoluble, is to bury our talent in the earth because we know that we have a hard master.

For one, we refuse to juggle, or be juggled with, by this empty gibberish of "the unknowable" or "the inscrutable." The "Power" which confessedly manifests itself in the process of evolution is not only to be studied but known in and through its manifestations or effects; that is, in and through the grand order of Nature, the adaptation of part to part in the organic and limitless whole, the eternal series of sequences according to law by which it has been developed. Admitting that but an "infinitesimal span" of the wondrous "cosmical life" is as yet known to us, science has already taught us to seek its explanation in one omnipresent cause. If we consider this one cause to be matter, even in Professor Tyndall's enlarged use of the word, we are defeated in the search for real unity, which is excluded by his illimitable multitude of self aubsistent molecules; we can find it only in such a philosophy of atoms as shall show them to be indeed "manifestations" of a unitary energy or "Power." That is, the way out of Tyndall's imperfect materialism is clear through it into a philosophy which may be called materialistic or spiritualistic as you please, yet which shall recognize the infinite "cosmical life" as embracing our little human life, not as an allen thing, but as part and parcel of itself. What we require is a more radical treatment of science itself, sure that such a treatment will leave abundant room for every sentiment that now ennobles man, without imposing on him the dire necessity of pouring contempt upon his own "un-derstanding," or of narrowing religion down to a mere emotion or feeling, as Professor Tyndall does. We plead for a religion that shall not be at swords' points with thought, but shall thrive in and through thought; as Tyndall refuses to divorce science from literature, we too refuse to recognize the divorce which he himself would make between science and religion; and we thus do only what he gently rebukes Carlyle for not doing-"open his mind and sympathies to science, and make its conclusions a portion of his message to mankind." We too have a "message," none the less true that we cannot clothe it with the garb of beauty and eloquence with which Carlyle has sent forth his message radiant to the world. It is that Religion is the free effort of man to expand, elevate, enlarge, beautify,-in one word, perfect-his own nature in all its aspects, not by any means neglecting his nobler part, his intellect and reason; and that this effort of his to realize his own ideal by a natural process of free development is the mirroring in his little career of Nature's own religion-her own endless striving to realize an unsttained better for which there is no name but Evolution.

VIRTUOUS IN SPOTS.

What is it to be virtuous? It is well for us to find out, if we can; because this is the demand which is made upon us by society, and is, moreover, the aim of every thoughtful, earnest man and woman.

Society, I say, demands of us that we be virtuous. The basis of this demand is utility. Society could not exist unless its members were virtuous. Good order, quiet, security for the rights of the individual and the rights of all, could not be maintained unless virtue abided in the chafacter and conduct of each man and woman.

But society not only demands that we be virtuous; it goes farther and prescribes to us a standard of virtue. To a limited extent, this also is necessary and right. We cannot live together in peace except we observe certain general rules and regulations, which no one in particular makes, but which all make, and which each and all agree to live by and maintain. There is a true science of society; and this true science is a general knowledge of, and a general consent to, certain laws and principles which must govern social living.

But society must be very wise in prescribing a rule of conduct to its members. It must not go too far in taking responsibility from the individual. It is individual virtue that is the great desideratum; for, unless we have virtuous individuals, we cannot have a virtuous society. Personal character is, after all, the finest fruit which can be grown in a true society. We demur to the notion that the species is of more consequence than the Individual. The species is nowhere without the individual, who is at once its root and its branches. Society, therefore, must encourage the individual to find out for himself what virtue is; and, having found out, to practise it in his own way so far as he can without interfering with anybody else. More or less of experimentation is required even to find out what it is to be virtuous. Let the individual experiment as well as society. The risk is largely his; the responsibility should be also. Society shall stand by while the individual thus learns from experience; and interference on its part shall be only for self-protection. Public sentiment should be a means of education rather than of coercion, -a warning, an illustration, an encouragement, a counsel, a help; for this public sentiment is really only general wisdom accumulated by individual experience. It is sometimes right, and sometimes wrong. It is never wholly right; and, probably, it is never wholly wrong. But history abounds with clear cases where the individual has known, not only what was best for himself, but what was best for so-"One clety, much better than society itself has. with God is a majority,"-as to wisdom this has been proven true again and again.

But both the individual and society, at the best, learn slowly. There is plenty of conceit and vanity, and foolishness and perversity, and ignorance and stubbornness on both sides. While we are learning what virtue is, in all its broadness and thoroughness, we in the meanwhile are contenting ourselves with being virtuous in spots. One man does not drink intoxicating liquors, and he calls that being temperate. But no person, except he be a "temperance" fanatic, is satisfied with this definition of temperance. The "temperance" of some men is more in-temperate than the "intemperance" of some other men. To be truly temperate means a great deal more than to be either moderate or abstinent as to spirituous liquors. The glutton, or the coarse feeder, is not temperate, even though he uses neither wine nor beer nor cider. Cicero, the pagan, had a better notion of temperance than prevails among some of our Christian, and even radical, temperance men. "Temperance," says Cicero, "is that which, either in things to be desired or to be shunned, teaches that reason should be followed." And Plato says: "Temperance consists in not being carried away by the passions, but in holding them in contempt, and keeping them in subjection."

There are other persons, again, who, in addition to eschewing all intoxicating drinks, never smoke or use tobacco in any form, and never swear; and these consider themselves free from all "bad habits" and "small vices." Yet sometimes these same persons are jealoue, suspicious, irritable, selfish, and mean. Is it not as bad to "feel swear" and "think swear," as to say "swear words"? When a boy, we once worked for an Orthodox deacon. He never swore at us; he never set us the "bad example" of drinking, amoking, or chewing. But he often made our days miserable by his cross, ugly, and tyrannical disposition.

Some men, because they are the husband of one wife only, esteem themselves, and are esteemed, pure and chaste. We have no doubt that monogamy is the highest state in which man can live, and that one can experience the most complete purity and chastity in such a relation. But we are not so sure that all who live in that relation at present are thoroughly pure and chaste. In order to have every doubt cleared from our mind that any given man who is the husband of only one wife is pure and chaste even under such circumstances, we should want not only his testimony but the testimony of his "one wife." Legal marriage alone does not confer purity and chastity upon the sexual relation. For these we must look deeper than law. We must look into those chivalrous instincts of manly character that make a man bow before the shrine of womanhood wedded or unwedded, and hold him back from the least headstrong thought or wish or gesture which might impair woman's self-respect, or trench upon her sacred prerogative.

To be virtuous is to be self-controlled in all respects and in all directions. To be virtuous is to obey the law of right reason in all things. To be virtuous is to be self-poised and equable,—free and spontaneous, yet steady and firm. Virtue resides not in any one part or function of the body, but in personal character; in the whole animus of the man or woman. It is to be determined, not so much by what one thinks or says or does at a given time, but by the general tone, tendency, atmosphere, and influence of one's personality. Virtue is something essential, not something external. It is not some thing, but something.

Virtue is strength. And yet it is not more strength than it is beauty. "Beauty of holiness," says the Scripture. Yes; and beauty of virtue, too. Some "sinners" are more agreeable than some "saints." "Mother," said the daughter of a distinguished Methodist layman in this State,-"Mother, somehow I like the unconverted young men better than I do those who have experienced religion !" The poor girl could not help it. And why should she? We love what is lovable; and if virtue is austere and cast-iron, or warped and fanatical, or conceited and supercillous, we shall not love it even though we feel we ought to. The thoroughly virtuous person possesses a certain dignity, gentleness, grace, and suavity of character which puts us in love with him or her as irresistibly as with stars and flowers, and beautiful youth and winsome children. A. W. 8. .

THE QUAKER CONTROVEBSY.

When Dr. Clarke invited Augustine Jones to read a lecture from his pulpit on Quakerism and its relation to the Universal Church, he performed a service to the Quaker society little anticipated by him. The lecture delivered by Mr. Jones, since published in pamphiet form, has given rise to a controversy in th branch of the society of which he is a member which, if it does not ultimately result in a schism, will at least lead to a material modification of opinions hitherto unquestioned. Mr. Jones' discourse purports to portray "The Principles, Methods, and History of the Society of Friends;" the writer has apparently endeavored to give such an account of Quakerism as he finds in the Quaker literature of which he has knowledge. His reading has led him to affirm that the "Inward Light" is the "fundamental doctrine of the society." This statement, so far from being accepted, is repudiated by many of his fellow-members, and is regarded as a heresy to be shunned and denounced.

Noticed by Google

The most important review of Mr. Jones which has come to our notice is written by Thomas Kimber, of Philadelphia, and is entitled "Early Quakerism Scriptural Christianity." The pedantry and parti-sanship which mark this production are in strong contrast to the genial and catholic tone of Mr. Jones' pamphlet. By dexterous quotations from the writings of Fox and other early Quakers to sustain his argument, Mr. Kimber attempts to obliterate the essential difference between Quakerism and the many Christian sects so prominent in the time of For. These sects, almost without exception, regarded the Bible, not simply as a divine revelation, but as the only revelation from God to man. Fox took issue with them on this point; he proclaimed the all-sufficiency of the Divine Light in the soul of man; this was his "one ideal;" he did not reject the Bible, but made it secondary and subordinate; the book was a sealed book until this Light revealed its meaning to him. In his journal he says: "The Lord opened to me by his invisible power how that every man was enlightened by the divine Light of Christ, This I saw in the pure openings of the Light without the help of any man; neither did I then know where to find it in the Scriptures, though afterwards, searching the Scriptures, I found it." On the same page he says: "They (the Scriptures) will not give a knowledge of "The letter is carnal and killeth." Robert Christ." Barclay speaks of some Friends "who could not read, . . . . and, being pressed by their adversaries with some citations out of the English translation. and finding them to disagree with the manifestation of the truth in their hearts, have boldly affirmed, 'The spirit of God never said so,' which, when on this account I seriously examined, I really found to be errors and corruptions of the translation." To quote Barclay again : "The letter of Scripture is outward ; of itself a dead thing-a mere declaration of good things, but not the thing itself." It seems to us impossible to rise from the study of Fox's Journal, Barclay's Apology, and other Quaker authorities, with warrant for any other statement of the cardinal principle of Quakerism than the one made by Mr. Jones.

Had our friend been as faithful in his study of the history of the society in its later days as he has been careful in his examination of its earlier career, he would have discovered that the controversy now launched by him, so far from being new, is the same as that which has already divided the Quakers in this country into two distinct organizations. Mr. Jones puts the number of yearly meetings in the world at thirteen, utterly ignoring the meetings of the Hicksite branch of the society. He seems to be refreshingly innocent of all knowledge of the separation that took place in this country in 1827, and of the existence of a large and influential body whose claim to the Quaker title is at least as good as that of the organization of which he is a member. About the year mentioned, a strong tendency was manifested by a large number of Friends to forsake the doctrine of the Inward Light for the "Scriptural Christianity" now advocated by Orthodox Friends. Elias Hicks, the most prominent preacher of that day, headed the opposition to this apostasy. Bitter controversy ensued, which resulted in the schism to which we allude, Numerically, the two branches were of nearly equal strength; what we may term the aristocracy of the society, however, having official control, disowned Hicks and those who sympathized with him.

While acquitting Mr. Jones of all intention of making a partisan statement, we cannot forbear to express astonishment at the possibility of any one's attempting to write a "history" of Friends without so much as knowing of, or at least recognizing, a branch of the society in this country which numbers Its members by thousands, and has for its most distinguished exponent the venerable Lucretia Mott. In view of this serious defect in Mr. Jones' essay, we are almost compelled to believe that Dr. Clarke was not especially fortunate in his selection of a Quaker representative. This criticism seems the more necessary because the policy of Orthodox Friends since the separation has been to repudiate what they call Hicksism as heresy, their test of Quakerism involving, as le emphatically shown by Mr. Kimber, a confession of faith in the creed of the evangelical churches.

So far from preaching heresy, Elias Hicks simply insisted upon referring to the Inward Light as the great corner-stone of the Quaker faith. Many conflicting doctrinal opinions were held by the early Quakers. From Fox, Barclay, and others, Hicks learned that agreement in doctrine is not essential to true Quakeriam. He accorded to each member the right to hold and to interpret doctrines as they were revealed by the Light within. B. P. H.

Communications.

"WHAT IS ATHEISM ?"

into them. Let us nonestry use old words with their accepted signification, and at least feel ourselves not moral cowards. Atheist signifies, by derivation, one without God; hence a disbeliever in God. Thus the definition hinges on the signification of the name God. When the word atheist was coined, no one dreamed of any other than a personal God, a Being of power chiefly, to whom was ascribed the creation and ordination of all of which man could not otherwise explain the ori-gin. The progress of science has materially lessened the aggregate of primeval creation, and promises to do so still more. The discovery of the method of natural evolution makes the present as wonderful as the past, and, though it diminishes adoration for the great invisible ido of the past, it deepens and in-creases honest reverence and humility. The horror that has long attended the name of atheist awakes in sensitive hearts a shrinking dread of it; and the character that can assume and glory in it is often of an aggressive and rudely independent disposition that attracts no followers. Hence we find shambling evasions, and free-thinkers saying: "O yes, I believe in God; listen, this is the God I believe in." For each has a God of his own invention. Loving souls, pitying the distress of the many who cannot recog-nize the old Trinitarian or Unitarian God, and yet dread atheism, comfort them with a confusion of li-eral and figurative language, thus: "God is the great cause of all things. "There is no atheist save he who disbelieves in cause and effect. To believe in a cause of all things is to believe in God." So says a heart more kind and loving than brave. It is not honest reasoning. As well say: "God is love; whoever be-lieves in love believes in God." Let us have a heart brave enough to follow where honest reasoning leads.

reasoning. As well say: "God is love; whoever be-lieves in lova believes in God." Let us have a heart brave enough to follow where honest reasoning leads. Many thinkers of to-day have outgrown belief in a personal deity who is first powerful; second, good; and third, incomprehensible to human intellect. Imagination gives place to investigation. "Truth is stranger than fiction." The wonders of daily life--if our eyes be but open to see them—are better fitted to arouse religious feeling than any mystle tale or strange legend the mind of man has ever fabricated. Why puzzle ourselves with infinities and a first cause, eternities and immortality? The words may sound well, but they mean nothing save vague impressions of the vastness of what is unknown; and even these impressions are deeper and more lasting if gained by investigation of what is known and present. Bellef in God—giving to the name God its generally accept-ed signification of personal deity representing always chiefly power—has been and still is in direct ratio to lgnorance of the resources of the natural world, and of the possibilities of buman nature. The author of the communication "What is Athe-ism?" explains away the word altogether, thus: "There is no athelist as ze he word altogether, thus:

The author of the communication "What is Athe-ism?" explains away the word altogether, thus: "There is no atheist save he who disbelieves in cause and effect." "Science knows but three states of mind: denial, conviction, and suspension of judg-ment; the latter is not atheism." Since none but an idiot can practically deny the relation of cause and effect-whatever French fame-seekers may have claimed as theory,-it follows there is no such thing as atheism. "That's nice!"-for those who dread the name. But if we be honest with ourselves, and widely accorded to it, it seems to me we are, in greater or less degree, all atheists together; and then 17. 1874.

[Above all things let us have honesty, in our think. ing and our speaking alike. This brave challenge to a higher sincerity must be respected by all the sincere. Perhaps, however, it is not insincerity that causes the reluctance to lay aside the pame God, but rather a conviction that this immemorial word is still the container of a truth that is less fittingly expressed by any other. Something else than a "loving heart" (though it would indeed be melancholy to be devoid of that) may make men cling to this grand old Saron root. Whoever is led by modern thought itself to scopviction that the central, creative, formative, and copservative principle of Nature is intelligent or spiritual in essence, agrees with more than he differs from those who believe in a "personal God," and may without concession to prejudice accept the words still. There is no strangeness or impropriety, in our opinion, in using the name God in any sense which retains the thought of self-conscious being in absolute illimitation; but we do not for an instant doubt that there are those who reject this thought as false,-who therefore are rightly termed athelets, and would be wrongly termed anything else. When we too reject this thought, we will not flinch from the name that would then fitly describe us; but hitherto the whole drift of our philosophy and our life has been rather to confirm than to reject that thought. Let each one stand simply, without ostentation, without fear, with out dissimulation, by his own secret conviction; and the world will be the better, if he uses such language to utter it as best suits his own sense of truth .- En.

WHAT WAS SLAVERY!

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, September, 1874.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-You compliment me by renewed invitation to con-tinue these hurrygraphs on the old slavery warfare. And as I expect soon to establish headquarters for the present at Toledo, in this State, you may have them, at least a few more of them, with more regu-larity they how there.

Main, at heat few new of the original states and heat of the states of a state of the states of a state of the states of a state of the states ing Protestant Evangelical denominations, without exception. The Methodists, by lies and hypocriey, gained for a separation into a "Northern General Conference," But two plain facts expose the whole "joins fraud" first, the division, such as it was, occurred by with opence,—not of the North from the South for the sake of purity; and second, the Northern Conference, in-stead of being Northern in the sense of separation from slavery and slaveholders, retained the whole border territory, including Missouri, Arkansas, and rexas, making in all eight whole annual conference on the South from the Northern the South for the sake of purity; and second, the Northern Conference, in-the sake of being Northern in the sense of separation from slavery and slaveholders, retained the whole border territory, including Missouri, Arkansas, and rexas, making in all eight whole annual conference of slaveholding Methodista, numbering, as was com-puted by Methodista themseives, not less than 4,000 laverholders and 27,000 slaves. So palpable was the fraud that a subdivision fol-fowed, and the "Wesleyan" connection of Methodistics was organized out of the more conscientious members would not be partakers in such hypocrisy and guilt. But I am aside from my main line of thought on the cruelties of Methodist and other forms of Chroin proclamation of outlawry affecting some runaway slavers in that State. by virtue of which such slaver inght be lawfully killed by their pursuer, "without cception. The Methodists, by lies and hypocrisy, gained for a

30

900 Clotheed by accusation or impeachment for any crime or offence for so doing." But the advertisement of the owner should have contained the following, which I accidentally omit-paper:

paper:---"NEGRO DOGS.--The undersigned, having bought the entire pack of Negro Dogs of the Hay and Allen stock, now proposes to catch runaway negroes. His charges will be three dollars a day for hunting, and fifteen dollars for catching, a runaway. He resides three and a half miles north of Livingston, near the Lower Jones Bluff road. "WILLIAM GAMPAT."

"WILLIAM GAMBEL." (Signed)

(Signed) "WILLIAM GAMDEL." Two presidential candidates during their canvass were charged, and rightfully, too, no doubt, with emp ploying, seen importing, from Cuba, bloodhounds to hant out the Indians from their fastnesses, in our wars with those unfortunate tribes,—one Whig, the other Democrat; Generals Jackson and Taylor. And the fact was used by the opposing party as capital against the candidate in both instances. Bat whoever was known to lift voice or pen against the frightful crueities of a bloodhound slave-hunt in the dreary years while slavery lasted? Surely not the Christian Church nor clergy! As a body they were impliedly accomplices, when not even principals in the fieadish work. The known warring upon their faith, doctrines, in the fieldish work. THE INDEX is warring upon their faith, doctrines, creeds, catechisms. That is well. But in all this ac-count behold their works! See here what they did through scores of years!

PARKER PILLSBURY.

"BELIEF" AND "UNBELIEF."

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX: Dear Sir,—I see by a recent number of THE INDEX that your contemporary, the Independent, has lately been discussing in a tone of great disparagement the "Strength of Unbeliet." Compared with believers, unbelievers are but a small minority, and the monu-ments they have created in brick and stone are in pro-portion to the exiguity of their numbers. This ap-parently is the aspect of the question on which your contemporary loves to dwell, and, as the facts are in-disputable, and seem to support a very edifying con-clusion, it is by no means extraordinary that he should give the preference to so advantageous a basis of disgive the preferences to so advantageous a basis of dis-cussion. I could not help thinking, however, as I read the article reproduced in your columns, of Rob-ert Browning's fine lines in "Rabbi Ben Ezra:"-

Not on the vulgar mass Called work' mist sentence pass. Things dows that took the eye and had the price: O'er which from level stand Found straightway to its mind, could value in a trice.

Found straightway to its mind, could value in a trice." If we regard churches, denominational colleges, etc., as the "work" of belief, that work must certainly weigh immensely in any scales adapted to brick and mortar; but what it would weigh as the expression of a high moral impuise is a point upon which there may be wide differences of opinion. Believers themselves do not deny that excessively worldly motives prompt to much of that liberality which has its outcome in $100,000 and $500,000 churches. The Jews of old could point to their stately temple and their numer-ous synagogues; but one whom Christians, and not they slone, revere formed and expressed a very low estimate of the spirituality of that church building people. And how many of our modern believers would like to invoke the judgment of Christ upon the spirit that has built the temples and synagogues of to day? The strength of Christianity, as of every religion would like to invoke the judgment of Christ upon the phrit that has built the temples and synagogues of to day? The strength of Christianity, as of every religion that has ever existed in the world, consists in the alli-suce it has contrived to effect with the desires and passions of mankind. One proof of this is that every age moulds its inherited faith into forms suited to its own character. There is about as much re-emblance between the Christianity of to-day and hat of the third and fourth centurice as there is be-ween the character of Tertullian and that of Charles Dickens. The modern world fluds a gospel-pretty early all the gospel it wants—in the writings of the reat novelist; the ancient world found the gospel it rauted in a vivid apprehension of a supernatural refer of things, and above all in vivid conceptions of future heaven and hell, the former to be the portion I believers, the latter of unbelievers. And hell, be remembered, in those days, was hell—not the ashed-out article of modern theology, but a good, onest pit, full of fire and brimstone, where men, omen, and children were to be tortured eternally w want of faith. And heaven was heaven, in Ter-illan's eyes, mainly because it afforded a gorgeous al delightful view of the torments of the lost. Give any age what it wants—that is, what it likes in craves,—and it will cling to it. The present age es not want the theology of Tertullian, nor yet of agustine or Luther. These men could all have ared $100,000 churches in their day; but it requires different language from theirs, and much milder d vaguer doctrines than they would have tolerated, work the same miracle now. Our contemporaries

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

OTTAWA, Canada, September 2, 1874.

THE BIGHT TO PROHIBIT.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 21, 1874.

<text><text><text><text><text>

great a degree of drunkenness in his own house with grad a degree of drunkenness in his own house with be solute impunity, yet it is none the less true that if be goe into the street in that condition, even allowed no direct injury be done to any one, be has overtheless committed an offence against society, for which society may very justly hold him amenale. If a butcher sell tainted meat, he is gullty of a legal whold engage in the indiscriminate asle of policy of the storing of gunpowder, or other explosite whold engage in the indiscriminate sale of policy of a legal whold engage in the indiscriminate sale of policy of the storing of gunpowder, or other explosite whold engage in the indiscriminate sale of policy of a legal whold engage in the indiscriminate sale of policy of the storing of gunpowder, or other explosite whold engage in the indiscriminate sale of policy of the storing of gunpowder, or other explosite status on one objects to the law prohibiting the carrying of concealed deadly weapons, while it is universally concealed that the public eafety demands that in our of the commence whold builtings be strictly prohibited. In mone of these street, nor in fact as much so, as in that of the liquity to avoid the taining to ending the carrying of concealed demands any ublic remers. When the root in fact as much so, as in that of the liquity to ending the sale of policy of the street of the sale of policy of the street of the sale of policy of the street of the sale of

[Our recent essay must stand as our answer to the above article. But dissentients ought to be heard fairly in THE INDEX.-ED.]

THE IDEAL LIFE.

It is to have clear thought, far and fine vision. It is to see the meaning and the true relation of all things. It is to be free, unprejudiced, unawed by custom. It is to be open to all light, and sincere in the reception and expression of it. It is to have an inward life forever tending to the outward. It is to have the outward forever made splendid by inward illumination. It is to be independent, centred in ourselves, getting the grandest truths from ourselves, yet eagerly yearning for and recognizing the help of others.

<text><text><text><text>

SPUROEON says it is a remarkable fact that minis-ters of the gospel are not able to live on much less than other people. They can't make a shilling go so far as other people can make a soverign. Some of them try very hard, but they do not succeed. A mem-ber once said to a minister, who wanted a little more salary as his family increased: "I did not know that you preached for money." "No, I don't," said the minister. "I thought you preached for souls." "So I do; but I could not live on souls; and if I could it would take a good many the size of yours to make a meal." Google

----

fieu have a

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Advertisements. THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE INDEX in eatire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their mest generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. to be insufance from these columns. No cuts while admitted. The invext must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES. graphs, $1.50. On balf-column advertisements, a disconnt of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. 1 CIRCULATE ! Circulate ! ! Circulate THOSE PETITIONS. Don't feel eating d when your petition is a yard long, unless you ye asked every one to sign it. Get good, influ-GET EVERYBODY. Don't neglect to show the petition to any one, because he is a stockholder in some church, or other exempted property, as many such persons admit the justice of the demand; and those who will not should be made to take the responsibility of refusing to sign it. Don't delay! We want the petitions returned early. Per order of EXEC. CONN. of the BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. CULTURED FREE THOUGHT. The Index Association, OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON. has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and THE INDEX. 13 copies $1.00. A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors :--

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass MES. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England, PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Religious Liberallam. Every Christian minister, nd every thinking church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exposition of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the arguments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse of leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word showed be felt in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or theological periodicals is, as yon know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Address

THE INDEX No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1 08 LEADING INDEX WRITERS. Including O. B. FROTHINGRAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER. W. H. SPENCER,

F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT,

Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX. and will be malled postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 26 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo-

	Address,					THE INDEX,
		No	. 1	Tr	emont	Pla	ce,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88,
ĩ	N	I	)	E	x	T	R	A	C	т	8.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MB. CHARLES DAEWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used : "I have now read "Thursts FOB THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are won thy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. vo. e.-Caristian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 13 contact 100

No. 5.-4*God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 8.-"The Sabbath." by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition New Edition. Price 10 cents; 19 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-44Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constiution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romanism Real Christian-ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Religion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal

 $\overline{7}$

8

DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

47 No. 1 Tremont Place, Beston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur oose of securing the more complete and co sistent secularization of the political and ed ucational institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesistical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize & FTERI NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will con tinuo to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much tinne to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. Voysey has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspondence, communications, extracts from valua ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name ter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

4. PUBLICATIONS.

OFTEE

FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Pres Religious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Protingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretis Mott Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Joh-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Elg-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents. coding do not

- Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Restraint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Des-ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bartol. A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.
- Proceedings of Third Annual Meeting, 1870. 50 cents. Contains emays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religioun Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rel-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religion Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Associal as Social Sciences." the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Fermines" and Progressive Elements of Judaisn," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Religion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-Tocceedings of Filin Amore more, S cents each.) Contains easays by J. W., Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion at the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froh-hanks on CTDs Bellion of Humanity." ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcoit, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 55 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by Samed Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Beligion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfellow, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lacretia Mott.

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Hig-

Religions of China, by Wm. H. China ning. 25 cents.

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 50 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be applied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be addressed either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass, WM. FOTTER, Set. F. E. J.

THE INDEX SEPTEMBER, 17, 1874

455

4.56

2.60

.56

.60

2.50

2.00

1.50

2.00

50

1.50

1.59 3.00 1.50 1.50 1.50

PROCETOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Curs: the Floral, out Worlds stud-led under the Light of row Worlds stud-Researches. With Colored Pik Scismith Researches. With Colored Pik Scismith Andrew Pikenomens. A Series of Familiar Bienomens. Matural Plenomens. A Scies of Famers of Familiar Eleconomy: A Scries of Famers and Plenomens. A Series of Famers With 10 Plates and 28 Woonbox Sun, etc. With 10 Plates and 28 Woonbox. Sciency, and Physical Conditions, with Three Lo-mar Photographs and many Plates, Charts, 80 The Expanse of Heaven. RoossErtaics of Heaven.

ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of

Banta Danta SGRELLEN (R.) Spectron Analysis, in its Application to Terrentrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Frof. Huxley, F.E.S.. Chemistry, By Frof. Rescoe. Science, By Ballour Stewart, With li-hustrations.

lustrations 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gel-klo, LL.D., F.R.S., flexible cloth.....

MILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help ...... 1.50

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

STOWE (HABRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyranny. Uncle Tom's Cabin.

TRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Falth and the TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Libera-ture, 2 vols The Ciass-Room Taine, History of English Literature, Abridged and Edited by John Fiske. 2.50

TRACKER AV (W. M.) Novela, Household Edition. Complete in 5 volumes. Per vol., 1.25 Vaol(y Patr. The Newcomes, Adventures of Philip. Pendomis.

Fedicennes. The Virginiana. Example of the Widower. Example of the Widower. Miscellancous Writings. Bousehold Edi-tion. Broorm with the Novels. Com-plete in Svols. With new Portrait. For vol. 1.25 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the cheapeet and most complete Thackersy in the market.

mpisie Thackeray in the market.
1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c.
2. Paris, and Irish Skotch-Books, &c.
3. Snobs, Skotches, Deule Huwal, &c.
4. Four Georges, Humorists, &c.
5. Catherine, Christmas Hooks, and Unreprinted Pieces.

TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-

Fragments of Science for Unscientific Feo

Particular to a service to the construct of the pho-pho and kiest the pho-leght and kiest the pho-heat as a Mode of Motion. On Sound Action Mode of Motion Particular the set. Forms of Water.

WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden. Sannterings Back-Log Studies

WEI88 (JOHN.) American Beligion ...... Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols......

Life of Theodore Parker. 1 vos. WHIPPLEYS (E. P.) Literature and Life Easays and Beviewa. Character and Characteristic Mon. The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth. Success and its Conditions. Washington and the Revolution

Washington and the Kavolatoon WHITNEY'S (Miss. A. D. T.) & Summer in Laslie Goldthwaite's Life. We Girls: A mome Story The Other Girls Pausiek. A volume of Poems......

ADDEMAI

1 Tremont Place, Boston

INDEX,

Digmonto Google

THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in

POPULAE BOOKS SENT BY MAIL AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the Jubjoined List, or any othe OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired be forwarded as promptly as possible on re of orders accompanied with the CASH.

Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.

ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two yola. Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside 1.50 1.50 1.00 1.00 1.75 ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-cism. 2.00 New Poems 2.00 Literature and Dogma. 1.50 AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50 Villa Eden; The Country-House on the BACON'S Essays ..... 1.00 AIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of Philosophy. Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics. 1.75 BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 2.50 BABTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ...... $.00 nings of Life. 2 vols. BiBLE in the Fublic Schools. BRoords, Arguments, and Decision in the case of John D. Minor et al. ex. the Board of Education of the city of Cincinnati et al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnation of the City of Cincinnation Arguments of Stallo, Boadley and Mathewa asgainst the use of the Bible. The Opinion and Decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio in the shore case 2.00 .50 .50 .25 BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls. BROOKS' (CHABLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Brevisry. The World-Priest The Tail Student. 2.25 BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ..... 1.22 BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. Now edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vols..... work, with a complete index. 1 vois. . A RLYLE'S Works. Cheap selflow. Compris-tion of the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 vols.; France: Revolution. 3 vois.; Froder-lek the Grest, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters, &c., 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphlets, 1 vol. Any volume sold separately. 4 vols. Lon-don, 1871-3. Per vol. N CARPENTER (Dn. W. B.) The Principles of Montal Physiology, with their Applica-tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-tions. 3.00 CERVANTES' Don Quixote ...... 1.50

CLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Beligions Common-Sense in Religion -Sense in Religion.....

CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ...... 1.20

CLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World

.75

COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjecta Derwinism in Morals, and other Essays.... The Religious Domands of the Age ..... JONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pilgrimage. 1.75

Platfinages 20BRELA TION and Conservation of Forces: A Sories of Expositions by Grove. Heim-belts, Maynr, Faradwy, Liebig and Carpen-per: with an Introduction by Edward L. Youmans, M.D. 1vol. ULTURE DEMANDED BY MODERN LIFE, Its True Aims and Requirements A Suries of Addresses. By Tyndail, Huz-ber, Whewell, Faraday, Spencer, Draper, Masson, Lyrell, etc. Edited by Edward L. Youmans. . 2.00 2.0

ALL (MES. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court: or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Güsenship.

Ilistorical Cicius, Reisonciest; a Yolinno of Menolistica, In two parts, Pari L, "Scolies, Fictures, and Pancies" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzowska, being a Practical Ilinstration of "Woman" Rights to Labor" 1.50 1.00

ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels. Household Edi-Novels. Household Edi-

- 1.25 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.50 5.00 2.00

- Society and Society of Article Society and Society and
- 1.5 5.00
- FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Religion..... 2.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, 3.00
  - FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makors, 200
  - PROTHINGHAM (0. B.) Religion of Hu-manity
     Log Log Log Log Log
     Log Log Log Log
     Log Log Log Log
     Log Log

     Child's Book of Religion
     Log
     Log
  - FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works including Mencolm by Emerson, Channing and others. A new edition. 6 vols ......

  - GREO'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Lite.... Literary and Social Judgments Creed of Christendom
  - GEOTE'S LIFE. Complied from Family Doo-uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends, By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-

  - HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter & Camp. Book L. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book I. In England, Book III. In France., Thoughts about Art., The Unknown River. The Intellectual Life, Chapters on Animals.
  - BAMILTON (GAIL), Child World, Part Sec.

  - BIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers ... Malbone. An Oldport Romance....... Army Life in a Black Regiment Atlantic Zesays... Oldport Days...

2.0

2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.00

- HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-ding Journey Suburban Ekstehas Venstian Life. Italiau Journeys A Chance Acquaintance

- INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-
- 1.75

- H. Fronks. Re. Dr. Edward. Smith. 1.75
  Y. Mana and Body, The Theories of their Relations. By Alex. Bain. 1.60
  Y. The Study of Sociology. By Herbert Spencer, Relation of Encoders, By Herbert 1.89
  Y. The New Chemistry. By Joesh P. 2.00
  Y. The New Chemistry. By Joesh P. 2.00
  Y. The Ouserrestion of Encryp. By Bailt for Stewart, with an Appendix treating of the Vital and Mental Applications of the Ductrins. 1.80
  Y.H. Animal Locomotion; or, Walking, Swimming, and Flying, with a Dissertation on Acromatics. By J. Bell Petitgrew, I.75
  K. Responshilly in Meutal Dissert. 1.50
  Heary Maudeley, M.D. Fronkle Saints. Mr.
- JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Broakfast Talk, and other Papers: 1.50
- JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions and their Relation to Universal Religion. Ind 5.00

- KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous...... 2.00 LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in - Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morais from Augus-

- ois. 1,00
- LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols. Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin is Greece down to the Present Day, 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda-tions of a Greed. 4.00 3.00
- LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-daiam ? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.00
- LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poema. Portrait. 2 vols Prose Works. Portrait. 4.00 4.00
- LOWELL (Mas. A. C.) Postes for Children, 75 LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-Lon, and the Prinitive Condition of Man. 2.30 Fre-historie Thuse.

- MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosopt Ical and Theological. 2 vols. Fer vol.... The New Affinities of Faith 2.50
- MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind .75
- MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire..... Conversion of the Northern Nations..... 1.80
- 2,28 2.25
- 2.50 1.25 1.25 1.50 1.50
- MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of Species 1.75
- 1.60
- Time Stores. MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Belence of Language. First Sories. The Same. Second Series. Days from a German Workshop, Vol. I. Essays ou the Science of Religion. Vol. II. Essays on Mythology, Traditions, and Customs. Vol. III. Essays on Lit-erature, Biography and Antiquilles. Three vol. Frice per volume. Lectures on the Science of Religion.....

1.50

2,50

Т

HE

- NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle Ekkoes from Kentucky 1.50
- 4.50
- 2.00
- 1.75 4.25 .25 .25
- 1.50 4,50
- 2.00 1.50
- 1.50
- .60

and the Pinite 1.00
PHELLS'S (ELIZABETE STUART.) The Gates Ajsr. 1.20
The Trotty Book 1.20
Men. Women, and Ghosts 1.20
Medged In 1.20
The Silent Partner 1.20
What to Weat 1.00

ROWLAND CONNOR, IL Having finished his engagement with the Free Congregational Society of Florence, will answer invitations to lecture for liberal societies. Address at JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS.

456

CHARLES SUMNER.

A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen-ator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-fity cents. THE INDEX, Address I Tramont Place, Boston.

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873. The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 6) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furbished in no other form. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

SPECTRUM ANALYSIS

EXPLAINED.

An explanation of this wonderful discov-ery, and its uses to science, including the re-ceived Theory of Sound, Heat, Light, and Color; with chapters on the Sun, Stars, Nebulæ, Comets, and Meteoric Showers. Abridged from the works of Schellen, Ros-and Theory Schellen, Roscoe, Huggins, Lockyer, Young, and others, by the editor of Half-Hour Recreations in opular Science.

12mo., cloth, with two colored plates and twenty illustrations. $1.50. THE INDEX, Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The following states the experience of a uccessful Bookseller who has advertised in

THE INDEX:-TOTES VOID COLLEGED WHO HER ACTION TO THE INDEX:-TO THE INDEX:-To THE INDEX A880, Toledo, O.: Gentlemen.-Having had occasion to adver-ties in your paper during the past two years guite largely, I take pleasure in statil: that I have always obtained very satisfactory re-turns-better in fact than from book adver-tisements in any other paper I have adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ate results, but orders have frequently been received months after the insertion of the advertisement, showing that your paper 18 kept on file and referred to by your readers. Yours truly.-HENRY S. STRBURS. Special arrangements will be made at re-

Special arrangements will be made at re duced terms for long-time or extended ad-vertisements. Address THE INDEX,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston.

CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES CONCERNING AMERICA.

By CHARLES SUMNER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its literary and historical merits, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the hast work on which r. Summer was engaged before his death. "PROPERTIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the bla fory of our country, so full is it of pass ages in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been forstold by philosophers, poets, statesmen, and orators, of whom the lamented author has also given interesting sketches Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. Address THE INDEX,

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE."

By Andrew Jackson Davis.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land will be i-terested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.—Gold-en Age.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-some cloth, 75 cents; in full ~iit and extra binding, $1. Postage free. The trade sup-plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing House" of A.J. DAVIS& CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City.

STUDENTS FITTED for any BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. College. Please address EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn.

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT. CONSTANT DEFINITION at home, mais or female, 30 a week war-ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y.

FREE DISCUSSION

is held at HOSPITALLEE HALL. 503 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., Political, and Social interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.-The twenty-first school year of this Family and Day School, rook norn sattes, will begin Wednes-day, September 16, 1874. For particulars address NATH'L T. ALLEN. Principal, West Newton, Mass.

	поп	e Sat	ura	sy8.	_	_			_	_
T	0	N	E	W	8	P	A	P	E	R

PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and malling, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO BOOK-BUYERS.

Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAB BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be farmished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of ady American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

1 110000 1 1000, 000000
BOUND INDEX.	VOLUMES	OF	THE

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1811, 1672, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.60, $2.-bo, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place. Roston

-		1	Trep	iont	Plac	e, Bo	ston	•
W	A	R	Ŗ	F	6	N	,	8
7	TRUE	CI	VII	LIZ	LAT	10	N.
		Pric	e 50 c	ent	s.
P	RACT	TC	1L	D	ET/	II	s,
	showl	ng th	e wor	king	to st	the
10	COST	P	RI.	NC	IP	LI	Γ.
		Pric	e 25 c	ente	5.
For	sale by
s.	н.		M	0	R	S	E	,
	95 Br	omf	eld s	St.,	Bost	on.
T			H		-	1		E
	SON	1	rox		RCE

SONG MONARCHII

By H. R. PALNER, of Chicago, with the dis-tinguished assistance of Prof. L. O. EMER-SON MONARCH, present to the public a book unrivalled for the use of SINGING CLASSES.

whether in the form of SINGING SCHOOLS, or in NORMAL MUSIC SCHOOLS, CONVENTIONS, COLLECER, or ACADEMIES, and the higher COMMON SCHOOLS.

Price 75 Cents. Per Dozen, $7.50.

Richardson's New Method FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

The Most Popular Method ever issued; 220, 000 already sold, and the book is received, if anything, with increasing favor from year to year. Teachers and Pupuls buy 250 (†

25,000 COPIES ANNUALLY !!

Recently enriched by the addition of "CZERNY" ELETTERS ON THE ABT OF PLAYING THE PIANO," and of "SCHUMANN'S MAXIMS." It is now a book of 260 large pages.

PRICE $3.75.

All books mailed, post-paid, for the retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,

711 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Our organization some time since decided to direct its efforts for the present towards securing

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is anjustly exempted from its share of the burden of taxation. As a means to this end, we have published for eneral circulation several thousand copies of a

TBACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. We have already issued three editions, the ast of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to issue

Another Large Edition

of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,

and generously to supply the calls for them in and generously to supply the caus for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at resy low cost, it is impossible for the Boston Leagne, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone, Will not, then, !

All Friends of the Movement

e forward and help us with liberal donations ? come forward and help us with libersi donations T We frequently receive communications from parties wishing iracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to farnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-sting them gratuitously throughout the combry. Last whiter this arbitect was houseful be.

Last winter this subject was brought before the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of these uninst laws.

The matter is still in their bands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the favoring justice and equity, should be distinctly heard.

Voice of the People,

We shall soon be ready to send out

BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN.

thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already done so, to protest against this continued wrong.

Lot us make it

THE LARGEST PETITION

presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please

SEND IN THEIR NAMES? We would say, also that we feel deeply the

Other Organizations

In this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by preasing the "Demanda of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are these who are unilined to Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought can be accomplished Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bon Drog, and Handgrinding Mill.8. To Brog, and Handgrinding Mill.8. To Rizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Instru d pamphets free. Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER. 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohlo. THE AMERICAN EDITION OF MONCURE D. CONWATS SACRED ANTHOLOGY,

A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES. has just been published, and will be sent postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address THE INDEX. 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,

BANKEBS, LEROY, MINN.

Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N. T. Branch Office, 137 Broadwar, N. T. Money Invested In First Mortgages on Im-proved Farms in Minnesota and Son Im-ning three to five years, with Compon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad-vancé, cr tén per cent, pair samually, in ad-vancé, cr tén per cent, per samual, annually, free of expense to the Loans. (From the Component of the Son Son Son Son at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particular, send for Circular.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES.

Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Beal Estate and Loan Agency

07 ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STERET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and any term in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate In vestments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, dco. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and clastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine ase.

fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Ku-name indelibly branded on every speel. Call

RADICAL AND LITERARY

LECTURES

87

RADICAL LECTURES.

SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURES.

FIRST SERIES.

8. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touchstone.

4. Ajax in Troilus and Cressida: The Porter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear.

SECOND SERIES.

1. The Women of Shakspeare.

4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Characters.

nummy Google

JOHN WEISS,

32 E. Brookline St., Boston.

WEISS.

Every

reka Silk exactly as represented. Eve spool is warranted, and the manufacture for it.

JOHN

The Idea of Hereafter.

Intelligence in Religion Religion and Science.

An Act of Faith.

Heart in Religion,

1. Cause of Laughter. 2. Irony and Humor.

5. Falstaff.

6. Hamlet.

2. Portia.

3. Ophelia.

Address

٥.

Many kinds of spool silk are a p paying 8 to 10 per c

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Index.

VOLUME 5.

N

A. 14.46

ä 航 N, 2.

> $ 11

> > a)

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874. For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

WHOLE NO. 248.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be arempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaptains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

hall coase. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained y the government shall be abolished; and especially that he use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-iy as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-mip, shall be prohibited.

ship, shall be prohibited.
b. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.
c. We demand that the judicial onth in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abolished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and penalties of priury shall be established in its stead.
c. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforcing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be repeated.

Beiled.
We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of (Christian' morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States, abt also in the Drated States, but also in the practical algorithm of the several States, but also in the character and that not realize political system shall be found all realing the constitution of the same, no privilege or adrantage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other special realing instance on a purphy secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necesary to this end shall be consistently, unlinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that he safety of republican institutions is importled, the advance of civili-ration impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public achools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; TERERFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ABT. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

ART.4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Ast. 5.-Any person may become a member of the League y subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreement. ART. 5.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officio delegates to the Nan. and Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. ART. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-alar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

Bo far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of THE LYDEX. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A Liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ples wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being convinced that the movement to secure compliance with these just "Demands" must librit accent falsed accended to be to make THE INDEX Surely, even if alowly, spread, I hope to make THE INDEX a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of many maters. many waters.

BOSTON, Bept. 1, 1878.

FRANCIS C. ABBOT, Editor.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U.S. CONSTITUTION. ABTICLE I.

ABTICLE 1. Sportnors 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-ficigion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or orbridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people state shall make no law respecting an es-statistic state shall make the period of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the or religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or or fright of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the state of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. No religions the dovernment for a redress of grievances, no religions the dovernment for a redress of grievances of sufferences, or and and no person shall ever in any State be depitived of any of the oreson state ever in any outlice or private duty, or ren-generation of a policions the or she may have the consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-generation of the people of the private duty, or ren-generation of a prohibition of the state based or she may have the state of the religion. — The state of the state of the state of the state of the state the state of the state of the state of the state of the state and the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-ted the state of the state of the state of the state of the state and the state of the state of the state of the state of the state and the state of t

GLIMPSES.

JAPAN HAS 300,000 members of the priestly class.

"PATERNAL GOVERNMENT" is no novelty; but Mr. Vernon Harcourt has invented "grandmotherly government." We prefer to be governed by our great-grandparents.

DETROIT HAS sixty charches, or one church to every seventeen hundred inhabitants. The edifices are valued at $1,123,510; the sites at $1,700,000. Total, $2,823,510-and of course untaxed.

MR. HARCOURT told Parliament some time ago that "the people will not endure to be put to bed when they want to sit up;" which shows that human nature is about the same in England as in Yankeedom-even on the temperance question.

LADY BARKER'S new Lessons in Cooking, published by Macmillan, is a book highly commended by Nature. She says that "no school-boy ever gets as much nourishing food as he requires." That sentiment will be cheered by the school-boys.

FATHER HYACINTHE is a trifle tiresome. He shies like a skittish horse, and evidently made a great blunder when he set up for a reformer. In default of a natural backbone, he had better procure a substitute from the fireplace, or vacate a chair in which sitting up straight is a necessity.

THE LONDON Spectator thinks that Cosmian Hall, at Florence, Massachusetts, ought to have been baptized Chaotic Hall. The Spectator labors under the disadvantage, common to all Christians, of not being able to distinguish between chaos and cosmos. There is a far profounder cosmos in freedom of thought than in the lifelessness of enforced uniformity.

THE BIG row in England over the right or wrong of a Wesleyan minister's putting "Rev." before his own name on his daughter's tombstone is funny enough. Of course the Bishop who forbade it was a religious coxcomb, and the Dissenters are not unnaturally incensed by his impudence. But then is it wise to get vexed with a fellow who picks a burr off your back?

SEVERAL TELLING ARTICLES have been published by the Lansing (Michigan) Republican, charging the Appletons with "catering to the Roman Catholics" in their New American Cyclopædia, and supporting the charge with evidence that is at least enough to raise a serious suspicion of its truth. Such an offence, if committed, would be akin to the crime of fountain-poisoning. The charge ought to be met with very full and very frank explanations.

THE PROPOSITION to create a new sea in French Africa, 480 miles long and 60 miles wide, illustrates in an impressive manner the widening dominion of man over Nature which is conferred upon him by Science. Captain Roudoire lately had a paper on the subject in the Revue des Deux Mondes. Formerly an immense inland sea filled a series of slimy hollows in Tunis and Algeria, called chotts; but, being cut off from the Mediterranean by the gradually formed isthmus of Gabes, it dried up under the hot African sun. It is now proposed to cut through this isthmus and fill up the sea once more. M. Lesseps estimates the cost of the enterprise at only about two and a half millions of dollars; and the hope is that the constant evaporation from the new sea, followed by rain, would convert the surrounding desert into fertile country. What a gigantic dwarf is man!

THE Nation says with its accustomed keenness: "We trust, too, that in any legal proceedings taken Mr. Henry C. Bowen will be somehow put into the, hands of a skilful cross-examiner. The escape of this worthy thus far is one of the most discreditable features in the investigation. The temporary suspension of the business of 'bringing souls to Christ,' in which he says he is angaged, would be a cheap price to pay for baving him turned inside out by a remorseless and practised hand in open court." No other paper, so far as we know, has touched on this point, which has seemed to us very important from the first. The strangest thing about the "Investigating Committee" was its total peglect to secure Mr. Bowen's testimony; yet he has the reputation of knowing more than anybody else of the "scandal." There is evidently hard work ahead for the courts, but we hope it will get thoroughly done at last.

THE SOCIAL CHANGES rendered inevitable by the issue of the civil war are thus referred to by one of our correspondents in Louisiana: "The planters here are nearly all hopelessly insolvent, too proud and too lazy to work. The mortgages must neces-sarily soon foreclose and seil them out. The alluvial lands here are generally some eight or ten feet above overflow, and have never been known to be inundated during the highest water. I have never seen so beautiful or productive a country elsewhere in the United States, either North or South. The lands must soon go into other hands, and, instead of remaining in from two to ten thousand acre plantations, must be cut up into hundred acre farms in the hands of thrifty farmers, when the country will again prosper and smile like a rose. Cleared lands now are scarcely worth ten dollars per acre; and, should another riot occur, they could hardly be given away for several years to come."

MR. SAMUEL WILKESON'S dolorous exclamation that the Brooklyn scandal would "knock the Life of Christ higher than a kite" indicated a commercial sagacity which is proved by the following paragraph in the Brooklyn Argus of September 10: "The Dahman publishing house in Leipsic, which issued a German translation of the first volume of Beecher's Life of Christ, has issued a card stating that, owing to the disreputable disclosures about Beecher, it will discontinue the publication of the work, and it offers for sale at actual cost the remaining copies of the first volume. 'We are sorry to be compelled to take this step,' the card concludes, 'but due respect for the character of our house renders this determination inevitable.' In commenting on this card, the German Universal Gazette, of Leipsic, says, under date of August 18: 'This is eminently right and proper. Mr. Beecher stands self-accusing, self-convicted, before the whole world. No virtuous man or woman will care to read a Life of Christ emanating from so foul a aource." This action is over-hasty, though not much to be wondered at in consideration of Mr. Beecher's infatuated silence and delay. Nothing but a unanimous acquittal by a jury above suspicion can a unanimous acquitta of the possibly restore his reputation now.

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretary. SAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Becretary. retary. po, Iow4.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-VigeLAND' N. J. - John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Represent Beeretary. Berstary. MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretzon, Secretary. BERENSVILLE, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Socretary. Osciola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, ON Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, BERLIN, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman, WABHINGTON, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. AUBURN, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-BFGF, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN,-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett,

Secretary. ST. JOSEPH, MO .- P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy,

Secretary. Exor Charler, WE.-President, S. J. Dicksou; Secretary, K. Kennedy. BALDEO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. NEW OBLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace. BAY CITY, MICE.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson CLEARFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. Secretary. SAUE CITY, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary

Secretary. AUGUSTA, WIS. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vanz, Secretary.

Christian---Extra-Christian---or Anti-Christian?

1.14

THE EXTRA-CHRISTIAN'S PLEA.

ADDRESS OF COL. T. W. HIGGINSON, AT THE SEVENTS ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION, IN BOSTON, MAY 29, 1874.

TH BOBTON, MAY 29, 1874.

else should be taken and stowed away within its un-comfortable limitations." I stand here, ladies and gentlemen, in the most humble position as the defander of that cradle. A cradle is a convenient and comfortable appendage to a family,—in fact, I don't know what most of us would have done without one; but there comes a time when a man outgrows his cradle, and the deci-sion of his life has to be made. There is the first question, What shall he do with himself? shall he stay there? There is the second question, What shall he do with it after he goes out of it? And I find myself on the decision of each of these questions in that most painful position, quite opposed to two of my best friends, and only hoping that in the brief marked their statement of theirs. It is the pride of marked their statement of theirs. It is the pride of the Free Religious Association that its member dif-fer from one another. It is also their pride that they are able to the decision the ir pride that they the Free Religious Association that its members dif-fer from one another. It is also their pride that they are able to state that difference very frankly without going to pleces. We may be most of us born and bred with a little taste of fighting, but, at least, we keep it from people outside. Dr. John Brown, of Edinburgh, describes a Scotch shepherd who was very proud of his dog, and he said to some one who was stroking the animal. "Oh, but there's a great deal of sairiousness in life for that beast, —be just never gets enough of fighting." There is a terrible amount of seriousness in our lives as members of the Free Religious Association, but at least we get enough of fighting outside to satisfy us, and nothing can exceed the peace and harmony which prevail at our meetings. That metaphor of the cradle may not do complete and full justice to the position of my friends, or to my position; metaphora near that it think it will not be very hard to show briefly my reasons for dissenting from each of the or segmenta so permasive and so incere. Travelled with Mr. Calthrop through all the wide my mit monade and came down to that highly collective unit, the Free Keligions Association, -and yei i did not ker, from beginning to end, et al. There are more than the highly collective unit, the Free Keligions Association, -and yei i did not ker, from beginning to end, et al. There are more in this audience who are inclusion, rained by Christian parents, that it is their duty to call themselves Christians, to stand by the flag, in a manner. He did not tell us where that obligation frame, and the set of the other who are been so inclusion. There are men in this audience who are sthead by the flag, in a manner. He did not tell us where that obligation of training to end, preva alked for any better, faith, mer benne of the land that bore been in hwritation to belleve in Go as an insult. Is it their duty, in deferences to local training, berne and complexity of the duty in a set of the duty in the deference to local training berne and complexity. For any for the association, born in the every middest and more vanishing a type of dogmatism that is those who have observed any of the microscopical investigation as its own conscience, to seek for light were where, and to follow the best light he could flow the best light he could flow the best light be could flow the set is those who are seen in the set of the duty in the set of the 24, 1874. yourselves." Then, after we have got that into a, if we still recognize the authority at all, it is in this exceedingly comfortable way in which Henry Ward Beecher still claims to be a good Calvinist; for he says, "I faithfully believe what John Calvin believed, or what he would have believed if he had lived in these times and believed as I think he ought to." There is a danger on the spiritual side, on the moral side, on all sides, in carrying your recognitions of any human authority so far as to call yourself by its name. It is often easier to decide whether a moral code is right or wrong as whether it is Christian or not. It is often not so hard to settle whether a moral code is right or wrong as whether it is Christian an or otherwise. The whole history of the ten-perance movement, of the antishavery movement, and the woman suffrage movement proves it so. A wom-an sold to me, speaking of banishing wine from her table, round which her young sons were growing up, "I should feel that I was insulting my Saviori I excluded wine from my table." Thus perilos, thus formidable, is the result which follows from imiting one's moral and spiritual standard eren to the fordidable, is the result which follows from in absolute subservience to any one cample, erea was with her in the Roman Catholic Church to which she had belonged and which she had left. She sid show as big as a walnut, and she came out of it. And then again, apart from these special danger, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how shall we take the Christian name, who finderer, how ogy, that the world can yield? In this day of mires sal travel, of universal science, when the farhet parts of the earth are being ransacked for their liter-ture and their mythology, how shall we calloursetes Christians and yet embrace, as we long to embra. the sympathy of this grander brotherhood, the state-ments of this wider faith? How trivial seem on lit-itle Congregational and Presbyterian churches, eren our Episcopal churches, before the historie gradeur of the Roman Catholic, that church which has had kings for confessors, and made nations for convers, carrying to all the world, in its way, one Lord, one faith, one baptism; making as its own standord this which has been believed "always, everywhere, and by all,"—semper, ubique et ab omnitus! And yet when you once cast your eyes outside of Christian limit, what a child of yesterday the Roman Catholic Church esems! Why, how young it is, if you come to this how small, how few converts, how trifling its range compared with this vast range of spiritual activityd the human race! I am not satisfied with Unitaria-seems! I why, how young it is, if you come to that a or ratifing compared with Roman Catholic church esems! I am not satisfied with Unitaria-tie is so trifling compared with Roman Catholics of the world. I long for something more that a teacher al above us, for a tradition more grad. I don't think we, any of us, in this age, ought to bastisfied with anything less than a theology to which the whole human race has contributed, and a liturg to which the whole human race add its prayer. The human race is outgrowing our special and limited religions. You may take the robin's gr fm to hyour patient fidelity, and all the muclings ad atticking-plaster you can put on it, will never get this being hatched you may crack it with the steg of your nail and the bird is free. But all your power, and all your patient fidelity, and all the muclings ad atticking-plaster you can put on it, will never get this being backed into that little egg again. So complets is the broken the bird is free forever. You had better is birn use his wings, even if he comes to mischiel in consequence. And yet, on the other hand, is that bird to turn back and blame the egg, or that institution of eg-which somehow does in its own way hatch birds for for for my friend Abbot,—whom I lore to gree with, because I always hope that by agreeing with him I may perhaps catch something of that course and fidelity of conviction that leave him too much alone. He has recognized what it is needless for me to repeat. The sweetness, the virtue, the love this still for multitudes around us are engraved in Chris-tanity.—he has recognized that. I recognize in reim what he has said, that if the brighter pages of the past are written with the name of Christianity, also are some of the darkest. T recognize that his view of Christianity is too scholastic, too much of the closet and the office, too little of the world of prei-cal life. It is true, as he says, that when we are in-terpreting the word "Christianity" for curselve, me sof construction; but I cannot agree, as he say, that in interpret in view of all accuracy, all strictures of construction; but I cannot agree, as he say, that which he hasit on that same strictness. Le each man interpret for himself, and let us judge him ac-ording as he interprets it. God forbid that I should hold any man, because he calls himself Christian to be Christian in any other sense of the word is han has which he habitnally recognized. It is the basi-meas of a man who lives among men to take words at their current valuation for current purposes. Tou

Dimitration Google

must deal with Christianity for what it is to-day, not for what it was in the past. I think it is a mistake to go about the world treat-ing all our fellow-creatures as if they were their an-costors who lived a great many centuries ago and be-haved very differently. Let us take the facts as they are. Clergymen in Boston in old times had those who differed from them tied to a cart and whipped through the town. Am I to carry the natural ani-mosity of those days in dealing with a modern clergy-man who simply puts me into his buggy and driven me out over the Brighton road behind his Morgan mare? Because clergymen in other days lighted the free of the Inquisition, am I to keep up that good old offers me nothing more perilous than a lighted clear? It was all very well for Miles Standish to go among the Induisito, am I called upon to make a visit in similar armor to the peaceful Indians of Martha's Vineyard, merely because their great-grandfather? The principle of change rules human events. We cannot leave it out of sight. We cannot accept the kind-ness, the courtesy, the amenities of life that the civ-lized world gives us in these days, and yet return the with the old war-whoop and the tomahawk. It is impossible. Theology is everywhere softened. In this week's theologian who hated Arminianism with a more good, thorough-going, almost unquestioning, hatred than our dear Agassis hated Darwinism? We talk about the quarrels of theologians, --why, the one nat-ural history magazine of New England was filled, for months after months, with the quarrels of the scien-tific men in regard to the bones of a single animal, with a long name, which was dug up in Colorado; and they carried it so far that the editor had to shut down on them at last, and let them print extra leaves at their own expense, and their angry controversy only died as their pockets grew empty. It is easy to religion itself, is giving us also a great deal. Science, secularism, give us the North American and the New York Nation, --periodicals of great intellectual value, but whose maxim is not, as our friend Frothingham quoted, the Irishman's, "Wherever you see a head hit it," but, "Wherever yon see a beart hit." It is, ou the other hand, Christianly, that still gives us news-papers like the New York Independent and the Chris-tian Union, that scatter by tens of thousands through the nation such a breadth, and liberality of doctrine that the Independent was criticising TBE INDEE a while ago for stealing its thunder. Secular science gives us Harvard University, and no woman inside it doors. The only person on the Board of Over-seers who wanted to have them there was the only doctor of divinity on the Board of Overseers, and there he is. [Fointing to Rev. James Freeman Clarke, who sato on the platform.] But Evangelical religion gave us Oberlin College and the Boston Univ-ersity, which know no distinction of sex in knowi-edge.

<text>

÷

The set of a set of the particular of the Boston Uni-versity, which know no distinction of sex in knowl-edge. No, I cannot see as yet that science is so far dis-mately a dead letter to the world. The time may come when equal intellect, with more of heart, equal thought, with more of tenderness, shall give us some-thing before which the Christianity of to day, or of all days, shall find itself but an incomplete thing, and shall withdraw ittelf so peacefully that it shall not need the word "anti" to dispel it. And yet, for the reasons already given, I can see no consistent position for many of us except that which might be called "Extra-Christiani," simply outside of Christianity, because we cannot coufine ourselves to it, an attitude taking in Christianity, with what is best of all religions of the world. But for Christian-ity itself I have not merely the same sympathy that I should have for Buddhism if I was within its tem-ples, but a nobler sympathy as for a still nobler relig-ion. When the first large company of colonists came to the Massachusetts Colony, it is reported that, as they left England, the clergyman who was the leader of them looked back over the stern of the vessel, and said, alluding to the earlier Pilgrims who had settled Plymouth, and who had called themselves Separat-ists. "We will not say, as the Separatists did, 'Fare-well, Babylon1' Farewell, Rome!" But we will say, 'Farewell, dear England, The Separatists did, 'Fare-well, Babylon1' Farewell, Rome!" But we will say, 'Farewell, dear England, The See no reason why we should not echo the loving words of that farewell.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES: SEPTEMBER, 1874.

<text><text><text>

24, 1874. 459

been made." A convert must be quite a lion in India.
The Bishop of Capetown is the next to say an encouraging word, and to inform as that special efforts are needed to "cope with the Mohammedan propaganda which is being carried on in South Africa." A Mohammedan propaganda means, we must remember, the worship of one God.
Nearer home, a Bishop—he of Lincoln—comes forward to destroy the doctrine of the "resurrection of the flesh," with the astounding assertion (from Christian lips) that cremation will destroy that belief. Alas for the "noble army of martyrs" and their dispersed bodies! The Bishop has no word of comfort for them. It is another reason for urging crediation that we now know, on such good authority, that it will convince good Christian people that flesh and blood do not retain their original character after death. But surely the Bishop of Lincoln might be aroused to a sense of the difficulty of his position by taking him to the side of an open grave whose occupant has lain there for six months. Would that be more easily revivified than a handful of ashes?
A remarkable volume of sermons has appeared from the pen of the late Dr. Lee, of Edinburgh. Their strong common sense is most refreshing, as where he advises any persons suffering from irrita-bility to attend to their digestion rather than to their prayers. It is also encouraging to find Dr. Wallace preaching to a crowded and deeply-intorested audibility to attend to their digestion rather than to their prayers. It is also encouraging to find Dr. Wallace preaching to a crowded and deeply-interested audi-ence that "faith in God was native to the human apirit apart from the action of any revelation." The age of free thought is dawning in Scotland, and we shall soon have good news from the north of the Tweed.

Main soon have good heve from the inclusion of the Mr. Moncure Conway's Sacred Anthology is draw-ing a good deal of attention in Christian circles, and is being commented on by many religious news-papers; it will be preëminently useful if it succeeds in convincing Christians that Revelation is coexten-sive with Humanity, the corollary of which state-ment is, that there is nothing "supernatural" in any "sacred" book.

sive with Humanity, the corollary of which state-ment is, that there is nothing "supernatural" in any "sacred" book. A remarkable example of the Christian style of carrying on war has come before the readers of a provincial paper. The well-known Dr. Parker was the subject of a sketch, and, as a public man, his preaching and his work were criticised. The ciergy-man, however fond of publicity, was too thin-skinned to bear criticism, and accordingly wrote to complain of the article; instead of meeting and contradicting its misstatements—if misstatements indeed they were,—he goes out of his way to pen a cruel and un-manily sneer at the supposed poverty of his critic. We do not mention this in order to blame Dr. Parker, who was only availing himself of a weapon conse-crated by ages of Christian use, but simply that we may remind all freethinkers that our higher morality does not allow such personal attacks as these, even in retalisation, and that foul language and unmanity in-strations should be left entirely to the Christians. Lady Amberley was faitful in death to the prin-ciples she professed during life, and offers one more prof of the absurdity of the taunt, "You will this very differently when you come to die." She ex-pressed a wish to be cremated after death, a request is was unfortunately impossible to carry out, and ehe was buried in "inconsecrated" ground without either religions ceremony or childish ostentation. The extreme parties, "high" and "low," are doing four work for us with commendable vigor. They time Christianity sometimes into derision and some-imes into an offence to refinement and right feeling. Of the former class are the following specimens. At the Agricultaria Show at Bedford, a placard was stuck up near the sceppens.

stuck up near the sheep-pens,

BEHOLD THE LAMB

Of God who taketh away the sins of the world.

Optimizing GOOgle

We can imagine the comments of the profane. In the Literary Churchman is reviewed a book by a "A Layman," who speaks of "the hoary head of the Almighty" as a literal fact, and describes Moses as into a fairer form than the Church approve. It is well that we should see sometimes what Christianity is when it is not cowed and restrained by the presence of a freedom stronger than itself.

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

Our last Roman Catholic item comes from America, and refers to a priest named Father Terry. This the peluge, and runs his tonsured head against the difficulty of the animals going to and returning from the sch. "It is rather remarkable how the different any and the head against the difficulty of the animals going to and returning from the sch. "It is rather remarkable how the different any appeared again in the very parts of the world to which they must have been preserved in the ark, reappeared again in the very parts of the world to which they must have been originally indigenous. Some theologians thought that they were transported to the ark and back by angels. Just think of an elephant sitting jauntily on the shoulder of a scraph, and of apes borne grandly in the sit on the wings of the world its were income grandly in the sit on the wings of the original is still not a serie in the very interverent, though humorous, priest has, of course, relieved him of his functions. Roman discipline is still not an empty threat.
The Germany the religious was its belign way end flererers in the is accussed of religions persecution where he every fatheriand of free though will a be such of the scanse the State against the compirators who hide their plota ander the cassock of the priest and the monk. But all liberals must be act of the scanse to to result the were fatherian do free though will seems to be defineding the State against compirators who hide their plota ander the cassock of the nonce, and Don Carlos promises not to result be a nonce, and compirator is showed a conflict is some the south the scanse. "End of the south the clark is accused of the grains descriptions, and refer though the south a conflict is some norther bear any the set has the Church is sheathing her claws, to the nonce, and Don Carlos prom are most anxious to retain it, and a good deal of bitterness is arising on the subject. We may hope that so utterly unimportant a point will be allowed to drop quietly, instead of becoming a bone of con-tention among friends and fellow-workers. The name is getting thoroughly discredited by these squabbles, and an American paper quaintly remarks that "Christian is a title that just now is lying around loose." It is a "sign" that we are growing strong that we can afford to acrutinize so closely our neighbors' dress; but we shall do well not to make molehills into mountains.—Published in tract form by Thomas Scott, Esq., of London.

TWO INTERESTING LETTERS.

MESSES, EDITORS :-

 TWO INTERESTING LETTERS.

 MASSES. EDITORS:—

 Image one of the congregation assembled in the internation of the congregation assembled in the internation of the congregation assembled in the internation of the congregation and encessore which did credit to har monly integrity of thought and feeling, advanced a platform of religious belief in harmony with the most radical hypotheses of the present day.

 Image one of the congregation assembled in the internation of religious belief in harmony with the most radical hypotheses of the present day.

 Image one of the congregation assembled in harmony with the most radical hypotheses of the present day.

 Image one of the present day.

ine that it must be specially distasteful to one of Mr. Potter's truthfulness of spirit. It must appear like an unworthy concession to existing prejudices. When Mr. Abbot preached in Mr. Potter's stead, not long ago, he did not engage in any exercise like that of prayer. He gave fair scope to his convictions. Again, if there is no room in the universe for a Su-preme Being outside of matter, how can there be room for any spirit of man outside of matter? When we die, all that was of us materially still remains on-earth in the shape of gases, lime, mould, etc., en-dowed with all its original potency, and ready to take on new forms of life. Nothing has escaped; nothing been parted with. Where then is there the slightest room for a doctrine of immortality, for a conscious ez-istence beyond the grave?

room for a doctrine of immortality, for a conscious ex-istence beyond the grave i Tyndall and Darwin may be the evangels of abso-lute trath and a new dispensation. But if so, then the ideas suggested by such words as God, eternity, heaven, immortality—according to their accepted sig-nification,—must disappear from among the concep-tions of mankind. CHANNING. —New Bedford Mercury of September 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS :-

-New Bedford Mercury of September 10. MESSES, ENITORS := 1 In your paper of this morning, a correspond-ent, over the signature of "Channing," makes some strictures on my sermon of last Sunday, and in doing so gives a view of the sermon which in one or two particulars I desire to correct; for, though the writer evidently meant to be just, and wrote in a spirit sufficiently kind, on some important points he gives an interpretation of the discourse in which I do not recognize my own ideas or expressions. The fault was perhaps mine, in not stating my views with requisite clearness; or possibly the writer listened through preconceptions of his own, and so drew infer-ences from what I said which he supposed I would draw, but which were really his and not mine. The senton, it is true, was extemporaneous, and I have nothing to depend upon now for recalling it but my own memory and my knowledge of my own beliefs. Tet I am very confident that I could not have spoken of prayer as "not addressed to any conscious being." What I did say, as nearly as I can remem-ber my words, was, that, with my conception of Dei-try prayer could not be a petition for gifts addressed to an almighty Monarch supposed to be sitting apart from the world on a distant throne in the heavens, with the expectation that the gifts would come by some supernatural process without the effort of man; but that it is the natural reaching out of the human soul in aspiration and longing toward the Infinite Power and Life that pervades the whole universe both of Nature and man, -the divine energy and evi-tality coming into our natural faculities, and working by natural process through them, just in proportion as they are open to it and observe the laws of their aristence. To my critic this view of Infinite Being and of man's relation thereto may seem equivalent to saying that Deity is 'mout a conscious being.'' but to imy mind it is not so. I freely admit that my under-standing fails to grasp a definite conception of a be-ing of infinite consciousness itterly distinct from the forms of finite consciousness itterly distinct from the to admit that in the ultimate source and cause of things there must be at least the potency of con-sciousness, as of all other phenomena that have ap-peared in the world's evolution, and hence on the denial. But into this question—a metaphysical rather than a practical one—I did not rentre in the discourse, and will not enter now. It is impossible to the finite Heat there should not be mystery concerning the Supreme Power and cause. For an, after all revelations, I am compelled reverently to asy with the old Hebrew writer, 'Lo, these are path of his ways, but how little a portion is head of him?'' Yet of our relation to Him I can say with Paul, 'In Him we live, and move, and have our be ing.''

<text><text><text><text>

A NEW SATIRE.

<section-header><section-header><text><text>

Weiblight Google

tian may point to the fact that the heathen was finally converted to the Christianity he attacked, by finding the personal witness of one devoted life to testify to its beauty and trath. The full preface states the views of the writer fairly and frankly. If the pro-fessed religion of English men and women survives the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because the scrutinizes of the next century, it will be because acted out or else abjured. As it is, Christian women drive and dress, and Christian men hunt and dine; and Christian children, who may die to-morrow, are told to enjoy themselves while they can; and Chris-tian priests and Christian bishops join the happy throng, and say that it is all right and proper, and laugh with the loudest, and joke with the funniest, and would think it the very worst possible taste if some wicked unbeliever were humbly to suggest a doubt whether any gentleman or lady present had one single thought in common with the persecuted, despised, and sorrowing Christ. Because he was poor, and bade his followers be like him, is there any-thing in the world to prevent a Christian bishop from taking rank among dukes and earls, and enjoying an income of fitteen thousand pounds a year? The further contents of the volume consist of some marrative, and much conversation between the partian may point to the fact that the heathen was finally

The further contents of the volume consist of some narrative, and much conversation between the par-son, who holds a small town-living in the south of England, and esteems himself pretty comfortably off in having good health, kind neighbors, and work that suits him, besides the ability to drive his friends from the railway station in his own trap, and give there a very fair bottle of claret after dinner, and the grand-son of Sir Jamjeebhoy Curtsetjee, who received a baronetcy from a Christian government for having amassed an enormous fortune in opium smuggling. The grandfather was, no doubt, a rigorous Parsee, but his descendant, being a younger brother, and the good sense to abbreviate his name to Curtis. He has also drifted out of the ancient tenets of his faith as a Parsee, and into believing in mothing whatever. no singer of autocession to the family honors, has had the good sense to abbreviate his name to Curris. He has also drifted out of the ancient tenets of his faith as a Parsee, and into believing in nothing whatever. He has read, with considerable, diligence, the Bible and other Christian books, and is distinguished among the members of his own learned profession at Lincoln's Inn, for the remarkable vigor and acutences of his mind. The parson and his "heathen guest" were seated in the former's study after dinner, during which they had drunk as much wine as was good for them, and were making themselves very particularly comfortsble over a couple of long clay pipes, and a "small September fire," when the conversation accl-dentally turns upon Christianity. Contrary to the naual custom, the argument is continued without anger on either side, though any reader can see that the heathen sceptic and critic gets the better of his opponent while the discussion lasts. It is only when the parson bethinks himself that faith is, after all, to is possesor the best justification it can have for er-isting, that the talk is discontinued, and both go to-gether to visit a man named Ainslee, who has been commonly accounted mad because he so closely fol-lowed the precepts of his Master as to give away a large fortune and live on a pittance afterwards. In this Ainslee, the easy, good-natured, pleasure-loving parson finds rebuke for his own inconsistency, and the heathen finds the personal witness to the truth that he has been crying for, and is converted. This conversion of the sceptic is a master-stroke of skill, and proves the writer's tilte to be called a most diplo-matic artist. Nevertheless, some of the words that he spoke before his conversion will linger in the mind. These, for instance:-

The provide the stepper is a mean and statistical properties of the stepper big conversion will linger in the mind. Lines of ristance:—
"You have made an egregious mistake in calling is country of yours a Christian country. It is a single state in the mind. Lines of the stepper big is heathen; its laws are beathen. Look at a sension of public opinion throughout the land. If the stepper on the table. From the first column of the stepper big is heathen; it is laws are beathen. Look at newspaper on the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. From the first column of the stepper of the table. The different is the stepper of the ste age."-Boston Saturday Gazette. Ax AMUSING STORY of an English nobleman, re-cently deceased, is told by the "Man About Town," in the English Sporting Gazette. We give it in his own words: "The duke," he says, "was once in church, no matter where, when a collection was an-nounced for some charitable object. The plate, or bag, or whatever it might be, began to go round, and the duke carefully put his hand into his pocket and took out a florin, which he laid on the pew before him ready for transfer to the plate. Beside him sat a little snob, who, noticing this action, imitated it by ostentatiously laying a sovereign alongside the ducal form. This was too much for his grace, who dipped his hand into his pocket again and pulled out another florin which he laid by the side of the first. The little snob followed ault by laying another sovereign beside the first. His grace quietly added a third florin, which was capped by a third sovereign on the part of huke's donation: then the little snob triumphantly lad three sovereigns at once upon the board. The little snot to be beaten, produced three florins. Just to bis handful of sovereigns and stentatiously ratiled them into the plate, then turned defiantly when his rival, as who should say, "I think that takes the shine out of you." Fance his chagrin when he duke with a grim smile put one florin into the plate and quietly swept the remaining six back into his pocket. His grace meed to chuckle when he tod dute, to you." Fance his chagrin when the duke with a grim smile put one florin into the plate and quietly swept the remaining six back into his pocket. His grace meed to chuckle when he to due the to be basten, produced the head the beat of it."

THE GREAT AMERICAN CHAPLAIN.

the deacon called on him, when the following colloquy took place:--Deacon N.-Elder K., that horse you sold me is store in the fore-shoulder. Elder K.-Eh, Deacon? If that be so, I advise you to say nothing about it. 'You may want to sell the animal, and it would injure the sale of him. The deacon withdrew.

Doetrn.

A STUDY FOR THE CRITICS.

BY JAMES MAURICE TROMPSON.

great king once, so I have heard, A great king once, so I have nears, Went out to bunt a single bird Whose voice should be so sweet and strong, So fraught with all the tricks of song, That they who heard it would confess The king's fine taste and perfectness The sing s inclusive and portectages of judgment. And it came to pass That where the wind poured through the grass, Fringing a brooklet's sinuous way. He saw a bird demure and gray, Of awkward mien and sleepy-eyed, Bathing in the crystal tide.

"O bird!" the king said, looking down, "A monarch I of high renown Am searching for a singing bird Whose voice, the sweetest ever heard, Shall cheer me in my hours of gloom, And coax my dead loves back to bloom."

"Take me, O king !" the gray bird said, "A sad and lonely ilfe Twe led, Singing with not a soul to hear, Pining for but one word of cheer,"

Thou ninny! Hast thou never heard Of my grand palace and my throne Of pearl and gold and precious stone? Thou gray, sad-eyed, presumptions thing! Thou entertain a court and king! Begone! Say not another word; My cage must hold a royal bird!"

There came a silken sound of wings Above the brooklet's marmarings; The wind fell still upon the grass To watch the grap bird upward pass; The saulight milder, softer grew; The leaves took on a tender hue— As if all Nature, gently stirred, Bade farewell to the going bird.

The monarch stood with lips compressed, Regret and choler in his breast, While from the sky, well-sent and strong, Came back a Parthian shaft of song.

-Lippincott's Magazine for September.

NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO INDEX STOCK.

Mrs. F. W. Christern,	New York City,	One a	DATE
Richard B. Westbrook	, Sonman, Pa.			100
R. C. Spencer,	Milwaukee, Wis.	Two		909
R. W. Howes,	Boston, Mass.	One	86	105
Chas. W. Story,	Boston, Mass,	44		100
E. W. Meddaugh,	Detroit, Mich.	Five	- 16	500
Jacob Hoffner,	Cumminsville, O.	One		100
John Weiss,	Boston, Mass.		64	100
W. C. Russel,	Ithaca, N. Y.	66		100
A. W. Leggett,	Detroit, Mleh.	. 44		100
B. F. Dyer,	Boston, Mass.		14	100
James Purinton,	Lynn, Mass.		64	100
F. A. Nichols,	Lowell, Mass.			100
J. S. Palmer,	Portland, Me.		- 66	100
Robt. Ormiston,	Brooklyn, N.Y.	44	-	100
Mrs. A. L. Richmond,	Lowell, Mass.		41	100
Mrs. Benj. Ireson,	Lynn, Mass.			100
J. E. Oliver,	Ithaca, N.Y.			100
E. H. Aldrich,	Providence, R.I.		10	100
Geo. L. Clark,	Providence, R.I.			100
W. M. Jackson,	Providence, R.I.	Two	-
Mrs. E. B. Chase,	Valley Falls, R.1.	- WG		200
L. F. Garvin,	Lonsdale, B.I.		**
Jaines Damon,	Ipswich, Mass.	One	-	+ 100
Joseph A. Barker,	Providence, R.I.			100
aquebu w. Darwer!	Flowidence, R.I.			109

CASE RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WREE ENDING SEPTEMBER 19.

FOR THE WHEN ENDING SEPTEMBER 19.
 New England News Co., $19.84; George H. Foster, $1.15; Mary Adnir, 25 cents; A. W. Kelsey, 50 cents; J. R. Hawley, 22.76; D. K. Hull, 83; William Merritt, $6; Herbert Filtch-er, $1.60; Dr. Temlinson, $3; E. S. Beckley, $3; C. D. Childs, $3; C. P. Robeson, $3; T. B. Skinner, $3; W. J. Godfrey, $2; M. W. Stubbs, $1; E. R. Harris, $3; Horace White, $2.25; J. Brackett, $5; E. W. Bonham, $2; K. B. Spurrier, $1; L. C. Sleeper, $0.20; M. S. Clark, $5; Mrs. Fuller, $5.25; S. H. Richardson, $5; Smuel Townsend, $1.60; A. M. Shaw, $1; W. Wickersham, $3; J. C. Allen, $1; R. D. M. Turner, $5; Margue Fflaum, $3; J. C. Allen, $1; R. D. M. Turner, $5; Margue Fflaum, $5; C. H. Brigham, $2.25; R. Wallace, $3]; F. Fradley, $5.25; Benj. Cobb, Jr., $3]; C. D. Cook, $2.25; J. Un Davis, $250; M. Oelano, $7; S. S. Wernott, $3; Mary E. Yuy, $0 cents; T. J. Grouse, $2; Clara C. Desauer, $1.60; Mr. Conce, $1; R. P. Hallowell, $4 cents; W. P. Weaselhooft, 40 cents; L. B. Sayles, 20 cents; George Frodsham, $2.25; Francis Jenkine, $2; Andrew High, 50 cents; Charles M. Cuyler, $2; W. H. Walworth, $4.50; E. M. Moore, $3.
 M. Terecipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sending, will please notify us.
 M. B. -Please remit unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.

In the weeks attended with post-office money-order, by registered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks an interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit. N. B. -Orders for Tracts or single numbers of THE list part which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be otherwise filled to the same amount without further notice.

erwise miles to the same amount without further notice. N. B.-Postage on THE INDIX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.-When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remittance as exactly as possible.

-Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your mail-tag, and report at once any error in either.

A NOTED Baptist politician and divine, who was an expert at a horse trade, is reported to have sold a horse to one of his deacons. A day or two afterward the descon called on him, when the following colloquy

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAT

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Teledo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, ABRAM WALTER STRVENS, OUTAVIUS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTH BIGGITSON, WILLIAM J. FOTTER, RUGHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MISS. E. D. CHENET, REV. CHARLES VOYSEY (England), POI. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles dealred. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEE will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a con-

PROF. TYNDALL'S late address is now for sale at this office, in the form of a neat pamphlet of 72 pages, with large type. Price, 25 cents.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for fliteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

RABBI SONNESCHEIN forbore to print his speech at the May meeting of the Free Religious Association in the columns of his own paper, the American Israelite, in advance of its publication in the Association's Annual Report. We would respectfully express our appreciation of his delicacy in this matter.

ME. EDWARD M. DAVIS, of Philadelphia, requests us to copy this statement, which we do on his authority: "The government loans to the National Banks over three hundred and fifty millions of dollars without interest ! and allows the banks interest on the securities deposited for the loan !! Send no one to Congress who approves of this injustice."

THE Free Sunday Advocate and National Sunday League Record, in its issue of August, 1874, republishes an editorial article from THE INDEX of July 2, entitled "The Danger of Dead Letter Laws." We notice, also, that the same monthly has adopted THE INDEX motto, "Liberty and Light," which it puts in quotation marks on its first page. It is necessary to state that it is published in London, as otherwise the Independent will locate it at random on the prairies.

WE MUST ask some of those who send articles criticising our views to be more careful not to misrepresent them. It is a sheer waste of space to print papers to which the only reply possible is that they fight a man of straw. Take pains to understand us before you fly to arms. . The closer your argument and the nearer home you strike, so much the readier are we to publish what you write; but it is thresome and profitless to all concerned to mistake the points at issue. Before you begin to write, pray read carefully enough to know exactly what the error to be corrected is. Some otherwise good communications fall to get printed because we cannot spare room for refutations of what has never been said.

AN EXTRAORDINARY ABTICLE on "Liberty of Speech," showing the secret intent of the Christian Amendment party, is contained in the Christian Statesman of August 8. The editor takes the ground that, if any man's "teachings and efforts" "in any way weaken the foundations of law and good government," then it "becomes the imperative duty of the State to suppress both deed and word." Now we credit the Statesman with the courage of its opinions, and with this belief solicit a reply to three plain questions :-

1. Do our own teachings and efforts in any way weaken the foundations of law and good government?

2. Is it the duty of the State to suppress THE IN-DES accordingly?

3. Would the editor of the Statesman, if he repre sented the State and had the power, suppress it?

Will the Statesman please answer these questions briefly and to the point, as we would answer any similar questions it might choose to put?

THE THREE PLEAS.

The three addresses made at the last May meeting of the Free Religious Association on the true relation of Free Religion to Christianity are now fairly before the readers of THE INDEX, the last of them being contained in our present issue. In the second of these addresses, republished last week, we stated (with all the incompleteness of an extempore speech) our own view of the question in an affirmative form, embracing these chief positions :-

1. That the true definition of Christianity is the first point to be determined, and that the consensus of all organized Christian bodies, more particularly Orthodox Christian bodies, ought to determine it. That is, Christianity should be conceded to be what the great Christian Church as a whole declares it to be,-the conflicting views of the dissenting, small minority of "heretics" not being entitled, on any just ground, to be taken as the definition of it.

2. That, defined by this consensus of the Church as a whole, Christianity rests on the principle of Authority and consists in the system of faith and practice known from the beginning as Orthodoxy.

3. That, notwithstanding all that is noble and beautiful in it, this Christian system has steadily opposed all mental and spiritual freedom which has not first submitted to its own authority; and therefore, by the inherent necessity of its nature, it has been one continuous crime against some of the most precious rights and interests of mankind.

4. That, in consequence of Christianity having thus identified itself with spiritual slavery, every free mind is necessarily, though incidentally and perhaps unconsciously, Anti-Christian; that to live for freedom is to oppose its opposite by the very nature of things; and that Free Religion, however some of its friends may temporarily delude themselves, is and must be Anti-Christian in fact.

5. That the principle of spiritual freedom, meaning the full natural exercise of all human faculties unrestricted by any unnatural or arbitrary conditions, is fundamentally positive, not negative, in its essence; and the relation of antagonism to Christianity, which is involved in the central principles of Free Religion, is purely incidental, and merely results from the fact that Christianity is essentially a restriction of freedom by person-worship.

6. That every one imbued with the spirit of Free Religion, whether he fully comprehends or not the real drift of his own thought and the real influence of his own life, is Anti-Christian, and nothing else; and any middle ground is logically impossible between the two principles at stake. In a word, all we who go for Free Religion are Anti-Christian in reality, as all the rest of the world sees; and we cannot help ourselves. Why not, then, see and acknowledge the fact?

Now it will not be taken amiss, we are confident, if we say something at this time by way of examination of what Mr. Calthrop and Col. Higginson have urged against the views we have expressed.

Mr. Calthrop thinks that the "platform" of the Free Religious Association can be neither Christian, Extra-Christian, nor Anti-Christian, without "omitting the word 'Free' from its name:" all religions must meet on that platform on equal terms, and "shake hands" there with a mutual "God bless you." What is the fact of the case? Suppose that there were such a society as the "Slave Religious Association," the object of which was avowedly to promote the cause of spiritual servitude and thraldom; must we admit that our platform is broad enough to welcome the workers for such a religion as that on equal terms? Could the "Free Religionists" and the "Slave Religionists" shake hands and bid each other God-speed? We think not. The Free Religious Association must sympathize with all who seek freedom in religion, whatever they believe; but it could not without idiocy sympathize with those who should seek slavery in religion. On the question of liberty it must take sides. On that it can never be neutral without indeed belying its name. It has no right to ask, "What do you think on this or that particular point ?" but it cannot help asking, "Do you concede the right to think freely on all points ?" The great right of free thought it must defend to the uttermost, or it has no excuse for being.

Now apply this view of the Free Religious Associa tion and its platform to the case of Christianity. To all Christians it must say, "If you hold your Christianity so as to admit the rightfulness of free thought without limitation, we welcome you, not because you are Christians, but because you are freedom-lovers. We do not inquire how it is that you reconcile your Christianity with your free thought; that is your own affair. You may think you have reconciled the two when you have not; that is none of our business, so long as you hold our principle of liberty in good faith. At the threshold of our communion you must at least drop the claim to prescribe limits to human intelligence, for our communion exists to abolish all such limits. We will shake hands heartily with you as men and women; we will welcome gladly your broad and universal principles; but you must leave at home the 'special claims' which deny those principles. It is these 'special claims' which make all the mischlef; they fight everywhere else like cats and dogs, and they will never 'shake hands' on any platform. The Jew, the Christian, the Buddhist, the Mohammedan, and the rest, cease to be such in fact, when they drop their 'special claims' and meet on the ground of recognized equality; though they may keep their old names here, they have really outgrown the only ideas that gave these names birth and still give them meaning. Christian you imagine yourself, but Christian you are not, if you stultify your faith in Christ by faith in freedom. We welcome you, then, as fellow-men; but we cannot welcome you as Christians. In short, no man can be a consistent Christian who plants himself on Free Religion." That is what the Free Religious Association (in our opinion) says to the Christian world, not by any set form of words, yet by the necessary implication of its collectively affirmed faith in free thought. And it has a cordial welcome for Mr. Calthrop because he is in fact as much of a free thinker, and as little of a Christian, as the rest of its members. He believes as heartly in freedom as the most pronounced Anti-Christian in it; and by-and-by he will wake up to the fact that he is an Anti-Christian too, if he ever comes to perceive what sledge-hammer blows he is wont to plant between the eyes of the real Christianity. His address, in fact, was not a plea for Christianity at all, but rather a general defence of the evolution philosophy.

Turning to Col. Higginson's genial and spicy speech, which was ten times as eloquent as ours, we must say "right out in meeting" that we do not think it was one tenth as true. He opened with a "parable of the cradle;" very telling by its wit. He thought that Mr. Calthrop was for staying forever in his cradle, while we were for "smashing" ours the minute we got out of it. We joined in the laugh, of course; but we had our revenge when he came to his "parable of the bird's egg." To make good the outside position he too defends with reference to Christianity, he argued that the bird must be free from the egg in order to use his wings. But how was the bird to make himself free from the egg? Why, he must smash it ! Just so with Christianity-the antique eggshell which confines to-day a humanity all ready to use its wings. Putting the two parables together, we submit that Col. Higginson is about a abandoned an Anti-Christian as we are. The only difference is, by his own showing, that we go for smashing cradles, while he goes for smashing eggshells!

With great truth Col. Higginson points out how Christianity itself has "softened," we should rather say, decayed. It is going to pieces-no doubt about that. But our friend misconceives our meaning, if he thinks that we would "hold any man, because he calls himself Christian, to be Christian in any other sense of the word than that which he habitually recognizes." The natural effect of disorganized thought is disorganized speech; and many a man of good parts in our day gets muddled over the everlasting conundrum, "What is Christianity ?" Into the chaos of modern definitions of it, we would fain introduce a little scientific precision. This done, it will suffciently appear what a terrible indictment humanity must bring against Christianity as it has written out its own history, and also what is the real enemy that still, under a thousand disguises, blocks the pathway of real reform. Here, for instance, is the Woman's Journal, the rather dull setting of weekly jewels of our friend's; on the one hand it builds up woman suffrage by fair argument, and on the other hand pulls it down again by eulogizing the gospel that is to-day its strongest enemy. Analyze the opposition to any forward step of progress, and you will find its roots in the Church or the Bible. Why serre, like Samson, the very foe that has blinded us? Let the modern Samson, if need be, atone for the blunder as heroically as the old !

But Col. Higginson urges the present feebleness of the Christian Amendment movement as disproving its real dangerousness. We do not think he appreciates the grounds on which we consider it dangerous.

Contractory COOSIC

These grounds are not the number of its adherents, the success of its plans, or the popularity of its objects; but rather the logical necessities of Christianity itself. The Church in this country is becoming awars of the peril it is now in by the irresistible spread of free thought, which is surely undermining its hold upon the privileges and legal advantages it still enjoys, as well as its power over men's minds. If it is determined to retain these privileges and advantages (and it seems to us fatuity to suppose otherwise), the only possible means of retaining them ultimately lies in the Christian Amendment in some form or other. Col. Higginson's reply to this is no reply at all; for he simply points out the present feebleness of the Just as wisely might one have argued movement. the feebleness of the old abolition movement from the feebleness of the Antislavery Society thirty years The Christian Amendment movement is simply APO. the old claim of Christianity for POWER, put in a form adapted to the times. It represents the fundamental principle of Authority which is the essence of Christianity, as proved by its entire history; and this is a principle necessarily antagonized by all our political traditions, instincts, and institutions. Is not collision absolutely inevitable in some shape? We believe it is, and hold that everybody is Anti-Christian in fact, whatever his opinions, who acts for freedom.

But, says Col. Higginson, "I don't wish to fight against Christianity or the Christian Church, but only against their excesses and abuses." The trouble is that this claim of Authority, this demand for power, is not the abuse, but the essence, of Christianity. Even in its most heretical forms, the Church still declares that Jesus the Christ is Lord, Master, and King of the human race; and this declaration, politically translated, means encroachment on individual and public liberties. This is what we repeatedly urge, but it is the point universally evaded. We emphatically challenge the world to dispute it. It was our hope that this discussion would have brought out some argument to the point; but we must confess it has not done so. The old political parties tried to dodge discussion of the right or wrong of chattel-slavery, but they failed at last. The pres ent political parties try to dodge discussion of the right or wrong of the Demands of Liberalism, but they will fail at last. Whoever stands for freedom in this issue,-belleves in it, advocates it, votes for it,-ls an Anti-Christian; and all the words in Webster's Dictionary can never prove him anything else.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

A few members of the Free Religious Association may not have received the Annual Report to which they are entitled, because they did not give any postoffice address with their names. Any such persons may obtain a copy by calling at the office of the Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, giving their names, or by sending their post-office address to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec'y F.R.A.

THE DESOLATE CHILDREN.

"The desolation that Free Religion makes in the lives of little children." This is the phrase used by the Independent. It is but fair to say that it uses these words as describing the statement made by a writer in the Golden Age; and it is but fair to that writer to say that these words do him, as well as the truth, great injustice.

Let us consider the matter from the point of view of one reared, as I was, under the very mildest form of Unitarianism,-a form less like the modern Unitarianism which the Independent encourages than of the Free Religion which it reprobates. I had, therefore, as good an opportunity as those times afforded to experience "desolation." Moreover, my immediate playmates were so situated that I could compare "Minthe comforts of their condition with my own. isters' sons and deacons' daughters" are proverbially troublesome subjects; and I can honestly say that these small boys, belonging in the former class, taught me quite as much mischief as I taught them, and not so very much either. But, at any rate, I was not made aware in my own life of any source of "esolation" which did not extend to theirs.

In later years it was my pleasant lot to conduct, for months together, a Sunday afternoon service for children; doing all the talking, except when the children asked or answered questions, which they very often did. Any one who has ever talked to children knows that they form the most inexorable audience in the world, and the hardest to feed with chaff. No power on earth will make them listen longer than they are really interested, or profess any interest that they do not feel. To hold an audience of children, you must have not merely a fluent speech, but something to say. There seemed to be no "desolation" in the Sunday afternoons of those children; and as I often heard of children's begging off from their Sunday-schools, in order to come to our meetings, there must have been, in any event, more ,"desolation" somewhere else.

Other duties led, long since, to the discontinuance of those meetings; but whoso will may see similar gatherings—improved. I doubt not—whenever my friend Octavius Frothingham talks to the children of his congregation in New York. I know from the best testimony, that of the anditors themselves, that nothing so thoroughly averts "desolation" from those juvenile lives, for the time being, as a good halfhour's talk from the President of the Free Religious Association. I know that I once heard him tell to those children the story of Bret Harte's Luck of Roaring Camp, translated into such simplicity that it seemed to me—judging as well as I could, through the tears in my eyes—that there was not a six-yearold present who did not takk in every word of it.

"By Turn now from public to private instruction. their fruits ye shall know them" is a text still insisted upon; and if some angelic inspecting officer could be detailed to visit the families, let us say, of the Vice-Presidents of the "Free Religious Association"-beginning with Lucretia Mott's three generations of descendants, and going on through the households of Garrison, Emerson, Owen, Curtis, and the rest-we could soon form an opinion as to the amount of "desolation" put by Free Religion into children's lives. And if any merely mortal observer, who knows the actual households, will look over the remaining list of officers, and consider the faces and demeanor of the young generation of heretics whom he has seen clustering round the fireside of each, he will find something deliciously absurd in characterizing their condition as "desolation." If their lives are "desolate," what picture shall we paint of childish lives that are joyous and innocent and happy?

I never wish to describe private intercourse, but I know that Mr. Darwin will pardon me for saying that the very pleasantest association I brought away with me from his hospitable home was of the look of loving pride he cast at his two manly sons when he said (this very subject being under discussion) that he had never found his opinions to cause any embarrassment in the training of his children, nor did he feel any sort of dissatisfaction as to the result. He added that, as his own training had been equally liberal in its tone, and as his father had been similarly reared before him, the experiment of freedom was in a fair way to be pretty thoroughly tried, so far as concerned the house of Darwin.

I can well understand that where the minds of individual men and women are in a peculiarly unsettled state, the fact will have a bearing upon the training of their children. But unsettled minds are not a monopoly of Free Religion; nor are fixed convictions a monopoly of the Church. The common complaint is that the minds of unbelievers are altogether too fixed. But for a mind troubled with doubts there is nothing better than to talk with little children. Their fearless questioning encourages the questions of their elders, while their loving confi-dence teaches confidence. No speculation can be more daring than theirs; no faith more tender. Many a parent has found peace, I fancy, by the very effort required to become "as a little child," or at least to explain himself to children. I can understand the embarrassment that some men and women find in answering the questions of their children; but the embarrassment relieves itself. I can honestly say that I have never known a person whose life was avowedly "desolated" through the heretical opinions of his parents; while I have known many lives to be "desolated"-temporarily at least-by the reaction T. W. H. from revival-conversions.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL AND "THE NA-TION."

To men of ordinary minds an act of Congress designed to secure civil rights to some millions of citizens, if efficiently enforced, would be regarded not only by the people benefited, but by their friends, as a boon and a blessing. The late Mr. Sumner introduced such a bill into the United States Senate. In the judgment of the great Senator it was necessary for the protection of the Southern negro whose rights are daily outraged.

It has been reserved for the editor of the Nation to make the discovery that this bill "can do nothing for him (the negro) but turn his friends into enemies." Of course the Nation is his "friend." As every one knows, that paper owes its origin largely to professed interest in the freedmen. Will it take the lead in this suggested apostasy, if Mr. Sumner's bill becomes a law? What a following it will have! Jefferson Davis, Andrew Johnson, Louisians Penn, and a host of similarly devoted "friends" may safely be counted upon.

Another discovery of the Nation is the unconstitutionality of the bill. These "friends" were ever con-spicuous for their devotion to the Constitution. In the good old times they nursed it; they were untiring in their efforts to defend it from the attacks of such foes to the negro as Giddings and Summer, Phillips and Garrison. How grandly the Nation now re-vives the waning spirit of loyalty! It insists that "the mere suggestion of the constitutional points ought to have killed the bill forever." An enemy to the negro would perhaps seek to reconcile the letter of the law with the letter of the Constitution; his "friends," in their zeal, would not only kill it but kill it forever. The bill, however, is not dead, but still wi ids its potent influence for injury to the Nation's wards, the freedmen. Its passage by the Senate is characterized as "hounding on his old masters to acts of violence and lawlessness." Mr. Sumner and the Senate are responsible for the white leagues, the outrages, the butchery of negrocs, the usurpation of State governments; in short, the anarchy and reign of terror throughout the South. What are the provisions of the bill so fraught with evil, so inimical to the welfare of the freedmen, and therefore so abhorred by the editor of the Nation? We reproduce them from that paper :-- them from that paper :--"This bill provides that 'all cliizens and other pershall be entitled to the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities, and privleges of inns, public conveyances on land and water, theatres, and other places of public amusement, and also of common schools and public institutions of part by general taxation, and of cemeteries so suporder, and also the institutions known as agricultural oported, and also the institutions whole or in part by general taxation, and of cemeteries so suporder, and also the institutions known as agricultural oported, and also the institutions known as agricultural oported and also the institutions known as agricultural oported and also the institutions known as agricultural oported and also the united States courts in all criminal proceedings arising under the act. There are also providings arising under the south, is that we have any optiment of the bill, and that which is callsing the present excitement in the South, is that we have out cited."

The mere citation of this bill is sufficient answer to the virulent condemnation of it by the Nation. It provides for simple justice, for equality of citizenship without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude. It is an attempt to secure to white and black alike equal chances to win any position to which they are entitled. It does not violate the religious, social, civil, or political rights of any man.

And this is the bill denounced by the Nation as "violent and lawless," "equally" so with "acts of violence and lawlessness" of the negroes' "old masters." In his heated imagination the editor sees even the "children" (white) of the South" arrayed in rank rebellion against the "parents and guardians" who would send them to schools where they would mest their playmates of perhaps an hour before. If he is to be believed, there is no public sentiment in the South in favor of the bill; and yet on another page of the same paper he chronicles the fact that "the South Carolina Republicans have adopted a platform" which "demands the passage of the Civil Rights Bill."

The Nation calls upon the government that gave freedom to the slave to remand him to the service of his former master. It would have us stand by, consenting to a reconstruction of the rebel States upon a basis, not of freedom, but of wicked caste. This is the plain English of the matter. This is the meaning of its opposition to Mr. Sumner's bill, thinly disguised under a pretence of sympathy for the freedmen. Men who look with closed eyes and listen with cocked ears may ascribe "the present excitement in the South" to the mere proposal of the Civil Rights Bill: but men who look and listen in the ordinary way will not be deceived by such a weak invention. The old demon of slavery has been once more aroused, and its present defiant and aggressive attitude is to be referred to the encouragement it found in the failure of Congress to pass a bill that would adequately protect the negro. Had Mr. Sumner's bill been passed and enforced, we hazard the opinion that white leagues, that is, anti-negro leagues, would not now infest the South, defying law and murdering unoffending citizens. But Congress is not alone to blame. The Nation and other Northern papers that have allied themselves with these Southern cutthroats must share the heavy responsibility. Contemplating the present condition of affairs, recording the incipient rebellion now in progress, the Nation coolly says: "The reconstruction period is ended, and the negro in future will occupy such a position as his industry and sobriety entitle him to." Such a statement, coming on the heels of recent whiteleague outrages, implies incorrigible stupidity, or something far worse than stupidity. It involves a flagrant, wanton disregard of facts, sufficient to establish the moral obliquity of any pretending sympathizer with the colored man. Only mental or moral obfuscation can lead one to charge the crime of "hounding on his old masters to acts of violence" upon such men as Mr. Sumner and those who supported him in the Senate. The guilty parties are the men of the North, alders and abettors of ex-slave holders and rebels, who, with hypocritical regard for the well-being of the colored race, do their utmost to foster and develop a spirit of class and caste; a spirit resolved upon the subjugation or destruction of that race in this country. To know that they are fitly represented by the Nation, one has only to read its editorial columns, and for evidence of its peculiar ability in the "hounding on" business we refer espe cially to its latest issue. R. P. R.

manus Google

EXCLISE LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-It is difficult in these days to avoid a little moralizing on the free-love question, yet I have no desire to continue the discussion of it in your columns without an adequate reason.

Instead of doing so, I would throw out a few hints to the army of freethinkers and lovers of freedom, which may be just taken for what they are worth.

No one, I trust, can accuse me of want of sympathy with any individual who is struggling to escape from the mental and conventional shackles which have hitherto stood in the way of knowledge and of human happiness. I wish to be a reformer to the backbone, and not a mere whig; to maintain inviolate individual liberties, and not to forge a new set of chains for the old ones.

But with all that anxiety for true liberty, I feel convinced that, if we do not take care, our cry for freedom will become a mere cant, and degenerate into a nuisance which will deserve an extra strong dose of Carlylese denunciation. Of course, no one denies that man will be capable of infinitely higher achievements when all his faculties are fully developed, and when the present restraints and impediments are withdrawn. But unless each man thus set free perceives and alms at the true and legitimate object for which liberty is to be gained, the chances are that additional freedom will be an evil and not a good; will conduce to anarchy instead of order; will demoralize instead of purify; will hinder and not promote the advance of mankind.

I do not agree with those who regard human free dom as an end in itself. Liberty is but another form of power, inasmuch as it involves the raising of all previously acquired powers; and power by itself, as the world knows to its sorrow, is not an unmixed good.

In so far as power is combined with what we all understand by the term "want of principle," it is an evil and not a good at all. Only when joined to high moral qualities is power beneficial and salutary,

On this ground I can only regard freedom as a means to an end, only to be sought for to make its possessor to be more serviceable to his fellow-men; only to be granted by those who have power to withhold it if it be not properly used.

Now it would be mere folly and flattery to say that all the advocates of liberty (whether in thought or action) are seeking for it with pure, disinterested, or lofty motives. With many it is a personal question entirely, a selfish desire for the ease of mind or indulgence of body which they expect to gain from the rupture of the old restraints. It is guite natural. Every caged bird longs to fly; every captive, whether bound in iron chains or in the silken bandages of conventionalism, longs to escape and to do as he will. But while men are only in this stage of feeling, they must not take unction to themselves that they are the world's benefactors, nor flatter their souls with the belief that they are helping on the progress of mankind. Unless they are inspired with a spirit of true generosity and benevolence, their freedom will only become a nuisance and add to the world's difficulties.

Others there are among our ranks who cannot conceal from themselves, and scarcely conceal from their neighbors, the base motive which lies at the root of their craving for liberty.

If they are poor, they want the riches that belong to others; if they are in the humbler walks of life, they want to deprive honored men of their justly acquired titles of fame, that their envy may be gratified ; if they have an illicit passion, they advocate freelove that they may do respectably what is really disreputable.

The cry for freedom on the lips of such men is simply an offence to men of right feeling in every station in life and of every shade of political opinion.

If liberty be only sought for personal gratification-still worse, if it be sought for gratification at the expense of others,-its acquisition is a public outrage, and should be resisted by the wise and good.

Men have only right to such measure of freedom as is consistent with the rights of others, and the axiom on which this rests is that our first duty is to others rather than to ourselves. It may sound a hard saying, and many may rebel, some on selfish grounds, others on philosophical. But I will back the heart of man in the main to ride over the logic of any school, and-better still-to conquer native selfishness.

I don't wish even to appear to be lecturing my brethren as if they needed the warning more than I. I believe we all need now and again to examine ourselves and prove our motives, lest we should be pursuing so great a prize as liberty from unworthy motives, or selfish motives, or from no motives at all.

To be in a thoroughly healthy condition of mind, our highest regard must be set on the welfare of our fellow-men, on the true moral and intellectual progess of the race; and if this be our real aim, we shall scrutinize every fresh proposal to extend our liberties, or to claim new rights; and before we lend our efforts to second it, we shall test it as far as we are able by that eternal canon of lawfulness for men and for nations which commands us to seek the welfare of others.

It seems to have escaped the observation of some sturdy champions of liberty that the world's progress is not only marked by the comforts and privileges of civilization, but by the increased self-restraint and personal self-denials which the human race have found it necessary to undergo in order to promote the general welfare. The tokens of mere animalism have one by one been disappearing, or, what is nearly as good evidence, have been driven from general toleration and recognition to hide themselves among the outcasts of society.

Has it cost men nothing to unlearn brutality and to follow social law? Surely the price may be found in countless pains and mortifications which only God's eye could see, or his mind reckon. And by this door of self-restraint, the very opposite of what many in these days account as liberty, has our race passed from its animal bondage into every open field which in the highest human sense might be called "freedom."

Before any one takes up the cause of free thinking, or goes in for some new "right," let him solemnly ask himself first, "What good purpose do I hope to put my liberty to when I have got it ?"

1 am, sir, very truly yours, CHARLES VOYSEY.

AUGUST 30, 1874.

Some of our Western contemporaries are exercis-ing their skill as theological experts in trying to de-term in the Christian Union the flavor of "Free Re-ligion." We are sorry to discredit a sagacity so laud-able as theirs, but we cannot forbear saying that the only two articles which they have thus far specified as emitting the objectionable odor were written, one by a distinguished Methodist divine, the other by a Con-gregational clergyman. Evangelical clergymen who write for us should take warning and make their ut-terances "sound." Our Western critics, by their rare power of seeing what is not to be seen, remind us of the doctor who always treated his juvenile patients for "worms," whatever might happen to be their symptoma. One day, being called to a boy who was suffering severely, he felt the pulse, and, looking at "Worms, madam, worms!" "Now, doctor," said the mother, "it ian't worms at all, I tell ye; that boy fel down on the wood pile and broke his leg, and I want you to stop crying 'worms' and set it immedi-ately." "Ah!" said the doctor, determined not to be the wood it A similar diagnosis, no doubt, will al-ways rereal, to those who are determined to find it, whatever any Orthodox divine may write in these col-ums, --Christian Union. Some of our Western contemporaries are exercis-

Communications.

DON'T "STOP MY PAPER."

EDITOR INDEX:

Entrors INDEX:--I feel an almost irresistible impulse to write. I foor't like your views on temperance at all. There-fore, don't "stop my paper," please! I wish to read what you have to say on the subject, just because I don't agree with you. I wish to find out something different from what I already believe, and hence would like to learn what other people think upon about THE INDEX that I like. I like its seeming about THE INDEX that I don't think everybody ought to be such because I am. I believe you radi for the beach because I think You are doing good work in your way. I think The INDEX is doing more good than harm, and this is about all that can be said of the best things and the best men. Please to remember, don't "stop my paper." I don't like to have my paper stopped. I do hope you will not fighting animal, am very desirous of an opponent, and hence protest against such a rule. Therefore let I a hearty hand-shake could go by telegraph, it

[If a hearty hand-shake could go by telegraph, it would have been travelling over the wires long before this reaches the reader. If, however, the freedomloving and truth-loving temper of this "old fogy Orthodox preacher" were the temper of Orthodoxy itself, we should be obliged to "stop his paper" notwithstanding our reluctance to disregard his wishes; for THE INDEX would shut up its office forthwith As it is, we can safely promise him not to "stop" it till he himself gives the word .- ED.]

IF A MAN DIE, SHALL HE LIVE AGAIN !!

Never, perhaps, was this solemn question asked ith more earnestness than to-day. With the men-Never, perhaps, was this solemn question asked with more earnestness than to-day. With the men-tal stimulus imparted by modern discoveries in ad-ence and the facilities for thinking furnished by our varied educational surroundings, this age is disti-guished for its unparalleled activity in all of the de-partments of intellectual research. No system of be-lief, however sacred its traditional claims or however ancient its acceptance as infallible truth, is protected from the irrepressible and piercing search of free thought. Ideas that have for ages reposed in the tranquil consciousness of their unquestioned authori-ty are now challenged to appear in the arena of free discussion, divested of their fabled invincible armor, and contend for the right of continuance against the and contend for the right of continuance against he dauntless and irreverent champions of modern scept-cism. We are in the midst of one of the most radical daubtices and irreverent champions of most a sepa-cism. We are in the midst of one of the most radical revolutions that ever changed the character of ha-man thought. The subject of this revolution, its ri-talizing soul, is MAN. Human destiny is the grad problem whose solution every noble mind is seeking. "The proper study of mankind is Man," is no longer a dead abstraction, but is the living inspiration of the eager thousands who to-day are searching for the se-crets of knowledge. There never was a creater effort to comprehend the

<text><text><text>

manning Google

from the rigid discipline of their philosophy, may also meet the vicissitudes of life with a resignation not exhibited by those who cherish the impatient hope of a future existence. But I cannot surrender the faith in immortality to their philosophy, however formidable its logic. I cannot refute the objections that any mind can offer to the doctrine of a future existence. But still at times there comes from the manifestations of outward nature and from every concionsness of my own being an assurance of im-mortality which, though no champlon in debate, pro-tects me from the terror of annihilation. The belief in the individual and conscious existence of the soul after death comes from my noblest impulses

The belief in the individual and conscious existence of the soul after death comes from my noblest impulses and efforts toward moral excellence. If I were be-raft of this hope, beauty, love, and truth would lose their divine charms. Man's existence in this world without a supplementary life beyond would seem to me insufferably useless and dreary. The mind's lof-tiest aims would then seem vain as the traveller's pursuit of the mirage over the hot and shadeless des-ert.

Pursuit of the mirage over the new and entertainty of the mirage over the new and entertainty." I will grant an indefinite latitude for religious opinion. I will not cavil concerning theological differences while this shrine of hope is spared. If I cannot show to others a rational foundation for this faith, it is to me the most rational view of life that I can conceive, daring to hope that this ancient belief in a future existence, though now based on ideas as incoherent and fifth as the wild fancies of a dream, may yet, strongh the progress of knowledge, receive a demonstration that will convince the most ultra scepticism. H. CLAY NEVILLE.

OZARE, Mo.

OUT OF MY OWN LIFE.

 OTT OF NY OWN LIFE.

 DUT OF NY OWN LIFE.

 The same of halting not between two but many pinions. I first crept out of the Church, and landed pin the shores of a "debatable land"—not Mr. Own's,—and not a desert by any means, but yielding the there were voices there that urged me, and houghts that filled my soul with a kind of pleading the diversion of the church, and in the shore of the shore half starting out of their sockets, ready to creep be-hind the children, and "keep them alsy wid a bit of the ould counthry tales." That was no worse, indeed, than many an explana-tion in Sunday-schools, when Deacon Jeremiah Fear-ful was called upon to tell whether the devil had a tail or not, or whether in his opinion he was black or white. "Black, of course?" Whoever could suppose a devil to be white! Horns, too, and "went about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devor." The last word was looked up in the dictionary at home. A fearful thing! No "bear story" was ever for a moment to be compared with it. For a long time after the "devil" had been explained, and Dea-con Jeremiah had told the whole truth, we children went by twos and threes whenever the apples or pota-toes were to be brought out of the cellar. Ah! we estianly had the fear of the devil before our eyes, if not "the fear of God." The matter did not stop there at the border-land of childhood. The fears and the superstillons grew with my growth, and strengthened with every step of mental progress, till I found myself a woman in years, my education entiting me to some freedom of thought in other directions, but none at all in religious matters. I must stay right where Deacon Jeremiah left me, and groupe in the dark, as straid of the "borns" and "tail" and open mouth as ever. There was no release unless it was in shutting the Bibie lids, and declaring absolutely my disgust with a "plan of salvation" that had nothing but a devil in it, and a burning lake, and gnashing of teeth, to frighten people, or persuade them that God was good, and love was the whole plan of redemption, and the two places were alike bib, both heaven and hell. I could not at first reason myself out of my fears; they had taken such deep root, nay, were born with me.

DHIX -- SHIP THIMBHIR No wonder that it took years, and that my record of freedom dates back but five years. The work had to be done in my case by the Radi-cal, and the works of Auguste Comte, and later THE INDEX, which I first met with four years ago. Nelson on Infidelity was too early for me, and all I remember of that book is that it was sold by col-porteurs, and was so fearful of the encroachments of cartain infidel books and papers that it overstepped the boundaries of prudence, -was like the first "rota-ry guns" which were introduced on the battle-field as a test, but rejected: the complaint being that the ma-chinery was so complicated "that it caused great havoc on both eides." It was so with Nelson on In-fidelity; so faithful to do duty that its arguments "pro" and "coon" were alike conclusive. My mother perceived the harm, and wisely laid it up too high for me to reach. She wished to spare me the misdirec-ion, and kept secret as far as she could the infidel state to every question relating to the Church. Igno-rance was, then, the only safeguard. The Evidences of Christianity, which was a text-book in our college, was amply a re-hash from the Bibe. "Erra after, I applied to my teacher for Rénan's life of Jesus; but he shook his head gravely. "It is a bad book; it is infidel in its tendencies," quoth he "better it talone,"---and, to cease the gap al Hule, ho resented me with Dr. McCheney's works, which, to to heat style and tears, and bemoan the fact of exist-ence. So I was not to see the toked of Rénan's; and, though he clouds over with mystery some parts of the history which he should have said), lest it do me harm. But I did afterward see that book of Rénan's; and, though he clouds over with mystery some parts of the history which he should have held up to our gaze in the clearest sunlight of reason, he has bleat my soul, and I donbt not others', by the sweet human-ness which he has infused into the life of the man of Nazertb. "

Nazareth.

Nazareth. Nazareth. I was in a bewildered "buzz-box" condition, as Mr. Beecher styles it, in which the mind is brianning over with negations, and afraid to affirm a single point, let it fall into error. The first step out was through the Radical. Those pages were the "anxious seat?" of my later, riper years. How my reason dethroned, by the help it gave me, the old gods and the old fears The "borne" and "tail" vanished, and even the gates of the holy city dropped off from their hinges, and the city itself faded sway as "viewless as air." It robbed me of paslms, and crowns, and hosanns, but it gave me instead my right to reason, and a new worlds for the old belief in man's total depravity. There were deeper depths, sublimer heights, and veritable "nock of ages," star-crowned, at its summit, and lifting itself into immensity. Let no one lament over Mr. Abbot's negations, or over the undoing of the old chains which ignorance has riveted fast; but rather rejoice that reason is co-existent with God, and links man to the god-like here, and now, and hereafter. CHARLOTTE BARBEL. LEBANON, Ohlo, Ang. 18, 1874. I was in a bewildered "buzz-box" condition, as Mr.

ORGANIZATION.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

ready in case of need; we see no flame or smoke yet; why should we burry ?!'

ready in case of need; we see no flame or smoke yet; why should we hurry ?" Yes, Mr. Editor, you are right. We should organ-ize, and organize now. There should be no delay. Besides, our apathy emboldens the enemy. While we sleep and mutter, "There is no danger," they are wide awake, and at work, laughing at our fancied security. Were we now organized, and our forces all drilled, we should number millions of effective war-riors, sll ready for the contest when called into the field. We could then say to the Independent, the "Strength of our Unbellef" is not only individually powerful and increasingly so, but collectively as strong and effective as justice, truth, and coöpera-uion can make it.

tion can make it. Yes, these scattered elements must be congregated; these facts, these dangers must be presented; and in view of this necessity I offer my humble services to the friends of organization to assist in effecting this purpose.

On and after Oct. 1, whenever called for, I will go, as long as health and strength will permit, to pro-claim these truths to the best of my ability; namely, the Demands of Liberalism, as set forth in The INDEX ELLA E. GIBSON.

BARRE, Mass., Sept. 4, 1874.

AN EYE-WITNESS'S TESTIMONY.

BROOELYN, N. Y., Sept. 12, 1874.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 12, 1874. MY DEAR INDEX:-Believing you to be an honest friend to truth, I wish to correct a misstatement in your paper of Sept. 10, made by Charles D. B. Mills in reference to the meeting at Plymouth Church on the evening of Au-gust 28. He says: "Mr. Moulton essayed quietly to withdraw; but instantly the crowd (the statement says 'the major part of the immense audience'), rash-ing after him like a mob as they were'' [that is the mistake], "pursued him with murderous cries and blows."

says 'the major part of the immense audience'), rushing after him like a mob as they were'' [that is the mistake], "pursued him with murderous cries and low." The Mills has every right to believe it true, owing for the reports in most of the paper; and those reports grew out of the fact that all the confusion occurred around the reporters' table, hear which Mr. Moulton had placed himself. I, as one of that sudience, wish to give my testimony to the facts. We had been rejoiced to hear from the report of the Committee that not one charge against Mr. Beecher had been proven. In the midst of our enthusiasm, Mr. Moulton appeared on the scene. The whisper went round, "There's Moulton!" Necks were craned to look at him. Perhaps twenty-five (sprinkled all over the church) should indignantly, "Turn him out?" "Choke him!" The rest of the three thousand (of whom I was one) were terrified leat any violence should be done to him. We arose in our alarm to see what was going on. Then there were cries of 'Sit down!" "Turn him out?" "Go on?" All this made dire confusion. My only thought, then, as one of the baares quietly, don't turn him out?" Just then Mr. Halliday came forward, and "in the name of Plymouth Church" requested order, and that Mr. Moulton should be allowed to remain while he created no disturbance. The church was quieted, and order weight dagsin, until Mr. Moulton got up and shoulded to the speaker, "Yon're a ling, sir?" Then again all was confusion, when Mr. While (one of the committee) arose, came forward, and with a single geeture willed the multitude; then said 'Let the man stay who reads and where he will hear the truth." There was no more disturbance near where I sat (under the clock) after that. Some of the papers said "the Doxology was of uses), as I stayed inside with "Pymouth Church," singing the Doxology. S. N.

P.S.-Thanks for your honest sentence on page 441 : "Mr. Beecher's as yet unproved crime."

A WORD OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

CHICOPER, Mass., Aug. 24, 1874.

A BEA-CAPTAIN, invited to meet the committee of a society for the evangelization of Africs, when asked, "Do the subjects of the king of Dahomey keep Sun-day?" replied: "Yes, and everything else they can lay hands on."

IT WAS AN INISH CORONER who, when asked how he accounted for an extraordinary mortality in Lim-efick, replied asdly: "I cannot tell. There are peo-ple dying this year that never died before."-New York Observer.

maren Google -

Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS
THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for This INKX. The attempt will be honesity made to keep the advertis- ing pages of This HONKX is neating the harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an suivertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advortisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be accluded from these columns. No catts will be admitted. The KINEX must not be held responsible for any statements. ADVERTISING RATES.	LEADING INDEX WRITEES. Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABSOT, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be malled postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50. Address. THE INDEX,
For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line. 13 12 25 16 8 16 16 13 26 16 51 16 6 16 16	Address, THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.
6 5 6 6 6 6 6 7 6 6 7 6 7 6 7 6 7 6 7 6	INDEXTRACTS. No. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Frincipies." Ms. CHARLES DAEWIN, anthor of "The Origin of Spe- cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-

mally intended for publication, but subse quently suthorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition.

No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts.

and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents;

Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12

No. 6.-"The Sabbath," by Parker Pills

bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition.

State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B., Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thon-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Bomanism Real Christian-ity1 Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies to. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 conts; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TARMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

Ave to one hundred copies

$1.00.

No. 13.-

Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies

"God in the Constitution," by Price 10 cents ; 12 copies $1.00.

12 copies $1.00.

copies $1.00.

No. 6.-

Net

$1.00.

presents conceptions of him that are thy of the nineteenth century. New tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The following states the experience of a successful Bookseller who has advertised in successful Bookseller who has auveruses and the successful Bookseller who has auveruses and the successful bookseller who has auverused and the successful bookseller and the successful b duced terms for long-time or extended ad-vertisements. Address THE INDEX,

NO. 1 TERMONT PLACE, Boston

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON,

has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Ratio Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public itterance to the boldest, most cullvaled, and best matured thought of the sage on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE ABBOT, menisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors :--

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.L. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass.

RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass BRV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber alism. Every Christian minister, and every think ainm. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly ex-position of the differences between Pree Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which sione is worth the price of one year's subscription.

one year's subscription. Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be feit in America-that such a journal should be feit in America-that such a journal should be the set minds of your country.- is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religions or the-ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest."

d $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for this aths on trial. Address THE INDEX

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

4. PUBLICATIONS. 5 1 8 7 THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION, AT

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR: FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England,

THE INDEX aims-

TEdi-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

ion brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig-ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac tical object to which THE INDEX is sp dial ed is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of sociesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of Broken front, and the caller practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let avery one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by belping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thonghtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the nost marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will continue to be furnished by the well-known' eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted

in every city and town throughout the conntry. The most liberal terms are offered. TERMS.

AGENTS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-Ince price of ThE INDEX is Three Dol-lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,

FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION. Report of the Addresses and other

OFTER

Proceedings of the Audresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Pros Beligious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Prot-incham Hum Bloaderied Lynch. ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretta Motti Robert Dale Owen, John Weise, Oliver Johnson, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Higginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a umber of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not eas this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Esstraint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Depton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rewland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outline of Judzism" by Rabbi Wise.

Judaism" by Rabbi Wise. Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains easy by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religions Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Ba-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philortheous and Reform "and the tion to Philantbropy and Beform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Beligious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohanmedanism" by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religions of China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Esligion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. Escents. (Four or more, 2 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Bellgion 3 the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Proth-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity." with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burieigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Beligion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dala Owsa, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfe-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lacrotis Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (For of more, 25 cents each.) Contains verbatim. more, 20 cents each.) Contains verously reports of President Frothingham's siders on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's easay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Sonpacehealth anneash on "Backmand Inda-Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Juda-lam," and of the statements by Messre. ism," and of the statements by Mesen. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of theire-spective atlitudes towards Christianity-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Er-tra-Christian," --together with the Secret-ry's Annual Report, and letters from Kash-bly Chunder Son, Fasherick Donalass, and ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. Wasson.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Higginson. 25 cents, Religions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

ese publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tre-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the tor 1658 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1873 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dreased either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTER, So. F. R. 4.

Lighten by GOOGLE

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

POPULAR BOOKS,	Historical Pictures Refouched; a Volume of Miscellanies. In two parts. Part L., "Studios Pictures and Foncies"	III. Food IV. Mind their Re
SENT BY MAIL	Historical Pictures Retouched; a Volume of Miscellarider. In two parts. Part I., "Studies, Pictures, and Fancices" 1.59 The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrsewske, being a Practical Illustration of "Woman's Hights to Labor"	V. The I
47	The Descent of Man. 2 yels 4.00	VII. The
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Journal of Researches. 2.00 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low- er Animals. 3.00 The Variation of Animals and Fishes under Donnestication. 3-yols, flustrated	four St ing of t of the l VIII. An Swimm
ONDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	Domestication. 2 vols., Illustrated 6.00 DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Beason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences	tion on A IX. Reep Henry
	DICKENS' Child's History of England 1.50	JERROLD Claude's
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	DUHRING (JULIA.) Philosophers and Fools, A Study	JOHNSON and their India
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will	tion. 5 vols., each	JOSEPHUS Josephus be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH.	Romola. The Mill on the Floes.	JOWETT.
Orders are respectfully solicited from	Petr Holt. Silas Marnor and Scones of Clerical Life, The Same. Library Edition. 2 vols	ductions Balliol C fessor of all friends of THE INDEX.	Wit and Wisdom of	SERR (OR Patriotic, ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets	EMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Series. 2.00 Easays. Second Series	LECKY (W Induence Europe.
ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Woman. Two	Representative Men	tus to
Tols	May-day and Other Pieces	LEGGE'S Confuciu
Boopital Skotchen and Camp and Firston 1.50 Stories An Old-Fashkoned Girl. 1.50 Ittle Mon. 1.50 My Boys, &c. 1.00	Poems. Bluesand Gold	LESSING'
Shawi-Straps	EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the	Biograph Its Oris
	Tounger 1.50 The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 3 vols	Day. 2 Problems tions of
Lison tors and Dogins	FARBAR'S Critical History of Free Thought,	LEWES (G LEWIN (B daims T o
AUERBACH (BERTHOLD), On the Heights, 1.50 Vills Eden; The Country-House on the Rhite	in reference to the Christian Religion 2.09 PEUERBAOH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 2.09	LONGFEL 2 vols
German Tales 1.00 BACON'S Resays 1.00	FISRE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers. 2.00	Prose Wo LOWELL' The Bigi The Bigi
BAGENOT on the English Constitution 2.25 Fhysics and Politics	PROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Ha- manity	The Bigi Among I My Stud
BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of Philosophy	Life of Theodore Parker	LOWELL
The Second and the Intellect. Third edi-	PULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 yols	tion, and Pre-histo
BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams. 2.50	GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse- quences	LYELL'S Element MACDON
BARTLETT'S Pamiliar Quotations 3.00 BABTOL (REV. O. A). Eadical Problems 2.00 The Bising Faith 2.00	GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affinities. Wilhelm Meister. Translated by Thomas Carije, Portrat of Goethe. 2 vols	Daughte MANN (I
The Rising Faith	Wilhelm Melster. Translated by Thomas Carlyle, Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols	Lectures Annual
BIBLE in the Public Schools. Becords, Arguments, and Decision in the		Thought Horney
BIBLE in the Fublic Schools. Records, Arguments, and Decision in the case of John D. Minor et al. es the Board of Education of the city of Cincinnati: et al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Charimand. 2004	GREO'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life	MARTIN ical and The New
at. In the adjustue sources in the second se	umonts, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grots. Second Edition. With Por-	MAURION Object o
against the use of the Bible		MERIVA the Bon Convers
BRACRETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls	HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France. 1.80 Thoughts about Art. 200	MILL (JO
BEOOKS' (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Brevlary	Thoughts about Art. 2.00 The Unknown River. 6.00 The Inkilectual Life. 2.00 Chapters on Animals. 4.00	Discussi The Exa Willia The Pos
BUECHNER'S Force and Matter $.25	HAMILTON (GAIL), Child World, Part Sec- ond	Folitical tion The Sub
BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Ordination in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the entre work, with a complete index. 2 vols 6.00	HAMILTON'S Lectures. 1. Metaphysical Lectures. 2. Logical Lectures. 3.50 3. Logical Lectures. 3.50	Essay of Represe Autobic Memori work, with a complete index. 2 vols 6.00 OARLYLE'S Works. Chespedition. Compris-		Bonga G
ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 vols.; French Revolution, 3 vols.; Freder- lek the Great, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters,	Twice-Told Tales. Moreer from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedals	MIVART Species
Sterling, I vol.; Bartor Meantus, I vol.; John Sterling, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Past and Freent, I vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor-	The Scarlet Lettar, and The Bithedals Romance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The	Bousses
DARLYLE'S Works. Chesp edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 vols.; French Revolution, 3 vols.; Freder- lek the Great, 10 vols.; Cronwell's Letters, äc., 3 vols.; Sartor Resartus; 1 vol.; John Starting, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Starting, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Starting, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Starting, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphlets, 1 vol. Any volume sold separately. 3 vols. Loo- don, 1571-3. Per vol.	Boov Image. The Marble Fann. The English Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Prench and Italian Note-Books. Onr Old Home, and Seylinias Felton.	MOULTO Time St MUELLE
CARPENTEB (Dz. W. B.) The Principles of Menial Physiology, with their Applea- tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi- tions, 2.00	The French and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimina Felton.	Science The San
Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi- tions	TTA ACTOONIG IT TE V ORL DOAT PADETE 1.50	Easay LL E and C
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per-
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per- fect Lifs. In Twelve Discourses, Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. 1.50 Henry Channing	ding Journey 2.00 Buburban Sketches 2.00 Yenetian Life. 2.00	NASBY the Cirl Elikoes
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thorean: The Poet Naturalist. With Memorial Verse. 1.00	A Chance Acquaintance LS	NEWMA
OHENEY (MES. E. D). Patience. A Berics of Thirty Games for the Fireside	HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'Ninety-Three"., 1.7: HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vola., with 10.85	The Boy
trated	ETIME/8 (DAVID) Easays and Life 1.70	Phila
OLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Bellgions	HUNT'S (MRS. HELEN). Vorses	The Re Against
CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education 1.25 OLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the	On the Origin of Species	Speeca
World	A Manual of the Anatomy of Vertebrated Animals Lay Sermons, Addresses, and Reviews 1.77	Additio
COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. 100 Darwinism in Morals, and other Zessys	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	Critical Histori ton, A trodu
CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pligrimage. 1.75	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Of the Skel-	The Tr demo
COBRELATION and Conservation of Forces: A Sories of Expeditions by Grove, Heim- holts, Mayer, Faraday, Licoly, and Santan- ber: with an introduction by Edward L Touman, M.D. 1 vol	Stories told to a Child. First and Second Series. A Sister's Bye-Hours.	The two
Toumans, M.D. 1 vol		C. C. Concernence in the
OULTURE DEMANDED BY MODERN Liff: Its True Aims and Ecquirements A Berice of Addresse. By Typerior Draper, by, Wherell, Faraday, Spacer, Darbar, Yaswa, Lysil, stc. Elited by Edward L.	Lectures. 2.0 INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIO SERIES, No. I. Forms of Water, in Clouds, Ralo, Hivers, Ice, and Giaclers. By John Tru- 1.8	Gates A The Tr Men. W
	Bivers, Ice, and Giaclara. By John Tyn- dall. II. Physics and Politica; or, Thoughts on
DALL (Mms. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Belation to Education, Employment, and Citizenship	<ul> <li>Rivers, ice, and Okcess. J. Draghts of dail. A start of the second second second in a spliceton of the Principles of "Natural Society." By Walter Esgehot. 1.5</li> </ul>	PROCTE
Successfy and a successful and a successful and	An all and the second second second second

	11. 107
ds. By Dr. Edward Smith 1.75	PROCTOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlda
ds. By Dr. Edward Smith 1.75 d and Body. The Theories of elutions. By Aler. Bain 1.60. Study of Sociology. By Herbert , Esq	PEOCTOB (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ours: the Flurality of Worlds stud- ied under the Light of Becess Beclentific Researches. With Colored Flates
New Chemistry. By Josiah P.	Light Science for Leisure Hours, A Series of Familiar Essays on Scientific Subjects,
New Chalmary. By Soman F. 2,00 Conservation of Energy. By Bal- lewart, with so Appendix, ireat- he Vital and Mental Applications	Light science for Jonaire Hours. A Beries of Panilla Zasayao Scientifa Subjects, Natural Phenomeas
he Vital and Mental Applications Doctrine	With 10 Plates and 24 Woodcuts aimal Locomotion; or, Walking, ing, and Flying, with a Disserta-
Doctrins	The Expanse of Heaven
(DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50	BOSSETTI (CERISTINA G.) A Shadow of La
	SCHELLEN (B.) Spectrum Analysis, in its
"S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligions, Belation to Universal Beligion. 5.00	SCHELLEN (R.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. 6.06
	SCIENCE DETARTS
8. The whole Works of Flavius 5, the Jewish Historian	1. Introductory, By Frof. Hnzlay, F.B.S
by B. Jowett. M.A. Master of	Lustrations
D English, with Analysis and Intro- by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of College, Orford, and Regius Pro- f Greek. Four vols	4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei- kie, LL.D., F.B.S., fourble coth
RPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, , Sentimental and Humorous 2.00	SCOLL'S WATERIES NOTERS, 20 TOLS
V. E. H.) History of the Rise and	SCOTT'S (THOMAS) The English Life of Jesus. Second Edition
V.E.H.) History of the Rise and e of the Spirit of Rationalism in 2 rols	SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help
Charlemagne. 1 vols	lectual, Moral, and Physical
Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 is and Chinese Classics	Essays: Moral, Folitical, and Asthetic 2,50 Illustrations of Universal Progress. A Se- lection of his best Papers
S (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans-	<ul> <li>Jamilies C (ALEDERE D): Deligning. 1.08</li> <li>SPENCER (ALEDERE D): Education, Intellectual, Moral, and Physical. 1.26</li> <li>Pirst Principles. 1.26</li> <li>Jamilies D, Jamilies J, and Zethetic. 1.26</li> <li>Jamilies D, Jamilies J, and Jamilies J, Jamilies J,</li></ul>
y Ellen Frothingham 1.50	the First of them Developed hysiology of Common Life. 1 vols. 3.00 nical History of Philosophy, from gin in Greece down to the Present 1 vols. 5 of Life and Mind. The Founda- 1 a Creed	The Principles of Psychology. 2 vols 5.00 Philosophy of Style s of Life and Mind, The Founda-	and Morals. New and enlarged edition. 2.09 Sociology
f a Creed 3.00 3. fl.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50	BPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-
REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ja- or, a Few Words to the Jews, 1.00	ologico-Politicus LOW'S (H. W.) Posms. Portrait.
orks. Portrait	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyranny
8 (J. H.) Poema. 2 vols	STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jesus. Authorized transla- ion 2 role low Papers. Second Series 1.50 my Books. 1.00
ly Windows 2.00 (MRS. A. C.) Posies for Children75	TAINE'S (H. A.) Elstory of English Litera- ture. 2 vola. The Clase-Room Taine. History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John
R (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-	The Class-Room Talue. History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John
OFIC LIUICO	Fiske
Principles of Geology. 2 vols 8.00 as of Geology	THACKERAT'S (W. M.) Novels, Household
ALD (GEORGE1 The Vicar's	Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol 1.25 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes.
	Adventures of Philip. Pendennis.
HOBACE). The Life of Horace By his Wife	The Visciniana
Reports on Education, nom ises in	Marcola, and Lovel the Widower. Miacelianeous Writings. Housebold Edi- tion. Unform with the Novels. Com- plete in 5 vols. With new Portrait. Per vol. 1.35
ts Selected from the Writings of e Mann	pletein 5 vols. With new Portrait. Per vol. 1.35
EAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- Theological, 2 vols. Per vol 2.50 w Affinities of Faith	This edition includes all the matter in the lat- est English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the cheapest and most complete Thackeray in the market.
F (Rey P.D.) The Ground and	complete Thackeray in the market.
	2. Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c, 3. Snobs, Sketches, Denis Duval, &c.
LE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of nan Empire	<ol> <li>Barry Lyndon, Hoggerty Diamond, &amp;c.</li> <li>Paris, and Iriah Skotin-Rooks, &amp;c.</li> <li>Snobs, Sketches, Denis Duval, &amp;c.</li> <li>Four Georges, Bunnerisis, &amp;c.</li> <li>Catherine, Christianas Books, and Unre-</li> </ol> max own a Diff. a Discontin blong and	printed Pieces. THAXTER'S (MES. CELIA) Among the ions. 4 vola., each	Lales of Shoals 1.50
itive Philosophy of Auguste Comte. 1.50	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden: or, Life in the Woods
blection of Women	The Maine Woods 1.00
bjection of Women. 1.22 n Liberty 1.23 natalive Government. 1.50 9.23	Letters 2.00 A Yankee in Canada 2.00
al Volume. Eds Life and Works 1.0	Rivers 2.00
(JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras. 1.5	TYLOE (EDWARD B.) The Early History
(PT ARO) On the Genesis of	Primitive Culture, 2 vols
(21. 010.) Voltaire	TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov- orer 1.00 Fragments of Science for Unscientific Peoon (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed-	ple
	ple
Conservation of the second sec	On Sound Radiant Heat from a German Workshop. Vol. I.	Forms of Water. LAS Lectures on Light. Las Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tyndall
Asays on Mythology, Traditions.	Prof. Tyndall
re, Biography and Antiquities.	TYTLER (SARAH.) Old Masters and their Pictures
(PETBOLEUM V). Swingin' Round	Modern Painters and their Paintings 1.00 from Kantucky	the Stone. Vois. L and V., each
N (FRANCIS W.) A History of the	The Voyacy Appeal of Faith; or, Passages from the	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in N (FRANCIS W.) A Elistory of the Monarchy
e Future, as the Organization of 1.7	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion 1.50 a, Doctrinal and Practical	WRIPPLE'S (E. P.) Literature and Life 1.50
t Hero-Making in Religion	Character and Characteristic Men 1.50
B (THEODORE.) & Discourse of a Pertaining to Religion	The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth 1.59 Success and its Conditions
1 Sermons, 2 vols,	A Lesita Goldthwalte & Late
Adams, and Jofferson. With an In-	Acai Polks Claim 2.00
dal of Theodore Parker for the Mis-	Panales. A volume of Pouns 1.50 WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Pouns. 2 vols 1.60 at Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.5 to Christmas Celebrations, A.D. L	Outer and official states of the e Finite 1.0	ADDRESS
S'S (ELIZABETE STUART.) The	0
Verty Book 1.4 Vormen, and Ghosts 1.4 In Partner 1.4 Warren 1.4 Inter Partner 1.4
Cabinet Edition Posms. For-
CONTRACTOR DATABASE AND	the second se

mized by Google

		TOOSTON LIPEPAL LEAGUE	BTONDADDIE D
$25 A DAY GUARANTEED using our WELL AUGER AND DRILL to mod territory. Highest restinonials	STUDENTS FITTED for any College. Please address	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bons, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Human- d pamphlets tree. Address
In good territory. Highest TESTIMONIALS FROM GOVERNOES OF IOWA, AREANSAS AND DAEOTA. Catalogues free. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo.	EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn.	Our organization some time since decided to di- rect its efforts for the present towards securing	Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Hustrat- ed pamphlets free. Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohlo.
ROWLAND CONNOR,	CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT	the	YNDALL'S ADDRESS
Having finished his engagement with the	At home, male or female, 300 s woek war- ranted. No capital required. Particulare and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y.	Repeal of the Laws	A very beat copy of Professor Typdam
Having finished his angagement with the Free Congregational Society of Florence, will answer invitations to lecture for liberal	Williamsburg, N. Y.		tion on August 19, in pamphlet form, with
JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS.	FREE DISCUSSION	whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burden	Address
T HE INDEX	1. Is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 563 Washington Skreet, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 544 and 759 P.M. All that relates to the Keligious, Political, and Social interests of mankind constitute the subjects for discussion. THE HYDEX and Index Tracta are for sals overy Sunday at Resentable Hall.	of taxation. As a means to this and, we have published for	Hoston.
IN ENGLAND.	24 and 74 P.M. All that relates to the heighting, Folitical, and Social interests of mankind consti- tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX	general circulation several thousand copies of a	THE AMERICAN EDITION
THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post	and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall,	TBACT	MONCURE D. CONWAT'S to any part of the United Kingdom on re- ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen	WEST NEWTON ENGLISH		SACRED ANTHOLOGY
Shillings.	W AND CLASSICAL SCHOOLThe twenty- first school year of this Family and Day School, FOR BOTH SEXES, will begin Wednes-	on Church Examption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27.	A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTITORS
Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.	ARV. September 10, 10/9.	We have already issued three editions, the last of which is nearly exhausted.	has just been published, and will be sent postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00.
GET THE BEST.	For particulars address NATH'L T. ALLEN, Principal, West Newton, Mass.	We desire soon to lasue	Address THE INDEX
	At home Saturdays.	Another Large Edition	1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.
Webster's	비누 것 같아. 성장이 가 안전 것 같아. 것 같아. 것 같아.	of this and other tracts on the subject, so	G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,
Unabridged Dictionary.	PUBLISHERS.	that we can place a copy in the hands of	the state of the second s
10,000 Words and Manings not in other Dic- tionaries.	Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I	EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,	BANKERS,
3000 Engravings ; 1540 Pages Quarto. Price $13.	should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers.		LEROY, MINN. Branch Office, 137 Broadway, S. Y.
"THE BEST PRACTICAL ENGLISH DIC- TIONABY EXTANT."-London Quarterly Re-	Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO, H, ELLIS,	and generously to supply the calls for them in other States.	Money Invested in These ar view, October, 1873. Published by G. & C. MERRIAM. Spring-	7 Tremont Place, Boston.	To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract	ning three to five years with Ond lows, renfield, Mass. Sold by all Booksellers.	TO BOOK-BUYERS.	at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to bear	Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad- vance, or ten per cent, paid semi-annually in advance, or 12 per cent, per annuin, annually in advance, or 12 per cent, per annuin, annually,
T H E F R E E	Please examine the revised list of POPU- LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this	the entire expense alone.	free of expense to the Louis annually,
SUNDAY ADVOCATE.	page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-	Will not, then, j	at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular.
A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE-	chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c.,	All Friends of the Movement	137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER- EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY	of any American or Foreign Book, can have	and the second se	REAL ESTATE SECURITIES,
LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate	ries answered by addressing THE INDEX,	come forward and help us with liberal donations ?	Investments in Real Estate in Chicage
the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries,	1 Tremont Flace, Doston.	We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, usking how	and vicinity,
Sc., on Sundays; to maintalu during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex- cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun- day Evenings for the People," and generally	BOUND VOLUMES OF THE	much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we	if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old to promote everything conductive to rational	1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the	shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per bundred, to all who will	Real Estate and Loan Agency recreation on Sunday. The Free Sunday Albocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an	parchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes	circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-	07
Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of	are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent	ating them gratuitously throughout the country. Lust winter this subject was brought be-	ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH STREET Chicago (Established 1853), the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall, London; Fred'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark	interest, and will furnish as instructive read- ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more	fore the Legislature of the State, and many	Guarantees perfect title and ample security
H. Judge, Hampstead. The ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION for delivery by	valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of	petitions were presented asking a repeal of these unjust laws.	in all its Real Estate Loans, Firstclass securities always on band In-post to any part of the United States is one dollar (payable in advance). Address	Address THE INDEX,	The matter is still in their hands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon.	Real Estate Investments made on commission
. THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 258 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.	1 Tremont Place, Boston.	Meanwhile the	Orders of capitalists and real estate owp-
CHARLES SUMNER'S	WARREN'S	Voice of the People,	ers respectfully solicited.
GREAT WORK.	TRUE CIVILIZATION.	[1] C. M. C. S. M. M. Phys. Rev. D 55 (1997) 11.	REASONS FOR USING THE
STREET STREET	Price 50 cents.	favoring justice and equity, should be dis- tinctly heard.	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
PROPHETIC VOICES	PBACTICAL DETAILS,	We shall soon be ready to send out	EUNERA OFUUL GILA.
CONCERNING AMERICA. By CRABLES SCHNER.	showing the workings of the	BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN,	It is full lough. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally
Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por- trait, Crown 8vo., Cloth extra, $2.	COST PRINCIPLE.	thus giving an opportunity to those who have	adapted to hand or machine use.
Aside from its literary and historical mer- its, this volume has a special interest, from	Price 25 cents. For sale by	not already done so, to protest against this continued wrong.	Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect the fact that it was the last work on which	S. H. MORSE,	Let us make it	fraud, being not only shorter in length, bat a much finer size than they are represented
r. Sumner was engaged before his death. "PROPHETIC VOICES" will be found of great	25 Bromfeld St., Boston.	THE LARGEST PETITION	to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit value to all who take an interest in the his- tory of our country, so full is it of passages	п н е	ever presented to our legislative body.	for use. The ladies will always find the Be- reka Silk exactly as represented. Every in which the unexampled prosperity of our		Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please	spool is warranted, and the manufacture's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call land has been foretold by philosophers, poets, statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament-	SONG MONABCH !!	SEND IN THEIR NAMES?	for it.
ed author has also given interesting aketches. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price.	By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, with the dis- tinguished assistance of Prof. L. O. EMER-	We would say, also that we feel deeply the	RADICAL AND LITERABY
Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston,	SON, of Boston. These gentlemen, in the SONG MONABOR, present to the public a book	need of	LECTUBES
A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY	unrivalled for the use of SINGING CLASSES,	Other Orrestanting	BT
DOOK, FILLING	whether in the form of SINGING SCHOOLS, or	Other Organizations	JOHN WEISS,
"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF	in NORMAL MUSIC SCHOOLS, CONVENTIONS, COLLEGES, of ACADEMIES, and the higher	in this State, to cooperate with us in securing	RADICAL LECTURES.
CONJUGAL LOVE."	COMMON SCHOOLS. Price 75 Conts. Per Dozen, $7.50.	equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are	The Idea of Hereafter.
By Andrew Jackson Davis.	Dishardsonia New Mathed	those who are inclined to	An Act of Fuith. Intelligence in Religion.
Treatment of all the delicate and impor- tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is	Richardson's New Method	Form a Liberal League,	Religion and Science. Heart in Religion.
and Odessinas worket in Coursest Dove is straightforward, unmistakably emphatics, and perfectly explicit and plain in every visal perfection. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole field of Matriage, Parentage, Dis affection, and Divorce, and this little volume	FOR THE PLANOFORTE.	form a moeral heague, the whole field of Matriage, Parentage, Dis- affection, and Divorce, and this little volume	The Most Popular Method everissued; 250,- 000 already sold, and the book is received, if anything with increasing favor from year if	we are ready to render such assistance as lies in	SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURES. FIRST SERIES.
because it is now both wanted and needed	anything, with increasing favor from year to year. Teachers and Pupils buy	our power.	1. Cause of Laughter.
by all women and men. Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has	25,000 COPIES ANNUALLY !!	LIDEDALCI	2. Irony and Humor. 3. Rogberry, Malvelle, Bottom, Touchston.
Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every- body, and on this side of the great river. It	Recently enriched by the addition of "CZEBNY'S LETTERS ON THE ABT OF PLAVING	LIBERALSI	4. Ajar in Trollus and Cressida: The Por- ter in Macbeth; The Fool in Lear.
certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land	THE PIANO," and of "SCHUMANN'S MAXIMS." It is now a book of 280 large pages.	If all will units and work, the results sought	5. Falstaff.
conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage	PRICE $3.75.	can be accomplished Address	6. Hamlet, SECOND SERIES.
attractive as a Delmonico bill of fareGold-	All books mailed, post-paid, for the retail price.	On many of the second of	1. The Women of Shakspeare.
en Age.		BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	2. Portia, 3. Ophella,
Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand- some cloth, 76 cents; in full -fit and extra bloding, $1. Postage free. The trade sup- pled on the most liberal terms.	OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTOF.		4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.
plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Fublishing House" of A.J.DAVIS & CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City.	CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,	NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.	6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Characters.
New York City.	711 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.	Per order of the EXBOUTIVE COMMITTEE.	Address JOHN Hand

Google Google

THE INDEX-SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

1.

468

"THE GENESIS CONJUG/

.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1874.

Index.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 249.

VOLUME 5.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page,

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS & SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ATTIGET. BOTTOW 1.—COMPTEES Shall make no law respecting an es-sublishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the for-ment for a redress of grievances. Bortow 2.—No State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereoi; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious paulification to any office or public trust, in any State and no person shall ever to any State be deprived of any for the goreson as office or public or private duty, or red-dor the performance of any public or private duty, or red-dor the performance of any public or private duty, or red-dor the serior and the ever of any public or private duty, or red-dor the subject of religion. — Bornos A.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-rations of the escond section of this Article by appropri-tion.

GLIMPSES.

IN THIS COUNTRY there are 63,000 churches and 43,874 clergymen.

THE TOTAL AMOUNT of real estate in Detroit exempted from taxation is $8,480,460.

THE TOTAL POPULATION of Japan is put at 33,110,825, by the just published official census of the Japanese government for the year 1872.

THE DISCUSSION on the Euthanasian creed does not seem to have interested so many minds in this country as in England; yet it is surely an important one, at least to some invalids.

THE LONDON Spectator has a neat way of putting things. It holds that Englishmen prefer "to put up with annoyances from want of regulation, rather than put up with annoyances from being regulated to death."

IT WAS the Bishop of Peterborough who declared that, "if the choice must be made, he had rather see England free than sober." This apothegm would hardly serve as a transparency motto for a Prohibitionist torchlight procession. Dr. Miner would reverse it.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY himself declares that, out of a population of 180,000,000, "with all efforts, not above 318,000 converts have been made." Will the Independent please cite this as a fresh proof of our "want of candor" with regard to missions?

IF THE Nation indulges too often in such sharp lit-tle bits of blasphemy as this, it will be shoved into the category of "infidel sheets" without mercy: "We must request Plymouth Church to stop praying publicly for Tilton. This disgusts the community, which is already much nauseated, and does Tilton no good. Plymouth Church has had charge of his moral and religious training, and has failed in it so miserably that we are confident that no petition it now utters about him will receive any attention."

THE Saturday Review gives an instance of "low" style that is almost amusing, when it says of John Stuart Mill's land heresles: "The task of transferring all the property in the country from those who have to those who want, though it is the natural and logical consequence of Mr. Mill's theories, would not be unattended with difficulty." Could the supposed advocates of a tremendous socio-political cataclysm have been touched with greater feline softness and treachery? Depend upon it, the vicious old tom-cat of vested interests had his claws all ready to unsheathe.

AT THE LATE "National Conference of Unitarian

and other Christian Churches," at Saratoga, Rev. Dr. James Freeman Clarke offered two resolutions, one to send a committee of three to express the sympathy of the Unitarians in the Congregational Council at New Haven next month, and the other to send a similar committee to the next annual meeting of the Free Religious Association. The former was carried and the latter tabled. Rev. Dr. Bellows moved that the Conference "heartily endorses the action of its officers" in inviting Mr. Potter's society to be present by pastor and lay delegates. Like the other, this motion was (in the phrase of the Liberal Christian) "voted down sharply and decisively." A resolution offered by Rev. Charles W. Buck, the substance of which was to put an undogmatic meaning into the words Christian and Christianity, was lost in the Business Committee, to which it was referred. We confine ourself this week to a simple statement of fact, reserving comment for our next issue.

KAULBACH'S great cartoon of "The Era of the Reformation," representing eighty-three chief representatives of perhaps the most momentous epoch of human history, is now on exhibition at the Boston Athenseum, and is visited daily by crowds. The four Catholic altar-pleces of Zurbaran, belonging to the collection of the Duke de Montpensier (son of King Louis Philippe), and representing the Annunciation, the Adoration of the Shepherds, the Adoration of the Magi, and the Circumcision, are ranged side by side in the adjoining apartment, but easily visible at the same time from a midway position. To how many of the enthusiastic, admiring spectators has it occurred to contrast the ideals embodied respectively by Kaul-bach and Zurbaran? In the splendid figure of the king kneeling before the Christ-babe, Zurbaran has expressed the innermost spirit of Catholicism-the sentiment of humble and fervent devoteelsm almost unmixed with other elements; in almost every face of the cartoon, Kaulbach has expressed the essence of the free religious (not the Christian) side of Protestantism-the inflexibility of masculine will and the grandeur of unsubmissive intellect. The effect of this contrast, accidentally set before the thoughtful beholder with all the power of great genius, is profound; but the deeper meanings of it are hidden from him who lacks the key of Free Religion.

IN BRATTLEBORO, Vermont, the Catholic priest asked the School Committee to excuse Catholic children from attendance at school on Corpus Christi Thursday, that they might keep the day according to the regulations of the Church. The Committee refused. The children, however, having absented themselves, the Committee suspended them altogether. A petition was at once presented to the Supreme Court for an injunction to restrain the Committee from excluding the children from school privileges; but this petition was denied. Such collisions are greatly to be regretted. The request of the priest could not well have been granted by a formal excuse from attendance on sectarian grounds, without establishing a bad precedent; but it would have been far wiser to have taken no notice of the children's absence, at least by the infliction of a heavier penalty than attaches to unexcused absence under ordinary circumstances. We cannot approve of anything that looks like persecution on account of religious faith; and we specially deprecate any unnecessary exasperation of the Catholics against the public school system. Without departing from the strictest principles of secular education, let us refrain from heaping fuel uselessly on the fires of superstition, which are quite hot enough already. The Boston Advertiser thinks the priest's request should have been granted. While we cannot agrees with it to that extent, we do think that the School Committee were too harsh, and would have acted more justly, as well as more kludly, by following the course here suggested.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical roperty shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. proj property shall no longer because in the statement of chaplains in Congress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisona, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sociarian character shall cease.

A We demand that all religious services now sustained y the government shall be abolished; and especially that he use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostenat-ity as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-hlp, shall be prohibited. bly ahlp, shall be prohibited.

b. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasta shall wholly cease.
c. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alties of perjury shall be established in its stead.
c. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly sufforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-realed.

In the observation of the same shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civil-ration impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Wherea, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-ical administration of our political system, threatening the perpendicy of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-seives together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ABT. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-and right. Agr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the Lengue as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

ART, 6.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-mint. Arr. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Socretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three memiors; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be acofficie delegates to the Naturnal Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Arr. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

Bo far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of first hyper. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that it will yet be accepted universally by the American people, as the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-ple wherever half a dozen earnest and resolute Liberals can be got together. Being coavinced that the movement is neared to together. Being coavinced that the movement is usely, even it slowly, spread, I hope to make Tas invers a means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and active co-operation of every man and every woman who be-lieves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-port promptly the names of their Freedents and Secre-taries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion as that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are right, ist their organized voice be heard like the sound of many waters. Bo far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of any waters.

BOSTON, Sept. 1, 1873,

FRANCIS &. ABBOT, Editor.

.

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Busros, Mass.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFZEBOS, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretaria. JETTERADS, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, Freident; A. Giddings, Socretary. SAN Joen, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. ToLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-Vigeniamo' N. J .- John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, ecretary. SOTIONVILLE, NEB .- J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. JUNOI East Easley, Scorstary. OLATHE, KAN-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Sacretary, Dermotr, Mics.-W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary, Rememorylica, Mics.-A. G. Eastman, President; W. E. Knowles, Secretary, Osciela, Mo.-R. W. Thompson, President; M. Eoderick, OSCION Secre BATH, BERLU ocretary. rs, Mr.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. RLMS, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Burlg mas. Bridg mas. Wassingerox, D.O. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. A UBURN, OMIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINTRAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. New York, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. Scr. JOSEPH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary.

Secretary. EAU CLAIRE, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALESC, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. NEW OBLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wailace. BAY Cirry, Mica.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEARFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary, Mis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; M. Hoover, Saux Crry, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary, Augusta, Wis.-Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vanz, Secretary.

The Literary Genius of Bunyan.

A LECTURE RECENTLY DELIVERED IN LONDON, AT THE CO-OPERATIVE INSTITUTE.

BY GEORGE JACOB HOLYOAKE.

This world is a big place. This is not an original observation. Yet men's attention needs calling to it at times. People are always forgetting what a variety of humanity society contains. Two hundred years ago the authorities of Bedford made things very un-pleasant to one John Bunyan, because they thought they knew all about their neighbors, and did not im-due the a common street workman might have in they knew all about their neighbors, and did not im-agins that a common street-workman might have in him the elements of the most famous man that that wilful and patriotic county ever produced. The world is not only big, but it is growing bigger every day with wonders. Science so enlarges men's vision that all our famous calculations and creeds seem un-certain, weak, and small, on the shore of the vast ocean of facts whose mighty currents are yet unde-termined. termined

The trade of a tinker seems a very unpromising preparation for a tinker seems a very unpromising preparation for a tinker seems a very unpromising ford to-day would not find himself very much flat-tered by the attentions that would be paid to him; and if he had the additional disadvantage of being "known to the police," the prospect of a duke erect-ing a statue to his memory would seem very distant; and it says very much for the genius of Bunyan as a writer, that being a tinker and a schismatic, in the hands of those ungifted regulators of doctrine, the hands of those ungifted regulators of doctrine, the hands of a statue to be attained unrivalled ascendancy in literature. Disbelleving in this world, despising this world. He was a very remarkable writer. If he In iterating, Disbeneving in this world, despising this world. Bunyan obtained renown by the arts of this world. He was a very remarkable writer. If he mended pots as well as he made sentences he was the best tinker that ever travelled; but he has told us nothing as to his skill as a workman which would be as useful to mankind as the story of his skill as a waint. When a wealthy citizen of London offered to take his son as "an apprentice without a premium," Bunyan declined, on the ground that "God had sent him to preach the Gospel, and not to advance his family,;" which was very fine in the preacher, but very bad for the boy. Bunyan had no worldly no-tions. His great doctrine was that men were not as wed by any good they might do, but by something which some one else had done; and that they were not to depend upon their own merit to advance themselves, but on that of another—a doctrine which would ruin the morals of any commercial establishment in a month; and if preached generally in business would inake a poor-house and a police-office necessary in ev-ery street.

make a poor-house and a police-office necessary in ev-ery street. It is of course no part of my intention to call in question Bunyan's religious views, or the depth and sincerity of his unquestionable personal plety. These considerations lie outside my record altogether. My sole concern is with the literary method and art with which he stated them. I honor the rhetorical skill which enabled him to command the admiration of inen who, were he living, would not meet him in company, nor give him the right hand of fellowship in public. The plebeian victory which the prisoner and pamphleteer won by dint of original capacity is one of the triumphs of the self "educated mechanic," as Mr. Disraell once called a possible rival in that re-public of literature where privilege is unrecognized, and where birth-mean or noble-is neutral, and genius alone is greatness. There is no doubt that John Bunyan was a serious-minded and well-disposed man, robust in frame and robust in understanding, who misled the world about him by his disparagement of himself. Like many other Christians, he judged himself by the standard of the infinite perfection of God, and compared with our highest ideas of sinlessness and purity the best of men would have to give but a very shabby account of themselves. Nevertheless, the human observer, who compares one man with another, knows that some are just and comparatively pure, while others are base and vile. Judging himself by the standard of God, Bunyan declared bimself the "chief of sin-ners," but compared with his townsmen he was a stout-hearted, stout-minded, scrupulous man. If he seems to us offensive and contemptuous to all who differ from him in theology, we must remember that he lived in days when men were new to the study of the Bible-when no one had experienced the millon interpretations which sincere, truth-seeking Chrisinterpretations which sincere, truth-seeking Chris-tians have since put upon it. Bunyan lived when the most ignorant sectary believed himself infalible, when clergymen taught that faith was higher than learning, and when criticism was regarded as the lat-est form of sin.

Barning, and when criticism was regarded as the new est form of sin. Bunyan was not a pleasant man to know. He had an unrelenting sincerity which his doctrines and not his nature turned into severity. He gave men a chill who met him in the street. Yet, like all manly men, he had great natural tenderness which he yet re-strained, like the beginning crime, towards all who took a more lenient view of life than himself. He had a soul like a red Indian's-all tomahawk and truth-until the literary passion came and added hu-mor to it. Bunyan had wonderful self-insight. It was part of his genius. He was under no delusion as to his own morose views. See with what worldly art he sought to reconcile men to it. He demands in his vigorous doggerel,-vigorous doggerel,-

"May I not write in such a style as this? In such a method too, and yet not miss My end, thy good? Why may it not be done? Dark clouds bring water when the bright bring no

Mark his offensive assumption. He does not ask to explain his views, for the chance of your seeing by them, or finding guidance in them, but stands up as your monitor. His tone is, "my end, thy good." Then comes the fine apologetic line—rich as a provert

"Dark clouds bring water when the bright bring none.

Like men of original genius, this stout-minded pot-mender had abounding confidence in himself. Man-ifestly he had no doubt as to his own powers. No man knew better what he was about. He could take the measure of all the justices about him, and he knew it. Every shallow-headed gentieman in Bed-fordshire towns and villages was made to wince un-der his picturesque and satiric tongue. To ciergy-men bibons lawyars and manifertees he owne aer his picturesque and satiric tongue. To ciergy-men, bishops, lawyers, and magistrates he gave names which all his neighbors knew,—Mr. Pitiless, Mr. Hardheart, Mr. Forget-Good, Mr. No-Truth, Mr. Haughty. Thus he named the disagreeable dignita-ries of the town of Mansoul, who were very well known to those to whom he spoke and for whom he wrote Halghty. Inus ne names the disagreesole dignitaries of the town of Mansoul, who were very well known to those to whom he spoke and for whom he wrote.

At first he was regarded by his "pastors and masters" as a mere wilful, noisy, praying sectary. Very soon they discovered he was a fighting preacher. As tinker or as Christian he always had bis sleeves turned up. When he had to try his own cause he put in the jury-box Mr. True-Heart, Mr. Upright, Mr. Hate-Bad, Mr. See Truth, and other amiable persons. His witnesses were Mr. Know-All, Mr. Teil-True, Mr. Hate-Lies, Mr. Vouch-Truth, Mr. Did-See. His town clerk was Mr. Do-Right; the Recorder was Mr. Conscience; the jailer was Mr. Trueman. Lord Understanding was on the bench, and the judge bears the dainty name of the "Goldenheaded Prince." Bunyan's adversaries are always a bad set. They live in Villain's Lane, in Black Mouth Street, or Blasphemer's Row, or Drunkard's Alley, or Rascal's Corner. They are the sons of one Beasity, whose mother bare them in Flesh Square; they live in the house of one Shameleas, at the sign of the Reprobate, next door to the descent into the Pit. Their relations are Mr. Halter, Mr. Implety, Mr. False-Peace, Mr. Covetousness, who are housed by one Mr. Simple, in Folly's Yard. Bunyan had a perfect wealth of sectarian invective at command. His epithets are at times unquotable and ferocious. When, however, his friends are at the bar the witnesses agalast them comprise the choicest scoundrels of all time-Mr. Envy, Mr. Flackhank, and others, whose friends are Lord Carnal Delight, Lord Luxurious, Lord Lacchery, Sir Having Greedy, and similar vilalous people of quality. The judge's name is now Lord Hate-Good. The jury consist of Mr. No-Good, Mr. Malice, Mr. Impleable, with Mr. Blindman for foreman. Never was such an infamous gang impan-elled. Rancor, and rage, and vindictiveness, and every passion awakened in the breasts of the field had they been twice as many. He was a spiritual Comache. He prize the mane discusting the enucer bind whav

"You see the ways the fisherman doth take "You see the ways the fisherman doth take To catch the fish; what engines doth he make? Behold how he engageth all his witz, Also his narres, lines, angles, hooks, and nets; Yet fish there he that weither hook, nor line; Nor share, nor art, nor engine can make thine; They must he groped for, and he tickled too, Or they will not be catched, whate'er you do."

Banyan never tickled the sinner. It was not his way. He carried a prong. He pricked the erring. He was as determined as his namesake William Bunyan, who published a pamphlet to suggest what ought to be done to holy pedestrians whose difficul-ties lay rearward. John Bunyan was for no half measures. He put detonating balls under his pli-grims' feet, which exploded as they stepped, and alarmed them along. He lined the celestial road with horrors. If the holy travellers turned their heads they saw a fiend. Worse than Lot's wife, who was merely changed into a pillar of sweet, whole-some, all-preserving salt, were Bunyan's unfortunate converts, who looked back into a pit filled with fire where they howled and burned through unknown time.

where they howled and burned through unknown time. It was not an agreeable business for Charles Dick-ens to draw the character of Harold Skimpole, cond-ering that it might be taken in part for one of his own honored friends-Leigh Hunl-to whom it does not apply. But the appropriating temerity of a man of genius is often as mercy to generations after bin. How many people have been warned against those airy, idle, and gracions impostors, who take the money of hard-earned and escrupilous persons, and transfer their debts to them to pay. Many m uncon-scious knave has blushed, and many an honest man's pocket has been award by the portraiture of Harold Skimpole. Bunyan drew religious Skimpoles and Pecksniffs with an indelible pencil. Ah, with what pleasure the great Bedford arlist must have contemplated his masterly pages, as day by day he added to them the portrait of some aew acoundrel, or painted with dexterous and loving hand they wholesome outlines of some earnest man, or de-by day he added to them the portrait of some new scoundrel, or painted with dexterous and loving hand the wholesome outlines of some earnest man, or de-vised some new phrase which, like a new note or a new color, would delight singer or painter for gener-tions yet to come! He must have strode proudly along his cell as he put his noble praise and his plu-less scorn into imperishable similes. But Bunyan had never been great had he been merely disagreeable. He had infinite wit in him. It was his carnal genius that saved him. He wrots sixty books, and two of them—Seige of the Town of Manaoul (otherwise known as The Holy War), and The Pilyrim's Progress—exceed all ever written for creativeness, swiftness of imagination, racy English speech, sentences of perfect art, cunningness in di-logue, satire, ridicule, and surpassing knowledge of the picturesque ways of the obscure minds of com-mon men. In his pages men rise out of the ground; they always come up on an open space, so that hey can be seen; they tak naturally and familiarly, so that you know them at once, and they surple you, delight you, instruct you, and disappear. They ner-er linger, they never weary you. Incidents new and strange arise at every step in his story. The scene changes like the men and their adventures. Nowills field or morass, plain or by-path, bog or volcano, castle changes like the men and their adventures. Now ills field or morass, plain or by-path, bog or volcano, castle or cottage, sandy, scorching desert, or cold, fathomless river, the smoke of the bottomless plt, or bright, ver-dant Delectable Mountains and enchanted lands, where there are no bishops, no jails, and no tinken; where aboundeth grapes, flowing drapery, sainty brides, unending conversation, sweet music, and praise. The great magician's genius forsake him when he comes to the unknown regions, and he be content." By-Ends craftly avoids giving any answer; but he is no match for Christian, who continues as though he did not notice the omission: "This town of Fair-Speech I have heard of, and, as I remember. they say it is a wealthy place." By-Ends: "Yes, I will assure you that it is; and I have very many rich kindred there." Christian quickly and adroitly in-terjects: "Pray who are your kindred there, if a man may be so bold?"

may be so bold?" By-Ends, quite thrown off his guard, answers: "Almost the whole town; and in particular my Lord Fair-Speech, from whose ancestors the town first took its name. Also Mr. Smooth-Man, Mr. Facing-Both-Ways, Mr. Anything; and the parson of our parish, Mr. Two-Tongues, was my mother's own brother. And to tell you the truth, I am be-come a gentleman of good quality; yet my great-grandfather was but a waterman, looking one way and rowing another; and I got most of my estate by doing the same thing." The construction of this answer of By-Ends is a triumph of controversial wit and mailce. It hits eight of Bunyan's neighbors at once. Without disclosing what he thinks of By-Ends' answer, Christian says incidentally: "Are you a married man?"

'Yes," replies By-Ends, betrayed into further selfcriminatory loquacity: "and my wife is a very virtu-ous woman, the daughter of a virtuous woman; she was my Lady Feigning's daughter; therefore she came of a very honorable family, and is arrived to such a pitch of breeding that she knows how to carry it to all, even to prince or peasant. It is true we somewhat differ in religion from those of the stricter sort; yet but in two small points. First, we never strive against wind and tide. Second, we are always most easilous when Religion goes in his silver silppers; we love to walk with him in the street, if the sun shines, and the people applaud him." Having put in all these disagreeable incidents, Buuyan continues:— "Then Christian stepped a little sside to his fellow Honeful saving." It runs in my mind that is one By-

maner of Google

"Then Christian stepped a little aside to his fellow Hopeful saying, 'It runs in my mind that is one By-Ends, of Fair-Speeck; and if it be, we have as very a knave in our company as dwelleth in these parts.' Then asid Hopeful, 'Ask him; methinks he should not be ashamed of his name.' So Christian came up to him again and said, 'Sir, you talk as if you knew something more than all the world doth; and if I take not my mark amiss I deem I have half a guess of you. Is not your name Mr. By-Ends, of Fair-Speech?" "

Speech?" " There is no escape from this well-devised direct-ness of interrogation, and By-Ends has no help but

There is no escape from this well-devised direct-ness of interrogation, and By-Ends has no help but to answer:— "This is not my name, but indeed it is a nickname that is given to me by some that cannot abide me, and I must be content to bear it as a reproach as other good men have borne theirs before me." Christian (sharply): "But did you never give oc-casion to men to call you by this name?" By-Ends: "Never! never! The worst that ever I did to give them an occasion to give me this name was that I had always the luck to jump in my judg-ment with the present way of the times, whatever it things are thus cast upon me, let me count them a blessing; but let not the malicious load me therefore with reproach." Christian here fails back upon what is called "plain speaking;" and observes, "I thought indeed that you were the man that I heard of; and to tell you what I think, I fear this name belongs to you more properly than you are willing we should think it."

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

"As the Parthian turned his steed And from the bostile camps withdraw, With gruet skill the backward reed He sent; and as he fied be slew."

With creat skill the backward reed He sent; and as he field be slow." Bunyan knew well the admonition, "Be ye wise as prents and harmless as doves;" but it was the rpent he respected. It was not in his nature to be vie in the dove. This Christian who confronts By-dis is no dove and no fool. He is cunning of nee, auspicious, asgacious, witry, satirical, abound-y in invective and broad, hold, delicious insolence. e doubles on By-Ends like a hare, and then bites arp like a rat. By-Ends himself is a subtle, evasive ave, drawn with infinites skill. With Mr. Talkative was as masterful and merciless. Bunyan threw a tilke a lasso, captured the sinner, and pulled him the point. If he proved docile Bunyan was very nder of speech to him; but if otherwise he was dis-sochers of his day who are gratefully forgotten-dhe prayed to this time he had won no statue; t his literary genius lives when the preacher is u. Bunyan had the eye of a poet. He saw with he vidness that the very passions and wayard ods of men stood apart and distinct in his sight, ha gave names to them, and endowed them with ir natural appeech. He created new men out of vacteristics of mind, and sent them into the world shapes so defined and palpable that men knew them ever after. A vice was to Bunyan as palpable as a burglar, and courage and faith as real as his father and mother. It was the way of the age for writers to give names to adversaries. Bunyan imi-tated this in his Life of Mr. Bud-Maa. Others did this as well as he; but Bunyan did it better than any man. His invention was marvellous, and he had be-sides the faculty of the dramaist; where others mere-ty gave names he drew characters; he made distinc-tive and individual the qualities of his men. You knew them by their minds better than by their dress. That is why succeeding ages have read the Pilgrin's Progress, because the same people who met that ex-traordinary traveller are always turning up in the way of every man who has a high purpose and is bent upon carrying it out. Manners change, but human-ity has still its old ways. It is because Bunyan painted these that his writing endures in repute like a picture by one of the old masters who painted for all time. If any man wrote the adventures of a cooperator as Bunyan sould be the super sup painted these that his writing endures in repute like a picture by one of the old masters who painted for all time. If any man wrote the adventures of a coöperator as Bunyan could, he would have to tell of his meeting with Mr. Obstinate, who will not listen to him and wants him to turn back. We all get into the com-pany of Mr. Pliable who is persuaded without being convinced, and who at the first spiash into difficulties crawls out and turns back with a cowardly adroit-ness. We have all encountered the stupidity of Mr. Ignorance, which nothing can enlighten. We know Mr. Turn-Away, who comes from the town of Apos-tacy, whose face we cannot perfectly see, for he hangs his head like a thief because he is now in pur-sait of something more profitable than honesty. We all remember Mr. Little-Faith, who joined us for a time, but turned down Dead Man's Lane, where three sturdy rogues. Faintheart, Mistrust, and Knay-ery, did for him. Every one happily knows the braver coworkers—Mr. Unpretending, who is always sure; Mr. Conviction, who never given way; Mr. Long-sight, who sees all down the movement, and knows where the quagmires lie; Mr. Four-Square, whom you always find at right angles; Mr. Watchful, who warms us in time; Mr. Constant, who is with us always; Mr. Resource, who never fails us; Mr. See-All, who overlooks nothing; and Mr. Never-Weary, whose counsel and ald are ever at hand. And if there is Mr. Cantankerous, who gives us no peace; and Mr. Querulous, who is never satisfied; and Mr. Pompous, who overwhelms us; and Mr. Cloudy, who is with us always; Mr. Sympathy, who gives us no help; Mr. Poor Soul, who would get everything done for nothing; Mr. Nevele, who always turns to the dividend; and Mr. Yacancy, who thinks the Edu-ation Fund does not pay,—we are not worse of than other popile. True, Bunyam only Knew Mr. Facing-Both-Ways. I know Mr. Facing-Six-Ways. All societies of honest men are infested with these knaves and simpletons; but we have to thank Bun-yan—great teacher of us all—for enabling us to

[For THE INDEX.] LAW-HUMAN AND NATURAL.

BY CHARLES MORAN.

<text><text><text><text>

ure and society is the only safe basis of legislative action." "Every law imports that something is to be done or left undone. But a command is impotent unless there is the power of enforcing it, which is the power of inflicting penalties if the command is not obeyed. An authority to which only a temporary obedience is which is requisite to give execution to that authority which is requisite to give execution to fund. "The whole tenor of these remarks clearly indicates further implies the belief that the law-makers are superior in intelligence, knowledge, prevision, and virtue, to those on whom the laws are to be enforced; that the law-makers know fully the effects which the laws they enact will produce, now and hereafter; but to be controlled in accordance with the views of the law-makers, in the belief that the yare better indges of what will insure individual welfare and progress than the individuals themselves; and, fur-ther, that governments are competent to detect every infringement of law, and inflict, in all cases, a penal-ty sufficient, finally, to induce individuals to conform ty sufficient, finally, to induce individuals to conform to the laws. Now all these ideas, when connected with human

Now all these ideas, when connected with human laws as means of controlling human actions and en-suring the welfare and progress of humanity. will be found upon close and careful analysis to be wholly fallaclous; but they are, in the main, perfectly cor-rect when applied to the immutable laws or forces of Nature. The idea of enacting human laws as means of insuring human welfare and progress is a radical error, because based on an entire ignorance or disre-gard of the important fact that every human action is as fully controlled by Nature's immutable laws as the movement of the planets or the various combinations of the atoms out of which matter, in its multifarious forms, is composed. The failure of every attempt bitherto made to enact and enforce human laws as means to an end should long since have convinced man that this is a power beyond his control, and hence which he should never attempt to exercise. The history of all past legislation and governmental mathere on made to enact and enforce human have as means to an end should long since have convinced means to an end should long since have convinced means to an end should never attempt to exercise. The history of all past legislation and governmental control clearly demonstrates that no human being or human organization, however intelligent, can ever foresee all the consequences that will flow from any plaw that is enacted; that no one can fully know the momentary and ever-varying wants and desires of individuals, and the relative importance and extent of each; and hence that these can never be properly supplied by any one but the individuals themselves; that, therefore, no one, however wise, pure, and intelligent, has a right to enact and impose a law upon say one but himself, or should ever attempt to prescribe the actions of others, or interfere with them, so long as they do not infringe the legitimste liberty and rights of other members of the community; and, further, that no government, whatever be its form and however despotic be its nature, can properly exercise the power to control individual actions, detect the infringement of its laws, and inflict proper penalities on the disobedient. So all progress and human well-being are due to, and therefore require, constant changes in human be depied to existing circumstances and conditions cannot be made that would give man the power to overcome the laws for adapt themselves to existing buman laws, since for Nature. Hence human haws should never be periodicated over more than a very limited area of territory, and should differ and be changed with and affect the community. Human well-being and progress greatly depend on constantly increasing provide the maintained and fully enforced, would prive the individual action and individual individual individual in the action in the individual action and individual action and individual action in individual individual act

To man r beginstitud is invalid and share the in-future, never to the present. Before laws can be enacted and enforced, the cir-cumstances they are intended to control become more or less modified. Hence the whole history of legisla-tion has ever been, and will ever be, the enactment of laws which, ere long, are modified or annulled, and replaced by others which share the same fate. Why should not every individual be left free to act at all times as he may deem most conducive to his own well-being under existing circumstances, so long as he does not attack the legitimate right of others? All men do not seek the same ends, nor find their happiness in the same things. How, then, can one judge what is best for others at the moment? And why should all be ever forced to conform to one and the same rule ? Nor is it true that the average of legislators and government administrators are more intelligent or the same rule? Nor is it true that the average of legislators and government administrators are more intelligent or more virtuous than the average of the people on whom the laws act. The reverse is usually the case, because the exercise of power almost invariably de-velops man's bad impulses, and checks the develop-ment of his better attributes and qualities, whilst unual dependence on each other produces the op-coster results. But the more completely the laws of Nature are discovered, and the more they are studied and analyzed, the more fully will man become convinced that and uninterfered with by human laws and regula-tions, produce at all times, in all places, noder all sought to be attained by means of human laws; and that in the simplest and most prompt manner, and that in the simplest and most prompt manner, and vatages that invariably accompany human laws and vatages that invariably accompany human huma

INORGANIC MATTER AND THE ATOMIC LAW.

The entire universe is in constant motion—a con-dition indispensable to modifications and changes of every kind, as no change or progress can occur in anything while in perfect, absolute rest. Attraction and repulsion appear to be the two great antagonistic forces that retain the planets in their re-spective orbits, and maintain constant motion and harmony throughout all Nature. The movements of every atom of matter in the universe, whatever be the form it momentarily assumes, or into which it becomes incorporated, are all controlled by the immutable laws or forces of Nature. Simple bodies are those which thus far it has been found impossible to decompose into simpler sub-stances. These are called elements, and form the bases of all chemical compounds. As yet only sixty-eight elementary substances have been discovered; of these about one half are only found locally, and in ruch areall councilies that they addentify nar bit a and small quantities that they evidently play but a comparatively unimportant part in the mineral, vege-table, and animal kingdoms. Adhesion or cohesion may exist between bodies

Depisity Google

Adhesion or cohesion may exist between bodies or parts of bodies, enabling them to hold together with-out alteration in the properties of alther, all remain-ing what they were. A chemical change, on the contrary, produces new bodies or substances, differ-ing in their properties from those of the elements of which they are composed. Hence, all chemical com-pounds form far more intimate combination than mere adhesion or cohesion. The chemical union of the elementary component parts extends to the small-est particles of which the body is formed. The uniting force that thus firmly links particle to parti-cle, and opposes itself to their separation, is called chemical affinity. Chemical combinations between two or more ele-ments arise from the intimate union which takes place between the atoms owing to the chemical affin-ity peculiar to each individual atom. Only whole or undivided atoms can combine together.

ments arise from the intimate union which takes piace between the atoms owing to the chemical affin-ity peculiar to each individual atom. Only whole or undivided atoms can combine together. The atomic law of chemistry, discovered by Dalton, reveals the important fact that, in every compound substance, its elements can only combine in certain inted, constant proportions, and under certain un-alterable circumstances. Thus oxygen and hydrogen form water only when combined in the proportion of one volume of oxygen to two of hydrogen, and by weight, in the proportion of eight parts of oxygen to one part of hydrogen. Sulphur and oxygen form sulphurous anhydride only when combined in the proportion of one atom of sulphur to two atoms of proportion of one atom of one atom of carbon with two atoms of oxygen. To form carbonic anhydride requires the combination of one atom of carbon with two atoms of oxygen. Ethyle consists of four atoms of carbon and five atoms of hydrogen. The requires the combination of one atom of carbon with two atoms of oxygen. Ethyle consists of mat-ter capable of entering into, or existing in, a state of matter capable of entering in the free state. Most invoganic bodies can readily be reduced into their constituent elements. Weak affinities in binary propounds may be overcome by heat alone; power-ful affinities must be overcome by heat alone; power-ful afficities must be overcome by heat alone; power-ful aff component elements of the oxide or other com-pounds. Throughout Nature disintegration and combination are inceasantly going on. Matter and force are inde-structible, but they incessantly undergo protean transformations productive of wondrous results. The same particles of matter, in time, form a part of an infinite variety of substances or bodies, each dif-ferent in its nature and in the results it produces. And all these bodies are constantly reduced into their elements by the forces of Nature, which again com-bine them into other forms as evanescent as those of which these various elements had previously formed a part. This seems to establish that it is matter that is immortal, and not the combinations which matter forms or assumes. Electricity and magnetism probably play a far more important part in both chemical combinations and crystallization than we are yet aware of. In order that a body may crystallize or combine, it must first be brought into the liquid or gascues static, the only conditions in which atoms become sufficiently free to move; and without motion or movement no change nor combine-tion can take place. Combinations of elementary rystailize or combine, it must first be brought into the liquid or gaseous state, the only conditions in which atoms become sufficiently free to more; and without motion or movement no change nor combina-tion can take place. Combinations of elementary production of the elements; two elements that com-bine together to make a compound are believed to do on consequence of having opposite electric energies. The afficities between acids and alkalles are very strong, and by their union they form saits. In such instances the acids are endowed with the electro-positive. The union of two saits is called a double on the together to make a compound are to the atoms and by their union they form saits. In such instances the acids are endowed with the electro-positive. The union of two saits is called a double and by their union they form saits. In such instances the acids are endowed with the electro-positive. The union of two saits is called a double and by their union they form saits. In such instances the acids are endowed with the electro-positive. The union of two saits is called a double and by their union of two saits is called a double and combine instances, of two combining saits, the one has an electro-positive and the other an electro-positive. The union of two saits is called a double are pleas and repels similar poles. The crystallizable is poles and repels similar poles. The crystallizable and combinations chemical combinations invariably and the various chemical combinations invariably and the various chemical combinations invariably and the same cordance with these laws, accident to now in the atomic law of chemical combinations of the laws of crystallization control the various of matter are succeptible, it becomes evident that no movements and combinations of which the elements of matter are succeptible, it becomes evident that no end repertents and single new elementary substance or nat-ter first produced. And there is no evidence what-weling the endire period of time of which we possess any reli existed as long as all the other substances and forces existed as long as all the other substances and forces previously known. Whenever the various elementary atoms of inor-ganic matter are brought into contact under proper conditions and in the requisite proportions, the laws or forces of Nature act through what appears to be a force inherent to the atom; the law and the process of crystallization and of chemical combination are one and the same thing,—they form one act, and they, like all the laws or forces of Nature, act automatical-ly. As George Henry Lewes says, "The law is the process," and "the process must be the process;" but this only means that neither analogy nor reference to anything else ever conveys to the mind a better knowledge of what anything is than its exhibition to the senses,—sole agencies through which the hu-man mind obtains a knowledge of objective things. We may get to know something of the unknown through the known; but the fullest knowledge we can obtain of anything is through its direct contact with our sense. All combinations of elementary inorganic matter can obtain of anything is through its direct contact with our senses. All combinations of elementary inorganic matter are automatic processes; and the process and the force that produces the process are inseparable—are apparently one and the same,—simply because force only acts on or through matter, and because the senses are only adapted to take cognizance of mate-rial things. Hence, force saids from matter, if it can and does so exist, will probably ever be incognizable to man; but this in no way proves that force is not the efficient cause of the movements of inorganic matter. Although matter and force may never be separable except abstractly in the human mind, man is nevertheless forced to believe that inorganic mat-ter is invariably impelled by force of some kind or other, since every observed effect which has been traced back to its cause has been found to be due to some anterior efficient cause or phenomenon. All traced back to its cause has been found to be due to some anterior efficient cause or phenomenon. All human reasoning is nothing but tracing back ob-served phenomena to their anterior efficient causes or phenomena. This mah has successfully done so often and to so great an extent that, by analogy, he is forced to accept as an axiom the conclusion that no phenomenon can ever occur without an efficient, nacessary, antecedent cause or phenomenon. The opponents of this conclusion, before they can hope to refute or everthrow it, must furnide some well-estabopponents of this conclusion, before they can hope to refute or overthrow it, must furnish some well-estab-lished evidence of the occurrence of a phenomenon without connection with a preëxisting cause or phe-nomenon. Force cannot be a mere attribute of inor-ganic matter, for that would make matter the efficient First Cause of all things. It may be that in time all the movements of matter for which as yet we have discovered no efficient cause will be proved to be due to electricity and magnetism, probably two different modes of action of one and the same force. But elec-tricity and magnetism must be something different from mere matter, since they appear to be transmissi-ble, separate, and apart from the matter on or through which they act, since matter can be made to conduct or transmit electricity without any apparent move-ment in the conducting matter.

OBGANIC MATTER.

OBGANIC MATTER. When we closely examine and analyze organic mat-ter, we find that though composed of the same ele-mentary substances, and though as fully and as effi-clently controlled by the immutable laws of Nature, as inorganic matter, yet its movements and combina-tions are carried on in so different a manuer, and produce such different results from those produced by inorganic matter, that there can be no doubt of the absolute necessity of the great fundamental divi-sion of matter into INORGANIC and DEGANIC,—not-withstanding that the validity and soundness of this distinction has for some time past been questioned and decried by materialists and superficial observers and uninkers. All the movements and combinations of organic

All the movements and combinations of organic matter seem to be due mainly to vitality, or vital force, or life; which, possibly, may hereafter be found to be only another effect or mode of action of elec-tricity and magnetism. But in the mean time, let us ace if it be not possible to demonstrate conclusively the existence of vitality or vital force, and prove that it is the true efficient cause of the various phenomena ascribed to it. ascribed to it.

Inorganic matter, as we have shown, is composed of atoms of elementary substances which, when free in the fluid or gaseous state, and brought lato con-tact under certain circumstances, combine together the atoms is all of the second together into vital cells or protoplasme, except within what may be called the internal laboratory of the sital organism of which it forms a component part. Every organism, vegetable as well as animal, has to absorb, in one manner or another, various inorganic sub-stances, and transform or transmute them within itself into the vital cells of which it is composed, as these cells cannot be assimilated from without, the epidermis preventing this; and hence all vital cells have to be formed within itself all the cells of which it is constructed, but it must further construct within itself the cells out of which the vital germs are formed (except so far as the male element contributes for); which germs, in time, separate from the parent for; which the internal power of transmuting inorganism, and, under favorable circumstances, through the linkerent internal power of transmuting inorganic matter and transmuting it into the vital cells of which is internal power of assimilating in-organism. This internal power of assimilating in-organism. This internal power of assimilating in-organism. This internal power of is no doubt the progenitors.

the loss of this power is what is denominated num. The fact that the same food which at one time will sustain and develop as organism, at auther time, though absorbed in precisely the same manner and condition, will not prevent the decay and ultimate death of the organism, is a conclusive proof that organic matter is not the sole source of vitably-in not alone the cause of the existence of life. When inorganic elements enter into a living organic of ordinary inorganic chemistry. Chemical simily periodes and dies as completely as life does after anotimal has heaved its last sigh. In their compoi-tion, in their properties, in their very physical con-formation, the elements of living structures altogene-differ from inorganic compounds. The promise formation, the elements of living structures altopelle differ from inorganic compounds. The proximate principles formed in organized beings never crystal-lize, although compored of elements that do form crystals when not in a living body. The only appar-ent exception to this is when a portion of their struc-ure is in the act of passing to the dead, inorganic world, as for instance in urea. And although we know the composition of the proximate principles in anitmal and vegetable structures, we cannot syntheir cally construct them, the only exception being sgain urea, which is a dead, and not a living, substance. While endowed with life, every vital organism po-seases the power of overcoming, more or less, the force of gravitation, which so powerfully control al inorganic matter when not in a gaseous state; where as, the moment life is overcome by death, every vital organism becomes instantly as fully under the cos-trol of gravitation as inorganic matter in any dis trol of gravitation as inorganic matter in any d in organism becomes instantity as fully under the ca-trol of gravitation as inorganic matter in any dia forms. The ingenious, persevering, and accurate invest-gations, long carried on by eminent scientista of usi-ous ages and nations, have as yet produced no prod that vital germs of any kind have ever been evolu-from any other source than the coöperating force at their own fully developed, vital progenitors, male and female. This necessity for the coöperation of the male and female element to the evolution of vital germs alone appears to be a perfect and all-sufficient refutation of the theory of spontaneous generation, a theory which not only has never yet been established even in regard to the simplest form of vital orga-isms, but which, if proved in regard to these, would further require conclusive evidence that these print-tive cells and germs are endowed with the power transforming themselves, through evolution, into all the higher existing organisms, before science thous accept the theory of the evolution of all vital orga-isms from one or a few of their simplest forms. A Profeasor Lister well said, in his recent introdectory lecture before the University of Edinburgh: "The doctrine of spontaneous or equivocal generation has been chased successively to hower and lower station in the world of organized beings, as our means of in-vestigation have improved." And now Dr. Battin, the ardent and indefatigable advocate of spontaneous generation, in his reply to these remarks of Professor Lister, thus relegates the doctrine back into the intri-bible regions beyond the ken of man: "It should is distinctly understood that those who surely adher to the evolution hypothesis could never beliese in the origination of any but the lowest and alignet or ganie forms by the process of archebiosis. ... Mole-cular combination, giving rise to units of proteome to the evolution hypothesis could never believe in the origination of any but the lowest and simplest or ganic forms by the process of archebiosis.... Mole cular combination, giving rise to units of prolopiam far below the minimum visible stoge of our most poer-ful microscope, would represent these thitial collections by which alone living matter could come into being-though the germs thus initiated may afterward ap-pear as minutest visible sparks growing into bacteria or vibriones." Now so long as these germs (if they really exist) thus remain invisible to man, eren with the aid of the most powerful microscope, as they are not be watched and observed to grow or develop into bacteria, vibriones, or any other forms, how can so ence accept them as the germs from which all the ri-tal organisms of the world have been, and are still, evolved? It would be most unscientific to accept as fundamental (ruit han unproved and evidently un provable hypothesis, contradicted by numerous wella fundamental truth an unproved and evidently approable hypothesis, contradicted by numerous well-established facts, such as that all hitherto discovered vital germs have been the joint product of free-rist-ing, fully-developed, male and female organisms and their that all the cells of which vital organisms and their that all the cells of which vital organizations and their germs are composed are and must be formed willing the vital organization thermselves, and nowhere else-and that all intelligent horicoulturits and breeders of do-menticated animals have observed it to be an invari-ble rule that each germ develops itself into an aran-iam similar to its progenitors, the utmost variation being quite limited, and never altering the msin char-acteristics and attributes of its prototypes; and most of the variations being due to manis interrention and protecting care, which, hy propagating from the bet and most perfect individual apecimens that can be found, and by assuring to the germs and to their ro-genitors shelter against the inclemencies of the weather, and better, more abundant, and more regu-lar supplies of food than they could themselves of tain, place them in circumstances far more favorable lar supplies of food than they could themselves of tain, place them in circumstances far more favorable to their full and perfect development than is possible in their state of nature, which maintains the original types through the law of the survival of the strongent and fittest; but this never permits the slightest advance-ment beyond that condition, man being the only vital organism that possesses the power of aiding bic our development and that of the inferior organisms which be takes under his protecting care. This is fully proved by the well-known fact that improved dome-ticated plants and animals, when replaced under the unalded influence of Nature, in time invariably re-lapse into their original low types.

Inspecific their original low types. The fact is, the evolution theory of Darrin is mainly based on accidental modifications of vital or mainly based on accidental modifications of vital or ganisms, which, thereafter, are supposed to be per-getuated by inheritance when found beneficial to the acid. Thus do we find that thronghout all Nature every-thing has a specific function, and aids in producing the great final results which are assured by the per-sistent, unchanging forces of Nature. When this is fully perceived and understood, can any one believe that everything in the universe is the result of inor-ganic matter and the forces inherent to it? Can we refuse to admit that vitality or vital force plays a most important part in Nature, and controls inorganic matter in many of its transformations or transmuta-tions, instead of inorganic matter being the efficient cause of all the results of which it forms a part?

472

<text><text><text>

THE UNITABIAN CONFERENCE.

BY REV. JOHN W. CHADWICK.

<text>

INDEX - OCTOBEC 1

""Resolved, That this Conference heartily endorses the action of its officers, in inviting to be present, by its pastor (William J. Potter) and delegates, the Uni-tarian Society in New Bedford, and desires to have its general spirit interpreted by this particular ac-tion.""

Tarian Society in New Bedron, and desires to have its general spirit interpreted by this particular ac-tion."" "This resolution was a coming down from the gen-eral to the particular. Mr. Potter's name, as many of the congregation well knew, was dropped last May from the list of Unitarian ministers at a meeting of the Association, packed for that purpose. But the Conference, more generous than the Association, had invited him to be present. "Blessed are those who do good by strength and get found out. But when it was proposed to do openly what had been done stealthily, though all the best intelligence of the Con-ference was enlisted in favor of such action, the reso-lution, like its predecessor, was laid upon the table. There was really something splendid in the superior-ty of the Conference to all the ordinary traditions of the body of the lay delegates. In the whole course of the debate it was noticeable, as it has been in ev-ery similar debate at previous meetings of the Con-ference who imagined themselves set for the defence of the Gonference as all thes dimestres set for the should not speak as if illiberality was the order of the day in the Conference as a stratoga. It was far of the was generally so. The officers chosen for the should not speak as if illiberality was the order of the day in the Conference at a binersity, and the should not speak as if illiberality was the order of the day in the Conference at Saratoga. It was far of the was generally so. The officers chosen for the should not speak as if illiberality was the order of the day in the practical works of the Confer-eration shibboleths. The prescher asid that he should not speak as if illiberality was the order of the day in the Conference at Saratoga. It was far of the day in the generally so. The officers chosen for the they resident of the new council, and where the prict of Prof. Everett is, there is liberality." Mr. Chadwick closed his address with an eloquent and feeling allusion to a death that had taken place more his congregat

HIGHLAND ANCESTRY.—A dispute arose between two members of the clan Campbell and M'Lean, on the never-ending subject of their ancestors. M'Lean would not allow that the Campbells had any right to rank with the M'Leans in antiquity, who, he insisted, were in existence and a clan from the heginning of the world. Campbell had a little more biblical lore than his antagonist, and asked him if the clan M'Lean was before the flood. "Flood! What flood?" said M'Lean. "The flood that, you know, drowned all the world except Noah and his family and his flocks." said Campbell. "Poohl you and your flood!" said M'Lean; "my family was before the flood." "I have not read in my Bible," said Campbell, "of the name of M'Lean going into Noah's ark." "Noah's ark." retorted M'Lean in contempt: "who ever heard of a M'Lean that had not a boat of his own?"

Doetry.

[For THE LEDBEL] THE SITUATION.

473

Let oraven cowards shirk the fight, And Treachery sneak to dens away; Let guilty Falsehood shun the light Of e'en the stars' remittent ray.

The brave shall breast the danger nigh; The innocent unfaltering stand; The faithful lift the banner high That bears the motto: "Free the La

While holy Truth, with sinless head

Uncovered, to the front shall run; and with her own white hands shall spread Her record to the shining sun.

Z. M.

FAREWELL. BY CELIA THATTES.

The crimson sunset faded into gray; Upon the marmurous sea the twilight fell; The last warm breath of the delicious day Passed with a mute farewell.

Above my head in the soft purple sky A wild note sounded like a shrill-voiced bell; Three gulls met, wheeled, and parted with a cry That seemed to say, "Farewell!"

I watched them: one sailed east, and one soared west, And one went floating south; while like a knell That mournful cry the empty sky possessed, "Farewell, farewell, farewell!"

"Farewell!" I thought, It is the earth's one speech: All human voices the sad chorus swell: Though mighty love to heaven's high gate may reach, Yet must he say, "Farewell!"

The rolling world is girdled with the sound. Perpetually breached from all who dwell Upon its bosom, for no place is found Where is not heard, "Farewell!"

"Farewell, farewell,"-from wave to wave 'the tos From wind to wind : earth has one tale to tell ; All other sounds are dulled, and drowned, and loss In this one cry, "Farewell!"

From the October Atlantic.

CASH BECEIPTS.

FOR THE WREE ENDING SEPTEMBER 3.

DIG THE WERE ENDING EXPERIENCE.
N. F. Martin, Sl.10; James Bamaden, 40 cents; Julia Fischbaum, 45 cents; D. J. Bastlan, 50 cents; George weight, 50 cents; George M. Footer, $1.42, A. K. Loring, 44 george decorge leters, 10, 42, 4. K. Loring, 44 george decorge decorge

RECEIVED.

Books.

BIODES. MODERS. CHRISTIANTY, A CIVILIZED HEATSERSE. By the Anthor of The Fichi at Dame Europa's School. Bos-ton: William P. Gill & Co., 151 Washington St. 1875. THE CHURCH POACH. A Service Book and Hymnisi for Sunday Schools. Compiled and Edited by William R. Huntington, D.D., Rector of All Saints Church, Worces-ter. New York: E. P. Datton & Co. 1574.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

THE MARTIEDON OF JESOS OF NAZARETE. A Historio-Critical Treatise on the Last Chapters of the Gospel. Ry Rev. Dr. Isaac M. Wise. Cincinnati: Office of the American foracitie. OF SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS. An Essay by Rev. Charles E. Grinnell.

- OF SELP-CONSCIOUSNESS. An ESSAY by Rev. Charles E. Grinnell.
   BIBLOTHEOA DIABOLIDA. Being a Choice Sciection of the most valuable Books relating to the Devil, etc. On Sale by Scribner, Weilford & Armstrong, 554 Broadway, New York: 1874.
   SEBMONS by Mr. Hope Monerical, at St. George's Hall, Lon-don.—"The Spirit of God." August 2.—"The People of God." August 9.—"The Will of God." August 16.—"The Salvation of God." August 2..."The Bervice of God." August 2..."The Service of God." August 16.—"The Salvation of God." August 2..."The Service of God." August 2..."The Service of God." August 2..."The Service of God." August 29.
   ATLANTIC MONTRUX. October, 1874. Boston: H. O. Houghton & Co., OUR FIRST HONDRED YEARS. In 12 Parts: Part 3. New York: United States Publishing Co.
   PENN MONTHLY. October, 1874. New York: 234 Broadway.
   MEDICAL ECLEVITO. Soptember, 1874. New York: E. S. Newton, 137 W. 4716 St.
   PHYHCLANT MONITOR for 1874. New York: W. A. TOWN-send, 177 Broadway.
   HENALD OF HEALTH. October, 1874. New York: Wood & Hobbrook.

Google

The Inder. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial courri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, Editor. ABBAN WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor. OGTAVIUS BROOKS FROTEINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RIGHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MES. E. D. CHENET, BEV. CHARLES YOVENY (England), POL. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Concributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 1, 1874

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for Afteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

OUR ACKLOWLEDGEMENTS are due to Mr. George Jacob Holyoake, for thirty years editor of the London Reasoner, and famous as the chief founder of the Secularist party in England, for his kindness in furnishing us with a printed copy of his lecture on Bunyan, which is contained in this number of THE IN-DEX. As a plece of genuine literary criticism, its merits will strike every one who is familiar with the Pilgrim's Progress. It is appreciative in the highest degree of that marvellous book, and will command the respect even of those who may not be in sympathy with radical ideas.

"WE MUST each shape our lives by our own standard," writes a correspondent in courteous condemnation of our treatment of the free-love question. But this is only a half truth, which must be supplemented by the further statement that "we must shape our own standard by the truth of things." Morality is an objective science, or it is no science at all; and, like every other objective science, it requires us to conform our thinking to real relations, on peril of fatal blunders. The laws of sexual morality are not whatever the individual fancies them to be, but must be determined by the scientific study of society, its organic conditions and its normal development. Whoever undertakes to determine them by a mere subjective theory, regardless of the fact that marriage is the result of necessary evolution and not of arbitrary enactment, is wholly unfitted to be a teacher on this subject. The trouble with the free-love doctrine is that it is based on a denial of moral obligation as superior to mere sentiment. The conscience and reason of the individual ought to give law to love in his private life; the universal conscience and reason 1o the race ought to give law to love in all social regulations of marriage. In any other sense, free love is an absurdity-an offence against reason and conscience.

THE STRAIGHTPOBWARD and manly conduct illustrated by the following card deserves and commands our profound respect

A CHANGE OF BELIEF.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE BOSTON DAILY ADVER-

I should esteem it a favor if you would give pub-licity to the following statement submitted by me to the Baptist Ministers' Conference in Tremont Tem-ple on Monday, the 21st instant.

EDWARD F. STRICKLAND. TO THE BAPTIST MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE, TRE-MONT TEMPLE :

MORT TEMPLE :-MORT TEMPLE:-Gentlemen,-I beg leave to notify you that in con-sequence of my experiencing a change of belief re-specting the fundamental doctrines of your Church, to wit: total depravity of the human family, the eter-nal punishment of the finally impenitent, the doc-trine of the Trinity, and divinity of Christ, I therefore c.n no longer retain my position in your ranks, and feel it to be consistent with honor and propriety to inform you of my change of sentiments and the dis-solution of my connection with the Baptist denomi-nation. In doing so I request that you will give the fullest publicity to the same. The letter of com-mendation and dismissal from the pastorate of my last charge-the Caivary Baptist Church, of Westerly, R.I.,-now in my possession, will be returned to that body with a copy of this notice. EDWARD F. STRICKLAND.

EDWARD F. STRICKLAND. BOSTON, Sept. 21, 1874.

ECCLESIASTICAL ENCROACEMENTS.

Liberals are very sceptical at present as to the possibility of religious questions getting into politics. From the Boston Daily Advertiser of September 22 we learn of two instances which have just occurred, and which, however trivial they may appear to some, we consider to be very important signs of the times.

In New Hayen, the Catholics openly tried to elect a school board that should carry out their own sec-tarian schemes. "A prominent Roman Catholic clergyman," says the Advertiser, "had announced from his pulpit that it was time for the Roman Catholics to act and get control of the board, so that their schools might be supported by the public funds. A Catholic ticket was in the field. Two members of the present board are of that religious belief. The excitement called out a vote of 5,000, unprecedented in the history of New Haven school elections. About 1,400 votes were cast for the Catholic candidates, but they were defeated, and the regular nominees were elected by a majority of about 1,500, the cumulative system being used. Many Roman Catholics condemned the sectarian animus of the others, and refused to vote the Catholic ticket." This account shows that nearly one third of the votes cast were Catholic, and that now, as always, great excitement followed the appeal to the ballot in matters of religious belief. The fact that the Catholics were defeated is far less important than the fact that they have openly attempted to carry sectarian plans by political means.

The other instance shows that the Protestant clergy are quite as willing as the Catholics to combine to exert political influence in favor of whatever they choose to advocate. At the "regular weekly meeting of the Methodist ministers" held on September 21 (apparently in Boston), the following resolution was introduced by Rev. Mr. Gill, and adopted : "Resolved, That if the Republican party nominate for Governor a man who is known to be in favor of a license law, or an anti-prohibitionist, we pledge ourselves to vote and use our influence to induce others to vote against his election." The particular object for which the Methodist clergy thus combined is of far less consequence than the fact that they combined at all as a clerical body to influence a political election.

Would either of these events have been likely to occur in 1860? If not, why not? Is any one so blind as not to discern a rapidly growing tendency to bring religious questions for decision to the ballotbox. -so blind as not to discern the great and imminent danger involved in such a tendency? We see no way so speedy and so sure of averting this danger as that of frankly and bravely meeting it. If the true American principle of the utter separation of Church and State shall be unflinchingly carried out by conceding the Demands of Liberalism, all such collisions will be rendered impossible in the future; but such collisions will become increasingly numerous and perilous until that final settlement of the great question at issue. Liberals! You have a great public duty to discharge; are you sufficiently in earnest to discharge it?

PRACTICAL MEASURES FOR THE BE-PRESSION OF INTEMPERANCE.

Mr. J. Sedgebeer, of Painesville, Ohio, has written as an interesting letter with reference to prohibitory legislation which, as he states, embodies "the substance of twenty-five years of reflection on the cause and partial cure of intemperance, and on the 'license or no license' question." "Being constitutionally opposed to using any kind of intoxicating drinks (even down to lager beer or old cider), I am opposed to granting licenses to any one. But I desire free trade in liquors, as in all other articles of merchandisa: holding, however, the venders of intoxicating beverages responsible for all damages of every description, p person or property, which may arise out of their business."

The plan he favors in dealing with intemperance embraces the following points :-

1. Any person who proposes to trade in alcoholic liquids of any kind shall be required to give notice of his intention to the proper authorities, and at the same time give ample bonds for the payment of whatever damages he may be sentenced to pay by the courts.

2. Any person convicted of selling such goods without previously giving the required notice and bonds shall for the first offence be imprisoned not less than thirty days, and for the second offence imprisoned sixty days and fined not less than fifty dollars.

3. Any person found drunk in the streets, or disturbing the public peace in consequence of drinking, shall be arreated and held in durance till sober, and then put on his oath to testify when, where, and from whom he obtained the intoxicating drink. The vender thus pointed out shall be brought at once into court, and examined under oath as to the facts of the case. If guilty, he shall have judgment rendered against him for damages and costs.

4. Such other provisions should be made as may be necessary to give efficiency to the general policy here indicated : the object being to curtall and lessen intemperance, and at the same time to ensure personal freedom to all-simply holding every man responsible for all damages to others which may be entailed by his own free acts.

That the true policy on the temperance questionthe policy which shall at the same time protect social interests, and respect individual liberty, in the highest possible degree-lies in the general direction of Mr. Sedgebeer's proposal, seems tolerably plain.

The crime of intemperance must be admitted to be the act of the intemperate man himself; in drinking what deprives him of his humanity for the time be ing, and makes him an irrational animal guided solely by his passions. But, as no man gets instantaneously intoxicated, he who supplies the sot with drink when he is evidently losing his reason must be admitted to be particeps criminis. If intemperance is a crime at all, the intemperate man must be held to be the criminal, and he who helps make him intemperate must be held to be the accomplice. No view of the case can be a just or true one which reverses the fact, making the vender the principal and the drinker the accessory; yet this is what the prohibitdry law does, by punishing the vender and letting the drinker go. We certainly hold that society has a right to treat intemperance as a crime very threatening to its own peace and safety ; but we also hold that the intemperate man himself is the primary criminal, while the vender is criminal in a secondary degree. Equitable legislation on the subject must be conformed to this actual state of the case.

It seems necessary, therefore, to assign the severer penalty to the greater offender. If the vender should be punished by one or two months imprisonment in case the sale is made to an improper person, the drunkard should be punished by imprisonment for at least twice as long. Supposing that every man found drunk on the streets should be sentenced to seveni months' imprisonment in the House of Correction, while the man who sold him the liquor he got drunk on should be imprisoned for a shorter term, is it sol likely that arrests for drunkenness would be very soon diminished in frequency? Is it not likely that, if the fact of open intoxication involved with certainty such public disgrace and ignominy, a healthier public opinion would soon be created by the refer influence of the laws upon it? Make the laws just in themselves, and they become powerful auxiliaries of public morality; make them unjust, and they more or less tend to demoralize the whole community. On every ground both of intrinsic equity and practical expediency, we believe that legislation which confines itself to meting out penalties for actual intemperance in the manner we have suggested will do more in five years to make intemperance discreditable and infrequent than prohibitory statutes can do in fifty years. Such legislation we shall emphatically approve until better arguments for prohibition than we have yet seen shall have been invented. It would not go beyond the universally conceded right of society to protect itself by penalties against dangerous crimes, while it would not violate in the slightest degree the personal liberty of unoffending citizens.

We doubt not a little, moreover, whether it is practicable or really just to make the vender pay uncertain "damages" for acts he did not personally commit. It appears more equitable to fine him a fixed sum for every case in which he is convicted of being an accomplice in the crime of intemperance, according to a fixed scale of fines for the first offence, second offence, and so on. This legislation would be more readily approved by public opinion, we suspect, and therefore more easily carried into execution. The vender would know beforehand exactly what risk he was running by selling to improper persons, and would be cut off from the sympathy of those who might consider the damages excessive in any particular case. There is inherent wrong in any law which, after a given act is committed by one map, makes the degree of punishment it incurs dependent on what some other man does subsequently. This wrong is a grave objection to the "Adair Liquor Law" of Ohio, if we understand It,-not to mention here other ob jections. The only way in which the recovery of "damages" could be secured with any approach to equity would seem to be something like this: to allow all who could prove their claim to "damages" to recover them from the State, and then to assess the total amount of such "damages" upon the whole body of liquor-sellers in the proportion of the amounts of liquor they respectively sell. This would oblige the liquor-traffic simply to pay its own expenses, which would seem to be no more than just in one view of the matter. But the chances of fraud and evasion would be so great that we doubt the feasibility of such a policy. It would be easier and simpler, we apprehend, to establish a regular scale of fines, as above suggested, and devote the proceeds, after all other expenses were paid, to the relief of those who are the worst sufferers by the existence of intemperance, namely, the families of the intemperate.

ouna, Google

These are only crude hints or suggestions, offered with befitting modesty as a slight contribution to the proper consideration of a grave public question. What we are satisfied of is this: that the protection of public interests must be reconciled with the preservation of private liberties, which the prohibitory principle fails to do. The prohibitionists think they strike at the root of the evil by suppressing (or attempting ineffectually to suppress) the sale of alcohol; whereas they only lop off the branches. "Stop the supply I" they cry. We answer, stop the demand. The mad lust for liquor is the fountain of intemperance; drying up the fountain is a more radical cure than damming the stream. You may make an individual temperate against his will by locking him up in jail; but you cannot lock up a whole community. It is impossible to prevent the public's getting what the public are determined to have. Is it not every way wiser, as it certainly is juster, to rely on such means and measures as shall diminish the demand for liquor rather than to fight against nature by striv-ing to suppress the supply? The crazy passion for drink is not natural to man; It is a disease created by ignorance, misery, poverty, idleness, absence of innocent amusements, and a thousand other things which prohibitionists do not seem to consider at all. Just laws may do much to free society from intemperance in the streets and other public places; but nothing short of such improved social conditions as shall give instruction to the ignorant, happiness to the wretched, employment to the idle, honorable ambition and an honorable carcer to the desperate, pure and elevating recreation to the unoccupied, and so on, will ever cure the monstrous evil of such intem perance as does not make itself an open, public offence. So long as mischlevous social conditions prevall, arbitrary suppression will only drive the disease inward to prey on society's vitals. Let us not forget wisdom in our philanthropy, but seek the best things by the best ways.

THE ART OF GETTING TRUTH FROM OTHERS.

Whenever I meet an earnest and honest man, who makes to me a statement of his belief which does not tally with my own, I immediately inquire of myself, "Why did he say that? He must have said it because he believes it to be true; and, surely, he would not believe it to be true unless there really were some truth in it." And so I feel it incumbent upon me straightway to find out, not how much error there is in the man's belief, but how much truth there is in it.

This is the way, I think, we should meet all those who differ from ns, and all who advance novel and uncommon theories. For, I take it, all men are natural lovers of truth. The human mind in each individual gravitates towards truth, seeking it as naturally as the growing plant seeks the light. There is no inherent disposition in the mind of any man to avoid the truth, but, on the contrary, one to find it and see It. The moral significance of the doctrine of evolution assures us of just this, and nothing else. It knocks the underpluning from beneath the old theological dogma that men choose avil and error knowing them to be such; and it shows that there is one propulsion, mighty and irresistible, operating upon all the world of Nature and of man towards the true, the good, the beautiful,-in other words, towards perfection. The only remnant of truth left of the doctrine of innate or total depravity is that nobody is perfect; that everybody is imperfect; and that some are much more imperfect than others. We all somewhat stick in the mud of our earthly origin; and yet we all are trying to find a clean and firm place to plant our foot.

In meeting one, then, who differs from me, no matter in what respect nor in what degree, I am not to presume that he is wholly wrong, or that I am wholly right. More than this; if he is at all honest and sincere, I am to presume, not only that his opinions seem to him to be true, but that in fact they are more or less true. If I do not presume this, then I must presume either that he has no capacity to discern the truth, or that he has no disposition to do so. This last presumption, surely, no true radical will make.

My honest opponent has had his own mental processes and his own experience, as I have had mine, whereby to come at the truth. If not equally with myself, yet as truly is he a lover of the truth as I am. From him it never has been wholly hidden, any more than it has from me. Prejudiced he may be, and narrow-minded and wilful. Yet, unless he be utterly stupid or utterly perverse, his opinions and statements do stand for more or less of truth. If I am not myself a confirmed egotist; if I am not disposed to overbear his judgment with my own; if I am not willing to rule the evidence of his mental and moral experience entirely out,—then I shall perceive that the task set for me is to discover the amount of truth there is in his position. And I shall be even more anxious to find out what error may lurk in my belief, than to ascertain what error may be in his.

Now the art of getting truth from others is one well worth studying-so few seem very deft in its practice. Conversation would appear to be the best method for receiving and imparting truth: debate and controversy almost invariably ending in driving people farther apart, instead of bringing them nearer together. Nobody can converse well, who is not above all things sympathetic,-not sentimentally sympathetic, merely, but intellectually so. One must have the power, for the nonce, to put oneself in another's place, to take another's standpoint, to see with another's eyes, in order fairly to understand and appreciate, and do reasonable justice to, another's opinions. Of course this cannot be done entirely, nor is it necessary; but it can be done approximately and effectually,-and it must be, if one would either get or give the truth. By a calm, modest, gentle manner, we must put the person at ease with whom we talk; we must assist him to think and speak his best. If we ruffle, or disconcert, or distemper him, his command over himself, his power to express himself well, is instantly gone. We must listen respect-fully and encouragingly; this is a wonderful help to any one who is trying to utter himself, and is a rare accomplishment among talkers. If we think we know more about the subject in hand than the one with whom we converse, we must be careful that we do not show this consciousness, that our manner is not in the least arrogant or supercillous. If our knowledge really is superior, let it manifest itself in all modesty and kindness; only thus can even supe-riority command respect. We must not get impatient with our interlocutor, nor press our lance too rudely against any weak joint in his armor. We must show him the infirmity of his argument and the untenableness of his position in such a friendly though clear way, that he will be glad to recognize it and yield the point without shamefacedness or attempt at wilful defence. If there is any heat on either side, any friction of controversy, any pride of reason, at once does truth veil her face and retire from the scene.

How increasingly small do we find the number with whom it is profitable to converse, simply because the requisites to a true conversation are not present to temper the spirit on both sides! The dogmatist, the egotist, the opinionated fellow, the self-asserting man, cannot converse; he can only "argue" till doomsday, making himself more narrow, and nobody else any more enlightened. The controversies that take place in public,-in the newspapers and on platforms, -as a rule do not result in making truth conspicuous and luminous, but in drawing lines between partisans, and establishing "sides." Even in private circles, not impossibly in radical clubs, the spirit of debate and combat is apt to appear, setting minds awry, distorting judgments, hardening opinions, obscuring perceptions, and creating chaos generally. Of course, the great Genius of the universe knows how to wrest good out of evil and truth out of error, and is never floored by the most disadvantageous circumstances; he is equal to turning all human asininity into some sort of gain to each and every one. But we cannot help wishing that we all were more docile to the unseen hand that guides, and that we might step along more amiably together in the path that leads to truth.

Any one who has everentered into the spirit of a true conversation with another knows how, at such a time, the beavens open and the horizon expands; how the vision clears, the thought kindles, and the emotions sweep grandly upward; how one surprises oneself with the new and fine things that one says under the genial stimulus of such unwonted intercourse; and how, in short, the time and the place of such conversation become memorable and glorious, and the mind and heart equally years for the occasion to be oft repeated. A. W. S.

ENFORCED ABSURDITIES.

The appended clipping from a newspaper gives a good illustration of the case with which well meaning people fall into absurdity when they abandon the plain ground of reason for the fanciful ways of sentiment. The piece is so remarkably preposterous that I at first took it to be satirical. But two or three friends to whom it was shown, one of them a devout Episcopalian, expressed their belief in its genuineness, and regarded it as an honest account of the rules by which good ritualists conducted themselves. And why not? Once concede the sanctity of a rite, and you must concede the reasonableness of the most minute regulations made for the purpose of guarding that sanctity from violation or neglect. No care can be excessive; no punctiliousness can be exaggerated; overmuch righteousness is impossible. The casuistry of the Scribes, the scrupulosity of the Pharisees, the pettiness of the priests in all ages and all churches is justifiable, commendable, and even imperative. If the risk of giving offence by dipping the monstache into soup and coffee is great, how much greater the risk of giving more mortal offence by allowing the pendent hair to draggle in the cup which contains no festive wine, but the Redeemer's purifying blood ! And what absolute insensibility to the preciousness of the divine ichor is manifested by those who suffer its drops to be absorbed by the gauzy veil designed to protect a dainty complexion from the rays of the sun, or to enhance the charm of a skin-deep beauty, or by the soft cambric, the portage whereof suggests uses even less mathetic! If our ritualist friends are sincere they will presently carry their reverence for sacred, things much further than these very mild rules prescribe. They will forbid any but consecrated hands to touch the chalice, and will avoid contamination by the insertion of a nonconducting substance in the stem of the cup. They will contrive a method by which the contents of the holy goblet and the consecrated paten may be passed into the recipient's interior without touching the lips that profane the Redeemer by so many light words and so many passionate klases. The ingenious device of imitating the form of the cross by the position of the hands when the Body of Christ is taken would be improved on by opening the mouth, and shutting the eyes, and letting the priest drop the mysterious morsel upon the tongue. The non sequitur of the last provision need not be insisted on. The priest probably intends to say that the partaker, being unworthy to gather up the crumbs from the Lord's table with the profane touch of fingers, should stoop the head and take the particles up on the tip of the tongue already sanctified by contact with the transmuted bread. A more proper way would be for the priest to collect them himself, at the instant of their falling, and offer them to the next recipient in order.

We are quite serious. If the first principles of the ritualists are correct, a scrupulosity is demanded of them which these few rules feebly express. They are but on the threshold of their formalities. Their reproduction of the Ages of Faith is in its infancy. Nay, they must outdo the Ages of Faith by the additional minuteness which the perfection of modern expedients supplies. The resources of chemistry in our age will certainly assist them in their endeavor to convey the divine elements to the recesses of unregenerate man in a less bungling manner than was practised five centuries ago. Neither they nor the hair-splitters in theology have any right to hesitate on the ground that their directions and definitions, their sentimental or theological fraisse, their delicate shades of faith and observance, may seem ridiculous to people of ordinary common sense. They will, as matter of course. But the more they do, the more certainly will they be in accordance with the demands of a supernatural religion. 0. B. F.

BITUALISM IN BOSTON. Directions to Communicants.

The following printed directions furnished to communicants at the ritualistic Church of the Advent, in

Google, Google

Boston, will give a clearer idea of what ritualism is than could be imparted in an elaborate essay on the cannot conveniently come fasting on Sunday, come on a week day. "2. It is good to prepare one's self for receiving, or to return thanks after receiving, by being present during a celebration of the Holy Communion with-out receiving. "3. Come up to the altar rails as soon as the priest turns round to the people, after making his own com-munion.

476

munion.

4. Kneel near the middle of the altar rail if there

"4. Kneel nearsthe middle of the altar rail if there are only a few communicants. "5. Your hands ungloved; ladles' veils uplifted, otherwise they sweep the rim of the challce. "6. Receive the Body of Christ in the paim of the right hand, supported by the left, crosswise, and so raise it to your lips. "7. When the priest returns the challce, do not bend down; keep your head erect and unmoved. If need be, gently raise it with your hand on the stem. "8. Getlemen will take care that their moustaches do not enter the challce. "9. Do not put your head down suddenly after receiving the Precious Blood, or you might strike tho challce from the priest's hands. "10. Do not use a handkerchief to wipe the lips, after receiving."

"10. Do not use a handwerchiet to whet the tips, after receiving. "11. If, by any misfortune, a crumb should fall, plek it up, remembering that 'we are not worthy so much as to gather up the crumbs from the Lord's table."

Some uninitiated person remarks that the reason given for the concluding direction is a very next example of a non sequitur.

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical rrors. The ulmost cars will be taken to avoid them; but ereafter no space will be spared to Errata.

N. B.— Articles for this department should be SHORT, and rition only on one side of the sheet. N. B.— Illegibly written articles stand a very poor chance of witcation.

PAREER MEMORIAL AND PARKER'S MEMORY:

THE SPIBITUALIST CONVENTION.

BY BISHOP FERRETTE.

BY BISHOP FERRETTE. On September 17, having heard that the Spiritual-ist Convention would hold its meetings in Parker Me-morial Hall on that and the two foilowing days, and having never been at a Spiritualist Convention be-fore, I went there in due performance of my duty of seeing and hearing everything. I like that hall for its quiet surroundings, for its harmonious simplicity, for the support, and mellowness, and distinctness that its acoustic dispositions give to the voice, and for the name that it bears. I have preached from its deak, and sat on its seats to hear Samuel Longfellow's beautiful, liberal sermons, delivered in that asintly manner which is his. Thinking of holding afternoon services this winter alternately in French and Eng-lish, the idea of Parker Memorial was the first that upgested itself to me as that of a natural spiritual home. But I confess that my notions of the deco-rum of the place, and of general decorum, were put is and simply when I willowsed the proceedings of the Similar Schlener: Langer Schlener Schlener and the section of the place is the superior of the section of the section of the social system of any nation, what would the results be? I will talk of things plainly, leat the self-sivled reformers should imagine that it is out of blushing shyness that I am afraid of embracing their views. The first result of promiscuous sexual inter-course would be universal national syphilis, which can only be kept from propagating by limiting each person to one of the other sex. The second result would be to make childhood a hell, the difficult rela-tion existing among us between children of different beds being made the rule instead of the exception, and the family circle, with its holy and blessed asso-ciations, being utterly exploded. Happly there would not be many children, for Nature would abriak from propagating the race under such condi-tions. There would not be many children, because most of them would be killed or aborted by unnat-ural parents. Conjugal love and parental love are two correlative things; and those who are deprived of the faculty of sticking to one husband or wife for life are also deprived of that love of progeny without which they cannot, as an ordinary thing, bring chil-dren to the age of men and women, to be in their turn good fathers and good mothers. A nation of free lovers would therefore in a short time come to extinction for lack of progeny. That lack of progeny would also be insured by the fact that none but old and disappointed people could ever become free lov-ers. Young people, who have in them all the fresh-ness of beart, and before them all the prospects of life, inow better than to become free lovers. The noble young man aspires to win a fair maiden, and make her his forever. He sees no happiness what-ver in a love or in a possession, of the perpetuity of which there should be the least doubt. The torment of that doubt would be hell itself. The fair maiden, likewise, wishes to be won forever or not at all. The Convention was prefirmently one of grayof that doubt would be hell itself. The fair maiden, likewise, wishes to be won forever or not at all. The Convention was preëminently one of gray-haired men and women; but youth, whose business love is, will not have free love on any account, unless driven to it by force. It is true that our reformers demand to be entrusted with the control of youth, but, it had better provisorily remain with those who have it. Our present social system, with all its blun-ders, and the misery and corruption to which they lead, preserves, in principle at least, a tradition of purity which free love knows not. The radical vice of our civilization, the one which makes prostitution and conjugal misery inherent to purity which free love knows not. The radical vice of our civilization, the one which makes prostitution and conjngal misery inherent to it, lies in our false notions as to the importance of the fact of puberty and the proper age of majority. Prevented from marrying, or interfered with in their love affairs, at an age at which parental control should have legally ceased, our youth are driven to sinfui alternatives not better than free love, and not worse either. This would not cease to be the case, did the law fix their majority at an earlier age, and not provide that the education of every male, prior to that age, should include a self-supporting industry. A man, young or old, who is not able by his labor to support a family, has no right to have it; and if he wastes his life in vice, that evil, however great, is less great than the crime of begetting children to be help-less paupers. But in a properly constituted society there would be no such alternative. Its presence is the evil that we have to reform; and this reform is to be in a direction opposite to that suggested by free lovers. It is the obstacles to early, and wise, and virtuous maringe, not to promiscuous intercourse, that we want to remove. Our return to the princi-ples of Nature in this respect will be a complete op-eration, not to be executed in one day. But to deny the possibility of establishing society on those princi-ples would be frivolous, in presence of the fact that such a type of society is the only one in existence among Eastern Christians. The idea of a social con-stitution like that of Yopish and Protestantcountries, where big girls old enough to be mothers play with doils inetend of with bables, and where young men stitution like that of Popish and Protestantcountries, where big girls old enough to be mothers play with dols instead of with babics, and where young men wasts their strength in self-abuse or libertinism in-stead of begetting children, would appear to them as strange as would be the sight of the whole people of a city walking on the sidewalks on their hands with their feet upward.

"I'm not a chicken : I have seen Many a September gale"

<text><text><text><text>

a city walking on the sidewalks on their hands with their feet upward. Through early and chaste marriage alone will Nat-ure consent indefinitely to perpetuate a race. Make marriage late, or substitute for it concubinage, or free love, and a race comes to an end; and what will then become of the theories of its pretended reform-ers? Their houses, fitty years hence, will be occu-pied by the children of their Irish servants of to-day, who have less of such theories. What I say here is not limited to free lovers what I say and cynically such. Their errors are secretly be-lieved and acted upon by increasing multitudes of all ranks and of all outward forms of bellef. About this great system of corruption, "mum" is the fashion-able word of order. Christ exorcised the dumb devil out of one man; who shall exorcise him out of a whole body social? The worst part of the task is not that of dealing with the possessed man who has already begun to speak. With him we can argue at least.

Let then free lovers, or Spiritualists (if that be the name), be met with argument, and that even in Parker Memorial Hall, if they, in future occasions, will use it so as not to make a serions speaker ashamed of his presence there. But in meetings conducted as that at which I was present they will run, indeed, very little risk of refutation, whether they be held in Parker Memorial Hall or elsewhere. If the Hall Committee at all foresaw what was to take place, on what grounds could they have permitted their hall to be used in this manner? On the ground of liberty of speech? I know that they profess in this respect very liberal principles; and if their liber-aword. I will only suggest that the Hall drop Parker's name. Would Theodore Parker, if yet allve, be seen in his own hall while thus occupied? His widow, Let then free lovers, or Spiritualists (if that be the who is living among us surrounded with our respect, certainly would not. But if the considerations were that the Hall is not yet paid for, that a heavy deb hangs upon it, and that money must absolutely be raised, let the Committee rather go to the public for it. If, to make a picture of the extremities to which they have been reduced, they will only read some abridged report of the proceedings of the late Spirit-malist Convention, they will certainly excile sympa-thy. After sll, the Parker Memorial case is not an isolated one. The Christian Church also would be more creditable to the memory of her hero than the is, had she not to let herself out to the world for a living.

It is due to the Committee of the Hall to say that their undoubted reason for letting it on this occasion was their willingness and desire to encourage free dom of speech. Was it not a right of the free loven to be allowed freedom of speech? Unquestionably, Then the Committee did well in not refusing them the use of the Hall for their Convention. There the responsibility of the Committee ended. If the various speakers, or any of them, violated the laws of purity or decorum in what they said, upon themselves must rest the blame of the offence. We attended one evening session of the Convention, and, while the ideas broached were sufficiently distasteful to us on grounds of reason and common sense, we ought to ear witness that we heard no obscene language used that evening. Let this distinction be borne in mind: the Committee did right, on every principle of true liberalism, not to refuse their Hall to this Convention, while the officers and speakers of the Convention itself must bear all blame for whatever bad thing was said or done at the meetings. Last year we felt called upon to criticise respectfully the refusal of this Hall by the Committee to Mrs. Woodhull; now we fee) called upon emphatically to approve their granting of it to the free-love Convention. This we do without the least approval of free-love as a social theory; and we add that the Spiritualists as a body ought not to be considered free-lovers. Nay, we add that espousal of free-love notions ought not to be a ground of personal censure at all; personal immorality alone can justify that. "By their fruits shall ye know them"-not their speeches.-ED.]

SECRET ORGANIZATION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21, 1874.

EDITOR INDEX: Dear Sir,-Your correspondent in THE INDER & Sept. 3 favors a secret organization of Liberals. While agreeing with him as regards the isolation of many who favor free thought on religious subjects, I would express myself as opposed to secret organiza-tions. tions.

tions. Is not the outspoken advocacy of faith in humanity as opposed to faith in Evangelical Christianity what is most needed among those of liberal views? And will not the forming of secret societies by us tend to lessen the open advocacy of liberal views in the same ratio as it increases our earnestness to build up he society, leaving to it the open, manly work we as indi-viduals should do?

And there were danger, also, that our minds would be closed to free inquiry, if such inquiry in any way might hurt our society. Looking back but a short time, and remembering the influence of the A bolitonists, who were particu-larly outspoken, we should be reminded that those who favor free thought should be opposed to serve who have rive inought should be opposed to serve organizations. We ought to be ready at all times to receive new light, even should such light carry ne back to the old faith and not forward; and I cannot feel that free in-guiry could be materially benefited by secret societies. Just at this time the whole world is commenting on Professor Trudall's late address, which surely would influence very few if he were the exponent of a secret society.

society.

society. I am glad you wrote that all your instincts are op-posed to secret organizations, for any other view would seem unworthy of THE INDEX. But if it were proposed to form social societies for a free and open exchange of views on all subjects of interest, such idea, I think, would meet with general favor among Liberals. There are many place where the known Liberals are too few to form Liberal Leagues, and therefore we who live in such places must content ourselves without meeting our friends in council. Better "isolation" than secret societies in times of peace; for the moment we cease bearing our test-mony for the truth openly, we become less manly. Yours truly, A.

NORTH COLLINS YEABLY MEETING-BES-OLUTIONS ON MARBIAGE, etc.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19, 1874.

F. E. ABBOT: My Friend,—In THE INDEX I see the "social ques-tion" sometimes discussed; of which I make no com-plaint. I thank you for your strong and clear expos-ure of so-called, but miscalled, "social freedom" not long ago. We need the gospel of self-control, and the higher harmony and purity that go with it, not of self-indulgence. We need a clear and high ideal of the sanctity of marriage,—the life-long union of one man with one woman, in which each devotes soul and F. E. ABBOT:

person to the other in mutual and reverent love, guided by wisdom, and which banishes all wish for "variety." This is the demand of man's nature, and the higher our culture, the more perfect our develop-ment, the more will this demand be met. This union must be openly and publicly recognized, for the com-mon good and for that order which is "heaven's first law," and for this recognition, and the regulation of duties and responsibilities which grow out of mar-riage, we want have, just and equal, and always shall. For the frailties and mistakes of poor humanity we need provision, and so need divorce; but the ideal of the lasting marriage must rule for best results. I look upon woman suffrage as the only hope for the repeal of the present injustice of marriage laws, and especially for the framing of statutes which shall pro-tect the perion and the materialy of woman from the sarred name of marriage. At North Collins, Erie County, New York, in August, was held the "Yearly Meeting of Friends of Progress"—a large and influ-ential gathering, mostly of Spiritualists, for free dis-cussion. This question came up, and was fully dis-cussion. This question came up and was fully dis-cussion. This subject, were heard by fif-cussed, with a fair hearing of various views. The resolutions I give, as a contribution toward the best thought on this subject, were heard by fif-teen hundred persons, and the vote was hearty and unanimous from all parts of the andience with but a single "no." "Resolved, That we earnestly favor woman suffrage as just and as a help to higher civilization; and espe-cially do we feel the need of woman as a law-maker with man, that our marriage laws, so largely based on the faischood of woman's subjection, may give place to laws inspired by the idea of her equality, under which there shall be personal liberty, protection for the sanctity of maternity, and equal property-right— all helping to a higher sacredness of home and family, and to a decrease of vice and licentiousness, both in and out of marriage.

and to a decrease of vice and licentiousness, both in and out of marriage. "Resolved, That, while we believe in monogamic marriage, we believe in divorce as an escape from crueity and crime, and a relief from the sad mistake of an unhappy and loveless union." These represent the convictions and matured thought of a large company of intelligent and liberal men and women.

men and women

Truly yours, G. B. STEBBINS. TEMPERANCE ONCE MORE.

TEMPREANCE ONCE MORE. EDITOR OF THE INDEX: My Dear Sir,—Since I have been a subscriber to THE INDEX. I have been much interested in the va-rious subjects on which it treats, and while finding much to agree with, I find something to which I am compelled to object. The attitude of yourself and of most of your correspondents on the temperance question has so far been of the latter class. With the general drift of your lecture published in the paper of August 20, I fully agree; while I think the principles you so strongly recognize may be ap-piled in a manner different from that which you so rigorously advocate. I as the rise of the temperance movement in the United States, and have been an outspoken advocate of it in principle and practice for forty years. I have always been able to act with all classes of the real friends of the cause in every practical effort to over-of it in principle and practice for forty years. I have always been able to act with all classes of the real friends of the cause in every practical effort to over-throw the enemy against which we have so long had, and still have, to contend, while I have not always been in agreement with the methods adopted, as the most likely to secure success. But I would have temperance succeed, by any method which any class of workers have thought proper to adopt, if only such method can accure success. method can secure success, method can secure success. Belleving intemperance to be the greatest evil ex-cept supersition that has ever corsed mankind since the first husbaadman drank of the vine and was drunken, I will help and encourage every class of temperance men and women to try their plan, while I plainly set before them the only method which to my understanding can ever cause the curse to disap-pear. Desr.

Perhaps I shall not be considered a true man by Perhaps I shall not be considered a true man by those of your school, as you say that no true man can follow parties until parties follow right principles, stc.; but although I should be found in the minority in the taking of the vote by which the majority de-cided the drinking of alcoholic beverages to be uni-versally a sin (for I do not so believe, and I never knew such a vote to be taken where I have belonged), still I do hold it to be universally unsafe, and I can est with the majority is a still when the avil still I do hold it to be universally unsafe, and I can act with the majority in striving to put away the evil from the land. Although it is inconsistent and ab-surd for Christians to take such a position, yet there is asfety in abstinence, and no certain safety without it, as the observation of my whole life has taught me to believe; and I am not responsible for the incon-sistencies of those who pronounce judgment against the practice of the Master whose disciples they pro-fees to be. to be. less the practice of the Master whose disciples they pro-fess to be. You are perhaps right in saying, "Nothing is more unjust or more harmful to the temperance cause than heated denunciations of strictly temperate men under the name of moderate drinkers, as the worst enemies of the temperance cause;" but I think absti-nence to be the safer and therefore the better principle. For myself I never feit any danger, but for the sake of and to help to save my fellow-men, I will abstain, and try to persuade others to do the same. Your idea of the true temperance principle is the one that prevsiled in the world from the days of Noah until the close of the first quarter of the present considered in danger and sought to save, while his countenance was flushed, and his eyes bloodshot, and his step unsteady, from the wine he had taken, who did not use the same argument, and thought he such young man was to be saved, it was only by tak-ing the piedge of abstinence, and adhering to it; and, although there have been many beckslidings and much failing away, thousands have stood who could not have stood upon the principles you advocate, be-cause their strength of will was not equal to their understanding.

not have stood upon the principles you account their cause their strength of will was not equal to their understanding. Men accustomed to drink, and loving the indulg-ence, will not take the piedge, unless they feel them-selves in danger and wish to escape from it; and it is too often, sias, that they are found not able to stand. No one is compelled to take the piedge: each one does it of his or her own free will, either for the asfety of self or to help to save others. If a man feels it to be a fetter, and that he has cast away his moral freedom, he has only to choose whether he will be free from the self-imposed restraint, or be free from the bond-age of a ruinous self-indulgence. I am not able to perceive any greater moral bondage in a piedge than in a resolve not to do a special set without signing his name to a paper containing such a promise; for the one is in reality as much a piedge as the other, only the one is made to himself, the other to his peers, and the violation of the one is equally as bad as the other.

beers, and the violation of the one is equally as bad as the other. Yet I would not condemn the man that is temperate merely because he does not pledge himself, although I should feel that he would help to promote the cause more by doing so than by refusing. You say, "There are not a few persons that are greatly templed to do what they are prohibited from doing, and sometimes they go and do it just to get rid of the offensive prohibition." Such a person has lost his manliness any how; and if there is so much "hu-man nature, which every lover of his race should strive to elevate above so mean a motive. Again: "The pledge once broken, the sacred sentiment of self-re-spect is so fearfully injured that many a poor fellow straightway rushes headlong into the wildest exces-ses, believing that all hope of salvation is gone"— and he would have done the same had he taken no pledge, for such a mind would not have strength to stand without it. I admit that "moral means alone can lay the foun-dation of a true reform;" and, as I do not wish to be to farther consideration of the subject to an-other time in which I will consider your other objec-tions to the temperance party. Yours in behalf of all real reforms, tions to the temperance party. Yours in behalf of all real reforms, D. S. GRANDIN, UPPER GLOUCESTER, Maine.

We have read Mr. Grandin's article with great respect, and thank him for the extremely gentlemanly way in which he controverts our position .- ED.]

THE NORTHUMBERLAND SOCIETY.

NOBTHUMBERLAND, PR., Sept. 8, 1874. EDITOR OF INDEX:

NORTHUMBELGAND, Pa., Sept. 8, 1874. EDTO OF INDEX: Dars Sir, — The concluding paragraph of a late ar-hyperbalance of the second sec

[The precise circumstances of this case are not familiar to us; but enough is stated above to show that the society at Northumberland dismissed their minister because they did not like his theological "views." On the Orthodox theory, this would be quite the ordinary course to take; but we hope our correspondent will pardon us for thinking that a Unitarian society, founded by a radical like Priestley, would have shown a greater fidelity to truth and spiritual free-dom, if they had not "declined to listen." We do not blame the society, because it is a Christian one; but the case is one more illustration of the incompatibility between Christianity itself and liberty of speech. No liberal can be satisfied with a society which "declines to listen" to any side of any ques-

A MANLY ACT OF SEPARATION.

16 MEDFORD SL, CHELSEA, Mass., | Sept. 25, 1874.

Sept 25, 1874. } EDITOR INDEX: My Dear Sir and Brother, --In requesting the pub-lication of the enclosed statement, I venture to solicit the advice and coöperation of your co-laborer, many of whoin have passed through the same flery ordeal that it has been my lot to encounter. I am also desir-ous of enjoying the privilege of replying to the vari-ous correspondents of the "religious press" who, I am informed, are busy in charging their heavy theo-logical guns to pour into, and if possible sink, the deserter who has dared to detach himself, and go able aid you have afforded during my three years' struggle for mental freedom by gratuitously sending me is copy of your invaluable paper, thus enabling me is copy of your invaluable paper, thus enabling me is copy of your invaluable paper, thus enabling me is copy of your invaluable paper, thus enabling me is copy of your invaluable paper, thus enabling that are fast revolutionizing the bigotry and super-sultion of the churches. I shall have much pleasure in corresponding with the friends and champions of free religious thought, feeling that a nineteen years' ministerial experience in the Close Communion Baptist ranks may not prove unincreasing. Believe me faithfully yours. Bay me faithfully yours. Bay in the first Union Association, East Slough-ton, Mass. EDITOR INDEX:

ton, Mass.

The following document was read by me at the Conference of Baptist Ministers in Tremont Temple, last Monday, Sept 21:-

be preased to give user the letter of commen-ment. I also beg to inform you that the letter of commen-dation and dismissal from the pastorate of my last charge, the Calvary Baptist Church, Westerly, R. I., now in my possession, will forthwith be returned to that body together with a copy of this notice. EDWARD F. STRICKLAND. BOBTON, Mass., Sept. 21, 1874.

CONSTANCY OF MORAL FORCE.

The constancy or persistence of matter, in all its varied changes, was a magnificent guess in ancient, days. Modern observation and experiment have verified the guess, and extended it to force, proving that the various modes of motion always produce the same total, however different forms may vary in amount. amount

A further extension of the same principle into the

A further extension of the same principle into the sphere of morals seems possible; and what is true of carbon and iron, heat and electricity, may be also true of moral forces, good and evil. The constancy of enjoyment of life can be noticed in the cases of insects, and the domestic animals; which in proportion to capacity seems to be as great as in man, the climax of the series. Evolution of form and mind may be unlimited, but the evolving intellect no more than keeps pace with the evolving universe; the hind wheels of the wagon never overtake the front ones, no matter how con-stant and rapid their motion may be. And all per-vading truth in Nature seems to be that nothing shall be received that shall not be paid for; there are no gratuities, and no wrong has been doue in leaving so much earth to remain earth, and making a little of it into men. into men.

Into men. All expectations of millennial bliss and perfection seem absurd in this view; for all that a philanthro-pist does here is balanced by what a blackguard does elsewhere; each develops his individual nature, and elsewhere; each neverops are the second reading of the second and state of the second read of the second se nal motion.

MONTREAL, Canada.

As TRRECONCILABLE, under the title "Wanted, an Englishman," pitches into the corporation of inform-of vice. "If I were asked on my conscience what I believe to have been among the most frightful cor-puters of the human mind and heart, what particu-ar corrupters of acciety have most frequently made and hame certain theological doctrines, and certain exclaim in anguish. Can there be a good God ? I believe to have been among the most frequently made and the section of the section of the section of the exclaim in anguish. Can there be a good God ? I believe that certain ac-called religious ways of local guestions have been, and still are, incalculably worse hindrances to human well-being than all the coarse imprises that ever provoked socie-tiant of those suppressors would only help, or at least would not hinder, the access of daylight to the daylight would prove itself the natural purifier and sweetener, and we should get rid, without union 2 000

Distance by

HE INDEX-OCTOBER 1, 1874.

Advertisements.

THE PATRONAGE

A the liberal advertising public is respect-tive solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-tion of the INDEX is entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medum which shall be not only profitable to its parrons, but also worthy of their meet generous support. To this end, all improper or "Dilnd" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be frandalent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

ADVERTISING BATES.

For I to	12	Insertions,	100	per	line.
46 94 46	20	66	e l	46	44
$4 58	~~	66	5	66	66

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cath is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

TO ADVERTISERS

The following states the experience of a successful Bookseller who has advertised in

maccessful Bookseller who has advertised at THE INDEX-TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1872. TO THE INDEX Asso., Toledo, O.: Gendeman, -Maving had occasion to adver-tise in your paper during the past two years oute largely, I take pleasure the stain ; that I have always obtained very satisfactory re-turns-better in fact than from book adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ate results, but orders have frequently been advertisement, showing that your paper is ker to file and referred to by your readers. Yours truly. HENARY S. STEBENS.

Special arrangements will be made at reduced terms for long-time or extended advertisements. Address

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE,

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, bas been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to and political amelioration of society. nd to apply it directly to the social

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors :--

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng

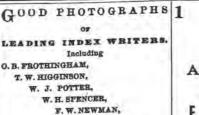

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-alism. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearcest, most candid, and most scholarly ex-position of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the aremcans of becoming well informed of the arguents and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost avery number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

one year's subscription. Frof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in heter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1813, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be feit in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country.-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germány; though the number of so-called religitous or the slogical periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." DEX with increasing interest." Sond $1.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three othe on trial Address

THE INDEX No. 1 Tremont Place, Bosto

CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT,

Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 20 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photographs, $1.50.

ŵ.	1.1	Ad	drea	8,			TH	EI	IDR	x,
	1.	1	No.	1 17	emon	t Pla	ice,	Bost	ion,	Ma	88.
t	T	N	D	E	x	т	R	A	C	т	S.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price almost every word." 10 cents : 12 copies $1.00.

2 .- Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the ninetcenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cente; 12 copies $1.00.

io. 4.—Ohristian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts. No. 4. and Inte resting Extracts. Price 10 cents 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-""God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6 .- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pills bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-""Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cente; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.—The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.—The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real infinence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Bomanism Real Christianity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

io. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes No. 13. the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect : that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are indecidate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Beligion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass. THE INDEX.

8

A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

47 No. 1 Trem nt Pla tee, Besten. RDITOR:

INDEX ASSOCIATION,

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MES. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

- To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:
- To substitute knowledge for ignorat for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish sch
- In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig-ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of bumanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the pratical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur ose of securing the more complete and con-intent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring then into harmony with the National Constitution To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organiz a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by belping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pr per or essay of a thoughtful character, i each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. Regular editorial contributions will continue to be furnished by the well-known em inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high poslready done so much sition. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a London LETT containing matters of general interest to rad Ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-Ince a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

OF THE

4. PUBLICATIONS.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Religious Association was organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. S Froi-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucreis Mot. Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Sig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by img, 1869. Bo conta. Contains easys by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and E-straint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Deston, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains easy by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the by O. B. Frothingham on the "fees of he Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheeve on "Ra-ligion as a Social Force, aspecially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F.E. Abbot on "The Future of Religio Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sciences" the Age;" an essay by Samuel Joinson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Fermaneat and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by and Progressive Liemenis of Solammedanian, " by Wm. H. Channing on "Mohammedanian," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligious of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Religious Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calthrop, Nature and others. Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains easays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion an the Expression of a Permanent Sentin of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meet-Proceedings of Sixth Annual Mesi-ing, 1873. S5 cents. (Four or more, # Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannet, Robert Dais Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longis-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lo-create Met cretia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains terdation reports of President Frothingham's address on (The Validate Proceedings reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essayon "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Eabbi Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Jud-ism," and of the statements by Mesns. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higgioson of their ra-spective attitudes towards Christianity-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Ex-tra-Christian," --together with the Secret-ic Annuel Report, and letters from Keshry's Annual Report, and letters from Keshub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. Wasson

Sympathy of Religions, by T. W. Elg-ginson. 25 cents.

Beligions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jss. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

..... These publications are for sale at the These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tr-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1888 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 in quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dreased either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Becretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTRE, See. F. E. A. POPULAR BOOKS. Historical Pictures Relouched; a Volume of Miccellanias. In two parts. Part L., "Studies, Pictures, and Pancies" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, being a Practical Illustration of "Woman's Bighes to Labor". SENT BY MAIL 47 PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. NO EITRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other DBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH. Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Woman, Two Tols is (NOUSER M). LINE WORDED. Two Bospies Skotches and Camp and Fireside Skotches An Old Fashioned Girl. Little Men. My Boys, Sc. Shawi-Strape of Experience. 3.00 1.50 1.50 1.00 1.00 1.00 ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. LSO ABNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-Clam 2.00 New Poems 2.00 Literature and Dogma. 1.59 1.25 RACON'S Easays ...... BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of Compendium or represented in a first state of the second state of BABTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams, 2.50 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations .......... 1.00 a at its the base of the second state of the s .50 .50 .25 Control Onloin in an above case in the provide the second of the Education of American Girls. C. The Education of Ecology of the Start Sta UECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 3.25 UCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the satire work, with a complete index. 2 vols..... work, with a complete inder. 2 vola..... ARLYLE'S Works, Chespedition. Compris-ing the following: Mincellancous Essays, -rols, Prench Rorolution, J volits Essays, et he Gross Mitter Statement the the State State Statement in Present, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; John Sterling, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Patt in Present, I vol.; Horces and Hero Wor-hip, I vol.; Lafter Day Pamphiets, I vol. uny volame sold separately. 3 vola. Loa-loa, BT-3. Per vol. An and the Study of its Morbid Condi-ions and the Study of its Morbid Condi-ions and the Study of its Morbid Condi-ions. EVANTES' Don Quinote ..... 1.5 ANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per-tet Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited out his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. enry Channing. 1.0 ANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thorean: be Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse. 1.00 ENEY (Mus. E. D). Pationce. A Series Thirty Games for the Pireside. 1.00 real Games. A new Series of Games for Parties. uniform with Patience. 1.00 ity Williams, the Mountain Gtrl. Illus-1.56 REE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great .... 3.00 ns Sense in Religion ..... RKE (Dr. E. H.) Sez in Education .... 1.2 DD (EDWAED). The Childhood of the World manz, M.D. 1 vol. UURE DEMANDED BT MODERN E; its Ture Ains and Requirements wrice of Addresses. By Tyndall, Hux-Whewell, Paraday, Spencer, Draper, eon. Lycell, etc. Edited by Edward L. 200

1.50 JERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Taik, and other Papers. 1.50 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion. India. lated into English, with Analysis and Intro ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Orford, and Regius Pro fessor of Greek. Four vols...... KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Hum rous, ...... 2.00 LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in tus to Charlemagne. 2 vols...... 6.00 Society and Sources EVANS (E. F., Fh. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity, From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthoid Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 vols. 1.60 LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-dalam 7 or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.00 LONGPELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 2 vols PEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 2.00 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers.. 2.00 LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Postes for Children. .75 MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter. 1.50 MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education, 300 Annual Reports on Education, from 1859 to 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horsee Mann. 1.25 GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life..... Library and Social Judgmenta.... Creed of Christendom..... GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doc-uments, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grots. Second Edition. With Por-trait RAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter & Camp-Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland, Book II. In France. Thooghts about Art. The Ouknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters on Animals. 2.00 6.00 2.00 4.00 HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part S. Logical Lectures
 A WTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Hustrated Library Edition. Nine vola. Per vol.
 Twice-Told Tales.
 Mosses from a Od Manse.
 The Source Library and The Blithedale Emance.
 The Bours of the Seven Gables, and The Sour Image.
 The Marble Paun.
 The Marble Paun.
 The Surgitah Nuke-Books.
 The American Note-Books.
 Our Old Home, and Septimius Folkon. 2.00 HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Ont-Door Papers ... Malbons An Oldport Romance Army Life in a Black Segiment Atlando Essays... Oldport Days .... Oupport Days HOWELLS( WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-ding Journey Suburban Estables Suburban Estables A Chance Acquaintance and the other states of the state of the state of the states of the stat

Mans. (AROLINE H). The College, Market, and the Court; or, Woman's tion to Education, Employment, and anahip epresentative Government utoblography femorial Volume. His Life and Works...

PEOCTOF (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ours: the Flurality of Worlds stud-led under the Light of Each Mille Researches. With Colored Flates. Studie of Familiar Exasys on Scientific Subjects, Natural Phenomena. Series of Fapers on Planets and Michons. With Source 4.49 The Mill Flates and 24 Woodcuts. 4.49 The Mill Flates and 24 Woodcuts. 4.49 The Miller Flates and 24 Woodcuts. 4.49 The Studies of Millions, with Three Li-mat Photographs and muny Flates. Charts, of The Expanse of Heaven. 2.00 ROSSETTUC (CEDESTRY A. 0.1.4 Studies of Studies) 249 SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Hestwark Bodies. 5.00 SCHENCE PEINTERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Hugley, F.M.S., 59 2. Chemistry, By Prof. Rescoe. 50 3. Physics. By Balfour Shewart. With 1. Instructions. MILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help ..... 1.50 SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The THACKEBAT'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition. Complete in 8 volumes. Per vol.. 1.28 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Fundamils. The Virginians. Examond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellancous Writings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-picte its yeals. With new Fortyalt. Forvoi, 128 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-st English editions, with many additions, thus hading it. This or no she have been addition of the have been been been additioned for the late of the late of the late of the latmpieto Thackeray in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, éc. 2. Paris, and Linh Sketch-Books, éc. 3. Sucobs, Sketchen, Denis Durai, éc. 4. Four Gorgen, Humorien, éc. 5. Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre-printed Pieces. BAXTER'S (Mus. CELIA) Among the THOREAU'S (H. D.) Waldon; or, Life in the Wools in Field and Forest. Portrait. The Maine Woods. Cape Cod. Letters. 10 TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind. Primitive Culture. 3 vols. TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-Trobali (JUEN). Fartally as a Discov-erer. Fragmenta of Science for Unscientific Peo-ple. Light and Electricity Heat as & Mode of Motion. On Soura of Exercise in the Alps Heat as & Mode of Motion. Consol water Lectures on Light. Froceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tyndall. 1.00 TYTLER (SARAH.) Old Masters and their Pictures. Modern Painters and their Paintings..... 4.80 2.00 1.78 WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion ...... 1.50 Life of Theodore Parker, 2 vols....... 6.00 1.50 4.50 Washington and the Kavolubon WRITNEYS (Mrs. A. D. T.) A Sammer in Lealle Goldtbwaito's Life. We Give: A Hone Story Easl Folks. The Other Give. Fansies. A volume of Foems...... 1.50

> 1 Tremont Piace, Beston. Google

T

ADDRESS

HE INDEX,

480

2

ROWLAND CONNOR,	STUDENTS FITTED for any	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bons,
Having finished his engagement with the	College. Please address EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn.	Our organization some time since decided to di-	Sizes. Also Cotton-Beed Hullers. Hiustrat.
will answer invitations to rectard as income	CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT	roct its efforts for the present towards securing the
JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS. THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.	At home, make or female, 300 a work war- ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable asamption from Atdress, with six-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y.	Repeal of the Laws	TYNDALL'S ADDRESS. A very beat copy of Professor Tyndall'are- markable Address before the British Associa- tion on August 19. in namulation and a socia-
The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any	FREE DISCUSSION	whereby church and other corporate property is anjustly exempted from its share of the burden	large type and good paper, will be mailed postpaid on receipt of TWENTY-FIVE CAPT. Address
The bound volume of THE INDEX 107 107 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the porobaser's expense. A complete file for the year can be furnished in no other form. Address IT remont Place, Boston.	a. Is hold at HOSPITALLER HALL, 591 Washington Street, Boston. every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 548 and 749 P.M. All that relates to the Bellgtous, Political, and Social interests of mankind constitute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Kondulator Hall.	of taxation. As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	THE AMERICAN EDITION
A CHEAP OFFER!	Avapaalor intern	TRACT	MONCURE D. CONWAVE
A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to	WEST NEWTON ENGLISH		SACRED ANTHOLOGY
any address on the prepayment of 75 currs.	AND CLASSICAL SCHOOLThe twenty- first school year of this Family and Day School, FOB BOTH SEXES, will begin Wednes-	on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 77. We have already issued three editions, the	A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES,
Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass	day, September 16, 1874. For particulars address NATH'L T. ALLEN, Principal, West Newton, Mass.	last of which is nearly exhausted.	postpain on receipt of the price, $4.00.
THEINDEX	At home Saturdays. West Newton, Mass.	We desire soon to issue Another Large Edition	Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE,
IN ENGLAND.	TO NEWSPAPER	of this and other tracts on the subject, so	G. L. HENDERSON & CO.,
THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post	PUBLISHERS.	that we can place a copy in the hands of
to any part of the United Kingdom on re- ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen	Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone,	EVEBY VOTER IN THE STATE,	BANKERS, LEBOY, MINN.
Shillings.	or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers.	and generously to supply the calls for them in	Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N. T.
Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.	Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.	other States. To de this, we need funds; for, although we	Money Invested in First Mortgages on Im-
THEFREE	TO BOOK-BUYEBS.	have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston	Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad- vance, or ten per cent, annually in ad-
L OUNDAY ADVOCATE	Please examine the revised list of POPU- LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this	Leagne, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone,	free of expense to the Lopper
SUNDAY ADVOCATE.	THIS LIST will be furnished to order.	Will not, then, 7	ar the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular.
A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE- VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-	Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur- chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c.,	All Friends of the Movement	137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
. EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.	of any American or Fereign Book, can have		REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cent. interest, or
The objects of the League are to advocate	their orders promptly filled and their inqui- ries answered by addressing THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	come forward and help us with liberal donations ? We frequently receive communications from	Investments in Real Estate in Chings and vicinity.
the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-	BOUND VOLUMES OF THE	parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the	if judiciously made, are the best and safet modes of employing capital. The old aummer the running of cheap Sunday Ex- cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun- day Evenings for the People," and generally to promote everything conducive to rational	Round volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the	cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we ahall be pleased to furnish them at this price per	Real Estate and Loan Agency recreation on Sunday.	purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.60, $2,- 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective	thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-	08
London, England, and is conducted by an	are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent	ating them gratuitonsly throughout the country. Last winter this subject was brought be-	EENST PRUSSING, 143 BANDOLFE STREET Chicago (Established 1853),
the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall, London; Fred'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark	interest, and will furnish as instructive read- ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more	fore the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of	Guarantees perfect title and ample ascerity
H. Judge, Hampatead. The ANNULL SUBSCRIPTION for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one dollar (payable in advance). Address	valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes.		In all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand, is- terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission
THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE,	Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the	OF OD SDAFOS: LAXOS DAID. CC.
256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.	WARBEN'S		Orders of capitalists and real estate own- ers respectfully solicited.
CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.	TRUE CIVILIZATION.	Voice of the People, favoring justice and equity, should be dis-	REASONS FOR USING THE
PROPHETIC VOICES	Price 50 cents. PRACTICAL DETAILS,	tinctly heard. We shall soon he ready to send out	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
CONCERNING AMERICA. By CHARLES SUMMPR.	showing the workings of the	BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN,	It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally
Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por- trait, Crown 8vo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its literary and historical mer-	COST PRINCIPLE. Price 25 cents.	thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already doue so, to protest against this continued wrong.	adapted to hand or machine as. Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect its, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which	For sale by S. H. MORSE,	Let us make it	fraud, being not only shorter in length, bei a much finer size than they are represented
r. Summer was engaged before his death. "PROPHETIC VOICES" will be found of great	25 Bromfield St., Boston.	THE LARGEST PETITION	to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the fo-value to all who take an interest in the his- tory of our country, so full is it of passages	PERKINS'	ever presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating	reka Silk exactly as represented. Ivery spool is warranted, and the manufacture in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets,	ANTHEM BOOK !!	these petitions please	name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.
statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament- ed author has also given interesting sketches.	Price $1.50. $13.50 Per Dys. A new and excellent collection, by W. O. PEREINS. Will be warmly welcomed by	SEND IN THEIR NAMES?	RADICAL AND LITEBARY
Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. Address THE INDEX,	Choirs, as the anthems are not difficult, and are just what is needed for "Quaning" and	We would say, also that we feel deeply the need of	LECTURES
No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	"Voluntary" pieces. SONG MONARCH !	Other Organizations	DT
"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF	Price 75 Cents. Per Dozen, $7.50. The best book of the Senson for Singing		JOHN WEISS,
CONJUGAL LOVE."	The best book of the Season for Singing Schools. By H. R. PALMER assisted by L. O EMERSON, Music principally secular, and is of the most interesting character.	of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are	RADICAL. LECTURES. The Idea of Hereafter. An Act of Faith.
By Andrew Jackson Davis, Treatment of all the delicate and impor-	THE LEADER !!	these who are inclined to	Intelligence in Religion. Religion and Science.
	Price $1.38. $13.00 Per Dox. The New Church Music Book, by H. R.	Form a Liberal League,	Heart in Religion.
tank questions involved in Conjugat Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatics, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davisbas recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis- affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the availt, which sources with the world.	PALMER as listed by L. O. EMERSON, gentle- men whose provious books have been more successful than any others. Please examine.	we are ready to render such assistance as lies in	SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURES. FIRST SERIES.
affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed	AMERICAN SCHOOL	our power.	1. Cause of Laughter.
by all women and men. Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has	C READERS.	LIBERALSI	2. Irony and Humor. 3. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touchstons.
written a book this time that concerns every- body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their	IN THREE BOOKS. Price 15 cents, 50 cents, and 50 cents.		4. Ajar in Trollus and Cressids, 100 business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about	Perfectly adapted to graded classes, in Primary and Grammar Schools, By L. O.	If all will units and work, the results sought can be accomplished	5. Falstaff. 6. Hamlet. SECOND SERIES.
conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as	cessful use in the schools. Sold by all dealers. Either book sent post-	Address	1. The Woman of Shakspears.
attractive as a Delmonico bill of fareGold- en Age. Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-	paid for retail price.	BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,	2. Portia. 3. Ophelia. 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.
binding, SI. Postage free The trade cun	OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON.		6. " The tensors's Characters
plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing House" of A. J. DAVIS & CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City.	the second second	NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the	6. Contrast in Shauspeat Other WEIRE, Address JOHN WEIRE, Address St., Roston
A CONTRACTORY	711 BROADWAT, NEW YORK.	ELECUTIVE COMMITTEE,

•

owners Google

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

VOLUME 5.

ORGANIZE!

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1874.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—CONGINESS Shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of the people pasceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. BECTION 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an stablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or stablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; religing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the sore formance of any public or private duity, or rem-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or requirit, in consequence of any public or private duity, or rem-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or or the subject of religion. BECTION 2.—ON State bed may court of law or part of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions of the second section of this Article by appropri-tions.

GLIMPSES.

READ THE INSTRUCTIVE and incisive article on "The Two Hodges," on a following page.

THE BOSTON Radical Club will meet at Mrs. Sargent's, 13 Chestnut Street, on October 19, for its first session of the sesson.

THE RADICAL CLUB of Syracuse, New York, had a lively discussion over Tyndall's address on September 27. Messrs. Green, Mundy, Boynton, Calthrop, and others, took part in it.

"KICKING AGAINST THE PRICKS" is a Scriptural phrase which well characterizes the fate of the radicals at Saratoga. A less sacred but equally felicitous phrase is "fooling with the business end of a wasp."

THE SECOND RADICAL CLUB of Boston held its first meeting this autumn on September 28. It is intended to have a wider range of topics discussed than was the case last year. Professor Gunning will deliver a scientific lecture before this club on October 12.

THE WASHINGTON Chronicle says : "If thievery in journalism were punishable with death, we should be the sole surviving journalist of this unhappy country." When you hear an editor indulging in such language as that, clap your hands on your literary pockets, and think yourself lucky if you do not find them empty.

IN 1868, Bishop Reinkens (not then a Bishop) visited Rome, and was arrested for having a newspaper in his pocket! "Are you quite sure," queried the suspicious official, "that you are a born Catholic ?" "I am quite sure," was the impatient rejoinder, "that I was born a Catholic, but you are doing your best to render it doubtful whether I shall remain one."

AT THE CONVENTION of the Young Men's Christian Association, held at Germantown, Pa., on September 25, the secretary of the international committee reported 946 Associations in the Union, 48 of them possessing buildings valued at $200,000 each. There are 78 general secretaries giving their whole time and energies to this work. The numbers, wealth, and influence of the Young Men's Christian Association are rapidly increasing; while the liberals travel their separate ways like G. P. R. James's "solitary horseman."

WHILE THE Economic Science Section of the British Association, at their recent Belfast meeting, was discussing the relations of labor and capital, delegations from the workingmen of the place (who had been on a strike for seven weeks) and from their employers were present. The practical suggestions they heard led to a mutual understanding which terminated the strike. The next day work was resumed, and Professor Tyndall, in his closing address, had the pleasure of announcing the fact to the Associstion. "Religion" must yield to science the crown of pacificator!

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 250

Dr. BLAUVELT apparently thinks that Christianity could survive, even if the inspiration of the Bible should be given up as a lost dogma. Romanism might survive the loss, as it relies on perpetual inspiration through the Church and the Pope; but surely Protestantism loses all its "inspiration," if it loses the "inspired Bible." The Doctor's airy hope does not offset this candid and crushing admission : "Even in the judgment of multitudes of the most intelligent Christians living, therefore, it may be regarded settled that it will be utterly impossible to save the belief in so much as the leading supernat-ural features of Christianity, if, despite modern objections, the effort be made to save that belief by maintaining the Orthodox dogma of the inspiration of the Bible."

THE FOLLOWING DESPATCH to the Boston Journal bears date of September 20: "Henry L. Norman, once a Methodist preacher in London, has come to the United States as a missionary from the Mohammedan religion. After spending a week in this city he started last evening for Chicago. A reporter of a Sunday paper called upon him at the Windsor House yesterday and got from him the following recital of his errand: 'I have been sent here by a wealthy Mohammedan of Constantinople, who made his fortune in trade with England and America, and so became somewhat familiar with Christian countries. He was struck with the energy of Christians in spreading their religion, and being intensely devoted to his own faith, he became convinced that counter measures ought to be taken. He formed my acquaintance in London, and much of our leisure for months was spent discussing Mohammedanism. The result was I became a convert to his views. It would not interest you or the public to follow the operation of my mind all through this radical change of belief, but I assure you that I am now a firm, conscientious follower of the Eastern religion. That religion is not understood in Christian countries. If it was, it would make converts rapidly. Why, sir, you have probably no adequate estimate of the extent of Mohammedanism. Its followers number two hundred millions, spread over half a dozen Eastern countries.' "

THERE is a noble article in the Irish World of September 12, on "The South: Arrogance of the Ez-Slaveocracy." It counsels the South to come to its senses, stop its bloody blackguardism, and go to honest work; and it concludes with these ringing words: "Men of the South! awake to the requirements of the hour. Recognize the fact that the nation has passed through a revolution. Recognize the fact that the slave power was demolished and beaten flat to the ground, and that it can never more lift its iniquitous head. Cut yourselves loose from the trammels of the aristocracy. Cast away your own childish prejudices against the black man. It was the hand of the Omnipotent Gop that broke his fetters and liberated him! You are entered upon a new era. Advance in it in the newness of the spirit of our regenerated nation. Cherish the memory of your departed heroes, but do not fight for the shadow of the Lost Cause. Dismiss every lingering antipathy to the 'Yankees' -an antipathy which in the past was fostered by your old despisers, the slaveocracy. Clear away the débris of the broken-down walls of partition; go to work like honest men and reconstruct; and then our men of enterprise and our mechanics-a score of whom are worth a thousand of your 'gentlemen'will go down to you and cooperate with you, and will build you up to the glorious position which you are entitled to occupy." If our Catholic fellow-citizens obey the grand spirit of this whole article, they will have no warmer friend than THE INDEX.

Digitary of Google

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisona, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

aball cease. & We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited. S. We demand that the appointment, by the President of anip, scale be producted.

5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

the United States of by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.
We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abolished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and penalties of perjury shall be established in its stead.
We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforcement of the shole of the state of the state

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; TEXERFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-lives together under the following

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

AET. 1.-The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

and right. Arr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members. ART. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

ment. Age, 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be accepted delegates to the Natural Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. ART. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths rote of the members present at any reg-alar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two reeks previous to such meeting.

So far as I am concerned, the above is the platform of fur inverse. I believe in it without reserve; I believe that i will yet be accepted universally by the American people, a the only platform consistent with religious liberty. A liberal League ought to be formed to carry out its princi-Meria Lague ought to be formed to carry out its principles wherever half a dozon earnest and resolute Liberals at be got together. Being convinced that the movement o secure compliance with these just "Demands" must urely, even if slowly, apread, i hope to make Tars INDEX means of furthering it; and I ask the assistance and stive co-operation of every man and every woman who beeves in it. Multiply Liberal Leagues everywhere, and re-ort promptly the names of their Presidents and Secre-tries. Intolerance and bigotry will tremble in proportion s that list grows. If freedom, justice, and reason are 1914, let their organized voice be heard like the sound of any waters.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT. Editor. Borrow, Sept. 1, 1878.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT: PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION. ARTICLE 1.

The True Optimism. A DISCOURSE BY WM. J. POTTER.

"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."-Box. vill., 28.

In suppose that all popose to may though the formation of the same of Paul. Perhaps may popose to may people there on the suppose to may people there on frequent times when they are compelled to fount it, times, at least when "things" seem so drawing the suppose to may people to may any though the suppose to may the that everything in the world this moment is the best thing possible in the eye of Infinite Goodness would approve and with it to be, then,—to my mind, putimize most failes both the expression of me more than the expression of the expression expr ceived to harmonize as parts of one Ideal, and who study constantly to copy that ideal into character and life. In a word, all things work together for good to those who lone and aim at the good. The spirit of this aspiration and effort is the transmiting agency that converts the base elements of human error and wickedness into the pure coin of vitue. Those to whom this effort and aspiration are want ing, those whose look is downward, those whose as so in the direction of sensual aspiration are want ing those who find their most alluring solicitations in the direction of sensual aspiration to the bound in the chains of avarice and animalism, those who have given themselves up to false and vicious propensities and are making little or no struggle against them—these have no right to hope that things will in any way work together for their good the soliciting spirit of the Eternal Goodness mut which we cannot suppose is ever wholly cruhed out even of the worst of men, is somehow, somewher, aroused lato a positive purpose and endeavor, so that the solicy looks and reaches up again, will a mu the himself possessed of the faculty of making even the inself possessed of the faculty of making even the is and sorrows of his lot steps in his ladder heaven ward.

If we apply these principles to the problems of the horner, Look at the biotory of the human race. The work of progress has not been carried on by some prover hard resides and independent of the prove outside and independent of the prove outside and independent of the prove outside and independent of the prove that resides in the human faculties themselves that the divine purpose is unfolded, and the destiny sponded theory of the other that the divine purpose is unfolded.
And the setting the human faculties themselves that the divine purpose is unfolded, and the destiny sponded theory was also been concerned. "The dect are those who work." That is the modern interpretation of the Carity in this products in the store of the Carity in the modern interpretation of the Carity is the modern interpretation of the Carity is not small measure, pup the cooperation of the store of the carity is the modern interpretation of the Carity is not small is activities, and induge in print, resiles energies. The Hindu Brahms has a cooperation of the spont is cooperated by the theory is a companion of the goods through his giant is here work and its activities, and induge is a companion of the goods through his giant is here work and its activities, and induge is a companion of the goods through his giant is here were the truth was the old Greek legend which represented thereals as mounting to Olympus and beeming a companion of the goods through his giant is here were the truth was the old freek legend which represented with secting progress of the race the doing of a man on earch. If is true that is because here are gradually overruled for good, and the period which represent the bisitical progress of the race the doing of a man on earch. If is true has a proper developed with is because here are in the Christian Church. But see the part with a section of the goods through his giant is here of the section and the section and the period with represent of the section and the reside and with section and the section and the theory of its gradual evolution or of its creation by special acts, what a scene do we behold! How every-where into the web of existence ars woren inextica-bly the opposing elements of good and evil! Not only in our human life, but in the great world-expe-rience of which our human life is a part, the light and the shade are everywhere commingled. Light and the shade are everywhere commingled. Light and the shade are everywhere commingled. Light and ducath, reason and passion, justice and wrong, epiritual aspiration and animal specific, the attrac-tion of a mental ideal and the clog and weight of physical circumstance — thus everywhere are the world-elements matched in farce and persistent con-tention. Verily, from the very beginning of motion in the first plastic form that may be going on this mo-ment in any human breast, it is a "struggle for exist-ence," a struggle for existence under that law which recent sciency, with a narrower application, has styled "the survival of the fittest." What wonder if, in viewing this struggle, theologitank have felt themeelves obliged to conceive of an incarnate prin-ciple of evil in some stanic personage, or that phi-losophers have affirmed that the world is ruled by fate rather than by providence. But aclence itself, and in this very phrase, "euryleal of the fittest," is beginning to show us the mistake of both theologian and philosopher. For what means this "survival of the strongest, or the largest, or the forcest. Whole spe-cies of animals, hugger and mightier than any now axisting on the eact, have become extinct. Sarage races of men, persistent, sand strong, and derec, in ad-hering to their savage ways, have yielded to the milder maners of vicius indugence, has suc-cumbed again and again to the pleading voice of con-science and the refining influences of goodness. "Survival of the fittest." means, then, in the errulest individual passion or most degrading personal appe-tite, though it be the accumulated hereditary power of many generations of vicious indug Suprement and the necessitated slowness of the proc-ies. It is the pain incident to growth and birth. But good is the substance of the developing power it-elf; the vital essence in which the process of crea-ion began. More than condition or incident, it is hat which gives to the process impulse, direction, and goal and goal hat which gives to the process impulse, direction, and goal. And what is this but to say that there is a Provi-lence in the affairs of the world and in the affairs of ten? Literally a pro-videns—a foreseeing of, and a eneral aiming towards, an end. Not a Providence herely vouched for by questionable tradition, or sting on proof-texts that vanish before rational in-uity, but a Providence the existence of which is roved by the irrefragable testimony of science. Not a kind of Providence which is supposed to inter-eme in the affairs of life in special emergencies, and home at every pleading desire that man may lift to a sties for personal relief from some pain or peril, ut a Providence immovably established in the very rice, law, life of the universe itself.—a Providence, trough all the ages and epochs of the past as in the fesent, ever educing good out of ill, and in the hu-an world doing this by the successful incarnation ' its purpose in the hearts and wills of human be-gs; a Providence that this moment is soliciting ev-y man and woman among us, through the knowl-That are volume that this moment is solving by y man and woman among us, through the knowl-igs that our minds may gather, through the pres-ite of conscience, and through all the gentle senti-ents of human sympathy and helpfulness, to be-me the instruments for working out its beneficent tent.

Biglian , Google

A SMALL BOY AROSE at a Sunday-school concert id began quite glibly: "A certain man went down om Jernsalem to Jericho, and fell—and fell"— bere his memory began to fail bim)—"ind—and fell "the roadside, and the thorns sprang up and choked m."

AN ELDERLY lady endeavoring to post a letter in a drant is a spectacle to make an oyster weep.

[For THE INDEL.] THE TWO HODGES.

BY AN EX-PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER

The Rev. Charles Hodge, D.D., is, and has been for thirty years, a professor in the Prephyterian The-ological Seminary at Princeton, New Jersey, an Insti-tution for training students for the ministry which is not only the oldest, but the best endowed, most pop-ular and influential of all the theological schools be-longing to that religious body. Of the four thou-sand ministers now in the Presbyterian Church, by far the greatest number have been educated at Prince-ton.

sand ministers now in the Presbyterian Church, by far the greatest number have been educated at Princeton.
The Rev. Archibald A. Hodge, D.D., is the son of Dr. Charles Hodge, and is the leading professor in the Theological Seminary at Alleghany City, Pennsylvania, an institution only second in importance to that of Princeton. I propose to call attention to the public character and influence of each of these gentlemen in order, premising that the private character of both is unimpeached and unimpeachable. And first the Rev. Charles Hodge, D.D.
I. About the year 1830, the politicians of South Carolina concocted their plan for a dissolution of the Union, and the establishment of a grand slaveholding oligarchy, after the Roman model of civilization. To carry out their scheme to success, they saw the absolute necessity of securing the coöperation of the Church. "An ordinated clergyman in all the sects being recognized by the people as a minister, or ambassador of Jesus Christ, commissioned from the Court of Heaven to treat with the rebelious children of men, had an influence with the ignorant masses which no other man in society possessed. He had his audiences under his control twice every Sunday. He could make statements before them which, however untrue, could not be contradicted by a heaver. He held religious meetings through the week in private houses and school-houses, always carrying with blim the air of a conceded hollness and infallibility. He warriages of their children, burled their dead; and his utterances, both private and public, were regarded as the voice of God.
A priesthood so able to confuse and pervert the houses and existen saw, would be an invaluable surflary, in their treasonable work, and they undertook the asy task of bringing them over to their their the time the most influential of all the sects in the country.

terests. They began with the Presbyterian Church, at that time the most influential of all the sects in the country. Besides one or two newspapers, the Presbyterians had a quarterly review called the Biblical Repertory, and the Princeton professors were the chief writers for it, Dr. Hodge being the editor. This review cir-culated among the clergy, the students of theology, the ruling elders, and intelligent members of the Church, and was very influential in forming the opinions of these various classes. The antislavery leaven which the fathers of the Republic had put into the Declaration of Indepen-dence and the Preamble of the Constitution had taken such effect through the labors of Garrison and his coadjutors, that there were, about this time, nearly one thousand organized antislavery societies, all demanding for the slave immediate smancipation, and, as auxiliary thereto, all holding stated meetings for raising funds to print and circulate books and tracts, and to send out lecturers everywhere into the highways and hedges for the purpose of enlightening the people, and inducing them to act on the great is-sues before them. At this array of moral power outside the Church the slaveholders were that their schemes would the slaveholders were thoroughly alarmed, and they saw more clearly than ever that their schemes would fail unless they could secure promptly the coöpera-tion of the Church.

is a more clearly than ever that their schemes would fail unless they could secure promptly the cooperation of the Church.
In 1838, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which was a representative body of one minister and one elder from each of the Presbyteries composing the entire denomination, and a court of the last resort to settle all questions of doctrine and discipline, met at Pittsburgh. Commissioners from twenty-seven slaveholding Presbyteries, embracing men of both the schools in controversy, new and old, disregarding in their pro-slavery zeal the doctrinal questions about which they had previously quarrelied, assembled in open cancus, organized, and, like the politicians in Congress, adopted the tactics of intimidation by resolving: "That, if the forthcom-"ing Assembly shall undertake to exercise authority "on the subject of slavery, so as to make it an immo-"raility, or shall in any way declare that Christians "are criminal in holding slaves, a Declaration shall "be presented by the Southern Delegation declining "their jurisdiction, and our determination not to "aubmit to their decision."
This proceeding had the desired effect. A nail be proceeding had the desired effect. A nail service was rendered by the Rev. Charles Hodge. This gentleman had written a pro-slavery article for the frinceton Repertory which was so admirably adapted to the purposes of the slaveholders that the regular day of publication was anticipated, and the document issued on the spot, in pamphlet form, by the Fittburgh prese, hietaed, as the tile-page said, "for grattilous circulation" among the members of the Assembly. The article was thus placed in every one's hand, and its plausible reasonings capitated the secubly row what followed.
Rober 1. Breckenridge, a distingulabed lawyer of Kentucky, in the warm gueb of his religious conversion from the bar to the pulpit, had, in a speech re-sion from the bar to the pulpit, had, in a speech re-sion from the bar to the pulpit, had, in a speech re-sion corded in the African Repository, the organ of the Colonization Society, given the following definition of slavery, which, wherever read, tended to convince men of common sense and honesty, in the Church and out of it, of the intrinsic wickedness of the slave

<text>

Google Dyniened by

<text><text><text><text>

<text><text><text>

spiration of the Scriptures of the Old and New Tes-taments should be disfranchised. That is to eay, that Unitarians, Universalists, Free Religionists, and Jews, to say nothing of Spiritualists, Material-ists, and Atheists, no matter how sincere and honest they may be in their opinions, nor how pure they may be in their ives, should have no vote, but be consigned to the same category of political incapables with women, idiots, and convicts. To embody these opinions into law, and thus make them effective, he is willing to make the Church one by affiliating the Presbyterians with the Methodists, Baptiets, and are not isolated abstractions, as every one sees, but are linked together in close relationship, and culmi-mate in the grand scheme to which the two Hodges are devoted, for securing the theological Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and "put-ting the government squarely under CHRIST." Now, if these opinions of Dr. A. A. Hodge were held by a set of weak-minded enthusiasta among the clergy who pound the pulpit every Sunday in advo-cating them before their hearers, we could smile at their folly and pass on. But when a professor in a theological seminary holds them as vasity important issues now pressing upon the public attention, and inculcates them on the receptive minds of his stu-dents whom he sends out every year by scores in the high character of ambassadors of Jenus Christ, to fra-culate them again upon the people who have votes, we can easily see that he is doing the work of evil on a large scale. This influence is in a sense secret. That is, the

we can easily see that he is doing the work of evil on a large scale. This influence is in a sense secret. That is, the professor in the lecture room, and the preacher in the pulpit, and elsewhere, inculcates these views. There is no opportunity of denial, no showing of the other side of the question; for, when the Legate from the Contr of Heaven speaks, it is the duty of the people to hear and believe, not to question and debate. And as at first blush the common run of Christians are pleased with the scheme as affording them some-thing to do besides going to church, and as comport-ing with their high character of good soldiers of Jesus Christ, the Captain of their Salvation, they become committed to it, and therefore turn a deaf ear to all argument.

Ing with their high character of good soldiers of Jesus Christ, the Captain of their Salvation, they become committed to it, and therefore turn a deaf ear to all regument. He must be a blind man who cannot see that the plan of the two Hodges for putting an Orthodox con-fession of faith into the Constitution, "to be carried out by appropriate legislation," is a revolutionary one, which, if precipitated by the madness of its de-votees, will deluge the land with blood just as certain-ly as the Church's pet institution of slavery brought on the late civil war with all its horrors. Multitudes of our people in their folly laugh at the growing com-binations of the ecclesiastical forces to bring on this augued to scorn the reported threats of the slave-holders to subvert the national government. The abolitionists, who had studied the subject of slavery, and understood it, gave public warning of the South-ern schemes long before they developed in blood; but they believed them not, till the storm of war actually broke upon us, and found us all unprepared. In like manner the men who have studied the Re-ligious-Amendment question point to the avowed forces of the Church, bound by the logical necessity of her creeds to carry out the measure, and warn the public of the day of wrath that is inevitably coming; and all they get for their pains is a smile of incredu-tity. The Radicals themselves, disabled for co-ocause by their intense and parleal individualism, are waiting for another Bull Run defeat, before they propress; and that we can only meet an organized force on the field of conflict by an organized force on the field of conflict by an organized force of the futures eard parls-laci individualism are waiting for another Bull Run defeat, before they even that the influence of the two Hodges in pro-moting this bad cause, on account of their position as progression, when compared with the influence of any progression, when compared with the influence of any propression, when compared with the influence of

THE UNITABIAN CONFERENCE AND THE EXTRACTS FROM THE "CHRISTIAN REGISTER'S" BE-PORT OF THE SARATOGA CONFERENCE,

Mr. Moors, from the Business Committee, reported back Dr. Clarke's resolutions, with the recommenda-tion that they pass. They were as follows:— "Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the President to convey to the National Council of the Congregational Churches meeting in New Haven, in October, our sympathy with their work in main-taining and defending the independency of the churches from ecclesiastical authority, and our wishes for their success in advancing Christian life and work in our land." "Resolved, That a committee of three he evolution for user success in automic bound in the and work in our land."

 "Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the President to attend the next annual meeting of the Free Religious Association, and express our good wishes and sympathy with their endeavor to promote the cause of religious liberty."
 The Chair put the question upon the first resolution, and declared it adopted. . . .
 The cote by which the resolution was passed was reconsidered, and on motion of Dr. Clarke was amended by substituting "freedom" for "independency," and again adopted.
 The second fesolution then came up for discussion. Rev. T. J. Mumford thought the Committee on Fellowship, in presenting the resolution, assumed that the Free Religious Association is a sect, or de-nomination. Their leading men resent such an idea. The Chair stated that the resolution did not come from the Committee.

from the Committee. Dr. Clarke explained that he offered the resolution on his own responsibility, at the suggestion of an-other. He thought we all did sympathize with the Free Religious Association in the matter of seeing to establish religious freedom. Rev. C. G. Ames preferred, if any action was to be taken in regard to the Free Religious Association, it should be in another form; he would therefore more a substitute for the resolution as follows:--""Deschard. That the Council of this Conference.

a substitute for the resolution as follows:-"Resolved, That the Council of this Conference by directed to convey to the Free Religious Association, or its officers, the assurance of our profound interes in its work; that we recognize the importance and usefulness of its contributions to religious thought, and efforts for its purification; and that no diffe-ences of outlook or method shall work any weake-ing of the tie which binds together all who seek to learn what's true, and to apply it as the law of human life." life.

life." Dr. Bellows thought it not the right thing to ak this Conference to pass such a resolution in reference to an association with whose general spirit they could so little sympathize. He objected to having brought in at the fag end of a session a question like this that touches the profoundent feeling of this body. Objection being made to the continuation of the discussion, as it was past the hour of adjournmen, the President declared the Conference adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Conference was called to order by the Pres-

APTERNOON SESSION. The Conference was called to order by the Prai-dent at half past three o'clock. Gov. Padelford, of Providence, R. I., hoped the resolution would not pass. As for Christian ilberty, everybody enjoya it, or can enjoy it. Mr. Green, of Chelese, —1 do not sympathize with the Free Religious Association; but with many fits members I do sympathize. I doubt not a majority of them went out from us because they were not of us. Can we sympathize with them? I sympathize with all who are building up the kingdom of God in the life and spirit of Jesue Christ. I am not bigotd, and do not wish to get on the yoke again from which I have been so long free. Gov. Padelford.—The religious denominations end missionaries abroad to the Moslems; and they all believe in a Divine Being; and that is all our free religious friends believe in. Mayor Doyle, of Providence.—I am sorry this reo-thition has been introduced. Christian men and women can have no sympathy with a movement that is a renunclation of Christianity. Those who are in sympathy can enjoy this renunclation; but it them not ask this Conference for sympathy. This hind of thing prevents our contributions to the Unitarian cause. The laymen will give for what represent Christianity, but not for what scaled Free Religion. In the name of this Conference, so magnificent in point of numbers, and as a layman, I protest against this whole plan of seeking to come into fellowship with the free religious morement. Rev. E. E. Hale.—It is now nine years that the Committee on Fellowship has been entrusted with protest against this whole pish of seeking to tak-into fellowship with the free religious movement. Rev. E. E. Hale.—It is now nine years that the Committee on Fellowship has been entrusted with the duty of seeking the fellowship of other denom-nations. In the opinion of the Council, the Unitar-na are a Christian body, occupying, if not a central position, a position as near the centre as any body in Christendom. From this grand position we have see out our expressions of sympathy to whatever body was working for God. We have joined with other in such matters as were of national importance. We have sent delegates to the Board of Foreign Mission, because asked to do so. Wherever asked to send delegates we have sent them. This action has been acquieaced in. We have voted to send delegate io the Congregational Orthodox Conncil. Young men here a request us to send delegates to the Free Religion Association. It is perfectly legitimate to send attack delegates. delegates.

delegates. Dr. Clarke.—It often happens that a motion is dis-cussed not upon its merits, but upon some secret mo-tive supposed to be in the mind of its originator. Circumstances have left upon the minds of some of our members that the Unitarians have not been per-fectly fair towards them. Now this expression of sympathy would be a good thing, not only because true, but because it would tend to remove this feeling of unfairness, and so some way to prevent angr dis-sympathy would be a good thing, not only because sympathy would be a good thing, not only because true, but because it would tend to remove this feling of unfairness, and go some way to prevent any dis-cussion. From the days of Theodore Parker to the present time, there is no man who has stood more firm against all opposition to Jezus. I have got among the opposers, and said what I had to say to them. I can say to those who are in sympathy sith the Free Religionist that I sympathize with erry effort for religious freedom. There is nothing in their constitution opposing Christianity. Their pla-form is open to all. They neither defend nor oppose Christianity. There is no reason why I should on job. Our friends are wrong in saying that the Free Religious Association is opposed to Christianity. Twent as a Christian invited to defend Christianity. and this platform is not a Christian platform. I went as a Christian invited to defend Christianity. I said this platform is not a Christian platform. I south to be. In such case we should be the in-sulting parties. Was I to insult an intelligent and worthy Jew, who was upon the platform by my ide? It is not an anti-Christian platform. If it was is should be the insulted party. It was free to all religions. Not a word was said against me or the cause that I represented. Mr. Abbot is a truth-speaking mm. He has prejudices, and wanted to make that platform anti-Christian. But that was not done. If you be ileve truth is mighty and will prevail, then welcome all discussion. You will be welcomed upon the platform of the Free Religious Association, and can speak your mind there freely.

speak your mind there freely. Rev. E. C. Towne. — I oppose this resolution for two reasons. One is that a large portion of those be-longing to this Conference cannot reconcile their consciences to such action. The other is that the Free Religious Association is not in such a state of sympathy with this Conference as to expect sympathy. They have drifted to the position of Mr. Abbot. They are not in a position to care anything about such a resolution as has been offered.

such a resolution as has been offered. Rev. A. F. Bailey, of Canastota, N. Y.—There is something to be taken into consideration in regard to the bearing of this matter upon the influence of this denomination. I am from Central New York, where there is not a single person that was originally a Unitarian. None there had read Channing till within a few years. On the one side are the Ortho-dox, on the other a heterogeneous mass, Spiritual-ists, materialists, those who agree with Thux INDEX, and some who believe in Christ. We should stand in the position of a mutual friend of Christianity and Free Religion. I am a Christian, also a Free Relig-ionist. A friend as squarely upon the Unitarian platform as myself has expressed the fear that you denomination is no longer to be the refuge of r denomination is no longer to be the refuge of souls.

your denomination is no longer to be the refuge of soils. Rev. C. G. Ames thought a like scene to the pres-ent might take place in the Congregational Council when our delegates should present themselves. One class there may take the ground that we are not Christians, and object to fellowship with us. Does not the opinion in regard to the Free Religions As-upon a misunderstanding of its animus and purpose? The purpose deep in the heart of that Association is to find God's answer to the question, What is truth P to find God's answer to the question, What is truth P to find God's answer to the question, What is truth P to find God's answer to the question, What is truth P to find God's answer to the question, What is truth P to find God's answer to the question, what is truth P to find stain sympathy. I will take truth, even if 1 find it on heathen ground; and it is Christian wherever found. I want we should all be united in one fami-ly. I look towards the Orthodox on one side, and to the Free Religionists on the other. I sm grieved at a want of justice towards the juster when they are just as near to us as the Orthodox. I would not heat heat all the good are in Christianity. I will not beiteve there is any antagonism between any truth or yood and Christianity. I will accept neither Mr. Ab-bot's nor Mr. Potter's definition of Christianity. We must all unite in the spirit. Rev. Robert Collyer.—There is one word it occurs bot's nor Mr. Potter's definition of Caristianity. We must all unite in the spirit. Rev. Robert Collysr.—There is one word it occurs to me to say. I wonder how it will strike our Free Religious friends to have a vote like this sent them, that comes out of our body like pulling teeth. Let it pass over two years, and see if the Free Religious As-sociation can get along without our sympathy. A resolution of sympathy should be loving and tender. Who are these people we are talking about? There are among them some of the finest, sweetest men and women with whom we have acquaintance. I think in the spiritual state of existence Jeeus will say to these who never made any sort of point about him that they are among the very nearest to him. We should recognize in these men and women high and noble souls who are seeking to live out the truth. These men have gone out beyond our boundaries; but they are good fellows, ever noble and beautiful. In the name of Jesns, of the God who made us, let us send this vote of sympathy to them. Dr. Bellows.—I regret that this resolution has been but they are good fellows, ever noble and oesultini. In the name of Jesens, of the God who made us, let us send this vote of sympathy to them. Dr. Bellows.—I regret that this resolution has been introduced into this assembly. Members had a right to introduce it; but the wisdom, expediency, pollcy, of introducing it is another thing. There is a re-sponsibility results upon us in regard to promoting these mere theories of dainty and delicate minds. We may have sympathy with men and women, but with what we find good in their purposes, when we should be sure to be misunderstood. I should like to put my foot upon this whole movement. When there is so much more with which we disagree, why should we go out of our way to express our sym-ral purposes we disown? I admire a man with a histian spirit even though he rejects Christianity. Perial my tongue before I condemn such a man, or iepreciate his spirit because it has not a Christian which reflects upon the noble men and women to have built up our denomination from the purest of poll be admitting that we are associated with a objet of Jeaus, can stand in the way of any intel-vide the issences of our own freedom. It ould be admitting that we are associated with a sign of Jeaus, can stand in the way of any intel-sition as thrown about the minds and hearts from we should be without those scientific attan-biliserty. Had it not been for the protection that is the with are now our boast. I was exceedingly in the auch action as would cut off Mr. Potter's me from the Year Book. I will not myself stand fiberty at the Unitarian Association was compelled is ta a most uncomfortable feeling in three-fourths of the members of the Unitarian body. Rev. Charles Noyes, of Cincinnati, was willing that all who entertained a square opinion upon the subject before us should express it. He would go counter to that intense feeling in regard to the right or wrong involved. This Conference was a body without authority. Is my parish to be excited be-cause I happen to vote one way or another ? I speak for myself. My society might have sent two dele-gates who are heartily in sympathy with the Free Re-ligious Association. All the other societies might have basectation. All the other societies might have base of a meeting of the Unitarian body. It would have been a meet accident. The vote upon this question, whatever it may be, does not carry the burden some seem to think. It will only express the opinion of individuals, and not that of the body. Without any excitement, in brotherly love, let us wote this matter up, or vote it down. What does it amount to ? So many vote to express their sympa-thy, so many not. I may sympathize with a man and not with his opinions. Never can I refuse my sympathy with every conscientious effort to build up the kingdom of God.

The second secon

pass. Mr. Doyle.—I wish to ask the Secretary if the soci-ety in Florence was invited. The Secretary.—No; because it is not a Unitarian

Mr. Doyle.-Was the Rev. O. B. Frothingham's Mr.

Mr. Doyle.—Was the Rev. O. B. Frothingham's society? The Secretary.—If it is in the list of Unitarian societies in the Year Book it was. Rev. George Batchelor, the Secretary, continued. I have no interest whatever in the passage of this resolution. It is swallowing the camel before looking out for the gnat. He would not send such a resolu-tion to one with whom we had just said we would have no fellowship. Mr. Potter's name has been ex-cluded from the Year Book; and so we have the anomaly of a Unitarian church with a minister not Unitarian. Unitarian

Mr. Batchelor being asked to whom he addressed the letters of invitation, replied, To the pastors as represented in the last Year Book; if there was no pastor, to a delegate attending the last Conference; if the letters of invitation, replied, To the pastors as represented in the last Y car Book; if there was no pastor, to a delegate attending the last Conference; if neither pastor nor delegate, to the church under its corporate name. Rev. R. R. Shippen.—I regret that we are drawn into the old Year Book question. The Year Book has two lists: one, a list of Unitarian ministers; the other, a list of Unitarian churches with their pastors, whoever these pastors may be. Every church has a right to choose its own ministers; and we have Uni-tarian churches with Universalist ministers, or minis-ters of any other denomination. The New Bedford church is on this list of Unitarian churches, and has as much right to an invitation to this Conference as any other church. It would seem to be superfluous to thank the Council for doing its daty. On motion of G. Washington Warren, the resolu-tion was laid upon the table. Rev. C. W. Buck, of Portland, Me.—Twice this Conference has been invited to put one foot forward, and twice has failed. He could not be satisfied to go home to his people without making a third attempt. He hoped the Conference would abandon this stand-still position. He closed with a resolution, as follows, which went to the Business Committee:— still position. He closed with a resolution, as follows, which went to the Business Committee:--WHEREAS, This Conference has heretofore repeat-edly affirmed its devotion to the Christian faith; and whereas the word Christian is a word of indefinite meaning, by reason of which indefiniteness minunder-standings and embarrassments have arisen, and are likely to arise; therefore, in order to define more clearly the idea of this Conference, and to promote fellowship among its members, "Recoded, That the words "Christian" and "Chris-tianity" refer in the intent of this Conference not to creed, or to ceremony, or to profession, but to right-consness, peace, and joy in the Holy Spirkt." Mr. Doyle inquired of the Chairman if it was im-perative upon the Committee to report back every resolution that was referred to them. The Chairman replied that the very object of re-ferring to the Business Committee was that they might decide whether the subject proposed was of importance enough to come before the Conference to the exclusion of other business, or a proper one to come before the Conference at all. Much more busi-ness is always proposed than can be attended to. At the last Conference there were nearly forty propol-tions in the hands of the Business Committee that were not reported upon. were not reported upon.

It was once ruled in an action for libel, brought by a clergyman against a pamphleteer, that to call a lawyer a d—d fool was actionable, because nobody could be a d—d fool without being a bad lawyer; but that the same term applied to a clergyman was not actionable, since a man might be a d—d fool and yet be a very good parson.

THE SAHATOGA CONFERENCE

The scotten of the Conference which is likely to oc-casion most comment was with reference to our rela-tions to the Trinitarian Congregationalists and Free Religionists. The resolution in favor of sending a committee to New Haven was not passed without a straggle, and exmest and forcible speeches were made against it. It was thought by some that our Trinita-rian brethren must be already sufficiently assured of our readiness to regard them with sympathy and fel-lowship whenever they, as a body, shall give us any reason to suppose that our sympathy and fel-lowship whenever they, as a body, shall give us any are desired. Such strong statements of the fraternal spirit of leading Trinitarian Congregationalists were made as to overcome the scruples of the majority on the score of self-respect, and the committee appoint-ed,—Rev. Dr. Rafus Ellis, Rev. E. E. Hale, and Dor-man B. Eaton, Esq.,—can hardly fail to have a court-sour seception. The resolution in favor of sending a committee to assure the Free Religioniats of our good wishes and Bedon even provide seller, and the committee appoint-ed, —Rev. Dr. Rufus Ellis, Rev. E. E. Hale, and Dor-man B. Eaton, Esq., —can hardly fall to have a court-eous reception.

The resolution in favor of sending a committee to sour sympathy in their endeavor to promote the cause of religious liberty was defeated by an overwhelming yote; but although the minority was a very small one, numerically, it contained some of our ablest and most distinguished ministers. They made carnest and eloquent appeals in behalf of extending our sympathy in both directions, but they spoke in vallest and most distinguished ministers. They made carnest and eloquent appeals in behalf of extending our sympathy in both directions, but they spoke in valle. The great majority of our ministers, and almost all our laymen, where unwilling to send a committee to the Free Re-ligionista, for many reasons. Some were opposed be-cause the Free Religionists, as a body, are not en-aged in any religious or humane work, do not even affirm the existence of a God, or the immortality of the boot. Others voted to lay the motion on the betheoretically, they were practically anti-Unitarian and anti-Christian. It was thought that their aileged theological neutrality was not a fact. Although Mr. Abot impeached Christianity, the Free Religionists are spaced in the substorm, and the Free Religionists are spaced in the platform, and the Free Religionists are spaced along the substility towards individual Free Re-ligionista, and no objection to the organization of a philosophical club, at meetings of which all questions for they heard Messar. Ames and Calthrop with de-should be open questions; but the majority wished to rively religious and Christian denominations, and they postion. Still they were not illiberal Christians, for they heard Messar. Ames and Calthrop with de-igionistion. Still they were not illiberal christians for they heard Messar. Ames and Calthrop with de-should be open questions of the inspinated very sonserview Christians of

SOME TIME ago the Amberst students honored Daniel Prait, the Great American Traveller, with the title of "C. O. D." That illustrious man has now been still further complimented by the Darimouth boys who recently nominated him for the presi-dency in 1876, and gave him the honorary degree of "S. T.-1860-X."

CASH BECRIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 3

NOR THE WHEN ENDING OCTOBER 3.
 M. Hellman, 84.75; Geo. A. Hamilton, 85; Elfas B. Leggett, 85.25; J. H. Platt, 85.25; S. M. Whistler, 81; W. Mallace, 15 cents; John W. Plumileo, 81; Joeeph Troanstein, 86; A. Trounstein, 85; C. B. Crandal, 82.25; N. Date, 85.25; S. M. Whistler, 81; W. Date, 85; J. B. Cogers, 83; E. F. Phillips, 84; P. Lenk, 82.35; W. H. Peck, 85.26; D. K. Rall, 81.75; A. T. Foas, 83.75; George Chambeillo, 83.75; C. B. Boyce, 85; S. J. Logan, 33; J. F. Phillips, 84; S. H. F. A. R. Boyce, 85; S. J. Logan, 34; J. J. Harles Hazelins, 81; G. W. Bachelder, 83; J. A. Marshall, 83.75; C. Mander, 92.25; Mrs. A. N. Rogers, 81.60; Mrs. F. W. Titne, 84; G. Marshall, 81; R. G. Marghil, 83; N. Litle, J., 83; John Gillia, 84; R. B. Simons, 82.26; J. H. Deering, 83; Gabrielle Bach, 83; S. O. Kellogg, 85; S. H. Seaman, 82.26; W. Biakeley, 83; J. K. Wright, 81; C. A. Hayden, 84.50; Mrs. A. N. Bogers, 81.60; Mrs. F. W. Titne, 84; G. Marshall, 81; R. G. Scanto, 82.26; J. H. Deering, 83; Gabrielle Bach, 83; S. O. Kellogg, 85; S. H. Seaman, 82.26; K. W. Biakeley, 83; J. K. Wright, 81; C. A. Hayden, 84.50; B. Gardner, 82.26; B. S. H. Strin, 80; Caster, J. C. Hawakurat, 40 cents; G. H. Barton, 50 cente; J. O. C. Hawakurat, 40 cents; G. H. Barton, 50 cente; J. H. Chifford, 50 cents; J. J. French, 80 cents; J. H. Chifford, 50 cents; J. S. Flower, 80 cents; J. H. Chifford, 50 cents; J. S. Flower, 100, 50 cents; J. H. Strench, 20 cents; J. H. Strench, 20 cents; J. S. Flower, 20 cents; J. S. Barten, 30 cents; J. H. Strench, 30 cents; J. H. Chifford, 50 cents; J. S. Flower, 20 cents; J. S. Horekee, 2

In resource we way at the resulting, with places notify ds. N. B.--Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credits. N. B.--Orders for Tracts or single numbers of The Ly-pex which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be oth-erwise filled to the same amount without further notice.

erwise filed to the same amount without further notice. N. B.-Postage on The INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in Ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.-When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remittance as exactly as possible.

.-Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your mail-tag, and report at once any error in either.

The Index. PUBLIANED AVERY THURSDAT BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

486

Tofedo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound earning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributions will in svery case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FEADOIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT, Editor. ADRAM WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor. OUTAVIUS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WESTWORTH FUGITRON, WILLIAM J. FOTTER, RIGHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENDER, MES. E. D. CHEMEN, Rev. CHARLES YOYNEY (England), Frof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Articles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 8, 1874.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for filten months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

THE ILLINOIS Methodist Conference, lately in session at Mattoon, by a majority report of a special committee on the subject, have declared in favor of church taxation. This report is an able document signed by James Leaton and M. D. Hawes; and it does honor to their consciences and their intellects alike. At our earliest opportunity we mean to reproduce it in full.

THE ENGLISH Church Herald says that, "if Parliament created the Church of England," then it "created a damnable anti-Christian imposture;" meaning that the Church is an imposture unless Divinely created. Very likely; the Herald knows best about that. But when it is proved to everybody's satisfaction (as it will be) that the Church is a man-made institution, let it be remembered that it was not THE INDEX which called it an "imposture"—least of all an "anti-Christian" one. Whether the Church is an imposture or not, Christianity, and not anti-Christianity, must be responsible for it.

THE PROMIMENCE of Petrarch among the "humanists," in Kaulbach's great cartoon of "The Ers of the Reformation," reminds us of the letter written by Garibaldi to General Bordone for the celebration at Avignon of the fifth centenary of Petrarch's birth, on the twentieth of July last. "Petrarch as much as Dants," wrote the old hero, "Is certainly one of the most vigorous of the great pioneers who struck at the very foundation of the monstrous edifice of superstition, at a time when inquisitors of all orders roasted human fleah with as much ardor as could be shown by the anthropophagi of the Cannibal Islands."

OTHERS, as well as we, seem to have found Professor Tyndall's thought a little indeterminate on some fundamental points. The Nation says: "Exactly what kind of religion Mr. Tyndall thinks possible among people who believe not merely in the Copernican system but in the evolutionary theories of Mr. Herbert Spencer, and the discoveries of Darwin as to the origin of species, we cannot discover from his address; but the hints thrown out seem to point In the direction of a religion, not of belief, but of imaginative devotion, escaping belief to find a refuge in the contemplation of the eternal mystery of the uni-'Man has never been, and he never will be, satisfied with the operations and products of the understanding alone; hence physical science cannot cover all the demands of his nature,' Mr. Tyndall says at the beginning of his lecture; and at the end he declares that he is willing to affirm religion to be a field 'for the noblest exercise of what, in contrast with the knowing faculties, may be called the creative faculties of man.' His suggestion as to the future of religion is not unlike some remarks more at length by Mr. Herbert Spencer, in one of his papers on sociology, which we noticed some time since, and, indeed, may be taken to represent an opinion very commonly held among a number of well-known scientific men, who recognize the insoluble and impenstrable mystery of existence, and, at the same time, gud men, devote themselves to the soluble and the enetrable."

UNITABIAN "SYMPATHIES." The doings of the Unitarians at Saratoga, so far as relates to the Free Religious Association, may have sufficient interest for the majority of our readers to justify the republication of a portion of the report in another part of this paper, and a few remarks here. Rev. James Freeman Clarke, who is one of the best of men and a noble representative of the best side of Unitarianism, tried to broaden the sympathies of his sect in two opposite directions at the same time. He moved that a committee of sympathy should be sent to the Orthodox Congregationalists in council at New Haven, and succeeded; but, when he moved that a similar committee should be sent to the Free Religious Association next May, he failed. The Conference is willing to fraternize with Orthodoxy, but not with Free Religion. In this it is simply true to its Christian colors. It could not without absurdity do otherwise. Although we heartily respond to the kind feelings which prompted the utterances at Saratoga in favor of sympathetic relations with the Free Religious Association, we must confess that we feel relieved that the resolution was voted down. Tt could not have meant anything at bottom; and it would have been impossible to accept it as meaning anything. Not that we doubt in the least the sincerity of those who desire to express their sympathy for the Free Religious Association. These men meant what they said; but if they really represented the sentiments of the whole Unitarian denomination, there might never have been any Free Religious Association to sympathize with. The plain truth, which the forward-looking men of the Unitarian Conference are slow to see and admit, is that, while individual Unitarians may sincerely sympathize with Free Religion, the Unitarian denomination does not and cannot do this. It is a question of principle that divides the Conference and the Association as organized bodies; and no sympathetic resolution can unite them. The Christian Union, which will be considered by some more impartial than THE INDEX, states the case with great clearness and force in its comments on this very subject: "The ground taken on both sides upon this question deserves attention. Dr. J. F. Clarke, certainly himself a Christian in as full and eminent a sense as any man in the denomination, favored the expression of sympathy with the Free Religionists, expressly on the ground-which all the speakers on this side seem to have taken-that the Free Religious Association was not hostile to Christianity; that it was open to its friends as well as its opponents; and that it represented only the principle of absolutely free inquiry for truth. But, in spite of this ples, and the able advocacy of Dr. Clarke, Edward E. Hale, Robert Collyer, Charles G. Ames, and others, the motion was emphatically rejected. It was rejected on the ground that in effect the weight of the Free Religionists was cast against Christianity, and that sympathy with them would be interpreted as lukewarmness toward Christianity. Thus, while equally warm and faithful friends of distinctive Christianity were found on both sides of the debate, the great majority of the Conference chose to emphasize their Christian faith in the most amistakable manner. They said in effect: It is more important to declare that Unitarians are Christians than that they believe in freedom of inquiry."

That is the burden of all Unitarianism : it throws a pound to Christianity and a penny to freedom. Why not recognize the truth? The very sympathy now offered is neutralized by the assumption that accompanies it-that there is no necessary antagonism between Christlanity and freedom, and therefore that the Free Religious Association cannot be hostile to Christianity. We must argue in precisely the opposite way-that there is a necessary antagonism between Christianity and freedom, and therefore that the Free Religious Association must be hostile to Christianity. This truth the people get at by a species of quick instinct which dissipates the labored mystifications of those who want them to be Christian and free at the same time. The Unitarian laity are wiser than their radical clergy in this matter. They know the unwisdom of playing fast and loose in practical matters, and, beginning to perceive that freedom is anti-Christian, they are coming (not very reluctantly, either) to give it up. The clergy must submit to this leadership, or lose their places; they may define and refine to their tongues' content, but Christian they have got to be on penalty of being cashiered, and they know it perfectly well. They may not object to this well-understood limitation of their liberty; they may persuade themselves that on the whole they rather like it; they may even be lost In wonder and amazement that any one can be so restive or unreasonable as to want to jump the fence they themselves venerate. But it is scarcely the thing to vote themselves in sympathy with those who have jumped all such fences, and are chiefly busy in helping others to jump them. If their sympathy were more than verbal or skin-deep, they would jump the fences too; and an expression of sympathy unaccompanied by this proof of its earnestness would be something for which we, at least, could not be honest ly grateful, yet for which we should be expected to express gratitude. Sympathy is indeed a good thing; but sincerity is a better one. We are greatly relieved, therefore, that the Conference, having from the beginning planted itself on Christian ground, did not pretend to express sympathy for an Association which has from the beginning planted itself on the ground of freedom. We respect it all the more for refusing to be coaxed or persuaded into self-stultification, and can now heartily and sincerely extend to it such sympathy as we involuntarily feel for all strong conviction which leads to self-consistent action.

What is the real attitude of the Free Beligious Association towards Christianity? The favorers of Dr. Clarke's resolution seem to consider it that of colorless neutrality; while its opponents seem to consider that this "alleged theological neutrality is not a fact." It is of some interest to know what the truth is in this matter.

First of all we must correct Mr, Calthrop's statement that "Mr. Abbot wanted to make that platform anti-Christian." We do not want to "make" it apthing under heaven that It is not; we helped originally to make it what it is, and see no reason to change it. But we point to the Constitution of the Free Religious Association as it stands, and maintain that, although it does not so much as mention the words Christian or Christianity, this Constitution is as fundamentally anti-Christian as the Constitution of the United States is fundamentally anti-monarchical. It simply affirms, in a direct and unqualified manner, "that absolute freedom of thought and erpression which is the natural right of every rational The application of this principle, broad and being." unlimited, it leaves to each individual member; it carefully refrains from making any special application of it to Christianity or Judaism or any other religion. So strongly do we approve this reticence, which is only respect for individual differences of opinion, that we should personally feel compelled to leave the Free Religious Association if it should insert an avowedly anti-Christian plank in its platform. Its sole business is to affirm unqualified liberty of thought in religion; and to let the irresistible corollaries of this principle gradually force their own way into individual minds. In the long run men will find out for themselves that Liberty is anti-Christianity; every individual or association that pouses liberty is set against Christianity by a powerle or it cannot control. But if the Association should undertake to exclude any one who thought Christianity and liberty compatible, it would do a great wrong. Mr. Calthrop, for instance, thinks that he can be Christian and free too; he has a right to interpret for himself its Constitution; he is not conscious of any reason why he should not stand on that platform, and there is no reason, so long as that unconsciousness continues. But nevertheless it is logically ortain that the ground of unlimited freedom is anti-Christian ground, whether men know it or not; and no Christian can consistently occupy it.

In our view of the matter, then, the Free Religious Association does not profess to hold neutral ground at all; for its Constitution professes no neutrality. and we have as good a right to interpret it as my other. We hold that neutrality between Christianity and freedom is an absolute impossibility; that there is no such thing as an "extra-Christian" position which is not also "anti-Christian;" and that the Association, being pledged to freedom, is thereby pledged against Christianity. Whoever disputes this construction of the Constitution can only make good his position by proving that Christianity and freedom are not hostile and antagonistic to each other; and the sooner this radical discussion is opened, the better. Not to submit to the Christian claim is to protest against it; the Free Religious Association, by ig noring it altogether in their Constitution, thereby make a protest against it which is perfectly intelligible to the world at large. The Unitarian Conference are right; whoever has joined the Free Religious Arsociation under the impression that it is neutral in its attitude towards Christianity has made a great mistake, unless he can show that Christianity and liberty are compatible in idea and practice. A gen-

EGGS AND CRADLES.

I have little taste for continued controversy, and will simply say that I see no inconsistency in my two metaphors of eggs and cradles; though it is always hard to make an illustration express the exact truth. I think that we should use, with both cradles and eggs, just so much force as is necessary to clear ourselves from them; and that, having done this, we can generally employ ourselves better by living our own life than by stamping on the fragments.

T, W. H.

When the chicken's beak has pecked a hole in the eggshell, it can put itself to no better use than to continne pecking till it has let the rest of the bird out, "Stamping on the fragments" suggests a rables too. of wanton and similess destructiveness to which no Anti-Christian within the circle of my acquaintance would for an instant plead guilty; but, seeing how closely immured in the calcareous prison of Christianity is still the great mass of my fellow-citizens, I think that the "smashing" process by which one has partially escaped should not be desisted from till all are freed. The race is a unit: whose liberty is fully won while his brothers are in bonds? That is indeed a noble exhortation: "Live your own life." Be it mine to have no life that is not Man's-no freedom' while he is a slave-no ambition but to dedicate head. heart, and hand to shattering the fetters, viewless and unfalt as air, yet stronger than steel, that chain him down to captivity of soull F. E. A.

GRGANIZATION.

THE INDEX often contains remarks of some severity, from editor and correspondents, on the alleged unwillingness of radicals to organize. As far as I have seen, the obstacle to organization among radicals soldom lies in indifference or indolence, but rather in the difficulty of finding a common ground of action, and an impression that, while this is the case, each will act more efficiently by himself.

I take it that, as a rule, organization is the strong point of conservatives, individual enthusiasm of radicals. The latter are like Esquimaux dogs, who may be driven with great success, if you attach each separately to the vehicle, but who usually tear each other in pieces if you harness them in the same traces. If the Free Religious Association, for instance, had attempted to do as much organizing as some have desired, it would have gone to pieces long ago. It has existed and grown stronger, because it fortunately attempted no more than the time was ripe for. And I have often noticed that those who are most strenuous for organization are often those who are least capable of it, because they are incapable of walving a single point of their private creed, even in order to coöperate with others. Any organization requires a great deal of such waiving, but an organization of radicals most of all. Therefore the real obstacle to be removed is usually intellectual; it is necessary to discern and state this common ground ; whoever busily engages himself in working out the principles at issue, and in keeping their application morally pure, is helping toward organization in the end. But premature organization of those who have not yet worked out clearly their common ground is apt to end in reaction and in a greater scattering than before. Such has at least been my observation.

THE CHRISTIAN LIMIT.

T. W. H.

The National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian Churches has claim for small consideration at the hands of THE INDEX. The action at Saratoga on the proposition to exchange friendly greeting with a conference of Free Religious men in another State was precisely what might have been expected from such a body. To some it seemed surprising that two men, Dr. Bellows and the excellent Seth Padelford, should have been able to overbear the influence of other men-such as Freeman Clarke, Robert Collyer, Edward Hale-whose weight of mind, wealth of influence, and earnestness of feeling were generously thrown on the other side. But it is evident that the mass of laity and clergy there were immovable under the force of any appeal or argument, and decided as they did on the strength of a stubborn conservatism that gave no reasons and listened to none. Had Dr. Bellows said nothing, and the champions of liberality said more, it may be doubted if the result could have been different. A dogged conviction, consisting in part, perhaps, of personal dislikes, and partly antipathies, but more probably of sectarian instincts, would have been more than a match for the glowing sentiment of the most eloquent men. This is said in no spirit of complaint or sarcasm. To us, not forgetting to thank the generous friends of the broadest fellowship, it seems that the laity were in the right, even though stupidly so, and our noble friends in the wrong, though generously and sympathetically so.

DE VILLEV O.

Could the vote of the Conference have been other than it was consistently with the fundamental principle of its Constitution ? Could the fundamental principle of the Constitution be altered consistently with any kind of Christian confession? What would a vote of sympathy have implied? What margin is there for an enlargement of the platform on which the leaders of the Conference have taken their stand? If the question be merely one of names, there is nothing to be said. But the leaders of the opposition protest that the question is not one of names at all, but of cardinal ideas. The words "Christian," "Extra-Christian," "Anti-Christian," cover beliefs; and the beliefs cover verities of the atmost moment. Mr. Potter, as to his character, may be a lamb without spot, but as to his opinions he is a wolf. Now Christianity is still, as it ever has been, a system of opinions, pretty clearly defined; opinions which the Unitarians profess after their own manner to entertain. The Christian tradition is dear to them; the Christian dogma is precious. They have indeed refined on it till they have nearly refined it away; they have attenuated it till in parts it is no longer visible; they have diluted it till the original milk of the word has become imperceptible. They have strained its terms through the sieve of definition till their subatance cannot be detected. Still, while they profess to hold the dogma, while they seriously imagine themselves to be the only people who comprehend it, while they are so infatuated as to suppose that their version of it is the pure development, the final perfection of its essence, instead of being, as it really is, its last vanishing point,-while they believe this, they are not to be blamed for their dogmatism. Nay; because, in Unitarianism, the Christian dogma ta pers off into vacuity, retaining only the merest suspiclon of the New Testament faith, and being the utmost possible attenuation of the grand theology that ruled Christendom for a thousand years, it is of the utmost importance that no further shadings should be attempted.

If the Unitarians went further, where would they go? The next step is Theism, — with a savor of sentiment from the New Testament, with a touch of mysticism from the Old Church, with a few tender names and associations from the religion of Romanism and Protestantism; but nevertheless Theism, as undisguised and unmistakable as that of Francis Newman or Chunder Sen. That is the next step out of Unitarianism, and it leads a hemisphere away from every postulate of Christian theology.

Now Theism is a word of terror to the uninstructed, such as the masses of the Unitarian laity are; and it is a word of abomination to the dogmatical, such as the common run of Unitarian ministers are. If the National Conference were to extend its fellowship, it must consent to be confounded with Theism; and to this neither the Conference nor the Theists should agree. Secretary For's blunder in writing to Mr. Potter was a providential one; and it has from the first been hard for me to see how the Unitarian body could have acted otherwise than as it did, in view of the reply that Mr. Potter gave. The vote excluding him from the number of Unitarian ministers, like the vote withholding expression of sympawith the Free Religious Association, declared thy the Unitarians to be a Christian sect, which is the truth. That is what they are and are proud to be. Theists they are not, and do not wish to be thought. We hope their rights will henceforth be respected, and that they who discard the Christian system of theology, root and branch, and hold a larger faith, will no longer knock for admittance at that pasteboard door, or ask recognition from the ranks they have left. O. B. F.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX;

Sir,—Is it true that Roman Catholicism is on the increase in America? I mean increasing in a greater ratio than other branches of the Christian religion. If this be the case, can you at all account for it on other grounds than the mere zeal and activity of the priests?

It seems to me that with the lessons of history before our eyes, we cannot safely ignore this inquiry, or without great peril to liberty and enlightenment allow such an encroachment to go on unresisted.

10/4.

Toleration, of course, must not be tampered with. To every sect or church equal liberty must be granted, and so when I speak of resistance to Rome I confine myself strictly to those forms of opposition which are humane and legitimate.

Of this I may say more anon; at present I would invite your readers to consider on what grounds the Roman Catholic religion is more to be dreaded than any other form of Christianity, and why its progress should therefore be more jealously watched.

Now, so far as the dogmas of Rome are concerned, there is comparatively little to object to more than we object in general to the Christian religion. Rome only demands a little more credulity. She only adds a fourth person to the Trinity, and bids us trust in a pure and high-minded woman as much as in her son. Her dogmas of the need of salvation, the peril of endless damnation, the atonement of blood, intercession and mediation, differ but very little from those of the Anglican, Methodist, and Baptist communions.

True, she makes a little more demand on credulity and encourages graver supersiliion by her view of the sacraments—the dogma of transubstantiation requiring belief in perpetually recurring miracle. But this extra pinch of supernaturalism is only a bagatelle, which we cannot regard as a serious ground for placing the Church of Rome in a black catalogue by herself. Nay, we wonder that Protestants, having gulped so much and swallowed so many New Testament camels, should be so eager to strain out the gnate of Romish miracle.

Nor, as far as her public teaching goes, can we fairly accuse Rome of tending to immorality more than other Christian churches. If the usual Evangelical doctrines of atonement and imparted rightecusness tend to antinomianism and immorality, the way in which these doctrines are taught authoritatively by Rome is far less coarse and demoralizing. In Dr. Möhler's Symbolism, the teaching of Rome contrasts most favorably with that of our little Bethels.

Take the Romanists on the one hand and Protestants on the other, there is hardly a pin to choose between them, as regards the foolishness of their superstitions or the worthlessness of their teaching. We must look elsewhere for anything to justify our peculiar hatred or dread of the Romish system.

And this, I think, is not far to seek, though it is very commonly overlooked. We find it in the personal relation between the individual member and the priest.

The priest demands, and the Church authorizes the priest to demand, absolute obedience from every child of the Church under his charge. In everything, great or small, at the absolute discretion of the priest, every man and woman must strictly obey his will.

In all else the Church of Rome is remarkably lax; "her yoke is easy and her burden is light." She regulates the amount of incredibles to be swallowed, by the intellectual digestion of each of her customers. She binds and looses at pleasure the bonds of moral restraint, requiring more virtue from the more virtuous and less from the morally weak.

But all her kind indulgence is reserved only for those who have earned it by an entire surrender of their wills to the dictation of the priest. There is only one thing she will not tolerate, and that is sin; and there is only one sin in her eyes: disobedience.

Defiance of her authority or rebellion against the dictates of the priest renders any one Hable to eternal damnation. All manner of sin and blasphemy is freely forgiven, except the one unpardonable sin of self-will. A true Catholic, therefore, becomes a mere tool in the hands of the priest. He has no longer to concern himself with codes of morality, or to consult the whisperings of conscience. He has only to do exactly as he is bidden, whether it be what other men would call right or whether it be wrong. Nay, it must always be right, for the priest is the mouthpiece of God, and whatever he bids must be holy.

Who can wonder that under such a system, those who are hostile to it, or not under its protection, are in perpetual danger—danger to life and limb as well as to property and prospects in life? The only wonder is that the force of civilization should ever have had strength to overcome such a foe, or the wisdom, to outwit its cunning. This system, I venture to say, places the Church of

This system, I venture to say, places the Church of Rome quite apart from the other branches of Christianity, and justifies our most vigorous onslaughts.

Such a system might have done good when men were more like brutes, and may even still be valuable for the negro and other races in the boyish stage of humanity; but for men and women of mature intellect to be thus tied hand and foot, yea, even tied in their thoughts and their hearts; to live, move, speak, think, and love as they are bidden by a mere fellowman who has the impudence to claim Divine anthority for his interference-this is not to be patiently endured by any who care for the welfare of the human race, or prize the dignity of self-control.

Google

487

Rome has of late been on her best behavior before the world; excepting a few cases of kidnapping (à la Mortara) and now and then a heavy draught of deadmen's shoes, she has not shocked public opinion very much. Her worst misdemeanors, namely, her malediction against science and its teachers, her anathemas against her rebellious sons in Germany and elsewhere, and her antique pilgrimages, have only made the world laugh. But the system on which her very life depends remains unchanged, and, though ap-parently slumbering at present, and not busy with rack and thumbscrew, with sword and stake, she can at any time reach out her hand and find these or equally deadly and efficacious weapons wherewith to smite her foes and to silence her accusers. Is she ashamed of the part, do you think? Or is she not a little afraid of frightening timid, and hesitating, and temporizing converts? Time will show.

Very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, Sept. 12, 1874.

Communications.

N. B.—Correspondents must run the risk of typographical rrors. The utmost care will be taken to avoid them; but ereafter no space will be spared to Errata. hereafter no space will be spared to Errata. N. B.-Articles for this department should be SHORT, and written only on one side of the sheet. N. R.-Hlapibly written articles stand a very poor chance of publication.

WHAT WAS SLAVERY?

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :

"Doubtless the pleasure is as great Of being cheated as to cheat."

It has been so long,-grows more so, apparently,

It has been so long,-grows more so, apparently, every day. Long ago, the abolitionists of America proved the Christianity of the country the natural, pronounced, persistent foe of freedom, and especially the freedom of our millions of chattel slaves. James G. Birney was a slave-holder in Kentucky, a judge in one of its highest courts, stood at the head of elegant soci-ety, and was a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church. Becoming deeply convinced of the great sin of hold-ing men, women, and children as property, as goods and chattels, at loss of all earthly possessions and prospects, he emancipated his slaves, removed them to free States, provided for their employment and self-support, and afterwards removed to Ohio, only to suffer more severe persecution than even that from which he fled with his family out of Kentucky. Judge Birney afterwards wrote and published a lit-le work entitled: The American Church the Bulucark of American Slavery. Subsequently Stephen S. Fos-ter took up a similar line of argumentin a larger work entitled. The Brotherhood of Thicres: or, a True Picture of the American Church and Clergy. The latter ran through many editions, until more than twenty thousand copies were in circulation: and I

Picture of the American Church and Clergy. The latter ran through many editions, until more than twenty thousand copies were in circulation; and I never knew that one of its facts or statements was ever called in question. Successfully, they could not have been questioned. It was indeed slavery con-victed by its own witnesses, they speaking for them-selves without being subjected to a single cross ques-tion. tion.

serves without being subjected to a single cross quee-tion. Mr. Birney's book, as far as it went, was precisely of the same character. And many others followed of similar quality; some even reaching to volumes of hundreds of pages. But will now submit a testimony to the atrocious-ness of the slave system from the land of whips and chains itself, and a clergyman's testimony, besides. In a former letter, I referred to Bishop Meade, of Virginia, as compiler of Sermons to Slaves and Slave-holders, by Rev. Thomas Bacon, formerly of Mary-land. The volume is on my table, and the following at ogether for your short columns, but you can abridge of course to suit them. The whole would be bacother volume of similar import:----"When people die, we know of but two places they have to go to, and one is heaven, the other hell. Now have to go to, and one is heaven, the other bell. Now to make the labors. And hell is a place of great torment and misery, where all wilede people will be shut up with the devil and other evil spirits, and be punished forever, because they will not serve God. If, therefore, we would have our aouls saved by Christ, if we would cacape hell and obtain heaven, we must set about doing what he requires of us; that is, to serve God. Your own poor circumatances in this life ought to put you particularly upon this, and

INDEX-OCTOBEER E taking care of your souls . . . Almighty God hath been pleased to make you slaves here, and to give you nothing but labor and poverty in this world, which you are obliged to submit to, as it is his will that it ahould be so. And think within yourselves what a terrible thing it would be, after all your labors and anfferings in this life, to be turned into hell in the next life; and after wearing out your bodies in service here, to go into a far worse clavery when this is over, and your poor souls be delivered over into the posses-sion of the devil, to become his slaves forever in hell, without any hope of ever getting free from it. If, therefore, you would be God's freemen in heaven, you must strive to be good and serve him here on earth. Your bodies, you know, are not your own; they are at the disposal of those you belong to; but your precious souls are still your own, which nothing can take from you, if it be not your own fault. Con-sing idle, wicked lives here, you have got nothing by it in this world, and you have lost your all in the next. For your idleness and wickedness are general-if found out, and your bodies suffer for it here; and what is far worse, if you do not repent and amend, your unhappy souls will suffer for it here after. "Having thus shown you the chief duties you owe for your great Master in heaven, I now come to lay be-minds, and that is, to do all service for them, ca if you did it for God himself. Poor creatures I you little onsider when you are idle and neglectful of your master's business, when you are set about without strips and the sto do all service for them, ca if you did it for God himself. Poor creatures I you finds, and walte, and murt any of their substance, when you are stat bout without strips and versation,—you do not consider. Iss.y, that what faults you are guilty of towards your masters and will not do the work you are set about without strips and versation,—you do not consider. Iss.y, that when hest you are guilty of towards your masters and mistress you repeat of it, and strive to make amends by your faithfulness and diligence for the time to come, for God himself hath declared the same. "And in the first place, you are to be obedient and subject to your masters in all things.... And Chris-tian ministers are commanded to 'exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters, and to please them well in all things, not answering them again, or gainsaying.'... You are to be faithful and honest to your masters and mistresses, not purioling, or wasting their goods or substance, but showing all good fidelity in all things.... Do not your masters, under God, provide for you? And how shall they be able to do this, to feed and to clothe you, unless you take honest care of every thing that belongs to them P Remember that God requires this of you, and if you are not afraid of suffering for it here, you cannot es-cape the vengeance of Almighty God, who will judge between you and your masters, and make you pay severely, in the next world, for all the injustice you do them here. And though you could manage so cunningly as to escape the eyes and hands of man, yet think what a dreadful thing it is to fall into the hands of the living God, who is able to cast both sonl and body into hell!".... And again, on page 118.— ""All things whatssoere ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," that is, do by all mankind just as you would desire they should do by you, if you were in their place, and they in yours. "Now, to suit this rule to your particular circum-stances; suppose you were masters and mistresses, and had servants should do their business fait/hilly and homesity, as well when your back was turned as while you were looking over them? Would you not expect stances; suppose you were masters and mistressee, and had servants under you, would you not desire that your servants should do their business faithfully and honesily, as well when your back was turned as while you were looking over them? Would you not expect that they should take notice of what you said to them? That they should behave themselves with respect towards you and yours, and be as careful of everything belonging to you as you would be your-selves? You are servants; do, therefore, as you would wish to be done by, and you will be both good servants to your masters, and good servants to God, who requires this of you, and will reward you well for it, if you do it for the sake of conscience, in obedi-ence to his commands. . . . Take care that you do not fret, or murmur, or grumble at your condition; for this will not only make your life uncasy, but will greatly offend Almighty God. Consider that it is not yourselves, it is not the people you belong to, it is not he men that have brought you to it, but it is the will of God who hath by his providence made you ser-vants, because, no doubt, he knew that condition would be best for you in this world, and help you the better towards heaven, if you would but do your duty in it. So that any discontent at your not belang free, or rich, or great, as you see some others, is quarrelling which may appear grievous that I shall now take notice of, and that is conRectron. . . . . . . There is only one circumstance which may appear grievous that I. Bull now take notice of, and that is conRectron. . . . . . . . There is only one circumstance with your heaven y Master, and finding fault with God himself. . . . There is only one circumstance with the source that is construct, and Almighty God requires, that you bear it patiently. . You may, really descree it or not, it is your duty, and Almighty God requires, that you bear it patiently. . You may, really descree it or not, this is hard doctrine, but if you consider it right, you must needs think totherise of it. Suppose great many more, and are at least paid for all. Or suppose you are quite innocent of what is laid to your charge, and suffer wrongfully in that particular thing, is it not possible you may have done some other bad thing which was never discovered, and that Almighty God who saw you doing it would not let you escape without punishment one time or another And ought you not in such a case to give glory to him, and be thankful that he would rather punish you in this life for your wickedness than destroy your souls for it in the neutifie? But suppose that agined), and that you have by no means, known or unknown, deserved the correction you suffered, there is this great comfort in it, that if you bear it patient ly, and leave your cause in the hands of God, he will reward you for it in heaven, and the punishment you suffer unjustly here shall turn to your exceeding great glory hereafter."

great glory hereafter." Such was, such is, American Christianity. Anti-slavery ministers were expelled from associations, conferences, and presbyteries, as well as public, for refusing to accept it as Divine, God-given, God-ap proved. And multitudes of abolitionists were ar-communicated from their churches for the same of fence, when such expulsions were held to be ercla-sion from heaven; and such exclusion from heaven was of course to be eternal imprisonment in deeps of hell PARKER PILLSBURY. TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 26, 1874.

THE RIGHT AND WBONG OF "PROBL-BITION ...

A REPLY TO MR. HARRY BOOVER

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text> drunkenness by prohibiting liquor so that no one can bave it, would become of man's morality? Have yon ever considered that it is not the forced abaliances from liquor, but the self-imposed denial of what the grosser passions demand, that raises man above the animal, makes him a moral being? And would you not, by your prohibitory principle, weaken or destroy this precious moral sense of man? Suppose, then, you act in all other things analogically, thoroughly, consistently, on this principle; must it not necessari-ly lead to "prohibition" of a man himself? For you certainly will not deny that the sexual passions are neither less general nor less destructive to some ind-viduals than liquor is to some. Now suppose, fur-ther, that you act with regard to these passions for liquor; you might prevent much more certainly all the sril consequences of the sexual passions for liquor; you might prevent much more certainly all the avalued be gained? Would you, even if you could, prohibit, i.e., eradicate, these passions? Or would you prohibit all satisfaction of sexual passions because some individuals abuse them? Perhaps you will call this illustration extravagant; though I think it quite pertinent. But even if this is extravagant, it is by no means the only one that can be adduced. The evil results of luxary, fashion, and extravagance it quite pertinent. But even if this is extravagant, it is by no means the only one that can be adduced. The evil results of luxury, fashion, and extravagance of all sorts, are as frequent and ruinous to families and individuals as are even the excesses of liquor-drinking; nay, probably much more so, because more universal. Why, then, demand prohibition for the one, and not for the other? Ture grape wine and lager beer are as much under the bane of prohibitionists as liquor, and, if they could have their way, equally to be prohibited. Practical experience, however, proves conclusively that the former kinds of drinks are (of course, excess accepted) not only harmless, but decidedly beneficial, healthful, nourishing, and strength-giving. Any in-telligent observer may notice more vitality and energy among the inhabitants of the wine-growing portions of France and Germany than in the countries where they raise no wine, and where it, consequently, is scarcer and dearer, and hence less frequently drank. It is likewise a notorious fact, proverbial in Germany, and more especially in that paradise of beer-drinkers, Bararia, that brewers and coopers, the two chief beer-consuming classes, see also the strongets men. It must, then, be clear to every one who is not blinded by prindices, that wine and beer are good and beneficial, and cannot be classed with liquor, albeit they, too, contain some alcohol, and hence may become intoxi-enting. Another, and a very strong proof, too, of this is the winess, I may almost say the universal wine and beer-drinking. The manner of drinking abroad, and its consequences, may, it is true, con-tribute not a little to convert these American travel-lers. This manner of drinking is a much more im-portant point than the majority of Americans are avare of, or is generally allowed by them; yet it is proof patent that no prohibitory laws, will never do it; if ever shall be done, it must be done by society, by regulating drinking, and not by prohibiting it; by irowning it down, and not by fin

Google -

But this is a subject that requires an independent article to do it justice, so I will not pursue it any fur-ther. "Moral persuasion is a powerful lever in the regen-eration of mankind," admits Mr. Hoover binself in his article; but, ss if afraid of having admitted too much, he immediately adds, "but it is not of univer-sal application." And why not, pray? What could hinder its universal application? Was the "tem-perance" movement less effective forty or fifty years ago than now, and did it not do incomparably more good when it was carried on on the "moral persua-sion principle" (the so-called "Washingtonian plan") alone? But perhaps Mr. Hoover will, with the pro-hibitionists generally, deny this, and claim that there are "some individuals" not amenable to moral sua-sion. Yet what but a wrongly constituted society and unspeakable social wrong have reduced these in-dividuals to their "lost condition"? Let society do its daty by bettering their condition materially, in-tellectually, morally, socially, by remedying or de-stroying the causes that made it a "sad necessity" for them to seek the cup that briags forgetfulness of their wrongs and sufferings; and the demand for pro-hibition will be heard no more. MORRIS EINSTEIN. TITUSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 3, 1874. "PATRIOTIC SONS OF AMERICA."

"PATRIOTIC SONS OF AMERICA."

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

EDITOR OF THE INDEX: Dear Sir,-In accordance with your request that some one would give you "further information con-cerning this order," I find in the Camp Neuse for September that this patriotic order was first organized in Palladelphia in 1847. Prior to the rebellion, its organization was very imperfect, its progress slow, its ramifications extending but little beyond the Middle States; and, when the war of the rebellion opened, its organization was suspended, owing to the general enlistment of its members. In 1866, its reorganiza-tion was effected on a more substantial basis, since which time it has steadily increased, and now num-bers a membership of 26,000 or more. Its objects may thus be stated :---1.-The inculcation of pure American principles. 2.-Opposition to foreign interference with State interests in the United States of America. 3.-The cultivation of a fraternal and brotherly low.

love.

3.—The cultivation of a fraternal and brotherly lore.
4.—The preservation of the Constitution of the United States, and the propagation of free education. The following is a preamble of the order:—
"Where as, The experience of all ages and all countries distinctly shows that popular liberty—born amid the din of battle, baptized in patricted blood, and rocked by the rude storms of civil strife—demands for its preservation against the rage of party spirit, the wiles of ambition, and the stern arm of power, the undivided love of all her votaries, and the stringle with her foes; the history of the world most painfaily proves that it is the basiness of one generators, be it of grain or tares, of good or evil:
"Now, therefore, we, the undersigned, Sons of shadow of its flag, loving it as none other can how, nowing it as none other can know, and having an interest in its future welfare, nearer, truer, deeper than all mankind besides, —do hereby associate ourselves into an order, for the purpose of maturing ourselves in the knowledge and encouraging each other in the south set of a country in which we are called to exercise among our fellow-men the common rights of sovereignty; in which act of association we severally piedge our-selves to the observance and anpport of the laws of the land and regulations of this body, as becomes the some of freemen, willing to submit to the restraints of social order, and acknowledge no other bonds but those of duty to our God, our country, and our-selves."

selves." The following qualifications for membership are selves." The following qualifications for membership are required:--"No person shall be entitled to membership in the order except he be of good moral character, eighteen pears of age, a believer in the existence of a Supreme Being as the creator and preserver of the universe, born on the soil or within the juriadiction of the United States, in favor of free education, opposed to any union of Church and State, and to the inter-forence of any foreign power, directly or indirectly, in the affairs of this government." It might be urged that this order is proscriptive in the scalusiveness; but they claim this right for the sake of peace and harmony in their ranks. Camps can be beneficial or not, just as they may decide. They have distinctive regalia-sahes of red, white, and blue, studded with stars in imitation of our contry's banner. They asy: "Understanding this, seeing how fast our great ses-board cities, and through them our legislative bodies, national and State, are becoming factional, sectorian, and anti-American, will not all true American hasten to join our ranks, and to start compa in sections not now tananted by the order? To this, and with this appeal, your influence is asked in the cause." I am not, my dear sir, a member of this order; but in so far as I know, it is on the side of liberts.

To this, and with this appeal, your influence is asked in the cause." I am not, my dear sir, a member of this order; but in so far as I know, it is on the side of liberty. In conversation with the orator of the day at the picnic alluded to in THE INDEX of September 17, I was in-formed that they, as a body of American citizens, were closely watching the organization of Romaniam in its attempts to undermine liberty, etc. I asked him if their order would be ready to defend freedom if assalled by Protestants. To this he said: "We certainly would." I asked him if he was familiar with the Religions Amendment Movement, and what he thought of it. He replied that he condemned it; and, as an order, they were bound to be true to the principles of freedom as guaranteed us in the United States Constitution. I would here say that the gen-tion of ecclesiastical property from taration. The camp organized in this village, about a year ago, now numbers about eighty members. The Camp Nexos is sobve, or the national president, Emmor H. Lee, Esq., Third and Linden Streets, Camden, N.J. New KINGETON, Pa., Sept. 23, 1874. THEE "A NO. 1" SIN.

THE "A NO. 1" SIN.

A abort time since I saw the statement in one of the daily papers, that Ann Eliza Young, the ex-nineteenth wife of the Mormon Prophet, when asked how control was retained over the women of Utah to keep them in such an abject and repuisive condition of servitude, replied that from their earliest child-hood they are taught that such is the will of God, and that to doubt, or question, or discuss the matter is the most belnous of sins! The whole Christian world is ready to stand aghast in horror at such tyr-anny; but this method of coercion is by no means new or peculiar to Mormonism. It is as old as priest-craft, and those who enjoy the "light" and "free-dom" of Christianity are not entirely free from its power.

dom'' of Christianity are not entirely free from its power. To illustrate, allow me to recall the following words from the great London preacher, Spurgeon: "Oh I sirs, believe me, could you roll all sins into one mass—could you take murder, and blasphemy, and lust, adultery, and fornication, and everything that is vile, and unite them all into one vast globe of black corruption, they would not equal even then the sin of unbelief. This is the monarch sin, the quintessence of guilt; the mixture of the venom of all crimes; the dregs of the wine of Gomorrah; it is the A 1 sin, the masterpiece of Satan, the chief work of the devil." devil.

In this connection, let me relate a little story, the truth of which I can youch for, having been an eye truth of which I can youch for, having been an eye witness:-In the little town of A.-.., in the western part of Massachusetts, an effort was made a few winters since; by a zealous few, to start and organize a church which should be sound in the doctrine that total immersion is the true method of baptism. As those holding these views were in a small minority, it of course became necessary first to recruit their ranks. Accordingly a hall was engaged, and a course of high-pressure revival meetings inaugurated. These having been kept up through the winter evenings. It was found, when spring approached, that their efforts had been rewarded by a goodly number of converted singers to asy nothing of the capture of a few stray sheep from neighboring folds. When the long evenings began to wane, however, the religious fervor began to cool correspondingly, until at last it became necessary that something biold be done to get the new converts committed, before the "Holy Spirk" was decided to meet on a certain Sunday at a beautital little lake near the village, and administer to them the rite of baptism. At the appointed time a large concourse of people gathered on the banks of the lake, as it was a novel sight in those parts. The air was chilly, the hill-tops

CABLYLE.

<page-header><section-header><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

[Our caustic correspondent is not wont to read THE INDEX so carelessly as in this case. He seems to infer we have no admiration for Carlyle because we dislike some things in him. Besides the gospel of "faithful work" (which is a most true one, and greatly needs disciples to day), Carlyle has also another gospel of contempt for the weak and the simple, as if they were the natural-born subjects of the strong and the wise. Does "L." approve this latter gospel? If so, it needs a direct defence from him. Strong or weak, wise or simple, rich or poor, white or black, weak, wise or simple, fich or poor, while or olack, male or female, no one has an inslienable right to rule another. "L.'s" last paragraph above makes a false issue. Not welfare and happiness versus equal rights, but welfare and happiness through equal rights.-ED.]

A LADY and gentleman of Troy, N.Y., whose con-nubial blies is perfect in everything save the presence of children around the domestic fireside, were exam-ining some illuminated motioss in a bookstore the other day, when the wife picked out one bearing these words: "God bless our home." The husband thought that very good, but still not exactly what they wanted. Looking a little further he picked up this one: "Suffer little children to come unto'me."

"PLEASE, papa, give me some of the Lord's prayer meat." "The Lord's prayer meat?" queried the father, with about equal proportions of exclamation and interrogation in his voice, while carlous glances were exchanged all round the table. "I'sn't it 'liver us from evil?" There was no gainsaying the honest little face that backed the petition, and "Lord's prayer meat" passed in among the traditions of the family. —Independent. abogle

100

490

HE INDEX-OCTOBER 8, 1874.

Advertisements.
ТНЕ	PATRONAGE
	PATEONAGE

of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper u"bilnd" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be frandulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No outs will be admitted.

to be insufated. be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.

For 1 to	12 In	sertions,	10e	Per	line.
44 26 44	51	66	ĕ	46	66
" 26 "		66	5	66	66
On hald a		out was addressed.

On half-column salveriaements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

TO ADVERTISERS

The following states the experience of a successful Bookseller who has advertised in successful Bookseller who has advertuseu m Tuk INDEX:-TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1872. To THE INDEX ASSO., Toledo, O.: Genlemen,-Having had occasion to adver-tise in your paper during the past two years quite largely, I take pleasure in stating that I have always obtained very satisfactory re-turns-better in fact than from book adver-tisements in any other paper I have advor-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ate results, but orders have frequently been received months after the insertion of the advertisement, showing that your readers. Yours truly, HEXEN S. STEBENS.

Special arrangements will be made at re-duced terms for long-time or extended ad-vertisements. Address THE INDEX,

NO. 1 TREMOST PLACE, Rost

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fired at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rab Roligion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public niterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religions questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, excisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ving list orial Contributors :-

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, E.L. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. BIOHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. OHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass. BEV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

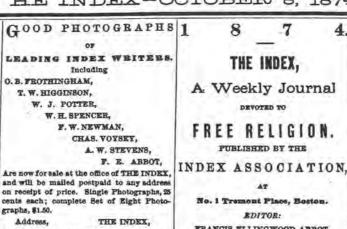

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-alism. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly az-position of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX.

Almost every number contains a discourse or sading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

one year's subscription. Frof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4. 1873, args: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be fold in America.-that south a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country-.is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the normber of so-called religions or the-ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." and istor still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Bend $3.00 for one year, or 76 cents for three months on trial.

Addr THE INDEX

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

51								-	10000	-
1	1	- 1	No.	TT	emont	Pla	ice,	Bost	ion,	Ma	88,
Ł	T	N	D	Е	x	т	R	A	C	т	S

Co. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbob, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Ms. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe-ics." And American Sciences and American American Sciences and No. 1. cles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read "TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES.' and I admired them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 19 copies $1.00.

2.-Fear of the Living God, by 0. No. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the impertec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.—Ohristian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-46 The Sabbath, 39 by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-4*Compulsory Education," by F.E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents: 19 contest to another cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price & cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constiwhich Christian Greek in the U.S. Consti-tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents. No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi-anity, by F.E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who until distribute U, in packages of from the to one hundred comis. five to one hundred copies

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.- Is Bomaniam Real Christian-ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

On the Vision of Heaven, by No. 13. Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Eeligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Eeligion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought; and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Eeligion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX. 1 THEORY FLACE

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX. A. Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO

7

8

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

4.00 No. 1 Tramont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass

F. W. NEWMAN, England, CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

Fo substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the pra-ical object to which THE INDEX is specia Isle ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purose of securing the more complete and con sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Enguello in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplian this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the ost marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so to give to THE INDEX its present high po-Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to Information of the second state of the second articles, will sho be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three D The price of THE INDEA is "Infee apor-lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sonder's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in and name. with the money in each case. Address

THE INDET. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

4. PUBLICATIONS. OF THE FREE

RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Report of the Assuresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0, B From-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucreiz Moti-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucreiz Moti-Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains mays by Ing., 1869. So conts. Contains samy by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Science is Religion," and speeches by O. B. Freihns-ham, Jease H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm Davton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlin Judaism" by Rabbi Wise. 14.18 roceedings of Third Annual Meet-Proceedings of Taird Annual Mee-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains easy by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addressee by D. A. Wasson on "The Natars of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious Description on a State by the Suffit of Organization, as affected by the Spirit of organization, as allected by the Split of the Age," an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," foi lowed by Rabbl Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaian," by T. W. Biordance T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Beligion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calibrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

roccedings of Fifth Annual Meet-Proceedings of Fifth Annual According, 1872. So cents. (Four or mote, Scottains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church is America," by C. D. B. Mills on "failigion as America," by C. D. B. Mills on "failigion as America," by C. D. B. Mills on "America," by C. D. B. Mills on "America," by C. D. B. Mills on "America, "by C. D. B. Mills on "failigion as America," by C. D. B. Mills on "failigion as America, "by C. D. B. Mills on "Liberty and the Church is America," by C. D. B. Mills on "America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Americ the Expression of a Permanent Ser the Expression of a Permanent Semimetr of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Froù-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Mest-ing, 1878. S5 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains cesays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dile Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfallow, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lacretia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains vertation reports of President Frothingham's address reports of Fresident Freiningum sub-on "The Validity of the Fres Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Bonneschein's speech on "Reformed Juda-ism," and of the statements by Messra Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their spective attitudes towards Christianity-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Extra-Christian, "-together with the Secreta-ry's Annual Report, and letters from Keah-ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. Wasson.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Higon. 25 cent oins

Beligions of China, by Wm. H. Chaoning. 25 cents.

soon and Hevelation, by William J. Pottar. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Parton. 10 cents, singly; package 60 cents; of one hundred, $3. of ten

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tre-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports mont Piace, Boston. The Annual Esports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1873 is quite limited. Orders by modif may be ad-dressed either "Free Bellgious Association, No. 1 Tremont Piace, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Hedford, Mass. WM. J. FOTTER, Sec. F. E. A POPULAR BOOKS. SENT BY MAIL AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. NO EXTEA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with this CASH. Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. ALCOTT (LOUISA M), Little Women. Two Volation Skorice Skorice Stories An Old Fashloned Girl. Little Man My Boys, &c. Shawi-Straps. Work; A Story of Experience..... e 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.00 1.00 ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Easays in Oriti-2.00 ...... 2.00 ...... 1.50 elam..... New Poems.... Literature and Dogma..... BACON'S Esenys..... 1.25 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations .......... 1.00 Dass flatter (1). Davids of the Ling of the Ling of the state of th 2.0 .50 .50 .25 BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 3.25 BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the suize work, with a complete index. 2 vols..... 6.00 work, with a complete index. 7 toka. OARLYLE'S Works. Cheap selition. Compris-ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays. 7 vols. From Revolution, 3 vols.; Freder-ber, 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John S. S. Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor-shof Preservit, 1 vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor-shof, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphlets, 1 vol.; Any volume sold separately. I vol. Lon-dou, 1971-2. Per vol. HANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per-fect Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Channing..... HANNING (WM. ELLEBY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.00 LARKE (JAMES FREEMAN), Ten Great on-Sense in Bellgion,..... LARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ..... 1.25 LODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World 78 BBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New ind Old, of Ethical and Social Bubjects. Darwinism in Morsis, and other Easays.... The Religious Demands of the Age.....

INWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward 1.75

LL (M as. OAROLINE H). The College, so Market, and the Court; or, Womas's slation to Education, Employment, and Hisenship.

Historical Pictures Retouched; a Volume of Miscellanics, in two parts, Part I., "Biudies, Pictures, and Pancles" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, being a Practical Hinstaulon of "Woman" Bights to Labor DESCARTES (RENE) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences...... C08 ........

Adam Bede.

Adam Bode. Econols. The Samola on the Floss. Fells Holt. Bilss Marror and Scenes of Clarical Life. Bilss Marror and Scenes of Clarical Life. Bilss Marror and Scenes of Clarical Life. Middlemarch. 2 vols. Middlema 3.50 8.50 1.25 1.50 .50

How Lies Loved the King. CMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Series.. Essays. Second Series... Mincellanies Eoglisht at the Men... Eoglisht of Life... Fooma. With Fortrait... May-day and Other Fieces Essays. Blue and Gold... Press Works. 2 vols... Society and Solitade

5.00 2.00

FEUEBBACH (LUDWIG.) The Easence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 3.00 PISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Humanity Beliefs of the Unbellevars Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker......

ULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, Including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 vols ......

GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse-quences ..... 2,00

GREALE'S Fanst. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affittics. Wilhelm Melstor. Translated by Thomas Carlyle. Portrait of Goothe. 3 vols. Berman and Dorothes. Translated by El less Frothingham

GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments.... Greed of Christendom..... 2.00 2.00 3.95

GROTE'S LIFE. Complied from Family Doc-uments, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-trait

Hant EATON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Soutiana. Book II. In France. Thoughts about Art. The Unknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters on Animals.

.... 8.00 2.00 .... 4.00 HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-1.00

Onid World. Part First.

HAWTHOBNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Hinstrated Library Edition. Mine vols. Per vol

winatrated Library Edition. Nine vols. Twice-Told Tales. Mosses from an Old Manne. The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Bonance.

Bomance. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Suow Image. The Marbie Faun. The American Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Spreach and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimius Foiton.

2.00

HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers ... Maibone. An Oldport Romanoe.... Army Life in a Black Regiment ... Atlanuc Senare... Oldport Days ....

Oldport DAYS HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-diag Journey Subarban Sketches Venetian Journey taliag Journey A Chance Acqualutance

BUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'Ninety-Three" .. 1.70

2.25

Lay Sermons, Addresses, and Article INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems. The Monitons of the Unseen.... Songs of Seyon. INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-las 1.78

dies for Stories

Buries told to a Child. First and Becond Baries. 128 Moyee the Fairy: A Story. 128 Moyee the Fairy: A Story. 128 Poor Matt; or. The Clouded Intellect. 90 DYOERBOLL'S (ROBT. G.) The Gods and Other Lectures. 200

Lectures. INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES. No. I. Forms of Water, In Clouds, Rain, Elvers, ice, and Glaclers. By John Tra-dal. II. Physics and Politics; or, Thoughts on the Application of the Principles of "Natural Selection," and "Inheritance" to Political Society. By Waiter Bagehot. 1.8

ot 1.50

HI. Foods. By Dr. Edward Smith..... IV. Mind and Body. The Theories of their Relations. By Alex. Bain. The Suby of Sociologr. By Herbert V. The Suby of Sociologr. By Herbert VI. The New Chomistry. By Josiah F. Cooke, Jr...... Yil. The Conservation of Energy. By Bai-four Stowart, with an Appendic, Ireas-ing of the Visi and Mental Applications of the Boctrine. VIII. Animal Locomotion; or, Walking, Swimniug, and Flying, with a Disserta-ton on Asronautics. By J. Bell Fettigrew, X. Responsibility in Mental Dissers. Barry Maudaley, M.D. HERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireadde Saints. Mr. 1.78 1.50 1.50

2.00

1.56 1.75

1.50 JERBOLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50

OBNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligions and their Belation to Universal Beligion. and JOSEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavins Josephus, the Jewish Historian JOWETT. The Dialogues of Piato. Translated into English, with Analysis and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Bulliol College, Orford, and Regius Pro-fessor of Greek. Four vols.

ECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemague. 2 vols...... 5.00

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Gosthe's Life. 1.30

dalam 7 or. a Few Words to the Jewa...... 1.00

CONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 9 rols. Prose Works. Portrait. 4.00 1.50 1.50 2.00 2.00

OWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. 2 vols ..... The Biglow Papers. First Series..... The Biglow Papers. Second Series ..... Among my Books.... My Study Windows....

LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Posies for Children. .70

MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's

1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 1.25

MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph-ical and Theological. 2 vols. Fer vol...... The New Amnibles of Faith ...... 2.50

MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind .75

1.50

MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of 1.75

MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLES.) Bed-

2.0

1.50 6.86

Etkose from Kasinaky. WWWAAN (PRANCIS W.) A History of the Hobow Monarchy. Pinase of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my Greed. The Soul, its Sorrow and its Aspirations. Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy. Thelam, Doug Woakness of Problemation. The Red Mous Woakness of Problemation. Agains Hous Waknes of Problemation. 2.00

1.70

1.10

1.50 3.00

1.5

1.50 .6

PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Poems. Por-

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help............ 1.50 SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The TOWE (HABBIET BEECHEE.) Fink and White Tyranny. Uncle Tom's Cabin..... TRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the

491

1.78

3

PEOCTOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ourse the Plurality of Worlds stud-ied under the Light of Economic Statistic Researches. With Colored Plates...til Light Science for Leature Monra. A Series of Familiar Essays on Scientific Subjects, Natural Phenomens... A Series of Paper Essays on Astronomy : A Series of Paper Essays on Astronomy : A Series of Paper With 10 Flates and 34 Woodcott, Super Mithury Psical Conditions, with Three La-nar Photographs and many Plates, Charis, etc.......

EOSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of SCHELLEN (H.). Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Stubstances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenaly Bodies. SCHENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory, By Prof. Huxley, F.E.S... 2. Chernistry, By Prof. Rescoe. 3. Chernistry, By Prof. Roseosci. 3. Thysics. By Balfour Stowart, With H-Justra Mong.

4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gel-kie, LL.D., F.R.S., flexible cloth

FHACKERAY'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Per vol., 1.25 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Advantures of Philip. Fendemis.

Pendenns, The Virginians, Esmond, and Lovel the Widower, Esmond, and Lovel the Widower, tion, Uniform with the Novels. Com-pleisin 3 vols. With new Portrait. For vol. 1.20 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-et English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the Oceapedt and most complete Thackersy in the market.

mpleie Thackersy in the market.
1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarity Diamond, &c.
2. Paris, and Irish Skeich-Books, &c.
3. Snohs, Skeiches, Denis Duval, &c.
4. Four Georges, Humorisis, &c.
5. Ostherine, Christmas Books, and Unreprinted Floces.

HAXTER'S (MRs. CELIA) Among the HOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods ..... TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov 1.08 ients of Science for Unscientific Peoerer. Fragmonis of Science for Unscientific Peo-pic. Light and Electricity. Hours of Enercise in the Alps. Heat as a Mode of Motion. On Sound. Radiant Heat. Forma of Water. Lectures on Light. Proceedings at the Parewell Banquet to Frof. Tyudail. 2.80 1.25 2.00 2.00 2.00

WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poems, 2 volz .... 4.06 Child Life...... 2.06

ADDERMA

1 Trement Place, Boston.

T

HE INDEX,

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

monthy Google

492	THE INDEX-0	CTOBER 8, 1874
ROWLAND CONNOR,		BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand grinding MILLS. Two Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Huller. Illustrat. ed pamphlets free. Address
Having finished his engagement with the Free Congregational Society of Florence, will answer invitations to lecture for liberal societies. Address at JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS.	CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT	Our organization some time since decided to di- rect its efforts for the present towards securing the	SEDGEBRER, SHEPARD & MILLER ISI East Front Street, Cincinnati, Oho. TYNDALL'S ADDRESS
THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873.	At home, male or female 300 a week war- ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with siz-cent return stamp. C. BOSS, With siz-cent return stamp. Y. H.	Repeal of the Laws	A very neat copy of Professor Tyndall's re markable Address before the British Amoria
The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for the great can be furnished in no other form.	FREE DISCUSSION	whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly exempted from its share of the burdan of faxation.	Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston
Address I Tremont Place, Boston. A CHEAP OFFER!	Is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 569 Washing- ton Street, Boston, every Bunday, at 16½ A.M., 15% and 75% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Folitical, and Social interests of manified consti- tute the subjects for discussion. The INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalice Hall.	As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	THE AMERICAN EDITION
A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 CENTS.	WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOLThe twenty- first school year of this Family and Day School, FOR BOTH SELLS, will begin Wednes-	T R A C T on Church Examption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE BEDEX of Nov. 27.	MONCUBE D. CONWAYS SACRED ANTHOLOGY A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES.
Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass	day, September 10, 1874. For particulars address NATH'L T. ALLEN, Principal, West Newton, Mass.	We have already issued three editions, the last of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to issue	has just been published, and will be sen postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address THE INDEX,
THEINDEX IN ENGLAND.	TONEWSPAPER	Another Large Edition of this and other tracts on the subject, so	I TREMOST PLACE, Boston, Mass. G. L. HENDERSON & CO.
THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post	PUBLISHERS. Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I	that we can place a copy in the hands of EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,	BANKEBS, ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings. Address THE INDEX,	should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory	and generously to supply the calls for them to other States.	LEROY, MINN. Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N. Y. Money Invested in First Mortgages on Im proved Farms in Minneed State
1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A. THEFREE	Tremont Place, Boston. TO BOOK-BUYEBS.	To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston	ning three to five years, with Coupon Interes Notes, drawing 9 per cent. annually in ad
SUNDAY ADVOCATE.	Please examine the revised list of POPU- LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order.	League, with its various other expenses, to bear the entire expense alone. Will not, then, §	advance, or 12 per cent. per annually in free of expense to the Loaner, 10 per cent. paid on receipt of mone at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular,
A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE- VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER- EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY	Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur- chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have	All Friends of the Movement	137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. REAL ESTATE SECURITIES
T.EAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Muscums, Art Galleries,	THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	come forward and help as with liberal donations ? We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how	Investments in Real Estate in Chicag and vicinity, and open sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex- correions; to provide during the winter "Sun- day Evenings for the Feople." and generally to promote everything conducive to rational	BOUND VOLUMES OF THE INDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the	much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will	if judiciously made, are the best and rates modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Loan Agency
The Free Sunday Advocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an	purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective	circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu- ating them gratuitously throughout the country. Last winter this subject was brought be-	OF EENST PRUSSING, 145 RANDOLPH STREE Chicago (Established 1855),
Honorary Education and Contractor December 20 the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall. London; Fred'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Jadge, Hampstoad. The ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one	Interest, and will furnish as instructive read- ing twenty years hence as ko-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes.		Guarantees perfect title and ample scaring and its Real Estate Loans.
dollar (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.	Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the	terest and principal collected without charp Real Estate Investments made on commissio or on shares; targe paid, do. Orders of capitalists and real estate out ers respectfully solicited.
CHARLES SUMNER'S	WARBEN'S TRUE CIVILIZATION.	Voice of the People,	REASONS FOR USING THE
GREAT WORK. PROPHETIC VOICES	Price 50 centa. PRACTICAL DETAILS,	favoring justice and equity, should be dis- tinctly heard. We shall soon be ready to send out	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
CONCERNING AMERICA. By CHARLES SUMMER. Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-	showing the workings of the COST PRINCIPLE.	BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN, thus giving an opportunity to those who have	It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equall adapted to hand or machine use.
Aside from its literary and historical mer- its, this volume has a special interest, from	Price 25 cents. For sale by	not already done so, to protest against this continued wrong. Let us make it	Many kinds of spool slik are a parfet fraud, being not only shorter in length, be the fact that it was the last work on which r. Sumner was engaged before his death. "PROPHETIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the his-	S. H. MORSE, 25 Bromfield St., Boston.	THE LARGEST PETITION	a much finer size than they are represents to be, and of so poor a quality as to be and for use. The ladies will always find the fit tory of our country, so full is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets,	PEBKINS'	ever presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please	reks Silk exactly as represented. Fre spool is warranted, and the manufactures name indelibly branded on every spool. Co for it.
statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament- ed author has also given interesting sketches. Bent, post-paid, on receipt of price. Address THE INDEX,	Price $1.50. $13.60 Per Das. A new and excellent collection, by W. O. PERRINS. Will be warmly welcomed by Choirs, as the anthems are not difficult, and are just what is needed for "Opening" and	SEND IN THEIR NAMES? We would may, also that we feel deeply the peed of	RADICAL AND LITERAR LECTURES
No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	"Voluntary" pieces.	0	BT
A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY BOOK, entitled	SONG MONARCH ! Price 75 Cents. Per Dozen, $7.50. The best book of the Season for Singing	Other Organizations	JOHN WEISS
"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF Conjugal Love."	Schools. By H. R. PALMER assisted by L. O Emerson. Music principally secular, and is of the most interesting character.	in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by preasing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to	RADICAL LECTURES. The Ides of Hereafter. An Act of Faith.
By Andrew Jackson Davis. Treatment of all the delicate and impor-	THE LEADER !!		Intelligence in Religion. Religion and Science.
Arganish of all the derivate and the point ant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphadic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davishas recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis- affection, and Divorce, and this little volume	Price 21.38. $13.00 Per Dos. The New Church Minkle Book, by H. R. PALMER assisted by L. O. EMERSON, gentle- men whose previous books have been more successful than any others. Please examine.	Form a Liberal League, we are ready to render such assistance as lies in	Heart in Beligion. SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURES FIRST SERIES.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphasic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davis has recently eramined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

*

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thicks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duites of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.-Gold-en Age.

en Age. Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-Some cloth, 76 cents; in full viit and extra binding, 31. Postage free. The trade sup-plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing House" of A. J. DAYIS& CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON. CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,

AMERICAN SCHOOL

IN THREE BOOKS.

Price 35 cents, 50 cents, and 50 cents. Perfectly adapted to graded classes, in Primary and Grammar Schools. By L. O. Farstston and W. S. TLDEN. Already in suc-cessful use in the schools.

Sold by all dealers. Either book sent post-paid for retail price.

C READERS.

Per order of the RESOUTIVE COMMITTEE. 711 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

our power.

Address

can be accomplished

LIBERALSI

If all will unite and work, the results sought

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Address plannan Googl

FIRST SERIES. 1. Cause of Langhter. 2. Irony and Humor. 3. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touchstons. 4. Ajax in Troilus and Cressida: The Par-

SECOND SERIES.

ter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear.

1. The Women of Shakspeare,

2. Portia. 8. Ophelia. 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Characters.

JOHN WEI86, E2 E. Brookline St., Boston

5. Falstaff,

6. Hamlet.

2 Portis.

1

ţ

:

0

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Inder.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 251.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1874.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

GLIMPSES.

and they only ask for a tin dipper to save a gill or two !

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

THE DEMARDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxasion. 9. We demand that the employment of chapilane in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militias, and in prisons, asylums, shall be discontinued.

We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

inall cease. 4. We domand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that he use of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensi-ity as a tort-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-bp, shall be prohibited.

hlp, shall be prohibited. 6. We demand that the appointment, by the President of be United States or by the Governors of the various States, call religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and all other departments of the government shall be abol-hed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-tice of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-g the observance of Sunday as the Babbath shall be re-seled.

ig incomposite the of the selection o

A SUMM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION. Fhoreas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of inblican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civil-ion impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-read, by the least interference of the State in matters of igion; and

[con; and Phereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general it of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-u administration of our political system, threatening the pecuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public cols, and the peace and prosperity of the antire land; out, the peace and prosperity of the antire land; Set ogsther under the following ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT. ciate our

7. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, esses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and all ight.

ight. r. 4—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds is League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a hirds vote of the members. r.6.—Any person may become a member of the League becribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-

c. .-The Officers of the League shall be a President, 3 President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Exect ommittee of three members; and their duties shall be commonly pertaining to these offices. The President exercary shall be ex-officio delegates to the National intion of Liberal Leagues when called together. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amonded hree-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-uesting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-shall have been sent to every member at least two previous to such meeting.

IGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE T AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ABTICLE 1. Town 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an as-n, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abritg-treadom of speech or of the press, or the right of pie pasceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-tor a redress of grievances. NM 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting any prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or ny the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the people peasceably to assemble and to petition it erore any field of the press, or the the people peasceably to assemble and to petition it even to reduce a condition of suffrage, or as person shall ever in any State be deprived of any the rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified person shall ever in any Bits to any court of is work to consequence of any public or private duty, or resonance of any public or share of the may blod ubject or religion. 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-ducation.

ME. JOHN ANDERSON, the founder of the natural history school at Penikese, has sent a draft worth $1000 in gold to Garibaldi, with a promise to repeat it annually.

WISCONSIN has $4,000,515 of church property, of which Milwaukee county has $1,363,220, and Madison $236,000. The rate of taxation in Madison is two per cent.

THE OLD colored woman by whose side a young Southern miss refused to take a seat in a horse-car was shrewd. "Why," said the good-natured old soul, "if you only owned me, my little dear, you'd sit in my lap !"

BISHOP REINKENS, the head of the Old Catholics, is described as a man of "upright, unaffected, manly character," earnest, able, and uncompromising. He charges the Roman hierarchy with fostering priestworship, ignorance, and superstition. Yes-we knew that before!

SCIENCE has another name to add to her Roll of Honor. Dr. F. E. Anstie, of England, whose work on Stimulants and Narcotics is an able defence of the value of alcohol as a nutritive agent, has just died from the effects of a dissection-wound, inflicted while investigating the causes of a mysterious disease which had carried off several pupils in a large school at Waudsworth.

THE CATHOLICS of Colchester, Connecticut, hav ing just erected a schoolhouse of their own, appeared in force at the recent town-meeting, and carried through a resolution that the selectmen and Board of Education should appropriate such sums as they deem proper towards defraying the expenses of building it. There is talk of serving an injunction on the selectmen to stop this illegal appropriation. Such things as these are only the first drops of the shower.

COMMENTING ON a misreport of his speech at Saratoga concerning the "sympathy" resolutions, Rev. J. B. Green says wittily in the Liberal Christian : "The harness of organization, which is necessary to do Christian work in, does not gall me in the least, though I am ready to admit it is not the freedom of the wild ass; that I have no ambition to exult in." But is it not better to be a wild ass in freedom than a tame ass in the traces? If we are asses all round, why not prefer free swing for our asininity?

IT IS ASTONISHING how profound is the ignorance of some who ought to know! This original reflection is prompted by the Boston Advertiser's allusion to Voltaire as an athelat, when there is no excuse for not knowing that he was a delat. In the following remark we fancy we recognize the same prejudiced pen that last year so unscrupulously traduced Mr. Bradlaugh: "The capacious and just intellect of Franklin perceived and felt that there was a God and a difference of right and wrong, of good and evil; while Voltaire had not the mental faculties to entertain these conceptions."

THE American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions report an expenditure of $443,568 for the year 1873-4 as the cost of the missions themselves, or ninety-two per cent. of the total receipts; the home expenses being reported as eight per cent They ask $400,000 from the churches the coming year, or $500,000 from all sources, to carry on their work. If the gospel they preach is true, they ought to ask and receive, not $500,000, but $500,000,000 at the least. They teach that heathen souls are pouring into the bottomless gulf of perdition like the waters of the great Lakes over the Falls of Niagara;

SIE JOHN LUBBOCK, in his address at the Belfast meeting, thus states the four fundamental proposi-tions of Darwin's theory: "1. That no two animals or plants in Nature are identical in all respects. 2. That the offspring tend to inherit the peculiarities of their parents. S. That of those which come into existence only a certain number reach maturity. 4. That those which are, on the whole, best adapted to the circumstances in which they are placed, are most likely to leave descendants." He adds: "No one of these statements is or can be disputed, and they seem fully to justify the conclusions which Mr. Darwin has deduced from them, though not all those which have been attributed to him by his opponents." It is idle any longer to pretend that Mr. Darwin's theory is only an "hypothesis." It is a necessary reading of indisputable facts.

THE Methodist has an editorial on the Unitarian National Conference in which it says: "The Conference appeared well. The members spoke and bore themselves as men of culture, and were earnest, after their manner, which is certainly very unlike the Methodist manner. A religious body with scarce enough of the spirit of propagandism to keep it warm. must, necessarily, have a peculiar physiognomy. Having renonnced Christian dogma as an instrument of world reformation, there is left to the Unitarlans the culture and enforcement of Christian ethics, to which they devote themselves with thoughtfulness. They acknowledge none of that overmaster-ing necessity for action which creates the seal of evangelical Christians. The Unitarian intends to do something for the world and will do it, but it must be, as one would say, after he has had his dinner."

FURTHER INFORMATION relative to the "Patriotic Sons of America" is kindly furnished us by a Pennsylvania correspondent as follows: "I am not a member of the Order. They claim a membership of 10,000 in Pennsylvania. I think the Order is hostile to Rome, but not friendly to Reason. It opposes sectarianism, yet favors Protestantism-a Christianity without a Pope. It opposes a union of Church and State, yet many favor Christian features in our government. I believe the Christian States equally repudiates the union of Church and State! Ex-Governor Geary was a member of the Order, and at the same time Vice-President of the God-in-the-Constitution movement. I made a number of queries as to their idea of God, the Demands of Liberalism, etc., which the editor of the Camp News informs me will be answered in the November number."

MAYOR WILTZ, of New Orleans, recently reported to the City Council that "responsible parties" have offered to loan $1,000,000 to the city on easy terms. This offer the Council has accepted. A private correspondent gives us further information of an interesting nature on this subject. It seems that the "responsible parties" are the managers of the "Ursuline Convent" in France, which has branches all over the world contributing largely to the mother-house. This institution has now an accumulated fund of $5,000,000, untaxed of course. "I am neither politician nor financier enough to expose the full bearings of this operation," writes our informant, "but is it not self-evident that the bonds given by the city, being taken up by our Catholic citizens, will give the managers of the Convent the control of a large vote and extend the insidious influence of Rome still further? The Catholics defeated the proposed new Constitution in Ohio, and they are everywhere gathering strength to counteract every other effort on behalf of freedom. Greedy, grasping cormorants, they clutch as eagerly the hard-earned dimes of our Irish servantgirls as they do the glittering thousands bequeathed by dying 'saints.' Yours for non-exemption."

menony Google

*

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

 L. La Grille, Socretaries.
 Bosros, Mass.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Scoretaries.
 JHPFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Encoder. Becretary. Becretary. Bar Joss, Cal.-A. J. Spencer, Fresident; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre VIENLAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easiey, Secretary. OLATHE, EAX-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. Secretary. mrnort, Mics.-W. R. Hill, President; A. L. Sarris Secretary. maximum files.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary. SoBoLA, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, SoBoLA, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. D 0 Becretary. F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Barnin, Mus.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Wasningrow, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Secretary. Augunt, Ohio.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN .- President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. Nton Gretnen. W YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Berretzy, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, EAT CLAIME, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kenedy. Barnso, HyD.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New ORLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace. Johnson. NB CLEARVIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary, SAUE CITY, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Bobert Cunradi, Recordery

Secretary. Nuevera, Wis. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vany, Secretary.

[For THE INDEX.] Theology in Education. BY WILLIAM D. LESUEUR.

A recent number of Macmillan's Magazine con-

A recent number of Macmillan's Magazine con-fions an article from which very different conclusion from which were different conclusion from which were different conclusion from thirty years of age, whose education—a most plant thirty years of the most unimpeachable out thirty years of the most unimpeachable out thirty years of the most unimpeachable is of the reader. A gentleman of somewhere particle and expensive one—was watched over by particle and expensive one—was watched over by particle and expensive one—was watched over by provide and instructors of the most unimpeachable is ontension that, in spite of all the pains taken the flat stat his opinions have not taken the movies taken the believer, like his parents before him, in the doctaries of Christianity, and a stout upholder of the work of the statishity, and a stout upholder of the provide stat his opinions have not taken the movies and the stat his opinions have not taken the movies the of the statishity and a stout upholder of the provide stat the opinion is and a stout upholder of the provide stat his opinions have not taken the stout provide stat his opinions have not taken the was do provide stat the last of the statistic stout and unsath provide statistic statistic statistic statistic statistic provide statistic statistic statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic statistic statistic statistic statistic statistic provide him any uneasing and this we statistic the statistic in hove, i have statistic statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follow the statistic statistic statistic the statistic in hove, i have statistic statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follows have statistic statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follows the statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follows the statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follows the statistic statistic provide the statistic follows the statistic statistic statistic provide the statistic follows the statistic statistic statistic

'A face to lose youth for, occupy age With the dream of, meet death with !'

With the dream of, meet death with!' is yet, in my opinion, a very pleasant and compan-ionable face, one well suited to spend life with, which is, after all, what you want a wife for. That is not the painful problem—that comes on a step later. Supposing I was married and blessed, as, after all, most men are, with children, how on earth shall I educate them to keep them out of Newgate? The thought is bawildering. If I, educated on Watta's Hymns and the New Testament, am yet so hazy on moral points and distinctions which can hardly be described as nice,—such as paying my bills, using promoral points and distinctions which can hardly be described as nice,—such as paying my bills, using pro-fame language, going to church, and the like,—my son, brought up on Walter Scott and George Eliot, and the writers of his own day, will surely never pay his bills at all; his osths will be atrocious, and he will die incapable of telling the nave from the transept—and how I am to teach him better I really do not see." Of course, when a man expresses himself in this playful atrain, it is difficult to tell how far what he save is to be taken asriouely; and for my navt I am playful strain, it is difficult to tell how far what he says is to be taken serioualy; and, for my part, I am far from supposing that the author of the above pas-sage really questions his ability to bring up children to be ordinarily moral, without referring them to Dr. Watts and the New Testament as infallible stand-ards. Still, as many persons will draw in all serious-ness and with great satisfaction the conclusion to which the article referred to appears to point, it may not be amiss to show how the case really stands, if we are to accept this ingenuous confession seriously. The argument really runs thus: If a person brought up upon Watts's Hymns and the New Testament finds, when he has arrived at manbood, that his moral ideas are all at sizes and serent, it is surely in-cumbent upon him to seek some different method of training for his children. The "haziness" of which our writer complains would seem to result directly from the discovery that neither Dr. Watts nor the New Testament deals with the problems of to-day in an adequate or satisfactory manner; while on some points both are plainly at war with the intelligences and conscience of the present generation. What has he to fall back upon when these supports give way? Nothing that be has sver been taught to respect, to consult, or to confide in. He was never taught that morality had any independent basis of its own, or that there were any adequate motives to right action spart from a belief in future rewards and punish-ments. Need we go further for an explanation of any amount of "haziness"? The old Romans were not hazy upon points of duty, nor was Sophocles con-scious of any such malady, when he penned those noble lines, that have been so often quoted, upon the unchangeableness and eternity of moral obligations. Yet neither Greeks nor Romans had any shadow of a "revealed" or officially authorized code of morals. The duties they recognized were such as social inter-course, through successive generations, had estab-liahed and defined; and if theyconceived these duties as divinely sanctioned it was simply in this sense, that they believed the gods to look with approval upon the man whose life was evel. It is surely a hard thing, then, if the men of our day must either have a written code of aupernstaral origin, or else drift about in hopelees uncertainty as to what is right and what is wrong.

<text>

mething about

"a dreadful hell And everlasting pains;"

while the other, confirming the doctor fully upon this point, deals very trenchantly with those "fools" who heap up riches and honors for themselves to the ue-glect of their souls. Why take these things literally, they say? Who knows what they mean? And so they shuffle off responsibility as they could not do, if brought face to face simply with reason and con-science. Relen brought face to face aimply with reason and con-science. My opinion, then, is that belief in theological doc-trines is not necessary to produce robust moral char-acters. The true basis of morality is to be found in the relations men sustain to one another, and these relations can be studied, and the duties that they give rise to deduced, without the aid of any theological system whatever. Indeed, it seems to me that their true nature ought to be more easily understood and more powerfully felt when the entanglements of theology are kept out of sight. We should aim at making all sentiments and emotions as natural and instinctive as possible. To derive the sentiment of duty to our fellow-men from the consideration that we are all children of one Father can only weaken that sentiment by making it less instinctive, and making it depend upon a truth or a doctrine not al-ways, or perhaps even generally, present to our mind. The true ground to take is that they have feelings like our own, "ide with the same discases, healed by the same means marmed and could be the same same weapons, subject to the same lood, but with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same summer and winter," and therefore claiming from us, by virtue of a law which engraved itself upon the human conscience thousands of years ago, some measure of the consideration and care we bestow measure of the consideration and care we bestow upon ourselves. I do not deny that children are great teleologists, and that the answers which an undoubling thelat can give to their questions satisfy them better sometimes than the confessions of ignorance which an instruct-or of different opinions must often make. But this disadvantage, I consider, is more than counterbal-anced by the advantage of not having to introduce confusing and contradictory ideasinto a child's mind. Bernardin de St. Pierre, who wrote more sensible things in his day than most people are aware of, says in one place: "J'al toujours regardé comme un des

A 1874.
The second state of the seco

In their minds is what I have never been the is understand. Children, I need hardly remark, are the first to per-ceive the want of agreement between the theory of God and that image of him in their parents' mids which stamps their conversation and their devices. The theory is that God is at all times equally god, but the child soon perceives that he gets credit is certain times for being particularly god. The theory is that he is infinitely wise, but the parents nevri a day pass that they do not indicate to him whith they think he is going to do. When children all attention to these contradictions, they are build with the edifying remark that "We cannot mele-stand;" and they thus learn that, in relation to cre-tain matters at least, it is quite allowable to spose thing and mean another, to profess one thing and act another. act anoth

I readily grant that there are carnest believes in I readily grant that there are earnest believen God whose language concerning him is not ope the objections I have just urged, and whose view the subject of prayer are closely skin to those of of the best abused of modern philosopher. O ridge, for example, has told us in some very known lines how he understood and mat Cole very welltied prayer :-

"Free on my bed my limbs I lay, If hath not been my use to pray With moving lips or bended knees; But silently, by slow degrees, My spirit I to love compose; In humble trust mine cyclide close, With reverential resignation; No wish conceived, no thought expressed, Only a sense of supplication; A sense of all my scul imprest That I an weak, yet not unblest. Since in me, round me, everywhere, Eternal strength and wisdom are."

Nor are these sentiments of altogether moden date. In a letter written by M. Ainglin to the com-munity of Port Royal, on the occasion of the death of Jacqueline Pascal, I find the following remarkable Jacqueline Pascal, I find the following remarkable "For some days past, I have been struck by thought: It is as to our impertinence in desiring any thing or in fearing anything, in wishing that this should happen or that not happen, that these percei-end in the structure of the sould not live, as if Sore-sing Wisdom and Justice did not see everything or which God stood in need, in order to dispose and govern everything for the best. This thought offen inclined to wish that God would either do or refah from doing a certain thing. All we have to do is to a state to stop short upon occasions when I and to seek him in order that we may know the will a submitting ourselves to all events, and only correr-ing ourselves about what devolves upon as to do, lest we should mix with it something of our own, and lace our own providence above that of God." But when one has purified bits thoughts of God to his extent, is the residual conception one that is likely to prove of much value in education? I must itation is allowed to doubt it. It seems to me that itations is allowed to doubt it. It seems to me that its wery little difference batween discoursing to shild about the permanence and beneficience of in-

manning Google

and telling about a personal God of whose personal-ity yon can give him no illustrations whatever, and whom you never allow yourself to address or plead with as if he were a person. The world at large, in fact, utterly rejects such conceptions, and it is hardly fact, atterty rejects such conceptions, and it is hardly too much to say that to some persona M. Alnglin's views would appear little better than atheistic. The prime requisite of a popular religion is that It be comforting, and the average man can find but little comfort in the thought of such complete self-abnega-tion, such absolute submission to a Providence that there is no tracing or understanding, as the Jamsenist father would enjoin. When men can raise them-selves to this level they are ready for philosophy, which, to tell the truth, has no harder lesson to which, to tell the truth, has no harder lesson to teach. To conclude: the natural source of love, affection, and moral life in children is the love, affection, and moral life of their parents. It was a wise man who hash long ago: "If a man love not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" Human affections first, spiritual aspira-tions afterwards. But grant the loving heart and the sense of duty which must in larger or smaller mesa-ure accompany it, and what may you not build upon such a foundation? Is it any longer a question of keeping your children out of Newgate or Sing Sing? For my part, I ask nothing of theology towards the education of my children, but rather rejoice that the painful task has been spared me of stifling in their minds the repugnance which doctrines like those of the Fall of Man and of the Atonement so naturally reste. What I shall endeavor to do will be to bring them up with minds open to the truth, so that, if I err in my tacking, they may not be life-long victims of my mistakes, but may shaps their opinions ac-cording to their own enlarging knowledge; and that, living not upon traditions but upon convictions, they may be able to quit themselves like men and women in the generation to which they belong.

PRAYER AND NATURAL LAW

FROM PROFESSOR TYNDALL'S "FRAGMENTS OF SCI-ENCE."

The aspects of Nature are more varied and impres-sive in Alpine regions than elsewhere. The mount-sins in their setting of desp-blue sity; the glow of firmament and peaks at sunrise and sunset; the formation and distribution of clouds; the descent of rain, hall, and enow; the stealthy alide of glaclers and the rush of avalanches and rivers; the fury of storms; thunder and lightning, with their occasional accompaniement of blazing woods-all these things tend to excite the feelings and to bewilder the mind. In this entanglement of phenomena it seems hopeless to seek for law or orderly connection. And before the thought of law dawned upon the human mind men naturally referred these inexplicable effects to personal agency. The savage saw in the fall of a cataract the leap of a spirit, and the echoed thunder-peal was to him the hammer-clang of an exasperated god. Propitiation of these terrible powers was the consequence, and sacrifice was offered to the demons of earth and alr.

god. Propinizion of these territie powers was the consequence, and sacrifice was offered to the demons of earth and air. But observation tends to chasten the emotions and to check those structural efforts of the intellect which have emotion for their base. One by one natural phenomena have been associated with their proximate causes; and the idea of direct personal volition mixing itself in the economy of Nature is retreating more and more. Many of us fear this tendency; our faith and feelings are dear to us, and we look with suspicion and disike on any philosophy, the apparent tendency of which is to dry up the soul. Probably every change from ancient savagery to our present enightenment excited, in a greater or less degree, a fear of this kind. But the fact is, that we have not yet determined whether the form under which they now appear in the world is necessary to the life and warmth of religious feeling. We may err in linking the imperishable with the transitory, and confound the living plant with the decaying point to argie, but to mark a tendency. We have eased to propitate the powers of Nature—ceased even to pray for things in manifest contradiction to the rate laws. In Protestant countries, at least, I think it is conceded that the age of miracles is as present in no enteral laws. In Protestant countries, that is should not presume to eater upon a discussion of this subject on its entire merits. But there is one little outing point, which attaches itself to this question, on which a student of science, without quitting the ground which attaches itself to this question, on which a student of science, without quitting the ground which attaches itself to this question, or which a student of science, without quitting the mark.

At the anberge, near the foot of the Rhone glacler, I met, in the summer of 1858, an athletic young priest, who, after a solid breakfast, including a bottle of wine, informed me that he had come up to "bless the mountains." This was the annual custom of the place. Year by year the Highest was entreated, by official intercessors, to make such meteorological ar-rangements as should insure food and sheiter for the flocks and herds of the Valaisians. A diversion of the Rhone, or a deepening of the river's bed, would have been of incalculable benefit to the inhabitants of the valley at the time I now mention. But the Omnipotent to open a new channel for the river, or to cause a portion of it to flow over the Grimmel Pass, and down the vale of Oberhaeli to Brientz. This he would have deemed a miracle, and he did not come to ask the Creator to perform miracles, but to do something which he manifestly thought lay quite within the bounds of the natural and non-miracu-At the anberge, near the foot of the Rhone glacier, lous. A Protestant gentleman, who was present at the time, smiled at this recital. He had no faith in the prices's blessing; still he deemed his prayer differ-ent in kind from a request to open a new river-cut, or to cause the water to flow up-hill. In a similar manner we Protestants amile at the honest Tyrolese priest, who, when he feared the bursting of a giacier-dam, offered the sacrifice of the mass upon the ice as a means of averting the calami-ty. That poor man did not expect to convert the ice into adamant, or to strengthen its tarture so as to en-able it to withstand the pressure of the water; nor did he expect that his eacrifice would cause the stream to roll back upon its source and relieve him, by a miracle, of its presence. But beyond the boun-daries of his know not how. He was not so pre-sumptions as to expect a miracle, but he firmly be lieved that in yonder cloud-land matters could be so arranged, without trespass on the miraculous, that the atream which threstened him and his flock should be caused to shrink within its proper bounds. Both these priests fashioned that which they did the stream which threatened him and his flock should be caused to shrink within its proper bounds. Both these priests fashioned that which they did not understand to their respective wants and wishes. In their case imagination wrought, unconditioned by a knowledge of laws. A similar state of mind was long prevalent among mechanicians; many of whom, and some of them extremely skilful ones, were occu-pled a century ago with the question of a perpetual motion. They aimed at constructing a machine which should execute work without the expenditure of power; and many of them went mad in the pur-suit of this object. The faith in such a consumma-tion, involving as it did immense personal interest to the inventor, was extremely exciling, and every at-tempt to destroy this faith was met by bitter resent-ment on the part of those who held it. Gradually, however, as men became more and more scquainted with the true functions of machinery, the dream dis-solved. The hope of getting work out of mere me-chanical combinations disappeared; but still there remained for the speculator a cloud-land denser than that which filled the imagination of the Tyrolese priest, and out of which he still hoped to evolve per-petual motion. There was the mystic store of chemic force, which nobody understood; there were hast and light, electricity and magnetism, all competent to produce mechanical motions. * Here, then, is the mine in which we must seek our gem. A modified and more refined form of the ancient faith revived; to produce mechanical motions. - Here, taen, is the mina in which we must seek our gem. A modified and more refined form of the ancient faith revived; and, for aught I know, a remnant of sanguine de-signers may at the present moment be engaged on the problem which like-minded man in former years left unsolved.

the problem which like-minded man in former years left unsolved. And why should a perpetual motion, even under modern conditions, be impossible? The answer to this question is the statement of that great generali-zation of modern science, which is known under the name of the Conservation of Energy. This principle asserts that no power can make its appearance in Nature without an equivalent expenditure of some other power; that natural agents are so related to new agency is created. Light runs into heat; heat into electricity; electricity into magnetism; magnet-ism into mechanical force; and mechanical force again into light and heat. The Proteus changes, but he is ever the same; and his changes in Nature, sup-posing no miracle to supervene, are the expression, not of spontanelty, but of physical necessity. A per-petual motion, then, is deemed impossible, because it demands the creation of force; whereas the princi-ple of Conservation is, no creation but infinite con-version. It is an old remark that the law which moulds a ple of Conservation is, no creation but minute services of the service of the ser

inone over the Grimsel precipices and down Hasli-thal to Brientz. It seems to me quite beyond the present power of science to demonstrate that the Tyroless prizet, or his colleague of the Rhone valley, asked for an "im-possibility" in praying for good weather; but science can demonstrate the incompleteness of the knowl-edge of Nature which limited their prayers to this narrow ground; and she may lessen the number of instances in which we "ask amiss," by showing that we sometimes pray for the performance of a miracle when we do not intend it. She does assert, for ex-ample, that, without a disturbance of natural law, quite as serious as the stoppage of an eclipse, or the rolling of the St. Lawrence up the Falls of Niagara, no act of humiliation, individual or national, could call one shower from heaven, or deflect toward us a single beam of the sun. Those, therefore, who believe that the miraculous single beam of the sun. Those, therefore, who believe that the miraculous is still active in Nature, may, with perfect consisten-cy, join in our periodic prayers for fair weather and for rain: while those who hold that the age of mira-cles is past will refuse to join in such petitions. And if these latter wish to fall back upon such a justification, they may fairly urge that the latest con-clusions of aclence are in perfect accordance with the doctrine of the Master himself, which manifestly was that the distribution of natural phenomena is not affected by moral or religious causes. "He mak-eth his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." Grant-ing "the power of free-will in man," so strongly claimed by Professor Maneel in his admirable defence of the belief in miracles, and assuming the efficacy of free prayer to produce changes in external Nature, it necessarily follows that natural laws are more or less at the mercy of man's volition, and no conclusion founded on the assumed permanence of the same would be worthy of confidence. It is a wholescome sign for England that he numbers among her clergy men wise enough to act up to their knowledge. Such men do service to the public character by encouraging a manly and intelligent of the same also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond this local and setting which they have also a value beyond this local and they have also a value beyond the local and they have also a value beyond the local and they while they have also a value beyond the local and they have also a value beyond the local and they will shive an iron envelope, and the more unyleiding the metal is, the worse for its asfety. There are men and y arigid anvelope, hoping thereby to restrain the built in reality giving it explosive force. If we want an illustration of this we have only to look at modern Rome. In England, thanks to men of the same to though tor changes of aggregation, and the envelope slowly alters its form in accordance with the necessatiles of the time.

* See Helmholtz-Wechschwirkung der Naturkräfte.

"OLD CATHOLICISM."

THE GREAT HISTORIC MOVEMENT IN EUROPE-THE NEW EMPIRE AND THE ANCIENT CHURCH.

BY D. A. WASSON.

<text><text><text><text>

inguased by Google

496

<text><text><text><text><text>

of an imputed sanctity. The church would no longer be corrupted by the lust of power. Catholicism—the Catholic religion—would remain intact to live and grow peacefully, or in peace to pass into other forms of faith, as the laws of human thought and the needs of human sentiment should determine. In the coun-cils of States it would have no enemy, as in the conclaves of political conspirators no emissary.— Advertiser. Advertiser

TAXING CHURCH PROPERTY.

THE MAJOBITY OF A COMMITTEE APPOINTED BY THE ILLINOIS METHODIST CONFERENCE DECIDE IN FA-VOB OF TAXATION.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE. The committee to whom was referred the question of the tarstion of church property report that in their judgment no distinction should be made be-their judgment no distinction should be made be-their judgment no distinction should be made be-the reasons that have led them to this conclusion: . The following are some of the governments are instituted for the protection of the lives and property of the clitzens. It is but just port of the government. But church property is than protected, and therefore church property ought to pay it share of taxes for the support of the clitzens. . A character of the support of the clitzens. . The scamption of church property from taxation is a donation by the government to the churches of by the constitution to aid any religious denomination, and it cannot do indirectly what it is prohibited from hours thus exempted. The State is forbidden by the constitution to aid any religious denomination, and it cannot do indirectly what it is prohibited from hours thus exemption of church property from taxation would cause the State to do this. In the United States, according to the last census, the value of church property from taxation would be to the to the churches to an amount greater than an anount of property from taxation of one species of proputed the tithe system of England. . . Anasmuch as the exemption of one species of property from taxation necessarily increases the support of thurch property would be to levy a cocred con-top the top roperty from other sources, to ex-mpt church property would be to levy a cocred con-tubution from such sources for the benefit of the ex-empt church property and the benefit of the ex-empt church property and the benefit of the ex-empt church prometary and the property be exempted to the taxet of taxes of church property be exempted to the ex-metation from such sources for the benefit of the ex-empt church property is the property be exempted to the ex-tension.

smpt church property would be to levy a coerced contribution from such sources for the benefit of the exempted party.
4. If any class of church property be exempted from taxation because it is wholly devoted to the interests of religion, then in justice must all property be exempted that is wholly devoted to the interests of religion, whether church edifices, parsonages, mission houses, Sunday school rooms, Bible society building, monasteries or nunneries. For
5. Inasmuch as under our system of government all denominations are equal in the eye of the law, and the State favors no system of religion, exemption from taxation must not be limited to the property of the Protestant churches, but must embrace also that of the Roman Catholice, Jews, Mormons, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Freethinkers, and all others who claim to bave a religion.
6. The argument that church property should be exempt from taxation because it is unproductive is evidently invalid, because the State presumes all property to be productive, and will not allow that presumption to be rebutted. If it be productive, the for a society to claim exemption from taxation on that ground would be to take advantage of its own wrong.
7. If it be claimed that church property should be that ground would be to take advantage of its own wrong. T. If it be claimed that church property should be exempted because of the benefit the Church renders to the State, it may be replied that the Church is under obligation to render that benefit whether its property is taxed or not. And any other view of the case would place the Church in the attitude of bar-gaining for the favor of the State, and would thus neutralize that spirit of disinterested benevolence which is at the very foundation of all Christian effort. 8. If it be objected that the taxation of church property is an infidel measure for the injuring of re-ligion, it may be replied that those called infidels have had much to do with many measures right in them-selves. It is supposed that those who are regarded as infidels in this day had something to do with drawing up the Declaration of Independence, but that certain-ly does not prove that document injurious. For a time infidels were the chief, and almost the sole, advo-cates of the great antislavery movement, but their iy does not prove that document injurious. For a time infidela were the chief, and almost the sole, advocates of the great antislavery movement, but their advocacy of it does not prove that movement a wrong one. We are to judge measures by their own merits, and not by the character of their advocates. 9. If it be argued that church property should be exempted because school property is exempted, it may be replied that the school is the creature of the State, whilst the Church is the institution of God, and there is no analogy between the two. 10. As to the effect of taring the property of the church upon the interest of religion, it appears to your committee that it can but be ben-ficial. It will show to the world that the only favor the Church asks of the State is protection in her God-given right. It will show that the separation between the Church and the State, partial only where the Church is exempted from taration, is complete, and whilst they see the Church rendering unto Cæsar the things which are God's. Respectfully submitted.

JAMES LEATON, M. D. HAWES.

THERE ARE two reasons why some people don't mind their own business. One is that they haven't any business, and the other is that they haven't any mind.

RELIGION AND REFORM.

There is a passage in the last number of Mr. Ab-bot's INDEX which surprises me, and seems to me very nutrue. It is as follows, one clause being omitted :-- enemy. Analyze the opposition to any forward step of progress, and you will find its roots in the Churd or the Bible." The clause here omitted is simply a sneer at the sileged "dullness" of the Woman's Journal; and this seems to me to be in as bad taste as was a similar ener uttered by the Independent against The Inner, under conditions almost precisely similar, a few weeks ago. Such personalities between newspapen, like personalities between individuals, only confuse the argument, and are very unprofitable. But the charge really made against the Woman's Journal is worth noticing, because it leads us to prin-ciples which always need reaffirming, and which its at the basis of every true reform. If the assertion that this paper pulls the Woman Suffragecausedown again by "eulogizing the Gospel which is to-day its into a paper pulls the the argument exclusively an that basis, to the exclusion of other lines of argument which have nothing to do with the Gospel. Now if this were so, I, for one, should be very sorry; but must honestly say that the charge seems to me very unjust. Let us consider the matter. There never was a moment in the Antislavery movement when there were not Christian who which have nothing to do with the good sense of the Abolitionistis always enabled them to see that the againt by the based a distinctively Christian position-and freethinkers who wiebed it to take a distinctively antichristian attitude. But the good sense of the Abolitionistis always enabled them to see that their againto must be based aimply on grounds of hu-manity and justice; letting Christians come to its how more question as to the creed or anticreed of their opponents than if they were all so many volunter firemen running to put out a fire-which, indeed they were. Thus Garrison and Parker could work its good faith with stoutly evangelical Christian like Wendeil Phillips and John Brown; and thus the fid was won. Looking back over the file of the Womar's Jow-

Wendell Phillips and John Brown; and thus he field mas won. Looking back over the file of the Woman's Jou-nal—which I feel able to judge impartially, having no editorial charge of its columns,—it seems to me to have offered, from the beginning, just this liberal platform. If it had aimed to conciliate the current Christianity, or any form of Christianity, or of anti-Christianity, in order to ald its cause, it would have done wrong and weakened its ground. But it has gone straight forward on its course, urging Woman Suffrage for its own sake, and appealing to Christian to support it from their point of view, and non-Chris-tians from theirs. To do anything else would be to fall into the very narrownees that we all should wish to escape. In the service of a practical reform, let us opponent; and vice versa. If the Methodist univer-sities admit women, while the secular Harvard keps them out, let us be grateful to the Methodist so far-just as the freedmen of the South have reason to bless Blabop Haven, who does them justice, rather than the freethinking Golden Age, which does them persistent injustice. It is well known, to those who care to know, that persistent injustice. It is well known, to those who care to know, that than the freethinking Golden Age, which does them persistent injustice. It is well known, to those who care to know, the persistent injustice. It is well known, to those who care to know, the fiberal churches; but in the those of even the liberal churches; but in position to any forward step of progress, and you will dit the roots in the Church or the Bible." I do not see how any just man can deliberately say this. The doposition to any forward step of progress, and you will also roots in the Church or the Bible." I do not see how any just man can deliberately say this. The doposition to any forward step of progress finds its basis for deposition to any forward step of progress finds its basis for deposition to any for the forms of human debasement; and a man, utterly given over to pure science, may made an any, utterly given over to pure science, may made an any, utterly given over to pure science, may made and a man, utterly given over to pure science may made and a 'Nott & Gliddon' on the other. "Cured be canaan' was hardly a more potent weapon again the the advocates of Woman Suffrage now. How but what has Paul to do with the attitude of Dr. Clarke or Professor Maudeley, of Goldwin Smither from which the Nation predicted "almost revolution that function it allows and work at may the man was the age to be builted by manery and working woman; and in our owner reform the Sootch Preebyterian clergymen are very generalin favor of entranchising woman; and in our owner reform in favor of entranchising woman; and in our owner, the work of the site of the site owner work of the site of owner, the leaver and south remain essentially the same as before. Our manery but thes at two does and the site work of the site of owner, where the world, the flesh, and the devil," wherever they are wrong. And on the other hand, we must weicome any one, be be Christian or infidel, who will work heartily with us against these ills. T. W. H. -Woman's Journal.

0000 Sight ed by

THE POPE'S NEW POSITION.

<text><section-header><text>

GUIZOT.

GUIZOT. François Pierre Guillaume Guizot was born at Nimes, on the 4th of October, 1787, so that he lacked less than a month of completing his eighty-seventh year. His father was an advocate, a Protestant, and a victim of the revolution in 1704. In consequence of this bereavement, and the disordered state of the country, young Guizot was taken to Geneva, where he was thoroughly educated. At the age of twelve he was thoroughly educated. At the age of twelve he was thoroughly educated. At the age of twelve he was thoroughly educated. At the age of twelve he was thoroughly educated with a age of twelve he was thoroughly educated with German, Italian, and Eng-lish. In 1805 he retarned to Paris after a short stay n Languedoc, and was there introduced into literary tociety. He became acquainted with Mile. Pauline le Meulan, and, although she was fourteen years his senior, he married her in 1812. His wife had long teen editor of a magazine entitled the Publicist, and ter relations with the chief of the royalist party were he means of giving Guizot an 'entrance into political ife.

he means of giving Guizot an entrance into political ife. Before his marriage, in 1809, he had published his irst work—a revision of Gerard's French Synonyms, ieveral other works followed—a Lines of the French Poets, a translation of Gibbon's Decline and Fall, The State of the Fine Arts in France, etc. In 1812 he ras appointed Professor of Modern History in the jorbonne. With the fall of Napoleon he entered political life. He was Secretary General of the De-artment of the Interior in 1814, of Justice in 1815, after of the present duke and Minister of Foreign lifairs, he held a high position, which he resigned in 820 on the fall of that cabinet. Meanwhile he had een publishing various works of a very liberal ten-ency, which cost him his seat in the Council of State; and finally he was commanded in 1822 to discontinue is historical lectures in the Sorbonne, resumed after le resignation of political offics, the sentiments he dvanced being distasteful to the conservative govern-ten. He then devoted himself exclusively to litera-ire, producing historical works with a political bear-ing in rapid succession. In 1827 he had the misfor-ane to lose his wife, but the following year he married again, his second wife being a niece of the first Madame Guizot, and like her an author. The Martignac ministry restored him to his chair st the Sorbonne in 1828, and his lectures gave him great popularity. In January, 1830, he entered the Uhamber of Deputies, and was prominent in the con-test which brought about the revolution of July and the establishment of the Orleans dynasty. On the accession of King Louis Philippe he was named Min-ister of the Interior, but held the position but a few months. In 1832 he again became minister, and held the pisce four years. In 1840 he was appointed Ambassador to Great Britain, but after a very few months he was recalled to take a place in the cabinet of Marshal Souit, of which he was the real head for more than seven years. It is needless to repeat the history of that time, or to detail the successive steps and blunders by which the ministry, and particularly M. Guizot, lost their popularity, and the reign of the clitzen king came to an inglorious end. M. Guizot only resigned when the revolution had actually begun. With the act of resignation, followed by Guizot's flight to England, ended forever his political career. The published works of M. Guizot are very volu-minous, and they have established his litterary fame on a sure foundation, but it is not necessary to cata-logue them here. His latest labor, we believe, was upon a history of France, which is published in both French and English in a manner worthy of itself.— Boston Advertiser.

THE "CHRISTIAN WORLD" AT MILL'S GRAVE.

It behooves all of us, who have not yet done so, to read the Autobiography, by John Stuart Mill; were there no other reason, the gratitude due to so eminent a pioneer of progress should awaken a deep interest in the record of his life. It is not too much to say that the bar and the second

read the Autobiography, by John Stuart Mill; were there no other reason, the gratitude due to so eminent a pioneer of progress should awaken a deep interest in the record of his life. It is not too much to say that this book, the legacy of the modern Spiridion, has done more in reversing the fortunes of Orthodoxy than anything else for many years. Had it appeared prior to the formation of the Mill Memorial Committee, it would probably have alienated the patronage of many of the digni-taries and quasi-distinguished persons who now slt thereon. As it was, its publication seemed to cast quite a spell of consternation over the ranks of the religious and conservative organs, and other incor-rigible admirers of the status quo; and it is only lately they have sufficiently retrieved themelves to raise a discordant chorus of disparagement, which even the tiny yelp of the Leisure Hour does its best to swell, imitating in its way the anarling of Fraser, and the fierce grow of the Maga. But the most mendacious attempt at detraction of all was reserved for that pop-ular exponent of bilious piety, the Christian Evi-dence Journal, says: "But why does the writer of a good asticle on Mill's Autobiography call Gibbon-the autor of one of the two or three histories that will ever live in our literature- a vain, heartless sen-sulat, and orait Mill in preference? What could be more heartless than Mill's conduct to Mr. Taylor, whose widow he married? He, a calm philosopher, not a vain sensualist or impalsive fool, coolly alien-nated the wife's affections from the husband with whom she had no fault to find. We can imagine nothing more selfish. At any rate, it should serve as a caution to married men how they open their doors to pilosophers in search of the greatest happinees of the greatest number.'' The vulgar, would-be jocosity of the latter part of the paragraph will gauge us the any one at all acquisited with the beautiful charac-ter of Mill, this malignant misrepresentation is its on yone at all acquisited with the beauti

The Christian World calumniators of Mill, the theologians who have toiled for a century to bury in slanders the memory of Thomas Paine, the monks who would have slain Galileo, are one party,--the party of arrogant Orthodoxy. "They are the same dogs with different collars." The lesson to be learnt from the spectacle of their baseness is the necessity of a true system of education to lay a sure founda-tion of justice and purity for conduct; superseding the dogmatic commands of a musty theology, which have made the sense of right-doing a mere supersti-tion, where, indeed, they have not obliterated it alto-gether, as in the case before us.--W. Larner Sugden, in London National Reformer.

AN AFFECTIONATE young husband calls his wife "Birdle," because, he says, she is always associated in his mind with a bill.—National Baptist.

A LITTLE GIBL was one day reading the History of England, with her governess; and coming to the statement that Henry I. never laughed after the death of his son, she looked up and said: "What ever did he do when he was tickled ?"

Haetry.

[For THE INDEX.]

497

A VOCATION.

ST MRS. D. H. CLARK

It thrilis, like a new, strange guest,-This wide, free outlook on wind-swept scars,-Where I, by pastures, and meadow-bars Set black on the gold of the burning west, Loiter, a bidden guest-

Bidden of beauty-impelled To set my feet toward the utter rim Of the Visible, where, far and dim, In dust of the violet air are held The tremulous hills, as of eld.

What am I, that I should turn back

To the blazoned windows of the town, Touched by the sun on his Midas-track ? Better to stay on the breeze-blown down, Where awcetness shall never lack.

Who waits for, or misses, me? Who waits for, or misses, mor Not one,-though, a weary allen, I Should stray, from the dusk till the dawn-flushed sky Thrilled on my way, like the roses which lie In the path of a bridal-company.

.....

An onward seeking, a farther quest, Where the gold is drossed into orimson stain To change on change-till the gray remains, The only rack of that burning west; And into my lonely breast

A messenger comes like a dove,

With a song like pearls of an untold price: "Though never for thes shall be home and love, For thee, at thy birth, the three Fates wove The richest of destinies. e and love,

"To set thyself in another's place; To sound the depths of all mortal grief; To reach the heights of all mortal grace-And the world's mute life to paraphrase!" O passionate heart's relief-

O duty bitter-aweat,

To gather up into painful sheaves The grain which the full-fed reaper leaves I O precious gold of the scattered wheat, Deep-trodden by careless feat!

NORTHUMBRELAND, PA.

CASE RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 10.

Boldhjes, e. C. H. Kollarvis, J. W. M.Kieven, 42.78.
 Alt receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and do other receipt sent unless apecially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.
 N. B.—Please remit by post-office money-order, by registered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the ordelis.
 N. B.—Orders for Tracts or single numbers of The Issuerwise filled to the same amount without further notice.
 N. B.—Orders on THE ISDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the drive number, payable in advance at the place of delivery.
 N. B.—When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of such remotive noce any error in either.

RECEIVED.

Books.

THE LEGENES. THE LEGENESS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT, Traced to their Apparent Frimitive Sources. By Thomas Lumisden Strange, late a Judge of the High Court of Madras, London: Trübner & Co., 57 and 59 Ludgate Hill. 1874. THE DEVELOPMENT OF CREATION ON THE EASTH. By Thomas Lumisden Strange. London: Trübner & Co. 1874. THE BUILDING OF A REAIN. By Edward H. Clarke, M.D., Author of Sex in Education. Boston: J. R. Usgood & Co. 1874.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

Pamphlets and Periodicals. PRINTIVE CHURCH HINTORY.-WHAT IS THE CRURCH OF ENGLAND? A Question for the Age. By an EX-Clergy-man.-SiORS OF THE TIMES.-PROFESSOR TYNALL'S Ab-DERMARKS (From the Inquirer.)-All published by Thomas Scott, Esq., of London. 1874. DER MARKELALISMOR. Von P. Engelmann. Abwehr und Zurückweisung der auf den Maserialismus und dessen Ablänger von einem evgl. Pastor gemachten öffentlichen Angriffe. Milwaukee: Biron & Birucker. 1874. THE UNITARIAN REVIEW. October, 1874. Boston: L. C. Bowles.

Demonstra Google

The Index.

498

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Lovo. N. B.—No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case he distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT, Associate Editor. ABBLAM WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor. OUTAVIDS BROOMS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RIDHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MEM. E. D. CHENEY, RAY. CHARLES VOYSEY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .-- Only Short Arti-es desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 15, 1874.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

A Convention of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Providence, at Howard Hall, beginning Wednesday evening, the 28th of October, and holding through Thursday, the 29th. Messrs. Frothingham, Higginson, Weiss, Abbot, Gannett, Mrs. Cheney, and other speakers are expected to be present. Further particulars will be given hereafter in the Providence papers.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec'y F. R. A.

COSTUME CONCERTS are to be given for the benefit of the Appleton Temporary Home at Tremont Temple, beginning November 2 and continuing through the week. Tickets, 75 cents: for sale at Oliver Ditson's Music Store, 277 Washington St., Boston.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for Afteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

AN ARTICLE in Col. Higginson's Woman's Journal, which we reprint elsewhere, rebukes us for referring to that paper as "the rather dull setting of weekly jewels" of his own. This he calls a "sneer;" it was a compliment, and well deserved. That we find his articles by far the most readable part of that journal may be evidence of a defective taste; but we find ourself in a large company of people with the same defect. As to the rest of the article, we would rather leave it unanswered: if the rebukes it administers are just, they are deserved, but if not, our readers will find that out for themselves.

"NATURAL MORALITY" we take to be the sum total of moral relations as they really ought to be in themselves, and not as they are conceived to be by men. Our knowledge of them, like our knowledge of everything else, is necessarily imperfect, and subject to constant correction by experience and thought. Hence, on the one hand, natural morality never changes, but is "immutable;" while, on the other hand, the knowledge of it is a "progressive science," and changes constantly as men grow wiser. The distinction we point out is analogous to that which might be drawn between mathematical truth and the science of mathematics. Nobody supposes that the square of the hypothenuse of a right-angled triangle was ever other than equal to the sum of the squares of the remaining two sides; yet nobody supposes that this truth was known to man when he was living in the Stone Age. Mathematics as a science have had a history; so has morality as a science. But both have for their subject-matter what is in its essence eternal. Whatever, for instance, men have thought about truth-telling (and lying has been more than once thought virtuous), was it ever anything but a virtue in Itself? The moment one comprehends that moral relations are fixed by the nature of things, although the human race is continually learning to understand them better, he must see that no will can be the basis of moral obligation, and must grasp without difficulty the meaning of the phrase "natural morality." It would be impossible to "raise the standard of natural morality;" all that can be raised is the comprehen-sion and the practice of it. Perhaps these brief statements will answer some inquiries recently put to US.

ON BEHALF OF THE INDIANS.

Since our last issue, we have received a call from Mr. John Beeson, more familiarly known as "Father Beeson," who for the past twenty years has devoted nearly his whole time, and a large part of his personal means, to efforts for the protection and elevation of the Indians. The following extract from a letter written to him under date of September 30, 1874, by Mr. D. W. C. Duncan, a Cherokee Indian of mixed blood, will show that he has won the confidence of at least one well-educated member of a much-wronged race: "In the first place let me express to you my sincere gratitude for the interest you have taken in my race. What could have prompted you to do so? Are you the only white man that can see anything in the Indian worth caring for? Perhaps not. Yet it sometimes seems as though all mankind, both saints and sinners, have joined hands against us. It is certainly very gratifying to know that there is even one white man who is willing, only from motives of pure benevolence, to befriend the Indians. God bless us!"

Our first impression was that nothing practical could be done to reach the deep-seated causes of public indifference towards the Indians. There has been abundant talk and but little valuable action on the part of those who would like to see simple justice to them secured. But a favorable opportunity seems now to offer itself for doing something tangible in the way of helping to a just solution of the Indian question, and between us this subscription paper was drawn up for immediate circulation in this vicinity by Mr. Beeson himself :--- by Mr. Beeson himself:--Boston, Oct. 8, 1874. We, the undersigned, desire to hold a public meet-ing in Boston at an early day, in order to appoint and send one or more delegates to a general council of the various tribes in the Indian Ter-ritory, already called to assemble in that Terri-tory in the first week of November, and to raise sufficient funds to defray their necessary ex-penses. The object in sending these delegates is to obtain from the Indians themselves an authentic statement, from their own point of view, of the rea-sons why the "peace policy" of the Administration has thus far failed, --of their actual wrongs, griev-and causes of complaint against the United States government, -- and of the special measures of pridege ourselves to pay the sums set opposite our re-spective names whenever the total amount sub-scibed shall have reached two hundred ($200.00) dollars, for the purpose of paying all the expenses of the meeting above described.

Mr. Beeson undertook the disagreeable task of going about in person to raise as much as possible of the regulaite amount, and to secure such speakers as Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, Henry Wilson, and other friends of the Indians, for the meeting itself. It would seem that so simple and unpretending, yet really worthy and feasible move-ment, ought to succeed. There would be great value in a direct statement by the Indians themselves, assembled in general council, of their own wrongs and wants; and the presence of one or more delegates, sent on purpose to express the sympathy and promise the cooperation of white friends of their race, would probably stimulate them to make an earnest appeal to the justice-loving portion of the American people. This would undoubtedly be published by the press all over the country, help to influence legislation at Washington, and strengthen the hands of the Administration in what we believe to be a sincere general purpose (though it has been sometimes, as in the case of the Custer expedition, wofully betrayed) to deal fairly with the Indians. Everything in the line of reform in this country depends on public opinion; and it seems to be a sober and reasonable expectation that real good would result from such a delegation as is proposed. Mr. Beeson himself stands ready to go to the Indian council, as a member of the delegation, and perhaps a companion might be found to accompany him. For these reasons we wish to help the project of this self-sacrificing man as much as possible, and therefore submit the foregoing statement to our readers.

Whoever is interested in the Indian question, and satisfied that the plan now proposed is a practical one, may send his contribution to our personal address; we agree to report in these columns all sums thus received, and to pay them over to the person or persons who may be appointed to receive them at the contemplated public meeting, when held. If the meeting should not be held after all, or if in our judgment any other reason exists why the money ought not to be paid out, we further agree to refund the same to the contributors. Any surplus above the sum required for the actual expenses of the meeting will be available in carrying out the objects for which it is called. How many friends the Indians may have among our readers, we do not know but we hope that all who are such will improve this opportunity of doing them what promises to be a substantial service.

TYNDALL'S CORRECTION.

Professor Tyndall, in the revision of his Belfan address for the press, has altered the already famous passage in which he spoke of matter as containing "the promise and potency of every form and quality of life." It now reads thus: "By an intellectual pecessity I cross the boundary of experimental evidence, and discern in that matter which we, in our igno rance of its latent powers, . . . have hitherto covered with opproblum, the promise and polency of all terrestrial life."

The addition of the phrase "by an intellectual ne cessity" is a hint at that use of the "scientific imagination" for which Tyndall is a strong advocate, and is probably intended as his defence against the charge of an unscientific procedure in "prolonging the vision backwards across," or (as he now puts it more briefly) "crossing," the "boundary of experimental evidence." We should interpret this new phrase as really a recognition of the absurdity of supposing that facts do not necessitate the logical inferences which they potentially contain. Nobody but in idiot can stop with "experimental evidence," as this is usually conceived; there is an iron connection between premise and conclusion which couples "erperimental evidence" with trans-experimental consequences in all minds that are gifted with any degree of reasoning power. In other words, it is useless to treat such results of thought as the law of natural selection, for instance, as if it were a mere "bypothesis" that could be approved or discarded on a balancing of probabilities. Some things are certain, if other things are true; and Tyndall is justified in refusing to be tied down to bare facts, if these facts are pregnant with necessary truth. Whether in this instance he has got in all the facts that must be included before the somewhat vague inference he draws can become a necessity, is another question. His right to "cross the boundary" is indisputable; but he does not make it sufficiently clear where he pitches his tent.

The substitution of "all terrestrial life" for "every form and quality of life" is a seeming concession to the opposition ; but we doubt if it is really one. We suspect that in Tyndall's own mind the two phrases are exactly equivalent. At least, we see no reason to think otherwise, and cannot comprehend how, a has been inferred, it "makes a vast difference in the argument." In Tyndall's view, sensation and thought are probably just as much phenomena of terrestrial life as alimentation or respiration; and, if so, the hazy materialism he espouses has lost none of its haze. On the other hand, we suspect that the superterrestrial, celestial, or Divine life which is too hastily supposed to be conceded by implication in this renovated phraseology, would by no means come under the Professor's purely scientific conception of "life" in any case. If we are correct in these surmises, then the substitution in question is no recognition, direct or indirect, of super-material life either in man or out of man. The phrase he first used was not applicable to anything but "life" in its restricted or organic sense, and hence had nothing to do with "Divine life," unless this is conceived as dependent on organism; while the new phrase is just as indusive as the old of "every form and quality" of "haman life." Matter is still set forth as including the 'promise and potency" of all that is in man; while it was not before set forth as including the "promise and potency" of any life that is not in human or inferior organisms. Hence, were it not for Tyndall's frank admission that material or molecular causes will not explain "sensation and thought," we should suppose him to be a consistent and rigorous materialist; but, now as before, that admission, set over against the amended passage, takes all the consis-tency out of him. Really, do we know to-day whether he is a "materialist" or not? Whoever is sure of either alternative must be so in obvious neglect of evidence that contradicts it. There is such a thing as thorough-going materialism, of which Dr. Büchner is one of the consistent and most illustrious advocates; but it is at the least improbable that Professor Tyndall should be classed with Büchner and his companions. Future expositions of his thought will lose none of their interest; the denouement of its development has not yet been reached.

THE SINS OF CHRISTIANITY.

Professor Newman wrote thus in an article in Frazer's Magazine for last June: "THE INDEX frequently shows itself unjust to Christianity by imputing to Christian doctrine all the vices, swindlings, and high crimes of Christian professors. Christianity (forsooth) ought to keep its professors moral! Even the baseness of the Tammany ring and official roguery is put down to the discredit of Christianity." We remember nothing whatever in these columns that would justify such a charge as this, which, if unsus-tained, is exceedingly unjust. Is it impossible to oppose the anti-Christian position except by glaring misrepresentation? Certainly it seems so. What we have really charged upon Christianity is, not all the sins of its professors, but all such sins as are encouraged and fostered by its essential doctrines; for instance, the punishment of heresy as a crime, the denial of intellectual freedom, the circumscription of human brotherhood by sectarian lines, the debasement of reason in order to exalt faith, the deteriorstion of ethics which follows from making an "Inspired book" the test of morality, etc., etc. All these things have resulted in the greatest and gravest wrongs to mankind ; let him who can clear the skirts of Christianity from the guilt and stain of them. But such sins or crimes as have no particular relation to Christian ideas (e. g. cheating, swindling, theft, murder) we have never charged to Christianity. That such gross misrepresentation as is contained in the extract we have quoted should be made in a firstclass English magazine, edited by the historian Froude,-made, too, by one so universally respected as Professor Newman,-is not a pleasant thought: but we suppose there is no prospect of redress, and turn to the work in hand.

BELIGION IN ART.

The suggestive little paragraph in THE INDEX of October 3 was in my mind as I looked at the very interesting pictures of the Spanish and German school now on exhibition at the Athensum. They do indeed offer most fruitful studies of the typical charactar, not only of the two nations, but of the two churches which they represent; but they brought to my thoughts not so much the superiority of the new school over the old, as the dangers that surround the new, and the great import and beauty of some of the characteristics of the old faith which we must beware lest we lose altogether, and so misrepresent human nature and carry on human progress only in crabwise, sidling fashion.

Kaulbach's representation is well spoken of as "masculine;" the womanly side of human nature is recognized only in Queen Elizabeth. Why should not Isabella of Castile have stood beside Columbus, Vittoria Colonna held high converse with Michael Angelo and Savonarola, and the wife of Luther appeared as his aid in the great work of translating the Bible?

The whole ploture, like the Protestant Church, is full of power and admirable drawing, strong individuality, and noble expression; but it is not organic, it has no unity in it, it does not glow with sentiment nor blossom into beauty. The cold, neutral tints of the cartoon seem well adapted to the subject, and, from what we know of the German school of color, we should hardly expect any better effect in the finlahed painting. But the Madonna and altar-pleces in the other

But the Madonna and altar-pieces in the other room attract the eye at once by their rich glow of light and color. Humanity is there not as will and intellect (for herein Kaulbach's work is immensely superior), but as love and human relation. All is limited, narrow in its range, but having a unity and perfection which satisfies us for the moment, if it leaves us to question afterward.

The mysteries of spiritual life are indicated, but with loving, tender sweetness; the angels seem as natural actors in the human drama as the woman or the soldiers. Woman is here the central figure, in one phase only, in one relation,-not the highest nor the broadest, but the tenderest and the most touching. The peasant girl is ennobled by the glory of maternity. In the Annunciation, the attitude and action are very simple, and the figure at first seems inexpressive; but, as you gaze, you catch the listening of her soul to the breathings of hope and faith that come with the promised blessing, and you recognize that the angels, unseen by her, are filling her with the power of life and love which she is to bestow upon her offspring. So Swedenborg has said that the highest angels surround a woman who is bearing her part in the divine work of creation. These unseen forces of spiritual help and life are as shadowy and indefinable as electricity and ozone; but are they not as real and as potent? Will not spiritual science some day learn the laws of their action, and substantiate as fact what poetry and religion have given us as faith and beauty?

The path to this recognition of the union of intellect and faith, of the marriage of masculine individuality and feminine attraction, lies indeed through Free Religion. But the second word is as important as the first. Free to expand, it must also be loyal to the centre. Free to investigate, it must be faithful in preserving the truth. Clear and definite in statement of the ideal, it must also be genial and affectionate in clothing it in form and expression. Protestant in its position towards all oppression, faisehood, and wrong, it must be catholic in its relation to all that is good and human.

If the bright side of the Catholic Church is here presented, its dark and morbid side are not forgotten. The pathetic but painful Pletà and the disgusting Martyrdom remind us of the extravagances and abuses from which the brave men represented on the other canvas have freed us. Better the cold air and barren mountains of Germany, than the lurid glow of the Spanish Inquisition; but do either of these represent to us the church of the future? Do we not see the need of foundations laid broader and deeper in human nature than either of these Churches of the past have built upon? But must they not be laid in the same strength and courage as the one, and the same loving reverence and acceptance of beauty and mystery as the other? E. D. C.

PROF. TYNDALL'S ADDRESS.

Much has been and is being said and written about this remarkable discourse, both by those who agree with and those who dissent from it. The pretension which I here make to discuss it is a very modest one; but having carefully read the address in its complete published form, and experienced in its perusal the most hearty satisfaction, I feel moved to allude to a few of its points which specially engaged my attention.

And, in the first place, I am struck with the singularly high, pure, and fine spirit in which the whole address seems to have been conceived, as well as with the fair, candid, and gracious style in which it is written. Although every sentence is kindled with a brave and ardent purpose, no undue heat characterizes a single word. From bitterness and denunciation and sarcasm and ridicule and dogmatism it is entirely free. Through the lists of discussion the eminent author rides with a knightly and courteous bearing, and no adversary whom he meets can accuse him of dealing an unfair blow. Surely, for truth much is to be expected as the result of discussion, when her most famous retainers come up to contend for her in this really magnanimous and gallant lashion. Would that all who undertake to speak and write upon the great mooted subjects of the day might do it in the admirable spirit and style of Prof. Tyndall. And I am especially glad that, in the points of controversy between science and religion, three such famous illustrators of the scientific phase of thought, as Darwin, Spencer, and Tyndall, should hold up an example so worthy to be followed by their opponents. The advocates of religion have much to learn from these men of science, not only as to the subject matter in controversy, but as to the spirit and style in which the discussion shall be conducted.

In the second place, I am impressed with the superb moral tone that vibrates through every page of the discourse. I do not use this word moral in the flabby and insipid sense in which it is generally employed by religious writers, nor in the superficial one of ordinary conventional usage. I would borrow a little of that splendid ring which some of the old pagans were wont to impart to the word moral, and which makes it indicate, not mere goodiness of feeling and tame conformity of conduct, but a lofty, inspired, and virile energy in the pursuit of truth, an enthusiastic devotion to its service, a subdued joy in the recognition of it, and a kindling sense of its deep ethical significance. There is a certain "ethic glow" (I borrow the phrase from the author himself) throughout this whole masterly address, which, while it is impossible not to feel, is equally impossible to describe. Not for victory in controversy does Prof. Tyndall write, but for truth,-that he and all men may discover and own it. "An impulse inherent in primeval man turned my thoughts and questionings betimes towards the sources of natural phenomena,"-these are the grand words with which he opens his address, and they give the key-note of his entire effort. The unquenchable love of knowledge, the sublime curiosity to know the cause and the nature of whatsoever exists, which has been the impulse animating the human mind from the beginning, and which impulse has borne on humanity in the path of progress through all ages,-this "ethical requirement" (again I borrow a phrase from Prof. Tyndall) of our common human nature is what our author feels and surrenders himself to, and what gives illumination and tone to his kindling sentences. What Prof. Tyndall so justly and generously says of Mr. Darwin, we may with equal truth say of him, that, "though in handling his mighty theme all passion has been stilled, there is an emotion of the intellect incident to the discomment of new truth, which often colors and warms his pages." This "emotion of the intellect" is a rare but beautiful quality in scientific and philosophical writers; and when we see it combined with real ability and logical clearness, it is a consummation of intellectual and ethical genius which excludes all cause of discontent. "The discomment of new truth" would, indeed, seem to be the inevitable natal hour both of mental and of spiritual joy,-the only new birth, one might think, which any man of good sense could desire to have. We want more recognition of this "ethical requirement" of our human nature, more of this fine "ethic glow," in the writings of our scientific and philosophical men; and when we shall have it, our books of science and philosophy will be as inspiring reading as our poems and scriptures

In the third place, I fail to find any disguised or andisguised athelam or materialism in this address; and, temperamentally, I think that I am as sensitive to either as well nigh any one can be. It is very easy to discover what sort of a God Prof. Tyndall does not believe in. He does not believe in the deus er machina. He does not believe in the clock-maker God. He does not believe in the God that creates something out of nothing, and of which something he is not a necessary part. He does not believe in the Creator-God at all, who stands off from the substance which he is not, giving it a primal push, and an occasional tinkering touch, and maintaining a personal independence of it forever. But is he necsearily athelstic because denying such a God? Most Christians would esteem him so, no doubt. Yet levus remember what Epicurns taught: "Not he is godless [atheist] who rejects the gods of the crowds, but rather he who accepts them." In the deepest spirit of reverence of which I am capable, I say all gratitude be to science for dethroning and destroying for us the "gods of the crowds,"-by which I mean not only the heathen deities, but the ordinary God of the Christians; the God of the Old Testament, and, largely, the God of the New. Even Jesus' God is not the God in whom, in many respects, men of reason and of enlightened faith can believe. He, too, is one of "the gods of the crowds," whom we shall have either to make smartly over, or remand among the obsolete delties of an ignorant and superstitious age.

Prof. Tyndall and his compeers in science are only doing for this age what Democritus, Epicurus, and Lucretius did for theirs; namely, ridding it of the belief in a God external to and apart from the universe itself-an arbitrary, capricious, fickle, and anthropomorphic deity. In the place of such a God, they are demonstrating to us a permanent force, an invariable law in Nature, and an unbroken process of evolution from the lower to the higher forms of existence. It is not strange that some should discover only athelam and materialism in this; yet we have but to take a second view, and to wait for a deeper Insight, to discover that "permanent force," "invariable law," "unbroken continuity of development," "primal, mechanical shock of atoms," "cosmical life," Intrinsic "promise and potency" of matter, are only other and better names of deity, or new definitions of that mystery of the universe before which reverent men of science bow no less than the special devotees of religion. "The principle of every change resides in matter," says Gassendi. But what is matter? Prof. Tyndall well says that "everything depends on the answer to be given to this question." Suppose it should be proven that matter is as good as spirit .- nay, that there is no matter without spirit, and no spirit without matter,-who can object? Let God and the sonl be dispelled if they can be; in trying to dispel them, we may discover them more clearly and fully than before.

But Prof. Tyndall is not trying to dispel God and the soul; he is only trying to state such facts about the universe as he has come upon. The deep "mystery" that lies at the heart of the cosmos, that underlies the "beginnings of things,"—that he affirms, but does not audaciously expound. The natural sentiment of the human heart, which reverences this "mystery," Prof. Tyndall profoundly respects. He even says that "to yield this sentiment reasonable satisfaction is the problem of problems at the present hour." No warfare between science and religion does he proclaim. Spoiling for a fight between these he is not. He only demands that religion shall not assume any authority over science, but shall grace fully yield to instruction in matters where science is wiser than she. Those who are not willing that religion shall do as much as this had best say good-by to religion altogether. "The lifting of life is the essential point," says the professor; and in this sublime work, if each will agree to mind its own, science and religion may walk hand in hand.

Demodes Google

TERTOTALISM.

A. W. S.

"le it right," asks a correspondent, "for persons in health to drink, as a beverage, anything that will in-This is not intended as a question of pertoricate? sonal freedom; I would like your opinion on the sub-ject, scientifically considered.<sup>18</sup> To this question no answer seems to us possible but this: it is sometimes right and sometimes wrong. The mere act of drinking a glass of wine, for instance, as a beverage, is innocent or guilty according to circumstances, which we cannot reduce to any formula beforehand. Every Christian communicant considers'it a sacred duty at the "Lord's table;" It would certainly be wrong for a reformed inebriate to touch a drop of anything that might revive his slumbering passion. That there is any inherent wickedness in drinking a glass of wine with a friend under suitable circumstances, is a proposition too absurd to be maintained; but it would be worse than absurd to forget the great danger of forming a habit which may prove the sure road to ruin. As a rule, the less liquor a man drinks, the better for him and all concerned; but we believe that America has much to learn from Germany and France in the wise use of mild stimulants. Personally we care little for them and seldom use them, although not a testotaller; but we believe that intemperance would be greatly reduced in the community, if something like the German beer-garden, conducted with strict decorum, should be generally regarded with favor. Such views as these cannot be met wisely by a howl of denunciation; we commend them to temperate consideration.

Communications.

CHRISTIANITY AND MORALITY.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 12, 1874. EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--In the course of a conversation some days since, I had occasion to mention the moral character of some representative Free Religionists, as tending to show that the holding of opinions at variance with the doctrine of the Christian theology did not necessitate a sevidenced in the lives referred to, left even the re-ligious emotions active and deep as in those whose inspirations were drawn from Calvary, and the ex-plation of sin through faith in another's work (the inspiration and incentive in the former case being the boundless goodness of God in so adapting the bighest rewards upon the highest culture and the the boundless goodness of God in so adapting the universe to the faculties of mankind as to confer the bighest rewards upon the highest culture and the purest life, thus offering a constant motive to the race to be intelligent and moral). It was objected that this religious activity was something held over from early Christian training and was not to be credited to such an apprehension of God as that taught by men of THE INDEX school; and that no such examples could be taken as showing the kind of character to be produced by this system of denials. In order to make a fair showing for Free Religion, the subject must owe much less to Christian civilization than any person could possibly owe whose early life had been moulded and colored by its energies in the very construction of our society, as well as through its special organizations and doctrines. The point of interest is just here: How much are what upholds civilized society? Subtracting Chris-tianity from our civilization, what is left of it, and what is the lineage of the remainder? I should be glad if you, or some one that you know to be competent, would give in THE INDEX such a statement of this matter as the truth warrants. It would be of great interest and profit to me and, pre-sumably, to many others. [Go back to the origin of Christianity: whence was

[Go back to the origin of Christianity : whence was derived Christian morality itself? From natural sources. Did Jesus invent the moral principles he taught, or were they even first taught in his day? Research has proved the contrary. The few elementary moral laws from which our present moral code naturally follows are all so simple as to have forced themselves on human notice long before Jesus was born, and in many places where he had never been heard of; and they would be equally well known (and practised, as we believe), if he had never been born at all. No doubt a special coloring has been given to natural morality by the Christian gospel,not often to its improvement, however. But the point we make is that moral principles are "revealed" in the moral situations of life itself, and are thus contained in all human experience; as society is evolved, they become clearer and better understood, and are taught by word and example more successfully to each new generation. When Christianity has become an unheeded mythology, the morality of the world will not suffer on that account, because morality has really nothing to do with any mythology; and if any change is to be expected, it will probably be a change for the better alone, since the sum of human expe rience, from which all morality is a deduction, will have been increased. To our correspondent's questions, therefore, we should reply that we are indebted to human experience in general, not specially to Christianity, for "the moral sense that upholds civilized society;" that, when Christianity has faded away as an existent religion, morality will be left wholly untouched and unweakened; and that the "lineage" of morality is the lineage of human nature itself.-ED.

"Why should the FreethInker be more immoral than the Religionist? He has every inducement to be a moral man, without any of the frantic and en-thusiastic incentives of religion to hurry him into immorality. The Freethinker is opposed to delusion, to error, to falsehood, only because they are fatal to the interests, fatal to the happiness of society, and at war with the welfare of mankind. The Freethinker has a code to which he conforms himself, founded upon facts, built upon experience, guided by reason. He walks through the garden of Nature, converting only the wholesome and delicious fruits to his use; experience teaches him to refuse, to cast aside the noxious and poisonous plants. To receive nourish-ment, to feel pleasure, and to communicate these to others, is the moving principle of the Freethinker. ment, to feel pleasure, and to communicate these to others, is the moving principle of the Freethinker. Thus he becomes serviceable to his follow-creatures; his whole life is taken up in making those around him happy, that he may enjoy happiness himself; that his acquaintance may feel interested in his wel-fare, may smile upon his prosperity, may share his felicity. He fears no revenging and implacable phan-toms of superstition; he worships no unknown pow-ers; he seeks for no laws out of the world which he inhabits; he saks not for a rule of action from the arch-priest, from the insame devotee, or the morose bigot. His whole conduct is squared—not by any fanciful theory—not by any chimerical system—but by the duties of morality; these, unlike the various contradictory chimeras of the religionist, remain the same; founded upon truth, they are eternal."—From "The Correspondent:" New York, September 13, 1828.

THE FREE-LOVE CONVENTION.

EDITOR OF INDEX :-

EDITOR OF INDEX:--I can hardly blame Bishop Ferrette for criticising the convention held in Parker Memorial Hall a few weeks since. I think a large proportion of the Spirit-ualists in this vicinity and elsewhere would do the same thing. I also looked in at that convention, at most of the seasions, taking no interest except curi-osity. It could with as much propriety be called a total status of the seasions, taking no interest except curi-osity. It could with as much propriety be called a total status of the seasions, taking no interest except curi-osity. It could with as much propriety be called a total status of the seasions, taking no interest except curi-osity. It could with as much propriety be called a total status of the seasion of the sease of the sease of the prosent from curiosity rather than interest. The subject of Spiritualism was entirely left out; I did not hear it touched upon, and after inquiry I find no one that did. It was freedom, free love, stirpicult-ure, woman's ownership, Hulliam, repertorial short-comings, and other cognate subjects that were dis-cused or ventilated at this convention. Many per-sons came in, attracted by the name, I have no ouder, show any be satisfied with this first attempt to inder stans, and I had to tell him out of self-respect there. They have a perfection on the bright or finmed experts representing the subjects treated there. They have a perfect right to discuss the sub-sects they did and in the way they did; that is a mat-ter of taste and attraction. But they had no right to call it a Spiritualist' convention. No, one will ac-cuse me of being anything but a radical, and I think fean claim to be an outspoken Spiritualist. Having been satisfied of the fundamental truth of Spiritua-ion, I have not been backward in declaring myself or is, that the evit is that the "monuters" of this con-ter. The the evit he the "monuters" of the is con-ter. The there areal that "monuters" of the is com-quences.

quences. I an aware the community groans under its hypoc-risy, that the evils that the "spouters" of this con-vention complain of are not much, if any, overstated; but the plans offered for improvement are defective. Their cure seems to some (of whom I am one) to be worse than the disease; and "free love," as under-stood by most people and as taught by the orators of this convention, is not indorsed by the larger and better portion of Spiritualists. "Better por-tion" will not probably be understood; it has a tinge of pretension about it; so I will add-I mean those who have become convinced that life "jump" those who have become convinced that life "jump" incative and the "departed" are invisibly comm-nicative and interested in the affairs of this life or in which who do not wish to be "disturbers of the disturbance. The larger, if not the better, portion of the Spiritualists do not see the "gain" in the resolu-tion of home and social life that these "freedom-have this evidence of a future life, and be happ in the still be cured, and be the better who be admitted evils will be cured, and yet see no conset some are forever mixing it up with. Bishop Fer isome are forever mixing it up with. Bishop Fer was to heave this belief and the outside lasues which some are forever mixing it up with. Bishop Fer isome are forever mixing it up with bishop Fer we have the tried to asy that, when he was in Parker and others like minded, will understand by Memorial Hall on the 17th of September, he was no a spiritualist convention, and it was an offence to a good many Spiritualist convention and it was an offence to a spiritualist a good many Spiritualists to call it on

JOHN WETHERBER.

REFORM OF THE LAWS.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5, 1874.

FRANCIS E. ABBOT: My dear Sir,-Since THE INDEX has come down from the theological and metaphysical clouds, and turned its attention to the great needs of this present world, and begun to lay the corner-stone of the church of the beavenly present, recognizing the be-neficent gifts Nature has beatowed upon man, and the very imperfect and incomplete use thus far made of these omnipresent benefits, my heart and soul are with you in the great work of construction which must accompany and keep pace with the necessary and extensive work of destruction for which we redi-cats are become notorious. Hide-bound and fossi-ized theologists and legalists accuse us of being loomo-clasts simply, and demand of us something better than the creeds and laws which we have found unfit for an advanced society, and upon which we have FRANCIS E. ABBOT! clasts simply, and demand of us constiting below than the creeds and laws which we have found unit for an advanced society, and upon which we have passed our condemnation. Our work, to be success-ful, must be constructive as well as destructive. Now the wise are ready to learn even from their ensults. The wise general is ever on the alert to discover and possess himself of armament, discipline, or plan, superior or at least equal to those of the opposing army. Confuctus long ago wrote in substance: "li is useless to reform or convert a man over forty year of age;" and the great wisdom of the Romish Church is displayed in the recognition of the opposing fast that the infant mind is like "clay in the hands of the potter," moulded at will, receiving any impression stamped thereon, which with the advance of time be-comes an indelible impression. If mothers are the moulders of the race, and the child is the embry of the man, how important is it that we who beliese in development should invent and organize better meth-ods of education and development for the children of radicals than the hoary, gray-headed, and mylical ones which ought to and will pass away with a rapid-ity proportioned to that with which things better are developed to supplant them. All hall to "Libery and Light!" Eurivened as we are by the effet and uncrecuted or badly executed enactments of a rader society—enactments conserved and guarded by a priestoration of the program. and related or badly executed enactments of a rader society—enactments conserved and guarded by a priestcraft of legality—whose end is gain, and whose methods are beligerent as well as dishonest, how ripe is the hour for some sagacious radical reformer of the laws! Should not the question of the how for him be: "How many and which of these effet enactments and cumbrous methods can modern soci-ety dispense with?" When seeing such men as Andrew and Phillips, who were bred to the law, de-voting themselves zealously to humanitarian reforms, but doing nothing to re-organize and reform the law itself. I have said to myself, How hopelessly uncandid, society is justified in enacting and executing laws for the protection of persons and property; but when it oversteps these bounds in the present age, it assumed functions which it has no right to exercise, and cur-tails the offices and restricts the efficient activity of overstaps these bounds in the present age, it assume functions which it has no right to exercise, and cur-tails the offices and restricts the efficient activity of the individual in the acquirement of education, cul-ure, and self-government, and binders knowledge by abridging the opportunities of experiment and the at-tainment of practical truths and correct methods; in other words, it curtails liberty and ahuts out light We radicals must organize a division of labor. Are there not some possessing knowledge of these out grown laws upon our statute-books (which we are all presumed to know, but of which we the people are in profound ignorance), some who will organize a col-lege or academy of law and equity whose business li-shall be to enlighten the people as to what useles, by-gone, and absurd enactments now exist and should be abrogated,--construct and press upon our legis-tures an improved and uniform code based upon modern principles and rational methods? We are creed-bound, church-bound, law-bound; help us to destroy the rabbish of antiquity, and enable us with liberty and light to erect better and mome. Public opinion is not only under but above all legis-lative enactment. The course of these sequences consumes time, and God's mill grinds alowly but very sure. The honest of us may be crushed between the mill-stones of public opinion; but still the grist of consumes time, and God's mill grinds slowly but very sure. The bonest of us may be crushed between the mill-stones of public oplnion; but still the gifs of progress will be ground, and the martyrs of the pres-ent, though rejected to-day, shall become the cano-ized saints of the future. The people through habit number their creads while forgetting their meaning; we leave unexecuted laws, and forget their cristence till the statute-books are cumbrous with the rubblah, and we keep avarictons and expensive legal movis to resurrect them when occasion requires. Is there not a Luther or a Calvin ripe and ready to ventilate, and agitate law reforms? BENJ, S. PRICK.

Google Google

OFFICER OF OFFICER

OBERTIAN OBUBLITY. In the town of B, in northern New Hampshirs, Y, a farmer's child, received injury of the head, ensing imbedility. Years increased his intractable-ness, yet, as harmless, he ran at large, until he de-forward, not for an instant would he tolerate a shred, and he was confined in a miserable out-bouse, where he age father, esseming alone to pity, cared for him a his own dependence allowed, sleeping with the im-pact of the amplitude in coldest weather a little fire on an open chimney picke. "Farmed out" by the town, when, by death, the father's miniatrations ceased, items, threw the wretch potato shins and scant al-low. "We bound the totage of the state of the state of the devoted the region. His utterance was like the fold wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region. His utterance was like the solid wind of the region of marked humanity in a fireson when brainless sufferer knew not enough to nes-terion to the freezing of mercury in winter! Has we condition of naked humanity in a fireson with brainless sufferer knew not enough to rea-terion to the freezing of mercury in winter! Has we condition of naked humaniety in a fireson with brainless sufferer knew not enough to nes-terion to the freezing of mercury in winter! Has we protected by halt, as if just stripped; wild add the solid of coal that might warm his shivering body. Human to the freezing of mercury in winter! Has solid was his cocupation. Not fashes ere picking them over and over in vain search for one the bit of coal that might warm his shivering bod averred that the famished creature used to scrape off and greedily swallow the pus. Said my informant, "That dreadful sight disturbed my nightly rest." Indeed, his description did the elsep of the writer, whose account is feeble compared to the other. With the cold of autumn came a feeling that even I ought to do something for relief of such suffering. I wrote the acting Orthodox clergyman of B, imploring his ald in so dreadful a case. The rev-erend clergyman deigned not even a reply. The urgency of soul-axing, doublies, hindered him from meddling in affairs outside. As I retired the bitter nights of that winter, "my heart's desire" was that the idlot might die. But I heard no more. How many years thereafter he starved, and froze, and thawed, I know not. Now the remarkable fact is that this abiding horror thawed, I know not. Now the remarkable fact is that this abiding horror was in a community highly Christian. Its Ortho-dory was wealthy and influential. The Rev. David S., a Scotchman, had long dispensed "the pure milk of the word" of Scotch Presbyterlankem, rich and precious, insomuch that devotees from far climbed forbidding hills to partake. "Sinners" (whatever that might mean) saw but a "bad look," so bad and sulphurous, indeed, that reaction must come, and a Universalist society was instituted; whereupon "there was war" and more brimstone. The combatanta had little time for humanity in general-more for their poor.

The combatants had little time for humanity in general—none for their poor. To combatants had little time for humanity in general—none for their poor. To this community was hardly worse than others, corrupted, all, by false theology and ideas of this life, contemned in view of the future. As for the torture by neglect of one demented, is there not Christian authority for that, and more? Jesus deemed them possessed of devils, and are such to be entertained and cherished? If kindness to the insane and idlotic is Christian, then are Christians slow to learn, for Christendom's treatment of these has been revoltingly inhuman. The blessed asylums for the detective classes are a modern outgrowth of enlightened humanity, not of sectarianism. In any view, a case like this narrated is bewilder-ing, making the head of the philatthropist droop with shame and sadness, misdoubting whether man-kind be not alled to the hyana or the ghoul. CHARLES HAZELTINE. NEW BEDFORD, Mass.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

LIBRHAL LEAGUES AND SECRET ORGAN-IZATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :--In your editorial notes upon the communication on "Secret Organization Proposed" in THE INDEX of Sept. 3, you say: "Further thoughts on it will be carefully heeded." Permit me to give a few thoughts which crowd upon me from this far-off standpoint down South.

down South. And first, a word regarding the Liberal League in this city. I refused to become a member of it be-cause it was a secret organization, and because for that reason its objects were not understood by the masses, although several of the Demands of Liberal-ism, without regard to their name or source, had been endorsed by the press of this State irrespective of political bias.

been endorsed by the press of this State irrespective of political bias. It would astonish many who have supposed this secret organization to be opposed to the spirit of a true republic to see the nine Demands nalled in conspicu-ous places, and thus to learn that there was no parti-san character in them. They would very shortly find out that as many of one political party as of the other opposed them. It is safe to say that the De-mocracy of this State are more opposed to those nine Demands than the Republicans. In your editorial columns of Aug. 20, you quote from a New Orleans letter, that "the Demands will not be likely to take with the negro population; the word liberal will kill them," etc. The word liberal application is at once supposed, and a secret organ-ization would at once add fuel to that spark of di-trust, when a plain statement from the house-tops and door-posts would scatter all such erroneous ideas, and leave religious liberty to grapple only with its legitimate, its well-known, foces.

its legitimate, its well-known, foes. I have conversed with intelligent colored men here, men of wealth, culture, and influence, and they are in perfect sympathy with the Demands for Beligious Liberty as appressed in THE INDEX. I wish those Demands could always be so identified South. They express regret that those Demands have been errone-ously supposed to have a party blas. These mellinformed colored men well know that ously supposed to have a party blas. These well-informed colored men well know that the present supporters of these Demands are the ones who were foremost in the work of their emancipa-tion. They need no information on this point. Their well-stocked libraries are filled with data, and they could to-day give facts and dates with as much preci-sion as Parker Pillsbury or any other writer on the sub-ject. They well know who constituted the backbone of slavery, namely, the Evangelical Church, and that the so-called infidels and liberal religionists were the first to place the entering wedge in position. With such allies, it were a pity to throw the obsta-

With such allies, it were a pity to throw the obsta-cles of secrecy in the way, when a clear and intelligent understanding of the Demands of Religious Liberty seems to be so much needed.

clear of secrecy in the way, when a clear and intelligent understanding of the Demands of Religious Liberty seems to be so much needed.
My own opinion regarding the Demands as a whole was expressed in Mr. George F. Taibot's article on the subject a year or more ago. I have always felt that the friends of religious liberty were not well enough informed by half. Any concealing of the truth must in a measure retard the spread of knowl-edge among the masses.
And finally, a secret organization will not accompliable what its own members could wish. There are always leaks, and but a short time would elapse before the real, the true objects of the organization would be known. If the object of secrecy was to avoid hostility, they would meet even more hostility when their covert plans were known. For an open, my han a secret organization would exist that the parties had something more concealed, and thence they would be adjudged worse than they really were. We need vantilation, not closed doors. My own hostility is belief that we were working faster than the people could see or understand. Secrecy will only make a secret organization a panaces for such ills, that it would not save them. Spend the same time in telling men what the League is not. Show the masses that religious liberty means (as I tell the colored man South) the right of every man to be religiously what he cave is not. When the transt, a chendit, if a Mathodist, if a Catholic, then a Catholic.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 11, 1874.

A VOICE FROM THE "UNLETTERED."

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--I wish to call attention to the exaggerated impor-tance which some writers, radical as well as Ortho-dox, attach to mere scholarship as related to vital re-ligious questions. I hold that any person of good understanding and a fair education is in as good a position to judge correctly concerning all really im-portant religious matters as is the most accomplished scholar; a view which might be illustrated and de-fended at length, were it not for the editorial admo-nition to be "short." A single extract from an IX-DEX writer may be given, however, as showing the confusion of thought that exists on the general sub-ject: "The Bible holds many self-contradictions, and absurdities, and crueities, but the very fact that they are so plain makes it hardly worth the while to spend one's time in picking them out and arranging them in lists: "Three hundred contradictions in the Old Testament,' etc. Anybody can write these books; and the criticism which ends with that is almost as shallow-yes, all things considered, is probably shal-lower than the 'literal inspiration' at which his scoffar, There are men who, because they are schol-ars, can count up more of these things than we, and who speak out loud about them as frankly as Tom Paine himself, but whose look goes deeper. They sound, and dredge, and compare widely, where we only sail over the top reef-hunting." And so forth, and as forth.

only sail over the top reef-hunting." And so forth, and so forth. Here—to borrow a figure from Mr. Frothingham— is an "abyss of obfascation that fairly challenges a beam of light." In the first place, does the writer know that there are thousands of intelligent, fairly-educated men and women all around us who do not know that there are even twenty contradictions in the whole Bible? Is he aware that there are other thousands, of superior education, who will not admit that there is a single real contradiction or absurdity anywhere in the Scriptures? And further, does he know that these last depend on the very thing he has so good an opinion of, namely, scholarship, to prove themselves in the right? The truth seems to be that scholarship, as applied to religion, is remarkably like Protestat Christianity itself in this—that those who follow its methods can "prove" anything or nothing according to the humor. Common sense cuts the Gor-dian knot at once, and says: "What matters it whether these contradictions are real or apparent? Or, whether real or apparent, what matters it how they came there? The fact that they are there at all, to bother and perplex simple people, is sufficient proof that the book which contains them is not the work of any Deity whom an honest man might care to ac-knowledge." And then again, how happens it that what the writer calls "shallow" criticism is on the side of reason and truth, whereas the "deeper" kind leads to the "literal inspiration" wagary? Is an er-ror any the better for being deep? The fact is, the writer makes the strange mistake through out of con-founding learning with depth; as though there were not plenty of good scholars who are shallow reason-ers, as well as many fine thinkers who are but indif-ferent scholars. But it is not a question of depth at all.

not plenty of good scholars who are shallow reason-reas, as well as many flue thinkers who are but indif-ferent scholars. But it is not a question of depth at all. The the Bible the inspired word of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was thrist in any special sense the son of God? A was three they are questions which require for their solu-tion nothing so much as clear beads, unbiased primarily nothing to do with them. The Bible is not the word of God, what is it? If there have came they there? These are the ques-tions for scholarship. They belong to a class entirely different from and far less important than the other; and we may discuss them or not according to our taste or pleasure. To assume that a lack of interest in them indicates shallowness is about as reasonable as it would be to say that the man who does not wake a specialty of mule or astronomy must be a dunce. It is doubful whether any one but a theolo-got remark that the special training which, it matters in a help to the right understanding of what is im-toring. for obvious reasons, a hindrance rather into a the theights. There is not a particle of the "scholariy" element in the whole groundwork of yet the genlus and learning of this great free-ind and as magneed the oditorial writers for THE INDEX. They are scholars, every one; but they are something in a due to the editorial writers for THE INDEX. They are scholars, every one; but they are something in a due to the editorial writers for THE INDEX. They are scholars, every one; but they are something in a due to the editorial writers for THE INDEX. They are scholars, every one; but they are something in a due to the edito thoughts much better than we could express them ourselves. C.E.M.

melanut, GOOQle

THE INDEX-OCTOBER 15, 1874.

Advertisements.	GOOD
THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honeally made to keep the advertis- ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "bilind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No can't will	LEADING O.B. FROTH T. W. HIG W. J. W.
be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for Elser own statements. ADVERTISING BATES.	Are now for sa and will be m on receipt of cents each; of graphs, $1.50.
For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line, it 13 it 26 if a state it 26 if 36 if a state it 52 if a state on half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per sent on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS & ABOT, Editor.	Address, No. 1 T I N D E No. 1Trati Abbot, cont and "Moder DARWIN, 1
TO ADVERTISERS. The following states the experience of a nuccessful Bookseller who has advertised in FREINDER:-	cles," says, i inally intend quently auth read "TROTH them from u almost every

4

502

TO THE INDEX TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1872. To THE INDEX Asso., Toledo, O.: Gettlemen, Having hud occasion to adver tise in your paper during the past two year quite largely, I take pleasure in stating tha tise in your paper durin quite largely, I take ple I have always obtained Thave always obtained very satisfactory re-furns-better in fact than from book adver-tisements in any other paper I have adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ate results, but orders have frequently been received workins after the insertion of the advertisement, showing that your paper is kept on file and referred to by your readers. Yours truly, ours truly, HENEY S. STEDBINS. Special arrangements will be made at reduced terms for long-time or extended advertisements. Addr

THE INDEX, NO. 1 TERMONT PLACE, Bostor

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX.

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public utterance to the beldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by PRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Raverbill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MES. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass.

REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

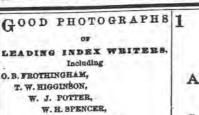

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber alism. Every Christian minister, and every think ing church-member, should subacribe for it, as the clearnst, most candid, and most scholarly az-position of the differences between Free Thought and Erangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to meatin the future. have to meet in the future.

Aimost every number contains a discourse or ading article, which alone is worth the price of ne year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, asys: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Hallgion in the widest sense of the word should be fait in America-that such a journal should have been started and so powarfally supported by the best minds of your country,-is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Gormany; though the number of so-called religious or the-elogical pariodicals is, as you know, vary large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Be

Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three onths on trial. Addr THE INDER

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY. A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT.

ale at the office of THE INDEX. mailed postpaid to any address price. Single Photographs, 2 molete Set of Eight Photo

THE INDEX. fremont Place, Boston, Mass. EX TRACTS

the for the Times, by F. E tains the "Fifty Affirmations" rn Principles." MB. CHARLES author of "The Origin of Spein a letter to the editor not origded for publication, but sub horized to be used : "I h Ve Dov HS FOR THE TIMES.' and I admire my inmost heart; and I agree to y word." New Edition. Price ry word." 10 centa; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 2.-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing character of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

to 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by P. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the Bystem of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, sting Extracts. Price 10 cents nd Inle 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Price 10, cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-"The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsbury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies bury, denot $1.00.

No. 7.-44 Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price A cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No. 8.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Greed in the U. S. Consti-tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from Ave to one hundred copies

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.99.

No. 12 .-- Is Bomanism Beal Christianity? Two casays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies B1.00

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 60 cents,

No. 14. - A Study of Religion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are instacquase; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Beligion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

7

8

4.

INDEX ASSOCIATION, AT

> No. 1 Tremont Place, Besto EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

E. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a high purpose, both in society and in the individual : To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right

- for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.
- In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatiam and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete istent secularization of the political and ednestional institutions of the United States Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. ecomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize A PTCAT NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by belping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful characte in each issue, will continue to be one o most marked features of THE INDEX. of the Regular editorial contributions will con-inue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its pre sent high po sition. Mr. Voyaer has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspondence, communications, extracts from value. ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

PUBLICATIONS. OF THE FREE

RELIGIOUS

ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Res-ing in 1867, at which the Free Redigious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. Bred-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucrein Met Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. By-ginson, and Raiph Waldo Emerson.

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Beports succeeding do not possees this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Need Ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains sears by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Bestraint in Religion," and by David A. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Scimor to son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by 0. E. Fröhing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Deston, E. W. Emerson, Mary Graw, C. A. Ba-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Out Judaiam" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains smap by O. B. Frothingham on the "idea of the e Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Beligion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Religion as a Social Force, especially in rela-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Fature of Religiou Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson as "The Natural Sympathy of Baligions," failowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Fern and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammeianism T. W. Higginson on "Mohampeianim," by Wm. M. Channing on "The Edigios of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Edigion Old and New In India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calibrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meetreceedings of Filts (Four or more, S enus each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Heilgion is the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frobm on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Beet-ing, 1873. 35 conts. (Four or more, S conts such.) Contains essays by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Enligion," and by John Weiss on "Ereigion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Bobert Dala Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Loagle-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Leoretia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains sreading reports of President Frothingham's address Ballelout on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Bonneschein's speech on "Reformed Jod-ism," and of the statements by Mean-Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their respective attitudes towards Christianity spective attitudes towards (nonimany as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Kr-tra-Christian,"-together with the Secret-ry's Annual Report, and latters from Keb-ph Chunder San, Frederick Donglass, and ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. WASSON.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. He Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Chasning. 25 cents. Reason and Revelation, by William J.

Potter. 10 cents. Taxation of Church Property, by Jat

Parton. 10 cents, singly; package 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the fine of the Free Religious Association, No. 170-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 is quite limited. Orders by most may be ad-dreased either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place. Boston." of to the These publications are for sale at the office No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. R. A.

1.73

OSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dante

Bodies..... Bodies.... DEENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Frof. Huzley, F.B.S... 2. Chemistry, By Frof. Roscoe... 3. Physics. By Balfour Siewart. With Il-Instructory. Instrations 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gal-kie, LL.D., F.E.S., flexible cloth...... .50

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Solf-Help ...... 1.59

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus Theologico-Politicus......

STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the

New Life of Jeaus. Authorized transis-tion, 2 vols. 2.00 12.04

TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Litera-ture. 2 vois The Class-Room Taine. History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John Fishe. 7.0

4.00 1.50 1.50 3.00 2.00

The Virginians. Eamond, and Lovel the Widower. Eamond, and Lovel the Widower. Eacollancous Writings. Honsehold Edi-tion. Uniform with the Norels. Com-plete in Svois. With new Fortrait. For vol. 1.55 plete in Svois. With new Fortrait. For vol. 1.55 1.95 proton 5 vois. With new Portrait. Per voi. 135 This edition includes all the matter in two ha-est English additions, with many additions thus making it, with the norvel, the chargest and most complete Thackersy in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Parls, and Irish Skeich-Books, &c. 3. Bhobs, Sketches, Denis Dural, &c. 4. Guiterine, Christmas Books, and Unre-printed Fleece. 2.50 .75 1.50 HAXTER'S (MES. CELLA) Among the Isles of Shoals...... 1.00 2.25 2.35 THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods 2.50 1.25 1.35 1.50 2.20 1.0 the Woods .... Excorrigons in Field and Forest. Portrait. The Maine Woods..... Cape Cod. Latters TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-Truball (JUEN). Farmay as a Discov-ere. Pragments of Science for Unscientific Peo-ph and Electricity Bours of Erercise in the Alps. Heat as a Mode of Motion. On Sound Eadlant Rest. Forms of Water. Lectures on Light. Proc.osilogn at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tyudail. 2.00 1.35 3.00 2.00 3.00 2.00

1.00

14 4.16

WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden Sanuterings Back-Log Studies

ADDRMANT T HE INDEX,

I Tremont Place, Boston

POPULAR BOOKS. SENT BY MAIL Journal of Researches. 200 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low-er Allmans. An Annae and Plants under Domastication 2 vols., Ulustrated. 8.00 PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. DEBROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Olaude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers, 1.50 SO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion. 2.00 dam Bede, Adam Bede, Bonola, Donola, Felix Hoit, Silas Marner and Scores of Clorical Life, Silas Marner and Scores of Clorical Life, Bids Marner, Library Edition, 2 vols.... Middlemarch, 2 vols..... lated into English, with Analysis and Intr ductions by B. Jowett, M.A. Master Balliol College, Oxford, and Regius Pr fessor of Greek. Four vola. 3.50 3.50 1.28 1.50 .50 Middlemarch. 2 vols ..... Wit and Wisdom of ..... The Spanish Gypey ..... How Lizz Loved the King. EEER (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprons. How Line Loved the King. EMERSON'S (E. W.) Emmys. First Series. Emergence Second Series. Miscollanics Mon. Conduct of Life. Pooma. With Portrait. May-day and Other Piscos Desays. Blue and Gold. Prose Works. 2 vois Society and Bolitude Power. LECKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rice and Influence of the Suirit of Sationaliam in Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne. 2 vols...... 6,00 3,00 . 1.50 . 1.50 . 1.50 . 1.00 . 1.00 Leves of sales routingham. 1.40 Leves Physiology of Common Life, 2 vols. 1.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from 166 Origin in Greece down to the Present Day, 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founds-tions of a Creed. 3.00 EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the Freach of Athanase Coquerel the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Bitht. 2 yous. EWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.50 ****** LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C), What is Ju-dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.90 FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Unristian Beligion...... ONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 2005 Prose Works. Portrait. 6.00 6.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, 1.00 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00 BACON'S Essays ..... 1.25 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Bu-1.50 manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker...... 1.75 ULLER'S (MAEGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 vois ...... LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times. 5.00 GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genin An Inquiry into its Laws and Cons Elements of Geology. 2 vols..... 8.00 As Includy Into its Laws and Conse-quences. OCETHE'S Faust. Translated hoto English Yerse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. For vol Elective Affailds. Cartyle. Fortrait of Boethe. 2 vols. Herman and Dorothes. Translated by El-len Frothingham. 5.00 3.50 1.00 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. GREG'S (W. R.) Eulgmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments.... Creed of Christendom..... ARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosophical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol...... The New Amnities of Faith GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doo-uments, Private Mamoranda, and Original Lottars to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind...... .10 .50 8.90 HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book II. In England. Book II. In Scotiand. Book III. In France. Thoughts about Art. The Unknown River. The Unknown River. The Intellectual Life. Onapters on Animala 20 Conversion of the Northern Nationa..... MILL (JOHN STCAET) Dissortations and Discussions. 4 vola, each... The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hamilton. 2 vola, each... Tha Positive Philosophy of Auguste Comte. Political Economy. New and revised edi-tion. The Subjection of Womon.... Reasy on Liberty. Representative Government.... Autobiography... Memorial Volume. Bis Life and Works... 1.50 2.00 6.00 2.00 4.00 HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World, Part Se 1.00 MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras. 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands. 1.50 The Scarlet Letter, and any structure Romance. The House of the Savan Gables, and The Suow Image. The Marble Faun. The Radia Note-Books. The French and Italian Note-Books. The French and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Some, and Septimize Fallon. HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers ... Malbons, An Oldport Romance... Army Life in a Black Regiment Atlantic Reasys... Oldport Days ..... 1.5 IOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-1.00 1.00 1.50 .76

COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. Darwinism in Morals, and other Easays.... The Religious Demands of the Age.....

DALL (MRS. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court: or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Othermahly.

INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems. 2.25 The Monitions of the Unseen. 2.50 Bongs of Seven. 2.50 ligs ndles for Stories Stories told to a Child. First and Second

mannan Google

Time scores. MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Belence of Language. First Saries....... The Same Second Saries....... Daips from a German Workshop. Vol. I. Easays on the Belence of Salighon. Vol. II. Zasays on Mythology, Traditions, and Customs. Vol. III. Zasays on Lit-erature, Biography and Aniquilles. Three vols. Frice per volume...... Lectures on the Science of Religion......

ASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Bound from Kentucky

Exkess from Kentucky, WWMAN (FRANCIS W.) A History of the Hebrow Monaroby, Phases of Paihi, or, Passages from the History of my Creed. The Houl, its Sorrows and its Aspirations. Catholic Union: Excays towards a Church of the Puture, as the Organization of Philanthropy. Theirm, Dort Weakmen of Protestantism. Against Hero-Making in Religion. 2.00

1.70 1.50

4.50 8.00 1.50 .8

HELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The

INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES. No. I. Forms of Water, in Clouds, Rain, Rivern, Ice, and Giaclers. By John Tyu- dall. Thysics and Politics; or, Thoughts on the Application of the Principles of "Natural Selection," and "Inheritance" to Political Scotter, By Waita: Bagebet. 159	Gates Ajar. Lao The Troity Book. Loo Men, Wonce, and Ghosts. Lao Hedged In . Lao The Silent Partner. Loo What to Wear . 100 PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Posma. For- trait. Cabinet Edition
---	---

ANT BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CABE. dars are respectfully solicited fo

AT

all friends of THE INDEX.

Mecords of a School. A new edition. ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women, Two Bospital Skotches and Oamp and Fireside Bostele. An Oid-Fashboned Girl. Little Men. Bisswi-Straps. Work; A Storf of Exparience. ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.00 AUERBACH (BESTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50 Ville Eden; The County-House on the Rhine. 1.50 Bedivelse 1.60 Bernas Tales 1.60

BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A. Compendium of Psychology and History of

BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 3.5 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ........ 3.00

The first of the second control and very of incinants, it is an even the Bole and King in favor other as of the Bole incomments of Staild, Hoadley and Mathews second to second the Bible the Opinion and Decision of the Suprame Court of Ohio in the above case.

BRACKETT (ANNA D.) The Education of American Girls.

BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ..... $.25

BUOKLE (HENET THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. Tyols.....

WORK, WHI B COMPRESS 19637. 2 YOR...... CARLYLE'S Works. Oheas editors. Comprise Ing the following: Miscolanzous Zesays, 7 yols; Frouch, Novolus, 3, and 1, Freis-lek the Great Sarior Resartus, 1 yol; John Moring, 1 yol; Life of Schiller, 1 yol; John and Present, 1 yol; Herces and Herce Wor-ship, 1 yol; Letter Day Pamphlets, 1 yol, Any yolume sold separately, 11 yols, Lon-don, 1871-3. Per yol don, 1871-3. Fer vor. CARPENTER (DE. W. B.) The Principles of Mental Physiology, with their Applica-tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Cond-tions.

CERVANTES' Don Quixots .....

- OHANNING (WM. ELLEBY, D.D.). The Par-fect Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Channing.
- OHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse. 2.00

CLARKE (Dr. R. H.) Sex in Education ...... 1.35

CLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World .....

 				_
Having	finished	his eng	agemen	t with	the nce.	STUDE: College, Please add societies	. Addr	AMAICA	FLAIN	, MAI	38.	CONSTA At home
-		ID INE				and valuable with six-cen
	d) will b on rece hasor's c can be f	ame of Tl e prompti olpt of 4 arpense. urnished 1 Tremo	A comp in no oth THE I	xpress lete fil her for NDEX	, at e for m.	F B E F to held at HOI ton Street, Bo 2% and 7% P.J Political, and
A	HE	AP	OF	FE	RI	and Indez Tri Rospitalier Hi
from No. any addr Addres	1 to 14 ess on th	SET of inclusive, he prepays	will be ment of THE L	MDEX.	d to TS.	CHAI A fine liker stor, the co Black, is for will be sent b of the price-
TE	E	I I	N D	Е	x	Address
		INGL				TO PUB
THEL	NDEX W	ill be forw	varded f	ree by	post	Hardne son to any part of the United Kingdom on recelpt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings.

Ad	dress	1	10	THE I	NDEX
		I Tremor	at Place,	Bosto	n, U.S	Δ.
T	H	Е	F	R	E	E

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND BE VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Maseums, Art Galleries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun-day Eventings for the Feople," and generally to promote everything conducive to rational secretation on Sunday. The Free Sunday divocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall, London; Frec'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Judge, Hampstead. The AXNUAL ROPSCHITTON for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one dollar (payable in advance). Address TH FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES

CONCERNING AMERICA. By CHARLES SUMMER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Syo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its literary and historical mer-its, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which

8 r. Summer was engaged before his death. "PROPHETIC VOICES" will be found of grea value to all who take an interest in the history of our country, so fall is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets statesmen. and orators, of whom the lament-ed author has also given interesting sketches int, post-paid, on receipt of price.

Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

THE INDEX.

A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE.

By Andrew Jackson Davis

Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davis has recombly examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

Dy all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Lond will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.-Gold-en Age.

en Age. Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-some cloth, 76 cents; in full "it and extra blading, 81. Postage free, The trade sup-piled on the most liberal terms. Published By the "Progressive Publishing House" of A.J.DAVISX CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, Wew York City dress EMILY J. LEONARD, Meriden, Conn ANT EMPLOYMENT.

male or female, $30 a week war-capital required. Particulars a sample sent free. Address, return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y. E DISCUSSION periralizer HALL, 50 Washing-out on over Sunday at 10% A.M. (1997) Standay at 10% A.M. (1997) State of manking const-isocial interests of manking const-jects for discussion. THE INDEX racia are for sale every Sunday at fail.

by of a recent Photograph by r sale at THE INDEX office, and by mail to any address on receipt --- offty centa. THE INDEX,

			TTC	moi	as r	Terice	,	AB LOI	**
T O	N	E	W	8	P	A	P	Е	R
PU

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELL15, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO BOOK-BUYERS.

Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAB BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who desire to pur-chase English, German, or Prench Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, ran have their orders prompily filled and their inqui-ries answered by addressing. THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Flace, Boston.

-				Ľ
ROUND	VOLUMES	OF	THE	ļ

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1873, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchasser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2. 60, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodory than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, INDEX THE INDEX.

W	A	R	R	F		N	,	8
Т	RUE	CI	VII	12	AT	10	N.
		Pric	e 50 c	onte	6
P	RACT	DIT.	AL	DI	ET.	ATI	S.
	showi
C	OST	P	RI	NC	IP	LI	σ.
		Pric	e 25 c	ente
For	sale by
s.	н.		M	0	R	S	E	5
	and or -	-	old S		Roat	inn.

AMERICAN

SCHOOL MUSIC READERS.

IN THREE BOOKS. By L. O. Emerson and W. S. Tilden. In Book I., which is for Primary Schools, we have a three year' course of study very plainly laid out, with abundant directions to teachers, and a large number of sweet songs for the little ones to sing by rote and by note. Price 35 cents.

In Book II, the course above indicated is continued, and becomes a little more the-oretic. The book is fitted for the use of the younger scholars in Grammar Schools. Price 50 cents.

In Hook III. part singing is introduced, and the ear is trained to harmonic singing. For higher classes in Grammar Schools. Price 80 conts.

The music in these charming and useful books was selected and arranged by the practiced hand of Mr. L. O. Emerson, and the theoretic part has been well tested by Mr. Tilden before placing in the Beaders.

For High Schools noting succeeds the shore Readers better than "THE HOUE OF SINGSING" (SI.00) aircady in azten-tive use. If that has been used, try "CHOICE THEOS" (SI.00), a collection of the best three-part music.

The new Singing School Book, "THE SONG MONANCEN" [75 cents], is attract-ing general attention as one of the Beat Hooks ever made for Singing Schools.

The above books sent post-paid on receipt of retail price. OLIVER DITSON & CO.

ATT A	TUR	DITOOU	1.1	W .	vv.,
		BOSTON.
07	RAR.	H. DITSON	Ar.	00	5 C

711 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NTS FITTED for sny ROSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

Our organization some time since decided to di-rect its efforts for the present towards securing the

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly % rempted from its share of the burden of taration

As a means to this end, we have published for eneral circulation several thousand copies of a on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEE of Nov. 27. We have already issued three editions, the last of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to 1

TBACT

Another-Large Edition

of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

d generously to supply the calls for them in other States.

To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tri at very low cost, it is impossible for the Bost League, with its various other expenses, to be esque, with its with one entire expense Will not, then, ] e alon

All Friends of the Movement

forward and help us with liberal donatio come forward and help us with liberal donations f We frequently receive communications from parties which gracks to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 20 cents per hundred, to all who will be gratefully received for the purpose of sircu-aling them gratuitously throughout the country. Last winter this subject was brought be-fore the Legislature of the State, and many fore the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of e unjust la

The matter is still in their bands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the

Voice of the People,

favoring justice and equity, should be dis tinctly h ard. We shall soon be ready to send out

BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN,

thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already done so, to protest against this continued wrong.

Let us make it

THE LARGEST PETITION

ever presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please

SEND IN THEIR NAMES! We would say, also that we feel deeply the

Other Organizations

in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are there where in placed in the security of the sec who are incli

Form a Liberal League.

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in our power.

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought mpliabed Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Per order of the EXECUTIVE CONNETTER.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drog, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Ten Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hulling. Hustrat of pampheles froe. Address BEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER. 181 East Front Street, Cincinnasi, Ohlo. TYNDALL'S ADDRESS. A very neat copy of Professor Tyndall's re-markable Address before the British Associa-tion on August 19, in pamphlet form, will harge type and good paper, will be mailed postpaid on receipt of Twarry-Trys Corre-Address Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston THE AMERICAN EDITION 07 MONCURE D. CONWATS SACRED ANTHOLOGY, A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sent tpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address

THE INDEL, 1 TREMONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass, G. L. HENDERSON & CO.

BANKERS,

LEROY, MINN.

Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N.Y. Branch Office, 187 Broadway, N. Y. Money Invested in First Mortgages on In-proved Farms in Minnesota and Iowa, rm-ning three to five years, with Compon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent. annually in ad-vance, or ten per cent. pair semi-annually, free of expense to the Loaner. "If" 10 per cent. pair annually, free of expense to the Loaner. "If" 10 per cent. pair annually in most at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Fall Farticular, send for Circular.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. paying 8 to 10 per o

Investments in Real Estate in Chicago and vicinity, if judicionaly made, are the best and safert modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

OF ERNST PRUSSING, 145 RANDOLPE STREET Chicago (Established 1853).

Guarantees perfect title and any exciting in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full longth. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Eu-reks Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturar's

RADICAL AND LITERABY

LECTURES

BY

RADICAL LECTURES.

SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURES.

Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touchstone.
 Ajar in Troilus and Cressida: The Par-

SECOND SERIES. 1. The Women of Shakspeare.

WEISS,

for It.

JOHN

The Idea of Heresfter. An Act of Faith

Intelligence in Religion. Religion and Sole

FIRST SERIES. 1. Canse of Laughter.

ter in Macheth : The Fool in Lear.

8. Ophelia. 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Character

(Research) Google

JOHN WEIBS,

ME, Brooklins St., Bosh

Heart in Heligion.

S. Irony and Humor.

6. Falstaff.

6, Hamlet,

9. Portia.

Address

te indelibly branded on every spool. Call

Three Dollars a Year.

AND LIGHT. LIBERTY

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 252.

VOLUME 5.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22,

GLIMPSES.

MR. UNDERWOOD lectured very acceptably to "an audience of fully eight hundred or a thousand." on October 11, at Indianapolis. He was introduced by Col. J. O. Martin, one of the most prominent liberals of the West.

THE TRIENNIAL EPISCOPAL CONVENTION at New York have requested the House of Bishops to prescribe a proper posture for communicants at the "Lord's Supper." There seems to be more religion in posture-making than we had supposed. Would it not be well to institute stated rehearsals and regular drill-masters for the occasion?

THE SECOND Radical Club discussed Tyndall's Address last Monday. Mr. Stevens led the conversation. The rooms were crowded, and all enjoyed themselves; but we were unable to be present till the talk was nearly over, and only arrived in season to hear Mr. Morse announce that "every mind is infinite," which made us "feel big."

THE BOSTON Radical Club, whose oblinary has just been written in the New York Tribune, had an unusually brilliant re-union last Monday at Mrs. Sargent's. Professor Everett read a fine paper on "The Tragic Element in Literature and Life," and Messrs. Bartol, Higginson, Weiss, Longfellow, Miss Peabody, Mrs. Cheney, Dr. Miner, and others joined in one of the best discussions we ever listened to at a Club meeting.

DR. WILLIAM A. HAMMOND, of New York, who is pronounced to be "undoubtedly the highest authority in the country on the brain and nervous system,' said in an address delivered last May to the New York Neurological Society: "Experience has shown that total prohibition, while failing to a great extent in practice, drives men and women to oplum and Indian hemp, substances still more destructive to mind and body than alcohol."

"OFFICIAL OBTHODOXY"-what an outrage is such a thing in this country! Yet the Secretary of the Washington Liberal League writes as follows : "There is no organized radicalism here of any consequence, as the class from which the elements of such organization would be drawn would be almost exclusively those in Government employ, over whose heads the sceptre of official Orthodoxy hangs threateningly." Yet we boast of our religious liberty !

THE CONFERENCE of Old Catholics, Greeks, and Anglicans, at Bonn, has resulted in the adoption of a platform of doctrinal agreement which is to be the basis of future cooperation-perhaps. It remains to be seen how much this attempt at fusion is practically worth. But the tendency to re-unite the frag-ments of the original Church is one of the marked signs of the times, which sooner or later may necessitate a similar movement on part of those who are devoted to pure humanitarianism.

WHOEVER wants to know all about the Devil will find the records of all authentic "interviews" with that eminent politician by consulting the Bibliotheca Diabolica, a full list of works on the subject just prepared with great industry by Mr. Henry Kernot, and for sale by Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, of New York. The author catalogues over five hundred books, in many languages, with excellent notes of his own. Altogether, this is one of the most curious exhibitions of scholarship in existence.

THE A. B. C. F. M. reports 1,021 new converts during the past year. Estimating the population of the globe at thirteen hundred millions and the Protestant population at hinety millions, and supposing that these numbers remain stationary, the world will be finally "converted to Christ" about A. D. 1,186,-996. The receipts for the past year were $443,925, with a debt of $30,441. By the date aforesaid, the

A. B. C. F. M. will have spent on this useful enterprise (not reckoning its past outlays) about $562,-176,888,992. The foregoing may be considered as giving a tolerably accurate idea of the job undertaken by the heroic A. B. C. F. M.

1874.

PROFESSOR TYNDALL seems to be a victim of moods to some extent. In the preface to an authorized edition of his late address, he says : "In connection with the charge of atheism, I would make one remark. Christian men are proved by their writings to have their hours of weakness and of doubt, as well as their hours of strength and of conviction ; and men like myself share, in their own way, these variations of mood and tense. Were the religious views of many of my assailants the only alternative ones, I do not know how strong the claims of the doctrine of 'material atheism' upon my allegiance might be. Probably they would be very strong. But, as it is, I have noticed, during years of self-observation, that it is not in hours of clearness and vigor that this doctrine commends itself to my mind; that in the presence of stronger and healthier thought it over dissolves and disappears, as offering no solution of the mystery in which we dwell, and of which we form a part.'

THE Christian Statesman admits that "faith in Christ as the Savior is necessary to salvation," in reply to a question put in THE INDEX of August 27, and adds: " 'There is no other name under heaven whereby men can be saved,' because there is no other teacher who has ever been able to win men from sin; and the examination of the private lives of the renowned moralists, Socrates and Seneca, was, in this point of view, exactly pertinent to the question." We must respectfully differ from the Statesman. No examination of the private life of any one who is devoid of faith in Christ is necessary to decide whether he can be saved; the abstract principle, without any such examination, decides that he cannot be saved, whether he is moral or immoral. Had Socrates and Seneca been absolutely sinless, they could not have been saved on the Statesman's principle. Why not bravely admit this? Besides, "salvation" is salvation, not from sin (which the saved and the damned, on evangelical principles, must be alike guilty of), but from the punishment of sin,-which is hell. Are we to understand the Statesman to say that Socrates and Seneca would have been saved, provided thair lives had been sinless? If not, the inquiry into their characters was not at all "pertinent to the question."

SUCH AN ACT as is described in this paragraph from the Christian Union ought to be known by all men, and remembered to the everlasting honor of the actor: "The new biography of Chief-Justice Chase, by Mr. Schuckers, contains an anecdote that would be profitable reading for some of our public men. When Secretary of the Treasury, Jay Cooke bought for him three hundred shares of railway stock, which he agreed to take, expecting to pay for them by the sale of a farm. A few weeks later, Mr. Cooke wrote him that he had sold the stock at an advance of $4,200, and enclosed a check for that sum. Mr. Chase wrote courteously in reply, stating that the farm had not been sold, so that he had been unable to pay the original price of the stock ; that he had not consented to the purchase with a view to a re-sale; that he could not accept Mr. Cooke's offer to regard the money paid by him for the stock as a temporary loan; and that he accordingly returned the check. He says that he had taken office with the resolution to avoid every act that might cause suspicion that he used his official powers to affect the markets for the private advantage of anybody. He concludes: 'It is essential for me to be right as well as to seem right, and to seem right as well as to be right.' It is such a sense of honor as this, a more delicate sentiment than a mere unwillingness to steal, that we need to have in all our public servants."

manning Google

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other coclesistical property shall no longer be exempt from just taration. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the mavy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

9. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cesse.

tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be aboliabed; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether catenal-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, 6. We demand that the indicial cath in the courts and m all other departments of the government shall be abol-labed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alities of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all iswe directly or indirectly enforce-pealed. 8. We demand that all iswe the Sabbath shall be repealed.

8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of «Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical sum instruction of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinctingly, and prompty made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilied, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Cortain grave inconsistencies with the gen spirit of the United States Constitution atill mark the pr tical administration of our political system, threatening perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free pu schools, and the pence and prosperity of the outre land id; TREESPORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following ARTICLES OF AGREENENT. ART. 1.—The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-EMAL LEAGOUR OF —. ART. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-mre practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-set of the second second second second second second second second are been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-ser called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the contry in securing the needed reforms. Ast. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects had be regular local meetings, free discussions, loctures, rai, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, Ast. 4.—Such measures shall be adouted to

As r. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the Hy-Laws by a wo-thirds rote of the members.

ART. 5.-Any person may become a member of the League y subcoribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-

Mr. Anr. 6.— The Officers of the Lesgue shall be a President, Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-re Committee of three members; and their duties shall be use commonly pertaining to these offices. The President as Secretary shall be ar-officed elegates to the Naturnal wrention of Liberal Lesgues when called together.

ravention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Aut. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended 'a three-fourths rote of the members present at any reg-ar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ents shall have been sent to every member at least two wes previous to such meeting.

ELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE TRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION. ABTIOLE 1.

ATTOLE 1. Tortow 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tipo, or prohibiting the free screise thereof; or adving the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the press of the stress of the press, or the right of the press of the stress of the press, or the right of the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the freedom of speech or of the press, or the the press, or the right, privileges, or capacities, or disqualited the press, privileges, or capacities, or disqualited the press, or the right on the set of the set of law of the press of the second section of the Article by appropri-ments. -Congress of and of the Article by appropri-set of the second section of the Article by appropri-

.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, Sr. Louis, Mo.-L. La Grillo, Scoretaries. Osron, Mias. -F. E. Abbot, President; J. F. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. Burranson, Onto. - W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddinge, B , CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, BAN JOSE pretary. J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-TOLI VINELAND' N. J .- John Gage, President; Sue M. Ciute, Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NER.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Booretary. OLATUE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Grimn, Secretary. retary. orr, Muon .- W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETR Secretary. Basscowill, MIOH. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Scortary. Oscreol.4, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. Barts, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Barts, ME.-F. G. Barker, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Waszingroz, D.C.-George M. Wood, President; J. B. Orawford, Scoretary. Augura, Osio.-John Pish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-MINTER. MINT.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. nton Grathen. W YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, NE Secretary. ST. JOSEPH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. Becretary. ELO CLAIRE, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALBOO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New Ostkans, LA.-President, S. Vorster; Secretary, J.

W. A. BOLLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster, NEW OBLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster, E. Wallace, BAY CITY, Mint.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Becordary; BACK CITY, WIS.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Becretary. AUGUSTA, WIS.-Davis Jackson, President; George P. Yaux, Secretary.

The Salem Witchcraft.

The following account of the famous Salem witchcraft delusion, written a little later by one of the de-Inded, Rev. John Hale, the first minister at Beverly, is here copied directly from "MAGNALIA CHRISTI AMERICANA: or, The Ecclesiastical History of New England, from its First Planting in the Year 1620, unto the Year of our Lord 1698. In Seven Books. By the Reverend and Learned Corron MATHER, M.A., and Pastor of the North Church in Boston, New England. London: Printed for Thomas Parkhurst, at the Bible and Three Crowns in Cheapside. MDCCII;" Book VI., pages 79-83. We preserve the spelling, and so forth, as nearly as possible.]

THE FOURTEENTH EXAMPLE.

The FOURIERATE EARNELS. To conclude our Wonders of the Invisible World, there will doubtless be expected an Account of the Wonders that afflicted New England in the Year 1692. Now having in my Hands a most unexcep-tionable Account thereof written by Mr. John Hales, I will here content my self with the Transcribing of that. And I will assure the Reader that he bath now to do with a Writer, who would not for a World be guilty of over-doing the Truth in a History of this importance.

SADDUCISMUS DEBELLATUS.

SADDUCISMUS DEBELLATUS. § 1. In the latter end of the Year 1691. Mr. Paris, Pastor of the Church in Salem-Village had a Daugh-ter of Nine, and a Niece of about Eleven Years of Age, sadly afflicted of they knew not what Distem-pers: And tho'he made his Application to Physi-cians, yet still they grew worse. At length one Phy-sloian gave his Opinion That they were under an Evil Hand. This the Neighbors took np, and concluded, they were bewitch'd. He had also an Indian Man-servant, and his Wife, who afterwards confess'd that without the Knowledge of their Master or Mistress, they hat taken some of the afflicted Persons Urine, and mixing it with Meal. had made a Cake, and bak'd it, to find out the Witch, as they said. After this, the afflicted Persons cry'd out of the Indian woman nam'd Tituba, that she did pinch, prick, and grievously torment them; and that they saw her hars and here. where no body else could; yes, they Woman nam'd Tituba, that she did pinch, prick, and grievously torment them; and that they saw her here and there, where no body else could; yea, they could tell where she was, and what she did when out of their Humane Sight. These Children were bitten and pinch'd by invlaible Agents; their Arms, Necks, and Backs turn'd this way and that way, and re-turn'd back again; so as it was impossible for them to do of themselves, and beyond the power of any Epileptick Fils, or natural Diseases to effect.

Epileptick Fits, or natural Diseases to effect. Sometimes they were taken dumb, their Mouths stopp'd, their Throats choak'd, their Limbs rack'd and tormented, so as might move an Heart of Stone to sympathize with them, with Bowels of Compas-sion for them. I will not enlarge in the Description of their cruel Sufferings, because they were in all things afflicted as bad as John Goodwin's Children at Boston in the Year 1689. So that he that will read Mr. Mather's Book of Memorable Providences, may read part of what these Children, and afterwards sundry grown Persons suffer'd by the Hand of Satan at Salem-Villaye and Parts adjacent, An. 169 1-2. Yet there was more in these Sufferings than in those at Boston, by Pins invisibly stock into their Flesh, pricking with Irons, &c., as is in part publish'd in a Book printed 1692, viz. The Wonders of the Invisible World. Mr. Paris feeling the distresa'd Condition of his World. Mr. Parls feeling the distress'd Condition of his Family, desir'd the Presence of some worthy Gentle-men of Salem, and some Neighbour-Ministers, to consult together at his House; who, when they

CADEX -- OCTOBER 22 came, and had enquir'd diligently into the Sufferings of the afflicted, concluded they were preternatural, and fear'd the Hand of Satan was in them. § 2. The advice given to Mr. Paris about them, was, That he should sit still and wait upon the Prov-dience of God, to see what Time might discover, and to be much in Prayer for the Discovery of what was rest secret. They also examine'd Titwa, who con-fees'd the making a Cake, as is above-mentioned, and said her Mistress in her own Country was a Witch, and had taught her some means to be us'd for the Discovery of a Witch, and for prevention of being be-witch'd, but said that she her self was not a Witch. § 3. Soon after this, there were two or three Pri-vate Fasts at the Minister's House; one of which was another in publick at the Village; and several Days afterwards of Public Humiliation, during these Mo-lestations, not only there, but in other Congrega-tions for them : and one General Fast, by order of the General Court, observ'd throughout the Colony, to seek the Lord, that he would rebuke Satan, and be a Light unto his People in this Day of Darkness. But I return to these Troubles. In a short time after, other Persons who were of age to be Witnesses, were molested by Satan, and in their Fits cried out upon Tituba, and Goody O., and S. G., that they or Spectres in their Shapes, did grievously torment them. Some of their Village Neighbours complian'd unto the Magistrates at Salem, desiring they would come and examine the Afflicted and the Accus'd to-gether; the which they did: The effect of which Ex-amination was, that Tituba confees'd she was a Witch ; and that she, with the two others accur'd, did torment and bewitch the Complianers ; and that these, with two others, whose Names she knew not, had their Witch Meetinge together, relating the times when, and places where, they met, with many other Circumstances elsewhere to be seen at large. Upon this, the said Tituba and O. and G. were committed to Prison upon suspicion of acting Witche this, the said Tituba and O. and G. were committed to Prison upon suspicion of acting Witcheraft. After this, the said Tituba was again examined in Prison, and own'd her first Confession in all points, and then was herself afflicted, and complain'd of her Fellow-Witches tormenting of her for her Confession, and accusing them; and being search'd by s Woman, she was found to have upon her Body the Marks of the Devil's wounding her. § 4. Here were these things rendred her Confession credible:— 1. That at this Examination about the second credible:— 1. That at this Examination she answered every Question just as she did at the first. And it was thought, that if she had feign'd her Confession, she could not have remember'd her Answers so exactly. A Lyar, we say, had need have a good Memory: But Truth being always consistent with it self, is the same to day as it was yesterday. 2. She seemed very penitent for her Sin in cove-nanting with the Devil. 3. She became a Sufferer her self, and, as she said, for her Confession.

for her Confession. 4. Her Confession agreed exactly (which was after-wards verify'd in the other Confessors) with the Ac-cusations of the Afflicted.

wards verify'd in the other Confessors) with the Ac-cusations of the Afflicted. Soon after, these afflicted Persons complain'd of other Persons afflicting of them in their Fits, and the number of the Afflicted and the Accus'd began to in-crease. And the Success of Tituba's Confession en-courag'd those in Authority to examine others that were suspected; and the Event was, that more con-fees'd themselves guilty of the Crimes they were sus-pected for. And thus was the maiter driven on. § 5. I observ'd in the Propecution of these Affairs, that there was in the Justices, Judges, and others concern'd, a conscientous Endeavor to do the thing that was right; and to that end they consulted the Precedents of former times. and Precepts laid down by learn'd Writers about Witchern(t; as Keeble on the Common Law, Chayst. Conjuration (an Author approv'd by the Twelve Judges of our Nation:) Also Sir Matthew Hale's Trials of Witches, printed An. 1682. Gianvil's Collection of sundry Trials in Eng-land and Ireland in the Year 1658, 61, 63, 64, and 81. Bernard's Guile to Jury-men; Bazter's and R. B. Heir Histories about Witches and their Discoverles; C. Mather's Memorable Providences relating to Witcher's Memorable Providences relating to land and Ireland in the Year 1658, 61, 63, 64, and 81. Bernard's Guide to Jury-men; Bazter's and R. B. their Histories about Witches and their Discoveries; C. Mather's Memorable Providences relating to Witchers'ts, printed 1685. But that which chiefly carry'd on this matter to such an Height, was the increasing of Confessors un-til they amounted to near upon fifty: and Four or Six of them upon their Trials own'd their Guilt of this Crime, and were condemn'd for the same but not 'executed. And many of the Confessors con-firmed their Confessions with very strong Circum-stances; as their exact agreement with the Accusa-tions of the Afflicted, their punctual agreement with their Fellow-Confessors, their relating the Times when they covenanted with Satan, and the Reasons that moved them theremoto; their Witch-Meetings, and that they had their Mock Sacraments of Japtism of the Supper, in some of them; their signing the Devil's Book, and some shew'd the Scars of the Wounds which they said were made to fetch Blood with to sign the Devil's Book; and some said they had Imps to suck them, and shewed Sores raw, where they said they were suck'd by them. 5. I shall give the Reader a Taste of these things In a few Instances. The Afflicted complain'd that the Spectres which ver'd them, urged them to set their hands to a Book, represented to them (as to them it seem'd) with threatenings of great torments if they sign'd not, and Promises of Ease if they obey'd. Among these D. H. as she said (which sundry others confess'd afterwards), being overcome by the Extremity of her pains, did sign the Book pre-sented, and had the promis'd Ease, and immediately upon it a Spectre in her Shane afflicted another Per-non da said. I have sign'd fulf. He Book, ma howe Ease : now do you sign, and so shall you have Ease ! And one day this afflicted Person pointed at a certain place in the Room, and said There is D. H. Upon which a Man with his Rapler struck at the Place, they he saw no Shape; and the Afficient called out saying, You have given her a small Prick about the Eye. Soon after this, the said D. H. confessid her self to be made a Witch, by signing the Devil's Book, as abovesaid, and declar'd that she had afflicted by Maid that complain'd of her, and in doing of it, had one about the Eye, which she shew'd to the Main search'd by a discrete Woman, who reported that D. H. had on her Side the Sign of a Wondnewy hea'd. This D. H. confessed that she was at witch-meeting at Salem Village, where were may persons that she nam'd, some of whom were in Pris on then, or soon after, upon suppicion of Witchmit; and she said G. E. preach'd to them, and sed ac Woman was their Descon, and there they had Sac

Wolfall was then Deacon, and there they had a Sactament.
§ 8. Several others after this, confess'd the same things with D. H. In particular Goody F. said, that she, with two others, (one of whom acknowled's diasame) rode from Andover to the same Village Withmeeting, upon a Stick above the Ground, and that in the Way the Stick brake, and gave the said F. a Fall, whereby, said she, I got a Fall and Hart, gwhich I am still sore. I happed to be present in Prison when this F. own'd again her former Confession to the Magistrates — I asked her if she rode to the Meeting on a Stick? She said, Yea. I houred what she did for Victuals: She answerd, That she carried Bread and Cheese in her Pocket, and that she and the Andover Company came to the Village below the Meeting began, and sat down together under a Tree, and eat their Food; and that she drah Wate out of a Brook to quench her Thirt; and that is do that is a source of the Meeting began. Tree, and est their Food; and that she dram Water out of a Brook to quench her Thirst; and that he Meeting was upon a plain Grassy Place, by which was a Cart-path, in which were the Tracksof Home-Feet; and she also told me how long they were going and returning, and sometime after, told me she had some Trouble upon her Spirit; and when I enquired what, she said, she was in fear that G. B. and H. C. would kill her; for they appeared unto her (in Spe-tre, for their Persons were kept in other Rooms in the Prison) and brought a Sharp-pointed Iron, like Spiridle, but four-square, and Threatened to raby her to death, because she had confessed her With-craft, and told of them that they were with her; and M. C. above-named was the Person that made her: M. C. above-named was the Person that mids her Witch. About a Month after, the said F took occ-sion to tell me the same Story of her Fear that G. B. and E. C. would kill her; so that the thing was Witch. About a Month after, the said F took consistent to tell me the same Story of her Fear that G.B. and E. C. would kill her; so that the thing was much on her Spirit.

§ 9. It was not long before M. L. Daughter of the said F. confession to the solutions of her Mother's confession. At another time M. L. junior, the Grand-daughter aged about 17 Years, confesses the Substance of what her Grand-mother and Mother had related, and declares that when they, with E. C. rode on a Stick or Pole in the dif, Me the said Grand-daughter, with R. C. rode upon another and dotter had related, and declares that when they, with E. C. rode on a Stick or Pole in the dif, Me the said Grand-daughter, with R. C. rode upon another and the said R. C. acknowledged the same) and that they set their Hands to the Devil's Book: and (sine alia) axid, O Mother, why did you give me to be Devil' wice or thrice over. The Mother said, Ak was sorry at the heart for it; it was through this wicked one. Her Daughter had her report and call upon God, and said, Oh Mother 1 your wishes mense come to pass; for how often have you wished that the Devil would fetch me anony alise 1 and then said, Oh my Heart will break within me 1. Then She wept bilterly, crying out, O Lord comfort me, and bring out of Grandmother, we are south of several things about their Confederates and Ads and Witcheraft, too long to rehearse. Moreover, another declared, that she wild Widow S. went to Captal W. S. and the said S. gave him a Blow with a great Stick, and yet was ton Blow with a great Stick with m. Then M. P. the Confessor very bold look' dup In how for Face, and said, Goody S. yos how you did strike him, and Face you do it, and hear the bin contra the own we also Blow with a great Stick hard returned.
§ 10. Nextly, I will insert the Confession of a Man beam of a man of the reset of a confession of a Man beam of a confession of a Man beam of a man of a seven we have the and the sed the the sed and there thim.

Now, it is the her and I saw you do it, and then told the manner how it was done, and how they came to bim, and returned.
§ 10. Nextly, I will insert the Confession of a Man, about forty years of age, W. B. which he wrote himself in Prison, and sent to the Magistrates, to confirm his former Confession to them. God howing call' me to confess my Sin and Apostacy in that Fall, in niving the Devil Advantage over me, appearing to an like a Black, in the Evening, to set my bond to he Book, as I have own'd to my shame. He told me that I should not worn, so doing. At Salem-Villape, there being a little off the Meeting-house, about an husdred fine Bindes, some with Rapiers by their side, which was call'd (and might be more for ought I know) hy and Wime which they called the Sacrament; hut I had mone; being carried over all upon a Stick, near bing at my other Meeting. I being at Carl Saturds and R. F. by clitching my Hand; And on Subhahday my Shape afficieted A. M. and at Night affilet M. S. and A. M. E. J. and A. F. have been my Enlivers to this protest Siter with the same. And the Devian val-te adhering in the deviation and the site of the Meeting of early of Salem-Village, and to begin at the Mar of the Siter with the same. And the Devian val-being carried over all woon a Stick near bing at the objecting and the distrey the Churchs of the state officieted A. M. and at Night affileted M. S. and A. M. E. J. and A. F. have been any Enlivers to this protect Abomination. as one hat owned and charded her othery Sister with the same. And the Devian val-to set up Salem-Village, and to begin at the Min to set on Salem-Village, and the begin at the Min to set of my Sin and Agendacy : beging Parlen of God, and of the homorable Magistrates. and all God, be set to my Heart and Hand to do what in me lieth to destroy such wicked Worshin , what in me lieth to

<text><text><text><text><text>

State of the Case. Thus this masses interaction what abruptly. § 12. It may be queried, How doth it appear that there was a going too far in this  $Affair \beta$ A. 1. By the Numbers of the Persons accus'd, which at length increas'd to about an hundred; and it came to be imagin'd that in a place of so much knowledge, so many in so small a compass of Land, should so abominably leap into the Devil's Lap all at once.

Inductory in so small a compase of Land, should so abominably leap into the Devil's Lap all at once.
The Quality of several of the Accus'd was such, as did bespeak better things, and things that accompany Solation ; Persona, whose blameless and holy lives before did testifie for them; Persons that had isken great pains to bring up their Children in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord; such as we had Charity for, as for our own Souls: And Charity for, as for our own Souls: And Charity for, as for our own Souls: And Charity is a Christian Duty commended to us.
The Number of the Afflicted dily increased milli about fifty Persons were thus ver'd by the Devil. This gave just ground to suspect some Mistake, which gave advantage to the Accuser of the Berlinen to make a Breach upon ne.
It was considerable. That Nineteen were executed, and all denied the Crime to the death, and some of the Marture knowing Persons, and had before his been ascounted blameless Licers. And, it is not to be imagin'd, but that if all had been guilty, some word for their Souls, in the way of Confession and Sorrow for such a Sin. And as for the Condemn'd no Experience whether they would stand to their self-ondemoning Confessions when they came to die.
The Accused are generally quiet, and for five series due the Review how holes at the Afflicted grew presently when the Review holes at the Marker and for five series and the Review of the Eard and read, of the like Mistakes in other Places. As in Sufficient would bring all into Blood and Confustion.

sion. The like hath been in France until Nine hun-dred were put to death. And in some other places the like. So that New England is not the only place circumvented by the Wiles of the wicked and wily Serpent in this Kind.

the like. So that New England is not the only place circumvented by the Wiles of the wicked and wily Serpert in this Kind. Wierus de Præstigits Dæmonum, pag. 678. relates, That an Inquisitor in the Subalpine Valleys, enquird after Women-witches, and consum'd above an hun-dred in the Flames, and daily made New Offerings to Vilcan of those that needed Hellebore more than Five. Until the Countrey-People rose, and by force of Arms hinder'd him, and referr'd the matter to the Bishop. Their Husbands, Men of good Faith, af-firmed, that in that very time, they said of them, that they had play'd and dane'd under a Tree, they were in Bed with them. In Chelmsford in Esser, Anno 1645, there were then do with them. As to our Case at Salem, I conceive it proceeded from some mistaken Frinciples : An that States of mats the Shape of an Innocent Person, and in that Shape do mischel to the Bodies and Estates of Mankind: and that the Devil, when he doth harm to promovily, generally and frequently) by the help of un Neighbour, some Witch in covenant with the origination of the Sate, and frequently by the help of un Neighbour, some Witch in covenant with the previsite and that when the Party'suppeted looks on the States approxid to be bewitch'd, and they are prevended that when the Party'suppeted looks on the States supposid to be bewitch'd, and they are prevended to the Sate Arman and the states of mankind: and that when the Party'suppeted looks on the Farties supposid to be bewitch'd, and they are prevended that when the Satif, as if arruck with a case.

alia
The worthy Author, from whose Manuscript I have ministaner D'it bia Narratire, does there confute these ministaner Principles; and In his confuting of one, the Afflicted, and the Afflicted oper is Spectre to the Afflicted, and the Afflicted oper is Spectre 10, and the Afflicted oper is a spectra 10, and the party spectrally represented, be presently searched, and there is found upon their Body, or a Rent on the same part of the Grament which uppeared on the Spectre to the Afflicted, this half been accounted a strong Evidence to prove the Party suppected to be a Completer no table beases. One of them is this: The Person or Garment so represented to the Afflicted that part of the Spectre view of the Gospel there's to conclude it was done by the Stroke st the Spectre, which was done before. There was at Colemayord an afflicted Person, that in her Fits cried volume of the Gospel there, could not be-trievely to conclude it was done by the Stroke st the Spectre, which was done before. There was at Colemayord an afflicted Person, that in her Fits cried volume of the Gospel there, could not be-trievely to conclude it was done by the Stroke st the Spectre, which was done before. There was at the Afflicted and while she was thus bleeding. Spectre view of the Gospel there, could not be-trieve to be guilty of such a Crime. And it hapned that Afflicted stad, You have made her Forehead blood there about the Person and found the Afflicted and the Party afflicted where the the Woman, and found the Afflicted and the Afflicted that wooth the Gospel there, could not be-trieve to be guilty of such a Crime. And it hapned that Afflicted the about the Person and found the Afflicted and the Cow, the Cow struck the found when the the Woman, and solar the Afflicted and the Afflicted and the Afflicted that acquire the Afflicted that woo

th this Man to his home. This was observed, and it was supposed Satan might have some hand in it; 'taking advantage upon the Passion of so good a 'Man, to render him suspected by such an Accident, 'til he could. Upon the whole, the Author spends whole Chapters to prove that there yet is a Witch; and he gives this Definition of one, viz, a Person, 'that having 'the free use of Reason, doth knowingly and willingly 'seek and obtain of the Devil, or of any other God, 'besides the true God Jchorah, an Ability to do or 'know strange things, or things which he cannot by 'his own Humane Abilities arrive unto. This Person 'is a Witch. "Is a Witch. But thus much for that Manuscript.

(For THE INDES.) "AUDI ALTEHAM PARTEM."

Have white men born in the Southern States no "civil rights" that their Northern brethren are will-

"civil rights" that their Northern brethren are whi-ing to respect? This question has been suggested by the perusal of Mr. R. P. Hallowell's recent communication to THE INDEX, entitled "The Civil Rights Bill and the Na-

Mr. Hallowell's caustic criticisms of the position ccupied by the editor of the Nation proceed entirely room an erroneous assumption: to wit, that the billes are abundantly able to take care of them-Mr. Hallowell's caustic criticisms of the position occupied by the editor of the Nation proceed entirely from an erroneous assumption: to wit, that the whites are abundantly able to take care of them-selves, and the negroes are not. Now so far is this from being the case in the States of South Carolina and Florida, on the east, and in Miselasippi and Lou-isons erason that the reverse is actually true: first, be-cause in each of these States the negroes are in pos-session of the powers of government (including the money power, the credit of the State, as well as the re-ceipts of the tax-collectors); next, because the blacks are the producers and the whites are almost utterly dependent upon their labor for existence; again, be-cause the negroes preponderate numerically; still far-the, because the blacks are better fitted by nature and constitution to withstand the semi-tropical diseases of the South; last, but not least, because the freed-men are united in purpose, and working together for a common end. Born, bred, and educated within the dear old city of Boston, your correspondent can exacely be accused of a natural bias in favor of the South; but it may not be altogether out of plack to state that he has no the of kindred, no relatives in that section, nor sup pecuniary interest whatsoever. The writer first made acquaintance with slaves and inveholders (the planters and freedmen of to-day) during the Civil War, and as a volunteer officer in the tarolina. Georgia, and Fordia, immediately after the capture of Port Royal and the occupation of be fund captitulation of the Confederate forces, and later, for upwards of four years (from 18di up to De-cember, 1865), he passed the greater portion of his south, eccupying several months, and comprehend-ing nearly every town or city of consequence in the South carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Misalsaipel, Louisians, Texas, and Tennensee, and from Pliatka in eastern Florida to San Antonio de Boath is daily and hourly opportunites of converse-able, their hopes self of his daily and hourly opportunites of conversa-tion with the negroes, in order to ascertain, if possi-ble, their hopes and fears, ideas, intentions, and pos-sibilities. The result of these frequent conversa-tions, observations, and experiences was given to the public to pamphlet form by an association of gentle-men in Massachusetts, with whom the writer was in communication; was endorsed and commended by the Hon. Charles Summer in his celebrated "white-washing" speech before the Senate of the United States; was republished in England; and the predic-tions therein contained have been since fully verified communication; was endorsed and commended by the Hon. Charles Summer in his celebrated "white-washing" speech before the Senate of the United States; was republished in England; and the predic-tions therein contained have been since fully verified by the subsequent history of "Reconstruction." The writer was the first witness summoned before the special joint committee of fifteen to "inquire into the condition of the States which formed the so-called Confederate States of America, and report whether they or any of them are entilled to be repre-sented in either House of Congress".—that memora-ble committee at the head of which "Thad" Stevens presided, and upon whose report was based the en-tire scheme of reconstruction adopted and adhered to by Congress up to the present time. Among the members of that committee were Sensiors Fessenden, of Maine, Grimes, of Iowa, and Harris, of New York, and Congressmen (at that time) E. B. Washburn, of Illinois, Morrill, of Vermont, Bingham, of Obio, Conkling, of New York, Blow, of Missouri, and Boatwell, of Masschneetts-most to superficial to escreve consideration. In the firm and sbiding bellef that justice requires an impartial examination of the situation in the southern States, regarded as well from the point of view occupied by very nearly the entire population of native whites as from that of their fellow-citizens of African descent, the writer desires respectively to sum up, for the benefit of The INDEX subscribers, the impressions produced by a somewhat prolonged sourn in the States of Mississippi and Lousians during the present season.

sojourn in the States of Mississippi and Lousiana during the present season. After an interval of nine years, curiosity to see for himself the precise changes effected by the emanci-pation of the slaves induced your correspondent to revisit the districts of the Southern country with which he had been most familiar in war-times; and, during the spring and early summer he has passed Google

Citrilized its

some time in an investigation of the social and politi-cal status of the population of the Mississippi Valley, including not merely the chief cities from Saint Louis to New Orleans, as Memphis and Vicksburg, but the sparsely settled sections, such as the famous belt of cotion plantations about Lake Washington, in Mis-stalppi-the very heart of the cotion district, --down to the superb sugar-plantations of Louisians, situ-ated on "the lower coast," between New Orleans and the Guif of Mexico. The general result of the writer's careful study of hegroes are in a majority, may be given in the ex-pression of the opinion that the solitary hope of re-storing any vestige of prosperity to those distressed and desolated regions consists in the proclamation of mattal law, and the immediate assumption by the administration at Washington, through its military officials, of all the ordinary powers of government! Volumes would scarcely suffice to do justice to the subject of the inevitable and impending conflict be-tween the whites and blacks. Suffice it to say that no unprejudiced observer of the course of svents can be an eye-witnegs of the constantly increasing jeal-ouxy, ennity, and antagonism, without becoming Satons, can never assimilate for generations to come, if even then. Out of the mouths of the negroes in what "blacks and whites were never made to live to the Southern States can assily verify for him-self, that a profound and nearly unanimous convic-tion, exists among the freedmen to the effect that they, or their children, or their children's children, are destined ultimately to extirpate the whites from and the write does not hesitate to assert that the forts are working together in perfect unison for the area the down the scale the write for the assert that the forts area. There were the assert was and the freedmen to the effect that they, or their children, or their children's children, we have been they working together in perfect unison for their achildren or their children's children for the the fore writer does not hesitate to assert that the <text><text><text>

transform five millions of negroes into the equals, socially and politically, of ten millions of Anglo-Sarons! ALBERT WARKEN KELSEY, of Saint Louis.

[For THE INDEX.]

THE CLAIMS OF NATURAL AND BEVEALED BELIGION.

The following thoughts were suggested by a peru-sal of a recent publication by Mr. A. B. Bradford, The Absolute Sufficiency of Natural Religion as a Revelation from God, Examined in the Light of Hea-son and the Bible : Salem, O., 1874. The easay is a frank, shorere statement of Mr. Bradford, formerly a Presbyterian minister, who in the preface says : "I am fully aware that many of my old personal friends, who are still in the land of Egypt, and in the house of hondage, will be pained at the position I take in regard to the Church. But I cannot help it. I must be faithful to my contic-tions, however much of reputation it may cost me. If they will read and study only half as much as I did before I became enlightened and freed from my bond-age, they will be convinced that I am right; for not one of them is half so blind and bigoted a Presby-terian as I was."

This essay reminds us in some respects of David Friedrich Strauss's last work, The Old Faith and the New, but there is this difference :/Mr. Bradford still discusses the old question: Can a rational man, a human being endowed with reason, intellect, still be an Orthodox Christian? Straues answers this ques-tion in the negative, like Mr. Bradford, but he goes a step further. He is bold enough to prolong this in-teresting discussion, and, on the basis of recent de-velopments in scientific speculations, by the guide of Darwin, Haeckel, and other evolutionists, he is compelled to admit even that the "old faith" in a personal Creator, an anthropomorphic God, belongs to the relics of a superstitious age. Mr. Bradford says, page 6: "if their natural feel-of Darwin, Haeckel, and other evolutionists, he is compelled to admit even that the "old faith" in a personal Creator, an anthropomorphic God, belongs to the relies of a supersitious age.

Mr. Bradford says, page 6: "If their natural feelings are cultivated by knowledge, and have free play, they clothe him (the Supreme Being) with adorable attributes." Here, then, it appears that the conclusions of advanced thought and those of "Natural Religion," as interpreted by Mr. Bradford, differ. As Prof. Tyndall remarked in his recent Inaugural Address, the domain of religion, natural as well as revealed, exists only in the emotional, transcendental element of our nature, and has nothing at all to do with science. For this reason, the different definitions of the "Christian, extra-Christian, and anti-Christian" position of some of our liberal writers even to be fruitless problems. If such a thing as a religion in harmony with, or rather the result of, scientific facts and demonstrations, were possible, the best name for this "Scientific Religion" would be that proposed by Prof. Hackel; namely, "Monism." Mr. Bradford says further: "He (man) longs for immortality, and accepts with rapture any evidence that departed friends still live in a disembodied state." This may apply to Christians, to Spiritualist; but it is far from being a general fact. As a brillant writer in that brilliant publication, the Modern Thinker (No. 2, page 83), says, in an article on "Creation, God, Soul, Hereafter": "These questions are not innake in the mind. On the contrary, they are artificial, and result from peculiar habits of the most remarkable groups and races of makind. ... These particular questions do not differ in kind from many theologico-metaphysical questions which have been often agitated."
The "more Buddhist," according to this Modern Thinker, and according to all the religious natures, not only did not dread the extinction of his personality, but he thirsted after it and prayed for it with cestasy. Annihilation is hi endurable, Dorrible to him. On page 11 our author gives us his definition of "what Natural Religion is" in the following words :----"The Religion of Nature, revealed to the reason of man, consists in the recognition of a Supreme Being who embodies in his character the perfection of wis-dom, power, justice, and goodness." Now there are human structures of the Deiter the who enhouses in the character the perfection of wis-dom, power, justice, and goodness." Now these are human attributes of the Deity; this is pure theism. Mr. Bradford asserts: "The plan-etary systems, all in motion, display his power. The wondrous arrangements adapting means to ends ex-hibit his wisdom." Mr. Bradford assumes, there-hibit his wisdom." Mr. Bradford assumes, there-hibit his Supreme Being is the creator of the universe, or, to use his words, the planetary systems. Before the creation of the world, this God could not, then, have been in the possession of this "power" in its most perfect state; for, if he had been, there would have been no cause for the production of so many useless things, by which he, incapable of reaching a higher state of perfection, only became less powerful. That deep thinker, E. von Hartmann, in his Philoso-phy of the Unconscious, arrives at this conclusion: If God, before the creation, had been conscious of what he was going to do, the creation could only be con-

<text><text><text><text><text>

every radical thinker to read it, and entend to Mt. Bradford our heartfelt congratulations for leaving the ranks of fanatical priestbood. We conclude with Swinburne's beautiful sentences from his "Bymn to Man":

"Thou and I and he are not gods, made men for a span, But God, if a God there he, is the substance of men, which Sut four, it a four here of, is the substance of many such is man. Our lives are as pulses or pores of his manifold body and breath. As waves of his sea on the shores, where birth is the con of death. We men, the multiform features of man, whatsorer we by, Recreate him of whom we are creatures, and all so soll are he. Not each man of all is God, but God is the fruit of the whole; Indivisible epirit and blood, indiscernible body from ton!"

HUGO ANDRIESSES.

RAPTIST PRRACHERS' MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of the Bapilat preachers of Boston and vicinity was held in the very of Tremont Temple at 10 o'clock this morning. Dr. Lorimer was in the chair, and, after devotions and routine business, introduced Rev. Joseph Willams, who briefly addressed the Conference upon the sub-ject of the "Lost Tribes of Israel." Rev. W. Garner, pastor of the Charles Street Church, in behalf of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to investigate and report upon the case of Edward F. Strickland, then submitted the following statement:-- following statement :--

Within the initial part of the second of

A COUNTER-STATEMENT.

sume to withdraw from a body to which he did not right fully belong, either ministerially or denominationally. We might add that his whole course for more than a year past in the place where he has held Sabbath evrices of an extraordinary character has not by any means en-ritied him to recognition as a Baptist minister holding the "fundamental doctrines" of Baptist churches, and no one at all familiar with this strange earlying and doing a could possibly think of him in that character. We believe that, while be has to the very last been more than ready to oc-cupy profitable positions among us, he has not for a long sime been even alightly in sympathy with ne doctrinally or colesiastically, and that he cannot in any sense be said to have gone out from us, for he manifestly was not of us.

The report was accepted as read, and Rev. Mr. Garner offered the following, which was also adopt-

"THE DENOUNCED BAPTIST MINISTER."

[For THE INDEX.]

In the Report of the Committee of Baptist Min-isters at Tremont Temple, relative to my renuncis-tion of their creed, statements were made which are grossly untruthful in every important particular; and I solicit the privilege of submitting documentary eridence of their faisity. It is represented by the Committee's Report that I have had no "recognizable standing among the Bap-tists, having left the denomination previous to 1870," and that I connected myself with the Congregational-ists in Michigan, who virtually suspended me from their ministry.

Ciently demonstrates:- "At a special call meeting of the First Congregational Church of Dowagiac, Michigan, the following motion was made and unanimously adopted, and ordered to be entered upon the church record:- "Resolved, That the Rov. Edward F. Strickland having tendered his resignation and informed us that he has accepted another field of labor, we feel it our privilege and duty to cordially and affectionately commend him as an earnest and energetic minister of our Lord Jesus Christ; also to state that during two years and six months he has labored with us faithfully and acceptably, and that he and his family carry with them our Christian love and earnest prayers for their continued user in that part of our Lord's vineyard whereunto they are sent.
 "Done by order of the church, this 28th day of February, 1869."

"CYBUS TUTHILL, Church Clerk." "CYRUS TUTHILL, Church Clerk." The Congregational ministers of Michigan, disap-proving of my position as a Baptist minister in their ranks, without authority of any church, and disre-garding the strong protest of the Dowaglac church, passed a set of resolutions advising me to "demit my ministry," etc. I admit here a copy of this protest, as an over-whelming refutation of the charges made against me by the Kalamazoo Association :--"Dowactarc. Mich., Sent 8, 1960

"Dowagiac, Mich., Sept 8, 1869. "To the Business Committee, Kalamazoo Minis

In this resignation as Acting resolved in this third, and that said letter of dismissal and commendation was granted by a unanimous rising vote of our church ind congregational Association imputing partiality of the church and undue influence exercised by Mr. itrickland to obtain said letter from us), we have hought it our duty to deny emphatically the state-nent made by the Committee's Report in all its prem-ses in reference to the result of the labors of the Rev. I. F. Strickland with us. Also we, the Dowag-ne Congregational Church, beg to apprise the Kala-er of dismission and commendation rejected by them s a genuine document, and as such, by order of the hurch, is entered upon our Record. "I. J. STENBINS, "CTRUS TUTRILL, Church Clerk." Receiving an invitation to the pastorate of the Bap-

Receiving an invitation to the pastorate of the Bap-sit Church of Camden, Maine, I related before that hurch my views as to my right of occupying any hurch pulpit, and that, though I had occupied a 'sdo-Baptist pulpit, I had never joined the church as member of that body. I presented a letter of com-sendation from the Wayne Street Baptist Church of layton, Ohlo, and, by a unanimous vote of the and pastorate. The statement made by the Boston ministers' Re-port that "it is nothing short of audacity" on my part to come before their meeting and withdraw from a body to which I did not rightfully belong, either ministerially or otherwise, is false in every particular. At the expiration of my pastorate of the Chestnut Street Baptist Church, at Camden, the following res-olutions were unanimously adopted by that body:-"Benefad, Unanimously adopted by that body:-

Camden Church, was received into their fellowship and pastorate.

olutions were unanimously adopted by that body:-"Resolved, Unanimously, by the Chestnut Street Baptist Church of Camden, Me., that we profoundly regret the resignation of our beloved pastor, the Rev. Edward F. Strickland, and that we regard our pastor as a Baptist clergyman aound in the doctrines of the Gospel, and able in their promulgation. "Resolved, That the affability and Christian walk before the world and the church, and the, kindness and faithfulness, of our pastor, have endeared him to us, and that we accept his resignation with heartfelt regret. F. MILLS, Church Clerk." Immediately on my resignation of the above

Immediately on my resignation of the above church, I received and accepted a call to the Galvary Baptist Church, of Westerly, R. I., to become their pastor; and on my resignation one year afterward I received the following letter of dismissal and commendation :

pactor; and on my resignation one year afterward I received the following letter of dismissal and commendation:—
"CALVART BAFTET CHURCH, Westerly, R. I., to the Second Baptist Church, Chelsea, Mass.:
"Dear Brethren,—This is to certify that Rev, E. F. Strickland, and Sisters Fanny D. Strickland, and Sisters Fanny D. Strickland and full provide the purpose of uniting with you. If received by you within air months, we shall regard them dismissed from us. And may the blessing of the great Head of the purpose of uniting with you. If received by you within air months, we shall regard them dismissed from us. And may the blessing of the great Head of the Church abide with you and the brother and else.
"By order of the church."
"By order of the church."
"WESTERLY, R. I., May 7, 1872."
On the 15th of May, 1873, I received an invitation for surprive the First Baptist Church of Stoughton, Mass. The church, becoming disaffected with my riews of the doctrine of Total Depravity, etc., ordered mass meeting of the whole town, resolved themselves into a religious society, by the title of the Union this capacity I still continue.
The buble will hus perceived has the sole cause of the attack made upon me by the Tremont Temple Baptist clergy is occasioned by my assuming the right proble would never have seen the light. But of the down in the would have passed unnotice: even the denunciation of the would have passed unnot clergy would never have seen the light. But of the regist orgen of the down would have passed unnot clergy would never have seen the light. But of the right orgen to a subject doy on me, and I am demonstration of the congregational clergy would never have seen the light. But of the right orgen to gap and publish to the world my abjuration of Baptist doctrine, then the beavy guns of bitterform a, but was not of us." The question of bitterform a, but was not of us." The question of bitterform a, but was not of us." The question of bitterform a, but was not of us." T public. As soon as arrangements can be effected, services will be held in a hall in Boston, where my experience in and conversion from the theatrical profession, and my experience of the Evangelical ministry, will be freely narrated. Due notice to the public will be given. Edw. F. STRICKLAND, Late Baptist Minister.

Late Baptist Minister. THE TERBIBLE sufferings to which the agricultural laborers are exposed have been most keenly illustra-ted by a case reported from North Hampshire. We mear Alton, though sixty-serven years of age, had (li transpired at an inquest), for the last five years, for which been combelled to live with her husband en-thruly in sheltsred spots about the farm on which the husband worked. Latterly they had erected a hut, consisting of a few hurdles covered with straw, in a had her husband applied for an order on the parish, beequently her husband, on returning from work, found her alivering and suffering from severe sickness. His put she dide in his presence. When the coroner and ury went to see the body, they found it lying where it husband applied so the suthorities for the funeral works to have a coffin placed by the side of the body rangement made by the authorities for the funeral works for his "living"—he is "a laborer in Christian pright of the ang entimen, are prepared to fight to be the biter entities on the farm, an who her shivering and gentemen, are prepared to fight to the shift of the set of the body, they found it is an any how the set of the body, iney found it is a man who paragement made by the authorities for the funeral works for his "living"—he is "a laborer in Christian boots for his "living"—he is "a laborer in Christian boots for his "living"—he is "a laborer in Christian boots for his "living"—he is "a laborer in Christian boots for his "living" husbend Reformer.

"LITTLE TOWNY did not disobey mamma and go in awimming, did he?" "No, mamma; Jimmy Brown and the rest of the boys went in, but I remembered and would not disobey you." "And Tommy never tells lies, does he?" "No, mamma; I couldn't go to heaven." "Then how does Tommy happen to have on Jimmy Brown's shirt?"

THE HUMBUG OF EARLY RISING.—All this talk about early rising is moonshine. The habit of turn-ing out of bed in the middle of the night suits some people; let them enjoy it. But it is fully to lay down a general rule upon the subject. Some men are fit for nothing all day after they have risen early in the morning. Their energies are deadened, their imagi-nations are heavy, their spirits are depressed. It is eald you can work so well in the morning. Some people can, but other can work best at night; others, again, in the afternoon. Long trial and experiment form the only conclusive tests upon these points. As for getting up early because Prof. Gammon has writ-ten letters to the papers proving the necessity of it,— let no one be goose enough to do it. We silt know the model man, sged eighty: "I invariably rise at five; I work three hours, take a light breakfast—namely, a cracker and a pinch of salt,—work five hours more, never smoke, never drink anything but barley-water, eat no dinner, and go to bed at six in the evening." If anybody finds that that donkeyfied sort of life suits him, by all means let him continue it. But few people would care to live to eighty on those terms. If a man cannot get all withered and crumpled up on easier conduitons than those, it is almost as well that he should depart before he is a nuisance to himself and a bore to everybody elas. School-boys, and young people generally, ought to get up early, for its found that nine-tenths of them can stand it; and it does then good. But let no one torture himself with the thought that he could have been twice as good a man as he is if he had risen every morning at daylight. The habit would kill half of us in five years.—New York Times. York Times

Doetry.

(For THE INDER.)

SORROW.

Amid the wastes of desert gands The purest spring may oft be flowing; Amid the wilds of savage lands The lovellest flowers may be growing, Though often viewed with careless eye,

Or acornfully passed heedless by.

Yet both appeal to human hearts, Both loving lessons e'er are telling; The fragrance which the rose imparts, The ripples from the spring upwelling. Speak gently of the tender rest

That all may find on Nature's breast

The heart attuned to Nature's wiles,

Meeting her strokes with trust abiding, Will find she wears her sweetest smiles For those whose hearts are most confiding, And chastens mortals to reprove

Their blindness to their Mother's love. Would we could heed the priceless worth

That lies in discipline of sorrow, To give the soul, while yet of earth, A foretaste of the bright to-morrow!

For souls by sorrow purified But lose the dross of selfish pride.

The heart that hath deep sorrow known Hath been by secret forces moulded, That, from the bonds of self outgrown, The God-in-us may be unfolded,

When hearts with softer feelings glow, Souls will see more of Nature's beauty, And hear her accents whispering low-

That sorrow is the path to duty And all that hear her sweet-toned Have learned in sorrow to rejoice.

And learn that life through Nature runs.

That life, through lines of finest tracing, Links man to stars and distant suns, With loving glow all things embracing: Then Nature's secret lies revealed, No more by selfishness concealed.

NORTHANPTON, MASS.

CASH BECEIPTS.

L.

Streets Google

FOR THE WERE ENDING OCTOBER 17.

FOR THE WHEE ENDING OCTOBES 17. David Porter, 10 cents; Emily J. Leonard, 10 cents; N. E. Boyd, $1; A. M. Stayman, $1.55; Cordells Eston, $2 cents; F. A. Hinckley, 25 cents; George Ies, $3.20; Centes Barton, 32 cents; M. J. Sarage, $3.20; C. Hazeltin, $1.25; George H. Foster, $2.13; D. Dean, 75 cents; Joueph & CDon-ough, $4.33; H. C. Bassett, 25 cents; Joueph & CDon-ough, $4.33; H. C. Bassett, 25 cents; J. English, 75 cents; L. F. Gardner, 25 cents; Richard Pricheit, $1.50; F. H. Badger, $3; M. R. Warren, $3]; A. F. Wilkinson, $3; George Draper, $3; O. A. Farwell, $3; Susan M. Hallowell, $3; J. Hoopes, 50 cents; L. P. Holmers, $1; C. Hayes, $1.50; E. Stone, $3.25; I. C. Chaley, $3.10; C. H. Tindell, $2; 75; J. Boopes, $50; El Chealey, $3.10; C. H. Tindell, $2; 75; J. Boopes, $50; El Chealey, $3.10; C. H. Tindell, $2; 75; J. Boopes, $50; El Chealey, $3.10; C. H. Tindell, $2; 75; J. Boopes, $50; St. B. Chealey, $3.10; C. H. Tindell, $2; 75; J. Boopes, $50; C. S. Huyche, $0 cents; J. Amere, $1.60; C. L. Carr, $2; George Tolman, 25 cents; A. F. Rowalne, $3,5; D. C. Loring, 34 cents; E. B. Herr, 26 cents; J. B. Jarvis, $52; E. B. Merrill, $3; O. H. P. Kinney, $3; T. K. Herres, To cents; Henry Green, $2; Cents; W. H. Hunt, $3; J. G. Witch $4; J. B. Shaller, $1; W. G. Bahcock, $5; A. W. Witchington, $3; George Templeton, $1; Bannuel Warbasse, $10; Joseph Warbasse, $10. Al recelpts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and

All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent nnless specially requested. Fersons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.

The Inder. PUBLISHED SVERY THURSDAY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

FRANCIA ELLING WOOD ABBOT, ABRAE WALTER STEVENS, OGTAVIUS BROORS FROTHINGHAM, THORAS WENTWORTH BIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RUCHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MISS. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES VOVSEY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 22, 1874

SPECIAL NOTICE.

A Convention of the Free Religious Association is to be held in Providence, at Howard Hall, beginning Wednesday evening, the 28th of October, and holding through Thursday, the 29th. Mesers. Frothingham, Higginson, Welss, Abbot, Gannett, Connor, Dr. Bartol, Mrs. Cheney, and other speakers are expected to be present. Further particulars will be given hereafter in the Providence papers.

WA. J. POTTER, Sec'y F. R. A.

CAUTION.

F. A. Porter, formerly of Alton, Illinois, was appointed an agent for the Index Association last July, and authorized to receive subscriptions for THE IN-DEX. Receipts signed by him have been forwarded to this office by parties whose names he has never reported, and whose money he has kept. He was written to several weeks ago, demanding an explanation of his course, but has failed to reply; and now, in protection of the public and the Association, It is essary to publish these facts, to cancel his apne pointment as agent, and caution all parties against paying any money to him on account of THE INDEX. The paper will be sent in good faith to all persons who forward to us receipts, signed by F. A. Porter before this date, in accordance with their terms; but the public are hereby notified that his receipts of a later date will not be acknowledged at this office.

F. E. ABBOT. For Index Association.

BOBTON, Oct. 22, 1874.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for Afteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

THE NEW YORK Weekly Tribune of October 7 had a letter from Mr. Thomas W. Conway, late Superintendent of Education in Louisiana, on "Mized Schools at the South," which we should have been glad to print in this number of THE INDEX, as an important testimony to the practical wisdom, as well as inherent justice, of the Civil Rights Bill. Press of other matter, however, obliges us to defer it till next week.

IF ANY one of our readers desires to send THE IN-DEX to an Evangelical clergyman who will consent to receive it, it shall be malled to such clergyman for a year on receipt of his address in full and two dol-lars; and this reduced subscription may be paid by anybody. Here is a chance to convert the reverend clergy! We should like nothing better than to put a copy of this paper every week into the hands of the forty-three thousand ministers of this great Yankee nation.

JAMES C. PARSONS, in the Unitarian Review for September, says that, "Mr. Abbot deduces not only thought, but the thinking power, from the operations of matter." The only ground of this abourd assertion is our statement that "the faculty of moral intuition itself is the result of the perpetual action on man of his moral environment and his reaction to it." Is Mr. Parsons unable to discriminate between "matter" and "moral environment"? If he is, we are not. One might as well identify the Copernican sys-tem with the Union Pacific Railroad.

HOW THEY PERSECUTE NOWADAYS.

The following editorial paragraph in reference to Rev. Edward F. Strickland, whose card announcing a "change of belief" was published in THE INDEX of October 1, appeared in the New York Independent of October 15:-

"That Mr. Strickland who withdrew in such a formal manner from the Baptist Pastors' Conference of Boston, on account of the change of his views con-cerning total depravity and certain other doctrines, seems to have stood upon the order of his going much more than was meet. The Conference has public a statement to the affact that he never rightseems to have stood upon the order of his going much more than was meet. The Conference has printed a statement to the effect that he never right-fully belonged to it; that what standing he had in the Baptist denomination was fraudulently obtained; and that, under the circumstances, his 'withdrawal' is 'nothing short of audacity.' If we may believe the story of these indignant brethren, Mr. Strickland not only believes in total depravity, but lives up to it pretty well " pretty well."

This paragraph alludes to the "counter-statement" which was adopted by the "Baptist Preachers' meeting of Boston and vicinity" on October 5, and published immediately in four of the chief dailies of this city. In another column we republish this document entire. It makes several serious charges :-

1. That Mr. Strickland has had "no recognizable standing among Baptists," having "left the denomination previous to 1870."

2. That he subsequently became "connected with the Congregationalists in Michigan."

3. That he was "virtually suspended from the ministry" by the Kalamazoo Association [Congregationalist] in February, 1870; by resolutions which (in our opinion) contain an artful insinuation of immorality, without directly charging him with it-resolutions which would naturally suggest immorality to most people, but would be as easily explained by doctrinal heresy, or ecclesiastical displeasure on other than moral grounds.

4. That, "within six or seven months from the above date," he obtained a membership in a Baptist church in Maine by using an old letter from Dayton, Ohlo, which he had no right to use because he had subsequently "gone over to the Congregationalists to be set aside by them."

5. That this membership, thus obtained, was soon after "irregularly transferred" to the Baptist church in Westerly, Rhode Island.

6. That "a standing thus secured can only be re-garded as fraudulent," and that it was "audacity" to withdraw from a ministerial body to which he had never rightfully belonged.

These are charges of the utmost gravity, if true, and would put Mr. Strickland in the position of an impudent impostor before the public. We do not wonder that he now, having tried in vain to get justice done him by the dailies which published the attack upon him, asks us to print the accusation and his defence together. This we cheerfully do in the interest of fair play, and we call attention to the leading points which he makes in reply to the above specific charges :-

1. That he has never left the Baptist denomination until now, though he has preached as "stated supply" in other pulpits; as is very often done.

2. That he never became connected with the Congregationalists in any other way, whether as pastor or church-member.

3. That the Kalamazoo Congregationalist Association had no authority to pass their resolutions, which were vigorously protested against by his own church at the time.

4. That, baving never left the Baptists or forfeited his membership in their denomination, he had a perfect right to use the old Dayton letter of recommendation at Camden.

5. That the Camden church recommended him as a "Baptist clergyman sound in the doctrines," etc., and therefore that he went to Westerly without any "irregularity."

6. That the charge of "fraud" is wholly false, and does him gross injustice.

Now we never saw Mr. Strickland until after the publication of his card, and cannot of course give pyrsonal testimony to his character; but his documents, if genuine, disprove the charges made against him, and he appeals to the official records in proof of their genuineness. If the Independent is not disposed to connive with a pack of self-convicted persecutors and slanderers, it will promptly correct the injustice of its paragraph by stating the truth about Mr. Strickland. But, though the Independent should stick to its copied misrepresentations, for which it was not to blame originally, free-thinkers will find no difficulty in detecting the real animus of the Tremont

Temple manifesto. The pulpit and the press are quick enough to combine in hounding down every man who sets himself in open opposition to the accepted religion of the day; and they are powerful enough to inflict great wrong and suffering upon their victims. All the more reason why liberals should resist this oppression and defend the oppressed. Nothing is clearer than that only sectarian malice will "believe the story of these indignant brethren."

THE TWO SPIRITS.

On the Sunday immediately following the late insurrection against the State government of Louisiana, Rev. Dr. Markham preached in the pulpit of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church, at New Orleans, a sermon lauding the outbreak in exaggerated terms. A local daily well reports it as "Treason in the Pul-We are informed by one of our New Orleans pit." correspondents that such was and is the voice of the pulpit all over the State.

Another correspondent from the same city (an exofficer of the Federal army) says:

"I agree perfectly with Mr. Hallowell in his article on 'The Civil Rights Bill and the Nation,' in Tax. INDEX of September 24, that 'the present defant and aggressive attitude' of the South 'is to be referred to the encouragement it found in the failure of Congress to pass a bill that would protect the negro." The hostility here is not really against Kellogs, but against the principles of his party-against the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. The growlen use the alleged illegality of Kellogg's government as a cat's-paw. They well know that, if the votes showed McEnery elected, the votes were fraudalent, as Carpenter admitted when he tried to defend Me-Enery in the Senate. Furthermore, these Southerners well know that the registration offices were in many instances concealed from the negro in the parishes in the interior of the State. The offices were changed about, and such obstacles were thrown in the way of the colored men that a count showed not less than twenty thousand who were thus prevented from voting. Had the McEnery party kept control of the State, no Yankee would have cared to live here. Even now it is disagreeable enough. The words 'damned Yankee' are constantly hissed at Northern men. But a short time ago a most brutal attack was made upon myself by one of these hightoned gentlemen, simply because I demanded that the negro should have a fair chance, and used arpressions commending General Grant and the government. The party making the attack (physical violence, striking right out for your eyes, and even bying to get hands on your throat) well knew that I was crippled by my wounds in the army, and had but one good arm. With great difficulty I protected myself from injury until others interposed. In simple justice to ex-Confederate soldiers, I will say that this man was not one of them. He fied to Mexico during the war, and returned to fight cripples at the end of the war.

"There is as much rebellion to-day in Louisians as there was thirteen years ago. Such papers as the New York Tribune encourage the slaveholding spirit of the South. Had James Buchanan been President two weeks ago [this letter is dated September 29], where would the South have been to-day?

"The hatred for the negro in any other capacity than that of a menial servant or slave is still the pre-valing feeling South. It seems to be in their blood. Greeley's expression, 'the tiger's milk of slavery, 'I now understand as I never did before. I came here quite conservative and generous in my feeling for the South, as most Northern officers did. I even voted for McClellan in my enthusiasm for the man, for I was a 'Potomac Army boy.' But a Northern man becomes a radical rapidly down here. There will be no peace here while the old spirit of slavery survives. The leopard can as soon change his spots as the Southern man his feeling towards the negro. He will finally sell his plantation; the Northerper and German will buy it, and cut it up into farms of ressonable size,"

This long extract need not be apologized for, for it embodies testimony very valuable and evidently very sincere. It is for the Southern spirit thus depicted that Rev. Dr. Markham spoke; and it is right that the North should understand that the Church is just as eager to defend the slavery-spirit to-day as it was to defend the slavery-institution a few years ago. It is the spirit of true radicalism alone that can venerate the equal rights of all mankind; and that is the spirit of Anti-Christianity.

Dimendin Google

"NEWSPAPER STRICS."

In a long article under the above caption, the Nation calls upon every reader of a newspaper who detects in it the want of "pecuniary integrity," "to do his part in making it disgraceful and unprofitable." This demand from such a source is peculiarly suggestive. That the Nation is venal, that its editorial columns have ever been or are now in the market, as it alleges of the Independent, we have no reason to believe; but "pecuniary integrity" in journalism involves something more than absence of venality. For erample, Mr. Abbot, by profession of zeal in the cause of Free Religion, induced a part of the public to contribute money for the establishment and support of THE INDEX. If, after becoming firmly seated in the editorial chair, Mr. A bbot had diverted this paper from its original objects, and was now advocating the proposed Christian Amendment to the Constitution, he would be justly chargeable with a lack of pecuniary integrity, and the supporters of THE INDEX could not be too severe in their reprobation of him. Pecunlary integrity on the part of a journal whose capital has been supplied by others implies fulfilment of all moral obligations to the contributors, assumed by the editor when he accepted his position. Are the hands of the Nation clean? Is this attack upon a rival journal prompted by a creditable desire to raise the moral standard of journalism, or is it another miserable instance of the pot calling the kettle black?

The editor of the Nation may have found it convenient to forget, but some of us have thought it worth while to remember, that of the one hundred thousand dollars subscribed toward the establishment of his paper, a large part was paid for the purpose of enabling him to redeem his promises to the freedmen.

Sixteen thousand dollars were paid from the surplus of funds belonging to the Boston Committee for Recruiting Colored Troops; thirteen thousand dollars were paid by the late Major George L. Stearns, and smaller sums by other friends of the freedmen. What the promises were upon which this money was obtained, the prospectus of the Nation plainly indicates. It states one of the "main objects" of the paper to be—

"The earnest and persistent consideration of the condition of the laboring class at the South, as a matter of vital interest to the nation at large, with a view to the removal of all artificial distinctions between them and the rest of the population, and the securing to them, as far as education and justice can do it, of an equal chance in the race of life."

These promises are followed by others similar in character; and, as if to strengthen the belief of the public that they would be carried out in good faith, the name of William Lloyd Garrison is mentioned on the list of writers secured for the paper.

What was expected of the Nation by its friends and projectors, the following extract from an editorial by Mr. Garrison in the Liberator, June 30, 1865, will show :--

"As the Liberator is to terminate its publication at the close of its present volume, we are glad to be able to commend to its friends and patrons the new weekly periodical, . . . the Nation, believing as we do that it will be eminently deserving of the most liberal patronage, not only for its superior literary and scientific merits, but for . . . . its soundly reformatory spirit and its thorough advocacy of the rights of the freedmen at the South. The stockholders . . . . Ane subscribed to this enterprise. . . . for the purpose of establishing a first-class journal in the interest of humanity, progress, the common weal. . . . The friends of freedom and equal rights should take an interest in its widest circulation."

This evidence as to the promises of the Nation, especially in its relation to the freedmen, on the one side, and the expectations of its projectors on the other, we claim is conclusive.

The Nation was launched, and its projectors were jubilant. Mr. Charles E. Norton, who claims to be "personally cognizant of all the more important circumstances attending the establishment of the Nation," after a few numbers of the paper had been issued, noticed with pleasure that it was abused by the Copperheads, and that Mr. Wendell Phillips was supposed by a Southern editor to be its inspiring genius.

Here, indeed, was just cause for congratulation by all "friends of freedom and equal rights;" but has the Nation continued to fulfil its promises? Would Mr. Garrison to-day recommend "its soundly reformatory spirit," and endorse it as the legitimate successor of his Liberator? Would any Southern editor snapect Wendell Phillips to be its inspiring genius? And to these questions let us add one more equally pertinent.

Has the money subscribed in the interest of the "laboring class of the South" been honestly devoted to this end? If it had been, the Nation might with some small degree of propriety assume the moral role, and preach homilies on pecunlary integrity to its less virtuous neighbors. Rut we doubt whether the history of journalism affords a more striking illustration of bad faith toward pecunlary contributors than is to be found in the record of the Nation. The class of persons recognized the world over as friends of the negro has been the special object of its ridicule and contempt. The reactionary tone of the paper upon the question of "vital interest to the nation at large" is known to every one who reads it. It is doing what it can to-day to perpetuate "artificial distinctions" in Southern society, and to reconstruct the South; not upon a basis of equality, but upon class and caste. The White Leagues find in it a ready and reckless apologist for their crimes against the negro, and their usurpation of State governments.

But to realize the extent of the Nation's violation of promises to its projectors, and the depth of its apostasy to the freedmen, one must compare the prospectus we have referred to, and the utterances of the paper during the first year of its publication, with its editorial columns of the last few weeks. On July 27, 1865, it could say: "We should make root and branch work with the prejudices that flowed from slavery. . . . We ask him [President Johnson] to take care that the new society at the South shall not be reorganized in such fashion that a man may be excluded from civil rights for the ridiculous reason that his skin is of a particular hue." Contrast these demands with the scandalous editorial of September 17, 1874, in which Mr. Sumper's Civil Rights Bill is denounced as "violent and lawless," "equally" so with "acts of violence and lawlessness" of the negroes' "old masters."

Again, July 27, 1865, the Nation said : "Class government at the South is the form of all others most hostile to real liberty and real progress, most subversive of human rights, and most productive of agitation, violence, and internal dissension." Compare this declaration with the editorial from which we have just quoted, and in which the advocates of the Civil Rights Bill, in the Senate, are held responsible for the present "agitation, violence, and internal dissension" in the South. In the first number of the Nation, issued July 6, 1865, the editor said: "To suppose that he [the negro] will receive fair play from white legislators who are not responsible to him, who have no sympathy with him, and who, in their secret hearts, consider him a beast of the field, is to violate every rule of democratic government, and to make an open and shame less declaration of want of faith in our own principles." Compare this protest against White rule in the South with the editorial of October 8, 1874, in which, with a ponderous array of figures, inconsequent conclusions, and sleepy logic, the editor pretends to furnish a "complete answer to those who say the negroes cannot trust the whites to govern them," and gravely informs the reader that "where they are forced to trust them, all goes well.'

Concerning the Nation's quarrel with the Independent we know but little, and care still less; but when it presumes to enforce the value of "pecuniary integrity" in journalism, we perform a simple duty to the press in revealing the worthlessness of its pretensions. And when on one page it prates about "Newspaper Ethics," and on another uses its power and influence to strengthen the hands of enemies to the negro, the cause of public decency and morals is served by recalling its early promises to the freedmen, and exposing the extent of its shameless apostasy. E. P. H.

THE ORIENTALISTS IN CONGRESS.

The second "International Congress of Orientalists" was held in London, in September. It was a most remarkable assemblage, containing not only some of the most distinguished scholars of Western Europe,—as Max Müller, Sir Henry Rawlinson, Dr. Lepsius, Professor Owen, Professor Leon De Rosny, and a host of others equally or nearly as famous,—but also members from Turkey, Egypt, Syria, India, and Japan. They were all scholars, engaged in some department of Oriental study, and came together to compare facts and discuss theories. They are men in the habit mainly of regarding their subjects from a purely scientific point of view, and therefore were not considering what might be the practical consequences of their investigations.

Yet practical consequences most momentous are involved in the labors of this band of scholars, and in the essays which they quietly read to each other in the sessions of their Congress. The London Times, in an article on the Congress, says: "The fact is that the Orientalists-many of them without knowing itare doing a great political work. Their investigations, however technically scientific they may appear when separately considered, have in the mass a most important bearing upon the relations of the Western to the Eastern world. They explain differences, they bridge over chasms, they establish affiliations previously unguessed at. . . . The history, the literature, the archeology, the jurisprudence, and the philosophy of the Eastern nations have for the scholars of the Continent a speculative attraction; for Englishmen, and even for those who are not scholars, they have a direct practical interest, because the more we know of Eastern methods of thinking and lines of character the less likely shall we be to make mistakes in dealing with our Indian subjects and their neighbors.

Thus the Times speaks of the political results of the work of these Oriental scholars. But the bearings of their work on religion are equally direct, and the consequences even more important. The language above quoted might have been used indeed almost without change, if in the beginning the writer had said religious work instead of "political." These Oriental scholars, by their investigations into the primitive life of the people of Asis, which is the mother of religions, are helping to build up the Science of Religion. They are proving that all religious development is of one order, and that religions that now seem wide apart are connected by the law of evolution as much as are the languages of India and Europe. "They explain differences, they bridge over chasms, they establish affiliations previously un-guessed at." And before such work as this, even if the workers intend no such result, it is as impossible for the old theory of a supernatural and exclusive revelation of Deity, in the Hebrew and Christian religions, to stand, as it is for Chinese geographers longer to maintain that their Celestial Empire occupies the larger part of the earth's surface, while Europe and America are pushed into obscure corners upon the map.

The mere coming together, too, in such an assembly, of representatives of different religions, and the social intercourse incidental to it, cannot but have an effect on the members themselves towards modifying their views of each other's faith. The Congress closed with a grand banquet given by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, at which different religions and colors and races sat down in cordial good-will together. Besides the European scholars above named, there was the Patriarch of Syria, Prince Charles, Ruler of Roumania, the Syrian Bishop of Jerusalem, Shunker Punderung, Pandit from India, and others with names of very Aslatic look. Yet the spirit of the occasion seems to have been well expressed by the Hindu Pandit in his speech, when he said that "the labors of the Congress tended to demonstrate that they were all brethren, though separated by distance, color, and creed." And it seems impossible that any of the Christian members of the Congress, after conferring with this Indian delegate as an equal scholar, and dining with him as a social equal, should have felt any great zeal to send missionaries to him as a benighted heathen. W. J. P.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-In my last letter I urged with perhaps some warmth the necessity for watching and guarding against the encroachments of Rome. I would follow it up by a few words on the means by which such opposition may be legitimately carried on by liberals without any infringement of the rights of others, or any breach of charity. I do not suppose the Roman Catholics have any reason to fear a repetition of persecution in any form-social or political-in England or in America. The day is at length passed away in which forcible interference with religious convictions is possible; and there are so many lovable and honored persons of the Catholic faith as to render it all but impossible for their religion to expose them to social disabilities. This is all as it should be. Governments have nothing to do with a man's private opinions so long as they do not interfere with the proper discharge of his public and social duties. If at any time, however, Catholics should be induced to use their political power to the detriment of the State. it would of course then be needful to deprive them of that power, in self-defence. But this contingency need not be at present considered. The question is, What can we do, what ought we to do now, to weaken or frustrate the efforts of a church whose principle are discerned to be so deeply prejudicial to humanity ? The only weapon we can lawfully use is that of persuasion-as all of us will admit. We have a perfect right to spend our lives, if we think proper, in arguing Roman Catholics out of their pernicious doctrines.

Connectory Google

I do not of course mean to sanction that most insolant of all the forms of fanaticiam indulged in by missionaries and proselytizers-nothing so ill-bred would meet my approval, you may be sure. All I mean is that it is only by talking and writing that we can lawfully oppose any theory we deem pernicious. The next question is, What ought to be the main point of our attack? Shall it be the most occult of the Church's mysteries, or the most palpable of her abuses ?

In my opinion, an attack on these would be fruitless, for the greater the mystery the more credit for believing it; and the less natural moral justification there is for any of the Church's prescriptions or proscriptions, the greater necessity for implicit, unquestioning obedience to them.

No; if we would ever do anything effectual in our afforts to cripple Roman Catholic power, we must first remove from the minds and hearts of the people under her rule that personal fear for their own safety which is the sole secret of the Church's influence.

Priests owe their entire success to this element of fear in the hearts of the people; fear-sometimes the natural result of sense of guilt; but in most cases artificially produced by the teachings of the priest himself, who lays down horrible torments to be avoided as the basis of his teaching.

In plain English, if there is no danger in the life to come, there is no necessity for the Church's antidotes and safeguards. If there is also no fear of any danger, the Church's appeal to "come and be saved" is simply ludicrous.

Now I do not deny that many Roman Catholics have better ideas than this; they think they are pleasing God in obeying the Church, and would be noble enough to continue to do so without hope of reward or promise of escape from torment. But the mass of them are not of this type, but are Catholics through mortal fear of hell and damnation. Again and again I say, Remove this fear, and the Church has no function! Make people assured of their perfect safety, whatever they may believe and whether or not they disobey the priest, and the spell of the Church is broken! The whole system is based on this terror, and it seems to me we have nothing to do but to remove the fear, and the Church's grasp over the souls of men and women will be paralyzed in a moment.

We may try in vain to throw discredit on their dogmas and to shatter their idols; the Protestantism of the sixteenth century tried this and signally failed, leaving Christendom with more than half a mind to recant and go back to Rome. But if we can only show the Romanists that they are all perfectly "safe," whether they obey the Church or not, they will then be able to exercise their reason in examining the pretensions and dogmas of their Churchwhich is now forbidden them not only by the command of the priest, but by their own instincts, which warn them against the peril of inquiry and free thought.

Now it is very clear that a merely negative system of teaching will never remove this fear. Mere denials are not enough to wean souls from their terror. Courage is better taught by example and inspired by heroic conduct. Hence it is necessary for us to have some positive beliefs which can be adopted in the place of those we want to remove; and if we only gain a hearing, we will answer for it that the native candor of the human mind will admit the superiority of our view of the Divine purposes, and gladly rid itself of its former unhappy and oppressive alarms.

Those of us then who do believe in God and in immortality are, I think, bound to show the Romanist that nobler view of God's impartial love to all which eclipses the old ecclesiastical view and commends itself to the understanding, the conscience, and the affections of man. Once get a man to listen to that, and his fetters are broken forever. No priest or church can ever frighten him again.

And they, the priests, know this as well as we do, and therefore forbid their people to listen to a word from any one beyond their pale. Why this scrupulous caution, if not because the syren voice of the freeman has an irresistible fascination? Why hinder the people from hearing, if what is said be weak or false? No; the priests know too well that their safety lies in concealment and disguise; in keeping back the people from the light; in closing their ears to the testimony of those who have gained their liberty. Can any self-condemnation be more eloquent than this?

I am, sir, very truly yours, CHARLES VOYSET.

CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, Sept. 28, 1874.

Communications.

A SAMPLE OF CATHOLIC "EDUCATION." EDITOB INDEX

EDITOB INDEX:--The bishop's speech, given at the dedication of a Catholic schoolhouse, in Worcester, Mass., pub-lished in THE INDEX a few weeks ago, called to my mind the preface to a reading-book for schools that I had recently met with, and which I thought might prove interesting enough for publication. The book is the Metropolitan Fourth Reader, published by D. and J. Sadlier & Co., 31 Barclay Street, New York, and is in use in the Catholic schools in this city. The following is an extract from the preface:-

is the Metropolitan Fourth Reader, published by D. and J. Sadlier & Co., 31 Barclay Street, New York, and is in use in the Catholic schools in this city. The following is an extract from the preface:— "Having had some experience in the education of youth, and having examined most of the readers published, we noticed that, with the single exception of the Christian Brothers' Series, all the others are better adapted for Pagan than Christian schools. They are made expressly for mixed schools, where Protestant and Catholic, Jew and Pagan, may read out of the same book, without discovering that there is such a thing as religion in the world. "Dr. Brownson, in his Review for July, has so well described what readers should and should not be, that we will ishall be partoned for quoting him, as he expressed far more clearly than we can what we would wish to say:— ""Instructions in natural history or natural sci-ence, as chemistry, mineralogy, geology, quadrupeds, birds, fishes, or bugs, may be very interesting; but they form no part of education, and tend far more to materialize the mind than to elevate it to God, and to store it with moral and religious principles, which may one day fructify, and form a character of moral and true religious worth. A book may contain much useful instruction on nouns, adjectives, verbs, ad-verbs, participles, and other parts of speech, very proper in a grammar-book, but quite out of place in a reading-book; but all these lessons belong to the department of special instruction, and either have no bearing on education proper, or tend to give to edu-cation a dry, utilitarian, and materialistic character. ... The aim of the reading-book is not instruction, swe in the single art of reading, but education, the event of those great principles which are the basis of all religion."" Would a mixed follow of the character of a book having such a preface. Of course, it is full of signs and vis-all religion."" You can judge of the character of a book having such a preface. Of course, it is full of signs and vis-ions, old wives' fables and young maldens' ghost sto-ries, the Adorable Presence and the Immaculate Conception. And that is the kind of education the Catholics offer us in place of our present good sys-tem. Sr. PAUL Minn. Sent. 29, 1874

tem. Sr. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 28, 1874.

"IS THERE A GOD ??

St. PAUL, Minn., Bepl. 28, 1874. "In THERE A GOD." There either is, or there is not, a Supreme Being, for a first examine the proposition that there is no day the resultants of development through count-less ages; that matter is eternal and infinitely exten-sive, subjected to laws which are an ontgrowth of the the universe, this world, and man are to day the resultants of development through count-less ages; that matter is eternal and infinitely exten-sive, subjected to laws which are an ontgrowth of the thermal and the statement. The common remark which we hear from the freethinker of to-day is "I will have the truth at all hazards. I will not disclipted has sprug into existence. The common remark which we hear from the freethinker of to-day is the result of my inquiries, whatever it my be, because I know that, if I honesity look for truth, I am on the right track." And such persons evince a strong feeling of duty owed by them to some servince a strong feeling of duty owed by them to some the whom or to what they owe this duty, they may say the of truth is an outgrowth of the self-evolved laws which govern matter. Let me remind them that the to the world in the past and present, and the excetter and the world in the past and present, and the to that has no ungrowth of the self-evolved laws which govern matter. I be theory, is only phenom-net, whet matters it what I think or believe? I have the diverse of more entitled to respect than and on the sing on one entitled to respect the self-words and one is no more entitled to respect the theory to what matters it what I think or believe? I have the diving one originating source and simply phenom-ind. What matters it what I think or believe? I have the to make the metagener and we can tak about is that. The only the take what your decision is metaging infinite maker have dreed. The only the laws which have been evolved infinite maker have dreed. The take any trouble to ascertain the the the take accept things just as I find them, and, in the futa-te an e consistent living under this belief would involve ob-diance to every impulse, whether mental or physical-a yielding of oneself to be affected by all external and internal influences. The law of life would be, "Obey every impulse," I det us secondly examine the other proposition; he must be either good, bad, or indifferent. If 1be come convinced that the universe is ruled by a bad God, or by a God who is careless about the welfare of man, I lose my interest in my future, because, under the guidance of a bad or a careless Deity, I can here know what a day may bring forth. My object in the foregoing remarks is to show that the acceptance of either of the ideas-First, That these is no God, or, Second, That there is no God, who is either of the ideas-First, That is either bad or indifferent-forces me logically to the conviction that I need not put myself to the couble of regulating my life.

the conviction that I need not put myself to the trouble of regulating my life. I have one more proposition; namely, That there is a God, and that he is good. I naturally conclude that a good God would in some way or other let ma know what he wants me to do for the regulation of Has he done this?

FREDERIC R. HONEY. New Haves, Conn., October 8, 1874.

SECTARIAN HYMNS IN OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

While so much is said about the reading of the Bible in our public schools, no one to my knowledge has yet called sitention to the frequency with which the teachers and scholars sing the most sectarian hymns; for instance, "Rock of Ages" and "Corona-tion." The latter I recently heard sung in a teach-ers' institute, where the brightest girls in the coun-ty, old enough to have a lively interest in theologr, were thus, at the public expense, taught to think themselves themselves

"Ye chosen seed of Israel's race, Ye ransomed from the fall."

I have known it to be customary for a high school to conclude its sessions with singing-

"Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

The hymns most in use, however, are taken from the new Sunday-school books, where the most pirit-ed and lively tunes are monopolized by the idea that our sole duty is to worship Jesus and get away from this earth into heaven. So far as I know, these Orthodox hymns are in use all over the West, even where the teachers are lib-eral.

So far as I know, these Orthodox hymns are in us all over the West, even where the teachers are lib-eral. There may be some excuse for denying that the Orthodox version of the Bible is a sectarian book, but there is no possibility of questioning the sectar-anism of these hymns. There is only too much re-son to believe that the Bible, as read in our phile schools, has very little influence of any kind over the scholars; but the hymns present the Orthodox dog-mas in the most impressive form. We all remember how much the hymns of our childhood moulded our early faith. The progress of the German Reform-tion was largely due to Luther's hymns, the sudder chanting of one of which in a Roman Catholic churd during the celebration of the mass often called forth an outburst of fanaticism which swept away priest, images, and mass-books, and made the whole dij Lutheran thenceforth. Such hymns have notwholy lost their power, especially over the young and is quiring, whom we liberals thus quictly permit to be and instrumental music. More than that, we con-tentedly pay our share of the cost. Even those of u who become teachers find the use of these hymns we easy and general, and the difficulty of introducing any others as orreat that we are mostly formed to who become teachers find the use of these bymas we easy and general, and the difficulty of introducing any others so great, that we are mostly forced to swim with the stream. This evil is made a growing one by the increased attention given to music in all the schools. The worst of it, to me, is the loss of the immense good which might be done, if the time and strength now spent in glorifying Orthodoxy were used in im-pressing noble moral ideas like those in the familiar hymns, beginning—

"Speak a kind word when you can":

- "Dare to do right, dare to be true":
- "Honor bright": etc.

There are plenty of such hymns already in print, and the liberals have only to ask that the sectarian ones be excluded, and these moral ones put in their place. How wide a range of subjects might be used with moral and intellectual profit I need not have say, except that almost any good music, not sectar-an, might prove of value. The first thing is to get rid of the sectarian hymns, and this seems to me im-portant enough to have a prominent place among the Demands of Liberalism. F. M. HOLLAND.

TILTON'S LAST WORDS.

MY DEAR MR. ABBOT: MY DEAR ME. ABBOT:--I cannot refrain from expressing my opinion in regard to those sentiments uttered by Theodore Til-ton in the concluding paragraphs of his last appeal to the public. In which he gives his reasons for pardon-ing the offence imputed to his wife. No utterance has ever rung through the chambers of the human soul with such grand effect, since the day when Jesus said to the trembling convict, "Neither do I condemn thee? Go, and sin no more." Not for long centuries have such sublime and Christlike words been sounded in the ears of the world by a man in Mr. Tilton's circumstances.

The Pauline idea of marriage, "to avoid fornica-tion, let every man have his own wife, and every woman her own husband," displaced from the Church the contrary teaching of Jesus, who made woman the most important partner in the marital re-lation; and from that day to this law and custom have regarded the wife as merely a legal prostitute, whose body is owned by her husband for sexual pur-poses just as any other kind of property is owned. This idea, so degrading to woman, and I may say to man also, is exactly expressed by Petruchio, in his reference to his wife Kate, in "The Taming of the Shraw":---

Manual Google

"I will be master of what is my own. Bhe is my goods, my chattels; she is my house, My househuld-stuff, my field, my barn, My house, my ox, my ase, my any thing; And here she stands; touch her whoever dare."

<text><text><text><text>

ENON VALLEY, Pa., 25 Sept., 1874.

PRIENDLY COMMENTS.

THOY, New York, Sept. 30, 1874. "Don't stop my paper," as one of your correspond-ents has recently said, from a stand-point of dissent; which dissent, however, is of a very different nature from my own, although your correspondent and I fully agree that "THE INDEX is doing considerably more good than harm, which is about all that can be said of the best things." One of the good points of THE INDEX is that it gives what space it can to the cavils and the criticisms of its readers, and some-times answers them conclusively. I therefore sub-mit a thought or two which the reading of THE IN-DEX has occasioned.

umes answers them conclusively. I therefore sub-mits a thought or two which the reading of THE IN-nex has occasioned. I will enter into no stymological discussion as to the origin of the word religion. For one, I shall be glad if it can be ultimately traced to the word reli-gar, to bind back. We bind a flower, a grape-vine, a young fruit-tree, back to its trellis or other support. So the finite naturally turns to the Infinite, and in it seeks strength, inspiration, and comfort. And har-ing learned, in some small measure, how to under-stand, love, and obey it, the human soul fluds its two destiny and life, forever discerning more and more of the glory of the All-in-All, and, if rightly di-rected, translating its knowledge into practice. Thus religion seems to be not emotion merely, nor merely the action of the intellect and the will. It consists in a combination of the three. It implies though to an infinitesimal extent, the nature of that Force (however named) by which the universe is governed, and its laws; and also the cherishing of the emotions of veneration and trust which react upon the moral sense and result in virtue, and tend to produes the higher style of map. But what shall we say of grain religions? What of Christianity? It seems to me that the general chough not positively conclusive, presumption in re-spect to what constitutes the legitimate doctrines of stoch ohurch. That consensus, and also the Christian records, if fairly read, seem to me to teach the abso-lute spiritual Lordship of Jeaus Christ, his super-natural power and authority, his function as a final indge of the quick and the dead, together with the

It is true that in Christianity these doctrines are combined with many admirable spiritual and ethical dens. Now, then, born as I have been in a Christian iand, deeply indebted as I am to many Christian in-stitutions and influences, shall I not, although large-ly dissenting from the Christian creed, while ac-thowledging its accellence in some respects, be will-ing to bear the Christian rame? To be honest and true is one of those fundamental laws which all the great special religions fully recognize. Should I be a Darwinian, if I limited my belief in evolution to the case of plants? Again, if Christianity involves error, am I bound actual combatants must be few in proportion to the whole mass of the peoples concerned in the result. But how can ware be maintained without incessant industry in the farm and in the workshop beyond the military lines? All have not the soldierly nature, or, if so, a fair opportunity to manifest it. And again, is the "Free Religionist" to arm him-for clarses and to fight with equal vigor against frame Freeman Clarke and Dr. McCoab ? Now "Free Religionists" are commendably tolerant towards act other. We are not shocked because our chief editor decisres that the Christian Carthage must be destroyed, nor because Mr. Calthrop persists in navi-ang his religious Mississippi, nor because Colonel Higginson preserves in his museum the beautiful disregard differences, when the general drift of thought is in the right direction. Will it not be well to respect to our Unitarian, Universalist, Hcickste, Broad-Church, and some other brethren, and to co-operate with hem when they wor well ".

[This is a genial and gentle word which will be sure to do us good all round. Whatever thought helps cement a sincere fellowship of sympathies and efforts on behalf of free growth in nobleness is timely -always in season; and we need say no more Indeednow.-ED.]

TEMPERANCE AGAIN.

now.-Eb.]
TERPERANCE AGAIN.
Entry of INDEX:
My dear Sir, -Among the efforts of the friends of formerace to bring all they can under the egis of of which is the promotion of their efforts to eave as many as possible from the erits of inebriation, there are many instances of persons being indusneed it; and without doubt many of these will prepared for it; and without doubt many of these will fail away, and, if they did not take the pledge, they would not have begun fully to realize that their way was tend it or draiting to intoxication. Again, many who have begun fully to realize that their way was tend it or draiting to intoxication. Again, many who have begun fully to realize that their way was tend it or draiting to intoxication. Again, many who have begun fully to realize that their way was tend it on ineritable ruin, and have sought the help of the pledge and the temperance societies for this.
Objectionable as yon consider to prosees "a free are lapsed into their old ways; but anrely, my dear is upport of the best kind, you would have some present try it, such as yon consider to possees "a free be will." But those persons of feeble will are those who cannot keep the pledge and cannot govern their ing the temperance cause." Nobody understands this lost their sober thinking." to exercise """" at enough to leave of diriking," each at the is kind among the temperance societies for the bis better than our temperance societies in reading the temperance could in the effort of yours,
""""
Terms yon do not bolieve in temperance societies is the indice beave of diriking," each at the soft as the and all ways have been, to induce the solar diric beave of diriking," each at the soft as the anoty the prevaling every one, or all soft as the pledge of all informations every one, or all soft as the same of all maxit time is kind among the temperance societies in respect where acknowledged principles? I for one would wind be form the soft and indice or diriking," to a soft the soft as charmy do and in the condition of K

ernment." I would not unfairly charge upon any one the in-tentional making up of a faise issue, but probibitory laws never have been, to my knowledge, adopted or enacted as reforming, but as restraining, influences or punitive measures, to be applied to those persons themselves and their vocation public nuisances. The State looks upon shops kept for open drinking pur-poses and the retailing of intoricating liquors as pub-lic nuisances which ought to be abated. They are an offence to the moral instincts of all, or almost all, good citizens; and when we consider what must be the only motive for a man to keep a dram-shop—that is, to obtain the pence of those who are travelling the downward road to ruin—we may justly conclude he is a bad man who cares not what misery he in-dicts or promotee, provided he thereby gets money. I never believed the laws of Massachusetts or of Maine, so far as I have understood them, would pro-duce the conversion of amybody, or even effect the purpose for which they were enacted; but I have ber be found with the enemy, whether drinker or sell-or, howling upon the track of thoses who are striving, although illogically, to produce one of the most im-portant reforms of which the world ever stood in med.

Any statute, enacted against any evil practice by which money is made, will be resisted, violated, and evaded in all sorts of ways, and the mistakes of its supporters made use of as effective weapons against their purpose: for-

"No rogue ere felt the halter draw, With good opinion of the law."

I think there might be effective prohibitory laws perfectly constitutional, but then realistance would be made in the name of liberty and justice. There is no possible reform, although it might be conducted with the combined wisdom and unagi-mous agreement of all the wisset men that live, or ever have lived, or ever will live, that will not meet with opposition from those whose pockets or sicces are affected by it; and they will always cry out that their liberties are attacked. The Elector of Saxony asked Erasmus what reason the Pope and the monks had for their violent opposition to Luther. "Ab! reason enough," said Erasmus; "he has touched the Pope upon the crown and the monks upon the belly." Let him that readeth understand and make the ap-plication. plication.

Let him that resale in understand and make the application. You charge against the stringent statutes in some of the States against liquor-selling a large share of the blame for the present reaction, and you have charged upon other measures, such as the women's praying movement, the blame of reaction in those quarters. It may be so. An old lady once said to me, "The wicked always live on the sins of God's people." "That is a fact, my dear madam," I re-plied, "and they don't live lean; the pity is that they can find so much to live on." There has not been a year since the first report of the first temperance society, nearly half a century ago, that the opposition have not charged upon the temperance movement all the intemperance that con-tinued to prevail, especially all the reaction that ever took place.

So far as the intolerance and inconsistencies of the New England Temperance Convention extended, and any other similar action of temperance societies, I abandon them to your censure without a word of defence. I feel that there is much more for me to write, if I should pen the thoughts with which I am filled; but, not to occupy too many of your columns, and not to be tedious to readers, I remain Yours for the right and true, D. S. GRANDIN, M.D. UPPER GLOUCESTER, Me., Oct. 4.

<text>

Dio los or GOOQ

514

THE INDEX-OCTOBER 22, 1874.

Advertisements. THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thas to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be excluded from these columns. No cute will be admitted. be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES. On haif-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent, on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. TO ADVERTISERS. The following states the experience of a accessful Bookseller who has advertised in

Special arrangements will be made at reed terms for long-time or extended advertisements. Address THE INDEX,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public utterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best masured thought of the sam on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society. on of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors:--

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. TROMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhul, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaics Plain, Mass.

REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX. kvery luberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Beligious Liber-alism. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly exno towards, most candid, and most scholarly ex-position of the differences between Pree Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the beet means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to mest in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a letter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1673, says: "That the want of a journal antiroly devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America-that sense of the word should be felt in America—that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your constry.—Is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or the ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Addre THE INDEX

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1 03 LEADING INDEX WRITERS Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN. CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS,

. .

F. E. ABBOT,

Ara now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, S cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo sohs. 2 graphs, $1.50,

Addr	335		TE	E INDE	ж,
No	. 1	Tremont	Place,	Boston,	Mass

INDEX TRACTS.

No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." Ms. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe-cies," says, in a letter to the editor not origmaily intended for publication, but subsequently authorized to be used : "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admin them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

2.-Fear of the Living God, by 0. B. Frothingham, exposes the debaa B. Froming name exposes the debuang char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Hible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfections and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.—Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Pasts, sting Extracts. Price 10 cents: 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God In the Constitution." by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents: 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6 .- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copie $1.00.

"Compulsory Education," by No. 7. F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi-anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from the to a hundred and a Ave to one hundred copie

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cente; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romaniam Real Christianityl Two easays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Meaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 19 copies 50 cents

No. 14.- A Study of Heligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are insacquise; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among mon. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, I TREMONT PLACE,

THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal

7

8

DEVOTED TO

FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE

INDEX ASSOCIATION.

AT . No. 1 Trep ont Place, Boston EDITOR: FRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, E.L.

W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianian for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activitie

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is specially devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the parpose of securing the more complete and con aistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of theseveral States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FRATERS.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOTSEY has kindly consented to sition. Mr. YOFEET has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LEFTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from value-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the cour try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case.

Address

THE INDEX,

4. PUBLICATIONS. OF THE FREE

RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Griginal Ness-ing in 1867, at which the Pres Religious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Freibingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucre tis Mott, Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Higon, and Ralph Waldo Emer

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many person all of the Annual Reports success eding do not as this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Esstraint in Religion," and by David A. Watson on "The Relation of Social Scien Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-hum, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Deston, B. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Hornes Beaver, and others; with an appendix on "Ould Judalam" by Rabbi Wise. a of Froceedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870, 50 cents. Contains essays by O. B. Frothingham on the "idea of the Free Religious Association," follo ed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature of Beligion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Esof Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in relation to Philanthropy and Beform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Fature of Beligina Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an easay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Bellgions," foi-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaiam," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanim," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religion of Chins," and Wm. J. Potter on "Religion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calthrop, Babbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Res-ing, 1872. B5 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains easys by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Beilgion as the Ferrometica of a December of Seminari the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Rumanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loss, and others.

Proceedings of Sirth Annual Meet-ing, 1875. 35 cents. (Four or more, 5 cents each.) Contains essays by Samel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by Johnson on "Freedom in Religion, and of John Weiss on "Beligion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longie-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lucrotia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four of more, 25 cents each.) Contains serious more, 25 cents each.) Contains verbains reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Baligious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's easay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Babbi Bonneschein's speech on "Reformed Jab-ism," and of the statements by Mears. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of theirre-spective attitudes towards Christianly-as "Christian," -together with the Secret-ry's Annual Report, and letters from Eab-ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglas, and D. A. Wasson. D. A. Wasson.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Bir

Beligions of China, by Wm. E. Chap-ning. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents. Taxation of Church Property, by JM.

chage of ten, Parton. 10 cents, singly; pac 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office these publications are for sale as us out of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 remont Place, Boston. The Annual Bopru for 1668 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1872 is supply of others previous to that of iss a quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dressed either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Miss.

M J. POTTER, Set. F. L. J.

THE INDEX-OCTOBER 22, 1874.

POPULAR BOOKS. SENT BY MAIL AT

PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any ot OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, a be forwarded as promptly as possible on res of orders accompanied with the CASH. d, w11 ble on receipt ers are respectfully solicited fre all friends of THE INDEL.

ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets	0.000
ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women, Two vols. Hospital Skotches and Camp and Fireside Biories An Old-Faabioned Ghri. Little Men My Boyn den By Royn den Work: A Story of Experience.	3050
My Boys, &c
ABNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Oriti- cism	0
AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.1 Villa Eden; The Country-House on the Ehine.	5
Edelweiss
BAGEHOT on the English Constitution 2.3 Physics and Politics
BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Ecisnos: A Compendium of Fsychology and History of Philosophy. 1.7 Moral Ecisnos: A Compendium of Ethics. 1 vol
The Benses and the Intellect. Third edi- Bon. 1 vol	ĸ
BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams. 1.5 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations 3.0	0
BARTOL (REV. C. A). Radical Problems 5.0 The Rising Path 2.0	0
BASTIAN (H. CHABLTON). The Begin- mings of Life. 2 rols	0 of Education of the city of Gincinnaid: at al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnaid at in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnast	0
BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of	,
BEOOKS (CHARLES T.) Translations, The Layman's Breviary	5
BUBOHNER'S Force and Matter 1.22 BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of	ł
BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Southand. New edition of the entire work, with a complete index. 2 vols	,
A BLY LE'S Works. Cheap edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 rols.; French Revolution. 3 vols.; Freder- ick the Great, 10 vols.; Cronwell's Letters, dc., 5 vols.; Bartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John Serting, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Serting, 1 vol.; Latter Day Pamphiets, 1 vol., Any rolume sold separatishy. 21 vols. Lon- don, 1871-3. Per vol.
dod. [31]-3. Per vol
Mind, and the Study of its moroid count- tions
OHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per- fect Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Channing
CHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau: The Poet Naturalist, With Memorial Verse, 2.00	j
URENEY (Mas. E. D). Patience. A Series of Thirty Games for the Fireside	1 trated
CLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education 1.25 (LODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World
CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pligrimage
ter: with an infroduction by Edward L. Fonmans, M.D. 1901

DALL (MRS. CAROLINE H). The Coll the Market, and the Court; or, Wom Belation to Education, Employment,

Low Line Loved the King. LOW Line Loved the King. Emerge. Becond Series Miscellands. Representative Men. English Trais. Ocoduct of Life Poema. Will Portrait. May-day and Other Pieces Essays. Silve and Gold. Poema. Bive and Gold. Poema. Bive and Gold. Poema. Bive and Gold. Poema. Bive and Gold. Poeta. Stoka. 3 vols. 2,00 2,00 2,00 2,00 2,00 2,00 2,00 1,50 1,50 5,00 2,00 EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Transformations the French of Athanase Coqueres Tounger. The 12's and Works of Gotthold Ephraim The 12's and Works of Gotthol Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 yols. 1.0 FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Belizion ...... 2.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, 2.00 FISEE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00 FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 yels ....... 5.80 ALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genins. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse-. 2.00 GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life..... Literary and Social Judgments Creed of Christendom. GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doo-uments, Private Memorands, and Original Letters to and from Various Prionde. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-trait HAMBBTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book II. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France. Theoghts about Art. The Onknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters ou Animals. 1.50 2.00 5.00 2.00 2.00 BAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part 8 - 1.00 ond Child World, Part First..... EAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works, New Ullastased Library Edition, Nine vols. Per vol. Twice-Told Tales. Monsee from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Romance. 2.00 Bomance. The House of the Seren Gables, and The Snow Image. The Marbie Fran. The American Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The American Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Soptimius Felton. Oldport Days HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-ding Journey Suburban Stretches Venetian Journeys Tellan Journeys A Chance Acquaintance 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.00 A Connet Automatication of the second Songs of Soven. INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-1.75 Stadies for Stories Stories told to a Child. First and Second

JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Baints, Mr. Claudo's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion, India..... 4.00

Batted into English, with Analysis and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Mastar of Battlei Collage, Orford, and Regize Pro-fessor of Greek. Four vola-

. 12.0 EEEE (ORPHEUS C). Veraatilities, Posnas, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprous..... 2.00

LEOKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Inducence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne. 2 vols...... 6.00

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.30 LEWIN (BEV. BAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jaws...... 1.00

LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Posles for Children. .76 LUBBOCE (SIR JOHN). Origin of Children. 76 LUBBOCE (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civilian-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times. 5.00

MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By hie Wite. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 3.00 Annual Reports on Education, from 1559 to 1848

1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Hornce Mann.

MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hops for Mankind

Econseaul 7 rols. 5.00 MOULTON (LOUISE CBANDLER.) Bod-Time Stories. 1.40 MUELLER (MAX. M.A.) Loctures on the Science of Language. First Series. 2.00 The Same. Second Rories. 5.00 Chips from a German Workshop. Vol. 1. Essays on My Uniong. Traditions. erstare, Biography and Antiquities. Three vols. Frice per volume. 2.00 Lectures on the Science of Heilgion. 2.00 V. SDW. OFFEDUL FULL V. Science 1.20 Lectures on the Science of Heilgion. 2.00 V. SDW. OFFEDUL FULL V. Science 1.20 Science 1.20 Lectures on the Science of Heilgion. 2.00 V. SDW. OFFEDUL FULL V. Science 1.20 Lectures on the Science of Heilgion. 2.00 V. SDW. OFFEDUL FULL V. Science 1.20 Scie

ASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle 1.60 Ekkose from Kentucky

PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite

and the filled of the student of the

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tracistus The-TOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Pink and White Tyrany Uncla Tom's Cabin THACKERAY'S (W. M.) Novels. Rousehold Edition. Complete in 6 volumes. Fer vol., 136 The Newcomes. Adventures of Fhilip. Perdennis. Fencennas. Exmond, and Lovel the Widowsr. Miscellancous Writings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Norels. Com-plets in Svois. With new Fortrait. For vol. 1.58 Fulls edition includes all the matter in the ist-English editions, with many additions, thus hing it, with the norels, the cheapest and most with the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, do. 2. Sarry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, do. 3. Sari, and Iriah Skelch-Books, dc. 4. Sori, Sketches, Deale Dural, dc. 4. Sori, Chetches, Deale Dural, dc. 5. Osthoring'so, filmoritet, dc. 6. Osthoring'so, filmoritet, dc. 8. Osthoring'so, filmoritet, dc. 9. Osthoring'so, f THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods 100 May Wasden; or, Life in 2.00 Excursions in Field and Porest. Portrait. 2.00 The Maine Woods 2.0 Oape Cod. 2.0 Lefter 2.0 A Work on the Concord and Merriman 2.0 A Work on the Concord and Merriman 2.0 A TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-Pragments of Science for Unscientific Peo-VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vole I, and V., each. 3.00 Vole III. TV. and VI., each. 4.75 The Voysey Appeal. 50 Voysey's Defence at York. 50

 Washington and the Revolution
 W

 WHTNEYS (Mas. A. D. T.) & Summer in Lse

 Leale Goldhwaite's Life
 Lse

 We Girls: A Home Bory
 Lse

 Real Folks
 Lse

 The Other Girls
 Lse

 Panales
 A volume of Poens

HE INDEX 1 Tramont Piace, Boston

ADDRESSI

T

5.00

.50

.50

PEOCTOR (BICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ours : he Florality of Worlds stad-led under the Florality of Worlds stad-led under the florality of Recent Scientific Researches. With col Recent Science Science of Familiar Easays on Scientific Abliets, Natural Phenomens. Basays on Astronomy : A Scries of Papers on Finnets and Michory, the Sun, sta. The Hoff Science Science Science, and Florales and Sta Woodcuts. The Hoff Science Science, Science, and Florales and Michory, the Science, and Florales and many Flates. Charts, ote The Expanse of Hoaven.

2.88 CHELLEN (H.) Bretrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Hestrenly Bodies. CIENCE PRIMERS; 1. Introductory, By Frof, Huxley, F.E.S., By C.Chemistry, By Frof, Huxley, F.E.S., By Applica.

Instructions 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei-kie, LL.D., P.B.S., faxible cloth.....

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Solf-Help ...... 1.50

of taration.

51	6

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873. The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of $3, by express, at the prochaser's express. A complete file for the year can be furnished in go other form. Address 11 Tremont Flace, Boston.

IN.DEX HE T

IN ENGLAND.

THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post to any part of the United Kingdom on re-celpt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings

THE INDEX. Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.

TO BOOK-BUYERS. Please examine the revised list of POPU-

LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN THIS LIST will be friendshed to order.

THIS LIST will be frirnished to order. Readers of THE INDEX who deairs to pur-chase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Freign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-ries answered by addreasing THE INDEX, THE INDEX,

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

R E E HE F T

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE-VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museuma, Art Galieries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap. Sunday Ex-cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun-day Evenings for the Feople." and generally represention on Sunday. The Free Sunday Advocate is published in Honotary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; The ANNUAL BUBCHTTON for delivery by Toot to any part of the United States is one solide (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE,

THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE,

256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES CONCERNING AMERICA.

By CHARLES SUMMER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its liferary and historical merits, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which Mr. Sumner was engaged before his death.

"PROPRETIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the bis-tory of our country, so full is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of a land has been foretold by philosophers, poets, statesmen, and orators, of whom the lamented author has also given interesting sketches Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price.

THE INDEX. Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Bosto A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE.

By Andrew Jackson Davis,

By ABUFOW JECKSON Davis. Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vikal particular. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole delicof Marriage, Parentage, Dia-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their bushness, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thluks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duties of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.—Gold-on Age.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-some cloth, 75 cents; in full "it and extra biading, 31. Fostage free. The trade sup-plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Frogressive Fullishing House" of A.J. DAVIS & CO., NO. 24 East Fourth Street, New York Clity

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. r more pupils, griss to boys, over thirtees, will be received into the family of the subscrib-er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, SHERBORN, MASS

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT --At home, male or female, 500 a week war-ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample cent free. Address, with sir-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y.

FREE DISCUSSION

Is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 651 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 7% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, 70 intoia, and Social interests of manking consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen-ator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-fifty cents. Address

4	adress	2-		1 Tre	emo	nt P	lace	Bo, Bo	etor	a.
T	0	N	E	W	S	P	A	P	E	R
1	PU	B	L	I	8 1	H	E	R	s .

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. • Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO PUBLISHERS TO PUBLISHERS, a start view desires a situation on a weekly paper. Can set six thou-end ems a day, work hand-press, make up forms, etc. Has done some job work, and can do what is necessary in a country print-ing-office. Has had some editorial experi-ence, and considers himself competent to take charge of a country weekly. Is sober and industrious, Wages wanted, at least $12 per week. Address Will KENNEDY, Box 1037, ST PAUL, MINN.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

D INDEX. Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1671, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchasser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-to, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend strugging out of Orthodory than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Flace, Boston. Address

WARREN 8 TRUE CIVILIZATION. Price 50 cents. PRACTICAL DETAILS, showing the workings of the COST PRINCIPLE. Price 25 cents. S . H. MORSE 25 Bromfield St., Boston. MUSIC BOOKS FOR SCHOOLS. AMERICAN SCHOOL MUSIC READERS. IN THREE BOORS. Ry L. O. Emerson and W. S. Tildon. Fy L. O. Emerson and W. S. Tildon. In Book I., which is for Primary Schools, we have a three year' course of atudy very plainly laid out, with abundant directions to teachers, and a large number of sweet songs for the little ones to sing by role and by note. Frice 35 cents. In Book II. the course above indicated is continued, and hecomes a little more the-oretic. The book is fitted for the use of the younger scholars in Grammar Schools. Frice 50 cents.

Price 50 cents. In Book III, part singing is introduced, and the car is trained to harmonic singing. For higher classes in Grammar Schools. Frice 50 cents. The mulic in these charming and useful books was selected and arranged by the practiced hand of Mr. L. O. Emerson, and the theoretic part has been well tested by Mr. Tilden before placing in the Readers.

For High Schools noting nuceeris the above Readers better than "THE HOUSE OF SINGSING" (S.1.0), abroady in exten-sive new. If that has been used, try "CHOICE THEOS" (S.1.0), a collection of the best three-part music.

The new Singing School Book, "THEE SONG MONARCH? [75 cents] is attract-ing general attention as one of the itest Hooks ever made for Singing Schools. The above books sent post-paid on receipt of retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

BOSTON.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.

TBACT on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. We have already issued three editions, the last of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to issue Address Another Large Edition of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE. and generously to supply the calls for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other expenses, to hear the entire expense e alone Will not, then, I

Our organization some time since decided to di-root its efforts for the present towards securing the

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly *rempted from its share of the burden

As a means to this end, we have published for eneral circulation several thousand copies of a

All Friends of the Movement

e forward and help us with liberal donations We frequently receive communications from We frequently receive communications from parties wishing inacts to distribute, saking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or $0 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-sting them gratuitously throughout the country. Last wither this subject mes however here Last winter this subject was brought be fore the Legislature of the State, and m petitions were presented asking a repeal of these uninst laws, The matter is still in their hands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the Voice of the People,

favoring justice and equity, should be distinctly heard.

We shall soon be ready to send out

BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN,

thus giving an opportunity to those who have ready done so, to protest against this not s continued wrong.

Let us make it

THE LARGEST PETITION

presented to our legislative body. Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please

SEND IN THEIR NAMES? We would say, also that we feel deeply the

Other Organizations

in this State, to codporate with us in securing equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such amistance as lies in

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought be accompliahed Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the EXBOUTIVE COMMITTEE

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand grinding MILLS. Ta Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Birs. Bistra-ed pamphetes free. Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARI & MILLS. ISI East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohlo. TYNDALL'S ADDRESS. A very neat copy of Professor Tyndall's re-markable Address before the British Associ-tion on August 19, in panphiest form, will large type and good paper, will be made postpaid on receipt of Twarry-Prys Carra Address THE INDEL, 1 Tremont Place, Borton. THE AMERICAN EDITION 0. MONCURE D. CONWAYS SACRED ANTHOLOGY, A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sent postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass G. L. HENDEBSON & CO. BANKERS.

LEROY, MINN.

Branch Office, 137 Broadway, N. T.

Branch Office, 137 Broadwar, N. Y. Money Invested in First Mortgages on im-proved Farms in Minnesota and Jowa, run-ning three to five years, with Coupon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad-vance, or ten per cent, part annually, free of expense to the Loaner. If the of expense to the Loaner of the Samuelly, free of expense to the Loaner of the Samuelly. If the Bank, or in New York, ull invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES. 10 per cent, la

Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Loan Agency

0F ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPH STILLT

Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstchass securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without chars. Real Estate Investments made on commission of on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalist and real estate ove-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is fall length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit for use. The ladies will always find the Es he unfit for use. reka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacturer's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

RADICAL AND LITERABY LECTURES

JOHN WEISS,

RADICAL LECTURES.

The Idea of Hereafter, An Act of Faith. Intelligence in Religion. Beligion and Science. Heart in Religion.

SHARSPEARIAN LECTURES. FIRST SERIE

1. Cause of Laughter.

2. Irony and Humor.

3. Dogberry, Malvollo, Bottom, Touchston 4. Ajax in Troilus and Cressida: The For-

1. The Women of Shakspeare,

4. Maobeth and Lady Maobeth.

6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Charach omento Google____

JOHN WEISS,

12 E. Brookline St., Bos

- ter in Macbeth : The Fool in Lear,
- 5. Falstaff.

2. Portis

8. Ophelia

146

Address

6. Hamlet. SECOND SERIES.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 253.

VOLUME 5.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29,

GLIMPSES.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other coclesization. 1. We demand that churches and other coclesization. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-grees, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militis, and in prisons, saylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

ORGANIZE!

3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cases.

shall cease.
4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether cetensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.
5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

of all religious restriants and rates and which concerns and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alties of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed. 8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and imparitial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administration on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, undinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilied, the advance of oivili-sation impedied, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatoning the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; TEXERFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following and right. ABT. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds rote of the members. ABT. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by absoribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

ment. Arr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Tresserrer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officid delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Arr. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-elar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ABTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an sa-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of pellycion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or arbridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. BEOTON 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting any of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. No religion the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religion a qualification to any office or public trust, in any States and no perior shall aver in any State bu deprived of any of religion; or prohibilic or private duty, or rea-der the consequence of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance of any public or private duty, or rea-deputy, in consequence of any opinions be or she may hold or the performance and section of this article by appropri-tions of the second section of this article by appropri-tion and the second section of this article by appropri-the ingitiation.

PILE UP LIES till they touch the firmament: one breath of truth blows them out of space. THE OLD CATHOLICS refuse to enter into communion with any Protestant church except the Episcopalian.

CHARLES BRADLAUGH is again in America, and will receive, we doubt not, a most cordial welcome from the warm friends he made here last year.

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CONVENTION . has gone dead against the proposal to revise the anti-quated Nicene Creed, Query: is not that better named the Miocene Creed?

CHURCH PROPERTY is now taxable in the District of Columbia, as it ought to be everywhere. The assessed value of church lots there is $1,000,000, while the buildings are estimated at the present market value of $500.000.

THE "CHRISTIAN UNION" of Chicago has secularized itself, admitted Jews to office, and changed its name to the "Chicago Athenseum." It has 1200 members. Mr. George M. Pullman is President, and Rev. C. W. Wendte Secretary. Another sign of the times.

A BAPTIST DIVINE, Rev. William Issac Loomis, has discovered that Sir Isaac Newton is a blunderer; that the law of gravitation is a "mental illusion;" and that Moses knew more than Newton in natural science. The world will be on thorns till it finds out which of the two Isaacs is a lunatic.

THE PRESEVTERIAN SYNOD of Northern Illinois has decided to let Professor Patton "persecute" Dr. Swing a little more, by entertaining the former's appeal from the decision of the lower tribunal. The Professor wants to be the great Pattern of the Presbyterians. But we never could see why those who want to cut loose from Evangelical standards of faith should not also cut loose from Evangelical fellowships, which are necessarily based on those standards. Hence our sympathy for the Swings is greatest when they voluntarily "come out."

THE AMERICAN Episcopalians are unessy at the prospect of another Pan-Anglican Conference. They dread lest the Archbishop of Canterbury should become practically, by the organic union of all branches of the Anglican Church, a sort of Episcopalian Pope, No doubt they are sagacious in this apprehension. The same causes which created the Roman Papacy will tend to create an Anglican Papacy, just as soon as the logic of Christianity begins to make itself felt in the consolidated church. Peter's confession, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," approved by Jesus and preached by the apostles, was a seed out of which nothing can grow but Papacies, great or small, to the end of time. Beware of accepting the premise, all ye who dread the conclusion !

PRESIDENT GRANT, in his speech at the unveiling of the Lincoln statue at Springfield, Illinois, on October 15, thus awkwardly testified to the Ortho-doxy of the Martyr President: "His faith in an allwise Providence, directing our aims, was the faith of the Christian that his Redeemer liveth, amidst obloquy, personal abuse, and hate undisguised, and which was given vent to without restraint through the press, upon the stump, and in private circles." Notwithstanding the fact that Abraham Lincoln was an unbeliever in the "essentials" of Christianity, the Orthodox are determined to make him out a Christlan; and they were shrewd enough to secure Presidential testimony for their side on this great occasion. We shall never hear the last of Grant's bungling affidavit that Lincoln was a Christian.

THE RIOTING at Northampton, England, after Mr. Bradlaugh's defeat in the election for Parliament, is fully explained in the National Reformer, his own It seems that his followers, exasperated journal. against Mr. Fowler, whose running against Mr. Bradlaugh split the Liberal party and elected Mr. Merewether, the conservative candidate, attached Mr Fowler's hotel and did some damage; but Mr. Bradlaugh rushed into the crowd, "thrashed one or two of his most zealous adherents," and for the moment quelled the disturbance. He left for America, however, at nine o'clock in the evening; and the riot broke out afresh after he had gone. We are very gled that he is wholly guiltless of the affair, but heartly chagrined that his reckless followers should disgrace themselves and their cause by such brutal violence.

.

1874.

THIS EXTRACT from a sermon by the famous. Jonathan Edwards shows what progress has been made in the last hundred years: "The God who holds you over the pit of hell, much as one holds a spider or some loathsome insect over the fire, abhors you, and is dreadfully provoked. You are ten times as abominable in His eyes as the most venomous and hateful serpent is in ours. It would be no wonder if persons who sit here now, quiet and secure in the meeting-house, should be in hell before to-morrow morning." Such preaching would scarcely be tolerated to-day, except in the backwoods. Yet the doc-trine of "salvation by Christ alone," which is still preached as vigorously as ever, means exactly what Edwards said, or it means nothing. There is little enough to respect in a Christianity which dares not. stand by its own principles.

LAST SUNDAY EVENING a large meeting was held in Faneuil Hall, the old "Cradle of Liberty," to promote prison reform, and to devise ways of helping prisoners to become good citizens. Wendell Phillips and others made addresses; and Burnham Wardwell announced that steps were already taking to establish an institution to aid discharged prisoners. There is a society in this State for this purpose now, which is doing much in this direction ; but more still should be done, not only here, but in all the States. No convict should be discharged without having been taught to earn an honest livelihood by skilled labor, which is unfortunately not always the case now; and special assistance is needed to secure employment for prison inmates on their liberation. Make the prison a school of practical instruction in honest work, and fewer convicts will reënter it.

THE MASSACHUSETTS Young Men's Christian As- sociations have just held their eighth annual convention. The Boston Association alone reported a membership of 2,300, "about 900 of them active." What they are "active" about is perhaps explained in part by the following resolution, one of a series reported by the committee on resolutions : "Resolved, That we recommend to the convention not to divorce religion from politics, but in every political canvass to conscientiously and prayerfully use their influence in sustaining such men and measures as will, in their opinion, best serve the interests of morality and tem-perance." This smooth phraseology means in plain English ("morality" being inseparable from "faith") that only Evangelical Christians should be elected to public office; and to secure this result is undoubtedly one of the chief objects of the Young Men's Christian Association. In all political questions involving the interests of Evangelical Christianity (and they are multiplying daily), a compact, well-organized body of practical workers stands ready for "active" exertions in support of "such men and measures" as shall promote them. No wonder that it is such an herculean task to unloose the Church's grip from the State! Protestantism is drilling its Jesuits for the coming struggle, and means to be prepared. But what is Liberty doing?

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES

Sr. LOUTS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abboi, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Excretaria. Secretary. Sar Joss, Cal.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Secretary. Becretary. TOLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. VISELAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Repretary. Becretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATES, FAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. retary. orr, Mics.-W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Becretary, Dermort, Mon--W. E. Hill, Freshness, Secretary, Bargaroutile, Mios.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary, OsoBola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Boderick, OsoBola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Boderick, Secretary. BATR, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, BERLIN, WE.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Bridgman. WassiNoTON, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Secretary. Augurn, Onto.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINTRAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. New YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. ST. JOSEFH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Beoretary.

Beordary, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALDEO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. Naw ORLEAS, LA.-President, E. Vorsier; Secretary, J. B. Wallaco. B. Wallaco.

Johnson Graaring, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. 8AUE CITY, WIS.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. Augusta. WIS.-Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vauz, Secretary.

Tax-Exemption in Massachusetts.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, May 28, 1874. The Committee on Just and Equal Taxation, to whom was referred the petition of the executive committe of the Boston Liberal League for the enact-ment of laws securing just and equal taxation, and the petition of Phineas E. Gay and 1,150 others of Boston, and numerous other petitions, in aid of said first mentioned petition; also the Bill introduced by Mr. Whiting, of Pembroke, for the taxation of relig-lous and charitable corporations,

REPORT:

That they have heard the statements, facts, and ar-guments presented and urged in behalf of the peti-tioners; also the statements, facts, and arguments guments presented and urged in behalf of the peti-tioners; also the statements, facts, and arguments presented and urged by numerous remonstrants; and have, so far as they have been able, duly consid-ered the same; that they find the subject opens a wide field for inquiry and investigation, involving the consideration of a multitude of facts and the most important questions of State polley, and that a proper, careful, and thorongh inquiry and inves-tigation require more time and attention than they have been able to give, and more than can well be given by a committee sitting only occa-sionally during the session of the Legislature; that they are not prepared to recommend any change in the laws relating to exemptions from taxation, at this time, but, believing that the importance of the subject, and its general interest to the people and tax-payers of the State, will justify the appointment of a commission, with authority to sit during the re-cess of the Legislature, to call such witnesses and make such inquiry and investigation as they deem proper relative to the laws relating to taxation and the exemptions therefrom, and make a full report in print to the next General Court, they recommend the passage of the accompanying resolve. Per order, SAMUEL O, LAME.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

In the Year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Seventy-Four.

RESOLVE

authorizing the appointment of a commission to in-quire into the expediency of revising and amending the laws of the State relating to taxation and the ex-

the laws of the State relating to taxation and the ex-emptions therefrom. Resolved, That the Governor and Council be and they are bareby authorized to appoint a commission, consisting of three suitable persons, to sit during the recess of the Legislature, to inquire into the expedi-ency of revising and amending the laws of the State relating to taxation and the exemptions therefrom, with authority to call witnesses, and to report in full, in print, to the next General Court.

VIEWS OF MR. WHITING. OF PEMBROKE.

VIEWS OF MR. WHITING, OF PEMBROKE. The undersigned, being a small minority of the Committee on Just and Equal Taxation, to whom were referred the petitions praying for the repeal of the laws exempting the property of religious, chari-table, and other corporations from taxation, offer the following Beport:--While endorsing generally the views of our col-leagues of the Committee concerning the magnitude of the subject submitted to our consideration, and the difficulties with which it is manifestly fraught, we are utterly unable to recognize the wisdom or fit-

INDEX -- OCTOBER 28 ness of the conclusion to which they have arrived; namely, that the whole matter should be referred to the next General Court. Nor can we feel that our duty would be discharged, by remitting entirely to our successors the responsibility of action, unless it can be shown that they will possess some peculiar advantages for exhaustive investigation, which have been denied to ourselves. The work to which we were appointed cannot, we think, with propriety, be ignored, or turned over to others, without at least such an effort as shall show that we have not weakly sough to evade what we were unable, or unwilling, to perform. Circumstances now beyond control will preclude a succeeding Legislature from deriving any assistance whatever from our labors, and the whole ground will have to be explored afresh. The investigations which we have pursued these many weeks have strengthened and confirmed the con-victions that exemption from traxition as a matter of State policy is only justifiable in the isolated cases in which the parties exempted are doing essentially the work of the State; that it is, under all other circum-stances, a wrong inflicted on the people, an error in political economy, which has wrough great mischied in the past history of our race, and whose possible developments in the future may well excite anxiety and apprehension in thoughtful and patriotic minds. To check the undue growthrof this system, and re-strain it within proper limits, is now comparatively an easy task, while its unlimited expansion will, by the iron logic by which the future is continually eliminating itself from the past, at no distant period, bid definace to peaceful remedy, and leave to our de-scendants only the dread alternative of slavish sub-mission to an intolerable burden, or wholesale config-tions, and in dividing equally the burden of taxition, which is only tolerable from the equality of its pres-aud. The notion that the cause of religion and morality sumport of which is only tolerable from the equality of its pres-aure. The notion that the cause of religion and morality is advanced or benefited by the enforced pecuniary support of these corporations is rebuked by all past history, and is in direct conflict with the fundamen-tal principles of our government. Further, it is quite apparent that even were our statutes of exemp-tion otherwise unexceptionable, they are eminently defective, from the fact that under their operation the bounty of the State is beatowed in largest meas-ure where it is least needed. There is no discrimi-nation exercised, or rather, to apeak more correctly, discrimination is made in the wrong direction. A powerful and wealthy corporation, by the release of its tax, receives a large gift which it does not need, while to the poor and feeble society the exemption is quite insignificant; an inequality which can only be remedied by causing State ald to such institutions to take the form of direct appropriations from the treasury. The glory of the Christian religion consists in the fact that it is a voluntary system, and it seems to us but a poor and ignoble conception of its nature and intant to obtain, by indirection and force, either the assent or support of the public. The only cases in which religious corporations can justly claim exemp-tion are those in which their privileges are extended to all, without distinction and without price. The faw there are of this description, we think, may be justly classed under the head of pure charities, and their work as coincident with that of the State. With these convictions, we have feit that we could not honestly shrink from an attempt to embody them in legislation, in the hope and belief that our efforts might become, at least, the nucleus of wise and just enactments.

enactments. We therefore report the accompanying Bill. WILLIAM WHITING.

AN ACT

Concerning the Taxation of Religions, Charitable, and other Societies and Corporations.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Repre-sentatives, in General Court assembled, and by the au-thority of the same, as follows :--

SECT. I. That on and after the first day of Janu-ary, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sev-enty-five, the property of musical, agricultural, and educational associations, other than colleges and town schools, heretofore exempted from taxation, shall be taxed the same as other descriptions of prop-town schools, heretofore exempted from taxation, shall be taxed the same as other descriptions of prop-ery. SECT. 2. The property of religious and charitable main in the same manner as the corporations and societies named in the first section: provided, how-over, that all religious societies shall be entitled to accelte an and in the first section: provided, how-over, that all religious and other societies, claiming to hall, before the date named in the first section of hall, before the date named in the first section of hall, before the date named in the first section of hall, before the date named in the first section of societies anound to flow thousand dollars and societies amount of five thousand dollars the fore the date name in the first section of hall, before the date name in the first section of all before the date name in the first section of societies anound is endowment and whence due society, amount of endowment and whence due societ officers. Sect. 4. The Board of State Charities, together with the Tax Commissioner, shall constitute a com-mission to receive and examine the retirms required in the third section of this act, and when it shall ap-pear to their satisfaction that any society making and returns is a pure charity, they shall certify the same to the Tax Commissioner, and said society shall be exempt from taxation for the amount ap-plied to charitable purpose: provided, however, that ocieties neglecting to make returns shall not benefit by the SECT.

by the provisions of this act. SECT. 5. The tax authorized by this act shall be assessed by the Tax Commissioner, and at the area-age rate of the State, county, and town tax for the year preceding. And the basis of valuation pen which the tax shall be assessed shall be the present value of property for the same or similar purpose to which it has been applied. And the Tax Commis-sioner is hereby authorized to require from all the societies and associations affected by this act such returns as may be found necessary to the discharge of his duty. And the compensation of the commis-sion hereby created shall be fixed by the Governor and Council. SECT. 6. This act shall take effect upon its pa-sage, and all acts and parts of acts contrary to the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

VIEWS OF MR. MORSS, OF NEWBURYPORT.

The undersigned, a member of the Committee on Just and Equal Taxation, while agreeing, generally, in the conclusions arrived at by the majority of the Committee, yet differing somewhat in the premise, at the request of the Committee, respectfully sits leave to present his views on the matters at issue. The question of taxation is one of the utmost im-portance in its bearing upon an industrial communi-ty. Among barbarous and semi-civilized nations, the capricious and often extortionate maner in which the strong arm of power levies its eractions upon the products of the soil, and the accumulations of industry and economy, deprives the people of all

The capitolous and often extortionate manner in which the strong arm of power levies its exactions upon the products of the soil, and the accumulations of industry and economy, deprives the people of all hope of improving their condition, and strike with a fatal paralysis upon all efforts of ambition and enter-prise to develop the resources of the country. As nations advance in civilization, it is found that the basis of all prosperity in a community rests in the confidence which every individual entertain that any accumulation of property which he honestly ob-tains, through the exercise of good judgment, enter-prise, skill, industry, or economy, is guaranted to him as his own, to be used for the comfort and rel-fare of himself and his family. There can be to safety anywhere but with some accumulation. Even among an agricultural people, possessed of the most fertile soil and a genial climate, there will be pean of famine as well as those of bountiful harvest; and cared for, in order that it may be fed out in seasons of scarcity. If this is essential in agriculture, it is to a much greater extent in other avocations, the re-wards of which are not guaranteed to us with that regularity, certainty, and perpetuity, as are the seasons of seed-time and harvest. In a free country, law should press as lightly as regularity, certainty, and perpetuity, as are the ses-sons of seed-time and harvest. In a free country, law should press as lighty as possible npon every individual, being enforced caly so far as the preservation of public order and prote-tion to life, liberty, and property make it necessary. There are a few things essential to the well-being of society, which can best be done under government m-perintendence, and must be provided for by taxation. First, for the preservation of public order and the punishment of crime, a police force, prisons, and courts are necessary. Next, the helpless poor, the insame, and imbecile, are to be cared for in alm-houses and hospitals. Then streats and county roads can be constructed with more uniformity un-der public authority. Beyond this, government has assumed the education of the children in the com-munity, on the theory that good education is the groundwork of all national prosperity and happless. There is, however, in all these objects of govern-ment expenditure a constant tendency to cross, which needs to be carefully and constantiy guarde against. Our boards of commissioners, and all our officials, from the highest to the lowest, slway and everywhere there is a steadily growing demand for increased expenditure-more help and more pay -which far outrums the ratio of increase in popul-tion and wealth, thus constantly increasing the bur-ow of taxation. While business was prosperous, under a large for den of taxation.

tion and wealth, thus constantly increasing the bur-den of taxation. While business was prosperous, under a large flow of foreign immigration, which almost every year cre-sted a new State upon our cheap and fertile lands along the Western frontier, and the artificial stimu-lus of an inflated paper currency was carried to the extrements point of tension, the increasing taxas for public expenditures were easily endured. But now, when our cheap lands have been so far appropriated that immigration is materially checked, and the er-panded credit system can command confidence no farther, the margin of profit on all business for some years to come is likely to be so small that high tax-tion will be found a great and grievous burden upon the community. The evil has been aggravated by the escape of a large amount of the most productive investments in the State from taxation. The profits of all industrial enterprise have been so small that capital is being gradually withdrawn from business for the puppe of investment in government bonds, and other securi-ties which can be held without being subject to tax-ation.

atin

The course of political events and financial legisla-The course of political events and insures togan tion, during the last thirteen years, has tended to foster extravagant expenditures in every department of life, and the consequent inevitable reaction cannot fail to be feit with much severity. Retrenchment is always difficult and unpleasant to the tender of the severity of the severity.

Retrenchment is always difficult and uppleasant to those who have been accustomed to liberal expendi-tures, and the call which comes up to this Legislat-ure is not for curtailment in expenditures, but for in-creased taxation. How this call should be met is the question to be determined. It is found that in using towns a very considerable amount of capital is kidden away from taxation in savings banks. In some municipalities the amount invested in government bonds and savings banks has been so great as to seriously enhance the rate of taxation on all other property. The State has imposed a tax on savings banks of about one-half the average rate, and covered it into the State treasu-ry. The tax upon these institutions, like that upon the national banks, should be for the benefit of the towns and clies where those who hold the invest-ments of non-residents.

the national banks, mound be for the benefits of the towns and cities where those who hold the invest-ments of non-residents. There is no disposition to tax the small invest-ments of the working classes in our asvings banks, although a large portion of these classes, particularly the foreign immigrants, generally withdraw their ac-cumulations soon after, if not before, they have reached the amount allowed for the purchase of a dwelling; a practice worthy of encouragement, but which is rather discouraged at present, as while the investment is in the bank he is sensible of no tax, but, the moment it is changed for the purchase of a home, it is then assessed at a full rate. But there is a serious and growing evil in our sav-ings banks, which, if not seasonably checked, will lead ultimately to more serious effects than escape from taration, which is all that comes within the province of this Committee to consider. It is then assessed are in which the wealthy classes, for whose benefit they were never designed, make large investments. These classes are finding it very convenient to realize dividends from savings banks, equal in amount to those received on govern-ment bonds, and without paying the high, premium which is now required for government securities. This has gone on to a great extent, by placing money in different banks in the names of their children, and in some cases nominally as trustees. In one case he number of books held by one wealthy man has become known to the undersigned as twolve, of $1,000 ach. In another case the number of books actually held by one individual was birty for was loaded on origings of real easter, $35,240,386 on personal secu-rity, $23,037,493 on State, city, county, and town se-curities, $21,733,490 invested in bank atock, and only $3,316,429 in government bonds, which are the best and most quickly convertible of all securities for inducement to hold the bonds to secure exemption ifrom taxation, and they are not found sufficiently re-munerative to meet the wants of the b

The market is the waith of the banks in a pret-ty active effort to keep up the rate of interest paid by them."
In this connection it may be well to remark briefly concerning an argument that has been pressed strongly upon the Committee, relative to mortgaged property being twice taxed, that this is a paipable failer, which the simplest example will make mani-fast. For instance, to-day A has $10,000 in money, and to-morrow be leads this money to B on a pledge or mortgage of his real estate, as security for its pay-ment. One is then taxed for his personal property, and the other for his real estate, just as they were before the pledge was given. The rule applies to all mortgaged property. It is held by the mortgagor for its income or for a prospective rise in value.
The next largest amount of property which is ex-ompted from taxation, and can be reached by State spisiation, is found in meeting-houses, or church suidings. The value of these is now estimated by the assessors at nearly $29,000,000, an increase of nonthing to promote the welfare and happiness of the propile, so that they are an essential and vital part of our educational system; that if private generosity, or associated effort, provides the buildings, the pulpit is formed to public schools would be worth little or nothing to promote the welfare and happiness of the popile, so that they are an essential and vital part of our educational system; that if private generosity, or associated effort, provides the buildings, the pulpit is traction, and the Sunday-school teaching, the state ought certainly to exempt the property used for such purposes from taxation. On the other hand, it is property funds naturally and constantly to accu-mulation, and that we shall be liable in time to have preaved from bearing their share of the necessary pub-lic charges, as has been the case to a very injurious state in older countries and in past ages. Again, it is sald that while in our cities many churches have become mere institutions of luxury and

The time may soon come when it will be well to tar present exert a deletarious influence on society. The time may soon come when it will be well to tar all meeting honees the scata of which are not en-tirely free, without money and without price, to the public. This would, doubtless, temporarily serve a good purpose, and after the accomplishment of that purpose, and after the accomplishment of that purpose, and after the eyes of a larger num-ber of our people to the extravagance and wasteful-ness which have entered into every department of life; and also ald in demonstrating more clearly, what now seems to be but dimity understood, that a surfeit even of education in theology is useless and mischleyous, and that it is quite possible here, as everywhere else, to have too much of a good thing. The next list of exemptions, in magnitude, is that of educational institutions, other than public schools, general rule.

<text><text><text><text><text>

no good reason for exemption. The property of agri-cultural societies is small, but should come under the general rule. It is probable, however, that the people of the Commonwealth are not yet prepared for so radical a change in the law, as to subject all these classes of property to indiscriminate taxation. Ultimately, if no retrenchment of public expenditures can be made, and taxation is continued so onerously upon the in-dustrial classes, popular opinion may demand the taxation of these exempted classes of property, in whole or in part. It is desirable, however, that the mature dmore carefully than is possible at this time. Our taxes are not only heavy, but unfortunately still have a state of active business and sparently great prosperity, the people, individually and collectively, have not been sufficiently prudent and economical, in view of the certainty of future reactionary depres-sion. Debts have been incurred and money too pro-fusely expended in years of prosperity, so that now, with greatly reduced means, the payment of even the interest has become a great burden. Luxury, pride, and extravagance have been too much encouraged in public as well as private expenditures. It is not to be disguised that the tendency to extravagance in State expenditures is quite as marked as that in the cities and towns. There seems to be a love for in-reasing the number and disbursements of its boards of commissioners and other officials, who have al-ready crowded the spacious State House and flowed our into Pemberton Square. Mother year will doubtless throw much additional light on all these questions. The next Legislature will have a better opportunity and more time to re-vise the exemption laws, and the subject will become more familiarized and better understood among the pople than it is at the present time. J. B. MORSS.

A PHRENOLOOIST told a man that he had combat-iveness very largely developed, and was of a quarrel-some disposition. "That lan't so," said the man, angrily, "and if you repeat it, I'll knock you down."

"WHERE ABE YOU going?" asked a little boy of another, who had slipped on an icy pavement. "Go-ing to get up," was the blunt reply.

[For THE INDEX.] SPENCES AND TYNDALL.

DEAR MR. ABBOT:

DEAC ME ABOT:--DEAR ME ABOT:--THE INDEX of September 17 contains an editorial upon "Tyndall's Address." In this article you lay some sturdy blows upon the professor's back, and not only upon Ats back, but, over his shoulders, you reach the back of Mr. Herbert Spencer also. To this, doubtless, neither of these genilemen would object. Probably they would both agree with what you say to others concerning yourselt: "The closer your argument, and the nearer home you strike"--so much the better. But can you possibly imagine either of these two gentlemen replying to an oppo-nent (say to Mr. Abbot himself) in the same tone which you employ toward them? Read the articles of Professor Tyndall in the unpleasant controversy in which he has been engaged with the irlends of Principal Forbes, or the recent replies of Mr. Spencer to his English critics, and at once we are struck with the extreme deference padl to the oplinon of adver-saries, while we admire the unflichting firmness with which the his orbitions are austained. Can we imagine Mr. Spencer speaking of Mr. Abbot's phil-osophical articles as "empty gibberish"? Or Pro-fessor Tyndall ridiculing his criticism as "measing-less jargon"? Or either or both referring to the "mutterable shallowness" of his theological views? We can hardly conceive of these mene mploying such terms. Yet I quote these three phrases from one shall, Du Bois Reymond, a large number of the lead-ing scientific workers of the world, and probably by a larger per centage of the readers of THE INDEX than could be found to subscribe to any other one article of befer.

<text>

Google

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

"You cannot taste in the dark," said a renowned and pedantic Edinburgh lecturer. "Nature has in-tended us to see our food." "Then," inquired a for-ward pupil. "how about a bilnd man at dinner?" "Nature, sir," answered the professor, "has provided him with eye-teeth."

"WILL YOU HAVE some strawberries?" asked a lady of a guest. "Yes, madam. ves: I eat strawber-ries with enthusiasm." "Do tell? Well. we haven't anything but cream and sugar for 'em this evening," said the matter-of-fact hostess.-N. Y. Observer.

THERE IS A STORY of a clergyman who, having es-pecially hated one of his parishioners, refused to preach his funeral sermon. Persuaded, at length be consented, and gave out his text emphatically, thus: ''And the beggar died?' Luke xvi., 22,"

A SCOTCHMAN'S definition of metaphysics: "When the folks wha listen dinns ken the meaning o' what they hear, and when the mon who speaks dinns ken what he means his ain sel'—that's metafissicks."

MIXED SCHOOLS AT THE SOUTH.

THE EXPERIMENT FAIRLY TRIED IN LOUISIANA-NO EVIL RESULTS FOLLOW-THE ATTENDANCE OF WHITE CHILDREN LARGER THAN EVER BEFORE.

THE EXPERIMENT FAILUT THEOR IN TOTAL ATTENDANCE OF WHITE CHILDEEN LARGER THAN EVER BEFORE. TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE: Sr,-The letter of Senator Brownlow to the Hon. Truman Smith, which appeared in the Tribure on the 5th inst, like the letter of the latter gentleman on the same subject, has attracted my attention. Both letters were aimed at the Civil Rights Bill now pend-ing in Congress, and special stress is laid upon the feature of the bill which proposes to secure equality of privileges to the pupils of both races in the public schools of the country. The assertion is made that the passage of the bill will end the free school sys-tems in the Southern States, and it would seem to be the hope that a fear of this result will deter Congress from the final passage of the measure that prompts the making of this assertion. It should be observed that no proofs are given by either M. Brownlow or Mr. Smith in support of their theory. They do not point to a single instance of a school system having become a failure by reason of its impartial application to the pupils of both races. Had they pointed to Louislana, the only Southern State wherein the question of mixed schools has been aquarely tested, they would have bad a proof, not of the soundness of their logic, but of its utter unsound-ness. There, during the years from 1868 to 1872, the period in which I was State Superintendent of Ed-ucation, the issue of mixed schools came, and was squarely and fearlessly met. The Constitution of 1868 provided that the public schools of the State abould be open alike to blacks and whites, and the oath of office in that commonwealth provides that every public officer shall see that no citizen is denied any civil or political right because of race, color, or previous condition. If, when the trial of mixed schools was made, the school system had been de-schools was made, the school not claim this to be a very strong argument in favor of the Civil Rights Bill? Has either of these gentle-men offered as good a one? There was all the clamor against civil rights as to the Louisiana achools, by the Democratic press and its supporters, that there is now in Tennessee against the peuding bill in Congress. There were in Louis-lana, at that time, Republicans who as bitterly op-posed equality in the achools as did the Democrats. They joined with their party opponents in the belief that the mixture of the two races in the schools would be attended by more harm than good. The hatred of the friends of free achools was so intense that creation was ransacked for terms of reproach severe enough to suit both their temper and the oc-casion which they deemed so very grave. When the question was boiled down to a very nice point, and when I was carefully reflecting as to the wisdom of excluding any of the colored applicants to our schools because of their color, I must confess that it was a serious matter; the more so for this reason: Admit-ting, for argument's sake, that a black child might better be excluded from a white school, what was I to do with children who were half white and half black? Again, what was to be done with those ap-plicants who were three-quarters white and one-quarter black? Again, thinking of the future, I said, "If I exclude these children now, then I help put upon them and their posterity a brand of disgrace which has its birth in wrong, which is at war with the spirit of equality that inepired the makers of the Declaration of Independence, and, above all, one so utterly in conflict with the spirit and teachings of Christianity as to render me unworthy of my op-portunities and responsibilities, and deserving only of the contempt of all just men if I were guilty of it." With these thoughts and feelings I issued an order through the newspapers, to the effect that from a cer-tain date all the public schools should be open to the children of the various districts, regardless of ra be assassinated: and one letter contained a picture of my coffin. This initimidation did not move me. The day came for the opening of the schools. As arpected, the colored children came with books in hand. The whites were ahead of them. Seeing the colored children admitted, the white pupils all left. (I speak now of those schools where this test was made.) I satin my cab analously beholding the re-sult of my own course. For awhile I confess I was full of sorrow. I thought I had been guilty of an in-discretion which bordered closely on crime, and yet I felt as if I was squarely meeting an issue imposed upon me by my oath of office. Well, the white pupils left, and the colored ones took their places. This was the result one day. We for another aspect of the case. The day on hours, the children who had left and those who took their places—the whites and the blacks—playing to-gether, as usual, on the green, under the wide-apread-ing live-cake. This sight prompted me to ask some of the white pupils why they ran away from school in the morning? The answer was: "Our parents tool us to leave if colored children were admitted." Then I asked: "Why do you play with colored chil-dren?" The answer was, "Because we want to—we do so all the time." This convinced me that there was really no antagonism between the children of the average accept that which sprang from older persons, who were possessed of the bitter prejudice de rived from slavery first, and from the war subsequent-ly. The next day came, with the excitement some what abated ; and then, very scon, the white, steing no prospect of a change of policy, sent their children back to school, and the year actually closed with a larger number of white pupils in the schools than ever before.

before. Little over a year ago, when in New Orleans I took pains to visit some of the largest and beil schools of the city, then under the charge of the Hon Mr. Brown, my successor. I saw some of the chi-dren of the best white citizens of the city slittle alongside of colored children, and I may add that the latter were as neatly clad and as well behaved as the former. I ascertained then that there were colored pupils in every public school in New Orleans, and that there was no trouble whatever from that source. Now I would like to mak Mr. Truman Smith as

The three was no training whatever from that source. Now I would like to ask Mr. Truman Smith and Mr. Brownlow if it be true, as they assert, that he passage of the Civil Rights Bill will break up the free schools of the South, why were not the free schools of Louisiana broken up under the operation of er-actly the same principle as that embrased by the Civil Rights Bill?

of Louisiana broken up under the operation of exactly the same principle as that embraced by the Civil Rights Bill? The truth is (and it is not difficult to determine it) that the opposition to this bill springs from a Southern passion for a hobby with the negro in it-not from the negro by reason of his color, but the serve because he is a Republican. It is a well-known fut that the Southern whites have less prejudice spaint the persons of the blacks than the whites of the North The prejudice is against the negro being Republican in party politics. Let the Civil Rights Bill par, and thus and due negro question as one of party politic, and you will find an end to the kind of tunnil sors so common in the South. The idea that the parses of the bill will end the free schools of the 6outh is without other foundation than that on which has rested the opposition to emancipation, the right to bear witness in courts, the right to hold office. When white people of the South would be injured, due graced, degraded. Trobably Gen. Beauregard was as jesious of the nor of his race as is either the Hon. Truman Smith or the Hon. Mr. Brownlow. There can be no doub that he was just as capable as either of these shows have begot of the south would be injured, due graced, degraded. The work and for ming a judgment as to whit was best for the good of the two races in the South What does Gen. Beauregard say? Witnes the following report of a committee on resolutions of white he was proposed that the whites and blacks shoul henceforth act in all public matters as one pope. The following is Gen. Beauregard's report it is given by the following is Gen. Beauregard's report it is proposed that the whites and blacks shoul henceforth act in all public matters as one pope.

Republicans :-

Resolved, That henceforward we dedicate ourselves

"Resolved, That hencetorward we dedicate sursus to the unification of our people. "Resolved, That by 'our people' we mean all men, of whatever race, color, or religion, who are citizens of Louisians, and who are willing to work for ber of Louisians, and who are willing to work for her prosperity. "Resolved, That we shall advocate by speech, and pen, and deed the equal and impartial exercise by every citizen of Louisiana of every civil and political right guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and by the laws of honor, brother-hood, and fair dealing. "Resolved, That we shall maintain and advocate the right of every citizen of Louisians, and of every citizen of the United States, to frequent at will all places of resort, and to travel at will on all vehicles of public conveyance upon terms of perfect equality public conveyance upon traver at will on all reactions public conveyance upon terms of perfect quality with any and every other citizen, and we pledge our-selves, so far as our influence, counsel, and example may go, to make this right a live and practical right; and that there may be no misunderstanding of our views on this point—

views on this point-"First: We shall recommend to the proprieton of all places of public resort in the State of Louisians the opening of said places to the patronage of both races inhabiting our State. "Second: And we shall further recommend that all railroads, steamboats, steamsbips, and other public convergances pursue the same policy. "Thick, We shall further recommend that our

"Third: We shall further recommend that our banks, insurance offices, and other public corpora-tions recognize and concede to our colored fellow-citizens, where they are stockholders in usch institu-tions, the right of being represented in the direction thereof

Fourth : We shall further recommend that here

"Fourth : We shall further recommend that here-after no distinction shall exist among citizens of Lou-isiana in any of our public schools or State indiu-tions of education, or in any other public institution supported by the State, city, or parishes. "Fifth : That we piedge our honor and good faith to exercise our moral influence, both through personal advice and personal example, to bring about the rapid removal of all prejudice heretofore existing sgimst the colored citizens of Louisiana. In order that they may hereafter enjoy all the rights belonging to citizens of the United States.

"G. T. BEAUREGARD,	AUG. BOHN,
"JAMES L. DAY,	C. C. ANTOINE,
"I. N. MARKS.	ARISTIDE MABY,
"GEORGE Y. KELSO,	CHAS. B. THOMPSON,
DE L C ROUNDANEZ	W. M. RANDOLPH.
"Con	muittee on Resolutions."

The above, like the experience I have rehear I he above, like the experience I have rehearce ab to the public school work, goes to show that all this clamor against the Civil Rights Bill is a misrepresen-tation of what will follow the passage of that bill. The Tribune will please me by publishing this view of a subject on which it seems to take a position so independent as to be able to hear both sides. THOMAS W. CONWAY, Late Superintendent of Education in Louisiana. BINGHAMTON, N. Y., September 7, 1874. -N. Y. Tribune.

SUNDAY EVENINGS FOR THE PROPLE.

The advent of autum, and the hability to prolong the dotoor gab arings, necessitating the resumption of a dotoor gab arings, necessitating the resumption of the species of or selecting, have been compared to a stability of the advent of the selection of the sel

NEWTON AND THE LAW OF GRAVITA-TION CHALLENGED.

[Our correspondent, as will be seen, rejects, what everybody is supposed to accept, the theory of grav-itation. Such a man ought to be a very bold one, but he is a plain Baptist minister, and he is right down in earnest about it, too, and expects to con-vince the world, sconer or later, that he is right. Of course, the apple will still fall to the ground, but ac-cording to our correspondent's thinking, it will have to justify its fall on other grounds than Newton asserted.—Ed. Watchman and Reflector.]

cording to our correspondent's thinking, it will have to justify its fail on other grounds than Newton asserted.—Ed. Watchman and Reflector.] Investigations of facts of Nature have led me to the conclusion that the discovery of the cause of "the motions of the celestial bodies and of our sea" was not made by Sir Issac Newton. The accepted hy-pothesis of universal gravitation is not sustained by facts of Nature, but is a mental illusion, and is proved to be so, in that the proportion of solar attraction directed to the earth. This forcible truth is fatal to Newton's "System of the World." Opening the way a little, I have selected for an example and a test of Newton's "System of the World." Opening the way a little, I have selected for an example and a test of Newton's the absurdies of the earth's nodes, or the so-called precession of the equinoxes, which involves the absurdiety of the earth from rotating or a second axis, which second axis, perpendicular to the plane of the celiptic, Newton invented, and around it he assumed that the earth is not accent axis, which second axis, perpendicular to the plane of the precession of the equinoxes. But brotate on this second axis, and because in Nature the arth does not so rotate, the mental illusion of solar attraction is proved. The earth is a spheroid, and in consequence of Nature's law of circular and currit-ing its axis the same as would a homogeneous and per-fect sphere, its axis not turned aside by axternal at-facts of Nature conspire to preserve the invariability of the equinoctial points. This grand testimony of nature is the investive argument on which I rely to demonstrate to mankind: That the hypothesis of aniversal gravitation, like the Ptolemale notion of an inversal gravitation, like the Ptolemale notion of an inversal gravitation, like the Ptolemale notion of an inversal gravitation, sith the sith of Newton, was devond famed philosopher, who failed to eater into the scientiate to mankind: That the hypothesis of aniversal science are impossible, and al

THE BONN CONFERENCE.

The propositions agreed to by the Conference at Bonn between the Old Catholics, the Greeks, and the Anglicans, with a view to union between the sev-eral bodies, are as follows:--"We agree: I. That the apocryphal or deutero-canonical books of the Old Testament are not of the same canonicity with the books contained in the He-brew canon.

"II. That no translation of Holy Scripture can claim an authority superior to that of the original text.

"III. That the reading of the Holy Scriptures in the vulgar tongue may not lawfully be forbidden. "IV. That in general it is more fitting and in ac-cordance with the spirit of the Church that the Lit-urgy should be in the tongue understood by the peo-

"V. That faith, working by love, not faith without love, is the means and condition of man's justifica-tion before God. "VI. That salvation cannot be merited by 'merit

"V. That faith, working by love, not faith without love, is the means and condition of man's justification before God."
"VI. That salvation cannot be merited by 'merit of condignity,' because there is no proportion between the infinite good of the salvation promised by God and the finite work of the salvation promised by and the finite work of the salvation promised by God and the finite work of the salvation promised by God and the finite work of the salvation promised by God and the finite worth of man's work.
"VII. That the doctrines of 'opera superrogation-is,' and of a 'thesaurus meritorum sanctorum'-i.e., that the overflowing merits of the saluts can be bransferred to others, either by the rulers of the saluts are unbenable.
"VIII. That (a) the number of the sacraments was fixed at seven first in the twelfth century, and then was received into the general teaching of the Church, not as a tradition coming down from the softles or from the earliest times, but as the result of theological speculation. (b) Catholic theologians acknowledge, and we acknowledge with them, that practical earlies the sale tradition-i.e., the unbroken transmission, partly oral and partly by writing, of the doctrine delivered by Jesus Christ and the Apostles—le an authoritative source of teaching for all successive generations. This tradition is partly to be found in the consensus of the grate acclesistical bodies standing in historical continuity with the primitive Church, partly to be found in the written documents of all centuries.

contrary to the tradition of the first thirteen centu-ries, according to which Christ alone is conceived without sin.

without sin. "XI. We agree that the practice of the confession of sins to a congregation or to a priest has come down to us from the Primitive Church, and that, purged from abuses and freed from constraint, it should be preserved in the Church. "XII. We agree that indulgences can only refer to penaltice actually imposed by the Church herself." There was a long discussion over the following proposition, which was finally in substance adopt-ed;...

(For T	RE INDEX.]
OPEN SECRET.
Not through Nature shineth Godhead fair and free: "Tis the Heart divineth What the god must be.
Nature all concealing, Dim her outer light, Finite forms revealing, Not the infinite.
All the godhead's planning Not with striving learn— Ioner eye—Reart scanning— Sees the god-bush burz.	5. H. M.

FOR THE WEEE ENDING OCTOBER 24.

POR THE WIELE REDUKG OCTORES 4.
R. H. Ranney, S. (D.25); W. F. H. Boykins, Sonta; W. H. Crowell 50 centa; A Andrén, 50 centa; J. John H. Arnold, 50 centa; G. Hover, 53.25; E. A. Willais, 60 centa; T. Hallowall, 50 centa; I. G. Hover, 53.25; E. A. Willais, 60 centa; T. Ballowall, 50 centa; I. G. Hover, 50 centa; R. Hallowall, 50 centa; I. G. Hover, 50 centa; T. Ballowall, 50 centa; I. Grove, 20 centa; T. B. Skinner, 28 centa; A. C. Grienson, 57 centa; J. B. Mallowall, 50 centa; I. Grove, 20 centa; T. B. Skinner, 28 centa; A. C. Grienson, 57 centa; J. B. Mallowall, 50 centa; I. Grove, 20 centa; T. B. Skinner, 28 centa; A. D. Davis, 50 centa; J. Grove, 20 centa; T. B. Skinner, 28 centa; A. C. Dita, 50 centa; A. C. Dita, 50 centa; A. M. D. Y. Shin, 50 centa; W. Tasker, 82.25; George W. Smith, 50 centa; W. Tasker, 51 centa; A. M. D. Yang, 50 centa; H. H. Hirowa, 75 centa; T. M. D. Carris, 70 centa; A. M. D. Yang, 51 centa; A. B. Cota, 52 centa; S. S. Zider, 83; J. B. C. Carrellum, 84; J. Centa; T. S. Barnor, 74 centa; S. S. Standa, Viller, 84; J. Songe, M. Graver, 52 centa; S. S. Barnard, 40 centa; E. W. Weit, 52 centa; A. Barnor, 52 centa; S. Barnard, 51 centa; A. S. Standa, 51 centa; A. S. Dennison, 52 centa; S. Barnard, 51 centa; M. Scare, 54 centa; S. S. Dennison, 52 centa; S. Barnard, 51 centa; M. Scare, 54 centa; S. S. Dennison, 52 centa; S. Barnard, 51 centa; J. C. Baker, 63 de diverta; 51 centa; A. M. Dennison, 52 centa; S. Barnard, 51 centa; M. Scare, 54 de diverta; 51 centa; A. M. Dennison, 52 centa; S. C. Carrellum, 54 centa; S. S. H. Scare, 54 de de diverta; 51 centa; 51 centa; 81.70; A. Shaw, 81.25; H. Andrews, 20 cents. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent naless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us. N. B.-Pisase remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks ou interior banks are liable to discounts, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the oredit.

BECEIVED.

Books.

QUIST HOURS. A Collection of Poems. Boston; Roberts Brothers, 1874.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

- Pamphleis and Periodicals.
  SPIHITUAL FORGE AND ITS SUFFLY. A Sermon by O. B. Rothingham, at Lyric Hall, Sept. 20. New York: D. G. Francis. 1874.
  THE SPIHIT OF TRUTH, THE CONFORTER. A Sermon by O. B. Frothlagham, Sept. 37. Now York: D. G. Francis. 1874.
  BERMONS by the Rev. Charles Voysey, at St. George's Hall, London.—THE INFULANCE OF HOMS. Sept. 6. -PHOTES-TANTISS, Sept. 15.—SCIENCE AND RELIGION, Sept. 20.— THE SPINOTION AND CLIMITS OF CONTINUERS, Sept. 5... 201003' OF CHIEF-JUSTICE CHASE. Delivered by William M. Evarus at Dartmooth College, June 24, 1874. Hanover, N.H.: J. B. Parker. 1874.
  VIEWS OF A COMMONWERATT. By a Cosmopolitan. East Boston: H. F. Hodges & Co. 1875.
  VITAL MAGNETISS. By E. D. Babbitt. New York: E. D. Babbitt. 1874.
  FOUERT ANNUAL ERORT Of Bofin's Sower, 815 Washing-ton St., Boston.
  THE ATLANTO MONTRELY. NOVEMBER, 1874. Boston: H. O. Honghton & Co.
  OLD AND NEW. NOVEMBER, 1874. Boston: Bobetts Broth-ert.

- ers. THE SANTARIAN. November, 1874. New York: 234 Broad-
- way. THE HERALD OF HEALTH. November, 1874. New York: Wood & Holtrook. THE PERM MOSTHLT. November, 1874. Philadelphia: 586 Walnut St. Games, COURTY-AVILUDE-PORTRAIT AUTHORS. Made and sold by West & Lee Game Co., Worcestor, Mass. Price 59 cents each.

Google

Tolsdo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything publiched in its columns accept for his or her own individual statements. Editorial constri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TRANCIS ELLING WOOD A BBOT, ASSOCIATE Editor. ABRAE WALTER STEVENS, ASSOCIATE Editor. OUTAVIUS RECORS FROTHINGEAM, THOMAS WESTWORTH BIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCER, MER. E. D. CHENEY, ROY. CHARLES VOTANY (England), POL. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 29, 1874.

THE INDER will be sent to any name not now on our mil-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for fourteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

IN MR. LESUEUR's thoughtful article on "Theology in Education," published in THE INDEX of week before last, the name Singlin was printed Ainglin, and the name Daunon was printed Daunow. For the sake of correct references it seems proper to make an exception in this instance to our rule excluding errata.

THE LEADING paper of this week's INDEX is an official document, published by the State of Massachusette, and showing just where the question of church taxation was left by the last Legislature. The Commissioners appointed under the "Resolve" were Thomas Hills, Esq., of Boston, Professor Julius H. Seelye, of Amherst College, and James M. Barker, Esq., of Pittsfield, who are to report early to the next Legislature.

A FRIEND hands us this for publication ; of course we should not venture to publish it except on request! "A patron of a certain newspaper once said to the publisher: 'Mr. Printer, how is it you have never called on me for pay for your paper?' 'O,' said the man of types, 'we never ask a gentleman for money.' 'Indeed,' replied the patron, 'how do you 'manage to get along when they don't pay?" 'Why,' said the editor, 'after a certain time we conclude that he is not a gentleman and we ask him.' 'Oh-ah-yes-I see; Mr. Editor, please give me a receipt,' and hands him a V. 'Make my name all right on your books.' "

WHEN WE ARGUE that the Free Religious Assoclation, by being pledged to unlimited freedom of thought, is thereby pledged against Christianity, we would by no means be understood to argue that all its members are individually anti-Christians. This is not true. In fact, very few of them are anti-Christians. We profoundly respect the right of each member to define and determine his individual position as he thinks right; and all we mean is to affirm, from our own point of view, the actual impossibility of being Christian and free at the same time. That this impossibility will by-and-by be recognized by all, we have no doubt; but meantime the Free Religious Association is composed of some who recognize it and more who do not.

OPINIONS SEEM to differ as to the justice of our late criticisms of Spencer. By way of contrast to Mr. Connor's, the following may be quoted under the circumstances from a private letter: "Your remarks on Herbert Spencer and his Unknowable please me more than anything I have seen for a long time. That 'Unknowable' is just about one of the greatest frauds and shams of the present day, and whoever exposes its ridiculous pretensions renders a valuable service to philosophy and to the world." Even stronger approval was kindly expressed by Mr. William T. Harris, editor of the St. Louis Journal of Speculative Philosophy-a scholar whose coincidence of opinion is especially gratifying; but we are not at liberty to quote from his letter. Mr. Connor's defence of Spencer, however, is entitled to the most respectful attention, and we doubt not will be echoed by many among our readers. Let the truth win!

"SPENCEE AND TYNDALL."

An article with the above heading, by our highly esteemed comrade Mr. Connor, is published on another page of our present issue. Its appearance has been unavoidably delayed, in order that we might add the word of comment which here accompanies it. 1. Mr. Connor thinks we failed in personal respect to Mr. Spencer and Professor Tyndall, because in reference to the doctrine of "the Unknowable" we used such expressions as "empty gibberish," "meaningless jargon," etc. Taken out of their proper connection, these phrases may seem unduly severe; but that they were personally disrespectful to Spencer or Tyndall, does not seem to us true. We must insist, on general radical principles, that a total separation ought to be made between the thinker and his thought; that the thinker should be treated with such respect as his personal character entitles him to, wholly irrespective of all other considerations; but that his thought should be weighed in absolute disregard of his personality, and treated with such respect only as it is entitled to by its intrinsic truth. A false or foolish notion broached by a writer of high reputation should receive no more deference than if propounded by one who is obscure and unfriended; and it is no personal disrespect whatever to any man to treat his opinions, thus totally detached from his personality, with the utmost freedom and frankness. We believe that Mr. Connor's censure is based on a certain half-defined notion that it is personal disrespect to a thinker to criticise his thought in this impersonal way,-that even the errors or absurdities of men who ordinarily are wise and great ought to be handled with exceptional tenderness and deference. We habitually write on a contrary principle : we hold that an error or absurdity should receive precisely the same treatment whether propounded by a philosopher or a fool, because error is error, and absurdity is absurdity, no matter who falls into it. When, therefore, we used the expressions complained of with reference to a certain fashionable doctrine which happened to be advocated by Spencer and Tyndall, we conceive that we were guilty of no personal disrespect whatever to these distinguished men. The respect we owe them personally we have always shown ; but we cannot consent to be muzzled In a question of pure truth by any assumed immunity from severe criticism in what they may have happened to advance. In the world of ideas, all property rights absolutely lapse; and it is a weakness for any man to be offended, if ideas he has put forth receive exactly such treatment as their inherent value entitles them to. Inasmuch as we practise what we here preach, and never take umbrage at any sincere criticism of our thought provided the laws of personal courtesy are respected (and, we may add, not often even if they are not), we feel no contrition over the sins pointed out by Mr. Connor.

2. Mr. Connor's estimate of the philosophical value of Herbert Spencer's work is not identical with that which we have expressed at length in the North American Review and eisewhere. Belleving that the ground-principles and building-plan of his philosophy are irremediably faulty, we cannot overlook these fundamental defects on account of the innumerable minor excellences with which his works abound. We consider his reputation as one which will not permanently remain what it is to-day, notwithstanding the immense worth of much that he has accomplished. Compared with such minds as Spinoza, Kant, and Hegel, Spencer cannot be ranked by any competent critic in the first order of philosophic genius; although he has done admirable work of a lower kind, which will be long remembered with grateful appreciation. Whoever is able to detect the flimsiness of those portions of the philosophy of Dr. Mansel and Sir William Hamilton which Spencer unquestioningly accepts and incorporates into his First Principles as essential to his own philosophy, will see that his statue of gold has feet of clay. It is the fashion to-day to follow Spencer; but we cannot follow him, or regard his philosophy as either profound, comprehensive, or satisfactory. He is simply the head of a transitory school, and a revolution in philosophy is actually beginning to take place which he is quite incapable of comprehending.

3. The doctrine of "the Unknowable," it is true, "does not affect the essential principles of Evolution;" but it does affect the essential principles of Spencerism, so far as Spencerism is to have any place at all in the history of philosophy. Spencer himself makes it a fundamental part of his First Principles ; and if it is a mistaken doctrine, little enough will be left of his architectural plan. It is, however, a doctrine borrowed in substance directly from Sir William Hamilton, and is only dressed up in a little different phraseology; there is no originality about it. It has already been, not "modified" perhaps, but rejected totally, by every thinker who relucts against running his head into a mud-bank for the purpose of seeing the world to the best possible advantage. 4. The reply which Mr. Spencer, in 1869, attempt ed to make to our review of his Principles of Biology was, in our judgment, so eminently unsuccessful, in adequate, and lame, that we cannot honestly admit the force of Mr. Connor's quaint suggestion that our views of Spencer's philosophy are affected unfavorably by a remembered drubbing at his hands! if there was any drubbing on that occasion, it is our impression that it was in the opposite direction: m impression that will remain unweakened until Mr. Spencer better appreciates the force of the objections he then tried without success to answer.

5. Mr. Connor has not quits understood us, if he supposes that we at all object to Professor Tyndall's discernment in matter of "the promise and potener of all terrestrial life." One part of our critique of Spencer's Principles of Biology, in 1868, was a defence of the doctrine of "spontaneous generation," or the origination of life out of inorganic matter. We should rather object to Tyndall's hesitation and vagueness of statement in laying down a principle which we unqualifiedly accept. That all organic life is a gradual evolution of inorganic matter is a conclusion implied in the very idea of Evolution. But what is this "inorganic matter" which is the admitted source of all organic life? This is the main question; and a correct definition of matter is, after all, the objective point of all philosophizing on this subject. At present, Professor Tyndall seems to halt in the notion of self-subsistent (we cannot yield that word), substantial atoms endowed with inherent polar forces; and these polar or "structural" forces he seems to regard as the ultimate cause of all organic life, so far as thought can go. But thought insists on going farther. Inherent properties of mutually independent atoms, manifesting themselves under laws which govern permanently all their various interactions, present a new difficulty as great as that of supposing that the universe results from the "fortuitous concourse" of the atoms. How happens it that the inherent forces of all these infinitely numerous atoms, each of which is conceived to be selfsubsistent (for Tyndall drops not the slightest intimation that the atoms depend either on each other or on anything else), should obey any general laws at all? This conformity of all atomic and molecular action to one and the same law of "polarity," by which alone organic forms are conceived to be evolved, points directly to some deep identity of the atoms with each other, and in fact seems to reduce them to mere manifestations, under fixed temporal and extensional conditions, of one omnipresent Energy; and here must be sought the real secret of all organism. By this very conception of atoms with inherent properties which manifest themselves only under a universal law of polarity, we are led directly away from what we designated in "The God of Science" as the "polythelam of science," and are taught to embrace a vaster conception, which reconciles the Many with the One. The notion of matter itself melts into that of unconditioned, yet all conditioning force-an idea as near that of omnipresent "spirit" as can well be entertained. Materialism itself, by being rigorously followed out, loses its original character; the definition of matter adapts itself to the requirements of philosophic unity; and thought is led to the idea of One Reality, not absolutely "inscrutable" by any means, but known to the eract extent that the universe and its laws are known.

This seems to us the final outcome of Tyndall's "materialism." So far from quarrelling with it, we have no quarrel but with the failure to announce it unambiguously and to extend it without limitation even to "sensation and thought." True it is, M Tyndall confesses, that science cannot to-day intelligibly connect molecular motion with phenomenal consciousness; but "by an intellectual necessity" we "cross the boundary of the experimental evidence, and are willing to concede that this connection will eventually be established beyond a doubt. What follows? Not that matter is all-far from it. But that the one omnipresent Energy which manifests itself in countless atoms as a universal organic "polarity" manifests itself also in the atom-built organism as "intelligence": in a word, that matter and mind are one-Janus-faces of the All, twin caryatids of an outer porch of the great temple of Being, whose sdytum still waits to be revealed. Neither can mind be reduced to matter, nor matter to mind; the logical leadings of Tyndall's peculiar "scientific materialism," which not only postulates an infinity of mutually independent atoms but also a strictly universal law of "polarity" that governs them, are manifestly away from that genuine form of "materialism" which explains everything by matter alone, and suggest monism as a better name than materialism for the philosophy to which modern science is conduct ing us. "Mystery" enough there is, yet not "insoluble." and the indomitable mind of man, refusing voluntarily to clip the wings that bear it forever onward and upward, urges its flight towards regions that seem to the timid hopelessly beyond its reach. Be of good courage, O marvellous Intellect, for thou too art of the essence of the eternal!

Clarken by GOOS

6. Mr. Connor tries to distinguish between "the manifestation of a Power which does not manifest itself" and "the manifestation of a Power which does manifest itself." Such a distinction, with the utmost deference to our friend, we must hold to be a selfevident contradiction. Of "a Power which does not manifest itself," it is astonishing to suppose that we can have any "manifestation." The manifestation of something else is not the manifestation of that Power. One of two things must be true : either we have no manifestation of that Power, or else it must manifest itself. Mr. Spencer and his followers may argue till doomeday, but they must accept one of these two alternatives. Our knowledge of the Ultimate Reality is exactly equal to the extent of its manifestations; and to style it "the Unknowable" is to affirm and deny knowledge in the same breath. We are disposed to be infinitely accommodating; but we must not be expected to repeal the laws of thought in order to suit Mr. Spencer's special convenience.

7. By restricting religion to sentiment and emotion, while at the same time giving over to science the entire realm of knowledge and thought, Professor Tyndall does make an unfortunate "divorce between acience and religion." Certainly we cherish a very different conception of their mutual relation. To us religion includes the fullest possible development of thought, emotion, will, conscience, and whatever other elements may be found to exist in human nat ure; in other words, science is simply a part of religion, as being the development of the purely intellectual part of human nature. Why institute an opposition or rigorous demarcation between the part and its whole? It is our very earnest aim to show that religion demands the symmetry and fulness of a complete development, in harmonious and due proportion, of all the elements of our being; and we regret the perpetuation of confusion on this all-important point. Religion is to-day falling into well-bred or ill-bred contempt just because it is given over to sentimentalists as their especial charge; and it will be impossible to preserve much respect for it under such guardianship. The masculine elements of intellect and will, quite as much as the feminine elements of love and reverence (and all these are needed in every well-rounded character), must enter into all such religion as has any inheritance in the future. In vain is it hoped that religion can feed exclusively on the Barmecide dist of veneration for a "mystery," whether soluble or insoluble; the world must know what it is to venerate, or it will stop venerating altogether. Let us learn a little wiedom from the man who tried to teach his horse to live without eating, and who lamented that, when he had reduced him to a regimen of one straw a day, the experiment was brought to a premature close by the poor beast's going to-well, let us hope, to grass! With all the beauty and inspiration of his famous address, Professor Tyndall has not given us such a conception of religion as will redeem it from the limbo of obsolescence; and we think that nothing is more wanted today than an idea which shall gather up into one grand synthesis all the elements that go to the making of a full, fine, and perfected humanity. If a betler word than religion can be found, well and good ; we care little for the word alone. But this idea, with some fitting word to express it, is what myriads are slindly struggling towards; and it is this, the name and the thing, that we hope to serve to-day.

PROFESSOR TYNDALL'S ADDRESS.

The readers of THE INDEX will doubtless thank us or calling their attention to the latest and best ediion of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the witish Association. This edition is the one authorted by Prof. Tyndall himself, and contains, not only preface from his pen, but portions of the Address s originally written, which no previous editions ave embodied. This edition is now for sale at THE ADEX office, at the price of thirty cents. A. W. S.

ABOUT "FEELING BIG."

Mr. Morse sends this little note in response to a "Glimpse" of last week:

"Gillingse of last week." DEAR ABBOT:--If you "feel big," your mind can't be "infinite." Sorry! So palpable a fact o'erthrows philosophy. Disappointedly yours, Morse. P. S. Or must there needs be an exception to prove the rule? I believe. M.

If "feeling big" last week over Mr. Morse's announcement that "every mind is infinite" proves that our mind cannot be infinite, he sets us all right this week by making us "feel small." Now we are infinite, surely!

MR. KELSEV'S SOUTH-SIDE VIEW.

In the last number of THE INDEX, Mr. Kelsey, of St. Louis, asks the question, "Have white men born in the Southern States no civil rights that their Northern brethren are willing to respect ?"

Mr. Kelsey will find our reply in the text of Mr. Summer's Civil Rights Bill, the substance of which has already been printed in these columns. A man so well informed as Mr. Kelsey claims to be does not need to be told that this bill aims to secure the rights of all classes without regard to race or color.

Mr. Kelsey seems to think that between the "Africans and Anglo-Saxons" in the South there 'is "constantly increasing jealousy, enmity, and antag-onism;" and that in "the inevitable and impending conflict" the white race must go to the wall. He argues that the negroes are abundantly able to take care of themselves, and that the whites are not. He asserts with apparent seriousness that "the blacks are working together in perfect unison" to "extirpate the whites from among them." If Mr. Kelsey's theory is as correct as his observations are original, we submit that, for the protection of the doomed and incapable white race, the passage of the Civil Rights Bill is an imperative necessity. An extended review of Mr. Kelsey's statements and theories would involve more space and time than we think they deserve; often contradictory, they answer each other, while the extravagance and exaggeration of the writer is so obvious as to render comment superfluous. If, however, any readers of THE INDEX are tempted to accept his estimate of the capabilities and desires of the black race, and his representation of the condition of the South, as just, we ask their attention to the statement of Mr. Thomas W. Conway, late Superintendent of Education in Louisiana, published in another column. Mr. Kelsey himself might learn something from Mr. Conway; and if he cares to pursue his investigation, we recommend the old files of the Nation, whose present advocacy of class rule he is so ready to justify. B. P. H.

A CONFESSION.

In defining another's position one defines his own, and all the more sincerely because unconsciously, In its issue of September 26, the Christian Register did this so excellently well that no apology is needed for referring to it, though the paper is so far out of date. We forgive easily the misstatements ; as, for instance, that the Free Religious Association meets but once a year,-that THE INDEE is its organ,-for the sake of the entire candor with which its notions of religion and of Christianity are confessed. It cannot be pretended by any person of ordinary intelligence, who has bestowed half a thought on the matter, that the Free Religious men have concealed their objects, or have cloaked their opinions in coverings of ambignous words. They have said, till saying has made the statement threadbare, that their design, their prime and sole design, was to emancipate religion from sectarian bonds, to effect something towards the reconclisition of faiths, and to introduce the scientific method into the study of the moral and spiritual universe in place of the theological. This sim they have held in view to the exclusion of every other, keeping themselves clear from all entanglements, committing themselves to no words or actions that might render their position doubtful, and bringing forward, in every aspect, their cardinal idea. All this the Register knows as well as Mr. Potter, or Mr. Abbot. To suppose the Register ignorant of so plain a fact would be equivalent to supposing it idiotic. There is every reason why it should be fully informed on the subject; there is not a single shadow of a reason why it should be uninformed or misinformed. Knowing thus much, whatever else it may not know (and we frankly concede its manifest ignorance on some points), but knowing thus much, the Register declares that the Free Religious Association is "not engaged in any religious or humane work," and that Free Religionists, as a body, "are anti-Unitarian and anti-Christian." Which is as much as saying that, in the judgment of the Register, neither religion nor humanity are concerned in the emancipation of religion from sectarian bonds, in the reconciliation of faiths, or in the substitution of the scientific method for the theological in the study of the moral and spiritual universe; that it believes in the sectarian policy and principle, approves of the polemical relations that the great religions of the world sustain to one another, and have sustained for ages, and clings to the ancient method of consulting authoritative tradition instead of facts, in order to ascertain the truth in regard to Divine existence and human destiny. A most noteworthy admission, which would never be made directly; which could not be extracted by any polemical exigency; which, when suggested in the form of an accusation, has been repudiated again and again; but which unawares comes out as an inevitable inference from its issue with Free Religion.

As if this general avowal were not sufficient, the Register makes it explicit by declaring the Free Religionists as a body "anti-Unitarian and anti-Christian." We are to understand, then, that Unitarianism is pledged to maintain the sectarian spirit, is committed to the course of encouraging the hostility of religions, and holds to the theological method of treating questions of religious belief. We are to as-sume that Christianity is justified in keeping jealously within its walls, in asserting its claim to a special revelation, in setting up its absolute supremacy over Buddhism, Thelam, and all other religions under the sun, and in clinging to its traditional dogmas in defiance of reason and knowledge. This is precisely what we have suspected, and, in vindication of our position, have charged. So far as the Register is concerned, our suspicions are warranted, our charge is made good. The action of the Conference at Saratoga proved that the Unitarian clergy and laity, as a body, were of the same mind carnestly and all but unanimously. Why then further agitate so plain a matter? We are grateful to the Register for putting a disputed point to rest so completely and in so guileless a way. The idle words go to judgment, because they are the unguarded overflow of the heart. Free Religionists and others will please take notice, 0, B. F.

SELFHOOD NOT SELFISHNESS.

In the effort to accomplish the perfect life, perhaps there is no one task more difficult than to discriminate rightly between the duty which we owe to ourselves and that which we owe to others. Unless this discrimination be justly made, either our own individuality suffers, or that contribution which we are bound to make to the happiness of our fellows is stinted.

In the first place, we have ourselves. The first and the best gift which Nature makes to man is him-And the first as well as the last and best return which Nature expects man to make to her is that of himself,-his ripened, matured, and perfected self. Nature deals with man just as she does with the apple, the berry, the corn in the field : she gives the germ, the seed, and then expects the full-grown fruit as a recompense. The first duty, then, which a man owes, is to himself,-since himself improved upon is the debt which he has to pay back to the universe. He has nothing at all to bestow on anybody else until he first has accumulated something in his own being. A beggar only is he until he has acquired something to give. Physically, intellectually, and spiritually, man's first concern is necessarily for himself. He must grow, ripen, and mature. His nature must become full of richness, sweetness, strength, and beauty. Self-culture is his duty and his privilege. To make the most of himself is his highest possible To render his being full-orbed is his completest art. attainment. Otherwise he cheats Nature; otherwise he defrauds the world. If a fig-tree does not bear fruit, it deserves cursing. If the individual does not enlarge and enrich his nature with all possible fulness and opulance, he invites the reproach of God and the contempt of men.

There are too many men and women who misapprehend the just rights and claims of selfhood; who depreciate that primary regard which Nature expects them to have for themselves. They are well-meaning people; in motive and intention they are good people. They are, indeed, those who are called benevolent, generous, self-sacrificing people. But they labor under a mistake as to what real goodness, real benevolence, real generosity is. They undertake to give themselves away before they have fairly come into possession of themselves. They think to benefit others by bestowing those things which, in themselves, convey the most superficial blessing, and enrich with the most transient enriching. Ordinary benevolence consists in the giving of mere externalities,-money, food, clothing, books, pictures, furniture, personal civility, entertainment of houses and grounds. But what we ought to be able to give is, not externalities alone, but internalities. First and last and all the time, we ought to be able to give ourselves; and unless the externalities which we bestow contain the very finest flavor of our essential personality, all our bestowing of them will impart comparatively but little benefit to the receivers. If I am thirsty, I desire to drink from a well which is cool and deep, which is fed with never-failing springs from the heart of everlasting hills,-for this gives me an honest promise of supplying my returning want, again and again; and only the direst necessity will make me content to lap a little from a shallow stream which the next hour's sun may suck up into the air. So, if I want real benefits from a fellow man, I will go, not to that one who is richest in purse, but to him who is richest in mind and heart; whose character is bottomed on eternities, and fed by perennial powers.

manning Google

The truest benevolence does not impoverish the giver in enriching the receiver. To him who hath shall more be given ; from him only who hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. There are multitudes of people who are actually squandering their natures in trying to be good and kind to others ; whose individualities literally are being ground to powder under a mistaken sense of duty. It is truly pathetic to stand by while this is transpiring; for, though one cannot but admire the motive that prompts to it, one must as inevitably deplore the re-Goodness ought not to be a matter of conscience only, but the outcome of inspiration as well. When it is the former alone, it is not only juiceless, unrelishing, and unlovely, but it is absolutely killing,-as the letter without the spirit always is. Equally true is it that, when duty is a yoke and not a joy, it galls and frets and eats into the neck of the wearer.

Goodness should be joyfulness, and duty should be beauty. And this must be so in every case where the duty which we owe to ourselves is rightly balanced with that which we owe to others. The world has no right, the universe itself has no right, to demand of me that I sacrifice myself for it, unless my own individuality consents and bounds with elastic feet to the immolation. It is one of the highest rights which I as an individual possess, to sacrifice myself for others when the mood of generosity is upon me, or when the grand passion for humanity rises strong in my soul and sweeps me on to its high destiny. There is no selfishness in true selfhood. The man who wisely loves himself, he as truly loves his fellow men. He who thinks so highly of his personality as not to be willing to convert it into a souphouse to feed chronic greed and indolence, or into a gibbet on which to hang daily sacrifices for those who would be better off to depend more upon themselves, he is quite as likely as others to remember to be merciful to the really suffering, kind and generous to the really needy, and patient and gentle with the wayward and erring.

One said to me once: "I think Goethe was the wisest man I ever knew or heard of. He just got the good times himself, let it cost what it might to others. Then, by making his own nature rich, othersthe world, anybody-who came in contact with him received the blessing." I do not endorse this opinon; it is too unguarded and undiscriminating. In my eyes, Goethe is not "the wisest man." He preached the gospel of self-culture, and for that I thank him; he certainly did make "his own nature rich," and many others have thus received a blessing from him, as doubtless many more will in many years to come. For all this I admire bim. But just because he was too willing to get "the good times himself, let it cost what it might to others," and so mingled selfishness with his selfhood, I cannot hold him up as an unspotted model. Ralph Waldo Emerson comes nearer the mark than did Johann Wolfgang Goethe. The latter preached the gospel of self-culture; the former preaches the gospel of character. This is better. Mr. Emerson teaches us that we more truly bless others by what we are than by what Yet he himself is an example of a humane we do. and noble life, as well as of a rich and cultured nature. What we need to learn is to attain and maintain a nice balance between what we owe to others and what we owe to ourselves; to cultivate a true selfhood without lapsing into selfishness; to practise a real benevolence without suffering a dissipation of our personality. A. W. 8.

Communications.

"PAITHFUL ARE THE WOUNDS OF A FRIEND."

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

EDITOR OF THE INDEX: Dear Sir, — Two things in your issue of October 15 rather pained me. One was your saying that you supposed there was "no prospect of redress" for a "gross misrepresentation" of your position on the part of Professor F. W. Newman; the other was your reply to Colonel Higginson on the subject of the Woman's Journal.

ieply to Colonel Higginson on the subject of the Woman's Journal. As regards the first point, it is certainly very dis-couraging to those who look to THE INDEX and its friends for an exemplification of all that is best, in morality and in temper, to find that you have no hope of obtaining amende for a "gross misrepresentation" by one of your own editorial contributors. Is this the result, we may ask, of "Liberty and Light"? What, then, are the effects of bondage and darkness? With regard to the second point, I can only say that your original remark with reference to the Woman's Journal impressed me with the idea that it was a feebly conducted sheet, only redeemed from insipidity by Colonel Higginson's contributions. If this was a compliment, as you now insist, compliments cannot always be pleasant to receive. Waw. D. LES. OTTAWA, 21 October, 1874.

OTTAWA, 21 October, 1874.

[Explanation on these two points is very properly

asked. 1. The reason we saw "no prospect of redress" was not that we doubted in the least Professor Newman's willingness to correct his perfectly honest though grievons misrepresentation, but partly that we doubted whether Fraser's Magazine would insert a correction, and partly that we should consider a correction, even if inserted, as a very inadequate remedy for the false impression now given. We are exceedingly sorry that we unintentionally seemed to disparage Professor Newman's fairness or magnanimity, and hasten to disavow a construction of our ill-considered phrase which would be shamefully unjust to one whom we respect in the highest degree.

2. The "sneer" at the Woman's Journal was incidental only; a deserved compliment to Colonel Higginson was what our phrase was intended to convey; and our remark above criticised was simply designed to put the emphasis where it belonged. We thought that Colonel Higginson's excessive modesty led him to distort our meaning, and thereby (of course unintentionally) to misrepresent it. If a little boy with a smatch on his face approached, we should not say, "Here comes a smutch," but, "Here comes a little boy." There is a great deal in emphasis. Whether it is a "sneer" to call a journal "rather dull," opinions may differ; but we intended no sneer. We are sorry now that we said what we did, but we cannot take it back honestly, for we think it still. The Woman's Journal advocates a righteous cause, and we wish it all success; and perhaps its dulness to us arises from the fact that we need no conversion to its idea. But THE INDEX gets a great deal harsher treatment without complaining, and we cannot help wondering that the Woman's Journal should be so sensitive at so mild a criticism .- Ep. I

THE DUTY OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

RUSHFORD, Minn., October 7, 1874. F. E. ABBOT:

RUBHFORD, Minn., October 7, 1874. F. E. ABBOT: Dear Friend, — The complete abandon of moral fourge and self-forgetfulness (self-regardfulness por would call it) with which yon follow your convic-into only in the eyes of the world, but also of your nearcet friends is—well, is what touches with enthu-show of the eyes of the all your friends must honor and be proud of your courage, of course we with feel a proportionate anxiety that the convic-tions no matter what attitude you must not be provide the eye of the all your friends must honor and be proud of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and be proved of your courage, of course we honor and the proved of your courage, of course we honor and the prove of an the select of the served honor you with hurried warnings and eager offers to hor the serve excelled and the select of the served hor to one particular pit. Because there are so we (a because on this one point my perceptions are in accord with those of all the earnest, positive tempera-near of necessity included to auspect some slight flaw in the cry excellent lenses through which you ex-mine the subject. Your field glass appears to be and the to set ye or cellent lenses through which you ex-mine the subject. Your field glass appears to be and in the test word all the glass appears to be and the public relations of temperance is quite satisfact.

tory to me; but I strongly question your notion of the nature of temperance itself. That temperance in respect to alcohol as a beverage can, at this day, mean to a man of "cultured free thought" anything else than total abstinence, is to me, indeed, quite as tonishing. You will not, like Horace Greley, ap-peal to the dictionary to settle a question in moral science—as if any philologist could fix and determine the meaning of terms in that field. What, then, is "temperance"?

the meaning of terms in that field. What, terms "temperance"? Whether or not Judge Stallo has succeeded in de-monstrating that "there is no physical constant" in the universe, we all know that none can be assumed in establishing the relation between lager her (e. g) with the human stomach. To make the meaning d "temperance" depend upon that relation is to de-prive it of all character which has any value in the conduct of ilfe, not to mention before the law, where, as universal experience proves, such a meaning in "constant" —to wit, the love of man, —and relegate it to the limbo of the "intelligent jury." and the hardly more determinate world of medical windom. To the image of the determinate of the state state of the state mean anything, unless it comes to mean total abdi-nence; to the doctor or physiologist, it may possible of eldicontrol"—though this is by no means so well es-tablished as to the moralist, knowing all we do to day of alcohol and of the influence of fahlon, ex-amption. But to the moralist, knowing all we do to day of alcohol and of the influence of fahlon, ex-amption, "Keppesentative Mystic." Swedenborg, makes, "total abstinence?

to-day of alcohol and of the influence of fashion, grample, etc., how can it mean anything at all are total abstinence? The "Representative Mystic," Swedenborg, make, as a leading doctrinal tenet of the "true Christian religion," this proposition: "That to do good and be-come regenerate man must avoid evils as sinsagainst God." In criticism of this the representative Rad-lead, Mr. Emerson, remarks somewhat superfloatly, I think, that (I quote from memory) "he has not pro-gressed far who needs to know more than that a thing is evil in order to avoid it." The abuse of al-cohol as a beverage is an evil to the world of wah magnitude that, if we are not quite justified in re-use by individuals—in the presentatus of human de-velopment, at least. If the benefits derivable from its use by individuals are not wholly questionable, still the dangers attending general use are so abust infinitely great, in proportion to the certain besefus that such use is, practically speaking, an annityzed evil. Leaving out all the results of "interoscept re-search," etc., etc., as eminently unsatisfactory on ei-ther side, it seems to me that no man whose though is really free can fail to save site a singer and use re shows in a singer that any use of alcohol as a beverage, which is pos-sible to the race, is in such conflict with the good of the race that to encourage it is any degree becomes an evil which we ought to avoid, either a singer evil. But precisely because "temperance" is without precisely because "temperance" is without predical meaning outside of morals or religion, it would, with you, maintain, as against the Side of due and a such conflict with the gop of the orace, becoming responsible to the site for dum-age to others only. At least I should regard it as in-septient for the State to maintain the oppoties but one has the right of every individual to est and drink (and so, of contrae, to buy and sell) what and how much he honose, becoming responsible to the Side for dum-age to others only. At least I should re the wine when it is red." And now is it possible that I, who read you with such loving and patient attention, am among these who do not sufficiently understand you to descre-your attention, and that you do not at all encounge the use of alcohol as a beverage? If so, I shall will-ingly auffer the necessary mortification of my "pide of intellect" for the aake of that gladness of beart which it will afford me to know it; for I am Very truly your friend.

Very truly your friend, T. H. Evers.

[Who could resist the influence of such an appeal as this, though from one he had never met "in the flesh," or fail to respond to it with a profound wish to see things in the same light, if only truth to his own vision would permit? But nothing could posibly be gained by allowing sympathy to distort insight, or what seems to be such. The world needs absolute sincerity in this matter of temperance, and we must say what we inwardly believe, even at the cost of giving pain when we should so ardently wish to give "gladness of beart." As to those who fly to viteeration, we consider them not at all.

What is the really noblest attitude with regard to abstinence, so far as they are concerned who know they do not personally need to abstain "tectotally"! How far should consideration for "example" deflect their course from what seems best per set Let each loyally answer this question for himself, as we mean to answer It now.

For years we have considered this matter; with no lurch to self-indulgence, for it would require an inappreciable self-sacrifice to abstain absolutely. This is our conclusion : to adopt and act upon that principle which seems best in itself, sure that in the long run no better "example" can be given to the world.

nummer Coogle

Make your own conduct the reflex of your innermost conviction, and trust that the total influence of your character shall in no other way be, on the whole, no-bler or purer of more beneficent. It is our own inost conviction that total abstinence is not a uni-Derm versal duty-that the strict government of self by ideal law is the highest possible "example"-that the "example" of him who is always and everywhere temperate can never be in favor of intemperance that it is not particular acts, but the principles they express, that really constitute "example." If this is true (and radicalism is one huge lie if it be false), then he who gives up his own principle to adapt himsalf to the supposed needs of others fails to render them the highest service. Hence we cannot, with our views, live out the ideal of the testotaller, which is not ours-cannot for the sake of any supposed "example" give a lesson of distrust of self-government by reason and conscience. Others will decide for themselves: we cannot conform to an ideal not our.own.-ED.]

"THERE IS A WAY THAT SEEMETH BIGHT TO A MAN, BUT THE END THERE-OF 15 DEATH."

PIERD ABOT:--The Ter ENDEX of October 15, I notice, under the head of "Glimpses," an item in which reference is adopted as a nutritive agent. It strikes me that a good deal of ability would be required to make the adopted as a nutritive agent. It strikes me that a good deal of ability would be required to make the adopted as a nutritive agent. It strikes me that a good deal of ability would be required to make the adopted believe that alcohol is food, as such an idea is at war with the instincts and common sense of man-hud. Alcohol is a product of decomposition. It must instinctively avoids any portion that is rotten or in a decaying state. In the very item referred to, we have provide an illustration of the danger of introducing into the system any product of decay. Dr. Anetie, we be able to discont of a decaying body. The make the defence of alcohol as food, died from the system any product of decay. Dr. Anetie, we have made the defence of alcohol as food, died from the system any product of decay. Dr. Anetie, we have allowed to drink as much of the masters' bevor-prenting, one would suppose, perfect pictures of physical comfort and well being. But the least bruise, one prenting, one would suppose, perfect pictures of physical comfort and well being. But the least bruise, or prenting, one would suppose, perfect pictures of physical to make the defence of the single to turn to gauge the set of the prise of the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical the single to turn to gauge the set of the physical t

SETH HUNT.

[By "able defence" we did not mean demonstration. On a point concerning which the best scientific men differ so widely, we have no opinion of our own.-ED.1

THE RESERVE AND THE ADVANCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4, 1874.

EDITOR INDEX: EDITOR INDEX: Deer Sir, -- Your correspondent from Barre, Massa-chusets, under date of September 4, in writing about the question of "Organization," shows a very earnest spirit, but fails, I think, to understand those who do not fully agree with her. Pardon me if I do not answer "yee" to the call, when she speaks of "sleepy, easy-living, conciliato-try, compromising radicals, who assure us there is no danger." In a short newspaper attack it is not possible to ry, compromising radicals, who assure as there is no danger." In a short newspaper article it is not possible to arpreas fully one's views. May I call her attention to one sentence in a letter of mine in THE INDEX, September 3, dated Passaic, New Jersey? I quote: "Many live in a basiness world which taxes their full energies, and have work to do which seemingly takes their whole time." May I add now that, when a person assumes any duty, even though it be of a business nature, he should first answer its demands fully, honorably, before he assumes other duties? And at present may I still be permitted to be one of the reserve force, a necessary part of every army, while expressing myself quite willing to acknowledge your correspondent's privilege to join the adsence guard? I surely wish her every success possible; and she may rest content that, as written before, "when .... the roll-call is sounded, the response will be in no uncertain sounds." We cannot all of us be leaders, and to each one is given now only the possibility to act he truth as the soul sees it. Very truly, A.

It would be the extreme of fanaticism to assume to decide what is duty for others, especially in ignorance of individual circumstances. We have not infrequently spoken of the "public duty" which liberals as such owe to their country; that is, the duty of helping to secure a more thorough secularization of our government. But we always mean to recognize the entire propriety of each one deciding for himself how he can best aid in this work. The "reserveforce" is just as important as the "advance-guard ;" and he certainly obeys orders from the headquarters of conscience who resolves first of all to discharge the immediate duty that devolves upon him. Only let us not forget our public relations in the stress of private demands upon us.-ED.]

HELP FOR WOMEN.

HELP FOR WORLEN. TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--Will you allow me space in your paper to say to its readers that the office of "The Business Woman's Mutual Benefit Association" is now open, and to beg, in behalf of the cause which the society repre-sents, the much needed interest and coöperation of the people of Boston? This association was organized last February, and its management placed in the hands of a board of di-rectors. It attracted much attention, won sympathy and practical help; but in consequence of the late-receive a sufficient number of honorary members to give us the full amount of money necessary, before we can receive the beneficiary members, whom the association proposes to aid.

We can receive the connectary members, whom the association proposes to aid. It is not possible to give here the plan upon which the society is based, but those who receive circulars at the time of their distribution will recail details; those who failed to receive them can obtain them, and all other desired information upon the subject, by calling at the office of the society, 208 Tremont Street. Street by calling at the office of the society, 208 Tremont Street. The object of this association is especially worthy of attention, for the reason that it is in no respect a charity, but simply proposes, under clearly-defined conditions, to help women who support themselves by their own industry to take care of themselves in the event of alcheaes or extreme need. It is sincerely hoped that the present notice may, result in so large an accession of honorary members that the sum still needed to make up the fund re-quired before the purpose of the society can be schleved may be speedily obtained. Those dealring to consult persons interested other than the writer are referred to Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. James T. Fields, Rev. E. E. Hale, and Mrs. Caroline M. Severance. All moneys should be sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells, 165 Boylston Street, Boston. Respectfully, ALICE DUTTON BALLOU, Pres.

REVISED BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF B. W. M. B. A.

REVISED BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF B. W. M. B. A. President, Mrs. Alice Duiton Ballou; Vice-Presi-denta, Mrs. James T. Fields, Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells, Mrs. James Tolman, Miss Lucia M. Peabody, Mrs. General Ihrie, Mrs. Carlyle Petersilea, Mons. Edmond Ménard, Rev. E. E. Hale, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. John E. Lodge, Dr. Sara E. Brown, Mrs. Caroline M. Severance, Dr. Mary Safford Blake, Miss Eliza M. Brown, Mrs. Susie Vogl, Mr. Fred. Hen-shaw; Treasurer, Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells; Secre-tary, Dr. Sara E. Brown; Business Committee, Mr. Carlyle Petersilea, Mrs. Mary E. Kennedy, Miss Mary S. Ozborn, Miss Fanny Tibbets, Miss Marion Will-iamson, Miss Ellen Barret, Mrs. Edmond Ménard, Miss Abby Tolman, Miss Lollie Kennedy. Ali business communications should be sent to the office of the Association, 208 Tremont Street. Office hours from 10.80 to 12.80.

THE "P. S. OF A."

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11, 1844. EDITOR OF INDEX :

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11, 1844. EDITOR OF INDEX: Dear Sir,—It was with the utmost astonishment that I read in your paper the article headed "Patri-otic Sons of America." How any one who, as a reader of your valuable INDEX, may at least be ac-credited with liberal ideas can defend or hold up such an organisation to the gaze of an admiring pub-lic is more than I can understand. Weil for him that, as he says, he is not a member, and that, "as far as he knows," they are on the side of liberty. On that account, and that only, he may be excused. As a foreigner, I lift my voice to object to such so-cities, which teach a feeling of hatred towards all not "born Americans," and hold that the P. S. of A. should not be advertised in THE INDEX and com-mended by the silence of its editor. Took at their record! In 1847 (I quote your cor-respondent), the P. S. of A. were first organized in Philadelphila, and now, after twenty-seven years of aristence, number no more than twenty-six thousand members. Only twenty-six thousand who love their starspangled banner as none others can! Is not that a direct proof that they are ignored by severy in-telligent mind of the country? Is it not a direct in-so that a direct proof that they are ignored by severy in-telligent mind of the country? Is it not a direct in-so first of Jesus," on the ground that, as they are laboring for the welfare of their sect regard-mined. Away, asy I, with such selfsh organiza-tion, which no more belong to this century than here infidei-eaters of former days. It is a well-how fact that they secule all who are not Frote-tants from membership. These very P. S. of A. is readily on the star booling or the series of means, they should be secordingly ad-how fact that they exclude all who are not frote-tions which no more belong to this century than here infidei-eaters of former days. It is a well-how fact that they exclude all who are not frote-tion is from membership. These veellon as it was tho membership. These v forget it was as much the athelist and foreigner who saved the country during the late rebellion as it was themselves. Certain it is that they, the twenty-six thousand who choose to exclude foreigners and infi-dels from membelship, and who love their country as none others can, could not have done it I, as a Philadelphian of eight years' residence, know some of them. Who and what are they? They are in most cases men who, although fond of membership in a secret organization, do not actually understand the intents of that society; men who take not the time to inquire into its nature, and who only accept it because of its novelty of wearing badges, giving signs, etc. Leave Philadelphis, and hardly anybody knows anything about them; they are purely local, and instead of increasing grow daily less. I hope that the above will be an eye-opener to a ## great many who might have been misled by the cor-respondent in your last. Believe me, yours respectfully, H. B. G. H. B. G., of Philadelahia

[It will not do to infer that our "silence" is "com-mendation." A great many things are said in THE INDEX that we totally dissent from; and it ought to be well understood by this time, as stated in our standing announcement, that "no writer in THE IN-DEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except his or her own individual statements."

As to the "Patriotic Sons of America," we know too little of them as yet either to recommend or denounce that organization; but we do seriously object to the "Know-Nothing" feature of it, as also to its secret sharacter. If it has any doctrinal test of membership, this is an insuperable objection; but we have no conclusive evidence that such is the case. Further information as to its real designs and operations will be very acceptable; and evidence favorable or unfavorable to the Order will be impartially published. There is no just ground of complaint against Dr. Whistler, who very kindly sent us for publication such facts as he could gather on the subject; for which he has our cordial thanks .- ED.]

CO-OPERATION VERSUS SPECULATION.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--Your New York correspondent, "C. M.," takes ex-ception to my friendly criticiam of his former article. He has entirely overlooked the fact that I candidly admitted there were palpable errors connected with all labor reform, and hence his allusion to "trades unions' brutal interference with the inherent rights of labor" was quite unnecessary, for there is nothing that I have said which implies I have any sympathy with such movements. So far from setting myself up as a teacher, I ex-pressed an earnest wish to be taught more on the sub-ject, and for this reason was sorry that "C. M.," in his first article, had failed to give me the light I sought.

For he has failed to make it clear to me that there is any such thing as "unfattered competition" under the present customs and systems which age has made respectable. I made no call upon Church or State for aid or in-terference. This would be antagonistic to the idea expressed, that labor must work out its own salvation through the gradual attainment of a knowledge of the true laws of Nature, to distinguish between them and their counterfeit, --trusting too that the influ-ences of a rational religion would soften the asperi-ties of capital through its effect upon individual character.

<text><text><text><text><text>

NEW OBLEANS, La.

Google

THE INDEX-OCTOBER 29, 1874.

Advertisements. THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the adverta-ing pages of THE INDEX in earlier barmouy with its general character and principles, and thes to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their mest generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver-tise before all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to asy one, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will be admitted. be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who will in all cases accept the responsibility for Leir own statements. ADVERTISING BATES. graphs, $1.50. For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line, 11 13 11 25 11 8 11 11 11 26 14 51 14 6 14 11 14 52 14 51 14 6 14 14 On half-column advertisements, a disconnt ef 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS & ABBOT, Editor. L TO ADVERTISERS. The following states the experience of a accessful Bookseller who has advertised in Buccessful Bookseller who has suverised in THE INDEX:-DIENO, Ohio, Sept. 29, 1872. TO ETHE INDEX Asso., Toledo, O.: "Gentlemen,-Having had occasion to advers-tion of the super during the past two years quite largely, I case pleasure in stain-' that I have always obtained very satisfactory re-turns-better in fact than from book adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ation of the super I have adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ation of the super I have adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ation of the super I have advertised in months after the inmedi-ation of the super I have advertised in the super I have adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ation of the super I have advertised in the super I Special arrangements will be made at reced terms for long-time or extended adduced terms to. Address THE INDEX, NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

The Index Association,

OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Ratio Religion

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public atterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious ns, and to apply it directly to the s d political amelioration of soci

It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, assisted by ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors:--

O. B. PROTHINGHAM, New York Oity. THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.

WILLIAM J. FOTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass.

EICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MES. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

BEV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, Engine PROF. FEANOIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng.

Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religiona Liber-alian. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing shurch-member, should subscribe for it, an the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly ex-position of the differences between Free Thought and Fremewinel Chief position of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or sading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a Journal sourced to Religion in the widest sense of the word abould be feit in America-that sense of the word should be felt in America—that such a journal should have been started and so powerfully supported by the best minds of your country,—is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religions or the-ological periodicals is, as you know, very large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Bend $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three 00 for one year, or 75 cents for three on trial.

THE INDEX

No. 1 Tremont Place. Bost

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1 07 LEADING INDEX WBITEBS. Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY. A. W. STEVENS, F. R. ABBOT. Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX. and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 22 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo-

Address, THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass. NDEX TRACTS.

Abbot, contains the "Fifty Allirmations" and "Modern Principles." ME. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read "TBUTHS FOR THE TIMES.' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Ed-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.—Christian Propagandiam, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-4*Ged in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-""The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Babbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8 .- The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests averybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.-The Christian Amendment, by F. R. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents,

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies

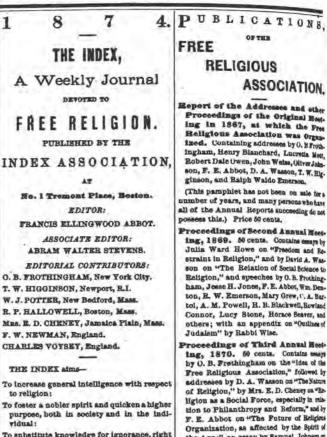

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.- Is Romaniam Real Christian-ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13 .- On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, stempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Beligion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Beligion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Bellgion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREBOXT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religin oner, to nesten the cay when size healt-ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesizaticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of the saveral States in order to be the of theseveral States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must The second states of the second state of the second state of the second states of the second Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular aditorial contributions will continue to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspondence, communications, extracts from valueble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous barticles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to as circumstances shall render possible. tim

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address

THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

retia Mott, Robert Dale Uwen, John Weiss, Oliver Joke-son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hy-ginson, and Balph Waldo Emerson. (This pamphiet has not been on mis for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Beports succeeding do not ton, B. W. Emerson, Mary Gres, C.A. Bar tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Bowind Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and

by O. B. Frethingham on the "ides of its Free Religious Association," followed by addressee by D. A. Wasson on "The Mane of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney os "E-ligion as a Social Force, sepscially in mis-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religion Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an easay by Samuel Johason on "The Narural Symmathy of Religions," folthe age;" an easy by Samier Jonasou "The Natural Sympathy of Belljons," fd-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permisen and Progressive Elements of Judsim," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohamediaism," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Bellgions of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligion China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligions of China, " and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligions of China," and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligions of China, " and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligions of China, " and Wm. J. Potler on "Ecligions of the State of t Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Caldrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. Scenario, (Four at more, Scenario, K., Chadwick on "Liberty and the Ghardh in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Bellgion is the Expression of a Permanent Sentimet of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frot-inghem an UTDE Painting of Unsupervised ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loss, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Heel-Proceedings of Sirth Annual sec-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents sach.) Contains seary by Same Johnson on "Freedom in Belgion," sah y John Weiss on "Eeligion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannet, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longie-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Longie-towath Merry cratia Mott.

cretia Mott. Proceedings of Sevenith Annai Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (For & more, 25 cents each.) Contains erbains reports of President Frothingham'saddress on "The Validity of the Free Beligious Pistform," of Dr. Bartol's easay on "The Beligious Signs of the Times," of Babbi Sonnesobelo's speech on "Reformed Jak-ism," and of the statements by Mear. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their spective attitudes towards Christian," and "Bro-tra-Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Bro-tra-Christian,"-together with the Beortatra-Ohristian, "-together with the Beerel ry's Annual Report, and letters from Ke ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Donglas, a D. A. Wasson

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Elf-

ginson. 20 cents. Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Chinning. 25 cenus Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas-Parton. 10 cants, singly; package of us, 60 cants; of one hundred, $5.

se publications are for sale at the office These publications are for rale at the office of the Free Bellgious Association, No. 1 Tre-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others pravious to that of 1871 is quite limited. Orders by ward may be ad-dressed either "Free Bellgious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. L. A.

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. L. A. Digitization & GOOgle

1.00

1.75

4.50

2	THE INDEX-00	CIO
POPULAR BOOKS,	Historical Pictures Betonched; a Volume of Miscellanics. In two parts. Part L.	• III. Fox
SENT BY MAIL	Historical Pictures Betonched; a Volume of Miscellanies. In two parts. Part I., "Studies. Pictures, and Pancies"	V. The Spence
AT	The Descent of Man, 7 vols	Cooke, VII, Th
PUBLISHEES' PRICES!	Provident Besearches	four S ing of of the
ANDER DRANDIN V BILLED	The Variation of Animals and Plants under Domestication, 2 vols, (linatrated 5.00	VIII. A Swimn tion on
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seeking Trath in the Sciences	IX. Res Henry JERBOLI
NO EITRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	DICKENS' Child's History of England 1.50 DUHRING (JULIA.) Philosophers and	Olaude's
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other	tion. 5 vola., each	India
OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt	Adam Bode.	JOSEPHU Josephu JOWETT of orders accompanied with the CASH.	The Mill on the Flows. Fellx Holt. Silas Marner and Scenes of Clerical Life.	ductions Balliol
Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.	Middlemarch, 2 vols	Tessor o
Price.	How Lias Loved the King	REBE (O) Patriotic
ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets	EMERSON'S (R. W.) Rerays. First Series. 2.00 Essays. Socond Series	Europe. History
ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two	Boglish Traits	tens to
rols	May-day and Other Pieces	LEGGE'S Confucto LESSING
Little Men	Conduct of Life	LEWES' F
Shawi-Sirapa Work; A Story of Experience	EVANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Unristianity. From the French of Athanase Coquersi the Youngers, the transformation of transformation of the transformation of transformation of transformation of transformation of transformation of transfo	Biograph its Ori
A'ENOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Oriti-	Tounger	Problem tions of ciam	Adolf Stahr. 2 vols	LEWES (6 LEWIN (E daism f o
Villa Edan; The Country-House on the	PARBAR'S Critical Elistory of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Religion 2.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Obristianity. "George Eliot's" translation, 1.00	LONGFEL
Ehine	Ohristianity. "George Eliot's" translation. 2.00 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers 2.00	2 vols Prose Wo LOWELL
BAGEHOT on the English Constitution 2.25 Physics and Politics	FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Religion of Hu- manity	The Bigh
a case of a state a structure. Structure Dedecation A	Child's Book of Religion	Among I My Stud LOWELL
Compendium of Perchology and History of Philosophy. Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics. 170 The Sousses and the Intellect. Third edi-	FULLEB'S (MABGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 8 vols	LUBBOCE tion, and Pre-bisto
tion. 1 vol	GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conso-	LYELL'S I
BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations 3.00	QUODCES	MACDON. Daughter
BARTOL (Rav. C. A). Radical Problems 2.00 The Bising Faith	GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affinitios	MANN (H Mann. H Lectures
BASTIAN (H. OHABLTON). The Begin- nings of Life. 2 vols	Carlyle. Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols	Annual F 1848
BIBLE in the Public Schools. Records, Arguments, and Decision in the case of John D. Minor et si. w. the Board of Education of the city of Cincinnal et si. in the Supreme Court of the City of an	GREG'S (W. E.) Enigmas of Life	Horace et al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnati	GROTPHITTER Compiled from Family Dea	MARTINE ical and ' The New Chacing and the state of the st	uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por- trait	MAURICE Object of
	HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp.	MERIVAL the Bomi Conversion
BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls	Book III. In France. 140 Thoughts about Art. 6.60 The Unknown River. 6.60 The inkinetual Life. 7.60 Chapters on Animals. 4.60	MILL (JOI Discussio The Stat
Layman's Brevlary	The intellectual Life	The Eran William The Positi Folitical
BUECHNER'S Force and Matter 3.25	Child World. Part First 1.50	The Subj Essay on
BUCKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the scattre work, with a complete index. 2 vols 5.00	HAMILTON'8 Loctures. 1. Metaphysical Lectures	Represen Autoblog Memoria work, with a complete index. 2 vol s.w CARLVLE'S Works, Chespedition, Compris-	HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Illustrated Library Edition. Nine vols.	MILLER (
wols.; Fronch Revolution, I vols.; Freder- ick the Great, 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters,	Per vol. 2.00 Twice-Told Tales. Mosses from an Old Manse. The Scarlet Letter, and The Bithedale	MIVART Species
Stering, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; Past and Present, 1 vol.; Heroes and Hero Wor-	Bomance.	MORLEY ( Roussess
CARLYLE'S Works, Chesp edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscollaneous Essays, T yols, Fronch Revolution, I vols, Freder- tek the Great, 10 vols, Crouwell's Letters, dc., 5 vols; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol; John Stering, 1 vol; Life of Schiller, 1 vol; John Stering, 1 vol; Life of Schiller, 1 vol; John and Present, 1 vol; Herces and Herc Wor- ship, 1 vol; Latter Day Pamphiets, 1 vol. Any volumes sold segarately. 31 vols. Lon- don, 1871-3. Por vol	The Marbie Paun. The Marbie Paun. The Singlish Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The American Note-Books. 'A the American Note-Books.	MOULTON Time Sto
OARPENTER (DR. W. B.) The Principles of Manual Physiology, with their Applica- tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi- tory. 200	The American Note-Books. / The French and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimina Felton.	MUELLER Science o The Same
WORD	HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Romance	Chips fro Enanys II. Ess and Cu
IERVANTES' Don Quixote 1.50 HANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per-	Oldport Days 2.30	Three v
HANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per- fect Life. In Twolve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Henry Channing	BOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed- ding Journey	Lectures NASBY (P) the Cirkle
HANNING (WML ELLERY). Thorean: The Post Naturalist, With Mamorial Verse. 2.09	Venstian Life	Ekkoes II
HENEY (Mns. E. D). Patience. A Series of Thirty Games for the Fireside. Bocksi Games. A new Berles of Games for Parties, uniform with Patience. 1.08 Saily Williams, the Monntain GHI. Hus- 1.50	HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'Ninety-Three"., 1.75	Hebrow B Phases of History The Soul, Catholic I
Parties, uniform with Patience	HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits. 10.50
LARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Beligions 2.00 Common-Sense in Roligion	HUME'S (DAVID) Essays and Life 1.75 HUNT'S (Mus. HELEN). Verses 1.25 Bits of Traysl 1.56	Philanti Theism, I The Relig Against F
Common-Sense in Religion 2.00 LAREE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education 1.35	HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	Against B PARKER Matters P
LODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World	A Manual of the Anatomy of Vertebrated	Speeches.
OBBE (FRANCES POWEB). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. 3.00 Darwinism in Morals, and other Essays 5.00	Animals	Additions sionsl S Oritical at
The Religions Demands of ros with	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	Historic ton, Adu troducti
URRELATION and Conservation of Forces:	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel- ligs Studies for Stories	demean against
A Series of Expositions by Grove, Heim- bolts, Mayer, Faraday, Liebig and Carpen-	Stories told to a Child. First and Second 1.25	The two

A Bister's Bys-Hours 123 Mopas the Fairy: A Bory. 123 Mopas the Fairy: A Bory. 124 Foro Matrix 107, The Glouded Intellect. 126 INGERSOLI'S (BOST, G.) The Gods and Other Lectures. 2.00 PHELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Lectures. 2.00

Lectures. INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES, No. I. Portna of Water, in Clouds, Ealin, Rivers, Ico, and Gladests. By John Tyu-dall. The Application of the Principles of "Natural Selection," and "Interitance" to Political Society. By Waitar Bagehot, 1.50 is, By Dr. Edward Smith..... 1.75 1 and Body. The Theories of lations. By Alex, Balancias 1.60 Stady of Sociology. By Herbert 1.60 New Chamistry. By Josiah F. 200 New Chamistry. By Josiah F. 200 or Conservation of Energy. By Bal-lewart, with an Appendix, trant-be Vital and Mental Applications Doctrine 2.00

(DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Breakfast Talk, and other Papers, 1.50

'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, Relation to Universal Religion.

RPHEUS O). Versatilities, Poems, , Sentimental and Humprous..... 1.00

. E. H.) History of the Bise and of the Spirit of Rationalism in Charlemagna, 2 vols..... 6.00

8 (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans-

H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.50

EV. BAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-LOW'S (H. W.) Foems. Portrait, 4.00 orks. Portrait. 4.00

(Mas. A. C.) Posies for Children. .76

(SIR JOHN). Origin of Civilian the Primitive Condition of Mau. au., 2.00

LD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's 1.50

(REV. F. D.) The Ground and Hope for Mankind .75

E'S (OHARLES) Conversion of n Empire. 1.50 m of the Northern Nations...... 1.50

HI STUART) Dissertations and Juns 4 vola, cash. mination of the Philosophy of Sir a Hamilton. 2 vola, cash. dve Philosophy of Auguste Comie. 123 dve Philosophy of Auguste Comie. 123 dve Philosophy of Auguste Comie. 123 Hamilton. 1 vola.

ection of Women. 1.2 berry 1.2 Laberty 1.2 Laberty 1.2 Later Government. 1.2 Volume. His Life and Works. 1.0 (DADITY 1.2 Later Science 1.2 Volume. 1.2 Log 1.2

ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of 1.75

PROF. JOHN.) Voltaire...... 2.00

(LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed-ies...... 1.50

rice. 1.50 (MAX, M.A.) Loctures on the f Language. First Sories. 2.50 6. Second Sories. 2.50 in a German Workshop. Vol. 1. 200 and Sories. 2.50 Sories on Mythology. Traditions. Sorma. Vol. III. Essays on Lit. Biography and Antiguities. On the Science of Religion. 2.60

ETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round om Kentucky...... 1.50 FRANCIS W.) A History of the 4.50 onarchy. Faith; or, Passages from the of my Greed. 16 Sorrows and its Aspirations... Inion: Easays towards a Courch Future, as the Organization of 3.00

1.78 ropy octimal and Practical ious Weakness of Protestantism. ero-Making in Beligion......

THEODORE.) A Discourse of arialning to Boligion. Addresses, and Occasional Ber-typis...... 1.50 4.50

A.D. L.

HELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Gates Ajar. 140 The Troty Book. 149 Men, Women, and Ghosts. 150 Hedged in Arthor. 150 The Blant Partner. 150 What to Weart. 150

SMILES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help ..... 1.50 SPINOZA (BENEDIOT DE.) Tractatus The-

PROCTOE (BIGHAED A.) Other Worlds than Ours: the Flurality of Worlds stud-led under the Light of Recent Scientific Excentrhes. Will Colored Plates... Light Science for Leisare Bours. A Baries of Familiar Excert on Scientific Bubjects. Natural Phenomena... Natural Phenomena... Natural Phenomena... Natural Phenomena... Natural Phenomena... Natural Phenomena... The Moon. her Model No Columnia... and Physical Conditionappets. Scenery. and Physical Conditionappets... etc.... The Expanse of Heaven... ROBSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.

Now Life of Jeaus. Anthorized transis-tion. 2 vols.

TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Litera-ture. 2 vols The Class Room Taine. History of English Literature, Abridged and Edited by John Fuke. 2.89 TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Posms ...... 1.75

THACKERAT'S (W. M.) Novels. Honsehold Zaitkon. Campleis in é volumes. Per vol.. Lis Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Pendennis.

The Virginians. Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellancous Writings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-plete ha Yorls. With new Portrait. Per vol. 125 plete in 5 vols. With new Portrait. Per vol. 1.25 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the norwall, new additions, thus complete Theckaray in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Shote, Scherha Stelch Books, &c. 4. Robe, Scherha Stelch Books, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humorita, &c. 6. Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre-plated Pieces.

THAXTEB'S (MES. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals.....

TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-Frag ments of Science for Unscientific Peo-Pregments of Science for Unscientific Peo-iple 100

 Light and Electricity
 124

 Hours of Exercise in the Alpa
 2.00

 Reat as a Mode of Motion
 2.00

 Reathant Heat
 2.00

 Prone of Water
 1.00

 Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Pictures
 1.00

 YTYLERS (SARAL) Old Masters and their Pictures
 1.50

 Modern Painters and their Paintings
 1.50

 Modern Painters and their Paintings
 1.50

OYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vols. L and V., each Vols III. IV. and YL, each The Vorsey Appeal Voysey's Defence at York......

WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden 100 Sannterings 140 Back-Log Studies 2.00

Washington and the Revolution WEITVEFY (Mass. A. D. T.) A Summer in Loslie Goldthwaize's Life. We Orlie: A Home Story Heal Folks The Other Stris The Other Stris Panales. A volume of Poems. 1.50

ADDR.MAD INDEX. HE

1 Trament Pince, Boston

T

ALL (Mas. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Dissonship.

of taxation.

THE BOUND INDEX FOR 1873. The bound volume of THE INDEX for 1873 (Volume 4) will be promptly forwarded to any address on receipt of 33, by express, at the purchaser's expense. A complete file for the year can be furthalbed in so other form. Address THE INDEX, I Tremont Flace, Boston.

THE INDEX

IN ENGLAND.

THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post to any part of the United Eingdom on re-ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings.

THE INDEX. Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.

TO BOOK-BUYERS. Please examine the revised list of POPU-LAR BOOKS on the opposite side of this page. Any OBTAINABLE BOOK NOT IN FRIS LIST will be furnished to order.

TRIBLIST will be furnished to order. Readers of THE LINDEX who desire to pur-shase English, German, or French Books, or who wish for information as to the price, &c., of any American or Foreign Book, can have their orders promptly filled and their inqui-flos answered by addressing

THE INDEX. I Tremont Place, Boste

FBE E HE T

SUNDAY ADVOCATE,

A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE-VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the runding of cheap Sunday Ex-cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun-day Evenings for the People," and generally to promote everything conducive to rational recreasion on Sunday. The Free Sunday idvocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an Monorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Martk London, Francis W. Souther, London; Martk London; Francis W. Souther, London; Martk London; Francis W. Souther, London; Martk London; Barshall. London; Fred'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Martk London; Barshall. Souscentricox for delivery by port to any part of the United States is one uolis (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 206 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

200 High Holborn, London, W.C., England. CHARLES SUMNER'S

GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES

CONCERNING AMERICA.

By CHARLES SUMMER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its literary and historical mer-ts, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which Mr. Sumner was engaged before his death. "PROPRETIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the history of our country, so full is it of pass aich the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament-ed author has also given interesting sketches.

Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price.

Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE."

By Andrew Jackson Davis.

Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugai Love is straightforward, unmitatakally complatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davia has recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dia-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume a the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and men.

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their fusines, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Bummer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duites of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents an attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.—Golden Age. Frice, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-bome cloth, 75 cents; in full will and extra blading, $1. Postage free. The trade sup-plied on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing Honse" of A. J. DAVIS& CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, Mew York City

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE. T more pupils, girls or boys, over thirteen, will be received into the family of the subscrib-er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, BHERBORN, MASS. Our organization some time since decide rect its efforts for the present towards a the CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT .-

At home, mais or female, 50 a week war-ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp. C. BOSS. Williamsburg, N. Y.

FREE DISCUSSION

Is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 563 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Bunday, at 10% A.M., 3% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Religious, Political, and Social interests of manicind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale overy Sunday at Hospitaller Hall.

A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen-ator, tae copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at Thin INDEX office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-fifty cents.

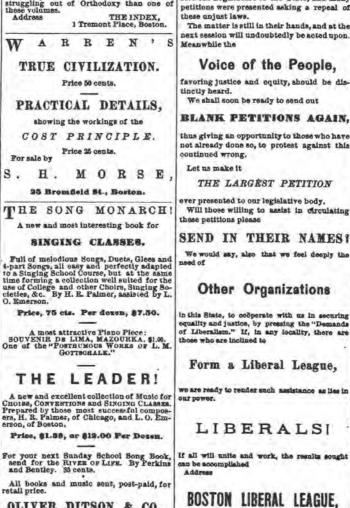

Address			1 Tremont Place, Bosto					EX,	n.
T	0	N	E	W	8	P	A	P	E	R
1	PU	в	L	IS	1	II.	EI	R	S .

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, 1 should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

T Pennotar Face, Boscon. T O P U B L I S H E R S. A PRINTER of Liberal view desires a sit-nation on sweekly paper. Can set sit: thou-sand ems a day, work hand-press, make up forms, etc. Has done some jub work, and can do what is necessary in a country print-ing-office. Has bad some editorial experi-ence, and considers himself compretent to take charge of a country weekly. Is sober and industrious. Wages wanted, at least fill per week. Address WilL KENNEDY, Box 1037, ST PAUL, MINN.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2. 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important cesays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Pince, Boston.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

BOSTON. CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,

THI BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drag, and Hand-grinding MILLS. Te Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Mastrat. ed pamphets free. Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER. 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. CHEAP OFFERI A A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to suy address on the propayment of regra Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mage THE AMERICAN EDITION MONCURE D. CONWAYS SACRED ANTHOLOGY, A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sent postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address . . THE INDEL. 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass.

cided to di-

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is unjustly "rempted from its share of the burden

As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a a Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. bbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. 27. We have already issued three editions, the

TBACT

Another Large Edition

of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

and generously to supply the calls for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, although we come forward and help us with liberal donations? We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how much they abail pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.00 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 20 cents per hundred, to all who will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-ating them gratuitously throughout the contry-last winter this subject was brought be-fore the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of

All Friends of the Movement

Voice of the People,

Other Organizations

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Par order of the EXBOUTIVE COMMITTEE

e, to cooperate with us in securing d justice, by pressing the "Demands forward and help us with liberal donations have made arrangements for printing the at very low cost, it is impossible for the B with its various other expe

alon

last of which is nearly exhausted.

We desire soon to L

League, with its va the entire expense Will not, then, 1

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.

BANKEBS.

LEBOY, MINN.

Branch Office, 187 Broadway, S. T.

Branch Office, 127 Breadway, R.T. Money Invosted in First Morrages on Im-proved Farms in Minnesota and Iowa, ran-ning three to five years, with Coupon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent, and annually in ad-vance, or ten per cent, paid sent-annually, free of expense to the Loaner. (E) 10 per cent, paid on receipt of money at the Bank, or in New York, til invessed. For Full Fartheniar, send for Circular.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per ce

Investments in Real Estate in Chinge and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

OF ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STRATT

Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect file and ample scutty in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on had, in-terest and principal collected without charge Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real state ora-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full she, It is smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as he naft for use. The ladies will always find the Sa reka Silk exactly as represented. Ever spool is warranted, and the manufacture anted. Every name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

RADICAL AND LITERARY LECTURES

BT WEISS, JOHN

RADICAL LECTURES.

The Idea of Hereafter. An Act of Faith, Intelligence in Religion. Religion and Science. Heart in Religion.

SHAKSPEARIAN LECTURS. FIRST SERIES.

- 1. Cause of Laughter.
- S. Irony and Hu 8. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touch
- 4. Ajax in Trollus and Cressida: The Fot-ter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear.
- 5. Falstaff.
  - 6. Hamlet. SECOND SERIES.
  - 1. The Women of Shakspeare,
  - 2. Portis
  - 3. Ophelis.
  - 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth. --
  - 6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Charact JOHN WEIRS Address Si E. Brookline St., Bo

inemate Google

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Index.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 254.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that oburches and other ecclesisation property shall no longer be axempt from just taration. 2. We demand that the supplement of chapians in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militis, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public movey, shall be discontinued.

produc mosey, main be uscontinued. 5. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease. 4. We demand that all religions services now anstained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schoole, whether ostenal-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religions wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

ship, shall be producted. 5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholy cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and and all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alties of perjury shall be established in its staad.

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be rea the observation of the state of the backward of the pealed.

We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requiremente of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or advantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other special religion; that our entire political system shall be founded and administrated on a purely sectiar basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas is a set of the second conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civil-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-tringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-silves together under the following ANTIOLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

ART. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects hall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, dicressee, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-ral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, ud right.

and right. Ant. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a wo-thirds rote of the members. Ant. 6.—Any person may become a member of the League y subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-iont.

ient. Arr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-ree Committee of three members; and their duties shall be hose commonly pertaining to these offices. The President of Secretary shall be so-office delegates to the National onvention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Asr. 7.-These Articles of Agreement may be amended y a three-fourths wote of the members present at any reg-lar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ionis shall have been sent to every member at least two weaks previous to such meeting.

LELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AN A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ARTIOLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-blishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of ligion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridg-ge be freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to peillon the Gov-ment for a redress of grievances. BECTION 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form or ridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the guid the freedom of speech or of the press, or the guid operation of a redress of grievances. No religions to the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religions to the redress of any public trust, in any Stake; a no person shall ever in any Stake be deprived of any he or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified to the subject of religion. BECTION 2.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-riduits, in consequence of any public or private duty, or red-ret incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or public, in consequence of any public or private duty, or red-ret incompetent to give stidence in any court of law or public, in consequence of any public or private duty, or red-ret incompetent to give stidence in any court of law or public, in consequence of any public or private duty, or red-ret incompetent to give stidence in any court of public be second section of this article by appropri-aloguialton.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. GLIMPSES.

YOUNG AMERICA is distanced by Young Christianity, for one is taxed while the other is exempt.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S letter to the Cincinnati Gazette is frank, honest, and very creditable to him. THE QUESTION of tax-exemption is to come up in some practical shape in the next Assembly at Albany. THE "King of the Cannibal Islands" will have to lunch without cold missionary. Fiji is annexed to London. "Do ANGELS fly like birds?" That is what a couple of unfiedged scraphs fought about in Detroit; but they didn't find out.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHEISTIAN ASSOCIATION of New York City receive over $60,000 rent from the stores in their building; and it is untaxed.

THE AMOUNT of exempted private property in New York equals nearly one eighth of the entire assessed valuation of real estate in that city for the present year.

THE TOTAL AMOUNT of untaxed property in New York City, is about $150,000,000, one third of which is church property and another third belongs to various public institutions.

THE "Moral Education Association" will hold a meeting at No. 8 Tremont Place, on Friday, Nov. 6, at 3 P. M. Subject of discussion: "Purity." All interested are invited to attend.

CANADIAN PROTESTANTS are in favor of church taxation because the Catholics have so much more church property than themselves; which is a wretched reason for a just measure.

EMPEBOR WILLIAM'S speech at the opening session of the Reichstag shows that Gesmany has achieved union without liberty. Both are indispensable; who can be satisfied with either alone?

"THE GOSPEL going up, and pork going down !" groaned a Chicago pork-packer lately, when they raised his pew-rent to $25. Not asgacious : there will be no pew-rent at all, when the gospel has "gone np."

THE "Paine Memorial Building and Home of the Boston Investigator" will probably be dedicated on January 29, Palne's birthday. It is to be a fine Hall, and we congratulate the builders on the success of their plan.

CHARLES BRADLAUGH lectured in Boston, on October 29, on Oliver Cromwell and George Washington; placing the latter far above the former because he reluctantly accepted, for his country's good, the power which the other seized eagerly for his own.

SUPERSTITION is as tenacious of life as truth. A Mrs. Melligan accidentally hung a young friend in New York, while measuring her with a clothes-line to tell her fortune! Such occurrences rather weaken the argument for Christianity which infers its truth from its longevity.

THE INCREASE of boldness with which the secular press deals with mose-grown dogmas is one of the most obvious signs of the times. The New York Sun, for instance, adds its mite to the vast pile of refutations under which you must hunt for the doctrine that rain comes in answer to prayer.

HARMONY between man and his surroundings is a great essential of happiness. When the free-thinker is obliged to dwell in a superstitious community (as who is not?), the consciousness of this religious inharmony is one of his chief burdens; and it would be almost unendurable to a sensitive spirit, were it not for the knowledge that he enjoys a higher harmony with universal truth than is possible to his condemners.

REV. DR. BEERS declared at the Episcopal Convention that "Professor Tyndall had, with verbal felicity which tingled in the ears'like music, led many Christians to doubt whether the human race was an oyster-bed or a monkey-show; and we answer the argument by wrangling over a little matter like a ceremonial!" The Christians' doubt might be solved by inducing the monkey-show to eat the oyster-bed; in which case the human race would be both, and put an end to the controversy.

IN AN ADDRESS to the voters of Northampton just before the Parliamentary election, Mr. Bradlaugh is reported in the National Reformer to have made this confession: "Two ambitions he had had for long, and had still-one in life, to climb upwards, one to fight his way forward, one to win the foremost place in his country; and the other after life, that, when he was dead, and the green sward covered him, men and women might point out his grave to their children as the tomb of a man who served well the people who trusted him."

PROFESSOR TYNDALL'S Address has received a first-class advertisement. "Cardinal Cullen and the entire Catholic episcopate," says a despatch from Dublin of October 30, "have issued pastoral letters denouncing the late Address of Professor Tyndall at Belfast before the British Association, as a revival of paganism." To our surprise, we find ourself in favor of a "revival"! What a demented lot these old ladies must be not to know that, the more they butt against the Address, the worse they will "musa" their ecclesiastical bonnets! It is to be presumed their brains are useless except as battering-rams.

THE LONDON Saturday Review said, a year and a half ago: "American institutions admit of no protective mechanism except that of perfect political equality and universal suffrage." Add to this that political and civil rights necessitate each other, and that universal suffrage necessitates universal (or compulsory) education, and you have the whole political philosophy of the Great Republic in a nutshell. Amidst the perils and confusions of the hour. let the calm voice of the American Idea be heard and heeded. The only path of safety is that which leads to the absolute and unanimous recognition of these vital principles.

As a REASON for believing that "lack of searching the Scriptures is our weakness," Rev. Mr. Bridgman, of Northampton, told the late convention of the Massachusetts Young Men's Christian Associations that "the daily papers of the age and the too numerously attractive magazines were crushing out the spiritual life of the people. They would be informed of the news day by day and month after month by the fresh periodical which engaged all their reading time. If they were not soon made subordinate to the study of the Scriptures, the cause would suffer." So Orthodoxy has declared war against literature, as Mrs. Partington did against the Atlantic Ocean. We tremble for literature!

PRESIDENT GRANT has officially appointed November 26 as a day of National Thanksgiving, and officially recommended "all citizens" to go to church and praise God on that day. We enter a serious protest against such official action, as a violation of official duty. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion," says the Constitution; and in the matter of National Fasts President Jafferson had sufficient respect for the Constitution's spirit and intent to refuse to exercise a religious authority which it confers on no man. President Grant's action is a grave public offence. If gratitude to God is a duty of "all citizens," it is a private duty alone, incumbent only on those who recognize it as such; and it is a usurpation of theocratic functions for any President to interfere in any way with the private religious duties of the people. President Grant has given just offence to all citizens who conscientiously believe that Church and State ought to be kept totally separate,

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries.
BOETON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
Boeretary.
Barrensor, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Boeretary.
Barrensor, Cat.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Becretary. Secretary. Tolspo, Iowa.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. Vigenand' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Secretary. JUNGTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary, OLATHE, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, OLITH, Secretary, Degraary, MIOH.-W. E. Hill, President; A. T. Gallon, Secretary, Rinowics, Secretary, Official, Secretary, Official, Mo.-E. F. Thompson, President; M. Boderick, Secretary, Secretary, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Ehodes, Secretary, N. M. M. P. G. Barker, T. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Secretary. B. Barker, President; C. Ehodes, Secretary. Barn, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Ehodes, Secretary. BERLIN, Wis.-President, J. D. Waiters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Bridgman. WARENFORD, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Orawford, Secretary. AUBURN, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Tress-neer.

nrer. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary.

Secretary. Br. Joszpu, Mo.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy,

Secretary, WB.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy, BALERG, MD.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New ORLEARS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace. BAW CITY, MIGE.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson

Johnson, CLEARFIELD, PL.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. Secretary, SAUE CITY, WIS.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Becretary. Argusza, Wis. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vanz, Secretary.

Spiritual Force and its Supply.

A DISCOURSE IN LYRIG MALL, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 20, 1874.

BY O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

<text><text><text> The subject of this address is Spiritual Force and

But now suppose this theological foundation, on which the belief in God's helpfulness rested, to be knocked away; suppose, that is, that the preacher's conception of God as an individual, local being, a Christ on a celestial throne, taking an interest in the personal affairs of his church, hearing and answering personal affairs of his church, hearing and answering prayer, alding private weakness and pardoning pri-vate sin, were disavowed, as it is by thousands to-day; what have we left but despair for the higher ed-ucation and the nobler progress of mankind? What have we left but a confession that the auimal forces of passion and self-seeking must henceforth have it all their own way in the formation of character and the development of social life? The issue to be taken with the Evangelical preacher is on his first proposition—the avirtual helplessness

The issue to be taken with the Evangelical preacher is on his first proposition—the splritual helplessness of man. To me, at least, it occurs that, if history teaches anything with unquestionable clearness, it teaches the spiritual capability of man. Unless hu-man unture, in all past ages, has made a strangely false confession, it has proved that its spiritual capa-city is distinguished above every other. Its greatest achievements have only illustrated this. The record may prove, I believe it does, that such capacity has needed intelligence and discipline; but this very cir-cumstance is convincing evidence that it was there. There must be wild horses before there can be useful ones.

comstance is convincing evidence that it was there.
There must be wild horses before there can be useful ones.
Man's spiritual helplessness a thing to be taken for granted, as a primal fact in society 1 One might much more reasonably take for granted his material helplessness, his inability to make good his claim to health and wealth. The facts in the case lie, broad and massive, on the surface of the ground. They need but to be alluded to here.
I. It is worth noting, generally, and in the first place, how man, by virtue of some quality of his mind, has put interpretations upon material things, has associated them with thought and sentiment in a way to transfigure the outward universe, and make it, as it were, a symbol of invisible intelligence. The mountain was the emblem of majesty, the ocean of eternity, the river of bounty, the fountain of charity, the sumathe and the rain of broad and everiasting benignity, the dew of blessing. The sky was type of the all-covering heavens of love; the wind suggested the holits breath which was called spirit; in the thrysalis was caught a hint of immortality; in the thrysalis was caught a hint of insects, told of other unchangeable habits that these only in their factie, the healts of birds, trees, reptiles, insects, told of other unchangeable habits that these only in their these only in their dumb way copied. This, of course, is nothing more than fancy, imagination, sentiment; but these are facts in the huma constitution; mighty fact, alled to powers that have played a large part in the achievements of the race. They are the radiments, we will say, of those spiritual forces before which men have tembled.
2. Do we seek a clearer sign of the validity of spiritual force? See what it has done in the form of by other that the payed payed have the proliments, we will say, of those spiritual forces before which men have trembled.

2. Do we seek a clearer sign of the validity of spiritual force? See what it has done in the form of architecture. The great buildings of the world, the costliest, the largest, the most majestic, the most beautiful, as creations of skill the most wonderful, as monuments of art the most splendid and enduring, are the temples of religion, the houses of the spirit. The Old World, as we call it, owes to them a large part of its present interest and fame. England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Indis, China, the lands where the greatest races have flourished, the lands where the greatest of grandeur and maryles of lovellness, or as stupendous mysteries of rule, these triumphs of creative genius. In erecting their time, kings gave their labor, generations gave their labor, generations gave their these throught; the earth gave the gleam of its may and love. Admit that ignoblest molives played their and gold, the lustre of its genes; and all was done under the working of the invisible hands of faith and love. Admit that ignoblest molives played their abject fears, the most sordid interests, had their share in the work, still the activity of these must be accounted or; and their presence, yet more their submission, attests the controlling influence of thesentiments of a significant an element in the human constitution. The king's places sink into insignificance by the side of these amazing structures; citles have disappeared, and hey remements of their adoration along bear withes their submission, at existence. How can one, remembering the rock temples of Hindostan, the gigantic indicates by the side of the sentent in the set of their adoration alone bear withes their paties of their doration alone bear withes to their spiritual inbecility of man? For in beas transformers of the indicatan, the gigantic indicates of their doration alone bear witheses their spiritual inbecility of man of man's spiritual potency is uppermost and su-preme. 3. Turn to literature. The literature of the race is thus far its greatest achievement. And of all litera-tures existing among men, the spiritual literatures are the grandest,—the richest books, those that at-test the highest intellectual power, the strongest thought, the clearest perception, the deepest insight, the firmest judgment, the widest observation, the warmest enthusiasm, the most far-reaching anticipa-tion, the most indomitable faith in man and his des-tiny, are the bibles. They are monumental, eternal books; by every nation treasured as its most pre-cious inheritance. The scientific mind has produced great works, the philosophical mind has filled libraries with its speculative thought. But, in both quantity and quality of productiveness, the spiritual mind outdoes them all. What beliefs have symmetries are ever so condensed and compacted as to become "creeds" professed by nations and subting races? What ideas have ever so made them selves the animaling spirit of epochs? Theology that intellectual and ilterary fact which so many cling to, and so many assail, revere it or despise it homor it or hate it, as we will, is a fact of the spiritual order, and stands as a permanent witness of the action of powers that are neither to be discretized and compared as the set of the spiritual order, and stands as a permanent witness of the action of powers that are neither to be discretized nor condemned.

4. But there is another test that to some will be allusion at least must be made. I mean the least character. Character is disciplined there all the granted forman Novalia. Might it not be better aid dia ganized fidelity? Character is the present image achievement, greater than creeds, they instead that ganized fidelity? Character is the present image achievement, greater than creeds, they instead that a novel, each of the second of the present of the second of the present of the second of the present of the second of the sec

nerenny GOOgle

530

THER 1

They who are powerless and hopeless alone are strong and sanguine in company with others who make demands on them, either from above or from beneath. Of ourselves we can, indeed, do nothing. Our sufficiency is of humanity. But that is imparted wherever humanity is vitally touched.

wherever humanity is vitally touched. One starts forth alone on a long walk, in nimble spirits, with springy foot. For a space the air, the scene, the motion, are exhilarating; but before long the way becomes wearisome; he feels the heat; the dusty road is hard to travel; the scene ceases to in-the wayide and rest. A companion comes by; he takes the road again with increased courage; the weakness and fatigue disappear; the indecape puts on fresh attractions; the scene is reinvested with in-terest. He forgets that he is footsore; he no longer measures the miles. The wayside chat and sympa-thy make a tiresome tramp pleasant. So simple a sharing of the journey will reinforce vigor and make one twice the man he had been.

sharing of the journey will reinforce vigor and make one whee the man he had been. Let the companion be one greatly superior to him-self, whose lively talk fills his mind with entertain-ment, the effect is indefinitely increased. Let the companion be one greatly inferior to himself—a little child, for instance, who depends on him for guidance, support, protection, whom he must bring safely to his mother—the exclication of energy is strangely in-creased. The power of thoughtful consideration, of carefulness, of tender solicitude, of gentle attention, of sweet, loving speech and deed rises to a degree that could scarcely be believed. The selfash man for-sets himself, the timid man is bold, the tired man is proved, the crabbed man is gracious. The little child is the medium through which human need ap-peals to him, human responsibility lays its claim upon him, human helplessness touches him. In father and mother come to his aid. Goethe said there are three worships—worship of that which is above us; worship of that which is on a level with have supposed—in the case of a mother with her sick or unfortunate child, of a good man with a broken, disconsolate follow,—the truth of the illustrious German's asying is seen. Giving or receiving, it is estimated power to its highest level. Two years ago a young man, often seen in our Sun-day assembly, deliberately gave his life rather than the sincere contact with human king that raises spiritual power to its highest level. Two years age a young man, often seen in our San-day assembly, deliberately gave his life rather than forsake a lad who had been committed to him. It was by the sea-side. A mother had entrusted her only boy to him, in the water, for he was a strong swimmer. Insensibly the undertow carried them away beyond the line of safety; the two became sep-arated. The lad slipped from his companion's arm beyond power of recovery. The stout swimmer could easily have saved himself by striking for the shore. On the sands watching him were his young wife and his lovely children, towards whom his whole heart yearned. But on the sands was also the mother of the lad be had taken with him and lost. He had never pasced for shero. An elegant, grace-ful, accompliabed fellow, generous and courteous, with dashes of chivalry in him,—all this he was known to be: but few, if any, suspected the grandeur of soul there was also. But in that supreme moment he rose to the point of saintliness. As, in an instant, she situation broke spon him, the angel of sacrifice lifted him beyond himself. Everything faded into shadow before the law of obligation to which he feit he had not been true. What would existence be after such a failure? To face the bereaved mother would have been as easy as to face the mother of his own children, into whose pure eyes he could not have gazed without self-reproach. So, with a look of agony he went down—overwhelmed, not by the ocean, but by the sense of obligation to the unseen humanity, in the embrace of which alone he was able to live.

agony be went down-overwhelmed, not by the barsen but by the sense of obligation to the unseen bunnanity, in the embrace of which alone he was able to live. In the longer and more perilous journey of life, let any one consider the need and the power of human any the barsen barsen by the sense of a substantiation of the sense of the strongest, to face life's life's calamities alone. Powerless is any one, even the strongest, to face life's is or stand up under life's calamities alone. Powerless that any one protection, temptation, will be wilder the clearest private judgment and prostrate the firmest individual will. The greatest that have lived have been forced to brace themselves against the support of their fellow-men, the present or the remembersed, and fraw from communion with them new supplies of power. If they fly to the arms of an infinite being the infinite being bears to them the form of a man. If they fly to the Mother of God, the Mother of God in wood, in the likeness of a sweet woman with a child in her arms, and euch a look of compassion on ment of deepest pity. In trial, trouble, danger, the scholt of deepest pital in this power. To the Romanist the price remembersed, unpre-face as human countenances wear in their moments of deepest pital in the sint and protecting and. By prayer, confession, contrition, humiliation, acts of pitey toward heaven, men have merely tried to put hemselves in immediate concourse with human qualities raised to an infinite power. To the Romanist the pitest represents the pure, unadulterated, unpre-judiced human nature freed from the limitation is for oracians or condition. The confessional stands for conscideration in the world, with no acquaintance in the shore of a section of the shore of a section of the shore the set of the skind. The power is multitude of his fellow-worshippers; but he is sensible of their fellow has a look of life set and princesses, gentles and ladles of loify degrees; in the inflict power with a define the life set of the shore of power that set th on the stained windows were floating ministers of mercy. Jesus said, "Where two or three are gathered to-gether in my name, there am I in the midst of them." And so it was. The glowing, adoring thought of the friend they had known and honored brought to them the inspiration of his character, and poured a fresh tide of enthusiasm into their fainting hearts. There was no mystery about it. The arplanation is quite simple, as simple as the filling of a basin when con-nection is established with the river. Two or three have more humanity than one. Collective life is more abounding than individual life. And when the collective life is rich and various, as it easily may be made by thought, if not by personal communication, the enhancement and exaltation of power cannot be measured. The mental and moral expansion is im-mense. manaa

We saw how this was in the period of moral strug We saw how this was in the period of moral strug-gle that preceded our civil war. In the course of that struggle axamples were frequent of the exhibi-tion, on the part of ordinary people, of the highest qualities of patience, fortitude, devotion, self-forget-fulness, truth. Slow-tongued people astonished us by their eloquence; wilful people amazed us by their submission; ambitious people surprised us by their consecration. consecration.

similation; ambitious people surprised us by their consecration. The civil war illustrated this on a stupendous scale. Half the courage, the chivalry, the heroic self-sur-render of those years has never been recorded, and will never be divulged. And these qualities were shown by men and women from whom nothing of the heroic of those years has never been recorded, and of luxury and fashion, easy, agreeable people, whose life was one of innocent gayety—many of them people of luxury and fashion, easy, agreeable people, whose life was one of innocent gayety—many of them people of losse and idle life, hangers-on of large cities, the parasites of civilization—many of them advent-urers on the look-out for excitement and ready for the first that offered. Yet among these were many who rose to the highest level of human qualities, bore weariness, endured hunger and thirst, braved danger, faced death, met wounds and sickness, with a spirit they could not understand themselves. It was the contagion of a great fellowship that bore them up. Each drew on the general fund. As the bundle of fagots makes a fascine that will resist a eanon-ball, so the multitude of human infimities made a bulk of power in which all sense of individual infirmity was lost. The war over, the strass relaxed, the bond of faith loosed, the separate individual the duck to their places, such into their former selves once more, and in the majority of cases were the same people of ordinary calibre they had always the same people of ordinary calibre they had always been esteemed. Great forces need great supplies; and when the great supplies are wanting, as for the most part they are, great forces cannot be looked for. All unusual efforts have been due to an unusual stir and inter-fusion of minds. The great things are done by the concurrence of many wills, a concurrence often so unexpected and unaccountable as to seem supernat-ural. They are possible only in an age when people live in others than themselves, consult general inter-esta, take the well-being of many into account, and set their personal duty in the light of a comprehen-sive weal. No religious beliefs will afford the small-est device the sense of allegiance is clear and strong, the moral tide rises, though no religious beliefs, techni-cally so called, be professed; as is shown to-day in the case of earnest Positivists, who, though discarding all recognition of a personal God, a superhuman Providence, or a conscious immortality after death, display, nevertheless, qualities worthy of the devout-est great faits.

Providence, or a conscious immortality after death, display, nevertheless, qualities worthy of the devout-est ages of faith. An age of individualism wherein each lives for himself alone, consults solely his private interest, considers first and last what will make for his own personal or social aggrandizement, looks about him enough for his own safety and no more, seeks no truth beyond his present opinion, welcomes no duty that interferes with his momentary mood, adopts no standard of action above a regard for his selfah profit,—an age of perpetual self-reference cannot, from the nature of the case, be an age of high moral or spiritual qualities. You might as well require each separate particle of iron to be a bar, each dis-tinct link of steel to be a chain. There is not likely to be a revival of moral and spiritual force until the age of individualism gives way to an age of fallow-ship—not the sentimental fellowship of religion, as commonly interpreted; not the symbolic fellowship of the church, which has no real substance; not the political or partian followship, that creates trade unions, workingmen's conspiracies, cabals for place or power,—but an honest, considerate fellowship of human belogs as such with other human belogs as such; a fellowship based on the perfectly well-estab-lished relations which hold between each and all and all and each; a fellowship the early apostles of the Christian falth endeavored to establish within the chairow limits of their communion; such a fel-lowship the Christian Church might have established on a grand scale if it had confined its regards to the family of man on this planet insised of allowing its thought to be dissipated in visions of post-morten felicity; such a fellowship is contemplated by the wisest and most earnest workers of to day, who have in view nothing more than a sincere and honest alliance between man and man. The problem to be solved is the communication to the solitary, isolated individual of the constitute bis alliance between man and man. The problem to be solved is the communication to the solitary, isolated individual of the combined virtue that is vested in the many who constitute his larger or smaller world. Of course, all cannot solve the problem by the same methods. Some will, through the imagination, make the desired connec-tion; some through feeling, some through friendahip or practical service. Each must make it in the most feasible way. The one thing of moment is to make it. make it.

make it. As one of those who share the ancient traditions of respect for honor, truth, generosity, disinterested-ness, magnanimity, virtues of the grand order, I look for the time when the conditions of their supply will be given again by a frank acknowledgement of the truth that men are, not sentimentally or figuratively, but actually and heartily, members one of another.

(Specially Reported for THE INDEX.)

THE P. B. A. CONVENTION AT PROV-

BY S. H. MORSE.

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

manual Google

532

532 THELT I

or education is required. What stands in the way? This battle of the churches. "Again, what is the significance of the taxation of church property? Simply this, whether or not the churches shall preserve their power. Tax the Roman Catholic churches in New York! Tax the Episcopal churches in New York! Why, you would forever make it impossible for them to build costly churches. The very spread of the doctrine would be arrested. And the poor people who earn sweaty money by the sweat of their brows, the hundreds of thousands of arrisans, and mechanics, and laborers who pay this money for the support of these theological dogmas would simply have more comfortable homes, better roofs over their heads, better and more plentiful food to eat, better schools for their children, and a better chance for the future for themselves. We say the Americans cannot afford to do it. They are not rich enough to do it. They never will be rich enough to do it....

"We plead, therefore, for sconomy. We say, "Take head that you don't spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which heatisfieth not." "Again, we plead for peace. We are tired of this endless battle of religions—the incessant wars of the churches. They have wearied out the patience of the world for ages—a battle of theology, and now a battle of ecclesiasticism—families divided, churches split asunder, and the dream of brotherhood post-poned indefinitely (may it not be endlessly?), by the very power that means brotherhood, the very power which means one thing if it means anything—union, harmony, sympathy, coöperation, combination be-tween the finite and the infinite, between men as brothers, between man and the infinite Father above...

brothers, between man and the infinite ratios above.... "Just is long as religion means despotism—call the religion by beautiful names; if you will, call it Mo-hammedanism, call it Buddhism, call it Christianity —it matters not so long as religion means despotism. Then the more beautiful it is, the more gracious and graceful it is, the more dangerous it is. "Therefore we take our stand simply in behalf of humanity, in behalf of human harmony and peace and sympathy. We take our stand against all these efforts on the part of any church to lift up its head above its neighbors.... "When bishops and priests of any name whatever will bend the kneet to humanity, our warfare is ended." At the conclusion of Mr. Frothingham's address, Mr. Potter, as Secretary, explained more in detail the nature of the Association, reading the article of the Constitution which embodies its principles. Mr. Gannett followed Mr. Potter, concluding his remarks as follows: "Thanks for an association whose definition of religion is so broad that it transcends all the sect barriers and underlies all the sect corner-stones. Thanks for that association which says to all men, 'You are of us religiously, for wider fellowship, then for clearer outlooks into the truth of the uni-verse in this day of shifting thought, and for opposithen for clearer outlooks into the truth of the uni-verse in this day of shifting thought, and for opposi-tion to all those churches which beset us where eccle-sisaticism is gaining ground.' For these objects there is need of association, and therefore we are not only religious-not only free religious-but a Free Relig-loue Association."

Is need of association, and therefore we are not only religious—not only free religious—but a Free Relig-lous Association." On Thursday morning, Mr. Potter read a paper on "The Spirit of Sectarianiam." He defined the spirit of sectarianism to be that spirit which assumes that a particular church or religious denomination has all of religious truth that is necessary for human beings to possess, or gives the one correct interpretation of religious truth. Though the religions of the world may be considered as sects, yet they began and ob-tained their growth and power through a new empha-sis and vitality, not of that which is dividing and par-tial, but of that which is universal and uniting. "The high tide of spiritual enthuaism and elevat-ed moral life in which religions begin after a time naturally subsides, and then it is that the spirit of sectarianism sets in. The tide having become a his-torical fact, the descendants of the people whom it has floated to new shores, and enriched with new possessions, fail to debating as to how the tide came, and whence it originated, and what was the form and direction of its waves, and where was the point of highest flood. Thus it is that the spirit of sectarianism sets to keep up a logical connection with them by the institution of exercises in spiritual mechanics, that it is thought will some day become vital. Sects form according as the problem of the means to be used to this end is sought to be settled in one way or another. "Coleridge said: 'He that lowes Christianity better wital. Sects form according as the problem of the means to be used to this end is sought to be settled in one way or another. "Coleridge said : 'He that loves Christianity better than truth will soon love his own sect or party better than Christianity, and will end by loving himself better than all." This indicates the central evil of sectarianiam from which all other evils flow. The evil last at some special system or idea is made the end instead of truth itself. The sects dispute as to some doctrine or form of ecclesiaatical equality, but they all agree that the doctrine or form is designed to establish and maintain connection with the past epoch of spiritual life, that from its reservoirs the great question of the Christian sects is how they shall continue to reach that spiritual spring and con-vey its abundant waters to thirsty lips to-day; and over that question they debate with bitter temper, striving to thwart each other's projects, and each to turn the other's hurt to his own advantage." Mr. Potter discussed the subject at some length, drawing illustrations from the history of Christianity. He closed with these words: "Be it ours to help ao-ciety forward to this bleesed consummation—to the day when the highest creed shall be to promote the love of truth as the highest possible adoration of God, and the practice of truth as the best possible arrice to man," Rowland Connor was the next speaker. He said: "To the extent that sectarianism arises from the ex-

God, and the practice of truth as the best possible adorstion of God, and the practice of truth as the best possible service to man." Rowland Connor was the next speaker. He said: "To the extent that sectarisalism arises from the ex-ercise of reason, it can not be done away with. And sects must antagonize, must hold each to its own convictions, and oppose the convictions of others. But each should remember that, however sacred the truth it held, there was always something beyond. Your creed must be regarded as temporary. As fast as people growing get the benefit of the old creed, a new one is demanded. The evil lies in holding fast to the old form, when all its life and saving power have vanished. The old spirit would crush every whing that would show the creed to be false; the new spirit would welcome every such agent, and say, "Show me my errors,' and rejoice in the escape." Mr. Abbot said that the word eact was often waguely used. It meant, in its derivation, a slice, or a piece cut off. The sects were sliced or cut off from something. Go back to the Reformation. The new sects were fragments broken off from the Roman Catholic Church. It is by this breaking-off process a sect. All the great religions were sects—all parts of the human race. All sects must return into the greater unity from which they sprung—humanity. It was in the name of this common humanity that he would war upon the sects. Opposition to sects does not destroy communion with those who com-pose them. Mr. Abbot said: "I think we shall command ten times the response from the public that we now have.

pose them. Mr. Abbot said: "I think we shall command ten times the response from the public that we now have, and find our power quadrupled, when we stand as the avowed and confessed representatives of the spirit that is going to destroy and reconstruct civilization-destroy it temporarily in its outward form and wrap-pings, merely for the sake of building it anew with a nobler spirit, into a finer and larger result. That is the simple truth."

Mrs. E. D. Cheney was then invited to address the audience. She said: "The one thing that is necessary to destroy the evils of sectarianism is the split of mutual respect, a recognition of the fact that each is not the whole, but is simply related to the whole. The church can go on while the sects still exist, each most dear. The church can become a unit if we only recognize the spirit of self respect and mutual rela-tion, which should bind all together." The last speaker was the Rev. Mr. Elder, of lar-ington. He said that every sect that has ever exerted application of the narrowness of the sect which may be manifested in connection with it. Every man's faith, however broad it may be, is in measure an individualistic faith. Out of this iter-itable difference, which is right and proper, then arises a sect, there arises a tendency to emphasize that difference. It is only by this necessitation princip end the breating in the whole truth in all its breath and immensity, is uttered. There is not a sect too many among all the innumerable sect of Protestantism. Each one emphasizes that which is to itself of the most importance, and by the special emphasis the whole truth in a manner comes to be uttered.

is to itself of the most importance, and by that special emphasis the whole truth in a manner comes to be uttered. In the afternoon, Dr. C. A. Bartol was introduced by the President, and commanded the unified ai-tention of the audience for more than an hour, while heread an essay upon, "A False Theology Demonlin-ing to Conscience." He commenced by saying that the present time was disagreable, yet regarding it a duty which he feit to be imposed upon him at the proper lesson from the most astounding scandal that this continent ever saw. Probably no subjecters filled so many columns in the newspaper, beams so generally asubject of conversation among both young and old, and in regard to which opinion was so shap-ly divided. Indeed, had a volcano broken out in the midst of the land, it would not more fully hars com-manded the general attention. "The inquiry comes home to us: What means the eruption of this moral Etna or Vesuvius? With so much smoke of acaudal there must be some fir d offence. The lawyers asy that all the fact in the case can be explained on the supposition of guilt, and but few or none of them satisfactorily upon the opposite supposition. Upon the original offace fol-low mendacity, perjury, bribery, and libel. An bas-est judgement in regard to the matter is not be looked for in the newspapers, since editors write the leaders with a view to the prejudices of the suberp-tion list or the stockholders' list, and several of them have avowed that they hold one opinion in private, but utter another to the public in the editorial of-um. Nor," said the preacher, "do I forget that the pulpt is just as partial and uncandid. The lease to mae in the relation of cause and effect. There is always a connection, a concatention of events. Making what allowance may be claimed to the peculiarities, the characteriatics, or the tempt-tions of the individual, there is a remoter but to less real cause in the theological training of he individ-ual referred to, and those who sustal him in the course of monocedure t never known the shape of virtue, or be it some fallen clergyman who has found virtue only to foreake it." At the conclusion of Col. Higginson's remarks, the President stated that it was generally understood that no one speaking on the Free Religious platform spoke otherwise than for himself. Mr. Potter made the further statement that Colonel Higginson, in the excitement of the occasion, had overstepped the line of his privilege. The Asso-ciation had invited Dr. Bartol to speak, and it ex-pected him to express his own views upon the subject he had chosen, and to stand for them. The Asso-ciation did neither indorse nor repudiate them, and neither Colonel Higginson nor any other member of the Association could undertake, in behalf of the As-sociation, to indorse or repudiate them. He might speak for himself, but not as one having authority. This announcement was received with hearty and long continued applause, and the rebuke was generally feit to be well merited. The President then, as customary near the close of each session, invited any one in the audience who might have a word to say by way of criticism or sug-gestion to speak. Mr. L. K. Joslin, of Providence, responded briefly, saying that he thought Free Re-ligion should cover the whole ground of our present ite. Freedom should be wholly applied as the meth-of of progress. If free was a good and true word to prefix to the word religion, then surely it was a good and true word to prefix to the evening was largely at-tended. Mr. Weiss read his sesary on "Tyndall's prefix to the word religion, then surely it was a good and true word to prefix to the even more sacred word love. The closing session in the evening was largely at-fended. Mr. Weiss read his essay on "Tyndall's Address and his Critics." He said that the subject of Tyndall's address included a sketch of the derelop-ment of human thought in its efforts to explain phenomena, from its first rade impulse to its latest expression in the theories of Darwin and Spencer. It was the opinion of the speaker that nowhere else ould we find so clear and thorough a statement of the theories of Tyndall, stripped of scientific terms, reduced to the essential points, and set is the clear light of the understanding—explaining the author's belief in the vitality of two things: of universal mat-ter and of religious sentiment. It was plain that he had been and was destined to be misunderstood on these points, and as they had never been so distinctly connected before by any man of scientific prominence, and as the connection involved the problem of Free Religion, it was worth while to take a just estimate of plast and of its bearing upon the most im-portant spiritual things. The misunderstanding would arise chiefly in that portion of the address matter with the new idea which Tyndall espoused, that matter has eternally contained all the forces needed to make them appeared, and all the forces one the old mechanical idea of a lifeless inter with the new idea which tyndall espoused, and life in combination. Tyndall says that we are one the old theory that everything fas been created out of dead matter by successive acts of a live Creator, and the olher that the universe is live matter in various forms and stages of development; that it has been from all eternity as allye; that the imagination can-not force itself back to a time when it was anything else than this, or something containing the latent forms and qualities of everything—all forms, no mat-ter how different they appear now to human observa-tion, having been involved originally in this eternal live substance. live

<text><text><text>

<page-header><page-header><text>

In the concluding portion of his essay, Mr. Weiss

<text><text><text><text><text>

BOTH ALIKE.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

affirms nor denies the éristence of a God. This is one of their open questions." It may be said that "pure Christianity" necessarily implies belief in God. I know one Unitarian min-ster, at least, in good and regular standing, who be-lieves and publicly says that Christianity is compat-ble with atheism; and I have reason to believe that, whatever statement of belief in God might be skopted by any Unitarian organization, more than one such minister would reject it in private conversa-tion. The Free Religious Association acts precleely like the American Unitarian Association with creed-protection of their about God; and Uni-tarians should understand that they cannot afford to reproach the Free Religious Association with creed-lesences, until they publish to the world a formal organization with creed-tor their own. So long as they are willing to rest that free individual thought, without a formal statement of belief about for yourself, and condial good-will for all my former associates in the unitarian ministy. Trues for impartial justice.

cordial good-will ac. Unitarian ministry, Yours for impartial justice, FRANCIS E. ABBOT.

ME. ABBOT'S LETTER.

THE. ABBOOTS LETTER. In another column our readers will find a commu-fication from the editor of Tiz INDEX, who was one our honored associate in the Unitarion ministry, and is still our valued and beloved friend. He ad-mits that the Free Religionists, as a body, sue not theists; that the eristence of God is one of their open questions; and avowed Athelsts are members of the free Religious Association in good and regular stand-ing; but he contends that the American Unitarian Association is equally unthelatic. We will not stop to ask our neighbor why, if there is such unbounded librity in the Unitarian Association, there was any need of organizing a no more creedless Free Religious Association, but will address ourselves directly to the point which he makes. The whole weight of Mr. Abbot's argument rests food 1 But both the voice of history and the common set of Christendom are against him. Jesus Christ-proclaimed and worshipped God, and so do all who yultarian minister who "publicly asy that Chris-and worshipped God, and so do all who we known one who thought he had squared cipcles and the responsible for all the crudities and aburdities of every individual member, the Free Re-ligiouist can easily be put in a woful plight. Ever investing have been opened with prayer, which ac-tors. Mathematical prepretual-motion machine. If abody aburdities of every individual member, the Free Re-igiouist can easily be put in a woful plight. Ever investing have been opened with prayer, which ac-metary. As one as the Free Religious Association was organized its and the distant advanter in the the word "Re-interview in the state of a state of the state of a state investing have been opened with prayer, which ac-metary.

pressed the thelism always implied in "pure Chris-tianity." As soon as the Free Religious Association was or-ganized, the Register suggested that the word "Re-ligious" excluded athelists, but we were immediately informed, not by any obscure and eccentric member, but by chief leaders and representatives of the move-ment, that religion does not necessarily imply theism, and that the Free Religious Association includes athelists in its fellowship. When the President of the Free Religious Association was rebuked in the Investigator for saying, "We are not a group of god-leas materialists, disciples of Voltaire, or followers of Volney or Paine," etc., he hastened to explain away what had been called the "slurring or sneering" at athelats, and giving them "the cold shoulder," while lous Association admitted "godless materialist just as cordially as godly Christians." It is also, we be-nieve, a significant fact that no prayer has ever been heard at a meeting of the Free Religious Association. Indeed, the athelistic portion of its constituency would naturally feel wronged by anything of the kind in an assembly where the existence of a God in an open question. When representative men of the Unitarian Association.

In an assembly where the existence of a God is an open question. When representative men of the Unitarian Asso-ciation, including its chief officers, shall state that Christianity is compatible with atheism, besides omitting all devotional services at their meetings, and the Liberal Christian and Christian Reptater shall announce that godless materialists are admitted to our full and equal membership just as cordially as godly Christians, Mr. Abbot may succeed in his at-tempted flank movement; but not till then.—Christ-tan Reptater.

CASH RECEIPTS.

CASH RECEIPTS. FOR THE WERE KIDING OCTOBER 51. A. Folsom, $50; George Allen, 60 cents; E. M. Streeter, So cents; Laura Biarnaby, 22 cents; Heng Shreve, 10 cents; Carl Doerflinger, $1.83; G. H. Foster, $1.62; H. P. Hallo-well, $1; Theophilus Johnson, $4 cents; Mortimer Evans, 20 cents; C. A. Day, 10 cents; N. G. Knight, 20 cents; George Riker, $5; E. Crosby, $10; Thomas Mumford, $10; B. W. Law, 20 cents; New England News Co., $2.60; 21, A. K. Loring, 24 cents; Anne; A. Knight, 20 cents; 12, A. K. Loring, 24 cents; Annerican News Co., $2.60; 24, Hawley, $1.20; C. E. Serrill, $1; S. B. Ring, $3; R. C. Spencer, $5.25; A. W. Hodgkins, $4.75; John Hobinson, $2.60; V. P. Hunter, $2.60; John Snyder, $4.02; N. G. Kinght, $4.80; D. Lyman, $3; H. W. Sargent, 60 cents; C. M. 21.60; J. P. Hunter, $2.60; John Snyder, $5.02; N. G. Kinght, $4.80; D. Lyman, $3; H. W. Sargent, 50 cents; N. M. Sanford, $2, Maria H. Bray, 70 cents; W. L. Heberling, $2.60; V. B. Martin, $2; 6. Wright, $3; Linda Hunt, $2; A. Norton, $1.60; M. A. Bedford, $5.50; J. W. Adkins, $2.60; V. B. Martin, $2; 6. Wright, $3; Linda Hunt, $2; A. Havington, $3; I.Saso Tabor, $2; William Clough, $3; Perry Thayer, 60 cents; F. A. Smith, $5.25; J. Rarnos, 1.60; J. Gob Beele, $1.60; T. H. Shields, $1.62; J. Rarnos, 1.60; J. Gob Beele, $1.61; J. H. Shields, $1.62; J. Rarnos, 1.60; J. B. Marton, $2; J. H. Shields, $1.62; J. Rarnos, 1.60; J. B. Cather Hungas meelally recouverated. Person

Stokes, s.o.. All receipts of cash will be acknowledged as above, and no other receipt sent unless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notify us.

The Inder. PUBLISHED EVERY THUESDAT

534

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 25 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love. N. B.—No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

PRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, Associate Editor ABBAN WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor OGTAVIUS BEOOKS FROTRIGHAM, THOMAS WENTWORTE EIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, RUDIARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENCHE, MES. E. D. CHENEY, Rev. CHARLES YOVREY (England), Prof. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, NOVEMBER 5, 1874.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3,60 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for fourteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

ME. MORSE's bust of Theodore Parker (the larger one, which is a great improvement on the smaller) has been very handsomely photographed. Copies are now for sale at the price of fifty cents, and will doubtless be very extensively purchased by the admirers of Parker's great and noble career. Address S. H. Morse, 25 Bromfield Street, or THE INDEX.

By "philosophic instinct" we meant no "intuitional faculty" of any sort, but only that general bias of mind produced by the study of philosophy. Every mind thoroughly trained in philosophic method learns to seek for unity in all phenomena, and this demand for the one in the many becomes a constant element in all his mental action. Our correspondent R. P. T. need not apprehend that we are in danger of admitting any "intuitionalist" solution of the problem of Divine Being.

THE CONVENTION of the Free Religious Association at Providence was very successful. The evening sessions were largely attended, and the audiences in the forenoon and afternoon were quite respectable in point of numbers. The hospitalities of the place were very generously dispensed, and the local society left nothing undone to render the occasion pleasant to all concerned. A long, though condensed and therefore imperfect, report of the meetings will be found on another page of this issue.

HERE IS a bit of indigo Orthodoxy from Rev. W. M. Baker, who argues in the Independent of Oct. 15 that ministers are ambassadors "charged with the ultimatum of Heaven to men": "Our world is the Paris of a siege over the walls of which is no possible escape-a slege to end only when the city sinks at last in ashes, stormed, as Scripture assures us, by God with fire, as its closing catastrophe. For (and oceans of rose-water are useless to quench or conceal the fact) the war is between God and man. God is 'angry with the wicked.' 'The carnal mind is enmity with God,' and no degree of assertion to the contrary can change the actual fact. Yes, we are ambassadors between God and men, because there is War."

THIS STATEMENT Is copied from the Boston Sunday Herald of October 25: "At the meeting of the Essex Conference of Liberal Christian Churches, held at the Unitarian Church at Lawrence, on Wednesday, Rev. J. T. Hewes read an essay, in which he said the Christian Church can fellowship none but Christians, Christians in character and Christians in belief. In the discussion which followed, Rev. J. H. Clifford, of North Andover, assented to the interpretation of Christianity in the essay, and therefore could not call himself a Christian, but the speakers generally thought Christianity did not imply sound doctrine as well as sound character." Truth finds now and then a faithful voice: alas for the welcome that too often greets it! We hope our brave young brother has counted the cost of his sincerity.

THE MATHEAN CLUB of East Stoughton, Massachusetts, which had engaged Rev. Dr. Lorimer, a Baptlat minister of this city, to lecture before them, have passed resolutions denouncing his action as "unjust, unchristian, and ungentlemanly" in refusing to fulfil his engagement. The alleged excuse for this refusal was that he had heard bad things of the Club, and that the father of its young President (Rev. E. F. Strickland) had withdrawn from the Baptist denomination; that the Club (which is simply a union of harmless young people) were "a lot of infidels, spiritualists, and free-thinkers of every description," "banded together to destroy the Baptist church in East Stoughton"! His place in the course was supplied by Col. Higginson-s fact which greatly lessens our commiseration for the Club in being deserted by Dr. Lorimer.

"FATHER BEESON" essentially changed the plan of action he had agreed to respecting a convention for sending delegates to the General Indian Council, and held some meetings in this city before we heard of them. As the conditions stated with his approval in our article were not fulfilled, we have not felt justifled in turning over to him the money sent in response to it; and this has been returned. But it makes little difference, as one dollar from Dr. Job T. Dickins, of Newburyport, was the grand total sent to us! The kind Doctor is evidently the only one among our readers who has any "cash consideration" for the Indians. But Father Beeson may yet accompliah his object, which is a good one, in his own way; and we wish him all success in it. The above is not a flattering exhibit, but it has its ludicrous side, and we will make the most of that.

WITH CEBTAIN Christian qualifications which we omit here, Dr. Bellows spoke a needed and right manly word, when he said at the Saratoga Conference: "The public sentiment is horribly demoralized. Those religions which distinguish between the emotional and moral are accountable for this state of things. We are to take our stand upon pure morals. If we could take that ground, and throw everything else to the dogs, we should have a basis for more effective work than we have ever done. Let us give up, if need be, what the people call religion, and stick to what they call morality. But we need not give up either." The reservation which Dr. Bellows went on to make in favor of "sound New Testament principles" seems to as unnecessary, because we think that Christianity is largely responsible for that very excess of emphasis on "the emotional" which he so pointedly rebukes. It is, and has always professed to be, a "religion of love," while what the world needs is a religion of intellect and conscience just as much as of love.

SUCH LETTERS as we receive from some of our personally unknown friends would be enough to give confidence and courage to any one. One just received says: "Am a medical man, an earnest student of the masters of modern thought. The younger professional men in our country are nearly all rationalists. My friend Dr. - Is an earnest and infinential free-thinker. He came out of the Baptist church. The first copy of THE INDEX I sent him worked him up' considerably. After undergoing an extended course of reading, he became a convert to our cause, and bids fair to exert a deep influence. Mr. Abbot, you have no idea what 'influence' you exert over numbers of young men in America. You may often possibly feel your efforts are not appreclated. Such is not the case. THE INDEX, without doubt, has the most intelligent audience in the land." This last statement is certainly "without doubt" in our own mind, if we are any judge of "intelligence." The ability betrayed by our INDEX correspondents is a constant source of pride and pleasure.

IN THESE DAYS the question is coming home to more than one young Unitarian minister in the depths of his own heart: "Can I let myself be classed publicly among Christian ministers, without tarnishing my own ideal of absolute truthfulness and honor? On the one hand are popularity and competency; on the other hand are exclusion and pecuniary distress; and it is simply the public acceptance or rejection of a name which is to decide between the two alternatives." This is the invisible coercion brought to bear to-day on many a conscience in the Unitarian ranks by the now irrevocably and honestly accepted policy of the denomination. For those who are made to feel it we have only the deepest and tenderest sympathy; no advice, certainly no misjudgment. Each soul must fight such battles as these alone. Martyrdom of the modern sort has no glory in it at all; but it has many a sting, and operates as ever to make heroes here and hypocrites there, though perhaps the heroism and the hypocrisy are unknown even to themselves.

A. J. DAVIS AND THE HYDE PARK LL BRARY.

Several months since, as is stated by the Norfolk County Gazette of October 17, Mr. A. E. Giles, and of our largest-hearted liberals, presented to the pub lic library of Hyde Park, Massachusetts, a complete set of Andrew Jackson Davis' works, in nearly the ty volumes, with a request that they be placed upon the shelves for public use. The eleven Trustee of the Library could not agree either to accept or reject the dangerous gift, and, though meeting after meet ing was held, this dead-lock continued. At the lat meeting, a discussion of an hour and a half tool place on the subject.

Rev. Mr. Davis thought that the books in question were "the most useless reading" he had ever move, and "could not conscientiously vote against them, as they amounted to nothing anyway."

Mr. Weld, the chairman, favored the admission of any moral work, no matter how extreme the im it advocated. He bors testimony to the unspotted character of Mr. A. J. Davis, and said he had recent. ly noticed a card of thanks for a donation of his works to the Chelses Library. He should vote to accept Mr. Giles' present.

Rev. Mr. Davis said that Rev. Mr. Williams thought the books "too silly to be wicked."

Rev. Mr. Gilbert read extracts from the Morning Lectures to show their "general tendency toward atheism and blasphemy and ridicule of sarred things." Their influence was "corrupting," and so forth. He would not vote to admit such books.

Mr. Lancaster would vote to admit them, as there was much in them to "instruct and elevate the mind."

Mr. Nott considered them "profitless reading," but some of them were "corrupting."

Father Corcoran decidedly opposed them, as inproper for any library, public or private. "They denied the divinity of Christ, and their whole tendency pointed directly to atheism and materialism." They should not be admitted by any official act of his, because they tended to "lower the moral nature and bring it down to final wreck."

It was finally voted to accept the Harbinger of Health, the Book of Wise Words, and various other works of Mr. Davis; but his Morning Lectures and Autobiography were unanimously rejected. As the rule of the Trustees now stands, a majority of negative votes is required to reject any book donated, though until this meeting three negative votes sufficed.

A private letter on this subject informs us that the Rev. Messrs. Davis, Gilbert, Williams, and Corcoran are ministers respectively of the Orthodox (Congregationalist), Baptist, Unitarian, and Catholic churches in Hyde Park. It was thus the local clergy that are responsible for this delicious bit of Philistinism. To quote the excellent suggestion of this letter: "The true ground, as I suppose it to be, is that not smijority, nor even the whole, of the committee can equitably reject a lawful book donated to the library, while there is room for it. Under this rule unlawfal books (f.e., obscene ones) might be excluded. Such a rule, requiring the free admission of all inwfal books, would prevent the blckering and sectarian conflicts which now frequently agitate library Boards. Of course, it is in reference to public libraries, supported in whole or in part by taxation of all the inhabitants and their property, that I suppose my rule to apply. There are many town or public libraries in Massachusetts [and elsewhere] whose committees or trustees are often quartelling over the admission of books, not knowing what the sound democratic principle of admission is."

The position here taken by our correspondent is unquestionably correct in principle. What right have any trustees to constitute themselves censors of the press, and strain out heresy from public libraries which heretics are taxed to support? It is a monstrous usurpation of authority on their part; and this case only brings it out in all its insufferableness. The moral influence of Andrew Jackson Davis' works, so far as we know them, is irreproachably pure, whatever opinions may be entertained of Spiritualism; and it is a disgrace to the State that pro-ceedings worthy only of the "Sacred Congregation of the Index" should take place in it. One moral we draw from them which is patent: the absurdity of electing clergymen (and the Unitarian clergyman in this instance certainly showed himself more supercilious than liberal) to sit in judgment on what the public ought to read, and what not. We advise all our readers who may have occasion to vote for trustees of public libraries to cast their ballots for men broad-minded enough to act on the rule above suggested with regard to admission of books. The clergy are put forward too generally on library committees and school committees, when what is really wanted is a degree of intelligence and freedom from sectarian bias which are seldom found in their profession. Teachers, doctors, lawyers, well-educated business men, and men of general culture, are far better custodians of such interests as these than men who are "suckled on a creed outworn." It is time to put competency to deal with the things of this world in charge of this world's interests, chief of which is the providing the intellectual diet and training for the community at large; while the clergy may be left to preside over salvation and damnation -points of small interest to most men.

A LOGICAL BOOMERANG.

The Christian Register criticises the Free Religions Association because, "as a body," they "are not theists," and "neither affirm nor deny the existence of s. God," Although probably a majority of the Association are individually theiats, it is true that, "as a body," they are neither theists nor athelats; their Constitution says nothing on the subject, but emphatically declares the principle of unlimited freedom of thought. Now it is a curious but indisputable fact that the Constitution of the American Unitarian Association is just as silent as that of the Free Religious Association on the question of theism; it simply professes "pure Christianity," and leaves every one to interpret this for himself. Rev. S. P. Putnam, a Unitarian minister in,"good and regular standing," and a frequent contributor to the Liberal Christian, publicly took the position in THE INDEX of June 4 that an atheist may be a Christian. This he had a perfect right to do by the Constitution of the American Unitarian Association, which says nothing whatever against an atheistic view of Christianity. The editor of the Register tries to escape from this uncomfortable fact, which tells just as strongly against the American Unitarian Association as against the Free Religious Association, by appealing to the implication of theism contained in the word Christianity. Certainly; we agree with him in the opinion that the word properly implies theism, But that is merely his and our private opinion, which is nowhere santioned by the Constitution of the American Unitarian Association. Any atheist can join that Association, if he happens to share Mr. Putnam's opinion; and the Association cannot help themselves, until they define their Christianity as theistic only. They content themselves with a mere implication of theism, which implication any one of their members may reject as Mr. Putnam has done, without forfeiting fellowship or losing any right connected with it; and the Association are powerless to discipline him or disfellowship him. They stickle only for a name, and a name is all they get.

Now our point is altogether too clear to be escaped by evasion of any sort. If the Unitarians mean to make theism a test of membership, they must not finch to say so in their Constitution; they must not be afraid of formal creeds or statements of belief. Otherwise they are precisely as much exposed as the Free Religious Association to the Register's reproaches. An informal creed of a pretty definite kind is contained in the preamble of the National Conference, and that is why we left it; but there is none in the Constitution of the Unitarian Association except the bare word Christianity. So long as one of their accepted ministers, one of the recognized contributors to their denominational literature, is allowed to say publicly, and unrebuked, that Christianity is compatible with atheism, they cannot appeal to the alleged theistic implication of the word Christlanity without exciting a smile. The fact is that the Unitarians are merely playing at organization; they organize, yet break all the laws of organization. The Register puts itself in a comical position, while it cavils at the strictly logical and self-consistent position of the Free Religious Association; and the whole purpose of these comments is to call its attention to the chaotic state of its own principles, which forbid creeds, yet cannot dispense with them notwithstanding. If belief in God ought to be verbally and collectively affirmed, why does not the American Unitarian Association affirm it? But if otherwise, why carp at the Free Religious Association for omitting to affirm it? One would think this a tolerably plain dilemma; and we leave the Register to select the horn of its choice at leisure. There is no "flank movement" intended on our part; we have little knowledge of military manœuvres, and little respect for the strategist by profession. What we do Intend is to bring home to the Register, if possible, the unreasonableness, inconsistency, and absurdity of blaming the Free Religious Association for having no theistic creed, until the American Unitarian Association has a theistic creed of its own to show. The Register is not wise to make reproaches which are forcible in no mouth but that of a creed-bound bigot; it will not do to talk of "implications," when these implications do not bind any one to anything. If the Register wants to reap the practical advantages of a creed, lot it honestly demand one; but if it prefers to escape the disadvantages of a creed, let it as honestly omit to claim its advantages.

MR. HALE'S EULOGIUM OF THE CHURCH.

At a recent meeting in Boston for the purpose of raising $200,000 to erect a new building for the Medical College, Rev. E. E. Hale considered "the existence of the medical profession as the noblest visible result of Christian institutions," and pointed to "hospitals and similar institutions, and to the daily work of physicians," as "a triumph of the Christian Church." Mr. Hale is too modest by half. The discovery of the magnetic needle was first announced in the Sermon on the Mount; the telescope was invented by Matthew, the microscope by Mark, the spectroscope by Luke, the ophthalmoscope by John, and the scope of Mr. Hale's puff of the Church by Zaccheus, who climbed a tree, and saw further than anybody until this new Zaccheus climbed the pinus ingens of Unitarian rhetoric; the use of money was introduced by Peter, who took the primordial nickel cent out of a fish's mouth to pay the first tax-bill, while an irredcemable currency was first issued by Judas, after he had made himself irredeemable by his bad conduct and his foolish financial operation of throwing away the thirty pleces of silver; Paul invented printing to save time in his voluminous correspondence, built the first railroad to Damascus (though he cautioned King Agrippa against his own "bonds"), established the first steamboat line between Cæsarea and Rome, took a patent from Nero for the first horse-car, laid the first Atlantic cable to keep up communication with Columbus, whom he despatched with strict instructions not to fail to discover America, and closed a brief but honorable career as a member of the Royal Society of London by inventing the turbine-wheel, nitro-givcerine, etherization, bills of exchange, and Darwinism. By wilfully suppressing these and innumerable other facts of like importance, Mr. Hale exposes himself (very unjustly, as we believe) to a popular suspicion of plotting to overthrow Christianity by "damning it with faint praise." We shall look anxiously for the next number of Old and New, hoping to find in it a fall recognition of the merit of Christianity as the originator of Greek philosophy and art, Roman jurisprudence, and early Egyptian civilization, as well as the "triumph of the Christian Church" in having established the solar system on a sound basis by its sagacious vote at the Nicene Council.

LONDON LETTER.

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-"Church Congress" has this week been offering its annual modicum of fun and nonsense for the amusement of the British public during the recess. I cannot possibly make to pass before the eyes of your readers all the comical scenes of this ecclesiastical pantomime; but there are one or two points in the debates worth noticing as signs of the times; for, in spite of what the dissenters may say, the Church of England does, and will for some time to come, set the gauge for religious opinion and sentiment to the country at large.

We had amongst other things a debate on missions, during which the President (I believe) spoke of the success of the Christian missionaries among the Jews in such terms as to impress any one utterly ignorant of the facts with the idea that the ancient people were being rapidly converted to the faith of the Nazarene.

The speaker was evidently laboring under the delusion that he was speaking the truth, and one can only suppose that he had been crammed with statistics from Palestine Place, where the conversion of Jews to Christianity is being carried on at the rapid rate of three and one-half Jews per annum, and at the cost of several thousand pounds sterling!

One feature in these conversions is that the same Jew gets converted over and over again at intervals, according to the state of his finances or the growth of his beard. But such incidents are not worth mentioning in any discussion about missions; the object in view being merely to elicit contributions from generous and guilible Christian ladies, to whom any suggestion of misappropriation of funds would be untimely.

Having got through the missionary business, the next day the Congress tackled the question of convocation—to be or not to be,—and if "to be," how was it to be constituted, with or without laymen?

It need hardly be told that this subject divided the wolves and the lambs as suddenly and effectually as St. Paul's hint about the resurrection directed from himself the attention of his accusers.

The Low-Church party, whom I venture to call the "lambs," voted for the admission of the laity, while of course the High Church voted for their exclusion. The value of an opinion on either side is not worth very much in itself, when only clergy are interested in the discussion; but in this instance the choice of a side is indeed of the greatest importance. If this year's Church Congress had done no other good, it would be invaluable for having elicited the radical opposition between the sacerdotalists and the genuine Protestants in the Church.

There was no mistake about the anxiety of the former to keep in their own hands every vestige and even every pretence of power, while it was equally clear on the other hand that the evangelicals desired above all things to resist and defeat this supremacy of clergy by the introduction of the lay element into the Lower House of Convocation.

There was very nearly a row over it, and storms of cheers and counter-cheers greeted the sentiment of Canon Fremanile, who thanked God that we had "a Protestant Queen, and a Protestant Prime Minister;" and that "the people of this country would neither be Pope-ridden nor priest-ridden."

Upon the whole, the sacerdotalists got the worst of it; and if the Low-Church party can be only kept at the proper temperature of zeal and discretion, they may yet be able to counteract the subtle machinations of the High Churchmen. Altogether, this episode about laymen in convocation was the most sensible piece of discussion which clerics have given us for long enough; though it is to be regretted that the debate wound up by an enumeration of the priceless benefits which that body had conferred upon the Church, thus turning our feeling of respect onca more into that of ridicule.

Convocation—as Archdeacon Bickersteth assures us — has actually "affirmed the principles of the Athanasian Creed" (in spite of the Archbishop of Canterbury's saying that neither himself nor any of the bishops present believed in the damnatory clauses thereof.) I Convocation had "repudiated the Vatican councils" !

Convocation had "presented us with a new Lectionary"! "For what we have received"—the Lord alone, in this case, could make us "truly thankful," and then only by an African typhoon!

Can we wonder? Churches are like mountains, often in labor, and everlastingly presenting the expectant world with a mouse.

After some more sparring between High and Low on the subject of church architecture and decoration, the Congress betook itself to the momentous question of "Scepticism"; and when I give you verbatim, as recorded in the Times, the opening remarks of Canon Westcott—risum terreatis, if you can.

"Sceptical criticism. . . . failed to comprehend the nature of the problem to be discussed; it failed to take into account the accumulation of various facts in favor of Christianity, and also failed to appreciate the exact religious character of those facts. Christianity was the historical proclamation of an event which had changed man's whole relations; yet sceptical critics made no effort to understand that history. They occupied themselves with literary fragments, and not with vital realities."

"The synoptical gospels," he went on to maintain, "and the gospel of St. John, afforded unimpeachable proof of their authenticity, while the resurrection of Christ, a fact unique in itself, and followed by a new life, standing as it did alone, solitary and unapproachable in its conception, left," he maintained, "to no one who brought to the subject the spirit of an impartial inquirer room to doubt as to the Divine origin of our Christian belief." (The italics are mine).

Your readers can imagine the solos and chorus of twaddle that would be required to keep in tune with this keynote. Dr. Hayman, the late Head-master of Rugby, managed to come to the front with the most offensive speech of the day, in which he bracketed for condemnation Dr. Arnold, Richard Congreve, and the Dean of Westminster, whose name, however, he had not the shamefacedness to mention, and whom he designated as one "who was popular everywhere, from the costly cathedral to the dissenting chapel." In my childhood, I used to sing a comical old song, I think from the Beggar's Opera :-

"Pray, Goody, please to moderate The rancor of your tongue; Remember, where the judgment's weak, The prejudice is strong."

I should like to have sung it at the Church Con-Very truly yours, gress of 1874.

CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., October 10, 1874.

Communications.

IN THE CONFESSIONAL.

It had been one of my discouraged days, such as come to all of us; my spirits were depressed because of evils which confronted me and for which I knew no remedy; and when, near the close of the evening church service to which I had accompanied my friends Christine and Gloriana, the choir sang with impressiveness the old-fashioned words, "Jesus, lover of my sou," to the air of Playel's Hymn, the heart-clouds seemed to grow blacker, and culminated at last in a rainfall of silent, irrepressible tears. The pa-thetic cry of the hymn seemed to me, for that mo-ment, the expression of my own long-represed cry for other than human help. I, too, long to say-

"Other refuge have I none; Hangs my helpless soul on thes; Leave, O leave me not slone, Still support and comfort me!"

Hangs my helpless soil on thes; Leave, O leave me not slone, Still support and comfort me?" It was one of the moments in which I hated my own intellectual conclusions, which denied me so in-accrably these comforting appeals for extraneous help—one of the moments in which "to be without God in the world" was indeed a heart-break and de-spair. The sermon had been on God's providence; and the preacher had made an earnest appeal, in chaste, refined, and glowing language, to the need fol to yeary human souli in its hours of sorest need for a Divin- Helper and Care-Taker. Yst through y tears and my sorrowful enjoyment of the sweet old hym., I was oddly conscious of Christine's guarded scratiny of me. I could read in her clear had eyes the half-glad suspicion and hope which my unusual softness of mood had awakened in her hym. Her dusky eyes were luminous with tender light, between her parted lips no breath seemed to come, while her fine, expressive face was pale with dent. Mer dusky eyes were luminous with tender light, between her parted lips no breath seemed to come, while her fine, expressive face was pale with dent. Mer dusky eyes ware a luminous with tender light, between her parted lips no breath seemed to come, while her fine, expressive face was pale with dent. Mer dusky eyes ware a luminous with tender light, between her parted lips no breath seemed to come, while her fine, expressive face was pale with dent. "Mer dusky eyes ware a luminous with tender light, between her parted lips no breath seemed to come, while her the same as half turned off as exerced the stitug-room. "Meriting the grade and." "To a caught her upraised hard. "Don't," ahe said, "turn on more gam-that is, fi for wat any confessions from me. This semi-dark, eas is just the first up near the firs, for the any turnaic chill without made a little warmth inside de-simble. Gloriana's cheeks had got back their roses in the ample depths of a luxurious easy-chair. Chris-ine's eyes, full of grave thought, sought here ques-tin the ample depths o

"I laughed," explained Gloriana, "to think what creatures of moods and impulses we are. Here, half an hour ago listening to that walling hymn, I feit myself at once to be in the depths of despairing doubt and the heights of ecstatic belief. I not only was ready to say, 'Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian,' but I almost persuaded myself that I was a Christian; and, in spite of creeds and dogmas to which I cannot yield assent, feit that Go toxe in-deed my father and my refuge from life's storms. But now, sitting here so comfortably, I have no ion-ger any of that feeling." "And you?" said Christine, turning to me, "You too felt God's power in that sermon and in that hymn."

hymn?'

hymn?" "You saw my tears, Christine," I replied, "and wish to know what moved me-hardened doubter as you think me-to such unwonted emotion. I will tell you honestly. It was because I had no longer any father in heaven. I have been obliged to give up my belief in the tender Over-Heart which to you seems so sure and asfe a refuge, and I wept because of my orphanage."

"'Sad losses have we met, But thine is heavier yet, For a believing heart hath gone from thee,'" marmured Gloriana, slightly misquoting. "Say not that you are an orphan," Ohristine said carnestly, "but rather that you have wilfully made yourself an alien from your father's house. Why may you not say, as so many others like you have said, 'I will arise and go unto my father'? You can-not guess, dear friend, how your infidelity distresses and perplexes me. How, with your really religious and revential nature, your sympathy with the good and true, your high alms, your appreciation of the lottler virtues—in direct contradiction of all this, you came to turn your back upon Christianity with all its NDEX-INOVERMEER high, holy, and loving promises, and its refined min-istration to your intellectual needs, to accept the dry huses of a coarse and hard materialism, is something I cannot understand." ""Toder what seems to you the 'dry huses of a "orare and hard materialism," I replied, "I find the substantial grain called truth, Christine; and al-though I confess a taste for the toothsome confec-tionary and tempting whilped-syllabub which the Church deals out so lavishly to her children, yet I have learned from experience that such food soon close the appetite and debilitates the system. I find I need stronger, more nourishing, if less tempting ford. I own that the Church offers me inducements to return to her fold which tempt me sorely, which I refuse—as to-light, for instance—with tears of ago-nized self-denial." I would like to believe in a father-God, who would take a tender personal cognizance of my little needs and doings; to whom I could ap-ply in the hour of snifering with perfect assur-snes of instant help. I would like to believe in a father-God, who could take a tender personal cognizance of my little needs and doings; to whom I could ap-ply in the hour of snifering with perfect assur-snes of instant help. I would like the brotherly and sisterly companionship of pure, true men and wom-en; I would like to join hands with them in the pre-vention of crime and suffering. I would like the ec-stacy of an exalted religious hope and joy. I would like the assurance of a joyous, painless immortality. That is what the Church promises; but it fails of its promise to those who insist on keeping their judg-men tchear from the delusions of a blind, unquestion-nig faith. It is not because I wish, but because con-scifice of all these sweet religious associations, or a sacrifice of all these sweet religious associations, or a sacrifice of my individuality and exercise of reason. I made my choice of sacrifices understandingly, and have never regretted it. If I sometimes look back ingingly, it is never f

<text><text><text><text><text>

METHODISM AND SLAVERY.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--Now that the agency of the Presbyterian Church, through the influence of "The Two Hodges," in pro-moting slavery and producing the rebellion, has been shown up in THE INDEX (October 8) by "an ex-Presbyterian minister," will not some ex-Methodiat minister, through THE INDEX, show the influence that the Methodist Church exerted in the same di-rection? not forgetting to mention the famous New York Conference of 1844, when Biabop Andrews was deposed for holding slaves contrary to the Discipline; and the Southern delegates, exasperated at being beaten in a six weeks' context, in which they defend-ed slavery from the Bible, went home swearing ven-geance on the Methodist Church North, declaring that the dividing wedge had entered the Methodist Church, and that they would never rest till they had not only split the Church, but the Union also; which threat they faithfully fulfilled by stirring up the proslavery politicians, and causing the division of the Church and the rebellion, though not the destruc-tion of the Union, which they had predicted and tion of the Union, which they had predicted and atriven for. Who will say, after knowing these facts, that these two Churches, the Presbyterian and Methodist, had no more to do in causing the rebellion than all the pro-slavery politicians, North and South, combined? Will not some one write it up, and detail the facts, so that the honor of the deed may go down into church history, and there be embalmed forever? Does Parker Pillsbury know? ELLA E. Gissor

ELLA E. GIBSON.

BARRE, Mass., October 9.

WHAT WAS SLAVERY?

EDITOB OF THE INDEX:--Your excellent correspondent, in a recent atide celebrating "The Two Hodges," gave so full an expo-sition of the character and conduct of the General As-sembly of the Presbyterian Church on the subject of sition of the character and conduct of the General As-sembly of the Presbyterian Church on the subject of slavery, and its subsequent penalties on the nation, as to leave no room nor need for me to refer to it. And I will only asy that there was a day when even American Presbyterianism was not so "totally de praved" on the sin of slavery as it afterwards became under the corrupting culture of "the two Hodge" and the like of them. For instance, back so far 1793, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church— Church-

"Bissolved, That we do highly approve the general pri-cipies in favor of Universal Liberty which preval in America, and the interest which many of the Sinks have taken in promoting the abolition of slavery. They esmesh ly recommend it to all the members in their commons, to give these persons who are at present held in swritides such good education as to prepare them for the better es-joyment of freedom... And finally, they recommend to all their people to use the most prudent measures, co-sistent with the interest and state of civit with the countries where they live, to procure, eventually, the fun abolition of slavery in America."

The second annunciation of the sentiments of the General Assembly was made in 1794. Their senti-ment at that time was appended to a note to be one hundred and forty-second question of the large Cat-echism, on the eighth commandment, in these words :-

words:--"'I Tim. 1: 10. The law is made for man-stealers. This orime among the Jews exposed the perpetrators of it to capital punishment: Exodus 21: 16; and the spotte here classes them with shnoers of the first rank. The word has usee, in its original import, comprehends all who are con-cerned in bringing any of the human race into slavery, in retaining them in it. Hominum fures, qui serior vil liberos abducunt, retinent, vendunt, vel emut. Stealer of men are all those who bring off slaves or freeme, and keep, sell, or buy them. To steal a freeman, says fimita, is the bighest kind of theft. In other instances, we only steal human property, but when we steal or retain ment slavery, we selse those who, in common with ourselve, are constituted, by the original grant, lords of the rath. Gen. 1: 28."

In 1818, the General Assembly made a lengthy re-port of its views and wishes on the subject of alsory, of which the following are excerpts:-

por of the volume and where on the subject of mirely, of which the following are excerpts — "We consider the voluntary enslaving of one part of the human race by another as a gross violation of the most sprecious and accred rights of fuman nature; as uterly inconditioned in the moral system—it exclusions and accred rights of the most system—it exclusions and the moral science is a science to the moral system—it exclusion in the moral science is a science to the moral science is a science to the will of others whether they shall be received the moral science is a science of the gospel; whether they shall enjoy the ordinance of the gospel; whether they shall enjoy the ordinance of the gospel; whether they shall receive the ordinance of the consequences of slavery; consequences not imaginary, but while ordinance of the consequences of slavery; consequences on the pravise how the preview with the ordinans, when the is consistently faile, and enslave a population of their brethere on manifold, it is matifiedly the duty of all Christians, when the is consequences of always; consequences, and unmanity and reack on the state of the consequences of the trends, whether the best is the state into the pravise how whether they shall be trends and burner and the consequences and the previous of the trends, whether the shall enjoy the previous the duty of all Christians, when the is consistent of always with the duty of all Christians, when the is blot more by the ordinance of the shall be on the inclusion of always with the duty of all Christians and the isotopic the shall be on an and the section of the previous the inclusion of always with the duty of all Christians and the isotopic of always with the duty of all Christians and the isotopic the short them the isotopic the short the ordinance at the isotopic of the rest with the isotopic the short them is the sections to affect a tota boultion of always the duty of all Christians. When the isotopic the short the short the short and the section is the section is the secti

**2. Resolved, That slavery has existed from the days of those good old slave-holders and patriarchs, Abrilam, Isaac, and Jacob (who are now in the klugdom of hearm), to the time when the abroadte Fault sent a runnur when the his master Philemon, and wrote a Christian and fraitmail letter to this slave-holder, which we find still stands in the canon of the Scriptures-and that slavery has existed set since the days of the apostle, and does now exist."

since the days of the spostle, and does now exist." Such did slavery become under the tuitlon and the tutelage of "the two Hodges" and their reverend con-friences to whom was committed the education of the ministers and teachers of the Presbyterian Church of our Northern and Southern States. The consequences of such teaching, your corre-spondent to whom I referred at the beginning of this letter did but begin to describe. The catalysm of blood and fire which burst at Fort Sunter and ore-spread the South was a part of it. Only part. The end is not yet. I close by saying once more, Here is Christianity, self-interpreted, self-illustrated, self-illumined. Here is Christianity, judged, not by its bark, nor its blossoms, but by its fruits. And whose readeth, let him understand. DAINER PILLSBURT. TOLEDO, Ohio, October 28, 1874.

THE CONTRADICTION

MB. EDITOB:-In a copy of what purports to be the new Constitu-tion of Fennsylvania I find the following: "No man can of right be compelled to support any place of wor-ship, or to maintain any ministry, against his con-sent." SCTL sent." I would like to ask whether church property is ex-empt from taxation in Pennsylvania; and, if so, whether every man in that State consents thus to support places of worship. Yours, Q.

[1. To the best of our knowledge and belief, church property is exempted from taxation in Pennsylvania. 2. There is no reason to suppose that in that State "every man" consents to pay taxes indirectly for the support of the churches. Probably many submit to do this under protest, there as here.

3. It is coming to be generally perceived that ex-emption of the churches from taxation is indirect taxation of the community for the churches. The contradiction pointed out by "Q." exists in nearly all the States. Either the principle of religious liberty or the practice of church-exemption must be consciously disowned. This is one of the numerous issues between Christianity and freedom which still await a practical settlement; and it is the object of the Liberal League to see that they are settled right-How any one can fall to see an "object" and "plan" for radical organization, so long as these issues are unsettled, is a standing mystery to many minds.-ED.]

INDEXIANA.

<text><text><text><text><text>

condition of man, and much yet is to be schleved. The theologian claims inspiration from heaven, and a first recognition from man for his message as infallible authority. To correct this error, the friends of free inquiry should invoke the aid of sci-ence to ascertain man's true relation to the world and source of all being. The same is true in the realm of politics. Theories, however brilliant, which have not the basis of scientific data, should not be urged upon the popular will; and the cry of equality will not settle questions of grave import in the political issues of the day. The great question of the relation of distinct races of men, to live in jurtaposition har-moniously in this country, can only be settled by science. A conscientious and scientific atudy of Ethnology will afford more light on this question than a thousand discourses on the ideal beatitudes of equality.

than a thousand discourses on and the second second necessity of adopting laws in accordance with Nature and the avigencies of each race. The three discourses made at the last May meeting of the Free Religious Association, on the true relation of Free Religion to Christianity, are all marked with a generous spirit. Mr. Caithrop's address, however, is so far toned down that hardly any Christian doctrine in it. Your discourse meets the issue more distinct-in it. Your discourse meets the issue more distinct-in. Your discourse meets the issue more distinct-itan world has made the interpretation of Christianity for us; and it is this interpretation that is particular-ly valueless, in the light of modern science, as an infallible method of human regeneration. It makes human activities useless, unless an entire consecra-tion to another is acknowledged as the only source of religious and moral enlightenment. Substitution becomes the only medium of salvation. The evolu-tion of the human faculties to their full fruition, as achieved by human agency through obedience to strictly natural laws, is not recognized. Mr. Higginson's discourse is marked by a free and easy style; but he thinks we cannot spare Chris-tianity yet. Well, this is accommodating. But the question will ever recur by way of criticism, Why cherieh and revere an institution that is founded in erroneous conceptions of human nature? The Chris-tianity of the Church has been tried over eighteen hundred years, and failed to produce fruit in propor-tion to its claims. The practical and rational teach-ings of Jesus have, however, saved the Church from utter ruin, notwithstanding the domination of eccle-siastical authority over the human soul. I have yet to learn that the most essentially rationalistic teach-ings of Jesus constitute ecclesiastical Christianity. While I am in full accord with your journal in the domain of religion, free inquiry, etc., I do not fellow-hip your political bias. I claim to be a Jeffersonian Democrat of the old type, but hope to cultivate a generous spirit of toleration on all the great ques-tions at issue in our political life. A. N. S.

TYNDALL VERSUS GUIZOT ON THE DARK AGES.

<text><text><text><text>

principal heresies. After the fall of the empire she had to encounter new pagans, and was surroundedy by barbarian kings and chieftains with feelings and traditions opposed to her. She endeavored to re-stablish the empire, and similar relations with it to those which had previously existed, by inviting some one of the barbarian kings to become emperor. The bishops and priests of the fifth and sixth centuries, fall-ing to accomplish this object, and seeing the rude chiefs, interfering in the affairs of the Ohurch, by saizing its walth, nominating to bishoprics, and appropriating ellees of its territory, had not any other means of de-fence than to separate the spiritual from the temporal post to be under the yoke of power; and Guizot says that a government of spiritual power did not exist until the tearth century, when the Church undertook to govern human thought and liberty, private morals and opinions, by the illegitimate use of physical tore.

Guizot says: "Up to the present time [forty-five years ago] philosophic and scholastic history has been partial and limited." He says that "justice should be done" to that bold and scute metaphysician, great years ago] philosophic and scholastic history has been partial and limited." He says that "justice should be done" to that bold and scute metaphysician, great scholastic philosopher, and much-forgotten panthelst, John Scotas. Our popular historians and "lettered respite" ought to teach as something more respecting the scholastics than that their disputes turned preheasibility; as, for instance, "How many angels and ance on the point of a needle?" To show that "one liberty of thought in the study of religion" and the interpretation of Scripture prevailed during Biskog of Kome, had not the power to benumb and paralyze the whole intellect of Christian Europe, nor to compel Christian teachers tamely to accept the dogmas of the Roman Church, Guizot quotes from Scotus' Division of Nature: "I proclaim the things biskog of the Roman Church, Guizot quotes from Scotus' Division of Nature: "I proclaim the things of the Roman Church, Guizot quotes from Scotus' Division of Nature: "I proclaim the things and infines concerning the sole principle of all things, and infines concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things, and firms concerning the sole principle of all things." "The solution" "Sciture does not always employ preche and litter." "The replies of the barbarian kings to the Roman fate the they were "buried in the grossest darkness of pagan superstition." Theodoret said, "We cannot contend the spite" in the single of the constraints doed must. The done said, "We cannot contend religion; no che can be forced to believe in spite of himself." Theodoter said, "Since the Delito." "Those therefore, who attempt to do. All that we precess of the weremender baving reserve the Division and the single of

"IS THERE & GODI"

NEWPOBT, R.I., 25 Oct., 1874.

NEWPORT, R.I., 25 Oct., 1874. EDITION OF THE INDEX: Dear Sir,—As Frederic R. Honey doubtless intends to answer the question which he puts at the close of his article in your issue of October 22; namely, "Has God in some way or other given us to know what to do for the regulation of our lives?" and as he will probably deal with that question (as he has dealt with the question of the existence of a Deity) with the aid of reason, it is important that every error in logic should be rectified as it is made. His argument put in syllogistic form may be stated thus:—

THE "DESOLATE CHILDREN" AGAIN.

FROM A MISSOURI COBRESPONDENT.

If the thousands whose childhood has been "des-olated" by the gloomy teachings of Orthodoxy could tell their experience of their fears of heil and the devil, how they sought to believe in these horrors against the repugnance of outraged conscience and dawning reason, the advocates of these vanishing auperstitions would not reproach "infidels" for the desolation of their children's lives. I think the teaching of the Orthodox religions were never so capable of "desolating" the lives of their adherents as at present; for I believe that our sympathies are more tender, our whole spiritual natures more sensi-tive than ever before, and the effect of any belief that violates these higher feelings is naturally greater than it has been in the past when man lived more in the narrow sphere of selfshness. Joogle THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 5, 1874.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1  $\overline{\mathbf{7}}$  $\mathbf{8}$ Advertisements. 07 LEADING INDEX WRITERS. THE INDEX. THE PATRONAGE of the liberal advertising public is respect-fully solicited for THE KNEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-ing pages of THE KNEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generous support. To this end, all improper or "bilind" advertisements, all quack adver-tisements, and all advertisements helieved to be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be be admitted. THE INDEX must not be being Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM. A Weekly Journal T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, DEVOTED TO W. H. SPENCER, FREE RELIGION. F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY, PUBLISHED BY THE A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT. INDEX ASSOCIATION, be admitted. The investment made by advertisers, who will nall cases accept the responsibility for their own statements. are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX. and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 32 cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo-AT No. 1 Tremont Play e, Beston "TT ADVERTISING BATES. graphs, \$1.50. EDITOR: THE INDEX. Address. TRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: INDEX TRACTS On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash la paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor. ABRAM WALTER STEVENS No. 1.-Truths for the Times, by F. E Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. and "Modern Principles." MB. CHARLES and "Modern Principles." Mis. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe-cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-unally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used. "I have now T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.L. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass ADVERTISERS. TO R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Flain, Mass. The following states the experience of a uccessful Bookseller who has advertised in read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to F. W. NEWMAN, England. THE INDEX:-TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 20, 1872. To THE INDEX:-To THE INDEX Asso., Toledo, O.: Gentlemen,-Having had occasion to adver-tise in your paper during the past two years quite ingely, I take pleasure in staling that I have always obtained very satisfactory re-turns-better in fact than from book adver-tised in. Not only have I obtained immedi-ate results, but orders have frequently been encodived months after the insertion of the advertisement, showing that your paper is kept on file and referred to by your readers. Yours truly, HENSU'S, STREMEIRS. almost every word." New Edition. CHARLES VOYSEY, England. 10 cents: 12 copies \$1.00. -Fear of the Living God, by O. THE INDEX aims-B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-To increase general intelligence with respect presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents. to-religion : To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual No. 3.- Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, free for slavery, character for creed, cathol Special arrangements will be made at red errors of the Bible, both tions an d terms for long-time or extended advertisements. Address THE INDEX, Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 centa; 12 copies \$1.00. No. 4.- Christian Propagandism, by F. NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and institution of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Pigures, Facts, Boston sting Extracts. Price 10 cents and Int 12 copies \$1.00. ublic activities. The Index Association, No. 5 .- "God in the Constitution," by In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-OFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the purpose of publishing Tracts, Books, and copies \$1.00. No. 6 .- "The Sabbath," by Parker Pillsces Sabbatarian sur THE INDEX. bury, de New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies A Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational \$1.00. Religion No. 7.—"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every It is the object of THE INDEX to give public niterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and best matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society. child to be educated, and the duty of th State to ensure it an education, Pric cents; 12 copies 50 cents. No. 8.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-It is edited by FRANCIS E. ABBOT, as THE INDEX will be henceforth to organ ditorial Contributors : terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents. O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous chara ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Consti SPECIAL FEATURES. WILLIAM H. SPENCER, Haverhill, Mass. The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX. No. 10 .- The Impeachment of Christi REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England. anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-alism. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, abouid subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly er-position of the differences between Free Thought and Evancellesi Christianity. and as the best five to one hundred copies. No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies \$1.00. angelical Christianity, and as the be ical reads all informed of the argu-sats which the Church will e of becoming well infe ble books and periodicals, and miscellane licity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.

ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and

LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and educational institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be d out of the Constitutions and Statute of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un broken front, and the chief practical aim of a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FRREDOM Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con tinue to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOYSKY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radrs. Other interesting correspond ence, communications, extracts from valua articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to as circumstances shall render possible

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.

Proceedings of the Original Sec-ing in 1867, at which the Fre-Boligious Association was Organ-ized. Containing advesses by 0.8 Poth-ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucreis Mot. Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Join. son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Els. with Mott. Re ginson, and Ralph Waldo Em

(This pamphlot has not been on sale for , number of years, and many perso all of the Annual Reports succes a who have seding do not possess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Rest-ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains emays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and East straint in Religion," and by David A. Wasson on "The Relation of Social Sel ance to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Deston, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Har-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowiand Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outline of Judalam" by Rabbi Wise.

Proceedings of Third Annual Heet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains empr by O. B. Frothingham on the "Ides of the by O. B. Frothingham on the "idea of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "DaNatars of Beligion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney as "Ba-ligion as a Social Force, especially in reli-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," said as F. E. Abbot on "The Fatare of Belgiou Organization, as affected by the Split of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," foi-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanim," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligion of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Esligion Old and New in Indis;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calibrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Ree-ing, 1872. S5 cents. (For a work S cents such.) Contains casys by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Charch in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Beligion as the Expression of a Permi of the Human Mind," and by 0. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Calla C ..... Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcot Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Mest-ing, 1873. S5 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by Samea Johnson on "Freedom in Baligion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Edvert Die Owen. T. W. Hierinson, Samnel Longiel-Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfellow, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lecratia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four ar more, 25 cents éach.) Contains cerkdins reports of President Prothinghan's adress on (The Validity of the Renau Patients) on "The Validity of the Free Beligious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Fiatform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Babh Bonneschein's speech on "Reformed Juä-ism," and of the statements by Messa Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of theire-spective attitudes towards Gristianily-ga "Christian " if Leit Christian " and "Fras "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Ertra-Christian,"-together with the Secret ry's Annual Report, and letters from Kesh-ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. Wasson

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Ele-ginson. 25 cents. Religions of China, by Wm. H. Chapning. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas Parton. 10 cents, singly; package 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tro-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. POTTER. Sec. F. E. A. affict These publications are for sale at th

WM. J. POTTER, Sec. F. E. 4.

THE INDEX :-

CULTURED FREE THOUGHT.

ABRAM W. STEVENS, with the following list of WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

and Ev ments and the moves have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a dis Almost every number contains a discourse or sading article, which alous is worth the price of the year's subscription. Inadia

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, 1 Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Orford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, says: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religion in the widest sense of the word should be felt in America—that such a journal in Supland, have been started and so powarfully supported by the best minds of your country,—is a good sign of the times. There is no such journal in England, France, of Gormany; though the number of so-called religions or the-ological periodicals is, as you know, very large," And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Send $3.00 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

m trial. Addm THEINDET

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

No. 12.—Is Romanism Heal Christian-ity1 Two essays by Francis W. Nowman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, anal the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14 - A Study of Religion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Beligion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Beligion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass. THE INDEX.

4. PUBLICATIONS OF THE FREE Report of the Addresses and other

538

POPULAR BOOKS SENT BY MAIL AT PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH.

Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX. ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets. 150 Concord Days. 150 Records of a School. A new edition. 150 ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two yols. 150 vola intervention and reaction workers. Two Hospital Skotches and Camp and Fireslas Stories 1.40 An Old-Fashioned Girl. 1.50 Litic Men. 1.50 Shawi-Straps de Skotras 1.00 Work; A Skotr of Experience 1.15 ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 A UTERRACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50 Villa Eden; The Country-House on the Rhino. Eddiweiss German Tailes. BACON'S Ensays ..... 1.25 BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 2.50 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ...... 3.00 BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON), The Begin-2.00 BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... $.2 BUOKLE (HENRY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the entire work, with a somplete index. 2 vois...... 6.00 work, with a complete index. 2 vola...... DABLYLE'S Works. Chespedition. Compris-ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, -vols.; Freuch Edvolution, 3 vols.; Preters, dev. the Grash, 10 vols.; Creus, 1 vol.; John Storling; John St. Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Storling; 1 vol.; Latter Day Famphlets, 1 vol. Any volume sold aspurately. Stroke. Lon-don, 1571-J. Per vol. Any volume and the study of its Morbid Condi-tions to the Training and Discipline of the the Study of the Morbid Condi-tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-tions. CERVANTES' Don Quirote ...... 1.50 CHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D.). The Per-fect Life. In Twolve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Heavy Channing. CLAREE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great Religions CLAREE (Dr. E. H.) Saz in Education ...... 1.25

CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pilgrimage. ORRETATION and Conservation of Forces: A Sories of Experiions by Groves, Holm-bolts, Mayor, Varaday, Linbig and Carpen-ter: with an Introduction by Edward L. Youman, M.D. 1 vol.....

B.....

DALL (MES. CAROLINE E). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Citizenship.

Historical Pictures Estouched; a Volume of Miscellandes. In two parts. Part I., "Studies, Pictures, and Pancies" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewaka, being a Practical Illustration of "Woman's Eights to Labor" Demostication. Typis, insurance ...... DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Reason and Seeking Truth in the Sciences...... 9.9 EMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Series... Essays. Second Series.... Soussy and Southing Strate Historical EVANS (Z. P., FL. D), First Historical Transformations of Christianity, From the French of Athanase Coqueroi the Younger The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Leasing, Translated from the Garman of Adolf Stahr. J vol. FARRAR'S Oritical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion ...... 7.0 PEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. FISEE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers. 2.00 PROTHINGHAM (C. B.) Beligion of Hu-manity Beligies of the Unbeligions Child's Book of Beligion Life of Theodore Parker. FULLER'S (MABGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 vols ...... GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genin An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life... Literary and Social Judgments Creed of Christandom. GEOTE'S LIFE. Douplied from Family Doo-nmants, Private Momorands, and Original Lattors to and from Yarlous Prionds. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-trait . 5.00 Hall HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter a Camp. Book II. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book III. In France. Thoo Unknown Elver. The Unknown Elver. The Intallectual Life. Chapters on Animals. AMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Se 1.00 Child World. Part First..... Logical Lectures
 Logical Lectures
 HAWHORNES (NATHANIEL) Workn. New Hustrabod Library Edition. Nine vois.
 Per vol.
 Twice-Toid Tales.
 Mosses from an Old Manas.
 The Societ Letter, and The Bilthedale Bomance.
 The Horizon the Seven Gables, and The Bomance.
 The Marbie Pana.
 The Marbie Pana.
 The American Note-Books.
 The American Note-Books.
 Our Old Home, and Septimius Feiton. HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers ... Malbone. An Oldport Romance... Army Life in a Black Regiment. Atlantic Beasys... Oldport Days... 2.00 Gingort Days HOWELLS (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed-ding Journey Subtroan Sickhese Venetian Life. Tealian Journey A Chance Acguaintance 3.00

 BUME'S (DAVID) Baasys and Life.
 1.75

 BUNC'S (MES. BELEN). VERSS.
 1.25

 Bits of Travel
 1.25

 BUX.LEY'S Man's Place in Nature.
 1.25

 Mora Criticians on Darwis and Adminis.
 .00

 A Manual of the Anatomy of Vertebrated animals.
 .00

 Lay Sermona, Addresses, and Beviews.
 .13

 INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems.
 .20

 Bongs of Seven.
 .30

 BUGLOW'S (JEAN) Pross. Off the Skelling Studies for Stories
 .14

 By Studies for Stories
 .15

1.75

It and a second second

ERROLD (DOUGLAS), Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.30 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Belation to Universal Beligion.

KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humprons..... 2.0

LEOKY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe, 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne. 3 vols ...... 8.00

LEWES' Physiology of Common Life, 3 vois, 300 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Fresent Day, 3 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founds-Mons of a Creed.

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50

LEWIN (BEV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.00 LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 2 vola Prose Works. Portrait

LOWELL'S (J. R.) Foems. 2 vols The Biglow Papers. First Sectes.... The Biglow Papers. Second Series Amoog my Books.... My Stady Windows..... 4.00 1.50 1.50 1.50 2.90

LOWIELL (MIRS. A. C.) Posies for Children. -.75

MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's

MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosop ical and Theological. 2 vols. Fer vol... The New Amnilies of Faith 2.50

MAURICE (Erv. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind......

MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of

MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed-Time Stories.... 1.0

1.5

Enkcose from Kentucky. NEWMAN (PRANCIS W.) A History of the Phases of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my Creed. The Soul, its Sorrows and its Aspirations. Catholic Union: Easays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy. Theism, Doct wonknose of Proiseitanthan. The In Dict Wonknose of Proiseitanthan. The Soul Bock Wonknose of Proiseitanthan. 4.50 2.00

1.70

PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

2.25

vol. 1.36 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-est English editions, with many additions, thear making it, with the novels, the cheapest and most complete Thackersy in the market.

THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in

HOREAU S (A. D.) WHORA, DI, MICH IN	10.00
the Woods	3.00
	2.00
The Maine Woods	2.04
Cape Cod	2.0
Lotters.	2.04
A Yankee in Canada	1.01
A Week on the Concord and Merrimac	24
Rivers	2.0
TOT OT PARA PR B . The Paste Mistore
VLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind	9.50
Primitive Culture. 2 vols	5 04
Primitive Collure. 2 vole	0.09
YNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-ofor	1.00
Light and Electricity	2.00
Light and Electricity	1.9
House of Pressing in the Alus	2.0
HUDTE OF BLUICIES IN LUG BLUE	- C 173

 Hoars of Exercises in the Alge
 2.46

 Hoats as Mode of Motion.
 2.00

 On Sound
 2.00

 Badlant Hest.
 5.00

 Porms of Water.
 1.50

 Lectures on Light.
 1.50

 Proct. Tyodall.
 500

1.50

VEISS (JOHN.) American Beligion ...... 1.56 Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols........ 6.00

With the second second

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poems. 2 vols .... 4.00 Child Life ..... 2.00

ADDRESS INDEX. HE т

1 Tramont Place, Boston.

Damaging Google

539

2.38

8.00

.36

.80

SCOTT'S (THOMAS) The English Life of Jasus. Second Edition. 2.00 SMILES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help...... 1.50

PROCTOE (RIGHARD A.) Other Worlds than Ours: the Plantily of Worlds stud-led under the Light of Each Worlds stud-led under the Light of Each of the Scientific Besearches. With Colored Fields and the Uight Science for Leisure Hours. A Beries of Familiar Easars on Scientific Subjects, Natural Phenomena. Mater of Phenomena. Beauys on Astronomy: A Series of Papers and Phenomena. Beauth of Plantes and 24 Woodcuts. The Moon, her Motions, Aspects, Scenery, and Physical Conditions, with Three La-Mongraphes and many Plantes. Charts, etc.

Danta (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of

SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in th Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Reavan Badies

STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Path and the New Life of Jesus. Anthorized transis-tion. 2 rols.

THACKEEAY'S (W. K.) Norek. Honsehold Zditton. Complete in s volumes. Per vol., 1.25 Vally Fair. The Newcomes. Advantures of Philip. Pendemnis.

The Virginians. Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings. Econebold Edi-tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-piete in 5 vols. With new Portrait. Per vol.

Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c.
 Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c.
 Snobs, Sketchca, Denis Duval, &c.
 Four Georges, Humorists, &c.
 Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unreprinted Pieces.

THAXTER'S (Mus. CELLA) Among the Isles of Shoals. 1.00

BOSTON

Other Organizations

Form a Liberal League,

LIBERALS!

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOFTON.

If all will unite and work, the results so to who are inclined to

OUT DOWNER.

Address

Per order of the EXBOUTIVE COMMITTEE

we are ready to render such amista

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three TYNDALL'S ADDRESS. r mors pupils, girls or boys, over thirtsen, will be received into the family of the subsorib-er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, BHERBORN, MASS. We have now for sale at this office the latest edition of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the British Association. It is the edition revised and anthorized by Prof. Tyn-CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT .dall himself, and contains a preface by him and additions to the Address, made since the delivery. Price, THIRTY CASTS. THE INDEX, Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston PHOTOGRAPHS OF MORSE'S NEW BUST OF THEODORE PARKER. Cabinet size. Price 50 cents. Sent by mail on receipt of price, Address S. H. MORSE, PUBLISHERS. 25 Bromfield Street, Boston. Also for sale at the office of THE INDEL. FRE E HE T SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND RE-

VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL MUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Massums, Art Gallerles, so, on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-oursions; to provide during the winter "Sun-day Evenings for the People," and generally to promote everything conductive to rational recreation on Sunday. The Free Sunday Advocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Kondon; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Judge, Hampstee. The ASWOAL BURGERFICON for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one dollar (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 256 Righ Holborn, London, W.C., England.

256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

CHARLES SUMNER'S GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES CONCERNING AMERICA.

By CHARLES SUMNER.

Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown 8vo., Cloth extra, $2. Aside from its literary and historical merits, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which Mr. Sumner was engaged before his death. "PROPERTIO VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the ory of our country, so full is it of pass in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament ed author has also given interesting sketches

Sent, post-paid, on receipt of pri-Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE."

By Andrew Jackson Davis.

Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugai Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plate in overy vital particular. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dis-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and meen.

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concernaever-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not care a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal hove, and the duites of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as attractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.—Gold-m Age.

Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in hand-bome cloth, 75 cents; in full gift and ertra blading, 31. Postage free. The trade sup-piled on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Publishing House" of A. J. DAVIS& CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with siz-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y.	Repeal o

FREE DISCUSSION is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, 599 Washing- ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 2% and 7% F.M. All thair relates to the Belligions, Political, and Social interests of manking consti- tiote the subjects for discussion. THE insuf- and index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalbor Hall.	whereby church and of injustly scempted from of taration. As a means to this on general circulation sov
CHABLES SUMNEE. A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen- ator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sals at THE Inbus office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-fity cents. Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	on Church Ersmption Abbot which appeared We have already is last of which is near We desire soon to i
TO NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.	Another L of this and other tr that we can place a c

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I abould like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELLIS, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

Tremont Fide, Doston TO PUBLISHER of Liberal views desires a sti-uation on a weekly paper. Can set six thou-sand ems a day, work hand-prees, make up forms, etc. Has done some job work, and can do what is necessary in a country print-nece, and considers himself competent to take charge of a country weekly. Is sober and industrious. Wages wanted, at lesst $13 per week. Address Will tENNEDY, Box 1057, ST PAUL, MINN.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) ou receipt of $2.50, $2.-of asch other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX,

	1 Tremo	nt Place, Boston.	I
TWO	NEW	BOOKS.

MODERN CHRISTIANITY, A CIV-ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the author of The Fight at Dame Europa's Sche

THE IMPEACEMENT OF THE HOUSE OF BRUNSWICK. By

Address THE INDEX. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

A new and most interesting book for Full of melodious Songs, Duets, Glees and 4-part Songs, all easy and perfectly adapted to a Singing School Course, but at the same time forming a collection well writed for the use of College and other Choirs, Singing So-clettes, &c. By H. R. Palmer, assisted by L. O. Emerson.

Price, 75 sts. Per dosen, $7.50.

A most attractive Plano Piece: SOUVENIR DE LIMA, MAZOURKA, $1.00. One of the "Postnumous Wonks of L. M. "GOTTECHALK."

THE LEADER!

A new and excellent collection of Music for CHOIRS, CONVENTIONS and SINGING CLASSES. Prepared by those most successful compos-ers, H. R. Paimer, of Chicago, and L. O. Emerson, of Boston

Price, $1.85, or $13.00 Per Dezen.

For your next Sunday School Song Book, send for the RIVER or LIVE. By Perking and Bentley. 35 cents.

All books and music sent, post-paid, for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., BOSTON. CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.

111 BEOADWAY, NEW YORK.

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.	NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding MILIA. Bone, Sizee, Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Mustral of paraphicts free. Address
Our organization some time since decided to di- ract its efforts for the present towards scouring	181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Oblo.
the state is a state in the state of the sta	A CHEAP OFFER!
Repeal of the Laws whereby church and other corporate property is	A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACES, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed is any address on the presyment of TO CETL Address THE INDEX, No. 1 TREMONT FILMER, unjustly exampled from its share of the burden of taxation.	Ator & Alemony Fince, Boston, Many
As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a	THE AMERICAN EDITION
TBACT	MONCURE D. CONWAY'S SACRED ANTHOLOGY,
on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr. Abbot which appeared in THE INDEX of Nov. IT. We have already issued three editions, the last of which is nearly exhausted. We desire soon to issue	A BOOK OF ETHINICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sen postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TERMORT PLACE,
Another Large Edition	Boston, Mass.
of this and other tracts on the subject, so that we can place a copy in the hands of	G. L. HENDERSON & CO., BANKERS.
EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE,	LEBOY, MINN.
	Branch Office, 197 Broadway, S. T.
and generously to supply the calls for them in other States. To do this, we need funds; for, although we have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston League, with its various other arpenses, to bear the entire argense alone. Will not, then, I	Money Invested in First Mortgage on Im- proved Farms in Minnesota and lows, num- ning three to five years, with Coupon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent. canutally in ad- vance, or ten per cent. per annun, annully, advance, or 12 per cent. per annun, annully, free of expense to the Loaner. 10 per cent. paid on receipt of mosty at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular. 137 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.
All Friends of the Movement	REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, come forward and help us with liberal donations ? We frequently receive communications from	Investments in Real Estate in Chicage and vicinity.
parties wishing tracts to distribute, asking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we	if judiciously made, are the best and milet modes of employing capital. The old shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or 30 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will	Real Estate and Loan Agency be gratefully received for the purpose of circu- ating them gratuitously throughout the country. Last winter this subject was brought be-	ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STRAT Chicago (Established 1885), fore the Legislature of the State, and many petitions were presented asking a repeal of these unjust laws. The matter is still in their hands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon. Meanwhile the	Guarantees perfect title and ample scenity in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstchass securities always on hand, in- terest and principal collected without chars. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real axias own- ers respectfully solicited.
Voice of the People,	REASONS FOR USING THE favoring justice and equity, should be dis- tinctly heard. We shall soon be ready to send out	EUREKA SPOOL SILK.
BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN.	It is full longth. It is full size. It is
thus giving an opportunity to those who have not already done so, to protest against this continued wrong.	smooth and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine ase.
Let us make it	Many kinds of spool slik are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but
THE LARGEST PETITION	a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unfit will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please	for use. The ladies will always find the fa- reka Silk aractily as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacture's name indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it. SEND IN THEIR NAMES? RADICAL AND LITEBABY We would may, also that we feel deeply the LECTURES WE188, JOHN in this State, to cooperate with us in securing equality and justice, by preasing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are BADICAL LECTURES.

The Idea of Here An Act of Faith. Intelligence in Religion. Beligion and S Heart in Religion.

SHAMSPEARIAN LECTURE. FIRST SERIES. 1. Cause of Laughter.

- 2. Irony and Humor,
- Arony and Humor.
   Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Touchsteet.
   Ajax in Trollus and Cressida: The For-ter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear.

6. Felstaff.

- 6, Hamlet,
  - SECOND SERIES.
- 1. The Women of Shakspeare.
- 2. Portia
- 5. Ophelia. 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.
- 5. " " " " 6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Charack JOHN WEIBS Address
  - B E. Brookline St., Bosts

manning Google

Charles Bradlaugh Charles Stadiaugh. The price of each of these books, in paper covers, is SEVENTY-SIVE CENTS. In cloth binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. THE SONG MONARCH SINGING CLASSES.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1874.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

WHOLE NO. 255.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesizatioal property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation.

property shall no longer be exempt from just taration. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

shall cease.
We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religions wor-hip, shall be prohibited.
We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

or all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cause. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-inhed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alities of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly onforo-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

Sealed. S. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and imparital liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of tha United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other spe-oial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION. Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-ration impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the aristence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-elves together under the following

ABTICLES OF AGREEMENT. ABT. 1.- The name of this Association shall be THE LID-BRAL LEAGUE OF

Ant. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Ant. 5.-Any person may become a member of the Lesgue y subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agreeby su ment. Asr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Excou-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Becretary shall be ar-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Ast, 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-mar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ALTOCH 1. Brottow 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an efficiency or prohibiting the free exercise thereed; or advide the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow. Brottow 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an efficiency of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or advide the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the fore exercise thereof; or advide the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the second for a redress of grievances. No religion the tree down of subreces, or as advide event of a redress of grievances. No religions and no person aball ever the required as a condition of suffrage, or and for the person advide ever the any State be deprived of any office or public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity in consequence of any public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or rendered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity in consequence of any public or private duty or rendered incompetent is give evidence in any court of law or equity in consequence of any public or private duty or the subject of religion.

'n

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. GLIMPSES.

INFLATION will not be so popular in the next Congress as in its predecessor. IS GENERAL MITRE, of the Argentide Republic, a relative of the notorious Tiars? KULLMANN, the would-be assassin of Prince Bismarck, ought to be rebaptized as Kill-man.

GENERAL BUTLER is elected to stay at home. What is going to become of "Butlerism"? Can the little thing toddle alone?

"CHRISTIAN CITIZENS, vote as you pray !" This was placarded all over the walls in Boston and vicinity before the late election. The question now is how did they pray?

PROFESSOR J. H. SEELYE, who has just been elected to Congress in this State, is an ardent advocate of the Christian Amendment of the United States Constitution.

IT IS STATED that the grave of Thomas Paine, near New Rochelle, which remained so long undisturbed, has been recently entirely obliterated by Simeon Lester, upon whose farm it was.

THE EVANGELICAL SECTS favor prohibitory legislation with wonderful unanimity; and scarcely a convention is held by any of them without some resolution advocating it. The fact is significant.

STEPREN PEARL ANDREWS will lecture on "Universology, Integralism, and Pantarchism," at Parker Memorial Hall, on the evenings of November 16, 17, 20, 24, 30, and December 1. Admission, thirty-five cents: for the course, one dollar.

A LANDED PROPRIETOE named Korsnicki, according to a Posen paper, sent his carriage to Xions for his surgeon ; but, the latter having given a ride to an excommunicated priest named Kubeczak, the owner burned the carriage and dismissed the surgeon. Bigotry is hard to kill.

THE PROHIBITION POLICY has received an emphatic rebuke in Massachusetts. The Republican majority have defeated their own candidate, Governor Talbot, and elected the Democratic ex-Mayor Gaston, of Boston, to succeed him, although the Legislature is largely Republican still. The reason was evidently Governor Talbot's prohibitory vetoes.

THE CABLE announces that a grand international congress is to be held in London to maintain the doctrine of Papal Infallibility, reassert the Pope's right to temporal as well as spiritual power, and declars it the bounden duty of all Christians to return to allegiance to Rome. This congress is convened in obedience to instructions from the Vatican.

A PUBLIC CONVENTION is to be held in Boston, about the middle of December, in favor of the Christian Amendment. The favorers of this movement intend to present a petition to Congress in support of it, in 1876, signed by two millions of names. They reported some 56,000 names, obtained in a few weeks, at their annual convention in Pittsburgh nearly a year ago.

RABBI COHEN, of Syracuse, N. Y., preached for Rev. Mr. Mundy lately in that city. Over this entirely natural occurrence Mr. J. L. Barlow, a "close communion Baptist," walls pitcously in the Amer-ican Wesleyan, calling the occasion "the queerest Sabbath service at which I ever officiated as spectator," and concluding that the public were "all taken in and done for together."

PEOPLE NOWADAYS are apt to resent the sugges tion that they cherish superstitions. They profess "total abstinence" in this direction. But some of them remind us of the man who, on remarking that he had eaten forty-nine eggs for breakfast, and on being asked why he had not eaten one more to make up the suppose I would make a hog of myself for one egg?" IT IS SAID in the preface to Modern Christianity a Civilized Heathenism (a book, by the way, that no INDEX reader should leave unread): "Clearly enough, if Christianity is the best means of civilizing mankind, it did not come from God; and, if it came from God through Christ, it is of all the methods most unlikely to promote the civilization of mankind." That is, civilization and Christianity contemplate objects so opposite, the one looking solely to this world and the other to the next, that both cannot be accomplished together.

round fifty, indignantly exclaimed, "What! do you

THIS IS the way in which the Saturday Review classifies reformers : "There are several familiar types of reformers. There is the reformer who promises the most tremendous results from some trumpery little change, perhaps scarcely more than a nominal change, in the existing system. There is the reform er who, for the sake of an infinitesimal and doubtful advantage, is willing to turn everything topsy-turvy; and there is the reformer who, having a good case on one point, discredits and obscures it by mixing it up with all sorts of irrelevant matter, and jumping at large conclusions from a few small facts." If these are the only species of reformer known to the Saturdny Review, it may be forgiven for being so conservstive. They all grow on this side the water, together with native species that would scare the "Britishers" out of their wits. What would the Saturday say to a champion of progress who argued that, because there are some thirty thousand millions of property in this country, the volume of currency should be swelled to the same amount, that there might be a paper dollar for every dollar of real wealth? We have heard that opinion gravely advanced; and it reminded us of the Southern rebel who said he used to carry his change to market in a hand-cart and bring his beefsteak home in his porte-monnale. That picture would be a photograph of the fact, if our reformatory financier had his way. But then there are re formers of a more wholesome sort, of whom the Saturday seems to be in blessed ignorance.

PROFESSOE HUXLEY made an address at the opening of the new Medical School at Owens College, Manchester, of which some very interesting extracts are contained in Nature for October 8. Those who fear (groundlessly, as we think) that science is in danger of totally overshadowing literature will be reassured by this specimen of Huxley's thought: "I trust that the position of the Arts Faculty in this institution will never by a hairbreadth or shadow be diminished, but that a sound and thorough training in literature and general knowledge will be regarded henceforth, as very properly it is now, as the essential foundation in the intellectual life of every educated man; and let me say, to no person is such education and such training of greater importance than to us who are called men of science. Our occupations are very engrossing, and they can be pursued with success only by the intensest stress and attention, and we are obliged even to limit ourselves to particular fractions and particular portions of our own study, if we are to make any advance therein; and unless we have the good fortune to be trained in early youth to take a broad and general view of the interests of human nature, unless our tastes are disciplined and refined, and unless we are led to see that we are cltizene and men before anything else, I say it will go very hard indeed with men of science in future generations, and they will run the risk of becoming scientific pedants when they should be men, philos-ophers, and citizens." Professor Huxley and Professor Tyndall are alike examples of the conspicuous blending of literary with scientific culture, and are doing much to dissipate the crude notion that the two are unfavorable to cac's other.

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

 Sr. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Sacretaries.
 BOSTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries.
 JEFFERDON, OBIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Sacretary. Secretary. BAN JOSE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Batch. Becretary. ToLEDO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-tary. tary. VINELAND' N. J. - John Gage, President; Sus M. Clute, Secretary. Beoretary. JUNGTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Scoretary. OLATEZ, KAR.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, pretary. SOTT, Mics.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, retary. Darra Secretary. Bunneville, Mics. - A. G. Eastman, President; W. R. Enowles, Secretary. Ososola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Becretary. Barts, Ma.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Barts, Ma.-Fresident, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. BATH, Bridgman. Wassiwaron, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. Auguras, Outo.-John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer. MINFRAFOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Beoretary. ST. JOSEFH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Respirator

 Bedretary, MU.-F. V. W180, Fresident; T. H. Kennedy, Bedretary, Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. NEW ORLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Walkson, LA.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEARVIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. BAUE CITY, WIS.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. DODSTA, WIS. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vanz. Secretary.

Religion at the Bar of Ethics.

BY PROFESSOR FRANCIS W. NEWMAN.

Early religion, as known to us in many nations, was evidently a product of numerous mental influ-ences. It arose before men had definitely and con-Early religion, as known to us in many nations, was evidently a product of numerous mental influ-ences. It arose before men had definitely and con-sciously made attempts at science, that is, at systematic and verified knowledge. The idea of daty—or that which is due from each individual to his fellows, to his community, and to its chief—must have been coeval with human existence. Before it arose, man was not yet man, but only a gregarious animal, performing re-lative duties by instinct; if really out of this were our beginnings. But instruction in duty was long a mat-ter of routine, and its rule was custom; hence our name morals, from the mos majorum, the custom of ancestors. No science of morals was imagined or almed at. Rights (jura), according to ideas so invet-erate as to last almost to the present day, depended on custom; so that a man was believed to have rights over slaves, over wild animals, and wild land, by mere habitual acquiescence. Naturally, then, the duties which man owes to man were thought essen-tially different from those which man owes, or can onwe, to God. His fellow-man needs his help, or his supplies: to withhold them is a harm and an injus-tice. But God, or the gods, cannot be harmed by us. They want honor, not aid; to withhold it is not an injustice, but a slight, an insult, which they may be came quite separate from the other question, "What are the proper ways of honoring Deity?" be-came quite separate from the other question, "What are the duties of man to man?" nor was it at all to be aspected that moral thought should play any large part in shaping the earliest religious doctrine. — Mong Hindus and Assyrians, Egyptians and Greeks, speculations of philosophy, necessarily pre-raters and theories concerning the origin of the un-verse, formed the basis of religion. Among the more imaginative and morals. Nevertheless, the great and a higher place, so that the Creator was re-garded as a Junce, not of great criminals only, but of all men at all times. Here the union was made bat at the same time, the code of morals was variously defective or erroneous. As far as known to us in our Western World, both religion and morality continued to be dogmatic—that is, traditional, dictatorial, and unverified—until the era of Socrates, whoese whole life was spent in the effort to establish morals on a scientific basis. Religious doc-trine, as a whole, he was satisfied to accept by tradi-tion; but his strong good sense insisted on rejecting from the mythology all the tales which attributed im-moral conduct to the gods. He was quite aware that many of them were only efforts at philosophy embod-ied and materialized by poets, which therefore ad-mitted of a spiritual interpretation, freeing them from grossness. But he insisted that such apirtual-izing was too tedious and uncertain a business, and, on the whole, a waste of time. We know that silly tales cannot be sacred. Cut them away bodily from religion, and your religion becomes nobler, simpler, stronger. Such appears the cardinal posture of Soc-rates' mind towards the current theology. He occa-sionally practiced augury from the flight of birds, and he find immorality. Even so, he appeared to the vigar to be implously increduious. But his in-creduity as to morals was far more eatarning, be-cause his search was far more fundamental. Wish-ing to place the knowledge of duty on a safe basis, he ing to place the knowledge of duty on a safe basis, he dug deeper to find 'solid ground; and to superficial hearers he seemed to undermine everything and es-tablish nothing. To this, indeed, a personal pecn-liarity remarkably contributed. When a hearer, em-barrassed by his searching questions, asked him what he thought bimself, he made a systematic prac-tice of sham humility, professing that he was quite incapable of answering. Nobody was deceived by this. To expect replies from others, and evade their questions in turn, gave him an unfair advantage in the argument; made him very disagreeable as ever trying to exhibit other men as fools, and filed the public with suspicion of him. Aristotle puts down this quality, dissimulation (as, of one's own powers), in the list of vices; in Greek it has the short name trony; he regards Socrates as a predminent example of this vice. While such a method could not suc-ceed with the public, and indeed brought down upon him at last flerce resentment, when two statesmen, ceed with the public, and indeed brought down upon him at last fierce resentment, when two statesmen, who were supposed to be fair specimens of his publis, were detested as the bane of Athens; yet with closer students and profounder minds the method was ef-fectual. Thenceforward duty was studied with the painstaking accuracy and continuity of men who de-sired to make it science. Its Greek name, ethics, slightly differs from morals; for although ethos and ethos probably once both meant the same thing as Latin consultado, yet ethos in Attic did not mean mere custom, but the temperament and tone of the mind. Accordingly, strates takes the inward heart as its main topic, and regards outward action as the manifestation. manifestation as its main topic, and regards outward action as the manifestation. Mythology in Greece and Rome long survived the birth of ethics, because sthical culture could not reach far into an illiterate community, and because the charm of poetry procecupied youthful and ardent minds with religious phantasms. Not the less is it certain that athics, in proportion as the science was cultivated and diffused, was strongly antagonistic to the Greek religion. The followers of Socrates could not continue in his balanced position; but discerned the utter worthlessness of mere tradition. If they retained the outline of national belief, as aiding pat-riotism, it was chiefly by rationalizing or spiritualiz-ing it. But from the moment it was understood that that the national religion has only a cloud basis, rest-ing on we know not what, no one could stand out for any religues doctrine or sentiment which ethics dis-ting contemped. tinctly condemned. Under the Macedonian and Roman Empires the incite condemned. There the Macedonian and Roman Empires the mixture of populations and increase of travelling brought conflicting mythologies into closer jurtapo-strue, if only rightly interpreted, did not stand long scenario of literature something of general cultivation pred far beyond the circles which can be anyhow termed acclentific; and it became ineritable for relig-ion to be brought to the bar of ethics with the whole educated community. Hereby the Hebrew syna-gogues made prossiptes wherever Jews were scat-tered; since thoughtful Gentiles discerned the super-for morality of that creed. Before long the current mythology was attacked on its immoral aide alike by accomplished sceptizes such as Lucian, and by the earnest vehemence of Christian advocates. Chris-ting the search of the super-for morality of that creed. Before long the current mythology may attacked on its immoral aide alike by accomplished sceptizes such as Lucian, and by the earnest vehemence of Christian advocates. Chris-ting that so uniformity, and in general eo success-fully, used this weapon against older religions, that to the sus against this own doctrine, whatever be the form of Christian can with decency or plausibility object to its use against this own doctrine, whatever be the Bible sanctioned slavery, replied, "If that be true, so much the worse for the Bible," many shuddered at it as prise who had, no sympathles with slavery. It is a hard asying, "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured not you." It is pleasant to have a double balance, one to weigh our neighbor's wares not permanently avail. Men accustomed to argue any with those who hold, with them, some ac-mone derive any one appeals from these to the scriptures. Naturally they were annoyed and pained when Garrison appealed from the Scriptures to in-throws with the beathen, or with any one outside of the Church, appears of itself, that no Scriptures is higher court before which it must be tried. This, history; in shor mixture of populations and increase of travelling brought conflicting mythologies into closer juxtapo

122, 1874. "ecommended was, to expose the miserable result of "infidelity," as atteated in history, in contrast to be wholesome effects of Christian faith. It is intern. Ing to see how the challenge is accepted in The (American) INDEX, a weekly periodical of Boto, which is virtually the organ of the Free Religion Society. "A. W. S." who was recently editor, and in all kindness he advises Christians not to try this method of defence, for, if they undertake to making effects of "infidelity" and Christianity, they will be overwhelmed with discomfiture. "Infidelity" cold wish no better vantage given it by Christianity that such a historic comparison would afford. We wan Christians, therefore (says he), not to throw down this glove: it will be taken up with areidity if the can't be wrong whose life is in the right," but, the read cannot be right whose professor lives are in pared to employ the test erroneonaly. On the see hand, under the railing appellation "infidelity" in which is meant undelied of the Christian seen pre-pared to employ the test erroneonaly. On the see hand, under the railing appellation "infidelity" in which is meant undelied of the Christian seen the entire mass of ancient Greek philosophers were free Religionists, yetthey differed by all that separated ions from Epicurus, besides the Academicians and dren, who debated everything, but decided on nohing Fully the same vast breadth and depth of chasm cristian anong those now classed together as "lindel". In the diversity greater than ever. To sizen to infer a general result from the lives of such an incom-grucous mass is simply ridicular. A priori, it is the dently possible that some have risen above the ze-tional faith, and others failen have first above the ze-tional faith. and others failen have first above the ze-tional faith. and others failen have first above the ze-tional faith. and others failen have first above the ze-tional faith. and others faile habove the ze-tional faith. and others failen make the diversity greater than ever. To supprive infer a general result from the lives of such a licen-grucus mass is simply ridiculous. A prior, it is ri-dently possible that some have risen above the n-tional faith, and others fallen below it. Equally, a the other side, THE INDEX frequently abows ited unjust to Christianity, by imputing to Christian do-trine all the vices, awindlings, and high crime of Christian professors. Christianity (foreoth) copil to keep its professors moral! Even the basenes of the Tammany ring and official requery is put down to the discredit of Christianity. Of course an old creed which has gained a high reputation and solid standing in the world attracts into it mus these who have worldly objects and no very deep religion. Of necessity they dishonor their religions associate, and the more so the purer and nobler the cred. But a small body dissenting from the national relig-ion is exposed to ill-will or suspicion, and attracts and thypocrites; nay, only men and women earns for truth. The members of the Free Religious Society have in common, not opinion or belief, but lore di truth. It is not closed to avowed atheths; on the other extreme it contains Jewieh rabble. No infe-ence here is possible from comparative mondily, any more than in the other case; especially when we add the undoubted fact that the moral coduct of any great mass depende more on national institution this very vague way that we can get any surf from the tribunal of ethics. Some reasonable and incur this very vague way that we can get any smallfom the tribunal of ethics. Some reasonable and intili-gible connection must be pointed out betwen the tenets and the conduct of the votaries; it must be shown that they have acted in accordance with the shown that they have acted in accordance will be religion, not against its most a uthoritative studard. Thus, when in Grecian Corinth a system of harloury was founded on the religion, we have a right to charge the moral evils on the cred; but when vils agise in Christendom from priestly cellbary and au-ricular confession, you can only argue from it against a particular church, not against Christianity itell: for tee know that these institutions are an after-month without any authority privates from the ricular confession, you can only argue from it against a particular church, not against Christianity ineff from the with these institutions are an after and Christendom, we may perhaps already discent that doctrine. As between the Free Religionis and Christendom, we may perhaps already discent that doctrine concerning humility. Each subject that doctrine concerning humility. Each subject more in the Greek world were treated as minor. The woman existed for the man, the man for his and contract the doctrine concerning humility. Each subject that doctrine concerning humility is the subject that doctrine concerning humility. Each subject that doctrine concerning humility. Each subject that be added to the man, the man for his and the subject of the gas were embodied were accepted by the Apostles, and stereotyped by women, both social and political, has now arisen in many contras. In several respect the Quakers toot ment is properly Christian; it came from free this mass laded the maintenance of imperfect and unput sta insist that Christianity, as a traditional creation has alded the maintenance of imperfect and unput sta subseen adverses to the woman's right, has refared in a pictualized the idea of the relation. The and has alded the maintenance of the sect and unput sta that the lead of the relation of the sect and man and women who take the lead in that American next cheater to place the relation of the sect and which applicitualized the idea of the relation. The and highest and noblest footing would be accuseles in which sect the relation of the sect of the men and women who take the lead in that American here the level of principles, whatever the leader of here the level of principles, whatever the leader free divorce, and cannot be convinced by the great from which the will terribly deprees, not eleviste, morely bool tha

manning Google

<text><text><text><text>

<text><text><text>

*Tract, The Impeachment of Christianity, republished by homas Scott, 11 The Terrace, Farquhar Road, Upper Nor-ood. Price 3d.

TDEEX - NOVERMEER.

quite consistent with maintaining firmly what is ex-pressed in the preceding paragraph. Besides, the coarser self-condemnation naturally belongs to the earlier stage of Christian life, when strong passions are unsubdued; or to after-crises which involve new moral struggles. Mr. Abbot avows that the "self-abborrence" is made a "first condition;" which might have been a clew to him. One is inclined to ask, Does he regard himself accer to have been a Christian, when he studied and preached as a Unitarian? For we cannot think that he is thus bitterly despising and reviling his own past.

preached as a Unitarian? For we cannot think that he is thus bitterly despising and reviling his own But it is instructive to contrast Christian humility with the virtue of Aristotle's most elaborately drawn character, the magnanimous or great hearted man. "This is the man, who, being worthy of great things, also counts himself worthy. But that man is little-hearted [or humble?] who thinks too lowly of his own merits; especially if he be in fact highly deserv-ing, so much the worse is his defect. But what the great-hearted man deserves is external good; and pe-culiarly that which we allot to the gods, namely, honor, which is the greatest of external good. Of course he must be sminently good to deserve honor, and must be great in each virtue separately; for hon-or is the prize of virtue, and is assigned to the good only. At great honors, bestowed by worthy men, he will be moderately pleased, as receiving what is his own or somewhat less than his due; still he will ac-cept it, aince they give him what they can (1); but honors offered him by common men he will utterly slight, as he will their dishonor of him. Towards weath and power, prosperity or adversity, he will be routeward matters; wherefore such men seem to be contemptuous. Yet successes contribute to magna-nimity by increasing grandeur; but without virtue men cannot bear success gracefully. Such do but foolishly inlicate the magnanimous man, and while acting unvirtuously look down upon others. But the really magnanimones justly looks down upon oth-ers. He has no fondness for endangering bimself in netty cuses, but when encountering great dangers is scornful of his own life. He is apt to do benefits, but is ashamed of receiving them (1); for to bestow is the part of a superior; but to receive, of an inferi-or. When he does receive a favor, he repays it in large surplus, trying to make the other party his debtor, and clear himself of obligation (1). He is not to submer those who have benefitted him (1); for the receiver is less than the giver, and he many, instead of being plain-spoken, he rather speaks ironically [i.e., allusively by half truth]. He is indisposed to wonder [or admire]: for nothing is great to him: nor does he remember injurks, but rather overlooks them. Nor does he talk of men, nor care whether they praise or blame him: nor is he in-clined to praise others (!), nor yet to revile even his en-emiles, except on account of some insuit [or outrage]. Least of all will be whimper or entrest. He prefers things handsome and unfruitful to things fruitful and useful: for this is the temperament of one who is self-sufficient. His movement seems to be slow, and his voice deep (!), and his uttrance steady. The character contrary to this is rather the humble; for that extreme is both commoner and worse (!) than to be empty [or presumptuous] and ostentatious, which is the extreme on the other side." In order to be thoroughly fair, I have risked being tedious in this extract. The more elaborately the scate philosopher devicions his ideal of the highest virtus, the more thoroughly unamiable does the plat-ure turn out, because the basis of the character is er-roneons. Self, self-asteem, self-honor, self-aggran-dizement, ring through the whole; and if this were virtue, virtus would be limited to a select aristocratio few.

dizement, ring through the whole; and if this were virtue, virtue would be limited to a select aristocratic twe. How sweet, beautiful, and refrashing is the con-virtue, virtue in the doctrine of not one or two, but very, writer in the New Testament (to say nothing of the Old) concerning human virtue! "In honor prefer one another!" "Charity seeketh not her owa." "The wisdom that is from above is pure, seeable, full of mercy and good fruits." "God re-sisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble." "Ye are a holy generation, a royal priesthood, par-may here measure a vast improvement on one side of morals attained by Jew and Christian over the excel-lent and really great Aristote. Mr. F. E. Abbot charges on Christian humility that it entails not unmaniliness only, but also neglect of humility as a vice led the Greek to unaniable pride, and a devotion to self which must inevitably pride, and a devotion to self which must inevitably pride, and a devotion to self which must inevitably pride, and a devotion to self which must inevitably it is an interesting speculation, how far the tem-pranent of Alexander the Great may have been built up into that intensity of selfabness and arro-gance which had such tragical results, by imbibing the doctrine concerning "magnanimity" from his norred instructor. Even without it, he might have are on the first for building up his own great-ses, and passing himself of as a soon of Jupiter; but such ethical teaching was all fuel to his natural for thoughts of God, is not to be lowly before such a being, it is difficult to expect that he will avoid many unlovely qualities towards his fellow-men.-Frazer's Magazine for June, 1874.

THE BOSTON BADICAL OLUB.

THE INTEREST SURROUNDING ITS EARLY HISTORY-THE TIME OF ITS FORMATION AN AUSPICICUTS ONE ORABACTER OF THE DISCUSSIONS-LITERARY PYROTECHNICS-A LOFTI CONTEMPT FOR FACTS-BRIGHT TALK VARIED WITH SUBLIME BUBBISH.

PriorECHNICS-A HOP'T OWER SUBLINE RUBBISH. BRIGHT TALE VARIED WITH SUBLINE RUBBISH. The Boston Radical Club is dead. "Not dead but sleepeth," will probably be the modifying judgment of many of its friends, if they read this opening sentence. Nevertheless there are many reasons for believing that this modifying judgment will be be-gotten of the wish that fathers so many thoughts which would not otherwise be born. It is safe to say that, in the early summer just gone, the Radical Club, which had long been in a decline, quietly breathed its last in its pleasant birthplace and home on Chestnut Street. Probably it is not yet buried. Certainly no funeral rites have been observed. In the present early autumn there may even be some attempts at a literal resurrection, or its body may be embalmed and carried about for a while from house to house. But whatever disposition may be made of the remains, or whatever the cause of its slokness and death, the fact will be found correctly stated— the Radical Club is dead. "It has done its work," said one of its most prom-inent members, in conversation, a few weeks ago. The judgment

ingineer by Google

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 12, 1874.

was listened to by the privileged few who had the open sesame of those sacred parlors.

THE CLUB BEFORE THE REPORTERS' ADVENT.

<text>

THE GENERAL RESULT NIL.

for Masonry raps at the door of the lodge. THE GENERAL RESULT NIL. But the young man who enters the Masonic lodge fears, after the first glamour is passed, that the pre-tended secrets of the ages are only the colored shreds of old discarded learning, patched and sewed together as costumes for worn-out forms which have bobled by help of the social staff into the gaslight of to-day. Great expectations are forced to be satisfied with ex-termely little knowledge. It would not be right to say that this Masonic illustration tells the whole trong that this Masonic illustration tells the whole to the social staff into the gaslight of to-day. Great expectations are forced to be satisfied with ex-termely little knowledge. It would not be right to say that this Masonic illustration tells the whole the dos suggest much which comes nearer the real facts of the case than anything which has yet been wholy unreasonable, but even the moderate hopes of there have not been fulfilled. Not only has no great wholy unreasonable, but even the moderate hopes of though these expectations may, indeed, have been wholly unreasonable, but even the moderate hopes of though were in the country before it began. The numerous assays and extended conversations have deven to thought, but the Club has failed to prove though were in the country before it began. The numerous easays and extended conversations have do in outbing of permanent value. A little light and adding of some theological dogma, is the most that you should not be reacted of any original as-tending of a fact which will be readily af-mitted, that the progress, if not the blact, of a new and mitted, that the progress, if not the blact, of a new and mitted is intellectual movement. Philosophic which the last generation knew nothing whatever; which the last generation knew nothing whetever; whete fields, and the almost infinite-read to varions fields, and the almost infinite breadth of such scientific generalizations as the Conservation of Energy—all have combined to create or to hasten this movement in the old intellectual centres of the world. Seven years ago, when the Club was born, America was feeling the first impulses of this same movement. Many doubless supposed that the Club was itself a result of this—or, at least, hoped that it might be, in some sense, its interpreter here in America. It was this hope which accounted for much of the singular enthusiasm to which reference is made above; but this enthusiasm gradually van-ished as it became evident that the Club had no such purpose, in fact scarcely recognized the existence of any such movement. The influence of aspectation. When expectation failed, influence declined, and now is altogether gone. greatest at its When expectation is altogether gone.

THE EARLY LIGHTS OF THE CLUB.

THE EARLY LIGHTS OF THE CLUE. No fountain can rise higher than its source. The product of the Club was an expression of its elements. An analysis of its material will tell the wherefore of its failure. To give this analysis it is necessary to mention a fow names of the leaders of the Club, names which have become very familiar to regular readers of the reports of its meetings. Dr. Bartol, a very venerable and very clerclai looking man, was colleague of and successor to Dr. Lowell in the min-istry of the West Church; John T. Sargent, a somewhat superannuated ex-minister, an associate of Theodore Parker, and once a city missionary of Bos-ton; A. Bronson Alcott, over seventy years of age, a man whose peculiar life is well-known to the public; D. A. Wasson, an ex-minister, of middle age, a mar man whose peculiar life is well-known to the public; D. A. Wasson, an ex-minister, of middle age, a man of vigorous intellect, one of Mr. Parker's successors; T. W. Higginson, who needs no description; John Weiss, a man of marked characteristics, the most prominent being vividness of imagination, a man whom I have seen described in the gush of reporters as made up of "one-half flame and one-half spirit." With the above should be mentioned Samuel Long-feliow, a minister and poet, brother of the more famous poet of the same name; Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, and Mrs. E. D. Cheney, widow of the artist Cheney. Cheney.

I do not mean to make invidious distinctions, but

Cheney. I do not mean to make invidious distinctions, but the above list contains the names of all those who gave the Radicul Oub its guiding impulse and its habitual tone. Mr. Emerson fell out about the time that the reporters came in; and though I might easily fill a very large space with names that would be uni-versally recognized—names of men and women who were regular visitors at the Club, or occasionally pres-ent, or sometime, or even all the time, regular mem-bers,—yet I cannot add another name which seems to me to stand with the above in the same relation to the early life of the Club. It is hardly an exagger-ation to say that the Club was run in the interests of those named; not that they at all purposed this, or desired it, or were even themselves conscione of it, but that this became the condition of things. Glance over the above list, and note the curlous fact that the men are, or were, all ministers (with one exception), and even the women are sometimes preachers. A knowledge of this fact explains the deep theological coloring given to all the assays and conversations. Whatever the theme introduced, theology always bore down upon and captured it be-fore it could get away. And the theology, moreover, was pretty much of one kind; that is, it was of "left-wing" (so-called) Unitarian descent. The two favor-ite Club questions were, first, Shall we, or shall we not, call ourselves Christians? The second was less definite, but was something like this: "What was the exact amount of imperfection in the human nature of Jeeus?" When we remember that one or the other of these questions came in almost every time the Club met, and that they were always discussed withof these questions came in almost every time the Clab met, and that they were always discussed with-in the narrow limits of the above-mentioned theology, it will be understood how extremely bair-splitting, It will be understood now extremely hal-splitting, how interminably wearisome, and how utterly fruitless were many of those famous Radical discussions. This universal theological twist in one peculiar direc-tion, given to all topics, was one principle reason of the failure of the Radical Club.

REASONS FOR FAILURE.

<text><text><text><text>

be more practical than we wish to be. The very pu-pose of the Club is to enable its members to get id for a time of everything practical, and speculate bo our heart's content." The Colonel's remains we loudly applauded, and there were no further effort to make the Club practical.

A NARBOW LITERARY AND THEOLOGICAL TOSE.

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that he whole tone of the Radical Club was narrowly litrary and theological. On one occasion some reference was accidentally made to the subject with which he name of Mr. Darwin is so inlimately associated, Something had to be said upon his theory, ad the stumbilings and haltings exhibited by men who an quote the whole of Plato and all the Greek ingeles, from memory were really painful. So esparent was stumbilings and haltings exhibited by mer the an quote the whole of Plato and all the Greek tradies from memory were really painful. So apparent we their deficiencies that a professor of chemistry, this ing the Club, turned to me and said : "If our litrary friends would only look over their science pinnen occasionally it might save them some moriflation, and would make their remarks a little more diff-ing." At a subsequent meeting one of the younger members, W. C. Gannett, read a very complete and clear exposition of the development hypothesis though even he gave the usual theological twist, by way of application. When he had finished is paper the usual ready-talkers were either silten or no-com-mittal. Then a visiting clergyman, one whose isme extends over two continents, frankly admitted that he know mothing about the subject, and wooked that one young head had acquired and was able to contain so much information. Then followed ands-er short period of unusual restraint. The reputation of the Club for rapid and brilliant conversions was certainly in danger, when one of the membern side why it is that Mr. Darwin says nothing at all about a personal God, and what are his probable concep-tions of the Deity. Restraint was gone has moment. Here was a subject about which uo one present inew anything whatever. There was not a single mbar-rassing fact on record. The talkers planed the pintons and soared serenely aloft at once. The rep-utation of the Club was saved. Not everyfuncetting of the Club, of course, ended as rassing fact on record. The talkers planet their plutation of the Club was saved. Not every*meeting of the Club, of course, endel as absurdly as this; but it is wholly within bounds to say that many of the famous discussions of the Rad-ical Club were of the character indicated in the in-ter part of the above incident—that is, they were upon subjects susceptible of neither proof not dis-proof, the treatment of which, of necessity, was wholly speculative in the most imaginative sene of that word, and the result of the discussion of which awy of the discussion of which, words, words." Incidentally, of course, these subjects gave opportunity for the display of extended classicalized ing, of charmingly pletured castles in the sit, d bil-liant wit, and the perfection of courteous ad hern spit for an hour or two and watch these literary char-pions show their points in the admiring circle. When Higginson, Weiss, and Wasson were at helf best, the frosting, as at the confectioner's, was api to be much better than the cake. Much of the talk, berefore, was mast excellent, of its hild. It was bright, inspiring, hopeful. There was news news asentiment or offensive word; but, after all that has been said by admiring friends in its praise, it may have been as ithout the dinner.

"PERFECTION IN NONSENSE."

the wine without the dinner. "PREFECTION IN NONSENS." In Mr. E. B. Tylor's work on Primitive Culture there is a paragraph which might well have been written after a visit to Chestnut Street. Speaking of the doctrine of "brute souls," he says: "The doctine has fallen from its once high estate. It belongd originally to real though rude science. It has now support to become a favorite topic in that mild specu-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty so largely as intellec-tive talk which atill does duty as "intellectual conversation" and as for the "sentimental nonsense," may their own of the "sentimental nonsense," may their own of the momsense" was pure and simple without any intervent at all; when a gray baired philosopher, in any transcendental statements, and then, looking inary transcendental statements, and then, looking inary transcendental statements, and then does are in this of prey, lions, tigers, vultures, did God make then " I tell you, no! man made them, in ke adverter in this to to a young man there but would have rever-ing this event made a tiger. The is sublime rubbish, indeed; and, of course. These instances are extreme and exception and in the ready to awear on the old Dial that he away ser-God never made a tiger. This is sublime rubbish, indeed; and, of courte, these instances are extreme and exceptional in the Club's bistory. Nevertheless, they really happened, and serve to show the perfection in nonsense which may be attained by a rigid adherence to intuitional-ism, unchecked by the commonset of common stree. Such puerlilities are the last logical ontermes of the school of thought to which many members of the Bradeal Club belowmed. Radical Club belonged.

AN EXPLANATION IN BEHALF OF THE LISTENERS.

To understand how these things could be received In respectful silence, and how things could be received better kind could be received with unfeigned admira-

<page-header><text><text><text>

"Up among the little stars, Sailing round the moon, Bless me this is pleasant, Up in a balloon. Up in a balloon, boys, Up in a balloon!"

The portraiture was too exact, and the reaction too great to be endured. One balloon, at least, could stay up no longer, but quickly came to the ground, and not all the flowing words of other meetings could ever fill it quite so full again.

THE CAUSES OF FAILURE SUMMED UP.

THE CAUSES OF FAILURE SUMMED UF. The reasons then for the failure of the Radical folds are few and simple. It was narrow in its the-ological sympathles, narrow in its philosophy; and in its method of thinking was almost the reverse of rad-ical. Such flashes of light as it really emitted came the kindling rays of the new. It was an attempt to bring back a kind of culture for which Boston ained some reputation thirty years ago, but which he real intellectual progress of the world has already left far behind. It was, therefore, in many respects, more of a backward movement than a forward one. Its reputation of the rocket, and is already burned out. It was exhibited but unsubstantial. It has left ar exult like that which attends the inhaling of nitrous-oxide; simple oxygen is not so striking in its effects, but is far healther for heart and ban. R. W. L. BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 22, 1874.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 22, 1874. -N. Y. Tribune, Oct. 7, 1874.

[For THE INDEX.]

A LETTER FROM MR. MOBSE.

A LETTRE FROM ME. MORSE. A STATE FROM ME. MORSE.

predictions. Of course there is time enough yet for it to verify all history, and be found at last grown about and fastened in sectarian lines. An organiza-tion with officers always suggests danger. It is very interfaces it starts well. It it to verify all history, and be found at last grown about and fastened in sectarian lines. An organiza-tion with afficers always suggests danger. It is very apt not to see its own limitations. It starts well. It is, and will remain, the freest of the free. But finally, for some cause or other, affairs get to be cut and dried. Individuals feel the pressure, protest, go out-side, try once more, and do the same bad job over again. And so the world goes,—has so gone, at least up to the present seeming exception. And even in this Free Religious Association candor avows a slight suspicion of premeditated respectability; pardonable, one half feels, considering all that transpires in assemblages where spontanelty is provided for. Somewhat is undoubtedly due to intelligence as well as freedom. But, in my judgment, of the two plans, that which includes "rag, tag, and bobtail" is safest and most promising. One or two sessions, at least, might wisely be given up by the Free Religious As-sociation to a general free discussion. S. H. MORSE.

SPUBGEON ON SMOEING.

 BUBBEON ON SMOKING.

 I demur altogether and most positively to the fatement that to smoke tobacco is in itself a sin. If we become so, as any other indifferent action may but as an action to sin. Together with they demoked, and with them I am under the condemnation of living in habitual sin, if certain accusers are to be believed. As I would not knowingly live even in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of it. There is growing in wheel I am not conscious of the law of the day of the good, and the sneers of the self-right side states the transferestion of the law of the state species of man. The preservation of yilberty may bring upon me the upbrailing, so long in the sense in which I employed it if is that the sense in which I employed it if is that he is an action wheel I am action actions of life. When I have to the the sense in which I employed it is that he is an of the sense in which I employed it is the the sense in which I employed it. There is growing in the common cities of its. When I have to the the sense is a will stand to it. No Christian should do anything the the common cities of the sense line which I employed it. There is a south the sense is a weak that is sound, and it is to not any the sense is the state and most is to tak the sense is which I employed it. There is a south the sense is the sense

London Telegraph.

TO LYCEUMS, LIBERAL LEAGUES, ETC.

The undersigned, designing the coming winter to visit several cities in the West, tenders his services to lyceums, liberal leagues, or other progressive associations in that section that may wish to secure them, for one or more lectures.

For a single lecture the subject will be "The Pres ent Condition: or, The Aspects and the Omens of the Time." For a series of lectures, or (if preferred) of conversations, the subjects will be furnished upon application.

Please address without delay,

Nov. 8, 1874.

CHARLES D. B. MILLS. Syracuse, N. Y.

Hoetry.

(For THE INDEL.) LITTLE MARGARET

NOV. 5. 1874.

Dewdrop shinlog in the grass, While the mists the morning hide: When the shadows over-pass, Little dew-drop summer-dried!

Baby to the glad house born Promise of a happy day: When the sunrise lights its morn, Little baby stilled for aye! Wh Dewdrop for the blue sky yearns, Once again to float above; Baby from the mother's turns To the more than mother's Love.

ASTERISE.

SOWING AND BEAPING.

Bow with a generous hand, Pause not for toll or pain; Weary not through the heat of summer, Weary not through the cold spring rain; But wait till the autumn comes For the sheaves of golden grain.

Scatter the seed, and fear not, A table will be spread; What matter if you are too weary To eat your hard-earned bread! Sow, while the earth is broken,

For the hungry must be fed.

Sow ;-while the seeds are lying

In the warm earth's bosom deep And your warm tears fall upon it,

They will stir in their quiet sleep; And the green blades rise the quicker, Perchance for the tears you weep.

Then sow,-for the hours are fleeting,

And the seed must fail, to day; And care not what hands shall reap it, . Or if you have passed away Before the waving corn-fields Shall gladden the summer day

Sow; and look onward, upward, Sow; and look onward, upward, Where the starry light appears,— Where, in spite of the coward's doubting, Or your own heart's trembling fears, You shall reap in joy the harvest

You have sown, to-day, in tears,

Adelaide Proctor.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEE SKDING NOVEMBER 7.

FOR THE WEEE ENDING NOVEMBER 7.
 Jeanle G. Kinley, $13; C. N. Overbaugh, $1; Henry B., McNair, $3; L. W. Adams, $2:5; A. D. Newcomb, 60 cents;
 B. W. Pierce, $2; N. Waterman, $5; J. F. Smith, $3; Wm.
 Hull, $3; G. W. Tuttle, $1.75; George Brancen, $2:60; John Wade, $4; Hadley Davis, $3; George Brancen, $2:50; John Wade, $4; Hadley Davis, $4; George Brancen, $2:50; John Wade, $4; Hadley Davis, $2; George Brancen, $2:50; John Barnes, $5:25; W. J. Montange, $2:85; A. Smith, $2; Charles Josenhaus, $2:5; W. H. Montange, $2:26; L. Will-Barnes, $5:25; Sidney M. Cloud, $4; C. Lewis, $4; W. C. Barnes, $5: E. F. Bobbins, $3; E. H. Bowman, $2; Janes Ford, $1.60; Otto Von Geldern, 75 cents; J. S. Dudley, $45; John A. Todd, $1.50; George Lovillard, $6; James Glater, $5; Louis Morganatern, $4.75; James Horton, $2; A. Rey-mann, $4:00; C. W. Hort, $2:25; J. E. Oliver, $10; Will Kennedy, $1; D. B. Stedman, $10; George Harton, $2; K. S. Shepherd, 22 cents; Benjamin Hallowell, $10.
 Al receipts of cash will be acknowledged as abors, and no other receipt sent mless specially requested. Persons who do not see their remittances acknowledged within three weeks after sending, will please notif us.
 N. B.-Please examine the ADDRESS and D.T.E on your

N. B.-Please examine the ADDRESS and DATE on your INDEX mail-tag, and report at once any error in either. N. B.-When writing about a former remittance, always give the date of each remittance as exactly as possible.

give the date of ench remittance as exactly as possible. N. B.-Postage on THE INDEX is five cents per quarter, dating from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.-Driders for Tracts or single numbers of THE IN-per which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be oth-arwise filled to the same amount without further notice. N. B.-Please remit by post-office money-order, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discont, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit,

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 MONBOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contributions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Articles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, NOVEMBER 12, 1874.

THE INDEX will be sent to any same not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for fourteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

A VERY remarkable letter on the Boston Radical Club was recently published in the New York Tribune, and will be found in this week's INDEX. It ought to be submitted to our readers, though many of them will strongly dissent from its estimate of the Club's character and work. There has been considerable laughing over the announcement that the Club is "dead,"—the fact being that it is as lively as ever, and still meets in the hospitable parlors where it first drew the breath of life. Those who are inclined to take an "intuitionalist" view of free religion will not go with the writer in his criticisms; while those who take a "scientific" view of it will not go with him wholly. But the article is altogether too bright and pungent not to be read by every one.

THIS 18 the measure of the Independent's conscience: "Mr. Strickland, the ex-Baptist, replies to the accusations made by the Pastors' Conference of Boston, by alleging that he has been, till now a Baptist and nothing else, that he has never forfeited his membership in any way, and that the charge of 'frand' in obtaining and keeping ecclesiastical standing in that denomination is wholly false. We give him the benefit of his denial." But the Independent does not give him the benefit of the documentary proofs of his denial. It suppresses the fact of these proofs, and intimates that Mr. Strickland has done nothing but make an unsubstantiated "allegation." If his documents can be shown to be forged or false, we have not a word to say; but while they remain unchallenged, the Independent is guilty of more sins than we choose to enumerate in representing Mr. Strickland's defence, fortified by such papers, as a mere, naked, unsustained "denial." Commend us not to the mercy of these Christian scalpers of heretics, whose bowels yearn over the heathen across the sea, but who would fain tomshawk the "heathen" at their own doors.

A WISCONSIN correspondent not very long ago wrote as follows: "I have long wondered that some effectual measures were not taken to organize the liberal element of the country. Our village and vicinity are a fair sample of the West in all probability. Having a population of less than three hundred, they have built three churches at a cost of about $17,000, with a yearly outlay of about $3,000 more for the support of ministers, Sunday schools, etc. And yet the liberals are really in a majority here. Instead of organizing themselves, they have (until recently) contributed liberally to the building of the churches of their revilers and for keeping the machinery in motion. While they uniformly favor the creation of libraries, the discussion of scientific questions, and in fact all questions having a tendency to broaden one's views, the churches oppose all these things with might and main. But, thanks to the press, a few of us have been able, by a judicious distribution of tracts and books, to accomplish a great deal: so much, in fact, that for the last two years there have not been more than three or four additions to all the churches, and these were all childran. The Methodist society has decreased in this time from 117 to 80 members. The Baptists make a still worse showing, and the Congregationalists about the same percentage of loss as the Methodists." Though not intended for publication, these facts give no little food for reflection.

"RELIGION AT THE BAR OF STRICS."

The essay by Professor Newman which we copy from Fraser's Magazine as the leading paper for this week suggests more than one subject of fruitful inquiry. It is characterized by his usual learning, ability, dignity, candor, and desire to be just, but also (we are constrained to add) by a certain deficiency of that critical acumen which is necessary to ensure justice in dealing with the thoughts of others. Professor Newman evidently finds it impossible to put himself in the place of one whose opinions he has never held, or whose mental experience has transcended the limits of his own. Having once been an Evangelical Christian, he can analyze the religious consciousness of that order with wonderful subtility. penetration, and power, as is proved by his books; but, when it comes to criticising the thought of one who has not only passed outside of Christianity but even of theism in its intuitionalist form, he loses his way, is totally at fault, and falls into various pitfalls of unconscious and therefore wholly innocent misrepresentation,-from which he would have been saved either by a greater strength of imagination or by a greater degree of logical insight and continuity. It takes more than learning and conscientiousness to make a just critic: the ability to detect the central point of alien thought and properly to relate all its subordinate positions to this original centre is abso lutely essential, though one of the rarest of gifts. It is the lack of this that makes Professor Newman (and so many others) see in Roman Catholicism a mere "corruption" or "perversion" of primitive Christianity; whereas every essential feature of it is exactly as necessary a result of the original gospel as the branches and leaves of a plant are a necessary result of the seed it grew out of. It is the same lack which makes him appear constitutionally incapable of comprehending scientific theism or the religious attitude of those who advocate it. Of the numerous allusions in this essay, for instance, to our own thought, not one is correct. Yet nothing could be more patent than his scrupulous wish and intent to be exactly just. The actual injustice is, of course, directly contrary to his purpose.

Not pausing, however, to correct these misunderstandings, at least in any formal way, we desire to express our hearty acceptance of the general principle on which Professor Newman proceeds, namely, that "religion is fitly judged by Ethical free thought." The ethical tribunal is indeed one from which there is no appeal; if any religion fails to approve itself to the moral judgment of mankind, its doom is sealed. The truth or falsity of its doctrines, it must be conceded, cannot be determined by a merely practical test; it would not do to rely on any analysis of historical or social or moral consequences in pronouncing a verdict on abstract religious formulas, which must be brought to the test of scientific truth alone. But every religion professes to protect the moral interests of mankind, to strengthen the public and private conscience, to elevate the standard of morality, to purify the conduct and practices of its sincere adherents; and if these claims, being subjected to the test of actual human experience, are overthrown, then the religion is convicted of being an arrant pretender and condemned as such.

It is sometimes urged that false tenets necessarily lead to bad morals; that an untrue creed invariably operates to make the life untrue. But this is so doubtful, and in so many instances contradicted by the evidence of facts, that the necessity of the alleged connection may well be called in question; especially when it is borne in mind that practices which are indeed morally erroneous, if judged by the principles of scientific ethics, cannot be pronounced immoral in the sense of deserving moral condemnation, when they embody and express the highest moral convictions of those who find them commanded by their religion. For instance, burning heretics at the stake is a great crime, judged by the laws of scientific ethics; yet it was undenlably a righteous deed, judged by the ethics of Catholic Christianity. Bringing Christianity, then, to the bar of its own ethics would necessitate one verdict, while bringing it to the bar of the ethics of science would necessitate an opposite verdict. It is not enough, therefore, to place "religion at the bar of ethics": both religion and ethics must be placed at the bar of science. Professor Newman may not be prepared to admit this, yet we see no way of avoiding the conclusion. Ultimately, thought must sit in judgment on all things, religion and morals included; and science is neither more nor less than thought conscious of and obedient to the laws of its own being, as established immutably by the nature of things. We hold, therefore, that Professor Newman's own principle binds him, not only to bring religion to the bar of etbles, but also to bring both religion and etbles to the bar of science.

If it be untenable ground to say that false creeds necessitate bad lives, it is even more untenable ground to say that bad lives prove false creeds. It's simply incomprehensible to us how Professor Newman could suppose that we ever entertained any such notion,-that we "impute to Christian doctrine all the vices, swindlings, and high crimes of Christian professors." Bad lives may have many causes. But we should never consider that life bad which is true to its own highest conception of right. If the religion it obeyed proclaimed false ethical principles, obedience to which made the life itself immoral according to the higher ethics of science, then we claim that the religion itself, not its followers, should be arraigned for immorality. By inculcating murder of heretics as a duty to God and man, Catbolic Christlanity made itself a murderer before the bar of science; and we do right to impute to it all the guilt of the murders thus committed by its superstitious derotees. Why not? But we never said, or believed, that all the murders committed by Catholics are chargeable to Catholicism, which itself forbids most of them. The badness of no life which is contrary to its own creed can be charged to that creed; and for this reason the argument from mere badness of life to falsity of creed is logically worthless. We inpeached Christianity in the name of human virtue, not because the general iniquities of Christendom necessarily prove it iniquitous, but because it proclaims doctrines, sanctions motives, and justifies conduct, which continually lead to iniquities condemned instantaneously before the bar of scientific sthics, although to this day defended and approved by the recognized ethics of the whole Christlan Church. When Professor Newman vindicates the right of ethics to sit in judgment on religion, every asgaclous thinker must applaud him. But the next question iswhat ethics? And the only answer which sugacions thinkers can approve must be-the ethics of science. It is a wholesome and happy sign that the jurisdiction of morality over the whole field of religious erperience should be so vigorously asserted as it has been by Professor Newman. It will be a happler sign still when the confusion now prevalling among the moral convictions of mankind shall have mffciently passed away to permit morality to free luelf from the entanglements of Christian traditionalism and mount the throne of pure science, to the end that Nature alone may give law to human life.

A closing word about "humility," to which Professor Newman devotes about half his space. Taking his text from the Impeachment of Christianity, which he totally misconceives by confounding the natural grace of humility with the unnatural "sense of sin" which all Orthodoxy strives to create and foster as an indispensable preliminary of "conversion," he considers that it is great injustice to Christianity and Christians to attribute to them all a doctrine of Augustine which never prevailed entirely in Christendom. The question is not of a special doetrine of Augustine, but of the very essence of Orthodox Christianity. Is it not still preached and held as much as ever by Evangelical believers of all classes that Christ is the sole Savior? That man cannot save himself? That he deserves and must endure the wrath of God unless he throws himself on the mercy of this Savior? Most certainly; and these facts, wholly irrespective of Augustine, justify language much more intense than we used on the subject. Professor Newman refers to various manly Puritans as disproving the idea that such sentiments are the destruction of manliness. It is enough to say that, so far as these men were manly, they were not Orthodox, and, so far as they were Orthodox, they were not manly; unless it is manly to despair of selfhelp, cringe before power, and grovel in the dusi to secure salvation. If the Hebrews did the same, so much the worse for the Hebrews. But we must protest against the misapplication of the passage quoted by Professor Newman to a subject not raised by it. The title of humility, especially the humility of the private soul in presence of its ideal of absolute purity, to be considered a virtue was not at all questioned in what we said; and our critic's comments, however true they may be in themselves, have no relevancy to their text. The "self-abhorrence" which is demanded by the doctrine of total depravity, and professed verbally at every service on every Sunday in nearly every church of Christendom, has nothing whatever to do with the self-respecting humility of the natural man, who is deeply conscious of his own

manun Google

546

imperfections, but would rather be "damned" than escape "damnation" at the price of sycophancy even before Infinite Power. "What can be reasonably meant by claiming dignity before God ?" asks Professor Newman. Probably no claim of this sort is ever entered; but the man who is unconscious of possessing dignity, whether before God or his fellows, has lived to little pur-The relics of Professor Newman's Evangelical pose, education here make themselves very visible. The prayer of Epictetus, surely not deficient in such humility "as may become a man," is the soliloquy of one who has never forgotten the duty of preserving his self-respect, and who no more forgets that respect is justly due to him from whatever Intelligence takes cognizance of his life. The extravagance of Christ-ian "self-abhorrence," which denies all reality to natural virtue, still tinges the religious consciousness of Professor Newman as expressed in this paper; it is not humility, but humiliation-a very different thing. The soul which will permit no insincerity with itself knows the falsehood of the pretence that all its acts, thoughts, motives, impulses, and so forth, are evil; it knows that many of these are good; and why should it not expect God to pay proper deference to the fact? Is he to be excused from recognizing that there is good as well as evil in men's hearts and lives? Or are men bound to feign forgetfulness of their own goodness when they raise their thoughts to Infinite Purity? If it be pagan to contemn such hypocrisy, pagan we are, and pagan let us stay! The "self-abhorrence" inseparable from every Evangelical "experience of religion" is far enough removed from the grave, measured regret of a true man at the retrospect of failures and faults; the one is humanity careening over and sinking in a sea of self-contempt,the other is humanity tossed by the waves, but still holding stoutly on its course. There is no use in striving to keep the world attuned to the key of the penitential psalms. The humility which gives the lie to facts, magnifies sins into undue proportions, crowds out the joyous or proud remembrance of noble deeds as derogatory to God's supremacy in holiness,-such humility is a curse, and cannot too soon be outgrown. Give us the truth of things, and the spirit which reveres it: then the graces of sentiment and the subtler virtues of feeling will take care of themselves.

WHO IS THE CRIMINAL?

In a majority of cases where crime is committed, society is more blamable than the individual. External conditions and circumstances are mostly the cause of crime; not any inherent evil disposition in men and women. These conditions and circumstances the individual generally is not responsible for; they are the product of social' arrangements, usages, and demands. As the world goes, the individual does not make society so much as society makes the individual,-the life that he lives being often, not that which he would live, but that which he must live. Every man is born to his lot; not the lot which he chooses, but the lot which is his fate. And not infrequently he spends his whole life in an unsuccessful effort to change the lot which was thrust upon him when he entered the world. Society stands by and sees him struggle; and it does not know-or, it does not care, if it knows,-that it is quite as much for its interests as for his, that the man should get the better of his circumstances, and make his condition more favorable to his virtuous and happy living.

When I hear that a crime has been committed against the welfare and peace of society, I find that I am not swift to condemn the individual offender, as though he or she were the only or chief party to blame in the matter; but rather disposed to inquire how far society itself has induced the crime, by suggesting, tempting, and provoking it with its own unjust laws, arbitrary dictations, unnatural restraints, selfish indifference, and cruel neglect. And in most cases I find that my indignation has been reserved, not for the so-called criminal, but for his or her self-constituted judge and condemner, and real tempter and provoker to evil—society itself.

A case has recently occurred in this city, which illustrates my point. Within a few days, one of the heaviest banking institutions of Boston has discovered that its assistant receiving-teller is a defaulter to the net amount of seven or eight thousand dollars. This fact standing alone, and stated without any extenuating circumstances, would naturally invoke upon the head of the dishonest bank-officer the condemnation of all virtuous people. But there are extenuating circumstances connected with this affair (as, indeed, there are with most such affairs); and, when known, they go far to at least divide the blame for the offence between the robber and the robbed.

This assistant receiving-teller is a man about thirty years of age. He has been in the employ of this one bank some ten years, and during this time has been an increasingly trusted and efficient servant of the institution,-handling on an average a million of dollars a day. His neighbors and friends, so far as I can learn, testify unanimously to his general good character and reputation. He has been an industrious, sober, economical, modest, quiet, thoroughgoing man. Within two years, or thereabout, he has married, and now has a wife and child, with whom he has lived pleasantly, cosily, and frugally. This man altogether was one not likely to take money which did not belong to him. It must have been an extraordinary temptation which could induce him to do it. Did he have such a temptation; and, if so, who was the tempter?

It is not an unimportant thing to know, in this connection, how much salary this man had. Remember, he was assistant receiving-teller in one of the heavlest, if not the very heavlest, banking institutions in Boston; he was made responsible daily for the safe transfer from hand to hand of a million of dollars more or less; he had served his employers with signal efficiency for ten years; he had with their knowledge, in the meantime, married and undertaken the support of a family; the bank, during all this while, was flourishing in business and in fortune, and reaping the accruing benefits of a large prosperity. Did they pay this servant of theirs well; did they give him a chance to improve his own condition with theirs; did they allow him to share fairly in the increasing profits which he helped to earn; did they make him feel that they had any lively interest in his welfare, or cared in the least whether he and his little family lived comfortably and respectably, or not? I do not learn that they did anything of the kind. At any rate, this is the fact; that they paid this employé, on whose shoulders they piled such labors and such responsibilities, the paltry sum of eight hundred dollars a vear!

Now, I say that the Directors of this bank deliberately tempted this man to steal from them. Nay, more; I say that they were the original thieves, and that for years they robbed this employé of wages that fairly belonged to him. Can we be very much surprised that he retaliated at last, and robbed them in return? He took their money, not to speculate with, not to gamble with, not to spend in reckless and foolish extravagance; but to meet his ordinary household expenses,-to pay his butcher, his baker, and his grocer. I confess that my indignation waxes hot when I think of the injustice, the selfishness, the parsimony, the meanness with which this great, overgrown, moneyed corporation treated this poor, laborious, well-deserving young man. I am sorry, for his own sake and his family's, that he descended to the level of his employers, and became a thief like them; but I find it exceedingly hard to manufacture any grief in my breast that they have lost some of their ill-gotten gains.

And the same crime which this bank has committed against this young man in its employ is committed in numberless instances by other corporations against their employés. Horse-Railroad Companies hire conductors for miserably small wages, and then hire "spottera" to watch them leat they steal a few of the fares! In the first place, they tempt the conductors to steal by paying them so unfairly; and in the second place they insult them by setting fellowemployés to watch them. If these conductors were paid good, just salaries by the Companies that can well afford to do it, the stealing, while it might not be done away wholly, would be reduced ninety per cent.

It is the old story of the crime of capital against labor, of society against the individual. Until the sinners cease to be sinned against, they will continue to sin. It is the duty of society to remove as much temptation as possible from before the individual, and not to keep the standing insult of suspicion staring him in the face, provoking him to offences. And then, when the individual does sin, society should proceed with him in such a way as to restore him to his own and its respect and confidence as speedily as possible, and not to plunge him deeper into disgrace and degradation. "All sin is hunger," a thoughtful person has said to me. Often, indeed, it is nothing more nor less than this,—sometimes hunger of the body, sometimes of the mind, sometimes of the heart. Let us learn how to feed people,—to give them not merely what they want but what they really need of body-food, mind-food, and heart-food, —and we shall have done much towards banishing sin from the world, and keeping men from becoming sinners. A. w. s.

THE COMING BROAD CHURCH.

In a recent article on the International Congress of Orientalists in London, I spoke of the new views of religion, and of the broader religious acquaintance and fellowship that must be one of the insvitable consequences of the labors of that body. Another sign in the same direction, though of slighter shape, has since been shown in this country.

It seems that there is a movement among us for stablishing a University of Modern Languages, at which not only all the languages of modern Europe but the Oriental languages shall be thoroughly taught, and as far as possible by teachers to whom they are native. In furtherance of this project an important meeting was held a fortnight ago in Newburyport, Mass., where it is proposed to locate the Various gentlemen interested in the University. movement addressed the meeting; but, judging by the newspaper reports, about the brightest and most interesting speech that was made was by Hon. Chan Lai Sun, a member of the Chinese Imperial Commission on Education, who is in this country for the purpose of keeping some supervision over the Chinese youth who are coming hither to be educated. So far as this speech gives evidence, he appears to be a believer in the religion of his own country still; for, in explaining how China and America could help each other, and why the Chinese young men were sent here for their education, he told the audience plainly that "China did not want the religion of America"-"of course not," he added, as if that were a preposterous thought,-but that it did want America's "arts and sciences," and that it was only for this that her young men were coming here. Several Evangelical clergymen took part in the meeting, yet not one of them, nor any layman, rebuked this heathen speech, nor seemed to be at all offended by the presence of the speaker. Not a word is reported as having been uttered that was not equally courteous to Buddhist and Confucian as to Christian believers. One or two speakers mildly suggested that one advantage of the University would be the opportunity It would offer for educating young missionaries in the Oriental languages before they should go to their posts; but this was an argument that Confucian missionaries-and there are such-might have used in the interest of propagating their own faith among English-speaking races; and no one followed up the suggestion by enlarging upon the need and duty of Christian propagandism, or argued for the University on this ground. Apparently, the Hon. Chan Lat Sun, scrupulously introduced by his title, and seemingly regarded as good as any body upon the platform, gave the key-note of the meeting in the declaration that the services between the Oriental and Occidental nations were to be reciprocal, and not religious propagandism on the one side or the other. And in accordance with this idea, the argument pervading all the speeches was the utility of the proposed University for bringing the two sides of the globe into closer acquaintance and fellowship.

And as one of the results of such better mutual acquaintance, it is impossible that there should not be a modification of religious faith and practice on both sides. The Boston landlady of the Confucian lecturer, Wong Chin Fou, now in this country, said to me the other day, "He has been here at our house since July, and we are all delighted with him." They were American people, brought up in the Christian faith doubtless, yet it does not seem to have occurred to them that their pagan guest was a subject for "conversion." Perhaps they had heard of the case reported, for which, however, I cannot vouch, of the bright foreman of the Chinese shoemakers at North Adams, whom the Methodists boasted to have converted to Christlanity, but who was soon afterwards, it is alleged, detected in some "financial irregularities." Occasionally one of the young Japanese or Chinese that come here to be educated changes his faith to the Christian religion. The marvel is that, coming at the most impressible age, and thrown in among all kinds of Christian influences, the greater part are not converted. The most of them, however, continue to hold their old faith, though without doubt it becomes modified. But, at the same time, the views of the Christlane with whom they come Into contact concerning their heathen faith gets modified too, and as a consequence their own Christian faith gets broadened, and sheds some of its peculiar-theological features. These Oriental young men are seen to be generous, gentle, reverent, aspiring, honest, affectionate, true, and quite as simple and pure in habit as young men of our Christian civilization; and it comes to be felt that the religious faith which is associated with such character cannot be wholly false or corrupting. Thus in Christendom as elsewhere the signs are multiplying that people are awaking out of their narrow provincial theologies, and are opening their eyes to a wider and more cosmopolitan view of religious truth and fellowship. They are beginning to get a glimpse of the magnificent proportions of a church that shall be as broad as humanity. Towards the religion of the future every one of the great religions of the world has some valuable contribution to make, which, not mechanically, but by organic growth, is to be wrought into the substance of the world's thought and life. The Orient, where all the great religions have had their birth, and the Occident, where religion has been most modified in its career by modern civilization, are to be reunited for the religious com pleteness of both. Feeling and thought, spiritual imagination and practical understanding, Inspiration of the heart and vigorous will, both and all are needed for the production of the highest form of religion, whether in individual experience or in a race

548

The Western nations have certainly much yet to learn from the Eastern. If they need us we also need them. The religion of Christendom would have more of breadth and graciousness and charity, would be less angular, less provincial, would have a sweeter tone and a more sympathetic spirit, if to the virtues that have been specially developed in the modern Western world were to be added some of the old but not yet exhausted virtues of the Oriental races. We have more particularly the virtues of enterprise, whether material or mental, the virtues that delight in conquering obstacles and subduing the earth to man's service, the virtues of advancing civilization, and of healthy intellectual and moral movement. But they have more of what we may call the home virtues,-trust, contentedness, patience, stability, hospitality, magnanimity, unselfish simplicity, generous faith in each other. How it would benefit our impatient, restless temperaments, soothe down our feverish haste and ambitions, bealthily balance our wasting nervous eagerness and instinctive discontent, if we could have an infusion into our natures of somewhat of their sobriety, screnity, temperance, patient persistency, childlikeness, repose; a repose which with them, for the want of elements of character to be drawn from the West, may have come too near to philosophic fatalism and to practical stagnation, but which at heart is a deep confidence in the laws of the universe and in the Infinite Power that pervades those laws! W. J. P.

Communications.

BIGOTRY IN POLITICS.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:-For many ages bigotry in belief, as to matters out-side of the present life, has been the motive power of government. In Europe this bigotry has christened itself the Church, which has always, more or less openly and absolutely, controlled the State. The ob-ject of the bigots has been to produce aniformity of faith; the actual result to produce almost universal hereories.

faith; the actual result to produce almost universal hyporisy. The Church came across the mighty water to Amer-les, with no lack of bigotry, but under the banners of dissent. Divided against itself, it happily lost the power of controlling the secular government. But unhappily it has not lost the whole of its bigotry. This bigotry, in despair of ruling America in the name of the Church, now begins to rebaptize itself name of the Church, now begins to rebaptize itself as Religion, and arows its purpose to control politics, not so much in the interest of uniformity of faith as of good morals. But the necessary result must still, as ever before, be hypocrisy. Virtue comes not hy compulsion or reward, but by pure reason appealing to the sense of right and wrong. So far as the Church is a collection of persons sincerely believing in given dogmas, nobody can object to its propagating its faith by purely intellectual arguments; but the moment it oversteps this line, and attempts to make converts by physical rewards and punishments, or to promote good morals by compulsion, it begins to establish our right to regard it as a conclave having bigotry for its motive power, and hypocrisy for its certain result. For one, I cannot believe that bigotry is the motive power of the Church, or rather churches, of America, or that any one of them, as such, has an ambition to power of the Church, or rather churches, of America, or that any one of them, as such, has an ambition to control the State. My chief reason for this incredul-ity is the fact that the bigotry is organizing itself out-side of the churches, in such bodies as the Christian Amendment Society and the Young Men's Christian Association. Through the churches, as such, comes to the people weekly a great deal of the wisdom of the ages, along with the superstition and poor theol-ogy of the so-called sound writers. Bad as is the mixture, it is immensely better than nothing, especially for those who like it. And as long as they are not possessed with the insane will that everybody shall like and swallow it all, whether or no, one may more powerfully in them than the falsebood and the vain imaginations. But the Amendment people and the "praying-bid or obviously contemplate establishing what they call religion by law, through the use of political machinery—a movement which the American church-es have a common interest, stronger than what the "world" has, to nip in the bud. Thirty years ago it was my lot to ramble a little in the by ways of England, where they have an Estab-lished Church; and I could not resist the conviction nearly equal to that of chattel-lawery in our own onthry. It seemed to repress thought and create hypocrise verywhere. It seemed to put the rebel-lous souls whom its tyranny had repelled into dissent into an opposite state of electricity nearly as bad as its own. The way it often brought its power to bear on this country it would be called the essence of mean-ness. I am reminded of this by overhauling a pack-among which I find this, which I begged as a curle-ating which I find this, which I begged as a curlow of thoeknorton, Chipping Norton, who had applied for the lease of a small farm belonging to a Mr. Field, of Deddington, a Christian of the Established Church-tyhe forced themselves upon my attention, fit to breed contempt. I asy nothing of a multitude of the tass fairs sample of hundreds of similar faits which forced the set of similar faits to breed contempt. I asy nothing of a multitude of the tass of a fairs sample of hundreds of similar faits which forced the mean who received it. He was a farmer of the descend a small farm belonging to a Mr. Field, of Deddington, a Christian of the Established Church which forced the mean who received it. He was a farmer of the tass of a small farm belonging to a Mr. Field, of Deddington, a Christian of the Established Church which forced the mean who received it. He was a farmer of the tas a fair sample of hundreds ELIZUR WRIGHT. DEDDINGTON, 4th Jan., 1844. Sir,—I further considered the subject on which I particularly enquired your sentiments on Monday, and am still more convinced that I should not be doing my duty to my neighbors, if I were to let the farm to a dissenter from the Established Church. As I do not wish to put any restraint on your feelings or conduct in this respect, I think it would be better if you gave up all thought of taking the farm; and if. I do not see you on Saturday, I shall conclude that you have done so. Were it not for this objection, I should have been glad to let it you, as I believe you to be a good farmer, and that you would have made us a good tenant. us a good tenant.

d tenant. I am, sir, yours faithfully, SAMUEL FIELD. MR. JAMES HARRIS.

JAR-BREAKERS.

It may be said that, in regard to matters connected with the advancement of science and theology, there are three classes of mind in the community. The first class (and it is but a small one) is composed of those who jar the world; the second, of those whose business is is to ease or break the jar for the third and largest class, who cannot bear jarring, and must nev-er upon any account be jarred !

These classes have naturally their organs and repre-entatives in certain newspapers. Readers of THE INDEX need not be reminded of an organ of the first

INDEX need not be reminded of an organ of the first class; nor is it necessary to indicate any belonging to the third class. Their name is Legion. Of the jar-breaking organs the number is not large, but from the middle ground they occupy their in-duence is widely feit. Three or four of the ablest hall from New York. I know of no more serviceable jar-breaker than the Independent. Apparently un-able or unwilling to trace the logical sequence of its premises, coqueting one week with the principles of Free Religion, and the next loftily disowning their only legitimate outcome—it yet, by its systematic dis-couragement of abeer dogmatism and creed-slavery, is doing most excellent service in the cause it professes to oppose. I believe I speak advisedly in say-ing that, as an agency in bridging the gulf between advanced Orthodoxy and cautious Radicalism, it has no rival in Christendom.

no rival in Christendom. Especially upon the dogma of eternal punishment its utterances have vastly assisted the opening of free discussion. After the adjournment of the Evan-gelical Alliance, the Independent took occasion to re-buke the exclusiveness which closed its doors to Universalists, reminding the clergy that large num-bers in other communions no longer hold that doc-trine to be an essential of their creed. Yet the careful editor by no means commemized

bers in other communious no longer hold that doc-trine to be an essential of their creed. Yet the careful editor by no means compromised himself. "We have tried to believe in the final salva-tion of all men," he writes in an article denying that hell is the basis of the kingdom of heaven, "but can-not feel justified in doing so." He continues—in substance, I do not quote the exact words: "We can-not help believing that a long-continued course of wilful and defiant sinning may so harden the con-science of a man as to make it, by a simply natural law, forever unsusceptible of repentance." This would be very good, if it were only the out-breaking sinners whom Christianity condemns to eternal death. But it must not be ignored that the con-demnation includes also men of moral life who simply ful to "close with the terms of salvation" through the blood of Jesus. Does the diplomatic jar-breaker give us his opinion of this side of the question? Not at all. Rigidly Orthodox readers would find in the paragraph quoted pleasant confirmation of their cherished doctrine; but the wide-awake, inquiring soul on the watch for new truth, noting the omission, would decide for itself: "Ah, this editor no more be-lieves that people are sent to partition for simple dis-belief of the doetrines than Mr. Abbot does!" Instances of like skilful, not to asy strategic, hand-ing of the Orthodox creeds are not unfrequent in the solumns of the Independent. They should be la-belled, "Cushions for the Delicate; making the transit easy from the religion of authority to a Free Religion!" Indeed, so many within the circle of my own acquaintance have been led by these seducitie editorials to question, to investigate, and finally to bid farewell to their old dogmatic beliefs, that it has for some time been my practice to lead inquiring minds, by a graduated aeries of its articles, up to the radical edge of the Independent, and then so dez-terously to slide them over to the conservative (?) corner of THE INDEX that they are scarcely aware of any shock to their nerves!

Therefore, O INDEX, deal gently with the jar-breakers. The work they do would perhaps be "Poorer done by better hands," and verily they have their reward.

H. L. B. B. PARKER MEMORIAL HALL-WAS IT DES-

ECHATED ;

BY W. F. JAMIESON.

"Ye cut muckle whangs out o' ither folk's chose." "Ye has the wrang soo by the lug."-Scotch Process

<page-header><text><text><text><text><text><text>

This Convention is expressly for the purpose of discus-sion and propaganda; and all Spiritualists, Socialist, Ind-dels, Materialists, Free Religionists, and Free Tainkers are cordially invited to astend and join in the effort to advased the cause of truth and human welfare. All subjects in which the good of the race is involved will be legitimate themes for discussion and for set speeches.

The cause of right and annual winter will be legitimate themes for discussion and for set speeches. Any fault to find with that? Such a call is an honor to any body of people. Friend Wetherbee complains that "the subject of Spiritualism was entirely left out." There was but little of what is called Summer Land speech-making; but there was some, enough to prove that Mr. Weth-erbee is not exact in his statement, "entirely left out." Each speaker was perfectly free to choose his or her own theme. If what is called Spiritualian re-ceived but little attention, it was doubtless owing to the conviction, which has become prevalent among Spiritualists, that for a quarter of a century we have had a surfeit of lectures upon the "beautiful bills" of the rolling spheres. There is every-day work to be done down in this world. Mr. Wetherbee says he is "aware the community groans under it hypocrisy, that the evils that the 'spouters' lone of his classical expressions] of this Convention com-plain of are not much, if any, overstated." This is another admission of the great work accomplished by this much-abused Convention. But he is so ashamed to have Spiritualism mixed up with "outside is aue?"! And yet he says through Spiritualism logi-cally "these crying and admitted evils will be cared." How cured, if Spiritualism is too dainty to deal with therm?

them? Mr. Wetherbee admits that the speakers at the Convention "have a perfect right to discuss the sub-jects they did, and in the way they did." Then why call them "freedom-shriekers"? If that term "shrieker" is voted elegant, why not apply it to all platform and pulpit eloquence? He says the "better portion" of the Spiritualists do not wish to be "disturbers of the peace," unless humanity is to gain something by the disturbance. Who can tell the issue before the revolution? If Abolitionists had waited to see the "gain" in their agitation, no word for the slave would have been spoken. Indeed the Abolitionists were constantly reminded that their freedom-abrieking would pro-voke the anger of the South; engender hatred be-tween the blacks and whites; aroune the worst pas-sions of human nature; render the condition of the slaves more abject; and finally plunge the whole contry into war. Notwithstanding that ghastly pict-ure, the "shricking" proceeded. Mr. Wetherboe says: "I follow where truth leads, and take the consequences." Then why should he concern himself with "gain"? Gain or lose, sink or swim, Truth, and its open vindication, is what re-formers profess to seek. Then away with all mere time-serving expedients. Mr. Wetherbee tells us no one will accuse him of "being anything but a radical." That makes his lieter all the more astonishing. There are many who testify that they have heard him "shrick" for social freedom. Perhaps he was "influenced" to write his letter.

Tomonto Google

SINGING AS AN ATTRACTION.

MR. EDITOR :-

ME. EDITOR:-There is one point to which perhaps not sufficient attention has been paid by Liberals and Free Religionists. It is observable everywhere that those who do not accept Orthodoxy in all its hideounness still attend church or service at some Orthodox church, and most likely their children attend the Sunday-school. They take a pew there, and thus contribute to the continuation of error that they may think more or less effectually exploded. This is for two reasons, perhaps.

effectually exploded. This is for two reasons, ". ". ". ". Is proper. Other people who wear good thes, who pass for respectable members of society, and who are desirable associates, attend this church. "Berefore it is the thing to do." ". Therefore it is the thing to do." ". Therefore it is the thing to do." ". The second settend the Sunday-school. The preferement, the tickets and premiums, all show the efforts to stiract and interest is antiversary day: a day when the the start, the crowning attraction, in this city at least, is anniversary day: a day when senders to assert the second premiums, all show the efforts to stiract and interest with school norms, and march in order to the general renderoous, each class of each achool having a school barring of the show of impatience on the part of the one prefered member, and on each banner an incription which designates the school, the children discusses" with store with a show of impatience on the part of the one prefered members, and marking indices the song a school barry and endowed in the second school barry and marking glad the barry separator, and making glad the barry separator, and making glad the barry separator, and the second school barry and and children of unitarian, Universalit, Catholo, and negro schools being excluded by the policel, and show the norm the second and children of unitarian, Universalit, Catholo, and the second and children and universe the second and the second and the second and children of unitarian, Universalit, Catholo, and the second and the second and the second and statesmen" seem never to have learned, or to have statesmen" seem never to have learned, or to have utterly forgotten. Let some one in our ranks, who has the gift of rhyme, so embody these teachings for the benefit of the race, the advancement of the cause, the ennobling of humanity, that they can be sung to the tunes with which all Christendom is familiar, and thus supplant Calvinistic crueities of sin, atonement, sternal pun-ishment, and the like, with the nobler teachings of the Free Religionists. Then, when there more ex-alted ideas have been instilled into the minds of the "rising" generation, and when the "rising" shall have become the "present" generation, may we look for less corruption in high places! Of course these remarks have no application to the elegant musical services for the delectation of the in-tellectual audiences whose privilegs it is to be min-tistered unto by the analytical Frothingham, of New York, or the scholarly Chadwick, of Brooklyn. BBOOKLYE, N. Y.

LIBERAL WORKERS IN WISCONSIN.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:---It was our privilege to be present at Whitewater, at the liberal convention held there on October 12, 13, 14, and 15, where we witnessed a good assembly of liberal thinkers from different parts of the State and liberal thinkers from different parts of the State and from the West.

A joint committee of Universalists and Unitarians in June last had made the arrangements and programme for this convention. One of its objects was to enlist all liberal workers and thinkers in the work of reform. The essay of Rev. W. H. Harrington, of Belviders, Ill. (subject: "What's in a name?"), was full of rich thought. He is too liberal for the old line Universalists. He is a young man.
Rev. W. S. Balch, of Elgin, Ill., Universalist, gave a lecture on the evening of the 13th. Subject: "Science and Religion—Is there a God above Matter?" Dr. Balch's lecture was to some extent a review of Prof. Tyndall's famous address, and. to the surprise of many of the more moderate Universalists and Unitarians, an endorsement of the professor. Pentup creeds are too small for the speaker, evidently. On the last day of the Convention, Rev. Dr. Kerr, of Rochford, Ill., preached before the Convention a most radical and able liberal sermon. Subject: "Ideas in Religions—Survival of the Fittest."
We give these few features of this Convention showing the liberal thinkers and workers here. The several speakers were followed on most of these subjects with criticisms.

jects with criticisms. Most of the young men, both in the Universalist and Unitarian denominations, are too liberal for the conservative of those denominations; but we were pleased, notwithstanding, to witness that kindness and courters which are always possessed so fully by men of culture so largely manifest. J. L. Jones, of Janesville, Wis., G. W. Cooke, of Sharon, Wis., and W. H. Harrington, are preaching to good con-gregations. B. F. HOLMES. gregations. PALMYRA, Oct. 26, 1874.

SECRET ORGANIZATION AGAIN.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 20, 1874.

SECRET ORGANIZATION AGAIN. St. JOSEFH, Mo., Oct. 20, 1874. Entron of THE INDEX:-Since becoming a reader of THE INDEX, articles headed "Organization" have been frequently pub-lished in your paper. One feature of the articles seemed always prominent, which was that, while they left the impression of a quite general desire for organization on the part of "Liberals," no plan for organization was suggested, or had been thought out. In a communication, dated August 10, to Mr. Abbot (intended to have been private). I saked if some acceptable plan could not be devised, and hinted at one which might be secret, at least so far as signs or passwords were concerned. It was no part of my idea that the opinions or purposes of the organization should be hid, or in any way disguised; such organ-ization I should oppose. On the contrary, while those opinions and purposes might be well known, the individual member could avow his connection at such times and places as he alone chose. Such plan, or something similar to it, it appeared to me, would leave every person free to express his opinions in-dividually as freely as he does now when outside of all organizations, while he would feel that he was no standing quite alone, but was one of many workers, all connected by the tie of union. To the weak it would give some strength, and make the brave aronger."

atronger." Some may object that my plan does not include an effective organization; that the liberal elements, after entering auch union, would be as non effective and scattered as at present. Perhaps so. But let the objectors consider that I am of the class referred to at the commencement of this article—without a plan,—and, like them, anxious to hear from some one who has a plan. Yours for truth, E. C. ALTHONSE.

[We are sorry to have mistaken the intent of Mr. Alphonse as to the publication of his former communication, for we scrupulously respect the wishes of our correspondents in this respect, when known. Let us suggest that they mark them all either "For THE INDEX" or "Private," as the case may be; and then we shall not fall into the same blunder again.

No "plan" of organization could be devised which would meet all requirements : everything depends on the purpose to be served. Social clubs, debating clubs, lecture unions, literary societies, Liberal Leagues, and so forth, all require different plans. Organization for its own sake is useless; there must be something to organize for. A general union of Liberals must be for general objects, and, if they have no such objects, no union is possible or desirable. We wish all Liberals appreciated the importance of the objects specified on our first page. But. until they do, we counsel no abortive attempts. When the freedom-loying part of this nation perceive what is still necessary to secure entire religious free-dom, they will doubtless units. Meanwhile we labor to show this necessity, waiting patiently for a response.-ED.]

THE QUINTESSENCE OF SIN.

THE QUINTESSENCE OF SIN. Half a century ago, or therabouts, I remember hearing an Evangelical minister giving before a large congregation the following definition of a Unitarian: "A Unitarian is something between a Jew and the devil. He denies the God that bought him. He boasts of his good works; but his good works will hang like milistones round his neck, to draw him deeper into the gulf of destruction." I remember hearing another minister (he was a Presbyterian) defining Roman Catholicism thns: "It is a system engendered in hell, and vomited forth by Satan upon earth, to become the bane and curse of mankind."

"It is a system engendered in hell, and vomited forth by Satan upon earth, to become the bane and curse of mankind." Both these theologians and highly popular preach-ers occupied pulpits at Liverpool (England); and now we have a not less popular preacher, and not less in-function on the set of the set of the set of the set of and the set of the set of the set of the set of function of the set of the set of the set of set of the set of set of the set of the set of the set of the set of all erime; the dregs of the wine of Gomorrah ; it is the A 1 set the masterpiece of Satan; the chief work of the devil." Ecce Evangelicalism i Not long since in this city a clergyman (Catholic) the difference of the set of the set of the set of the devil." Ecce Evangelicalism i Not long since in this city a clergyman (Catholic) of the criminal under the gailows: "Oh 1 wish that i could go where you are going to day !" Ecce catholicism i With such preachings, such teachings, whether frangelical or Catholic; with the assurance that it heavers with the belief that sin has long since been explated; that the penalty has been paid in advance in is a carte blanche for the commission of crime, and the indulgence in vice is a passport to eternal happi-needitod, and humanity erailcated, and man ere long reduced to a condition beiow that of the beast of the in due to that of the forest. If not to that of the forest. Mew YORE. DELLENERN AND CREEDS.

CHILDREN AND CREEDS.

CHILDREN AND CREEDS. Every one who has studied the nature of childhood fearless freedom with which children seek a knowl-dege of the mysteries of life and all of the wonderful forms of Nature around them. They have no in-stinctive idea of "forbidden fruit," and approach revery tree accessible to their childish thought or forms of Nature around them. They have no in-stinctive idea of "forbidden fruit," and approach revery tree accessible to their childish thought or forms of the mysteries of life and all of the wonderful forms of Nature as me guileess freedom. Vaguely conscious of a kinship with Nature, they regard her is a flectionate familiarity. As reflection dawas on the young inhabitant of this world of wonders, he a often deeply perpiered in trying to comprehend the reality of what he sees. The facts of Nature suggest an undiscovered cause which is his first metaphysical roblem; but of this he has no instinctive fear. What he cannot comprehend he invests with no fin-cag to erglore the mysteries of life and Gu. The period of a triess truith-seeking is the most form's life! But what a melancholy change does in procent, and easts over its sumy mind the simple trigt, and casts over its sumy mind the private religious teachings are marshalled before the simple trigt, and easts over its sumy mind the private religious teachings are marshalled before the simple trigt, and seture receils. Thus the tender heast of hild hou nantural misgirings. Nature no longer private file moves the mysteride ellings is now per-private his soul. The beautiful simplicity that is nonven his attempte to penterate heresceret. The south his nature receils. Thus the tender heast of childhood, warm and buoyant with natural love and forced into the private of a false creed. A life of mark his is not an exaggeration of the effects of the the the dore and starved in affections is the deformed in intellect and starved in anections is the consequence. That this is not an exaggeration of the effects of teaching the Orthodox religious doctrines to children, I think many now struggling to free themselves from the impressions thus received in childhood can testi-fy. These impressions cannot always be entirely eradicated by the reason of maturer years; and some minds which seem to be illuminsted by the clearest light of rational thought are sometimes darkened by the shadows of those gloomy ideas of religion received in childhood from well-meaning but ignorant piety. When will enlightened benevolence guard the help-less children of our race from those horrid ghosts which still haunt the abode of civilized man, and lead their trembling victims to the altar of a false religion T H. CLAY NEVILLE. OZARK, MO.

Uginostin Google

OZARE, MO.

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 12, 1874.

Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1 8 7 4.	P U B L I C A T I O N 8
THE PATRONAGE	or LEADING INDEX WRITERS.	THE INDEX,	FREE
the liberal advertising public is respect-	Including O. B. FROTHINGHAM,	A Weekly Journal	RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION
111 be honesity made to keep the advortis- icy pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony this is general character and principles, and has to furnish to the public an advertising soliton which shall be not only profitable to a patrons, but also worthy of their meet tearous support. To this end, all improper	T. W. HIGGINSON, W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN,	FREE RELIGION.	Report of the Addresses and the Proceedings of the Original Res ing in 1867, at which the Pro-
"minous support. To this end, all improper "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- sements, and all advertisements believed be fraudulent or unjust to any one, will be coluded from these columns. No cuts will admitted. "Rex Isnux must not be held responsible	CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, J. E. ABBOT, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX,	PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,	Beligious Association was Organized. Containing addresses by 0. Broj ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucreta Ma Bobert Dale Owen, John Waiss, Oliver, Joh son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Z or any statement made by advertisers, who vill in all cases accept the responsibility for beir own statements. ADVERTISING RATES.	and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 cents each; complete Bet of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50. Address, THE INDEX,	AT No. 1 Tremont Place, Beston. EDITOR :	ginson, and Balph Waldo Emerson. (This pamphlot has not been on sale for number of years, and many persons who has all of the Annual Reports succeeding do
For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line. (13 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25 (25	No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.	FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:	possess this.) Price 50 cents. Proceedings of Second Annual Hee ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains each
On half-column advertisements, a discount f 10 per cent. will be made; on fuil-column dvertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is ald in advance, a further discount of 25 per ent. on the total, as above calculated, will e made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.	INDEX TRACTS. No. 1Trnths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Frinciples." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spa- cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-	ABBAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FEOTHINGHAM, New York City, T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.	Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and I straint in Religion," and by David A. W. son on "The Relation of Social Scimos Religion," and speeches by O. S. Froth ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. D. ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. B
O A D VE R T I S E R S. The following states the experience of a uccessful Bookseller who has advertised in BK INDEX:- DTER INDEX:- TOTAL NOT THE ADDRESS OF 10, 1872.	inally intended for publication, but subse- quently authorized to be used: "There now read "TRUTHS FOR THE TRUES," and I admire them from my immost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price	W. J. POTTEE, New Bedford, Mass. E. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MBS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Flain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.	tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Bowl Connor, Lucy Stone, Borace Searer, others; with an appendix on "Outline Judaiam" by Rabbi Wise. Proceedings of Third Annual Me
THE INDEX Asso., Toledo, O.: Gentlemen, - Having had occasion to adver- in your paper during the past two years the largely, I take pleasure in stating that have always obtained very satisfactory re- rms-better in fact than from book adver- elemente in any other paper I have adver- ted in. Not only have I obtained inamedi- a remults ways I obtained inamedi-	acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-	THE INDEX aims- To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :	of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "
ceived months after the insertion of the vertisement, showing that your paper is spt on file and referred to by your readers. Yours truiy, HEVEY S. STERRIVS	thy of the ninetcenth contary. New Edi- tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents. No. 3Lecture on the Hible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over- whelling demonstration of the imperfec-	To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the indi- vidual: To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom	the Age;" an essay by Samuel Jourson
Special arrangements will be made at re- used terms for long-time or extended ad- artisements. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 TREMONT PLACE,	tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 13 copies $1.00. No. 4Christian Propagandism, by F.	for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hake, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfah schemes. In brief, to hasten the day when Free Belig-	lowed by Habbl Wise on "Ins Ferma and Progressive Elements of Judsim," T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanin by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligion
Boston. JULTURED FREE THOUGHT.	E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Paols, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesizations throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and	discussion on "The Bible in the Pul Schools," by Thes. Vickers, S. E. Caltin Rabbi Wise, and others.
The Index Association, DFFICE, NO. 1 TREMONT PL., BOSTON, as been organized with a capital stock fixed at	No. 5God in the Constitution," by Bev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro- posed Theological Amendment to the Unit- ed States Constitution. Frice 10 cents; 12 contes 21.00.	public activities. In addition to its general objects, the prac- tical object to which THE INDEX is special- ly devoted is the OEGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the pur-	cents each.) Contains essays by J. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church has been organized with a capital stock fixed at ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, for the se of publishing Tracts, Books, and

THE INDEX,

d Weekly Paper devoted to Free and Rational Religion.

It is the object of THE INDEX to give public It is the object of THE INDEX to give puose utterance to the boldest, most cultivated, and beat matured thought of the age on all religious questions, and to apply it directly to the social and political amelioration of society.

It is edited by FRANCISE. ABBOT, a d by W. STEVENS, with the following list of ditorial Contributors

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

THOMAS W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I. WILLIAM J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. WILLIAM R. SPENCER, Haverbill, Mass. RICHARD P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. REV. CHARLES VOYSEY, London, England

PROF. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN, London, Eng. Every liberal should subscribe for THE INDEX.

Every increasionald subscribe for THE INDEX, as the best popular exponent of Religious Liber-aliam. Every Christian minister, and every think-ing church-member, should subscribe for it, as the clearest, most candid, and most scholarly ex-position of the differences between Free Thought and Evangelical Christianity, and as the best means of becoming well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which he (humch and ned of the argu means or seconing well informed of the argu-ments and the movements which the Church will have to meet in the future.

Almost every number contains a discourse or leading article, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription.

Prof. MAX MUELLER, of Oxford, Es Prof. MAX MURLLER, of Oxford, England, in a latter to the Editor published in THE INDEX for January 4, 1873, emps: "That the want of a journal entirely devoted to Religiou in the widest sense of the word should be feit in America-that such a journal abould have been minds of your country.-is a good sign of the bines. There is no work journal in England, France, or Germany; though the number of so-called religious or the-ological periodical is, as you know, vary large." And later still: "I read the numbers of your IN-DEX with increasing interest." Send $200 for one year, or 75 cents for three months on trial.

Addres

No. 1 Tramont Place, Boston.

THE INDET

No. 5.-"God In the Constitution," by ev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-R ed States Constitution. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-4'The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.—"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 5.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evangelical Christian Greed in the U. S. Constintion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.- Is Romanism Heal Christian-ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyzes the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion : The Name and the Thing, by F.E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Beligion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.09. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, pose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States.

Boston, Mass.

The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes The last of the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accompliab this object, the Liberals musi make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX

SPECIAL FRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known eminent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radical readers. Other interesting correspond-ence, communications, extracts from value-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to e as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the cour try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remittances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tramont Place, Boston.

Proceedings of Seventh Annaal Meeting, 1874. 36 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains writing reports of President Frothingham's sideres edom," with reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's casay on "De Boligious Signs of the Times," of Eabl Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Jad-ism," and of the statements by Mesn. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their re-spective attitudes towards Christianity-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Erspectre attitudes towards Christian, as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Er-tra-Christian,"-together with the Secret-ry's Annual Report, and letters from Esh-ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglas, and D. A. Wasson.

America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by 0. B. Frothingham on "The Beligion of Humaliy," with addresses by Rowland Conner, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A.

Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Mesi-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 5 cents each.) Contains essays by Samed Johnson on "Freedom in Beligion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dals Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Longfu-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Le-and others.

low, J. B. Thom

cretia Mott.

Sympathy of Beligions, by T. W. Big

Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Chinping. 25 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Ist. Parion. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Beligious Association, No. 1 The mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reprist for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 is guite limited. Orders by stall may be ad-dressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1. "Freemant Flats. Forter 1. or to the No. 1 Tremoni Place, Boston," or to the Booretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. FOTTER, Sec. P. E. 4.

POPULAR BOOKS

BENT BY MAIL AT.

PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.

ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on recently of orders accompanied with the CASE.

Orders are respectfully selicited from all friends of THE INDEX.

ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two Tols Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside 1.50 1.50 1.00 1.00 1.75 Bories An Old-Fashioned Girl. Little Mea. My Boys, &c. Shawl-Strapt. Work; A Story of Experience..... :1: auun ABABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Resays in Oriti-

BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams. 2.50

BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations .......... 1.00

arguments of the Supreme Course of the Supreme Arguments of the Supreme Course of King in Arguments of the Subic Analys and King in Arguments of Saild Hoading and Mathews Arguments of Saild Hoading and Mathews The Opinion and Docidicion of the Supreme Oouri of Ohio in the above case 2.00 .50

BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls.

36

.25

RUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 3.25

work, with a complete index. I vola...... OA BLYLE'S Works. Cheap edition. Compris-ing the following: Miscellaneous Zenaya, r vola.; French Revolution, J vola: Preders, ick in 60 these Sarior Researtus, 1 vol.; John Storfing, J vol.; Life of Schiller, J vol.; John Storfing, J vol.; Life of Schiller, J vol.; John Storfing, J vol.; Latter Day Pamphlets, I vol. Any volume sold separately. J vola. Loo don, 1871-3. Per vol.

OARPENTER (DR. W. B.) The Principles of Mental Physiology, with their Applica-bions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Cond-bions.

OHANNING (WM. BLLERY). Thereau: The Poet Naturalist. With Memorial Verse. 2.00

OLARKE (JAMÉS FREEMAN). Ten Great Beligions

OLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ...... 1.25 OLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the World .....

OOBBE (FRANCES FOWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects. Darwinism in Morals, and other Essays.... The Redigious Demands of the Age..... 1.7/

. 2.00

OULTURE DEMANDED BY MODERN LIFE; Its True Aims and Requirements A Series of Addresses. By Tyndail, Huz-loy, Whawell, Farafay, Spencer, Draper, Masson, Lyell, etc. Edited by Edward L. Toumans. .................

DALL (Mus. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court: or, Woman's Relation to Education. Employment, and Ottisanahlp.

Historical Fictures Retonobed; a Volume of Miscollanica, In two parts. Part I., "Studies, Pictures, and Fancies". The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrzewske, being a Practical Illustration of "Worman's Rights to Labor"..... 1.00 DICKENS' Child's History of England ..... DUHRING (JULIA.) Philosophers and Foola. A Study..... 1.50 2.00 Poliz Holi. Bilas Marror and Scenes of Clarical Life. The Same. Library Edition. 3 vols ...... Middlemarch. 3 vols Wit and Wisdom of The Spanish Gypsy ..... They Las Loyed the King...... 3.50 1.25 1.50 How Liss Loyed the king. EMERSON'S R. W. Damays. First Series... Zeasys. Second Series Miscellanics Expresentative Men. Explish Traits... Ouduct of Life .... Poems. With Portraits... May-day and Other Pieces Easys. Silve and Gold... Pores. Silve and Gold... Pores Works. 2 vois ... Society and Solitude .... - 1.50 - 5.00 - 2.00 Society and Solitone Transformations of Christianity. From the Frunch of Athanase Coqueroi the Younger... The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 2 yols..... 5.00 PEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, 1.00 FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers.. 2.00 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Ha-manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers Child's Book of Beligion Life of Theodors Parker. 1.50 _20 1.00 3.00

FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 yols ......

GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius. An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse-quences

Quences OSETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Yarre by Bayard Taylor. 3 rols. Per vol Elective Arhiettes. Wilhalm Meister. Translated by Thomas Carlyle. Potrait of Geothe. 2 vol. ..... Herman and Dorothes. Translated by El-ien Prothungtam 8.00 3.50 . 1.0

GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doo-uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote, Second Edition. With Por-trait

HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book I. In England. Book U. In Scottana. Book II. In France. Thooghts about Art. The Gaknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters on Azimais.

..... 1.50 2.00 ..... 6.00 ..... 2.00 HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World. Part Sec-

Logical Lectures
 HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works, New Bluatrated Library Edition. Nine vola, Per vol., Third Pales, Morsee from an Old Manse. The Searist Letter, and The Blithedale Bomanos.
 The House of the Seven Gables, and The Bomanos.
 The Marbie Paus.
 The Marbie Paus.
 The Marbie Paus.
 The Marbie Paus.
 The American Note-Books.
 Our Old House, and Septimius Felton.

9.00

1.50

GowerLeS's (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed ding Journey Buburban Eksisches Venetän Life Ttallan Journeys A Chance Acquaintance

HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " "Ninety-Three". 1.75

HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER YON). Life of, Translated from the German. 2 vols., with three portraits.

onition of Se

1.75

1.25

Songs of Seven. IN GELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skel-ling sories to Stories ... Stories to Stories ... Startise... Startise... Startise... Monte Fuiry: A Story... Poor Matt; or, The Clouded Intellect......

INGERSOLL'S (BOBT.G.) The Gods and Other 2.00

551

2.00

1.75

6.04

30

ROSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dants

CIENCE PEIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Ruzley, F.E.S... 2. Chemistry. By Prof. Roscos. 1. Physics. By Ealfour Stewart, With II-lastrations.

SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Tarrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.

Instructions 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei-kis, LL.D., F.R.S., Sexible doth.

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help ..... 1.50

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-

BTOWE (HABBIET BEECHEE.) Pink and White Tymanay. Uncle Tom's Cabin.....

New Life of Jesus. Authorized transis-tion. 2 vols.....

STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the

TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Liters-sure. 2 vols The Class-Room Tains. History of English Litersture. Abridged and Edited by John Flake

THACKERAT'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition Complete In 5 volumes. Per vol., 1,25 The New comes. Adventures of Philip. Pendennis.

Pendennis. The Virginians. Esmond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Noreis. Com-plete in Svols. With new Portrait, Per vol. 1.28. This edition includes all the matters in the lassest set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the noreis, the chaspest and most complete Thackersy in the market. Barry Lyndon, Hesparty Diamond, &c.

mplete Thackersy in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarity Diamond, &c. 2. Paris, and Iriah Skolch-Books, &c. 3. Suoba, Skotches, Denis Durah, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humoriste, &c. 5. Ostherine, Christmas Books, and Unre-printed Piscos.

THAXTER'S (MRS. CELIA) Among the late of Shoals ..... 1.58

THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods

the Woods Excursions in Field and Forest. Fortrait. The Maine Woods Cape Cod. Leiters

VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vois I and Y., each. 100 Vois HI. IV. and YI., each. 3.75 The Voysey Appeal. 50 Voysey's Dolence at York. 56

Waaningtoo and the Avouation WHITNEY? (Miss. A. D. 7.) & Summer in Lastic Goldthwaits's Life. We Giris: A Home Story Real Folks. The Other Giris. Pandes. A volume of Poems.

WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) Poems, 2 vols .... 4.06 Child Life......

ADDRESSI

I Tremont Place, Boston.

musuly Google

THE INDE

3.00

TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-

Fragments of Science for Unscientific Peo-

ERROLD (DOUGLAS). Firedde Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.6 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligions, and their Belation to Universal Beligion. India

OSEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavian Josephus, the Jewish Historian $.50

JOWETT. The Dialognes of Plato, Trans lated into English, with Analysis and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Regins Pro-fessor of Greek. Four vols.

KERB (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humorous...... 2.0

tus to Charlemagne. 2 vols ..... 8.06

Laws by Laws rouningnam. 1.00 Laws Pyrhydlogy of Common Life. 7 vols. 5.00 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Freemi Day, T vols. Frohems of Life and Mind. The Founds. 1.00 Hons of a Creed.

LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-dalam? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.00

LOWELL (Mus. A. C.) Postes for Children. 75 LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civiliza-Bon, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 200 Pre-hilsoric Times. 5.00

MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph Ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol..... The New Amnilies of Faith . 2.50

MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind

MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire. Conversion of the Northern Nations..... . 1.50

.75

MIVART (ST. GEO.) On the Genesis of

3.50

2.50

(ASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Roun the Cirkle. Ekkoes from Kantucky. 1.50

Excess from Kantucky, NEWWAIN (FRANCIS W.) A Elistory of the Hobrew Monarchy. Fhases of Pailt; or, Passages from the History of my Oreed. The Soul, its Borrows and its Asplicitions. Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church of the Poture, as the Organization of Distant Doubling and Practical. The Religious Weakness of Protestantism. Against Hero-Making in Religion. 1.50

1.00

1.78

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

Repeal of the Laws

whereby church and other corporate property is anjustly Sxempted from its share of the burden of baration.

As a means to this end, we have published for general circulation several thousand copies of a

TRACT

on Church Exemption, being the article by Mr.

Abbot which app

We deale soon to issue

We have already issued three editions, the ast of which is nearly exhausted.

Another Large Edition

of this and other tracts on the subject, so at we can place a copy in the hands

EVERY VOTER IN THE STATE.

ad generously to supply the calls for them in

All Friends of the Movement

Last winter this subject was brought b petitions were presented asking a repeal of

The matter is still in their hands, and at the next session will undoubtedly be acted upon.

Voice of the People,

favoring justice and equity, should be dis-

BLANK PETITIONS AGAIN.

thus giving an opportunity to those who have presented to our legislative body.

THE LARGEST PETITION

Will those willing to assist in circulating these petitions please

SEND IN THEIR NAMES?

We would say, also that we feel deeply the need of

Other Organizations

Form a Liberal League,

we are ready to render such assistance as lies in

LIBERALSI

If all will units and work, the results sought can be accomplianed Address

BOSTON LIBERAL LEAGUE.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Per order of the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE to cooperate with ne in sear ready done so, to protest against this

We shall soon be ready to send out fore the Legislature of the State, as these unjust laws.

Meanwhile the tinctly heard.

continued wrong.

Let us make it

e forward and help us with liberal donations ther States. To do this, we need funds; for, alth have made arrangements for printing the Tract at very low cost, it is impossible for the Boston Langue, with its various other arpenses, to bear the entire expense alone. Will not, then, ] 552

Addres

dress

T

1 Tremont Place, Boston

PHOTOGRAPHS

MORSE'S NEW BUST OF

THEODORE PARKER.

Cabinet size. Price 50 cents.

Sent by mail on receipt of price. Ad-

S. H. MORSE,

25 Bromfield Street, Boston

Also for sale at the office of THE INDEX.

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOUENAL AND BE-

VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-

EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY

The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun-day Eventings for the Feople," and generally to promote everything conducive to rational recreation on Sunday. The Free Sunday Advocate is published in Hondon, England, and is conducted by an Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall. London; Fred'k Long, Londo, Francis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Judge, Hampstead. The ANNUAL ESPECHIFTION for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one dollar (psymble in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE;

THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE;

256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England

CHARLES SUMNER'S

GREAT WORK.

PROPHETIC VOICES

CONCERNING AMERICA.

By CHARLES SUMNER. Fine Edition, Tinted Paper, with Steel Por-trait, Crown Svo., Cloth extra, $2.

Aside from its literary and historical mer-its, this volume has a special interest, from the fact that it was the last work on which est edition of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the British Association. It is the edition revised and anthorized by Prof. Tyn-CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.-At home, male or female, 50 a week war-ranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp. C. ROSS, Williamsburg, N. Y. dall himself, and contains a preface by him and additions to the Address, made since the delivery. Price, TRIETT CENTS THE INDEX.

HE

FRE

E

FREE DISCUSSION

I is hold at HOSPITAILLER HALL, 653 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M. 2% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Beligious Folitical, and Social interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalier Hall.

CHARLES SUMNER.

TO NEWSPAPER

Having conveniences for doing the best of newspaper printing at reasonable prices, I should like to contract for composition alone, or for composition, press-work, and mailing, for one or more weekly papers. Best of references given, and satisfactory work guaranteed. GEO. H. ELL18, 7 Tremont Place, Boston.

TO PUBLISHERS. APRINTER of Liberal views desires a sit-nation on sweekly paper. Can set sit thou-sand eme a day, work hand-prees, make up forms, etc. Has done some job work, and can do what is necessary in a country print-ence, and considers himself competent to take charge of a country weekly. Is sober and industrious. Wages wanted, at least $12 per week. Address WILL KENNEDY. Box 1037, ST FAUL, MINN.

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1671, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2.-50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive resul-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Fluce, Boston.

				1 Tremont Place, Boston.
T	W	0	N	E	W	во	0	ĸ	8.

ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the author of The Fight at Dame Europa's

HOUSE OF BRUNSWICK. Charles Bradlaugh.

Mr. Sumner was engaged before his death. "PROPRETIC VOICES" will be found of great value to all who take an interest in the history of our country, so full is it of passages in which the unexampled prosperity of our land has been foretold by philosophers, poets statesmen, and orators, of whom the lament-ed author has also given interesting sketches.

Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. Address THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. A NEW, SEARCHING, TIMELY

"THE GENESIS AND ETHICS OF CONJUGAL LOVE."

By Andrew Jackson Davis.

Treatment of all the delicate and impor-tant questions involved in Conjugal Love is straightforward, unmistakably emphatic, and perfectly explicit and plain in every vital particular. Mr. Davis has recently examined the whole field of Marriage, Parentage, Dia-affection, and Divorce, and this little volume is the result; which now comes into the world because it is now both wanted and needed by all women and mere.

by all women and men. ... Our friend Andrew Jackson Davis has written a book this time that concerns every-body, and on this side of the great river. It certainly touches their bosoms if not their business, and people who do not cars a pin what Mr. Davis thinks of the Summer Land will be interested to see what he knows about conjugal love, and the duiles of the marriage relation. His book has a table of contents as astractive as a Delmonico bill of fare.—Gold-en Age. Mitrac en Age. Price, in paper covers, 50 cents; in band-some cloth, 76 cents; in full wilt and extra blading, $1. Postage free, The trade sup-piled on the most liberal terms. Published by the "Progressive Fublishing House" of A. J. DAVIS & CO., No. 24 East Fourth Street, New York City

A fine likeness of Massachusetts' great Sen-ator, the copy of a recent Photograph by Black, is for sale at THE INDEX office, and will be sent by mail to any address on receipt of the price-fifty cents. Address THE INDEX THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

PUBLISHERS.

Having conveniences for doing the best of ewspaper printing at reasonable prices, ] come forward and help us with liberal donations f We frequently receive communications from parties wishing tracts to distribute, saking how much they shall pay. To such we reply that the cost to us is about $2.50 per thousand, and we shall be pleased to furnish them at this price per thousand, or $0 cents per hundred, to all who will circulate them. But all additional donations will be gratefully received for the purpose of circu-sting them gratuitously throughout the country. Last winter this subject was howned; be

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

MODERN CHRISTIANITY, A CIV-

THE IMPEACHMENT OF THE

TIVE CENTS. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

8

A work just issued, but which has been many years in preparation, and of which the author may well be proud. Tha collection cannot fail to take the front rank in church music, and he used wherever 14 Plano Places of Distinguished Meril. SOLE EDITION.

Mazurka Rustique, .75 Chant de Guerre, 1.00 Caprice Polka, $1.00 Marguerice Waitz, .75 Souvenir de Cuba, .75 Rayons d'Azur .90 El Cocore, 2.00 Ov. to Oberou 4 Celebre Trenetelle,150 handé, 2.00 Ime Banjo, 1.50 Papillon Duet, 1.25 Souvenir de Lima, 1.00 Ava Maria(Yoca), .75 Scherze Romantique, $1.00. All Dools and music appt. rost-natid for

All books and music sent, post-paid, for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.. BOPTON.

> CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 BROADWAY, NEW YORE.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bons, Drug, and Hand, grinding MILLS. To Sizes. Also Cotton-Seed Billing. To ed paraphicita free. Addresser: Unitate SEDGEBEER, BIRPARD & MILLER 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Oblo. CHEAP OFFERI A A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACE, from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be making any address on the prepayment of Takers Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass THE AMERICAN EDITION OF MONCURE D. CONWAYS SACRED ANTHOLOGY, A BOOK OF ETHNICAL SCRIPTURES, has just been published, and will be sail postpaid on receipt of the price, $4.00. Address THE INDEL 1 TREMONT PLACE, Boston, Mass. G. L. HENDERSON & CO.

BANKEBS,

LEBOY, MINN.

Branch Office, 127 Broadway, S. I. Branca Unless, 127 Broadway, N. I. Money Invested in First Mortgage on Im-proved Farms in Minnescia and Iowa, no. Notes, drawing 9 per cent. annully is al-vance, or ten per cent. paid semi-tannully is advance, or 12 per cent, per annung annully. Tree of expense to the Loaner. Context of the second semi-tannom annully in the Bank, or in New Orte, Hill wrested. For Full Particular, send for Circuiz.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cant. Interiet, or Investments in Boal Estais in Chinge

if judicionaly made, are the best and misst modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency 0.

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STREET Chicago (Established 1983),

Guarantees perfect title and amps in all its Real Estate Leans. Firstclass securities always on had. Is-terest and principal collected witherschargs. Real Estate Investments made on commission of on sharse; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate err-ers respectfully solicited.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full size. It is smooth and elastic, and is equily adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perise frand, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Be-reka Silk exactly as represented. Every spool is warranted, and the manufacture's me indelibly branded on every spool. Call for it.

RADICAL AND LITERABY LECTURES. BT WEISS. JOHN BADICAL LECTURES. The Idea of Hereafter. An Act of Faith. Intelligence in Religion. n and Belence. Religio Heart in Beligion. SHARSPEARIAN LECTURES. FIRST SERIES. 1. Cause of Laughter. 2. Irony and Humor. B. Dogberry, Malvolio, Bottom, Tonchstona.
 Ajax in Troilus and Creasids: The Porter in Macbeth: The Fool in Lear. 5. Falstaff.

- 4. Hamlet,
- SECOND SERUES.
- 1. The Women of Shakspears.
- 2. Portia.
- 5. Ophelia.
- 4. Macbeth and Lady Macbeth.

6. Contrast in Shakspeare's Character JOHN WEISS, SPE. Brookline St., Boston Address

instate Google

The price of each of these books, in paper covers, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. In cloth binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY-rank in church music, and be used wherever the best music is appreciated. The music is admirable for Quariet Churs. Without being on the whole very difficult, it is in perfect tasks, and for larger choirs, for musical families, and musical societies, the book has a special adaptation.

H O M T A

equality and justice, by pressing the "Demands of Liberalism." If, in any locality, there are those who are inclined to

POSTHUMOUS WORKS OF

SACRED QUARTETS.

Price in Boards, $2.50. Cloth, $2.00.

in this Stat

L. M. GOTTSCHALK

Three Dollars a Year.

VOLUME 5.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19,

WHOLE NO. 256.

ORGANIZE!

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other ecclesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chapians in Con-grees, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

ahall cease.
4. We demand that all religious services now susfained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the nee of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensibly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious worship, shall be prohibited.
5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivations and fasts shall wholly cease.

or an religious resurvais and incide shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-tables of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed.
8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of (Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.
9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the Practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unifinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

A FURM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION. Whereas, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatoning the perpetuity of religions liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land;

THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ABT. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-and right. Aut. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members. Aut. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

ment. Asr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be these commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be nz-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Arr. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

FROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION. ABTICLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of the propie praceably to assemble and to press, or the right of the people praceably to assemble and to petition the dow. "Bornor 2.—No State shall make any law respecting any or religion, or probibiliting the free exercise theroofs; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the freedom of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or probibiliting the free exercise theroofs; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the poople peaceably to assemble and to petition the poople peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. No religions and no person shall ser in any State be deprived of any for the performance of any public or private dats, or ren-dent is or her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any public or private dats, or ren-dent is onesequence of any public or private dats, or ren-dent is one of religion. "Bornor al-Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-tions of the second section of this article by appropri-ate legislation."

GLIMPSES. RITUALISM is the expression of dogma. Hence its sole importance.

THE RUSSIAN government has resolved to introduce the system of compulsory education. The Berlin system was to go into operation at St. Petersburg on November 15.

REV. E. F. STRICELAND, who has been so slanderously attacked by the Baptist clergy of Boston and the New York Independent, informs us that his society in East Stoughton have become alarmed at the situation, and given him notice that his services will not be required after December. Meanwhile he is at liberty to preach elsewhere, and desires to do so. His address is 16 Medford Street, Chelses, Mass.

A VIBULENT ATTACK on Colonel Charles D. Miller, a Republican candidate for the New York Assem bly and a subscriber to THE INDEX, was made just before the election by the Genera Gazette, on the ground of his alleged "atheism." The article is too much of a curiosity not to be reproduced in these columns, and will be found elsewhere. Colonel Miller's character stands too high to be affected by such a miserable exhibition of bigotry, and even the Gazette is forced to pay an involuntary tribute to his courage and sincerity.

A CLERE tried to drive a baulky horse up Broadway. Whipping was tried to an extent that ought to have called out Mr. Bergh with his whole Society; but all to no purpose. A jockey strolled by, saw the situation, seized a handful of snow, and rubbed it vigorously all over the animal's nose. At once the horse moved obediently on. As he started, the jockey remarked to the astonished youth, "Whippin' ain't allers the thing: what he wanted was a new idee." A handful of snow has been rubbed all over the nose of the Administration by the late election. It is now confidently expected that the beast, having got a "new idee," will move on; and, it is hoped, in the direction of positive reform.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS BILL is needed as much in New Haven as in New Orleans, it seems. According to the Boston Sunday Herald of October 18, "The Hampton singers recently attended the Third Congregational Church in New Haven. On entering the church, two of them being of quite a light complexion and a little ahead of the others, the usher, not looking very closely, took them for white men and was about to give them seats in the centre of the church, near the front; but on seeing some of the darker ones follow, discovered his mistake and ex-cialmed, 'Oh! I didn't notice! You will have to go back!' And they had to take back seats." Will such cruel nonsense never cease? It is a striking confirmation of the truth of Mr. Pillabury's representations as to the relation of the churches to the rights of colored men.

NATHAN BURGESS thus confessed the murder of Joseph Robbins, bridge watchman on the Vandalia Railroad, in open court at Terre Haute, Indiana, on November 9: "I knew the Vandalia pay-car had passed that afternoon and had paid Robbins his month's wages. I got that shot-gun and went to the bridge. As I approached the watch-house I saw, through the window, Robbins sitting inside. His shoulders and head only could be seen. I raised the gun and fired. I then hesitated a few minutes to listen if the report of the gun had aroused any one. I then went up to the watch-house door and found Robbins on his knees praying. I plainly heard him say: 'O God, have mercy on the one who did this. Spare him, for Jesus' sake.' I was horrified, and turned and ran I did not know where. I did not enter the house, nor touch the door. His words haunt me still." Let us pay a tribute of unfeigned reverence to such Christianity as transfigured the dying hour of this poor murdered man. The superstition of it is all lost in the glory of his great forgiveness, which was every whit as noble as that of his delfied Master, and sprang from a fountain older than he, the human soul.

1874.

Single Copies Seven Cents

IN THE November issue of the Camp News, published in Philadelphia as the organ of the "Patriolic Order Sons of America," and now in its eighth volume, we find the following questions by a correspondent and answers by the editor :-- ens and answers by the editor:---"W. H. H.--First: Can a man whose character is good in every respect, who believes in a Supreme Being, but who does not accept the Bible as the divinely inspired "Word of God,' become a member of the P. O. S. of A.? "If this refers to the Bible generally, we answer, No.

No. "Second: Can a man who acknowledges a Supreme Being, as do the Deist and Theist, but who denies a personal God, become a member of the P. O. S. of A. ? "Answer: No."

Another editorial declaration in the same issue is to the effect that the Order is opposed to the removal of the Bible from the public schools, and in general to the "complete secularization of our government and the free school system;" and that belief in a Supreme Being is a qualification of membership, as above stated. It is now sufficiently obvious that the Order can command little sympathy, despite its professed devotion to "every true principle of American liberty," from those who understand what liberty re-quires. The Order is evidently a Know-Nothing organization for the defence of Protestant Christianity, and is one of the forces opposed to the political demands of Free Religion.

THE TIME for preparing a new Unitarian Year Book is at hand. It will contain, as usual, a list of recognized Unitarian ministers, and also a list of recognized Unitarian societies. In order to prepare an "honest" list of the ministers, which is a most com-mendable object, it was found absolutely necessary last year to interrogate all clergymen of doubtful orthodoxy, and inquire whether their names stood with their consent in a catalogue of "Unitarian Christian" divines. In consequence of this questioning, Messrs. Potter and Stevens were "dropped," as the phrase ran. Now we suppose that the author-ities are just as anxious to have an "honest" list of the societies of the denomination as of the ministers. They will undoubtedly, therefore, interrogate this year all the societies of doubtful orthodoxy, whether the retention of their names in a list of "Unitarian Christian" societies is with their free consent. Consistency evidently requires this course. The New Bedford society will, of course, be the first one inter-rogated; for, notwithstanding the fact that their non-Christian minister was "dropped," they still retain him, and even went so far as to raise his salary immediately after his excommunication, in order to show how much they loved and esteemed him. What graver cause for interrogation could possibly exist? We respectfully suggest, therefore, to this refractory New Bedford congregation, which have shown such an independent spirit in obeying their own convictions of duty rather than the requirements of Orthodox Unitarianism, to be preparing their an-swer to the forthcoming interrogatory, that the prompt appearance of the Year Book may not be re-tarded by any delay on their part. The liberal public will await their action with great interest. THE INDEX stands all ready to applaud the conscientiousness of the denominational authorities in risking the displeasure of one of their wealthiest and most influential societies in order to secure an "honest" list. In this attitude we count upon the sympathy of the Christian Register, which will doubtless copy this paragraph for conscience' sake.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, Br. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. MCCOTO, Florence, J. La Grille, Secretaries. L. La Grille, Secretaries. G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERENCE, OMIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, JEFFERENCE, OMIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; J. L. Hatch. Mo osz, Cal-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatoh, BAN JOS Iowa .- J. Ready, President; E. S. Beckley, Secre-TOLS tary. VIGBLAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Cinte, Secretary. JUNOTIONVILLE, NEB.- J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Secretary. OLATHS, KAN.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, OLATER, Secreta MICH .- W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETE TT artisty. moving. Secretary. sola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, BREE Knownes, Mo.-E. F. Thompson, Freedom, Secretary.
 Becretary.
 Berretary.
 Barter, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary.
 E. M. Bunuta, Win.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M.
 Bunuta, Win.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. mann, Morow, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. ford. Secretary. N. OBIO.-John Flah, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-4.77 urer. MINNRAFOLIS, MINS.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. 87. Joanny, Mo .- P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Saparat

Secretary. EAU CLAIRE, WIS.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. Balago, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. Naw Onnaws, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. W. Kennedy. W. Allen. Balmen, D.D. President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. Naw Onina NS, La. - President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace. Bay Crity, Mion.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEASFIELD, PA .- S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. Baux Cirv, Wiz.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. Becretary. AugustA, Wis. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vaux, Secretary.

(For THE INDEX.) Opening Address

AT THE CONVENTION OF THE FREE BELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION AT BOWARD HALL, PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND, OUTOBEE 29, 1874.

BY O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

BY O. B. FROTHINGHAM. The Free Religious Association presents itself for the first time to the citizens of Providence, and hanks them for the large welcome which it receives. Our conventions are unlike most religious conven-tions. We have no great array of lordly names, no normaliaries in regard to the ritualism to be dis-cursed. We simply present ourselves as a body of men who have an idea which we believe deeply con-erns the American people. That we are worthy representatives of the idea we have never claimed, we are simply representatives of the idea which the time has ever received from us. It has been our misfortune to be always, notwith-sharding our utmost candor, misnaderstood. Some hot that the foes of no religious system as such truth the foes of no religious of the idea manger sound, because we do our best to be just to all. Yet was profess to think that we meditate an amager of entrief on our thought. In the last edition of truth the foes of no religious of the idea which theres profess to think that we meditate an amager of entrief on our thought. In the last edition of the form the substitution of the rationalistic for the form belief. It would be imposed be to get the christian belief. It would be imposed be to get the form the truth. We contemplate nothing of the form the form our even if we had a system of the form the truth. We contemplate nothing of the form the

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

have no quarrel, whether they be Romanist or Prot-estant, Orthodox or Heterodox. We are not theo-logians, we carry no theological weapons, we wage no theological war. Indeed, it is one of our persua-sions, one of mine perhaps it would be more proper to say, that the theological war is nearly ended. The religious world is losing its interest in polemics. If we could ascertain the proportion of theological books and of books of zelence and history published within the last two or three years in Germany or England or the United States. I think we should dis-cover that there was a marked failing off in the num-ber of theological books, showing that the drift of the active mind of man is asway from the old theological questions. That this is so in Germany there can searcely be a question. In England, the religious literature is still in excess of any other. But it has changed its character entirely. It is no longer the old polemic literature that flourished a century ago. It consists of sentimental books, books of plety, worship, ritualiem, books about ecclesiastical forms and usages. The Ühnrch of England is full of gentlemen, highand usages. The Church of England is full of gentlemen, high old polemic literature that flourished a contury ago. It consists of sentimental books, books of plety, worship, ritualism, books about ecclesiastical forms and usages. The Church of England is full of gentlemen, high-ly educated and exceedingly well provided for, who have little else to do than study pastoral theology, as it is called; and the English press groans with the books and pamphets that these gentlemen publish. But they are of no value. They make no mark on the thought of the time. The scitve mind studies science, history, the creation of the world, astron-omy, the facts of the universe. If we deal with theology at all, it is that we may do away entirely with the theological method, and sub-stand the difference between the two methods. Science studies facts; theology studies create. Sci-ence says the newer truth is the truest; theology says the oldest truth is the truest. Science looks forward; theology looks backward. Science looks forward; theology looks backward. Science looks with open eyes at the creation as it is; theology spe-ulates with closed syss on the creation as it has been supposed to be. The method of science may lead to Trinty, to Atonement; who knows? Stick to the method is all we insist upon. The method of the-ology may, by-and-by, lead to Materialism ; who knows? The method is wrong whatever it leads to. But we are not engaged in any theological war. The question that presonal power. The churches are struggling for power; not for truth, not for human-ity, not for philanthropy, but for individual power; each religion standing upon its a laway just-to fur-ther its own ands and establish its own dominion. Sr James Mackintoch predicted that church power would certainly not survive the nizeteenth century. A quarter of the century yet remains, and no one can tell what the next twenty-fire years may bring forth. But certainly the signs at present point the other way. In Rome, the head of the Italian Church, with commandable frankness and an superclaiton of his sown, and blds the c of the papers. There never was a time when all the churches, from highest to lowest—from the Greek Church on the one side to the Roman Church on the other, from the Protestant Episcopal Church to the Uni-tarian and Universalist Churches,—wereso bent upon maintaining their own hower. This is the fact that staggers us when we look at the religious problem of the present time. Indifferent as I personally am to any man's religious opinion, perfectly willing that he should believe what he must or will—the depravity of man, the eternal doom of the wicked, the damna-tion of unbaptized infants, three delties, or three thousand, if that belief commends itself to his best protest, is, that any man, or church, or nation should say to the next-door neighbor, "The litere this, there-for you shall believe the same." The claim of in-sallibility is the claim we resent. This is a practical question that goes to the root There never was a time when all the churches, of some of the most substantial interests of our sec-this question of the disarmament of religions. That is what we demand.

of some of the most substantial interests of our se-this question of the disarmament of religions. That is what we demand. Do you wish any evidence that this struggle for power, simply as power, is the main feature in the religions aspect of the present time? See how the different religions contend together on the mission ary field. Read the reports of the Bible societier, the tract associations. See how every church does in utmost to make it appear that its missions are the most successful, that its societies have the layes funds to work with, that its men are always in the not that show that the different churches are stritur, not to regenerate the world, but to build themeirs up in authority and presige? The converts are counted, not weighed. Numbers are the evidence of strength. In this country the question comes home with great seriousness. If there is any interest in the American people should hold dear, that interest is education. In a republic the people must be ed-ucated, as a means to the intelligent carcties of this liberty. Not that education will regenerate men-not that a measure of reading, writing, arithmetic will make men virtuous. More than schooling is re-quired for that. Education provide noting but available intelligence; but it does provide that and therefore, it is indispensable. Now, what is op-posed to this system of education for its is the station from asystem of education is positively required. From all parts of the country comes a passionate or yours of the system of education is positively required. From all parts of the country comes a passionate or yours of how, what do we have to prevent it? The battle between Protestant churches will prevent if it can. The Protestant churches will prevent if it can. The Royman Church will prevent is if it can. The Protestant churches will prevent is if they can. What means this query between the battle between Protestantiam and Romaniam will pre-vent it if it can. The Roman Church will prevent it if it can. The Protestant churches will prevent it they can. What means this quartel between the Roman and the Protestant churches on the question of the Bible in the public schools? Do the Roman priests suppose that simply by having a figure of the Virgin put over the door, or the marking of the for-head with a cross, or the reading of the Doay Testa-ment, they are going to make the boys and gins god men and women ? It is ridiculous to suppose if or moment. Do the Protestants think that the simple reading of the Bible, either a whole chapter or a few verses, every morning, is going to have a mord flete <text><text> theories; and the churches are teaching theological theories. Theory for theory, one can claim no ad-vantage over another. Is it said that the churches are a moral police in society? I call attention again to the species of sermons preached there, and I say that they are not a moral police in society. But if all the moral forces of society are to go untared, why not leave untaxed all other buildings where instruc-tion of a moral nature is carried on? No, no; the only reason why churches wish their buildings exempted from taxation is that the money they are thus aaved from spending is necessary to their power. Tax the Roman Catholic churches in New York! Tax the Roman Catholic churches in New York! Why, you would forever make it impossible for them to spread their faith and establish their power. Their machinery would stor; their streams would dry up; their candles would go out. And the poor people who earn money by the swest of their brows, the hundreds of thousands of artisane and mechanics and laborers who pay for the support of these theological dormas would ginny have how the support of brows, the hundreds of thousands of artisans and mechanics and laborers who pay for the support of these theological dogmas, would simply have more comfortable homes, better roofs over their heads, better and more plentiful food to eat, better schools for their children, and a better chance for the future for themselves. [Loud applause.] We say the Amer-icans cannot afford to let the church editices go un-taxed. They need their money for other uses. It is a monstrous burden which they cannot and never will be able to carry. This onestion is going to be very periods. You while be able to carry. This question is going to be very serious. You smile about it now.' You say, "O well! it is not of very great consequence—a few hundreds of thou-sands of dollars here and there." It is of enormous consequence. The measure is necessary to break down the most stupendous monopoly at present to be found in our society. Table content on the constitutional enced sends of dollars here and there. The serve canonal some of a consequence. The measure is necessary to break down the most stupendous monopoly at present to be found in our society. Take another example, the Constitutional amendment? The proposition is simply to introduce the name of God into the Constitution of the United States, and to commit the Constitution and consequently the government of the United States, and to commit the Constitution of the United States, and to commit the Constitution and consecutive in the government of the United States, and to commit the Constitution of the United States, and to commit the Constitution and consecutive in the government of the United States to the Constitution of the United States, and to commit the Constitution and consecutive is the significance of it? It is an effort on the part of the Protestant to it. I think that nine out of ten of all the Protestant to it. I think that nine out of ten of all the Protestant to it. I think that nine out of the Protestant to it. I think that nine out of the Protestant to it. I think that all the part of the Protestant to it. I think that all the part of the Protestant to it. I think that all the part of the Protestant to it. I think that all the part of the Protestant to it. I think that all the part of the Protestant to it. I think the leaders mean it. The the locates the of all the Protestant to it. I think the leaders mean it. The header of the Protestant to it. The leaders of this move the part of the Protestant the leaders all nate old city of Which, black with grime, have not been cleaked of which, black with grime, have not been cleaked of which, black with grime, have not been cleaked of the temple of American libery, and the fear of the same for all the result follow. Once get the name of God written up somewhere on the facade of facility a different result follow. Once get the name of for divide, and all national injutites, to instreake and grow and thicken until we never shall be babe to get rid of them at all. Once the noblest and best men in society are disfran-chised. I speak advisedly, friends. I am drawing no fancy picture. I attended myself the convention that was held a year ago in New York, and these very gentle-men who propose this amendment said distinctly that if they could have their way nobody should cast a vote who called himself an athelst. Every atheist, every materialist, every infidel, according to the defi-nition of Evangelical Protestantism, every heretic would, as the shades of distinction became more finely drawn, be gradually ruled out, until at last the American government became a government of the saints-of church-members! Are you ready for that? Can you think of that with any patience? Does not the very idea, though it be an idea that ma% never be realized-does not the very idea strike an American dumb? We say. "Men and women of America, you cannot afford to allow the Protestant religion such power in the country. You cannot afford to allow any system of faith, any confession, any creed, to ob-tain such an ascendency over any other form of pro-fession as that. If you do, then your republicanism is but a name, and it is a name that will be a stench in the nostrils of the word." [Loud applause.] We would arrest this struggle of the churches for the form on power.

We would arrest this struggle of the churches for preeminence and power. We plead for economy. The American people need money. They need all the money they can command. With all their indus-try, their enterprise, fheir fortitude, their saving, their thrift, they will hardly get money enough to carry on the necessary business of the country. They cannot afford to spend millions a year for churches, Bibles, tracts; millions a year to convert the heathen in Timbuctoo. They cannot afford it. They need all their money for other purposes. Re-ligion is cheap. Fure religion is cheap. It costs lit-the for people to worship food according to the dic-tates of their own consciences. It costs little to erect suitable houses in which to meet and praise God and celebrate his goodness. You can have all the appli-ances you need, and pay honesily for them, and be none the poorer. But you cannot give Romanism all that it wants, and Protestantism all that it wants, and yet have enough for yourselves. It is said that if you touch the pocket of the American you touch his tender point. It is true, and it ought to be true. People ought to value their money, for money is a termendous power. Does not Romanism know it? Indeed it does, and consequently it does not wish its temples to be taxed. Do not Protestants know it? Indeed they do, and therefore they are unwilling that their churches should be taxed. We plead, therefore, for economy. We say, "Why do ye spend money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which satisfieth not?" Again we plead for peace. We are tifted of this endicas battile of eclesisaticism, families divided, churches split asunder, and the dream of brother-hood postponed indefinitely (may is not be endlessiy?) by the very power that means brotherhood, the very power which means—It it means anything—union, harmony, sympathy, coöperation, combination be-tween the lintie and the infinite, between men as bothers, between man and the Infinite. Therefore, we take our stand sepolation it means-fordied. Call the religion by beautiful names—if you will, call it Mohammedanism, call it Buddhism, call it is, the more gracious and graceful, the more dan-gerons. Therefore, we take our stand simply in behalf of humanity, in behalf of human harmony and peace gerous. Therefore, we take our stand simply in behalf of humanity, in behalf of human harmony and peace and sympathy. We take our stand against all efforts on the part of any church to lift up its head above its pelebhore and sympathy. We take our stand against all efforts on the part of any church to lift up its head above its neighbors. Some years ago, we were reading Hugo's great novel, Les Miserables. It opens with a lovely de-scription of a Romish priest, M. Bienrenu Myriel, a devout Catholic, but an humble follower of Jeans of Nazareth. In his pariel for years has lived, in a lonely cabin remote from people, a member of the Convention, a revolutionist, democrat, athelet. He was a person abhorred. The peasants avoided him, children were warned against going near his hut. The good priest had never visited him, though troub-led in his conscience for his neglect of a human soul with such a burden of guilt. But hearing one day that his terrible parishioner was sick and near his end, M. Myriel plucked up heart of grace and started on his unwelcome mission. The two met face to face for the first and last time—the athelet and the priest. The interview was long, close, sincere. At its close, the old man, schausted, seemed about to God. Would it not be a pity if we should have met in vain?" The old revolutionist raised his head and said slowly: 'If was sixty years old when my country abled me to her help. I obeyed. There were abuses—I forgot them; tyrannies—I overthrew them; rights and principles—I announced and adhered to top reset; I consoled the afficted. True, I tore the cloth from the altar; it was to bind up up country's wound. For this I have been chased, hunted, perse-cuted, blackened, cursed, spit upon, proscribed. For years, with my white hair, I have been a mark for scorn. The poor, ignorant crowd regard me as one of the damned, and I, hating none, accept the lonelinees of hate. I am now eighty-six years old; I am dying; what do you want of me?" "Your bless-ing," asid the bishop, as he bent his knee. When bishops and priestly men will thus bend the methed.

(For THE INDEX.)

A TRANSLATION FROM LABOULATE.

WEST NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 4, 1874.

WEST NEWTON, Mass., Nov. 4, 1874. MR. F. E. ABHOT:--I have been reading lately, with considerable pleas-ure, a book called Paris en Amérique, written by M. Louis Laboulaye, a member of the Académie Fran-calse, who is called in France the American French-man, owing to his strong predilection for our cus-toms, life, ideas, etc. I have translated these few pages, thinking you might like to use them, or some part of them, for your pager. The illustration drawn is quite a strik-ing one, I think, and is worthy of thought. Yours respectively. B. P. THUESTON.

TRANSLATION.

TRANSLATION. I had been introduced to Mr. W. Desirous of knowing this phoenix that they call a reasoning theo-logian, and wishing to impress him favorably, I be-gan by congratulating him on the great acquisition his church was making in the person of Mr. T. "Pardon me," said he, "I am Presbyterian." "Presbyterian!" cried I, "and you come to compli-ment a rival? You show a beautiful apirit, for, be-tween you and me, this man, this minister whose hand you take, is a hereit that you would damn." "I!" said he, much surprised; "I damn no one; that is not Christian." "I express myself badly, my dear sir; I meant sim-ply that, according to the example of the Divine Shepherd who sought the wandering sheep of Israel, you do not fear to live familiarly with people whose error you detest." "Mr. T. has edified me this morning," answered

"Bir, "I has educed me this morning," answered he, "and I do not believe him in error." It was my turn to be astonished. I feased having misunderstood. "Sir," said I to the young minister, "do you be-lieve that your church teaches the truth?" "Beyond a doubt; otherwise I should not remain in tr."

in it." "Then," replied I, "there are two truths, as there are two churches—a Presbyterian truth and a Con-gregationalist truth. Ferhape there is also a Baptist, a Michodist, a Lutheran, and even a Catholic truth. I did suppose (excuse my ignorance) that the truth was one, and that the mark of error was to divide it infinitely."

infinitely." "Doctor," said he, a little touched by my French vivacity, "when you are at sea, and you wish to know the time, what do you do?" "I ask the time of the sun, and the sun gives it to, ""

"I ask the time of the sun, and the sun gives it to, me." "The sun gives you the hour. When it is noon st Paris, could you tell me what time it is at Berlin?" "No; all I know is that a telegram sent from Ber-lin at eleven o'clock is received at Paris about half-past ten; that is, apparently it arrives thirty minutes before having set out. But then, no matter; I grant you that, when it is noon at Paris, it is one o'clock at Berlin, two at St. Petersburg, and, if you wish, nine in the morning at the Azores, and seven at Quebec. All depends on the meridian." "Thus," said he, "it is everywhere the same sun, and it is nowhere the same hour; how is that?" "I answer you, It is the same sun seen from differ-ent points."

"One more question. Among all these times which is the true one?"

which is the true one?" "A strange question! The time is true for each, since for each the sun rises or seems to rise at a dif-ferent point." "Very well; I see we are agreed in theology as in ferent point."

 "Yery well; I see we are agreed in theology as in astronom,."
 "Mr. W.," said I, "I begin to understand you.
 The truth for you is the sun; that we see each ac cording to the horizon which shuts him in. I is noon doubtless at the Presbyterian Church, while the hour has passed for the Bapilsts, and is not yet come for the Methodists."
 "For each church, I will venture to say for each Christian, I believe there is a different horizon.
 Birth and education give us the point of departure;
 it is for us now to march towards this truth which cails us, to approach it ever by force of study and virtue. I am aware that there may be churches bet ter enlightened by the divine light, but yet I do not doubt that in the most obscure church one may find the best Christian. It is a great advantage to be placed near the sun; it is not always a reason for seeing it better. There you see why I prefer my church, and why, nevertheless, I damn no one."
 "My young irlend," said I, "your illusions have something seducing; the feeling which gives them bith is worthy, but the first breath of reason will dissipate them. If each Christian nees the truth in his way, there is no truth. We come back to the sequicines of Montaigne. You will not find a dogma that one will not attack, not a belief that one will not shake. Your theory, so Christian in appearance, condemns you to universal doubt; it arrives at universal increduity."
 "Doctor, it seems to me you criticise the human mind; that is, the work of God. From the diversity and weakness of our eyes one might also conclude the same sophism. In the natural studies, each of us takes only the part that be can appropriate to him selence? In physics is there an appropriate to him selence? In physics is there an appropriate to him selence? In physics of there sy on intom runs why each that the actor appropriate to him

"No; the error of yesterday has fallen as dead leaves fall; the truth has not changed, for it is, under another name, only the knowledge of Nature, and Nature does not change."

"I grant you that; but religious truth is of another order than natural truth."

"I grant you that; but religious truth is of another order than natural truth." "If I should concede this disputable hypothesis, we should be no further. Whatever be the number and variety of the bodies which fill the world, we have only our eyes with which to see them; what we do not see does not exist for us. Whatever be the nature of a truth, we have only our mind to under-stand it. Is our soul double? God has given each of us, in order to discover natural truths, a search-ing, restless, active faculty that we call reason. May there be in us another power, which, without individ-ual effort, receives the religious truth in the same way that a mirror reflects the object presented to it? If this faculty do not exist, the diversity of religious opinions is acquired; it results from the sge, educa-tion, country, the natural energy of our mind or its activity. If, on the contrary, this faculty exist, we ought all to think alike, as we all breathe alike, by a law of Nature. Such is not the case, God be thanked! He has left to each of us the liberty of misconceiving him. In order to give to each of us the right of loving him. This liberty which frightens you is our most beautiful appanage; it is that which makes of religion a love, and of faith a virtue." "But," I cried, "you are the prophet of anarchy. You diseipate the most beautiful appanage; it is that which make device of h hs heart. What sort of a church is it where each speaks a different language, and does not understand that of his neighbor?" "I love unity as much as yon," replied he, "but unity is not uniformity. Look at Nature: what an admirable whole! And yet there are not two trees, two plants, two flowers, not two leaves which are alike. From the infinite variety God draws the liv-ing and perfect unity. Why should not the law of Nature be the law of humanity? Why should not the volce of each creature have its place in this con-cert of praises that the earth sings to the Lord?"

manny Google

THE BOSTON BADICAL CLUB.

BY THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON.

<text><text><text><text>

do not invite the radicals, and you must, therefore, go to the radical meeting if you would meet them both. Again, another thing which enhances this effect of variety is the aspect of the twin houses where the club meets. The old drawing-room, the family pict-ure, the antique andirons that support the open fire, the very arm chair in which the speaker sits, with its radiations of Versallles and the French Revolution— all this makes a picturesque background for the rad-calism of to day. This combination of old and new aways reminds me of a day in the old library at medieval alcover, with their great tomes yet chained the desks, to the modern record on the table, show-ung that the last book taken from the library that day was a volume of Mazzini's works. But what has contributed more than anything, I hink, to the popularity of the Radical Club has been of both sexes. I remember that anything, J hink, to the popularity of the Radical Club has been of both sexes. I were the same, and, as it chanced, the essayist was the same as in the more faster the meeting of the Club, I went to a gathering of wary similar nature, composed of men only. These mean were to a considerable extent the same, and, as it chanced, the essayist was the same as in the more has tway, was lacking in a certain piquant and varied store, such as the presence of clever worms gives to the Radical Club. I am not here speaking of indi-vidual women, though certainly no one has contribu-ted more to the learning of the Club than the store at a clear that has more than say the pre-sence ware in the conversation, and when it comes to ranging the plan and machinery of such gathering whet has dire clear than always here is more the tact and energy of women afford an immense is taken the the club has always he in this is that has for the Club has always he in this is that the science that is elsen that sing been all is usuble.

The faults of the Club lie on the surface, and are probably best known to the members themselves. Fortunately, these members supply to some extent a mutual corrective. If some are combative, others are soothing; if some are too stimulating, others are re-pressive; if some have too much specific gravity, others are marked by that convenient trait called by Edmund Quincy "specific levity." There is seldom danger that anything calling itself "radical" will not indulge in self-criticism enough; the tendency is apt to be quite the other way. As to the criticism from without, it has, usually been of a kind to do little good, because founded on some misconception of the deliberate plan and purpose of the Club. By full in-tent and premeditation it has chosen to be theoretical rather than practical; literary rather than scientific. Not that either the scientific or the practical has been The faults of the Club lie on the surface, and are wanting; but that these departments of interest were held to be already provided for in other directions, and so less pressing than the other demands. Boston is full of scientific and practical associations, and the members of this Club do their full part in these, as the lists of officers will show; but the need of an informal debating society for points of literature, art, philosohy, and even theology was that which created the Radical Club, and this still keeps it in heap.

philosohy, and even theology was that which react the Radical Club, and this still keeps it in being. The even on this ground it must be remembered relaxation rather than a science of labor, and that its of orleasation rather than anything which it has syste-matically brought to pass. It has certainly been a forded rather than anything which it has syste-matically brought to pass. It has certainly been a the main reason, I fancy, why the newspaper reports are been tolerated; because, while they often did relaxation rather than anything which it has syste-matically brought to pass. It has certainly been approximate the second second second second second relaxation reason, I fancy, why the newspaper reports are been tolerated; because, while they often did relaxed to individuals who were misreported. A second by liciting those flashes of thought that come from the contact of mind with mind. The most monsciousness in a hundred years as many sparks as another flinistone can extract from it in five seconds. Then the criticism always frankly given by the mem-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper read before them is a great bies-bers on any paper and the numiliation. Normalisments, and so keen the subsequent criticism, that where hey han offender was first smeared with where hey and it can answer for one case, at least, where the victim has found it a very useful form of always read your essay to a friend; for even if his isast, give you the common nonsense, which is an indicating these frank discussions of the Radical Club; and has avaluable. I homestly think that less nonsense has been inflicted upon the common nonsense, which is through the state discussions of the Radical Club; and the always read your essay to a friend; for even if his isast, give you the common nonsense,

ADVERTISING VERSUS DEATH.

ADVERTIANC VERSUS DEATH.

CHRISTIAN MEN! CAN YOU VOTE FOR

The notorious fact that one of the candidates on the Republican ticket, and that for the important position of a legislator, is a bold, open, and arowed ATHEIST led us to believe that some one of the elergy in our midst—sentinels on the watch-towers of Zlon—would sound the note of alarm, and warn professing Christian men against the danger of plac-ing power in the hands of an unbeliever and scoffer. We have walted thus far in vain for such warning from such source, and now regard it our duty, as a journalist, to lay the facts before the public. Our neglect to do so before this has been the subject of adverse criticism by religious men, our patrons, and friends.

The reader will bear ready witness that never has the Genera Gazette shown a spirit of intolerance to-ward any person, whether a candidate for office or not, on account of religious faith, sect, or connection. The Protestant and Catholic, Jew and Gentile, the Churchman, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Con-gregationalist, Universalist, or whatever creed ac-knowledged or professed, has in these columns been treated with like respect, courtesy, and consideration for bonestly entertained views founded upon a com-mon recognition of One Supreme Being, the Creator and Governor of all, to whom all must render an ac-count in the life hereafter for the deeds done in the body. body. But this spirit of tolerance for diverse creeds should not and does not include him who believe not at all—him who, possessing all the advantage of having received an enlightened Christian education discards as faction all the teachings and doctrines of Univ Writ.

having received an enlightened Christian education, discards as fletion all the teachings and doctines deletion. Hely Writ. Hence we feel fully justified in stating and critics ing the scepticism of Col. CHAS. D. MILLER the Republican candidate for Assembly. Let is the known, therefore, throughout this district in which he is saking the votes of Christian men to constitute him a law-maker, that he is A RANK ATERIST. He has in the hearing of the editor of this paper and writer of this article, and of others present at the same time, denied the existence of a Supreme Being, the Creator and Governor of the Universe and all that therein is. He at the same time characterized the Holy Bible as a mere work of fiction, unworthy of credence, full of contradictions, and profass with indecencies. We have the authority of a most re-spectable townsman-a member of the First Preby-terian Church-that in conversation with him Mi-Miller biasphemously characterized our Lord Jens Christ as a ''panderer to lust and licentionales' is atoming the crime of adultery. He denies the immortality of the soul or a life hereafter; regards death in case of man and brue alike as annihilation-the end of all. To sum up, he is the veriest disciple of Voltairs and Tom Paine.

and Tom Paine. The scepticism of CHAB. D. MILLEE in regard (o the Christian religion is no secret in Genera, at least with those who are at all intimate with him. If any have doubts about it, let him plainly put the que-tion to him, and we have the utmost confidence that he will not deny the allegations above made, for he is bold and explicit in declaring his principles. If his condition on the same and any argument a shore of the same set of the same argument of the same argument a shore of the set of the same argument of the same argument a shore of the same argument of the same argument a shore of the same argument of the same argument a shore of the same argument of the same argument a shore of the same argument of the same argum bold and explicit in declaring his principles. If his candidacy or other causes have wroughts change of heart within the last three weeks, we shall be max rejoiced to chronicle his conversion. But if he has not changed, the question must come home with sol-emm reflection and admonition to every Christian heart, "Can I conscientiously vote for CHARLES D. MILLER, THE ATHEIST, to represent an educat-ed, intelligent, Christian constituency in he halls ef legislation ?"-Genera (N.Y.) Gazette, Oct. 30.

THE SUPPRESSION OF BLASPHENY.

THE INDEX seems anxious to know what is to be

THE INDEX seems anxious to know what is to be come of it when the Religious Amendment mov-ment triumphs, as it one day certainly will. It say: "An extraordinary article on 'Liberty of Speech' showing the secret intent of the Christian Amend-ment party, is contained in the Christian Stateman of August 8. The editor takes the ground that if any man's 'teachings and efforts' in any way watan the foundations of law and good government, then it 'becomes the imperative duty of the State to up-press both deed and word.' Now we credit the Statesman with the courage of its opinions, and with this belief solicit a reply to three plain questions:--"'1. Do our own teachings and effort in any way weaken the foundations of law and good govern-ment?

ment? "2. Is it the duty of the State to suppress THE IN-

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

Manuel & Google

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

CHRISTIAN THEISN

A TEST OF MEMBERSHIP IN THE "PATRIOTIC ORDER SONS OF AMERICA."

The following is an abstract from a letter we re-ceived lately :--

The following is an abstract from a letter we re-cived lately:--Entrons of CAMP NEWS: Sig--My attention has lately been called to the Order which you represent. As you are well awards beginning to receive considerable attention in America is used to the subject of Church and State union in America is beginning to receive considerable attention in which you results to receive considerable attention in which you parters. I hope I may be pardoned, therefore, underlying the Patriotic Order Soms of Ameri-ca, The Christian Statesman of your city is the part of what is popularly known as the "God in the Constitution" party. This party claims that the outcome of its results would not be a union of furch and State; but since we are a Christian pe-pie our government should be based on Christian fostures. On the other hand is that increasing body of an is The INNEX (Boston), whose leading or parts and the theorem and set the taxation of church and state; but various schools, whose leading or parts to allely and the povernment, as set forth in the Demands of Liberalism and Religious Fre-dom Amendment, at variance with your Order, hend the office of chapital in the pay of the gov-property; the abolition of Bible-reading in schools; he abolition of all laws regarding Sunday as the solution of the encroschments of Catholicism as with scentarianism, but not with what is known as the statianism. I presume it is at variance with scentarianism, but not with what is known as the statianism, but not with what is known as the statianism. I presume it is at variance with scentarianism, but not with what is known as the statianism. The presense line, as the Creater the scentarianism, but not with what is known as the statianism. The presense line, as the creater the scentarianism, but not with what is known as the scentarianism, but not with what is known as the scentarianism. As dod outside of Nature, -the outcome of a dualistic philosophy. I further dake it this is not a God of revelation, but a God re-vealed intuitively. The science of our day, based on the doctrine of evolution, makes creation an imposel-bility; therefore there can be no Creator or God ont-side of Nature. The outcome of this philosophy is monism. Formulated in brief, it reduces Nature to "one force throughout space; one law throughout time." The question is, is that force or power intel-ligent or unintelligent? If the latter, it is certainly not less but higher than the former. Now the quese tion is, Would the helief in either of these "Scientific Gods" render a candidate ineligible? I am aware that formerly such views would have been pro-nounced atheistic.... I accept no other authority than reason and science, let the verdict be dualism or monism.

than reason and science, let the verdict be dualism or moniam. As an Order, we are set for the defence of every true principle of American liberty. We are opposed to a union of Church and State, believing that such union would prove fatal to both. We are opposed to union get a Bible from the public schools, because it is the greatest expositor of virtue, and the charter of sternal life. We are opposed to the encroach-ments of Catholicism. Mormonism, and all other "isms" upon national freedom and our institutions. We are opposed to "is complete secularization of our government and the free-school system," as might already be inferred; and one of our qualifications for membership is the belief in a Supreme Being as set forth in an article in another column of this issue, entitled, "Our Faith cersus Scepitcism.—Camp Nexus (Phila.), Nov. 1, 1874: organ of Patriotic Order Sons of America. of Ame

PROFESSOR TYNDALL ON HIS DEFENCE.

Professor Tyndall recently delivered in Manchester

Professor Tyndall recently delivered in Manchester a lecture on "Crystalline and Molecular Forces." In concluding bis discourse, after some beautiful ex-periments showing the constructive power of molec-ular forces as following what he might call their architectural institutes, he said;— The way in which these stoms build themselves together is to me perfectly astounding. You have here a play of power almost as wonderful as the play of vitality itself. Perhaps I may have expressed my-self too strongly in calling this beautiful experiment astoniahing. Still I must say, aichough I have seen it, to speak moderately, hundreds and hundreds of times, I have never looked upon it without feelings of astoniahment. And depend upon it, truat me, that the revelations of science are not in the least de-gree calculated to leasen our feelings of astoniah-ment. We are surrounded by wonders and mysteries everywhere. I have sometimes—not sometimes, but often—in the springtide watched the advance of the spronting leaves, and of the grass, and of the flowers, and observed the general joy of opening life in Nat-re, and I have asked myself this question: Can it be that there is no being or thing in Nature that knows more shout these things than I do? Do I in my ignorance represent the highest knowledge of these things existing in this universe? Ladies and gentieme, the man who puts that question to him-self, if he be not a shallow man—if he be a man capable of being penetrated by a profound thought,— will never answer the question by professing the cred of athesin, which has been solightly attributed to me. I will only detain you one moment more. Everywhere throughout our planet we notice this tendency of the ultimate particles of matter to run into symmetric forms. The very molecules appear inspired with a desite for union and growth, and the question of questions at the present day is,—and it is one. I far, which will not be solved in our day, but will continue to agitate and occupy thinking minds after we have departed,—th these subjects really have their roots in a kind of scepticism. It is not always those who are charged with scepticism that are the real sceptics; and I con-fess it is a matter of some grief to me to see able, useful, and courageoss men running to and fro upon the earth, wringing their hands over the threatened destruction of their ideals. I would say, if I dared, to such men.—I would exhort them to cast out such scepticism, for this fear has its root in scepticism. In the human mind we have the substratum of all ideals, and as surely as string responds to string when the proper note is sounded, so sarely, when human soul, will those words have a resonant re-sponse on other souls; and in this faith I abide, and in this way I leave the question.—Advertiser.

A CITIZEN OF A Country town, noted for his dis-honesty, was lately taken very ill; and becoming alarmed sent for a clergyman, who came to see him, and iaid down the divine law to him with great faith-fulness and emphasis. The sick man was much af-fected, and said, "Well, parson. I think you're right, and lye made up my mind that if yet well I shall in the future live principally honest,"

Haetry.

[For THE INDEX.] COUNTING COST.

J. H. C.

Who counts the cost of worthy task Will find the count full dear; Already lost who stays to ask-"Shall I, then, be sincere?"

The question thousands more hath slain, On Virtue's doubtful field, Than e'er the lusty tyrant Gain Hath reft of Honor's shield.

Oh! guard thy mind, then perilled youth. 'Gainst Question's fatal dart; And, walled around with seamless Truth, Protect thy scathless heart.

But let the outer ramparts fall Of worldly case and pelf; If Manhood's Citadel be all

That stands, -it stands Thyself.

NOVEMBER 10, 1874.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 14.

FOR THE WEEK FUDING NOVEMBER 14.
E.B. Merrill, 30 cents; J. Gorham, 30 cents; F. V. Balch, 50 cents; F. K. Abbot, 50 cents; J. Luddington, 30 cents; L. Tives, 30 cents; E. M. Darti, 31.M. G. H. Foster, 32.Bi George Allen, 42; A. Orge, 60 cents; H. R. Sutterfield, 32 cents; B. A. Durfnes, 25 cents; K. K. Darti, S. K. Bart, S. K. Gord, S. K. Bart, S. K. S. K.

N. B.-Postage on TERINDET is for cents personal, status from receipt of the first number, payable in ad-vance at the place of delivery. N. B.-Orders for Tracts or single numbers of Terr Im-DEX which are not on hand will, if of small amount, be oth-ewise filled to the same amount without further notice.

N. B.-Please remit by post-office more-point, by regis-tered letter, or by draft on Boston or New York. Checks on interior banks are liable to discount, and the term of subscription will be proportionally shortened in the credit.

BECEIVED.

Books. THE IDENTITY OF PHAINITY & GREATIANITY AND MODERAN SPIRITUALIAN. By Eugene Crowell, M.D. In Two Vols. Vol. 1. New York: G. W. Carleton & Co. 1874. THE GARGENE: O. V. Carleton & Co. 1874. A LECTURE ON THE PROTECTARY TAITH. BY Dwight H. OIMMIERA. New York: 1874. THE HEATHENE OF THE HEATH. A ROMANCE. By William McDonnell, suthor of Exetor Hall. New York: D. M. Bennett. 1874.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

Bennett, Ford
Pamphleta and Periodicals.
Tacrs published by Thomas Soot, Esq., 11, The Terrace, Farquiar Road, Upper Norwood, London, S. E.-Dr. Farquiar Road, Upper Norwood, London, S. E.-Dr. Farquiar State of Christ." a Letter to Thomas Soot, Eq., by a Clergyman of the Church of England. The Pentateuch in Contrast with the Science and Moral Sense of our Age. By a Physician.-Cremation. By Teresa Lewis... "Fryer" and 'Love to God." A few Ro-marks on Mr. Newman's pamphlet, "The Two Thelame." By Miss Bheen.
The Foltrical Bratnes of Women. A Lecture Delivered in the Coloperative Hall, Castle Street, by Annie Besent. London: Trübner & Co.
Fivz Stemsons from the Free Pulpit, Lawrence, Kansas. Edmund R. Sanborn, Minister. Lawrence: 1874.
Journat of Specutarive Philosophyr. October, 1874. W. Tharifs, Editor. St. Louis: Gray, Esker & Co.
The Untratian REVIEW, November, 1874. Wellow, Rot. Teacher & Morratt. November, 1874. Yol. I., No.1. New York: A. S. Barnes.
MEDIGAL MIRBOR. October, 1874. New York: A.E. Butta.

The Inder. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION. AT NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON.

Toledo Office: No. 35 MOREOE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

PRANCIS ELLING WOOD ABBOT, Associate Editor, ABBAM WALTER STEVENS, Associate Editor, OUTAVIUS BROOKS FROTHINGHAM, THOMAS WENTWOBER HIGGINSON, WILLIAM J. POTTER, ROHARD P. HALLOWELL, WILLIAM H. SPENORE, MES. E. D. ORENEY, Rev. CHALLES VOTERY (England), POI. FRANCIS W. NEWMAN (England), Editorial Contributors.

TO VOLUZ cles desired.	TARY CONTRIBUTORS Only Short Unused Manuscripts not returned.	Arti

BOSTON, NOVEMBER 19, 1874.

Dons the Golden . Age spell our name with "two t's" on purpose "to tease" us?

MR. FROTHINGHAM has very kindly written out his Providence address from the reports of it, expressly for THE INDEX; and it is sure to receive the closest attention.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for fourteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

THE BOSTON Radical Club listened last Monday to a very interesting lecture by Professor E. S. Morse on certain aspects of the subject of Evolution. He pointed out the close affinities of birds and reptiles, both of whose characteristics were found in the Dinosaurians of the Cretaceous period. Mr. Bradlaugh, "Mark Twain," and other distinguished persons were present.

SAMPLE copies of THE INDEX will be sent to any address free of charge. It is a great favor to send lists of names, with the address in each case, of those who may possibly subscribe to the paper. If you cannot take time to canvass for it, can 'you not write out the names of all the persons among your acquaintances who might be induced to subscribe by reading a specimen copy?

REV. F. C. WILLIAMS sends a communication this week to THE INDEX in correction of the report we copied week before last from the Norfolk County Gazette. He says he should not have voted to exclude any of A. J. Davis' books from the public library, though he did use the language quoted of some of his non-theological works. All that concerns the public is the votes in this matter. Every man is entitled to his own opinion of all books, and has the right to express it freely. We are glad to learn that the report gave a wrong impression of Mr. Williams' position on this question, as it led us to suppose he would have voted for exclusion, and on this ground alone criticised him. We learn that the agitation of the subject has resulted in the admission of all the books donated by Mr. Giles to the library, and all sensible persons will be pleased to know it.

REFERENCE TO the frank announcement of Rev. J. H. Clifford, of North Andover, that he could no longer "call himself a Christian," we said lately that we hoped he had "counted the cost of his sincerity." Some ringing verses in our "poet's corner" this week show the fearlessness that animates him, and the high spirit with which he spurns the thought of "counting the cost" when sincerity is at stake. Perhaps our original meaning needs a little explanation. The courage that never gives out is the courage that thinks-the courage that is a principle rather than an Impulse, and coolly measures the risks it runs. Certain grave practical consequences, likely to overtake sooner or later the young minister (even among the Unitarians) who refuses to be influenced by regard for them in the utterance of his innermost convictions, had better be looked squarely in the face before they are incurred. It takes sometimes a finer bravery to walk open-eyed into poverty than to rush on a row of bayonets; for, while the one fires the soul with the inspiration of high heroism, the other daunts it with images of long-continued and corroding care, of depressing struggles with the wolf at the door, of hardships and privations, not for self alone, but for others dearer than self. Soured or queralous minds, ground down by troubles unanticipated, hungry for sympathy or admiration which seldom follows on the heels of obscure and untrumpeted sacrifices, are too often the fruit of a courage which has forgotten to "count the cost" beforehand. Be sincere at any cost-but know the cost betimes !

THE STONE OF SISYPHUS.

In the Golden Age of October 24, this annoying series of misstatements was printed in the editorial col-

We did not "take pains" to say what is here put into our mouth.

1. The Free Religious Association, as such, takes no position either for or against Christianity, by any explicit statement in its Constitution. It simply plants itself on Freedom and Fellowship in Religion. These principles we, as a private member who cannot of himself commit the Association to anything, believe to be consistent with the anti-Christian attitude alone; for which reason we find our own attitude to be that, and nothing else. But other members take such attitude as their own reason and conscience, not ours, dictate; and, as a matter of fact, very few of them apparently think our view of Free Religion is correct. They do not speak for us, nor we for them: each member, from President to "high private," speaks for himself alone. All the members say in common nothing that is not said in the Constitution, and that says only freedom and fellowship in religion. We are not afraid or unwilling to stand with a very small minority, or alone if need be; but we are afraid to seek to strengthen our own position by misrepresenting that of our comrades. They are no more anti-Christian than they say they are: wait till they speak before you class them with us in our attitude towards Christianity. We know these men and women well; they love truth just as much as we do; and when they think we are right, they will say so. We are in no hurry to be "indorsed," and see no good reason why the Golden Age should make it appear that we claim their indorsement. The world is big enough for every tub to stand on its own bottom without crowding its neighbor. That is what we stand forfreedom and fellowship in religion. In the name of human intelligence, is not that intelligible?

2. The Free Religious Association is an "independent body of truth-seekers, as Messrs. Ames and Calthrop have represented"-"neutral" also, if freedom and fellowship in religion are neutral, but otherwise not. Which alternative is the true one, let every man judge for himself: we have no right to speak for any one except ourself alone. We believe, as a matter of private opinion, that freedom is not neutral with respect to any special religion, but hostile to every religion just so far as it insists on its speciality, and friendly to every religion just so far as it empha-sizes its own universal truths. Is not that, too, intelligible?

3. We did not "frame the Constitution;" we only helped to frame it. Mr. Potter and Mr. Towne and we drafted it together; but Mr. Potter contributed the most towards it, as it was finally agreed upon by the three. Mr. Frothingham afterwards suggested the addition of the phrase "fellowship in the spirit," before the Constitution was submitted to the other friends.

4. We did not "select its terms on purpose to commit it to an attitude of hostility to Christianity." In the first place, we still considered and called ourself a Christian at that time (February, 1867). In the next place, the only part of the Constitution which we contributed outright and unmodified was the beginning of the second article: "Membership in this Association shall leave each individual resp for his own opinions alone, and affect in no degree his relations to other associations." This was considered by the others as so fixed a principle of the whole movement as to be a mere matter of course; but it appeared to us too important to be taken for granted and left unsaid, and it shows conclusively how little we desired to "commit" the young Associ ation either to or against Christianity.

5. There is nothing "admirable" in "pushing away the proffered fellowships" of such men as are named by the Golden Age. Their personal fellowship we have never pushed away, nor ever mean to push away. We accept and reciprocate it, just to far as offered, with heartiness and honesty, on the simple ground of our common humanity and mutual respect. What we did push away was an expression of sympathy by an organized Christian body for ga other organized body whose principles we believe to be fundamentally anti-Christian in their tendencywhatever other people may believe them to be. Such sympathy as it was proposed to express could not possibly exist between two organizations based on irreconcilable principles, Christianity and Freedom; and we did push away the unreality of it. The coclesiastical fellowship of Messrs. Clarke, Calthrop, Ames, Collyer, Chadwick, and the rest, we did not and do not want; their personal fellowship, so far as it seeks us, we prize. That is, we sympathize with their gracious humanity, but not with their Christfanity: truthfulness, so much more important even than fellowship, forbids that.

We cannot suppose for a moment that the Golden Age had any purpose of misrepresenting our recent article on "Unitarian Sympathies," to which it refers; though it has certainly been careless in representing it, to a hardly excusable degree. But is it not almost enough, good reader, to make one despair of the English language, when five years of reiterated statement cannot lodge such simple distinctions a we have drawn above even in the minds of brilliant and cultivated editors? It is the old story of Sisyphus, doomed to roll a huge stone up a hill forever, only to see it roll thundering down again to the foot.

"THE SUPPRESSION OF BLASPHENY."

What is "blasphemy"? In general, defamation of character by libel or injurious speech of any kind; more particularly, in the theological sense of the word, defamation of God's character, irreverent or impious language concerning him.

There is no crime of "blasphemy" of which the State may take cognizance. The word is not now used to describe injury done to the reputation of a human being, which is described legally by other words. As to injury done to the reputation of God, the State has no authority to take cognizance of any such offence, supposing that it exists. The "blaphemy laws" which still stand on the Statute books of many States, including Massachusetts, are practically a dead letter, and ought to be expunged. No one, however bigoted, dares to appeal to them now for punishment of offenders against his own notions of propriety of speech respecting God. If anybody offends good taste or decency in this respect, his only punishment in this world is the repugnance excited towards himself in the minds of his fellow-citizens; while as to the "other world" the opinion of THE INDEX would not carry much weight. To attempt to execute legal penalties upon the "blasphemer would not be tolerated to-day, at least in the civilized parts of the United States. The present "blasphemy laws" are simply a relic of superstition which survives only to be disregarded and despised. They are dangerous, however, while unrepealed; for a change of circumstances might make them most powerful weapons for the suppression of free speech. They ought to be repealed everywhere.

An article is copied in another column from the Philadelphia Christian Statesman, of October 10, which discusses this subject, and is worthy of special consideration. We wish to disclaim our former erpression, "secret intent," which the Statesman regards as an "insinuation" of "crafty policy in connection with the Religious Amendment movement. Our phrase was hasty, and we retract it. We should have better expressed the truth (and our own conviction) if we had said-"the inevitable tendency" or "real logic" of that movement. So far as we know and believe, the Christian Statesman is singularly free from anything like insincerity, crafty policy, of underhand methods of any sort. It presses its strong convictions with fairness, openness, and courage, and sets a lesson in this respect worth studying by most Evangelical journals.

Digitary of Google

But we do not think the Statesman really answers the questions it undertakes to answer. It had declared the duty of suppressing "any man's teachings and efforts" which in any way "weaken the foundations of law and good government." Knowing that it considers Christianity to be the only basis of "law and good government," we inquired whether it would favor the suppression of THE INDEX, which opposes Christianity so far as the editor is concerned. The Statesman only replies that it would suppress THE INDEX, if it were "blasphemous." Is "blasphomy," then, the only form of speech that "weakens the foundations of law and good government"? Are we to understand that, in the Statesman's opinion, THE INDEX does not weaken them? Is it willing to say explicitly as much as that, and to avow the bellef that "able, earnest, and courteous" argument has less influence on the public mind, less power to impair faith in Christianity, its accepted basis of "law and good government," than coarse and vulgar abuse? It strikes us that, the higher the tone and the greater the ability of an anti-Christian sheet, so much the sooner would the original declaration of the Statesman require it to suppress such a sheet. The first of our three questions is not really answered at all. Will the Statesman not answer it with its accustomed directness and pointedness? The question is important, for many people believe that the Christian Amendment would greatly impair, if not destroy, the liberty of the press. Let the point be fully and explicitly met. It will be so met, if the opinion we have above expressed of the Statesman is correct.

ANSWEEING ONE'S OWN PRAYEES.

The Young Men's Christian Association have recently issued the following letter :-

November 5, 1874. November 5, 1874. My dear Sir, —It gives me pleasure to inform you that next week, commencing Sunday the 8th inst., is set apart in this and other lands by Young Men's Christian Associations, and those interested in them, for special prayer to God for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon young men. Let me most cordially invite you to the meetings as given below. You may receive good and be made useful to others. I am sincerely yours, R. R. McBURNER, Sec'y. Then follows a supersonance of the hours of most

Then follows an enumeration of the hours of meeting, four opportunities on Sunday, and two on each of the secular days till Saturday night. A part of the time of every other session on the week days, and three of the four sessions on Sunday, is allotted to the intercessions of young men only; the other meetings are open to all classes, old men it may be presumed, mothers and sisters of tempted or unbelieving youths, good people who have at heart the moral and spiritual welfare of the young in large cities especially. It is unnecessary to suppose that this arrangement is made in other than a devout spirit, with honest intentions, and sincere faith in the efficacy of the method, and the complete adaption of the means to the To charge the managers with crafty designs for end. establishing their hold on young men, and dragooning them into the service of Orthodoxy, would be as gratuitous as it would be unfair. There is evidence, more than enough to convince any reasonable man, that bellef in the Holy Spirit. In its regenerating offices on the soul, and in the power of prayer to obtain its divine assistance, is still vital in the Christian community. Thousands of preachers assert it every Sunday. Theologians defend it, divines avow To doubt it is vulgarly held to be equivalent to it. athelsm. The superstition in regard to prayer is too deeply seated in the evangelical-shall we say mind ?to allow any doubt in regard to the genuineness of this concerted movement.

But it should be remembered in connection with it, and remembered as a sign of promise, that the Young Men's Christian Associations do not trust to prayer alone for securing the welfare of the class they are instituted to benefit. They neglect no means of lifting the young men up towards the region of divine resource, but in many ways make effort to answer their own prayers. Their grand building in New York is furnished with an excellent gymnasium where young men, without regard to theological connections, can, on very easy terms, put their bodies in condition to receive that pertion of the Holy Spirit that comes through health and vigor. A well-furnished reading-room enables them to put their minds in communication with the intellectual world. Classes of various kinds afford instruction in special branches of culture and accomplishment. The fine lecture-room is in constant use for discourses on literary, historical, and scientific subjects, and the restrictions are no severer than the absolute conditions of an Evangelical society render imperative. The nutriment supplied there is of a robust kind. The exclusion of Mr. Weiss two years ago must not be taken as an indication of a reprehensible narrowness, for Mr. Weiss was well known to be a representative and aggressive radical whose weapon is always unsheathed. Men of opinions as liberal as his have in my hearing given there lectures more damaging to Orthodoxy, and have gone unrebuked.

But the Association has a more efficient way than any of these of bringing the power of the Holy Spirit on young men; and that way is practical kindness. It sets agencies at work to find employment, procure respectable lodgings, guard against deception, rescue from temptation, redress wrongs, provide companionship, and give youths from the country a home feeling in strange places. By these attentions hearts are touched and won. A single week of this kind of sympathy does more than the week of prayer to make the Holy Ghost operative. It is the best sort of praying, and meets with the best sort of answer. If the answer comes in the form of church allegiance, it is fairly earned, whether sought for or not. If it comes in the form of manliness and nobleness of character, let us believe that it is accepted gratefully as a response from the highest source. 0. B .F.

MISS WHITNEY'S STATUE OF SAMUEL ADAMS.

I had the great pleasure lately of seeing this noble statue, which has been lately cast in plaster, and is soon to be sent to Italy to be put in marble. It is finally destined to fill one of the niches in the Capitol at Washington.

Miss Whitney is very fortunate in her subject, for Samuel Adams was one of those typical men who seem to embody a whole era in their personality. She has treated her work in this truly ideal spirit, while making use of all the materials which biography and portraiture afforded her to preserve the individual traits of the historic man. He is also a representative hero of the early days of the Revolution. He is vigorous, manly, in earnest, able and willing to fight if need be, bold and independent in his attitude, upright in his bearing, yet genial, and sweet, and healthy, and with a slight touch of the old English gentleman in his manner, which reminds you of the "genteel culture and engaging demeanor" which historians attribute to him. It is a refreshing presence, and one sees in him the true American man, in whose hands one would like to put the destinies of the Republic. "I should like to send that man to Congress," was my involuntary thought. It seemed as if he would sweep away the falsity and corruption of the times as the north wind drives away miasma.

The execution of the statue is in keeping with its conception. It is broad, simple, and massive, no finical elaboration of details, but no want of characteristic lines. The quaint continental costume, in its formal masses, does not sit ungracefully npon the robust frame. With no eccentric effort after originality, it is genuine and natural, and has a fresh flavor of American nationality about it.

It is a work of which Miss Whitney's friends, her sex, and her country, have reason to be proud, and is a worthy result of her years of devoted and earnest study. E. D. C.

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-All literary London is astir at the approach of a second posthumous work of the late John Stuart Mill on Beligion : Nature, the Utility of Religion, and Theism. In anticipation of it the daily papers have published copious extracts from the work, an expedient wisely adopted as an advertisement.

Mill has, without a doubt, fully earned the vast amount of attention which his utterances receive. In all those regions within the domain of his almost fabulous reading and study he is unquestionably a master; he speaks with authority, and not as the mere scribes. Nothing, however, shows the intensity of the reverence in which he is held so much as the fact that, when he undertakes to speak on a subject which he confesses that he knows nothing about experimentally, his worshippers are just as eager to hear what he has to say as they are to listen to his profoundest knowledge and most carefully grounded conclusions.

There are thousands of persons, Orthodox or semi-Orthodox in their belief, who literally swear by Mill on every social and political question; and so, when his Autobiography appeared, these people sustained a violent shock on discovering the total absence of religious faith or experience in one who had so long an their intellectual idol.

And now this large portion of the Christian world, to say nothing of the crowd of unbelievers and mate rialists and positivists outside, are waiting with bated breath to hear what he has to say about religion who, by his own confession, never knew what it was to have a religious feeling or think a religious thought, If this were mere interest or a high kind of cariosity, one would not wonder at it; but I believe the case to be very different.

As Mill has been a sort of divine oracle to these people, and to differ from him seemed a kind of presumption which struck them dumb with indignation, so they look forward to his voices from the grave as if they were so many fresh divine atterances to be as implicitly accepted as all his other wise sayings while on earth. They feel as if they must take Mr. Mill's view of everything in heaven and earth, and that all their religious convictions must be moulded or broken so as to fit in with his, all their hopes and fears pruned, or even rooted up, at his bidding.

Possibly anticipating this state of mind towards himself, he has been, I think, most merciful to this flock of admirers. He has touched on the subjects of religion and Christ with consummate skill and tenderness, for which his warm, sympathizing heart may well receive gratitude and renewed reverence.

When I have read the whole , book I shall be better able to speak of its probable effects; but from the extracts given in the papers there can be little doubt. that two results will assuredly follow.

It will be claimed by atheists as a harmful because so temperate an advocate of athelsm. On the other hand, he will be claimed by vast numbers of Christians, Orthodox and Unitarian alike, as a bulwark of Christianity, inasmuch as he exalts the character and genius of Christ quite as much as one might expect from Canon Liddon, the Rev. Charles Spurgeon, and the Rev. James Martineau, and others, of whom these three eminent men are respectively types Perhaps some fire-brand bigots may want to treat Mill's departed spirit as Jesus is said to have treated the knowing devils who would persist in blurting out that he was the Messiah; and they may wish to clap their hands on his mouth and suffer not his profanelips to speak their Master's praise; but the majority of the religious world will be prepared to condone all Mill's athelsm for the sake of what he has written about their Christ. What a fuss there will be, what shaking of fans and waving of handkerchiefs over this wonderful "testimony" to the truth of Christlanity.

Atheism is indeed content to leave mankind in the idolatry of an historical personage whom it will allow in poetry to deify, so long as they will not travel beyond the confines of physical facts, or trouble themselves with speculation about the "unseen powers."

We have here a fresh instance of the radical affinity between athelam and Christian gush. It would surprise you, perhaps, to learn how many millions of Christians have no other God but Christ, and boast that he alone is the true revealer and representation of God. Well, all these are divided by a mere disguise of words from atheism pure and simple, and it only wanted more [imaginative, genius, than Auguste Comte possessed to make the transition complete-at all events as regards the Roman Catholic Church. Mill's definition of religion agrees entirely with his confession that he knew nothing about it but from observation and hearsay.

Much that he says is marvellously wise under the circumstances, and it is no disrespect to him to say that in the very nature of things he could not but expect to fail in his analysis. Those who take him for their god and bible must not complain if on religions questions he has said little or nothing to relieve their perplexity.

I am, sir, very truly yours,

CHARLES VOYSEY. CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., October 24, 1874.

IN A recent address on "The Moral Argument for Prohibition," Rev. Mr. Swan, of Boston, took this extreme ground: "The question 'arose who was responsible for the misery, the pauperism, the insanity induced by the use of strong drink? The drunkard was not blameless, but less so was the seller, the distiller, and the farmer who sold his grain and fruit to be converted into intoxicating beverage." It is this confusion of [ moral distinctions, by which the crime of drunkenness is laid to the charge of somebody else than the one who is guilty of it, that constitutes the injustice of the prohibitory principle.

manning Google

Titerary Hotices.

THE PRINCIPLES OF SCIENCE: A Treatise on Logic and Scientific Method. By W. Stanley Jevons, M.A., F.R.S. New York: MacMillan & Co. 1874. Professor Jevons has nobly stiempted the writing of a modern Norum Organum, in which the latest ad-vances in scientific thought and inquiry are clearly set forth and amply and sptly illustrated. The work begins with the laws of thought,—logic, induction, and deduction; and, passing to mathe-matics, we are given interesting chapters on the properties of number and the laws of combination, permutation, and probability. The integration of logic and mathematics is then effected at considerable and perhaps excessive length; logical istatements are abbreviated by an algebraic stenography; and the cilmax is the construction of a logical machine, which indicates consequences when keys corresponding to the terms of a proposition are depressed.

depressed. Methods of measuring phenomena are next treated of, with considerations of the method of means and law of error.

The second volume treats of concrete investiga

The second volume treats of concrete investiga-tion, observation, experiment, approximation, hy-pothesis, and character of the experimentalist. The concluding chapters are on generalization, an-alogy, and classification, with reflections on the lim-its and results of scientific method. The author's plan is well connected, his style clear and generally concise, and the work abounds in most suggestive original reflections in many different departments of acience. acience.

The curious results in concrete science of laws The currous results in concrete science of laws originally mathematical are of great interest. Thus fitteen things are capable of more than a trillion per-matations; if ternary alloys of thirty metals were made, each metal varying one per cent., the number of alloys would be 11,445,060, showing that an ex-tended analysis of the properties of metallic alloys, however valuable it might be, is practically impos-sible. sible.

The bearing of the doctrine of permutations on The bearing of the doctrine of permutations on evolution has suggested itself to your reviewer; for, as the number of permutations is multiplied by the total number of factors at the addition of each new one, we seem to have the law of increasing hetero-geneity, and an explanation of the gaps in Nature; for, in an important view of the whole case, a mind with twenty faculties is capable of twenty times the variety of thought belonging to another mind with nineteen faculties.

Thus differences grow ever greater with the high-est forms of organization, and in some measure we can account for the gulfs of separation between man and ape, and the greatest intellects, as Shakspeare and Newton, and those next below them. The law of probability is extended by our author beyond the hypotheses and theories of science to its very fundamental principles, because a finite experi-ence cannot absolutely formulate the laws of an Infi-nite universe. The phrase "uniformity of Nature" is considered unwarranted. Although many great laws, as the conservation of energy, gravitation, and evolu-tion, are probably true in an extremely high degree, they are not believed to be infinitely so. No line, however, is drawn between the absolute and the probable. probable.

probable. The methods of digesting isolated facts into con-nected principles are finely stated and illustrated. Thus Oersted noticed that an electric current in a fixed wire caused motion in a magnetic needle; Far-aday, reversing the principle, obtained a current in a wire from the motion of a magnet, and the science of electro-magnetism was born.

wire from the motion of a magnet, and the science of electro-magnetism was born. The principle of continuity is traced throughout Nature; all the forms of matter investigated are magnetic positively or negatively; all conduct heat and electricity more or less; the salts of silver are only intense instances of a general impressibility of matter by light; all transparent bodies polarize light; and in short every form of matter is in some degree susceptible to every form of force. The classification and generalization of knowledge is shown to be greatly assisted by the doctriue of ev-olution, whereby facts and things are arranged in genetic order, according to their complexity and mu-tual relations.

genetic order, according to their complexity and mu-tual relations. The ingenuity of investigators, pressed with ap-parently insurmountable difficulties, exhibit the value of true genue, which, avoiding an infinite number of wrong paths, chooses the single right one. Brewster, having to ascertain the refractive indices of a great number of transparent substances, was temporarily baffled by the great difficulty of reducing his small, irregular specimens to the prism form, for the measurement of refraction in the ordinary way. He adopted the expedient of immersing the speci-mens in a liquid mixed until its refractive index co-incided with that of the mineral, which became evi-dent by the latter ceasing to reflect or refract light and becoming almost invisible. Plateaw withdrew substances from the influence of omnipresent gravity by enspending them in liquids of exactly the ame specific gravity. Thus a quanti-ty of oil, snepended in a mixture of alcohol and waker, on rotation becomes apheroidal and succes-sively separates into rings and apherules: furnishing, by a very fair analogy, support to the nebular hy-pothesis. Foucault, by his measurements of the velocity of

pothesis

Foucanit, by his measurements of the velocity of Foucarit, by his measurements of the verocity of light through a space of a few yards, caused the re-construction of the tables of astronomical distances. The conclusion of this great work touches on the conflict between science and religion; the anthor is a theist, and believes that, if the existence of a God may not be provable, it is certainly not disprovable; he seems to think that the theistic idea rests on grounds in human nature too refined and complex for the successful treatment or refined and complex grounds in human nature too renned and complex for the successful treatment, as yet, of science. He would have science keep to the proximate and probable, rather than attempt excursions into re-gions of immense difficulty, while valuable work asks to be done at our doors. Within the present asks to be done at our doors. Within the present limits of the more exact sciences, uncertainty and doubt abound; questions come thicker than answers. And how can minds, unable to discover the direc-tions of four unequal bodies approaching each other by simple gravity, expect to solve the problems of cosmical origin and destiny? X.

Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., the New York pub-lishers, have recently established a New England branch of their establishment at No. 22 Hawley Street, in the charge of Mr. Thomas Bazin, who has the experienced assistance of Messrs. Hayes and Henshaw, the last-named gentleman having been identified with the business of the Appletons for eighteen years. The entire list of the firm's publica-tions is represented on the shelves, especial pains be-ing taken in the educational and eclentific depart-ments, which will be kept fully stocked. The loca-tion is convenient of access, the facilities for the prompt filling of orders complete, and the apartments attractively cheerful to the patron or casual visitor.— Boston Transcript. Boston Transcript.

Communications.

THE EXAMPLE OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

RUSHFORD, Minn, Nov. 5, 1874.

RUSHFORD, Minn, Nov. 5, 1874. MY DEAB MR. ABBOT :--The printing of my late letter, under the caption "Duty of Total Abstinence," and your reply (the lofty moral dignity of which is in no degree obscured from me by our differences of perception) perhaps ought to content me; and, so far as you yourself are concerned, I am "silenced." Those who worship the same supreme idea and are loyal to the same master ought not to waste much time in controversy respect-ing the forms of worship or method of serving; and so long as you urge the good of man (appealing to faith in "self-government by reason and conscience," and loyalty to an ideal principle), and not any "lurch toward self-indulgence," as your reason for occasional use of beverages that may intoxicate, I am bound to stand by and as cheerfully as possible see you use them; notwithstanding my own private opinion ("Insight"?) that all witnesses who are sufficiently avanced to appreciate and comprehend your aim could well dispense with such object-lessons, while the great multitude of onlooking children will surely misinterpret the teaching, with a damage to themmisinterpret the teaching, with a damage to them-selves exactly proportionate to the character, and consequent authority, of the teacher,-motwithstand-ing, also, my private belief that no man "knows that he consequent authority, of the teacher, --notwithetand-ing, siso, my private belief that no man "knows that he does not personally need to abstain testotally," and my clear perception that nearly all drunkenness must have its origin in over-confidence in this direction. At the same time, my love for your public warrants me in further pointing out what I conceive to be your danger, in this matter; namely, that of adopting a negative principle-"Total abstinence not a universal duty"—as a basis of positive action; or selecting an indefinite and forever scientifically indefinable, if not altogether false, positive principle-moderate drink-ing ("temperance")—for exemplification before peo-ple (the only ones needing "example") who are not your equals in intellectual judgment or moral strength, and who, with the common sense of com-mon people, will always confound what you are with what you do. If you think, as Mr., Stevens breadly hints in his article "Selfhood not Selfab-ness," that such are hardly worth ascrificing oneself for, even "inappreciably," as you would be required to do in this case, you may wait long before finding the parties for whose benefit your "individuality" will "bound with elastic feet toward immolation," and thus go through life cheated of "one of the highest rights which I" (you) "as an individual posses." Your position on the temperance question seems to me to be perfectly represented in the following picture:— I stand upon an eminence, surrounded by my felimmediately !" If this is a "dangerous metaphor" and does you in-justice, you will at least know that it is not used with malicious intent; and seeing how you appear to one who loves your character sincerely may lend you some charity for those who, seeing your attitude with like vision, yet having not that love, stiack you I am, sadly but none the less truly, your friend, T. H. Evzurs

I am, sadiy but none the less truly, your friend. P. S. — When that most radical and incomparably most successful of reformers, Jesus of Nazareih, was asked to cast himself down from a pinnacle, just to show folks the power of God ("reason and con-science") within him in preserving him from harm, he wisely refused; urging the principle that we ought not to "tempt" the Divine energy, i.e., pat it to unnecessary proof. This man, who probably possessed as much power of "self-control" as any d us dare lay claim to, also did not disdain to pray-"Ead us not into temptation." "But Jesus was a wine-bibber," say you? Well, I do not quote him as authority in all things, but hold up his teaching in these things for acceptance or re-jection by our own love and wisdom, upon thei Intrinsic merit. It is matter for regret that our individual position

It is matter for regret that our individual position as to total abstinance, which is of no more importance than that of any other individual, should have been made unduly prominent by our unwillingness to evade a direct interrogation in the first place. Dr. Everts will permit us, no doubt, to sink the personal and return to the general question.

That it is a very delicate and perplexing problem to decide how far regard for example should influence men with reference to the use of intoricating beverages, must be in candor admitted. He who, purely from a tender concern for the welfare of others, sacrifices something of his personal liberty, and for their sake totally abstains from what he believes to be wholly innocuous in his own case, must comma the respect of all right-minded persons so far as his motives are concerned. But the abstract wisdom or moral indispensableness of his course may still be fair subject of doubt. There are unquestionably times when it would be cruelty to others to accept even a glass of wine: e. g. when in actual company with a reformed drunkard, who might be thus infigenced to take the fatal step of reviving his own slumbering passion for drink. Further, so great is the danger and so unspeakably awful are the evils of intemperance, that every one ought to be scrapulou to the last degree about offering to others anything that may tempt them to form a habit that may ruin them. In fact, the habit of using alcoholic beverages regularly is safe for nobody, and can never be contracted without great peril. Far be it from us to encourage any man in that which may wreck him and these most dear to him. But these considerations ar not the only ones to be entertained. There is danger also in the example of total abstinence. Ascetician repels most young people; their blood is high; their thirst for excitement is something that it is folly to seek to preach down. A father who teaches his sons that it is sin to taste a drop of wine may create a reactionary effect, quite contrary to that he seeks to produce ; as is too often the case. The strict prohibition of cards at home has made many a gambler, whereas the wise regulation of their use in the family circle would have taken off the edge of that irrepressible curiosity which leads to dangerous experiments. So the example of a father which sanctions the cautious and only occasional use of wine by his own children is sometimes, to our own personal knowledge, the most powerful of temperance lectures. The argument is by no means all on one side. If the power of selfcontrol is undeveloped in any one, he is never sale anywhere, despite all examples, but is the slave of his surroundings, which he cannot control. We deprecate the teaching which relies on example, instead of cultivating the original, free, conscientious individuality of the young. Radicalism warns men not to be imitators, but to obey the sacred law written in their own humanity. Why flinch from practising what we preach? For one life that is wrecked by the example of a man who governs himself by our principle in this matter, many lives will be invigo-rated, cheered, inspired to greater character. We hold that there is truer tenderness for others in the long run, and on the average, in the man who walks unswervingly by his own sense of right, conceding nothing to false demands upon him, than in him who benevolently but weakly studies to adapt himself to the needs of those who really care little or nothing for his example. The fact is, this popular doctrine of example seems to us to be greatly faulty: it exaggerates the importance of self, fosters a species of conceit which deludes us into thinking we are "the observed of all observers," and persuades us that we are giving tone and color to lives upon which we really exert an infinitesimal influence. It would thoroughly astonish us, for one, to discover that any man had been made either temperate or intemperate by our example. The power of FRINCIPLE-that is our text; and we do our little best to helpour brokher

manning Google

560

men by sticking to our principles through thick and thin. Whatever influence belongs to us will be brought to bear in no way so potent as that. Our friend's "dangerous metaphor" is a pleasant parody of our position, but nothing more. It remains true, we believe, that the example of him who is highly and conscientiously temperate in all things tells everywhere and always for temperance alone. If not, there is no end to abjuration of innocent things that may be perilously abused. Make your own life-aim identical with the purest, truest, noblest you can conceive; and then, live it out .- ED.]

LEGISLATION FOR THE NEGROES.

LEGISLATION FOR THE NEEDED. LEGISLATION FOR THE NEEDED. M. Hallowell recommends to me the perusal of which have the Nation. Always an admirer of Mr. Godkin's trenchant manner of dealing with sen-timentalists, I ehould not hesitate, perhaps, as a sub-arriber, to look over my old copies but for the fact that, should I go back no further than 1806 and 1806, it would necessitate the reading of some of my own communications upon the subject at issue; namely, the justice, expediency, and feasibility of at-tempting to improve the condition of the negroes by legislation to be forced upon the while of the South against their own better understanding of what their respective requires and the same break of the south against their own better understanding of what their percention that Mr. Hallowell appears to occupy at present: that is to say, he was a believer in the pos-sibility of ameliorating the condition of mankind and the black race in particular) by legislation of a present is that is to say the semancipated (but, also that the black race in particular) by legislation of a present is the same of the blacks in the various present of the human family, etc. But having since having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having compared the general result attained by the specific emancipation of the blacks chieved their having c race, and his representation of the condition of the South, as just."

South, as just." The recent elections have—it is to be hoped—cut the Gordian knot which the Republican party have so long failed in commencing to untie; and perhaps the best answer to Mr. Hallowell is that already giv-en by a majority of the patient and long-suffering, but now righteously indigmant, voters of the nation. Very respectfully, A. WAREEN KELSEY, of St. Louis.

6th of November, 1874.

[THE INDEX is "open for the full discussion" of any subject that vitally concerns human welfare, provided the articles offered are able, in good temper, and of reasonable length. The only restrictions are those of space and general literary propriety. Discussion which continually elicits new facts or thoughts is always welcome, though merely personal replies are not generally either useful or interesting. The question treated by Mr. Kelsey and Mr. Hallo-well is so important that first-hand testimony on either side is valuable to all who wish to be thoroughly informed as to their public duty.-ED.]

"PREVAILING PRAYER."

The following incidents have recently come to my knowledge: the former under my own observation; the latter was related by a gentleman of unques-tioned Orthodoxy.

tioned Orthodoxy. A lady of my acquaintance had lately burled a lit-tile child, and was in deep grief over her loss, when she was visited by a friend, whose child, about the age of her own, had been dangerously ill of the same disease, but recovered. The lady almost immediately began to speak of the power of prayer, quoting the well-known Sunday-school piece:—

"Care and prayer are not in vain; Our little boy is well again."

Our little boy is well again." "I wrestled by night and by day in prayer for my child," said she, "and, praised be the Lord, he heard and answered me." This, of course, was somewhat harrowing for my friend to hear. She, too, had prayed fervently for the life of her babe, and had not "prevailed." At last, stang by injured feeling to reply, she said: "But I should think, Mrs. C., you would be afraid so deter-minedly to importune the Almighty to change his plans for your child." "Oh no. I always ask with the proviso that, if he seese best, he will do it." "But he will do it." he sees best, whether we ask or refrain, will he not?" returned my friend. "He always does what is best, does he not?" "Certainly; of course he does," was the undaunt-ed answer; "but I think our prayers may sometimes help him to decide what is best." Tet this lady is not a simpleton nor an egotist in any other direction than the religious. And why should she be ashamed of the remark, or why should her answer excite a smile? It is the teaching of the Bible and the churches. But the chief point to be noticed here is the sickly spiritual pride, and the carelessness of another's feeling, manifested by the exalting assurance that her prayer had prevailed with Omnipotence, while her less importunate sister, not being able to make God see with her eyes what was best for him to do, was left to mourn. The other irme story runs as follows: Upon a little iake in Central New York sudden squalls sometimes descend, and occasionally endanger the small sail-boate which ply upon its waters. One day a pless-ure-party was in great peril, but, the wind suddenly shifting, they safely reached the shore. On the hotel plazea, two hours after, a lady was describing the avent. "Oh, I thought once we should surely drown! O

"Oh, I thought once we should surely drown! O Dr. R." (a reverend gentlament of the strength o Dr. R." (a reverend gentleman to whom she was speaking), "I never put up such an agonized prayer to Heaven as I did then. I prayed that the wind might change, and sure enough it did, almost that very minute," A gentleman, not of the might change, and sure enough is did, almost time very minute." A gentleman, not of the party, turned to her and said: "Then, madam, it was probably your prayer which wrecked the other boat." It appeared that in another part of the lake, which is partially divided by a crescent shaped ridge, another boat was by that very change of wind driven squarely upon the rocks, and two of its party narrowly escaped drowning. However great may be the helpfulness and com-fort, to many, of a belief in special providences, it may be questioned whether it does not argue a higher spiritual attainment when men and women become so much "at one" with the Supreme Power as to be-lieve, and feel thoroughly content in believing, that the great plan of the material universe will be worked out in order and harmony, for the best good of all, without any interference on their part. H. L. B. B.

THE NEW OBLEANS LIBERAL LEAGUE. ALEXANDEIA, Rapides Parish, La., (

Oct, 24, 1874

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--I noticed In your issue of October 16 that Mr. Will-iam F. Perkins, of New Orleans, says: "I refused to become a member of it (the Liberal League) because it was a secret organization, and because, for that rea-son, its objects were not understood by the masses; although several of the Demands of Liberalism, with-out regard to their name or source, had been in-dorsed by the press of this State irrespective of politi-cal bias." dorsed t dorsed by the press of this State irrespective of politi-cal bias." In the first place, as the Secretary of the Liberal League of New Orleans, I would inform not only Mr. Perkins but every other liberal-minded person in New Orleans that it is not a secret organization, but on the contrary open to all, and that we would be more than pleased if every such person would at once call at F. Keller's book-store on St. Charles Street, sub-scribe our Articles of Agreement and By-Laws, and attend our weekly meetings. As to his other reason for not joining; namely, be-cause "its objects were not understood by the masses," I can only say that such want of understanding car-tainly is not attributable to secrecy on the part of the League, want of publication, or zeal of its members. Mr. Perkins, therefore, does not stand excused for his non-coöperation on the grounds alleged. J. E. WALLACE. P. S. -Fully three-fourths of our League are Dem-ocrats, but present party issues have nothing to do with the objects of the League.

ocrats, but present party issues have nothing to do with the objects of the League. J. E. W.

MORAL GOODNESS INDEPENDENT OF CHBISTIAN THEOLOGY.

COMPLETIAN THEOLOGY. To one who has been educated to believe that all ideas of morality and all sentiments of unselfish love are the exclusive products of Christian theology, there is a grand and cheering discovery in the aspir-ing thoughts and warm, philanthropic feelings that inspire the writings of "heretics." Many of us have been taught that all conceptions of genuine good-ness, all emotions of fraternal love, have been de-rived from the Christian religion, and that human nature, unregenerated by this supernatural light, is destitute of the smallest germ of moral excellence, and held in absolute captivity to the malignant will of Satan. When we discover that the Christian standard given us to test the moral character of men is not sufficient to determine the intrinsic worth of all the virtues that constitute humanity, that moral goodness is a natural product developed out of the universal conditions of human life, and growing in-dependent of the culture of any special religious teaching, we have attained a free and expanded view of the native excellence of right, and the simple yet resistless persuasiveness of that sentiment which leads us to moral rectitude in our intercourse with markind, that makes us ashamed of our former nar-row religious prejudices.

Testistas to moral rectitude in our intercourse with markind, that makes us sahamed of our former nar-row religious prejudices. Mankind have ever been struggling to rise out of the darkness of ignorance into the light of a fuller com-prehension of truth and right. Superstition has con-stantly sought to suppress the natural instincts of progress in man, and substitute her false and fickle phantoms for the faithful and divine light of Nature. If we could discard the stupid, arrogant creeds of our individual religions that blindly assall the ex-panding instincts of human nature, and study hu-manity in an untrammelled spirit, we should discover the elements of a nobler conscience, and develop the bonds of a stronger and holier philanthropy, than the world has yet dreamed of. Love would supplant sectarian hate, and manly respect, instead of bigoted and derogatory pity, would be felt for the honest opinions of our fellows. H. CLAY NEVILLE. OZARK, Mo.

A CARD FROM MR. WILLIAMS.

MY DEAR MR. ABBOT:-I heartily regret to find my position as Trustee of the Hyde Park Public Library misstated in a com-munication and editorial of THE INDEX of November 5. My feeling and action have been so decided in favor of the largest liberty that I do not like to let your sentence, "the Unitarian minister" (myself) "showed himself rather supercillous than liberal," go

At the meeting of the Trustees reported in that communication I was not present. I have never voted to reject A. J. Davis' works, or any other works given to the library. The statute limitation is the only one I recognize, and no obscene book has yet been pre-sented. In private conversation, on the street, I gave my opinion of the folly of one of A. J. Davis' books; but I did not intimate that such an opinion would cause me to reject the book, or any other, from the library. For this personal opinion, of a book not in the least theological, expressed in the public street, reported from bearsay, I am represented as more supercilious than liberal. The impression of my own spirit and that of the street, reported from hearsey, I am represented as more supercilious than liberal. The impression of my own spirit and that of the Board of Trustees is misrepresented in that commu-nication. No gift book has ever been opposed by any member of the board, clergyman or layman, Catholic or Protestant, on any other ground than that it had a manifest immoral tendency. A vol-ume of A. J. Davis' works was rejected on that account, his views of divorce and free love being read-ation of the board of the board of the being read-show of reason, though not convincingly to myself, on that ground. Hyde Park is a place singularly free from sectarian bigotry and exclusiveness, and the Board of Trustees well represent the temper of the town. There are four ministers and three laymen on the present board; and the objections to Davis' works have come as vigoronaly from the laymen as from the other members. Indeed, one business man offered the res-olution that "no minor be permitted to take a spec-ified volume from the library without written per-mission from his parent or guardian." The Hyde Park Public Library is free, and the Trustees are free from any unmanly or, if yon will receive it, unchrist-ian arrowness. Rapectfully yours, RANCE C. WILLIAMSA.

"ARB LIBERALS LIBERAL !"

EDITOR OF INDEX:-In your isaue of October 22 you say: "We should like nothing better than to put a copy of this paper every week into the hands of the forty-three thou-sand ministers of this great Yankee nation." Which leads me to say to those of your subscribers who do not flie their papers that they can do good missionary work, if after reading their INDEX they send it to some minister, or other person needing "liberty and light." This has been my practice since I first became a subscriber. Could a liberal missionary fund be raised for the purpose of sending THE INDEX to the heathen—the fund to be used in the discretion of the editor? Are "Liberals" Nberal?

[Some "Liberals" are exceedingly "liberal," as THE INDEX has good cause to acknowledge gratefully. Others do not do their share. The best possible form of "liberality" towards the paper is the giving of personal aid in extending its circulation.-ED.]

A CABD.

SPIRITUALIST CONVENTION AT NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Unknown to and unauthorized by me, my name was placed upon the list of officers elected by the body that called themselves as above, at their annual meeting of Sept. 26, 1874. I am a Splritualist of twenty years, and am entirely opposed to the fanati-cisms preached on that occasion, and very much cha-grined to find myself in such company. I do not accept the trusteeship, and request that my name be not used in the future, by them or oth-ers, without my consent. Will all papers which have published their list of officers please copy the above, and oblige me? MES. LITA BARREY SAYLES. DAYVILLE, Conn.

DAVVILLE, CONL.

GEOROM ELIOT (Mrs. Lewes), although plain, is not positively homely, as is generally represented, and her face, when animated by conversation, is said to be handsome. Her figure is good, her bearing graceful, and her manyers elegant. Very shy by nature, and rendered more so by the peculiar circum-stances of her marinage, she is averse to meeting strangers, and is usually very reserved and allent in company, unless it be composed of her intimates. Her friends almost workhip her; and those who have met her on familiar terms invariably speak of her as charming. When freed from restraint, when the loc is melted between her and her visitors, she talks with wonderful ease and eloquence. Unlike many gifted part of the speech is even superior to her written that that her speech is even superior to her written thought, and say that no one can fully appreciate. George Eliot until he has heard her talk.

The galaxies by Google

.

562	THI	e II
Advertisem	entŝ.	100D
THE PATRO	NAGEL	EADING
of the liberal advertising pul fully solicited for THE INDEX. will be honesity made to kee ing pages of THE INDEX in e with 16 general character and thus to furnish to the public medium which shall be not on its patrons, but also worthy generous support. To this en or "Dilind" advertisements, all disements, and all advertise to be frandulent or unjust to excluded from these columns	house hollowed	B. FROTH T. W. HIG W. 8 . W.
be admitted, THE INDEX must not be he for any statement made by a will in all cases accept the re- their own statements.	Ce	d will be n receipt of nts each;
ADVERTISING BA	TES. gr	aphs, $1.50.
For I to 12 Insertions, 11 13 11 25 11 11 26 11 51 11 11 52 11	8 6 6 6 6	Address, No. 1 T
On half-column advertiserne	5 st th	NT TO T
On half-column advertisems of 10 per cent. will be made; advertisements, a discount of On all advertisements for paid in advance, a further dis cent. on the total, as above o be made. FRANCIS E. AB		A 1Truth Abbot, cont and "Moder DARWIN, a bles," says, l
A COMPLETE SET of INI from No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will any address on the prepaymen	DEX TRACTS, 1 be mailed to t of 75 GENTE. IE INDEX,	nally intend quently auti read "TRUTH bern from r dimost every 0 cents; 12
THEIN		. 2Fear B. Frothingh
IN ENGLAN	D.	oter of the
THE INDEX will be forward to any part of the United Kt	led free by post	by of the r
Shillings.	ion of Fifteen No	SLectu
1 Tremont Place, B	oston, U.S.A.	whelming de
TYNDALL'S AI	DRESS.	dons and er Old and the l
We have now for sale at this est edition of Prof. Tyndall's r before the British Associati edition revised and anthorized dail himself, and contains a p and additions to the Addree the delivery. Price, TRINY C Address TH	office the lat- vecent Address No on. It is the l by Prof. Tyn- reface by him os, made since EE INDEX, No.	A.—Chris A.—Chris S. Abbot, is costliness, a of Foreign 3 and Interest 2 copies $1. 4. 6.— <sup>14</sup> God
	Place, Boston.	Rev. Arthur
BOUND VOLUMES Bound volumes of THE IN 1872, and 1873, will be sent by	DEX for 1871.	d States Co oples $1.00.
Bound volumes of THE IN 8673, and 1873, will be sent by a purchaser's expunce) on receily purchaser's expunce) on receily are exceedingly respectively. I are exceedingly routable sing of each other, for the imports other articles into your outain are interest, and will furnish as in ing twenty yeas the cost of the walaable present could be mad struggling out of orthodoxy.	Express (at the t of $2.50, $2 No Phese volumes by, irrespective at essays and of permanent structive read- No No No No No No No No No No	. 6"The oury, denous New Edition 11.00.
Address	EINDEX,	F. E. Abbot, shild to be e state to ens
TWO NEW B	OOKS, No.	. 5The
MODEBN CHRISTIANI	TY A OTH I	crests over

MODEEN CHRISTIANITY, & CIV-ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the author of The Fight at Dame Europa's School.

THE IMPEACEMENT OF THE HOUSE OF BRUNSWICE. By Charles Bradlaugh.

The price of each of these books, in paper covers, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. In cloth binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. Address

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

T HE F R E E

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOUBNAL AND BE-VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, sc., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-cursions; to provide during the whiter "Sun-day Evenings for the People," and generally to promote everything conductive to rational recreation on Sunday. The Free Sunday indexed is published in Honorary Editorial of a conducted by an Honorary Editorial London; Fred'k Long, London, Francis W. Sonther, London; Mark A. Judge, Hanels W. Sonther, London is Mark Manyable in Advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 286 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

PHOTOGRAPHS 1 . 01 G INDEX WRITERS. Including INGHAM, GINBON. POTTER H. SPENCER. F. W. NEWMAN. CHAS. VOYSEY, A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT, ale at the office of THE INDEX, mailed postpaid to any address price. Single Photographs, 25 complete Set of Eight Photo-Second Second

	B.ddress,				Place, Boston, Mass
	1	No.	1	Tr	emont	Pla	ice,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88.
ī	N	D	1	E	x	т	R	A	C	т	S.

the for the Times, by F. E. tains the "Fifty Affirmations" rn Principles." Mr. CHARLES author of "The Origin of Spe-in a letter to the editor not origded for publication, but subse horized to be used : "I have now HS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire my inmost heart; and I agree to y word." New Edition. Price copies $1.00.

of the Living God, by O. ham, exposes the debasing char-popular notions of God, and aceptions of him that are wor nineteenth century. New Edi-5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

ure on the Bible, by the Rev. ysey, of England, is an over-lemonstration of the imperfecrrors of the Bible, both in the New Testaments. New Edition. its; 12 copies $1.00.

tian Propagandism, by F. an exposure of the weakness, and inefficiency of the System Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, ting Extracts. Price 10 cents; .00

In the Constitution," by B. Bradford, opposes the pro-ogical Amendment to the Unitonstitution. Price 10 cents; 12 Sabbath," by Parker Pillsnces Sabbatarian superstition. on. Price 10 cents; 12 copies mpulsory Education,<sup>33</sup> by , maintains the right of every educated, and the duty of the sure it an education. Price 5 ples 50 cents.

o. 8.—The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-terests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 9.- The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac-ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan-gelical Christian Greed in the U. S. Constitation. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi-anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from Ave to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-Is Homanism Heal Christianity1 Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 13.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analy the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Heligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular derivation of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of bellef in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMORT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX, A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO FREE RELIGION.

7

8

PUBLISHED BY THE

INDEX ASSOCIATION,

AT

No. | Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:

FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR: ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.

EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. B. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass. F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX sims-

To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :

- To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a high purpose, both in society and in the individual :
- To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.
- In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and edantent secularization of the political and ed-ucational institutions of the United States. The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesistical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of theseveral States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading paper or essay of a thoughtful character 10 each issue, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con tinue to be furnished by the well-known em nent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOYSEY has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspondence, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-Iars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case, Address

THE INDEX.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. Dellardh GOOgle

(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not saces this.) Price 50 cents. Proceedings of Second Annual Nees-ing, 1869. So cents. Contains mays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Re-straint in Religion," and by David A. Wason on "The Belation of Social Scient son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religiton," and speeches by 0.8. Probins-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Des-ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Ba-tol, A. M. Powell, R. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Scarer, and others; with an appendix on "Outlin Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

4. PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGIOUS

FREE

OF THE

Report of the Addresses and other

Report of the Audreases and other Proceedings of the Original Sec-ing in 1867, at which the Pro-Heligious Association was Orga-ized. Containing addresses by 0.8 Probingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretta Mot, Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hy-

on, and Ralph Waldo Emers

ASSOCIATION.

Proceedings of Third Annual Sect-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains surger by O. B. Frothingham on the "idea of the by O. S. Frotningham on the "ide of the Free Religious Association," followed by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "TheNaine of Religion," by Mirs. Z. D. Chenry or "Re-ligion as a Social Force, especially in reli-tion to Fhilmathropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religion Organization, as affected by the Splrit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnsmon "The Natural Sympathy of Beligions," followed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judaism," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanis by Wm. H. Channing on "The Religious of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Religion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Fablic Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. B. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. S5 cents. (Four or more, 5 cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church in America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Semiment of the Human Mind," and by O. B. Frothingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Meeting, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 5 cents each.) Contains essays by Sampi Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Date Owen, T. W. Higginson, Banuel Longi-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Locretia Mott.

Procoodings of Seventh Annual Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four or more, 25 cents each.) Contains weather reports of President Frothingham's address on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on "The Beligious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Sonnaschel's most of the Times," of Rabbi Bonneschein's speech on "Reformed Jadaism," and of the statements by Means. Calthrop, Abbot, and Higginson of their re-Gastnrop, A bbot, and Higginson or inerre-spective atlitudes towards Christianly-as "Christian," "- Aric Christian," and "Er-tra-Christian,"-- together with the Secret-ry's Annual Report, and letters from Keh-ub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglas, and D. A. Wasson. D. A. Wasson.

Heligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cents

Reason and Revolation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Ju. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of ten, 60 cents; of one hundred, $5.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tre-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1877 is supply of others previous to that of 1571 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dressed either "Free Religions Association, No. 1 Tremont Flace, Boston," of to the Secretary Non Boston, " of to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.

WM. J. POTTEE, Sec. F. E. J.

III. Poods. By Dr. Edward Smith..... V. Mind and Body. The Theories of their Relations. By Alex. Bain. The Standy of Sociologr. By Herbert By Rear, Zaq. Chemisury. By Josiah P. Cooke, J. Chemisury. By Josiah P. Cooke, J. Chemisury. By Josiah P. Cooke, J. Stand, Chemisury. Dr Sai. four Stewart, with an Appendix. Ireas-ing of the Visia and Meusia Applications of the Doctrine. VIII. Animal Locomotion; or, Waiking, Will. Animal Locomotion; or, Waiking, K. Responshilly in Monial Dissecta-Bon on Aironautics. Hy J. Bell Pettigrew, K. Responshilly in Monial Dissecta. Bency Maudeloy, M.D. HEBOLD (DUIGIAB. Broudde Saints. Mr. POPULAR BOOKS Historical Pictures Betouched; a Volume of Miscollanics. In two parts, Part L., "Studies, Pictures, and Pancice" The Life of Dr. Marie Zakrsowsks, being a Practical Hinatration of "Woman's Bights to Labor" 1.75 1.50 SENT BY MAIL 1.50 1.0 47 3.00 PUBLISHERS' PRICES! ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. 1.00 JERBOLD (DOUGLAS), Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Brenkfast Talk, and other Papers, LA NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE. JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Beligion. India ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other DBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CABE. lated into English, with Analysis and Intro-ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balliol College, Oxford, and Beglus Pro-fessor of Greek. Four vola-Orders are respectfully solicited from 12.0 all friends of THE INDEX.
 How Lins Loved the Bing.
 1.00

 BMEEBON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Series.
 1.00

 Besays. Boond Sories
 1.00

 Miscollanies
 1.00

 Dopresentative Men.
 2.00

 Dopresentative Men.
 2.00

 Poolant at the point of the Prices
 2.00

 May-day and Other Pieces
 2.00

 Peerzs., Bire and Gold
 1.00

 Poerzs., Bire and Gold
 1.00
 ECKY (W.E. H.) History of the Hise and Influence of the Spirit of Battonalism in Europa. 2 vols. History of European Morals from Augus-EMERSON'S (E. W.) Dessay Besays. Second Berles... Miscollanies Engrissatative Men... English Traits... Conduct of Life Pooran. With Portrait... Pooran. With Portrait... Pooran. Buse and Gold... Prose Works. 2 vols.... Boclety and Solinde .... 4 00 ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two tus to Charlemagne. 2 vois...... 6.00 Tols. Hospital Sketches and Camp and Fireside Stories 3.00 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.00 1.00 1.75 Stories An Old-Fashioned Girl..... Little Men LESSING'S (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans-lated by Ellen Frothingham..... 1.50 ittle Men ly Boys, &c. hawl-Straps fork; A Story of Experience My Be BOCKEY AND SOLARD EVANS (E. P., Pb. D), First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Coquerel the Younger. The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Leasing, Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 3 vols. ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 1.80 LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.00 LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-dalam ? or, a Few Words to the Jews...... 1.0 AUERBACH (BESTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.40 VUL Eden; The Country-House on the Bains. 1.40 Bishweiss. 1.40 German Tales. 1.40 FARRAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Baligion...... 2.00 FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation, 3.00 FISEE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers. 2.0 LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poems. 1 vols... The Biglow Papers. First Series... The Biglow Papers. Second Series Among my Books... My Study Windows. 4.00 1.60 1.50 2.00 2.00 PROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Bu-manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers ..... Child's Book of Religion Life of Theodore Parker...... Fuynta sufficient of the second secon LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Posies for Children. .78 1,78 FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 6 vols...... LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN), Origin of Civiliaa-tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man., 2.00 Pre-historic Times. 500 Moral Science: A Compendium of Ethics. 1 vol. The Sonsee and the Intellect, Third edi-Mon. 1 vol. 5.90 LYELL'S Principles of Geology, 2 vols...... 8.00 Elements of Geology. 3.50 GALTON (FRANCIS.) Heroditary Genius An inquiry into its Laws and Conse-BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americaniams. 2.50 ...................... BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations ........... 3.00 Daughter Daughter MANN (HORACE). The life of Horace Mann. By his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education 3.00 A 1843 Reports on Education, from 1859 to A 1843 Reports on Education, from 1859 to Horace Mann. 1.25 BARTOL (ERV. C. A). Badical Problems... 2.00 The Bising Faith...... 2.00 6.00 3,60 nings of Life. I vola. And And Begin-BIBLE in the Public Schools. Becords, Arguments, and Decision in the case of John D. Minor et et. et. the Board of Education of the city of Cincinnat: et al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnat. 1.00 GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life....... Literary and Social Judgmanta...... Creed of Christendom 2.00 GROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doc-umania, Private Memoranda, and Original Lotters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-tralt. 2.0 MAURICE (BEV, F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind .78 MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire. Conversion of the Northern Nations..... BAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter « Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Bootland, Book II. In France. Thooghts about Art. The Onknown Biver. The Intellectual Life. Chapters on Animals. 1.50 BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of MILL (JOHN STUART.) Dissortations and Discussions. 4 vols. each. 223 The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hamilton. 2 vols. sach. 225 The Poetitve Philosophy of Augusta Conta, 146 Follthoil Economy. New and revised add-HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World, Part Sec-2.50 tion The Subjection of Women. Easay on Liberty. Ropresentative Government. Autobiography. Memorial Volume. His Life and Works... BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 3.22 1.25 HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works. New Blustrated Library Edition. Mine yels. Per yel. WOTE, with a compute intest. a vola. [RETYLE? Works. Chesp edition. Compris-ing the following: Miscellanceus Ecsays, T rak, French Revolution, J vola.; Sreder-ick., S vola.; Sartor Resartiss, I vol.; John Starling, I vol.; Life of Schiller, I vol.; Past and Freeent, I vol.; Herces and Herc Wor-ship, I vol.; Lattor Day Pamphiets, I vol., Any volume sold separatoly. J vola. Lon-don, 1871-3. Fer vol. vol. wice-Told Tales. losses from an Old Manas, be Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedals The Scarlet Letter, and and Schematic Letter, Romance of the Soven Gables, and The Suow Image. The Marble Pann. The Knglish Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The Srength and Italian Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimizs Felton. MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed-CARPENTER (DR. W. B.) The Principles of Montal Physiology, with their Applica-tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-tions. Mule Like (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Belence of Language. First Sories...... The Same. Second Series...... Chips from a German Workshop, Vol. L. Essays on the Science of Religion, Vol. II. Essays on Mythology, Traditions, and Cnatorms, Vol. III. Essays on Lit-erature, Biography and Antiquidus. Three vois. Frice per volume....... Lectures on the Science of Beligion...... 9.80 HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Ont-Door Papers ... Malbone. An Oldport Romance. Army Life in a Black Regiment. Alantic Essays. Oldport Days A8BY (PETBOLEUM V), Swingin' Bo the Cirkle 2.00 OBANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau; The Post Naturalist. With Memorial Verse. 1.00 1.50 from Lentucky 3.00 HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'Ninety-Three". 1.75 HTNT'S (Mas. HELEN).
 Lase

 Bits of Travel
 Lase

 Bits of Travel
 Lase

 HUXLET'S Man's Place in Nature
 Lase

 On the Origin of Species
 Lase

 More Critichams on Darwin and Adminis Jase

 A Manual of the Anatomy of Variabusted
 Jase

 A Manual of the Anatomy of Variabusted
 Jase

 Lay Bermons, Addresses, and Reviews
 Life

 Tha Monitobas of the Unseen
 169

 Songa of Seven 240

 BrogLOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Off the Skelling
 179

 Stadies for Stories
 120
 OLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the Lectures. INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES, No. 1. Forms of Water, in Choods, Bala, Bivers, Ice, and Gisclers. By John Tyn-divers, Ice, and Gisclers. By John Tyn-H. Fhysics and Foldicis; or, Thoughts on the Application of the Principles of "Natural Sciencics," and "Inharkance" to Foldicia Society. By Walter Bagabet.

R da Li. the "Nai to Pigrimage. GORRELATION and Conservation of Forces: A Series of Expeditions by Grove, Heim-boltz, Mayer, Faradey, Liebig and Carpen-ter: with an Introduction by Edward L. Youmans, M.D. 1 voi. OULTURE DEMANDED BY MODERN LIFE; Ha True Aims and Bequirements A Beries of Addresse. By Tyndeil, Suz-ley, Whewell, Faraday, Spencer, Draper, Mascon, Lyed, etc. Edited by Edward L. Youmans. 2.00

ALL (MRS. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Relation to Education, Employment, and Glissmanis.

1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 Т

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 19, 1874.

1.00 1 78

PARSONS (THEOPHILUS.) The Infinite

The Cost of Finite PHELPO'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Gates Aiz The Troity Book Men, Women, and Ghosts Hedged In The Silent Partner. What to Wear ?

PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Posma, Por-

563

PROCTOE (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds iban Ours: the Firshity of Worlds stud-ied nuder the Light of Recent Scientific Besearches. With Colored Flates... Light Science for Leisure Hours. A Series of Pamiliar Essay on Scientific Subjects. Besay on Astronomy: A Beries of Papers on Planets and Meteors, the Sun, etc. With the Flates and 28 Woodcuts... Taking a Astronomy: A species, Seamery, and Phates and 28 Woodcuts... Taking a construction of three Li-nar Photographs and many Flates, Charts, etc. The Expanse of Heaven. Rosspert (CHERISTINA G.) A Shadow of 1.78

5.00 OSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of Dants

CHELLEN (M.) Spectrum Analysis, in Application to Terrestrial Substances, the Physical Constitution of the Heave Bodise

.50

SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Self-Help ..... 1.59

San Lizer 5 (Bass Oct.) Soir Help. SPENCER (HERBERT). Education, Intel-lectual, Moral, and Physical. Pirst Frinciples. Essays: Moral, Foliciesi, and Kethetio. Instruction of Taiversation for the second Social Stations of The Conditions Found Social Stations of the Conditions Found the Free of the Social Stations of Social Stations The Principles of Honory, Two The Principles of Honory, Two Philomophy of Highs. Philomophy of Highs.

3.00

1.56

SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatos The-

STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the

Now Life of Jesus. Authorized transla-tion. 2 vols.....

THACEEEAY'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition. Complete in $ volumes. Per vol., 1.28 Vanity Pair, The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip, Pendenuis.

Pendenna, The Virginians. Lemond, and it well has Widowar. Examond, and Weilings. Household Edi-tion. Uniform with the Novels. Com-piets in Svois. With new Fortrail. For rol. L2 This addition, which many additions, these adding it, with the novels, the chospest and most adding it, with the novels, the chospest and most complete Thackarsy in the market.

TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind. ankind. Uve Culture. 2 vols.....

mplate Thackaray in the markes. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggstry Diamond, &c. 2. Paris, and Iriab Stokeh-Booka, &c. 4. Shola, Storkehas, Bensis Durai, &c. 4. Four Georges, Homorists, &c. 5. Oatherine, Christmas Books, and Unry printed Floces.

THAXTER'S (MES. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals...... 1.50

TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov 1.00 ents of Science for Unscientific Peo-

Programming of Science for Uniceasiting Pro-light and Electricity -Hours of Exercises in the Alps. Bourn of Exercises in the Alps. Testa as a Kode of Motion. On Sound Radiant Reat. Forms of Water Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tynal. 34

VOYSEY (Rev. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vols I. and V. each. Vols III. IV. and YI. each. The Voysey Appeal Voysey's Defence at York.

WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Gardon. 100 Sannierings. 149 Back-Log Studies. 2.69

WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion ...... 1.50 Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols........ 6.09

numer in

Washington and the newsitation We Birnet's (Mas. A. D. T.) & Summer Leale Goldthwaite's Life. We Girls: A Home Story Real Folks The Other Girls. The Other Girls. 1.50

WHITTIEB'S (JOHN G.) Poema. 2 vola .... 4.00 Child Life...... 8.00

ADDRESS INDEX. HE

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

CERVANTES' Don Quinote ...... 1.50

OLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great

OLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education ..... 1.25

CONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Filgrimage...... 1.75

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three more pupils, girls or boys, over thirteen, will be received into the family of the subscrib er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, SHERBORN, MARS MASS.

564

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-srinding MILLS. Teu Sisten. Also Cotton-Beed Hullers. Illustrat-ed pamphets free. Address Sisss. Also Cotton-Been Indicate ed pamphlets free. Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER, 181 East Front Street, Clacinasti, Ohio.

H. H. CHANDLER.

W. S. EDES.

D. M. LORD.

H. H. CHANDLER & CO., NEWSPAPER

ADVERTISEMENT BROKERS. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

RELIGIOUS and AGRICULTURAL NEWSPA-PERS a specialty. Complete files for inspection of advertisers. Elists sent upon application. Send for estimates. A L T M A N ' S NEW ADVERTISEMENT!

M. ALTMAN & CO.

Birth Ave. and Minetcenth St., N. Y.

Birth Ave, and Hinsteenth St., N. Y. MORRIS ALTMAN begs to state to his old reindes and patrons that he has made extensive reductions in his various departments, and ear-neesly calls attention to the following quota-tions. The fullest astifaction is guaranteed in werer insistence, and all goods not suiting will be exchanged, or the money returned in fullis. M. B.-Is order to wall, a P. O. order, draft, or repress sent C. O. D. Backages can be sent by mail at the rate of two cenis for every four ounces, and one cent for every additional two counces or fraction thereof ander four pounds. A Co., H. B. Claffin A Co. E. S. Jaffray & Co., J. B. Spellman & Co. and all the leading houses in New York city; also to D. M. Bennet, Editor of the Traft. Stety-real is and Liberals, and especially to the readers of this paper, as to our responsibility, untegrity, &c.

Notion Department.

goods incidental to this department, not in comprised, are in stock, and will be fur-ed at equally low prices.

Clark's O. N. T. Spool Cotton, warranted, at 68c per doz. Clark's Cotton in black spools at 8%c. per doz. Brooks's Glazed Cotton, white, black and col-

68c, per dos. 's white, black and colored Cotton at 58c

Costes a white, black and colored Cotton at SEC. Determined the black and colored Cotton at SEC. Determined and Belding's black and colored Sewing Sik, 100 yard spoola, at 10c, per spool. Corticell's black and colored Button Hois Twist at 2c, per spool. Knitting Cotton, white and colored, at 9c, per hall.

Mains, our set of the set of the English Pin Books, black and white assorted, at its.

at 15c. Mourning Pins, in all sizes, at 6c. and upwards. Buttons of every description, in all the leading styles, greatly reduced, from 10c. to $1 per dor. Black spu colored Alpaca Braids, 6 7d. pieces,

The stream of the second secon

Millinery Department.

One of the largest and the most clogant and original assortiments of imported novelles to be found in this dty is now in stock, including the following specialties. All goods solling lower than any other house:-

Indowing specialities. All goods sailing lower than any other house:A beautiful assortment of Fronch Flowers, in Process Drugs Trimmers, Sc., Drugs Trimmers, Sc., Drugs Drugs, Prost Drugs, Testhers and Wings.
A fine assortment of Pompons, Feathers and Wings.
All the newest shadeoor Ostrich and Plume de All the newest shadeoor Social upwards.
All the newest shadeoor Social and Plume de Ostron 25c. apwards.
All the newest shadeoor Social and Plume de Company.
All the newest shadeoor Social and Plume de Ostron 25c. apwards.
All the newest shadeoor Social and Plume de Company.
All the newest shadeoor Social and Vet Ornamonts at the lowerst prices.
Biegant Ostrich Plumes, all the latest shades, $25 and upwards.
Pine French Ostrich Tips, in all shades, $5c. and upwards.

Pine French Ostrich Tips, in all shades, $5c. and upwards. The latest shapes in Felt Hats at Soc. Elegant imported Felt Hats, bet squality, at §1.15. Drab Felt Hats, in the latest and most fashion-able styles. at $5c. and upwards. Silk Velvet H. (ts. of our own importation, in all qualities at great burgains. Evening Bennets, elegantly trimmed, from $20 to $25.

Logist, boundes, segandy frimmed, from $%0 Carriage Bonneste, crustite in design and qual-ity, from $15 to $50. Ladies' and Misses' Bonnets, for Misses' and Children's wear, in all shapes and shades, ready frimmed, ni steat styles, from $5 to $15. Infants' Caps in all the new siyles at great bar-gains, from ads to order at lowest prices. Mourning Goods made to order at the earliest bottes.

Bh

Colored Trimming Silks, in all shades, $1.38 and SL-20. Colored Dress Silks, in all shades, $1.39 and $1.40. Solored Dross Silks, intest styles, $1.25, $1.30, $2, $2.50. Mark Statest .00. Satins, beautiful lustre, at $1.50, $1.75 ad $2. Colored Section, all fashionable anades, $1.50, $2, and $2.26. Black and Colored Yelvets at $1.50, $2, $7.50 and $3. Silk Cloak Velvets at $5, $6, $6 and $10. Black Yelvetsen, splendid manufacture, at 60c., 75c. and $1, worth $1.50.

That Sashes in every shade and color. Sash Ribbons in all colors and whiths, from Soc. and upwards. Colored Fringed Sashes, all the new shades, at very low prices.

Laces and Embroideries. These goods will be found extraordinary bar ains, and include:-

Hamburg edging at 10c. per yd. and upwards. Real Gulpure Laces from 38c. per yd. and up-Biad Thread Lacas from 20c. per yd, and up-Valeociennes Edging at 5c. per yd. and upwards. Patent Valenciennes Edging at 5c. per yd. and apwards. Beaded Black Yak Laces at 25c. per pd. and up Black Yak Insertion at 38c. per yd. and upwards. Bias & Yak Laces at 18c, per yd. and upwards. Ulnny Laces at 16c, per yd. and upwards. Colored Blonds Laces at 10c, per yd. and upwards. White Blonde Laces at 6c, per yd. and upwards. Spaniah Lace for Scarfs at 50c, per yd. and up Spanish Lace for Scalar and Soc. per yd. and Black Lace Vells, all patterns, 50c. per yd. and upwards. Black Silk Fringe at 13c, per yd, and upwards. Black Silk Beaded Fringe at 35c, per yd, and up marks our pessed fringe at 35c, per yd. and up-wards. Black Silk Galoon at 5c, per yd. and upwards. Black Bullon Fringe at 20c, per yd. and upwards. Black Besded Glups at 20c, per yd. and upwards. Large assortment in Bamburg Embroideries. Large at the flamburg Insertion at 6c, per yd. Swins Medailion Embroideries, great variety, at vary low prices. Lace Tidies, in every variety, at 10c. and up-wards.

Ladies' Underclothing.

A valuable reduction in prices has taken place in this department, and we emphatically state that no other bouse can compete with the gen-eral inducements we offer. We quote the fol-lowing as samples, which for superiority of workmanning, quality and price are not to be schelled in this city:-

Hostery, &c.

Ladies' iron frame Hose, excellent quality, 2cc. per pair. Ladien' Fuil Regular-made Hose at 28c. per pair, Ladies' Hull Begular-made Hose at 28c. per pair and upwards. Ladies' Etripod Hose, every quality, 48c. per pair and upwards. Ladies' Cashmere and Woolen Hose at lowest price. Children's White and Colored Hose, in every Style. Children's White and Colored Hose, in every Style. Genta' Fuil, Regular ½ Hose, cheapest in the city, at 22c. per pair. Genta' Murino and Cashmere Hose at 43c. and Upwards. adies' iron frame Hose, excellent quality, 25c upwards. Genta' Shaker Socks, not to be excelled, at 14c.

per pair. Ladies' Hemstitched Handkerchiefs at 12c, and upwards. Gents' Linea Handkerchiefs, superior quality, 18c, and upwards. Gents' Henstliched Handkerchiefs, all linen, 39c. and upwards.

We have just received a fine assortment of Ladies' and Genta' Kid Gloves, including the fol-lowing specialities. Every pair ripping or tear-ing will be replaced on application:-Single-Sutton Black and Colored Kid Gloves, 50c.

Single-Button Biscz and Guirroz Ald Unores, soc. per pair. Next grade, better, warranted, 2-buttoned, Séc. Per pair. "Alfman", Kid Glove, pur own make, in black and all fashionable shades, 2-buttoned at $1.23

Silks. Silks. Ack Silks of scollard quality at $1, $1.19 and Lis. Silks of scollard quality at $1, $1.9 and Lis. Silks of scollard quality at $1, $1.9 and Lis. Silks of scollard quality at $1, $1.9 and Lis. Silks of scollard quality at $1, $1.9 and Sch Silks, hetter and wider, at $1.33, $1.50 and $2, and grive at $1.50 per pair. Sch Silks, very fich, $1,30 for $2, and grive at $1.39 per pair. Scollard and grive at $1.39 per pair. Scollard and grive at $1.39 per pair. Scollard and grive at $1.30 per pair. Scollard at $1.50 per pair. Scollard at Gents and Children, at the lowest prices, from 25c, to $1.00 per pair. Gents' fine French Dogskin Gloves, every color, at $1.29 per pair. Gents' due French Gloves, excellant wear, Mc. per pair. CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT. CONSTANT state ranted. No capital required. Paricular and valuable azarpia seat free. Address with six-cent return stamp. C. ROSS. Williamsburg, N.Y.

Gents' Furnishing Goods.

FREE DISCUSSION

I is held at HOSPITALLER HALL, So Waking, ton Street, Bonton, every Sunday, Si Waking, 2% and 7% P.M. All their relations in the Edition Folitical, and Social interests of mine facilities and index Tracts are for sale every Snaky a Hospitalier Hain.

NEW

"COSMIC PHILOSOPHY"!

Price, post-paid, $6.00. THE INDEX,

G. L. HENDERSON & CO.

BANKEBS,

LEROY, MINN. Branch Office, 127 Broadway, N. T.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full longth. It is full size, it is sumowih and elastic, and is equally adapted to hand or mechine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be main for use, The ladies will always find the lin-rela Silk exactly as represented. Bury spool is warranted, and the manufacture's ame indelibly branded on every spool. Call

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cent. interest, or

Investments in Real Estate in Chicago and visinity,

If judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPE STREET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Scitte Loans. Firstolass securities always on hand. Is-terest and principal collected without charg-Real Estate Investments made on commission or on sharce; large paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

HOMA

SACRED QUARTETS.

A work just issued, but which he been many years in preparation, and of which the suchor may well be proud. The collection cannot fail to take the ironi rank in church music, and be used where the best music is appreciated. Without being on the whole very difficit, if is in perfect take, and for larger choin, for musical families, and musical societies, the book has a special adeptation.

Price in Boards, $9.50. Cleth, $3.00.

POSTHUMOUS WORKS OF

L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

14 Plano Places of Distinguished Merit.

Marurka Rustique, 15 Chant de Guerre, 1.0 Caprice Polka, $1.00 Marguerite Walts, 5 Sourenir de Cuba, 15 Rayons d'Aur 20 El Cocoye, 20,00 V. to Oberon 200 Celebre Tarentelle,1.50 hands, 200 Souvenir de Lina, 1.00 Ava Maria (Vocu), 5 Scherno Romantique, $1.00. All hooks and multi sant suttaid, for

All books and music sent, post-paid, for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

manua Google

BONTON. CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.

TH BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

SOLE EDITION.

S

OF

frand

for it.

Т

(JUST OUT.)

FISKE'S

1 Tremont Place, Boston.

OHN

J

For sale by

This department is replate with a splendidly isoried stock, and our prices are such as under ill any other establishment where quality is in-uded sell any other establishment where quality is in-fielded. 60 dog. Genis' Merino Shirks and Drawers, Soc. 51.69 and upwards. 51.69 and upwards. 61.69 and upward in the sell of the sell of the sell of Warnautta Mulla, fine Linen Bosoms, open or closed at back, at $12.09 per 50 doz. Extra-fine, perfectly-fitting Dress Shirts, New York Mills Meslin, with Richardson's best linen bosoms, made in any style to order, at $14 00 per 5 doz.

bosonns, made us and the set of t Windsor Scarts, best quality, at 89c. and upwards. Genta' Wide and Colored Ties in endless variety at 45C. Genta' Collars and Cnffs in all the latest styles. Genta' Collars, pure linen, latest styles. at $2.00 per doz. Genta' Columbia 3-ply linen Collars, at $1.90 per doz. Gents' turn-down Collars at $1.75 per doz. Gents' 3-ply Cuffs at 25c, per pair. Gents' Sf. James Cuffs, 3-ply, all linen, at 31c per pair. enta' Elmwood Paper Collars at 23c. per box. enta' Superior Paper Collars at 23c. per box. enta' commou Paper Collars at any price per P box. A large assortment of Boys' Merino Shiris and Drawers as 50c. Ladles' Morocco Pocket Books from 16c. and up-wards. Ladles' real Russian Leather Pocket Books from 50c. and upwards. Ladles' and Missee' Merino Vests and Drawers, all prices.

Branch Omes, 127 Breadway, R. T. Money Invested in First Mortgage on hap proved Farms in Minnesota and Jone, rus-ning three to five years, with Componintent Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annaly in advance, or ten per cent, paid semi-annually advance, or the per cent. per annum, annally, free of expense to the Lonner. 10 per cent. paid on receipt of money at the Bank, or in New York, ull invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circular. Toilet Department, Jewelry, &c.

Tooth Brushes, excellent to best, from loc, and wards. Nall Brushes, every style, from 13c, and upwards. Hair Brushes, every style, from 23c, and up-wards.

Wards. Dressing Combs from 10c. and upwards. Hand Mirrors, elegant designs, from $1c. and up wards. Twrtolse-Shell Back Combs from 25c. and up-wards. Ladies' Rubber Belt Buckles from 25c, and up-tadies' Jot Belt Buckles from 25c. and upwards. Ladies' Jot Eatrings, latest design, from 10c, and unwards upwards. Ladies' real Garnet Sets from 38c, and npwards. Ladies' Bracelets, of all kinds, from 38c, and up-wards.

Ladies' Deaded Beits from 75c. and upwards. Ladies' Leather Beits from 75c. and upwards. Ladies' Leather Beits from 75c. and upwards. Ladies' Eather Beits from 45c. and upwards. Ladies' Leather Satchels, in newest styles, $1.50 and upwards. Ladies' real Russian Leather Satchels, $4.50 and unwards.

upwards. Boys' and Childrens' full, regular-made Shirts and Drawers, at 71c. and upwards. Children's Merino Dresses, all sizes, $1.25 and Children's Merido Lucesce, as and upwards. Ladies' Shawi-Sirapa from 45c and upwards. Children's School flags from 81 to 88c. Ladies' Ties from 35c, and upwards. Ladies' Linen Collars from 5c, per pair and up-ladies' Linen Cuffs from 5c, per pair and up-

Ladies' Neck Buffing from 15c. and upwards, Ladies' Undersleeves from 45c. and upwards, Perfumery, &c.

Lily-White Face Powder at 25c, per box, Imported Face Powders at 21c, per package, Lobin's Powder at 15c, per package, Wenck'a Florida Water at 36c, per bottle, Wenck'a celebrated Perfumes at 17c, per bottle, Thurstou's Tooth Powders at 17c, per bottle, Thasline Pomads for the bair at 61c, per bottle, Paseline Pomads for the bair at 61c, per bottle, Perfumeries from 18c, to 46c, per bottle, Sosps.

Tollet Boaps of every description from 5c. per cake and upwards. Honey Sonp at 7c. per cake. Olycorine Soap in tails at 11c. per ball. Drown Windar Soap at 8c. per cake. Transparent Soap at 11c. per cake. Transparent Soap at 11c. per cake. Tas Soap at 11c. per cake. Sath Soap at 10c. per cake. Castile Soap at 10c. per cake. Silver Soap, for cleaning silver and giase, at 7c. per cake.

Ribbons of all styles, colors and widths at prices that will actonish customers. In Velveta, Velveteens, and all kindred goods, we have a full stock, from which we cut on blas at wholesale prices.

we have a full stock, from which we cut on blas at wholesale prices. Jet and Gilt Exritogr. Fins and Bracelets from 25c, per pail, or per set, as high as §5, according to quality and design. We have on band 3000 places of wornted, ball and twisted Pringes, now so much in use, in the latest styles, in all colors, which we offer at the latest styles, in all colors, which we offer at the latest styles in sile colors, which we offer at the Pringes, at presents on much in vegue, which we offer at $2c, to 30c, per yard.

we offer at 25c. to 30c. per yard. We offer at 25c. to 30c. per yard. We guarantee that, in the storclass of our own judgment, upon receiving as near a description of what is desired as possible, and the price willing to be paid, we will give entire satisfaction, or re-fund the money. Goode may be returned to us c. 0. D. T will personally attend to all orders coming persong the Liberal papers, and having for many years past filled orders for the readers of this paper, my judgment may be relied upon in ze-"All youds not mentioned herein, including such as may be entirely out of our line, will be as judi-cloudy selected and as readily sent as those en-merated, and in every case I wills and Gentle-men's Clofting may be confidently ordered, on describing the style required, the measurement, and pool the price dealred to pay. I make my-solf personality reposable for the satiafactory excition of all orders. Address of the firm of

MORRIS ALTMAN,

M. ALTMAN & CO.,

6th Ave. and 19th St., N. Y. City. NEW YORK Nov. 11.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents

WHOLE NO. 257.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1874. For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other societisation property shall notonger be arempt from just taration. 2. We demand that the employment of chapians in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, mylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

5. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall coace.

4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

abip, aball be probibled.
6. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts aball wholly coses.
8. We demand that the judicial eath in the coarts and in all other departments of the government shall be abolished, and that simple address at that simple a site and penalties of perjury shall be established in its steed.
T. We demand that all laws directive in infinite and penalties of perjury aball be established in its steed.

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ng the observance of Bunday as the Babbath shall be re-saled.

peased. B. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogaled, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.

equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceeded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfiltedingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land;

ART. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be THE LIB-ART. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-oure practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-iam" throughout the country, and especially in —: Also, as soon as five hundred such Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delogates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be hereaf-est called, in order to co-operate with all the liberals of the country in securing the needed reforms. ART. 3.—The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, addresses, cuoremtions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, address.

nd right. Anr. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a wo-thirds vote of the members.

ART. 5.-Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ment.

Mant. Ant. 6.-The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Beorelary, a Treasurer, and an Excen-tive Committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ar-Spikels delegates to the Nacunal Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together.

Aut. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PEOPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTIGLE I. BEGTION 1.—Congress shall make no law respecting an es-tablishment of roligion, or favoriag any particular form of right on or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or soridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dor-ernment for a redress of grievances. BEGTION 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an establishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any State; and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the order formance of any public or private daty, or ren-dered incompetent to give eridence in any court of isw or on the subject of religion. BEGTION 2.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-risions of the second section of this Article by appropri-ate legislation.

.

GLIMPSES.

DISBAELI has been elected rector of the University of Glasgow, by a vote of 700. Mr. Emerson had 500 votes.

WE ARE glad to be informed that the report of the desecration of Thomas Paine's grave is wholly incorrect, and that we were mistaken in our recent statement to that effect. The facts are given in another column.

BISMARCK has notified the Vatican that, unless the usual forms are strictly observed in the election of a new Pope, Germany will refuse to recognize him. The death of Pius Ninth may be the signal for great disturbance in the political world.

THE ONLY sure way to secure accurate and "honest" lists for the Unitarian Year Book, in which no minister or society shall be included that is unwilling to profess "Unitarian Christianity," is to send a cir cular to every name on each list, putting the ques-tion plumply. Who doubts that the authorities will adopt this business-like method of purifying those tainted lists?

THE BUILDING COMMITTEE of the new Paine Hall, in this city, will please accept our thanks for a fine colored lithograph of it. This noble monument to a noble man promises to be a great ornament to Boston. It is now hoped to dedicate it on Paine's birthday, January 29, 1875; and all friends of the Investigator may well congratulate it on the prospect of inhabiting such a "home."

UNDER the stimulus of Mr. Gladstone's recent anti-papal manifesto, the Roman Catholics held a meeting in London on the eighteenth of November, at which they affirmed their civil loyalty, despite the decree of Papal infallibility. None the less is it certain that this decree strikes at the root of the civil supremacy of the State all over the world. If this meeting had any sincerity, it meant a rejection of the new dogma, and Old Catholiciam may yet break out in England.

MR. CONWAY wonders why the old-school Unitarians in America should refuse to fraternize with the free religious movement, when in England the patriarchs of Unitarianism, Martineau and Vance Smith, have planted themselves on the broad ground. But Martineau, at least, is not an old-school Unitarian. The truth is that Protestantism can only propagate itself by fission, and the two tendencies in Unitarian development are coming gradually to a rupture,

THIS ABGUMENT against a local heaven is adduced by a correspondent: "God cannot be in a place called heaven. If he were, the inhabitants of opposite sides of the globe could not point their fingers towards him at the same time." The conclusion is truer than the premises. Two men on opposite sides of the globe can easily point in the same direction, one up and the other down. The difficulty would consist in determining which of the two should point up.

A DESPATCH from New York dated November 9 stated that the "society coopers" in that city lay in wait that morning for the non-society men, assaulted them, and seriously injured several. Nothing could be more unjustifiable than such conduct, which is mob-tyranny of the worst possible type, and necessarily destroys that sympathy which laboring men wish to receive from the community at large, and would receive increasingly but for outbreaks of this thoroughly bad spirit.

A MR. MCKENZIE having said in the Boston Herald that "no power on earth can help a man who is a drunkard, unless the man has become a true and earnest Christian," Mr. W. F. Jamieson replies in the same paper that there are 100,000,000 of Mahometans who are among the most temperate people on the globe; that "the drunkest nations are the Christian nations"; that "there are thousands of infidels in every land who are temperate," and so forth; and he signs his pithy letter, "Yours for more temperance and less religious cant."

.

Some of the most curious investigations of modern science are explained by Professor Marcy in his Ant-mal Mechanism (just published in Appleton's "International Scientific Series") which gives the philosophy of terrestrial and aerial locomotion in animals, birds, and insects. By means of the myograph, muscular contractions can be so exactly registered as to show the disturbance of the muscle in motion; and the instrument has been made to reveal very interesting results, representing to the sys the peculiar nature of motions which are far too fine or rapid for ocular observation.

MR. JOHN FIBRE, assistant librarian of Harvard College, who has recently spent some time in Europe completing his preparations, has just published through Osgood & Co., in two volumes of nearly five hundred pages each, his Outlines of Cosmic Philosophy. Mr. Fiske is a follower of Herbert Spencer, though by no means a slavish ons; and the considerable reputation he attained as a lecturer at the University, fairly earned by large ability and indefatigable industry, will make his work eagerly sought by all who wish to keep abreast of the times. It is understood that he enjoyed the society of Mr. Spencer while in England, and this fact will increase the curiosity of the thinking public to read the book, By and by we propose to analyze some portions of it, but must now content ourself with this bare men-Hon

THE FAMOUS Latin line, "Homo sum : humani nil a me alienum puto,"-which is so often misquoted and referred erroneously to others than the real author (Terence, Heauton-timorumenos, I, 1, 25), - is dwarfed to Church uses by the Catholic Review, which thus mutilates it and takes it as its standing motto: "Catholicus sum: nihil Catholicum a me altenum puto." The grand sentiment of the line is even more foully murdered than its metre and its syntax. Terence makes Chremes says, "I am a man; nothing human do I count alien to me." The Review says, "I am a Catholic; nothing Catholic do I count alien to me." Ont of its own mouth does the Church of Rome thus stand condemned, in the estimation of all who can distinguish a magnificent thought from its miserable sectarian counterfeit, Could there be a more striking proof that Romanism. (like all forms of Protestantism) makes a sect of its fellowship by "cutting off" a small part of the human race in an exclusive church ?

A LETTER from a thoroughly trustworthy correspondent in England has this interesting information, which we are authorized to share with our readers : "Bradlaugh has staggered many of our Moderates by the number of votes he polled at Northampton. He has cut the party in half there, and given a lesson richly deserved. The result will be that at the next general election he must be adopted by the Liberal party. He is a man who deserves success on account of his genius and axtraordinary courage, and would have had it long ago, were it not for the affected ploty of English society, and the unfair conduct of the London daily press, which, having exhausted calumny, has now resorted to a 'conspiracy of ai-None of the London daily papers (we have lence.' not a single Liberal daily organ) reported a line of any of his speeches at Northampton. Yet next to Gladstone and Bright, he is the most eloquent man in the country, and has more brain and power than any other working-class leader."

Google

566

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 26, 1874.

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

BT. LOUTS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Scoretaries. BOSTON, MANS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcoinb, G. A. Bacon, Scoretaries. JENTREBON, OBIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Gaussian, Complexity, Compl Bocretary. BAN JOSE, CAL-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, Represented Becretary. TOLEDO, IOWA .- J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. N. J. - John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, VIER Becretary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEE.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easter, Scoretary. OLATHE, KAN-S. B. S. Wilson, Fresident; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. OLATER, KAX.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Becretary. Mon.-W. B. Bill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. EmemoryLLE, MicH.-A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary. Osciola, Mo.-E. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. Beartisar, Barra, Mr.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary, Barta, Mr.-Fresident, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman, Wasnisorow, D.O.-George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary, Wasnisorow, D.O.-Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-ST. JOSEFFS, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Becretary. Eav Claiks, Wis.-President, S. J. Diokson; Secretary, W. Kennedy. BALEBO, MD.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. New ORLEARS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallso. BAY Crrv, MING.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEARSTELD, PA. -S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. BAUK CITY, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Reprint President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. Auroura, Wis. - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vaux, Secretary.

(For THE INDEX.)

MMAY BEAD BEFORE THE CONVENTION OF THE FREE BELIC IOUS ASSOCIATION, AT PROVIDENCE, OCTOBER 30, 1874.

The Spirit : ectar anism.

BY WILLIAM J. POTTER.

<text><text><text><text>

ship; for salvation is of the Jews;" or this: "He that believath not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on. him." Yet, in spite of such passages as these, it seems to me that an imper-tial reader of the New Testament must decide that the two leading and dominant characters in the his-torical drama of which it is a record—Jeaus and Paal-were broad, liberal, inclusive, and free from sectarian bigoty in their aims; and that Christianity in its origin, whatever it may have become since, was, in reference to the age when it appeared and es-pecially in reference to Judaism, a grand movement in behalf of the freedom, progress, and elevation of the religious sentiment—a declaration of the emanci-pation of religion from the thraldom of written cov-enants and instituted forms, and an attempt to recon-nect it directly with universal springs of thought and life. The prevailing spirit of Jesus seems to have been well expressed in the parable of the Good Samarlian, in which, in opposition to the pricet and Levite of Orthodox Judaism, he makes the despised and heretical citizen of Samaria the moral hero who has attracted the world's admiration. This, too, from the early records of Christianity, shows the cath-olicity of its primitive spirit: "I perceive that Godi with him." Mohammedanism, of all religions per-haps, has relied most on human reason, and appealed most strongly to the practical understanding. Yet Mohammedanism in its origin was catholic in mat-ters of opinion. Said Mohammed, "Try to eace in good works: when ye shall return unto God, he will tell as to that in which [in opinion] ye have dif-fered." Buddhas, or an early disciple, "Honor your own faith, and do not shader that of others." And this is more certainly from Buddha himself: "There is but one law for all, and its grace, like heaven, affords room for all."

but one law for all, and its grace, like heaven, affords room for all." But this high tide of fresh moral life and spiritual enthusiasm in which religions have their origin after a time naturally subside: and then the spirit of sec-tarianism sets in. The wonderful tide—which was yet wholly natural—having become a historical fact, the posterity of the people whom it floated to new abores and enriched with new possessions fall to debating as to how it came, and whence it origi-nated, and what the form and dimensions of its wares, and whether they rolled in this direction more powerfully than in that, and where was the point of highest flood; and they turn to inquiring whether it cannot be brought back,—whether some special homage to the beliefs and ceremonies it has left behind may not invite its return. Thus con-founding these incidental results, these leavings, with the causal spirit from which they came, they in-stitute over them, through the establishment of a priestly class, a special guardianship, with the hope of thereby keeping connection with their vital source.

stitute over them, through the establishment of a priestly class, a special guardianship, with the hope of thereby keeping connection with their vital source. But these resultant doctrines and ceremonies are several and different. The treasures that have been let be same thing, too, from different opints of view, and put a different value upon it, according to the sepecial number of these traditional beliefs and ceremonias get into controveray on their relative merit. One thinks this been which has most vital connection with the original hop conflict that both of these zaalow are wrong, and that both of these zaalow are wrong, and that both of their respective champions, and that nothing but an atterly different point of view, and that nothing but an atterly different point of view wrongly interpreted by their respective champions, and that nothing but an atterly different point of view will reveal the real nature of the phenomens. Still another, again, are that it was not belief, but some ceremony, one deposit of ritual that was made, marked the high-water line of the original flow, and that this is therefore the most precious thing remaining; while another, again, are that it was not belief nor ritual, but the example of perfect personal character, that was left high above everything else, and that is the mother, again, any that is was not belief out some ceremonies a stall it indicates the way by which the original ide is to be persuaded back, or vital communication be kept with the power that caused it. Dig own, says one, beneath this deposit of doctrine— and you will surely strike a spring which connects will dow. See, says another, the bead of the signed the religion. The sector where rest character of the memorable parsonage connected with the kigh tide of life, or no healing the instrume of the human mind, after the condition of originat is hard the strik of sectarianism begins origination have one will dow. See, says another, this beadify in the sport will dow the sport where rest to keep connected wil according as this problem of means is settled in one second ing as this problem of means is settled in one way or another. The first exhibition of this sectarian spirit in Christianity that left any very serious results was do dividing question was whether the nature of Jean was of the same substance with God or only of set-iar substance. Though previous to this, even as early as the first part of the second century, then had been a vigorous dispute between the Eastern and Westarn churches as to whether the rise of the "Lord's Supper" should be administered on the fea-ter and the end of the month, —that is, on the day previous, which was the day of the Jewish Pasora; those who argued for the latter maintaining that is Jeaus had taken the place in sacrifice of the Packal and been, which was the day of the Jewish Pasora; those who argued for the latter maintaining that is Jeaus had taken the place in sacrifice of the Packal and to the Jewis, so the rite of commutic which celebrated his sacrifice ought to be on the task day conceive that controversy upon them could have be come so bitter,—in the latter case almost realing the the churches as under, and in the former leading to probably, email questions, and we can have conceive that controversy upon them could have be come so bitter,—in the latter case almost realing the traditions and authority of the Christian religion, doubtless paved the way for that separation which could any the regard to a doctrine and a creas-ny, as to which of two views would best preserve day traditions and authority of the Christian religion, doubtless paved the way for that separation which could ease paved the way for that separation which eleventh ceatury, between the Roman and the first churches. Small questions, indeed, on which the hastile attitude to each other, ou questions quits as small. Whether baptism shall be by spiribiling at immersion, whether 'regenerater' is a proper wai have probably do not know what these latter through a baptismal service for infants, whether' 'autifice at words mean', yet they represent the most ea The which is realing an important property interpreter in details; and when a religion has reached, in its historic care, that point where its existence and authority have to be defended by the logical understanding that point where, its original self-moving energy having departed, its defenders are trying to recall it by my-terms of doctrine and ritual, -details will be mani-field according to the point of view from which dep are seen, and small differences as to method and me chinery will be regarded as involving momentous possible to the point of view from which dep are seen, and small differences as to method and me chinery will be regarded as involving momentous possible to the point of view from which dep are seen, and small differences as to method and me chinery will be regarded as involving momentous possible to the process at the statisticon, in the book, in the memorable person-the vital religion which the present age must secure, -then it is aque-tion of the utmost importance just what is our point of view, and what is exactly the right method di reaching, the treasure; and the smallest variation, from the true method for establishing a connec-tion, may vitiate and nullify the whole procedure. But while the spirit of sectariansim is to be con-demned when brought to the measure of an absolute with a certain value. At least, the eristence of sects is not the worst evil that can befall religion. Better, for gasets of Protestantism than the mental stansists and uniformity in respect to opinion which are the section of Kome. The fact of Christedon and uniformity in respect to opinion which is the section is balatory, which has been a most activity in religious balatory, which has been a most activity in religious balatory, which has been a most activity in religious balatory, which has been a most being into secta representa a certain intelletant cuerce: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical elemant: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical elemant: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical elemant: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical elemant: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical elemant: The quite cuatomary to attach values to secta for physical of religious tomperament and coalilies of religious tomperament, and estimate physical elemant is presented to certain automary physical elemant is presented to be attached to the physical elemant is physical elemant is physical physical elemant is presented to be elemant physical elemant is physical elemant is physical physical elemant

mana Google

<text> that it is better for the Roman Catholics in this coun-try to keep the religion which they have, and faithful-ly observe it, than for the same people to have no re-ligion. But I do not therefore believe that this form formation the line of advance, and they serve to some extent to stimulate a healthful competition in mental inquiry. But then it is to be observed that it is not the sectarian spirit that has produced the sects, but rath-er the Protestant spirit of receinquiry. The sectarian spirit holds them spart after they are formed, but does not form them. And while the sects, as being the product of the principle of the right of private judgement, have a certain worth, of the sectarian spirit, which sustains the sects after they are organ-ized and keeps them in hostile attitude to each other, but little good can be said. So far from acting in conjunction with the spirit of free inquiry and inde-pendent judgment, it becomes their energy. Not what is true and right, but what accords with the creed and policy of the sectarian spirit; and this is always an evil and corrupting standard of action. Coleridge well said, "He that loves Christianity bet-ter than trath will soon love his own sect or party better than that his is own sect or party better than Christianity, and will end by loving him-self better than all." And this indicates what is really the first and most contral evil of sectarianism. It is that some system better than Christianity, and will end by loving him-self better than all." And this indicates what is really the first and most central evil of sectarianism. It is that some system or method or special revelation of truth is made the end instead of truth itself. The sects dispute as to the proper doctrine, or form, or ecclesiastical polity; but they all agree that the doctrine or form or polity, whatever it be, is designed to establish and keep con-nection with a past epoch of spiritual life, in order that from its reservoirs the spiritual wants of to-day may be supplied. All this debate and strife about dogma and ceremony must cease, therefore, when people shall come to see that, though that past epoch is connected by the natural relations of historical asequence to the present spiritual life of the world is dependent upon it. The great question with the Christian sects is how they shall contrive to reach that spiritual spring, and convey its abundant waters to thirsting lips to-day; and over the answer to that question they debate and contend with bitter speech and temper, striving to undermine and thwart each other's projects, and each to turn the other's work to its own advantage. But let them be taught that, though the rare mental and spiritual conditions of the age produced an unwonted tide of spiritual life, yet those conditions cannot be restored nor that spring reopened; and that there is no need they should be, because the resources of Almighty Power, not then exhausted, are as fresh to-day as they ever were, and deliver themselves under new conditions to supply the wants of every generation of men,-let the sects learn this, and the fuel that mainly feeds their sectarian logic and strife would be taken from them. Show the world that religion does not depend on establishing a conduit by theological engineering back to Judes, to the well where Jesus sat, but that every man, and woman, and child to-day, in the spot where they are, stand in the midst of theliving forces of Deity, and by the natural laws of physical and mental life may come into vital relations with those forces,—show mankind that beneath the common soil on which the commonest man's feet are now planted are springs which are connected with divine reservoirs, and which, if he but sink there his well, will send up the waters that are for everlasting life,— show mankind how vital religion depends not on the preservation of a past record, nor memory of a past epoch, but on the establishing of healthy relations with present forces of divinity, and they will sond fud something noblet to live for than theological dis-pute, and sectarian competition, and ecclesiastical conflict. And from this central, primary evil of the sectarian means. The sectarian beliefs and objects being as-sumed to be true, anything for sect becomes the mot-to. And so the sectarian man comes to have a sec-tarian conscience. He fellowships only those who are of the household of his own faith. His sympa-thics, affections, benevolent impulses are bounded by the walls of his own church. He may be naturally humane, kind; but his humanity is warped and checked by his sectarian partisanship. He becomes zeaious for a fellow-churchman instead of zealous for a fellow-man. He loves his church, and not man-kind; will defend dogmas, though he suffer human rights to be destroyed. This kind of character is happly passing away. But I think we have all seen ouch persons, and may still find them without diffi-culty,-those in whom zeal for sect seems to have eaten up or repressed the finer humanities of their natures. It is a matter of recent history how per-sistently the sectarianism of the churches stood in the way of the antislavery reform. The Church, in fact, has never led in any social reform that has the good of universal humanity at beart. The sects are too boxy with paying tithes of mint has as the good of universal humanity at beart. The sects are too boxy with paying tithes of sint, and anise, and cum-min to take upon them the good Samaritan's service. This narrow-heartedness of sectarianism shows itself in small things as in great. I sven know of a man, a zealous Methodist and a good carpenter, who has no shavings in his carpenter's shop for a Unitarian boxehold. Thus it is that social and personal an-tagonism, and even malice, easily follows sectarian biants. Scoleridge said, that he who begins by lov-ing his sect better than truth will end in moral beinkness.

<text>

Think, as oct better than troth will end in moral beliashness. But it is said there will always be sects in the world; and it is said in a kind of despairing tone, as if it were useless to alm at anything else. Men will always differ in religious opinion, it is said, and this difference of opinion must express itself in different ecclesiastical organization. Yes, there will always be sects and the split of sectarianism, nutil people shall come to see that character is higher than creed, and a holy life better than a holy ceremony; and until it shall be learned that religious organization can safely rest on the natural aspiration of the human heart after truth and virtue. Be it ours to help society forward to this blessed consummation; to the day when the highest creed shall be faith, not merely in truth discovered, but in the pursuit of truth, and the highest object of a church shall be to promote the love of truth as the finest possible adoration of God, and the practice of truth as the best possible service to man.

(For THE INDEX.)

A NEW METHOD OF TRACHING PRENCH.

[For THE INDEX.] A NEW METTHOD OF TRACHING FRENCE. I shall name it the talking system. I shall call it French yeast of a very superior quality, that never fails to set the atoms of the dullest brain and the slowest tongue in motion, when once introduced. Prof. Surveur, who is the author of this remarka-ble school, starts with the supposition that persons unlearned in the French language are as truly chil-dren in that department of knowledge as the infant is ignorant of its mother's vocabulary. One is as helpices as the other, as dependent as the other; and both must be led into the great mystery of speech by like methods. The mother talks to the little one by means of the love in her eyes, by the smille on her lips, by kisses and caresses, and by every conceivable growth and lisp them after hur. She brings no other means to aid her in this task of speech-making. In a similar way, with no other methods than the moth-et takes with her into the nursery-armed with no proceeding.—Prof. Saureur appears before a class of educated English men and women to give them thair sword son in French. 'They are not familiar with s words and is ptome to show the process by which these two tongues are to mingle and run together, ad their speakers to become familiar as people of a common country. I must mention the very signif-cant fact that, in this school, creeytiding depending upon the teacher. ''As is the teacher so is the school.' is an oid saying, and answers very well for projecing; but it is not emphasized enough by a peolaby, gifted instructor, or there can be no school at all, either good or bad. Prof. Saureur is an ac-complished conversationist; but this is not all. Her is a man of letters, possessing wit, genius, culture, and speak in every motion. This acterior man is so at all, either good or bad. Prof. Saureur is an ac-complished conversationist; but that is not all. He is a man of letters, possessing wit, genius, culture, and yeak information, which beam all over bis face, and apeak in every motion. This exterior man is so promising he awakens the curiosity of the class at once, and inspires them with intense engerness to gain access to the rich jewels contained in his intel-lectual store-bouse. They forget the rough and rug-ged labor that intervenes, and grasp with escerness any tools he may put into their hands, with which to make their way. This class may be composed of children, but it is more likely to be of matured men and women; gradu-ates from Harvard, students from Yale, and persons who have spent years searching for the hidden treas-ures of the heart and intellect. Teacher and pupils are both familiar with the truths and beauties of Plato and Socrates, only their ideas are draped in different costumes,—one wears French clothes, the other English. They come together for the first time. The teacher prefers, perhaps, to speak about Tyndall's last address, which contains the "promise and points address, which contains the "promise ind points address, which contains the "promise ind points to discourse upon this theme. If would noise surprising if the teacher should articn-late some thought from Tyndall. Neither would it be astonishing if the class before him surmised what he said, though they comprehended not a spoken word. But they read the soul that moves over the face, beams in the eye, lights the brow, and lifts the hand. Already a means of communication has been opened by signs and gestures. These are to prepare the way for words, -they are to do the talking before words are learned, and are to be an accompaniment for words through all future conversation. Were Mr. Tyndail present, the teacher would point to him, and say, "un homme asge." This would be in keeping with the philosophy of his system, which is to express the supreme thoughts in the mind at the mo-ment. But Tyndall is absent; so the teacher holds up one finger, and says, "un doigt," --two French words are learned. He holds up two fingers, and says, "deux doigts," -- three French words are learned. The parts of the finger are examined; the different fingers,--"lindex," "le pouce." They are counted, and seves the half, and objects that are visible about the room. In all this time not a word of English has been explore, but a great variety of gestures has been employed, and every word earned has been spoken; but a great variety of gestures has been employed, and every word earned has been spoken; but a great variety of means this children with none. They are so helpess that only such subjects can be treated as can be illustrated. But in the fourth leason we ob-serse Eleves, such sentences as the following: "Con-misser yous Socrate?" "Ext-li vivant ou mort?" "Dans Piliade d'Homère vous voyez l'impitoyable Achille uhemene respecter les chevenus blance du inter Priam" (the lesson has been "less chevenus"). From this time onward there is a wide divergine. From the course that would have been pursued with helpite. A few common words have put them more waidy on a level, and they now have the key with which to enter each the soul of the other. The in-terest deepens. The pupile are not only accumulation oursing henceforth upon real, living subject. astonishing if the class before him surmised what coursing henceforth upon real, living subjects. They sit about their teacher as one could imagine the pupils of Plato to have done, in the quiet groves of the Academy. Are they learning French, study-ing the Fables of La Fontaine, the writings of Mon-taigne, or the radicalism of Wendell Phillips? It would be difficult to tell. One moment they are talking of the future tense, or the use of the sub-junctive; the next we hear: "Quellivre de M. Emer-son préférez-vous?" or, "Quelle est la pièce de Shakspeare que vons avez le plus lue?" or, "Pon-vons-nous mesurer la grandeur morale de Socrate, mesdames?" Who would not struggle bravely to gain the means mesdames?" Who would not struggle bravely to gain the means whereby to converse upon such lofty themes with a profound scholar, a graceful and sympathetic con-versationist? Who would not take French lessons, if for no other purpose than to study the literature of the world, to be filled with new thoughts and inspi-ration, and to be fitting oneself as a genial compan-ion.

Digness to Google

There has not been a word of English heard in all There has not been a word of English heard in all too.

There has not been a word of English heard in all these lessons, neither have there been any French translations made in English.
The class read from French books; and, when a sentence or paragraph is met that is not understood, the teacher makes the explanation in French, in the same way that he treats any subject of conversation. Thus they learn to think and feel in French, and the ideas are clothed in French terms. So great is the gift of this remarkable teacher, and so superior his system of instruction, that before he parts with his pupils he has given them, not only the technical words of his language, but taken them into the heart of the French nature to their American. They are two times one; and they scarcely know which one they are the more.

times one; and they scarcely know which one they are the more. The inquiry naturally arises, Can this new method be made to benefit the masses as well as individuals? Can there be more than one Saureur, and can his system be introduced into general education, English as well as French? That there is need of this, no one will deny who visits our school-rooms, and lis-tens to the dull and monotonous "lesson-saying" that is dragging its weary self along day after day, as reg-nlarly as the weaver's shuttle, and just about as in-telligently,—who realizes the fact that not one teach-er in fifty is able to command the attention of a class for any length of time by means of any real conversa-tion,—who goes into society and witnesses the miser-able both-work that is made when people attempt to bold what they call a conversation. We are introducing many new arts into our educa-tion. If there be room for one more, "the talking art," its success would be sure under the guiding hand of such a master as Prof. Saureur. Onght not the "talking art" to precede all others? L. S. H.

THE PROVIDENCE Press relates this anecdote: A young gamin applied at the Central Station this morning for a ticket to the poor children's excursion of the Christian Association. He was asked if he was a Christian, and promptly said he was. "Are you an honest boy?" "Yee, sir!" The phrenologist of the force lifted the lad's hat to examine his bump of conscientiouaness, when out fell a ticket for the excursion.

MODERN MARTYRDOM AGAIN.

THE INDEX SEYS:-"In these days the question is coming home to more than one young Unitarian minister in the depths of his own heart: "Can I let myself be classed publicly among Christian ministers, without tarnish-ing my own ideal of absolute truthfulness and hon-or? On the one hand are popularity and competen-cy; on the other hand are exclusion and pecuniary distress; and it is simply the public acceptance or re-jection of a name which is to decide between the two alternatives." This is the invisible coercion brought to bear to-day on many a conscience in the Unitarian ranks by the now irrevocably and honesity are made to feel it we have only the deepest and ten-derest aympathy; no advice, certainly no misjudge-THE INDEX says

Unitarian ranks by the now irrevocably and nonlesity accepted policy of the denomination. For those who are made to feel it we have only the deepest and ten-derest sympathy; no advice, certainly no misjudge-ment. Each soul must fight such battles as these alone. Martyrdom of the modern sort has no glory in it at all; but it has many a sting, and operates as ever to make hereas here and hypocritis there, though perhaps the heroism and hypocritis there, though the heroism and hypocritis there, though the though the heroism the hypocritis there, though the dealer the heroism and hypocritism min-isters whose heart-rending trials are so touchingly described. It is no new thing for the Unitarian de-notion only "in these days," but from the very begin-ning. Its ministers have been ordained and settled as Christian ministers. If they are still disciples and followers of Jesus, there is no reason why they should not continue to stand at their posts without a single misgiving on the score of truthfulness or hon-or. If they have ceased to be disciples and followers of Jesus, and can no longer receive pure Christianity, they should make known their precise position, and bravely take the far from terrible temporal conse-quences. There is nothing in the situation to make a maniy man whimper, or to excite the painful sym-pathy of any of his friends. The same great law of fast; if you are sailing under false colors, the sonter isfaction which rist if you are sailing under false colors, the sconer you holst your true flag the better. The inward satisfaction which attends a sincere course is so great, shat outward gains or losses scarcely deserte men-tion. It is very easy to exaggerate the penalties of heter-doxy in "these days." There have been dark ages from his friends, exposing him to the loss of all his property, and putting his fife in danger. Thanks to please now with almost entire impunity. The pub-lic still despise hypocrites, but for honest convictions, however uncommou, only heartlest respect is enter-tationed. A noble character is always honored. Al-though it is an open secret that Abraham Lincoln and Charles Summer were freethinkers in religion, the fact never cost silter of them a vote, and their estable you character is always honored. Al-though it is an open secret that Abraham Lincoln and Charles Summer were freethinkers in religion, the fact never cost silter of them a vote, and their estable you ch narrowness. The "rekninker in religion, the fact never cost all plast them and are stored by such narrowness. The "rekninker in religion, the fact never cost and plast and plast and popularity and competency: on the other hand are isouting and pecuniary distres," that ultra radicals have recculy had distressing experiences in this owned over the persculuons and privations to which you and deserted because of his "davarced" opin-ions. Yet the truth is that Mr. Potter's salary have have deserted because of his "davarced" opin-tions. Theodore Parker was often very brave, yet heat, for his hereased almost in exact propor-tions. Theodore Parker was often very brave, yet heat, for his hereased almost in succe propor-tions. Theodore Parker was often very brave, yet heat, for his hereased submert divers. No min-siter on this continent had amore anviable lot. He-sprinted astheme in the reserved. And Mr. Fron-heat, is not shunned and enjoyed. He gave-sharper invectives than he received. And Mr. Fro-hest, has hea honest to speak the truth, and they undernis the popular appreciation of sincerity. Instead of read-ing such men with "the deepest and tenderss ym-pathy," however, we think they are clearly to be diamed. They lack the courage to share the fac di their read convictions. They should not lose a day, nor an hour, before defining their new pathen. This is the only course which can preserve the self-respect, or command the respect of the fellow-men. THE INDEX says it has "no addrey to give such persons, but the Register's sound is freely offered: If you claim to be men, don't let the mild terrors of undern presention cores you into the least treason or hyporns. It could to all the now to be a dissenter for any hat are of Jeans were not dismayed by the cry of "Gristians to the lions," non-Christians and And Gristian should easily muster fortiude enough to come the light afflictions of martyrdom "in these days." Christian Begister, Nov. 14.

GOSPEL AND BIBLE NOT AGAINT WO. MAN'S BIGHTS.

I do not understand why THE INDEX affirms that the Gospel and the Bible are against woma's rights—even her right of auffrage. The Gospel is the good news by Jeana Chriat. He gave the sub-stance of it when he cried out, in words taken from Isaiah, "The spirit of the Lord God is upon us, be cause he hath anointed me to preach the Gospi to the poor; he bath sent me to heal the broker beard, to preach deliverance to the captives, to set at libery them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable yea of the Lord."

them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable yer of the Lord." The Gospel, therefore, is not an "enemy," as if firmed by THE INDEX, to any right, or ary bumin good, but, on the contrary, is a proclamation of de-liverance from disabilities, of liberty from every low of ensiavement, of freedom from every pake by which any soul may be "bruised." and we meternal protest sgainst the invasion of rights and the indi-tion of every kind of unjust subjugation. Surely, this is broad enough to cover the chin of woman to personal, social, and political equality with man, since, if she be cast down in either, he is bound and bruised by a cruel and oppressive had. And how is the Bible against woman? This pre-lamation of deliverance for the suffering and be wronged is not only from the Bible, but sounds its key-note, and is the genius of the book. Its diff, in reforming and elevating spirit, its culminating fore, is an ally of God in the human soul in his creates working to lift the race (of both serce) to help has of essential equality in the perfect unity, where, is the words of that same Bible, "there is neither mis nor female, for all are one."

The words of that same Bible, "there is neither sub-nor female, for all are one." I am well aware that the Jewith idea and uses as well as certain texts of the episties, may be made to do service for the "subjection of woman," but hese are incidental, and are of no account in determining the character and tendency of the Book as a blok, which, as I have said, in its spirit and were, "s mighty, through God, for the pulling down of storg-holds," and for elsevating the lowly, theourseed, and the oppressed. Sectarianism, theological dogmatism, hierarchical despotism, are quite moher allst, at they are quite other than the Gospel or Bible spiritu-al force. Let THE INDEX battle these will be been peel of Jesus Christ and the Book of Book. DAVID FLUER.

DAVID PLUME. -Woman's Journal. Oct. 10.

THE BIBLE AGAINST WOMAN'S BIGHTS.

BY ANNIE BEGANT.

It a lecture in London, published by Tribuer 4.0.1 The last argument which is to crash us is his people of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned the prevent of the danger they ran when they "turned they have a the bread of life in any search of the Bible as the bread of life in any search of the bible as the bread of life in any search of the the Bible as the bread of life in any search of the ranger they ran they are they are they are they for on the strand, and the water rose higher and have for centuries has religion atood, with the bible in her lifted hand; she has warned bek rach when the ranger they former," said the Bible as they have for ward regardless of her threats. "Earer which is the religion atood, when the bible in her lifted hand; she has warned bek rach when the religion atood, when the bible in her lifted hand; she has warned bek rach when the religion atood, when the the the the the they are to the shible, struck down the tyran who are the ward. If a city is with the warder can be and they when the bible in her lifted hand; she has a structure in the start and was have the the bible to Alva; and Alva beligite when the the bible ward, and the bible to Alva with the edge of the aword, destroning it maters, which there in and and the warder destroning it maters, which there is and how and the bible domain as a structure when they bible it the who it is can as a structure is bible to form the thousand pulpits; but mee access where they, Bible why, it has bolatered up every is a structure in the solidiers of Liberty wrang in the bible when they hible is the liberty wrang in the she bible the bible is the size of the second is an extr [In a lecture in London, published by Trübner & (b.)

Google :

L. S. H.

luctant hands of priests and Bible-worshippers every charter of our freedom, every triumph of our cause. Every step in science has been won in despite of the Bible; every inch of natural knowledge has been conquered at the sword's point from the realm of the supernatural. From the stake where Bruno stood and died, from the dungeon where Gallieo knelt and insembled a value has rung out that sever advance of conquered at the sword's point from the realm of the supernatural. From the stake where Brune stood and died, from the dungeon where Galileo knelt and trembled, a ysice has rung out that every advance of science has been struggled against by the Bible and the Church. But take heart, you who cling to your Bibles; as soon as we have gained this one step for-ward, as soon as itrings through England that women are no longer in subjection, you will be able to claim as the off-pring of your Christianity that which, at its birth; you anathematized. Each troophy of ad-vancement, each symbol of triumph, is claimed by the biblioitor as his as soon as it becomes popular. You will be able to find in your Bibles a sanction for the free development of womanhood, even as you have found room in the six days of Genesis for the vast zons of geology, and space in the petty firma-ment of Moses for the mighty facts of astronomy. The Bible is claimed as the true parent of modern freedom, as the striker-off of the chains of the slave, the guardian of the feeble from the tyranny of the strong. It is the spirit of Christianity that has done it all, you say; when the letter said "bay," it meant "preserve;" when the letter said "bay," it meant "preserve;" when the letter said "conlay," it meant "set free." So take courage, ye worshippers of a book; your idol will be shattered once more, but it can once more be re-mended; it will fall once more before the trumpet-blast of Freedom, but once more before the trumpet-blast of Freedom, but once more before the trumpet-blast of Streeto fulfil ev-ry fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ry fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ry fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ery fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ery fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ry fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ery fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ery fair capability of her being; free to fulfil ev-ery fair capability of her being; grapple with us, and try to stop and destroy us, then Religion and the Bible must either stand adds or else they must go dow. NOTE.—In the debate which followed this lecture, scoption was taken by some of the speakers to the introduction of the religious question, and it was suggested that in attacking the Bible I had thrown down an apple of discord. I would point out that the raising of this question was not of my doing. Had the speakers known a little more of the subject, they would have been aware that the authority of the Bible is constantly brought forward as an argument against women's rights, and had I avoided meeting this argument I should have left out a link in my country that its dictum to the contrary is sufficient to destroy, in most minds, the most logical arguments. Had I wished to impeach the Bible as a whole, I should have made a very different attack upon it; but is lecture, nothing more was needed than to tate forcibly that, so far as it touched on the subject, the Bible imust be set aside; and a few blatorical par-allels were added, for the comfort of both friends and foes. The advocates of women's rights have, not the least desire to mix up the religious question with the public at our heads, are we forbidden to tarn it aside by lifting against it the shield of free thought?

THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS

Whatever may be assigned as the reason for the suc-cess of the Democratic ticket in this State, the real cause can be found in the following three propositions, namely:

cause can be found in the following three propositions, namely:--1. After temporizing and coqueting with the negro element, and going so far even, by some of our over-zealous but indiscreet and impolitic citizens, as to favor a unification of the races, the white people, find-ing that all of their advances had been neglected and treated with scorn by the negroes, finally resolved to assert their manhood, their power, and their dignity. In the Convention at Baton Rouge they asserted themselves independent of all negro support. The lastne was proclaimed to be one of the white man against the negro, and no concern was manifested at all as to the alliances which the negro might make. The position thus assumed attracted the attention of the negro, and immediately set him at work think-ing over his own fate and his own interests. 2. As a natural sequence of this position, and in order to strengthen it by all extraneous means, the propriety of dismissing from employment all political enemics promptly suggested itself to those who were determined to make the political enemy feel the weight and power of the Southern white element. 3. The heroic and galiant conduct of the citizen-soldiery of this city in their brilliant and successful overthrow of the usurpation of the government of Louvisians convinced the world of the rectitude of overthrow of the usurpation of the government of Louisians convinced the world of the rectitude of our purpose and the justice of our cause. Besides, it satisfied the negroes of the utter weakness of their patron Governor and his contemptible gaug of fol-lowers.

lowers. It proved to them that a government that could be swept out of existence in fifteen minutes, with all of its paraphernalis of military strength and national support, was not worthy of either respect or confi-dence. This was the signal for descrition. And hence we find those who once worshipped at the shrine of Republicanism descriting the temple and religion of their faith, fiecing from its falling fortunes, and singing peaks of praise to the rising star in the political firmament. The firmness and resolution of the white people to make this political contest upon a race issue has given na the glorious victory over which we now rejoics. It astounded and terrified the negro, and it forced him into a recognition of the auperiority and the ir-resistible power of the white man. Acknowledging their inferiority, and recognizing the strength, su-perior intelligence and education of the white people, the negro was appalled by the significant combina-tion of the white significant combina-tion of the significant to their own interesta. Once satisfied of this fact, and convinced of the weak-ness of the party and leaders with whom they had been allied-seeing them dissipate like snow before the sun, when the white people, -it was not difficult to bring over to the side of the powerful and conquer-uing party the support of the demoralized and defeated adherents of a fallen and vanquished party. The scret of our success, therefore, in this polit-ical campaign, is attributable entirely to the bold, fearless, and independent course of the white people, who made the negro understand that "this govern-ment was made by white men, for the benefit of administered by white men, and by none other what-soever."-New Orleans Builtetin of November 5,

THE SABBATH QUESTION.

Rev. John Chambers having invited the Philadel-phia Radical Club, and especially its President, to hear him discuss the Sabbath question on Sunday next, Mr. E. M. Davis, President of that body, has declined the reverend gentleman's invitation in the following latter: following letter :-

following letter:--OFFICE OF THE RADICAL CLUE, [ 333 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Nov. 12, 1874. ] TO THE REV. JOHN CHAMBERS:--I thank you for your kind invitation to the "Rad-ical Club, and especially to its President," to hear you on "Sunday" afternoon next on the Sabbath outention. question.

yon on "Sunday" afternoon next on the Sabbath question. Do not overlook this fact: We do not deny the holiness of the day you call the Sabbath. Our idea is "not one, but screen days holy." We believe that what is wrong to do on the first day of the week is wrong to do any day; that the thing done, and not the time when it is done, is the matter to consider. We would not have people religious one-seventh of the time only, but all the time. We do not wish to marrow or contract goodness to one day, but have the world honest and true every day. I regret that I cannot be present. One serious objection to going to bear our position controverted is that we should have no chance to reply before the same audience; and, as I have no church pulpit from which to announce this, I take the liberty of doing on through the pulpit of the people—the newspaper. It is so well known that at our Club all sides have an equal chance of a hearing that it scems superflu-ous to say that we shall be gled to see and hear you at our rooms at any time. Very respectfully. E. M. DAVIS, President Radical Club.

A CURIOUS NOTE, which comes from Russia, is of a visit which Humboldt once paid to Iszym, in Siberia. Carrying a letter of introduction from the Governor-General, he went to the house of the chief govern-ment functionary of the place. M. Skotin, who was apparently a sort of Goodman Dull of immense self-importances and ignorance. The first thing that the Governor-General heard of the saturat was in a long letter from the wise Skotin ...

apparently a sort of Goodman Dull of immense self-importance and ignorance. The first thing that the Governor-General heard of the savant was in a long letter from the wise Skotin :--"Some days ago," he said, "there came here a Ger-man named Gumbolt, a dried-up little man, looking anything but respectable. As, however, he brought with him a letter from your Excellency, in which I am directed to treat him with politeness and consid-aration, I received him with all due respect. At the same time, I must observe that this individual seems to me very suspicious, and even dangerous. From the first he did not please me; he gossipped too much, and did not please me; he gossipped too much, and did not please me; he gossipped too much, and did not please me; he gossipped too much, and did not please me; he gossipped too the most eminent officials of the town. On the other hand, he is continually talking with the Poles, and other political criminals under my charge. Your Ex-cellency will forgive my boldness in eaying this, but these conversations with political criminals could not scape my observation, especially as a few days since, after a long conference, he want out with them at ingit to the top of a bill which commands the town. There they took out of a case which they had brought which seemed to me and my colleagues like a huge cannon. This they placed on a three-legged stand, and then almed it straight at the town. Each of them approached the instrument, apparently to ad-just it so as to rectify the aim. Seeing the great dan-ger which threatened the inhabitants of the town, which is built entirely of wood, I immediately or dered the town guard, which consists of a sub-officar and aix men, to march to the spot with loaded mus-ket, and not lose sight of this German's proceedings. If the man's transcharous designs prove what I sus-pect them to be, we are ready to riak our lives for the car and for Holy Russis."-N. Y. Tribuse.

REV. DR. SUNDEBLAND, the chaplain of the Sen-ate, prayed that God would make "this Congress as the Sanhedrim to the Jew," but the telegraph report-ed it as the "Sacred Ram to the Jew."

LECTURE NOTICE

Mr. Rowland Connor has recently prepared a course of lectures upon the temperance question, of special applicability to the present time, and aiming to give to this difficult subject a new treatment, and also a more thorough discussion than is possible in a single lecture. The special topics are:-1. National Drinks. 2. Beer, Wine, and Liquor. 3. Stimulants and Narcotics. 4. The Laws of Intemperance. 5. Temperance and Legislation. 6. Radical Remedies for Intemperance. Mr. Countor has also prepared a course of scientific

- Mr. Connor has also prepared a course of scientific lectures as follows:-

Mr. Connor, and Ale Physics.
1. The Genesis and Methods of Science.
2. The Antiquity of Man.
3. The Origin of Species.
4. The Descent of Man.
5. The Origin of Life.
6. Illustrations of Evolution.
The third and fourth of these lectures contain a full outline experiition of the theory of Mr. Darwin, and may be given apart from the others, if desired.
Address, RowLAND CONNOR, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

PRISON PUNISEMENTS.

John F. Augustus, Miss Linda Gilbert of New, York, and David Sargent will speak upon prisons, prison scenes, and prison hestruments of punish-ment at Harmony Hall, 18 1-2 Boylston St., Monday evening, Nov. S0, at 71-2 o'clock. The identical whip-ping-post formerly in use at Virginis Penitentiary, will be achibited, and correct representations of "the solitary" and lower arch now in use in Massachu-setta State Prison, the iron cage, abover bath, pillo-ry, bishop's mitre, yoke, Boston gailows, boy's pony, treadmill, etc., etc. These implements of torture are in use in this, the nineteenth, century, and are considered necessary to reform men and women, and fit them for a better life; as to hope, position, or any restoration in this life, it is taken for granted to be entirely ont of the question. Mr. Black will be present with his celebrated stare-opticon. Tickets 25 cents.

Hoetry.

IN VAIN.

[For THE INDEE.]

No more repeat the former days

Applying rules, devising ways To lace souls straight in moral stays :

Ye gild the outward cheat and show The times grow ripe, and wise men know Beneath is hid the world's old woe.

Crimes lurk in fastnesses secur Of mind and heart long left impure. How do we thus our peace insure

The millions, fearing, praise their Lord, And, down the lines his signal heard, Force moves to ply the hated word.

Armed rule of saints! The State's bad chest. Crimes sally forth and now retreat, Plotting for aye the Law's defeat.

O jealous gods of outward might, Whose sceptred hands conduct the fight

Of holy pride from Binal's height!

Your arms now wither of old age. Your powers depart. Your whitening rage Would pile with death the whole world's stage.

What can ye win with all your strife, Your vengeance whetting still the knife? No sweet and fractifying life.

NOVEMBER, 1857.

SIDNET H. MOMER.

CASH RECEIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 21.

PART ARDURAT AND PORTA THE AND IND NOVAMER A. A. Corras Lewis, $1.80; Mar. C. B. Blohmont, S. S. M. Dud, F. Stevenson, 4 cents; Mr. Tirrell, 80 cents; M. Dud, F. Stevenson, 4 cents; Mr. Tirrell, 80 cents; M. Dud, F. Stevenson, 40 cents; Mr. Tirrell, 80 cents; M. Dud, F. Stevenson, 40 cents; M. F. Steven, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorng, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. K. Jorne, Z. Cents; Mr. Ben, Ireeor, 40 cents; A. M. Balue, 41 cents; M. C. Bent, 40 cents; A. M. B. Balue, 41 cents; J. S. Bent, 40 cents; A. M. B. Balue, 41 cents; M. M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Baumer, 41 cents; M. M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Baumer, 41 cents; M. M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 40 cents; M. J. Potter, 40 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 41 cents; M. Boutelle, 43 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 40 cents; M. B. Balue, 40 cents; A. M. B. Balumer, 41 cents; M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 40 cents; M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 40 cents; M. Balue, 41 cents; A. M. Benhmer, 40 cents; M. Balue, 41 cents; A. Sanser, 40 cents; A. Tocker, 40 cents; M. Balue, 41 cents; A. Sanser, 40 cents; A. Benhmer, 40 cents; J. Seedgebeer, 41 cents; A. J. Benter, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Benter, 40 cents; A. Tanser, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Benter, 40 cents; A. Tanser, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Benter, 40 cents; A. Tanser, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. J. Balue, 40 cents; A. Tanser, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Balue, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Balue, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; A. Balue, 40 cents; J. Balue, 40 cents; A. Balue,

The Index. PUBLISHED SVERT THURSDAY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION. AT

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 MONROE STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Arti-eles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, NOVEMBER 26, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a or yealent distance of Boston.

ME. POTTER'S comprehensive analysis of "Sectarianism," which was listened to with such interest at Providence and is now kindly contributed to these pages, occupies the first place in our present issue, and will be read with even greater interest.

"OBEX GOD and his Apostle, if ye are true bellev-ers," says the Koran. "Obey God and his Christ," says Christianity. "Obey God and his Lawgiver," says Judalsm. All claim obedience for a man, as the interpreter of God. And all compel the free spirit to refuse their claim.

THE INDEX will be sent to any name not now on our mail-list until January 1, 1876, on receipt of $3.00 in advance. Here is a chance to receive the paper for thirteen months at the price of twelve months. Please tell your friends and neighbors of this liberal offer, and help us to increase our circulation.

WE COMMEND to all who are interested in the Southern problem an article copied elsewhere from the New Orleans Bulletin, on the causes and meaning of the late election in Louisiana. If it tells the truth, the White Leaguers will undoubtedly learn in due time that discontent with the corruptions of Republican leaders does not mean betrayal of the negroes to their late masters. They will be wise not to construe it in that manner.

ON THE evening of November 17, we had the pleasure of meeting a little gathering of forty or fifty persons interested in radical thought at a hospitable mansion in Lowell, assembled on the invitation of a lady whose zeal, enterprise, and courage in the good cause show how much can be accomplished by private exertion. A series of meetings was initiated by her last winter, at which Messra. Stevens, Gannett, Longfellow, and others, read essays with great acceptance; and we had the honor of beginning a similar series for the present sesson. It is safe to conclude that everywhere such gatherings might be held, for nothing could have been less auspicious than the prospect in this case. Let others take courage from the great success of this experiment, which proves that the new thought will find hearers even in old centres of Orthodoxy.

PROFESSOR NEWMAN shows in another column how utterly foreign to his purpose it was, and is, to misrepresent THE INDEX; but it pains us that he should consider the editors of the paper as constituting it. We do not feel at liberty to omit that passage of his letter, which we should gladly do. Without the contributors, both editorial and occasional, to its columns, The INDEX could never have commanded the respect which their ability and character have won for it. However our English friend may exaggerate the part contributed by the editors, our American readers will correct this disproportionate estimate, and do justice to the mental and moral force constantly displayed by our unselfish co-laborers. The paper would most certainly have been a failure without them, and no one could more gratefully appreciate the worth, nay, the absolute necessity, of their assistance than we do. It is a movement, not a person or persons, that THE INDEX represents; and we must thank Professor Newman himself for showing how little we alone are qualified to represent all its aspects.

"MODERN MARTYRDOM AGAIN."

It is not often that THE INDEX is supposed to err in the direction of too much "sympathy"-though it has in fact quite as much as is consistent with uncompromising adhesion to ideas. But now it finds itself rebuked by the Christian Register because it has expressed the "deepest and tenderest sympathy" for sorely tempted men-for young clergymen whose opening eyes begin to see that Christianity is not the supreme truth they have hitherto considered it, and yet that to take a public stand outside of it may involve their dependent families in immediate and distressing poverty. Even if such men fail to be heroes, and sadly shrink into the mere outward conformity which is no new thing in the history of the Church, our sympathy is not lassened, but increased to pity; for who are we to exact heroism of other The Register thus "freely offers" its advice : "If you claim to be men, don't let the mild terrors of modern persecution coerce you into the least treason or hypocrisy. It costs too little now to be a dissenter for any but arrant cowards to feign conformity." The advice to be true to truth, no matter what the cost, is certainly faithful counsel; it expresses the ideal of every noble heart. But when men have been true to truth, and learned what such fidelity may cost even in these days of Neo-Christian loose ness and feeble bigotry, there is nothing admirable in the spirit which scoffs at their prosaic yet none the less painful sacrifices. It is altogether too much like the philanthropy which settles down comfortably in an easy-chair, and thinks that "the weather is moderated" for the fireless poor, when a new scuttle-full of coal has been emptied into the blazing grate that it toasts its own shins by. We have just as fittle admiration as the Register for the conformity which is the price of a soul; but when we remember that the motive of it is sometimes love for a delicate wife or tenderness for helpless children, we confess that indignation against the conformer turns into a sterner feeling towards the ecclesiastical system that tempts him to his fall. All the more honor to those who, even under such pressure, know how to stand erect and unbent!

The paragraph of which the Register makes light was prompted solely by very recent occurrences. A passage in a letter received within the present month, from which we suppress everything that might betray the authorship, may be quoted in evidence: "Instead of giving me some notice, I was dismissed at once, after I had told them what I really believed, my salary being discontinued immediately and my little family left without resources at the beginning of a hard winter. . . . I was made to under-- that, if I would suppress, all would be stand by well; and I was counselled to practise policy. - speaks of my playing the rôle of a martyr. How easy it is for people who have never made any sacrifices for their convictions, who really have none apart from pride and sentimentality, to talk of playing the role of a martyr! If these people knew that what they call playing means often, in such instances, the want of the necessaries of life, even hunger and anxiety for those dependent upon you for their daily food, amounting almost at times to desperation, as has been the case for a good part of the time with me for the last — years, they would choose perhaps some other word." No, they would probably not. It is not truth that dictates their choice of words so much as regard for ecclesiastical Interests; which truth seldom furthers.

The defence which the Register sets up for its contempt of "modern martyrdom" like the above reats on this statement: "Its [the Unitarian denomination's] ministers have been ordained and settled as Christian ministers. If they are still disciples and followers of Jesus, there is no reason why they should not continue to stand at their posts without a single misgiving on the score of truthfulness or honor. If they have ceased to be disciples and followers of Jesus, and can no longer receive pure Christianity, they should make known their precise position, and bravely take the far from terrible temporal consequences."

This does not tell the whole story. The Unitarian denomination have not only professed "pure Christlanity" from the beginning, but also perfect liberty, unlimited free inquiry, as their whole literature shows. It makes the same profession to-day. It thus induces young men to enter its ministry on the supposition that pure Christianity and perfect liberty are entirely compatible, as that denomination administers its affairs. What turns out to be the fact? A young minister, obeying his own earnest cravings for trath, comes to the conclusion that the Christian name implies something that is untrue, and there fore he resigns it publicly. At once he is dimined from his pulpit, and turned adrift without ceremony to care for himself and his family as best he may Has he no cause of complaint? We can easily image ine him saying to the denomination :-

"You enticed me into your service under false pretences. You told me, through Channing and all your most revered writers, that 'Christianity is a life, not a creed,' and that it permits unquestioned, abso lute freedom of inquiry, and (by implication) absolute freedom to proclaim in public the results of that free inquiry. I now find that your Christianity is not a life alone, but insists upon the livery of the Lord,' and requires at least a verbal profession of allegiance to him. Exercising with a faithful conscience the free inquiry which was guaranteed to me I now find myself dismissed from your service because I have, as you bade me, told you the highert religious truth I could see. I now find that your Christianity and your liberty are not compatible, and that your liberty must go to the wall. I therefore charge you with deception in assuring me that they are compatible; I charge you with seducing me into your service under the pledge of a freedom which you have withheld; I charge you with having led me to waste precious years of my life in the preparation for a ministry of faithful truth-seeking and honest truth-speaking, and now, when it is too hat to an quire another profession, turning me adrift with my family to struggle with bitter poverty. I accuse you, therefore, not for being Christian, nor yet for not be ing free, but for telling me you were Christian and free both, when you are Christian only. If you had honestly avowed the truth, and warned me at the start in the Divinity School that you did not permit liberty to go beyond a fixed limit, I should at least have been warned in season; but you still profess to be perfectly free, and are still deceiving others as you have deceived me. When, consequently, you compel me either to be false to my own soul or else miler great hardship in my dearest interests, you have wronged me by your insincerity, and I hold you not guiltless therefor."

We can intagine, we repeat, such an indictment as this brought by the young miniater who wrote the letter quoted above, and whose exemplay life we have never heard so much as doubted. What has the Christian Register to say in answer to It?

LETTRE FROM PROFESSOR NEWMAN.

WESTON SUPER MARE, Nov. 4, 1874. MY DEAR MR. ABBOT :--

While I am grieved that (in INDEX, October 15th) you account me unjust to THE INDEX, I am truly glad at the strength of your repudiation. I supposed that I was pointing at simple fact, and never erpected you to disown it. Of course I know that in THE INDEX each is answerable only for whit he writes himself; but you and Mr. "A. W.S." appear to me to be substantially THE INDEX. With considerable trouble in looking back through the columns, I have no doubt I could find the passages which have misled me; but as you frankly disown my interpretation, it is better to say that I regret the generality of my statement, and would withdraw it if I were able.

Not the less I must say that in your very disavowal I find the nucleus of that at which I was pointing. You impute to Christian doctrine "the punishment of heresy as a crime." No doubt this has been prac-tised by Christian professors for many ages, preeminently since the Crusades initiated the Christian Church into great and bloody ware for the Holy Sepulchre,-a matter as remote from the objects inculcated by Jesus and the spostles as were the monstrous crueities and follies of the proceeding. You remember that my first indication of my diff with you turned on this point. I say, Christianity has been MANIFESTLY depraced. We know that the collected writings called the New Testament are far older than Athanasius. To know what Christianity was, to them I must refer, as all Protestants do. I know how Protestants feel under your imputations, because I have been a Protestant Christian; since you too have been one, your positions are unintelligible to me. From the age of eleven to thirty-six and upward, I was a devotee of the New Testament. So far was I from there learning that secular punishment of a heretic was a duty, that I regarded it, just as I do now, as a wicked outrage far worse than the hercey, and having not a particle of defence from Christianity. I cannot but believe that this was your sentiment, and your judgment of New Testament doctrine, when you regarded yourself as a Ohristian.

I signalize this point, but I think you really unjust to Christianity on other points which you quote also; especially, "the deterioration of ethics by making an inspired book the test of morality." No inspired book was preached by Jesus and the apostles. The New Testament did not then exist. Paul often quotes the Old Scriptures, but he overrode "the let-ter which killeth" by "the spirit that giveth life;" in the tone of the modern Quakers. To accuse Christianity of deteriorating morals appears to me alike unjust and unwise. I do not think you can mean to say that Jesus, James, Peter, Paul, and the John who wrote the epistles, deteriorated the morals of their contemporaries. You mean that the moderns-professed Christians who teach a doctrine unknown to the first teachers-deteriorate morals. Say this, and you will say nothing paradoxical, nothing that can justify resentment; moreover, you will have me on your side. In the present state of knowledge to set up the New Testament as infallible dees ethics.

Again, as to "the circumscription of human brotherhood by sectarian lines;" I object to the objection on a different ground. It is trivial in comparison to the atrocity of murdering or persecuting heretics, and it taxes Christianity with offence, where offence rises solely out of the weakness of human nature. Just so you may assail patriotism, because so many have been led by intended patriotism into injustice to for-"Our country, right or wrong !" as a toast eigners. to animate soldiers, will not have your approval, nor mine; yet I think we shall both agree that there is an important virtue, fitly called patriotism, nor ought he who preaches it to be charged with error, because others misapply it, as our Lord Nelson is said to have done, in teaching that "to hate a Frenchman as you hats the devil is the first duty of a midshipman." When Paul says, "As we have opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially to those who are of the household of faith," I see nothing to reprove, any more than if one said, . . . "unto all men especially unto our own compatriots." Why call this drawing up sectarian circumscription? Under a frightfully and grotesquely depraved sacerdotal papacy, non-Christians were treated as without human rights; yet such was the genial power of the New Testament, working amid the rubbleh which overwhelmed it, that out of Christianity has come more general philanthropy, more warmth of mercy to men of every race and religion, than ever out of the Greek and Roman schools of philosophy, much honor as they deserve. And we ourselves, who think (of course, I mean, justly think; for I have no hesitation about it) that we have outgrown Christianity, yet it is only as wise pupils ought to outgrow a wise master, when they superadd other teachings and study to his lessons. Now we have eighteen hundred cars experience beyond that of Jesus, James, and Paul; hence on the one hand I see nothing to boast of, if we surpass their measure of knowledge and wisdom; on the other hand, I think it ungracious to overlook our debt to them. Until you consent to discriminate them from the sacerdotal, worldly kingdom of the papacy, you must appear to Protestants, and to I am heartily yours, me, as unjust.

F. W. NEWMAN.

CONSTITUTION

OF THE AMERICAN BOOK TEADE ASSOCIATION, ADOPTED AT THE ANNUAL CONVENTION HELD IN PUT-IN-BAY, OHIO, JULY, 1874.

Among the many exciting political, theological, and reformatory conventions of the day, this meeting of booksellers has not attracted as much attention as its importance deserves.

Every maker or buyer of books must know in how chaotic a state the business has been for some years, and how difficult it is for any one to tell whether he is paying a fair price for the article he receives or not. We have known a difference of twenty-five per cent. in the retail price of a book in two stores side by side; and at one time leading magazines could be bought singly at less than the cost of subscription.

Now individual purchasers may fancy that they get an occasional advantage from this state of things; but in reality the reading public suffere just as much from it as the Book Trade does. It is the interest of all that business shall be on a regular, well-established basis, and that those engaged in it shall have a fair profit on the cost of production, so that they shall be encouraged to undertake expensive enterprises and to give the public the best work possible at a fair price.

We need very much reformation in our whole way of doing basiness, so that the competition shall be to produce a better article, not a cheaper one.

The Book Trade Association propose to further their objects by union among themselves, by stated meetings for consultation, and by the regulation of discounts allowed to teachers, libraries, and other parties.

We will not discuss the practical value of their special rules; but the object is certainly a good one, and the parties actually engaged in the trade are the best judges of the means calculated to secure it.

The wide-spread financial corruption and dishonesty of the times has its roots in every department of life. Plain, straightforward dealing, which asks fair remuneration for service, and is desirous to pay a fair price for all it buys, is the foundation of that broader national honesty which would remedy all our financial disasters; and every movement which looks to the purification of trade meets with our warm sympathy. We hope the booksellers, whose business is of special interest to all thinking men, will set an example of high and honorable, dealing which will be followed by others. E. D. C.

THE POLITICAL LESSON.

To all lovers of popular liberty and a pure State, instead of party, the result of the recent elections has brought unfelgned joy.

The Republican party has been a great and powerful party in American politics for eighteen years. Since 1880, it has had unbroken success at the national ballot-box, sweeping nearly all the Northern States, and many of the Southern, with its banners of victory, and holding with a firm grasp the administration of the federal government. The keys of the treasury have been in its hands; the army and navy have been utterly subject to its high behest; and all the vast patronage of the nation it has had with unstinted power to give and bestow.

The Republican party began well. It owed its origin to an idea, as most parties do,-the idea of liberty. The Democratic party (as its name indicates) was born of the same idea, and had it continued to be true to that, the Republican party never would have known an existence. But the one fatal mistake of the grand old Democratic party was its alliance with Southern slavery. That mistake made the Republican party both possible and necessary. No party belongs to history, which is not true to popular liberty. In no country, much less in America, can it hope long to succeed when it forgets to be atterly faithful to freedom, when it clasps hands with oppression, and becomes an instrument to despoil any class of persons of any of their natural rights. The Democratic party, in connecting itself with the power of slavery, forgot the high destiny of its birth, and finng an insult into the face of Liberty, which she was not slow to avenge. Straightway the flag of young Republicanism was unfurled; and, in its second great contest with the pro-slavery Democracy, it came off proud victor, and planted its colors on the dome of the nation's capitol.

But it seems to be the fate of every party long in power to become corrupt. Gradually it learns to forget the grand significance of its original mission; slowly the inspiration of the great idea which launched it into life oozes out of its consciousness; by a series of selfish and unpatriotic expedients it steadily lowers its moral tone, until at last it stands before the country shorn of its pristine nobility, only contriving to exist by virtue of its traditions and that sheer tenacity of life which a once powerful party-organization continues to possess long after it has lost its soul. During the first five years of its history, the Republican party successfully vindicated the wisdom of events which brought it into existence All this time it was in a true sense the party of the people; the conspicuous intelligence, virtue, and patriotism of the American people were in it. No other party really existed but in name; none other had the confidence of the nation's conscience, or the love of the nation's heart, to any appreciable extent. During the second five years of its history, the Republican party began to show signs of faltering in its high career. Men with only selfish ambitions came more to the front, and politicians more and more overtopped statesmen in its counsels and its conduct. The rebellion was suppressed, and slavery was abolished. These were the two great historic acts of the Republican party, while yet it was the party of the people. But these two strokes of grandeur accomplished, and the party began to lose its sanity. It seemed to spend in these two acts the great sum of that momentum which had been imparted to it when first it was launched, like an arrow from a bow, from the high-strung popular heart. Thenceforward its wisdom grew to be expediency, its statesmanship to be political cunning, its honor and self-respect to be selfishness and venality. And when the third five years of its existence were entered upon, and the fourth of its presidential successes attained, it staggered into the arena of the nation flushed with victory, yet reddened with the palpable and growing hue of a debauched will and corrupted conscience. Now, Sumner and Schurz might utter their eloquent warnings in the Senate, and Greeley write his pungent, vigorous, and wholesome criticisms in the Tribune ; now, thousands upon thousands of true and honest Republicans might make their brave and manly protest The at the ballot-box,-it all availed not a whit party was drunk with continuous victory; It was waxen fat with the spoils thereof, and it was ready to kick with asinine stupidity against every prick of statesmen's admonition and increasing popular indignation.

But there is an insuperable limit set to the extent to which any party can go in the repudiation of its own principles, and the tampering with the purity of the State entrusted to its keeping. The Republican party has now reached that limit in its own history, and it must stop short and turn square round, or its days of power in Washington will be few and infelicitous. Instead of repudiating principles, it must now repudiate men,—and henceforward it behooves it to be very careful that it repudiates the right men; for hitherto it has slain some whose ghosts have since come back to trouble it. It must cease to be the party of politicians, and become once more the party of the people; otherwise it may appet that the people will continue in that process of administering discipline to it, upon which they evidently have entered now so vigoronaly.

And yet the recent political revulsion in this country conveys to my mind a more transcendent lesson than that I am able to gather from the mere punishment of the Republican party, which is involved in it. It leads me to hope that our American people are slowly learning that it is wisdom to keep their politics nearer home and more under their own immediate supervision, instead of letting them be taken so largely to Washington, and dealt out there among office-holders and office-seekers, as a crew of canal boatmen might deal out cards in a game of "poker," that they are getting to be less disposed to let out their government as a job to a class of professed politicians of any party, and more inclined to see if they cannot govern themselves with less fuss about it as well as less corruption. I say, I am led to hope that this is the case; but I do not know to what extent this hope is well-founded. Yet I see that one of the new demands of the present political revolutionists is-"Short legislative sessions, and the abolition of special legislation except in extreme cases." This looks in the right direction,-the direction of less politics, and more real social ethics,-the direction of less government by a class for a class, and of more individual responsibility of thought and action. It looks in the direction of that good old Democratic doctrine of local self-government and individual sovareignty,-a doctrine which we in this nation of late have had too little regard for. I trust we shall gradually yet surely find our way back to it from all that tendency to centralization and "Casarism," which the civil war entailed upon us.

I confess that it is because I find this hope of a revival of pure Jeffersonian Democracy new-born within me, that I specially rejoice in the recent political overturning in this land. I do not care so much that one party shall be put down and another put up, as that all mere parties shall be put down and THE PEO-PLE put up to be their own ralers in their own individual homes and hearts. In a real republic, no party ought to have any existence as a party, but only as a temporary instrument to work the will and the welfare, not alone of the majority, but also of the minority of the people. Majorities have no right to rule at the expense of the rights of minorities, -as is the case when mere party-politics prevail. It ought to be understood that no party should win at the polls in any election, but that the people should always win; and that neither the Democratic party nor the Republican party should ever be in power at Washington, but that the people should always be in power there. When this is understood, then no matter whether we have an Administration for one term or ten terms, or no term at all; the will of the whole people may administer itself by whatever means is A. W. S. available to its need.

Google

Communications.

CONSTITUTION AND PLATFORM

OF THE FREE THOUGHT ASSOCIATION OF LARE CITY, MINN.

[The following was received several months ago, mislaid, and at last discovered again. It is now published with apologies for the mischance.-ED.]

ABTICLE I.

The name of this organization shall be The Free Thought Association of Lake City.

ABTICLE II.

WHEREAS, In union there is strength, and in a multitude of counsellors there is wisdom; therefore, we associate ourselves together for the purpose of mutual improvement, and to elicit and promulgate the light of truth for the promotion of Free Thought and Action throughout our country and the world in general, and especially in Lake City.

ABTICLE IIL

WHEBEAS, It is self evident that, if we accept a truth upon its simple announcement, we should nec-essarily on the same principle accept an error; there-fors we hold it to be not only our privilege, but our positive duty, to employ our reason and every means within our reach in determining what is true and what is false.

ABTICLE IV.

WHEREAS, The rights of conscience and private judgment in matters of religion are natural, sacred, and ought to be inviolable; therefore we are opposed which may attempt by any means whatever to abridge their free exercise, and will exert our influence to op-pose any such attempts or designs, coming from any source whatever.

ARTICLE V.

ARTICLE V. WHEREAS, Our National Constitution is strictly secular; and WHEREAS, It was the intention of the framers of that instrument that the National and State laws and governments abould correspond with this, as well as with its other measures; and WHEREAS, We think it a wise and beneficent pro-vision whereby no special sect or religion can be established or supported by the laws, the govern-ments, or the public funds, but all be protected; THEREVERSE.

THEREFORE, We are opposed to any and all viola-tions of the spirit of this provision of our national constitution, and also to any amendments of it by which this provision may be rendered null, thereby virtually uniting Church and State.

ARTICLE VI.

The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, con-versations, essays, addresses, lectures, music, the platform and the press, and such other means as cir-cumstances may warrant.

ABTICLE VII.

Such measures shall be adopted for furnishing funds for the Association as shall be prescribed in the by-laws by a two-thirds vote of the members present at a meeting for that purpose.

ARTICLE VIIL

The officers of the Association shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, Treasurer, and an Executive Committee of five mem-bers, all of whom shall be elected annually by ballot. Their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these officer. those offices.

ABTICLE IL

Any person may become a member of this Associ-ation by signing the Constitution and By-Laws, but only those who pay at least one dollar a year shall be entitled to vote upon any question of finance or for a change of this Constitution.

ABTICLE X.

This Constitution and By-Laws may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any regular meeting, providing that a public notice of such amendments shall have been given at a regu-lar meeting of the Association at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

PLATFORM.

PLATFORM. We intend our platform to be bread enough for all candid thinkers, and we invite all who think freely for themselves, and are ready to be true to their con-victions, to unite with us in the search for truth, and to labor with us for the development of true and en-lightened humanity. Come, Materialists, Spiritualists, Naturalists, Christ-lans, extra-Christians, anti-Christians, Delsts, Athe-lats, Free Religionists, Rationalists, Mohammedans, and Pagana, come, meet together and exchange thoughts. "Truth is a prize wherever found.

"Truth is a prize wherever found, On heathen or on Christian ground."

We receive as useful every fact which reason and science can interpret, and recognize human reason, human conscience, and human love, as the grand agents which are to banish from the earth ignorance, vice, poverty, superstition, and misery, and hasten the time when intelligence, truth, virtue, and happi-ness shall reign universal, and man be the joyous re-cipient of all that is good and true.

OFFICEBS FOR 1874.

President, A. Glines; Vice-President, Mrs. E. Wil-son; Secretary, T. B. Whipple; Corresponding Sec-retary, D. K. Boutelle; Treasurer, J. G. Richardson.

THE RIGHT AND WRONG OF PROHIDI-TION.

ence Review. "Stimulation means abstracted, not added, force."

potential power to bran of matter a specie and the series. "Stimulation means abstracted, not added, force." —Quarterly Journal of Science. Tongue cannot tell, and pen cannot write, the evila that inevitably follow, whenever men are thoughtless enough to put this enemy in their months to steal away their brains. It will be observed that it is not the abuse of alco-hol that I deprecate, but its use. Use (as a bever-age) is abuse. My zeal may not be according to knowledge, but I deliberately assume this "hazard-ous position," and trust to the stern logic of facts to support me. Of course, I do not mean to assert that Nature made a mistake in the production of alcohol. On the contrary, on the principle of simila similbus curantur, it is "blighly beneficial" as an antidote to the venom of the ratilesnake; but, taken into man's stomach, either as an article of dilet or as a beverage, its use as a beverage is wrong, prohibition is right. In so complicated a structure as society, it is a very difficult matter to determine just where the rights of the individual cease and the rights of society begin. This is a problem that has engaged the attention of all the legislators from Menu down to the Legislature of Malne, and probably will not be settled until the evolution of the race is completed. This much, how-ever, seems agreed upon, that the law of the greatest gratification of the individual. On this ground, pro-hibition is advocated and defended. Whenever it is proven that tes and coffee make a man either a maniac, a beast, or a fiend, we will un-gratification of the individual. On this ground, pro-hibition is advocated and defended. Whenever it is proven that tea and coffee make a man either a maniac, a beast, or a fiend, we will un-hesitatingly apply the same principle to them. "Have you also considered.... what would be-come of man's morality?" We have. Due consid-eration is a necessary antecedent to the intelligent discussion of any subject; this one in particular. Let me ask a question just here: What becomes of "this presious moral sense of man" under the opera-tion of any punitive law whatever? "Would you prohibit all satisfaction of the sexual passion because some individuals abuse it?" This inquiry is not "quite pertinent," inasmuch as it is not a parallel case. The highest happiness of the individual is secured by the harmonious development and equitable gratification of ALL his facuities and powers. The sexual instinct or propensity is natural abuse only to be guarded sgainst and prohibited. "Moral sussion is a powerful lever in the regener-ation of mankind," admits Mr. Hoover himself in his article; 'but it is not of universal application.' And why not, pray?" I reply: Both Darwin and Spencer have demon-strated that a man is in a great measure the creature of dircumstances, governed by his surumating Now, when he cannot make conditions, he must so manice them as they exist. To illustrate: Suppose and commence murdering your family below you do? You might ty mon washed to would know do? You might you be do to would know him down with a chu with him while down, and turn him ouver to the pro-be do the or wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being tor wrong? If wrong, then all the isw the being to wrong? If wrong the non-resistance do the do not the descure would be non-wrong tor the wrong admitted too muc. The Met Heits discussion, then as these atom the the wrong and the down wrong you the the the the wrong the discussion, then as these atom the the wrong at manifer too, par, oct 24, 195.

BETROSPECTIVE.

DEAR INDEX:--"The desolation that Free Religion makes in the lives of little children" was the ntterance of the Independent not long since, which is depressed. Who of "Free Religioniste" has said so? Whose if among them testifics to this assertion? In the sys of the Christian this is, no doubt, a self-erident representation. proposition.

among them testifics to this assertion? In the rest of the Christian this is, no doubt, a self-stident proposition. Permit one of your readers, dear INDER, to been makes in the lives of little children. Instructed at the knees of a pious mother, at the very earliest age I was taught the stem juite of God; how great a sinner man is by nature; ad that irrespective of the bighest morality which he coal practise; that whatever happened was to happen which doctrine of Calviniam is in accordance with God's will; that the devil is constantly seeking for unwary souls to drag down to the pit of erentain for a secondary shows the stem juite of any souls to drag down to the pit of erentain by the doctrine of Calviniam is in accordance with God's will; that the devil is constantly seeking for unwary souls to drag down to the pit of erentain by the doctrine of Calviniam is in accordance with Ford will; that the devil is constantly seeking for unwary souls to drag down to the pit of erentain bundered from the pulpit; and, as if to make "a-surance doubly sure." I was achooled in Alexander's Fordences of Christianity, Edwards on Redemption, Neason on Infidelity, and Bunyan's Pilorin's fro-ress in which I delighted as my religious Robars forusee. On the other hand, I was taught that if I direct to read "infidel books," I should estimly go straight to—destruction. At an early sge I was received into the church; how could I beh if I is no disgrees to be born, but it is (as I used to beat disagrees ble, to be forced, notens oftens to beat disagrees ble, to be forced, notens oftens, it has a duty became others do. In view of this, it is patent to all that faith of whatever religion in the actustive sensel is merely accidental; and actoring be invited to rail faith of whatever religion in the actustive sensel is merely accidental; and actoring be invited to all that faith of whatever religion in the actustive sensel is merely accidental; and scoping in bland instead of Jesus, at the knees of a Moham medan mother. Those early days

"Now I lay me down to sleep, and

"Our Father who art in beaven,"

I thought, What if

"I should die before I wake"?

I thought, What if "I should die befors I wake"? Shall I be carried off to that "bad place"? How often, in my boyhood days, I asked why Go lets the troublesome devil live at all, and where be came from. My mind was hamted by many other paradoxes such as-How die God make everything out of nothing? How big was nothing? Who made God? etc., etc. I shall not take time to decribe each step of progress out of the "household of inth." Suffice it to say that it is not quite a year since the scales began to drop from my eyes, so that low see by reason-not by faith. Then I was a trembby doubts assail me now as they did them. To attempt to enumerate all the pit-fails of doubt would be to great a task. My creedish chains have broken mder the blows of the anti-theological school of Benan, Strauss, Bichner, Mill, and that class. The nega-tions of so-called unbellef more than compensate for "new birth." Thanka, a thousand thanks, for the "new birth." Thanka, a thousand thanks, for the "inev birth." Thanka, a thousand thanks, for the "inev birth." Thanka, and that class. The nega-tions of my helps in bringing about a full soul-lierly never before possessed. The reputed eye of faith ormerly my own boast, and the boast of all Christ ians, whereby they can see farther into the moral maje atom and income the provide the detain assumption. I am not without a failh, but it is faith in natural goodness versus "total depravity." I so longer estimate a man by what he belieres, but by the measure of his own life. I therefore concludes from my own experience the life longer estimate a man by what he believes, but of us-measure of his own life. I therefore conclude from my own experience that "the desolation that Free Religion makes in the lives of little children" is a dream of the Independent-the nightmare of its faith. I shall see to it that, while my children are not ignorant of biblical knowledge, they shall not be filled with the "desolation" of a gloomy faith and husky creeds-unleas they want them—to the neglect of storing the golden grain of truth, as was my own misfortune. S. M. W. NEW KINGSTON, Pa., November 2, 1874.

Bighter II Google

"IN A FOG."

<text>

made. But ne will nardly be able to impart the comfortable confidence to any considerable portion of his readers. Instead of "extreme forms of doctrine, ultra-com-mercial and penal views," the almost universal cry in our day is of the temporizing spirit which pervades the pulpit, the laxness and looseness with which even essential dogmas are proclaimed. With the excep-tions, perhaps, of Spurgeon and Talmage, what preacher of passable education and culture deals now-adays in the physical horrors of the old-time hell? No; it is the fundamental facts themselves against which the resisticas tide of modern thought and in-vestigation is directed. There is for them no "ex-treme form" and no compromise. Either Jesus was God or he was not. Either his death atones for the sinn of the world or it does not. Either there is an oternity of milsery in store for the unbellering or there is not. It is to these fundamental doctrines, the feeding roots of the theological tree, that the axe is beginning to be laid. How much better to meet the issues fairly than to nourish such fond delusions as those of the Advance1 H. L. B. B.

A CASE OF SPIRIT-RETURN.

It has been often said, by those who are not be-lievers in the Spiritualists' theory of the possibility of the return of departed spirits, that if spirits can return we should get information of ships which have been lost, and of the crews who have per-lahed; seeming to imply that such an occurrence would place beyond the possibility of doubt the trath of spiritual return. I will now write the account of an incident which took place during my first investigations of this sub-ject, which to my mind proved beyond a doubt the fact that a spirit can return, and that it can com-municate with those who are living in the human form.

form

Iorm. In the year 1853, I was in command of the clipper ship Whistler, then loading in Glidden & Williams' line, and bound for San Francisco. The ship Wild Ranger was then on her way to the same port, having sailed two or three weeks previous to the time of which I write.

which I write. One day, having a leisure hour, I thought I would visit a medium, in order to see something of the then so-called delusion. I went to Miss Ellis, a young woman living with her mother on Hanover Street. After sitting at the table for a few moments, she took up a pencil and wrote, upside down to her view but right side up to mine, the name of a person I did not know. I asked for particulars: she wrote that this man who was controlling her had been a seaman on board of the ship Wild Ranger, and had fallen overboard and was drowned. When I arrived at San Francisco, the Wild Ranger had left; but I learned from the Custom House clerk had left: but I learned from the Custom House ch who entered the Wild Ranger that a man had been lost from her during her passage to that port, thus corroborating the statement of the spirit made to me through the mediumship of Miss Eilis (now Mrs. Little Little). I have since seen the captain of the Wild Ranger, J. Henry Sears, Esq., of Boston, and he also con-firmed the account of the loss of the seaman, also the time and circumstances of his death. The above is a pialn statement of facts which can be proved by any one desirous of investigating the subject; and I would ask if there is anything in this incident that looks like fraud, or which can be ex-plained by mind-reading, unconscious cerebration, odic force, or mesmerism? Here was a woman wholly unknown to me, who in odic force, or meanerism? Here was a woman wholly inknown to me, who in a little room on Hanover Street gets a communica-tion from a person unknown to either of us, of an oc-currence which took place off on the Atlantic Ocean, probably two to three thousand miles away, upon a single ship which, solitary and alone, was ploughing her way onward towards the Equator. To my own mind there is no greater proof of the fact that a telegraphic message can be received from Europe than there is in the fact that the way is open for spirits to communicate with mortals when the proper medium is furnished. It may be said that there is no reliability in the truth of the messages

there is no reliability in the truth of the messages often received. Granted; but are you sure that you will always get reliable information from your friend across the water? If that friend is playing you do not for that message to you be alle? Yet you do not for that reason doubt the fact of the message having been sent from him. Tou asy, If my dearest friends can communicate, why do they not come to me direct? Why must I go to a paid medium? As well might you ask, Why can I not send a telegraphic message on a clothes-line? I say to you why due no bject that, in the first place, you may be so constituted that the spiritual power is unable to control your magnetism, or your religious views may be such that you place your whole will-power against it, and thus produces an antagonism which is out of harmony. Do we not know how sen-sitive are the indicators of the telegraphic instra-ments to the electric fluid? Jest so must it be in spiritual communications; and a stubborn or deter-mined resistance to the controlling influence will prevent any manifestation being given. Since the time this incident occurred, I have re-caived many remarkable manifestations of spiritual to simple and conclusive as the one just narrated. I thelligence, but nothing in my axperience so plain, so simple and conclusive as the one just narrated. If thell be most happy to talk with any one who may be interested in this subject.

CHAS. H. BBOWN, 52 Kilby Street, Boston.

A BABY GOD "THE GREAT ELEMENTAL FACT OF CHRISTIANIT

Among the various and conflicting statements by Christian divines as to what is the great distinguish-ing feature of Christianity—that which gives it its vast superiority to all other forms of religious devel-opment,—sufficient notice has not been taken of that set forth recently by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, a Baptist clergyman of considerable reputation in New York city,—as published in the columns of the Sunday School Times. He claims that "the heathen religions," as he calls them, are at a great disadvantage with Christianity

He claims that "the heathen religions," as he calls them, are at a great disadvantage with Christianity in that "their gods were not born as children. They were never endowed with the attributes of children. They never threw themselves into the socialities of children. They were gods of terror, gods of passion, gods of lust, gods of blood, gods of might; but they were never gods of helplessness a span long. O not That would not have been natural; that would not have been divine, in their conception. But the great elemental fact of Christianity is the Holy Child Jesus."

alemental fact of Christianity is the Holy Child Jesus." If this brilliant idea of Dr. Armitage "takes" with the Evangelical public, the baby-God is perhaps des-tined to be as popular with Protestants as "the wafer-God" has been with the Romanista. What an evi-dent advantage, to be sure, for Christians to be able to represent their God in the first stage of child-life, "pulling and puking in the nurse's arms," and in the second, "satchel in hand, creeping unwillingly to school" 1 In the light of this suggestion, how im-portant become those passages of the Apocryphal gospels (albeit they are of doubtful authencity), where the child-God, Jesus, is spoken of at length as entering into "the socialities of children" - making little dirt-pies and puddings, birds and animals, in company with other little Hebrew children, "dirty that the canonical gospels are so very reticent re-specting the childhood and babyhood of Jesus, de-voting in all hardly a dozen lines to the subject! Dr. Armitage should have been on hand sariler with his suggestion. But this is slways the way. In Christianity, as in other things, there is always room for advance, progress in the development of the idea; and the earlier notions may fairly be expected to be comparatively crude ones. If we had a calendar of Protestant saints (as why comparatively crude ones. If we had a calendar of Protestant saints (as why comparatively crude ones. If we had a calendar of Protestant saints (as why should we not?), this suggestion should surely entitle this Baptist divine to a place therein. He should be known as St. Thomas the Less. Perhaps he has strained a point; and ignorantly or unwittingly done injustice to the heathen in claim-ing such ezclusive distinction for Christianity on this account. If we mistake not, Jupiter and Juno, Neptune and Pluto were the children of Saturn and Rhes; and when Jupiter, rebellious boy, put his father into Tartarus, Rhea committed the little Juno to the care of Oceanus and Tethys, by whom she was nurtured in their grotto-palace. So also, in the Hindu mythology, the childhood of Krishna is given with considerable particularity, and the same may be said of several other "heathen gods." But so far as our recollection extends, no heathen writer ever claimed it as the distinguishing feature of his religion that his god was once "s god of helpleseness, not a religion, has broken entirely new ground. Here Christianity may indeed claim to be unique and pe-culiar. The nearest approach to it perhaps, in beathen annals, is that of the devotee who, out of patience with his wooden idol-God, because his peti-tion was unanawered, exclaimed. "Don't go to put-ting on airs, now! Remember I knew you when you were nothing but a cherry-tree!"

ting on airs, now! Remember I knew you when you were nothing but a cherry-tree!" But here, it will be observed, the heathen, with pagan perversity, taunts his God with his small be-ginnings; while our Christian divine, having a true conception of the relations of things, and of the cir-cumstances upon which great grandeur depends, credits his God with special dignity and glory from the very fact that he was once a helpless lump of hu-man clay-- "not a span long." Dr. Armitage, then, has rendered signal service to popular Christianity in setting forth this important dogma in clear and unmistakable terms; and the publishers of the Sunday School Times have done well in taking it up and sending it with their en-dorsement into a countless number of Christian churches and families. Who can say that this mar-terly conception will not yet prove to the Protestant Christian communion what the dogma of the Im-maculate Conception is to the Catholic? Time will tell. SANTA CLARA Cal. Ont 25

SANTA CLABA, Cal., Oct. 25.

THOMAS PAINES GRAVE.

the spot. It is evident that the owner is not bent on any Van-dalism. The fact that he set these posts, and took the trouble also to paint them, showed that he wished to mark the place of the grave, and preserve it from bilinger the set of the grave, and preserve it from

It should be understood that the monument is not over the grave, but about twenty feet north of it. E. Howe, Mott Haven, N. Y.

"IS THERE & GOD 1"

<text><text><text>

TIPPECANOE CITY, Ohio.

THE REEAD-AND-BUTTER OUESTION.

THE BREAD-AND-BUTTEE QUESTION. As long as we have to take care of this body, the care of it is one of the most important of questions, and will bring us back to this aphere, if we think ourselves ever so high "up in the balloon" of intui-tionalism and transcendentalism. Yes, the most exalted and excited theologian who talks of the beauty and bilss of his heaven has to attend first to that question. The Free Religious Association has a splendid start and purpose; if it's carried out, it will bring us the best millenium which we can think of. But it will not succeed, and must die from oversati-mation and cramp, if we are too much or not enough attentive to our daily wants. Our beautiful millend-um may be accomplished in the future; but to pro-vide for a partial one, and to free some troubled souls and bodies from the purgatory of poverty, I enclose here $0.00 as my mite towards a fund to be contrib-nited by those who feel ilks myself. I propose to all that they send their part to our worthy Secretary Wm. J. Potter, and that at the end of every annual meeting, or at any other convenient time, scollection be taken, added to the amount received during the start ned privately presented by the President to one, two, or more (in accordance with the amount) of the also for good mental food, each one shall receive one copy for one year of The INDER, the $3.00 to be paid from said sum. Let every "herd-shell" Liberal manifest his libercopy for one year of a sum from said sum. Let every "bard-shell" Liberal manifest his liber-ality, and "shell out." Amon I CARL H. HORSCH.

DOVER, N. H., November 16, 1874.

[Our droll and generous friend has conceived a noble thought. A fund for the relief of those whose fearless radicalism has involved them in such distress as is described in our editorial columns would be a means of great good. The five dollars have been duly forwarded to Mr. Potter, and we wish that they might prove the nest-egg of a large sum to be used, in strict privacy and with tender respect for honora-ble pride, in such cases as are alluded to .- En.]

Google

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 26, 1874.

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass T HE INDE X

IN ENGLAND.

THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post my part of the United Kingdom on receipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings. For Half Year, Eight Shillings Remittances should be made by Interna-tional P.O. Order psyable to F. E. Abbot.

Address 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A. TYNDALL'S ADDRESS.

We have now for sale at this office the lat-st edition of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the British Association. It is the edition revised and authorized by Prof. Typdall himself, and contains a preface by him and additions to the Address, made since the delivery. Price, THENY CESTS. Address

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.60, $2.-60, and $8.00 respectively. These volumes are arcceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important easays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address THE INDEX, I Tremont Place, heaten

1 Tremont Place, Boston TWO NEW BOOKS.

MODREN CHRISTIANITY, A CIV-ILIZED HRATHENISM. By the author of The Fight at Dame Europa's School.

THE IMPEACEMENT OF THE HOUSE OF BRUNSWICK. By Charles Bradlaugh.

The price of each of these l ooks, in pape covers, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. In cloth binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY SIVE CENTS.

Address			THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.
Т	H,	E	F	R	E	2	E

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOUBNAL AND RE-VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Gallerles, Sc., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the ranning of cheap Sunday Ex-day Evenings for the Feople." and generally to promote everything conductive to rational rescation on Sunday. The free Sunday divocate is published in Honorary Editorial formittee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Marshall, London; Fracis W. Souther, London; Marshall, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Marshall League Marshall, London; Marshall the ANNOAL SUBSORTION for delivery by post to any part of the United States in or goalar (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 268 High Holborn, London, W.O., England.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1
OF
LEADING INDEX WRITERS. Including	2
O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON,	A W
W. J. POTTER, W. H. SPENCER,
F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSET,	FRE
A. W. STEVENS,	. P
F. E. ABBOT, Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX,	INDEX and will be mailed postpaid to any address on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25 conts each; complete Set of Night Photo- graphs, $1.50.	No. 1 1
Address, THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.	FRANG

NDEX TRACTS. I

No. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Principles." MR. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Species," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-mally intended for publication, but subsequently authorized to be used : "I have no read TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my immost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

to. 2.-Fear of the Living Ged, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are worthy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-tion. Frice 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 3.- Lecture on the Bibls, by the Rov. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfec-tions and errors of the Bible, both in the Old and the New Testaments. New Edition, Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

o 4-Christian Propagandism, by F E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Floures, Faste ting Extracts. Price 10 cents 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5.-"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the Unit-ed States Constitution. Frice 10 cents; 10 copies $1.00.

No. 6.-""The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00

No. 7.-44 Compulsory Education," by F.E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price I cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 8.—The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that in-tarests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

to. 9.-The Christian Amendment, by bbot, shows the dangerous charac F.E. ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Consti tution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christi No.10.-The Impeachment of Christian anity, by F.E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-and. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Ab-bot, attempts to show the real influence of odern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1,00.

No. 12.-Is Romaniam Heal Christian ity? Two essays by Francis W. Newman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 15.-On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, analyze the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14.-A Study of Beligion : The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot attempts to abow that the popular derivation of the word Beligion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Beligion among men. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. Address

THE INDEX, 1 TREMOST PLACE, Boston, Mass.

the second se	the second se
8 7 4. THE INDEX, Weekly Journal	PUBLICATIONS, FREE RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATION.
REE RELIGION. PUBLISHED ST THE DEX ASSOCIATION,	Beport of the Addresses and size Proceedings of the Original Res- ing in 1867, at which the Fre Beligious Association was Orga- ized. Containing addresse by0. B Pod- ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lorent Mon, Bobert Dale Owen, John Weits, Chr. John- son, F. & Abbet, D. A Wasses out Place, Beston. EDITOR:

SIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ABBOCIATE RDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.

T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, R.I. W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

E. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.

MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims-To increase general intelligence with respe to religion : To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the indi-vidual:

To substitute knowledge for ignors . right o substatus movinge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for oread, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal ends for shearing in sufficient schemes. for absorption in selfish schemes

In brief, to hasten the day when Free Relig ion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesiasticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here and shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is specia ial ly devoted is the OEGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and edonal institutions of the United State The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of ecclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes the several States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an un-broken front, and the chief practical aim of THE INDEX will be benceforth to organize great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct aid by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL PRATURES.

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each lasse, will continue to be one of the most marked features of THE INDEX.

Begular editorial contributions will con-tinue to be furnished by the well-known emisant writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high po-sition. Mr. VOYERT has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER containing matters of general interest to radcontaining matters or general interest to rad-ical readers. Other interesting correspond-size, communications, extracts from valua-ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in svery city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-The price of THE INDEX is Three Bois-lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by chaque, registered lat-ter, or post-office money order. The name, with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in ach case. with the money in each case.

Address

THE INDEX. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

Manager Blanchard, Larvis Mot, Banchard, Larvis Mot, John Weits, Olive John son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, I. W. Sig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson. (This pamphiet has not been on als bra number of years, and many persons vin have all of the Annual Reports succeeding to not s this.) Price 50 cents. roceedings of Second Annual Moto ing, 1869. 60 conts. Contains many by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and he straint in Religion," and by David 4. Was-son on "The Balation of Social Science in som on "Ine Rainston of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by 0. 2. Frothing-ham, Joses H. Jones, F. S. Abber, Wu Den-ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. & Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Howing Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and others; with an appendix on "Oud Judaism" by Rabbi Wise. Proceedings of Third Annual Hest-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains many by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the es Religious Association," followed by Free Religious Association," followsh by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "De Name of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheer on "Be-ligion as a Social Force, especially in mis-tion to Philanthropy and Reform," saby F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Reigious Organization, as affected by the Spirit of "The Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson "The Natural Sympathy of Religion," fol-lowed by Babbi Wise on "The Permaset and Progressive Elements of Judsim," by T. W. Higginson on "Mohammedanim," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Baligiou of China," and Wm. J. Potier on "Beligion Old and New in India:" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. R. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.

Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meeting, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or nore, S cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Church is America," by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion as the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by 0. B. Frothingham on "The Beligion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cella Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C. A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Loos, and others.

Proceedings of Sixth Annual Hest-ing, 1873. St cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains easys by Samuel Johnson on "Freedom in Baligion," and by John Weizs on "Religion in Freedom, with Johnson on "Freedom in Baligon," and by John Weiss on "Eeligton in Freedom," with addressees by Win. C. Gannet, Eober Dab Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Leefe-low, J. S. Thomson, F. E. Abbot, and Lecretia Mott.

Proceedings of Seventh Annal Meeting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four of more, 30 cents each.) Contains ervictin reports of President Frothinghan's address reports of President Frothingham's scores on "The Validity of the Free Esligious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's essay on The Religious Signs of the Times," of Eabl Sonneschein's speech on "Exformed Jad-ism," and of the statements by Messi-Calthrop, Abbot, and Higgheson of their specific a stitution of the statements by Messi-mention attitution of the statements by Messiapective attitudes towards Christianly-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Er-tra-Christian,"-together with the Berris Annual Report, and letters from Keshub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. WASSON Boligions of China, by Wm. E. Channing. 35 cents.

Beason and Revelation, by William J. Potter, 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jak Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of set, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the o These publications are for sale at the affect of the Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tw-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Boyeri for 1988 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 107 is quite limited. Ordern by swell may be ad-dressed either "Free Beligious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or is the Beoretary, New Bedford, Mass. WH. J. POTTER, Ser. F. L. 4.

574

575

THE INDEX-NOVEMBER 26, 1874. III. Poeds. By Dr. Edward Smith..... L75 IV. Mind and Body, The Theories of their Relations. By Alar. Bain..... L80 V. The Study of Sociology. By Herbert Spencer, By Market State State (Spencer, State State State State VI. The New Chemistry. By Jostah F. L80 VII. The Conservation of Energy. By Hail Cooke, J. State State State (Spencer, State State State State (Spencer, Market State State State (Spencer, Market State State State (Spencer, Market State State State (Spencer) State State State State (Spencer) State State State State (Spencer) State State State State State (Spencer) State State State State State (Spencer) State State State State State (Spencer) State State State State (Spencer) State State State State State State State (Spencer) State State State State State State State (Spencer) State Sta POPULAB BOOKS 1.10 T .................. Journal of Researches. Non and the Low-Emotional Expression of Man and the Low-ef Asimals of Asimals and Flasts under Bornsetication. 3 vols. Unstrander 6.09 JERROLD (DOUGLAS), Pireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers, 1.50 NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Beligion and their Belation to Universal Beligion India ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other BTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will OFTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on ready of orders accompanied with the OASH. lated into English, with Analysis and Init ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master Ballioi College, Orford, and Regius Pr femor of Greak. Four vols...... RERE (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Posms, Patriotic, Santimantal and Humprons....., 2.00 DERBON'S (R. W.) Eamys. First Series, Easys. Scoud Series Encollaries ALCOTT (A. BBONBON). Tablets 140 Onnord Days 140 Becords of a School. A new edition 140 ECEY (W. E. H.) History of the Bise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Easaya. Second Series Mitscellandes. Expresentative Man. Conduct of Life Pooms. With Portrait. May-day and Other Pie Jimmyr. Blue and Gold Portus. Blue and Gold Portus. Blue and Gold Portus. Slue and Gold Portus. Joint. Society and Solitude... tus to Charlemagne, 1 vols...... 6.00
 Pola
 Topola S. B. Little Woman. Two

 Hospital Sketches and Camp and Firselde Stories

 Stories
 An Oid-Fashloned Girl.

 Latis Men.
 Lat

 My Roys, &c.
 Log

 Ward Fashloned Girl.
 Log

 Wir Roys, &c.
 Log

 Work, A Story of Experience
 Log
 Liew 25' Physiology of Common Life. 2 rols. A0 Biographical History of Philosophy, from His Origin in Greece down to the Present 4.00 Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda-tions of a Creed. BUANS (E. P., Ph. D). First Historical Transformations of Christianity. From the French of Athanase Cognorel the Younger. Works of Gotthold Ephraim The Life and Works of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Translated from the German of Adolf Stahr. 3 vols. ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS, 1.50 EWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.50 daismit or, a Few Words to the Jews. 1.00 PARRAR'S Critical Elistory of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Beligion..... AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights, 1.50 Yills Eden; The Country-House on the ONGUELLOW'S (E. W.) Pooms. Fortrait. FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Emposes of Christianity. "George Eliot's" transition. FISKE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 1.0 FROTHINGHAM (O. B.) Beligion of Ha-manity Beliefs of the Unbelievers ...... Child's Book of Beligion ...... Life of Theodore Parker...... 1.00 LOWELL (MRS. A. C.) Posies for Children. .75 1.70 ULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 vols ...... LUBBOCE (SIB JOHN). Origin of Civilian tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man Pre-historic Times. GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Gening An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse quences BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 1.5 MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter. MANN (HOBACE). The Life of Horace Mann. By his Wife. Mann. By his Wife. 500 Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 300 Annual Reports on Education, from 1889 to 1848 Thoughts Selected from the Writings of Horace Mann. 125 MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph-Ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol.... The New Affinities of Faith ..... BEOTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Do-oments, Private Memoranda, and Original Latters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por-trait. MAURICE (REV. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire. Conversion of the Northern Nations..... BAMEBTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter s Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland. Book II. In France. Thought about Art. The Unknown River. The Intellectual Life. Chapters on Animals. - 1.50 - 2.00 - 8.00 - 3.00 HAMILTON (GAIL). Child World, Part Sec. tion
 2.4

 The Subjection of Women
 1.2

 Bassy on Liberty
 1.2

 Representative Government
 1.4

 Autobicgraphy
 2.2

 Meanorial Volume, Els Life and Works
 1.0
 BUECHNER'S Force and Matter ...... 1.2 A WIHOBNE'S (NATHANNEL) Works. New Mustradd Library Edition. Nias vols. Provide-Toid Tales. Momes from an Old Manas. The Scariet Letter, and The Blithedals Ecomarcs. The BCBRIDS Letter, and Andrew Books, and The Bonsince. The House of the Seven Gables, and The Baov Inser. The Marble Faun. The Singlish Note-Books. The American Note-Books. The French and Hallan Note-Books. Our Old Home, and Septimius Fallon. BIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers ... Malbone. An Oldport Bomance. Army Life in a Black Begiment. Atlantic Remays. Oldport Days 1.00 2.00 2.00 1.00 NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Roun the Cirkle HUGO'S (V.) New Novel. " "Ninety-Three"., 1.75 Against Hero-Making in Beligion. PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Makter Fertaining to Beligion. Bysoches, Advesses, and Docessional Ser-ditional Sermons. 2 rols. Critical and Miscolancous Writinge. Historic Americans, - Franklin, Washing-ton, Adams, and Jefferson. With an in-troduction by Row. O. 8. Problingham. demonator of a Speech in Paneeril Hall arguint Kidnapping; with the Defence. The two Christman Celebraione. A.D. L and MDOCOLV. A Christmas Story... Songs of Seven..... INGELOW'S (JEAN) Proce. Off the Skel 1.75 and 1.35 1.25 1.25 .... 1.25 and the Finite PHELPS'S (ELIZABETH STUART.) The Gates Ajar. The Troity Book May, Women, and Ghosts Hedged In The Silent Partner. What to WearT. Lectures. INTERNATIONAL SUIENTIFIC SERIES. No. I. Forms of Water, In Cloude, Rahn, Elvers, Ioe, and Glaciers. By John Tyu-dall ... Physics and Politics; or, Thoughts on the Application of the Principles of "Natural Selection," and "Inheritance" to Political Society. By Watter Bagehot. 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50 1.50

PROCTOR (EICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Curs: the Flurality of Worlds stud-led under the Light of Recent Economo-Light Science for Listaure Hours. A Berles of Faraliar Desaurs on Scientific Embjects, Natural Phenomens. A Berles of Papers of Standiar Bandwards and Science Science Science of Standiar Science Science Science of Standiar Science Science Science of Standiar Science Science Science The Moon, her Motions, Amputes, Charts, science The Science Scien BOSSETTI (CHRISTINA G.) A Shadow of CHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies. CIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.B.S. 2. Chemistry. By Prof. Rescue 3. Physics. By Balfour Stewart, With Il-lustrations. 괬 Iustrations 4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei-kis, LL.D., F.E.S., ferible cloth..... .88 -30 . 12.0 SMILES'S (SAMUEL.) Belf-Help ...... 1.59 SPINOZA (BENEDIOT DE.) Tractatus The-TRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the New Life of Jesus. Authorized transla-tion, 2 yels. n. 1.00 THACKERATS(W. M. Novels. Household Edition. Complete in 5 volumes. Far vol., 1.35 Vanity Fair. The Newcomes. Adventures of Philip. Pendemis. Pendennas. The Virginians. Zemond, and Lovel the Widower. Lyn Unitorn with the Novels. Com-type Unitorn with the Novels. Com-phenio vols. With now Portrait. Fer rol. 135 This edition includes all the matter in the lat-sizing it, with the novels, the cheapents and most complete Thackerny in the market. 8.00 2.50 mpleie Thackerny in the market. 1. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Dhamond, &c. 2. Parti, and Lyna Sketch-Books, &c. 4. Poor Sectes, Bunnis Dural, &c. 4. Poor Georgee, Bunnoriat, &c. 5. Catherine, Christmas Books, and Unre printed Picees. .75 1.50 BAXTER'S (MRS. CELIA) Among the Isles of Shoals. 1.30 THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in 2.60 of Mankind ankind. Itive Oulture. 2 vols...... TNDALL (JOHN). Paraday as a Dis 1.00 2.00 2.50 2.6 1.5 4.50 WARNER'S (CHABLES D.) My Sum nier in 2.00 1.78 WEISS (JOHN.) American Beligion ...... 1.09 Life of Theodore Parker, 2 vols......... 6.09 1.00 4.50 Washington and the Aevolution WHITNEYS (Mins, A. D. T.) A Summer in Lealth Goldibwshie's Life. We Girls: A Home Story Reast Polks. The Other Girls. Pansies. A volume of Posma...... 5.00 1.50 1.80 3.0 ADDRIB

T H E IND 1 Trument Place, Bo

Demodes Google

WOTE, With a compute mast, with ARLYLES Works, Chespedition. Compris-tion of the following: Miscellances Essays, T reas, Fronce Hevolution, 3 vois.; Troder-des, 5 vois.; Sartor Hesertus, I voi.; John Storiting, 1 voi.; Lafe of Schiller, 1 voi.; John Storiting, 1 voi.; Lafe of Schiller, 1 voi.; Past and Present, 1 voi.; Hevoes and Hero War-ship, 1 voi.; Latter Day Pamphiets, 1 voi. Any voiume sold separately. 31 vois. Lon-don, 1671-3. Per voi GOOL MOLES (D.S. W. B.) The Principles of Moutal Physiology, with their Applica-tions to the Training and Disciples of the Mibod, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-ions. 100 OREVANTES' Don Quixote ...... 1.50

BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls

SENT BY MAIL

42

PUBLISHERS' PRICES!

ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.

Orders are respectfully solicited for

LOOTT (LOUISA M). Little Woman, Two

BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of

I vol The Se

all friends of THE INDEX.

7

GRANNING (WM. ELLERT, D.D). The Per-fect Life. In Twelve Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. Easy Channing.

COBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethleal and Social Subjects. Derwinism in Morals, and other Remys.... The Estigious Demands of the Age.....

OGERELATION and Couservation of Ferres A Sories of Expositions by Grovs, Hein-bolts, Mayer, Faraday, Liebis and Carpen-tar: with an Iniroduction by Edward L. Toumans, M.D. 1 vol.

OHANNING (WM. ELLERT). Thoreau: The Post Naturalist. With Mamorial Verse. 2.00

1.5

OLARKE (JAMES FREEMAN). Ten Great

FAMILY PUPILS.-Two or three more pupils, girls or boys, over thirtsen, will be received into the family of the sunsorb-er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, BHERDORN, MARS.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Bisse, Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Iten ed pamphiets free. Address BEDGEBEER, SMEPARD & MILLER, 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Onio.

H. H. CHANDLER.

576

W. S. EDES.

D. M. LORD. H. H. CHANDLER & CO.,

NEWSPAPES

ADVEBTISEMENT BROKERS, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS. RELIGIOUS and AGBICULTURAL NEWSPA

The a specialty. Complete files for inspection of advertisers. Lists seat upon application. Send for estimates.

LTMAN 7 8 A

NEW ADVERTISEMENT! M. ALTMAN & CO.,

Sirth Ave. and Ninsteenth St., N. Y.

Sixib Ave. and Ninsteenth St., N. Y. MORENS ALTEAN been to state to his old triends and patrons that he has made extensive reductions in his various departments, and ear-neatily calls attention to the following quota-tions. The fullest astisfaction is guaranteed in overy instance, and all goods not suiting will be exchanged, of the mon in true has immediate dis-blan of orders by mail, a P.O. order, draft, or repress sent C.O. D. Backages can be sent by mail at the rate of two cents for every four ounces, and one can for every additional two ounces or fraction thereof under for Biovart & Co., H. B. Clamin & Oo. Z. S. Jaffrey & Co., J. B. Spollman & Co., and all the leading houses in New York city; also to D. M. Beomet, Editor of the STwith Sacker, will known to all Liberals, and our responsibility, integrity, &c.

Notion Department.

All goods jucidental to this department, not berein comprised, are in stock, and will be fur-nished at equally low prices. Clark's O. N. T. Spool Cotton, warranted, at 65c. per dos.

per doz. Ciarkis Cotton in black spools at 88c, per doz. Brooka's Glazed Cotton, while, black and col-ored, 88c, per doz. Costan's while, black and colored Cotton at 88c.

Coates's white, black and colored Cotton at 68c. per dox. Corticelli's and Bolding's black and colored Sewing Kilk; 100 yard spools, at 10c, per sport. Corticelli's black and colored Button Hole Twist at 2c, per spool. Entiting Cotton, white and colored, at 9c, per ball.

Milward's best Helix needles at 6c. per paper. Milward's best Helix needles at 6c. per paper. Crowley's patent Helix Needles at 5c. per paper. Millmers' best needles at 6c. per paper and upwards. Patent Safeir Pins at 6c. per dos. Prench Hair Pins at 6c. per dos. Best American Pins at 6c. per paper for 3c. Best English Hair Pins, all sizes, at 6c. per paper. Best English Hair Pins, all sizes, at 6c. per paper.

box. Ingliah Pin Books, black and white assorted, at itc.

15c. Triing Fine, Io all eizes, at 6c. and upwards. ions of every description, in all the leading fice, greatly reduced. from 10c. to $1 per dos. and colored Alpaca Braids, 6 yd. pieces.

black and coursed Alpaca Braids, 5 yd. pucces, at 60. "Can't break 'um" forset Steels at 160, per pair. Cotton Cornet Laces, all lengths, at 180, per dox. Linen Cornet Laces, a yds. ing, at 50, oech. Whalebones, full lengths, at 450, per dox. Just Beads, all sizes, erory variety in latest nov-silies, at 50, per bunch. "This department is replete with the thousand end one oricite pertaining theredo, impossible to men-tion herein. Dresemakers, Milliners and Store-keepers will be supplied with goods on munnally advanta-geons lorms, and every care and dispatch will be used in filling orders.

Millinery Department.

One of the largest and the most elegant and original assortments of imported novelides to be found in this city is now in stock, including the following specialties. All goods selling lower than any other bouse:-

Links may occur nouse... A beautiful assortment of French Flowers, in Boses, Ruds, Pansies, &c. Floral Dress Triumings and Bridal Wreaths, branched to order in any style. A line assortment of Fouppons, Feathers and A line assortment of Fouppons, Feathers and

A fine assortiment of roupone, science, wings, An eri-neive assortiment of Fancy Feathers from 25c, upwards. All the newest shades of Ostrich and Plans de Cock for trimming from 55c, and upwards. All the newest styles of Blue Steel and Jet Or-namonic as the lowest prices. Elexant Ostrich Plannes, all the intest shades, $7 and upwards. Plane French Ostrich Tips, in all shades, $60, and upwards.

Pine French Ostrich Tips, 12 at: samon, we upwards. The latest shapes in Fell Hais at S5c. Elegant imported Fell Hais, bet quality, at §1.15. Drab Fell Hais, in the latest and most imahion-able styles. at S5c. and upwards. Silk Velvet H.4s. of our own importation, in all qualities at groat bargains. Broning Boancis, slegantly trimmed, from $20 to $25.

Evaining Boancis, siegantly trimmen, trom sav to $30. Carriage Bonnets, erquisite in design and qual-ity, from $15 to $30. Ladicet and Missee' Bonnets, for Missee' and ready on wear, to all shapes and shades, ready trimmed in insteat syles, from $31 o $31. Infauls' Caps in all the new styles at great bar-gains, or made to order at lowest prices. Mourning Goods made to order at the earliest notice.

Colored Triuming Silks, in all shades, $1.38 and $1.49. d Dress Silks, latest styles, $1.25, $1.50, $2, Satins, beautiful lustre, at $1.50, $1.75 d $2. ored Satins, all fashionable shades, $1.50, $2. of $2.35. ok and Colored Veivets at $1.50, $2, $2.60

Diack and Glored Velvsta at and Slo. Black and Slok Velvsta at 35, 36, 58 and Slo. Blik Cloak Velvsteen, spleidid manufacture, at 60c., 76c. and Sl. worth Slot. 76c. and Sl. worth Slot.

That Saabes in every shade and color. Bash Ribbous in all colors and widths, from 55c. and upwards. Colored Fringed Sashes, all the new shadee, at very low prices.

Laces and Embroideries. These goods will be found extraordinary bar-gains, and include :--

Hamburg edging at 10c, per yd, and upwards. Real Guipure Laces from Mc. par yd, and up-

Blac the Thread Laces from 20c. per yd. and npenciennes Edging at 5c. per yd. and upwards. ent Valenciennes Miging at 5c. per yd. and upwards. eaded Black Tak Laces at 25c, per yd. and npwards. leaded Black Yak Insertion at 35c, per yd. and upwards. Blark Yak Laces at 18c, per yd. and upwards. Utop Laces at 16c, per yd. and upwards. Colored Blonde Laces at 10c, per yd. and up-white binned Laces at 8c, per yd, and upwards. Spanish Lace for Scarts at 80c, per yd, and upwards. Back with Lace for Scarts at 80c, per yd, and up-Ward Lace Vells, all patterns, 50c, per yd, and upwards, Black Silk Fringe at 18c. per yd. and upwards. Black Silk Beaded Fringe at 26c. per yd. and up Black Silk Beaded Fringe at Sc. per yd. and up-wards. Black Billion Fringe at Sc. per yd. and upwards. Black Billion Fringe at Sc. yer yd. and upwards. Black Beaded Gimps at Sc. per yd. and upwards. Large assortment in Hamburg Embroideries. Large int of Hamburg Easertion at Sc. per yd. Swiss Medallion Embroideries, great variety, at very low prices. Lace Tilles, in every variety, at lôc. and up-wards.

Ladies' Underclothing.

A valuable reduction in prices has taken place in this department, and we emphatically state that no other house can compete with the gen-eral inducements we offer. We quots the foi-lowing as samples, which for superiority of workmanable, quality and price are not to be accelled in this sity:-- acelled in this city :--adies' Pias CHEMISES, warranted Muslin, fin-iahed superbly on Wheeler & Wilson machine, French coreded band, extramely nears, at 80. adies' Pias CHEMISES, fluished as abow, with 75 tucks, yoke back and front, handsomely stitched, corded band and elevers, at $1.50, adies' CHEMISES, en pointe, Fronch pattern, with fune, hand-made, needlework edging and insertions 14.8.

Like Pile Andream and a large and any strategy of the total of orthogonal and a large any strategy of the second strategy of

Hosiery, &c.

dies' iron frame Hose, excellent quality, 15c. Ladies' iron Frame Hose, szcoucat quanty, izo. per pair. Ladies' Full Regular-made Hose at 28c, per pair, Ladies' Full Regular-made Hose at 28c, per pair Ladies' intriped Hose, every quality, 46c, per pair a full line of Ladies' Cashmers and Woolen Hose at lowest price. Children's White and Colored Hose, in every Nyle. Guiden's White and Colored Hose, in every Nyle. Guide regeclairy. Gente' Full, Regular ½ Hose, chespest in the rily at 22c, per pair. Genta' Merino and Cashmere Hose at 35c, and upperformed the section of the s upwards. Gents' Shaker Bocks, not to be excelled, at Mc.

per pair. Ladies' Hemstitched Handkerchiefs at 12c. and upwards. Genis' Lines Handkerchiefs, superior quality, 18c. and upwards. Gonts' Hemetitched Handkerchiefs, all lines, Mc. and upwards.

We have just revelved a fine assortment of Ladies' and Gonta' Kid Gloves, including the foi-lowing neeclatities. Every pair ripping or tear-ing will be replaced on application: Single-Inition Black and Goloved Kid Gloves, 50c.

Single-Huiton Biack and Colored Eld Giorea, 80c. per pair. N'st grade, better, warranted, 2-buitoned, 80c. "Aliman's" Kid Glove, our own make, in black and all Tashonsolo shades, 2-buitoned at $1.25

notice. Silics. Sil

Gents and Children, at the lowest prices, from Sc. to $1.09 per pair. Gents' flow French Logakin Gloves, every color, at $1.29 per pair. Ganta flow Fronch Gloves, succellent wear, $60.

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT. CONSTANT Emrande, Sa aver we ranted. No capital required, Farticular and valuable sample coat free, Address, with six-cent return stamp. C. Russ. Williamsburg, N.Y.

FREE DISCUSSION

in held at HOSPITALLER HALL BE Walking ton Street, Boston, every Sundar Walking Sy and YK F.M. All that relates in a bit All Son Political, and Social interests of much Holdson and Index Tracts are for sale every Young a Hospitaller Hall.

J

OHN FISKE's

NEW

"COSMIC PHILOSOPHY"

(JUST OUT.)

G. L. HENDEBSON & CO.,

BANKEBS.

LEROY, MINN.

Branch Office, 187 Breadway, S. T.

Money Invested in First Morgadway, H. I. Money Invested in First Morgages and proved Farms in Minnesota and long tra-ning three to five years, with Coupon Inferent Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annuly in ad-vance, or ten per cent, per annuly in ad-advance, or 12 per cent, per annuly, free of expense to the Loaner. To por cent, paid on receipt of most at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Particulars, send for Circlar.

1ST BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK

It is full longth. It is full she, it is smeeth and elastic, and is squally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a part fraud, being not only shorter in length, but a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be mit for use. The ladies will always find the fareks Silk exactly as represented. Bwy spool is warranted, and the manufacture's name indelibly branded on every speel. Call

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cent interest s

Investments in Real Estate in Chappen and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and sales modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

ERNST PRUSSING, 143 BANDOLPE STREET

Chicago (Established 185),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstchase securities always on hand. In-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission of on nhares; taxes paid, Sc. Orders of capitalitist and real estate swi-ers respectfully solicited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

PIANO AT HOME, A large collection of the best

FOUR-HAND PIECES FOR THE PIANO-FORTE.

No book is better fitted for "Home" Ma-sical entertainment than this. Begineer oan play the easier ducts. Advanced play-ors and teachors need not to be told this practice with four hands is the very best is acquire "time" and "cortainty." Practice in the "Plano at Home" is nothing but a continual pleasure. 200 papers. full sheat music size. Is bonds.

250 pages, full sheet music size. In boards, $2.50; cloth, $5.00; full gilt, $4.00.

For CHOIRS: THE LEADER. Price $1.8 For SINGING SCHOOLS: THE SONG MON-ARCH, 75 cts.

THE EMERSON METHOD

FOR REED OBGANS.

By L. O. EMERSON and W. S. B. MATTREWS. Easy and progressive lessons, scales, stat-ies, voluntarice, interindes, quarter, songs, and other pleces in profusion. All well ar-ranged by skilful hands. Price $2.50.

For CHOIRS: PERKINS' ANTHEN BOOK. $1.60. For QUARTET CHOIRS: THOMAS'S QUARTETS, $2.50.

Specimen copies sent post-paid for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

(Manual b) Google

BOSTON. CHAS. H. DITSOT & CO.

TIL BROADWAT, NEW YORK.

0.

for it.

bottle

bottle

THE INDEX. 1 Tremont Place, Bos

Price, post-paid, $8.00.

For sale by

Gents' Furnishing Goods. This department is replete with a splendidly asorted stock, and our prices are such as under-oll any other establishment where quality is in-. Gents' Merino Shirts and Drawers, 50c.

100 dos. Gents' Morino Caura and upwards. 20 dos. Gents' Ecol Flannel, woven vory fine, at 31.08 and upwards. "Our own make" bains Shirta, perfect fit. made or cload at back, at 812.09 per 25 dos. Extra-fine, perfoctly-fitting Dross Shirts, New York Mills Maalin, with Elchardson's best Blaom bosons, made in any style to order, at 814.09 per 24 dos.

beenms, made an way ways a start of the second seco PWA

Windsor Scarfs, best quality, at SSc. and ante and Colored Ties in endless variety at 45c. Gents' Collars and Cuffs in all the latest styles. Gents' Collars, pure linen, latest styles, at $2.00 per dos. Gents' Columbia 3-ply linen Collars, at $1.90 per dos.

doz. Genta' turn-down Collars at $1.76 per doz. Genta' 5-piy Coffs at 25c. per pair. Genta' St. James Cuffs, 3-piy, all lineu, at 31c per pair. Gents' Einwood Paper Collars at 23c. per boz. Gents' Superior Paper Collars at 23c. per boz. Gents' common Paper Collars at any price p 1961 box. box. harge assoriment of Boys' Merine Shirts and Drawern st Sto. adles Maracco Fockst Books from 16c. and up wards. Ladies' real Bussian Leather Pocket Books from Sc. and upwards. Ladies' and Misses' Merino Vests and Drawers, all prices.

Tollet Department, Jewelry, ac.

Tooth Brushes, excellent to best, from ISc. and wards. Nail Brushes, every style, from 13c. and upwards. Hair Brushes, every style, from 28c. and up-wards. Dressing Combs from 18c. and upwards. Hand Mirrors, elagant designs, from 31c. and upwards. Tortoine-Shell Back Combs from 25c. and upwards. Ladies' Bubber Belt Buckles from 25c. and up-

Ladies' Eubber Belt Buckles from 25c. and up-wards. Ladies' Jet Belt Buckles from 25c. and apwards. Ladies' Jet Earrings, istest design, from 19c. and adies' real Garnet Sets from 38c. and npwards. adies' Bracelets, of all kinds, from Sc. and np-indice' Bracelets, or an ennues, actor wards. Ladies' Boaded Belis from 25c. and upwards. Ladies' Leather Belts from 26c. and upwards. Ladies' Rabber Belts from 36c. and upwards. Ladies' Boaded Pockets from 36c. and upwards. Ladies' Loader Satchels, in novest styles, $1.30 Ladies' real Bustan Leather Satchels, $4.30 and upwards.

upwards. Boye' and Childrens' full, regular-made Shirts and Drawers, at 71c. and upwards. Children's Marino Dresses, all sizes, $1.25 and Children's Marino Drusses, and answ, gran Ladiet Shawi-Straps from 45c, and upwards. Children's School Bags from 81 to 85c. Ladiet Ties from 32c, and upwards. Ladies Ties from 32c, and upwards. Ladies' Janan Culffs from 5c, per pair and up wards. adies' Neck Ruffling from 15c. and upwards. adies' Underslesves from 55c. and upwards.

Perfumery, &c.

Sonps.

Tollat Boaps of avery description from 5c. pe cakes and upwards. Honey Soap at 7c. per cakes. Giverine Soap at 7c. per cakes. Giverine Soap at 7c. per cakes. Transparenet Soap at 10c. per cake. Transparenet Soap at 10c. per cake. Tar Boap at 10c. per cake. Bath Soap at 10c. per cake. Casdie Soap at 5c. per cake. Casdie Soap at 5c. per cake.

actile Soap at 7c. per cake. Iver Soap, for cleaning sliver and gines, at 7c. per cake.

Ribbons of all styles, colors and widths at prices that will astonish customers. In Velvets, Velvetens, and all kindred goods, we have a full stock, from which we cut on bias at wholesale prices. Jet and Gilt Earrings, Pins and Bracelets from 20c, per pair, or per set, as high as $5, according to quality and design. We have on hand 5000 pieces of worsted, ball and twisted Fringes, now so much in use, in the intest styles, in all colors, which we offar at the unheard-of low price of 46c, per yard. Fringers, to reserve to much in orgue, which we offer at $20c, to 30c, per yard.

we offer at 25c, to 30c, per yard. We guarantise that, in the exercise of our own indigment, upon receiving as user a description of what is desired as possible, and the price willing to be paid, we will give entire satisfraction, or re-fund the money. Goods may be returned to us C. 0. D. I will pervenally attend to all orders coming through the Liberal papers, and having for many years past filled orders for the readers of this methy and filled orders for the readers of this setting all goods. All goods not mentioned having the readers of this setting all goods. All goods not mentioned having the sindi-clously selected and as readly sent as those oun-merated, adles' and Missed' Suits and Gentle-met's Clothing may be confidently ordered, on describing the style required, the measurement, and about the price desired to pay. I make my-sit personally responsible for the astifactory setting all or every analogs the astifactory setting all price desired to pay. I make my-sit personally responsible for the astifactory steepuloe of all orders. Address of the firm of M. ALTMAN & CO.,

MORRIS ALTMAN,

6th Ave. and 19th St., N. Y. City. Naw Tong Nov. 11.

Lily-White Face Powder at 28c, per box. Imported Face Powders at 21c, per peckage. Liblin's Powders at 18c, per peckage. Wenck's Florida Water at 30c, per bottle. Wenck's clebrated Pertumes at 75c, per b Thurston's Tooth Powders at 11c, per bottle Vaseline Pomade for the hair at 61c, per b Perfumeries from 10c, to 40c, per bottle.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1874.

Index.

WHOLE NO. 258.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

1. We demand that churches and other ecclesizational property shall no longer be szempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued.

3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

shall cease.
4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.
5. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.
8. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the governument shall be abol-ahed, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pea-alties of perjury shall be established in its stead.
7. We demand that all have directly or indirectly onforo-

7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-nealed.

peased. 8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and impartial liberty.

equal rights, and impartial liberty. 9. We domand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the servial States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely sceniar basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinctingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and,

religion; and, Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following EBAL LEAGUE OF _____. ART. 2.—The object of the Liberal League shall be to se-sure practical compliance with the "Demands of Liberal-am" throughout the country, and especially in ____: Also, as soon as five hundred ench Liberal Leagues shall have been formed in different places, to send two delegates to a National Convention of Liberal Leagues, to be horead-ar called, in order to co-operate with all the liberal of the sountry in securing the needed reforms.

Ast, 3.—The means employed in working for these objects hall be regular local meetings, free discussions, lectures, iddresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-ral, and all such other means as are pesceable, orderly, ad right.

and right. Aux. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a wo-thirds vote of the members. Aux. 5.—Any person may become a member of the League y subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-ion.

Agr. 6.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, Vice President, a Scoreiary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-res Commonly pertaining to these offices. The President ad Scoretary shall be accofficed delegates to the Natural onvention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Aur. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended fa three-fourths voie of the members present at any reg-ar meeting, provided due notice of the proposed manod-ents shall have been sent to eyory member at least two seks previous to such meeting.

ELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE TRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTICLE 1.

ARTICLE 1. SECTION 1.—COMPTESS shall make no law respecting an es-bilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of gino, or prohibiling the free sercise thereof, or abridg-g the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-ment for a redress of grievances. Factrox 2.—No State shall make any law respecting an tablishment of religion, or favoring any particular form religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or ridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the thot of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition 5 Government for a redress of grievances. No religious teshil ever he required as a codition of fuffrage, or as unification to any office or public trust, in any State; d no person shall ever in any State be depived of any the of the private duty, or ten-relig incompetent to give evidences its nor of its or ten-relig incompetent to give evidence is any court of law or its ensure to fany options he or she may hold the subject of religion. — arrivar 3.—Congress shall have power to enforce the pro-line social social social this Article by appropri-legilaiton.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page. GLIMPSES.

WHAT HAS become of the Chinamen at North Adams? Is the experiment a success or a failure? JOHN STUART MILL says: "Regularity in the domestic relations is in almost direct proportion with Industrial civilization." THE "Moral Education Association" will hold a meeting at 3 Tremont Place, on Friday, December 4, 3 P. M. All are cordially invited.

LUTHER believed in witchcraft on Bible grounds. He said: "I would have no compromise with these witches-I would burn them all."

ABCHBISHOP BAGLEY, of Baltimore, hopes that England will not "dance to the music" of Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Gladstone equally hopes that she will not dance to the Pope's music.

HAS NOT the New Bedford society yet received the official interrogation of the Year Book compilers as to their Christian standing? We have seen no announcement of the fact. But the Year Book's "honesty" being at stake, the delay is doubtless accidental.

THE POPE thanks Cardinal Cullen and his bishops for denouncing Tyndall, and declares that nothing is to be so dreaded as "those spiritual pirates whose trade is to despoil the souls of men." He thinks it all right to make reason walk the plank, and sees no piracy in faith's confiscating the cargo.

"THE BELIEF in democracy," says the Saturday Review, "has become a superstition in the United States." Perhaps America is superstitiously devoted to democracy, but she may quote Mother Goose to England :-

"I'm Tommy Tinker's dog: Whose dog art thou?"

THE PRINCE OF WALES, who is one of the patrons of the London Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is very fond of pigeon-shooting, and in fact is complimented by the Examiner as being "the leading dove-killer of the lot." Consistency seems to be one of the birds the Prince's rifle has brought down.

THE LONDON Spectator is not enamored of the doctrine of the Unknowable: "At all events, in the present day and amongst intellectually cultured people, it takes, we think, more courage to make a stand against the presumptuous modesty of the philosophy of nescience than against the narrow bigotry of the-ological restriction."

THE SECTS are given to exultation over their rapid increase. But it is stated on apparently good authority that, while the population of the country has increased two hundred per cent. within twenty-five years, the membership of the Protestant churches has increased only fifty per cent. in the same period. How much longer will the United States be reckoned a "Christian country"?

A LITTLE boy who wanted to be "good" was told by his mother to pray. He declared he had prayed, but didn't get good. He was then told to keep on praying; but, remembering the frequent admonition, he replied, "I don't want to keep teasing God all the A useful comment on the parable of the time." "Unjust Judge," as well as on the constant injunction of the Orthodox pulpit.

"WHAT! Do you smoke?" asked a gentleman of a little Frenchman, who offered him a light. "O yes! I loves everyting dat is vicked !" was the smiling reply. If the reprobate foreigner had merely called himself the "chief of sinners," and sighed lugubriously, what applause he would have won from the elect! But to crack a joke on his own depravity-that calls for church discipline.

THE WARDEN of the Massachusetts State Prison

announces that, on account of the dull times and consequent enforced idleness of the convicts, a day school has been tried in that institution-"an experiment which had proved so successful that it would be continued hereafter, work or no work." This is excellent news, and favors an optimistic view of the hard times through which the country is passing.

IT WAS an easy thing to interrogate a few ministers as to their "Christianity," for the Unitarian Association can spare them without suffering in its recelpts; but the professions made of high regard for "accuracy" and "honesty" will be put severely to the proof, when it comes to catechizing the societies whose donations constitute the Association's revenue. Virtue requires two "honest" lists, if it requires one. Or does courage give out?

ME. BAGEHOT says in his Physics and Politics : "The nations with a thoroughly compacted family system have 'possessed the earth;' that is, they have taken all the finest districts in the most competed-for parts, and the nations with loose systems have been merely left to mountain ranges and lonely islands. The family system, and that in its highest form, has been so exclusively the system of civilization, that literature hardly recognizes any other."

REV DR. WEST locates Professor Swing on the theological chart by giving his latitude and longitude in this wise : "Professor Swing is simply a panthelatic Arian of the Eutychian type, a monophysite and a monothelite and ..., does not preach the Apaugaa-mal Brilliance of Godhead's glory, ... but is a Macedonian." He also declares that Professor Swing's Trinity "is only a Triadity, a Modalism, not a Hypostatical Trinity, or Trinity of Persons."

PRECISE DEFINITIONS are a great aid to thought. Here are a few that may be of use: "He who steals a million of dollars is a shrewd financier. He who steals half a million is a defaulter. He who steals a quarter of a million is an irregular financier. He who steals a hundred thousand is a rogue. He who steals fifty thousand is a knave. He who steals one thousand is a villain. But he who steals a pair of boots or a loaf of bread is a scoundrel of the deepest dye, and deserves incarceration in a prison."

PRINCE BIBMARCE told Herr Reichensperger, in the Reichstag, that the latter "placed the subjective conscience above the objective law," and that "the ultramontanes and the social democrats held ideas of conscience which cannot be adopted as a standard." These conflicts of conscience will continue until scientific ethics shall furnish a common standard of right and wrong for society and the individual. If "objective law" means State enactments only, it has no claim to override the private conscience, whose appeal to the "higher law" is always in order; but this "higher law" is the law of universal Nature, not only subjective but objective also, and therefore binding alike on the private and public conscience.

MB. GLADSTONE declares that it has been a favor-Ite purpose of his life "not to conjure up, but to con-jure down, public alarms." Nevertheless he also declares that the medizoval claims of the Papacy have been disinterred, "like hideous mummies," not in the interest of archeology, but with a very definite purpose; and this purpose, he says decidedly, is "to renew a struggle for the temporal power." Hence Mr. Gladstone appears unequivocally as an anti-Papist. Did he but perceive that Papism is the necessary historical outcome of the original claim of Jesus to be the Christ, and that Roman Catholicism is therefore nothing but ripened Christianity, he would be an anti-Christian too. Cannot American liberals supply the missing insight, and recognize the actual state of things to-day? Freedom is by its very nature anti-Christian, and is in peril until she knows it.

LIST OF LIBERAL LEAGUES.

ST. LOUTS, MO.-M. A. MCCOrd, President; P. A. Lofgreen, L. La Grille, Secretaries. BOFTON, MASS.-F. E. Abbot, President; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Scortaries. JEFFERSON, ORIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddings, Secretario. Secretary. Secretary. TOLEDO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Beckley, Secretary. Vigsilard' N. J.-- John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, Securitary. Secretary. JONOTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Eastman, President; B. L. Easley, Socretary. OLATHE, HAX-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, crotary. BOIT, MIGH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, DETROIT, Secretary. Busgrowthing, MicH. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Knowles, Secretary. Geosola, Mo.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. 8 ATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Buslin, Wis.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary. E. M. Bridgman. BERLIN, WE.--President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman.
 WABHINGTON, D.C. -- George M. Wood, President; J. E. OrawIord, Secretary.
 AUBURS, OBIO--JOHN Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treasurer.
 MINNALPOLIS, MINN.--President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen.
 NEW YORK, NY.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary.
 ST. JOERTS, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. ST. JOERFH. MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Beretary.
Beretary.
Beretary.
Beretary.
Beretary.
Wis.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Kennedy.
BalnEG, ND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen.
New ORLEANS, LA.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary, J. E. Wallace.
Hay Cirv, Micu.-President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson.
Chamstrathy. Pa.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary.
Saux Cirv, Wis.-Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary.

Secretary. Augusta, Wis, - Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vaux, Secretary. [For THE INDEL.]

The Significance of the Christian Name.

AN ESSAY BEFORE THE UNITABIAN "MINISTERIAL UNION," AT HOLLIS STREET CHUBCH, BOSTON, NOVEMBER 9, 1874.

BY REV. EDWIN S. ELDER.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

out. The query of this essay is this.— Is the name of the personal, historical, and par-ticular to be applied to that which transcends all personal and temporal limitations? Can the consciousness of those immediate relations subsisting between the soul of man and the Infinite Soul, God,—can the life to which this religious con-sciousness gives rise.—be designated properly by the name of any one religious system? When it was believed that religion had come into the world from without the world, it was proper to give to it the name of him who was believed to have brought it; but a different conception of the nature of religion and its relation to man suggests a doubt as to the propriety of applying the old name to the later conception.

to the propriety of applying the old hadre to the factor conception. Within the present century very much has been done toward acquainting us with the actual relations subsisting between spiritual truth, and the human soul, and human life and character. We have learned very much about other religions than our own, that they all claim supernatural and super-human origin; we have learned that any religion making its appearance at a time when ONLY the superhuman and supernatural are thought to be divine will inevitably claim for itself a superhuman and supernatural origin; we have learned that the fundamental principles of religion and morality are common to all religions. Zoroaster, Confucius, Plato, Buddha, are found to have taught those truths that are spiritually discerned. An acquaintance with other religions has tended to make intelligent Christians more catholic and tol-erant; they no longer insist upon asserting thel-ownership of all religious truth found in other re-ligions, but content themselves with applying the name of their system to all truth wherever found. This partial acquaintance with other religions changes the stand-point of those who would study their own. They obtain a new and more adequate conception of the relation of different religions to each other.

each other. They become acquainted with the process of birth, growth, transformation, and decay, through which the different religions have passed. They note the influence of one religiou upon another. They dis-cover the law of religious development. They dis-cover the law of religions are largely a product of human thought, feeling, and experience; that a religion making its appearance at any time in the world will inevitably partake of the limitations of the age in which and the people among whom it has its birth. It is a significant fact that an accumintance with world will inevitably partake of the initiations of the age in which and the people among whom it has its birth. It is a significant fact that an acquaintance with the religions and philosophical tendencies more intimately connected with the Christian system is af-fecting the opinions concerning the relation of the Christian religion itself to other religions. Christ-ian scholars can no longer think of Christianity as distinct from, or indeed greatly differing from, those phases of faith with which it was most intimately associated ; neither can they help recognizing the fact that all that is best in the teaching of Jesus is universal, existing in the nature of things; that what is divine in the teaching and life of Jesus is natural and native to the human sout. Other changes are taking place which are affecting the actitude of many thoughtful religionists toward the exclusive claims of any inherited system. There are those who not only perceive that religion in all its completeness transcende any one language, but (what is of more importance) they are conscious of religion more immediate than any inherited system can be; they experience a religiousness that, so far as they are conscious, is not dependent upon, and is in no way connected with, the teachings or religiousness of one individual; they find themselves approaching and apprehending religion through their own spirit-ual experiences. Religion comes to them at first hand; they find in the religions is there are the world expressions of their own religiousness. They believe that the truest religions is at hing of the pres-ent; that the relation between themselves and the infinite Soul is immediate. This teadency of thought and experience ultimates in the recognition of religion as something transcend-

Infinite Soul is immediate. This tendency of thought and experience ultimates in the recognition of religion as something transcend-ing all historical and personal limitations and ex-pressions, and consequently in an unwillingness to use any personal or historical term as the name of that which is not historical or personal, but natural, ise any personal or historical term as the name of that which is not historical or personal, but natural, human, universal. Another tendency that is not without its influence upon the use of the name Christian is the habit of regarding moral and religious truth as existing in the nature of things, independent of any particular ex-pression or manifestation of them,—as sustaining an immediate relation to the moral and spiritual fac-ulties which are declared to be supreme. This grow-ing recognition of the self-subsistence of moral and religions truth, and the absolute supremacy of the moral and spiritual faculties, is the reverse of that habit of thought which has largely obtained in Christ-endom. The old habit of thought subordinates the truth to the teacher, conceives of the truth as de-pendent upon the teacher, accepts the truth of morals and religion upon authority. This habit of thought, failing to recognize the self-subsistence of truth, de-mands a basis or foundation upon which it may be believed to rest, a source from which it may be fail to perceive the self-subsistence of truth and the immediateness of its relation to the soul of man, it is of necessity associated with some person who may have taught it, with some life in which it may have found expression; and very naturally the name of him who taught the truth is applied to the truth itself.

itself. In the modern tendency and habit of thought, the teacher, however exalted, is recognized as being the mouth-piece of the Eternal. The messenger is less then the message, the teacher less than the truth; and the really great teachers of morals and religion always feel that they are to be the servants of the truth; they perceive it, feel it, love and worship it, rejoice to be spent in its service. They would be pained by the thought that the spiritual verities of God were to be labelled with their name; but the great unspiritual world, in spite of the protestations of its prophets that there is only one who is good and that is God,—in spite of the prophets' injunctions that their disciples shall of themselves judge what is right,—the unspiritual world insiste upon accepting that their other shall of themselves judge what is right,—the unspiritual world insists upon accepting the truth upon authority, and upon giving to it the name of one who has been its servant. But there comes a time when the soul outgrows the need of authority, and this growth changes its relations to that which was once accepted as author-ity. All authority is at length found and declared to be provisional. ity. All authority is at length to the provisional. Again, whoever finds in the principal religions of the world expressions of the profoundest truth, and discovers that among all enlightened peoples the have been and are those who have taught and ma-ifested a pure spiritual religion, feels unwilling to apply to these expressions of truths and manifest-tions of the religious spirit and life the name of ce-system. In short, an acquaintance with the spirit tions of the religious spirit and life the name of as system. In short, an acquaintance with the literature of al religions, the discovery of the law of religious goes and evolution, the recognition of the absolute as premacy of the moral and spiritual facolities, and the universality and self-subsistence of moral and spin-ual truth, the growing faith in the immediateen of those relations subsisting between the human sai Divine, the recognition of the identity of the peno-al faith of Jesus with the most spiritual Judiam of the function of the factor of the state relation of Christianity apprehended as a system to the Oriental and Hebrew phases of faith, from whose union it was naturally evolved, - all this and meet a suggesting the inquiry to many thoughton relig-ionists: "By what right do we call ourselves and our religion by the name of a system every one of whose distinctive peculiarities we have rejected? By vince of what principle do we call self-denial, tempenor, obedience to conscience, love of our fellow-centure, love and worship of God, by a personal and historia term?"

33

term ?" These tendencies of which mention has been made

These tendencies of which mention has been made have been and are most active within the Unitarian denomination; and the reason for this evident. Unitarianism was something more than an affra-tion of the unity of God. It affirmed noless empha-ically the essential integrity of human outure, and the trustworthiness of the moral and spiritual faci-ties. Having faith in man, it encouraged thought and investigation. It spanned the abys believed to be between the human and divine, from the side of humanity. Its faith in the human was so grain as to head to the recognition of the supremary of the moral sense and the spiritnal faculties, and also the comens of the perfect human and divine.

Unitarianism will, by the law of its being, remain a sect of Christianity; but in the fulfilling of its mi-sion it will give rise to something greater than one of the many Christian sects.

The many constraints seeks. Yet there are those who are willing to use the name Christian as a label for all that is true, jut, and religious; who do not hesitate to declare this truth wherever found is Christian; who define Christianity as love to God and man. But would not the Hebrew for similar reasons name all truths wherever found judaiam? Would hen to define ju-daism as love to God and man? Indeed, the disciples of anoth participles publicles ware naturally anyly their and the participles and the set of of each particular religion very naturally apply their particular name to the universal truth of morals and religion,

b) teach particular tengion tenjoration approximation approximation approximation approximation approximation of the particular name to the universal truth of morals and religion.
C) no the other hand, is it to excite our surprise this moder the influence of the enlarged conceptions of religion and its relation to man, and in the preserve of the heart's recognition of the naturalness and an integrate conceptions of particular system for that which is to be found in every system and which transcends all systems?
"I claim," one of these may be supposed to ay. "I claim to be religious. I affirm and emphasize the reality of religion. I live in conscious communion with him who is All and in all. I revere the moral away, and feel the force of moral obligation. I glady recognize self-denies and willing to put in at the character. Indeed, I am willing to put in at the head of those sons of God who from time to time to the truth renchings, and the divine beauty of his fit and the astracter. Indeed, I am willing to put in at the head of those sons of Jesus a. field and static parateled phase of religion. But," conturer or in guirer, "on what principle of a clath to have appeared in the world and blee" it by the set figs, life, and character of Jesus (Aristina). They conture out in the set of a surprise dot christian. Is it proper forme to apply to my faith. This recognize and the religion the unse of a set.

If this phase of religion whose contents have been hinted at in the foregoing, a phase of religion toward which many thoughtful religionists among the moi liberal of Christian sects are tending,—if this phase of natural, spiritual, universal religion is entitled to be called Christianity, it must be for one of the [o]-lowing reasons:—

First: This is properly called Christian because it was to this that the name Christian was first ap-plied; or,

Second: This type of religion is properly called Christlan, and those professing it are emitted to the Christian name, because this name has been so long ir 1 so extensively applied to this phase of faith as to u i so extensively applied to this phase of faith as to y actitute usage. But if the name "Christian" was not at first ap-icd to this type of natural and spiritual religion, and further, if it has not yet been applied to so great an extent as to constitute usage, yet, if such a use of the word has not been made as to unfit it for a name for universal religion, then there will be no great im-propriety in making such a use of the word. But will we make a certain use of this word, or any other, regardless of the character of that to which the name was first applied, and regardless also of the mee that has been made of the word for eighteen hundred years? years ? Our years? Our first inquiry is, To what was the Christian name first applied? Was its significance as first used apiritual, theological, philosophical, or personal? What were the peculiarities of those who were first called Christians in Antioch? The answers to these questions are to be sought in the New Testament. Side by side in the New Testa-ment, there are two distinct phases of faith, one of which has always and everywhere been called Christ-lan.

which has always and everywhere been called Christ-lan. First, there is the pure spiritual faith of Jesus, a faith that shone out through his natural human life and character. It is a faith in the Supreme ass Father; it includes a deep love of the human. Jesus taught this faith in the Sermon on the Mount, in the parables, and other discourses. It is this human and humane spiritual religious men and women of Christen-dom. This faith might properly be named a "epirit-ual Judaism." Every element of it is to be found in the literature of the Hebrows; it is the religiousness of Mosse, Isaiah, Job, David, brought to a focus in one person, Jesus of Nazareth, the highest product of Hebrew culture.

of Hebraw culture. Associated with this faith of Jesus is the faith in Jesus as the Christ or Messiah. This latter faith had its basis in the supernatural and superhuman. It concerned itself with the official character and mishad its basis in the supernatural and superhuman. It concerned itself with the official character and mis-sion ascribed to him. At first it was only political or national. We can understand this faith and hope only as we are acquainted with the condition of the Jawish people during the half century preceding the birth of Jesus. For seventy years the Jewish people had struggled in the grasp of Rome. They were poworless of themselves, yet their very weakness awakened a hope that Jehovah would rescue them from destruction, that he would raise up a descend-ant of the house of David, who would surely redeem Israel. These hopes became confident expectations. The national pride, the religious sentiment, the de-sire of political emancipation, all united in exciting in the Hebrew people a confident hope of immediate deliverance. They feit that this Deliverer, Redeem-er, Messiah, was very soon to appear, and that, in the name and power of Jehovah, he would fulfil the promise of the prophets, redistabilish the throne of David, and drive from out their borders every enemy of their race and their religion. No less confident than their expectation of the Messiah was their con-viction that one of the prophets would rise from the dead and appear as the forerunner of these expecta-tions and opinions are scattered throughout the Gos-pel. When John the Baptist appeared, he was asked if tions and opinions are scattered throughout the Gos-pel. When John the Baptist appeared, he was asked if he were the Messiah; he replied that he was not. He was then asked if he were Elijah, and he answered no. Jesus at one time asked his disciples, "Who do men say that I am ?" and they said, "Some say that you are John the Baptist, some say that you are Eli-jah, and others Jeremiah, or one of the prophets." When the disciples were asked who they thought him to be, Peter answered, "The Messiah." This was the constantly recurring question regarding Jesus, "Is he the Messiah, or shall we look for an-other?" Two of the disciples in the new order of things for themselves. After his crucifixion, two of then give the substance of their faith in him: "We were hoping it had been he who would redeem Ia-reael."

From the beginning of their discipleship until the entry into Jerusalem, their faith in Jesus as the Mes-siah was uninterrupted. It was not a moral or spir-itual, but a political faith. There is not the faintest indication that his disciples perceived and appreciat-ed his spiritual superiority. This expectation of a Messiah that centred about the person of Jesus was so confident, that seven his crucifixion served only to give it 'aw direction. To comprehend the contin-ued f in Jesus as the Christ after his crucifixion, was m... facquaint ourselves with the mental condi-tion of those of whom this faith took possession, bearing in mind that where the subjective conditions bearing in mind that where the subjective conditions are favorable objective occurrences are unnecessary to produce conviction. There was on the part of many a confident expecta-tion that Elias, or Jeremiah, or some other prophet, would rise from the dead. John the Baptist had been taken for one of these risen prophets. After his death Jesus had been, by some at least, mistaken for John; by others he had been believed to be Elias. Peter, John, and James knew that he was no one of these; for they believed they had seen the risen Moses and the risen Elias conversing with Jesus, and Peter had proposed to make three tents, one for Moses, one for Elias, and one for Jesus. In these ophinons and confident expectations we have the subjective conditions essential to a faith, not only in one, but in any number of resurrections.

whoever has confidently anticipated the resurrection of one prophet, and has even seen two risen prophets, will have no difficulty in believing, and will need no evidence for believing, in the resurrection of another prophet. After the death of Jesus, all that was needed to give renewed life to the faith in him as Messiah was to transfer the confident expectation and resulting opinions, concerning the possible or actual resurrec-tion of Elias or some other of the prophets, to Jesus, the latest prophet. There is usually a certain mo-mentum in expectations of this kind that carries or transfers them from one object to another. We have a perfect illustration of this tendency among the Ad-venitats. The expectations that the world will come to an end on one particular day is always transferred to another day with no loss of confidence. The confident expectations of the disciples under-went a similar change. After the crucifizion of Jesus, the hopes of the disciples received a shock; but they soon rallied. Those who confidently believed that a prophet would rise from the dead, those who believed that prophet had risen, were in a condition to believe that the last prophet had risen from the dead. This hopeful ex-pectation, becoming more confident, at last became confirmed. "The Messiah had come," they asserted, "had been put to death, had risen from the dead, had ascended on high, whence he would come again to redeem his people." The two old faiths, the one in a risen prophet and the other in the Messiah, were united in one and the same person, Jesus, the Prophet and Messiah. This was the new faith that to keepsession of men. They knew who the Messi-ah was; they had seen him, were his friends; there was no more uncertainty except as to the time when he would reappear; they had only to wait his imme-diate coming.

was no more uncertainty except as to the time when he would reappear; they had only to wait his imme-diate coming. We can get very near this faith in the discourses of Peter and the book of Rerelation. In the second chapter of Acts, Peter is represented as converting three thousand in one day. We have the substance of his discourse. Peter tells his hearers, who were Jews, that "Jesus the Nazarene, a man approved of God by miracle, wonder, and sign [there is no hint of the recognition and appreciation of the moral and spiritual superiority of Jesus], being delivered up, the Jews crucified; but God raised him up, and hath made bim Lord and Christ." To what were these three thousand converted in one day? So far as there is any indication in the record, they were con-verted from as expectation that the Messiah would come to a confident faith that he had come,—had been put to death, had risen from the dead, had as-cended on high, whence he would come again to re-dem his people. The old expectation was Jewish; when transferred to the Christ it was called Christ-ian. It was to those who were impatiently looking for the immediate reappearance of Christ that the name Christian was originally given. The change from the Jewish to the Christian faith was but a step. The Jewish hops and expectation concerning a Mes-siah were brought to a point about the person of the name Christian was originally given. The change from the Jewish to the Christian faith was but a step. The Jewish hope and expectation concerning a Mes-siah were brought to a point about the person of the Messiah. It was into this faith that the ennuch was baptized by Philip. Is there any indication that either the disciples or the multitude were primarily interested in the moral and spiritual teachings of Jesus? Was it the charac-ter of these teachings that distinguished him from other religious teachers of his time? Is it probable that Judas who betrayed him, or Peter who denied him, or the other disciples who deserted him at the time of his arrest and crucifizion, or the multitude who shouted "Hosanna to the son of David" one day, and who cried out "crucify him" on one of the following days,—is it probable that all or many of these either recognized and appreciated or were af-fected by his moral and religious teachings? Was it the Hebrew prophet or the official character ascribed to him, was it the recognition of his spiritual superi-ority or the hope that he would redeem Israel, was it the traching, or the signs, wonders, and miracles,—in short, was it the faith or Jesus or a faith rs Jesus as the supernatural Christ, that constituted the sub-stance of Christianity at the time the first three Gos-pels were writter? "Was the name "Christian" applied to individuals stance of Christianity at the time the first three Gos-pels were written? Was the name "Christian" applied to individuals because "they had all things in common" or "loved one another," or was the name given to them be-cause of their personal faith in Jesus as the Christ? So much for the first inquiry regarding the first use of the name.

As regards the second question, "To what has the name. As regards the second question, "To what has the name Christian been universally applied during eighteen centuries?" it is impossible in this connec-tion to examine every controversy in which a defini-tion of Christianity, or the determinatian of Christ-ian dogma, has been discussed and decided. There is only time to call attention to the fact that the great controversies of Christendom have had ref-erence to the official, superhuman, and supernatural character and mission ancribed to Jesus. The con-ception of Jesus as the Christ has undergone many charges.

ception of Jesus as the Christ has undergone many changes. The Christianity of the Jews very soon outgrew Jewish limitations when it came in contact with Greek philosophy and Oriental mysticism. The Christianity of the Fourth Gospel is as unlike that of the Synoptics as Greek thought is unlike Hebrew thought. To the Hebrew Christian Jesus was the Messiah, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. To the writer of the Fourth Gospel Jesus is the logos, the power or being through whom all things were created. He was an incarnation and manifestation of God. A little more than a century later he was identified with God. From that time until the present has not a faith in Jesus as the su-pernatural Christ been the corner-stone of the Christ-tian Church?

tian Church? Has the name "Christian" ever been applied by Has the name "Christian" ever been applied by any church, sect, or council to any truth of morals or religion separated from the official character ascribed to the Hebrew Prophet? Has natural religion, de-youtness, moral feeling, spiritual insight, the possession of the very spirit of Jesus, been held to constitute one a Christian? Has not the Roman Catholic Church, the Greek Church, and every one of the many Protestant sects been logically consistent in limiting the name "Christian" to a form of faith concerning, not the natural, moral, and religious character ascribed to him? In short, has not Christianity been universally admitted to be not the faith of Jesus but a faith in Jesus as the Messiah? Hare not christians everywhere insisted that an appreciation of his spiritual superiority, the passesion of his spiritual superiority, the passesion of his spiritual superiority, the passes of religion bowever profound, satisfying, and ennobiling, been named Christian that did not have for its conscious ource, its limit, or its object, the personality of the Christ? What is the present usage? The usage of the millions of the Greek Church, the usage of the millions of the Greek Church, the usage of the millions of the Protestant acets is, as regards a general definition of the word Christians in that they insist that the name "Christian" belongs only to those whow faith concers with the unnumbered millions of the Protestant sects is, as regards a general definition of the word Christian sin that they insist that the name "Christian" belongs only to those whose faith concers itself with the Christ. Though at the same "Christian. If present usage establing and its use, quite uniform. Indeed, alarge majority of those whose faith concers itself with the Christ. Though at the same "Christian. If present usage establing any the same single and the same state the name "Christian sin that they insist that the name "Christian" belongs only to hose whose faith concers itself with the Christ. Though at the same time not a few of these latter will no less theolic and Evangelical Christians in that they insist that the name "Christian" the same estable anything beyond question it is this: that no degree or quality of righteomeses and epituality, self-sacrifice

3, 1874. 579

The name was first applied, and for eighteen hun-mame. The name was first applied, and for eighteen hun-dred years has continued to be applied, to a particu-lar faith, a faith whose form changes but whose es-sence is the same; namely, a faith in the Christ. There are, however, a few, a very few, who, in spite of this long-continued usage, apply the name Christian to the personal faith or religion of Jesus as taught in his words, manifested in his life, and em-bodied in his character. They include in the term Christianity the religious consciousness of Jeeus, his sense of the divine, his spiritual insight, his habit of self-denial, his love of his brother-man, his glad obe-dience to the highest, his feeling of intimate relation-ship with the Heavenly Father, —whoever posaesses and manifests this faith is by these very few called a Christian. Christian.

and manifests this faith is by these very few called a Christian. But this phase of faith is natural religion, and to designate this with the name of the faith of one man is to identify the faith of one individual who lived eighteen hundred years ago with the growing and deepening faith of humanity. The identification of the faith of one man with the faith of mankind in all its excellence and perfection is very similar to that identification of the person of Jeaus with God; in both cases it is the identification of a part with the whole. It is true that wherever the idealizing tendency is active, the merset outline of a life or character will be filled with an ideal excellence; all virtuos, all truth, all excellence in life and character will be as it were projected into the far-off object. Do not those who identify the teachings of Jeaus with all truth and religion, and the excellence and beauty of his life and character with the beauty of all life and character, do they not idealize that one far-off man?

far-off man?

In the and chiracter, do they not identify that one far-off man? Indeed, is it conceivable that one man, surrounded by one class of circumstances, should exhibit every virtue that is required of mankind amid all the changing conditions and circumstances of human life? Can any one man be a sufficient example for all men? Can one man reveal the possibilities of all men? Does the personal faith of one contain and express the faiths of all? But the identification of religion as manifested in the life of Jesus with relig-ion in all its many-sided completeness took place at a time when Jesus was identified with God. Will not the denial of the delty of Jesus and the affirma-tion of his humanity inevitably lead to the denial of the identify of his individual faith with absolute re-ligion?

tion of his humanity inwitably lead to the denial of the identity of his individual faith with absolute re-ligion? It may be admitted that the highest type of relig-ion is found in the teaching, spirit, life, and charac-ter of Jesus. Is this a sufficient reason for calling religion Christian? Plato was an eminent philoso-pher; but we do not call philosophy Platonic. Shak-speare stands at the head of modern literature; but literature is not Shakspearian. Mendelssohn was a great musical composer; but music is not Mendels-sohnian. Washington was a patriot; but patriotism is not Washingtonian. Indeed, patriotism is some-thing greater than any one individual manifestation of it. Jesus, the Prophet of Nazareth, was filled with a sense of the divine and a love of the human; he was richly endowed with spiritual insight; the truth, the spirit, and the power that reveal the Divine to the human and raise the human to the Divine to the luman and raise the human to the Divine to religion greater than any one individual manifesta-tion of it? Religion in all its completeness contains many ele-manifestic and the some contains many ele-manifestic and the some contains many ele-

Religion in all its completeness contains many ele-Religion in all its completeness contains many ele-ments: a perception and a consciousness of a rela-tion to the One who is All and in all, the Eternal, the Infinite, in whom we live and have our being, whose temples we are. Religion includes a con-sciousness of our relation to our fellow-men and to all living things. It includes a consciousness of our relation to those isawe by which all things are said to be controlled, a recognition of their universality and beneficence, a feeling of trust, and the habit of loyalty beneficence, a feeling of trust, and the habit of loyalty to their requirements. This fountain of religious consciousness flows out in life, manifects itself in action, clothes itself with or embodies itself in character. It reveals itself un self-denial, unconscious herolam, perfect integrity, devotion to something other than self. It reveals itself in the spirit of toleration, in self-respect, in sin-cerity and earnestness, in a helpful public spirit, in a glad recognition of all that is true and good every-where. a glad : where, where. These elements of religion are as old as man. These virtues have been manifested in all ages of the world. By virtue of what principle do we label these virtues wherever and whenever manifested with the name of some one manifestation of them? If these name of some one manifestation of them? If these virtues, these elements of natural religion, are properly called Christian, ought not the Jew, the Buddhist, and the Parsee to call them by this particular name? In all probability the disciple of each system will in-siat upon giving to these elements of religion the name of his particular religion. Were Jesus living to day would be insist upon ap-plying to the spiritual varities of the universe the name of a title applied to himself? The question that we are considering has reference to the use of a word.

The question that we are considering has reference to the use of a word. It is a question of philology. What is the func-tion of names? The function of names is to distin-guish one object from another of the same class. The objects themselves are distinguished the one from another by their peculiarities. In defining any name we enumerate those qualities as accidents peculiar to the object to which the name is given. This principle is applicable to all names. How shall we define Buddhism, Judaism, Mohammedanism? It is obvious that we can define these words only by an enumeration of those qualities peculiar to each. To define Mohammedanism as Monotheism would not distinguish it from Judaism or Christianity. Mohammedanism has strongly marked character-

Mohammedanism has strongly marked character-letics; it is by an enumeration of these only that the word can be defined; are we willing to apply this universal principle to the definition of Christianity?

universal principle to the definition of Christianity? Let me suggest a few general definitions of Christ-lanity. Christianity is religion as apprehended and taught by Jesus; or Christianity is a faith in an offi-clal character and mission ascribed to Jesus. A Christian is one whose religion is thought to be de-rived from, or revealed by, or based upon, the Christ. These definitions are broad enough to include the faith of the Catholic Church and each of the Protes-tant sects. The one peculiarity that distinguishes Christianity from all other religions is common to all the churches of Christendom. Is religion as apprehended by Jesus, and taught and manifested by him, greater than or identical with religion?

religion? It is the habit of a few to define Christianity by an enumeration of its universal elements, by those qual-ities which it shares in common with spiritual Juda-ism and other systems. This definition of Christ-ianity is the same as the Jew's definition of Judaism, or the Buddhist's definition of Buddhism. In giving or the Buddhist's definition of Buddhism. In giving a name to our religion or in defining any particular religion, are we to arbitrarily use any word regardless of the use that has been made of it, or will we re-member that the use of a word has been determined for us, and that it cannot be determined by us? The inquiry which we are pursuing is

The inquiry which we are pursuing is one of especial interest to the Liberal Christian. In the phrase Liberal Christian the adjective is becoming the most prominent word. The truths represented by the word Liberal are no less important than those represented by the word Christian.

How does Liberal Christianity differ from "Christ-lanity"? Is the difference one of form and quantity, or is it a difference of essence? How "liberal" can Christianity become and still preserve its identity?

Christianity become and still preserve its identity? The answer to these questions will ald in the solu-tion of the problem of this essay. Liberal Christ-lanity represents the most important religious move-ment of the last century, important not because of its magnitude, but because of its significance, its direc-tion. In the old theology, human nature was hope-lessly depraved, allenated from God. Man had noth-ling to hope for from his own aspirations and efforts. He could not of himself believe the truth or love the good or do the right. Humanity was lost unleas means could be devised outside humanity for his salvation. salvation.

means could be devised outside humanity for his salvation. This supposed condition of things necessitated mi-raculous, and supernatural, and superhuman inter-reention, a supernatural, and superhuman Mediator and Savior. This scheme of redemption was everywhere called Christian. But Liberal Christianity denied the dogma of total depravity, denied the hopeless con-dition of man. On the contrary it affirmed the es-sential integrity of human nature. Its real faith was in the buman and natural. It insisted that man's highest good was to be sought in the activity, culti-vation, and development of what was IN man. The Savior of humanity was a MAN. In the language of the evolutionist, we have in Liberal Christianity, not simply another "variety" of Christianity, but, what is the significant fact, we have another "species." And now the question suggests itself, Has this sterile finality? Unitarianism, or "Liberal Christianity," is not a finality. It has within itself the germs of a faith greater than itself. By its denial of human deprav-ity it has contributed not a little toward the spirit-ual emancipation of mankind. By its affirmations it has very nearly identified itself with religion, not as it was apprehended and limited by one individual,

And now the question suggests itself, Has this species of Christianity within itself a reproductive power that will give rise to other species, or is it a sterile finality?

NDEX -- DEICHIMBEIR but with religion in its world-wide and soul-felt as-pects and manifestations. Trainarian Christianity of necessity associated re-ligion exclusively with, and makes it depend upon, the supernatural and superhuman Christ. This reaction to a great extent makes it dependent upon, the human Jesus. What is the next step in this process of historic evolution? The Liberal Christian liberates religion from the mecossitated limitations of a want of faith in the hu-man and natural, but heists upon associating it with and basing it npon the historical and individ-ual. The next step in the line of evolution will be to free religion from these limitations, both of the supernatural and superhuman Christ and the indi-vidual Jesus, and to affirm its independence of all limitations, and to emphasize its humanness, its naturalness, and its universality. Will religion thus iberated, and freed, and asprehended, be called Christian and free conceptions of religion are consid-ered as the result of what may be termed religious religions. Hence I can discover no valid reason for those who disclaim the Christian name. To me such aspinitions in the christian name. A relig-revision is unphilosophical in the extreme. A relig-revision is unphilosophical in the extreme. A relig-ious and intellectual movement is going on in our midet. That movement is in the direction of mental and spiritual emancipation. It will be its mission to reveal the inevitable limitations of mecasing bistor-icat and individual systems, not so much by its direct religionry; in short, it will criticise by creation. Poi-tive conviction will be the source of its power; the discovery, dissemination, and establishment of the truth will be the sole object of its near-material individual systems, not so much by its direct individual is the source of its power; the discovery, dissemination, and establishment of these truth will be the sole object of its near-ting in the sole object of its near-ting in

HOW TO GET THE NEGRO OUT OF POL-ITICS.

How TO GET THE NEGRO OUT OF POL-ITICS. The broad fact that the Constitution of the United States is no longer to be interpreted, by either courts or statesmen, on the side of slavery or inequality of rights, and that all State legislation, to be in har-mony with the supreme law of the land, as the Con-stitution requires, must not discriminate against any class of the people because of race, color, or previous condition, is but partially realized. While the amendments to the Constitution are acquiesced in, and no party or politician proposes to disturb them, their logical and legal consequences are resisted by those who have not conquered prejudices begotten of the slave system; and there is unremitting effort to narrow the meaning of the amendments, and pre-serve discriminations that make one class of citizens, politically, superior to another. It was plain enough to those who gave the subject and ultimately complete indorsement of poli-tical and civil rights. As long as the negro was held to be property in the slave States, he could only be ranked with the brute creation. That was inevitable. It grew out of the very nature of the slave condition. He could be no more in the civil system than the horse or the ox. The moment he rose above that condition, the moment he gained any legal status, either to hold property or exercise any functions of citizenship, his chains fell off, and he stood up a man to be treated, not as a chattel, but as a human being under the law.

to be treated, not as a chattel, but as a human being under the law. Emancipation, we repeat, carried with it every right and privilege of clizenship, and Congress could no more have escaped the consequences of that war-measure than it could escape the control of the law of gravity. The amendments to the Constitution, and the "appropriate legislation" for their enforce-ment, were results which every advocate of emanci-pation should have looked squarely in the face. Re-sistance to these results, no matter whether it came from one South or the North, must, from the very nature of things, prove ineffectual. It has proved so in the past; it will prove so in the future. There is but one way of escape. The people of the United States may go back upon all the measures, and whe out the amendments to the Constitution of the laws made in pursuance thereof; but they cannot stop there, if it be the purpose to deprive the must restore the Constitution as it was, and make it possible to reënslave the blacks. Either this, or they must go forward in the direction which national leg-islation has taken since the abolition of slavery, and secure to all the people entitled to citizenship what-ever rights or immunities any class of them enjoys under the laws.

under the laws. We know of no considerable number of people who would, if they had the political power, restore the dark age of slavery. We question whether, were it left to the whites of the South themselves, they would reëstablish an institution that unquestionably re-stricted the material development of that section of the republic, and imbruted the minds of all classes of the section whether the sector makes the republic, and infortued the minds of all classes of people. The unbappy influences of the system which Jefferson foresaw and predicted had their manifesta-tion before it was torn out by violence, and they will not cease their operation during the present gener-ation. ation ation. It being, then, generally admitted that there does not exist any purpose or desire, to speak of, for the re-establishment of slavery, there is but one solution of the negro question that will have the effect of putting the negro himself out of politics as a disturbing element: and that is the generous and full recogni-tion of his rights as a citizen, including all social rights that are not left for each individual in the or the second se the Englishman, or any other nationality.-(heis, nati Commercial.

THE TOTTLE FAMILY.

Died, last week, Job Totle, one of thearlier and scribers to the Tribure. Job was not due and and the was beterodoxy: his weak sermons every Smally catchism, against sectarianism, against lesshor beift, he paddled ankle-deep in treason, delighted and scatchism, and parity because the preshty his once pronounced hit Job's revolues against he sa-bath catching muskrats in the creek belief in exploration bore with Job's revolues against he sa-bath catching muskrats in the creek belief in exploration bore with Job's revolues against the Wa-strand them, and parity because the preshty his once pronounced hit Job's revolues against the Wa-strand them, and parity because the preshty his once pronounced hit have none af. Tarrytown hit no went have keen eyes for hats or gowns, and know New York cut or trimming at first eight. The sec which Tarrytown will have none af. Tarrytown hit no went have keen eyes for hats or gowns, and know New York cut or trimming at first eight. The sec and them eyes are the Tarrytown Gariet remark. "This community is not given to kite hits," All the Tottles flew kites of one sort or another, nour here or kept their eyes turned earthward lag enough to pay their grocers' bills. They were as an hungry, visionary race. Their grandtaher, Dubh for forther half-clab dodies, and to turn their stra-ends of mutton into a royal feast. Ever Job train his creditors at the grocery and neatchen with a family were actually starving, and a collection with a family were actually starving and a collection with a family were actually starving, and a collection with a family were actually starving, and a collection with a family were actually starving, and a collection with a family were actually starving, and a collection with a family were actually starving and a collection with a family were actually starving and a collection with a family were actually starving and a collection with a family were actually starving and a collection with a family were actually a starving and a collection with a family were a ble pride, just as they did Jones' big spring. Spigots and hot-water pipes were much more decent in a house than the big spring; but it did to boast about to house than the big spring; but it did to boast about to strangers. When Job Tottle, the last of his family, died last week, Tarrytown felt as it might if the big spring had dried up. No tears were shed as they pushed aside the heaped yellow October leaves to lower his cofin into the ground. The usual prayers and hymns somehowseemed out of place. One could not think of the Tottles comfortably settled in either the Octhodox heaven or hell. Tarrytown was thred of the unsolved problem. "Seems as if they ought to have amounted to something," said Squire Dewey, going home from the funeral; "don't know whether it was religion they wanted, or enough to est." That the air or mental growths of Tarrytown had anything to do with their mischance in life never occurred to him. -New York Tribure.

MR. MILL ON JESUS CHRIST.

<text><section-header>

THE RIGHT OF BURIAL IN CATHOLIC CEMETERIES.

Our readers have heard of Father O'Riley of St. Francis de Sales Church of Toledo. Our despatches last week brought him before the public as a true representative of his church, engaged is one of those transactions which now and then occur in this coun-try, just to teach us that we still have in our midst an element of bigotry and tyranny that formed the char-acteristic feature of the dark ages. The transaction was brought into court, and our despatches yesterday sunounced that a decision had been rendered any stantially in support of the conduct of the priest. As the ruling of the court appears very strange in connection with the facts, we give a brief review of the case. the case

A little more than a week ago a Mrs. Wynn died in Toledo. She and her whole family were brought up in the Catholic religion, but some years ago she Toled had obtained a divorce from her husband, and mar-ried a second time. When she died recently the priest refused to administer the sacrament, upon the

had obtained a divorce from her husband, and mar-ried a second time. When she died recently the prices refused to administer the sacrament, upon the ground that her divorce and second marriage had dis-solved her connection with the church. An attempt was then made to bury her in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, but Father O'Riley interfered. The family of the deceased then applied to the court of common pleas for an injunction to restrain the prices from interfering, and a trial of the case resulted in the refusal of the court to interfere. The jurisdic-tion of the cemetery is thus given entirely into the ands of the church, and unless the decision is re-versed the relatives of the deceased have no power to ince her in the lot beside the remains of her family. Whow not upon what principle of law the Toledo judge has founded his decision, but it is cer-tify in distressing contrast with every instinct of functor. The certificate of purchase showed that Mrs. Babbington, the mother of Mrs. Wynn, had point the cemetery lot, paid for it in full, and was consequently its owner. There was no stipulation in the purchase that the lot should be used for the bursh of persons professing any particular faith. The lot was her property. If she so desired, it might brough the case results of a Mormon. The law of othio demand that all cemetery lots be used solely for pispecifications concerning the religion professed pre-vine deal. In New York, about system stores the family of the deal. In New York, about systemes the family induct, as the law where word difference in dead dodies. The decision of this case deprives the family inductions the State; ignores the guaranteed piste of a property-owner, and conflicts in every re-specifications concerning the religion professed pre-vine bear hung; but the objections were of no avail in fourt, as the law knew no difference in dead dodies. The decision of this case deprives the family in these they continue to observe all the exactions of the schurch. It places the prejud

THE ART OF DOUBLE MEANINGS.

THE ART OF DOUBLE MEANINGS. THE ART OF DOUBLE MEANINGS. There is a venerable story of a barber who attract-quartated legend thus conceived: "What do you think I'll shave you for a penny and give you some-thing to drink." Customers, in consequence, flocked to his shaving-chair, but when their beards had been penctuated legend thus conceived: "What do you think I'll shave you for a penny and give you some-thing to drink." Customers, in consequence, flocked to his shaving-chair, but when their beards had been performer and they asked for the "something to dignation the construction which had been put upon provide and they asked for the "something to dignation the construction which had been put upon provide the deared, intentionally misunderstood. To any fair and candid reader it must have been ob-vious that it ought to be read thus: "What! do you think I'll shave you for a penny and give you some-thing to drink?" Had the present Dean of Chester be forgiven), be would have admitted the ambiguity and defended it as intentional. Indeed, his agree-ment with the Old Catholics has been, by his own admission, obtained in much the same way as that of the barber with his customers. "At Bonn," says phings in the background." So it was the barber's. I was his widdom to keep in the background the im-provent fact that the sentence over his door was in-terrogary, and not categorie. "We were reaching on the had been separated from us by centuries, if by mitting of various shades of meaning, we might is customers of just the same sort as that arrived as the same, seven by the temporary use of language "ad-mitting of various shades of meaning, and by these means he arrived at a "mutual understanding" with is customers of just the same sort as that arrived at is customers of just the same sort as that arrived at the same proposition in different sense. Dean Howson had better wait till the Old Catholics-means he arrived at a "mutual understanding" with at an understanding in which t

RATION ALISM.—On Sunday last, Dean Goulburn, preaching in Norwich Cathedral on behalf of the Five Church Societies, referred to the rationalistic tendencies of the age. Taking his text from I. Cor. xv., 58, he remarked that we had advanced a stage beyond the Corinthians in our scepticism, for if the Aposle were now to visit the Church of England he would have to ask it how it was that some of its members denied, not indeed a future state of rewards and punishments, but the very existence of a moral governor of mankind. Rationalism had now for a long time been making inroads upon the faith of the Church, until it had won for itself not only accept-ance among her members, but patronage, support, and advocacy among her pastors and doctors.—Lon-don Graphic, Oct. 31, 1874.

WHEN THE FLOOD at Chester was the highest, and the water was three feet deep about the house, Mas-ter Robert Cluett, five years old, fell upon his knees and uttered the following prayer: "O Lord! I don't like this; take it away. You said when you putyour bow in the skies, you would have no more floods. Now, how is this? Amen."

Hoetry.

[For THE INDEX.]

THE TRUE LIFE.

[Written to the tune of "Nearer, my God, to thes."]

While on this earth ye stay, Oh, nobly live! Strive ye from day to day Some joy to give, Some hopeful word to speak, Fresh strength to give the weak ; By constant effort seek Nobly to live.

Turn ye with generous heart Towards those who need,-Esger to sow some part Of Life's good seed. Forego mere selfsh gains; Think ye of others' claims;

Make e'en your simpleat aims Noble indeed.

Listen to Conscience' voice, Listen to Conscience' volce, Thy surcest guide; lis teachings make thy choice, By them abide; Walk ye with carnest feet, Holding all duty meet; So shall Contentment sweet Walk be then side Walk by thy side.

And when the end draws near, The dreamless rest, All labor finished here,

Ended all quest, Calmly turn ye to sleep, Though loving hearts shall weep, Immortal they shall keep Thy noblest-best.

CARBOLL GODFREY.

CASH BECKIPTS.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 28.

<section-header><text><text><text><text><text><text>

BECEIVED.

Hooks

OUTLINES OF COSMIC PHILOSOFHT, hased on the Docitile of Evolution, with Criticisms on the Positive Philoso-phy. By John Fisks, M.A., Li.B., Assistant Librarian, and formerly Lecturer on Philosophy, at Harvard Uni-versity. In Two Yolumes. Yol. I: and II. Boston: James R. Ongwod & Co. 1875. [Frice $5 00] Artmal. Maccannism: a Treatise ou Terrestrial and Aštial Locomotion. By E. J. Marcy, Professor at the College of France, and Member of the Academy of Medicins. With 117 Illustrations. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1876.

Pamphlets and Periodicals.

- Pamphiets and Periodicals. SEREONS by O. B. Frothingham, at Lyric Hall, New York.-"Quality and Quantity in Life:" Oct. 4.-"The Holy Obost, Lord and Giver of Life:" Oct. 4.-"The Holy Obost, Lord and Giver of Life:" Oct. 1.-"The Holy Obost, Lord and Giver of Life:" Oct. 3.-"Anniver-sary Sanday, 1874:" Oct. 1.-"On the Term 'Personal' Ma applied to God:" Oct. 18.-"On the Religious Emotions:" Oct. 25. Lessons FROM THE ELECTION FOR THE VICTORS AND THE VANQUEERED. A Discourse by William J. Potter, at New Bedford, Nor. 8. New Bedford: 1874. THE ROOT OF THE MATTER. Samson: A Myth-Story of the Sun. Boston: Colby & Rich. 1875. THE AN SETHETIC REVELATION AND THE GIRT OF PHILOSO-PHT. By Benjamin Paul Blood, Amsterdam, In New York, America. 1874. Oth ANDIENTIC REVELATION AND THE GIRT OF PHILOSO-PHT. By Benjamin Paul Blood, Amsterdam, In New York, America. 1874. Boston: R. Oston: H. O. Houghton & Co. OLD AND NEW. December, 1874. Boston: R. Others

- THE HERALD OF HEALTH. December, 1874. New York: Wood & Holbrook. THE NORTHWESTERN MAGAZINE. December, 1874. Chi-cago: Street, White & Bowen. THE PENN MONTHLY. December, 1874. Philadelphia: 506 Walnut St. Manage Normanas 1874. New York: A.
- THE MEDICAL MIRBOR. November, 1874. New York: A. K. Butts.

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

AT

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 35 Mornor Stream, Julius T, Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to harmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.-No wilter in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-bations will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS,-Only Short Arti-cles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, DECEMBER 3, 1874.

SUNDAY LECTURES .- The Editors of THE INDEX will lecture occasionally on Sundays, if desired, within a con-venient distance of Boston.

PROFESSOR SAUVEUR'S name was misprinted "Saureur" in our last week's issue. But ought the unhappy compositor to be required to know everybody's name by "pure intuition à priori"?

THE "AMERICAN BAILWAY LITERARY UNION."

A closely printed pamphlet of twenty octavo pages, published in Philadelphia without date, and entitled "American Railway Literary Union, including Steamboats, Steamships, &c., for the United States and New Dominion : General Circular." has come into our hands, and is of a character to be peculiarly and even startlingly interesting, not only to readers of THE IN-DEX, but to all who appreciate the priceless value of a free press, throughout the length and breadth of the land. It sets forth the objects, principles, plans, methods, regulations, constitution, blank forms of contracts and sub-contracts, and so forth, of a widely ramifying organization already in existence, though not yet widely known, at least to the liberal public. The general purpose of this organization, briefly stated, is to acquire absolute control over the sale of all publications in all news depots, and by all news agents or venders of books, periodicals, papers, etc., connected directly or indirectly with railway or steamboat travel in the United States and Canada; the result of which control would be to ensure enormous though partially concealed power over all publishing houses or concerns in the two chief countries of this continent. The ostensible reason for aiming to secure this practical censorship of the press is to suppress the sale of all morally corrupting literature, and to substitute in its stead such literature only as is approved by the Boards of Directors of the various Districts into which the country is divided. But evidently the real reason is, at least in equal degree, to suppress the sale of all unorthodox literature, and to encourage the sale of all publications that tend to favor orthodoxy.

How far this crafty conspiracy against free thought has succeeded, we do not know; probably it will take some time to get all its canningly devised machinery into running order. But that it has already achieved a partial success is proved by this pamphlet. Mr. G. A. Nicolls, Second Vice-President of the Philadelphis and Reading Railroad Company, states that the American Rallway Literary Union have had a contract with that road since May 1, 1873, and that "its main objects have been accomplished." We learn from a private source that the Boston and Lowell Railroad have made a similar arrangement with this Union.

Friendly notices and "indorsements from the best sources" are claimed to be abundant, and samples are given.

Hon. E. S. Tobey, of Boston, writes: "I cannot doubt that directors of every railroad corporation, when fully informed of your plan of action, will most readily and cordially lend their influence to facilitate the objects of the Railway Literary Union."

Bishop Simpson writes: "I fully approve the object of the American Railway Literary Union, and hope that it may be eminently successful." Mr. Jay Cooke writes: "I heartily approve the object aimed at by the American Railway Literary Union, and believe the movement deserves the support and sympathy of all."

President Grant writes: "I have seen the project of the eminent men who head the American Railway Literary Union, to introduce a more healthy class of reading matter to the travelling public than is generally kept for sale by travelling agents to supply such demand. It strikes me as a most praiseworthy enterprise, and one which ought to succeed in working great good. All I can say further is that your enterprise has my hearty sympathy."

Similar expressions of approval are attributed to 'an Ex-Governor, R. R. Manager, General, Speaker of the Lower House in Congress, etc. ;" to "a Railroad Officer high in position and influence;" to "a General Superintendent;" to "a Railroad President;" and to "another, second to none in position and influence."

It is sufficiently evident that the enterprise of this organization has already made some headway. So far as it aims merely at suppressing the sale of obscene or really demoralizing books, pictures, and so forth, every good citizen will of course sympathize with it; but advantage is taken of this worthy object to further other objects reprehensible in the highest degree. Under cover of it, the attempt is made to enlist the coöperation of railroad managers in the suppression of whatever publication threatens orthodoxy of opinion : and a more plausible or dangerous undertaking could not be imagined. Orthodoxy, be it remembered, claims a monopoly of good moral influence; whatever is unorthodox it regards as morally pernicious and corrupting; and this identification of the unorthodox with the immoral is not boldly and openly professed, but practically hidden and kept out of sight of the railroad managers (many of whom are unorthodox to the last degree) and of the public. Here lies the danger. A Union which really aimed at furnishing on cars and steamboats, and in railway news-rooms, a high-toned literature regardless of its theological bias, and to exclude only the debasing and vile stuff too often to be found there, would deservedly command general support; but this particular organization ought not to be suffered on any account to acquire the control it aims at. It would probably exclude such literature as Professor Tyndall's Belfast address, no less than the Police Gazette or Day's Doings ; while as to THE INDEX, the Investigator, or any other free-thought periodical, there can be no doubt of the policy that would be pursued. On this point, which concerns the common liberties of the citizen, the true character of this pseudo-moral crusade ought to be exposed, and we proceed to give some of the evidence contained in this very remarkable document.

The preamble to the Constitution of the Railway Literary Union reads as follows :-

"It is a fundamental principle in the organization of this Union to practically regard the law that "righteousness exalteth a nation." Also, the para-mount authority of the Bible, the excellence of the Christian Religion, as lying at the foundation of the most prosperous and permanent governments, and entire dependence upon the blessing of God for suc-cess in every good work, are hereby reverently ac-knowledged as in harmony with the broad principles and designs of this organization. "And whereas the Railway and Steam Navigation systems of America afford unparalleled facilities for disseminating knowledge and wielding influence by the press, it is also adopted as a principle that they should be directly, constantly and fully employed for educational, philanthropic and beneficent purposes, in the intellectual, moral and religious improvement "It is a fundamental principle in the organization in the intellectual, moral and religious improvement of the people."

The first article names the corporation, and prescribes the territory to be supervised, as stated already.

The second article of the Constitution thus defines the objects sought :--

"The objects of this Union shall be to obtain, by contract or otherwise, the use of Railroad Trains and Stations, and other public conveyances, and all the facilities therewith connected, including News-Rooms and other means by which the work of the Union may be rendered most successful; to circulate a suitable secular, moral and religious literature Union may be rendered most successful; to circulate a suitable secular, moral and religious literature among the traveling public, and the public gener-ally, embracing Newspapers and Standard Literature of approved morals, and, whether in periodical or book form, to be adapted in typography and illustra-tions to the work of the Union; and to employ the requisite agency to execute and superintend the work.<sup>21</sup>

Articles three and four provide for the formation of Boards of seven Directors for each of the six Districts established, and of a Central Board of twelve Directors to supervise the whole work of the Union. The organization is so carefully planned as to be effective and complete; a General Superintendent being employed on salary by the Central Board to ereente their orders, and District Superintendents being also employed on salary by the District Boards for th same purpose.

Article five provides for a contingent fund of $10. 000 in each District, at first by donations, and after wards by a tariff on the gross sales made by subcontractors. The object is not to make money, but only to obtain means sufficient to carry out the work of the Union by securing its desired censorship of the press.

Article six provides against any collision between the Union and the railroad companies. Article seven begins thus :--

"The selection of the Publications to be sold shall be made by the Boards of Directors, through such agency as they choose to employ, and they may be obtained in such way as they shall find most desire-ble."

This article goes on to provide for an absolute controi over all news-dealers and other employés, and for establishing signs and badges as trade-marks of the Union. "The detection of a contractor in the sale of prohibited publications," it is elsewhere provided, "breaks his contract, at the discretion of the Superintendent of the Union."

Article eight restricts all amendments of the constitution by requiring a two-thirds vote of the Cen-tral Board at an annual meeting.

Blank forms of contracts between the Superintendents of the Union and the railroad companies are published, which secure "exclusive use" to the far. mer of all facilities for "the sale and distribution of publications;" and also blank forms of sub-contracts with dealers, which require them "to adopt and conform strictly to the rules and regulations of the American Railway Literary Union.

A form of "commission and instructions to Super-Intendents" is also published, in which occur the following passages :-

"The principles of Christianity are to pervale all our secular, moral and religious undertakings and in-our secular, moral and religious undertakings and in-tercourse. "In our intercourse with publishers, dealers, new-agents, the Young Men's Christian Association, with the godly and the ungodly, we (shall see to it that the cause of Christ and of good goorermean re-ceive damage by us in nothing, but rather strangs always and everywhere." "Study well our relations to the Young Men's Christian Associations, and seek to make yourself me-ful to their organizations, while drawing largely upon them for coöperation in all our work." "The Preamble of our Constitution is a model for thought and action, and we should direct all or ef-thought and action, and we should direct all our ef-forts in harmony with it."

Mr. Yates Hickey, of Pittsburgh, Pa, is named as General Superintendent of the Union; and Messre. H. H. Van Meter, J. G. Bergen, E. S. Fletcher, T. B. Carter, and W. W. Vanaradale, are named as Dis-trict Superintendents or Assistant Superintendents.

The Board of Directors for the Eastern District, with headquarters in Boston, is as follows:-

With headquarters in Boston, is as follows:OLIVER R. CLABK, President, corner of Beverly ad Traverse Streets.
J. D. W. FRENCH, Secretary, 48 State Street.
S. P. HIBBARD, Treasurer, 176 State Street.
D. N. SKILLINGS, 5 Kilby Street.
CHARLES DEMOND, 7 Beacon Street.
J. GRAFTON PARKER, 10 South Market Street.
J. S. FLETCHER, SuperIntendent, 5 Kilby Street.

The Central Board, including two members from each already organized District Board, is as follows:

Messre. H. H. Shillingford and F. W. Vanuzem, of Philadelphia, J. M. Harris and S. M. Shoemaker, of Baltimore, T. B. Carter and E. G. Keith, of Chica-go, J. G. Parker and J. S. Damrell, of Boston, and General Superintendent Hickey, of Pittaburgh. Two Districts are unrepresented as yet.

The pamphlet is filled with practical suggestions and details as to the "need" of this enterprise and the way to assure its success. It thus shrewdly analgamates the cause of morality and the cause of Orthodoxy (the italics are not ours) :-

thodoxy (the italics are not ours):--"There is a monstrous iniquity spreading itself all over our land, and Railroad and Steamboat facilities are given to it. It is high time-a late day, for the friends of the family, social purity, public morality and the Christian faith, to awake to the tremendons reli-which is cursing our homes, society, and the nation; and do all that may be done to arrest and check this swelling tide of corruption."

There are several significant indications, in our judgment, that this whole organization has a dose affiliation with the Christian Amendment movement. The facts that this organization seems to have been first projected soon after the demand for the "recognition of God in the Constitution" was originally made; that it seems to have its headquarters in Philadelphia and Pittaburgh; that the present pamphlet bears the ear-marks of the Christian oman Google

Amendment movement, in phrase and thought, on almost every page, and especially in the preamble to the Constitution above cited; and that some of the supporters here named are also supporters of that movement,-all these things go to point out a secret connection not avowed between this attempt to establish an Orthodox consorship of the press and the attempt to commit the national government to Orthodox Christianity. If we are correct in this surmise, then the Christian Amendment movement is proved to be far more thoroughly organized, and far less frank in the avowal of its methods, than we had supposed. But if we are mistaken in it, and the two attempts have no real connection at all, then it apears that the same increasing bigotry out of which the Christian Amendment movement springs is also the source of this cunning plot against the free press of the republic, and that each attempt acquires a new claim upon the vigilant attention of all freedomlovers. One thing only is plain: whenever Orthodoxy fairly resolves to carry out these or similar schemes for the perpetuation of its own power over the public mind, it will find no difficulty in executing them, so long as the liberals of the country are so totally indifferent to the necessary political conditions of religious liberty. Orthodoxy has only to use its present strong foothold in our laws and customs, in order to make its power tenfold as great as it now is. There is no protection against a sudden revival of the old and very dangerous political claims of Orthodoxy, except in compliance with the Demands of Liberalism and the adoption of the Religious Freedom Amendment to the United States Constitution. We speak to a heedless and incredulous generation, but time will prove our warnings to have been as true as they were unheeded.

A WORD ABOUT "GAGS."

The Christian Register comments in its usual spirit on the "cut-and-dried" management of the Free Religious Conventions, and taunts the officers with putting "gags" into the months of the audience because they have adopted the plan of inviting their speakers beforehand. As to the "cut-and-dried" part of the criticism, it is wholly untrue. Each speaker says exactly what he wants to say, and nobody knows beforehand what this is to be. There is no wish to secure unity of utterance, but rather diversity; and there is not the slightest manipulation either of men or measures in any of the Association's meetings. We characterize as slanderous the insinuation that there is, on the part of the Association or its officers, the least tincture of diplomacy, cunning, or timidity. As to the other part of the criticism, there is some truth in it, together with the customary amount of misrepresentation which the Register never fails to mix with such truth as it tells concerning the Association. There are two ways of holding a free religions meeting. One is to invite the ablest and best representatives of different views to speak on the platform, occupying the whole or chief part of the time; the other is to throw open the discussion to the public, and trust to chance speakers. Each plan has its advantages. The first secures what will most interest an audience, and be best worth listening to; the other secures more spontaneity, and often calls out able speakers unknown to the officers. Each plan has also its disadvantages. The first often leaves people in the audience dissatisfied because their own peculiar shade of opinion has not been expressed at all, when perhaps' they would have been glad to express it themselves. The other often inflicts bores and "convention fleas" on the audience, gives a chance for stupidity, coarseness, vulgarity, personality, bad temper and other bad things, to consume precious time and bring a sort of discredit on all connected with the meeting. For our own part, we are willing to be "taught by the enemy," and to confess the truth he tells. Our own preference would be to combine the two plans, and run all the risks of each: to allot a considerable part of each session, or perhaps one whole session, to an absolutely public discussion, and to bear without whimpering the reproaches of the malicious for whatever foolish or worse than foolish utterance or occurrence might take place. We must in candor admit, as our private opinion merely, that the Free Religious Association would gain in public influence, and do a vastly more useful work,-though it would unquestionably be more flercely assailed and more maliciously vituperated, even by the very critic that now sheds crocodile tears over its lack of "brave faith in freedom,"-were it to make itself in very earnest an Anti-Slavery Society, bear without over-sensitiveness the odium that free public debate would inevitably bring upon it, and fling itself into the thick of the fight with superstition regardless of knocks, careless of reputa tion, and resolute to compel public attention to the monstrous unreason of the popular religion. There is but one way to do this, and the Register does indeed point it out. For one, we have always been ready to adopt it, and are still : but it is not creditable to any journal to intimate that the Free Religious Association "gags" its audiences, because it invites them to listen to addresses by speakers publicly announced beforehand. If this is "gagging," the Register itself goes in for it vigorously by upholding the Unitarian churches!

Since writing the above, we have received the following note from Mr. Frothingham on the same subject :-

NEW YORK, Nov. 28, 1874. DEAR MR. ABBOT :--

To the charge that the Free Religious Association adopts a close and exclusive policy at its conventions I have but a single word to eay in reply. Probably you and I feel alike in wishing there were more freedom of discussion, and in believing there might and ought to be. For some years past I have favored setting apart a large allowance of time for open extemporaneous debate ; have, in arranging conventions, advocated it on the ground that such a feature would add interest to our meetings, and do much to promote the object we had in view, as well as exhibit on our part a disposition to give our idea a free expression. It has been my practice to invite response from our audiences. I did so cordially and emphatically at Providence. In New York the invitation was omitted because there seemed to be a probability there that the sessions might be spoiled by impertinent and unruly interruptions. Our idea was, besides, a new one to that community, and it was important to expound and illustrate it as fully as the time allowed.

When the Free Religious Association first held public conventions, the amiable visionaries and enthuslasts who hover about novel propositions constituted a real danger. The platform might have been occupied and the hours consumed by men and women whose hearts were full of emotions they had no public opportunity to express. Our announce ment was particularly attractive to such. But this peril was long ago overpassed, and a large space would have been given to free discussion, if free discussion had shown any inclination to fill it. But the invitation given by the chairman was seldom accepted, never with sufficient fulness to make the open debate a feature of the convention, and it became a necessity to provide speakers. These had to be selected from our own membership, which was not large, and consequently an air of narrowness and restriction was imparted to the meetings. But never, that I am aware, has there been anything like a spirit of exclusiveness, never the least approach to squeamishness or pedantry, or literary snobbishness. For one I should be glad of any expansion or change that would give freshness and vigor to our public presentations. Nothing would delight me more than the entrance of new intellectual forces upon our field of work.

But I am not prepared to admit that the plan we have been forced to adopt is destitute of advantages. It has at least one recommendation, in that it enables the Association to give complete and dellberate atterance to its own ideas. It leaves the hours unwasted; a gain that would be appreciated in any religious convention I ever attended, where the unprofitableness was in exact proportion to the talk. In spite of the endeavor of the managers of the Anti-Slavery Conventions, their public meetings were frittered away by this irrelevancy. Yet their issue was a distinct one, their aim was perfectly comprehended. Ours is not; and until it is, the profit of free discussion may be less than its entertainment. O. B. F.

Faithfully yours,

LONDON LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDEX:

Sir,-Your own unwearled efforts to establish the "Liberal League" must by this time have created among the freethinkers of America a strong desire for an organization of some kind, if not one identical in form with that which you advocate.

Without attempting now to canvasa the merits of the Liberal League, I wish to urge the necessity for an organization which shall embrace the freethinkers of the whole world.

The necessity for it may be urged on many grounds; but I will mention only two which, it will be readily admitted, are quite enough. First, the promotion of our principles and the spread of our opinions cannot be properly or afficiently carried on without cooper-We need an uninterrupted chain of commuation. nication with each other, not only to give mutual information of what is being said and done, but to elicit all the various opinions and spontaneous agreements which may be held in different parts of the civilized world.

The little that is done in this way by private correspondence, and by the chance notices which creep into our newspapers, is in itself a source of great strength already, and only shows what would be the effect of extending this intercourse and widening the sphere of this sympathy by some almost universal means of communication.

It is of course a grand power to be able to stand alone, and to set one's back against the wall and face the world. But few are ever called to this post of honor, and still fewer find in themselves sufficient moral courage to maintain their independence. As a rule men are too social to be able to dispense with the legitimate props and stays of human sympathy and encouragement. We must nearly all remember the moment of our lives when, after having nursed our heretical musings in secret during a long and painful suspense, we first discovered in the mind and heart of a fellow-man precisely the same thoughts and convictions as those we had been hiding in our own breasts. Our hope revived, and our courage was doubled and trebled, the moment we found we were not alone.

Now there are thousands of persons so situated as hitherto to have been practically shut out from this sympathy and solace, and I see no method of reaching them with the assurances for which they yearn, but in some new and altogether untried organization.

In the second place, we need an organization which shall furnish substantial help to those whom temporal ruin threatens, should they declare their liberal opinions.

You, sir, would share my distress were you to hear but a tenth part of the tales of sorrow which reach me almost dally. Men and women in various positions seek my sympathy and counsel in the bitter trials of their persecution, a persecution quite as real though not so coarse and brutal as that of the Middie Ages.

Generally speaking, the form it takes is deprivation of the means of subsistence, although of course there are cases in which, this being impossible, other means of torture are employed to punish independence of thought. Were I to begin to illustrate by facts, I should require a volume to contain what I have to tell. But I am tempted to give one typical case, because it is just the kind of necessity which most requires the ald of some great organization.

A clergyman, between the ages of forty and fifty, with a wife and family, depends entirely upon his benefice for his and their maintenance. Time and thought have at last landed him in convictions entirely hostile to the Christian religion. He dare not preach his own thoughts; he is still compelled to use a liturgy with which his feelings are totally at variance, and which at every page outrages his reason and moral sense. His conscience is pained by the wretched insincerity of his position, and the misery of that settles down upon his soul-a horrid burden by night and by day. His wife cannot sympathize with him. Her religious feelings and beliefs have been too strong to allow him even to make her the confidante of his change of opinion. The happiness of her life, no less than her daily bread and that of her children, depends on his continuing in this utterly false and unhappy position.

What is he to do? It is too late to take up and to learn a new profession, even if he have the money to keep himself and his family during the term of his preparation.

The bar, medicine, and other professions are all virtually closed against him, for cases of success after change of profession in middle life are rare indeed. What can he do? If he leaves his benefice and clerical work, he does not merely starve and ruin himself, which he would be willing enough to do for the sake of conscience and veracity, but he also ruins and starves the dear wife and children to whom he owes his first, his supreme obligation.

In our present disorganized state, there are no means of extricating such an one (and there are hundreds of such cases, I can assure you) from this pitiable embarrasement. None of us can blame him if . he resolves to stay where he is for the sake of his dear ones. One might almost go so far as to say with the Apostle Paul, "If any provide not for his own, and especially for them of his own house, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel."

Google

584

Nevertheless, our sense of right is outraged by this horrible necessity which compels a man to be a dissembler; and on this ground I urge again the importance of forming such an organization as shall enable us to provide, either in his own or in a foreign land, for one who is thus oppressed.

Were we thoroughly organized, we should have schools and other institutions in which ex-clergymen might exercise their literary or scholastic qualifications; were we organized, there would be a registry established wherein varied occupations might be supplied by the various applicants for employment, and temporary aid afforded until suitable occupation could be found.

I cannot now undertake to furnish even the skelston of what such an organization should be; but will only say one word about it, of the greatest importance.

An organization to be of the smallest use universally must be absolutely void of any political or religious creed. While the strictest regard to morality is made its fundamental principle, and only good people are permitted to become its members, no restriction should be placed on independent speculative opinions whether in theology or politics. It must be established to help all good persons who suffer persecution for their conscience' sake.

I am, sir, very truly yours, CHARLES VOYSEY.

CAMDEN HOUSE, Dulwich, S. E., Nov. 7, 1874.

Communications.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE UNCONSCIOUS. BY HUGO ANDRIESSEN.

<text><section-header><text><text><text>

the American exponent, holds that there are no lim-its to scientific explorations and investigations. This school discards the notion of any such thing as an "Unknowable." "Mystery." Mr. Abbotaays, "enough there is, yet not insoluble; and the indomitable mind of man, refusing voluntarily to clip the wings that bear it forever onward and upward, urges its flight towards regions that seem to the timid hopelessly be-yond its reach. Be of good courage, O marvellous Intellect, for thou too art of the essence of the eternal." It would appear, than, that there is yet abundant faith in a bright future, in eternal progress, in the full ability of the human intellect ultimately to solve all the problems and mysteries that surround us at present. us at present. The adheren

The adherents of the other school do not reject the results of scientific thought, either; but they are not quite so sarguine, so enthusiastic. Their philos-ophy has been denominated pessimistic. They think they are compelled to acknowledge (Erkeunen) of Nature; they the compelled to acknowledge (Erkeunen) of Nature; they believe that every thinker will, sooner or later, arrive at a point where our human intellect will vainly try to receive more light. The great problems of existence, the where, whence, and whither, the beginning of all things and the end, the purpose and destiny of being, they claim, we will never be en-abled to comprehend or to understand.

"In Nature's infinite book of secrecy A little we may read-"

thus Prof. Dubois Raymond begins his famous lect-ure "On the Limits of our Knowledge of Nature," and even his antagonist, that bright, elastic old thinker and deep philosopher, Spiller, of Berlin, commences his reply by quoting Goethe: "The most beautiful reward of thinking man is to have explored all that really is explorable, and to conjecture that which is inexplorable." The clearest statement, however, of their position one will find by reading a very characteristic seasy.

The clearest statement, however, of their position one will find by reading a very characteristic essay, "Creation, God. Soul, Hereafter—The Four Great Fruitless Problems"—by an anonymous writer in the Modern Thinker, No. 2. This writer admits that the above and "some similar" problems, though ever shifting their solutions, are eternally destined to be asked; but he insists that these questions are not. in ate in the mind, and that it is merely waste of time to discuss those and all other similar metaphysical questions. In regard to Spencerism, he says: "In deed, a distinct proposal has been made to make the Unknowable the basis or perhaps the apex of philoso-phy, the object and austenance of the religious senti-ment. All altars are to be destroyed save that which puty the object and austenance of the religious schul-ment. All altars are to be destroyed save that which is raised to the 'Unknown God.'' This is the lan-guage, we must not forget, of a defender of the Posi-tive Philosophy of Comte, who would makemankind kneel down before the altars erected to "Humanity, the Great Being in whom we live, move, and have being!"

<text><text><text><text><text>

scious closes the sad drama. The last man will lay down his weary, tired head to seek peace and rest eternal in death that knows of no resurrection!

"The end is more than joy and anguish, Than lives that laugh, and lives that lauguish, The poppied sleep, the end of all"-

<text><text><text><text><text><text>

AN EXPERIMENT OF PROHIBITION.

MR ARROT :-

MR. ABBOT:--During a recent visit to the north shore of Lake Superior, I stopped at Silver Islet for a few days, where there are some three hundred miners of almost all nationalities, engaged in silver-mining, and was there made acquainted with an experiment under-taken by the Silver Islet Mining Company in behalf of "prohibition," which experiment was an utter failure, as they now acknowledge. Perhaps an ac-count of this experiment may interest some of your readers. readers.

The government of the district controlled by The government of the district controlled by the mining company is an absolute despotism, so far as concerns the selling of liquors, and therefore any ex-periment in the matter of regulating or prohibiting the sale of alcohol, in every shape, could not be de-faulted for want of jurisdiction or power to enforce whatever arbitrary rules they saw fit to promulgate. During the winter of 1872 and 1873, the experi-ment of total prohibition was undertaken. The men were deprived of all liquors, beer, ale, etc., and nothing of an intoxicating nature was allowed on the location.

men were deprived of all liquors, beer, are, etc., and nothing of an intoxicating nature was allowed on the location. The heart of the "extremist" would have leaped for joy at the severe stringency of this absolute reto all indulgence in liquors. The result of this movement was, that the men feft their work, and travelled many miles in search of whiskey. They were met on the outskirk of the company's jurisdiction by a set of naprinelpiel scoundrels from "Prince Arthur's Landing," twenty-ity encless away, and there traded for the contraband article, receiving a poor or poisonons quality of while were at an exorbitant price. The men thus neglected their work, lost their pay, and remained drunk for days together, causing grait touble to the mining authorities, and much misery to reduce a firerce delight and excitement in the men, while thus circumventing the efforts made to deprive them of their accustomed indulgence. It was nat-ural that what was obtained by stealth was sweet ontravening a deepotic command. Moreover, at the men could never be assured of a uniform and equalar supply of whiskey, when the opportunity for indulgence offered, their few days of abstinence were followed by weeks of debaucb. The authorities were finally convinced that their course was unwise and the experiment a failore; and, in the following season of 1873 and 1874, they endered on a "new departure." From utter prohib-tion they passed to opening a bar-room, and allowed all the men who desired it three drinks per day.

manning Google

Their whi-key was of the purest quality, being man-ffactured expressly for them, and the price one half of that paid by the men for the contraband article. Of about two hundred and seventy-five miners, all but tweive take their daily rations of whiskey or al-cohol in some shape, and they are satisfied with this comparative moderation. There is little or no drunk enness, no abandonment of work to engage in whis-key-hunting and debauchery, and this second experi-ment seems in every way a success. The bar-tender keeps a record of every man's drinks, and no one can exceed the limit of three drams per day; and, as a general thing, they are satisfied with this limit.

The life of a miner is a very laborious one, and not without its dangers and perils. Some artificial stim-ulus seems almost a necessity to such men. It has been often said that our War of the Revolution would not have succeeded, had it not been for New England rum. John Janes Garth Wilkinson (we like to give his whole name) recommended, during the Crimean War, that the men in the trenches before Sebastopol ahould be served with daily doses of homeopathic pellets to preserve them from malaria and lung diff-culties. Who would not have more faith in a good stiff horn of whiskey or New England rum, in such a situation? Do not let us "go back" on our old friend of Revo-

Do not let us "go back" on our old friend of Revo-lutionary fame in these degenerate days of prohibition. May not our prohibitionists learn a lesson from the decided experiment above related-the lesson that men will not be dragooned into virtue, and that sumptuary laws are impossible to be executed ? K.

WRITHER DO WE TEND / SPIRITUAL-ISM-MATERIALISM.

ISM-MATERIALISM. EDITOR INDEX:-Some weeks since I received a latter from a West-ern man, one of your readers and an occasional con-tributor, asking some questions, which he prefaced by saying: "I wish to address you in that spirit of can-dor and earnestness that should characterize seekers of truth." I sat down to reply, and the thought canse to me that his leading questions might be answered to the larger company of your readers, as well as to him and his friends only, and thus one re-ply serve both; and I therefore ask the privilege of a word in your columns to meet these ends. He asks: "Do you find in Spiritualism a thorough-ly satisfactory assurance that immortality is the des-ing or are you subject to the fluctuations of hops and despair that illuminate and darken the religions tope of mankind, such as the heart requires as an in-centive to highest practical goodness? What do you think of the religions tendency of the age? is it toward a stronger belief in immortality, or toward materialistic views?" To these questions let me give some partial answer, all that your some will fairly allow. As to the first toward a stronger benef in immortanity, or toward materialistic views?" To these questions let me givesome partial answer, all that your space will fairly allow. As to the first, I would say, The deepest proof of immortality is the voice of the soul asking of the Life Beyond, with questioning clearer and more rational as humanity slowly but surely reaches a higher stage. This is in-tuitive and deductive, and needs to be verified and confirmed by external facts and inductive investiga-tions, such as Spiritualism, in its phenomenal as-pects, offers and calls for. Thus soul and sense, in-suition and experience, meet and complete the circle of evidence, and satisfy our wants. As we instinct-ively aspire for justice, purity, and freedom, and the clear and beautiful benefit of those ideas, when illus-trated in a nation or in individuals, buoys up our

of evidence, and satisfy our wants. As we instinct-lear and beautiful benefit of those ideas, when illus-trated in a nation or in individuals, buoys up our bainctively asking of the Immortal Liftethe wondrous facts of spirit manifestation and communion gives. A magnetic state of the second question I would say that a "com-financial of the innortal Liftethe would say that a "com-facts of spirit manifestation and communion gives. A magnetic state of the second question I would say that a "com-facts of spirit manifestation is not communion gives. A magnetic state of the inner of the second question I would say that a "com-facts of a pirit manifestation is not communion gives. A magnetic state of the interior faith confirmed by external howledge. As the majesty of some lofty mountain, rock-ribbed and vast in bulk,—or the glory of a magnetic sums in the beautiful, so these voices from the summer's sumset, responds to the soul's love of the synd and the beautiful, so these voices from the sould and says the soul. In my own case, I were have been subject to despair touching a future life, have akened have put all that realm in a clearer to an one satisfying light,—have brought i nearer to have done for many others. To the third question I answer: that all truth is found the site accountability, yet giving "ample of life, in its higher aspects here and hereafter, hold if the, in its higher spects here and hereafter, hold if the, in its higher spects here and hereafter, hold if the, in its higher spects here and learer to be left hereafter in their dividing the maisery to be left hereafter in the singht is some of the wings to be left hereafter in the singht is specified as the missery of be left hereafter in the individing. This I think is sepecially of the divises to come into Spiritalian from for the word infinest is the prior of fails eview of the intervent mainfestations, and grow no wiser or better, for intervent mainfestations, is the spirit is eving in the indivin the second infinest is the view of the of the age," opens a wide realm, only the verge of which can be reached in a few brief words. Ours is the age of a new Reformation, deeper and wider than Martin Luther's; of a Protestantism against all ar-bitrary authority. Book-creeds, men, or angels may help and serve, but shall never rule over and enslave the immortal soul of man. Individual liberty of thought and sacredness of conscience is the call of today. Wearied of theological assertions, without proof or reason, men say, "Give us proof. Show us your facts." Naturally enough comes the era of science, and its

to-day. Wearied of theological assertions, without proof or reason, men say, "Giva us proof. Show us your facts." Naturally enough comes the era of science, and its word is, "To the law and to the testimony" in Nat-ura's realm. It does grand service helping to eman-cipate, to raitonalize, to awaken thought, but it is in-ductive and external in its methods, and therefore in-competent to approach man and his relations. With its imperfect and incomplete processes, it can render but fragmentary answers to the soul's questions. Dogmatic theology cannot oppose it, for in the contest between assumption and fact the first goes to the wall. But inductive science tends to and logically reaches materialism, and no doubt there is such ten-dency to-day; not to be dreaded, but noted as a stage of growth from the old away of dogmatism to a spiri-ual science, a harmony of the truths within us with the truths of external Nature, a recognition of the In-finite design, the spiritual causation—of God in man and in Nature, of Immortality as a truth of the soul. Science, in its efforts to investigate man's whole being, leaves out an important factor in the process-when not schooled in Spiritualism, make the same mistake sometimes. Leaving out this factor, we nat-urally enough find magnetism and clairvoyance, and their important facts, well-nigh ignored. A complete science efficients in inpirit, a religions withers, and wants, and is intuityely conscious of, and will as what facts and phenomena can be deduced from these interior and vital premises. In the light of these questions will ones inductive investigations, and the world of matter without will respond, through the senses, to the world of mind within.

Spiritualism will meet and transcend this material-Spiritualism will meet and transcend this material-latic tendency, will ave and enlarge, harmonize and emancipate, the religious life of the churches, bowed down, and chilled, and belittled by dogmatism and sectarianism. I have no fears as to the fuller recog-nition of Immortality, for what is of the spirit within us will assert itself as the thoughts of men are broad-ened, and the great growth of Spiritualism is a sign of this royal assertion.

of this royal assertion. I use the term as applied to the problem of the im-mortal life, but make no complaint when its inspira-tion helps practical reforms, or the discussion of vital questions touching the better conduct of our life here and now.

I ask my friendly correspondent to accept these brief replies to his questions, and trust they may also help a little to answer like questions from others of your thoughtful readers. Let me say, too, that I write in no spirit of condemnation toward those brave and great souls honest enough to say openly that matter rules mind, or that mind ceases to be organized when our bodies crumble back to their kindred dust. I only reach another conclusion, and state it, as they do theirs. Time will test all. Yours truly, G, B. STEBBINS. DETROIT, Mich., Sanday, Nov. 22, 1874.

THE NEW ORLEANS LIBEBAL LEAGUE.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:--It seems my recent communication in THE INDEX regarding the Liberal League of this city has awak-ened its worthy Secretary, Mr. Wallace, who halls from his new home in Alexandria. In the last issue of THE INDEX (November 19), Mr. Wallace takes ex-ception to some of my statements. Those state-ments were based upon information given me by members of the League. Their names I will give to Mr. Wallace, if he desires it; it will not interest THE INDEX readers. That information was to the effect that members of the League had declared that the open avowal of the Demands of Liberalism would be fatal to their practice. EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-- business, a physician affirming that he would lose his practice. Hence the idea of secrecy. I did not say the League was not 'open to all,' that is, different from bonds of restraint which I had reason to suppose, from the information received, would be imposed upon those who joined. The proper course would have been a straightfor-ward advertisement, setting forth the name, locality, and objects of the League. This was not done, and as a result half of those who heard of the League. Now I do not object much to being called an "infidel," considering the source of such epithets; but I should object most se-riously to being called a White League, for I have no sympathy with their coercive tactics in politics. In proof, however, of my sincere sympathy with the objects of the Liberal League, I will say to Mr. Wallace that I will be one of twenty members (or a less number, if so many cannot be found) who will piedge themselves to pay pro rata anch advertising bills as shall make the objects of the League well known in this city. Furthermore, this done, I will become an active, hard-working member in the League. I can think of no fairer or more practical offer to make. Will the League take it up? But as the League moves at present, its Secretary four hundred and fifty miles from this city, the League itself, as one of its members tells me, doing nothing, I can-not take hold with any heart. In justice to Mr. Vorster, the President of the League, I will say, that within a few days I have been informed he is, and always has been, opposed to any secret feature in the League. Mr. Wallace adds in his postscript that "fully three-fourths of our League are Democrats." I am glad to hear that, for the atlitude of the Dem-ocratic public, of lake, throughout the State, has been

I am giad to hear that, for the attitude of the Dem-ocratic pulpit, of late, throughout the State, has been so bitter, bigoted, and intolerant that I had ceased to hope for much cooperation from that quarter in the Demands of Liberalism. Most cordially will I join all Liberals, no matter from what quarter, race, or party, without a word of reference to present party issues. Those issues have not yet reached the Demands of Liberalism, but they are fast approaching that point, —issues more vital to the people than any yet passed upon by the politics of the land,—as contest which threatens to be more violent than any yet known to the American people. Earnestly do I hope such fears may be groundless, and that a like threatened contest in the Old World may be so peacefully ad-justed as to secure to the Liberals, in this so-called land of liberty, a bloodless victory. MILIAM F. PERKINS. NEW OBLEANS, La., November 24, 1874.

WHAT WAS SLAVERY!

EDITOR OF THE INDEX :-

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:-If my articles have not grown tedious, permit one fact revealing the tricks of the Tract Society to prop-agate a spurious religious literature in the interests of slavery. The English writers have complained, and perhaps justly, of our piracy on their works; but I think it takes the Church not only to steal their books, but also utterly to distort and pervert, them to suit their unhallowed purposes. — The American Tract Society publishes, besides tracts, large numbers of religious volumes for cheap sale or gratuitous distribution.-like the Pilgrim's Progress, and some of the writings of Baxter, Dod-dridge, and other more modern writers, both English Joseph John Gurney, an eminent English Quaker, entitled On the Habitual Exercise of Loce to God. One passage in the book read thus: "If this love had slaways prevailed among professing Christians, where would have been the sword of the Crusader? where the American slave trade? and where the odious system which permits to man a property in his fellow-men, and converts rational beings into marketable chat-tels?"

With a wholesome dread of slave-holding wrath, the Tract Society printed the sentence distorted to

And yet I have other instances just like it, if not worse, done by that same association. No wonder American authors who wrote books to sell made haste to publish expurgated editions of their works, dropping out every line that reflected on Southern slavery as a sin and crime, or anything oth-er than an institution of heavenly origin, of divine commission and appointment. Even so noble a man as Rev. John Pierpont did this very thing-the only blemish I ever knew on his otherwises spotless, stan-less character. PARKER PILLSBURY. TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov., 1874.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

EDITOR OF THE INDEX:-Tay that a pity that so much space in The INDEX christian, anti-Christian, Extra-Christian, etc? Can our best scholars tell us cartainly what Jeans and the target is cartainly what Jeans and the target is truthfulness? The could know positively what he taught, should we not are to judge of its truthfulness? The could know positively what he taught, should we not are to judge of its truthfulness? The could know positively what he taught, should we not are to judge of its truthfulness? The could find he taught the truth, should we receive the because he taught it, or because it was true? Was Christianity? Which is greatest, Man or the church? If Christianity is the highest good, the should find he taught the truth are strue? The writer once believed that Christianity was the release he taught of and out what was taught as true eighter. The writer once believed that Christianity was the shild, I understood as a child, I thought as a child it when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the when I became a man, I put away childian the mists of an unquestioning faith; but we I would meet both truth and error face to face. The now abideth faith in goodnese, hope of a higher indian. HENEPALPIAMANE

HENRY PALPHIAMAND. CANTON, Bradford Co., Ps., Nov. 11, 1874.

Suverusemenis.	u
THE PATRONAGE	LEADIN
of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for TKE INDEX. The attempt will be honeaily made to keep the advertis- ing pages of TRE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most generons support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed to be fraudulent or unjust to any ono, will be excluded from these columns. No cuts will	0. B. FROT T. W. H W.
be admitted. THE INVEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisors, who will in all cases accopt the responsibility for their own statements. ADVERTISING RATES.	Are now for and will be on receipt cents each; graphe, $1.5

For 1 to 12 4 13 4 25 4 26 4 51 4 52 c per 66 66

A day aling and a

On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FBANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE

Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871, 1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.60, $2.-60, and $3.60 respectively. Those volumes are exceedingly valuable singly, irrespective of each other; for the important essays and other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read-ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more valuable present could be made to a friend struggling out of Orthodoxy than one of these volumes. Address th

THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston. TWO NEW BOOKS.

MODERN CHRISTIANITY, A CIV-ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the author of The Fight at Dame Europa's School.

THE IMPEACHMENT OF THE HOUSE OF BRUNSWICK. By Charles Bradlaugh.

The price of each of these books, in paper rs, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. covers, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. In cloth binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

> THE INDEX. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

HE T FRE E

Address

SUNDAY ADVOCATE.

A MONTHLY JOUBNAL AND BE VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-EST OF THE NATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE.

LEAGUE. The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, &c., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex-day Evenings for the People," and generally to promote severything conducive to rational vecreation on Sunday. The Pree Sunday Advocato is published in Kondon, England, and is conducted by an Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall, London; Fred'k Long, London; Francis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Judge, Hampstead. The Artual Euroschritton for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one scolar (payable in advance). Address THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE,

THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE, 256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England.

THE REFORMATOR.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL,

For the dissemination of useful knowledge, and the enlightenment of the people on political, religious, and social subjects, with a view to reform.

Published in the German language ery Saturday, at Adrian, Mich.

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the principal cities and villages in the United State and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advertising.

Terms of Subscription. $2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at ilberal rates. Sub-scription and advertisements must be paid in 01 NG INDEX WRITERS Including THINGHAM.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS 1

LIGGINBON, J. POTTER,

W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN, CHAS. VOYSEY,

A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT, raile at the office of THE INDEX, e mailed postpaid to any address of price. Single Photographs, 2 ; complete Set of Eight Photo Taphs, 25

	Address,				THE INDEX,
		No.	1	Tr	emout	Pla	ce,	Bost	ton,	Ma	88.
T	N	D	1	E	x	T	R	A	C	T	8.

60. 1.—Truths for the Times, by F. E. Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations" and "Modern Frinciples." MB. CHARLES DARWIN, antheness." No. 1.-Truthe for the Tim DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Specles," says, in a letter to the editor not orig-inally intended for publication, but subse-quently authorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admire them from my inmost heart; and I agree to almost every word." New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00

No. 1-Fear of the Living God, by O. B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing chi acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-thy of the nineteenth century. New Edi-Ho n. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No. 3.-Lecture on the Bible, by the Bev Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-whelming demonstration of the imperfecad errors of the Bible, both 16 14 Old and the New Testaments. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 4.-Christian Propagandism, by F. E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness, costliness, and inefficiency of the System of Foreign Missions. Full of Figures, Facts, and Interesting Extracts. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 5 .- "God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-posed Theological Amendment to the United States Constitution. Price 10 cents: 12 copies $1.00

No. 6.-<sup>16</sup>The Sabbath," by Parker Pills-bury, denounces Sabbatarian superstition. New Edition. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 7.-"Compulsory Education," by F. E. Abbot, maintains the right of every child to be educated, and the duty of the State to ensure it an education. Price i cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 5.-The Present Heaven, by O. B. Frothingham, treats of a subject that interests everybody. New Edition. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents,

No. 9.- The Christian Amendment, by F. E. Abbot, shows the dangerous character of the attempt to interpolate the Evan gelical Christian Creed in the U. S. Constitution. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents

No. 10.-The Impeachment of Christianity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou-sand. Sent for free distribution to any one who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.

No 11.-The God of Science, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show the real influence of modern science upon the idea of God. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 12.-Is Romaniam Real Christian ity1 Two essays by Francis W. Nowman and F. E. Abbot. Price 10 conts; 12 copies $1.00.

No. 15 .- On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, anal the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents,

No. 14. - A Study of Religion: The Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Religion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Religion among mea. Frice 10 cents; 13 copies $1.00. Address THE INDEX, I TREEONT PLACE,

Boston, Mass.

A Weekly Journal DEVOTED TO FREE RELIGION. PUBLISHED BY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION,

THE INDEX,

7

8

4.

FREE

AT. No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

RDITOR: FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT. ASSOCIATE EDITOR:

ABRAM WALTER STEVENS. EDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS:

- O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City. T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.
- W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass.

R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass. MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

F. W. NEWMAN, England.

CHARLES VOYSEY, England.

THE INDEX aims

- To increase general intelligence with respect to religion :
- To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the individual:
- To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for a ctarianism, devotion to universal ends for absorption in selfish schemes.
- In brief, to hasten the day when Free Religion shall take the place of dogmatism and ecclesinsticism throughout the world, and when the welfare of humanity here now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.

In addition to its general objects, the prac-tical object to which THE INDEX is special-ly devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE LIBERALS OF THE COUNTRY, for the purpose of securing the more complete and con-sistent secularization of the political and ednestional institutions of the United States The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The last vestiges of acclesiastical control must be wiped out of the Constitutions and Statutes of theseveral States in order to bring them into harmony with the National Constitution. To accomplish this object, the Liberals must make a united demand, and present an unbroken front, and the chief practical aim of broken front, and the chief practical and of THE INDEX will be henceforth to organize a great NATIONAL PARTY OF FREEDOM. Let every one who believes in this movement give it direct ald by helping to increase the circulation of THE INDEX.

SPECIAL FEATURE

The publication of a valuable leading pa-per or essay of a thoughtful character, in each issue, will continue to be one of the ost marked features of THE INDEX.

Regular editorial contributions will con tinue to be furnished by the well-known em-inent writers who have already done so much to give to THE INDEX its present high position. Mr. VOYSET has kindly consented to furnish every fortnight a LONDON LETTER tad to containing matters of general interest to radical readers. Other interesting correspondoo, communications, extracts from valuable books and periodicals, and miscellaneous articles, will also be published; and such improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances shall render possible.

AGENTS.

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the coun-try. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dollars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-tances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered let ter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanie The name with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX.

No.1 Tremont Place, Boston.

ASSOCIATION. Report of the Addres See a Report of the Addresses and other Proceedings of the Original Meet-ing in 1867, at which the Free Beligious Association was Organ-ized. Containing addresses by 0. B Frui-ingham, Henry Bianchard, Lucretta Mett, Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver Joh

PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGIOUS

OFTEE

son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig-ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson. (This pamphiet has not been on sale for a number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not ess this.) Price 50 cents.

Proceedings of Second Annual Meet ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains essays by Julia Ward Howe on "Freedom and Restraint in Religion," and by David &. Was-son on "The Relation of Social Science to Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Denton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Beaver, and others; with an appendix on "Outlines of Judaism" by Rabbi Wise.

- broccedings of Third Annual Meet-ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains amon by O. B. Frothigham on the "Idea of the Free Religious Association," follows by addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature addresses by D. A. Waason on "Ine Nam of Religion," by Mrs. E. D. Cheney on "Be-ligion as a Social Force, especially in reli-tion to Philanthropy and Heform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religions Organization, as affected by the Spirit of the Age;" an essay by Samuel Johnson on "The Natural Sympathy of Religions," fol-lowed by Rabbi Wise on "The Permanent and Progressive Elements of Judziam," by by Wm. H. Channing on "Mohammedunim," by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of China," and Wm. J. Potter on "Religion Old and New in India;" also abstract of a discussion on "The Bible in the Public Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calthrop, Rabbi Wise, and others.
- Proceedings of Fifth Annual Meet-ing, 1872. 35 cents. (Four or more, S cents each.) Contains essays by J. W. Chadwick on "Liberty and the Charch in Americs," by C. D. H. Mills on "Religion is Series." the Expression of a Permanent S. of the Human Mind," and by 0. B. Froth-ingham on "The Religion of Humanity," with addresses by Rowland Connor, Cells Burleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. Bartol, Horace Seaver, Alexander Locs, and others.
- Proceedings of Sixth Annual Mesi-ing, 1873. 35 cents. (Four or more, 55 cents each.) Contains essays by Sumuel Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by Johnson on "Freedom in Religion," and by John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom," with addresses by Wm. C. Gannett, Robert Dale Owen, T. W. Higginson, Samuel Logfellow, J. S. Thoma on, F. E. Abbot, and cretia Mott.
- Proceedings of Soventh Annual Miceting, 1874. 35 cents. (Four 07 more, 20 cents each.) Contains verbation reports of President Frothingham address willions Proceedings on "The Validity of the Free Religious Platform," of Dr. Bartol's easy on "The Religious Signs of the Times," of Rabbi Sonneschein's speech on "Reformed Juda-ism," and of the statements by Messr. Calthron, Abbet and Elegionan of their re-Ism," and of the statements by means Calthrop, A bbot, and Higginson of their re-spective atlitudes towards Christianity-as "Christian," "Anti-Christian," and "Ex-tra-Christian," -together with the Secreta-tra-Christian," -together with the Secretary's Annual Report, and letters from Kesbub Chunder Sen, Frederick Douglass, and D. A. WEASOD.

Religions of China, by Wm. H. Channing. 25 cent

Reason and Revelation, by William J. Potter. 10 cents.

Taxation of Church Property, by Jas. chage of ten, Parton. 10 cents, singly; pac 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tre-mont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the For 1888 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and use supply of others previous to that of 1871 is quite limited. Orders by mail may be ad-dreased either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Flace, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass. WM. J. FOTTER, Soc. F. E. A.

SIGOOL MUSICING

587

OTOP OT

T

H E

		CEIMBER 3, 18	7-
POPULAR BOOKS,	Historical Pictures Retouched; a Volume of Miacellanies. In two parts, Part L, "Studies Pictures and Bacalori, 1 10	III. Foods. By Dr. Edward Smith 1.75 IV. Mind and Body. The Theories of their Relations. By Alex. Bain	1
BENT BY MAIL	Bistorical Pictures Retouched; a Volume of Miscellanies. In two parts. Part L. "Studies, Pictures, and Pancies"	V. The Stady of Sociology. By Herbert Spencer, Esq
AT	The Descent of Man. 3 vols 4.00	Cooke, Jr. 2.00 VII. The Conservation of Energy. By Bal- four Stewart, with an Armondit Irasi-	1
PUBLISHERS' PRICES!	Journal of Researches. 2.00 Emotional Expression of Man and the Low- er Animals. 2.50 The Variation of Animals and Plants under	<ul> <li>The Stady of Sociology. By Herbert Spencer, 2sd.</li> <li>The Stady of Sociology. By Herbert N. The New Chemistry. By Jostan P. Cooke, J.</li> <li>The Conservation of Energy. By Hal- four Stewart, with an Appendix, tran- ing of the Visal and Mental Applications of the Doctrine.</li> <li>LM Commotion, or, Walking,</li> </ul>	,
ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED.	Domestication. 2 vols., illustrated 6.00 DESCARTES (RENE.) Discourse on the Method of Rightly conducting the Besson and Seeking Truth in the Sciences	of the Doctrine	1
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE.	DIOKENS' Child's History of England 1.59 DUBRING (JULIA.) Philosophers and Pools. A Study	JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50 JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions,	14
ANY BOOK in the subjoined List, or any other	ELIOT'S (GEORGE) Novels, Household Edi- Hon, 5 vols, each 1.00	and their Belation to Universal Religion. India
OBTAINABLE BOOK that may be desired, will be forwarded as promptly as possible on receipt of orders accompanied with the CASH.	Comprising Adam Bedie, Romola, The Mill on the Floss, Fellr. Holt.	JOBEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavius Josephus, the Jawish Historian. 2.M JOWETT. The Dialognes of Plato. Trans- lated into English, with Analysis and Intro-	Т
Orders are respectfully solicited from all friends of THE INDEX.	Siias Marner and Scence of Clerical Life. The Same. Library Edition. 2 vols	lated into English, with Analysis and Incro- ductions by B. Jowett, M.A., Master of Balillo Collego, Orford, and Regula Pro- fessor of Greek. Four vols	0
ALGOTT (A. BRONSON). Tablets	EMERSON'S (R. W.) Essays. First Series. 2.00	LEORY (W. E. H.) History of the Rise and Influence of the Spirit of Rationalism in Europe. 2 vols
Concord Days. 1.50 Becords of a School. A new adition 1.50 ALCOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women, Two	Representative Men	Europe. 7 vols
Yols	Poarna With Portrait 200	LEGGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 Confuctus and Chinese Classics
Stories 1.50 An Old-Fashloned Girl	May-day and Other Piccos 2.00 Emergen Biue and Gold 1.50 Posens. Biue and Gold 1.50 Prone Works. 2 vola 6.00 Boclety and Solltude 2.00	LESSING'S (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans- lated by Ellen Frothingham	0
Work; A Story of Experience	Bociety and Solitude	LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols. 1.0 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Present	0
ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. 1.50 ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Criti-	the French of Athanase Coquerel the Younger	LEWES' Physiology of Common Life. 2 vols. 1.0 Biographical History of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Freesant Day. 2 vols. Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- tions of a Creed	8
Ciam		LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life. 1.M LEWIN (REV. RAPHAEL, D'C). What is Ju-	0
AUERBACH (BERTHOLD). On the Heights. 1.50 Villa Eden; The Country-House on the Rhino	FARBAR'S Critical History of Free Thought, in reference to the Christian Religion 2.00	daism? or, a Few Words to the Jews 1.0 LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait.	¢
German Tales 1.00	FEUERBACH (LUDWIG.) The Essence of Christianity. "George Ellot's" translation. 1.00 FISEE'S (JOHN) Myths and Myth-Makers., 2.00	2 vols	0
BACON'S Emays	PROTEINGRAM (O. B.) Ballidon of Ho-	LOWELL'S (J. R.) Poema. 2 vols	000
BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A	manity 1.56 Bollofa of the Unbollevars	Among my Books
BAIN (ALEXANDER). Mental Science: A Compendium of Psychology and History of Philosophy	FULLER'S (MARGARET) Complete Works, including Memoirs by Emerson, Channing, and others. A new edition. 5 rols	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civilia- tion, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.0 Pre-historio Times. 5.0	0
The Senses and the Intellect. Third edi- tion. 1 vol 5.00	GALTON (FRANCIS.) Hereditary Genius, An Inquiry into its Laws and Conse-	Pre-historio Times	0
BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms. 1.50 BARTLETT'S Familiar Quotations	Quences	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's Daughter
BARTOL (REV. C. A). Badical Problems 2.00 The Rising Faith	GOETHE'S Faust. Translated into English Verse by Bayard Taylor. 2 vols. Per vol 5.00 Elective Affilitis	MANN (HORAOE). The Life of Rorace Mann. By his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 1.0 Annual Reports on Education, from 1539 to	0
BASTIAN (H. CHARLTON). The Begin- nings of Life, 2 vols	Oariyle, Portrait of Goethe. 2 vols	Lectures and Annual Reports on Education, 3.0 Annual Reports on Education, from 1839 to 1848	0
BIELZ in the Public Schools. Records, Arguments, and Decision in the of Education of the city of Cincinnati: et al. in the Suprems Court of the City of Cincinnati	GREG'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life	1648	3
of al. in the Supreme Court of the City of Cincinnati	GROTE'SLIFE, Compiled from Pamily Doo-	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and Theological. 2 vols. Per vol favor of the use of the Hible	uments, Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friends. By Mrs. Grote. Second Edition. With Por- trait	MAURICE (Rav. F. D.) The Ground and Object of Hope for Mankind.	8
the second	HAMERTON (PHILIP G.) A Painter a Camp. Book I. In England. Book II. In Scotland.	MERIVALE'S (CHABLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire	20
BRACKETT (ANNA C.) The Education of American Girls	Book III, In France. A. 1.50 Thoughts about Art. 2.00 The Unknown River	MILL (JOHN STUART.) Dissertations and Discussions. 6 vols., each. 2.2 The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir	15
Layman's Breviary	The Intellectual Life	Discussions. 4 vols., each	59
SUECHNER'S Force and Matter 3.25	Child World. Part First 1.50	tion	~1
BUCKLE (HENBY THOMAS). History of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the antire work, with a complete index. 2 vols 6.00	HAMILTON'S Lectures. I. Metaphysical Lectures	Representative Government	50 I
DARLYLE'S Works. Chesp edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Lessys, 7	HAWTHORNE'S (NATHANIEL) Works.	MTLLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras. 1.5 Songs of the Sun Lands	$0 50
vola.; French Revolution, J vola.; Freder- ick the Great, 10 vola.; Cromwell's Letters, Sa. 5 vola.; Sartor Resartus, I vol.; John	Per vol	MIVART (8T. GEO.) On the Genesis of Species
ARLYLE'S Works. Chesp edition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Essays, 7 wols.; Prouch Revolution. 3 vols.; Freder- ick the Great. 10 vols.; Cromwell's Letters, de., 5 vols.; Sartor Resartus, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Life of Schiller, 1 vol.; John Sterling, 1 vol.; Letteros and Hero Wor- rbip. 1 vol.; Latier Day Pamphlets, 1 vol. Any volume soid separately. 31 vols. Lon- don, 1871-3. Per vol.	The House of the Seven Gables, and The	MORLEY (PROF. JOHN.) Voltairs	10
Any volume sold separately. 31 vols. Lon- don, 1571-3. For vol	Snow Image. The Marble Faun. The English Note-Books. The American Note-Books.	Time Stories 14	50
CARPENTEE (DR. W. B.) The Principles of Mental Physiology, with their Applica- tions to the Training and Discipline of the Mind, and the Study of its Morbid Condi-	The American Note-Books. The French and Italian Note-Books. Onr Old Home, and Septimius Felton.	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Loctures on the Belence of Language, First Series	10
tions	HIGGINSON'S (T. W.) Out-Door Papers 1.50 Malbone. An Oldport Romance 1.50 Army Life in a Black Regiment	Essays on the Science of Religion. Vol. II. Essays on Mythology, Traditions. and Customa. Vol. III. Essays ou Lit-
TACLIFE, In Twelve Discourses, Edited	Oldport Days	Three vols. Price per volume	50
from his manuscripts by his nephow, Wm. Henry Channing	HOWELLS'S (WILLIAM D.) Their Wed- ding Journey 2.06 Suburbas Exetches 2.00 Yenetian Life. 2.00 Italian Journeys 2.00 A Chance Acquaintance 1.20	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Round the Cirkle
	Tallan Journeys. 2.00 A Chance Acquaintance	the second se
DEENEY (MES. E. D). Patience. A Sories of Thirty Games for the Fireside	HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, " 'Ninsty-Three"., 1.75 HUMBOLDT (ALEXANDER VON). Life of. Translated from the German. 1 yols., with	NEWMAN (PEANUS W.) A History of the Hebrew Mounroby. Phases of Faith; or, Passages from the History of my Greed	00
La montant a state a st	three portraite	Catholic Union: Essays towards a Church of the Future, as the Organization of Philanthropy.	75
DLARKE (JAMES VEREMAN). Ten Great Beligions	HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses	Theism, Doctrinal and Practical	15 25 25
DLARKE (Dr. E. H.) Sex in Education 1.25 DLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the	HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion	11
World	trative Nihillam	PARKER (THEOPORE) A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion. 11 Speeches, Addresses, and Occasional Ser- mons. 3 Vols. Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occa.
DOBBE (FRANCES POWER). Studies New and Old, of Ethical and Social Subjects, 3.00 Darwhilem in Morals, and other Essays 5.00 The Religions Demands of the Age 20	The Monitions of the Unseen	Critical and Miscellaneous Writings 1. Historic Americans, Franklin, Washing-	ŝ
DONWAY (MONCURE D.) The Earthward Pugrinage	Songs of Seven	Additional Spectnes, Additional and Votes 14 Gritical and Miscellancour, Vitage Withing Bistoric Americans, Pranklin, Washing- troduction by Rev. O. B. Frothingham. 14 The Trial of Theodore Parker for the Mis- demeanor of a Specch in Fancuil Hall	50
Conservation of Forest	INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose. Of the Stel- ligs Studies for Stories	demeanor of a Speech in Fancill Hall against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.4 The two Christmas Celebrations,A.D. L and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story 3	- C. 1
A Series of Expositions by Grove, Heim- holts, Mayer, Faraday, Liebig and Carpon- ier: with an Introduction by Edward L. Youmans, M.D. 1 vol	A Sister's Bye-Hours	And MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story A PABSONS (THEOPRILUS.) The Infinite and the Finite
LIFE: Its True Aims and Bequirements	7 destruction of the sector of the sector 2.00		- 1
CULTURE DEMANDED BY MODERN LIFE, its True Aims and Ecquirements A Sorias of Addresses. By Tyniadil, Hur- ley, Whewell, Paraday, Spencer, Draper, Misseon, Lyell, etc. Edited by Edward L. Yournas.	INTERNATIONAL SCIENTIFIC SERIES. No. L. Forms of Water, in Clouds, Bain, Rivers, Ice, and Glaciers. By John Tyn- 1.50	PHELPS'S (ELILABELE STOREAL THE Gates Alar	99595
DALL (Mgs. CAROLINE H). The College, the Market, and the Court; or, Woman's Belation to Education, Employment, and	dail. 1.50 II. Physics and Politics; or, Thoughts on the Application of the Principles of "Natural Selection," and "Inheritance" to Political Society. By Waiter Bagehot. 1.50	PROCTER'S (ADELAIDE A.) Forms. Por-	80
Belation to Education, Employment, and Ottinenship	to Political Society. By Walter Bagehot. 1.50	trait, Cabinet Edition 2.0	20 than Ours: the Flurality of Works stud- led under the Light of Recent Scientific Essearches. With Colored Plates of Familiar Essays on Scientific Subjects, Natural Phenomena. Easys on Astronomy: A Series of Papers on Planets and Meleors, the Sun, etc.

	With 10 Plates and 24 Woodcuta
3	The Expanse of Heaven. 2.09 RENAN'S Life of Jesus. 1.75 RONSETI (CHRISTINA G) A Shadow of Dente 2.59 CHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Tarrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavonly Bodies. 4.66
-	SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Huxley, F.R.S., 50 2. Chumkery, By Prof. Roscoe,
1	Caynics. By Ballour Blewart. With II- Intradication Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei- Lie, LLD., F.E.S., Reible Gioth
ĺ	SCOTT'S (TROMAS) The English Life of Jesus. Second Edition 2.09
1	SMILES'S (SAMUEL)         Self-Heip
	the Pirst of them Developed
1	SPINOZA (BENEDIOT DE.) Tractates The-
1	ologico-Politicaa
	Uncle Tom's Cabin
1	Source & Toldensterreite
	The Class-Room Taine. History of English Litorature. Abridged and Edited by John Piake
	TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems LT TEACKERAT'S (W. N.) Norels. Household Bültich. Complete in de volumes. Fer vol 1. 'Yanity Fair. The New conces. A performed of Philly. Pendennis.
	The Virginians. Earnord and Lovel the Widower. Miscollanceus Writings. Household Edi- don. Uniform with the Novela. Com- plete in 5 vols. With new Portrait, Per vol. 1.26 This edition includes all the matter in the lat- set English editions, with many additions, thus making it, with the novels, the chaspest and most complete Theckersy in the market. Barry Lyndon, Hoggarty Diamond, &c. 2. Sarots, Sketches, Denis Durat, &c. 4. Sour Georges, Humorist, &c. 4. Four Georges, Humorist, &c.
l
	THAXTER'S (MRs. CELIA) Among the Islee of Shoals. 1.59
	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Walden; or, Life in the Woods
	TYLOR (EDWARD B.) The Early History of Mankind
	TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov- oper. 1.00 Pragments of Science for Unacionitific Peo- ple 2.00 Hours of Exercise in the Alps 2.00 Heat as a Mode of Motion 2.00 Radiant Heat. 5.00 Porms of Water 1.00 Porces of Water 1.00 Proceedings at the Fareweil Banquei to Proceedings at the Fareweil Banquei to Prof. Tradall. 50
ļ	11 then (benen,) Old masters and their Pictures 1.38 Modern Painters and their Faintings
	WARNERS (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden
	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion 1.59 Life of Theodore Parker. 2 vols 6.09
	WHIPPLE'S (R. P.) Literature and Life 1.59 Easays and Reviews
	WHITNEY'S (MES. A. D. T.) A Summer in Lesite Goldthwaite's Life
	WHITNEY'S (MRS. A. D. T.) A Summer in

1 Tramont Place, Boston

INDE

χ,

Damas Google

L TMA N A NEW ADVERTISEMENT!

S

588

M. ALTMAN & CO., Birth Ave. and Ninetconth St., N. Y.

Birth Ave, and Mineteenth St., N. X. MORRIS ALTMAN begs to state to bls old friends and patrons that he bas made extensive reductions in his various departments, and ex-posity calls attention to the following quota-tions. The fullest astisfaction is guaranteed in every instance, and all government of the match of order to insure the immediate dia-patch of order to insure the immediate dia-patch of order to mail. a P.O. Order, draft, or registered letter must accompany each. Goods by express sent Co. D. Backages can be sent by midd at the rate of fwo cents for every four ounces, and one cent for every additional iwo onnees or fraction word and a T. Sowart & Co., H. R. Clasfin & Co. E. S. Jaffrey & Co., J. B. Spelinsan & Co., and all the leading housen in New York city; also to D. M. Bennet, Editor of the Traid Seder; and G. L. Henderson, Banker, both of whom are well know to all Liberals, and especially to the readers of this paper, as to our responsibility, integrity, &c.

Notion Department.

goods incidental to this department, not comprised, are in stock, and will be fur-i at equally low prices. All g nished at equally low prices. Clark's O. N. T. Spool Cotton, warranted, at 88c. Data Co. The Spool Souther at 88c. per dos. Brocks's Glared Cotton, white, black and col-ored 88c. per dos. Costas's white, black and colored Cotton at 88c. met dos.

Corti

per doz. Corricell's and Bolding's black and colored Sowing Nik, 100 yard spools, at 100, per sponl. Corricell's black and colored Button Mole Twist at 2c, per spool. Knitting Cotton, white and colored, at 9c, per ball, "'s bast Heilt needles at 5c. per paper, Milliner" host Heilt Needles at 5c. per paper, Milliner" host needles at 5c. per paper. Best American Pins at 5c. per paper Patont Safety Pins at 5c. per doz. Pratont Bafety Pins at 6c. per doz. Pratont Bafety Pins at 6c. per doz. Preuch Hair Pins in all sizes, 7 paper a 6c. paper. Best English Hair Pins, all sizes 45 c. per paper. Doz.

box. Boxis Hair Pins, assorted sizes, at 50, per paper. English Pin Books, black and while assorted, at 160. Mourning Pins, in all sizes, at 50 at loc. Mourning Pius, in all sizes, at 5c, and upwards. Buttons of every description, in all the leading styles, greatly reduced, from loc. to $1 per dos. Black and colored Alpaca Braids, 5 yd. yleces, Black and colored Alpaca Braids, 5 yd. pieces, at 60. Cotton Cornet Laces, at 10 lengths, at 18c, per doz. Cotton Cornet Laces, at 40. Linen Shoe Laces at 40. Whalebones, full lengths, at 45c, secto. Linen Shoe Laces at 45c, per doz. Jet Boads, at 1 aleae, every variety in latest nov-sities, at 6c, per bunch. This department is replete with the thousand and one articles perioding thereto, impossible to men-entice are, are, Millioners and Store-keepers will be supplied with goode on unuenally advanta-geous lerms, and every care and dispatch will be used in Billug orders.

A beautiful assoriment of French Flowers, in Roses, Buds, Pansies, &C. Floral Dress Trimmings and Bridal Wreaths, branched to order in any style. * A fine assoriment to Poinpone, Feathers and

A fine assortiment of rompone, remains and Wings. An extensive assortment of Fancy Peathers from 25c, upwards. All the newest shades of Ostrich and Plume de Cock for trimming from 55c, and upwards. All the newest shades of Blue Steel and Jet Or-naments at the lowest prices. Elegant Ostrich Plumes, all the latest shades, $2

Blarnense-Blevant Ostrich Fins... Yne Fronch Ostrich Tips, in all shaqes, 'uywarda. The latest shapes in Felt Hats at 85c. Elegant imported Felt Hats, be-t quality, at $1,15. Dreb Felt Hats, in the latest and most fashlou-able styles, at 85c, and uywards. Silk Yelves Hats, of our own importation, in sil qualities at great bargaina. Silk Yelves at 85c and uywards. Seven at the set of the second statest and second able styles at second sec Artening bonnets, steganing stimmed, from $20 to $35. Carriage Bonnets, steganing stimmed, from $20 Sarriage Bonnets, structures and qual-Ladica' and Miases' Bonnets, for Misses' and Children's wear, in all shapes and shades, ready trimmed in isost styles, from $3 to $15. Infants' Espent all the new styles at great bar-gains, or made to order at lowest prices. Monrning Goods made to order at the earliest notes.

Stilks.

Black Sliks of excellent quality at $1 and $1.19. Black Sliks, better and wider, at $1.31, $1.50 and $2. Black Gross Grain Sliks, very rich, $1.50 to $2. Gross Grain Sliks, very finest graides, $1.85 and Colored Trimming Sliks, in all shades, $1.85 and slore $1.50 Cole Colored Dress Elika, latest styles, $1.25, $1.50, $2, Stack Sating

$2.50. Black Sating, beautiful lustre, at $1.50, $1.75 and $2. Colored Sating

Black Volretcen, spinntld manufacture, at 80c., 75c and $1 worth $1.50. Ant Shee in every shade and color. Sash Blobone in all colors and widths, from 55c. and gawards. Colored Pringed Sashes, all the new shades, at very low prices.

Laces and Embroideries.

Laces And Embroideries. These goods will be found extraordinary bar-gias, and include:-Hamburg edging at 10c, per 7d, and upwards. Real Gulpure Laces from 20c, to 21 per 7d. Barts Article Construction and Construction Patent Valenciennic Real paths. And upwards. Beaded Unck Yak Laces at 20c, bo 22 per 7d. Beaded Unck Yak Laces at 20c, bo 22 per 7d. Beaded Unck Yak Laces at 20c, bo 22 per 7d. Beaded Unck Yak Laces at 20c, bo 22 per 7d. Black Yak Laces at 18c, per 7d, and upwards. Colored Blonde Laces at 8c, bo 7d, and upwards. Black Lace Yolk, sil paths 20c, bo 29 per 9d. Black Lace Yolk, sil paths 20c, bo 20 per 9d. Black Birk Beaded Friuge at 30c, bo 27 per 9d. Black Silk Beaded Friuge at 30c, to 25 per 9d. Black Birk Galom at 20c, per 9d, and upwards. Black Birk Beaded Friuge at 30c, to 25 per 9d. Black Birk Beaded Friuge at 30c, to 25 per 9d. Black Birk Beaded Friuge at 30c, to 25 per 9d. Black Birk Beaded Friuge at 30c, to 25 per 9d. Black Birk Beaded Ginga at 20c, per 9d, and upwards. Black Birk Barded Ginga at 20c, per 9d, and upwards. Black Birk Bound Bard 20c, per 9d, and upwards. Black Birk Barded Ginga per 100 p Lace Tidies, in every variety, at 10c. and up-Ladies' Underclothing.

Ladies' Underciothing. A valuable reduction in prices has taken place in this department, and we emphatically state that no other house can compete with the gen-oral inducements we offer. We quote the fol-lowing as samples, which for superiority of workmanhlp, quality and price are not to be Ladier Pine CHEMISES, warranted Muslin, fin-ished superbly on Wheeler & Wilson machine, French corded band, extremely nest, at 80c. Ladier Pine CHEMISES, inniaded as sbore, with 75 tucks, yoke back and front, bandsemely sittched, corded band, extermely nest, at 80c. Ladies' CHEMISES, en point, French pattern, with fine, hand-make, needlework edging and inserting. BIA Robers, Toke Access, Thies Mills, Muslin, spind, uncked and ruffied, yoke back and ront, full length, at $1,0. Ladies' (NOHT ROBES, tucked and embroid-ered yoke, Masonville Muslin, trimmed and embroidered collar and cuffic, reduced from $2,30 to $2.5. Ladies' MIGHT ROBES, present stiraction in

01 01 $2

Trunt, full length, at $1.0.
 Ladies' NIGHT ROBES, Tucked and embroid-erabroidered.
 Stacked and eutra, trimmed and embroidered.
 Ladies' NIGHT ROBES, Tucked and embroid-erabroidered.
 Ladies' NIGHT ROBES, prestest attraction in stock, made of best Musila, with diagonal puffing and embroidered yoke, back and front inew shaped), puffed and embroidered, pointed collars and cuffs, at $3.50.
 Madas M. Bolley, and the Stock and front inew shaped), puffed and embroidered, pointed collars and cuffs, at $3.50.
 Madas M. Bolley, and the Stock and the stock made with diagonal incks, stifts, and embroid-inew shaped), puffed uncks, stifts.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin DRAWERS, trimmed with deep hem and nine tucks, at 15c.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin DRAWERS, trimmed with ucks and ruffs and diagonal incking, at 35c.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin DRAWERS, trimmed with ucks and ruffs and diagonal incking, at 35c.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin DRAWERS, trimmed with ucks and ruffs and diagonal incking, at 35c.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin DRAWERS, with deep hem, cluster of incks, and needlework inaerting, handsomely fluished on Wheeler & Wilson ma-chine, at $1.5.
 Ladies' Fine Musilin, deep hem, clus-ter of incks, puffs, langthing and tucking, with nee-diework inserting five inches deep, at $3.
 TEAIN SKIRTS, the Musilin, deep hem, clus-ter of tucks, puffs, langthing and puffs, with one row of tucks, puffs, langthing at 4.6.
 Ladies' Tharian Balting, at $1.60.
 Masontile ruffs, at $1.60.
 Masontile ruffs, at $1.60.
 Cambrit TOILET SACQUES, timmed with time ruffing, at $1.40.
 Constant, Musilin ruffs, tucks, & 30.
 ORSET COVERS, trimmed with Hambor; editions, editar, thes, editar, at 80.
 ORSET COVERS, trimmed with Hambor; editions, edition, inseriting, ruffing, tucks, &c., at 80. to $1.00.

Ladies' iron fr

Hostery. &c. trame Hose, excellent quality, 25c. Ladies' from frame Hose, excellent quality, 2c. por pair. Ladies' Fuil Regular-made Hose at 2c. per pair, upwards. Ladies' the Habriggan Hose, at $2.00 per $4 dor., upwards. Ladies' triped Hose, every quality, 45c. per pair and upwards. A fuil inte of Ladies' Cashmere and Woolen Hose at lowest prices. Uniden to White and Colored Hose, in every

Nigle. Children's White and Colored Woolen Rose a particular specialty. Gents' Full, Regular ½ Hose, cheapest in the eity, at 22c, per pair, Gents' Merino and Cashmere Hose at 43c, and Sty upwards. Gents' Shaker Socks, not to be excelled, at 34c. pr. Ladjes' Hemstitched Handkerchiefs at 12c. and upwards. Genta' Linen Handkerchiefs, superior quality, lic, and upwards. Genta' Hemstitched Handkerchiefs, all linen, 29c.

Guide Hemiltiched Handkerchiels, au nuen, so-and upwards. We have just received a fine assortiment of Ludies' and Genes' Kid Gloves, including the fol-lowing speciatiles. Every pair ripping or tear-ing will be replaced on application:-Single-Button Black and Colored Kid Gloves, 30c.

Perpertation of the second state of the second per pair, Dery pair crchanged for new if the one pur-Every pair crchanged for new if the one pur-chased should rip or tear. "Josephine" Rusi Kid Glove, an accellent wear-hig glove, at $130 per pair. Gaundet Gloves, every color and shade, at Sic.

Gauntiet trinves, every color and shade, at Sic. and upwards. A large assortment of Woolen Gloves for Ladies, Genis and Golidren, at the lowest prices, from Gents in the French Dogskin Gloves, every color, as 1, 29 per pair. Gents inte French Gloves, excel-ent wear, 35c. per pair.

Gents' Furnishing Goods.

This department is replete with a splendidly asorted stock, and our prices are such as under ell any other establishment where quality is in inded. Gents' Merino Shirts and Drawars, 50c

100 dor. tiente Morno Curre and Correct, or and upwards. 25 dor. Gents' Hed Vlannel, woven very fine, at 31.0% and upwards. 0 of Warmanta Muslin, fine Lines Hosoma, open or closed at back, at $12.00 per $4 dor. Extra-fine, perfectly-fitting Dress Shirts, New York Mills Muslin, with Richardson's best linen bosoms, made in any style to order, at $4.00 per $4 dor.

booms, made ut soy average as low as $1,00 each. Genta White Dress Shirts as low as $1,00 each. Genta Merino Undershirts at 850, up to $2.00, Genta Suspenders, every variety, at 23c, and upwards. Gents' Windsor Scarfs, best quality, at 89c. and upwards. Gents' Wide and Colored Ties in endless variety Gents' Wide and Colored Ties in endless variety at 45c. Gents' Collars and Cuffs in all the latest styles. Gents' Collars, pure linen, latest styles, at $2.00 gents' Columbia 3-ply linen Collars, at $1.90 per Gents' turn-down Collars at $1.75 per doz. Gents' 3-ply Cuffa at 25c. per pair. Gents' St. James Cuffa, 3-ply, all linen, at 31c per Genta'a-piy Cuffs at 25c, per pair. Genta'St, James Cuffs, 3-ply, all linen, at 31c pey Gents' Elmwood Paper Collars at 23c, per box. Genta' Superior Paper Collars at 23c, per box. Genta' common Paper Collars at any price per box.

boz. A large ansortment of Boys' Merino Shirts and Drawers at 50c. Ladies' Morocco Pocket Books from i8c. and up Lantes morocco rocket Books from ise, and up-wards. Ladies' real Russian Lesther Pocket Books from Sic, and upwards. Ladies' nud Misses' Merino Vests and Drawers, all prices.

Tollet Department, Jeweiry,

Tooth Brushes, excellent to best, from 10c, to 30c, Nail Brushes, excellent to best, from 10c, to 30c, Nail Brushes, every style, from 12c, and upwards. Hair Brushes, every style, from 20c, to $1. Dressing Combs from 10c and upwards. Band Mirrors, elegant idealgun, from 10c to $1. Tortoise-Shell Back Combs from 25c, to $1. wards.

Ladies' Rubber Belt Buckles from 25c. and upin. 'Jet Beit Buckles from 25c. and upwards. 'Jet Earrings, latest design, from 30c. to §2. Bracelets, of all kinds, from 30c. to §1. 'Leather Beits from 50c. and upwards. 'Rubber Beits from 50c. and upwards. 'Beaded Fuckets from 50c and upwards. Leather Satchels, in newest styles, $1.50

OUR.

G.

OUR NEW Books sent Free Address J. FRANCIS RIGOLES, BIBLIOPOLE, BEDNEON, MICH.

THREE ESSAYS ON RELIG

LION, By JOHN STUART MILL, is now for sale at this office. Price-Two dollars and fity ca. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.

HISTORY OF THE CONFLICT

Religion and Science, By JOHN WILLIAM DRAPES. Forsale at this office. Price-One dollar and seventy-fre cents. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Sonton.

L. HENDERSON & CO.,

BANKERS.

LEROY, MINN. Branch Office, 137 Broadway, S. T.

Money Invested in First Morgageson happroved Farms in Minnesota and Iowa, ma proved Farms in Minnesota and Iowa, ma ling three to five years, with Constitution of the Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in advance, or 15 per cent, paid seminally in advance, or 15 per cent, per annually in advance, or 15 per cent, per annually in advance, or 15 per cent, per annually. The 10 per cent, paid on receipt of money at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Farticulars, send for Circular.

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REASONS FOR USING THE

EUREKA SPOOL SILK.

It is full length. It is full she. It is smooth and slastic, and is equally adapted to hand or machine use.

Many kinds of spool silk are a perfect fraud, being not only shorter in length, bas a much finer size than they are represented to be, and of so poor a quality as to be unit for use. The ladies will always find the Dy-

Silk exactly as represented.

spool is warranted, and the manufacturer name indelibly branded on every spool. Call

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES,

Investments in Heal Estate in Chicage and vicinity, if judiciously made, are the best and salest modes of employing capital. The old

Real Estate and Loan Agency

RENST PRUSSING. 143 RANDOLPS START

Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Real Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on had. In-terest and principal collected without charge Real Estate Investments made on commission or on shares; taxes paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

PIANO AT HOME,

A large collection of the best

FOUR-HAND PIECES

No book is better fitted for "Hone" Ma-sical entertainment than this. Beginern can play the easier ducts. Advanced play-ers and teachers need not to be told this practice with four hands is the very best to acquire "time" and "certainty." Practice to the "Plano at Home" is nothing but a continual plessure. 200 pages, full sheet music size. In boards $2.50; cloth, $3.60; full git, $4.00.

For CHOIRS: THE LEADER. Price ELS For SINGING SCHOOLS: THE SONG MOR-ARCH, 75 cts.

THE EMERSON METHOD

FOR REED ORGANS.

By L. O. EMERSON ADd W. S. B. MATTEEVA.

Easy and progressive lessons, scales, stad-ies, voluntarles, interindes, quartets, scales, and other pieces in profusion. All well ar-ranged by skilful hands. Price $259.

For CHOIRS: PERKINS' ANTHEM BOOK. $1.50. For QUARTET CHOIRS: THOMAS'S QUARTETS. $2.50.

Specimen copies sent post-paid for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

BOUTON. CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Biglion , Google

FOR THE PIANO-FORTE.

PUBLISHED.

JUST

paying 5 to 10 per cent, in Every

CATALOGUE

NEW

Ladies' Header Fuckets from 50c. and upwards. Ladies' Leather Satchels, in newest styles, $1.50 and upwards. Ladies' real Russian Leather Satchels, $4.50 and upwards. Sold the style of the style of the style and Drawers at Hc. and upwards. Ladies' Sharh Strapf from 50c and upwards. Children' School Hags from 81 to 89c. Ladies' Ties from 50c, and upwards. Ladies' Ties from 50c, and upwards. Ladies' Linen Collers from 50c, per pair and up-wards.

Ladies' Lies from 28c. and upwards. Ladies' Linen Collar from 76c. and upwards. Ladies' Linen Collar from 76c. and upwards. Ladies' Linen Culfs from 16c. and upwards. Ladies' Linen Culfs from 16c. and upwards. Ladies' Dudersleeves from 46c. and upwards. Ribbons of all styles, colors and widths at prices that will scolar and widths at prices that will scolar the upwards. The view of the stock, from which we cut on blas at whoch all styles. First and Inracfiets from 50c per pair, or per set, as high as 50, according to quality and design. We have a full stock, from which we cut on blas at whoch prices. The set of the twisted fringes, now so much line use, in the hasts styles, is all colors, which we offer at the unheard of low price of 46c, per yard. We full stock, the set of the set

MORRIS ALTMAN, of the firm of

M. ALTMAN & CO.,

5th Ave. and 19th St., N. Y. City. NEW YORE Nov. 11.

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three T more pupils, girls or boys, over thirteen, will be received into the family of the subscrib-er. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, SHERBORN, MASS.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Drug, and Hand-grinding HILLS. Ten s. Also Cotton-Seed Hullers. Illustrat-bamphiets free. Address EDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER, 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Obio.

CHEAP OFFERI A

A COMPLETE SET of INDEX TRACTS, rom No. 1 to 14 inclusive, will be mailed to any address on the prepayment of 75 certs. Address THE INDEX,

FREE DISCUSSION

L' is held at HOSPITALLEE HALL, 693 Washing-ton Street, Boston, overy Sunday, at 105 A.M. 23 and 74 P.M. All that relates to the Religious Political, and Social interests of mankind const-tute the subjects for discussion. This INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Hospitalier Hall.

NEW "COSMIC PHILOSOPHY"!

(JUST OUT.) Price, 2 vols., post-paid, $6.00. for sale by THE INDEX,

TYNDALL'S ADDRESS

We have now for sale at this office the lat-est edition of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the British Association. It is the edition revised and suthorized by Prof. Tyn-dsil himself, and contains a preface by him and additions to the Address, made since the delivery. Price, THE INDEX, Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

IN ENGLAND.

THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post to any part of the United Kingdom on re-ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillinga. For Half Year, Eight Shillinga Resultiances should be made hy Interna-tional P.O. Order payable to P. E. Abbot. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.

W. S. EDES.

H. H. CHANDLER & CO.,

NEWSPAPER

ADVERTISEMENT BROKERS.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS. RELIGIOUS and AGBIOULTUBAL NEWSPA-PERS a specialty. Complete files for inspection of advertisers. IF Lists sent upon application.

D. M. LORD

H. H. CHANDLER.

JOHN

For sale by

HE

No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass

FISKE'S

1 Tremont Place, Boston

INDE

X

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

Inder.

VOLUME 5.

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 259.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other ecclestatical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-grees, in State Legislatures, in the navy and millitia, and in prisons, asylums, and all other institutions supported by public moncy, shall be discontinued.

5. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

anali cease. 4. We demand that all religious services now sustained by the government shall be abolished; and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether cetonsi-bly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious wor-ship, shall be prohibited.

ship, shall be prohibited.
6. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious frestivals and fasts shall wholly cease.
6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alutes of perjury shall be established in its stead.
7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enfor-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

pealed.
8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and imparital liberty.
9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the same, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spe-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basic; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfinchingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

A FORM OF LOCAL OBGANIZATION. Whereas, It is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperiled, the advance of civili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and

religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general spirit of the United States Constitution still mark the prac-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-solves together under the following ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1.- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-

Ant. 5.—The means employed in working for these objects shall be regular local meetings, free discussions, locatores, addresses, conventions, the platform and the press in gen-eral, and all such other means as are peaceable, orderly, and right.

And right. Ant. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds for the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a two-thirds vote of the members.

Ast, 5,-Any person may become a member of the League by subsoribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree Agent. Agent.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTIOLE 1. BROTTOR 1.—CONFERSE SHALL MARK NO. IS NORMALITUTION. ABTIOLE 1. BROTTOR 1.—CONFERSE SHALL MARK NO. IS WESPECTING AN ES-fulgion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridg-ing the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Gov-ernment for a redress of grievances. BROTTOR 2.—NO State shall make any law respecting an of religion, or prohibiling the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. No religious to the dovernment for a redress of grievances. No religious a qualification to any office or public trust, in any States and no person shall ever in any State be deprived of any of the isor her rights, privileges, or capacities, or disqualified for the performance of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or equity, in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-dered incompetent to give evidence in any court of law or on the subject of religion. BROTTOR S.—CONGTENS hall have power to enforce the pro-risticons of the second section of this Article by appropri-ste legislation.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

GLIMPSES.

THERE is nothing more beautiful than the love of beauty.

THEATBICAL and musical exhibitions on Sunday are to be suppressed in New York.

THE SUM for the maintenance of a German legation at the Vatican is stricken out of the Imperial budget.

TIME moves slowly for the man without resources In himself. But Time is forgotten by him who has earned to reflect. To contemplate truth is to inhabit eternity.

THIRTEEN States of the Union have enacted laws for compulsory education: Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas, Texas, Nevada, California.

THE would-be Christianizers of the Constitution of the United States hold a public Convention in this city on December 16 and 17. The Call, which will be found republished in another column, is signed by Congressman-elect Seelye, President Hickok, of Amherst College, President Miner, of Tufts College, and others.

JACOB "wrestled with the Lord." The Year Book compilers are wrestling with the moral necessity of asking the societles whether they are Christian or not. But these spiritual athletes do not fancy that their antagonist is "the Lord." Not a bit of it. They are firmly convinced that they have got into the gripe of the-the-the other gentleman i

THOUSANDS of workmen all over the country are thrown out of employment. A delegation of property-holders in New York city waited on Commissioner Van Nort recently, requesting him to employ many of them on public works. Some measure of relief must be adopted, or there will be great distress, perhaps a dangerous desperation, among these poor people.

THE ULTRAMONTANES having cried "pful, pful," when Bismarck said that the assassin Kullman belongs to their party, he sarcastically retorted : "I have no right to censure such exclamations. "Pfui' is an expression of disgust and contempt. I myself am not a stranger to these feelings, but I hope I am too polite to express them." Bismarck is as sharp as Butler in his retorts. Both the Bs carry stings.

BISHOP HAVEN, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said last Sunday in a sermon that "if they [the Methodists] had money, they would soon have all Europe, all Asia, all Africa in their hands." Such reckless assertions, made in the teeth of statistics that directly prove the contrary, are a fraud upon the simple-minded and credulous, and a disgrace to the missionary boards that receive money obtained by means of them.

HERE IS another significant assault on one of our most friendly subscribers and a man of the highest character, Mr. H. A. Mills, of Mt. Carroll, Illinois, (brother of Mr. C. D. B. Mills, of Syracuse, who is so widely known among radicals by his writings and lectures). Mr. Mills was nominated for the State Senate by the Republican party; and the editors of the Morrison Times, in their issue of October 30, published and indorsed the following bigoted letter

BALLEYVILLE, Ill., Oct. 20, 1874. BRO. FISHEB :-

BRO. FIBERE:--I want you to do all in your power to defeat H. A. Mills, of Mt. Carroll, for the Senate. He is the most rabid anti-temperance and anti-Christian man I ever met. I feel it is very dangerous to elect such men to office at this point of time. I oppose him for the above reasons. You may use my name as anthority for the above statements. I know what I say. Yours, etc., W. A. TIBBALS. Yours, etc.,

THESE ARE terrible times in New Bedford. Not a Unitarian in the city now goes to bed without tearing his hair and asking himself whether he is a Christian, and whether Mr. Potter's society is a Christian, and, in short, whether Christianity himself is a Christlan. Nobody can find out; gold has gone up; and the whole town is in an uproar. The cause of all this tumult is the well-founded impression that the Secretaries of the American Unitarian Association are going down there at Christmas to hold a grand "confirmation service," clad in the official robes of Bishop and Assistant Bishop of the Diocese of the Fear Book; and the little Unitarians (who have all been playing truant from Sunday School, and now find that the schoolmaster is abroad) have all got their backs up, and vow they won't recite their catechism ! Such rebellion was never heard of before. But the Bishops will go on sternly with their catechizing. They must preserve discipline. They must excon municate all rebels against Unitarian Christianity in their Diocess. So they are resolved to make this defiant congregation go down on their knees, dismiss their minister, and confess they are "Unitarian Christians," or else-something will crack!

No mone notable book has appeared for a long time, so far as insight into the religious condition of the times is concerned, than Dr. Draper's just pub-lished History of the Conflict between Religion and Science. The origin of modern science in the Macedonian campaigns and the Museum of Alexandria; the origin of Christianity, its transformations, its ascent to political supremacy, and its hostile relation to the increase of human knowledge; the great disputes between the Church and Science respecting the doctrines of God, the soul, the nature and age of the world, the criterion of truth, and the government of the universe; the opposition of Catholic Christlanity (Dr. Draper ought to add that of Protestant Christianity in less degree) to modern civilization, and the fostering influence upon it of Science; and the impending crisis, no more intellectual than political, between Rome and Reason,-all these are discussed with admirable clearness and explicitness, and a wealth of information which at once instructs and fascinates. It is a work directly in the line of THE INDEX, and ought to be studied by all who are interested in the free religious movement; for it carrise this movement forward in a direction that is inevitable. As shown by the advertisement on our last page, it will be sent to any order from this office.

THE DUNDER (Scotland) Advertiser has this interesting statement: "It is not generally known that a series of elaborate experiments intended to illustrate the laws affecting the variation and selection of species have been for some years going on under the direction of able and intelligent naturalists. These experiments were begun soon after the appearance of Mr. Darwin's great work, and their object is to discover the extent to which by persistent effort the species may be varied, to what degree particular organs may be changed by a different circumstance and condition, and how far feeble and rudimentary development may be increased and accelerated by special conditions and wants. These experiments are carried out with the ntmost care, and their results recorded with accuracy; and they will no doubt, in due time, throw much light on the doctrines of development and natural selection. The period during which they have been conducted has as yet been too brief to yield important results, and they may possibly require to be carried on for more than half a century before their scientific value is really ascertained. These experiments are under the direct supervision of nearly all the more eminent naturalists of the day, including Sir John Lubbock, Mr. Darwin, and Mr. Wallace; and they will be the first sustained scienti-fic test to which the laws affecting the variation and origin of the species have been subjected."

Google

LIST OF LIBEBAL LEAGUES.

BT. LOUIS, MO.-M. A. McCord, President; F. A. ANDROUT, L. La Grille, Secretaries. Borrow, Mass.-F. & Abbot, Fresident; J. P. Titcomb, G. A. Bacon, Secretaries. JEFFERSON, OHIO.-W. H. Crowell, President; A. Giddingu, J. Hatch, J. Hatch, S. School, J. L. Hatch, J. Match, J. Secretary. SAR JOEE, CAL.-A. J. Spencer, President; J. L. Hatch, retary. DO, IOWA.-J. Reedy, President; E. S. Bockley, Secre-TOLS tary. INELAND' N. J.-John Gage, President; Sue M. Clute, VINE Becrotary. JUNCTIONVILLE, NEB.-J. W. Reatman, President; B. L. Esaley, Secre vy. OLATHE, KAM.-S. B. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, Secretary. Secretary. 5. 5. S. Wilson, President; H. A. Griffin, DETROIT, MICH.-W. R. Hill, President; A. T. Garretson, Secretary. BREENVILLS, MICH.-A. G. Eastman, B. Dertexoff, BLOH. - W. R. Thin, Freedocht; A. T. Ganteison, Secretary. BREEDWILLE, MICH. - A. G. Eastman, President; F. R. Enowies, Secretary. OSCEDLA, MO.-R. F. Thompson, President; M. Roderick, Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. BATH, ME.-F. G. Barker, President; C. Rhodes, Secretary. Emstry, Wiss.-President, J. D. Walters; Secretary, E. M. Bridgman. Bridgman. Wassiworow, D.C. - George M. Wood, President; J. E. Crawford, Secretary. ADBURN, OHIO. - John Fish, President; G. W. Barnes, Treas-Am urer. MINTRAPOLIS, MINN.-President, J. B. Bassett; Secretary, Anton Grethen. NEW YORK, N.Y.-J. B. Brown, President; D. M. Bennett, Secretary. ST. JOSEPH, MO.-P. V. Wise, President; T. H. Kennedy, Secretary. Ear CLAIDS, WIB.-President, S. J. Dickson; Secretary, W. Konnedy. BALDEO, IND.-President, T. Gray; Secretary, W. Allen. Naw Unitanso, La.-President, E. Vorster; Secretary; J. E. Wallace. Bay CITY, MICH .-- President, S. M. Green; Secretary, S. M. Johnson. CLEARFIELD, PA.-S. Widemire, President; H. Hoover, Secretary. Sava Crrv, Wis.--Chr. Spiehr, President; Robert Cunradi, Secretary. AugustA, Wis.--Davis Jackson, President; George P. Vauz Secretary.

Lessons from the Elections FOR THE VICTORS AND THE VANQUISHED.

A DISCOULSE BEFORE THE NEW BEDFORD SCOLETY, NO. VEMBER 9, 1874.

BY WILLIAM J. POTTER.

<text><section-header><text><text><text>

antumn. You could not run a line through them anywhere, following the party names of the conven-tions, and say these resolutions on this side are ex-clusively the creed of this party, those on that side are exclusively the creed of that party. Should you at-tempt to divide the platforms according to the pollit-cal doctrines enunciated in them, you would be equally sure to fall into confusion, and attribute some platforms to conventions that did not originate anything of the sort. As a matter of fact, the plat-forms of different parties in different States, of par-ties that were contesting each other vigorously, might have been exchanged with perfect facility without the change of a phrase. So vice versa in different States, and in States even adjoining, platforms were opposed, though the parties standing upon them were nominally the same. I have heard good Republi-cans, whose party standing was never questioned, say that the platform of the State Democratic Con-vention in New York expressed their principles bet-ter than any campaign resolutions of their own party that they had seen. And I am sure that there are many voters of the Democratio ticket in Massachu-sets last Tuesday, who would utterly repudiate the platforms of the Democratio conventions in some of You could not run a line through them satuma.

and yoiers of the Democratic ticket in Massacum-setts last Toesday, who would utterly repulsite the playtorms of the Democratic conventions in some of the Western States, which raised the old cryf or an infated currency and for paying the national debt in paper money. In some of the States the party reso-lutions looked one way, the party candidates anoth-er. There was a little equint of this sort in the Re-publican party of Massachusetts, whose candidate for the highest office was a most pronounced and vigorous prohibitionist, but whose resolutions on the local question most prominently at issue, the prohib-itory law, kept a most notable and emphatic silence. Now this political revolution disclosees so many fasion the old parties have been thrown, and what little courage they have for taking up new issues, and how extensively the old party ince have been oblicat movement vasily deeper and more important than the downfall of the party now in power and the rise of its old antagonist into its place. Fifty thou-sand voters or more in the State of New York alone have changed from one party to the other in the last two years. Such a fact ahows that the independent voter is abroad, - that the people have an instinctive feeling that the oid parties have about accomplished their mission, and that under the changed conditions of the country new party divisions and new mar are neertainty, of earch comewhat blanded pethage, and of experiment somewhat hazardous, yet search and experiment after rome better state of things,- at time who the elements of the most momentous political problems are thrown, in the crudets of this, as and new hopes, may come forth from the confusion and he roles. It is a time when dipolitical par-ties are likely tog down to decay, that new parties, on and the roles. It is contained in the fact just for the victors. It is contained in the fact just for the victors. It is contained in the fact just for the victors. It is contained in the fact just for the victors were different party. This of t edly make a party-measure of any kind of selfing is would soon discover that it has all a si siepping elements of the old was impacted to aroused an untagonise before which it means, any there is a notagonise before which it means, any starburds of campaign, whether at the ballow or on other fields, ahould be justle, how it below the camanelyation amendment, will not, how ballow here the authors are mediated, how and there is an other party under which the shellow here the authors are mediated in the party that party that any set of the single and the party that party that any set of the and the party that party and the rebellow, they is below the party is any set of the single set of the and the party that party and the rebellow, they is below the results are asset. It is an and yet, though the national conditions which are no overturn the gr at constitutional result is four the war cannot be restored and should be and when results are asset. It is the set of the single set of the single set of the anary set is opportunity. The Constitution reperture the gr at constitutional result is four the set of its opportunity. The Constitution are proveneed, which will despite the single set in the set of the grant constitution of partition and the part of its opportunity. The Constitution are proveneed, which will despite the site of the probability of a mercileus local fore, with asset dis-tribution, and under the old plas of State rights, and the site of the grant of right and parts in the samounced curvaling these settings in the probability of the grant of right and sites in the probability of the grant of right and parts in the probability of the grant of right and parts in the probability of the grant of right and sites in the same of paper curvers. There, will a will be created and the grant of right and the sites are assetted in the sational troubles that base followed they which shall be asset, durable, and equilable. The party in power has not brought this satisfies of the the sational societies as mather in ounny Google

<text><text><text><text>

Let it find its leaders in the thick of its own convic-tions and aims, and not select them because they have been shrewd party managers in other move-ments and other days. But it is time to turn to consider some of the les-monts and other days. But it is time to turn to consider some of the les-mont which the vanquished should heed, -which have been or parts or fast passing, and whether it is worth while simply to cling to a party for its old are not past or fast passing, and whether it is worth while simply to cling to a party for its old are not past or fast passing, and whether it is worth while simply to cling to a party for its old are not past or fast passing, and whether it is worth while simply to cling to a party for its old glories worth while simply to cling to a party for its old glories are not continue to live on its old glories when there is a summons to new duties. Nor should a party consider itself defeated when the party it has no harmony of conviction upon them. A party cannot continue to live on its old glories when there is a summons to new duties. The shorthed into the life of the nation, and its members then feel themselves free for other political combina-tions and other work. A party that is great and powerful may survive indeed after this point. It keeps a large class of persons in places of power who and other work. A party that is great and powerful may survive indeed after this point. The here becomes an easy prey to corruption and its is reached. It moves and acts mechanically, as par-pet-moving politicians manipulate the strings. The here becomes an easy prey to corruption and his that the Republican party has passed this point, -here here on the risk optimation after this point, -here here into when it was called, and justly, the perimenting politicians manipulate the strings. The there here the principle of "survive of the fittest." There was a time when it was called, and justly, the party formal ideas. I doubt if it can have justly been so called for the past two years successfully the problems of finance, could it have reatored order in the South, could it have furnished of gormment which the yave entailed upon the power. But it has failed, and the people have write of power. But it has failed, and the people have write of power. But it has failed, and the people have write of power it, Wanting. Whether any new party will do better, at least immediately, may be doubtful; is defated when its moral convictions die, rather the north of the people mean to try the experiment. A party is the the other and the people have write other principles elsewhere. And there are many who not feel defeated, because they are the opportunity at hand in which they may be free for a new port on other feel defeated, because they are the promotion of political convictions which they have now most at up or endorse. There are cartainly thomagade defeat, who are ready to call they have now most at other prince of all political corruptions and the general overturn. There are cartainly thomagade of the party has declined to take up or endorse. There are cartainly thomagade or a start of the promotion of political convictions which they prince of all political corruptions to a defeat, but a victors. The same are not the general overturn. There are cartain the vange that the party in forsting out corrupt practice. Whatever may be said of the purpose and yor of the they try in forsting out corruptions. They are the same as a write the its own limits or elsewhere—and let all ored the given to it for that work.—It is necess—any, it is criminal—to try to keep out of sight that is criminal—to try the same of power is the same are same to the same party name in the South, and the presence in the party name in the South, and the presence in the party name in the South, and the presence in the party name in the South, and the presence in the wave done good service in the who they have done good service in the who they have done good service in the who they have done good service in the whow they have done good se

Notes has produce of political intrigue and corruption.
 But will the new party or parties that shall arise out of this general political confusion and disappearance of old party lines escape these same evils?
 That will depend more upon the people themselves than upon the politicians. The people in this country can hold the politicians to a high standard of principle and conduct, if they will. Never was there at time more favorable for the formation of a strong and honest political party in this country than at this moment. The opportunity is great, the need is urgent, and the people are awaking to be sensible of the need. This is the best sign in the elections. But it will require clear sight, earnest thought, faithful concience, and patient, devoted labor, and on the part of the future?--principles which, though they may not win their way to a large and controlling public confidence at once, are inevitably essential to a durable success, and, as it seems to me, the absolute conditions for solving the pressing problems of the time.

The source contained and the source of the time. First and foremost, such a party must take its irrev-ocable stand on the basis of the great amendments to the Constitution which came as the result of the war, not moving a stone or a plank of that founda-tion; take its stand there, however, not for the sake of keeping alive issues that are past, but because only from that basis, which has become an historic epoch in the progress of mankind, can it efficiently apply itself to the political duties of the present. Second: From that basis let it cordially invite and welcome to its cooperation all who can honestly stand upon the same foundation, whether they are of the North or South, and irrespective of previous condition of master or slave, Unionist or Confed-erale. Third: Let such a party solemnly guarantee that the national honor shall be kept untarnished with all creditors, and that the nation shall pay its honest debts like an honest man. Fourth: Let it adopt measures for establishing for the country a sound and stable financial policy, and for a return at the earliest possible moment to specie navments. nte payments. Fifth: Let it hold the government in all its depart-ments to a rigid honesty in expenditure, and to a not parsimonious but prudent and healthy economy,— setting its face like fint against all political corrup-tion and corruptions.

<text><text><text><text>

Google

HEAR BOTH SIDES.

BY CHARLES E. WHIPPLE.

I have for years attended, as a listener and a learn-er, the prayer-meetings of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association; and I find there a marked discrepancy between what I hear and what I feel. I hear there frequent declarations (made, evident-ly, ingratitude to the Giver, and not from personal vanity or vainglory) of a permanent rest, peace, and spiritual delight enjoyed by the narrators, of com-plets deliverance from the fear of death, and of a faith efficacious to sustain them under those anxie-ties, troubles, and despondencies which misfortune of them, poverty or disease, painful accident or pecun-iary loss, privation of friends or relatives by death or their own summons to a speedy departure from this world, these and all other things (they affirm) are made to work together for their good; and so per-fect welfare is secured for them both in this life and that which is to come.

<text><text><text><text>

what fair and full investigation shall show to be truth. The course naturally and reasonably to be taken, in this state of things, is, I think, that my friend and I should sit down together, and calmly look into and compare the ground of our opposite beliefs, that we may be enabled to agree as to what is truth, and as to what dutles, what course of life, and what attitude towards God and our fellow-men are thus shown to be obligatory upon us. But when I propose this, my friend of the Associa-tion frankly declares that no consideration whatever will avail to make him give up the theological system held and taught by the Association. He does not care to look at the grounds of my ideas, because "he knows that my ideas are wrong." He does not care to scratinize the basis of the Association's system, because "he knows that system to be right." When I ask why he receives this or that doctrine, he promptly cless at ext. When I show that, from the meaning and connection of that text, it can have no proper bearing upon the subject in question, and show perhaps, also, that he has put into the mouth of Jesus or of Paul words handed down to us as coming from Solomon or David, none of these things more him, except to the avoidance of further confer-ence. When I quote to him, from that Scripture which he claims to be a rule of duty as well as of faith, the injunction: "Be ready always to give an anewer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you"--he quietly assumes that I am "carnal" and not "apiritual," and that therefore it would be useless to talk to me. As to the last point, there is this to be asid in maintenance of my friend's position: that it is cnetomary with the Association and its members to stigmatize as "carnal" persons holding a theology materially different from their own; and that, at one of their great conventions re-cently held, members of the Association were express-ly advised "not to argue" with such persons. Private friendly conference upon these matters being thus out of the question, it may be asked: Why not, in a meeting advertised as "Free," and where the leader habitually invites, and even urges, averybody to speak who has anything to say, why not make a quiet, brief statement of varying views and the reasons of them, that each person present may compare them at leisure with those taught by the Association? This course, which would seem hatural and prob-able in a meeting called "Free." is very varied varies that the called "Free." is very varies the everybody to speak who has anything to say, why not make a quiet, brief statement of varying views and the reasons of them, that each person present may compare them at leisure with those taught by the Association? This course, which would seem hatural and prob-able in a meeting called "Free," is very rarely at-tempted by any dissenter from the ideas there dom-linant, because the policy and customs of the Associa-tion are well known to be hostile to it. I myself have known of three cases in which dissenters have been imperatively desired by those in authority not to speak again; of two or three cases in which the ex-pression of unvelcences opinion has been clamored own, the leader of the meeting interrupting the speak again; of two or three cases in which the ex-pression of unvelcence opinion has been clamored to speak again; of two are three weat the second to the max closed, and that in advance of the cus-tors was closed, and that in advance of the cus-tors which manual force was used by those in au-tority to prevent such dissenters from taking such part in the meetings as all those present had been ex-pressive desired to taks. "By reasons for speaking thus openly (after the fail-tre, be it observed, of attempts to present these thoughts to the Association itself, in its meetings for the ground and untrue, and that this could be play shown if comparison of views were permitted there. Most of the young men who are brought into these meetings by the zealous street-missionarles of the As-sociation plainly belong to the class called unculti-vated, or gloorant. They have no comprehension of the nature of avidence, or of the conditions which for any spond and wise; and they readily receive as true any proposition who partonize them, as any proposition who ground is desard, any state-ment, They are predisposed to look upon the mis-mangers of the Association who partonize them, as any proposition of converta – remain ignorant, being expressly tanght by the leaders, as well as by the general tone of the even without knowing that scruting should precede assent. I affirm, after careful and long continued observa-tion, that most of the "converts" made in these prayer-meetings are of the sort above described. But the claim of the Association that many converts are made is the chief ground on which it annually asks the contribution of thousands of dollars for salaries and material aids for propagandism. As the Asso-ciation represents the good thus effected as immense, and as the incidental works of beneficence employed to facilitate this propagandism are so trumpeted as to persuade many people to give it money who would refuse to do so if they understood its partisan and ex-clusive character, it seems fair that, somewhere, a just statement of this character should appear. As the Christian Union is read by the very pople who, supporting the Association, ought to understand the matters above stated in regard to it, I ask for this communication a place in its columns. 19 PINCKNET STREET, Boston, Oct. 15, 1874. -Christian Union.

"WHAT DO YOU sell those fowls for?" Inquired a person of a man attempting to dispose of some chickens of questionable appearance. "I sell them for profits," was the answer. "Thank you for the information that they are prophets," responded the querist. "I took them to be patriarchs."

GENTILES AND HEBBEWS.

RATERNIZATION OF THE INDEPENDENT CHUECE, REV. MB. MUNDT, PASTOR, AND THE SOCIETY OF CONCORD, REV. DR. COHEN, PASTOE.

PRATEENIZATION OF THE INDEPENDENT CHURCH, Rev. MR. MUNDT, PASTOR, AND THE SOCIETY OF CONCORD, REV. DR. COHEX, PASTOR. A vary unusual fraternization among religions bodies took place Saturday and Sunday. As is well known, Saturday is the Jewish Sabbath, and is to observed by the congregation of Rabbl Cohen, or Rev. Dr. Cohen as he is usually known outside his own church. In the forencon of that day, Rev. Mr. Mundy, of the Independent Church, responded to an invitation moat cordially given by the Rabbi and church officers, to deliver a discourse in the Syn-agogue, in Mulberry Street. The services com-menced at nine o'clock, and at that hour a goody number of people, mostly from Dr. Cohen's congr-gation, had assembled. Rev. Mr. Mundy at Inide the altar beside the church reader. The unit services, including the reading of the Scriptures from the manuscript roll, were conducted by Rev. Dr. Cohen; there were responsive services also by the prest and the very fine church, reader. The unit services, including the reading of the Scriptures from the manuscript roll, were conducted by Rev. Dr. Cohen; there were responsive services also by the prest and the very fine church read for Christian unity on the great basis of a common brotherhood in the spirit of God. "Breth-er, "I' its with mingled feelings of pain and pleaves that I stand before you." Mr. Mundy allimed this he was grateful for the invitation of the Rabbi and officers of the congregation; this gave him much pleasure; but as he stod there he could but recul-the long past; he could but think of how the blood of the children of Israel stained the garmenis of the Christian Church. Protestants had suffered much from Catholics, but the Jews had suffered in more. The Hebrews brought knowledge, and erprimer, and wealth into Europe, and of the latter we robad them. Aftor all this wicked treatment, they had the vited him, a Christian, into their sacred plac, to speak to them. He was glad to say that we, as Christians, had learned something from ibem; we had their us yet are we bound together. So it was in religio; we were indebted to the Mohammedan, to be Egyptian, and to others, and are now saing the fruits they planted. It was time for us to require the brotherbood of religions, to do justy and lors mercy and walk humbly with God, and thus be his children. His belief and worship was indeed diffe-ent from theirs, and yet why abould this reparts them? They had the same God and were seeing the same height of goodness, only by different means. The true Church of God was not Jewish or Christian; it contained all good men, belong they to what seet or church they will. All who hare the good spirit of God belong to the brotherbood of the spirit. It was a most ancient organization; it brok down the barriers by, which men were separated; it was found in the breast of the Buddhist and the Ho harmedan, as well as in that of the Christian. The good Jesus, were but a cluster of brothers. Let m end Jesus, were all one father, and God has created us all. REV. DE. COHEN AT REV. ME. MUNDY'S CHURCH.

REV. DR. COHEN AT REV. MB. MUNDY'S CHURCH

REV. DR. COHEN AT REV. MR. MUNDY'S CHURCH. The announcement in the papers, Saturday, this Rev. Dr. Cohen would preach in the Independent Church yesterday forenoon caused that place of worship to be filled to overflowing. The preliminary aervices were conducted by Rev. Mr. Mundy, and were of the usual character. Rev. Dr. Cohen com-menced hia discourse with expressions of adoration to God, of thankfulness for the opportunity to m-emplify the command: "Love thy neighbor a thy-self." He would take for his text the same words chosen by Mr. Mundy, and found in Malachi: "Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us?" The life to which human life is heir were noted, we not all one father? bath not one God created many: The life to which human life is heir were noted, and they were cited as incentives for love to or neighbors. The existence of God was shown from the existence of a Creator. This was my, you, and our God. The speaker then eaid he had been invited for give his views of Jeaus Christ. They did recor-nize the existence of a historical personse amed geous of Nazareth, born in the year 3761. Ke was god, high, and excellent scholar and philosophers when he had grown to manhood he became a great hus as burged in 1416, July 6; and wby? Hehd done no wrong; he was only a reformer, put to deak when was destroying their power. Martin Luther was nother example. The Pharisees were not all deak well, in the name of God, who said he was not? Well, in the name of God, who said he was not worth this sence only was christ his son, the re-formed Jews did not believe a Messiah hed come.

Dializet by GOOGLE

tion of mankind through the supreme power of love; and this was the Messiah, this was God. Our whole life, through good works, should be a preparation to mest God. We can all enter that heaven of which Abraham spoke, by heeding the injunction in the words, "Behold how good and pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." The grave will serve as the grand parent of all reunion. True religion caused no strife and separation; it incited to brotherly love and to obedience of the command, "Love thy nelghbor as thysell;" for has not one God created us all?—Syracuse (N. Y.) Slandard of October 12.

CALL FOR A CONVENTION.

The people of the United States are awakening to the fact that the national Constitution is destitute of any explicit acknowledgment of God or the Christ-ian religion. Although it is the fundamental law of a great Christian people, its want of a distinct Christ-ian character has led many eminent Christian men to admit that it would need no change to adapt it to a Mchammedan nation.

ian character has led many eminent Christian men to admit that it would need no change to adapt it to a Mohammedan nation. Thus, many of the friends as well as the foes of Christianity are pointing out a strange inconsistency. While it is an indisputable fact that our government is, and always has been, administered in connection with the Christian religion; that many of its laws, customs, and institutions are distinctively Christian, it is yet maintained on the one side, and admitted on the other, that the Constitution, with which all our laws and institutions should accord, is no more Christian than Mohammedan. This inconsistency, long a matter of deep regret to many of our best citizens, is now cause of alarm. It is being used persistently, and in many instances successfully, against the Christian institutions of our nation. It is made the basis of the most dangerous assaults on the use of the Bible in the common schools, the oath, Sabbath laws, public fasts and thanksgivings, prayers in Congress and State Legia-latures, and all other similar features of our national life. And now the momentous issue is before us as

- assaults on the use of the Bible in the common schools, the oath, Sabbath haws, public fasts and thanksgivings, prayers in Coogress and State Legislatures, and all other similar features of our national life.
  And now the momentous issue is before us as American citizens: How shall we harmonize the inconsistency? Shall we prove faithleas to the inheritance bequeathed to us by Christian fathers, and permit our best institutions to be overthrown on the ground that they are opposed to the Constitution? Are these times of political corruption, financial disaster, pestilence, and want times for us, as a nation, to depart farther from God? Shall we not rather, faithful to our trust as, Christian faith we not rather faithful to our trust as, Christian faith, and the second of the constitution and government by a reverent acknowledgment in both of Almighty God and his revealed Will?
  A National Association has been formed to secure such an amendment to the Constitution as will without acknowledge Almighty God as the Author of the nation's existence, and the ultimate Source of its anthority, Jesus Christian fait Ruler, and the Bible as the supreme rule of its conduct; and thus indicate that this is a Christian nation, and piace all Christian laws, institutions, and usages on an undeniable legal basis in the fundamental law of the land. Cooperating with this Association, we whose names are undersigned, invite our fellow-clitzens of New England and neighboring States, who favor such an amendment, without distinction of party or creed, to meet in Tremont Temple, Boston, on Wednesday, December 16, 1873, at 71-2 o'clock P.M.
  All such citizens, to whose notice this call may be bronght are requested to hold meetings, and appoint delegates to the Convention.
  J.H. Stelvr, Amherst Mass.
  E. M. HAMILTON, Boston, Mass.
  John S. Stork, Mass.
  M. HARDEN, Boston, Mass.
  John S. Stork, Mass.
  M. HARDEN, Boston, Mass.
  John S. Stork, Mass.
  <l

And others. As this Convention is held under the auspices of Palirious As this Convention is held under the anspices of the National Association to secure the Religious Amendment to the Constitution, the names of the officers of that association are also appended to the call.—Christian Statesman, November 28.

THE NEW SCRIPTURES.

ACCOBDING TO DARWIN, TYNDALL, HUXLEY, AND SPENCER.

GENESIS: CHAPTER II.

GENESIS: CHAPTER II. 1. Primarily the Unknowable moved upon cosmos and evolved protoplasm. 2. And protoplasm was inorganic and undiffer-entiated, containing all things in potential energy; and a spirit of evolution moved upon the fluid mass. 3. And the Unknowable said, Let atoms attract; and their contact begat light, heat, and electricity. 4. And the Unconditioned differentiated the atoms, each after its kind; and their combinations begat rock, air, and water. 5. And there went out a spirit of evolution from the Unconditioned, and working in protoplasm, by accretion and absorption, produced the organic cell. 6. And cell by nutrition evolved primordial germ, and germ developed protogeno, and protogene begat animalcule. 7. And animalcule best acheses. animalcule.

animalcule. 7. And animalcule begat ephemera; then began creeping things to multiply on the face of the earth. 8. And earthy atom in regetable protoplasm begat the molecule, and thence came all grass and every herb in the earth.

herb in the earth. 9. And animalcule in the water svolved fins, talls, claws, and scales; and in the air wings and beaks; and on the land they sprouted such organs as were necessary as played upon by the environment. 10. And by accretion and absorption came the radiata and mollusca; and mollusca begat articulata, and articulats begat vertebrata. 11. Now these are the generation of the higher vertebrata, in the cosmic period that the Unknowable evoluted the bipedal mammalia. 12. And every man of the earth, while he was yet evoluted the bipedal mammalia. 12. And every man of the earth, while he was yet a monkey, and the horse while he was a hipparion, and the hipparion before he was an oredon. 13. Out of the ascidian came the amphibian, and begat the pentadactyle; and the pentadactyle by in-heritance and selection produced the hylobate, from which are the similade in all their tribes. 14. And out of the similade the lemur prevailed above his fellows, and produced the platyrhine monkey.

15. And the platyrhine begat the catarrhine, and the catarrhine monkey begat the anthropoid ape, and the ape begat the longimanous orang, and the orang begat the chimpanzee, and the chimpanzee evoluted the spe begat the folgimation of ang, and the of ang the gate the charge are the complexee, and the charge arouted the what-is-it.

16. And the what-is-it went into the land of Nod and took him a wife of the longimanous globons.
17. And in process of the cosmic period were born muto them and their children the anthropomorphic primordial types.
18. The homunculus, the prograthus, the troglodyte, the autochthon, the terragen—these are the generations of primeval man.
19. And primeval man was naked and not ashamed, but lived in quadrumanaus innocence, and struggled mightily to harmonize with the environment.
20. And by inheritance and natural selection did he progress from the stable and homogeneous to the complex and heretogeneous—for the weakest died and the strongest grew and multiplied.
21. And man grew a thumb for that he had need of it, and developed capacities for prey.
22. For, behold, the swiftest men caught the most animals, and the swiftest men caught the weaker types continually disposared.
23. And as types were differentiated the weaker types continually disposared.
24. And the earth was filled with violence; for man strove with man, and tribe with tribe, whereby survival of the fittest.—Cincinnati Commercial.

THE DEAN OF WESTMINSTER is not subject to the first Dean was to be ordained over the Abbey, the Bishop of London had ordered all necessary arrange-ments to be made for the purpose. This was done, and a large number of ecclesiastics had assembled to witness the ceremony. But on the night before the day appointed, the keeper of the Abbey heard a voice calling him from the Surrey side of the river. He went over in a boat, and found there no less a pranied by one or two eminent saints. Saint Peter said he had determined to ordain a Dean for West-minster himself, and the distinguished party being rowed over in the boat had the expectant Dean waked up at midnight and brought to the Abbey. At that hour, while all London was asleep. Saint Peter ordained the dirst Dean of West-minster himself, sho the core in state next day to perform the ceremony, he found it all over, un-questionable evidence and certificates of the same sharing been left. The consequence is that Dean Stanley is responsible to Saint Peter alone, and is, indeed, a Viez-General of that saint in his own little Vatican on the Thames.-Golden Age.

The Daily News has a sweet, condescending article on Dr. Isaac Watts, à propos of the celebration at Southshipton of the bicentenary of his birth; an ar-ticle which is as a parcel of lollypops held out to the Innocent babes of Dissent, who ought to feel very grateful indeed. With that astonishing faculty for discovering historical parallels, which is developed in journalists who want at once to fill up a few lines and show that they have read something, the writer says: "John Bunyan sold boot-laces when in gaol for his religious opinions; the mother of Issac Watts sat on a stone at the gate of the prison where her husband was lodged, and held the future divine and hymn-writer, then an infant, at her breast." Our editor has munificently promised a copy of the final number of the erer-to-be-continued National Re-former to any one who shall satisfactorily answer this riddle: Why was John Bunyan inside a prison nursing her baby? I have space to mention but one other remark of the Daily News man. He says that Dr. Watt's hymna are the delight of children.—Na-tional Reformer.

[For THE INDEX.] A QUESTION.

BY M. D. S.

e cometh this restless yearning, Wh This fever of heart and brain This eager, unsatisfied longing. That bringeth us only pain?

A memory of that country Where our spirits had their birth? Or, is it a premonition Of something better than earth?

And will our tollaome andeavor.

And our weary craving cease, When Death, o'er the tired sleeper, Whispers the benison-peace

We close with lingering kisses The cyclids cold of our dead; Not for weeping or caressing Have they any answer made.

Is Death, then, the only healer

We mortals can ever know? If Life bath no other fulfilment How shall we have time to grow!

Nay, Heart! thy unquenchable longing Itself asweet answer gives, That God, our eternal Father, In Ris boundless Universe lives !

We shall, in the coming future,

Hope's fullest fruition reach; That blest, diviner perfection We cannot put into speech.

A larger, completer existence A larger, completer existence To our weary quest be given; But oh, for a word, through the silence, Assuring our hearts of Heaven!

OASH BECEIPTS.

<section-header><section-header><section-header><section-header><text><text><text><text>

RECEIVED.

Books. HIBTORT OF THE CONFLICT SETWEEN RELIGION AND SCI-ENCE. International Scientific Series. By John William Draper, M.D., LL.D. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1815.

1875. THE OBRIGITAN IN THE WORLD. The Fletcher Prize Es-say. By Rev. D. W. Faunce. Boston: Roberts Broch-ers. 1876. LIFE OF CAFTAIN JOSKPH FRV. THE CUBAN MARTYR. By Jeanle Mort Walker, of New Orleans. Harfford: The J. B. Rurr Publishing Co. 1874. [Sold by subscription only. Specimen pages with illustrations.] Pamphelets and Pariodicals.

b. Anii - Specimen pages with illustrations.]
 Pemphiets and Periodicals.
 CROULARS of INFORMATION OF THE BURKAU OF EDUCATION. No. 2.-1374.
 Drawing in Public Schools: the Present Belation of Art to Education in the United States.
 Washington: Government Printing Office. 1874.
 Ther Volumtary Systems. By Rev. Charles G. Ames.
 PUBLICATIONS of Thomas Boott, Esq., London.-The Vedas and the Zondavesta. By G. G. Zorfi, Ph.D.-Ohristianity and its Evidences: No. I. By a Divinity Student of the University of Dublin-On the Eviseznee of Kvill.
 By the Rev. Jannes Crashrock.-Signs of the Times; December, 1874.-A Short Catechism for the Use of School Boards. By an Er-Clargyman...
 THE UNITARIAN REVIEW. December, 1874. Boston: L. C. Bowles.

Bowles. THE SANTABLAN. December, 1874. New York; 234 Broad-way.

ANTI-CHRISTIANITY.

The Index. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY THE INDEX ASSOCIATION.

NO. 1 TREMONT PLACE, BOSTON. Toledo Office: No. 55 Mongoe STREET. Julius T. Frey, Agent and Clerk.

THE INDEX accepts every result of science and sound learning, without seeking to barmonize it with the Bible. It recognizes no authority but that of reason and right. It believes in Truth, Freedom, Progress, Equal Rights, and Brotherly Love.

Brotherly Love. N. B.-No writer in THE INDEX, editorial or otherwise, is responsible for anything published in its columns except for his or her own individual statements. Editorial contri-butions will in every case be distinguished by the name or initials of the writer.

TO VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTORS .- Only Short Articles desired. Unused Manuscripts not returned.

BOSTON, DECEMBER 10, 1874.

POSTAGE NOTICE.

The new Postal Law which goes into effect at New Year will require prepayment of postage on THE INDEX by the publishers, thus releasing the subscribers from the necessity of paying their own postage to the government. In consequence of this change, an additional expense of several hundred dollars a year will be entailed on the Index Association; to meet which it is necessary to ask our subscribers to remit TWENTY CENTS apiece by the first of January. This sum, if paid in advance, has been hitherto charged to each of them by the Post Office Department, and no new expense is entailed upon them by remitting the same amount in advance to the Index Association. The burden will be a heavy one to the Association, if borne by it alone; but it will be insignificant, if distributed equally among the subscribers. We are confident they will not wish the Association to pay these trifling charges in their stead, when they see that the aggregate of them is so serious a matter. Those of our subscribers who have already renewed their subscriptions will oblige us by remitting the twenty cents without waiting till their terms expire; while those who are about to renew will doubtless cheerfully add the small amount above named. A large "P" on their mail-tags will be our receipt for it.

"GIVE US 'HONEST' lists of our ministers and of our societies too !" This is the unwelcome cry that begins to greet the ears of the Year Book compllers. Nothing but shrewd and sectarian diplomacy will evade it. If either of those lists contains doubtful names, strike them off! It is the turn of the Christian Register now to practise a little "modern martyrdom"--to swallow the same pill it has just administered to others. We request it to say "yes" or "no" to this question: does not honest require to make one list just as honest as the To catechize all the ministers and all the soother ? cletles would doubtless shorten those lists not a little; we admit it. But honesty now demands this sacrifice, and we quote to the Register this advice of its own, which it "freely offered" to the radicals so recently, and which it may now apply to its own case: "They should make known their precise position, and bravely take the far from terrible temporal consequences. There is nothing in the situation to make a manly man whimper, or to excite the painful sympathy of any of his friends. The same great law of duty applies to Christians, Jews, Mohammedans, and Free Religionists: if you are in a true position, stand fast; if you are sailing under false colors, the sooner you hoist your true flag the better. The inward satisfaction which attends a sincere course is so great, that outward gains or losses scarcely deserve mention." If the American Unitarian Association were sincere in what they said last winter about the Year Book, they will not flinch this winter to stick to it and give two honest lists to the denomination, despite all "outward gains or losses;" and if the Register is sincere in what it tells the radicals above, it will tell the same things now to its friends.

"What do you mean by taking an 'anti-Christian position'? Do you suppose that you can destroy Christianity before its time, or that the world would be the gainer if you could? Do you not believe in the law of evolution, and recognize the impossibility of violently doing away with any institution that is still rooted in the hearts and minds of men? Doyou not think it harsh and unjust to cherish a hostile feeling towards Jesus, one of the sweetest spirits of all time, and towards the great body of good and true people who still behold in him their Divine Teacher, Lord, and God? In short, why is it not bitter, bigoted, fanatical, unjust, and unreasonable to oppose Christianity, instead of seeking to aid its development into the higher truth of thought, feeling, and action which you call Free Religion?

Such are some of the questions which have risen in the minds of some of our readers; and it is the purpose of this article to give the fairest possible anewer to them.

1. In the first place, he occupies an "anti-Christian position" who perceives the obstructiveness of the Christian religion as a whole (including both its mythology and its ecclesiasticism, its principle of authority, its assumption of control over individual, social, and political life, and its general influence on history and civilization) to the natural and free evolution of human society in all its various aspects,-who feels the obligation imposed upon him by this perception, and endeavors faithfully to discharge the public and private duties which it in-Virtually, if not nominally, every person is volves. an anti-Christian who contributes anything towards those general influences by which the world is gradually educating out of Christianity into Free Religlon; he may be unconscious of the fact, or even vehemently deny it, yet the fact is not thereby altered in the least. He, however, is the consistent anti-Christian who is fully conscious of the truth that Christianity is dying as an historical religion, and who assists in every right way the growth and spread of those great modern ideas and movements which are the real cause of its death. This is what we mean by taking an "anti-Christian position."

2. Nothing is further from the true anti-Christlan's wish than to destroy Christianity before its time, or to destroy it at all in any way except by pro-moting the growth of the Free Religion which is supplanting it. The world would not be the gainer by any interference with natural processes, among which easeination is by no means to be classed. But the attempt to replace falsehoods and errors by truths, and to conform all political, social, and individual conditions to the requirements of science and universal liberty, is not a destructive but constructive one, if viewed from the stand-point of human welfare; although it is strictly true that the success of this attempt in any high degree involves the disappearance of Christianity from the stage, and is therefore de-structive if viewed from the stand-point of the Church.

3. The anti-Christian alone can believe in the law of evolution; for the doctrine of evolution is the chief of those truths which are to-day proving totally and irresistibly destructive to Christianity. He is the first to recognize the impossibility of destroying by violence any institution which is still rooted in human needs; but he also recognizes the necessity of helping mankind to outgrow its transient needs, when that which now feeds them is so rapidly perishing. He never works by violence at all; he uses no weapons but those of superior knowledge and deeper insight into the permanent needs of man; he labors only to make known the truth to all, being confident that truth cannot be discovered any faster than man can adapt himself to it. He understands that the law of evolution is supplemented by the law of dissolution ; that no organism can live forever ; that evolution requires, not the eternal perpetuation of each individual organism, but the gradual improvement of successive organisms. Hence he knows that the Church, being an organism, cannot survive forever, and discerns the fact that its days are even now drawing to an end; and he works all the more actively to foster the purely humanitarian institutions which must inevitably succeed it. To suppose that Christianity or its institutions can ever adapt themselves to the ideas on which modern civilization is building itself up is, as he clearly perceives, just as irrational as to suppose that a worn-out horse can be transformed into a lively and vigorous colt. He sees the intrinsic absurdity of imagining that Christianity or its Church can ever shift or change or invert the ldeas on which it was originally established; and therefore he would persuade mankind to remove into better quarters before it tumbles in ruins about ther heads. That Christlanity can ever develop into rationalism, or science, or civilization, or "Commit Philosophy," is the fond dream of those who bury their eyes in order to avoid seeing. The anti-Christian does but gaze steadfastly at facts; and he know that the law of evolution forbids the hope of alchemizing Christianity into its opposite. A new religion, with its appropriate institutions, is silently and unperceived growing up all about us; and he cheer fully turns to this new faith as sure to inherit all of real good that the old had to transmit.

4. Of all men, the true and-Christian is the least likely to cherish a spiteful or bitter spirit towards Jesus. Those who are resolved to adapt Christianity to the modern world on the assumption that it is in some vague sense divine, and therefore get inertricably perplexed in the attempt to construe it a conformable with civilization and science, might be excused, if, like some "Radical Christians," they should sometimes fall into petulance and harshness towards Jesus; for many of the ideas he puts forward (e. g. his own Messiahship and second coming, the Day of Judgment, and so forth) obstinately refuse to be coordinated with the ideas of civilized communities. But the anti-Christian who holds the evolutional philosophy sees in these obsolete ideas the necessary product of past historical conditions, and simply neglects them in estimating the patire greatness of Jesus. So far as Christianity as a system is concerned, they are all-important, constituting a they do the germ-thoughts of its historic growth and the specific peculiarities which distinguish it from other religions; but so far as the personal Jeru is concerned, they do not express him, but rather his age. It is the words and acts which are least likely to be the effects of, his age and immediate surround ings, that give the only evidence we have as to his personal character; and it is precisely these which make up the most beautiful and intrinsically valuable parts of the gospels. Hence the anti-Christian, bent on rendering historic justice to individuals at the same time that he seeks to replace the Christian system by a philosophy of life better adapted to modern requirements, is under no temptation to cherish a hostile feeling to Jesus, but rather to recognize with admiration and delight all the loveliness and sweetness of his spirit. John Stuart Mill was an anti-Christian in a large sense of the word, though erceedingly cautious and guarded in expressing his opinions on the subject; yet it would be difficult to find a more emphatic or generous enlogium on the character of Jesus than that which is contained in his just published Three Essays on Religion [pages 253-255|, and which we republished in last week's INDEX. It is the system, not the man, that the anti-Christian opposes; and while he may justly detest the one on account of its cruelty in the past and its implacable warfare on science, Intelligence, and freedom in the past and the present, he may yet rever and love the other on account of his sweet humanity.

5. Just as little will the anti-Christian who can dis criminate between systems and men cherish a hostile feeling towards Christians, individually or in the mass. His anti-Christianity rests on thought, not on feeling; on deliberate convictions and insight into the workings of ecclesiasticism as a factor of social and political development, not at all on blind rage against those who happen to differ from himself in opinion. He refuses to take any party-label or certificate of church-membership as a proof of good character; he insists on his right to judge men's characters independently according to the traits they manifest; he loves those who are lovable, honors those who are honorable, and would scorn to be biased in his estimate of individuals by any speculative beliefe they might hold in religion, politice, or philosophy. The modern form of anti-Christianity, at least, is neither spite, detraction, malevolence, churlishness, nor combativeness; it is simply a thorough comprehension of the highest interests of mankind, a profound sense of obligation to promote them, and an active devotion in serving them to the best of individual self-ability and opportunity. It would be well for the churches, if they comprehended in turn the high-mindedness and uncompromising loyalty to truth which they are enlisting increase

6. The belief that Christianity is capable of dereloping gradually into Free Religion, by simply following out more thoroughly its own inherent law, has been expressed by Mr. John Fiske in the concluding chapter of his recent Oullines of Cosmic Philosophy. "Religious progress in the future," he says, "is possible only through the grad-nal evolution of Christianity itself into higher and higher forms." In accordance with this confused conception of what Christianity is, he says: "With regard to its practical bearings upon human conduct, the religious attitude of our scientific philosophy seems to be absolutely identical with the religious attitude of Christianity. . . . We still regard Christianity as, in the deepest sense, our own religion. . . . We identify our own position with that which is held by Christianity." He therefore "refuses to attack Christianity." Yet his book, from beginning to end, is one of the sharpest attacks it has been called to endure for many a long day. He is so conscious of this that he admits "it may seem absurd or sophistical in us to assimilate with Christianity a system of thought which has entirely thrown off the mythologic symbols wherein Christianity has hitherto been clothed, and whereby it is customarily recognized as possessing an individuality of its own." To justify his astonishing claim of being essentially Christian, he argues that "a sudden and radical alteration of Christianity into something else is as impossible as the sudden and radical change of one type of organism into another;" that, "while form after form has perished, the Life remains, incarnated in newer and higher forms;" and that what "is fundamental in Ohristianity" is simply the "recognition of Deity" and the "yearning for closer union with Deity." Mr. Fiske might as well argue that he is his own great-great-grandfather, on the ground that Life in general remains, though the form has passed away. He strips from Christianity its clothes, skin, flesh, and bones, and, finding that Existence in the abstract survives, thinks that he still retains Christianity itself. His argument is this: "Cosmism" recognizes God; Christianity recognizes God; therefore, "Cosmism" is Christianity. By the same logic: Mr. Fiske believes in "Cosmism," Herbert Spencer believes in "Cosmism;" therefore, Mr. Fiske is Herbert Spencer, and wrote the First Principles ! Into such sins against logic and good sense is any thinker driven who holds that Christianity is able to "develop" into the modern philosophy which denies every one of its distinctive doctrines. We take the ground that whoever discards these doctrines is an anti-Christian and nothing else, no matter how vehemently he may claim the Christian name, and no matter how superclinously he may look down on the "radical infidelity of the age." It is the instinct of every true soldier who may feel called upon to change his allegiance to abandon his old uniform when he leaves his old army, and not enter the hostile camp in the garb of a deserter.

Google Google

7. In truth, the whole current of modern thought and life is directly against the faith and institutions of Christianity. Dr. Draper, referring in the preface of his new work to "a great and rapidly increasing departure from the public religious faith," says with great force: "So widespread and so powerful is this secession, that it can neither be treated with contempt nor with punishment. It cannot be extinguished by derision, by vituperation, or by force. The time is rapidly approaching when it will give rise to serious political results." Again (page 364) he declares : "Whatever may be the preparatory incidents of that great impending intellectual crisis which Christendom must soon inevitably witness, of this we may rest assured, that the silent secession from the public faith which in so ominous a manner characterizes the present generation will find at length political expression." This is what we have been saying for six years and more, with greater defi-niteness still; for we believe that the "political expression" will be a great political struggle for the excansion or retrenchment of religious liberty. It befits every good citizen to study well his own part in those great events. Do you believe in the venerable pillar-doctrines of the Christian religlon? If you do, you are a Christian. If you do not, you are an anti-Christian-to the extent that you put your belief into practice. But the becoming spirit of the anti-Christian is high, noble, earnest, self-sacrificing, gentle to all men, free from spite or malice, yet resolute to stand by his convictions and the cause of freedom to the bitter end, not sparing his own reputation or comfort, but resolved to play a man's part in the world without dissimulation and without reserve. It is not the spirit of contempt or bitterness or brawling, but the spirit which scorns to shirk a little labor for man's sake or shun a little obloquy for truth's sake. The one great issue of the Western world for many a long year to come is-Christianity or Free Religion : which ? For both, you cannot stand in fact, dream what you may; it is an issue which divides. Are you a Christian, or an anti-Christian?

NEW ENGLAND HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

The ladies who conducted so successfully the fair in aid of this Hospital, at Mrs. Charles G. Loring's house, a few weeks ago, will hold a supplementary sale at the New England Woman's Club Rooms, No. 3 Tremont Place, on the sixteenth and seventeenth of December.

Many good articles were left unsold at the former fair, and new ones have been received since. The beautiful Southern grasses which were all sold within two hours after the opening of the fair will be replaced by fresh ones from the South, and ferns, Christmas wreaths, and so forth, will be ready for sale. The Fayal pottery which arrived just too late for the fair will be for sale at this time, with many other beautiful articles especially suited for Christmas presents.

As this Hospital is as broad in its charity as the human race, welcoming to its benefits those of every nation, sect, or party, we hope that lovers of freedom and medical education for women will feel an interest in adding its managers in their arduous labors. They expect to support it by work. E. D. C.

"THE JOURNAL OF SPECULATIVE PRI-LOSOPHY,"

The October number of Mr. Harris' Journal of Speculative Philosophy contains matter of unusual Interest. Almost every reader will turn his attention at once to the review of Professor Tyndall's Belfast address by Thomas Davidson, with the expectation of finding a more unprejudiced analysis of this interesting paper than from the sectarian or secular papers. Mr. Davidson, however, attacks Mr. Tyndall's address upon quite different grounds from those taken by the press generally, not "discussing its bearing upon religion and existing institutions, or its tendency generally, but confining himself to ques-tions of historic fact and undeniable philosophic truth." (In parenthesis, we are glad to hear that there are any truths of this latter order; for we thought it possible to deny anything in these latter days, from the law of gravitation to Christopher Columbus.)

Mr. Davidson then elaborately exposes various blunders of Professor Tyndall, and sums up his esti-mate pretty severely by saying: "But, if he is a mere tyro in the external history of philosophy, he is something worse in philosophy itself." But after this severe attack upon Professor Tyndall's accuracy and scholarship, he does him justice in the concluding paragraph, where he says: "While, therefore, I entirely sympathize with Professor Tyndall in his manly and determined opposition to dogma and authority, and in his demand for the free and unprejudiced discussion of all questions, I cannot but be sorry that he has diminished the weight of his own authority, and thus injured a cause which is that of all earnest truth-seekers, by trying to draw conclusions in regions of thought where he is an entire stranger, and by being thus entrapped into making a display of carelessness in regard to matters of fact, and of incapacity to grasp philosophic truth."

In a supplementary note, the editor (Mr. Harris) carries his criticism still farther, applying it to other thinkers of the modern school, and closes with this comprehensive sentence: "The stand-point of absolute personality, as the highest principle, is the one to be attained. On this plane, freedom, immortality, and God are the regulative principles of science as well as of life, and they are not only matters of faith, but equally matters of indubitable scientific certain-He then pays THE INDEX the high compliment tv." of inserting a long passage from Mr. Abbot's remarks on the same address. While we cheerfully acknowledge the right of the group of thoughtful men who conduct this journal to write for themselves, and others as well-instructed in metaphysics, we wish that some mediator could be found who could express their conclusions at least, if not their methods, in simpler language and with greater fulness of illustration; so that those who have unfortunately been deprived of the benefits of severe metaphysical study could gather greater benefit from these earnest and bold thinkers.

Another curious and interesting paper of quita a different character is the translation of Diouysius Thrax. We are tempted to envy the children of the Roman Empire under Pompey the Great so simple and brief a text book, in comparison with the elaborate grammars of our own day. E. D. C.

THE REBOISM OF LIVING.

No task so hard is set for mortal man as simply living this daily life well and satisfactorily. The great multitude of folk never find this out; but a few do.

Patrick and Bridget, if they can but get enough to fill their bellies and cover their backs, are satisfied, and find life on the whole a pretty comfortable thing. They suffer some, it is true. They are sometimes cold, and sometimes hungry, and sometimes they ache a little. But their sufferings are almost wholly physical, and of the easiest kind to bear. They live from day to day, and from hand to mouth; and their hopes and ambitions and aspirations seldom rise above material things, and seldom these are unsatisfied long. Their very religion is suited to their material necessities; and its comforts, so easily procured from the nearest priest, are as tangible, palpable, and real as the potatoes in the pot, the ham in the frying-pan, or the whiskey in the jug. In ninety cases out of a hundred, they live and die without realizing that life is such a very serious affair after all, and drop into their graves pretty well content with what they have got, and with the way they have fared.

And the same is largely true of the mass of people. The sufferings endured by the common run of mankind are largely overstated in quality,-probably not in quantity. But it is the quality of suffering, rather than the quantity, wherein consists the hardness to bear. If animals really suffer in essential poignancy all that we lookers-on are apt to attribute to them, then all those of us who are meat-eaters would be loaded down with a burden of guilt from which we might hope never to recover. Such of mankind as are more animal than spiritual in all their instincts, desires, and passions,—in whom the mind is much less developed than the body,—though they often suffer to an extent which justly demands our sympathy, and excites our efforts to alleviation, are nevertheless far more saved from that exquisiteness of suffering which afflicts all spiritually and mentally sensitive persons. The quality if not the quantity of one's sufferings depends mainly upon the nature of one's wants and hopes and aspirations. The man who simply wants his dinner, and cannot get it, suffers but slightly in comparison with him or her who wants love and sympathy, and is denied them. In the one case it is a stomach-ache; in the other it is a heart-ache. In the one case it is a ventral unsatisfaction; in the other it is a soul disappointment. All those whose longings rise little above the ordinary benefits of life, whose endeavors are chiefly aimed at the securing mere material possessions, and whose religious natures are satisfied with the ordinary pabulum of the Church cuisine, and with robust promises of not immaterial joys in heaven,-all such generally escape the keenest pangs and obtain the nearest delights, and pass on to the end without much discerning that life is heroic, or that it is greatly touched with tragedy and pathos.

1

But in proportion as men and women become refined, cultivated, and spiritualized; in proportion as they become poetic, imaginative, and aspiring; in proportion as they lift their hopes and elevate their aims, and strive with all their powers to live, not a greedy, not an avaricious, not a selfish life, but a life which is ideal, born of the quickened soul and intellect,-just in this proportion they become capable of experiencing, not only the highest satisfactions and pleasures, but also the most exquisite sorrows and the profoundest disappointments. This is what man pays for being civilized ; he increases his capacity to suffer as well as to enjoy. The two capacities do not increase in the same ratio, perhaps; but yet they keep within plain sight of each other. Certain it is that the natures made of the finest, cleanest, purest stuff know best what keenest suffering is. Physical pain may be duiled with opiates and soon forgotten; but pain of the heart or of the mind lasts on and on,-its tears fall inward, not outward, and its sad eyes turn from the painful cause with slow and lingering motion. The light and frivolous person experiencing disappointment can recover readily and pass to something else, finding speedy relief in change and variety; but the earnest, serious, and faithful soul receives a deeper wound, the anguish of which it can assuage only by lifting its whole life nearer to some grand and noble work.

Now it is a fact that among the most intellectual, thoughtful, rational, and truly religious persons in the community there are many whose hearts are daily aching with disappointment and unrest; and who, because of failure that has touched their hopes and plans, and the general incompleteness that seems to attend on life, are questioning whether life itself is worth the pains it costs, and are looking forward with rather pleasant anticipation to that rest, that end, that oblivion which the grave somehow appears to promise to give them at last. They are brave persons, ready to face any fact and acknowledge any truth. They are not afraid of toll and trouble and sacrifice. But they see life slipping away and leaving so few results to them, notwithstanding all their days are piled with loads of care and labor and hurry; they see life slipping away, and the great work that they hoped to do still undone; they see life slipping away, and the best powers within them yet untried, and the noblest faculties yet unused. The shadow of disappointment settles upon them, and their questioning grows deeper and more solemn every year, "Does life pay ?"

- 1

Why is this so, and what is the remedy for it? Christians generally would say that this doubt about the value of life arises from the fact that those who entertain it have put away from them the only true foundations of the faith that explains everything; and that the only way to remove this doubt is to re-cover that lost faith. But the time has passed when Christian theology can effectually administer to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the bravest and most intelligent men and women. They confront the universe itself, and they will have of it a better verified answer to all their questionings than any which the Church can give.

The statement about this matter which I have to make is this. It seems to me that we attempt and expect too much. Life is short, and we cannot do everything while it lasts. Let us select only a few things, and concentrate all our energies to do those. Instead of living for everybody, let us live for a few. Instead of trying to reform the world, let us try to form ourselves after a fashion that shall be helpful to those who are right about us. Let us live for ends that are more private and less public. If our life has any real, true influence it will extend without our trying to extend it; it will permeate slowly through works and persons that are nearest to us to those that are farther from us. We are too anxious to make our mark with great and telling strokes; let us be content to make it more modestly and quietly. Let us learn to live calmly and steadily, without haste and without noise. Let us study to organize repose and leisure, rather than troops of enterprises and bands of busybodies. Those who set out to be great reformers and masterful manipulators of institations and systems will find that they have undertaken a work which refuses to be hurried, and which only the ages behold the accomplishment of. It is only here and there a man in a century, whose arm God lifts to make a long, strong mark on times and races with poems, philosophies, faiths, and polities. For the most part, the rest of us are called upon to work in comparative secrecy and silence, though with no less certainty of accomplishing what is necessary. We have need to cultivate patience, and the strength which grows in us from "day to day. The opportunities that are nearest to us, how shall we fall faithfully to improve these, and be content for the time to reach no farther. "No man is a hero to his valet," it is said. But I say if we cannot be heroes and heroines to our own servants, to our own most immediate circle, to those who know us best, then we cannot hope to be to the world at large The heroic el ment in character has a splendid chance to exhibit itself in small and limited arenas, in homes and families and private friendships. If it cannot in some good degree shine there, then it is mere pyrotechnics elsewhere.

Moreover, we must believe that what belongs to us to have and to do is sure to reach us at last,-or we it. It steads not to run from our fate, says one. Magnificent fact that! It is paltry to talk of freedom, as the speech is usually indulged in. There is no freedom but that of eternal and immutable law, and the grand soul sighs for no other. We are hooped in by a beautiful necessity, and every circumstance is a part of the ordination of Delty. Let us "telescope" the universe with a discernment that is spiritual and poetic as well as logical and scientific, and behold all things lifted and borne forward on the tide of order and harmony. Let us be heroic enough to stop fuming and fretting, and harassing ourselves about the absurd and impossible. Then life will become less tragic and pathetic, and more inspiring and giorious.

A. W. S.

Communications.

AN ACCOUNT OF A GOLDEN WEDDING, WITH SOME BEFLECTIONS THEREON.

EDITOR OF INDEX:-A few days since I had the pleasure of participat-ing in the celebration of a golden wedding, which was remarkable slike for the character of those pres-was remarkable slike for the character of those pres-ent, and for the character of the principal parties, who have passed their lives in doing good to others. The worthy couple, whose married life had ex-tended through the long period of fifty years, are honored members of the society of Friends, and in the Friends' meeting-house the coremonies of the golden wedding took place. There were present and participating as speakers representatives of most of the liberal professions, members of Orthodox church-es, whilst your correspondent represented the the liberal professions, members of Orthodox church-es, whilst your correspondent represented the "world's people." The services were opened by a rather young look-ing "elder," who read the story of the marriage in Cana of Gallice, and then invited those present to improve the first thirty minutes of the meeting with religious discourse, after which it was to be thrown open for general speaking. The aged pair repeated the simple marriage service of the Friends as they had done fifty years before; the marriage contract was exhibited and read, show-ing that on the 28th day of October, 1824, Levi Coffin and Catherine Coffin had first taken the yow which now, after so many years and under circumstances so

Ing that on the 28th day of October, 1828, Levi Comm and Catherine Coffin had first taken the vow which now, after so many years and under circumstances so different, they were renewing. The speeches which followed were filled with de-tails of the life of Levi and his wife, showing, if half of what was said is true, that all men have cause to rise up and call them bleased. They are natives of North Carolina, where they were married. Fifty years ago, when other young men of that region were looking toward the virgin lands of Alabama and Mississippi, where a few hun-dreds of dollars invested in land and negroes were almost sure to yield a fortune to the men of enter-prise who dared to make the vonture, Levi felt with-in his breast the cry of the guilty sons of Jacob, "We are verily guilty concerning our brother," and, shak-ing the dust of slavery from his feet, sought a home in the North. Since then his life has been devoted to the cause of the slave, to use his own words, "Not because they were better than poor white folks, but because they had fewer friends and needed help more."

because they had fewer friends and needed help more." His home at Newport, Indiana, was the home also of the fugitive slave; and for twenty years he fed, clothed, and sheltered an average number of one hun-dred and fifty per year. Removing to Cincinnati in 1846, for the purpose of opening a store for the sale of free-labor goods, he kept up his habit of alding fugitives from slavery, and in the forty years of active life preceding the fail of slavery he had assisted thousands of men, women, and children. At one time, the affairs of the Colored Orphan Asylum of this city being in an exceedingly unpros-perous condition, there being no money to purchase food and clothing, or even to hire the domestics needed to care for the children, Levi and Catherine gave up their own home, and went into the asylum as superintendent and matron, serving without salary, and caring tenderly for the poor creatures who were doubly outcast, first because of their race, and next because of their poverty. At the close of the war of the rebeilion, he raised a large sum of money for the benefit of the freedmen, and he now devotes himself to the work of educating and elevating the negro, with as much zeal as he formerly showed in working to secure his freedom. I could fill as much space in recounting the ben-efactions of these good people, performed in aid of which unite with the rescued blacks in calling down bleasings upon the heads of "Uncle Levi and Aunt Katie."

While these things were being said, and much more the same sort, I observed in the remarks of the of

of the same sort, I observed in the remarks of the Orthodox speakers an evident purpose of heeping Levi and the rest of us reminded of the Christian dogma, which asserts that faith and not works is the essential of salvation. . At last Levi plucked the coat-tail of a gentleman about to speak, and asked leave to say that he and his wife Catherine based their hopes of salvation, not upon the good deeds to which their friends had re-ferred, but to their faith in the efficacy of the redeem-ing blood of Christ.

ferred, but to their faith in the efficacy of the redeem-ing blood of Christ. Now if I thought that Levi was actuated by a de-sire to escape hell, or to win heaven, when he was working for the slave, I should despise him most heartily; for if there is any man who deserves to go to hell, it is that man who does good only to escape the clutches of the devil. I do not think so meanly of Levi. He has in fact a superior nature which makes him feel more keenly than other men the subtile chain which binds hu-manity in one. Not all the pleasures of the fabled heaven can make such men completely happy, while one sentient being in the universe is unhappy.

heaven can make such men completely nappy, while one sentient being in the universe is unhappy. But if good deeds are of no avail in securing heav-en, does it not also follow that evil deeds have no in-fluence in deserving hell; and if this be true, what becomes of the claim of the Christian Church to be the great conservator of morals? If your patience, Mr. Editor, is not exhausted, I will now make an application of the foregoing, which is only my text.

Your correspondent, "E. D. C.," who does not seem disposed to take much stock in the negro, pub-lished in your columns an article showing that there does not seem to be any relation between the morals and the religion of the freedman. An editorial in a recent number of the Indepen-dent declares that "What the negro wants is a re-ligion which shall have some relation to morality." Now in the meeting I have described, besides Leri, there were a half-dozen men whose business it is to been a city missionary in this place for more than twenty years, devoling a large part of his time to preaching among the colored people. Such religion as we unfortunate blacks have was taught to us by such men, and they all unite in emphasizing the de-laration of Mark, "Whoso, believeth and is baltized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall dammed." There is not one word in this concerning good or bad deeds; salvation is given if you believe, dammation if you believe not. "There was recently in this richnity a conference of ministers of various evangelical sects, who were seek-ing to find a basis upon which all Christians may muite. Nothing was to be put into that platform ar-otonstitute a Christian. Much was said in it concern-ing faith in God, in Christ, in immortality, in the plenary inspiration of the Scriptures, but not one word concerning morals." Mamin, Morris. Swormsted, Schm, and the edder Gaddle, men standing bigh in the Methodist Church that no sinner is more sure of damnation the "your moral sinner."

that no sinner is more sure of damnation than "your moral sinner." Is it not clear that Christianity, judged by the teachings of its votaries, is a faith, not a system of morals? Why then should there be demanded a re-lation between the morals and the religion of the negro who has embraced Christianity? Supposing him to be completely Christianized, does it by any means follow that he will be moralized? Recent developments in high places of the land show that "Christian statesmen," "soldiers," and "ministers" of the white race are as apt as the negro to forget the requirements of the moral law. Now I submit to "E. D. C.," and to the helper-dent, that, when white men begin to preach to us and practise before us a religion which shall have "some relation to morality," then will be full time to blame us for the alleged divorce between our religion and our morals. P. H. C. CINCINNATT, November 22, 1874.

and our morals. CINCINNATI, November 22, 1874.

REV. MR. TIBHALS' MANIFESTO.

MT. CARROLL, Ill., Nov. 27, 1874.

MT. CARROLL, Ill., Nov. 27, 1874. F. E. ABBOT, Eq.: Dear Sir,-Noticing in last week's INDEX your mention of an attack made on Charles D. Miller, candidate for member of Assembly at Geneva, New York, on account of his religious opinions, I hand you by this mail a copy of the Morrison Time, pab-lished at Morrison, Whiteside County, Illunds. It contains a letter from Wm. C. Tibbals, who is the Methodist Episcopal Presiding Elder of this district, warning his people against voting for me for State Senator, and for about the same reasons. I am, however, happy to say that the "brethren" did not all heed Mr. Tibbals' alarm, and that I we elected, on the third instant, by about the regular party (Ba-publican) majority.

on the third instant, by about the regular party (Re-publican) majority. My position on the temperance question you will best understand by reading the enclosed "Extract, etc.," which, if you deem worth the room, you may publish as a part of the current opinions of the peo-ple on the so-called "license question"-otherwise throw it in the fire. Religiously I am called an "Infidel," but do not accept the name in its best sense; and, while I am a "Free Religionist," my sympathies are rather with Col. Higginson in his "Extra-Christian" plea of last annual meeting.

Col. Higginson in his "Latter Calledon annual meeting. Pardon my seeming egotism in talking so much of myself. I do it that you may understand the for-ness of Mr. Tibbals' attack upon me. Yours truly, H. A. MILLA

The letter of Rev. Mr. Tibbals will be found quoted among our "Glimpses," and the extract alluded to is here subjoined .- ED.]

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

AN EXTRACT FROM THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF HON. H. A. MILLS, MAYOR OF MT. CABBOLL, ILL-HON. H. A. MILLS, MA NOIS, APRIL 15, 1873.

NOIS, APRIL 15, 1873. The off-repeated failures, not only in our town but generally throughout the country, to secure any-thing like a reasonable enforcement of prohibitory laws may well arrest the attention of all thoughtful friends of law and order, and lead them carefully to inquire whether there may not be some inherent weakness in the laws themselves that renders them so generally inoperative and void. Even in a democra-cy, where the ballot-expression of the voice of a ma-jority is the written law of the land, that voice may be studified by a conflicting enactments, or over-slaughed by a general life-practice quite at variance with both the letter and the spirit of the attempted prohibiton. prohibition.

What now do we find to be the facts surrounding us, and directly bearing upon the question at issue?

us, and directly bearing upon the queston the simply these:-That the manufacture and wholesale traffic in in-toxicating liquors is taxed and protected by both an-tional and State laws, for which "We, the People," are fully responsible; and also that a great majority of our citizens use liquors in one or another of their various forms, and that those who do not use them refrain only in obselience to the dictates of their own refrain the size of the private judgment. Recognizing these as facts, I know of no good rule of law or equity that will justify us in claiming the right of prohibition as against the retail traffic. Bither liquors are contraband and conflocate, from their manufacture to their destruction, or else they are legitimate property, and subject, like all property, to some proper rules of vending. Wishing that this were otherwise, and saying or voting that it is not true, does not change the fact, and with material facts governments must deal. In the light of these surrounding, it does seem to me that we may find good reason for the general failure to enforce prohibitory laws. They are incon-sistent with the general iaw, life, and practice of a great majority of American citizens, and hence are unsustained by that moral sense of equity and jus-tice that must exist in the minds of the people, in or-der to make their written laws the guide-rules of faith and practice. If the above premises are correct (and I esteem them so), the question at issue in our late city elec-tion ceases to be one of "license or no license" in the common definition of the word, and becomes simply a question of "free or restrained traffic": tarealy, "free or taxed whiskey." The traffic exists by virtue of the unconstrained, practical support of a majority of our people. Be it ours to recognize the fact and deal with it accord-ingly. That all citizens are entitled to the protection of

&quot;SHALL I CUT this loin of mutton saddle-wise?" said a gentleman. "No," said one of his guests, "cut it bridle-wise, for then I may have a chance to get a bit in my mouth."

The traffic exists by virtue of the unconstrained, practical support of a majority of our people. Be it is fours to recognize the fact and deal with it accordingly. That all citizens are entitled to the protection of the ciril law is a self-evident proposition, for the support of which no argument is required; and whoever, in pulpit or bar-room, advocates or justifies a resort to mob-law to remove real or imaginary wronge deserves the condemnation of all good citizens. That applies that would abolish the entire liquor traffic by a mad-dog slaughter of all persons engaged the old Spanish inquisition; and its advocates, having long since parted company with all sound rules of law or logic, lack only a power equal to their will to light anew the faggot, and turn again the thumbers or opino. Let no such spirit animate our official action, but, "with malice toward none and charity for all." let us endeavor to protect all and oppress mone. Accepting the situation as I understand it, and working, as we all know, by a sad experience, what you throw around the stores, and series, all those municipal restraints that are known to equitable laws; that you enforce, with a sizer exacted, used the sober good sense of our fellow-citizens for peace and good order. Thukenness, too, is a crime, a crime against our best manhoed, and a crime against society, for which we must each hold ourselves and our neighbor responsible; for, with all said and done that was a "Globaed" can do, we must mainly rely upon the sober good sense of our fellow-citizens for peace and good order. The bed-rock of good society is the intelligent integrity of individual character. Opportunities for weight of individual character. Opportunities for a self-poised, responsible manhoed among our citizens that are nore upon an honest and cultured ideal of a self-poised, responsible manhoed among our citizens that peak on the penal enactments of ever so well devised laws.

zens than upon the penal enactments of order to and devised laws. No traffic can make of us drunkards without our consent, and no prohibitory laws can save us from the legitimate consequences of a wicked indulgence and gratification of the demands of appetite and pas-

We must make ourselves worth the saving, or there is a small chance of our being saved.

ATHEISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

MR. EDITOR :-

MR. EDITOR:--Mr. Voysey, in THE INDEX of November 19, says that John Stuart Mill, in his second posthumous work, "has touched on the subjects of religion and Christ with consummate skill and tenderness, for which his warm, sympathizing heart may well re-ceive gratitude and renewed reverence." By Mill's estimate of Jesus Mr. Voysey is led to say in another paragraph:--"Athelism is indeed content to leave mankind in the idolatry of an historical personage whom it will allow in poetry to delfy, so long as they will not travel beyond the confines of physical facts, or trouble themselves with speculations about the un-seen powers." And then follows:--"We have here a fresh instance of the radical affinseen powers." And then follows:--"We have here a fresh instance of the radical affin-ty between atheism and Christian gush. It would outprise you, perhaps, to learn how many millions of othristians have no other God than Christ, and boast other states and representation of dod. Well, all these are divided by a mere di-source of words from atheism pure and simple." More to mention Mr. Yoysey's oracular tone, just and receive gratitude." This shows that schesm is content to leave man-in the idoatry of Jesus, for which "he may mention the idoatry of Jesus. There is, therefore, a radical affinity between athe-man di "Christian gush." The millions who wor-whip a personal Being, who made everything from volving, and who became incarnate in Christ a few bound tose who believe in no such Being, who recog-nize the universe in its entirety as eternal, who are opilaposed to give anthropomorphic qualities to the down and the domine and the domine and the or form of worship,—these two classes are substan-tially alike, the difference between them being only of a verbal character! Not only one but several of Mr. Voysey's letters seem to indicate that he is hardly capable of doing justice to persons or principles that are in opposition to his cheriahed convictions. Respectfully, B. F. UNDERWOOD. MILWAUKEE, NOV. 29, 1874.

THE BIGHTS OF NON-SMOKERS.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 4, 1874.

FRIEND ABBOT: FRIEND ABBOT:-As the smokers have been heard through Spur-geon's statement and other items copied by the IN-DEX, please let one of the non-smokers be heard through the enclosed article, which is to appear in the Northampton Journal of to-morrow. Yours truly, SETE HINT.

SETE HUNT. THE BIGHT TO SMOKE.

THE BIGHT TO SMOKE. Spurgeon smokes, and says there is no sin in it. He has a right to smoke; but there are a multitude of others (and I am one of them) who do not smoke; who hate the practice; who are sickened by it. They have a right not to smoke; and yet Mr. Spurgeon and his fellow-smokers force others to breathe their smoke, whether it is offensive or not. Mr. Spurgeon may think it necessary to take medicine. He has the right to do so; but he should not compel those around him to swallow poison every time he does. There is the rub in this smoking custom. The rights of non-smokers are, as a general rule, invaded by those who smoke.

those who smoke. I once took passage on a steamer at Geneva, Switz-briand, in order to sail up the beautiful lake on which that city stands. I anticipated much pleasure and benefit from the pure air and sublime scenery. After setting sail, I found the deck, from which alone the air and scenery could be enjoyed, thronged with smokers. I had smoke in my eyes, smoke in my nose, smoke in my throat, smoke in my lungs, smoke in my clothing, smoke all around me. I viewed the Alpa and Jura mountains through the haze of tobacco smoke. tobacco smoke.

Alps and Jura mountains through the naze or tobacco smoke. I knew a man who went to an Island in the Atlan-tic Ocean, to recruit his health by breathing the pure sea-air. The broad verands of the hotel, where he could beat enjoy the air, was almost constantly pol-soned by tobacco smoke; so that he could find no cor-ner where the air was not tainted by the fumes of the weed. The reading-room, also, was generally diled with amoke, so that he privileges of that apart-ment were virtually denied to non-smokers. Was that respecting the equal right of non-smokers? I deem pure air the food of my lungs; and yet there are more who, while in the very act of forcing tobacco smoke into my nostrils, will denounce what they call sumptary laws, meaning the liquor laws, because, they say, such laws prescribe what a man shall eat and drink.

OHURCH TAXATION IN OHIO.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 4, 1874.

FRIEND ABBOT: Temporarily sojourning in this pleasant city, I was made measurably glad in looking over the morning papers of to-day by reading an editorial in the Cleve-land Heraid concerning the exemption of church and Herald concerning the exemption of the property. When the daily press of the country awaken to a realizing sense of this continued outrage upon every principle of equity and justice, the battle is more than half won. When, despite the hitberto all-potent machination and influence of the Church, the American press units for its overthrow, the victory is already gained. Meanwhile, persistent labor is demanded on the part of every emancipated soul, every liberalist, every non-sectarian, justice-loving person in the land, respectively, to do all he can at all times toward righting these burdens from off an oppressed people.

times toward righting the wrongs involved in this question, and lifting these burdens from off an op-preased people. Appreciating every effort made in this direction, and desirous of giving such the widest publicity pos-sible. I herewith enclose the Herald's article for re-print in the columns of THE INDEX. Faithfully yours, GEO. A. BACON. Recently we suggested to the Democratic members of the General Assembly the propriety of introducing and adopting an amendment to the tax law, striking out the clause exempting church property from taxa-tion. We made the suggestion on the ground that the Democracy have control in the Legislature and can carry their party measures, and we also suggest-ed that the German and other "liberal" people who aided materially in placing the Democratic party in power should urge that party to the performance of this work, which has been so frequently demanded by the "free minded." But the Democratis in the Legislature were in no burry about it, and so Repre-sentative Hodge, of this city, has taken up the task they seem disposed to shirk, and unless the 'bill is amothered in Committee the Democrate will have to face the music. We have ziven our views on this matter of taxing face the music.

The second secon

tant, the Protestant aid in maintaining the Roman

tant, the Protestant aid in maintaining the Roman Catholic, the Jew contribute to both, and the non-bellever in churches pay for the benefit of them all. We believe nine men in every ten, even among church goers, if asked their individual opinion on this point would say the existing practice is wrong in principle. It is true the Constitution gave the tegislature permission to exempt if it saw fit, but such exemption, though so specifically permitted, is against the spirit of the Constitution as displayed in the Bill of Rights. For the information of those who may not have seen, or who may have forgotten, what has been giv-on in regard to the amount of church property in the State which escapes taxation, we repeat that the cen-sus of 1850 showed leas than aix million dollare of this property in the State; in 1800 it had increased in value to thirteen millions; in 1870 to nearly twenty-six millions; and at the present time it is, at the rate of progression for the twenty years before the last crease is greatly in excess of the increase in the value of taxable property. In 1850 the proportion of ex-empted church property to the total value of taxable property was 1.38 per cent.; in 1800 the proportion at increased to 1.46 per cent.; now it is 2.42 per cent.

cent. We do not propose, just now, to go again into a dis-cussion of the question what denomination is reaping the largest benefit from this exemption. That is unnecessary. The fact that thirty-eight millions escape taxation in contravention of the spirit of the Constitution, that this is nearly two-and-a-half per cent. of the whole taxable property of the State, and that the proportion is steadily increasing, should be argument enough for the abolition of the exemption.

ABUSE OF TROMAS PAINE.

ALTON, Ill., Nov. 24, 1874.

 ABUSE OF THOMAS PAIRE.

 ALTON, ILL, NOV. 24, 1874.

 F. ABOT:

 Der Sir, -Enclosed I send yon a slip cut from forper's Weekly of this week. You will see its configured is whether the some of our realows Christian friends say hat Thomas Paine was a drunkard; but we give it but little notice or credit. Coming as this own now if there is any proof of the stories. We have heard you use any light on the subject?

 The see the second secon

PERSONAL.

D. R. SPARRS. PERSONAL The New York Times alludes to the fact that "the grave of Thomas Palne, near New Rochelle, which iterated so tong undisturbed, has been entirely ob-literated by Mr. Lester, pour whose farm it was." And the New York Herald, also alluding to it, says: "In clearing up his farm, Mr. Lester cut away the underbrush, removed the loses stones, and levelled the ground, leaving no mark to indicate the immedi-sepecially when we recall the fact that fifty-five years of (In 1819) the famous William Cobbett violated the prose of honoring them with a public funeral. That how they have the bones was knocked about from one place to another, until finally (in 1840) they camp in Stray Cobbett thought to gain a little éclat by in Mistary Searce Alter cobbett's death, the box containing the bones was knocked about from one place to another, until finally (in 1840) they camp, in Stater years Palne was a very uncleand drunkard, a very dissolute man, and so bad in every way that he died utterity detested. One of the most bilting epigrams Lord Byron ever wrote was this upon Palne With Cobbet thas done well:

"In digging up your bones, Tom Paine, Will. Cobbett has done well: You visit him on earth again; He'll visit you in hell."

[According to the best of our knowledge and belief, the stories of Paine's drunkenness and vileness are utter falsehoods. The truth seems to be told in Gil-bert Vale's Life of Paine, to which we refer all interested. It is a disgrace to Harper's Weekly that it should join the herd of malicious defamers of a man who ought to be held in high honor and respect .-ED.]

A MAN WAS boasting that he had been married twenty years and had never given his wife a cross word. Those who knew him said he didn't dare to.

Google Google

THE INDEX -- DECEMBER 10, 1874

598 TI	IE INDEX-DE	CEMBER 10, 18	74.
Advertisements.	GOOD PHOTOGRAPHS	1 8 7 4.	PUBLICATIONS,
	OF LEADING INDEX WBITEBS.	THE INDEX	FREE
THE PATRONAGE	Including	THE INDEX,	RELIGIOUS
of the liberal advertising public is respect- fully solicited for THE INDEX. The attempt will be honestly made to keep the advertis-	O. B. FROTHINGHAM, T. W. HIGGINSON,	A Weekly Journal
ing pages of THE INDEX in entire harmony with its general character and principles, and	W. J. POTTER,	DEVOTED TO	ASSOCIATION.
thus to furnish to the public an advertising medium which shall be not only profitable to its patrons, but also worthy of their most	W. H. SPENCER, F. W. NEWMAN,	FREE RELIGION.	Beport of the Addresses and other generous support. To this end, all improper or "blind" advertisements, all quack adver- tisements, and all advertisements believed	CHAS. VOYSEY,		ing in 1867, at which the
excluded from these columns. No cuts will	A. W. STEVENS, F. E. ABBOT,	PUBLISHED BY THE	ized. Containing addresses by G apart be admitted. THE INDEX must not be held responsible for any statement made by advertisers, who	Are now for sale at the office of THE INDEX, and will be mailed postpaid to any address	INDEX ASSOCIATION,	ingham, Henry Blanchard, Lucretta Kott, Robert Dale Owen, John Weiss, Oliver John will in all cases accept the responsibility for their own statements.	on receipt of price. Single Photographs, 25	AT	son, F. E. Abbot, D. A. Wasson, T. W. Hig- ginson, and Ralph Waldo Emerson.
ADVERTISING RATES., For 1 to 12 Insertions, 10c per line.	cents each; complete Set of Eight Photo- graphs, $1.50.	Ro. I Tremont Place, Boston. EDITOR:	(This pamphlet has not been on sale for a
	Address, THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston, Mass.	FRANCIS ELLINGWOOD ABBOT.	number of years, and many persons who have all of the Annual Reports succeeding do not
On half-column advertisements, a discount of 10 per cent. will be made; on full-column	INDEX TRACTS.	ASBOCIATE EDITOR:	possess this.) Price 50 cents.
advertisements, a discount of 25 per cent. On all advertisements for which cash is	No. 1Truths for the Times, by F. E.	ABRAM WALTER STEVENS.	Proceedings of Second Annual Meet- ing, 1869. 50 cents. Contains mays by
paid in advance, a further discount of 25 per cent. on the total, as above calculated, will be made. FRANCIS E. ABBOT, Editor.	Abbot, contains the "Fifty Affirmations"	RDITORIAL CONTRIBUTORS: O. B. FROTHINGHAM, New York City.	Julia Ward Hows on "Freedom and Es- straint in Religion," and by David A. Was-
BOUND VOLUMES OF THE	and "Modern Principles." MB. CHARLES DARWIN, author of "The Origin of Spe-	T. W. HIGGINSON, Newport, B.I.	son on "The Relation of Social Science in Religion," and speeches by O. B. Frothing-
Bound volumes of THE INDEX for 1871.	cies," says, in a letter to the editor not orig- inally intended for publication, but subse-	W. J. POTTER, New Bedford, Mass. R. P. HALLOWELL, Boston, Mass.	ham, Jesse H. Jones, F. E. Abbot, Wm. Des- ton, R. W. Emerson, Mary Grew, C. A. Bar-
1872, and 1873, will be sent by express (at the purchaser's expense) on receipt of $2.50, $2 50, and $3.00 respectively. These volumes	quently authorized to be used: "I have now read 'TRUTHS FOR THE TIMES,' and I admiré	MRS. E. D. CHENEY, Jamaica Plain, Mass.	tol, A. M. Powell, H. B. Blackwell, Rowland Connor, Lucy Stone, Horace Seaver, and
of each other: for the important essays and	almost every word." New Edition. Price	F. W. NEWMAN, England. CHARLES VOYSEY, England.	others; with an appendix on "Oulline of Judalam" by Babbi Wise.
other articles they contain are of permanent interest, and will furnish as instructive read- ing twenty years hence as to-day. No more	10 cents; 19 copies $1.00.		Proceedings of Third Annual Neet-strugging out of Orthodoxy than one of	B. Frothingham, exposes the debasing char-	THE INDEX aims- To increase general intelligence with respect	ing, 1870. 50 cents. Contains assays by O. B. Frothingham on the "Idea of the Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	acter of the popular notions of God, and presents conceptions of him that are wor-	to religion :	addresses by D. A. Wasson on "The Nature
TWO NEW BOOKS.	thy of the ninetcenth century. New Edi- tion. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.	To foster a nobler spirit and quicken a higher purpose, both in society and in the indi-	ligion as a Social Force, especially in rela-
MODERN CHRISTIANITY, A CIV-	No. 3Lecture on the Bible, by the Rev. Charles Voysey, of England, is an over-	vidual : To substitute knowledge for ignorance, right	tion to Philanthropy and Reform," and by F. E. Abbot on "The Future of Religious
ILIZED HEATHENISM. By the	whelming demonstration of the imperfec-	for wrong, truth for superstition, freedom for slavery, character for creed, catholicity author of The Fight at Dams Europa's School.	Old and the New Testaments. New Edition.	for bigotry, love for hate, humanitarianism for sectarianism, devotion to universal and	"The Natural Sympathy of Heligions," foi-
THE IMPEACEMENT OF THE HOUSE OF BRUNSWICK. By	Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. No. 4Christian Propagandism, by F.	for absorption in selfish schemes.	and Progressive Elements of Judsism," by
Charles Bradlaugh.	E. Abbot, is an exposure of the weakness,	ion shall take the place of dogmatism and	by Wm. H. Channing on "The Beligions of
The price of each of these books, in paper covers, is SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS. In cloth	or roreign ansatons. Fut of Figures, Faces	when the welfare of humanity here and	Old and New in India;" also abstract of a binding, price ONE DOLLAR AND TWENTT-	12 copies $1.00.	now shall be the aim of all private and public activities.	Schools," by Thos. Vickers, S. E. Calthrop, Babbi Wise, and others.
Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.	No. 5"God in the Constitution," by Rev. Arthur B. Bradford, opposes the pro-	In addition to its general objects, the prac-	Proceedings of Fifth Annual Neet-
THEFREE	posed Theological Amendment to the Unit- ed States Constitution, Price 10 cents; 12	IN devoted is the ORGANIZATION OF THE	cents each.) Contains emays by J. W.
	copies $1.00.	pose of securing the more complete and con-	America." by C. D. B. Mills on "Religion is SUNDAY ADVOCATE,	No. 6	ucational institutions of the United States	the Expression of a Permanent Sentiment of the Human Mind," and by 0. B. Froth-
A MONTHLY JOURNAL AND BE- VIEW DEVOTED TO THE INTER-	81.00	The Church must give place to the Republic in the affections of the people. The las	with addresses by Rowland Connor, Call
LEAGUE.	No. 7"Compulsory Education," by		Barleigh, Lucretia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A.
The objects of the League are to advocate the opening of all Museums, Art Galleries, dc., on Sundays,	And a second to be advected as the	into harmony with the National Constitution	and others.
Acc., on Sundays; to maintain during the summer the running of cheap Sunday Ex- cursions; to provide during the winter "Sun- day Evenings for the People;" and generally to promote everything conducive to rational fectoration on Sunday.	State to ensure it an education. Price i cents; 13 copies 50 cents.	To accomplish this object, the Liberals mus make a united demand, and present an un day Evenings for the People;" and generally to promote everything conducive to rational fected for on Southerness of the Southe	No. 6The Present Reaven, by O. B Frothingham, treats of a subject that in	broken front, and the chief practical aim o	Inchrace on "Freedom in Religion," and b
The formula everything conductive to rational recreation on Sunday. The Free Sunday Advocate is published in London, England, and is conducted by an Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simmeon, London.	terests everybody. New Edition. Price i cents; 12 copies 50 cents.		John Weiss on "Religion in Freedom,
Honorary Editorial Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Monthall	No. 9 The Christian Amendment, by	give it direct aid by helping to increase the	Owner T W Higginson, Samuel Lough
Houdorary Actional Committee, consisting of the following: Mrs. J. H. Simpson, London; Thomas Marshall, London; Fred'k Long, London; Brancis W. Souther, London; Mark H. Judge, Hampstead.	F.E. Abbot, shows the dangerous charac- ter of the attempt to interpolate the Evan		cretia Mott.
The ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION for delivery by post to any part of the United States is one dollar (payable in advance). Address		The publication of a valuable leading pa	Meeting, 1874. 30 cents. triate
THE FREE SUNDAY ADVOCATE.	No. 10The Impeachment of Christi-		e reports of President Frothingham's addre on "The Validity of the Free Beligion
256 High Holborn, London, W.C., England,	anity, by F. E. Abbot. Fourth Ten Thou sand. Sent for free distribution to any on	Regular editorial contributions will con
THE REFORMATOR.	who will distribute it, in packages of from five to one hundred copies.	inent writers who have already done so much	Barnesshelete maash on "Reformed Jud
A WEEKLY JOURNAL,	No 11 The God of Science, by F. E. Ab	to give to THE INDEX its present high po sition. Mr. Voyasy has kindly consented t	ism," and of the statements of their n
For the dissemination of useful knowledge and the enlightenment of the people	active strength along and area of God		spective attitudes towards Christian," and "E on political, religious, and so- cial subjects, with a	Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00. No. 12.—Is Romanism Real Christian	ical readers. Other interesting correspond	- tra-Christian,"-together with the Keil view to reform.	ityy Two essays by Francis W. Newman	ble books and periodicals, and miscellaneou	s ab Chunder Ben, Frederica Long
Published in the German language ev-	and F.E. Abbot. Price 10 cents; 12 copies $1.00.	improvements will be made from time t time as circumstances shall render possible.	Beligions of Chins, by Wm. H. Chi ory securday, at Adrian, Mich.	No. 13On the Vision of Heaven, by Prof. F. W. Newman, of England, applying		Reason and Revelation, by William
Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which	the Christian conception of Heaven. Price	Local Agents for THE INDEX are wante

Local Agents for THE INDEX are wanted in every city and town throughout the country. The most liberal terms are offered.

TERMS.

The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-The price of THE INDEX is Three Dol-lars a year, payable in advance; and at the same rate for shorter periods. All remit-pances of money must be at the sender's risk, unless forwarded by cheque, registered letter, or post-office money order. The name with address in full, must be accompanied with the money in each case. Address

THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. o of a Fermanent Sentiment Mind," and by 0. B. Froth-The Religion of Humanity." as by Rowland Connor, Cella retia Mott, A. B. Alcott, C.A. e Seaver, Alexander Loos, Taxation of Church Property, by Jat. Parton. 10 cents, singly; package of tab, 60 cents; of one hundred, $3.

These publications are for sale at the office is the of the Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston. The Annual Reports risk, for 1868 and 1871 cannot be supplied, and the supply of others previous to that of 1871 is guilto limited. Orders by mall may be addressed either "Free Religious Association, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston," or to the Secretary, New Bedford, Mass.
 W.M. J. POTTER, Sec. T.E. A.

Тв

Principal office at Adrian, Mich., to which all letters and communications must be ad-dressed.

C. LOHMANN & SON, Pub's. C. LOHMANN, EDITOR.

The REFORMATOR circulates in all the prinofpaticities and villages in the United States and Territories, and presents an excellent medium for advortising.

Terms of Subscription-$2 per annum. Ad-vertisements inserted at liberal rates. Sub-scription and advertisements must be paid in

Name and the Thing, by F. E. Abbot, attempts to show that the popular deriva-tion of the word Beligion is incorrect; that the popular conceptions of Religion itself are inadequate; and that a new conception are inadequate; and that a new conception of it, based on the Law of Evolution, con-sistent with absolute Freedom of Thought, and independent even of belief in God, is the necessary condition of the perpetuity of Heligton among men. Frice 10 cents; 12 copies $1.02. Address THE INDEX, 1 TREMONT PLACE, the Christian conception of Heaven. Price 5 cents; 12 copies 50 cents.

No. 14. - A Study of Beligion : The

" Boston, Mass.

THE INDEX-DECEMBER 10, 1874.

599

	CEMBER 10, 18	74. 599
Zakrzewska, being	III. Foods. By Dr. Edward Smith 1.76 IV. Mind and Body. The Theories of the Ballows. By Alex. Sain	PROCTOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds
1.80	their Relations. By Aler. Bain. 1.50	than Ours: the Flurality of Worlds stud- ied under the Light of Recent Scientific vola 1.00	V. The Study of Sociology. By Herbert Spencer, Esq. 1.56 VI. The New Chamletry, Br. Loth 2	Light Science for Leisure Hours, A Series
f Man and the Low-	V. The Study of Sociology. By Herbert Sponcer, Ead. VL. The New Chemistry. By Josiah P. VI. The New Chemistry. By Josiah P. VII. The Conservation of Energy 2. 200 four Stowart, with an Appendix, heat- ing of the Visia and Mental Applications of the Doctrine. 1.00 VIII. Animal Locomotion; or, Walking, 1.00	PROCTOR (RICHARD A.) Other Worlds than Qure: the Plurality of Worlds stud- ied under the Light of Recent Scientific Researches. Will Colored Plates
leand Plants under	four Stewart, with an Appendix, treat-	Essays on Astronomy : A Series of Papers on Planets and Metcors, the Sun etc.
. Hustrated 8.00	of the Doctrine	With 10 Plates and 24 Woodcuts 41
Discourse on the lucting the Reason he Sciences $35	of the Doctrine	and Physical Conditions, with Three Lu-
y of England 1.50	IX. Besponsibility in Montal Disease. By	The stoanse of Heaven
Philosophers and		RENAN'S Life of Jeans
a. Household Edi-	JERROLD (DOUGLAS). Fireside Saints, Mr. Claude's Breakfast Talk, and other Papers. 1.50	Dante
1.00	JOHNSON'S (SAMUEL) Oriental Religions, and their Relation to Universal Religion.	SCHELLEN (H.) Spectrum Analysis, in its Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly Bodies.
	india and the formation of the second	Application to Terrestrial Substances, and the Physical Constitution of the Heavenly
i statisti	JOSEPHUS. The whole Works of Flavius Josephus, the Jewish Historian	GOTENOR DEFICIENCE
es of Cierical Life. tion. 2 vols 3.50		SCIENCE PRIMERS: 1. Introductory. By Prof. Huzley, F.B.S.,
uon. 2 vois 3.50 3.50 1.25	JOWETT. The Dialogries of Plato. Trans- hated hate English, with Analysis and Intro- ductions of B. Owers, M.A. Master of Balliol Oxed B. Overd, and Regius Pro- feasior of Greek. Four vols	1. Introductory. By Prof. Huzley, F.B.S 2. Chemistry. By Prof. Roscos
	Balliol College, Oxford, and Begius Pro-	4. Physical Geography. By Archibald Get fassor of Greek. Four vols	<ol> <li>Physics. By Balfour Stewart. With Il- lustrations.</li> <li>Physical Geography. By Archibald Gei- kie, LL.D., F.R.S., flexible cloth</li></ol>
ys. First Series., 9.00 2.00	KERR (ORPHEUS C). Versatilities, Poems, Patriotic, Sentimental and Humorous 2.90	SCOTT'S Waverley Novela. 25 volu
		SCOTT'S (THOMAS) The English Life of Jesus. Second Edition
2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 2.00 1.00 1.50 1.50	LECKY (W. E. H.) Elistory of the Riss and Inflaence of the Spirit of Bailonaliam in Europe. 2 rols	SMILES'S (SAMUEL) Self-Help 1.
		ODDATATE (CODD DATE )
1.50	tus to Charlemagne. 2 vols 8.00	First Principles
	LEGGE'S Confucius' Life and Teachings 4.00 Confucius and Chinese Classics	Dr ENGER (HEADER'L') Education, Intel- lectual, Moral, and Physical. Enasys: Moral, Folitical, and Esthetic
First Historical	LESSING'S (G. E.) Nathan the Wise. Trans- lated by Ellen Frothingham	Social Statica; or, The Conditions Fasan-
First Historical ristianity. From se Coqueral the	LEWER Physical Prothingham	thal to Human Bappiness Specified, and the First of them Developed se Coquerel the 1.50	LEWIES' Physiology of Common Life. 1 vols. 2.00 Biographical Elisory of Philosophy, from its Origin in Greece down to the Present Day. 1 vols. 4.00 Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- tions of a Creed. 5.00	lection of his best Papersi, Gross, A. Be- Bocial Statics; or, The Condition Zesen- tial to Human Happiness Specified, and the Pirts of them Developed. A statistical second The Principles of Reveloped. To is. 6 Philosophy of Styls. Become Discussions in Edence, Philosophy, and Morals. Now and enlarged edition. 2 Bociology.
om the German of	Day. 2 vela	Philosophy of Style
8.00	Problems of Life and Mind. The Founda- tions of a Creed	and Morals. New and solarged edition. 2
an Religion 2,00	LEWES (G. H.) The Story of Goethe's Life, 1.50
The Essence of	LEWIN (REV. RAPRAEL, D'C). What is Jn- daism? or, a Few Words to the Jews 1.00	SPINOZA (BENEDICT DE.) Tractatus The-lot's" translation. 2.00		ologico-Politicas
ad Myth-Makers., 2.00	LONGFELLOW'S (H. W.) Poems. Portrait. 2 vols	STOWE (HARRIET BEECHER.) Fink and White Tyranny
Religion of Hu-	2 vola 4.00 Proze Works. Portrait 4.00	Uncle Tom's Cabin
1.50	LOWELL'S (J. E.) Poems. 2 vols	STRAUSS (D. F.) The Old Faith and the
8	The Biglow Papers. Second Series 1.50 Among my Books.	New Life of Jesus. Authorized transis-
		Librar a vois contraction and the second second
Complete Works, terson, Channing, m. 6 vois	LOWELL (Mus. A. C.) Posies for Children75	TAINE'S (H. A.) History of English Litera- ture. 2 vols. The Class-Room Taine. History of English Literature. Abridged and Edited by John
	LUBBOCK (SIR JOHN). Origin of Civilian- Hon, and the Primitive Condition of Man. 2.00 Pre-historic Times. 3.00	The Class-Room Taine, History of English Literature, Abridged and Edited by John
ave and Conse-		FIELD
	LYELL'S Principles of Geology. 2 vols 5.00 Elements of Geology	TENNYSON'S (ALFRED) Poems 1
ated into English 2 vols. Par vol 5.00 1.25	MACDONALD (GEORGE.) The Vicar's	THACKERAT'S (W. M.) Novels. Household Edition. Complete in S volumes. Per vol. 1 Vanity Fair. The Newscomes.
ated by Thomas	Daughter	Vanity Fair. The Newcomes.
the. 2 vola	Mann. By his Wife	Adventures of Philip, Pendennis.
P 7.176 9.05	MANN (HORACE). The Life of Horses Mann. By his Wife. Lectures and Annual Reports on Education. 3.00 Annual Reports on Education, from 1929 to monts 2.00	Thoughts Selected from the Writings of	Eamond, and Lovel the Widower. Miscellaneous Writings, Honsehold Edi-
CT OFFICIE CONTRACTOR AND A	Horace Mann 1.25	The Virginians. Eamond, and Lovel the Widowsr. Miscellaboras Writings. Honsehold Edi- tics. Unitorm with the Novels. Com- plete in S vols. With new Novrels. Tex vol. 1 plete in S vols. With new Novreis. Tex vol. 1
from Family Doe- nda, and Original	MARTINEAU (JAMES.) Essays, Philosoph- ical and TheologicaL 2 vols. Per vol 2,50	This edition includes all the matter in the h
nda, and Original rious Friends. By lition. With Por-	MAUBICE (RWV. F. D.) The Ground and	This edition includes all the matter in the li est English editions, with many additions, the making it, with the novels, the chappent and mo- complete Thackeray in the market.
5.00		complete Thackeray in the market.
A Painter s Camp. ok II. In Scotland.	MERIVALE'S (CHARLES) Conversion of the Roman Empire	2. Paris, and Irish Sketch-Books, &c.
1.50		<ol> <li>Barry Lyndon, Hoggart Diamond, &amp;c.</li> <li>Barry Lyndon, Hoggart Diamond, &amp;c.</li> <li>Paris, and Iriah Sketch-Books, &amp;c.</li> <li>Books, Sketchen, Boals Dural, &amp;c.</li> <li>Catherino, Uhristmas Books, and Um printed Pieces.</li> </ol>
4.00 2.00 4.90	MILL (JOHN STUART.) Dissertations and Discussions. ( vols., each	printed Pleces.
	The Examination of the Philosophy of Sir William Hamilton, 2 vols., each	THAXTER'S (MRS. CELIA) Among the
World. Part Sec-	William Hamilton. 2 vols., each	Isles of Shoals
1,50	tion	THOREAU'S (H. D.) Waldon; or, Life in the Woods
	tion	the Weods Excursions in Field and Forest, Portrait.
3.50	Autobiography	Cape Cod Letters A Yankee in Canada A Week on the Concord and Merrimae
ANIEL) Works.	Autobiography. 2.26 Memorial Volume. His Life and Works 1.0 Three Essays on Beligion	A Yankes in Canada
1.40	MILLER (JOAQUIN.) Songs of the Sierras. 1.50 Songs of the Sun Lands	A Weak on the Concord and Merriman
		TYLOR (EDWAED B.) The Early History
d The Blithedale	MIVART (ST. OEO.) On the Genesis of Species	of Mankind Primitive Culture. 2 vols
a Gables, and The	MORLEY (PROP. JOHN.) Voltaire 1.00	TYNDALL (JOHN). Faraday as a Discov-
	Rousseau, 2 vols 6.90	Fragments of Science for Unscientific Pag-oltr.	MOULTON (LOUISE CHANDLER.) Bed- Time Stories	ple Light and Electricity Hours of Exercise in the Alpa Heat as a Mode of Motion
Note-Books. Limius Felton.	MUELLER (MAX. M.A.) Lectures on the	Hours of Exercise in the Alps
	MUELLER (MAX, M.A.) Lectures on the Belence of Languages. First Series	Dadiant Unat
dmant 1.50	Chips from a German Workshop. Vol. I.
1.00	IL Essays on Mythology, Traditions.	Forms of Water. Lectures on Light. Proceedings at the Farewell Banquet to Prof. Tyndail.
D.) Their Wed-	erature, Biography and Antiquities.	Frof. Tyndail.
2.00	Lectures on the Science of Beligion 2.50	TYTLER (SARAH.) Old Masters and their Pictures
2.00 2.00 2.00	NASBY (PETROLEUM V). Swingin' Bound	Modern Painters and their Paintings
1.50	the Cirkle	VOYSEY (REV. CHARLES.) The Sling and the Stone. Vols. I. and V., esch
"Ninety-Three"., 1.75	WEWENNESS WORKS WITH A WINSOW OF the	Yols III. IV. and VI., each
ER VON), Life of.	Hebrew Mark Phartons w. / A massing of the 4.40 Phases of Faith; or Passages from the History of my Oreson	The Voysey Appeal Voysey's Defence at York
10.50	History of my Creed	WARNER'S (CHARLES D.) My Summer in a Garden and Life 1.75	Catholic Union: Easays towards a Church	Bauterings. Back-Log Studies
Verses	Philanthropy
Nature 1.25	The Beligious Weakness of Protestantime. 33 Against Hero-Making in Religion. 33	WEISS (JOHN.) American Religion
Nature 1.25 in and Adminis-	Against Bero-Making in Religion
	PARKER (THEODORE.) A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion	WHIPPLES (E. P.) Literature and Life Essays and Borlews Obaracter and Characteristic Men The Literature of Main State Estaboli Woodba and and the Baracinton
y of Vertebrated	Speeches, Addresses, and Occasional Ser-	The Literature of the Age of Elizabeth
	Additional Speeches, Addresses, and Occa-	Washington and the Revolution and Reviews 1.75	BIODAL DEFINIONS. 2 VOLS	WHITNEY'S (Mss. A. D. T.) A Sammer in Losile Goldthwaite's Life. We Girls: A Rome Story
	Critical and Miscellaneous writings 1.30	We Girls: A Home Story
1.50 acon	Critical and Miscellabeous Writings
ns	Critical and Miscellancods writings	The Other Girls
ns	Breeches, Addresses, and Occasional Ber- mons. 4 vois	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) FOODS. 2 YOB
2.25 5001	Critical and miccellaneous writings	The Other Girls Panales. A volume of Posma WHITTER'S (JOHN G.) Posma. 2 vols Child Life
ns	sgainst Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.50 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDOCCLV. A Christmas Story	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) FORMS. 2 YOB
ns 2.25 1.5000 1.0 2.50 ne. Off the Skal- 1.25 First and Second 1.25 1.2	against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.50 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. L. and MDOCCLV. A Christmas Story	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) FORMS. 2 YOB
First and Second 1.25	against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.39 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDOCOLV. A Christmas Story	WHITTIER'S (JOHN G.) FORMS. 2 YOB
na	against Kidnapping; with the Defence 1.39 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. I. and MDOCOLV. A Christmas Story	Child Life.
2.25 	against Kidnapping; with the Defence. 1.49 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. 1. and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story40 PARSONS (THEOFHILUS.) The Infinite and the Finite	Child Life.
ns. 2.26 seen. 1.26 see, Off the Skel- First and Second 1.25 First and Second 1.25 Sec fatellect	against Kidnapping; with the Defence. 1.49 The two Christmas CelebrationsA.D. 1. and MDCCCLV. A Christmas Story	Child Life.

Art     Brownan Represented of Main and the Low- the watching of Linking and Human Main Main Main Main Main Main Main Ma	pence The
FUISLISSEELS       FRAICES 1         ORDERS FROMPTLY FILLED,         OPACATABLE, FOSE FOSTAGE         OPACATABLE,	L Th
DUCKENS Childry Ellowy of England	our Eng of
DUCKENS Childry Ellowy of England	ionon
RUD EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE       RUD CALLER FOR POSTAGE       Rud CharGe Chara CharGe CharGe CharGe CharGe CharGe Chara	lenry
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE     Dotting and the subject of the public of the subject	ude's
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR POSTAGE     170 Milling the Pose.	d thei
ANT BOOK in the subjoined Lat, or any other DOTAINAD LEBORS that may be dealed, will be forwarded as promptify as possible on receip of orises accompanied with the OASH. Orders are respectfully soliated from all friends of THEE INDEX. LOTT (A. BENNON). Tables. LOTT (A. BENNON). Table	EPHU
ANT BOOK in the subjoined Lat, or any other DOTAINAD LEBORS that may be dealed, will be forwarded as promptify as possible on receip of orises accompanied with the OASH. Orders are respectfully soliated from all friends of THEE INDEX. LOTT (A. BENNON). Tables. LOTT (A. BENNON). Table	ed Int be forwarded as promptify as possible on receipt of orders companied with the OASH. Orders are respectfully soliated free all friends of THE INDEX. LOTT (A. BEONSON, Tables,	Lion ( Ordiers are respectfully solisited from all friends of THE INDEX.     Joint Main     Joint	RR (O
all Griends of THEE INDEX. Perms. Wild Forcest. Perms. Wild Procest. Perms. Per	KY (
ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tabless.       775       BYANS (E.F., Ph. D., Pirt: Hetypical Beords of a School, A new edition.       124         Connord Dest.       124       The Strand of A Mahamas Court, Strand Beords.       124         ALCOTT (LOUISA M), Little Women. Two Bergerial Streiches wild Charp sidd Frieddo An Ois Faminone Oil.       124       124         Marker Strand, Bergerial Streiches wild Charp sidd Frieddo An Ois Faminone Oil.       124       124       124         My Bors, Sc.       126       126       127       128       128         My Bors, Sc.       126       128       128       128       128       128         My Bors, Sc.       126       128	story
ALCOTT (A. BRONSON). Tabless.       775       BYANS (E.F., Ph. D., Pirt: Hetypical Beords of a School, A new edition.       124         Connord Dest.       124       The Strand of A Mahamas Court, Strand Beords.       124         ALCOTT (LOUISA M), Little Women. Two Bergerial Streiches wild Charp sidd Frieddo An Ois Faminone Oil.       124       124         Marker Strand, Bergerial Streiches wild Charp sidd Frieddo An Ois Faminone Oil.       124       124       124         My Bors, Sc.       126       126       127       128       128         My Bors, Sc.       126       128       128       128       128       128         My Bors, Sc.       126       128	GE'S
ALGOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two Borts. J. Construction of Borts. J. State Strength,	SING
ALGOTT (LOUISA M). Little Women. Two Borts. J. Construction of Borts. J. State Strength,	nted b
PARARS Critical Ellery of Proc Thought, I.M.       PARARS Critical Ellery of Proc Thought, I.M.       Proc Thought, I.M.         My Borg, &co.       100       PEUERBACH (LUD WTG.) The Essence of Gamma Control of Proceedings (Internalial).       LEWER         Work: A Sing of Experience       110       PEUERBACH (LUD WTG.) The Essence of Gamma Control of Proceedings (Internalial).       LEWER         Work: A Sing of Experience       110       PEUERBACH (U.D.W The Analysis of Proceedings (Internaliation).       LEWER         ARNOLD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Critical (Internation).       100       Proceedings (Internation).       100         VILLS Sing (Internation).       100       The Essence of Control of Proceedings (Internation).       100         VILLS Sing (Internation).       100       100       100       100       100       100         Proceeding (Internation).       100	a Ori
Transmission       100         Bits wi-Serroga and Michael And Andress and Michael A	ions o
WORL A BOOLY OF LABORT DE ALMANENTE, 140       FIGSERS (JORN) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       Total         AR ADLAN NOBTES CHARGENER LABORT STREET (JORN) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       Total       Total         AR YOULD'S (MATTHEW) Essays in Critican       100         New Youns, 110       Total Street (Jorna) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       JONE         ALTERBACH (MERTHOLD), On the Heights, 140       100       Total Street (Jorna) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       JONE         AURERACH (MERTHOLD), On the Heights, 140       100       Total Street (Jorna) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       JONE         German Titles       100       Total Street (Jorna) Wyths and Myth-Makers, 200       JONE       JONE         AGRHOT on the English Constitution, 300       Total Street (Jone) Wyths and Others, 200       JONE       JONE         AGRHOT on the English Constitution, 400       100       JONE       JONE       JONE         AGRHOT on the English Constitution, 400       100       JONE       JONE       JONE       JONE         AGRHOT on the English Constitution, 400       100       JONE
ARNOLD'S (MATTERW) Emersy in Criti- diam. 200 New Yoems. 200 New Yoems. 200 AUTERNACH (BERTSOLD). On the Heights. 120 AUTERNACH (BERTSOLD). On the Heights. 120 Market and Dogma. 120 AUTERNACH (BERGALE). Complete Works. 200 Market and Political Social Complete Works. 200 Market and Political Social Complete Works. 200 BACON'S Easys. 120 BACON'S CON'S Easys. 120 BACON'S EASYS. 120 BACON'S CON'S EASYS. 120 BACON'S CON'S EASYS. 120 BACON'S CON'S CON'S EASYS. 120 BACON'S CON'S CON'S CON'S EASYS. 120 BACON'S CON'S CON	OPE
Literature and Dogram. 100 Like Strate Strat
VILLER'S (EARCORNET) Complete Works, Backeris, into Communications, 100       100       100       100         BACON'S Easys.       100       100       04.700       (FRANCIS.) Escolater, 000       100         BACON'S Easys.       120       04.700       (FRANCIS.) Escolater, 000       100         BACEN'S Exarys.       120       04.700       (FRANCIS.) Escolater, 000       100         BACTLATNDER, Mental Science: A Ormsendium of Paychology and Elstory of Thilocophy	e Bly
Balance Stream       100         German Tales       100         BA CON'S Easays       125         GARENOT on the English Constitution       125         GORTER'S Face.       126         Compondium of Payloholers and Bistory of Philosophy       126         Base TLET'S Pauliar Quolationa       120         Basettig row row
BACON'S Emargs.       125       A. Tinjufy Tho Tis Tawa and Conse- guences       127         BAGEHOT on the English Constitution.       2.25       Carned Science: A consection of the English Constitution of Problems in Compendium in Compendium of Problems in Compendium of Problems in Compendium of Problems in Compendium of Problems in Compendium in Compendin in Compendium in Compendium in Compendium i	BOCI
BAIT (ALEXANDER). Hental Science: A Compendium of Parkstory of Agrant Taylor. 1 voil. Per voil. Por voil. Per voil. 20 Daug Parkstory of Philosophy. 1.76 Active Additional Constraints of Additional Constraints of Additional Constraints of Additional Constraints of Contrastand Constraints of Philosopia, School, A. Composition of Exhibit.       Cartyle. Fortrait of Goelas. Translated by En- ited.       2.49       Man         Interact Productions.       1.00       Interact Productions.       1.00       Man         BABTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms.       1.00       Interact Productions.       1.00       1.00         BABTLETT'S Pamiliar Quotations.       2.00       GBROTE'S LIFE. Compiled from Family Doo- dimentes.       1.00       Man         BABTLETT'S Pamiliar Quotations.       2.00       Creed of Christendom.       1.00         BABTLETT'S Pamiliar Quotations.       2.00       Man       Man       1.00       Man         BABTLETT'S Pamiliar Quotations.       2.00       Mar       1.00       1.00<	DON
The Society of Life Lifelicet. Third edit.       Ball Proteiningtam.       140       Local         BARTLETT'S Dictionary of Americanisms.       5.00       GREGI'S (W. R.) Enigmas of Life	ughte
Doh. 1 Yel.     Description     Desc	ctures nual
BARTURTT'S Paniliar Quotationa       1.00       GROTE'S LIFE. Complied from Family Doc- uments. Private Memoranda, and Original Letters to and from Various Friende. By Mars. Grots. Scoond Edition. With Por- trait.       MARE Mars.         BARTUR (H. OHARLTON), The Begin- damentean Girls.       2.00       Mars.       6.00         BARTUR (H. OHARLTON), The Begin- damentean Girls.       6.00       MARE Mars.       6.00         BRACKETT (ANA C.) The Education of American Girls.       6.00       MARE Mars.       6.00         BROKE'S (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Berling.       2.20       The Guada.       6.00         BOOKL'S (CHARLES T.) Translations. The Layman's Bootand.       2.20       The Guada.       6.00         BUZCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       6.00       WITY.         BUZCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       6.00       WITY.         BUZCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       1.00       WITY.         BUCCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       1.00       WITY.         BUCCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       1.00       WITY.         BUZCHENER'S Force and Matter       2.20       The Intellectual Life.       1.00       1.00	ought foract
BASTLAN (H. OHARLTON), The Begin- ning of Life. 1 vois:       And File.	2012
BBACKETT (ANA C.) The Education of American Girls.       Book I. to England. Sock II. In Sociani.       the Construction of the Social Characterization of the The World-Privat.       the Social II. In France.       100         BEOOKES (GRARLES T.) Translations. The The World-Privat.       2.25       The Guale Student.       100         The World-Privat.       2.25       The Intellectual Life.       2.00         BUCKLE (BENEY TROMAS).       Entropy State and France.       2.00         BUCKLE (BENEY TROMAS).       Entropy State.       1.00         And the Scotland.       1.00       1.00       1.00         And the Scotland in England and France.       1.00       1.00       1.00         BUSKLE (BENEY TROMAS).       Entropy State Chaspedition. Compris- ing the following: Miscellaneous Emsays. 7       1.00       1.00       1.00         CAR PENTER (DIA W. 2.1. The Franciples of Montal Physiology, with their Applica- tions the Training and Discipline of the Montal the Study of its Morbid Condi- tions.       1.00       1.00       1.00       1.00         CHANNING (WM. ELLERT, D.D). The Per- dent in Frankers, Mith Memorial Verses.       1.00       1.00       1.00       1.00         CHANNING (WM. ELLERT, D.D). The Per- dent in manuacripts by ha nepherw, Wm. Hear Orbanning.       1.00       1.00       1.00         CHANNING (WM. ELLERT, D.D). The Per- ding Ananining.       1.00       1.0	JBICI
BBOORRS'(GEARLEST.) Translations. The Laynax''s Broviar	Bom
BUECHNER'S Force and Matter       2.25       HAMILTON (WALL), Unit World, PartSectory of Old Monters, Status,	LIJO
BUOKLER (HENRY THOMAS).       Hstory of Civilization in England and France, Spain and Scotland. New edition of the entire Work, with a complete index. 2 vola.       1.00       Child World. Fast Pirst.       1.00         OARLYLEYS Works.       Respective.       3.00       AMTLTON'S Lectures.       1.00         OARLYLEYS Works.       Respective.       3.40       Antractive.       1.00         OARLYLEYS Works.       Respective.       3.40       Antractive.       1.00         OARLYLEYS Works.       Frederer.       3.40       Antractive.       3.40         OARLYLEYS Works.       Frederer.       3.40       Antractive.       3.40         Act, Stator Resarcts.       1.01.       Join - The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Bornance.       MITLL         Any volume sold separately :       1.00       Join - The Scarlet Letter, and The Blithedale Bornance.       MITLL         OARPENTER (DR.W. B.).       The Frieds and Italian Note-Books.       The American Note-Books.       MORI         CERVANTES' Don Quixote.       1.00       Join - Steiner.       1.00       MORI         Corest Antres (DR.W. ELLERT, D.D.).       The French and Italian Note-Books.       MORI         Corest Antres (Danning	Villian
Citylization in Enginad and France, Spann       BAMILTON'S Lectures       and         and Sociand. New edition of the entire       6.0         ORENTLE'S Works. Chesspedition.       6.0         OR RIVILE'S Works. Chesspedition.       6.0         O ARLYTLE'S Works. Chesspedition.       6.0         O ARLYTLE'S Works. Chesspedition.       6.0         O ARLYTLE'S Works. Chesspedition.       70.1         Yook. Fronch Beroluton., i vols. Jorn       Fronce Santa I. vol.; John         Active Santa I. Vol.; Latter Day Paraphiets, I vol.; Paraphiets, I vol.; Latter Day Paraphiets, I vol.; Latter Day Paraphiets, I vol.; Paraphiets	litical
CABLYLE?S Works. Chespedition. Compris- ing the following: Misseliancous Easays. 7       Mawrence Status (1998)       Mawrence Status (1998)         ing the following: Misseliancous Easays. 7       Now Ellistrated Liberary Edition, Nine vols.       Mawrence Status (1998)         ick the Great (19 orb): Crommerile Letters, dot, Status (1998)       Now Ellistrated Liberary Edition, Nine vols.       March         Sterling, 1901, 146 of Scaling Fractor and Pressol.       Latter Day Pamphiets, 1901, 1901, 1902       Now Ellistrated Liberary Edition, Nine vols.       March         Other Sterling, 1901, 146 of Scaling Fractor and Pressol.       Latter Day Pamphiets, 1901, 1904, 1904       Now Ellistrate and the Stithedale Bornance, and Missel Strain, 1904, 1904, 1904       More Note-Scolar, The American Note-Sc	e Sul rty-l prese
DARPENTERS (DR. W. D.). In a fractioner of Monitor of Monitor The American Note-Books.       MOLD         of Monitor by Straining as Display of the Moriola of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor the Monito	moru
DARPENTERS (DR. W. D.). In a fractioner of Monitor of Monitor The American Note-Books.       MOLD         of Monitor by Straining as Display of the Moriola of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor the Monito
DARPENTERS (DR. W. D.). In a fractioner of Monitor of Monitor The American Note-Books.       MOLD         of Monitor by Straining as Display of the Moriola of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor the Monito
DARPENTERS (DR. W. D.). In a fractioner of Monitor of Monitor The American Note-Books.       MOLD         of Monitor by Straining as Display of the Moriola of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor of the Monitor the Construction of the Monitor the Monito	LEY
BGBA	JLTO me St
OHANNING (WM. ELLERY, D.D). The Per- feet Life. In Tweive Discourses. Edited from his manuscripts by his nephew, Wm. 1.69     Okigoric Days     1.00     1.00       Henry Channing	lence from his manuacritic by his depices, with the feature of the prost of the preside.       160 WELLd'S (WILLLAB D.) Their Wed- ting Journey 2.00       art The prost Network of the preside.       art The prost Network of the preside.       100 WELLS'S (WILLLAB D.) Their Wed- ting Journey 2.00       art The prost Network of the preside.       art The prost Network of the preside.       2.00       Lest N.ABB Statis Williams, the Mountain Girl Illus .       art Network of the preside.       100       NABB Williams, the Mountain Girl Illus .       art Network of the preside.       100       NABB Williams, the Mountain Girl Illus .       art Network of the preside.       100       Network of the preside.       Network of	ion fr
Heary Onsamue     2.00     The       OHANNING (WM. ELLERY). Thoreau:     Subtract State     2.00     Lect       Subtract State     Subtract State     2.00     Lect       The Foot Naturalist. With Memorial Verse.     2.00     Lect     2.00       OHENET (Miss. E. D). Patience. A Series     1.00     A Chance Acquaintance     1.00       Social Gennes. A new Series of Games for     1.00     HUGO'S (V.) New Novel, "Ninety-Three", 1.75       Bally Willisms, the Mountain Girl. Time-     1.00     TOMEOLD'T (ALETANDER VON). Life of, Heat	ratur
OBENET (MES. E. D). Patience. A Series of Thirty Games for the Firedde	ctures
Bocial Games. A now Series of Games for Parties, uniform with Patience	Cirk
Bally Windshind, the second the translated from the German. 2 vols., with	brow fintor a Son
Common-Sense in Beligion 2.00 HUNT'S (MES. HELEN). Verses 1.25 Ph	tholic f the bilan
GLODD (EDWARD). The Childhood of the HUXLEY'S Man's Place in Nature	elam, e Reli ninst
World	tters
Darwiniam in Morals, and other Essays 5.00 Animals	eeche nons. Idition
CONWAY (MONCUBE D.) The Earthward INGELOW'S (JEAN) Poems	itical storio
OORBELATION and Conservation of Foress: A Series of Expositions by Grove, Hein- INGELOW'S (JEAN) Prose, Off the Skal-	on, An roduc
balts, Mayor, Farsday, Liebig and Carpen- ter: with an Introduction by Edward L. Studies for Stories	gains e two Tournama, m.D.         Tournam	ad M
ley, Whewell, Faraday, Spencer, Draper, Masson, Lyell, etc. Edited by Edward L. INGEEBOLL'S (ROBT, G.), The Gods and Other 200 PHEL	d the
Tournaas. DALL, (Mus. CAROLINE B). The College, the Market, aud the Gourt; or, Woman's Reference of Water, in Clouds, Rain, Rivers, Ice, and Glaciers. By John Tyn- Las	tes A
Beistion to Education, Employment, and	e Hile
Bistorical Pictures Refouched; a Volume the Application of the Principles of "Natural Networks," and "Inheritance" PROC	OTEL
"Studies, Pictures, and Fandles" Las / to routing society. D) which beganning they and	-

POPULAB BOOKS,

NO EXTRA

Balles & Google

M. ALTMAN & CO.,

Sixth Ave. and Ninsteenth St., N. Y.

612

Birth Ave. and Minsteenth St., N. Y.
MORRIS ALTMAN begs to state to his old friends and patrons that he has made stade are been used as a state of the state. State of the state

Notion Department.

All goods incidental to this department, not berein comprised, are in stock, and will se fur-mished at equally low prices. Clark's Q. N. T. Spool Cotton, warranted, at 68c.

per do. Clark's Cotton in black spools at 68c, per doz. Brooka's Glazed Cotton, white, black and col-ored, 68c, per doz. Coatas's white, black and colored Cotton at 68c. per doz. per doz. per doz. Corticell's and Belding's black and colored Seving Silk, 100 yard spools, at 10c, per spool. Corticell's black and colored Button Hole Twist at 2c, per spool. Knitting Cotton, white and colored, at 3c, per ball.

ball. Milward's best Hellz needles at 5c. per paper. Crowiey's patent Hellz Needles at 5c. per paper. Milliner's best needles at 5c. per paper. Best American Pins at 5c. per paper Bod upwards. Preient Seitor Pins at 6c. per dos. Pronch Hair Pins in all sizes, 2 papers for 3c. Best English Hair Pins, all sizes, at 6c. per paper. Best English Hair Pins, all sizes, at 6c. per paper. box. English Pin Books, black and white assorted, at 15c, Mourning Pins, in all also at 15c. Mounting Pins, in all sizes, at 6c, and upwards. Buttoms of every description, in all the leading styles, greatly reduced, from 16c, to $1 per dox. Black and colored Alpaca Braids, 5 yd. places, Black and colored Alpace Braids, 6 yd. pisces, at 60. "Can't break 'em" Corset Steels at 162. per pair. Dotton Corset Laces, al thorgths, at 162. per doz. Linen Shoe Laces at 42. per dos. "Whatsbonnes, full lengths, at 462. per doz. "Set Beads, at lizes, every variety in lakest nov-sites, at 30. per bunch. "As department is replete with the thousand and me article perioding thereto, impossible to men-Dresamakers. Multipers and Store. Keeness with herein. Pressmakors, Milliners and Store-keepers a supplied with goods on unusually advant bus terms, and every care and dispatch will d in filling orders.

Millinery Department.

One of the largest and the most elegant and ordiginal assoritoments of imported novelies to be found in this city is now in stock, including the following specialties. All goods selling lower than any other bouse :-

anan any other Boune; -A beautiful assoritment of French Flowers, in Bores, Buds, Pausies, &c. Floral Dress Trimmings and Bridal Wreaths, branched to order in any style. A Ene assoritment of Poinpons, Festhers and Floral breas branched to order in any style. A flae assoriment of Poinpons, Peathers and Wings. An extensive assoriment of Fancy Feathers from 25c, apwards. All the newcet shades of Ostrich and Plume de Coef for thirming from 85c, and upwards. All the newcet styles of Blue Blood and Jet Or-ment of the Newcet prices. Second upwards. Fine French Ostrich Tips, in all shades, 85c, and upwards.

and upwasus. Dime French Ostrich Tips, in all anaous, sur-upwards. The intest shapes in Feit Hats, best quality, at $1.16. Elegant imported Feit Hats, best quality, at $1.16. Drab Feit Hats, of the lettest and most fashion-able atyles. at 86c and upwards. Bilk Valvet Hats, of our own importation, in all qualities at great bargains. Evening Bonnets, siggantly trimmed, from $20 to $30.

Evening bounds, esgency summed, from $20 to $30. Carriage Bonucts, exquisite in design and qual-ity, from $13 to $30. Ladies' and Missee' Bonnets, for Missee' and ready frimmed, as for all shapes and shades, ready frimmed in fast styles. From $10 to $15. Infants' Caps in all the new styles at great her-gains, or made to order at lowest prices. Mouraing Goods made to order at the partiest uotics.

Silks.

Black Silks of excellent quality at $1 and $1.19. Black Silks, better and wider, at $1.33, $1.00 and $2. Gross Grain Silks, very fiches grades, $1.56 to $2. Gross Grain Silks, very fiches grades, $1.58 and Colored Trimming Silks, in all abades, $1.38 and

B1.50. d Dress Sliks, latest styles, $1.35, $1.50, $2, ck Sating, beautiful lustre, at $1.60. $1.75

nd $2. ored Satins, all fashionable shades, $1.30, $7, nd $2.25. CR and Colored Velvets at $1.80, $2, $2.50 nd $3.

and $3. Silk Cloak Velvets at $5, $6, $5 and $10. Black Velvetsen, splendla manufacture, at 80c., 7c. and $1, worth $1 and color. Bash Shubes in every shade and color. Sash Shubens in all colors and widths, from 65c. and upwards. Colored Fringed Sashes, all the new shades, at very low prices.

Colored Sringed Sahaes, all the new shades, at very ow press. LACE ON THE CONSTRUCTION OF STATE The same use of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state of the same state same state of the same state of the same state of the same state same state state of the same state of Lace Tidles, in every variety, at i0c. and up-wards.

Lace Tidles, in every variety, at 16c. and upwards.
Ladies' Underclothing.
Avainable reduction in prices has taken place in this department, and we emphatically lists that no other house caroover with which the point of the p

$1.50. Hostery, &c. Ladies' iron frame Hose, szcelleni quality, 25c. per pair. Ladies' full Regular-made Hose at 25c. per pair, Ladies' ful Balbriggan Hose, at $2.50 per ½ dos.,

Ladies' fine Balforiggan Hose, at $2.50 per ½ dos., upwards. Ladies' Striped Hose, every quality, tôc, per pair and upwards. A full line of Ladies' Cashmere and Woolen Hose at lowrest prices. Children's White and Colored Hose. In every Biyls. Charticular specialty. Center Youl, Begular ½ Hose, cheapest in the city, at 22c, per pair. Gents' Houl, Begular ½ Hose, cheapest in the city, at 22c, per pair. Gents' Houl, Begular ½ Hose, cheapest in the city, at 22c, per pair. Gents' Houriso and Cashmere Hose at 43c, and upwards.

upwarda. Handkerchlefs, superior quality, Gents' Linco Handkerchlefs, superior quality, Bo, and upwards. Gents' Hemstitched Handkerchlefs, all lincu, 39c.

ients' Hemistiched Mangkerchiets, au mises, soo and upwards. We have just received a fine assortment of Acies' and Gions's Eld Gioves, including the foi-owing specialties. Every pair ripping or tear-ng will be replaced on application:-uggle-Button Black and Colored Kid Gioves, 50c, Migle-button DBR& and Course and Ontersore, per pair. Nazi grade, better, warranted, 3-buttoned, 96c. "Aliman J" Keld Glove, our own make, in black and all Zashlonable shafes, 3-buttoned at $1.25 and all fashionable shades, 2-buttoned at give new pair. Every pair exchanged for new if the one pur-chased should rip or tear. "Josephine" Real Kid Giove, an axcellent wear-ing giova. at 31.80 per pair. Gaumbiet Gioves, every color and shade, at 63c. and upwards. A large assortment of Woolen Gioves for Ladies, Gents and Childeen, at the lowest prices, from 25c. to $1.00 per pair. Gents fine French Dogskin Gioves, every color, at 31.29 per pair. Gents fine French Gioves, excel.cut wear, So. per pair.

Gents' Furnishing Goods. This department is replete with a splendidly norted stock, and our prices are such as under-til any other establishmout where quality is in-sell any other selections much ware quality is in-cluded. 100 dor. Genta' Merino Shirks and Drawers, 60c. 80 dor. Genta' Eco Fisancel, woren very fine, at 8.68 and upwards. "Our own make" Dress Shirk, perfect fit, made of Warnsuta Muslin, fine Linen Bosoms, open or closed at back, at 812.09 per 25 doz. Extra-fine, perfectly-fitting Dress Shirks, New York Mills Muslin, with Richardson's best linen bosoms, made in any style to order, at $14.00 per 25 doz.

bosoma, made in sur experience 5' dor. Gents' White Dress Shirts as low as $1.00 each. Gents' Morino Undershirts at $5c. up to $2.00. Gents' Suspenders, every variety, at $2c. and up-version of the state of

Windsor Scarfs, best quality, at 89c. and upwards. Gents' Wide and Colored Ties in ondiess variety the. a' Collars and Cuffs in all the latest styles.' a' Collars, pure linen, latest styles, at $2.00 per dog. Genta' Columbia 3-ply linen Collars, at $1.50 per doz. Genia turn-down Collars at $1.75 per doz. Genia 'J-ply Cuffs at 25c, per pair. Genia' St. James Cuffs, 3-ply, all linen, at 31c per mair pair. Genta' Elmwood Eaper Collars at 23c. per box. Genta' Superlor Paper Collars at 23c. per box. Genta' souperlor Paper Collars at 23c. per box.

box. A large assortment of Boys' Merine Shirts and Drawers at 50c. Ladies' Morocco Pocket Books from 16c. and up-Lautes' Morocco Pocket Books from ide, and up-wards. Ladies' real Russian Losther Pocket Books from 3cc, and upwards. Ladies' and Misses' Merino Vests and Drawers, all prices.

Tollet Department, Jewelry,

Tooth Brushes, excellent to best, from 10c. to 30c. Nail Brushes, excellent to best, from 10c. to 30c. Nail Brushes, every style, from 12c. and upwards. Hair Brushes, every style, from 20c. to 31. Dressing Combs from 10c. and upwards. Hand Mirrors, elegant designs, from 11c. to 31. Tortoise-Shell Back Combs from 15c. to 31.

Ladies' Rubber Belt Buckles from 25c, and up-Ladies' Rubber Belt Buckles from 25c, and up-wards. Ladies' Jet Beit Buckles from 25c, and upwards. Ladies' Jet Berrings, Intest denign, from 15c, to 52. Ladies' Braceleta, of all kinds, from 35c, to 51. Ladies' Eacher Beits from 30c, and upwards. Ladies' Beside Tockets from 30c, and upwards. Ladies' Beside Tockets from 30c, and upwards. Ladies' Beside Tockets from 30c, and upwards. Ladies' Testher Beits from 40c, and upwards. Ladies' Testher Batchels, 10. newest styles, 51.50 and upwards. Boys' and Childrens' full, regular-made Shirts and Drawers, at 71c, and upwards. Children Scholl as from 50c, ho 50c, wards. Children Scholl as from 50c, ho 50c, wards. Ladies' Lies from 25c, and upwards. Ladies' Lies from 25c, and upwards. Ladies' Liene Chilfs from 5c, per pair and up-wards.

OUR

NEW

O of English and American Free Thought Books sent Free', Address J. FRANCIS RUGGLES, BIBLIOPOLE, BROMBOR, MICE.

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT. CONSTANT BELT LOIMENT 4.--At home, male of female, 50 a week was-ranted. No capital required. Particular and valuable sample sear free. Address with six-cent return atamp. C. B088 Williamsburg, N. Y.

G. L. HENDERSON & CO., BANKERS, LEROY, MINN Branch Office, 157 Broadway, N. T.

Branch Office, 157 Broadwar, N. Y. Money Invested in First Mortgress on Im-proved Farms in Minnesots and Jowa, run-ning three to fire years, with Compon Interest Notes, drawing 9 per cent, annually in ad-vance, or ten per cent, paid semi-annually in free of expense to the Lonner, annually, free of expense to the Lonner, annually, free of expense to the Lonner, and on receipt of money at the Bank, or in New York, till invested. For Full Farticular, send for Circular, ST BROATWAY NEW YORK

137 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES, paying 8 to 10 per cent. interest, or Investments in Beal Estate in Ohioage and vicinity,

if judiciously made, are the best and safest modes of employing capital. The old Real Estate and Loan Agency

OF ERNST PRUSSING, 143 RANDOLPS STREET Chicago (Established 1853),

Guarantees perfect title and ample security in all its Beal Estate Loans. Firstclass securities always on hand, in-terest and principal collected without charge. Real Estate Investments made on commission or on abarce; tares paid, &c. Orders of capitalists and real estate own-ers respectfully solicited.

RADICAL LECTURES.

BY B. F. UNDERWOOD.

The Triumphs of Liberal Throught, and the Duties of Liberal Minds.
 What Liberalism offers as a Substitute for Christianity.
 The Cosmic Conception of the Uni-verse.

Evolution versus Creation.
 Darwiniam-What it is, and the Proofs in Favor of it.
 The Origin and Development of Lan-transmission.

9. Anthropology the Key to Theology. 8. The Influence of Christianity. 9. The Crimes and Cruelties of Christ-ianity. 10. The Popular Arguments for the Bible Provided

11. Popular Objections to "Infidelity" An-

11. Popular Objections to "Infidelity" An-wered.
 12. Bible Prophecies Falsified by the Facts of History.
 13. Judalem and Christianity Outgrowths of Prežaistent Heathenism.
 14. The Four Gespile tested by the Com-mon Canons of Historical Criticism.
 15. Fallacies and Assumptions of Theolo-gians Regarding the Bible and Christianity.
 16. The French Revolution of '53.
 17. Thomas Paine - the Fioneer of Free Thought in America.
 18. A True Man versus a True Christian.
 19. Christianity and Intellectual Progress.
 20. Fancies and Fallacies about 60d.
 21. Naturalism versus Supernaturalism.
 44davas

A very acceptable and permanently useful present to a musical friend will be one of the following valuable works, for sale at all Music Stores, or will be sent by mail, post-paid, for retail price.

JUST PUBLISHED!

PIANO AT HOME.

250 large pages filled with the best Piano Ducts (4-hand pieces), furnishing an unfail-ing fund of home entertainment.

ORGAN AT HOME. For Red Organs. 200 very popular easy places.

200 very popular easy pleces. Gems of Gorman Song. Vocal. Gems of Sacred Song. Vocal. Gems of Socitish Soog. Vocal. Gems of Strauss. Instrumental. Wreath of Gems. Vocal. Operatic Fearls. Vocal. Sliver Chord. Vocal. Shower of Fearls. Vocal Duets. Musical Treasure. Vocal and Instrumental. Planist's Album. Instrumental. Planotoric Gems. Instrumental. All the Stema related a substitute and mil-rianotorie Genne. Instrumental. All the above aplendid collections are uni-form in style and binding, have 200 to 200 large pages each, are filled with the meet popular music, and cost in Boards, each $2.50. In Cloth, $3.00. Full Gill, $4.0. Elegantly bound and most interesting books are also the Liver of Hundel, Moarf Weber, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, etc., etc. Frice from $1.75 to $2.00 per volume.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,

stamming Google

BOFTON CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.

THI BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

B.F. UNDERWOOD, 54 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

GIFT BOOKS.

Address

x

MUSICAL

CATALOGUE

Ladies' Linen Collars and Investor. Ladies' Linen Collars from 7c, and upwards. Ladies' Linen Collars from 5c, per pair and up-wards. Ladies' Linen Collars from 5c, and upwards. Ladies' Undernicevas from 5c, and upwards. Ribbons of all styles, colors and widths at prices that will satoufak contomers. In Velvets, Velveteens, and all kindred goods. We have a full stock, from which we cut on bid-me have a full stock, from which we cut on bid-that will satoufak contomers. In Velvets, Velveteens, and all kindred goods. We have on hand 600 pieces of worsted, ball and thisted Fringes, now so much in use, in the unterstand of the store of 4c, per yard. Fory different styles of Baded Clinps and Pringes, at present so much in use, in the unterstand of the store of 4c, per yard. We there on hand 600 pieces of worsted, ball and thisted Fringes, now so much in use, in the unterstand of the store of 4c, per yard. Fory different styles of Baded Clinps and Pringes, at present so much in use, in the unterstand of the store of a store of a store we have on hand 600 pieces of the price willing to be paid, we will give entire satisfaction, or re-ward in stored as possible, and the price willing to a be ald, we will give entire satisfaction, or the mark be alder and marks for the readers of this path is defined to a sil orders coming through the Liberal papers, and having for many vear past lined ordines for the readers of this path at the style required, the measurement, and good not mentioned horein, inclinding such may be entirely out of our line, will be as jud-prices to be and on a sanywhere in the United States. Ladles' and Missee' Suits and Geuta-man's de entire of the price stillar of the geuta for the states. Ladles' and Missee' Suits and Geuta-man's de ont mentioned horein, inclinding such and should the price ondered to yorder as those en-moration, and in weight endired to good the mentioned of states. Ladles' and Missee' Suits and Geuta-mentioned bast mentioned horein of the firm o

M. ALTMAN & CO., 6th Ave. and 19th St., N. Y. City. New York Nov. 11.

FAMILY PUPILS .- Two or three r more pupils, girls or boys, over thirteen, will be received into the family of the subscrib-et. Address E. A. H. ALLEN, SHERBORN, MASS.

NONPAREIL Farm Feed, Bone, Bries, Also Cotton-Seed Hullers, Ton Sizes, Also Cotton-Seed Hullers, Illustrat-ed pamphets free, Address SEDGEBEER, SHEPARD & MILLER, 181 East Front Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

FREE DISCUSSION

L la beld at HOSPITALLER HALL, 683 Washing-ton Street, Boston, every Sunday, at 10% A.M., 1% and 7% P.M. All that relates to the Beligious, Political, and Social interests of mankind consti-tute the subjects for discussion. THE INDEX and Index Tracts are for sale every Sunday at Ecospitalier Hall.

HISTORY OF THE CONFLICT

Religion and Science.

TYNDALL'S ADDRESS.

We have now for sale at this office the lat-sstedition of Prof. Tyndall's recent Address before the British Association. It is the edition revised and authorized by Prof. Tyn-dall himself, and contains a preface by him and additions to the Address, made since the delivery. Price, THENTY CENTS. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston.

IN ENGLAND.

THE INDEX will be forwarded free by post to any part of the United Kingdom on re-ceipt of an annual subscription of Fifteen Shillings. For Haif Year, Eight Shillings. Remittances abould be made by Interna-tional P.O. Order payable to F. E. Abbot. Address THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston, U.S.A.

OUTLINES OF COSMIC PHI-

OUTLINES OF COSMIC FHI-LOSOPHY. Based on the Docirine of Evolution, with Criticisms on the Fositive Philosophy. By John Fiske, anthor of "Mythe and Myth-Makers," etc. 2 vols. 8vo. $6.00. An important work, containing a careful and popular exposition of Herbert Spencer's philosophy, trenchant criticisms npon the Positive Philosophy, and a thoughtful study of the relation between Science and Re-ligion.

Igion. Price, 2 vols., post-paid, $6.00, For sale by THE INDEX, 1 Tremont Place, Boston

H. H. CHANDLER, W. S. EDES, D. M. LORD.

H. H. CHANDLER & CO.,

NEWSPAPER Advertisement Brokers.

Chicago, Illinois.

Lists sent upon application. F Send for estimates.

RELIGIOUS and AGBIOULTURAL NEWSPA-PERS a specialty. Complete files for inspection of advertisers

INDE

HE

For

By JOHN WILLIAM DRAPER. Forsale at a office. Price-One dollar and seventy-cents. Address THE INDEX, No. 1 Tremont Place, Boston

Inder.

Three Dollars a Year.

LIBERTY AND LIGHT.

VOLUME 5.

ð

BOSTON, MASS., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1874.

WHOLE NO. 260.

Single Copies Seven Cents.

ORGANIZE! THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM.

THE DEMANDS OF LIBERALISM. 1. We demand that churches and other scelesiastical property shall no longer be exempt from just taxation. 2. We demand that the employment of chaplains in Con-gress, in State Legislatures, in the navy and militia, and in prisons, asylume, and all other institutions supported by public money, shall be discontinued. 3. We demand that all public appropriations for educa-tional and charitable institutions of a sectarian character shall cease.

4. We demand that all religious services now sustained y the government shall be abolished; and especially that he use of the Bible in the public schools, whether estensi-ly as a text-book or arowedly as a book of religious wor-hip, shall be prohibited. by t the bly i ship or an religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease. 6. We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the government shall be abol-ished, and that simple affirmation under the pains and pen-alties of perjury shall be established in its stead. 7. We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforc-ing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be re-pealed.

6. We demand that the appointment, by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States, of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

peaked. 8. We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of "Christian" morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights, and imparital liberty. 9. We demand that not only in the Constitutions of the United States and of the several States, but also in the practical administration of the asme, no privilege or ad-vantage shall be conceded to Christianity or any other spo-cial religion; that our entire political system shall be found-ed and administered on a purely secular basis; and that whatever changes shall prove necessary to this end shall be consistently, unfilichingly, and promptly made.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION.

A FORM OF LOCAL ORGANIZATION. Fraveras, it is our profound conviction that the safety of republican institutions is imperilled, the advance of olvili-sation impeded, and the most sacred rights of man in-fringed, by the least interference of the State in matters of religion; and religion; and Whereas, Certain grave inconsistencies with the general splrit of the United States Constitution still mark the pra-tical administration of our political system, threatening the perpetuity of religious liberty, the existence of free public schools, and the peace and prosperity of the entire land; THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, hereby associate our-selves together under the following

ARTICLIN OF AGREEMENT.

ART. 1 .- The name of this Association shall be THE LIB-na rigot. ART. 4.—Such measures shall be adopted for raising funds or the League as shall be prescribed in the By-Laws by a wo-thirds vote of the members.

Asr. 6.- Any person may become a member of the League by subscribing his or her name to these Articles of Agree-by structuring in or taking of the League shall be a President, Asr. 8.—The Officers of the League shall be a President, a Vice President, a Beerstary, a Treasurer, and an Execu-tive committee of three members; and their duties shall be those commonly pertaining to these offices. The President and Secretary shall be ac-officio delegates to the National Convention of Liberal Leagues when called together. Asr. 7.—These Articles of Agreement may be amended by a three-fourths vote of the members present at any reg-ular meeting, provided due notice of the proposed amend-ments shall have been sent to every member at least two weeks previous to such meeting.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM AMENDMENT:

PROPOSED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE U. S. CONSTITUTION.

ABTIOLE 1.

ARTOR 1. BEGTER 1. — Congress shall make no law respecting an as-filigion, or favoring any particular form of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow. The stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the dow. The stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form any freligion, or prohibiting the free exercises thereof; or the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the stabilishment of religion, or favoring any particular form of religion, or prohibiting the free exercises thereof; or right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition test shall serve be required as a condition of suffrage, or as and no person shall serve in any Other of suffrage, or as and no person shall serve in any Other of suffrage, or as particular, in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or set as the may black the subject of religion. — Bertormance at religion. — Bertormance at religion. — Bertormance at consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-gent in consequence of any public or private duty, or ren-tions of the second section of this Article by appropri-ate legislation.

For List of Liberal Leagues, see next page.

THE BISHOP of London has just prohibited Bishop Colenso from preaching in his diocese, KING KALARAUA is the "sensation" of the day. The next one will probably be the Emperor of Hull.

THE CERISTIAN AMENDMENT Convention is in session in Boston, as this issue of THE INDEX reaches its readers.

WHERE is the official interrogation of Mr. Potter's society as to its Christian standing? The delay begins to be distressing.

THE MEXICAN Congress has been debating the complete separation of Church and State. The same question in a milder form must come up in the United States.

THE Massachusetta Commission on taxation of church property, etc., are expected to report to the Legislature during the first week of the approaching session. While this report is pending, the proper course is to wait patiently.

Now AND THEN the Liberal Christian has an article which shows that Unitarianism gets rid of some of its sectarian dualities as it gets out of New England. Yet we must say that it grows less and less "Christin proportion as it grows more and more ian' "Liberal."

DR. CULLIS and his friends are holding a public fair in Boston, to support the Consumptives' Home which he declares is sustained solely by prayer! There is something inexpressibly revolting to a sound conscience in this persistent and unblushing misrepresentation.

THE present position of the Papacy was well expressed by Pius Ninth, when he said to Cardinal Guidi in 1870: "La tradition c'est moi." Louis XIV. declared that he was the State; the Pope now declares that he is the Church. By-and-by he will declare that he is the Almighty.

MR. ROBERT REITZEL, of the Free Religious Society in Washington, lectured last Sunday evening at the hall of the Boston Turnverein on the poetry of Mirza Schaffy, the Persian poet. Tuesday evening, he lectured in the same place on "Modern Superstition among both Catholics and Protestants." His lectures have been highly praised.

ABCHBISHOP MANNING is a sly reasoner. He declares that "subjects are bound in all things which are lawful to obey their rulers." But as the Church alone has the right to determine what things are lawful, the declaration is no admission that the Church is not above the State. The low cunning of such a sophism is likely to excite a well-grounded aversion.

BISMANCK has publicly declared that Napoleon was dragged into the Franco-German war against his will by Jesuitical influences. The world is beginning to find out that the Vatican decrees of 1870 expressed a renewed purpose to make the Papacy politically supreme. The Roman Church comes forward as the avowed enemy of popular education, political liberty, and the public peace.

MR. JOHN FISHE claims to be a Christian. But he avows opinions concerning God which the "Liberal Christians" would undoubtedly consider atheistic. There is nothing in the Constitution of the American Unitarian Association to prevent his joining it and being elected its President! The Association admits athelats, if they profess an esteem for "pure Christianity." Nothing but a creed will protect it from being captured by a brigade of Büchners.

LET IT NOT be forgotten by those who are sceptical as to the influence of the Christian Amendment party that they carried a recognition of "God in the Constitution" into the new Constitution of Pennsylvania on May 23, 1873. Only seven of the States' Constitutions are to-day free from theological allusions; and, if the question of recognizing God in the United States' Constitution were to-day put to the vote of the whole people, the chances are great that it would be affirmative. We hear the opposition, but not the approval. It is radicalism, not conservatism, that does the talking; but it is always conservatism that does most of the voting.

PRESIDENT GRANT announces in his message that he shall shandon the civil service reform, if Congress adjourns without positive legislation on the subject. This throws on Congress the responsibility of defeating the attempt to secure better appointees to civil offices. The patronage system is the chief source of corruption in the government; and both the President and Congressmen should be relieved of the irresponsible power they now exercise in this matter. Every conceivable provision for raising the average of character and ability among civil officers ought to be made. Let Congress be caused to know that the people will no longer excuse it for neglecting or secretly working against this most needed reform.

REV. S. M. CAMPBELL, D. D., a Presbyterian clergyman, denies that his denomination teaches, or within his knowledge has ever taught, the doctrine of infant damnation. The Independent refers to Calvin on this point as "fairly entitled to rank as a representative Presbyterian," and quotes this passage of his: " 'For, inasmuch as the conditions of birth and death were alike to infants who died in Sodom and those who died in Jerusalem, and there was no difference in their works, why will Christ at the last day separate some to stand at his right hand, others at his left? Who will not adore this wonderful judgment of God, whereby it comes to pass that some are born at Jerusalem, whence soon they pass to a better life; whilst Sodom, the gates of the lower regions, receives others at their birth'? -De Æterna Des Predestinatione, Tom. VIII, 811."

THE SUNDAY question is opened again in New York. Puritanism is not dead there yet. Even the Independent declares that it "desires to stand just as firmly as anybody for a quiet Sunday;" meaning, we infer, that it is opposed to permitting "sacred concerts" at which passages from Don Giovanni and La Grande Duchesse are mingled with "sacred" music. How Don Giovanni makes Sunday any less "quiet" than the Creation or the Messiah, is not apparent; and the Independent's remark is a little amusing, conaldering how it lectured THE INDEX a year or two ago for "Halting Radicalism." To clear up this matter, we desire to be understood as emphatically in favor of a free Sunday, on which any innocent recrea-tion shall be allowed that does not disturb public worship in the churches. We respectfully submit that it is not our radicalism which haits this time,

FROM POUGHREEPSIE, New York, the statement comes to us privately that "there has lately been organized a Free Religious meeting about twelve miles north-by-east of our city: the direct result of THE INDEX circulation, intensified by monthly ap-pointments and visits. The meeting is growing rapidly, and the light from its fires draws many from the Orthodox fold. We hope the day is coming when representatives from many thousands of such meetings can assemble yearly in one general Congress, not alone to represent Boston, New York, and other cities, but the people, country, town, village, and city. It is said that Free Religion can never meet the wants of the common people; that the speculative, philosophical element of it invites the learned, but starves the commoner. We prove in our experience that it is the 'all-essential' for all conditions of men; and the common people hear us gladly."

GLIMPSES.